Greenville Voters To Polls Tomorrow

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Greenville voters will have a slate of three mayoral aspirants and 13 City Council candidates to choose from when they visit the polls for Tuesday's municipal election.

Voters tomorrow will receive one ballot containing the names of all 16 municipal candidates and ballot instructions will stipulate that one vote may be marked for a mayoral choice and six Council candidates may be chosen.

Appearing on the "For Mayor" segment of the ballot will be Donald C. (Don) McGlohon, Mildred T. (Millie) McGrath, and Elizabeth E. Savage. Mrs. McGrath is a current member of the City Council, while McGlohon and Mrs. Savage are seeking their first municipal offices.

The 13 candidates seeking to fill the six available City Council seats are Edward E. (Ed) Carter, Louis E. Clark, W. E. (Bill) Dansey, Clarence Gray, Judy W. Greene, William J. (Bill) Hadden Jr., Earl E. (Ed) Howell, Robert David Hunt Jr., Richard J. (Dick) McKee, Gretchen W. Skinner, Henry E.

(Ed) Stallings, Joseph M. Taft Jr., and Ray Milton Whittington. Gray, Mrs. Greene and Taft are incumbents who are seeking re-election.

Barring a write-in situation, the city will elect a new mayor in view of present Mayor Percy Cox's decision not to seek re-election to his third term.

Three new Council members will be elected unless a write-in situation develops as Greenville faces the unusual task of replacing three office holders who chose not to run for new Council terms. Vacating their Council seats were John Howard, Charles Vincent and Mrs. McGrath, who hopes to remain on the governing board but in the capacity of mayor.

The top person in the balloting for mayor and the top six in the Council voting must receive clear majorities tomorrow or face the possibility of a run-off. If a run-off is necessary, it will be conducted on Nov. 6.

Greenville polls will open at 6:30 a.m. Tuesday and close at 7:30 p.m. Curbside voting for persons who are unable to enter the polling sites is allowed from 7 a.m. until 6 p.m.

FORCED REMOVAL — After penetrating the Seabrook (N.H.) nuclear power plant construction site more than 500 anti-nuclear protesters are driven back and off the site by police and national guardsmen Sunday afternoon. (AP Laserphoto)

Nuclear Plant Site Scene Of Protester's Violence

SEABROOK, N.H. (AP) — After two days of assaults on the fences at the Seabrook nuclear power plant, protesters who battled police dogs, high-pressure water hoses and tear gas still found themselves on the outside looking in.

Most of the 1,500 anti-nuclear demonstrators who tried to occupy the grounds of the plant, which is under construction, had left by today, police said. About 150 picketed peacefully in front of the main gate, vowing to stay "as long as it takes" to halt construction.

The protesters apparently were trying to keep vehicles and people from entering the construction site, but construction workers had the day off for Columbus Day. State police, who repulsed numerous assaults by the protesters over the weekend, stood inside the gate.

Police estimated between 350 and 700 of the demonstrators remained in the area.

"We don't really enjoy being Maced, clubbed and sleeping on the pavement, but we are just trying to prove a point," said demonstrator Benjamin Collins of Gloucester, Mass., who slept outside the gate Sunday night. "We are willing to go through hell."

In the strongest show of force in five years of anti-Seabrook demonstrations, state troopers and National Guardsmen repulsed the attempts Saturday and Sunday by as many as 1,500 demonstrators with tear gas, water hoses, riot sticks and police dogs.

However, only 20 persons were arrested, compared to 1,414 during a protest in 1977.

Farmville Holds Vote Tomorrow

FARMVILLE — Farmville citizens go to the polls tomorrow to elect a mayor and three town commissioners.

Linwood Mercer and Moses W. Moye are the mayoral candidates. Farmville's mayor is elected for a two-year term.

Commissioner candidates are Robert L. "Bob" Crocker, Robert L. "Bobby" Evans, W. Charles Joyner, Joe Kue, Oliver Murphrey and John T. Walston. Walston is the only incumbent. Farmville commissioners serve four-year terms.

Voting takes place in the North Main Street fire station between 6:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Don Johnson is the registrar.

If needed, a runoff will be held Tuesday, Nov. 6.

Mayor Sara Albritton is not seeking re-election. Neither are W. R. Duke and Jack Farrow, commissioners whose terms expire in December.

Federal Reserve Bolsters Dollar, Cuts Gold Prices

By GLENN RITT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fresh anti-inflation initiatives by the Federal Reserve Board over the weekend strengthened the dollar on world money markets today and produced a sharp drop in the price of gold.

Gold, which had closed at $385.50 in London and Zurich Friday, was quoted today at $376.75 in London and $375.50 in Zurich. The U.S. dollar rose in value against all major European currencies in early trading.

Both developments were the intended results of actions taken Saturday by the Federal Reserve, whose chairman strongly warned against any tax cut to stimulate a U.S. economy which is showing signs of slowing down.

"This is not the time for a tax reduction," board chairman Paul Volcker declared after the board raised its bank lending rate to a record 12 percent.

Volcker said recent events "fully underscore the wisdom" of the Carter administration's continued opposition to a cut in taxes.

Many economists believe a tax cut of at least $20 billion would stimulate investment, revive sagging spending and compensate for income lost to inflation.

However, the board is more alarmed by soaring wholesale prices, hyperactive speculation in gold and the dollar, and excessive borrowing.

In addition to raising the bank lending rate a full percentage point late Saturday, the board altered the way it controls the availability of credit in a further effort to gain more direct control over the money supply.

The moves, quickly and enthusiastically endorsed by President Carter, should further slow economic expansion by making it more difficult for banks to lend and thus more expensive for people to borrow.

The first impact normally would be on business borrowing, but Volcker said the moves will not shut off credit entirely. "What we want to get at is the froth," he said.

The board's weekend actions were a direct reaction to events of the past two weeks: wild speculation in gold and a sharp drop in the value of the dollar to a level nearly as low as last fall, when the last major dollar rescue plan was launched.

Admonitions And Ideals From Pope

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pope John Paul II, who quickened the heart of a nation and shed his own grace on it, has left among its people a trail of proclaimed ideals and stiff admonitions. He also got a parting challenge to ponder.

It came from women on the final day Sunday of his joy-splangled journey through America, crowned with an outdoor celebration of worship by 175,000 in front of the U.S. Capitol. The women's plea injected a lingering drama, along with the afterglow.

To the sturdy, companionable pope — who championed human rights both in the past under Nazism and Communism in Poland and to the multitudes and mighty on his U.S. tour — the women asked first-hand for their full rights in the church.

Sister Theresa Kane, the leading official of the country's 128,378 nuns, appealed in a formal, public gathering of many of them for the "possibility of women being included in all ministries of the church," which includes the priesthood.

As she spoke, the seated pope spread his hands as if to say, "What can we do?" But he didn't respond directly a few minutes later when he addressed about 4,000 nuns packing the huge, ornate National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception.

Some of the nuns — a handful at first, gradually increasing to about 50 — stood in silent petition during his talk, wearing blue arm bands, the color of Mary, mother of Jesus. Some said Mary was free to answer God's call to bear his son, but Catholic women today aren't free to answer a divine call to full ministry.

The pope earlier had made his own stand clear, saying Mary was "not herself inserted into the hierarchical" makeup of the church. He had told priests earlier in Philadelphia that Jesus' summoning of men as apostles undergirded the church's "traditional decision...not to call women."

But Sister Kane of Washington, president of the Leadership Conference of Women Religious, which includes heads of all nuns' communities in the country, appealed to him to "listen with compassion" and respond to the women's plea to be "fully participating members."

She wore a tasteful brown suit and about a third of the nuns present also wore regular women's dress, a style the pope in his address advised against, saying they should wear distinctive religious garb.

It was a polite but straightforward confrontation on an issue that would simmer in the times ahead. So also would the pope's injunction against

UNC-CH OR UNIVERSITY SYSTEM?

In a real estate course, I heard that all unclaimed bank accounts and abandoned property are eventually turned over to the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill — not to the university system. Surely this must be an error! If the law refers to the "old" university, some legislators would certainly work to get it changed. I hope this is just misinformation.

You were misinformed. Spokesmen in the State Treasurer's escheat office said that prior to July 1971 all abandoned or escheated property went into a fund for use by all UNC campuses.

Since that time an Escheat Fund operated by the Department of State Treasurer receives and invests all property. Income from the fund is then remitted to the State Education Assistance Authority for use in making insured loans to students attending state supported universities, community colleges and technical institutes.

As of June 30, 1979, the Escheat Fund totaled $13.8 million. The fund collected $2.4 million during the year which ended June 30, and disbursed $928,574 to SEAA during the same period.

The UNC system still maintains some $5 million in funds collected prior to June 30, 1971.

TARBORO, N.C. (AP) — Union insistence on an automatic cost-of-living wage adjustment and company refusal to consider one was the issue that precipitated strike last Monday by 50 to 75 percent of Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co. workers.

Leaders of the Communications Workers of America local union have indicated they will not return to the bargaining table unless a cost-of-living clause is included in the contract.

"We believe if we can cross that one hurdle (a cost-of-living provision), there are no other issues that can't be ironed out easily," said Delbert Gordon, union bargaining chief.

But the company is adamant in its refusal to consider the cost-of-living adjustment.

"We believe the cost-of-living adjustment is unwise fundamentally," said CT&T Vice President T.P. Williamson "It is not in the interest of the company or its subscribers to be tied to a national figure."

So, there is no apparent end in sight for the strike which has been marked by heckling, vandalism and minor assaults which have resulted in arrests being made on both sides.

Sources say the company has offered the workers a package that would mean $15 million in wage and benefit raises during the three-year-life of the proposed contract. The package includes:

—A 10 percent wage hike the first year and 9 percent boosts the following two years.

—An additional holiday — George Washington's birthday — that would bring the number of paid holidays to 11.

—A dental plan, beginning the second year of the contract, in which the company would pay 60 percent of the cost.

—An improved hospital and sickness plan under which the company's participation would increase from 70 to 80 percent the first year, to 85 percent the second year and to 90 percent the third year.

—A $2,000 increase in the amount of company-paid life insurance.

—An increase in the mileage allowance from 14 cents to 18 cents the first year and 20 cents the third year.

—Shortened eligibility time for a third week of vacation.

Gordon said the proposed package was acceptable providing the cost-of-living adjustment, based on a formula proposed by the union, was included to begin the second year of the contract.

Although both sides agree CT&T workers are well paid, Gordon says their pay is somewhat lower than Southern Bell Co. workers and he noted that Southern Bell does have a cost-of-living clause in its contract with the union and that United Telephone System, of which CT&T is a part, is the only major telephone system without automatic cost-of-living increases.

MRS. RANDY LEE GARRIS

Miss Bowen Weds Mr. Garris

Miss Brenda Sue Bowen and Randy Lee Garris were united in marriage at 3 p.m. Sunday in Calvary Baptist Church. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Bobby G. Thomas.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mack Bowen Jr. and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Lee Garris, all of Greenville.

A program of music was provided by the pianist, Betty Jean Hines, cousin of the bride. Pat and Diane Mooring of Farmville were singers — Pat sang "If" and Diane sang "More". Both sang "The Wedding Prayer" and "You Light Up My Life" was sung after the couple lighted the unity candle.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white satin peau over peau de soie. The neckline was scooped and the bodice was covered with sequins and seed pearls. The skirt was gathered with sequins and seed pearls. The skirt was gathered at the waistline with five tiers trimmed with Venise lace extending into a chapel train. Its sleeves were puffed with a fitted wrist band trimmed with sequins and seed pearls. Her headpiece was a capulet overlaid with Venise lace and seed pearls which flowed into a brush train of silk illusion bordered with matching lace.

She carried a bouquet of white roses, ivy, miniature carnations in a cloud of gypsophelia.

Jeannette O'Mary, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. She wore a blue floor length dress with a square neckline trimmed with matching lace, empire waist accented with blue ribbon and a bow in front. The sleeves were short with gathers and banded to fit.

Bridesmaids were Cathy Bowen, sister of the bride, Brenda Roebuck, Judy and Donna Garris, sisters of the bridegroom. They wore rose colored dresses identical to the matron of honor's.

Lisa O'Mary, niece of the bride, and Karen Baker of Greenville were junior bridesmaids. They wore yellow dresses identical to the honor attendant's.

The attendants each carried a nosegay with poms, miniature carnations of pink, blue and yellow, gypsophelia, and fern with white streamers.

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

Add a winter wonderland look to your Christmas tree with these crocheted golden bells, silvery angels and frosty white snowflakes, all designed to be made from cotton crochet thread.

To obtain directions for making the crocheted ornaments, send your request for Leaflet No. C-1079 with $1.00 and a long, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler, "The Daily Reflector," P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or, you may order Kit No. K-1079 by sending check or money order for 11.50 to Pat Trexler at the same address. Each kit contains sufficient yarn in white, gold and silver to make three to four dozen ornaments. The instruction leaflet is included, as well as postage and handling charges.

Your crochet hooks and knitting needles can be a big help in winning the battle with inflation. Christmas gifts and decorations can often be made from leftover yarns. Even if you hold down a full-time job as office worker or busy mother you might be surprised at how much you can accomplish with a couple of hours each evening and some weekend afternoons.

Crocheted stars are pretty on a Christmas tree or as decorations on packages. You can make them from fine baby yarns or cotton crochet thread, using a steel crochet hook. I would suggest a size 5 or 6 hook for these.

To begin, chain 5 stitches and join with a slip stitch to form a ring. Next, chain 2 and work 14 half-double crochets in the ring, joining with a slip stitch in the top of the chain made at the beginning of this round.

For the next round, work as follows: (Chain 7, slip stitch in the second chain from the hook, work a single crochet in the next chain, a half-double crochet in the next chain, a double crochet in each of the next two chains and a treble crochet in the last chain; skip two half-double crochets of the previous round and slip stitch in the next half-double crochet.) Repeat the steps between parentheses four times more and you will have a five-pointed star.

For those of you who only know how to work single and double crochet, here are instructions for making the other two stitches used.

To make a half-double crochet, wrap yarn once around the hook (yarn-over), draw up a loop through the stitch, yarnover and draw hook through all three loops on the hook at one time.

To make a treble crochet, wrap the yarn twice around the hook before inserting the hook into the next stitch. Yarnover and draw yarn through stitch. There are now four loops on the hook. Yarn-over and draw through two loops. Repeat this last step twice more and the treble crochet is complete.

While snowy white stars are exquisite on a green tree, you can make them in any color. Try some in metallic yarn for a special touch of glitter.

If you make them from crochet cotton, you may want to starch them. You can use spray starch, but they will have more body if you use a heavy solution of boiled starch.

In the coming weeks, I will share with you many ideas to save money on your holiday preparations.

Because of the large volume of mail she receives, Pat is unable to answer your letters personally. However, she welcomes all questions and hints and will use those of general interest in the column whenever possible.

District 30 Nurses To Meet

Life Worth Three Minutes?

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR READERS: It's Fire Prevention Week again, and I have had so many requests to repeat my column on fire prevention that it has become a tradition. So here it is, with updated figures:

Last year, 10,500 Americans perished and nearly 34,000 civilians, plus 100,000 firemen, were seriously injured in more than 3.5 million fires. In Canada, 811 deaths were caused by 74,043 fires.

A large percentage of the dead were children, elderly persons and invalids who had been left alone "for just a few minutes."

The chief causes of fires, in order of the toll taken, were:

1. Smoking
2. Electrical wiring
3. Heating and cooking equipment
4. Children playing with matches
5. Open flames and sparks
6. Flammable liquids
7. Suspected arson
8. Chimneys and flues
9. Lighting
10. Spontaneous ignition

The total fire loss last year was in excess of $6 billion in the United States and better than $570 million in Canada.

Now for some tips that could save your life: Be sure your cigarette is out. Matches, too. Never leave matches and lighters within reach of children.

Don't run cords under rugs or over radiators where they may get damaged. Replace a cord if it is frayed.

Never leave small children or invalids alone in the house. Not even for a few minutes.

Have your wiring and electrical installations done by a professional.

Store oily rugs and paints in a cool place in tightly sealed metal containers.

Never use flammable liquids for dry-cleaning indoors.

Have a fire drill in your home to be sure everyone knows what to do in case of fire. Designate a specific meeting place outside so you will all know who's outside of the house.

Remember: Fire extinguishers put out 97 percent of all fires on which they were used, and most large fires start as small fires. So, invest in a compact, easy-to-use fire extinguisher. Keep it handy in your kitchen, or be prudent and buy one for your cottage, car, boat and the back bedroom.

Some excellent smoke and fire-detection systems are available to homeowners. Shop around; buy the one that suits your needs.

NOW, in case of fire:

If you suspect fire, alert the rest of the household. But first feel the top of the door. If it's hot, don't open it. Escape through the window.

If you can't open the window, break it with a chair. Cover the rough edges with a blanket, sit on the window ledge with one leg hanging outside and one inside, and wait for help.

The phone number of your fire department should be taped on every telephone. If it isn't, don't fumble around trying to find it. Get out and call from a neighbor's house.

If you live in an apartment building, use the stairway. Don't take a chance on the elevator. If it fails, you're trapped.

Once out, stay out. No treasure is worth risking your life. It took less than three minutes to read this column. Was it worth it? I hope so.

MRS. RANDALL STEVE PHILLIPS

Couple Marries In Ceremony Held Yesterday

Susan Ward Dickerson and Randall Steve Phillips were married at 3 p.m. Sunday in the People's Baptist Temple. The Rev. J. M. Bragg performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Dickerson and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Phillips, all of Greenville.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Jim Anderson, organist, Joe Ferguson, trumpeter, and Steve Reel, all of Greenville, who sang "More." The Rev. Bragg sang "Gentle Sheppard."

The chancel of the church held a seven branched candelabrum accented with ivy. Three tiered candelabrum used on each side were accented with ivy and enhanced with baskets of ferns and foliage.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, wore a Victorian style qiana knit gown accented with Venise lace at the sheer yoke bodice which was etched with seed pearls. The full length puff sleeves were cuffed at the wrist in Venise lace and the full length skirt extended into a chapel train. Venise lace bordered the hemline of the gown.

The bride's headpiece was a layered mantilla bordered with lace and attached to a face frame cap etched in seed pearls. She carried her aunt's prayerbook accented with lilies.

Miss Sandra Worthington of Greenville was honor attendant. Her formal gown of apricot bridal satin featured an empire waist with a V-neckline. A full length sheer ivory poncho accented with apricot roses complemented the dress. She carried a long-stemmed apricot rose.

Bridesmaids included Miss Wendy Phillips, sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. David Harris and Miss Ann Marie Raper, all of Greenville, and Miss Donna Harrington of Ayden. Their gowns were fashioned like that of the honor attendant. Each carried a long-stemmed apricot rose.

