

Big Eastern Belt Sales Sharply Off

By The Associated Press
Flue-cured tobacco markets on the Eastern Belt ended sales in North Carolina Tuesday with a record average price but lower gross sales and revenue.

And industry experts were predicting the drop in revenue would be felt by all North Carolinians, not just growers.

Gross sales were down $146.8 million from last year on the Eastern Belt, and revenue dropped almost 24 percent while the average price per hundred pounds climbed to a record high of $139.26. This marks an increase over last year of almost 4 percent.

Total poundage dropped 26 percent from last year.

The Eastern Belt is the largest of the three flue-cured belts with markets in North Carolina, Poundage and total revenues are down on the Border Belt and the Old and Middle Belt also.

Final total figures are not available, however, since sales are continuing on the Old and Middle Belt. The Federal State Market News Service says the state's total revenue to date from all three belts is $907 million.

The drop in revenues is expected to be felt throughout Eastern North Carolina's tobacco community, according to tobacco experts and agriculture economists.

John H. Cyrus of the state Agriculture Department's tobacco affairs section said the 1979 crop will probably be the smallest since 1959, when total poundage stood at 650 million.

"There's no question but that we're coming up real short, and a lot of farmers are going to be hurting," he said. "About the only record we'll set this year is in average price. We're down in money, down in poundage."

The decline follows a banner year last year when tobacco sales topped the billion dollar mark for the first time.

"I think it's (drop in revenues) going to have a definite effect on all of us," said W.C. Ayscue Jr., assistant vice president of the Rocky Mount office of the Production Credit Association, which makes farm loans.

"Not only is it going to hurt the farmer, it's going to hurt the businessman in town and all of us," he said.

Ayscue likened this season to the disastrous one in 1977. "It's going to be very similar to what happened in '77. A lot of them haven't come out of that yet."

Three factors are expected to boost final season totals. One will be the addition to 1979 total revenue figures of about $26 million for the sale of about 20 million pounds of 1978 tobacco produced above the quota limit.

Another factor will be the $15 million in insurance settlements for tobacco damaged by a contaminated fertilizer. And the third will be the sale of burley tobacco in Western North Carolina.

Tests, Possible Surgery For Shah

NEW YORK (AP) — Guarded by his private security force and a veil of secrecy, Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, ousted ruler of Iran, faced more tests and possibly surgery today at New York Hospital amid reports he has been treated for cancer for years.

A spokesman, Robert Armao, described the shah as in good spirits, saying he was "happy to be in the United States." Armao said reports of the shah's condition had been exaggerated.

"He is far from breathing his last breath, but obviously he is an ill man," the American spokesman said. Armao said the shah had received "thousands of telegrams from Iranians" wishing him well.

A hospital administrator said reports on the shah's condition would be updated today, but declined to say what information, if any, had been obtained through various tests already completed.

A State Department source, who asked not to be identified, said the shah had a blocked bile duct and was suffering from cancer. He did not specify the type of cancer.

The New York Daily News today quoted unidentified sources as saying the shah had lymphoma, cancer of the lymph system, and had been receiving chemotherapy treatment for years.

It said the chemotherapy recently had become less effective and the shah had developed a high fever and lost weight.

CBS and the Daily News, meanwhile, reported the shah would undergo gallbladder surgery today. Blockage of the ducts through which bile leaves the liver can be caused by tumors, inflammation and gallstones.

The newspaper said Dr. Benjamin Kean, the shah's personal physician, would oversee a team of surgeons including Dr. Burton Lee, a noted lymphoma specialist, in the operation.

Analysts Are Dubious Over Windfall Tax

By MARK POTTS
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The Carter administration says the recent profits of oil companies demonstrate the need for a "windfall-profits tax." But analysts say the president's proposal would have had little impact on those earnings.

With several oil companies saying their profits at least doubled in the third quarter over last year, administration officials have renewed efforts in recent days to push the windfall-profits tax through Congress.

On Tuesday, Conoco Inc., the nation's ninth-largest oil company, said its third-quarter profits were 134 percent above last year's third-quarter. Gulf Oil Corp., ranked fifth, reported a 97 percent increase in profits, compared with the 1978 quarter.

Today, Cities Service Co., the nation's 17th largest oil company, said its third-quarter profits rose 64 percent, while Marathon Oil Co., virtually tied with Cities Service in U.S. oil company rankings, said its third-quarter profits were up 58 percent.

Earlier, Exxon, the world's largest oil company, had posted a 118 percent gain for the quarter; Standard Oil Co. (Indiana), a 49 percent increase; and Atlantic Richfield Co., 45 percent.

"The third-quarter earnings reports of major U.S. oil companies dramatize the merits of our proposed windfall-profits tax, which is fair both to the oil companies and to the American people," Treasury Secretary G. William Miller said Tuesday, echoing a statement the president made Monday.

Miller said the tax is needed to develop alternate energy sources and assist poor families overburdened with high fuel costs.

President Carter proposed the tax earlier this year to dampen the profits oil companies earn from the decontrol of domestic crude-oil prices, which began several months ago. The tax actually would be on the extra revenue, not profits, from decontrol. Without the tax, oil companies would keep more of the revenue as profits.

The Senate Finance Committee planned to discuss a windfall-profits tax bill today. The Senate version of the tax would produce an estimated $142 billion in revenues from 1980 to 1990. The House has already passed a bill backed by the president that would produce twice the revenues contained in the Senate proposal.

But most of the profits being reported by oil companies for the third quarter are the result of increased earnings from foreign operations, which would be unaffected by the proposed tax.

The amount of oil-company profits this quarter that could have been affected by the tax, even in its most stringent version, is quite small, according to Larry Goldstein, an analyst at the Petroleum Industry Research Foundation, a study group partially supported by oil industry funds.

Suspect Pirates Attacked Boat

KOTA KINABALU, Malaysia (AP) — A passenger launch with 44 persons aboard is missing off the east coast of Malaysia, and officials say they think pirates hijacked it.

The Saleha Baru left Semporna at 7 a.m. Tuesday and today still had not arrived at its destination, Lahad Datu. The trip normally takes 3½ hours. Officials said pirates made several attacks off Semporna recently.

Three Senators Plead To Feed Cambodians

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Three U.S. senators made a 12-hour visit to Phnom Penh today in a bid to win approval of their plan to deliver food to the starving Cambodians by truck convoys from Thailand.

Sens. James Sasser, D-Tenn., John Danforth, R-Mo., and Max Baucus, D-Mont., and two State Department officers accompanying them were the first American officials to visit the Cambodian capital since the communist victory 4½ years ago. They traveled on a U.S. government plane.

After their return here, the group gave no immediate report on the success of the mission.

A spokesman for the senators said earlier they were "excited about the prospect of going to Phnom Penh" but had no assurance Cambodian officials would meet with them.

To expedite distribution of food to the estimated 2 million Cambodians threatened with starvation, the senators are proposing that truck convoys carry 1,000 tons a day from Thailand to Cambodia for six months. One source said the proposal was still in the "theoretical stage."

The International Red Cross and the U.N. Children's Fund are in charge of delivering the food and medical supplies which the United States and other countries are beginning to send to Southeast Asia for the relief of the Cambodians. The Red Cross is flying 15 tons of food and medicine from Bangkok to Phnom Penh daily, and 10,400 tons are due by sea before the end of the month.

The United States has pledged $7 million to the program, and a report from Washington said President Carter would pledge about $35 million more today. The report said the House Foreign Affairs Committee was expected to approve a bill today authorizing the money.

Arrangements for the senators' one-day trip were made with the Vietnamese embassy in Bangkok and with Vietnam's acting foreign minister, Nguyen Co Thach, who is visiting Thailand.

Leonid Seen In Public

MOSCOW (AP) — Leonid I. Brezhnev made his first public appearance today since Oct. 8, firmly putting to an end rumors that the 72-year-old Soviet leader had died.

He turned out with other top Kremlin officials to greet visiting South Yemeni leader, Abdul Fattah Ismail, the Soviet news agency Tass reported.

Brezhnev's airport appearance for the arrival ceremony marked the first time he had been seen in public since he returned from a trip to East Germany.

The Soviet president's absence from public view and his failure to meet with visiting Syrian President Hafez Assad last week had prompted a flurry of rumors that Brezhnev was gravely ill or dead.

Syrian officials had been told that Brezhnev was ill, but the specific nature or medical seriousness of his malady was not disclosed.

Tass said Brezhnev was joined by Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, Defense Minister Dmitri F. Ustinov, Politburo alternate member Boris N. Ponomarev and other Soviet officials in welcoming Ismail.

The Yemeni state leader, who is also general secretary of South Yemen's Socialist Party, flew into Moscow from Tashkent, capital of Uzbekistan in Soviet Central Asia.

Penniless

DETROIT (AP) — Penniless Wayne County, third most populous in the nation, will lay off most of its employees in two weeks and pay the rest with promissory notes as it struggles to get out from under a $19.5 million debt.

County commissioners Tuesday approved the plan to furlough most of the 5,300 full-time employees. The exact number to be sent home has not been determined. Commissioner Alex Pilch said he expected workers to remain until the county Labor Department decides who will be cut. But American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees spokesman Eugene S. Guido said he had no idea whether workers would remain on the job. So far they have despite a payless payday Friday.

County officials asked AFSCME on Monday to waive the two-week layoff notice mandated by union contracts, a move the union rejected. Tuesday's resolution circumvents the issue by giving county department heads two weeks to decide which positions to cut. The resolution calls for maintenance of only the county morgue, the jail and youth home and Wayne County General Hospital, which commission Chairman Richard Manning said loses $500,000 a month.

Manning said he had been meeting with major Detroit banks that tentatively have agreed to back the notes and charge the county interest. AFSCME filed a lawsuit in county circuit court last week to block IOU's, but Guido said Tuesday the union may agree to them.

Should Know Club Rules

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I recently joined a tennis club. On our first day at the club, I was terribly embarrassed when my husband, who was wearing dark-colored street clothes instead of the usual white shorts or pants and white shirt, was refused admittance on the courts!

A big argument ensued, with my husband loudly proclaiming his right to wear whatever he chose.

My husband finally won and was allowed to play tennis in his street clothes.

Abby, can you (or anyone else) explain the reason for wearing white on tennis courts? And was my husband wrong to insist on playing in his street clothes?

NAMELESS, PLEASE

DEAR NAMELESS: On joining a club, members should be familiar with the club rules. If regulation tennis attire is required, then your husband was out of line. I have no idea why white is traditionally worn for tennis, but it certainly looks better. And it's cooler.

DEAR ABBY: I have a very dear younger sister who frequently infuriates me by revealing my age! She does this subtly by telling HER age, then adding that I am nine years older than she is.

I have asked her not to do this, but either she forgets or just doesn't respect my right to privacy.

She says she is "proud" of her age and I shouldn't care who knows mine. What can I do about it?

KENTUCKY FRIED CHICKEN

DEAR CHICKEN: Nothing, so don't get your tailfeathers up.

DEAR ABBY: I have attended dinner parties and noticed that some people turn their wine glasses upside down to indicate that they do not wish to be served any wine.

Is this considered proper etiquette?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: No. A word to the waiter is sufficient.

DEAR ABBY: After reading your column on gay spouses, I just had to write.

It is a shock and a heartache when a wife finds out that her husband has had an affair with another woman, but I cannot comprehend how any woman could accept a MAN as her competition. She would have to be "meshugga" (crazy)—and with children in the house yet!

How can any normal woman let a man who has been with another man touch her? To me, it is unthinkable.

A YIDDISHE MAMA IN EL TORO, CALIF.

DEAR MAMA: To you it is "unthinkable." But to those who have studied bisexuality and realize that one's sexual preference is rarely a matter of choice, it is understandable. This is not an endorsement of infidelity of any kind, but rather an attempt to shed some light on one of the most misunderstood of all sexual behaviors.

DEAR ABBY: I have a strange (and touchy) problem. We recently retired and moved to a lovely resort town. In the six months we've been here, we've had five different couples from all over the country visit us. Some stayed a weekend. Others longer.

Our guests use a sofa-bed in the library where all our books are kept.

Several days ago my husband and I were discussing a certain book, so I went to get it. It was gone. In fact, on the same shelf I saw four "holes" where four other books had been. I hate to think that one of our houseguests had taken these books, but there is no other explanation.

I have made a practice of writing my name on the flyleaf of all my books, but, of course, the flyleaf could have easily been torn out.

My question: If I should visit the home of one of these guests and see a book I'm sure is mine, should I ignore it, or say something? And if you think I should say something, what should I say?

DISAPPOINTED

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: Don't ignore it. Say, "I see you were so fascinated with my book that you took it home to finish it. May I have it now?"

Some European Women Excelled During 1979

By MARCUS ELIASON
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — For Europe, 1979 is The Year of the Woman.

Britain and Portugal have female premiers, six women serve in the Swedish Cabinet, and the newly elected European Parliament has a woman president.

And few symbolize better than Simone Veil of France how far Europe has evolved toward liberal democracy.

It was little more than a generation ago that Adolf Hitler tried to unite Europe by force — a quest which, under Nazi doctrine, called for putting Mrs. Veil and her fellow Jews in concentration camps.

Today Mrs. Veil is the Grande Dame of Europe, France's most popular politician, and president of the 410-member European Parliament.

"Being a woman did not play a role in getting me this position," says Mrs. Veil, 52. "But it didn't work against me either, and that's something too."

That's quite a change from what she said when she entered politics in 1974 as France's health minister: "I am a minister only because I am a woman."

Today, if Mrs. Veil is any yardstick, France no longer needs tokens.

Far from being a feminist militant, the graceful and matronly Mrs. Veil seems surrounded by paradoxes.

A woman who achieved in five years what would take most politicians a lifetime is a political novice whose only experience is a term at the relatively minor post of health minister.

This mother of three pushed a liberal abortion law through her country's Parliament in 1975.

This unabashedly heavy smoker championed a government program to curb smoking.

Simone Jacob was born in Nice in 1927, daughter of an architect. At the age of 17 she and her family were rounded up by French police under Nazi orders and sent to Bergen-Belsen concentration camp, and then to Auschwitz. Her parents and brother died there.

After the war, she went back to France to rebuild her life. She studied law and took a succession of jobs at the Justice Ministry, ultimately becoming a magistrate.

In 1946 she married Antoine Veil, a businessman who now runs UTA, a French international airline.

Veil's connections with Valéry Giscard d'Estaing, who became president of France in 1974, brought his wife into contact with France's top officialdom.

When Giscard d'Estaing became president he wanted a woman in his Cabinet.

The French, who invented the word chauvinism, gaped at the phenomenon of the femme politique. Nothing Mrs. Veil did or said went unnoticed. The press called her Simone.

The high point of her career was the victory in Parliament of a law she sponsored legalizing abortion in the first 10 weeks of pregnancy.

Many were outraged. Anti-abortion activists played a recording of a fetus' heartbeat in the Parliament chamber, and a deputy shouted: "Madame le ministre, do you want to send children to the ovens?"

Mrs. Veil, stunned by the allusion to Nazi crematoria, slumped on the podium in tears. It was a rare loss of self-control.

Mrs. Veil (pronounced Vay) led a list of candidates for the European Parliament on Giscard d'Estaing's behalf and won handily.

Seeking the presidency of the Parliament, she faced hostility of Italian and Irish Catholics toward her abortion record, and had to persuade non-French deputies that she was independent and not Giscard's arm in the Parliament. To underline this, she quit the French Cabinet to devote herself to European matters.

She is realistic about the Parliament's meager powers. She knows individual governments will fiercely oppose attempt by the assembly to appropriate a say in major European concerns like arms control or the energy crisis.

Today she is the most prominent of the so-called Dames de Giscard — talented women the president has picked as advisors and executives.

In addition to Mrs. Veil, Giscard d'Estaing's "dames" include Alice Saunier-Seite, 54, minister for universities since 1976, who was appointed to the post after serving as France's first woman university department chairman; and Monique Pelletier, 52, minister for the "Feminine Condition," a department Giscard d'Estaing created to handle the full range of women's affairs.

Francoise Giroud, 62, a respected journalist and author, was one of Giscard's first women advisors and was named to the Cabinet in 1974 as Secretary of State for the Feminine Condition. She has since left the government.

Mrs. Veil is asked how she, as a Jew and survivor of the holocaust, felt on picking up the gavel for the first time in pre-

Health Dept. Cookbook Is Best Seller

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

The recipes often have funny titles: bugs-on-a-log, sneaky meatloaf and moosicles.

But the book is no joke. In fact, "Wic and You and Recipes Too" is one of the finest works we have seen on the subject of nutrition.

The Minneapolis Department of Health, which published it, has a runaway best seller on its hands.

"Orders (from all over the United States) are becoming more than we can handle," Mrs. Elizabeth S. Holey said in a telephone interview.

Mrs. Holey, senior nutritionist for the department, said demand was touched off by a U.S. Department of Agriculture news release telling how the cookbook was developed and edited by two Twin Cities dietitians, Lois Peterson and Lois Schmidt.

Mrs. Holey said the Minneapolis and St. Paul health education departments wanted to help families who are participating in the federally funded supplementary feeding program called "Women, Infants and Children" — WIC for short.

"So many WIC mothers have no recipes and no cookbooks," Mrs. Holey said. "We wanted to provide low cost recipes using practical foods that would be nutritious."

Some recipes were contributed by health department staff members. Many others are from a contest the Minneapolis and St. Paul Health Departments sponsored for WIC mothers. WIC program children drew the illustrations.

"We tested the recipes they (the mothers) submitted to make sure they worked," Mrs. Holey said.

Recipes high in certain nutrients are identified with amusing drawings. An A with eyes means high vitamin A content; capital I, high in iron; a bent arm with bulging muscle and the letter P, high protein.

Low calorie recipes carry an arrow pointing down. Calcium-rich recipes, a tooth and a bone.

"Most people we talked to are not vegetable eaters," Mrs. Holey said, except for corn, beans, peas and potatoes.

The cookbook introduces them to such things as broccoli, winter squash, sweet potatoes, pumpkin and tomatoes, all rich in vitamin A, and to nutritious snacks: bugs-on-a-log consists of celery ribs filled with peanut butter or cottage cheese and sprinkled with raisins, sunflower or sesame seeds, for one; walking salad, for another. The salad consists of cheese slices or cole slaw wrapped in lettuce or raw spinach leaves.

The meatloaf is sneaky because it contains not just beef, but also crushed, iron-rich flake cereal, egg, grated carrots and spinach. Mary Hubbard, the recipe contributor, suggests using spinach cooking liquid instead of water to make it moist.

Moosicles are a variation on fusionsicles, made by freezing 1½ cups of fruit juice in six plastic or paper containers with plastic spoons for handles. They become moosicles when you substitute ½ cup of milk or

Booklet Aimed At Teen Parents UMW District Meet Set For Thursday

By ROD PATTERSON
Portland Oregonian
PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — More and more teen-agers who get pregnant are keeping their children and Julie Gomoll, who had a son four years ago at the age of 16 and made the same decision, wanted to ease their burden.

YOUNG MOM—Julie Gomoll, left, of Portland, Ore., who knows through experience the problems of teen-age mothers, has written a book in calendar format, above, as an aid to youthful parents.

As a result, Ms. Gomoll started leading group sessions for teen-age mothers three years ago through the Southeast Portland Youth Service Center.

Although the groups were successful, Ms. Gomoll said she had run across a number of new mothers who were reluctant — for a variety of reasons — to participate in a group.

For those new parents, she has written a book, "Insights," directed to the teen-age parent and designed, she says, to take the group's conclusions and discussions to the individual mother.

Printed on brightly colored construction paper and arranged in a calendar format, the book offers teen-age mothers survival skills, consumer advice, hints for children and hints for parents on "how to get it together."

The book is designed to be tacked on a wall and used regularly for reference, the author said.

The book gives tips on handling finances, as well as how to get the best health care, how to be a good tenant and neighbor, where to find resource material, how to have a telephone installed, advice on discipline, child care and playthings, hints on food and creative housework, and making the home a safe playground for youngsters.

There are also essays on mothering and on males overcoming a fear of children, along with suggestions for snacks and some of Ms. Gomoll's favorite poems.

"I decided to put everything in the whole wide world, for people who weren't into groups," Ms. Gomoll said.

The book's origin was in a briefcase Ms. Gomoll kept filled with single sheets of paper on which she had copied "things I really liked." She also relied on her personal experiences as well as those of other teen-age mothers in her groups to determine the book's content.

"We didn't see it as a factor of determining why women were keeping their babies more now," Ms. Gomoll said. "We said, 'They've got their children now, so let's deal with it.'"

The book — 500 copies were printed — is the result of 800 unpaid volunteer hours and cost less than $1,000, Ms. Gomoll said. She is receiving no money from the sale of the book, distributed through Portland's youth service centers.

The graphics include cartoons of bewildered fathers and hungry children, drawn by Chris Copp who, Ms. Gomoll says, "has a kind of empathy and insight that comes from being a teen-age father for two years himself."

Ms. Gomoll has founded the Portland Alliance Concerned With School-Aged Parents, which she describes as a non-profit, support collective. It was through the organization — and with some financial help from the youth service center — that the book was published.

"People read the book and say it could be for anyone, not just teen-age mothers," Ms. Gomoll said. "Yes, it could be, but it's especially for teenagers because for someone who's 16, it's hard to know where to go to find everything there is to know about child care in one day."

Another person who worked on the book with Ms. Gomoll, Susan Myers, says some young mothers may be aware of the resources that are available to them, but the word doesn't get out.

"They're not people who have worked the welfare system for 27 years," she said. "It's more difficult for them to become self-advocates."

Ms. Gomoll, who is unemployed but looking for a counseling job, did not complete high school but has a social-service aide certificate from Portland Community College which qualifies her as a paraprofessional.

Bright Spot: Tobacco Exports

If all the economic news appears bad these days there is one bright spot in an area that affects our region most.
United States tobacco exports for the last fiscal year set a record with estimated value above $2.2 billion.
There may be a decline in poundage for the present fiscal year, but in the previous one demand was heavy and there was a nine percent increase in total pounds exported.
USDA officials also see an increasing popularity on the foreign markets of American blend cigarettes. Cigarette exports rose from 29 billion in 1970 to 84 billion during the present year.

