Pope Begins Peace Pilgrimage To Ireland, U.S.

By DONALD O'HIGGINS
DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI) — Pope John Paul II embarked on a historic peace pilgrimage to Ireland and the United States Saturday and begged Catholics and Protestants "on my knees" to end murder and bloodshed in Ulster.

At Drogheda near the northern border, the pope — without mentioning the Irish Republican Army — asked the warring factions to "walk the path of reconciliation and peace" and lashed out at "the generation of violent men."

"On my knees I beg you to turn away from the paths of violence and to return to the ways of peace," he said, urging the Irish people to "attempt the seemingly impossible to put an end to the intolerable."

And, he said, let "nobody ever call murder by any other name than murder."

"It is Jesus himself who said: all who take the sword will perish by the sword. This is the word of God and it commands the generation of violent men to desist from hatred and violence and to repent..."

Amid security unprecedented in Irish history, John Paul became the first pope to visit the land where St. Patrick spread Christ's word. He knelt to kiss the Irish soil, then plunged without hesitation into the subject of sectarian strife that has claimed more than 2,000 lives this decade.

The pope leaves Ireland Monday for a six-day, six-city tour of the United States.

Tuesday he will broaden his peace initiative in a speech at the United Nations.

The pope's original plans to visit Northern Ireland were scrubbed when Lord Mountbatten died last month in a terrorist bombing. But at Drogheda he was within 30 miles of the border and addressed hundreds of thousands of Catholics who crossed to the south.

At Dublin's Phoenix Park earlier he told 12 million pilgrims — nearly a third of Ireland's population:

"When the moral fiber of a nation is weakened, when the sense of personal responsibility is diminished, then the door is open for the justification of injustices, and for the manipulation of the many by the few."

It was at the ancient walled city of Drogheda — site of the 1649 battle in which Oliver Cromwell's Protestant troops slaughtered Irish Roman Catholics — that the pope had harsh words for those responsible for a decade of death and terror.

"Peace cannot be established by violence,"

John Paul said. "Peace can never flourish in a climate of terror, intimidation and death."

"I proclaim... that violence is evil, that violence is unacceptable as a solution to problems, that violence is unworthy of man."

"Violence is a lie, for it goes against the truth of our faith, the truth of our humanity. Violence destroys what it claims to defend... violence is a crime against humanity."

Although his main mission was peace, at the Dublin park mass John Paul strongly defended the conservative traditions of the church against abortion, divorce and homosexuality in a world abounding with "self-indulgence" and "pervading materialism."

The pope urged his flock to stick by "the most sacred principles" he said now "are being hollowed-out by false pretenses concerning freedom, the sacredness of life, the indissolubility of marriage, the true sense of human sexuality."

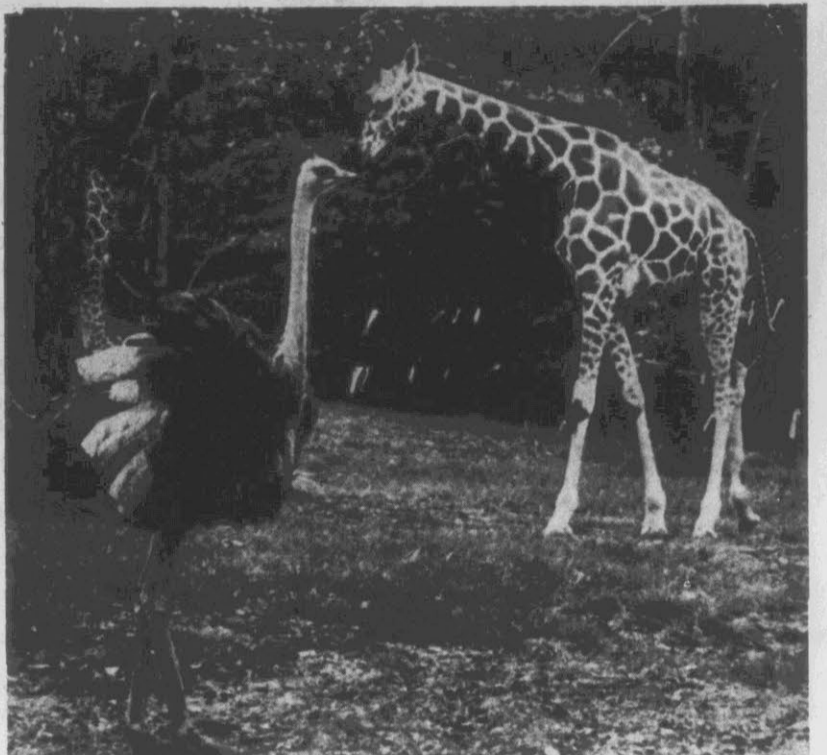

already with us is the temptation to accept as true freedom what in reality is only a new form of slavery."

The mass, which attracted the largest turnout of any event in Ireland's history, followed a tumultuous airport reception highlighted by Irishmen and women tossing hats in the air and dancing impromptu jigs to celebrate the arrival of the 59-year-old Polish pope.

A grandmotherly woman twirled her red tweed skirt in a half-jig and sang, "God bless this day for Ireland."

School children waved yellow and white papal flags; the pope embraced a tawny-haired girl who gave him a bouquet of roses; mothers thrust infants forward for a papal kiss; and young, red-haired Tim O'Leary skimmed his best hat over the airport crowd and shouted "God be with you."

Shortly before the pope left Rome, a man with a pistol was arrested at Leonardo da Vinci airport, John Paul was not in danger, police said, since the incident occurred in a different terminal.

Test Tube Baby Lab Is Vetoed

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Hospital officials are shocked and right-to-life groups delighted at the Virginia health commissioner's veto of plans for the nation's first test tube baby laboratory at Norfolk General Hospital.

Despite strong opposition, the proposed in-vitro ("in glass") lab already had received approval from the Eastern Virginia Health Systems Agency (EVHSA).

The agency sent the proposal last week to State Health Commissioner James Kenley for final approval — and on Friday, Kenley denied the permit necessary for the laboratory.

His decision did not permanently kill the proposal.

Kenley cited "the need to resolve questions and issues regarding the scope of the project," and recommended Norfolk General apply for state approval under a more complicated process called "Standard Review."

"The in-vitro lab project appears to be only one component in a comprehensive infertility treatment program," Kenley said in a letter to Norfolk General Administrator David Bernd.

The Standard Review process would provide for review of statewide implications of the laboratory by the Virginia Statewide Health Coordinating Council, Kenley said.

Mike Keating, director of public relations for Norfolk General, said Saturday the hospital had informal notification of the commissioner's decision although it had not yet received his letter.

Pending formal notification of Kenley's veto, Keating said, the hospital will probably re-file under the standard review process.

"We were very, very surprised by the decision," he added.

An official in the human resources division of the Virginia Department of Health said Kenley's decision not to follow EVHSA's advice was unusual.

"About 97 to 98 percent of the time, he follows their recommendations," the official said.

Hunt Cancels Conference Trip

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt, who this week asked state employees to cut back on their travel expenses, canceled his plans Saturday to attend the Southern Governors Conference in New Orleans.

Hunt's deputy press secretary, Stephanie Bass, said the Governor decided not to attend the meeting "because he felt like the agenda of the conference didn't justify spending the money."

The governor was scheduled to leave Raleigh today for the annual conference, and was to remain in New Orleans until it concludes on Wednesday.

"I am asking state government employees to limit their travel to what is essential for an agency to do its job," Hunt said in a prepared statement Saturday.

Millions To See The Pope

Multitudes, at least 10 million people by best estimates, will line streets and attend masses for a glimpse of Pope John Paul II during his historic tour of six American cities this week.

The largest crowds are expected at New York for the pope's visit Tuesday and Wednesday.

Awards For Rescue Squad

The Greenville Rescue Squad took first place in heavy duty rescue competition and third place for first aid competition at the 23rd Annual Convention of the North Carolina State Association of Rescue Squads Saturday in Asheboro.

They placed fourth in international heavy duty rescue competition last month in Columbus, Ohio after winning the international championship for the past two years.

Last Stop

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — One of two passenger trains that serves Raleigh will make its last stop in the city Monday.

The Champion, which runs from New York to Florida, will be combined with the Silver Meteor on another New York-Florida run. The train will stop in Rocky Mount instead of Raleigh.

African Children Reportedly Murdered

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH
Associated Press Writer

BANGUI, Central African Republic (AP) — At least two survivors of an April massacre in Bangui's Ngaragba Prison say that they saw former Emperor Bokassa I personally kill several young boys by striking them on the back of the skull with his ivory-encrusted ebony cane.

Simon Jeudi and Jules Bao, both students, said they were among hundreds of youngsters aged 6 to 20 rounded up on April 19 by Bokassa's police and troops and taken to the prison or to various police stations in the Central African capital.

Their accounts and those of others interviewed about the incident could not be officially or independently confirmed.

Jeudi, 18, told this correspondent he was herded with some 40 other children into a windowless cell while being beaten by the guards with clubs and rifle butts.

"It was the youngest and smallest ones that suffered the most," he said. "Many of them suffocated in the crush of prisoners in my cell. Many others died of terrible head injuries."

"I myself had my left forearm broken, a bad wound in my right temple and a very painful injury in the small of my back that still hurts now, six months later. It was caused when a soldier trampled on my body lying on the ground."

"I survived only because I pretended to be dead."

Jeudi and Bao, 19, said the mass arrests came at the climax of several months of student agitation against the self-crowned emperor, who tried to force all students to wear uniforms made by a company controlled by his wife, Empress Catherine. It was this incident that prompted France to send in troops to support the overthrow of Bokassa in a coup earlier this month.

A French woman teacher at Bao's school, the Pope Pius XII College, recalled that she pleaded with the Education Ministry in January to ease the uniform requirement

"They just refused to listen to me," she said.

There is no firm count of how many children died in the Bangui massacre. Amnesty International, the London-based human rights organization which revealed it first, and an African commission of inquiry estimated that about 100 were killed.

In Bangui, diplomats of various Western nations all said they were certain at least 100 died, and some sources said this was a conservative figure.

Several students had been killed when police opened fire on an anti-uniform demonstration in January. The killings intensified the agitation. Jeudi and Bao said, and by April the police and students "were practically in a state of war."

In mid-April, four armed plainclothes men tried to infiltrate a strategy meeting held by the students, Jeudi recalled.

"We spotted them at once and tried to push them out. When they pulled their guns, we overpowered them, stripped them naked and sent them out into the street, telling them to report back to their emperor in that condition."

The two students said they assumed it was this incident which aroused the emperor and led him to order the mass arrests of schoolchildren and students.

"Just after nightfall on April 19, I was in my uncle's house in Bangui with my half-brother, Marcel Houlamy," Jeudi said.

"A group of soldiers came in trucks, going from house to house arresting all the children they could find. Some hid in wardrobes or under beds and others escaped through the windows."

"My brother and I were both caught, but he was lucky because they took him to a police station where he was ill-treated but not injured."

Open Meetings Law

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A new state open meetings law takes effect Monday after nearly two years of debate and dispute by the press, legislators and local government leaders.

It replaces a more ambiguous law passed in 1971 requiring most meetings by public boards and commissions to be held in the open. And it lists in greater details the exceptions permitted for secret meetings.

Rabid Bats

WAXHAW, N.C. (AP) — State health officials have verified that two bats found Monday in a Union County community had rabies.

The bats were found by William and Diana Whipple in their driveway. "They were definitely ill," Whipple said.

The Union County Health Department sent the bats to Raleigh for tests, and rabies was confirmed. The bats are the only rabid bats found in the county recently. A rabid bat was found in Gaston County earlier this month but no bites have been reported.

The final version was passed by the General Assembly in May after 18 months of study by a special commission, and after undergoing major legislative surgery for four months.

But in the inevitable press-versus-government struggle over access to government, both sides say they are satisfied — though not entirely so — with the final result.

"We tried not to put ourselves in the context of municipal governments against the press," said Ernest Ball, lawyer and lobbyist for the N.C. League of Municipalities, which represents more than 400 city and town governments in the state.

"But I think by and large, municipal governing bodies gained, in several matters, the ability to discuss plans in executive session," he added.

On the other side a victory has been claimed also.

"I think it's a much better law than we had on the books before," said Joe Doster, publisher of the Winston-Salem Journal and head of the N.C. Press Association's legislative committee.

"The major thing is we clarify some of the confusion and ambiguities that have been in the law for years. Both the public and public officials will be able to abide by the law with less confusion."

One of the effects of the new law will be to include more public boards and commissions in state and local governments under the openness requirements.

Board of Governors. On the local government level, it excluded planning boards and similar bodies. The new law uses different language to widen the coverage again to include those boards and more.

In the state Department of Public Instruction, for example, spokesman Tom I. Davis says the new law will cover 35 advisory boards that have met for years without notice. In the state Department of Administration there are 30 to 40 similar task forces that will be covered.

"We're just going to have to pay more attention to it than we have before, which really isn't too bad an idea," Davis said.

The law still excludes two powerful state groups: the Advisory Budget Commission and the Council of State. Their members asked for and won renewed exemptions from the General Assembly, over protests of press groups.

The largest changes that will come with the new law Oct. 1 lie in the circumstances for which public bodies may legally hold executive sessions, excluding the public.

Where the old law listed several general conditions for a closed session, the new law lists 18 specific reasons for which a public body may exclude the public.

Among them are discussions of property purchases, litigation, doctors and patients, prison inmates, industrial recruitment and public employee performance. Also included are consultations with attorneys, consideration of contractors, and both consideration and action on contingency plans for dealing with strikes and riots.

held are greatly expanded under this law," said Ball.

But most of the reasons are more narrowly drawn than before, and they bring under the openness requirement meetings that previously claimed exemption — such as public hospital boards.

"They were using some broader language to close up most of those things and more," Doster said. "Hospitals had been practically exempt from the whole law before."

"We opened up more than we closed, even on the exceptions," he added.

Before a board can exclude the public, it must vote to do so while in an open session, the new law says. The board must also state a reason for the secrecy.

The new measure also carries requirements that the press and public be notified of regularly scheduled meetings and specially called meetings. Private citizens can request notice by mail about a government group's meetings, but must pay an annual fee of $10 a year.

The new law provides mild sanctions for its abuse by public bodies, and also for frivolous civil suits against public boards.

Civil injunctions may be sought by anyone to stop continuing violations of the law. If the plaintiff proves the violation was willful, a court may require that the government board pay the other side's attorney fees. And if the suit is found frivolous, the plaintiff may be forced to pay the government's attorney fees.

But the law does not include criminal sanctions, which some groups wanted. And it does not include a provision allowing the court to rule void any action taken during an illegal secret meeting.

Former U.S. Beauty Queen Among Dead In Austrian Fire

DEAD IN FIRE... Ellen Irene Wight, 24, Miss Oklahoma of 1977, is dead of injuries sustained after she jumped from the window of a blazing hotel in Vienna, Austria. (AP Laserphoto)

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The hotel fire that killed a U.S. beauty queen, two other Americans and 22 Europeans started in a wastepaper basket in the reception area, but the cause has not been determined so far, police said today.

However, one of those who escaped unharmed, Foster M. Pratt of Bath, Maine, said he saw no sprinkler system or fire alarms in the hotel.

From the wastepaper basket the blaze raced through hallways and the elevator shaft to the upper floors of the four-story Am Augarten Hotel on Friday, being hurried along by highly inflammable wall and floor covering.

Not only did the material burn quickly, it also set off poisonous fumes, which killed most of the victims before they even realized what happened.

Nearly all Austrian papers asked how the fire, the worst in Austria since World War II, could have occurred. They said the material — PVC — which is also used in schools and hospitals, is still legal.

Arbeiterzeitung, the newspaper of the ruling Socialist Party, said: "Twenty-five persons suffocated painfully, although it was known for a long time that PVC floor and wall coverings set free poisonous fumes as soon as they start burning. The plastic material, however, is still available and being used thousands of times."

Black flags flew from Vienna's city hall to mourn the death of the hotel victims, including tour guide Ellen Wight, 24, a former Miss Oklahoma from Bath, Maine, who planned to be married next month. She died leaping from an upper floor of the hotel.

The two other Americans who died were Donald L. Fraser, 72, and his wife Frances, 71, who moved to Kennebunk, Maine, from Marion, Mass., last year.

They were part of a tour sponsored by the travel company run by Miss Wight's parents, who said the group changed hotels at the last minute.

Ten members of the 32-member group were hospitalized, mainly for smoke inhalation. They and the others were expected to fly home in the next few days.

Four Accidents Listed

An estimated $2,975 in property damage was the result of four traffic accidents here Friday, according to police investigations.

At approximately 3:50 p.m., a vehicle driven by Toni Rembold Dooley, 1711 Treemont Dr., collided on 10th Street with a vehicle driven by Mack Kinsey Godley, Rt. 3, Box 299A. Dooley was reportedly injured and also reportedly was not taken to the hospital.

Both Dooley and Godley were charged with violations. According to Police reports, Dooley was charged with a safe movement violation and Godley with no operator's license and failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident.

Damage to the Dooley vehicle was estimated at $500 and $600 to the Godley vehicle.

About 7:05 p.m., a vehicle driven by Ronnie Brown, 510 Contentnea St., collided on Memorial Drive with a vehicle driven by Brenda Carmon Lyons, 803 Englewood Pl., Ayden. Damage to the Brown vehicle was estimated at $600 and $800 to the Lyons vehicle.

About 7:23 p.m., a vehicle driven by Gritton Lee Mills, 100 E. Railroad St., Bethel, collided with a vehicle driven by Paula Lee Ross, Rt. 8, Box 539. Ross was charged with improper tires. Damage to both vehicles was estimated at $200 each.

About 7:30 p.m., a vehicle driven by Gregory G. Bullock, Rt. 6, Box 171A, collided on Cotanche Street with a vehicle driven by Willie V. Purvis, 1920 Kennedy Circle. Purvis was charged with no lights on his bicycle. Damage to the Bullock vehicle was estimated at $50 and to Purvis' vehicle $25.

Carter Consults Specialists On Troops In Cuba

By JUAN J. WALTE
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter Saturday consulted with his top foreign policy advisers, three former secretaries of state and other big-name specialists on the standoff with Russia over Soviet troops in Cuba.

White House spokesman Jerry Schecter said the group did not have a formal report to give the president, but was called in for an exchange of views. Among those at the session were Henry Kissinger, Dean Rusk and William Rogers — who served as secretaries of state under presidents Gerald Ford, Richard Nixon, Lyndon Johnson and John Kennedy. The consultations lasted about 90 minutes, and afterwards long-time presidential adviser Clark Clifford said there was an "understanding" among participants not to comment publicly. Carter has asked for television time at 9 p.m. EDT Monday to explain the troops controversy to the nation.

The United States has told the Kremlin U.S. intelligence discovered some 3,000 Soviet combat troops in Cuba recently. Soviet leaders denied there were any combat troops in Cuba, saying it has had only military advisers in Cuba since the 1962 missile crisis.

On Friday, Cuban President Fidel Castro invited American reporters to Havana to say flatly there is no Soviet combat brigade in his country and to accuse Carter of creating a crisis because of his own problems.

Schecter offered no direct response to Castro's comments. "The administration's position is that we have pointed out the existence of a Soviet combat brigade in Cuba and President Carter will address himself to the nation on the subject Monday night," Schecter said.

Carter summoned his newly formed group of advisers to the White House because discussions with the Russians broke off Thursday. The last meeting was between Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in New York and it ended with "inconclusive" results.

There was speculation Saturday that Vance had held hold another in a series of meetings with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin, but the State Department said such a session was "not on the secretary's schedule for today" and declined further comment.

The special advisers who talked with Carter at the White House met separately beforehand with the president's top foreign policy advisers, including Vance, Defense Secretary Harold Brown, CIA Director Stansfield Turner and White House attorney Lloyd Cutler.

Besides Clifford, the advisory group included former Energy Secretary James Schlesinger; former CIA Director John McCone; former U.N. ambassadors George Ball and William Scranton; former national security affairs adviser negotiator Sol Linowitz; former McGeorge Bundy and Brent Ambassador Averill Harriman; Scowcroft; former deputy defense secretary David Packard, Nicholas Katzenbach and former arms control negotiator former Deputy Defense Secretary Roswell Gilpatrick.

News Briefs

Wants Office In Harlem

NEW YORK (AP) — Zehdi Terzi, the Palestine Liberation Organization's U.N. observer, says he hopes soon to open a new office in Harlem. "Come live in Harlem," someone yelled Friday after Terzi addressed some 100 members of the Black New York Action Committee at a Harlem church. Terzi, whose said he is losing his mid-town office to demolition, said his lawyer was attempting to find space in the north Manhattan neighborhood for a new PLO office. It was a meeting in July that Terzi had with Andrew Young that led to Young's resignation as U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations. It also led to new sympathy between the PLO and American blacks.

New Teachers Strike

Spokane, Wash., teachers went back to work while a strike by 600 teachers in Jasper, Ala., was near a settlement after a group of local businessmen agreed to pay to rehire 42 fired educators. Meanwhile, a new strike began in Deer Park, N.Y., as more than 18,000 teachers walked picket lines in nine states. More than 355,000 pupils were affected. Details of the Jasper arrangement were not disclosed, but Superintendent John T. Brown said Friday the financial aid would be enough to rehire the non-tenured teachers dismissed earlier in a cost-cutting move. That action led to the strike Sept. 7.

Castro Makes Accusations

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Cuban President Fidel Castro accused President Carter of being "dishonest, immoral and insincere" and claimed he has created "an artificial crisis" over the presence of Soviet troops in Cuba, the Cuban news agency reported. The Soviet troops are part of a "military instruction center installed in Cuba 17 years ago, and both the CIA and former U.S. administrations knew it," Castro declared Friday in his first public rebuttal to U.S. criticism of the stationing of Soviet combat troops on the Caribbean island.

More Haitian Refugees Rescued

MIAMI (AP) — The U.S. Coast Guard has shepherded 87 more Haitian refugees to U.S. shores. The refugees had been trying to reach the United States aboard two small, rickety wooden sailboats. One sailboat, a 30-footer crowded with 36 men, women and children, was spotted by private boats Friday off Port Everglades, near Fort Lauderdale, and were towed by a cutter to a Coast Guard station at the port. They said they were at sea for 21 days. Another cutter, the Cape York, was sent to the Cay Sal Banks between the Bahamas and northeast Cuba on Friday to pick up 51 Haitians crammed aboard a 21-foot sailboat.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A major insurer of Smith-Douglass Inc. has taken steps to speed insurance claim settlements to farmers whose crops were damaged by herbicide-contaminated fertilizer, a state Insurance Department official said Friday.

Carter, Portillo In Agreement On Issues

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter and Mexico's Jose Lopez Portillo concluded two days of friendly talks Saturday by announcing their agreement to cooperate on matters involving energy, environment and illegal aliens. Their foreign policy discussions also touched briefly on the issue of Soviet troops in Cuba, a White House spokesman said. And the two presidents formally praised the new democratic trend in Nicaragua. Before Lopez Portillo departed for Miami, Fla., both men described their meetings as "friendly and constructive" talks between good neighbors. "The visit ... served to convince our two people that we can live in a state of harmony, mutual purpose, friendship and cooperation," said Carter. "The lines of communication are alive and working in a framework of friendship and deep understanding," Lopez Portillo commented. A two-page joint statement issued at the end of Lopez Portillo's state visit spells out the bilateral agreement, talks at length about Nicaragua and only hints at the fact that the two leaders talked about Cuba. But a White House spokesman said Lopez Portillo, in the last of two meetings, did talk with Carter for about 10 minutes about the Soviet troops in Cuba. He declined to characterize the tone of that conversation or the Mexican reaction.

Disaster Areas Named

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter Saturday declared parts of Virginia, North Carolina and Florida major disaster areas because of severe storms and flooding earlier this month. The action entitles Virginia, North Carolina and Florida to use federal funds in relief and recovery efforts in designated areas of those states. Declared disaster areas were Surry County in North Carolina, Patrick County in Virginia and Hillsborough County in Florida. Virginia and North Carolina were hit by storms and flooding during the period beginning Sept. 21 and Florida during the period beginning Sept. 14.

Two Charged In Murder Of Clerk

WASHINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Two men have been charged with first-degree murder in the shooting death Thursday of a convenience-store clerk, police said Saturday. David Earl Miller, 37, was arrested Friday, and Roland Riley Williams, 24, was arrested Saturday, both on charges of murder and armed robbery, said police Capt. Harry Stokes. James Perry Ebron, 22, of Belhaven was found shot in the head at a Stop-N-Go convenience store in Washington early Thursday morning. It was the clerk's third night on the job. Stokes said Miller and Williams were being held without bond in the Beaufort County Jail.

Elections Pose Big Changes

October will be on us this week, and, if some cool nights haven't tipped it off, fall is here.

With fall comes a municipal election in Greenville. Simply because several present members of the council are not seeking re-election there will be the largest turn-over of council members in some time.

Thus, no matter how the Oct. 9 election turns out some new faces will appear on the City Council, and new minds will grapple with the problems that face our city.

Fortunately our problems are of the growing pains kind. Rather than wrestling with troubles of vast unemployment and a weak economy, Greenville has the task of determining how to grapple with the growth we are experiencing.

There are problems nevertheless. New streets and thoroughfares are needed to handle the ever increasing traffic loads. We are in the process of providing new water and sewage treatment facilities. Providing adequate housing for all our citizens is still an important priority.

We need leadership to make our people proud of our city, and dedicated to keeping it clean and orderly. We need respect for property, hopefully eliminating the vandalism which costs taxpayers and individuals so much.

A new mayor and council will have plenty to occupy them when they take office later this year.

On The Other, No Pay For Some

Members of the House of Representatives voted themselves a 5.5 percent pay raise recently, an action the Senate has yet to go with.

Congressmen would be making $60,700 annually effective Oct. 1.

Here's a thought. Chrysler top executives eliminated their salaries recently in view of the dire financial problems that firm faces.

Considering the economic troubles of the government and the nation, shouldn't congressmen consider doing the same thing?

"Some dumb judge callin' ME unconstitutional? Why, dat's downright un-American!"

THIS AFTERNOON Silly Season Hits Raleigh

By BILL NOBLITT
 RALEIGH — Maybe it's just the silly season for Raleigh politics and practitioners of the art, but a recent press conference featuring Gov. Jim Hunt took on the unreal quality of a badly written situation comedy on television.

The subject was serious enough: a Tar Heel tobacco delegation to mainland China to reestablish trade contact.

The questioning and answering, edited for brevity and sense, went something like this:

Reporter: "Who's going with you?"

Governor: "I'm not real sure. The list was made up quite awhile ago... but we're not ready to announce that yet."

Reporter: "You don't know who is going?"

Governor: "I know who is going... I have some of the names on this piece of paper... I joined the trip later and will lead it."

Another Reporter: "Will

any state officials be going... will the state pay their expenses?"

Governor: "No... I'm the only one... except there may be some research people or something like that from the universities... then I guess the state would pay."

Jimmy Green

Still Another Reporter: "Is Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green going? You invited him to go on the Japan mission?"

Governor: "No."

And Yet Another: "Why won't you tell us who is going?"

Governor: "This way, you get two stories."

Another: "What will you do if the Chinese want to talk about textile exports?"

Governor: "It's a tobacco mission."

Reporter: "But the Chinese say they need money and won't be buying much. What if they would rather talk about selling textiles?"

Governor: "As I understand it, it's a tobacco mission. We will talk about tobacco. We don't expect to sign any agreements or contracts... just make contact which may produce benefits in leaf sales five or 10 years down the road."

TV Reporter: "Do you mean if the Chinese want to talk about textile exports you won't talk about that?"

Governor: "It's a tobacco mission... we don't plan to talk about textiles."

Wire Reporter (who happens to be of Chinese heritage): "The Chinese government has come out opposed to smoking. Do you think they will want to buy tobacco?"

Governor: "I didn't know that. But anyway there are 900 million Chinese, and everybody knows the Chinese smoke a lot."

Radio Reporter: "Will the group be trying to sell Winston and Salems and such?"

Governor: "No, it won't be manufacturers, but it would be good to sell cigarettes... it will be tobacco industry people... talking about leaf sales.

As you know, China grows a lot of tobacco."

Who's Going?

"We will also see if we can help in farm research, marketing, and such."

Radio Reporter: "Well, who will be going?"

Another Radio Reporter: "On another subject, Governor, did you know that the U.S. Congress will get a 13 percent raise this year if they don't take action to avoid that?"

Someone replied that was correct.

Other Editors Say Often Abused....

(The Chapel Hill Newspaper)

It came as no surprise to read that aides to Sen. Jesse A. Helms, R-N.C., had set up four tax-exempt foundations to raise money to fight for causes closely associated with Helms.

John E. Carbaugh Jr., a Helms adviser on foreign affairs, reports that the Institute of American Relations raised about $600,000 in 1978 through direct-mail solicitation. Recent letters mailed by the same organization raised over $160,000 in 1979 to help two retired military men lobby against Senate ratification of the second Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty. Another letter, over the signature of Gen. Lewis W. Walt, a retired U.S. Marine Corps officer who once commanded Marines in Vietnam, urged the recipient to sign a petition opposing SALT II ratification.

Most of the newsletters show that the IAR and Helms share an intense interest in three major national issues: SALT II, ratification of the Panama Canal treaties, and the fate of the white minority in Rhodesia. Every IAR newsletter describes Helms' role in the Senate voting in glowing terms. There are a lot of things that bother us about Jesse Helms, a United States Senator should be above using tax-exempt foundations to further his causes. As we understand it he was elected as one of the two senators from North Carolina to represent us to the best of his ability in that august body. What if every member of Congress had three or four tax-exempt foundations to raise money to fight directly or indirectly legislation being voted upon in Washington? Lobbying outside of the framework of government is bad enough. For senators to be in partnership with foundations that lobby for causes that involve their colleagues borders on dishonesty.

Sen. Helms can and will disagree with us about 90 percent of the time; yet we have every right to expect him to play the game of politics up and above board. When federal laws were set up to limit how much money and individual could give to support a political candidate, no one ever thought that the political candidate would turn to tax-exempt foundations to further his causes. You have to get up early and go to bed late to keep up with Jesse Helms.

Repay Their Victims

By TAMARA COOKE
 WATERLOO, Iowa (UPI) — Crime really does not pay in Iowa's Black Hawk County.

Dozens of youths learn that by working at odd jobs to repay damages their victims suffered.

"It's a drag. You just work. It has some good days and some bad days," said one 16-year-old who ambled into the county probation office to discuss the program.

He had been arrested and charged with second degree burglary, armed robbery and deceiving an officer. Authorities assigned him to work to repay damages assessed at about $700. The figure was later reduced to about $300.

"I know I've done something wrong," the youth reluctantly admitted. "But I don't like paying it back. I guess that's the law. It'll make me think next time."

The Juvenile Restitution program is about two years old.

Candidates were limited to three minutes because of the time available.

Mrs. McGrath acknowledged that when her time came to talk.

Then she noted, a gong was to be rung at the end of the three-minute period.

INSIDE REPORT Tough Message To Ford

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
 WASHINGTON — At his home in Palm Springs within the next 30 days, Gerald R. Ford will get this hard word from professional political advisers: If you want to be president again and if you want to keep Ronald Reagan from being nominated, you must become an active candidate — and soon.

That means running in the primaries, not waiting at the 19th hole for a plea from the Republican party. Ford's advisers will not recommend, only lay out options and probabilities: If he opens a campaign during the next two months, perhaps 50-50; if he awaits a draft, forget it.

Such blunt talk is intended to dispel the unrealistic aura developed around Ford by sycophants, especially former and present staffers. Ford has told friends that "you won't see me ploughing through the snows of New Hampshire this time"; yet he passionately wants to get back in the White House — or at least keep Reagan out. At the forthcoming secret meeting in Palm Springs, he will be told he cannot have it both ways.

The need for Ford to face reality has been hastened by two interrelated developments. The first is that no active candidate has been able to break out of the pack against the front-running Reagan. The opinion of Ford's advisers that only the former president can stop Reagan is widely shared by influential Republican leaders.

The second is Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's prospect as the most likely Democratic nominee. Since the polls show Reagan beating President Carter but losing badly to Kennedy, the quest for an alternative has taken on new life.

The advent of Kennedy had nothing to do with making Jerry Ford the charter member of the anybody-but-Reagan club. Within weeks after leaving office in 1977, he confided he might run again if it appeared Reagan would be nominated by default. Despite Reagan's peace-making efforts, Ford's bitter language in his memoirs ("his (Reagan's) penchant for offering simplistic solutions to hideously complex problems") shows that he still believes the 1976 Reagan challenge made Jimmy Carter president.

But Ford has not spent the years out of power as an articulate voice carving out an opposition record. Instead, he has divided his time between the golf course and the lucrative podium, with scant time for politics. While Ted Kennedy and other major figures addressed the National Urban League convention at Chicago in late July, Ford was in the same city talking to the Laundry and Dry Cleaning Institute's convention about Carter's Cabinet shake-up.

Passing up the Urban League for the dry cleaners is blamed by Ford's political supporters on his executive assistant, Maj. Robert E. Barrett. A young infantry officer serving as President Ford's Army aide, Barrett resigned from the service after the 1976 election to go with the defeated candidate to Palm Springs. Since then, he has become Ford's most intimate adviser.

Like his boss, Barrett is unaware that primaries obviate a brokered convention. Consequently, he has told politicians, newsmen and Ford himself that the Detroit convention will turn to the former president. Several of Ford's ex-staffers, possibly unenthusiastic about getting inducted into another relentless primary chase against Reagan, echo Barrett.

Many prominent Ford-for-president enthusiasts, such as Vermont's Gov. Richard Snelling, want him to run in

Strength For Today

PEACOCKS AND EAGLES

"They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles."

Peacocks are good at strutting, eagles at soaring. The former have plenty of beautiful feathers, of which they are most proud, but their wings are small and weak. The eagle, on the other hand, is not as decorative, but he has wings that will carry him higher than almost any other bird.

Youngstown Mayor Is Hopeful

By JOHN CUNNIFF
 AP Business Analyst
 YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO (AP) — J. Phillip Richey, mayor of this industrial city in the Mahoning Valley of northeastern Ohio, claims it received a bum rap from national media portrayals of it as a dying steeltown.

To the contrary, he says, the Youngstown economy is in fair shape, better than he imagined when he took office nearly two years ago, and far better than the popular image of a blighted economy.

Says the Chamber of Commerce in a multicolor brochure, "Youngstown is a city of vitality and action, and this is best exemplified by the extensive amount of building, rebuilding, expansion and improvements."

While chambers must paint positive pictures, there is much truth in the assertion.

The problem is that outsiders remember that two years ago this month Youngstown was portrayed as terminally ill.

That notion spread from the closing of Youngstown Sheet & Tube's Campbell works with a loss of 4,100 jobs. The decay would spread, the cynics and fainthearted feared. The valley would die, they said.

Richey blames the national media, and says that overcoming the false image is now his hardest job. The problems were overdramatized, he says. In retrospect, he says, things were really never that bad.

But the mayor himself admits he was at first depressed by what he believed were the true conditions, and in an article he wrote just two months ago he still referred to "this unprecedented crisis."

The wording was perhaps inspired by a project dear to Richey's heart, a federally funded National Center for the Development and Demonstration of Steel Technology, a sort of space center of steel.

He and other Youngstown area officials are data-sharp, a consequence of having had the area's survival put in doubt. They have researched deeply, and have plenty of numbers to support their plan.

In the article, Richey states that Washington's contribution to steel research and development is but 3 percent of what the industry spends, but that it provides 78 percent of aircraft industry R&D spending.

Wouldn't the entire country benefit — in terms of security, jobs, the balance of payments — from helping to make domestic steel competitive with foreign companies, he asks? Isn't national security involved?

Symbolizing the aggressive, creative thinking resulting from the big scare, if not crisis, Richey and the Mahoning Valley Economic Development Corp. would place the steel cen5

They estimate the initial cost of reopening the plant as a technology center would be at least $250 million in federal funds, a sum Richey says "would not be out of line," considering the potential returns.

Plans for the center are far from dead. They are sidelined for the moment, Richey says, while officials deal with immediate tasks, such as preserving and attracting jobs. The mayor still hopes.

Observations From Editorial Columns

Congratulations In Order

The newly dedicated Orange Family Medical Center in Hillsborough is a symbol of what can be accomplished when a community has the determination and foresight to get the job done.

The fact that the center was built without state or federal aid adds to the impressiveness of the task.

Need for such a center became apparent when the number of local physicians dwindled from 7 to 1. That remaining physician, Dr. Robert Murphy, played a key role in getting the project underway five years ago. Seed money was raised by the non-profit Orange County Medical Foundation.

Two doctors and a physician's assistant have joined Murphy in providing medical care for the 13,000 northern Orange residents who have enrolled at the center.

It is fitting that Gov. Jim Hunt was on hand for the formal dedication, for it is community initiatives such as this which have made the Tar Heel state the desirable place it has come to be.

All the residents of Hillsborough who contributed time and money for this needed facility deserve the gratitude of the community and the congratulations of their fellow Tar Heels.

Pedestrians Are People Too

One needs only to observe the traffic movement at any given intersection in town to be convinced that pedestrians are getting the short end of the deal in their constant battle with motorists.

Practically everyone is familiar with the North Carolina law that makes it possible for a motorist, under certain conditions, to make a right turn on a red traffic light.

However, the law stipulates that the motorist interested in making the right hand turn first must come to a complete stop, then make his turn, provided there is no oncoming traffic and no pedestrians are involved.

What happens, however, is that a great many motorists charge upon an intersection, then hurriedly turn to the right and are on their way — despite the fact that an approaching vehicle was almost upon them and pedestrians were left gasping at the curb.

We have been informed even of instances where turning motorists rendered severe verbal lashings at pedestrians bold enough to cross at an intersection where they thought they were protected by a traffic light.

Perhaps the only remedy is for our police department to station officers at some of the more important intersections for a time, with the responsibility of hauling in those violators.

Such a police action probably would win wide circulation among careless motorists with the result that these crossing violations might be eliminated.

Cooke Col...

Offenders work 35-40 hours every two weeks until the bills are paid.

Youths who plead guilty to charges are eligible for the program, Elsberry said. Those who plead innocent must go through traditional processes.

If damages occurred, parents may repay the victim outright or the youth may pay damages himself if he has funds or a job.

A juvenile who cannot find work and lacks means for repayment is referred to the restitution program.

Work hours are negotiated. Determining factors are the severity of the crime, the youth's general attitude and whether or not he was the ringleader and/or violent during arrest.

Youngsters can work daily three hours after school; and on weekends, and longer hours in summer.

Jobs include cleaning parks, picking up litter, mowing lawns for the elderly, janitorial work at county offices, shoveling snow or raking leaves, helping at local day care centers or painting fire hydrants.

Juveniles receive $2 an hour. Elsberry said they can be paid less than the minimum wage because county money is used.

Seventy-five percent of their wages — or a minimum of at least $35 — goes to their victims.

If a youth and his parents refuse to cooperate, the victim is encouraged to file a lawsuit in small claims court.

Only nine of the 72 victims referred to the court in 1978 acted. They filed a total of $13,706 in claims. Five of the nine cases were tried; the others were settled out of court.

Elsberry said officials try to make all offenders work, regardless of the crime.

"We have minor referrals, like shoplifting a $5 or $6 item," he said. "What do you do about the youngster? The property is recovered. What he's done is taken the time of the shop owner, the judge and has used taxpayers' money. He (should) do community work."

The youths also visit area correctional facilities to see where their actions can lead them.

Most of their complaints about the program focus on the nature of their jobs and the low pay.

"I'd prefer building than this bogus work," said one 16-year-old.

A 17-year-old charged with first degree robbery agreed. His restitution debt totaled $529. He had reduced it to $86.

"You do the same thing over and over every day. They don't pay you enough to get things done," he said, taking a break from lawn mowing. "You have to work too long to pay off the debt."

"They need a variety of jobs and harder jobs, like construction."

Still, he understood the concept behind the program.

"You pay for what you do. If I wasn't doing this I probably would be going to (the State Boys Training School at) Eldora or somewhere."

A work supervisor, Deborah Pierce, 24, of Cedar Falls, said some supervisors become attached to the youths "and start feeling that 'this is my child.'"

Another supervisor, Don Burleson, 21, of Cedar Falls, said working closely with the youths, you can see them develop and mature.

"I know from personal experience with people that people can change. They have choices," he said. "What we work to try to tell the kids is they have a choice."

the primaries but believe, against all evidence, that he can be nominated even if he does not. It will be the mission of the political pros at Palm Springs to persuade Ford that this is pure nonsense.

One such adviser will inform Ford that to return to the White House in 1981, he must endure those New Hampshire snarls in 1980. The Boston Globe poll giving Ford an edge over Reagan among New Hampshire Republicans (who overwhelmingly favor Reagan over anybody else) convinced this insider.

While fund-raising would prove difficult this late and Ford's lackadaisical performance since 1976 has soured some erstwhile supporters, he could easily assemble a campaign organization. Key professionals in his 1976 campaign — Stu Spencer, Bob Teeter and John Deardourff — have not joined any other campaign.

Some other prominent Republicans who would not join Ford still hope he decides to run; they reason that a renewed Reagan-Ford battle could unlock the process and open support for a third candidate. Jerry Ford's political advisers are not the only Republicans who believe the alternative to his active candidacy is a Kennedy-vs.-Reagan race that they fervently want to avoid.

A Conservative View

Shop Talk On The Supreme Court Continued

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — To listen to John Paul Stevens, you might be persuaded that the working press is composed of a bunch of crybabies, spoiled brats and chronic whiners for "special privilege." This is a bum rap that demands response.

Justice Stevens turned up at the University of Arizona a couple of weeks ago to dedicate a law school and to take a few swipes at the press. He is the third member of the U. S. Supreme Court, following after Chief Justice Burger and Justice Powell, to undertake public clarification of the court's mystic 5-4 decree of July 2 in the case of Gannett Company vs. DePasquale.

This was the case in which five members of the court agreed that in this particular pre-trial proceeding, a New York trial judge committed no error in closing his courtroom to the press and public. The purpose was to decide on the admissibility of a purported confession in a murder case. The upshot was that the people were denied a timely report in their newspapers about what was going on in their own courts.

Yes, we of the press have been protesting the decision at the top of our lungs. Justice Stevens said sarcastically in Arizona that editors have been predicting "an early demise" as a consequence of the court's "refusal to accord them a variety of special privileges." He said that editors seem to fear that the Gannett decision "has removed the cornerstone of our constitutional edifice." He charged us with wanting "to rewrite the Constitution of the United States."

Well, Justice Stevens was one of the five who regrettably formed the majority in Gannett. Because of their ill-considered decision — or at least their ill-articulated decision — trial judges throughout the country are now sealing their courtrooms in order to conduct both pre-trial proceedings and actual trials in secret. The ostensible purposes are to protect an accused from prejudicial publicity, or to protect the sensibilities of the victim of rape, and these are sympathetic purposes to be sure. But precedents are being set for wholesale denials of the public's right to know what its judges and prosecutors are up to.

This is the concern that lies at the very heart of the controversy. Justice Stevens poo-poos the thought that "corrupt bargains" might be struck behind closed doors by judges, prosecutors and defendants. He accepts the assumption that "competent, honest persons will occupy judicial office." Oh, now and then "some judges may occasionally enter maverick orders," but he discounts the fears we have expressed "that trial judges will now routinely conduct entire trials in secret."

But that is precisely what has been happening in the three months since the Gannett case was decided. The Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press found 48 instances in the first six weeks in which efforts were made to conduct secret criminal proceedings — including actual trials as distinguished from pre-trial hearings.

Let us be clear about the position of the press. We are contending that the First Amendment gives us a right of access to judicial proceedings as well as to other public records and hearings. We do not demand a seat in Supreme Court chambers when cases are discussed. We do not demand the Pentagon's secret codes. We do not propose to seat a pool of reporters when a president meets in private with his Cabinet.

But we do insist that the First Amendment can be rendered impotent — can be reduced to a meaningless nullity — if public servants are given the power to deny public access to the press. It is not a claqué of petulant editors, it is rather the four dissenting members of the court in Gannett, who first raised the specter of judicial corruption. And if the thought of judicial corruption is more than Justice Stevens can stomach, what about sheer incompetence on the bench?

In my own experience as a newsman, I have covered judges who were drunks, judges who were tyrants, judges who were political hacks. And I am absolutely convinced that if it had not been for the presence of the press in their courtrooms, these judges would have been worse than they were.

Imperfect we surely are, but we of the press are the only ears, voices and eyes the people have to report the day's court news as it occurs. To deny us a right of access is to strike us deaf, dumb and blind. Yes, the rights of an accused are important. So are the rights of society as a whole.

Vacant Lots Turn Into A Neighborhood Asset

MACON, Ga., — "Those vacant lots got to go," declared Mrs. Addie Battle, eyeing a tangle of weeds and garbage in Bartlett Crossing neighborhood of Macon. "We have got to get these people interested in beautifying their neighborhood again. We all need to get out and plant a garden."

With the help of her neighbors, Mrs. Battle's vision is becoming a reality. Bartlett Crossing is a tiny, close-knit urban community in West Macon, dating back to the turn of the century. Many young and middle-aged residents have moved out in recent years, leaving a neighborhood populated mostly by the very young and the very old. Lots which once supported homes with pretty flower gardens have deteriorated into settings for crime and fires.

Mrs. Battle has lived in Bartlett Crossing for 30 of her 68 years. Although she never had any children herself, she has come to be the general neighborhood mother. Theima Bivins, a young community activist who grew up in Bartlett Crossings remembers, "We always looked to Mrs. Battle for guidance and the piping hot gingerbread she used to make for the kids in the neighborhood." Mrs. Battle still has great confidence in young people, and spends a great deal of time chatting with local youngsters. "Old people," she says, "walk over some of the things that young people don't miss."

Mrs. Battle's closest friend and ally in the drive to clean up Bartlett Crossing is Mrs. Mamie James, 73. Mrs. James moved into the community in 1942 and raised five children there. Her house is now a haven for flock of grand-children and great-grandchildren. Last spring, her doctor diagnosed a malignant thyroid condition, but that hasn't slowed her down. "You bucked your eyes, young man," she told a visitor, "when I said it is malignant. I am not afraid. When the Lord wants me to go, I will be ready to go."

The two ladies have recently become more and more concerned over the decayed appearance and rising crime rate of their neighborhood. A community VISTA worker told them about the Neighborhood Watch Program, which is operated in certain sections of Macon (and other cities) under federal grants. The program wasn't offered in Bartlett Crossing, but the ladies took it upon themselves to inspire their neighbors to create their own solution, to take an active interest in each other again. They organized the elderly and the pre-teen children of the area into an active Block Watch. Volunteers now visit the physically handicapped, make periodic security checks and engrave valuables.

But Mrs. Battle and Mrs. James were not interested merely in a defensive system against crime (though that was an important consideration in an area where so many — particularly the elderly and children — are vulnerable.) They also wanted to do something to bring people together.

So two weeks before Good Friday they organized a clean-up day, to clear rubbish and debris from three acres of vacant lots. The work-day became a neighborhood reunion, as children who'd moved away came back to help their parents collect untold pounds of broken bricks, glass and cans. "It made me feel really good," says Rhonda Barnes, one of the returning children. "to take part in cleaning up the field where I used to play."

Once the vacant lots were cleared, the neighbors set to work landscaping a small park for neighborhood picnics and cook-outs. They also began turning over the soil for a big garden. They were aiming for the traditional Good Friday planting deadline, but their plans were delayed by a tornado which swept through the city. When the weather cleared up, they planted sweet corn, june peas, okra, squash, tomatoes, string beans, cantaloupes, cabbages, lettuce, collards and water-melon. The crops are shared among the gardeners; any surplus is sold at low prices in a neighborhood market, to raise money for next year's seed.

The neighbors work in their garden every morning at sunrise, and again during the cool if the evening. For many, the garden brings back memories of happy times from different periods of their long lives. Mrs. James says, "When I was a child, Papa always had a garden. We always planted something." Now as her life closes, she's planting again.

Someday Parents Will Have To Draw A Line

One of Meg's friends recently clomped up to me in her high-heeled shoes and one of my old blouses, all dressed, she explained, for a cookout. She didn't describe herself as pretty or beautiful or even absolutely gorgeous. Instead, she put one hand on her hip and one at the back of her head and said, "Look at me. I'm a sex goddess."

There's no doubt about it. Television is changing the way that America's children talk. Boys imitate the Fonx. Girls absorb Charlie's Angeles. Preschool conversation centers around such winsome heroes as Spiderman and the Incredible Hulk.

I have tried to limit Meg's television viewing. But one trip to the grocery store demonstrates that efforts to curtail the tube's cultural dominance are doomed to failure.

We pass the peanut butter counter where a name brand is on sale, and Meg says, "Put it back and get Peter Pan. I'm picky about peanut butter."

"And I'm cheap," I answer.

She wants cookies baked by elves. I assure her that elves rarely wash their hands before they cook.

She wants the bread that makes you grow 3 feet in 5 seconds, the pudding that makes kids giggle, and the bologna that has a first name.

Unfortunately, when I tried to explain my objections to Meg, I found that the TV's credibility is much greater than mine.

"You don't want that doll; it's nasty." I told her after listening to her sing the jingle 15 times.

"No it doesn't! She's soft and sweet, that's what the television says."

"But Meg, that food she eats probably glops up her insides so that she gets germy," I said, hesitant to state my real objection.

"No it doesn't. The television didn't say anything about that."

"Of course, it didn't. It wants little girls to buy the doll, so naturally it's not going to talk about the doll's bad points."

By this time she was trying to drown me out with the jingle, "... soft and sweet. She can drink. She can eat."

"She's a messy little creep," I added, creating my own version.

"Don't say that!" Meg shouted. "The little girls on TV wouldn't like to hear it, not even the ones who play with Cindy."

I am seriously thinking about banning Captain Kangaroo at our house until after Christmas.

THE GALLUP POLL

Many Have Alternatives If Gas Prices Soar

By George Gallup

PRINCETON, N.J. — Many Americans would shift to other means of getting to work if rising gasoline prices made commuting by car financially unattractive or impossible.

Today's Gallup report shows one-third of those who commute by car saying they would find some other way of getting to work if the cost of gasoline were to go to $1.50 a gallon. And, if the cost were to skyrocket to $2 per gallon, another 15 percent of the commuters who drive say they would abandon this means of getting to work.

The issue could become more than hypothetical for many Americans if the price of gasoline continues to rise. The American Automobile Association reports that the national average price for gasoline topped $1 a gallon for premium and unleaded fuel in mid-August, an average increase of 28 cents a gallon since the beginning of the year.

Other Transport Available

When persons who currently drive to work (approximately three in four adults) were asked how they would get to work if they had no automobile, 28 percent say they would take the bus and 21 percent say they would join a car pool. Another 19 percent say they would walk, while 16 percent would commute by bicycle or motorbike. Two percent would take a train. At the same time, however, 7 percent say they would have to quit their present jobs if they couldn't drive.

This question was asked first:

"Suppose you had no automobile, how would you then get to work — by train, bus, walk or how?"

Here are the national findings, asked of those who presently drive to work (approximately three Americans out of four):

If No Car, How Get To Work?

(Asked of those who drive to work)

Bus	28%
Car pool	21
Walk	19
Bicycle, motorbike	16
Train	2
Other means	4
Would quit work	7
Don't know	8
	105%*

*Total adds to more than 100 percent due to multiple responses.

The following questions were also asked of those who presently drive to work:

"If the price of gasoline went to $1.50 a gallon, would you continue to drive to work or would you get to work some other way?"

If Gasoline Went To $1.50 A Gallon?

