Street Aid

State Transportation Secretary Tom Bradshaw announced that Greenville will receive $429,533 as its 1979 allocation of state street aid or Powell Bill funds.

Bradshaw said that Greenville's Powell Bill allocation is based on the city's estimated population of 34,550 and its 121.91 miles of local streets.

According to the spokesman, Greenville is one of 457 municipalities in North Carolina receiving checks totaling more than $34.6 million for local street construction and maintenance.

Each year, Bradshaw reported, the Powell Bill returns to qualified municipalities one cent of North Carolina's state motor fuel tax and requires that these funds be disbursed by no later than Oct. 1.

Allocations for other Pitt towns included: Ayden, $60,543; Bethel, $26,974; Falkland, $1,414; Farmville, $73,499; Fountain, $6,922; Grifton, $34,043; Grimesland, $6,188; Simpson, $6,415; and Winterville, $31,364.

Bradshaw mentioned that the 1979 sum of $34,649,907 is the largest amount ever returned to communities in the state under the Powell Bill provisions.

From this year's funds, the largest single check of $4,155,095 went to Charlotte, based on a population figure of 338,250 and a local street mileage figure of 1,124.37.

Light Early Vote

Voting activity at Greenville's nine precincts was running light this morning as just over 1,000 citizens had made their choices for municipal candidates by 10 a.m.

Margaret Register, supervisor of the Pitt County Board of Elections, said that precinct reports made to her office at 10 a.m. reflected a total of 1,036 voters out of a registration of 12,648.

Precinct totals at 10 a.m. included: Precinct 1, 25 votes; Precinct Three, 65; Precinct Four, 102; Precinct Five, 182; Precinct Six, 58; Precinct Seven, 195; Precinct Eight, 139; Precinct Nine, 165; and Precinct Ten, 105.

Two years ago, the 10 a.m. report of municipal voting activity showed a total of 943 votes cast in the nine local precincts.

According to Miss Register, some 336 citizens had voted in Farmville as of this morning's report.

Local precinct officials are reminded to call "The Daily Reflector" tonight with voting totals as soon as they are available. "The Reflector" will tabulate election returns this evening.

Accept Risk In Board's Action

By GLENN RITT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve Board's stepped-up attack on inflation should deepen the expected recession, say three leading economists. Yet, they add, there is no alternative.

Treasury Secretary G. William Miller, meanwhile, called the board's sweeping initiative "good news" and pledged to back the actions with other steps, if necessary.

He told a New Orleans bankers' convention Monday the United States is "determined" to maintain the dollar's stability around the world.

The Federal Reserve Board's action Saturday came as much to support the beleaguered dollar as to curb excessive use of credit, which fuels inflation.

The dollar did strengthen on world currency markets Monday, while the price of gold fell sharply.

The board's moves, including a hike in its bank lending rate from 11 percent to 12 percent, "guarantees" a recession, said Otto Eckstein, head of Data Resources Inc., of Cambridge, Mass. "But the truth is we need it."

He and Michael Evans of Evans Economics in Washington predicted the prime rate banks charge their best customers will reach 15 percent by December, compared with 13.5 percent now.

This would force many businesses to curtail hiring, cut production and lay off workers, they said.

George Perry of the Brookings Institution said, "The recession will be deeper than it might have been." But, he added, "The board didn't have a great deal of choice."

Miller said he does not believe the tight-money moves will deepen the recession, but he cautioned: "We are in the midst of a modest recession peculiar in shape. What we have to guard against is believing that a bounce back in the third quarter (July through September) means we are heading toward a nice recovery."

He pledged to "take other, complementary actions when and if appropriate," but he was not specific.

However, he rejected applying mandatory credit controls on consumers and businessmen as an anti-inflation step.

Credit controls could range from banning credit cards to setting minimum down payments for automobile purchases to limiting a business' ability to borrow.

Miller said current methods of dampening credit could work better than controls.

Besides imposing higher interest rates, the Federal Reserve Board is increasing reserve requirements on banks, which should shrink the funds they can loan.

Security Of Castro Eyed

NEW YORK (AP) — Police will be called on for the third time in about three weeks to provide extraordinary protection for a dignitary when Cuban President Fidel Castro arrives in New York this week.

Police say the security arrangements for Castro will be among the toughest and most extensive ever because of the depth of hatred for the dictator among expatriate Cubans. Some have vowed to try to kill him.

The Cuban leader is expected to arrive in New York, on his first visit to this country in 19 years, sometime within the next two days and will address the U.N. General Assembly Thursday or Friday.

It not yet known exactly when Castro will arrive or how long he will stay.

Some 3,000 anti-Castro demonstrators rallied at the United Nations last Friday after it was rumored that Castro was going to be there. One of the rally's organizers promised the crowd would have been larger if "the tyrant had tried to show himself."

Two nearby New Jersey cities, Elizabeth and Union City, have highly concentrated Cuban populations totaling about 90,000 people.

Police officials said that both pro -and anti-Castro groups would be given designated areas away from each other while the dictator was in town.

Just recently, police worked special overtime assignments during the visits of President Carter and Pope John Paul II.

The police spokesman said the Castro security operation would not be the extensive web of protection that the pope received but would primarily be to "cover the crowds at the Cuban mission and the U.N."

Approve Local Firm To Bid On S. Evans Tract

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The Redevelopment Commission last night approved a Greenville firm as a qualified bidder for a tract of land in the South Evans project.

Commissioners approved Hallow Distributing Co. of 401 W. 14th Street as a bidder on Block 50B, located adjacent to the firm.

Joe Laney, Commission executive director, explained that Block 50B is actually composed of seven different parcels but they will be combined into one tract. Some 35,000 square feet of property is involved, he said.

According to Laney, Hallow Distributing indicated plans to utilize the parcel for expansion of the business, if it is successful in bidding. An 8,000 square foot addition to the existing structure is planned, he noted, and improvements will also be made to the firm's parking and loading facilities.

In other business last night, Laney reported that the owners of a parcel at the corner of Third and Washington Streets have completed their loan arrangements for a new structure on the parcel and a construction contract has been executed.

Laney said that T & C Co., involving Clarence Tugwell and Louis Clark, reported that groundbreaking for the new office building will be held this week.

Tugwell and Clark purchased the parcel in the Central Business District from the Redevelopment Commission in August of 1975.

Commissioners approved a revision in the option negotiator contract with T. I. Wagner. Wagner is negotiating for the acquisition of real property involved in the right-of-way for the 14th Street project under the Community Development program.

The revision in the contract allows Wagner to proceed with parcels in the eastern section of 14th Street. Wagner's initial contract with the Commission had called for acquisition in the area from Broad Street to Farmville Boulevard.

Commission real estate officer and Southside project manager Faye Brewington reported that three acquisitions were completed in the West Meadowbrook area since the last meeting and four property purchases were made in the South Evans area.

Demolition activity involved two structures in South Evans and two in Southside, she said, while three relocations were handled in South Evans, one in West Meadowbrook, and one in Southside. Options were secured on two South Evans parcels, Mrs. Brewington said, and on one parcel in the CBD.

Ed Cobb, staff rehabilitation officer, told commissioners that while no rehabilitation activity was completed since the September meeting, approval was received on three new grants and six new 312 loans. Cobb added that he is working on three grants and one loan now in the South Evans and West Greenville areas.

Longtime Commission member and chairman Billy B. Laughinghouse attended his last regular meeting Monday night with the completion of his maximum consecutive tenure on the board. Laughinghouse has been a member of the board since April of 1967 and has served as its chairman since April of 1968.

Another Papal Tour?

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pope John Paul II will probably visit the Philippines and Brazil next year and return to the U.S. for a tour of the South and West, said Archbishop John Quinn, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

The pope left this country Sunday after a week-long visit.

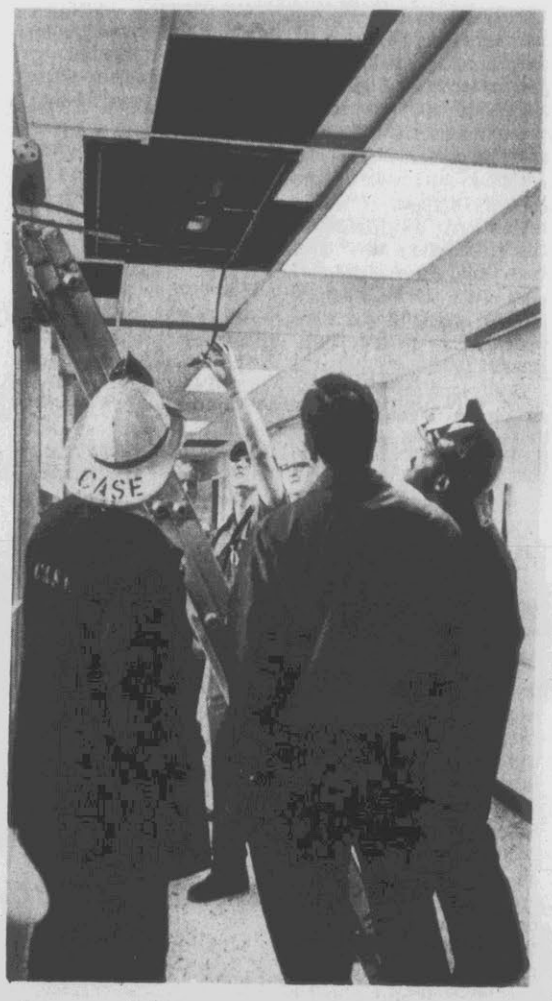
Quinn, the Archbishop of San Francisco and the pontiff's official host during his American tour, compared the pope's visit to "a sunrise. I think his whole visit has been like the movement of the sun sweeping across the universe, creating a whole new context for life."

The trip was timely, Quinn said Monday. "I think it has created a new wave of hope and enthusiasm in the church generally."

As for those who disagree with the pope on religious topics, Quinn advised them to "rise beyond the category of liberal and conservative and reach the zone of truth.

Quinn did not provide any details on the pope's travel plans for 1980, but said his American trip is tentatively set for late next year.

An estimated 10 million people saw John Paul II on his six-city tour of America, which ended when he boarded a 747 jet Sunday afternoon for a non-stop flight back to Rome.



Inspect Damage

SCHOOL FIRE — Greenville Fire-Rescue Department officers inspect an electric motor in a heater over an exit door at E. B. Aycock Junior High School that burned out this morning. Fire units were called when the motor burned out, but officers said no damage — other than to the motor — resulted from the 7 a.m. incident. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

POSSESSIONS DESTROYED

On Oct. 2 the Richard Kennedy family lost virtually all their personal possessions (furniture, clothing, appliances, etc.) when the moving van transporting their belonging from Greenville to Stockton, Calif. wrecked in Greensboro.

Rev. Kennedy, former pastor of Temple FWB Church here, his wife and two young daughters, were in the process of moving to California to begin a mission church at the time of the accident. Since it takes times to process insurance claims, the family needs immediate funds to purchase clothing and other personal items, friends here feel. Anyone wishing to contribute toward help for the Kennedys can make a check payable to "The Richard Kennedy Fund," c/o Carol M. Hardee, P. O. Box 5001, Greenville, N. C. 27834. For more information, one may call Mrs. Hardee at 752-3215 or 756-4905.

GOOD SAMARITANS

Mrs. Estelle Bunting has asked Hotline to appeal on her behalf for a call to her from the couple who took her to the hospital Saturday, Sept. 29. She was involved in an automobile accident between 3:15 and 3:30 that day on Highway 264 west of Greenville in front of Pleasure Route Motors. She said she was semi-conscious at the time and failed to get their names. They did not give their names to the emergency room personnel either, she indicated. If they would, she would like for the man and woman to call her at 758-2213.

Federal Demand To Quadruple N.C. Inspection Force Rapped

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A federal plan to require North Carolina to quadruple the size of its job-safety inspections force drew opposition Monday from state officials.

The U.S. Labor Department will ask U.S. District Court Judge John L. Smith in Washington this week to order the state to increase its number of Occupational Safety and Health Act inspectors from 47 to 200 during the next five years or forfeit control of the program.

Labor Commissioner John Brooks, whose department administers the OSHA program, called the federal demands "ridiculous."

He declined to discuss the exact figures, but he said he hopes last-ditch negotiations can stave off the federal demand.

The dispute is the result of a suit filed by the national AFL-CIO against the U.S. Department of Labor. The union has charged that state-run OSHA programs don't adequately protect workers' safety.

North Carolina is one of 22 states that operates OSHA programs in cooperation with the federal government.

The 1970 act permits states to administer the federal programs as long as they arre as effective as the federally administered programs in other states.

George Lennon, a state Justice Department attorney representing the state in OSHA cases, said the number of work-related accidents in North Carolina has declined in recent years, while on-the-job accidents have increased nationally.

"We think that, based on that, we have shown we are more effective than the federal program," Lennon said.

Lennon and Brooks also said the Legislature probably wouldn't be willing to finance such a large increase in the state program, and Brooks said he wouldn't ask it to.

The two are scheduled to go to Detroit Wednesday to meet with other state labor officials in the same predicament.

Brooks said he thinks it is wrong for the federal government to impose minimum staffing levels 10 years after the state began administering the program.

The federal government could demand that the state give up administration of OSHA. Brooks said, however, "We are committed to state administration of OSHA."

Fire, Rescue Man Honored

The Pitt County Association of Insurance Women have honored Ronald Joseph Moore of Greenville as "Fire/Rescue Man of the Year." Moore was presented a plaque Monday.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Moore of Greenville, Moore is a 1973 graduate of J. H. Rose High School. He also attended Lenoir Community College.

Employed by the Greenville Fire Department since 1977, Moore has attended a 16-hour flammable liquid school and a 4-hour LP gas school. He has completed a 12-hour multi-media first aid course, a 12-hour LP gas school, and an 81-hour emergency medical technician course.

Ronald, age 24, and his wife, Jane, reside at 2713 E. Fourth St. They have one son.

The county association will honor Moore, as well as Fire Chief Jenness Allen and Assistant Chief Tony Brannon, during its Oct. 24 monthly meeting. The award is just one of the Association's observances of National Fire Prevention Week.

Investigation Results In Big Army Shuffle

By The Associated Press

One-third of the Army's 69 recruiters in a district covering most of Virginia and northeastern North Carolina have been reassigned to other duties following an investigation of recruiting irregularities.

"We're somewhat disappointed. We're quite a bit surprised by the numbers," Maj. Gerald L. Waltman, a spokesman for the Richmond District Recruiting Command, said Monday in announcing that 23 recruiters had been removed from their posts.

Waltmen said the men relieved of their posts were noncommissioned officers ranging in rank from sergeant to sergeant first class. Five recruiters were removed last week and the rest were notified Friday they were being reassigned to other Army duties, Waltman said.

He said all of the violations involved irregularities in the administration of entrance tests to recruits but would not elaborate on what the investigation disclosed.

He said the Army had completed its Richmond district probe, which was part of an investigation of recruiting practices among the Army's 57 enlistment commands.

The latest probe in the Army s recruiting scandal brings to 160 the number of officers and enlisted men in 11 recruiting commands relieved of their duties in the past five months.

The Army said the investigation was triggered by complaints from recruits.

The probe was designed to find out whether recruiters coached potential enlistees so they could pass entrance tests. A team of 54 officers and senior enlisted men has conducted the nationwide investigations since May.

Waltman said some of the alleged violations of Army regulations by Richmond district recruiters date back three years. But he added that some of the offenses allegedly occurred when the recruiters were assigned to other commands.

Some recruiters have complained that cheating on entrance tests was sparked by pressure to meet stiff enlistment quotas the all-volunteer Army. But in the Richmond district, "the indications are to the contrary," Waltman said.

"There was a noticeable lack of unreasonable pressure" turned up by the investigators here, he said. The fact that no officers in the district were relieved of duty shows "we're vindicated in that respect," Waltman said.

He declined to identify the sergeants removed but said they were spread across the district and not concentrated at any one recruiting station.

The relieved men are not expected to receive any further disciplinary action, the district spokesman said.

The Richmond district has a record of award-winning performance in making its recruitment enlistments.

"We are still impressed with our recruiters," Waltman said. "We still have quite a few who are superior recruiters and who will do the job."

Canada's New Parliament

Canada's Parliament is scheduled to meet today for the first time under the country's new prime minister, Joe Clark. The previous Parliament was dismissed last March, so that national elections could be held. In the elections, Clark's party, the Progressive Conservatives, won more seats in Parliament than any other party. The election victory gave Clark the chance to form a new government. One of the problems Clark's government faces involves the province of Quebec. Most Quebec citizens speak French, while most other Canadians speak English. Quebeckers are expected to vote in a special election next spring, to decide whether they want their province to become an independent country.

Enthusiastic Audience Listened To Jazz Ambassadors Concert

Despite Monday Night Football, a respectable size crowd turned out for The Jazz Ambassadors concert held last night in J. H. Rose High School gymnasium. The free concert was sponsored as a public service by THE DAILY REFLECTOR.

Following the traditional patriotic opener which included an upbeat version of the National Anthem, the 20-piece jazz ensemble featured two of its members in the number, "Magic Flea". Tony Schwartz on piano, and Pat Dillon on saxophone, let the audience know right off that they were in for a delightful evening.

An all-time favorite, "Georgia On My Mind", featured trumpet soloist Bruce Silva, who did an excellent job with the classic ballad.

One of the most enthusiastically received segments of the 90-minute show was the Big Band Medley. There was alot of reminiscing in the crowd as The Jazz Ambassadors journeyed back to the "Swing Era" with such hits as Benny Goodman's "Let's Dance", Glenn Miller's "Moonlight Serenade", Tommy Dorsey's "I'm Getting Sentimental Over You" and Harry James' "Ciribiribin".