All of that speaks well for the job tobacco growers have been doing in producing a better quality tobacco. Although there has been some drop in the U.S. share of the leaf trade, the overall demand for our tobacco seems good.
Tobacco exports have been helpful to the United States balance of payments, netting some $1.7 billion.
The tobacco industry is important to our nation in many ways. It stays under constant attack from some quarters, but the economic contribution it makes can't be denied.

Israel's Court May Change History

Just as the United States Supreme Court has changed the course of history, the Israeli may have done so with its ruling against West Bank settlements.

The Israeli court ruled the seizure of land for settlement as illegal. It will undoubtedly be a highly unpopular ruling in Israel, but it may well save the nation.

Documentation Is Asked

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Local school superintendents across North Carolina have been asked by state officials to revise and document their needs for school construction funds as the machinery moves into gear for a statewide bond issue vote as early as next year.
The revised summary of school facility needs is supposed to be completed by mid-October, and the memorandum from the State Department of Public Instruction points out that the local board of education should be asked to approve the estimates, and that the information should be shared with local news media, county commissioners, advisory committees, and interested citizens.
An attached summary sheet also will collect information regarding numbers of students across the state who are housed in mobile units or temporary spaces.
An earlier survey of future school construction, renovation and fuel saving steps yielded a total of more than $1.6 billion compiled by the 145 local school units.

Distribution
On the basis of that data, the State Board of Education and State Supt. Craig Phillips have issued a call for the General Assembly to set up a bond election in the neighborhood of $600 million. The state funds would be distributed to local units on a per-student basis, and matched three-for-one with local money.
A legislative study committee is now preparing to review the situation to determine if a vote will be set up and Gov. Jim Hunt has said he will be waiting for information before deciding whether to endorse the bond issue.
Local superintendents have been reminded that the legislative commission "has been appointed ... At this time, we have no knowledge of how they will proceed. They may accept the data already collected or they may wish to conduct further studies."
Since the earlier facility needs estimates came in, a number of local units have said they were too conservative in estimates; looked only at immediate needs; have since drawn up long-range plans or otherwise have information which would tend to change their estimates.

Meanwhile, inflation continues to pump the estimated construction costs up by about one percent each month. All of which, state officials are saying, means revised estimates are necessary; and probably revised upwards.
The general decline in student enrollment has made it necessary for state educators to come up with detailed reasons for the bond issue other than for new school construction.
Replace
Officials are pointing to the need to replace antiquated buildings, the need to provide suitable facilities for the handicapped, and the need to reduce energy consumption in the schools as primary at this time.
The state department survey has shown that about 30 percent of the "teaching stations" in the state are in buildings constructed prior to 1949.

Some such buildings, dating back as far as the 1920s and 1930s are in solid structures of brick or stone, such as high schools at Hendersonville, Asheville, New Hanover, and Broughton in Raleigh. Most, however, are not fire-resistant buildings, and many are in multi-story buildings which officials say are not suitable for renovation and modernization and will have to be replaced.
BILL NOBLITT
Further, state officials contend that despite student enrollment, the addition of public school kindergarten with 76,000 children enrolled, and the expansion of remedial programs and special programs for exceptional children are creating a need for even more classrooms.

The Marines In Action

WASHINGTON — As a former U.S. Marine I swelled with pride last week when I saw the leathernecks hit the beach at Guantanamo Bay on television. It was a scene out of one of John Wayne's best movies. There they were, 1,800 men strong, covered by 80 newspaperpersons, television and radio crews brought to the island especially by the Defense Department to make sure that the world knew that President Carter was taking a tough stand on Cuba.
Of course, no marine landing ever goes smooth. For one thing weather held up the exercise and for another the time had to be set back when it was discovered that the television cameramen wouldn't have enough light to get the pictures they wanted.

But as the colonel of the operation said, "The landing went just like a ballet."
As with every military exercise there is a post-mortem in which the officers and sergeants thrash out their mistakes.
I'm sure it must be going on right now.
"Men, I'm proud of all of you. The Guantanamo exercise will go down in history

Other Editors Say Close Look Due

(Washington Daily News)
We read with a degree of great surprise and with greater alarm that a medical entomologist has charged that mosquito control funds in our neighboring Pamlico County have been used to drain farmlands and to create private boat canals rather than for eradicating mosquitoes.
Now that is a charge that has been made. But it is an ugly charge, and it is one that must not go unchallenged.
Tom Blalock, an entomologist for the State Dept. of Human Resources, made the charge in a study reported to the North Carolina Mosquito Control Association. It has been carried by the Associated Press to member newspapers, radio and television outlets.
Mr. Blalock says that an $800,000 marsh-ditching program in Pamlico County and a three-year $198,200 mosquito control program there have failed to halt massive infestations in some areas, especially Hobucken and Lowland. He says both state and county funds are involved.
As we look at what has been said, we get the definite impression that Mr. Blalock is saying the money has been spent without any efficient or approved plan, and that for all practical purposes much of the money might have been wasted. While he did not say exactly this, we wish to make it clear that we interpret his words in this manner.
Impoundments "designed to eliminate salt marsh mosquitoes have in fact become mosquito problems", says Mr. Blalock. He indicates that money has been spent without any studies being made as to how it could be best spent.
Let us remind all interested parties that $800,000 is a big sum; and $198,200 is not to be sneezed at.
We suspect that Mr. Blalock's criticisms are bound to hit a lot of Pamlico County citizens. If there is something wrong, it should be exposed. But as of this moment many people, we believe, have a cloud of suspicion around them that could be both wrong and certainly embarrassing. The people in question could have believed that they were going about the problem of eliminating mosquitoes in the right way, and that the money actually has been spent in the most practical way they know.
We do not wish to see innocent people hit with harsh criticism, but neither do we want to see those who deliberately do wrong go unnoticed. What we need right now is truth.
Truth will exonerate the innocent and embarrass those not innocent.

"Sir, we tried to get the ships as close to the NBC target as we could, but they set up their cameras on rocks. So we had to land 500 yards downwind from them. The producer wanted us to do it all over again, but we were short of fuel."
"I'll accept that excuse, but you were supposed to take this ledge by 1300 hours. You didn't get there until 1400. What went wrong?"
"We were pinned down by the Washington Post, New York Times and Wall Street Journal reporters. Then the wire service people broke through our left flank and we had our backs to the sea. I told my men to dig in until we got some more PR reinforcements. Then we were ordered not to move out until the Mutual Broadcasting Company got an on-the-spot interview with every member of our mortar platoon."
"I'll accept that. Now we've had an official complaint from CBS that our Cobra gunships drowned out their sound, and they couldn't put an interview with one of our platoon leaders on the air. I gave specific orders—the Cobras were not to fly over CBS when they were filming."

INSIDE REPORT

Media Politics Prevails

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
LEXINGTON, KY. — Proof that celebrity-media politics has arrived in Kentucky came at a poignant moment in the televised debate between former fried chicken magnate John Y. Brown Jr. and ex-Gov. Louie B. Nunn when a document fluttered to the floor.
The document had been brought to the studio by Republican Nunn to dispute Democrat Brown's denials that he had lost costly legal battles as a millionaire businessman. In fact, it merely recorded a judgment against Kentucky Fried Chicken in 1976, five years after Brown sold the company. That triggered nasty charges of mutual dishonesty between the two candidates for governor, with Nunn declaring: "I have looked people in the eye for 16 years and told them the truth."

"Well," Brown retorted, "they don't want you anymore, Louie." It was during this exchange that the document was slammed on the table by Brown and then fell to the floor. Nunn gazed at it, finally deciding not to pick it up. Brown's rejoinder and the fluttering document seemed straight out of prime-time TV drama. The meaning was clear: Old-style politician Nunn had lost any chance to overtake glamor-boy Brown.
Brown reflects two trends: non-political celebrities starting on top in electoral politics; and voter preference for governors untarnished by statehouse intrigue (as in New York, California, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Texas and Alabama). What makes

When Brown announced his candidacy nine weeks before the May 29 Democratic primary, Kentucky's wisest politicians gave him no chance against opponents who had been building their campaigns for four years. Since his divorce a year earlier, Brown had spent little time in Kentucky. He was so unfamiliar with issues that, while campaigning, he asked what "affirmative action" meant. Besides, how would this Bible belt state react to Phyllis?
The antidote was television. TV spots filmed by Washington consultant Robert Squier sidestepped issues and concentrated on image. A widely used two-minute spot showed John Y. and Phyllis in a coal mine shaft wearing headlamps. To make clear the new Mrs. Brown was no femme fatale ("Just a down-home cheerleader from Texas," says one Democratic insider), one five-minute spot included 22 silent seconds of Phyllis signing autographs.

The result was not only Brown's primary defeat of the once-potent Democratic courthouse gangs but an immense lead over Nunn. Brown still ignored substance, disturbing Kentucky liberals. One veteran liberal Democrat summed up John Y. as "ersatz Kennedy."
It was then that Louie Nunn, a brass knuckles fighter of the Nixon school, faced an intriguing opportunity. As a serious student of government, he might win the support of liberals (who previously abhorred him) by challenging Brown on the issues.
Nunn finally decided only an assault on Brown's "life-style" could work. Lee Nunn, the candidate's brother and one of the nation's premier backroom hatchmen, tried to plant stories about Brown's alleged high-stake gambling and shady associates. But no proof was produced. Although Nunn's TV spots hammered at Brown's refusal to release income tax returns, polls show the public doesn't mind.

Strength For Today Credit-Extension Strain Seen

GOALS
We may never be able to reach all of our goals in life, but we should establish and pursue them nonetheless. Jesus said, "Be ye perfect." No one has ever been perfect, but true Christians have always been inspired by this admonition. Unless we aim at perfection we shall probably never even attain mediocrity. But it is not enough just to have goals; they must be the right kind of goals. Most of us have goals which are implicit rather than explicit, and sometimes not even recognized as goals. The problem is to get goals which are big enough to be worthy of our greatest efforts and highest achievements.

In the 12th chapter of Hebrews is a statement of the noblest goal a Christian can pursue: "Looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith; who for the joy that was set before him, endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God."
That is the celestial goal. Elisha Douglass

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The strains of credit-extension for businesses and individuals almost certainly will be growing more obvious over the next few months as the Federal Reserve tightens its control of the money supply.
Slow-pay could become noper. Credit "quality" seems destined to deteriorate. Financial institutions and businesses could collapse.
Nobody knows if the scenario will be played out, because nobody today can make forecasts more than a few months ahead. But the possibilities are there, or else the knowledgeable people wouldn't be talking about them.

Henry Kaufman, a brokerage house partner considered by some to be a credit-market seer, avoids emotional terms, but he does foresee the setting for "a substantial deterioration in the quality of credit."
Speaking yesterday at a Conference Board meeting in Frankfurt, Germany, Kaufman said "households will try to maintain standards of living until financial and economic pressures overwhelm them."

Business, he said, "will be caught in the vise of continued large external cash needs...while internal cash generating will moderate because of the squeeze on profits."
Not a doomsday forecast by any means, but a sobering one, as is that made a few weeks ago in Bankers Monthly Magazine by Albert H. Cox, Jr., president of Merrill Lynch Economics Inc.
"Consumer loans appear to be particularly vulnerable," he wrote. "One wonders what might happen as employment falls and if the economic downturn should be unusually long."
"General business loans also bear close watching," he wrote. "Another Penn Central or two in 1980, on the heels of the Chrysler experience."
"It's hard to say, but it is worthwhile, at this stage of the game, to do everything necessary to get ready for the possibility of a lot of problem loans."

A Man Leaves Marks

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Walter Hendricks died the other day at age 87.
The obits said he was a writer, publisher and educator, who had founded, personally dreamed up, scrounged the money for and helped build with his own hands three Vermont liberal arts colleges: Marlboro, Windham and Mark Hopkins, which surely is accomplishment enough for any lifetime.
Just a few weeks ago, before the weather turned cold, I was sitting out on the deck with a neighbor who is professor of philosophy at Pratt Institute. The conversation turned to the most remarkable people we had met in our lifetimes.
Walter Hendricks topped both our lists. We had met him at the same time, in the summer of 1945, at Biarritz, France, where the U.S. military had assembled a bunch of college professors to set up an overnight university for GIs who didn't have enough service in to be mustered out.
Hendricks, a tall, spare Midwesterner of Norwegian parentage, had arrived from the Chicago Institute of Technology to set up the English Department. I was 19 years old and a private, not even a PFC, who had arrived to enroll as a student after a two-day trip in a box car from the Ruhr Valley, where our rifle company was guarding a recently surrendered German division. Philip, a lieutenant in Army intelligence, had been assigned to teach literature under Hendricks at Biarritz.
Right off, I found myself back in a boxcar again, heading for Namur, Belgium. Classes were due to start in two days, but no textbooks had arrived. Hendricks learned that a quartermaster depot up in Namur had a warehouse full of Armed Services paperbacks, which might include enough classics to get things going. He got on the phone and somehow cut through the Army red tape to have the whole shipment consigned to him. Orders were cut to have me bring back the books.
Walter plainly was a man who could get things done. Something about the impromptu academic life of Biarritz, the lust for learning that so many GIs exhibited after months of murderous war, touched him deeply. Daydreaming in the midst of his Chaucer classes, he talked about turning his 600-acre Vermont farm into a small college, where students and faculty would live together as a community of scholars.
Two years later, still roaming around Europe, I received a letter from Walter Hendricks. He had opened his log hut for business, and there was room at the other end of the bench. Would I come join him at Marlboro College? I would be the only senior.
When I got there, the dream was hardly out of the planning stage, which Walter, not being concerned with material things, didn't exactly spell out to the parents. Some students were living in tents. Luke Dalrymple, the $2-an-hour handyman who actually built the college, was nailing the roof on the hayloft of a 100-year-old barn that was to become my third-floor dormitory.
Walter coaxed his friend and fellow Vermont farmer, Robert Frost, to deliver a poem at Marlboro's first graduation, which also was attended by me, the lone graduate; Ellsworth Bunker, a trustee and neighbor who later became U.S. ambassador to Saigon, and Vermont Gov. Ernest Gibson. That house later became Mark Hopkins College, now the country's smallest accredited liberal arts college, with 203 students and 35 faculty members.

At the only debate agreed to by Brown, Nunn pressed the "life-style" attack (emphasizing that a seaman hired by Brown to run his yacht had been convicted for marijuana smuggling). It was a disaster. The saturnine Nunn seemed nervous; Brown, with his blue button eyes, was Mr. Clean.

Although one new poll puts Brown 30 percentage points ahead, old-timers wonder: after all, Brown has been habitually late for appearances and has never reconciled the courthouse gangs. In fact, he will rely on outside paid professional Matt Reese getting out the vote on Nov. 6 just as he did on primary day.

What kind of governor Brown will be is Kentucky's mystery. Although he has wooed teachers by endorsing collective bargaining and feminists by embracing ERA, what little ideology he has seems closer to Jack Kemp than Ted Kennedy. "The more I look at Washington, the more socialistic I feel we're getting," he told us. "The one thing that built this nation, and we should never forget it, is that we had a system of government that put incentive first — the free enterprise system."

Everybody in Kentucky comments that "John Y. has a short attention span." Aides complain they cannot pin him down long enough to get his position on education. As governor, he would not sit tight in Frankfort but promises travel to Washington, Wall Street, Europe and Japan in Kentucky's behalf.

With the new Mrs. Brown resuming her show business career, the new governor also will be juggling to keep her company. But there is no sign Kentuckians object. Nor have they shown interest in scanty government expertise or unreleased tax returns. They want in office not a politician but a successful businessman, and the more glamor the better. Their TV sets show John Y. fits this pattern perfectly and Louie not at all.

Remember mothers-in-law? They used to be the most talked-about women in the world. By reputation, if she was the bride's mother she was the one who ran the whole wedding. If she was the bridegroom's mother, she wore beige and kept her mouth shut. She used to exist in great numbers. You couldn't go to a party without tripping over a couple of mothers-in-law. MIL jokes were on everyone's lips. ("The good news is my mother-in-law drove off a cliff. The bad news is she was driving my car.") One thing you could count on — everyone had one.

That is, until a few years ago, when the trend went to cohabital living, meaningful relationships and live-in dates. As fewer and fewer young people got married, mothers-in-law became an endangered species.

We were sitting around having coffee the other morning when Mayva said, "I'm going to become a mother-in-law in January."

Sara asked her to repeat what she had just said. "I said I'm going to become a mother-in-law in January."

We were stunned. I was suspicious. Mayva was always saying things to get attention. She told us once Deep Throat sent her a Christmas card with his picture on it.

"You're bragging," I said. "No one's kids get married these days."

"I am not," she said defiantly. "My son is getting married and I'm going to be the first lady on my block to become a mother-in-law. Incidentally, what does a mother-in-law do?"

"You don't know?" we asked. "A mother-in-law rides to the church in the front seat with her son and rides home in another car."

"She's in the front row at the wedding and in the kitchen at the reception."

"It should be brought to the attention of the general public that, prior to installing wood or oil heaters, it would be extremely beneficial to call the Inspections Department of the City of Greenville," Chief Building Official Alton E. Warren said.

He said the Inspections Department would like to assure that heaters are being installed in a safe way and in accordance with the Residential Building Code and Minimum Housing Code, Ordinance 766, of the City of Greenville. Both oil and wood heaters must be properly vented into a chimney or other approved method.

Navy Doctor Hopes For A Quick Court Martial

CAMP LEJUENE, N.C. (AP) — Navy doctor Lt. Steven Suits said Tuesday that now that his commanding officer has recommended he be court martialed for refusing a medical assignment on a ship, he hopes the proceedings will begin quickly.

Suits refused the assignment because he says he was pressed into duty before he received proper medical training. "It's what we expected of course," he said Tuesday. "What I hope now is that they'll go ahead and push on through with the trial."

Lt. Col. Roger K. Ryman recommended Tuesday that the 26-year-old Suits of Spartanburg, S.C., face a general court martial for his refusal to board the USS Iwo Jima to serve as one of the ship's two doctors. His recommendation goes to

Maj Gen. David W. Twomey, commanding general of Camp Lejuene, who will make the final decision about a court martial and what punishment Suits might face. Suits refused the sea duty on the Iwo Jima because he says he hasn't been adequately trained to work as a general practitioner. He was called to active duty after completion of one of five years of a surgical residency and assigned to work as a general practitioner. He began refusing to treat patients after a woman he treated fell into a diabetic coma because of the medication he prescribed. The woman later recovered. The Navy at first agreed to allow Suits to refer patients to other doctors, but later ordered him on the Iwo Jima. He was to be the ship's only doctor, but a second doctor was assigned. However, Suits said the second doctor had less training and experience than he had. Ryman recommended that Suits, if found guilty of missing the movement of his unit by design, be sentenced to dismissal from the service, confinement at hard labor for one year, forfeiture of all pay and allowances or a fine.

Maj. T.B. Hamilton, a Marine investigating officer conducting a hearing on Suits case, recommended earlier this month that dismissal not be considered as punishment if Suits is court martialed. Hamilton was the officer who recommended to Ryman that Suits face a court martial.

Couple's Home Is On Ballot

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Fred and Peggy Kraft are on the ballot Nov. 6. In fact, their problem is the only issue in this year's municipal election.

The Krafts want the voters to decide whether the city charter should be amended to let them hook their home up to city water. The water line runs just 30 feet in front of their house at the mouth of Boulder Canyon. The other eight homes in the subdivision were hooked up to city water because they were built before the city's blue-line law — a 1959 attempt at controlling the city's growth — went into effect.

But the Krafts' well is drying up and the blue line prevents them from hooking up to city water. The city turned down Kraft's water line application 10 years ago.

Begin Airing The 'John Hour'

NEW YORK (AP) — The city-owned radio station, WNYC, has broadcast the names of nine men convicted of patronizing prostitutes in the first "John Hour" as promised by Mayor Edward I. Koch.

The station also aired the ages and addresses of the men, convicted since Oct. 9, when Koch said names of those convicted would be broadcast. Four of the men, aged 20 to 64, gave out-of-town addresses. All were arrested in Manhattan.

Koch said the names were being broadcast "to deter people from roaming New York City's streets picking up prostitutes."

FTC Rules AMA Illegally Barred Doctors' Ads

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Medical Association illegally restrained competition among its physician members by restricting their advertising and solicitation of patients, the Federal Trade Commission decided today.

The commission ordered the AMA to stop imposing the restrictions. But, reversing an earlier initial decision by an FTC administrative law judge, the commission ruled that the AMA may formulate "reasonable ethical guidelines" governing acceptable advertising.

"Ethical principles of the medical profession have prevented doctors and medical organizations from disseminating information on the prices and services they offer, thus severely inhibiting competition among health care providers," commissioner David Clanton said in the FTC opinion.

"It is especially important that price advertising remain as unfettered as possible," the opinion added.

Although the AMA had no immediate comment today, the association is thought likely to appeal the FTC's ruling to a federal court. In advance of the decision, the AMA said it would appeal any unfavorable ruling. In permitting the AMA to publish "reasonable ethical guidelines," the commission recognized that the association has a valuable role to play in deceptive advertising by physicians.

In allowing some self-regulation of advertising and solicitation, the FTC declined to follow the law judge's preliminary ruling, which came nearly a year ago.

That decision would have barred the AMA from any regulation of physician advertising for two years and would have allowed the AMA to issue advertising guidelines thereafter only with FTC approval.

The law judge, Ernest G. Barnes, had said the AMA's prohibition against its members soliciting patients has developed into a device for insuring physicians' profits.

Barnes said the AMA's rules for its 200,000 members prevent customers from being told what health services are available.

"The costs to the public in terms of less expensive or even, perhaps, more improved forms of medical services, are great," he said.

State and local medical societies can take disciplinary steps against violators that can make it very difficult to practice medicine. The AMA, which represents about 60 percent of the nation's physicians, is the parent for many of the state and local medical associations that enforce the AMA codes.

