Libya And Iran Hike Price Of Crude Oil

By MARK POTTS
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Iran and Libya, ignoring OPEC price limits, have raised their crude-oil prices, and analysts say it could foretell another round of increases for world petroleum prices.

The Libyan and Iranian price increases were first revealed by a newsletter that covers the industry and were confirmed confidentially by spokesmen for several U.S. companies that buy the oil. Iran and Libya provide about 10 percent of the oil used by the United States.

Monday's price increases, plus a 10 percent boost last week by Kuwait — to $21.43 — are seen by analysts as touching off a series of leapfrogging increases by individual members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Mexico, not an OPEC member, raised its prices last week by $2 to $24.60.

Analysts expect that, like two earlier rounds of increases this year, the individual increases will culminate in a general rise in OPEC's set prices. The cartel meets in December to discuss prices.

An overall OPEC price boost could add still more cents to the prices of gasoline and heating oil in the United States.

Meanwhile, in California on Monday, a federal judge refused to reconsider his dismissal of a price-fixing suit against the OPEC nations. U.S. District Judge A. Andrew Hawk has ruled OPEC's pricing actions had "no direct impact" on the price of fuel in the United States, and concluded crude oil prices are "lower than they ought to be" in view of inflation and the declining value of the dollar.

Iran's increase, retroactive to Oct. 1, raises the price of its best-quality oil by $1.50, to $23.50 a barrel, and its lesser-quality oil by $2.87, to $22.77 a barrel.

Libya's price rise, effective Monday, tacks 12 percent onto its prices, which vary depending on the quality of oil, which generally is considered high quality. The new prices range from $25.57 to $26.27 a barrel.

Libya's increase is seen by analysts as particularly significant because it breaks the $23.50-a-barrel OPEC ceiling.

"It clearly puts them over the ceiling, no ifs ands or buts about that," said Marshall Thomas, markets editor of Petroleum Intelligence Weekly, a New York-based newsletter.

The new prices first were revealed by PIW, then confirmed by spokesmen for companies that buy oil from Iran and Libya, including Ashland Oil, Gulf Oil, Marathon Oil and Conoco. The spokesmen would not allow their names to be used.

City School Bd. Revises Budget

In one of the shortest meetings — one and one-half hours — in recent years, members of the Greenville City Board of Education acted on seven agenda items, discussed several other topics, and set a couple of dates.

Two budget amendments were approved.

Budget Amendment Number 1 to the Capital Outlay Fund, one reflecting an increase of $27,913.20, raises the total appropriation in the current amended capital outlay budget to $123,891.55. An amount of $7,000 was added to the Live Project budget, a project where vocational students build a house, then sell it.

Another portion of the increase is $6,000 to Food Services, representing a U.S. Dept. of Agriculture grant for cafeteria equipment.

The largest single item, $12,135.82, represents insurance settlement for damages due to vandalism at Rose High School last June. This amount is earmarked to purchase replacement equipment for that destroyed by vandals.

The second budget amendment approved, Current Expense Budget Amendment No. 2, results in a total increase of $109,740.40, bringing the total appropriation in the current amended Current Expense Budget to $2,481,228.40.

Most of the fund increases are due to receipt of monies for various projects — Project CARE, $42,256.00; CETA

Primary Reading funds, $17,405.00; and CETA Specialized Educational Services, $30,679.00.

Within this amendment, the sum of $15,232.58 is a fund balance amount appropriated from unencumbered funds — which is the only amount of the total $109,000 involving local monies. The remainder of the amendment total comes from four smaller sources — PL-874 unrestricted funds at $2,911.42; vocational education non-matching funds, $463.00; Autistic-TEACCH Program, $293.40; and an anonymous donation to be used for in-service workshops, $500.

The largest item, the $42,256.00 for the Project CARE item, are funds coming through the county manager's office and are for the joint Pitt County-Greenville City Schools administered program located PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A chain-reaction crash of commuter trains today sent riders tumbling down the aisles and hospital authorities said at least 275 were injured.

"All hell broke loose," said a passenger aboard one train which slammed into a parked train and shoved it into a third train on the Media-West Chester Line.

There was no word of fatalities, but reports from area hospitals showed at least 275 were injured.

R.B. Hoffman, an official of Conrail, which operates the commuter service, said the accident involved four trains, although only three were involved in the actual crash.

According to Hoffman, a nine-car lead train developed a mechanical failure and a second train, which also had nine cars, stopped behind it.

Grumbling Aftershocks In Southern California

By NORM CLARKE
Associated Press Writer
CALEXICO, Calif. (AP) — With aftershocks still grumbling, thousands of Imperial Valley residents picked up shattered possessions today after a thundering earthquake injured at least 91 persons.

Police and volunteers patrolled against the threat of looting. Damage from Monday's quake, measuring 6.5 on the Richter scale, was widespread throughout this agricultural valley of 90,000, straddling the U.S.-Mexican border about 100 miles east of San Diego.

Buildings crumbled and roofs collapsed. Automobiles were smashed by falling debris. Highways buckled, including sections of Interstate 8. Twenty rural bridges were damaged. Several fires broke out. Shattered glass was everywhere.

Firefighters stood by as officials worked to drain more than 90,000 gallons of gasoline and aviation fuel at a fuel tank farm near the Imperial Valley Airport. Nearby commercial establishments were evacuated, and authorities said they feared aftershocks could further damage three ruptured tanks, igniting a "mammoth fire."

It was the strongest quake in the 48 contiguous states since the Feb. 9, 1971, Sylmar-San Fernando quake which killed 65 people and also registered 6.5 on the Richter scale.

A six-story, 8-year-old "earthquake-proof" county government building in El Centro shifted and tilted when support pillars cracked and was declared a total loss by state disaster officials. "Our building, I thought was going about one foot either way. I guess it was something like being on a rollercoaster," a mayor's aide said.

There were no major problems at El Centro's schools. Students had been sent home at noon as part of a disaster drill. The quake hit at 4:16 p.m.

The All-American Canal, which brings water from the nearby Colorado River to this thirsty desert land, apparently suffered major damage, said authorities, who were to make an aerial survey today.

American Shares Nobel Prize In Economics

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — The Nobel Memorial Prize in Economics was awarded jointly today to an American and a Briton working in the United States. The $190,000 prize went to Theodore Schultz of Chicago and Sir Arthur Lewis of Princeton University for pioneering research into the economic problems of developing countries.

The Alfred Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic Science, a 10-year-old addition to the original Nobel prizes, was given to Schultz and Lewis "for their pioneering research into economic development research with particular consideration of the problems of developing countries" according to the citation by the Royal Academy of Sciences.

The two economics professors share the prize equally.

Schultz, born in Arlington, S.D., in 1902, and an agricultural economist from the outset, has specialized in the "human factor" in economics. He took his doctorate at the University of Wisconsin in 1930 and has been Charles Hutchinson Professor at the University of Chicago since 1952, and professor emeritus since 1972.

Lewis, born at Castries on the West Indian island of St. Lucia in 1915, has been James Madison Professor of Political Economy at Princeton University in New Jersey since 1968. He is a British citizen.

Lewis is a leading figure and pioneer in developing-country research who started to publish important works on the economics of poor countries in the 1950s.

The analysis of development problems by Schultz and Lewis have a number of features in common, the awarding body noted in a statement.

The economics prize, set up by the Central Bank of Sweden in 1969, has been heavily dominated by Americans. The United States has had nine laureates in the 10 years the prize has been awarded.

Oust President Of El Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Two colonels reputed to be moderates favoring order and democracy ousted the head of El Salvador's rightwing military regime, called on leftists and rightists to end months of violence and promised both a part in the nation's future.

Cols. Jaime Abdul Gutierrez and Adolfo Arnoldo Najano forced the resignation of President Carlos Humberto Romero after their supporters took control of five key military bases Monday. One person, an army captain, was reported killed.

A spokesman for the colonels said an air force plane took Romero to Guatemala.

The coup leaders were reported to be military instructors in their 40's.

San Salvador, the capital, was calm, and the rebels said they were in complete control of the country's 14 military departments.

The new regime said in its first communique: "The high command of the new revolutionary government places its confidence in Col. Jaime Abdul Gutierrez and (Col.) Adolfo Arnoldo Najano but will soon announce the names of other members of the military-civilian junta that will rule the country."

El Salvador, with 4.5 million people and 8,260 square miles, is Central America's smallest country

A HOTLINE APPEAL

HOUSE BURNED

The home of Bessie Andrews and her three children near Belvoir burned last Wednesday afternoon. Nothing in the house was saved.

The Pitt County Red Cross has asked Hotline to appeal for donations of clothing and household goods for the family.

Mrs. Andrews wears sizes 14 and 15; her two daughters, sizes 13 and 14; her son, size 15 slim. They are living with Mrs. Andrews' mother, Mrs. Mozella Jones near Belvoir now, but need a house. Anyone wishing to help the family is asked to bring donations to the Pitt County Red Cross Office, 222-C Cotanche Street, Greenville. Inquiries may be made by calling the Red Cross or Mrs. Andrews at her mother's home, 825-8477.

NEGATIVE ENERGIZER FOODS?

Is there such a thing as "Negative Energizer Foods," which actually help you lose weight? Do doctors recommend this book, "The Oriental Seven-Day Weight Off Diet," price — $10.98? (See attached letter) Mrs. L. H.

Hotline submitted your attached letter touting "Negative Energizer Foods" as a miracle diet discovery to Mary Ann Barnes, Registered Dietician. She commented, "There is no scientific evidence that any food is a 'negative energizer.' When any diet or food combination brings about a rapid weight loss (more than two-to-three pounds per week), the body is actually losing more water than fat and the person becomes dehydrated.

"Doctors, to my knowledge, are not recommending the book, 'The Oriental Seven-Day Weight Off Diet.' It is important to mention here that there are many dieting gimmicks on the market today. Most of them will bring about a temporary weight loss, but if the meal patterns are not such that the "diet" can be adhered to forever, the weight will be regained. Only when a person eats when he is losing weight in a way he can live with forever, then and only then will the weight loss be permanent."

Police Investigate 2 City Accidents

Over $2,000 in damages and one injury resulted from two accidents investigated on Sunday and Monday by Greenville Police.

Investigating officers reported that heaviest damage occurred in a 1:05 p.m. wreck Monday at the intersection of E. Fifth Street and Jarvis Street.

According to the police, a bus owned by East Carolina University and operated by Mark Donald Folsom of 1301 Cotanche St. received damages estimated at $1,500 when it struck a tree at the campus entrance.

One passenger on the bus was reported injured and taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Folsom was charged following investigation with having improper brakes.

No injuries were reported and no charges preferred following a 11:50 p.m. accident on N. Memorial Drive north of NC 33.

Investigating officers said that James Arthur Cherry of 1115 Douglas Avenue reported that he struck the trailer section of a tractor-trailer vehicle as he was turning from the north bound lane of Memorial Drive into the median cross over. Cherry, it was reported, said that the tractor-trailer did not stop following the incident.

Damage to the Cherry vehicle was estimated at $575.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Mild weather is expected in the forecast period until Wednesday morning for most of the nation. Cooler weather is due in the upper Midwest, sunny skies are indicated for most of the country. (AP Laser-photo)

By The Associated Press

High pressure was centered just off the North Carolina coast today and under its influence there will be an increase in cloudiness during the next couple of days.

The cloudiness will thicken tonight over the mountains, posing a chance of rain across the mountains Wednesday.

Today's forecast called for continued fine fall weather, with high temperatures ranging from the 60s in the northern mountains to the mid 70s along the south coast.

Highs Wednesday will be about the same or possibly a little warmer.

Skies generally were sunny around the state Monday but temperatures were a little below normal for mid-October as afternoon highs remained mostly in the 60s.

Low readings this morning were mostly in the 40s. They will drop to about the same range tonight.

Separate Negotiations With Abel Muzorewa

LONDON (AP) — Britain opens separate negotiations with Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa today after telling guerrilla leaders Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe to quit the Zimbabwe Rhodesia peace conference if they won't accept the constitution proposed by Britain.

Nkomo and Mugabe, rival political leaders whose alliance in the Patriotic Front is generally regarded as a marriage of convenience, met Monday night but reportedly could not agree how to respond to the move by the British foreign secretary, Lord Carrington, to break the deadlock in the six-week-old talks.

Sources close to them said Nkomo wanted to bow to the British ultimatum and stay in the conference while Mugabe wanted to withdraw and escalate their seven-year-old war for control of their African homeland.

The guerrillas on Monday for the third time refused Carrington's demand that they accept the British draft constitution because it guarantees property and citizenship rights to the white settlers. Once again they demanded that the conference move on to discussion of an interim government to replace Muzorewa's biracial regime and hold elections, and the composition of a new army.

Carrington replied that he would move on to negotiations to arrange the transition to the new constitution. He said he would negotiate with Muzorewa because he has accepted the British draft, but Nkomo and Mugabe could not participate until they did likewise.

An agreement between Muzorewa and the British would be followed by the end of the diplomatic and economic sanctions imposed by Britain after Prime Minister Ian Smith declared Rhodesia independent 14 years ago and official British recognition of the independence which Rhodesia has in fact been exercising ever since.

Countywide PACA Meeting

The Pitt County Schools Countywide Title I ESEA Parent Advisory Council will hold its first meeting of the school year Thursday, Oct. 18, 7:30 p.m., at the Pitt County Courthouse, third floor conference room.

Agenda items include the election of officers for the 1979-81 term, information from the State Title I meeting held in Greensboro, and an evaluation report of last year's Title I program.

PAC chairpersons and co-chairpersons from all county schools should plan to attend this meeting, as well as all interested citizens.

