Begin Faces Series Confidence Votes

By ARTHUR MAX
Associated Press Writer
JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin faces the first of a series of nonconfidence votes in the Israeli Parliament today but is expected to survive them with the help of resigned Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan and despite an adverse Supreme Court ruling.

Dayan, speaking within an hour after formally leaving office today, said he quit because of an unpublished cabinet decision on the future status of the occupied Arab territories.

He said his concept of relations with Palestinians in the occupied West Bank of Jordan and the Gaza Strip differed substantially from the majority of Begin's government.

But Dayan, who still retains his Parliament seat, said he would support the Begin government in votes of confidence scheduled for later today. "I will vote for confidence in the government I served until an hour ago," he said.

Dayan submitted his resignation Sunday. It took effect 48 hours later, just 45 minutes before he began a nationally broadcast news conference.

'War On Winter' Campaign Mapped

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Battle lines are being drawn for the Greenville Junior Woman's Club "War on Winter," which will be waged Saturdays Nov. 3 and Nov. 10.

On these days, volunteer labor from the community will be used to ward off the hardships of winter for the elderly and the disabled of Greenville by weatherizing of homes and the cutting of firewood to be given as needed.

Commitments of "troops and materials" are needed at least by Friday, Oct. 26, according to Linda Hix, Greenville Utilities Commission Energy Program coordinator. Mrs. Hix is assisting the Junior Woman's Club members in carrying out the project. She hopes that some data can be gathered for the Greenville Energy Program about how the beneficiaries' energy costs contrast between this winter and last winter.

Materials are the big need now, according to Barbara Privette, the Junior Woman's Club Conservation Department Chairman. She's asking that individuals, merchants and individuals, businesses and civic and church organizations earnestly consider donating whatever amount in insulating materials or money they can afford.

"Think about this," she said. "—a $1 donation will provide plastic to cover two windows or caulk two windows or caulk one door. Ten to $15 will weatherstrip a door. Thirty-five to $50, depending on the size and condition of the house, will completely weatherize a family or individual's home and afford them untold comfort and many dollars saved in fuel oil, wood or coal purchasing."

Many elderly and disabled persons will have to be turned down unless generous donations are made. Owners of rental residences who want to improve their property and, at the same time, afford the occupants more comfort and freedom from fuel expense, can help by providing the materials and letting the "War on Winter" volunteers do the work on their houses. Mrs. Hix suggested.

Anyone interested in donating any materials, from a little left-over insulating material from his own home to a dollar to the financing of the material-buying for the work on one or more residences is asked to call Ms. Privette at 752-5725 by Friday.

plans. Dayan said: "I hope to write a book about the peace negotiations and the treaty we achieved with Egypt."

Dayan said he did not intend to try to start a new political party and would remain an independent member of the Knesset. He left the Labor Party in 1977 to become Begin's foreign minister.

"Being a foreign minister in the government means that you have to carry out the policy of the government," he said. "If you cannot do that wholeheartedly, it's your duty to resign. That's what I did."

Elderly and handicapped persons needing work done are encouraged to call the Council on Aging Office, 752-1717, by Friday.

Woodcutters and haulers, persons to man the materials and wood distribution centers, persons to dispense donated refreshments, and others are needed. According to David Goehring, who is active in the woodcutting phase, some cutting can also be done on weekdays, as well as the two designated Saturdays. These people should also call Mrs. Privette to volunteer.

Deposed, Ailing Shah Of Iran Enters U.S. Hospital

NEW YORK (AP) — Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, deposed ruler of Iran, was hospitalized today at the New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center for "extensive medical examinations" for an undisclosed ailment, an adviser said.

Pahlavi was installed in a three-room suite and surrounded by tight security, said the hospital's vice president for public affairs, Eamon Brennan.

Brennan said shortly before 9 a.m. that the patient was resting and the nature of his illness and his condition had not yet been classified.

"They've not begun diagnostic tests yet and it's unlikely there'll be any results to report before this time tomorrow, if then. He'll undergo all the usual tests — blood, urine, radiology, but no one's being more specific than that," he said.

Jim Hunt In Tokyo Today

Hunt will meet with heads of 22 manufacturing firms while in Japan. Several of those firms are considering locating plants in the Southeast.

Record Prime Rate

NEW YORK (AP) — Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. raised its prime lending rate on Tuesday to a record 15 percent, the first major bank to do so.

Only two weeks ago, the nation's biggest banks raised the rate they charge for loans to their most credit-worthy corporate borrowers by an unprecedented full percentage point, to 14.5 percent.

Morgan Guaranty, the fifth-largest U.S. bank ranked by deposits, said the 15 percent prime was effective immediately. A bank official declined to comment on reasons for the boost, except to say the bank bases its prime rate on several factors, primarily the cost of acquiring funds and the demand for business loans.

Banks use the prime rate as the basis for setting interest rates on almost all commercial-industrial loans. Although the prime has no direct effect on consumer loan interest rates, it is viewed as an indicator of trends in interest rates generally.

Many banks in several areas of the nation, faced with high costs of acquiring funds, have cut back lending or raised interest rates for consumer credit such as installment loans or home mortgages.

To Die?

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A judge on Tuesday sentenced Roger Dale Stafford to die Jan. 17 for murdering six steakhouse workers during a $1,300 robbery.

"I'm innocent, I didn't do this crime," Stafford said before the sentencing by District Judge Charles Owens. The judge had the choice of either accepting the jury's recommendation that Stafford be executed or of ordering a new trial.

Oklahoma law specifies that executions be carried out by injections of lethal barbiturates.

But lengthy appeals of Stafford's conviction in the July 16, 1978, murders at a Sirlin Stockade restaurant are certain his execution from being carried out on schedule.

Activist Runs Into Budgetary Reality

WASHINGTON (AP) — Marion S. Barry Jr., the rock-ribbed anti-poverty activist turned mayor of the nation's capital, has walked flush into the harsh budget realities of governing a big city.

To the dismay of many supporters, Barry's 1981 budget plan calls for cuts in city services to the poor neighborhoods that constituted his first political base.

His proposal would cut garbage pickups, close three health clinics, reduce school spending and begin a $25 charge for abortions now offered free to poor women.

These moves have disappointed some city council members and many Washington residents who expected Barry to expand rather than cut such services. Councilwoman Willie J. Hardy accuses Barry of "thumping his nose at the people who elected him to office."

That reaction could have been Barry's own if such cuts had been proposed a year ago. Now, with the responsibilities of office, he is far more circumspect.

The mayor says the District of Columbia — its budget subject to congressional veto — is suffering from inflation and simply cannot afford to do more without a tax increase that the public opposes.

"We can't furnish everybody with everything. We can't pay for everything everybody wants," Barry says.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST—Showers are expected in the forecast period until Wednesday morning for the period for the Northwest, the lower Great Lakes and the Atlantic coast.

Cooler weather is due for the Midwest and the East. The rest of the country is expected to be warm. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
The area of high pressure that had been in control of North Carolina's weather for the past few days began moving offshore today, clearing the way for a cold front to move into mountains this morning.

The cold front will spread scattered showers and thunder-showers across the state today and bring a change to cooler weather.

Monday was another sunny and warm fall day with high temperatures ranging from 70s in the mountains to a high of 84 degrees at New Bern. Skies remained clear during the night over eastern portions of the state allowing fog to once again form, especially in the south-east. Cloudiness began moving into western sections of the state during the night ahead of the cold front. Some rain showers moved into the mountains also.

High temperatures today will range from 60s in the mountains to around 80 near the coast but will only be in the 60s statewide except for 50s in the mountains on Wednesday. Lows tonight will dip into the mid and upper 30s over the mountains and range to low to mid 50s for the coast.

Rubin Sparks New Protests

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP)—Former Yippie leader Jerry Rubin is sparking campus demonstrations again, leveling criticism at topics ranging from government and big business to wet T-shirts.

Rubin, one of the Chicago 7 anti-war protesters, spoke at the University of Wyoming last week and his words led to a protest denouncing a fraternity's wet T-shirt contest as sexist and degrading to women.

Rubin also criticized the government, big business and socialism and predicted the 1980s will bring a return to activism. "I think people are tired of the separation of the 'Me Decade,'" he said of the '70s. "The '80s will be a people's movement."

Rubin called for breaking up major oil companies and creating a national energy corporation so energy decisions would be public.

Dedicated Tall Tower

GRIFTON The tower which will carry the signals for two television stations and two FM stations was dedicated in ceremonies here Monday.

The tower is located just east of Grifton. It will have at its top the antennae for television stations WITN, Channel 7 and WNCT, Channel 9. Radio stations WNCT-FM and WITN-FM will also use the tower.

Leo Jenkins, former chancellor of ECU, was master of ceremonies for the dedication. WNCT was represented by Roy Park and William Robinson represented WITN.

Jenkins described the American business community as the greatest ever put together, "influencing people in every part of the world."

He said the joint use of the tower could be described in one word, co-operation.

"We have two giants who compete vigorously coming together."

"The competition is still there, but there is co-operation also."

Jenkins extended greetings from Gov. Hunt who is on a trade mission to Japan.

He introduced John A. Williams, director of the budget, as representing the governor.

Also introduced were Thad Eure, secretary of state, Rufus Edmisten, attorney general and Harlan Boyles, state treasurer. Nick Weaver represented Sen. Morgan.

Consider Sale

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Kaiser Steel Corp., which has suffered a string of losses it blames partly on foreign imports, said today it is discussing the possible sale of "a substantial portion" of its assets to a Japanese steelmaker.

Kaiser said it is holding the talks with Nippon Kokan K.K., Japan's second-largest steel producer and one of the five largest in the world.

Kaiser said discussions are in an early stage and gave no details as to prices or assets that might be included.

The announcement said technical teams from the two companies are now visiting each other's plants.

Kaiser, the nation's ninth largest steelmaker, has reported 13 consecutive quarters of losses from its steelmaking operations.

Pharmacist Faces 24 Medicaid Fraud Counts

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—A Swain County pharmacist has been indicted by a Wake County grand jury on 24 counts of Medicaid fraud for false billings in 1977 and 1978.

John L. Mattox Jr., operator of the Swain Drug Center in Bryson City, will turn himself in Friday at the Wake County Courthouse and will remain free under a $10,000 bond, pending arraignment in November, authorities said.

Ten of the 24 indictments, handed down Monday, allege that Mattox was paid $511.90 by the state medical assistance program (Medicaid) for fraudulent billings made in September through December of 1977 and in June of 1978.

All 24 of the indictments allege that Mattox billed the Medicaid program for drugs he did not dispense, according to Donald W. Grimes, director of the Medicaid Fraud Unit of the state Attorney General's office.

If convicted, Mattox could be sentenced to a maximum of 10 years in prison for each count.

OVERHEARD

"Quick, Quick. Tell me, Elsie, who is the woman getting out of that pink Mercedes?"

"Where? Oh, I don't... but isn't it Ada?"

"Oh, Thanks. Yes, Ada. Yes. She's coming in now. Well, well, how are you, Ada?"

"Why, Julie! Good to see you! And Elsie! Hi!"

"Hi, Ada. How are things in Wilson?"

"Scandalous."

"Oh, I heard! Did he actually drop out of the window stark naked?"

"As a jaybird, they say."

"How amusing. What brings you here to Greenville, Ada?"

"I've been trying to find Christofle silver for years. No luck. Finally I wrote the company and they sent me here. Am I glad! How charming this shop is!"

"It's certainly unique."

"This lamp must be Spanish, isn't it?"

"Looks like it. Ask Natalie there. We have to be going, Ada. Nice seeing you. Oh, They say he hit the ground running. That right, Ada?"

