Separate Talks

LONDON (AP) — Britain announced today it will go ahead with separate independence talks with Zimbabwe Rhodesia's black Prime Minister Bishop Abel Muzorewa after guerrilla chiefs again rejected the proposed independence constitution.

The dramatic turn in the peace talks opens the way for British recognition of its war-torn rebel colony.

The announcement followed an icy 45-minute session between British Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington, conference chairman, and Patriotic Front co-leaders Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo.

Given three deadlines over the past week to accept Britain's proposed constitution for an independent Zimbabwe, the guerrilla leaders told Carrington they will not drop their objections.

Mugabe and Nkomo walked rapidly from the meeting, simply telling reporters there was "no progress." The Front has been demanding integration of their guerrilla fighters into the army, among other things.

Within minutes, the Foreign Office issued a statement announcing that talks would begin Tuesday with Muzorewa on implementing the constitution which the country's first black prime minister agreed 10 days ago.

Evacuation Of Settlers

JERICHO, Occupied West Bank (AP) — Israeli troops began evicting about 2,000 militant Jewish nationalists who set up 31 temporary camps overnight on the occupied West Bank.

A spokesman for the settlers said they would go peacefully. Army helicopters flew over the camps, asking the people to leave quietly. Radio Israel said 10 camps were evacuated by mid-morning.

"This is just the first of many actions we will take," said a spokesman for the ultranationalist Gush Emunim, or Bloc of the Faithful, which organized the operation after Prime Minister Menachem Begin's government rejected their demand that Israel seize Arab-owned lands on the West Bank of the Jordan River for Jewish settlement.

The settlers slipped out of existing West Bank settlements during the night to build "footholds" in virtually every corner of the captured territory where the Palestinian residents are to be given home rule next year.

Elyakim Haetzi, a Gush Emunim spokesman, said the purpose was to press demands for the government to increase the area of Jewish settlements from about 4,000 acres to as much as 50,000 acres within the next six months.

The action followed a Cabinet decision Sunday to allocate about 1,000 acres of West Bank land not owned by anyone to five existing settlements and to build a new Jewish town south of Jerusalem that would be inhabited in part by Jews from New York City.

Bus Failure Barred Band From Event

The break-down of an activity bus forced 105 Rose High School band members to return to Greenville Saturday, without competing in the Indian River High School band marching festival at Chesapeake, Va.

"It was a big disappointment for the kids," band director James E. Rodgers said today.

According to Rodgers, three buses and a truck left Greenville Saturday morning, taking students and band instruments to the festival. One of the buses broke down about 10:30 a.m. at Oak City.

"It was a burned out clutch," Rodgers explained, noting that the vehicle was "not able to proceed."

With no other activity bus available, students called Greenville Mayor Percy Cox for help, and Cox sent a Greenville Area Transit bus to the rescue, but it arrived too late.

Rodgers said the GREAT bus arrived about 1:45 p.m.—too late to make the 4 p.m. deadline for arriving at Indian River High School. So, he said, the students and unused instruments returned to Greenville.

"A bus break-down can occur with anybody," Rodgers said, "...with any kind of equipment."

"It was an unfortunate incident," he emphasized, but one that couldn't be helped.

Rodgers praised Cox for his cooperation. "He was certainly concerned about us," and did all he could to help.

Insist Ecevit Resign

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Former Premier Suleyman Demirel demanded the resignation of Premier Bulent Ecevit's leftist government today after Demirel's centrist Justice Party won all five National Assembly seats at stake in midterm elections and also trounced Ecevit's forces in senatorial elections.

"If they don't resign, we will topple the government in a vote of confidence as soon as Parliament convenes," Demirel told a television interviewer. "This government will go, that is definite."

The results of the election Sunday left Ecevit's Republican People's Party and its allies still the largest faction in the Assembly with 220 seats, but its opponents held a total of 227.

It appeared that the government crisis would be a long one. Despite the Justice Party's gains, it was doubtful that Demirel could unite the various opposition parties and factions to form a majority coalition. There was speculation that a general election would be called. The next one is scheduled for 1981.

Ecevit, looking dejected, conceded defeat in a television appearance. "Obviously we have not achieved a good result," he said.

The premier pointed out that when he replaced Demirel 21 months ago, he inherited the problems of escalating political terrorism and a major economic crisis. "We have paid a heavy price," he said.

He said his cabinet and other leaders of his party would meet today to assess the situation. It was assumed they would discuss whether to resign.

The five National Assembly seats filled in the voting Sunday were vacant because of deaths. Three others that are vacant are to be filled later.

Voting was also held for 50 of the 150 elected members of the Senate. Complete unofficial returns for 38 of these seats gave 26 to the Justice Party, 9 to the Republicans, 2 to the Moslem fundamentalist National Salvation Party, and 1 to the ultrarightist National Movement Party.

Report Activity In Kabul

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Diplomatic sources reported unusual military activity in the Afghan capital of Kabul today but said it was too early to determine its significance.

In Washington, the State Department said it had received reports that warplanes were striking targets 15 miles south of Kabul, but it did not know what forces were involved.

Afghanistan has been wracked by anti-government guerrilla warfare for more than a year. During that time various military units reportedly have fought against the proSoviet government.

Radio Pakistan, monitored here, quoted Kabul reports as saying tanks rolled through the streets of the mile-high city, where security measures have been tightened.

"Kabul is calm but tense today," the broadcast said.

Observers in New Delhi said the military activity might mean that the government was preparing for a possible move against it by a former interior minister, Col. Aslam Watanjar, who reportedly has become one of the regime's chief foes and who is considered capable of rallying disaffected army units against it.

The movement of armor followed the Sept. 16 removal of President Nur Mohammed Taraki, 62, who Radio Afghanistan said died last week of an incurable illness.

Carter Departs On Three-State Tour

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, traveling more often than his chief spokesman had predicted, left Washington today on the first of two trips this week that will take him to three states.

Carter flew to Kansas City in late morning to address the National Conference of Catholic Charities. From there, he planned to go to Chicago to help raise funds for Democratic Mayor Jane Byrne, a political fence-sitter.

After an overnight stay in Chicago, the president will hold a "town meeting" Tuesday morning in suburban Dolton, then return to the White House.

After Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., moved close to an open challenge to Carter for the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination, White House press secretary Jody Powell said he expected no stepup in Carter's travel before November.

The very next day, Powell announced Carter's plans for a

Sept. 25 "town meeting" in New York City and has subsequently revealed further travel plans.

Last week, for example, Carter visited New Mexico and California and next week will attend a party fund-raiser in East Rutherford, N.J.

The trip certain to get wide attention is set for Saturday. Carter will travel to Boston to share a public platform with Kennedy at the dedication of the John F. Kennedy Library.

Mrs. Byrne, who said last week she supports the president but does not necessarily intend to endorse him, has attributed her interest in politics to the inspiration she drew from President Kennedy.

The mayor's ambivalence will not deter Carter from making two speeches for her tonight, however. And he will attend a private reception at Mrs. Byrne's home Tuesday morning.

By DICK SODERLUND
Associated Press Writer
STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — The 1979 Nobel Prize in physics was awarded today to two Americans and a Pakistani and the chemistry prize to an American and a West German as U.S. scientists again this year dominated the prestigious international awards.

A total of four of seven laureates selected for the three 1979 science prizes are Americans, the same number as last year.

The physics prize was awarded to Professors Sheldon L. Glashow and Steven Weinberg, both 46, of Harvard, and Abdus Salam,

City Council To Meet Tuesday

The City Council has scheduled a special call meeting for Tuesday, Oct. 16 at 8 p.m. in the council chambers at city hall.

Items on the call agenda include: public hearing on the annexation of Red Oak, Oakdale and adjacent properties; public hearing on Articles I, II, and III of the proposed Subdivision Regulations;

Consideration of a resolution authorizing the execution of an agreement with the Department of Transportation for a planning study; consider directing the city manager to prepare the 1980-81 city budget to include additional funds in the mayor and council's budget to increase the salaries of elected officials;

Consideration of a request by the East Carolina Road Club for a waiver of the privilege license requirements of the City Code to sell concessions at a race to be held on Oct. 21 in downtown Greenville;

Scheduling of a public hearing on proposed amendments to the Sign Ordinance; and acceptance of Arlington

Boulevard, from Red Banks Road to the southerly right-of-way line of Merry Lane, and Merry Lane from the westerly right-of-way line of Arlington Boulevard some 830 feet westerly along Merry Lane.

Carolina Tel Plans To Begin Filling Vacancies

"So that we do not fall too far behind in installations, and to be sure that we continue to meet the public's service needs, the company will today begin hiring to fill vacancies created by the strike," T. P. Williamson, Vice-President for Administration of the Carolina Telephone and Norfolk Carolina Telephone Companies said this morning.

The strike by the Communications Workers of America (CWA) enters its third week today with no change in either side's bargaining position. Williamson said the companies have not changed their offer of pay and benefits packages worth $15 million for some 3,100 Carolina Telephone bargaining employees and $1 million for about 255 Norfolk Carolina bargaining employees. The CWA continues to demand a cost-of-living wage adjustment provision. Carolina Telephone is managing Norfolk Carolina, which will merge into Carolina Telephone. Both are members of the United Telephone System.

"Despite the strike, both local and long distance service remain good companywide and repair service is adequate. However, somewhat limited installation service is being provided," Williamson commented.

"Customers can help ensure the best service by dialing their own long distance calls direct, avoiding operator assistance, and by calling at nonbusy hours — after 5 p. m. weekdays and anytime on weekends. Rates are lower at these times.

"Customers can further help by mailing their payments to the company, or by paying at collection agencies located in many towns served by the company."

Extra-Long Red Carpet Greets Chairman Hua

By PAUL CHUTKOW
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — The French government rolled out an extralong red carpet today to welcome Chinese Premier Hua Guofeng on the first visit to Western Europe of a Chinese Communist head of state.

President Valery Giscard d'Estaing was to head the welcoming party for Hua's arrival from China for a three-week tour of France, West Germany, Britain and Italy. In addition to a longer-than-usual red carpet from the plane, another special carpet was laid in the airport Salon of Honor to convey "exceptional warmth," according to one official.

After a helicopter trip from the airport and a motorcade across the center of Paris, the French president and the Chinese premier and Communist Party chairman were to have the first of at least three private meetings planned for them during Hua's six-day stay.

At stake in their conversations will be proposals for France to help China develop its mining and steel industries, hydraulic power, telecommunications and plants for petrochemicals and fertilizers.

Also at stake is France's "special relationship" with China's Communist regime, launched on Jan. 27, 1964, when President Charles de Gaulle's government was the first major Western power to establish diplomatic relations with Peking. Now China's opening to the West and its consequent increase in trading partners have left that special relationship in need of redefinition, according to French and other Western diplomats.

"We have been anxiously planning this visit for months," said one official of the French Foreign Ministry. "But we're still not quite sure what is going to come of it."

A presidential spokesman said it was "an historic visit, fundamental for the future."

One major unanswered question concerns Chinese interest in purchasing highly sophisticated Mirage 2000 jetfighters. A sale the French government fears will harm its relations with the Soviet Union.

French officials are interested in trying to revive an agreement, canceled by the Chinese, for the $2.2-billion purchase of two French nuclear energy plants to be built by the Societe Framatome under license from the Westinghouse Corp. of the United States. The Chinese indicated the cancellation was part of a general retrenchment in over-ambitious development plans.

Hua will spend two days in Brittany, in northwest France, visiting a telecommunications station, an agricultural center, an oceanography center and an electronics factory.

Chinese officials said Hua also wants to mingle with "average Frenchmen" but intends to keep away from the pro-Moscow French Communist Party.

He goes to Germany next Sunday, to London on Oct. 28 and to Rome on Nov. 3.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

The Greenville Energy Program and the Conservation Department of the Junior Woman's Club of Greenville is seeking members for a Volunteer Action Committee to help them wage "War on Winter."

According to Barbara Privette, who is heading up the project, these volunteers will be asked to help "winterize" the homes of the elderly and handicapped of Greenville who will be placed under serious hardship this winter due to the rising costs of fuel oil and other heating fuels. "We will be performing low-cost energy-conserving tasks such as caulking, weatherstripping, applying plastic over windows and cutting firewood," she said. "There will be many different ways our volunteers can help, so we need women and children, as well as men."

She urged attendance at a meeting of the Volunteer Action Committee to be held Tuesday, Oct. 16, in the Board Room of the Greenville Utilities Building, third floor, at 7:30 p. m.

Tax-deductible contributions will be accepted by "War on Winter" to buy materials, in addition to those already donated by local building supply retailers. Checks may be made out to Junior Woman's Club of Greenville Conservation Department and sent to "War on Winter," P. O. Box 8083, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

For additional information, one may call Linda Hix, Coordinator, Greenville Energy Program, 752-7166, or Barbara Privette, 752-5725.

According to Mary Smith of REAL Crisis Center and representatives of various churches of the area, huge numbers of calls are already being received for help in paying utility bills and buying 80-cent-per-gallon-plus fuel oil for the winter. "We see our project as a wonderful way for individuals to help their fellow men help themselves," Privette commented.

Hua Goes Traveling

Chinese Communist Party Chairman Hua Guofeng is scheduled to begin a week-long visit to France today. Hua succeeded Chairman Mao Tse-tung, who ruled China from 1949, when the communists came to power, until his death in September, 1976. The following month, China's top officials elected First Vice Chairman Hua to succeed Mao. To make sure he would keep his job, Hua quickly ordered four of his key political opponents, including Mao's widow, to be arrested. Since then, Hua and Vice Premier Deng Xiaoping have worked to modernize China's economy and improve relations with other countries, including the United States. Hua is expected to visit the United States during the next year.

By Abigail Van Buren
 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: As a long-time reader and admirer, I was shocked at your advice to the parents of the 12-year-old boy who, with his parents, had visited relatives in another city. On returning home, he told his parents (in confidence) that his 15-year-old cousin had offered him some pot, but he refused.

The parents immediately phoned the cousin's parents to report it. Instead of being grateful for the information, they reacted angrily, saying their son had never smoked pot, and the younger boy must be lying. When the visiting parents asked if they were wrong to have called the other parents, you said yes. (You also said, "Children should not betray their peers.")

Abby, if the kids had stuck up a gas station, or shot someone, would you still have said, "Children should not betray their peers?"

I just can't believe you would advise parents not to tip off the parents of children who are breaking the law and doing harm to themselves.

If I misunderstood your answer, please explain.
 —DISAPPOINTED IN YOU

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: You did, and I will. If you had read the letter carefully, you would have noticed that the boy said his cousin had offered him some pot. He admitted that he never actually saw his cousin smoke pot.

It was my feeling that the older boy was only talking big to impress his young cousin. Had he actually smoked pot in the boy's presence, it would have been a different story. No pot was in evidence, and none was smoked!