Church Women Set Bake Sale

BETHEL — The Bethel Pentecostal Holiness Church Women's Auxiliary will hold a bake sale at Harris Supermarket Saturday from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

In addition to baked goods, craft items will be offered for sale.

An Autograph Party Saturday

Tobacco farming chronicler in words and photographs, Pamela Barefoot, will be in Greenville Saturday.

Ms. Barefoot, a Benson native, has been invited by Books and Butterflies Book Store owner, Harold Penland, to hold an autograph party at his store. Penland said her book, "Mules and Memories, A Photo Documentary of the Tobacco Farmer" has been a good seller and that many purchasers have expressed a desire for an autographed copy.

Hours for the autograph party are from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. The store is located at 325 Arlington Boulevard.

Soil Losses Said Serious

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Conserving soil along North Carolina highway shoulders and ditches has become a serious concern, local conservation officials say.

They say the largest contributor to soil erosion in the state is highway construction, which causes an estimated 256 tons of dirt per acre to be washed away.

Conservation officials criticize the Department of Transportation for the way road crews scrape ditches to get rid of weeds and debris.

"We have seen instances where they've pulled (scraped bare) a ditch and quite honestly — I hate to point my finger at anyone — you wonder why," said Mike Coughlin, a sedimentation control official in Orange County.

"The ditches may be grown up, sure, but there is no need to pull the ditch. It needs to be simply cut with a bushhog. I think it (scraping ditches) does more harm than good," Coughlin said.

Orange County officials of the soil conservation service got so upset with the process, that they met with district DOT officials to discuss complaints.

"We met with them (DOT officials) and I think they are going to be very cooperative," said Bob Tenant, Orange soil conservation officer. There have been and there are problems, but DOT is trying to do better."

Carl Painter, district DOT engineer for Durham, Person and Granville counties, said there have been some complaints, but said he hears more complaints about the DOT not doing enough ditching.

Represented At Session

The Pitt County Schools ESEA Title I Program was represented at the North Carolina Association of Compensatory Educators' Annual Fall Conference Oct. 10-11 by Parent Advisory Council chairpersons Mrs. Chris Kinlaw of Ayden Elementary, Mrs. Camella Edwards of Grifton Elementary, Mrs. Barbara Williams of Bethel Elementary and Johnny Little, countywide PAC chairperson, of Stokes Elementary.

Participants in the fall conference were made aware of recent legislation and current trends in Title I on the state and national levels.

The highlights included sessions on "Developing the Productive Child" and "Effective Techniques for Organizing Parent Advisory Councils." Participants also had a chance to talk and listen to Dr. Richard E. Fairley of the U. S. Office of Education. Dr. Fairley serves as associate commissioner of education of the disadvantaged.

The parents were accompanied by Les Strayhorn, county medical-social counselor, and Bernard Haselrig, assistant superintendent for Title I programs.

FOCUS

On Sale

If you think paperbacks are getting expensive, be glad you're not paying for this 15th century French prayer book! It's part of an art collection valued at $10 million. The book and other collection pieces go on sale today at an art auction in Zurich, Switzerland. As inflation increases, people have been spending vast amounts of money on art and other fine objects. For example, in 1970 a New York book dealer sold an early printed bible for $2½ million. A painting by the Spanish artist Velazquez brought $5½ million the same year. Many believe these and other art works will continue to increase in value, while the dollar loses its buying power.

Festival Plans Being Advanced

Plans are well on their way for the Second Annual Southern Flue-Cured Tobacco Festival to be held in Greenville Nov. 7-17.

The festival has expanded its activities to include many new events. One of these is the ECU Tobacco Festival Football Game to be played Nov. 17 at 1:30 p. m. between the East Carolina Pirates and the Mean Green Eagles of North Texas State.

The Tobacco Festival has 10,000 tickets to be sold for this game at $8 per ticket. The ticket sales will benefit the festival and assure a capacity crowd at Ficklen Stadium for what has been termed the most challenging game of the Pirates' 1979 season.

For further information about the ticket sales, one may contact Jim Woods, ticket sales chairman, at 756-3180, or the following ticket sales committee members — Ron Davenport, Linda Raines, Frances Faust, J. D. Higgins, Joe Staton, Howard Wilson, Reese Helms, Julius Budacz, Mike Peters, Bobby Roberson, Jim Woods, and Blake Lewis.

Phyllis Forbes Speaks Vows Saturday Afternoon

Phyllis Forbes and William Thurston McIver were united in marriage Saturday at 3 p.m. at Mt. Calvary F.W.B. Church. Dr. W. L. Jones, pastor, performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Laughinghouse Jr. of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. Moses W. McIver of Durham.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Michael Johnson, organist, Myra Gallop sang "Always and Forever" and Tracy Ebron sang "You Needed Me" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The church was decorated with the traditional green and white decorations. In the background was a 15 semi-circle candelabra filled with white mums, pom poms and baby's breath with areca palms. At the altar was a decorated profile prie-dieu. Pews were marked with white satin bows and greenery.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of white organza over white peau de soie designed with a Queen Anne neckline outlined in scalloped chantilly lace beaded with pearls. The empire bodice was overlaid in French chantilly lace that extended down over the modified A-line skirt in a rindigote design with chantilly lace edging. A panel of organza accented the front of the attached chapel length train, also trimmed in the scalloped chantilly lace and overlaid with the French Chantilly lace. The full bishop sleeves also featured Chantilly lace, held in place by a Camelot cap overlaid in matching lace. She carried a formal cascade bouquet of white fujii mums, pixie white carnations, baby's breath and orchids with sprays of green springeriti tied with white satin.

Honor attendant was Sheila Watkins of Albemarle. Bridesmaids were Phyllis McIver of Durham, sister of the bridegroom, Wanda Cooley of Kinston, and Darlean Short of Greenville, cousin of the bride. The attendants wore formal A-line gowns of polyester knit with straight bodice and spaghetti straps. The dresses were worn with matching jackets in accor-dian pleats.

The maid of honor and bridesmaids carried carnations and white daisy mums and baby's breath tied with ivory satin. They wore baby's breath in their hair.

Flower girls were Danielle Short of Greenville, cousin of the bride, and Ayanna McIver of Durham, neice of the bridegroom. They wore formal length white gowns of interlock. The dresses were gathered at the waist and featured long puffed sleeves and ruffles. They carried white wicker baskets tied with white satin streamers. In their hair they wore crowns of baby's breath.

Cedrick Parker of Durham was ring bearer. James McIver, of Wilmington, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Tim McIver of Durham, brother of the bridegroom, Emory Leathers and Randy Leathers, both of Durham.

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of spruce green chiffon designed with a portrait neckline. An attached chiffon drape extended over the shoulders to waist length in back. She wore a corsage of white miniature carnations.

The wedding was directed by Mr. and Mrs. Travis Duncan and guests were registered by Mrs. Pattie Leary.

Guests were entertained at a reception after the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents. The reception table was decorated in white lace with silver and crystal candelabras. Mrs. C. S. Duncan received guests. Mrs. Lula James, aunt of the bride, served punch, and cake was served by Mrs. Annie Forbes, aunt of the bride. Good-byes were said by Mrs. R. L. Wilkes.

The bridal couple and guests were honored at a dinner party given by Ms. Darlean Short, cousin of the bride.

A wedding breakfast was given at the home of Mrs. Mattie Spain, aunt of the bride. The couple will reside in Durham after their wedding trip.

The bride is a graduate of Rose High School and attended Durham College. She is presently employed by Burlington Industries of Durham. The bridegroom is a graduate of Northern High School of Durham, and is employed by Winn-Dixie of Durham.

Correction

Names omitted in the Register-Bryant wedding write-up printed in Sunday's issue of "The Daily Reflector" included: father of the bridegroom, best man, miniature bridegroom, Craig Godwin of Tarboro, cousin of the bridegroom, and ushers Ricky Coker of Raleigh, cousin of the bridegroom, Ceaso Lewis and Doug Bullock, cousin of the bride, both of Tarboro, Charles Register of Bethel, brother of the bridegroom, and Michael Ward of Williamston, cousin of the bride.

The other night I asked my husband, "How was your day?" He talked for 45 minutes and then asked, "What did you do all day?"

Thank goodness, we didn't waste time listening to one another's answer.

Dear Abby

Make Suggestions To Your Husband

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: What would cause a grown man to take guests in the house on a grand tour, pointing out the furnishings, objects of art, pieces that were found in various places around the world during his travels, etc., and nauseam?

The man is my husband, and I am so embarrassed when I see the looks on their faces. It sounds like so much bragging to me. I've even heard him mention how much various items cost. Lord, help me!

We do have a lovely home, have traveled extensively and have collected some interesting things, but, Abby, if he would just wait until someone admired an object, or asked him where it came from, there might be some justification for all his talk.

If he had been needy in his childhood I might be able to understand it, but that was not the case.

Tell me, please, what I can do to help him.

EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: Tell him privately and lovingly, in a non-critical way, what you have told me. Almost every reasonable person will accept suggestions graciously if they are presented properly.

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from the 14-year-old boy who was afraid he had VD and didn't want to tell his parents, and I just had to write.

I am a 15-year-old girl who had a similar experience. I thought I had VD. I cried for days. Finally I decided the only thing I could do was to tell my mother. Abby, that was the hardest thing I ever had to do. When I told her we both cried I begged her not to tell my father, but she said she had to. Some pretty cruel words were exchanged among the three of us.

The next seven days were the toughest I've ever experienced, but it also proved how much my parents really loved me. They stood by me the whole time. When we finally got the doctor's report, we were relieved to learn that it wasn't VD—it was another kind of infection.

My friends thought I was crazy for telling my mother, but it was the best decision I ever made. It really brought us closer together, and we got to understand each other better.

Abby, please keep encouraging kids to take their heavy problems to their parents. It's not always the easiest way, but it's the smartest. Thanks for letting me have my say. I believe you really do care.

BEEN THROUGH A LOT

DEAR BEEN: Thanks for the testimonial. Read on for a letter from a girl who wasn't as lucky as you.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for that letter in your column warning kids about VD. I wish I had seen something like that when I was 14.

I am a 16-year-old girl who just underwent a very painful and serious operation as a result of gonorrhea.

I had to have a hysterectomy.

Abby, I don't "sleep around." I have only one boyfriend. I also have a very ugly seven-inch scar down my stomach.

The worst part is knowing that I will never in my life be able to bear my own children.

Not many kids realize how serious VD can be. Please inform your readers of this. And if you print my letter, please don't use my name. Thank you.

PAID A HIGH PRICE

DEAR ABBY: The 57-year-old wife of the impotent 61-year-old "spiffy dresser, great dancer, and big spender" has a lot to learn. (She can't understand why "the other woman in his life" finds him so attractive.)

There are literally thousands of women who would be overjoyed to have such a companion, especially if he can't do anything in bed! What a pleasure it would be to have a man take me out and show me a good time, and not wrestle me to the floor when the evening is over!

Another thing the poor wife doesn't seem to know is that many a man who is impotent at home is a powerhouse with women other than his wife.

Diet facts & fallacies

These nutritional tips brought to you by DIET CENTER

How many times have you rushed through a meal so you could do something else? Did you know you were making it twice as hard for your digestive system to work properly? If food does not have time to digest, it may cause side affects for you such as gas, heartburn and even constipation. You will also have a more difficult time assimilating the nutrients from the food. At Diet Center, we recommend that you eat slowly to avoid these possible side affects and so you can enjoy each piece of food you put into your mouth. It has also been proven that foods need to be chewed thoroughly for better enzyme action and therefore, better digestion.

Barbecues Are Fun For Fall

By TOM HOGE

AP Wine And Food Writer
Barbecues, long billed as an all-American summer pastime, are not an American creation, nor are they limited to the hot months.

The early Virginia settlers did learn to cook over campfire coals from the local Indians. But it should be recalled that tribesmen from the Aegean Sea around the Eastern Mediterranean to the Tunisian Peninsula have been roasting chunks of lamb over hot coals since the days of Exodus.

Summer may be the peak season for barbecuing in America, since that is the prime vacation time. But it's becoming more and more popular during the crisp days of October and even early November, when a slab of grilled meat on a bun hits the spot, especially when washed down with a bracing highball or hot coffee.

Barbecuing in this country used to be confined mainly to hamburgers, hot dogs and an occasional steak, but the keepers of the grill are branching out with an accent on the lamb that the Middle East nomads subsisted on so many years ago.

Seasonings derived from many cultures can be used to flavor lamb before it is placed on the grill. They include pepper, garlic, dried or fresh herbs, lemon juice, olive oil, dried fruits and yogurt. They may be used in various blendings as marinades or sauces.

According to representatives of the American Sheep Industry, the lamb we eat today is a far cry from that on which our forefather dined. Because of better breeding, they say, it is leaner and the flavor is also more delicate, a change I've noted over the years.

There are probably a dozen cuts of lamb that can be barbecued. Offhand, I can recall meatballs in which ground lamb is mixed with raw egg, garlic salt and bread crumbs, cooked over a grill, then topped with a sauce of chopped onions, green pepper and butter. Then there is the "butterfly roast" boned, hammered flat and grilled. Our favorite for the grill, however, is barbecued lamb chops. Here's a recipe.

1/4 cup vegetable oil
2 tablespoons honey
2 tablespoons soy sauce
2 tablespoons dry white wine
2 tablespoons minced onion
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon ground pepper
1/4 teaspoon ground ginger
1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
8 lamb loin or rib chops
In small bowl, mix all ingredients except lamb chops. Brush chops with sauce and let stand 1 hour. Grill chops 6 to 7 inches from hot coals 12 to 15 minutes per side to desired doneness, brushing frequently with sauce. Good with chilled rose wine. Serves 4.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

In wrapping up the garbage the other day, my eyes caught a story about executives who were complaining about the five most time-consuming events in their day.