"They do say so. Bye."

"Bye, Ada."

Early Birds Are Ruffled

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Some people sure have evil minds. (Including you!) Why should anyone suspect Beverly of hanky-panky because she leaves her home at 6 a.m. for a 15-minute drive to a job that doesn't begin until 8 a.m.?

I'm not due at my job until 8 a.m., but I always get there at 7 a.m. That's the only time of day I don't have to put up with ringing telephones and kids yelling and fighting. The office is quiet, and I use the time to organize my day's work.

Also, I take the bus, and it's never crowded at 6:30 a.m., the traffic isn't as heavy, and I never have to stand up.

I can't see dashing through the office door just before the clock strikes 8 the way most of my co-workers do. Some are so nervous they arrive at 8 a.m., prepare coffee and sit around drinking it until 8:30!

NO SLACKER IN TWIN FALLS

DEAR NO SLACKER: Let's hear it from Dottie:

DEAR ABBY: I must come to the defense of Beverly, the perfectly groomed, beautiful woman who leaves her house at 6 a.m. for a 15-minute drive to an office where she isn't due until 8 a.m.

A reader asked what she did with all that extra time. He even hinted that perhaps she arrived at work disheveled and with a few spangles missing.

Well, I leave my house at 5:50 a.m., and arrive at 6:10 a.m., for an 8 to 4 job because I like it that way!

I make no stops and arrive as neat as when I left home. No one else is at work, either, in case you might think I'm meeting someone there.

I set things up for my day's work, and if I have something special that requires my full concentration, I prefer to do it then. I also read my newspaper in peace and quiet.

I'm sure there are many others who arrive at their jobs early for legitimate reasons.

DOTTIE

DEAR DOTTIE: You're right, of course, and I need not look far to find one. My devoted secretary, Katie Beal, who has been with me for 23 years, isn't due at her desk until 8 a.m., but bless her, she's frequently there at 7. (She calls her self "Abby's Irish Rose"!)

DEAR ABBY: I am having a friendly argument with someone and hope you can settle it. I say that, according to law, a male doctor may not give a female patient a complete physical examination unless there is a female nurse in the room. My friend says I am mistaken.

Can you help us?

FRIENDLY ARGUMENT

DEAR FRIENDLY: Whether or not a male doctor has a nurse present while examining a female patient is up to the doctor, the patient, or both. If there is a state law setting a different standard, I would be surprised.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MOTHERS OF CHILDREN UNDER 7: For a treasure of easily understood information about nutrition, health care, discipline, and how to get along with your child, I recommend Nancy M. Thurmond's wonderful book, "Mother's Medicine." (At all good book stores.)

When marinating meat always use a glass, pottery or enameled container. The acid in the marinade can react with the metals in pots and pans.

When washing dishes by hand, stack similar pieces together. Keep dinner dishes, salad plates and saucers in separate stacks to decrease the chances of chipping or breaking them.

Save Time In Lunch Preparations

To save time preparing school lunch and brown bag sandwiches, make them once a week in assembly line fashion.

Then freeze them for use later in the week, say NCSU agricultural extension specialists.

Sandwich filling ingredients that freeze well are cooked egg yolk (not the white), peanut butter, cooked or canned poultry, fish or meat, dried beef, baked beans, canned crushed pineapple, lemon or orange juice, margarine, dairy sour cream and milk.

Don't keep sandwiches more than two weeks.

Fall Luncheon Held On Friday

The Greenville Garden Club held its fall luncheon Friday at the Greenville Country Club.

Mrs. John Coughlan, program chairman, introduced Mrs. Marshall Helms, who presented a slide demonstration on wild orchids in North Carolina.

The orchid is probably the largest family of flowering plants, estimated to be 25,000 species and world wide in distribution. There are 56 species native to North Carolina. Unique features of orchid flowers were illustrated along with some of their mechanisms which insure cross-pollination by insects said the speaker.

Mrs. J. B. Spilman gave the invocation. Table arrangements were made by Mrs. R. V. Keel, Mrs. S. H. Mitchell and Mrs. J. R. Carrington.

Mrs. Robert Little was welcomed as a new member and guests were Mrs. Rosalie Trotman and Dr. Helms.

Neat Trick If He Can Do It

Interest rates have suddenly soared, rattling the financial world, but President Carter says the inflation policies won't throw construction workers out of jobs.

Carter spoke to the AFL-CIO building and construction workers recently and told them, "I will not fight inflation with your jobs."

The talk came only days after Federal Reserve policies had sent interest rates sharply upward.

Although Carter supported the policies, he told the building and construction workers that interest rates are too high and inflation is too high.

So where do we stand now? It will be a neat trick if the president can keep the building industry healthy while huge interest rates hang over it.

Buildings are constructed on borrowed money. With higher interest, construction will either slow down or the additional financing cost will be added to the building, thus increasing inflation.

Quite possibly the drastic action by the Federal Reserve was needed to slow inflation, but the president should not try to fool anybody by maintaining that it won't cost some jobs. That, after all, is what slows down in the economy are all about.

Hard Sell On Chicago Is Undermined

Hardly had President Carter finished putting the hard sell on Chicago than HEW Secretary Patricia Harris announced that the city's school desegregation case would be turned over to the Justice Department.

While we would not argue the merits of the Chicago desegregation case here, the action shows that a president has liabilities as well as assets in seeking re-election.

Even though the matter has been under review for sometime by HEW, the possibility of court action is virtually certain not to win friends for President Carter in Chicago. With a potentially close election coming up, the president cannot relish losing friends.

Has National Importance

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — The ongoing battle over future use of Currituck Banks in northeastern North Carolina has developed into a controversy of national significance.

From Maine to the Gulf Coast shores of Texas, ocean-front property has, for the most part, already been locked in as to what will happen in the future. The land is either already in the hands of private owners and being rapidly and heavily developed; or conservation interests have won their battles to protect the fragile environment as is.

Much of the protected land now reserved for future generations as protected seashore lies along this state's Outer Banks. The National Seashore Recreation Area stretches from the Core Banks at Beaufort to Oregon Banks Inlet. Several of the islands are accessible only by boat, and will remain that way.

The 23-mile barrier island that forms Currituck Banks is, according to officials of the state's Department of Natural Resources and Community Development, one of the last major seashore resources not yet committed as to future use, and available for development.

Showdown
This means that those who own property on the island, developers, conservationists, and thousands of taxpayers who will be seeking to use the shore for various recreational purposes in coming years are heading for a showdown.

The line is sharply drawn between federal and state governments. The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service says the Banks is the wintering habitat for about 35 percent of the waterfowl using the Atlantic Flyway north-south migratory route, and is home for several endangered and threatened species. The U.S. Back Bay Wildlife Refuge in Virginia occupies a 4.2 mile stretch of the island.

In December, the federal government will close that section so that people seeking to get from mainland sections will have a long trip (to 70 miles) to cross the bridge to Kitty Hawk. Travel through the wildlife section is now permitted only those who owned property before October, 1975.

Meanwhile, the land on the Banks is worth many millions. Developers have recorded some 8,000 lots selling for $65,000 and up. About half have already been sold (the lots are 100 feet of ocean front). Many homes have already been built, and others planned. Currituck County officials say the Banks produces about 25 percent of the county's tax revenues.

In 1973, the county and private developers drew up a Currituck Plan, a forerunner of the plans required later by the Coastal Area Management Act.

The island would have public water and sewer systems, and innovative techniques such as clusters, planned unit development and alternating patterns of developed land and conservation areas were provided to protect the environment while still allowing public use.

But the transportation problem is proving an immediate difficulty. If access by the shorter northern route is fully cut off, and if no alternative route by ferry or a new bridge is provided, the plan will likely not be followed. Meanwhile, federal officials are trying to buy more of the island for wildlife protection purposes.

A committee of the Coastal Resources Commission, the Coastal Resources Advisory Council, and the state's Marine Science Council have asked Gov. Jim Hunt to urge the warring state, federal and local agencies to resolve the issue soon so that all parties can make new plans given the new circumstances.

The committee of state officials wants the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to extend access permits through the refuge for permanent residents; and, to delay buying any more land. The state also is studying the possibility of a ferry and future bridge for more direct access, and a public road from Kitty Hawk north along the Banks rather than the present privately owned route which is restricted in use, and ends at the community of Corolla. Environmental impact statements regarding such steps will take up to a year to complete.

Clout In The Pulpit

By EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A loose coalition of Christian activists is trying to mold the money, fervor and manpower of conservative Christians into political clout to use in next year's presidential and congressional elections.

These newly created organizations, bearing such names as The Christian Voice and the Moral Majority, believe they can develop grassroots organizations to become a force in secular politics.

Although polls show most Americans prefer to keep their politics and religion separate, history shows it doesn't always work that way.

There was the anti-Catholic campaign aimed at Al Smith in the 1928 presidential campaign and John Kennedy's frank discussion of his Catholicism in 1960. Jimmy Carter added another chapter in 1976, when his status as a "born-again Christian" took on a visible role as his successful campaign unfolded.

In 1980, a new feature promises to be the activities of the conservative, or evangelical, Christian movement.

Many of the leaders of the conservative Christian groups know each other and work together on various issues. But the groups do not form a monolith.

For example, the Southern Baptist Convention, one of the largest non-Catholic denominations in the country, supports the SALT II treaty with the Soviet Union while some of the groups organized specifically to exert political influence oppose it.

"Politicians are beginning to realize that religion is a factor in public opinion," said William Elder, head of the Christian Citizenship Corps, an arm of the Southern Baptist Convention.

Elder's work concentrates on providing information and analysis through a publication called "Moral Alert," rather than on endorsing candidates.

"We want it to be handled correctly, lest we go off with knee-jerk reactions and not handle the potential power we have responsibly," Elder said in a telephone interview from Nashville, Tenn.

But some of the others are more candidate-oriented. The Christian Voice, begun early this year in Pacific Grove, Calif., claims a membership of 126,000, including 3,000 clergymen, and hopes to raise $3 million for political and lobbying activities next year.

Another group, the Washington-based Moral Majority, also plans to set up a political action committee in the coming months, says its executive director, the Rev. Robert Billings.

Polls show that for most Americans, religion and politics should not and do not mix, following the Constitutional guideline that has separated church and state officially since the country's founding. But a definite minority holds other views.

Two-thirds of the public — 67 percent — said a candidate's religion is of little importance to them, a recent Associated Press-NBC News poll showed. But 16 percent of those surveyed said the candidate's religion is very important and 15 percent said the religious facets of a candidate's life are fairly important. Two percent of the 1,600 adults interviewed nationwide by telephone Sept. 24 and 25 were not sure.

The Talmadge 'Victory'

If it were not for the smugness demonstrated by Sen. Herman Talmadge in the past few weeks, there would be no particular reason to dwell upon the Senate's 81-15 vote to denounce his conduct. Mr. Talmadge is a senior senator, but not a notably influential one, and the funds involved in his various offenses were not unusually large.

But there is something peculiarly revolting in the senator's complacency. When the report of the Senate Ethics Committee first was released, he crowed that he had won a "personal victory." After the Senate vote, he proclaimed his "vindication." Back home in Georgia he has sought to persuade his gullible followers that the whole affair was somehow the work of them lyin' Atlanta newspapers.