Honorary bridesmaids included Miss Barbara Ramey, Miss Anna Marie Payne and Miss Linda Rose Tucker, all of Greenville. Each wore a formal gown and carried a long-stemmed ivory rose.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers included David Dickerson, brother of the bride, and David Harris of Greenville, Jerry Phillips, brother of the bridegroom of Simpson, and Addison Bass of Washington.

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of baby blue qiana knit designed with a V-neckline and empire bodice. The mother of the bridegroom wore a formal gown of navy blue trilobal designed with a cowl neckline and draped bodice. Both mothers wore corsages of white roses.

Mrs. D. J. Bigger of Stovall and Mrs. D. G. Dickerson of Oxford, grandmothers of the bride, and Mrs. Sarah Vandiford of Greenville, grandmother of the bridegroom, were given corsages of white roses.

Following the rehearsal Saturday night, a cake cutting was hosted by the bride's parents at the Woman's Club.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Ralph Tucker of Greenville.

After a wedding trip to Myrtle Beach, S. C., the couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of Rose High School and Pitt Community College with an AAS degree in human services technology. She is employed by Greenville Utilities Commission.

The bridegroom attended Rose High and ECU and graduated with a B.S. degree in health and physical education. He is employed by Pitt County Schools.

LaPan-Busick Vows Solemnized

BURLINGTON — Miss Laura Diane Busick of Burlington became the bride of Denis Lee LaPan of Greenville Sunday at 3 p.m. at the Blessed Sacrament Catholic Church.

The Rev. F. K. O'Brien officiated the ceremony. Music was provided by Keith Cole, organist, Mrs. Scott Walker, violinist, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Barbour, soloists.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a tea length dress of ivory chiffon imported lace. She wore spider mums in her hair and carried a bouquet of spider mums, baby's breath and a lace handkerchief, given to her by her grandmother.

Mrs. Franklin Rudisill, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. Miss Kimberley LaPan, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Beth Wilkie were bridesmaids.

Raymond LaPan, father of the bridegroom, was best man with Joseph LaPan, brother of the bridegroom, Dean Conklin and Dominic Cardella as ushers.

Mistress of ceremony was Mrs. Daniel Hughes, and Miss Sharon May registered guests.

A reception was held after the ceremony at the First Presbyterian Church.

The bridegroom graduated from N. C. State with a bachelor's degree in civil engineering. He was a member of Chi Epsilon honor society and is now employed by J. H. Hudson, Inc. The bride graduated from N. C. State with a bachelor's degree in business management.

The couple will reside in Greenville.

New Members Initiated In Ceremonies

Seven new members were received into the Beta Alpha chapter of the Delta Kappa Gamma Society in ceremonies held Thursday evening at the Moose Lodge.

Initiated were: Sharon McCombs Clayton; Susan H. Creech; Christina Drye; Gloria G. Sanders; Rely Wanderman; and Lynda B. Wilms. Mabel Godette, ceremonials chairman, was in charge of the initiation.

The ritual was conducted by Nell Everett, president; Jessie McDonald, first vice president; Ann Burk, second vice president; and Anna Cartner, recording secretary.

Program Chairman Elaine Byrd introduced Kathryn Lewis, assistant superintendent of Pitt County Schools, as guest speaker. Her topic was "Women Educators, Architects of the Future: Pouring the Foundation."

The group will give a donation to the Recruitment Grant in memory of Betty Turner, a former member.

Francis Curtis, a Delta Kappa Gamma member of Silver Springs, Md., was welcomed as a guest.

Seeking Other Jobs Reported

NEW YORK (UPI) — About 29 percent of management-level employees are engaged in seeking another job to the extent of having their personal resume circulating, according to National Personnel Associates, a network of independent management-level agencies.

For technical employees, the figure is about 34 percent, the network said.

Over-Night End To One 'Crisis'

In the world of diplomacy an international crisis can be created or ended almost overnight, according to the needs of the nations involved.

That is about what has happened with the Soviet combat troops in Cuba. The issue blew up and created images of the 1962 missile crisis. There was the possibility of a Soviet combat build-up virtually at our doorsteps.

We maintained that it was a new development; the Soviets and Castro say they were a training mission and had been there through several U.S. presidencies.

The reaction of the Carter administration was to increase our own military power in the Caribbean and to assure to public, and South America, that the Soviet troops offered no threat.

The Soviet unit is tiny by any military standards, about 2,600 combat equipped soldiers. It is hardly designed to invade Florida or any western hemisphere nation. The question is whether it is the first of a real military buildup by the Soviets in Cuba.

Some observers believe there have been private assurances to President Carter from Soviet President Brezhnev that there would be no further change in the status of the brigade.

For all we know the Soviet troops may be there because Brezhnev doesn't trust Castro, but the situation does bear careful watching.

Worth Your Taking A Few Minutes

Greenville and Farmville will be conducting municipal elections tomorrow.

Citizens of both communities will be deciding on the people who will be making decisions for their local governments for several years.

In part, all our futures will be affected by the decisions made. Isn't that worth a few minutes time to vote?

THIS AFTERNOON

Legislative Studies Due

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — A long list of items for study by various groups of legislators, state agencies and others has been endorsed by the Legislative Services Commission of the General Assembly.

Since adjournment in mid-June, the Legislature has been especially inactive. Usually study committees begin their work shortly after the session ends.

Observers see political considerations in the delay this year as both major legislative leaders jockey for position in the 1980 election. Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green flirted with the possibility of running for governor but has chosen to seek re-election; and is being challenged by Speaker of the House Carl Stewart.

Those two are responsible for many of the key appointments to various study committees, both members and leaders. Many of the appointments were delayed as early campaign strategies and alliances were under consideration.

Some Fireworks

Some of the subjects on the list of more than 70 items will produce political fireworks in coming months and years, and could develop into election issues.

Although some study reports are scheduled for completion in time for action in the 1980 continuation session of the 1979 General Assembly, most are for action in 1981. This means that present lawmakers will, in effect, be producing a report and proposed legislation for consideration by members of the General Assembly elected in 1980.

Normally study committee reports are given considerable weight in legislative proceedings since special interest groups, state agencies, and interested legislators participate in the studies, and over a period of time gather information and research data superior to that which can be compiled in the brief time and hectic activity of a regular session.

There are a few surprises on the list of items, especially some topics which most observers had thought long since dead.

A sports arena study, for example, remains alive and well with a report due to the 1981 General Assembly, as is a proposal to ban radar detection devices in motor vehicles. Financing of the Wildlife Resources Commission is another.

A study will be made of alternative work schedules for state employees, including the possibility of four-day work weeks, job sharing arrangements, and flex-time work hours.

The possibility of state revenue sharing with counties and municipalities is a subject sure to create debate.

State Park

A state park with emphasis on recreational activities in the Central Piedmont area will be explored, along with methods for helping local governments develop park and recreational activities.

Steps leading to inspection and maintenance of auto exhaust systems in urban areas where air pollution is a problem are on the agenda.

motor vehicle law receiving serious attention now is whether an administrative process rather than the courts could be used to handle most traffic offenses.

The study committee with the longest name will also run into some of the most confusing bureaucratic problems in its work: The Committee To Study Publication, Dissemination, and Review of State Administrative Rules has as one of assignments "ways to reduce proliferation and number of rules."

PUTTING THAT ON THE SHELF WON'T BE EASY!

Forces Behind Lake

By WILLIAM M. WELCH

Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The entry of state Sen. I. Beverly Lake Jr. into the governor's race assures that the crusade by fundamentalist churches against what they regard as state interference will make its way into the 1980 campaign issues.

Christian church leaders are still fuming at Gov. Jim Hunt over his comment during the General Assembly session this year that he would have vetoed — if he had that power — legislation that deregulated church-run schools.

And Lake, who changed his voter registration to Republican on Friday and officially entered the 1980 gubernatorial fray, is closely aligned with fundamentalist church groups that are growing increasingly active in politics.

Lake is the attorney for Organized Christian Schools, composed of more than 60 fundamentalist Christian churches and schools that have been involved in lawsuits with the state over licensing requirements, tax payments and other issues.

Among those who cheered Lake's formal announcement in Raleigh was the Rev. Daniel Carr, a Winston-Salem Baptist minister and president of the Christian organization.

And Carr said later that the group intends to actively back Lake, reflecting increased political activity by Christian organizations nationally.

"I think our people are going to get involved. They're going to participate," Carr said. "I'm going to say Lake has these qualities, and fought and put his political career on the line for us in the Senate."

Lake was the sponsor of the Christian group's bill, which was passed by the General Assembly, giving private schools the right not to administer the state competency tests and to avoid most state regulation.

Carr's group is indebted to Lake for that help. And it is angered that Hunt opposed the bill after the fact and was able to defeat another measure deregulating church-run day-care centers.

"Hunt didn't lift his finger to help help us," Carr said. "And after he remained neutral on the competency test bill, he said he would have vetoed it if he had the veto power."

"I am going to back Lake for governor because I believe he is what he says he is, and he embraces those morals we stand for," Carr said.

Carr said fundamentalist Christians would follow him because of Lake's position on moral issues too, such as abortion, which the group opposes, and sex education, which Carr says is being used "as a tool for separating the children from their parents."

Just how much of a political force the fundamentalists can bring to Lake's aid in a race against Hunt is open to question. But Carr contends they have delivered more than 50,000 letters and telegrams to Hunt on the abortion issue alone when he supported continued state-financing of the procedures for poor women.

The Christian school group is also opposed to Hunt's "new generation" bill, passed by the General Assembly this year and setting up a health-care plan aimed for children.

Carr and other conservatives regard the plan as interference with the family, and Republican

Wise Men Summoned

WASHINGTON — Last week the President called his "wise men" to the White House to discuss the Cuban situation.

"Wise men," he said, "we are faced with a very serious problem. There are between 2,500 and 3,000 Russian troops in Cuba and I must do something about it."

"Why?" one of the wise men asked.

"Because I said I would do something about them and when I took this office I promised never to lie to the American people."

"But," said another wise man who had worked for President Kennedy, "there have been Russian troops in Cuba since J.F.K. was in office. What is the big deal now?"

"We don't know what they're doing there," the President said. "They could be a combat brigade or they could be Soviet advisers."

"What difference does it make?" another wise man asked. "Surely we can handle a Soviet brigade in Cuba."

"The difference," the President said, "is that having revealed that there is a brigade in Cuba, I, as President of the United States, must act on this information or lose my high rating in the polls."

"How long have you known about these troops, Mr. President?"

"Not very long. I just found out about it the other day."

"How could you find out about it the other day if they've been there for 17 years?"

"It beats me," the President said. "That's why I asked you wise men to come to the White House."

"I think," said one wise man, "your problem is not with the Soviets but with the CIA. If they don't know what is going on in Cuba how can you decide what to do about it? Don't we have any intelligence coming out of Havana?"

"That's a wise question," the President said. "The troops have been there for a long time, but the CIA has never been able to figure out what their mission was."

"Don't we keep tabs on Soviet military activity in Cuba?"

Other Editors Say Raising Questions

(Gastonia Gazette)

The J.P. Stevens Co. took it on the shins again the other day from the National Labor Relations Board.

The board seems to take delight in ruling against Stevens. If it keeps up its hounding of the nation's second largest textile maker, people are going to start calling it the National Anti-Stevens Relations Board.

This time, the NLRB ordered Stevens to give the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union board access to company facilities and employees at Rocky Mount during the next two years, including an opportunity to address workers on company time. Also, if any plant official convenes employees to talk about union representation, union officials must be notified and given equal time to speak.

It wasn't the first time such a blow has come to Stevens from the NLRB, and it probably won't be the last.

Just a short while ago, the NLRB ruled that the firm must pay the bill for a six-month organizing drive waged by the union. In that same ruling, the board voided the vote of the Stevens employees and turned it around. Whereas the workers had voted 540 against the union and 404 for, the board reversed the vote and took away the basic right of the individual to cast a secret ballot when it did.

The National Labor Relations Board was established to act as a disinterested third party in disputes involving unions and plants. In recent years, however, it has not tried to hide its prejudices in favor of unions.

These most recent acts do not add stature to the NLRB. The do lead one to question the board's credibility and prompt one to wonder if the NLRB can be fair in anything it is asked to arbitrate.

"We take photos of them from the air," the President replied, "but we don't know what to make of the pictures. Perhaps you wise men could study them and tell me what they mean."

The wise men looked at the pictures.

"How do we know they are Russians?" a wise man asked.

"The last soldier in line is doing a pirouette. We know Cuban troops can't do ballet dancing."

A second wise man said, "They could be lined up forchow."

"On the other hand," another wise man said, "they could be lined up to get fresh

THE GALLUP POLL

Favorably Regard Pope

By George Gallup

PRINCETON, N.J. — Even before Pope John Paul II set foot on American soil, his popularity with the U.S. public exceeded that of all but a few world leaders ever rated by the Gallup Poll.

Eight in 10 participants in a recent survey gave the pope a favorable rating, with as many as one-half the public (48 percent) assigning him a "highly favorable" rating.

Using a 10-point attitude scale called the Stapel Scalometer, only 6 percent gave the pope an unfavorable rating and an insignificant 3 percent gave him with a "highly unfavorable" rating.

Of particular interest is the finding that young adults (18-29), many of whom are not religious in an institutional sense, accorded the new pope nearly as high a rating as did their elders.

Pope John Paul II's current rating (taken just prior to his visit to Ireland and the U.S.) is one of the highest recorded in the quarter-century such ratings have been measured and closely parallels those accorded Presidents John Kennedy and Dwight Eisenhower at the peak of their popularity, as well as such popular world leaders as Winston Churchill.

Considerable Appeal Among Non-Catholics

Although the popes of the Roman Catholic Church have consistently been among the men most admired by the U.S. public, the present pope is more popular today than was Pope Paul VI in 1977.

It is interesting to note that the present pope owes much of his margin of popularity over Pope Paul VI to the enthusiastic views of Protestants.

Highly favorable ratings among Catholics for John Paul II and Paul VI are not dissimilar — 73 and 66 percent, respectively. Among Protestants, however, John Paul II received a highly favorable rating of 38 percent to 25 percent for Pope Paul VI.

The pope's trip to the U.S. is his third outside Italy since his election last fall. The pope visited Mexico and his native Poland earlier this year. His recent visit to Ireland was the first by a pontiff since the island was converted to Christianity in the fifth century.

Following is the question asked: "Here is an interesting experiment (survey respondents were handed a card with 10 boxes numbered from plus five to minus five). You will notice that the boxes on this card go from the HIGHEST POSITION OF PLUS FIVE, for someone you like very much, all the way down to the LOWEST POSITION OF MINUS FIVE, for someone you dislike very much. How far up the scale or how far down the scale would you rate Pope John Paul II?"

Here are the national findings:

Ratings Of John Paul II

Plus five	34%
TOTAL HIGHLY FAVORABLE	48
Plus three	14
Plus two	8
TOTAL FAVORABLE	80
Minus one	1
Minus two	1
Minus three	1
Minus four	1
Minus five	2
TOTAL UNFAVORABLE	6
No Opinion	14

The following table shows the "highly favorable" finding for key population groups, based on the top two positions on the scale:

NATIONAL	48%
Catholics	73
Protestants	38

HUMILITY

The word "humility" has a long history. Whether in Sanskrit, Greek, Latin or English, the word means the same thing — "on the ground". The humble person is one who has bowed down before something.

None of us like the idea of prostrating ourselves before other people, and our unwillingness to do so has occasioned most of those noble revolutions in which brave men have laid down their lives in defense of freedom. But if we are wise, we do bow down before ideas and ideals. These are powerful realities, and we never understand them until we have enough humility to search for an understanding of what the idea or ideal is trying to tell us. In this sense, only those who are truly humble can learn.

Jesus said of himself that he was meek and lowly of heart. And His word to His followers was, "Whosoever shall exalt himself shall be abased; and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted."

Inflation Targets Overlooked

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States will overcome its inflation problem, Treasury Secretary G. William Miller promised delegates to the meeting last week of the International Monetary Fund in Belgrade, Yugoslavia.

Almost as he delivered the assurances, Washington was announcing a 1.4 percent increase during September in the producer price index, a rate that if continued for a year would amount to 17 percent or so.

There is nothing unusual any more in such sequences of promise and disappointment, since the administrations of Presidents Johnson, Nixon and Ford preceded President Carter in the practice.

But, after four presidencies and a decade-and-a-half of promises, some people are wondering if any administration can deliver on the promise of maintaining prosperity while lowering the rate of price increases.

A recognized academic was musing about the matter a few days ago. His thoughts, he said, weren't yet conclusive, and so he asked anonymity for the moment. But he was, he said, tending in this direction:

Bad as life might have been for many people before the turn of the century, prices had remained stable. In fact, they declined. Generally, he observed, prices in 1900 were actually lower than in 1800.

The reason, he said, was that benefits of rising productivity, of greater efficiency resulting from mechanization, were being distributed to the population. Lower production costs meant lower selling prices.

The trend ended in the 1920s. During that decade, said the professor, productivity increased twice as fast as wages. He conceded that his figures were generalities, but he asked that the thesis be accepted.

Corporations, he said became flush with funds which they put into short-term savings. And when they sought to retrieve the funds they helped bring on a crash that changed the economic world.

One affect was to initiate a readjustment of the fruits of production. Labor, he said, was given increased powers that soon developed into a monopoly. Wages were expected to grow even if productivity did not.

Now, he said, we have a situation opposite to that of the 1920s; we have wages increasing twice as fast as productivity growth. And that, he maintains, simply cannot continue any more than could its opposite.

We — including the highest leadership of the country — usually give the wrong reasons for inflation, he said. We overlook this basic change in wages and productivity. And thereby, he claims, delude ourselves.

In his view, we continue to wrestle with the shadow of the problems rather than with the problems themselves. No wonder, he said, we show so few results.

Awards Dinner Steps Buoy U.S. Dollar

The annual awards dinner of the Pitt Co. chapter of the American Cancer Society will be held tomorrow at 7 p. m., 7:30 p. m., at Parker's Barbecue. Dr. Mary Robb, ECU School of Medicine hematology and oncologist, will be guest speaker. All volunteer crusader workers are invited.

LONDON (AP) — The dollar strengthened on the world's money markets today, buoyed by announcement over the weekend of a package of U.S. measures to curb inflation.

The price of gold dropped sharply. London's five major bullion houses "fixed" the price for morning trading at $376.75 a troy ounce. The metal was quoted in Zurich at noon at $375.50. It closed Friday in both bullion centers at $385.50.

In Tokyo, the dollar closed at 225.20 Japanese yen, up from 224.85 yen Friday. Dealers said election losses by Japan's ruling Liberal-Democratic party depressed the yen, as well as the U.S. anti-inflation package.