They included (a) telephone conversations, which wore them down; (b) mail, especially on Mondays; (c) meetings, which were often ego trips for the people who called them; (d) business lunches, in which the conversations were often indigestible; and (e) commuting, which is nothing to do.

Do you know what that sounds like to a woman who stays at home? A free pass to Disneyland.

The home front has an entirely different set of time-wasters which I have listed below in no particular order.

Looking for my reading glasses. I spend an average of four hours a day trying to find my glasses so I can read labels, manuals, instructions, and recipes on how to save time.

Having a meaningful conversation with my husband. When the history of waste is written, having a conversation with a man who is comatose will go down as the most futile exercise of all time. Little teasers like, "What do you want for dinner?" "Why would Sgt. Miller, 13th precinct, be calling you?" "Dr. Foxfire wants to talk with you about your tests." "It only cost $450, but I figured you only live once," all fall on deaf ears.

Cleaning the bathroom. I am convinced nothing will ever come of this. Within minutes, yea, seconds, the tiles will bead up with moisture, hair will sprout in the drain and begin to grow, towels will fall to the floor, soap will turn to liquid, empty shampoo bottles will multiply, faucets will drip and toilets will run.

Packing school lunches. It's something to do while the kids are going through the dirty clothes hamper looking for their favorite underwear or writing a 500-word essay on "The Analysis of Inert Gases in the Earth in Relation to the Solar System," which was assigned the first day of school and is due today.

In an informal survey, only two percent of the lunches are ever eaten. A total of 18 percent are left on the sink, 27 percent are traded for gum, rubber snakes, pens, junk food or a large rubber band that when tied around your wrist turns your hand purple.

The other night I asked my husband, "How was your day?" He talked for 45 minutes and then asked, "What did you do all day?"

Thank goodness, we didn't waste time listening to one another's answer.

Continuing Health Care Gaps

There is reason to believe the supply of health care personnel has improved in North Carolina, almost certainly because of efforts to establish the ECU medical school, the development of the AHEC concept and other programs.

It would be a mistake, however, to be lulled into the belief that adequate health care is available to everybody in our state.

Just last week the Eastern Carolina Health Systems Agency announced that 19 Eastern North Carolina counties have been designated as primary medical and/or dental care manpower shortage areas. The designation was made by the Bureau of Health Manpower Analysis.

The counties so designated are: Beaufort, Bertie, Camden, Currituck, Dare, Duplin, Edgecombe, Gates, Greene, Halifax, Hyde, Hertford, Jones, Martin, Northampton, Onslow, Perquimans, Tyrrell and Washington.

The counties will be eligible for federal aid such as National Health Service Corps Workers, scholarships and loan repayments for health personnel.

We can see improvement in the numbers of physicians, nurses and health field professionals in the area. But in counties without population centers the personnel shortages still exist. We believe that as the various health programs instituted in North Carolina reach their potential these underserved counties will see better health care times.

Stand By, Fido, You Can Be Displaced

The Associated Press recently reported that mortgage loan money for new home loans was drastically tightened by the nation's new money policies.

One official said a $20,000 a year wage earner would qualify for a $12,000 loan, which would buy him a $14,000 house.

An extreme example? We hope so; otherwise a lot of dogs are going to be displaced by humans in search of something they can afford.

THIS AFTERNOON

The Counter-Revolution

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Fundamentalists Christians in North Carolina flexed their muscles over state regulation of private schools.

It felt good. They won grudging recognition as a power structure from the political leadership of the state; they won national attention; and they won an end of governmental supervision and regulation of their schools.

Above all, they won a newly-awakened sense of being able to take a direct hand and voice in deciding the actions of government.

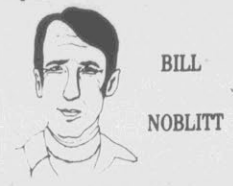

There is now a strong recognition among knowledgeable and perceptive state officials — both elected and in the bureaucracy — that the story does not end here; that a long-silent majority whose preoccupation with church and soul kept them apart from the reality of the political arena have now gird up their loins to do battle as Christian Soldiers.

"This is the most significant event in the state's political history ... and few people are even aware of its happening," a veteran state official confided. "It is going to change the way things are done in North Carolina."

Revolution

This official has seen the phenomenon from the inside. It is characterized by him as a counter-revolutionary movement by Fundamentalists against what they perceive as a Communist-inspired, atheistic Humanist attempt to destroy this nation.

The rallying cry is the "Humanist Manifesto" which Fundamentalists charge sets forth the basic assault lines: destroy the home and the authority of parents; push governmental programs which destroy individual freedom; teach man as nothing more than a combination of chemicals formed into an animal and not born in the image of God; tout sex as a natural, unrestricted thing with free abortions to take care of the unwanted consequences; let permissiveness reign in behavior of children and adults; demand absolute separation of church and state to the point that prayer is not allowed in school or any other public place, religious holidays are ignored, secularized, and government falls away from moral principles.

"It is just now beginning. We have a five-year history of involvement and success in the school situation. We have learned that government as a whole wants to structure us and change us and control us out of existence. This is an assault upon the very foundations of our society — the home and the family," Carr says.

"There is a silent majority which has been quiet for too long. It will no longer be quiet. We have a Constitutional privilege — even a Christian duty — to get involved. We have lost sight of Government of the People.... we are the People."

Government, both at federal and state levels, is adopting the Humanist Manifesto in law, but even more so through agency actions determined by individuals who espouse the Humanist Manifesto, Carr believes.

Two chief targets in North Carolina appear to be in the sights of the Fundamentalist reformation: the General Assembly and the public schools.

To the editor:

Musically speaking — it was like a broken record. There they were again, the J. H. Rose High School Band, stranded along a highway in decrepit equipment that refused to function.

I wish I could remember the number of times over the years that my husband and the band have experienced similar situations. Getting home in the wee, small hours of the morning, from an away football game because of a bus breakdown; limping home from a band contest with a bus held together with a coat hanger; as a chaperone, watching with heart in mouth as a bus carrying students goes sideways down a highway — praying that it would get to Greenville before it ran off the road.

Does no one care? Is there anyone in this town who really cares about these not uncommon occurrences affecting school children? Whom do we go to? To the County Commissioners, the School Board, the City School Administration? Articles have appeared in the Reflector from time to time, but results seem non-existent.

On Saturday last, after frantic phone calls, the stranded band kids found someone who cared — Mayor Percy Cox! He said he would get a bus to them, and he did! The fact that it arrived too late to get the band to Virginia for the band competition was not his fault. At least it was a relief to Jim and the chaperones to have a means to get the students back home safely. The entire band, band director and chaperones sincerely thank Mr. Cox for his concern.

But what do we do in the future for these students? For these are your kids and mine. There must be an answer somewhere.

'Revolt' Against Wastes

By RONNIE LOVLER

Associated Press Writer

BARNWELL, S.C. (AP) — In a recent motion picture, a television newscaster told his audience he was "mad as hell" and he wasn't "going to take it anymore."

Now the government of South Carolina is saying the same thing about the state's dubious distinction of being the recipient of 85 percent of the low-level nuclear waste generated in the United States.

The state is angry about what one official calls "an untenable situation" and is serving notice to the rest of the country that South Carolina's days as a national nuclear waste dump are numbered.

The state will "significantly" reduce the amount of low-level radioactive wastes allowed into the state for burial at the privately operated, 240-acre site in Barnwell, S.C., by the end of the year, says one of Gov. Dick Riley's aides.

"The method by which we do it is still up in the air, but there is no question the volume of waste will be significantly reduced," says David Reid, executive assistant to Riley on energy and environmental matters.

The Barnwell facility, operated by Chem Nuclear Services Inc., is the only commercial waste handler east of the Mississippi River. It now receives 2.4 million cubic feet of low-level radioactive waste annually. Riley would like to see that figure halved.

"I am attempting to develop my own timetable and procedure for correcting what I think is an unfair situation," Riley said.

Family Heirs Looted

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — Time is running out for Congress to correct one of the worst provisions ever written into tax law. This is known technically as "the carryover basis rule of estate taxation." It is utterly destructive of ancient values.

Bear with me on this matter, for tax law is not easily explained. The carryover rule that will become effective Jan. 1, unless Congress acts swiftly to suspend or repeal it, would produce billions of dollars in windfall revenues for the federal government. That is not the main purpose of the rule. The main purpose is to reorder American family life by making it unbearably expensive to hand down property, such as a family farm or an antique table, from one generation to another.

Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts is the principal author of the carryover rule. The senator has an obsession with what he calls "tax expenditures." This bizarre perception rests in the proposition that the government has a claim upon our total personal income. When the government takes $2,000 in taxes from a person earning $15,000, the $2,000 is a tax receipt. But when the government lets this person deduct the interest on his home mortgage, the tax that otherwise would have been collected is a tax expenditure. In the familiar word, the interest deduction is a "loophole."

Three years ago, when Congress was working on the Tax Reform Act of 1976, Mr. Kennedy set out to close "the tax loophole of death." By agreement reached in conference committee and not greatly noticed at the time, the act included a drastically modified carryover rule. When the impact of the change became more widely understood, a public outcry developed. Congress voted last year to delay the imposition of the rule until Jan. 1, 1980. We are nearing the deadline and Congress will be sitting for another month only.

To understand the consequences of the rule, consider the hypothetical case of a small farmer, John Apple, and his son William. John had inherited the land from his father, added on to the property and greatly improved it. At John's death in 1972, the farm has a value of $90,000. William has to sell a third of the land in order to pay estate taxes at the time. In 1975, William decides to sell the remainder; meanwhile its value has increased from $60,000 to $70,000. Under the old rule, William would have paid a capital gains tax on the increase only from the time of his inheritance to the time of sale.

Under the new rule, behold what happens: If our hypothetical John Apple should die next year, and the same chain of events should occur, his son William would pay a capital gains tax on the increase in value from the time John himself inherited

THE GALLUP POLL

Reflects Papal Success

By George Gallup

PRINCETON, N.J. — Pope John Paul II has received one of the highest ratings for personal popularity of any individual tested in the 28 years measurements have been made by the Gallup Poll.

One appraisal of the success of the pope's recent visit to the U.S. can be found in first returns from a survey completed last Sunday, when his tour ended. In this survey, 60 percent of the public gave John Paul II a "highly favorable" rating, topping the 48 percent figure recorded in mid-September, prior to the pontiff's visit. His overall favorable rating was 80 percent before the trip began and 86 percent at its conclusion.

John Paul II's popularity ratings are exceeded only by those accorded Presidents Dwight Eisenhower and John Kennedy at the peak of their political careers. In January 1957, shortly after he was elected to his second term, Eisenhower was given a highly favorable rating by 72 percent of the public. President Kennedy earned the same accolade from 62 percent of Americans in January 1962. Overall favorable ratings for the two men were 90 and 89 percent, respectively.

By way of comparison with recently-rated personalities, Sen. Edward Kennedy and President Jimmy Carter earned highly favorable ratings of 39 and 20 percent from the public in the mid-September survey.

Highly favorable ratings include the top two positions (plus five and plus four) on a 10-point attitude scale, while overall favorable ratings include all the positive positions on the scale.

Impact Of Papal Visit Analyzed

In a companion survey question, the Gallup Poll also sought to determine what, in the eyes of the public, John Paul II's visit will achieve.

The survey findings indicate that the overriding message the pope left with the American people is one of unity — a spirit of "drawing together" that embraces not only Roman Catholics but Americans of other religious persuasions and includes people who have few religious convictions at all. The public's reaction to the pope's visit also suggests that he created an immense aura of goodwill and understanding among the people.

Other specific themes that were frequently voiced by survey respondents include the following:

- *That the pope advanced the cause of world peace;
- *That he created a new awareness of religion or re-awakened people's interest in religious ideas;
- *That he gave new hope and faith to the people;
- *That John Paul II exhibited moral and leadership qualities that serve as a role model, to be emulated by many;
- *That his example will be particularly effective in building faith in young people throughout the nation.

In addition to these specific attitudes, a recurring undertone in the public's assessment of the pope's U.S. tour is that it was, in general terms, good for the American people and that watching him simply made people feel good.

There were some negative perceptions of what the pope's visit accomplished.

It is becoming increasingly apparent that the ability of the Greenville City School System to deliver adequate and safe educational service to the children of Greenville is rapidly deteriorating.

On Saturday, October 13, a long awaited and well rehearsed contest trip of the Rose High School Band to Chesapeake, Va. was aborted in Oak City because of a faulty clutch in one of the City Schools' miserable activity buses.

After several hours of hanging around a service station, aid was finally secured in safely returning the band students to Greenville. No thanks, however, to the officials of the Greenville City Schools.

Had it not been for the ingenuity of one band student who called Mayor Cox, who in turn secured the services of the Greenville Area Transit System, our students might still be waiting at that service station in Oak City.

As a band parent, I was involved in that disappointing excursion to Oak City. I hope it doesn't happen again. It is obvious, however, with conditions as they are now, future breakdowns are inevitable. Perhaps the officials of the city schools should provide at least some contingency plan that will legally and safely return our students to Greenville.

In 1903, Thomas Jarvis in describing the deplorable conditions of the old male academy building literally shamed the people of Greenville into voting bonds for a graded school. The success of that vote marked the beginning of the Greenville City School System.

We are now in a new era and the Greenville City School System is beginning to look as outmoded and dilapidated as that old academy building did in 1903. Perhaps we need another Thomas Jarvis to shame all of us into taking a fresh look at the merger of the County and City schools.

