

Redistricting Talks Slated In December

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

The December informational meeting of the Greenville City School Board is the time set for the initial recommendation by the city school staff for alternatives to be considered for a redistricting plan for school year 1980-81.

Superintendent Glenn Cox said that he and his staff had already begun preliminary work with a view to compiling all the data needed for shaping up alternatives. This includes re-spotting pupil distribution by race on the pupil personal map. From this information, they will move on to drawing up charts with patterns of distribution, and then pull together projections based on space available at each school and other applicable factors.

Information presented to the board at Monday's meeting shows that based on pupil enrollment as of September 11, the following percentage ratio exists in the six elementary schools.

— Eastern Elementary, 60.1 non-white, 39.9 white.

— Elmhurst, 51.8 non-white, 48.2 white.

— Sadie Sautler, 48.3 non-white, 51.7 white.

— South Greenville, 54.9 non-white, 45.1 white.

— Third Street, 64.4 non-white, 35.6 white.

— Wahl-Coates, 48.7 non-white, 51.3 white.

Based on the overall student population of 1,345 non-white and 1,167 white, this gives an overall percentage ratio of 53.5 non-white and 46.5 white.

Using the overall ratio with a five percent below or above the overall figure as an acceptable guideline, this means that two schools — Sadie Sautler with a 10.9 percent difference, and Eastern, with a 6.6 percent difference, are out of line with the established acceptable difference. Sadie Sautler, with a 5.2 percent difference is a borderline situation, and three schools are within the guideline established.

Another matter discussed was the possibility that the state of North Carolina will direct that school systems in the future have sufficient buses to provide transportation for students on an all-seated, no-standing basis. If this does take place, Cox said it will result in Greenville having to have an additional five buses. He added that a budget item of $75,000 to cover the costs of five additional buses would be worked into the local budget projections for 1980-81.

Also relative to transportation, board members were given copies of a memorandum on bus regulations sent to all parents of students on Monday, Sept. 17, and a copy of rules for school bus passengers.

It was noted that only a principal, not a driver, has authority to deny a student the right to ride a bus when a student is guilty of infraction of school bus rules for a third time.

A membership (enrollment) report for all classes, kindergarten through grades 12, based on the first ten days of school, shows that 5,114 students are enrolled. This compares with an enrollment of 5,118 on the last school day of the past school year.

Cox reported that the 5,114 figure is about 200 above the enrollment figure on the first full day of school. "We always have parents who for one or another reason will not get their children into school until after the Labor Day holiday," Cox commented. "This of course hurts us monetarily, as funds are based on average attendance throughout the school year."

The three board members who are on the Joint City-County Merger Study Committee reported on the meeting held recently with the Pitt County members.

Mrs. Nancy Middleton noted that the basic achievement was an agreement by committee members to approach county commissioners about the possibility of monetary support for a merger program.

Mrs. Terry Shank said the Chamber of Commerce and the NCAE had both offered their services in any capacity in which they might be able to serve.

Another point was that frequency of meetings by the joint committee will possibly hinge on the recommendation of an experienced consultant.

Donovan Phillips offered the viewpoint "I feel that the meeting removed a lot of prejudices in the minds of members on each board. I think the meeting changed that situation."

Mrs. Shank said she thought Phillips' comment represented "one-man's opinion." She added however, she felt it was hopeful "that we (the joint committee members) are now able to talk about ideas."

Another issue discussed is that of a Energy Management Policy for the Greenville City Schools. The N.C. State Board of Education in August provided

Remove Lid On H-Bomb

By TIMOTHY HARPER
Associated Press Writer

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — With a champagne toast "to the First Amendment," the staff of the Progressive magazine celebrated a government decision to cancel a court fight against an article on hydrogen bomb secrecy.

"We will publish it just as quickly as we can," publisher Erwin Knoll said Monday of the article, "The H-Bomb Secret," by free-lance writer Howard Morland.

The next issue is to be mailed to subscribers Oct. 4. Knoll said it is uncertain whether there is time to get the article in that issue.

Cheers also went up in the offices of the Madison Press Connection, a small, two-year-old daily that published Sunday an article the government also says contained restricted weapons information.

"I am delighted that the government has done the right thing for once," said Press Connection editor Ron McCrear. "This policy of retroactive classification simply won't wash with the American public or press."

Although it had contended publication could compromise national security, the Justice Department announced Monday that it was dropping two legal efforts to block the articles.

Its suits were against the Progressive and the Daily Californian, a student newspaper at the University of California at Berkeley.

"The reason for the dismissal was the publication of an article containing restricted information concerning thermonuclear weapons information by a newspaper in Madison, Wis.," Terrence Adamson, chief Justice Department spokesman, said in Washington.

He was referring to the Press Connection publication of the letter by Charles Hansen, 32, a computer programmer from Mountain View, Calif., who said studying nuclear weaponry was his hobby.

Adamson, who said the government believes national security may have been hurt by publication of the Hansen information, left open the possibility of criminal prosecution in connection with the article.

The government claims the letter exposes three critical factors of H-bomb construction. The letter cited Morland's claim that the information could be gleaned from public references.

The Justice Department also said it would seek to vacate an order issued late Saturday against the Daily Californian, which had also been planning to publish the Hansen letter.

Morland said his article was not necessarily a blueprint for building H-bombs, but rather an attempt to show that the nuclear industry uses a "myth of secrecy" to keep the public ignorant about nuclear proliferation.

Cuba Frees 4 Americans Long Held For 'Spying'

By STEPHEN C. SMITH
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — "I never gave up," said Larry Lunt after he and three others stepped onto U.S. soil after years of imprisonment in Cuba on espionage and political charges.

Gaunt, tired and somewhat bewildered, the four Americans arrived at Miami International Airport on Monday night, only hours after learning their release was imminent.

Imprisoned since the Cold War days of the mid-1960s, the four were released 10 days after the United States freed four Puerto Rican terrorists.

The State Department denied any "package deal" with Cuba, but officials acknowledged awareness of Cuban President Fidel Castro's public offer to release the Americans in return for release of the Puerto Ricans.

"I'm happy, I'm happy. I'm three times happy," said estatic Juan Tur, 62, in Spanish as he hugged his wife and daughter. Tur was sent to prison by Castro in 1963 for "counter-revolutionary activities."

The freed Americans were Lunt, 56, a Saratoga, Wyo., rancher sentenced to 30 years in 1965 for espionage; Tur, a Tampa native; Everett Jackson, 39, of Los Angeles, sentenced to 30 years for espionage in 1967; and Claudio Rodrigues Morales, 49, of Mayaguez, Puerto Rico, sentenced to 20 years in 1966 for smuggling people out of Cuba.

"I feel very deeply and immensely happy," Lunt said. "All I want to do is go back to Wyoming and ranching."

Looking exhausted, they slumped in front of television cameras in threadbare suits Jackson said were "compliments of the (Communist) Party."

BLUE LAW REQUEST?

How does a citizen of Greenville go about getting the blue law reconsidered? N. N.

Make a request for a public hearing through the City Manager's office, says Gail Meeks, City Manager's assistant.

Mrs. Meeks said the rescission of the blue (mandatory Sunday closing) law was last discussed by the City Council in December, 1974.

An amendment was made in January, 1978, to add some items that could be legally sold on Sundays, she added.

MOBILE HOME PAINTING FEEDBACK

Claude Roache, local mobile home repairman, in response to the Hotline item about mobile home painting published last week, said trailers that seem to need painting may not always need it. "The paint is baked on," he said, "and if it's only dull, usually a good wax job will bring out the color once again. If the painting chipping, though, he said, perhaps painting would be in order. Priming is not necessary he said, but you may need to wire brush the area to be painted and then treat it with vinegar or special paint treatment preparation prior to painting, he suggested.

Preparing New Livestock Arena For County Fair

By REBECCA BUFFALO
Reflector Staff Writer

A livestock exhibition and hog market sale will be featured this year at the Pitt County fair, and county extension agent Mike Regans is excited about the forthcoming plans for the events.

"We'll have a variety of animals for exhibition, such as hogs, dairy cattle, beef cattle, sheep, chickens and turkeys," said Regans. "Tuesday, 7 p.m., we'll have a market hog show, sponsored by the Pitt County Livestock Association."

A lot of hard work and planning has gone into the building of the livestock arena, a 5,000 square foot, fully enclosed facility featuring 37 holding pens and a show ring. Workmen are now putting the finishing touches on the building, readying it for the beginning of the fair, Monday, Sept. 24.

The hog market show will offer junior and senior divisions, with hogs ranging from 180 to 240 pounds. Individuals will be judged in pens of three, with champion and reserve champion trophies to be awarded in each division. An overall winner will be selected from the combination of junior and senior divisions.

Judge for the event will be Jimmy Pollock, an agricultural extension agent from Lenoir County. All hogs will go to market after the show.

A petting barnyard will be featured during the week, with small animals available for children to see and touch.

"We're asking folks to bring livestock to be checked between 8 a.m. and 12 noon Monday," said Regans.

Trophies and cash prizes will be awarded for the hog show, with ribbons and premium money for other livestock. The hog market will be the first show held at the fair in several years, Regans noted, since many people shied away from bringing livestock to such events when hog cholera was a problem.

The building was built this year by the Pitt County American Legion Post 39, with help from the Pitt County Livestock Development Association. Regans noted that the Association will provide security for the animals at the fair next week.

"The purpose of the livestock association is to develop and promote an interest in livestock," said Regans. "We want to show consumers we're a livestock producing county, as well as let people know around the state that Pitt County is producing some fine livestock."

For further information on the livestock exhibition or the hog sale, interested persons may contact Regans at the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service office, 758-1196.

Investigating Patient's Death

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The director of the state O'Berry Center at Goldsboro has asked the State Bureau of Investigation to investigate the death of a 24-year-old patient.

Dr. Jerry Lyall said today he asked for the SBI probe into the death of William Dillard, whose parents live in Raleigh.

Dillard died in Wayne Memorial Hospital last Friday of what officials said was an apparent cardio-pulmonary arrest.

He had been taken to the hospital after suffering a seizure at the O'Berry Center, officials said.

An autopsy later indicated that the "primary cause of death was a head injury," Lyall said.

Lyall said the SBI has begun the investigation.

Gains for Europe's Women

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher is one of several women who hold important positions in European governments. Others include Portuguese Prime Minister Maria de Lurdes Pintassilgo and former French Health Minister Simone Weil, who recently became president of the European Parliament. Sweden and France each have several women Cabinet ministers, and 66 of the European Parliament's 410 members are women. Despite these gains, European women still face serious problems. An unusually high number of European girls are underachievers in school. The unemployment rate for women in Europe is much higher than the rate for men. Women generally earn lower wages, as well.

