5.5 Percent Pay Increase Awaits Senate Approval

By JAY PERKINS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 5.5 percent pay raise for members of Congress and top-level bureaucrats appears headed for quick action in the Senate now that the House has finally passed the legislation.

The Senate Appropriations Committee scheduled a session today to mark up the legislation for action by the full Senate.

Quick action is necessary because the bill to which the pay raise is attached contains funds to keep the government running after Oct. 1, the start of a new fiscal year.

The emergency money is needed because Congress has not passed regular legislation to finance operations of many major federal agencies.

House passage of the cost-of-living pay raise, which would increase the salary of congressmen from the current $57,500 to $60,700 on Oct. 1, reversed three previous votes in which members defeated pay proposals. Passage came on a 208-203 roll call vote.

Congress' last pay raise was a 29 percent increase in February 1977.

A key to the bill's passage appeared to be the last-minute addition to it of one of Congress's favorite pets — a $10 billion water project appropriation.

Congress earlier had passed that water legislation, which contains funds for the controversial Tellico Dam as well as for other water projects. President Carter had not signed the water bill at the time of the pay raise vote and there were reports he might veto it.

However, the White House announced Tuesday night that Carter had signed the bill.

Tacking the water bill onto the legislation containing the pay raise gave water backers a little "insurance" their projects would be built even if Carter had vetoed the original bill, said Rep. Tom Bevill, D-Ala., who attached the amendment.

It also appeared to sway the necessary votes to turn the pay raise into a winner. Eighteen members who had voted against the pay raise last Thursday supported it Tuesday. Both Bevill and Rep. Wes Watkins, D-Okla., cited the addition of the water legislation as a key to their vote switches.

Approval of the 5.5 percent pay raise came after the House rejected a bid to prohibit the 535 members of Congress and more than 22,000 bureaucrats and federal judges who make at least $47,500 a year from receiving any salary increase this year. The freeze proposal was defeated 155-72 on an anonymous head-count vote.

The votes came after Rep. Jamie Whitten, D-Miss., told the House the vote was not really on a pay raise because Congress had authorized the raise in 1975. The only question, he said, was whether Congress "should appropriate the funds to carry out the law."

Whitten suggested rejection of the appropriation would allow members of Congress to sue in court for the full 12.9 percent cost-of-living allowance which the 1975 law authorized.

Unlike the earlier votes, Tuesday's showdown took place under rules that allowed opponents to offer their own proposals instead of having to counter the offers tossed at them by pay raise supporters.

Carter To Give 'Cuba Report'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says he will report to the nation — probably within a week — on American attempts to get the Soviet Union to "eliminate the combat capability" of its brigade in Cuba, a nation he says has become a "puppet" of Moscow.

Of negotiations with the Russians, Carter said: "I don't know whether we will be successful. If we do not succeed, we will take appropriate action to change the status quo."

Carter, addressing a "town meeting" in New York City on Tuesday, disputed Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko's curt dismissal of American statements that the Russian troops in Cuba represent combat forces.

"It is a combat unit," the president said.

He said intelligence reports indicate the brigade numbers about 2,500 troops with about 40 tanks and "some field pieces." But there are no indications, the president emphasized, that the troops possess any weapons that could threaten the United States.

Gromyko, while not specifically mentioning the troops, told the U.N. General Assembly earlier in the day that "all sorts of falsehoods are being piled up concerning the policies of Cuba and the Soviet Union. It is high time that you honestly admit that this whole matter is artificial and proclaim it to be closed."

The Soviet Union, he said, "shall not allow anybody to meddle in our internal affairs." Neither his nation nor the Cubans, he said, has ever "threatened anybody."

Carter's view of the Cubans differed. He said Cuba is dependent on Russian aid and "acts, in effect, as a Soviet surrogate in areas around the world." The Cubans "act completely in accordance" with Moscow's policies, he added.

The Soviet Union meanwhile was reported to have "increased substantially" in 1974 its efforts to conceal details of its nuclear arsenal, notably its mobile missiles, strategic submarine construction and production of land-based rockets.

The allegation of concealment following the Soviet-American strategic arms control agreement of 1972 was contained in a secret report by the National Security Council for the Senate intelligence committee's use in studying the SALT II treaty, The New York Times reported today.

The Times said U.S. officials, while not charging violation of the 1972 pact's prohibition against "deliberate concealment measures" to frustrate treaty verification, proposed in 1975 that the Russians stop the concealment activities. The report said the Russians denied any concealment but cut back on such activities, and the issue was dropped, the Times said.

On Capitol Hill, several influential senators blasted Gromyko's speech.

—Sen. Henry M. Jackson, DWash., labeled as a "baldfaced lie" Gromyko's dismissal of the U.S. charges. Jackson said "hard evidence" of a Soviet combat brigade has placed the proposed strategic arms limitation treaty "on ice for an indefinite period."

—Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, called Gromyko's denials "unacceptable" and recommended the panel delay voting on the SALT II treaty until the troops controversy is resolved.

Both Church and Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., the committee's ranking Republican, said the treaty cannot receive the 67 votes needed for ratification while the Cuban situation remains deadlocked.

"As far as I am concerned," Church said, "the matter can be 'closed' only when President Carter is able to certify to the Senate his conclusion based on our independent intelligence assessment, that these Soviet combat forces are no longer present in Cuba."

—Senate Republican Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee said he was "astonished" at Gromyko's statement that the United States, in complaining about a Soviet combat presence in Cuba, was waging a propaganda campaign "based on falsehoods."

Baker called on the president to quickly make public the reconnaissance and satellite evidence which he said has convinced all who have seen it that there is in fact a brigade of Russian fighting men in Cuba.

Israel Policy Clash

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (AP) — Egyptian officials, with support from the United States, clashed bitterly in public today with their Israeli counterparts over Israel's land policy in the opening session of the sixth round of Palestinian autonomy talks.

The charges and countercharges, punctuated by fistpounding on the green cloth roundtable used for the talks, came during a one-hour plenary session of the delegations gathered in a hotel in this port city.

Egypt's delegate to the talks, Dr. Butros Ghali, accused Israel of creating a "crisis of confidence" with its decision earlier this month to allow its private citizens to purchase land in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and in the Gaza strip.

Israel's top negotiator, Interior Minister Joseph Burg, defended his country's policy as an "absolutely normal" one and accused Egypt in turn of "using a big gun to shoot a small bird."

The United States, the third party in the negotiations which began in May with the goal of bringing self-rule to the 1.1 million Arabs in the West Bank and Gaza, joined in opposition to Israel's land policy. U.S. Ambassador James Leonard said it "made the negotiations more difficult."

Photographers and journalists were allowed into the opening debate but the delegates met later behind closed doors.

Israel reversed a 12-year-old policy on Sept. 16 when its Cabinet decided to permit Israelis to buy private property in the disputed areas. The move was promptly condemned by Egypt and other Arab states.

SPEED LIMIT SIGNS

I have been concerned about some speed limits in two areas, one in town and one out of town. I'm concerned with the road that runs in front of the Evans Street Park and the Greenville Middle School because there is not a speed limit sign on the entire stretch. There are numerous people pulled and I was wondering if something could be done about it. Also, on the highway that runs directly in front of the Camelot and Cherry Oaks subdivisions, there are no speed limit signs on the Bells Fork crossroads all the way to the turn and the intersection near the Holly Hills residential area. K. A.

According to Ron Sewell, Greenville city engineer, a state law says that when no signs are posted within city limits, the speed limit is 35. He noted that the city is trying to cut down on signing costs within the city.

As to your second question, we contacted Charlie Snell, division engineer, North Carolina Department of Transportation, who noted that the department does not feel there is enough traffic build up on State Road 1725 to warrant more signs at the present time.

"Most of the land adjacent to the road is farmland," said Snell. "There are not enough homes out there at the present time to warrant more signs."

Death Penalty Is Widespread

By GRAHAM HEATHCOTE
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — At least 5,000 persons were executed worldwide in the last 10 years and more than 500,000 assassinated, the human rights organization Amnesty International reported today in urging the abolishment of capital punishment around the globe.

The Nobel Prize-winning organization said many assassinations were conducted with government connivance or approval. It noted a "firm trend in favor of the death penalty" in the United States.

In a detailed survey of 134 countries, Amnesty said only 18 nations have abolished the death penalty for all offenses, eight retain it only for offenses in wartime, and that government policy has led seven countries that retain it not to execute anyone recently.

In four case studies of "murder by government," the report named Argentina, Ethiopia, Guatemala and Uganda under deposed President Idi Amin as countries where state authorities acquiesce in or perpetrate murder of those whom they see as a threat to their power.

It said there are about 4,000 well-documented cases of disappearance in Argentina, that political killing is "extremely common" in Ethiopia, that deaths and disappearances in Guatemala since 1966 exceed 20,000, and that estimates of disappearances and murders under Amin in Uganda vary between 50,000 and 300,000.

The 219-page, 50,000-word report is titled "The Death Penalty" and includes 12 grisly photographs of execution apparatus and of electrocution, hangmen and firing squads in action. The report is the latest effort by Amnesty to oppose capital punishment as the "most cruel, inhuman and degrading of all forms of punishment."

It argues that execution methods can involve physical torture, hanging, electrocution, the gas chamber and the firing squad, and that they may not kill instantaneously. It said both hanging and garotting, which are meant to cause death at once by breaking the neck, may instead kill by strangulation.

President Had A Tough Audience At Borough Of Queens Appearance

By RICHARD T. PIENCIAK
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The borough of Queens is Archie Bunker's territory and when Jimmy Carter visited, most people gave the president the kind of support the patriotic TV character could appreciate.

But a few gave him the kind of welcome Meathead, Bunker's liberal son-in-law in the CBS television series, would better understand.

In his toughest "town meeting" to date, Carter took on a crowd of about 1,500 persons Tuesday night at the Queens College auditorium, not far from where the fictional Bunker family lives.

Carter practically urged the audience to give it to him hard. "If you will not be timid with your questions, I will not be timid with my answers," he said before canceling a planned opening speech to begin taking questions.

Although the White House advance team went to great pains to select questioners at random, those allowed to ask questions were a relatively mild bunch compared to others in the audience.

Among the questioners was Elizabeth Hoey, who said she was a member of the welcoming committee for the 1976 Democratic convention here, and Anthony Cerami, who worked as a volunteer for Carter in 1976.

The first questioner was Nicholas Gray, who made a plug for his hot dog restaurant, before asking Carter about his jogging. "I stay in good shape, ready for running in the future," quipped Carter, who has not yet announced his candidacy for re-election.

It was during a question about the tight money supply that the boisterous protesters tried to take over.

Just outside a side entrance to the hall, about 30 representatives of the "Student Struggle for Soviet Jewry" began chanting "Hell no, PLO" — a reference to the Palestine Liberation Organization.

When the door opened, the shouting was heard in the hall. Instantly, a short man carrying a Revolutionary Communist Party sign started shouting at Carter. He had earlier demonstrated outside the hall, alongside a small group of anti-nuclear protesters.

While the Communist supporter was being escorted out by the Secret Service, a woman in the rear stood up and delivered a minute-long speech, during which she asserted that: "You can't stop the Revolutionary Communist Party."

Carter couldn't hear the woman. She apparently realized that and sat down.

When Carter tried to give a brief concluding speech, the woman in the back, the anti-nuclear demonstrators and the anti-and pro-PLO protesters all started shouting at him. Meanwhile, others in the audience shouted: "One more hour. Give us one more hour."

After several interruptions, Carter finished by telling the gathering: "And I would like to remind you in closing that not only is this a nation that believes in free speech, but we are also the greatest nation on Earth and if you help me we'll keep it that way."

Craven Adopts By-The- Drink

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — Voters in Craven County narrowly adopted liquor by the drink in a referendum held Tuesday.

With about half the county's eligible voters turning out at the polls, the drink referendum passed by only a 56 vote margin, with 4,720 voting in for mixed drink sales and 4,664 against.

New 'Operation Overcharge' Officers Elected

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Larkin Little of Greenville was elected chairman of Operation Overcharge, a protest organization against Virginia Electric and Power Company (VEPCO), at a meeting here yesterday.

Little will replace Richard S. Coiner of Washington, as head of the organization on October 1.

Other officers include: vice-chairman Joseph M. Parker, editor of the Ahoskie News Herald, secretary Stanley W. Hege of Edenton, a retired marketing executive, and treasurer William R. Abeyounis of Washington, executive vicepresident of the Washington Chamber of Commerce.

Operation Overcharge was formed a year ago to fight wholesale and retail rate increases sought by VEPCO.

Coiner, who announced the election of Little as chairman for the coming year, said, "after a year of almost daily involvement, I am now more convinced than ever that the future of Northeastern North Carolina h as to contain a new power supplier ...that we can not very much longer suffer the economic hardship under," the service provided by VEPCO.

"The steamroller is rolling hard against VEPCO," Coiner emphasized. "It is rolling in Northeastern North Carolina, but it is also rolling in Virginia, and in West Virginia. This was not true a year ago."

The outgoing chairman continued, "at every turn, the consumer is expressing his chagrin at a company that is charging him exorbitant rates, rates that when compared to those charged by other suppliers, are way out of line."

Saying VEPCO needs money to convert oil-fired generating stations to coal, Coiner suggested, "perhaps the best solution for VEPCO is to sell its Northeastern North Carolina system to another supplier," as Gov. Jim Hunt suggested several weeks ago, and use the funds, "to bolster up its tattered production system."

Coiner emphasized that the accomplishments of the organization over the past year could not have been attained without the concern of

Leaders Honored In Women's Hall Of Fame

By MIKE STANTON
Associated Press Writer

SENECA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — The place where the national women's-rights movement began in 1848 is a laundromat today in this picturesque central New York village.

But less than two blocks away, a more lasting memory to the birth of the women's-rights struggle survives in the recently opened national Women's Hall of Fame.

The idea for a hall was conceived 11 years ago when a group of Seneca Falls women sat down to tea and decided women who had made significant contributions to American history should be honored.

"There was no place to come to learn about the women who have contributed to this country," said Carole Stallone, executive secretary of the hall. "There's a football hall of fame and a hockey hall, but there aren't any women honored in these various fields."

The women organized and chartered a hall of fame in 1969 and then began a 10-year campaign to find the permanent headquarters necessary to "make it viable."

A $152,000 fund drive last fall finally made that dream possible, and this past summer the hall moved from its temporary headquarters to a permanent home in the old Seneca Falls Savings Bank.

A list of the hall's 23 members reads like a Who's Who directory of women who have excelled in fields ranging from the arts to aviation.

There is actress Helen Hayes, poet Emily Dickinson, novelist Pearl S. Buck, conservationist Rachel Louise Carson, anthropologist Margaret Mead and aviation pioneer Amelia Earhart.

Other well-known women enshrined in the hall include Helen Keller, Eleanor Roosevelt and Margaret Chase Smith, the former U.S. senator from Maine.

Coincidentally, five women honored in the hall all lived in the Finger Lakes region of central New York during the last half of the 19th century. These women are honored in a special section of the hall, which contains exhibits dedicated to each of the inducted women.

Perhaps the best known of these New York women is Elizabeth Cady Stanton, who lived in Seneca Falls and with Quaker leader Lucretia Mott planned a convention in July of 1848 to discuss women's rights.

A tiny ad in a local newspaper attracted more than 300 men and women to Seneca Falls July 19 of that year. They gathered in a Wesleyan chapel for a two-day session that produced the first declaration of women's rights.

Only one brick wall of that chapel remains today, and it serves as one of the walls for the Seneca Falls Laundromat. But the participants of the convention 131 years ago made clear their belief that women were capable of doing more than just dirty laundry.

Modeled after the Declaration of Independence, the Declaration of Sentiments laid the foundation for the women's-rights struggle.

The document, which states in its preface that "all men and women are created equal, demanded that women be given more equitable tax and divorce laws, job equality and the right to attend college and to vote in elections.

The declaration also vowed that women "shall use every instrumentality within our power" to fight for those rights, despite "no small amount of misconception, misrepresentation and ridicule."

Reception Given Recent Bridal Couple

FARMVILLE — Ms. Margaret M. Suggs and Mrs. Irene T. Callahan honored their son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick R. Callahan, at a bridal reception Saturday in the fellowship hall of St. James FWB Church here.

Her 'In-Law' Is An Outlaw

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I was married last week, and just prior to the wedding I was introduced to a cousin of my soon-to-be husband. What a shock! I couldn't believe it. This cousin was the SAME man who, a year ago, tied me up and robbed the gift shop where I worked. I spent 90 minutes bound and gagged by this man, and now he is a relative. I am not guessing. I am absolutely positive!

"Cousin" gave no indication that he had ever seen me before, and I said nothing. So, Dear Abby, if you were in my place, would you tell your husband, or remain . . .

FOREVER GAGGED

DEAR GAGGED: I would tell my husband first. Then I would tell the police.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 13-year-old girl, writing this letter at 9:45 on a Sunday morning. I have been awake since 6:30 a.m. and am very tired. The reason? The dog next door has been barking loudly and nonstop since 6:30 a.m.

This is nothing new. Our neighbors put their Doberman pinscher out on their tiny back porch, which is very close to my bedroom window, and when the dog is out there he barks incessantly!

Yesterday I was awakened at 7 a.m., but not by the dog. This time it was the entire family (mother and three kids) having one of their knockdown, drag-out, screaming arguments. There is yelling, slapping, cursing, crying and door slamming very often over there.

My mother talked to the lady next door once about all the noise, but it did no good. Please tell me what to do before I get put away for poisoning a dog.

READY TO KILL

DEAR READY: There are laws against disturbing the peace. Call the police. And keep calling them until you get some action. Noisy neighbors and barking dogs are low on the list of law-enforcers' priorities, but if at first you don't succeed, try, try again. And don't give up.

DEAR ABBY: I was heartened by your column devoted to the many virtues of walking.

As you pointed out, walking aids in weight loss, improves health and conserves gasoline. But bicycling has the following added advantages over walking:

- It takes less time.
- It does not cause blisters, aching arches or other foot problems.
- It expands one's travel range. Not many people live within walking distance of their jobs, but one can easily bicycle 5 to 10 miles a day.
- The bicycle carries loads too heavy to carry while walking.

ELLEN F. IN PALO ALTO

DEAR ELLEN: Right on! Our AFFluence has INfluenced our waistlines. We can learn a lot from our European and Asiatic cousins.

DEAR ABBY: The man I am married to is very intelligent about most things, but he has one childish fault. Every time he hears a siren he has to follow it. We have been late to more places because this thrill-seeking nut of mine has chased a fire engine, ambulance or squad car. He never misses your column, so maybe if you mentioned this, you'd make an impression. I can't get through to him.

IDA IN ALBANY

DEAR IDA: It's people like your husband who make it difficult for firemen, police and rescue squads to reach the scene where they're desperately needed. Many lives have been lost, and property destroyed, because thrill-seekers have created a traffic problem. Tell your overgrown boy that if he doesn't pull over to the curb when he hears a siren, HE is in violation of the law!

CNFIDENTIAL TO "YOUNG PHILOSOPHER IN KODIAK, ALASKA": To quote an ancient philosopher, Buddha: "Believe nothing, no matter where you read it, or who said it, no matter if I have said it, unless it agrees with your own reason and your own common sense."

CONFIDENTIAL TO S.M. IN MPLS: No one said it better than the late Justice Louis D. Brandeis: "The right to be left alone is the most comprehensive of rights, and the right most valued in civilized man."

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet: "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too, Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

OVERHEARD

"I declare! It does look like Chooky! But it's cuter than Chooky!

"Who makes it?"

"Let's see on the back. Here. It's Spode."

"Oh. Spode. Mother has Spode. How about the wine glass. Let me look. Oh, it's Waterford."

"Waterford! That's grand!"

"It's sure elegant. I just can't get over that Chooky pig, though. Can you?"

Proper Care Will Extend Life Of Handmade Items

NEWTON, Iowa (AP) — While the art of needlecraft embodies the simplicity of earlier times, the appearance of handmade articles can often be enhanced by the most modern methods of care, according to experts in home laundering methods here.

The two basic factors to consider when determining care procedures, advises Maytag's Consumer Information Center, are whether the fabric is sturdy enough to avoid excessive shrinkage or stretching and whether the yarns or dyes used to make the designs are colorfast.

If embroideries, crosstitch, swedish weave and similar articles are made with cotton, linen or silk threads, as a rule the fabric is sturdy and the threads are colorfast.