A Dread History May Repeat

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — There is a foreboding, an angst that clings like a dank odor, and is summed up in a single question that people may be afraid to ask even themselves: Will history repeat itself?

For those who went through the October 1929 stock market collapse and the Great Depression of the 1930s, the memories are being revived. For those born since, the imagination is being roused almost as vividly.

The thoughts accompany them to work, to football games. Worries reveal themselves in barroom arguments. A number of people actually are heeding the advice of alarmists to stash away canned goods.

America is observing the 50th anniversary in a way that it seldom does for its great defeats, and the defeat of its economic system was at least as destructive as a huge military loss. It cannot forget.

Newspapers are filled with recollections, with comparisons between then and now, with assurances, warnings and forecasts. Evangelists of survival have made the best-seller lists. No depression for them.

What about the question? To begin with, we are assured that things today are not as they were in 1929.

Stock market credit, for example, is more restrictive; since 1974, a buyer must put up at least 50 percent of the purchase price. In the 1920s some buyers pyramided tiny investments into huge portfolios.

You can't do that today, say the optimists. But others continue to see similarities. Julian Snyder, publisher of "International Moneyline," an economic newsletter, suggests we have merely changed credit styles.

"Today, you can do the same thing (speculate) with the recently introduced put and call options, and you can buy a $1 million Treasury Bill futures contract in Chicago for as little as $800."

Besides, Snyder observes, stock debt is but a part of the picture. Industrial countries are borrowing billions to finance energy imports. And advanced nations, such as the United States, are lending billions to less developed nations — money that might never be repaid.

Housing debt is also a bigger factor today than in the 1920s. Until recently, it was possible to borrow 90 percent of the purchase price, and pay the rest over 30 years at less than the prime interest rate.

Those who publicly promise that history won't repeat itself probably have left themselves a private mental hedge, it being that history won't repeat itself in precisely the manner of five decades ago.

That, however, leaves much unsaid, and that area if filled with speculation by the those who believe economies fluctuate in 50-year waves. The latest crest, they warn, is about to smash on the rocks.

But the only fully truthful statement that can be made about the whole mess, and economists general concede that the world economy is in a mess, is that nobody knows what the future holds.

Strength For Today

AS FOR ME AND MY HOUSE, WE WILL SERVE

One of the great moments in Old Testament history occurred in the last days of the life of Joshua, the great leader who brought the Israelites into the promised land. Knowing that his end was near, Joshua called the people together and bade them choose between Jehovah and the heathen gods, concluding his challenge with the ringing words, "But as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

Many Christians today publicly acknowledge God when they join a church, and promise, at the baptism of their children, to train them in the worship of God. But a large number of these people neglect religion in the home. How many parents can say, as their children are growing up, "As for me and my house..."?

Few people are privileged to carry Christianity abroad as missionaries, but all parents have it within their power to make the worship of God the foundation of their homes and their children's lives.

the land, perhaps 30 years earlier. In a time of vastly inflated property values, the effect would be virtual confiscation.

This example is oversimplified. The Kennedy carryover provision contains some complicated adjustments for appreciation prior to Jan. 1, 1977, for death taxes paid on such appreciation and so on. But the thrust and the purpose of the rule are clear. The new rule makes a drastic change in tax law, and it will enormously complicate the distribution of property after death.

Gallup Poll ...

with most of those so inclined saying his speeches and sermons achieved nothing. There was also isolated criticism of his visit as a violation of the constitutional separation of church and state principle.

Surprisingly, few survey participants expressed disappointment with the pope's reaffirmation of his church's orthodox views on birth control, celibacy for priests and denial of the priesthood for women.

Here is a sampling of comments that illustrate the public's attitudes toward the pope and the legacy of his U.S. tour:

"It caused a peaceful feeling among people and will cause them to think about helping one another." — 52-year-old housewife from Springfield, N.J.

"He'll cause politicians to give serious thought to human rights." — 46-year-old businessman from Blue Earth, Minn.

"His visit will encourage people to get along despite their differences. People of all religions will learn to live in peace." — 59-year-old manager from Frontenac, Mo.

And on the negative side:
"(His visit will achieve) nothing. I don't think any religious occasion will influence the internal affairs of the U.S." — 34-year-old lawyer from South Bend, Ind.
"It's a big publicity stunt for the Catholic church." — 25-year-old student from Daytona Beach, Fla.

Following are the questions asked:
"You will notice that the boxes on this card go from the HIGHEST POSITION OF PLUS 5 — for someone you like very much — all the way down to the LOWEST POSITION OF MINUS 5 — for someone you dislike very much. How far up the scale or how far down the scale would you rate Pope John Paul II?"
"As you know, Pope John Paul II is visiting the United States. What, in your opinion, will his visit achieve?"

The results reported today are based on in-person interviews with 459 adults, 18 and older, during the period September 28-30.

Even though he is "convinced the nation will have to rely on nuclear power in the future," the president of Virginia Electric & Power Co. says two nuclear units under construction may be converted to coal.

Stanley Ragone told a news conference Monday a decision on whether to convert units 3 and 4 at Vepco's North Anna plant will depend on the results of a study which may take from six months to a year. Although approximately $480 million already has been spent on construction of the two units, which are about 10 percent complete, Ragone said "practically all of which has been built could be used in a coal station."

Ragone said "there is no doubt in my mind that with a proper national policy, nuclear is the way to go." But he said "it's pretty obvious the government right now is not content with the nuclear power option."

He also cited the doubt of a national nuclear commitment created by the accident at the Three Mile Island plant in Pennsylvania and the sharp increase in construction costs of nuclear plants.

Regulatory requirements may make nuclear plants too expensive to build and operate even though coal costs three times as much as nuclear energy to produce the same amount of power, Ragone said.

Fred Millar, a spokesman for the anti-nuclear Potomac Alliance, said he was not surprised at Vepco's decision.

For several years, company officials have "had great doubts whether North Anna 3 and 4 would ever come into production...I'd be just surprised if North Anna 3 and 4 were built as if a white elephant flew over Richmond."

Millar said. "This is typically one of Vepco's very belated acknowledgments of reality," he added.

As recently as last month, another utility serving Virginia announced it was backing away from plans for nuclear power.

American Electric Power Co. said in September it was suspending its study of the possibility of building a nuclear plant in central Virginia for Appalachian Power Co., its subsidiary which serves the southwest part of the state.

It also cited the uncertainties in the NRC's licensing of plants, the possibility of restrictive legislation by Congress and possible requirements that might grow out of the Three Mile Island accident.

Vepco felt it had to study the conversion possibility at North Anna because it did not want to be accused in the future of not looking into all its options, Ragone said.

"We don't want to be second-guessed," he added. But Ragone insisted "we're very sincere about this study" when he was asked whether it meant he company was undertaking the study as a public relations tactic.

Vepco has four completed nuclear units, two at North Anna in central Virginia and two at Surry in the Tidewater area, but none is now in operation.

The No. 1 unit at Surry is near the end of tests ordered by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to determine whether it can withstand safely severe earthquake stress. Surry No. 2 is scheduled to go on line in January after repairs to its steam generators.

North Anna No. 1, taken off line earlier this month for fuel replacement, is expected to be out of service about three months. Licensing of North Anna No. 2 has been held up by the NRC as a result of the Three Mile Island accident.

"Rather than seeing to it that these units get into service, the government seems to be trying to find as many ways as possible to keep them out of service," Ragone said.

Vepco canceled in 1977 two of the four units at its Surry station at a loss of $164.5 million, which now is being passed along to its customers over a 10-year period.

Ragone declined to say how much of the $480 million already spent on North Anna 3 and 4 could be salvaged if they are converted to coal.

"That's one of the things the study should show us," he said. A decision to convert the two units should not materially affect Vepco's timetable of having the additional generating units in operation in 1986 and 1987, Ragone said.

He said the coal-fired units would have a slightly greater generating capacity than the nuclear units they would replace.

A major consideration will be how to dispose of the millions of tons of ash that are the waste product of coal generation, he said.

While many people feel the disposal of spent nuclear fuel is a major problem, Ragone said they fail to realize the environmental problems of coal ash disposal.

'Earplay' Budget Has Tripled

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Karl Schmidt began producing "Earplay" for National Public Radio in 1971 with $150,000. His biggest concern, at first, was not money, and that's unusual for public broadcasting.

"In early days, we were turning money down because we didn't feel we had connections with playwrights whose work was well-enough known," says the man who will provide NPR with 26 hour-long dramatic productions for broadcast in the 1980 season.

Schmidt's budget for "earplay" has more than tripled since that first year — it was $493,000 for last season and the development of the program, both creatively and technically has been even more impressive.

"We began with a kind of philosophy that there was no tradition for listening to the radio play in this country, that people listen to the radio while doing other things, or while they are mobile," Schmidt says.

"So we started with stuff that ranged in length from three minutes to 15 minutes. We would announce: 'A radio play in six minutes, or whatever it was.' We felt the listener could stop whenever he or she was doing for that long.

"We did a couple of years of the short stuff," he says, "and that was useful for little fables, or vignettes. In 1973, we went to an hour, and that's where we are now."

Seventeen of the 26 "Earplay" productions to be broadcast by stations in the NPR network in 1980 will be original works, while nine will be adaptations.

The "Earplay" season begins in January, and NPR estimates about 90 percent of its stations carry the plays.

Schmidt and his staff has developed an exchange program with regional theaters in this country and has opened an exchange program with the British Broadcasting Corp.

The schedule for 1980 will include plays from the Eugene O'Neill Playwright's Conference, the Louisville Regional Theater's new play festival, the Dallas Theater Center's "Playmarket '79," New York's Phoenix Theater, the Guthrie Theater in Minneapolis, the Mark Taper Forum in Los Angeles and the Performance Community in Chicago.

Also in the new season, "Earplay" will acquire 14 produc-

The Governor's Music Is No Laughing Matter

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
GREENVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Liberate and Henry Mancini have a potential rival on the piano. He's a sought-after soloist and has friends in high places.

Gov. Lamar Alexander is the latest musician to emerge from the crowded cluster of pickers and grinders in Nashville. He plays the trombone, sousaphone and washboard, but the piano is his forte.

And they don't laugh when he sits down to play. He's good.

The 39-year-old Republican was guest piano soloist for the Nashville Symphony in May and played "Amazing Grace" at a Billy Graham crusade later in the summer. After testing those waters, he played with the Greenville YMCA Orchestra and began planning additional public concerts.

He's got a $5,000, six-foot mahogany Steinway in the living room of the Governor's Mansion where he plays "an hour or two" a week. He entertained one night for country music stars Roy Acuff, Tom T. Hall and Larry Gatlin.

"I like any beautiful melodies," he said on a flight to Greenville to perform earlier this month. "I like to demonstrate that Chopin and Hank Williams wrote similar melodies."

Playing is a release for him because it's no political football.

"It has nothing to do with politics and government. It has a lot to do with your inner self and spirit," he explained.

Alexander, who walked 1,000 miles across Tennessee to win election last year, practiced piano for an hour a day from age 5 to 17. He turned down college music scholarships to pursue a law career.

But music remained a part of his life while his political instincts developed.

While a law clerk in New Orleans, he made $400 a month playing ragtime music at "Your Father's Moustache," a nightclub — $100 more a month than he earned as a law clerk. One night the entire 5th Circuit of the U.S. Court of Appeals gathered to hear him play.

During last year's campaign, a lively four-member band, "Alexander's Washboard Band," accompanied him on his cross-state walk. While other politicians were off kissing babies, Alexander pitched in and played with the band.

After his concert in Greenville, he said he's being asked to play publicly because of his political position, not necessarily his musical ability.

"I just play a little better than governors are supposed to play," he said. "I wouldn't be asked to do this if I wasn't governor."

Baryshnikov Quits Company

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Soviet ballet star Mikhail Baryshnikov, citing severe injuries including tendonitis, has unexpectedly resigned from the New York City Ballet.

Baryshnikov, 31, had said he planned to remain with the ballet company for another year before becoming artistic director of the American Ballet Theater on Sept. 1.

But Baryshnikov said Monday that his doctor had advised him to take a few months' rest, and that he was looking forward to "at least three or four months without any obligation or commitment to dance with any company."

Baryshnikov, who spent 15 months with the City Ballet, denied he had been unhappy with the company. He said he disagreed with those critics who said he had not adapted to the City Ballet style.

"I was very happy with City Ballet and it is a painful decision for me," he said.

Says Jagger Led A Suitcase Life

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bianca Jagger says her estranged husband Mick Jagger lived "out of a suitcase in his nomadic journey in his quest to avoid income taxes" and has asked the California Supreme Court to settle on Los Angeles as the site for the couple's divorce action.

In documents filed Monday, Mrs. Jagger asked the court to overturn a state Court of Appeal ruling that Los Angeles was not a proper forum for her divorce action against the international rock star.

The Jagers were married in France in 1971 and separated in 1977.

After a divorce suit she filed in England was delayed by legal maneuvering, she filed for dissolution of the marriage Feb. 5 in Los Angeles Superior Court.