I'm sorry I didn't make myself clear, and judging from the critical mail I received, I did not.

Marijuana is still illegal, and those who break the law should be reported and dealt with accordingly.

However, in this case, no law had been broken. I should have said, "When no law is broken, children should not betray their peers." And to have reported back to the parents with such flimsy evidence, thus creating a rift between the families, was uncalled for. (P.S. I hope the editor of the Rock Hill, S.C., Herald sees this. So incensed was he with my reply that he wrote an editorial about it.)

DEAR ABBY: I have been a widow for 11 years. My sister and my daughter still remember my wedding anniversary in a quiet way, which I feel is comforting.

However, my son (now married) never remembers my wedding anniversary.

Am I expecting too much of my son? What is proper?
 —HURT

DEAR HURT: It is not proper to offer congratulations on a wedding anniversary after one of the couple dies.

Perhaps your son remembers the date, but doesn't acknowledge it because he fears it might sadden or depress you. Let him know that you derive comfort from having those you love remember that day. Then if he forgets, you will have a legitimate reason to feel hurt.

N.C. Traffic Took 12 Lives

By The Associated Press
 Traffic accidents in North Carolina during the weekend killed 12 persons, pushing the year's toll to 1,170 deaths, according to the Highway Patrol. In the comparable period last year the toll had reached 1,130 deaths.

Three of the accidents involved double fatalities.

Two Bunn Level men were killed when their car, traveling at high speed, failed to negotiate a curve and struck a tree on a rural road seven miles north of Lillington Saturday, the patrol said. Victims were identified as David Rother Maynor, 23, and James Gary Oxendine, 27.

The patrol said a car traveling at an estimated 70 miles per hour ran a stop sign and crashed into the side of a Louisburg couple's car, killing them. The Saturday accident on U. 401 nine miles south of Louisburg killed Harry Steve Crowder and Karen Crowder, both 30.

Velma Jordan Daughtry, 54, and John D. Daughtry, 56, of Rt. 1, Clinton, were killed Saturday on U. S. 421 one-half mile north of Wilmington when a car struck their car head-on, the patrol said.

Gordon Paul McKearin, 56, of Charlotte, was killed when he was struck by a car on a city street Friday night.

Two cars collided Sunday night at the intersection of two state roads four miles west of Princeton, killing Jerry Lewis Jones, 33, of Rt. 2, Selma.

Austin Eugene Hubbard, 24, of Yadkinville, was killed Saturday when his car ran off the road and wrecked in a ditch on U. S. 21 near Jonesville. James Ziphie Toler, 31, of Rt. 1, Ayden, was killed Sunday on a rural road 14 miles west of Vanceboro. The patrol said his car ran off the road and overturned.

David Earl Epps, 19, of Portsmouth, Va., was killed Sunday when he was struck by a car on N. C. 97 near Rocky Mount. The patrol said Epps was lying in the road.

William James Bryant, 21, of Kenansville, was killed Sunday when his car ran out of control and hit a tree on a rural road two miles east of Kenansville.

Seats Ripe For Picking

MORRISVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Five seats remain ripe for the picking on the Morrisville town commission. Unfortunately, no one has come by to pick off a chance to run, and time is running out.

Despite the apathy, local politicians are confident that the seats will be filled by write-in votes in the Nov. 6 election. But if the seats are not filled by write-ins, they'll have to be filled by appointment, according to town clerk Evelyn Lumsley. Only Ms. Lumsley doesn't know who will make the appointments.

Friday's deadline for filing for a seat passed without much action, according to Martha McLaughlin, supervisor of the Wake County Board of Elections. She said it's the first time that she can remember that a town has had no candidates for commissioner.

Most of the present commissioners in the northwestern Wake County community of 300 say business and personal reasons prohibit them from seeking elective office. But most also said if their names were written in on ballots next month, or they were appointed to the job they would accept the post again.

"It's time for other, more capable people to take over, younger people," said Commissioner Johnny H. Robertson, 60, who isn't seeking another term in office. "More people ought to come along and take over."

Rolesville has had a similar problem. Mrs. McLaughlin noted. Two years ago, only two people filed to run there. She said this year, however, there are enough people on the ballot.

Meanwhile, former commissioner Harry D. Dewey is seeking to unseat Mayor Clarence B. Ridout in Morrisville's only contested race.

Dowdell, who edged out 12 female candidates in an election for "homecoming queen" at the school, said Sunday that he enjoyed being the queen. Dowdell may have enjoyed the situation, officials at his school, however, did not. They strongly suggested that he resign right after he won the election. He refused. (AP Laserphoto)

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland's Roman Catholic bishops proclaimed Tuesday a nationwide day of prayer to mark the first anniversary of the election of Cardinal Karol Wojtyla to be their church's first Polish pope, John Paul II.

"May this man, risen from the sufferings of our nation, help us to keep faith with God and with the Holy Cross, to stand on this bastion of Christianity on which we fight for religious belief and culture for the whole of humanity," said a special prayer for the pope. It was contained in a pastoral letter read in all Catholic churches on Sunday.

U. S. Experienced A Polio Epidemic

By CHARLES S. TAYLOR
 ATLANTA (UPI) — The United States experienced its first epidemic of polio this year since 1972, according to the National Center for Disease Control.

It said that through September 21, there have been 23 cases of polio in this country, 21 of them paralytic.

Of that number, 15 were epidemic-associated. There were two additional cases in Canada. All of the epidemic cases occurred in unvaccinated persons in Amish religious communities, the CDC said.

In 1972, there were 31 cases of the disease, which has not been a major health problem since an effective vaccine was brought into use in 1954.

With the occurrence of the polio epidemic in the Amish communities earlier this year, principally involving those in Pennsylvania, members of the sect were urged to get vaccinations at state-operated free clinics. No new cases involving the Amish have been reported in several months.

From January 1969 through September 21 of this year, there were a total of 185 cases of paralytic polio reported to the CDC through the National Poliomyelitis Surveillance System.

In its latest Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report, the CDC also reported the first known failure of oral polio vaccine to protect a person from the crippling disease.

The CDC said an 11-year-old boy who had received four doses of the vaccine as an infant died of the illness. The death occurred more than a year ago and touched off an extensive investigation to isolate the type of virus that caused the death. The CDC said the investigation revealed that the boy's death was due to bulbar poliomyelitis caused by a wild polio virus (not vaccine related).

"This is the first known OPV (oral polio vaccine) failure in an otherwise normal patient who had received in the United States, three vaccine doses," the CDC said.

Couple Exchanges Vows In Ceremony On Sunday

Melody Lynn Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hervey Thomas Moore of Farmville, and William Douglas Strickland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Thomas Strickland of Rt. 2, Walstonburg, were married Sunday afternoon at three o'clock.

The Rev. Tommy Evans, of Piney Grove F.W.B. Church, and the Rev. Royce Reynolds, of Spring Branch F.W.B. Church, performed the double ring ceremony in the Piney Grove Church.

A program of piano music was presented by Mrs. D. J. Rasberry Jr., who sang "The Wedding Song," "Follow Me" and "The Wedding Prayer." She was accompanied by her husband at the piano. They are aunt and uncle of the bride.

The unity candle and kneeling bench flanked with palms and foliage provided the setting for the wedding.

The bride wore a floor length gown with a chapel train of organza and chantilly lace. The empire lace bodice featured a Queen Anne neckline etched with seed pearls and full length organza puff sleeves cuffed at the wrist with lace. The full length chantilly lace skirt extended into a chapel train bordered with a lace scalloped hemline. An organza pleated panel accented the front of the gown.

Her veil was accented with seed pearls and the headpiece was of lace leaves and flowers. The bride carried a nosegay of mixed autumn flowers highlighted with velvet loops and foliage. She wore an add-a-pearl necklace and earrings. She was given in marriage by her father, who presented her with a cameo ring.

The matron of honor was sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. Carson Cobb, of Saratoga. She wore a gown in blue print flowers fashioned with open sleeves, round neckline, blouson bodice and pleated skirt. Miss Niki Suzanne Rasberry of Farmville, cousin of the bride, was junior bridesmaid and wore a regal blue dress with caped bodice and gathered skirt.

Bridesmaids included Miss Lynette Craft and Miss Janet Nell Strickland, sister of the bridegroom. They wore regal blue dresses styled like the honor attendant's. They carried long-stemmed yellow and bronze chrysanthemums tied with velvet streamers.

MRS. WILLIAM DOUGLAS STRICKLAND

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers included Ronnie Strickland, brother of the bridegroom, Carson Cobb, brother-in-law of the bride, Chuck Moore, brother of the bride, was junior usher.

The mother of the bride wore a dress in wine and a corsage of pink roses and carnations. The mother of the bridegroom selected a dress of peach and a corsage of white delphinium and peach carnations. Grandmothers and great grandmothers were presented corsages to complement their dresses.

The couple will live in Walstonburg. For traveling, the bride changed into a burgundy ensemble.

The bride is a graduate of Farmville Central High School and is employed at Edgewood Bank and Trust Co., Fountain. The bridegroom graduated from Greene Central High School and is engaged in farming.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. James Lewis, cousin of the bride.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall, which was decorated with autumn flowers.

Pouring punch was Mrs. Paul Rasberry Sr., aunt of the bride of Farmville. Mrs. Robert Tyson of Snow Hill, great aunt of the bride, served the three-tiered wedding cake.

Miss Angie Murphy of Snow Hill, cousin of the bride, presided at the guest register.

An after-rehearsal party was given by the bridegroom's family Saturday night in the church fellowship hall.

Spice up your sweater wardrobe with a loopy-textured, quick-knit pullover in a light and airy pattern stitch. It is designed to be made with Red Heart Bulky Loop Yarn (60 percent wool and 40 percent polyester) with a gauge of two-and-a-half stitches per inch. Simple styling makes this a timeless classic that you will wear for years. Easy-to-follow directions are for small (8-10), medium (12-14) and large (16-18).

To obtain directions for making the textured pullover, send your request for Leaflet No. 8663 with $1.00 and a long, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler, "The Daily Reflector," P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or you may order Kit No. K-8663, containing yarn and instructions, from Pat Trexler at the same address. Send $15.50 for small, $17.50 for medium or $19.50 for large. Specify your choice of beige tones, lavender oze tones, gray tones or off-white. Shipping charges are included in the kit price.

Little knit or crochet bells make delightful Christmas tree ornaments, lapel pins or package decorations and can be made from bits of leftover yarns.

For the knit bells, using a lightweight yarn and size 2 or 3 needles, cast on 14 stitches. For the first row, knit 10 stitches and purl the last 4. Row two, which is the right side of your work, is made by simply knitting all stitches. Repeat these two rows until you have 22 ridges, ending with a knit row.

Bind off all stitches and leave about a 12-inch strand of yarn after binding off the last stitch. Thread this strand of yarn into a tapestry or yarn needle and sew the cast-on and bound-off edges together.

You will now be able to see a little border of stockinette stitch at one end. This is the bottom of the bell. At the other end — or top of the bell — run your threaded tapestry needle through every other stitch, drawing it tight. Fasten off.

Tie in a little jingle bell for a clapper if you wish. Try combining red or green yarn with white angora. To do this, work the first 10 stitches of row one with the red or green yarn and the last 4 with the angora.

For the second row, knit 4 with angora and 10 with the other yarn. Keep repeating both rows in this manner and you will have a bell with a fluffy angora cuff or border. When you are changing from one color to another, always twist the yarns one around the other to prevent a hole in your work.

If you prefer to crochet, here are directions for crocheted bells. Each bell requires only 10 yards of knitting worsted and a size F or G crochet hook.

Starting two inches from the end of the yarn, chain 2. Make 8 single crochets in the first stitch of the chain. Place marker at the beginning of each round. The 8 single crochets just made are counted as Round One.

For Round Two: Make 2 single crochets in each stitch. For the next six rounds, make 1 single crochet in each stitch around. Round Nine: (Single crochet in the first stitch, make 2 single crochets in the next stitch.) Repeat the steps within parentheses around.

For Round 10: (Make 2 single crochets in first stitch, 1 single crochet in each of the next two stitches.) Repeat steps within parentheses as before to the last three stitches of this round. Work a slip stitch in each of these three stitches to even up the edge. To finish, slip stitch in the front loop of each stitch.

Fasten off and cut yarn. Knot the yarn remaining at beginning of work and attach a jingle bell to it, turning bell to right side.

You can vary the size of the bells by using different weights of yarn and different sizes of

Castro Around For Awhile

Fidel Castro has come back — to the United States, that is.

The Cuban revolutionary was in the country last week to address the United Nations. It had been 19 years, and there were many in this country at that time who still viewed him as some sort of liberator and humanitarian.

There have been bitter revelations since. Many of his own people have been slaughtered by the despot. Cuban troops are involved in African affairs. His little island is serving as a base for Soviet intervention in South America and other parts of the world.

Castro was not, of course, a guest of the United States government on his visit. Indeed our nation does not maintain diplomatic relations with Cuba.

Instead he was visiting on the international soil of the United Nations.

Our country was responsible for his security, however. It was the tightest ever because of the feelings of hundreds of thousands of displaced Cubans who have bitter memories of friends and loved ones Castro has killed.

It is clear that Castro is not going to go away in the near future. He has dreams of controlling South America and Third World nations, with Soviet help, through intervention, violence or whatever means.

We can consider ourselves fortunate that his deviousness hasn't resulted in more spread of his power than it has. The United States should keep Castro Cuba forever boxed in.

A Less-Than-Rapid Reaction Time

We recognize that last week's deployment of U.S. Marines out of the Morehead City port was supposed to be an exercise, but we would hope the delays would not be encountered in a real emergency.

It was reported that ships were late and there were other problems as the marines left for a mock assault on Guantanamo Bay.

Weather, in part, was responsible, but if a real emergency existed the fight could be over before our forces got to moving.

Tide To Conservatism?

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — For some time, now, pollsters, pundits, politicians and others who claim to be in tune with public shifts of sentiment have been saying there is a growing move to the conservative side in North Carolina.

How swiftly and how far the pendulum swings nobody can tell. Far enough, some believe, that within the next 10 years there will emerge a Conservative Party alternative to existing Democratic and Republican political organizations.

That particular viewpoint is particularly prevalent within the hierarchy of the political machinery which has as its chief public spokesman Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green. Green, at one point, seriously entertained the notion of switching parties to make a bid for the governor's office.

Some of his "cabinet advisors" believed then, and still have the notion, that when the pendulum has swung far enough — or will in coming months — to sweep aside Democratic Party politics and politicians. And that despite the fact that a North Carolina liberal is still seen as arch-conservative elsewhere in the nation.

Helms' Role

U.S. Senator Jesse Helms, thus far, has been the only Tar Heel politician to capture the shifting tide. His emerging stature as a leader of the right both in this state and across the nation is witnessed by swelling campaign coffers from citizens far from North Carolina; his increasing prominence in references by nationally syndicated columnists; and his sponsorship of several successful legislative measures which attracted national notice.