They can be washed on a regular machine setting with warm water and mild detergent; if possible they should be washed alone with the washer set for a "small' load. Tumble dry to damp and steam press on the wrong side. The ironing board should be well-padded to prevent the stitching from flattening.

Knitted, crocheted or tatted articles made from all-acrylic or other synthetic yarns are also machine washable, as are many wool or cotton yarns. But the technique for care depends on the type of yarn and the stability of the fabric.

If the fabric is loosely constructed, it's wise to prepare a sample swatch, about 6 inches square, to test wash. Place the swatch in the washer with other items on a gentle setting with warm-to-cool water and mild detergent. Measure before and after washing. If shrinkage or stretching is excessive, have the articles dry cleaned. Otherwise, launder the article with confidence.

Protect delicate washables by placing them in a mesh bag or inside a knotted pillowcase. Fabric softener helps maintain the fluffy feel and appearance of knitted or crocheted items. Articles can be tumble dried on a cool-to-warm setting until slightly damp. Then, lay them flat to finish drying. If necessary, block to original size.

If macrame articles are oade from nylon or polyester yarn or string, the item is machine washable on a gentle setting with cool-to-warm water and a mild detergent.

A few final tips. The canvas used for needlepoint or bargello is delicate and requires very gentle hand laundering. It's also wise to remember that many imported or very old yarns and threads are made from vegetable dyes which are not colorfast. Similarly, the paints used for some needlepoint canvases are not colorfast.

When in doubt, don't wash or dry clean these items. Instead, shake or brush the surface dust away; then place a heavy white blotter on the article and try to absorb surface soil using a steam iron.

Offering A Golden Opportunity

The draft Kennedy movement obviously is gaining ground, based on Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's recent comments which left wide open the door to the presidential nomination.

It also appears likely that President Carter is not going to step aside in deference to the Kennedy aspirations.

The results could be a major fight between the Kennedy and Carter forces for the nomination next year. Observers bet on Kennedy's winning, but regardless the fight will be party wrenching.

All of that presents a golden opportunity to the Republican party to re-capture the White House only one term after it was lost in the disgrace of Nixon's resignation.

There are certain to be some disgruntled Democrats following such a horrendous intra-party fight. Many, particularly southern Democrats, are not going to be able to accept Kennedy if he wins the nomination.

So Republican leaders certainly must be viewing more carefully the possible choices for the presidential nomination.

Who they choose will have great importance in any assessment of their chances of winning the election — and winning the election can now be a real possibility.

The speculation on the Republican nominee is currently over shadowed by the Kennedy-Carter confrontation in the Democratic Party, but the Republican choice is soon going to become quite important to the American public.

Profit Margin Is Not Keeping Pace

Farmers are getting more cash for their products, but the profit margin is not keeping pace, reports the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service.

Farm receipts for 1978 reached $3.2 billion and may top $3.4 billion in 1979.

Net income is up, but, like so many areas of the economy, it is not keeping up with inflation.

Inflation hits the farmer particularly hard in labor, equipment and supplies costs. This erosion of profits could eventually affect farm productivi ty, if the trend is not reversed.

Whose Eyes On Courts?

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — It's a fact that, given the choice, most public officials would rather conduct their deliberations in private than in public.

That is why laws are necessary requiring that public meetings be open to the public; that public documents be available for public inspection.

And up till now, it has been simply understood that what happens to a citizen in the courtroom may be witnessed by the public.

"It may on occasion prove embarrassing to the defendant to find friends or neighbors sitting there watching. It may even on occasion make it more difficult for the courts to perform their jobs," says an Appeals Court judge.

"But I'll tell you this ... if I were on trial, I'd sure want somebody watching," he added emphatically.

Then, the judge pleaded: "Don't quote me on that. It's not my place to talk about this .... that's Joe Branch's job."

The comments fairly sum up the private views of many top officials in North Carolina regarding the recent U.S. Supreme Court decision on open courtrooms.

In Public

Gov. Jim Hunt has been asked twice at regular press conferences about that decision. The first time he pleaded ignorance of the decision since the question came so soon after the mid-July court decision.

The second time, just recently, he said he still had not had time to study the matter. There are, says the governor, more pressing matters at hand for him to deal with, and about which he can do things more effectively.

Further, Hunt feels, it is not essentially his role to direct the courts. At the same time, however, he expressed the hope and conviction that North Carolina's tradition of open courtroom activities will prevail and the public will continue to have access to court proceedings.

The record demonstrates otherwise; and the preceding observations by a member of the judiciary illustrate why. Already at least two trials have been closed to the public, and pre-trial proceedings in another regarding a murder trial in the slaying of three law officers in Rutherford County have not only been ordered sealed from the public, but the actual order demanding secrecy sealed as well.

Meanwhile, North Carolina Supreme Court Chief Justice Joe Branch issued a public statement cautioning judges they must have "compelling reasons" to close court proceedings to the public, and that it would be "dangerous to let this thing get out of hand."

None of which serves to put the state's judiciary on notice that the courts must remain open.

BILL NOBLITT

Court Watch

If an example is needed of the desirability of public access to court proceedings, one need only refer to the reports produced by the Gaston County Court Watchers.... volunteers who spent long hours observing procedures, analyzing the data, and producing a volume of criticism and suggested remedies.

So effective was that technique that Gov. Hunt once said he would push for creation of volunteer court watching groups statewide. He has also pushed the Speedy Trials Act through the General Assembly, taken an active role in seeking to bring merit selection of judges into reality, been outspoken in his criticism and suggestions for reform of the court system on numerous occasions, and well recognizes that while his public comments have no direct impact on the separate Judiciary branch of government, they do represent leadership and they do have some impact on decisions.

"Don't be too surprised if we do have something to say on this subject later", an aide to the governor confided later.

INSIDE REPORT

Carter Choice On Cuba

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The fate of both Jimmy Carter's beleaguered presidency and U.S.-Soviet relations depends on whether the president sticks to the tone he himself sounded in this steely, closed-door rebuke of the Soviets on Sept. 20: "They're lying."

Such straightforward talk is unusual by President Carter. He was not in a word-mincing mood as he outlined his hopes and fears that day before congressional leaders and administration officials. Six days earlier in another private White House briefing, he had used a similar phrase: "They lied to us."

Such talk, however, could prove misleading as the showdown over the Soviet combat brigade approaches. Nobody knows whether he will follow national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski's advice and order a balanced buildup of U.S. power in response to Moscow's intransigence; or whether he maneuvers out of the crisis with a face-saving gesture, as the State Department would prefer.

This time, Carter cannot pick evenly between Brzezinski and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance as he did in his bifurcated Annapolis speech in June 1978. This time he must choose.

Some of Vance's lieutenants — and probably Vance himself — are counselling super-caution. Vance's Soviet expert, Dr. Marshall Shulman, was not at all happy when Vance laid down even the limited stricture to the Kremlin that "the maintenance of the status quo" is unacceptable. To Shulman, even that cautious formulation restricted U.S. freedom of action to back down, in case the Soviet Union should refuse to change the status quo.

Shulman's inside counsel to Vance to risk nothing with Moscow that might upset the SALT II timetable was the exact opposite of the mood in the Cabinet Room when Carter and the congressional leaders assembled Thursday morning. Carter described what one White House aide called the "unrelievably tough attitude of the Soviets" toward the U.S. demand. Sen. Jacob Javits, the Senate's single strongest Republican supporter of the new Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT II), responded with a surprising appeal to postpone Senate consideration of the treaty.

Carter flatly rejected Javits' proposal to shelve SALT II until the Russians remove their combat troops from Cuba. Nevertheless, there are clues pointing to a hardening presidential attitude.

Carter was furious when Under Secretary of State David Newsom, in a background briefing for newsmen, suggested the Soviet brigade might be in Cuba "to demonstrate large unit tactics and field maneuvers to Cuban soldiers," not for combat. That argument made it seem the administration was looking for a way out.

"Jimmy Carter is a patient man who is losing his patience," one of Carter's senior aides, not associated with foreign policy, told us. That implies — but does not guarantee — the president will line up with Brzezinski if

Prickly Papal Jewel

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Without a doubt, the visit of Pope John Paul II to Ireland this week will set off the biggest media Donnybrook since President John F. Kennedy landed in a helicopter on the ancestral potato farm.

In Irish history it may rank as the greatest religious happening, barring miracles down the centuries, since St. Patrick shook up the druids by lighting a big bonfire across from the hill of Tara one Easter morning. The high kings saw the light and embraced Christianity.

The first papal visit ever to the 97 percent Catholic Irish Republic should empty out every cottage and farmhouse from the tip of Donegal to the last lane in Kerry, given the popularity of the present incumbent in the Chair of Peter. But, surprisingly, Popes have not been all that popular in Ireland, despite the overwhelming piety of the people.

No nation in history has been more loyal to Rome, and few a bigger pain in the papal tiara.

"The Irish obey but they still do it their way," reported a papal nuncio who had been dispatched by Gregory the Great to bring the Irish into line on custom and ritual. That was almost a millenium and a half ago.

Ireland's first contact with the papacy came in 431 when Pope Celestino sent Palladius to "convert this pagan isle."

A New Weapons System

WASHINGTON — The Senate always feels it's doing its job when it votes more money for defense. But when it thinks of defense it imagines the funds will be used for some exotic weapon that the Russians don't have. What Congress doesn't like to do is appropriate money for simple things like boots, barracks and tents.

The Pentagon budget people are wise to what turns Capitol Hill on, so when they go up to ask for money for the mundane items that every armed service needs to survive, they disguise the requests as new weapons systems that will send the senators into orgasms of joy.

Col. Plotter was sent up last week to get an appropriation for new mess halls that the U.S. Army desperately needed. He knew he was in trouble if he asked for mess hall money because the Senate armed services subcommittee he was appearing in front of is only interested in new electronic hardware that can knock Moscow (or Havana) off the face of the map.

So instead of asking for funds for mess halls, Col. Plotter told the subcommittee the Army wanted to build 1,000 new MESS 112 All Weather Launch Pad Silos.

Then one of them said, "It looks like a mess hall to me."

"Yes, sir," Col. Plotter said. "The configuration of the silo is quite similar to a mess hall, which makes detection of it from the air very difficult for the Soviets.

"The module was designed in a rectangular solid state complex to evade lethal enemy attacks."

ART BUCHWALD

"Do the Soviets have anything like it?" another senator asked.

"To our knowledge, sir, they are now working on a BORSHT 514-Silo which has twice the seating capacity of the MESS 112, but lacks the microwave oven throw weight system."

"Don't evade the question, Colonel. Will we have parity or superiority if we go ahead with your weapon?"

"It is my opinion, sir, that if we don't go ahead on the MESS 112 immediately, our Army could starve to death."

"Tell us more about it, Colonel."

"All right. As you can see back here is what looks like a kitchen. This is the control center which feeds the passive integrated fuel supply into this section of the terminal which our people have dubbed the MESS line. The fuel is then transferred into aluminum software and moved by specially trained personnel through the line over

The retiring chief justice of the state Supreme Court is afraid that a plan to install ramps for the handicapped in front of the Justice Building in Raleigh will visually degrade the structure's appearance.

"Cuch a plan would ruin the attractiveness of the front facade of the building and the lobby," she said to the N.C. Historical Commission last week.

The building, as part of the Capitol complex, is on the National Register of Historic Places. It is up to the Historical Commission to decide whether installing lifts and ramps in front of the building would damage its "historic and architectural integrity."

We are more concerned with its social integrity. State law requires that handicapped persons have access to public buildings. To bar a portion of this state's population would certainly taint that integrity. But Miss Sharp says, in effect, build ramps behind the building and let the handicapped use the back door.

"Some people are obsessed with the idea that there would be a profound psychological effect on the handicapped if they can't come in the front doors, she said. "I don't believe it."

She misses the point. As long as it is a practical possibility, all citizens in this state should share in the same rights, however large or small.

A state engineer has said the ramps could be covered with granite and would not clash with the building's architecture.

Physically prohibiting any citizens of this state from the dignified use of a public building — when the problem of access is easily corrected — would clash with the principles on which we base our society. A lady of the law should know that.

Dr. I.R. Meadows, president of East Carolina Teachers College, delivered the principal address at the Lions Club weekly meeting last night, held at the Woman's Club building.

Dr. Meadows discussed democracy and education and declared that what we need is more education. He added that more education would tend to do away with dictators and provide a better democracy.

L.C. Skinner presided over the meeting.

Representative Lindsay Warren said today that the President had approved a WPA project for 25 cities in North Carolina for the purpose of collecting, tabulating, summarizing and mapping data on housing, land use, land coverage and family composition and income.

Among the 29 cities are included Elizabeth City, Washington and Greenville. The sponsor was the State Planning Board.

Strength For Today

THE ETERNAL BEING

Jesus of Nazareth, viewed historically, was an ancient character. But viewed spiritually, He is an eternal being. He has been depicted in art in the clothes of every historical period of time, and with the visage of every race which has lived on the earth since His death.

All these different conceptions are correct. He is the eternal man. He came out of eternity; He lingered for a brief period in Palestine; He has returned to that eternity from which He came.

Kings have passed and other kings have taken their places. Philosophers have died and have been superseded by greater philosophers. But no one has arisen to take the place of Christ. Every generation picks up His words, examines them, and then becomes aware that it has at last come upon perfect wisdom.

There is every indication that as long as human life lasts, this Jesus will continue to speak to it with undiminished authority.

Most Of Damage Due A Myth

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO (AP) — The downtown streets and plazas are clean and busy, if not bustling, and the northsouth highway through the suburbs is strung with seemingly prosperous fast food restaurants and motels.

Compared with two years ago, employment and personal income is up, property values are higher, building activity is healthy. It is no more difficult to measure the areas's spirit: It too is higher.

In September 1977, this Mahoning Valley city midway between Pittsburgh and Cleveland was described in terms of tragedy and desperation, a symbol of what happens when industrial plants become obsolete.

The climax came, it was believed, on "Black Monday," Sept. 17, 1977, when Youngstown Sheet & Tube abruptly closed its outmoded Campbell works and laid off 4,100 workers.

Many in the area felt it was the beginning of the end. The message spread about the death of a steeltown, and the entire area became in the national consciousness a symbol of industrial decay.

It was, instead, like a beginning — of renewed cooperation among labor, management, education and government; of federal aid; of efforts to diversify; of attempts to control rather than be victimized by change.

New companies, including an aircraft assembly plant, are settling into the area, and older concerns, some of which had considered leaving for newer facilities and fewer labor problems, are expanding.

"We now have as much cohesivness as it is possible to have in any business, labor and political community," says J. Phillip Richley, mayor president of the Mahoning Valley Economic Development Corp.

"When I became mayor in January 1978 I was depressed," said Richley. "I expected we would have a fantastic tragedy."

To begin with, said Richley, the "tragedy" really wasn't one at all, a discovery he made many weeks after taking office.

He blames the national media. "They buried us and put a 10-ton stone over our heads," he says. "They created a whole series of tear-jerker stories about a dying town wedded to one industry."

But the valley had become more than steel; for a quartercentury it has been diversifying. Now, says Laird Eckman, associate director of the corporation, 78 percent of manufacturing is unrelated to steel.

Conceding a great deal of industrial obsolescence and, in the past, official apathy about correcting it, Richley says the valley still was able to absorb the plant shutdown with unexpected ease.

He cites a Youngstown State University study. Of 4,100 workers laid off, he says, 1,500 found work in the valley; 1,000 retired; 800 moved; 800 are being retrained, looking, or have dropped from the job market.

For those who lost jobs, he says, it was indeed a tragedy. But for the valley as an economic entity, he maintains, the real damage was done by the myth of a "debilitated, distressed situation."

Responsible Pet Care Week

The ancient Egyptians tamed hyenas and baboons, and worshipped cats. Two thousand years ago, wealthy Romans kept wild animals, such as lions, as well as cats and dogs. Today Americans keep millions of cats and dogs as pets. This week, Responsible Pet Care Week, reminds pet owners to make sure their animals are properly cared for. In Dallas, Texas, and other communities, veterinarians will visit elementary schools to teach children the do's and don'ts of pet care. Pets must eat a balanced diet and always have plenty of fresh water. Most pets also need to be vaccinated regularly to protect them from diseases such as distemper and rabies.

the Soviets continue to stonewall. The aide guesses this will be Carter's course.

Brzezinski has presented Carter and the National Security Council (NSC) with options to force a Soviet retreat: a buildup of U.S. naval forces in the Caribbean; breaking off U.S.-Soviet talks on demilitarizing the Indian Ocean and on force reductions in Central Europe; highly visible offers of the sale of Western arms to communist China. Eventually, if there is no Soviet backdown, Washington could clamp down on U.S. exports of high technology desperately wanted by Moscow.

That is only the start of what Brzezinski wants. Spotlighting the contradictory advice that Carter has received from Vance and Brzezinski ever since he became president, Brzezinski is making a strong case for Carter to go beyond the Soviet combat brigade in his answer to Moscow and demand new restraints on Cuba's worldwide subversive role.

The Brzezinski NSC staff was angry with the State Department's Sept. 15 answer to questions about why another OSA-class vessel was being towed from the Soviet Union to Cuba (it is now traversing the Canary Islands). Not to worry, said the department; a "routine" transfer of military equipment. To the Brzezinski apparatus, that official State Department reply undermined the formal U.S. protest to the Kremlin last December over the dispatch to Cuba of Soviet arms, including MiG 23 aircraft.

Contradictory advice has marked every step of Jimmy Carter's foreign policy course, with the president more often than not siding with Vance's State Department.

"When does the damn thing go off?" a senator said impatiently.

The colonel replied, "When the SPAM guidance system locks into the BORSHT 514 the roof opens and then it's goodbye Minsk, Pinsk and Kiev."

"Well done, Colonel," the chairman of the subcommittee said. "What do you estimate each MESS 112 will cost?"

"About $1 million per unit, sir, not counting the Cuisinart."

"Cuisinart?"

"That's our code name for the magnet electronic back burner range."

"Colonel, you can tell your superiors as far as this committee is concerned you will get full authorization for 1,000 MESS 112s, and more if you need them. We won't approve the SALT II treaty unless we have them in our arsenal."

"Thank you, gentlemen. The U.S. Army has hungered for this weapon for a long time."

but he died and St. Patrick got the job.

The Irish went their own way, celebrating an earlier Easter, allowing some of the clergy to marry, despite the efforts of Popes Honorius, John IV and Gregory VII to get them to conform. The popes were further piqued when the Irish showed no great enthusiasm to join the Crusades.

Finally in 1155, Adrian IV, the first and only English pope, commissioned King Henry II to invade Ireland and reform its church. Praised by the Pope for his efforts to "bring the truth to a rude and unlettered people," Henry displayed his piety by arranging the murder of Thomas A Becket.

The deed was done. Ireland became a papal fief held by the English crown and the Pope got a penny a year for every house on the island.

Still the Irish remained loyal to the old religion. When Henry VIII broke with Rome over his divorce, his governor in Ireland, Anthony St. Leger, urged him to adopt the title of King of Ireland, too, "for the Irish have a foolish opinion that the Bishop of Rome is their king."

Opening lead: Ace of ◇.

Accurate defense requires complete partnership trust. Let's watch one of the world's great pairs, Eric Murray (West) and Sammy Kehela (East) of Toronto, in action.

Murray's third-hand opening bid has our endorsement and North has the perfect shape for a takeout double of one heart. Sitting South was world champion Paul Soloway of Los Angeles. Confident of finding four-card spade support in his partner's hand, he decided to confuse the enemy by suppressing his six-card suit. Kehela doubled and all that remained was to defeat the hand.

Murray led the ace of diamonds and Kehela followed with the ten. This was a request to continue diamonds, not a suit preference signal—it is very seldom that the play by third hand at trick one is for suit preference. Murray now shifted to the eight of hearts, perforce won in dummy, and a low trump was led from the table.

Kehela thought for a few seconds, then rose with the ace of spades and returned his last diamond, which partner ruffed. Murray cashed the ace of clubs for down one.

Looking at all four hands, it might seem that there was nothing to the defense. But let's consider the problem facing Kehela at trick three.

Nobody had bid diamonds, and Kehela had only a doubleton. To conduct the defense he did, Kehela had to assume that South had leaped to game on a four-card suit and concealed a six-card suit.