The record in this matter is long. The Ethics Committee heard 36 witnesses, received 292 exhibits and took 2,800 pages of testimony. At the outset the committee dismissed a charge that Mr. Talmadge had exerted improper influence in connection with certain real estate transactions; the charge was "without proper foundation." With that allegation out of the way, the committee concentrated on the senator's handling of his public and personal funds. In the end, the committee and the Senate reached this conclusion:

"It is the judgment of the Senate that the conduct of Senator Talmadge is reprehensible and tends to bring the Senate into dishonor and disrepute and is hereby denounced."

That solemn judgment is a personal victory? A vindication? Let reasonably minded men read the record and decide for themselves.

The committee's principal findings had to do with reimbursements paid to the senator from public funds. Under the law, every senator is entitled to be reimbursed for expenses having to do with postage, telephones, subscriptions and home office expenses. It is an honor system; no supporting documentation is required; a senator needs only to certify that the reimbursement is owed him.

Between 1972 and 1978, the senator's own auditors found that he had received and deposited $36,000 on vouchers for nonexistent expenses. The committee's auditors raised that figure to $50,000. Whatever the precise sum may have been, it originated largely in payments on bogus claims for home office expenses.

For example, the committee found that in 1974 the senator submitted a voucher for $3,685.85 for home office expenses. "During this period there were no allowable home office expenses." For the first six months of 1975, the senator claimed $6,500 in home office expenses. "There were no allowable home office expenses for that period."

What is the senator's defense to these fraudulent vouchers? His cavalier response is that somebody else, some other time, signed his name to the vouchers; office finances had a "low priority" with him; he paid no particular attention to such petty matters. But the uncontradicted testimony was that Mr. Talmadge himself signed virtually all checks drawn on the special account in which the reimbursement was made. (Continued on page 5)

To the editor:
Since there has been very little opinion expressed against the merger of the city and county school systems, I will be one of the few.
As a senior at J. H. Rose High School, I feel that it would not be in the best interest for the future students. I may graduate before the merger takes place, if it does. It may not affect me, but we have to think of the future.
If ECU buys the Rose High and Elmhurst property, the school system may decide not to build another school, therefore sending some students as far away as North Pitt or Farmville Central.
We have to think of the future, and if this merger takes place and it fails, we won't be able to go back. But then if it does work out, will we be able to have better maintained school buses, an auditorium for assemblies, and a football field to play in? Probably not!
So I think that the school system should think about the future and ask the students for their opinions, for someday we will be parents. And the people who got the merger will probably be retired, and if we try to change it, they will just sit back and smile.
So I am asking that all fellow students voice their opinions about this merger and get your parents involved, also. So contact the Greenville Board of Education and Superintendent Glenn Cox and tell them! Don't just sit back grumbling about it. Do something!!

Quiet Brzezinski Ascent

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Zbigniew Brzezinski's quiet ascent in Jimmy Carter's constellation of foreign and military advisers has given him enough new clout to reduce the power of his controversial deputy, David Aaron, a protégé of Vice President Walter F. Mondale.

Without fanfare or even internal announcement, Aaron has lost his authority over some of the most delicate areas of foreign policy: the U.S.-European economic connection, U.S. policy toward the Third World (a world now dominated by Cuba's pro-Soviet Fidel Castro) and some others.

Aaron was named Brzezinski's deputy by President Carter out of deference to Mondale shortly after the 1976 election. He had served as Mondale's agent on the Senate committee that investigated — and drastically whittled down — the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) during the Ford administration. His removal from the line of command in European and Third World economic-political matters enhances Brzezinski's power and that of other National Security Council staff men more concerned than Aaron about growing Soviet power.

Ford Anti-Connally?
Former President Ford told breakfasting reporters on Oct. 18 that he would never, never raise the question of Chappaquiddick in attacking Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's qualifications for the presidency. In the next breath, Ford said he certainly would not think of committing U.S. troops to the Mideast to guarantee Israel's security.

The unmistakable target of those two promises was John B. Connally, the Republican presidential candidate who: 1) has hit the Chappaquiddick issue harder than any other politician; and 2) has proposed an offer of U.S. troops to help satisfy Israel's security demands.

Ford also said he would never, never publicly criticize the statements of any Republican presidential candidate. And disagreements that the titular leader of his party may have with his fellow Republicans would be transmitted privately, Ford said.

The reporters got the hint. While downplaying direct public attack on Connally, Ford let it come through crystal clear that Connally is not his choice for the Republican nomination (a preference that most party leaders think Ford has reserved for George Bush).

Carter's Film
A half-hour campaign film now being edited is developing into an overriding theme for President Carter's reelection campaign: to persuade skeptical voters that he really is competent.

Robert Squier, the crack Washington-based filmmaker, was given full access to the White House for two days to depict the president (Continued on page 5)

Strength For Today

NEARER THAN WE THINK
Religion has much to do about judgment day, but very often we fail to catch the rather obvious implication of all true religion that every day is a judgment day for all of us.
James Russell Lowell once wrote:
"Each ounce of dross costs its ounce of gold: for a cap and bells our lives we pay. Baubles we buy with a whole soul's tasking: 'Tis heaven alone which is given away. 'Tis only God which may be had for the asking."

The poet was noting the way in which so many people throw their lives away on things which might seem terribly important at the time, but which in the light of judgment day are matters of complete insignificance. What the final judgment day will depend upon how we live every day until that fateful hour comes. And as a matter of fact it is nearer than we think — it is with us right now.

Loyal Customer Pays More?

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Even though we have been assured that rubber bands and paper clips will continue to hold the world economy together, at least through tomorrow, there remain some very puzzling concerns.
—With the Christmas catalogue season upon us, why is it that the best customer sometimes get the worst price?
The situation comes about this way: Existing customers are mailed the latest issues of catalogues from which they have previously ordered, and urged to place their holiday orders early.
Meanwhile, through direct mailings or media advertisements, the company seeks new customers by offering them a one-time discount from the regular, or catalogue, price.

Asked why this was done, an officer of one company, Pfaelzer Bros., a Chicago meat products company, replied that almost all companies do it in order to attract new customers.
He assured the complainant that it was in his best interests that they do so, presumably in order for the company to raise its volume and thus hold catalogue prices from being even higher.
But why discriminate against loyal customers? The Pfaelzer man didn't explain. Nor did he explain why, for a limited time and perhaps a limited quantity, the discount couldn't apply to everyone?
—What is it that E.F. Hutton says?
An informal survey of less than a dozen people revealed all familiar with the E.F. Hutton advertisements, but no one who was immediately familiar with the big broker's advice.

They had heard and seen the well known words of the TV commercial, "When E.F. Hutton talks, people listen." But after that just silence, and a picture of people listening. But to what?
—Automobile rental rates have risen, in part because of higher fuel prices. Most rates quoted today are dry rates, meaning you pay extra for whatever gasoline you use. And sometimes you pay extra, extra.
New York-area customers of Avis, for example, have been startled to find how much they are charged for gasoline, especially when they stop to examine their computer-calculated bill, which estimates consumption.
Some customers have defied the ire of impatient customers behind them in line and asked that the car's gasoline tank be measured in order to determine real as opposed to estimated consumption.
One such customer has found invariably that the more time-consuming procedure resulted in substantially lower bills. In a typical instance, a mileage charge of just under $7 was corrected to less than $4.
The attendant explained: "We use the official miles per gallon estimates for city and country driving in calculating the charge. When most of the driving is in the country, however, less fuel is used."

Pessimism Is Widespread

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The average American today believes that that past was better than the present and that the future will be even worse, says pollster Daniel Yankelovich.

"We've gone almost overnight from a nation of optimists to a nation of pessimists," Yankelovich said at a recent conference in Philadelphia on "Coping with Economy Uncertainty."

Yankelovich, head of the firm of Yankelovich, Skelly & White, cited these signs of gloom:

—Almost half of all Americans — 48 percent — say they are having trouble paying for housing. Five years ago, only 23 percent complained of problems in buying and keeping up a home.

—Nearly three people in four — 72 percent — agree with the statement: "We are fast coming to a turning point in our history where the land of plenty is becoming the land of want." Sixty-two percent think the United States is entering an era of permanent shortages.

—There is widespread disillusionment with government. Seventy-seven percent of the public thinks government wastes money; 60 percent say it doesn't care about the people; 65 percent say it is run in a way that benefits special interest rather than the population as a whole.

—More than four people in five say that the individual who works hard and plays by the rules of society goes unrewarded.

Yankelovich told the conference: "The American personality is not changing, but changes in the environment are posing an almost unique problem of adaptation."

He said the changes have come not only in the economic situation where inflation is eroding incomes and hopes, but also in the areas of culture and politics. In the cultural area, for example, Yankelovich noted that the so-called typical family — a male breadwinner, non-working wife and two small children — is rapidly disappearing. Fewer than 20 percent of the families in the country fit that pattern today, he said.

Americans also are becoming less concerned with the material signs of success and more interested in self-fulfillment. Only 13 percent of the public thinks work is important than leisure, Yankelovich said. Fewer people show a "raw, competitive edge," he added. Only 10 percent express the determination to get to the top, monetarily and professionally.

Yankelovich said the economic and cultural changes have led to political ones. There is less support for traditionally liberal ideas of helping the poor and minorities. The idea of "need-based entitlement" — if you NEED a job, an education, etc., you have a RIGHT to it — is growing unpopular. The public today thinks that help should be based not only on an individual's need, but also on whether he or she deserves aid.

Kilpatrick Col. ...

bursements were deposited. He was characterized as a man with a "steel trap mind" for figures. His office aides knew exactly what was going on.

Granted, Sen. Talmadge is a wealthy man. Sums that seem large to others may well seem trivial to him. Even so, was the senator to be believed in his answers to questions involving his personal pocket money? Counsel elicited a statement that "I've got, I think, $100 or so in my pocket now. I don't recall where I got that."

Q. You don't know where the $100 in your pocket came from?

A. I don't know whether it came from cashing a check or cash I had on me.

Q. Have you had cash on hand other than in banks?

A. Modest amounts, yes. A few hundred dollars.

Q. And what would be the source of those few hundred dollars?

A. I don't know.

One member of the committee, Sen. Harrison Schmitt of New Mexico, filed a blistering supplementary statement in which he summarized the uncontradicted evidence against Mr. Talmadge. His own conclusion was that the senator knew of the reimbursement vouchers and knew they were phony. Georgia voters, if they will examine the record, may well come to the same conclusion when the senator seeks re-election next year.

Aggressive Teddy
The change in Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's political demeanor since he signalled his availability for the presidency is typified by the background of his recent campaign trip for John Y. Brown Jr., Democratic nominee for governor of Kentucky.

The initiative came not from Brown but from Kennedy, who suggested travelling to Kentucky on Brown's behalf. With fried chicken millionaire Brown well in the lead and Kentucky's delegates expected to be closely contested between Kennpdy and President Carter, Kennedy needs Brown much more than Brown needs him.

Insiders believe Brown now leans slightly to Kennedy on the basis of personal affinity. But Kennedy is ideologically well to Brown's left, and the likely next governor of Kentucky might well end up with Carter.

A footnote: Kennedy startled the Pennsylvania congressional delegation the evening of Oct. 17 when he dropped in — for a long half hour — on 1,000 guests at a "Pennsylvania Day" party in the courtyard of the Rayburn House Office Building. No one expected him, but he was by far the star attraction.

Carter And The CIA
President Carter unwittingly cast new gloom over the slowly recovering Central Intelligence Agency with his offhand return to 1976 election year sloganeering in a White House meeting with out-of-town broadcasters on Oct. 17.

Reverting for the first time in months to CIA abuses of years ago, a sure sign of the approach of the 1980 campaign, Carter used the old formulation of "Vietnam, Watergate and CIA violations of the law" to lambast his predecessors in office.