Helms, and his Congressional Club supporters who cut across party lines, run campaigns almost devoid of traditional party identification.

Now that group has come forth with a candidate for governor, and the true test is whether the conservative swing is far enough along to make I. Beverly Lake a formidable contender or not.

Lake, switching from the Democratic to the Republican Party, delivered a statement in which all the proper buzzwords — those familiar phrases which have characterized Senator Helms' remarks in the past, and which continue to comprise the lexicon of the right — were flung forth as messages to the faithful.

End the Welfare State: "I believe economic stability, simple justice and fairness for all, including especially our taxpayers, will begin when we allow our citizens to advance on the basis of their own merit and enjoy the benefits of their own labors."

Our Bureaucracy: "The people know that millions and millions of their tax dollars are wasted on expensive programs plagued by bureaucratic red tape, confusion and failure."

Limit Government: "The liberal pressure groups within the Democratic Party are stacked against the principles of limited government in our lives."

On the Right

"State government... is walking down the path of swelling bureaucracy, burdensome regulations, and ever higher spending..."

Moral principles: "All citizens have a moral duty to work for our freedoms... The alternative... will lead to lost liberties and moral decay... I have fought for responsible government, lower taxes and sound moral principles."

Forget Party Lines: "In my discussion of conservative principles of government with both conservative Democrats, Republicans and Independents in North Carolina, I have found absolutely no philosophical differences... You and I as conservatives have always held these principles far above petty, partisan politics..."

The developing race for governor in North Carolina will obviously become not a traditional tilt between two personalities representing opposing political parties, but a test to determine how far this state is along the road toward a redividing of the political structure along newly defined boundaries.

Light Bills Came First

WASHINGTON — This month, we are celebrating the 100th anniversary of the electric light bulb. All the credit is given to Thomas Alva Edison who invented it.

But what people don't know is that another person, Jeffrey Kobrin, started it all. He invented the electric bill two years earlier than the electric light. If it hadn't been for Kobrin, Edison might never have been inspired to invent the bulb.

Jeffrey was an accountant by trade, but at night he dabbled in his basement trying to think up new ways of charging people for services in their homes. One evening he was sitting at his bench and he wrote down the word "What." Then he wrote down "100 whats." Then he wrote "1,000 whats." It didn't make any sense until he scribbled down "One kilowhat: 1,000 whats."

He showed it to his wife. She said, "What is it?"

"It's an electric bill. You put it in the mail and you can collect millions of dollars when people send in their checks."

"Why would people send in their checks for an electric bill if they don't use any?"

"I haven't figured that out yet. But you'll have to admit it's one of the best bills I've ever invented."

"Jeffrey, will you stop this nonsense. All these crazy bills you design haven't put one loaf of bread on the table."

But Kobrin was not discouraged. He went to see an investment banker on Wall Street. The banker looked at the new electric bill and said, "By gum, it has possibilities.

If we could send out one of these to every family in America each month we could be rolling in money."

"Exactly, sir, but I can't think what to charge them for."

"Look," said the banker, "I have a crazy friend in Menlo Park, N.J., who is an inventor. Why don't we go to him and ask him to invent something that people would have to use so we could send them a bill."

The banker and Kobrin took the ferry to Hoboken and the train to Menlo Park, where they found Tom Edison messing around in his dirty laboratory. They showed him

To the editor:

The Wednesday, Oct. 3 edition of the "Daily Reflector" had an article concerning sex education. In the article, Dr. Zabin advocated teaching sex education to young children despite the objections of parents who oppose it. In other words, what makes you parents think you know what's best for your own children? Parents have a lot of gall trying to raise their children the way they think best, don't they?

It's obvious that people have been wrong in their thinking of sex education. If we teach the students "correct" sex how-to, show them pornographic films (such as "About Sex"), and tell them morality is not involved, they will, no doubt, lose all interest in the subject. Or they will become "responsible" in their sexual activities.

Since this approach will work so well with sex education, perhaps it would work in dealing with other social issues. Let's teach our students how to murder properly, so killings will decrease, or at least be committed responsibly. A good junior high course in Proper Techniques of Armed Robbery will no doubt cause a drastic decline in sloppy hold-ups. Perhaps a course in the proper method of making a hydrogen bomb will help us all to sleep a lot easier.

So parents, get with it. And keep your nose out of your own business.

the bill and the banker said, "Tom, can you come up with a gimmick so we can stick the people for using it?"

Edison studied the bill and then said, "You spelled kilowhat wrong. It's k-i-l-o-w-a-t-t."

"You idiot," the banker shouted at Kobrin, "you want me to invest my money in an electric bill and you can't even spell what we're going to charge the people for?"

Kobrin, abashed, replied, "It's not too late. We haven't printed up any yet."

The banker cooled down. "Tom, can you do it. I believe in this electric bill. But we need your technical know-how before we can put it in the mail."

Edison said, "Well, I was working on an electric light bulb, but I gave it up because I couldn't figure out any way to make money on it. Now that you've invented an electric bill it might be worth my while to go back to it."

INSIDE REPORT

Reagan-Kemp Taxonomics

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK HUNT VALLEY, Md.

When Ronald Reagan told the Maryland Republican dinner here about tax-cutting ideas of "a young congressman from New York — Jack Kemp," he signalled a campaign strategy change of profound potential consequences in presidential politics.

That morning at a Hopkinsville, Ky., rally, Reagan plugged Rep. Kemp. The night before at a black-tie $500-a-plate dinner on a Kentucky bluegrass horse farm, he did the same. The night before that, Reagan praised the congressman (seated beside him) at a dinner in his Buffalo constituency. Indeed, since summer's end, Jack Kemp has replaced the notorious "welfare queen" of 1976 as a stock character in Reagan's stump oratory.

More importantly, pushing tax relief for blue-collar workers has replaced flogging welfare recipients. Alone among Republican presidential hopefuls, front-runner Reagan ardently presses a huge across-the-board tax reduction. While the Reagan of early summer still played to Main Street merchants by castigating federal regulation, he now seeks to sway broader audiences from Sen. Edward M. Kennedy by preaching economic hope through tax cuts instead of austerity through reduced growth.

This has reformed the old but recently diminished relationship between Reagan and Kemp. Reagan's embrace of Kemp's view of tax-cutting as anti-inflationary has moved Kemp within a step of joining the REAGAN-FOR PRESIDENT organization (perhaps as national chairman or co-chairman). That would rule out Kemp's candidacy for the Senate but suggests bigger things ahead — possibly, predicts one senior Reagan staffer, a Reagan-Kemp ticket.

On or off the ticket, Kemp within the Reagan campaign would fight a sunbelt strategy and insist on appealing to blue-collar workers in the Northeast. Reagan would advocate what neither Democrats nor most businessmen support: broad-based tax cuts to combat inflationary destruction of the worker's standard of living.

None of this seemed possible earlier this year when Reagan talked as one dedicated to the deep road canal school of economics: If it hurts you, it must be good for you. In private, he endorsed recession as the antidote to inflation.

Wooing Reagan away from this conventional Republicanism, no easy struggle, turned on two advisers: Dr. Martin Anderson, Reagan's policy chief in Los Angeles, and Richard J. Whalen, a Washington-based consultant. Anderson and Whalen are both proteges of Dr. Arthur Burns, high priest

Strength For Today

CHRISTIAN SOLDIERS

The pastor of a large city church once criticized this flock from the pulpit for the lackadaisical way they were singing "Onward Christian Soldiers". He told them he wanted them to sing the hymn again as if they meant it. The people were surprised, but did as he asked, and many felt a sense of elation and inspiration as they did so.

Too often Christian soldiers behave in the same apathetic way as did the congregation the first time they sang the hymn. The church can become ease-loving and comfortable in a consumer-directed age. But the world is still crying out for people who will brave the opposition of worldly interests. The good fight of faith will only be won, however, by those who have true enthusiasm for the task at hand.

Like the congregation which began to take its hymn singing seriously, we should rededicate ourselves to our mission as Christians.

Mystified By Carter Words

By JOHN CUNNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Those who fear that politics will weaken the anti-inflation drive are asking themselves what President Carter meant when he told union representatives, "I will not fight inflation with your jobs."

The mysterious statement seems at odds with Federal Reserve anti-inflation policy, with his own staff economic reports and those of many independent forecasters, and with his own earlier proclamations.

And with generally accepted economic thinking too, because nobody has yet figured out a way to shrink extreme price inflation without also shrinking the labor market. An anti-inflation policy costs jobs.

White House economists, as have most economists who declare themselves publicly, have already projected job losses. Some of the nongovernment reports, in fact, foresee an unemployment rate of as much as 9 percent.

Carter's statement, made last Thursday at an AFL-CIO building and construction trades meeting in San Diego, wasn't the only suggestion he might not fight inflation with his previously announced dedication.

After having declared his firm support for the Federal Reserve's tight money policy just two days earlier, the president told delegates to the union meeting that "interest rates are too high."

Now, with a recession expected to coincide with the election process, some private-sector analysts are convinced the president might seek a tax cut, although he is on record as saying he isn't so inclined.

A tax cut would spur the economy by putting money into pocketbooks. It would create a feeling that the worst was over, even though its real affect might be to load the future with even worse problems.

It would present a credibility issue too, since Carter has stated repeatedly he would balance the budget. A tax cut would make balance unattainable. Not to cut might make the White House unattainable.

But jobs might be an even more delicate matter for Carter, since an idle head of household isn't likely to vote for the status quo.

An increase of three percentage points in the jobless rate would mean not just three million jobs but the potential loss of several million votes. And so the web of dilemma encircles the president.

That much is obvious from his recent comments, first supporting the Fed and then suggesting it was causing economic distress, and at one and the same time promising to fight inflation and save jobs.

That the president offered no blueprint of how he would achieve such a remarkable goal is significant, because so far nobody has yet figured how to do it. He can save jobs or lower prices, but hardly do both.

It is for these and other reasons that the economic literature from private-sector economists in banks, brokerage houses and universities is loaded with speculation about the political economy.

Caught In The Middle

By WILLIAM M. WELCH

Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) Joe Roberts of Gastonia is like a lot of active Democrats across North Carolina. He's found himself in a sticky position as a result of former Gov. Bob Scott's decision to challenge Gov. Jim Hunt's re-election bid next year.

Back in 1968 when Scott was lieutenant governor trying to become governor, Roberts ran Scott's successful campaign in Gaston County. Naturally, he's still friendly with the former governor.

But in 1976, when Hunt was lieutenant governor trying to become governor, Roberts' wife was one of two chairmen of Hunt's successful campaign in Gaston County.

Now Roberts, who is the county Democratic Party chairman, has resolved his difficulty and is doing what he considers the logical thing — he is sticking with the governor he's got, and will back Hunt against Scott in the primary next May.

"There are many of us who feel if you have a man in office, you ought to stick with him," he said. "We definitely will support the governor."

The Roberts' position, caught between conflicting loyalties, is nothing unusual among North Carolina Democrats this fall, as Hunt is already off and running for his second term and Scott is saying publicly he no longer has any doubts about running too.

The decision to stick with Hunt in such cases is proving widespread, as expected. Some of the Democrats' big-money people, like Sen. J.J. "Monk" Harrington of Lewiston and Commerce Secretary Lauch Faircloth of Clinton, were contributors and supporters of Scott before, but for obvious reasons are no longer.

"You get torn between two good friends. I helped Bob every time I could, every time he ran, but I'm going to have to stay with Gov. Hunt because I've committed to him," Harrington told a reporter last week.

Others are hoping that, despite Scott's informal declaration last week in Sampson County, he's just enjoying the publicity and the interviews but will not really run.

"He's told a lot of people he's definitely running, but I'm not convinced," said Democratic money-raiser Wallace Hyde of Asheville. "I think he's got too much sense."

But Scott says he knows he cannot count on too many of his old supporters, and is instead cultivating new ones dissatisfied with Hunt.

It was no accident, for instance, that he chose Sampson County to announce that he would run.

Sampson is a county with an active two-party system, unusually so in heavily Democratic eastern North Carolina. It is one county where, despite native son Faircloth in the Hunt administration, rank and file Democrats feel slighted by the Hunt regime in patronage — the state jobs and appointments that are the life-blood of gubernatorial politics.

"He'll get a lot of support here. He'll probably win Sampson County," one local party leader whose loyalties are with Hunt frankly conceded last week.

But Scott will be hard-pressed to build a majority out of such dissent. As the Samp-of the deep root canal school. Before convincing their candidate, Anderson and Whalen had to disagree with their mentor and change their own minds.

Kemp just was unknown to Kemp this one month ago. Discouraged by lack of interest in tax reduction by all Republican presidential hopefuls, Kemp was pondering a secret overture from California tax-cut crusader Howard Jarvis proposing a Kemp-for-president campaign. It was then that Kemp was shown a preliminary draft of Reagan's Nov. 13 speech in which he will announce his candidacy; it included an emphatic call for tax cuts.

son County Democrat, who asked not to be named, pointed out, if Hunt has ignored the county he has done so deliberately.
Hunt is a smart-enough politician to know where a liberal dose of patronage will help and where it won't, and that there is only a small margin of votes to be gained in a county where Republicans are so strong.
"Heck, I don't blame him," the Democrat said. "Hunt can count. He's not going to waste his appointments here."
Of course, Scott can count too; he's been governor before. But if he is indeed serious about running and his comments of the last week were more than an enthusiastic response to a warm reception, Bob Scott will have to find a reason for at least some of those local Democratic leaders like Roberts to abandon the incumbent.

suburban Baltimore County, he devoted 14 minutes to tax reduction, rejecting two dogmas: that prosperity means inflation and that the balanced budget is inviolate.
"Anybody can balance the budget by raising taxes, and inflation is a tax," said Reagan, calling present inflation-hiked tax rates "a penalty imposed on working men and women." He commended tax reduction as "another way to balance the budget and another way to end the inflation." In words lifted from Kemp's speech book, Reagan declared: "I do not believe inflation is caused by too many people working."
While all Reagan's presidential rivals give lip service to tax reduction, all seem truly committed to the deep root canal school. Neither George Bush nor John Connally endorsed the 1978 Kemp-Roth tax-cut bill and seldom bring up tax reduction today. Neither does Sen. Howard Baker. While reaffirming support of Kemp-Roth on NBC's Meet the Press Oct. 7 (following months of silence), Baker declared Treasury Secretary G. William Miller was correct at the World Bank meeting in Belgrade when he called for "austerity" by Americans.
Asked the same question by us, Reagan dropped out of the deep root canal school: "He (Miller) is voicing that old-fashioned economics that the choice is between inflation and recession." In his Kentucky and Maryland speeches, Reagan criticized world financial leaders in Belgrade for advocating U.S. recession to stop inflation.
Those comments followed a half-hour private economic discussion in Buffalo between Reagan and Kemp. Four days later, Kemp conferred in Washington with Reagan campaign manager John Sears. All that seems lacking for Kemp to board the Reagan bandwagon is assurance the Nov. 13 speech will reflect his economic views. In view of Reagan's

Florida Causes Tallying Goes On

Uphill Climb For Scott

By DAVID POWELL
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI (AP) — President Carter holds a statewide lead in Florida's Democratic caucuses, but after all the hard work, hoopla and money, the tallying still isn't over. In one county, the contest has come down to the luck of the draw.
"I don't know if it'll be straws or cards or what," said Brevard County Democratic Chairwoman Monnie Yungkans of Rockledge.
But, somehow, fate tonight will break a tie between two men who want to go to the Democratic State Convention for a non-binding presidential straw ballot Nov. 18 — George H. Canada, a Melbourne builder who favors President Carter, and Lee W. Rabb, a Merritt Island aerospace technician who supports Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

They are vying for one of the delegate slots that has not been officially determined from Saturday's caucuses. Final results from 65 of 67 counties, accounting for 65 percent of the delegates, showed 376 delegates for Carter, 119 for Kennedy, 51 for AFL-CIO slates and 27 uncommitted.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said Carter was "very pleased" with his showing. Rain in populous parts of the state held Saturday's turnout far below the 50,000 expected.
New York Lawyer Harold Ickes Jr., a Kennedy supporter and political organizer who came to Miami for the caucuses, said results mean "that we now know we have an organization job to do here and the nucleus of an organization."
Canada and Rabb each received 462 votes for a seat in Brevard County's delegation to the convention in St. Petersburg. The winner will get to vote with 877 other delegates chosen Saturday and 839 non-elected delegates — party leaders, elected officials and their appointees.
The blocs still untallied were the 188-member delegation from Miami and Dade County, where Carter and Kennedy ran very close, and the 116-member delegation in Fort Lauderdale and Broward County, which Carter supporters conceded to the senator because the draft-Kennedy campaign and AFL-CIO ran identical slates.