DO YOU KNOW — What woman is currently the monarch of Great Britain?

DEAR ABBY: Hooray for STEAMED IN STOCKTON, who was tempted to bill his physician $100 for the two hours he spent cooling his heels in the outer office.

Listen to this: I made an appointment for a routine physical six months in advance. When I arrived, the waiting room was packed with patients. An hour later, I was called into an examining room and was told to undress. I did. I sat there unclothed for 40 minutes until his majesty, the doctor, entered!

As soon as I was on the examining table, his telephone rang. The doctor said, "Excuse me," and proceeded to talk to another doctor about a business deal. They talked for 10 minutes, after which he phoned his secretary and asked her to call yet another doctor.

I lay there seething with resentment while my doctor told the second doctor what the first doctor had told him about their "tax shelter."

I was given a very fast examination, after which the doctor prescribed medication for high blood pressure. Believe me, I know what caused it!

STEAMED IN LONG BEACH
DEAR STEAMED: My mail reflects a great deal of sympathy for STEAMED. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: We had a doctor in Falls Church, Va., who never overbooked appointments. We never had to wait more than five or 10 minutes to see him. He had an excellent practice, and was so conscientious he refused to take a new patient unless he had time. (He referred them to a colleague.)

In Florida, it's another story. My husband had a 2 p.m. appointment. At 4 p.m. he was still waiting. He approached the nurse and asked, "Do I have to wait until the doctor sees all these other people?" (There were about 10 people waiting.) The nurse replied, "You CERTAINLY do." With that, my husband walked out!

STEAMED IN DAYTONA BEACH
DEAR ABBY: I gave my doctor a taste of his own medicine a few years back. He used to keep me waiting for hours before I could get in to see him.

I was plenty annoyed, but I didn't want to change doctors because I had gone to him for years, he had all my old records and X-rays, and I thought I might as well live with the devil I knew rather than the devil I didn't know.

Anyway, when it came time to pay him, I made HIM wait for his money.

It never got me in any quicker, but I felt better about having to wait.

GOT EVEN IN IDAHO
DEAR ABBY: I worked for a doctor for six years. When he had two examining rooms, two appointments were booked for the same time. When he added two more examining rooms, four appointments were made for the same time. His appointments were booked 15 minutes apart.

In my association with other doctors' receptionists, I learned that they all worked on the same principle—the number of appointments booked for a given time depended on the number of examining rooms the doctor had.

I have suffered this fate as a patient. I suppose there are exceptions if you are lucky enough to find a doctor who is more interested in his patients than in their money.

Don't use my name. I may have to go back to work again.

guidelines for energy in the schools, including thermostat settings in classrooms — based on federal regulations.

The regulations provide for a space temperature setting of no more than 65 degrees during the heating season and no less than 78 degrees during the cooling season for classrooms of students in grades seven and above. The regulations do not apply to kindergarten through grade six classrooms.

In another energy related matter, Cox said that Bob Stewart was working with the city in providing energy consumption data as part of Greenville's participation in a national comprehensive community energy study.

Four elections to positions in the city schools were approved. Two of these are to relieve an overload situation in three classrooms.

Three budget amendments were approved. One was a correction to the wrap-up of the State Public School Fund budget for the 1978-79 school year to correct a duplication on reporting of budget items amounting to $40,883.52.

Another amendment covers a decrease of $35,842 in CETA funds for two programs, specialized educational services and primary reading. Budget Director Mrs. Naomi Edwards said the amendment represents money "that we may have to turn back in" to this particular source of funding.

The third amendment, in the amount of $2,951 for the School Food Services budget, is neither an increase or decrease, but is a shift of funds from one category to another called for due to a change in the manner of payment of non-programmed charges.

The updated teacher substitute list presented by Cox was tabled until the October action meeting so that information on teaching degrees of those on the list can be provided. The board authorized Cox to use the list on an interim basis until the list with additional information is approved.

A letter from John Maye asking the board to provide funds to have a portrait of his mother, Mrs. Beatrice Maye, painted and placed in the library at Aycock was disapproved. The board asked Cox to write John Maye a letter explaining that in the past portraits honoring persons have been at no cost to the school budget, and that in each past instance portraits have been used only to honor persons who have retired. Further, in all instances, similar honoring by portraits have been the result of a collective, not an individual request.

Donovan Phillips and Mrs. Terry Shank were elected as official (voting) delegates to the N.C. State Board of School Boards Convention being held November 8-10. Alternate delegates are Mrs. Nancy Middleton and Mrs. Lena Brown.

Fire Officials Blame Prop. 13 For Losses

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Some of the expensive homes turned to ashes by the brush fires still raging through California might have been saved if crews had not been reduced because of Proposition 13 cutbacks, fire officials have charged.

Even as they registered their complaint Monday, fires burned out of control in several places.

Maj. Gen. Frank Schober Jr., commander of the California National Guard, alerted the Army National Guard, which is providing support to the California Department of Forestry and the U.S. Forest Service at four blazes — the Shadow fire near Lake Arrowhead, the Paseo fire west of Corona, the Chili Bar fire near Placerville and the Woodward Fire near Lake Isabella in Kern County.

Firemen remained on duty today amid smoldering ruins left by the blaze that destroyed 24 Laurel Canyon homes in the Hollywood Hills over the weekend.

City Fire Chief John Gerrard said some of the homes might have been saved if the department had been at the staff levels set up before passage of Proposition 13, the referendum which cut California property taxes and forced public spending cutbacks.

Engine companies now have four men instead of five, and off-duty firefighters were called in to supplement working crews, he said.

Kidnapper Is Denied Parole

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The state Community Release Board has denied parole for Richard Schoenfeld, one of three men convicted in the kidnapping of a busload of Chow-chilla school children.

Prior planning and preparation involved in the crime and Schoenfeld's active part in the abduction were cited among reasons for the board's action Monday. Schoenfeld, 24, his brother, James, 27, and Fred Woods, also 27, were found guilty of transporting the bus driver and 26 children 100 miles to a rock quarry July 15, 1976, and forcing them into a buried moving van.

"It takes two hours to call a man in, get him to the station, get him in uniform and out to the fire," he said.

The recent rash of fires in Southern California has charred more than 55,000 acres, destroyed a total of 34 homes and prompted the closing of all four national forests.

Air quality officials said the atmospheric inversion which had trapped smog close to the ground had lifted, easing the situation despite the smoke in the air.

Meanwhile, almost 2,000 firefighters from across the nation tried to keep the 22,000-acre Sage fire from jumping the Angeles Crest Highway in the San Gabriel Mountains, 30 miles northeast of downtown Los Angeles.

Education Variety Available

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the third of six articles on learning opportunities for adults, written for The Associated Press by the College Board, a non-profit association concerned with education for students of all ages. This article deals with choosing a program.

NEW YORK (AP) — Though learning opportunities for adults are everywhere, the method, style and place of learning you choose has to satisfy you.

"Some learning opportunities are easy to find because they are offered by agencies that are obviously in the business of education," says Ronald H. Miller, assistant director of Future Directions for a Learning Society, a program of the College Board funded by the Exxon Education Foundation.

"But," he points out, "numerous other opportunities are to be found in business and industry, libraries, civic and community agencies such as Y's, to name a few. There are even resources you can use on your own, such as cassettes and newspapers."

If you thought your local school was only for "kids," think again. Today, local public schools are offering a wide variety of continuing education programs for both youths and adults.

For example, literacy education for adults is provided up to the eighth-grade level of education. Vocational training is provided for the unemployed and underemployed. Classes are offered in the English language and American government for foreign-born persons who wish to become naturalized citizens.

Some classes prepare people for passing tests which enable them to complete a high school education, a time that can be entered at any time during the regular school year. Enrichment courses are also provided.

centers serving out-of-school youths and adults.

Home or correspondence study is offered by 60 colleges and universities, as well as by specialized private schools. If a degree is your goal, check carefully, since most colleges and universities accept only a limited number of such courses toward a degree.

While proprietary school correspondence courses sometimes provide excellent ways of learning specific vocational skills, careful inquiry is essential to make sure the school is reputable and the course suited to your needs.

Private trade, technical and business schools offer training for careers in many fields such as aeronautics and civil aviation, auto mechanics, baking, bartending, broadcasting, commercial art, cosmetology, fashion design, hairdressing and barbering, interior design, locksmithing, radio and TV repairs, truck driving, and welding.

Business and commercial schools offer programs in accounting, data processing, secretarial and other business occupations. Court reporting, finance, insurance, real estate, and sales are frequently taught in special purpose business schools.

Programs are generally for full-time students, but many schools accept part-time students.

If you are interested, it is worth finding out more about the schools and their special programs. The schools are generally licensed or accredited by state departments of education, and some are accredited by the National Association of Trade and Technical Schools.

Both two-year and four-year colleges and universities offer a wide range of academic and auxiliary services for adults. The first thing you should do is find out what programs or courses the institution offers adults. Most continuing education courses do not have an age limitation and are not restricted to high school graduates.

If you want a degree, you will want to examine both the regular degree programs and the special non-traditional degree program offerings. Many undergraduate and graduate degree programs can be completed entirely through part-time study. Non-traditional degree programs frequently require only limited classroom attendance or sometimes none at all.

External degree programs are offered at the associate and bachelor's degree levels. There are even colleges with no formal campus, such as Empire State College of the State University of New York.

Special adult degree programs in liberal studies at both the bachelor's and master's levels are offered by several colleges and universities, such as Goddard College in Vermont.

An increasingly popular program is the weekend college, which allows adults to work on degrees at a more convenient time. Individual programs are worked out for each student in programs such as University Without Walls offered at institutions in the Union for Experimenting Colleges and Universities.

Today, many colleges award credit toward degrees on the basis of evidence of a person's experience or results on examinations developed by the College Board, the New York State Education Department, or the college itself. Frequently, colleges will grant up to one or two years of college credit for acceptable scores on these examinations.

Experience in a particular job and volunteer work in social agencies are the just examples of the experiences for which credit is sometimes awarded after faculty review of an individual's record.

Non-credit programs in prepare and universities prepare persons for college-level work after an extended absence, or to meet avocational, vocational and professional needs. c. 1979 by College Entrance Examination Board, New York. NEXT: Where to seek training.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

September . . . the season when schools open their doors. . . school janitors become sex symbols . . . and little children wander around the halls muttering, "My Mom can drive."

Throughout the years, I thought I had heard just about every horror story of volunteer work you could think of. But I hadn't heard the one about the busload of Head Start children which my friend in California volunteered to help transport.

That memorable Monday, 75 three- and four-year-olds boarded a bus to be transported to the Jewish temple a couple of miles away. A pastor was in charge of the driving and my friend sat in the front seat and was in charge of "tranquility."