Japanese traders "thought the LDP would do a lot better," commented one Tokyo analyst, "but it turned out it barely managed to maintain the majority, and this prompted some concern about what's going to happen to our economy."

The dollar's firming trend continued when the European markets opened, with the U.S. currency up against all major European monies.

The Federal Reserve Board, the United States' central monetary authority, announced its package of measures Saturday night.

They included a one-percentage point increase to a record 12 percent the rate at which banks borrow money from the Fed.

Observing 4-H Week

Pitt County 4-H'ers are celebrating with millions of other youth across the nation this week, as all observe "National 4-H Week."

County club members observed 4-H Church Sunday yesterday, and will be erecting public displays and conducting community service activities during the week-long celebration.

A major 4-H club project for Pitt Counties is the Blood Donation Campaign. Each 4-H club member is recruiting individuals who will pledge a pint of blood at their convenience in the next few months. The public is asked to contact a 4-H'er during October to participate in the blood pledge program.

"Our Pitt County 4-H'ers are active young people who are developing fine leadership skills," said Dale Panaro, county 4-H coordinator. "We encourage adults, as well as boys and girls ages 6-19, to contact our office, 758-1196, about information on 4-H in their community."

"If I wasn't," said the President, "I wouldn't have called you all here today."

"I have an idea," the wisest of the wise men said. "Why don't we invite the Soviet brigade to visit the United States as our guests?"

"Are you crazy?" someone said.

"No. The Soviets will refuse to do it and then we can say they blinked."

"Why will they refuse?"

"Every time a Soviet company visits the United States they defect. If the Russians are too frightened to send a hundred members of the Moscow symphony orchestra to play at Lincoln Center, they sure as hell aren't going to allow 3,000 soldiers to visit Disney World."

Job Sharing Is Called Workable Alternative

By CAROL DEEGAN
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Not everyone in the labor force needs or wants a full-time job. That was a problem in the past. But more and more workers, and their employers, are getting involved in "job sharing."

New Ways to Work, a non-profit organization with offices in San Francisco and Palo Alto, was organized in 1972. It sponsored the first pilot project involving job sharing in the United States, said Barney Olmsted, co-founder of the organization.

What is job sharing? Ms. Olmsted says it's one permanent, full-time job, shared by two people who generally split working hours, job responsibilities and fringe benefits.

She says job sharing is an important alternative to the traditional 9-to-5 job for many workers, including divorced parents; widows or widowers with children; elderly workers not quite ready to retire; men and women who want to continue or complete their education; and full-time employees who want to trade work for more leisure.

"The job-sharing project grew out of our identifying the fact that over 90 percent of our clients on a consistent basis were interested in career-oriented, part-time work and couldn't find it in their fields," she said.

New Ways to Work handles about 1,200 clients a year. Ms. Olmsted said about 4,000 clients in the past three and one-half years had been interested in job sharing.

A national survey by New Ways to Work, covering 240 job sharers representing 135 jobs, found that 65 percent of those sharing jobs had decided to try it while already employed; 33 percent had jobs that involved supervising other workers; some were in high-level jobs with salaries exceeding $25,000; and most were eligible for employee benefits. Ms. Olmsted said the "typical" job-sharing client at New Ways to Work had at least a few years of college and was a professional worker, "although we do have a number of people come in for blue-collar jobs, assembly-line jobs."

PRESIDENT-ELECT
ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — James Goodman of WRAL-TV was elected president-elect of the North Carolina Association of Broadcasters today. Dan T. Griffin of WBIG in Greensboro takes over as president during Tuesday's concluding session of the association.

The types of jobs now being shared across the United States, according to a New Ways to Work brochure, now include city planner, engineer, program developer, career counselor, probation officer, social worker, teacher, secretary, administrative assistant, mental-health worker, project director, pediatric intern and librarian.

Ms. Olmsted said job sharing was better than a traditional part-time job because it involved a "whole" job, and cooperation and commitment that provided the job sharer with a greater sense of achievement.

But, she cautions, "the realities of working considerably less than 40 hours a week are economic."

"When you are talking about trying to live on half as much, and unless there's another source of income in the family, then it is difficult, I think, for people to consider job sharing or permanent part-time work unless they are in a job category that pays them enough to enable them to do that," Ms. Olmsted said.

By one estimate, more than 20 percent of the nation's work force now holds part-time jobs. And experts say that part-time employment including job sharing, will be a growing segment of the U.S. labor force in the years ahead.

Ms. Olmsted said job sharing was good for employers who were looking for new ways to recruit employees; who wanted to increase their scheduling flexibility, reduce absenteeism, implement affirmative-action programs or create alternatives to layoffs.

Job sharing is also good, she said, for organizations concerned with retaining valued employees, increasing the career potential of current employees, and providing a transition period for workers approaching retirement.

Fell Short In Japan Election

By ANDREW HORVAT
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) — Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira's conservative Liberal Democrats fell short of a majority in the lower house of Parliament today in final unofficial returns from the general election Sunday. But the party that has governed Japan for 24 years claimed the support of enough independents to retain control of the government and Parliament.

Kyodo, the Japanese news service, and NHK, the Japanese Broadcasting Corp., reported the LDP won 248 of the 511 seats in the lower house of the Diet (Parliament), the same number the party had in the previous house. Because of vacancies, this had been a majority of one, but it was eight short of a majority in the full new house.

The LDP claimed the allegiance of at least 10 of the 19 independents elected, which would give it a majority of five. But it would still be far less than the 271 seats Ohira asked for to give him a "stable majority" and firm control of all parliamentary committees.

Kyodo said the LDP's failure to achieve its goal was "a stunning setback."

"The results are tougher than I expected," a weary Ohira told reporters.

Since chairmen of parliamentary committees do not vote, a standoff can result when the government party does not have a sizable majority. The LDP's inability to control the budget committee in the last Diet frustrated Ohira's plans for a general sales tax to offset heavy reliance on revenue bonds. It was primarily because of this that Ohira dissolved the lower house last month and called the 14th general election since the end of World War II.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Former Bolshoi dancers Leonid Kozlov and Valentina Kozlova, who defected to the United States last month, are to appear here Friday and Saturday with a touring company called Ballet Galaxie '79.

The performance is being billed as the "first U.S. guest appearance" for the couple since they sought political asylum in Los Angeles on Sept. 16.

Nella Ludwig, president of the New Orleans Opera Guild, said the Ballet Galaxie '79 consists of leading dancers from three permanent troupes and a corps de ballet from Miami.

Critics have said Kozlov, 32, and his 25-year-old wife were not major Bolshoi performers, but were "well thought of."

Demonstrations Should Sway Woodland Owners

By TOM BYRD

NCSU Agricultural Information SYLVA — If seeing is believing, Jerry McAbee is going to make a lot of small woodland owners believe in good forestry.

McAbee is Western North Carolina's first extension forestry agent, and only one of three such persons in the state.

After 18 months on the job, McAbee has 15 "show me" type demonstrations scattered around his eight-county area. Through these demonstrations, he feels he can show woodland owners forestry management practices that can double and even triple the wood they are now producing per acre.

"My demonstrations are my major teaching tools," McAbee said. "I try to locate them as many people will see them where as possible."

McAbee's target audience consists of the 4,400 small, private woodland owners who together own about 60 percent of all woodland in Haywood, Transylvania, Jackson, Macon, Graham, Swain, Clay and Cherokee Counties. The forestry practices that he is demonstrating can be used in some form by most of the 250,000 small woodland owners in North Carolina.

"Our privately owned woodlands are producing at only 40 percent of their potential, and this is one reason why I'm here," the young extension agent said.

McAbee's first job is to convince woodland owners that good forestry practices are neither complicated or expensive.

"One person told me that forest management was a luxury they could not afford," McAbee noted. "I was able to show them how they could harvest one acre of mature pines on their land and get enough money to reforest 10 acres."

Some forestry management practices do cost, although McAbee prefers to call it an investment. Thinning white pines, for example, may cost the owners more than they receive because of the poor market for white pine pulpwood. On the other hand, both the state and federal governments offer certain landowners cost-share assistance in reforestation.

The average landowner with whom McAbee works has 58 acres of woodland. For management purposes, however, he tries to get landowners to look at each acre in terms of what it is now producing and what it can produce. As a result, one landowner may have ten different tracts within his 58 acres, each requiring a different management strategy.

"A big need is to get pines on sites that are best suited to pines, hardwoods on sites that are best suited to hardwoods then manage the stands throughout their rotation," McAbee stated. "When you see a stand of hardwoods that are 40 years old and are no bigger than your leg, then you know they're on the wrong site."

Generally, pines do better than hardwoods on poorer, drier sites. Hardwoods, on the other hand, do best on deep, well-drained fertile soil that stays moist. White pines are the preferred species between 1,800 and 3,000 feet. Loblolly pines are recommended below 1,800 feet.

Several of McAbee's demonstrations show the proper way to thin pines stands, which he says is an often neglected practice.

"When the crowns of trees touch, they stagnate," he pointed out. "To rejuvenate that stand of trees, you must thin some of them."

The normal procedure is to plant about 436 white pines per acre and thin them two or three times by the time they are 25 years old. The final stand, consisting of about 100-150 trees per acre, should make fine sawtimber by the time they are 35 years old.

Thinnings can be done in either winter or summer, but McAbee cautions that summer thinning can result in insect problems which could be costly to control. The root rot problems which often are encouraged by winter thinnings can be controlled inexpensively by simply treating each freshly cut tree with borax.

Hardwood management offers other challenges for woodland owners. One challenge is to get the land in the right hardwood species and the second challenge is to continuously upgrade the quality of trees on the land.

The best hardwoods from both a growth and market standpoint are black cherry, white ash, yellow poplar and basswood, as well as some of the oaks, said McAbee. He is also encouraging the production of black walnut on certain bottomland sites.

"Much of our woodland has been topgraded time and time again," said McAbee.

Study Cultivating Of Ginseng

By TOM BYRD
NCSU Agricultural Information

FLETCHER — The Chinese say the consumption of ginseng improves their love life, and this may explain why there are 960 million Chinese.

People in western North Carolina say the sale of ginseng definitely improves their pocketbook, and this explains why the North Carolina Agricultural Research Service is studying ginseng production.

"My objective is to learn all that I can about the cultural requirements of ginseng," said Dr. Tom Konsler at the Mountain Horticultural Crops Research Station near here.

Cultural requirements being studied include such things as soil fertility, pH levels, types of mulch, amount of shade, disease control and plant propagation. His ultimate goal is to be able to tell a person the best way to grow ginseng, just as agricultural scientists can now offer a prescription for growing apples.

Of course, there are many differences between ginseng and apples. Few plants have been the center of as much mystery and lore as ginseng. Along with considering it to be an aphrodisiac, orientals believe ginseng contributes to the overall maintenance of good health. Sadaharu Oh, the Hank Aaron of Japan, attributes his prowess at the bat to the fact that he drinks ginseng tea three times a day.

Early settlers pushing into western North Carolina found the Indians used ginseng, too.

Topgrading involves cutting only the best trees, leaving the culls to occupy the land.

According to McAbee, the best way to regenerate a hardwood tract is to clearcut and start over. The hardwoods that come back naturally and quickly following clearcutting are usually superior in quality to those removed.

Within a year or two following clearcutting, a hardwood forest makes some of the best habitat for deer, wild turkeys, quail and other animals.

Certain precautions must be taken in clearcutting, McAbee noted. Since 99 percent of the erosion that occurs from clearcutting comes from logging roads, McAbee urges that special care be taken with them. By building the roads on contours, exposing them to the drying action of the sun, putting in waterbreaks and seeding the logging roads with lespedeza, fescue or other vegetation, much of the erosion can be stopped.

McAbee's demonstrations cover several additional forestry practices that have potential for Western North Carolina. One demonstration is designed to show how selective cutting of firewood can improve a hardwood stand. Another demonstration shows the adverse effects of cattle when allowed to roam through a hardwood forest.

Forest officials say that the demand for wood fiber in the United States will double between now and the year 2000. McAbee wants to make certain that the woodland owners of Western North Carolina are prepared to cash in on this expanded market.

and soon they were scouring the hardwood forests for the highly prized roots. "Wildcrafting" remained the sole way of getting ginseng to around 1900 when a few people began trying to cultivate it.

Small cultivated patches are now scattered throughout North Carolina mountains and larger plantings can be found in Ontario, Kentucky and Wisconsin.

Wisconsin growers of cultivated ginseng reportedly gross $60,000 per acre or more. Four or five years are required to grow the crop from seed to harvest.

The high value of the crop actually causes a security problem for the people who are growing it, Konsler said.

About 95 percent of the ginseng roots dug in North Carolina are sold to the Orient, much of it going through Hong Kong's ports. Some people feel that the resumption of diplomatic relations with China is going to open bigger, more direct markets in that country. This is one reason why the Agricultural Research Service launched its ginseng research project.

Ginseng is grown from seed, which require 18 months to germinate. The seeds are gathered in the fall, mixed with damp sand, placed in screened boxes and buried in moist soil.

The seeds are planted the next fall in beds where the ginseng crop is to be grown. The following spring, after 18 months of dormancy, the seeds sprout. The top of the plant dies each fall and a new top arises from the root each spring.

The first year the new ginseng plant puts forth a single stem with three leaflets. The second year, the plants will generally have two leaves or prongs with three leaflets apiece. The get about six inches tall in two years and resemble poison ivy or Virginia creeper.

The third year, the plant will generally put forth three leaves with five leaflets. The plant will grow a couple of inches taller, and have a small cluster of berries.

By the fourth or fifth year, the roots of cultivated ginseng are ready to harvest. Wild ginseng takes about twice as long to mature.

Despite their supposedly mystical powers, ginseng roots are not much to look at. They are about six inches long, often multi-branched, and when dried have all the beauty of a dried lizard.

Wild roots are brown and gnarled. Cultivated roots are tan or creamy color with a smoother surface. Ginseng fanciers look for patterns or images in the roots. They especially like to find the image of a man or parts of a man's body.

Hilbig said Friday insurance companies had claims of $1.7 billion already this year.

Though Hurricane David caused $122 million in insured losses from Florida northward along the East coast, he said, American insurance companies also expect to suffer heavy losses from David's $1 billion worth of damages in the Dominican Republic.

Until the winds of Frederic struck the Gulf Coast last month, Betsy had been the nation's worst catastrophe with insured losses of $715 million, Hilbig said in an interview.

The insured losses of Hurricane Camille in 1969 were $165 million, he said.

"The American Insurance Association estimates that Alabama insured losses (from Frederic) were $483.3 million, followed by Mississippi with losses of $175.5 million," Hilbig said.

Konsler said the current price for dried wild roots is as high as $180 per pound, with the price for cultivated roots ranging from $30 to $60. He estimated that one cultivated acre can yield up to 2,000 of the dried roots.

Ginseng is generally believed to need about 75 percent shade. Konsler is experimenting with from 50 to 90 percent shade, and he is growing his test plots in lathe houses and under plastic as well as under hardwood trees.

The plant is subject to a blight disease for which there are no approved chemicals controls. Konsler and Dr. Paul Shoemaker, a plant pathologist, will evaluate several fungicides and fungicide rates to see if a control can be found.

Frederic Is Said Worst

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Hurricane Frederic has blown aside Hurricane Betsy as the all-time worst insurance catastrophe, says an insurance industry official.

Because of Frederic's record damages of $752.5 million, 1979 already has gone down as the worst year for insured catastrophe, said John Hilbig, manager of the New Orleans Insurance Information Institute.

Hilbig said Friday insurance companies had claims of $1.7 billion already this year.

Though Hurricane David caused $122 million in insured losses from Florida northward along the East coast, he said, American insurance companies also expect to suffer heavy losses from David's $1 billion worth of damages in the Dominican Republic.

Carolina Tel Services Said To Be Holding Up

Carolina Telephone officials say that, despite a strike that has been in progress since Oct. 1, local and long-distance service remain good companywide.

Customers are advised, though, Dick Flye, District Commercial and Marketing Manager, said, that dialing one's own long-distance calls and calling at non-busy hours—after 5 p. m. weekdays and any time on weekends—will help insure the best service. He said only limited installation service is being provided in Greenville and other exchanges in the company and that repair is being provided at an adequate level in all areas. Local calls are channeled automatically by telephone company equipment and should present no problem, he said.

"A substantial number of employees are working, including some who are members of the union," he said. "Management and nonunion people are filling many vacated posts. Customers can help by mailing their payments in or by paying at payment collection agencies located in many towns served.

Norfolk Carolina Telephone Company, serving eight northeastern counties and a portion of Virginia below Norfolk presently is being managed by Carolina Telephone and is expected to merge with it at the end of this year. The Communications Workers of America union is striking in both companies.

The walkout followed rejection by the CWA leadership of a three-year contract offer, without referring the company's offer to the union membership for its consideration, Flye pointed out. He said Carolina Telephone's offer included a 10 percent wage increase in the first year and nine percent in each of the second and third years; payment of 60 percent of the premium cost of a dental insurance plan beginning the second year of the contract; an additional paid holiday for a total of 11; payment of a larger portion of life and health insurance premiums; increased mileage payment for employees' use of their personal cars for company business; double-time payment for time worked in excess of 60 hours; and some other. The union leadership rejected the package because it did not include a cost-of-living wage adjustment clause, he indicated.

Swiss Airliner Mishap Kills 14

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Fourteen passengers were killed and 12 injured in a fire that destroyed a Swiss airliner as it landed at Athens with 154 persons aboard, fire fighting officials reported today.

Greek officials said among the passengers were 100 doctors bound for a medical convention in Peking, and Swissair, the Swiss airline, said many of them were affiliated with the World Health Organization in Geneva.

But the World Health Organization reported only two staffers aboard the plane, said they escaped with minor injuries and that it had no knowledge of any other doctors aboard.

Witnesses reported flames were shooting out of the undercarriage of the Swissair DC-8 as it skidded to a halt amid light rainfall and high winds late Sunday night.

Transport Minister Alexander Papadonganas said a Greek pilot who landed a few minutes before reported "braking action was medium to poor because of wet runway conditions." But Papadonganas and other officials said they had no idea what caused the fire.

One passenger said the fire spread rapidly and heavy smoke filled the plane. Firemen reported they found the bodies of eight passengers, burned beyond recognition, still strapped to their seats. Two passengers were reported in serious condition and were not expected to survive. A number of others were treated for burns and smoke inhalation at various hospitals. All 12 crew members escaped unhurt, airport officials said.

Swissair said 20 other passengers were unaccounted for. But it was believed most or all of these had left the airport unhurt without reporting to officials or had been taken to hospitals before officials began making a count.

The plane was a burned out wreck.

One survivor, journalist Guy Stafford of Portsmouth, England, reported the passengers were unable to open some emergency exits but finally got out by sliding down emergency chutes.