Neither tally was expected before Tuesday, leaving the final total in doubt.
Depending upon the results in Dade, Carter could widen his lead and claim a "knockout punch" in the draft-Kennedy camp's base or Kennedy could narrow the gap. Carter seemed likely to get at least 34 Dade delegates who favored Carter but were on Carter and labor slates.

Even if Kennedy draws closer, however, Carter seems all but certain to win the straw ballot in November because of his unswerving support from Gov. Bob Graham and other members of the Florida establishment who will make up the "automatics."

The draft-Kennedy forces suffered a blow late Sunday when Palm Beach County, which they had hoped to carry, gave Kennedy only 16 of its 60 delegates. An AFL-CIO slate captured the other 44 slots, but 10 members were also on Carter's slate and two were on Kennedy's.
The labor-Kennedy delegates ran strong in the Palm Beach area.

Read this ad before you purchase a home.

Home Savings Introduces Home Action Mortgage. The alternative to the high cost of home ownership.

If you don't know about Home Savings & Loan's new Home Action mortgage, you could be looking at the wrong house. That's why you need to read this ad before you purchase a home. Because, if you qualify for Home Action, you just might be able to afford the house you want now — instead of years from now.

Year	Traditional Loan	vs	Home Action
1	$385.69		$319.84
2	385.69		339.01
3	385.69		358.18
4	385.69		377.35
5	385.69		396.52
6-30	385.69		415.69

During these first five years of mortgage, your income will have grown, you'll be able to afford the payments, and you'll be in the home you wanted all along.

Home Action can move you into your dream house.

Home Action is a graduated payment mortgage plan. Here's how it works.
For the first five years, Home Action cuts your monthly principal and interest payments so you can afford to buy a better home.
Let's say you're trying to buy a $45,000 home with a 10% downpayment and a 30-year mortgage. Normally, to do this, you would have to make $22,500 annually.
Thanks to Home Action, your payments, for the first five years, would be reduced. So, you can qualify for the same home and make $19,200 a year.
With a traditional 90% loan, the mortgage would be $385.69. But, with the Home Action loan, the monthly payment would be only $319.84.

Payments based on a 90% loan on a $45,000 house.
*Assuming typical taxes, insurance, other new housing expenses, and a five-year supplementary period. Interest figured at 11% with 11.605 A.P.R.

That's a big difference. A difference of $65.85 a month during the first year. And, a difference like that can help you and your family move into the home you want today.

What makes Home Action work?

A savings account makes Home Action work. With Home Action, you take the money that you would normally use for a downpayment and put it in a savings account at Home Savings.

Then, each month for 5 years, we withdraw some of this money to supplement your monthly payments. For example, on a $45,000 home, the full mortgage payment would be $415.69. But, with Home Action, you'd pay only $319.84 a month. And we'd make up the difference from your savings.
After 5 years, when your downpayment savings account is used up, your monthly payments which have gradually increased, would remain at $415.69 for the rest of the mortgage.

Get in on the Home Action at Home Savings.

We've only told you the basics about our new Home Action mortgage plan. So, you're bound to have lots of questions.

Give us a call and ask about our new, affordable mortgage plan. Or, come by any of our offices and talk to a loan officer yourself. Ask for your free Home Action mortgage brochure.

After all, why wait on that dream house you and your family want. You can move in now with Home Action.

Kobrin said, "Wait a minute. I created this bill. You can't get in on it just because you're going to come up with a light bulb."
"The bill's no good without the bulb," Edison said.
"And the bulb's no good without the bill," Kobrin replied.
The banker interrupted, "I've got it. Tom can make money on the bulb. It will burn out in a few hours and people will have to buy a new one every time it does. We'll let Edison keep the patent on the bulb, but we hold the rights to the electric bill, where the real money is."
They shook on it, and the rest is history. Unfortunately, Edison has become a household name, but Jeffrey Kobrin, the man who started it all, has been forgotten. This is ironic, because everybody takes Edison's light bulb for granted, but they all scream bloody murder every time they get one of Kobrin's thoughtfully designed electric bills.

FLEXIBLE MORTGAGE

There's a new type of mortgage loan which would tailor the payment schedule to the borrower's needs and abilities. Instead of level payments for the life of the loan, payments could be smaller for one period and larger for another period depending on your future earning prospects.
Under the proposed regulations, the borrower and lender would negotiate the repayment schedule as long as each payment would cover interest costs and would be on a fully amortized basis after eight years. Thus, a young couple could arrange smaller payments during the initial years of the term or an elderly couple could have smaller payments following retirement.
As an example, take a 30-year mortgage where the normal monthly principal and interest payment would be approximately $220. Using the flexible payment plan, the borrower could pay as little as $200 per month for the first eight years, then $240 for the remainder of the term. This type of home loan is being phased in on a state by state process.

A large area of high pressure was centered over North Carolina today, spreading mostly sunny skies over the state and warming temperatures somewhat. Afternoon readings were expected to warm into the 60s across most of the state.

will become partly cloudy across the mountains tonight and across southern sections of the state Tuesday.
Temperatures tonight will not be as cold as those of last night. Lows will range in the 40s across the state except for some readings in the upper 30s across the mountains. Highs Tuesday afternoon will be mostly in the 70s.

Skies were sunny across North Carolina Sunday. Afternoon temperatures were rather cool as readings ranged in the mid 50s to mid 60s.
Some of the warmer spots in the state were New Bern with a high of 66 degrees, and Hickory and Wilmington with 63 degrees. Low readings this morning dropped to the 30s in many areas.

Crop Rental Rates A Problem

By BILL HUMPHRIES
NCSU Agricultural Information
RALEIGH — Rental rates for tobacco quotas currently are a topic of considerable controversy among flue-cured leaf growers.
Tobacco rents are of widespread interest because they affect so many individuals who grow the crop, own tobacco farms, or are otherwise involved in tobacco production.

One form of rent is lease and transfer of quota from one tobacco farm to another within the same county. About 45 percent of the effective quota for the 1979 flue-cured crop was produced under lease and transfer agreements made last spring.
Tobacco rents also include what is known as "late season leasing," usually done during the marketing season.
Lease and transfer rates, and to some extent other tobacco rental rates increased sharply this year. Some growers who leased-in quota were disappointed when prices received for tobacco sold on the auction market did not increase as much as 1978.

The current issue of "Tar Heel Economist," published monthly by the extension economics and business staff of North Carolina State University, is devoted to a discussion of the tobacco program, its history and purpose, and major provisions.
In addition, Dr. Charles R. Pugh, economist with the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service, discusses ideas expressed by a number of persons concerned with problems on tobacco rents.

Obviously, Pugh said, an extreme method to eliminate rents would be to abolish the quota-price support program. If the program was rejected in a quota referendum or by a legislative change, the value of farms now having quotas would be undermined.
"This would have dire consequences for those having existing debt on farms purchased with capitalized values for quotas," he said.
Controls on rent would be difficult to administer. Determining where to set rent ceilings would be hampered by the wide variation in lease rates among counties. Where demand for quotas is high, there would be incentives to shift to share rentals and disguised payments to circumvent rent controls.
Repeat of lease and transfer could reduce rents to the extent that costs of production would increased. While such action might reduce speculation in the leasing market, it could also deter efficiency, if production had to be spread across the many farm tracts to which quotas are originally designed.

Pugh said a second issue surrounding rent deals with the distribution of benefits.
"There is currently a new generation of active growers, who may have different economic interests than those to whom acreage allotments were initially assigned in the 1930's," said Pugh. "Those who lease-in production rights express concern that higher tobacco prices are substantially offset by increasing annual lease costs."
One notion is to revoke the quota of those who do not produce tobacco and transfer the quota to those who are active growers. This technique would result in reduced income for those who have relied on rental receipts. The approach also would likely be condemned as a form of confiscation of property.
"Those threatened with loss of quota would likely seek some alternate arrangement of their farm, such as sharecropping or hiring a farm manager," Pugh said.
Permanent sale of quotas, if allowed by a legislative change, could be another technique for transferring quota without disrupting the capital structure of agriculture. Compensation could be negotiated at a price mutually satisfactory to quota buyer and seller.
"Purchase of quotas alone might involve lower costs than buying farmland with quota," Pugh stated. "However, in the long run, the economic effect of negotiable quotas is not likely to be different from annual leasing. The quota market might be expected to settle on a price equal to discounted future value of quota rents."

Farm Scene

By SAM UZZELL
Assistant Agricultural Extension Agent
Peanut harvest is in progress across the peanut belt of North Carolina. From all indications, this will only be a fair to fairly good crop of peanuts. The average yield of peanuts in Pitt County last year was a respectable 2,542 pounds per acre. It is unlikely that we will approach this figure this year.

fort to reduce the spread of black root rot by washing their harvesting equipment thoroughly after working in infested fields.
Finally, in the last few weeks, a different type of disease hit peanuts. This disease was a type of leafspot that caused large blotches to form on the leaves, and defoliation of the plants. The sudden appearance of this pathogen near harvest was alarming.
Plant pathologists at North Carolina State University identified the disease as "Ascochyta" web blight. Hurricane David supposedly brought the fungus with it from the Gulf Coast and southern peanut growing regions. This may cause some shedding of mature pods, but digging should remove the peanuts from this threat.

Farmers who do not own land to which quota is attached must acquire the right to produce tobacco by renting a farm with quota or by leasing and transferring quota to land they are farming.
Pugh said measures to reduce the level of rents would involve reversing the process by rents are created.
"Any strategies to significantly affect those who pay out or receive rents would likely require legislation to assessing quotas on some basis other than farm history or to permit negotiable quotas," said the economist.

"No panacea exist because consensus is not likely on any measures which redistribute assets or sources of income from one party to another," he added.
Lower tobacco prices would induce lower rents by making quotas less attractive to potential bidders. Within the framework of the present program, price supports might be reduced and the national marketing quota increased to dampen the level of tobacco prices and thus decrease rents.

ADVOCATE STATE BAN
ATLANTA (AP) — More states should adopt laws against keeping wild animals as pets because they are a potential source of rabies, the national Center for Disease Control has recommended.

Losing Money As Pork Supplies Are Soaring

North Carolina pork producers hope politicians will be sponsoring a lot of barbeques during the coming election year. With pork production up and farm level prices down, producers need help in getting rid of excess pork supplies.

November period and ten percent more during December-February than last year. The increase in North Carolina is expected to be even greater.
According to Hanson, this means that hog prices are likely to be depressed through at least August of 1980.
"If producers are to see profitable prices in 1980, they will have to reduce farrowings from intended levels," declared Hanson. "I would also suggest that producers market their hogs at the lightest weight possible without price discounts. This will reduce total tonnage and help avoid the risk of additional price decline."

breeding stock numbers up 20 percent. Market hog numbers rose 27 percent over 1978.
Number of sows farrowed from June to August rose 25 percent over last year, with farrowings to rise 24 percent during September-November.
The House Commerce subcommittee said in a new report Saturday the nation's hazardous waste disposal problem "cannot be overstated," labelling state and federal efforts to control disposal "totally inadequate." The panel also said industry has been lax, "not infrequently to the point of criminal negligence, in sopping the land and adulterating the water with its toxins."

John Hanson, extension economist at North Carolina State University, said current top hog prices of $37 to $38 per hundredweight are below production costs.
The outlook is for prices to sink to about $35 or below during the last quarter of the year, which would be at least $15 below prices of a year ago.
"Stated either way, prices are the lowest they have been in three years, and production costs have increased rapidly since then," said Hanson.

Hanson also points out that producers should hedge the hogs they plan to market during February, saying that hedging should be done any time the futures markets offer prices above $38.
Statistics from the North Carolina Crop and Livestock Reporting Service show that hog numbers in the state are soaring. As of Sept. 1, all hogs and pigs on Tar Heel farms totaled 2.7 million head, up 26 percent from a year earlier, with

All-Time High In Farm Exports

U. S. farm exports reached an alltime high of $32 billion during the federal fiscal year that ended Sept. 30. The figure reflects a $5 billion increase over the previous year.
Feed grains contributed much of the increase, but wheat, rice, soybeans, tobacco, cotton and livestock products also brought higher returns, said specialists with the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service.
During the coming year, agricultural exports are expected to reach $35 billion and may go as high as $40 billion, with volume to show a dramatic rise of about 14 percent.

Last Surviving Son Of Former Pres. Theodore Roosevelt Dead

STUART, Fla. (AP) — War hero Archibald Bulloch Roosevelt, the last surviving son of Theodore Roosevelt, is dead at 85.

Roosevelt's death of natural causes Saturday night leaves Alice Roosevelt Longworth of Washington as the only surviving child of the nation's 26th president.

Archibald Roosevelt died at the Stuart Convalescent Center where he had been since suffering a stroke several months ago, according to a center spokeswoman who asked not to be identified.