The children were dropped off and picked up again without a hitch. Now all that was left was to drop children off in the arms of their waiting mothers at 15 street corners in Venice, Calif. It would have worked out perfectly had someone remembered to tell the mothers.

They took the children back to the temple to check their records for addresses, only to find the doors locked. They threw themselves on the mercy of the children. It seemed all 75 of them lived in a white house with a fence around it and two trees in the front yard.

They put plan B into operation.

which was to stop at every street corner while the reverend led them in prayer. Occasionally, at these stops they dragged strangers in off the street to see if they recognized anyone on the bus. (By this time the children were into their third afternoon nap.)

After four hours, the children were all safely at home. Not to be daunted on the next trip, our school volunteer decided to remedy this situation by hanging a colored bird around the neck of each child. The pink birds would get off at the pink corner, the green birds on the green corner, etc. Her only problem was that she ran out of colors and one group had blackbirds around their necks. When a mother heard her call out to a group of black children, "All blackbirds off the bus," she called her a President Mrs. Jack Whichard welcomed members after the summer vacation and recognized new league offices beginning their two-year term. They are Mrs. A. L. Ferguson, recording secretary; Mrs. Van G. Fleming III, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Norwin G. Pierce, treasurer.

Bloodmobile Chairman Mrs. Raymond Mackenzie reported 70 members worked 231 hours to collect 428 units of blood in three summer visits. Eleven visits are scheduled for the coming year, and the next visit is Oct. 9 and 10 at East Carolina University.

Mrs. Kelly Barnhill, hospital activities chairman, reported 346 flags were made as tray favors for July 4. An arrangement was placed in the Pediatrics Unit.

Mrs. Bernard Vick furnished five layettes during the summer and asked for more volunteer help for sewing.

Mrs. Thomas Mallison received two memorials and made ten disbursements from the Laughinghouse Fund. Mrs. Herbert Carter answered ten calls from the Emergency Charity Fund. The loan of seven pieces of equipment from the Lending Chest was reported by Mrs. James Graham.

Mrs. Ed Smith, hospital gift shop chairman, gave financial reports on the summer months and reminded members of proper procedures for operating the gift shop and service cart for the beginning of the fall term.

Mrs. Mallison Gives Program

Mrs. Arlene Mallison was speaker at the dinner meeting of the Greenville Business and Professional Women's Club held Thursday evening at the Ramada Inn.

Hopefully, A Better Future

Even though U. S. farmers will turn out a bumper grain crops this year, the Agriculture Department does not expect to see any decrease in food prices for the consumer.

The reason is the huge overseas demand for wheat, corn, soybeans, peanuts, rice and other grains.

It reflects the continuing economic dilemma of the nation. Obviously the sale of grains overseas will be a big help with the nation's balance of payments. At the same time the high demand for grain is no help to the U. S. consumer in the cost-of-living fight.

But in the final analysis the strong demand means better prices for the farmers . . . and that in turn allows the farmer to further improve the productivity of his operations. That will be quite important to us all in the years ahead.

Approach Crossings With Great Care

The governor's safety representative Carl E. Whitefield, spoke to the Coastal Plains Safety Club concerning the dangers of railroad crossings last week.

He pointed out that 39 people were killed in vehicle-train collisions last year.

The message is clear: every grade railroad crossing should be approached with caution by motorists. Even little used tracks have rail traffic at times, and disregarding that could result in a serious collision.

Motorists should always be alert to railroad crossings.

THIS AFTERNOON

The Dollars In Education

RALEIGH — Any operation which spends better than $1.5 billion in a year is big business . . . and that's just what public schools in North Carolina spent last year.

Where does the money come from? The public; whether the source is federal, state or local.

If it seems local school taxes have been rising rapidly of late, the figures support that. The local share is now 24.2 percent, which is up four percent over the previous year; and up eight percent from 10 years ago. The state share has declined steadily for 10 years, now down to 63.6 percent. The federal share has also gone down to a current 12.1 percent.

Where does the dollar go? Mostly to pay the people who run the schools. Of every dollar spent last year, 71 cents went for "instructional services" which is basically salaries and another 12 cents was spent to pay employee benefits such as insurance, retirement, etc. for some 66,000 educators.

The Rest
That leaves 17 cents for the rest. Eleven cents for supplies and materials; four cents for services; one cent for buildings and one for "other" . . . So you think private schools are expensive? The average Tar Heel parent still thinks the per-student cost in public school is about $500. That was 10 years ago. The per-pupil cost is now $1,313.09.

So the teacher presiding over an average classroom of 30 pupils is in effect running a $40,000-per-year business. The boss' pay has improved as well. Now first in the Southeast, and 29th in the nation, North Carolina teachers average $13,537 per year. National average is $15,040; Southeast average is $12,957.

Getting the students to and from school each day is also big business, and this state runs the nation's biggest school bus system.

More than half a million miles are covered daily by 11,910 buses hauling more than 744,000 pupils. The total cost is nearly $48 million with 70 percent of that to pay mechanics and drivers.

BILL NOBLITT

There is trouble ahead: A year ago gas cost about 42 cents per gallon; it now costs more than 65 cents and by the end of the present school year it will be 92 cents. Officials expect to come up somewhere between $3.6 million and $6.5 million short. New rules adopted by the State Board of Education may help. Bus drivers no longer warm up the vehicle before starting out; tanks are kept partially filled to cut down on theft; a sleepy driver who is running late may find the bus gone if delayed more than one minute; and stops have been reduced by setting a minimum of two-tenths of a mile between stops.

Used Books
As with most businesses, a lot of the old is thrown out when the new comes in. So it is with textbooks. There have been instances in which books were burned or buried in the landfill despite pleas from some people who could use them.

The idea that books can't be given to students or parents, hospitals, nursing homes, civic groups, community groups, tutoring programs and such is wrong, says Claude Warren, chief of the textbook operation.

The only rule is that the books can't be sold or placed in a regular instructional program. They can be used for supplemental material, placed in libraries, even given to students or adults for their own personal libraries, Warren says.

Criminal Code Balked

WASHINGTON — It is a disheartening experience, more often than not, to watch the wheels of Capitol Hill go round and round. The machinery groans and clanks and clatters, but it rarely grinds out legislation of real merit; and even when legislation is urgently needed, the congressional factory sometimes seems incapable of producing anything at all.

That is the case right now with efforts to agree upon recodification of the Federal Criminal Code. All that is agreed upon is that recodification is needed. For 10 years — at least 10 years! — good men in both parties have labored at the task. In the 94th Congress members struggled vainly over the bill known as S.1. In the 95th we had the son of S.1, a 682-page bill identified as S.1437. The measure actually passed the Senate 72-15 in January of 1978, and then collapsed in the House.

Now the effort is being revived, and a truly worthwhile effort it is. The Criminal Code has not been overhauled since the First Congress began enacting criminal laws nearly 200 years ago! It is today a mishmash of provisions that are conflicting, confusing and inconsistent. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy terms the code quite simply a "disgrace," and one does not have to agree with the senior senator from Massachusetts on other issues to remark that he is absolutely right on this one.

In a major address on Sept. 7, Mr. Kennedy summed up the principal shortcomings. The existing Criminal Code contains sentencing procedures "in desperate need of reform." Offenders found guilty of substantially identical crimes receive widely disparate punishments. More than 70 different statutes deal with theft and fraud. Provisions dealing with forgery and counterfeiting conflict with one another. Fifty statutes cope ineffectually with perjury and false statements. In Title 18, approximately 80 terms are used to describe the mental state necessary to convict an accused. Archaic provisions abound: It remains a federal crime to detain a government carrier pigeon. The only statute now readily available for combatting election fraud was enacted in 1870.

The case for recodification, in brief, is overwhelmingly evident. The cause has enlisted such conservative Republicans as former Sen. Roman Hruska of Nebraska and Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina. It has attracted such liberal Democrats as Kennedy in the Senate and Father Robert Drinan in the House. In the respective judiciary committees, staff attorneys have grown old on the problems of reaching consensus.

Some of us who follow the law had hoped that things would be better this time around. After all, not more than 40 or 50 disputed provisions had sunk S. 1437 a year ago. Surely, it was supposed, these could be compromised — or left untouched in existing law — and all the other agreed-upon aspects could be passed. Alas; it apparently is not to be.

On the very day after Sen. Kennedy's speech to the Senate, Assistant Attorney General Philip B. Heymann came before a subcommittee of House Judiciary. He took a long, measured look at the subcommittee's draft bill and dumped all over it. The draft, he said, would "seriously undercut" the government's ability to fight white collar crime and organized crime. Prosecutions for public corruption and narcotics would be impeded.

Mr. Heymann provided specific examples. By forbidding "consensual monitoring" (recording conversations with the consent of one party but not both parties), the draft bill would abolish an investigator's tool that was used on 8,600 occasions last year. By shortening a certain statute of limitations from five years to two years, the draft would make it "difficult if not impossible" to investigate many allegations in the area of white collar crime. By rewriting the old Hobbs Act, the subcommittee would destroy the principal weapons available to respond to public corruption. The witness's statement ran on for 45 pages, and he seemed barely to be getting warmed up.

This devastating attack upon the House draft is bound to arouse doubts and fears

INSIDE REPORT

Moscow's Cuba Worry

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — In one of the oddest diplomatic probes, the Soviet embassy here has been quietly sounding out top Washington correspondents on the seriousness of U.S. demands that the Soviet combat brigade in Cuba either be removed or dismantled.

This indirect effort to determine the inner political consensus of America fascinates White House advisers of President Carter for two reasons: It suggests an uncustomarily divided Kremlin, unable to make up its mind how to handle Carter's demands; it indicates that Senate approval of SALT II is given a very high priority in Moscow.

That ought to harden Carter's resolve to hang tough. Senate headcounters strongly doubt that the new strategic arms treaty (SALT) will have any chance at all without a visible Soviet backdown on its combat brigade.

A footnote: Still another item of sophisticated military hardware has been spotted in Cuba. Latest intelligence reports show the presence of Zu-23s, mobile anti-aircraft weapons which performed brilliantly for Egypt against Israeli aircraft in the 1973 war. This adds credence to the theory that Moscow is building Cuba into a first-class military power.

Jordan Must Go
One nationally respected political professional involved in President Carter's reelection effort is about to give some terse advice to the White House: Jordan must go.

Even though he may be the innocent victim of calumny, top presidential aide Hamilton Jordan undoubtedly will remain a major political liability to the president so long as he stays in the White House, according to this political pro. His solution: Send Jordan to the Carter-Mondale election committee and bring in Ambassador Robert Strauss from his troubled Mideast assignment to replace Jordan as White House chief of staff.

That would mean Jordan in turn replacing his sidekick, Tim Kraft, as Carter campaign manager. Such a change would win applause in the Democratic community, but chances it will happen are poor.