"That was devastating to the CIA," one high-level administration official told us. "Those guys were just starting to recover and now the president without even realizing what he is doing hits them all over again".

Six Life Prison Terms For Murderer

By RICHARD DE ATLEY
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Quietly repeating "Yes, I did," Kenneth Bianchi admitted taking the lives of five women in the "Hillside Strangler" slayings that terrorized Los Angeles and was sentenced to six life prison terms.

"I wish I had the power to run the sentences consecutively, but in this state they must be merged as a matter of law," Superior Court Judge William B. Keene told Bianchi as he imposed the terms Monday.

Bianchi's pleas were part of a bargain struck with authorities, allowing him to escape the death penalty for strangulations here and in Washington state in exchange for his testimony against his cousin, Angelo Buono.

Buono had been scheduled to be arraigned in connection with 10 of the slayings after Bianchi was sentenced Monday, but his attorney won a two-week delay. Attorney Ronald Bain later said he may ask to have the case removed from Southern California, where the killings occurred between October 1977 and February 1978.

The killings were called the "Hillside Strangler" slayings because the victims were found dumped on slopes around Los Angeles and Glendale. All the victims were young women.

Bianchi, a former security guard, also pleaded guilty to a charge of conspiracy to commit murder and kidnap — which brought another life sentence — and to one count of sodomy, for which he received a five-year term.

Bianchi's mother and stepfather had moved from their home there to an undisclosed location in an effort to escape reporters and the notoriety of Each count stated Bianchi committed the crimes "in conjunction with" Buono, a Glendale upholsterer.

"I am satisfied with what's been done," Deputy District Attorney Roger Kelly said after Bianchi was sentenced. "Now we will be able to prosecute Mister Buono, and that gives me a great deal of satisfaction."

Bianchi was ordered to the California Men's Institution at Chino to begin serving his prison term. Under state law, he will be eligible for parole in seven years. Meanwhile, a Rochester, N.Y., newspaper reported Bianchi's confessions. "She's gone through hell," a neighbor, who was not identified, told the Times-Union. Said another: "Everybody was asking questions about her son, saying tactless things that hurt her deeply."

On Friday, Bianchi told a Bellingham, Wash., court he strangled two Western Washington University coeds. He received two consecutive life sentences there.

After Bianchi's plea and sentencing in Superior Court, Buono made a brief appearance in Municipal Court, where his arraignment on 24 felony charges was continued to Nov. 5. No plea was entered during the appearance.

Because "special circumstances" are alleged in Buono's case that could result in a death sentence if he is convicted, Buono was held without bail in county jail.

Family Says New Confessions By Jerry Bishop Was A Hoax

By BRENDAN RILEY
Associated Press Writer

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Police say it's possible. His family calls it a hoax. But the truth about 18 alleged murders was locked — perhaps forever — behind Jesse Bishop's half smile as he sat down in the Nevada gas chamber and died.

Bishop, executed early Monday for killing a man in a Las Vegas casino in 1977, concocted a bizarre story about 18 other murders as part of an elaborate escape plot, a family spokesman says.

The spokesman — Bishop's older brother who declined to be named — said Bishop "just wanted an opportunity to get outside and try to escape." He termed the police report about the slayings — released shortly after Bishop's execution — "pure, unmitigated b.s."

Authorities never gave the tough-talking convict a chance to lead them to any graves. Instead, they agreed to Bishop's demand that the information not be released until after his death. After sentencing him to death, Judge Paul Goldman of Clark County District Court said he visited Bishop in prison, where the condemned man told him "about having committed a number of homicides."

Goldman then sent Las Vegas Homicide Detective Charles Lee to speak with Bishop. The judge said Lee "came back with figures about 18 other homicides...12 in California and six in other places."

Lee, who conducted the Death Row interview last August, said Bishop didn't want the information released until his execution because he "didn't want to violate his own criminal code, he didn't want to go out as a snitch."

He said Bishop's recollections of the slayings were "so vague it would be virtually impossible to pin it down." Lee added that Bishop said he was paid for about 80 percent of the slayings.

"I don't quite frankly know whether it's true," said Lee. "But on the other hand, he certainly had nothing to lose. My opinion is that he was truthful."

Bishop's brother said the hard-bitten convict, who spent more than 20 of his 46 years in prison for robbery and drug crimes, wouldn't offer that sort of help to police, adding that "his background has not been full of cooperation with the authorities." He said Bishop once told him about "being a hit man for the mob," but he doubted his brother was telling the truth.

Hyman told investigators he was walking along Cotanche St., about 12:15 a.m. when a car with two men inside stopped.

When he approached the vehicle, Hyman said, one of the men pulled a knife and demanded his money.

Both Arthur and Evans were placed under $2,500 bond pending court action in the case.

The chief identified the two as Hubert Lee Arthur, 28 of 1205 Clark St., charged with strong arm robbery, and Clarence Earl Evans, 28 of 408 Greenview Dr., charged with armed robbery.

Cannon said the two allegedly took $35 in cash from Lathen Earl Hyman Jr., 17 of Scotland Neck.

Hyman told investigators he was walking along Cotanche St., about 12:15 a.m. when a car with two men inside stopped.

When he approached the vehicle, Hyman said, one of the men pulled a knife and demanded his money.

Arrest Two For Robbery

Two local men have been arrested in connection with a robbery that occurred Saturday morning on Cotanche Street, between the First and Second Streets intersection, Chief Glenn Cannon said this morning.

The chief identified the two as Hubert Lee Arthur, 28 of 1205 Clark St., charged with strong arm robbery, and Clarence Earl Evans, 28 of 408 Greenview Dr., charged with armed robbery.

Cannon said the two allegedly took $35 in cash from Lathen Earl Hyman Jr., 17 of Scotland Neck.

Hyman told investigators he was walking along Cotanche St., about 12:15 a.m. when a car with two men inside stopped.

When he approached the vehicle, Hyman said, one of the men pulled a knife and demanded his money.

Both Arthur and Evans were placed under $2,500 bond pending court action in the case.

Announcement Set Nov. 17

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Former Gov. Bob Scott will announce he is a candidate for the 1980 Democratic gubernatorial nomination on Nov. 17, "if everything can be worked out."

Scott told the News and Observer of Raleigh that he will make the announcement at his Haw River farm before invited friends.

A Scott aide said the date is tentative "because we're still trying to get everything worked out. It's going to be almost a Bob Scott appreciation day and we're trying to get the details ironed out this week."

Scott was governor from 1969 to 1973. His father, the late W. Kerr Scott, was governor and a U.S. senator.

Scott will face Gov. Jim Hunt in the battle for the Democratic nomination.

How to slice good sausage better.

We'd like to give you a few tips to help you enjoy Neese's Country Sausage and Liver Pudding even more.

When you're ready to cook sausage, make sure it's cold and firm. And don't remove the wrapper. Instead, invert the package, slice through it without cutting the bottom panel.

Do your slicing with a serrated knife. No mess. And you'll have firm, regular-shaped slices, ready to fry, bake or broil. Now, fold the bottom panel up over the remainder of the sausage to keep it fresh.

Of course, you can do the same with our liver pudding. And if you like, you can eat the cold slices right out of the wrapper. Delicious. Or dip the slices in flour and saute in a small amount of bacon grease or margarine. Crunchy. We've got a whole bag full of tricks in a whole book full of great recipes and serving suggestions. And you can have the book free, by writing the address shown.

Neese's. Absolutely delicious, no matter how you slice it.

Russia's Vietnam?

The Soviet Union began to send money, weapons, and civilian and military advisers into Afghanistan, not long after leaders of the small Afghan Communist Party took control of their country's government in April, 1978. Today, the Soviets are still there. They are faced with a difficult situation that some observers have described as "the Russian Vietnam." Many Afghans, who are fiercely independent Moslems, have been rebelling against their government and the Soviets who help keep it in power. The Soviets fear that if they tolerate an Islamic revolution in Afghanistan, they could face more serious problems from the 50 million Moslems who live in the southern Soviet Union.

Voted Against A Convention

Delegates at the Saturday meeting in Greenville of the North Carolina Student Legislature voted to oppose a resolution that would have called for a constitutional convention to consider an amendment to balance the federal budget.

Guest speaker Dr. John P. East spoke on a variety of topics and answered questions from the delegates. During his talk, he mentioned issues he felt would be of importance to the U.S. in the 1980's—inflation, energy, foreign policy, and national defense.

Commenting on the involvement of students in politics, Dr. East said we have "what amounts almost to a moral obligation to become involved in the democratic process." He encouraged the student delegates to take part in politics and the democratic process as a method of continuing and extending their academics as well as a means of being active in the practical application of politics.

Students taking part in the meeting, held at Willis Building, included N.C. Student Legislature governor Steve Warren of Western Carolina University, ECU delegation chairperson Anne Northington, and ECU SGA president Brett Melvin.

The November meeting will be held at UNC-Chapel Hill.

Radioactive Wastes Argued

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state Department of Human Resources has recommended that the burying of low-level radioactive wastes on private property be prohibited.

The department wants such materials buried on state or federal land to ensure proper care of the sites.

The recommendation was suggested by the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission, and will be considered by the state Radiation Protection Commission next month.

Controversy surrounding the operation of a Wilkes County processing plant that buried low-level wastes prompted the recommendation. Radioactive vials and other material used in medical research were buried there, and residents in the nearby Purlear Community complained it was a health hazard.

A state investigation turned up no evidence that the operation was a health hazard. However, the plant license was revoked because it was found that the owner, Finney Clay Watts of Winston-Salem, buried materials he was not licensed to bury.

The case was also investigated by the NRC, which found that the state needed to update its regulations and increase the staff of its radiation control program.

Although the Human Resources proposal would prohibit radioactive waste burial on private property, it would not restrict burial by private firms, according to Dayne Brown, chief of the department's radiation protection section.

"Someone wanting to run a commercial operation like Watts' could acquire the land, then give it to the state and federal government — or sell it for $1 — on the condition that the state lease it back for waste disposal. This is what is done in most states," he said.

He said public ownership of the land where radioactive wastes are buried would ensure perpetual care of the burial site.

Plan Attack Hot Pursuit

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Hawks within Prime Minister Jack Lynch's Fianna Fail Party plan to introduce a motion in Parliament Wednesday condemning a secret agreement he made to let British military helicopters from Northern Ireland fly five miles into the Irish Republic in "hot pursuit" of IRA guerrillas.

The hardline faction, which is pressing for British withdrawal from strife-torn Northern Ireland, is demanding Lynch scrap the agreement last month by Irish Foreign Minister Michael O'Kennedy and the British cabinet minister for Northern Ireland, Humphrey Atkins, following the assassination of Earl Mountbatten by the Irish Republican Army.

The British wanted the right of hot pursuit into the republic for their ground troops, but that was politically impossible for Lynch.

The Fianna Fail hawks are led by Health Minister Charles Haughey, who is considered Lynch's chief rival within the party. Lynch fired him in 1970 after he and another government minister were charged with smuggling arms to the IRA's Provisional wing. Later Haughey was cleared and made a comeback.

His faction got a boost last week when an opinion survey indicated 21 per cent of the republic's 3.3 million people support the IRA "to some degree." This was far more than the government estimated previously.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market headed lower today, giving up some early gains as the bank prime lending rate climbed to a record 15 percent.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up more than 3 points in early trading, was off 2.90 at 806.23 by noon.

Losers took a 3-2 lead over gainers in the mid-day tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said some early buying was encouraged by the market's showing Monday, when the Dow Jones industrial average rebounded after slipping briefly below the 800 level for the first time since last December.