Jagger, a native of England, contends California courts are not a convenient forum. If successful, he may be able to keep some of his millions which would become hers under California's community property laws.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, OCT. 17, 1979

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are apt to find that only through some unexpected circumstances will you be able to achieve much. Be careful to note correctly whatever is happening and then to doublecheck since some very confusing influences are about.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You are able to get the data now early and unexpectedly that will be most useful to you. A loved one could use unusual ploys to gain a favor.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Accept an invitation extended to you and have a good time. Take care that you are not extravagant, however. Avoid a known gossip.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A little duty that may arise suddenly should be handled quickly. It will help to get you out of a tense situation. Relax tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Meet with a good friend and have a good time. Catch up on work you have to do later and be efficient.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Plan to have more security in the future and be clever in handling finances. Make needed repairs. Don't let others waste your time foolishly.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) An interesting personality may come into your life who can help you to gain your finest aims. Cultivate this person in the evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A loved one may desire more affection from you, so be sure to comply. Show that you are loyal, also. Listen to suggestions of a co-worker.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Try to understand what is expected of you by partners and friends and make an effort to please. Don't argue with others and avoid trouble.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Follow the instructions of a bigwig and you benefit. Be clever in handling credit affairs. Take no risks with your reputation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make sure new ideas are workable before you put them in operation. Your intuition is not working well, so use only good judgment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A co-worker is out of sorts but take it in your stride. Be understanding instead of criticizing. Take care of important correspondence.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Partners are apt to be testing you a good deal, so be careful in conversations. A situation arises that needs diplomatic handling.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be able to get at the core and detail of any project and should be given as fine an education as possible. A good chart for medical, pharmaceutical professions, whether male or female. Careful discipline here.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Princess Hunts Opera Money

HOUSTON (AP)—Princess Margaret is in this bustling city to help raise money for the Royal Opera House of England, but so far she hasn't said much.

She made no comment Monday when she arrived at her hotel in a bright red dress, accepted a welcome and, under the glare of television lights and the flashes of still cameras, hurried to an elevator.

Margaret plans to tour the Johnson Space Center and the city's famed medical center. She hopes to raise at least $4.5 million during visits to Chicago, Los Angeles, San Francisco, and Cleveland.

Chicago Mayor 'For' Carter

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP)—President Carter is leading Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, at least for the moment, in a race for the political affections of Chicago's Democratic mayor, Jane Byrne.

Introducing Carter at what was billed as the largest political dinner in Chicago history, Mrs. Byrne gave Carter her support Monday night for a second term.

The mayor spoke to a claimed audience of 12,000 a few hours after receiving a telegram from Kennedy, Carter's likely rival for the 1980 presidential nomination, which said, "just remember that I have known you and loved you and Chicago longer...."

After hailing Carter as "the savior of the nation's big cities," Mrs. Byrne stole the show from her guest from Washington by declaring:

"I do not think we can afford a national intra-party blood bath at this critical time. The times call for unity and discipline."

"It'll be at our peril to flout the national political tradition that an incumbent deserves a second term upon reasonable performance and dedication to the national welfare."

After that statement drew a mixed reaction from the crowd of diners, Mrs. Byrne added that it would be "presumptuous and premature" for her to endorse Carter now. But she quickly added that if she were voting at the moment as a delegate to the Democratic National Convention, she would support Carter "without hesitancy."

The mayor departed from her prepared text to add, "I hope you are listening."

When it was Carter's turn to speak, the president recited a long list of federal grants and other programs benefiting Chicago. Then he made an indirect reference to the 1980 campaign, saying: "As a Democrat and as president, I'm not afraid; in fact, I look forward to tough political fights, and with your help we will not lose those fights ahead."

Chicago was the second and final stop on a two-day Carter tour that began in Kansas City, Mo., with an appearance at the National Conference of Catholic Charities.

Before returning to the White House today, the president was heading for suburban Dolton and an hour-long town meeting with citizens at a local high school.

Kennedy's telegram to Mrs. Byrne ostensibly was prompted by a luncheon the mayor attended Monday to salute neighborhood programs.

"I admire the leadership you have provided in promoting neighborhood strength," the Massachusetts Democrat wired Mrs. Byrne. "And just remember that I have known you and loved you and Chicago longer...."

Mrs. Byrne cautioned against inferring too much from the telegram but said she thought it was a nice gesture. "No one can change the fact that I know Teddy. He's like a friend and I think it's very nice of him."

Beach Assault Delayed For TV Camera Crews

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Military officials have delayed a scheduled beach assault Wednesday at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, — in part to make it easier for television crews to cover the landing.

More than 1,700 Marines from North Carolina bases were to make the landing at dawn Wednesday. Organizers in the department of the Joint Chiefs of Staff have changed the assault time to 8:30 a.m. the same morning.

Military officials have delayed a scheduled beach assault at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, — in part to make it easier for television crews to cover the landing.

More than 1,700 Marines from North Carolina bases were to make the landing at dawn. Organizers in the department of the Joint Chiefs of Staff have changed the assault time to 8:30 a.m.

Military officials said the time change would give TV cameras additional light and would keep Marines from hurting themselves while getting into boats in the dark.

Marines from three Navy ships will be sent ashore to simulate the reinforcement of the 420 Marines already at the military base on Cuba.

President Carter ordered the maneuvers in response to reports that Soviet troops are training in Cuba. There is a dual purpose for the drills — to demonstrate that the United States can defend its possessions and to drill the Marines and Navy.

To demonstrate American power, special arrangements have been made to help get the news out.

Navy and Air Force spokesmen from Norfolk and Washington are telling reporters when they can see the assault, although the day of the landing is supposed to be secret.

It was also considered a military secret that the Marines were loading the troops onto ships last Wednesday in Morehead City, but Navy public relations officers disclosed the date without prompting.

Military personnel from Washington; Norfolk; Jacksonville, Fla.; and Jacksonville, N.C., are rushing to get reporters into Guantanamo, brief them, show them the exercise, then get them out and to telephones in time to make deadlines. The arrangements have been altered at least four times in the past five days.

Another problem arose when the Navy base at Guantanamo went from Daylight Saving Time, which most of the country is still on, to Eastern Standard Time last weekend.

The change means a one hour time difference between Guantanamo and the East Coast and one less hour for the reporters to write their stories. The military solved that problem by deciding to fly the reporters to Jacksonville, Fla., shortly after the exercise ends.

Depression

MIAMI (AP) — A tropical depression in the Caribbean south of Cuba appears to have drifted toward the northwest during the night and is expected to move slowly toward the northwest or north today.

Forecasters at the National Hurricane Center in Miami said the depression has winds of 30 mph and is not expected to get much stronger today.

They had said earlier that the depression was drifting towards the northeast and that it might strengthen during the day.

At 6 a.m. EDT, the depression was centered about 150 miles southwest of Cuba's Isle of Pines.

Foreigners 'Out Front'

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — It may be called the American Cup International Hang Gliding Team Championship but competitors from abroad have the upper hand.

The Australian team is in front entering today's fourth day of competition. Australia and Great Britain totaled 69 points each Monday, while the United States scored 67 and Canada 65. The four-way competition, being conducted off towering Lookout Mountain, ends Sunday.

Australia has 212 points overall to 210 for Great Britain, the defending champion from last year's inaugural event. Canada is third with 196 and the United States is bringing up the rear with 191.

Competition spokesman Ray Schall said winds again played havoc with the event, making it difficult for pilots to jump from the launch site, 1,400 feet above the landing area in neighboring Dade County, Ga. One member from each of the four teams competes in a heat and the four pilots are launched in sequence. Unsuitable winds forced cancellation of team competition Sunday.

The winning team captures the American Cup and $5,000 in cash. There are awards for individual excellence and spot landing, which involves touching down as close as possible to a marked bull's-eye.

Now Prepared To Talk With Shipyard Union

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP) — Having "stood up for what we thought was right," the president of Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co. says the yard expects to begin contract talks within a month with the United Steelworkers of America.

Edward J. Campbell said Monday "I don't regret those decisions" — a legal fight which led the Steelworkers to call a 12-week strike earlier this year by the shipyard's 15,500 blue-collar workers for which it has been certified as bargaining agent.

But Campbell said last week's decision by the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals which upheld the Steelworkers as representatives for workers at Virginia's largest private employer "closed the matter as far as I'm concerned."

The shipyard had refused to recognize the victory of the Steelworkers over the independent Peninsula Shipbuilders Association in a bargaining election Jan. 31, 1978. This led to the strike which began exactly a year later and lasted three months.

Yard officials have contacted the Steelworkers' international headquarters in Pittsburgh about beginning contract talks with the blue-collar workers, Campbell said. He estimated they could begin in as little as three weeks.

Campbell reiterated his disappointment, however, over the fact the federal appeals court turned down the shipyard's position the bargaining election should have been overturned because of balloting irregularities.

"The court basically said the election wasn't flawed enough to affect its outcome. This was the first ruling we know of that the NLRB (National Labor Relations Board) and the court have refused to set aside an election when there were any flaws in the process," he said.

On another matter, Campbell said the shipyard and another Steelworkers local representing marine designers had agreed to suspend contract talks.

He said talks will resume after the NLRB decides whether an election is necessary to determine whether the designers still want to be represented by the Steelworkers. The NLRB will hold a fact-finding hearing Friday on the decertification move.

The designers union suspended a 28-month strike against the yard last month and a group of dissidents, Designers Committee to Decertify, has filed a petition with more than 400 signatures asking the NLRB to order an election to oust the Steelworkers.

"Whatever the outcome, we hope the NLRB will act expeditiously," Campbell said.

Correcting The Signal

City Engineer Ron Sewell said that the city is taking steps to correct the traffic signal malfunction at the intersection of Arlington Boulevard and Hooker Road.

Sewell, who said that "there has been much concern" about the signal problem, explained that some two months ago, the controller unit at the location was struck by lightning and extensive damage was sustained.

"We have corrected part of the problem, however, we are still waiting on a shipment of replacement parts from California," the city official reported. Sewell noted, "In the meantime, we have made arrangements with the supply company to borrow a similar controller until such time as ours can be repaired."

Sewell said that unless complications arise, "we hope to have this intersection back in operation by the end of the week."

He added, "We are very eager to return this intersection to its normal operation due to the large amount of traffic and the high potential accident characteristics of the intersection. We greatly appreciate the public's concern and their understanding as we try to deal with this situation."

Plan 2nd Play Production

GRIFTON — Plans are being made for a second production of the Grifton Community Players for a play sometime in late January.

Persons who would like to help in the play selection are asked to call Mrs. Fay Edwards, director, 524-5538, or Grifton Arts coordinator Mrd. Maxine Harker, 524-4681.

High Interest Stirs Anxiety

By GLENN RITT
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — In the nation's big cities and in its small towns, anxiety infects the economic environment, bankers say.

Surging interest rates spell frustration and uncertainty for young people seeking their first home, for farmers planning next season's harvest, for merchants anticipating Christmas, and for the elderly fearing a frigid winter and sky-high fuel bills.

"We're going to have real problems," says Ray Cline, of the Citizens State Bank in Hartford City, Ind. His statement strikes a responsive chord among a sampling of commercial and mortgage bankers interviewed across the country.

They are staring at a prime rate as high as 15 percent, prospects of an unprecedented 14 percent mortgage rate, and a shortfall of funds that make borrowing in many states all but impossible.

Some areas, such as Denver, Los Angeles, Houston, and Washington, D.C., — all with booming economies — should weather the tight-money storm better than most others, say these bankers.

Yet, even the nation's capital, considered recession-proof by many, will feel the pinch, says William Blomquist, senior vice president of Colonial Service Company, in nearby Rockville, Md. He describes a "tremendous slowdown" in home sales.

Like so many in his field, Blomquist won't — or can't — predict when interest rates will fall. Some bankers and home builders hope the credit crunch may ease by next summer.

"But, it's bound to get worse before it gets better," says Paul W. Styles, a Chicago mortgage banker.

Ass'n Prexy To Visit Facilities

Don Angell, president of the North Carolina Health Care Facilities Association, will visit two Greenville nursing homes on Wednesday.

Angell will visit Greenville Villa at 2:15 p.m. and University Nursing Center at 3:15 p.m. as part of a "Presidential Tour."

Angell, who will be accompanied by J. Craig Souza of Raleigh, NCHCFA executive director, plans to visit all 160 member facilities of the association across the state during his term of office.

The official said that the aim of the "Presidential Tour" is to "personally tell the people who work in each facility their efforts are important, their work is vital to the patients they care for, and their profession is an essential element of community health care for all ages."

George Dickel Tennessee sippin' whisky. Smooth as moonbeams.

"Tastin' is believin'."

—Merle Beatty, Store Owner, 1871

"I remember we were tryin' to tell this city feller that George Dickel's whisky tastes smooth 'cause it's made with clear, sweet springwater."

"And it's mellowed good and proper 'cause Ol' George gives his sour mash extra time to get into the flavor."

"Well, I could see this city feller wasn't much impressed with our jawin', so I stopped talkin' and started pourin'."

"One sip was all it took. Said he'd never tasted a finer Tennessee Sour Mash. Didn't surprise us none. 'Cause when it comes to George Dickel's whisky, tastin' is believin'."

Stock And Market Reports

Hogs
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) (NCDA) — The trend on the North Carolina hog market today steady. Poultry RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) (NCDA) — The North Carolina f.o.b. dock broiler market was steady. Supply moderate to heavy. Demand moderate. Weights desirable. The North Carolina dock weighted average price this week is 39.09 cents per pound for small purchases of plant-grade broilers picked up at processing plants. Estimated slaughter today was 1,604,000.

Hens
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) (NCDA) — The North Carolina hen market was steady. Supply fully adequate. Demand moderate. Prices paid per pound for hens over seven pounds, at farm, Monday and Tuesday slaughter, 12 cents, previous commitments, 11 cents.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, struggling to halt the slide that began more than a week ago, slipped a bit further today after an early rally faded.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up more than 4 points in early trading, was off 1.37 at 829.69 by noon. The average had fallen 66.53 points in the last six sessions.