Association lawyer Newton Minow, in urging the commissioners to overrule the law judge, said doctors' advertising has led to instances of patients being lured to doctors who cause them physical harm.

"Patients (who testified at hearings) were begging to be protected from quacks who butchered and mutilated them after luring them to come through advertisements," he said. Minow said courts, the FTC and other federal agencies can regulate unfair practices by doctors. "What we ask is that we also have a role. We don't say that doctors have all the answers. But they have some."

The AMA's advertising restrictions are embodied in its Principles of Medical Ethics, adopted early in the century to help end medical quackery.

Barnes said the standards, as they prohibit advertising, are unfair and illegal because they eliminate competition.

The restrictions seek to prevent a doctor from informing the public about his practice in any way that "sets him apart from other physicians," Barnes said.

He said doctors have conspired through the AMA and its affiliated state and county medical societies with the effect of depriving "consumers of the free flow of commercial information that is indispensable in making informed economic decisions."

The 4-year-old FTC case was brought amid a series of rulings giving lawyers, engineers, druggists and optometrists the right to advertise by barring ethical rules against such ads.

Sees Big Port For Chesapeake

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — State Sen. Peter Babalas, D-Norfolk, says when he looks into his crystal ball he sees Chesapeake becoming Virginia's largest port — but the image is clouded. "Whether it is one day, five years or 20 years, Chesapeake will emerge with the largest waterfront seaport," Babalas told the Virginia Port Study Commission Tuesday. He is commission chairman.

Babalas envisions the St. Juliens Creek Annex, now owned by the Navy, taken over by the state for use by the Virginia Port Authority. He says Gov. John Dalton has agreed to study the idea.

But Chesapeake wants the 489 acres for industrial development and claims it would lose millions of tax dollars if the VPA controlled the land.

Before Virginia could acquire the property, the Navy would have to declare it surplus, and the Navy now plans to get rid of only 35 acres. Congressional action would be needed to force the Navy to declare all the land surplus.

Babalas says he could help solve Chesapeake's problems by seeking legislation so the VPA could give the city sites for industrial development and let Chesapeake collect taxes on the port.

The senator said his major objective is port unification, to avoid a "return to a city operating a port" — as was the case before the Norfolk and Portsmouth ports were unified under the VPA.

He has denied accusations from Rep. Robert Daniel, R-4th, of playing politics with the port issue.

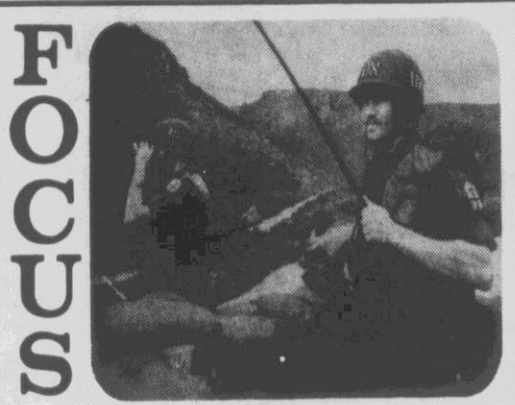

"The problem is that neither Chesapeake nor Daniel understands the VPA and the more than $100 million we've spent on unification of the ports," Babalas said.

Arrest Man On Craven Charges

Greenville Police have arrested James Allen Harris, 30 of Winterville, on drug charges in connection with a case in Craven County, Chief Glenn Cannon reported this morning.

According to the chief, Harris was taken into custody on charges of possession with intent to sell and sale of BDMA in connection with the case, set for trial in New Bern.

Bond for Harris was set at $1,000.

Paying For Big Mistake

CHICAGO (AP) — Velsicol Chemical Corp. has agreed to a $2.6 million settlement covering the claims of 70 Michigan farm families affected by the mixing of the flame retardant PBB with cattle feed six years ago.

In addition to the cash settlement for property damages, the company agreed Tuesday to forgive the debts of those families to farm cooperatives that sold the feed containing the PBB — polybrominated biphenyl. In return, the families agreed to waive any personal injury claims.

Sixty-nine other property damage suits are pending against the company as well as several personal injury claims.

The new settlements bring to 770 the number of PBB-related suits which have been settled out of court by Velsicol, Farm Bureau Services and their insurers. The settlements have amounted to about $42.6 million.

The problem began in 1973 when Michigan Chemical Co. — a division of Velsicol — produced the fire retardant chemical which was inadvertently added to about 320 tons of feed at the company's plant in St. Louis, Mich.

Pens Horsey Tributes

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A horse is a horse, of course, of course — that is, of course, unless the horse is the subject of a Brooks H. Rohde poem.

For the last seven years, Rohde, 26, has suffered from the kind of horsey "fever" generally associated with kids. But while they're out riding, he's in, writing — To wit:

"One has to be quite inquisitive
To find a steed more exquisite."

Since 1972, Rohde, a Ph.D. candidate in biochemistry at Indiana-Purdue University here, has been a self-professed horse-show groupie, galloping from event to event to pen poetic tributes to the beasts he loves best.

Rohde has no car but manages to hop buses or bum rides hundreds of miles to find fodder for his poetic mania. Once there, he says selecting subjects is no problem.

"Sometimes, I take notes. And sometimes the owners describe their horses in ringing tones and I write that down," he said. "They also tell you what not to write." He recalled one owner who didn't want it known his horse was allergic to hay, and another whose steed had a runny nose.

Jail Terms For Six Detectives

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Six Philadelphia homicide detectives have been ordered to begin serving 15-month jail terms for beating witnesses and suspects in a firebombing case.

U.S. District Judge Donald Van Arsdale on Monday directed them to begin their sentences Nov. 8 at a minimum-security prison to be chosen by the Bureau of Prisons. The detectives were accused of beating and threatening witnesses to force them to sign statements used to convict a Philadelphia man in a 1975 firebombing.

Migrant Tomato Strike Appears Still Undecided

By ROSEMARY ARMAO COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Both sides claim success after the second harvest season of a migrant farm labor strike in the tomato fields of northwest Ohio.

Migrant farm laborers struck for higher pay and better working conditions from the canners and growers of the nation's second leading tomato-growing region.

The growers say they reaped almost a full crop this fall by use of mechanical pickers. The workers' organization says much of the crop was lost because wet weather precluded use of the machines.

The workers, organized by the Toledo-based Farm Labor Organizing Committee, picketed fields waving banners and crucifixes. They drove in caravans of dusty pickups and campers through counties of tomato and soybean fields.

The growers responded by buying tractor-pulled mechanical pickers.

Despite the high cost — about $40,000 for each piece of equipment — county agricultural extension agents estimate 75 percent of the $28 million Ohio tomato crop was mechanically harvested this year, compared with 29 percent last year.

The number of migrant workers declined from about 4,000 last year to between 1,200 and 1,500 this year.

Campbell's Soup Co., with a large plant in Henry County, signed contracts with only those farmers who had invested in machinery. The other major Ohio canner, Libby-McNeill & Libby, also urged its growers to mechanize.

"The migrants had an almost zero effect on the situation up there," said C. William Swank, executive vice president of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation.

He said the crop was only "average," but blamed that on wet weather that turned lake-bed soil to muck and covered tomatoes with mildew.

The Ohio Crop Reporting

Service reported tomato production was down about 8 percent from last year. Crop statistician Douglas Hasslen noted that mechanical pickers could not be used in wet fields.

But Baldemar Valesquez, the 32-year-old president of FLOC, discounted such reports. He said the reporting service gets its information from growers who are also members of the federation.

"If you look back to every strike by farm workers," he said, "growers don't admit to being hurt until the contract is signed." As Valesquez sees it, the growers invested in mechanical pickers to thwart the strikers only to have the strategy backfire when the rains came. Then, he said, they couldn't get workers enough to save their crop.

Valesquez took reporters on tomato field tours to point out rows of overripe fruit and to prove his point. He said he wouldn't be surprised if many growers lost up to 50 percent of their crop this year.

"You need workers there as an insurance is what I am saying," said the FLOC organizer who has traveled as far as Mexico and Florida in the off season to advertise the strike and implore migrants not to come to Ohio to work.

He said laborers brought in by the growers walked out of fields in the wake of FLOC religious meetings, horn-honking caravans and picketing by women, children and men.

"We will win, viva huelga (Long live the strike)," Valesquez exhorted at a recent meeting. "We have to win."

Valesquez said the migrants seek a guarantee of at least 28 hours of work every two weeks, pay equal to $3.50 an hour, transportation reimbursement, medical care coverage and a ban on pesticides.

One of the strikers, Inocencio Garcia, 37, a father of seven from Mercedes, Texas, said they want "only a little better life, and the only way anybody gets anything is by uniting."

The migrants have a second strategy, a boycott of Campbell and Libby products. The same strategy worked for the United Farmworkers in California and FLOC leaders, say boycott committees have been set up in 46 cities.

The boycott was endorsed by Council 8 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees of Ohio, which represents 30,000 workers.

Despite picket line rhetoric and long-standing friction between the rural Ohio communities and the Spanish-speaking transients, the strike has been relatively free of violence.

FLOC won a restraining order from Toledo Federal Judge Don J. Young in mid-September blocking alleged harassment, surveillance and trespassing on FLOC property by Putnam County Sheriff Robert Beutler, a man quoted by one reporter as vowing to "fill the courts with those cotton pickers this summer."

The ruling stemmed from FLOC charges that sheriff's deputies beat one of its lawyers and injured a number of children-pickets Sept. 1 when making a mass arrest in a tomato field. Beutler maintained the lawyer hit at him first and was only "subdued" by his deputies. He said a spectator in the jail was later charged with assault when he threw himself on the lawyer. But on the whole, Beutler credits Valesquez with keeping strikers under control, preventing drinking and violence.

Beutler, Valesquez said, is "concerned with law and order, with doing his job, but... he is a politician too. Migrants don't vote."

Appliances Are Exempt

NEW YORK (UPI) — Five major appliance categories will be exempt from the energy efficiency labeling rule when it takes effect in about six months.

Mrs. Jean Pruitt of the Department of Energy says they will not have to be labeled because the differences in operating costs from one model to another is only $1-$2. It would cost manufacturers more than that to label the appliances, and their higher costs would be passed on to consumers, Mrs. Pruitt said in an interview.

The exempt categories are television sets, clothes dryers, ranges and ovens, humidifiers and dehumidifiers and heating equipment other than furnaces.

Under the new ruling, manufacturers will have to make their own labels, using guidelines and specifications established by the DOE. Mrs. Pruitt said the time gap was established to allow manufacturers to exhaust current inventories.

Mrs. Pruitt is appliance labeling program manager for the department's division of buildings and community systems. She was in New York City to participate in a workshop that is part of the DOE's national consumer education program.

Darting Between Cars A Hazard

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) —

Most Halloween accidents result from children darting between cars, says Rollie Schneider, an extension safety specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. Schneider suggests parents follow National Safety Council guidelines for a safe holiday. They include reviewing pedestrian safety rules with the kids, including crossing streets only at crosswalks, never between cars, and using sidewalks, not streets, for going from house to house. Lots of reflective tape on their costumes and trick or treat bags also make them highly visible. At least one child in a group should also carry a flashlight, Schneider says.

Lt. Gov. Green Forms Relection Campaign Team

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green, who began building a campaign war chest with a fund-raising luncheon Tuesday, has formed a re-election campaign staff run by two men with Republican ties.

Green, who faces a challenge in the Democratic primary from House Speaker Carl Stewart, unveiled his campaign staff at the fund-raising event with about 200 supporters at the Raleigh Civic Center.

His newly hired campaign manager is Charlie Brown, a Blowing Rock lawyer who was until recently a Republican.

The other full-time staff member now working for the Green campaign is fund-raiser Haddon Clark. Clark, of Elizabethtown, is also now a registered Democrat, but he was a field representative on Republican Sen. Jesse Helms' re-election campaign staff last year.

Green, who presides over the Senate, has been a close ally of Raleigh Sen. I. Beverly Lake Jr., who this month jumped to the GOP and announced for governor.

Lake has financial backing from the Helms' political organization, the N.C. Congressional Club. But Sen. Craig Lawing, D-Charlotte, who is helping direct Green's re-election campaign, said the Green campaign was making no effort to solicit money or other help from the Helms group.

"We'll take help anywhere we can get it," Lawing said, however. "And people in the Congressional Club are more likely to help Jimmy than Carl."

At the lunch meeting, Green aides distributed pledge cards asking for contributions of $1-

Lawing, Senate majority leader, said the Jimmy Green for Lieutenant Governor Committee hoped to raise several hundred thousand dollars through the event. He said the committee expected to spend $600,000 to $800,000 on the primary campaign.

Following a fried-chicken dinner, the Green supporters were shown a 15-minute slide show on Green's life. It showed pictures of Green as a child, in the Marines, in the Legislature, and with President Carter. Gov. Jim Hunt, Helms and others.

The slide show, produced and narrated by local television weatherman Dick Ellis, ended with an appeal for campaign contributions.

Bill Henderson, a Raleigh developer and Green's finance manager, asked the supporters to fill out their pledges. Half a dozen supporters then rose from the audience to pledge they will raise or contribute amounts ranging from $1,000 to $15,000, and totaling more than $30,000.

"Frankly, I'm just overwhelmed by the support you've shown in the past," Green told the group.

Lawing, in an interview, said he did not consider the fund raising to have been heavy handed.

"This was mild," he said. "You ought to see the ones where they stand over you, point their finger and say, 'how much?' I do mine that way."

Milk Costs Still Rising

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The cost of milk is going up again. North Carolinians can expect to pay at least 8 cents more per gallon by December.

And that's not all. One member of the N.C. Milk Commission, Noel Allen, said Tuesday retail prices may increase as much as 16 cents per gallon by Dec. 1.

If present economic conditions continue, Grady Cooper Jr., executive secretary of the commission, predicted 20-cent increases in farm prices in February and April. Each 20-cent increase in farm prices translates to about 2-cents-a-gallon on the retail level. Farm prices usually increase in increments of 20 cents by the commission's pricing formula.

The commission Tuesday approved a 60-cent December farm price increase that accounts for 6 cents of the upcoming increase. That increase was approved on a 5-3 vote. It would make the farm milk price $14.33 per 100 pounds of milk.

A 20-cent increase for Nov. 1 has already been approved and will mean a 2-cents-per-gallon hike.

The farm price increase came Tuesday after complaints from dairy farmers who say farm milk prices are not keeping pace with inflation under the commission's pricing formula, which would have called for a 20-cent hike.

Those complaints were lodged at an Oct. 9 public hearing. Farmers say their operating costs are rising more rapidly than the commission's formula allows them to raise prices.

As a result of the hearing, the commission decided Tuesday to study the pricing formula. It is based on several economic indicators such as fuel and feed costs.

Report Sale Of Feeder Pigs

A total of 16,476 feeder pigs were sold on 14 state graded sales during the week of Oct. 15, according to the Market News Service of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture. US 1-2 pigs weighing 40-50 pounds averaged $42.33 per 100 pounds, with No. 3's, $33.38, 50-60 pound 1-2's, $39.70, No. 3's, $32.80; 60-70 pound 1-2's, $36.50, No. 3's, $31.56; 70-80 pound 1-2's, $34.38, No. 3's, $30.65.

Inside Look At Framing Opinion Poll

By MALCOLM N. CARTER
Associated Press Writer

A recent Roper Report says that support for President Carter rebounded in August, with most Democrats behind him, and that half of the nation doesn't blame him for inflation.

Behind these findings were hours of painstaking discussions in which the Roper Organization tried to predict issues that would remain newsworthy, frame fair questions and reach credible conclusions.

Burns W. Roper, head of the Roper Organization and son of the late founder, gave The Associated Press a rare inside look at the process.

There is considerable debate about a series of questions concerning President Carter's energy policy and the fuel shortage.

The first casualty is a question related to the rejected one are eliminated. And so it goes all morning, three times through the questionnaire, until the pollster reaches his goal.

On the next day, they go through the even more delicate process of trying to avoid influencing a response by using loaded words. They also try to make sure that the questions cannot be misinterpreted.

Shirley Wilkins, Roper's president, interjects. The question goes out anyway — no room.

That decided, three questions related to the rejected one are eliminated. And so it goes all morning, three times through the questionnaire, until the pollster reaches his goal.

effect you think a president can have" and one on "how you would say this president is doing."

The scene shifts. A 62-year-old former case-worker for the juvenile court system is trying to find West Side and Cemetery streets in Funkstown, Md.

On that question about presidential control, the issue of inflation catches the first woman's interest and she misses the point about a president's ability to control it.

occupied mother of a newborn baby.

Next week, Mrs. Ingram says, she'll start on the men.

On Sept. 12, the pollster, Miss Wilkins and analyst Terry Murray are poring over the thick volumes of computerized results.

Only 30 percent said that a president can have "an important and vital effect" on inflation, and Roper says this figure shows why Carter's popularity is higher than other pollsters believe it is.

Indeed, the next question shows that half the public believes he is doing as well as anyone on inflation, unemployment and the like.

A question which asked whether certain issues were getting too much attention in the press was scrapped. After 47 percent of the blacks said the poor got more attention than they deserved, the group took another look at the wording and decided it was confusing.

Plan To Quit Over Computerized Pay

MURFREESBORO, N.C. (AP) — The town of Murfreesboro will be without most of its police officers after Nov. 9 unless something is done about a new computerized payroll that caused a mass resignation Tuesday.

Six of the town's seven officers and a dispatcher handed in their notices Tuesday because they don't like the new system, which has changed payday from once a week to twice a month.

The mayor and town council are scheduled to meet in a special session today to discuss the matter.

Mayor Billy Hill said Tuesday the town's present pay schedule needs to be reviewed, and possibly replaced by the town's old system.

The police officers say that when they received their paychecks on Oct. 19, it marked the first time they had been paid since Sept. 26.

And they claim one week's pay was missing in the switch-over and that they should be compensated. The council has offered to give the officers a $150 advance, but the offer was rejected.

Sgt. Ted Mitchell said the switch to the new system had stretched officers' already slim paychecks to the breaking point.

"All of us had been hired to be paid weekly," he said. "It's a matter of principle. If you're not getting paid, why work?"

Officer Wilbur R. Terry, the only policeman who did not hand in his resignation, said Tuesday he had not decided whether he would join the others.

He said he had taken out a loan to pay bills because of the new pay periods.

If the six policemen leave on Nov. 9, Police Chief Ed Harris said it could be six weeks before new officers are trained to replace them.

What bothers me," Roper continues, "is that you're saying, 'Why is the president doing a lousy job?'"

After considerable wrangling, Miss Wilkins volunteers: "How this inflation problem is handled is largely within the president's control. Whether it is handled well or badly depends upon who is in office."

But Brennan wants to retain an evaluation of Carter, and the group eventually decides on Roper's version.

It breaks the question into two parts — one on "how much effect you think a president can have" and one on "how you would say this president is doing."

The scene shifts. A 62-year-old former case-worker for the juvenile court system is trying to find West Side and Cemetery streets in Funkstown, Md.

In little more than two hours, the first session of group analysis closes. Murray will put their ideas in writing, and the next Roper Reports will go to clients in two or three weeks.

Eye Curfew Receives $285,000 Grant For Developing A New Curriculum

HAVELOCK, N.C. (AP) — If a group of this town's concerned citizens are successful, it may soon be illegal for anyone under the age of 18 to be in a public place between 10:30 p.m. and 6 a.m. during school months.

The Havelock Town Board will hold a public hearing Nov. 19 on a proposed curfew ordinance that if adopted, would be the first of its kind in North Carolina.

It was proposed by a group of concerned citizens who say a curfew would give parents and police officers "an extra edge" with the town's young people.

The proposed curfew would not completely prohibit young people from being out after 10:30 p.m. Those with written permission from their parents could attend special functions that go on past that hour.

The ordinance provides that first-time violators be given a warning. The second violation, however, would mean a youth would be escorted home by police or taken to the police station. If the parents could not be located, the youth would be turned over to juvenile authorities.

The town, home of the Cherry Point Marine Base, could be setting itself up for a constitutional battle if the ordinance is adopted, according to Troy Smith, town board attorney.

"If you adopt the ordinance, it is reasonable to assume that

Circulation Has A New Number

Subscribers are reminded to call 752-3952 to reach The Daily Reflector circulation department.

The number can be reached between 8:30 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. on weekdays and 8 until 9 on Sundays.

A new phone system has recently been installed at the newspaper office. All other departments can be reached by dialing 752-6166.

someone is going to try you out constitutionally," he said.

Smith called the proposed curfew a "new blade on an old plow. There is not another ordinance like it in the state."

Not all of the town's board members have taken to the curfew idea. Some say it would only penalize the good youngsters for the actions of a few.

ease at the university. Dr. Sue Y.S. Kimm, assistant professor of pediatrics, received the award from the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute.

The program will be offered to medical students at Duke first and later for the university's post-graduate trainees.

"We talk about preventive medicine, but few of us really practice it," Ms. Kimm said.

"We should pay as much attention to preventing heart disease as we do to preventing polio, for example, through immunizations."

The money will provide most of Ms. Kimm's salary during the five years, and it will support a nutritionist in the university's Department of Pediatrics, 10 summer fellowships for students and a number of visiting professorships.

"Currently, there is a lot of concern about heart disease because it's our number one killer, and roughly 800,000 Americans die from it every year," Ms. Kimm said.

"No matter what we have in terms of ambulance services and tremendous coronary care units, frequently that technology is useless because a great proportion of people with heart attacks and stroke die suddenly."

Ms. Kimm said that approximately 200,000 individuals who die from heart disease annually are under age 65, and many of the survivors lose years of productive labor. However, deaths attributed to heart disease have inexplicably declined by more than 20 percent over the past 10 years, she said.

"In making this new award to me and to other individuals at selected American medical schools, I think it is the intention of the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute to try to continue this positive trend by encouraging the medical profession to take an active leadership in prevention."

Ms. Kimm is designing elective courses for third and fourth year medical students to enable future doctors to give specific help to patients who have a high risk of developing heart disease.