He was a company commander in the American Expeditionary Force in France in World War I and was wounded three times. France awarded him the Croix de Guerre.

In World War II, as a lieutenant colonel for the 1st Infantry Division's 162nd Regiment in New Guinea, he became a hero by purposely drawing enemy fire to pinpoint Japanese artillery positions.

An Army private said during the 1942 ordeal, "Colonel Roosevelt stood up with a map in his hand and every time a gun fired jotted down its position."

Wounded again, he was awarded the Purple Heart and the Silver Star with oak leaf cluster.

A ridge in New Guinea was named for him, the first landmark to be named for an American in the Pacific war.

Theodore Roosevelt was a member of the U.S. Civil Service Commission when Archibald was born in 1894. His mother, Edith Kermit Carow, was the former president's second wife.

Theodore Roosevelt became president in 1901 upon the assassination of President William McKinley. Archibald, then 6, made headlines by sliding down a banister into a diplomatic reception and galloping around the White House grounds on a Shetland pony.

The young Roosevelt graduated from Harvard in 1917 after marrying Grace Lockwood, who died in 1971. They had four children, Archibald Jr., who served in the U.S. foreign service. The others are Edith Roosevelt, Theodora Rauchfuss and a daughter identified only as Mrs. William E. Jackson.

After World War II, Roosevelt lived at the family home in Oyster Bay, N.Y., and became chairman of the board of Roosevelt and Cross, a Wall Street investment firm. He moved to Jupiter Island, Fla., in the 1960s.

Jerry W. Powell, chairman of the board of directors of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce, announced Monday that Arnold B. Parris, president of the Pitt-Greene Production Credit Association, has been appointed chairman of the Chamber's Agribusiness Committee.

The Greene County native is a graduate of Atlantic Christian College and has been affiliated with the Pitt-Greene PCA since 1959. Parris was elected president of the association in August, 1979.

Parris serves as a Methodist Sunday School superintendent, church lay leader, and member of Mount Herman Methodist Church.

Parris, married to the former Rachel Albritton of Greene County, has one son.

A special session of the agribusiness committee will be conducted by Parris Tuesday, Oct. 16, 7:30 a.m., at the Three Steers Restaurant. The purpose of the meeting is to discuss the Southern Flue-Cured Tobacco Festival, the business and farm tour set for Nov. 28, and the accomplishments of the of the committee for 1979 and objectives for 1980.

'Frozen Zone' Normal Again

NEW YORK (AP) — Life in a four-block "frozen zone" in mid-town Manhattan has returned to normal after Cuban President Fidel Castro abruptly left the city under the cover of darkness.

Barricades were removed Sunday in the area around Cuba's Mission to the United Nations after Castro made a hasty departure. Hundreds of law enforcement officers had kept an armed vigil during the Cuban leader's three-day visit.

Castro's Russian-made Ilyushin-62 jet took off from Kennedy International Airport before dawn Sunday, and federal officials later said it had landed safely in Havana.

During the 77-hour visit, the leader of the world's 95 non-aligned nations was guarded continuously by teams of Secret Service agents and police on foot, in cars, helicopters and on horseback as he lodged at the mission.

On Friday he made an impassioned plea at the United Nations for a new world economic order, calling for a $25-billion-a-year program to close the gap between rich and poor countries.

He also met separately with three Puerto Rican nationalists freed recently from American jails, American news executives and members of the Black Congressional Caucus.

Barbara Walters, an ABC reporter who attended the reception, said Castro commented that Republican Ronald Reagan is the only possible presidential candidate whom he definitely would not like to see elected in 1980.

Miss Walters said Castro "eagerly" answered questions posed by news media representatives on Saturday night and said he expressed "disillusionment" with the Carter administration's reaction to the presence of Soviet troops in Cuba.

Clogging Class

To Be Resumed

GRIFTON — Clogging classes in Grifton will begin again Tuesday, Oct. 16, after a two-week delay due to illness of the instructor. New students may still join.

The classes will be held from 7:30-9:30 p.m. each Tuesday for six weeks through Nov. 20, meeting at the Grifton School auditorium.

Fee for the 12-hour series is $8 for beginners, with no charge for advanced students who will assist in teaching. Instructor Bill Harrison, a member of the Ditchbank Shufflers clogging team, Kinston, hopes to develop enough interest in clogging to form a Grifton team for the Shad Festival in April.

The classes are sponsored by the Pitt Community Schools, and are open to anyone over age ten.

Miniature Sub To Be Exploring Lake Tahoe

By JACK SCHREIBMAN
Associated Press Writer
TAHOE CITY, Calif. (AP) —

A three-man submarine dubbed Pioneer I was in readiness for launching today into the unexplored, icy waters of Lake Tahoe, one of the world's highest and deepest large lakes.

Scientists aboard the 17-foot-long craft, making dives of up to 1,200 feet, will probe, photograph and retrieve objects from the lake through Thursday.

The launching site will be on Carnelian Bay on the lake's north shore. The submarine was delivered on a flatbed truck Sunday and deposited on the beach.

Flag Given City School

The Ladies Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Post 7032 presented Eastern Elementary School with a United States flag.

The older students sang "This is My Country". Burt Aycock welcomed the students and faculty and Adonica Smith introduced guests from the Auxiliary to the principal, Clarence Gray. Jason Lee and Berwyn Swindell took the flag to the flag pole where Steven Peele and Scott Davis hoisted it into place. Students and guests joined in the pledge of Allegiance and singing of "America".

Stan Seay and Lee Miller demonstrated how to fold the flag properly. Principal Gray thanked the ladies from the auxiliary.

Ladies attending from the auxiliary were Alice Moseley, president, Margaret Brown, Americanism chairperson, Carrie West, and Marjorie Angstadt.

has made air pollution in the basin a concern of both states. Their legislatures have been unable to agree on a plan to limit development in the area. The lake is known to be a graveyard for dozens of boats and airplanes which have vanished over the years. The waters are believed to conceal the remains of human bodies which never surfaced because temperatures as low as 39 degrees prevent decay and bloating.

Our authentic English stoneware is made to last. Unfortunately, our offer isn't.

Alas. We can't continue to offer our beautiful stoneware forever. In fact, we can't continue to offer it after October 30th. But until that date you can still get the best bargain to cross the Atlantic in a long time: your choice of pieces from a complete line of authentic English stoneware, hand-made by craftsmen and hand-decorated by a talented artist, at prices so low you'll find them hard to believe. For example, if you come in anytime between now and October 30th and deposit $25 or more in a new or existing BB&T regular savings account, you can buy a 3-piece place setting for a mere $6.49. Or four soup or cereal bowls for $9.99. Or two individual covered casseroles for $8.99. Or any of ten other options on completer pieces. If you make a $500 savings deposit, a 12-piece snack set for four—including soup bowls, salad plates and mugs—is yours for only $31.75. And if you deposit $1,000 in savings, you get a full 26-piece service for four—including dinner plates, cups, saucers, bread-and-butter plates, soup or cereal bowls, a large covered casserole, an oval platter, a sugar bowl and a cream pitcher—all for an incredible $65. Come in and let us give you all the details. But don't put it off. Because our offer, like all good things, must come to an end.

Thousands In 'Gays March'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The turnout of an estimated 50,000 marchers here Sunday shows that gay rights are "a matter of national concern," says a congressman who wants to extend the Civil Rights Act to protect homosexuals.

"I think most Americans are ready for it," Rep. Ted Weiss, D-N.Y., said Sunday before addressing the marchers, including many lesbians and gay men, massed on the Mall at the foot of the Washington Monument.

The U.S. Park Police estimated the crowd at 50,000. March organizers said it was two to three times that size.

The marchers paraded down Pennsylvania Avenue and behind the White House under banners from nearly every state. Large contingents from California and Texas stepped behind their own marching bands. A gay men's chorus from Los Angeles sang several tunes, including "Stout-Hearted Men."

Weiss said he has about 50 co-sponsors for the bill he introduced earlier this year to amend the Civil Rights Act of 1964 to ban discrimination against homosexuals.

Weiss' bill has spurred Rep. Larry McDonald, D-Ga., to introduce a resolution that would put Congress on record as opposing any special legal status for homosexuals. It has not been acted on.

As the march took place, conservative Christian groups were staging a news conference and prayer session to protest the demonstration. They said special prayers were said in churches around the country Sunday urging homosexuals to change their ways.

Nobel Prizes...

 53, a Pakistani physicist working in London and Trieste, Italy, for studies aimed at unlocking the mystery of forces that hold matter together. They believe their work may eventually find a single force underlying the universe.

The chemistry prize was awarded to Professors Herbert C. Brown, 67, of Purdue University, West Lafayette, Ind., and Georg Wittig, 82, of the University of Heidelberg, West Germany, for their development of chemical tools for synthesizing organic compounds.

Last week the medicine prize was awarded to physicist Allan McLeod Cormack of Tufts University and British research engineer Godfrey Newbold Hounsfield for developing the X-ray technique known as computer-assisted tomography.

Today's awards were made by the Swedish Royal Academy of Sciences. Each prize carries a $190,000 stipend to be shared among its winners.

The Academy cited the three physics winners "for their contributions to the theory of unified weak and electromagnetic interaction between elementary particles, including... the prediction of the weak neutral current."

In Massachusetts, Weinberg told a reporter today the work is an effort to help "people understand what makes the world tick."

Both he and Glashow agreed their studies do not have any immediate practical application, although they have spinoffs in understanding radioactivity and how the sun produces energy.

"We suspect that there is at root a fundamental simplicity of nature," Glashow said. Their theory is that "the particles of nature are held together by four different forces, of which one is gravity. That's what Einstein spent his life on. The other three are weak, strong and electromagnetic."

The goal now is to show that the other three are "three different facets of the same thing" — a single underlying force of which they are simply manifestations.

In 1967, Weinberg proposed that electromagnetism and a class of subnuclear reactions called the "weak interactions" could be understood as different expressions of a process described by a single group of equations called a "broken gauge symmetry group."

Salam independently proposed a similar theory a few months later.

It turned out to be the first unification of two basic natural forces since electricity and magnetism were shown to be connected more than a century ago. Glashow and Weinberg, both New York City natives, are the 38th and 39th American winners of the physics prize.

Weinberg, who obtained his Ph.D. at Princeton, has been Higgins professor of physics at Harvard since 1973. Glashow, who holds a Harvard doctorate, has been a professor of physics at Harvard's Lyman Laboratory since 1967.

Salam, who was educated at Cambridge University and had been considered a likely Nobel winner for several years, is a professor at the Imperial College of Sciences and Technology in London and director of the International Center for Theoretical Physics at Trieste, Italy. He is the first Pakistani to win a Nobel Prize.

The London-born Brown and Wittig, the chemistry winners, were cited for developing the use of boron- and phosphorus-containing compounds as important reaction agents in the synthesis of organic compounds.

These carbon-based compounds are the chemicals of life, but also include many important industrial compounds, such as benzene and petroleum.

Brown, who obtained his doctorate from the University of Chicago, later became an American citizen, and has been a chemistry research professor at Purdue since 1959, introduced an entirely new class of chemical compounds called organoboranes.

Organoboranes "can be used for reductions, rearrangements and additions and have opened up a range of new possibilities for linking carbon atoms to each other," the academy citation said.

Wittig developed new synthetic methods of considerable importance and has studied reaction mechanisms. His most important achievement is the discovery of the rearrangement reaction bearing his name as "the Wittig reaction."

Bucs Win, Send Series Back To Baltimore

Game Breaker

Pirates' Bill Robinson (28) dashes to first as Orioles' catcher Rick Dempsey rushes forward Sunday during the fifth game of World Series at Pittsburgh.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates have used the word adversity as a rallying cry all season, and they did it again Sunday to stay alive in the 1979 World Series.

The National League champion Pirates had trailed 1-3 in games to the American League champion Baltimore Orioles.

They went out and beat the Orioles 7-1, reduced their deficit in the Series to 2-3, and headed for Baltimore for a sixth game Tuesday night.

Pirates' manager Chuck Tanner was asked if he felt the victory switched the momentum. "Well I hope it means momentum for us, because we have to win two and they have to win one," Tanner replied.

Baltimore manager Earl Weaver scoffed at the momentum theory. "You know what I think about momentum...If (Jim) Palmer goes out and pitches a good game...then there is no such thing as momentum."

It was a grim, saddened Pittsburgh team that took the field to attempt a feat accomplished by only three teams in the history of a best-of-seven game World Series — come back to take the championship.

Only hours earlier, Tanner learned his mother died in nearby Greenville, Pa.

Then, it was disclosed that Edgar Speer, a director on the Pirates' board and former chairman of the board of U.S. Steel had died Saturday night.

The Pirates had to start a pitcher, Jim Rooker, who was 4-7 in the regular season and twice had been on the disabled list with a sore elbow.

The Pirates, who had battled from behind all year to get where they are, went into Sunday's game faced with still another challenge, and they responded.

Shortstop Tim Foli, who had two hits, drove in a run and scored twice in what could have been the last game, said the scrambling bunch of Buccaneers had not been themselves in the World Series until Sunday.

"This is the first game they've seen the real Pittsburgh Pirates. You saw an impostor in the other four games. We played bad up until today," Foli said.

And Dave Parker, who had two hits, an RBI and a run scored, issued a warning to the Orioles.

"If we win Tuesday (night) you're going to see a shootout in Baltimore," Parker said, referring to a potential seventh game.

Baltimore took a 1-0 lead in the fifth inning of pitcher's battle between Orioles' ace Mike Flanagan and Rooker.

Gary Roenicke started the Baltimore fifth with his team's first hit, a double, moved to third on a single to short right, and scored while Doug DeCinces hit into a doubleplay.

Flanagan, the winner of the Series' opener and the biggest winner in the majors during the regular season with 23 victories, stayed around for six innings. He gave up two runs in the sixth and woundup the loser.

Foli opened the Pirates' sixth with a walk on a 3-1 pitch, and Parker followed with a single. Cleanup hitter Bill Robinson sacrificed the runners along, Willie Stargell then lifted a sacrifice fly scoring Foli and tying the score 1-1.

Parker moved to third on the sacrifice fly, and came home on the third of Bill Madlock's four singles. The Bucs now led 2-1.

After Flanagan left, Pittsburgh's suddenly awakened sluggers beat a tattoo on three Baltimore relievers. They scored two in the seventh and added three in the eighth.

Meanwhile, Bert Blyleven, who hadn't pitched in relief since 1972, had relieved Rooker in the sixth. He checked the Orioles with just three hits the rest of the way.

In the seventh, Phil Garner opened with a chopping single over the shortstop's head. Two force plays produced two outs, but Omar Moreno reached second when Orioles' reliever Tim Stoddard threw wild on a pick-off play.