Would continue to drive	66%
-------------------------	-----

Go some other way	32
Don't know	2

Those who said they would continue to drive were then asked:

"If the price of gasoline went to $2 a gallon, would you continue to drive to work or would you get to work some other way?"

Here are the national findings, based on those who drive to work:

If Gasoline Went To $2 A Gallon?

Would continue to drive	47%
Go some other way	15
Don't know	4

Although many American drivers indicate they would reduce their driving if the price of gasoline were to climb to $1.50 or $2 a gallon, fewer might actually do so, in view of the pattern observed in other nations of the world. For example, in Western Europe and Japan, countries with living standards comparable to that of the U.S., gasoline costs $2.30 to $3 a gallon and people still drive almost as much as ever.

The results reported today are based on in-person interviews with 1,555 adults, interviewed in more than 300 scientifically-selected localities across the nation during the period August 17-20.

Convoy Moved Tritium

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (UPI) — After a late-night legal battle, a National Guard convoy Saturday hauled radioactive tritium, confiscated from a private Tucson concern, 270 miles across Arizona to an Army ammunition depot near Flagstaff.

The convoy rolled out of Tucson at 2 a.m. hours after Gov. Bruce Babbitt convinced a Flagstaff judge to lift an order prohibiting the move.

On the governor's order, the tritium was abruptly seized Wednesday from American Atomics Corp. on grounds that the company's Tucson plant was leaking excessive levels of radioactivity into the area. Babbitt declared a state of emergency.

A group of Flagstaff residents obtained a restraining order Friday afternoon, claiming that if the tritium posed a risk to Tucson, it would be just as dangerous to Flagstaff.

But Babbitt and state and federal officials called Judge Richard Mangum late Friday night and convinced him the governor had authority to order the tritium's move.

Babbitt and military officials said the old Army depot was the safest place to store the material while the state decides what to do with it. The tritium was to be put in an underground bunker at the base.

Flanked by four Army National Guard trucks, 10 police motorcycles and a dozen highway patrol cars, a tractor hauled a special nuclear container filled with 440,000 curies of tritium, to the Navajo Army Ordnance Depot 20 miles west of Flagstaff.

"Everything went very smoothly, in fact better than anticipated," said Department of Public Safety Sgt. Allen Schmidt. The convoy passed through the metropolitan Phoenix area at 6 a.m.

Senate Kills Funds Bill

By JAY PERKINS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd said today Congress probably has "a few days" grace period before the nation feels the effects of congressional failure to pass a bill keeping the government's biggest departments operating.

His comments came in the aftermath of an extraordinary session Friday night that saw the Senate kill the bill, providing operating funds for several government departments, because the House insisted on retaining strict abortion language and a congressional pay raise as part of the legislative package.

Asked how long Congress had to act before government programs — including Social Security and the defense payroll — became seriously affected, Byrd replied, "It's my understanding not very long. It may be for a few days."

He noted that after Sunday night, the government departments that would have been funded by the emergency legislation would have "no legal authority to fund programs, grants, to meet payrolls."

Byrd said he had had no word from the White House on whether Carter might order the House to abandon its week-long recess and come back to work. He had suggested Friday night that Carter might want to do this.

Although Senate rejection of the bill, on a 55-9 vote, normally would send it back to a House committee for reworking, Byrd said the Senate had the option of tacking the necessary provisions onto another bill.

He noted that a Federal Trade Commission appropriations bill is currently in the Senate Appropriations Committee. This bill already has passed the House, thereby meeting the constitutional requirement that appropriations bills originate in the House.

Byrd said this measure could be amended to include the necessary funds and the Senate could pass it quickly if the House remains on recess next week as planned, although that bill also would have to return to the House for consideration there later.

Byrd stressed he wanted to talk with Senate and House leaders before taking that unusual step.

The majority leader had stressed the need for quick action Friday night by suggesting the House be ordered back to work and by scheduling a Senate session for today.

"In case the president wants to exercise his constitutional right, he won't have to call this body back. We'll be here," he said.

Kennedy Comes Closer

BOSTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy told 1,000 admiring labor leaders they won't be "disappointed" when he announces his political plans — the closest yet the Massachusetts Democrat has come to declaring himself a presidential candidate.

The veiled announcement came during a fist-pounding speech Friday before an enthusiastic gathering of the Massachusetts State Labor Council, AFL-CIO, after the council resolved to ask the national AFL-CIO's support of Kennedy.

Responding to the council's action, the senator said: "You'll be hearing my response to that resolution in the not too many days and weeks to come and I don't think that you'll be disappointed."

Kennedy, often shouting to the packed convention hall, called the nation's economic problems his No. 1 priority and criticized unidentified national officials whom he said claim "our problems are too complex to come to grips with."

"I don't believe that to be the case," Kennedy said.

Anti-Nuclear Demonstrators Gather In S. C.

By WILLIAM STRACENER
BARNWELL, S.C. (UPI) — Several hundred anti-nuclear demonstrators straggled into this small community Saturday to begin a three-day weekend protest rally planners said would include attempts to trespass at three nuclear facilities.

The size of the opening-day crowd was lower than expected, possibly because of sporadic rain in the area, but protest organizers said they expect as many as 5,000 people for Monday's climax, a planned march and sit-in at the nuclear plants.

Weekend activities began with the participants — all members of a six-state coalition of varied groups called the Southeastern Natural Guard — squabbling among themselves over sale of a T-shirt some called sexist.

The protesters said Monday's activities would include marches to the Savannah River Plant, the Allied-General Nuclear Services plant, and the Chem-Nuclear facility and attempts by some of them to trespass on facility property.

Attorney Cheryl Anderson Flaxman of Miami said extensive negotiations have been held with state and local officials to ensure that the planned trespass will be peaceful.

"Everyone wants it to be non-violent," she said, but she predicted 500 people would be arrested Monday.

Pope Begins Pilgrimage ...

John Paul delighted his Irish hosts by speaking in Gaelic at times. Clearly he enjoyed himself — smiling and shaking hands, talking privately to many priests in the Dublin Airport reception line.

When he emerged from his shamrock-green Aer Lingus Boeing 747, the pope walked down the steps, dropped to his knees, and kissed the Irish soil.

A huge roar went up from the crowd. Suddenly a gust of wind flipped John Paul's crimson cloak over his head. There, in the first moments of the first papal visit to Ireland, the leader of the world's Roman Catholics was an invisible lump on the tarmac.

Elderly women knelt and wept.

Church bells pealed in both northern and southern Ireland. In Dublin Harbor, ships blared a foghorn welcome.

Irish President Patrick Hillary gave John Paul the traditional Irish "Cead Mille Failte" — a hundred thousand welcomes.

And Ireland's Cardinal Tomas O'Fiaich sounded the theme of the visit:

"You come as a messenger of peace to our troubled country."

Responding in Gaelic, John Paul said:

"I walk among you in the footsteps of St. Patrick. I come to you as a servant of Jesus Christ, a herald of his doctrine of justice and love. I offer you the greeting of my heart — peace to all of you who are in Christ."

In the terminal building, barkeepers left their post — one shouting "I don't care how many free drinks go this day."

Waitresses dumped their trays and rushed to windows to get a better view. And a chef covered with flour left his kitchen, clutching a whisk, to press toward the terminal window.

At 1,500-acre Phoenix Park, the largest enclosed park in Europe, the shoulder-to-shoulder crowd let loose after the mass. The scene resembled a football game.

Men and women danced jigs, sang "Hey Look Me Over" and "He's Got the Whole World in His Hands" and swayed in a massive sea of humanity as they waited for the pope to change from his papal vestments for his 30-mile trip to Drogheda.

As an offering to the seated pope, young men and women — accompanied by Irish fiddlers — brought to the altar sheaves of wheat and loaves of bread.

A baker, dressed in white coat and sporting a chef's hat, knelt and presented the pontiff a tray of loaves.

Some of the loudest applause during the pope's homily came from a section reserved for the deaf. Men and women used sign language to relay the pope's words to those who could not hear.

One police officer said the joyous crowd was screaming to prove that "one Irishman can outshout any nine Poles."

As he clambered onto the "popemobile" — a yellow, foursided converted truck — for a trip through the city, the crowd broke into an ear-splitting roar. The pope held a single red rose to his chest.

Near the border, as pilgrims from the north tried to get to Drogheda, a traffic jam unprecedented in Ireland choked the country roads. At one point, cars sat bumper to bumper for 50 miles.

John Paul arrives in Boston Monday; goes to New York Tuesday; Philadelphia Wednesday; Des Moines and Chicago Thursday; and will wind up his tour of the United States with a Saturday visit at the White House and a huge mass on the mall Sunday afternoon in the nation's capital.

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — A member of Nicaragua's ruling junta says his government cannot pay an estimated $600 million in foreign debts run up by ousted dictator Anastasio Somoza and he asked the international community to pick up the tab.

Daniel Ortega, a member of the Sandinista junta, told the U.N. General Assembly Friday that Somoza had cleaned out Nicaragua's treasury before he fled the country in July. He blamed foreign banks for allowing Somoza to pile up massive debts.

Major Cutback In Passenger Train Service Beginning Today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The first major cutback in passenger train service since 1971 begins today when at least one and possibly four other long-distance Amtrak trains start their last journeys.

A total of five Amtrak routes were scheduled to end Sunday, but a federal judge in Wichita, Kan., issued a temporary restraining order Friday to keep three of the trains — the Lone Star, the Floridian and the North Coast Hiawatha — rolling for at least another 10 days.

And a federal appeals court in Washington, D.C., late Friday ordered the National Limited to continue running until at least Oct. 10, leaving only the Hilltopper to definitely end service as scheduled.

Amtrak officials said Saturday they were considering filing appeals of the court orders.

The National Limited runs from New York to Kansas City, Mo.; the Hilltopper from Boston to Catlettsburg, Ky.; the Floridian from Chicago to Miami and St. Petersburg, Fla.; the Lone Star from Chicago to Houston, and the North Coast Hiawatha from Chicago to Seattle.

Rising costs and a tight national budget had forced the five trains, which represent about 20 percent of Amtrak's route miles, off the tracks. Those tracks were to become the sole province of freight trains as each of the five ended their journey either Monday or Tuesday.

In return, both Amtrak and the Department of Transportation promised a new push to make the remaining passenger system more reliable and comfortable.

Amtrak was created May 1, 1971, to attempt to save passenger trains, which until then were operated by private railroads. About two-thirds of the remaining trains were killed at that time to allow Amtrak to concentrate on the best routes. That was the last major train cutback until Sunday.

The cutbacks will leave Oklahoma without any passenger service.

Artists Protest Timberlake Show

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Some North Carolina artists are challenging the artistic merit of an exhibit of works by Bob Timberlake now being held at the North Carolina Museum of Art.

Two Fayetteville artists have begun a petition drive in protest of the exhibit, which began Sept. 16. At least two galleries affiliated with the museum, the Fayetteville Museum of Art and the Southeastern Center for Contemporary Art in Winston-Salem, have declined to have the exhibit when it goes on tour, citing as a major reason the artistic merit of the work.

Timberlake is nationally known for his realist paintings and reproductions. "The petty jealousy in these people just gripes me," Timberlake said in a telephone interview from his Lexington home Friday.

The statewide petition drive was started by William C. Fields, former president of the Associated Artists of North Carolina, and Lloyd Nick, chairman of the art department at Methodist College.

In the petition, they maintain the Timberlake exhibit "is an abrogation of professional standards" by the museum.

"His achievement is solely commercial; the result of clever promotion," the petition says. "A show of this caliber only serves to lower the high artistic and ethical standards that we try to work toward and achieve."

Moussa M. Domit, director of the N.C. Museum, defended the exhibit as fitting into the museum's overall program.

"We have a program of recognizing distinguished North Carolina artists in a single show," Domit said. "He certainly has made it very big. He has followed in a distinct tradition of Andrew Wyeth and others that will become a significant part of American art history."

"Anybody with any sense can see I'm not in this because of sour grapes. We do not feel that he has submitted his work to the judgment of his peers through juried shows, exhibitions in non-commercial galleries and in museums," Fields said.

The petition also protests Timberlake's selling of photo-mechanical reproductions of his paintings at retail prices of $125 to $150, saying the reproduction are not original prints.

Report Reveals Killing Of African Children ...

"I was taken to Ngarabga, together with many other kids I did not know. Some of them were less than 6 years old and were crying.

"In the prison, we were brutally beaten by the guards and pushed into a row of cells so crowded that no one could sit down. There was no air and the floor was covered with excrement. Some of the children died very quickly from the awful heat and crush and lack of air or from their injuries. There was blood everywhere.

"About 10 p.m., the steel door opened and the emperor came in, shouting that he would teach us a lesson. I already had a broken arm and other injuries and was on the floor among several dead kids where I decided to pretend I was dead, too.

"I saw the emperor repeatedly striking several of the kids on the back of the head with his cane. Several died in this way, but I could not count them.

"Then the emperor told the soldiers behind him to 'carry on' while he went on to the other cells to do the same there. I could hear the terrible screams from the other cells while he was there.

"Then he left and the soldiers came back to carry on as he had ordered, and struck at all those who were still upright or showing any sign of life."

Jeudi said he was one of only three survivors in his cell, among at least 40 prisoners. He has extensive scars on his back, arms and legs.

Bao was in a neighboring cell with only 15 children. He corroborated Jeudi's account and said he survived only because "I do a lot of sports and was in good condition," and because he had room to move and dodge some of the blows.

"But I could not dodge a soldier who repeatedly struck me in the small of the back with a huge rock," he said.

He also testified that Bokassa entered his cell and struck the prisoners with the ebony cane he used as an imperial scepter.

Mrs. Charlotte Pognagba, a teacher of French and history at the Pope Pius XII College, said she saw convoys of trucks taking bodies out of the prison the next day, April 20.

"Through an accident, I discovered later that among those killed in the prison was one of my own cousins, Ouamoko Ngene, 18, who was not even a student but a musician returning from a performance with his band when he was arrested," she said.

"On the Bazoungui hill near the cemetery, one of the trucks overturned and many of the bodies fell out," she said. "The soldiers quickly put the truck upright and recovered the bodies, but one body was later found in a ditch where they had overlooked it."

"It turned out to be that of my cousin."

Another student, Philippe Yaboude, said he also owed his life to the fact that he was not taken to Ngarabga but to a police station.

"But some died there, too," he said. "A boy of 16, whose name I never learned, was lined up against a wall with the rest of us. A policeman gave him a terrible blow on the forehead and his head struck violently against the wall. He fell dead to the floor and they quickly took his body outside."

In a broadcast on April 21, two days after the massacre, Bokassa abruptly announced an amnesty for the "rebel students" and all the survivors were released.

Amnesty International issued its report a month later, starting a chain of events that led to Bokassa's ouster Sept. 20.

Farmer Albert Yamani, who lives in the Bazoungui district, some five miles from the city, said he had seen soldiers burying more than 100 bodies in shallow graves in a disused quarry near the edge of the cemetery.

Doubts About Funds

WARRENTON, N.C. (UPI)—More than $1.2 million in federal grants have been approved for Warren County's new sewage treatment plant, but county officials say construction on the project cannot begin because of funds being withheld by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Jack Harris said Friday HUD has said it would provide $926,000 for the project but the money remains doubtful because of "strings" attached to it.

Harris said he understands HUD wants "us to take over the Soul City parks and recreation association and its sanitary district" in return for the grant.

HUD cutoff federal aid to Soul City earlier this year, saying the new town project would never be economically feasible. Soul City, developed by Floyd B. McKissick, has absorbed $29 million in federal grants and loan guarantees since 1974.

AVCO Community Developers Inc., a California consultant firm, evaluated the Soul City project and said the maximum amount of cash it could produce within the next five years was $92,500. The firm's report said Soul City's selling, general and administrative expense budget for 1979 alone was $819,000.

Harris said Warren County has representatives negotiating with HUD officials to either remove the stipulation involving Soul City or develop a plan the county can accept.

Without HUD's funds, county officials have said their plans for a plant capable of treating 2 million gallons of sewage daily would have to be scaled down considerably.

State Park Opened At Cherokee Tears Site

CLEVELAND, Tenn. (AP)—A state park now marks the site where the Cherokee Indians conducted their last tribal council before starting their Trail of Tears to Oklahoma in 1838.

Several hundred people, including some Cherokees, stood in the rain Friday for the formal inauguration of the 275-acre, $154 million Red Clay State Archeological Area, 13 miles south of Cleveland.

Reuben Teesatskie, a member of the Eastern Band of the Cherokees, asked all to "live in brotherhood with one another and to forgive the past."

Robert Bushyhead, a Cherokee tribal interpreter from the Qualla Reservation in North Carolina, closed ceremonies with prayers in English and Cherokee.

The Cherokee moved to Red

Clay after Georgians forced them from the New Echota council grounds near Calhoun. Through the Treaty of New Echota, they turned their land over to the federal government and started the Trail of Tears during which thousands died.

Ann Tuck, Tennessee Conservation commissioner, said, "It's been a long but rewarding struggle. A lot of people have been involved and the park is now a beautiful area."

The visitor center was named the James Franklin Corn Museum and Interpretive Center. The park also includes a simulated Cherokee village, a hilltop monument to the tribe, a 500-seat amphitheatre and a spring-fed pool.

Corn, a local author-historian bought 150 acres of the site 15 years ago to preserve it and was instrumental in convincing the state to buy them.

Candidates File In Three Pitt County Towns

As of Thursday afternoon, nine persons had filed in Ayden for government seats, while one filer was noted in Winterville and three in Grifton.

Mayor Ross Persinger of Ayden has filed for re-election, as well as Commissioners Dr. J. Elliott Dixon, Harry Mumford, J. J. Brown, Robert Harris, and

Carl Speight. Billy Bonar and Aaron Hines filed last week. Other filers in Ayden include: — James A. (Jim) Williamson. Williamson, a resident of 703 W. Seventh St., Ayden, will run in the fourth ward against incumbent J. J. Brown. A native of Pitt County, he attends Elm Grove F. W. B. Church. He is employed by Dupont as a machinist craftsman. Williamson received his education from Chicod High School, East Carolina University, Pitt Community College and Lenoir Community College. He holds a real estate broker license from the North Carolina Real Estate Licensing Board. Williamson who has served in the U. S. Air Force and Army, helped in the organization of the Dupont Kinston plant credit union, and now serves as a vice chairman of the Credit Union Supervisory Committee. Married to the former Irene McLawhorn, the couple has four children, Vonnie, Patty, Randall and Barry Wayne. Incumbent Jimmie Lewis filed for his seat on the Grifton Town Board of Commissioners. The only others to file for the Grifton race have been Johnny Len Craft and Billy R. Sutton. Sutton, a La Grange native, has lived in Grifton since 1972 after serving in the U. S. Army. Presently employed as a sales representative for Moseley Manufacturing Company, the 29-year old is married and has one child, Nikole. A member of the Grifton First Baptist Church and the Rescue Squad, Sutton has served as chairman of the Grifton Jayciss and the Grifton Shad Festival. In Winterville, Danny Martin filed for his seat on the Board of Aldermen. The only other filer as of Friday was Michael Lee Gillin.

Gillin, assistant manager of the Shop-Eze Foodland Store in Greenville, is married to the former Jo Wainwright. They have two children, Myra and Lee, and reside at 137 Gail Blvd., Winterville. Gillin, who received his degree from the Free Will Baptist Bible College, Nashville, Tenn., is a member and Sunday School teacher at Trinity F. W. B. Church. This is his first time running for public office.

Parade Of Homes

Some 19 new homes constructed by local builders will be on display here today as the Greenville Home Builders Association concludes its 1979 Parade of Homes.

Connally Branch, president of the local association, said that the homes will be open for inspection by the public from 12 noon until 6 p.m.

"This is a great opportunity for the public to see the very latest in design, construction techniques, decorating ideas, and landscaping," Branch pointed out.

He added, "One of the important things visitors to the Parade will notice this year is the great number of energy-saving features being built into new homes. These include much greater insulation than in the past, more efficient heating and cooling systems, insulated glass, and, in some cases, use of solar energy."

The local Parade of Homes, according to Branch, is one of the features of North Carolina Home Week, which concludes activities throughout the state today.

North Carolina Home Week is sponsored by the North Carolina Home Builders Association and local associations.

In his proclamation for Home Week, Gov. Jim Hunt Jr. mentioned, "It is fitting that our citizens recognize what the building of thousands of new homes and apartments means in civic and economic progress to North Carolina and what home ownership can mean both to the individual owner and to the total economic and social benefit to the state."

The home builders have observed the theme, "Buying Today Secures Tomorrow," during the week-long activities.

Honored

Bob Gotwals, a senior at East Carolina University, was honored as "Volunteer of the Year" by the Northeast Easter Seal Society during its annual awards dinner Thursday.

Gotwals was noted for his development of the Greenville Road Race, which raised over $2,400 for Easter Seals.

Jim Woods, sports director for WNCT-TV, presented awards to the following organizations for their work during the past year: Greene County Jaycettes, volunteer organization of the year; H. L. Hodges Sporting Goods, best sponsor of the year; WCNC of Elizabeth City, outstanding media; James Bond of Bond's Sporting Goods, outstanding new sponsor.

Bert Titcombe, volunteer president of the Northeast Regional Advisory Committee, stated that he, along with the Easter Seal Society, would like to thank all involved in making 1979 one of the Northeast Easter Seal Society's best years.

Demo Women Anniversary

The Pitt County Democratic Women will be celebrating their 20th anniversary with a dinner meeting at the Ramada Inn Thursday at 7 p.m.

Martha McKay, affirmative action officer for State Department of Personnel Administration, will be the guest speaker and joins the Democratic Women in their celebration.

Fall 1959, Ms. McKay, then a representative from the Governor's office, helped a group of women form the political organization.

All members and other interested women are invited to attend. For reservations, call 756-3870 or 756-0488.

Scout Pack To Reorganize

Pack 205 of Memorial Baptist Church invited all Cub Scouts age boys and their parents to attend a reorganization meeting on Thursday, Oct. 4 at 7:30 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall.

Boys and parents will be divided into dens with as much parent involvement as possible, it was pointed out.

Any boy who is at least seven years old or has completed the second grade, or is eight, nine or ten years old, may participate in the Cub Scout program.

All interested persons should contact Mrs. Adell Prescott (756-3417), Roger Collins III (756-2104), or acting Cubmaster Gus Andrews (757-6178) for further information.

Retires From Post Office

Norman F. Little, rural route carrier, retired from the Greenville Post Office August 31 after 30 years of Postal Service. Little had been serving as rural carrier on Route 3 since Jan. 2, 1965. Prior to this time he served on Rural Route four, Greenville.

Little graduated from Winterville High School. He served in the U. S. Army from Dec. 2, 1942 until Feb. 26, 1946.

Prior to his employment with the Postal Service, he was employed by the City Police Department of Greenville.

SWCD MEETING

The Board of Supervisors, Pitt Soil and Water Conservation District, will hold its regular monthly meeting Monday, Oct. 1, 1:30 p.m., second floor of the Federal Building, 225 Evans St., Greenville.

Heading the meeting will be chairman Robert G. Little of Rt. 1, Grimesland.

Gen. George Custer and his army were massacred by Sioux Indians in the Battle of the Little Big Horn in Montana in 1876.

Annual Hood Swamp Symphony Ball Scheduled For October 4

Once again this year the East Carolina University Symphony, conducted by Robert Hause, and the Super Grit Cowboy Band, led by Mike Kinzie, will join forces to bring to the public the Second Annual Hood Swamp Symphony Ball.

The concert is to take place at 8 p.m. on Thursday, October 4 in Wright Auditorium on the East Carolina University campus. Tickets at $4 each are available in advance at the Central Ticket Office, Mendenhall Student Center, or from Apple Records. Tickets at the door will be priced at $5. Proceeds from the concert will benefit the East Carolina Symphony Orchestra.

Last year's initial concert of the joint concert of the two groups was videotaped and shown during the summer on WUNC-TV. Popular approval of the program has resulted in an plans for Hause and Kinzie to repeat the event this year, with the concert to feature the combination of symphonic and country rock sounds.

"Much of the success of last year's concert can be attributed to the arrangements of Mike Kinzie," Hause commented. "This year the program will feature three new arrangements by Kinzie as well as a performance by the Symphony of a medley from 'Star Wars.'" Kin-zie, a 1968 graduate of the ECU School of Music, played violin in the symphony. He is now fiddler for Super Grit.

The Super Grit Cowboy Band performs along the East Coast from Georgia to New York. The band is working on its second album, due to be released later this year. Super Grit is appearing today (Sept. 30) at the Wildwood Jam in Hugo, along with the Atlanta Rhythm Section and Mother's Finest.

The East Carolina Symphony, for the past 11 years years under the direction of Hause, has had a number of distinguished artists performing with the orchestra — Ivan Davis, Beverly Wolff, and Grant Johannesen, among others.

Through taped radio broadcasts played on numerous FM stations, as well as appearances on the UNC-TV television network, the orchestra has been heard by thousands of listeners.

Last year, the ECU Symphony was the only Southeast orchestra to be featured in the National Public Radio's Campus Musica broadcast. The orchestra also performs each year with the National Opera Company of Raleigh, both in Raleigh and on the ECU campus.

Playhouse Attractions Set

Six major attractions have been announced for the 1979-80 season of the East Carolina Playhouse, under the auspices of the Department of Drama and Speech.

Season membership by subscription at a savings of 25 percent is available over single admission tickets. Subscription tickets are $12 and can be reserved by calling 757-6390 or by going by the Playhouse office during regular school hours.

Single admission prices will be $3.50 for "Streets of New York," and $2.50 each for the other five productions.

Entertainments for the season, which runs from October 17 and ends April 26, are:

— October 17-20, 22-27 — "The Street of New York," by Barry A. Graef, with music by Richard B. Chodosh. This is the modern musical version of Dion Boucicault's famous 19th century melodrama.

— October 31-November 3, 5-7 — "For Colored Girls Who Have Considered Suicide When The Rainbow Is Enuf" is a choreopoem of narrative pieces, some in prose, some in free verse, performed by seven young black women.

— November 28-December 1, 3-8 — "The Children's Hour," by noted playwright Lillian Hellman. The chilling drama of two young girls who maliciously destroy the lives of two women.

— February 13-16, 18-23 — "Boy Meets Girl," by Bella and Sam Spewack. A comedy set against the background of Hollywood, it involves producers and starlets and two clever writers who seek revenge when their film idea is pilfered.

— March 3-7 — "An Evening of Dance" is a program choreographed by the ECU Dance Faculty. The program will include a mix of brand-new works and older works which are favorites with Playhouse audiences. The dance forms range from modern through jazz and ballet.

— April 16-19, 21-26 — "Equus," by Peter Shaffer. This powerful play amazed audiences in England, then in America and was later made into a movie. A 17-year old stable boy blinds six horses. The psychiatrist treating the boy has his life transformed through contact with the lad in the journey to the inner recesses of a troubled mind.

All performances will be held in the Studio Theater on campus, with curtain time at 8:15 p.m.

Groups interested in special group rates are to call the Playhouse general manager at 757-6390.

Country Music Concert

Outdoor Opry Productions and the Inter Fraternity Council of East Carolina University are jointly presenting a country music concert featuring four well known performers.

The concert, an afternoon one, will be held on Sunday afternoon, October 7, in the area adjacent to the Carolina Opry House on the northeast sector of Greenville Boulevard (U.S. 264 bypass).

Tickets are priced at $7 in advance and $10 at the gate. Advance ticket information is available by calling 758-5570. The Greenville Jaycees will operate a soft drink and food concessions (and no glass containers will be permitted on the premises).

Performers for the concert are Johnny Paycheck, Mike Cross, Clarence "Gatemouth" Brown, and Delbert McClinton.

Paycheck, whose recent song "Take This Job and Shove It," was a country music hit, has had a comeback after some lean years in Los Angeles where his career was interrupted by a bout of drugs and alcohol. At 40, he is a latecomer to success.

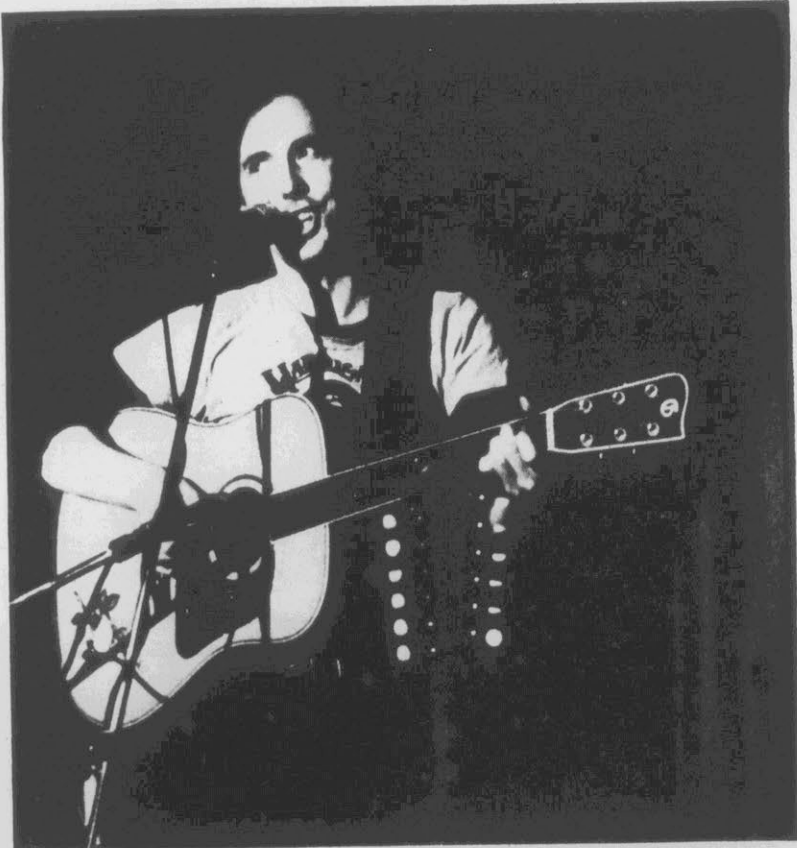

Tennessee native Mike Cross, raised in Lenoir, N.C., studied guitar at UNC-Chapel Hill, and within a year after enrolling, was writing tunes and working as part of a folk duo in small clubs around town. In 1972 Cross began appearing as a solo act on weekends, and in 1973 added the fiddle as another performing instrument. Cross recently performed in downtown Greenville.

Gatemouth Brown is another example of nomadic family movements in America. Born in Louisiana, he moved to Texas one week after birth. At the age of five he was studying with his father, a string musician. Brown was the first artist to record with Peacock Records, the first independently owned black record company. Now settled in New Orleans, Brown has to his credit eight albums, and extensive American and European tours.

"Wake Up Baby," an old Sonny Boy Williamson song, was Delbert McClinton's first record, released in 1960. His 1962 hit, "Hey! Baby," reportedly is the song that turned the Beatles on to rock-and-roll harmonica.

McClinton's six-piece group has received wide acclaim both for records and live performances.

ONE OF FOUR PERFORMERS . . . to appear in the October 7 concert on the grounds adjacent to Carolina Opry House is North Carolina's Mike Cross. Others on the bill are Johnny Paycheck, Clarence "Gatemouth"

Brown, and Delbert McClinton. The concert is being presented jointly by Outdoor Opry Productions and the Inter Fraternity Council of ECU. Tickets are $7 in advance, $10 at the gate.

Hospitality House

Dennis Rogers, columnist for the Raleigh "News and Observer," is the featured guest on Kay Currie's "Hospitality House" airing from 11:30 to noon today. Her show is seen on WITN-TV, Channel 7.

Rogers, who writes about people, places, impressions and events across the state, will discuss some of his most amusing experiences. Also, WITN man Max Freeze has a surprise for Rogers at the end of the show.

Barbecue magic is another topic. In a film segment,

Marlene Cummins of the R. T. French Mustard Co. of Rochester, N. Y. shows how to prepare pinatuburgers, ones with a surprise inside.

The butcher discusses proper ways of cutting steaks.

English Is Best Rock 'n Roll Language

DOMINGO'S 'ROLE OF ROLES' — Spanish tenor Plácido Domingo rehearses the title role in Verdi's "Otello" recently in New York with Gilda Cruz-Romo as Desdemona. Domingo considers "Otello" his 'role of roles,' and he's getting a chance to perform it on one of Grand Opera's 'night of nights,' the opening of the Metropolitan Opera season. (AP Laserphoto)

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer
Sylvie Vartan likes to sing in English. "I think it's the best language to sing contemporary music — rock 'n' roll. It doesn't sound as nice in French. The French language is good for ballads and intellectual kinds of songs. I love French. But I think English sounds better for rock 'n' roll. No doubt."

This is a surprise since Miss Vartan and her husband, Johnny Hallyday, really introduced rock 'n' roll to France — translated into French.
She has sung quite a lot in English this summer as she toured around Europe, since she is singing songs from her first album in English. "I Don't Want The Night To End," on RCA Records. And she hasn't translated them into French.
Her disco single, "I Don't Want The Night To End," entered the American best-selling charts in September.

"I'm impatient to tour in America," Miss Vartan says. "I waited too long now. Now everything gets into place with the record and I'd like to start touring."
"I had a crush on America when I first came here in 1963. I've been living in Los Angeles — in and out of our house there — for 15 years. It took me a long time to feel what I should do here and to know the people and living here. I think you can't make it in a country when you just come for a week or so. You have to live there, eat, have friends, really enjoy. That is part of the knowledge you get."

"I didn't want to work in America before I had a record. It took a year to get that done — to make up my mind who is going to produce it. You waste such a long time in talk and contracts. The audience doesn't know but it is like years of talking about agreements with lawyers. You just can't jump and do it fast. Now it is done and I'm quite happy."
Miss Vartan and Hallyday both tour but not together. Both fill big halls and both have elaborate shows. Miss Vartan has 16 dancers. She cuts down her traveling company from 35 to 24 when she goes as far as Japan.
"The Olympia in Paris holds only 2,000," she says. "In order to make a good show there you'd have to stay for six months. It's impossible for me to stay six months. We're a pretty expensive show. There aren't so many huge places so we have to play in tents like a circus; we play in front of 4,000 people."

When the couple met, both were teenagers. He was a star and she a beginner. A friend of her brother's had needed a girl's voice on a record in 1961 and Miss Vartan sang. The record was a hit.
Hallyday and Miss Vartan toured together in 1963, were married in 1965. Their son David was born in 1966.
Hallyday's cousin, married to an American performer, sent him Elvis Presley records. And some three years after they were hits in America, Hallyday and Miss Vartan translated them into French and made them hits in France.

"The stars in France sang chansons — French songs. There was nothing like rock 'n' roll in France or Europe before, except for jazz, which was concerning only a certain part of the people. When rock 'n' roll came, it was a music teenagers took over. We had crowds of teenagers following us. All of a sudden everybody was aware that there was such an audience," she says.

"We sang 'Don't Be Cruel' in French and Ray Charles' tremendous 'What'd I Say?' We sang the ones that translated well. I'm not talking about the meaning of the lyrics but about the musicality of the words."
"Bad, Bad Leroy Brown" goes well in French. Thelma Houston's "Don't Leave Me This Way" is too rhythm 'n' blues to translate into French. I do it on stage; we built a production number around it. But I knew a record of it wouldn't sell."

Her husband, she says, is still the top rock singer in France.
"He knows how to sing rock 'n' roll," she says. "He has that in his blood. He is the only male singer who can make French swing to rock 'n' roll music. All the other male singers sing softer types of music. In the '60s some tried to sing rock. They disappeared very fast."

Miss Vartan was born in Iskretz, Bulgaria, and speaks Bulgarian with her mother and brother. She also speaks French, English and Italian but thinks she is forgetting her Spanish.
Her father, whose roots were Armenian, spoke French and liked French culture. He gave her a French name, Sylvie, and moved the family to France when she was 8.

Hallyday's parents abandoned him and he was reared by an aunt. His cousin married an American named Ketchum and the two of them used the name of a doctor they thought highly of — Hallyday — as the name of their performing act. When Hallyday started singing at 14 and wanted a stage name, he took the same "good-luck charm" name. Miss Vartan says, "I think he wants to change it legally now."
She named their son for David Copperfield. "I read the book and I had in mind David with blond hair and blue eyes, a poor little kid, so beautiful and miserable and romantic. David is not so common a name in France as it is here." David, who has blond hair and blue eyes, goes to a music conservatory in Paris but, seeing the difficulties of being a rock star, isn't aiming in his parents' direction.

Want Another Meeting With Horrified Teens

WOODBRIDGE, N.J. (AP) — Inmates in the Rahway State Prison program filmed for the "Scared Straight" documentary say they want to meet again with the teen-agers horrified by their brutal accounts of prison life — this time outside the prison walls.

"We need to do more for these kids to keep them from becoming part of the prison population," said V. James Landano, president of the Lifers Group that runs the juvenile awareness program.

"Once they leave here, the kids are going to begin looking at their lives. Unless they get help in school, and unless what we tell them is reinforced, they are going to be a negative statistic," Landano said.

The Lifers have prepared a 12-page proposal outlining follow-up activities to their program. The proposal; was sent to State Corrections Commissioner William H. Fauver for review.

Landano said it includes a suggestion that inmates meet youngsters who participated in the program at least once more. The added sessions would be held on a one-to-one basis outside the prison.

The Lifers Group comprises selected inmates serving life sentences who run a variety of programs, including the juvenile awareness sessions.

The inmates aimed to frighten juveniles from lives of crime by telling them of the horrors of prison life in brutal language and recounting their own experiences as delinquents.

The follow-up suggestions come after the release of a report critical of the program and said it does not deter crime.

An Emmy-award winning documentary showing a session was televised nationally earlier this year.

Several of the teen-agers filmed for the show recently filed suit against the producers and director of the documentary. The suit alleges the teen-agers were promised the film would not be shown in New Jersey and charges it portrayed them as hardened delinquents.

New Drink

HONG KONG (AP) — There's a new drink in town called Hong Kong Cheongsam, named after the body-hugging dress with thigh-high slits.

The drink is made of gin, fresh lemon juice, Seven-Up, egg white, cherry, lemon and cucumber slices and a sprig of mint. It was concocted by a 27-year-old Chinese bartender to compete with the Singapore Sling.

A panel of judges awarded the bartender, Leung Siu-far, $1,000 and a two-week trip to London for his drink after a contest

Film Prizes

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain (AP) — The Soviet film "Autumnal Marathon" by Georgi Danelia received top prize in last week's San Sebastian international film festival.

The prize for best actress went to an Italian, Laura Betti, for her role in "Il Piccolo Archimedes."

The top prize for photography and special effects went to the American science-fiction movie "Alien."

In 1791, the first year in which divorce was legalized in France, more than 6,000 marriages were dissolved.

ARMY VOCALIST — SFC Vernon D. Ryer of Riviera Beach, Md., is the vocal soloist who will be singing with the Jazz Ambassadors in concert at 8:30 p.m. Monday, Oct. 8. Advance tickets can be obtained free of charge from "The Daily Reflector" office, 209 Cotanche Street.

After 775 Years' Stallions No Longer Adorn San Marco's Facade

Remember

THE CHANGING SCENE—These shacks, when photographed in 1975, once stood at the entrance of Wanchese harbor. The rustic landmarks have since faded from the scene through neglect while within the harbor a new round of expansion and improvements are actively changing the vista of this busy fishing port on the southern tip of Roanoke Island. (J. Foster Scott photo, Dare County Tourist Bureau).

By GREGORY JENSEN
LONDON (UPI) — Four gilded stallions have pranced across the facade of San Marco's basilica in Venice for 775 years. Because of pollution, they will prance there no more.

One of the famous steeds, among the greatest treasures and greatest puzzles of antiquity, has come to London as the star of a brief but stunning exhibition called "The Horses of San Marco" at the Royal Academy of Arts.

This is only the last chapter in at least 1,600 years of turbulent history for the splendid steeds. But the upheaval means some of their mystery may at last be solved.

The San Marco horses are the only four-horse group anywhere to survive from antiquity. Probably they once adorned the chariot-race Hippodrome in Constantinople. Crusaders looted them for Venice in 1204. Napoleon hauled them to Paris in 1797 as the spoils of war.

But despite their inspiration to artists from Leonardo da Vinci onward, they are still a puzzle. Nobody knows who made them — or where or when.

During the 18 months it took to persuade Italy to let one of the horses travel to London, two experts from the British Museum tackled the mystery and now claim to have solved part of it.

San Marco's horses, according to Andrew Oddy and Paul Craddock, are not Greek, as most scholars thought. They're not bronze, as once believed, but almost pure copper. And they date from the 3rd or 4th century A.D.

Yet many doubts remain. The Royal Academy details the scientific search for answers. For artistic comparison, it surrounds the San Marco horse with a magnificent group of ancient Greek and Roman steeds. There are paintings and drawings from Leonardo to Canaletto inspired by San Marco's horses.

Most of these masterpieces are overshadowed by the great San Marco horse itself, second from the left in the original Venetian grouping.

The Royal Academy has built him a high diagonal stage across its biggest gallery. He stands on it in splendid isolation against a blank beige wall. Everyone who enters the gallery seems to gasp involuntarily at the sight of him.

Elsewhere the exhibition and a lavish accompanying book demonstrate that everything about the San Marco horses is a bit peculiar.

They're not precisely like any known breed of horse. Their composition of 98 percent copper is most odd. The technique used to gild them has been found so far on only five other ancient statues.

After nearly eight centuries on San Marco's facade, the horses are now being replaced by replicas. Italian authorities decided to move the great golden steeds inside, out of Venice's corroding atmosphere, although no one yet knows where they will be kept.

As a fascinating sidelight, the London exhibition includes a movie on the "Morgan horse," a breed close to the San Marco type.

This high-stepping breed died out in Europe about 1750, but is still thriving in the United States thanks to a stallion owned by a Vermont farmer named Morgan, which sired descendants scattered across America.

Book News

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By Julie Hicks

David Koskoff has just written a new book called THE MELLONS: THE CHRONICLE OF AMERICA'S RICHEST FAMILY about a group of people who are worth more than five billion dollars and who are much wealthier than the Rockefellers, the Fords, and the Duponts. The Mellons may not be as famous as those other families, but it is because they want it that way. This biography is unauthorized but the author is not at all unkind as he traces these people from the humble beginnings of the dynasty (with the birth of Judge Thomas Mellon on a potato farm in Ireland in 1813) to the present day. Koskoff deals in depth with the most prominent of the Mellons: Andrew ("A. W.") Mellon, U.S. Secretary of the Treasury during the 1930's; Matthew Mellon, a Nazi Germany sympathizer during the 30's; Dr. Larry Mellon, an Albert Schweitzer type; Billy Hichcock, the world's leading manufacturer and distributor of LSD in the 60's; Audrey and Stephen Currier, primary financiers of the civil rights movement before their mysterious disappearance; Richard Scaife, a million-dollar contributor to the Nixon presidential campaign of 1972; Jay Mellon, the big-game hunter; and Karl the "hippie Mellon." From this listing it can be seen that the Mellons are a diverse lot having little in common besides their wealth and their family name. The building process of the empire is clearly outlined. The formation and growth of such family enterprises as Gulf Oil Corporation, Alcoa, and the Mellon National Bank of Pittsburgh. The Mellons' influence is felt in many areas of the country. In Pittsburgh alone it is said of them: "Nothing moves in Pittsburgh without the Mellons."

IN THE VANGUARD, by Peggy Lamson, is a subjective selection of women whom the author admires as public figures: Congresswomen Millicent Fenwick (New Jersey) and Elizabeth Holtzman (New York); Secretary of Commerce Juanita Kreps; Eleanor Holmes Nobles, director of the Equal Opportunity Commission; Judge Rose Bird, Chief Justice of the California Supreme Court; and State Senator Elaine Noble (Massachusetts). As far as the author's writing ability is concerned, the sketch of Norton is the best for she almost comes to life on the printed page before the reader. However, all six deserve to be revealed to the public for service rendered and for jobs done with enthusiasm and loyalty to their respective causes.

Dr. Lawrence J. Peter, author of THE PETER PRINCIPLE and PETER'S QUOTATIONS, has written a third book called PETER'S PEOPLE. This latest book is written with wit and admiration and deals with public figures of particular interest to the author and to all of us. Humorous profiles of celebrities like Johnny Carson and Richard Nixon are included in which Dr. Peter briefly related significant biographical facts about his subjects. But perhaps what is most informative and interesting are the imaginary interview he conducts with Mark Twain, Will Rogers, and Oscar Wilde to name a few. (For these "interviews," Peter relied on speeches, letters and/or personal writings of these men). All in all, the funniest portion of the book is the listing of whimsical laws and principles in which the author has expounded upon and linked together Murphy's and Parkinson's Laws with his own Principle.

Poetry Forum To Meet

The first meeting for the month of October of the ECU Poetry Forum will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday, October 4. The meeting will be in Room 248 in Mendenhall Student Center. Dr. Peter Makuck, director of the forum, invites all persons interested in poetry to attend.

Those with poetry to be read are asked to bring several copies of poems to be shared with others in attendance.

The Poetry Forum is held on the first and third Thursdays of each month. There is no fee involved, and refreshments are served.

Art Contest

NORFOLK, VA. — Initial plans have been announced for the Irene Leache Memorial Art Exhibition to be held Feb. 24 to April 6, 1980 at the Chrysler Museum in Norfolk.

Artists 18 years old and older who were born in or now reside in North Carolina, Virginia, Washington, D.C. and five other southern states are eligible to enter.

The competition is for paintings in all media and graphics, including drawings. Entry fee is $10 to cover one, two, or three entries.

Awards to be given are one $1,500 prize and three $500 prizes, and the work is to be juried by Leon Anthony Arkus, Director of the Museum of Art of Carnegie Institute, Pittsburgh.

Artists planning to enter the show are to first write to: Art Show, Box 6087, Norfolk, Va., 23508 for entry cards and full details of applicable rules. The initial step will involve sending color slides. Friday, Dec. 7 is the deadline for this action.

Beaufort Festival

WASHINGTON — The Beaufort County Arts Council is holding its annual Fall Crafts Festival on Saturday, October 13. The event will begin at 10 a.m. and last until 5 p.m. in the Washington Art and Civic Center (Old Train Depot) located on the corner of Main and Gladden Streets.

Area artists are urged to take part in the festival. Interested persons should visit the Arts Council office, call 946-2504, or write: Beaufort County Arts Council, P.O. Box 634, Washington, N.C., 27889 for further information.

Current Events

N.C. Fair Photo Contest

RALEIGH — Officials of the North Carolina State Fair have announced the first "Great Fair Fotos" contest open to all amateur and professional photographers residing in the state.

Pictures will be accepted in the following categories: People, agriculture, amusement and entertainment. They must be taken during the upcoming fair being held October 12-20 and be submitted for judging by December 15.

Thirty-two pictures will be accepted, with purchase awards totaling $2,170 being offered. Pictures selected by the jurors will be included in a Traveling Exhibit planned for exposure state-wide and at next year's fair. Certain selections may be used in promotional literature for the fair.

There are no entry fees and final judging will be completed by January 15, January 15, 1980.

Anniversary For Wolfe Book

ASHEVILLE — Fifty years ago all Asheville was up in arms about the publication of a book by one of her native sons. The book was "Look Homeward, Angel," published on October 18, 1929. The author was young Thomas Wolfe.

Now, after half a century, the situation is different, and citizens of Asheville are proud of the man they once criticized so strongly.

If Thomas Wolfe had lived, he would be 79 on October 3, and that is the date chosen to celebrate Wolfe and the golden anniversary of his most famous work.

A special exhibit will be put on at Pack Memorial Library, and his home, now a state historic site, will be the setting for an open house, free to the public.

The celebration will last throughout the week, and in conjunction with the event, the Asheville Jaycees have announced the establishment of an annual award designed to encourage local high school writers in the search for the Thomas Wolfe of the next generation.

Greenville Artists In Show

GREENSBORO — Four artists from Greenville are among 26 of the state's sculptors whose work will be represented in the exhibition, "North Carolina Sculpture '79," at the Weatherspoon Art Gallery, UNC-Greensboro. The exhibit opens October 7 and runs through October 31.

The four and their works are: George Brett, "Four on the Floor," a work of fiber and wood; John J. Gresko, "Thanks, J.H.," a steel sculpture; John Quinn, "Homage to Concrete and Steel," and Arthur Shirer II with two pieces, "Full Tilt Boogie" and "Fall Planes," both of painted steel.

Weatherspoon is open to the public at no charge. Hours are 10-5 Tuesday through Friday, and 2-6 on weekends. The gallery will be closed October 13-16 for UNC-G's fall break.

POET HONORED

NEW YORK (AP) — Muriel Rukeyser will be honored for her contribution to contemporary poetry at the third annual New York Quarterly Poetry Day Awards banquet Oct. 15.

William Packard, editor of the publication, said of Rukeyser, "Her work reaches all the way back to the '30s, and she has always spoken with a brave, strong voice. Her poems express deep emotion, intelligence, and wit. She makes us feel, she makes us think, and she makes us laugh."

Palladio Buildings Outside Venice Are Architectural Glories

By FREDERICK M. WINSHIP Venice are beginning to look the lagoon for some of the greatest glories of Venetian architecture — the mainland villas built by 16th century architect Andrea Palladio for city-weary Venetian nobility.

ALMOST THROWN AWAY — A $50,000 wall hanging purchased for a newly constructed Atlanta building was nearly thrown away last week by workmen who mistook it for a painter's dropcloth. The 15-by-40 oil on canvas work is titled "Triple Variations" and includes a 17-foot aluminum beam placed on the floor to the painting's right and two marble boulders on the floor to the left. (AP Laserphoto)

Americans find them particularly fascinating because much American architecture, including the White house, is a knockoff of Palladio.

Unlike the palaces that line Venice's canals cheek-by-jowl, these villas adorn verdant country settings on the flat Veneto plain and along the Brenta canal. They were used for vacationing, hunting and elaborate garden fetes.

Although most are still privately owned, a representative group in the triangular area between Venice, Treviso and Vicenza have been opened to the public at varying but modest admission fees. Most of the villas were known formerly only to architectural specialists and art students.

They can be visited independently, but this is apt to be disappointing because of the staggered schedules of days when they are open and the out-of-the-way location of several.

It is wise to book a unique one-day tour through the Cigahotels chain's Venice hotels (Gritti Palace, Danieli, Regine & Europa, Excelsior, Hotel des Bains) with a car and experienced driver. In some cases, Ciga can make special arrangements for visits to villas on days they are normally closed.

On Sundays, a tour boat plies between Villa Malcontenta and Padua on the Brenta canal which was the glamorous water approach to many villas before they fell into disrepair with the decline of Venice's fortunes in the 19th century.

Palladio, a Vicenza stonemason, was taken by a rich patron to Rome where he learned the elements of classic architecture. He returned to Vicenza and some of his most monumental public buildings can be seen there including the city hall, civic museum and the Teatro Olimpico. His finest work in Venice is three churches — San Giorgio Maggiore, San Francesco della Vigna, and Il Redentore.

But it was his classic concepts of harmonious proportion, balance, symmetry and repose as applied to his smaller, but still palatial villas that was to have its greatest influence on the history of architecture. Some 200 years after Palladio's death, the architects of 18th century England, Ireland and America revived these concepts in what we know as Georgian architecture.

American colonial and federal architecture owes its emphasis on pillars and pilasters, pedimented doors and windows and ornamental moldings to Palladio. Thomas Jefferson's Monticello is a perfect Palladian structure strongly influenced by Villa La Rotonda near Vicenza.

Villa Foscari, built in 1574 on the Brenta close by Venice, is a good place to start your tour. Better known as Villa Malcontenta, it illustrates Palladio's architectural principles at their simplest.