What was the rationale behind Kehela's reasoning? His partner's play at trick two. Despite being asked to continue diamonds, Murray had shifted to a high heart. That was a suit preference signal, requesting a diamond return. And it virtually guaranteed two spades, for Murray knew that dummy would win the first heart and that declarer would probably lead a trump.

On such trust are great partnerships built.

4-H livestock projects provide an opportunity for boys and girls to learn the management practices required for livestock production as well as the acceptance of responsibility. Many such projects will soon be underway as 4-H'ers select animals to be shown in the spring livestock show.

The 4-H Market Steer Project consists of selecting a feeder steer, finishing the steer for market, fitting and showing, and keeping an accurate record of feed and other expenses involved in growing the steer. It is designed to teach young people how to select feeder calves and how to care and feed them. One of the most valuable lessons to be taught in the steer project is fitting and showing, which gets the club member in a one-on-one situation with the steer. A great deal of time, patience and hard work is required for the project, but it is a worthwhile experience for all involved.

The Steer Performance Index is an extension of the 4-H Market Steer Project. Market steers that meet the requirements may be entered in the Steer Performance Index contest sponsored by the North Carolina Cattlemen's Index. Savings bonds are presented to the top five indexing steers each year at the Cattlemen's Association annual meeting. The index includes information from the feeding records plus backfat thickness measured by Sonoray and muscle score placed on the animal by a qualified specialist. Many shows have a local sponsor awarding premiums on performance index records. To be eligible, accurate feed records must be available, the exhibitor must be an active 4-H or FFA member, the steer must weigh a minimum of 900 pounds at show time, and the steer must have a minimum live market grade of low choice.

In the Pitt County area, steers are shown at the Coastal Plain Junior Livestock Show and Sale in Kinston. To be eligible for the show, steers must be officially weighed between Oct. 15 and Nov. 3. The Coastal Plain Junior Livestock Show and Sale will be held April 7 and 8 in 1980. For more information, call the Agricultural Extension Office, 758-1196.

AIRLINE MILES

WASHINGTON (AP) — The scheduled airlines now account for 84 percent of intercity public passenger miles in the United States, according to the Air Transport Association.

ATA President Paul R. Ignatius says, "The 1978 air traffic surge has continued through the winter and spring of 1979. There is the prospect that the airlines this year will carry more than 300 million passengers, continuing their predominant role in intercity public passenger service — 84 percent domestically and 95 percent to overseas points."

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Getting a Good Night's Sleep

Peaceful, restful sleep is an essential ingredient of good health. On sound sleep depends man's efficiency in work and his capacity to enjoy leisure. During sleep, all the body activities are slowed down to preserve maximum energy. The heart rests by beating fewer times a minute. Slowed respiration brings relaxation to the lungs. The blood pressure falls gently, and the body temperature becomes lower.

Every vital organ in the body relaxes and the body begins to store energy for another day's activity. Emotional pressures must diminish, too, if sleep is to prepare us adequately for tomorrow's living.

Insomnia is the inability to fall asleep and stay asleep long enough to satisfy the body's requirements. Eight hours of sleep is considered the normal amount of sleep required nightly by an adult. Yet this figure may vary considerably according to individual needs and sleep patterns. Age, climate, occupation, dietary intake and emotional tensions affect the need for sleep. There are some people who feel refreshed after five hours of sleep. Others cannot function with less than nine or 10 hours of sound sleep.

Women are said to require more sleep than men. It is a paradox that they are rarely privileged to get it. The care of children and the many responsibilities in the home make extra sleep an unlikely indulgence for most women.

Insomnia is not in itself a disease; it is a symptom. In this turbulent world so filled with anxieties and pressures, insomnia seems to be the rule rather than the rarity. Loss of sleep means work inefficiency. The fear of not being able to fall asleep leads to more emotional tension. When once this cycle of insomnia becomes fixed, interruption of that cycle becomes progressively more difficult.

What can insomniacs do to break the no-sleep pattern? An excellent way to prepare for sleep is to "take the foot off the accelerator" for at least an hour before bedtime. This hour should be relaxed and free of tension. A tepid bath, a comfortable bed in a quiet room, a soothing, warm, non-alcoholic drink is an excellent transition from full activity to restfulness.

Many people find that by listening to a radio program of subdued music, or even a talk program, they are able to be diverted from the usual irritating review of the problems and decisions that make sleep impossible.

An occasional sleeping pill or tranquilizer, prescribed by a doctor, sometimes is helpful in re-establishing a healthy pattern of restful sleep. Self-hypnosis, meditation and biofeedback can also be very effective. With the newer scientific knowledge of sleep, no one need accept insomnia as an inevitable threat to health.

Failsafe Devices Shut Down Reactor

By SYD COURSON
Associated Press Writer

MINERAL, Va. (AP) — Virginia Electric & Power Co. officials say failsafe devices automatically shut down a nuclear reactor after an accident and release of radioactive gas at the North Anna Power Station.

Vepco officials said none of the five workers exposed to the gas received excessive doses of radiation and that the malfunction occurred outside the reactor area itself, in another building.

Vepco's North Anna nuclear unit 1 was tripped off line Tuesday morning after a heat exchanger tube apparently ruptured.

The malfunction caused radioactive xenon gas to be released in an auxiliary building and then vented into the atmosphere, said William L. Proffitt, the utility's senior vice president.

Both the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and the utility said the incident near this north-central Virginia community posed no danger to workers or the public.

"Two workers were in the auxiliary building when the gas was released," said plant manager Robert Cartwright. "One of them was a health physics worker and he went back into the building with three other health physics workers to check radiation levels. That is how the other three were exposed."

Health physics employees are responsible for radiation monitoring and safety at the plant.

"A very small amount of radioactivity was actually released. There was no health hazard," Victor Stello, director of NRC's Office of Inspection and Enforcement, said at a news briefing in Washington.

Stello said 500 millirems of radiation was measured at the vents. The maximum allowable limit at the plant is 3.000 millirems every three months.

Cartwright said the system worked as it was supposed to, "except for the release of gas in the auxiliary building. It has happened before, but we don't like it."

There are two units at North Anna. Unit 2 is completed but Vepco has not yet gotten NRC approval to use it.

The Unit 1 reactor was shut down and safe, and being monitored as the temperature continued dropping through the night on the way to a cold shutdown, Cartwright said.

Vepco said it would remain shut down for at least 12 weeks for inspection and previously planned refueling. Vepco says that for every month a nuclear unit is out of service the company has to spend an extra $10 million to make up the loss of production capability.

When all three of its licensed units in the state are running, they generate more than 25 percent of Vepco's total power.

Vepco has been plagued with problems and incidents involving its two nuclear power stations almost from the time it began nuclear power production with its Surry Power Station Unit 1 in 1972. Two workers were scalded to death that year when a steam pipe ruptured.

The discovery of geologic faults under the site of the North Anna station in 1973 led to an NRC investigation that resulted in a $60,000 fine against the utility in 1975 for making "material false statements" about the fault.

First Filers In Elections

WINTERVILLE — Daniel C. (Danny) Martin of Winterville filed Tuesday for reelection to his seat on the Winterville Town Board of Aldermen.

Danny, who has served a four-year term, paid his $5 fee at the Winterville Town Hall Tuesday. A 15-year resident of Winterville, he is employed as department chairman and instructor of the electronic services program at Pitt Community Coollge.

Martin, who resides at 811 E. Cooper St., is married to the former Willie Beddard. They have two girls, Teresa and Karen.

Johnnie Len Craft of Grifton has been the only person to file so far in the race for three seats on the Board of Commissioners. Craft, who has lived in Grifton since the fourth grade, is associated with his father in Craft Repair Services, a plumbing, heating and air conditioning service.

He is married to the former Sandra Sasnett of Dover. They have two children, Andrea and Jason. Craft is a member of the Baptist Church and the Grifton Volunteer Fire Department.

Nurses Ass'n Meets Thursday

The Coastal Plains Occupational Health Nurses Association will meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at Burroughs Wellcome here.

Dr. James F. Bowman, team physician at East Carolina University, will be the guest speaker at the lecture meeting, addressing the subject, "Sports Injuries—Assessment and Management."

It was pointed out that the orthopedic lecture will help the occupational health nurse to effectively identify and evaluate signs and symptoms related to joint injuries.

The membership is urged to attend the meeting.

Cars Collided At Intersection

Cars driven by Barbara Henderson Parker of Grifton, and Addie Daniels Everett of Winterville, collided about 7:58 a.m. yesterday at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Dexter Street, Police Department investigators reported.

Awards, Recognitions By Farmville Chapter

Awards and recognition have been given by the H. B. Sugg Charitable Organization of Farmville.

Special tribute was made to deceased teachers at H. B. Sugg High School, Mrs. Laura Burge and Mrs. Ruby Williams Dupree. National President John B. Slade received a service award; Patricia Hagan of Farmville, a leadership award; John L. Burge of Farmville, an "Outstanding Achievement in Community Service" award; Johnny Vines of Baltimore, Md., an "Outstanding Achievement in the Private Sector" award; and Cleveland Vines of Washington, D. C., a Founder's award.

Chapter awards were presented to Deseree McLawhorn and Bill Whitfield of the Baltimore, Md. chapter; Shirley Healy and Raymond Joyner of the Boston chapter; Dorothy Hinton and Andrew Cox of the Stanford, Conn. chapter; Marva Baker and Nina King of the Farmville chapter; Willie Suggs and Doretha Newton of the New York City chapter; Henry Beamon and Gwendolyn Joyner of the Norfolk, Va. chapter; and Bettie McKenzie and Joe Burney of the Washington, D. C. chapter.

Rosa Reaves of the Washington, D. C. chapter was mistress of ceremonies. Ken Strayhorn, area sportscaster, was guest speaker.

Special guests were Ma Ligon and other teachers of H. B. Sugg High School; Congressman Walter B. Jones, Walter B. Jones Jr., Farmville Mayor Sara Albritton, Town Administrator Patrick Thomas and Mrs. Thomas; local attorney, John B. Lewis, and Town Commissioner Leroy Redden.

The next awards and recognition banquet is set for Labor Day weekend, 1980. A membership meeting will be held in Connecticut Nov. 10.

Hold Publication Workshop At ECU

The fifth annual East Carolina University Publications Workshop will be held Saturday, September 29 at the Leo W. Jenkins Fine Arts Center. The workshop, designed for high school students, college students and teachers currently involved or interested in any form of publication, will consist of a number of morning and afternoon workshop sessions running concurrently.

Registration will be held from 8 to 8:45 a.m. Joyce Evans, president of the Society for Collegiate Journalists, and Dr. Thomas B. Brewer, Chancellor, will extend the opening welcome.

Guest speaker Michael D. Simpson, director of the Student Press Law Center, will talk about the center, the only national organization devoted exclusively to the protection of student jour nalists.

The welcome, and Simpson's speech' will take place between 8:50 and 9:45 a.m.

Morning workshop sessions will be from 10 to 11:50 a.m. Afternoon sessions will run from 1:15 to 3 p.m. A variety of topics will be covered, including journalism in newspapers, other publications, radio and television.

The final phase of the workshop will be a get together between 3:10 and 4:15 p.m. Refreshments will be served, and contest winners will be announced at that time.

The annual workshop is sponsored by The Society for Collegiate Journalists, the journalism program at ECU, and the Division of Continuing Education. Advisor for the program is Ira Baker of the ECU Journalism Department.

the people expressed through 45,000 signatures on a petition to Gov. Jim Hunt and the Public Staff of the Utilities Commission, which asked for an investigation of the power company.

"We have put VEPCO on notice that it is no longer wanted in our State...slowed a breakneck rate increase pace... and proven the mismanagement of VEPCO in the Utilities Commission rulings," over the past year, Coiner said.

"We are proud of those accomplishments. I think everyone," in the counties served by VEPCO, "has reason to be proud of them. They are regional accomplishments and show that our region can be heard," he added.

Little suggested that during the coming year, Operation Overcharge, "must continue to monitor all rate increase requests made by VEPCO," and "encourage the stockholders of VEPCO to elect and appoint new top management to ease and erase the problems of this company."

Little also suggested, "we must encourage VEPCO to sell out and leave," the state, and, "we must make it possible for citizens to be heard at the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission," , just as they can before the North Carolina Utilities Commission through its Public Staff.

Coiner explained that there is, "not really a place for the consumer or businessman to be heard," by the FERC. "If you're not a power company lawyer or a state utility commission, it's hard to be heard."

Found 'Crop' Of Marijuana

Pitt County ABC officers yesterday pulled up some 15 marijuana plants found growing at the edge of a field a mile Northwest of Pactolus.

J. M. Ward said the plants, located some 100 yards from a roadway, ranged in height from three to eight feet. He added that had the plants been harvested they could have produced several pounds of leaf.

No arrests were made, according to Ward, who noted that the "pot" would be destroyed today by officers.

PRIMARY WINNER

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Former state Sen. Eddie Knox was chosen Tuesday as the Democratic choice to serve as mayor of Charlotte as a record number of voters turned out for the primary election. Knox barely defeated city councilman Harvey Gantt by 22,637 to 21,350 votes.

Nab Husband On Kidnap Charge

BELL ARTHUR — A Halifax County man has been charged on several counts, including the kidnapping at gunpoint of his estranged wife, following investigation of an incident near here Tuesday.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that Pitt and Halifax County deputies arrested Richard Morris Hamill yesterday and charged him with forcing Hamill's wife, Brenda, to accompany him against her will to Halifax County.

Hamill, according to the sheriff, was also charged with making a threatening telephone call to his wife, assault on Mrs. Hamill's mother, Sue Carraway, and with communicating threats to Mrs. Carraway.

Sheriff Tyson said that Mrs. Hamill reported that Hamill forced her car over to the side of the road near Bell Arthur, forced her at gunpoint to get out of her car and accompany him in a vehicle he was operating. Hamill, allegedly took his wife back to Halifax County where he resides near Roanoke Rapids, it was noted.

Deputies arrested Hamill at his Halifax County residence, the sheriff reported. Mrs. Hamill was not injured in the incident, he said.

Hamill, according to Sheriff Tyson, is being held in Pitt County Jail without privilege of bond.

Stewart Names Self To Group

RALEIGH — House Speaker Carl J. Stewart Jr. has appointed himself to membership on the Special Legislative Study Commission on the Alternatives of Water Management.

The commission is an outgrowth of a proposal last spring by Stewart that the State consider establishing a statewide water authority that would be financed by revenue bonds and would sell water at cost to communities throughout the state.

In addition to himself, Stewart named Pitt County Rep. Horton Rountree, speaker pro-tem of the House, and four other persons to the commission.

Six other members of the commission will be appointed by the president of the State Senate.

ILLEGAL SHIPMENT

ROME (AP) — Italian health authorities say South African animal dealers illegally shipped 32 antelopes and 17 zebras to Rome in violation of "basic legal and health codes", and ordered the surviving 15 antelopes and 11 zebras flown back to Johannesburg.

Farmville Election Scheduled Oct. 9

FARMVILLE — Farmville voters will decide Tuesday, Oct. 9, between two mayoral candidates and from among six candidates for three commissioners' seats.

Candidates for mayor are Linwood Mercer and Moses Moye.

Mercer, a Washington, N. C. native, is owner and operator of Factory Storage Inc. here. He is president of the Farmville Economic Council, treasurer of the Community Arts Council, vice chairman of the Farmville Housing Authority, vice chairman of the Farmville Precinct of the Democratic Party, and a local board member of Edgecombe Bank and Trust Company. He and his wife, the former Alice Williams, also of Washington, have three daughters, Sarah, five, and Becky and Nancy, four. They are members of the Farmville United Methodist Church.

Moye, a Farmville native, is a farmer. He is serving his third term as an elected supervisor of the Pitt Soil and Water Conservation District, is a member of the board of trustees of Pitt County Memorial Hospital, and is a hospital board representative on the board of the Eastern Area Health Education Center. A Boy Scout leader for more than 15 years, he is a deacon and a Sunday School teacher of the First Christian Church here. He also is president of Pork Friends, a pork producers' organization. He and his wife, the former Frankie Duke, also a Farmville native, have a son, Moses Jr., 16, and a daughter, Suzanne, 14.

Crocker is a pharmacist and is owner and operator of Farmville Discount Drugs. A Rocky Mount native, he is a a member of the First Baptist Church and is a Kiwanian. He and his wife, the former Sharon Jefferson of Fountain, have a daughter, Renee, five, and a son, Lee, almost three.

Evans, a Farmville native, has worked at the E. I. Dupont Company in Kinston for the past 25 years. He is a member of the Farmville Recreation Commission and served as chairman last year. He is a former chairman of deacons of the First Baptist Church. He and his wife, the former Faye Avery, also originally of Farmville, have a son, Bobby Lynn, 12, and a daughter, Christie, nine.

Joyner, a Farmville native, is owner and operator of Charles Joyner Clothier here. A past chairman of the administrative board of the Farmville United Methodist Church, he is a Kiwanian and a past president of the organization. He and his wife, the former Ann Walston of Walstonburg, have two daughters, Jenny, 13, and Mary Leslie, 11.

Kue, a pharmacist, is the owner and operator of Kue Pharmacy here. He is a pharmacy advisor to the Eastern Area Health Education Center and a member of Emmanuel Episcopal Church here. He and his wife, the former Venetia Morrill of Falkland, have a son, Joey, and a daughter, Melanie.

Murphrey, a Greene County native, is owner and operator of a trucking firm, Oliver Murphrey Transfer, here. He is a member of the First Christian Church and is a former commissioner, having run first in 1959 and served four two-year terms. He and his wife, the former Camilla Braxton, also of Greene County, have two sons, Ricky of King's Mountain and Tony of Gastonia, and a daughter, Lura Sugg of Greenville.

Walston is seeking reelection. He is a Farmville native and is manager of the farm supply department of the Farmville Implement Company here.

Farmville mayors are elected for two-year terms; commissioners for staggered six-year terms. Commissioners now in office and not up for election this year are David Stowe and Leroy Redden. Mayor Sara Albritton is not seeking re-election.

Commission Endorses

The Greenville Energy Commission, meeting recently, endorsed the city's bikeway planning program.

Dr. James Hix, chairman of the Citizens' Bikeway Committee, discussed the committee's proposal for a network of bikeways connecting residential areas with work, education, shopping and recreation areas.

Hix explained that if 1,000 commuter trips a day were made by bicycles, instead of automobiles, a savings of more than 250 gallons of gasoline would be realized each day. The spokesman said that bikeways are designed to increase the safety of such trips.

Jim Bradshaw, director of planning for the city of Wilson, outlined Wilson's proposed study of community design and its relation to energy conservation. Wade Pitt of the Greenville Planning Department discussed local regulations under evaluation for possible revision to allow more energy efficient design of subdivisions.

After discussion, the commission decided to table for further study a resolution endorsing a revision or temporary waiver of certain existing subdivision regulations for the purpose of formally evaluating the energy and related impacts of those regulations.

Union Meeting This Weekend

Tellico Dam Officials Prepare Process Of Filling Reservoir

By CARL MANNING
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The process of filling the Tellico Dam reservoir and flooding the spawning grounds of the rare snail darter could begin within a month, officials said, after President Carter decided to permit completion of the controversial project that has threatened to make the fish extinct.

The tiny fish has been the central character in a long legal battle over completion of the project on the Little Tennessee River. The president said Tuesday he had signed "with mixed reactions" the legislation allowing completion of the 12-year-old project.

Work on the dam, which is 95 percent completed at a cost so far of $116 million, was halted last year when the Supreme Court ruled the reservoir would wipe out the fish, which was protected by the Endangered Species Act.

But supporters of the TVA project say it will create an economic boom in the area and that the three-inch fish can survive in the nearby Hiwassee River, where it has been transplanted.

Carter signed a $10.86 billion appropriations bill that contained $36 million for the Tellico Dam and exempted the project from the Endangered Species Act.

"I accept, with regret, this action as expressing the will of the Congress in the Tellico matter," Carter said. "I am also convinced that even if I vetoed the bill, Tellico exemptions would be proposed repeatedly in the future."

The president acknowledged that signing the measure could generate congressional support for other pending legislation he favors. "I believe that avoiding a divisive veto battle will help focus congressional efforts on priority concerns," he said.

George Kimmons, the TVA engineer who designed and built the dam, said it will take about four weeks from the time construction resumes to close the earth-and-concrete dam and begin filling what will be a reservoir inundating 16,000 acres of eastern Tennessee farmland. He could not estimate how long it would take to fill the reservoir.