Three band members were featured soloists on the next number, "A Good Time Was Had By All". On saxophone were Pat Dillon and Tim McWright, along with John Brye on trumpet.

The band then turned towards "the lights on Broadway" with the number "Send In The Clowns" from the musical "A Little Night Music". Pat Dillon on tenor saxophone was the featured artist on the number.

After a strictly instrumental show, vocalist John Montgomery was highly received with his renditions of Billy Joel's Grammy Award-winning hit, "Just The Way You Are", and a Stevie Wonder number "Another Star".

Following a short intermission, the band returned with a song requested by members of the East Carolina University Jazz Ensemble, "Rotund Shuttle".

John Brye on trumpet was the featured soloist on the next number, "Los Ciros", which was followed by "Summer's Passing" with Gene Thorne on soprano saxophone.

The latin-flavored "Samba de Haps" was followed by a real crowd-pleaser, Glenn Miller's "In The Mood".

The concert ended with a stirring version of John Phillip Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever". This brought the audience to a standing ovation for the band which is conducted by Chief Warrant Officer Paul A. Chiaravalle.

Dog Food Cake Is Relief From Blahs

CUMBERLAND, Va. (AP) — Does your dog have the blahs from eating the same old canned or bagged food day in or day out?

You might renew its interest with a Dog Food Cake — dog food, biscuits, milk and cheese. For your finicky feline, you might try Pussy Cat Pie or Fancy Fish Food.

Recipes for these and other dishes for such pets as turtles, skunks, guppies and ducks are contained in "Critters' Kitchen," a cookbook written by Michelle Reynolds, 13, of Cumberland County.

Michelle, who lives on a farm with her parents, dogs, cats, rabbits, chickens, geese, ducks and horses, said the idea for her book started one rainy day when she was nine years old.

"I love animals and know that eating is the most important part of the day for them," Michelle says in the preface to the book. "I wouldn't want to be fed the same thing every day, would you?"

The 32 recipes in the book, released by Atheneum publishing company, were checked by a veterinarian for wholesomeness. Michelle's mother helped her with library research on food suitable for various animals. Michelle did the hand lettering and the illustrations.

Some of the recipes are not for the sqeamish. Mole Bowl, for example, contains beefsteak, fish, worms and flies, and a dish for skunks calls for six grasshoppers.

"This is not an enjoyable thing to make," Michelle wrote of a dish for turtles. It features five live worms and two slugs, among other things.

First Meet For School Parents

Mrs. Lawrence Davenport was elected president of the Parents of Carolina Country Day during the organization's first meeting.

Other elected officials are Mrs. W. R. Newton, vice president; Mrs. Les Fuchs, secretary; Mrs. Jack Tyler, treasurer; Mrs. Allen Ayres, special projects; and Mrs. Janie Furgerson, publicity.

The sixth and seventh graders gave a gymnastic routine under the direction of Mike Edmundson during the meeting. According to Mrs. James Galloway, coordinator, more than 80 percent of the school's parents were in attendance.

Israel May Cancel Vote

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israel is considering canceling municipal elections scheduled in April for the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River, an Israeli newspaper reported Tuesday.

The Haaretz newspaper's military correspondent wrote that Israeli authorities may cancel the elections for fear the campaign would disrupt negotiations with Egypt on establishing Palestinian autonomy in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

A spokesman for the West Bank military government refused to confirm or deny the newspaper report, and would say only that "the subject is under discussion."

"There is no decision," the spokesman told The Associated Press.

In the 1976 West Bank municipal elections, pro-Palestine Liberation Organization candidates were elected in most of the races. The Haaretz report said PLO-backed candidates have already begun organizing toward the April elections in hopes of capturing additional offices.

Municipal authorities in the Gaza Strip are appointed by Israel's military government.

The newspaper said Israeli authorities fear that additional election victories by pro-PLO candidates would make it virtually impossible to find moderate West Bank Arabs who would be willing to join the autonomy negotiations.

Under the terms of the Israel-Egypt peace treaty, elections for the West Bank and Gaza autonomous council are to be held within one month of the conclusion of the autonomy negotiations, which are to be completed in April.

Young Executives Are Gifted Students

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — It's 9:30 a.m. again, and the 18 employees of Mini Merchants Inc. are checking in for work.

Robert Harcarik begins cutting small patterns from large pieces of stained glass; not many employees are strong enough to do it.

Former company President Ricky Weise handles the 18-employee payroll. "You have to be good at math to do it," he explains.

The current president, Alex Towse, expounds on her management philosophy. "You've got to respect what they do," she says of her employees. "If they make a mistake, you can't go over and yell at them."

Alex is 10. Everybody else who works for Mini Merchants also is 10 — or 9.

To Meet In Williamston

Pitt County citizens will attend a district meeting in Williamston Oct. 11 to discuss ways of strengthening programs of the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Serivce.

Leroy James, Pitt County Extension Chairman, said the participants are volunteer citizens who serve as members of the Pitt County Extension Advisory Board.

Some of the board members who are scheduled to attend the meeting are Kenneth Dews, Dr. Miriam Moore, Mrs. Wiley Hardee, and J. Frankie Singleton.

According to James, the district meeting is one of seven such events being held across North Carolina in October and November.

"This is the first district meeting conducted by the newly-appointed state advisory council to bring county representatives together," noted James. "We feel that a lot of good ideas will come out of such a meeting."

Bud Amburn of Edenton, a northeast representative on the State Extension Advsiory Council, will preside at the meeting. Dr. T. C. Blalock, state extension director, will also participate in the program.

Art Classes At Center Oct. 10

Registration is still open for two classes, ceramics and drawing and painting, to begin at the Greenville Art Center, Wednesday, Oct. 10.

The classes are designed for children ages eight and up, with each lasting for six sessions. Cost is $12 per class.

4-H Session In Raleigh Set

North Carolina's volunteer 4-H leaders will meet in Raleigh Nov. 3-4.

The theme of the convention, which will be held in the McKimmon Center at North Carolina State University, is "Getting Closer," according to Dr. Thearon McKinney, 4-H specialist with the state agricultural extension service.

Registration will begin at 8 a.m. Saturday, with the convention ending around noon Sunday. For more information, interested persons should contact the local extension offices.

Tongue-In-Cheek Talent Search

RALEIGH — As part of a national tongue-in-cheek talent search, the popular TV series, "Real People" and WPTF-TV will hold auditions for a substitute host of the "Tonight Show" at the North Carolina State Fair here Oct. 12-20.

"Sit in for Johnny" auditions are open to all, and will be taped each evening in the Durham Life broadcasting dome. Participants will be limited to one minute on tape and may perform their own material or read from scripts supplied by the station.

WPTF-TV will select a winning audition and the aspiring performer will receive round trip air transportation, accomodations and a ticket to a "Real People" broadcast. The best of all the auditions will be sent to "Real People" for possible national broadcast.

Sees Hope For Broad Tax Cut

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — U. S. Rep. Jim Martin, R-N. C., says the outlook is becoming more promising for an across-the-board congressional tax cut similar to the 1962 tax cut that vigorously stimulated the economy.

"I'm politically optimistic we can get the votes in a few years," Martin said in an address to the Textile Club Monday.

Simmer a skillet full of our sausage and get something extra: just enough gravy for the grits.

When you fry Neese's country sausage, you don't get a pan full of grease. You get just enough for the gravy. That's because our sausage is made from a family recipe more than fifty years old that uses only lean hams, bacon, shoulders and loin. The cuts that make a lot of flavor instead of too many drippings.

We've even discovered a way to fry our sausage that makes the meat—and the gravy—a little tastier. When you're not in a hurry, place the patties in a cold frying pan. Cover. Cook on a low heat for 20 minutes, without uncovering. Then drain off the drippings and reserve for making gravy. Turn the patties, re-cover, and cook for 15 to 20 minutes more. In more than fifty years of enjoying our own sausage, we think this is the best way yet to get all the down-home flavor we put in. For other ways to cook—and serve—country sausage and liver pudding, write us at the address shown for your free recipe book.

Miss Lynnette Everett Weds Airman Walston

PINETOWN — Miss Lynnette Sue Everett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Glenn Everett of Rt. 1, Pinetown, became the bride of Airman Timothy Earl Walston, son of Mrs. June Walston of Washington, and Mr. Douglas Walston of Vanceboro, in a candlelight ceremony at 7 p.m. Saturday

The ceremony was held in the Everett's Church of Christ by Roger Evans, minister of Woodard's Pond Church of Christ, conducting the double ring ceremony.

The vows were pledged before a white kneeling bench decorated with greenery. In the background was an arch created by two seven branched candelabrum flanked by white baskets holding mums in white, blue and rose with greenery and baby's breath. Three branch candelabrum were used in the choir loft. Candles and magnolia leaves were used on the piano and organ. The bridal couple lighted a unity candle.

Mrs. Betty Gurganus of Bath was organist and Dennie Wallace of Pantego sang "The Wedding Song," "Whither Thou Goest" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride, escorted and given in marriage by her parents, wore her mother's wedding gown which featured a bodice of satin with a scoop neckline outlined by crystal sequins and seed pearls with covered buttons down the back and on the long pointed sleeves. The floor length skirt was of lace and net ruffles over white taffeta and was gathered at the waist.

Her fingertip veil of French illusion was attached to a Juliet cap of white satin embroidered with rosettes, seed pearls and lace. She carried a nosegay of white mums, baby's breath and greenery with white ribbon streamers.

Mrs. Margaret Eborn of Washington, cousin of the bride, was honor attendant and was dressed in dusty rose. Miss Lila Lilley of Pinetown was maid of honor and wore sky blue. Bridesmaids included Miss Sharon Walston, dressed in seafoam green, and Miss Janet Walston, dressed in apricot, sisters of the bridegroom of Washington. Their identical gowns of qiana featured sweetheart necklines, three tiered gathered skirt and empire bodices. Each carried a single mum tied with matching ribbon and wore pom pons in her hair and a silver necklace, a gift of the bride.

MRS. TIMOTHY EARL WALSTON

The bridegroom's father was best man and ushers included Kevin and Kelly Everett, brothers of the bride, and Gilbert Everett, cousin of the bride.

Mrs. Bobbie Cox was mistress of ceremonies and Mrs. Betty Everett was church director. Miss Lindy Barr presided at the guest register.

The bride's mother wore a formal gown of pink while the bridegroom's mother was attired in a formal gown of slate blue. The mother of the bride wore white carnations and the mother of the bridegroom wore blue carnations.

The bride is a graduate of Bath High School and was employed by Roberson's Beverages. The bridegroom is a graduate of Washington High School and recently completed basic and technical training at Lackland AFB, Texas.

After the reception, the bride changed into a two-piece turquoise qiana dress and wore a white silk daisy corsage. The couple will live at Rt. 3, Dudley, while the bridegroom is stationed by Seymoure Johnson AFB, Goldsboro.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall after the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Cox invited guests into the reception area and Miss Lindy Barr presided at the guest register which was placed on a table with the bride's portrait and a crystal budvase holding two long-stemmed red roses.

The refreshment table featured a centerpiece of mums, carnations and greenery flanked by lighted candles. Magnolia leaves, candles and a white flower filled baskets were used in decorating.

Mrs. Dorothy Everett, aunt of the bride, cut the four tiered cake after the bridal couple cut the first slice. Punch was poured by Mrs. Vera Oland, aunt of the bride. Assisting were Mrs. Thelma Everett, aunt of the bride, Mrs. Janice Baynor, Mrs. Hulda Sullivan and Mrs. Betty Everett. Rice bags were passed out by Leslie Everett, cousin of the bride, and good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. James Everett, cousins of the bride.

An after-rehearsal party was given by the bride's parents after the rehearsal. The party area was decorated with lighted candles, magnolia and ivy. The party table held an arrangement of mums, carnations, gladioli and baby's breath with candles.

Mrs. Vida Everett, aunt of the bride, poured punch. Mrs. Brenda Everett assisted. Mrs. Gladys Jones, grandmother of the bride, presided at the bride's book.

OES Grand Chapter Holds State Session

GREENSBORO — The 78th annual convention of the Grand Chapter, Order of Eastern Star was held here at the Holiday Inn-Four Seasons.

After registration and a tour of the city, Mrs. Rosie Kennedy gave the welcome at the opening session. Greetings were extended by several city and elected officials. B. M. Nassabaus Jr., mayor pro-tem of Greensboro, presented a key to the city to Grand Worthy Matron Maggie L. Strong.

Maggie Strong

"A Rose Growns Beyond the Wall" was the memorial service theme and the Rev. J. W. Smith, grand chaplain, gave an eulogy. Committee assignments were given, roll call of officers and chapters made. Distinguished guests were presented.

"A Group of Christian People" was Ms. Strong's annual address. At the annual banquet and bride's spectacular, Superintendent H. V. Bryant reported on the progress of the cantral orphanage. Mrs. Lillian B. Shaw of Burgaw was the banquet speaker.

Mrs. Alveria Dazemore of District No. 6 was winner in the bride's contest and $36,210.04 was raised. The final session included committee reports and election of officers.

Dear Abby

Needlework Makes Point

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N Y News Synd Inc

DEAR ABBY: Apparently most needlepointers are too busy to defend themselves, so I must come to the rescue with my first letter to Dear Abby!

I'm referring to a letter criticizing women who needlepoint or knit while attending meetings, visiting with friends or whatever. You were right when you said it's "therapy for some who need to occupy their hands, and it beats smoking" (although I'm sorry to say that some needleworkers smoke).

However, I wish you had pointed out that doing something with one's hands, whether it be needlepoint, knitting, crocheting or embroidery, does not reduce one's ability to listen or converse.

At a recent gathering of the girls, someone asked me what I was knitting. "A dishrag," I replied.

"Humph," she grunted, "what a waste of time!"

I just looked up and said, "When I get through I'm going to have a dishrag. What are you going to have?" (She graciously admitted that I had a point.)

I'm enclosing the dishrag as a gift for you, Abby. Please use it and see if you don't agree that needlework is not only therapeutic, but useful as well.

PAULA S. IN HOUSTON

DEAR PAULA: Thanks for the dishrag. It wiped me out!

DEAR ABBY: I have read your column for years, but this is my first Dear Abby letter. At the bottom of your column you say, "If you need help with your problems, write to ABBY," and could I ever use help with mine!

I am program chairman of our PTA, and I would like to start off with something especially meaningful pertaining to children since this is The Year of the Child, but I can't find a thing. Can you come to my rescue?

FAITHFUL

DEAR FAITHFUL: How's this? "A child is a person who is going to carry on what you have started. He is going to sit where you are sitting, and when you are gone, attend to those things which you think are important. You may adopt all the policies you please, but how they are carried out depends on him.

"He will assume control of your cities, states and nations. He is going to move in and take over your churches, schools, universities and corporations . . . the fate of humanity is in his hands."

Abraham Lincoln

DEAR ABBY: A reader asked if a bride walkes UP the aisle or DOWN the aisle, and you said she walks DOWN the aisle to greet her groom, and they walk UP the aisle together after they're married."

Wrong! Actually the bride walks down the NAVE!

The nave is the large separation in the center of the church dividing the church in half. The aisles are on the SIDES.

NITPICKER IN OCALA, FLA.

DEAR NIT: Thanks. I stand corrected. I confess to never having heard of "Nave." (Naive?)

DEAR ABBY: Love your column. I've wanted to write to you many times, but my local newspaper hardly ever publishes your address, and when I've seen it, someone always throws the paper out before I can save your address.

What is it?

READER IN WASHINGTON, D.C.

DEAR ABBY: I found a clipping on my dresser this morning. It was your column with the letter from the man whose wife undressed in the closet. As you can probably guess, I am one of those wives.

After a dozen pregnancies, not too many wives have the kind of figure they want to parade around the bedroom nude to show off. I can go to bed alone and wake up pregnant.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I know you've seen them advertised. Sometimes they're called lounging sacks. Other times they're referred to as body quilts.

Whatever, you can't open a magazine these days without seeing a family sitting around the living room in plaid sleeping bags zipped up to their throats with only their eyes peeking out. According to the blurb next to them, this is what the well-dressed family will be wearing during the coming winter's fuel crisis.

Okay, forget the fact that it will take you 32 ring-adings to reach the telephone. Forget that no matter how hard you try, you'll still look as sexy as an unmade bed. Forget what it's going to sound like when your son answers the door and says, "Mom can't come to the door now. She has a bag on."

Just ask yourself, "Is this the answer?"

This is not the first energy crisis I have lived through. When I was 10 years old and coal was 50 cents a bag, a decision was made that winter to shut off all the rooms and heat only the kitchen. That decision had an unparalleled effect on my life. Not only did it build character, it unearthed talents I never knew I possessed.

I discovered in the mornings I could run the 50 yards from my bedroom to the kitchen in an unprecedented two and one half seconds (the record that year was five seconds) WITHOUT MY FEET TOUCHING THE FLOOR.

When I had to practice piano in an unheated room, I could play the Minute Waltz in 26 seconds.

I could stand on a kitchen chair (heat rises) and eat breakfast and carry on a conversation with people on the floor like a normal person.

I could jump under the covers of my bed and emerge three minutes later fully clothed without so much as putting a wrinkle in my skirt.

Whenever the doorbell rang on the Siberian side of the house, I could go into self-hypnosis and feign deafness. To this day, I never hear a doorbell ring.

Oh, sure, we could sit around next winter like quilted mermaids, but where is the adventure of getting to the sealedoff room, the challenge of running through the darkness, dodging sofas and chairs, creating smoke when your warm breath meets the cold air and finally reaching the room with the oven on?