The summer fellowships will allow the students to pursue individual research projects related to cardiovascular disease prevention in cardiology, pediatrics, the basic sciences, psychiatry and other areas. The grant will also enable Ms. Kimm to continue research into the natural history of heart disease.

Jerry Brown's Lt. Gov. Aided By Presidential Bid

HEW Attorney Resigns Post

WASHINGTON (AP) - A federal official who played a key role in the government's desegregation battle with the University of North Carolina has resigned.

David S. Tatel of the Health, Education and Welfare's Office for Civil Rights since 1977, resigned to return to private law practice. His resignation is effective Oct. 31.

Tatel said earlier this year he would leave the federal agency. And he said Monday he was not resigning because of a publicized rebuke from HEW Secretary Patricia R. Harris, who reportedly called Tatel politically insensitive.

Concerning the UNC-HEW dispute, Tatel told The News and Observer of Raleigh that he did not believe further desegregation of the state's 16-campus system could be achieved without elimination of some of the duplicate programs at nearby predominantly white and predominantly black schools.

"You need something affirmative, something positive to dismantle the dual system. And the heart of the dual system is identical programs for blacks and whites. That's true all over the South," Tatel said.

Program duplication has been the main sticking point in the negotiations. When university officials rejected HEW's call for elimination of the similar programs on nearby campuses, the negotiations broke down and HEW began administrative proceedings to cut off portions of the near $90 million the university system receives annually in federal funds.

Tatel said he believed the dispute could be settled through negotiations rather than in court.

His successor has not been named.

By DAVID LAWSKY
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) - The one winner in Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.'s quest for the presidency may be his Republican lieutenant governor, Mike Curb.

The 34-year-old self-made record tycoon easily captured California's No. 2 job in 1978. It was his first crack at political office.

If Brown wins in 1980, Curb becomes governor for two years. If Brown loses, Curb still stands to win from his increased publicity as acting governor during Brown's out-of-state trips.

Curb seemed to have little to do when he became the first lieutenant governor since 1894 to serve under a governor of a different party. But then Brown, busy warming up his race for the Democratic presidential nomination, helped Curb by leaving the state.

Curb promptly used his powers as acting governor to make a judicial appointment and issue executive orders in the governor's absence. The action sparked a power struggle between the two men which wound up in the state Supreme Court.

Curb's boldness left Brown wary about leaving on his African safari with singer Linda Ronstadt and a meeting of the sparring leaders was held at the state Capitol.

Curb says the governor told him the two would reach an understanding when he returned and "during his trip to Africa I didn't do anything to embarrass him."

"When he returned, I had been committed that we would have a compromise and instead he waited two weeks and sued me."

The supreme court suit is an attempt to undo Curb's judicial appointment and limit the lieutenant governor's powers.

Curb maintains he would like to quickly reach an understanding with Brown, despite the court suit.

The challenge to his actions has not fazed Curb nor detracted from his political interests or appeal. The Republicans have named Curb chairman of their 1980 Convention Program Committee, elevating him to the party's national arena.

Curb was successful in helping to arrange entertainment at the 1972 GOP convention. His talent pool sports such names as Shaun Cassidy, The Osmonds, Debbie Boone and Sammy Davis Jr. - who sing for Curb's Los Angeles-based record company.

"I brought Sammy Davis Jr. back to Miami and he put his arms around President Nixon," recalled Curb about the 1972 Republican Convention. "The Mike Curb Congregation and Donny and Marie Osmond were there. From the standpoint of a media event, that was very successful."

Curb, who is honorary chairman of the California Presidential Campaign for Ronald Reagan, said that he will be fair in dealing with all the candidates in his role as program chairman.

"I'm loyal to the goals of (GOP) chairman Bill Brock and convention chairman Bob Carter," he said. Brock and Carter are generally regarded as even-handed in their handling of the convention.

Closer to home, Curb has fought several intramural battles within the California Republican Party and turned up on the winning side each time.

His most recent involvement was a GOP legislative leadership fight in which he backed freshmen assembly Republicans to oust a veteran party leader in favor of a sophomore woman lawmaker.

The successes have not been without blemishes. The lieutenant governor's tactics and public statements have come under questioning.

At one point during labor strife between growers and the United Farm Workers union, Curb announced that as acting governor he had called out the California Highway Patrol. But the patrol told a different story, saying it had acted on its own authority under the law - and in one case had not even provided extra officers.

Several newspapers have raised more serious charges. The attorney general's office confirmed news stories that it has an investigator's report on Curb. The report details charges by an ex-convict that MGM Records dealt with underworld figures while Curb was company president.

The attorney general's office began an inquiry into the charges and Republican Attorney General George Deukmejian has refused to comment on when it might be concluded or whether it justifies a formal investigation.

Curb has categorically denied he had any links with the underworld and specifically denied a reported allegation that he took payments in cash for cut-rate records while he was president of MGM Records.

The charges recall with some irony the campaign for lieutenant governor, during which Curb outspent his opponent 3 to 1 to buy television commercials that played up his position as a clean-cut newcomer to politics.

During the campaign, Curb said it was his belief that incumbent Lt. Gov. Mervyn Dymally would be indicted after the election for misusing his office.

Curb said he based his belief in part because of the existence of an investigator's report on Dymally in the attorney general's office.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST—Showers are expected in the period until Thursday morning for the Pacific coast and most Rocky Mountain states. Warm weather is forecast for the West but cooler temperatures indicated in the East. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Fall returned to North Carolina today as a cold front accompanied by scattered showers and thundershowers completed its trip across the state.

A large area of high pressure extending from Texas into Canada will control the weather for the next several days, keeping skies clear but bringing below normal temperatures over the state.

High temperatures were mostly in the upper 70s to low 80s Tuesday but only reached the 60s in the mountains. New Bern once again topped the list with a high of 83. Temperatures dropped well into the 40s over western portions of the state overnight.

Northwest winds will bring even cooler air to the state Thursday. Highs will be a few degrees cooler on Thursday than today as a result. Low temperatures tonight will drop into the 30s over most of the state with some 40s near the coast. Scattered frost could develop over the Piedmont tonight.

Rosie-The-Riveter A Propaganda Product

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Rosie the Riveter, the World War II factory worker, was sometimes characterized as America's sweetheart with a blowtorch in one hand and a powder-puff in the other.

She reluctantly left home to do her duty in weapons factories then happily returned to the kitchen when the real breadwinners returned from the war.

Looking back at Rosie, the personification of thousands of working women during the war years, it appears that much of what was said about the 1940s female work force was propaganda and wishful thinking, says a California college teacher.

That's "the distortion of Rosie," says Sherna Gluck, an instructor at Cal State Long Beach. Her study, "Rosie the Riveter Revisited," is an oral-history project for the Oral Resource Center at the college. Ms. Gluck's project will emphasize the Los Angeles area because of the higher percentage of women workers here.

Currently in its initial stages, Ms. Gluck's research indicates that most of the war workers wanted to continue in their jobs, and that the women took pride in being able to operate heavy equipment and machinery.

"Women have been calling me saying, 'That was the highlight of my life,'" Ms. Gluck said.

Some of the industrial firms that employed women provided child care, banking and even shopping services to help keep the women on the job.

Supported with a Rockefeller Foundation grant and promise of matching funds from the National Endowment for the Humanities, Ms. Gluck is embarking on what she believes is the first major research into the social and economic implications of the female work force of World War II.

Tenth Anniversary Of Recalling Tar Heel History

JR LIGHT
OF HISTORY
By DR. H.G. JONES
Written for The AP

editor of the Goldsboro News-Argus and then president of the North Carolina Literary and Historical Association, persuaded Crittenden to reconsider.

By DR. H. G. JONES
For The Associated Press
CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — On this, the 10th anniversary of "In Light of History" by the present writer, perhaps some comments on its origin and history may be in order.

then director of the state Department of Archives and History.

Crittenden responded that he simply could not devote the estimated average of eight hours per week that would be required "to do this kind of thing right."

Two years later, Henry Belk,

After a caution by Parker about "college professors' abuse writing," Crittenden furnished his first story which appeared on March 2 in the afternoon dailies served by The Associated Press. Three months later Belk wrote that the column had "established itself as a solid, high class AP feature."

For six years Crittenden furnished the story almost without missing a week. He stepped down as director of the Department of Archives and History in 1968 and was succeeded by the present writer, who immediately appointed Crittenden as assistant director.

Crittenden's final column, "Yankee Carved His Name," had been drafted when he died on Oct. 13, 1969. At the invitation of the AP, I began writing the column, and my first story, "Christopher Crittenden, 1902-1969," appeared on Oct. 29.

Since that date, every Wednesday has been a deadline, and not a one has been missed. Nothing has stood in the way — not even daily work schedules, meetings, ice storms, vacations in the Arctic, hospitalizations or just plain irritability.

Experience has proved that Crittenden was not far off the mark when he estimated that the column might require an average of eight hours per week. If we use his estimate, the 520 stories in the past 10 years have required about 4,160 hours.

That amounts to 520 eight-hour days.

Of course, during the entire history of the column, there has been no monetary compensation whatsoever — not even reimbursement for postage. It is simply a public service — the sort of thing that one who loves his state has the compulsion to do.

Idea for stories simply bubble up. They may emerge from conversation, from reading, from questions asked. Occasionally readers make suggestions.

The most difficult part of course, is trying to compress the facts into a 600-word, sprightly written article. Tim Parker's warning about "abstruse writing" hangs around like a shadow.

In the 520 articles by this author, just about every aspect of North Carolina history has been touched upon, both in terms of subjects and people. The most rewarding story is one that reveals information not generally known, a sort of professional snobbery that says, "Bet you didn't know that."

Among such revelations were these: the writer of the longest sentence in the English language (Sylvester Hassell); the marriage of Frances Culpepper to three governors; the nicknaming of North Carolina as the "Tomtit State"; the discrediting of myths like "Polly Slocumb's Ride"; and the expulsion of the legislators for adultery and religious views.

Other subjects have included whale hunting, the hookworm war, the oldest North Carolinian who ever lived and the conviction of the man who sang too loudly in church.

Next week we begin the second decade.

Ex-Convict Is Teaching At College

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Richard Speakman's freshman English students at Ohio University are learning more about life's struggles from their teacher than they ever could gain from books.

Speakman is a 35-year-old former convict who until recently had been in and out of federal and state prisons since age 10.

Last May, he became the first inmate in Ohio history to earn a four-year college degree behind bars. Today he teaches an English course, attends classes in a master's degree program 15 hours a week, and makes a 150-mile round-trip from his Columbus home to Athens four times weekly.

If Speakman keeps "clean," he'll qualify for parole release in May. He says there isn't any doubt his days as a criminal are over.

"There's no feeling for that (crime) any more," Speakman said. "I want to make it, and I'm going to make it. I'm not going to steal again. I've got a whole life ahead of me and that's a good feeling, and I know I'm helping these kids" who are his students, he added.

Speakman can't pinpoint specific reasons for his dramatic turnaround. "Most of my students want to know how did I change and why did I change, and I really don't know," he said.

But now that he has shifted his outlook, he is urging others to do the same. He continues to get letters from inmates he knew, and "I get on them pretty heavy to salvage whatever life they have left. They know if I go down the drain, it's going to make them look bad," he said.

He first ran afoul of the law at age 9 for violating curfew. A year later, he was sent to the Fairfield School for Boys for theft and truancy.

By age 17, he was a high-school dropout serving time for bank robbery in a federal prison in Kentucky. That was followed by terms in five Ohio prisons and federal penitentiaries in Pennsylvania and Illinois.

Four years ago, Speakman was shot by Columbus detectives while resisting arrest on a burglary warrant and was sentenced to Ohio's maximum-security prison at Lucasville.

He had already earned a high-school diploma and some college credits during past sentences, and while at Lucasville he decided to complete his requirements for an Ohio University degree.

"At Lucasville I was changing, and that caused me some trouble because some guys don't like you to change," he said. "But for the first time, I wasn't in and out of the hole (solitary confinement) all the time. I wasn't having disciplinary problems."

By the time he was paroled last May after being transferred to the Chillicothe Correctional Institution, he had earned his degree, posted a near-perfect 3.9 grade average in English literature, and had been given a scholarship to continue his studies.

Speakman said the transition from prison to college was a painful one. "I was the first one, and sure, they were leery at first," he said. "They didn't know what I would be like or what I'd do."

But after the initial adjustment, students and teachers began to accept him. "I think today I'm a colleague, not the pet convict," Speakman said.

Elias Nour's Life Tied To A Mountain

STONE MOUNTAIN, Ga. (AP) — The legend of Elias Nour is as much a part of Stone Mountain as the Confederate memorial carved on its face.

In 36 years, he saved three dozen persons and 10 dogs stranded on the 1,000-foot high granite boulder.

"I know that mountain better than anyone, I think," said the 64-year-old "Old Man of Stone Mountain."

No one knows how many persons have died falling off the mountain east of Atlanta. Some were suicides. Most died because they got careless.

"It's very tricky. You've gone too far (to get back) before you really know it," said Steve Doster, a spokesman for the Stone Mountain Authority, which now owns the mountain and park which surrounds it. "The rock slopes quickly from level to vertical."

The 1956 rescue of a Georgia Tech student who tried to climb down to the huge carving on the mountain's north face stands out in Nour's memory. He didn't have enough good rope to reach him.

"It was getting dark, so I decided to use the rotten rope. I was afraid he would move and if he did, he would have been gone," Nour said. He scaled 600 feet down the mountain to reach him and was awarded the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission medal for the effort.

Since then a fence has been built around the top of the mountain, but at least three persons in the last four years alone have fallen to their deaths, Doster said.

Nour said as a child he lived at the west end of the mountain, its most gentle slope.

"Me and my brother used to play on it and explore it and we knew every crack and crevasse on it," he said. "That's where I exercised, and if I had a problem, I would take a walk on the mountain and try to figure things out."

Nour, who moved to Florida in 1963, said he was dubbed the "Old Man of Stone Mountain" at the age of 13 when he went on his first rescue mission.

"That's how I got started," he said in an interview from his Daytona Beach home. "And ever since then when something in the area happened I was called on for lost children, dogs and different things."

His climbing days are over, he said. He suffers from arthritis in his hands and is still under a doctor's care for a back injury he suffered last year.

But memories of the mountain are still fresh.

"The mountain should be covered with yellow flowers now," he said. "I think that's one of the most beautiful sights I've ever seen."

Women Using Baby Oil, Too

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UPI) — Research shows 46 percent of women use baby oil as a bath oil and as a cosmetic, to remove makeup, as a moisturizing lotion and to protect skin in bad weather, says a cosmetic manufacturer who has just introduced bath soap and a hand and body lotion containing baby oil.

The new scented soap is available in two sizes and in pink, white or aqua.

The lotion is available scented or unscented, in 8- and 12-ounce bottles with non-clog caps and a 16-ounce pump dispenser bottle.

Recognition In Mummy Masks

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Mummy masks bore little resemblance to their ancient Egyptian owners but helped the deceased gain special recognition, says a University of Michigan art professor.

Margaret Cool Root, curator of an exhibition of the burial artifacts at the university's Kelsey Museum, says the plaster masks attached to mummies identified the spirits of the dead as god-like to guarantee them privileged status in the hereafter.

The masks were popular among the royalty and upper-class Egyptians from about 2000 B.C. to the third century A.D., she said, adding that even some Romans, who were occupying Egypt, had adopted the practice.

The exhibition, titled "Faces of Immortality," runs through Feb. 17.

The Fed Is Applying A Big Squeeze

INTERSTATE SECURITIES CORP

The new chairman of the Federal Reserve Board was sworn in rather quietly, but he made big headlines on October 6 when he unveiled a new program to fight inflation.

Fed actions taken at that time consisted of three parts. First, the discount rate was raised a full percentage point to a record 12 percent from 11 percent. Since a certain amount of money must be held by banks in reserve, in order to increase their lending they have to borrow from the Fed at the discount rate. The increase in that rate makes this borrowing more expensive.

The reserve requirement on Eurodollars was raised to 8 percent. These are dollars acquired by banks from foreign sources for lending to borrowers in the U. S. The increase in reserve requirements reduces the amount of money available for lending purposes.

The third, and perhaps most important part of the Fed program, is that they will no longer try to control the money supply with interest rates, but will simply stop creating so many dollars. This represents a change of policy for the Federal Reserve. It is a more direct method of controlling money supply than through the interest rate mechanism, and it goes right to the heart of the inflation problem — growth in the money supply.

The reactions to this new program were immediate and rather predictable. The dollar strengthened as foreigners were encouraged that the U. S. was finally serious about fighting inflation, and gold prices moved lower. The prime rate rose a record one percent to 14.5 percent. Stocks sold off sharply on record volume, and bond prices moved lower.

Over the near term, we can expect more negatives. Interest rates are expected to continue rising, perhaps to previously unthinkable levels. The housing market is almost certain to be hurt as mortgage money becomes scarcer and more expensive. Big ticket items, such as automobiles and furniture, are likely to experience a sales slump, since they are typically bought on credit. The recession will now probably be somewhat worse than originally anticipated.

There is also the danger of a credit crunch, where no money is available for lending at any price. Even this, however, may turn out to be necessary in order to break the psychology of spending to beat inflation.

There is one overwhelming positive in this new program and that is that it could be successful in lowering the unprecedented current rate of inflation. President Carter is backing Fed actions and says he will do what is necessary to reduce inflation. Only time will tell, as the election period comes closer, whether political considerations will force him to change his posture.

Car Privileges 25 Years Later

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP) — After 25 years, the Air Force Academy junior class's annual request for car privileges has been granted. Only seniors had been allowed to keep cars at the academy.

The juniors arguing their case this year said American society is highly mobile, the academy is isolated, the cadets lack convenient mass transit to nearby communities, and double-dating and busing of dates is no longer acceptable.

The juniors will be prohibited from bringing cars on campus until the academy can provide an adequate parking area for them, Capt. Ron Bell, academy spokesman, said Monday.

Fiji Planning Reclaim Land

SUVA, Fiji (AP) — Plans have been made to reclaim more than 1,000 acres of land in the next few years through a major drainage and irrigation program on this South Pacific island, according to the Ministry of Agriculture.

The reclaimed land will be used to boost Fiji's sugar production.

By STEPHEN BROWN
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today as investors studied economic news for hints of future conditions.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 1.53 points in early trading, but losers outnumbered gainers by a 3-2 margin among issues listed on the New York Stock Exchange. Analysts said the market was looking for signs of how high interest rates would go. Most major banks Tuesday raised their prime rate on business loans to 15 percent, but the move, which Wall Streeters had expected, had little immediate effect on the market.

The government reported Tuesday that orders for durable goods rose 6.5 percent in September. Investors were trying to decide whether this news indicates further strong business demand for loans and another rise in interest rates, analysts said.

Today's early prices included Pacific Gas & Electric, down 1/4 at 21 3/4; Pan Am, down 1/4 at 5 1/2; General Motors, unchanged at 5 1/8, and Phillips Petroleum, up 3/4 at 42 3/4.

On Monday, the Dow Jones average rose more than 3 points at the outset, but was off 2.30 at 8:06.83 by the close.

That extended the average's loss since early this month to 90.82 points, and left it at its lowest losing level since it stood at 805.01 last Dec. 29.

Declines outnumbered advances by close to a 9-5 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume came to 32.91 million shares against 45.24 million the day before.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index lost 20 to 56.70.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off 2.78 at 195.76.

Tickets for the event are priced at $2 and will be on sale at the door prior to performance time. The competition will be divided into two divisions — Class A, for bands with 80 or less instruments; and Class AA, for bands with more than 80 instruments.

The competition for Class A bands begins at 6:15 p.m. Bands scheduled for this category are: Goldsboro High School, John D. Lowery, director; Washington High School, A. T. Secor, director; Clinton High School, Ed Taylor, director; Plymouth High School, Larry M. Respass, director; Seventy-First High School, Fayetteville, Terry Barnhardt, director; and Lumberton High School, Hall Pittman, director.

Bands competing in the AA division, to begin competition at 8:15 p.m. are: Rocky Mount Senior High School, John Sykes, director; Smithfield-Selma High School, John R. Windley, director; Jacksonville Senior High, Gene Lloyd, director; Indian River High School, Danville, Va., Tom Hubb, director; and E.

At 9:45 p.m. Greene Central Marching Band will give an exhibition as the host band, and at 10 p.m., retreat will be sounded and awards presented. A five-foot trophy will be given for the over-all Grand Champion. A total of 19 trophies will be presented. Money for these trophies has been donated by businesses and individuals of the Snow Hill community.

Kenneth Ginn, music director at Greene Central High School, is coordinator of the event. Ham Lang is contest chairman.

The panel of judges for the competition represent persons with years of experience with bands. They are: Joe Nee, Duxbury, Massachusetts; Bob Everette, Philadelphia; Max Bowman, Marietta, Ga.; Tom Tucker, and Jim Stuppy, both of Columbia, Tenn.; Margaret Hayworth, Lynchburg, Va.; Larry Case, Des Plains, Ill.; Ron Collins, Virginia Beach, Va.; and Bill Shuttlers of Sylvania. Among dignitaries expected to attend is Dr. Craig Phillips, N.C. superintendent of public instruction.

Barred 70 From School

BOSTON (AP) — About 70 white students were denied admission to Hyde Park High School today after police were tipped they planned to attack buses carrying black pupils, school officials said.

Bus routes were changed and there was no violence, authorities said. Mary Ellen Smith, a school department spokeswoman, said the 70 students had gathered before school at nearby Ross Field and had been drinking. They were turned away from the school by the headmaster.

"He believed they represented a clear danger to the rest of the students," she said. Boston schools have been disrupted by walkouts and racial violence for nearly three weeks.

Boston schools have been operating under a court-ordered busing plan since 1974, and for the first two years, walkouts and racial violence were commonplace. It eventually subsided, however, and until a recent series of racial incidents that started with the Sept. 18 stoning of a school bus, officials were hoping the calm would continue.