Foli then ripped a single scoring the fleet Moreno for a 3-1 lead. Tippy Martinez relieved and was greeted with a run-scoring double by Parker.

Pittsburgh wrapped it up with three in the eighth.

Stargell and Madlock started it with singles. It was Madlock's fourth hit and made him the third player in this Series to tie that single game record. Now 39 have done it.

Steve Nicosia fouled out but Phil Garner collected an RBI single.

Blyleven then bunted, and Moreno was walked intentionally to load the bases. Foli bounced a single up the middle, scoring two more runs.

Tanner wasn't sure if he'd be accompanying the Pirates to Baltimore after a Monday workout because of the death of his mother, Anne Tanner, 70.

Palmer will be opposed by John Candelaria, the third game loser. Tanner said the pitcher with a chronic back condition and some arm problems this season, was in good physical condition.

Baltimore catcher Rick Dempsey offered this analysis for the Orioles:

"We really didn't have the opportunity to win today (Sunday)," Dempsey said. "We didn't put enough men on base to threaten. That's the way it goes. We're a hot and cold team and we weren't hot."

Blyleven said he felt strange pitching in relief.

"It was really different, but in the final games of the World Series, everybody has got to do a little more," Blyleven said. Rooker gave all the credit for his fine performance to his catcher, Nicosia.

"He called for the fast ball in on the right-handed hitters and it ran in on them," Rooker said. "They were looking for something outside and they were surprised when we got the third called strike on the inside pitches."

Bengals Wallop Steelers

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

And then there was one. Going into Sunday's National Football League games, the Cincinnati Bengals had been one of two teams still looking for a victory this season. Thanks to the unbelievable generosity of the Pittsburgh Steelers, they got it.

Nine times the Steelers fumbled. Seven times the Bengals came up with the ball. And two times the fumbles were turned into instant touchdowns on run-backs of 27 yards by Jim McClair and 12 yards by rookie Howie Kurnick.

Two interceptions of Terry Bradshaw passes didn't hurt, either. Neither did Ken Anderson's two touchdown passes, to Dan Ross and Rick Walker. And Pete Johnson ran 1 yard for a score.

It all added up to a 34-10 romp for the Bengals.

That left the San Francisco 49ers as the only team with seven losses in seven games. New York Giants rookies Phil Simms and Earnest Gray made certain of that, hooking up on eight passes, two of them for touchdowns, that paved the way to the Giants' 32-16 victory.

Also on Sunday it was Oakland 50, Atlanta 19; New Orleans 42, Tampa Bay 14; Dallas 30, Los Angeles 6; San Diego 20, Seattle 10; New England 27, Chicago 7; Miami 17, Buffalo 7; Philadelphia 24, St. Louis 20; Washington 13, Cleveland 9; Denver 24, Kansas City 10; Houston 28, Baltimore 16; and Green Bay 24, Detroit 16.

"We aided and abetted them considerably," Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll said. "We proved the Bengals are not as bad as their record." And Joe Greene, the Steelers' superb (and philosophical) defensive tackle, added: "We helped them get well. In a season, there are highs and lows, as in life. This is one of the low points."

Just about the only high point for Pittsburgh was Bradshaw's 33-yard touchdown pass to John Stallworth. But it was the last score of the game and meant nothing.

Homer Rice, coach of the Bengals, was exhausted by his team's victory over the defending Super Bowl champions. "So much happened in the game, I can't put it in sequence," he said. "I'm going to have to go home and watch it on film."

Phil Simms, who made his first pro start a winning one against Tampa Bay a week ago, passed for 300 yards against San Francisco. Eight of the passes — 169 yards' worth — went to Gray, who had suffered a case of butterfingers earlier in the season.

"I was surprised I kept dropping them, but I knew I could catch them," said Gray, who scored his first two pro touchdowns on passes of 13 and 11 yards in the Giants' 27-point second period.

Raiders 50, Falcons 19 "Things are clicking for us," Mark van Eeghen said after he scored three touchdowns on short runs and Ken Stabler passed for two scores in Oakland's romp over the Falcons. But he cautioned: "There's a lot of the season to go."

Saints 42, Bucs 14

"We stunk!" Tampa Bay Coach John McKay admitted. "It was the worst we've ever played — including the 1976 expansion season. It was disgraceful. I have no excuse."

The Bucs had the league's best defense, but Archie Manning pierced it with passes, one for a TD, and ran for another score in the Saints' romp.

Roger Staubach threw three touchdown passes as the Cowboys clobbered Los Angeles, giving him a club-record 137 for his career, erasing a mark held by Don Meredith. Staubach completed his first nine passes and finished with 13 of 18 for 176 yards before leaving midway in the fourth quarter for substitute Danny White.

San Diego's Dan Fouts passed for touchdowns of 20 yards to Lydell Mitchell and 9 and 49 yards to John Jefferson en route to completing 28 of 35 passes for 318 yards against the Seahawks.

Steve Grogan of New England also threw three TD passes, covering 10 yards to Stanley Morgan, 19 yards to Harold Jackson and 4 yards to Russ Francis, and wound up completing 21 of 35 passes for 244 yards against the Bears.

An 86-yard punt return by rookie Tony Nathan and Larry Csonka's 7-yard run accounted for Miami's touchdowns that extended the Dolphins' winning streak over Buffalo to 20 games.

Billy Campbell, a reserve running back, ran 11 yards for a TD with 2:54 to play, giving the Eagles their victory after

St. Louis had gone ahead on Otis Anderson's 1-yard run.

Joe Theismann guided Washington 80 yards in the final two minutes, the last 15 yards coming on a TD pass to Clarence Harmon with 27 seconds left that turned back the Browns.

Craig Morton passed for 218 yards and two touchdowns — 16 yards to Haven Moses and 7 yards to Rick Upchurch — as Denver downed the Chiefs.

Earl Campbell amassed 149 yards rushing and scored from 7, 20 and 2 yards out to propel the Oilers past Baltimore. Greg Landry, still playing in place of Colts quarterback Bert Jones, had three passes intercepted. And his fumble was picked up by defensive end Jesse Baker and run back 20 yards for a TD.

David Whitehurst threw two touchdowns passes and ran for another score for Green Bay. Running back Nate Simpson, playing because of injuries to Terrell Middleton and Steve Atkins, gained 121 yards in 19 carries for the Packers.

Deacon Nonbelievers Continuing To Dwindle

By DICK BRINSTER
Associated Press Writer

There may remain a number of nonbelievers, but it would be a safe bet to assume few possess addresses which end with 27514. That is the U.S. Postal Service's zip code for Chapel Hill, N.C.

They've heard of John Mackovic, Jay Venuto, James Parker and associates. The events of Saturday have left those names permanently inscribed in the minds of football fans in the bustling college town that houses the University of North Carolina.

For it was on that day that Coach Mackovic brought his Wake Forest Meatballs to town to do battle with Dick Crum's undefeated and 14th-ranked Tar Heels.

Despite Wake Forest's 4-1 record, the Demon Deacons were a two-touchdown underdog against North Carolina. They went home to Winston-Salem with a 24-19 victory, a 5-1 record that includes three upsets (all on the road) and a piece of second place in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

"Maybe," said Mackovic when asked Sunday if the Deacons would be favored in Saturday's game with Maryland.

The Terrapins, a perennial ACC power, dropped a 7-0 decision to league leader North Carolina State. It was their third straight defeat.

Bucs Feeling Like Winners

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates called it Game One of their better-late-than-never World Series.

"Today, for the first time in the Series, we were the Pirates," team captain Willie Stargell said Sunday after Pittsburgh avoided elimination and overcame the Baltimore Orioles 7-1.

Actually, it was Game Five, and a loss would have sent the Pirates home for the winter. But they won, so they'll get a return trip to Baltimore, trailing 3-2 in games but feeling like winners again.

"This is the first ball game in the Series that you've seen the real Pirates," said shortstop Tim Lincecum, who drove in three runs with a single and a triple.

"You saw an imposter the other four games," Lincecum added. "We played bad up until today."

"But today we made the good plays, made the good pitches and got the key hits. We're glad to be going back to Baltimore. We put ourselves in this situation. Now, it's up to us to get us out."

The Pirates learned hours before the game that the mother of Manager Chuck Tanner had died at a hospital in Greenville, Pa. But Tanner kept spirits from sagging in the clubhouse.

"You could see there was hurt because someone very dear to him had passed," said Stargell. "But Chuck didn't want it to reflect on any of the players. He walked tall today...It was a very gutsy performance."

Tanner's best available starter for Sunday's game was 37-year-old Jim Rooker, who was 4-7 in regular season with two stints on the disabled list. And Rooker looked overmatched against Baltimore's Mike Flanagan, a 23-game winner in regular season.

But Rooker pitched hitless ball for four innings before leaving after five with Baltimore ahead 1-0. And Bert Blyleven allowed only three hits the rest of the way as Pittsburgh rallied to win.

That drew its fair share of laughs. They're not laughing anymore.

You see, there were bowl scouts at Kenan Stadium Saturday. They were there primarily to watch North Carolina and Famous Amos Lawrence.

Lawrence rushed for 34 yards because Parker and his defensive cohorts "squeezed him."

The scouts, from the Orange and Peach bowls, decided to drop by afterward to say hello to Mackovic.

"Sure, we could be an attractive bowl team," he said Sunday. "When you put out money to see a game you'd like to see an interesting one."

With Venuto, who is among the nation's leaders in total offense, passing the ball up and down the field each week, it's a virtual certainty no one will expire from boredom at a Wake Forest game.

And there seems to be one additional guarantee. The game will be close.

"I didn't know how it was going to go scorewise," said Crum. "But I knew it would be close one way or another."

To date the Deacons have won by seven, one, three, five and five points. Their only loss was a 17-14 heartbreaker in the rain to N.C. State.

But they can get that one back because the Wolfpack, despite its unbeaten 3-0 league mark, has been devastated by injuries. And its opponent Saturday is North Carolina, an angry 4-1 football team.

"There are upsets to be had," Mackovic said last week. He should know about such things.

Coach Bo Rein's Wolfpack didn't need an upset to beat Maryland.

"We decided that it didn't make any sense to get fancy against what is usually the best defense in the conference," said Rein. "So we tried to beat them at their own physical game, dominate them at the line of scrimmage and run the ball better against them than they did against us."

That plan worked to perfection. The Pack rushed 71 times for 290 yards to a paltry 84 for the Terps in just 33 tries. Dwight Sullivan scored the only touchdown while the Pack held Maryland's Charlie Wysocki to just 43 yards.

When Bob Lee didn't show up at training camp, I knew I was the quarterback," said Kramer. Lee, a veteran reserve in Minnesota and elsewhere, wanted a fatter contract but didn't get it and his retirement from pro football was hastened.

Vikings Take On Jets

NEW YORK (AP) — A few months ago, a lot of fans were writing off the Minnesota Vikings as a team which, without Fran Tarkenton at quarterback, would be lucky to win more than a game or two this year.

And a few weeks ago, many of those fans were writing off the Vikings as a team which, considering the Tampa Bay Buccaneers' hot start, would be lucky to stay in contention more than half the season.

Well, here it is, one game shy of the National Football League's halftime this season — and with a victory tonight against the New York Jets, the Vikings' record will be 4-3 and they'll be within one game of the Bucs, a fast-fading team which still leads the National Conference's Central Division. Tampa Bay was mauled 42-14 by New Orleans on Sunday.

When Tarkenton retired after the 1978 season to, among other things, join Howard Cosell up in the Monday night booth, Tommy Kramer replaced him in the Vikings' huddle. And he has been a more-than-respectable successor to the scrambler who rewrote the NFL's record books.

"When Bob Lee didn't show up at training camp, I knew I was the quarterback," said Kramer. Lee, a veteran reserve in Minnesota and elsewhere, wanted a fatter contract but didn't get it and his retirement from pro football was hastened.

It isn't often that the coach of a team that has been beaten by over 40 points will sincerely thank the coach of the victorious team.

But that's exactly what The Citadel's Art Baker did to Pat Dye of East Carolina when the two met at midfield Saturday evening following ECU's 49-7 win over the Bulldogs.

Baker admitted a few minutes later in the dressing room that East Carolina could easily have beaten his team by 100-0 if they had wanted to. Nothing the slower Bulldogs seemed to do worked out and just about anything the Pirates wanted to do turned into success.

It was that kind of a day for the Pirates.

And when it was all said and done, perhaps Baker came up with one of the best comments heard in a losing dressing room. "The only difference between me and General Custer is that I have to go back and look at the films." It may be questionable which one got off easier.

At any rate, a much tougher job will await the Pirates when they next take to the field. They now have two weeks to prepare for the Tar Heels of North Carolina and it will not be an easy task.

Dye has worried about his defense all season, and against the Tar Heels, they will certainly get a first-class test. If East Carolina is able to shut off the Heels as well as Wake Forest did this past Saturday, it could turn out to be quite a game. Of course, the Pirates will also have to be able to move the ball against Carolina tough defense, rated by many as the best part of their game.

Certainly it will give the Pirates a chance to regain some of their lost prestige from their other three encounters with Atlantic Coast Conference teams.

A lot will depend on what happens to the Tar Heels this weekend when they play N.C. State. The Tar Heels need to win that one to stay in the race for the ACC title. A victory could find them looking ahead to their games with Maryland and Clemson on the following two weekends. A loss could knock the pins from under them.

Or a win or a loss could have exactly the opposite effect. Only the next two weeks will tell.

Rampants Run Wild

Thursday night, Rose High School's football team had a game much like that of the Pirates, as they roughed up Beddingfield, 52-6. Rose took advantage, as were the Pirates to do two days later, of their opponent's mistakes.

It meant one of the best wins for Rose in a long time, and has to be a confidence builder for the players.

They still face a battle for the playoffs, having to face Bertie, unbeaten in conference play, this weekend, along with once beaten Northeastern later in the year. Friday's game, however, is a key one, since Rose must get past Bertie to really have a true shot at the playoffs. A loss would just about mean the kiss of death for them.

At the same time two other key battles for playoff berths will be going on. Farmville Central and Southern Nash, both unbeaten in both league play and overall, will square off on the Firebird field for the rights to represent the Eastern Carolina Conference. Although both have games remaining afterwards, unless something completely unexpected happens, the winner of this one will be the ECC champ and go on to face the Northeastern representative in the first round of the playoffs.

That champion may be decided on Friday too. Both Ahoskie and hosting Williamston are unbeaten in league play, although the Cougars have a non-conference blemish on their record. Both also must face Edenton, also unbeaten in the league, later on, but the loser will almost certainly be out of the race, unless some miracle occurs for them.

An exciting weekend for these teams appears certain.

O's Return Home Confident

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles failed to wrap up the 1979 World Series in Pittsburgh, but they returned to Baltimore confident that they'd apply the clincher before the home fans.