You can't get that kind of a thrill sitting around in the sack.

A "young Tom turkey" is usually from five to seven months of age and has tender meat with soft, smooth-textured skin.

Bridge Winners Announced

Mrs. Eloise Gabbert was first place winner in the Wednesday morning duplicate bridge game played at Planters Bank. She had a .571 percent game.

Mrs. John McConney and Mrs. Everett Pittman, second; Mrs. Walter Harbin and Mrs. B. V. Payne, third; Mrs. Sidney Skinner and Mrs. Stuart Page, fourth; tied for fifth were Mrs. B. T. Eastwood and Mrs. C. F. Galloway with Mrs. Robert Mercer and Mrs. Leslie Jefferson.

Wednesday afternoon winners included:

Mrs. Wiley Cobbett and Mrs. George Martin, first with a .656 percent game; Mrs. Mavis Smith and Dave Proctor, second; Mrs. J. S. Rhodes Jr. and Mrs. Roger Critcher Jr., third; Mrs. Lacy Harrell and Mrs. J. W. H. Roberts, fourth; Mrs. William Parvin and Claude Goodman, fifth.

Winners at First Federal on Saturday in the duplicate bridge game included:

North-South: Mildred Harker and Dorothy Ritchy, first with a .633 percent game; Mrs. D. J. Lewis and Mrs. F. C. Aldridge, second; tied for third were Mrs. El Bass and Mrs. Ruth Stewart with Mrs. Clifton Toler and Mrs. William Parvin.

East-West: Mrs. Myrt Johnson and Graham Lane, first with a .647 percent game; Mrs. Edna Whitehead and Mrs. George Martin; tied for third were Mrs. Cora Powell and Mrs. Harold Forbes with Mr. and Mrs. Dick Cohen.

Lake's Action Was Expected

It came as a surprise to no one that I. Beverly Lake, Jr. officially became a candidate for governor on the Republican ticket Friday.

To do that Lake had to switch his party allegiance from Democratic to Republican which was accomplished by changing his registration.

He is, of course, a long way from the governor's office. He could face opposition for the GOP nomination in next year's primary. Then he will have to face the winner of the Democratic primary. It is widely anticipated that Gov. Hunt will seek re-election, and he almost certainly will be challenged by former governor Robert Scott. Either will be a formidable candidate for Republican Lake to face.

On the other hand, Lake recognizes that the state is only one administration removed from a Republican governor. The Democratic Party could be left bruised and weakened by a Scott-Hunt fight. There is also the possibility that a Kennedy nomination for president by the Democrats might send many North Carolina voters scurrying to the GOP presidential candidate, pulling along the state Republican candidates.

We would foresee a very uphill battle for Lake in seeking the governorship on the GOP ticket, but recent elections have proven that almost anything is possible in North Carolina politics.

A Welcome Few Foreign Visitors Win

Pope John Paul II was received with wild enthusiasm in our nation last week.

Seldom has there been such an outpouring for any visitor to our country.

He was especially greeted with devotion by American Catholics, but he came with some stern admonitions for them.

There will be no women priests, he said, and as for priests leaving the profession, he declared "priesthood is forever."

Clearly the pope will be conservative when it comes to changes within the Catholic church. On this euphoric visit, he wanted no misunderstanding about that.

Uglier Words Heard

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — There's something about October. The leaves begin to turn color, the nights grow nippy and congressional tempers get short.

No one is sure why nastiness seems to creep into House and Senate debates this time of year.

In even-numbered years, October signals the approach of Election Day when voters tend to display an unpleasant ability to recall the wrong votes, the embarassing speeches. But in odd-numbered years like this one, when no one is up for re-election, the October blahs are harder to understand.

Whatever the reason, this year is proving one of the testiest in memory.

The House and Senate are at war over the congressional pay issue. And when they're not saying nasty things about the House, senators are snapping at each other.

During a recent session Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., interrupted a roll call to make a brief appeal for support of his strategy on the pay raise legislation.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., shot out of his seat: "Can a senator make a speech in the middle of a vote?"

"No," replied Byrd, aware that it was a clear violation of the rules.

The strongest Senate "rule" is the elaborate courtesy members display toward one another. The favored form of address is "the distinguished senator from wherever" — even if the speaker thinks his colleague's only distinguishing characteristic is his abysmal ignorance.

Once again, Goldwater and Byrd tossed aside pretensions at politeness when Byrd wanted permission to offer an amendment to the pay raise bill, a move that could be blocked by the objection of any senator.

"I object," said Goldwater, while Byrd was in mid-sentence.

"Will the senator allow me to finish?" asked the majority leader.

"I do not have to explain it," replied Goldwater. "I object."

On yet another occasion, Byrd clashed with Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., over the difference between "implied" and "inferred."

"You are saying I implied something," said Helms. "I implied nothing. I stated facts and conclusions. The senator can infer anything he pleases. There is a difference between implied and inferred."

"I learned that in high school," said Byrd.

"It does not show," retorted Helms.

Teacher Training Changes

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Professional educators recognize that the overwhelming challenge in public schools today is the truly democratic nature of the institutions.

The schools take all children, whatever their abilities, handicaps, motivations, interests, and socio-economic backgrounds and accepting them as they are, where they are, attempt to move them forward to whatever achievement is possible.

There have clearly been more successes than failures in this attempt; even though the failures attract more public notice. People much prefer to puzzle "Why Can't Johnny Read" than to accept the simple fact that a good many more Johnnies are reading today than ever could in the past.

In the course of this revolution in public education, the classroom teacher has been presented awesome responsibilities and increased demands .... often without benefit of adequate preparation either in skills or philosophy.

Professional

Forces are now coming together in North Carolina which will help to shape educators into that which they have long sought: truly professional status.

A year ago the State Board of Education and the University of North Carolina Board of Governors jointly adopted a resolution launching the process which would substantially revise and improve the quality of teacher licensing standards and teacher education programs in the state.

This process begins with the proposition that to upgrade the ranks, the people who begin training for classroom jobs later must be well suited to that work, must choose wisely their college courses, must be exposed to the realities of their future job, and must be regularly screened and tested and counseled prior to joining the profession.

A major study commission, individual task force groups working in five key areas of concern, and a liason group to keep things linked between the State Department of Public Instruction and the teacher training institutes are now being set up. Detailed results of the effort and proposals will be presented in May,1980.

BILL NOBLITT

The five major points involve:

1. Initial screening and counseling of students before they enter teacher training to see that they meet necessary academic standards.

2. Establishing a system so that the universities know what the public schools need so that more competent and effective teachers can be trained.

3. Developing a system involving local schools, successful classroom teachers, the colleges, and the state in an expanded student teaching program allowing the trainee more time, exposure to the real world of public education, and better supervision in that phase of preparation.

4. Putting in place a series of tests to assure academic preparation of the teacher trainee throughout the college years, and at certification.

5. Installing an effective evaluation and appraisal system designed to regularly assess teacher performance on the job throughout their years in the classroom.

That final proposal will no doubt create the most controversial aspect of the program. Other phases touch individuals not yet members of the profession. Continuing evaluation, on the other hand, moves the reform into conflict with North Carolina's teacher tenure law, the most jealously guarded perquisite of the profession.

The Legislative Veto

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — Toward the end of September a pillow fight over congressional pay scales kept us enthralled. It was an unseemly spectacle, as the sinful House, eager to raise its own salaries, connived to circumvent a virtuous Senate. What we were watching, at a lower level of sis-boom-bah, was an exercise in the use of a legislative veto. That is the topic for today.

Every schoolboy knows what is meant by a presidential veto. It is the procedure by which the executive undertakes to nullify the will of the legislative branch. A legislative veto is something else. It is a device by which one house of Congress, or both of them, undertakes to nullify the will of the executive branch. But where the presidential veto is plainly fathered by the Constitution, the legislative veto is a kind of bastard child, born of desperation, sired by suspicion.

Many scholars contend that the legislative veto violates the Constitution. This was the position taken recently by Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti in arguing the Carter administration's case against the device. Such a veto, he said, circumvents the role of a president in the legislative process. While the purpose may be to increase the accountability of "unelected bureaucrats," the perverse effect is to remove our elected presidents from participation.

Under the Constitution, Civiletti said, every bill or resolution in which the House and Senate concur must be presented to the president for his signature or veto. When the Congress bypasses this provision, in order to frustrate the executive branch, the doctrine of separation of powers is undermined.

Many of us on the conservative side, boasting of our dedication to Strict Construction, probably would agree in principle with Civiletti. In theory, it is the responsibility of the Congress to enact the laws; and it is the responsibility of the executive branch faithfully to execute them. The doctrine of separation of powers, abused though it has been, remains a foundation stone of our governmental structure.

The structure has been leaking for years. Far more "laws" are made by the bureaucracy than by the Congress.

The procedure is for Congress to create such an agency as the Federal Trade Commission and to vest it with power to impose rules and regulations having the force and effect of law. But suppose the power is abused. Suppose the basic law is not being "faithfully executed." What then?

One remedy, in theory, is judicial review, but judicial review takes forever and costs the litigants a fortune; some rules and regulations may evade review altogether. Another remedy is for Congress to undertake the whole laborious task of writing new law, naturally subject to veto, in an effort to clip an agency's wings.

A third approach embodies the idea of a legislative veto. Congress began toying with this interesting device in 1933. Since then at least 196 acts have embraced such a provision — among them the act providing for a legislative veto of high-level pay raises that otherwise would go into effect automatically by executive order.

Not only the Congress but also the states, notably Wisconsin, have been experimenting with the legislative veto. Both House and Senate are now brooding over bills to extend the mechanism into new areas of executive prerogative. It is a troubling development, for Civiletti's objections generally are sound. The legislative veto ought to be invoked, if at all, only as a last resort.

But, confound it, in the maddening war between the people and the bureaucracy, that is where we have been driven. We need some

THE INSIDE REPORT

Carter 'Works' Florida

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

MIAMI — The surprising amount of political power that President Carter has focused here to avoid defeat by Teddy Kennedy in the Oct. 13 caucuses belies the moribund state of his presidency.

"If Carter would only work Congress or the Russians over like he's working Forida, he would have less to worry about," one neutral observer awed by the sheer power of the Carter performance told us.

There are reasons to spare for his doing so, even though the muscled drive for success here is raising eyebrows of politicians and voters dismayed by the string of Carter failures in other endeavors of his presidency.

Reason No. 1: A loss to Kennedy, who's almost-candidacy could be damaged but not possibly destroyed by even a big Carter victory, would finish Carter off as a national leader. It would render the balance of his presidency all but superfluous, particularly in view of Carter's natural constituency in much of the state that borders Georgia.

That explains the phenomenal — and seemingly effective — political engineering plotted by Hamilton Jordan in heading off Sen. Edward M. Kennedy. Jordan's work in the stretch drive to the non-binding but psychologically important Oct. 13 caucuses proves that in the game of elective politics, the flawed White House chief of staff is still very much in command.

By no means is a Carter victory positively assured in the obscenely confusing process that will select 879 delegates at 67 county caucuses Oct. 13. These, along with 838 non-elected delegates, will then choose their favorite for the 1980 Deomcratic presidential nomination in a legally meaningless straw vote at the party's November mock convention. Next March, the legal Florida primary election will select the actual delegates to the party's New York convention next summer.

But the Oct. 13 caucuses ("a wild animal" in the words of Richard Swann, Carter's chief fund-raiser here) contain so much potential for Carter's political demise that he has galvanized his whole administration to help him. He has also commadeered 99 percent of the highly-effective state administration and political apparatus of popular Gov. Bob Graham, while pulling in money and workers from all over the country.

In the past few weeks, ousted United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young personally telephoned three black delegatecandidates on slates committed to Kennedy. His stern message: Don't desert Jimmy Carter now. Two at once removed themselves (one of whom, persuaded to risk Carter-Young wrath, later agreed to get back on).

Scores of Carter and potential Carter backers have been flown off to a full day of frilly "briefings" on world problems in the White House — all expenses paid — to soften them up. A Kennedy leader in Jacksonville's Duval County told us that a contributor to the Kennedy campaign asked to be relieved of his $1,000 pledge on grounds that Graham was about to appoint him to a state commission.

What is unique is not such routine political armtwisting but its eye-popping volume. "What we really want," said one of Carter's chief political operatives here, "is not just to defeat Kennedy but to Schapp him." Carter's spec-

Let's Stop It Now

(The Pilot, Southern Pines)

An incipient movement is under way in North Carolina which should be halted before it gets a frustrating foothold.

That is to sell gasoline by the liter instead of the gallon, and the only reason for the plan is to confuse and defraud the consumer.

A service station in the eastern part of the state started the movement, but on hand for the first liter sales were several officials of the North Carolina Oil Jobbers Association, which is an indication that it's a plan with their backing.

With gasoline prices soaring to unconscionable heights, the oil jobbers apparently feel they can make those prices more palatable by posting prices for liters rather than the dollar prices per gallon. Liter prices are less because there is less gasoline. But it leaves the way open to move prices upward, and along with the confusion there also can be fraud.

Even though a misguided Congress has paved the way for the metric system we are still a long way from that horror, and Americans should hope to be spared from it as long as possible. There is no reason why the people of this country should be forced to accept a metric system just to accomodate the international business cartels.

Great Britain has been trying for more than 20 years to get its people to accept metrics, but the British people are resisting so strongly that the plan has been slowed and may be halted.

The North Carolina motorists ought to resist the same attempts by the oil jobbers.

Strength For Today

SELF-DECEIT

Caught in the act of stealing money from a classmate's room, a student was expelled from college. The evidence against him was clear, but the boy insisted that he was innocent. A psychiatrist who later talked with him said that the boy was so unwilling to face the fact of his guilt that he actually convinced himself that he was not guilty.

This incident shows how much pain and sorrow self-deceit can cause. There is almost no worthwhile aim which it cannot frustrate. If we need to repent our since, self-deceit tells us that we have no sins. If we want to overcome our deficiencies it hides them from us. If we wish to increase our knowledge, it veils our ignorance.

President John Adams once wrote that self-deceit "is perhaps the greatest source and worst part of the vices and calamities of mankind." Long before Adams, Shakespeare suggested what is perhaps the best remedy for self deceit: "This above all: to thine own self be true."

Fears A False Sense Of Hope

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In the past few days Americans learned that September unemployment declined to 5.8 percent from August's 6 percent, consumers added to their debt, and purchasing agents expressed optimism.

Taken together, these bits of intelligence hardly convey the idea of recession. which some economists maintain already has us in its grip and which many more say will pounce upon us before the end of the year.

Albert Cox Jr., president of Merrill Lynch Economics and fromer White House economist, is among the latter.

Did the news in recent days shake his recession theory? "No," he replied. "If anything, it strengthened my conviction that the recession will wind up deep and long."

In fact, said Cox, he was already this Monday morning writing a report raising to 60 percent the likelihood of a severe downturn. He said it will come by yearend, and reach its depth in the first half of 1980.

By the third quarter of next year, he maintains, unemployment will have reached 8.9 percent, and retail sales will be off badly. It will, he said, be "pretty wicked," almost as bad as in 1974-1975.

What is it that makes men such as Cox so concerned? "The underlying trends," he said. Factors such as the flattening out of employment increases, sluggishness in productivity, consumer buying weakness.

"The trend is weakness," he said. "Inflation is eating away at incomes and confidence." September's figures mightn't look bad now, he said, but over the long term they'll be seen as oddities in a pattern.

Cox believes they might even deepen the recession by giving business and consumers a false sense of hope. Purchasing agents, for example, might be inclined to build up inventories, which then cannot be sold.

That situation occurred in 1974. During the first six months of the year companies built their inventories to "wildly excessive" levels. "I fear it is happening again," he said. During July, he points out, inventories grew about about $90 billion, the biggest ever for a month.

A lack of insulation could be standing between you and lower fuel bills.

The Department of Energy says Americans could cut heating costs by 20 percent to 30 percent if they installed adequate insulation; in some areas, attic insulation alone can save 20 cents of every heating dollar.

Shopping for insulation is complicated, however. How much do you need? What kind should you buy? Can you do it yourself or do you need an expert?

You should start with what's becoming known as the "Fourth R." The "R" stands for resistance and it's the key to measuring how well the insulation prevents the flow of heat from one place to another. Federal regulations taking effect next month require manufacturers to label all insulation with the R-Value at any given thickness.

If you have three inches of insulation with an R-Value of 3 per inch, your total R-Value is 9.

Remember: Efficiency does not depend on thickness; two inches of one type of insulation may have a higher R-Value than three inches of another kind.

The amount of insulation you need depends largely on where you live. As a general rule, however, attic floors should have insulation with a total R-Value of between 26 and 38; exterior walls generally should have an R-Value of 11 to 13; and basement ceilings or crawlspaces should have from R-11 to R-22.

Insulation comes in a variety of materials and forms. The most common materials are mineral wool — which accounts for more than 75 percent of residential insulation, cellulose fiber and plastic.

Mineral wool insulation, including fiber glass and rock wool, is relatively inexpensive and easy to apply. It is fire resistant and moisture resistant. It can irritate the skin, however, so it is important to wear gloves and long-sleeved clothes when working with any type of mineral wool.

Cellulose, made from shredded paper, has a higher R-value than mineral wool and does not irritate the skin. It is important, however, to make sure that the cellulose has been treated with a firedretardant to meet federal standards since improperly-made cellulose insulation is a fire hazard.

Plastics, made of products like polyurethane or urea formaldehyde, offer a high R-value. They are generally resistant to fire, but if they do burn, they can give off a toxic gas. Check local fire regulations before you start work.

The forms of insulation include rolls or blankets, batts, loose fill, rigid boards and foam.