Dr. Michael Pelt, chairman of the Humanities Division at Mount Olive College, will speak at Greenville F. W. B. Church Sunday, Oct. 28 at the 11 a.m. services. The Rev. Davie Brinson serves as Greenville, F. W. B. pastor.

Check Possible Fish-Poisoning

LINCOLN, N.C. (AP) — Water quality officials planned to continue monitoring Clark's Creek today for a possible fish kill after a tanker truck overturned Tuesday spilling between 1,400 and 1,800 gallons of gasoline.

Clean-up operations were expected to be completed late Tuesday. State and U.S. Environmental Protection Agency officials said less than 400 gallons of gasoline spilled into the creek, which flows into the South Fork River upstream from Gastonia.

Space Petroleum Co. of Shelby, owner of the truck, could be fined $5,000 by both the state and federal EPA for the spill. A decision on the fine will not be made until next week.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite predictions from congressmen that gasoline rationing could be needed at any time, an Energy Department analyst says it could take a couple of years to whip a workable plan into shape. Under a compromise given final congressional approval Tuesday, the president can order rationing any time there is a shortage of 20 percent in gasoline or diesel fuel supplies in the United States. The House and Senate will get a crack at rejecting whatever detailed rationing plan the Carter administration concocts before the standby plan goes "on the shelf" for possible future use. Moreover, either house would have the option of blocking actual implementation of rationing at the time the president tried to put it into effect.

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., a principal author of the compromise bill approved 301-112 by the House Tuesday, said conditions requiring gasoline rationing "could occur at any time." And Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, said the fragile U.S. oil supply line from the Middle East could be cut off at any time. "Without contingency planning, the country would be brought to its knees," Jackson said. It is that contingency planning which Energy Department analyst Andy Fang says will take time. There is no standby plan at the moment because the Energy Department could not pre-

Asks To Turn Off Respirator

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP) — A Norbert Mechenbier of Greenville, Pa., said the family, including 10 nieces and nephews, agrees.

New York Supreme Court Justice Robert Meade has ordered a Nov. 7 hearing in the case. Eichner's attorney, William F. Levine, cited the case of Karen Ann Quinlan, a New Jersey woman whose parents made a similar request after their daughter lapsed into a coma. In a landmark decision on March 31, 1976, New Jersey's Supreme Court ruled that Miss Quinlan could be removed from a life support system. Miss Quinlan continues to live, without the system, in a comatose state at a Morris Plains, N.J., nursing home.

Fox, a member of the Society of Mary, retired to Chaminade in 1970. He lapsed into a coma Oct. 2 after suffering cardiorespiratory arrest during a hernia operation at Nassau Hospital, and Eichner says he has entered a "permanent vegetative state." Eichner said the decision to file the request was discussed at length.

"It was and is the view of the Chaminade community, including Brother Joseph Charles Fox, that we are against the concept of trying to extend respiration through the use of extraordinary life support systems when the brain is incapable of any sapient or rational thought," court papers said. A relative of the brother,

No. 1 Farmville Faces No. 2 Havelock

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer
 Having all but wrapped up the Eastern Carolina Conference championship, the Farmville Central Jaguars go outside the league Friday night to take on the unbeaten Havelock Rams.

The Jaguars, ranked No. 1 in the state by the AP, all but assured themselves of the ECC crown with their 13-8 win over Southern Nash.

Farmville, 6-0 in the ECC and 7-0 overall, has only to beat either Ayden-Grifton or Southwest Edgecombe to win their fourth straight ECC title and a trip to the state high school football playoffs.

The Rams, meanwhile, are ranked second in the state by the AP and appear headed for another Coastal Conference title and a trip to the playoffs. Havelock, 7-0 overall and 2-0 in the league, must beat both West Craven and White Oak to assure itself of the championship.

Friday night's game at Havelock could be the first of two meetings between the two Eastern North Carolina powerhouses. If both teams win their conference, they could meet each other again in the second round of the playoffs, at Neither, however, does Farmville's defense. Against the Firebirds, the Jaguars limited Southern Nash to 40 yards on the ground and 105 yards through the air.

"We played real well defensively, except for two plays," Brewer said, referring to two long pass plays the Firebirds completed. Brewer was not, however, as pleased with the play of his offense.

"Offensively, we did not play well. In most cases, we were missing assignments and blocks. We had as many missed assignments as I can remember having in the last two or three years," Brewer said.

"The defense they used caught us by surprise, but it wasn't that much different from what we had prepared for," Brewer said. "It was just a case of not being mentally prepared to pick them up."

North Pitt
 Last week, the Panthers could not come up with the big play in their 27-22 loss to Southwest Edgecombe. This week, North Pitt came up with a number of big plays, enough to give them a tough 28-21 overtime decision over C.B. Aycock.

Ayden-Grifton
 Ayden-Grifton coach Dixon Sauls knows his squad will have to gamble against Southern Nash if they are to have chance to win.

"We're going to have to make some adjustments to win the ballgame," Sauls said. "We have to do some things out of the ordinary to have a chance to win."

"If they work, we'll look good. If they don't, well..."
 Against North Lenoir last week, the Chargers were, Sauls admitted, too ordinary. "When we missed some passes early, we got too conservative," he said.

"We had some problems blocking their defense. Defensively, however, we did what we had to do to win. There at the end we held them at our 20 with less than a minute to go," Sauls said. The Chargers continue to be plagued by injuries. Early in the season, Ayden-Grifton's star fullback Billy Holland suffered an ankle injury. Holland is still not 100 percent, according to Sauls.

Holland's replacement, Greg Jackson, then injured an ankle last week. Both will play this week, however.

The Chargers will need them. "They (Southern Nash) has an outstanding team. It's going to be a hard game for us. Hopefully, we'll be up for it. It's a tremendous challenge. We feel like if we're healthy and we get a few breaks we might be able to win," Sauls said.

them, except there at the first when we let them score on that long drive," Walker said of the Vikings' 19-6 win over the Cougars.

"Except for that first drive, I think it was for about 50 yards, our defense played well."

In all, D.H. Conley, now 3-2 in the ECC and 4-2-1 overall, allowed Southwest Edgecombe 92 yards rushing and 66 passing. The Vikings also forced four fumbles.

This week, the Vikings take on C.B. Aycock, a game D.H. Conley should win.

"They run a T-offense and they can play real good, hard football," Walker said. "We'll have to be ready to play them. You can't take them for granted."

"It's sort of hard to get a good idea of the type of team they are, though. They've had their ups and downs."

They Call It Defense

When the two best defensive teams in the NBA meet, defense is the name of the game. Here, Trail Blazers' Larry Steele, left, and Tom Owens pressure

Kansas City's Phil Ford as he tries to score during their game Thursday night in Portland. Portland and Kansas City are ranked one and two defensively. (AP Laserphoto)

Portland Nips Kings, Remain Undefeated

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Cotton Fitzsimmons doesn't play any vacations in Portland, Ore. In fact, he'd just as soon not make any business trips to the Rose City, either.

"It's damn tough to win here. I'm getting tired of it," said Fitzsimmons, coach of the Kansas City Kings. Not even a trio of three-point goals by Kansas City's Otis Birdsong in the final 90 seconds could keep the Kings from dropping a 90-88 decision to the Portland Trail Blazers Tuesday night.

The Blazers are now 7-0, the best start in their 10 seasons in the National Basketball Association. Five of the victories have come at the Portland Memorial Coliseum, where the Blazers have played before 105 consecutive sellouts of 12,666.

In other NBA games, the Milwaukee Bucks beat the Phoenix Suns 114-108, the San Antonio Spurs stopped the Boston Celtics 129-120, the San Diego Clippers defeated the Denver Nuggets 132-127, the Los Angeles Lakers downed the Utah Jazz 102-87, the Chicago Bulls edged the New Jersey Nets 108-103, the New York Knicks trounced the Indiana Pacers 136-112 and the Atlanta Hawks beat the Cleveland Cavaliers 121-111.

Portland, which has held its opponent under 90 points five times this season, was leading 88-79 with 1:46 remaining when Birdsong began firing from long range.

"It's only a desperation thing," he said. "We didn't set up for them, we just took them. I happened to be in the right spot."

He hit three in a row, tying the score with 32 seconds remaining. As Portland worked for a shot, the Kings were called for kicking the ball, which meant the 24-second clock was reset and the Blazers were able to play for the final shot of the game.

The Blazers worked the ball inside to Tom Owens, who missed an eight-footer. But forward Kermit Washington leaped over Reggie King, tipped the ball off the backboard and into the net at the buzzer.

"I warned our team to keep Kermit off the board, but how do you do that?" said Fitzsimmons. "He just goes up over you. I guess Kermit can get an offensive rebound anytime he wants it."

Birdsong led all scorers with 29 points and Phil Ford added 20 points and 11 assists for Kansas City. Owens led the balanced Blazer scoring with 17.

Clippers 132, Nuggets 127
Lloyd Free scored 11 of his 32 points in the first quarter as San Diego exploded for 40 points and went on to a hand the winless Nuggets their sixth straight loss. David Thompson had 36 points for the losers.

San Diego again played without center Bill Walton, who was scheduled to have his ailing left foot examined today in Los Angeles. The injury has kept him out of all of San Diego's seven games.

Lakers 102, Jazz 87
Los Angeles clinched its victory with a 14-5 burst to start the final period, opening up a commanding 86-70 lead. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Michael Cooper led the Lakers' balanced attack with 17 points apiece.

Spurs 129, Celtics 120
George Gervin and Larry Kenon scored 28 points apiece and led a fourth-quarter surge that carried San Antonio past Boston. The score was tied 100-100 before the Spurs broke the game open with a 26-10 surge, Gervin getting eight points and Kenon seven in that spurt. Dave Cowens had 32 points and Larry Bird 22 for the Celtics.

Bulls 108, Nets 103
Rookie David Greenwood sank three free throws in the final 36 seconds to help the Bulls beat the Nets. Greenwood, a first-round draft choice from UCLA, scored a pro-high 20 points.

Knicks 136, Pacers 112
The Knicks, using an aggressive, pressing defense, broke the game open with a 31-10 spurt in the first half and were never in trouble. Toby Knight led the way with 34 points, 22 of them in the first half, while Alex English scored a career-high 37 points for Indiana.

Hawks 121, Cavs 111
The Hawks outscored the Cavs 34-20 in the second period to take command. John Drew poured in 27 points to top Atlanta while Mike Mitchell had 35 for Cleveland.

Bucks 114, Suns 108
Milwaukee raised its record to 6-1, best in the Midwest Division, by handing the Suns their fourth straight loss. Marques Johnson led the way with 32 points and Brian Winters hit a clutch jumper in the final minute to put the game away.

PUTTING IS MENTAL
PONTE VEDRA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Lee Trevino went into a putting slump and had a unique explanation.

"Putting is mostly mental," he said, "and my thinking on the subject has been a tug-of-war between positive thinking and negative. The trouble is, the negative side has been winning."

Heels Face Pirates

Johnson: A Study In Anxiety

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Things haven't gone too well for Billy Johnson from the day he first strapped on the pads and pulled a Carolina blue jersey over his head.

He has learned more about fear and anxiety than he had hoped. And the end zone is something this 6-foot-2, 249-pound fullback has seldom seen.

"I wasn't thinking about the injury," he said Tuesday when asked for his reaction to starting for the first time in North Carolina's 35-21 victory Saturday over arch-rival North Carolina State.

But he had every right to. Because, despite his awesome size, Johnson has suffered a fractured right kneecap twice in the last year. "I thought about it an awful lot and I was pretty scared at times during the rehabilitation," he explained. "But once I got in there all I could think about was doing a good job."

With Amos Lawrence nursing an injury Tar Heel Coach Dick Crum decided to move 212-pound fullback Doug Paschal to tailback for the biggest game of the season. And Paschal, following the some awesome blocks by Johnson, rushed for 119 yards and scored three touchdowns.

"I'm not going to break up that combination," Crum said Tuesday in announcing Johnson and Paschal, being dubbed the bullbacks, would again start in the Tar Heel backfield.

And Johnson, a 20-year-old junior from Buckingham, Va., figures he is ready to fulfill his promise as a college football player.

"I knew I was starting last week and all I could think of was to keep my concentration and get the job done," he said. And did he ever get it done. Time after time Crum called for the isolation play, and time after time Johnson hurled his huge frame at the Wolfpack.

He opened gaping holes through which Paschal gained huge chunks of yardage. And when he wasn't blocking Johnson found time to gain 71 of his own yards.

The quality of Johnson's performance was remarkable considering the fact that he had seen just spot duty prior to the N.C. State game. He had scored once, on a nine-yard run in North Carolina's 41-3 rout of Army.

But his was The Game: N.C. State, bragging rights, a continued rating in the top 20 and a share of the Atlantic Coast Conference lead.

"I just wanted to do well," he said. "I didn't want to let anybody down."

The fact that Johnson is starting and Famous Amos is sitting Saturday against East Carolina is mute testimony to how well he handled himself under the most pressure he'd ever faced.

"Yes, there was pressure, but I didn't feel it the way I had when the doctors said there was only a 50-50 chance I would ever play again," he explained. "I just decided to pick myself up and work very hard, and I'm glad I did."

Quarterback Steve Fuller of Clemson had only one "B" in academic work in his college career, the rest being "A's".

The lead in The Associated Press poll of North Carolina high school football teams remains with Scotland County. Farmville Central and Jordan-Matthews this week.

Farmville has the Class 3A top spot with a 20-point lead over Havelock, which moved into the No. 2 position from third place, trading points with Belmont South Point.

Jordan-Matthews retained its 2A-1A lead with a five-point edge over No. 2 Maiden.

Each is facing its biggest game of the season this week. Scotland hosts Southeastern 4A conference rival Richmond County, defending state 4A playoff champ which holds a 5-2 mark.

Ford Hoping Tigers Can Win ACC Title

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — It's anyone's guess right now who will walk away with the Atlantic Coast Conference title this year, but Clemson coach Danny Ford is hoping his Tigers will grab it for a second consecutive year.

Midway through the season, the battle for the ACC championship remains close, with five league teams sporting one conference loss, including Clemson and its opponent Saturday, North Carolina State.

But if the Tigers don't emerge the victors this weekend, their chances at the crown will be just about nil, Ford said in a news conference Tuesday.

"This is a very important game because the loser might as well go under the grave," Ford said. "The loser won't be mathematically eliminated, but it will be a tough fight."

Calling N.C. State the "best team" Clemson has faced this year, Ford said the Tigers would have to cut down on their mistakes.

"We might have to pass more. ... We can't afford to make our defense have to play with their backs to the goal line. We can't give N.C. State the ball where only one first down will mean points," he said.

Ford said he considers N.C. State center Jim Ritcher "the best at that position in the country. (Middle guard) Charlie Bauman will have his hands full."

He said it was uncertain whether Lester Brown would be able to play Saturday. Brown suffered a rib injury in the game against Virginia Tech.

Meanwhile, it was announced that Tiger tailback Chuck McSwain was named ACC Rookie-of-the-Week for the second time in three weeks.

A freshman from Caroleen, McSwain gained 120 yards on 18 carries and scored two touchdowns in the Tigers' 28-10 conference win over Duke last Saturday.

McSwain, who replaced the injured Brown as Clemson's starting tailback, scored the Tigers' first two touchdowns.

ASU Investigating Itself After Firing

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — The Arizona State University Athletic Department has begun investigating itself following the dismissal of football Coach Frank Kush and disclosures of loans to players.

"Things have been moving so quickly that we feel a complete investigation is necessary," Athletic Director Fred Miller said Tuesday. "If we have violations, let's get them in the open and go on from there."

Pat Kuehner, assistant athletic director named to head the probe, said, "I'll be looking into anything that comes to our knowledge."

That includes charges by players and assistant coaches that Kush pressured them to cover up an alleged assault on Kevin Rutledge, a former punter. Rutledge has sued Kush and the school for $1.1 million, contending that he was punched and hounded off the team after botching a kick in an Oct. 28, 1978, loss at the University of Washington.

Kush has denied belting the player or attempting to cover it up, blaming his troubles instead on alleged interference by Rick Lynch, a dragstrip promoter who has admitted hiring

Sun Devil players for cash and loaning them money.

Any irregularities will be forwarded to John Schwada, Arizona State University president, and the Pacific-10 Conference infractions committee, Miller said.

"This is assuming we find something, of course," he added.

ECU Women Win Two In Volleyball

The East Carolina women's volleyball team rolled past the Seahawks of UNC-Wilmington and the Aggies of North Carolina A&T Tuesday night in a tri-meet in Minges Coliseum. The Prates dominated both matches with smooth, consistent play both in the back lines and at the net, allowing them to defeat UNC-W, 15-9, 15-2, and A&T, 15-9, 15-9.

In the other game, UNC-W defeated the Aggies, 15-5, 15-10.

Junior spiker Sharon Perry turned in one of her most sparkling performances of the season with several key saves in the first match and an array of powerful spikes throughout the evening. "Sharon really put some balls on the floor for us tonight," Coach Alita Dillon said afterwards. "And the rest of the team just didn't make any mistakes."

Last night's wins seemed to lift the Pirates, who are coming off a disappointing loss to the Winthrop Eagles in the finals of last weekend's East Carolina Invitational Tournament. "I think we made a good showing in the tournament until the finals," Dillon said. "Winthrop has a good, aggressive team but we still should have given them more of a fight."

The Pirates will get another chance at tournament play this weekend, traveling to the Maryland Invitational Tournament. ECU returns to play Duke for the third time this season next Monday at 8:30.

Doves From PCB Areas Safe To Eat

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A national expert on PCB has reevaluated research and concluded that it is safe to eat doves taken from areas in North Carolina where PCBs were spilled.

The state Wildlife Commission earlier reported that eating game found in the area where the toxic chemical was dumped last fall could be dangerous.

Renate Kimbrough of the U.S. Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, said the earlier research data was misinterpreted. She said that the level of PCB contained in the doves does not exceed limits set by the Food and Drug Administration.

'Turncoat' Sheriff Shares A Macabre Bomb Joke

By BOB ROBINSON
Associated Press Writer
WEIRTON, W.Va. (AP) — Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Donell shares a grim joke with his friend, Bob Leach. When Donell turns the ignition key in his cruiser, Leach steps back, plugs his ears and grimaces.

He looks as if he expects the car to explode.
The macabre ritual was born of the fear that has gripped Donell and his family since last January, when he blew the whistle on county Prosecutor Robert Altomare and a score of gamblers who paid Altomare to escape prosecution.

The indictments made Donell an unpopular figure in Weirton, his hometown of about 25,000 people. Many considered him a turncoat who'd sold out his friends.

Since the indictments and through the months of trials, rumors circulated that Donell would be killed, that his house would be firebombed. Rumors twice prompted police to send the family away and stake out the home.

The sheriff said he has heard a tape recording in which a local hoodlum tells friends the way to get Donell is with a high-powered rifle.
Guns are now part of the Donells' daily life. Alice Donell, the sheriff's wife, was taught how to shoot by a policewoman who sometimes stayed with the family. Nearly every room in the ranch-style house has a loaded weapon within easy reach.

"You're not going to catch me going out of the house without a pistol," Donell, 34, said as he carefully tucked a shiny silver revolver into his trousers.
Donell's daughters, Alison, 8, and Aimee, 6, have been escorted to school each day by state troopers. Metal plates were installed in the windows of the girls' bedrooms.

Donell consented to be interviewed only after the last of the trials was completed, that of Weirton attorney Emmanuel Loucas. Donell was the government's key witness in the trial.

Last Thursday night, Loucas was found guilty in U.S. District Court in Wheeling on one count of traveling in interstate commerce to promote and manage unlawful activities.

Altomare was earlier sentenced to 10 years in prison on federal convictions of racketeering, conspiracy, obstruction of justice and obstructing the enforcement of state law. He is appealing.
Of 25 persons indicted, 20 were convicted or pleaded guilty, four were acquitted and two had trials delayed because of illness.

By appearance, Donell would have to be considered an unlikely hero. He is baby-faced and soft-spoken. At the trials, his glasses kept slipping down his nose; he repeatedly shoved them back up with a finger.

Donell grew up in Weirton. He was president of his high school student body and graduated from Alderson-Broaddus College with a psychology degree. After a hitch in the Army, he returned home to work in a steel mill and as a probation officer.

He was elected sheriff on the Republican ticket in 1976. During his campaign, Donell, said, he was approached by a known gambler who said a good sheriff could make $100,000 a year — tax-free — by taking payoffs.

The gambler gave him a signed card for free meals at a Pittsburgh restaurant and sent him two cases of whiskey and five cases of beer, Donell testified.

Donell said he was not surprised that people thought he could be bought.
"I was no different than any other sheriff that walked in there — I had a price tag," he said. "They figured I was young, I was naive, we don't really have to offer him that much."

The indictments and convictions were obtained on the strength of tape recordings of telephone calls and personal conversations involving Altomare and the others.

All taping was done with the help of state police and the FBI, who often monitored the conversations from nearby vans.
During one conversation between the sheriff and the prosecutor, during which they were emptying a confiscated slot machine, Altomare pulled the last tissue from a tissue box and almost discovered the tape recorder concealed inside.

When the grand jury indictments came down in January, many in the community rallied to Altomare's defense and turned against Donell.
"There's a lot of family ties involved in something like this," Donell said. "It's not as if I was a stranger. It became very personal with a lot of people. It wasn't whether they were doing right or wrong — or I was doing right or wrong."

But Donell said he senses some changes in attitude now that the trials are over, big enough changes that he is considering running for re-election: "I contend there's a lot of good people in Hancock County. They don't want to see their public officials paid off."

Donell also said there is security in being sheriff.
"As long as I'm sheriff, the protection is there for my family — as long as I'm carrying some kind of bad badge. It brings too much heat on them."

Corncrake On List Of 'Vanishing'

By GRAHAM HEATHCOTE
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — The corncrake, a curious and secretive bird of the fields, is disappearing from Britain and Ireland and could vanish from all of Western Europe, bird-watchers say.

"Its future does not look bright," says James Cadbury, head of research at the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds.