The project was begun in 1967 with a target completion date of 1971, but was delayed by legal battles from environmentalists who said spawning grounds of the nearly extinct snail darter would be destroyed, wiping out the species.

David Etnier, the University of Tennessee-Knoxville professor who discovered the fish in 1973, said completion of the project will mean the darter no longer will be able to reproduce in the river although adult darters should be able to live out their three-year lifespan.

Etnier said TVA's transplanting of the darter to the Hiwassee River still has a chance of success, "but my estimate is that it has only a 50-50 chance."

Carter's decision to sign legislation allowing completion of the project goes counter to recommendations by Interior Secretary Cecil D. Andrus and a Cabinet-level committee set up to consider projects that should be exempted from the Endangered Species Act.

How They Voted On Pay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is how House members from North Carolina voted Tuesday on a bill that gave them a 5.5-percent pay raise:

For: Democrats Andrews, Fountain, Hefner, Jones and Preyer. Republicans Broyhill and Martin.

Against: Democrats Gudger, Neal and Whitley.

Not voting: Democrat Rose.

New Machine Replaces 'Jack'

MIAMI (AP) — Jack has been fired from his job — but he's not likely to lose much sleep over it.

Flagship Banks Inc. has announced its "24-Hour Jack" automatic bank tellers are being replaced by a new machines touted as more versatile, more reliable and able to handle more business.

Flagship officials said the current staff of 30 Jacks couldn't handle the workload and were out of order 20 percent of the time. At times, the Jacks even confiscated customers' special identification cards for no apparent reason.

Ripped Off By A Masked Man

PAINESVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Ripping off magazines from the neighborhood convenience store is nothing new, but Lake County authorities are looking for a man who has added a new twist to the crime.

Police said he walked into a convenience food store in Painesville Township on Monday night, wearing nothing but a pair of men's briefs over his head.

The man allegedly pinched a female clerk, picked up three mens' magazines and walked out without saying a word, or paying, police reported.

REVIVAL

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market edged higher today, continuing a rally begun late in Tuesday's session.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial issues was up 6.99 to 893.17 in the early going.

Analysts said the rally was sparked by the decision late Tuesday by the Senate Finance Committee to exempt newly discovered oil from the proposed "windfall profits" tax.

That spurred oil company stocks, which led the surge. The momentum was aided by a report late Tuesday from the Commerce Department that new durable goods orders had risen by 0.8 percent in August following declines in June and July.

Among early active issues, Wells Fargo was unchanged at 30, Gulf Oil gained ¼ to 34½, Bally rose ¾ to 38¼, RCA was up ¼ to 24⅛ and Sears Roebuck gained ⅛ to 20.

Big Board volume came to 32.41 million shares against 33.79 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index rose .03 to 62.40.

Carter Upgrades All Consumer Programs

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is upgrading consumer programs in all federal departments.

Carter was signing an executive order today designed to elevate federal consumer programs from minor roles within agencies to a position where consumer officials share in making all policies.

Esther Peterson, Carter's special assistant for consumer affairs, told reporters before the signing: "Consumer affairs in the government have now moved above the complaint-handling level, the 'repair the zipper' stage. With this step, we have moved into influencing policy."

The executive order directs the 12 federal departments to appoint a high-level official to work full-time on consumer matters and report directly to the Cabinet secretary.

Each of the new officials is to supervise the consumer programs of his or her department and participate in making policy, a change from the role of federal consumer offices established during the Ford administration.

Mrs. Peterson said a White House study of these offices found that some do little but serve a public relations function. "It revealed a very confused consumer presence in the federal government. Some programs were very good and some were very poor," she said.

Under the order, the consumer officials in each department will be required to:

—Hire a consumer staff that will participate in developing all agency policies, such as helping draft legislation the department will propose to Congress.

—Devise ways consumers themselves can participate in developing all agency rules and programs.

—Develop systematic ways to handle consumer complaints and use them to locate problems in how the department is operating. "It irks me that often we don't factor in complaints when making decisions," Mrs. Peterson said.

Found Refugees Are Lawabiding

HONG KONG (AP) — Despite sporadic incidents of theft, fighting and prostitution, the estimated 340,000 Indochinese refugees scattered through camps in Southeast Asia have generally been lawabiding visitors.

A survey of refugees in Thailand, Malaysia, the Philippines and Hong Kong has found surprisingly little crime considering the cramped living conditions and frustrations of spending months on end not knowing what the future holds.

But in Indonesia government officials complained that refugees stole sheep and coconuts from local people, fought over scarce food and water, and engaged in prostitution. The regent of Riau Archipelago, Firman Eddy, said the local population is worried that the refugees might spread venereal disease.

In northeastern Thailand at the Nong Khai camp, officials said there had been clashes between long-time residents, mostly Laotians, and newcomers suspected of being "spies" for the new communist regime in Laos. The appointment of a group of respected refugees as leaders has improved the situation, they said.

Strike Ended By Nude Models

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Nude models at San Jose State University art classes have ended a week-long strike, but promised to get dressed and resume the job action if administrators fail to meet their demands.

The 29 male and female models are seeking hourly pay of $6 instead of $4, warmer rooms to pose in and better dressing facilities. The models complain that room temperatures have been so cold in the winter that they got goosebumps and caught colds. They went back to work Monday. Art Department chairwoman Kathy Cohen said the models feel administrators are trying to meet the demands.

Briley

Mr. Walter R. Briley, 77, died Tuesday night at his home, 119 N. Eastern St. The funeral service will be conducted Thursday, 2 p.m., in the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by the Rev. James Nason, his pastor. Burial will be in Pinewood Memorial Park.

Mr. Briley was a retired farmer and lived in Pitt County most of his life. He was a member of Parker's Chapel F. W. B. Church and the Withlocoochee Tribe No. 35, Improved Order of Red Men, Greenville.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. J. Lawrence Avery of Silver Spring, Md.; a son, James W. Briley of Greenville; two sisters, Mrs. Joe James of Grifton and Mrs. Caddie W. Grissom of Liberty; one granddaughter.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home from 7-9 pm. Wednesday and at other times will be at the home of his son, James W. Briley, 1112 Ragsdale Road.

Treating Mamie For A Stroke

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mamie Eisenhower, bedridden at home for the last several months, was in an Army hospital today undergoing treatment for a stroke that affected the right side of her body.

The 82-year-old widow of President Dwight D. Eisenhower was rushed by a volunteer fire department ambulance from her farm near the historic Civil War battlefield of Gettysburg, Pa., to the Walter Reed Army Medical Center.

A medical bulletin Tuesday said Mrs. Eisenhower was taking medication.

Key ECC Games Set For This Week

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

Ayden-Grifton, Farmville Central and Southern Nash put their unblemished conference records on the line Friday night, in what may be the first of many key weeks of Eastern Carolina Conference action.

Following a week that saw the scramble for the ECC lead somewhat cleared, the Firebirds, the Jaguars and the Chargers emerged with wins, and league leading 2-0 conference marks.

NP's Eric Thomas

Farmville Central solidified its standing as the team to beat in the ECC with a 40-7 win over Greene Central. The Jaguars overcame nearly 200 yards in penalties to win, upping their overall record to 3-0.

Ayden-Grifton, the surprise of the league so far, nipped C.B. Aycock in overtime, 13-6, on a pass from Bernard Ricciarelli to Timmy Edwards. The Chargers are 3-1.

Meanwhile, Southern Nash, with the best overall mark in the conference at-0, dumped North Pitt, 34-0.

D.H. Conley, making a first period touchdown pass from Anthony Carmon to Chris McDainels stand up, defeated previously unbeaten North Lenior, 6-0. The Vikings are 2-0-1 overall, 1-0 in the league.

Although it is still early in the season, some key contests are on tap this Friday night in the ECC, including Greene Central at Ayden-Grifton, D.H. Conley at Southern Nash and North Pitt at Farmville Central.

Also, Southwest Edgecombe plays host to C.B. Aycock.

North Pitt

Panther Coach Pat Smith did not offer any excuses earlier this week when discussing his team's 34-0 loss to Southern Nash.

"We got beat soundly," Smith said. "We gave it a 100 percent, and that's all we can ask of our players."

The Panthers, who last week lost 11 players — many of them starters — because of training violations, are now 1-2, 0-2 in the conference. Eight of those 11 suspended will be able to return this week, if they choose to, Smith said.

"I'd rather not discuss it. It's over," Smith said of last week's suspensions. "We'll have those eight coming back, that is if they want to."

Those who do come back face the unenviable task of facing Farmville Central Friday night.

"We know Farmville Central has a tremendous team, one of the best in the state," Smith said. "They have a winning tradition, they have a lot of fine athletes and Coach Gene Brewer is one of the best coaches around.

"You know, a lot of people want to talk about the Reid boys. Well, they're good, but Farmville has a number of fine athletes," Smith said.

Smith, although not conceding the game . admitted it would take a super effort by his squad.

A-G's Timmy Edwards

and a subpar effort by the Jaguars, for the Panthers to have a chance of pulling off an upset.

"We'd have to play tremendous ball. I don't know....It would take a tremendous effort to win," Smith said.

"We're not planning anything special for them. We'll just try to take what they'll give us," he said. "This is going to be a tough one."

Ayden-Grifton

The past three weeks, Ayden-Grifton's Chargers have waited until the last moments to win.

Three weeks ago, halfback Calvin Ellison scored with less than five minutes left to give the Chargers a 21-20 win over Roanoke. Two weeks ago, the Chargers got all 14 of their points in the final quarter, beating SW Edgecombe, 14-0.

Last Friday night it happened again.

Ayden-Grifton, leading much of the game, scored on its first possession in overtime to defeat C.B. Aycock, 13-6.

"We've had some good fortune the last three weeks obviously," Coach Dixon Sauls said, slightly understating his team's penchance for waiting until the last moments to pull out the victory.

"Against Aycock, they had kicked the extra point, which would have given the win, but they had a penalty on the kick, and when they tried it again, they missed," Sauls said.

"We feel we played well enough to win, but we had some luck as well," Sauls said.

As a result of these late game wins, Sauls said the Chargers are continually gaining confidence.

"By winning these ballgames in the late going we're beginning to built some confidence. The players are going out feeling they can win every ballgame. Even when we have turnovers or mistakes, they seem to be able to overcome them," Sauls said.

This week, the Chargers face Greene Central, a team Sauls admitted is "physically bigger" than Ayden-Grifton.

"They have some strong players. Because of this, they'll probably try to run over us," Sauls said.

"I think we might be a little quicker than they are and I hope we'll be able to run outside some on them," Sauls said.

"This is a key game for us. For us to win, we'll have to contain their running game.

"If we win this one, I'll feel very encouraged about our season," Sauls said.

The Chargers will be without Chris Strickland, a wide receiver and backup quarterback, who suffered a foot injury.

DHC's Anthony Carmon

Farmville Central

Despite the nearly 200 yards in penalties suffered by Farmville Central in its 40-7 win over Greene Central last week, Jaguar Coach Gene Brewer said he was happy with the way his squad played, especially in the first half.

"The first half (when Farmville jumped out to a 26-7 lead) of the ballgame we played the best ball we've played all year," Brewer said earlier this week. "We had some outstanding plays throughout the game, but in the second half you didn't notice them as much because of all the peanalties.

"On nearly every play it seemed there was a penalty against us or Greene Central. I felt there were definitely too many called unnecessarily," Brewer said.

Among the players Brewer cited as having an outstanding game against Greene Central was senior quarterback Eugene Joyner.

"Eugene had his best ballgame of the year at quarterback. I think he only threw one bad pass all night, the one that was interoepted," Brewer said.

Brewer also said both Donald and Ronald Reid had "excellent" games, as well as the offensive line.

"The biggest difference in the game was that we were a little more ready to play than they were," Brewer said.

This week, the Jaguars take on North Pitt at home. And despite the apparent mismatch, Brewer said his squad is not taking the

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

This just hasn't been Frank Tanana's year.

But Tuesday night was Frank Tanana's night.

"This takes a little bit of the sting out of a sub-par season," said Tanana after pitching the California Angels to the American League West Division title with a 4-1 victory over Kansas City. "It's like a trip, really. There was long while where I didn't think I'd pitch again this season."

Saddled with arm problems most of the year, Tanana hadn't pitched more than 62-3 innings in a game since early June. But Tuesday night, he went the full nine, pitching a five-hitter to lead the Angels to their first title of any kind in the club's 19-year history.

Tanana, 7-5, was making his fifth start since being reactivated three weeks ago after missing nearly three months because of tendinits in his pitching shoulder.

In other AL action, Chicago routed Minnesota 9-3; Detroit edged Baltimore 3-2; Milwaukee defeated Seattle 7-6; New York turned back Cleveland 7-5; Texas tripped Oakland 5-3 and Toronto beat Boston 5-3.

Brian Downing slugged a pair of run-scoring singles in support of Tanana's fine pitching. Downing singled in the game's first run in the second inning, when the Angels scored three times to knock out loser Craig Chamberlain, 4-4. The California catcher singled in another run in the fi7th for the final run of the night.

Tigers 3, Orioles 2

Ron LeFlore's run-scoring single knocked in the winning run in a two-run ninth as Detroit beat Baltimore. Trailing 2-1 entering the ninth, Detroit got singles from Lance Parrish, Alan Trammell and pinch-hitter Lynn Jones for one run to tie the score at 2-2. After Rick Peters flied to center, LaFlore singled to drive in Trammell with the tie-breaking run.

Jack Morris, 16-7, pitched the first eight innings for Detroit. Aurelio Lopez pitched the ninth to gain his 21st save.

Brewers 7, Mariners 6

Sixto Lezcano's two-run double with two out in the eighth inning rallied Milwaukee to a comeback victory over Seattle. Paul Molitor walked to start the Milwaukee eighth and Gorman Thomas beat out a single off third baseman Bill Stein's glove with two out. Lezcano followed with his double off Shane Rawley, 5-9, the third Mariner pitcher.

The Brewers trailed 5-0 early in the game before making their comeback that made a winner of Jerry Augustine, 9-6.

Yankees 7, Indians 5

Damasco Garcia drove in three runs with two clutch singles, including the go-ahead run, as New York defeated Cleveland. Ron Davis, 13-2, the Yankees' third pitcher, was the winner, hurling 2 2-3 innings before giving way to Rich Gossage, who earned his 18th save.

Rick Wise, 15-10, the Cleveland starter, pitched 61-3 innings and gave up seven runs and nine hits before giving way to Sid Monge.

Garcia's two-run single highlighted a four-run fourth inning that gave the Yankees a 5-3 lead. An RBI single by Garcia in the Yankee sixth broke a 5-5 tie.

Rangers 5, A's 3

Brian Kingman's two-base throwing error and a wild pitch in the seventh inning gave Texas its triumph over Oakland.

Nelson Norman led off the Ranger seventh with a single. Catcher Jim Essian threw Norman out at second on Mickey Rivers' sacrifice bunt attempt. But Kingman, 7-7, later threw wild in an attempt to pick Rivers off at first and the Texas center fielder went all the way to third. Kingman then threw a wild pitch, allowing the run to score.

Blue Jays 5, Red Sox 3

Toronto scored five unearned runs in the sixth inning with the help of first baseman Bob Watson's two errors and Dave Stieb scattered eight hits as the Blue Jays beat Boston. Watson first dropped a throw from second baseman Ted Sizemore with one out in the sixth. With two out, Watson bobbled a ground ball and the Blue Jays followed with doubles by Rick Cerone and Dave McKay, a single by Alfredo Griffin and a triple by Al Woods. Stieb improved his record to 8-7.

Soccer Postponed

Greenville Christian Academy's opening soccer game of the year, set yesterday at Falls Road Academy in Rocky Mount was postponed because of field conditions.

Also, the school has announced that its home season opener, set for Friday with Goldsboro, has been postponed until a later date.

The Knights open the season on Tuesday at Friendship Academy.

Pirates Facing Many Most Important Games

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner called Tuesday night's 10-4 victory over Montreal "the most important, pivotal game of the year."

Till tonight, that is.

"From now on each of them will be the most important," conceded Tanner, whose Pirates take on the Expos in Pittsburgh tonight in the concluding game of their four-game series. The clubs split a twi-night doubleheader Monday.

The Pirates climbed one-half game ahead of Montreal on the strength of veteran Willie Stargell, their inspirational leader, who slugged two home runs.

"I like for them to mean something," Stargell said of the home runs, which gave him 31 for the season and 460 for his career. "If they're meaningful, then I'm excited about the contribution."

Meanwhile, the West Division race tightened up as Cincinnati lost and Houston won. The front-running Reds dropped an 8-2 decision to the San Diego Padres and saw their lead trimmed to 1½ games as the Astros blanked the Atlanta Braves 8-0.

Pittsburgh's Bruce Kison, 11-7, will start against Montreal's Steve Rogers, 13-10, when the clubs square off tonight for the NL East lead.

Stargell hit a two-run homer in the first and a solo shot in the fourth.

Astros 8, Braves 0

J.R. Richard scattered four hits and struck out 13 to pass the 300-strikeout mark for the second consecutive season and Luis Pujols and Rafael Landestoy drove in three runs apiece for the Astros.

The 13 strikeouts gave the 6-foot-8 Richard 302 for the season, one short of the the National League record for right-handers he set last year. He is expected to start one more game this season.

The Astros have four games remaning while Cincinnati has five.

Padres 8, Reds 2

Dave Winfield and Kurt Bevacqua drove in two runs apiece as San Diego defeated Cincinnati. The Padres broke the game open with five runs in the seventh inning, two on Winfield's third single of the night and two more on a double by Bevacqua. Winfield leads the National League with 116 runs batted in.

"This is a real baseball city and I really like to pitch here," said San Diego starter Bob Shirley, 8-16, who hasn't lost a game in Cincinnati in three years.

Dodgers 11, Giants 2

Rookie right-hander Rick Sutcliffe, 17-9, combined with Bob Castillo on a five-hitter and Ron Cey belted a grand-slam homer in an eight-run second inning as Los Angeles beat San Francisco.

Cards 4, Phils 1

Swith-hitter Garry Templeton, bidding to become the first player to get 100 hits from each side of the plate in one season, had two hits for St. Louis batting right-handed. He now has 95 as a righty and will bat that way in every game for the rest of the year, since he already has 111 hits left-handed.

Cubs 11-3, Mets 3-4

The Cubs broke the first game open with seven runs in the first inning and were on their way to a sweep before the Mets tied the second game on a two-out, ninth-inning RBI single by Richie Hebner. The Mets won the nightcap on a run-scoring single by pinch-hitter Steve Henderson.

Chargers Surprising Behind Billy Holland

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

LITTLEFIELD — Although still early in the season, Ayden-Grifton's Chargers have to be considered the surprise team in the Eastern Carolina Conference.

Coming off a year in which they finished second, behind Farmville Central, in the ECC, the Chargers lost over a dozen seniors from that 6-4 squad.

During preseason this year, Coach Dixon Sauls expressed concern about the inexperienced troop around him. But many of those youngsters have matured now, far faster than even Sauls might have expected.

Last year, as a junior, Holland rushed for over 700 yards on only 100 carries, despite being hampered with injuries throughout the season.

This year, Holland may reach that elusive 1,000 yard mark, if he can stay healthy.

"This year was the first time since I've been here that I've had a chance to play C.B. Aycock," Holland said. "Last year, against Conley, it was first and goal and I ran for nine yards for the touchdown, but a man fell on my foot and I tore something in my leg.

"My first year, I broke my arm in preseason practice. Last year, though, I feel I would have gotten a 1,000 yards if I had been healthy," he said.

Holland, who said he has carried the ball more this year than last year so far, explained that this year's Ayden-Grifton team is more balanced than a year last year's, especially with the maturing of sophomore quarterback Bernard Ricciarelli.

"We've got two backs from last year (Holland and Calvin Ellison), and now that Bernard is coming around, we could really surprise some teams," Holland said.

"We've got some good athletes, some boys who can really play," he added. "And the attitude this year is different."

Last season, Holland was elected team captain as a junior, on a team that had 16 seniors on its roster.

"Sure, we had a lot of seniors, but they all thought they knew it all," he said. "They'd come to practice and mess around and practice when they wanted.

"This year, we're more together. We get out there and play together. So far, we've been lucky, we've got some breaks. We seem to hustle more than some of the other teams we play," he added.