More Cabinet Shake-up
Serious family problems saved Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps from getting the axe in President Carter's Cabinet decapitation last July, but the president is now expected to ease her out of his cabinet before the new year. Kreps had been one of the first intended victims of the Carter Cabinet purge following the Camp David domestic summit. But Carter held back because of an attempted suicide by Kreps' husband, who has since recovered from serious gunshot wounds. The president now wants a prominent businessman with good political credentials to run the Commerce Department through the election year.

But there is a new problem: Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's sudden lunge toward the Democratic nomination has removed some prime candidates who may decide to back Kennedy over Carter. Consequently, the prominent businessman may turn out to be Under Secretary of Commerce Luther Hodges Jr., a banker who last year lost in North Carolina's primary for a U.S. Senate seat.

Shunning Carter
The state of President Carter's political standing after the new Kennedy emergence was dramatized when New York's leading Democratic figures either boycotted or did not attend a fund-raiser featuring Rosalynn Carter at Manhattan's 21 Club the evening of Sept. 12.

Most conspicuous among the absent were Gov. Hugh Carey, Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan and Democratic state chairman Dominic Baranello. Each was called by White House operatives on Sept. 11, pleading for attendance. Each begged off, claiming the press of previous engagements.

Gov. Jim Hunt of North Carolina, Carter's leading southern supporter, experienced similar rebuffs during the summer when he invited fellow southern governors to meet with senior Carter operatives in Raleigh, N.C. All but Govs. George Busbee of Georgia and Richard Riley of South Carolina pleaded pressing business, and the meeting was called off.

Kennedy In S.D.

South Dakota, which was solidly for John F. Kennedy in 1960 and Robert F. Kennedy in 1968, promises to be the same for Edward M. Kennedy in 1980 — thanks partly to the man who put together the two earlier Kennedy wins.

Once Ted Kennedy gave the tentative green light, the South Dakota committee backing him was quickly unveiled. It had been prepared backstage by former Lt. Gov. William Dougherty, just as he had two earlier Kennedy campaigns in South Dakota.

Strength For Today

CONFESSION GOOD FOR THE SOUL

We have often heard that confession is good for the soul, but the reason is sometimes not immediately apparent. The reason is, first, that confession relieves the tension of a troubled conscience. As long as those people about us consider us to be better than we really are, we are filled with a haunting feeling of unworthiness and deceit.

In the second place, confession is good for the soul because it is a prelude to forgiveness. God never lets us go forward in the spiritual journey of life until we have checked in, as it were, at certain points and have cleared everything which lies behind us. Or, to put it more bluntly, God cannot forgive unless we confess. To die unforgiven is life's greatest tragedy, and one which almost equals it is to live an unforgiven life.

There are many ways of making confession, but regardless of how it is done, it always brings a sense of release and renewal.

Remember when a gallon of gasoline used to be 26 cents and not 25.9 cents, 45 cents and not 44.9 cents, and now it is 99.9 cents in lieu of $1. At that advertised gimmick, you must purchase 10 gallons of gas in order to save that one penny.
Even the naming of hurricanes is messed up. We used to give them feminine names till the Women's Lib objected (and rightly); now we alternate between feminine and masculine. Let me state my solution — using the names for 1979. Instead of Ana, Bob, Claudette, David, Elena, Frederic, Gloria, and Henri, let us use 79-1, 79-2, 79-3, 79-4, 79-5, 79-6, 79-7, and 79-8. Next years let's go for 80-1, 80-2, etc.

Higher Federal Debt Ceiling?

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — G. William Miller has asked Congress to raise the ceiling on the federal debt by $56 billion to $886 billion, a figure that was destined, he knew, to raise the roof as well.

Treasury secretaries before Miller have had the same experience: Their requests have been met with anger, debate, promises and threats, but after the noise has died they have been granted, as expected.

And so the debt grows inexorably, while attempts to put a lid on it are as futile as trying to cap Mt. Etna.

The Tax Foundation estimates, for example, that 1980 fiscal debt will be about $57 billion, or only a bit less than the entire 1940 national debt, cities and states included.

The contrast can be spiced with layers of comparisons. That $57 billion, notes the foundation, is 600 percent more than in 1960. And with interest rates rising, that percentage is also bound to rise.

But now for the shocker: As a percentage of gross national product, or the total output of goods and services, the federal debt has been — are you ready — falling. Not in actual dollars, but in percentages.

In 1960, the foundation observes, the federal government owed $290.9 billion, or 58.5 percent of that year's gross output. It estimates the 1980 year-end debt will amount to 35.9 percent of that year's GNP.

But after accepting those figures you must pause to realize what inflation can do. It is, for example, included in gross national product numbers. Absurd, unrealistic, misleading, you say. Yes, but true.

By using inflated GNP figures you have the illusion of growth when little exists. The economy might grow very little, or shrink, in 1979, but the dollar figures won't reveal it. They're growing at 13 percent.

One of the reasons we have such inflation, claim some of the monetary "experts," is that the federal government is running big deficits and borrowing money to finance it. That borrowing, they say, inflates the GNP numbers, and keeps the debt to GNP ratio from rising.

At the same time, or so it is argued, the high level of borrowing forces up interest rates, including those paid by Uncle Sam. And those high interest rates, of course, can worsen the already burdensome debt.

There is no quick solution, and Congress really is without much choice in dealing with Miller's request. If it doesn't approve, and quickly, the Treasury might have to postpone the refinancing of its notes.

So let it postpone, you say. Fair enough, but with interest rates still headed higher, that could cost the government even more money. It happened last spring, said Elmer Staats, the comptroller general.

There exists the possibility also that the government wouldn't be able to pay its workers and suppliers, which would set off an even bigger controversy. To raise the limit seems to be the only possible move.

Argue Relaxing State's Death Probe Driving Privilege Law

HICKORY, N.C. (AP) — A supporter of a law allowing motorists convicted of drunk driving to go to another judge to get driving privileges says its purpose is to give "justice to the person who doesn't have any money."

But a Hickory judge says the law carries the potential for abuse.

The law, passed by the 1979 General Assembly, allows a second judge to grant more favorable limited driving privileges for a person convicted of drunk driving.

Rep. George A. Hux, D-Hallfax, sponsor of the bill in the Legislature, maintained the convenience for the convicted driver outweighs the risk of abuse.

District Court Judge Edward Crotty disagreed. He said the law raises the prospect of defendants shopping among judges for better driving privileges.

"This could very well emasculate the position of the judge who hears the case," Crotty said.

"A person might go in front of 'Judge Hardnose' and get a driving privilege hard to live with, and then take it to a judge with a more permissive attitude to get it modified," he added.

The law, an amendment to the law on limited driving privileges, became effective in April. Before the change, defendants had to return to the original judge to receive a modification.

Now, any District or Superior Court judge in the county where the privilege is issued can modify it.

Judges are allowed to issue limited driving privileges after hearing why a convicted drunk driver needs to continue driving. Typically, a person is allowed to drive to work and back.

Bert Montague, director of the Administrative Office of the Courts in Raleigh, said he believed judge-shopping would be held to a minimum because judges would be hesitant to change the orders of another judge.

"This bill is too loose all the way around anyway. I don't think this amendment will cause any more problems," Montague said. "Judges just don't tamper with another's orders."

Death Probe In Hospital

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Less than 12 hours after Walter Hart was refused admittance to Cape Fear Valley Hospital, he died. Now hospital officials want to know what happened.

Hart, 22, was pronounced dead at the hospital at 11:50 a.m. Sunday, less than 12 hours after a hospital nurse told him to go home.

Monday, Beatrice Matthews, board chairman of the Cumberland County Hospital System, said an investigation will be conducted by hospital system administrators and will begin immediately.

"I don't know anything about this," Mrs. Matthews said. "But the hospital trustees will certainly be looking at this. I want a complete investigation."

She said that may include calling in outside investigators.

Hart was diagnosed as having pneumonia, given a shot of penicillin and told to go home and take two Tylenol pills and rest, according to Shirley Ann Case, Hart's sister.

Ms. Case said her brother was taken to the hospital about 8 p.m. Saturday with a high fever, chills and aches. The paperwork for his admission was almost complete two hours later, she said, when a nurse told her the hospital could not admit Hart.

"I think they discriminated against my brother for some reason," Ms. Case said. "I don't understand why they wouldn't admit someone with pneumonia. I always thought they did that."

Mrs. Matthews said patients with pneumonia are frequently sent home. "If they (the doctors) feel they can rest at home.

"The government now advocates that you rest at home as much as possible," she said.

Probe Release Of Tax Records

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state's release of 86 tax returns from Northampton County businesses is under investigation by the State Bureau of Investigation, a Justice Department official said Monday.

Several businesses have complained because the returns, including some confidential information about their incomes, are on file at the county tax supervisor's office. The probe will center on whether the practice violated the state Secrecy Act.

Troy K. Green, director of the Justice Department's special investigations unit, said state Revenue Secretary Mark Lynch and the county Sheriff's Department requested the investigation.

Revenue officials say the material may have been released by accident.

among many members who last year were generally agreeable to recodification. Sen. Kennedy's version will have to start from square one. Next year, when presidential politics dominate the scene, it will be fearfully difficult to concentrate congressional attention on such a non-sexy cause as recodification of the Criminal Code. It's a pity, for the need is great and agreement might yet be reached on a modest bill aimed at the half a loaf that is better than none.

Later, Wright told reporters, "Of course, my mother is dead, but she wouldn't mind."

And on it goes.

"I've talked to my wife and mother and they don't object to my running again," Rep. John Brademas, D-Ind., told reporters.

The question on everyone's mind is will Kennedy run for president or won't he?

It's so much on the minds of Kennedy's colleagues in Congress that nearly every day someone else slips — like Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., did last week.

Responding to Kennedy on the Senate floor, Baucus said, "The president is correct." Then after a pause, "The senator is correct."

And, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., replying to reporters said, "I haven't said I'm supporting President Kennedy."

Two reporters were standing in a Capitol hallway, when Kennedy slipped up behind them and whispered: "Hey, what do you hear? Is he running?"

The preoccupation with Kennedy was making things difficult for others.

Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee, who's running hard for the Republican presidential nomination, called a news conference to announce the support of two of his Senate colleagues.

But most of the questions dealt with Kennedy.

At one point, Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., said he thought Baker was "the type of candidate who could carry all the New England states."

Which prompted the inevitable question:

"Do you think Sen. Baker could carry Massachusetts in a race against Sen. Kennedy?"

"It would be touch and go," replied Chafee, drawing laughs from everyone — including Baker.

Investigative Reporters Go To Court In Presley's Death Probe

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A pair of television network reporters has asked that the Shelby County medical examiner be required to answer questions about tissue and fluid removed from the late Elvis Presley's body.