Losers took a slight lead over gainers in the broad tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The early upswing was attributed mostly to technical forces within the market, and it faded quickly once traders saw that it wasn't attracting much support.

Analysts said investors were still unsettled by spiraling oil prices and tight credit conditions fostered by the Federal Reserve as an anti-inflation measure.

Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker said Monday that the recent surge in interest rates could reverse itself quickly if the economy slows.

Fleetwood Enterprises led the active list, off 1 at 7 1/2. A 559,000-share block traded at 7.

EMI climbed 1/2 to 2 1/2 in active trading on London from London that Thorn Electrical Industries Ltd. had made a merger offer for the company.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index lost .08 to 58.52. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down 1.22 at 207.92.

Volume on the Big Board came to 15.71 million shares after the first two hours.

MORNING WRECK SCENE — The intersection of N. C. Hwy. 11 and State Road 903 was the scene of an early morning wreck Tuesday. According to Patrolman Keith Gardner of the Winterville Police Department, a vehicle driven by Gregory Carawan of Winterville was headed east on 903, and advanced in the middle of NC 11, when the sun struck the driver's eyes. The Carawan vehicle then struck a car driven by Jack Marshburn of Jacksonville, which caused the Marshburn vehicle to go into a ditch. Both Marshburn and his wife, Denise, a passenger in the car, were reported in serious condition after being taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital. Members of the Winterville and Greenville Rescue Squads responded to the call. Carawan was charged with failure to see a safe movement before starting. (Reflector photo by Rebecca Buffaloe)

Charge Local Man In Assault

A Greenville dentist has been charged by the Pitt County Sheriff's Department with assault on a female with intent to commit rape in a 1:15 a.m. incident Saturday.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that Dr. Robert Frederick Cargill, 35, of Rt. 1, Box 461, Ayden, was arrested following the alleged assault at Hollybrook Estates, a mobile home park on NC 33 east of Greenville.

Sheriff Tyson said that the assault victim, a 24-year-old resident of Hollybrook Estates, told officers the assault took place following an argument. She reported that her clothes were torn in the assault.

According to the sheriff, some $900 in damages to the mobile home occupied by the victim were reported, including damages to a bed, mirror, picture, and jewelry, as well as the victim's clothing.

Cargill, who has an office at 608 E. Tenth Street here, was placed under $5,000 bond with a first appearance hearing scheduled for Oct. 19 in District Court in Greenville.

Party, Ceremonies Mark Retirement

Arthur S. Wayne, first sergeant with the 388th Supply Co. here, was honored by the unit Sunday on his retirement after some 31 years of active and reserve duty.

Wayne was cited during a dinner and recognition ceremony for the completion of five years of active duty, including 33 months of overseas service, and 26 years as a member of the local Reserve unit.

The Greenville unit presented a portrait of Wayne to the first sergeant during the ceremonies. Capt. Charles Smith, unit commander took part in the ceremonies.

Wayne entered active duty on Oct. 19 and served until Aug. 4, 1945. During his tenure, he served in North Africa, Sicily, Italy, France and Germany and served under General George Patton.

Wayne began his Reserve duty in September of 1953 and retired from the local unit on Oct. 1 of this year.

$7 Million For The Survivors

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has announced an initial U.S. pledge of $7 million to aid millions of starving, ailing Cambodians.

There is some question whether the money, to be used by international relief organizations for food and medicine, will benefit the needy in war-torn Cambodia. Government authorities have denied giving permission to the Red Cross and the United Nations Children's Fund to carry out relief programs. Carter is asking the Soviet Union and to China to help get the needed supplies to the people. So far, the United States, Britain, the Common Market, Japan and others have pledged about $28 million as part of a $100 million, six-month program of Cambodian aid.

Testing Of Gas Chamber

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Final testing of Nevada's gas chamber has begun in preparation for the Oct. 22 execution of confessed killer Jesse W. Bishop, who still says the agony of lengthy appeals and stays would be worse than death.

Nevada State Prison Superintendent Bob Lippold said Monday testing procedures for the gas chamber, which was most recently used in 1961, are confidential. Bishop's family has endorsed his decision not to appeal. If Bishop, 46, is executed, it will be the second execution in the nation this year. John Spinkelink was electrocuted in Florida last May over protests by death penalty opponents.

Obituary Column

Barnhill
 Funeral services for Mrs. Addie Lucille Barnhill, who died Thursday at her residence, 207-A New Street, will be held Wednesday at 2 p.m. at Flanagan Funeral Chapel by the Rev. David Hammond. Burial will be in Brown Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Barnhill was a Martin County native who spent her early life in the Parmele community. She had been a resident of Greenville for many years.

Surviving her are two sisters, Mrs. Johnnie Bell O'Neal of Greenville and Mrs. Willie Ray Williams of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Family visitation will be held tonight from 8 to 9 o'clock at the Flanagan Funeral Chapel.

Sets Up First Touchdown

New York Jets' Ron Crosby, left foreground, and Don Dykes, right foreground, pounce on the loose football to recover a Minnesota fumble in the first

Jets Use Seven Turnovers To Weld 14-7 Win Over Vikings

NEW YORK (AP) — Coach Bud Grant didn't come right out and say it, but the implication was clear: the officiating hurt the Minnesota Vikings Monday night almost as much as their seven turnovers did.

"I don't think the officials did a good job," Grant said after three fumbles and four interceptions helped the New York Jets post a 14-7 National Football League victory.

The biggest problem, he said, was that on the kickoff after Chuck Foreman's 1-yard touchdown run with 8:24 to play, Bruce Harper of New York fumbled and Robert Miller recovered for the Vikings.

"I never heard a whistle,"

Grant said. "There was no whistle. But they never called it a fumble."

Besides that, he said, "Ed Marion (the head linesman) was cursing at our bench. I'm sure it was a two-way street, but the officials are supposed to be above that. Sooner or later, you've got to come to grips with this problem."

Still, Grant couldn't deny that all the turnovers did in the Vikings, dropping them to 3-4 and keeping them two games behind first-place Tampa Bay in the National Conference's Central Division.

"We got a lot of yardage, but we didn't get many points," he said, reflecting on Tommy Kra-mer's 270 yards passing against the league's worst pass defense.

It was the brunt of the Minnesota offense. Kramer, a third-year pro in his first season as a starter, threw 48 passes — most of them short — and completed 28. The Vikings' running game was limited to 54 yards on 23 carries, with Ricky Young gaining 31 yards and Foreman just 13.

The Jets, meanwhile, ran the ball down Minnesota's throats. They gained 183 yards on 41 carries, 78 yards by Kevin Long and 54 by Clark Gaines. Richard Todd, the target of the fans' wrath for what they felt was his lack of leadership earlier this year, passed only 13 times — completing nine for 72 yards.

Todd scored New York's first touchdown on a 3-yard rollout just 4:56 into the game, five plays after Tim Moresco recovered punt returner Jimmy Edwards' fumble.

The winning points came with 5:15 left in the third period, when Kramer overthrew Foreman on a busted pass pattern and strong safety Shafer Suggs intercepted the ball and ran it back 32 yards for his first pro touchdown.

Foreman's touchdown, his 52nd as a Viking, tied Bill Brown's club record. It came at the end of a 73-yard, 18-play drive — aided immeasurably by one penalty.

That came when Donald Dykes ran into punter Greg Coleman to keep the drive alive. Eight days earlier, Dykes ran into Baltimore punter Bucky Dilts, costing the Jets a chance to beat the Colts in the closing minutes.

"With the score 14-0, I told them not to do that," said Coach Walt Michaels of the Jets. "But Donald wants to do it right and I can't condemn the kid for wanting to do it right."

John Candelaria against Baltimore veteran Jim Palmer.

Might Pittsburgh's convincing 7-1 victory Sunday take a little starch out of the Orioles? Garner doesn't think so.

"Baltimore impresses me as the kind of club that just doesn't seem to worry about things like that. I think they're going to play their same style — good, steady, solid baseball," Garner said.

"I think that's typified in their hitting. They've been impressive as hitters. When they are down in a ball game, they don't swing at bad pitches, they don't get overly aggressive, they don't try to do too much."

Game One, the numb-fingered Garner fielded a grounder with the bases full and threw the ball wildly past second base. The error scored the first two of Baltimore's five runs in that inning of the Series, and the Orioles held on to win 5-4.

Baltimore now leads 3-2 in games, but the Pirates are coming off a 7-1 victory Sunday in Pittsburgh that included a pair of key singles by Garner and a slick double play he triggered in the ninth inning.

On the series, Garner has nine hits in 18 times at bat and he leads the Pirates with five runs batted in.

"In the first two games, neither team played well because of the weather conditions, but Friday and Saturday we didn't play well," said Garner.

"We had a lot of hits go to waste. We just weren't getting timely hits. But we played Sunday like we played to get here."

Tonight, Pittsburgh will pitch

Alabama Takes First; State 15th; Heels Tumble To 19th Spot

By The Associated Press

Alabama's defending national champions have unseated Southern California atop The Associated Press college football rankings this week, but Bear Bryant, coach of the Crimson Tide, isn't ready to celebrate.

"I'm not concerned where we are right now," Bryant said Monday, after the new rankings were announced. "I would 10 times rather have our players healthy than be No. 1 right now. It is hard to enjoy being No. 1 under the circumstances."

Although Alabama clobbered Florida 40-0 last Saturday, the Crimson Tide did not emerge unscathed. Among the injured players about whom Bryant was worried were split end Keith Pugh, separated shoulder; offensive guard Mike Brock, hip pointer; defensive tackle Joe Beazley, knee; defensive line-man Warren Lyles, knee; running back Mitch Ferguson, hamstring; and defensive tackle Scott Homan, achilles tendon.

"I'm happy for our players," Bryant said, when told his team was ranked No. 1, "but nothing counts but next Saturday. We are just getting into the meat of our schedule and we are badly crippled."

The Crimson Tide, who face Tennessee in a Southeastern Conference battle Saturday, received 42 first-place votes and 1,332 of a possible 1,360 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Texas, which defeated Oklahoma 16-7, jumped from fourth to second with the remaining 26 first-place ballots and 1,313 points. Nebraska, a 42-0 winner over Kansas, climbed from fifth to third with 1,204 points.

Southern Cal, which had held the top spot since the pre-season, fell to fourth with 1,108 points after being tied by Stanford 21-21.

Southern Cal, Alabama, Oklahoma and Texas had occupied the first four places since the preseason poll, but Oklahoma dropped to eighth this week following its loss to the Longhorns.

Houston climbed from seventh to fifth with 1,011 points after edging Texas A&M 17-14. Also advancing two places were Ohio State, which moved up to sixth after a 47-6 rout of Indiana, and Florida State, which climbed to seventh following a 17-6 decision over Mississippi

State.

Oklahoma, Notre Dame and Arkansas completed the Top Ten, while the Second Ten consists of Michigan, Washington, Brigham Young, Auburn, North Carolina State, Purdue, Pittsburgh, Tennessee, North Carolina and Navy.

Pitt rejoins the Top Twenty after a three-week absence. Tennessee climbs back in after dropping out last week and Navy makes the list for the first time. Droppd from last week's rankings were LSU, a 21-14 loser to Georgia; Missouri, which lost to Oklahoma State 14-13, and Michigan State, which was beaten by Wisconsin 38-29.

Pirates Open Drills With 19

New basketball coach Dave Odom conducted his first practice session at East Carolina yesterday, putting 19 players, including six walk-ons through a two-hour drill.

Odom, an assistant at Wake Forest the past three seasons, oriented the squad to the practice routine during the initial session, installing the rudiments of offensive and defensive play as well as drills which he plans to use throughout the year.

"A day like we had today will help all the players and coaches to be able to use our practice time best during the rest of the year," said Odom. "Right now our squad is too large, but we are giving some walk-ons a chance to earn a spot."

"We'll probably scrimmage a lot the rest of the week and give the coaches a chance to see each of the players in different situations and combinations. Right now we want each player to know the role and potential for each position on the team. Of course, we stressed conditioning and always will."

The squad practiced for its opener without 6-11 center Al Tyson, a sophomore from Winterville who will not work out with the team until he meets academic requirements Odom has established for all players.

"This year we have established certain academic standards and our team has been most responsive to our thoughts. We are proud of their efforts. Although Al has made definite improvement, we feel that he should spend more of his time working toward meeting the academic expectations of the basketball program and the university."

"We will continue to work with Al very closely and when he reaches the agreed level of progress he will be welcome to begin workouts with our team."

The first game for the Pirates, a 12-15 team a year ago, will be in the Spider Classic, November 30 in Richmond, Va.

Contest Winners

Daniel Keel of Box 266, Bethel, captured first place in last week's "Daily Reflector" football contest.

Keel correctly picked the winners in 27 of the 32 games listed in the contest. His win, however, came on the basis of his point total guess. He recorded a guess of 86, just one off the 87 total scored in Auburn's 52-35 win over Vanderbilt.

Second place went to Janie Joyner of Box 414, West Second St., Robersonville, who also finished with 27 correct picks. She was further off the point total with her guess of 80.

Two other people also had 27 picks correctly made, but were further off in their point total guesses.

The next contest in the series appears on the following pages.

Garner Says Pirates Haven't Given It Up

BALTIMORE (AP) — Phil Garner's World Series started on a frigid night last week with a costly throwing error.

But the second baseman for the Pittsburgh Pirates has come on strong since then, and he takes a .500 series batting average and a determined attitude into Game Six tonight with the Baltimore Orioles.

"Baltimore isn't going to give us anything. We've got our work cut out for us. But we're going after them," Garner said in Pittsburgh Monday before the Pirates flew here.

For the business owner who hasn't got all day to talk about insurance...