Rolls are best for walls or floors with studs that are spaced a standard 16 inches or 24 inches apart.

Batts are similar to rolls, but they are cut into four-foot or eight-foot lengths. They are semi-rigid and, like the rolls, are best used in easily accessible areas like unfinished attics and floors.

Loose fill is useful when you want to insulate an odd-shaped space or an enclosed wall cavity that can't be reached with rolls or batts. It can be poured or blown into place; you will need special equipment if you want to blow it in.

Rigid boards are plastics or fibers pressed into shape. They must be covered with half-inch gypsum board or other finishing material for fire safety. Boards can be used for basement or foundation walls and offer a high R-value for relatively little thickness.

Foam insulation is injected, wet, into walls or other closed spaces. Installation is tricky and should be done by a reputable contractor only.

R-Values can vary from manufacturer to manufacturer, but the Federal Trade Commission says there are generally accepted maximum standards. Be suspicious if you see a claim for an R-value higher than the ones listed below:

PRODUCT R-VALUE PER INCH

Rock wool batts and blankets 3.1 to 3.6
Rock wool loose fill 2.7 to 3.2
Fiber glass batts and blankets 2.7 to 3.7
Fiber glass loose fill 2.1 to 2.4
Cellulose loose fill 3.1 to 3.7
Urea formaldehyde 4.1 to 4.8
Polyurethane 6.3 to 7.7

No matter what material or form you select, you should use a vapor barrier to control moisture. Otherwise, the water vapor in the warm, moist air inside the house can seep into the insulation, causing it to loose its effectiveness.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: Y equals U

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Do It Right

By The Associated Press

You can save hundreds of dollars if you do-it-yourself when it comes to insulation, but you've got to do it right or your money will be wasted. Here are some do's and don'ts:

—DO get the right tools. If you're using batts or blankets you'll need a sharp knife and a straight edge to cut against, a measuring tape and a portable light with an extension cord.

—DO be careful of electrical wiring. Don't try to pull it or bend it out of the way.

—DO work from the outside to the center of the floor when you're insulating the attic. You'll be able to do whatever cutting and fitting is necessary in the middle of the attic rather.

—DON'T put insulation on top of recessed lighting fixtures, motors or other heat-producing equipment sticking through the attic floor.

—DON'T cover vents with insulation. As a general rule, you should allow one square foot of unobstructed ventilation opening for each 300 square feet of attic floor area.

—DO use protective gear — gloves, face mask, long-sleeved shirt or jacket, etc. Wear old clothes; even the cleanest attics are dusty.

—DO insulate under attic walkways, pulling or pushing the insulation into place.

Would Require 'Alternatives'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Saying demand for electrical power in the state will outstrip the national average, the state Utilities Commission proposed Monday that power companies be required to develop alternative energy sources.

The commission said it "makes sense" to ask that power companies create a nonprofit corporation to conduct research, development and marketing of alternative energy sources.

The commission named wood heaters, furnaces and boiler systems and the use of garbage to produce energy as possible research areas for the corporation.

After a series of public hearings, the commission concluded "the growth in North Carolina's economy and the resulting demand for electrical power will significantly outpace the national average.

"Without a doubt, it behooves electric utility customers to seek all reasonable means to dampen this growth in electric-power demand while still ensuring that adequate power will be available in the future to serve themselves, their children, and an expanded economy," the commission said.

The agency set a Dec. 15 deadline for comments from electric suppliers, including cooperatives and municipalities that distribute electricity, on the plan.

Gov. Jim Hunt said he plans "to contact all of these parties personally to encourage them to take part in this effort and to join with us in exploring how we can work together on it."

The Utilities Commission suggestion came in an addendum to its ruling in a Duke Power Co. rate case. Duke Power was ordered to begin accruing up to $1 million in a special reserve for research on alternative energy sources. The utility was told, however, not to put the money aside until a decision is made on the proposed joint effort.

"We are generally aware of the research and development being undertaken by the electric cooperatives and the 'electric' municipalities in the state. As a whole, we find these efforts commendable but less than should be done if North Carolina is to make substantial progress toward the development of alternative energy sources," the commission said.

Area Women At Briefing

Joan Crane of Greenville, and two Kinston women, Pearl Schechter and Faith Pearson, with a small group of Hadassah members, attended a briefing at the White House in Washington, D. C., October 4.

The briefing, held in the Family Theater, was conducted by Edward Sanders, senior advisor to the president, and dealt with the Mid-East situation.

Sanders said that despite the controversy and opposition caused by the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty, matters pertaining to a peace settlement were proceeding on schedule.

Ambassador Wat Cluverius, who also spoke to the group; said he considered it essential that Palestinians living on the West Bank and in the Gaza Strip be included in peace negotiations, although he said the United States will not deal with the Palestine Liberation Organization until the PLO recognizes Israel's right to exist.

tacular ascent four years ago started right here in Florida when he swept the party's mock convention. His only serious opponent was then-Gov. Milton Schapp of Pennsylvania. Carter swamped Schapp with 67 percent of the vote.

The "Kennedy '80" leaders, stripped of any public help from the senator, will pull heavily in Carter-hating Jewish precinc.ts, particularly the three large counties of Dade (Miami), Broward (Ft. Lauderdale) and Palm Beach. That is Kennedy country. Capturing the caucuses in all three big counties would give him 43 percent of the elected delegates, and his top managers — disenchanted 1976 Carter activists — are trying to cut into the traditional, non-liberal vote in central and northern Florida to show broad Kennedy strength.

They might conceivably do that; in a political process that defies accurate forecasting, they might even do better. If they do not, Carter will have proved that even a president flattened by political reverses in Washington can still focus the awesome power of his office to score a local victory. Such a triumph would portend little if anything for the serious Kennedy contests next winter, nor would it visibly elevate the benighted presidency of Jimmy Carter.

emergency brakes capable of stopping the juggernaut dead in its tracks. I am doubtful, for instance, that the FTC has basic authority to tell dentists what is ethical and unethical. But that is precisely what the FTC was undertaking to do last month when it entered a decree against the American Dental Association. The issue involved advertising, which the ADA has regarded as an unethical practice. Who gave the FTC power to rewrite the code of ethics of the dental profession?

It is this kind of bureaucratic arrogance that has prompted the growth and exercise of a legislative veto. I don't like the device, but on balance, I like the bureaucracy's usurpation of power even less.

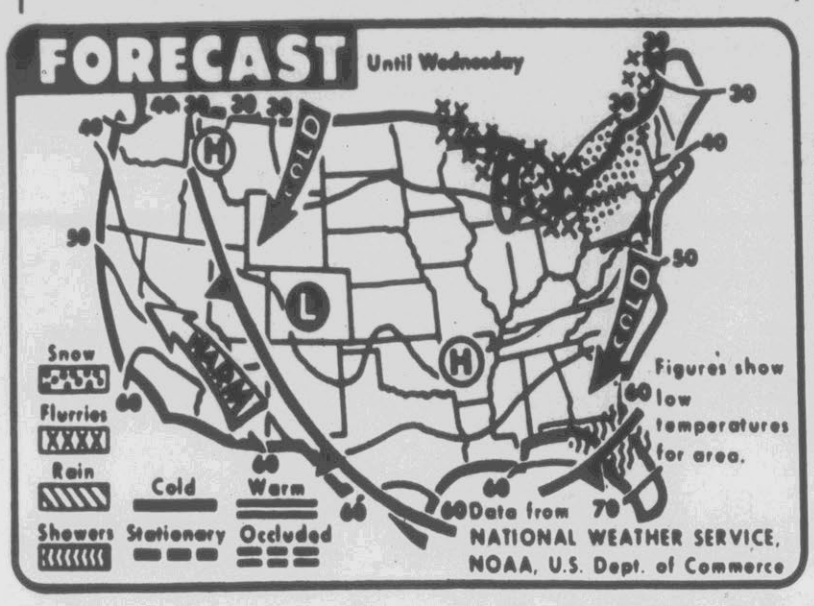
How's The Weather?



WEATHER FORECAST — Snow and snow flurries are expected in the forecast period until Wednesday for the Great Lakes, St. Lawrence Valley and western Pennsylvania and New York. Warm weather is forecast for the west coast, but much of the country will be colder. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press

The forecast called for warm and breeezy weather in North Carolina today with a turn to cooler by Wednesday.

A strong cold front was pushing toward the mountains where showers were expected to begin developing by this afternoon. The wind flow east of the mountains was drawing warm breezes into the state from the southwest and temperatures were expected to reach the 80s east of the mountains.

The fine weather will come to an abrupt end tonight as the cold front moves across the state. By Wednesday morning the front will lie along the coast, leaving mostly cloudy skies, brisk northerly winds and much cooler temperatures over the state. Temperatures Wednesday will be 15 to 20 degrees cooler than those expected today.

The front will also spread scattered showers across the state tonight and they will be ending from the west Wednesday. The showers are expected to be mostly light and not cover a large area at any one time.

Fine fall weather prevailed over the state Monday with the start of the southwesterly breezes. Temperatures generally ranged up into the 70s.

Rhodesia Parley Near Collapse

By MAUREEN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington, staving off collapse of the Zimbabwe Rhodesia peace talks, today gave the Patriotic Front guerrillas a 48-hour deadline to change their minds and accept a British-proposed independence constitution. The guerrillas rebuffed him.

At a meeting of all sides this morning, Carrington said Britain would negotiate no more on the constitution for its breakaway former colony and that he must have the guerrillas' answer before the month-old talks could continue. A guerrilla spokesmen responded to the ultimatum by maintaining that Carrington, the conference chairman, was "absurd" to demand a firm answer.

He indicated the guerrillas would continue to seek to shelve the constitutional dispute and get the discussion turned to who will control the army and administration before British-granted independence — a move Carrington has firmly rejected.

Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe, co-leaders of the Patriotic Front guerrilla alliance, objected Monday to two points favorable to the white minority in the constitution Britain proposed for its former African colony.

One provided for all white settlers to become citizens of the new country automatically. The other guaranteed financial compensation for property seized by a new black government from white owners.

The guerrilla leaders also revived their demand, made at the start of the talks, that the constitutional negotiations be shelved while they, the British and Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa negotiate the establishment of a new transitional government to replace Muzorewa's biracial government of Zimbabwe Rhodesia until new elections were held.

A British spokesman said his government would consider carefully the Patriotic Front's proposals. But Carrington told Nkomo and Mugabe it would be "misleading to suggest there is any realistic prospect of agreement" on any constitution that differed materially from the draft Britain put forth last Wednesday.

He also rejected the guerrilla leaders' demand to change the course of the talks, saying: "We should not be prepared to open discussion on pre-independence areas until there is an agreement on the constitution."

Muzorewa, who accepted the British draft last week, sat silently through the meeting. But he said in a written statement he had done everything "and more" that Britain demanded, and he called on the British government to immediately lift the economic and diplomatic sanctions which it and other nations imposed after then-Prime Minister Ian Smith declared Rhodesia independent 14 years ago in an attempt to preserve white control.

The British draft constitution removed the veto over constitutional change given the white minority in the constitution Smith, Muzorewa and other moderate black leaders agreed on early this year. It also cancelled provisions giving the whites control of the army, police, civil service and courts for five to 10 years.

Nkomo and Mugabe made two major concessions. They agreed to retention of the parliamentary system of government, with a prime minister chosen by the majority in Parliament, instead of the powerful elected president they wanted. And they agreed that the whites would have 20 per cent of the 124 seats in the proposed new Parliament even though they constitute only 3 per cent of the population.

Ayden Board Votes To Close Street Segment, Rezone Lot

By REBECCA BUFFALOE
Reflector Staff Writer

AYDEN —In two separate public hearings, the Ayden Town Board of Commissioners voted to close a 50-foot section of street on the west side of the North Hills subdivision, and rezone the Gulf Gas store lot on North Lee Street from RA-8 Residential to B-1 Commercials Monday.

A public hearing was set for the regular November meeting to consider a request for a conditional use permit by John McGlohon to place a trailer on the north side near W. N.C. 102.

Discussion was heard on a preliminary plat presented by Bill Clark of Greenville for construction of houses along East Second and Third Streets on the east side adjoining Bowen's Open Air Market.

According to Town Clerk Ralph Ford, Clark has proposed to build on 20 lots. Ford noted that the footage on each lot would have to be shifted in order to conform with planning board ordinances. Also, Ford reported that the Planning Board had agreed to contour the ditches on the lots with swells, rather than trying to tile them.

Commissioner J. Elliott Dixon pointed out that nine of the lots would open on N. C. 102, and expressed his concern about the extra traffic that would be created on the road. He pointed out that no playground would be in the area, giving children no place to play.

Town Manager Don Russell stated that Deerfield residents had had no trouble with the traffic. He pointed out that the land in question had been rezoned three times, having no other market than residential use.

"I don't think we should just think of the property," said Dixon. "We should think of the children playing in that area."

In other business, the board appointed Mrs. Sarah Dixon to a three-year term on the Ayden Planning Board. The board also approved an addition of $2,248.93 to the town tax levy for 1979, and voted to increase the town petty cash fund from $10 to $25.

Utilities Director Mike Finney reported that work was on schedule for the substation and line placement on the highway. Town Manager Russell noted that testing on the new well should be completed by this week, with work on the water tank to begin in November.

The commissioners, before entering executive session, agreed to meet Thursday night with representatives of Carolina Power and Light to discuss the release on the switching station and lease agreement, as well as the service contract.

Police List 3 Accidents

An estimated $6,800 property damage resulted from three traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 7:35 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Greene and Cotanche Streets, involving cars driven by Walter Franklin Wintsch of Ayden and James Charles Boyd of 1406 Ragsdale Rd.

Police, who reported Boyd was injured in the collision, set damage at $2,200 to the car driven by Boyd and $1,000 to the Wintsch vehicle.

An estimated $1,000 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 12:48 a.m. mishap on Darden Drive, 131 feet North of the Roundtree Drive intersection, investigators reported.

Police said a car driven by Ned Vail Kinsaul of Route 1, Greenville, collided with a parked car owned by John Carr Jr. of 305A Darden Dr.

Officers, who reported Kinsaul and a passenger in his car were injured, charged Kinsaul with driving after drinking, operating left of center, and possession of marijuana.

Cars driven by Kimberly Ann Gupton of 307 Clement Dorm and Janice Williams Williams of Route 2, Greenville, collided about 5:15 p.m. at the intersection of Evans and Ninth Streets, causing an estimated $1,500 damage to the Gupton car and $100 damage to the Williams vehicle.

Police reported drivers of both vehicles were injured.

State Fair To Open Fri.

RALEIGH — Good weather being the determining factor, State Fair officials are hoping for a record turn out during the nine-day run of the North Carolina State Fair, begining Friday, Oct. 12.

Last year's attendance reached more than 662,000 to establish a new record. Once again, the fair will feature nine diffferent nights of free entertainment in Dorton Arena, with such stars as Ronnie Milsap, Barbara Mandrell, Eddie Rabbitt, the Kendalls, Don Williams, Roger Miller, and Cornell Gunter and the Coasters.

Special exhibits on such items as energy and North Carolina employment potentials will be featured, along with midway rides and displays of handcrafted wares. Gates will open every day at 9 a.m., except Sunday, when they open at 1 p.m.

Admission is $2.50 daily, with those 12 and under and 65 and older admitted free of charge.

Poultry Seminar Set Thursday

Advances in poultry housing and environmental controls will be discussed at a poultry housing seminar Thursday, Oct. 11, at the Airport Holiday Inn near Greensboro.

The program will begin at 9:30 a.m. The North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service is cooperating with the poultry industry in conducting the educational meeting. Speakers from North Carolina State University and the poultry industry will present the topics.

Proclaims Fire 'Week'

Mayor Percy Cox proclaimed Oct. 8-13 as Fire Prevention Week in Greenville and urged "each individual and family...to participate in the programs to help all citizens realize the true value of fire prevention."

In his proclamation, Cox said that "a recent Bureau of Census survey of household fires indicates that annually one in every 16 households has a fire which could have disastrous results."

He noted, "Most of these fires are avoidable — caused by needless and careless acts. Our goal is to achieve an annual reduction in fire deaths, injuries and property losses and everyone can and must help to prevent these fires."

According to the mayor, "the business community has a special responsibility to provide fire-safe products. Builders, architects and engineers have a responsibility to provide fire-safe places in which to work and live."

Cox added, "Fire Rescue personnel have important responsibilities in providing strong fire prevention programs in our community, as well as to fight fires and save lives."

POW Syndrome Found Among Former Inmates

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Prolonged malnutrition, forced labor and severe emotional stress are some of the causes of a little-recognized malady among former prisoners of war — concentration-camp syndrome, a former POW says.

Curtis Musten Sr. of Winston-Salem, a former POW, said symptoms vary but can be traced to camp experiences.

And he and others say doctors, even those associated with the Veterans Administration, aren't always familiar with the syndrome.

Musten is commander of the state association of the American Ex-Prisoners of War, which met in Wilmington over the weekend.

At the meeting, about 60 members heard about medical research on POWs. The group endorsed proposed federal legislation that would provide compensation for life to anyone who was confined to a POW camp more than six months.

Confined to a German prison camp during World War II during cold weather without medical treatment, Musten said he was afflicted with concentration camp syndrome after six months.

"I worked myself back to health, but I could never regain my stamina," he said. He said his physical condition caused him to be passed over for promotions and forced him into early retirement.

He complains of stomach disorders, the aftermath of parasitism; a 35-year-old headache and continuing pain from a disc he ruptured while carrying a friend.