"Of course we would have liked to have won it on foreign soil," pitcher Mike Flanagan said after being tagged with

Sunday's 7-1 loss. "But it's only fitting they win it at home."

Flanagan, who led the major leagues with 23 victories this season, was satisfied with his effort against the Pirates but was disappointed that he was left for a pinch hitter in the seventh inning when the Orioles trailed 2-1.

"He started to get a little bit tired," Manager Earl Weaver said. "The radar gun showed his fastball dropped to 83 or 84 miles an hour and I didn't know if he had that much left."

"He's big on the gun, but I don't believe in it," Flanagan said. "It's not the gun but what's in somebody's heart that counts. If I feel I'm losing it, I reach back and throw harder. It's just mind over matter."

Flanagan allowed four hits through the first five innings

Fiori Takes Open

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Tom Weiskopf won't forget Sunday's final round of the $200,000 Southern Open Golf Tournament easily. Neither will Ed Fiori — but for very different reasons.

Fiori, a 26-year-old in only his second year on the tour, knocked in a 13-foot birdie putt on the second playoff hole to capture the $36,000 first prize, but only after the tournament-tough Weiskopf had blown a 3-foot putt for par on the first overtime hole which would have given him the victory.

"I thought I lost the tournament right there," said Fiori. "Tom Weiskopf doesn't miss putts like that very often. I did not watch the putt because I didn't want to see it go in."

Given another chance, however, after both players bogeyed the first playoff hole, the 1977 All-American from Houston quickly capitalized, knocking in the winning putt after Weiskopf missed a 25-foot birdie attempt by inches.

"When you have a chance to win and you don't, you don't remember the first four rounds," said Weiskopf, who received $21,600. "When the tournament was given to me and I didn't take advantage of it — you don't forget it."

The extra-holes drama was set up when leader Mike Reid bogeyed three of the last four holes, allowing Fiori and Weiskopf to charge past him to tie for the top spot. Both finished the regulation 72 holes at 274, 6-under-par over the 6,791-yard Green Island Country Club course.

Fiori had a steady 68 Sunday, including a birdie on 17 while Weiskopf, the 15-year veteran who has earned more than $1.7 million during his career, needed a 12-foot birdie on 18 for a 70 to tie the youngster.

Parsons' Fans On Hand To Cheer Him

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — It took Wilkes County native Benny Parsons several minutes to wade through a throng of fans after he won Sunday's 400-lap NASCAR Grand National stock car race at the North Wilkesboro Speedway, because Parsons' fans wanted to chat with their old buddy.

"I probably knew at least 50 percent of them on a first-name basis," Parsons said, relishing his first win this season. The victory was sweetened by Parsons' hometown hero status.

The race, sponsored by a poultry company, was called the Holly Farms 400.

Although Parsons kept his Chevrolet near the front of the pack all afternoon, he never led until front-runners Darrell Waltrip and Bobby Allison tangled about 90 laps from the finish of the $88,150 chase.

Waltrip and Allison were battling for the lead when the sides of their cars smashed together and Waltrip crashed into the concrete wall on the first turn.

Allison kept control of his Ford, and eventually finished second. But Waltrip lost nearly 25 laps while his crew frantically ripped bent sheet metal from his car and got it running again.

Waltrip guided what was left of his car back on the track and, although he was out of contention for the winner's spot, he haunted Allison all over the short, tight track and ran only inches from the Ford.

At one point during the final caution period of the race, Waltrip squeezed between Parsons and Allison, with only inches to spare, as the leaders went through a turn. That prompted NASCAR officials to order Waltrip to the side of the track for a few words from race officials.

Rogers Back A Winner

VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP) — Bill Rogers returns to the United States this week with a very special mission.

The lanky Texas golfer earned $64,500 for winning the World Match Play Golf Tournament at Wentworth Sunday and now wants to see more match play events in the United States.

"It's a neat way to play golf," said the 28-year-old from Waco. "Your only competitor in medal golf is yourself. Match play is head-to-head and really interesting."

"I will be talking to (PGA Tour Commissioner) Deane Beman about organizing match play competitions."

Rogers' enthusiasm for the once-popular type of competition was understandable after he sank a 7-foot putt at the 36th hole to defeat defending champion Isao Aoki of Japan 1-up.

"As soon as I hit the putt I thought I had made it," he said. "I guess I jumped a couple of times before it went in."

The final was one of the closest in the history of this unique tournament and there was never more than one hole between two extremely tough competitors.

Sports Club To Meet

The Greenville Sports Club will hold its weekly luncheon Tuesday. Former UNC tailback Mike Voight will be the speaker. Also during the luncheon, area football coaches will be honored.

Tide, Longhorns May Be Headed For Cotton Clash

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Would you believe Alabama and Texas shooting it out for college football's national championship on New Year's Day in Dallas?

It could happen, and in the same arena — the Cotton Bowl — where fourth-ranked Texas convincingly upended No. 3 Oklahoma 16-7 Saturday. Those moans and groans and gnashing of teeth you hear are coming from the Sugar Bowl, which boasted last season's national championship match but sees another one easily slipping away.

For example, if Georgia, 2-3 overall but 2-0 in Southeastern Conference play after Saturday's 21-14 triumph over 13th-ranked Louisiana State, wins its remaining SEC games against Florida, Kentucky, Vanderbilt and Auburn, the Bulldogs will go to the Sugar Bowl no matter what Alabama does. And Georgia will go even if it loses non-league games to Virginia and Georgia Tech and finishes 6-5.

What the second-ranked Crimson Tide did Saturday was manhandle Florida 40-0 while top-rated Southern California was held to a 21-21 tie by Stanford, throwing the top spot in The Associated Press ratings up for grabs.

Alabama, therefore, could wind up 11-0 with a 20-game winning streak and not represent the SEC in New Orleans. And if Texas also is 11-0...interesting, isn't it?

However, all the intriguing possibilities and all of Saturday's fireworks were overshadowed by the startling development in Tempe, Ariz., where Arizona State Coach Frank Kush was removed as coach after 23 years.

Kush says he was fired because his boss didn't believe him when he denied that he hit a player last year. Dr. Fred Miller, the ASU athletic director, says Kush was suspended "pending further review of the matter."

Kush, whose record rose to 176-54-1 when he coached an emotional Sun Devil team to a 12-7 upset of sixth-ranked Washington — the dismissal was effective Sunday, with defensive coordinator Bob Owens taking over — is being sued for $1 million by former ASU punter Kevin Rutledge, who accused the coach of punching him in the face after a poor kick last season.

Elsewhere, fifth-ranked Nebraska whipped Kansas 42-0, No. 7 Houston nipped Texas A&M 17-14, No. 8 Ohio State trimmed Indiana 47-6, No. 9 Florida State downed Mississippi State 17-6 and No. 10

Notre Dame trounced Air Force 38-13.

In the Second Ten, No. 14 North Carolina lost to Wake Forest 24-19, No. 15 Missouri was edged by Oklahoma State 14-13 and No. 19 Michigan State bowed to Wisconsin 38-29.

However, No. 11 Michigan beat Minnesota 31-21, No. 12 Arkansas defeated Texas Tech 20-6, No. 16 Brigham Young outlasted Utah State 48-24, No. 17 North Carolina State nosed out Maryland 7-0, No. 18 Auburn trumped Vanderbilt 52-35 and No. 20 Purdue beat Illinois 28-14.

Meanwhile, Stanford's Turk Schonert threw touchdown passes of 19 yards to Mike Dotterer and 9 yards to Ken Margerum and ran 10 yards for the final score as the Cardinals wiped out Southern Cal's 21-0 halftime deficit.

Alabama's fearsome defense held Florida to 66 yards in total offense — only 6 in the second half — while second-string quarterback Don Jacobs set up one touchdown with a 24-yard run after a fake punt alignment and scored on a 73-yard gallop.

Texas also unleashed a ferocious defense that held Oklahoma to 158 yards and ended Heisman Trophy winner Billy Sims' string of 100-yard games at 13. Sims rushed for 73 on 20 carries, the longest a 16-yarder.

Meanwhile, Texas' Steve Hall caught a 2-yard toss from Donnie Little late in the first half while John Goodson booted field goals of 37, 23 and 38 yards, giving him 14 in four games.

Georgia got third-period touchdowns on Matt Simon's 11-yard run and Buck Blue's 11-yard pass to Carmon Prince in the final minute and scoring on a 5-yard keeper with only 15 seconds left.

Paul Campbell scored twice while Art Schlichter ran for one score and passed for another as Ohio State mauled Indiana. Jimmy Jordan's passes to Jackie Flowers accounted for one TD and set up another as Florida State turned back Mississippi State. Vagas Ferguson scored twice and Rusty Lisch passed for two touchdowns in Notre Dame's walloping of the Air Force.

Butch Woolfolk scored on runs of 58 and 41 yards to lead Michigan over Minnesota while Arkansas used Gary Anderson's 57-yard punt return and a 76-yard pass play from Kevin Scanlon to Bobby Duckworth in topping Texas Tech.

Sub quarterback John Doerner threw touchdown passes of 15 yards to Ron Ingram and 10 to Mel Campbell in the second half as Oklahoma State rallied from a 13-0 halftime deficit to beat Missouri. Marc Wilson passed for 372 yards and two touchdowns while Eric Lane scored five times on short runs as BYU flattened Utah State.

Dwight Sullivan's 14-yard run in the third quarter enabled N.C. State to beat Maryland.

Bucs Open Practice Without Al Tyson

East Carolina's basketball team prepared to hold its first practice of the season today without the services of 6-11 sophomore center Al Tyson of Winterville.

Pirate coach Dave Odom announced that the team's tallest player had not fully reached academic expectations and would not begin workouts with the team today.

"This year we have established certain academic standards for all of our players at East Carolina and the basketball staff has closely monitored each player's progress," Odom said.

"Although Al has made definite improvement, we feel that he should spend more of his time working toward meeting the academic expectations of the basketball program and the university," said the coach.

ECU opens its season Nov. 30 in the Spider Classic in Richmond, Va.

Alcott Wins LPGA

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — Veteran golf pro Amy Alcott says "at 23, I can't help but feel proud of myself."

Her comment came Sunday after a par-5 on the final hole gave her a one-shot margin over Susie McAllister in a $100,000 LPGA tournament over the 6, 100-yard Elizabeth Manor course and her third tour victory this year.

Alcott, whose 1-over-par 73 for the final round gave her a 72-hole total of 286 and the $15,000 first-place money, was a winner because McAllister ended her round of 72 by missing a 4-foot par putt to finish at 287.

"I was happy to win, and you can't imagine what a good year this has been for me. But I feel sorry for Susie because she played so well and is trying so hard to make a comeback on the tour," Alcott said.

The earnings moved Alcott from seventh to fourth on the money list with $124,000. McAllister, who hasn't won a tourney in four years and had finished no higher than 15th this season, picked up $9,800.

Charles Osgood: News With A Light Touch

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Charles Osgood, a CBS News correspondent for eight years now, is perhaps best known to radio listeners for his unconventional approach to reporting the news.

Osgood, for instance, often will put a news story to verse, as he did at the conclusion of the 1976 Republican convention: "Last night in Kansas City fair

I saw a man who wasn't there,
A man whom everybody knows.
Where did he go, do you suppose?"

It was, of course, an amusing reference to the Republicans' non-person that year, Richard Nixon. Amusing, but don't get the idea Osgood is some kind of journalistic funnyman.

"I don't want to be thought of as a comedian," the correspondent says. "I want to be thought of as a newsman, even though I might do some unconventional things."

"What goes on in my mind when I'm preparing for a newscast," says the genial Osgood, who recently became a regular on CBS-TV's "Morning" news show, "is that people are bombarded constantly with chunks of news, and I'm sure their minds wander and they don't hear everything that comes out of the speaker."

"I think you've got to be compelling to get the listeners' attention. Unless you hold onto them with something new and maybe a little different, you're going to lose them."

"MR. WONDERFUL" — Actor-comedian Jack Lemmon accepts the "Mr. Wonderful" award from Debbie Reynolds, president of the Thallians, a Hollywood philanthropic organization at a gala ball Saturday at the Palladium in Hollywood. Henry Fonda, Lucille Ball, Tony Curtis, June Allyson, Rita Hayworth, Peter Falk and Ray Bolger were among hundreds of celebrities and others who attended and honored Lemmon at the show "Comedy Tonight" produced by Jack Haley Jr. (AP Laserphoto)

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF
© 1979 by Chicago Tribune

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦AK104 ♠AQ53 ♦A1097 ♠A

What is your opening bid?

A.—Normally, when you hold three four-card suits you should open the suit below the singleton, which, in this case, would dictate a one spade opening bid. However, this hand is an exception. Although your hand does not merit a demand bid, you have so much strength that partner might find it difficult to respond if you open one spade. For example, if he held nothing but five hearts headed by the king jack, he would pass and game, or perhaps even slam, would be missed. So we would open one diamond to allow partner a convenient opportunity to respond at the one level.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦A62 ♠AJ4 ♦A642 ♠Q109

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
1 N1 Pass 2 ♠ Pass

What action do you take?

A.—What began as a minimum opening bid has improved because of your fit for both of partner's suits, which has enhanced the value of the honors in those suits. You can show this by taking a jump preference to three hearts. Don't worry about partner expecting more from you for your jump—your initial rebid limited your hand to 15 points.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦KJ ♠J753 ♦Q9 ♠J7543

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 NT Pass
2 ♦ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
3 ♦ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—Thus far, you have done nothing to tell partner that you have anything of value for him—indeed, your bidding has been most discouraging. Despite that, your partner is interested in game. You have a wealth of key cards in both of his suits, so failure to proceed on to game would be a gross dereliction of duty.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦732 ♠A6 ♦A742 ♠KJ75

The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♦ 2 ♠ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—Opposite a partner who has made a vulnerable overall, this is simply a matter of whether you should bid three hearts or four. With three low spades, we would be inclined to a cautious approach and would simply raise to three hearts. Don't be concerned about the fact that you have only a doubleton ace in partner's suit—that is ample support facing a two-level overall.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦4 ♠KJ76 ♦K1075 ♠KJ93

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
3 ♠ Pass 3 ♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—You have a reasonable hand, and so far you have done nothing but respond in a new suit and then take a simple preference.

Some strong action is indicated—preferably one that will highlight your singleton spade. Five clubs will do the trick, but we wouldn't quarrel with you if, instead, you Blackwood and bid a slam in diamonds if partner showed an acceptable number of aces.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦KQ65 ♠K53 ♦KQJ9 ♠AQ

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 2 ♠ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—You certainly want to be in game—but which game? If you could be sure that partner held four spades, you would obviously want to play in the major suit. However, partner might have raised with only three-card support. Allow him the option of selecting the final contract by jumping to three no trump.