In a motion filed in Chancery Court and examined Monday, ABC investigative reporters James Cole and Charles Thompson II claim Dr. Jerry Francisco refused in a deposition to say what he did with the tissue and fluid samples.

The pair has sued Francisco on behalf of the state of Tennessee to force the release of the full autopsy report on Presley. The rock 'n roll star died Aug. 16, 1977, of what Francisco has attributed to heart disease.

Chancellor D.J. Alissandratos is to hear the lawsuit Sept. 26. Meanwhile, it appeared that Presley's personal physician may get a chance in November to defend himself against charges that he indiscriminately prescribed uppers, downers and painkillers for the late singer.

Tentatively, Dr. George Nichopoulos of Memphis is to appear Nov. 7 or 8 at a Tennessee Board of Medical Examiners hearing in Nashville, the Secretary of State's office said Monday. Five other doctors are to hear his defense.

The board last week accused Dr. Nichopoulos of providing Presley prescriptions for 5,000 pills containing various controlled drugs and of over-prescribing for 16 other patients.

A portion of Francisco's pre-trial deposition in the case involving the television reporters was examined Monday. It had been filed last week in Chancery Court in Memphis.

Francisco acknowledged he accepted the tissue and fluid samples following an autopsy at Baptist Hospital. But he said he attended the autopsy in the dual role of medical examiner and private consultant for Baptist Hospital and that his role as medical examiner ended when he determined Presley died of natural causes.

"That was Baptist Hospital doing the autopsy," Francisco said. "They provided me with data and I used that data as part of my medical examiner's report."

Dr. Eric Muirhead, chief of Baptist Hospital's pathology section, headed the team which performed the autopsy. Muirhead has declined to comment on his findings, but he did not sign the medical examiner's report listing the cause of death as heart failure.

Francisco's attorney, assistant Shelby County Attorney Brian Kuhn, refused to allow him to answer questions during the deposition about his role as a private consultant for Baptist. Kuhn said the medical examiner was not represented by private counsel on that matter.

Francisco further testified in the deposition, that he does not have the autopsy reports which the two newsmen are seeking. "I received nothing from Baptist Hospital. I picked up nothing at Baptist Hospital. I brought nothing with me from Baptist Hospital," he said.

Cole and Thompson were involved in the preparation of ABC's "20-20" program on Presley, which last week revealed evidence that Presley's death was related to abuse of prescription drugs.

COPING WITH SQUEEZE

ROME (AP) — Premier Francesco Cossiga has told Italians they will have to pay more for fuel, be content with cooler homes and offices in winter and put up with planned blackouts in order to cope with the current energy squeeze.

Prince Charles Also An Author

LONDON (AP) — Four pages of an unknown fairytale entitled "The Old Man of Lochnagar" went on display at Windsor Castle in a fund-raising exposition, and the author turned out to be none other than Prince Charles.

"Not all that long ago," the prince's story begins, "when children were even smaller and people had especially hairy knees, there lived an old man of Lochnagar."

The heir to the British throne wrote the tale for his younger brothers, Andrew and Edward. Sir Hugh Casson, President of the Royal Academy and a friend of the royal family, said Charles wrote the story 10 years ago on the royal yacht Britannia but did not finish it, "probably because he ran out of time and the children grew up..."

A Buckingham Palace spokeswoman said the story was "a family thing," and will not be submitted to a publisher.

By PETER J. BOYER

AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The adult television audience is underrated, NBC President Fred Silverman said last May. Kidvid is an insult. NBC will be the No. 1 network by Christmas 1980 and it will get there by catering to the tastes of mature audiences.

"The audience we're programming for is adults — people between the ages of 18 to 102," Silverman said, "and not children and teen-agers, as ABC is doing."

NBC, he said, would concentrate "on such areas as news, theater and opera ... well-crafted, intelligent programs, and huge amounts of news and information programs..."

Estrada Back On Television

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Erik Estrada was back in a hospital bed, but this time it was make believe.

Returning to the "CHiPs" television show set Monday for the first time since his Aug. 6 motorcycle accident, Estrada was immediately laid up in his role as California Highway Patrol Officer Frank Poncharella, who suffers a similar accident in the series.

"I feel good — better than I did at the Emmys," said Estrada, who made his first public appearance since the accident at the annual awards show Sept. 9.

Estrada broke eight ribs, his collarbone, his sternum and his wrist when his motorcycle skidded out from under him and he crashed into a parked car. The accident hospitalized him for 10 days, and he is still recuperating.

Maazel Chosen Vienna Director

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Lorin Maazel, conductor of the Cleveland Orchestra, will become the first American to hold the coveted post of director of the Vienna State Opera, informed sources said today.

Austrian officials refused to comment publicly. Maazel, currently touring in West Germany, could not be reached immediately for comment.

Sources at the state opera, who asked not to be identified, confirmed that Maazel had agreed to take the post, but they refused to disclose the terms of the contract.

It appeared likely that Maazel, who is to sign the Vienna contract later in the week, would be able to continue as Cleveland conductor as well.

Maazel, who was born in Paris in 1930 to Americans studying there, follows a long line of great musicians who have held the Vienna post, including Gustav Mahler, Richard Strauss, Karl Boehm and Herbert von Karajan.

BREEDERS TO ORGANIZE GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — There will be a gathering of North Carolina breeders of thoroughbred horses here on Sept. 27 to discuss formation of a breeder's association.

East's low club, hearts offered the only hope, so West must shoulder the major blame for this disaster.

"Gentlemen:
 "We would appreciate your assistance in assessing the blame for the debacle that occurred on this hand. The auction given happened at the table, and West led the king of diamonds against the final contract of four spades."
 "He continued with the ace of diamonds, on which East discarded a low club. West persevered with diamonds. Declarer ruffed, drew trumps and discarded two hearts on dummy's clubs to make his contract."
 "West contended that East should have signaled with the nine of hearts on the second diamond, in which event he would have cashed the ace of hearts and continued the suit. East maintained that he had no way of knowing that his partner had the ace of hearts, and that wasting the nine could have proved fatal. He felt that the fact he had shown total disinterest in clubs with his low sluff should have steered West to the winning defense."
 "We would appreciate hearing from you as to who was to blame."

NEW YORK (AP) - Rising interest rates and gold prices combined today to drive down stock prices.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks fell 5.12 to 876.19 during the first two hours of trading. Losers outnumbered advancers by a margin of almost 5-1 among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Gold sold for more than $375 an ounce in London today, just one day after it broke the $350 barrier. It was the largest one-day gain ever for the metal.

Six-month Treasury bills sold for a record yield of 10.315 percent Monday, and there were indications today that the Federal Reserve Board will push up interest rates again in an effort to stem inflation.

Oil issues were among those hit by the decline. Mobil fell 1/2 to 48 1/2, Gulf slipped 1/4 to 32 1/2, and Standard of California was down 3/4 to 56 1/2.

Psychologist Speaks Here

"People cause themselves emotionally," was the overall theme of Dr. John Valusek's workshop held here Monday.

The workshop led by the nationally known child psychologist and author was sponsored by the Mental Health Association in North Carolina, the Mental Health Association in Pitt County and the East Carolina University Department of Psychology. Attending were ministers, educators, counselors and parents from Eastern North Carolina and as far away as Raleigh and Winston-Salem, MHA in Pitt County Director Virgie Easterling said.

She said Dr. Valusek made recommendations on how to be more human and how to make America less violent by refusing to teach violence in the home through hitting. He said people let the world pluck their emotional strings, unless they learn about their own emotional strings and put dampers on them themselves. They can be following psychological and Biblical truths, such as "As a man thinketh, so is he," make themselves happier people, he indicated.

Dr. Valusek said he is trying to foster a new American ethic, which he sums up as, "People are not for hitting, and children are people, too."

Less Rapid Rise In Hospital Cost

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - Hospital costs in North Carolina are rising less rapidly, the head of a voluntary cost-containment program said Monday.

"Reports from the 129 North Carolina community hospitals show that the rate of increase (in hospital costs) fell from 15.15 percent in 1978 to 11 percent in 1979," W.E. Roye, coordinator for the program, said in a news release.

He said the decrease represented savings of more than $38 million to health-care consumers.

Scott Skirts Candidacy Issue

HENDERSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) - Former Gov. Bob Scott again skirted the issue of whether he'll run for a second term when he spoke at a Democratic fund-raiser Monday.

"I told them down in Raleigh that I wasn't interested in becoming lieutenant governor," he said. "That only leaves only job I'm looking for."

But Scott stopped short of saying he'll run. He did take Gov. Jim Hunt, his likely opponent should he run, to task, criticizing Hunt's balanced growth program.

HSA Officers Are Announced

An Edgecombe County Commissioner, Ruth Cherry, was elected Saturday as chairman of the Eastern Carolina Health Systems Agency.

Mrs. Cherry and other officers of the ECHSA governing body were elected following a day-long seminar on the development of health resources in Eastern North Carolina.

Other officers named include: Arthur Stevenson, a clinical psychologist with the Lenoir County Mental Health Center as first vice-chairman; Ila White, agriculture extension agent from Perquimans County as second vice-chairman; Nora Kenel, a consumer from Craven County as secretary, and John McCain, a Wilson County physician, treasurer.

Executive committee members selected at the session included Dr. William Laupus from Pitt County, C. M. Hall from Greene County, and Jean Rogers of Martin County.

The ECHSA is a private non-profit corporation funded by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare to work in the 29 Northeastern counties to improve the health of the citizens, to improve health services, to restrain rising health care costs, and to avoid unnecessary duplication of health resources.

The goals of the ECHSA are met through planning changes in the health care system, developing needed services, and reviewing and recommending to HEW proposed changes in the health care system.

In other business Saturday, the governing board approved an application for $228,385 in federal funds by the East Carolina University School of Medicine and the Pitt County Health Department to be used in research and services aimed at reducing adolescent pregnancy in Pitt County.

Trojans Widen AP Lead

By The Associated Press
Southern California's Trojans are on the march and more and more followers seem to be joining the bandwagon.

Top-ranked Northern California widened its lead over Alabama in The Associated Press college football poll Monday, collecting 1,227 points of a possible 1,240. The Trojans, who last week led in first-place votes by 45-14 and in points by 1,222-1,172, were tabbed No. 1 on 49 of the ballots submitted by the poll's committee of 62 sports writers and broadcasters.

"It's nice to be there (No. 1)," Southern Cal Coach John Robinson said Monday. "But we're just trying to keep improving, keep concentrating on little things and the big things will take care of themselves."

That was certainly the case last Saturday as the Trojans crushed Oregon State, 42-5.

But Robinson knows being No. 1 means being a big target for any foe.