Malcontenta is a cube with rooms cut out of the four corners, leaving a cruciform central room. It has a neoclassic portico that presages those of many an ante bellum southern mansion. The interior is light and airy and enhanced by luminous murals, and there is an interesting kitchen restored to its original appearance.

In more elaborate villas, Palladio extended the facade with flanking and perfectly balanced arcaded wings housing rooms for servants and farm help, granaries, tool storage, stables, and towers for pigeons. One of the most perfect examples of this revolutionary concept of countryhouse architecture is Villa Barbaro at Maser, whose handsome flankers are surmounted by two large sundials.

Villa Barbaro, which has its own church, is still a working farm and is set in a lovely landscape of fields, vineyards and forests. It has a Paul Roman statue, Veronese murals of Olympian gods and the Barbaro family and their servants and a lily pool and grotto adorned with

Separate Careers

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — The highly successful country music duo of Jim Ed Brown and Helen Cornelius has decided to split the act and embark on separate careers.

"Jim Ed and Helen have simply reached a point where it seems to make sense for them to go in new directions," said Tandy Rice, Brown's personal manager.

"There is absolutely no rancor or animosity between them. Their show is just evolving into two separate road shows, effective in January, 1980. There is nothing but good will between everyone involved," Rice said.

He said the two country stars plan to record together occasionally, but the main emphasis of their careers will be on individual projects. Both will remain active in their syndicated television show, "Nashville On The Road."

The two artists first teamed in 1976 and since that time they have had a succession of hits in the country music field. They are among the five nominees for this year's Country Music Association "Vocal Duo Of The Year," which they won in 1977.

The Brown-Cornelius team has had five No. 1 songs, including "I Don't Want To Have To Marry You," "You Don't Send Me Flowers," "Lying In Love With You."

Another current single, "Fools," appears headed for the top of the charts.

"Both careers are just booming. It's a good idea to redefine roles while you are on top, not in the valley. We're excited about it," Rice said.

North Carolina Judge First Greet Jurors In Courtroom

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — When U.S. District Judge Franklin T. Dupree enters a courtroom, he greets the jurors first, each and every time.

Then he greets the court staff and parties in the case.

Why? "Because they (the jurors) are important. I'm trying to correct some things I know were bad with the system," he said recently in an interview with The Fayetteville Times.

When he was a practicing lawyer, he said, "I saw jurors, term after term of court, treated like second-and third-class citizens."

Not in his court they aren't. He exhibits a courtly air with them, almost paternalistic at times. And the jurors don't seem to mind it a bit. In fact, during the recent triple-murder trial of Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald, some brought him cakes, for which he thanked them in open court.

In June, Dupree became the chief judge for the eastern district of the state after serving as a judge in the district since 1971.

Attorneys have learned that Dupree doesn't take the administration of justice lightly. Dupree's chambers aren't the place for telling war stories. When lawyers do fine their way into the large panelled, but worklike office, they will likely find Dupree hard at work, pouring over law books, reading briefs, writing opinions.

He also becomes noticeably irritated when an attorney hasn't done his homework or appears to be wasting time.

"I think impatient is a better word," Dupree said. "Judges aren't supposed to become irritated ... This is serious business."

Serious business, indeed. Historians are looked upon with disfavor, and Dupree sounds like a stern, very stern father as he admonishes an attorney who has gone too far.

He appears obsessed with fairness, not just with legal hairsplitting. In his ruling earlier this year denying the Wilmington 10's request for a new trial, Dupree agreed that mistakes had been made. But, he said, defendants — he pronounces the word so there can be no mistaking how it is spelled — are guaranteed only a fair trial, not a perfect one.

The attitude carried over to the MacDonald case. Defense attorneys sought to show the Army botched its investigation into the deaths of the former Green Beret's family. Perhaps, said Dupree, but a defendant isn't guaranteed a perfect investigation.

It was also seen in his attitude toward Helena Stoeckley, a former heroin addict MacDonald's attorneys tried to implicate in the killings.

She testified that in 1970 the word "pig" was a common word in her vocabulary.

"And when you used the word 'pig' who did you mean?" Assistant U.S. Attorney James Blackburn asked.

Miss Stoeckley turned in her seat and stared at Dupree. The judge looked amused, sat straight up in his chair, pointed to himself and nodded vigorously. Then he said calmly and with a smile, "The witness withdraws that answer."

He probably wouldn't have taken it lightly from most witnesses. But again, the issue of fairness was raised. Later, Dupree said Miss Stoeckley was one of the most tragic figures he had ever seen in his courtroom. He barred virtually all testimony about remarks she had made over the years. The ruling appeared to have much to do with fairness. MacDonald's attorneys are expected to base part of their appeal of the triple-murder conviction on Dupree's ruling.

However, if Dupree's track record on the case is any indication, the ruling will stand. Twice before his rulings on the case have gone to the U.S. Supreme Court, and he has been upheld both times.

When asked what would be the highest compliment he could be paid, he replied, "That litigants in my court were treated fairly, courteously, with dignity and that, win or lose, they were able to saay, when their case was over, that they had a fair trial."

In the interview, Dupree declined comment on any of his rulings in the MacDonald case, saying only, "All my rulings are in conformity to the federal rules of evidence."

Dupree, 65, has the reputation as a conservative and as a judge who shuns the limelight. He rarely gives interviews.

"I simply think it is unprofessional to try cases in the newspapers," he said.

"I am a staunch advocate of the freedom of the press under the First Amendment," he said. "It is the most basic of the bulwarks standing between the government and its citizens."

But, he said, "The press almost never accurately reports court proceedings. Reporters are not lawyers and frequently miss the import of what takes place in law. We have a jargon of our own."

Asked if he could think of a trial or a pre-trial hearing from which the press should be excluded, Dupree said, "I know of none offhand and have had none in my experience."

Dupree, a graduate of the University of North Carolina, is known as a workaholic, often working on weekends and holidays. He also demands punctuality, and those attending the MacDonald trial learned they could virtually set their watches by his arrival in the courtroom at the beginning of each session.

Septic Tank Bay

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — The southern tip of San Francisco Bay has become a virtual septic tank, a dead sea where officials say a sewage spill has wiped out marine life.

A sewer plant manager says the problem may take weeks to correct, but state officials say the bay may not recover for years.

The area stricken by the breakdown of a San Jose sewage treatment plant "is now a zone of total mortality," state Fish and Game biologist Michael V. Rudd said Friday. "Nothing is alive."

Commercial and sports fishing species and beds that produce up to 50,000 pounds of bay shrimp annually are dead, officials said.

"There aren't any fish south of the Dumbarton Bridge," said commercial fisherman Tony Otis, who first tipped the state to the problem.

The affected area is a section of the extreme southern tip of the bay, an area about 3½ miles long and 2 miles wide at the widest point. The sewage is entering a narrow arm of the bay that juts east of San Jose.

Over The Pile

East Carolina University running back Sam Harrell (25) makes his way over a pile of East Carolina and Virginia Military Institute players during Saturday night action at Ficklen Stadium in Greenville. ECU's Anthony Collins (33) moves in for assistance. East Carolina won the contest, 45-10, snapping a three-game losing streak. (AP Laserphoto).

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

For the past three weeks, the East Carolina football team has been a frustrated one. Last night, they worked out those frustrations in a 45-10 whipping of Virginia Military Institute.

Three times, after their opening win against Western Carolina, the Pirates came away in road trips with losses, all to Atlantic Coast Conference schools.

But this weekend, it was back home to Ficklen Stadium, and the Southern Conference Keydets proved no match from the opening gun.

Only four scrimmage plays into the game, the Pirates were on the scoreboard, and they never let up. Sam Harrell scored twice for the Pirates, on runs of 2 and 61 yards, while Leander Green (13 yards), Anthony Collins (6 yards), Mike Hawkins (12 yards) and Henry Trevathan (29 yards) each scored once.

Bill Lamm added all six PATs along with a 33 yard field goal.

VMI's scores came on a 47 yard field goal by Craig Jones in the second period, and a late touchdown run of 41 yards by Floyd Allen. Jones also added the PAT.

For the most part, however, VMI was frustrated in its attempts to move the ball. The Keydets accounted for 253 yards in total offense, but much of that came in the second half against the second and third units.

The Pirates, meanwhile, using three offensive units, rambled for 561 yards of total offense, just missing 400 yards in rushing.

Collins again was the leader in the statistics, picking up 112 yards, including one 74 yarder.

Harrell carried for 96 yards, while Marvin Cobb was next with 58.

Green's passing was at its best, as he hit six of nine for 164 yards. Billy Ray Washington pulled in three of those for 125 yards, including one of 60 and another for 50. Vern Davenport caught three for 39 yards.

Coach Pat Dye pointed out that the past three weeks have been difficult for the Pirates. "I was glad to get back home for a number of reasons.

"I think we did a good job of preparation for VMI, particularly because of the situation we were in," Dye added. "I think the assistant coaches and the seniors deserve a lot of credit for not letting three defeats kill our morale and enthusiasm."

Dye heaped praise on Green, calling him the best wishbone quarterback he's ever seen. "And it was good to get Billy Ray back into the picture. He made one fantastic catch when the defender had the ball intercepted and he took it away from him."

But while Dye felt that the offense performed well, he said the defense still left him with some questions. "We didn't make the mistakes we made the last few weeks," he said.

The Pirates got the first break of the game when starting VMI quarterback Larry Hupertz fumbled and Ruffin McNeill recovered on the Keydet 31 on the first play from scrimmage.

It took only three plays for the Pirates to get on the scoreboard. On the first play, Green rolled out and kept for 16 yards, then gave to Collins for two more to the 13. Green went around the right side on the third play, ripping off the last 13 yards untouched. Lamm's boot made it 7-0 with 13:39 showing.

The Pirates got it back after forcing a VMI punt, at their own 36. Green hit Davenport on the first play for 22 yards to the Keydet 42. After five yards by Theodore Sutton, Harrell ripped off 20 more on a quick pitch to the left side of the 17. After two more plays netted a first down at the five, Green lost a yard, then flipped to Collins on a quick pitch, to the right side, for the six yards to the end zone. With 6:18 left in the period, the Pirates led, 14-0.

The Pirates lost a chance in the later minutes of the period when a penalty nullified a run to the VMI 33 by Sutton. Then, just seconds before the period ended, the Pirates gave VMI its first scoring opportunity, losing a fumble at the ECU 34.

The Keydets failed to pick up a first down, and settled for Jones' 43-yard field goal, cutting it to 14-3 with 14:17 left in the half.

The Pirates quickly came back with a field goal of their own. Taking over on their own seven after the kickoff, the Pirates got five yards on the first play, then Collins took an option toss from Green around the right side, broke away and dashed 74 yards to the VMI 14 before he finally ran out of gas and was pushed out of bounds. The Pirates failed to move the ball after that, however, and settled for Lamm's 33-yard field goal, moving it to 17-3 with 11:12 to play. The kick was Hamm's 17th career, a new ECU record.

After holding VMI just over midfield, the Pirates began another scoring drive from their own 20 following a punt. After getting a first down at the 31, Green hit Washington at the VMI 19, a 50-yard gain. Harrell and Green accounted for nine more yards in two carries, to the ten. Four plays later, on third down, Harrell took a quick pitch into the line on the left side for the final two yards. With 4:44 left, the Pirates now led, 24-3.

VMI pushed back to the ECU 42 before a penalty and the Pirate defense stopped them late in the half.

The Pirates picked up right where they left off in the second half. Four plays after the kickoff, they had scored again. Green hit Davenport for six yards on the first play, then after one by Harrell, Collins picked up 12 to the 39. Harrell, trailing Green, took an option toss on the left side and cut downfield, racing 61 yards for the score, behind a crushing block by Washington, and that made it 31-3 with just 1:22 gone in the third quarter.

After forcing a punt, the Pirates started another drive on their 22. On the first play, Green hit Washington for 60 yards to the VMI 18. Collins picked up six yards, then Hawkins took a pitch, cut into the left side of the line and went the final 12. With 11:10 to go in the third, it was then 38-3.

Wally Meyers gave the Pirates the ball for their final score on an interception at the VMI 28. Behind the guidance of second string quarterback Henry Trevathan, the Pirates marched in eight plays to the five. But after a Jesse Hilton run for the score was scratched by a penalty, the Pirates were thrown back to the 29. Trevathan kept the ball heading left, was hit hard, but refused to go down. He cut back to the right, then outraced the Keydets into the end zone, and with 4:20 left, the Pirates led, 45-3.

VMI, working against the second unit, moved down to the Pirate 16 before turning the ball over on downs in the final quarter. A few plays later, the Pirates failed on a fourth-and-one attempt at midfield, turning the ball back.

VMI used just three plays to score its only touchdown of the night. That score came on a 41-yard run by Allen with 8:09 left.

Carlton Nelson, the third string quarterback, led another Pirate drive, down to the 21 before two straight losses killed it, and a 48-yard field goal try by Davenport was partially blocked and fell short.

The Pirates now take a week off before playing host to The Citadel on October 13 for Homecoming.

Nebraska Rolls Past Penn St.

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — The Cornhuskers' tight end got his hands on the ball enough to tip it to Wise, who carried it 30 yards for the touchdown with three minutes left in the quarter.

This was the seventh time that an opposing team had scored more than 30 points against Penn State during Joe Paterno's 132-game career.

Eighteenth-ranked Penn State, working against the sixth-ranked Huskers, added another three points in the fourth quarter on a 35-yard field goal by Herb Menhardt.

Brown's go-ahead touchdown came just 58 seconds after Miller took an aerial from Hager, running it the last 28 yards of a 70-yard play to the goal line.

Penn State's two-touchdown lead in the opening quarter came on a 19-yard pass and a 40-yard pass-run play.

Penn State opened the scoring when Brad Scovill caught a pass from quarterback Dayle Tate a step out of the end zone with 8:23 left in the quarter. The Nittany Lions' second touchdown came on an interception by defensive halfback Tom Wise after Nebraska quarterback Hager passed to Miller.

The Cornhuskers' tight end got his hands on the ball enough to tip it to Wise, who carried it 30 yards for the touchdown with three minutes left in the quarter.

Winning Combo

North Carolina placekicker Nathan Ritter (13) jumps into the arms of Wolfpack quarterback Scott Smith after kicking a 41-yard field goal in the fourth quarter as the Wolfpack defeated Wake Forest, 17-14, in Saturday's game played at Carter-Finley Stadium in Raleigh, N.C. (AP Laserphoto).

Wolfpack Holds Off Determined Deacons

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Somebody had to win, and North Carolina State coach Bo Rein was predictably happy when his Wolfpack wound up on the top side of a 17-14 verdict in their wire-to-wire struggle Saturday with Wake Forest.

"First, let me say the win is a real tribute to our team," he said after Nathan Ritter's 41-yard field goal with 5:13 left in the game ended a spirited comeback that saw Wake Forest tie the game on the second of two touchdown passes by quarterback Jay Venuto.

"Our hearts go out to that team (Wake Forest) over there. They will be a great football team."

The victory over John Mackovic's Demon Deacons gave the Wolfpack a 4-0 record. They won the game primarily because quarterback Scott Smith came through in the clutch, as he has throughout the season. Smith ran for two touchdowns to the delight of a crowd of 44,800 fans at Carter-Finley Stadium.

"We couldn't have won without Smith's 27-yard run for the touchdown," said Rein. "You've got to say the same thing about their man (Venuto).

"We'd get a hand on him and he's side-arm it and make some big plays. They're two great players under any conditions."

The latter was a reference to the rain that fell hard throughout the first half.

"Both teams played well enough to win the game," said Mackovic. "This was a well-played game under the circumstances of the weather."

Mackovic said the Deacons were able to move the ball well in the second half.

"Until we establish the pass we just can't run the ball effectively," he said.

Wake Forest, now 3-1, tied the game early in the fourth period when Venuto, among the NCAA leaders in total offense, threw a 27-yard touchdown pass to tight end Michael Mullen.

State had taken a 14-7 lead in the third period when Smith, tied for NCAA scoring lead prior to the game, scored his eighth touchdown of the season on a 24-yard run. He put the Wolfpack on the board first by scoring from a yard out in the second period.

Venuto, who has hampered considerably by a hard rain that fell during the first half, got Wake Forest even at 7-7 with an eight-yard touchdown pass to Wayne Bamgardner in the third period.

Neither team was any match for the elements throughout most of the first half. Slips on cuts and dropped passes were the order of each drive.

The Wolfpack suffered most from the wet going in the first period.

A fumble by Woodrow Wilson on a Deacon punt was recovered by Rick Dadouris at the Wolfpack 35. While Wake Forest was unable to capitalize, the turnover kept N.C. State in its own end for the first half of the opening period.

The Wolfpack drove deep into Deacon territory twice in the first half before Smith scored.

In the first period they disdained a field goal in a fourth-and-two situation and gave up the ball when Billy Ray Vickers was stopped after a one-yard gain at the Wake Forest four.

Next, they were fouled when the center snap was high and a delay in the placement caused Ritter's 33-yard field goal attempt to hit the left upright.

Watson Takes Lead At Akron With 65

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Tom Watson, the outstanding player in the game for the last three years, fired a solid, no-bogey, 5-under-par 65 and took the lead Saturday in the rain-delayed second round of the World Series of Golf.

Watson, who has acquired a record $447,636 and five titles already this season, took command of the chase for a $100,000 first prize with a 36-hole total of 133, seven shots under par on the rain-soaked, 7,180-yard Firestone Country Club course.

Friday's play was washed out by an all-day rain that left the greens on the long course soft and holding, providing the elite field with the opportunity to go boldly for the flags. A double round of 36 holes is scheduled Sunday.

"You can throw the ball into the pin with any club you have," said Watson, virtually assured of a third consecutive sweep of the Vardon Trophy, Player of the Year honors and the leading money-winning spot.

"The greens are so soft, and putting so true, you can't help but shoot a good score."

While there were other good ones this mild, hazy fall day, Watson's was the best by two shots.

Lon Hinkle, one of the longest hitters on the PGA Tour, moved into second place at 134, a single stroke back. Hinkle birdied five of his first six holes but had to resort to some luck — including skipping one off the surface of the pond to the green on the 16th — to salvage his round of 67.

"Well," said Hinkle, the protagonist of the famed tree-planting incident at the U.S. Open this year, "you can't say I don't have imagination."

He grinned a bit and added: "When you hit it the way I do, you've got to come up with something."

He said he'd actually planned the shot off the surface of the pond. At least partially.

"I had to hit it under a tree and over a bridge," he said. "I tried to skip it off the pond."

"But I got little bush coming out and that took something off the ball. It hit the water and skipped down and ran up on the green. I hadn't planned that second skip. You can't figure on that. It's the sort of shot that, in a practice round, you're gonna pull off less than 50 percent of the time."

Lee Trevino holed a 12-foot birdie putt on the final hole to tie Tom Kite and Ryder Cup hero Larry Nelson for third place at 135, two shots back of Watson. Trevino had a 68, Nelson 67 and Kite a 68.

The group at 136 included Bill Rogers, J.C. Snead and Howard Twitty. Snead matched par 70, Twitty had a 67 and Rogers spiced his 3-under-par effort with an eagle-2 on the 14th hole.

Andy Bean, the first round leader with a brilliant 64, went 11 shots higher with a 75 that left him six shots back at 139.

Watson missed only two greens and really wasn't in major danger of making a bogey. He chipped close on one green he missed and dropped a 5-foot saving putt on the other.

He scored from 10 feet on the second hole, dropped putts of 20 and 35 feet on the fourth and fifth, flipped a little pitching wedge to within a foot of the cup on No. 11 and holed a 15-footer on the 14th.

Pre-Olympic Year Not At All Normal

NEW YORK (AP) — Normally, a pre-Olympic season is an off-year in track and field. Not so in 1979.

Not with Sebastian Coe coming out of obscurity and shattering world records in the 800, the 1,500 and the mile — the first runner in history to hold all three records simultaneously.

Not with Pietro Mennea, the self-proclaimed fastest 200 runner in the world, slicing through Mexico City's thin air for a world record in his favorite distance, after having cracked the world mark in the rarely run 300.

Not with Evelyn Ashford, taking a year off from school to strengthen herself by running on the surf and sand, and running long distances in an effort to show she belonged with the world's best sprinters, then proving her point by beating world record holders Marlies Gohr and Marita Koch in the same meet.

Not with Larry Myricks, out of little Mississippi College, leaping into the record books with the best long jump ever at sea level.

Not with Miruts Yifter, the little Ethiopian, winning a series of major international long distance races with amazing regularity, thanks to a killing stretch run.

Not with Renaldo Nehemiah and Edwin Moses, the kings of the high and intermediate hurdles, respectively, asserting their dominance again with impressive victories over top-flight opposition.

And not with Steve Ovett, Coe's British countryman, showing that he is nearly as good as the world record holder with some eye-popping times.

No, it certainly was not an off-season for track and field's boys and girls of summer.

But the best is yet to come ... next summer.

It will be the year of the XXII Summer Olympiad, and with Moscow the host city, the Soviet Union undoubtedly will be out to demonstrate its power both on and off the track.

The Russians showed some of their might during this year's Spartacade, the Olympic dress rehearsal, then displayed more of their power during the World Cup at Montreal and in the World University Games at Mexico City.

But the Russians kept some of their star athletes under wraps during those meets, but they most certainly will launch them in an all-out assault in 1980, when a lot more is at stake.

However, the rest of the world will be waiting for them, and with some heavy artillery of their own.

The United States, a group of European All-Stars and East Germany finished ahead of the Russian men in the World Cup, and East Germany edged the Soviets in the women's competition at Montreal.

Fighting Irish Crush Michigan St., 27-3

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — Senior halfback Vagas Ferguson scored two third-quarter touchdowns and rushed for 169 yards in 28 carries Saturday to lead 16th-ranked Notre Dame to a 27-3 victory over sixth-ranked Michigan State, snapping the Spartans' win streak at 10 games.

Ferguson scored on runs of 24 and 48 yards to help the Irish pull away from a 13-3 halftime advantage and go on to register their second win in three games. Michigan State, 3-1, had not lost since Notre Dame defeated them at East Lansing 29-25 Oct. 7, 1978.

Ferguson's first touchdown culminated an 87-yard Irish drive in 12 plays with 5:42 left in the third period. On the next Irish possession, Ferguson tipped along the sidelines for about 30 yards of his 48-yard touchdown run on a fourth-and-one play with 1:56 remaining in the third period.

The Notre Dame defense shut down the Spartans' passing attack, holding MSU to its lowest point total since Michigan State lost to Ohio State 21-0 in 1975. Michigan State's only points came on the last play of the first half when Morten Anderson booted a 53-yard field goal, tying the Notre Dame stadium record.

Notre Dame's first touchdown, a 14-yard scoring pass from quarterback Rusty Lisch to end Tony Hunter, with four minutes to go in the first quarter, gave the Irish a 7-0 lead they never relinquished.

Senior kicker Chuck Male added two second-quarter field goals, one a career long 49-yarder with 7:09 left in the second quarter and the second a 36-yarder with 2:38 left in the half. Male, 8-for-8 in field goals this season, also was responsible for pinning Michigan State deep in their own territory with his long kickoffs.

The Notre Dame defense held Michigan State to only nine yards passing in the first half. Michigan State had to use its second- and third-string quarterbacks after regular Bert Vaughn was injured in the first half and had to be hospitalized.

The Spartans' best drive came in the opening quarter when they went to the Notre Dame 11 but safety Tom Gibbons intercepted a Vaughn pass at the goal line and returned it 51 yards.

Cavaliers Race Past Blue Devils, 30-12

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — A 30-12 Atlantic Coast Conference triumph over Duke Saturday raised football fever at the University of Virginia to its highest level in a decade, but the euphoria did not envelope Cavalier coach Dick Betswick.

"I'm happy with the win," Betswick said after Virginia turned Duke mistakes into a 17-point second quarter and victory.

"But the players all know that the first part of the schedule is not the toughest. We have a rocky road ahead and we'll have to intensify our play to keep winning."

Betswick was satisfied with his team's first half performance, saying "We played real well."

But he went on to note "we made the same mistakes in the second half that we did last week against VMI. The players need to learn to play with intensity in the second half. Our own errors kept us from dominating."

Duke mentor Red Wilson said the Blue Devils are showing their inexperience.

"We hoped to hide it, but we couldn't. The early fumbles and turnovers were the key to the game," he said.

Wilson is not giving up on the Blue Devils, however. "It's going to take time, but I think we will be a good team" he predicted.

The second period explosion lifted the Cavaliers to a 20-3 half time advantage and gave them the cushion to withstand a 9-point Duke rally during the first five minutes of the third stanza.

Wayne Morrison slowed the Duke comeback with a 22-yard field goal, his third of the afternoon, and Jim Hyson, a 6-foot-3, 229 pound freshman linebacker, crushed it by intercepting a pass and returning it 56 yards for a touchdown 57 seconds before the close of the quarter.

Those scores restored the Cavaliers' margin to 18 points and from there they coasted to their third victory in four starts.

They now stand 1-1 in the ACC, and not since 1969 have they started out a season so well.

Duke, suffering its second consecutive loss after a season opener victory was its own worst enemy with fumbles, pass interceptions and penalties.

Virginia collected 17 of its points after Blue Devil turnovers.

Following a first quarter that saw the teams trade 29-yard field goals, Vigorito gave Virginia the lead for keeps as he capped a 51-yard touchdown drive with a 2-yard dive over left tackle.

Moments later Taylor scored his sixth touchdown of the year on a 41-yard burst.

The two backs each carried 17 times, Vigorito collecting 126 yards and Taylor 107.

Morrison capped off the second quarter with a 39-yard field goal 12 seconds before the finish.

But Virginia fumbled away the second half kickoff, setting up a 27-yard field goal by Scott McKinney, and with five minutes gone in the third quarter, quarterback Craig Browning connected with wide receiver Ron Fredrick on a 43-yard play that made the score 20-12.

All together Duke lost three of six fumbles, had three of its passes intercepted and was hit for 11 penalties, several in critical situations.

Virginia, which had a total offense of 401 yards against 310 for the Blue Devils, also had 11 penalties, one of which helped the Blue Devils get their touchdown.

But the Cavaliers turned the ball over only twice, at times when they could afford the turnovers.

Kentucky Upsets Maryland, 14-7

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Injury-riddled Kentucky jumped ahead on scoring runs by quarterback Mike Shutt and tailback Chris Jones, then relied on a spirited defense to upset previously unbeaten Maryland 14-7 in a college football game Saturday.

Shutt, forced into action despite a shoulder injury when starter Randy Jenkins suffered a broken leg, capped Kentucky's first possession with a 3-yard run. Jones scored in the second period on a 1-yard run that finished off a 10-play, 52-yard surge by Kentucky, which won its first game in three starts. Maryland is 3-1.

Maryland scrambled back into contention midway in the final period when quarterback Mike Tice passed five yards to his brother, tight end John Tice.

Maryland, held to just 4 yards in the first quarter and denied a trip across midfield until only 6:54 remained, twice threatened in the fading minutes, but each time Kentucky rose to the occasion. Freshman defensive back Andy Molls broke up a fourth-down pass near midfield with three minutes to go, and Larry Carter intercepted a Tice pass with 30 seconds remaining.

When Jenkins went down in the first quarter, Kentucky lost all semblance of a passing attack as well as its only experienced punter. Freshman Chris Poulton handled the punting adeptly, although 170-pound cornerback Johnny Bow had to handle snaps when starting center Ken Roark injured a knee.

Poulton continually backed up the Terps, dropping four punts inside the Maryland 15.

Maryland entered the game with a high-powered offense that was averaging 302 yards and 26 points a game. The Terps' also boasted the nation's leading rusher in Charles Wysocki, who had averaged 159.3 yards a game, and kicker Dale Castro, who was tied for the national scoring lead.

But Castro saw only punting duty until he kicked Maryland's extra point. Kentucky zeroed in on Wysocki, holding him to just 16 yards in the first half and 59 overall.

Despite the injuries to Jenkins and Shutt, the Wildcats enjoyed a potent passing attack in the first half. Shutt and Jenkins combined to hit six of nine passes for 82 yards.

Split end Felix Wilson figured prominently in both scoring drives. He rambled 23 yards with a pass from Jenkins to give Kentucky a first down at the Maryland 32 during the first scoring drive. Two plays later, Jenkins hit Wilson for 14 yards to the Maryland 17.

But Wilson's biggest play came on a pass interference penalty during the second scoring drive. On third down and 13 at the Maryland 18, Wilson was the victim of interference by Terp defensive back Sam Medile. The officials stepped off a 15-yard penalty to the Maryland three, and Jones cracked into the end zone two plays later.

Wilson also caught a pair of 13-yard passes in that drive.

'Famous' Leads UNC By Army

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Tailback Amos Lawrence gained 209 yards and scored two touchdowns as unbeaten North Carolina won its third game, walloping Army 41-3 Saturday as the Cadets suffered their first defeat under new Coach Lou Saban.

North Carolina broke open the game with a pair of lightning offensive drives bracketed around the halftime intermission. The Tar Heels scored with 10 seconds remaining in the first half for a 20-3 lead and converted their first possession of the second half into a score which put the game out of reach.

Lawrence, a junior, gained 188 yards in the first half and scored the game's first touchdown at 14:18 of the opening quarter on a four-yard run to cap an 84-yard Tar Heels' drive.

Army's only score came on a 47-yard field goal at 3:08 of the second quarter. It was the longest field goal ever at Michie Stadium.

Lawrence sprinted 35 yards to the Army 28 midway through the second quarter. Three plays later, he swept around right end for four yards, being stopped inches short of the goal line. Quarterback Matt Kupec plunged over for the touchdown, giving North Carolina a 13-3 lead.

A 52-yard run by Lawrence moved North Carolina to the Army 17 after a punt with 47 seconds remaining in the first half. Kupec hit flanker Wayne Tucker from the six for the touchdown which ended a 69-yard drive in six plays that consumed only 37 seconds.

Phil Farris caught a 13-yard pass from Kupec at 2:44 of the third quarter, giving the Tar Heels a 27-3 lead. North Carolina had moved 55 yards in three plays, including a 34-yard run by fullback Doug Paschal, in only 51 seconds. Lawrence scored on a one-yard run later in the third quarter and, after North Carolina inserted its second offensive unit, fullback Billy Johnson ran nine yards for the final score.

Army battled the Tar Heels on fairly even terms in the first quarter, gaining 24 yards on one exchange of punts, but the Cadets were unable to capitalize on field position. In the second quarter, North Carolina began to assert its dominance, which was ultimately to provide an edge of 534 yards in total offense to Army's 182.

"North Carolina handled us," said Army Coach Lou Saban. "We couldn't block them, we couldn't stop them, it was a rough deal. They get an A-plus, plus Lawrence."

Lawrence gained 108 yards in the second quarter, building the Tar Heels toward their 20-3 halftime lead. In his previous two games this season, Lawrence had gained a total of 210 yards on 45 carries. He holds the Atlantic Coast Conference rushing record of 286 yards set against Virginia as a freshman in 1977.

Farris' catch was his third this season, all for touchdowns. Mike Argo set up the final Tar Heel touchdown with a fumble recovery. Army's second-unit quarterback, Jerry Bennett and fullback Jimmy Hill mishandled a handoff and Argo recovered at the Army 15.

Two days later, Johnson, playing his first game this season, scored from the nine.

New York 9 Toronto 4

NEW YORK (AP) — Tommy John posted his 21st victory and Bobby Murcer had two home runs as the New York Yankees won their seventh straight Saturday, a 9-4 defeat of the Toronto Blue Jays.

The Yankees banged a trio or Toronto hurlers for 13 hits, including four home runs, in beating Phil Huffman, 6-18. Jim Spencer and Reggie Jackson also homered for the Yankees.

John was relieved with two out in the ninth by Don Hood. At the same time, Yankee Manager Billy Martin inserted pitcher Ron Guidry in center field to finish the game.

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Gorman Thomas' 45th homer and Ben Oglivie's three hits powered the Milwaukee Brewers to an 11-8 victory over the Minnesota Twins Saturday.

Thomas belted a 436-foot, two-run homer into the left-center field stands to highlight the Brewers' three-run first inning.

Oglivie slammed a two-run double to right center to give Milwaukee a 6-3 lead in the third and added singles in the sixth and seventh innings. He also scored three runs.

Paul Mitchell went the first five innings on the mound for the Brewers allowing six hits and three runs to earn his fourth victory.

Butch Wynegar collected four hits and two RBI for the Twins. All hits were singles.

LEWISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Halfback Hassen Abdallah carried 17 times for a career high 134 yards and scored on a 12-yard pass play from quarterback Tim Dunn as the Bisons romped over previously undefeated Davidson 33-0 Saturday in college football.

Bucknell's three starting running backs all gained over 100 yards and scored one touchdown each.

Longhorns 'Boot' Missouri, 21-0

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI) — John Goodson booted a record-breaking four field goals and A. J. Jones chipped in a 1-yard touchdown run to give fourth-ranked Texas an easy 21-0 victory Saturday over seventh-ranked Missouri.

The sophomore Goodson booted field goals of 23, 50, 35 and 25 yards to tie the Texas record set last season by Russell Erxleben against TCU.

Jones scored the lone Longhorn touchdown to cap a 73-yard drive in seven plays with 37 seconds left in the first half, giving Texas an 18-0 lead. Jones rushed for 142 yards in 30 carries, his second 100 yard game in two tries this season.

Texas scored the first three times it touched the ball with Goodson booting a pair of field goals and senior defensive end Richard Slaydon blocking a Jeff Brockhaus punt out of the end zone for a safety.

The Longhorns took their first possession of the game at the Missouri 34 and drove 28 yards to the Tiger 6 to set up Goodson's 23-yard field goal. Cornerback Vance Bedford then picked off a Phil Bradley pass to give Texas the ball at the Missouri 32, setting up Goodson's 50-yarder.

A Bradley fumble at his own 45 set up Goodson's 35-yard field goal early in the second quarter and Texas put the game on ice with its only touchdown drive in the final two minutes of the half.

Quarterback Donnie Little hit Les Koenning with a 39-yard pass and then bolted 21-yards on his own to set up Jones' scoring run. Goodson added his 25-yard field goal early in the fourth quarter to ensure Missouri its first loss in four games.

S. Carolina 27 Georgia 20

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — South Carolina turned a pair of fourth quarter turnovers by Georgia into short touchdown runs by Garry Harper and Spencer Clark, triggering the Gamecocks to a 27-20 college football victory over the Bulldogs on Saturday.

The Bulldogs, 0-3, off to their worst start since 1958, took a 20-12 halftime lead on a 66-yard scoring pass from Jeff Pyburn to Anthony Arnold, a 1-yard scoring plunge by Carmie Norris and field goals of 40 and 41-yards by Rex Robinson before the Gamecocks, 3-1, came back in the final period.

Clark scored from 7 yards but only 3:28 into the final quarter after defensive back Pat Bowen intercepted a pass by Georgia's Buck Belue and returned it 10 yards to the Bulldog 32. George Rogers, who ran for 152 yards in 28 attempts, had a key 10-yard run in the short drive.

Harper, who completed 10 of 13 passes for 118 yards, including a 15-yard scoring strike to Willie Scott in the first period, then hit Rogers on a pass for a two-point conversion to tie the score at 20-20.

Less than three minutes later, Harper scored the winner from 1 yard out after the Gamecocks recovered a fumble by Matt Simon on the Bulldog 28.

The big play was a 24 yard Harper-to-Rogers pass, setting up the score.

Ga. Tech 33 W&M 7

ATLANTA (AP) — Coach Pepper Rodgers of Georgia Tech said Saturday that a 31-yard touchdown pass from Mike Kelley to Leon Chadwick in the third quarter changed the momentum as the Yellow Jackets registered a 33-7 college football victory over William & Mary.

"The Kelley touchdown pass was just what we needed at the time," said Rodgers, whose team was trailing the underdog Indians 7-6 at the time.

Kelley came right back with a 26-yard scoring strike to Kris Kentera and defensive end Rick Olive recovered a fumble in the end zone to give the Jackets three touchdowns within a six-minute span.

"We had poor execution in the first half," Rodgers said. "We obviously made a lot of mistakes but in the second half Kelley threw the ball exceptionally well."

"We got whipped by a very solid and physical ball club," said Coach Jim Root of William & Mary. "They just wore us down in the second half."

"We played a helluva first half," he said. "Our defense played its heart out, but our offense failed to take advantage of the opportunities."

Kelley's 31-yard strike to Leon Chadwick with 9:14 left in the third quarter enabled the Jackets to erase a 7-6 William & Mary advantage.

Kelley came back just over five minutes later, hitting on four-of-six passes for 68 yards, including a 26-yard scoring pass to Kris Kentera to put Tech in control.

Alabama 66 Vanderbilt 3

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Senior quarterback Steadman Shealy and junior running back Joe Jones scored two touchdowns apiece in leading No. 2-ranked Alabama to a 66-3 Southeastern Conference college football victory Saturday over Vanderbilt.

Shealy's first touchdown of the game came on Alabama's yards on 18 carries, raced 40 third offensive play when he kept the ball on an option and raced 64 yards through a paper-thin Commodore defense. Alan McElroy converted.

Later in the first quarter, Alabama's Bobby Scott recovered a fumble by Vanderbilt tight end Flavious Smith. Forty-two seconds later, Major Ogilvie ran it in from the eight on a sweep around left end. McElroy again kicked the conversion.

Jordan, a senior who alternates with Woodham, entered the game with the score 7-7 and directed an 80-yard, 14-play scoring drive that ended with Flowers' touchdown grab.

Vanderbilt scored its only points of the game early in the second period when sophomore kicker Mike Woodard capped a six-play, 61-yard drive with a 47-yard field goal.

Alabama answered with a score of its own when Shealy ran in his second touchdown of the day on a 19-yard option around right end.

Shealy passed to Ogilvie for a two-point conversion to bring the score to 22-3.

A 21-yard McElroy field goal and a 1-yard plunge by sophomore running back Mark Nix lifted the score to 32-3 at the half.

Steve Whitman, a 6-foot-3, 231-yard reserve running back, crashed through the middle of the Tennessee line early in the third period for a 3-yard scoring run. McElroy's kick went wide to the right, ending a string of 34 successful conversion attempts, an Alabama record.

Jones scored the first of his two touchdowns on a 1-yard run late in the third period and ran in another score from the two with just 1:10 elapsed in the fourth quarter. Tim Clark's kick brought the score to 52-3 in favor of the Crimson Tide.

Reserve quarterback Michael Landrum, a freshman, scored over the right side on a 2-yard keeper midway through the fourth quarter. Jones kicked the conversion.

With :30 remaining, John Hill, a sophomore running back, ran in from the 11 and Jones' point-after kick ended the scoring at 66-3.

Florida State, 4-0, scored its other touchdown on the first play of the second quarter when tailback Greg Ramsey ran 16 yards to even the score at 7-7. The Seminoles also got a 20-yard field goal from Dave Cappelen in the third period.

Freshman tailback Cyrus Lawrence, who rushed 107

UCLA took a 7-0 lead at 6:33 of the first period on a 10-yard pass from quarterback Rick Bashore to Willie Curran. The touchdown was set up when Billy Don Jackson blocked Tom Orosz' punt from at the Ohio State 23 and recovered the ball on the Buckeye 12.

Boermeester kicked a 27-yard field goal with 52 seconds remaining the first period to give UCLA a 10-0 lead. UCLA drove 55 yards in 10 plays to set up the field goal with Bashore completing passes of 15 and 11 yards.

Ohio State made it 10-7 at 10:07 of the second period on a dazzling 34-yard run by Murray. Schlichter completed a pair of 16-yard passes to Williams in the drive.

Schlichter completed 13 of 22 passes for 159 yards in the game and Murray racked up 117 yards in 18 carries to lead all rushers in the game.

Brooks broke away for a 52-yard touchdown to give the Tiggers, now 2-1, their only score in the second half. Tennessee is 3-0.

W. Virginia 20 Richmond 18

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Darryl Talley returned one interception for a touchdown and blunted a late Richmond drive with another as West Virginia's Mountaineers edged the Spiders 20-18 in football Saturday.

Mountaineer quarterback Oliver Luck kept Richmond off balance most of the afternoon with handoffs to Curlin Beck and erratic but timely passing.

It was the first victory of the season for WVU, now 1-3. Richmond has yet to win in four starts.

Luck virtually broke the back of the Spiders in the third quarter when he hit wide receiver Cedric Thomas on a 61-yard pass-run. Thomas was pushed out of bounds on the Richmond 1-yard line, but Luck ran the ball in on the next play to put West Virginia ahead 20-10.

Richmond shook off its defensive mistake in letting Thomas get behind its secondary, regained its composure and mounted a touchdown drive of 68 yards with 5 minutes left in the game.

Quarterback Greg Gregory hit Vlenus Martin on an 18-yard pass play to put the ball on the West Virginia 16. After an incomplete pass and a two-yard gain by Gregory, Barry Redden took a pitchout and ran 14 yards for the touchdown.

At that point, Richmond trailed 20-16 and elected to go for a two-point conversion. Jamie Carayannis ran the ball in for the two points to pull the Spiders to 20-18.

On the next series of plays, Richmond held the Mountaineers and forced a punt from the West Virginia 33. But with 3:40 remaining, Gregory lofted a pass that Talley picked off on the Richmond 48.

Syracuse 52 Wash. St. 25

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Quarterback Bill Hurley scored two touchdowns and passed for another and Joe Morris galloped for two more, including a 48-yard gamebreaker, as Syracuse whipped Washington State 52-25 in intersectional college football Saturday.

Morris, a 180-pound sophomore tailback, wound up with 159 yards on 21 carries. He scored on a five-yard run in the first quarter to give the Orange a 14-0 lead.

His burst off tackle in the third period gave Syracuse a 30-18 advantage just after the Cougars had scored three straight times in their comeback attempt.

The victory, Syracuse's third straight after an opening loss, gave the Orangemen their best start since 1975. The Cougars dropped to 1-3.

Miss. St. 24 Florida 10

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Quarterback Tony Black fired a 55-yard pass to Mardye McDole for one touchdown and fullback Donald Ray King plunged for another in the final period Saturday to lift Mississippi State to a 24-10 victory over favored Florida in an error-plagued Southeastern Conference thriller.

McDole, the SEC's leading receiver last year, made a one-handed catch and raced in with 5:17 remaining for the clinching touchdown.

King had put the Bulldogs ahead 14-10 a few minutes earlier on a one-yard dive, capping an 83-yard drive that included a 42-yard run by King and 15-yard pass by Black to end Jerry Price.

Fullback Fred Collins got Mississippi State's other touchdown on a one-yard run in the second quarter, while Danny Brown kicked a 24-yard field goal in the fourth quarter to go with his three extra points.

Florida's lone touchdown came on a 15-yard pass from quarterback Tim Groves to ace receiver Cris Collingsworth with 27 seconds remaining in the first half. Sophomore Brian Clark hit a 40-yard field goal for the Gators in the second quarter.

Both teams were plagued by errors with a total of 13 turnovers. The Gators surrendered the ball seven times on two interceptions and five fumbles, while the Bulldogs gave up three fumbles and had three passes stolen.

State scored its first victory for new coach Emory Bellard after two defeats. Florida, 0-2-1, is still seeking its first win under new coach Charley Pell.

Michigan Rallies To Beat California, 10-10

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Stanley Edwards and Lawrence Reid scored on 3-yard runs in the third quarter Saturday to give 13th-ranked Michigan a 14-10 come-from-behind victory over unbeaten California.

The Wolverines, 3-1, capitalized on a fumbled second-half kickoff to go nine yards for Edwards' score and two series later marched 77 yards with Reid capping the drive.

Quarterback John Wampler highlighted the second drive by completing three passes for 72 yards — a 38-yarder to Doug Marsh, 22 to Edwards and crucial third-down reception by Norm Betts after the ball had been tipped by Reid.

W. Carolina 20 Elon 7

CULLOWHEE, N.C. (AP) — Freshman tailback Leonard Williams rushed for 136 yards and scored two touchdowns to lead a second half comeback as Western Carolina downed Elon 20-7 in a college football game Saturday night.

The Catamounts spotted Elon a seven-point halftime lead before taking advantage of numerous mistakes in the second half to gain the win.

Elon scored the lone touchdown of the first half in the second quarter. Linebacker Ernie Tootoo intercepted a Mike Pusey pass and ran 47 yards for the score. Phil Renn converted to give Elon the lead with 13:40 left.

Western Carolina came back to tie the game early in the third quarter when Elon fumbled and linebacker Ricky Smith recovered at Elon's six yard line. From there, freshman tailback Anthony James scored from one yard out with 12:27 left in the third quarter.

Colorado St. 20 Wyoming 16

LARAMIE, Wyo. (UPI) — Colorado State quarterback Keith Lee fired three touchdown passes Saturday, all in the second half, to lead the Rams to a 20-16 victory over Western Athletic Conference rival Wyoming.

The game took place before a crowd of 29,021, the largest crowd for any sports event in Wyoming's history.

Wyoming scored its points on two touchdown passes by quarterback Phil Davis and a 41-yard field goal by Wayne VanDerloo. Wyoming missed one extra point attempt.

Stanford 33 Boston College 14

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Ken Margerum, the Pacific-10 Conference's leading pass receiver a year ago with 53 receptions, caught nine passes and scored three touchdowns, two of them from freshman quarterback John Elway, Saturday in leading Stanford to 33-14 victory over Boston College.

Margerum caught a 33-yard pass from Turk Schoenert to set up a 22-yard field goal by Ken Naber; then grabbed a 4-yard throw from Schoenert for his first touchdown and a 10-0 Stanford lead.

The 6-2, 220 Barrett then tacked on scoring runs of 6 and 1 yards, the later after Cougars' linebacker Sam Proctor recovered a fumble at the Buffs' 24 yard line.

Clark's 11-yard run on Houston's first possession started the scoring, and in the second half the 5-9, 196 junior caught a 5-yard pass from Delrick Brown to cap an 80-yard drive.

Houston lost three fumbles — one in the Buffs' end zone — had one interception and were penalized 47 yards during the Buffs' touchdown drive late in the third quarter.

Danny Clark scored from 1 yard out for West Texas State.

With backup players in the game, the Cougars added two more touchdowns in the fourth quarter on sophomore halfback Eddie Wright's 18-yard run and senior quarterback Mark Jermstad's 8-yard run.

Barrett had not scored in Houston's two previous victories this season over UCLA and Florida. He rushed for 90 yards on 12 carries Saturday. The leading rusher in the game with 101 yards on 12 runs was the Cougars' John Newhouse.

Iowa 30 Iowas St. 14

IOWA CITY, Iowa (UPI) — Iowa's Dennis Mosley galloped 229 yards on 39 carries and scored three touchdowns Saturday, helping the Hawkeyes snap a three-game losing streak with a 30-14 victory over intrastate rival Iowa State.

A capacity crowd of 60,100 — the second largest in Kinnick Stadium history — watched Iowa take a 2-1 lead in the cross-state series, which resumed in 1977. Iowa leads the series, which began in 1894, 18-7.

Mosley's rushing figure was the second highest in school history for a single game. Ed Podolak set the record of 286 yards on 17 attempts in 1968 against Northwestern.

Lopez Leads Dallas Open

DALLAS (AP) — Nancy Lopez Melton toured the Bent Tree Country Club course in just 67 shots Saturday to take a four-stroke lead with a score of 204 after the third round of the Ladies Pro Golf Association's $150,000 Dallas Open.

Sandra Post, with a 69, was second at 209 and Donna Caponi Young third at 210.

"I'm playing with confidence," Melton said after Saturday's round, which included an eagle, three birdies and no bogeys. "I was pretty consistent all day."

And the other golfers in the tournament may have wined when she said, "Usually I have to come from behind to win a tournament. I've only led twice going into the final day and won both times."

Melton's 67 Saturday, combined with a 71-66 the first two rounds, gives her a three-round total of 204, one shot away from the best 54-hole score on the LPGA tour this year.

She started the round tied for the lead with Jan Stephenson, who blew to a 77 Saturday and fell 10 shots off the pace at 214.

"I'm in shock," Stephenson said. "Today was one of those days where you're penalized for every mistake. I felt good when the round started, but I don't know what happened. I'm really down now. There's no way I can catch Nancy. I'm out of it."

Stephenson started with a bogey on No. 1, had three straight bogeys on Nos. 9, 10 and 11, and added two more on Nos. 15 and 16. She called her round a "nightmare."

Post, winner last week at Kansas City, was not as despondent as Stephenson but was just as realistic about her chances of catching the leader.

"It's pretty difficult," she admitted.

Post played the first nine holes Saturday in four-under-par, but ran into trouble with bogeys on Nos. 14 and 16.

Melton, on the other hand, bubbled with confidence.

"I think I can win it if I can keep playing like I have been," she said. "I'm going to keep playing aggressive. I'm going to go for it. If you let up and try to play it safe, you quit making the good shots and people start catching up to you."

Melton has official winnings of $175,000 this year, and can pass her record total of last year by winning the $19,500 first prize here.

The tour's top rookie, Beth Daniel, shot a two-under-par 70 to hold down fourth place at 212, while her former college teammate, Betsy King, is one stroke back at 213.

Rookie Shatters Wilkes Record

NORTH WILKESBORO, N.C. (UPI) — Rookie Dale Earnhardt shattered the qualifying record for the Wilkes 400 with a 112.783 mph mark in his Chevrolet Saturday to capture the pole position for today's NASCAR stock car race.

Fourteen cars broke the former track record on the five-eighths-mile banked asphalt track, which was resurfaced for this year's race.

Earnhardt, a 28-year-old Kannapolis, N.C., native, will share the front row with second-place qualifier Bobby Allison of Hueytown, Ala., who recorded 112.258 mph in his Ford.

Darrell Waltrip of Franklin, Tenn., owner of the old qualifying record of 109.435 mph set last year, won the No. 3 spot with a 112.225 mph clocking in a Chevrolet.

Harry Gant finished fourth at 112.051 mph and Benny Parsons qualified fifth at 112.029 mph.

Waltrip has won twice at North Wilkesboro and owns seven victories on the NASCAR Grand National tour this year. He currently holds a close lead over Richard Petty in the series point championship. Petty has won 13 races at North Wilkesboro, but none since 1975.

No. 6 qualifier Cale Yarborough is the defending champion. Petty will start 11th, having qualified his Chevrolet at a speed of 110.364 mph.

Unser Wins Pole

HAMPTON, Ga. (UPI) — Bobby Unser took the pole position in his Penske PCT Saturday in the time trials for Sunday's IndyAtlanta Classic with a speed of 203.121 mph.

Coming in second in the two qualifying laps was teammate Rick Mears with a speed of 200.373 mph, also in a Penske PC7.

Unser and Mears were the only two drivers to break the 200 mph mark.

Danny Ongais, in a Parnelli Coarworth, was third at 199.606 mph, followed by Johnny Rutherford at 199.084 mph.

Only 13 cars completed qualification attempts. However, three others were to be added to the field prior to Sunday's 2:30 p.m. start.

Second Half Sparks Rams To Victory

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer
LITTLEFIELD — Greene Central Coach Stewart Smith said he felt "darn lucky" that his Rams trailed Ayden-Grifton by only a field goal at the half Friday night.

Going into the lockerroom at the break, Smith decided to relay his feelings of good fortune to his squad.

"I had a little talk with them at the half. I told them, 'Look, we've been at this for over four and a half weeks and the way we played in the first half we're lucky to be behind only 3-0. Darn lucky.'"

"They could have easily been ahead 14-0," Smith told his troops. "If you can't take it from here (and win), then you don't deserve anything."

Feeling the sting of Smith's tirade, the Rams came out in the second half and scored in the first 43 seconds, added two more touchdowns late in the quarter, and went on to beat the Chargers Friday night, 27-9, in an Eastern Carolina Conference game.

