Bids Approved For New Public Works Facility

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Bids were approved by the City Council last night for the proposed new Public Works facility for the city at a total project cost of some $1,585,505.

Approval of the overall bid package followed a presentation by one of the firms bidding for the general construction contract, challenging the declaration by the city of another firm as the apparent low bidder.

Contract amounts approved for the project included: J. H. Hudson, general construction, $1,255,057; Coastal Refrigeration, heating, ventilation and air conditioning, $87,770; Stuart Shinn Inc., plumbing, $33,330; Edwards Electric Inc., electrical, $124,154; and Jones & Frank, special construction features, $111,694.

Adjustment of the contract amounts through alternates and the addition of materials costs provided the total project cost of $1,585,505.

J. H. Hudson submitted an initial total bid of $1,515,680, which, according to architect William E. Friend, AIA, represented the low general construction bid. Negotiations with the firm brought the contract figure down to $1,255,057.

Robert Fleming, appearing on behalf of Wimco Corp., told the Council that bidders for the general construction contract were not informed as to exactly what to submit bids on in certain areas of the package and therefore, there was no way the city could compare the bids submitted.

Fleming said that unit prices were requested for certain portions of the work and bidders on the earth work portion of the project were not told what areas to build on. Consequently, he observed, all firms offered different bids in different categories.

The spokesman contended that in the site preparation phase of the project, no bidder could know how much he was bidding on.

Because of the uncertainty, he pointed out, Wimco figured its bid against that uncertainty. Wimco Corp. offered a total bid of $1,547,144, while R. N. Rouse & Co. submitted a bid of $1,550,388.

Fleming pointed out that statutes authorize the city to negotiate with the lowest responsible bidder and he noted that Wimco was willing to negotiate its price on the work.

Allen Pittman, representing Hudson, said that the state allows the city to weigh the bids received and use discretion in awarding the contracts. He contended the statutes say nothing regarding quantities and other specifications that Wimco asserted were not spelled out by the city.

Pittman said the bidders are dealing with a fixed area and anyone could go out and determine the amount of dirt and fill to go in the site.

Friend recommended that the bids be awarded as presented, with J. H. Hudson Inc. as the general contractor.

The initial total bid amount for the Public Works project was in excess of the available funds, according to Friend, and negotiations were necessary in order to reduce the total project cost.

The project site is located off Railroad Street behind Blount Fertilizer Co.

Another Day Of Bad Air

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Southern Californians face another day of dense air pollution today after a week of eye-stinging smog — the worst in almost 25 years — which has sent scores of residents to hospitals complaining of respiratory problems.

There were no reports of deaths attributed to the hazardous smog.

"Our meteorologists tell us there's no end in sight," Jeff Schenkel, a spokesman for the Air Quality Management District, said Thursday. "All we can hope for is a break in the weather to allow the air contaminants to disperse and reduce peak smog levels."

Hazardous air conditions in the San Gabriel and Pomona areas east of the city were predicted for the second day in a row by the AQMD.

In addition, second-stage smog alerts were predicted for eight areas surrounding Los Angeles today, meaning the AQMD told operators of refineries and factories in those areas to reduce emissions by 20 percent, and also ordered some businesses to carpool employees to work.

Vote Probe

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Allegations that tax money was used illegally to haul some eastern North Carolina voters to the polls in the general election last year is being investigated by the State Bureau of Investigation.

Attorney General Rufus Edmisten confirmed Thursday that the SBI was investigating whether Comprehensive Employment and Training Act money was used for election purposes at Roper in Washington County.

Edmisten said that although he was not familiar with details of the probe, "I know there have been allegations that CETA money was used to take people to the polls. That would be entirely illegal."

Frederic Left Path Of Gulf Wreckage

By CHARLOTTE PORTER
Associated Press Writer

President Carter flew South today to personally inspect the suffering cities of the Gulf Coast while the remnants of Hurricane Frederic dumped heavy rains west of the Appalachians, causing flooding in some areas.

Cutting normal red tape, the White House on Thursday designated 30 counties ravaged by Hurricane Frederic in Mississippi, Alabama and Florida as disaster areas. Presidential press secretary Jody Powell said the recovery of the Gulf Coast "is going to take years."

Frederic left six confirmed dead and two others missing and presumed dead on the Gulf Coast and property damage so extensive officials were reluctant to make estimates.

But Florida Gov. Bob Graham said he feared the damage toll from the latest tropical devastation might surpass the $95 million racked up David there.

The 300-year-old port city of Mobile suffered the brunt of the storm Thursday, along with Pascagoula, Miss., and Pensacola, Fla.

Driving rains from what was left of Frederic — little more than a low pressure system — swept north to New York state today sending streams over their banks in western New York and backing up morning rush hour traffic in Buffalo.

The storm, which already had pelted parts of Tennessee, Kentucky, West Virginia and western Pennsylvania with heavy rains, had dumped more than 5 inches of rain on Buffalo, N.Y., by 9 a.m., forcing the closing of all schools in the state's second largest city. Many suburban schools also closed.

Some roads in Buffalo were flooded, stacking up traffic jams several miles long.

Heavy rains in northwestern Pennsylvania this morning caved in the roof of the municipal bus station in Erie, Pa. No injuries were reported but five buses were damaged.

Earlier the storm dumped as much as 7 inches of rain on western and central Kentucky and up to 6 inches on eastern Tennessee. Three inches fell on Cincinnati and Erie as the system moved north.

The National Weather Service issued flash flood warnings for all of western New York and flash flood watches for much of central and northern New York and the Adirondacks as the storm moved across the state in a northeasterly direction at about 20 mph.

On the Gulf Coast, the more than 400,000 residents who had fled continued to return to their homes, some to find nothing left.

"For Sale Cheap," read the sign on one flattened trailer in Mississippi. "Extras: sun roof and solar air."

Towns from Florida to Mississippi sustained heavy damage in Frederic's 130 mph winds and in the tornadoes that trailed the storm. Hundreds of homes were swept from their foundations and businesses were ripped apart.

"It looks like this place has been shelled," said Gulf Shores, Ala., firefighter Ed Currott. Assistant Fire Chief Wade Ward, whose own home was swept away, estimated 90 percent of the businesses and homes in that community were destroyed by the battering winds.

"Looks like King Kong took a stroll through downtown," one Citizens Band radio enthusiast reported of the damage in Mobile, which along with areas around Pascagoula, Miss., and Pensacola, Fla., suffered the brunt of the storm.

Mobile authorities imposed a 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. curfew

Thursday when sporadic looting was reported. In the northern suburb of Prichard, Mayor A.J. Cooper advised policemen to fire two warning shots before shooting to kill looters.

Officials declined to speculate on the extent of damage in that city, where century-old oaks toppled like bowling pins before the winds. One insurer estimated its homeowner claims alone would be $30 million to $60 million.

With hot food nearly impossible to obtain, some service stations did a booming business in chips and warm beer. Thousands of people remained in emergency shelters Thursday night, while others picked their way home to try to assess damage with flashlights and candles.

Vast Reserves Of Oil, Gas Claimed In Arctic Ocean

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Vast reservoirs of oil and natural gas perhaps rivaling those of the Middle East lie hidden beneath the ice above the Arctic Circle, a Canadian oil executive said today.

"The Arctic Ocean has the potential to relieve the world of impending energy shortages by providing an important new geographic source of oil and gas," said G. R. Harrison, senior vice president of Dome Oil Ltd.

"The strategic importance of the Arctic has been enhanced by the prospect of its having oil and gas in quantities that may rival the Middle East," he said in a paper presented on the final day of the 10th World Petroleum Congress here.

Dome Oil has recently announced a crude oil strike in the Beaufort Sea, north of Canada's Alaskan border, which industry analysts say could be the most impressive new find in years.

Harrison said the company hopes to begin exploratory drilling within the Arctic Circle in five years, and market the results three years later. Drilling could begin in two or three years further south, where the sea is not frozen year-round, he said. The most serious problem, he said, is drilling through ice as thick as six feet.

Other experts at the congress have questioned whether any undiscovered oil and gas reservoirs could rival those of the Middle East, but agree only half the world's total supply has yet been tapped.

Daily oil production worldwide has been estimated between 54 and 57 million barrels, with just under half from the Middle East, where about half the world's known reserves are located.

The World Petroleum Congress meets every four years and brings together experts from more than 70 countries. The last congress was held in Tokyo.

City Council Approves One Request For New Discotheque Permit

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The City Council considered two more applications for special use permits to operate discotheques in Greenville last night and, following public hearings, voted to approve one request and to deny the second application.

The Council approved a request by Walter Murrell for a special use permit to construct and operate a discotheque, nightclub and restaurant complex in the 1300 block of W. Fifth Street.

Under questioning by his attorney, Mickey Herrin, the petitioner indicated plans to build another structure in the block or to make additions to an existing facility. A building on the lot designated for the new structure will be demolished, it was mentioned.

Alton Warren, the city's chief building official, reported that he had been invited by Murrell on several occasions to inspect the present facility and inspections were made. Warren said that Murrell has a lot of sufficient size and enough land to meet off-street parking requirements.

Warren, who noted that Murrell probably operated under the most stringent rules in town, recommended approval of the request.

Council members, after receiving a protest petition from residents, voted to deny a request by Diamond Gore for a special use permit to operate a discotheque at 402 S. Memorial Drive. The application was denied on the grounds that certain requirements set forth in the city ordinance were not satisfied.

Attorney Richard Powell submitted a protest petition containing the names of residents who oppose the request. Powell said that to allow the disco operation would create problems that have never existed before for the residents of the area.

The attorney cited the amount of traffic that would be generated and he asked that the city not create a disco situation in an area where citizens have "enjoyed peace and tranquility."

Glen Matheson, an attorney representing Gore, said that his client is concerned with containing the parking for the facility and he understood that arrangements had been made with other business owners adjacent to Gore's prospective facility to utilize parking areas in front of those businesses.

Warren indicated it was not clear as to what size area would be involved in the disco operation and therefore, he could not say exactly how many parking spaces would be needed. He added that one space for each 25 square feet of activity area is required.

The proposed facility is some 60 to 70 feet from the corner of Memorial Drive and Highway 43, it was pointed out. Powell said that a home is located some 40 to 45 feet from the facility.

Council member Mildred McGrath said that in determining findings of fact, the proposed use of the facility does adversely affect the general plans the city has for the area. Residential zoning is adjacent to the site, which is zoned for Downtown Commercial Fringe use.

Councilman Charles Vincent said that judging from the hours of operation for a disco and the proximity of the

Woman Struck By Car, Dies

One person was killed and an estimated $2,000 damage caused in two early-morning collisions here today.

Greenville Police Department investigators reported that Ms. Ella Nobles King, 43 of 1902 West Third St. was killed when struck by a car on Memorial Drive, 30 feet North of the Fifth Street intersection just after midnight.

Driver of the vehicle involved in the mishap was identified as John Henry Cory Jr. 25 of 1101 Colonial Ave.

Investigators said the Cory car was headed North on Memorial Drive when Ms.

King walked into the path of this vehicle.

Damage to the car was set at $800 by officers who made no charges in connection with the death.

An estimated $600 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 12:12 a.m. mishap on Fifth Street, 150 feet East of the Rotary Avenue intersection.

Investigators identified the drivers involved as Carolyn Ann Hawthorne of Fayetteville and Cathy Marie Bullock of Durham.

Police charged Ms. Hawthorne with failing to stop for a stop light.

PAPER BUILD UP

I would like to know whether the program for collecting newspapers has been discontinued. The papers seem to be piling up at the receiving stations.

Hotline talked with Faye Coward of the Eastern Carolina Vocational Center, the organization responsible for the paper collection and recycling. Ms. Coward said that two drivers are assigned to pick up recyclable material, with one specifically assigned to retrieve material from the paper boxes in store and shopping center parking lots around town. The driver goes by on a regular basis, but if someone notices a considerable build up, he or she should call the Vocational Center, 758-1222, and let Ms. Coward know.

Eastern Carolina Vocational Center Director Howard Dawkins noted that the driver goes by the boxes during the weekdays, and not on the weekend, when many people haul old newspapers to the collection sites. That may be why a build up is noticed.

HOTLINE APPEAL

SICK DOG

The Pitt County Humane Society has asked Hotline to appeal for the return of a boxer dog missing from his home in Brook Valley since Wednesday morning.

FOCUS

The Kurds Keep Fighting

Recent newspaper accounts of battles between Kurdish rebels and government troops in Iran have focused new attention on the people of western Asia known as Kurds. The Kurds, have their own language and customs, but no country of their own. They inhabit a region known as Kurdistan, which includes parts of Iran, Iraq, and Turkey. The Kurds have fought off foreign invaders in this area for thousands of years. In 400 B.C., they fought the Greeks. Since then, they have battled Persians, Mongols, Turks, Crusaders from Europe, and Arabs. During this century, the Kurds have often rebelled against their rulers in Iran, Turkey, and Iraq. They have not yet achieved their goal of autonomy, or self-rule.