"People were confused but there was not much panic," said Stafford. "Flames were visible within seconds after we landed."

The plane, Swissair Flight 316, was en route from Geneva and Zurich, Switzerland, to Bombay, India, and Peking.

Papadonganas said firefighting units from the airport and the U.S. Air Force base which uses the same facilities rushed to the scene immediately. Stafford said there were "plenty of firefighting equipment and officials about when we abandoned the aircraft."

Airport officials and Swissair employees tried to calm the passengers. Many were in shock. Some milled about weeping. One muttered: "I've lost everything in the plane, everything I own."

Flowers Thrive On Uncut Roadsides

By The Associated Press

Wildflowers may conjure up thoughts of sprawling, peaceful rural fields, but horticulturists say they are thriving in a most unlikely place in Ohio — along 19,000 miles of state-maintained highways.

Thanks to the Arab oil embargo of 1973-74 and the fuel shortages since, the state has drastically reduced its program of mowing alongside highways.

Left alone, the undeveloped areas near the roads have become a haven for bright orange butterfly milkweed, yellow black-eyed Susans, delicate white Queen Anne's lace and other colorful wild plants, says Robert E. Tatman, Ohio Department of Transportation horticulturist.

"We didn't plan this," says Tatman, surveying wild growth in an area along Interstate 71 that hasn't been mowed in two years. "This is nature. It's a side benefit from reduced mowing."

One measurable benefit, Tatman says, is the reduced erosion provided by the growth. Erosion is not as likely now as with a ground cover solely of grass, he says.

The wildflowers in these winding meadows have to be hardy to withstand the assault of noxious fumes, road salt, and litter, Tatman says.

Under the reduced-mowing program, the state currently cuts along the edges of the median and the shoulders of the road, leaving the rest of the right-of-way alone. Formerly, Tatman says, the entire area was mowed regularly.

Mass-spraying of herbicides has also stopped, again a result of budget restrictions. "With our budget, we respond mainly to complaint areas," Tatman says.

The complaints most often come from farmers near the highway who fear that certain noxious species are threatening their crops. Thistles and broad-leaf weeds, for example, weaken the soil structure when they take over an area, Tatman says, so they are usually sprayed or cut.

'Sickout' In Denver Ends

DENVER (AP) — Denver's four police precincts reported 100 percent attendance today, following a 2½-day sickout by patrol officers angry over a proposed 7.5 percent raise.

"I think everyone's healthy, at least physically," said Officer Cordell Lief at the Southeast Denver precinct house.

Lief and officers at the three other substations said everyone listed for the 2 a.m. and 3 a.m. roll calls was at work.

Dispatchers and duty officers at the four precincts said there was not an unusual number of calls for assistance or criminal complaints during the weekend sickout.

The city is proposing a wage package that would boost starting police pay from $14,232 to $15,288 on Jan. 1. The City Council was expected to discuss the plan tonight.

"We want a 13 percent increase," said Jack Helm of the Denver Police Union, stipulating he was speaking for patrolmen and not the union.

The city charter forbids a police strike and neither the Police Union nor the Police Protective Association sanctioned the sickout.

The "blue flu" hit Friday night as large numbers of the city's police force began calling in sick. Officials estimated 85 percent of the officers were out Friday night and 75 percent Saturday. Patrolmen began returning Sunday.

About 142 patrolmen are scheduled to work each of three shifts a day.

The department put supervisors on 12-hour shifts and began calling in personnel that normally do not patrol the streets. At first, the city's 63 patrol cars ran with one officer each, but were double-staffed again by Saturday night.

Vietnamese Say Events In Cambodia Distorted

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnam accused the United States today of distorting recent events in Cambodia and said talk in Washington about normalized American-Vietnamese relations was "just a farce."

The Communist Party newspaper Nhan Dan also claimed the United States and China were working hand-in-hand against Vietnam and that Washington was spreading word about a Vietnamese threat in order to increase its military aid to Thailand and other non-communist Southeast Asian countries.

Senior Carter administration officials are making a "frantic call" for emergency aid to Cambodia to "cover the Sino-American scheme of creating the picture of two different administrations in Cambodia, thereby lending a hand to the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary clique to oppose the Cambodian people," Nhan Dan wrote.

The newspaper quoted a recent editorial in The Washington Post which called on the U.S. government to disassociate itself from the regime of former Premier Pol Pot and his deputy, Ieng Sary, ousted by Vietnamese invaders in January.

The United States never recognized the Pol Pot regime, which brutalized Cambodia for four years, but recently it voted in favor of Pol Pot's continued representation in the world body. It argued that the new government of President Heng Samrin was not legitimate since it was installed by the Vietnamese invasion force.

"The United States is escalating its hostility to Vietnam. The presence of the 7th Fleet in the Eastern Sea (South China Sea) is intended not only to encourage illegal emigration, but also to join the Chinese reactionaries in direct provocations," Nhan Dan said.

The newspaper said the Carter administration, "under public pressure," was making believe that it was willing to contact Vietnam to normalize relations.

"This is just a farce. No positive measure has been taken in this direction so far," Nhan Dan said in a commentary carried by the Vietnam News Agency and monitored in Bangkok.

The newspaper said the new Cambodian regime was tracking down remnants of the Pol Pot army who were still in hiding and receiving food and weapons from international "reactionaries."

It also said "a local famine is being held in check" and that the Phnom Penh administration was doing everything possible to restore normal conditions in the country. Independent observers have reported widespread starvation and disease in Cambodia.

Loophole To Theologians

WASHINGTON (AP) — Roman Catholic scholars say Pope John Paul II's speech on academic freedom leaves breathing room for theologians, despite his admonition that they pay heed to official church teachings.

"It behooves the theologian to be free, but with the freedom that is openness to the truth and the light that comes from faith and from fidelity to the church," the pope said in a major speech on Catholic higher education Sunday, the final day of his U.S. visit.

"The church needs her theologians, particularly in this time and age so profoundly marked by deep changes in all areas of life and society," the pontiff told 2,000 Catholic educators, theologians and scholars at Catholic University.

But he said the source for "true theological scholarship" and teaching must be "sacred Scripture and in the sacred tradition of the church," as interpreted in the so-called magisterium or official body of church teachings.

The pope's words were greeted with relief by the Rev. Charles E. Curran, a leading liberal Catholic theologian who led the American opposition to Pope Paul VI's 1968 encyclical against birth control.

"It still allows the possibility of dissent without any problem," said Curran. "I was fearful that it could have been very negative and it isn't."

Added Curran: "Like myself and all good theologians, he makes a lot of nice distinctions."

Chapter Meet Held Saturday

The Greenville Alumnae chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority met in the party room of Planters Bank Saturday.

Recognition was given Soror Bettie James for her receiving of a plaque of appreciation for her work as chairman of the Cancer Crusade at O'Berry Center in Goldsboro. Soror Jean Darden was recognized for her appointment by Gov. Jim Hunt as chairman of the Leadership Development Conference for Pitt County Women. Soror Darden highlighted the Sept. 23 Drug and Alcohol Workshop for Women held here.

Soror Bennie Streeter Tate Wilkin, guest lecturer in library science at UCLA and author of "Survival Themes in Fiction for Children and Young People" was a visitor.

Committee reports were made by Sorors Kathy Kea, Jean Darden, Rebecca Norcott, Paulette Dove and Beatrice Maye. Soror May A. Murrell presided and Sorors Deborah Hall, Deborah Rhodes and Pat Johnson were hostesses.

Scholarship

Darrell Davis, second-year law student at the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis, has received a grant-in-aid academic scholarship for $4,500, renewable upon satisfactory completion of his second year.

Davis is a 1973 honor graduate of Rose High School and a 1977 graduate of UNC-Chapel Hill with a B. A. degree in political science. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Z. Davis of 501 Centenea Street in Greenville.

Eastern School PTA To Meet

The Eastern Elementary School PTA meeting will be held Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the school's all-purpose room.

This year's school staff will be introduced during the business session. Classrooms will be open following the meeting for parents to visit.

Parents are asked to be present.

Many Dollars Will Be Wasted With Heat Leakage

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
More than half the money you spend to heat your home this winter may be wasted. And it doesn't have to be. Your dollars leak through cracks around windows and doors. They flow from attics that don't have enough insulation.

And they vanish, like smoke, up the chimney. Terms like thermogram, energy audit and payback period are becoming household words, as consumers — faced with warnings of fuel bills that could be double last year's — try to find ways to cut costs by saving energy.

Utility spokesmen say anywhere from 10 percent to 60 percent of the heat produced to warm U.S. homes is wasted. That means that you may be throwing away from $1 to $6 of every $10 you spend on heating.

losing energy. "We have had excellent results," said Lewis. About 35 percent to 40 percent of the customers have viewed the thermograms and about one-fourth of those have done something to plug leaks.

The cure may be something as simple as setting back your thermostat at night. Or it may require a major insulation effort. The Department of Energy estimates that 40 million single-family homes — a little less than two-thirds of the total — are not properly protected against the weather.

Regulations being developed under the National Energy Act of 1978 will require large utilities to help you find out where you are wasting energy and suggest ways you can save. The utilities also will have to help you arrange to pay for and install energy-saving devices. Some states already require this kind of effort by utilities; in other areas, companies have voluntary programs to encourage customers to add insulation, caulk and weatherstrip windows and doors, etc.

Pacific Gas & Electric Co. of California, for example, has offered energy audits to its three million residential customers since last November. By the middle of September, the company had completed 14,000 audits, according to spokesman Mike Willhoit. By the end of the year, it expects to finish an additional 6,000 audits.

Utility-sponsored conservation programs vary; some are free, others cost from $3 to $10. Some utilities send a trained inspector to the customer's house; others require the homeowner to do his or her own checking. In most cases, however, the end is the same: A computer analysis that tells you what you can do to cut energy use, how much it will cost, how much it will save and how long it will take you to save enough to cover the expense.

Utilities in Iowa are using thermograms — infrared photographs taken from the air to show where heat is escaping — to boost conservation. The Skyscan program run by the Iowa Utility Association began in the fall of 1977 and spokesman John Lewis said about 35 percent of the major communities in the state have been surveyed.

Once the thermogram for a city is finished, customers are invited to look at the prints, to see whether their houses are

Retirement In N.C. Is Increasingly Preferred

HENDERSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Gertrude and Waldo Gylleck found good reason to leave St. Charles, Ill., to retire: "to escape 10 feet of snow in the winter."

"Our son still lives in Illinois and we have relatives in Florida ... this is about halfway between them," said Mrs. Gylleck.

Retirement in the sunny South used to mean Florida. But increasing numbers of Northerners are finding North Carolina's mountains good retirement locations.

Some are even "retiring" twice, first to Florida, then to other Sunbelt states.

"When they first retire up North, they think Florida is going to be great," said Lorraine Berry of Hendersonville. "Then they start coming up here for the summers (to escape the heat). Soon the twice-yearly move gets old, and they move up here for good."

"I bet 75 percent of the people in my apartment house have gone to Florida and come back here," said one Hendersonville retiree.

The 1970s have seen a continued retirement boom.

In 1978 in Henderson County, 20 percent of the 51,000 residents were 60 or older. The figure in Polk County was 26 percent of the 13,000 people there. The data was provided by the state Human Resources Department.

The national average is about 12 percent, said Jane Zecher, executive director of the Henderson County Council on Aging.

Particularly since the energy crisis began, she said, more Northerners are escaping to the mountains' easier climate and slower pace.

"They're looking for the lifestyle of 15 years ago. They want to get out of the urban areas, but they don't want to homestead," Ms. Zecher said.

"Oh, I adore it," said Agnes Heltman, who left Cleveland for Hendersonville two years ago and who says she's kept so busy "you wonder how you ever had time to work."

"We have the four seasons, but nothing too severe," she said.

Delayed Changes In Mountains' Leaves

BOONE — Heavy rains and unseasonably mild temperatures are delaying the change of the leaves in the mountains.

Normally, the peak color of the fall leaves is around Oct. 15, but the lack of a frost so far in the mountains has pushed the height of the colors back at least a week, and possibly as late as the weekend of Oct. 27, according to a botanist at Appalachian State University.

"The moisture is keeping them (the leaves) green, although when we do get a frost they'll probably change very quickly," said Dr. Bill Carpenter, chairperson of the ASU Biology department and a specialist in botany.

The average date of the first frost in the Boone area is Oct. 7, with the first killing frost around Oct. 15, though these dates vary from year to year.

Dr. Carpenter explained that the leaves do not actually change color in the fall, but become "unmasked." The unmasking is brought about by the decreasing length of days and cool or cold nights, with these factors causing the trees to stop making chlorophyll, the dominant color in the leaves.

As the green coloring in the leaves oxidizes or disappears, the reds, yellows, and golds that remain become visible.

Heavy rains during the period when the leaves are changing somehow enable the trees to continue to produce chlorophyll, keeping the leaves green longer, said Carpenter.

Remodeling At Facility

FARMVILLE — Extensive remodeling and new roof installation is underway at Guardian Care nursing facility here.

Ceilings are being lowered, individualized lighting is being installed in residents' rooms, a new public address system is being added, and some interior doors are being relocated for better use of space and for greater staff efficiency. Farrior and Sons Inc. of Farmville is the general contractor.

Colorful wallcoverings of antibacterial, flame retardant fibers will be used, and new draperies and furniture are being added. Offices are being refurbished, also, and the laundry area will be remodeled and have new equipment.

The work is expected to be done in December. It has been approved by the Eastern Carolina Health Systems Agency, a regulatory agency for health care facilities in this region. The N. C. Dept. of Human Resources has granted a certificate of need.

The Greenville City Schools Band Booster Club will meet Tuesday, Oct. 9, 8 p.m., in the Rose High band room. The advisory committee will meet at 7 p.m.

The meeting will feature a concert by the Rose High Stage Band under the direction of James Rodgers. A short business meeting will follow the concert.

All current members and interested persons are invited to attend.

Bungled A Yard Sale

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — County officials admit their bungling left a retired mechanic with an empty house after his possessions were inadvertently sold at a yard sale while he lay in the hospital.

But Bill Moore, whose house was cleaned out down to the knocker on the front door, wants his things back, and says, "I thought this was a free country, but it's just for crooks."

Mariocopa County Fiduciary Bill Carter said an order to have the house cleaned was misinterpreted. A social worker hired a cleaning firm that also conducts liquidation sales, and there apparently was some confusion over whether the house was to be "cleaned up" or "cleaned out," he said.

"We just have to take responsibility," said Carter, explaining that the mistake was due to "serious procedural deficiencies" in his office that have since been corrected.

Carter said his office has reacquired some of Moore's furniture, but most of it cannot be recovered.

Moore was involved in an automobile accident last July in Payson. Although uninjured, he was hospitalized after doctors found he had fractured his pelvis and other bones, apparently in a fall at his home earlier last summer.

Fourteen Compete In Crown-Kicking

HAVELOCK, N.C. (AP) — Wearing evening gowns and swim suits, 14 young women kicked crowns Sunday night in honor of Debbie Shook.

Miss Shook lost her title as Miss North Carolina in June after she complained to a reporter that she hadn't received some of her prizes.

In reaction, she kicked her rhinestone crown onto the stage at a Raleigh auditorium where activities were getting underway to chose her successor.

The Havelock-Cherry Point Jaycees decided to honor Miss Shook with their own contest.

Sunday night, Elizabeth Schlachter, 20, a waitress at the Cherry Point Marine Air Station officers' club, won the title as the state's reigning crown kicker.

She kicked her crown an average distance of 26 feet, 7 inches.

The average was based on one kick each while wearing a swimsuit and an evening gown.

Brenda Mack of Winston-Salem won second prize.

Ms. Schlachter won a $5,000 worthless check, among other non-valuable prizes, for her winning kicks.

The Miss North Carolina contest is sponsored by the state Jaycees. But the Havelock Jaycees don't sponsor a contestant, and a Jaycee spokesman said they wanted to have a contest of their own.

The chapter had invited Miss Shook to kick out the first crown, but she did not attend.

Arrested On Burglary Charge

Greenville Police early this morning arrested George King Jr., 26, of 600F Howell St. on first degree burglary charges following an incident at 2007 East Fifth St.

Chief Glenn Cannon said King was charged after he allegedly entered the Fifth Street dwelling, went to a second-floor bathroom, removed his clothes, then entered a bedroom occupied by a woman.

Cannon said the woman awoke when touched by the intruder, who then left the room.

The chief, who said the intruder left his shoes in the house when he fled, reported King was taken into custody on Ash Street, about two blocks away, riding his bicycle barefooted.

WEATHER OUTLOOK — Rain and showers are predicted Tuesday for the eastern half of the nation, while showers are expected in the Southwest, California and Nevada. (AP Laser-photo)

By The Associated Press
More fine fall weather is in store for North Carolina. Mostly sunny skies will cover the state and temperatures will be a degree or two warmer than Sunday's readings. Also the winds will not be as noticeable as they were on Sunday. Sunday was a sunny and breezy fall day with temperatures reaching the 70s in most areas however 60s were more common in the mountains. Highs ranged from 63 at Hendersonville to 78 at Laurinburg. Winds in the afternoon blew as strong as 25 to 30 mph in some sections. Sunday night was clear and calm across the state. These conditions allowed the temperatures to fall to quite chilly readings of 30s in the mountains and 40s in other sections except for the Outer Banks where the surrounding warm waters kept the temperatures in the 50s. No precipitation was felt in the state Sunday or Sunday night.

Papal Trail...

contraception, divorce, unmarried sex, against any release of priests from celibacy vows, and his strong denunciation of abortion in his farewell Mass on the Washington Mall. "All human life — from the moment of conception and through all subsequent stages — is sacred, because human life is created in the image and likeness of God," he declared. If that sacred life is violated at its origin, he said, "an indirect blow is struck also at the whole moral order."

human rights, hope and moral integrity in a permissive, jaded age obsessed with materialism struck a responsive chord all along his way. In any case, the enthusiasm for this heroic, stout-willed "herald of hope" showed up massively along his swift-paced rounds from Boston, New York and Philadelphia to the autumn-tinted farmlands of Iowa to ecstatic Chicago and official homage at the White House. An occasion of "solemn joy," President Carter termed it, and the Southern Baptist head of a nation told the head of world-wide Roman Catholicism: "You have offered your love... you can be sure... that the people of America return your love."

It was that heroic image, stemming partly from his sturdy defense of faith under the atheistic Communism of his homeland, that heightened his aura of magnetism, along with his unaffected spontaneity and forceful proclamation of his gospel message, to high and low alike. At the United Nations general assembly, he also called for safeguarding of human rights, religious freedom, for fairer sharing of rich lands with the poor, and most urgently, for stopping an arms race lest it bring "common extermination." "God bless America!" were his last public words before flying back to Rome. "God bless America!"