As a result of this hustle, the Chargers are 3-1, having won their last three games in the final quarter or in over

"We're starting to win some ballgames in the late going. I think this is going to help us, our confidence. I think we'll challenge this year. They (the team) have surprised me the way they catch on.

"I feel like with a couple of good breaks, we'll upset some people who aren't looking for us," he said.

Holland, who is 6'1", 195, and runs the 40 in 4.8 seconds, when healthy, has been contacted by a number of colleges and universities.

Among them are the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, N.C. State, Georgia Tech and Wake Forest.

"I don't know," Holland said when asked where he'd like to go to school. "I hope to get a scholarship somewhere. I don't know where I stand, though. I've been getting letters, questionaires from the schools.

"I fill them out and send them all back. But if I don't get one, I'll probably end up walking on somewhere."

Panthers for granted.

"The biggest problem we have this week is trying to determine what they're going to do with the people they have coming back this week (following last week's suspension)," Brewer said.

"We're not sure where they'll be playing, or if they'll even be playing," he added.

Despite this, Brewer said he doubts the Panthers will stray far from their normal game plan.

"I think they'll do basically what they've done in the past. They'll probably do a little more gambling this week then they've done in the past, trying to confuse us," he said.

"Hopefully, this week, we'll be able to stay away from the penalties and put together two halves of excellent football," Brewer said.

D.H. Conley

D.H. Conley's offense has yet to mesh, but according to Jimbo Walker, the defense has taken up the slack, and then some.

"We've had a lot of good hitting," Walker said earlier this week. "That's something we have been doing well, getting after them (Conley's opponents)."

The Vikings, 2-0-1 overall, 1-0 in the conference, nipped North Lenior last week, 6-0, on the strength of a first quarter touchdown pass. From then on, neither team's offense could mount a threat.

"We forced some fumbles and we had a lot of good hitting from our youngsters on the special teams," Walker said. When asked to name some of his defensive stars, Walker said, "There's so many, I'm afraid I'd leave some out."

He did, however, say Jeff Cooper, Bobby Carmon, Mike Daniels, Tommy Joyner and Robert Sutton have been among the leaders on defense. "We've been having a lot of people get good hits in."

The Vikings will need all the hitting they can get this week as they travel to Southern Nash to take on the undefeated Firebirds.

"They have a good football team, one of the three best teams we'll play all year," Walker said. "This will be the first big test for out team."

To win, Walker said, his offense must "begin to click."

"We're not executing the offense well right now, it's just not clicking," Walker said. "A lot of it is blown assignments, backs running to the wrong hole."

Farmville Drops From Top

By The Associated Press

Scotland County and Burlington Williams have found perches atop the 4-A and 3-A classes, respectively, of this week's Associated Press high school football poll.

A statewide panel of sportswriters gave Scotland, a 35-0 winner over Garner last weekend, 10 of 12 first-place votes. The Scots totaled 102 points (assigned on a basis of 10 for a first-place vote, then 9-8-7, etc.). They hold a comfortable 21-point lead over Hickory. The second-ranked Red Tornadoes captured the remaining first-place votes.

Scotland was second last week, and Hickory fourth. Northern Durham remained third, but Kannapolis advanced one spot to fifth. Completing the top ten are Goldsboro, East Mecklenburg, Rocky Mount, North Mecklenburg, Roxboro Person and Jacksonville.

Williams took the number one position with five first-place votes and 110 points, 11 more than last week's leader Farmville Central. Each team won last weekend, and runner-up Farmville had six first-place votes.

Here are the top North Carolina high school football teams, as selected by sports writers on an Associated Press panel, with first-place votes in parentheses, records and total points (determined on 10 points for first place vote, 9-8-7, etc. basis):

Rose Racer Sets Mark

Rose High School sophomore Harry Williams again cracked the course record in winning first place in a cross-country meet yesterday, but the Rampants could manage only second place in a three-way meet.

New Bern took first place, finishing with the low score of 34, while Rose was right behind with 38. Wilson Beddingfield was a distant third with 52 points.

Williams posted the winning time of 14:49, breaking the course and his personal record for the fourth straight time. Second place went to fellow sophomore Kenny Smith, with a time of 15:15.

New Bern's Richard Staton was third, followed by Steve Dew and Bruce Artis, both of Beddingfield. Their times, and the times and places of the other runners were not available.

Rose travels to Elizabeth City on Thursday to take on Northeastern High School.

Wake To Learn A Few Lessons From Big Boys This Weekend?

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The general consensus among those familiar with the Atlantic Coast Conference is that Wake Forest's improved football team will learn a lesson or two from the big boys when it sets foot on the turf at Carter-Finley Stadium Saturday against N.C. State.

The big boys are a group known as the Wolfpack offensive line, and to date the opposition has found no way to halt its progress. And Wake Forest Coach John Mackovic is not about to claim he possesses any magic formula to break that precedent.

"They just shove it down your throat," said Mackovic of Coach Bo Rein's imposing group led by Outland Trophy candidate Jim Ritcher. "They have been able to move the ball against everybody. Probably the best thing to do is keep it away from them."

The obvious question followed. How does a passing team become a ball-control offense?

"Our passing attack is not geared just for the big play," Mackovic explained in a telephone conversation. "What we try to do is spread the ball around ... try to use it as a short gainer. It's like gaining five to seven yards on a sweep."

So, Mackovic will take two dozen of those, let N.C. State get its usual four or five yards up the middle and hope the big plays go his way. He remains content with a defense that fits that old football cliche — "it bends but it doesn't break."

He believes a productive offense and a respectable defense will win more than its share of football games. All the defense must do is avoid a collapse and the outcome hangs in the balance.

"We have to play a solid game," he said of his team's meeting with the 16th-ranked Wolfpack. "We don't expect the defense to stop every offensive play.

"Most times the offense buckles before the defense. It will stop itself. So, you hang in there and wait for somebody to sack the quarterback. All of a sudden it's a long-yardage situation. You've got them where you want them. Then somebody makes another big play, or they fumble."

That, Mackovic maintains, is how Wake Forest can beat N.C. State.

Does it bother him that his team is consdered all but dead should the passing game go cold?

"We've passed the ball 34 times a game and rushed it 46, so we're able to do a few things with our offense. The key to it is consistency."

Mackovic says the passing game, entrusted to junior Jay Venuto, is not as predictable as some would believe.

"The best way to keep them honest is not to let them know we're going to pass. Play action is one way, but you can do it simply by dropping back."

He said Wake Forest has been successful by passing the ball in obvious run situations.

"Just drop back and throw when they think you're going to run," said Mackovic.

Spikers Beat Duke

The East Carolina women's volleyball team posted its first NCAIAW Division I win, beating previously undefeated Duke 12-15, 15-11, 12-15, 16-14, 15-7 in a dramatic come-from-behind contest in Minges Coliseum last night.

Both teams started out sluggishly but the Pirates proved they could play well under pressure, overcoming an 11-4 Duke advantage in the fourth game, thus tying the best of five match at two games apiece. The Pirates went on to dominate the last game as the deflated Duke squad could not mount another offensive. The win moved East Carolina to 2-3 on the season while Duke fell to 2-1.

"Both LaVonda and Loretta came through in the clutch," beamed coach Alita Dillon after the win. "When we were down in the fourth game they stayed cool and helped to bring us back."

This weekend the Pirates travel to Eastern Kentucky for a tournament that will pit them against the Blue Devils once again as well as defending small college champion Florida Tech. Also in the tournament will be last year's tournament champion Mt. St. Joseph and Kent State.

Non-tournament play will begin again for the Pirates next Tuesday night at 7 p.m. when they take on North Carolina and Appalachian State in a tri-meet in Chapel Hill.

Stickers Beaten

Duke freshman Catherine Butler scored three goals to lead the Blue Devils past East Carolina, 4-2, here Tuesday afternoon in the opening field hockey game of the year for the Lady Pirates.

Duke jumped to a 1-0 lead in the first period on a Butler goal. In the second period, the Pirates made some offensives changes and Sue Jones was able to score East Carolina's only two goals. Jamila Idda also scored for Duke.

It was also the first game of the year for Duke.

Duke	1	3—4
East Carolina	0	2—2

Volleyball Results

Ayden-Grifton 2
North Pitt 0

Ayden-Grifton's voleyball team opened its season yesterday with two conference wins over North Pitt.

The Chargers defeated the PANT-hers in the first match, 15-4, 15-10. In the second match, Ayden-Grifton won the first game, 15-7, lost the second, 15-7, and won the third, 15-4.

D.H. Conley 2
Rocky Mount 0

ROCKY MOUNT — D.H. Conley's volleyball team open its season yesterday defeating Rocky Mount in two matches.

In the first match, the Vkings beat Gryphons, 15-1, 15-6. In the second match, the Vikings won, 15-11, 15-1.

D.H. Conley is now 2-0 overall. The Vikings open their conference schedule Thursday, playing host to Southern Nash.

Farmville 2
S. Nash 0

STANHOPE — Farmville Central swept to a fairly easy victory over Southern Nash in a pair of volleyball matches in Eastern Carolina Conference play yesterday.

The Lady Jaguars won their first match, 15-13 and 15-13, having somewhat of a struggle with the Firebirds. Gail Harris and Gladys Ellis were both cited for long serving streaks in the match.

In the second match, Farmville jumped off to an easy 15-5 win, but Southern came back to win the second game, 15-12. Farmville then clinched the sweep by taking a lopsided 15-3 win in the third game. Beth Massey and Peggy Dwyer both had long serving streaks for the Jaguars.

Farmville returns home to play host to Greene Central on Thursday.

IF YOUR KIDS SUDDENLY START READING THE NEWSPAPER, IT MAY BE OUR FAULT.

Some people say kids don't care about what's happening in today's world. But THE DAILY REFLECTOR is trying to change that popular misconception.

This year, students in 15 area schools are taking part in an exciting current events program provided free-of-charge by THE DAILY REFLECTOR.

This unique service-called the Visual Education Consultant (VEC) News Program - is a comprehensive news filmstrip program that provides students with the opportunity to follow history as it happens. The timely weekly materials effectively bridge the "textbook lag" by presenting clear, objective coverage of the week's news. The accompanying discussion materials are written on three distinct concept and vocabulary levels so teachers may choose the level most appropriate for their students.

Both the weekly issues and the in-depth studies are carefully planned to increase students' awareness of news events; to improve their critical thinking, reading and discussion skills; and to encourage newspaper readership.

Slippery Rock: Not Your Normal Football College

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — When Steve Filipiak was a kid growing up in Indiana he was amused by the name of a small teachers' college in Pennsylvania.

Because of Filipiak's fixation with the odd-sounding name, tiny Slippery Rock will play a football game against Shippensburg in the 101,701-seat stadium at the University of Michigan Saturday.

Slippery Rock State College is a 600-acre red brick campus 45 miles north of Pittsburgh. The town of Slippery Rock has no industry and no bar; the town is dry.

The Slippery Rock mystique didn't catch on around these parts until 1950 when Filipiak became the public address announcer for Michigan home games.

However, when Filipiak was an undergraduate working for the campus radio station in the late 1930s, he started throwing out Slippery Rock scores, just for laughs.

Slippery Rock has no mascot. Neither is it quite sure of its nickname. It's either the Rockets or The Rock. Filipiak, who made a hobby of learning all he could about the tiny college, learned that things like that didn't matter much at Slippery Rock.

He also learned that:

—Slippery Rock's 10,000-seat stadium is nammed for N. Kerr Thompson, who was the coach there for nearly 25 years. The present coach is Bob Di Spirito, who has been at The Rock since 1967 and had a 69-44-3 record.

—When Di Spirito was offered the coaching job at The Rock, he thought it was in Arkansas.

—They still have pep rallies at Slippery Rock before home games. They have a bonfire and shoot firecrackers. Shirley Comstock of Eric, Pa., who was a cheerleader at The Rock 30 years ago, returns to lead the cheers.

Filipiak graduated in 1939 and stayed on in Ann Arbor to work for radio station WHRV, which now is WAAM, and in 1950 he began a 21-year stint as the PA announcer at Michigan Stadium.

Michigan opened its season hosting archrival Michigan State that year and, late in the second half, Filipiak couldn't resist his old trick.

"I gave the Big 10 scores and a couple from the East and I thought 'Why not?' and so I threw in the Slippery Rock score," Filipiak recalled. "The crowd went crazy."

It doubtless created nary a ripple down along the Susquehanna River in Pennsylvania, but a custom was born that September afternoon in Ann Arbor and since that day the Slippery Rock score has become a fixture at all Michigan home games — always to a roar from the crowd.

"I remember one day in the late 1950s, the Slippery Rock score didn't come over the wire that afternoon for some reason," Filipiak said. "The crowd was getting nervous. They began to chant 'We want Slippery Rock, we want Slippery Rock.' So I just went on the microphone and told them that we hadn't any word from Slippery Rock. That seemed to satisfy them."

Filipiak, 62, finally got out of broadcasting to become a manufacturer's representative a few years ago and he discontinued his PA work at Michigan games after the 1971 season.

"Michigan Athletic Director Don Canham has asked me back to do the PA work for this one on Saturday, though," Filipiak said, "and, of course, I'm going to do it and love every minute."

Canham, the shrewd Michigan athletic director, dreamed up the game as a way to fill his big stadium with cash customers while his Wolverines are on the road meeting California in Berkley. He expects more than 70,000 fans — in addition to 12,000 high school band members, from around Michigan — to witness the contest.

Neither Slippery Rock nor Shippensburg have ever played before so large a crowd, although Slippery Rock gets plenty of invitations to play in other parts of the country.

In 1974, in fact, a boistrous group of Slippery Rock fans in Texas invited one of The Rock's cheerleaders to be their guest at a Texas-TCU game.

That same bunch of Texas crazies, by the way, has chartered airplanes to get to the game Saturday.

"I still can't believe it," said Filipiak, the creator of the lovable monster. "I'm going to the pep rally at Ferry Field — everything. It's a happening."

Putt-Putt Winners

Farmville Central became the Pitt County High School Putt-Putt Champion for the second year in a row last night at the local Putt-Putt Golf Course.

Alan Wooten, 70, Greg Hardison, 74, James Futrell, 64, Eddie Jones, 74, and Bert Warren, 80, led Farmville Central to the easy win.

Second place D.H. Conley was led by Jimmy Allen with a 71.

Orthodox Church Gets Along With Kremlin

By STEVEN R. HURST
Associated Press Writer

SUZDAL, U.S.S.R. (AP) — "This is our time machine," the guide said, gesturing around the inside of the bus speeding east from Moscow's skyscrapers toward this 12th century museum of Russian Orthodoxy.

Father Valentine, a Russian monk, was waiting for the bus. He escorted his guests into a dining room in the All Sorrows Church, where religious services no longer take place but the table groaned with specimens of old Russian cooking.

Iced bottles of vodka appeared. Course after course disappeared only to be replaced by another. Shots of vodka, drunk in toasts, lubricated the palate.

The monk Valentine, with the girth of a Soviet weight-lifter, did all the cooking. He had trained as a chef before going to the seminary. He ate only salads, however, because he was fasting.

The next day was a high holy day, the Assumption of Mary, and the Soviet Council of Religious Affairs had arranged for Western reporters to visit the ancient Russian cities of Suzdal and nearby Vladimir to view the ceremonies and to show skeptical Westerners there really is freedom of religion in Russia.

The monk Valentine lives in a new, detached and privately owned house resplendent with rich oriental rugs, cabinets full of crystal and a pantry of food that many Russians would seldom have the chance or money to buy.

He ministers to a small flock of little old ladies, whose brightly colored headscarves and black coats made them look like a patchwork quilt as they stood jammed shoulder to shoulder in a small nearby church for a service on the eve of the Assumption.

Such a congregation could scarcely support the monk's lifestyle, and one of the Council of Religious Affairs officials allowed that Father Valentine had other sources of wealth. Just what they were was left unclear.

In general, the Russian clergymen seemed to lead privileged lives and seemed, too, to be eager to please Russia's avowedly atheistic government.

Orthodoxy was the official religion of Russia before the 1917 revolution. When the czar fell, Lenin carefully separated the church from his government and Soviet education.

A system of anti-religious propaganda was put in place. Later the Council of Religious Affairs was set up as the official go-between that purportedly sees to it that the church does not break the law and that the government does not infringe upon religious rights.

When the new Soviet constitution was adopted on Oct. 10, 1977, Article 52 said, "Citizens of the U.S.S.R. are guaranteed freedom of conscience, that is, the right to profess or not to profess any religion."

The new constitution also changed the theme of propaganda regarding religion. It no longer is called anti-religious. It, instead, is pro-atheistic. Soviet regulations restrict most church proselytizing. MORE

There are 11,500 Russian Orthodox churches still operating in the Soviet Union. Ten times that number are estimated to have served the country before 1917.

On the day of the Assumption festival, a day made more special because it marked the first service in five years in the ornate 12th century Assumption Cathedral in Vladimir, the archbishop of Vladimir directed the service, attended by more old ladies.

There was only an occasional man. A small boy was being directed through the crowd by one old lady who held the tyke by the ear.

The cathedral, constructed between 1158 and 1160, has been undergoing restoration for the past five years. The archbishop said the Moscow patriarchate contributed $1.8 million to the project.

After the service marking the Virgin Mary's Assumption, reporters were invited to the archibishop's house for a feast.

There was more course-after-course gorging. The lubricant this time was cognac.

The archbishop, a gracious man who shifted effortlessly from Russian to English to German, told reporters things are much better now than in the czar's time despite the church's ties to government then.

"We live in a free society," he said. "People are free to choose their faith."

Later, a reporter asked the Soviet officials whether the church wouldn't simply die along with the old ladies.

The official smiled and shook his head. "Believers seem to emerge around age 35 or 40," he said. "There will always be a new crop."

Greek Study At Center

A non-credit course in New Testament Greek will be offered by the Wesley Foundation at the Methodist Student Center, 501 E. Fifth St. beginning Monday, Oct. 1.

Classes will be held every Monday and Thursday from 7:30 to 9 p.m. for ten weeks. The course will be introductory with no previous foreign lanaguage study required. A moderate course fee will be charged.

The course would be of interest to those persons who are involved in teaching Bible classes, those who anticipate attending graduate school in religion, and to those who would like to study a classical language. No doctrinal requirements will be assumed.

For more information on the course, call Anita Immele or Dan Earnhardt, 758-2030, and leave your name, or come to class Monday, Oct. 1

El Salvador Troops Fire Into Crowd Of Civilians

By JOE FRAZIER
Associated Press Writer

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Soldiers responding to a firebomb and machine-gun attack on the National Palace fired into a rush-hour crowd of civilians, leaving at least two dead and nine wounded.

More violence was expected today when leftists march on the occupied Labor Ministry to demand the ouster of President Carlos Humberto Romero and his military regime.

Witnesses said the victims in Tuesday night's shooting apparently were innocent bystanders. The government said no troops were hurt and there were no indications that any of the attackers were among the casualties.

Gunfire cracked through the central part of the city for nearly an hour. Cars raced around corners to avoid the bullets in the warm, misty dusk and pedestrians, some screaming, ran for cover.

One of the dead, a girl of about 16, was brought to Rosales Hospital, where the wounded were being treated, an emergency room attendant said. The other confirmed fatality, a man of about 25, still lay by a curb an hour after the firing stopped.

Area residents placed burning candle stubs around his bloodied head, and traffic, which quickly returned to normal after the firing stopped, slowed only slightly as drivers and passengers gawked at the spectacle before continuing on.

The National Palace houses several government ministry offices but serves mainly as headquarters for the Defense Ministry. Defense Minister Gen. Federico Castillo Yanes was inside the ministry at the time, government sources said, but added that they did not know if he was the object of the attack. He was uninjured.

Leftist sources said the attack was the work of a combined force made up of members of the Popular Liberation Forces and the Armed Forces of Nati5nal Resistance although neither group claimed responsibility for the assault. If the report is true, it would signal a major development in the struggle between El Salvador's leftists and Romero's regime. The two guerrilla groups are the largest of their type in El Salvador but in the past have not worked together because of ideological differences.

Today's march was to begin at the Central Market and proceed to the Labor Ministry, where a leftist group has been holed up since late last week to press their demands for the release of three of their members allegedly in government custody and better conditions for workers. The Labor Ministry has been surrounded by government troops since Sunday night.

Planning Meet Slated Tonight

Five items of business have been scheduled for consideration by the Joint City-County Planning Commission at tonight's meeting, while the Greenville Planning Commission will tackle 12 agenda items.