Find Missing Boy In Texas

By JOE STROOP

DESOTO, Texas (AP) — Three pre-dawn telephone calls led to the recovery of a missing

16-year-old college student who had been feared dead, the victim of an intellectual fantasy game transferred to real life. New Crown For Debbie

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Debbie Shook may have lost her crown as the 1978 Miss North Carolina, but now she has a new set of rhinestones atop her head.

Miss Shook's new crown makes her Miss NAPA National 500. The National Auto Parts Association 500-mile race is scheduled for Oct. 7 at the Charlotte Motor Speedway.

It was only a few months ago that Miss Shook stormed off the set of the annual Miss North Carolina Pageant in Raleigh, kicking her crown when the Jaycees dethroned her for making "unauthorized statements" to the media.

And Charlotte Motor Speedway's Brad Bosworth says that was taken into account when the committee selected the race queen.

"I wouldn't be telling you the truth if I said we didn't think about the controversy," he said. "But as far as I'm concerned I think it's a plus. She can handle pressure and she has experience with the media."

"I know what sort of characteristics are needed for our beauty queen," Bosworth said.

"Sometimes we get a young lady, she's attractive, but in front of 30 or 40 photographers she freezes up. That can make the difference between us having a really good wire photo and not having one."

Muzorewa Denounces His Rivals

By MAUREEN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Denouncing the guerrillas fighting his government as "bloodthirsty murderers," Zimbabwe Rhodesia's prime minister threatened to quit the British-sponsored peace talks if Britain bows to guerrilla demands for control of the former colony. "The time for appeasement is over," Bishop Abel Muzorewa told a news conference Thursday during a break in the slow-moving five-day-old conference. "The time is overdue for the British government to act firmly and decisively." Muzorewa, elected in April as his nation's first black prime minister, said he would reject any attempt "by one or two arrogant dictators in the making to impose themselves or their foreign communist or Marxist ideologies upon our country." Sources said the American-educated Methodist minister was angered by Britain's compromise agenda for the talks, a compromise he earlier accepted. The agenda, proposed by conference chairman Lord Carrington, the British foreign secretary, would permit discussion of guerrilla demands that Muzorewa's administration be replaced by a government that would include the insurgents, and the communist-armed guerrillas be given control of the army.

The prime minister declined to say why his delegation accepted the compromise agenda at Thursday's session of the talks. But he sent a formal note to Lord Carrington saying he had decided to avoid discussion of any but constitutional matters.

Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo, co-leaders of the Patriotic Front guerrilla army and Muzorewa's rivals for control of the southern African nation, had no immediate comment on his attack.

Britain convened the conference in London Monday to rewrite the Zimbabwe Rhodesia constitution and end the seven-year guerrilla war against the Salisbury government.

The existing constitution gives whites 28 of the 100 seats, in Parliament. The whites, who account for 3 percent of the nation's 7.2 million inhabitants, also control top civilian and military posts for up to a decade.

Britain claims whites should have some special representation for, say, five years. But its proposal would strip them the power to block constitutional amendments and end their dominance in the military and civil service.

Relieve More In Recruiter Probe

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The Army has relieved eight more recruiting sergeants from duty. And an Army spokesman at the Pentagon said two of those dismissed came from the Charlotte recruiting district. The dismissals bring to 63 the total number of recruiters dismissed in connection with a Charlotte-based investigation of recruiter fraud.

Maj. Jeff Cook, the Pentagon spokesman, said Thursday two sergeants were relieved in the Charlotte district, which covers the western half of North Carolina and four counties in South Carolina. He said six other sergeants were relieved in the Dallas district, which covers north-central Texas.

The investigation centers on allegations that recruiters illegally coached applicants on entrance exams, furnished bootleg exam copies and doctored educational, medical, criminal and Social Security records to boost enlistments.

So far, the Army has relieved 32 sergeants in the Charlotte district, which normally has 55 recruiters. Nineteen have been suspended in the Dallas district; 8 in Montgomery, which covers Alabama and part of Florida and Georgia; and 4 in Chicago, which covers the metropolitan district.

The Army has also charged five of the Charlotte sergeants with court-martial offenses, and relieved the chief officer of his command. Court-martial dates have not been set.

The probe is being carried out nationwide.

Officials have said the investigation, which began in Charlotte four months ago, probably is the largest the Army has ever had.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Showers are expected in the forecast period until Saturday morning for Atlantic coast states. Showers are also forecast for the Southwest. Cooler weather is due for the Great Lakes and warm weather for the West. (AP Laserphoto Map) mostly in the 70s during Saturday.

If you're traveling to the beach this weekend, brisk south winds and scattered thunderstorms will hamper most activities early Saturday although temperatures will reach highs in the 80s both days. Small craft advisories are in effect.

No flash flooding was reported from the yesterday's rainfall in North Carolina. Up to three inches was reported over sections of the North Carolina mountains during the storm.

Elsewhere across the state scattered showers and thunderstorms caused varying amounts of rainfall but most localities reported about a half inch or less.

Brisk warm south winds yesterday helped temperatures to reach rather warm levels despite considerable cloudiness during the day. Highs were in the 80s except in the 70s in the mountains. New Bern registered a warm 86 degrees.

Skies remained mostly cloudy during the night with scattered rain and drizzle reported from time to time. Temperatures were slow to fall. At daybreak thermometer readings were in the 70s all across the state.

A low pressure system in Eastern Kentucky was all that remained of Frederic. Rains covered the Ohio River Valley and the lower Great Lakes region ahead of this low. Meanwhile widespread cloudiness and scattered showers and thundershowers cover the Eastern United States ahead of a cold front stretching from Lake Erie to Northern Louisiana.

Peanut Brittle Will Please

By CECILY BROWNSTONE, Associated Press Food Editor
DEAR CECILY: Thanks for using my recipe and sending me a copy of it. After having been in two wars, bombed all over the world and shot at on all turns (Southern expression), I have finally got my name in the papers.

Now I'm the one who needs a recipe — a foolproof one for peanut brittle, but not the hard "jawbreaker" kind. I want to use a candy thermometer, know exactly when to put in the soda and have everything come out just right. I have ruined a lot of sugar and peanuts so far. — TEXAS COLONEL

DEAR TEXAS COLONEL: To make peanut brittle that isn't a jawbreaker, we added peanuts to sponge candy. At my house, it was pronounced "the best peanut brittle yet..." Hope it pleases you. — C.B.

PEANUT BRITTLE
(Sponge-candy Style)
1½ cups sugar
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup dark corn syrup
¼ cup water

1½ cups peanuts, see Notes following
1 teaspoon non-lumpy baking soda
Grease a 15½ by 12-inch cookie sheet. In a heavy 1½-quart saucepan stir together sugar, salt, corn syrup and water. Over medium heat, stirring constantly, bring to a boil. Without stirring, boil until a candy thermometer reads 280 degrees (soft crack stage). Stir in peanuts gradually to keep mixture boiling. Stirring often, boil until a candy thermometer reads 300 degrees (hard crack stage). Off heat, quickly but gently stir in baking soda, keeping as many bubbles as possible intact. At once pour onto the middle of the prepared cookie sheet, letting the candy spread itself and retain the bubbles that produce a "sponge" effect. Cool and break into pieces. Makes about 1½ pounds.

Notes: In cooking this brittle a heavy saucepan is essential to prevent scorching that affects flavor; we used an aluminum one that is as thick as a cast-iron pan and is straight-sided so that the thermometer may be easily clipped inside it. The 1½-quart size allows the thermometer bulb to be fully immersed in the small amount of syrup and yet not touch the bottom of the pan.

We bought raw peanuts to use shelled, home-roasted and skinned. If store-bought, skinned, salted peanuts are used, omit the salt in the recipe.

Let Wife Handle His Punishment

By Abigail Van Buren
1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: About a year ago I met a nice-looking man at the shopping center. (I was fishing around in my purse for change for the parking meter and he put his own money in as a gentlemanly act.) After I finished my shopping I came back to my car and this same man was waiting for me. He reminded me of my dear, departed husband, so I offered to buy him a cup of coffee.

We really hit it off from the start. I told him I was a widow and he said he was a widower. We exchanged phone numbers. He said if I called him and a woman answered to hang up because he was living with a nosy sister and he didn't want her to know his business.

We started seeing each other (always at my place and during the afternoon) and we just plumb fell in love. I'm 62 and he's 66.

Suddenly I was served papers! To make a long story short, this man had been married for 42 years, his wife was suing him for divorce and she named me as the cause!

I swear I never knew this man was married. He muddled up my name in this town. How can I teach him a lesson?

TAKEN IN IN MISSOURI

DEAR TAKEN: Never mind the "lesson." This senior swinger has already graduated. Just let his wife handle the punishment.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 23 and happily married. My problem is my mother. She's a sick woman. Not a day goes by that she doesn't play bingo!

Abby, it is driving our family nuts. I have two younger sisters at home who complain because Mum is gone all the time. She knows where all the bingo games are, and she plays night and day. It takes all the money she has, and when she's broke, she borrows from her children.

My father left her because of this. I know it sounds outrageous, but it's the truth. You never in your life saw a woman so crazy over anything as my mother is over bingo. She hardly ever wins, but she keeps going in hopes of winning a big one.

Is there a cure for a bingo freak?

WORRIED ABOUT MUM

DEAR WORRIED: Your mother is addicted to gambling just as surely as an alcoholic is addicted to drink. But she can be helped if she truly wants to be. Urge her to call GAMBLERS ANONYMOUS. If they aren't listed in your phone book, write to P.O. Box 17173, Los Angeles, Calif. 90017.

Many compulsive gamblers have lucked out by joining this wonderful group of people who are living proof that it's possible to win back their self-respect and happy homes after having lost everything.

DEAR ABBY: I am a truck-driver's wife. A few days ago my husband called me long distance to tell me that he was considering changing companies. He asked me to think about it for a few days and let him know how I felt about it.

Well, Abby, the next day he called to tell me that he had already changed jobs. Then he informed me that his new boss was a woman, and also his co-driver!

He assures me that nothing will happen between them, but he has been unfaithful before and I don't trust him. I was terribly upset with this news and I let him know it.

Do you think I'm "childish" for objecting to my husband's driving with a woman partner? He says I am. And what should I do about it?

ALABAMA WIFE

DEAR WIFE: You can't be blamed for feeling as you do. A man who would change jobs without waiting to hear his wife's opinion obviously doesn't much care what she thinks. What you should do depends upon your options.

Fall Coffee Held By Pitt Bar Auxiliary

The Pitt County Bar Auxiliary held a fall coffee meeting Tuesday morning at the home of Mrs. Hoover Taft. Mrs. Louis Singleton and Mrs. William Wooten were co-hostesses.

President Mrs. Lewis Evans introduced Mrs. Betty Kelly who talked concerning her work as forensic coordinator for the Pitt County Mental Health Center.

Two new members, Mrs. Robert Rouse and Mrs. Chris Burti of Farmville, were welcomed into the auxiliary.

Auxiliary members should contact Mrs. Lewis Evans by Oct. 1 if they desire to join the group for the tour of the Raleigh courts Oct. 31. Guests may be included.

United Methodist Women To Meet In Early October

RALEIGH — "See and Know — Serve and Grow" is the theme for the annual meeting of United Methodist Women (UMW) of the North Carolina Conference of The United Methodist Church.

The conference is comprised of 56 eastern counties of the state. Ruth Cade of Fayetteville, president of the Conference UMW, will preside during the sessions in Raleigh Oct. 5-6. The Friday afternoon session, beginning at two o'clock, will be at Highland United Methodist Church. The evening session and the Saturday sessions, 9 a.m.-3 p.m. will be held at the Eden Street Church.

Becky Hackler of Morehead City, vice president of the group, is program chairperson for the annual meeting. Bishop Robert M. Blackburn will bring greetings.

Two national leaders are scheduled to speak. Mai Gray of Kansas City, Mo., president of The Women's Division of The Board of Global Ministries of The United Methodist Church, will speak Friday evening. On Saturday afternoon, she will speak again and install the 1980 officers.

Jean Dorsett of Mount Gilead, vice president of The Women's Division and chairperson of the section on Christian Social Relations, will speak Friday afternoon.

Features of the annual meeting include Holy Communion, a candle burning, music, drama, election and installation of officers, business session, pledge service, fellowship and worship.

Each local unit of United Methodist Women in the conference will be sending at least one delegate to the annual meeting.

Speaks To Local Circle

The Patient Circle of The King's Daughters held its September meeting Wednesday afternoon in the ladies parlor of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church.

President Polly Dail conducted the business. The North American Indian Department chairman said a box of clothing had been sent to Murrow's Indian School, Muskogee, Okla.