Says Explorer An Incompetent

LONDON (AP) — A new book to be published today says the legendary Antarctic explorer, Robert Falcon Scott, was one of the worst polar explorers whose incompetence resulted in his own death and four companions. But Sir Peter Scott, 70-year-old son of the British hero, says the book "Scott and Amundsen" by Roland Huntford "despicably maligns" his famous father. The five men died in blizzards in 1912 following a race with Norwegian explorer Roald Amundsen to be the first men to reach the South Pole. Amundsen won, reaching the pole on Dec. 14, 1911, 35 days ahead of Scott.

Air Taxi Crash In Takeoff

CINCINNATI (AP) — A twin-engine air taxi lost power in an engine and crashed on takeoff at Greater Cincinnati Airport today, and a federal official said seven people were killed.

Fred Farrar, an official with the Federal Aviation Administration in Washington, said the pilot and six other people died when Comair Flight 444 crashed while taking off for Nashville about 10:15 a.m.

He said witnesses reported the Piper Navaho's right engine cut off when the plane was 400 feet off the ground and that the craft then stalled and flipped over, crashing upside down.

Capt. Louise Bennett, a spokeswoman at the Salvation Army's Booth Memorial Hospital in Florence, Ky., said one injured victim was being treated at the hospital.

William Thelen, Federal Aviation Administration supervisor at the airport, said: "We are guessing at the moment that the right engine failed, and the pilot was unable to keep the aircraft airborne."

He said the aircraft crashed just off the runway on the grounds of the airport, which is located in Florence, Ky., several miles from Cincinnati.

Airport officials said the Piper Navaho carries eight to nine people.

'War On Winter' To Be Organizing On Tuesday

An organizational meeting of representatives from groups and interested individuals who wish to help in the Greenville Energy Program's "War on Winter" is scheduled for Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the chapel of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.

Linda Hix, coordinator of the local energy program, noted that cold weather is coming and the cost of heating homes is rising. For many families in the area, she observed, a choice might have to be made between having necessary warmth and having food to eat.

Ms. Hix explained that through the energy program's "War on Winter," several community projects are being designed to help alleviate the problems people are facing in high energy costs.

One major phase of "War on Winter" will be a community volunteer action project, she said. The Junior Woman's Club here is coordinating the project, which will involve various clubs, churches, agencies, and concerned citizens from the general community.

According to the spokesman, volunteers will be asked to contribute their time and efforts to make winterization improvements on the homes of low income, elderly people in Greenville who are physically and financially unable to do the work themselves.

Additional information is available from Ms. Hix at 752-7166 or Barbara Privette at 752-5725 or 756-9086.

CLAIM 'SPY PLANE'

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Syrian jets shot down an unmanned Israeli spy plane Sunday as Defense Minister Lt. Gen. Mustafa Tlass declared Syria was ready for a war of attrition with the Jewish state, and Israel's air force chief accused Syria of mounting a massive buildup of Soviet arms.

NEWS CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter will hold a news conference at 3:30 p.m. EDT Tuesday, his first in the nation's capital since July 25.

If you want a loan, Boss, you rate a special deal.

At Branch Banking and Trust, the customer's Boss. That's you.

And that's why we offer you the BB&T Simple Interest Loan.

Because when you want a loan for home improvements, farm machinery, a car, a vacation, or any other worthwhile purpose, you deserve the kind of loan that can save money.

And that's just what Simple Interest can do. Because it's the fairest kind of financing you can get, allowing you to sign a note for only the amount you borrow for the time you borrow it. With no interest added in advance.

This means that, instead of paying interest on the principal throughout the term of the loan, you pay it only on the amount you still owe. So your interest decreases as you pay off the loan.

You can save money by making payments early, or by paying extra amounts at any time. There's never a prepayment penalty. And never a delinquency charge.

So visit any BB&T office soon. Tell us what you need to make your life a little nicer, and we'll do our best to provide the Simple Interest Loan that does the job.

Because, being the Boss, you deserve nothing but the best.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved lower in slow Columbus Day trading today as series of anti-inflation moves by the Federal Reserve virtually assured a continued rise in short-term interest rates. But news of a Canadian natural gas discovery pushed some issues higher. The Fed over the weekend boosted its rate on loans to member banks, changed the way it watches money-supply figures and restricted bank lending by raising reserve requirements. Many of the steps were similar to those predicted by analysts and traders late last week and "for the most part were discounted" today, said Charles Jensen of MKI Securities.

NOW Support To Gay Rights

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Delegates to the 12th annual convention of the National Organization for Women closed a three-day meeting after adopting resolutions supporting homosexual rights and the rights of women to have abortions.

"We are going to launch the broadest reproductive rights campaign that we can," NOW President Eleanor Smeal told the 848 delegates Sunday after being elected to a second two-year term. "And lesbian rights will be right up front."

The resolution on gay rights was passed unanimously and created a National Lesbian Rights Campaign and called for "vigorous support of our allies in the lesbian and gay community."

The other resolution declared that "reproductive rights including abortion rights are issues of life and death for women, not mere matters of choice."

Earlier Sunday, Betty Friedman, an author and one of NOW's founders, told the organization that political candidates will have to provide guarantees of commitment to the proposed Equal Rights Amendment to gain support from women voters.

The ERA, which would outlaw discrimination based on sex, must be ratified by 38 states by June 30, 1982. So far, 35 states have ratified it, although five states have voted to rescind their ratifications. The validity of the rescissions has been questioned and the Justice Department has said it is up to Congress to decide.

Also elected as officers were Judy Goldsmith of Manitowoc, Wis., who ran unopposed for reelection as vice president executive; Jane Wells Schooley of Allentown, Pa., vice president action; Sandra Reeves Roth of Morgantown, W. Va., secretary; and Alice Chapman of Danbury, Conn., treasurer.

Hurting A Lot

Michael Lewis of Greenville was in guarded condition in Pitt Memorial Hospital today after being injured in a parachuting accident Sunday.

Lewis was injured about 1:30 p.m. yesterday while parachuting at New Bern. Officials said Lewis struck a power line as he was descending, which caused his parachute to collapse.

He suffered two broken legs, a broken wrist and facial fractures in the fall. Hospital spokesmen said Lewis was "hurting a lot" but should survive barring any complications.

Surviving her are two daughters, Mrs. Stuart Page of Greenville and Mrs. Sibyl Basart of Raleigh; a sister, Mrs. Vera L. Smith of Vanceboro; four grandchildren and seven great grandchildren.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home tonight from 7 to 9 p.m. At other times they will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Page, 119 S. Harding Street here.

Fraud Scandal Draws Prison

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — The Supreme Court today sentenced Eschel Rhodie to six years imprisonment for his role in South Africa's $100 million bid to buy international support for its much-criticized apartheid policy of racial segregation.

Rhodie, the former secretary of the government Information Department, had pleaded innocent to seven fraud charges. He was convicted last Monday of five counts of fraud. His attorney, J.C. Kreiger, said Rhodie would appeal.

In summing up the evidence today, Justice Carl Theron said certain explanations given by Rhodie about the use of government funds brought his credibility into doubt.

Brezhnev Said Back In Moscow
MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev returned to Moscow today from a trip to East Berlin to mark the 30th anniversary of the East German state, Tass reported.

In a Berlin speech Saturday night, Brezhnev made a series of proposals on the European military situation, including a pledge to withdraw up to 20,000 Soviet troops and 1,000 tanks from East Germany within 12 months.

The United States and its NATO partners viewed the the promise cautiously, but said it would be thoroughly studied. Western officials estimate Soviet troop strength in Europe at between 340,000 and 408,000 men.

It's Mr. Computer Vs. Mr. Sunshine In World Series

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Baseball's 1979 World Series boils down to this: it is "Mr. Computer" matching strategies with "Mr. Sunshine," the close-to-the-vest gang going against the free-wheeling Happiness Boys.

The Birds and the Bucs — one of the most intriguing matchups in years.

When you think of the Baltimore Orioles, the American League champions who ran off and hid from the favored Yankees and Red Sox, you conjure up a huge green chessboard presided over by a little pookish guy with silver hair.

But Earl Weaver, the Orioles manager, is baseball's Bobby Fischer — a mind like a steel trap, a plotter, a man of a thousand moves who leaves nothing to chance.

With Earl Weaver, the buck stops at his cluttered desk. "How important is a manager's role?" he repeats an oft-asked, loaded question. "It's everything. I pick the 25 men who play for me. I say when they play. I say what they do. I am responsible."

When you think of the Pittsburgh Pirates, the National League champions, you visualize a gang rumble — ear-puncturing noise, raucous banter, heavy bats, a lot of muscle, friendly pushing and shoving.

From the wings, a benign-looking man watched the tumult not with distaste but with obvious amusement.

"Aren't they great?" says Chuck Tanner, the skipper. "They have a lot of fun. No jealousies. No brooders. No featheds. This is their style. Everything is loose."

In the Pirate dressing room before a game, three stereos blare a deafening mixture of rock 'n roll, disco, and country music.

Dave Parker, a hulking giant of a man, lumbers in and begins removing his shirt. At close to $1 million a year, and self-proclaimed the best player in the game, he would appear to draw only awe and respect.

"Look at the big man," yells Phil Garner, a second-baseman half Parker's size. "What makes you think you can play ball? You are a big, clumsy oaf. You ought to be driving a truck."

Parker moves down the locker room, grabs Garner by the neck of his shirt and lifts him to eye level with one hand.

"I'll break you in two like a matchstick," he roars. The other Pittsburgh players laugh loudly and go about their chores. The smiling Tanner peeks out from the door of his private office.

"This is their Mutt and Jeff act," he says. "Nothing serious. They love it. All the guys love it. That's the way this team is."

Tanner is called "Mr. Sunshine" because of his amicable disposition and perpetual optimism. He looks upon his proteges as adults. He lets each do his own thing. He maintains discipline with a padded glove.

Weaver, winner of six division titles and four AL pennants in his 12 years as Baltimore boss, is quieter and appears more serious though he possesses a wry sense of humor. Many rate him the best manager in baseball.

This year he took a team without any big-salaried superstar and nursed them to 102 victories — the fourth time his teams have won more than 100 games. He won out in the toughest division in either league. He didn't do it with mirrors. He didn't do it with soft talk or iron discipline. He did it with cold logic. He compiled an exhaustive "book" on rival teams and set up a detailed card system on comparative strengths and weaknesses.

He developed what he called "deep depth" — plenty of strong arms in the bullpen and bats on the bench. He moved them around like pieces on a chess board. His moves were amazing.

"I've got good pitching and good defense," he says. "Sure I make the wrong move sometimes, but nobody's going to get many runs off us."

Big Dave Parker and Willie Stargell may offer a dissenting opinion.

Pirates' Kison Gets Nod . . .

PITTSBURGH (AP) — In the 1971 World Series, Bruce Kison was a slat-thin, 21-year-old rookie with boyish features that belonged in a high school yearbook.

The late Danny Murtaugh, craggy-faced manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, had this to say: "I looked older than him the day I was born."

But Kison was also a battler with a sailing, sidarm fastball that unsettled righthanded batters. And he won in relief against the Baltimore Orioles in the first night game in Series history.

Tuesday night, Kison will face the Orioles again in Game One of the 1979 World Series in Baltimore.

"Everybody on this staff is equally capable, but I'm happy I got the call," he said Sunday morning before the Pirates did some light running in a drizzle at Three Rivers Stadium.

Kison was cool as a rookie, so he took the assignment in stride after nine seasons in the majors.

Manager Chuck Tanner also said Bert Blyleven would start Wednesday night's second game. John Candelaria, resting his ailing ribcage, may pitch the third game here Friday.

Baltimore will start 23-game winner Mike Flanagan Tuesday night, followed by Jim Palmer Wednesday and Scott McGregor Friday.

Kison, hampered by a chronic blister on his throwing hand earlier this season, finished 13-7. But he was 4-0 in September, and his lifetime record in September is 23-6, consistent with his image as a money pitcher.

On Oct. 13, 1971, he was thrown into the breach as a long-reliever in Game Four of the '71 Series. He pitched 6 1-3 scoreless innings and Pittsburgh won 4-3. He also hit three batters, a World Series record for a one game.

Now that the Orioles are champions of the American League, after disposing of the Angels 8-0 in the final game, there indeed was a need for a Monday workout in preparation for the World Series.

Weaver decided on a pitching rotation to use against the Pittsburgh Pirates after consulting with scouts Bill Werle and Jim Russo. They recommended that it would be better to use mostly left-handers against Pittsburgh's predominantly left-handed power.

Weaver named 23-game winner Mike Flanagan to pitch the home opener Tuesday night. He'll be followed by right-hander Jim Palmer.

Taylor's Run

Billy Taylor of the New York Giants is hauled down after a 27-yard run in Sunday's game at Giants Stadium against the Tampa Bay Buccaneers. The run set up the Giants first touchdown, scored by Taylor. Taylor also scored the Giants second touchdown as the Giants went on to defeat the previous undefeated Buccaneers Sunday. (AP Laserphoto)

Birds Pick Flanagan

BALTIMORE (AP) — Earl Weaver may not be a genius, as some have proclaimed, but the manager of the Baltimore Orioles is a motivator.

Nothing gets the feisty skipper down for long, and he transmits his optimism to the ballclub.

About 11 hours after the Orioles had suffered a shocking 4-3 defeat to the California Angels in the ninth inning of Saturday's game, Weaver called a team meeting prior to Game Four of the American League Championship Series.

It would have been out of character for Weaver to rant and rave about a loss, but even the Orioles weren't ready for his opening line: "Workout Monday at 4 o'clock."

Now that the Orioles are champions of the American League, after disposing of the Angels 8-0 in the final game, there indeed was a need for a Monday workout in preparation for the World Series.

Bucs String Comes To End

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

Even Tampa Bay Coach John McKay knew it had to come to an end eventually.

"We really didn't expect to go undefeated," he said. "Now that we've lost, we won't get so much attention, and there will be less pressure."

The Buccaneers were the only undefeated team in the National Football League until Sunday afternoon when they met a fired-up New York Giants squad.

The Giants emerged with a 17-14 victory behind the running of reserve back Billy Taylor making his first start. They also put a "1" in their win column after six long weeks of play.

Taylor rushed for 148 yards on 33 carries, and he scored two touchdowns. Both his scoring bursts, of 2 and 1 yards, came in the second period. Joe Danelo kicked a 47-yard field goal in the fourth quarter for the eventual winning points.

Rookie Phil Simms went the distance for New York at quarterback, and with Coach Ray Perkins calling the plays, Simms went to the air just 12 times. He completed half of them for 37 yards, but he did not hurt himself by throwing interceptions as he did in his debut last week against Philadelphia.

In the other NFL games Sunday, Pittsburgh rolled over Cleveland 51-35, Denver blanked San Diego 7-0, Dallas whipped Minnesota 36-20, Los Angeles walloped New Orleans 35-17, New England got by Detroit 24-17, Kansas City edged Cincinnati 10-7, St. Louis upset Houston 24-17, Philadelphia downed Washington 28-17, Chicago shut out Buffalo 7-0, Seattle outdueled San Francisco 35-24, Atlanta smothered Green Bay 25-7 and Baltimore nipped the New York Jets 10-8.

Steelers 51, Browns 35
Terry Bradshaw threw three touchdown passes and Franco Harris ran for two more, one in a first quarter that saw Pittsburgh roll to a 21-0 lead over Cleveland. Harris' first-quarter TD was on a 71-yard run.

Rocky Bleier, best known as Harris' blocking back, also scored on a long run — 70 yards in the fourth quarter — as the Steelers recorded a club record 361 yards on the ground.

The Browns' quarterback, Brian Sipe, passed for a career high 351 yards and five touchdowns.

Broncos 7, Chargers 0
Denver quarterback Norris Weese scored the game's only touchdown on a 3-yard run in the third quarter. It was set up by a 26-yard return of a fumble recovered by Broncos safety Bill

Thompson.

Denver's Orange Crush defense held San Diego to 70 yards rushing. Chargers quarterback Dan Fouts passed for 305 yards, but he was intercepted three times in the second half to halt San Diego drives.

Cowboys 36, Vikings 20
Tony Dorsett ran for 145 yards, the 13th 100-yard game of his three years in the NFL, and scored three touchdowns for Dallas. Benny Barnes added a touchdown when he recovered a fumble and returned it 3 yards.

Dorsett's longest TD run was 30 yards and came after Minnesota had pulled to within three, 23-20, on a 28-yard touchdown pass by Vikings quarterback Tommy Kramer.

Eagles 28, Redskins 17
Running back Wilbert Montgomery ran for 127 yards and four touchdowns as Philadelphia rolled to a 28-7, then withstood a 10-point Washington rally.

Three of Montgomery's touchdowns came on short runs, and the fourth on an 11-yard pass from Ron Jaworski, who threw only 12 passes, but completed eight for 143 yards.

Bears 7, Bills 0
Walter Payton ran for 155 yards and the game's only touchdown, and Chicago held the top-rated passer in the NFL, Joe Ferguson, to just 50 yards in the air.

Ferguson completed just five of 21 passes in the cold rain in Buffalo.

Seahawks 35, 49ers 24
Dan Doornink ran for two touchdowns, and Sammy Green returned an intercepted Steve DeBerg pass 91 yards for another score as the Seahawks kept San Francisco from entering the win column.

Falcons 25, Packers 7
A swarming Atlanta defense sacked Green Bay quarterback David Whitehurst eight times, once for a safety, and Tim Mazzetti kicked three field goals for the Falcons.

Quarterback Steve Bartkowski got Atlanta on the board first with a 9-yard pass to Alfred Jenkins.

Colts 10, Jets 8
Greg Landry passed for 235 yards and the game's only touchdown, and Baltimore stopped a 10-game losing streak by beating the Jets.

Steve Little completed a 16-yard pass on fourth down.

Several plays later, Oilers quarterback Dan Pastorini was intercepted by defensive back Carl Allen, who returned it to Houston's 17. That set up Morris' 6-yard scoring run.

Walter Payton ran for 155 yards and the game's only touchdown, and Chicago held the top-rated passer in the NFL, Joe Ferguson, to just 50 yards in the air.

Ferguson completed just five of 21 passes in the cold rain in Buffalo.

Landry hit tight end Reese McCall midway through the first period with a 17-yard scoring pass, and Steve Mike-Meyer added a 41-yard field goal later in the period.

Tar Heels To Face Throwin' Deacons

By DICK BRINSTER
Associated Press Writer

North Carolina has not won its first five football games in any season since 1948, but the man most responsible for bettering the Tar Heels' 4-0 mark says he isn't concerned about that.