The average, off about 15 points at its lowest level of the day, closed with only a 5.55 loss.

But the upswing had already begun to fade when New York's

CP&L Unit Is Cleared

SOUTHPORT, N.C. (AP) — After an automatic shutdown last Friday, the No. 1 unit at Carolina Power and Light Co.'s Brunswick nuclear plant is scheduled to be brought back on line today.

However, it will not be back in full operation until Thursday. Increases in the levels of radioactivity in the plant's main steam lines leading from the main reactor vessel caused the automatic shutdown Friday. The reactor building was evacuated temporarily but a site emergency was not declared.

"This wasn't a serious matter at all, in this particular case," said Ken M. Clark, a spokesman for the federal Nuclear Regulatory Commission. "CP&L has agreed to follow a number of start-up procedures to ensure against that [purification system] problem."

The increase in radioactivity was caused by a change in the chemistry of the reactor vessel that occurred shortly after a demineralizer was returned to service, CP&L officials said. A demineralizer is part of the reactor's water-treatment system.

The unit was scheduled to go back on line Monday, but NRC officials asked CP&L to meet with them in Atlanta to review the shutdown.

Because of the starting time today and the amount of time it takes to get the unit back in operation, the plant will not be in full operation until Thursday.

The actual start up of the unit will be delayed until late today because of certain procedures agreed on with the NRC, according to Brunswick plant manager Fred Tollison.

CP&L spokesman Mac S. Harris said the company would take 36 hours to re-fire the reactor to full use, about three times longer than normal start up.

Prof Lost Long Fight

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A former N.C. State University physics professor who spent three years fighting her dismissal through administrative channels has lost her bid to have the case heard in federal court.

Janice Bireline, fired in 1971 for "professional deficiencies," is not entitled to a hearing because she waited too long to file her suit against the university, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled.

Mrs. Bireline, 50, fought for three years to block the dismissal through the university's internal grievance procedures, contending she had been denied due process and that she was the victim of sex discrimination.

In 1976, a federal judge dismissed her suit, ruling that the statute of limitations had expired. The statute of limitations fixes the time within which legal action can be taken.

The judge's opinion was upheld in 1977 by the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va. On Oct. 1, Mrs. Bireline lost her last chance to have the matter heard when the U.S. Supreme Court refused to consider the case.

Mrs. Bireline, who now edits textbooks in New York, called her case a "Catch 22 situation." She has appealed to Wake County representatives Allen Adams and Ruth E. Cook to determine if anything can be done to remedy the situation.

Quickly Applied The 'Bear-Hug'

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC "Today" show host Tom Brokaw came to the aid of news anchorman John Chancellor when Chancellor began choking during a lunch date with Republican presidential hopeful John Connally, a network spokesman said today.

Using the "bear-hug" method he has seen demonstrated "many, many times" on his morning news and interview show, Brokaw "moved very quickly" when Chancellor began to choke on a piece of Gouda cheese during the lunch Monday, according to spokesman Bill McAndrew.

"He just began to cough all of a sudden," and then began to turn gray, a Connally spokesman said.

Alabama First; Deacs On List

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Defending national champion Alabama held onto first place today in The Associated Press college football ratings while Nebraska moved into second place and Texas, last week's runnerup, skidded all the way to ninth.

Alabama, a come-from-behind 27-17 winner over nationally ranked Tennessee, received 52 first-place votes and 1,341 of a possible 1,360 points from a nationwide panel of 68 sports writers and broadcasters.

Nebraska, which trounced Oklahoma State 36-0, moved up from third place to second with six first-place ballots and 1,266 points. Southern California, which was No. 1 until a 21-21 tie with Stanford a week ago, whipped Notre Dame 42-23 and climbed from fourth to third with nine first-place votes and 1,198 points.

The other first-place ballot went to Ohio State, which clobbered Wisconsin 59-0 and vaulted from sixth place into a tie for fourth with Arkansas with 1,089 points. The Razorbacks, 10th last week, upset Texas 17-14.

Despite a 37-10 triumph over Southern Methodist, Houston slipped from fifth to sixth with 1,070 points. The Cougars meet Arkansas this weekend.

Oklahoma rose from eighth to seventh with 883 points for a 38-

6 rout of Kansas State while Florida State, which was idle, slipped from seventh to eighth with 871.

Ninth-place Texas received 864 points while Michigan, a 27-7 victor over Illinois, went from 11th to 10th with 757. Notre Dame, which had been ninth, dropped to 14th.

The Second Ten consists of Brigham Young, Pittsburgh, Auburn, Notre Dame, North Carolina, Purdue, Navy, Wake Forest, Tennessee and Washington.

Last week, it was Michigan, Washington, BYU, Auburn, North Carolina State, Purdue, Pitt, Tennessee, North Carolina and Navy.

Wake Forest is the only newcomer to the Top Twenty. The Demon Deacons, the nation's Cinderella team, upped their record to 6-1 with a 25-17 triumph over Maryland. N.C. State fell out of the rankings by losing to North Carolina 35-21.

A Pair Of Aces

Franco Harris, left, and Terry Bradshaw of the Steelers chat on the sidelines as their replacements wrap up Monday night's game against the Broncos in Pittsburgh. Bradshaw had two touchdown passes in the game and Harris rambled for 121 yards and two touchdowns. Pittsburgh beat Denver, 42-7. (AP Laserphoto)

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Denver Broncos' timing was off. They met the wrong team at the wrong time.

"The real Pittsburgh Steelers showed up tonight," quarterback Terry Bradshaw said after a revitalized Pittsburgh crushed Denver 42-7 Monday night in a National Football League game.

"They kicked our fannies. We got humiliated," said Denver quarterback Craig Morton.

The week before, the Steelers fumbled nine times in a 34-10 loss in Cincinnati. It was the worst Pittsburgh defeat in nine seasons, dating back to a 29-3 loss to Houston in 1971.

But Bradshaw passed for 267 yards and two touchdowns in the nationally televised game and Franco Harris rushed for 121 yards and two more scores as the Steelers dealt the Broncos their worst loss since 1968, when they were thumped 43-7 by Oakland.

"That's the Steeler team I know," said Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll. "We were better in all departments. We got after it much better than we did last week. I think to a man we had everyone functioning the way we have to for us to win in this league."

The Steelers had been limited in practice in previous weeks by injuries. But last week, Noll had a virtual return to training camp, complete with conditioning runs and no-fumble drills.

It paid off as the Steelers climbed to 6-2 and into sole possession of first place in the AFC Central Division.

The Broncos, meanwhile, slipped to 5-3 and into second place behind San Diego in the AFC West. And Denver Coach "Red" Miller was downright displeased.

"We were outplayed, out-coached and very embarrassed in front of a lot of people," Miller said. "Not just here, across the country."

"This was the worst, most humiliating defeat in the 30 years I've been associated with football. And I don't like it. I don't know how anybody could stomach that and live with themselves."

By halftime, the Steelers held a 28-7 lead.

In the first quarter, a 56-yard run by Harris set up an 11-yard touchdown toss from Bradshaw to Lynn Swann, back in the lineup after missing two games with a hamstring pull.

In the second-quarter, Bradshaw's passing set up a pair of short touchdown runs by Harris and another by Sidney Thornton.

"Ever since the league went to a 16-game schedule, every team has a lot of ups and downs," said Denver linebacker Bob Swenson. "Last week, Pittsburgh was down. This time we were up."

Bradshaw, who hit 18 of 24 passes, added a 17-yard scoring pass in the final quarter to Thornton. And Steeler rookie Anthony Anderson bolted 10 yards for his first pro touchdown with 26 seconds left in the game.

Denver managed its only touchdown in the first quarter on a 64-yard pass play from Morton to Haven Moses. Despite the lopsided score, Morton hit 16 of 31 passes for 261 yards, just six less than Bradshaw.

"We moved the ball well, but we didn't get many points," Morton said. "That's very discouraging. There's not much you can say except they really beat us. They scored a lot. We didn't."

The Steelers finished with 530 offensive yards compared to 329 by Denver. On the ground, Pittsburgh netted 236 yards, compared to Denver's 53, and the Steelers did it without their usual trap blocking.

"Most games, we'd trap our grandmother if she was there," said Bradshaw. "But not tonight. We went straight at them. We went back to basics, big men against big men. And I think that surprised them."

Meanwhile, the Broncos left here sounding like the Steelers did the week before.

"It's back to the drawing board for us, back to basics," said safety Bill Thompson. "It's a bitter pill to swallow. But we've got to get going and get ready for next week."

The Steelers figure to stick to basics this week as they prepare to meet Dallas here Sunday.

"We played fundamental football tonight. Steeler football," said linebacker Jack Ham. "Before, we had guys banged up and we were practicing half-speed, and all of a sudden we were playing half-speed."

"But last week in practice, the guys were keyed up. We had a great week, a super week. We were decking people in practice and we were ready to play tonight."

"Now, we have to go back and practice that same way."

Contest Winners

Ernest L. Avery Jr. is the winner of last week's "Daily Reflector" Football Contest.

Avery correctly picked the winners in 28 of the 32 games listed in last Tuesday's paper.

Second place went to DeLyle M. Evans of 601 N. Hills Dr., Ayden, who picked the winners in 26 of the 32 games.

Evans' second place win came on the basis of his point total guess, which was 67. He was off the actual total of 68 scored in Brigham Young's 54-14 win over Wyoming.

Twelve other people also had 26 correct picks, but were further off in their point total guesses.

The next contest appears on the following pages.

Dent Is Free Agent

NEW YORK (AP) — Bucky Dent, the Most Valuable Player in the 1978 World Series, is among four New York Yankees who have become free agents.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Players Association, confirmed Monday night that the Yankee shortstop, along with outfielder Roy White, pitcher Don Hood and infielder-outfielder Lenny Randle, all have joined the free agent list.

Three players from the New York Mets also have declared their intentions to go into the free agent draft, according to Miller: first baseman-outfielder Ed Kranepool and pitchers Skip Lockwood and Andy Hassler.

CHIP OFF BLOCK

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bruce Allen, only 22, is a coaching chip off the old block. Bruce is head football coach at Occidental and is one of the youngest in the country, if not the youngest.

Bruce is a son of George Allen, the well-known pro coach.

No Predictions For Carlen

By The Associated Press

University of South Carolina football Coach Jim Carlen is making no predictions about the Gamecocks' chances when they tackle nationally ranked Notre Dame Saturday.

South Carolina, now 5-1, has put together a top notch team this season, but they have not yet faced an opponent of Notre Dame's caliber.

As Carlen noted in his Monday news conference, it's hard to find weaknesses in the Notre Dame team.

For one thing, the Fighting Irish have running back Vagas Ferguson, whom Carlen considers "a thoroughbred." Others mentioned by Carlen were guard Tim Huffman and tackle Tim Foley as well as sophomore linebacker Bob Crable.

Bird Sale Is Okayed

NEW YORK (AP) — Edward Bennett Williams has won quick approval to buy the Baltimore Orioles for $12 million.

"It was a very short meeting," American League President Lee MacPhail said Monday after the 14 league owners formally approved the sale of the team from Jerold Hoffberger to Williams.

"A lot of people in our league know Ed personally and others know him by reputation. We welcome him as someone who will be of real assistance to the American League and to baseball. He should make a fine owner for Baltimore."

Williams, who also owns part of the National Football League's Washington Redskins and serves as president of that franchise, will take control of the baseball team on Nov. 1.

Because of Williams' Washington roots, there has been speculation that he would relocate the Orioles to the nation's capital or at least have the team play a portion of its home games there. But MacPhail said there was no discussion of the subject at the owners' meeting.