Business on the joint agenda includes: request of J. Bryant Kittrell III and others for rezoning 15.16 acres at the northwest intersection of State Road 1203 and Stantonsburg Road from RA-20 to Highway Commercial;

Request of BCF-JKMW for rezoning some 34 acres north of NC 43 across from the Medical School from Flood Plain to R-6; final plat of Section V of Camelot Subdivision; final plat of S & S Mobile Home Park; and the revised final plat of the Lewis W. Evans Subdivision, located on the proposed Arlington Boulevard south of Courtney Square.

City board business includes: request of the Planning and Zoning Commission to study the feasibility of rezoning property at 2701-2705 S. Memorial Drive from R-6 to Office and Institutional; request of J. T. Williams for rezoning 24,500 square feet on the south side of Tenth Street between Cedar Lane and Greenville Boulevard from Highway Commercial to Shopping Center.

Request of the J. R. Moye heirs for rezoning some eight acres at the southeast corner of NC 43 and Moye Boulevard from Medical Arts to Office and Institutional; proposed street name change, involving Railroad Street from Howell northward to 14th, to become Beatty Street;

Preliminary plat of Section III of Sharon Subdivision, located on the south side of Howell Street between Perkins and Skinner Streets; revised preliminary plat of John's Court Subdivision, located on the west side of McClellan Street; revised final plat of John's Court Subdivision;

Revised preliminary plat of Bryton Hill Subdivision, located between River Bluff Drive and Rivergate Shopping Center; final plat of Section II of Bryton Hill; preliminary plat of Baytree Subdivision, located south of Red Banks Road and W. 14th Street Extension; and the sedimentation and erosion control plans of Baytree Subdivision.

Milk Prices Will Go Up

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Consumers can expect to pay at least an extra 1.7 cents per gallon for milk starting in November, thanks to an increase granted to dairy farmers by the state Milk Commission Tuesday.

The price of raw milk will climb for the third consecutive month, due to rising prices in adjoining states, which affect a formula that automatically raises North Carolina prices without commission action, according to Neill Sinclair, assistant executive secretary for the Milk Commission.

The latest increase is effective Nov. 1, and raises the price received by farmers 20 cents per hundredweight, to $13.73.

The raise follows a previously-announced 20-cent increase that takes effect Oct. 1, because of general inflation, and another 20-cent increase the previous month.

Though the price increase amounts to 1.7 cents per gallon on the wholesale level, retail prices often climb by twice as much. Sinclair said the commission had know way of knowing what stores or distributors do with retail prices.

The forthcoming rise is due to a factor in the formula which triggers an increase if average milk prices in surrounding states are higher by 3 percent or more, he said.

French Fries A Poetry Bribe

BLOOMFIELD, N.J. (AP) — Can little Johnny find happiness with Keats and Shelly while munching on french fries? A local library wants to find out.

"This may sound bad, but we are basically bribing the children to introduce them to poetry which they usually shy away from," said Margret Lockwood, head of Bloomfield Library's children's services.

All the kids have to do is show up at the library with an original or copied version of any poem.

Sidewalk Arts, Craft Show Set

WINTERVILLE — A sidewalk arts and crafts show will be held on the streets of Winterville Saturday, Sept. 29, from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., sponsored by the Winterville Historical and Arts Association.

Artists from the local community will exhibit or sell their arts and crafts in Cecil Worthington's garden area. A free slide presentation on Winterville will be shown continuously in Cecil's store.

A historical exhibit will be displayed next door in the A. W. Ange Store windows. Students from A. G. Cox School will enter competition on Winterville's history, past and present. Awards will be given to winners in each grade level. Baked goods and lemonade will be sold near the First State Bank.

Strange Cargo Was Unmarked

LONDON (AP) — The ground manager of the animal hostel at Heathrow Airport recently opened three unmarked sacks he found on board a jumbo jet.

Out came two spitting cobras, six Egyptian puff adders and seven other snakes. They were claimed by their owner three days later.

The View From Horseshoe Bend: It's A Good Life

By RICHARD H. GROWALD
UPI National Reporter

HORSESHOE BEND, Idaho (UPI) — Romantic old Mother Nature curved the Payette River among the nude brown hills north of Boise and so, when the gold rush bubbled 117 years ago, the rushees called this place Horseshoe Bend.

Highway builders are not notably romantic. They ran the state highway straight across the river, through Horseshoe Bend, across the river again and out into the hills with the scrub growth that looks like Mother Nature has 5 o'clock shadow.

The gold is gone. But the lumber mill remains and the town lives around it and it is the sort of place where there is a roadside chapel out on the road to Boise but, stranger, you can buy a beer at one of the town taverns after breakfast.

But there is more among the several hundred Americans of Horseshoe Bend. And here, where the ways down from the hills are pocked with 25 mile an hour signs and Mother Nature, that romantic, has stuck a few yellow daisies by the roadside near the welfare center, the residents talk of their views.

"I'm going to be married in a couple of weeks and that makes Horseshoe Bend very good indeed," said Patti Newell, 24, sitting at her desk in the federally paid-for Community Action Center.

"I was married before. I've got Sally 7, Charlie 6 and Buck who is 3. But call me 'Ms' until my new wedding." She smiles and then talks about life and then smiles no more.

"This country isn't going good. Don't like this nuclear power stuff. And the politicians, why, which one ain't caught once in a while with a hand in the wrong pocket?

"Don't think my kids will have it as easy as me. Right here, I see as much poverty among the young as the old." She cites a Boise county couple the Center has been trying to help.

"He's got this ninth grade education and no job and these kids. Lumber mill doesn't hire on the basis of who needs a job but who it wants. His wife, thank God, has a job in a grocery.

"I've never voted in a presidential election and never will. How am I supposed to know about (President) Carter? I do know about my kids' school and so I do vote on school issues. Ah, the country's getting worse. The economy is bad.

"But I'm not fretting too much right now," Ms Newell said. "Because right now I'm too busy looking up a church and a minister for my wedding day."

Michael Wray, tall, thin and 30, sat next to Ms Newell. He is paid to help the less rich of the Horseshoe Bend area winterize their houses, the better to save energy and money. He is not an admirer of the East.

"If they just sawed off everything East of the Mississippi River and sunk it in the ocean and started over, America would have a chance. The people making all the laws back there, they figure what's good for the East is good for Idaho."

He mashes a phantom effete Easterner between the gray wooden floor and the sole of his right boot. "I couldn't care less. I don't vote. The United States could collapse in the next couple years, so much inflation.

"Thank you, East."

Wray spent 14 months as a GI in Vietnam. He said now his greatest hope is living on a western range with no more than two persons every 10 square miles. Suddenly, he laughs.

"And I'm one of the smart ones. Still single." He grins at Ms Newell. Wray is a gentleman of the west and Ms Newell is about to become Mrs. again and now is not the time for a macho display.

"Well," he said, "I suppose the thing is I just haven't found any female that will have me."

Next door, in the Youth Bar — soft drinks and no demon rum, the slim Mrs. Jane Cook, 24, sits low on a chair behind the bar and waits for the first paying customer of the afternoon.

"Don't think much of life in this country these days. Costs so much to live. I make $2.90 an hour here.

"I come from Michigan and I must say the people of Horseshoe Bend are friendly. So I'm not really worried. Dope and crime are doing well but not here." She smiles.

"I smile but I'm not really happy. Town's nice. But not many jobs. I'm lucky to be working here afternoons and nights. Got it because I was in a Midwest hospital after my divorce and a girl in the next bed was from here and said I should come and I did by bus with my three-year-old boy Jerry."

Two elementary school boys appear at the door. They survey the lonesome bar and the vacant pool table and the empty coffee can labeled "Donations for Cusswords."

"I'd like to be married and stay home and have about nine more kids. But that's impossible. When I was in the hospital, they took out a uterine cyst and I can have no more children.

"Can I have more life?"

Festival On Blue Farm

ABERDEEN — The annual Malcolm Blue Historic Crafts and Skills Festival will be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday, September 28, 29 and 20 at the Old Bethesda Church on Blue Farm.

The site is located on Route 5, the Bethesda Road in the Aberdeen-Southern Pines area.

The festival will feature demonstrations of crafts and arts. On Saturday, a barbecue dinner at $3.75 will be served between 5 and 8 p.m., and from 5 to 11 that date, entertainment will be provided by "Trapezoid," a country-folk group.

A church service will be held at 3 p.m. on Sunday.

Hours of the festival are 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Friday; 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday (except for the barbecue and music events); and from 1 to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Admission is $1, with those under 12 admitted free of charge. In the event of rain, the festival will be held on October 5, 6 and 7.

Friends Of The Library Holding Annual Meet

The second annual meeting and symposium of the Friends of the Library, East Carolina University, will take place on Thursday and Friday, September 27 and 28.

A reception will be held at 6 p.m. at the home of Chancellor and Mrs. Thomas B. Brewer, with all other events on Thursday to take place at Ramada Inn.

Registration opens at 8 a.m. Thursday, with Dr. Brewer welcoming participants at 9 a.m., to be followed by introductions by Eugena A. Brunelle, Director of Library Services, ECU.

The first speaker on the symposium will be David Kaser, whose lecture is scheduled from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. Thursday. Kaser is professor of Library Science at Indiana University, Bloomington, Indiana. He is also an author and a former editor of "College and Research Libraries."

Frederick G. Kilgour is to speak from 11 a.m. to noon on the subject "Technological innovation and the future development of libraries." President and executive director of OCLC, Inc., Kilgour is the 1978 recipient of the Melvil Dewey Medal.

"Future scenarios: networks, users and academic libraries" is the subject of a lecture to be given from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. Thursday by Barbara Evans Markuson. She is executive director of the Indiana Cooperative Library Services Authority and holds other positions in library associations.

At 3 p.m. Thursday, Edward G. Holley, dean of the School of Library Science at UNC-Chapel Hill, will be the speaker. His subject will be "Education and the development of personnel in a time of technological change."

The reception at the home of Chancellor and Mrs. Brewer will be from 6 to 7 p.m., and the dinner meeting will take place at Ramada Inn at 7:30 p.m. David Kaser is the dinner speaker, and his subject will be "An Abecedarium for Book Persons.

The Friday portion of the symposium will take place at the auditorium in Jenkins Fine Arts Center on campus.

Beverly P. Lynch is the first lecturer, to speak at 9 a.m. on "Technology: its impact upon library organization." Ms. Lynch is university librarian and professor of library administration at the University of Chicago Circle.

Millicent D. Abell is to lecture at 10:30 a.m. on the subject "Who's in charge? Technological change and the public services librarian. She is university librarian at the University of California, San Diego, and is president of the ACRL division of ALA.

The final symposium event is a panel discussion from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

This year's symposium is made possible by assistance from nearly three dozen businesses, firms, agencies and organizations in the Greenville area.

Sentenced For Role In Theft

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP) — A Cincinnati-area man has been sentenced to 18 years in federal prison for his role in the theft of $370,000 from a Wells Fargo armored truck.

Howard T. Kalsbeck, 49, was sentenced Tuesday after pleading guilty Monday to charges of theft from an interstate shipment, interstate transportion of stolen goods and conspiracy in the June 18 theft in northern Kentucky.

Poisonous Toad In California

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — A poison-secreting amphibian known as the Giant Toad turned up for the first time in California when a high school student found one in a creek bed, state officials say.

Agriculture and health officials are on the lookout for other Giant Toads, which secrete a strong poison to defend themselves, state officials said Tuesday. The toad is regarded primarily as a threat to insects or other predators that eat insects, and is not a serious threat to humans.

Find Doves Have PCB

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Persons living along state roadsides contaminated by PCB-laced oil spills have been advised not to eat doves taken from the area. But wildlife and disease experts have said those who have already eaten small amounts of the birds should be in no immediate danger.

A report released last week by the state Wildlife Commission said eating game found in the area where the toxic chemical was dumped last fall could be dangerous. The commission said birds feeding or picking up grit along the contaminated roadways would also be picking up PCBs.

Levels of PCBs up to 19 times the allowable level for human consumption were found in doves and rabbits from the area.

Dr. Martin Hines, chief of the Division of Health Services' epidemiology section, has sent the Wildlife Commission's data to the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta for study by PCB expert Dr. Renate Kimbro.

Both doctors agreed that, even though it isn't safe to eat doves from he area where the spills occurred, there is little to worry about for persons who have already eaten the birds because the amount of PCB carried by the animals is so small there would be no problem.

Before deer hunting season begins, the Health Services division and the Wildlife Commission will take deer tissue samples in the PCB areas to see if any problem exists there, Hines said. These tissues will be also be sent to Atlanta for analysis.

Release Of Elvis Data Is Opposed

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Baptist Hospital attorneys say they'll ask a chancellor to set aside a subpoena requiring the release of Elvis Presley's autopsy report to an attorney for ABC-TV news.

Max Shelton, an attorney for the hospital, said Tuesday the hospital will ask Chancellor D.J. Alissandratos to quash the subpoena before the hospital is required to furnish the records to network attorney Michael Pleasants.

Subpoenaes were served Tuesday on officials of the hospital and the University of Tennessee Center for the Health Sciences as part of the network's lawsuit against Dr. Jerry Francisco, Shelby County medical examiner.

"Basically it has been our position that we will release the records on the request of the family or the executor of the estate or on a court order," hospital vice president Maurice Elliott said. "But we will not act on the basis of a request by a private attorney."

Pleasants represents Charles Thompson, a producer for the ABC-TV program "20-20."

Thompson and James Cole, a free-lance Memphis writer under contract to ABC, filed suit seeking to force Francisco to release the report before the network aired a show implying Presley died Aug. 16, 1977, from a drug reaction rather than from heart disease, as Francisco maintains.

Thompson said his attorneys will ask Alissandratos to require Francisco to answer questions about tissue and fluid removed from Presley's body. They also want the medical examiner to explain his role as a private consultant for Baptist Hospital.

Thompson said Francisco refused to answer those questions at a deposition hearing two weeks ago.

ABC contends Presley's death was caused by overuse of prescription drugs and Francisco has participated in a coverup, which the medical examiner denies.

The network also alleges doctors at Baptist Hospital who performed the autopsy reached a different conclusion from Francisco's. The Baptist doctors have refused to comment on the autopsy.

Francisco said in the deposition he attended the autopsy as medical examiner and private consultant for Baptist Hospital.

Hobby Backs Union Effort

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State AFL-CIO leader Wilbur Hobby expressed displeasure with recent articles in a Raleigh newspaper surrounding Comprehensive Employment and Training Act contracts awarded by state agencies to his union as well as several companies he heads.

Hobby said in an interview Tuesday that labor unions and businesses had a right to CETA contracts. He estimated that 75 percent of international unions have job training programs that help train workers for good jobs.

"I strongly favor union participation in CETA programs because, in most cases, it means that workers will receive good training and get good jobs at decent wages when they complete the training program," Hobby said.

The News and Observer has reported that organizations headed by Hobby have received more than $1 million in CETA contracts since 1977 from departments headed by state officials his union supported in the 1976 election.

Hobby said Natural Resources and Community Develolpment Secretary Howard N. Lee "panicked" when Lee ordered a freeze on all future CETA contracts with Hobby-related companies or organizations.

"I feel like he felt he had to do something, and I feel like he panicked," Hobby said.

Lee ordered the freeze following a report by NRCD monitors that found more than 80 percent of the CETA expenditures under one contract to Hobby's printing firm were questionable or unallowable.

Hobby admitted that NRCD had "examined our books and determined that our bookkeeping is unsatisfactory."

Hobby also issued a seven-page statement critical of the coverage by the News and Observer of Raleigh of CETA contracts awarded to the union.

Hobby's statement also responded to a profile of the AFL-CIO head in a Sunday edition of the newspaper.

He said the newspaper insinuated that he received large sums of money from the CETA contracts, misrepresented the purchase of his home, "smeared" his wife and children and made incorrect statements about his business involvements with Precision Graphics and Precision Data, businesses which he heads.

Juniper-Choked Forests Going

By PETER GILLINS

NEEDLE MOUNTAINS, Utah (UPI) — A ship's anchor chain and a bulldozer have joined the horse and the lariat as tools of the modern rancher in southwestern Utah.

Ranchers aided by the state and federal governments have used heavy chains stretched between two bulldozers to rip up vast tracts of juniper and pinion trees.

After burning the twisted remains of the trees, they reseed the land with crested wheat, Russian wheat, intermediate wheat, topar and other grasses, turning the dry forests into lush pasture for cattle.

The techniques, which include scorching the earth nearly black, make some environmentalists shudder. But the end result is more grass and water, which have helped many ranchers stay in business and prosper.

Due to environmental pressure, the Bureau of Land Management stopped using the chain method on land it controls in Utah seven years ago pending impact studies. But ranchers are continuing the clearing on private and state land with the help of the Utah Legislature.

"It's allowed us to keep our families together," said Thurman Eyre of Minersville, Utah, a partner in Woods and Eyre Cattle Co., sponsor of one of the largest chain-dragging reclamation projects in Utah.

"Without the reseeding, the range wouldn't support the eight families that make up the company," he said. "Our kids would have to move away."

The Woods and Eyre Co. runs about 900 cows with calves on 200,000 acres of land in Pine Valley, near the Utah-Nevada stateline in Beaver County. The company owns about 3,000 acres. The rest is leased from the Bureau of Land Management and the state.

Because of the delicate desert climate, the land cannot support many cattle and requires careful management. Most of the valley is winter range with a sparse covering of grass and white sage. During the summer, the stockmen move their cattle to the mountains surrounding the valley.

The Needle Range is covered with juniper forests so dense nothing grows under the trees, not even cactus. But the cattlemen have cleared 14,000 acres of federal, state and private land and reseeded it.

"You would be surprised at the number of springs that come up after the trees have been cleared," said Rulon Eyre, Thurman's brother. "Those junipers soak up all the water. Nothing will grow under them."

"That stream used to dry up by July," he said. "Now there is water all year, enough to irrigate some of the pasture land."

There is also more water for stock and wildlife. The range supports a transplanted elk herd, antelope, deer and grouse.

"The range is just a lot better," said Thurman. "Our calf crop has increased from 60 to 95 percent since we began the reseeding and we are getting heavier calves."

Woods and Eyre began reseeding nearly 15 years ago on leased BLM land. In the initial phases of the project, the ranchers built the fences and the BLM cleared the property.

But the BLM put a moratorium on chaining throughout Utah in 1972 pending studies of the environmental effects and cost-to-benefit ratios of the reclamation.

"Some areas are better suited for this type of project and we wanted to determine where there would be positive benefits and where the costs would outweigh the benefits," said acting Utah BLM Director Bill Leavell. "It costs a lot of money to hire men and run bulldozers."

Then, in 1975, the Natural Resources Defense Council filed a lawsuit which required BLM to prepare extensive environmental impact statements on grazing. The suit killed chain dragging on BLM land until the agency completes 20 impact statements on various Utah ranges. The task won't be finished until 1988, although chaining could resume in some areas before then.

The Woods and Eyre Co. has borrowed $100,000, which it is using to clear and seed eight sections of state land in the Needle Mountains along with some private land, none of which is affected by the environmental lawsuit.

The cattlemen have 15 years to pay back the money. They have also put nearly a quarter of a million dollars of their own money into the projects. In addition to chaining, they have laid nearly 40 miles of pipe along the sides of Pine Valley to keep watering holes full.

A range fire swept across part of the juniper forest two years ago. BLM, following a new policy, left the trees standing and dropped grass seed from aircraft. The result was an eerie forest of black tree skeletons sticking up from a lush carpet of alfalfa and other grasses.

Carl Parker, a range expert from Utah State University, said wildfire once helped keep much of western Utah green with grass. But in this century, the BLM contributed to a takeover by junipers and pinion when the agency fought all wildfires, he said.

"Fire is a natural ecological factor on range land," he said. "If we are going to suppress fire, we should be prepared to deal with the problems that arise out of the practice."

Parker said desert trees make poor use of water on the range compared to grass.

"Trees evaporate a lot more water in relation to the amount of material they synthesize," he said. "The grass that results from fire and chaining is much more useful to livestock and wildlife."

Leavell said the BLM has adopted a policy putting out fires that threaten lives or property. But in areas where burning would be advantageous, fires are allowed to burn.

"In some areas, we actually set fires," he said. "Usually they are small, from 500 to 1,000 acres."

Rulon Eyre, who is 76 and still takes to the saddle to move his cows from pasture to pasture, looks wistfully across the thousands of acres of dry trees that remain on the Needle Mountains.