"We're trying to get better, so we'll be ready when we get to the game that decides things," Robinson said. "Maybe it'll be Minnesota — or Louisiana State or Notre Dame or Washington or UCLA. You never know what the big one is until you've played it."

Alabama, which didn't play last weekend, received 12 first-place votes and 1,153 points. Oklahoma and Texas held onto the third and fourth positions as the poll's top four remained unchanged.

Notre Dame, a 12-10 upset victor over Michigan last Saturday, jumped from ninth to fifth in this week's poll, while the Wolverines fell from sixth to 11th. Penn State was sixth, followed by Nebraska, Michigan State, Missouri and Houston. Oklahoma, a 21-6 victor over Iowa, received 1,017 points while Texas, which doesn't open until Saturday, received the other first-place vote and 976 points.

Notre Dame got 953 points, edging Penn State, which received 947 points following a 45-10 rout of Rutgers and climbed from seventh to sixth. Purdue, which lost to UCLA 31-21, slipped from fifth to 17th.

Nebraska rose from eighth to seventh with 815 points by defeating Utah State 35-14 and Michigan State went from 10th to eighth with 781 points by hammering Oregon 41-17.

Missouri and Houston cracked the Top Ten for the first time this season, moving into the ninth and 10th spots, respectively. Missouri, which had been 11th, beat Illinois 14-6 while Houston, 13th last week, edged Florida 14-10. Missouri had 613 points to Houston's 578.

This week's Second Ten consists of Michigan, Washington, Pitt, Florida State, Arkansas, Ohio State, Purdue, Southern Methodist, North Carolina State and UCLA.

Last week, it was Michigan State, Missouri, Georgia, Houston, Washington, Ohio State, Pitt, Arkansas, Florida State, North Carolina State and Southern Methodist.

UCLA was the only newcomer to the Top Twenty. The Bruins replaced Georgia, which lost to Wake Forest 22-21.

Pittsburgh Wins Opening Game Of Crucial Series With Expos

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Before starting against Montreal, Pittsburgh's Don Robinson found an autographed picture of Expos slugger Tony Perez hanging from his locker with the inscription: "See you in September."

"I don't know who put it there," said the 22-year-old pitcher. "I know that Tony has given me a lot of trouble at the plate and I guess someone wanted to remind me."

Perez didn't give Robinson too much trouble Monday night, though. As a matter of fact, neither did many other of the other Montreal hitters as the right-hander spun a six-hit, 2-1 victory in the opening of a key series between the National League East leaders.

Robinson was pumped up not only by the Perez needle, but by the ear-splitting noise of the crowd, it seemed.

"When they announced Montreal's starting lineup, I was warming up in the bullpen and I couldn't hear myself think because of the roar of the crowd," said Robinson. "Then, before the ninth inning, they were roaring again — but they just seemed to get me up a little more. I started to throw the ball a little faster."

The performance was a vindication of sorts for the young pitcher.

"I was hoping that I would prove myself with the game on the line tonight because late in the season last year, I had a chance to do a similar job against Philadelphia and I didn't pitch well," he said.

Houston, meanwhile, chopped Cincinnati's NL West lead with a 1-0 decision over San Diego while the Reds were losing 7-4 to San Francisco.

Elsewhere, Los Angeles defeated Atlanta 9-4 and Philadelphia turned back St. Louis 7-5.

Dave Parker provided Robinson, 8-6, with the two runs he needed by stroking run-scoring singles in the third and fifth innings against Steve Rogers, 13-10.

Astros 1, Padres 0
Cesar Cedeno hit a ninth-inning sacrifice fly to give Joe Niekro his 19th victory of the year as Houston defeated San Diego.

Rafael Landestoy opened the inning with a triple, the first hit off Bob Owchinko, 5-11, since Julio Gonzalez' triple in the fifth inning.

Cedeno then hit his fly ball to give Niekro, 19-10, his fifth victory this year over the Padres. Niekro, who allowed just six hits, recorded his fifth shutout of the year and 11th complete game, a career high.

Dodgers 9, Braves 4
Joe Ferguson hit two home runs and Steve Garvey and Dusty Baker had one apiece to lead Los Angeles over Atlanta as the Braves' Phil Niekro absorbed his 20th loss.

Ferguson hit his 19th homer in the second inning when the Dodgers scored five runs, four of them unearned. Bill Russell's bases-loaded double accounted for two of the runs.

Garvey, who needs 10 hits to reach 200 for the fifth time in his career, hit his 26th homer leading off the fifth. Baker hit his 23rd in the seventh, a two-run shot, and Ferguson had a solo blast in the ninth.

McDougald Honored

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Wake Forest had plenty of heroes last Saturday when it upset then-12th-ranked Georgia 22-21. But none played a bigger part than senior tailback James McDougald.

For his effort, McDougald was named today Atlantic Coast Conference offensive back of the week.

The 5-9, 190-pounder from Maxton, already the leading ground-gainer in Deacon history, rushed 30 times for 189 yards and caught four passes for 29 more and the winning touchdown in the victory.

Contest Winners

Ronnie Cook of 105 N. Oak St., Apartment 7, Greenville, is the winner of the first week's "Daily Reflector" Football Contest.

Cook correctly picked the winners in 29 of the 32 games listed in last Tuesday's paper to win the $25 first prize.

Second place, and a prize of $15 went to Earl Costner of 103 Cricket Dr., Greenville, who had 28 games correctly tagged. Costner beat out three others who also had 28 by hitting the point total right on the head. His guess of 73 was equal to that scored in Virginia Tech's 41-32 win over Appalachian State.

The second of the ten weekly contests appears on the following pages.

Personal Foul Gives Skins New Life, Win

By TOM SEPPY

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's a fair bet that New York's Brian Kelley and Washington's Benny Malone aren't high on each other's party list.

In fact, if you're interested in fireworks, it might not be a bad idea to be in Giants Stadium in East Rutherford, N.J. on Nov. 25, when the Giants and Redskins renew their rivalry.

In their first meeting Monday night, the Redskins gained at least a touchdown from the confrontation between Kelley and Malone en route to a 27-0 thrashing of the Giants in an NFC East game.

According to the participants, it all started early in the game. However, the culmination came when Kelley was penalized for kicking the Redskins' running back in the head after a third down play which would have forced Washington to punt.

Instead, Kelley's outburst gave the Redskins new life in a drive which ended with Clarence Harmon's reception of a 4-yard touchdown toss from Joe Theismann.

"It's personal between me and him," said Kelley, who also was charged earlier for running into the punter — another infraction which kept a Washington drive alive. "He knows what he did. It's personal and it started on the second play of the game. He said some things that you don't want to hear."

Malone said, however, that the mostly-hidden scuffle started with the Giants' Gary Jeter early in the game "and I was trying to protect myself. I'll never back down."

"It's going to stay personal. It started the first time I carried the ball," he said.

In between the eight penalties for 72 yards that the Giants were assessed, the Redskins dominated play, including a 31-yard pass interception by defensive tackle Karl Lorch which he turned into a touchdown.

"That's the only pass that I've caught in at least 10 years," he said. "The last one was in junior college."

Theismann also ran 7 yards for another score on what he said was a designed draw but appeared to be a scramble.

Mark Moseley added field goals of 46 and 40 yards.

New York Coach Ray Perkins said merely, "We made too many mistakes and didn't play smart football on defense. We got burned early (on Lorch's interception), and we kept two of their drives alive."

However, he added, "We played 60 minutes of football, and I'm proud of that, even though we lost."

Theismann wore a bandage around his head, where he had taken 15 stitches after being smacked in the first half, said: "The key to our offense is the line. They put the 27 points on the board."

He added quickly, however, that the defense got one of the touchdowns.

"The penalties helped our drives," he continued, "but they (the Giants) keep coming at you."

Devils Enjoyed The Movie, But Then It Was Back To Hard Work

By DICK BRINSTER
Associated Press Writer

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Coach Red Wilson figured the Duke football players had every right to sit back and enjoy the movie in which many played starring and supporting roles.

The movie, of course, was the film of Saturday's 28-14 victory East Carolina. It was shown to the Blue Devils Sunday.

Then along came Monday, and as far as the Duke staff was concerned Saturday never happened. There is only one Saturday for Wilson and associates — this Saturday at Columbia, S.C.

"You have to guard against that," Wilson said Monday when asked if Duke's players could have a tendency to rest on their laurels after their surprisingly easy conquest of favored ECU.

"They should watch the game film and enjoy it... they have every right to," Wilson explained. "But now they realize they've got to play South Carolina Saturday, and that's all we can be concerned about."

If any danger of complacency existed, defensive backfield coach Cliff Yoshida certainly won't permit it to interfere.

"ECU did not test our secondary," said Yoshida. "South Carolina will present more problems as far as total offense is concerned because they will throw the ball more."

Yoshida said the Blue Devil defensive linemen also will have a more difficult assignment against the Gamecocks.

"They've got to do a better job of keeping their offensive linemen off our linebackers," he said. "It should be a wide open game."

Wilson said he hopes the Blue Devils will again show the composure that was so evident in the victory over the Pirates.

"When we were down, 6-0, they kept their poise, and that's important for a young team," he said. "When we got ahead we took it to them. We didn't sit back and wait for things to happen."

He said the offense, led by senior quarterback Stanley Driskell, was outstanding.

"We drove 80 yards twice and 60 yards once without a mistake," he said. "That's good football."

But receiver coach Mark Landon warned that South Carolina presents an entirely new set of problems.

"They're not as quick as ECU, but they're stronger," said Landon. "They're a good defensive football team, particularly in the secondary where they have a lot of experience and play well."

He said the Gamecocks can be expected to sit in a basic 5-0 defense and "try to beat you with their personnel."

"I believe we can throw the football against them, but not for the big play," said Landon.

Wilson said a major contributing factor in Duke's fine offensive showing against ECU was the work of running backs Greg Rhett and Keith Crenshaw.

"They're great actors without the ball," he said, referring to fakes they carried out when Driskell ran and passed successfully off play action.

"For every action you have a reaction," said Wilson. "They reacted to what we did and Driskell reacted when (the defense) moved. It's not difficult when you have good actors."

If the Kansas City Royals have designs on their fourth straight American League West title, they're headed in the right direction.

The Royals moved within two games of first-place California by bombing the Angels 16-4 in Kansas City Monday in the opener of a three-game series. It's the closest the Royals have been to first place since Sept. 3 and was precisely the way they wanted to open the showdown.

"Winning the first game big like this might give us a psychological edge," said Dennis Leonard, 13-10, who was supported by an 18-hit attack against four Angels pitchers and won for the seventh time in his last nine decisions. "It was my most important win of the year."

Also winning a key contest Monday was Minnesota, which belted Chicago 10-3 to move within three games of California.