Appeals were made for cancelled postage stamps, Campbell Soup labels, eyeglasses and jewelry and members were reminded to bring the items to the October meeting. Miss Mary Wells told the group she had vanilla for sale.

The state convention will be held Sept. 28-29 at the Ramada Inn, Durham, and Dr. James Bailey, pastor of Jarvis Memorial, will be the featured speaker.

The president of the N. C. Branch of The International Order of the King's Daughters and Sons, Inc., Mrs. Sherrill High, gave a talk on Chautauqua and showed slides. The International Order headquarters are at Chautauqua.

Mrs. Bruce Palmer and Mrs. Graham Nahouse were meeting hostesses.

Attorney Is Guest Speaker

The Welcome Wagon Club held its monthly luncheon meeting Wednesday at the Holiday Inn. Local attorney Mickey Herrin was guest speaker.

Plans were announced for a square dance to be held Oct. 26 at the Moose Lodge. President Penny Smith said the club would sponsor a booth at the Carolina East Mall bazaar Oct. 13.

Donna Bassett and Peg Davies were meeting hostesses.

Enriching Proposal Awaits

The Lost Colony may sail again — or at least a group in a ship very similar to that used by the colonists.

The America's 400th Anniversary Committee is studying the possibility of building a replica of a 1580s sailing ship to celebrate the anniversary.

The ship could cost $300,000 to construct and it may be sailed from England to the United States re-tracing the voyage of the ill-fated Lost Colony to Manteo.

Just how the ship would look will have to await a feasibility study to determine if the project is possible. Then one of several sailing ships of the 1500s would serve as a model.

If funds can be found, construction of the ship could be enriching. The voyage would be made to commemorate the 400th anniversary, but the ship could also be put on permanent display — hopefully in North Carolina — following the observance.

The House Is Playing Nero's Fiddle

The modern day example of Nero fiddling, is the U. S. House of Representatives voting down Selective Service registration of 18-year-olds.

The action was taken this week even as the manpower pool of military aged people reaches an era when it will be shrinking.

The action was taken in the face of potential enemies who rely on military conscription to maintain their armed forces.

The House action puts the nation in a dangerous position insofar as meeting its military manpower needs in the event of an emergency.

Surveying Class Of '72

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — In a world shaped by exploding technical knowledge, young people prepared for jobs in engineering and health fare better than their peers when it comes time to land a job.

For the Class of '72, engineering leads the field. Salaries are the highest ($13,200 annual average), and jobs available— 93 percent who majored in engineering found jobs. That is $3,700 per year higher than the average for all college graduates in the group.

The Class of '72 is a special group known officially as participants in the National Longitudinal Study by the Research Triangle Institute for the National Center for Education Statistics, an agency of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. More than 20,000 1972 high school graduates are participating in the continuing survey.

The most recent step was to discover how many went on to college, how they fared there, and further developments in their lives since the spring of 1972.

Equal As of October, 1976, 72 percent were employed, either full or part time. About nine percent were unemployed, and 19 percent were not in the labor force. As many women as men held professional or managerial jobs.

In fact, the apparent slackening of racial or sexual prejudices highlighted the continuing saga of the Class of '72.

"The Class of 1972 claims to have experienced little sex discrimination in education, and few whites believe they have been treated unfairly because of race. A substantial number of blacks and Hispanics, in contrast, claim to have been treated unfairly in getting a good education.

"Interestingly enough, even more claim to have been given a special advantage because of their race," one highlight of the report recently explored in the RTI magazine "Hypotenuse" stated.

After graduating from high school in 1972, the students went on to jobs or college. Looking back now, they are essentially more negative about their high school education. Nearly two-thirds of them say their school should have placed more emphasis on vocational programs and practical work experience.

Of those who entered college, 39 percent had a bachelor's degree four years later; 26 percent were still enrolled; and 35 percent had dropped out.

But then, a lot of those who dropped out of college came back, showing an increasing tendency among students to "stop-out" of college for short periods.

BILL

NOBLITT

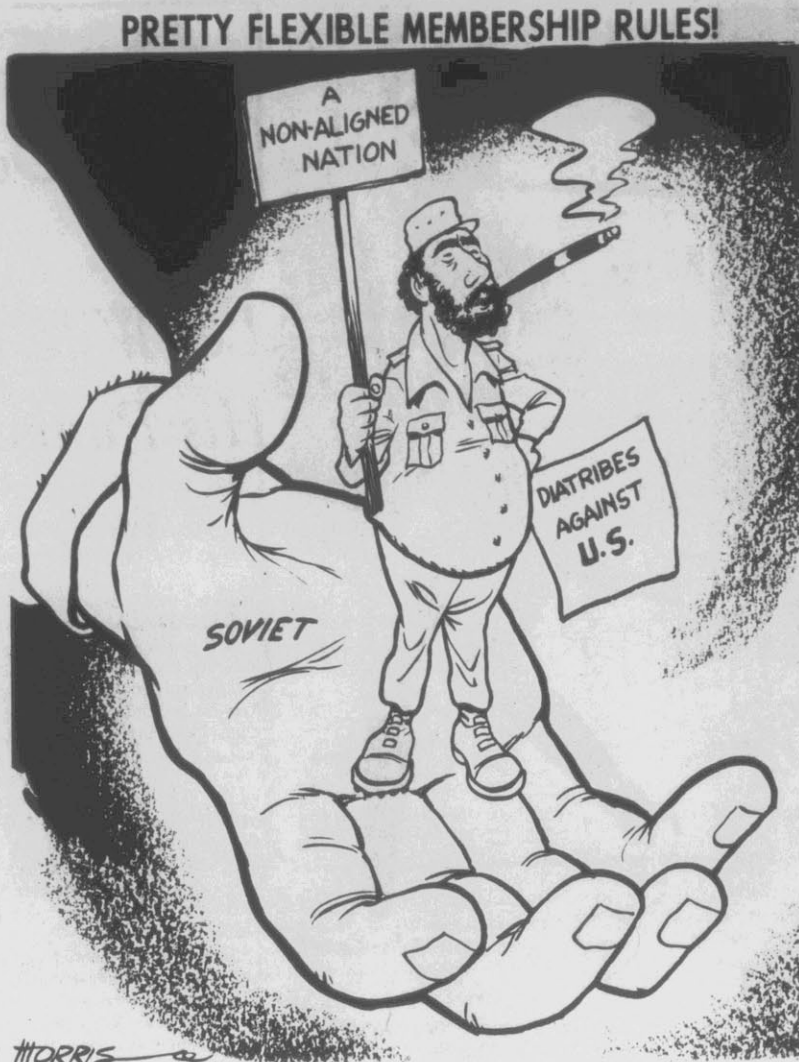

Health
Besides engineering, students who entered health fields had little trouble finding jobs: 90 percent of them were at work, and making an above-average $10,900 yearly in 1976. Business paid more ($11,500), but only 79 percent had full-time jobs in this field.

Work in education is lagging, the survey shows, with 73 percent of those prepared actually finding jobs, and the salaries averaging $8,700 yearly.

In arts and sciences — where things are typically even less rosy, only those majoring in math or physical sciences are doing well: 84 percent had jobs, and the salary was $9,900. In the humanities, fine arts, biological sciences and social sciences, salaries were below average (as low as $8,200 yearly), and fewer than 70 percent had found work.

Future surveys with the group will continue as the Research Triangle Institute collects information which will show how further social changes and education affect the lives of the Class of '72.

Fearful Of U.S. Books

WASHINGTON — What do the Russians fear from us the most? It's not our cruise missiles, our nuclear submarines, our B-52 bombers or our new MX system. They're afraid of our books.

This came to light once again when American publishers were invited to the Moscow International Book Fair. The Soviets confiscated 44 books (there could be more by the time this appears), including five editions of the "Best Pictorial Cartoons," from the years 1972, 1975, 1976, 1977, 1978, published by Pelican; all of Alexander Solzhenitsyn's books; "The Illustrated History of the Third Reich," by John Bradley (Grosset and Dunlap); "A Cartoon History of United States Foreign Policy" by the editors of Foreign Policy Assn. (Morrow); "American Ballet Theater" by Charles Payne;

"Hitler," by Joachim Fest, and

When I read the news, I called up Boris, my KGB contact at the Soviet Embassy in Washington, and told him, "I've just microfilmed 'The Complete Scarsdale Medical Diet' and I thought you might want to buy it from me."

He instructed me to meet him on a park bench near the Lincoln Memorial. He told me to bring along a bag of bread crumbs so we could pretend we were feeding the pigeons.

I made the rendezvous, sat down next to him and passed him the microfilm. He slipped me an envelope with ten $100 bills.

"This is very good work," he said. "What can I expect next?"

I replied, "I know a guy who works at the Discount Book Store in Chevy Chase. He has access to 'The Complete Book of Running' by James Fixx. It will cost you, though. The guy thinks he's being watched by the manager."

"I'll ask my people in Moscow and get back to you," he said. "Do you have any word on whether Godunov, the ballet dancer, is writing a book?"

"No," I said, "but I'll try to find out."

"We're willing to pay a lot to discover this," he said.

"Why?" I asked.

"The sooner we know, the sooner we can ban it," he replied.

"Tell me, Boris, it must be impossible to keep books out of the Soviet Union that are printed in the West. Why does the Soviet Union go to so much trouble?"

ART BUCHWALD

He lit a new cigarette from the one he was smoking. "Books kill," he whispered. "We have the capacity to stop your planes and missiles and even knock down your satellites. But we have no defense yet against Fascist ideas. If certain books published in the West go wide circulation in the Eastern countries, they could become a threat to our national security."

"It must be terrible to be afraid of books. They look so innocent on a shelf. It's hard to believe they could do so much damage."

He lit another cigarette from the one he had already lighted and said, "It isn't the books, it's what is in them that we're concerned with. Our people are happy and love the Communist system. We don't want trash from the West to foment hatred and insecurity. The price of a true Marxist society is constant

Other Editors Say Dead For Now

(Chapel Hill Newspaper)

HEW could benefit a lot more people if it were to direct more of its attention to the large number of high school dropouts. In nine southern states, of which North Carolina is one, more than half of the adults have not completed high school. The percentage of non-graduates among minorities is very high. When half of your adults never graduate from high school, and many of those who do cannot read or write well enough to hold down the average job, it is time to do a complete re-evaluation of our educational system.

Back in 1964 HEW set up an adult basic education program that was supposed to reach 59 million Americans who lacked high school educations. The project enrolled 38,000 the first year, and by 1976 only 1.7 million people were involved. A recent report, underwritten by the Ford Foundation, on "Adult Illiteracy in the United States" calls for a major shift in the national educational policy to serve the needs of disadvantaged adults.

There are presently more people without a high school education who are not receiving help than there were in 1964. While HEW has been working on a program for the past 15 years, illiteracy figures continue to rise. Progress just doesn't seem to be part of HEW's way of doing things. The people of North Carolina should take note, and beware of anything that HEW proposes. We have been running our own show for several years and doing a pretty good job.

Federal intervention can do nothing but muddy the waters. It shouldn't be allowed to happen.

The Earplugs Are A Blessing

By GAIL MICHAELS

How does a mother teach the value of cooperative play to a child who pushes all her toys under the bed and guards them from her guests with a teasing knife?

Meg has been known to demolish a block castle before leaving Sunday School just so the kid she's been fending off for the last 30 minutes can't play with it after she's gone.

Meg doesn't dislike other children; she just thrives on discord. When she doesn't have anyone to fight with, she finds the tedium overwhelming.

"I'm lonely. I'm so very, very lonely. I want Lawrence to come over. Without Lawrence this house is boring, boring, boring."

"Why don't you play with your toys?"

"None of my toys are any good."

(We have a better selection than F.A.O. Schwartz.)

"So look at a book."

"That's all you ever let me do is sit in my stinky old room with a stinky old book."

(This is five minutes after she's arrived home from a morning at nursery school, a picnic in the park, and a shopping trip for new shoes.)

Of course, if I do succumb and invite a playmate over, war breaks out immediately.

Meg has engaged in shoving and screaming matches with her favorite friends over such treasures as a Tupperware animal tail (the rest of the animal is lost), an old teething ring, and half a clothespin.

I have seen her fight two other children for one bristle block when there were 10 more just like it in the blocks box.

Worse than the fighting over toys is the bossiness. Get together two little girls who have their own preconceived ideas about the nature of life, and you have a stalemate that would leave Henry Kissinger speechless.

"I'll be the mother, and you be the bad baby," Meg's friend, Myra, said during a typical play session.

"Baby's aren't bad. They don't even know what they're doing," Meg answered. "You be the wicked stepmother and I'll be a poor, sweet little girl who has to cook her own meals and chop her own wood."

"You can't be good. You have to be bad. I will be the good stepmother, and you will be the wicked little girl who puts spiders in my

Didn't Have A Choice

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — Walter F. Mondale got his election bet down early: Jimmy Carter to win, with his own career in national politics riding on the outcome.