"All of our people are aware what his position is on that," said MacPhail. "That decision would be up to the individual club."

Any decision to make such a move would require three-quarters approval from the other owners.

The odds are definitely in Notre Dame's favor. But in football anything's possible, and the Gamecocks may yet come out ahead when they travel to South Bend, Ind., Saturday.

Meanwhile in Charleston, Citadel Coach Art Baker is still riding the crest of the Bulldog's 37-6 rout of VMI, which left the Bulldogs, now 3-0, in firm command of the top spot in the Southern Conference.

And Furman Coach Dick Sheridan is hoping his Paladins can follow in the Bulldogs' footsteps, when they take on VMI Saturday.

The Citadel faces state rival Wofford, and Baker's chief concern is to make certain the Bulldogs don't lose any of their momentum before they take on conference foe Marshall Oct. 27.

That's not to say that Baker considers Wofford, 2-4, a sure mark.

"Wofford has given some very good football teams fits this year," Baker said of the Terriers' defeat of Furman and Presbyterian. "And they've switched to a wishbone offense and everyone knows that has given us fits this year."

East Carolina gave the Citadel a 47-6 beating recently with its use of the wishbone and the Bulldogs were barely able to defeat Appalachian State, another wishbone team.

Sheridan was still ebullient Monday about the Paladins' 27-13 triumph over Appalachian State.

The Paladins coach had reason to gloat over his team's second consecutive victory. Their Oct. 13 triumph over Marshall broke a five-game losing streak and things have picked up for the Paladins since.

"This was the first time all season we really looked like a football team," Sheridan said. "We controlled both the offensive and defensive lines of scrimmage."

The Furman defense limited Appalachian State to nine yards rushing in the second half. In all, Furman gained 486 yards total offense against the Mountaineers, 411 on the ground.

"The fact we held a very explosive offensive team to its lowest point production of the season and handled them so well rushing has to give us some confidence," Sheridan said.

Problem Teams Set To Meet

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — A youthful football team struggling to overcome the errors of inexperience and enthusiasm generally looks to establish a winning attitude against another team beset with its own problems.

So the coaching staff at Duke University looks at Saturday's meeting with Maryland as a key to its future. The usually powerful Terrapins are saddled with an abnormal number of injuries and a four-game losing streak.

But there's a thing called the law of averages, and that will not work to Duke's advantage.

"They are going to make every effort not to lose five in a row," assistant coach Cliff Yoshida said Monday in discussing Maryland's motivation.

"They look at Duke as a chance to break that streak." Both Yoshida and head coach Red Wilson say there should be little mystery in preparing for Jerry Claiborne's Terps.

"If we don't stop their running game we can't win," said Yoshida.

"The key to beating them is to give them the ball deep in their own territory," said Wilson. "They have a grind-it-out offense. You want to make them drive the length of the field."

Aside from its many injuries, Maryland has been unproductive at quarterback.

After three straight victories, the Terps were beaten as many times with Mike Tice at the controls. Claiborne switched to Bob Milkovich last week, but it was Tice who came off the bench to lead the only touchdown march in a 25-17 loss to Wake Forest.

But Duke, like each Maryland opponent, worries not about the Terp offense. The concern is the wide-tackle six defense that surrenders more than its share of points only because the offense has not been able to move the ball in five weeks.

"The defense will present problems," said assistant coach Mark Landon. "The wide-tackle six limits the running game."

EXPLANATION - The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

Montreal's Williams Is Tagged By AP As Top National Manager

NEW YORK (AP) — Seasoned Dick Williams, who led the expansionist Montreal Expos to their best baseball year ever Tuesday, was named The Associated Press' National League Manager of the Year for 1979.

It is the second such award for Williams, who was selected as the American League Manager of the Year after winning a division title with the Oakland A's in 1971.

Williams won the NL award in a relatively close battle with Houston's Bill Virdon, who had the Astros in the thick of the Western Division race until the last few days of the season.

A nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters gave Williams 113 votes to 95 for Virdon.

Under Williams, the Expos came the closest they ever did to winning the NL Eastern Division championship. They finished with a 95-65 record, two games behind the Pittsburgh Pirates, who went on to win the World Series.

Until this season, the Expos had never finished over .500 in their previous 10 years in the league.

This is Williams' third year in Montreal. His previous experience as a manager was all in the American League, where he managed the Boston Red Sox, Oakland and the California Angels over a span of nine seasons.

Williams managed Oakland to World Series victories in 1972 and 1973, becoming the first non-New York Yankee field boss to win consecutive world championships since Connie Mack. He also guided the Red Sox to the AL pennant in 1967 in his first year as a major league manager. He has 941 major league victories thus far.

Williams managed Toronto in the International League before surfacing in the majors.

As a player, the California-born Williams spent 14 years in the majors as an outfielder and utility infielder with Brooklyn, Baltimore, Cleveland, Kansas City and Boston.

No other managers were in the ballpark in the voting.

John McNamara, who led the Cincinnati Reds to the Western title, finished a distant third with 32 votes. Pittsburgh's Chuck Tanner was fourth with 19 and Ken Boyer of the St. Louis Cardinals was the only other manager to receive votes with two.

Jazz Finally Claim Victory

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Utah Jazz Coach Tom Nissalke, basking in the warmth of his club's first National Basketball Association win since moving to Utah, assured Jazz fans there will be more. But he tacked on a qualifier.

The Jazz, playing the only NBA game scheduled Monday, squeaked by with a 110-109 victory over the Bill Walton-less San Diego Clippers. Recently acquired forward Bernard King sank a 5-footer with 12 seconds left to ice the win.

"If we continue to play with that intensity, we'll get our share of games," Nissalke said.

The first-year Utah coach may have been beginning to wonder. The Midwest Division Jazz had dropped their first four games of the young season since moving from New Orleans in the spring. And attendance at the 12,000-seat Salt Palace — 6,122 turned out Monday night — has been less than inspiring.

After King's bucket, San Diego guard Lloyd Free missed a 15-foot jumper, rebounded his own shot and put up a 10-footer. But that missed too. A pair of Clipper tip-in attempts also failed.

"We stayed right in there until the last second," said Clippers Coach Gene Shue. "Yes, the last shot was meant to go to Free."

Nissalke said the Jazz planned to double-team Free in the final seconds "if he came off a screen, and it worked. Free is just an amazing player. He can do so many things."

The hot-shooting Clipper guard took game-scoring honors with 33 points. Shue said the absence of Walton, who stayed in San Diego with his sore left foot and has yet to play a regular season game, couldn't be blamed for the loss.

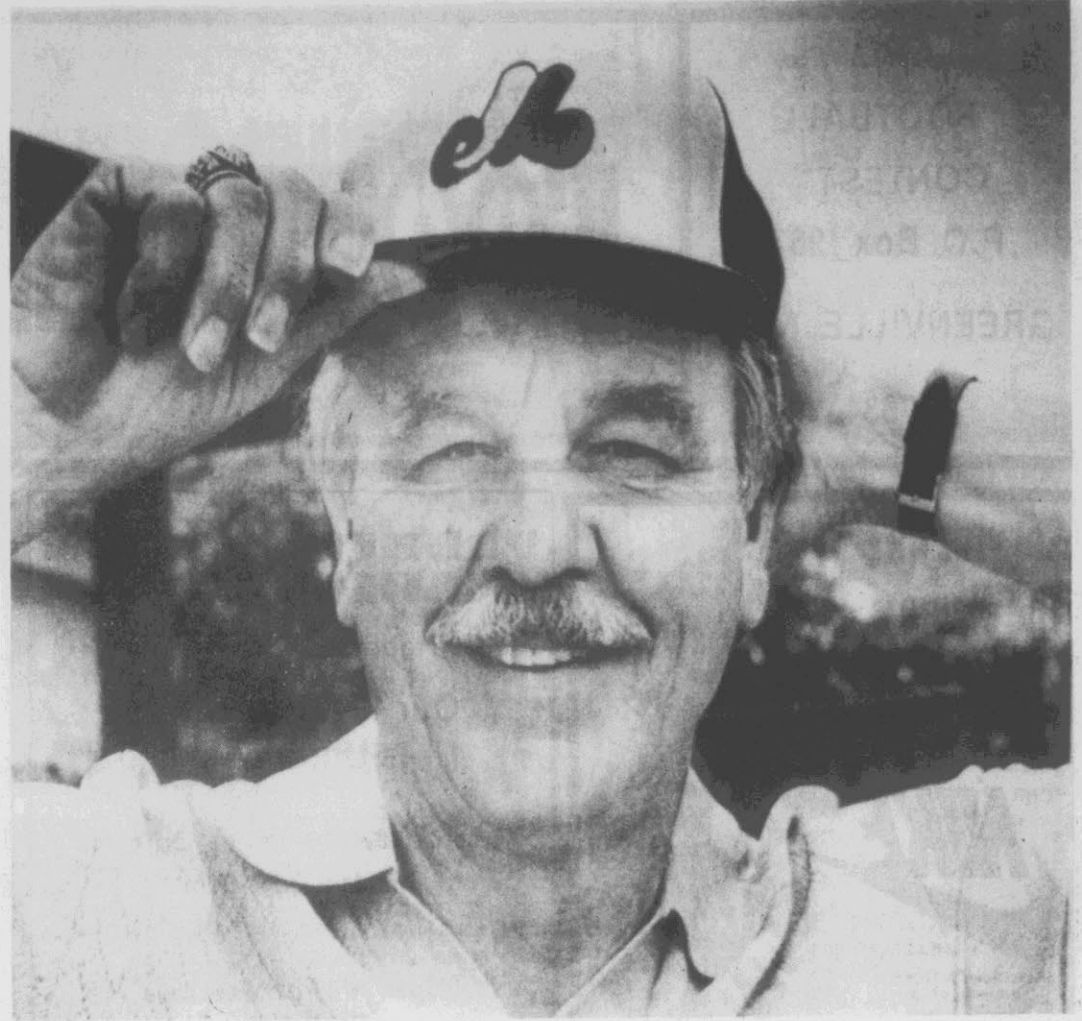

"He hasn't been working out for a month so I doubt it would have made a big difference had he been here," Shue said. Forward Sidney Wicks also remained home nursing a pulled groin muscle.

Nissalke said a key to Utah's future success may be the 6-foot-7 King, who came from the New Jersey Nets three weeks ago in exchange for center Rich Kelley.

"I'm pleased that Bernard is starting to play well. And he's doing really well defensively as well," Nissalke said. "We didn't especially design our last offensive play for King, but it worked out he got a good shot."

King finished with 16 points. Guard Pete Maravich was high for the Jazz with 28 and Adrian Dantley added 26.

King's winning basket followed by 15 seconds a 15-foot jumper by Clipper reserve Freeman Williams as the two clubs traded the lead in the final two minutes. Williams had 21 and Joe Bryant 14 for San Diego, 2-4.

Another Hat That Fits

Faculty Group Backs Kush

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — An Arizona State University faculty group says Frank Kush was treated unfairly in the way he was ousted as head football coach.

The ASU Faculty Association, in a statement Monday, also charged that Kush was denied due process by not being allowed to face his accusers or provide a defense before he was relieved by Athletic Director Fred Miller on Oct. 13.

"All members of the university community are accountable for their actions," the group said. "But there are, or ought to be, appropriate methods for judging whether an individual's actions are so seriously in conflict with the standards of the university that dismissal from one's post is in order."

The association also proposed that eight full-time faculty members comprise a majority of the university's Intercollegiate Athletic Board, instead of the present five. The association also asked for a full report from the present 15-member board on the Kush matter, "including all aspects of the board's involvement in the decision."