After fumbling the ball twice and having two passes intercepted in the first half, the Rams came out in the second half ready to atone for their mistakes.

Greene Central's Melvin Hawkins raced 32 yards with the second half kickoff, putting the Rams on the Charger's 38. Two plays later, halfback Donald Shaw raced 35 yards, breaking three tackles along the way, for the first of his three touchdowns. Then, following an exchange of punts, Greene Central recovered a fumbled snap on the Ayden-Grifton 23. It took the Rams just three plays to up their lead to 14-3, with Shaw scoring this time on a three-yard run. Greg Holmes hit wide receiver Thomas Bullock for the two points.

Less than a minute later, the Chargers fumbled again, this time on their 26. Shaw rambled 26 yards for his third touchdown two plays later and with Jabo Fulghum's extra point the Rams led, 21-3, with less than three minutes left in the third period.

"The story of the ballgame is that we didn't take advantage of the breaks we had in the first half and they took advantage of the breaks we gave them in the second half," Ayden-Grifton Coach Dixon Sauls said afterwards.

"We should have been up 17-0 at the half," he said.

The Chargers, 3-2 overall and 2-1 in the conference, threatened a number of times in the first half but could only score on a 33-yard field goal by Warren Agee.

Defensive tackle Mark Jones set up the field goal when he batted down a Ken Johnson pass then was able to intercept it on the 29-yard line.

The Chargers, however, were stymied by a gritty Ram defense and could move only 19 yards, to the 10, before being stopped on fourth and six.

"Our defense played well the entire game," Smith said. "Even going into the half, we thought we had a real good game plan defensively. We had kept them from scoring 14 points in the first half."

The Charger's first chance to score came midway through the first period when they recovered a fumble on the Greene Central 24. Or third and 12 from the 14, quarterback Bernard Ricciarelli, scrambled for 12 yards, down to the 2. Ricciarelli, however, was hurt on the play and was forced to leave.

Reserve quarterback Agee came in on fourth and two and pitched to the left to halfback Calvin Ellison. Ellison, who was the workhorse for the Chargers in the first half, carrying the ball on nearly half of their plays and running for 49 yards on the night, was stopped short of the first down and Greene Central took over.

"We had some bad fortune tonight," Sauls said. "Bernard was hurt on that play down there, he hurt his leg. We probably could have scored had he been in."

"I'm not trying to make excuses. They played better than us in the second half and took advantage of the breaks, but we did not have Billy Holland at full strength either."

Holland injured an ankle last week and did not play until late in the third period, when he came in to spark the Chargers to their only score of the second half.

Late in the third period, with the Chargers trailing 21-3, Timmy Edwards returned a punt 18 yards to the Ayden-Grifton 48.

Following a 15-yard penalty against Greene Central, Holland pushed ahead for 16 yards, down to the Ram 30. Greg Jackson then ran for 12 yards and four plays later Jackson sprinted 10 yards for the score, making it 21-9.

After the Rams recovered the Charger's inside kick, quarterback Ken Johnson went up the middle for 11. Two more runs moved the ball to the 18 and halfback Melvin Bynum ran the final 18 yards for the score.

The Rams are now 2-3 overall and 1-2 in the conference.

"I thought it would never come," Smith said, as he walked across the field after the game. "It's been a month since we've won. I'm happy for the kids. I just wish we could have had our schedule rearranged so we could have gotten a better feel for ourselves early."

"This one's going to swing us around, though."

Navy Nips Illinois

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Bob Powers fired a touchdown pass to Dave Dent. Steve Fehr kicked two field goals and Navy's top-ranked defense held off Illinois for a 13-12 college football victory Saturday.

The Midshipmen, undefeated in three games, held Illinois, 1-3, to just three first downs and 62 yards in the first half. But the Illini nearly pulled out the game in the final minutes.

Illinois scored on a 69-yard drive when Lawrence McCullough hit Lee Boeke with a 10-yard touchdown pass to make the score 13-12 with 3:51 to play. Illinois tried for the two-point conversion and McCullough pitched out to Mike Holmes. He tried to hit McCullough in the end zone but the pass was intercepted.

Rick Waits, Cleveland Indian southpaw, sang the National Anthem before a 1978 game against Toronto.

Rampants Wait One More Time

"Into every life, a little rain must fall."
"It never rains, but it pours."

"Run for your lives, fellas, the dam just broke."

Three little quotations that Rose High School football Coach Dave Bumgarner might, or might not, agree with.

For the third time in four games, the Rampants found themselves looking for a dry place to hide. A heavy downpour just a half-hour before the scheduled kickoff forced Rose and Northern Nash to postpone their game until Monday night.

Only once this year have the Rampants managed to get their game in on the originally schedule night—that against Washington.

Kickoff for Monday's game will be at 7 p.m. instead of the usual 7:30 p.m.

Also postponed was Williamston's home football game against Roanoke Rapids in the Northeastern Conference. That contest will also be played Monday night at 7 p.m.

The Ahsokie-Roanoke game was tentatively rescheduled for last night after being delayed by the weather.

Cincinnati Clinches Western NL Flag

600 By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

There was no champagne in the Cincinnati locker room, no screaming, no horseplay, none of the usual trappings of a title clinching.

The Reds beat the Atlanta Braves 3-0 Friday night, assuring themselves of at least a tie for the National League West title. But they were long gone by the time second-place Houston dropped a 6-5 decision to the Los Angeles Dodgers on the West Coast, clinching the division title for the Reds outright. "We'll celebrate tomorrow — 12 hours won't make any difference," said Reds third baseman Ray Knight.

Meanwhile, the Pittsburgh Pirates took a giant stride toward the National League East title by beating the Chicago Cubs 6-1 and climbing two games ahead of the second-place Montreal Expos, who dropped a 3-2, 11-inning decision to the Philadelphia Phillies.

In other National League games, the San Diego Padres blanked the San Francisco Giants 2-0 and the New York Mets swept a doubleheader from the St. Louis Cardinals 6-2 and 7-6, the second game in 11 innings.

The Reds trailed Houston by 10 games on July 4, caught the Astros on Aug. 28 and took the lead to stay on Sept. 11. One of the keys to their stretch drive has been the pitching of Pastore, who opened the season with Cincinnati but was sent to the minors for nearly two months before rejoining the Reds in late July.

"That was the turning point, going down to Indianapolis," said Pastore, 6-7, who struck out seven Atlanta batters and walked only one. "I went 7-2 down in Triple A and that's where I learned how to control myself and be a big league pitcher."

Dodgers 6, Astros 5
The Astros looked like they would prolong the race when they scored four runs in the top of the eighth, three on Cesar Cedeno's home run, to take a 5-1 lead. But the Dodgers squelched their hopes with five runs in the bottom half of the inning.

Teddy Martinez doubled, pinch-hitter Vic Davalillo singled and Von Joshua ingled home Martinez. Derrel Thomas got a bunt single to load the bases and Garvey followed with a grand-slam home run. It was Garvey's 28th homer and gave him 110 runs batted in.

"We had a good year," said Houston Manager Bill Virdon, "but no one likes to finish second. It's been a tough season, lots of close games ... We played well, but we didn't play well enough to win."

Pirates 6, Cubs 1
Pittsburgh moved closer to the NL East title behind the pitching of Jim Bibby, who baffled Chicago with a four-hit, 11-strikeout gem. Dave Parker provided the power, clubbing a two-run homer.

"We haven't clinched it, but it's back in our hands," said Parker. No matter what Montreal does, the Pirates can clinch the title by winning their remaining two games against Chicago.

Montreal literally threw its game away in the 11th inning. With two out, Greg Gross reached third when his grounder skipped past third baseman Larry Parrish for an error and left fielder Warren Cromartie overthrew second base for another error. Woodie Fryman, 3-6, issued an intentional walk to pinch-hitter Greg Luzinski before Keith Moreland hit a 2-0 pitch for the game-winning single.

But the Expos weren't conceding anything. "We're still not out of it," insisted Tony Perez. "The Pirates could lose tomorrow and we'll be right back in it."

Giants 2, Padres 0
Eric Rasmussen gave up just one hit — a second-inning single by Darrell Evans — and Dave Winfield belted his 34th home run of the season to help San Diego beat San Francisco.

Mets 6-7, Cards 2-6
The Mets swept a doubleheader, winning the opener as Doug Flynn drove in three runs with three singles, then taking the nightcap in 11 innings when Gil Flores tripled down the right-field line and came around to score when on a wild throw by right fielder Keith Hernandez.

The 1955 New York Yankees have the best record ever for an American team touring Japan, 15 victories and one loss.

Hugs For The Winners

Cincinnati Reds' pitcher Frank Pastore hugs Reds' catcher Johnny Bench after completing a shutout victory over the Atlanta Braves in Cincinnati Friday night to clinch the Western Division title in the National League. The Reds didn't get a chance to really celebrate until later, however, since they didn't learn of Houston's loss until after they left the dressing rooms. (AP Laserphoto)

Ryan, Palmer Warm Up For Playoffs

By The Associated Press

Noian Ryan of the California Angels and Jim Palmer of the Baltimore Orioles warmed up for the American League playoff opener with vastly different results.

Both are coming off injuries and neither lasted more than 5-3 innings.

But Ryan was a loser Friday as the Texas Rangers blanked California 5-0 while Palmer was an easy winner in Baltimore's 14-6 rout of the Cleveland Indians. Still, both were happy with their performances.

"We had planned for me to go only five innings or so," said Ryan, who suffered a pulled muscle in his elbow July 25.

"The only thing that bothered me was I walked three batters. I can't do that against Baltimore."

Palmer, closing out a frustrating season punctuated by a back injury and tendinitis in his elbow, went 5-13 innings, giving up seven hits and six runs. But he benefited from a pair of six-run outbursts by his teammates.

"I was pleased with the way I threw the ball," Palmer said, "but I don't like giving up runs."

As Ryan said: "Any time you are coming off an arm injury, you don't quite have the velocity you did before, but I'm getting real close. I didn't tax it tonight. I was pitching free and easy ... I ought to be ready (for the playoffs)."

In other AL games Friday, New York downed Toronto 7-3, Boston stopped Detroit 7-4, Chicago defeated Seattle 3-1, Milwaukee clobbered Minnesota 10-1 and Kansas City crushed Oakland 13-1.

Billy Smith drove in six runs with a grand slam homer, a double and a triple to pace Baltimore's attack. The Orioles scored six runs in both the second and third innings, Smith slamming his homer in the second and his double in the third.

"Palmer should be ready for next week," said Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver. "He pitched well enough. I'd like to see him give up no runs, but as long as he got enough work, used all his pitches and didn't get hurt, that's good enough for me."

Cleveland Manager Dave Garcia, rehired earlier in the day for the 1980 season, shrugged off the one-sided loss.

Revived Holmes Stops Shavers In 11th

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
LAS VEGAS (AP) — "Man, stop the fight," heavyweight champion Larry Holmes begged the referee. "Look at him — all banged up, cut around both eyes. He's hurt. What do you want me to do — kill him?"

Challenger Earnie Shavers, a battered old veteran of 35, hung limply on the ropes. His legs were rubbery. His eyes were glazed. He couldn't raise his weary arms for defense.

"I begged Earnie to quit, too," Holmes said. "I said, 'Man, why you hanging on? Why don't you quit?' He said, 'I ain't quitting. I'm trying to take your title away.'"

At two minutes of the 11th round, referee Davey Pearl stepped between Holmes and a battered Shavers, and raised Holmes' hand as successful defender of the World Boxing Council heavyweight crown.

Twice the 29-year-old champion pulled himself off the floor — once in the seventh from a shattering right to the head, again in the ninth after a half-slip — for his 32nd victory and 23rd knockout without a defeat as a pro.

Shavers was rushed to the Valley Hospital to have doctors sew up ugly gashes around both eyes.

It was a knockdown, dragout brawl reminiscent of the now-legendary third Muhammad Ali-Joe Frazier "Thrilla of Manila" in October, 1975 and it turned an affluent crowd of 4,500, who paid up to $250 a seat, into a wild frenzy at the Caesars Palace Pavilion.

The television audience was estimated by ABC-TV at 50 million.

Holmes, a standup boxer who never has gained the recognition he deserved, proved himself a true champion. He appeared on the verge of being knocked out in the seventh, when he was sent thudding on his back by a Shavers right, but he was in charge at the finish.

The three ringside judges gave him nine of the 10 rounds they scored, all except the seventh.

Holmes now virtually has run out of suitable opponents until the WBC and the rival World Boxing Association can reach some sort of accommodation to end the split in the division. Olympic silver medalist John Tate and South Africa's Gerry Coetzee meet in Pretoria, South Africa, Oct. 20 for the WBA Africa of the championship.

Holmes said he plans to rest the remainder of the year, undertake three title defenses in 1980 and ultimately — he hopes — get a shot at Tate to unify the heavyweight championship.

"I think Tate will win in South Africa," he said. "Other guys I might fight in the meantime are Ron Lyle, Scott Ledoux and Michael Dokes."

Dokes, an unbeaten contender from Akron, Ohio, outpointed Jimmy Young on the accompanying card.

In other fights of the show, Sugar Ray Leonard, an Olymp-pic gold medalist, retained his North American welterweight crown by stopping Andy "Hawk" Price in 2:52 of the first round; Wilfredo Gomez of Puerto Rico stopped Carlos Mendoza of Mexico in 2:29 of the 10th to keep his WBC super bantamweight title, and Roberto Duran of Panama, the former lightweight champion, scored a 10-round decision over Zeferino "Speedy" Gonzalez of Los Angeles in a welterweight match.

But it remained for Holmes and Shavers to bring the crowd to a pitch of excitement. The fight lacked the finer points of the Ali-Frazier duels, but for raw drama, it was one that will long be remembered.

As Shavers swung wildly, there always was the sense that any minute he might land one of his roundhouse blows and enhance his record. In 58 victories, he had scored 56 knockouts, half in the first two rounds.

Then came the climactic seventh. Almost too quickly to see, Shavers cut loose with a smashing right that caught the champion on the jaw.

Holmes fell flat. The crowd gasped. Then a heavy roar went up. It looked like a certain upset.

Holmes rose to his feet a bit unsurely and was weaving and swaying as Shavers intensified the attack. But Shavers never put over the crusher. Holmes' handlers worked over him busily between rounds.

Shavers, on the other hand, seemed to go into an immediate eclipse.

It was obvious that the aging son of a one-time Alabama cotton picker had spent himself. Hammered from one end of the ring to the other by Holmes' "stick 'em" offense, the old warrior never allowed himself to be decked. He acquitted himself with honor.

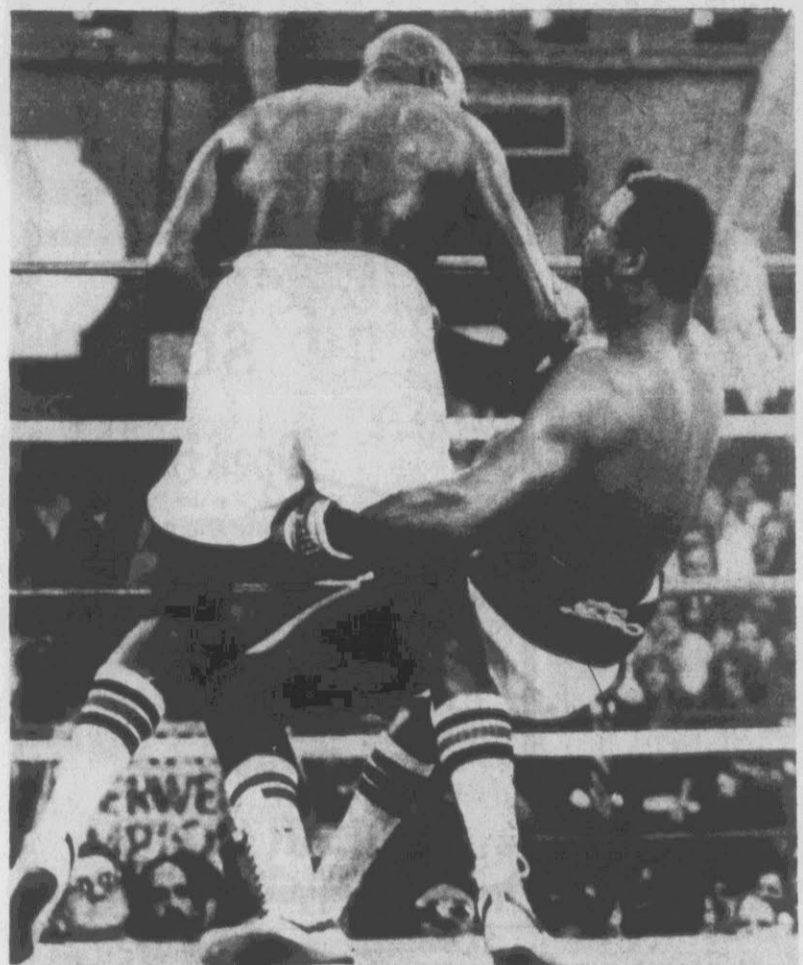

Holmes said when he saw

Shavers bleeding and wobbling, especially in the 11th round, he almost was overcome by compassion.

"I held off," he said, "That's when I started begging the referee to stop it. When he didn't, I had to keep fighting. I couldn't give him a chance to keep throwing that stuff."

"He took a lot of punches," he said. "He surprised me. I didn't think he could hit that hard. He never gave up. I went to him afterward and I said, 'Earnie, I love you. You're a great fighter. You'll be around as long as you want.'"

STANHOPE — Unbeaten Southern Nash scored twice in the first half, then added two more scores in the third quarter and went on to grab off a 34-12 victory over D.H. Conley Friday night.

The win kept the Firebirds tied with defending champion Farmville Central in the race for the Eastern Carolina Conference title. Both have 3-0 league records, and the Firebirds are 5-0 overall.

It also marked the first loss of the year for the Vikings, who otherwise had only a tie against Washington to mar their record. They've won twice in four outings.

Southern Nash got on the scoreboard in the first period as David Pope scored on a 2-yard run, and Anthony Credle added a two-point conversion for an 8-0 lead.

The Firebirds came back in the second period with another score, running it to 15-0. Brian Raynor pulled in a ten-yard pass from Paul Morgan for the score, with Bennie Blackmon adding the PAT kick.

Southern Nash scored twice more in the third period, with Pope doing the honors both times, on 18 and 17 yard runs. Blackmon added one PAT kick, while a run failed. That ran the lead to 28-0.

Conley finally cracked the scoring ice in the late stages of the third period, as Arnell Credle broke away to race 71 yards for the score.

Both teams added single scores in the final quarter. Crumel scored on an 11-yard run for the Firebirds, while Credle picked up the other Conley score, on a 12-yard ramble.

The Vikings will get another chance at a league leader on Friday, as they play host to unbeaten Farmville Central. Southern Nash travels to North Lenoir for its game.

Jaguars Zip To 61-6 Win

It was some two week's of fishing for the "Barbara B."

Last week, Bill Blount's "Barbara B" became the first privately owned boat to win the Oregon Inlet Bill Fishing Tournament. Blount and his crew won the tournament with a catch of 15 white marlin.

Two weeks ago, the "Barbara B" sailed out to sea with a crew from Ducks Unlimited and returned to shore with 12 white marlin. Not only that, but the crew raised another 44 fish.

Competing in the Oregon Inlet tournament against more than 50 boats, many of which were charter boats, the crew finished two ahead of the second place boat, the "Dean-A," which landed 12 fish.

In third was the "Allwright," with 11 fish.

Among those fishing with Blount were Al Ward, Mack MacKinzie, Iverson MacKinzie, Rufus Knott, Willaim Friend and Curt Fickling.

Despite all the fish which were caught, Blount may be kicking himself about the one that got away.

According to him, the crew hooked a blue marlin, which, had it been brought aboard the boat, would have been a world record fish.

A week earlier, the "Barbara B" primed itself for the Oregon Inlet.

Blount donated his boat to Duck's Unlimited for auction for a two-day trip. On that trip, the DU crew, along with the "Barbara B's" captain, Alan Bailey and first mate, Dave Jansohn, caught 12 white marlin in only one day, and were able to raise 44.

That's got to be some sort of record.

Among those on the DU trip were David Stowe, Bob Dean, Walter Moffitt and Jimmy Joyner.

This year, DU again plans to auction off boats, on Tuesday, November 6, at the Moose Lodge.

Three local members of the Greenville Salt Water Fishing Club fished in the Atlantic Beach King Mackerel tournament September 13-14.

There were about 250 boats from all across the state and from Greenville included Louis Taft, Edgar Taft, and Pete West, who were able to fish only on Thursday.

The crew caught what turned out to be the third place fish, a mackerel weighing 29 lbs., 14 oz.

The first place fish weighed 30 lbs., 5 oz., while the second place fish weighed 30 lbs., 4 oz.

FARMVILLE — Hurricane Jaquar, packed with a record-breaking nine touchdowns, completely destroyed the North Pitt football team here Friday night, flooding the visiting Panthers, 61-6.

The 55-point victory spread, Farmville Central's 26th consecutive Eastern Carolina Conference win, is the most lopsided margin of triumph by a Jaquar unit, and the 61-point total is a Farmville Central High School scoring record.

North Pitt head coach Pat Smith, whose Panthers were visibly hurt by the loss of 12 members of the team because of disciplinary reasons, summed up his crew's disastrous evening immediately following the game. "We paid for our mistakes here tonight. The Jaguars are a much better ball club than we are and their defensive team played an excellent game."

On the other side of the field, a very pleased Jaquar coach Gene Brewer had to search to find a flaw in his black and white clad scoring machine. "Indeed, our defense was the key in this game. However, our offensive attack was sort of hit and miss.

We started off great, then hit a low spot in the second quarter. The second half we picked up again."

In chewing up 302 yards on the ground, compared to the mere 45 gained by the Panthers, the homestanding Jaguars scored three touchdowns in the first and third periods, while pushing across two tallies in the final frame and a single score in the second quarter.

"This type of game allows a coach to play a number of players, something I like to do when ever possible," Brewer commented. "I was pleased with what I saw my second string players accomplish."

Jaquar senior running back Donald Reid scored three of the nine touchdowns on runs of one, four and two yards. Reid's junior backfield partner Roger Joyner tallied a pair of scores, squirting 30 yards in the third quarter on a draw play and scampering 75 yards late in the game with a pass interception.

The host Jaguars struck early, scoring on the second play of the game following a Panther fumble on the opening kickoff.

Obtaining possession on the NP 24, Reid bulled over from the one after offensive guard Ronald Reid picked up a Jaquar fumble and ran to the Panther one on the game's first play. Ronald's point after touchdown conversion kick was wide to the right, giving the home team a 6-0 lead with 39 seconds gone in the contest.

On FC's next possession on the NP 27, following a 33-yard punt return by Joyner, a nine play drive resulted in the second score of the night. Don Reid and Joyner took turns hammering the defensive line of NP, with Reid darting across the goal from four yards out. Ronald Reid's PAT kick was good, with 4:45 remaining in the first period, cushioning FC's 13 point lead.

On the Panthers' first play from scrimmage following the kickoff, quarterback Bob Hemingway passed the ball into the arms of Jaquar defender Don Reid, who gave his team possession on the North Pitt 30. Five plays later, Farmville signal caller Eugene Joyner spotted end Jeffrey Tyson alone in the endzone for a 15-yard scoring strike. The drive was salvaged by a 12 yard gallop by David Dunn on a fourth and five play. Ron Reid's kick made the score 20-0, with three minutes remaining in the first period.

North Pitt scored its lone touchdown of the game on the second play of the second frame. FC's Wesley Locust got the call and defensive back Ronnie House literally stole the ball from Locust and streaked 76 yards untouched for the score. Donald Battle's kick was blocked, and thus ended the scoring for the Panthers for the night.

The FC unit tallied a single score in the second quarter, that coming with 2:04 remaining in the half. Again following a good

Slippery Rock Falls, 45-14, Before 61,143

By HARRY ATKINS
AP Sports Writer
ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Shippensburg freshman fullback Steve Moskowitz scored on touchdown runs of 75 and 63 yards the first two times he touched the ball, and the Red Raiders went on to rout Slippery Rock, 45-14, in a Pennsylvania Conference football game played before 61,143 fans in Michigan Stadium on Saturday. The idea of playing the game on neutral turf was the brainchild of University of Michigan Athletic Director Don Canham who saw it as a way to fill the

101,701-seat stadium with paying customers while Michigan's team was on the road. Slippery Rock, because of its unique name, long has been a favorite with Michigan football fans who await the Rock's score over the public address system each autumn Saturday afternoon. Some 12,000 high school band members also were on hand in the sun-drenched stadium. Slippery Rock's first touchdown came on a 19-yard pass from Chuck Sirko to Rick Porter with 5:10 left in the game. Then, with 1:12 remaining, Sirko passed 7-yards to Jeff Meadows for another score. Moskowitz, a 6-foot-1, 215-pounder from Glenmore, Pa., went off right tackle early in the first quarter, spun away from a host of tacklers, and outraced the pack 75 yards to the end zone.

Gamecocks Top Bucs

South Carolina held on to beat a determined East Carolina team, 2-0, in a soccer match here Friday afternoon. The win upped the Gamecocks' record to 5-1, while the Pirates dropped to 3-3-1.

Ata Ukanna scored both goals for South Carolina, the first one coming after 3:13 minutes had elapsed in the first period and the final goal scored with four minutes left in the game. Both goals were scored from corner-kicks.

"They were a very impressive team," said East Carolina coach Brad Smith of the Gamecocks, who are ranked number seven in the south. "I think we were in awe of their ranking and their name initially, but we settled down as the game progressed."

return of 22 yards by Joyner, FC gained the football on the Panther 36. Don Reid took the first play handoff and scooted 26 yards to the ten to set up the half's final score. Four plays later, it was Reid again pushing over from the one Ron Reid added the final point of the half with a perfect PAT.

On North Pitt's first possession of the second half, they drove down to the Jaguar 16 before giving the ball to Farmville on downs. From there, Farmville put together its longest drive of the game, covering the 84 yards to paydirt in nine plays, capped by a 30 yard jaunt by Roger Joyner. A pass play from Eugene Joyner to Mike Baker covering 25 yards and a 30-yard dart by Eugene were the key plays of the drive. Ron Reid's kick made the score 34-6 with 7:15 left in the third period.

On the Panther's next possession, following three unsuccessful running plays, FC's Locust blocked a punt and gave the Jaguars the ball on the 10 yard line. Two plays later, Locust scored on a five yard run. It was Locust who covered the 10 yards with a pair of five yard bursts. David Dunn's first extra point attempt was wide.

A turnover again gave the host squad excellent field position on the first play after the kickoff. FC's Morris Wilkes fell on Terry Moore's miscue on the NP 26. Seven plays later, running back Mike Clemmons crashed over from one yard out. Clemmons and Dude Langley pounded out the yardage, with Clemmons running five plays and Langley two. Dunn's kick was good, giving the Jaguars the 47-6 lead with 1:02 remaining in the third period.

On the second play of the fourth period, Farmville found the endzone once again. Danny Dunn dashed 16 yards for the score after Langley set up the score with a 42 yard run that put the ball on the NP 16. Ron Reid returned to the kicking scene to make the score 54-6 with just under two minutes gone in the final frame.

With 2:49 remaining in the game, Farmville Central wasn't through scoring. Defensive halfback Roger Joyner made an outstanding interception of a Hemingway pass and traveled 75 yards for the final score of the game. Ron Reid's kick put the final touch on the record-breaking win.

The win gave Farmville Central a 4-0 overall mark, and left them 3-0 in the ECC. North Pitt fell to 1-3 overall, and 0-3 in conference play.

"You're going to have days like that, and Baltimore is a very good baseball team. After all, that was their 102nd victory this year."

Rangers 5, Angels 0
Ferguson Jenkins handcuffed California on five hits as Texas blanked the Angels. Al Oliver and Buddy Bell drove in first-inning runs for the Rangers. Ryan, who will start against Palmer Wednesday in the opening game of the AL playoffs, gave up two runs in the first inning.

Brewers 10, Twins 1
The Brewers clinched second place as Cecil Cooper knocked in five runs with a pair of doubles and his 24th homer. Milwaukee set a club record with its 94th triumph of the year.

Royals 13, A's 1
Royals catcher Darrell Porter scored three times to boost his season total to 99 as Kansas City beat Oakland. He needs only one more to become just the second catcher in AL history to collect 100 walks, runs and RBI in a season. The first was Hall of Famer Mickey Cochrane of the Philadelphia A's and Detroit Tigers.

White Sox 3, Mariners 1
Wayne Nordhagen slammed two solo home runs to back the eight-hit pitching of Steve Trout, 11-8, and lead Chicago over Seattle.

Red Sox 7, Tigers 4
Tom Poquette had two doubles and a single, driving in three runs to power Boston over Detroit. The victory also enabled the Red Sox to clinch third place in the American League East.

Yankees 7, Blue Jays 3
Reggie Jackson slammed his 28th home run, a three-run blast, as New York toppled Toronto.

Whitehurst Tries Jump

KINSTON — The Kinston Drag Strip's resident daredevil, "Reckless" Rex Whitehurst, will perform at the local raceway today, attempting another first for North Carolina.

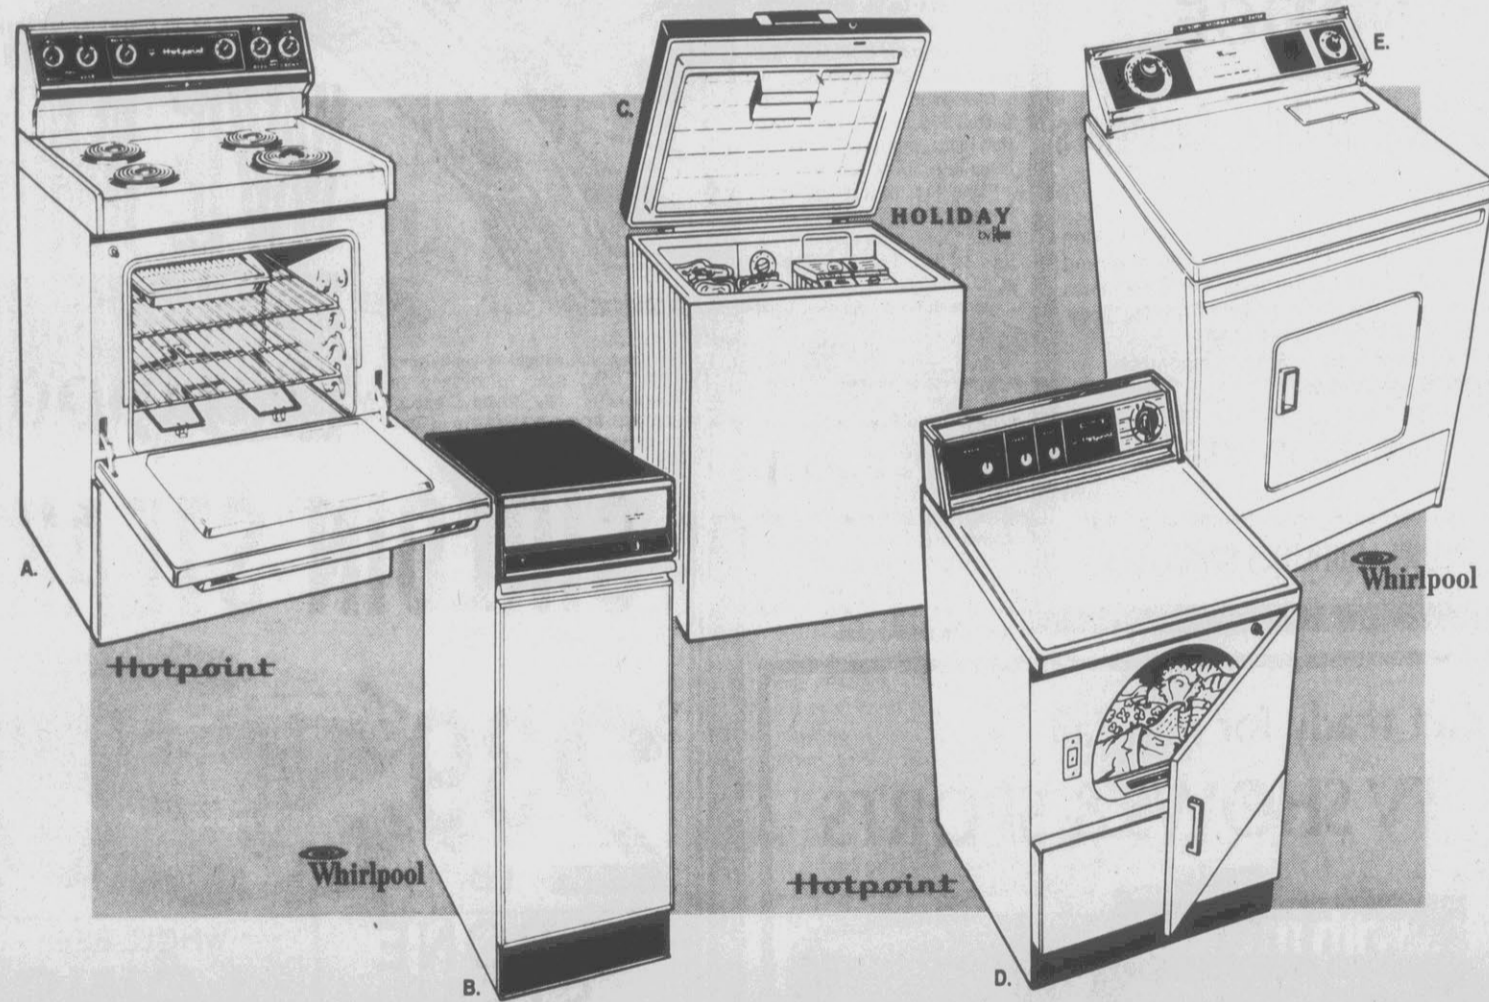

Whitehurst set a world record on July 31, 1977, as he put his specially prepared Yamaha motorcycle over 23 automobiles. He backed up the jump, in 1978, again at Kinston Drag Strip, with another leap over 26 cars and a distance of 157 feet.

Today's feat will be a jump over ten burning "gas guzzler" autos, which Whitehurst calls his first "blind" jump since the flames and smoke will prevent him from seeing his landing spot. The jump will come from a ramp following a 75 to 80 mile per hour run and the landing will be flush on the ground. He says that to his knowledge this jump has never been made before, and will be another record attempt of sorts.

A native of Jacksonville, Whitehurst has been motorcycle jumping for a number of years. His jump is set for approximately 3p.m.

Packer, Lion Youths In Sunday Face-Off

By The Associated Press

When Minnesota quarterback Fran Tarkenton retired after the 1978 National Football League season, some wags suggested the Vikings would have trouble winning any games this year.

And when Detroit quarterback Gary Danielson was sidelined by a knee injury, Lions fans figured they might not see a victory for a very long time.

Enter Tommy Kramer and Jeff Komlo.

Kramer, a two-year benchwarmer behind Tarkenton, inherited Minnesota's starting quarterback job and has handled it admirably while Komlo, a rookie, is getting the hang of playing in the pros.

Last Sunday each of them threw two touchdown passes. Kramer's in an 27-21 overtime victory against Green Bay that put the Vikings' record at 2-2, Komlo's in a 24-23 triumph over Atlanta for the Lions' first victory of the season.

This Sunday the two youngsters go against each other.

land at Houston, Miami at the New York Jets, the New York Giants at New Orleans, Pittsburgh at Philadelphia, Washington at Atlanta, Buffalo at Baltimore, Cincinnati at Dallas, Denver at Oakland, Kansas City at Seattle, St. Louis at Los Angeles and San Francisco at San Diego. On Monday night it's New England at Green Bay.

"We've set out to improve each week and I think we have," says Coach Bud Grant of the Vikings. "I'd like the improvement to continue against the Lions.

"The only pattern to our games against the Lions in the past seems to be that they're very, very physical. Otherwise, we've had some close ones and we've had some runaways."

Last year the Vikings beat Detroit 17-7 in Minnesota, then the Lions rebounded 45-14 at home later in the season.

"They lost the last time they were here," said Detroit Coach Monte Clark. "and they are not used to that. I'm sure they're going to be coming in here with some real vengeance on their minds."

Tampa Bay, which won only five games last year, is the only 4-0 team in the National Conference and one of the four unbeaten teams in the league this season, along with Miami, Pittsburgh and Cleveland. The Bucs, fresh from their biggest victory ever, a 21-6 pasting of Los Angeles, invades Chicago holding a two-game lead over the Bears and Vikings in the NFC Central Division.

Bullets Takes Fourth Straight

JAMESVILLE — Jamesville's undefeated Bullets had their closest call Friday night, but managed to hold off Bath for a 6-0 victory.

The win boosted the Bullet record to 4-0 both overall and in Tobacco Belt Conference play, while Bath slipped to 2-2 in the league and 2-3 overall.

The only touchdown of the game came in the first period when Billy Moore went over from three yards out to give the Bullets and early 6-0 lead that stood up the rest of the game.

That score was set up by Trent Ange, who intercepted a pass and returned it to the Bath 30 yard line. It was the first of three passes picked off by Ange during the night.

While Jamesville was able to move the ball fairly well during the evening, it failed to produce any other scores. "We had the ball inside their 20 several more times, but just couldn't push it in," Jamesville coach Jerry Godley said.

Bath offered only one threat during the evening, that coming late in the contest, but time ran out on them.

Godley praised the play of two defensive players, Bill Hardison and Ross Simmons. "Hardison was playing nose guard for the injured Jeff Rogers, and made four unassisted tackles for losses late in the game. Simmons, a defensive end, had several key tackles and also caused a fumble," Godley said. "Both of them played a super game."

The Bullets travel to Aurora next Friday, where they will be seeking their fifth win of the season.

GOLDSBORO — Drew Mazingo scored four goals to lead Goldsboro Christian past Greenville Christian Academy Friday, 5-2, in a soccer match.

Mazingo scored two goals in the first half as Goldsboro jumped out to a 3-2 lead. John Tice added the other Goldsboro goal, while Richard Smith and Patrick Langley scored Greenville's goals.

In the second half, Mazingo added two more goals as Goldsboro won, dropping Greenville to 0-1.

Greenville travels to Raleigh Tuesday to take on Friendship Christian.

Summary:

Greenville Christian	2 0-2
Goldsboro Christian	3 2-5

Scoring: (GCA) Smith (1), Langley (1); (GC) Mazingo (4), Tice (1).

Alabama has beaten Penn State in two of the three football games they have played and one touchdown has been the margin each time.

NBA Players, Owners Far Apart On Agreement On Many Items

CHICAGO (AP) — The rift between players and owners in the National Basketball Association is at such an impasse that the season is expected to open Oct. 12 without a basic agreement between the two factions.

Alan Rothenberg, chairman of the NBA's labor relations committee, reported to the board of governors Friday and said the two groups are "far apart" on the important issues involving cable TV, money, contracts, disability insurance, severance pay, and roster sizes.

Commissioner Larry O'Brien, who presided at Friday's meeting, said he has asked the league's labor relations committee to meet jointly with the powerful advisory committee to dispatch matters.

The fact that this will be the first meeting on the matter involving the advisory committee, headed by Irv Levin, owner of the San Diego Clippers, is seen as a possible indication that trouble is brewing.

Rothenberg said twice in the past that NBA seasons have opened without a basic agreement and "I would hope this season will start without interruption."

The three-year basic agreement expired last June.

O'Brien said he has no timetable for the joint meetings between the labor relations committee and the advisory committee, which then are expected to meet with representatives of the NBA Players Association, headed by Larry Fleisher. O'Brien added he would hope the meetings would take place as soon as possible.

Rothenberg said the two groups are near agreement on possibly 65 of the 75 items but the other ten are "probably the most important."

"We are very far apart on the major issues and it is not a matter of give and take," said Rothenberg. "For example, the issue of cable TV is on opposite sides of the spectrum. The players claim they have rights to cable TV and the owners say no."

The players already have filed suit to force the NBA to share cable TV money with them.

Lady Pirates Out Of Event

RICHMOND, Ky. — East Carolina University's women's volleyball team was ousted from the Eastern Kentucky Tournament Friday night, along with three other teams from North Carolina.

The Pirates then fell to Central Florida, 15-4, 15-4. Central Florida was last year's Division II national champion and was unbeaten during the year.

Duke downed the Pirates in the third match, 11-6, 10-15, and 16-14, in the closest of the ECU events. Kent State polished off the Bucs, 15-5 and 15-9, in the last match of the day.

The top three teams in each pool advanced into Saturday's finals.

East Carolina travels to Chapel Hill on Tuesday to face the Tar Heels, along with Appalachian State in a tri-meet.

Swim Club Awards

THE FISHER FIREPLACE INSERT

Say goodbye to high gas, oil, or electric bills.

Fisher's new fireplace insert wood-burning stove is an efficient auxiliary heating unit that can cut your fuel cost by 50%, or maybe entirely. The Fisher insert stove is a fireplace and a stove. It needs no outside power source. There are no fans, motors, or blowers to burn out or be replaced.

The Fisher insert stove heats 1500 to 2000 square feet, holds a fire over night, and burns logs up to 26 inches in length. It comes with either chrome plated or black doors, fireplace screen, and a 13-inch cooking surface. It is built of heavy plate steel, has a firebrick lining, and fits any fireplace 24 3/4 to 40 inches in width. Optional spacers are available for larger openings.

Come in and see for yourself why Fisher's fireplace insert stove is another idea America is warming up to.

*Blowers optional.

We're Here to Help!

(Part 2)

We hope that you saw our recent advertisement. In that ad, we talked about our Union's interest in community service . . . the voluntary work that our members undertake in the communities in which we live and work.

We are proud of our Union, the Communications Workers of America, AFL-CIO. CWA encourages us to participate in activities that help others at the community level.

We work for Carolina Telephone & Telegraph Co. (which includes the Norfolk and Carolina Telephone Co.), and we are proud of the work that we do on the job in the hundreds of eastern North Carolina communities that CT&T serves. We try our best to keep your channels of communications open: we may not be the biggest, but we think we are among the best.

Most importantly, our Union is the best. CWA represents our needs, on and off the job. Our Union encourages us to be good workers, and encourages us to be good citizens. And, that's a pretty good combination.

We believe that good work and good citizenship go hand-in-hand. We believe that people need to have pride in the job that they do, and that when they have pride in their work, they will have pride in themselves.

CWA President Glenn E. Watts has said that, "CWA is a union which does not simply represent the wage and job interests of our growing membership. Rather, CWA is a union with an abiding commitment to the welfare of the total community."

Nationwide, there are more than 600,000 of us in the CWA family. And, there are many thousands of us in North Carolina employed not only by CT&T but also by the Central, General and Continental telephone systems and other allied units.

The fact is that union membership means more than good wages and good contracts: union membership also means good feelings about ourselves and our communities.

Top Prep Coach Dies

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Joe Tomanchek, a highly successful coach in the Charlotte schools for 29 years, died Friday of cancer. He was 63.

Tomanchek had coached the Garinger High baseball team since 1960, winning one state title in three trips to the state tournament and posting a career record of 285-99-1.

He also coached the football team his first five years at Garinger, winning a state title in 1959, reaching the state finals in 1961 and the state semifinals in 1963.

This past season, his baseball squad reached the state final, but Tomanchek had to miss the last seven games because of his illness.

He had not planned to return as Garinger baseball coach this season, having worked out his retirement this summer. His former assistant, Jimmy Edwards, has been named head baseball coach.

Tomanchek is survived by his wife Margarette Olivier Tomanchek, three daughters and two sons. He also is survived by four brothers and two sisters.

The funeral will be held at 3:30 p.m. Monday at St. Gabriel's Catholic Church.

Tomanchek attended Elon College, where he lettered in baseball football and basketball. Later, he earned a masters degree in physical education from the University of North Carolina. He also coached at North Mecklenburg and Central high schools.

Treasurer

GRIFTON — Dallas J. Sasser, personal loan officer for the Grifton branch of First-Citizens Bank and Trust, has been named treasurer of the Grifton Shad Festival, according to Shad Festival Board of Directors member Richard McLawhorn.
 Sasser replaces Cindy Brown, who has moved to Pennsylvania after serving as treasurer for two years.
 Sasser, a Bonifay, Fla. native, is in his third year in studies at East Carolina University for a degree in business administration.
 His wife, Linda, has agreed to help with some of the duties incurred in the job.
 "The Sassers are the ideal couple to carry on the responsibilities of the Shad Festival finances," said McLawhorn.

To Meet

In Raleigh

The Northeastern Tarheel Chapter of the American Institute of Industrial Engineers will meet with the Raleigh chapter Wednesday, Oct. 3, at Ballentine's Restaurant, Cameron Village, Raleigh.
 Speaker for the evening will be E.V. (Ted) Breeden, who will discuss "Marketing and the Industrial Engineer." A social will be held at 6 p.m., with dinner at 7 and the meeting at 8 p.m. Dinner will be served buffet style and will cost approximately $7.50 per person.
 Those who plan to attend should call Tom Underwood, 734-4301, or Ranthi Dev, 758-3436, no later than Oct. 2.

Dinner

Chairman

The Rev. Bobby Taylor of Greenville has been named chairman for the Pitt County annual dinner in support of Mount Olive College.
 Other members on the steering committee for the annual event include Ernest Avery, the Rev. Tommy Evans, Charles Hardee, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Harris, Mrs. Lou McLawhorn, Mrs. Faye Adams and the Rev. David Hill.
 The Pitt County dinner is one of 17 dinners held each fall for the benefit of Mount Olive College.

Winterville Bd.

To Meet

WINTERVILLE — The Winterville Town Board of Aldermen will meet Monday, Oct. 1, 7 p.m., at the Winterville Town Hall.

NEW YORK (AP) - New York Stock Exchange trading for the week selected issues.

Planters National Bank announced the transfer of William C. Cozart, vice president, from Ayden to Durham, according to B. K. Baucom, Durham city executive.

Cozart, formerly Planters' city executive in Ayden, will work with Baucom in the overall management of the bank's Durham operation, which includes four offices.

Cozart joined Planters in 1961 and held positions of responsibility in Greenville and Raleigh before moving to Ayden as city executive. He received both A.B. and M.B.A. degrees from East Carolina University.

Sportsworld Inc. of Greenville announced the Friday opening of a new family roller skating and recreation facility in Raleigh.

The new complex, which contains 34,000 square feet of space, will have a large skating floor for disco roller skating and dancing; a large sound system; light show, complete game room, skater's shop and snack bar, Sportsworld reported.

The Greenville based firm has six family roller skating facilities throughout eastern North Carolina and South Carolina, including Rocky Mount, Wilmington and Myrtle Beach.

Mark Manning has joined the WITN-TV sales team, covering Pitt, Wilson and Johnston counties, according to W. R. Robertson Jr., chairman of North Carolina Television Inc. (WITN-TV).

Roberson said that Manning's responsibilities for the station will include sales of commercial advertisements, and servicing of existing accounts in Greenville, Wilson, Goldsboro and the adjacent area.

Manning, a Winston-Salem native, graduated from N.C. State University in May, receiving a bachelor's degree in business administration.

The opening of Greenview Insulation Co. Inc. was announced by Billy Fout and John Whitlow, owners.

They reported that the new company will offer residential as well as commercial insulation, including insulation for existing homes. In addition, the owners said that Greenview Insulation will offer a complete energy conservation package, including weather stripping, caulking, storm windows, attic ventilation and other features.

Both Fout and Whitlow, who reside in Greenville, attended East Carolina University.

Elaine Fleming, a Greenville native who was formerly marketing supervisor with a national shoe company, has joined Management Improvement Co. of America in Durham as an account executive, the co reported.

In her new job, it was pointed out, she will work with marketing the XPCL gasoline and diesel-fuel conservation systems which MICA will promote nationally later this year.

The new account executive attended St. Mary's College in Raleigh and East Carolina University. While at ECU, she worked in retail clothing and in her father's real estate business, Fleming & Associates.

The American Dairy Association announced that it presented its Dairy Management Award to Kroger Sav-On of Charlotte. The national award, it was reported, is one of 20 to be presented in 1979 to grocery operations with outstanding dairy departments.

ADA said that it created the award to honor retail grocers for active participation in its Dairy Department Management Workshop program and for successful implementation of program principles at the store level.

ADA is the advertising and marketing arm of United Dairy Industry Association.

Business Notes

AWARD OF EXCELLENCE
An advertisement honoring Greenville insurance agent Booger Scates captured an Award of Excellence at the annual Life Insurance Advertisers Association meeting in Chicago.

The two-page ad, which ran in "The Daily Reflector" on Feb. 13, cited Scates' client list of more than 3,000 policyholders. The ad was created by Integon advertising manager Dave Knesel, CLU, and art director Debbie Harlike.

Scates, the company's all-time leading agent, led all Integon agents in 1978 with $10,017,000 of insurance sales, Integon reported. The results marked the 17th time he has led the company.

QUARTERLY DIVIDENDS
Directors of Carolina Power & Light Co. declared the quarterly dividends on common, preferred and preference stock.

A dividend of 52 cents per share was declared on the company's common stock, payable Nov. 1 to shareholders of record Oct. 5.

Dividends at the prescribed rate for preferred stock are $1.25 per share on the $5 series; $1.05 per share on the $4.20 series; $1.36 on the $5.44 series; $2.275 on the $9.10 series; $1.9875 on the $7.95 series; $1.93 on the $7.72 series; and $2.12 on the $8.48 series. Preferred dividends are payable Jan. 2 to shareholders of record Dec. 19.

Exchange's market value indexed with a 2.06-point increase to 225.18.

The Big Board's volume averaged 34.62 million shares daily.

Despite the big declines at the beginning and end of the week, the market seemed to ignore a great deal of bad news.

Gold prices, setting records almost daily and climbing over the $400 mark for the first time at week's end, seemed to have little effect on the market, possibly because it has already seen a doubling in gold prices in the past year.

"It's just amazing the market has held up the way it has, considering the enormous rise in gold prices," said Eldon Grimm, an analyst at Birr, Wilson & Co.

It also took pretty much in stride the falling dollar, rumors of an increase in the price of Nigerian oil, the rise of the prime interest rate to a record 13 1/2 percent and reports that OPEC, meeting in Vienna, was considering turning from the dollar to a combination of the dollar and British pound as the cartel's official currency.

There was some good news, as well, including a drop in the latest money supply statistics and several oil discoveries. And the rapid run-up in the price of gold and other metals boosted stocks of metal-producing companies. "Metal mania ... seems to be the sequel to gambling mania, deal mania and oil mania," said Newton D. Zinder, an analyst at E.F. Hutton.

The relatively moderate volume, following several very strong days in recent weeks, led some analysts to suggest that the market might be tired after its summer-long rally.

"The market needs a little Geritol," said Larry Wachtel, an analyst at Bache Halsey Stuart Shields. "It's suffering from tired blood."

John Adams and Thomas Jefferson, the second and third presidents of the United States, died in 1826.

Freshness Rule
WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers buying all prescription drugs and most over-the-counter medicines will be advised starting today on the freshness of the product.

A new Food and Drug Administration rule requires drug manufacturers to put expiration dates on all prescription and most non-prescription items. The few items not covered by the order include such things as rubbing alcohol and medicated shampoos that have a shelf life of at least three years.

Tests Conducted On Diagnostic Equipment At Pitt Memorial

Preliminary tests are being conducted on sophisticated diagnostic equipment recently installed in the new cardiac catheterization laboratory developed by the East Carolina University School of Medicine and Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

Dr. Allen F. Bowyer, chief of cardiology in the Department of Medicine, says the lab should be ready to receive the first patient by early October.