Those are high stakes for a man who can't do very much to change the race. But that's the way it is for vice presidents.

So long as Carter is running, Mondale has no options. And Carter has made it clear that he intends to run all the way to the Democratic National Convention, no matter what happens in the early primary elections.

That could change, and Mondale hasn't foreclosed the possibility that he'd be a presidential candidate if Carter were not. That is not likely. Besides, if Carter did falter during the primary season, it probably would be too late for Mondale to move in anyhow.

It already has been suggested, by Rep. Morris K. Udall, that Mondale might be a good alternative for Democrats dissatisfied with Carter. But they already have one in Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, who sounds more like a candidate every day.

Mondale says he doesn't know what Kennedy is going to do. But he does know what Carter will do, and that is run for a second term. Mondale says he believes Carter will be renominated and re-elected, and will be proud to run with him.

Mondale's political career and that of his mentor, the late Hubert H. Humphrey, always had intertwined. Now Vice President Mondale faces a situation not unlike the one that confronted Vice President Humphrey in the 1968 campaign.

Humphrey was tied then, as Mondale is now, to a president whose popularity was on the wane. Lyndon B. Johnson faced a challenge in the presidential primaries, first from Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, then from Sen. Robert F. Kennedy as well.

Johnson renounced candidacy. Humphrey ran and, as the presidential nominee of a bitterly divided Democratic Party, lost the election to Richard M. Nixon.

For a time, it seemed possible that 1980 might be a partial replay, with Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California as Carter's initial opponent and with Edward Kennedy entering the contest later, if the president looked as vulnerable by late winter as he does in late summer.

But Kennedy isn't going to wait. He now says he'll decide before the primaries whether he will run.

His brother stayed out in 1968 until the Democratic split had been dramatized by primary election results. Then he was gunned down by an assassin. Humphrey won the nomination without entering a primary.

Democrats fear, and Republicans relish, another possible parallel to the 1968 campaign: the prospect that a Carter-Kennedy contest would split the party and make the nomination worthless.

"By this time the screaming had escalated to the point where I felt called upon to step in. 'Why don't you pretend you are bakers and play with the play dough?'"

"We are mothers and we're making cookies," Myra said.

"We are factory workers and we're making potato chips," Meg said.

"Cookies!"

"Potato chips!"

"Why don't you make cookies, Myra, and you make potato chips, Meg?" I suggested.

Myra put her hands on her hips and grunted scornfully. "Everyone knows that you can't cook cookies and potato chips at the same temperature!"

I crept out of the room. The only way to handle that situation was with earplugs.

'FIRST MOTHERS'

Mothers Pose A Hurdle

By MIKE FEINSILBER

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Only in America does a 47-year-old senator make headlines by saying he has his mother's permission to run for president.

Rose Kennedy's blessing to Ted has special poignancy in view of the Kennedy family history, but what of other candidates' mothers?

After all, who can run if Mom doesn't think he is right for the job?

Franklin D. Roosevelt's mother, Sara, did her best to keep him out of politics, especially after he was crippled by polio. She lost, but it was a battle.

Harry Truman recalled in his memoirs, "My mother never tried to give me any advice as president ... She thought it was just the natural thing. It did not give her any ideas of grandeur. She was just the same mama she had always been."

In 1960, Richard Nixon

quipped that his mother was probably the only one in America who didn't think her son might one day be president. But Hannah Nixon said that wasn't so.

She recalled that in 1934 she looked at a college picture of Richard and his classmates and told her husband, "In all that group he looks more like a president than any other."

Today not every candidate's mother is crazy about her son's presidential ambitions.

Bernice Brown, mother of California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., says she has "mixed emotions" about it. She worries about an assassination. "There are so many crazy people out there," she says.

"Of course," she says, "if his father (former California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Sr.) had listened to me, he wouldn't even have run for district attorney."

And in Humboldt, S.D., Antone Pressler, has misgivings. Her son, Larry, 37, elected a senator last November, is expected to announce as a Republican presidential candidate any day now.

"When Larry was home a few weeks ago," Mrs. Pressler says, "I told him I would like to see him wait until he's been a senator for a while longer."

If the current first mother, Lillian Carter, has qualms about Jimmy's second candidacy, she keeps them to herself.

"I'll campaign if Jimmy runs," she says.

In 1976, she made 600 speeches for him and fumed over a newspaper story that said her chief contribution was to stay home and take care of Amy.

Miss Lillian lifted eyebrows last weekend in Nashua, N.H., when she talked about the risks of a Kennedy candidacy.

She said she expected Kennedy to support her son in 1980, "but if he does run I wish him all the luck in the world and I hope to goodness nothing happens again."

She referred of course to the history of the 1960s: One Kennedy brother killed in the presidency, one in seeking the presidency.

After that, Rose Kennedy hoped that Edward would be content to remain in the Senate.

"I don't want my son to run," she said. "Why should I, after all I've been through?"

That's why Kennedy's disclosure of his mother's support made news. Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., called Kennedy's statement "tantamount to an announcement (that he is running)."

Baker is running, too, and his step-mother chooses not to say how she feels about that.

"I wouldn't answer yes or no to that," Irene Baker says in Nashville, Tenn., when asked if she was pleased that he is a candidate.

But politicians have aides who answer questions on the behalf of others.

A Baker aide, in Washington, said: "She has no problem with it. She's always supported whatever he's done."

In Kennebunkport, Maine, Dorothy Bush, mother of Republican candidate George Bush, exercises the prerogative of an 83-year-old woman and refuses to be interviewed.

But a Bush aide explains: "She's extremely supportive. She went on the announcement swing. And this

Strength For Today

TODAY'S CREEDS AND CHRISTIAN UNITY

Many modern Christians attach little importance to creeds. Instead, they tend to think of Christianity in terms of action — participation in good causes, and acceptance of social responsibility.

This element of Christianity is certainly important, but creeds are equally vital. They are thoughtful summations of religious teachings upon which men have pondered, sometimes for generations. In the beginning of the Christian church, hundreds of years passed before the first creed evolved. Then generations and perhaps centuries passed before other statements of the church appeared.

No single creed, of course, comprises the whole of Christian truth. Yet all of the great historical creeds agree with one another on the fundamentals of the faith. Although creeds have historically often been a source of conflict, potentially they can be a source of unity. The old hymn expresses it well: "We are not divided; all one body we."

Religions Join In A 'No More War' Appeal

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
PRINCETON, N. J. (AP)—Humanity's "great" religions, which sometimes railed or warned against each other in the past, have joined in a plea for a fair, neighborly world with no more war.

"It is not a utopian dream," says the World Conference on Religion and Peace.

But the 337 representatives of 10 major, historic faiths—Christian, Buddhist, Confucianist, Hindu, Jewish, Jainist, Moslem, Sikh, Shintoist and Zoroastrian—agree that things now look frightening.

"We are approaching... a turning point in human history at which the survival of world civilization is at stake," they said in a joint declaration at the close Sept. 7 of a week-long meeting at Princeton Theological Seminary.

The "Princeton Declaration" cited modern afflictions—the nuclear arms buildup, economic imbalances and exploitation, shrinking resources and crushing of human rights.

But it also proclaimed a "spirit of hope," adding: "In our various religions, we know that we are members of one human family. Sustained and motivated by the spiritual power by which we all live, we believe there is an alternative to violence. We believe that peace is possible."

They also ticked off specifics of their high expectations, declaring "we trust":

—That "the power of active love, uniting men and women in the search for righteousness, will liberate the world from all injustice, hatred and wrong."

—That "modern civilization may someday be changed so that neighborly good will and helpful partnership may be fostered."

—That "all religions will increasingly cooperate in creating a responsible world community."

These are exalted goals—what the conference calls a global—community built on "love, freedom, justice and truth," and some skeptics may see it as far-fetched illusion under the crunch of hard and rival realities.

Indeed, the meeting did have an unlikely touch about it. For instance, at one point, the mixed religious representatives offered their variegated prayers for peace in a service at Manhattan's St. Patrick's Cathedral, metropolitan hub of Roman Catholicism that once shunned such mixed devotions.

"It was a truly religious

Homecoming At Church Sunday

Quarterly meeting and homecoming services will be held at Sycamore Chapel Church, Rt. 5, Greenville, Sunday, September 16. Morning services will be delivered by the Rev. Hugh Walston, pastor, 11 a.m.

The Rev. Kenneth Hammond and his congregation from Cedar Grove will close out homecoming services at 2 p.m. Dinner will be served after the evening meeting. The Rev. Walston invites the public to attend.

United Nations," said the Rev. Homer A. Jack, the conference general secretary.

The conference "has built a new appreciation of pluralism," said United Methodist participant, the Rev. Herman Will. "It does not deny the uniqueness of our own faith but urges us to respect the right of others to believe something different and not call them heathen."

Symbol of YESTERDAY

What varied stories this ancient span could reveal if only it were capable—exciting tales of the Civil War... of enchanting lovers' trysts beneath its tall arched roof. And, gloomy stories, too, like the despondent old man who snuffed out his life by plunging from its edge into the swift waters of the creek below.

Yes, this weatherbeaten structure has survived the years. It has endured. And, God willing, it will stand for perhaps another generation—a unique symbol of yesterday.

The Church and this sturdy bridge have a great deal in common. The Church has withstood the test of time because nothing has yet been discovered to supplant the profound peace and serenity it supplies. The Church will endure for all time—after the picturesque old covered bridge is only a memory.

summer, when George was having issue briefings at Kennebunkport that ran from 9 to 5, she sat in on all of them. She just doesn't want personal publicity."

Many of the other candidates and potential candidates, especially the older ones, have outlived their mothers. Only 11 mothers have lived to see their sons sworn in as president.

The mothers of Gerald R. Ford, Ronald Reagan, John Anderson, Harold Stassen and Benjamin Fernandez — declared or expected candidates — are dead. The mothers of John Connally and Philip Crane are in poor health.

In Russell, Kan., Bina Dole, 76, sounds very much like a mother when she talks about her son, Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., a declared candidate.

She recalls how he was wounded in World War II, how he took three years recovering, how she was once told to fetch her husband because her son would not live another 15 minutes, how he still pays the price of not being able to use his right arm.

Whether he runs, she says, "is Bob's decision," and adds: "I just hope nothing happens to him. There were times when I didn't think Bob Dole would be around. I have every reason in the world to be happy that he's alive. He has lost things more important than elections."

Four Escapees Are Recaptured

KINSTON, N.C. (AP) — Four inmates who escaped from a Lenoir County jail cell Thursday were recaptured within a one-mile area of the facility, authorities said.

A sheriff's spokesman said the men apparently lured jailer J.E. Smith into their cell by claiming a light needed to be repaired, and then made their getaway.

Authorities said one of the inmates was captured by police at a Kinston residence. The other three escapees were apprehended shortly thereafter.

Residents Waiting For The Lights To Go Out

MANTEO, N.C. (AP) — Every summer, residents of Hatteras Island and Dare County wait for the lights to go out.

Questioning Basic Math

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some educators say a "back to basics" movement in the nation's schools may be one reason more and more students are doing poorly at math.

A new study on the ability of young people to solve math problems shows that students generally did worse last year than in 1973, when the last study was done.

A panel of experts who reviewed the test results said the emphasis on the basics in recent years has been too narrow.

"Often, drill on computation has replaced attention to problem-solving," said James W. Wilson, a math education professor at the University of Georgia. "But it is not enough to assume that if students can do the arithmetic, they can automatically solve problems."

He said the "basics" textbooks "provide few opportunities for problem-solving and when they do, the problems are often of such a level that students don't have to figure out the problem's meaning to solve it."

The test by the National Assessment of Educational Progress involved 71,000 students age 9, 13 and 17.

RECORD GOLD PRICES LONDON (AP) — Gold rocketed $12 to hit a record $345.75 an ounce in Europe today, breaking the previous high by $4. The dollar posted impressive gains in Tokyo and Japan but was mixed elsewhere.

The reason is that a cable which provides most of the area's electrical needs is overloaded, and needs to be replaced.

Three emergency generators were cranked up, and a black-out was averted for the time being. Officials of the islands have been pressing for a new cable which will provide power for Hatteras and neighboring Ocracoke Island.

A Dare County delegation met this week with 1st District Congressman Walter B. Jones and North Carolina's two senators, Robert Morgan and Jesse Helms.

The National Park Service has control of the islands as part of the Cape Hatteras National Seashore, thus the service must grant permission for installation of the line. The service is now working on an environmental impact statement.

William J. Whalen Jr., director of the National Park Service, agreed at the meeting to expedite a decision.

Members of Congress as well as the delegation, headed by Tom Gray, chairman of the Dare County Board of Commissioners, stressed the urgency of getting additional electric power to the islands, which have a permanent population of 3,600 and a summer population of nearly 50,000.