According to Stan Sommers, a national officer of the association from Marshfield, Wis., who led a medical seminar at the meeting, there are no conclusive medical records on POWS, but limited samplings comparing POWs with other veterans suggest former prisoners age faster, die 8-10 years younger and require more medical treatment. Disorders traced to inhumane prison treatment, he said, include heart disease, alcoholism, sexual problems and brain damage.

"Doctors, even VA doctors, often misinterpret or overlook the signs of concentration-camp syndrome," Sommers aid. "They'll tell a man who is short-fused, who can't hold a job and who has a ringing in his ears all the time that it is his fault if he can't cope with life."

Sommers said the doctors who are doing most research with POWs were former prisoners themselves.

Musten said his organization has about 350 members in North Carolina, about half of whom are wives of former POWs. He said he knows of at least 850 former POWs in the state.

Police Ordered To Arrest Marauders

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Mayor Dianne Feinstein ordered police to crack down on youthful marauders plaguing the city's bus system and urged the courts to pass stiffer sentences.

Ms. Feinstein's action came Monday after 50 youths swarmed onto a Municipal Railway bus and then beat and robbed five passengers before escaping.

"We are going for arrests," she said. "It's the only way I know to stop this sort of thing."

Ms. Feinstein also urged parents to "restrict their youngsters at night and not allow them to just be roaming around the city at 2 a.m."

The mayor called on the courts to "give strong sentences when these cases come before them. I regret that these youngsters were not caught Sunday — if they are caught, they'll do time."

Claire C. Pilcher, president of the city's Public Utilities Commission which oversees the Municipal Railway system, said the problem was "extremely frustrating."

City buses operate around the clock, but there are no transit system guards on duty between midnight and 6 a.m., a situation Ms. Pilcher called "ridiculous."

Two months ago, after roving bands of hoodlums raided trolley buses in the Fillmore district, Ms. Feinstein promised to back up the unarmed transit police with armed officers if the violence was not curbed.

Toastmasters Set Fun Contest

At their regular meeting Wednesday at 7:30 p. m., the Greenville Toastmasters will have a fun speech contest.

The winner of this contest will compete at the area and division levels of the Toastmasters organization.

Award winners at the last Toastmasters' meeting were Pat Flanagan for best table topic; Tom Houston for best speaker; and Charlotte Flanagan for best evaluator. The invocation was given by Joe Sherwood. Toastmaster of the Evening was Evelyn Cottam. Table Topic Master was Charlotte Flanagan.

The Toastmasters Club is devoted to the development of communication skills and leadership training. Meetings are held the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month at the Western Steer Restaurant. Dinner is at 6:30 p. m. and the meeting begins at 7:30. Guests are welcome. For more information, one may call Pat or Charlotte Flanagan, 756-7192.

Grimesland Has 9 Candidates

GRIMESLAND — Nine persons have filed for the five Aldermen's seats of the Grimesland town government. The filing deadline was last Friday and the election is set for Nov. 6.

Those who have filed are Delores J. Mayo, Lee P. Perry, William Lee Tucker Sr., Thurman L. Clark, John R. Sultan, Zelda C. Galloway, David Kyle Hodges, George W. Huntley and Rufus E. Buck. Of these, the incumbents are Clark, Galloway, Huntley and Perry. A fifth alderman, W. Leslie Elks, chose not to run for reelection.

Closed Season Hunting Charge Faces 2 Men

Two Route 5, Greenville men, Jasper L. Sumerlin and John E. Sumerlin, were arrested on charges of hunting raccoons in closed season Friday night.

North Carolina Wildlife Protector Kay Dunn said the two were taken into custody about 11:30 p.m. in the Possumtown section between Greenville and Pactolus.

He said the pair had not killed any raccoons, but were armed and had three 'coon dogs with them near the edge of the Tar River. Dunn, who said "coon seasons opens at sunrise October 15, said the pair are scheduled to appear in court October 24.

He said maximum fine for hunting out of season is $50 plus court costs. Dunn added that persons convicted of game law violations may also face revocation of their hunting permits and confiscation by the court of their weapons.

Home Builders Gather Oct. 15

RALEIGH — The Ninth Annual Home Builders' Institute will be conducted Oct. 15-17 at the Jane S. McKimmon Center on the North Carolina State University campus.

The Institute is sponsored jointly by the North Carolina Home Builders Association and the North Carolina State University.

Those enrolled in the Institute will study such topics as construction financing, cost estimating, project scheduling, wood construction, construction control systems, energy conservation and construction law. The Institute is a three-year continuous education program. The goal of the Home Builders Association is to have every builder in North Carolina graduate from the Institute.

Paul Nitze Sounds U.S. Security Alarm: Again

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a Senate hearing room today, Paul Nitze is sounding an ominous warning of impending destruction at the hands of a Soviet Union determined to conquer the United States.

It is essentially the same message he has been delivering behind the scenes for 30 years, often with an effectiveness that set the course of U.S. defense policy.

In its current version, the message has three parts: the Soviet Union is putting the United States in imminent peril; arms control agreements like SALT II only help them do it; a massive defense spending program by the United States is imperative.

With the glare of publicity surrounding the SALT II debate throwing more light than ever on Nitze's positions, controversy is surrounding him as never before.

It is a controversy rooted primarily in a reading of history that has not clearly borne out his frequent warnings over the last three decades.

Detractors say Nitze's views have exaggerated Soviet strength, helped fuel the arms race and sabotaged whatever chances have existed for Soviet-American accommodation.

"He's a paranoid prophet," says Herbert Scoville, a vice chairman of the Arms Control Association and a supporter of SALT.

Nitze and his supporters insist the United States would have been ill-advised to ignore his prior warnings. As to the sometimes-questioned accuracy of his predictions, Nitze says, "I used the best intelligence available at the time."

Both sides seem to agree on one thing: Paul Nitze is an expert who wields enormous influence. Senate staff members invariably name him when asked to cite individuals who are influential with their bosses in the ratification debate.

Nitze, slender and white-haired at 72, is an archetypal member of the Eastern foreign policy establishment. He is wealthy, and he comes from Harvard and Wall Street. He was brought into government in 1940 by James Forrestal, and he has been in and out of it ever since, serving in both the State Department and the Pentagon.

He is at once a patrician conversationalist and a man who can reel off highly technical equations to express the destructive power of Soviet missile forces.

Nitze severed his ties to government for the last time in 1974 because he disagreed with the way the Nixon administration was negotiating SALT II. A short time later, he helped form the Committee on the Present Danger and has been sounding alarms ever since.

These public warnings follow the pattern set by Nitze in classified documents as much as 30 years ago.

In 1950, as director of policy planning at the State Department, Nitze drafted a paper called National Security Memorandum 68, which helped set the American military strategy for the Cold War.

Recently declassified, the paper characterizes the Soviets as "animated by a new, fanatic faith, antithetical to our own, which seeks to impose its absolute authority over the rest of the world."

It predicted that the Soviets would have enough nuclear weapons by 1954 to lay waste to Great Britain and much of the United States. It said the United States needed greatly increased defense programs to combat the threat.

The time was not ripe for negotiating, Nitze said. "It is impossible to hope that an effective plan for international control can be negotiated unless and until the Kremlin design has been frustrated to a point at which a genuine and drastic change in Soviet politics has taken place," he wrote.

There are no published estimates that purport to know whether the Soviets indeed had the weaponry Nitze predicted they would have in 1954.

In 1957, working as a White House consultant, Nitze was co-author of a secret study called the Gaither Report, which said the Soviets soon would be able to wipe out the American B-52 force on the ground through a surprise missile attack.

Parts of the study were leaked to the press and formed the basis for the "missile gap" that John F. Kennedy cited in the 1960 campaign. In turn, that spurred the United States to develop its current force of missiles and missile-bearing submarines.

But in the early 1960s, the development of reconnaissance satellites showed that the Soviets had few working intercontinental missiles. That was why they risked war to put intermediate-range missiles in Cuba.

In the late 1960s, Nitze was back in government, helping negotiate SALT I. This time, according to his own recollection, he perceived a threat in intelligence reports that the Soviets might be developing an anti-ballistic missile system.

He successfully urged that the United States combat that threat by developing multiple-warhead missiles and insisting that they not be banned by SALT I.

Later intelligence has shown that the threatening radar sites Nitze feared have proven to be anti-aircraft defenses.

But now, Nitze perceives a threat in the deployment by the Soviets of the multiple-warhead missiles like those first developed by the United States and not banned by SALT I. They soon will be able to launch a preemptive strike that could wipe out American missiles as they sit in their stationary silos.

His suggested solution is to send SALT II back for extensive renegotiations and to embark on an urgent program to protect American missiles in some kind of "shell game," wherein the missiles would be shuttled secretly from hole to hole, giving the Soviets too many targets to aim at. He says the United States can build targets faster than the Soviets can add warheads.

Dead Woman's Voice Helped In Conviction Of An Attacker

BREVARD, N.C. (AP) — Rebecca Ann Ferguson Coleman committed suicide last Friday, but her voice rang out in a Transylvania County courtroom Monday with a story of horror.

After hearing the dead woman's taped statement, Judge Robert Lewis gave the man accused of raping and shooting her and raping and killing a friend June 3 life plus 20 years in prison.

Ronald Felix Brewer, 35, of Sapphire pleaded guilty to second-degree murder and assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill under a plea-bargaining agreement.

Mrs. Coleman, 29, was shot eight times and raped repeatedly, she told police. Her companion on the camping trip to Whitewater Falls, Lyra Rosamond McCanless, 26, was shot to death and also raped, police said.

Mrs. Coleman, a social worker, was found dead in her bed at her Asheville home last Friday, one day after she was reminded that Brewer's trial would start Monday. A .22-caliber revolver was found lying on her legs.

Lewis pronounced the sentence after hearing a tape of an interview with Mrs. Coleman made by officers shortly after she was admitted to Transylvania Community Hospital in June. She said Brewer followed the two women to the falls parking lot after they stopped at his mobile home to ask directions.

Her account was interrupted several times by crying.

She told officers Brewer shot her first, then shot Miss McCanless. Brewer then took them to his mobile home, where he repeatedly raped them, she said.

After each attack, she said, her assailant washed his hands and drank a cup of coffee.

Brewer, in a statement officers said was written the day of his arrest, said he had taken a sedative and went to the parking lot.

"I took the gun out of the car. I didn't mean to shoot anyone. I went up to the window and the gun went off. I went wild, and the gun kept firing," Brewer said in the statement, which was read at the sentencing hearing.

Brewer will be eligible for parole in 25 years, according to the district attorney's office.

Transylvania County detective Hubert Brown said Saturday Mrs. Coleman "was just dreading the trial. She just dreaded that she had to go through it."

He said he was not surprised to hear about her death. "Due to the nature of the case, I don't know how she made it this far," he said. "She had to be a very strong woman."

Boat People Are Saved

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A Greek tanker alerted by U.S. Navy planes rescued 12 Vietnamese boat people today, raising to 1,748 the total refugees helped or saved by the Navy since Vietnam announced in July it would end the exodus.

Ray Fredette, a spokesman for the U.S. 7th Fleet, said the Greek ship Psilis pulled nine men, two women and a child from a small boat spotted by two Navy P-3 Orion airplanes 150 miles southeast of Vietnam's Cam Ranh Bay in the South China Sea.

Late Monday, the Navy tanker Arabian Sea rescued 24 men, nine women and 13 children from a disabled junk 250 miles southeast of Singapore.

Since July 21, when President Carter ordered the Orion aircraft to patrol for refugees, American sailors have saved 809 boat people and some 939 others have been rescued by vessels guided by planes operating from the Cubi Point Naval Air Station 50 miles northwest of Manila.

Sorghum Mill Turning Out Sweet Molasses

FLOYD BOTTOMS, N.C. (AP) — The creaking mule-powered sorghum mill ground out a tune seldom heard these days.

The sweet smell of crushed cane wafted through the mountain air, and hickory-wood smoke curled up from the fire under a trough were a batch of freshly pressed juice boiled.

Arvel Greene, one of the last of the old-time sorghum boilers, paused to wipe the sweat from his brow.

"Molasses-makin' is slavish work, but it's well worth the trouble," he said.

Greene, 68, comes from a long line of molasses-makers. He's operated his own sorghum mill for 40 years.

He's demonstrated the craft for the past seven years at the Oconaluftee Pioneer Homestead near Cherokee in the Great Smoky Mountains National Park.

"We make molasses here so folks can see how we used to do it every fall of the year," he said.

"Time was when just about everybody here in the mountains made molasses. But nowadays molasses-makers are few and far between. Molasses-makin' as we make 'em is just about a thing of the past."

The molasses he makes at the homestead isn't for sale anymore because the method doesn't meet health regulations.

"In my time, I've thousands and thousands of gallons of sorghum syrup for folks and I've never heard of 'em hurting anybody," he said.

Sorghum cane is fed into the mill as a mull hitched to a pole walks round and around to furnish power. The juice extracted is cooked in a huge trough, which is separated into six compartments.

"The juice is poured in one end, and as it cooks it moves from one compartment to another of its own will, windin' in and out like a snake, until it comes to the end where it's drained into a bucket and put in a barrel," he explained.

"The park is primarily interested in demonstrating how molasses are made in a traditional, old-timey way and wouldn't sacrifice authenticity in order to produce an item for sale," he said.

A Wood Stove For President

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — J.J. "Monk" Harrington's wood stove is going to warm President Carter.

Called the Dare IV after Dare County, the stove is one of six chosen to go in the White House or Camp David as part of the president's plan to save energy.

"I want to keep them warm when they have these summit meetings so we can get good decisions," said Harrington, a state senator and president of Harrington Manufacturing Co. in Lewiston.

"...We want to give one to the president to let him warm his feet by," Harrington said.

Harrington had talked to Gov. Jim Hunt at the Peanut Festival in Ahoskie last year about the stove offer, and Hunt mentioned it to Carter. Before the offer was accepted last month, however, Carter's representatives investigated the stove and the company because, Harrington said, they wanted to know "who we were, how long we had been in business."

He said he expects to have the $900 stove, with a choice of glass or solid doors, delivered to the White House within two weeks.

The reason the stove costs so much, Harrington said, is that it has a system of pipes that directs the heat out onto the floor of a room. The stove is designed to be fitted into a standard fireplace.

Four fairly good-sized pieces of wood will burn 12 hours in the Dare IV, so named because "it took four stoves to learn how to build one."

Harrington said he hopes the stove will go to Camp David, a rustic setting where "somebody will pay attention to it," said Stephanie Bass, Hunt's deputy press secretary.

Harrington's company also manufactures agricultural and industrial machinery. He said 1,800 stoves were on the market last year, and "this year we're shooting for 10,000."

Marketing Cards Ready

Farmers are asked to go by the area ASCS office to pick up their peanut marketing cards, and discuss the responsibilities of the marketing schedule.

Two types of cards will be issued. One will be a plastic identification card used to identify each lot of peanuts for the handler. The second card will be the marketing card, with entries on the marketing card to be checked carefully after each sale. The penalty rate for 1979 is 25.2 cents per pound.

Defector Fears For Her Mother

NEW YORK (AP) — Bolshoi Ballet ballerina Valentina Kozlova, who defected to the United States last month with her dancer husband, Leonid, says things are "going badly" for her mother in Moscow.

Mrs. Kozlova said Monday she had spoken to her mother on the telephone, and that, "She says things are going very badly for her, but she didn't tell us specifically what."

Kozlov, who appeared with his wife at a news conference, said, "They could give her problems in living. We hope that they'll stop but it'll go on for a long time." He has a mother and sister in Moscow.

Report Sale Of Feeder Pigs

A total of 16,869 feeder pigs were sold on 14 state graded sales during the week of Oct. 1, according to the Market News Service of the state Department of Agriculture. Prices were 25 cents to $4 lower per 100 pounds. US 1-2 pigs weighing 40-50 pounds averaged $45.91 per 100 pounds, with No. 3's, $40.80; 50-60 pound 1-2's, $46.59, No. 3's, $38.29; 60-70 pound 1-2's, $42.82, No. 3's, $36.37; 70-80 pound 1-2's, $40.01, No. 3's, $37.53.

Fire Prevention Week Display

NEW BERN — The U. S. Forestry Service will display information on National Fire Prevention Week at Twin Rivers Mall now until Oct. 13.

Smokey the Bear will make an appearance at the Mall Saturday, Oct. 13, from 1-2:30 p.m. to culminate the week's activities.

LIFE SENTENCE

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — David Silva, 20, of Winnabow, was sentenced to life in prison Monday on conviction of bank robbery at a branch of First Citizens Bank in Wilmington. The robbery was said to have netted $93,000.

WEEPS AT TRIAL — Tanya Adams wept Monday as her attorney addressed the jury in Seattle. Her lawyer told a jury that the "insane and delusional" young woman threw her two young boys off a Pasco-Kennewick Washington Bridge last winter because she thought it would be a painless way for them to die and go to heaven. Your Local Newspaper Saves You A Walk To The Town Square

Of course, most towns don't actually have a "town square" any more, but before the days of newspapers, there had to be a central place where important public notices were posted. Today, your newspaper fulfills the same function as the old town square posting board. The legal notices, found in your newspaper, mark the history and progress of your community. They call the attention of interested parties to the bid-letting for the new high school, auditorium or swimming pool. . . street improvement projects. . . sewage and water systems and the many other items that are synonymous with your community's growth. They can also be concerned with the citizen's obligation to jury duty, the administration of a deceased neighbor's estate.

Publication of the transactions of local and state governmental bodies, and the financial statements of private firms with wide public interest, such as financial institutions, safeguard the taxpayer's pocketbook and his constitutional rights.