Meanwhile, Baltimore reduced its magic number for clinching the East to three with a 2-1 squeaker over Detroit while Milwaukee rallied to beat Seattle 7-6; Boston dropped out of the East race after splitting a doubleheader with Toronto, losing 5-4, then winning 5-3; Cleveland swept two from New York, 5-1 and 6-5, and Texas topped Oakland 6-3.

Kansas City fashioned its victory behind an onslaught that saw every starter get at least one hit. Darrell Porter and Al Cowens each knocked in four runs, Porter boosting his season RBI total to a career-high 102 with a three-run homer in the seventh. Pete LaCock also homered for the Royals.

What Does The Future Hold In Store For KC?

By DOUG TUCKER
AP Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — They are the only division champion with a chance of keeping their crown this year, but the Kansas City Royals know they are in trouble.

The three-time American League West Division champs are tottering on the brink. They're like an embattled mountain climber who has reached the top step but doesn't know if he can summon the strength to reach the summit.

The Royals are tottering — they can step forward and remain a contender for years. Or they can fall back, disappearing into the chasm of mediocrity. This coming off season will be crucial for years to come. Of the 25 players who made up the roster on Sept. 1, as many as 10 or 11 may not be here next year.

These include a few who have been cornerstones since the team's first near-miss to the Yankees in the AL playoffs a year ago, Paul Splittorff, Fred Patek, Marty Pattin and Steve Mingori. Also of uncertain future are such young prospects as Rich Gale and Clint Hurdle.

Whether they overcome the sputtering California Angels or not, the Royals realize they have not played as well as last year, not nearly as well as two years ago. And although they are still a force in the West Division they are reminded that in the American League East they would now occupy sixth place.

Joe Burke, the gentle general manager, realizes his baseball abilities are about to be tested as never before. Frequently criticized over the years for timidity in the trade business, he faces a major retooling of his club.

"We will not destroy the nucleus of our team," Burke said. "But it's pretty obvious there are going to be some changes." A perfect starting point would be the pitching staff, which carried an unsightly 4.51 earned run average into this week's showdown series with the Angels. Almost certain to depart are Steve Busby, Al Hrabosky, Ed Rodriguez and Mingori.

Hrabosky, the bearded lefty reliever, is declaring his free agency. He wants a five-year pact. The Royals offered three but have withdrawn that offer. His 3.78 ERA, wildness and inconsistency may make him wish he had taken the three.

Rodriguez and Pattin, right-handed relievers, have hardly been seen the last half of the season, and both might be given a Royals sendoff. So too, might Busby, the once great righthander whose quest to overcome shoulder surgery appears doomed.

Gale has been one of Kansas City's most puzzling disappointments. After a sensational rookie start last year, he has slid deeper and deeper into ineffectiveness and now sports a 9-9 record and 5.46 ERA. Splittorff the team's highest percentage winner the past two years, has a good shot at losing 20 games this year.

With all the changes in the wind, even the players Burke calls his "nucleus" are worried.

"We can go either way, it's out of the players hands now," said one. "We'll go up or we'll go down. I've got a sinking feeling we're going down."

Kicker In A Double Daze

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Toni Linhart was kicking himself all the way into the lockerroom.

Linhart, who is supposed to kick field goals for the Baltimore Colts, spent most of last Sunday doing anything but that.

With 43 seconds to play in the first half of Baltimore's game in Cleveland and the Colts already leading 10-3, Linhart tried a 32-yarder, not too tough a distance for your average kicker.

Oops. Wide to the right.

Halfway through the fourth period, with the game now tied 10-10, the Colts reached Cleveland's 1-yard line and decided not to gamble on fourth down but to go for a "sure" three points on Linhart's chip-shot 18-yarder.

With six seconds to play and the Browns now ahead 13-10, the Colts struggled their way to the Cleveland 11-yard line and lined up for Linhart's 28-yarder that would tie the game and send it into overtime.

Oops. Wide to the right. Final score: Cleveland 13, Baltimore 10.

Under normal circumstances a place-kicker who had just kicked the ball all over the place — except between the uprights — might expect to find a pink slip waiting for him in the lockerroom.

What 37-year-old Anton Hansjorg Linhart found instead was Robert Irsay, the president and treasurer of the Colts.

"Linhart," the man who signs the checks said, "I give you a $10,000 raise, starting today — just for the effort." Then he turned to the crowd around Linhart's locker and added: "He'll be the best kicker from now on."

Linhart couldn't believe it. "I don't think he really meant to do that," he said. "I think he saw all those writers crowding around him and he wanted to say something to get them away from him, so he said, 'Linhart, here's $10,000.' I think maybe that's why he did it."

"I didn't even know about it at first. He was off in a corner and I had maybe 15 writers around me when it happened. All of a sudden he stuck his hand in at me and said something and then I realized what he said. I was in shock. I don't even remember what I said. I think it was something like, 'Thank you. I'll try harder.'"

Now, to some people, extravagance as payment for failure might seem to be a departure from reality. But Irsay, a 56-year-old construction magnate, does things that way.

"You try everything to get things going right," said the boss. "You try firing guys and that doesn't always work. You try stirring them up, threatening, pleading, whatever."

Gasoline Sales By The Liter Arrives

ENFIELD, N.C. (AP) — Some motorists may do a double-take, but gas isn't really that much cheaper at the 301 Service Station Mart.

The price on the pump for regular gas is 25.3 cents — a liter.

"There's been no resentment," said L. Price Harrison, owner of the service station, which on Sept. 5 became the first in the state to price gas by the liter. "But a lot of people who stop here want me to explain what the price of gas is to them."

The liter price converts to 95.8 cents per gallon. A liter is slightly bigger than a quart and equals .26417 gallons.

Oil industry and N.C. Agriculture Department spokesmen said they predict that more than 1,000 service stations in the state will begin using the liter method within the next few months. About a half-dozen have already converted.

By 1983, they hope to have most stations in the state converted to liter sales, although the switch won't be mandatory.

Don Ward, executive vice president of the N.C. Oil Jobbers Association, said liter pricing would eliminate confusion over half-pricing, which went into effect in June when gas prices climbed over $1 a gallon.

Under half-pricing, the price displayed on the pump is the price for half a gallon. The station attendant must double the amount indicated on the pump to get the correct sale price.

Tom H. Potter, vice president of the oil jobbers group, said, "Ninety-five to 98 percent of the people who drive in to buy gasoline buy in dollar amounts anyway."

"They don't buy by volume. Liter sales will be much easier for the attendant and consumer to understand," he said.

HARVEST TIME — Fall can't be far away when farmers begin to harvest their corn crop. Guy H. King, of Richlands, is shown here harvesting a portion of his 45 acres of corn on his farm near Richlands. King said he would be unable to harvest some of the crop because of damage suffered last week from the winds of Tropical Storm David. The storm blew down "a lot" of his crop, King said. More Than 34,000 Teachers On Strike Across The Nation

By BARRY HANSON Associated Press Writer

Officials in San Francisco vowed to open school for half the system's pupils despite a teacher walkout now in its second week as strikes by teachers in two New Jersey school districts ended.

More than 34,000 teachers today are on strike nationwide, disrupting classes for 677,400 pupils in Alabama, California, Illinois, Indiana, Louisiana, Michigan, New Jersey, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Washington.

Negotiators for Indianapolis teachers and the board were allowed to go home Monday night after spending most of the day sequestered in a court jury room by order of Marion County Circuit Judge Frank P. Huse.

While contract talks continued, Huse threatened $25-a-day fines against every teacher who does not show up for work. There was no report on progress in the dispute, which has kept about 1,300 of the 3,400 teachers in the district off the job.

In Detroit, negotiators for 12,000 teachers and the school board are resuming talks today under an order issued Monday by Wayne County Circuit Court Judge Patrick Duggan.

State mediators Robert B. Blackwell and Robert Piasarski brought the two sides together Monday night. Although a news blackout continued, Blackwell said the talks are "looking good."

In the nation's largest strike since schools began opening three weeks ago, about 300 Detroit schools have stayed closed for 189,000 pupils since teachers walked out Sept. 10.

Teachers in Paterson, N.J., ratified a new contract Monday calling for a 30 percent wage increase over three years, a family dental plan to begin next year and an individual prescription plan to begin in 1981. The salary increase amounts to an average of $4,300 over the life of the contract for 1,700 Paterson teachers, who currently earn an average of $14,300.

South Africans Not All Puritans

By WILLIAM F. NICHOLSON Associated Press Writer

MASERU, Lesotho — Every weekend, thousands of white South Africans pour into neighboring black-ruled nations to watch pornographic movies, play slot machines and drink on Sundays. They call it fun and the locals here call them "dirty weekend brigades."

Lesotho, an independent black nation the size of the state of Maryland and completely surrounded by white-ruled South Africa, is a kind of haven for South Africans looking for entertainment of the type they can't get back home. The travelers also invade Botswana and Swaziland to escape the puritanical laws in their nation.

Last weekend, about 1,500 persons, most of them from South Africa, paid up to $24 to watch 12 young women, wearing only smiles, compete in the "Miss Body Beautiful" contest here. It was treated as a gala affair.

South Africa, whose white settlers came from a stern, Calvinist heritage in Europe, has strict laws segregating races, prohibiting gambling, censoring films and books and limiting the hours for sales of alcohol. On Sundays, dancing and public entertainment are also prohibited.

The restrictions cause some to cross the borders, earning them the title of the "dirty weekend brigades."

"People come down here for something different," said William Nolte, who sells cars when he isn't promoting the "Miss Body Beautiful" contest with partner Solly Chesno, another South African.

"Not all South Africans are puritans. They stay in line back home because that's what everybody else is doing. Then, they break out and come to places like Lesotho, before going back to get into line again," Nolte said.

Competing In Teen Pageant

CLEMSON, S. C. — Miss Lucille S. Emory, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Emory of Clemson, has been selected to compete in the 1979 Miss South Carolina Teen USA pageant at Myrtle Beach Sept. 21-23.

Miss Emory is the granddaughter and namesake of Mrs. Lucille S. Jones of Greenville.

The pageant is the official statewide finals for the Miss Teen USA pageant to be held in Albuquerque, N. M. All contestants are between the ages of 14 and 18 and must have a B average in school. The winner will receive an all-expense paid trip to compete in the finals as well as a $500 cash scholarship.

Contestants are judged on civic involvement, school activities, beauty, poise and patriotic speech or talent.

Farmville Mart Average Steady

FARMVILLE — Volume of primings and nondescript grades showed a sharp increase on yesterday's sale on the Farmville Tobacco Market, Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade Sales Supervisor Louis Williams said.

However, the best leaf of the season was marketed. Quality grades showed an increase in price and other grades remained steady. Some grades of quality leaf sold for as high as $1.60 a pound and were company-purchased. Top practical price remains $1.55 a pound. Stabilization accounted for 1.86 percent of gross sales.