Dare County Manager Jack Cahoon and Clifford Austin, acting director of the Cape Hatteras Electrical Membership Corp. also attended the meeting.

The delegation said that for two weeks this summer, the present cable was in danger of burning out because of an overload.

The electrical membership, which serves the islands, has pointed out that from the time permission is given to string the new power line, 252 days will be required to manufacture the cable.

Attorney Sues HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston attorney has filed a $155 million lawsuit against Mexico's state oil company on behalf of fishermen who contend they have lost money in the world's worst oil spill.

Joe Jamall named the defendants in the federal court class action as PEMEX, the Mexican oil monopoly, and SEDCO, a firm founded by Texas Gov. Bill Clements.

"Since the governor of this state has refused to represent the people of Texas, somebody had to," he said. "I filed the suit to force some people's hands and, by God, I think — I know — we can win a judgment."

Spillage from Ixtoc I, a PEMEX oil well in the Bay of Campeche, has stained more than 100 miles of Texas beaches and sent oil slicks over a wide area where fishermen harvest shrimp, oysters and crab.

Plan Dedication

Lt. James C. Green will be the principal speaker at the dedication of the latest addition to the Pitt County Court House set for 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

The addition, started in February 1978, includes some 2,450 square feet and cost $278,875.

It includes a new jail entrance, an identification lab for the Sheriff's Department, and a county communications center housing some $50,000 in equipment.

The communications center, staffed 24 hours a day, provides central dispatch for volunteer fire departments and rescue squads in the county and links the Sheriff's Department with law enforcement agencies within and outside Pitt County.

Robert L. Martin, chairman of the Board of Commissioners will be master of ceremonies for the dedication program.

Architect Cameron Dudley will present the keys to the building to Commissioner's building committee chairman Bruce Strickland.

Claim CETA Jobs Not Only For Poor

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt's administration hired the daughters of a state senator and the governor's foremost political patron under the CETA job program, it was reported Friday.

A federal official said Thursday that an investigation will be initiated to determine whether the state violated a federal regulation prohibiting political patronage.

According to a Raleigh newspaper, the two were given jobs in 1977 and worked until early 1978 as public information assistants. They both earned about $8,500. Their salaries were paid from CETA funds.

The News and Observer of Raleigh said in its Friday edition that jobs were given to Sandra L. Marion, daughter of Sen. George W. Marion Jr., D-Dobson, and Lillian Joyner Bennett, daughter of Bert L. Bennett of Winston-Salem, owner of one of the largest Shell Oil Co. distributorships in the nation.

Bennett has been a close political confidant and key fundraiser for Hunt.

The two cases were referred to the state Department of Natural Resources and Community Development by Joseph A. Pell, the governor's patronage chief, according to Gary Pearce, the governor's press secretary.

Pearce said Pell asked the NRCD to consider hiring the two, but the final decision was made by the department.

The CETA political patronage regulation prohibits hiring or promotion based on political beliefs or affiliation. If the regulation has been violated, the state must repay the money to the government.

The CETA funds used to hire the two were available to unemployed persons without regard to their financial background. The jobs required a college degree or equivalent, and the two met that requirement.

The Stars of York Organization will sponsor the concert, and all proceeds will go to the building fund.

Insurance Firm Collusion Study

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state Insurance Department is investigating the possibility of collusion by two insurance companies involving fraudulent injury claims.

Deputy Commissioner Ken Brown said Thursday that his agents told him that more persons and companies may be involved. Some information has been sent to district attorneys in Wilkes and Mecklenburg counties for possible prosecution. The investigation started in June.

Agents are looking into allegations that Beacon Insurance Co. of Wilkesboro and Harris Adjustment Co. of Charlotte made up injury claims and collected money for them, Brown said.

A Charlotte television station quoted Brown as saying that Claude O. Harris, president of Harris Adjustment, and some Beacon claims personnel are under investigation. WSOC-TV said a source told it that claims officials under investigation include Kemp W. Duncan and Joe McCracken.

The station also reported that since the state probe began, Duncan has been demoted from his post of vice-president and McCracken is on leave of absence.

facility to the intersection, he would find that the proposed use would adversely affect the health and safety of local citizens. He said there was no evidence given that the use would not constitute a nuisance.

In other business, the Council approved an application by The Sting Inc., doing business as Peaches, for renewal of the special use permit granted by the Council last September to operate a private club in Greenville Square Shopping Center. Mayor Percy Cox, citing family involvement in the business, abstained from participation regarding the agenda item.

Following a public hearing, the Council voted to approve a petition by J. H. Blount Jr. and F. L. Blount III for annexation of Section II of Pinewood Forest, located east of Section I of the subdivision, south of Lynndale, and west of the Worthington property.

Council members adopted a resolution stating its intent to annex Red Oak, Oakdale and Baker Heights Subdivisions and adjacent properties, and setting a public hearing on the annexations for Oct. 16.

The properties are located in Greenville and Winterville townships, according to the resolution of intent, "south of Hardee's Run-Forbes Mill Run, west of the present corporate limit, north of Carolina East Mall property, Langston property, Ange heirs property, Dan Morgan property, and east of the John F. Moye property."

Cox commended the city staff for its work on the annexation program and he ex-

Little Progress On Auto Pact

By GUY DARST
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — Negotiators for the United Auto Workers Union and General Motors Corp. had made little progress in their efforts to reach a new contract despite an all-night bargaining session, a union spokesman said early today.

The announcement was the first word on the status of the talks since UAW President Douglas Fraser announced that negotiations would continue around the clock. The current contract for 95,000 autoworkers expires at midnight.

"It would be a shame if we let it get away from us," Fraser said before the marathon session began Thursday night. "The differences between us look like they can be resolved with some intensive negotiations. We're just going to stay at the bargaining table."

Looming on the other side of the deadline was an unprecedented selective strike against GM plants that make the company's more-popular cars and trucks, parts warehouses that serve dealers and a locomotive plant that supplies three-quarters of the nation's diesel locomotives.

A settlement would set a pattern for negotiations with Ford Motor Co., the nation's No. 2 automaker. The UAW has all but conceded that troubled Chrysler Corp. for the first time will be permitted to break the Big Three pattern with a lesser settlement.

In all, 95,350 of GM's 460,000 UAW workers and nearly half of the planned 1980 model car production would be idled in strikes at 13 of 26 assembly plants, 32 of 43 warehouses and the locomotive factory.

The subject of discussion was the company's economic package presented shortly after 6 p.m. Thursday, covering pensions, the key issue, and wages and more paid time off.

"We haven't discussed the economics since Saturday," Fraser said before the session in announcing that unspecified secondary issues had been cleared away.

Though not formally declared, a news blackout was put into effect. "If we see you again, it will be to announce a settlement or a strike," the union leader said.

Pensions — specifically, the protection of workers already retired against inflation — were designated the top priority issue in union conventions this spring. Wages had hardly been mentioned before the marathon session.

A UAW member at GM averages $9.05 an hour on straight time and receives fringe benefits the company says make its labor costs more than $15 an hour. Of the $9.05, $1.37 has been added over the past three years by the automatic cost-of-living formula, which with other negotiated increases in the 1976 contract has put active workers 5 percent to 6 percent ahead of inflation since 1976.

The company earlier proposed continuation of the traditional 3 percent annual wage increases and the cost-of-living formula.

Retired members have not kept up, although those who retired normally at 65 have done better, both sides agree, than those who retired early.

At present, a worker retiring early — before 62 — with 30 years service gets $700 a month until Social Security begins at 62. A worker retiring after 30 years at 65 could get $430 a month, plus Social Security.

The UAW has about 230,000 pensioners, 146,000 of them at GM. They may vote in union elections but not on contracts.

Revival Series Begins Tonight

Revival services will begin tonight at 7:30 at the Hopewell Pentecostal Holiness Church.

Homecoming will be held Sunday and revival will continue the following week. Martha Hall will be speaking tonight through Sunday morning. The Rev. Frank Moore will speak Monday through Sunday, Sept. 23.

The Rev. Lotis Joyner, pastor, invites the public to attend. Special singing will be featured at each service.

Series Of 12 Traffic Accidents On Thursday

An estimated $22,350 property damage resulted from a series of 12 traffic mishaps investigated by police in Greenville yesterday.

Heaviest damage, according to Police, resulted from a 2:55 p.m. mishap on Memorial Drive near Pitt-Greenville airport.

Officers said a car driven by Herman L. Jacobs of Kinston went out of control and crossed the median, colliding with vehicles driven by Doretha C. Purvis of Route 6, Greenville, and Alonza Price of Route 3, Washington.

Police, who said Ms. Purvis and two passengers in her car were injured, estimated damage at $2,300 to the Jacobs car, $3,000 to the Purvis auto, and $250 to the Price vehicle.

An 11:11 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Myrtle Avenue and Skinner Streets involved cars driven by Roy Lemuel Honeycutt of 14 Middleton Pl. and Lucy Mayo Ross of Route 4, Greenville.

Investigators, who charged Ms. Ross with failing to stop for a stop sign, set damages at $1,200 to the Honeycutt vehicle and $2,000 to the Ross car.

Lynne Inez Warbritton of 1207 Franklin Dr. was charged by police with failing to stop for a stop sign and driving without a license following investigation of a 7:35 p.m. wreck at the intersection of Tenth and Clark Streets.

Officers reported the car driven by Ms. Warbritton collided with a vehicle driven by Estelle Radcliff Burroughs of 405 Millbrook St., causing an estimated $700 damage to the Burroughs vehicle and $2,000 damage to the Warbritton-driven auto.

Cars driven by Curtis Parker Vines of 115 Lakeview Ter. and William Gary James of Oakwood Acres collided about 4:40 p.m. at the intersection of Memorial and Sylvan Drives, causing an estimated $400 damage to the Vines car and $1,800 damage to the James car.

A 9:20 p.m. mishap on Arlington Boulevard, 25 feet East of the Commerce Street intersection caused an estimated $1,000 damage to each of the two cars involved.

Drivers of the vehicles were identified as Downing Henry Smith Jr. of Route 3, Greenville, and Margaret Sheila Brennan of Courtney Square Apts.

Police reported an East Carolina University student union bus driven by Mickie Alston of Route 6, Louisburg collided with a car driven by Norman Odessa Tetterton of Kings Row Apts. about 2:50 p.m. on Verdant Street, causing an estimated $1,000 damage to the car and $500 damage to the bus.

Davis J. Nelson of 1115 West Fourth St. was charged with failing to yield the right of way, while Judy C. Tingen of 409C Eastbrook Apts. was charged with improper registration in connection with a 1:48 p.m. collision at the intersection of Greene Street and Mumford Road.

Police set damage to the Nelson car at $500 while damage to the Tingen vehicle was estimated at $800.

Police charged Bobby Lane Clark of Route 3, Washington with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident following investigation of a 7 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Tenth Street and River Bluff Drive.

Investigators reported the Clark car collided with a auto driven by Edward Sidney Moore of Highland Trailer Park, resulting in an estimated $200 damage to the Moore car and $1,000 damage to the Clark vehicle.

Officers reported George Richard Oxford of 205 North Elm St. was charged with failing to stop for a stop sign after his vehicle collided with a truck driven by Melvin Earl Hickman of New Bern, about 11:25 a.m. at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Bismark Street.

Police estimated damage at $1,000 to the car and $100 to the truck.

A 12:45 p.m. collision at the intersection of Reade and Evans Streets involved vehicles driven by Gail Butler of Edgewood Trailer Pk. and Kenneth Gurley of Kenley, officers reported.

Damage was set at $350 to the Butler car and $300 to the Gurley truck.

A collision at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Third Street, about 9:50 p.m. involved cars driven by Sharon Lenette Eaton of 200A Roundtree Dr. and Michael Stanley Norfleet of 1401 West Sixth St., police reported.

Damage from the collision was set at $200 to the Eaton car and $400 to the Norfleet vehicle.

A 12:33 p.m. collision at the intersection of Tenth and Elm Streets involved a car operated by Robert Matthew Bourdeaux of 1502 Greenville Blvd., and a truck operated by Robert Talmage Spence of Williamston.

Police estimated damage at $300 to the Bourdeaux car and $100 to the Spence truck.

Revival Series Begins Tonight

Revival begins tonight at 7:30 p. m. at Hopewell Pentecostal Holiness Church.

The weekend services will be conducted by Evangelist Martha Hall of Charlotte. The revival will continue next week with services each night led by the Rev. Frank Moore of Vanceboro. Homecoming will be held Sunday, Sept. 17. The pastor, the Rev. Lotis Joyner, invites the public.

Poll Shows Faith Fading In Carter's Leadership

Women's Problems In U.S. Aired By Speakers

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Speakers ranging from an inmate at the Women's Correctional Center to Gov. Jim Hunt testified Thursday at a hearing on the problems women face in the United States.