It's not that Coach Dick Crum is figuring all the 18th-ranked Tar Heels must do is show up Saturday to beat Wake Forest in their 1979 Atlantic Coast Conference debut. In fact, that would be a ridiculous notion in view of the Demon Deacons' 4-1 record.

"We'll probably mention that to the players," Crum said Sunday, "but that's really not important to us ... just the ball game."

Crum is long on theory and short on pomp and circumstance, and his theory at this point is that the Tar Heels must contain Wake Forest quarterback Jay Venuto. They had their share of practice Saturday when Cincinnati quarterback Tony Kapetanis completed 14 of 26 passes for 227 yards in the Bearcats' 35-14 loss to the Tar Heels.

"I think Cincinnati was good for us in that regard," said Crum.

"That's going to be the big question in the ball game," he said when asked if North Carolina could keep Wake Forest's aerial circus from stealing the show.

The Deacons had tough time for much of their contest against Virginia Tech, but Venuto hit on key passes in the fourth period as Wake Forest overcame a 14-7 deficit to come away as a 19-14 winner.

While Crum will be concerned with stopping Venuto, Wake Forest Coach John Mackovic has a major problem of his own — Famous Amos Lawrence, the nation's leading rusher.

"I remember Amos Lawrence," said Mackovic. "Once you see him you don't forget him."

Tailback Lawrence maintained his 140-yard per game average against Cincinnati with a 143-yard performance. And if that did not present a big enough problem for Mackovic, the Tar Heels showed him fullback Doug Paschal, generally Lawrence's blocker and quarterback Matt Kupec's short-yardage receiver. Paschal gained a career-high 111 yards against Cincinnati.

"I think we'll have to play our best defensive game of the year," Mackovic explained. "They certainly run the ball as well as anyone."

Those were the precise thoughts of Clemson Coach Danny Ford prior to the Tigers' 17-7 victory over Virginia. On Saturday the Tigers will face a lesser threat in the form of Virginia Tech's runners.

That may seem simple after the Tigers held the Cavaliers' backfield duo of Tom Vigorito and Greg Taylor to 144 yards. Virginia entered the game averaging 290 rushing yards.

"I thought our defense played extremely well," said Ford after Clemson became the first team in five weeks to short-circuit the Virginia cavalry.

"It was a near perfect performance," agreed Cavalier Coach Dick Bestwick, whose team has a breather Saturday against James Madison.

Many in the ACC football community thought it would be an excellent idea to have both North Carolina and North Carolina State unbeaten when they play Oct. 20. Once-beaten Auburn had other ideas and gave a rude demonstration of same in a 44-31 victory over N.C. State.

Coach Bo Rein must be concerned about a possible letdown when the Wolfpack takes on Maryland Saturday. He should be more concerned about a defense that is surrendering nearly 20 points each Saturday.

"It wasn't the offense, it wasn't the defense. We made enough mistakes everywhere," Rein said in explaining how the Wolfpack lost a 14-0 lead and was forced to score twice in the final period to make the game close.

"When you get behind a team that is as strong as Penn State you have a tough time coming back," said Maryland Coach Jerry Claiborne, whose Terrapins turned the ball over seven times and were soundly thrashed, 27-7, by Joe Paterno's Nittany Lions.

Duke avoided a loss for the first time in three weeks, but was forced to settle for a 17-17 tie against Army despite two touchdowns by Stanley Driskell. The Blue Devils play Richmond Saturday.

Florida A&M: Agile & Mobile

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Let's forget about the Southern Cal and the Alabamas and the Oklahomas and the rest of the Top Twenty for awhile and devote a few paragraphs to the Rattlers of Florida A&M.

That's the predominantly black school from Tallahassee which the legendary Coach Jake Gaither put on the football map. And that's 'A' as in agile, 'M' as in mobile and, as Gaither liked to say, the Rattlers were quite hostile Saturday in defeating Miami of Florida 16-13.

On the surface, it seems like just a game between two intrastate rivals. But it goes deeper than that. Florida A&M won the NCAA Division I-AA national championship last year while the University of Miami is classified as Division I-A.

The Southern Cal and Alabamas and Oklahomas, of course, reside in Division I-A with Miami. Besides Florida A&M, Division I-AA includes the likes of the Ohio Valley, Big Sky and Yankee Conferences, among others.

While Florida A&M was embarrassing Miami, the top five teams in The Associated Press ratings all rolled to relatively easy victories. Top-rated Southern California blasted Washington State 50-21, runnerup Alabama blanked Wichita State 38-0, No. 3 Oklahoma crushed Colorado and former Sooner coach Chuck Fairbanks 49-24, fourth-ranked Texas defeated Rice 26-9 and No. 5 Nebraska swamped New Mexico State 57-0.

Elsewhere, sixth-ranked Houston nipped Baylor 13-10, No. 7 Washington whipped Oregon State 41-0, No. 8 Ohio State shaded Northwestern 16-7, No. 9 Florida State drubbed Louisville 27-0 and No. 10 Notre Dame held off Georgia Tech 21-13.

In the Second Ten, No. 11 Michigan knocked off No. 16 Minnesota 21-7, Minnesota upset No. 12 Purdue 31-14, No. 13 Arkansas edged Texas Christian 16-13, Auburn bombed No. 14 North Carolina State 44-31, No. 17 Louisiana State downed Florida 20-3, No. 18 North Carolina beat Cincinnati 35-14 and Mississippi State surprised No. 19 Tennessee 28-9. Missouri, ranked No. 15, was idle while No. 20 Brigham Young beat Hawaii 38-15 Friday night.

Southern Cal surged to a 43-14 halftime bulge over Washington State as Paul McDonald completed 16 of 22 passes for 212 yards and two touchdowns while Charles White carried 17 times for 142 yards and also tallied twice.

Steadman Shealy and Major Ogilvie each scored twice while Shealy threw a 27-yard TD pass to Keith Pugh as Alabama trounced Wichita State.

Billy Sims scored four times and rushed for 118 yards in Oklahoma's rout of Colorado. It was a bittersweet return to Norman, Okla., for Fairbanks, who lost only 15 games in his six years as Oklahoma's head coach.

Texas' John Goodson kicked four field goals for the second week in a row for Texas while the defense held Rice to 169 yards. The Longhorns meet Oklahoma next week.

Craig Johnson scored three times as Nebraska buried New Mexico State and Kenny Hatfield's two fourth-quarter field goals lifted Houston past Baylor, which managed just 194 yards in total offense.

Washington's Joe Steele scored on runs of 18 and 13 yards against Oregon State while the Huskies' defense never let the losers inside the 32-yard line.

Art Schlichter's 4-yard touchdown pass to Brad Dwelle and three field goals helped Ohio State hold off Northwestern.

Bobby Butler recovered a blocked punt for a touchdown and intercepted a pass to set up another as Florida State whipped Louisville and Vagas Ferguson carried 39 times — a school record — for 177 yards and two touchdowns to help Notre Dame turn back Georgia Tech.

Michigan's B.J. Dickey teamed with Ralph Clayton on a tie-breaking 66-yard pass play in the third quarter and added a 6-yard toss to Anthony Carter in the final period to lead the Wolverines past Michigan State in the weekend's only meeting of Top Twenty teams.

"It was a great victory for us," said Coach Bo Schembechler. "It keeps us in the conference race and it keeps things in their proper perspective around here."

sticking so good in three and four that it was eating up the tires. You can say this was not my day for breaks," he said.

Petty had his share of tire problems.

"I knew my car was as fast if not faster than any car on the track," he said.

"Buddy was fast but I figured I could run him down. Just about the time I'd moved in on him I would cut a tire down. I had to stop three times for tires," he said.

Yarborough was spared tire problems, and he was happy to get the breaks.

Cale Grabs Fourth Win

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — After an afternoon of high-speed jockeying for position and frequent lead changes, Cale Yarborough put himself in the right place at the right time Sunday to win the $300,625 National 500 stock car race.

Yarborough, grabbing his fourth NASCAR Grand National win of the season in the 500-mile chase, hung tenaciously near the front but didn't fight for the lead until a wreck by front-runner Buddy Baker opened the way for Yarborough to cruise to an easy win.

"Right away I knew it was going to be the fastest pace I'd ever seen," said Yarborough, whose average speed of 134.266 mph was hampered by eight caution flags during the race.

Yarborough said he and crew chief Junior Johnson decided early in the race to stay in contention but let others set the pace — a strategy that varies drastically from Yarborough's style of all-out racing.

"I just backed down and let them go and it paid off," Yarborough said.

As the race neared an end, Yarborough was content to run in Baker's shadow. Their nearest competition was a lap back.

"As long as Buddy and I were getting away from everybody else, there was no use to race Buddy until we had to," he said.

Baker was the dominant figure for much of the race, putting his Chevrolet at the front of the 40-car pack four times for a total of 79 laps.

"I started down in the backstretch and saw (a slower car) in front of me slow up," Baker said. "I went to the outside, knowing he would drop down ... I got into the loose stuff and hit the wall. I had no place to go."

across the finish line a lap ahead of second-place Bobby Allison's Ford.

A pack that included Yarborough, Petty, Waltrip, the Allison brothers and others blasted around the 1.5-mile banked speedway at nearly 160 mph for most of the race.

With strong cars and a rash of caution flags to jumble the pack, there were frequent lead changes — 29 changes among 14 drivers during the race.

Waltrip, who led three times for a total of 27 laps, suffered tire problems and was forced into the pits several times.

At one point, he came in for new tires while others were running at full speed. If Waltrip had waited one lap, he could have pitted during a caution period which began seconds after he left his pit.

"It looked like everytime I would stop under the green (flag), the caution flag would come out on the next lap," Waltrip said.

"We really had the tire problems today. My car was

New Faces Of Optimism In NBA

Woody Peale

This Saturday afternoon's Homecoming game at East Carolina University has begun to look more and more like a very exciting contest.

The Citadel, a former Southern Conference rival of the Pirates, will be in town, riding a three-game winning streak. The Bulldogs, under coach Art Baker, have knocked off Vanderbilt, Appalachian State and Western Carolina on successive weekends.

Those wins came after a poor start, losing to Presbyterian and Navy in the first two games.

During his tenure at Furman University, Baker's teams were a thorn in the side of the Pirates. The last time he and the Pirates met, Baker's team came away with a victory.

This will be the first meeting of the two teams since Baker left Furman and took the same position at The Citadel a year ago.

The Pirates will be coming off an off-date, and should have used the time wisely to build their defense back to a more familiar one.

Rampant Problems

While Rocky Mount came away with a 21-14 victory on Friday night, whether the Gryphons were the better team was left somewhat in doubt.

Rose High proved to be its own worst enemy. The Rampants picked up costly penalties, at least one of which cost them the chance to tie the game in the late stages. Their kick coverage game also proved to be weak. For the third time in as many weeks, an opponent turned a punt into a touchdown.

Raleigh Enloe scored his first touchdown of the season against the Rampants on a lone punt return. Northern Nash got one of its touchdowns with a blocked punt recovery. Rocky Mount returned another punt for a score.

During the game, the Rampants seemed unable to get the ball to bounce their way at all. Rocky Mount's only turnover was given back when the officials ruled a runner "stopped," even though he was spinning away from a tackler and still standing up. Two plays later, Rocky Mount scored.

Just prior to their last score, the Rampants had four—yes, four—chances to stop their drive with an interception. Quarterback Bill Merrifield's short pass over the line bounced out of the hands of three Rampant defenders, one of whom made two grabs for it before it finally hit the ground.

Either one of those potential turnovers could have changed the course of the game.

Rose still has an excellent chance of reaching the playoffs, but would have the same road to travel it did in 1975 when it won the state title, having to win against a number one team the first time out. Division I gets two entries into this year's playoffs.

Massey Wins LPGA

WHEELING, W.Va. (AP) — Debbie Massey and Betsy King, who live only a few miles apart in eastern Pennsylvania's foothills, were only a few feet from going into a second sudden death playoff hole in the $100,000 Wheeling LPGA Classic.

Massey already had stroked in a six-foot par putt on the first playoff hole. All King had to do Sunday was to nurse her 12-foot putt into the cup to force another extra hole.

But she didn't. And Massey, coming back from the anguish of a last-round breakdown in the U.S. Open, was $15,000 and one tournament victory richer.

Massey, who was playing the final round head-to-head with King, had to rally from two shots behind with two holes to play. She made a short par putt on the par-4 17th hole, then watched as King took a bogey. Massey then forced the extra hole with a birdie from 15 feet on the par-5 18th hole, while King was missing her own birdie putt from 12 feet.

King opened the tournament with successive rounds of even-par 72 on the hilly Speidel golf course, but had to settle for a 3-over-par 75 Sunday. Massey shot a 1-over 73.

Marlene Floyd, who started the day a stroke off the pace, stayed there and finished third. Marlene Hagge and Susie

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer
Bill Walton is back and Larry Bird and Magic Johnson have arrived, bringing with them an air of excitement and anticipation as pro basketball, the self-styled "Sport of the Seventies," heads into the 1980s.

The past two seasons have not been kind ones for the National Basketball Association, which had entered the 1970s on the upbeat and had been hopeful of following pro football's stunning growth.

NBA attendance has leveled off, television ratings have dropped and the league has gone through a painful transition as the balance of power shifted from East to West, from tradition-steeped franchises like New York and Boston to expansion cities like Seattle, Portland and Phoenix.

But all that is about to change, say the experts.

"There's nothing fundamentally wrong with our game," declared Red Auerbach, president of the Boston Celtics. "It's still the most exciting sport around. I think that this year, with the return of Walton and the addition of Magic and Bird, things will pick up again."

All three of the big attractions will be in action Friday night when the NBA opens its 34th season, and two of them will be on display before a nationwide audience.

CBS plans to show Los Angeles' game at San Diego (8:30 p.m., PDT), which features:

—the professional debut of Johnson, the 6-foot-8 guard whose passing fancy led Michigan State to the NCAA title last winter and whom the Lakers made the first choice in the NBA draft, and,

—the return to action of Walton, the 1978 NBA Most Valuable Player who led Portland to the league title three years ago and this summer jumped to San Diego as a free agent for a reported $1 million a year.

Meanwhile, in Boston, Celtics fans will be treated to the unveiling of the most heralded rookie to join the NBA in several seasons — Bird, the 6-9 forward who carried Indiana State to national prominence. Bird, whose ball-handling brilliance brought him the highest contract ever for a rookie — reportedly $650,000 a year for five years — will lead the Celtics against the Houston Rockets.

But the NBA isn't putting all its eggs in those three baskets.

In an effort to spark interest and add excitement, particularly in the final minutes of close games, the league has adopted — on a one-year trial basis — the three-point field goal. It's the same rule used in the old American Basketball Association, with three points being awarded for field goals made from beyond an arc on the floor roughly 22 feet from the basket.

Two other major changes have been made. The New Orleans Jazz has moved to Utah, primarily because it was unable to obtain the playing dates it wanted in the Louisiana Superdome, and the league has gone back to two referees per game, dropping the three-referee system after one season because the owners felt the extra official did not justify the extra cost (estimated at $30,000 per team, the same as the minimum player salary).

Seven teams start the season with different coaches than they had a year ago.

Three highly regarded assistants are getting their first NBA head coaching jobs — Jack McKinney at Los Angeles, Del Harris at Houston and Stan Albeck at Cleveland. Two head coaches have switched team — Tom Nissalke going from Houston to Utah and Bill Fitch moving from Cleveland to Boston. Donnie Walsh, who finished last season as the interim coach at Denver, has the post on a permanent basis now, and Jerry Sloan, the heir apparent at Chicago for several seasons, has finally ascended to the throne. Walton was one of many prominent free agents to switch teams over the summer. Two-time assists champion Kevin Porter moved from Detroit to Washington, where he replaces Tom Henderson, who moved to Houston as a free agent. M.L. Carr went from Detroit to Boston, Mickey Johnson jumped from Chicago to Indiana and James McElroy moved from Utah to Detroit.

Other name players wearing new uniforms as a result of trades or free agent compensation agreements are Bob McAdoo of Detroit, Spencer Haywood of Los Angeles, Adrian Dantley and Bernard King of Utah, Rich Kelley of New Jersey, Randy Smith of Cleveland, Ricky Sobers of Chicago and Kermit Washington of Portland.

While the rookie spotlight has focused on Bird and Johnson, several other first-year men figure to make their presence felt.

Among them are center Bill Cartwright of New York, forwards Greg Kelsey and Phil Hubbard of Detroit, David Greenwood of Chicago, Reggie King of Kansas City, James Bailey of Seattle and Calvin Natt and Cliff Robinson of New Jersey, and guards Sidney Moncreif of Milwaukee, Vinnie Johnson of Seattle, Roy Hamilton of Detroit, Jimmy Paxson of Portland, Brad Holland of Los Angeles, Dudley Bradley of Indiana and Jim Spanarkel of Philadelphia.

The playoff system is the same, with 12 of 22 teams qualifying for postseason play and the four division winners getting first-round byes. The regular season is still 82 games, but the schedule has been compressed so that it will end one week earlier than last season. This was made possible by the change from last year's balanced schedule to one where each club faces its conference rivals six times each and plays opponents from the other conference twice apiece.

In a realignment, Utah has been placed in the Midwest Division and Indiana has moved to the Central.

Seattle, which won its first NBA title last season by beating Washington in five games in the playoff finals, is seeking to become the league's first repeat champion since the Boston Celtics of 1968-69. The other defending division titlists are Kansas City, San Antonio and Washington.

Oakland Needs Win Over Miami

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — The last time the Miami Dolphins played the Oakland Raiders in Oakland, the Dolphins were defending Super Bowl champions, the Raiders was a football bridesmaid and Larry Csonka was about to become a league-jumper.

Since that 1974 playoff game, the Dolphins have become one of the National Football League's best also-rans, the Raiders have won a Super Bowl — and missed the playoffs two years later — while Csonka has come back to Miami, almost as if he never left.

Now, with the teams meeting again tonight, it has been Csonka who has led the Dolphins to a 4-1 record, alone at the top of the American Conference East. The Raiders, meanwhile, sit near the bottom of the AFC West with a 2-3 mark, 1½ games behind Kansas City, Denver and San Diego.

But the Raiders will have precedent on their side. They have never lost to the Dolphins in six meetings at home, including that 28-26 victory in the playoffs.

They have also a 11-1-1 record in Monday night games. Miami is 12-3 on Monday night.

As they did in their glory years, Miami runs the ball a lot. The Dolphins averaged 155 yards on the ground in the four victories before getting only 68 in last week's loss to the New York Jets.

Csonka, who says he will retire after this year, has 267 yards in five games, averaging 4.1 yards a carry since returning to Miami from the New York Giants, where he went after the World Football League folded.

"When Larry left, we started to do things differently," Coach Don Shula says. "We started to throw the ball more. Now we can play ball control again."