Etna Business Owners Policy Can Save Your Day!

Etna's Business Owners Policy can trim what used to be a whole day's discussion down to a few minutes. Why? Because it's so simple.

Instead of a mountain of forms to fill out, there's only one. Instead of a lot of questions to answer, there are only a few. And instead of hours to give you a quote, it takes minutes.

Yet you get the Premises Liability and Property protection your business needs. Perhaps more than you're getting now. And maybe for less money. What's more, it can help you manage your cash flow better because you can pay monthly, quarterly or annually with our customer-oriented payment plan. We know you haven't got all day to talk about insurance. So give us a call. In just a few short minutes we may be able to save you a lot more than time.

Think Positive. Think Etna. Think...

DUNKEL COLLEGE FOOTBALL INDEX

EXPLANATION - The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

Series Managers Show Opposite Faces

Dantley Shoots

BALTIMORE (AP) — The 1979 World Series winner still is in doubt, but one thing is obvious: the diametrically opposite personalities and baseball psychology of the two men pulling the strings from the bench.

Earl Weaver, manager of the American League champion Baltimore Orioles, is an unorthodox strategist, detached from his players, subtly sarcastic, supremely confident. He's patient, waits for the opposition to make a mistake.

Chuck Tanner, field boss of the National League Pittsburgh Pirates, is a perennial optimist. He must have been born with a smile frozen on his face. He rarely criticizes his players. He manages by the book. He's one of the boys among his players.

At the moment, Weaver has the edge. His Orioles lead the Series 3-2 with the sixth game scheduled for Baltimore's Memorial Stadium tonight, a seventh here Wednesday if necessary. The opposing pitchers in Game Six are Jim Palmer for Baltimore and John Candelaria for Pittsburgh.

Weaver, who got his first major league managerial job with the Orioles in 1968, has the credentials to back his approach to the game. He has won five American League pennants, six East Division titles and one World Series. He has been first or second 10 times in 12 seasons.

Tanner began managing with the Chicago White Sox in 1971, after an apprenticeship in the minors and a 17-year playing career, including stints with Milwaukee, the Chicago Cubs, Cleveland and the California Angels. He held the White Sox job through 1975, then taking over the Oakland A's for one season.

The Pirates traded catcher Manny Sanguillen and $100,000 to the A's to obtain Tanner as their manager in one of baseball's more unusual deals. This year he won his first National League title. Now, he's faced with coming back from a 3-1 deficit in a World Series, a feat accomplished in a seven-game Series by just three teams.

Tanner talks about momentum and playing the game by the book. He brags that he has the best 25-man roster in baseball. He preaches togetherness as an ingredient in winning. He works on the emotional factor, not too high when you win, not too low when you lose. During the game he's a stoic.

Tanner is the master of the cliché. He talks about no tomorrow, backs to the wall, the will of the man upstairs, never quit, win one game at a time, etc. His office, even before a World Series game, is open to friends. They bring him wine and chickens. He rewards them with Pirates' hats, a cheerful welcome and don't forget to come back goodbye.

Weaver has that salty rather than country boy approach. He's all business before a game. His office is entered by coaches, maybe some players, people concerned with the game. They talk about the job at hand.

Weaver posts the lineup, then takes complete control of the game. He's as nervous as a cat chased by a big dog. Sometimes in crucial situations he covers his eyes or walks in the tunnel leading to the clubhouse.

Playing by the percentages is another way these field bosses differ. The book is Tanner's credo. Weaver laughs at it.

"I never read the book," Weaver said earlier in the Series. "It's people's judgment what the book should be. I do what I think is the logical thing to do at the time."

Palmer, who had arm trouble during the regular season and finished with a 10-6 record, started the second game of the Series and wasn't involved in a decision as Pittsburgh won 3-2. He went seven innings, gave up eight hits and two runs. His overall Series record is 3-1.

Candelaria also had some arm problems to go with his chronic back condition and was 14-9 in the Pirates' drive to the NL East title. He wasn't involved in a decision in the league championship series, and was the starter and loser in the third game of the Series. He went just three innings, gave up six runs and eighth hits.

Tanner insists that Candelaria is physically ready to pitch. He'll have to be against a Baltimore team that was 55-24 at home and 34-19 vs. left-handers. But Tanner will leave all his pitchers ready and figures to relieve early if the "Candyman" gets in trouble. Tanner used Bert Blyleven in relief Sunday, the first time Blyleven relieved since 1972 at Minnesota.

Weaver received some disturbing news Monday. Don Stanhouse, his favorite reliever, is done for the Series with a back ailment.

Tanner, whose 70-year-old mother Anne died Sunday, arrived in Baltimore with the Change Of Tactics Spoils Utah's Debut

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Milwaukee Coach Don Nelson didn't like what he saw early in the game, especially on defense, and decided to change tactics.

"Utah beat us on the offensive boards bad early on, getting second and third shots," said Nelson. "But we made a couple of defensive adjustments, and when we did, it took a little of their inside game away."

The defensive switch worked well enough to help the Bucks defeat the Utah Jazz 131-107 in the only National Basketball Association game Monday night.

The Jazz, playing its first regular-season home game since moving from New Orleans, jumped off to a 37-32 lead after the first quarter behind the hot hand of Pete Maravich. Maravich scored 14 of his game-total 29 points in the opening quarter.

But the Bucks' sticky defense contained Maravich the rest of the way, and Milwaukee led 63-57 at the half.

"We played a pretty good first half," said Utah Coach Tom Nissalke. "We had them outrebounded by 11 in the first half. I thought the big thing was we didn't keep our intensity."

"When you don't play with a lot of intensity against a running team, you get behind quickly," Nissalke said.

Guard Junior Bridgeman scored 28 points and forward Marques Johnson 27 as the Bucks built up a 78-63 lead midway through the third quarter.

Johnson and Kent Benson combined for 15 points to open the quarter, while the Bucks defense held the Jazz to only a pair of field goals by Maravich in the first five minutes of the quarter.

Forward Adrian Dantley had 23 for Utah and Don Williams scored 12.

Nelson said the lack of depth inside hurt the Jazz.

"We did beat them inside, but you have to remember that their only true center, John Gianelli, has only been with them a couple of days. He is a good center and will help the team soon, I'm sure," Nelson said.

Gianelli played half the game, scoring two points and pulling down eight rebounds before 7,721 fans in the two-thirds filled Salt Palace.

Milwaukee increased its record to 2-1 in the Midwest Conference of the Western Division. The Jazz dropped to 0-2 in the conference.

Says Kush Asked Lie

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — The man who fired Frank Kush said the former Arizona State football coach asked his players to lie for him.

The accusation Monday by ASU Athletic Director Fred Miller drew a swift response from Kush, who held a press conference in his own backyard and told reporters, "Believe me, I never did such a thing."

Miller charged that Kush asked ASU football players to deny that they saw him punch former punter Kevin Rutledge after a poor kick in an Oct. 28, 1978, game against Washington.

"I learned that Frank Kush was attempting to pressure players and coaches to go to the extent of lying, if necessary," Miller said.

He said he learned of a cover-up last week after three players, two coaches and three others told him they had seen Kush strike Rutledge, who has filed a $1.1 million lawsuit against the school and Kush.

Mackovic Disappointed Deacs Failed To Make Top Twenty List

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — For John Mackovic, Wake Forest's 24-19 upset victory Saturday over previously unbeaten North Carolina was sweet.

But the victory was not enough to earn the team a national ranking or to satisfy Mackovic's appetite for success.

"I'm really disappointed to find that we didn't make it," said the Demon Deacons' second-year coach. "Especially in view of the fact that we won and the team that we beat is still there."

North Carolina was ranked 19th in Monday's poll.

"It really isn't my job to judge what we are," Mackovic said. "That's somebody else's job, and apparently other people don't see it the way we do. So we'll have to play a little harder and hope we win next week."

Mackovic's style is to try harder, to go for the jugular much in the same way he tried to score on a long pass following a North Carolina turnover early in the first period.

And Mackovic's charges are not about to ease off now. They have a 5-1 record and designs on 10-1.

Despite national rankings, another Demon Deacon victory is a winning season, two more victories a possible bowl bid, three makes that a virtual certainty. And then there's the Atlantic Coast Conference race to consider.

Wake Forest's near-perfect record leaves little room for doubt about the team. The Deacons already have survived the pressure of close games, a weekly occurrence.

At the six-game mark, all that separates Wake Forest from a perfect season is a fourpoint loss, on the road, in the rain.

The Deacons should be primed for a sixth victory when slumping Maryland brings its impotent offense to Winston-Salem Saturday. To beat Wake Forest would take a goodly number of points — Maryland has scored a total of 14 in the last three weeks.

"We're playing Maryland!" said Mackovic in dispelling the notion that Jerry Claiborne's Terps could be possibly be taken lightly. "You don't take Maryland lightly under any circumstances," he said in a telephone conversation.

You don't take lightly a team that has beaten you seven straight times, five of them ending without the Deacons scoring a point and the Terrapins scoring no fewer than 23.

With each passing week the Wake Forest offense, directed by Jay Venuto, is proving more and more versatile. So efficient is the passing game that tailback James McDougald is finding more running room.

"Some coaches have said you can't win with a passing game," Mackovic explained. "They have told recruits not to come here because passing games can't win."

It would be difficult at this point to sell that to Appalachian State, Georgia, East Carolina, Virginia Tech or North Carolina.

"We made up our minds when we came here that we would stick with it," Mackovic continued. "And we have."

Prior to succeeding Chuck Mills last season, Mackovic was offensive coordinator and assistant head coach at passminded Purdue.

NO ENERGY CRISIS HERE — Physical fitness buff Jack LaLanne marked his 65th birthday Monday by towing 65 boats a mile on Japan's Lake Ashinoko, near Hakone, southwest of Tokyo. A spokesman for the bizarre birthday celebration said

LaLanne was shackled as he pulled the boats, which contained 6,500 pounds of wood pulp. A forest products firm sponsored the stunt, the latest in a series of oddball birthdays for the strongman. (AP Laserphoto)

Iacocca Turns Efforts To Salvaging Chrysler

NEW YORK (AP) — Lee A. Iacocca made his name as a master of marketing by selling the public on the Ford Mustang. Now he's using every trick he can think of to convince the American people and the government that Chrysler Corp. is worth saving.

"I'm not asking you to buy any car on faith. I want you to compare," says the Chrysler chairman in a trailer to most of the company's television commercials.

The campaign — part of a $30 million advertising budget for this quarter alone — also includes full-page newspaper and magazine advertisements explaining the company's position in asking for government help.

And Iacocca and other Chrysler officials, who have scaled down their salaries until Chrysler's financial picture brightens, have thrown dinner parties for journalists and industry analysts in Detroit and New York.

Iacocca, waving a big cigar and speaking in forceful tones that make him sound like a carnival barker in a pin-striped suit, told the reporters assembled at the New York edition of the road show: "There's enough journalistic firepower in this room to topple the government. We want you to be better informed so you can help us tell our story better."

The "firepower" included ABC's Barbara Walters, NBC's Tom Brokaw and top editors and writers from the likes of the New York Times, Washington Post and Time magazine.

If Iacocca's peptalk doesn't work, the company hopes that the group was impressed by the after-dinner offering: a look at full-size models of Chrysler cars for introduction from now through the middle of the next decade.

Chrysler expects to lose about $1 billion this year, so the expense of these public relations gambits is no small thing.

Argument For Black Jurors

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — Lawyer Jim Fuller, handling an appeal for a client, confronted justices of the North Carolina Supreme Court.

How comfortable would white people such as the justices be if they were on trial in Harlem, with a black judge, black prosecutor and black jury, he asked.

That situation, in reverse, applies in Mecklenburg because the list from which jurors are chosen doesn't include enough blacks.

That situation, in reverse, applies in Mecklenburg because the list from which jurors are chosen doesn't include enough blacks, says Fuller.

Fuller says he isn't optimistic that his argument will gain a new trial for Bernard Avery, 20, a black convicted in Charlotte last December of murder.

But the lawyer thinks future Mecklenburg County juries ought to be drawn from a pool of residents accurately reflecting the population.

The problem of how to broaden the pool faces the county's three new jury commissioners. They are bookkeeper Mary Bogguss, lawyer Hugh Campbell and educator Spencer Durante.

They were to meet today, with the job of determining the sources from which names will be randomly selected for a master jury list.

For the next two years the men and women who serve on grand juries and trial juries will be drawn from that list.

Fuller has challenged on his client's behalf the master list used in 1978 and 1979. He contends the list is, at best, only 15 percent black, while Mecklenburg County is 24 percent black.

Fuller contends that Avery was denied the constitutionally required cross section of the community on his trial jury. The jury had one black.

Avery, convicted of first-degree murder in the robbery-slaying of a cab driver, was sentenced to life imprisonment because the jury was split 8-4 for the death penalty, which requires unanimous agreement.

Fuller argues that black defendants would face all-white or nearly all-white juries less frequently if the jury list had the same proportion of blacks as the population.

Meet Again On Insurance

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Farmers and representatives of Smith-Douglass fertilizer company and Lloyds, insurers for Borden Smith-Douglass, will meet later this week.

State Insurance Commissioner John Ingram set up the meeting. The insurance department recently concluded hearings to determine if Affiliated Factory Mutual Insurance Co., Smith-Douglass insurers, should be allowed to operate in North Carolina.

Farmers criticized the company's handling of insurance claims for their crops which were contaminated by picloram-contaminated Smith-Douglass fertilizer.

The herbicide-laced fertilizer caused many North Carolina farmers to lose their 1979 crops.

Farmers who attended the insurance department hearing chose A.B. Parker of Vass and Orville Young of Angier as their representatives in negotiating with the company.