The laboratory equipment, which was built in Cleveland, Ohio, arrived here in June and was installed by the manufacturer's engineers. Bowyer says evaluation and testing of the equipment's control and logic hardware should be completed by the end of this month.

Cardiac catheterization is a diagnostic procedure combining electronic, radiologic and computer methods. It provides a picture of the anatomy and functional physiology of the heart, coronary circulation and blood vessels. The technique is useful for establishing an accurate diagnosis on which to base the best treatment for many heart and circulatory problems.

A sophisticated computer monitors the data obtained and aids the cardiologist in conducting a detailed analysis of the information. Seven cameras — videotape, 35mm motion picture and 150mm still frame — guide the cardiologist during the procedure and provide a permanent record of the findings for later reference.

The cath lab occupies a suite in the hospital's radiology department. It includes rooms for electronic and quality control, cath procedures and film processing.

To accommodate the new equipment, hospital maintenance personnel made extensive renovations to the area, including re-building walls, installing ceiling tracks for equipment mobility and excavating large areas under the floor to house the generators that provide energy to the x-ray tubes.

Bowyer says the availability of the cath lab — the only one in Eastern North Carolina — will greatly benefit heart disease patients in the region.

18-Speed Truck Is Her Work, Pleasure

By STUART MORGAN
Reflector Staff Writer

"I like shifting gears, it's in my blood," Wanda Underwood said. "I prefer a standard shift — I drive a ragged Toyota, and it's a standard."

During a typical work day, Wanda, an attractive 22-year-old Greenville native, drives an 18-speed Mack truck, often hauling 18-ton loads of sand, asphalt and stone.

"The men more or less put you through a test at first to see what you can take — what they can get away with by teasing you," Wanda said. "You have to take everything with a grain of salt."

After graduating from Rose High School in 1975, Wanda worked as an electrician's assistant in Greenville for awhile. Later, she also worked for awhile downtown in a sandwich shop.

"I was anxious to leave the sandwich shop," Wanda said. "I should never have worked there — I got so fat! I would have done anything to leave that job."

Fortunately, the opportunity came one day for her to leave when a manager of a local construction company asked Wanda if she could drive a truck.

Although she admitted to having never before driven a truck, Wanda said she was interested in the job nevertheless.

"I thought about the job for two weeks," Wanda said.

"Then, I went out to his house and told him I was ready to go to work."

First Truck Driving Job

"I started in November 1977 driving a flat-bed Ford, a regular old truck without a tail gate," she said. "With a 15' bed, I hauled trees and other things from lots we were clearing."

After driving that truck for about seven months, Wanda started driving a 10-wheel tandem truck used for hauling up to 16 tons of rock. She also worked as a bulldozer operator.

"I pushed sand into a big pile so they could later transport that to an asphalt plant," Wanda said. "With that job, there would have been more pay, but it was monotonous work, constantly pushing dirt all day long."

"I'm not the type of person who could go all day long without talking to anybody," she added. So, Wanda told one of her supervisors that she wanted to drive trucks again.

"Driving trucks, I ride around a lot, and I get to see a lot of the country," she explained. "People wave at me, and I wave back. I think that's the best thing about the job."

"I meet people I don't know," Wanda said. "I see them everyday — other truck drivers — whom I recognize but don't know by name."

She added, "I'm also constantly mobile. I'm not in one place all the time. I get to move about, which is important to me."

Shortly after talking to her supervisors, Wanda found a job with another local construction company. But when she started working there, the only thing they had for her to do was to drive a flat-bed truck, the same type truck she started out driving with her first construction job.

Later however, Wanda was given the job of driving the 18-speed Mack truck which she has been driving ever since.

"I work a lot around Pitt County, Plymouth and Williamston," Wanda said. "But mostly, I work around this area."

About driving the large truck, Wanda said, "The gears didn't bother me, but it was difficult to keep that big truck between the lines." She added, "I feel so little in that truck."

"Now, it's like driving my Toyota. In fact," she added, "I feel like I'm driving a bumper car at the circus when I drive my car."

After Working Hours

Wanda doesn't spend all her time driving trucks. Like most working people, she lives another life after work hours.

Wanda, who prefers country music, said she also likes the Allman Brothers. She said she goes to the Carolina Opry House about once a week.

"I also read a lot," Wanda said. "I like reading books on facts, for example, almanacs and atlases. I also like maps."

"I travel around with my friends," she added. "We visit friends in Charlotte, and we try to make some bluegrass festivals every now and then."

Occasionally, Wanda said she and her friends go to the beach. "Sometimes we go camping — to places where we've never been before. It makes the trip more interesting."

This winter, Wanda said she hopes to play the fiddle. "Hopefully, I'll be able to pick-up the fiddle by learning from my friends. They all have fiddles. I could probably borrow a fiddle just to begin."

Future Plans

Asked whether she plans to drive trucks for a career, Wanda replied: "I want to get married and have youngins someday, that's my ambition. When I get married, that will be my full-time job."

"But, wouldn't trade truck driving for anything," she added. "I've learned a lot, and it's something that I'll be able to talk about later to my grandchildren."

"I'll tell them I used to be a truck driver."

Wanda is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Underwood of Greenville.

OTHER TRUCK DRIVERS WAVE — Of course, that's understandable. Wanda, one of only a few female truck drivers in Pitt County, attracts waves from other truck drivers and other persons during the day as she drives the big 18-speed Mack truck. In fact, she probably causes a few persons to take second looks. (Reflector Photo by Stuart Morgan)

Jennie Hall

Basket Making's Her Love

Jennie Hall has many enthusiasms — her twin daughters, quilt-making, antique furniture, and basket-making, to name a few.

The latest of these is basket-making.

Last fall about this time, Mrs. Hall, who lives in Winterville, first tried her hand at twisting and twining dampened reed into a basket. She did this in a Home Extension Service-sponsored class held in Plymouth. She came home and practiced and refined her new knowledge into skill. By now she's made no fewer than 55 baskets and she's shared her new love for the ancient art with many of her friends and acquaintances.

"We have so much fun!" she said. "The time just flies when I'm making a basket. And it's even better when I can do it with a group of people who also enjoy it."

As news of and demand for the teaching of her new skill has spread, she's developed a few classes, some held in her own garage. She makes a nominal charge for instruction and materials ordered from an out-of-state source.

The material used to make the baskets is both flat and round reed of varying sizes and split oak staves.

The baskets can be round or oval, large or small. They're named to denote what they can be expected to hold or according to their shapes — egg baskets, gizzard baskets, and buttocks baskets.

Some are left plain, but Mrs. Hall prefers hers dyed with one of two home-prepared solutions. For a mellowly tinted basket, she uses a mixture of household ammonia in which chewing tobacco — the brand's unimportant — has been placed a week earlier. For a darker one, she uses a solution made by have poured boiling water over black walnuts still in the husks.

"No two baskets are ever quite the same," she commented. "That's what makes making them so appealing. Even when you follow the same directions, there'll be slight variations, depending on how tightly you hold the reed or whatever."

The widow of a retired Army lieutenant colonel and the mother of UNC pharmacy students, Jane and June, Mrs. Hall has lived in Winterville for the past 26 years. A Metter, Ga. native, she has a home economics degree from the University of Georgia and a counseling degree from East Carolina University. She has been both a teacher and a counselor in the public schools.

Now she's devoting almost full-time effort to the pursuit of various old-fashioned crafts like quilting and basket-making. She takes part in crafts shows throughout the state.

AN ASSORTMENT... is basket sizes is displayed by Mrs. Hall. All were made by her, as were the quilted Christmas tree stars that the basket at the far right holds.

When Acting Began, Sports Lost Appeal

GREENSBORO — As April Lynn Woodall prepares to play the leading female role in the UNC-G Theatre production of "Candide" this week, the 21-year-old music major like to think from time to time about how she first got started on stage.

It all goes back five years, when she was a senior in high school. That was the turning point. Instead of playing on the girls varsity basketball team again, she auditioned for the school's musical play — and got the leading part in it.

"I had never done anything like that in my whole life," she recalled recently. "But I got up on stage and acted natural. The audience responded to me and I responded to them — and it was just like love at first sight."

After that, sports didn't seem to hold as much appeal — not when compared to the bright lights on stage. In fact, even though athletics had been a big part of her life, she never went out for another team sport thereafter.

What does she enjoy most about performing on stage?

"It's seeing a lot of hard work come together," she replied. "It comes to a point of perfection that is just beyond words...It's perfect."

What about the applause of the audience?

"That makes it so much more desirable," Miss Woodall replied enthusiastically. "The harder you work, the more you know they are going to get involved in what you are doing..."

"When you have that basic desire to be good, to perform and perform well, they are going to see it. You know that no matter what character you do, it's going to show through."

That's just the approach that the blonde-haired Miss Woodall is bringing to her role of Cunegonde in "Candide," a rousing musical comedy which will open a new season for the Theatre of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro on Thursday, Sept. 27. The play will be performed Thursday night at 8:15 p.m. in Taylor Building theatre on campus. The production will continue Friday and Saturday nights, followed by four other nightly performances Oct. 4-6, and a 2:15 p.m. matinee on Sunday, Oct. 7.

The show is an adaptation of one of Voltaire's finest novels which parodies "the best of all possible worlds." Music for the play was written by Leonard Bernstein.

Miss Woodall, a soprano from Newport News, Va., particularly like Bernstein's music in the play.

"Oh, it's beautiful," she said. "The show's music contains some of the most beautiful, lush chords and progressions that you can imagine."

Miss Woodall sings throughout the production, including love duets with Wayne Lee, a graduate student from Burlington, who plays Candide, the male lead in the show.

"My really big number is a piece called 'Glitter and Be Gay,'" she noted. "It's a song about how Cunegonde enjoys having diamonds and other luxuries and how she realizes there is a price to pay for them in her life. Vocally, it's a very demanding song."

Cunegonde is also a very demanding role, believes Miss Woodall, who is enjoying the challenge of it.

"For me, it's an ingenue role," she said. "Cunegonde is very young, very innocent, but she develops into a not so young, not so beautiful, not so innocent girl by the end of the show. And that particular development is a challenge because I'm seen only in spurts."

Miss Woodall said she also is finding her role interesting in other ways. "Being a music major in a cast of drama majors makes me a little bit nervous," she admitted. "But they are all good friends of mine and they will help me because they know I want help. I'm very open to suggestion."

Directing the show is Dr. John Joy, an assistant professor of drama who has a professional background in show business.

"He is wonderful to work with," said Miss Woodall. "He is so much fun. He has a way of being a director and a friend and a companion all at the same time. He will come up and make a suggestion to you as a friend and the next time he will say something as a director. But if he just wants you to think about something, he'll say it as a friend."

One of the highlights of the show is expected to be the costumes being designed and made by Susan Lambeth, an assistant professor at UNC-G. Miss Woodall said she has five costume changes in the production and noted that the designs are very colorful.

"There seems to be every color of the rainbow in every costume," she explained. "In one scene, the colors sweep "Enjoying Our Heritage," an antiques symposium, will be held here at Pitt Community College Oct. 11-12.

Speakers are James L. Jefferson, Edward E. Fulford and Dr. Emily Farnham.

Jefferson, vice president of Boone's Antiques, Wilson, is a Pitt County native. He lives in his restored homeplace in Fountain. Owner and operator of Colonial House of Antiques, Wilson, Fulford specializes in English and American furniture of the Queen Anne, Chippendale, Hepplewhite and Sheraton periods.

Dr. Farnham, a retired ECU professor, is a North Carolina art commissioner and is a member of the Advisory Board of the N. C. Art Society and an art history specialist.

The sessions will begin with registration Thursday morning, Oct. 11, at 9 a.m. followed by the first session at 9:30 to be led by Jefferson, who will also speak again at 1:30. Fulford will be speaking Friday at 9:30 a.m. and Dr. Farnham at 1:30 p.m. Pre-registration is requested to Louise Downing at Pitt Community College.

Morrocroft is the Charlotte Symphony Women's Association ASID Designer House for this year. Built in 1927, the 14,000 square foot house is located at 2525 Richardson Dr. in the Queen City.

Twenty decorators from the Carolinas Chapter of ASID decorated 23 of the rooms and hallways of the house to be open to the public through Oct. 14. Hours are Monday through Saturday 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Sunday, 2-6 p.m. and Tuesday and Thursday evenings, 7:30-9:30.

Activities include informal modeling and special lectures and demonstrations as well as musical programs including Harp Ensemble today at three o'clock, Creating Gingerbread Houses Thursday at 10:30 a.m., Landscape Design Friday, Oct. 5, at 10:30 a.m. and Loonis McGlohon, pianist, at 1 p.m. Kitchen Gadgets and Fun will be presented Thursday, Oct. 11, at 10:30 a.m.

When Acting...

across the stage just like a rainbow. It's going to be a very bright and pretty show."

Not only that—but it's a show with both a chorus directed by Dr. William McIver and an 18-piece orchestra directed by Dr. Frank McCarty. Moreover, the production has a strong moral, added Miss Woodall.

"It's supposed to be about a search for the best of all possible worlds," she noted. "Candide finally finds out that this whole world might not be so great, but he also decides that his little section of it can be okay. He can't change the rest of it, but he can change himself. That's the moral of the whole play."

"But it's such a comedy, and it's so light and enjoyable. If you don't find that moral, you still can enjoy the show," she said, laughing.

April Woodall is now caught up in the busy world of being a student during the day and rehearsing a play at night. The years have passed quickly since she swapped the basketball court for the bright lights of stage five years ago. And in May, she will be graduating from UNC-G.

After that she plans to go to Cincinnati Conservatory and work toward another degree with a concentration in opera.

"I'm very much into pursuing opera as a career," she said. "I want to be on stage."

That's just where she will be when "Candide" opens Thursday night, and the brown-eyed singer is enthusiastic about the production.

"It's a very enjoyable show," she said. "The music is wonderful. We've worked hard to make it a tight show & I think it's going to be hot stuff."

Queen Elizabeth II bestowed the title of Prince of Wales on her son Prince Charles in 1958.

Intolerance Is Ignorance

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a graduate student from Bombay, India. I am informed that in your column a few years ago you very eloquently defended the religious practices observed in foreign countries, and particularly of my homeland—India. I would be most grateful if you would repeat that letter.

STUDENT AT N.Y.U.

DEAR STUDENT: I found the letter. And here it is:

DEAR ABBY: How long are you going to pollute the world with your ignorance?

Someone wrote and told you that in his native country (India) it was all right under certain conditions to do something which is absolutely immoral. You then replied, "Thank you for illustrating a point which we in the Western world are apt to forget. We represent a very small part of the world, and what WE consider 'immoral' or 'unethical' is not necessarily immoral or unethical in other countries and for other cultures."

Well, he is wrong and so are you! Just because they do it in other countries doesn't make it right.

You ignorant woman. Have you not read the Ten Commandments? Have you not read in the New Testament that Christians are to go all over the world and teach the gospel? That includes India, too.

It is polluters like you who delude ignorant people into believing that immoral acts are all right. It's time Christians everywhere wrote to you and demanded that you speak the truth.

DISGUSTED WITH YOU

DEAR DISGUSTED: The essence of all religions is to love your neighbor as yourself. And to love one's neighbor, we must respect his beliefs, though they be different from our own. To try to impose our values on others is not only a denial of their rights but also a form of arrogance, which in itself is irreligious. An ancient Hebrew prayer put it very well:

"From the cowardice that shrinks from new truth,
From the laziness that is content with half-truths,
From the arrogance that thinks it knows all truth,
Oh, God of Truth, deliver us."

DEAR ABBY: (I never thought I would be writing those words!) This is in response to Mary, who hated her name, and signed her letter, "I'd rather be Susie."

Well, my name IS Susan, and everyone calls me "Sue" or "Susie."

I hated my name when I was younger, because my uncle used to say "Susie" was a name fit only for a mine mule or a cow. And then there was a song titled "Runaround Sue," and another one titled "If You Knew Susie." And that awful one called "A Boy Named Sue."

As though that wasn't bad enough, they had to name a circular tray a "Lazy Susan."

So, Mary may hate her name, but I hate mine, too. Abby, do you think anybody really likes their own name? SUE

DEAR SUE: I like mine. I selected it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "HURTING IN CHICAGO": An anonymous letter is the ultimate in cowardice. Disregard it. A person who would stoop so low is not above lying.

Miss Harrington Weds In Saturday Ceremony

Miss Deborah Gay Harrington and Edward Earl Morris were united in marriage Saturday at 3 p.m. at Saint Paul Pentecostal Holiness Church. The Rev. Maurice Phelps, pastor, performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ollie A. Harrington, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Morris, all of Greenville.

A program of nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. Nancy Lancaster, organist. Mrs. Earline Stocks, aunt of the bride, sang "Whither Thou Goest," "The Twelfth of Never" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The church held a brass heart shaped candelabrum. Nine branched tree candelabrum with white chrysanthemums and poms were used on each side with two seven branch candelabrum filled with flowers. The couple knelt for the benediction on a white profile prie-dieu and they lighted the unity candle.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, wore a floor length gown with a chapel train of organza and silk Venise lace. The empire bodice featured a Queen Anne neckline and full puff sleeves. Silk Venise lace adorned the bodice and trimmed the sleeves. The full length skirt extended into a chapel train and Venise lace bordered the hemline of the gown.

The bride wore a mantilla appliqued with lace motifs etched with seed pearls with an illusion blusher attached to a face frame design headpiece of lace etched with seed pearls. The bride carried a flowing cascade bouquet of white silk gardenias, white sweetheart roses, baby's breath and grape ivy.

Mrs. Nancy Harrington, sister-in-law of the bride, was honor attendant and bridesmaids were Mrs. Linda Smith, Mrs. Jean Moore, sisters of the bridegroom, Ms. Teresa Cobb, cousin of the bride, Mrs. Patti Norman, Ms. Jean Hall and Mrs. Debbie Morris, sister-in-law of the bridegroom. The attendants wore rosette silesta floor length gowns. The blouson bodice featured a yoke neckline and split bracelet length sleeves. The crystal pleated skirt flowed to floor length. They carried long cascade bouquets of dried silk botanicals and silk delphinium florets and wore matching headpieces.

Miss Adrienne Smith, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl and wore a formal length gown of white eyelet with pink lace and berth collar. The gathered skirt featured a ruffle flounce. She carried a wicker basket of silk daisies and baby's breath and wore a headpiece of silk daisies.

Allen Trueblood, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer. David Morris, brother of the bridegroom, was best man and groomsmen were Dennis and Danny Harrington, brothers of the bride, Bucky Moore and Ricky Smith, brothers-in-law of the bridegroom, Larry Peaden, John Simpkins, Tony Coggins and Harper Manning, all of Greenville.

The mother of the bride wore a romance blue chiffon floor length gown featuring a bodice with a jewel neckline outlined with Venise lace. The bridegroom's mother chose a forrest green floor length gown with a yoke neckline and full length sleeves. Both mothers were given silk mauve and rose corsages.

Mrs. Nina Morris and Mrs. Dolly Smith, grandmothers of the bridegroom, were remembered with white miniature carnation corsages.

Mrs. Millie Wiggins directed the wedding and Miss Jackie Colbert presided at the guest register.

The bride's parents entertained guests at a reception after the ceremony in the church social hall. The bride's table held a fountain decorated with white and rose flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Lee Buck, aunt and uncle of the bride, received guests. Mrs. Frances Mills and Mrs. Pauline Cole assisted in pouring punch. Mrs. Peggy Porter and Mrs. Jean Minton, aunts of the bride, served wedding cake.

Rice bags were distributed by Miss Vanessa Smith, niece of the bridegroom, Miss Tina Buck, cousin of the bride, and Miss Sharon Wiggins.

The bridal couple and wedding party were honored at a buffet dinner party given by Mr. and Mrs. Ricky Smith, Mr. and Mrs. David Morris and Mr. and Mrs. Bucky Moore.

The bridegroom's parents entertained with an after-rehearsal dinner at the Ramada Inn.

After a wedding trip, the couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of Rose High School and attended Pitt Technical Institute. She is now employed by East Carolina University. The bridegroom is a graduate of North Pitt High School and attended N. C. State University. He is presently engaged in farming.

Family Trends Discussed At National Meeting

ECU News Bureau

Trends in marriage and family life which are changing the traditional structure and function of families were discussed by an East Carolina University sociologist and his wife at the recent meeting of the National Council on Family Relations in Boston.

Dr. David Knox, professor of sociology at ECU, and his wife Frances, formerly of the ECU child development and family relations faculty, based their presentation on a comprehensive review of current research on the American family.

While many of the trends the Knoxs singled out are just beginning — increased governmental interest in the family, less rigid sex roles, more permissiveness toward adolescent sexual activity — they will probably escalate during the 1980's, according to most experts.

Family relations educators and counselors must be concerned not only about "what's new" but also about "what's next," they said.

Specific trends seem to be caused by various economic, social and political factors which affect the family.

Increased longevity, for example, has contributed to the decline of the old "romantic" belief that one can fall truly in love just once in a lifetime, the gradual rise in age of the average first-time bride and groom, and the expansion of the field of gerontology (the study of aging).

The Knoxs also cited several probable results of modern economic pressures: more dual-career marriages, more sharing by men in child-rearing and housework as their wives take jobs, and the greater tendency for families to have fewer children.

"The various trends in marriage and the family have a behavioral implication for family life educators — to stay informed," the Knoxs concluded.

"What was 'out' ('shacking up', childless marriages, employed wives) is now 'in' (cohabitation, childfree marriages, dual-career marriages.) And what was 'in' regarding virginity, authoritarian parenthood, and uninvolved fatherhood is being replaced by permissiveness-with-affection, democratic parenthood and Lamaze deliveries.

"In addition, new phenomena keep emerging — test tube conceptions, no-fault divorce, and commuter marriages."

Educators are obligated to give their students "the most current information available" to aid them in making future decisions on marriage and parenthood, say David and Frances Knox.

Likewise, marriage and family counselors should keep abreast of current trends:

"The counselor who knows that sex roles and marriage roles are changing will bring a different cognitive set to the counseling experience than the counselor who assumes that traditional patterns are firmly established."

Book Club To Meet Monday

The Tea and Topics Book Club will hold its first meeting of the fall at the home of Mrs. Juanita Lewis Monday, Oct. 1, 8 p.m.

Mrs. Jackie Berbert will be the guest speaker and will give a talk and film presentation on early detection of breast cancer. A question and answer period will follow.

Officers for the new year are as follows: Phyllis McLane, president; Juanita Lewis, vice president; Sue Creech, secretary-treasurer; Sally Broadrick, librarian; Maxine Branton, scrapbook and reporter; Mary Stoneham, social chairman; Margaret Schiller, project chairman.

Family Reunion Is Announced

The Nelson and Overton 32nd family reunion will be held Sunday, Oct. 14, at the Sweet Gum Grove Community Building.

All relatives and friends are invited and are asked to bring a picnic basket. Lunch will be served at 1 p.m. and beverages will be provided.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Good news for all of you apartment dwellers who are short on space and long on imagination. I have before me a magazine article in which a decorator, faced with a dinner party, makes what she calls an "amusing transformation."

She converts her dressing room-bathroom into a dining room.

The tub is covered with an upholstered, cushioned board which serves as a buffet. She adds a folding table, extra chairs, puts the champagne into the sink to chill (thank goodness, she didn't go for the cooler with the lid) and stores her glasses on the vanity shelf.

She covers each of the walls in a different flowery fabric and for accent, sets baskets of fresh fruits about with tangerines peeled and ready to eat as "a nice surprise for hungry guests."

The peeled tangerines would be the least of the surprises. Can you imagine for a moment herding your guests to the bathroom for dinner?

I don't even want my guests to use the bathroom when we have dinner in the dining room. I cannot imagine that the idea will catch on like wildfire. Our bathroom is entirely out of the question.

1. The dressing room IS my bathroom.
2. My menus can never be adapted to harsh lighting.
3. The bathroom door has not been open, or for that matter ajar, in 15 years.
4. I couldn't eat a bite facing a full-length mirror.
5. I couldn't relax in a chair that was bolted to the floor.

To tell you the truth, I hate to see the bathroom exploited as a room for entertaining. To me, that sacred part of the house has been the last bastion of privacy for the American family:

The toddler who regards it as Disneyland with faucets; the teenager who barricades himself in there until puberty has passed; the father who seeks peace in his reading room.

But mostly, it is needed by the woman of the household as a haven from havoc . . . a port for post-natal depression . . . a refuge from reality . . . a retreat to regroup . . . a chapel in which to pray . . . a cloister in which to cry.

It's no place for peeled tangerines.

The capital of Luxembourg is Luxembourg City. It is sometimes known as the City of Bridges. At latest count, there were 99 bridges in the capital.

Couple Speaks Vows Saturday Afternoon

Sharon Joyce Costner and Dr. Robert Harris Daniel Jr. were united in a single ring ceremony Saturday at 4 p.m. at St. James United Methodist Church. The Rev. Dewey Tyson performed the ceremony.

Centering the church was a foliage arrangement flanked by areca palm stands and tiered candelabra with bouquets of yellow and white mums, fuji mums and pom poms. The church was enclosed with white satin bows for the family and guests.

A program of music was presented by Mrs. Frances Cain, organist, and Miss Jeri Walter, violinist.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Earl Costner. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harris Daniel are parents of the bridegroom, all of Greenville.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride was escorted by her father. She wore a gown of white imported cotton lace designed with a jewel neckline, long tapered sleeves which ended in a flounce and a natural waistline accented with a peplum. Her long gored skirt extended into a chapel length train. The bride wore her mother's three-tiered veil of white silk illusion attached to a crown of flowers. She carried a formal cascade bouquet of white pixie carnations, royal bouquet, yellow sweetheart roses, baby's breath and sprays of springeriti tied with white satin.

Donna Lee Costner of Greenville, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and was attired in a formal gown of blue voile with a gray and white embroidered floral design. The gown was styled with an open portrait neckline with the bodice enhanced by a bertha ruffle. The full flared skirt was accented by a ruffled flounce at the hemline. She carried a nosegay of mixed flowers accented with yellow sweetheart roses tied with blue satin ribbon matching her gown.

The bridegroom's father was best man and ushers included David Watson Daniel, the bridegroom's brother, and Dean Sherwood Wilkerson, both of Greenville.

The bride's mother selected a gown of wedgewood blue matte jersey designed with a shirred blouson bodice, split capelet sleeves and floor length skirt. The mother of the bridegroom wore a gown of mauve chiffon designed with a tucked bodice and long sheer sleeves. Both were remembered with orchid corsages.

Grandmothers of the bride, Mrs. Crawford William Costner and Mrs. Paul Clyde Tate, were given white daisy corsages.

The reception followed the ceremony and was held at the home of the bride. Assisting were Mrs. Burl Jolley, Mrs. Dixon Carroll, Mrs. Paul Tate Jr. and Mrs. Charles Roper, aunts of the bride, and Miss Suzanne Carroll, cousin of the bride.

A rehearsal dinner party was held at the Greenville Country Club Friday night given by the bridegroom's parents, Dr. and Mrs. John Paul Bullock and David Watson Daniel.

The couple took a wedding trip to Greece and will live in Greensboro.

The bride is an estate tax attorney with the Internal Revenue Service, Greensboro. She is a graduate of Rose High School and received her bachelor's degree with honors from UNC-CH, where she was a Journalism Foundation scholar and member of Phi Beta Kappa. She received her juris doctorate from the UNC School of Law.

The bridegroom is employed by the N. C. Department of Human Resources as a public health dentist in Dunn. He plans to begin his dental practice in January in McLeansville. He is a graduate of Fike High School, Wilson, and received his B.S. degree with honors from N. C. State University, where he was a member of Sigma Chi fraternity. He is a graduate of UNC School of Dentistry and was a member of Delta Sigma Delta Dental Fraternity.

On The Young Side

By Elizabeth Ito

The Art Club, which involves students in art projects other than what is offered in school, held an organizational meeting last week.

Their various activities throughout the year included building a homecoming float, painting a mural in the school cafeteria, selling Christmas crafts and involvement in several art shows.

Officers this year are Jim O'Donnell, president, Brad Griffin, vice president, Betty Lou Ward, secretary, Teresa Hood, treasurer, Mary Saville, public relations, Susan Boudreaux, sergeant-at-arms, and Billy Stinson, faculty advisor.

The Spanish Club is devoted to broadening members' knowledge of the Spanish language and culture. The club is open to anyone who has taken or is taking Spanish. Members discussed inviting a local dance teacher to come and demonstrate some popular Mexican or Spanish dances. They are also planning to eat at Taco Cid. More definite plans will be made next week when board members meet. Officers are Mike Brohawn, president, William Sneed, vice president, and Robin Jones, secretary-treasurer. Their advisor is Mrs. Laura Shiver.

The National Honor Society consists of students who have at least a B-average in their classes and are involved in extra curricular activities. New members are inducted in the fall and spring of each year.

Members are sponsoring a car for their officers in the homecoming parade and are planning a school grounds beautification project. NHS officers are David Johnson, president, Skip Hill, vice president, Kim Waller, secretary, and Beth Bailey, treasurer.

Last Saturday the Anchor Club assisted the Greenville Pilot Club, who was sponsoring the opening of the Exercise Trail at Green Springs Park. The trail opened at 10 a.m. and the public was invited to participate. There were a number of stations along the trail with a guide to demonstrate the various exercises. The theme for the day was "Get Into Shape."

The Anchors also held a car wash Saturday as their first fund-raiser of the year.

Five students have been named semi-finalists in the National Merit Scholarship program. They are Meg Cain, Susan Vick, Mark Grossnickle, Thomas Bolt and Fred Parham. The students were selected on the basis of their scores on the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test. There will be further competition before the winners are announced next spring.

'Previews Of Progress' Provide Taste Of Science

By REBECCA BUFFALO
Reflector Staff Writer

"Now I'm going to mix these two chemicals together in this pop bottle," General Motors representative Carol Wisniewski told the audience at Wellcome Middle School Tuesday. "And I'm very happy to report to you here at Wellcome Middle that in the history of this show, we've never had a serious chemical accident... yet..."

KA-POWWWWW!!!!

A huge blob of synthetic rubber burst out of the bottle and into the air, bringing a roar from the crowd. Once again, the General Motors "Previews of Progress" show had proved its point: science can be entertaining as well as educational.

Carol and her partner, Elaine Penn, have been in Pitt County and outlying areas for the past two weeks. Following their final performance at North Pitt High School Friday, the two corporate representatives will go on to Alabama, just one more stop on their nine-month tour with the show.

33-YEAR HISTORY

Since 1946, General Motors has sponsored the noncommercial "Previews of Progress" show, featuring nine research-in-action demonstrations, all explained in non-technical language. Over 40 million young people and adults have seen the show in the United States, with many more in Canada and 25 foreign countries.

"We seek through previews to inspire more young people to make science and engineering their career and provide the trained talent America must have to keep pace with the promise of the future," said Elliott Estes, president of General Motors.

The show currently has 16 lecturers, broken into pairs, traveling across the nation for nine months. According to Ms. Wisniewski, the remaining three months are spent in branches of General Motors business offices.

"If you like to travel, it's a good job," said Ms. Wisniewski. "We travel nine months, and work in offices three months for two years. Following the two years, some people decide to stay with the company and others go on to other professions."

Previews lecturers have varied degrees, not all relating to scientific pursuits. Ms. Wisniewski has an advertising and journalism degree, while Ms. Penn holds a degree in criminology.

The two young women travel in a large van, carrying some 1,200 pounds of equipment used in the show. Lecturers depend on road maps, kindly instructions from local townspeople, and just plain street savvy to get them around unfamiliar towns.

"We have a 30-page script we have to know by heart," explained Ms. Wisniewski, who's entered her second year as a Previews lecturer. "We repair all our equipment and do all our bookings."

"WOW, I WANT THAT"

The first of the "Previews of Progress" show deals with the "man-made molecules", demonstrated by the pop bottle episode and the "baking" of a foam rubber "cake."

Students especially enjoy the demonstration of "Socrates," the talking computer. The lecturers usually have a student come forth and type his or her name on the keyboard. However, the names come out sounding a little funny, since the keyboard is set for phonetic sounds only.

Another winner for catching young people's interest is the demonstration of the gyroscope. Ms. Wisniewski explains the procedure:

"We usually have the gyroscope in a suitcase. We call one of the school's biggest, strongest guys to come down from the audience and ask him to swing the suitcase up in the air in a straight line. Since the gyroscope is moving inside, there's no way he can do it. We have a good time, and the kids get to participate in the show."

Other exhibits include a car powered by light, an air-bearing platform, a gas turbine engine, and experiments showing recent developments in air and water pollution.

"The laser is our finale," stated Ms. Wisniewski. A laser projection system "translates" sounds such as a baby crying, a human heartbeat, and a train whistle into moving light patterns. Usually, the lecturers play some popular tune as the closing number, with the young people enjoying the sights and sounds.

"A lot of young people after the show say, 'Wow, I want that' or 'how does that work,'" stated

Ms. Wisniewski. "The purpose of our program is to let kids see the exhibits and give them an awareness of things in the science field," she explained.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Almost 60 percent of the increase in numbers of working wives between 1960-1977 occurred among women whose husbands' incomes were in the upper and upper-middle ranges. The American Council on Life Insurance arrived at this figure in analyzing data from the U.S. Department of Labor.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — SHOT HOT-ROD AT LAST REACHED LOCAL SCRAP HEAP.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: H equals N

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Paid Off On Catastrophes

NEW YORK (AP) — The Insurance Information Institute says the "property and casualty insurance industry responded to a record number of catastrophes in the first six months of 1979."

It says insurers paid claims of more than $600 million as a result of 30 catastrophes which affected parts of 41 states and the District of Columbia.

A catastrophe, says the institute, is "any occurrence from which the expected insured loss is likely to exceed $1 million. Catastrophes include hurricanes, tornadoes, hail, wind, ice, snow, freezing and other natural occurrences as well as explosions, fires and structural collapses."

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You would be wise to look into new interests which could give you a more complete life. A time to share responsibilities with family members. Look ahead and study potential.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Try to improve your image with the public in general today. Study career activities and make plans for improvement.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Follow your hunches early in the day, since you are likely to be off target later. Make plans to improve your social life.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) See to it that all your affairs are better arranged. Give more thought to your mate and come to a better understanding.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You have fine creative ideas that should be put in operation as soon as possible. Discuss future with family members.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Make exacting plans how to handle important tasks ahead of you. Take some treatment that can give you more vitality.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Planning how to have a more ideal life is wise in the morning. Try not to argue with the one you love and get more out of life.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make sure things are running smoothly at home. Show that you are very selective in all that you do and say. Share happiness.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have to be more astute in handling correspondence and communicating in person with others. Enjoy a quiet evening.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study monetary matters well so that you will know how to handle them at the right time tomorrow. Plan for the days ahead.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Think along lines of gaining your most cherished aims. Stick to loyal friends since others could lead you astray.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be most practical in any arrangements you make today and sidestep one who wants to waste your time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Seek the company of good friends but don't commit yourself to something you know nothing about. Your judgment is good now.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those intelligent young persons' who is a born organizer and engineer, whether dealing with engines or ideas. A strong personality here which should not be thwarted with too much discipline.

Brick-Stealing A Big Business

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The city building commissioner says his department is having problems with a new kind of thief — the brick rustler.

"Brick-stealing or brick-rustling is becoming as big a business as car theft," said Building Commissioner Robert A. Volz.

Volz says abandoned buildings are being stripped of their exterior bricks — forcing the city to demolish the unstable shells.

Volz attributes the problem to the rising price of old bricks. He said bricks are selling for as much as 18 cents apiece, and thieves can make more than $130 a day by selling their loot.

Bankers' Ass'n Convened Here

Gene Taylor, vice president and city executive of North Carolina National Bank here, was installed as vice chairman of Group One of the N.C. Bankers Association here Saturday night.

Taylor's election and installation took place during Group One's 64th annual meeting at the Moose Lodge.

In addition to Taylor, new officers installed for the coming year were H. Leigh Ballance, vice president and cashier of Peoples Bank and Trust Co., Rocky Mount, chairman; and Mrs. Coran Sawyer, retail banking manager with Wachovia Bank and Trust Co., Rocky Mount, secretary-treasurer. Pam Kachmer, assistant vice president of First State Bank in Greenville, is the outgoing chairman for Group One.

The new officers were installed by W. L. Burns Jr., president of the N.C. Bankers Association. A. Douglas Moore of Edgecombe Bank and Trust Co. in Fountain, headed the nominating committee.

Mayor Percy Cox was on hand to welcome the 240 bankers and their spouses at the Saturday session. The activities began with a 5:30 p.m. social hour, followed by the annual banquet at 7 p.m. and then a dance featuring "Talk of the Town," a Greenville band.

Special guests were recognized at the banquet by Harry Galt, executive vice president of the state association, and a slide presentation on banking was presented by Al Fuqua of the association.

Russians See Space Program As Symbol Of Power

By HOWARD BENEDICT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — With a series of record manned flights, the Russian space program has rebounded from the moon race setback and the Soviets are pushing it aggressively as a sign of national power. For more than a year, cosmonauts have been almost constantly in space, establishing a strong military presence and building toward space stations, colonies, orbiting factories and a dream of sending humans to the planets. The push comes as the United States tackles technical problems with its new space shuttle and the nation's future in space is clouded by money restraints. The Soviets seek to dominate again as they did in the first decade of the space age after Sputnik.

The United States, its technical pride bruised, fought back with the Apollo program and landed the first men on the moon. The Russians lost out when their lunar rocket failed repeated tests, and they gave up.

America took charge in the late 1960s and the first half of this decade with six manned trips to the moon's surface and the Skylab space station. But America has not sent a man into space since 1975 while it has concentrated on readying the shuttle, still a year away from its first launch — nearly two years behind schedule.

So, for four years, American astronauts have been on the sidelines while 26 Russian cosmonauts have vaulted into orbit and wrested away all the space endurance records that set in Skylab. More important, those cosmonauts have acquired a vast amount of experience in how to operate in space for military, scientific and practical purposes.

The most recent Russian crew returned to Earth Aug. 19 after a record 175 days — nearly six months — in the Salyut 6 space station.

Soviet cosmonauts now have logged a total of 35,775 hours in space. The Americans have 22,493 hours.

The Russians also have an active unmanned program. Last year they orbited 138 payloads, while the U.S. launched 41.

Most of the Soviet unmanned satellites have military goals: reconnaissance, navigation, missile detection, communications and anti-satellite, which are of particular concern to the Pentagon. Lt. Gen. Thomas P. Stafford, the Air Force's deputy chief of staff for research and development, recently told Congress that America's military satellite systems are being challenged by an expanding Soviet space program that includes killer satellites.

Stafford, a former astronaut who flew on the joint U.S.-Russian orbital mission in 1975, said the Russian effort is forcing the Air Force to perfect measures to protect U.S. military satellites from jamming, killer satellites and other attempts to render them useless.

About the Soviet Salyut flights, Stafford says: "I am concerned that they may be developing a manned military space capability about which we know very little."

Some Pentagon experts believe the Russians are well on the way toward a manned command and control spacecraft similar to this nation's national emergency airborne command post.

American experts report there are two versions of the Salyut. Salyuts 1, 4 and 6 were oriented toward scientific and applications achievements, while Salyuts 2 (which failed), 3 and 5 were primarily military missions.

The experts say the scientific Salyuts have two docking ports to permit resupply missions by either manned or unmanned vehicles. During the last two years, the Soviets have sent Czech, East German and Polish cosmonauts to visit the stations.

The military Salyuts, the experts say, fly in lower orbits and have only one docking port. They carry a large reconnaissance camera whose film is returned to earth in a large re-entry capsule located where the second docking port is on the scientific Salyuts. Radio frequencies and signals are similar to those used on Russia's unmanned reconnaissance satellites.

"Their manned program is very impressive," says Dr. Charles S. Sheldon II of the Library of Congress, who for many years has analyzed the Soviet program and advised Congress on its progress.

"Their great advantage is that Salyut and its Soyuz ferry ship is an ongoing program, while our Skylab was a one-time thing that eventually had to be abandoned," he says.

Observers note that the Soyuz and Salyut vehicles are improved versions of spacecraft the Russians have been using for several years and have limitations for the future. But Sheldon says there is evidence they are developing next generation craft.

"They've started flying unmanned something new and different which they never bothered to advertise, starting with Cosmos 670 in 1974," he says.

"The flights seem to be related to the manned program, and now the flights are getting longer before there is re-entry," Sheldon says. "It's probably either a considerably modified Soyuz or a totally new ferry craft, which will come one of these days."

he says there is additional evidence that Russia is developing a reusable spaceship like the U.S. shuttle.

Other government sources said the Soviet shuttle development program trails that of the United States by several years, and in some technical areas it is a decade behind. They said the Russian craft also is smaller than that of the United States.

Before the Russians perfect a shuttle-type vehicle, Sheldon believes they might launch a more or less permanent space station unit with multiple docking ports for ferry craft and crews.

"It will be the kind of station that both this country and the Russians have talked about as a long-term goal, where year-round you maintain people up there," he says. "In the early years it may be 10 or 12 people, and later it can be expanded for 50 to 100 people."

"With that kind of facility and more experience in welding and assembly, which the Russians have been testing, then we'll probably see them assemble in orbit a manned interplanetary expeditionary force," Sheldon added.

Sheldon says it's difficult to predict when the Soviets will launch a space station unit or a manned flight to a planet.

A planetary mission has to be many years away, he said, because the Russians don't have the reliability that U.S. space vehicles have.

How does the Russian effort compare with that of the United States? Although the United States has not launched men into space since 1975, it has put a major effort into developing the shuttle, which will take off like a rocket and land like a glider on an air strip. It will be capable of hundreds of round-trips into space, and will be used for military applications and scientific missions.

National Aeronautics and Space Administration and Defense Department officials believe that once a full shuttle fleet of four or five vehicles is operational in 1983 or 1984, the United States will have a strong edge on the Soviets in space. When the first shuttle becomes operational in 1981, it will be used mainly to carry satellites into orbit. Later, crews will experiment with assembling and welding in orbit as steps toward building orbiting colonies and factories. Some early flights will experiment with space manufacturing techniques, as the Salyut crews have done.

However, officials in NASA are not happy with the gradual shrinkage of its budget by a cost-conscious administration and Congress. This, they say, prevents them from setting any long-term goals and they can't predict when, if ever, there will be a U.S. space station.

A Tense Summer For Pfc. Garwood

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer
CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — Pfc. Robert Garwood's first summer on American soil after 14 years in Vietnam has been a tense one as he awaits word on whether he will face a court-martial — and possible death sentence — on desertion charges.

The military is investigating allegations that the 33-year-old Marine deserted and collaborated with the enemy. A conviction could bring an execution, giving Garwood the distinction of being the second U.S. serviceman shot for desertion this century.

Garwood, a 19-year-old jeep driver when he disappeared near Danang in 1965, steadfastly denies the allegations and contends he was held prisoner until he was released in March.

For nearly six months, stretching through the sweltering summer of the eastern North Carolina flatlands, he has waited tensely while the Naval Investigative Service questioned about two dozen former prisoners of war and compiled data.

Although no formal charges have been filed against Garwood, he must remain in the Marine Corps indefinitely because a discharge would end the military's jurisdiction in the case. He spends his days working as a mail clerk on the base.

"I can't pick up the pieces until this is over. I just want it to end," he said in an interview with The Associated Press.

"After all I've been through, I feel like if somebody walked up right now and put a gun to my head, I'd just laugh."

If authorities order a court-martial, there will be testimony from former prisoners such as David Harker, now a 33-year-old parole officer in Lynchburg, Va.

Harker, an Army infantry private in Vietnam, says he encountered Garwood after he was captured in South Vietnam in January 1968.

"We were under constant armed guard; Bob was not," Harker said recently. "He got up in a prisoners' political course" and made speeches. He used to brag about using a bull-horn and going out and telling American soldiers to lay down their arms."

Former prisoners charge that Garwood informed on them in the prison compound and, on at least one occasion, carried a Russian-made automatic rifle while escorting American prisoners on a food-gathering excursion.

Garwood, a lanky, soft-spoken man who only recently dropped his thick Vietnamese accent and relearned to think and speak in his native language, said he was wounded and captured a few days before his tour of duty in Vietnam was up and the accusations against him are untrue. He said anything he did as a prisoner was done because his life was threatened.

"Those other guys over there, they see somebody with a rifle and they don't question why he has the rifle or whether there are bullets or a firing mechanism in it," said Dermot Foley of New York City, Garwood's civilian attorney.

Whether Garwood faces a court-martial or not, he now stands as an embarrassment to the Marine Corps. The mere suggestion that a Marine would desert or collaborate is a spit in the face of the spit-and-polish, "never retreat" Marine image.

Garwood, a high-school dropout from Greensburg, Ind., joined the Marines at 17 partly to prove his manhood to his father. He went overseas as gung-ho as the next baby-faced, crewcut Marine.

Although he was never listed as anything other than a prisoner of war, there were allegations as early as 1967 strong enough to prompt the commandant of the Marines to freeze Garwood's rank and pay scale.

Some of Garwood's friends and persons on both sides of the case think the Marines would like to see the embarrassing Garwood case simply fade away with as little fanfare as possible.

Foley said he believes that since it has taken the military nearly six months to interview former prisoners, most of whom came home in 1973, investigators are having trouble.

"It would be harder to push water uphill than get a conviction in this case because there just isn't any evidence," Foley said.

Harker said he was interviewed by an investigator in April but has heard nothing since then.

"Somebody was asking me the other day what had happened in the case. I don't know. I sorta got the feeling the Marines would just like to let it drop," he said.

There have been unsubstantiated rumors that the investigation ended recently. A Marine Corps spokesman denied that, more or less.

"I wouldn't use the word ended," said Maj. John Woggon, public affairs officer for Camp Lejeune and the corps' spokesman on the Garwood case. "There are still a few loose ends to tie up," he said.

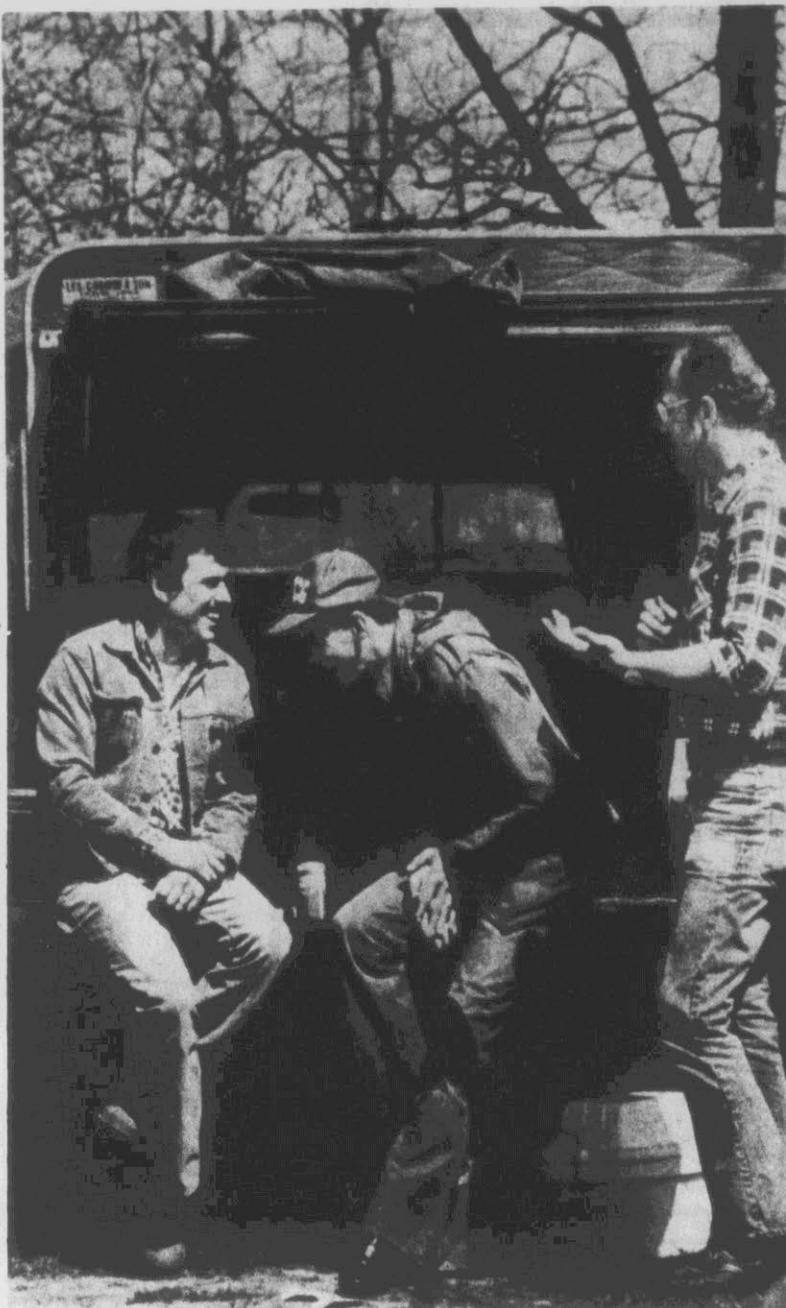

The Marines contend they are not trying to stretch the investigation or let it drop.

Woggon said the time has been used to conduct a thorough investigation, but he would not speculate on when the investigation might be over.

Garwood is a loose thread in the tight-knit military for another reason — both he and Foley have hinted that Garwood could provide information about Americans who may still be alive in Vietnam.

As of June 30, the Pentagon listed 87 servicemen as still missing but the military said it had no evidence that any were alive.

Garwood will not talk about events between his disappearance and his release as long as accusations are pending against him, but he has said that families of men still missing should continue to pray for them.

Meanwhile, Garwood continues to wait. He is trying to learn again how to live in a society that changed radically in 14 years, from Beatles through acid rock to disco, and from Lyndon Johnson through Richard Nixon and Watergate to Jimmy Carter.

Garwood contends he was captured when he inadvertently drove his jeep into a village near Danang. Armed villagers surrounded him, gunfire was exchanged, and he killed two armed youths before he was wounded and captured, he said.

"I was within sight of American planes taking off and landing at Danang," he said.

Fourteen years later, after he slipped a message to a foreign visitor in Hanoi, Garwood emerged. When he stepped off a plane in Thailand in March, he was informed of his legal rights because of the charges against him. Then he was told that his mother had died five years earlier.

He subsequently found out that the woman he had planned to marry had married someone else after waiting for seven years.

Unlike other returning prisoners of war, Garwood has not received psychiatric or in-depth medical treatment to help him readjust. Under military law, any civilian or military doctor who treated him could be subpoenaed and forced to reveal anything he said.

One book titled "Survivors" and another one titled "POW" offer the most stinging indictments of Garwood. Both books, based on unofficial interviews with former prisoners, were written before Garwood returned and both identify him by name.

In his 1976 book "POW," author John G. Hubbell wrote the following about Garwood, based on interviews with prisoners: "When, occasionally, he was put in charge of the American POWs, he had no qualms about barking orders at them. At the same time, he seemed to enjoy talking to the Marine prisoners ... Often he indicated that after the war he had every intention of returning to live in the United States and sometimes suggested to prisoners that he hoped to visit them.

CULL ANCIENT BOOK
MOSCOW (AP) — Medical scientists are culling an ancient Tibetan medical journal for long-lost medicines, possibly including a cure for the common cold, the Soviet news agency Tass said.

AMERICAN LEGION BLDG.
St. Andrews Drive
Greenville, North Carolina

Brother Donald Cook is a native of Durham, N.C. and has been saved and baptized in the Holy Spirit since the age of 17. He has been a pastor in Kannapolis, N.C. and minister in various churches on occasion. God has given Brother Cook a unique ministry of spiritual gifts including prophecy, healing and the word of knowledge. He has seen God heal people of every kind of affliction and disease. His joy in the Lord is contagious. Brother Cook has also ministered in several F.G.B.M.F.I. meetings. Miracles happen when someone cares. We are sure that you will not want to miss this special meeting.