Few public notices are published in the country ruled by a dictator. In a democracy, everyone has a tremendous stake in preserving the freedom of the press — and the citizen's right to know.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market dropped sharply in heavy trading today, faced with spiraling interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off 13.57 on Monday, lost another 11.09 to 872.95 by noontime today.

The mid-day tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues showed more than 1,400 declining while less than 100 advanced.

Several major banks across the country announced this morning that they were raising their prime lending rates from 13½ to 14½ percent.

The unusual increase of a full percentage point, which followed new credit-tightening moves by the Federal Reserve over the weekend, came as something of a shock to Wall Street. Analysts said interest rates had been expected to rise, but not so rapidly.

Brokers said the fast-breaking developments appeared to have increased fears among investors that the Fed's tough anti-inflation tactics might lead to a deeper recession than had been expected earlier.

They also noted concern that the price of gold, after falling Monday, rebounded strongly today. The Fed's actions were aimed in part at discouraging heavy speculation in gold, which many investors regard as a haven from economic trouble.

All 15 of the most active NYSE issues at mid-day showed losses, including American Telephone & Telegraph, off ½ at 54½; International Business Machines, down ⅛ at 67¼, and Boeing, off ⅞ at 47¾.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index dropped .90 to 61.68. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index fell 4.54 to 227.87.

Volume on the Big Board reached 23.71 million shares by noontime, up from 13.03 million at the same point Monday.

Says U.S. Will Not Rely On Kremlin Assurances

By DAN SEWELL
Associated Press Writer

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — The United States "certainly doesn't intend to rely on Soviet assurances" that a Soviet brigade in Cuba won't be increased or receive attack weapons, Secretary of Defense Harold Brown says.

After touring the Boca Chica Naval Air Station here, Brown said Monday the United States has "neutralized" the brigade with military actions.

In Jacksonville Monday evening, Brown said Marines and Navy ships will leave Norfolk, Va., and Camp Lejeune, N.C., today for training exercises at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

The deployments are part of Carter's pledge to increase the U.S. military presence in the Caribbean, Brown said.

"Although the brigade in Cuba is not a military threat," he said, "it is nonetheless a real political problem for the United States, for other nations in the region and in a true sense for nations in other parts of the globe."

A Caribbean Contingency Joint Task Force will be headquartered on the nearly dormant base at Key West, just 90 miles from Havana. It was a stronghold of 14,000 military personnel at the height of U.S.-Cuban tensions after the 1962 missile crisis, but most functions were phased out in recent years.

"Much of the command structure is already in place" for the new task force, Brown said. Sixty to 100 military personnel from all service branches will be transferred here, he said. A handful of aircraft and 2,000 personnel are now on base.

Carter ordered the expanded military activities a month after the Soviet brigade's presence was made public.

"The United States' demonstration of increased military capabilites, and reminders of overwhelming capabilities, assures that the Soviet brigade will not have the capability to project combat forces into other countries in the region," Brown said.

"That, I think, in the end will make itself understood to those in the Congress who have questions about the situation."

He expressed confidence Carter's actions have defused an attempt to "hold ... hostage" the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty and said "sentiment is growing" to get SALT II moving through the Senate.

Brown later flew to Miami to promote SALT to editors and business leaders. He had a guarded response to Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev's weekend remark that up to 20,000 Soviet troops and 1,000 tanks would be withdrawn from Eastern Europe.

"I think that any reduction of the massive Soviet military presence in Eastern Europe would be helpful," Brown said.

But he noted the withdrawals, "if carried out, would be about a 5 percent reduction in the Soviet forces there."

Sniper Hangs Self In San Francisco Jail

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Wayne Cullinane, the sniper who fired more than 50 shots from an office building and held a hostage for almost 23 hours over the weekend, hanged himself in his jail cell early today, police said.

Authorities said Cullinane was found at 6:30 a.m. by a trusty delivering breakfast. The trusty summoned a medical attendant, who cut the body down.

Cullinane apparently used a strip of bed sheet to hang himself, tying one end around his neck and the other areound the highest bars of his cell, authorities said.

A shaken deputy, who declined to give his name, said Cullinane was checked periodically but was not under constant watch. He said Cullinane apparently hanged himself between 4:30 a.m. and 5 a.m.

The San Francisco Sheriff's Department is responsible for security at city jails. Sheriff Eugene Brown and his department have been criticized in recent weeks for a series of escapes and for complaints about conditions at the jail.

Cullinane, 22, was arrested late Saturday after he fell asleep in a 16th floor office on Market Street where he had held a 55-year-old secretary hostage and fired random shots from a shattered window with a .30 caliber carbine.

His hostage, Chiyo Tashiro, was not harmed and only one person on the street suffered minor wounds from the gunfire.

Police negotiators, who had talked with Cullinane throughout the siege, described him as mentally disturbed.

He made a variety of demands, including "an end to oppression" and a $1 million food program for needy children.

The first shots were fired late Friday afternoon onto crowded Market Street, three blocks from City Hall. Police quickly sealed off 16 blocks of some of the city's busiest streets.

Cullinane was being held in isolation in a special maximum security cell at the Hall of Justice a few blocks from the sniping scene, authorities said.

He had been booked for investigation of kidnapping, robbery, assault on a peace officer, assault with a deadly weapon and false imprisonment.

Papal Visit Costly, Too

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pope John Paul II's weekend visit to Washington will cost District of Columbia and federal taxpayers about $1.5 million, nearly two-thirds of it overtime pay for police, officials say.

But some savings were realized as well, as 1,200 members of Roman Catholic youth groups and scouting organizations cleaned up tons of trash left by the crowd of 175,000 who attended the pope's Sunday Mass on the Mall between the Capitol and the Washington Monument.

The youngsters, who completed the task in just 90 minutes Monday, were rewarded with soft drinks and certificates of appreciation bearing the pope's picture.

Besides the police overtime, tax funds were spent for feeding and housing some personnel, bringing in extra health and sanitation workers and erecting security fences.

In addition, local governments will have to pick up some $400,000 in extra expenses for increased weekend service of the Washington area's subway system.

The Washington Catholic archdiocese estimates it has spent $400,000 on the pope's appearances, much of it to build an altar and backdrop on the Mall. Families in the 136 parishes were asked to contribute $5 apiece to defray the cost.

Bar Rights To Inherit

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — The state Supreme Court says three illegitimate children have no right of inheritance even though the U.S. Supreme Court established such a right less than a month after their father died.

The Arkansas court said Monday that the claim was invalid because the U.S. Supreme Court ruling of April 26, 1977, could not be applied retroactively unless a claim already was pending the day of the ruling by the nation's highest court.

The three children's father died March 30, 1977, and their claim to his estate was filed after April 26 of that year.

The case came to the high court on appeal from Jefferson County Probate Court after Willie H. Griffin's will was submitted for probate and the children filed an inheritance claim.

Chancellor Lawrence E. Dawson had ruled the three minor children were Griffin's illegitimate children and that Griffin had acknowledged them as his own. The administrator of Griffin's estate appealed Dawson's ruling to the state's highest court.

"The probate judge's findings that the children were indeed the seed of Griffin is supported by the great weight of the evidence," Associate Justice Darrell Hickman said in the state Supreme Court opinion. "It was virtually undisputed."

But Hickman wrote that because the claim was not pending on the day of the U.S. Supreme Court ruling, it was invalid, reversing Dawson's ruling and dismissing the claim.

Evacuate U.N. Complex Today

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.N. Secretariat and General Assembly were evacuated today after a young man, angry at a publishing firm, buzzed the company's nearby offices in a single-engine plane today, police said.

Bells sounded throughout the the 48-story Secretariat building and security officers ordered the several thousand employees to leave.

The General Assembly hall, where a sesssion was scheduled for 10:30 a.m., also was ordered evacuated around 11 a.m.

Meanwhile, a spokesman at the New York Post said the newspaper had received a tape cassette from the unidentified pilot.

The spokesman did not say what was on that cassette, but said police were in the newspaper's offices listening to the tape and questioning the paper's editors.

"Security has advised us that a lunatic is flying around here and threatening to crash into the U.N. building, and for that reason we are ordering an evacuation," said U.N. information officer Rudolph Stagduhar.

First Avenue outside the U.N. complex was closed to traffic, as hundreds of U.N. personnel milled around in the streets, looking up.

Nora McCormick, a clerk at the police department's aviation unit, said the unidentified man started flying near the firm's offices about 9:30 a.m. He was not threatening to crash the plane and was in fact "very pleasant" in his conversations on the radio, she said.

Police said two helicopters were sent to the area.

They would not say what company the man had worked for, nor would they describe his complaint.

New Deadline

The Pitt County Board of Elections, in a special call meeting today, pursuant to North Carolina General Statute 163-294.4(a), extended the filing deadline for candidates in the Town of Falkland for the offices of mayor and town commissioner.

The board reported that the deadline was extended until 12 noon on Friday, Oct. 12.

The extension was granted by the Board of Elections due to the fact that no persons had filed for some of the positions to be filled in the municipal election.

Coming-Out For Egyptian King

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Pharaoh Ramses II, star of the mummy collection in Cairo's Egyptian museum, had a coming out party.

Trumpets sounded a salute for the dead on Monday as President Anwar Sadat pulled a blue-and-gold velvet covering from the showcase holding the preserved body of one of Egypt's most famous kings.

The ceremony at the museum marked the first public display of the royal mummy since it was flown to France three years ago for treatment of fungus and parasites that were gradually destroying it.

For seven months, 80 scholars ranging from nuclear scientists to cosmetic experts treated it for fungus, bacteria and parasites.

Loss Of DH Worrying Orioles' Weaver

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver is concerned about losing the use of his designated hitter as the Orioles' prepared to open the 1979 World Series tonight against the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"It certainly is going to make a difference," said Weaver, boss of the American League champions.

Manager Chuck Tanner of the National League champion Pirates made it clear he would rather play without the DH, an American League institution disdained by the National League.

"We haven't had to do without it since the 1971 World Series," lamented Weaver. "Lee May (the Orioles DH in the regular season), was a big part of our offense. What effect it has will depend on the other eight guys in our starting lineup," Weaver said.

Tanner, who managed in the American League and is familiar with the DH's affect on the game, estimated it was worth half-a-run a game.

"But I'd rather manage without it," said the Pirates' field boss. "It's a different ball game. Pitchers stay in longer. You don't need the long reliever. And why shouldn't a good hitting pitcher bat? Why should he be penalized?"

The DH is used every other year in the Series, and last year, when the New York Yankees beat the Los Angeles Dodgers, Reggie Jackson had nine hits in 23 at bats with two home runs and eight RBI. The Dodgers' main DH was Lee Lacy, who went 2-for-14.

May hit 19 home runs and had 69 RBI this season as the Orioles DH. Obviously, the Baltimore offense has to suffer.

Bruce Kison, Pittsburgh's starting pitcher in the first of the best-of-seven game Series, had eight hits, scored eight runs, drove in six, including four with a grand-slam home run. He hit just .145.

But the only contact Orioles' starter Mike Flanagan has had with the bat is seeing it in somebody else's hands. Flanagan, however, was 23-9 with a 2.65 ERA and is the big favorite to win the Cy Young Award as the AL's outstanding pitcher. He was baseball's winningest pitcher this year.

Kison was 13-4 with a 3.14 ERA, and was outstanding in the Pirates' September drive to the NL Eastern Division title, winning his last five. He's also 4-0 in postseason play.

The last time the Pirates were in the Series was 1971. the last time the Orioles were in the Series was 1971. Kison pitched one-hit ball for 61-3 innings in relief as the Pirates won the fourth game on their way to a seven-game triumph.

The Pirates, who reached the Series by sweeping the NL West Division champion Cincinnati Reds in their best-of-five championship set, were concerned about the condition of the Baltimore playing field. The Baltimore Colts played in the stadium Sunday in a National Football League game against the New York Jets and the natural turf was torn up.

Weaver alleviated the Pirates' fears.

"All I can say," he said, "is that the ground crew worked miracles. All the cleat marks and divots from the football game have been filled in. They worked on their hands and knees to do the job. It will be playable. That is, without rain..."

Baltimore, which led the majors with 102 victories this season, beat the West Division champion California Angels 3-1 in the playoffs, and hosts the first two games. The middle three are scheduled for Pittsburgh, and the final pair, if needed, in Baltimore.

Weaver admitted he was having trouble deciding on a starting lineup because of his inability to use the DH. If he decided to put May in the lineup it meant moving a lot of players around defensively. The odds are May's Series role will be as a pinch hitter.

The Orioles are expected to John Lowenstein in left field, Al Bumbry in center and Ken Singleton in right, with Eddie Murray at first, Billy Smith and Mark Belanger the second base-shortstop combination, and Doug Decinces at third. Rick Dempsey is expected to catch Flanagan.

Stargell, captain of the Pirates and a leading candidate for the NL Most Valuable Player award, played on the 1971 Pirates in their Series triumph over the Orioles. He refused, however, to compare the teams.

The Starters

It was time for the cameraman and Bruce Kison, left of the Pittsburgh Pirates, and Mike Flanagan of the Baltimore Orioles posed at Memorial Stadium in between team workouts Monday. At the stadium tonight, they'll be on the hill as the starting hurlers for their respective clubs in the first game of the 1979 World Series. (AP Laserphoto)

Tar Heels Up; Pack Is Down

The top five teams, led by Southern California, remained the same today in The Associated Press college football poll while Washington slipped past Houston into sixth place and Auburn cracked the Top Twenty for the first time this season, replacing Tennessee.

The Trojans of Southern Cal, 50-21 winners over Washington State, received 53 first-place votes and 1,285 of a possible 1,300 points from a nationwide panel of 65 sports writers and broadcasters.

Alabama, Oklahoma and Texas held down the 2-3-4 spots, as they have since the preseason poll.

Alabama, which blanked Wichita State 38-0, received 11 first-place votes and 1,248 points. Oklahoma, which trounced Colorado 49-24, received 1,126 points while the other first-place ballot went to Texas, which defeated Rice 26-9. The Longhorns totaled 1,101 points.

Nebraska retained fifth place with 1,059 points following a 57-0 rout of New Mexico State.

However, Washington, seventh a week ago, crushed Oregon State 41-0 and edged past Houston into sixth place with 889 points. The Cougars, who squeaked past Baylor 13-10, dropped from sixth to seventh with 884 points.

Rounding out the Top Ten, just as they did last week, were Ohio State, Florida State and Notre Dame. Ohio State beat Northwestern 16-7 and earned 781 points, Florida State blanked Louisville 27-0 and received 756 points while Notre Dame held off Georgia Tech 21-13 and polled 664 points.

Singleton Likely To Hit Home Run Tonight

BALTIMORE (AP) — The "Mike and Ken" show debuts on national prime time television tonight, and it won't please Pittsburgh Pirates' viewers if it follows the usual script.

Mike Flanagan will be the starting pitcher for the Baltimore Orioles in the opening game of the World Series, so chances are that teammate Ken Singleton will hit a home run.

"I don't know why it happens, I'm just happy it does," Flanagan said of the baseball phenomenon.

Singleton hit a career-high 35 homers in 1979, and 15 came in support of Flanagan. Singleton hit .295 for the season but in the 40 games Flanagan started, he batted .338 and had 32 of his 111 runs batted in.

And, it's been going on ever since Flanagan made his debut with the Orioles on Sept. 5, 1974. Since then, 34 of Singleton's 95 homers have come in games started by the left-hander and 32 with Flanagan still in the game.

"I'm happy to pitch this first game and I'm happy it's at home," said Flanagan, who posted a 14-2 record in Memorial Stadium this season while leading the major leagues with 23 victories.

"I haven't started a Series game before, but I feel at ease," Flanagan said. "I think (Jim) Palmer took all the pressure off me by starting the playoffs."

Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver started Palmer in the American League Championship Series against the California Angels, relying on the veteran right-hander's experience and 7-2 postseason record to get the Orioles off and running.

This time, Weaver listened to scouts who recommended he start as many left-handed pitchers as possible to counter Pittsburgh predominantly left-handed power.

"The scouting reports helped me in that it's nice to know where the other team's strength is," Flanagan said. "So you know what zone to stay out of. But you have to stay with your strength."

Weaver's choice of Flanagan even satisfied Palmer, who called it a "logical and practical decision." Last week, Palmer said it would have made more sense that Flanagan, and not he, pitch the playoff opener.

Weaver also decided on a lineup which included five left-handed batters, three of them switchers, to use against Pittsburgh right-hander Bruce Kison, a sinkerball specialist.

But the Balimore skipper admitted he was "just playing the percentages" by starting left-handed batter John Lowenstein in left field and switcher Billy Smith at second base.

Lowenstein hit 11 homers while batting only 197 times during the regular season, and then won the playoff opener with a three-run pinch homer in the 10th inning. Smith batted 189 times, hitting .320 right-handed but only .238 as a left-hander.

Oakland Defense Rips Miami For 13-3 Win

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Raiders' defense had a right to feel overworked.

But Ted Hendricks was only kidding when he described his thoughts on the interception which played such a big part in Monday night's 13-3 victory over the Miami Dolphins.

"That's my first interception for a touchdown," said the linebacker who has intercepted 23 passes over 11 National Football League seasons.

"I don't like to see us get touchdowns on defense. It means we have to go right back onto the field again," he added. "I was thinking of stepping out of bounds at about the 5-yard line."

The tall linebacker ran 23 yards into the end zone, however, for the Raiders' second touchdown in the opening minutes of the third period. Miami, held to 35 net yards in the first half, was down 13-0 and a few offensive errors were yet to come.

Delvin Williams plunged 1 yard for a touchdown late in the third period, but the third-down play was nullified by a motion penalty, linebacker Phil Villapiano knocked down a pass and the Dolphins settled for Uwe von Schamann field goal and their only points in the nationally televised game.