In contrast, the Raiders have had a weak running game, primarily because of injuries. So they have gone to a double tight end alignment in an effort to get more power up front.

Uplifting, Well-Told Story

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — "When Hell Was in Session" is a prisoner of war movie drawn from the Vietnam War. Like the war itself, it is a story altogether apart.

No daredevil "Great Escapes" here, no sophisticated tunnel systems or hidden radios to outfit captors. The prisoners in this story don't sit around plotting crafty escapes. Survival is their victory.

The movie is based on the experiences of Cmdr. Jeremiah A. Denton, a Navy flier shot down over North Vietnam in 1965 and held prisoner for 7½ years. A hellish sentence it was.

The movie, a two-hour "NBC Theater" special, opens with a realistic scene on the flight deck of the aircraft carrier Independence. A bombing mission is being launched.

Mrs. Denton (Eva Marie Saint) is a gentle woman of quiet strength; at first she believes her husband will be home in a matter of months. After all, a friend tells her, "This isn't even a war."

Denton, deftly played by Hal Hoolbrook, and his co-pilot deliver their bombs, but their A6 Intruder is hit by anti-aircraft fire. They eject, and are captured.

Meanwhile, prisoners try to survive torture and isolation in the Vietnamese camps, mean places with nicknames such as, Alcatraz, The Zoo and Heart-break Hotel.

Denton, wounded and weak, is blind-folded, dumped into a truck and taken to a prison camp for interrogation. He reminds his captors of the prisoner of war articles of the Geneva Convention. They are not moved.

Denton, finally, is broken. He agrees to a televised "confession." He's cleaned up and paraded before a Japanese film crew in Hanoi, but foils his captors' propaganda play by blinking out the word "T-O-R-T-U-R-E" in Morse Code.

He is tossed into a dank, tiny cell. There he makes contact with another prisoner, who hints at the torture and starvation in store for Denton.

"When Hell Was in Session" is a drama of personal courage and triumphs in a lost war, of heroics in a war that produced no Hollywood heroes. It is not a self-chastisement, as Vietnam movies tend to be, nor does it attempt to explain.

"The thing you have to know around here more than anything else," the other explains, "is that they don't have to do anything."

It tells a story. Amazingly, it is an uplifting story. It is told quite well.

Weigh Candidates For Boston Pops Conductor

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer
BOSTON (AP) — Two music men from show business are among those under consideration to take over the job as conductor of the Boston Pops, the longtime job of the late Arthur Fiedler.

Miller among possible successors. They were among five whom the orchestra said will conduct special Pops concerts during the fall and winter in Boston and on tour. Boston Symphony General Manager Thomas W. Morris said the five "definitely should be considered candidates."

In addition to Williams and Miller, the Pops will be conducted through February by Harry Ellis Dickson, the longtime No. 2 man at the Pops; John Covelli, conductor of the Flint, Mich., Symphony Orchestra; and Erich Kunzel, a guest conductor of the Cincinnati Symphony.

Picking a new conductor is serious business, because during the half century it was led by Fiedler, the Pops became a major money-maker for the Boston Symphony. Fiedler, 84, died in July.

See Pope As A Composer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Pope John Paul II is being invited to join the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers because the pontiff is "a very good songwriter."

"Pope John Paul II is a songwriter, a very good songwriter, and we feel he naturally should be a member of our society," said Ed Shea, southern regional director of ASCAP.

"I've written him a letter and we expect a reply as soon as he gets back to the Vatican," said Shea, a Catholic.

Shea said the pope became eligible for membership because of an album on the Crystal Ball "featuring John Paul II's rich bass voice singing six folk songs" which he wrote.

"ASCAP is the most prestigious music society in America and, if he joins, he'll be associated with the likes of Irving Berlin, Stevie Wonder and many of the country music greats," Shea said.

Kenny Rogers' Musical Career Is Riding High

By MARK SCHWED
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — The roller coaster Kenny Rogers has been riding most of his musical career — from gospel to rock to pop to country and back to pop again — has finally peaked and shows no sign of descending.

The husky Texan with the mellow voice and distinguished salt and pepper beard, with top honors already this year from the Academy of Country Music and the Music City News, is favored to be named Entertainer of the Year Monday night on the nationally televised Country Music Association awards program.

His chief competition includes slinky singers Crystal Gayle and Barbara Mandrell, Willie Nelson and The Statler Brothers, the first group ever nominated for the top CMA award.

In addition Rogers' "The Gambler" is up for song, album and single of the year. Another Rogers recording, "She Believes in Me," written by Steve Gibb, has been nominated for best song. He is also in the running for top male vocalist and best duo for his performances with Dottie West.

Earlier this year, Rogers was also honored for having sold records worth $100 million in the last four years. Selling records is nothing new to Rogers. His first million-seller, "Crazy Feeling," was recorded at the age of 19 and led to an appearance on Dick Clark's American Bandstand.

Unfortunately, Rogers faded into obscurity following the single hit and spent a brief time with the Bobby Doyle Trio and the New Christy Minstrels before he and some other Minstrels members formed the First Edition, a hard-rock group.

One of eight children, Rogers developed his "love for music" while singing in the choir every Sunday, but as he matured it took on another meaning.

"I started singing because, in high school, groups got all the girls. We felt we weren't getting our share, so, we bought wine-colored dinner jackets, started singing Doo-Wah songs and immediately started getting the girls," Rogers says.

Roy Clark, hoping to make it three in a row for the top instrumentalist award, was pitted against Chet Atkins, the only other three-time winner, Buddy Emmons, Charlie McCoy and Charlie Daniels.

Instead of retiring, Rogers gambled on a solo career that has paid off handsomely. It was "Lucille," the song by Roger Bowling and Hal Bynum, that brought Rogers back into the limelight in less than two years.

"I was going along just fine with my quiet little career," says Rogers, "when someone screwed up and got me a hit." The hits followed "Lucille," one after another: "The Gambler," "She Believes in You," and "You Decorated My Life," the 13th hit single of his career.

The Kendalls, a former St. Louis barber and his daughter, will be trying for vocal group of the year along with the Charlie Daniels Band, the Oak Ridge Boys, Dave & Sugar and the Statlers.

After a 10-year stint with the First Edition and a string of hits, Rogers said the group folded because, "doing the same thing over and over just didn't excite us."

Modified Competency Test Is Considered For Handicapped

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state may modify the minimum competency test to make it easier for handicapped students to take the test.

The competency test commission is considering a number of proposals that it has received as it has held hearing across the state on whether handicapped students should be required to take the test.

Some teachers of deaf students have urged the commission to allow deaf students to take the test in sign language. All students are required by law to pass the test to graduate with a diploma. Parents may petition local school boards for an exemption if they feel their children might be harmed by the process of taking the test.

Some parents have sought modifications to meet special needs. Dr. James Gallagher, chairman of the test commission, said that proposed test modifications include braille for the blind, large print for the visually impaired and audio cassettes for students with hearing problems.

"Mostly the feelings are the exceptional children should take the competency test as long as it is administered fairly," he said.

Some modifications were made last year for handicapped students, but the large number who failed raised questions about who should be required to take the test. Those questions prompted the series of public meetings.

When the test was administered for the first time last year, only 46 percent of the 3,000 handicapped students taking the test passed it. Those with the most difficulty were the educable mentally handicapped.

"The thing that keeps coming up is that fact that people who teach deaf children don't feel our test modifications are appropriate," said William Brown, director of the instruction department's research division. "They feel the child who is totally deaf has a different linguistic system from English and they would like for the child to receive the test in sign language."

Gallagher said during the next few weeks, the commission will be mailing out questionnaires to groups and organizations who deal with exceptional children.

The commission will study the suggestions and make a recommendation to the State Board of Education in 1980.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, OCT. 9, 1979

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You have considerable desire for adventure now and can engage in new activities with much satisfaction. Be alert to new opportunities coming your way. This is no time to strut.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Going out of your way to improve public relations is wise today. Handle a civic matter in a clever way and gain the benefits.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Study reports well and you gain more profits. Take time for seeing people you like and who can be helpful to you.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Concentrate on personal matters and go after your aims in a positive fashion. Not a good day to engage in a new interest.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Know how to approach advisers so that you gain their goodwill and advice. Don't neglect business matters at this time.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Handle important duties early in the day so you will have time for recreation later. Be careful not to lose your temper with anyone.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Handling public duties today can improve your position in the community. Avoid those who are prone to making you angry.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Put those ideas to work that will help you to advance in your career. Sidestep one who is detrimental to your best interests.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be sure to handle all your duties intelligently and gain the approval of others. Strive for increased harmony with loved one.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Try to please associates more and don't be afraid to ask what is expected of you. Show your true ability.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Use new methods in handling work ahead of you and get it done efficiently. Listen to what co-workers have to suggest.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You have excellent judgment now and can easily gain your aims. Don't waste time on unimportant matters at this time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Talk matters over with family members and make improvements at home that are necessary. Act kindly toward others.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be very good at handling emergencies. Teach to persevere in whatever is once started until it is finished, since the talents are many in this chart. Give as fine an education as you can afford and success will follow.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Today's Cryptokuip clue: E equals N

The Cryptokuip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF © 1979 by Chicago Tribune

Q.1 — As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠62 ♥AK95 ♦AQ83 ♣J82

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1♥ Pass 1NT Pass ?

What action do you take?

A. — Simple arithmetic should provide you with the correct answer. You have only 14 points in high cards and you cannot expect more than 9-10 points from partner, and he may have only 6. Even if partner is maximum, there is no game. Since your hand is balanced, it would be foolish to look for a better spot.

Q.2 — Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠AK43 ♥1052 ♦A63 ♣Q43

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West Pass Pass 1♦ Pass 2♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A. — When you opened this hand, it was with the idea of reaching a satisfactory part score rather than game — after all, you have a minimum opening bid and a balanced hand, and partner has already passed. Partner's response did not change this. You are in a playable contract at a comfortable level, so pass.

Q.3 — Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠KQ103 ♥KQ63 ♦QJ102 ♣7

The bidding has proceeded: West North East South 1♦ Dble. Pass ?

What action do you take?

A. — You want to be in game in either major, but there is no need for you to blindly leap to four spades or four hearts and hope that partner produces four-card support. Simply cue-bid two diamonds, forcing partner to show a major. Naturally you intend raising to game whichever major suit partner bids.

Q.4 — Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠QJ10964 ♥5 ♦KQ10963

Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one heart. What action do you take?

A. — Your intention with this distributional powerhouse is to buy the hand at whatever level is necessary. However, a little foresight is required. If you overcall one spade, you may have to show your diamond suit at the five-level (♠) at your next turn. Therefore, we recommend that you overcall two diamonds now, and then introduce your spades in an effort to buy the contract as cheaply as possible.

Q.5 — East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠J4 ♥A98 ♦AJ105 ♣KQ106

The bidding has proceeded: East South West North 1♥ Pass Pass Dble. Pass ?

What action do you take?

A. — Vulnerability often dictates our actions. Here, for example, you have a wealth of values opposite a partner who has shown the equivalent, or thereabouts, of an opening bid. Nevertheless, our offensive prospects are poor, for our only probable game is in no trump, which may be defeated after a heart lead. In view of this fact, we would pass and hope that the vulnerable opponents might incur a penalty equivalent to, or in excess of, any contract we might make.

Q.6 — As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠QJ4 ♥KQ1074 ♦6 ♣A942

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1♦ Pass 2♥ Pass 3♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A. — Despite partner's minimum rebid, your holding in his suit and controls in the minor suits indicate definite slam possibilities.

Business Notes

EARNINGS INCREASED

Jack Eckerd Corp., operator of the 15-state Eckerd Drug chain, reported its LIFO (last in, first out) net earnings increased 17.1 percent on a 17.1 percent sales gain for the 1979 fiscal year ended July 28.

Stewart Turley, chairman and president, said LIFO net earnings for the year were $59.3 million, up from $50.6 million the previous year.

Turley added that on a FIFO (first in, first out) basis, earnings were $64.4 million, an increase of 18.9 percent, and sales rose to $1.33 billion, up 17.1 percent from 1978 sales of $1.13 billion.

The Eckerd board of directors declared a cash dividend of 25 cents per common share, payable Dec. 3 to shareholders of record at the close of business Nov. 16. The dividend is a 25 percent increase over the 20 cents previously paid.

CREDIT ROSE

According to weekly figures released by the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, bank credit at 19 large commercial banks in the Fifth District rose $21,499,000 in the week ended Sept. 26, raising bank credit outstanding to a level of $30,239,380,000.

Total loans, adjusted—total loans exclusive of loans to domestic commercial banks—fell $3,927,000, while total investments increased $25,426,000.

Included in the Fifth District are North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, Maryland, the District of Columbia, and most of West Virginia.

COURSE PLANNED

An introductory course in the appraisal of real estate will be offered Nov. 5-16 at Appalachian State University in Boone by the International Society of Real Estate Appraisers.

"Introduction to Appraising Real Property," Course 101, will cover appraisal theory, real estate economics and urban land study as well as current techniques utilized in the appraisal of residential property.

NEW ACCOUNT

Allen & Longino Advertising of Greenville has been made agency of record for Group 10 Builders, also of Greenville, the agency announced.

Allen & Longino will handle advertising, collateral materials and public relations duties for Group 10, a marketing association of residential builders.

Tourists Bring Malaria Cases

ATLANTA (AP) — American tourists brought more cases of malaria home with them last year, bumping the number of cases reported to 616 in 1978, 28.3 percent more than the 481 cases in 1977. Six deaths were attributed to malaria in 1978, double the figure from the previous year, the national Center for Disease Control said in an annual report on the disease.

Dr. Myron Schultz, director of the CDC's parasitic diseases division, said Saturday the number of American civilians contracting malaria has been increasing for the past decade. "We now have three times the number of cases among civilians that we had a few years ago," Schultz said.

"This is in part because people are traveling more. Second, they are traveling to more exotic places and deeper into the countryside."

Malaria was common among U.S. military personnel in Vietnam in the late 1960s and early 1970s. The CDC report showed a peak of 4,096 cases among military personnel in 1970, when only 90 civilians contracted malaria. In 1978, only 31 cases were reported in the military.

Malaria is caused by parasites circulating in the bloodstream and is usually transmitted by mosquitoes. It has been under control in the United States for years. The CDC report said almost all new cases are imported.

"Indigenous malaria is out of control in many countries in the world, especially in Asia," Schultz said. "The people living in those developing countries are suffering from much more malaria, and our travelers reflect that."

The CDC report said 52.1 percent of the malaria cases imported in 1978 came from Asia, 28.9 percent from Africa, 12 percent from Central America and the Caribbean and 2.2 percent from South America.

Six of the 616 cases in 1978 were contracted in the United States. Three resulted from blood transfusions, two were passed to unborn children by their mothers and the sixth followed a kidney transplant.

Malaria is usually treatable, Schultz said, but it is sometimes mistaken for other diseases.

"American physicians are not thinking of exotic diseases and sometimes they'll miss the diagnosis," he said.

Tourists can minimize the risk of malaria by sleeping in screened areas to avoid mosquitoes and by using insecticides, Schultz said. Also, a drug can be taken to ward off the disease.

"Probably the most important thing, if you develop illness after traveling, is to tell your physician you've been in a malarious area," Schultz said.

Town Hall And Houses May Be Told To Move

HOLDEN BEACH, N.C. (AP) — The town hall and several houses here sit on a 1,000-yard-wide strip that's owned by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. And some residents fear they may be forced to leave because the corps is reasserting its claim to the land.

Corps officials say they haven't pressed the issue of their 47-year-old claim because the land wasn't needed before. They add that they haven't decided yet whether to ask that the structures be removed from the federal right-of-way.

"We could do so justifiably," said a corps attorney.

But town officials say the corps in the past had no objections — and has even given permission — for construction on the easement. A number of canals have been cut through it and houses built alongside them.

The easement is a strip along the Intracoastal Waterway, which runs between Holden Beach and the mainland in Brunswick County. The state granted the property to the corps in 1932. It is used primarily as a dump for material dredged from the waterway.

Corps officials say they may run out of room in a few years and will need more of the easement area for their dumping.

"Durned if I know what's going to happen," said Mayor Kenner R. Amos.

"I don't really want to say anything, but they can't really throw us out of our homes, can they?" asked one resident.

Corps officials say the town and developers should have been aware of the easement line. They asked the town this summer to stop issuing building permits, but the town refused.

"Yes, we did issue permits for construction of canals," said Allan Tyrrell, a corps attorney. "But once the canals were built, they pulled sort of an end run by putting up houses."

In a letter to the town in August, Col. Adolph A. Hight said, "It is the policy of the Corps of Engineers not to allow any permanent construction within the easement area."

Hight is the corps' Wilmington district engineer. Town officials are hoping to meet with him soon.

The corps' easement extends the length of the coast along the waterway, and a number of houses have been built in other areas. Edward Croom of the Wilmington office said the Holden Beach situation is the worst.

Educators At ECU Conference

ECU News Bureau
BURLINGTON — Forty-nine science educators from North Carolina schools, colleges and universities participated in a recent summary conference here sponsored by East Carolina University.

Purpose of the meeting was to summarize a research project on elementary science conducted by Dr. Charles Coble of the ECU science education faculty and Dr. Dale Rick of the Fayetteville Graduate Center.

The project's conclusion was that science instruction in the elementary classrooms needs to be expanded and developed further.

The Coble-Rice project was supported by the National Science Foundation.

Expects Colony

On Mars Ahead

ALAMOGORDO, N.M. (AP) — Harrison Schmitt, one-time moonwalker and now a U.S. senator from New Mexico, says it's just a matter of time until American space travelers colonize Mars.

"We have already moved beyond the moon," said the Republican senator who piloted the Apollo 17 lunar module in 1972. "The Edgar Mitchells, the John Glens and the Alan Shepards already live in the past."

"On Mars, the farming will be conducted under inflated domes, using irrigation techniques developed right here in New Mexico," Schmitt said. "The independence of the settlers on Mars will resemble that expressed by another group of settlers in our nation's past as they tamed an earlier frontier."

Pushing A 15 Percent Teacher Pay Increase

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A legislative assistant for the North Carolina Association of Educators says he is optimistic that the Legislature will approve a 15 percent pay raise for state employees next year.

Bob Canavan made the remarks after the NCAE's legislative committee voted Saturday to seek such a raise next year. The recommendation will be presented to the educators' group directors Oct. 14.

The committee also recommended a number of other programs, including increasing the amount appropriated for instructional materials.

To give all state employees the raise, the legislature would have to appropriate $300 million, Canavan said.

The suggestion calls for a raise of 15 percent or an amount equal to the consumer price index from April 1, 1979, through March 30, 1980, whichever amount is higher.

"The case is there to justify the request; educators (have) lost 23 percent in real buying power since 1974," Canavan said.