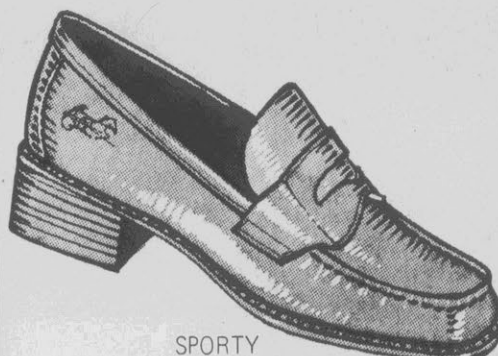

"Very Special" music will be provided by "New Song", a group from Rocky Mount.

"New Song" is a contemporary Christian musical group from the Rocky Mount area. The group consists of nine young people all in their twenties. The main thrust of the spiritual involvement of "New Song" is in renewal and revival in churches and in ministry in coffee houses, prisons, etc. They completed a tour in New York this summer and are scheduled to be in concert in North Carolina, Maryland and Delaware until December. There are six vocalists and three instrumentalists in the actual singing group. The one major fact about "New Song" is the testimony they leave behind them. "The world will know we are his disciples by our love." Members of the group are Patti and Keith Morgan, Ben and Tammie Nelms, David Gardner, Duane Whitley, William Joyner, Gary Hyman and Phillip Dail.

Illicit Correspondence Schools Can Break Hearts

During times of inflation many people turn to educational institutions to improve their earning power, and this often results in an increase in correspondence school riffs, according to Postmaster H. Lloyd Mills.

He noted that there are many highly reputable correspondence schools, but there are also some phony ones that prey on the hopes and ambitions of the unwary.

"The victims come from every age group, but usually they share the frustration of a limited education and a desperate need to at least stay even with the diminishing value of the dollar," Mills said.

Just recently the federal government took it on the chin for $2 million, the amount Allan C. Apple's scheme netted him from the operation of his Career School for Para-Professionals.

Apple altered student documents that made them liable for the full amount of the bank loans they had obtained for tuition to Careerco. When the students defaulted—as about 2,400 of them did—the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, which provided funding for the loans, had to reimburse the banks.

Sentenced to a four-year prison term this spring, Apple had actually started his high-school level home-study on a legitimate footing in the late 1960's. Inflationary pressures in the '70s changed all that, and the federal government joined investors and students as losers when the school went out of business late last year.

But the students were the big losers, whether they lost their tuition money or got what amounted to useless certification from Careerco.

Postal inspectors will be among the first to warn that one can't be too careful about choosing a correspondence school.

Take the case of Helen Brown. Helen dropped out of school before she finished the eighth grade. Typically, life outside of school proved even more difficult for her because she had no special skills.

After years of dull, dead-end jobs, Helen, now in her late thirties, began each week to put aside a few dollars from her meager earnings in hopes of improving her job possibilities.

When she noticed a newspaper advertisement for a correspondence school, she started saving toward the $300 fee.

Despite the difficulty in saving something from her small weekly paycheck, Helen's elation at being accepted by the Texas School of Practical Nursing convinced her to make the sacrifice.

Six weeks later, Helen realized she had made a big mistake. After "graduation" from the school, Helen obtained a job in a third-rate nursing home, working long hours six days a week for less money than she had earned in her previous job in a laundry.

Helen Brown's decision to pick up the threads of her limited education brought her into the clutches of one of the numerous correspondence school frauds.

First, there was no such thing as the "Texas School of Practical Nursing." The operators of the scheme used newspaper and magazine ads to lure their victims. The advertisements employed what Postal Inspectors have been seeing for years—the tired but effective technique of testimonials from what the ads called "graduates of the Texas School of Practical Nursing."

Sometimes these "graduates" were friends or employees of the promoters of the scheme, but usually they were figments of the promoters' imagination.

The "school" Helen sent her money to was nothing more than a small office where materials, most of them dealing with practical nursing on a superficial level, were packaged and mailed to the "students"

Helen Brown was one of the thousands of victims who sent their hard-earned $300 and received almost worthless materials. The promoters convinced Helen and the others that they would have to qualify before their school applications would be accepted. Actually, the only qualification requirement was their ability to pay.

During the time the operators skipped about the country looking for victims, the $300 course fee brought them millions of dollars. It brought Helen and many others only heartbreak.

"Helen Brown was not the actual victim's name," said Postmaster Mills, "but the case against the so-called Texas School of Practical Nursing really did exist." Mills said the Inspection Service is now investigating a number of such schools or diploma mill operations.

Before buying a correspondence course, Mills suggests that prospects check with employers in the particular industry they're interested in to determine the value of such a course. They should also contact their State Education Department or the U. S. Office of Education in Washington, D. C., 20202, for more information on any school.

By DAVID TOMLIN
Associated Press Writer

ERIE, Pa. (AP) — Twenty-six years after he fled across the Iron Curtain in his MIG fighter, Frank Jarecki's life story still reads like a Cold-War adventure tale.

Jarecki, honored as the top young flyer in Poland and entrusted with the most sophisticated Soviet aircraft of the day, abandoned career and country in 1953 in a 60-mile dash over the Baltic Sea to Denmark.

He became a hero of the Western world, feted by heads of state, photographed with Hollywood film stars, sought after by television and magazine interviewers and consulted by the U.S. Air Force.

"I was spoiled," he says. "I was making money from the magazines, from television, from people sending me money. I was making speeches. I used to travel. Everything was too good to believe."

His success on March 5, 1953, was a triumph of luck and nerve.

He only knew that the Danish island of Bornholm lay north across the Baltic from his air station. From a propaganda cartoon he once saw, he surmised there was an American air base on the island.

"When you're young, you don't think about things," he says. "Like what the hell you're going to do, how you're going to talk to those people, that you'd be lucky to get a job sweeping the streets. I just wanted to do it."

So, as he flew with his squadron on patrol toward the German border, Jarecki peeled off to the north.

"I heard in my radio, '731 escaping, 731 escaping.' And I could hear the Russian colonel back at the base screaming at me, 'Come back, come back.'"

Jarecki had no map as he streaked over the Baltic, dropping fuel tanks for speed to outrun planes he knew were already after him.

"I knew I'd never see my mother again. I'd never see my friends. I'd never see the land. I didn't know where the hell I was going. All those things come into your head," he recalls.

Jarecki has come a long way since his defection. To many, his life seems too good to believe. Communist society was paying him honors and a good living, capitalism has made him a millionaire.

A decade ago he opened a machine shop with $40,000 in savings and a lot of confidence. Last year Jarecki Industries had sales of more than $4 million, producing heavy precision valves for power plants, industry and the government. He also owns a fork lift, distributorship and several warehouses. He has a pretty wife, kids, a house, boats.

His only serious regret is that he had to leave his mother behind in Poland. His father was killed in World War II, and he had no brothers or sisters.

"After I left they put her in prison," he said. "She was there three years until the Hungarian revolution. Then there was a change in the government and they let her out."

But Polish authorities twice denied her petition to visit her son. Jarecki keeps in touch with her through friends and says she is 66, in good health, and wants nothing more than to see him.

Jarecki's biggest problem was language, but he studied at Alliance College near Erie, a small school owned by an association of Polish organizations. In 1957 he graduated from UCLA, and the hustling began.

"I was 12 years selling. I ran a machine shop. I made industrial soaps. I used to pull into gas stations and trade them whitewall tire cleaner to fill up my tank. I'd get out to show them how good it worked."

By 1969 he had saved $40,000, and friends urged him to open his own machine shop. Today his business fills a large building, and his reputation for precision work is good enough that he has no sales force. The orders come in, and he takes them personally.

Short, handsome and still trim at 47, he spends much of his time among his craftsmen, many of them Polish, shouting bilingual instructions above the roar of the machinery.

On the walls of the rooms he uses for offices hang mementoes of Jarecki's days in the limelight, pictures of him with Groucho Marx, Clark Gable and Art Linkletter.

In a desk drawer somewhere is a movie contract offered by Howard Hughes and RKO studios. He never signed it.

"They were all fighting for a percentage," he says. "I met Hedda Hopper. She told me she would help me get into the movies. I told her I am going back to college. I am not a movie person. I cannot play a character. I like to do things."

Said Unsited To Drying Food

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — An extension food specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln says microwave ovens are a poor choice for drying food.

Teresa Shaffer says unevenness in heating capability of most such appliances are liable to discolor foods in spots that get too hot during the drying period. Other disadvantages, she says, are the small capacity of most such ovens and difficulty in controlling humidity.

Drying foods can even damage a microwave oven's magnetron tube, she adds, because you're essentially running the oven in a no-load situation with very small amounts of food.

She recommends following manufacturers' directions, which at this time usually do not recommend the ovens for drying foods.

'Au Pair' Program Sponsors Two-Way Student Exchanges

By STUART MORGAN
Reflector Staff Writer

Student exchange programs of the ECU Foreign Language Department have been establishing contacts between students in France and ECU students for several years, according to Grace Ellenberg, associate professor of French.

Joan Shaver, an ECU French major, recently returned to the U.S. after living a year with a family in France under the department's "Au Pair" program.

Nathalie Baudoin, a French foreign exchange student who received her "licence" (degree) in English from La Sorbonne, the University of Paris, arrived in August to spend a year at ECU under a scholarship provided by the department.

The scholarship is permitting her to work at ECU as a French language assistant. While here, she will also be taking graduate courses.

The Au Pair Program
Concerning Au Pair, Ellenberg said, "The students come back with a good working knowledge of the French language. The program permits students to go to France inexpensively, and all they have to pay for is their transportation to and from France."

Ellenberg said students may visit France for a summer, a semester or a year. She added that although the students can participate, and pointed out that only a minimum knowledge of French is required.

Under the program, female students from ECU are given the opportunity to go to France to live with a French family. In exchange for free room and board and a 600 Franc allowance (roughly equivalent to $150), each student helps the host family, usually with household chores.

According to Ellenberg, Europeans have known about the Au Pair program and used it for years. However, she added that it seems not to be as widely known on the university campuses in the U.S.

"Under Au Pair, students come back having seen France—not from the tourist's standpoint but from an inside view of the daily life of a French family," she explained. "It's the least expensive way I know for someone to spend a year in France and learn so much about the language and the country."

Joan lived in a suburb of Paris with a five-member family. "I looked after three girls, ages 4, 6 and 9, while both parents worked," Joan said. "The father was an airline pilot and the mother a pharmacist."

"I walked the children to school in the mornings, and in the afternoon I went and picked them up," she added. "I also made them breakfast and dinner."

While the children attended classes, Joan said she was able to take a French course inside Paris.

"During my free time, I had some European friends who I would go out with," Joan said. "I visited the Louvre in Paris and a lot of other places."

"At night, I visited certain quarters of Paris. The city is always moving," she added. "But, I guess the most valuable thing about my visit is that I did improve my French, and I did see other lifestyles of the people I met."

About future plans, Joan said she intends to teach French in high school or find a job working with the language.

The French Assistant
"I graduated last June from La Sorbonne, located in the Latin Quarter of Paris," Nathalie said. "It's the biggest university in France."

Nathalie competed with other students in Paris to receive the scholarship from ECU's foreign language department. "Each semester, I will teach 11 hours a week and also take about 11 hours of classes."

"I am taking two post graduate courses in English literature and American literature," Nathalie said. "I am also taking Spanish and tennis courses and jazz at Marie Wallace's School of Dance."

When asked about her impressions of Greenville and ECU, Nathalie replied: "I am amazed by the life on campus, by the fact that everything is made for the students."

"For example, in the shops I've seen signs 'Welcome home students.' I've also noted the importance of social life here."

"All life in France is not concentrated on social life. In France, you study," she added. "But, that makes it easier to be new here and make acquaintances than it would be in France."

"Here, if you don't meet any people, you don't have anything to do," Nathalie pointed out. "In France, there's plenty to do."

Nathalie said she enjoys teaching and assisting the students here. Concerning ECU professors, she is impressed by the way they maintain contacts with their students. Nathalie explained that in France, professors do not have office hours.

"French teachers are paid and supported by the French government," she added, "and as long as they have their position, whether good or bad, they remain."

"They teach about 10 hours a week, then that's it."

Both Joan and Nathalie agreed that students participating in either of the two programs must be flexible, adaptable and curious about other lifestyles.

SCHAAL POINTS TO SWAZILAND... where he visited this summer as a consultant to the largest cooperative district in the country. Schaal and his wife, Elaine, were present for the birthday celebration of King Sobhuza, who has reigned in the African country for over 50 years.

Four-Month Visit To Swaziland

By REBECCA BUFFALO
Reflector Staff Writer

"Though Swaziland is very subject to the politics around it, the people remain very unique and separate, with a long-standing tribal tradition," said Roy Schaal of Greenville, who spent four months in the African country as a consultant to the largest district cooperative union.

Swaziland, located between Mozambique and South Africa, has been independent from British rule since 1967. It is ruled by "the Lion of Swaziland," King Sobhuza II, who has been king since infancy in 1900.

Schaal and his wife, Elaine, were fortunate enough to be in Swaziland when King Sobhuza celebrated his 80th birthday in late July.

"King Sobhuza is an institution, but still very active," noted Schaal. "Approximately 2,000 warriors dressed in traditional garb marched before the King in the National Stadium. We sat with Swazis and had a good view of the parade."

Schaal, who's worked with cooperative organizations for some 30 years, aided the Swazis in working with their cooperatives, as well as setting up a new accounting system for them.

"I worked with the chief auditor under the Commissioner of Cooperatives," said Schaal. "I also worked with a management team of six people."

Schaal explained that the United States has a five-year contract with the Swazis via the Agency for International Development. The Swazi project has been going on for two years, with three more to go.

The country is divided into four regions, with the national Rural Development Association working toward developing each area's housing, cultural activities, soil conservation and agricultural practices.

One development in Swaziland is legalized gambling. Schaal's base of operations in Nhlanguan, in southwest Swaziland, featured a casino, a tourist drawing card for visiting South Africans.

"Tourism is one of the Swazis' major developments," noted Schaal. "Most tourist developments are in Mbabane and Manzini, located in the central part of the state."

Swaziland, which is comparable in size to the state of New Jersey, features a fairly warm climate. When Schaal came to the country in late April, the countryside was green.

"Swaziland is basically a rural society, with large industrial developments in such areas as Matsapha," said Schaal. "There's a drawing on foreign resources, but a strong climb toward localization. Many leaders still recognize that the Swazis are dependent on Western management personnel."

The cooperatives in Swaziland are both supply and marketing oriented, with the tobacco and cotton cooperatives the largest of all.

According to Schaal, Swazis travel mainly by train and automobile, though there is only a little bit of paved road. Dress is a mix of traditional tribal outfits and Western garb, with many men still wearing the traditional split skirts.

"Food and clothing is very comparable with what we have here in the United States," said Schaal. "The United States minimum wage is about ten times more of what the Swazi makes. The common laborer in Swaziland has a tight standard of living."

"They have their problems with fuel, too," he continued. "They pay as much for a liter of gas as we do for a gallon."

Schaal added that although the Swazis are interested in Western methods, they are very much influenced by their tribal heritage.

"There's a lot of masonry houses, but you'll find more thatch roofs than metal ones," he said. "They still build mud and stick beehive huts like the pictures I saw in geography books when I was a boy."

Now that Schaal's back in the states, settled once more into his job as a cooperative consultant for the state Rural Fund for Development, he looks back on his trip with fondness for the Swazis and their lifestyle.

"It was a very good experience and I enjoyed it," he reminisced. "The Swazis show evidence of being a free people."

At 67, A Champion Runner

By STUART MORGAN
Reflector Staff Writer

Robert S. Boal, 67, has been appropriately called a "reborn runner." As a mile runner in high school, he never won. His best performance was placing fifth in the 1930 Pennsylvania State Championship.

But about seven years ago, Boal started competing in international competition. He began doing so following a six-year conditioning program of aerobics which included running.

The conditioning paid-off. In 1975, Boal won his first World Championship in the 3,000 meter steeplechase at the first World Masters Championship in Toronto; Canada. Since then, he has made a specialty of the event.

"In June, I went to the World Championships in Hanover, Germany for the World Veterans' Track and Field Championship where I won the 3,000 meter steeplechase for the 65 to 69 age category," Boal said. "There was something like 4,000 participants representing 50 countries at the meet."

Boal, a retired economics professor from North Carolina State University, has successfully competed in numerous meets throughout the world since 1975.

Because of his unusual achievements in running he has been selected as the North Carolina Christmas Seal Chairman for 1979-80 of the American Lung Association.

"This year the lung association is celebrating its 75th anniversary," Boal said, "and as part of that celebration, they have organized 'lung runs' across North Carolina in 10 different cities to take place November 3.

"One of the cities selected is Greenville," he added. "This program is somewhat of a pilot program, and if successful, it may be expanded to a regional or national level in the future."

Asked whether he would encourage persons his age to start running, he replied: "Yes. The thing to be learned is that people can start running late in life, like I did 13 years ago, and improve their personal health." He added, "Running is the first form of preventive medicine that I've been able to discover."

"There are dividends to receive through running, such as improving one's health and ability to work, play and enjoy life," Boal added. "I have a personal interest in lungs and improvement in my own capacity to obtain and use oxygen. At one time, I suffered some lung problems."

"One can go for weeks without food and days without water, but without air — death begins to set-in after four minutes," Boal noted.

Training

"I usually try to run five to six miles a day," Boal said. "Actually, I vary my running a lot by day depending on my available time."

During an average week, he runs about 40 miles. However, he said he could cover his health needs by running 20 to 25 miles a week.

"I run the extra mileage in order to be competitive in distances of 10 to 15 miles and even more," Boal said. However, he said that persons having any doubts about running would be wise to check with their doctor.

"But, most doctors now days approve a vigorous program unless there is a basic physical problem," he added. "In addition, persons should be willing to be patient because lack of activity, poor diet and other bad habits will take time to overcome."

STRIDING ALONG... Robert S. Boal, at 67, is a hardy runner still winning championship records. He has been selected N.C. Christmas

'Reflector' Carrier Comments On Twenty Years Of Service

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

"My aim when I started was to make money for 'The Daily Reflector' and for myself. I feel I've done both, and best of all, I've enjoyed it."

Carrier Mack Boyd, who has completed 20 years as a carrier for "The Daily Reflector," talked about the pleasure he experiences in dealing with people, and the changes he has noted since taking on this job on the 20th day of April, 1959.

"One good thing about this work," Boyd commented, "is that I know the majority of my customers by name. Some of the people I have delivered papers to constantly for 17 years."

Basic changes he touched on are those of Greenville's and the newspaper's growth. "When I first started, I had 132 customers scattered out over a route of 50 miles. I soon built this up to 200 customers for the same number of miles."

"Now, my Greenville area route covers 53 miles, and I serve 800 customers daily, with 880 on Sundays. As the population of Greenville and the area has grown, people naturally live closer together, so I have many more customers per mile."

Boyd attributes his success with the paper route to "hard work and what I think so many people appreciate most, that is, my dealing with them personally. I make lots of house calls, and on Saturday, I still get out to see people, many of them elderly."

"Another thing, when a new family moves into my route area, as soon as they are settled, I stop by to see them. More often than not they say how glad they are that I stopped by, to give them a chance to consider taking the paper."

As Boyd puts it, his coverage has never been a static situation. Soon after building up his initial route in the Farmville and nearby areas, at which time he lived in Grimesland, he began "taking samples" distributing them to people in the Grimesland and Black Jack areas. The result was a new route built up in that area, and a decision to give up the Farmville route for the one nearer his home.

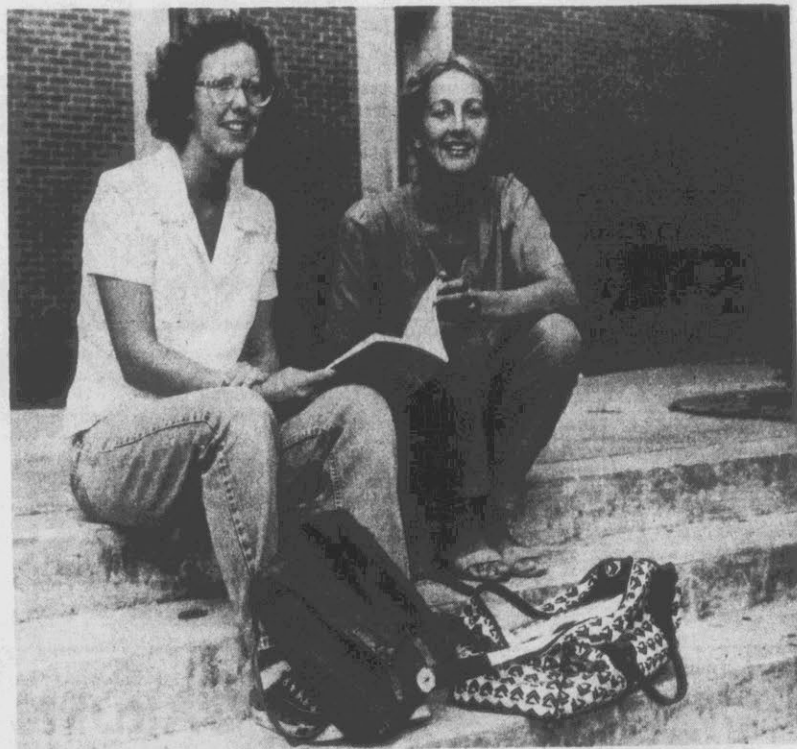

"The Daily Reflector," Boyd pointed out, has made a parallel growth along with Greenville's growth. "In 1959, when the paper was published daily Monday through Saturday, on two days each week it was an eight-page one. On two other days, it was most likely a ten-page paper, and the Wednesday paper ran 12, sometimes 14 pages."

In contrast, he mentioned that today, 20 years later, "the paper very seldom has less than 16 pages, and it runs on up to 160 pages, with as many as 180 pages or more occasionally, especially on Sundays."

"The Daily Reflector" dropped its Saturday edition on September 10, 1966 and published its first Sunday edition on September 11.

A Pitt County native, Boyd was born in 1927, two miles outside Grimesland, and grew up on a farm in the Black Jack Community.

Boyd is married to the former Mary Elizabeth Hales of Grimesland. They have a daughter, Mary Jane (Mrs. Doyle) Harrington, whose husband is in the Air Force at Scott AFB, Illinois. A son, Howard, is single and has also served as a carrier for "The Daily Reflector." The Boyds have two grandchildren, a six-year-old grandson, Jeffrey, and a two-year-old granddaughter, DISCUSSED PROGRAMS — Joan Shaver, left, an ECU student, and Nathalie Baudoin, a graduate of La Sorbonne, the University of Paris, discuss two exchange programs provided by the ECU Foreign Language Department. Joan participated in Au Pair, and Nathalie recently received a one-year scholarship to assist French classes at the university.

Shelley. Boyd is active in the Faith Pentecostal Holiness Church, where he is a deacon on the church board and for seven years was superintendent of the Sunday School. "I also belong to the American Legion Post," Boyd said.

"Between my work and these two I have little free time."

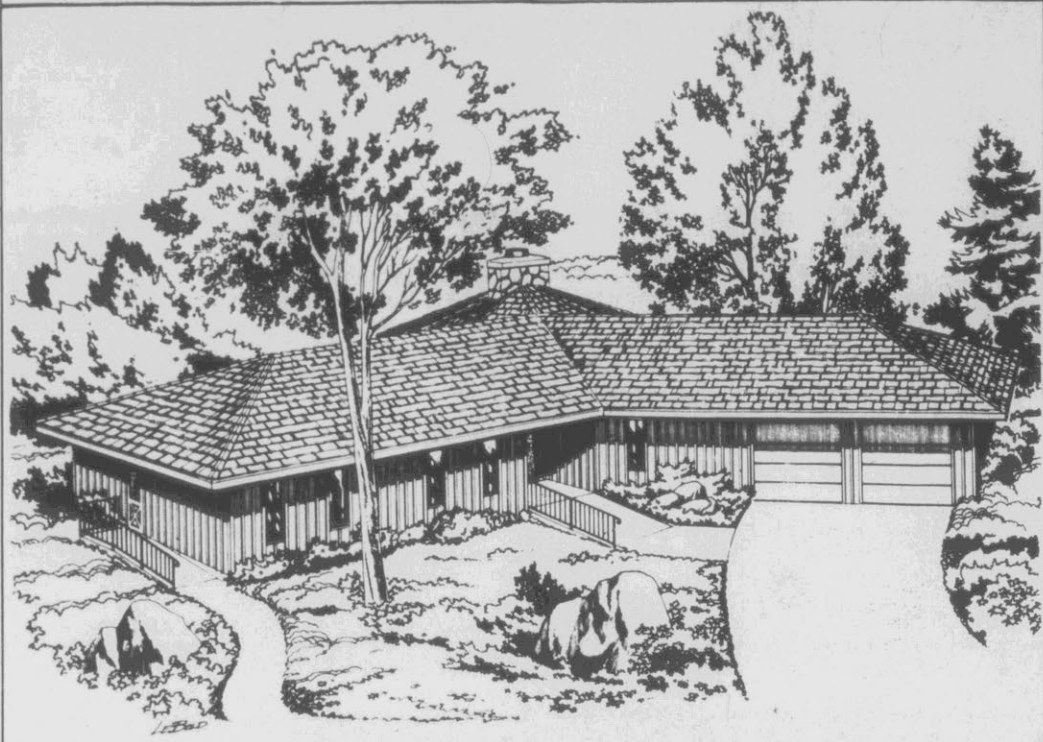

For the foreseeable future, Boyd said "I plan to continue being a carrier as long as my health is good. I enjoy meeting people, and on this job that's an important part of the work."

PLAN YOUR HOME

The Catalina

Trim Plan Designed For Handicapped RAMPS, DOORS, WINDOWS SET FOR ACCESSIBILITY

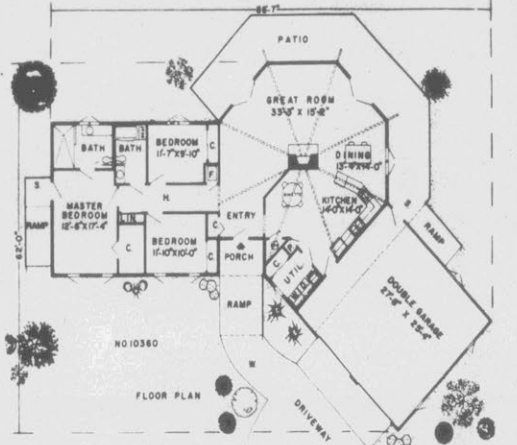

By Jerry Bishop

Attractive and accessible, the Catalina is a three bedroom home carefully planned to provide both comfort and self-sufficiency for the handicapped individual.

Features include ramps that allow entry to garage, patio, and porch, doors and windows located so they can be opened with ease, and baths with wall-hung toilets at a special 16-18" height. Halls are wide to allow a wheelchair to be maneuvered with ease, and the large shower in the master bath can be reached via wheelchair.

On the exterior, the Catalina is an appealing home, with neat vertical siding and a roof of red cedar shakes. Inside, the well-designed floor plan calls for three bedrooms, two full baths, a great room with fireplace, a dining room, and large eat-in kitchen.

Ramps lead to the porch and entry, an open area with closet at left. Directly ahead is the great room, extending more than 33 feet. This spacious area merits a woodburning fireplace and is skirted by a patio with access doors on either side of the room. At right, the dining room borders a sizable eat-in kitchen, open under the sink and counter top for wheelchair accessibility. Extras in this area include a pantry and utility/laundry room with sink. Special attention has been given to sleeping areas. Door handles are about 36" from the floor, the expansive master bedroom allows easy maneuvering around furniture, and doors are about three feet wide. Three bedrooms include a master bedroom with private bath and outside entry.

Steer Clear Of A Single Light Source For Room

By BARBARA MAYER

AP Newsfeatures

A rule-of-thumb when professionals design a residential lighting system is to provide for three separate sources of light in each room.

General illumination comes from a central source, such as a ceiling fixture (and from the windows in the daytime). Task lighting is set, wherever it is needed to provide light for specific tasks, such as desk work, reading or cooking. And mood lights provide decorative accents — on tables, for example, or by illuminating a painting, or by reflecting furniture and plants to make interesting shadows.

To duplicate the results obtained by professionals, consumers should steer clear of a single, powerful light source.

Instead, purchase several lamps or a track system to provide a mixture of general and task lighting from a variety of sources.

Whatever you do, don't try to light the entire room equally.

"In a well-lit room, there should be some dark areas," explains George Kovacs, a lighting manufacturer. "Shadows create interest and drama," he adds.

Luckily for consumers, lighting types available to the buying public have recently expanded greatly. In addition to the standard incandescent ceiling fixtures and lamps, special lamps exist for virtually every purpose. Wall washers bathe an entire wall in light; pin lights illuminate a single small area.

Fluorescent fixtures tuck under cabinets to provide excellent task lights. Uplights, which are made to be set on the floor, cast a circle of light upward, creating interesting shadows when set behind objects.

Then there is track lighting, that most useful modern product. Track lighting does not differ in kind from other types of lighting. But it does differ in function. The track organizes the lighting for greater flexibility.

It is a system which contains an electric raceway, or a track, all the wiring and other elements needed to produce a light. A variable number of individual lamps can be attached to the track which can be mounted on the ceiling or wall or recessed into either.

Once the track is up, a variety of lamp types is available to illuminate specific areas.

The greatest advantage of track lighting is its flexibility. The track puts the light exactly where it is needed. Then, if needs change, the lights can be reattached elsewhere on the track.

According to one lighting retailer, a moderately competent do-it-yourselfer can install a surface-mounted track system from an existing outlet box on the ceiling or wall.

A good-quality system might run about $100 with three fixtures and eight feet of track.

By ANDY LANG

AP Newsfeatures

The seemingly mysterious mechanism inside your toilet tank is easy to understand if you watch it work a few times.

Step number one in any contemplated repair, therefore, is to remove the cover on top of the tank and turn the flush handle several times, each time observing closely what occurs.

When water drips into the toilet bowl, the usual cause is too much water in the tank, causing some of it to flow downward through the overflow tube, the vertical pipe into which a bent rod is placed.

To lower the water level, examine the metal or plastic float attached to a horizontal rod. (There are other newer systems, which will be discussed in a moment.)

If it has lost its buoyancy because water has entered it, buy a replacement float. If it is still in good condition, then bend the rod to which the float is attached. Bend it downward, using both hands and working carefully so that the tank mechanism will not be thrown out of alignment. When you flush the tank now, the chances are the water level will be a bit lower and no water will go into the overflow tube.

Another, but less frequent, cause of water dripping into the bowl is the need of a new washer in the valve at the top of the supply pipe, which is the vertical pipe usually at the left side of the tank. Turn off the water. As you take off the valve gadget, be sure you remember how it is done so that you can reassemble it properly.

Still another possible cause of the dripping is a leak under the valve at the bottom of the tank. Be sure the "stopper" is dropping exactly on the valve seat. If not, make the necessary adjustment.

Also, rub steel wool around the inside of the valve seat to clean off any grit. Occasionally, the valve ball must be replaced, in which case it screws off the vertical rod to which it is attached. Everything described so far applies to the old, conventional toilet-tank equipment, still in the majority of tanks throughout the country.

When your tank is becoming too balky, consider the installation of more modern fixtures, which are less likely to give trouble and more likely to operate without whistling and other strange noises. While it may be advisable to get a plumber to install one of the new types of mechanism, it is possible to do it yourself if you are fairly handy with tools.

The hardest part is getting under the tank to loosen the nuts that hold the main part of the equipment in place. Remember that everything that must be loosened should be turned counter-clockwise. If you feel capable of making the installation, be sure of two things — that the water is turned off first and that, when putting in the new equipment, you tighten the nuts securely enough to prevent leaks without making the common mistake of overtightening.

(Balky toilet tanks, leaky faucets and plumbing noises are among the subjects discussed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Simple Plumbing Repairs," available by sending 35 cents PLUS a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743.

Survival Is Old Lesson

By CHARLES GOODMAN

Memphis Press-Scimitar

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The children were having a picnic under some trees, and Beth Warren looked about and said, "They are a little afraid."

She has been teaching survival language — simple words to help strangers survive in a new country — to 59 Vietnamese and Laotian youngsters who until a few months ago knew nothing about their new homeland except its name.

The children arrived in Memphis in January. Mrs. Warren has been teaching them the rudiments of English so they can attend public school.

Survival language, said Mrs. Warren, begins with the child learning to smile and tell an American, "I'm fine, thank you."

"They say it, but they know they're not fine," she said. "They know they are strangers."

The children are taught to smile and say "I am happy to meet you."

One of her students is a little girl whose mother and brother pulled her across a river in Vietnam. They crossed at night so soldiers with machine guns wouldn't see them, she said.

The father of one little boy was a fisherman who decided to leave after soldiers demanded money. They fled with a hundred other refugees in a boat that was so crowded no one could sit down.

"The first words a refugee uses in English are apt to be words about food," Mrs. Warren said. "They know hunger."

A boy sitting near her looked up.

"We hungry all time," he said of the bad times in Vietnam. "Just a little rice. I could not find a chicken. Nothing. Everybody hungry."

"The children have an amazing ability to survive," Mrs. Warren said.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG

AP Newsfeatures

Q.—About a year ago I put up the studding and the other framework necessary for the finishing of our attic, but I never got around to completing the job. I expect to do so soon, but the other day when I looked over the wood that already is up, I noticed that in several places some sap has leaked out of the studs. The sap has partially hardened and there does not seem to be any more leaking, but I do not want to take a chance. What can I do about this and will it weaken the framework?

A.—The second question first — no, it won't weaken the framework unless it is a lot worse than you have indicated. Scrape off as much of the hardened sap as you can, then apply at least one coat and preferably two of a sealer made especially for this purpose. Most hardware stores, lumber yards and building supply dealers carry this type of sealer, but if you can't get it, use shellac, thinned 50 percent with denatured alcohol and apply two coats.

Q.—About five years ago I painted the outside of our house with oil paint. I didn't notice it at the time, but apparently some bugs settled on the wet paint and got stuck there. I intend to prepare the surface for a new paint job with the same kind of paint. Is there some way to keep the bugs away from the house until the paint gets dry — without spraying all the walls with a bug killer?

A.—There are a couple of products on the market that can be mixed with the paint to prevent a repetition of what happened five years ago. A neighbor of mine got good results merely by adding a few teaspoons of oil of citronella to each gallon can of paint. This advice is predicated on your use of oil paint.

Q.—We have a large mirror with one of those old-fashioned, heavy frames that has a lot of fancy carving-type ornamentation. It is not made of wood but of a colored plasterlike material. The frame is chipped in several places, and now the white underneath the color is showing through. I know I can touch up these damaged areas, but what I would like to do is to re-form them first. What kind of material can I use for this?

A.—From your description, the frame may actually be plaster. Whether it is or not, use patching plaster to repair the damage. As it starts to harden — this will be the trickiest part — shape it with your fingers to match the surrounding surface. You may have to do this two or three times before you get the knack of the exact moment to begin the shaping. When the patching plaster is completely hard and dry, slight irregularities can be smoothed with a fine grade of sandpaper, used lightly and with much care. Wait about a week or two before touching up the areas. This is only one of several ways that the damage can be repaired. Should you find it too difficult to make the patches this way, go to a store that sells artists' materials, explain your problem and ask for a substance that will harden after being shaped.

(To learn how to use shellac, lacquer, varnish, stain, bleach, etc., send for a copy of Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," available for 35 cents through Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column, but individual correspondence cannot be undertaken.)

GARDEN CLINIC

N.C. State University Answers Timely Garden Questions

Q. My fescue lawn is overrun with a dense, low-lying weed called "Mouse's Ear". What can be done to keep it from ruining my lawn? (F. H., Raleigh)

A. "Mouse-eared Chickweed" is a winter annual broadleaved weed. It can be killed in the seedling stage with 2, 4-D or dicamba. Also find out why the fescue is getting thin; this is the main problem. Test the soil, correct deficiencies and cut at correct height. (Carl Blake, extension agronomist)

Q. Will English boxwoods grow in the sandy soils of Eastern North Carolina? If so, what care should be given to them? (S. W., Wilmington)

A. English boxwoods can grow in Eastern North Carolina but are generally not recommended. Japanese boxwoods (buxus microphylla japonica) are better adapted to Eastern North Carolina. Be sure to give the plant adequate organic matter and be careful of nematode populations in sandy soil. (Kim Powell, extension landscape horticulturist)

Q. Please explain the term "restricted-use" pesticides and who is certified to use them. (H.S., Fayetteville)

A. A "restricted-use" pesticide is any pesticide so designated by the federal Environmental Protection Agency because of its potential hazard to humans, other animals or the environment. They can be purchased or applied only by a certified applicator or a person working under the direct supervision of a certified (in N.C. a certified or licensed) applicator. (John H. Wilson, extension pesticide education specialist)

Q. I would like to prune a 12-foot holly to about six feet. When should this be done? (M.M. Chapel Hill)

A. You can severely prune holly varieties any time this fall or early spring. Prune the bush lower than six feet or in the spring you will have an overgrown shrub. Do not just prune the top. Take some branches all the way back to the main stem and tip prune others. This will prevent a "top heavy" plant. (Kim Powell, extension landscape horticulturist)

O.K.A FEW CARS ARE EQUAL TO OUR VOLVO. BUT THEIR PRICES FAR SURPASS IT.

If you want a car that offers quality, comfort, safety and performance, you don't have to buy a Volvo. But among the handful of above-average cars capable of offering this combination, you may find the only one within the capabilities of your budget is our Volvo.
 Volvos offer many of the benefits and features of more expensive cars for less than you would expect. Like our responsive overhead cam fuel-injected engine. A superior four-wheel disc brake system. Plus improved steering and suspension systems that make our Volvo one of the best handling and performing cars available today.

 So to find superior value in a new car, stop in at our Volvo showroom. Because while you may find comparable cars elsewhere, you may never find them at comparable prices. VOLVO

OCTOBER IS CUSTOMER APPRECIATION MONTH AT HARRIS SUPERMARKETS

MR. DURWARD HARRIS, OWNER AND PRESIDENT OF HARRIS SUPERMARKETS, AND HIS EMPLOYEES WANT TO SAY "THANK YOU" TO THEIR MANY CUSTOMERS OVER THE YEARS. FOUNDED IN 1951 HARRIS SUPERMARKETS HAS ALWAYS BEEN A LOCAL BUSINESS EXPANDING WITH THE COMMUNITY. TWENTY-EIGHT YEARS HAS SEEN HARRIS SUPERMARKETS GROW TO EIGHT STORES. IT IS YOU, THE CUSTOMER THAT HAS MADE IT POSSIBLE. LISTED BELOW ARE A FEW OF THE REASONS THAT WE FEEL WE ARE A PART OF THE COMMUNITY.

IN 1978 HARRIS SUPERMARKET SPENT MORE THAN $8,400,000 FOR PRODUCTS THAT WERE GROWN OR PROCESSED IN EASTERN N.C. SUCH AS EGGS, FRESH FRUITS, VEGETABLES, BREAD, DAIRY PRODUCTS, ETC. HARRIS SUPERMARKETS IS VERY PROUD TO HAVE BEEN ONE OF THE MARKETING PLACES FOR EASTERN NORTH CAROLINA'S FARMERS.

HARRIS SUPERMARKETS HAS TRIED OVER THE YEARS TO CONTRIBUTE ITS FAIR SHARE TO LOCAL ORGANIZATIONS SUCH AS CHURCHES, SCHOOLS, COLLEGES, AND OTHER CIVIC GROUPS.

HARRIS SUPERMARKETS WOULD LIKE TO CONSIDER THEMSELVES A SMALL INDUSTRY. OUR PAYROLL FOR 1978 WAS IN EXCESS OF 1.5 MILLION DOLLARS.

WHEN YOU SHOP AT HARRIS'S, REMEMBER IT IS NOT JUST ANOTHER STORE. IT IS A PART OF EASTERN NORTH CAROLINA, BEGUN BY LOCAL MEN TO SERVE THE COMMUNITY. THROUGH YOUR PATRONAGE HARRIS SUPERMARKET HAS HELPED THE AREA PROSPER. SHOPPING AT HARRIS'S IS LIKE BUYING FROM YOUR NEIGHBOR. WE WOULD LIKE TO TAKE THIS OPPORTUNITY TO PUBLICLY THANK YOU AGAIN FOR YOUR SUPPORT. IN DOING SO, WE PLEDGE TO YOU DURING THE ENTIRE MONTH OF OCTOBER SOME OF THE BEST GROCERY BUYS ANYWHERE IN EASTERN N.C.

OUR SLOGAN IS WHERE SHOPPING IS A PLEASURE!

WE HOPE THAT THIS HAS BEEN TRUE FOR YOU!

THANK YOU,

DURWARD M. HARRIS

Johnny Carson's

17th anniversary

JOHNNY CARSON celebrates his 17th year as host of NBC-TV's late-night entertainment series, "The Tonight Show starring Johnny Carson," with a special, primetime anniversary special, "The 17th Anniversary: The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson," Monday, Oct. 1 (9-11 p.m.). Pictured with the real Johnny Carson (c) are some of his popular character creations.

Johnny Carson marks another year as the nation's popular late night talk show host with a live prime-time special. "The 17th Anniversary: The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson," Monday, October 1 (9 to 11 p.m.).

Carson, along with sidekick Ed McMahon and music director Doc Severinsen, will commemorate the anniversary from NBC-TV's Burbank, Calif. studios, switching from the familiar late night time period for this special event.

"Johnny Carson established the standard by which all others in his field are judged," says Mike Weinblatt, President of NBC Entertainment. "He is one of the extraordinary talents of our time. The 'Tonight' anniversary show is always one of the most anticipated and widely viewed shows of the year. I'm delighted that this year many of the most entertaining and memorable moments in the show's history will be enjoyed by a prime-time audience."

"It's hard to believe we've gone on for 17 years," muses Carson, "yet I think I know why. We're an entertainment show, not a talk show, and this seems to be what viewers enjoy. We entertain! When we did our first show in 1962, Ed and I kidded that maybe — maybe — it would last five years! We thought then that five years would be a long time for the show to run!"

McMahon reflected on how the show has become a way of life. "Someday it will be difficult to wake up and realize there's no 'Tonight Show' to go to. It's become our lives as well as our livelihood."

This year's anniversary show will be devoted to memorable and popular clips from past 'Tonight' shows. There will also be conversation with Ed and Doc, and, of course, Carson's topical monologue.

Past anniversary celebrations have featured such classic clips as Ed Ames throwing a tomahawk at the outline of a man on a wall; Don Rickles being tossed by Carson into a tub of water; Burt Reynolds and Dom De Luise throwing eggs and spraying foam; Jack Webb and Carson doing a take-off on "Dragnet"; and other magic moments from past telecasts.

Viewing for the anniversary shows has increased over the years. The fourth anniversary show, in 1966, played to 3,620,000 homes; the seventh (1969) to 6,790,000; the 10th (1972) to 8,750,000; the 12th (1974) to 9,660,000; and the 16th, to close to 10,000,000.

For the fourth consecutive year, the program was honored with an Emmy Award in the category of Outstanding Program Achievement — Special Class, at ceremonies held earlier this month.

Gary's Newest Fans

Gary Coleman, 11-year-old comedy sensation of the hit series, "Diff'rent Strokes," seems to collect fans wherever he goes. Ed McMahon ("The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson") and Robert Guillaume ("Soap" and "Benson") are no exceptions.

McMahon and Guillaume starred with Gary in his first motion picture, "The Kid From Left Field," airing Sunday, September 30 (8 to 10 p.m.), on NBC-TV.

McMahon met Gary when he appeared on "The Tonight Show" several months before. "But I was still impressed with his incredible energy," said McMahon. "One night we were at San Diego's Padre Stadium at 10 o'clock at night. He was running around getting into everything, driving those little carts. You'd think he'd be asleep in somebody's arms."

But McMahon says he was tough with Gary. "When it was time to work I'd say, 'Get over here and get on your mark,' then I'd give him a meaningful look. He'd give me the exact same look, but he'd turn immediately from little boy to the genius actor we all know. They used those facial expressions in the film."

"I met him at his lawyer's swimming pool. He was feeling me out while I was feeling him out. I wasn't trying to make friends, just meeting an actor with whom I was to work. We talked for a while and he said, 'I like you on 'Soap,' you're great!'

We soon became friends." On the last day Guillaume worked on the film, as he left he told Gary, "You taught me a lot about acting." Gary, faking nonchalance, replied, "Yep."

GARY COLEMAN (of NBC-TV's "Diff'rent Strokes") portrays a bat boy for the lowly San Diego Padres, whose genius transforms the team into World Series contenders in "The Kid From Left Field," a World Premiere movie on "NBC Sunday Night Big Event," Sept. 30 (8-10 p.m.).

ABC's Newest - 'The Associates'

Each year outstanding law school graduates are recruited by Bass and Marshall, a staid and stodgy tradition-bound law firm on Wall Street. Bass and Marshall's stories, rich in humor, now unfold each Sunday (8:30 to 9 p.m.) on ABC-TV's new series, "The Associates."

Bass and Marshall's roots go back some 50 years, as do the current attitudes of surviving partner Emerson Marshall, played by Wilfrid Hyde-White. At 81, however, he is more of a presence than a force. He's also a bit dotty.

Junior partner Eliot Streeter (Joe Rigalbutto) did not accidentally join Bass and Marshall. No, indeed. While still in law school he computer-programmed every important law firm — to find out who was going to die first. Eliot has moved up quickly in this firm. He loves his work.

Alley Mills plays Leslie Dunn, the daughter of a poor New York family and a recent graduate of Columbia. Although she sympathizes with the oppressed, Bass and Marshall don't usually represent the oppressed.

Then there's Tucker Kerwin (Martin Short), a University of Iowa graduate who is slightly out of step with his Harvard-Yale-Columbia colleagues. Tuckers' midwestern outlook is a little bit naive, yet very charming. Maybe, if he lasts through the five-to-seven-year trial period he'll become a partner.

Shelley Smith, cast as Sara James, portrays another new associate. Sara comes from a long line of Boston blueblood attorneys. She's bright, attractive and sexy. She doesn't always get her own way, but that doesn't seem to bother her.

Rita Returns

Rita Moreno, who won an Emmy Award and was also nominated for a third Emmy for her portrayal of Rita Capkovic on "The Rockford Files," will play the vulnerable hooker for the third time.

In "One Heart and Three-quarter Time," now in production, Capkovic falls in love with Jim Rockford, much to the concern of the private detective's shocked father, Rocky (Noah Beery), and friend, Lt. Becker (Joe Santos).

SANDY DUNCAN and Dean Jones play husband and wife who own a pet duck that lays solid gold eggs in the zany movie comedy, "$1,000,000 Duck," on "Disney's Wonderful World," Sunday evenings, Sept. 30 and Oct. 7 (7-8 p.m. both nights) on NBC-TV.

Sandy Believed In Herself

Sandy Duncan began her show business career with a string of rave reviews in Broadway hits, then made her motion picture debut in 1971 in Disney's comedy, "$1,000,000 Duck." In this zany spoof, encoring on "Disney's Wonderful World" on two consecutive Sundays, September 29 and October 7 (7 to 8 p.m., both evenings), on NBC-TV, she plays a kooky wife of a scientist who is a little peculiar himself because he owns a duck that lays solid gold eggs. The zaniness of Sandy's part really lets her effervescent personality bubble to the surface.

"I've always been a positive person," she sparkles, "ever since I can remember. I just like doing crazy things. One of my friends labeled me Miss Turnstile," she giggled, "because I was into lots of different activities all at once. I was coming and going so fast I couldn't even keep track of myself."

Raised in Tyler, Texas, the blue-eyed star began performing at the age of four. By seventeen she was determined to make her mark on Broadway. Asked if she ever imagined at that time that she would one day be a success, the petite red head honestly admits, "Yes. I knew if I worked hard enough it only seemed logical that I could make it. I just believed in myself and in my positive energies. I never gave in to doubting thoughts or not making it."

During her stint on Broadway in the hit musical "The Boy Friend" in 1970, Disney producer Bill Anderson became impressed with her talents and signed her to star in "$1,000,000 Duck." The thought of that first movie still thrills her today.

"Sure it was exciting. Wow! I had a chance to make a movie. That hadn't been one of my dreams. When it happened, I really learned a lot about movies; everything up until that time was stage work."

As for her future career, the 32-year-old actress hopes it will continue on its upward rise. She feels show business can be fickle at times — "You're up one day, down the next."

Sandy candidly admits that one of her toughest problems is maintaining her self-discipline. "It's become increasingly difficult to keep striving hard and pushing myself on to new goals and achievements, but I'm constantly practicing my singing and dancing. I'm even playing the piano these days."

Sandy says her personal credo is to "try and be as honest with myself and others as I can be." Although she doesn't profess to be a women's liberator, she says, "I want to fulfill what is basically me and enjoy life — that's what it's here for."

PETER SELLERS portrays one of the world's most famous detectives in "Murder By Death" to air as "The ABC Sunday Night Movie." Sept. 30 at 9 p.m.

'Murder By Death' On ABC

If you happen to be a mystery buff, one of your fondest dreams has probably been to see all your favorite detectives gathered on a single case. Neil Simon did just that with an enjoyable bit of silliness called "Murder by Death," a movie released by Columbia Pictures in 1976.

Now the comedy hit comes to television as "The ABC Sunday Night Movie," airing September 30-9 to 11 p.m.).

Some of the world's funniest stars — including Peter Falk, Alec Guinness, Truman Capote, David Niven and Peter Sellers — portray some of the world's most famous detectives as they trip, bumble and stumble all over themselves trying to solve the world's most puzzling mystery in a humorous story of lies, deceit and sudden death.

Eileen Brennan, James Coco, Elsa Lanchester, Maggie Smith, Nancy Walker and Estelle Winwood become involved in the strange case of disappearing bodies, a dining room that turns into twins, women done wrong and men who are seldom what they seem.

Lionel Twain (Capote) is a semi-mad genius who has invited all the world-famous sleuths — including gumshoe Sam Diamond (Falk); the wily Belgian Milo Perrier (Coco); the inscrutable Sidney Wang (Sellers); the tipsy Dick and Cora Charleston (Niven and Smith); and England's dotty Miss Jessica Marbles (Lanchester) — to dinner to help solve a murder — scheduled for midnight. Twain's lavish household seems a trifle peculiar — the butler is blind, the maid is mute and the masonry keeps falling on their heads — but the fabulously wealthy host has offered $1,000,000 for solving the midnight murder-to-be, and when crime pays like that, a few peculiarities are permissible.

Dedicated to setting the halloved mystery novel on its ear, "Murder By Death" sets up its premise with great care, then plants the seeds of its mystery with a good deal of atmosphere and innuendos. Once this is accomplished, those patented Simon one-liners take over, flying fast and furiously.

The cast is superb — Niven, Smith, Coco and Guinness are particularly outstanding — and play comes off so that the tongue in their respective cheeks never turns to ham.

'What A Perfect Job!'

Lynne Topping has wanted to be an actress since she was 12 years old. Today she is fast-achieving 'star status' with her portrayal of Chris Foster on CBS-TV's "The Young and the Restless." But, ironically, the daytime 'soaps' were never one of her goals.

"It never even entered my mind that I would ever be acting in a 'soap,'" Lynne candidly admits. "I just never gave it a thought.

"But the day my agent called and I went in for the audition, I thought to myself, 'What a perfect job for me!'"