The Raiders, 27-3 winners over Denver last week, evened their season record at 3-3 and dropped the Dolphins to 4-2. Oakland is back in the AFC West race while Miami is tied with New England for the AFC East lead.

"We made little mistakes, but they took on great magnitude," said Larry Csonka, whose running accounted for many of the yards in the drive from Miami's 25-yard line to inside the Oakland 1.

"Our special teams made errors again, serious errors. We have to get untracked and do the things that win football games," said Coach Don Shula.

A week earlier, in Miami's first loss of the season, a blocked punt gave the New York Jets a touchdown. In the Monday night loss, Tony Nathan fumbled the ball away as he returned the second-half kickoff and the Raiders scored four plays later on Ken Stabler's 14-yard touchdown pass to tight end Raymond Chester.

Jim Breech missed the extra point attempt, kicking wide to the right, and the Raiders' offense gained only 56 yards over the final 26 minutes of the game. But Hendricks' interception sent them into the 13-point lead which proved more than enough.

"It was a poor decision, a poor play," said Miami Coach Don Shula, describing the pass Bob Griese aimed toward tight end Bruce Hardy on the right side.

"It was just a bad pass," said Griese, who also was sacked six times on the rough night.

Reggie Kinlaw, a rookie lineman who sees spot duty for Oakland, made three sacks and aided on another. His last sack came on a fourth-and-two play at the Raiders' 12-yard line early in the final period.

"It was my decision to go for it, get a touchdown on the board and get something going," said Shula.

But for the second straight game, no touchdowns were put on the board against the Oakland defense.

"That's quite a feat," said Coach Tom Flores. "Miami moves the ball against everybody."

Williams and Csonka gave the Dolphins 169 yards rushing. The 32-yard-old Csonka totaled 83 yards, giving him a six-game total of 350, more than his season total with the New York Giants last year.

Contest Winners

Randy Poindexter of 202 N. Woodlawn Ave., is the winner of last week's "Daily Reflector" Football contest.

Poindexter correctly picked the winners in 26 of the 32 games listed. His victory came on the basis of his point spread guess of 76. The actual number of points scored was 75 in Auburn's 44-31 win over N.C. State.

Second place went to Gene Hathaway of Apartment 39, Carriage House, who also had 26 right. He was further off on his point guess with 79.

The tie between Duke and Army was counted as a wrong guess, since rules permit one to pick a tie.

"That's a Butler building?"

Yes, that's a Butler building. In fact, you probably see beautiful Butler buildings all the time and don't know it. Because what many people don't realize is that we can build you a Butler building that is as tasteful or dramatic as any building.

With flat, sloped or curved rooflines. Wood, glass, brick or almost any exterior. One to five stories high. You give us your guidelines and we'll build you a building that fits your needs and your budget.

You'll get the attractive building you want, plus all the important time and money savings of systems construction.

So, if you're planning a new building, call us. The combination of our construction know-how and the design flexibility of Butler Building Systems can be a beautiful solution to your needs.

For the business owner who hasn't got all day to talk about insurance...

Ætna Business Owners Policy Can Save Your Day!

Ætna's Business Owners Policy can trim what used to be a whole day's discussion down to a few minutes. Why? Because it's so simple.

Instead of a mountain of forms to fill out, there's only one. Instead of a lot of questions to answer, there are only a few. And instead of hours to give you a quote, it takes minutes.

Yet you get the Premises Liability and Property protection your business needs. Perhaps more than you're getting now. And maybe for less money.

What's more, it can help you manage your cash flow better because you can pay monthly, quarterly or annually, with our customer oriented payment plan.

We know you haven't got all day to talk about insurance. So give us a call. In just a few short minutes we may be able to save you a lot more than time.

Think Positive. Think Ætna. Think...

WEEKLY PRIZES

1st PRIZE
$25.00

2nd Prize
$15.00

CONTEST RULES

Wake Forest at Georgia

1. Thirty-two football games are placed on these pages. Pick the winner of each game (not the score) and write the team name opposite the advertiser's name on the entry blank. The entrant picking the most correct winners each week will be awarded $25.00. Second place $15.00

2. Pick a number which you think will be the most number of points scored by both teams in any one of the week's games listed and write your answer in the space provided on the entry blank. This will be used to break ties. In the event of a further tie the money will be equally divided between the winning entrants.

3. Only one entry per person per week. The contest is open to all except employees of The Daily Reflector and their immediate families.

4. Entries must be in The Daily Reflector office not later than 5:00 p.m. Friday or post marked not later than Friday p.m. Address entries to: FOOTBALL CONTEST, P.O. Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. (Reasonable facsimilies also accepted.)

DUNKEL COLLEGE FOOTBALL INDEX

EXPLANATION - The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

Gaylord Perry Keeping Quiet As He Waits For Trade Notice

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Gaylord Perry, the Williamston pitching star, is sitting on the sidelines, waiting.

Early in September, Perry walked out on his contract with the San Diego Padres, saying he wanted to be traded to a team closer to the East Coast and his Williamston farm. He cited family as his reason.

Yesterday, at the annual party given in his honor in Greenville, Perry was reluctant to talk about his situation.

"I've heard no more from San Diego. I'm just waiting to see what happens," he said.

A couple of weeks following his departure from San Diego, the two-time Cy Young winner had the chance to return to the Padres. Reports on the chance, however, were varied. Some said he called and asked to come back, others said San Diego called him to come back.

"I called them about something else," Perry said, "and was asked about coming back. This was about ten days after I left. I told them to talk with Roger (Craig, then manager of the Padres, since fired) about my getting back into the rotation. They called back in a couple of days and said it would be best for me to stay home."

Perry said he had waited until the minor league season was completed, so the Padres could bring someone else up if they wanted to, after he left. "I gave them about two weeks notice of what I was going to do," he said.

As far as a trade is concerned, Perry said that San Diego tried to help out but was unsuccessful. When he was placed on waviers, it was reported that two National League teams asked to pick him up, and his name was withdrawn.

"I hope something comes quickly," he said. Perry earlier expressed the hope that he could return to the Texas Rangers for whom he played prior to his trade to San Diego. But he said he hasn't talked with Texas. "They can't talk with me and I can't talk with them. It's up to San Diego to trade me, if they can to an East Coast team."

Asked if there were other teams he would like to play for, either in the National or American leagues, Perry declined a comment. "It would not be proper for me to mention anyone."

Lacking only 21 more victories to enter the 300 victory circle, Perry is hopeful that he will get a couple of more years, despite his age of 41.

Turning to the World Series, Perry said he expected a very exciting series. "There are two fine teams with two fine managers. Pittsburgh is a team that won't quit. They keep coming back and pouring it on. Baltimore is more balanced' but I have to pick Pittsburgh to win it."

The interleague trading season opens ten days after the Series ends. Perry hopes that his trade, if it is to come will come quickly. As to what he would do if the Padres don't trade him, he was non-commital. "I just hope something works out."

The annual luncheon in Perry's honor was sponsored by Bond's Sporting Goods; "The Daily Reflector," Hendrix-Barnhill, Pepsi-Cola, and W. M. Scales Jr. and W. M. Scales III.

Perry Honored

Gaylord Perry, right, awaiting word on whether he will be traded by the San Diego Padres, as he has requested, was honored yesterday at a luncheon at the home of W. M. "Booger" Scales, center. Among those joining in to honor the two-time Cy Young winner was new East Carolina basketball coach Dave Odom, left. (Reflector Photo)

Martinez, Ridenhour, Riddick, Barnes Selected To Hall Of Fame

Dr. Ray Martinez, swimming coach at East Carolina for 14 seasons, and three former standout athletes will be inducted into the school's Sports Hall of Fame in ceremonies Saturday.

Martinez, along with Lester Ridenhour, captain of the 1936 Pirate football team, Ike Riddick, a former basketball standout, and Carlton Barnes, a former baseball star, will be honored during halftime ceremonies at the homecoming football game. The Citadel and East Carolina are set to have a 1:30 p.m. kickoff.

Martinez, currently a professor on the school's physical education faculty, had a 14-year stint as the Pirate swimming coach, an era which included the 1957 and 1959 NAIA national championships. His 1962 team was the NCAA College Division runner-up. He coached 15 NAIA and four NCAA College Division national champions and had 45 men earn all-American recognition during his tenure. He also coached the Pirates in tennis for the period 1955-58.

Born in New Orleans, he earned his undergraduate and master's degrees at Louisiana State University and a Ph.D. at Iowa State. His athletic accomplishments include winning the Southern AAU 50-yard freestyle championship. He has served on numerous national aquatics committees, representing the NAIA, the NCAA and the AAU, and has devoted countless hours to instructional swimming for youth and the handicapped.

His highest honors include being designated a Master Coach and receiving the Kiputh Award for national leadership in aquatics.

Ridenhour, currently the Administrative Assistant to the Superintendent of the Burlington City Schools, won four letters in each of three sports while at East Carolina. He was captain of football, basketball and baseball during his career and completed his diamond days with a .366 lifetime average. He topped the 1938 team with an eye-popping .411 mark.

Also an accomplished tennis player, the Davie County native served as student body president and sports editor of the student paper while in Greenville and had served two terms as president of the Alumni Association.

Riddick, a three-year starter for the Pirate cagers, led the North State Conference in scoring as a senior with a 24.6 average, the same year he served as team captain. He played with the North State all-star team after his final season and was most valuable player in the post-season Portsmouth (Va.) Invitational Tournament, a three-day affair which included many prominert collegians.

Born in Washington, he grew up in Greenville and got an early start on an athletic career. He was the first to hit a home run in the Elm Street Little League Park in Greenville, and is in the Little League Hall of Fame. He earned his undergraduate degree at East Carolina in 1961. He is currently the editor-publisher of the "Duplin Times" in Kenansville.

Barnes, the most valuable player on the 1965 Pirate baseball team, served as the co-captain that same year as was chosen to the all-state team three times. He later played in the Cincinnati Reds organization during 1965-68, coached and taught in Kinston and presently is a regional supervisor in the Greensboro office of Aetna Life.

A physical education major, the Wilson native graduated magna cum laude at East Carolina in 1965 and earned a master's degree here in 1970.

The addition of the four brings to 27 the total enshrined to date. The Hall was begun in 1974 with the selection of ten men. No more than four may be added in any one year. Former Pirate football coach and athletics director Clarence Stasavich was inducted alone in 1976. Jim Johnson, Jim Mallory, Tom Michel and Richard Narron were the 1978 inductees.

Stan The Man Unusual Is Madcap Of Baltimore Oriole Clubhouse

BALTIMORE (AP) — You don't have to be a pitcher to be a flake, but it helps.

Take Don Stanhouse, eccentric right-handed relief ace of the Baltimore Orioles. You take him. The hard-hitting Pittsburgh Pirates may not be able to in the World Series, starting tonight in Memorial Stadium.

He's some kind of cat, this Stanhouse — a throwback to such nonconformists as Lefty Gomez and Flint Rhem and one who fits comfortably with such modern duplicates as Sparky Lyle, Al ("The Mad Hungarian") Hrabosky, Bill ("Grass-on-My-Cornflakes") Lee, and Mark "The Bird" Fidrych.

Stanhouse is a whimsical-looking character with a light red frizzled Harpo Marx hairstyle, a mustache that dips down to his chin and a madcap personality that has made him the tension-breaker in the Orioles' clubhouse.

Teammate Mike Flanagan, has dubbed him "Stan the Man Unusual."

Stanhouse liked the sobriquet so much that he had a tee shirt made with the nickname on front plus a caricature of a pitcher sticking out his tongue. He distributed the shirts to all his fellow Orioles. He saved a spare for the stuffed gorilla which sits atop his clubhouse locker.

He is a bachelor who cloaks his zanyisms in a morbid exterior. He tends toward black clothes. He drives a black car. All the furniture in his pad is black, including the telephone.

"I think is working to be a mortician," quips catcher Rick Dempsey.

Chances are you'll be seeing a lot of "Stan the Man Unusual" during the next 10 days. He's Earl Weaver's favorite run plugger (45 saves the last two seasons) although he puts a heavy drain on the little skipper's cigarette supply.

Stanhouse walks more batters than he strikes out. He likes to live dangerously. He isn't comfortable unless the bases are full and the other team's best hitter is up, swinging the lumber ominously.

Such was the case in the second game of American League playoffs last week when, trying to save an early 9-1 lead which suddenly had deteriorated to 9-4, Weaver sent the rangy righthander into the breach in the eighth inning.

Before one could say "Charlie O," the score had gone to 9-8 and Stanhouse, walking the first batter, had the bases full and the Orioles' leading hitter, Brian Downing, at the plate.

Weaver, meanwhile, had sought sanctuary in the runway, unable to look, and begun burning cigarettes in anxiety.

"Why didn't you take him out?" the manager was asked afterward.

"Because I still had three cigarettes left," Weaver replied. Later he explained, "There's not a better man in a tight situation — he refuses to give in."

Stanhouse says he likes it when everybody is nervous and he isn't, adding, "It's fun."

Lefty Gomez is chairman emeritus of the "Flake Club." Once he stopped a World Series game to stare at an airplane overhead. "You don't see many of them things," he apologized. Another time before a game in Boston's Fenway Park he changed clothes in a phone booth, explaining, "I wanted to get used to those short fences."

Flint Rhem, a legend when he pitched for the Cards back in the 1930s, would disappear for days at a time and return with grotesque tales of kidnapping.

Mark Fidrych, the young Detroit Tiger with injury problems, became an instant folk hero in 1976 with his bizarre histrionics on the mound. Built like an ostrich, all arms and legs, he worked with a wild intensity, always jerking at his cap, gardening around the mound and talking to the ball. "That's how I keep involved," he says."

Texas has Sparky Lyle, a notorious prankster, and Kansas City provides a setting for Al Hrabosky, "The Mad Hungarian." The latter tries to fighten batters with his heavy growth of beard, snarls and rants. "It's my big weapon," he insists. The Expos' erudite Bill Lee frightens the establishment by saying he puts marijuana on his corn flakes.

Flakes? Welcome to the club, Stan the Man Unusual.

Terp Arrival Could Be Best For State

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — As strange as it may seem, the arrival of Maryland at Carter-Finley Stadium Saturday could be just what the doctor ordered for North Carolina State's ailing defenders.

But that could work both ways. Perhaps a meeting with the Wolfpack will be the ideal prescription for Maryland's offensive ills.

"Our defense was just plain lousy," said N.C. State Coach Bo Rein after the 44-31 beating the Wolfpack absorbed Saturday at the hands of Auburn.

"You can't give up the ball seven times and win," said Maryland Coach Jerry Claiborne after the Terps did just that and found themselves on the short end of a 27-7 score against Penn State.

That, in a nutshell, is what Saturday's Atlantic Coast Conference football game is all about. Maryland (3-2) has been having its share of troubles putting points on the board. N.C. State (4-1) can't keep them off.

The Terrapins have broken back-to-back two-game losing streaks for what most agree are subpar Kentucky and Penn State teams. And the Terps have scored all of 14 points in the process.

Against the Nittany Lions the Terps passed midfield just twice and allowed quarterback Mike Tice, who completed just three of 20 passes, to be sacked eight times.

Maryland permitted Penn State to take the short route to the end zone three times. The Terps lost the ball on a pass interception at the 38 and on fumbles at the 14 and the two.

"They took advantage of our turnovers," said Claiborne in a startling understatement.

The Wolfpack has surrendered a shade under 24 points per game and done so in alarming fashion. The defense plays well in spurts, but at times finds itself walking toward its own goal with great rapidity. N.C. State had a 14-0 lead against Auburn, but was outscored 44-3 in the middle periods before tallying twice to make the score respectable.

Cale Is Still 4th

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Cale Yarborough's victory in the NAPA National 500 didn't help him out of fourth place in the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing rankings, NASCAR officials said.

With four races left this season, Darrell Waltrip leads the point standings released here Monday. Waltrip's 4,228 points put him 53 ahead of Richard Petty. Bobby Allison was third with 4,007 and Yarborough fourth at 3,981.

Yarborough's win Sunday at the Charlotte Motor Speedway was his fourth of the NASCAR season.

Top point earners behind Yarborough are Benny Parsons, 3,636; Joe Millikan, 3,522; Richard Childress, 3,222; D.K. Ulrich, 3,135; Buddy Arrington, 3,121; and Dale Earnhardt, 3,111.

The next race of the season is the Holly Farms 400 Sunday at the North Wilkesboro, N.C., Speedway.

Pair Are ACC Stars

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Clemson tackle Steve Durham and Wake Forest linebacker Marc Hester have been selected as the Atlantic Coast Conference defensive players of the week.

Durham, a junior from Greer, S.C., was in on a team-high 11 tackles as Clemson beat Virginia, 17-7.

The Tigers held Virginia's highly regarded running attack to 144 yards, less than half the Cavaliers' season average.

A senior from Thomasville, Hester was credited with 15 tackles, including nine solos, in the Deacon's 19-14 victory over Virginia Tech.

Another Wake Forest player, split end Wayne Baumgardner, was named earlier along with North Carolina quarterback Matt Kupec for offensive honors in the league.

The selections were made by a committee of the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association.

In 1962, the first year for the New York Mets, Roger Craig was the pitching leader in victories with a record of 10-24.

Greenville Has Two Tourneys

The Greenville Golf and Country Club recently completed two tournaments.

The team of Wilbur Castellow, Celeste Wilkerson, Bill Batchelor and Jane Joyner took first place in a Captain's Choice Tournament.