Ingram said Monday that a claims committee consisting of two farmers and one Borden Smith-Douglass representative will review all disputed claims.

Churchmen To Sponsor Dinner

BELL ARTHUR — The Methodist Men of Bell Arthur United Methodist Church will sponsor a barbecue chicken dinner at the church Friday from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m.

Proceeds will be used for church projects and the price of each plate is $2.50.

Connally Role For Howard

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Malcolm J. Howard of Greenville has been named as one of 138 members of the John Connally for President North Carolina State Campaign Committee.

The announcement was made by Winton Blount, Connally National Campaign Committee Chairman.

Vote Oust A Chairman

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The State Board of Elections removed Wiley D. Connell of Roanoke Rapids as chairman of the Halifax County Board of Elections in a 4-1 vote Monday.

The move followed a hearing into allegations stemming from a May 1, $8 million school-bond vote that was narrowly approved.

The elections board reaffirmed an Aug. 20 ruling that the results of the vote were valid, saying no new evidence was presented to change the earlier ruling.

Bond issue opponents raised 13 allegations against Connell. Opponents said, in part, that Connell directed county registrars to be paid to conduct registration drives, that he failed to swear in precinct registrars and that he ordered county records altered to show the swearings-in took place.

Connell denied the allegations during about 90 minutes of testimony Monday. He was not represented by legal counsel and he did not present any witnesses.

"He did not agree that any of the items (charges) were serious commissions," said Alex K. Brock, state elections director. "Obviously, the board vigorously disagreed."

Brock said Connell was dismissed "for acts of commission considered (by the state board) to be reprehensible." Connell could not be reached for comment.

Evacuating 70 Bighorn Sheep

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Seventy Desert Bighorn sheep will be evacuated from the San Andres Mountains next month to try to save them from a scabies epidemic that has claimed about two-thirds of the herd.

John Crenshaw of the Game and Fish Department said Monday the state will apply for military clearance for the rescue on White Sands Missile Range in south-central New Mexico. It will involve about 50 wildlife officers using nets, tranquilizer guns and helicopters.

The ewes were so infested with scab mites, which produce the scabies condition, they could not have survived the winter in the wild, he said. The disease reduces the animals' resistance to infections.

Many Operations for Cataracts

I have a cataract in my left eye. My doctor has been watching it for four years. Now I've been told that the cataract is ready for surgery. From the day I heard this I have been bothered with all kinds of opinions about the different kinds of surgery that other people have had. Of course, each one insists that their kind of operation is the only one to have. — Mr. M.C.A., N.Y.

I know exactly what your problem is. At the time of any elective (not emergency) operation a large group of friends and relatives can be counted on to offer an opinion that usually serves only to confuse the patient and to induce unnecessary anxiety. There is someone you can turn to, and that person is the doctor who has so carefully been following your cataract as it progressed from an immature one to a ripe, or mature, cataract that is ready for surgery.

The lens of the eye is normally absolutely clear. This allows light rays to pass through it and all the images that you see are sharp and distinct.

Clouding of the lens suggests an early cataract. With it comes some diminution of vision. Many people function for years with mild clouding of the lens. It is only when the lens becomes markedly cloudy, or opaque, that vision is severely handicapped.

Some cataracts progress so slowly that it may take years before surgery is necessary. Others ripen rather quickly. It should also be mentioned that, although cataracts almost always occur in late middle age and in the elderly, they can also occur in the very young after an injury. Infants, too, are sometimes born with a congenital cataract.

The cataract operation is aimed at removing the cloudy lens. You might ask how one sees without a lens. After surgery, eyeglasses with rather powerful lenses are used to compensate for the loss of the natural lens and to aid in the return of good vision.

A valuable substitute for the cumbersome, heavy lens has been the use of contact lenses after surgery. People who are able to manipulate them (and most people can) are gratified by the immediate and comfortable return of vision.

The surgical removal of the lens has been refined to the point where the operation is safe and successful and remarkably free of complications.

In the past 15 years, there has been an explosion of wonderful new techniques for the cataract operation. The original operation is still an excellent one. It is now being done under a microscope, has which has added limitless extensions to the success of the operation and the reduction of post-operative problems. In addition, there are newer techniques by which the cloudy lens is emulsified by a special machine. This simplifies its removal. This is known as "phaco-emulsification." There is also a method of using a lens transplant at the time of the operation. No one technique is the only technique. Your doctor will advise you as to which method is best for you and you alone.

Ripoffs By Mechanics

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—Auto mechanic Elmer C. Pittman says he has seen auto mechanics cheat motorists, but he's going to do something about it.

Pittman, a mechanic for 35 years, has written a booklet titled "Stop the Ripoff," to help motorists learn a few basic things that could save them money.

"The true purpose of the book is to educate the owner of the car and restore honesty and integrity to the repair business," he said in an interview.

The booklet explains and illustrates the major parts of the car, how they work and what noises or other symptoms to expect when a part is not working properly.

"Listening to the sounds made by your car and reading its body language can save you money, valuable time and needless worry," he said.

Pittman said after watching a former boss take advantage of a customer and then brag about it, he was inspired to write the booklet.

"As an employee and raised by an honest daddy, watching it bothered me very much."

He advised car owners who think a mechanic has been dishonest to them to "keep your cool, take it to the owner (of the shop), and get him to show you where the price originates."

Museum Seeks Volunteers

GRIFTON—Volunteers are needed to keep the Grifton Historical Museum open on Sundays from 2 p.m.

Any group or individual who can donate an occasional two hours is asked to call George McArthur, 524-4542, Bertha Johnson, 524-5313, Janet Haseley, 524-4356, or Don Watson, 524-4250.

The Museum is also open by appointment to groups at times other than Sundays. For appointments, call 524-4356.

Shutdown Of Cable Cars Felt By San Francisco Tourist Business

By BILL DENSMORE
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The shutdown of San Francisco's famed cable cars, halted in their tracks by serious safety problems, is giving the city's tourist industry gray hair.

"I think we're in trouble with the cable cars for a long time," said Robert Sullivan, general manager of the San Francisco Convention and Visitors Bureau. "I don't know that this would be an advertising line, but we're just like any other city now."

Sullivan says families and individuals may choose to postpone visits to San Francisco while the 106-year-old system is idled. The loss to merchants will be hard to make up, he feels.

"What we've got is that some of the conventions are saying, 'If you can't guarantee the cable cars, we're not coming,'" said Lloyd Pfeuffer, general manager of the Downtown Association of San Francisco, with 200 business members.

The city's Public Utilities Commission shut the system down Sept. 25 for a $750,000 patchup after a study concluded it was unsafe.

Between July 1978 and June 1979, 299 cable car accidents involving injuries or damage were reported to Municipal Railway officials. Victims filed $7.5 million in damage claims, many still unresolved.

Interim repairs — fixing track, replacing cable supports and the like — should be finished in three weeks on the California Street line. But the Mason and Hyde Street lines, which take tourists to trendy waterfront shops, will be down for at least six months.

Now the city is seeking $41 million from the federal Urban Mass Transit Administration to rebuild the 10½-mile, three-line system — which will close it for about 20 months beginning in 1981.

"It very definitely does affect business," says Vera Freeberg, 62, retiring owner of the Buena Vista Cafe, a popular waterfront tavern at the base of the Hyde Street line.

"People come here to ride the cable cars. They don't want to ride the buses," she added, noting her daytime business had fallen 20 percent to 25 percent since the line shut down.

Transportation Secretary Neil Goldschmidt accepted the city's $41 million grant application during a visit to San Francisco on Friday.

"We need to fix the system," he said. "It's a national crisis when you can't get from Union Square to the Buena Vista on a cable car."

Muni — the city's transit system — has put many of the 170 idled conductors and gripmen to work driving buses over the same three routes. But Muni estimates the 28,000 to 32,000 daily ridership figure for the six-ton cable cars has dropped 40 percent with buses.

City officials have long known that the vintage system, which runs at a $6 million annual deficit, would someday need a major overhaul. But the decision was put off for years by successive administrations.

"If the system is not fixed, it would have to be closed down, and I would be the first to call for it," then-Supervisor Dianne Feinstein declared in 1977 after a series of accidents injured at least 66 persons.

It was Ms. Feinstein, as mayor, who announced the temporary shutdown in September, blaming it on her predecessors.

Despite the blow to the tourist-related wharf area, says Pleuger, large retailers have felt only a minor impact. Their business is more dependent on the 1,100-vehicle Muni fleet of buses and streetcars which continues to operate unimpeded.

At least five fatalities since 1967 are blamed on the 39-car system. The worst occurred Dec. 3, 1967, when two people died in a collision between a cable car and several autos. Forty-three persons were injured.

The idea of using an underground cable to pull what were originally horse-drawn cars is credited to Andrew Hallidie, whose father patented a process for making what was then called wire rope.

Hallidie's first cable car rode up Clay Street at the crown of Nob Hill Aug. 1, 1873. More than 100 years later, the late Mayor George Moscone put the system in perspective when he said, "No matter what it costs, the city always will have cable cars."

HALTED IN THEIR TRACKS — Kenneth Lin, left, and Jeff Dere of Palo Alto, Calif. stop to take photos of an idle cable car at California and Market Streets in San Francisco. Halted in their tracks by safety problems, the cars have been a major item on tourist agendas. (AP Laserphoto)

Recruiter Probe Nears End Ahead Of Schedule

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A nationwide investigation of recruiting fraud, which could affect every recruiting district in the nation, is ahead of schedule and may be finished by the end of October, an Army spokesman said Monday.

Army officials had said earlier they didn't expect the investigation to be finished until the end of November.

The massive investigation was launched last May in Charlotte.

Sen. John Stennis, chairman of the Senate Armed Services

Committee, said last week that he wants to hold hearings on the recruiting scandal by next month.

Army sources said Stennis' plans have nothing to do with the schedule for the investigation.

The investigative unit is made up of a recruiting command team of 54 senior officers and noncommissioned officers, led by a brigadier general.

Seventeen recruiting districts have been investigated during the last five months and 165 recruiters and officers have been relieved of duty as a result.

The Army has two weeks left to investigate 38 other recruiting districts. Army spokesman Maj. Jeff Cook said the remaining investigations "won't be done haphazardly."

"You have to realize we had a large body of information when we began this investigation," he said. "We knew at the outset what we were dealing with and it (the investigation) has been programmed to proceed at a prescribed pace. At this point, a lot of pieces are coming together."

"I don't know whether an investigation will actually be conducted at each location but we will be checking the status of each district and going in and investigating as necessary. Some places may not have any relief at all," Cook said.

The Charlotte News reported on July 31 that the Army was planning to investigate every recruiting district in the country. At that time, Army officials would neither confirm nor deny the report, apparently fearing that confirmation of the report would affect the morale of the field recruiters across the country struggling to meet enlistment quotas.

Figures indicated the Army fell 16,388 persons short for the 1979 fiscal year, ending Sept. 30.

The Pentagon still hasn't made any public assessment of the scope of the recruiter fraud problem. Cook said the Army expects to make public a summary of the results by Nov. 15.

Privately, Army officials have said they expect no more than about 500 recruiters to be fired in the nationwide investigation. That is about 10 percent of the Army's recruiting force of about 5,000.

Organ Donor Cards To Be Distributed

Pass kits containing organ donor cards will be distributed in the Greenville area during the next few weeks by Kidney Foundation of North Carolina volunteer workers, according to Mrs. Helen Brinson, local chairman.

"The neighborhood pass kit project provides area residents with an excellent opportunity to learn more about kidney disease, to obtain an organ donor card, and to make a contribution to the Foundation if they so desire," said Mrs. Brinson, who has served for several years as a regional nephrology nurse consultant.

Organ donor cards are wallet size and are recognized in all 50 states. Anyone 18 years of age and older may donate specific organs, any needed parts, or their entire body for anatomical research. The card should be signed in the presence of two witnesses, then placed in one's wallet to alert medical staff of one's desires.

There is no need to return any portion of the card and the donation may be cancelled at any time by simply tearing up the card. Organ donation does not interfere with burial or funeral arrangements.

For information on the pass kits or the Kidney Foundation, call Mrs. Brinson, 757-4104.

Plan 2 Girl Scout Units

GRIFTON — Leaders and plans for two Girl Scout troops in Grifton have been set, according to Mrs. Willie Matthews, troop organizer.

Junior Scout Troop No. 222 will meet from 7-8 p.m. on Mondays at the Presbyterian Church, beginning Oct. 22. Leaders will be Sandi Tripp and Virginia Turnage. Mrs. Tripp is a Grifton newcomer, and served as a Girl Scout for 11 years and as a co-leader of a Senior Girl Scout troop. Mrs. Turnage aided the Grifton Juniors last year.

Brownie Scout Troop No. 36 will meet from 7-8 p.m. Tuesdays at the Presbyterian Church, beginning Oct. 23. Leaders will be Almissie Payton, Hazel Garriss and Myra Day. Mrs. Payton grew up in the Grifton area, while Mrs. Garriss worked with the Brownie Troop last year. Mrs. Day recently moved to the Grifton area from upstate New York.

Polio Vaccine Failed A Child

ATLANTA (AP) — The death from polio of an 11-year-old Ohio boy last year was the first known failure of oral poliovirus vaccine in the United States, the national Center for Disease Control has reported.

The child, who was not identified, died Aug. 23, 1978, of bulbar poliomyelitis caused by a wild poliovirus, the CDC said in its Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report. He had received four doses of the oral vaccine as an infant.

There were nine cases of paralytic poliomyelitis in 1978, the CDC said. All the victims except the Ohio boy survived.