She replaced popular actress Trish Stewart in the role, but says she hasn't encountered any adverse reaction from Tish's legion of fans.

"There had been a lot of people in and out of the cast for a year," she explains. "Trish was one of the first to leave, and I think that the show's fans were just so glad to see the character back that it really didn't matter."

Do people identify her with Chris Foster?

"I think the whole idea that fans consider the character and the actress to be the same person is exaggerated," she said. "Sure, I'm recognized at the grocery store or the laundromat, but it's always as Lynne Topping. Not Chris Foster. It's the same with my fan mail. The letters are to me. Not Chris."

LYNNE TOPPING stars as Chris Foster in the popular daytime drama, "The Young and the Restless," (Monday-Friday, 1-1:30 p.m.) on CBS.

New Faces

The news of William Gray Espy's return to the daytime drama scene sets hearts a flutter all over the country.

Paul Rauch, producer of NBC-TV's "Another World," made the big announcement recently, and has now come up with more exciting news for his series' viewers. Also joining the cast are David Bailey and Lee Patterson.

Espy will portray Mitchell Blake, a mysterious gentleman from Janice Frame's past who will add an exciting dimension of intrigue and surprise to the web of "AW's" Bay City activities. His first appearance on the series airs October 5.

Bailey, remembered for his earlier portrayal as Dr. Russ Matthews, returns to re-create his role as the ambitious yet sensitive young physician-son of Jim Matthews. Bailey joins the cast the week of October 8.

Patterson, a seasoned performer with extensive credits from both the stage and motion pictures, plays Dr. Kevin Cooke, head of the cardiac unit at Bay City Hospital and a close colleague of Dr. Matthews. His debut on the series is set for October 15.

Espy, a native of Dothan, Ala. and a graduate of Vanderbilt University, originated the unique role of Snapper Foster on "The Young and the Restless" in 1973.

Candace Hasey joined ABC-TV's "Good Morning America" as a feature reporter. Scheduled to appear weekly on the program, she covers a wide range of general assignment and feature stories throughout the country.

Hasey taught school in Melrose, Mass., her hometown, after obtaining a B.A. degree cum laude in fine arts and elementary education at Boston College. She also received a Master's degree in learning and reading disabilities from Harvard University.

Hasey worked for KPIX-TV in San Francisco as an associate producer on "Evening Magazine" and was honored with a local Emmy for a series she produced on guide dogs for the blind. When the program went into national syndication, she became the program's associate producer in Baltimore.

Prior to joining ABC's popular daytime show, Hasey hosted "P.M. Magazine" on WFAA-TV in Dallas, Texas.

The Teen Scene

LEIF GARRETT and BROOKE SHIELDS are running up some enormous phone bills staying in touch via long distance these days. Both are saying that they're just good friends at this point, however.

A new twosome around town is MARY McDONOUGH (of "THE WALTONS") and Jimmy Baio. Real roller-skating 'freaks,' Mary and Jimmy were the main attraction at a celebrity disco-roller fashion show held recently in Los Angeles.

Nine-year-old John Carter Cash proved that his mom and dad, JOHN and JUNE CARTER, are not the only members of the family who can sing. Young John reportedly 'knocked 'em dead' at an outdoor concert held in Tarrytown, N.Y. last month.

As "THE INCREDIBLE HULK," 27-year-old LOU FER-RIGNO could not be more out of character. A hearing problem dating back to his childhood is the reason for his shyness, and he says that bodybuilding helped him gain acceptance. "God took away some of my hearing," says Lou, "but he put a lot more back into my life."

Namath & Friends

Former football superstar Joe Namath and award-winning actors Judd Hirsch and Jack Albertson star in "Marriage is Alive and Well," an NBC World Premiere comedy now in production.

Namath stars as Brian Fish, a wedding photographer whose regular assignments provide a riotous, close-up view of the institution of marriage.

Hirsch portrays Herbert Rollie, an oft-married writer and divorced twice. Albertson appears as aging, well-known comedian, Manny Wax, whose attempts to marry his shapely secretary - 60 years his junior - are being thwarted in the courts by his son.

Melinda Dillon, Jeannie Wilson, Deborah Baltzell, Jordan Charney and Ingrid Wang co-star.

Albertson won a Tony and an Oscar for his performances in the Broadway production and movie version of "The Subject Was Roses." He won three Emmy Awards: two for "Chico and the Man"; another for a guest appearance on the "Cher" show.

Energy Saver

As a star of "Little House on the Prairie," Karen Grassle keeps a husband and a houseful of kids, but in real life she lives the opposite of the quiet, dependent Caroline Ingalls.

Karen, single and very independent, owns a home in California's Hollywood Hills.

Concerned about the energy crisis, she began searching for ways of saving fuel, and came up with a sunny answer — solar power.

PETER EVANS (l), and Ellis Rabb star in "A Live In The Theatre," a joyous comedy about two actors. (one is of the grand 'old school,' and the other — a down-to-earth neophyte). The two-character play, airs on Great Performances Wednesday, October 3 (8-9:30 p.m.) on PBS.

New Technology Series On PBS-TV

On November 9, 1965, at 5:16 p.m., New York City went dark.

Triggered by the snapping shut of one tiny relay at a Niagara Falls power station, the vast, interconnecting web of electrical generators and conveyors which supplies the Eastern Seaboard turned its enormous load of power back upon itself and temporarily committed suicide. The result was the most massive blackout in American history an event which, in a single instant, deprived millions of people of the technology on which they rely for convenience, comfort, safety and life itself.

The New York blackout is the starting point of "Connections: An Alternative View Of Change," a ten-part series premiering Sunday, September 30, (8-9 p.m.), on PBS.

"New York City — like all the other major high-density population centers of the earth — is a technology island," says narrator James Burke, who also wrote the series. "It can neither feed nor clothe nor warm its inhabitants without supplies from outside. Without those supplies, the entire massive structure, and the teeming millions it encloses, would die."

Segment One of 'Connections' entitled "The Trigger Effect,"

uses the blackout to demonstrate one of Burke's main theses: that we all are completely dependent, without fully realizing it, on an enormously complex network of technology: that our lives, in a sense are made possible by a whole world of man-made objects which we do not understand and cannot personally operate. When this network malfunctions, as it did in New York, we become helpless: civilization as we know it vanishes.

Schedule Change

The Washington Redskins have exchanged home games with Philadelphia so the Eagles' visit to D.C. on October 7th won't conflict with Pope John Paul's trip to Washington, scheduled for the same weekend.

Washington area police said crowd control would have been extremely difficult if the game and the mass, to be celebrated on the mall just west of the capitol, had occurred simultaneously.

Michele Will Tell

Q: What has happened to Amanda Blake, who played 'Miss Kitty' on "Gunsmoke"? Where can I write to her? D. PRESSLEY, MORGANTON, N.C.

A: At 51, Amanda still has that fantastic figure and 'come hither' that wowed all the cow-pokes around the Long Branch Saloon. Since leaving the series in 1974, she has lived quietly — and quite happily — in Phoenix, Ariz., with her hubby, businessman Frank Gilbert. Amanda does head for California occasionally for guest roles in series, and will be featured in an upcoming segment of "The Love Boat." Write to her c/o Grossman-Raison Agency, 8730 Sunset Blvd., Suite 405, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069.

Q: Is Dorothy Hamill a sister of Mark Hamill? What is Mark's address? K. PETERSON, FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.

A: No, even though they have the same last name. Dorothy is from Greenwich, Conn., and has an older brother and sister. Mark, the middle son (of seven children) of a retired U.S. Navy Captain, grew up in California, Virginia, New York City and Japan. He's now in England filming "Star Wars II," so send your letter to Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation, 10201 West Pico Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif. 90064.

Q: What is Sammy Davis, Jr. doing on "One Life to Live"? E. HARRIS, SPARTANBURG, S.C.

A: One thing's for certain — he doesn't need the money! It is a well-known fact, however, among the soap opera circles that Sammy is numbered among the industry's most avid fans. He appeared in five episodes of "OLTL" that were filmed in August in the role of Chip Warren, an ex-con working undercover to help the Lanview police solve a crime involving a prominent local doctor.

Q: What other shows besides "Soap" has actress Diana Canova been on? G. STANLEY, SHALLLOTTE, N.C.

A: Diana, who's the daughter of comedienne Judy Canova, has made guest appearances on several other series, most of them on ABC — "Happy Days," "Fantasy Island" and "The Love Boat" — and two TV films, "With This Ring" and "Amusement Park." Diana is also an accomplished singer and teaches voice when she isn't acting.

Q: Who plays 'Scottie' on "General Hospital"? Where do I write to him? A. THURSTON, GREENVILLE, S.C.

A: Kin Shriener, son of the late humorist Herb Shriener, who died along with Kin's mom in a tragic auto accident in 1970. A bachelor, Kin says he has no reason to settle down and marry until he hits 45. Kin's address is: ABC-TV, 4151 Prospect Ave., Hollywood, Calif. 90028.

Special Dedication

Michael Landon, star and executive producer of NBC-TV's "Little House on the Prairie" series, recently dedicated an upcoming episode to the United Nations' International Year of the Child.

The episode, titled "The Family Tree," will be telecast Monday, October 1 (8 to 9 p.m.).

The United Nations chose 1979 as the International Year of the Child because the year marks the UN's 20th anniversary of its declaration of the rights of children — and because babies born in 1979 will become 21 in the year 2000.

"I decided to dedicate this particular episode to the IYC because it is very appropriate to the problems and needs of children," Landon says. "It's the story of the Ingalls family's adopted son, and the fear and turmoil he faces when his real father goes to court and regains his custody."

In our story, a boy loved by his adoptive family, is taken away and given to a father who has no real interest in him. The message of the drama comes across as, "it's easy to have a child — but that doesn't make you a parent."

"Love and understanding are important to children, and this program stresses the fact that young children need help and guidance," Landon adds.

A New Kind of Role For Warren

Once upon a time she played Cinderella, met a handsome prince and danced all night at the ball. Now she's playing a woman forced to dance all night in a third-rate nightclub, performing a striptease routine.

From fairy-tale princess to stripper? It's not as bad as it sounds. For Lesley Ann Warren, the transition was a steady and welcome one.

She began her professional career as the ingenue lead in the Broadway musical, "110 in the Shade," and followed that with the title role in the television version of "Cinderella." Then came two Walt Disney movies.

"With that kind of a beginning," she exclaims, "it's a wonder I wasn't forever more typecast as the sweet young thing who could sing and dance!"

Luckily, that didn't happen, as is evidenced by her current starring role as Susie Hanson, a young dancer who becomes a stripper to support herself and her young son, in "Portrait of a Stripper." The film, made for television, airs on "The CBS Tuesday Night Movies" October 2 (9 to 11 p.m.).

Lesley Ann's transition from 'sweet young thing' roles actually began when she was signed to replace Barbara Bain in the dramatic series, "Mission: Impossible." It continued over the next few years with a series of dramatic roles in television, motion pictures and a number of theatrical productions.

If any one thing helped dispel the Cinderella image, it was the role of the ghetto girl who turns call girl, then madam, in the miniseries, "79 Park Avenue."

"It was a total experience for me," the actress confides. "At the same time, it was the most involving role I had ever done. Not because she was a 'bad girl,' but because she was a fully-realized character.

"And the character of Susie in 'Portrait of a Stripper' is another chance to portray a whole person. Susie is a determined, independent, yet vulnerable woman who makes her living as a dancer. When forced by circumstances to become a stripper, she does it to pay the bills.

"Actually, one of the many enjoyable aspects of the role was the opportunity to use my own dance background and experience.

"I also learned what Gypsy Rose Lee always knew — stripping is a special art and the trick is to give the audience what it wants, even if it is an illusion.

Idea Spanned Four Years

Did you ever wonder where writers get their ideas? Sometimes they are hidden in one's unconscious mind, popping up several years later. Four years ago, for example, scriptwriter David J. Kinghorn lay in an Army hospital recovering from an injury. For two weeks he viewed the San Francisco Golden Gate Bridge from his room.

Resulting from that hospital stay his script for "The Golden Gate Murders" came to life, airing on "The CBS Wednesday Night Movies" October 3 (9 p.m.).

Kinghorn, in his early 30s, has written for several years, ever since he found a movie script that he described as "awful" in a trash can, and figured that he could do as well. He supported his wife and family during this period by working as a substitute teacher and a tree trimmer.

"I wrote my first script when my wife, Marilyn, was pregnant with our first child, Jessica. Both events took nine months, but my daughter turned out better than the script," Kinghorn joked.

Kinghorn has been a selling writer only for the past year, and "Murders" is his first work to go into production. "It's very exciting to hear your lines spoken," he commented.

The Kinghorn family lives in Graton, Calif., 60 miles north of San Francisco. "I enjoy living in a small town, and I don't think I would work without my normal atmosphere of having the television set blaring and my kids crying in the background," he said. "That's what I'm used to."

Autograph Swap

Bobby Vinton, appearing in Atlantic City, N.J. during the weekend of the Miss America Pageant, traded autographs with a member of his audience also of Polish descent, Cheryl Prewitt, the new Miss America.

Kinghorn, who has a degree in journalism, worked for a time as a stringer for a newspaper. He explains the difference between writing styles as: "Seeing your name and words in print is nice, but not nearly as exciting as hearing them. Watching my work being filmed is magic time, and I love it!"

Alda Does It All

Alan Alda, star of "M*A*S*H," will wear three hats when he directs and stars in the "Life Time" episode of the CBS series which he co-wrote with Dr. Walter Dishell.

Star For Rogers

Singer Kenny Rogers is the 1712th performer to be honored with a star in the Hollywood Walk of Fame.

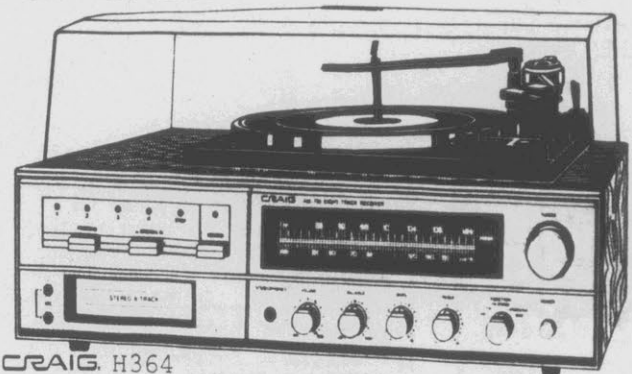

SUSANNAH YORK and David Janssen star as a nun and a detective who joins forces to prove that a priest's death from a fall off the Golden Gate Bridge was murder not suicide, in "The Golden Gate Murders," to be broadcast on "The CBS Wednesday Night Movies," Oct. 3 (9-11 p.m.)

Sheree North smiled, nodded approval, and murmured "Deja vu time," as she watched Lesley Ann Warren rehearse a dance routine for "Portrait of a Stripper," a television movie airing on CBS Tuesday, October 2 (9 p.m.).

North, who portrays an ex-burlesque queen named Sally in the drama, was recalling the fact that while still a student, she worked her way through school as a dancer in a small nightclub in Santa Monica, Calif.

"I always knew I wanted to be a dancer," she recalled, "and luckily, I had a very supportive mother who saw that I received the best available training. I didn't care what kind of dancing, as long as it had a beat and I could move with the music."

Sheree moved to the music at Hollywood's Greek Theatre, as a member of the Corps de Ballet, and with other dance companies. It was on Broadway, in what one critic called "the hottest 90 seconds in town," that she stopped the musical "Hazel Flagg" cold every night to tumultuous applause. At the end of the run, Sheree signed a long-term contract with 20th Century-Fox and was on her way to Hollywood. She thought they wanted her to dance — a natural assumption. They did, but they also wanted to concentrate on her acting abilities.

"For the next few years, I alternated between dramas and musicals," Sheree continued. "I knew what I was doing when the music started, and before long, I realized that I was receiving invaluable on-the-job training, as far as drama was concerned."

Sheree has since received an Emmy Award nomination for TV's "Breaking Point" series, and appeared on most of the top dramatic shows. Recent starring roles were in "Women in White" and "Amateur Night at the Dixie Bar & Grill."

Quinlan Case Dramatized

At the age of 21, Karen Quinlan moved from her parents' home in New Jersey to her own apartment — an unremarkable enough event in the life of a young woman that age. Eight months later, however, Karen Quinlan became the center of one of the most remarkable, controversial and potentially influential court cases in the history of American jurisprudence — a trial which dealt directly with the issues of the quality of life and the right to die.

A drama based on this headline-making case about the young woman, "In the Matter of Karen Ann Quinlan," will be rebroadcast on CBS Late Movie, Tuesday, October 2 at 12:30 a.m. Brian Keith and Piper Laurie star as the parents, Joe and Julia Quinlan.

When their daughter is rushed to the hospital, the Quinlans hold out hope for months that she will fully recover from her unexpected ailment. But as time passes, each visit confirms the reality that Karen Ann's condition is deteriorating and that her life is being sustained by sophisticated medical machinery.

After months of soul-searching, they decide that their daughter's inevitable death should be natural and that her life should not be artificially prolonged by technology. They are shocked, however, when hospital authorities and treating physicians refuse to grant their request. Determined that their daughter is entitled to the same dignity in death as she was in life, and to preserve their rights as parents, they pursue the issue in a landmark court case that draws world-wide attention.

David Huffman appears as Paul Armstrong, the attorney who represented the Quinlans in their legal and personal struggles.

During the actual trial, Joseph Quinlan said: "I want to put her back into a natural state, if she lives a day, if she lives a year or five years. This is the Lord's will ... if He wants her to die, she will be off all the artificial means. This is what I want. It's very simple."

THERE'S A NEW ANGEL in Charlie's heaven when Shelley Hack (c) joins Jaclyn Smith (l) and Cheryl Ladd on ABC's "Charlie Angels" Wednesdays (9-10 p.m.).

Charlie's Angels

"Charlie's Angels" launches its fourth season of action, adventure and suspense on ABC each Wednesday night at 9 p.m. This year the series stars Jaclyn Smith, Cheryl Ladd and, the new addition to the show, Shelley Hack.

As the Angels, these bright police-trained young women, continue to work for Charlie Townsend, who dispatches his orders over the phone with capable assistance from his ever-present and diligent aide, John Bosley (David Doyle).

The Angels, formidable in their professional expertise as crimefighting private detectives, also overwhelm foe and friend alike with their beauty. Combining the experienced common sense of Texas-born Kelly Garrett (Jaclyn Smith), the all-American warmth and spunk of Kris Munroe (Cheryl Ladd) and the Eastern-bred sophistication and sensitivity of Tiffany Welles (Shelley Hack), the Angels move with grace and ease whenever duty calls.

On the go, constantly changing their guises, their moods and their tempo, Kelly, Kris and Tiffany mix humor with their adventures.

"Union Station" Starring William Holden. A young blind girl is kidnapped and has trouble understanding her predicament.

Behind-The-Scene Bedlam

Film and tape editing machines run seven days a week at George Schlatter's editing complex in Los Angeles in preparation for segments of "Real People," seen Wednesdays (8 to 9 p.m.), on NBC-TV.

At any moment more than two dozen people can be found at The Editing Company, in addition to the same number in the Schlatter production offices across the street.

"It works beautifully," says Schlatter. "We have enormous amounts of film and tape coming in and the people there do fantastic work."

In charge of this mammoth operation sits Liz Mitchell. As post production coordinator, Liz works on all Schlatter projects and right now, it's all "Real People."

"Sometimes we work right up to the night before air," says Liz, "but everyone here is capable and we thrive on deadlines like this."

At the editing complex, there are conference rooms where tapes are assembled, a CNX Room where footage is punched out on a tape, film and tape editing facilities, viewing rooms and stock libraries.

"Our final step," Liz continues, "is to get it on a two-inch tape and deliver it to NBC where it goes on a show reel."

Film editor Bev Baroff has had two days off in the past three months. As if editing a continuous supply of film isn't enough, Bev produced her first segment for "Real People" a few weeks ago.

With Sarah Purcell, John Barbour, Skip Stephenson, Byron

ACROSS FROM GEORGE SCHLATTER'S production office for NBC-TV's "Real People," (Wednesdays, 8-9 p.m.), the executive producer has a large production complex which handles all the editing and cutting of film and tape segments. Film editor Bev Baroff (top) works alongside Liz Mitchell (l), post production supervisor, and Eve Goldberg (r).

Allen, Bill Rafferty, Jimmy Breslin and Mark Russell on the road, the amount of footage that comes in this office staggers the mind. "It's nothing for all of us to work seven days a week or 14-16 hours a day," says Bev.

"It's nothing for us to process

10,000 feet of film in one day," says Eve. "This is on 16mm mostly. I might work an 80-hour week just to keep things rolling."

"It may be a complex," says Schlatter, "but really it's simple — we just do it all ourselves."

Janssen, York Together

David Janssen and Susannah York star respectively as a detective and a nun, who join forces in an effort to prove that a priest's death resulting from a fall off the Golden Gate Bridge was murder instead of the official verdict of suicide, in "The Golden Gate Murders." The new motion picture for television will be broadcast on "The CBS Wednesday Night Movies" October 3 (9 to 11 p.m.).

As his nurse, Sister Benecia feels directly responsible for Father Thomas' death, but refuses to believe that he committed suicide. She decides not to return to her order in Spain until she can prove it. She enlists Det. Sergeant Paul Silver's aid, and the two find their relationship growing closer as others associated with the nun and their investigation are subsequently murdered.

Carl Foreman, the distinguished veteran writer-producer director, makes his American television production debut as executive producer of "The Golden Gate Murders."

"Television is the industry of the future, and I want to do something in every aspect of the medium," says Foreman.

"I'm getting into television for the education," he continued. "I want to learn the ground rules of television, and there's no better time to learn than now."

Foreman, who holds some of the most impressive credits in the motion picture business, including four Academy Award nominations for such screenplays as "The Guns of Navarone," "High Noon," "The Man" and "Champion," is also developing a miniseries and several situation comedies for television.

With his extensive motion picture background, one might wonder how much he has to learn that is different about television.

Don't Expect Sympathy

Michael Landon has a deserved reputation of being television's "Mister Nice Guy" both on screen and off — but when it comes to offering a soft shoulder for people with problems, he's more than likely to give 'em a kick in the pants.

"I feel sorry for people who have problems which are beyond their control," says the star of "Little House on the Prairie," "but most of life's problems are our own fault — and sympathy under those conditions doesn't do a bit of good."

One of Landon's children recently learned about his feelings when he came home and complained that he couldn't get along with a certain teacher at school. "Baloney!" said Landon. "Adjust. Make it work!"

"People would do themselves a great favor if they would take the blame for things that go wrong, and say to themselves, 'I've got to do something about this.' But you can't do anything if you always blame your problems on someone else. You have to say, 'It's my fault, and I'd better do something about this.' I don't care if it is poor health, a bad job, a cranky teacher or any of a dozen things.

"No one can solve your problems better than you can, and if you don't care enough about yourself to get off your duff and correct the problem, don't expect others to get very excited about it."

Landon mentioned Hollywood's reaction to the suicide of actor Freddie Prinze. "Of course you can feel sorry for a fellow human who gets involved in things like that, but to say that his death was Hollywood's fault is pure baloney. Hollywood didn't kill Freddie Prinze — Freddie Prinze did it. Nobody shoved that junk down his throat. He wanted to take pills and drugs. Show business didn't do that — he did it."

He also rebukes parents who accept the responsibility for the faults of their children.

"You should do the very best you can while your kids are with you. Give them love and guidance — but if they grow up to be bums, or worse, don't use that 'Oh, what have I done?' line. Parents shouldn't spend the rest of their lives feeling guilty if they did the best they could and it didn't work out.

"If a kid from a good home turns out bad, that's the kid's fault, not the parents'."

Another Winner

"Hawaii Five-O" begins another season with a special two-hour episode Thursday, October 4 (9 p.m.), on CBS-TV. The presentation introduces William Smith and Moe Keale as new members of the cast. Harry Guardino, Ross Martin, Paul Smith and Barbara Luna guest star.

Jack Lord returns for the twelfth year in his starring role of Steve McGarrett, chief of the Five-O state police unit's ace investigators. In this drama, McGarrett finds himself caught in the crossfire as a faction of embattled kamaainas (native Hawaiians) takes on the Island's underworld. The prize is control of a labor union and the 50th state's rich tourist business.

Martin portrays Tony Alika, local racketeer czar and McGarrett's old foe, who has imported a Boston labor figure, Johnny Mio (Guardino). Tony plans to give him the post of business agent for the culinary and hotel workers union. Through Mio, Alika hopes to control the union which plays a key role in the maintenance of Hawaiian tourism.

SPOTLIGHT

An Outstanding Actor

Alex Rieger is a New York cabbie in ABC-TV's hit series "Taxi." He's not insane about the idea, but he accepts it. After all, it feels less degrading than welfare, less demanding than unemployment and it has its own peculiar psychic rewards as well. Hence, he chose hacking rather than handouts.

An outstanding stage and television actor named Judd Hirsch portrays Alex. Judd left the hit Neil Simon Broadway play, "Chapter Two," a year ago to lead the "Taxi" ensemble.

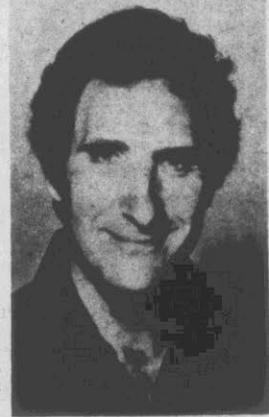

Judd attended New York schools before studying engineering at New York City College. His artistic beat led him to transfer to an architecture program at New York's Cooper Union College.

Next, he exercised a yearning for the footlights by studying acting at three different schools. His most serious studies came during a stint with the prestigious Academy of Dramatic Arts.

Judd never drove a cab after he moved into acting, but he had innumerable other odd jobs while trying to survive.

His first real acting job came in 1962, when he performed with a stock company in Estes Park, Colo. After that engagement, he returned to New York and continued working on stage. Judd began his television career portraying Murray Stone in the Emmy Award-winning movie, "The Law," and subsequently starred in his own series, "Delvecchio." He also guest-starred in such series and TV motion pictures as "Rhoda," "The Keegans," "Medical Story," "Valentino," and "Feat on Trial." He had starring roles in the feature films "Sooner or Later" and "King of the Gypsies."

During the past 10 years, he has remained active in Broadway and off-Broadway productions including "Hot L Baltimore," Jules Feiffer's "Knock Knock," "Barefoot in the Park," "Harvey" and Bruce Jay Friedman's "Scuba Duba." He received a Drama Desk Award for his portrayal of Wiseman in "Knock Knock."

Judd, a single, lives in Los Angeles, but owns a house in upper New York State. He restored the old farm house and laughingly refers to himself as a 'frustrated architect.' "Actually, I started out as an engineer, but it was a very dull profession for me. I went into architecture because I like the idea that it sprang from the person... and then I didn't do it. So I went on, got my degree in physics and eventually became an actor."

Slim Is Beautiful

America's obsession with slim figures, diets and pound-shedding exercises is explored in "Before and After," airing as "The ABC Friday Night Movie," October 5 (9-11 p.m.). Patty Duke Astin stars as a housewife whose weight problem threatens her marriage in the dramatic and bitingly humorous story.

The show also stars Bradford Dillman, Barbara Feldon, Art Hindle, Conchata Ferrell, Rosemary Murphy, Kenneth Mars and Betty White.

Carole Mathews (Astin), 20 pounds overweight, is shocked into taking action when her husband, Jerry (Dillman), tells her he liked her better when she was thinner. Carole embarks on a program of calorie watching and exercise with the support of her friend, Patty (Feldon). Patty, a woman at the other extreme, has become such a compulsive dieter that she is later hospitalized because of acute malnutrition.

Another close friend, plump and happy Marge (Ferrell), intends to remain that way. Mars portrays Ben, who wants to marry Patty. White, cast as Anita, leads a weight-reducing group.

Carole, while slowly making progress, discovers that her husband is seeing other women. After a confrontation he moves out, and Carole becomes involved — over the objections of her mother (Murphy) — with Mike Farmer (Hindle), a young artist who doesn't care how much she weighs.

Later, with both men demanding her undivided attention, the thinner and wiser Carole must come to terms with herself and what she really wants from life.

At Last 'Star' Status!

NBC-TV's new Saturday morning children's schedule now moves four animated-comedy series' heroes to star status. "The New Shmoo," "Casper and the Space Angels," "The Super Globetrotters" and "Godzilla," previously elements in other children's programs, now star in their own half-hour series.

The Shmoo, based on the lovable, trusting and innocent comic-strip character created by Al Capp, joins Mickey, Billy Joe and Pamela, three investigators for Strange Tale Comics. Their weekly quests expose fraudulent incidents of supposed psychic phenomena. Although the Shmoo can be a little too trusting and too innocent sometimes, he has the advantage of having unique powers. He can change himself into virtually anything — a wheel, a parachute, a telephone pole, a steamroller, or multiples of himself — in order to foil the villain and help solve the mystery. Casper the Friendly Ghost finds himself on a heavenly assignment in "Casper and the Space Angels." He's the guardian angel to Minni and Maxi, the first space police women. Casper's good intentions often become hampered, however, by his bungling cousin, Harry Scary.

"The Super Globetrotters" now enjoy a half-hour all to themselves to display their super-human powers of flexibility on the basketball court and off, as they go on a series of daring adventures to right wrongdoings. Joining "Godzilla," that prehistoric reptile, in his own new half-hour comedy series are Godzooky, his nephew, and the crew of the oceanic vessel, the Calico.

"The Daffy Duck Show" returns for another year on the network. Daffy, one of America's best-loved comic heroes, continues to get himself in and out of trouble with the help of his cohorts, Pepe Le Pew and Speedy Gonzales.

Also included in NBC's Saturday morning lineup is "The New Adventures of Flash Gordon," an animated re-creation of Alex Raymond's classic science-fiction epic of the 1930s. The series follows the exploits of pilot Flash Gordon, Dale Arden and Doctor Zarkov as they brave the dangers of the fantastic planet Mongo, ruled by the evil dictator Ming the Merciless. The trio also explores the ice world of Frigia, the underwater kingdom of Coralia, the forest empire of Arboria, the Sky City, the Unexplored Continent, the jungles of Tropica and the futuristic wonders of Mingo City.

Bridges In New Series

Film and television actor Beau Bridges will star in the male lead role of Emmy- and Tony-winning writer-producer Larry Gelbart's new comedy series for NBC-TV, "United States." "We're proud to have Beau because he is the ideal choice for the role," said Gelbart, also executive producer of the series which will begin production in mid-October.

"United States" takes a realistic look at a contemporary marriage scene through the eyes of a couple with two young children. Bridges plays the father.

HOLLYWOOD — In spite of the fact that "WKRP IN CINCINNATI" stars GARY SANDY and LONI ANDERSON are dating hot 'n' heavy off-camera as well as on, both maintain they're really "just good friends," dating solely for press appearances.

Television's longest-running show, "SEARCH FOR TOMMOROW," celebrated its 28th birthday recently with a festive bash at a swank New York restaurant. On hand to cut the cake was MARY STUART (Joanne Vincent), the only original cast member still with the crew.

GARY BURGHOFF is telling friends that he finally feels like a member of the human race again after leaving "M*A*S*H." "Quite frankly I was exhausted from it," says Gary. "For seven years I played the same 18-year-old kid — and I'm a 36-year-old now!"

Look for comedian JACK CARTER to become a semi-regular on "ARCHIE BUNKER'S PLACE" any day now. Jack just did a guest-stint as 'Louie, the loan shark,' and he was such a hit with CARROLL O'CONNOR that he wants him back.

TINA ANDREWS, who caused considerable 'flap' from viewers when she was on "DAYS OF OUR LIVES," is the latest to be signed to a starring role in CBS-TV's miniseries entitled "THE CONTENDER." Others starring are MARC SINGER and MOSES GUNN.

BERT CONVY, the honorary mayor of Pacific Palisades, Calif., rounded up 26 stars to play in his one-hour show, "CELEBRITY COMEDY FOOTBALL CLASSIC." All gate receipts, plus a $25,000 check, are going to The Boys Club of Hollywood.

DON KNOTTS, newest member of the "THREE'S COMPANY" cast, loves to play in celebrity golf tournaments, even tho' he's not a good golfer. But he's come up with a way to cover up his shortcomings: "I do a few well-chosen gags, and when they're all laughing, I run up and hit the ball."

Stardom has a special meaning for CHARLENE TILTON. The cute blonde who's hit it big with her role in "DALLAS" still remembers the days when she sold T-shirts to make ends meet.

'ANGEL' JACLYN SMITH is singing the 'water blues' these days. A pipe burst beneath her Gone With The Wind-style mansion and washed out part of the foundation. Jackie had to splash out a huge amount of money on extensive repairs, including a new swimming pool.

JIM HARTUNG of the University of Nebraska, a member of the United States Gymnastics team, will try to lead America to the gold in America's first participation in the China invitational Gymnastics meet from Jinan, China, to be colorcast on NBC's "Sports World," Saturday, October 6 (5-6 p.m.).

Garagiola, Kubek Team Up

"Whatever comes to my mind, I'll say it," says Joe Garagiola, a witty fellow with a nice feel for the sunny side of baseball. "If you got a 1-0 or 2-1 game in the ninth, leave it alone. The action will take care of itself. A sportscaster can screw it up if he tries to make something interesting that really isn't interesting. Then you get a 'click-et' convention out there... everybody's going click-click-click... man, have you got problem."

Chances are slim that there will be any click-click-clicking when Garagiola teams up with another articulate spokesman of baseball, Tony Kubek, for NBC Sports' coverage of the American and National League Championship Series, beginning Tuesday, October 2 (8 to 11 p.m.).

Garagiola, who has hit on the right formula for melding the light and heavy sides of baseball, played as a major league catcher for eight years with the St. Louis Cardinals, Pittsburgh Pirates, Chicago Cubs and New York Giants.

He started his broadcasting career as a commentator for the Cardinals, later became a play-by-play announcer for the New York Yankees, and then became the first of NBC's Game-of-the-Week telecasters. He was a 'regular' on the "Today" show and hosted "The Baseball World of Joe Garagiola" (1972-'75).

CBS' NFL Game Of The Week

JAMES LOFTON, one of the most feared pass receivers in the NFL, is one of the cogs around which coach Bart Starr of the Green Bay Packers hopes to build a powerful offensive machine. The Packers get a tough early test when they challenge the New England Patriots on ABC's Monday Night Football on October 1 beginning at 9 p.m. from Green Bay.

It took a long time for Greg Brezina to get any recognition, and some still don't know how much the grizzled linebacker has meant to the rising fortunes of the Atlanta Falcon football team.

But if the young Georgia squad can get into the playoffs once again, then Brezina may gain the kind of notoriety that's usually reserved for the likes of Bill Bergey and Jack Lambert.

The Falcons face another stiff challenge to their hopes of repeating as an NFC playoff team when they tackle the Washington Redskins, who have playoff aspirations of their own.

The contest will take place Sunday, September 30 live from Atlanta Stadium starting at 1 p.m. on CBS.

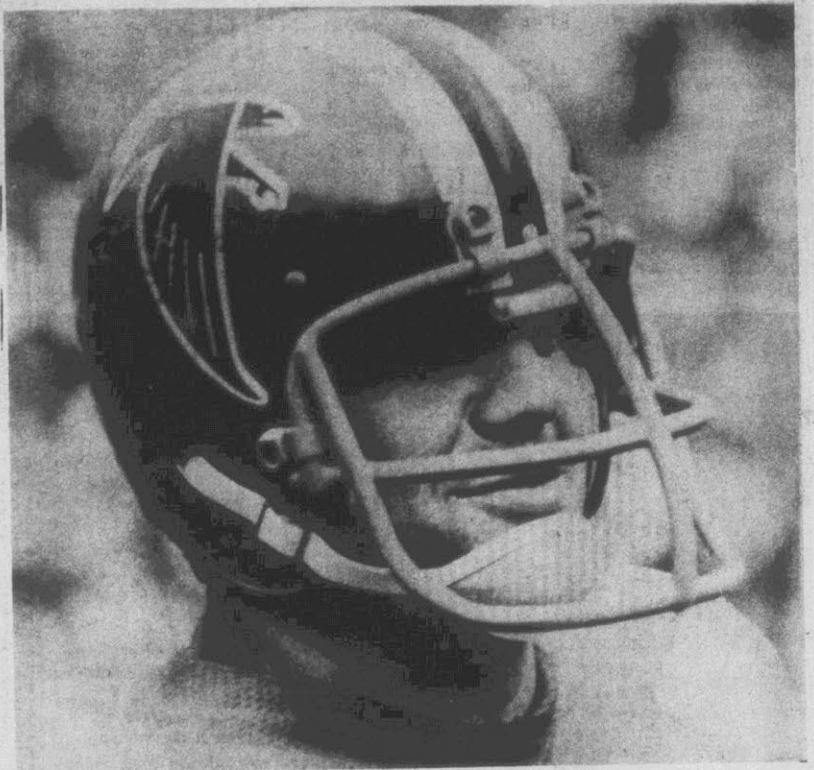

When Brezina came out of the University of Houston as an obscure 11th round draft choice, there were some who called his 6-1, 215-pound frame too small for the rigors of the NFL, but he quickly proved them wrong.

Despite playing in the shadow of teammates Tommy Nobis and Claude Humphrey for a number of the seasons, he finally gained the spotlight the last two years as the most outstanding defensive player on the Falcon team.

As a 12-year veteran, Brezina is the only member of the Falcons to have played under every coach in the franchise's history. In fact, during 1978 he recorded his finest season ever, participating in over 1,000 plays and leading the team in sacks with 10. To cap his superb year, the club named him Most Valuable Player.

"He was an inspiration in every sense of the word," says Atlanta coach Leeman Bennett.

"He knows half the plays before they're even run," adds linebacking teammate Fulton Kuykendall.

GREG BREZINA is not exactly a household word, but the 12-year veteran at linebacker for the Atlanta Falcons has more important things on his mind than personal glory — like an NFC Western crown. The Falcons face the Washington Redskins Sunday, September 30, live from Atlanta Stadium starting at 1 p.m. on CBS.

During the past two seasons, Brezina recorded 15 sacks in the Falcon gambling defensive style of play. His best day came during a losing cause when he amassed three sacks against Cleveland, causing one fumble.

Despite his accomplishments, Brezina was overlooked by most of the post-season all-star squads. "A player becomes labeled early in his career," says Bennett, "but I promise no linebacker in the league could have been more effective than Greg last season."

And does he have any ideas of retiring? Not if he maintains the kind of intensity he has displayed so far this season. "The sensation, the enjoyment and the satisfaction of playing football are hard to describe," concludes Brezina, who sounds like he may be around another 12 seasons.

ABC's Monday Night Game

The Green Bay Packers hope to be a team on the rise, but their offense must become more solid for that hope to become a reality. That's what the pre-season prognostication said concerning Bart Starr's young troops who enjoyed a resurgence to 8-7-1 last season after several mediocre years. But defense remains the name of the game for the Pack.

In fact, the offense only scored 249 points last season while the defense grudgingly surrendered 269 over the 16-game schedule. That statistic must be reversed if the Packers expect to entertain any playoff hopes for the 1979 season.

The Packers must travel a rough road when they tangle with the New England Patriots on ABC's Monday Night Football, October 1, starting at 9 p.m. The game will originate from Curly Lambeau Field in Green Bay.

To rejuvenate the offense, coach Starr, who ran the Packer attack so successfully under the reign of the legendary Vince Lombardi, devised an intricate, complicated offense that took quarterback David Whitehurst a while to adjust to.

But once the Furman graduate began to learn the system, the Packer force moved with much more authority.

Two youngsters — James Lofton and Terrell Middleton — helped to turn things around.

TO THE CONSUMER: CAUTION! Don't embarrass your dealer by asking him to redeem coupons without making the required purchase. He must redeem coupons properly to get his money back. REMEMBER, coupons are good only on the brands called for. Any other use constitutes fraud.

TO THE DEALER: You are authorized to act as our agent for the redemption of this coupon. We will reimburse you for the face value of this coupon, or, if coupon calls for free merchandise, we will reimburse you for such free goods, plus 5¢ for handling, provided that you and the consumer have complied with the terms of our coupon offer. By submitting this coupon for reimbursement you represent that you redeemed it pursuant to these terms. Any failure to enforce these terms shall not be deemed a waiver of any of the conditions.

TERMS OF COUPON OFFER: This coupon must be redeemed by a consumer at the time of purchase of the brand size indicated with the face value of the coupon being deducted from the dealer's retail selling price. This coupon is non-assignable, and may not be reproduced. The consumer must pay any sales tax involved. Invoices proving purchase of sufficient stock of our brands to cover coupons presented must be shown upon request and failure to do so may, at our option, void all coupons submitted for reimbursement for which no proof of products purchased is shown. Properly redeemed coupons will be accepted for reimbursement if identified by the retail distributor of our merchandise who redeemed them in connection with sales to the consumer, or the supplier of the products on which the coupons have been redeemed who has by written agreement with Procter & Gamble agreed to accept financial responsibility, or to a holder of our Certificate of Authority acting for them. COUPONS SHOULD BE SHIPPED, AT OUR EXPENSE, TO: PROCTER & GAMBLE, 2150 SUNNYBROOK DRIVE, CINCINNATI, OHIO 45237.

IN THE KROGER SAV-ON GARDEN

In the Kroger Sav-On garden most of our fresh fruits and vegetables are in bulk displays as opposed to pre-packaged, as many stores have. You can choose one green pepper or 5, one lemon or a dozen, and YOU pick and choose the one you want. Then take your choice to the "Gardener" for weighing and pricing. Your Kroger Sav-On "Gardeners" will be pleased to answer your questions about any of the hundreds of fresh fruits and vegetables we have here for you.

FOR RUSTY YOUNG, floral designer at the White House

What kind of decorations are used at state dinners; how many people prepare them; and what's their fate after the event is over? — F.J., Anchorage, Alaska

● Components of floral arrangements at formal White House dinners in the Carter Administration are chosen to reflect a special interest of the honored guest or to carry out a theme for the event. For example, for a dinner in honor of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, the table was centered with exotic cacti to reflect President Sadat's penchant for American

"Westerns." Crepe myrtle was featured at a dinner for West Germany's Chancellor and Mrs. Helmut Schmidt, since that flower is the favorite of Mrs. Schmidt. All of us in the flower shop, along with the help of volunteers (this varies), prepare arrangements, and the flowers are used over again in routine work.

FOR THE "ASK" EDITOR

Is it true that Margot Kidder's portrayal of Kathleen Lutz in The Amityville Horror (film of the book about a haunted house) made Mrs. Lutz unhappy? — L.S., Danville, Ill.

● Kathy and George Lutz feel American International Pictures did a fine job of the difficult task of reducing the events of 28 days to two hours. You must be referring to the scene which caused critics to express amusement, instead of sympathy or horror (near the end, when George declares, "I'm going out of my mind," and she replies, "George, are you all right?"). "What else could I say?" asked Kathy, defensively. "If someone falls down, what's a normal, natural reaction? 'Are you all right?' are the first words that come to mind." She feels part of the problem lies with Margot Kidder's perfect enunciation: "Perhaps the words should have come out faster, in a nervous way, not so measured."

Ghostly doings in Amityville.

FOR GILDA RADNER, co-star of NBC-TV's Saturday Night Live

When did you first get the urge to be a comedienne? — S.M., Tupelo, Miss.

● When I was a little girl in Detroit. When we went to the theater, my parents always got seats up front so I could get a good view of the stage. When I looked up at the actors, I thought that was the most wonderful thing in the world — to be on a stage where the whole world admired you. I couldn't wait to get up there.

FOR MAC DAVIS, co-star of North Dallas Forty

Is it true you were always picking fights when you were younger? — R.C., Florence, S.C.

● Yes, until I was 18. That's when I got into a brawl — over a girl — with a guy who happened to be a karate expert. He hit me so hard, he broke my nose, and I was blinded from tears of pain. I managed to get up and swing wildly but missed him and struck a stone pillar. Instead, I got a busted hand as well as a battered nose. The girl got hysterical with laughter. Naturally, I never saw her again. The beating I took cured me.

FOR DAVID LEARY, co-star of Broadway's Do

Were you kidding when you said you wanted to die owing a million dollars? — R. Jeffries, Trenton, N.J.

● No. I was deadly serious. I've always lived way beyond my means. I suppose you could call it the little-boy mentality. I have no desire to own anything and love the idea of renting. I spend most of my money in restaurants and big bookstores. If things get to the point where I can't support myself, I'll go off, like Gauguin, to Polynesia and wander around the sand dunes forevermore.

FOR CARLY SIMON, recording star

Most of your album covers show you as a sex symbol. Is that the way you see yourself? — A.R., Green Bay, Wis.

● No. That's the way other people see me, but it doesn't bother me. As long as I can balance my (sexy) pop-star image with my real role as wife of James Taylor and mother of his two kids, I don't mind what people think. In the privacy of my home, my image changes according to how I feel physically. Some days I get up and think, hey, I'm beautiful and I'm going to sock it to 'em. Other days, I'm just a nice girl.

FOR JOYCE HAWKINS, editor, the Oxford paperback Dictionary

What do you consider to be the 10 most beautiful words in the English language? — E.L., Muncie, Ind.

● Some words — such as home, river, lake, valley, countryside — are beautiful because of their associations or because of the picture they conjure up. Others — such as lily, lilting, linger, mellow, melody — because of their sound. Most people like the sound of words including the letters "l" and "m" better than those with hard-sounding letters.

FOR DR. WILLIAM G. CROOK, author of Your Child & Allergy

My son is allergic to chocolate. I try to keep it away from him, but I'm sure he sneaks some behind my back. How can I deal with this? He's only 5. — N.C., Bangor, Maine

● Here are suggestions: Try making candy out of carob, which looks like and tastes like chocolate to a reasonable degree or feed him quantities of chocolate and say, "Chocolate makes you ill. You'll have to decide about the joy of eating it and feeling ill."

PRO Senator John C. Culver, (D., Iowa) member, Armed Services Committee

The Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT), painstakingly negotiated over seven years, caps the nuclear arms race and requires the Soviet Union to dismantle 10 percent of its currently deployed strategic forces, while placing no practical restraints on planned U.S. modernization programs. If this bipartisan agreement is altered by killer amendments, we face the prospect of a costly no-win arms race and a greater danger of nuclear war. Without SALT the Russians could add several hundred missiles and bombers with thousands more nuclear weapons, and they would conceal and camouflage their activities from us. I favor Senate approval to strengthen our national security and prospects for peace.

PRO AND CON

Should The SALT II Treaty Be Ratified As Now Written?

CON Senator Jake Garn (R., Utah), member, Appropriations Committee

The SALT II treaty, as negotiated, would undermine U.S. security and threaten world peace. Contrary to claims by treaty proponents, SALT II is not an arms-control agreement: it would merely legalize the Soviet Union's massive nuclear arms buildup and place unfair constraints on the U.S. Under the treaty, the Soviets would be able to double or triple the number of nuclear warheads in their arsenal: build 308 "heavy" blockbuster missiles (the U.S. could have none); and deploy 35 "back-fire" bombers, capable of reaching U.S. territory. Abetted by SALT II, the Soviets could achieve clear nuclear superiority by the mid 1980's and use that advantage to increase their peace-threatening activities.

Superbright Kids

Is Being Gifted Really a Gift?

By Carrie Carmichael

Noah started to read the newspaper when he was 2 years old. Casey talked at 10 months. At 5, Jennifer picked out songs by ear on the piano and added a second hand for harmony. By the age of 3, David took clocks and radios apart to see what made them work.

These children are among the three to five million gifted and talented youngsters between the ages of 3 and 18 in this country. They are the kids who are so bright they shine. But like shining metal, they don't stay bright without attention and polishing. One of the great myths about gifted children is that they need no help, that they will make it on their own. Without the proper nurturing, the brilliant preschooler can become the smart 7-year-old who turns into the undistinguished teen-ager and adult. Sometimes gifted children become troubled adolescents: Reports indicate that one out of every five high-school dropouts may be a gifted child who's bored.

Educators say it doesn't have to be that way. According to Dr. Harold C. Lyon Jr., director of the National Office of the Gifted and Talented, these children are a great national resource and we are wasting them. "With all the crises our nation is faced with," he says, "this is a pivotal time for us to do something for the gifted."

Gifted and talented children of the past have changed the way we live. Mozart, for instance, started his musical composing before his fifth birthday. Norbert Wiener, the father of cybernetics — computer science — was graduated from Tufts University at 14. Along with the list of child wonders whose gifts were recognized early, however, are the classic examples of achievers whose excellence surfaced later in life. Einstein didn't talk until he was 3. Louisa May Alcott was told she had no talent for writing, and Winston Churchill failed the sixth grade.

What is rare about these last super-achievers is not just their brilliance but that they overcame the early, negative messages which said they were part of the pack, or even below average. Today's educators fear that brilliance fades in too many potentially great children because their gifts are not identified and developed early enough. If a child is bright and nobody sees it, is the child bright? Answer: In some cases, not for long.

There are three classifications of bright children. The first group — who make up one percent of the population — are the geniuses with superhigh I.Q.'s (over 180). Researchers believe that their level of intelligence is biologically determined.

Carrie Carmichael is a journalist and the author of Non-Sexist Childraising (Beacon Press).

Bettmann Archive

Two famous gifted children: Mozart (above), who was composing by age 5, and Norbert Wiener (right), a college graduate at 14.

Bettmann Archive

The next category is the "talented," children who very early excel in art, music or athletics. These prodigies are not necessarily highly intelligent, although they can be. The third group are the so-called "gifted" children with I.Q.'s from 125 to 155. Most of our leaders come from this last category.

What does a bright child look like? How do you know if you have one? The old definition of a gifted child was one who scored about 125 I.Q. on such standardized intelligence tests as the Stanford-Binet, which are administered by educational testing specialists, psychologists and schools. Now the definitions of giftedness are broader, and standardized tests aren't relied on as heavily. One reason for this is the opposition from various ethnic groups. They feel the tests are weighted in favor of children in the dominant culture, and against minorities. Some of the tests also are out of date.

Therefore, to assist parents and educators, the National Office of the Gifted and Talented has put together a list of characteristics of these special children. Few gifted children will have them all.

Typically, gifted children learn to read earlier and better than their peers, sometimes before they go to school. They develop a large vocabulary and use it easily, often with humor. (One 4-year-old recently smiled and announced, "I relish my hot dog with relish.") And they take less for granted. Not willing to settle for simple answers, they constantly ask "how?" and "why?" Gifted children can also work well alone and for long periods of time at one task. Their interests are very often intense and disparate.

Darlene Freeman, who teaches kindergarten and first grade at Hunter College Elementary School, a special laboratory school for gifted children in New York City, says she and other teachers often get a gut feeling that identifies gifted children. Many parents describe their feelings the same way.

If you are a parent who thinks your child is gifted, a blanket statement to the teacher probably won't be convincing; you need to have specific examples of your child's brightness. The best thing to do is keep track in a notebook of all the things your child does that you think are special or exceptional for his or her age. Include the date and even the place.

You have a better chance of getting a good response from your local schools than you did a decade ago, but even now, only 4 percent of the gifted children get the right kind of education. The situation is improving, however. In 1971 the United States Commissioner of Education, Dr. Sidney Marlin, held regional hearings to find out what was being done for our gifted youngsters. Not much, it turned out. More than half the educators surveyed didn't think the gifted should have special treatment. So, with a budget of $2.5 million, the National Office of the Gifted and Talented then began to train doctoral-level leaders at universities around the country: Now there are gifted specialists in 40 state departments of education and a growing movement to provide enriched education.

This movement is fueled by Federal money provided by new legislation. But there is a condition to meet before a school district can qualify: Half the money must be spent to help the "disadvantaged gifted."