In 1979, the Legislature approved a 7 percent pay hike and a $200 cash bonus. Gov. Jim Hunt has said he does not expect the state to have the money next year to give state employees the raise they are seeking.

The committee also will recommend the state increase appropriations per pupil for instructional material from $25 to $35. As in 1979, it will seek one teacher for every 26 students in grades kindergarten through 12, full funding of textbooks in all grades and appropriation of additional money for remedial programs.

Canavan said the NCAE also will try to secure passage of professional negotiations-collective bargaining legislation. Such legislation has been supported by the NCAE for several years, but never passed by the General Assembly.

The legislation would enable teachers to lobby as a group. Such activity is now prohibited.

The legislative committee said it will seek a number of benefits it requested in 1979. They include continued appropriations for medical insurance programs for active and retired personnel, an employer-paid dental insurance plan, an increase from 1.55 percent to 1.75 percent in the retirement formula and a cost-of-living adjustment for retired persons.

The NCAE represents most of the state's 55,000 public-school teachers.

Stricken By Bus Fumes

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn. (AP) — Diesel exhaust fumes from school buses taking Claiborne County High School band members home after a concert sent about 50 of the students to area hospitals Saturday night, authorities said.

John Herron, community relations director for Memorial Hospital, said 37 students from Claiborne County High School in Tazewell, Tenn. were treated but no one was admitted.

"The students inhaled some diesel fumes from the buses," he said in a telephone interview Saturday night. "Some have hyperventilated and they're being treated with oxygen and nausea medication. We don't think any will have to be admitted. They were on board two or three buses and were headed home."

The band festival was staged at East Tennessee State University.

Eddie George, North Side Hospital administrator, said 12 students were treated at his facility, but no one was admitted.

Band leader Brent Barton said drums were being loaded on his bus and chaperones were taking a headcount when the students began complaining about the exhaust odor.

Term Disliked By Movie Mogul

NEW YORK (AP) — Movie mogul Samuel Z. Arkoff says he doesn't mind being called "King of the 'B' movies" but doesn't think much of the label "Schlockmeister of Wilshire Boulevard."

"Schlock" bothers me," Arkoff said in an interview in the Oct. 15 issue of "People" magazine. "It's an offensive word that means the merchandise is cheap. It's unfair and utter nonsense."

But the 61-year-old producer of more than 500 feature films, said the "B" in B movies stood for low budget, and that was all right.

Squirming, Happy Baby Unaware Survival Viewed As A Miracle

BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP) — David Lee Patterson lies in his crib kicking and squirming, unaware that he is hailed as a "miracle baby."

He coos and smiles at his parents; squeals with delight at the nursery rhyme characters dangling from a mobile above him.

David, who weighed six pounds and four ounces at birth July 18, developed outside his mother's womb.

Doctors at North Carolina Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill said such a live birth is too rare to be calculated. Dr. Linn Hatley, who delivered him, said the chances of an abdominal pregnancy are only one in 6,000 to 10,000, and the chances of bearing a baby from such a pregnancy are so fractional there are no statistics.

But David appears normal, and he continues to grow and make progress.

And his parents, Charles and Shirley Patterson, both 32, aren't a bit surprised.

"All the time I was carrying David I never prayed for an easy delivery. I just prayed for a healthy baby. And my prayer was answered, because there he is," said Mrs. Patterson, who left her job as a folder at Burlington Industries Hosiery Center early in her pregnancy.

"God had his hands on that baby," added Patterson.

Patterson, a machine operator at a Walter Kidde plant in Alamance County, said doctors in Burlington and at Chapel Hill thought his wife would be all right, but they weren't sure about the baby.

"They handled her with kid gloves, and they knew something wasn't right when she was having so much trouble during her pregnancy — and that's the reason they sent her to Chapel Hill. If they'd known about the baby, they could've done the same thing here," he said.

the baby had burst through the womb and believed it to be dead.

"I was right there when they did the ultrascan, and they said they couldn't see any movement or anything," he said. "But just like I told Shirley, I could see that little old leg a-moving. The little old leg was moving. God had promised us that young 'un, and I just knew he wasn't going to take him away."

The Pattersons have lived in Alamance County for 12 years, and now live in a mobile home. She is from Caswell County, and Patterson is from Orange County. His father is a former police chief in Garden City, Idaho.

They have remained unpretentious and unaffected by the attention that came to them so suddenly. They have a box of clippings from all over the country, but they turned down one magazine's offer to pay them for their story because, they said, they don't admire the publication.

Ten People Die In N.C. Traffic

By The Associated Press

Traffic accidents in North Carolina this weekend killed 10 persons, including two in a collision on U. S. 220 in Montgomery County, according to the Highway Patrol.

The patrol said the accidents pushed this year's toll to 1,140 deaths, compared to 1,097 at this time last year.

The patrol said Alfred Cherry III, 28, of Windsor, was lying in the roadway of N. C. 308 seven miles west of Windsor Saturday night and was killed when he was struck by a vehicle.

Dorothy Harper White, 30, of Grifton was killed Sunday afternoon when her car ran off a rural road in Lenoir County, the patrol said. She was thrown from the car and pinned under it, the patrol said.

Two vehicles collided on U. S. 220 one mile south of Biscoe Saturday, killing two persons and injuring six. The patrol identified the dead as Bill Quick, 46, of Gibson, driver of one car, and a passenger, Frank Wall Jr., of McColl, S. C.

William Gilbert Hendricks, 18, of Hendersonville, was killed in Henderson County Friday on a rural road when he lost control of his car and struck a tree.

Thomas John Tolero, 30, of High Point, passenger on a motorcycle, was killed in Thomasville Saturday when the motorcycle, traveling at high speed, went out of control, according to the patrol.

Terry Wilson Collins, 33, of Clarkton, a pedestrian, was killed on a Bladen County road Saturday night when he was struck by a car.

James Ronald Lee, 17, of Fairmont was killed on N. C. 41 in Robeson County Sunday evening when the car he was driving and another car collided head-on, the patrol said.

A 9-year-old girl was killed Sunday afternoon in Montgomery County when she was hit by a car, the patrol reported. She was identified as Tira Regina Legrande of Mount Gilead.

Kind Words For Journalists

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pope John Paul II had kind words and a fond farewell for the 270 journalists who traveled with him through America.

"You have performed the service of stimulating people to think about how they might contribute to a firmer foundation for peace, for cooperation and for justice among all persons," the pope told an international group of reporters, photographers and broadcast technicians Sunday at the residence of the apostolic delegate to the United States.

"You are a small group so I will have a small speech," he said as he began to read his prepared speech.

"Here we are together again at the end of another journey..." There was a pause, and the pope, weary after 10 days on the road in Ireland and the United States, ad libbed, "Praise be to God. Thanks be to God."

TO GO ON TRIAL

PEKING (AP) — The "Gang of Four", the deposed radicals led by Mao Tse-tung's widow, will be put on trial soon. "As to when, I can tell you it won't be too long," Premier Hua Guofeng told reporters in response to a question Sunday.

Says Windfall Tax Should Ease Burden

By JOHN F. BARTON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William Roth, R-Del., author of an unsuccessful tax cut proposal in the last Congress, now wants to save taxpayers $11 billion by tapping windfall oil profits to pay big Social Security tax increases scheduled in 1981.

In an interview with United Press International, Roth said he will introduce during the coming week an amendment to the windfall profits tax bill that would freeze Social Security payroll taxes at 1980 levels.

Roth is a member of the Senate Finance Committee, which resumes work on the oil tax proposal Tuesday.

Under his amendment, a portion of the increased revenues from oil depletion would be earmarked for the Social Security fund.

Roth said the committee already has agreed to provide oil companies and homeowners with billions of dollars worth of tax credits and exemptions from the windfall tax.

"The last one anyone is thinking about is the working people," Roth said. His amendment, he said, would prevent individual wage earners from being "left out in the cold."

Roth estimates the payroll tax freeze would save taxpayers $11 billion in the first year.

He said a family of four earning the 1981 median income would save $116. Without his plan, Roth said, that family would pay more than $900 in higher taxes because of the Social Security tax hike and inflation.

The current Social Security tax rate is 6.1 percent on income up to $22,900. That income base rises to $25,700 in 1980. Because fiscal 1980 started Oct. 1, Roth's amendment cannot stop that hike.

But he said his proposal could block the big 1981 increase, when the Social Security tax rate is due to jump to 6.5 percent on $29,700 in income.

An analysis of Roth's amendment by the Congressional Budget Office estimated the Social Security payroll tax freeze would cut inflation, reduce unemployment and "prevent the loss of 250,000 jobs."

Charge Indians Are Guinea Pigs

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Illiterate Indians are being used as "guinea pigs" to test psychiatric drugs made by foreign companies, the United News of India said today, quoting a report in an Indian medical journal.

The drugs are being "pushed" into the country "without proper clinical trials" by foreign multinational corporations, the Indian Journal of Psychiatry was quoted as saying. The companies were not identified.

"Innocent Indian patients (are)... Exploited and used as laboratory animals by enthusiastic (Indian) researchers," the Journal said. It asked the government to ban such experimentation.

Heart Attacks and the Elderly

Is there any truth to the idea that elderly people can withstand and survive a coronary heart attack better than young people can? — Mr. I.R., Pa.

Dear Mr. R.:

It is strange, but true apparently, that people past the age of 60 seem to be able to survive an attack of coronary thrombosis better than can a person of 35 or 40. Of course, this is assuming the attacks are of the same severity.

Many explanations have been given for this observation. Some of the reasons suggested are valid; others are purely speculative.

The arteries that bring blood to the heart muscle itself are the coronary arteries, so named because their disposition resembles a crown, or "corona." It is believed by some that as one gets older tiny additional arteries sprout from the main blood vessels and bring additional blood and oxygen to the heart. This is known as "collateral circulation."

In the young, this fine network of additional blood vessels has had little or no time to develop. The result is that when a large coronary artery is closed by a clot, or "thrombus," the damage that it does in the young is particularly severe.

In the elderly, this type of compensatory circulation may have been developing for a long time and keeps the heart muscle supplied with blood and oxygen, even when the main coronary artery has been slowly closing.

Modern techniques of study, with arteriograms and angiograms, now make it possible to determine the quality of the blood supply to the heart with exactitude. When symptoms are detected early, in people of all ages, the miracles of modern surgery and drugs have been remarkably effective in saving hearts that are considered too young to die.

way that I can find out if I have an ulcer. — Miss D.K., Ore.

Dear Miss K.:

Fear of X-rays has no validity. The amount of radiation one is subjected to during studies of the stomach and the intestine is insignificant. Radiologists, or specialists in the field of X-rays, do not consider that exposure sufficient to affect the eventual life of anybody who is studied by this technique.

There is another method which is used in addition to X-rays. An instrument, the gastroscope, is painlessly inserted in the mouth. This then passes through the esophagus and into the stomach. Through this instrument, almost every recess in the stomach can be carefully inspected and studied. It is possible to take photographs of every minute area with the gastroscope. It is even possible to pick up small pieces of stomach tissue for analysis. When you say, "I think I have an ulcer," you are guessing. There is no need for such guesswork.

MX Missile System Means A New Boom Area For Nevada

By BRENDAN RILEY
Associated Press Writer
CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Chaotic, boomtown growth looms on the desert horizon in Utah and Nevada as a result of plans for "man's largest project," the controversial MX missile system.

The boom resulting from the $30 billion to $60 billion project could mean as many as 125,000 to 150,000 new residents within a few years in an area that now has fewer than 60,000 citizens.

Ely, with its 5,600 residents, is the biggest Nevada town in the area, and the largest Utah town is Cedar City with about 15,000. "Boom-and-bust" towns are nothing new to the arid region. Nevada mining camps literally sprouted overnight, turned into towns and then disappeared as gold and silver veins pinched out. But more than half a century has passed since the last "boomer."

With MX, Nevada would get about two-thirds of the project's 4,600 missile silos. The remaining one-third would be located in Utah. And 200 missiles would be kept somewhere within that silo network — a vast, underground system stretching west from south of Salt Lake City to near the Nevada-California border.

The magnitude of the project is described by the Air Force's top MX salesman, Brig. Gen. Guy Hecker Jr., as "man's largest project, larger than the Great Wall, larger than the pyramids, larger than the Alaska pipeline or the Panama Canal."

This would all be built in a 10,000-square-mile Great Basin region of hard, dry lake beds separated by craggy peaks or low, brown, tree-scarce mountain ranges.

From a plane, one sees mile after mile of sand and rock, sagebrush, a sprinkling of aspen groves in mountains, and a rare spot of green where a farmer has found enough irrigation water. One can go for miles and miles and see only range cattle or wild horses.

The area seems so desolate that people — typically newcomers — make jokes about the "lunar" landscape. And many who love the seeming emptiness call themselves "desert rats."

State Sen. Rick Blakemore, a Democrat in whose sprawling district nearly all of the Nevada MX installations would be located, is worried about "what the human impact of the MX will be."

Blakemore says the people "out there" are the ones who must be helped and made fully aware of what's going on, not those in cities such as Reno and Las Vegas many miles from the MX area.

Blakemore says: "Some people in my district tell me they moved here because they didn't want to be surrounded by a lot of other people. And they don't want the MX for that reason."

Mike Bourn, executive director of the White Pine County, Nev., Development Corp., which has been trying to encourage development in the Ely area, thinks the explosive growth can be handled only with extensive federal, state and local planning.

Money for schools and other services is a major concern, he says. He points to particular worry about police protection in Nevada, which is known for its glittering casinos and tolerates bordellos in some areas.

When citizens mention their fears, they talk of drastically increased crime, more pollution, water problems, cost-of-living increases, and changes in the pace of life.

The water needs of the huge MX system are so tremendous — an estimated 17,000 acre-feet yearly during a seven-year construction period — that U.S. Rep. Jim Santini, D-Nev., has suggested new talks on tapping the big Columbia River system flowing through Idaho and Washington to the north.

Santini says more than 100 billion gallons otherwise would have to be pulled from beneath the nation's driest lands so that 2 million tons of cement could be mixed and for other water needs.

University of Nevada Professor James Walker, who took part in a study of the impact of a proposed power plant that could be built at the same time as the MX systems, foresees "drastic" change.

"It's going to create a boomtown atmosphere," he said, and pointed to another source of worry for some. "They think they'll become the bulls-eye of the world."

Nevada Gov. Bob List says the big question about the project is "precisely what it would look like on the map."

The area closed off for the MX silos would total just 25 square miles. But security areas would involve several thousand square miles in Nevada alone, according to congressional studies.

The land-use issue prompts Rep. Santini to cite the possibility of a security crisis "trying to determine if some person with a scruffy beard isn't a Russian agent rather than a hard-rock miner."

Guantanamo Residents Unconcerned By Furor

By FRED McNEESE
GUANTANAMO BAY, Cuba (UPI) — Despite the mainland furor about a Soviet combat presence in Cuba and the danger it poses to SALT II, servicemen and their dependents on this American navy base express little concern about the effect on their lives.

"I just don't pay much attention to things like that," said Tracy Cassidy of Hawaii, who joined her husband at the base more than two years ago.

From Captain John H. Fetterman, commander of the 45-square mile base, down through the lower ranks, there is agreement the Soviets pose no immediate threat to the base.

Friday, Fetterman repeatedly told reporters touring the base, which has about 6,000 people, that "it's business as usual."

"I have no reason at all at this time to put this base in an increased defense posture," he said.

Guantanamo, a collection of new military architecture and buildings that were antiquated at the close of World War II, is drawing attention as Jimmy Carter attempts to prove that the U.S. can make its point without going to the diplomatic brink.

Later this month, 1,800 Marines will be involved in an amphibious operation here as part of Carter's decision to upgrade the American response capability in the Caribbean, an operation considered as much a public relations event as a training exercise.

Fewer Visit The Great Smokies

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is pouring more than a billion dollars a year into minority business contracts that are awarded to unqualified firms, a Florida senator contends.

Sen. Lawton Chiles said Friday that his staff found that $1.1 billion of the $2 billion in Small Business Administration contracts awarded were given to "people and companies that shouldn't have gotten them." The SBA says that minority businessmen now must own 51 percent of the voting stock and demonstrate day-to-day control in order to get the special federal contracts.

look at the base, and the actual operation is expected to attract hundreds of reporters for a two day stay at the base that provides guest quarters for only 10 people.

"When I first came here eight months ago, I said 'wouldn't it be great if you could get some national attention down here to show the strategic importance of Guantanamo Bay,'" Fetterman told the reporters at their first meeting.

Fetterman now has that attention, and he uses the opportunity to stress the base's importance because of an increasingly unstable political situation in Latin America. Guantanamo Bay, a natural deep-water port, also serves as a key staging area for naval exercises.

Fetterman stressed he has no concern for the present security because he believes surveillance of Cuban activity would discover any buildup of troops long before an attack could be launched against the base.

The impact of the Cubans on the base is evident although Fidel Castro's troops are rarely seen from the installation.

The gray-and-white military plane heading for America's only military base in a Communist country stays well to the east of the mountainous Cuban coast as it approaches Guantanamo, making sure it does not violate Cuban air space.

Marines, armed with M-16s, patrol the 17.4 miles of fence that separate the base from the rest of Cuba. Inside the fence, what military officials say is the "largest actively maintained mine field in the Free World" discourages any would-be attack force.

Some nights, the dull boom of an exploding mine can be heard far out in the bay, discovered in 1494 by Christopher Columbus who promptly left the area forever the next day because he could find no drinking water.

The mines are triggered by deer or other animals, not by an invading force, and base personnel see no danger of an imminent attack despite the outcry in the U.S. over the Soviet brigade.

Barbara Seidel of Council Bluffs Iowa, whose husband's tour of duty ends in three months, said there hasn't been much talk among her neighbors about the Soviet troops or Carter's actions.

"I'm going to be sorry to leave because I liked it here," she said. "All this isn't going to make me change my mind."

Col. Mark P. Fennessy, a 40-year veteran who commands the Marines, said he doesn't believe the Cubans or the Soviets would attack the base, which is surrounded on three sides by mountains from which any invader would have the clear advantage.

"I have seen nothing that would give me any cause to go to my base commander and alert him," Fennessy said.

Navy Airman Jerry Hunsinger of Orlando, Fla., said most of the concern he has heard expressed around the base is not over the Soviet brigade but about the recent doubling of price for airline tickets to Norfolk, Va., the only way back to the U.S. for servicemen wanting to spend their leave at home.

"You just don't hear anybody at all talking much about the Russians and what Carter said," Hunsinger said. "Most people have other things to worry about."

EVALUATION FUNDS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration has announced a $1.35 million program designed to let Alaska fishermen evaluate their capacity for catching species of groundfish now being taken by foreign vessels within the 200-mile limit.