"Somebody could run a lot of cattle in there if the government would just let us take out more of the trees," he said.

Returnees Recruiting

Returned Peace Corps and VISTA Volunteers of North Carolina are making a collective effort to provide special assistance to North Carolina Peace Corps Volunteers.

The newly formed group is being assisted in this effort by Gov. James B. Hunt. It is seeking to supply Peace Corps volunteers in the field with supplies, technical assistance or research information necessary to complete specific projects when these materials are unavailable in their host countries. The N. C. Returned Peace Corps and VISTA Volunteers will be made aware of specific needs through notices in "Peace Corps Times," the PCV newspaper, and through letters from Gov. Hunt.

Former volunteers interested in offering assistance to PCV's from North Carolina are asked to contact Emily Coble, 105-A Thistledown Court, Greenville, 756-7775, or Gail Singh, Rt. 3, Box 270, Edenton, N. C. 482-3005.

There are, to date, 22 returned Peace Corps and VISTA Volunteers in the Eastern N. C. area who meet periodically. Friends of volunteers are welcome to accompany them. Information may be obtained from either of the above.

Play Roles In Realtors' Meet

Jack Duffus of Greenville and Dr. Bruce Wardrep of East Carolina University will both lead discussion groups at the 58th annual convention of the North Carolina Association of Realtors.

The convention will be held Wednesday through Saturday, Oct. 3-6, at the Grove Park Inn, Asheville. Over 900 Realtors have registered for the event.

Market Prices Via 'Teletip'

Weekly feeder calf and yearling steer prices are now available by calling Extension Teletip, according to Mike Regans, associate agricultural extension agent.

By calling 1-800-662-7301, a toll-free number, and asking for tape number 20, persons may receive weekly prices on feeder calves and yearling steers. A new tape is available on Monday mornings and includes all sales from the previous week and a statement as to the trend compared to previous weeks.

WYBNSBYW ZSO-HSO HVGXYW XC ZY XCN ZVGVGV

Today's Cryptoquip clue: N equals P

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

For Losers, Two Sitcoms Not So Bad

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Failure being the destiny of most new shows in most new TV seasons, expect a large number of programs now beaming happily over the airwaves to soon be dumped into the losers' pile, gone and forgotten.

As usual, most will have met a deserved fate. Some more deserved than others. Among those that aren't likely to last but might have under different circumstances are "The Last Resort" and "Struck By Lightning," on CBS.

"The Last Resort" is CBS' once-removed "Animal House" imitation, featuring a slob, a cleancut kid and a rich kid, just as CBS' first "Animal House" imitation, "Coed Fever," did last Spring.

The idea is the same, but the situation is slightly different and the gags a little brighter. Instead of tearing up a university, these kids are working at a mountain resort during summer vacation.

One wants to be a doctor, one wants to be a scientist and one just wants to be rich. They do battle with each other and hotel management, but in a much less offensive way than their college-kidcom predecessors last season. The actors — Larry Breeding, Stephanie Faracy, Robert Costanzo, Zane Lasky and Walter Olkewicz — are a likeable lot, and Olkewicz is a fine slob.

But the three network's original "Animal House" rip-offs died fast and hard last season, not a good omen for "Last Resort." And in its Wednesday night lead-off spot, "Resort" doesn't have the benefit of a strong lead-in show, an element usually essential to the success of a new show.

And "Resort," in turn, is the lead-in to "Struck By Lightning," a modern-day Frankenstein number that's not as bad as it sounds. Jeffrey Kramer plays wimpy high school science teacher Ted Stein, who inherits an old inn. The old inn's old innkeeper, Frank (Jack Elam), informs Ted that he, Ted, is the great-great grandson of the famous Dr. Frankenstein.

"I'm the monster," Elam says. "I was his monster. Now your monster."

Elam also has a monster problem: He needs this special formula to stay alive, and Ted wants none of it. He has to get back to Boston for a Celtics game.

Pretty cute camp, from its opening number (Rod Stewart's "You Are So Beautiful") to Elam's delightful hamming. Unfortunately, "Struck By Lightning" also is left to fend for itself with no strong lead-in show.

Wednesday night is one of tough competition, suggesting that CBS doesn't seriously count either of these two sitcoms in its future plans. ABC starts the evening with the popular "Eight is Enough" and figures to build from there with "Charlie's Angels" and "Vega$," successes both.

And this is the strongest night of NBC's week, with "Real People" leading into two of NBC's few strong shows, "Diff'rent Strokes" and "Hello, Larry."

So, catch "Last Resort" and "Struck By Lightning" soon. For losers, they're not bad.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Forget the past and former unresolved conditions, and look to the future with courage and conviction for best results. You can be more prosperous and gain your desired goals.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Fine day for delving into creative ideas and putting dull routines aside for the time being. Balance your living more intelligently.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A new interest may come to your attention that should be studied well since it could be of benefit to you. Steer clear of trouble.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Avoid problems at home and direct your energy in business matters that can give you more abundance in the days ahead.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Plan how best to add to present assets and keep busy at such. Strive for more rapport with loved one.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Go after whatever means a great deal to you, but don't let anyone lead you in the wrong direction. Improve your appearance.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Listen to what a trusted adviser has to suggest, since you are not thinking too straight right now. More devotion to kin is wise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Stop worrying about things you can do nothing about and join good friends who can lift your spirit. Outside contacts are important now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Gain the goodwill of experts in business matters and take their advice for best results. Take needed health treatments.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A good day to study new projects and meet interesting persons. Secrets come to light by your delving into them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You may want to run away from routines that are boring, but find a better system and all is well. Get a new perspective on life.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Quickly put in operation a new plan that could give you added income in the days ahead. Forget unimportant tasks.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Take time to make long-range plans that could give you more abundance in the future. Avoid unnecessary expenditure of money.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one with the capability to handle new ideas and will become frustrated if there are any limitations, so equip with a good education and you can expect excellent results. Sports are a must here.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Set Seminar On Microprocessor

RALEIGH — A seminar for engineers and technicians interested in learning about microprocessors will be held in Raleigh, November 6-7, sponsored by the Eastern North Carolina section of the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers.

Taught by Dr. Has van den Biggelaar, professor of electrical engineering at Southeastern Massachusetts University, the course will include an introduction to microprocessor technology, a comparison of systems, and a demonstration of microprocessor applications and programming.

Advanced registration is $130 for IEEE members and $165 for non-members, while registration at the door will be $150 for members and $188 for non-members.

Persons wishing to attend the course should contact Larry Dwon, 103 Hudson Hill Rd., Route 4, Box 103 Pittsboro, or telephone 542-2903.

Bee Recovered Golden Bumble

PEMBROKE, Mass. (AP) — A golden bumble bee which had been kidnapped was found and brought home on the roof of a police cruiser.

The bee is actually a metal ornament which has adorned the cupola of a library here since 1975. It is 47 inches long and 47 inches wide and weighs 46 pounds.

The police said the bee had been stolen, apparently as a prank.

SINATRA WAXING

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Frank Sinatra will cut his first new album in five years when he records a three-record album, "Trilogy" accompanied by the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra. It will highlight songs which were hits during the 1940s.

MISTRIAL — A judge declared a mistrial Tuesday in the murder retrial of Black Panther leader Huey Newton after the jury deadlocked 11-1 for his acquittal on charges of killing a 17-year-old prostitute. It was Newton's seventh felony trial and his fifth murder trial — three of them in the 1967 killing of an Oakland policeman. (AP Laserphoto)

MacDonald Imprisoned

SAN PEDRO, Cal. (AP) — Convicted murderer Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald arrived at the Terminal Island Federal Correctional Institution Tuesday morning to begin serving three consecutive life terms for the murders of his pregnant wife and two daughters in 1970, according to prison officials.

The 35-year-old Huntington Beach resident was assigned to an "admission and orientation commitment," lasting two weeks. He will live in the general prison population, officials said.

The authorities said they will then decide whether to give MacDonald a prison job or put him in a special unit.

The minimum security unit is located about six miles from Long Beach, where MacDonald served as director of emergency medical services for the past seven years. The prison is also about 10 miles from his Huntington Beach condominium.

MacDonald's 18-day, cross-country bus ride from Raleigh, stopped occasionally at various federal prisons to allow him and other inmates to find boarding at night.

The former Green Beret doctor was convicted Aug. 29 of one count of first degree murder and two counts of second murder for the slayings of his family members in February 1970 at Fort Bragg, where he was stationed as an Army captain. MacDonald contended during his trial that four drug-crazed intruders bludgeoned and stabbed his family to death and attacked him.

MacDonald's attorneys have asked U.S. District Judge Franklin T. Dupree Jr. to reconsider his order denying bail pending appeal of the conviction.

Embarrassed By Mail Scams

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Postal inspectors are warning West Virginians to be wary of shady mail order houses — some of which leave many victims too red-faced to report that they've been had.

Mail fraud investigator Bill Pauer has been working on the problem in West Virginia for several years, but concedes many of the con artists slip away after advertising and making a quick buck.

Pauer said some of the scams are directed at the elderly, such as envelope-stuffing schemes for large rewards. But other con artists are more creative.

ATTRACTED BY PARKS

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (UPI) — More than 66 percent of the persons questioned in a recent Gallup poll on use of the National Park system said they have visited a national park and 81 percent said it was "very likely" they would visit a national park in the next few years.

Rundown Castles Are Offered

By SYLVANA FOA

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Poland is searching for some rich, romantic Americans to take over and fix up its rundown castles.

Some 1,100 historically important castles, baronial manors, country chateaux and picturesque inns are available to anyone wealthy enough to restore their fading grandeur.

"We won't turn over these houses to just anyone," said Marian Pazdzior of the Culture Ministry. "We want people who are truly interested in preserving them."

During and after World War II, hundreds of wealthy Polish aristocrats abandoned their chateaux and castles to flee first the Nazis and then communism.

Later many stately palaces were ransacked by people looking for scarce building materials. Others were turned over to peasant families whose own homes were destroyed.

"Many of these families now want modern apartments. They never liked living in drafty old castles and didn't take proper care of them," said Pazdzior.

In 1973, the Culture Ministry tried to interest schools and other public institutions in the endangered palaces.

"The pace was slow and in five years only 400 were taken over by institutions," Pazdzior said. "They only wanted big castles and many precious smaller places were seriously deteriorating."

So the Culture Ministry went to Parliament and lobbied through the Historic Monuments Utilization Act permitting private persons to take possession of the castles on a 100-year lease.

Besides the basic lease price, the new "owner" must agree to faithfully restore the property. The government will pay 23 percent of the restoration costs, and construction materials can be imported duty free.

A monument typical of those in need of a new owner is the 17th-century castle with a 14th-century entrance tower near the seaside town of Gdansk. The 15-room castle has five acres of wooded park. Pazdzior estimates it would cost $300,000 to restore and another $200,000 for the lease — a total of $500,000.

"It would be a good place for two or three families to take over together or for someone who wanted to open a hotel," said Pazdzior.

If that's a bit expensive sounding, Pazdzior says the Culture Ministry has a full catalog of wonderful 18th century peasant houses and village inns.

"Since the new law, we've leased about 100 units to private people, 10 of them foreigners," said Pazdzior. "Most of the foreigners are people of Polish descent who plan to come back here to retire."

While most foreigners expressing interest so far are American, the Polish government plans to advertise the scheme in France and other European nations with large Polish emigree populations. Foreigners must pay in hard Western currency.

Although the castles remain the property of the state, they can be passed on to heirs for the duration of the renewable 100-year leases, Pazdzior said.

"People get wealthy naturally and preserving these lovely houses is a good outlet for wealth," he said. "The best guarantee for a piece of property is to have an owner — someone who cares."

He Never Left 'Police Beat'

By CAROL DEEGAN

NEW YORK (AP) — Leslie Waller started his career in journalism as a police reporter in Chicago. And although he's gone on to write more than a dozen fiction and non-fiction books, in a sense he's never really left the police beat.

Waller, 56, first worked as a police reporter for the City News Bureau in Chicago, then for the old Chicago Sun, which later became the Sun-Times, before going into the Air Force. He worked in Air Force Intelligence in World War II.

He wrote his first novel during the war. "I am not going to tell you the name, it's a really rotten book; but I have been writing novels and non-fiction works ever since," he said.

"I never really left the area of crime because I made a lot of contacts on both sides of the law in Chicago," Waller said.

Waller has written 17 novels and three non-fiction books, many of them exploring the relationship of business, banking and politics to crime in the world.

His non-fiction books include a textbook on crime that is used in high schools throughout the United States; the "Swiss Bank Connection," which explains the Swiss banking system, and "Hide in Plain Sight," which focuses attention on the U.S. Justice Department's controversial "witness protection program." "Hide in Plain Sight" is now a film in production.

One novel, "Trocadero," so thoroughly exposed a segment of French banking security that it was banned in France.

Waller's latest novel, "The Brave and the Free," is about a group of young men and women who enter adulthood in the early 1960s: the high school graduating class of 1964 in the fictional town of New Era, Ohio.

The book traces the lives of these young people through the events of the '60s and '70s — the Kennedy assassinations, the civil-rights movement, the 1968 Democratic convention in Chicago, the Vietnam War and Watergate.

"Just look at it," Waller said. "The civil-rights revolution, the sexual revolution, the upsurge of youth culture in music and manners, conflicts between young and old, the drug scene — it defies summary in a sentence or two."

He said that until "The Brave and the Free," he hadn't had the physical spread of 10 years in which to handle everything he knew or he thought he knew in one book.

Unity Goal In October

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The top officials of the two major branches of American Presbyterianism will meet in Charlotte next month in a step they hope will lead toward unification.

The United Presbyterian Church, consisting of mainly Northern Presbyterians and many black Presbyterians, and the Presbyterian Church in the U.S., predominantly white with members concentrated in the South, will meet in the Mecklenburg County city because of its large concentration of Presbyterians.

United Presbyterian Moderator Howard Rice and PCUS Moderator Albert Winn will meet at Myers Park Presbyterian Church on Sunday, Oct. 14.

The racial difference was once considered a primary obstacle to a unified Presbyterian church in the South. But now, says Myers Park Presbyterian Minister Randolph Taylor, "That (the racial issue) is one of the most compelling things leading us toward reunion.

"We need each other here," continued Taylor, who heads a national Presbyterian committee on unification. "We need contact with the black community, and they need contact with us if we are going to minister to the needs of an increasingly urban location."

There are more than 33,000 PCUS members and more than 5,100 United Presbyterians in Mecklenburg and a half dozen surrounding counties, Taylor said.

The Mud Is Flying In Idaho's Senatorial Campaign

By MARK SHENEFELT

BOISE, Idaho (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church insists Adolf Hitler's "big lie" technique is being used against him. The Idaho Democrat's opponents say he is a "political pornographer."

That's just a sample of the invectives that Church and his opponents have been hurling at each other in what has escalated into one of the hottest one-candidate political campaigns ever.

A Democrat who has survived election challenges for more than two decades in a Republican-dominated state, Church this year is being jabbed not by candidates, but by so-called political action committees.

Church's harshest critic in Idaho is the Anyone But Church Committee, an ally of the National Conservative Political Action Committee. The national group recently launched a $700,000 campaign to defeat Church and four other liberal Senate Democrats in the 1980 election.

To Church, who chairs the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, the anti-Church committee is a "lackey" of the "radical national right," which he says more than anything wants to dump him from his powerful Senate perch.

The committee claims Church is out of step with Idaho and has voted against the wishes of his constituents too many times. Church has been attacked for his support of the Panama Canal treaties, cancellation of the B-1 bomber, and other liberal issues.

SEN. FRANK CHURCH insists Hitler's "big lie" technique is being used against him in Republican-dominated Idaho. (UPI Photo)

A recent committee advertisement that said Church voted for congressional pay raises resulted in a retraction when several persons called the anti-Church committee headquarters in Boise to say the charge was false.

Don Todd, chairman of the committee, apologized and retracted the claim, but in the same breath demanded an apology from the senator for "comparing a group of Idaho citizens with Adolf Hitler and the Nazis, merely because they disagree with him."

"He's a political pornographer of the worst kind," Todd said, referring to Church's remarks at a news conference.

"They're trying to discredit me by using well-known big lie techniques," Church said. "In 'Mein Kampf,' you'll remember Hitler said if you tell a lie and tell it often enough, people will believe it."

According to Church, the best example of a "big-lie" was a letter mailed nationally to thousands of voters in July. The letter from an organization calling itself "Stop the Baby Killers" labeled Church and four others "baby-killing congressmen." Church said the letter was a "bald-faced lie," insisting his record showed he favored abortion only in extreme cases.

The vivid abortion letter named Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, as the group's honorary chairman. Church easily beat Hansen in the 1968 Senate race.

It is not the arch-conservative Hansen, however, who is eyeing Church's office. It is Rep. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, another conservative, who is known for his colorful sloganeering and biting criticism of the federal government and Church.

Symms has not announced his Senate candidacy, but he says it is probable he will enter the race.

Recently, though, Symms said he feared the anti-Church committee's antics might backfire and cost him dearly at the polls come November 1980. Symms publicly has disassociated himself from the committee and other political action groups in Idaho, although he defends their right to "get on the soapbox and say anything they want."

Church says Symms is "letting ABC (the committee) do his dirty work while he takes the high ground."

Recently Church demanded that the group retract another charge, that he cost taxpayers $2.3 billion by voting for assistance to New York City.

Church said the deal in reality earned the government $32.3 million when the loan was repaid and the interest totaled. But Todd said "hogwash" to Church's contention that the loan possibly saved the nation from a "financial earthquake." The charge was not retracted.

"This is not a question of interpretation of the facts," Church said. "They are there in the U.S. Treasury. In every particular the charge is untrue. It can be checked out by simple means.

Retraction of the congressional pay assertion caused friction between the group and its parent organization.

Todd, when he realized the charge was fake, flew to Washington for a meeting with Terry Dolan, head of NCPAC. Todd said the two had a "heated but friendly discussion."

"I was very upset over the fact that we were wrong," Todd said. "I'm the one that lives here and have to take the brunt of the thing."

In his counterattack Church also has lashed out at Idaho's Republican officeholders:

"Have no illusions. This is a concerted campaign to oust me from the Senate. There is a different breed of Republicans now and it is clear the smear campaign is being condoned by them."

Freshman Attorney General David H. Leroy accused Church of "cheap forensic manipulations" and Senate President Pro Tem Reed Budge said Church "is a big boy... he realizes he's gone too far and he doesn't like what he's seeing."

The anti-Curch group's latest television advertisement against Church takes the 1976 presidential candidate to task for his "big lie" remarks. Other advertisements have said Church has weakened the national defense severely with votes against defense spending. Church denied this claim, too, saying he never voted no on a defense appropriation.

Another issue in the Church-versus-conservatives battle is campaign financing. The conservatives say Church gets 95 percent of his money from out-of-state contributors. Church says he has collected $10,000 in Idaho this year "and we haven't even started."

Church says Saudi Arabia is helping bankroll his opponents because he has not acted in harmony with the Saudi Arabians since he took over the Foreign Relations Committee in January.

The anti-Church opponents say 80 percent of their funds come from Idaho conservatives.

The remainder of the campaign, Church says, will see more mudslinging from the opposition. "I think they onl know one way to practice thei politics and their ways won change."

DavanzoNamed To Science Bd.

Dr. John P. DaVanzo, professor of pharmacology at the East Carolina University School of Medicine, has been named to the N. C. Board of Science and Technology.

The 15-member board was established in 1963 to accelerate the state's economic growth by utilizing available scientific and technological resources. Gov. James B. Hunt Jr. serves as chairman.

Reorganized by the 1979 General Assembly, the board is responsible for identifying research needs in public and private agencies. Each year, it allocates approximately $400,000 to support and expand research projects conducted by North Carolina scientists.

DaVanzo has considerable experience organizing academic and industrial research groups. Before joining the ECU medical school faculty in 1976, he was vice president of research and development for a major international pharamaceutical company.

Southern Migration Pattern Has Turned Around

By JOAN MOWER

KINGSTREE, S.C. (UPI) — For thousands of poor people from the South, most of them black, the urban centers of the North are no longer viewed as the land of opportunity where they can claim their portion of the American dream.

The vast migration to the North with jobs in steel mills and auto factories following World War II appears to be ending.