Cadbury organized 176 ornithologists to search for the elusive, seminocturnal corncrake during the breeding season. Covering some of the remotest areas of the country and working mostly at night, when the rasping cry of the male bird is likely to be heard, they counted 650.

Cadbury said these birds were located in only 23 percent of the places in which corncrakes were recorded in a survey 10 years ago, "a dramatic and alarming contraction," he concluded.

"Corncrake populations on the European continent and in Ireland also have suffered major declines," the RSPB reports.

The seldom-seen corncrake, which doesn't eat corn and prefers hayfields, is a buff-brown bird, 10 inches from beak to tail, with long legs and toes and a high-stepping gait. It is a summer visitor to Britain, flying fast and high from southern Europe, Africa, Arabia and India, arriving at April's end and departing in mid-September.

When it gets here it stops being a high-flyer and goes to ground, skulking about in the thickest herbage and resorting to flight only as a last resort. If surprised, it shuts its eyes, collapses and feigns death, but recovers instantly for an escape chance and dashes away.

The Romans named it Crex crex, syllabing the doubled, rasping cry of the male bird.

A corncrake in full throat will crex away hour after hour, night and day, but will hardly ever be seen. It also grunts, whistles and croaks, and emits an eerie scream when driving off a predator.

Aristotle mentioned the corncrake, and its fossil bones have been found dating back to the late Ice Age, 11,000 years ago. It has several other names: landrail, daker-hen, grass-quail, corn cracker and corn creak. It is protected under English law and lives on insects, slugs, snails, worms and seeds.

Theories vary about its decline, which coincided with the introduction in the last century of hay-cutting, nest-destroying machines. The sowing of rye grass to produce an earlier hay crop than meadow grass meant corncrakes could not get a nesting start at all.

The RSPB believes machinery drove the corncrakes farther and farther north, until now their only strongholds are in the small fields on the Hebridean Islands off northwest Scotland.

However, some naturalists point out that other ground-nesting birds have survived machinery and there could be more subtle reasons.

Max Nicholson, who has studied birds for many years, feels there is still a lot to discover about the corncrake — if it survives to be studied.

The reason for its persistent calling remains a mystery, he says. It may have something to do with gathering a number of birds in one place before they can breed successfully.

Briefer Piano Practice Best

CHICAGO (UPI) — The best piano practice occurs in "short periods of concentrated attention," according to Patricia Taylor Lee, author of a booklet entitled "So You Always Wanted to Play the Piano", published by the National Piano Foundation, Chicago.

"By setting aside two half-hour practice sessions each day, or four 15-minute periods, you can make astonishing progress," says Ms. Lee.

ONE YEAR OLD—Emily Suzanne Anderson was a happy 13-pounder on her first birthday. At birth, she weighed in at one pound, five ounces. (AP Laserphoto)

Tiny New-Born Now Year Old

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP) — The clothes Emily Anderson's mother dressed her in when she brought her home from the hospital as a newborn were only slightly larger than a Barbie doll's. Today, 1-year-old Emily dwarfs those clothes with her 13-pound frame, which is 11½ pounds larger than it was when she was born. Emily was born to Ricky and Rebecca Anderson of Rocky Mount last October at Chapel Hill Memorial Hospital. She arrived three months early due to her mother's high blood pressure and kidney problems. At that time, the 12-inch long, one pound, five ounce Emily set a record for the hospital as the smallest-born baby ever to survive there. She stayed at the hospital for two and a half months in an isolette or incubator in the intensive care nursery. When she weighed three pounds, the Andersons were allowed to take her home. Shortly after her birth, Emily took a turn for the worse. Her weight had fallen to one pound, two ounces, and her heart rate kept dropping. But she pulled through because she's an "answered prayer baby," her mother says.

City Counted 4 Accidents

An estimated $3,550 property damage resulted from a series of four traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday. Heaviest damage, officers said, resulted from a 9:35 a.m. mishap on Hopkins Drive, 124 feet North of the Arthur Street intersection and involved cars driven by Stephen Warren Aldridge of 3301 Tucker Dr., and Lorine Denise Roberson of 719 Clement Dorm. Damage from the mishap was set at $500 to the Aldridge vehicle and $1,000 to the Roberson car. Cars driven by Gale Davis Sumrell of Route 4, Greenville and Mary Alice Blount of 1307 West Fourth St. collided about 11:57 a.m. at the intersection of Third and Greene Streets, resulting in an estimated $1,000 damage to the Sumrell car and $300 damage to the Blount auto. Elizabeth Ann McClellan of 1209 Ragsdale Rd. was charged with failing to reduce her speed enough to avoid an accident following investigation of a 5:15 p.m. mishap on 14th Street, 100 feet East of the Dalebrook Circle intersection. Officers said the McClellan car collided with a vehicle driven by Irma Sermons Worthington of Route 1, Ayden, resulting in an estimated $500 damage to the Worthington car and $250 damage to the McClellan vehicle. Police reported William Thomas Hudson Jr. of Route 1, Vanceboro, was injured when the bicycle he was riding collided with a car driven by Edith Gallion Walker of 3000 Golden Rd. about 6:50 p.m. at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Golden Road. No charges were made and no property damage resulted from the mishap, according to investigators.

Arrested In Altercation

Steve Ward, 38 of 119C Lakeview Terr. was arrested by Greenville Police yesterday on multiple charges following an altercation with officers at 1205 Dickinson Ave. about 4:30 p.m. Chief Glenn Cannon said Ward was charged with disorderly conduct, resisting arrest, assault on an officer, and damage to city and personal property. Police, according to Cannon, were investigating a disturbance at 1205 Dickinson Ave. involving other individuals, when Ward allegedly entered the disagreement, using abusive language and shoving one investigator. Officers, following a brief struggle, subdued Ward and took him to the Magistrates officer, where another altercation erupted between Ward and police, before Ward could be lodged in the county jail, the chief explained. Ward was released under a $1,200 bond pending court action in the case, Cannon noted.

Two Charged In Shoplifting

Two Greenville residents were arrested by local police yesterday in connection with an alleged shoplifting incident in Wilson. Chief Glenn Cannon identified the two as Sandra Gooding, 28 of 401 Church St., charged with aiding and abetting in shoplifting, and Norman Barnhill, 26 of 1009 West Fifth St., charged with shoplifting. The incident for which the two were charged, the chief said, allegedly occurred at the J. C. Penney Co. in Wilson.

Howard Lee Says State Shares Chowan River Responsibilities

By NAOMI KAUFMAN Associated Press Writer EDENTON, N.C. (AP) — The state must bear part of the responsibility for the algae-growth problems of the Chowan River, Natural Resources and Community Development Secretary Howard Lee said Tuesday. Speaking at a public hearing on the condition of the algae-choked river, Lee said, "Certain decisions were made at the time by us as a state that unfortunately do not serve us well." Lee was referring to the presence of CF Industries, a fertilizer plant on the river near Tunis that opened about 10 years ago. The plant has added heavily to nitrogen levels in the river and increased the problem of periodic algae blooms and fish kills, according to a report by Lee's department. Algae blooms have plagued the river since the early 1970s. At the hearing, Lee announced an eight-point plan to help clean up the river. Among its major points is solving the problem of nitrogen entering the river from the fertilizer plant. The plan cites "poor management practices from previous years" at the plant as part of the problem.

Lee also cited the problems of agricultural runoff and inadequately treated municipal sewage as contributors to the problem. And he said that a pulp and paper plant in Virginia, Union Camp, dumps large amounts of nitrogen into the river. The state is working with Virginia officials to try to reduce that problem, he said. Lee and other state and local officials visited the CF Industries Tuesday afternoon where they were briefed by a number of environmental experts and shown the swamp, which is virtually dead because of excess nitrogen. Dr. Neil Grigg, assistant secretary of Natural Resources, said CF Industries has been reluctant to agree to do anything about the swamp, but he said the state would continue to crack down on the plant and take legal action if necessary.

April Date In Oswald Lawsuit

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The Fort Worth Court of Civil Appeals will hear arguments next April 24 on British author Michael Eddowes' lawsuit seeking to have the body of Lee Harvey Oswald exhumed.

Eddowes filed the suit earlier this year, contending that the corpse in the grave may not be Oswald's, but that of a Soviet spy. Last week, Dallas County medical officials joined Eddowes in asking Tarrant County to open the grave and settle the controversy, but officials here said they would do so only under a court order.

Oswald, who the Warren Commission said shot President John F. Kennedy, was gunned down two days after the assassination in 1963.

KKK-Watchers Cite Uneasiness Behind 'Revival'

By ROBERT CAREY
United Press International

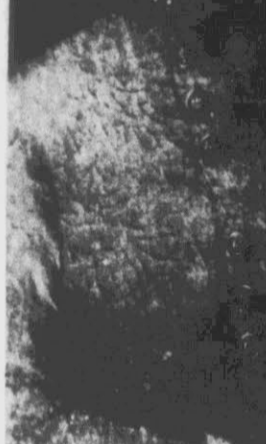

In the summer of 1979 for the first time since the peak of 1960s civil rights protests, stories about the Ku Klux Klan appeared on newspaper front pages. Images of burning crosses glowed again from living room television screens.

Klan rallies were held in unlikely locations — Middletown, Ohio, Barnegat, N.J. — as well as old trouble spots, Little Rock, Montgomery and Selma.

There were even incidents of Klan activity aboard three ships of the Navy's Atlantic Fleet based in Norfolk, Va.

It was an uneasy summer. Those old scare words "recession," "unemployment" and "inflation" were heard more and more. The Ku Klux Klan, born of the South's despondency and dissatisfaction over its loss of the Civil War, offered answers for some and gained at least a mild resurgence nationally.

Was this a beginning of a revival for the KKK, which in the 20th century has been synonymous with racial and religious bigotry?

DISBANDED KLAN — Confederate Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest, the KKK's grand wizard in 1869 ordered the Klan disbanded, deploring its drift toward murder and plunder. (UPI Photo)

Professor Martin Patchen of Purdue University's Department of Sociology and Anthropology whose field of expertise is race and ethnic relations and who has published articles on race relations in high schools. "But I would make one comment.

"I noticed it in the idea of the Klan tracing Martin Luther King's march from Selma to Montgomery. This seems to be pushing the idea that it is now the whites who are being deprived of their civil rights just as the blacks were earlier. The Klan continues to represent racism in the United States that has never died."

In Hartselle, Ala., author William Bradford Huie, who has written extensively on the Klan, offered another dimension.

"These old boys who like guns and like to get out at night and get drunk... who like to shoot up something if they can, that isn't going to end," Huie said. He spoke of old antagonisms.

"These men, particularly in the summertime, have got to have somewhere to go at night and got to have some excitement. This has been going on for more than a century between black people and, in particular, the poor whites."

However, the appeal of the Klan that refueled its latest revival, is neither confined to Huie's prototype good old boys nor bounded by the states of the old Confederacy. It never has been in this century during its periodic surfacings.

In a recent Louis Harris survey, more than 70 percent of those polled feel the country is in a recession, and more than 60 percent think there will be a recession a year from now. They also fear unemployment will rise sharply and prices will keep going up. They expect double-digit inflation to continue at perhaps an even faster pace. People on retirement incomes are especially frightened.

In some areas, far removed from the good buddy company of those who lace their beer with bourbon, the Klan is altering its pitch to fit the changing times.

In the affluent retirement communities around Beaver Lake in northwest Arkansas "clean-cut young men" are going door-to-door soliciting Klan membership. Blacks have the NAACP, Jews have B'Nai B'rith, they say, but what does the white protestant have? The Klan, that's what. It does not appear at present that many of these upper income retirees have joined. But they are listening. The clean cut young men, for the most part, are not being turned away from the door.

In other areas, to fit the audiences, some of the old Klan venom surfaces.

In June, Louis Beam, state organizer for the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, spoke from the back of a pickup truck at Euless, Tex. "I don't mean any disrespect for colored folks when they're in their place," he said. "But five years ago you never saw a nigger with a white woman."

On the other hand, Randy Howard, the state organizer for the Knights of the KKK in Arkansas, says he is not a bigot. Howard, at 5-feet-2, might be taken for a Munchkin in his Klan uniform and his speech is as soft and polite as you would imagine that of a Munchkin might be.

"The Klan is completely legal and law abiding," Howard is fond of saying. "The minorities have lots of organizations working for them but how many are working for the white people. If you are white and proud to be white then people call you a racist."

But the bottom line, whether it's hard or soft sell, is essentially the same: the white protestant American is being denied his due.

Both Beam and Howard, as organizers for the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, fall under the direction of David Duke, Grand Wizard of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, whose home base is Metairie, La., a suburb of New Orleans.

In Duke may be found the key to some of the Klan resurgence. No one would ever cast Duke in the role of a typical Klansman. In many ways he is a sharp antithesis to the red-neck, semi-literate rank-and-file image the Klan projects.

David Duke is tall, handsome, college educated and intelligent. He holds a history degree from Louisiana State University, preaches non-violence and has his followers sign a pledge against illegal acts.

"We don't wave machine guns at rallies," he said. "We are much larger and more powerful than any other Klan group." He is probably right. But no one keeps tabs on the Klan any more and most factions don't like to talk about their membership.

In an interview in his office in the Patriot Bookstore, Duke sat in front of a huge Klan flag, a black cross on a white circle in a red field, and talked about what he was trying to do.

Simply, he said, his organization is fighting for the civil rights of white citizens through legal action, educational programs, public appearances and debates.

Duke filed a friend of the court brief in the celebrated Allen Bakke case that restricted Affirmative Action programs in graduate schools. In the interview he mentioned the Brian Weber case, which upheld voluntary Affirmative Action training programs in a Louisiana aluminum plant, citing it as proof white citizens were losing their civil rights.

"That case is going to launch the largest civil rights movement ever seen in this country," Duke said. "That decision said white people have no civil rights."

Duke, who grew up in an upper middle class neighborhood near New Orleans' Lake Pontchartrain, is the son of a U.S. Department of Energy engineer who encouraged his children to excel academically.

Now 28, he formerly taught English in a Laotian school under the auspices of the U.S. Agency for International Development. He favors a business suit and a tie at rallies over Klan garb and has debated several prominent black figures, including Jesse Jackson, Carl Roman and Bobby Seale.

"I've made the Klan respectable," he said. "I know my issues."

Duke sounds another note, an important one in understanding the tone of the KKK in 1979. "There is a lot of jealousy by some of the old fashioned Klan leaders about our success," Duke said. "I'm not going to say anything bad about them, but our tactics and principles are different."

Mildly put, as is Duke's fashion, Duke is indeed viewed with open alarm and bitter dislike by some of the other Klan factions in the country.

It is a fact which makes it doubtful if the divergent schisms of the Klan can ever bridge their differences. And any future meshing into a national, unified KKK wielding real political power appears unlikely.

Robert Shelton, imperial wizard of the United Klans of America, Tuscaloosa, Ala., and Bill Wilkinson, imperial wizard of the Invisible Empire, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, Denham Springs, La., might be viewed as old-school Klansmen.

But neither Shelton nor Wilkinson care very much for each other and they like Duke even less.

KKK-Watchers Ponder

Shelton has been around the longest. A familiar figure at cross-burning Klan rallies of the mid-60s, Shelton spent a year in prison in 1969 after refusing to turn over subpoenaed Klan documents to the House un-American Activities Committee.

He recently accused the FBI of trying "to discredit the Klan" by financing some of its rival factions. He mentioned neither Duke nor Wilkinson as being recipients but did say neither one of them were "bonafide Klansmen."

Shelton, head of the United Klans since 1961, said Wilkinson, who sometimes straps on pistols at rallies, is "flashy and violent." While Duke, says Shelton, "is a publicity hound who makes a big splash with the media."

"We're not a nigger-hating group," Shelton told a rally at Hamburg, Ark., in June. "We just detest the things some people do."

Wilkinson publishes a monthly newspaper, "The Klansman," which proclaims on its editorial page, "If you haven't joined the Invisible Empire, you haven't joined the Klan." It contains racist cartoons and ads seeking members to join the Klan Youth Corps and hawking T-shirts which read, "Want to take my gun... Come and get it!"

An editorial written by Wilkinson in the August issue reads in part, "Alabama was the center of the resistance by the White race in the 50s and 60s and now it continues unabated into the 70s. We have made sufficient progress in Alabama to state with certainty that there will be many Klan victories in the 1980s, the victories which will propel our movement into political and economic power for the first time since the 1930s."

Alabama Gov. Fob James does not agree. "Probably the demonstrations to date have numbered about 100 people or so, and it's always the same people," James said the Klan in Alabama is not a political force and will not become one nationally.

Not only in Alabama, but elsewhere, rallies were small, 100-200 people with the counter-demonstrators or hecklers often numbering two or three times more. The rallies themselves, with notable exceptions, were no longer necessarily frightening experiences for any outsiders who might be in attendance. Instead, many seemed comic operas, hollow stagings of more sinister gatherings in bygone years.

The FBI, which infiltrated the Klan heavily in the 1960s and earlier, seemed no longer much interested. New FBI guidelines issued in 1976, following numerous suits against it for alleged illegal search and entry, limited that agency's investigative responsibilities.

In brief, the FBI would no longer investigate organizations unless they were suspected of having committed a federal crime. Violent oratory and sword waving was no longer enough. A criminal act must be suspected.

For what could interest the FBI in the burlesque at Barnegat, N.J., where David Duke announced he would enter the presidential primaries (even though he is under age) at a rally on the lawn of a local doctor arranged by the doctor's 17-year-old son? Nothing.

The son had convinced his mother and father he should join the Klan only after he promised he would not break any of the Ten Commandments. "Why didn't he just join the Young Republicans?" asked Dr. John Morrison of his son, Aaron.

The rally in Middletown, Ohio, was a little rougher. There was some fighting, some wielding of sticks and tree limbs, but no serious injuries. Hal Kramer, executive vice president of the Middletown Chamber of Commerce, said he thought most residents had the same reaction.

"I think people wondered why they did this in Middletown and wished it would go away," said Kramer. "I don't think the July rally has hurt our image any, but if there are more rallies I think it would do harm to our community."

In Little Rock, Ark. Gov. Bill Clinton said although he "deplored" the Klan, they should be permitted to rent the Fine Arts Building at the University of Arkansas at Little Rock to stage a rally because other political and social organizations had been permitted to rent public buildings for similar purposes.

There was a skirmish or two and several arrests outside the building before the June rally but no injuries. There were far more armed policemen on campus than there were Klansmen and supporters.

Klan Has Two Separate Lives

By ROBERT CAREY
United Press International

The Ku Klux Klan has had two separate existences, one in the 19th century, the other in the 20th. Neither bears a great resemblance to the other except by name.

The original KKK was formed purely as a social club by six young Confederate veterans of the Civil War. The date was Christmas Eve, 1865. The place, Pulaski, Tenn. Had it had university attachment, it might have been a college fraternity. Many present day Greek letter societies also date their beginnings to Civil War times, are Southern in origin, love secrecy and use rituals involving Greek words and derivatives.

The original six apparently took the term from the Greek word "kyklos," from which the English word "circle" derives. They transformed this into "Ku Klux" and "Klan" was added for alliteration and a symbol of brotherhood.

For their own amusement they drew up a complicated ritual for their meetings and an allegorical and lengthy initiation for new members. They affected robes and hoods in a Halloween spirit of mischief and fun. On occasion, they would gallop around the countryside on horseback dressed in their regalia.

It was not long, though, before the Klan assumed a more serious purpose as it spread into other states — resisting federal occupation, protecting whites from carpet-baggers and black governments, working to restore home rule.

The Klan engaged more in more in activities which were illegal under Reconstruction governments. There was by then a good reason for secrecy. If uncovered, its members would be subject to federal prisons or firing squads.

The Klan in its beginnings drew in many of the South's best men. And, in time, many of its worst.

In the end, as it turned more to violence and random acts of terrorism, often directed at blacks, it could no longer be effectively disciplined from the top by its more moderate leaders.

In 1869, the Klan's grand wizard, Confederate Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest, ordered the Klan disbanded, deploring its drift toward murder and plunder.

But it staggered on in various forms for perhaps another decade, its membership dwindling as it sank into general disrepute, before disappearing.

The Klan, as it was reborn in the 20th century, had no heroic vestiges clinging to it. An itinerant Alabama preacher, "Colonel" William J. Simmons, who had been a private in the Spanish-American War, brought it back to life.

The official date of Klan rebirth is Thanksgiving night, 1915. The place, Stone Mountain, Ga.

And there, Simmons wrote later, "...bathed in the sacred glow of the fiery cross, the Invisible Empire was called from its slumber of half a century."

The 20th Century Klan was to be fueled by blatant bigotry, backwoods fundamentalism and ritual claptrap. Not only was it a white supremacy organization, but its membership was now closed to Jews, Catholics and foreign-born Americans, all of whom were welcome in the 19th Century Klan.

To Simmons' flower oratory and grandiose dreams were added the organizational abilities and dollar hustle of Edward Y. Clark and Elizabeth Tyler, professional fund raisers on the lookout for a new scheme, who saw in the newborn Klan an opportunity for some fast money in the booming '20s.

By 1923 the Klan boasted 5 million members, was adding 3,500 new ones each day and putting $45,000 every 24 hours into the national treasury at the Atlanta home offices. Some of its largest state memberships, like those in Ohio and Indiana, were outside the old Confederacy.

The Klan controlled and influenced politicians in both major parties in that decade and never wielded as much power again. Justice Hugo L.

Black of the U.S. Supreme Court was later to admit he had been a Klan member when elected to the Senate from Alabama in 1926. There were others.

But newspaper investigations into the Klan's darker side of murder and torture, particularly one by the New York World, touched off a Congressional investigation. Clark and Mrs. Tyler were found involved in personal scandal.

The Klan declined. D. C. Stephenson, the reigning Grand Dragon of the Empire, was indicted in 1925 in the death of a woman acquaintance, whom he allegedly kidnapped at gunpoint and sexually assaulted. He was convicted of second degree murder and sentenced to life in prison.

There was one more hurrah for the fading Klan. The presidential candidacy of Al Smith, a Catholic, in 1928 touched off a mild rejuvenation under the banner of "Keep the Pope Out of the White House," but it never again was a serious political force.