The market sold 679,950 pounds for $1,065,129 for an average of $148.02 per 100 pounds. To date, the market has sold 18,410,800 pounds for $26,206,291 for an average of $142.34.

Names Gay Judge

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The appointment of a man believed to be the first avowed homosexual judge in California has been announced by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

"I believe from what I have been told, that I am the first," Steven M. Lachs said Monday in an interview a few hours after being sworn in as a Los Angeles County Superior Court judge.

Lachs, 39, a Los Angeles County Superior Court commissioner for 4½ years, is a board member of the Los Angeles Gay Community Services Center.

Brown, who opposed Proposition 6, the anti-homosexual teacher ballot initiative of 1978, and has spoken out for gay rights, appointed Lachs to the $54,205-a-year job to replace Howard McClain who retired.

Steve Duscha, the governor's assistant press secretary, said Lachs' sexual preference had nothing to do with his appointment to the bench.

Terms Okayed By UAW Board

DETROIT (AP) — The executive board of the United Auto Workers has given its unanimous endorsement to a new contract with General Motors Corp.

Details of the tentative contract were expected to be reviewed today by the union's GM Council.

The board endorsed the pact Monday.

GM, meanwhile, said the number of settlements of plant agreements had reached 60 out of 151, with more than 20 settlements concluded during the weekend following the announcement of the new national contract.

The UAW's GM Council consists of officers of the 151 GM locals. Officers, stewards and shop committeemen are scheduled for a briefing in Dallas Friday and Saturday.

Ratification voting should begin after Saturday and be complete by Oct. 1, the union has said. UAW Officers say they expect ratification without problems.

Except for pensions, release of the details has been officially withheld until after today's meeting.

Pensions were the main issue this year, and the contract provides substantial increases. Though no average figure was announced, some classes of pensioners seem to be in line for increases exceeding 10 percent a year over the next three years.

The contract covers 460,000 GM workers and will serve as the pattern for another 190,000 workers at Ford Motor Co.

Chrysler Corp. and its 130,000 UAW employees will get concessions, the union has said, though a Chrysler settlement will have to await an agreement at Ford.

No Ordaining Homosexuals

DENVER (AP) — Is there a place in the Episcopal Church for ordained ministers who are avowed homosexuals?

The 3-million member church's House of Bishops said "no" Monday in passing a controversial resolution saying it is "not appropriate" for the church to ordain a practicing homosexual.

It also called inappropriate the ordination of "any person who is engaged in heterosexual relations outside of marriage."

By a vote of 99-34, following 2½ hours of debate, the bishops approved a revamped resolution on the ordination issue and sent it on to the 904-member House of Deputies, the other legislative chamber in the bicameral 66th General Convention.

The resolution was more strongly worded than a resolution submitted to the convention by a special study commission. The commission was established three years ago to study not only homosexuality, but human sexuality and its relationship to the church.

The initial resolution said the General Convention "should enact no legislation which singles out a particular human condition and makes it an absolute barrier to ordination."

Asylum In U.S. For 2 Bolshoi Dancers

DANCERS DEFECTED — Soviet ballet dancers Valentina Koslova (left) and Leonid Koslov of the Bolshoi Ballet are shown last week during a performance in Los Angeles. It was announced late Monday that the couple had sought asylum in the United States. (AP Laserphoto)

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two principal dancers with the Bolshoi Ballet eluded Soviet agents after the final performance of the famed dance troupe's American tour and were granted political asylum — the second and third members of Russia's leading ballet company to defect in less than a month, authorities said.

Local police said Monday that Leonid Koslov and his wife, Valentina Koslova asked for asylum on Sunday and were "in the custody of Federal agents."

Sue Pittman, a U.S. State Department spokesman, confirmed the couple was under the protection of U.S. authorities at an undisclosed location here.

Other dancers in the 125-member company boarded a charter flight Monday afternoon at Los Angeles International Airport for their return to Moscow. The plane landed in New York late Monday for refueling then left for Moscow at 12:30 a.m. EDT today, airport officials said.

The Koslovs, principal soloists with the state-sponsored ballet, joined a long line of prominent Russian dancers who have defected to the West. The latest was Alexander Godunov, 30, who raised an international furor when he defected Aug. 22 during the Bolshoi's New York engagement.

There was no comment from the Soviet news-media on the latest defections but a Bolshoi official in Moscow said the Koslovs were "far from our best performers...We have plenty of soloists like these."

Details of the Koslovs' defection were sketchy, but Verne Jervis, spokesman for the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service in Washington, said he believed the Soviet couple first contacted Los Angeles police who called INS officials.

The Los Angeles Times, in today's editions, gave the following account of the defection: Immediately after Sunday night's curtain call Koslov contacted an unidentified American intermediary, who called the police.

The Koslovs were taken into protective police custody Monday morning after spending the night with the intermediary, according to police Cmdr. William Booth.

The Koslovs filed a formal application for political asylum with the INS at the Wilshire Division headquarters, he said.

Nevertheless, INS deputy director Omar G. Sewell said in Los Angeles that the defection "appeared to be a relatively simple process — sort of done on the spur of the moment."

The Times said Russian security agents were apparently unaware that the couple had left the company until the Koslovs failed to return to their hotel after the performance.

Koslov had replaced Godunov in the company's final U.S. performances of "Swan Lake" and "Romeo and Juliet." Observers said he danced boldly and dramatically, winning ovation after ovation from the audience, though he is not considered in the same class as Godunov.

BASE TO BE FLY-IN HOST

POPE AFB — The 317th Tactical Airlift Wing here will host a general aviation fly-in on Sept. 29. Approximately 300 civilian aircraft owners from the southeastern United States are expected to fly into Pope for the activities from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

"The purpose of the fly-in is to promote safety in general and to further acquaint civilian pilots with military flying operations," said Major Tom Ray, airfield manager and base project officer.

The day's activities will include displays, demonstrations and information booths sponsored by civilian and military aviation representatives.

Shuttle buses will run continuously to the displays, briefings and demonstrations. A buffet luncheon will be offered at the Pope Noncommissioned Officers Club from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. for $3.25.

Civilian aircraft owners who plan to attend must fill out a "hold harmless agreement" upon arrival at Pope. Since aviation fuel will not be available on the base, owners are encouraged to have adequate round-trip fuel.

For more information, contact Major Ray, 919-394-2802, Pope AFB. All interested individuals are invited to attend. Free public parking will be available.

"We stayed away from condemnation because that was the word used in the McCarthy case," Helms said.

"In trying to find (words) that would convey less than 'reprimand' and not say 'censure,' they agreed to accept my word, 'reprehensible,' and Mark Hatfield's word, 'denunciation,'" Morgan said.

The committee recommended that Talmadge be denounced for expense-account padding and the improper use of campaign contributions. It also recommended he be required to repay the Senate $12,894 plus interest for unjustified office expenses.

Talmadge is chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee. Helms and Morgan agreed the Ethics Committee never discussed stripping Talmadge of his seniority privileges, including the chairmanship.

Helms, R-N.C., and Morgan both said the committee had considered using the word "condemn" but rejected it because

Lewis Heading Festival Event

William B. Glenn, chairman of the board of the Second Annual Southern Flue-Cured Tobacco Festival, announced Tuesday that Blake Lewis Jr., vice president of Roy H. Park Broadcasting and general manager of WNCT-TV, will serve as chairman of promotion of ticket sales for the First ECU Tobacco Festival football game.

The game is scheduled for Saturday, Nov. 17, 1:30 p.m., between the ECU Pirates and the Mean Green Eagles of North Texas State.

Upon making the announcement, Glenn said, "Blake and WNCT-TV have been long time supporters of ECU athletics, as well as the tobacco industry. We are pleased to have such a supportive community leader to help us promote this First Annual ECU Tobacco Festival football game."

Lewis began his broadcast career in 1954 with WNCT-TV as a cameraman. He has worked in various capacities in production sales, account executive and local sales manager, prior to his promotion to vice president, general manager in July, 1977.

Lt. Gov. Here At Dedication

"These new additions, especially the new communications room, will most assuredly be of great benefit," Lt. Gov. James C. Green said Sunday at the dedication of a new communications center, identification lab and new jail entrance at the Pitt County Court House.

Construction of the 2,450 square foot addition, which began in February 1978, cost some $278,875 to complete and houses some $50,000 in communications equipment.

Green said the additions had been, "well planned, well developed...the result of much planning and hard work," adding that the communications houses, "one of the best designed and most desirable systems around."

"These facilities were not financed by federal grant," Green said. "Instead, they recognized, at the local level, the need," and funded the facilities from court fees and county general funds.

Robert L. Martin, chairman of the Board of Commissioners, who served as master of ceremonies for the dedication program, said the additions are, "just another step in the giant strides of progress in Pitt County."

Army To Loosen Requirements

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army, unable to meet its manpower goals, will soon loosen schooling requirements so more young men and women can qualify for enlistment, sources say.

At the same time, the Army is raising its recruiting objective for the 1980 fiscal year starting Oct. 1 in hopes of overcoming this year's shortage.

The Army is eliminating a requirement that male and female volunteers complete at least the 10th grade before trying to enlist, said the sources, who asked to remain anonymous.

Formal announcement of the actions was expected shortly.

"It won't make any difference how much schooling you've got, so long as you can pass the entrance qualification test," said one senior officer.

The minimum acceptable score on that mental test will remain at 31 percent.

The Army still will hunt for as many high school graduates as it can attract, officials said. High school graduates generally have proven more reliable and more likely to finish their enlistments, according to military manpower studies.

The relaxing of school requirements for recruits is the latest in a series of steps the Army has taken in a so-far unsuccessful effort to fill its ranks.

Gen. Edward C. Meyer, the Army's new chief of staff, told a news conference Monday that "it looks now as though, at the end of ... the fiscal year, we are going to end up somewhere around 13,000-to-15,000 short."

Pentagon officials reported shortly afterward that the four services all were below their enlistment objectives by a total of 23,300 men and women as of the end of August, only a month from the finish of the current fiscal year.

While loosening its school requirements for enlistment, the Army upped its fiscal 1980 goal to 173,000 recruits — nearly 15,000 above this year's objective.

Last summer the Army reversed a year-old policy and decided to accept 17-year-old male volunteers who have not completed high school but finished at least the tenth grade.

The Army also has ruled that generally higher standards demanded of women recruits in the past would be brought in line with those for men as of

Oct. 1. This action was taken when enlistments of women showed a dramatic drop early this year.

While abandoning the 10th grade school minimum, the Army said it would use a new "military applicant profile" questionnaire to screen 17-year-old male enlistees as a method of predicting whether they will finish their three-or four-year enlistments. This screening device will be tested on women selectively for the time being.