Another woman who spoke at the meeting, a Winston-Salem secretary, told the panel that half her $6,800 yearly salary went toward day care provisions for her children.

"That leaves no money for groceries or managing a home," Karen Shaver told the committee at its first public meeting outside Washington. "But when you're the head of the household with two small children to support, you have to work."

Ms. Shaver's testimony drew a standing ovation from the audience of 50 persons.

Committee chairman Lynda Johnson Robb, daughter of the late President Lyndon Johnson, and vice chairman Elizabeth D. Kooztz, the assistant state superintendent for teacher education in the Department of Public Instruction listened as Hunt told them that 52.4 percent of North Carolina women work outside the home.

The governor also told the committee that two-thirds of those women working outside the home were single, widowed, divorced or married to a man making less than $7,000 a year.

"They work because most of them have to," Hunt said. National figures indicate that in 1977, women were receiving 59 cents for every dollar earned by men, he added.

Lena Epps Brooker, an American Indian who works in the State Division of Community Employment described the special plight of Indian women in North Carolina as falling "between the cracks of a black-white system."

Suzanne Monzon, presently serving a 10-year sentence on drug charges, told the committee that more consideration is needed for female inmates, and for in-prison job training that is not boring and mindless work.

"Our needs are much like your needs," she said, fighting back tears.

Right now the public doesn't think much of Carter's efforts to battle the twin demons of inflation and recession nor of his work in general. An Associated Press-NBC News poll this week found Americans giving Carter the lowest overall job rating in nearly three decades for an American president.

Only 19 percent of those interviewed nationwide Monday and Tuesday rated Carter's work excellent or good. That is down seven points from the AP-NBC News July poll, which was his previous low.

Forty-nine percent said his efforts were only fair and 30 percent said they were poor. Two percent of the 1,600 adults interviewed nationwide by telephone were not sure.

The 19 percent mark is the lowest ever received by an American president since this rating question was first asked in the 1950s.

Carter's historically low ratings have helped convince Kennedy that he should consider challenging Carter for the Democratic party's nomination in 1980. Kennedy has said in recent days that he is not ruling out such a challenge, adding that the president's efforts to deal with the economy will be crucial to Kennedy's own decision.

"If there's a perception that the president is successfully dealing with this issue, I think he'll be successful," Kennedy said earlier this week.

But right now the perception is that Carter is failing in his efforts to deal with the economy.

Only 10 percent of the public gave Carter an excellent or good rating for his work on the nation's economic woes — the lowest job rating ever for Carter in any area. Forty-seven percent said his work has been poor and 40 percent called it as only fair. Three percent were not sure.

The public perception of Carter's failure to deal with inflation and recession has helped blunt the effects of his midsummer moves to reshuffle his administration and to present a more forceful image to the public.

The AP-NBC News poll found that Carter is now in serious trouble with almost every segment of the population. And — with a possible Kennedy challenge looming in 1980 — the president is doing badly among politically crucial groups like Democrats, Southerners, small town and rural residents and his 1976 supporters.

Stewart Will Open A Campaign Office

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — House Speaker Carl Stewart, so far an unannounced candidate for lieutenant governor in 1980, plans to open a campaign headquarters in Raleigh in October, joining three other candidates who already have offices.

Gov. Jim Hunt, who has not declared his candidacy for re-election, but has left little doubt that he intends to run for the second term in 1980, has an office in downtown Raleigh. The office is equipped with a staff, sophisticated machinery and a treasury of more than $70,000.

Former Gov. Bob Scott, who has said he is exploring the possibilities of running for office, recently opened an office in Raleigh to see if the political currents are to his liking.

Adding to the list of office renters is U.S. Sen. Robert Morgan, a definite candidate for re-election. His headquarters are located in a shopping center north of Raleigh.

Stewart apparently has raised the most money to wage a campaign that has yet to be declared. He said Tuesday that his efforts have brought between $100,000 and $150,000 into his treasury. Stewart said he has budgeted up to $300,000 and may spend up to $500,000 for the Democratic primary next year in an attempt to unseat Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green.

Green, who has said he will seek re-election next year, has not formally organized his campaign yet. However, members of his advisory group called the Jimmy Green Cabinet have begun raising money for next year's campaign.

Big Roundup For Thefts

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — What has been called the "largest non-drug or alcohol-related criminal roundup in the history of Durham County" was announced Thursday by county District Attorney Dan K. Edwards Jr.

As a result of the nearly one-year undercover work, 229 indictments were handed down by a Durham County grand jury on Monday. Nearly 40 persons had been arrested by late Thursday.

Law-enforcement officers had set up a front for a fake fencing operation. The dilapidated building was once the headquarters for "Part Time Help, Limited."

But when the building was taken apart yesterday, more than 50 persons had allegedly sold stolen items to the phony fencing operation. Edwards said at a press conference that the operation had started in November 1978 and continued through Aug. 31.

Edwards said the State Bureau of Investigation received money to operate the fencing operation from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration. He said "$33,000 was ultimately spent to recover $340,000 worth of stolen property."

Guilty Plea In Drug Conspiracy

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Former Durham police officer Michael Richard Rubish Jr. pleaded guilty in Superior Court Thursday on charges that he conspired with Durham vice squad members to sell drugs on the street.

Rubish's plea agreement with the state calls for a prison sentence of one to five years in the Durham County jail. But at the request of attorney Art Vann III, sentencing was delayed until Oct. 1.

Robert E. Yates, an ex-vice squad officer, also pleaded guilty to three drug charges and was sentenced to one to five years in jail. But according to state parole statutes, both Rubish and Yates could be released from jail in a year.

FEATURED SPEAKER SUNDAY

Mrs. Minnie Williams of Wilmington will be the guest speaker Sunday, September 16, 5 p.m., at Friendship Holiness Church, Falkland. The public is invited to attend.

Plan Workshop On Evangelism

BETHEL — The Greenville District of the United Methodist Church will hold a workshop on evangelism Tuesday at the Bethel United Methodist Church.

Beginning at 7 p.m., Bishop Robert M. Blackburn will be the speaker during the rally which will be held from 7-8 p.m. Music will be presented by the Bethel church choir. The workshop will follow the rally with a team from the N. C. Methodist Conference leading the training.

The event will help prepare the churches in the Greenville District for a week of proclamation evangelism to be held March 23-25. During the week, ministers from other districts in the conference will preach at evening services.

Watts To Speak At Conference

The Seventh-day Adventist churches in eastern North Carolina will conduct a Bible conference in Greenville, Friday and Saturday, September 14-15. Twenty-one churches with a collective membership of over 1,300 will be represented.

Featured speaker will be Ralph Watts Sr., former vice president of the Seventh-day Adventist church world headquarters in Washington, D. C. Watts will present the keynote speech Friday, 7:30 p.m., and the 11 a.m. sermon September 15.

The services will be held at the Memorial Baptist Church, 1510 Greenville Blvd., Greenville. The public is invited to attend.

We're pointing out the inadequacy of most home insurance. Before a thief does.

The color TV in our picture cost $350 when new. Most homeowners policies would give only $150 for it today — enough for a black-and-white set. Aetna's new Homeowners Contents Replacement Cost Coverage would give the owner a brand new color TV — about $450. Because our new coverage replaces old contents for new up to 400% of their current cash value! The additional amount this new coverage pays can provide thousands of dollars in added protection. But it costs only a little more. Do you want the best homeowners coverage you can buy? Give us a call and ask about Contents Replacement Cost Coverage. We'll be glad to call on you. NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market rallied today, undeterred by the rapid spread of a record 13 percent prime lending rate in the banking industry.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 6.49 at 877.22.

Gainers took a 7-4 lead over losers in the mid-day tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Many of the nation's banks raised their prime rates this morning to 13 percent, joining New York's Chase Manhattan Bank at that record level. But the news came as no surprise to Wall Street.

Newton Zinder at E.F. Hutton & Co. said traders seemed to feel that a 1.1 percent decline in industrial production during August, as reported by the government this morning, might have brought the economy closer to an eventual peak in interest rates.

He also noted some evident hopes that negotiators for General Motors and the United Auto Workers could reach an agreement before their current contract expires at midnight tonight.

GM shares gained 3/4 to 61 1/4. Trans World topped the active list, up 1 1/4, at 25 1/2. The stock rose 3 1/2 Thursday as Texas International Airlines disclosed it had made overtures to Trans World about a possible takeover, and had bought an undisclosed amount of Trans World stock.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index rose 36 to 61.89. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained 1.33 to 224.94.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 17.47 million shares at noon, against 15.04 million at the same point Thursday.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market rallied today, undeterred by the rapid spread of a record 13 percent prime lending rate in the banking industry.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 6.49 at 877.22.

Gainers took a 7-4 lead over losers in the mid-day tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Many of the nation's banks raised their prime rates this morning to 13 percent, joining New York's Chase Manhattan Bank at that record level. But the news came as no surprise to Wall Street.

Newton Zinder at E.F. Hutton & Co. said traders seemed to feel that a 1.1 percent decline in industrial production during August, as reported by the government this morning, might have brought the economy

Sheriff Dept. Arrests Five

Five persons were arrested and charged on Thursday afternoon and evening in connection with three separate cases, according to Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson.

Two men, Thomas Grant Bullock, Jr., 26, of Rt. 4, Box 166, Greenville, and Dennis Anderson, 33, of Rt. 1, Grimesland, were arrested late Thursday in connection with the theft of tobacco from a packhouse owned by Howard Moye, Rt. 4, Greenville.

The two are charged with the theft of eight sheets, about 1600 pounds of tobacco. Tyson said that Deputy Billy Braswell arrested the two about one mile from the scene, and that the truck on which the stolen tobacco was loaded has been impounded.

The two have been placed under a bond of $7,500 each with a hearing date set for September 17.

In the second incident, James Gregory Starkie of Rt. 2, Box 263 has been placed under a $10,500 bond and charged with breaking, entering, larceny and possession of stolen goods. The charges involve two break-ins, one at the home of Elmer Hardee at Rt. 1, Box 150, Grimesland, the other at a night club operated by Hardee at Rt. 1, Box 180, Grimesland.

Reportedly, a 19-inch color TV and a 40-channel CB radio were taken from Hardee's home; and material taken from the night club included a rifle, cigarettes, and currency.

Also charged in this case is Willie James Starkie, Jr. of Rt. 2, Box 231. He is charged with possession of stolen goods and has been placed under a $500 bond. Additionally, Willie Starkie Jr. has been charged with having in his possession stolen goods, two auto tires, the property of Ruth Bailey.

Hearing for the two Starkie men has been set for Sept. 26.

In the third incident, Jimmy C. Haddock of Rt. 1, Box 132, Grimesland, was arrested Thursday afternoon and charged with taking building materials valued at approximately $40 from the site of a house under construction. The material was allegedly taken from a house being built for David Anderson, at a location about seven miles east of Greenville on Highway 33 east, near State Road 1762.

Haddock has been released on bond, with a hearing date to be scheduled soon.

'Mysterious' Devils Next For Pirates

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
Back in the days of radio, there was one popular show called "I Love A Mystery."

Saturday afternoon, in Durham's Wallace Wade Stadium, those fans could hold a reunion—for Duke University's football team is just that—a mystery. "We don't know anything about them," Coach Pat Dye said. "They are really a mystery team."

For the 1:30 p.m. game, the Pirates, meeting Duke for the second time in the last three years, will be prepared for anything, according to Dye.

"The strangest thing about this game is that Duke knows everything about us, and we know nothing about them," Dye said. Duke will be opening the season with the game.

And in addition, they have a new coach in Red Wilson, a new offense in the veer, and a number of new faces in inexperienced sophomore starters. Ten of the listed starters for the Blue Devils are expected to be sophomores, including their quarterback, one running back and their flanker.

Among those sophomores is Ron Frederick, starting at wide receiver. Frederick's freshman year was at East Carolina two seasons ago. He transferred after the 1977 season and sat out last year.

"We do know that they have a fine offensive line, excellent receivers, excellent running backs and a fine kicking game," Dye said.

"But we haven't been able to watch them run their offense, and that will hurt us."

Defensively, Dye said the Pirates were not even certain how the Blue Devils would line up. We know they have a lot of new faces, but they do have a veteran secondary, one of the best Duke's had in a long time. Up front, they have talent."

Dye said that the Pirates are trying to prepare for about everything that could be expected from the veer offense. "If we have any advantage, it's that we just played a split backfield (veer) team (N.C. State)," Dye said.

"But the fact that they've worked all fall on us, haven't played anyone else, and they're not coming off a loss helps them. We've got to get back on track after our loss," Dye added.

The Pirates, now 1-1 on the year, opened with a 31-6 win over Western Carolina, and followed that up with a 34-20 loss to N.C. State, after having led, 17-13 at the half.

Theodore Sutton is the leading Pirate rusher with 193 yards on the ground, and he missed much of the second half Saturday with a knee injury. He is expected to be at full strength this Saturday however. Anthony Collins is next with 146 yards rushing.