Giftedness cuts across all ethnic, economic and sex lines, and the disadvantaged gifted often go unrecognized. "Proportionately there are just as many gifted and talented youngsters in the ghettos as there are in the suburbs," says Dr. Lyon. "We need to identify and nurture them."

Once your child is certified gifted or talented, the kind of education he or she receives can depend on where you live. There are few schools for the gifted, such as the Hunter College Campus Schools in New York, the Mirman School for the Gifted in Los Angeles and the Luther Burbank Elementary School in Chicago.

In traditional schools, the old method of zipping a bright child through school by skipping grades has not died. But it is fading. Because of the growing interest in educating the gifted, more and more schools are developing enrichment programs. In these, gifted children are taken from their regular classrooms and grouped together for a couple of hours, or a couple of sessions a week. They explore whatever topic they're interested in, and they get a chance to relax with kids like themselves. They don't have to be afraid of asking questions that may seem obnoxious or being called "weirdo" or "whiz kid," or any label that means "different."

Even though there are now more programs for the gifted, parents of gifted children say there are not nearly enough. Some parents have organized and pressured schools districts to make a difference. The California Association for the Gifted, made up largely of parents, numbers more than 5,000.

In addition to seeing that a gifted child gets the right education at school, parents can play a crucial role at home. They can help their child develop her or his giftedness in a healthy, pressure-free home.

The time to start is early. Early training and environment can make the difference. Harvard's Dr. Burton White says a child's creative capacity is developed between the ages of 8 and 22 months, a time when gates usually spring up and hands are slapped to keep a child away from dangers. To nurture a gifted child, parents must be willing to offer their time and attention. Here are suggestions from psychologists and educators.

- Answer you child's questions with enthusiasm.

- Take your child to the library, museum, art galleries, concerts, the theater, the ballet or any point of interest that will expand her/his cultural horizons.

- Plan activities at which your child can succeed and that will increase her/his feeling of self-worth.

- Don't put too many restrictions on your child. Instead, encourage responsibility. Help her/him make decisions, but don't take over that job.

- Avoid comparing your child with others. Offer specific praise rather than a sweeping commendation.

- Provide a wide range of learning materials: toys, books, games, any equipment that will stimulate learning.

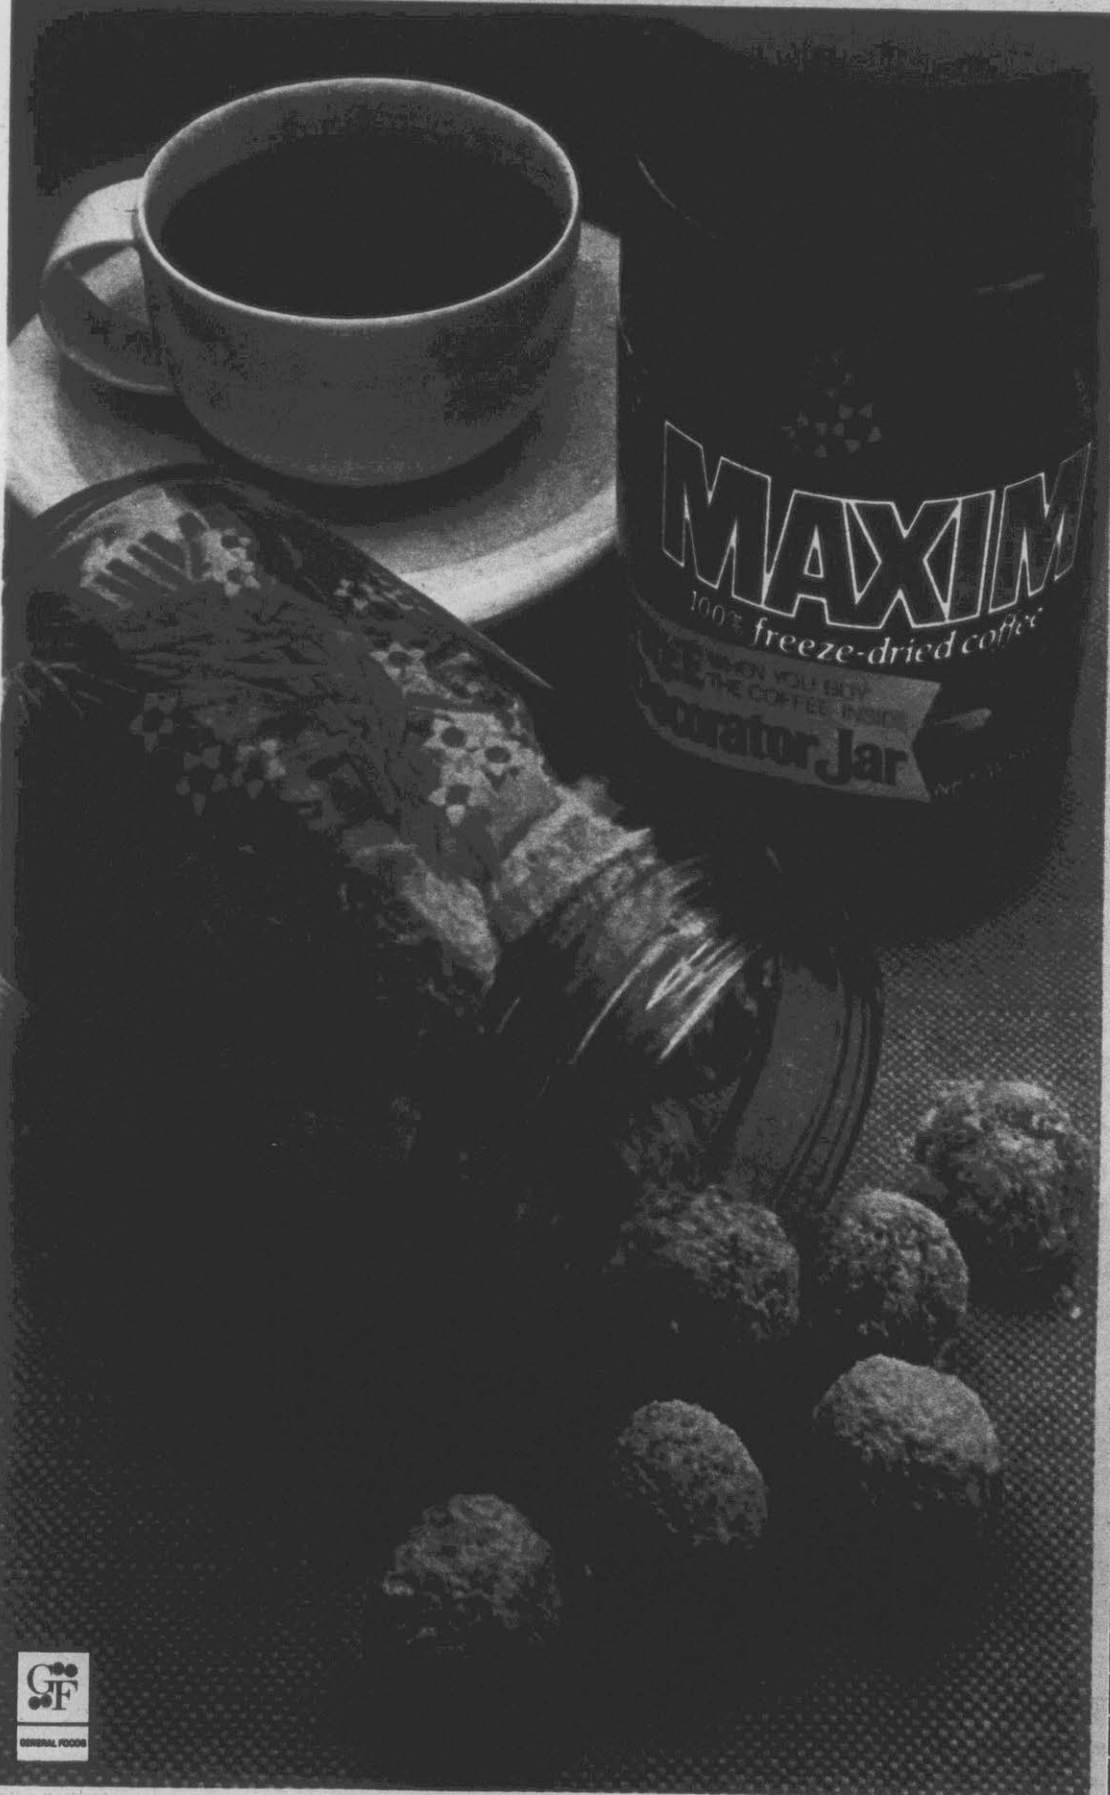

- Give your child enough time for dreaming and planning.

Until more school programs are developed parents will have the responsibility of helping the gifted child. But with more parents pressuring state and local educators for programs, the quality is bound to improve and so will the adult lives of people who were gifted children. And tapping these national treasures can only pay off for us all.

NO SLOTH, THE MOTH

I have a moth hole all must note,
It's front and center in my coat.
The moth that chewed, bite after bite,
No doubt had quite an appetite.

No map, no guide, it somehow found
Its sure, unerring way around,
Past buttons, underneath lapels,
To where its psyche sounded bells.

Now gone, it left this hole behind it.
Proud moth, it must make sure I'd find it.

THROUGH A CHILD'S EYES

My little son hadn't seen his favorite aunt for some months. He tried very hard to express his joy by hugging and kissing her. But that wasn't enough. "I love you, Aunt Aggie," he said. "You're just like home-made."
—Mrs. Helen Barlow Utica, N.Y.

View from the Siberian Railroad: In Russia no one complains about the cost of living. That's the cost of living in Russia.
—Frank Tyger

Precipitation probability: Preparing to baptize a tiny infant, the minister turned to the child's mother and asked, "His name, please?"

"Archibald Sylvester Percival Jones," the proud mother replied.

The minister turned to his assistant and whispered, "A little more water, please."
—Al Batt

Cat-ch-22: "I once bought a discount car," my friend told me. "It was 10-percent off because it only came with five lives."
—Martin Rogaway

And here's a little dipper: Ever notice that most people can't tell you their blood type, but 99.5 percent of them can tell you their astrological sign?

HOW TO PUT A SHOWER IN YOUR BOWL.

Introducing Befresh! Now you can have the advantages of an air freshener and bowl cleaner in one. Befresh! clips right in the toilet bowl, works like a deodorizing shower, releasing a refreshing fragrance with every flush. It even keeps the bowl cleaner by fighting bowl ring build-up between scrubblings. Give your bowl a shower with Sunny Lemon, Rose Garden, or Early Spring. Befresh! makes beautiful scents!

Befresh! snaps in place easily, over the rim and out of sight.

Befresh! has detergents to help fight bowl ring build-up so your bowl stays cleaner and shinier.

Befresh! not only freshens continuously, but releases a shower of fresh scent every time you flush.

Befresh! is safe for use in homes with children and pets. Safe for plumbing, too. Befresh! lasts up to a month in the average home (about 350 flushes), so it's economical as well as convenient!

An Ohio Shrine for Saturday's Heroes

By Bill Schrader

The gray-haired man from South Bend, Ind., was obviously moved as he listened to the words of Knute Rockne through a lifelike "talking figure": Rockne was depicted giving his famous "win one for the Gipper" speech. A big smile flashed across the face of a youngster from Minnesota when recorded crowd noise cheered as he kicked a simulated 30-yard field goal.

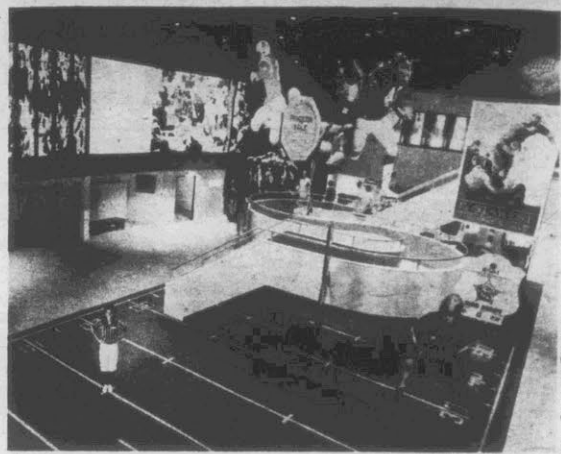

These were just two of the nearly half-million people who have visited the National Football Foundation's College Football Hall of Fame since it opened in August 1978. Located at King's Island Amusement Park outside Cincinnati, the Hall of Fame is not a stuffy old museum but a place that transforms visitors into participants in college football's fascinating history. Dramatic moments of the game are offered through lively exhibits and multimedia presentations.

Most of all the Hall of Fame is a buoyant celebration of America's love affair with college football. Within the Georgian brick building — designed to resemble a typical college-campus structure — is an inviting interior that enhances a marvelous collection of college football memorabilia and exciting electronic gadgetry. In two hours the visitor can move through a century of college football history.

Entering the main hall of the 33,000 square-foot building, visitors are directed to a staircase that leads to the lower-level exhibition floor. The focal point here is the "Time Tunnel" that takes them on a 30-minute trip through the development of football from ancient Greece to the modern era. One section is devoted to Walter Camp, who played for Yale as a 17-year-old in 1875, and later became known as the father of American football. There also are areas featuring Jim Thorpe, the Four Horsemen of Notre Dame and many other individuals and teams.

The College Football Hall of Fame pays particular attention to detail in its exhibits, as its Astrourfed main lobby indicates.

In the actual Hall of Fame room on the upper level of the exhibition hall, the 453 players and coaches enshrined from 1961 through 1978 are honored with photographs. New inductees are noted in a special display.

The room's design is strikingly simple — no cumbersome biographical material accompanies the exhibits. Such information is available at any one of four data-retrieval video-display terminals: A 250-word sketch on any of the Hall of Fame members can be "called up" and projected on a screen.

The $700,000 computer used to store the extensive biographical data is also used as the brain for a "strategy" game in which the skills of visitors in calling plays and defenses can be tested against decisions made by coaches in actual situations. Here's how it works:

In 1935 Notre Dame is playing Ohio State. It's OSU 13, Notre Dame 12. Only seconds remain and the Irish have the ball on the Ohio State 19, second down and 10. The arm-chair quarterbacks are given four options, one of which Coach Elmer Layden called to produce the winning touchdown.

Matching wits with Hall of Fame coaches is just one of several computer games that can be played. Five different quizzes are available, each with a different degree of difficulty.

Bill Schrader is editor of the Bloomington, Ind., Herald-Telephone.

Visitors get a chance to try their physical prowess, too, with a unique test of field goal kicking accuracy. There also are four theaters that provide cinematic insights into college football.

The idea of a College Football Hall of Fame was conceived 30 years ago by sportswriter Grantland Rice and World War II hero and football enthusiast Admiral Will (Bull) Halsey. The first plans were modest, and it was 10 years before any meaningful progress was made, with the formation of the National Football Foundation.

The Foundation set up the procedure for election of Hall of Fame members and started an annual banquet to honor members, but it became evident to Hall of Fame Chairman Vincent de Paul Draddy and President Dick Kazmaier that only a permanent Hall could focus adequate attention on the heroes of college football. The man selected to put the package together was Jack Wyant, a 33-year-old Hamilton, Ohio, native and assistant marketing director at King's Island.

"We wanted something that was educational and interesting, with the emphasis on family entertainment and participation," Wyant says.

First a history of football was prepared. Then Wyant went to Bob Taylor, set designer for Broadway plays, to make the written history come to life. Wyant traveled across the country collecting memorabilia — including everything from the football that was punted 115 yards in a Wake Forest game by Harry Rabenhorst to the equipment worn by Red Grange. The $6 million spent on the facility makes it the most expensive sports museum in the country.

"We've tried to capture the total college football experience," Wyant adds. "We want to recreate that electric feeling — the bonfires, the rallies, the big games — that has captured the nation's imagination for decades." FW

Introducing new Unisom®

A Different Generation Sleep Aid

Unisom is a unique and remarkably effective sleep aid for people who have occasional problems sleeping. In fact, we believe it's the biggest step taken in years in the development of sleep aids. The secret behind Unisom's effectiveness is our unique use of the ingredient, Doxylamine.

Fall asleep faster and sleep better all night.

In extensive clinical tests, Unisom was proven to help people fall asleep faster and sleep better all night.

23 minutes faster.

More specifically, Unisom was proven to help people fall asleep an average of 23 minutes faster.

Fewer wake-ups during the night with Unisom.

Once you get to sleep, the next major obstacle is staying asleep. After all, a few wake-ups during the night can make you feel like you haven't slept at all.

As this chart shows, people in these clinical tests who took Unisom experienced an average of half as many wake-ups as those who took a control tablet without Doxylamine.

NUMBER OF NIGHTTIME AWAKENINGS

Average per Subject per Night

Available without prescription at your favorite retail store.

All you need is one.

Unlike the two leading sleep aids, all you take is just one Unisom; it's that convenient and effective. With the others, you take a two tablet dose.

Doxylamine vs. Methapyrilene.

You will be glad to know that Unisom does not—and never has contained Methapyrilene, the ingredient which has been banned from all sleep aids.

You should know that Unisom is the first sleep aid with Doxylamine, and the only sleep aid with this ingredient. It is non narcotic and non-habit forming.

Proven effective and safe.

You don't have to worry about the effectiveness and safety of new Unisom. In three separate clinical studies, doctors measured the effectiveness of Unisom against a tablet without Doxylamine. Unisom was proven effective and safe when taken as directed.

Try new Unisom the next time you need to fall asleep faster and sleep better.

Taste a Triumph. Surprising satisfaction at only 3 mg. tar.

With new Flavor-Intensified™ Triumph, the taste comes through abundantly, the smoke reaches you smoothly, pack after pack.

If you've tried one of the very low tar cigarettes, and found you just couldn't stay with it, you'll understand why Triumph is quite an achievement. The first cigarette that gives you satisfying taste at only 3 mg. tar.

Smooth, easy draw.

With Triumph, even the draw is a surprise. There's none of the struggle you may have experienced in other very low tar brands. You don't have to pull—you just puff on Triumph. The pleasure is effortless.

No gimmicks, no miracles.

The crux of it: Instead of searching for some yet unimagined answer, Lorillard scientists decided to take a more sensible tack.

Why not, they said, take everything we've learned about cigarettes, and push that technology further than we've ever pushed it before.

Delivering taste, limiting tar.

We found that combining two types of filter fiber produces the best combination of taste and draw. That tiny "vents" in the rim of the filter work to smooth the taste. That lower-leaf tobaccos tend to be milder and lower in tar than those at the top of the plant.

In short, everything we could find that might intensify flavor at 3 mg. tar, was built into Triumph.

Taste you can stay with.

What it all comes down to is this: Triumph, at only 3 mg. tar, gives you a taste so satisfying, we believe you'll never want to go back to your old cigarette.

TRIUMPH.®

One of the lowest tar cigarettes you can smoke.
The one with taste enough to stay with.

What Do Your Verbal Slips Mean?

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. "Slips of the tongue" often give away innermost feelings that you may not even be consciously aware of.
2. How good you are at verbally expressing your own feelings is likely to depend on how good you are at understanding the feelings of others.
3. The manner in which you speak is more important than the words you use.
4. Social status can be indicated by your speech.
5. Women talk more than men but say less that is meaningful and leave both their thoughts and their sentences unfinished much of the time.
6. The "strong silent type" of male has a special fascination for women and has it over his more vocal brother when it comes to making points with a member of the opposite sex.

ANSWERS

1. True. In a study of the "slip-of-the-tongue" phenomenon at Bowling Green State University (Ohio), a team of behavioral scientists analyzed hundreds of actual slips committed by those whom the investigators observed. It was found that though some slips of the tongue may have nonpsychodynamic explanations, a slip in a specific situation may be significant. For instance, the stock broker who refers to his concerns with "stocks and blondes — uh I mean bonds . . ." may be revealing more about his personal affairs than he intends.
2. True. Studies at the University of Pittsburgh have demonstrated that people who are able to empathize also are adept at expressing their own feelings. The person who says, "I can't explain how I feel," isn't likely to understand how the other person feels, either.
3. True. The message conveyed by any word you speak depends entirely on the way you say it. For example, studies at the University of London show that "Much of the communication involved in speech goes on at a nonverbal level: how it is said rather than what is said. To take an extreme case: 'Yes' can be voiced to mean 'No' . . . Emotional tone is one of the most primitive aspects of speech: Animals convey their emotions by sounds, and so, in effect, do humans."
4. True. The ability of observers to judge social status of subjects accurately from speech qualities alone was evaluated by investigators from Brigham Young University and McGill University. Results: The judgments were found to be accurate in the majority of cases. The study demonstrated a marked ability of judges to discriminate white-collar workers as a group from blue-collar workers. Telltale speech characteristics included consonant articulation, sentence structure and the degree of sophistication of vocabulary. The investigators concluded: "It may well be that the reason blue-collar workers sound different from white-collar workers is that they want to, that they are aware of the other mode (of speaking) but prefer their own."

5. False. University of Melbourne studies, comparing the characteristics of male and female speech, show no support for the popular notion that women talk more, talk faster, leave more sentences unfinished or speak less rationally than men. Other investigations match these findings.

6. False. Purdue University researchers studied the reactions of women to two types of males: the taciturn, doesn't-say-much, Gary Cooper-style speaker; and the talkative type who lets the adjectives do the spade work for him. Results: The women showed a marked preference for the more voluble variety of male who puts his thoughts and feelings about the lady he's with into words — even if he's a bit clumsy at it.

Facts and Fiction About Low Blood Sugar

By Gloria Hochman

For six years, Elaine, a 34-year-old bookkeeper, was troubled by a number of physical problems: blinding headaches, fatigue, irritability, pains in her joints, heart palpitations and severe mood swings. During this time she consulted with 19 physicians. She was checked for allergies, ulcers, arthritis, cancer, lupus and arteriosclerosis. She had two brain scans and X-ray examinations of her chest, esophagus, kidneys, gallbladder and stomach.

After all the tests and examinations were completed, her doctors concluded that Elaine had no real physical problems. They referred her to a psychiatrist whom she visited weekly for a year. Still, her symptoms persisted.

Then, when Elaine was feeling totally discouraged, a friend suggested that she see her doctor for a glucose-tolerance test (a six-hour blood study that measures sugar levels). Results of the test revealed that Elaine was a victim of hypoglycemia (low blood sugar). The doctor felt that correction of this condition — which would involve a change in diet — could relieve her curious and troubling symptoms. Moreover, the doctor told her that millions of Americans are suffering from the same disorder, without knowing it.

Hypoglycemia, is a highly controversial medical condition. Some physicians, such as Herman Goodman of New York, who co-wrote (with nutrition expert Carlton Fredericks) the book, Low Blood Sugar and You, agree with Elaine's present doctor. They hold that this is a common condition, though one that's often misdiagnosed and mistreated. Hypoglycemia, Goodman believes, is responsible "for many patients being hospitalized on psychiatric couches when they should be vertical at lunch counters."

Other doctors — perhaps a majority — disagree. They acknowledge that hypoglycemia exists but insist that it is not common. Dr. Stanley N. Cohen, associate clinical professor of medicine and specialist in endocrinology at Philadelphia's Thomas Jefferson University Hospital, sums up the general feeling among this group: "A cult has grown up around the belief that many people have hypoglycemia and that it has been unrecognized or missed by physicians. Some clinics have taken it up as their pet project. But, actually, we don't see it very often."

What is hypoglycemia? Simply put, functional hypoglycemia (a case not produced by a serious organic problem, such as a tumor, an adrenal gland dysfunction or the taking of drugs like insulin) means that there is too little sugar in the blood. When a person ingests a meal too rich in sugars or starches (which convert to sugar), he or she experiences symptoms similar to those described by Elaine.

Many physicians believe that the condition occurs because the pancreas is over-responsive to sugar and, as a result, produces too much insulin (as opposed to diabetes, a disease in which too little is produced). Insulin, released into the bloodstream, lowers blood-sugar levels. Other doctors maintain that the cause of hypoglycemia is, in fact, uncertain.

Regardless of the exact cause, it is easy to determine whether a person is suffering from this disorder. In fact, Dr. Cohen says that people can generally get an idea themselves if they have it by eating a meal high in carbohydrates and sugar and noting whether symptoms (such as Elaine's, as well as dizziness, cold sweats, trembling) appear one-and-a-half to three hours later (the time it would take for the blood-sugar level to drop below normal). The symptoms last about 15 or 20 minutes, and, while the person may feel faint, he or she never loses consciousness.

A glucose tolerance test can usually confirm the diagnosis. The test works this way: For three days, the patient eats a high-carbohydrate diet. On the fourth day (while the subject is in a fasting state), a blood sample is taken, and the sugar level is tested. Then, the patient drinks a high-sugar liquid. Every hour thereafter, for five or six hours, blood samples are drawn and checked for sugar levels. In the hypoglycemic patient, the blood sugar does not increase at the normal rate, and sometimes the initial rise (after swallowing the high-sugar liquid) is followed by a fall to below-fasting levels.

If the test indicates that the patient suffers from hypoglycemia, the treatment is simple — a change in diet. Though it might seem that the logical way to raise low blood sugar would be to eat more sugars and starches, this is actually the most damaging thing a person with hypoglycemia can do. Ingestion of sugars or starches may trigger the pancreas to produce more insulin which will then depress blood sugar even more.

Proper treatment calls for a diet low in sugar and starch and high in fats and proteins. Lean meat, fish, poultry, fruit and vegetables such as string beans, lettuce, tomatoes and asparagus are permissible. Starchy and sugary foods, such as candy, cake, pie, crackers, pastas and canned fruits loaded with sugar must be avoided. So must alcoholic beverages, soft drinks and other drinks made with corn syrup or glucose. Hypoglycemia cannot be treated with drugs or injections.

Doctors do warn that people not jump to any conclusions about symptoms. "The problem with all this publicity about hypoglycemia," says Dr. Cohen, "is that many people who feel fatigued, nervous, irritable and jumpy think they have it. Most of them do not. Their problems may be caused by other reasons relating to unhappiness with their lifestyle." If you think you may have hypoglycemia, you should consult with your physician. FW

With Ann Landers for a Mother-In-Law, and a Hit TV Show, Ken Howard Has No Problems

By Nina Norman

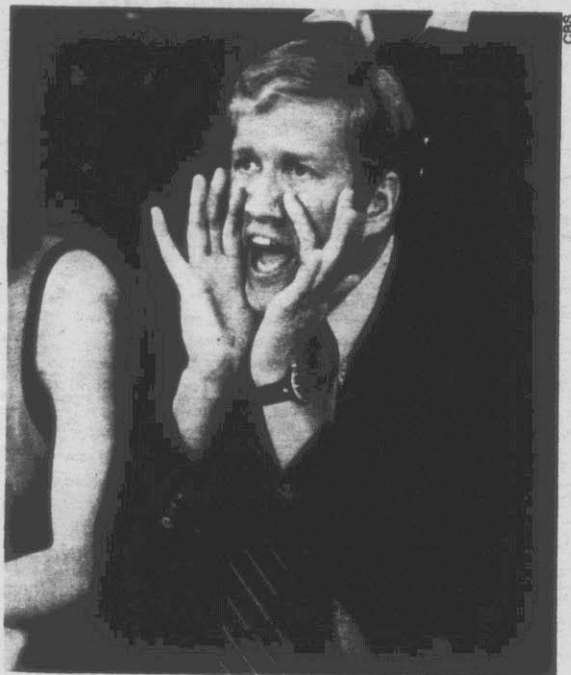

Not everyone will agree, but Ken Howard believes he married into the ideal family. His mother-in-law is Ann Landers. Her twin, Abigail Van Buren, also gives advice. But Howard has not sought counsel from either since his marriage two-and-a-half years ago to Ann's daughter, Margo.

There has been no need. Howard is the 6' 6" blond basketball coach on CBS's The White Shadow series. If one is seeking a totally happy individual, here he is. To be sure, his is a newfound happiness: It began with this, his second marriage: it was compounded with the start and success of the TV series last winter. Now he says, "About the only thing I'm not happy with these days is driving the freeway to work. I haven't always been the happiest actor in the world. I am now, and if all I have to complain about is a freeway, I'm pretty lucky."

Now 35, he never "starved" while waiting for fame and fortune, but he admits to weeping in his dressing room due to frustration with some of the parts he's played. Considering the odds against a TV series becoming successful, Howard is superbly appreciative of his state in life.

"I used to fantasize about what would make me happy. Finally, one dream came true — this," he gestures around the cavernous stage 17 at the CBS Studio Center. "See this basketball court? It cost $50,000 to build. It's an exact copy of the one at North Hollywood High School, where we shot the pilot."

A basketball star in high school, Howard conceived the series' idea along with his close friend, Bruce Paltrow, who is married to actress Blythe Danner (with whom Howard has starred in films and TV). Paltrow is officially credited with originating and developing the series. He is now its executive producer. "Bruce and I have known each other for 20 years; we went to rival high schools. I brought the idea of a high-school basketball coach to Ken Howard: These days he has a lot to shout about.

Bruce, and he created the world of Carver High.

"We worked out all the details for the series on the back of a napkin at a restaurant in Williamsport, Mass., and when the deals were being worked out with MTM Productions and CBS, Bruce would quietly and stubbornly say, 'I can't make those changes. That wasn't what we wrote on the back of the napkin.'"

Howard makes it sound funny. It wasn't. Both men had worked in TV long enough to spot danger signs in compromises. "MTM and CBS have been creatively supportive," he says, "but we knew between ourselves that we'd have to be quite stubborn."

To begin with, they had to sell the concept of the show. "Everybody told us that sports shows hadn't worked on TV because nobody believed the sport. It was always rinkydink. Because I understand basketball, I knew this show would be right for television. And having said that, we should now hold our breath," he adds.

"Critically, I feel the show is awfully good. We're serving as role models for kids in their teens. When Margo and I travel around the country, we get lots of recognition. I'm told by people, 'Keep it up. We really like it.' 'And yes,' he continues, "all the kids are athletic."

The kids to whom he refers are the young actors on the team at Carver High School, the fictional school in the series, which supposedly has 5,000 students from Los Angeles' inner city. It is racially mixed, with all the pressures inherent in today's schools. The show's format, however, provides for some funny moments as well as the telling of truths.

Howard genuinely loves all the kids on the team. How did they win their parts? Another story he delights in telling:

"Bruce would audition kids, and then we'd go play basketball." The youngsters' prowess at the game was as important as their acting ability. But all of them came to the series with good backgrounds.

So did Howard. He was born in El Centro, Calif., near San Diego, while his father was stationed there during World War II. His parents later returned home to Long Island, where Ken grew up. Show business was a part of his life ever since he can remember.

"My parents and I sang in the church choir of the Congregational Church of Manhasset. I appeared in school plays. I studied pre-med at Amherst College, then I thought I'd be a lawyer. But when I got a fellowship to the Yale Drama School, it seemed like an itch I ought to scratch. I never looked back."

There was first a walk-on part in the Broadway musical, Promises, Promises. He then starred as Thomas Jefferson in 1776, for which he won a Theatre World award. His first movie was with Liza Minnelli: Tell Me That You Love Me, Junie Moon. In 1970 he won a Tony award for his supporting role in Child's Play. Four years later, he and Blythe Danner co-starred in the short-lived TV series, Adam's Rib. Other credits include the movies Such Good Friends and 1776, and the hit Broadway show, Seesaw.

His personal life wasn't always equally rewarding. "I'd been married for a couple of years to an actress, Louise Sorel. It didn't work, so we divorced. I went into therapy and that worked. There was a period of being alone, of self-analysis. It was a growing-up time: it came late — I was 30."

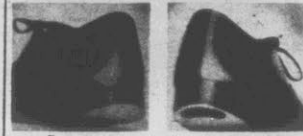

Then when he was in Chicago appearing in the play Equus, things began to change. "A columnist from the Chicago Daily News came to interview me," says Howard. "We started talking, we started dating and then we got married!"

With Margo came her ready-made family of three kids from a previous marriage: daughter Abra, now 16, Adam, 13, and daughter Cricket, 12. They live happily in a home not far from the beach. The children delight in their stepfather's success.

What are Ken Howard's plans for the future? He has suggested some story lines for the series. He wants to direct, but not himself. "I'm too self-involved, I think. In about 20 years I'll produce. I've started that process now with this show. I have my foot in the door, and I learn each day. Eventually I'd like to teach a course in show business."

"But right now, this is my dream role. I have no desire to play Hamlet. My dream house is the one we're living in. I'll stay with this series as long as it lasts. That's what life is all about — staying with it as long as it lasts."

Plain and Fancy Ways with Fall Fruits

Apples, pears, grapes and plums are in our markets now for you to enjoy out-of-hand or in a cooked dish, adding their own particular color and flavor to a fall dinner.

By Marilyn Hansen

FRESH APPLE BUTTER

- 6 lbs. tart apples or pears
- 3 cups water
- Sugar

- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
  - 1/2 teaspoon ground cloves
1. Cut apples into quarters. Do not core, peel or seed. Cover and cook in water 30 to 45 minutes or until tender.
  2. Put apples and liquid through sieve or food mill. Measure apple pulp. For each cup of apple pulp, mix in 1/2 cup sugar. Mix in cinnamon and cloves.
  3. Turn into kettle or Dutch oven. Cook and stir over medium heat until sugar dissolves.
  4. Cook, uncovered, over low heat, stirring occasionally, until mixture is thick and smooth when a little is spooned onto a cold plate. Cooking time is approximately 1 1/2 to 2 hours.
  5. Ladle into hot, clean canning jars to within 1/8-inch of tops. Wipe jar rim and threads clean. Adjust caps securely.
  6. Place jars on rack in canner. Process 10 minutes in boiling-water bath with boiling water 2 inches above jar caps.
  7. Remove jars from canner onto newspapers or towels. Store in a cool, dark place. Great with cream cheese on whole wheat bread.

Makes 5 pints

GREAT GRAPE HAM STEAK

- 1-inch fully cooked smoked ham slice (1 1/2 lbs.)
- 1 cup water
- 1/2 cup golden rum
- 1/4 cup honey
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1/4 teaspoon ground allspice
- 2 cups halved and seeded Ribier or Tokay grapes or seedless Flame grapes
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice

1. Place ham steak in baking dish; pierce in several places with a fork.
2. Combine water, rum, honey, salt, pepper and allspice; stir in grapes. Pour over ham. Bake in 350°F. oven for 45 minutes, basting frequently with sauce.
3. Remove ham from baking dish. Pour sauce into saucepan. Blend cornstarch with lemon juice; stir into sauce and cook, stirring constantly, until sauce thickens and comes to a boil. Serve with ham.

Makes 6 servings

Editor's note: May also be made in an electric skillet to save energy.

CHICKEN VERONIQUE

- 1 broiler-fryer chicken (2 1/2 to 3 lbs.) cut into serving pieces
- 1/4 cup flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon ground white pepper
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
- 1/2 cup dry white wine
- 1/2 cup chicken broth
- 1/2 cup sour cream
- 2 cups seedless green grapes
- Few twists freshly ground black pepper

1. Coat chicken with flour, salt and pepper in a small bag; reserve remaining flour.
2. Heat butter in skillet; add chicken and brown on all sides. Remove chicken from skillet and set aside.
3. Add onion and mushrooms to skillet; cook until tender. Stir in reserved seasoned flour; add wine and chicken broth; cook until thickened. Return chicken pieces.
4. Cover all and simmer 20 minutes or until chicken is tender. Remove chicken to serving platter.
5. Add sour cream to sauce in skillet; heat but do not boil. Add grapes and pepper; warm slightly and pour over chicken pieces.

PORK CHOPS WITH FRESH PLUM SAUCE

- 4 pork chops (2 1/2 lbs.)
- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- Salt
- Freshly ground black pepper
- 2 cups sliced fresh plums
- 2 tablespoons honey
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon soy sauce
- 1 clove garlic, crushed

1. Brown pork chops in skillet in hot oil. When chops are brown on both sides, arrange in a shallow baking dish. Sprinkle chops with 1/4 teaspoon salt and a few twists freshly ground black pepper.
2. Bake in preheated 350°F. oven for 30 minutes.
3. In small saucepan, combine plums, honey, lemon juice, soy sauce and garlic. Cook over low heat, stirring until mixture boils. Reduce heat and simmer 3 minutes, uncovered.
4. Pour sauce over pork chops and continue baking for 15 to 20 minutes longer or until chops are tender. Nice served with hot, cooked brown rice.

Makes 4 servings
Editor's note: May also be made in an electric skillet to save energy.

Curing Your Cold

Colds send most of us to the doctor at least once a year, but a little common sense and reassurance are often the best antidotes to those familiar symptoms, as a program at the University of Massachusetts Health Center in Amherst is proving.

Because so many of the 500 or so walk-in patients who arrive at the facility daily have nothing more than colds, the Health Center began a Cold Self-Care Center to help their patients determine whether they need professional care, and if not, what they can do to help themselves. The patient looks up his or her symptoms on a checklist and, if those symptoms are judged serious, proceeds to see a nurse practitioner. If the symptoms aren't serious, home remedies and over-the-counter medications are listed.

"We want people to be able to care for themselves," says Barry Averill, the Health Service's executive director. "If a person wants to talk his problem over with a professional, if he wants reassurance, he can certainly check in. But this way, you know you won't have to wait, and you get satisfaction out of knowing that you can pinpoint your own symptoms. Next time you can treat yourself without having to make a trip."

Buying Knowledge

Once upon a time, in 1531 to be exact, the encyclopedia was a book intended to "render superfluous the need to consult any other books." Life has indeed changed since Sir Thomas Elyot wrote the first English encyclopedic work, so much so that encyclopedia publishers must be a bit more modest about their goals. Consequently, some encyclopedias and their subject matter differ greatly.

Making Connections

Thomas Edison is generally credited with inventing the light bulb, and James Watt has gone down in history for having given us the steam engine. "However," as James Burke points out in Connections, a Public Broadcasting System series beginning on Sept. 30, "most people who are credited with inventing things didn't. When you invent something you've got to use materials that already exist, so great people have always relied on the inventions of the little guy. All that the greats have done is fit bits and pieces together."

An articulate Englishman, Burke, who admits that he loves "teaching people," spent nearly two years researching Connections. Both the television series and the recently issued book of the same name explore the relationship of culture, science and technology in the lives of ordinary people. Each program traces the unexpected and sometimes bizarre chain of discoveries and inventions that have paved the way to such modern necessities as the telephone, the airplane and television.

For those who grumble that technology has altered our lives for the worse, Burke replies that "I'm not a starry-eyed idealist, but the technology we live with every day is really a life-support system. Most of us wouldn't survive long if we went back to the stick plow. Science and technology make the mechanics of life easier and release us to become more responsible individuals."

Burke sees the series and the book as new tools for teaching history. "I'd love the book to be used as a textbook," he says. "Students often have a hard time seeing the links between science and art because history is taught as if it went in a straight line. Believe me, it doesn't."

If you're considering investing in an encyclopedia, you might take a look at "Purchasing an Encyclopedia: 12 Points to Consider," a 38-page booklet that surveys 20 encyclopedias and judges them in 12 areas. The booklet is available by sending two dollars by check or money order to the Order Department, Dept. F, American Library Association, 50 East Huron St., Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Discovering Philately

Stamp-collecting is no longer just child's play; big money changes hands when stamps are bought and sold these days. Recently Stanley Gibbons International, a firm of stamp dealers based in London, paid more than $10 million for a collection of U.S. stamps and covers. (Covers are what stamp collectors call envelopes or folded letters with stamps on them.) Included in the collection was the cover above, signed by Thomas Jefferson. It features only a postmark because the President does not have pay for postage.

However, stamp-collecting, or philately, as those who do it call it, doesn't necessarily require that you have money to burn. "Stamps are going through a boom period, but money isn't really necessary to start a stamp collection," stresses Richard Debney, a Gibbons representative and a philatelist himself. "You can buy stamps or covers with cancellations on them for $5 or $10. Keep in mind that the quality of the engraving and the stamp's rarity, charm and age all combine to make it valuable."

Since stamps are a fairly recent invention, classic period stamps, those issued between 1840 and 1870, are usually the most sought after. But stamps can be just plain fun to collect, whatever their worth. According to U.S. Post Office estimates, there are 20,000,000 philatelists in this country. Want to join the crowd?

Lifestyles

Medicine. Scientists in China recently reported that gossypol, an extract from the roots, stems and seeds of the cotton plant, has some potential as a contraceptive for men. According to a report in the New England Journal of Medicine, gossypol suppresses sperm count to below contraceptive levels, and it's 99.89-percent effective. Why gossypol works is still under investigation, but apparently it doesn't alter hormone levels and its contraceptive effect seems to be reversible.

Pain. If fall means a lot of lifting chores, you are probably well acquainted with lower back pain. In many cases, says orthopedist Jack Andrich in the Physician and Sports-medicine, stopping the activity will end the pain. It may be severe enough to warrant seeing a doctor, but usually bed rest combined with an ice pack, analgesics or antiinflammatory drugs will take care of the problem.

Television. One Oct. 1, Musical Comedy Tonight, a 90-minute overview of the history of American musical comedy will air on Public Broadcasting System stations. Written, produced and hosted by Sylvia Fine Kaye, the show stars Ethel Merman, Carol Burnett, Sandy Duncan, Richard Chamberlain and Rock Hudson in scenes from Good News, Anything Goes, Oklahoma and Company. Check local listings for the correct time.

For over 200 years, the old idea of the encyclopaedia remained the same. But now, to meet the demands of our changing world with its vast amounts of information... now, there is Britannica 3. This is a completely re-designed encyclopaedia. It is written in clear, readable language... the language of today... so that even the most complex subjects become much easier for your children to understand.

What makes Britannica 3 unique?

New Britannica 3 is more than an encyclopaedia. It's a revolutionary Home Learning Center... America's only encyclopaedia arranged into three distinct parts.

1. The 10-Volume Ready Reference lets you get at facts, quickly and easily. Ideal for homework.
2. The 19 Volumes of Knowledge in Depth for readers who want to explore entire fields of learning.
3. The One-Volume Outline of Knowledge—your guide to the entire encyclopaedia... permits you to plan your own course of study on any subject under the sun.

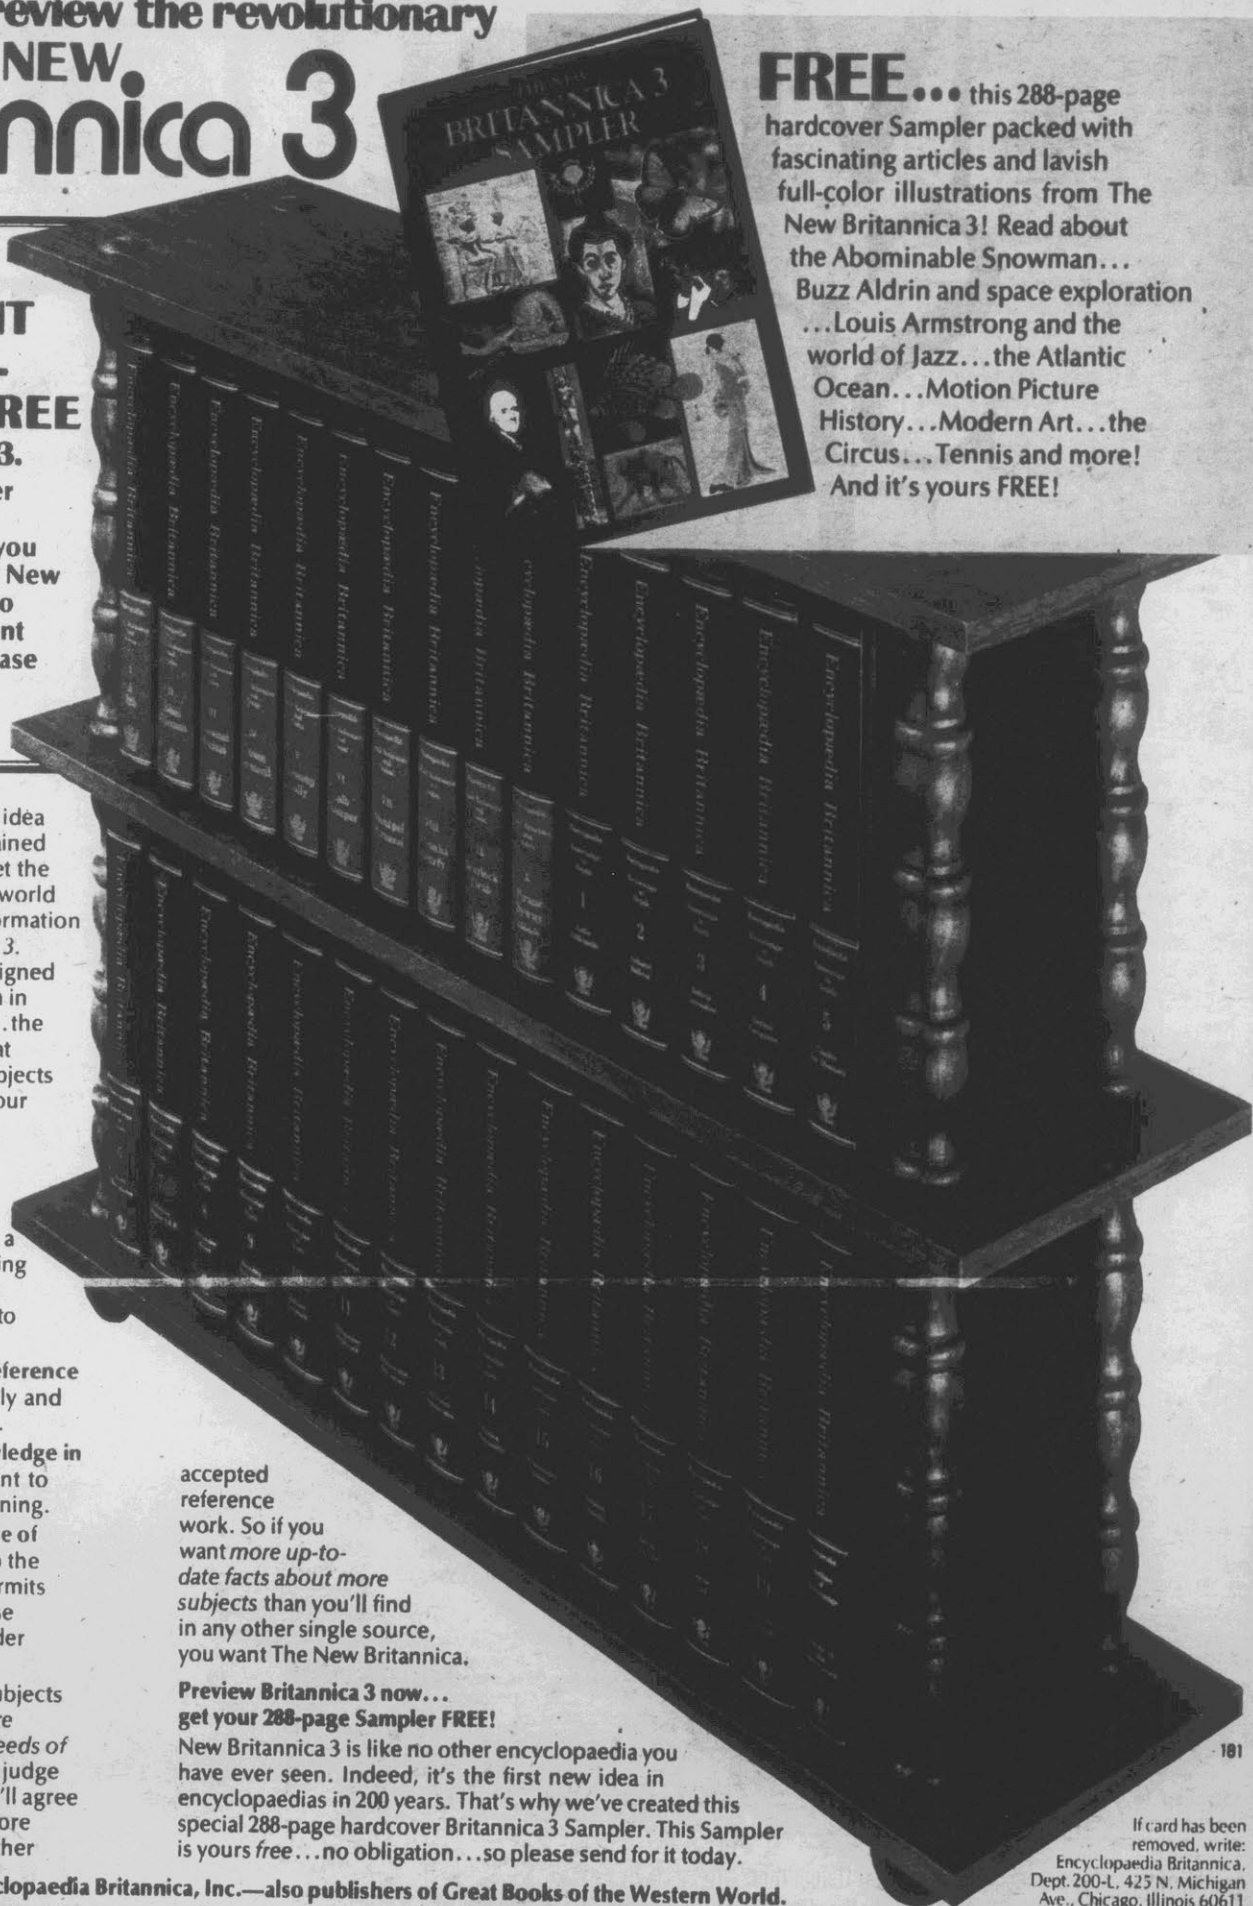

Britannica 3 covers more subjects more completely. It is more responsive to the current needs of your family. And when you judge by its 43 million words, you'll agree that Britannica 3 delivers more value per dollar than any other accepted reference work. So if you want more up-to-date facts about more subjects than you'll find in any other single source, you want The New Britannica.

THE POETRY CLUB LOVED THIS POEM, "HOW LONG THE HOURS SEEM, WHEN I AM FAR FROM MY DREAM.."

WHO WROTE THAT SENTIMENTAL DRIVEL?

YOU DID, FRED ANDREWS, BEFORE WE WERE MARRIED!

I'VE BEEN CHOSEN TO ENTERTAIN OUR POETRY CLUB'S GUEST SPEAKER, THE FAMOUS POET, SONNET MCBONNET! TOMORROW!

TOMORROW? THE BIG GAME IS TOMORROW - WE'VE WAITED ALL SEASON FOR THIS ONE!

THERE'S TOO MUCH EMPHASIS ON SPORTS IN THIS HOUSE. AN INTELLECTUAL CONVERSATION WILL BE A PLEASANT CHANGE TO SAY THE LEAST!

RIGHT - THE LESS SAID ABOUT IT, THE BETTER!

NEXT DAY - AH, MISS MCBONNET, HOW NICE OF YOU TO COME! A PLEASURE BEYOND MEASURE!

...WHAT A DELIGHTFUL TIME -- ER -- SPEAKING OF TIME -- WHAT IS THE HOUR?

OH - 2:30! ALMOST DID YOU SAY, GAME TIME? ISN'T IT?

KILL THE UMPIRE!! WHAT A DELIGHTFUL LITERARY DISCUSSION, EH, MARY?

DITTO! IT'S TIME TO GO TO RALPHIE'S FOR YOUR SLEEP-OUT. DO YOU HAVE EVERYTHING?

ALMOST...

BYE, DAD, I'M SLEEPING OUT OVER AT RALPHIE'S TONIGHT

DON'T YOU WANT TO TAKE MY FLASHLIGHT, DITTO?

DITTO'S GROWING UP. HE USED TO BE AFRAID OF THE DARK

DITTO, WHAT HAPPENED? THE SLEEP-OUT IS OFF!