Second went to Paul Evans, Joan Warren, Sara West and Alex White, who also won closest to the pin on the third hole. Third were Joe Ward, Ford McGowan, Patsy McPherson and Marge Parrish. Ed Monroe, Sue Hardy, Dean Painter and Vertie King finished fourth and Harriette White, Charlie Howard, Reid Hooper and Andy Thiele were fifth.

Jean Creech, Joan Hooper, Charles DeShaw and Tom Parrish took closest to the pin on number ten.

In the Popsicle Open, a tournament held for ages 5-10, Bill Taft, with a 51, took first place in the ten-year-old group while Marilyn Brown was second with an 84. The ten year olds played nine holes.

The nine year olds also played nine, and it was won by Dallas McPherson with a 43, while Brian Wille had a 45. Wes MacKenzie took the 7-8-year-old group with a six-hole total of 33, while Teague Tripp, with a 35 was second. Will MacKenzie won the 5-6-year-old group with a four-hole total of 20. Brooks Honeycutt was second with a 28.

Brewer Looks To ECU Self-Identity

In the 1980's, "we hope to see a resolution of the question of identity of East Carolina University," Dr. Thomas Brewer, chancellor of the university told the annual meeting of the Pitt-Greene Production Credit Association stockholders Saturday night.

Some 1,000 PCA stockholders and guests attended the session and heard Brewer say, "we want people to know who we are, what we do, and how well we do it.

"Once ECU achieves mature self identity," Brewer emphasized, "it can rightfully expect from its graduates an even greater sense of loyalty."

Brewer, pointing out that the historic function of the preparation of teachers, "remains partly with us," said some people today say East Carolina, " 'trains teachers,' " and' " 'has a medical school.' "

There are a lot of other missions that lie in between these two purposes' according to Brewer, who pointed out that ECU has 12,900 students statewide, offers 105 bachelor's degree programs, 69 master's programs, five PhD programs, had has nine professional schools.

"I am not sure that I can sketch for you...the answers to the question of what East Carolina will be doing in the 80's," Brewer said. But he added, "I feel more confortable in saying that whatever our mission during the 80's, we will all understand it, and we will do it well. We want to place our university before the bar of public judgement; we want to be held accountable for our performance."

Brewer listed some of the things East Carolina will try to do in the 80's.

"We expect to graduate about 36 doctors per year; 85 per year by the end of the decade.

"We expect 100 doctors to complete their residency per year," and expect to award about 2,500 undergraduate degrees per year, along with 740 graduate degrees per year.

"We expect," he continued, "to produce about 130 nurses per year...60 specialists in educational and behavioral sciences per year.

"We expect to turn out about 100 research projects per year...to assist about 200 public and governmental agencies in consultative roles per year...to hold approximately 100 art exhibits, concerts, plays, and so on per year," and expect enrollment to increase about 200 students per year.

An institution like East Carolina is almost an industry unto itself, Brewer pointed out.

"In this light, we expect to do a lot of things that are not strictly academic."

Illustrating, Brewer said, "we expect to set out 3,000 pieces of shrubbery per year...to mow the equivalent of 4,200 acres of grass...to paint 16,400 windows," and "expect to cut 600 watermelons into 4,800 slices at our Student Union's summer cuttings'."

Saying, "some of our other predictions are not nearly as trustworthy," Brewer predicted winning football and basketball seasons; the track team to have one person who will make the Olympic team, "our women's basketball team to be nationally ranked," and the baseball team to have a record of 37 wins and 8 losses.

"Predictions get even more slippery when one starts talking about our students," Brewer noted. "Nevertheless, we have some expectations about them."

He said ECU students are expected to eat an average of 85,000 hamburgers every 10 days; consume about 100,000 soft drinks every 10 days, "and probably as much beer."

"Obviously some of my predictions have been made with tongue in cheek," Brewer pointed out. "But they are nonetheless generally accurate when one considers the whole context."

"ECU has a most meaningful goal, which was placed on the seal of the charter of the college when it was established in 1907 — the works, 'To Serve'", Brewer emphasized.

"And East Carolina has served the State of North Carolina well," the chancellor continued.

Since 1950, approximately 39,000 persons have graduated from the university, and the campus has increased from 140 acres to 411 acres," he pointed out.

"Since 1950," according to Brewer, "the faculty has increased from less than 100, to over 800 today," and the number of buildings has increased from about 20 to about 75 today.

Brewer emphasized, "the past history of East Carolina's commitment to the areas of this state where doctors were needed, where health care professionals were sparse, where school teachers with special skills were required, and where all kinds of educated people were needed is a record in which all persons can take pride."

Brewer noted that, "without forsaking our missions of the past," the university, "can now begin to assume our proper share of some of the larger responsibilities that fall upon a great university...research, for example...the advancement of knowledge and the improvement of the quality of life."

In its commitment to its students, Brewer said, East Carolina, "believes that it 'serves' in the full meaning of the word, when it educates well those students enrolled here.

"In the future, then, we must continue to place on the agenda before our people the unfinished business of East Carolina University.

"We must take pride in our past history and accomplishments, and we must solemly be aware of the obligations that lie before us now. We must allocate our resources wisely, and we must render a full and faithful accounting to our people."

Brewer continued, "What we hope for on our university campus is that our students and those whom we influence will somehow acquire wisdom as an end-product of the experiences that they have. We cannot expect to produce the educated person when measured against the total sum of knowledge."

Education, Brewer pointed out, "allows one the option of having more choices about a whole variety of things ...education, then, might be considered as an instrumentality for permitting one to make some choices about his work station, about his personal set of values, and about those things which he enjoys and appreciates.

"Education is some way must seriously engage itself with this issue of living the good life, and this includes the ability to think critically about those things in our culture which should be preserved and enhanced. In this larger sense then, East Carolina University places its faith in the premise that education is the vehicle that will enable one to live the good life, to fight the good fight, to protect and preserve our heritage, and to insure that future generations will have the same opportunity."

David H. Smith, chairman of the board of directors of the Pitt-Greene PCA presided at the Saturday dinner session.

Ask Test-Tube Baby Permit

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Norfolk General Hospital planned to file a second application today seeking permission from Virginia's health commissioner to establish the first test-tube baby laboratory in the United States.

A hospital spokesman said Monday the second application would be more extensive than the first, which was turned down Sept. 28 by state Health Commissioner James B. Kenley. He cited a need "to resolve questions and issues" about the project.

Kenley called for a more comprehensive review by the Virginia Statewide Health Coordinating Council. The review under the new application will take 90 days.

The lab would be used for an in vitro fertilization project sponsored by the Eastern Virginia Medical School.

Anti-abortion groups have denounced the project, contending doctors may suggest abortions to patients if test-tube embryos reimplanted in the womb turn out to be seriously deformed.

Charles D. Dean Jr., president of the Virginia Society for Human Life, said he expected the hospital to re-apply but that his organization is "confident that once a full hearing is given to the objections to the project, the certificate will be denied."

The hospital wants to renovate 120 square feet of former storage space and equip the lab for $25,000, using private funds. Virginia law requires that the state health commissioner certify a need for all hospital services.

Proponents of the fertilization project say that the procedure offers hope to women unable to conceive naturally because of blocked fallopian tubes (which carry the human egg from the ovary to the womb for fertilization).

"We're really not doing anything controversial here," said Michael Keating, a Norfolk General spokesmanm "At some point, trust has to come in on the part of the public."

'Scrap' Leaf Change Plea

A petition to the U. S. Customs Service to change the definition of "scrap" tobacco has been published in the "Federal Register," dated Sept. 28.

Submitted by John Sledge, a Martin County tobacco farmer, the petition requests that certain imported tobacco now being classified as "scrap" should be classified as stemmed cigarette leaf. The tobacco in question has been machined-threshed into fragments for use in the manufacture of cigarettes.

Sledge, who is president of the North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation, said individual tobacco producers are being encouraged to file comments on the petition before Nov. 27. These should be directed to: Commissioner of Customs; Attn: Regulations and Research Division; Room 2335; 1301 Constitution Ave.; Washington, D. C.; 20229.

The petition points out that stemmed tobacco has a current duty rate of 45 cents per pound, while scrap tobacco carries a duty of 16.1 cents.

"It is apparent," said Sledge, "that an alteration in the form of tobacco is being utilized to reduce the import duty."

Sledge noted that the existing situation has caused a build-up of downstalk grades in this country and has created a serious economic impact upon domestic producers in that it poses unfair competition.

Trade Team Visits N.C.

ST. LOUIS, MO. — Efficient production is the key to building a successful poultry industry, as officials from the Soviet Union broiler industry have learned during their tour of North Carolina's poultry industry.

The American Soybean Association, in cooperation with the U. S. Department of Agriculture Foreign Agricultural Service, sponsored the trade team.

The Soviet Poultry Team visited soybean farms Monday, and met with members of the North Carolina Soybean Producers Association for dinner in Charlotte.

The Soviet Union has set a long-term goal to increase per capita consumption of poultry by 66 percent. Poultry numbers in the USSR have increased 20 percent in the last four years, and as a result, the USSR is expected to become an expanding market for soybeans.

The American Soybean Association has developed market expansion activities this fall to encourage Soviets to import American soybeans.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You start the day with some brilliant ideas which should be expressed without delay for obstacles come into you path later. Alter your plans so you can sidestep interferences.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Morning is fine for having improved relations with the public in general. Steer clear of those who like to criticize you.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't neglect to handle important financial affairs early in the day. Be sure not to confide personal affairs to others at this time.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Waste no time in pursuing your goals and gaining them today. Evening is fine for making social contacts and getting good results.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Consult an expert early in the day and then you can handle a difficult problem easily. Be truthful to others.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Gain the assistance of close ties so that you can achieve your aims. Take health treatments and you can accomplish more.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Confer whenever possible today with a higher-up who can give you the support you need. Be cheerful and express happiness.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Morning is fine for improving relations with new contacts and getting good results. Use more authority in dealing with others.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Although you may be under some tension, try to help a close tie who is in trouble. Be active and all is fine.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Find out what is expected of you by associates and then carry through efficiently. Sit on your laurels in the evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make early plans for the work you want to do today, then full speed ahead and get excellent results. Enjoy social affair later.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study new ways of adding to your abundance in the future. Be sure to handle a business matter wisely. Be cheerful at all times.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Carry through with original plans instead of putting off to another day. Use right methods to solve puzzling problem.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those logical persons who will require a fine education to succeed in life. Government work is ideal in this chart. Teach good manners and give religious training early in life. There's a leader here.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

'Singing Cowboy' Has To Earn Spurs

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The young man who won a highly publicized nationwide contest to find "The Singing Cowboy" in 1974 is an unpretentious lounge singer who has yet to earn his spurs as a buckskin baritone.

Neely Reynolds, 29, earns $240 a week singing alone in Nashville lounges, five years after winning the contest on the ABC "Wide World of Entertainment" special, "In Search of the Singing Cowboy."

He has yet to ride into the sunset with a pretty leading lady or strum a guitar while astride a handsome palomino. The contest left him a disillusioned cowpoke.

As he tells it, promoters on the West Coast tried to turn him into a teen-age idol shortly after he defeated seven others in the contest that was dubbed "the greatest talent search in the history of show business."

"This is where it got strange," he recalls. "They wanted me to be the replacement as the teeny bop idol — another David Cassidy.

"I went from a nobody to an image," he says. "I wasn't happy. I didn't want to be something I wasn't."

Within a year, he began drawing unemployment checks for $90 a week.

"After the television special, they (promoters) didn't seem too interested. There was little communication. There was a lot of talk and little action.

"I really had to start over," Reynolds says. "The night I won, I was moved. It was like a dream come true. I saw the whole thing as a small step in my career. I figured that within five years, I'd make my impact.

"It was nice for about a month. I got to be on 'The Merv Griffin Show' and do a lot of interviews. Then people sort of forgot about me.

"I had to decide what kind of person I wanted to be. I decided that I had to be myself. I'm not good at hype.

"I'm sorry I couldn't handle it. I did what I could live with. I'm not sorry for getting out the way I did. I don't think I should have a black mark against me."

He admits, though, that he wasn't much of a cowboy. Just prior to the contest, he rode his first horse.

"Someone had to tell me you put the balls of your feet in the stirrups. You don't go clear back to the ankles."

'Outlaw' Is CMA Entertainer Of Year

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Willie Nelson, an "outlaw" with an ace up his sleeve, joined Kenny Rogers and his hit "The Gambler" as blue-chip winners at the nationally televised Country Music Association awards show.

Nelson won the prestigious entertainer of the year award Monday night, while Rogers raked in three honors at the 13th annual awards show at the Grand Ole Opry House.

Rogers, host of the show, won top male vocalist, album of the year for "The Gambler" and duo of the year with Dottie West.

But Nelson, called an "outlaw" for his commitment to recording music as he prefers rather than the way the country music establishment dictates, pulled his ace and outpolled Rogers and three others for the top award.

"I was in shock," the bearded, pony-tailed Nelson said after the show. "I expected Kenny to make a clean sweep. It was a good year for everybody."

Joining Rogers as a triple winner was the Charlie Daniels Band, which won single of the year for "The Devil Went Down to Georgia," instrumental group of the year and instrumentalist of the year for Daniels, a vibrant fiddler.

Barbara Mandrell was voted female vocalist of the year and veteran singer Hank Snow and the late talent agent Hubert Long were elected to the Country Music Hall of Fame.

All Winners

Willie Nelson, entertainer of the year

Kenny Rogers, male vocalist of the year

Barbara Mandrell, female vocalist of the year

"The Devil Went Down to Georgia" by the Charlie Daniels Band, single of the year

"The Gambler" by Kenny Rogers, album of the year

"The Gambler," by Don Schlitz, song of the year

The Statler Brothers, vocal group of the year

Kenny Rogers and Dottie West, vocal duo of the year

Charlie Daniels Band, instrumental group of the year

Charlie Daniels, instrumentalist of the year

Hank Snow and Hubert Long, Country Music Hall of Fame

The Statler Brothers won vocal group of the year for the seventh time in the past eight years. "The Gambler," by Don Schlitz, won the song of the year.

Rogers, a former rock singer with the First Edition, said he was not disappointed at losing the top award to Nelson.

"How can you be disappointed when you win three awards and lose to someone like Willie Nelson," he said.

Snow, who has done charity work during the past two years to fight child abuse, is best known for his 1950 hit "I'm Movin' On" which was No. 1 on the country music charts for 26 weeks.

Among those he thanked was fellow pioneer Ernest Tubb, who helped him get on the Grand Ole Opry in the late 1940s.

The petite Miss Mandrell, who choked back tears during her acceptance speech, said later, "To know that everyone likes what I do was the best feeling in the whole world."

Daniels dedicated his single of the year award to the late Ronnie Van Zant of the rock group Lynyrd Skynyrd, which lost several members including Van Zant in a plane crash last year. "I know Ronnie Van Zant's watching from somewhere," Daniels said. "This is for you."

A non-winner this year was Crystal Gayle, who was a finalist for entertainer of the year and female vocalist. She was voted top female vocalist the past two years.

Dolly Parton, entertainer of the year in 1978, was not a finalist for any of the awards.

The selections were made by the 5,000 singers, musicians, songwriters and others in the country music business.

Loretta Lynn In Hospital Care

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — County-western singer Loretta Lynn has been hospitalized for treatment of an undisclosed illness, a spokeswoman for Sunrise Hospital said.

Miss Lynn was taken to the hospital Sept. 30, spokeswoman Rena Ruby said Monday. She declined to give further details. She said only Miss Lynn's manager, believed vacationing in Hawaii, was authorized to release information.

Miss Lynn, famous for setting her life and Kentucky Appalachian childhood to music, has won numerous county music awards.

Strikers Win Big Pay Raise

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Members of the the powerful International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employees and the smaller office workers union have ratified new contracts that will raise wages by 27 percent over three years.

The 24,000-member IATSE agreed Monday to a contract that union officials estimate will cost Hollywood producers $374 million over three years.

An IATSE representative said that 63 percent of the union's delegates representing camera, sound, costume and stagehand workers cast ballots in favor of the new pact. However, five of IATSE's 24 locals, including three of the film industry's largest groups of workers, voted against of the pact.

The average IATSE worker now receives $10.50 per hour.

ELECTED AS MARSHAL

RALEIGH — Leslie Karen Gordon, Meredith College freshman, has been elected as a marshal in freshman class elections.

She is the daughter of Mrs. Etsil Gordon and David J. Gordon, both of Greenville.

For a defender to have the only trump left in the game is usually enough to warm the cockles of his heart. However, it can prove a liability if declarer has the skill to take advantage of the situation.

This hand is from the Summer National Bridge Championships held at the Hilton Hotel in Las Vegas. Declarer was Ron Gerard, of Hastings-on-Hudson, N.Y. He won the opening trump lead in his hand, crossed to the ace of hearts and ruffed a heart. After cashing the ace and king of clubs, discarding two spades from dummy, he ruffed a club on the table. A heart ruff was followed by the ruff of declarer's last club in dummy, which brought about the following position:

	♠ J 7 ♡ J 10 ◇ K ♣ –
♠ A 2 ♡ K ◇ J 10 ♣ –		♠ Q 10 6 3 ♡ – ◇ – ♣ 10
	♠ K 9 8 ♡ – ◇ 9 8 ♣ –

Declarer led a heart from the table and ruffed, setting up the long heart there. Next, he entered dummy with a trump to the king, leaving West with the last trump. But that was a situation West did not enjoy for long.

Declarer needed only one more trick, and that appeared quickly. He led dummy's good heart, discarding a spade from his hand. Since that would have been the fulfilling trick, West was compelled to ruff. But now West had to concede a trick to declarer's king of spades, so the contract rolled home.