Miller accused Kush of lying about punching former ASU punter Kevin Rutledge and trying to force others to cover it up. Rutledge's $1.1 million lawsuit against Kush, Miller and the university is pending.

Wolfpack Not Dwelling On Loss

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Brown.

North Carolina State Coach Bo Rein says he and the Wolfpack aren't dwelling on the bitter loss to arch-rival North Carolina Saturday. Instead they're looking to the contest with Clemson this weekend.

For all intents and purposes, the Atlantic Coast Conference title is on the line.

"They look at the films and see what they have done and forget it," said Rein, when asked Monday how his Wolfpack would accept its 35-21 defeat last Saturday at the hands of the Tar Heels.

That loss spoiled N.C. State's perfect ACC record and threw the conference race into a virtual four-way tie among the Wolfpack, North Carolina, defending champion Clemson and surprising Wake Forest.

Any observer of the event who failed to point out that N.C. State got the short end of three controversial calls by referee Robert Carpenter's crew of officials would be less than honest.

But Rein isn't claiming the Wolfpack was robbed of the victory or a chance at the league crown.

"He ruled it was a first down at the 16 yard line," said Rein, when asked about the first call, a pass from Matt Kupec to Jeff Grey.

Rein said it would have been nice had the game been baseball where the manager had the right to file a protest. Beyond that he dwelt with the problem of beating Clemson at Death Valley.

"It is entirely different preparing for them this year," he said. "Last year they had the best offense and the defense in the ACC, and this year they only have the best defense."

Clemson is led by defensive tackle Jim Stuckey, whom Rein calls "an All-American," and a whole host of no-names on offense when one considers the injury to tailback Lester the game," said Rein. "But we didn't come do enough to win it."

But Danny Ford's Tigers, despite a slow start, have managed a 5-1 record. They are the defending ACC and Gator Bowl champions, and could repeat with continued maturity on the part of some of their younger players.

Rein said the Wolfpack must get out of the gate quickly and maintain a field-position advantage if it is to win.

"You have to get on top to quiet that crowd," he said. "You have to make them drive the length of the field to beat you."

N.C. State hopes to control the ball on the ability of quarterback Scott Smith, who led a furious second-half comeback that saw the Wolfpack overcome a 28-7 halftime deficit against North Carolina. Only the disputed calls and some clutch defensive plays by the Tar Heels kept the Wolfpack from bettering its record to 6-1.

Quarterback Chuck Fusina set 18 school passing and total-offense records in his career at Penn State.

Rein said the Wolfpack must get out of the gate quickly and maintain a field-position advantage if it is to win.

Reading The Opinion Polls Requires 'Wariness'

By MALCOLM N. CARTER
Associated Press Writer

Does the American public support or oppose the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty? Yes. And no. It depends upon the poll — for the percentage in favor has been reported at anywhere from 26 to 87 percent.

The wide variation in results doesn't mean the polls are wrong. It does show, though, that polls on complex issues must be read warily if mistaken conclusions are to be avoided.

Key to the big swing on SALT was the way the question was asked. But a poll's results can be swayed in other ways. These include the order of the questions, whether the interview was done in person or over the phone, the date of the interview and the skill of the pollster in analyzing the results.

And sometimes a poll tries to define public opinion before the public has made up its mind.

"Because there's a percentage there, it doesn't mean the public opinion is there," says Albert H. Cantril, president of the National Council on Public Polling.

Political polls present their own problems. It's easy for people to "vote" in the polls for any imagined ideal. But on election day, they face imperfect candidates and compromise, deciding perhaps that the candidate who once looked so unattractive is the best of the lot.

Professor Philip E. Converse of the University of Michigan mentions yet another problem with political polls.

"The fuzziest part of these predictions is who is actually going to vote," says Converse, who characterizes attempts to compensate for it as "the kinds of games that pollsters get into — a real art."

And when pollsters try to make up for flaws in their sample — a disproportionate number of say, Democrats on an election question — they veer farthest from the science of polling toward its art.

On the very eve of an election, however, the art has been sufficiently refined so that pollsters can come quite close to the ultimate result. The electorate has by then made final decisions, and pollsters can also get a pretty good idea by then who will vote.

Normally, the only clue to the soundness of a poll is sampling error. But this just recognizes that pollsters can't count on exactly matching the group interviewed with the whole population.

Pollsters acknowledge that sampling error may be far less important than question wording. Yet it is the exact wording that pollsters often fail to provide or that the media leave out of poll results.

In the case of the SALT question — which embraces concern about communism, national security and pacifism, among other things — what the pollster asked was crucial.

Two of the major polls last spring showed about the same opposition to the treaty. But the other four had exactly opposite results.

According to Converse's analysis, the main difference was whether the poll measured support for an arms limitation treaty in principle or for the actual treaty before the Senate.

He says that the contrasting results seem to mirror the sentiment of those U.S. senators who say they favor a limit on the arms race — but not this SALT treaty.

Last April, The Associated Press-NBC News poll asked, "Do you favor or oppose a new agreement between the United States and Russia which would limit nuclear weapons?" Sixty-eight percent said they favored it. A Harris question for ABC News subsequently asked, "Would you favor or oppose the U.S. and Russia coming to a new SALT arms agreement?" The percentage in favor was 72 percent.

In June, a CBS-New York Times poll came to a similar result on a question of support in principle for an agreement to limit nuclear weapons. Asked whether "you favor or oppose the United States and Russia coming to an agreement to limit nuclear weapons," 77 percent replied that they favored it.

Responses were strikingly different in the same poll to a later question that specifically referred to the upcoming debate on the "U.S. treaty with the Soviet Union which limits strategic nuclear weapons — called SALT." Only 27 percent of the whole sample said they thought the Senate should vote for it.

The AP-NBC poll also sought to filter out the uninformed public but did so by asking respondents whether they had heard or read enough about the proposed treaty to have an opinion. It found that 36 percent of the sample put themselves in this category and that 26 percent of this group said they favored it.

Roper came up with a number in the same range, 33 percent in favor. His question was especially specific. Note that it includes a reference to controversy: "The U.S. and Russian negotiators have about reached agreement on a SALT treaty. The treaty, which would last until 1985, limits each country to a maximum of 2,250 long-range nuclear missiles and bombers. As you know, there's a good deal of controversy about this proposed treaty. Do you think the U.S. Senate should vote for this new SALT treaty or against it?"

If the sample is told that an issue is controversial, Converse says, "the chances of it going negative are greatly increased." When Gallup posed the question in June, it asked this question of those respondents who could volunteer an advantage or disadvantage of the treaty: "Everything considered, would you like to see the U.S. Senate ratify (vote in favor of) this proposed treaty, or not?"

On this basis, Gallup said 34 percent of Americans favored it.

VEPCO Poses Another Fuel Adjustment Boost

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Virginia Electric and Power Co. customers may be asked to pay a fuel adjustment charge in December as well as a fuel hike in November.

Vepco officials told the N.C. Utilities Commission Monday they will ask for a fuel adjustment charge in December of $7.37 per 1,000 kilowatt hours.

The company has asked to increase its fuel adjustment charge for November by $1.62 per 1,000 kilowatt hours, from $4.09 to $5.55.

The request was part of a one-day hearing by the commission on November fuel adjustments for Vepco, Carolina Power & Light Co. and Duke Power Co. Rulings on the adjustments will come later.

The companies have requested that residential customers with electric water heaters and those who use 1,000 kilowatt hours, pay:

—Vepco: $56.74 in October; $59.20 in November. With the suggested increase, the December bill would be $60.02.

—CP&L: $45.99 in October; $43.30 in November. CP&L had a $4.09 per 1,000 kwh fuel adjustment this month and is asking for an adjustment of $2.96 for November. The company's rates also change from summer to winter rate cycles from October to November.

—Duke: $41.17 in October (if billed before Oct. 8); $42.73 in November (if billed after Nov. 10).

Vepco fuel adjustment rates are increasing, officials said, because the company's nuclear units are not working. Vepco's Surry 2 reactor has been out of service since February for repairs to its steam generators and is expected to return to use in April.

Similar repairs at Surry 1 are nearly finished. The unit should be in use by early next month, officials said.

Vepco's North Anna 1 unit is shut down for refueling and is expected to be back in operation by Dec. 17.

Union Planning To Renew Drive

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — The AFL-CIO's Industrial Union Division plans to renew its drive to organize 5,800 employees of Thomasville Furniture Industries.

That drive has been stalled since last year.

Harold McIver, the division's organizational director, said a contract agreement last Saturday between the union and Thomasville for 500 workers at the Phenix chair plant in West Jefferson set the drive in motion again.

The West Jefferson plant is the only one among Thomasville's 22 plants in North Carolina and Virginia that is unionized.

"Our organizers will begin moving in right away," McIver said. "They will move as fast as we think we can be successful."

Thomasville officials predicted that a resurrected union organizing effort will not be successful.

"Even though the union has conducted an intensive organizing drive, employees at our other plants have firmly rejected union representation," said L.E. Bish, executive vice president.

The agreement for the West Jefferson workers will give them a 9½ percent wage increase and represents an average increase of 37.7 cents an hour. It is basically the same as raises granted during the past year to other Thomasville employees, Bish said.

The contract was signed after 32 negotiating sessions and includes increased pension benefits, job bidding and arbitration rights, a no-strike clause and a no-wage reopener clause.

Wage negotiations began between labor and management shortly after the West Jefferson workers voted to unionize last year.

The wage settlement was reached after the union last week dropped its charges of unfair labor practices filed with the National Labor Relations Board in December.

McIver said the charges were dropped because "the workers would rather have the 9½ percent than wait for the litigation."

The AFL-CIO announced in March of last year that it would begin a drive to unionize North Carolina's 80,000 furniture workers with a campaign at Thomasville's plants in North Carolina and Virginia.

But since the union won the election at the West Jefferson plant, no other votes have been held.

Governor Plans Lead Exercise

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt will supervise a radiological emergency response exercise in December as part of an effort to increase the readiness of state government to respond to such emergencies.

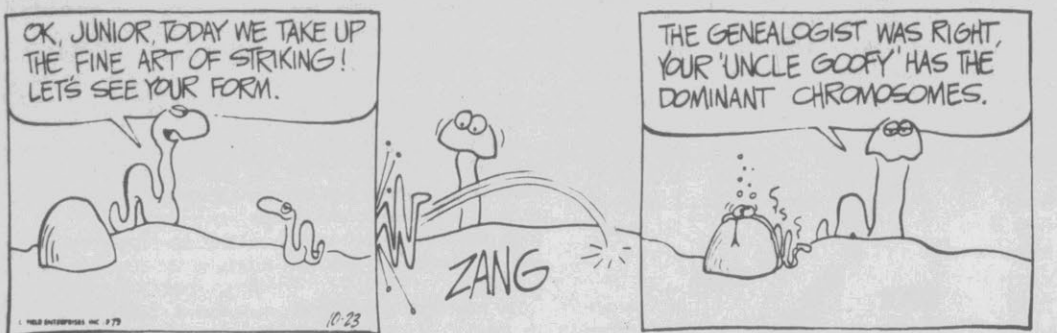

The exercise will be coordinated with the state Department of Crime Control and Public Safety, local government units and Carolina Power & Light Co.

It is designed to test the recently developed Radiological Emergency Response Plan.

Bombing Range Again Opposed

HOBUCKEN, N.C. (AP) - Fishermen on the Pamlico Sound say they know they can't get the Marines to do away with bombing. They just want them to take their bombing range some place else.