Leander Green had 242 yards in total offense, including 208 through the air. He's hit on 11 of 34 and had one picked off.

Tennis Matches Are Postponed

Three area tennis matches were postponed yesterday because of weather conditions.

They included Plymouth at Williamston, Roanoke at Tarboro and Beddingfield at Greene Central.

The first two have been tentatively rescheduled for Monday, while no date was set for the Greene Central-Beddingfield rematch.

Sutton is the leading scorer for the Pirates with 18 points, while Bill Lamm has 15 and Green had 12.

Vern Davenport has been Green's favorite receiver with four catches for 61 yards. Billy Ray Washington has caught one less, but for 104 yards.

"We have played two games, and that does give us a little advantage," Dye admitted. "That means that we've had a chance to look at our personnel. Sometimes when you are just starting the year, you learn different things about your people after you get into the games."

"But Red Wilson has put a great deal of emphasis on the positive points of Duke's football team. They'll have a wide-open style and they'll play with a lot of enthusiasm. He's already said to expect the unexpected," Dye said.

"And that's what we're trying to get ready to do."

Once Rampants, Now Pirates

Five former Rose High School football standouts are members of this year's East Carolina University team. Three of them have starting roles this season, while the other two are second team members. From left to right are, kneeling, Mike

Brewington, starting linebacker; Jeff Hagans, starting center; standing, Henry Trevathan, backup quarterback; Rocky Butler, backup defensive end; and Joe Godette, starting offensive tackle. Godette is injured now, and will probably miss the next two or three games. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Lot At Stake In Early-Season Meeting Of Maryland, Clemson

By The Associated Press

It's a little early in the football season to be thinking about the Atlantic Coast Conference Crown. But then, last year's top two teams are meeting Saturday and it could be a battle for survival.

It will be Maryland at Clemson. And though many of last year's superstars are gone, including Clemson's Steve Fuller and Jerry Butler and Maryland's Steve Atkins, the revenge factor and a regional television audience will add spice to what otherwise would have been just another good, early-season game.

Maryland's Terrapins have not forgotten the 28-24 loss that took them from the ACC crown and set the stage for an embarrassing 42-0 loss to Texas in the Sun Bowl. Six days later rookie coach Danny Ford's Clemson Tigers beat Ohio State in the Gator Bowl, 17-15, in Woody Hayes' infamous final appearance. It was Clemson's year.

In the other ACC opener in North Carolina, North Carolina State hosts Virginia Saturday night. Wake Forest travels for a meet with Georgia and Duke hosts East Carolina in other games involving ACC teams.

Earlier this week Maryland's Jerry Claiborne noted some of his team's problems as it prepared to invade Memorial Stadium. That in itself, a trip to the place nicknamed Death Valley, is no enviable task.

And there are the injuries to a pair of top defenders, lineman Marlin VanHorn and back Lloyd Burruss. Burruss broke a leg in preseason practice and VanHorn tore up a knee as the Terps struggled to beat Villanova.

While a 21-0 victory over Furman in its opener may not be an accurate barometer, the Tigers were able to do the things they did a year ago with the likes of Fuller and Butler.

Quarterback Billy Lott stepped into Fuller's shoes and accounted for 194 yards to lead the ACC in total offense after one week. Perry Tuttle followed Butler's receiving act by catching six passes for 145 yards.

Running back Lester Brown, one of the top performers of a year ago, rushed for 101 yards against Furman. The Clemson defense was led by tackle Jim Stuckey, ACC player of the week as a defensive lineman.

But Maryland had its share of heroes, too. Running back Charlie Wysocki rushed for 161 yards and scored three times against Villanova and quarterback Mike Tice was second only to Lott in total offense, accounting for 164 yards.

Clemson is rated a three-point choice.

Virginia strung together 430 yards in overwhelming Richmond, 31-0, but Saturday night's assignment should not be so easy. N.C. State, a 34-20 victor over East Carolina, is the ACC favorite and a 13-point favorite in the match.

Virginia's Greg Taylor was named offensive back of the week with a 149-yard, three-touchdown performance against Richmond. Quarterback Todd Kirtley directed Dick Bestwick's Cavaliers flawlessly in completing 1 of 19 passes for 103 yards.

Dwight Sullivan, who gained 131 yards in the Wolfpack's victory over East Carolina, is one of three N.C. State players in the top ten in rushing. The others are Billy Ray Vickers and Scott Smith.

ROCKY MOUNT — Rocky Mount High School gained a 7-2 tennis victory over the Farmville Central girls yesterday.

The defeat evened the Farmville Central record at 1-1 on the year. Pro sets were played in the match because of the threat of rain.

The Lady Jaguars return to action on Tuesday, traveling to Wilson Beddingfield.

Summary:
Karrie Kolehna (RM) defeated Diana Gordon, 8-5.
Courtney Lancaster (FC) defeated Carol Hardy, 9-7.
Chris Popplin (RM) defeated Pat Cutler, 8-0.
Mooring (RM) defeated Karen Liverman, 8-0.
Kim Murrill (RM) defeated Melissa Owens, 8-5.
Helen Thorpe (RM) defeated Karen Dunn, 8-4.
Gordon-Lancaster (FC) defeated Kolehna-Hardy, 8-4.
Popplin-Murrill (RM) defeated Cutler-Liverman, 8-2.
Mooring-Maurdin (RM) defeated Owens-Dunn, 8-3.

Montreal Is Good, But Has Luck Too

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

Whatever it is — luck, talent, clean living — that makes a winner, the Montreal Expos seem to have it.

"It's not only being good, you've got to be lucky in this game too." Expos outfielder Ellis Valentine says. "We've had the talent for two years, but now we're getting the breaks to go along with it."

A big break gave Montreal a 4-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs Thursday night and helped the Expos open up a 100-lead over the Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League East.

Trailing 3-2, pinch-hitter Rusty Staub came to bat in the bottom of the ninth with two out and the bases loaded. Cubs super-receiver Bruce Sutter was looking for save No. 36.

Staub chopped a grounder down the first base line. It hit a seam in the carpet at Olympic Stadium and bounded away from Chicago first baseman Larry Bittner, scoring two runs.

"There are seams all over this ballpark and there's no way you can adjust quickly in a bad hop," Staub said. "We've been getting some breaks, but we're playing like anything and it sure makes you feel like this is our year."

The Expos entered the contest a half-game behind Pittsburgh but actually in first place by less than one one-hundredth of a percentage point since they had played five fewer games. The Pirates had a home game against St. Louis rained out Thursday night. Montreal now has won six in a row and 16 of 17.

Braves 4, Giants 1
Phil Niekro picked up victory No. 18 with a six-hitter, going the route for Atlanta for the 20th time this season.

Gary Matthews drove in two runs for the Braves. He capped a two-run fourth inning and gave Atlanta a 3-0 lead with a force-out grounder. His RBI single made it 4-1 in the ninth.

Phils 2, Mets 1
Philadelphia left-hander Steve Carlton went 81-3 in his fourth quarter and held on to preserve a 12-12 tie Thursday night.

With less than two minutes left in the game, the Cougars drove to the Chargers' seven-yard line, and had fourth and five. The Cougars' halfback was stopped short of the first down by defensive back Art Rouse.

The Chargers (0-0-1) scored first, on a 17-yard first period run by halfback Kenneth Randolph. Ayden-Grifton led 6-0 at the half.

SW Edgecombe (0-0-1) came out in the third period to score two touchdowns and take the lead, 12-6. The Cougars scored on runs of 30 and 43 yards.

Midway through the fourth period, with SW Edgecombe leading 12-6, the Chargers scored to tie the game, 12-12, on a 20-yard run by Randolph, who gained 111 yards on the night.

Ayden-Grifton 6 0 0 6-12
SW Edgecombe 0 0 12 0-12

scored a run.

Dodgers 8, Padres 6
Bill Russell slugged a two-run homer and drove in three runs as the Dodgers held off a late San Diego rally.

Russell's fifth-inning homer, his seventh of the season, gave the Dodgers a 4-1 lead, and Los Angeles picked up two runs each in the fifth and sixth innings.

Blister Gives Flanagan More Trouble Than Toronto's Bats

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Mike Flanagan's blister caused him more problems than Toronto's bats Thursday night.

And when that happened, it was time for Don Stanhouse, as usual.

The Baltimore Orioles continued to throw the strongest arms in the American League at opponents, beating the Toronto Blue Jays 10-4 behind the combined four-hit pitching of Flanagan and Stanhouse.

"They're always easier when you're given a big lead," said Flanagan. "But this is a year where everything's gone my way. When I've been a little off, the team's scored some runs and when the bats haven't come around, I've been on my game."

Flanagan was on his way to his 16th complete game of the year when the blister developed on his pitching hand, and Manager Earl Weaver took him out in the ninth inning.

"There was no sense going further with him," said Weaver. "That's why we've got guys like Don and Tippy (Martinez) on the club."

The victory, incidentally, stopped a three-game losing streak for the Orioles and solidified their lead in the AL East. The Orioles are up by 11 games over Milwaukee, an 8-3 loser to Oakland.

three games in a row like we were."

Twins 7, Rangers 4
Ken Landreaux's leadoff homer in the 12th inning off ace reliever Jim Kern triggered Minnesota past Texas. Kern, 12-5, who came on in relief of Sparky Lyle in the ninth inning, gave up Landreaux's tie-breaking homer on his second pitch of the 12th.

The Twins added two more runs on an RBI single by Bombo Rivera and a squeeze bunt by John Castino.

The Rangers rallied to tie the score at 4-4 with two outs in the bottom of the ninth on five consecutive singles, the last two RBI hits by Billy Sample and Jim Sundberg.

Yankees 10, Red Sox 3

Ron Guidry fashioned his 11th straight victory since the All-Star break, pitching New York over Boston. Guidry allowed nine hits, including a pair of doubles by Carlton Fisk, but struck out 11 in boosting his record to 17-7.

Irish President Irked By The Point Spread

By TOM CANAVAN
Associated Press Writer

Notre Dame University President Rev. Theodore Hesburgh may be seeing red, but black and blue are likely to be the primary colors Saturday when sixth-ranked Michigan hosts the ninth-ranked Fighting Irish.

Hesburgh, making a rare appearance Thursday night at a student pep rally on the Notre Dame campus, was a little disappointed that the nation's bookies had made the Irish a 6-to-7 point underdog for its season opener. And he let his feelings be known.

"Jimmy The Greek may know his percentages," Hesburgh said. "But I know Notre Dame and we're gonna cream them."

The Wolverines will have something to say about that, however, and history seems to be on their side. Michigan is one of six institutions that holds a series advantage against the Fighting Irish. The Ann Arbor school has won ten of 12 meetings with Game 13 on tap in Michigan's Stadium before a sellout crowd of 105,000 and a regional TV audience on ABC-TV.

"They're all big and they're going to be quick," said Michigan middle guard Mike Trgovac, referring to the Notre Dame offense.

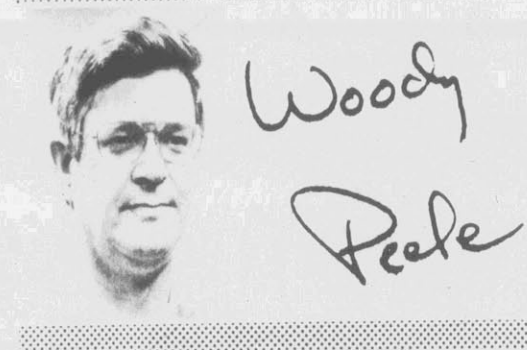

"You just have to be ready to be sore Saturday night, that's all," he added.

In other college football games involving top 20 teams this weekend: top-ranked Southern California is at Oregon State; Iowa is at No. 3 Oklahoma; No. 5 Purdue is at UCLA; Rutgers visits No. 7 Penn State; Utah State is at No. 8 Nebraska and Oregon will face No. 10 Michigan State.

In the second ten, No. 11 Missouri is at Illinois, Wake Forest goes to No. 12 Georgia, Florida is at No. 13 Houston, Utah is at No. 14 Washington, No. 15 Ohio State visits Minnesota, Kansas is at No. 16 Pittsburgh, Colorado State faces No. 17 Arkansas, Arizona State is at No. 18 Florida State, Virginia is at No. 19 North Carolina State and No. 20 Southern Methodist visits Texas Christian.

Second-ranked Alabama and fourth-ranked Texas have the week off.

The No. 1 ranked Trojans will be getting only limited use out of All-America tailback Charles White, who suffered a shoulder injury in last week's 21-7 win over Texas Tech. However, that may not bother Coach John Robinson's team, which holds a 37-7 career edge over the Beavers.

While newcomer Rick Scoppe is strutting around the news room enjoying his first week's picks, the rest of the panel of experts is merely calling it beginner's luck.