The death blow came in 1944 when the Internal Revenue Service sought back taxes totaling $650,000 from the Klan on profits earned in the 20s. Facing that, what was left of the KKK disbanded nationally.

idents, following scuffles between black and white sailors, the Navy admitted there were seven to 10 Klan members aboard the supply ship Concord and a "handful" aboard the submarine tender Canopus.

Three white crewmen aboard the Norfolk-based carrier Independence donned white sheets and hoods and harassed black sailors. The three white crewmen face a court-martial.

The Navy has taken action to discourage further activity even though such indictments have been scattered. Chief of Naval Operations Thomas Hayward said although First Amendment privileges were acknowledged, no activity would be allowed that infringed on others' rights or impaired Navy strength.

With the coming of autumn, observable Klan activity seemed to ebb as in the past civil rights protests waned with the passage of summer. Whether or not the summer of '79 marked the start of a new cycle of Klan activity would have to wait for yet another season.

Couple Hosted Class Of '47

The Class of 1947 of Grimesland High School were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Coley Vainright for a pig picking Saturday.

Mrs. Christine Elks Hardy shared pictures and class mementos with the group. Following a meal and tour of the Vainright home, each class member gave a report of his/her activities since graduation.

A 'Flashover' Spreads Quick

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A small fire needs only two minutes to become a major blaze. A phenomenon called flashover can spread a minor incident throughout a room, says the National Bureau of Standards, which is researching to the subject. In only two minutes, a dropped match or cigarette, a wastebasket or a kitchen grease fire can spread through the room, the agency says. If such a fire cannot be easily put out by one person before the two minutes have elapsed, NBS recommends vacating the house immediately and calling the fire department from a neighbor's residence.

Taste Luzianne.
Then you'll believe that great tasting coffee doesn't have to be bitter.

Natural chicory is the reason. You see, most coffees are made from coffee beans alone and can sometimes taste bitter. But Luzianne is different. In a better way, Luzianne takes the finest coffee beans and blends them with just the right amount of natural chicory, coffee's natural flavor partner. Chicory helps unlock more of coffee's rich, full-bodied flavor and remove the "bitters."

Physicians Uniting To Trim Costs

By DALE SINGER
ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Nearly 1,000 physicians, concerned with the spiraling costs of health care, have taken steps to help the system themselves.

Their St. Louis Metro Health Plan is an alternative to traditional health insurance plans that provide subscribers with prepaid preventive medical care for routine office visits as well as hospital and emergency treatment.

Forty doctors in the area put up $6,000 each for initial funding. The plan now covers about 10,000 persons. To help keep costs low, a review board continually monitors services ordered by participating doctors.

The plan is administered by Medserco Inc., whose president, Richard M. Ross, said it is the best way to bring financial responsibility to health-care costs.

Drawing a diagram linking the patient, the doctor, the hospital and the insurance company, Ross said spiraling costs keep going up because none of the four links in the chain really cares what medical care costs.

"The way the health-care system works," he said in an interview, "doctors often have to choose the most expensive way to give you the care you need. Instead of giving you a prescription for digitalis for $50, which you may not have, he puts you in the hospital to give you digitalis at $240 a day, which your insurance will cover."

"To protect against a claim of malpractice later on, a doctor may overhospitalize and overtest, but he really doesn't care, because he isn't paying for it. He has no sense of financial responsibility for health care — his only responsibility is to his patient."

Ross said about 60 percent of the primary-care physicians in the St. Louis area are part of the Metro Health Plan. They also maintain their private practices and help the plan succeed where others fall short because of the strong emotional involvement between doctors and their patients.

Ross said that relationship is one reason why so many patients find it so hard to seek a second opinion or leave their family doctor for one associated with another group.

"You don't pick your doctor on the basis of empirical data," he said. "It's an emotional choice. If someone tells you your doctor is wrong, you're going to find someone to support your doctor, to support your original emotional decision."

"Once a doctor orders something for you, you need it. You can't tell a consumer that what the doctor orders is bad. You have to change what the doctor orders."

All claims are handled by computer, eliminating much of the paperwork involved in many insurance plans. Medserco manages the plan for a fixed fee. Ross said it does not benefit from a percentage of the dollar amount of claims it handles, as other insurance companies do.

"We encourage you to go to the doctor when you're sick or for routine care," he said. "We pay you to stay well. We want you to stay well."

In its early stages, the plan is being offered only through businesses to their employees. The large group of doctor-participants makes it likely that anyone joining will find his or her doctor already involved. Major hospitals and pharmacies are also participants.

Ross is especially pleased with representation of labor organizations and two trustees of the American Medical Association on the health group's board.

"This is the model for what health care should be," Ross said. "There's not a cent of federal money in it, and we don't have to build any new health centers. You just have to restructure the way health care dollars flow."

Ross considers the peer-review feature of the plan the best reason other areas will want to follow its lead. If a doctor's fees or services are twice judged to be excessive, the doctor is charged directly for the excess the third time.

"Once you point out to a doctor that somebody's looking at what he's doing, he never does it again," Ross said. "When you do that, you're taking away a doctor's license to practice bad medicine."

Turns Farm Into Energy Experiment

By MARCELLA S. KREITER BELLAIRE, Mich. (UPI) — Evan Fisher has turned his grandfather's 300-acre farm on scenic Lake Bellaire into an alternative energy experimental station.

Fisher, 58, a mechanical engineer who worked for 34 years at the Army's Harry Diamond Laboratories in Washington, is designing a windmill that could supply 94 percent of the heating needs of the average home.

He'll begin work on it when he receives the money from his federal energy research grant. He expects to receive the grant shortly.

The system, which Fisher said is not new, will work on the same principles as a forced air furnace operated on oil.

"With a 30 mph wind blowing for an hour, I should have the same amount of heat I'd get from burning a gallon of oil for an hour," Fisher said as he gazed out the window of his solar-heated home.

"I've always been interested in alternative energy supplies. During World War II, I ran my car on No. 2 furnace oil. Five years ago, I presented this windmill to the Army but they weren't interested."

Fisher began building his Lake Bellaire home two years ago. He has lived in it a year.

The southern side of the house has fixed solar panels to catch the sun's midday rays. Fisher uses wood and oil as a backup heating system. He hopes to make the house 100 percent fuel efficient and oil-free by the time he works out all the bugs.

"I've made some mistakes," Fisher said. "Last winter I didn't have the drains around the solar panels quite right and the melting snow would freeze up all the time, but I think I've got that licked now."

"I also didn't realize how hot the living room would get with the sun shining straight in and the snow as insulation, so I've been thinking of putting another register in and pumping that heat to the back of the house."

Fisher said his windmill will use 36-foot helicopter blades whose speed is controlled by a hydraulic brake to produce heat. The heat produced by the friction of the propeller-turning gears controlled by the brake will be piped into a 55,000-gallon water storage tank below the house.

Pumps will then be used to distribute the heat throughout the house as needed.

Fisher said the windmill will complement the solar panels attached to the house. On a calm, sunny day, the solar panels will do the bulk of the heating. On a cloudy, breezy day, the windmill will take over.

Fisher said installing just one small solar panel on an old summer home on his property has reduced his electric bill there by a third.

"The question has always been whether it is cost effective," Fisher said. "We have had cheap, convenient fuel for so long. The best thing about oil is it flows nicely down a pipe. We have always had the technology to get away from oil but the investment was so high."

"With the way oil prices are going now, though, we just might do it."

The biggest problem Fisher foresees in building his windmill is making it strong enough to withstand storm winds that get as high as 70 mph.

Fisher expects to construct the windmill within a year and then evaluate its performance for another year before determining whether to make design changes.

Life-Cycle Of Stars Described

TWINKLE, TWINKLE WASHINGTON (AP) — Stars pass through a well-defined life cycle, according to National Geographic.

It says, "They are born from clouds of dust and gas, live long and relatively uneventful lives pouring out energy, and then die spectacularly. The explosion of a large star, called a supernova, creates one of the most dazzling displays of fireworks in the universe. About 100 million times more brilliant than the sun, the explosion sends matter in all directions."

"From this material new stars and planets, even life, are born. Nearly all the atoms in the human body and in the earth once originated in a star that exploded and disintegrated."

Munich Art Colony Now Commercial

By ALISON SMALE
 MUNICH, West Germany (UPI) — A girl in tight leather pants and thigh-length fur boots swings along the main street toward the boutique complex futuristically named "Citta 2000."
 Just ahead, an old lady in a Loden coat and hat shuffles toward the corner bakery she has patronized daily for 20 years.
 A long-haired guitar player strolls across the green expanse of the English Garden to slump cross-legged on the grass and strum his strings.
 These contrasts of the chic, the traditional, and the Bohemian are the essence of Schwabing, Munich's most famous quarter and a favorite tourist attraction.
 Until 1891, when an expanding Munich incorporated it, Schwabing was an outlying village with its own mayor. While now firmly integrated into this lively city of 1.5 million people, Schwabing retains a life of its own.
 When Lenin lived in the elegant Kaiserstrasse in the early 1900s, Schwabing swarmed with young revolutionaries and literati.
 Thomas Mann wrote "Death in Venice" here. Frank Wedekind ran his "Eleven Judges" cabaret and wrote satirical plays attacking the staid Wilhelminian bourgeoisie.
 In time, art and revolution drew less attractive men to Schwabing. Here Adolf Hitler tried to eke out a living as an artist — and became intoxicated with the anti-Semitism of salons run by the cultured nobility.
 In the 1920s, artists and revolutionaries lived uneasily side by side. Playwright Bertolt Brecht caroused through its bars while Hitler and his friends plotted their abortive Munich beerhall putsch of 1923.
 Schwabing retains remnants of that tradition. But the dominant mood now — as in London's Chelsea or New York's Greenwich Village — is that of an artist's colony fallen prey to commercialism.
 Hence the many art galleries, antique shops and boutiques offering "radical chic" at radical prices — $25 for a simple jacket, $2,630 for an antique oak chest.
 The prices seem to attract customers. Munich boasts the most millionaires of any German city and their children flock to buy the latest, cooling off later with an ice — or beer — at one of the pavement cafes on Leopoldstrasse, Schwabing's main street, or warming themselves in winter with coffee and cake in the rooftop cafe of the concrete and glass Hertie building.
 This towering modern structure contrasts with the imperial splendor of Schwabing's older buildings, adorned with white stucco and painted pink, brown or even purple by trendy restorers.
 These buildings still house a few old "Schwabingers," who go daily to street stands for their fruit, or to small corner stores where they greet the shopkeeper with the customary Bavarian "Gruess Gott" (Greet God) and pause to discuss neighborhood affairs.
 Older inhabitants often take another daily walk, to the English Garden with their dogs. The "garden" is a 900-acre park laid out in English landscape style in the 18th century for the Bavarian Wittelsbach kings.
 In summer, the Garden is a paradise for dogs and beer-drinkers, local and visitors. Seated around the pagodalike wooden structure of the Chinese Tower, they quench their thirst and listen to brass bands.
 Under the arches of the mock-Greek Monopteros temple, teen-agers listen to guitar players, occasionally breaking off for a game of soccer, still more popular than the American import, frisbee.
 In winter the teen-agers migrate to unfashionable backstreet cafes, the gathering places for students, poets and actors from the small experimental theaters nearby.
 Here, the atmosphere still reeks of art and politics, the old Schwabing. Students read and argue as leftists fervently discuss the latest conservative indiscretion of Bavaria's new state president, Franz-Josef Strauss.
 But such signs of the past are vanishing fast in Schwabing. The "schickeria," as the Germans call the young and trendy, are taking over. Cafes and houses are being demolished to make way for apartment complexes and still more boutiques catering for the rich.

Nutritionist Urges Truth On Labels

By LANCE J. HERDEGEN MILWAUKEE (UPI) — At a time when many products on the supermarket shelf are labeled "all-natural" or "made with natural ingredients," nutritionist George M. Briggs thinks the word should mean something.

"I'm not a natural nut, but I want the truth," he said. "Advertisers — in their world of their own — picked up the word 'natural' to help sell their products," said Briggs, an internationally known scientist and educator whose work led to the discovery of the vitamin B-12. He is also co-author of a widely used textbook on nutrition.

"People are looking for natural products because of an interest in health foods. I think it is a word being misused terribly, and I've been speaking out about this. 'We have a rule of thumb — if you have to use the word 'natural' in advertising, although it is on the food package, it probably isn't natural,'" he said.

That may change later this year when the Federal Trade Commission defines "natural" in a proposal to regulate advertising in the food business, said Briggs, assistant dean of the College of Natural Resources at the University of California-Berkeley.

Briggs was one of three nutritionists who made national headlines recently in testimony to the FTC that the "natural" beer ads used by Anheuser-Busch, Inc., St. Louis, are inaccurate and deceptive. The conclusions were part of a memorandum filed by the Miller Brewing Co. of Milwaukee. Miller has asked the agency to halt such presentations.

"I'm not pushing beer, I'm pushing truth in advertising. I was contacted by Miller because I'm an expert in the field. I consult for any food company that comes to me," he said of his testimony.

"Anheuser-Busch beer isn't natural, but neither is Miller's. Just because a thing is traditional doesn't mean it is natural. The beer people have this problem."

Briggs, interviewed while in Wisconsin to visit relatives, said he opposes banning use of the word "natural" in food advertising.

"It is a good word and means something," he said. "It ought to be used. It is an honest word that is part of the English language. I'd rather define it."

His definition of "natural" would require a food to be "derived from nature and look something like the original food." It would allow minimum processing after harvest, such as cutting, grinding, drying and packaging, but would not permit such foods to contain artificial flavorings, color additives or chemical preservatives or to have two or more ingredients.

"Under that definition, any food with sugar in it could not be called natural," he said.

Consumers also need to be better educated, he said.

"As more and more foods become available, people have to read labels and become more sophisticated about what they eat. People previously ate what was raised or brought from nearby. All that has changed in recent years. We've had a tremendous food industry develop — a $280 billion a year business," he said.

"This isn't all bad. I'm not a natural food guy at all, but I think it is wrong to call an artificial product 'natural.' It is a gimmick and not truthful, and the government shouldn't allow it."

"I think people ought to know what the heck is in the food they eat. I don't think we have to eat all natural foods. I eat a lot of foods that are not natural. I eat ice cream, soft drinks and junk foods."

"Just because a thing is natural doesn't make it great necessarily. In other words, there are a lot of bad things in nature, too."

RHINO EXTINCTION
WASHINGTON (AP) — The World Wildlife Fund has announced a worldwide, $2 million emergency campaign to save the black rhinoceros and four other rhino species it says are in danger of becoming extinct.

Poachers are killing Kenya's black rhinoceros to supply the market for rhino horn, and the animal may become extinct in 1980, said a spokesman.

Powdered horn is sold in the Far East as a so-called all-curing medicine and as an aphrodisiac.

Advise From A Foster Mother To 1,200 Children

By PATRICK J. KILLEN
HAYMARKET, Va. (UPI) — It all began when Edith Kerns wanted the daughter her marriage had failed to provide. Now, 23 years later, Mrs. Kerns has been foster mother to 1,218 children.

Mrs. Kerns' modest frame country home on six acres of rolling northern Virginia farmland 35 miles west of Washington D.C. serves as a receiving house for teen-age boys Fairfax County authorities deem should live away from their parents.

In most cases, the boys come from homes where there have been difficult domestic problems. Some have gotten into trouble with the law and a few have been abandoned.

Mrs. Kerns, a motherly woman of 58, provides rooms with bunk beds, lots of turkey, chicken, hamburgers and spaghetti, clean clothes, and a measure of family stability before the boys are sent to residential schools, foster families or returned home.

"It's just common, everyday living," said Mrs. Kerns in an interview. She smiled and agreed that most parents would be happy if they had just that in their homes.

Mrs. Kerns usually has seven to nine boys staying with her, and has had as many as 18. The atmosphere is in keeping with Mrs. Kerns' good nature. The boys seem to follow each other in being polite ("Yes, ma'am," "No, ma'am"), helping with the yard work, getting up without significant argument between 6 and 6:30 a.m. or going to bed during the week at 10 p.m.

"Well, I guess I was just cut out to handle boys," said Mrs. Kerns, pondering her dealings with boys who often are terrors to their parents.

The mother of two grown boys, Mrs. Kern said, "I just treat them like I treat my own. If they need a pat on the back, I give it to them. If they need a swat on the rear end, I give them that too."

Her boys all have to know the rules and the boys who have been with her the longest break in the new ones. "My biggest rule is don't smoke in the bedrooms," she said.

Not Many Of Us Left In Metric System War

By GLENNE CURRIE
UPI Lively Arts Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — Worried about learning the metric system — a half kilo of ground round, a fifth (liter) of salad oil? Take heart; it could be worse!

When I was 14 (in the pre-pocket calculator age) I was a whiz at math. Geometry and "trig" were like eating candy. Even calculus almost made sense.

But that was in another country (England). Before the year was out I was in school in Canada, and the bottom dropped out of the math market.

Problems involving tons suddenly seemed impossible. My schoolmates (in between sniggering at my wartime English clothes) had no such trouble.

Then the penny dropped: at last I was in the decimal society of North America. Happy day! No longer were tons an unwieldy 2,240 pounds, but a ridiculously simple 2,000 pounds.

Then I stumbled on the metric ton. Not only were there a short (American) ton of 2,000 pounds and a long (English) ton of 2,240 pounds, there also was a metric (French) ton (tonne) of (approx.) 2,204 pounds (1,000 kilograms).

Then there was the odd punctuation of metric: it's 6.7 (not 6.7) hectares, and 10 000 000 (not 10,000,000) kilometers.

At this point I gave up a career in mathematics. For a while I considered banking. The Canadian or American dollar of 100 cents, 1,000 mills, four quarters or eight bits was apple pie compared to the shepherd's pie muddle of English pound (then) of 20 shillings, 240 pence, 960 farthings, eight half-crowns, 10 florins or four (imaginary) "dollars." To say nothing of the guinea of 252 pennies, let alone the half-guinea of 126 pennies. But the idea of foreign exchange on this basis put me off banks for life. Sometimes I think they don't like me either.

My spelling was even better than my math, so I naturally gravitated to journalism. I still have difficulty with -ise and -ize, or -and -our, -ter and -tre, but that's another ball of tangled twine.

Industry already is committed to metric: 300 of Fortune's 500 have converted or are in the process; the auto industry and others involved in international trade have no choice, whatever re-tooling costs them.

Sports fans know all about metric: the magical mile has given way to the pedestrian 1,500 meters. Metric swimming pools are obligatory if you want to qualify for the Olympics; ski-jumpers are brought up on meters.

Practically all that are left are the marathon (there'd be a revolution in Greece if they tried messing about with 26 miles 385 yards), frog-jumping, and cricket.

If you want to know the weather, you have to understand Celsius because Fahrenheit is going the way of Centigrade. (Don't bother about the Kelvin scale, which is for low-temperature physicists and high-temperature masochists).

But if you give up on changing to metric, don't worry. Inertia will delay it for a generation: Washington's 1980 target is a pipe dream.

In time all school-leavers will have grown up with pocket calculators, and don't forget Texas Instruments, Casio and Sharp have a vested interest in metricization or decimalization.

But you can always join the rear-guard, an anti-metric group known as Americans for Customary Weights and Measures, whose leader Seaver Leslie is appropriately an antiquarian.

The ACWM has a certain sentimental appeal, like the Flat Earth Society — and has just about as much future.

Meanwhile, the United States is in good company.

The only other countries which haven't gone metric are Brunei, Burma, Liberia, Yemen Arab Republic and Yemen People's Democratic Republic.

Makes you feel like a Civil War veteran: "Not many of us left. Heh-heh!"

Set Awards For Poets

ASHEVILLE — Prizes amounting to about $500 will be awarded by the Poetry Council of North Carolina to over 50 contest winners at the annual Poetry Day Celebration to be held Saturday, October 27.

The annual event will be held at Sheraton Motor Inn in Asheville, and is being funded by a grant from the N. C. Arts Council.

Among awards to be given will be the Oscar Arnold Young Memorial Award, which carries a $100 cash prize and an engraved trophy to be held by the winner for a one-year period.

Also to receive cash prizes will be the first three place winners in five different poetry contests.

Registration begins at 9:30, with a general meeting to be held at 11 a.m. Council president Grace DiSanto of Morganton will welcome the group.

Luncheon is $4 and will be served at 12:30 p.m.

Poets and others interested in poetry are invited to attend. For full details telephone Ms. Disanto at (704)437-7151.

Examination of the vocal cords can be readily done by an ear, nose and throat specialist. With a reflective mirror the vocal cords can be inspected for irritation, inflammation or for early tumor formation. In difficult cases, a new fiber-optic instrument is used in order to inspect every portion of the vocal cord.

Once this is done and there is no evidence of polyps, tumors or nodules, you must consider methods of putting less strain on your voice. Whispering is not the way to do it. In fact, it may even exaggerate the hoarseness at the end of the day. You must modify your speaking and learn not to shout over the existing noise in your factory.

The inhalation of steam at the end of the day would be very beneficial to you. Steam is soothing, relaxing and helps return the tired vocal cords to normal. In some instances, doctors suggest that speech therapists be consulted to help people retrain their speech patterns and to reduce the added stresses made on the vocal cords.

For the past two months, the left side of my neck pops out after I eat. This lasts for about two hours and then goes away. By the time I go to my doctor, it's gone. I'm 28 and in excellent health. — Mr. H.O.C., Nev.

Dear Mr. C.: There are three pairs of glands which produce saliva. Each gland pours the saliva into the mouth through a tiny duct. Sometimes the duct is obstructed by inflammation or by the formation of tiny calcium stones. When this happens, the saliva is dammed back and produces the swelling that you describe.

X-rays can readily show if a stone is present in the gland or in the duct. There are also special studies by which dye is injected into the duct and then X-rayed, to determine the exact area that is blocked.

On many occasions, the stone in the duct can be felt in the mouth by the doctor. Under local anesthesia it can be easily removed.