Q.7—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦AQJ10 ♠A9642 ♦Q103 ♠5

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 2 ♦ Pass
2 ♠ Pass 2 NT Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—With your unbalanced hand, you should prefer a suit contract to no trump. Rebid three diamonds. That accomplishes two purposes with one bid—it shows your support for partner's suit and strongly suggests a singleton club. In addition, partner might now show a belated heart preference, in which case you can place the contract in four hearts with a fair degree of confidence.

Q.8—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦K1052 ♠KJ984 ♦A97 ♠4

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ 2 ♦ 2 ♠ 3 ♦
Pass 3 ♦ 3 ♠ 4 ♦
Pass 5 ♠ Pass Pass

What is your opening lead?

A.—This is close. You can bet that you are not going to get more than one heart trick—if that, it would seem that to defeat this contract, you will have to score spade tricks before declarer can get any discards. Therefore, we would lead a spade while we still have the ace of diamonds in our hand.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. For a copy and a scorepad, send $1.75 to "Goren-Four Deal," c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07648. Make checks payable to NEWS-PAPERBOOKS.

Osgood has been "whistling a merry tune and plowing a deeper furrow"—the words of colleague Charles Kuralt—long enough to compile a book, "Nothing Could Be Finer Than a Crisis That Is Minor in the Morning," published this month by Holt, Rinehart and Winston.

"It isn't always the big important story of the day I choose," Osgood says in the preface to his book. "Often the events that are most interesting to me are the ones off the beaten path. The people involved in those stories are at least as fascinating as the politicians and officials, who tend to hog the headlines."

Thus, he can end a report on the economy, as he did in February 1978, this way:

"Will pressure on the dollar grow, or is it bound to cease? With the Arabs and the Israelis, is there any chance for peace?"

And that's how you determine what the market's going to do."

Charles Osgood, raised in New York, studied economics at Fordham University. "I never went to journalism school," he says. "I never prepared to be a newsman. I thought I wanted to be a broadcast executive."

Injured In Freak Wind

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Actor Frank Bonner, who plays sales manager Herb Tarlek on CBS-TV's "WKRP in Cincinnati," was in stable condition early today after a parachute accident in the desert 50 miles northeast of Los Angeles.

Bonner, 37, fell about 20 feet when the "ascendancy parachute" from which he was hanging collapsed in a freak wind Sunday at El Mirage Dry Lake Recreational Area, said MTM Productions spokeswoman Josie Williams.

Bonner was being towed by a four-wheel drive vehicle when the accident occurred, she said.

The actor was taken first to Victor Valley Hospital and later transferred to St. Luke's Hospital in Pasadena, Ms. Williams said.

Doctors at Victor Valley said the actor may have suffered back and internal injuries. Further tests will be conducted today at St. Luke's, Ms. Williams said.

"He's in stable condition now and resting comfortably," she said. "He was joking on and off when I saw him."

Another Comic Is Adopted By Films

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Latest to join the parade of comics into movies: David Steinberg. Woody Allen and Mel Brooks have led the way. They have been followed by Don DeLuise, Steve Martin, Richard Pryor, Lily Tomlin, John Belushi, Dan Akroyd, Bill Murray, Martin Mull, Marty Feldman.

"It was Woody who opened the door for comics," argues David Steinberg. "Especially since 'Annie Hall.' Comedies have always made money, but 'Annie Hall' proved that comedians could play believable characters."

Steinberg makes his starring film debut in American International's "Something Short of Paradise," modestly under $1 million) made in New York by first-time director David Halpern Jr. Steinberg plays the operator of an art-film theater, Susan Sarandon is a writer of magazine articles, and Jean-Pierre Aumont is a French movie star who patches up their romance.

"The quickest way for a comedian to break into pictures is to write, direct and star in his own movies," reasoned Steinberg, who has such a contract with Universal. "So why did I do 'Something Short of Paradise'?"

"Because I wanted to do a contemporary love story, and this one was interesting because the usual male-female roles are reversed. It is an intelligent script that doesn't talk down to the audience. The exciting element was working with Susan, whom I greatly admire. David's lack of experience didn't scare me; you can learn a lot from a first-time director. And anyway, none of us could get hurt by the picture as long as we did our best."

Lean and handsome, David Steinberg has turned 39. He seems more intellectual than most comics, or at least analytical. College came early — "I entered the University of Chicago at 15 as part of their young-students program."

As soon as he had earned his master's degree in English literature, he enrolled for a more practical education at Chicago's Second City, the improvisational theater group that has spawned almost as many stars as the Actors Studio. He appeared in Second City's off-Broadway run, then co-starred with Elliott Gould in Jules Feiffer's "Little Murders."

"Carry Me Back to Morningside Heights" followed, and then Steinberg launched his career as a standup comic at the Bitter End in New York in 1969. The next year he became the youngest guest-host of the Johnny Carson's "Tonight" show.

Sickened Over Talk Of PCB

HARPER'S CROSSROADS, N.C. (AP) — In Chatham County, they're getting sick because of PCB. Not because of the toxic chemical itself, but because of all the talk that come with the problems the dumpings have stirred up.

"Yes, we're sick of PCB talk up here," said Mrs. Ted Phillips, touching her forehead. "We sick of all the talk for a year now about digging it up and yet no action has been taken. I reckon it's too late anyhow. It's done whatever harm it's going to do."

Mrs. Phillips is one of hundreds of people who awoke one morning in August 1978 and smelled a peculiar odor. The odor was also painful to the eyes, she said.

After state health officials discovered polychlorinated biphenyls, the greasy liquid used most as a transformer oil, had been dumped all over east-central Chatham County by a night-running tanker, they warned residents not to get the substance on shoes and clothing. For Mrs. L.P. Talley, the state officials were too late. Mrs. Talley said she walked barefoot across the road to get her mail and the stuff stuck all over the bottom of her feet. Others said they got it on them when they walked on the shoulders of the roads before any warning was issued.

State officials prepared a plan to remove the soil from the roadside and dispose of it at a specially-chosen site. Some 15 months have passed since first reports of the spills, and nary an ounce of the contaminated soil has been moved. The state has had difficulties finding disposal sites and removal is still questionable.

Most residents feel the long delay by the state has resulted in a dilution of the PCB's strength, so it is only about 5 or 10 percent as potent as it was. "It's been diluted by over a year of weather and also carried away on shoes and tires and is now all over the state wherever our people have gone," one woman said.

Don't Squeeze Cyst, See Dermatologist

I have a very disturbing and unsightly sebaceous cyst on, of all places, my nose. When I press it, an oily substance comes out of it and before long it starts to grow again. If I do not squeeze it, it becomes larger and larger and embarrasses me. I am reluctant to get help from a dermatologist because I feel sure he will drain me of my money and keep me coming back indefinitely. — Mr. H.D., W.Va.

Dear Mr. D.:
It strikes me that you have two problems. One, of course, is your sebaceous cyst. The other is your lack of faith in the integrity of people who can help you.

First, let me tell you about your sebaceous cyst. This type of cyst develops when the pores of the sweat glands beneath the skin become plugged and the fatty secretions (sebum) accumulate. Squeezing them, obviously, is not the answer. In fact, by doing so you may irritate the skin, injure it and make the cyst more susceptible to bacterial invasion. Then a simple operative procedure is converted into a more complex one.

Now, about your lack of faith in the dermatologist, surgeon or plastic surgeon — any one of whom can easily remove the cyst and solve your problem. Mr. D., do you really believe that the financial destiny of any one of these doctors is dependent on your one sebaceous cyst of the nose?

Get it taken care of. You'll be delighted with the result, and it will renew your faith in mankind.

From the age of 8 our daughter has had repeated attacks of cystitis of the bladder. It clears up, and then after a few months, flares up again. Can this eventually lead to kidney disease? — Mrs. O.B., Ga.

Dear Mrs. B.:
Cystitis is an inflammation, irritation or infection of the lining of the urinary bladder. It is commonly observed in young girls, especially those who are not properly trained in hygiene after bowel movements. Germs can be introduced into the bladder in this way.

It is conceivable that the lining of the bladder may become less resistant to infection when once it has been previously inflamed.
The treatment for cystitis with sulfa drugs and with antibiotics has been remarkably successful in reducing the frequency and severity of these infections. Cultures are usually taken of the urine, in an effort to find the particular bacteria that are responsible for the infection. In this way, the ideal antibiotic can be chosen to destroy the germs.

When bouts of cystitis are neglected, it is possible that infection may ascend into the kidney. However, with modern-day antibiotics there is very little possibility that this will occur.

The advice of a urologist should be sought in order to be certain that there are no underlying anatomical reasons for these repeated infections.

Scrawled Notes Key To Fortune

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — A county court has been asked to decide the validity of a will, scrawled on the backs of old business papers, which leaves most of a $3 million estate to aid the blind.

Just two of Clinton J. Teubert's 35 known relatives were named as possible beneficiaries in the purported will.

Teubert was a postal service employee for 50 years, retiring in 1955 as assistant superintendent of finance. He died a bachelor on Feb. 14 at age 91.

Several of Teubert's kin petitioned Cabell County Circuit Court to have the will declared void. If successful, the bulk of the estate would go to them. No date has been set for court arguments.

The will was discovered shortly after Teubert died. The document, which assigned most of Teubert's estate "to aid the blind only," was tucked away in his desk with miscellaneous papers.

Brenda Wickline Odell, a second cousin, is Teubert's sole relative in Huntington. She and two of Teubert's friends were chosen as curators to look through his personal belongings for the will.

Mrs. Odell was on hand the day the purported will was found, but she refuses to discuss it, other than to say: "There is no will. There is no will."

The will did not include Mrs. Odell as a beneficiary.

Teubert was a son of one of the city's first real estate brokers. An official appraisal on file in the county clerk's office estimated his estate's worth at $2.9 million, with $2.8 million in stocks.

The fortune includes stock in American Telephone & Telegraph Co. valued at $775,000, the documents said.

The first page of the will is the reverse side of a 1960 note to stockholders of the Union Electric Co. of St. Louis, Mo. The second page is the back of a form used by a local hospital to solicit comments from discharged patients.

Attorneys for Teubert's relatives contend that the two pages, at most, represent a set of notes he made so he could some day write a true will.

A list of relatives filed with the county clerk shows Teubert left six first cousins, 27 second cousins and two third cousins. The two relatives named as beneficiaries in the document are first cousins.

More Turkeys, Broilers in Diet

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans are expected to eat more broiler chickens and turkey during the remainder of the year because their prices will be below April-June levels and meat supplies will be greater, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The USDA says per capita production of poultry and red meat will be 6 to 8 percent larger than during the first half of this year.

Wanted To Go Home As His Life Began Ebbing

By The Associated Press
Chad Green had only one thing on his mind as he neared the end of his struggle against leukemia. According to his parents, he wanted to go home.

Chad, 3, died Friday in Tijuana, Mexico, the center of a legal and medical debate over the effectiveness of Laetrile in treating cancer.

"He wanted to go home so bad he just stopped doing everything," his father, Gerald Green, told NBC News on Sunday. "He didn't want to eat; he didn't want to take his pills."

Home for Chad was across the continent, near Boston. Chad's parents, in defiance of a court order, fled their Scituate, Mass., home with the boy to seek Laetrile, which is not legally available in the United States.

The parents contended Laetrile would stem the cancer that had eaten away at their boisterous son for most of his young life.

The parents said Sunday they still believe they did the right thing when they abandoned conventional chemotherapy treatment for Chad.

"What we should be looking at here," Green said, "is a system that forces a child into exile. Chad was depressed. He wanted to go home. This was his sign of going home."

"He wanted to lay down on the bed so I let him lay down

Garbage-Use By Greensboro

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Officials in Greensboro think they have found the cure for disposing of the city's garbage, and at the same time, keeping the town supplies of fuel at reasonable levels. Their plan is to convert the garbage to fuel.

They are not the first town to come up with the plan, and with energy efficiency and conservation becoming so important, they certainly won't be the last.

The city of Ames, Iowa, has been converting its solid waste into fuel for a city-owned generating plant since 1975.

Solid waste superintendent Kenneth Moravetz said the purpose of the effort is not to reclaim the town's refuse, but for a more practical reason.

"It's a good way to get rid of the garbage," he said.

Moravetz estimated that Ames, a city of approximately 40,000, now supplies approximately 20 percent of the fuel needed for its electric plant by the conversion of solid waste. About 80 percent of the waste produced by Ames is suitable for conversion to fuel, he said.

Similar projects are now in operation around the country, but none pays its way solely through the sale of recovered materials.

However, Dave Ovellet of

Boston, an expert in solid waste management, predicts, "Some day soon, the day is coming when it will be economically feasible."

Ovellet is with CSI Resource Systems, which is conducting a study of the feasibility of governments in the Triad converting solid waste into fuel. A grant of $28,000 from the Environmental Protection Agency is making the study possible.

Guilford County and the cities of Greensboro, High Point and Winston-Salem, along with Duke Power Co., are participating in the study.

Larry Harvell, Guilford County director of environmental services, also thinks it will be possible for Guilford County governments to begin converting solid waste into fuel someday, though not soon.

CSI has not completed its study. But it has issued a preliminary report saying there is some potential for "resource recovery" in the Triad area.

The report recommends that projects involving the production and sale of steam to local industries be pursued.

15 Percent Hike Is Goal

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The board of directors of the North Carolina Association of Educators voted unanimously Sunday to request at least a 15 percent pay increase for teachers at a cost next year of about $15 million.

The board decided to ask the General Assembly to approve a cost-of-living adjustment of either 15 percent or an amount equal to the increase of the consumer price index from April 1, 1979 through March 30, 1980, whichever of the figures is higher.

The salary schedule is part of a legislative package to be introduced by the association to the 1980 General Assembly.

"I think this is a reasonable program," Lloyd S. Isaacs, executive director of the board, said after the meeting.

The new salary schedule will most likely require $15 million for implementation in the first year and $45 million the next year, according to David Williams, chairman of the board's legislative commission.

Though the beginning salary for a principal without prior experience would drop under the plan, the entire salary schedule "is a heck of a sight better than what we have now," said Delma Blinson, a Garner principal and legislative co-chairman for the NCAE Division of Principals.

The proposed salary schedule is designed to prevent a teacher who is on a high pay scale from having a reduction in salary if he became a principal, said Richard M. Jewell, president of the Division of Principals.

Sees Advantage In Demo Rift

WASHINGTON (AP) — A key Republican leader says a Carter-Kennedy presidential battle, combined with U.S. economic troubles, would help increase the number of Republican congressmen.

The chairman of the House Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, Rep. Guy Vander Jagt of Michigan, says he believes if President Carter and Sen. Edward Kennedy compete for the Democratic presidential nomination, the winner would have diminished influence in electing Democrats to the House. And he says if the inflation rate around election time remains at 13 percent and unemployment reaches 7.5 percent, "I would not rule out winning control next year." Democrats now have 275 House members to the Republicans' 159.