Nevertheless, Scoppe's picks last week resulted in only one missed game, that between Rose and Washington High School.

Tom Baines holds to second place with a 9-3 mark, while Etha Allen is third at 8-4. Joe Jenkins, this writer, and our guests are all 7-5. Last week's guest was Greenville Sports Club president Phil Dixon.

This week, those of us who didn't fare as well are hoping to make up a little ground, and test Scoppe's hold on first place.

It's still early yet.

In the high school ranks, several upsets cost us a good week. Of the six games, we finished breaking even, 3-3, which brings us to 8-4 on the year.

There are eight high school games on the charts for this week.

In the Pitt County games, we find North Pitt visiting North Lenoir, C.B. Aycock at Farmville Central, Southwest Edgecombe at Ayden-Grifton, and Conley visiting Washington.

North Pitt was fairly impressive against Enfield, but the Hawks are a bird of a different feather. The Panthers didn't do it last year, and while we'd like to think they can this year, we'll have to pick North Lenoir in this one.

Farmville Central picked up right where it left off last season, downing Clinton last week, and the Jaguars open conference play against C. B. Aycock. Aycock's best hope is to avoid a complete rout as happened last year. Farmville will take this one, too.

Southwest comes in after winning a close game over North Edgecombe, while Ayden-Grifton rallied to nip Roanoke last week. The victory by the Chargers should do a lot for them, and I believe that it will be enough to pull them through this week, too.

Conley's visit to Washington will be interesting to watch. The Vikings have lost their quarterback and are coming off an off-week. Washington hasn't scored a point in two games, and is bothered by several injuries. This one could be a toss-up, but we'll go with Conley to slip past the Pam Pack.

Elsewhere in our area, we'll go with Roanoke to nip Gaston; Chocowinity to down Jamesville; Williamston to keep its winning streak alive against Currituck, but in a real battle; and Greene Central to slip past Southern Nash.

On our panel, we have no high school game this week, since Rose High School has an open date.

East Carolina, however, will be in action, traveling to Duke. The Pirates come off a heart-breaking loss to N.C. State, after leading at the half. Duke is opening its season with a new coach, a new offensive and defensive system, and a lot of new faces. The Blue Devils will also have a lot of enthusiasm. Is that enough? The panel doesn't think so. It's a 5-1 vote for the Pirates this week.

The only dissenting vote comes from our guest of the week, "Daily Reflector" photographer Tommy Forrest has been bugging us for three years or so to be the guest of the week, so we're finally giving him his chance. We'll see how Flash does as the weekend goes by.

Other consensus picks by the panel have: Clemson over Maryland, N.C. State over Virginia; Georgia over Wake Forest; Arizona over California; UCLA over Purdue, Richmond and VMI, a toss-up; Texas A&M over Baylor; Virginia Tech over Appalachian State; Notre Dame and Michigan, a toss-up; Western Carolina over Marshall; and South Carolina over Western Michigan.

Teams In Tie Game

PINETOPS — Ayden-Grifton's junior varisty stopped Southwest Edgecombe short of a first down late in the fourth quarter and held on to preserve a 12-12 tie Thursday night.

With less than two minutes left in the game, the Cougars drove to the Chargers' seven-yard line, and had fourth and five. The Cougars' halfback was stopped short of the first down by defensive back Art Rouse.

The Chargers (0-0-1) scored first, on a 17-yard first period run by halfback Kenneth Randolph. Ayden-Grifton led 6-0 at the half.

SW Edgecombe (0-0-1) came out in the third period to score two touchdowns and take the lead, 12-6. The Cougars scored on runs of 30 and 43 yards.

Midway through the fourth period, with SW Edgecombe leading 12-6, the Chargers scored to tie the game, 12-12, on a 20-yard run by Randolph, who gained 111 yards on the night.

Today's hand features the skill of one of the East Coast's leading women players, Sarah Korbin, who recently moved to Boulder, Colo. At a regional championship in Philadelphia, Mrs. Korbin's team tied for first in the Women's Swiss Team Championship. Her fine play on this hand had a lot to do with her team's success.

At both tables, South ended up in a contract of four spades after East had opened the bidding with one heart. Both Wests led their fourth best heart, and the jack was won by the ace. One declarer took it for granted that East would have the king of spades, and ran the queen of spades. West took the king and reverted to hearts. East won the queen and shifted to the queen of diamonds, knocking out declarer's last stopper in the suit. When she got on lead with the ace of clubs, she cashed the jack of diamonds for the setting trick.

Mrs. Korbin showed that a wise declarer lives within her budget. Since her contract was for ten tricks, not eleven, she realized that it was unnecessary to find East with the king of spades. She could afford to lose a trump trick, in addition to one heart and one club.

After winning the ace of hearts, Mrs. Korbin's first play was the ace of trumps, followed by another. West won the king of spades and the defenders took their heart trick, but declarer was in command. She won the diamond shift, drew the last trump and forced out the ace of clubs. There was still a high diamond in dummy to prevent the defenders from collecting a trick in the suit and to provide an entry, if necessary, to discard the losing diamond on the long clubs.

It is true that, if East had held the king of spades, declarer's play would have cost 30 points, which translates into one International Match Point. But that is a small price to pay to insure the contract.

Investigate Presley Physician In Singer's Drug-Related Death

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Elvis Presley's personal physician, already accused of over-prescribing drugs for the singer, is being investigated for possible criminal liability in the entertainer's death, an assistant local prosecutor says.

Executive Assistant Attorney General Jewett Miller said Thursday night his office began investigating Dr. George Nichopoulos Tuesday after the state Board of Medical Examiners filed a complaint accusing the white-haired doctor of indiscriminately prescribing medication for Presley and 15 others.

Officials said, however, District Attorney General Hugh Stanton Jr. has just about ruled out the possibility of a homicide investigation at this point because of conflicting medical opinions about the cause of death.

"They are going to look at the drug angle first," one official said.

Two of Presley's relatives commented on the rock idol's drug use Thursday. His first cousin Gene Smith said the singer was thought to be close to death after taking drugs at Graceland mansion in 1976.

"He'd been up two days and nights before and was taking stay-awake pills and sleeping pills to get to sleep," Smith said. "His resistance was down and it put him out."

Smith said Vernon Presley revived his son.

"His daddy tried to pump air into him and slapped him on the chest and back, but they finally roused him and he went to the doctor," Smith, 44, said.

Smith said, when he toured with Presley, the singer carried a sack of medications they called their "traveling drug store" and Elvis had access to "anything he wanted."

Elvis' uncle Vester, gatekeeper at Graceland, said his nephew was a "very sick man" the final years of his life.

"He was carried to the hospital once from Graceland when they thought he was near dead," Vester Presley said. "I knew he was very back sick and I think at that time, about 1974 or 1976, he must have been near death from what they said."

Miller said the medical board notified his office the Nichopoulos case could involve criminal allegations. The board's complaint involves civil charges and could lead to the suspension or revocation of the doctor's license.

Conviction on criminal charges of indiscriminate dispensing of drugs could result in a prison term of several years while a negligent homicide conviction generally carries a penalty of less than one year in jail.

Miller said the Memphis Police Metro Narcotics squad will also investigate the case.

The announcement of a criminal investigation came only hours before ABC-TV reported Presley's persistent abuse of drugs led to his Aug. 16, 1977, death. The official cause on the autopsy report was heart disease.

Three pathologists, including one who took part in the Presley autopsy, were interviewed on the program "20-20," which devoted an hour to the 42-year-old singer's death. ABC said Baptist Hospital's chief pathologist, Dr. Eric Muirhead, and his assistant, Dr. Noel Florendo, concluded the interaction of uppers, downers and painkillers killed Presley.

"I agree with Dr. Muirhead's conclusions," Florendo said, referring to Muirhead's belief that polypharmacy — the interaction of several drugs — killed the singer.

Muirhead did not sign the autopsy report, in which Dr. Jerry Francisco, Shelby County medical examiner, ruled Presley died of hypertensive heart disease.

Florendo said "there was no gross evidence of a heart attack," and no sign of advanced heart disease as Francisco described.

The network show backed up statements made in October 1977 by Baptist Hospital sources that Presley died a drug-related death with 10 drugs present in his body.

ABC reported that Presley had a 1.6 level of codeine in his body and that a level of 1.8 is considered lethal.

Francisco said earlier this week he stands behind his ruling in Presley's death.

Promoter Sues

Johnny Cash

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Singer Johnny Cash was in Illinois when he could have been in Iowa, says a promoter who is suing the country and western star for breach of contract.

Cash is being sued for $510,000 in a Circuit Court action that says he performed in Illinois although his agent said he was injured and could not appear in Iowa the day before.

Promoter Bob Sparrow says in the suit that Artists Consultant Inc., a California agency, booked the singer in March for an Aug. 30 performance at the Mount Pleasant, Iowa, fairgrounds. On Aug. 28, Sparrow says, a booking agent told him Cash had a serious leg injury and would not be able to keep the date.

Nevertheless, the suit said, Cash did keep an Aug. 31 performance date at the DuQuoin State Fairgrounds in southern Illinois.

Sparrow alleges breach of contract and demands $10,000 compensatory damages plus $500,000 punitive damages in the suit filed Tuesday.

Cash could not be reached for comment.

Large Contract To Cheryl Tiegs

NEW YORK (AP) — Model Cheryl Tiegs says she never discusses money and neither would the cosmetic executives who have signed the blonde, blue-eyed model to a new five-year contract billed as "the biggest cosmetic talent contract ever."

"It's just almost too good to be true," Ms. Tiegs said Thursday of her new relationship with Noxell Corp. to advertise their Cover Girl makeup.

Although her salary was not revealed at the contract signing party at the posh Hotel Pierre, the New York Daily News reported the contract would be more than the $2 million Farrah Fawcett received from a rival cosmetic firm.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Giving Doctors Their Due

I'm a young woman, and belong to a club. The "girls" are always complaining about their doctors. I recently had an awful experience. I gave birth to a stillborn child. It would have been our first. My husband and I were overwhelmed by distress. If it weren't for my doctor, we could not have gotten through this difficult time. I really believe that there are a lot of doctors like mine who are not given credit for their kindness and understanding. My doctor is a woman of dedication and compassion. I just want to shout to the world my gratitude. — Mrs. S.L., Tenn.

Dear Mrs. L.: Your letter is a heart-warming one. It is particularly touching that, after such acute grief, you should express your reaction to someone who offered you solace and comfort. I am sure that your doctor allowed you to express the intensity of your sorrow and encouraged you to outline a pattern of living which will eventually bring you compensating joy.

At first, women who have had such an unhappy occurrence cannot believe that their life will once again find the fulfillment that they had anticipated.

Yet, it does happen. The original anguish is supplanted by hope when couples have the emotional support and guidance of family, friends and doctors.

I share with you your enthusiasm about doctors. My own experience in the practice of medicine has been one of enormous faith in the dedication of most doctors to their patients.

Even with the slightest injuries, I get black-and-blue marks all over my arms and my legs. Otherwise I am in excellent health. Could there be something wrong with my blood? — Miss L.P., R.I.

Dear Miss P.:

Some people have especially delicate blood vessels. The walls of these vessels break easily, even with the slightest pressure or injury. When this happens, blood oozes out of the ruptured blood vessel and causes the discoloration under the skin. These black-and-blue marks are known as "ecchymoses." Many normal, healthy people like yourself have this problem.

It has been known to occur more frequently in fair-haired people with translucent, delicate skin. Often this occurs in other members of the family as well.

Sometimes, there are blood disorders which can be responsible for the black-and-blue marks you describe. A deficiency of one of the important components of the blood, platelets, can cause extensive ecchymoses, even without demonstrable injury.

Platelets are one of the important ingredients in the blood responsible for the clotting mechanism.

Although your problem does not seem to be of any significance, you would have a great deal of extra assurance if you were to have a complete blood study, just to be sure that you are not overlooking any underlying and readily rectifiable condition.

DR. COLEMAN welcomes letters from readers. Please write to him in care of this newspaper.

ENGINEER & MANAGEMENT
TRAINEE

If you've set your sights on an engineering career with a rewarding future in management, look no further than Central Soya. We're one of the world's foremost producers of food and feed products, seeking a take-charge self-starter to design, make cost estimates and oversee the installation of new equipment and machinery.

In this capacity, you'll obtain and evaluate production statistics and recommend necessary changes for efficient productivity. Preparing budget requests and contract specifications for outside contractors will also fall within your responsibilities.

This high-stability, people-oriented position requires a person with a B.S. in Engineering who works best with a minimum of supervision and has an interest in both management and customer service.

Future management opportunities will be directly related to your effective performance. You can also look forward to an excellent starting salary and impressive benefits. For prompt consideration, send your resume to: Wilson Blackburn, Central Soya of Wilson, Inc., Box 110 Wilco Blvd., Wilson, North Carolina 27893.