Most of her charges stay with her two to three months but one, an abandoned child, has been there nine years. She keeps in touch with many of her former boys, now scattered throughout the country, and visits them in their own homes.

"It's a great feeling that you have helped someone along the way to get established," Mrs. Kern said.

Mrs. Kerns' bedrooms are supplemented by adjoining trailers. A detached recreation room, built by the Lions Club of Burke, Va., and a local contractor, David Boger, keeps the boys from getting too much under foot.

Mrs. Kerns recalls that early in her foster mother career, she had so much trouble with one boy that she decided she could keep him no longer and returned him to county authorities on a weekend.

The county official who came for the boy sharply criticized her for her failure to handle the boy. "I just felt awful," said Mrs. Kern.

The official took the boy to his own home for the weekend. "The boy set fire to his house," Mrs. Kerns said.

Her advice to parents is "Don't promise children something if you don't intend to carry through." That applies to punishment as well as rewards.

Edith B. Kerns grew up in neighboring Fauquier County and married a construction worker who was killed in a bulldozer accident in 1949. Because the Kerns had sons, not daughters, she became interested in providing a foster home for girls.

A friend in nearby Fairfax County, the big residential area west of Washington D.C., put her in touch with authorities there. There were delays but in 1956 she agreed to provide a receiving home for Fairfax children. Since then her 1,218 wards have ranged from an abandoned 4-day-old baby to 18-year-old boys.

The county pays $12 a day for each child at a time when food bills for hungry teen-aged boys are awesome: "One day I made five gallons of spaghetti and they ate every speck of it."

FOSTER MOTHER — Since 1956 Edith Kerns has been foster mother to 1,218 children. Her advice: "Don't promise children something if you don't intend to carry through." (UPI Photo)

Determination is a laudable trait, if there is some possibility of achieving a desired goal. But determination should not be confused with stubbornness that induces someone to pursue a hopeless cause, such as attempting to get a ruff even though it is evident that the enemy is not going to permit it.

The bidding was reasonable enough. North's raise to two spades is preferable to showing the clubs. On hands not good enough for two bids, it is more important to raise partner's major suit, for if he is not strong enough to bid again, you won't miss a game. South, looking at at least six winners, made a try in the suit in which he needed help.

South might have passed three no trump—that contract was cold—but we can't fault him for taking out to four spades.

West led the three of trumps, and declarer captured East's nine with the ten. In the hope of ruffing a diamond in dummy, declarer immediately led a low card in that suit. West won with the eight and continued another trump, and declarer led another diamond. West made a good play by winning with the queen instead of trying for a cheap trick. He fired back his last trump, taking the last trump off dummy. This held declarer to nine tricks and he cursed the evil fate that would not allow trumps to split.

He should have cursed his own obstinacy in trying for a diamond ruff which, it was plain to see, the defenders had no intention of allowing him to score. After winning the first trick, declarer should cash the ace of clubs and then lead a low diamond. West will win and continue a trump, and declarer should insert the table's seven.

If East happens to follow, the trumps have broken and declarer can always ruff a diamond. If not, then the seven wins the trick and declarer is in dummy to cash the king of clubs and ruff a club high. When that suit breaks 4-3, a long club can be established for a second diamond discard and the tenth trick. The queen of trumps and the ace of hearts are the entries.

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Carson-watching, that delicate pastime, is not the simple sport some apparently believe it to be.

I suggested to an old pal recently that watching the Johnny Carson-NBC situation was something like China-watching must have been in the days before recognition. "Horsefeathers," responded he, a former China-watcher.

Why, asked I, was it any different? "China-watching," he said, "was like trying to make a picture by connecting the dots, and often, a lot of the dots were missing."

Just like Carson-watching, I offered. In China, at least, you didn't have to deal with Beverly Hills entertainment lawyers, whose secretaries never run out of lines such as, "Sorry, Mr. Tort is oiling his skates."

Yes, a tricky business, Carson-watching. And in recent weeks, imprudent Carson dot-connectors might have been misled by some bum dots. You may remember that a month ago, Carson and NBC submitted their little misunderstanding to a referee, retired Judge Parks Stillwell of the Los Angeles Superior Court.

In a legal procedure called a "general reference," Carson and NBC asked Judge Stillwell to decide whether Carson's contract with NBC has already expired, as Carson claims, or if Carson is bound to NBC until the spring of 1981, as the network claims.

This action was seen by Carson-watchers as a bad sign. If Carson's going to court, it was reasoned, he must be serious about leaving NBC.

But then came October 1, and a Johnny Carson prime time special, his 17th anniversary show. The show was a smash, drawing 50 million viewers or so, and at the end, Carson said something like, "I'm going to be here for awhile."

This was a dot with meaning. One of Carson's beefs had been that he was tired of doing the same old late-night thing, and here was NBC giving him a chance to prove his worth in prime time. His little assurance at the end of the show might have meant something, a gesture, perhaps.

Then network President Fred Silverman, pleased with the success of Carson's special, was quoted as saying: "I'm looking forward to our working things out with Johnny, and to his remaining a member of the NBC family for a long, long time."

The network and its biggest star had agreed in their general reference petition that "Carson will file and serve his complaint within 30 days from the date hereof..." That was Sept. 12. Thirty days passed, and no documents from Carson.

Carson didn't file his complaint on time, someone close to the case confirms, but only because he got an extension to give his lawyers more time to prepare the case. The matter has not been settled, and Carson's documents "will be filed with the court shortly." Carson-watchers were back at dot one.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, OCT. 25, 1979

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Adverse influences prevail early in the day so make sure you are careful in all that you do and say. Be on your best behavior and show understanding where needed.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Going off on some tangent could keep you from advancing at this time. The planets are favorable and you can get much accomplished.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Handle important business affairs early in the day for best results. A higher-up could grant you a special favor now.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Strive for more harmony with associates and you accomplish a lot more. Go to the right sources for the information you need.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get right at your work and get it done instead of trying to put it off. Think of new ways to be more proficient at work.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You could be under some tension during the day but by evening this is relieved and you feel happy again. Be better groomed.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Let a difficult situation at home work itself out in the morning and harmony will be restored later. Study a new project of worth.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Plan how to improve regular routines. Contacting loyal friends who can help you solve a problem is wise at this time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't commit yourself to a task you are not sure about. Go after your aims early in the day and get excellent results.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Don't get excited over some unusual situation in the morning and you can rectify it intelligently later in the day.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Take time to plan the future intelligently. Make sure a new plan you have is well organized before putting it in operation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Not a good morning for socializing. Associates have fixed views, so don't argue with them today. Be wise.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You may be under some pressure in the morning but later all eases up and can accomplish a great deal. Express happiness.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will need to be taught self-control and patience, then this becomes a most successful life. Education should be directed along the line that most appeals to your progeny. Religious training is most important here.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Homosexuals Claim 'Mormon Militia' Harassment

By RON BARKER
Associated Press Writer
PROVO, Utah (AP) — Utah homosexuals say the Mormon Church is trying to stamp them out, using a private police force at the church-owned Brigham Young University to harass them throughout the state.

The claims are denied by both university president Dallin Oaks and the chief of the 24-officer BYU security force. But a former Mormon minister—who now serves a gay church in Salt Lake City — 27 miles from BYU's Provo campus — contends he saw men from BYU jotting down license plate numbers outside a gay bar.

And a Mormon lawyer says a client charged with forcible sexual abuse was set up for the arrest by what he called BYU's "Mormon Militia."

The university police, responsible only to church officials, last year were given investigative and arrest powers rivaling those of the State Police through a law passed by the Legislature.

The law — which took effect last May 10 — pertains to all Utah colleges and universities which have security forces. But the BYU force is particularly visible as the largest among private schools and as the best equipped in the state, with sophisticated surveillance units and experience from assisting local authorities in drug and vice cases.

Before the law was passed, critics had complained about the situation under which BYU officers had regularly served off-campus as deputy sheriffs, under uncertain authorization. BYU lobbyists testified at legislative hearings concerning the law that the measure was needed "to clarify" the off-campus situation.

Security Chief Robert Kelshaw now says his officers stay on campus and that he has no intention of using the statewide police authority.

Furthermore, Kelshaw says, BYU police don't go after homosexuals "any more than they do after any other type of criminal," adding that only 5 percent of campus arrests are sex-related.

"The charge is really preposterous," says BYU president Oaks.

He says campus police will continue to enforce all laws forbidding illicit sexual activity, whether homosexual or heterosexual: "People should be able to walk down the street without someone seizing them and soliciting sexual relations."

The Rev. Robert Waldrop, an acknowledged homosexual who serves the Metropolitan Community Church in Salt Lake, says that if the Mormon Church wants to teach that homosexuality is a sin, "that's their business," but it should not enforce its beliefs with its own militia.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints excommunicates homosexuals. Mormon president Spencer Kimball says homosexuality is "an abomination to God" that "corrodes the mind, snuffs out self-esteem and drags one down into darkness of anguish and unhappiness."

Waldrop says that the alleged

BYU pressure on homosexuals has driven many of them from campus, or at least into hiding. "A year ago, I knew about 20 gays at BYU, but this year I only know of two," he says.

The minister says that within the last year he has seen people noting license numbers outside The Sun, a Salt Lake gay bar. He says when he approached one man, he drove off in a car bearing a BYU student parking sticker.

Kelshaw says, however, the only time he approved surveillance of The Sun was two years ago during a drug investigation. He says any officer trying a stake-out on his own would be risking his job.

Charges of gay harassment drew attention after the arrest of David Chipman, 24, who answered a letter in a gay newspaper. The letter sought people interested in forming a "BYU gay underground."

Chipman, although not a BYU student, met his contact in the student center, but was arrested by the man in a canyon away from the school. The man revealed he was a BYU police officer posing as a homosexual.

Chipman's lawyer — Ron Stanger, himself a Mormon — says his client was set up for the arrest and he has moved for dismissal of the case on grounds of entrapment.

The judge has taken the briefs under advisement and indefinitely postponed Chipman's trial.

Kelshaw admits a BYU detective wrote the unauthorized

"gay underground" letter. Oaks has since ordered a halt to such tactics.

Although Kelshaw says BYU police will not operate statewide, others remain concerned. "The law is blatantly unconstitutional for allowing police power to be used to enforce views, if not exclusively limited to, at least included in church doctrine," said Shirley Pedler, Utah director of the American Civil Liberties Union. She says the ACLU will test the law in court.

Few Survivors Of 'River Kwai'

By WALTER T. WISNIEWSKI
United Press International
The American memory of the World War II prisoner ordeal at the River Kwai in Burma actually conceals one of the worst disasters the Allies ever suffered at sea, says author Clay Blair Jr.

The Allied prisoners of war who built the Rangoon-Bangkok railroad along the River Kwai — actually the River Kwae Noi — never did march off whistling triumphantly behind Colonel Bogey. In fact, they suffered miserably at the hands of their Japanese captors; only a small number of the maltreated thousands left the Burmese jungles, and they wound up being torpedoed by two American submarines.

The U.S. subs unwittingly sank two Japanese ships ferrying about 2,200 of the River Kwai prisoners across the South China Sea in September 1944, Blair and his wife, Joan, report in their new book, "Return From the River Kwai" (Simon and Schuster, $12.95).

More than 1,400 British and Australians died in that tragically ironic attack on the Allies' own men. Blair, author of "Silent Victory," an authoritative history of U.S. submarine warfare against Japan, says the loss of the River Kwai prisoners was "the greatest maritime disaster of the Pacific war."

The tragedy was kept secret at the time, but out of disaster there also came a remarkable tale of heroic struggle. Despite their severe injuries — they were coated with oil from the sunken Japanese ships, burned, battered by wreckage and near death from thirst — a few survivors managed to stay alive in the water, clinging to bits of flotsam.

"I don't know of anyone in the war, other than the Jews under the Nazis, who went through anything worse than those POWs," Blair said in an interview.

"Theirs is the greatest story of courage and heroism ... and something more ... that I've ever heard."

Most of the Japanese who survived the torpedo attack took to their lifeboats — no rescue craft for the prisoners — and fled. But some ship's crewmen and officers were left behind floating with the POWs, and the British and Australians meted out swift and final revenge on their captors then and there.

"It was brutal. I don't mind admitting it," survivor Roy Hudson said, recalling how he and a fellow POW disposed of two of their hated hatters. "We beckoned them over to us and saw they were Japanese," said Hudson, who was interviewed with the Blairs. "We strangled them. We fought like wildcats — it wasn't an easy do but oh, we won."

The American submarines that launched the torpedos eventually realized their mistake — not before almost attacking the rafts of the survivors, whom they thought were the enemy — and, in a daring rescue technique never before attempted, they surfaced and began rounding up the wounded.

Hudson was the last of the 159 shipwreck survivors who were picked up. After six days in the water, with their skin all but rubbed away by oil, seawater and splinters from their raft, he and a companion were convinced they were at the brink of death.

"There was no hope whatsoever," said Hudson. Now 67, he is a horticultural adviser to the Royal Botanic Gardens in London, still sporting the trim mustache he wore when he was captured by the Japanese in Singapore in 1942.

"We were oil-soaked, saturated with seawater, banged about by wreckage — I had an ulcer on my leg so deep one could see the bone ... The seas were one seething mass of black, thick oil. It was in your nose and mouth.

"This other chappie and I ... decided we were going to die during the night," Hudson said. "We promised each other purposely not to struggle. The last thing before we would go we would have a really good drink of seawater. We had seen so many others die and they all took a really good drink at the end."

A few hours later Hudson was at the brink of delirium, seeing apparitions of rescue ships on the horizon that were not there, when he heard "a buzzing that I had never heard before."

"Then over the next wave we saw it (the U.S.S. Queenfish). I had never before seen a submarine. It was beautiful."

Supermarkets Also Used As Place To Meet

NEW YORK (UPI) — Consumers who do their grocery shopping after 5 p.m. "tend to be upscale, young and almost always in a hurry," says Joann Zbytniewski, a grocery trade magazine editor.

More than three-quarters have full-time jobs, Ms. Zbytniewski writes in a recent issue of Progressive Grocer. Many shop on their way home from work. They prefer one-stop shopping "and have a mania for getting into and out of the store quickly."

"Not all after-hours shoppers have groceries on their minds," she adds. A few of those questioned for the article said supermarkets are great places to meet people.

"Shopping ignorance, feigned or inherent, is one method males use to get sympathetic attention from female customers."

One even suggested a singles-only shopping hour for "customers with dual interests in walking down the aisle."

Pitt PAC Session Held

Barbara Williams was elected chairperson of the Pitt County Schools ESEA Title I Countywide Parent Advisory Council during the organization's first meeting of the school year. She succeeds Johnny Little, who has served as chairman of the group since its inception.

Other officials were Camella Edwards, co-chairperson and Chris Kinlaw, secretary.

Bernard Haselrig, assistant superintendent in charge of the Title I program, gave an overview of the meeting, with reports given by parents who attended the State Title I conference in Greensboro. Dorothy Tripp, medical-social counselor, shared information on a recent state meeting for social workers, attended by Ms. Tripp and co-worker Amelia Phillips.

Parent Advisory Council meetings will be held in each high school attendance area beginning Nov. 8 at D.H. Conley, 7 p.m., with succeeding meetings at North Pitt, Nov. 13; Farmville Central, Nov. 27; and Ayden-Grifton, Dec. 6. Featured speaker for the meetings will be Dudley Flood, a former Pitt County principal, who presently serves as assistant state superintendent for North Carolina. The public is invited to these meetings.

Farm Bureau To Meet Tuesday

The Pitt County Farm Bureau will hold its annual meeting Tuesday, Oct. 30, 7 p.m., at the county building.

Farm Bureau members are asked to participate in the meeting. Officers for 1980 will be elected at the meeting. Atlas Wooten presently serves as county president.

Taste unlocked at only 3 mg tar!

Try surprisingly satisfying Triumph!

Even the draw is a surprise. The smoke comes through abundantly, the taste reaches you smoothly, pack after pack. Satisfying taste — because our Lorillard scientists found a way to unlock the flavor of fine tobaccos, while limiting tar to a mere 3 mg.

How was Triumph developed? Our scientists took everything they had ever learned about cigarettes — and pushed that technology further than it had ever been pushed before. Combining two types of filter fiber. Using lower-leaf tobaccos. Placing tiny "vents" in the rim of the filter. In short, everything that could be found to intensify flavor at only 3 mg. tar, was used in Triumph.

You'll stay with Triumph. Try a pack of Triumph and discover a taste that's good enough to stay with. So satisfying, we believe you'll never want to go back to your old cigarette.

How They Voted In Congress

(Roll Call Report Service)
WASHINGTON—Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Oct. 11 through Oct. 17.

HOUSE
SPECIAL-INTEREST MONEY — By a vote of 217 for and 198 against, the House adopted an amendment limiting to $70,000 every two years the campaign contributions a House candidate can receive from special interests. Such money usually is provided through political action committees (PACs). Of the 435 House members, about 52 received more than $70,000 in PAC contributions during the 1978 campaign. Hundreds of business and labor PACs are registered with the Federal Election Commission. A PAC usually expects a congressman it supports to legislate according to its desires on a given issue.

This amendment also reduced from $10,000 to $6,000 the maximum contribution a PAC can make to a candidate for a primary and general election campaign. It was attached to a Federal Election Commission bill (S 832) later passed and sent to conference with the Senate.

Rep. Frank Thompson, D-N.J., a supporter, said that "left unrestricted, PAC money will become a predominant force in the democratic process, which, in effect, would render the process undemocratic."

Rep. Mendel Davis, D-S.C., an opponent, said the amendment wrongfully attacks "constitutionally protected activity, such as free spending by individuals and groups to promote and support their own candidacies or views...."

Members voting "yea" favored limiting special interest contributions.

Reps. Stephen Neal, D-5, Richardson Preyer, D-6, Charles Rose, D-7, W.G. Hefner, D-8, and Lamar Gudger, D-11, voted "yea."
 Reps. H.H. Fountain, D-2, Charles Whitley, D-3, Ike Andrews, D-4, James Martin, R-9, and James Broynhill, R-10, voted "nay."

Rep. Walter Jones, D-1, did not vote.

FUND RAISING — By a vote of 298 for and 114 against, the House adopted an amendment that restricts the credit a candidate for a House seat can receive. The vote came during debate on S 832 (see previous vote). A major thrust of the amendment is to require candidates to pay cash-on-the-barrelhead for direct-mail fundraising services. Delayed payment is the equivalent of receiving a campaign contribution, according to the amendment.

Rep. Frank Thompson, D-N.J., the sponsor, said his amendment was in keeping with the bill's overall purpose of limiting special-interest contributions.

Rep. Bill Frenzel, R-Minn., an opponent, said the amendment would primarily benefit three groups—the AFL-CIO, Common Cause, and "the incumbent members of the House who would like to have as little challenge as possible."

Members voting "yea" favored the amendment.

Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner, Broynhill and Gudger voted "yea."

Martin voted "nay."
 Jones did not vote.

OIL PRICES — By a vote of 135 for and 257 against, the House refused to reimpose price controls on the U.S. crude oil from already-discovered wells.

President Carter in June began the gradual removal of price controls as a means of increasing domestic oil production and cutting consumption. The attempt to resume controls came on an amendment to a Department of Energy bill (HR 3000) that was headed for final passage and the Senate.

Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., sponsor of the amendment, said government regulation "is admittedly cumbersome in some respects, but it gives at least some protection to consumers."

Rep. Clarence Brown, R-Ohio, an opponent, said shortages and price increases would result if Congress "subsidizes the import of expensive foreign oil by holding domestic producers' prices down."

Members voting "nay" favored removing price controls from domestic oil.

Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner, Broynhill and Gudger voted "nay."
 Jones and Martin did not vote.

SENATE

PAY RAISE — The Senate voted, 43 for and 42 against, in favor of permitting a 5.5 per cent cost-of-living pay raise for congressmen to take effect. After the House concurred, pay for senators and House members was increased to $60,663.

This vote killed an amendment to block the raise. It came during debate on a funding bill (HJ Res 412) that included money for federally-subsidized abortions. Because it was entwined with other emotional issues, it was less than a clear-cut expression of sentiment on the raise.

Senators voting "nay" wanted to block the pay raise.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R, voted "nay."

Sen. Robert Morgan, D, did not vote.

SYNTHETIC FUEL — The Senate voted, 59 for and 38 against, to establish a $20 billion fund for synthetic fuel projects to be undertaken primarily by private enterprise under the sponsorship of a federal Energy Security Corp. The multi-year fund would be part of President Carter's proposal to develop alternate fuels, such as liquid coal, in order to lessen dependence on foreign oil.

The vote came on an amendment to an Interior Department appropriations bill (HR 4930) later passed and sent to conference with the House.

Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., the sponsor, said "synthetic fuel production is an imperative" if the U.S. is to cut its reliance on imported oil.

Opponents either thought the price tag too high or disliked the procedure of appropriating money before legislation specifically authorizing a synthetic fuels program had been passed.

Sen. William Armstrong, R-Colo., objected to buying "a $20 billion pig in a poke."

Senators voting "yea" favored the $20 billion synthetic fuel fund.
 Morgan voted "yea."
 Helms voted "nay."
HERMAN TALMADGE

The Senate voted, 81 for and 15 against to "denounce" Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., for "reprehensible" financial misconduct. The resolution (S 249) adopted by this vote stated, in part, that some $43,435 in official expense money had been wrongfully claimed in his name. This marked the first Senate discipline of one of its members since the 1967 censure of Sen. Thomas Dodd, D-Conn., for unethical conduct.

Sen. Harrison Schmitt, R-N.M., a supporter, said: "The words gross neglect, reprehensible, dishonor, disrepute, and denounced used in the resolution as relief-ing the [Ethics] committee's judgment of Sen. Talmadge should be interpreted in their literal as well as their historical meaning."

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., an opponent, said it is "only fair" to note that Talmadge's chief accuser, Daniel Minchew, "pleaded guilty to a federal offense of filing false expense account vouchers and admitted before the Ethics Committee that he lied about a number of matters."

Morgan and Helms voted "yea."