Thousands of poor blacks, and whites, have returned home. And many others who would have gone north just 10 years ago are staying home now, satisfied with good jobs and a better lifestyle offered by the economic boom in the Sun Belt states.

While her six children ran in and out of her sparsely furnished house for which she pays $11 a month, Mrs. Ceasar talked softly about how glad she was to leave the "hustle and bustle" of New York City.

"I don't miss it a bit," said Mrs. Ceasar, a reed-thin, black woman clad in a worn housecoat and slippers.

"I was fed up," said the woman who fled South Carolina in 1966 because she "didn't want to spend the rest of my life working on the farm." But the crime in New York, the cold weather and the lack of open spaces for her children brought her back.

Mrs. Ceasar, a welfare mother who spent 12 years living in the slums of Bedford-Stuyvesant and Brooklyn, returned — without her husband — to poor, rural Williamsburg County last year.

For Mrs. Ceasar, New York City was not the land of opportunity so she came home. The Census Bureau says people like her represent a relatively new trend, poor people moving to the South for jobs and a better lifestyle.

There's also another trend, studies show, and this one is illustrated by the case of Linwood Cooper, who was born poor but got a college degree and found a decent job in the South.

Cooper, an articulate college graduate who grew up as the son of a domestic in this tobacco-growing county, is a case worker at the Department of Social Services' food stamp office — the same office Mrs. Ceaser visits.

With his $11,000 annual salary and his wife's $7,100 salary, life for the 28-year-old county employee is a lot different from the days when dinner sometimes consisted of "nothing but bread and water on the table."

Except for a stint in Columbia, S.C. where Cooper attended Benedict College — working full time to put himself through school — Cooper has spent his whole life in Williamsburg County.

The trends are documented in a 1978 study by Larry Long, "Interregional Migration of the Poor."

The study notes what appears to be a reversal of a pattern that began more than half a century ago when poor southerners, many of whom were black and politically disenfranchised, flocked to the urban Northeast in search of the American dream.

Long's study, which has a broad definition of the South including states as far north as Delaware and Maryland and as far West as Oklahoma, reveals that until 1971 more poor people were leaving the South than coming into the region.

But between 1971 and 1975, an "unrecognized shift" to net immigration of people below the poverty level began to occur. In 1975-77, the South had an estimated net immigration of 127,000.

Long noted that while the change in the migration figures stemmed in part from poor people coming into the South, the most important change resulted from the poor who opted to remain in their homeland.

"The change seems to come from the region's retaining more of its own poor rather than drawing off the poor of other regions," Long said.

An underlying factor in the decision of poor people to return to the South or stay in the region, which still has about 38 percent of the nation's poor, appears to be economics.

The migration trends coincide with the Sun Belt economic boom in the 1960s as industries relocated to the South where labor was cheaper and taxes were lower. Conversely, the North experienced a relative economic slowdown, Long said.

And, Long said, "the rate of reduction of poverty in the South has been greater than in the North."

The South's improved employment picture is borne out by census figures showing unemployment in 1978 at 6.9 percent in the Northeast, compared with 5.7 percent in the Southeast. For blacks, the jobless rate last year stood at 12.5 percent in the North, versus 10.4 percent in the South.

Jobs obviously play a key role in the migration trends, but many poor people apparently came South to improve their "quality of life," and return to their families.

Lilly Ceasar said her spanking clean, five-room unit in a new Kingstree housing project is the nicest place she has ever lived. The unit is small for seven people, but it is a far cry from the tenements she was used to in New York.

It was not Ben Brown's plan to come South, but his wife Shirley, who grew up in Williamsburg County, wanted to raise her daughter and son, ages 11 and 12, in a rural setting.

"There was an increase in crime in Philadelphia and gang warfare among the teen-agers," Brown said, in citing his family's reasons for migrating South last year.

Although Brown, 39, a supervisor at the state Department of Labor's migrant worker office, could not be classified as poor, he was the son of a housekeeper whose yearly was as little as $3,000. Shirley Brown remembers when her family's farm had outdoor toilets and no electricity.

To move South, Brown sold his home in Philadelphia and took a whopping pay cut — from about $18,000 to $11,000. But he had no trouble finding a job.

Adjusting to Kingstree, a town of 4,000, has not been that easy for Brown who misses the movies, the skating rinks and the fast pace of city life. Instead of paying for entertainment, he now works on his vegetable garden behind the house that the family rents from his wife's family on the homestead.

"The food is better and we save money," Brown said of his garden. Mrs. Brown, meanwhile, is glad to be back home with her relatives. "She never did like the pace of Philadelphia," he said.

Steven Suitts, the executive director of the Southern Regional Council, an Atlanta-based human rights group, thinks that the "jobs issue gives people the opportunity to move back, while the quality of life and things like that may be the motivation for the move."

While some people may be returning South to their roots, Joe Brooks, president of the Emergency Land Fund in Atlanta, said there is little indication they are going back to small, rural communities. The EFL is a group that is attempting to keep black-owned land in black hands.

"I think they are going to the cities ... following the jobs," Brooks said. "There're going to the suburban fringe, and they are not necessarily returning to their home place."

What the figures represent, in Suitts' opinion, is that that poor people — particularly blacks — have reached a point in history where they realize there is no specific land of opportunity.

Born in Hemingway, S.C., she left that city in 1964. In 1973, she came back to South Carolina and lives in Kingstree. "Jobs were hard to find up there," she said.

But in Williamsburg County, her situation has not improved. "It didn't work up north," she said in an interview in her living room which does not contain one piece of furniture.

Several months ago, Mrs. Wright's baby was badly burned when her trailer caught fire while she was in working in the fields, a social worker said.

"You've got to have some kind of education," the social worker said. "I know that girl and she probably couldn't get a job busing tables."

It is people like Mrs. Wright who pose a challenge to the southern states, Suitts asserts. "Southerners should beware of boasting about the fact that poor people want to come back here."

Southerners, he said, are taking a "short-term" approach when they single out the emphasis on economic development as their answer to problem's of the poor.

"We no longer have the extended family to fall back on. Now we depend on the social worker."

Electronic Game Craze

SPACE INVADERS, an electronic game from Japan, has sparked the attention and addiction of thousands of Americans. (UPI Photo)

By ROSALIND A. ROSSI

CHICAGO (UPI) — In a cool, dark bar a man sits transfixed in front of a pulsating, electronic screen, battling a machine in a fight he knows he can't win.

Nobody likes to be a loser, but when playing "Space Invaders," most gamesters don't seem to mind.

Space Invaders, an electronic game from Japan which first hit the United States in November, has sparked the attention and addiction of thousands of Americans. Distributors say it promises to be the hottest electronic game ever introduced to the coin industry.

"We've distributed many thousands, well beyond 20,000 of the machines," said Stan Jarocki, marketing director for Chicago's Midway Manufacturing Corp., U.S. distributor of the game. "It's been popular for 10 months and it looks like it's going to continue that way for another 10 months."

Jarocki said production of Space Invaders could eventually double or even quadruple that of other popular electronic games.

In Japan, pinball parlors are in fierce competition with Space Invaders parlors. Students cut classes to play during the day, businessmen drop by gamerooms on their way home, bar hostesses patronize them in the early morning hours. The craze has snowballed into Space Invader T-shirts, potato chips, even a player-rated Space Invaders Club.

In the United States, pinball parlor operators have started putting as many as five of the machines in a single gameroom — a revolutionary idea considering parlors try to offer as many different games as possible. The game also is very popular in Europe and is doing well in Canada, Jarocki said.

Slip in a quarter and 55 invaders from outer space appear in rows of 11, firing laser beams at the player's single cannon and moving in a pack toward him. The player gets three chances to dodge the fire by moving his weapon from side-to-side, hiding behind four barricades and "shooting to kill" the invaders above.

Points are racked up for every invader destroyed. Most beginners hit around the 400 mark but Jarocki said the highest records he knew of were 45,000 in the United States and 300,000 in Japan.

"The game has great retaining power," Jarocki said. "Many games are played on a time basis but with this particular game the player keeps on playing as long as he is not wiped out by the invaders.

"The game seems to be gaining player appeal as it goes on. It's phenomenal. People don't want to leave it once they get started. But you can't beat the game."

The game is "unbeatable" no matter how great a player's skill, the machine challenges him with more space invaders. And the better he is, the faster they attack.

Part of the game's fascination may be its intricate detail and pulsating sound — beeps and whines which quicken and heighten as invaders approach their target.

"I walked into a really crowded bar one night and I didn't even have to ask whether or not they had a Space Invaders machine," said Kent McDill, 23, a Chicagoan who spent at least $60 on the game in six months. "I could hear that sound clear across the room."

McDill is one of the game's many players who perceive it as an electronic fight for survival.

"It presents a life and death situation to you," McDill said. "I identify very much with that little man of mine. When it gets destroyed, I get very upset. When you really get into the game, your man becomes a part of you and you really fight not to get shot."

Several enthusiasts have written distributors to tell them the tricks of the game, Jarocki said.

"People have gotten into it and really critique it and even they have not stopped playing it," he said. "It's like a cult of players has developed around the game. It's unbelievable."

"I've played other electronic games but they always got boring," said Ken Beadling, 21, of Rolling Meadows, Ill. "For some reason Space Invaders is really addicting. I usually wouldn't wait around to play a game but I would for this."

Jarocki said the cost of the game is comparable to other electronic games and that Midway, a wholly owned subsidiary of Bally Manufacturing, began marketing it in pinball parlors and bars in the nation's major cities.

"But now there is no area in the United States that is immune to the popularity of Space Invaders," he said.

How Tar Heel Representatives, Senators Voted

HOUSE

PAY RAISE — The House defeated, 191 for and 219 against, an appropriations measure (HJ Res 399), one provision of which gave congressmen and some 20,000 other top federal officials their first raise since 1977. Salaries of House members and senators would have gone from $57,5000 to $61,525, a seven per cent hike.

The Democratic leadership had maneuvered to prevent a record vote directly on the proposed pay raise. The vote on final passage of HJ Res 399 presented the only opportunity opponents had to go on record in opposition to the raise. While virtually all members voting "nay" were against the pay hike, those voting "yea" may or may not have favored the raise.

Rep. Robert Michel, R-Ill., who favored the raise, said he tells his constituents: "If you want a two-bit congressman' get one. But I consider myself a frist-class congressman worthy of a pay raise once in a while."

Rep. Gerald Soloman, R-N.Y., an opponent, said: "We are the cause of rampant inflation today, and here we sit asking ourselves to accept on merit a seven per cent pay rates."

Members voting "nay" were opposed to the $4,025 annual raise.

Reps. Walter Jones, D-1, Ike Andrews, D-4, Richardson Preyer, D-6 Charles Rose, D-7, W.G. Hefner, D-8, James Martin, R-9, and James Broyhill, R-10, voted "yea."

AIRBAGS — The House adopted, 228 for and 158 against, an amendment to prevent the Department of Transportation from spending money in fiscal 1980 to implement airbag regulations. The amendment does not interfere with DOT's plan to require in the early 1980's that all cars sold in the U.S. be equipped with "passive restraints" in the form of airbags or automatic seat belts. The vote came during debate on an appropriations bill (HR 4440) later passed and sent to the Senate.

Reps. James Broyhill, R-N.C., a supporter, said that "we need more research into passive restraints in general and airbags in specific....Ultimately, I suppose, the Congress could pass a bill requiring all Americans to drive tanks if you really want to see crash-proof vehicles."

Rep. Ricahrdson Preyer, D-N.C. ' an opponent, called the amendment "a thinly veiled attempt to chip away at the confidence that has been built up in these lifesaving devices over more than ten years of intensive and extremely thorough research."

Virtually all members voting "yea" are unenthusiastic about or flatly oppose the installation of airbags in autos sold in the U.S.

Neal and Preyer voted "nay."

Rose did not vote.

BUDGET — The House the congressional master plan (H Con Res 186) for the fiscal 1980 budget. In part, the resolution was to have set binding ceilings for spending and the annual deficit. Committees would have had to obey it in their action on spending bills. Most critics thought the resolution's $29.3 billion deficit was too inflationary.

Rep. Robert Gianimo, D-Conn., a supporter, said the deficit figure is "higher than many of us would like, much higher. But it does show a continuing decline in deficits from the binding budget resolutions adopted in previous years."

Rep. Ralph Regula, R-Ohio, an opponent, said: "Unless the federal government provides leadership and discipline in its own spending habits...we are not going to eliminate that expectation that inflation will continue."

Neal, Martin and Broyhill voted "nay."

SENATE

DEFENSE BUDGET — By a vote of 55 for and 42 against, the Senate endorsed an increase in defense spending of five per cent, after adjustment for inflation, in each of 1981 and 1982. This would put the fiscal 1982 defense budget at $163.3 billion. The vote is advisory and would actually raise spending only if confirmed in later authorization and appropriation bills. It occurred during debate on a budget resolution (S Con Res 36) covering fiscal years 1980, 1981 and 1982.

Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., a supporter, said: "The SALT II debate has focused the nation's awareness on the fact that our national defense budget is simply not adequate, not just in the area of strategic forces but in theater nuclear capacity and conventional capacity as well."

Sen. Edward Muskie, D-Me., said: "I am concerned about our national security, but I view (it) as involving something more than our arms capability...I think this country is on the threshold of the greatest danger to the economy in the form of inflation that I have ever experienced in my lifetime."

Senators voting "yea" favored a five per cent hike in defense spending in 1981 and 1982.

Sen. Robert Morgan, D, and Jesse Helms, R, voted "yea."

FIRM IRRIGATION — The Senate killed, 50 for and 28 against, a proposal to limit 960 acres the amount of federally-irrigated land that a farm may own or lease. Later, the Senate set 1,280 acres as the maximum, but allowed some three per cent of the nation's farm to exceed that limit. Most of the exception are large agribusiness farms in California and Arizona. The bill (S 14) under debate was a revision of the Reclamation Act of 1902, a law originally designed to use public money to develop the dry lands of the West. A key issue in this vote was how much federal irrigation help the large corporate farms should receive.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, a supporter of killing the 960-acre limit to make way for a higher limit, said: "Considering the spiraling costs facing the farmer today and looking ahead to the future, it was the considered judgment of the (Energy and Natural Resources) committee that 1,280 acres constituted a reasonable maximum farm unit to be served by reclamation water during the life of any given reclamation project."

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., the sponsor, said his amendment "is not unreasonable" because "in point of fact, some 91 per cent of western states' irrigated farms consist of less than 500 acres of irrigation.

GOP PLAN — The Senate rejected, 36 for and 61 against, a Republican plan to attack the nation's economic problems with a large tax cut coupled with restraints on federal spending. The plan was proposed as an amendment to the budget resolution (S Con Res 36; see defense budget vote above). The GOP projected it would have cut taxes in fiscal 1980 by $16.7 billion, cut spending in all acreas but defense by $15 billion, and lowered the fiscal 1980 budget deficit to about $27 billion.

Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., a sponsor of the amendment, said: "The basic question is a very fundamental one. That is, how much money do we want in the hands of the government and how much money do we want in the rest of the country?" This amendment, he added, would put more money in the hands of the people.

Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., an opponent, said: "Those who urge tax cuts accompanied by offsetting spending cuts have a responsibility to explain to the American people specifically which programs they expect to cut." He said the GOP had failed to specify.

'Report Sale Of Feeder Pigs

A total of 15,279 feeder pigs were sold on 14 state graded sales during the week of Sept. 17, according to the Market News Service of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture. Prices were mostly 75 cents to $3.25 higher on 40-80 pound US 1-2 pigs. US 1-2 pigs weighing 40-50 pounds averaged $60.50 per 100 pounds, with No. 3's, $55.68; 50-60 pound 1-2 pigs averaged $56.44, No. 3's, $47.96; 60-70 pound 1-2 pigs, $52.14, No. 3's, $44.90; 70-80 pound 1-2's, $46.78, No. 3's, $41.67.

PATENTS FOR HENRY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Henry Ford was granted 161 patents during his lifetime, including the important patent No. 610,040 for a "gasolene carburetor" which he obtained on Aug. 30, 1898, that helped to spur the automotive industry.

The Disabled Can Dress Like Others

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Children with physical disabilities have the same basic emotional needs as other children, and their wearing apparel should be as nearly like that of their peers as possible, believes an expert in the field of clothing for such children.

"It's another means of saying, 'I'm not different'," says Eleanor Boettke Hotte, whose revised edition of "Self-Help Clothing for Children Who Have Physical Disabilities" was recently published by the National Easter Seal Society.

"From a very early age clothing is part of their near environment, and the child tends to associate himself with his clothes," she adds. "Small children can become disturbed if they are forced to wear something they have negative feelings about."

Clothes can be attractive as well as suited to the special needs of the child if they are selected with care, the former University of Connecticut home economics and family studies professor said in an interview.

"The cut of the garment is terribly important," she points out. "Garments should be loose in styling, but not so loose that they become a danger to the individual. The safety factor is important and often overlooked.

"Sleeves, like trouser legs, are 'tunnels' and are difficult areas to manipulate. If armholes are tight and narrow, it's hard to get an arm through," notes Mrs. Hotte, who favors raglan sleeves to alleviate the problem.

Openings should be selected with the physical limitation in mind, she advises, and the opening in a shirt or blouse should be in the front center, "located so you can look down and see it. Also, it's easier to move the arms forward to work fastenings than backward.

"Fasteners are big stumbling blocks," Mrs. Hotte continues. "Zippers work very well provided they have pull tabs that are easy for people who have hand or arm weakness to grasp.

"Buttons function fairly well provided they are large enough to be grasped. Velcro is used a great deal and is satisfactory. Gripper snaps work for some people, but if there's lack of strength in the hand, it's sometimes difficult to pull them apart. Regular snaps are less useful."

Although there are some mail-order houses that offer modified clothing, they cater mostly to adults, says Mrs. Hotte. She suggests that ready-made garments can be altered to suit individual requirements by changing fasteners, opening seams and inserting zippers, elasticizing waists and adding fullness where needed.

Often clothing must be reinforced — under the arms for a crutch user, at the elbows when they're used as levers to lift the body, and at the knees for a brace wearer or one who moves by crawling, she explains.

"The whole process of dressing is rather complicated," says Mrs. Hotte, who suggests teaching the undressing procedure first, since it is easier. "It's best to start in a somewhat sequential manner, from the easiest to the more difficult. Begin with something they can achieve so you don't create frustration.

"Have patience and give the child a chance to develop the kind of motor coordination and control he needs for dressing skills," she urges. "Give some guidance and help if it's needed, but first try verbal rather than physical help. Break the steps down into short instructions — the shorter the terms, the less complicated the directions, the greater the success."

Mrs. Hotte, 55, who lives in Eastford, Conn., became interested in the field when a study of handicapped homemakers' child-care problems showed that dressing children was a frequently mentioned difficulty.

She developed wardrobes for preschoolers that had self-help features, and eventually got involved in Easter Seal work. The current pamphlet is a new version of an earlier one she wrote in collaboration with two colleagues in 1962.

"This is an update based on what my students had been doing working with children and what I learned from listening to people, attending conferences and holding discussions with children and adults with physical limitations," she says.

OUR FOOD PRICES ARE LOWER

Our food prices are lower than ever before. With Greenville's Lowest meat prices plus every day low prices on over 500 food items Overton's is the place to shop. We are competitive with any food store in this area regardless of size. We are now buying from one of the largest food wholesalers in North Carolina which makes it possible for us to obtain merchandise at the same cost that the larger chains pay. This makes our prices even lower. We have no games, no stamps, no gimmicks, no frills—we take the money that we would have spent for games, stamps, etc... and give it back to you through aggressive pricing, That way everybody wins. With super low prices and super fast service, isn't that what food shopping is all about? Your Master Charge or VISA cards are always welcome at Overton's. We also gladly accept WIC vouchers and federal food stamps. Try Overton's today. We will treat you to a wonderful adventure in food shopping.

Kroger Sav-on garden

It's Easy Pickin' In The

Shop with your eyes. . .and get more for your food dollar! At Kroger, you'll find many informational aids, planned to help you shop and save. In the produce department, you'll find "buy and care" information printed on plastic bags, as well as signs on unusual produce, such as Oriental vegetables. And a helpful attendant who can answer your produce questions. In the Kroger garden, you select just what you want, one tomato or twenty, one peach or a bushel. Whatever your choice, you can count on quality. . .because we guarantee total satisfaction. Kroger gardeners will be happy to help you with your selection. Use the shopping information in your Kroger supermarket. . .and save!