The Marine bombing range near Hobucken is under fire again. The commercial fishermen want it relocated because it restricts use of a prime fishing area.

State and federal officials are considering a proposal to move the range about four miles southeast of its present location on Brant Island Shoal. Aircraft from numerous military bases use the range for practice bombing.

The move will be considered by the N.C. Marine Fisheries Commission today at a meeting in Bayboro.

This isn't the first time objections have been voiced about the bombing range, which is located about seven miles from Hobucken near the mouth of Jones Bay.

Last year area residents complained that the bombing shook buildings on the mainland and killed thousands of fish. So Marine Corp officials limited the use of large bombs. Aircraft now use 500-pound bombs two days in every 60 and small ordinance and smoke bombs at other times.

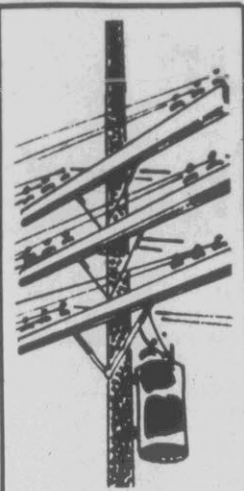

Roy Watson of Mayo Seafood Co., a spokesman for the fishermen, said Monday that relocating the range would improve navigation in the area and benefit fishermen who could catch shrimp, oysters and crabs without interference.

"The range takes in the best fishing in the area," he said. "They (fishermen) have to work there to make their livelihood."

Watson says fishermen are not attempting to outlaw the bombing entirely.

"You can't do away with the bombing station," he said. "That's their business."

State marine officials say the biological impact of the relocation would be insignificant.

Fayetteville Crime Down

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) - A new FBI crime report has dropped the City of Fayetteville from seventh to 17th in violent crime ranking in the country.

The bureau rated the city seventh in the nation in the number of violent crimes reported in 1977. But the bureau's 1978 report shows a decrease in all four categories of violent crime for the city despite an expanding population and a 5 percent increase in violent crimes nationwide.

The violent crime index is based on police reports of murders, rapes, robberies and aggravated assaults that were adjusted per 100,000 population in the reporting areas.

For the years 1974 through 1977, Fayetteville ranked fifth, eighth, 13th and seventh respectively.

Fayetteville Mayor Beth Finch said she believes efforts of law enforcement officials as well as citizens' neighborhood watches resulted in the crime rate drop.

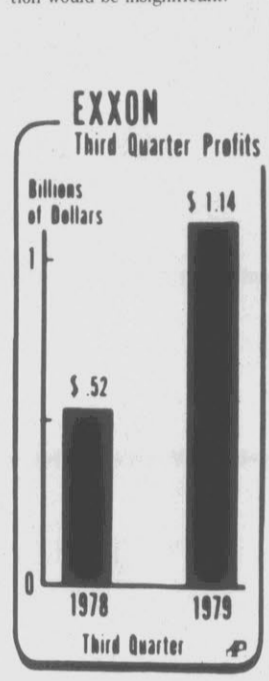

The FBI report is scheduled to be officially released Wednesday.

In 1977 the only cities leading Fayetteville in violent crimes were New York, Miami, Los Angeles, Baltimore, Las Vegas, and North Charleston, S.C., according to the report.

But in 1978, cities that moved ahead of Fayetteville were: San Francisco, Pueblo, Colo.; Flint, Mich.; Little Rock, Ark.; Orlando, Fla.; Lakeland, Fla.; Gainesville, Fla.; West Palm, Fla.; Columbia, S.C.; and Savannah, Ga.

A drop in all four categories of violent crime were recorded in Fayetteville during the 1978 reporting period. Murders dropped from 16.4 to 13.7 per 100,000 population; forcible rapes dropped from 47 to 42.4 per 100,000 population; robberies dropped from 215.2 to 168.8 and aggravated assaults dropped from 609.9 to 560.7.

By comparison, national figures show an increase of 2.3 per 100,000 population for murders committed; an increase of 5.8 for forcible rapes; an increase of 2.2 for robberies; and an increase of 6 for aggravated assaults, according to the FBI report.

Seek Cause Of Fish Kill

MONROE, N.C. (AP) - State investigators are studying a fish kill in Richardson Creek to determine if the City of Monroe was responsible for the deaths of an estimated 5,000 fish.

Keith Overcash, a spokesman for the North Carolina Department of Natural Resources and Community Development, said investigators are not sure of the cause yet but there is a possibility the fish were killed by sewage.

City Manager Jim Hinkel said Monday Monroe has dumped sewage treated only with chlorine into the creek during the past several weeks because pumps at the city treatment plant were shut down.

Hinkel said the pumps were replaced as part of a $4.5 million plant improvement project. City crews completed work on the pumps last weekend.

Hinkel said the state department approved the project before it was begun. Overcash, however, said his department's records do not show that the city was given specific approval to dump sewage into the creek.

If the city is found responsible for the kill, the state could fine it up to $5,000 per day for cleaning up the creek and replacing the fish.

The bidding:
South West North East

1 ♦ Pass Pass 2 ♦
2 ♦ Dble. Pass Pass

Opening lead: Seven of ♠.

We have not heard about anyone handing out medals for bravado while under fire in the auction. But there must be one, because nothing else can account for South's action on this hand.

When your partner has failed to keep your opening bid alive, it is no time for you to be stubborn. South, who was looking at half the strength in the pack, resented that the opponents were trying to take the hand away from him, so he decided to show his other four-card major. West did not fall into the common error of bidding two no trump; he selected the more profitable policy of having the opponents work for him.

West led the seven of diamonds. East won the jack and shifted to the jack of hearts. When he regained the lead with a diamond, he played another heart. When the smoke had cleared, declarer had a total of five tricks and East-West had racked up 800 points.

North put the conventional question to his partner: "Did my pass deceive you?"

"I was absolutely justified," replied South. "I had 19 points in high cards alone!"

South was another victim of over-counting. Remember, they do not pay off on points. It is the little stacks of four cards each at the conclusion of the hand that decide the winners and the losers.

There was absolutely no excuse for South's second bid. North, by failing to keep the auction open, had confessed that his hand was trickless. When you have a trickless partner, do not even think in terms of points. Ask yourself: How many tricks can I make single-handed? Not with even a great stretch of optimism could South expect his hand to produce six tricks.

That was the least he needed to come in at the two-level. Even with that, it would have meant a penalty of 500 points if the opponents doubled—a contingency which should not have appeared at all remote. Be careful of going two-on-one against the defenders—they can make life very difficult.

Pleased Over TV Proposals

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The deadline for submitting series proposals for public television's first Program Fair was Monday, and the project's sponsors said they were pleased with the response to their call for innovative new material.

"We made a very concentrated effort to get independent producers on our bandwagon," said Ron Devilier, a vice president for programming for the Public Broadcasting Service, "and we're feeling very good about the response."

"Last year, we had one series proposal from an independent producer," Devilier said, "and this year, with the Program Fair, we have 35. Not all of those will get on the air, but we're excited about the number of proposals."

Independent producers have long complained that the PBS programming system does not welcome their work. In fact, the recent Carnegie Commission on the Future of Public Broadcasting acknowledged "complaints by independent producers about lack of access and attention."

The commission, reporting in January, suggested creation of a Center for Independent Television, "whose job would be to develop broadcast formats that can take advantage of the range of talent among independent producers."

There have been modest attempts to expand the market for independents. PBS circulated an Independent Producers Handbook about 18 months ago, and some stations, like New York's WNET, sponsor projects to encourage work by independent filmmakers.

Nonetheless, one method PBS uses to select programs, the Station Program Cooperative, has in a sense been counterproductive to the development of independent sources of programs.

Opposes Role For Vanessa

NEW YORK (AP) — Fania Fenelon, who wrote a book about her experiences in a Nazi concentration camp, has met with CBS officials to protest the casting of Vanessa Redgrave in the part of the author.

Miss Fenelon held a news conference Monday to denounce what she termed the insensitivity of the network in casting Miss Redgrave. The actress is a supporter of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Miss Fenelon's book, "Playing for Time," describes how she survived the camp by playing in an all-woman orchestra.

CBS issued a statement that said while it had no intention of offending anyone or desecrating the memory of Nazi victims, it would not remove Miss Redgrave.

French Version Of StarTrek

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The Starship Enterprise traveled the galaxy as usual this weekend, but to some Tallahassee viewers, it appeared the destination might be the Twilight Zone.

Capt. Kirk met Mr. Spock with, "Bonjour," and Scotty's accent was decidedly not Scottish.

Joe Hosford of station WCTV said the distributor mistakenly sent the French version of the hour-long science fiction show, and the station's film editor edited only the picture without checking the sound before it was televised.

"The SPC has developed a fairly predictable pattern, with most of the available funds being committed to series the stations are most familiar with," PBS said in announcing the Program Fair project last August.

Most of the proposals for

To Upgrade Dog's Life

WYTHEVILLE, Va. (AP) — Going to the dogs will never be the same if proposed state Health Department rules take effect.

The regulations will require animal shelters to have electric-lighted rooms with skylights, thermostatically operated fans and fully equipped kitchens.

Wythe County Administrator Billy R. Branson complained Monday that the proposals are the "dream of some state bureaucrat who has nothing else to do except try to overregulate local governments."

Branson said the requirements for windows and skylights to admit a specific level of light exceed those for homes, hospitals and schools.

The proposed rules also would require that kitchens "be equipped with a minimum of a two-compartment sink and drainboards, stove, refrigerator, countertop space and storage bins. The equipment used shall be of a type that is easily cleanable...Bins used to store food shall be rodent proof."

Branson said the county feeds animals in its pound a dry food mixture that is "a well-balanced diet and requires no cooking."

series will be reviewed. Devilier said, during the Program Fair, to be held during PBS' annual programming conference in San Francisco Jan. 13-17.

The selected programs will be screened by station officials as a step in the normal SPC bidding process. In SPC, stations bid on programs submitted by stations and groups of stations, as well as outside sources.

Priscilla Tries A TV Career

NEW YORK (AP) — Priscilla Presley is launching her new career, following in the footsteps of three stars of the "Charlie's Angels" television series.

She's going into television, but not in one of the coveted "Angels" spots.

The ex-wife of Elvis Presley has begun filming commercials as a spokeswoman for Wella Balsam shampoo, a job previously held by Farrah Fawcett, Jaclyn Smith and Cheryl Ladd.

"I don't want a movie career," she said. "It's just too time consuming. In fact, this is pretty hectic."

Trying Make Room For Olympic Crowd

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet authorities, faced with an expected influx of 220,000 tourists for the 1980 Moscow Olympics, are attempting to reduce the city's population by urging children — and many adults — to make plans to leave the city.

Officials of the Ministry of Education and the Olympic Organizing Committee distributed appeals at Moscow elementary schools urging parents to send their children to visit relatives outside the city, or to the network of "pioneer camps," during July and August. The camps, subsidized by trade unions, hosted over 600,000 Moscow children last year.

"Of course, there can be no compulsion in this matter," conceded an educational ministry official Monday. "This is not an order, just a suggestion to parents."

children of elementary school age in Moscow, a city of eight million residents.

Final examinations at several Moscow institutes have been moved up to May in order to permit students to leave the city by summer.

Fewer Attended State Fair

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Bad weather, the economy and two football games are being blamed for the decline in attendance at the 1979 N.C. State Fair.

Preliminary figures released Monday show that 546,000 people attended this year's fair compared to last year's attendance of 662,000, according to the fair's publicity director, Robert L. Willis.

The drop reverses a trend set in recent years of increased attendance.
