S. Korea Govm't Admits A Planned Assassination

By TERRY A. ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer
SEOUL, South Korea (AP)

South Koreans closed ranks against North Korea today, and the United States moved an aircraft carrier closer to the Korean coast as the government admitted that President Park Chung-hee was assassinated by the head of the Korean CIA.

Opposition leader Kim Young-sam, a strong critic of Park's government, said the entire nation united in warning North Korea it "should by no means miscalculate this misfortune of ours as an opportunity for invasion, and it should bear in mind that the nation is determined to defend free democracy under any circumstances."

Another leading opponent of Park, 1971 presidential candidate Kim Dae-jung, also warned the communists "not to try to take advantage of the situation....The entire people's voice is united, transcending political differences."

Warnings to the North and support for acting President Choi Kyu-hah also came from President Carter, Defense Secretary Harold Brown and the commander of U.S. forces in Korea, Gen. John A. Wickham Jr.

U.S. officials said they saw no evidence of unusual North Korean military activity. However, Brown said the United States had sent two airborne warning and control aircraft to South Korea and moved an aircraft carrier, already on station between Japan and Korea, closer to the Korean coast.

Wickham, who also heads the combined U.S.-Korean Command, sent a letter to Choi pledging that "should hostilities occur the combined forces command will defend the republic...and will remain ready and totally dedicated to the security of the republic."

Choi, the defense, home and foreign ministers and other key officials met for two hours this morning and declared: "Everything is in order and calm has been restored."

However, the Korean armed forces remained on emergency alert, and the nation was still under martial law. There were no disturbances.

Park's body was in a closed casket at the presidential residence, the Blue House, and hundreds of thousands gathered at public altars across the country to burn incense and mourn the dead leader. His funeral was to be held Saturday.

Rioting against Park's 18-year dictatorial rule erupted last week in the southern cities of Pusan and Masan, and North Korea's Communist Party newspaper, Rodong Shinmun, said Sunday that Park's killing "proves how serious the political crisis and social disorder in South Korea are."

Park was shot Friday by the head of the Korean Central Intelligence Agency, Kim Jaekyu. The government said at first the shooting was accidental but the chief of the investigation, Gen. Chon Doo-hwan, admitted at a special news conference Sunday that Kim assassinated the president.

Chon said Kim shot Park and Park's chief bodyguard three times each during a dinner Friday night while five of Kim's men killed four other presidential bodyguards and seriously wounded another in the next room.

Chon said Kim planned the assassination because he was out of favor with the president and feared he would be fired. He decided to do it that night after he and the chief bodyguard, Cha Chi-chul, got into a heated argument during the dinner, Chon said.

Cha was Park's constant companion, one of his closest advisers and a longtime enemy of the KCIA chief.

The government denied that Kim was trying to take over the government. Foreign observers said this was borne out by the absence of mass arrests, seizure of communications facilities and other things characteristic of attempted coups.

There was no explanation of why the government originally said the killing was accidental.

Kim and all five of his men were under arrest. Chon said many others were being questioned to determine if they were involved.

According to the South Korean constitution, a new president must be selected within three months, "without debate," by the electoral college, whose 2,583 members were supporters of Park.

In the forefront of possible contenders are two former military men who are also former prime ministers and now members of the National Assembly — Kim Jong-pil, 53, and Chung Il-kwon, 61.

As a lieutenant-colonel,

Kim was the main organizer of the 1961 coup that put Park in power. He was a powerful adviser to Park and is married to Park's niece.

He organized the KCIA and was its first director and also organized Park's Democratic Republican Party and was its chairman. He was prime minister in 1971-75.

Chung, also a close adviser to Park, was prominent in the Syngman Rhee administration overthrown by Park and has held nearly all major army posts and many powerful political ones. He was foreign minister twice and prime minister in 1964.

Arrest Hundreds Trying Shut Down Exchange

By LARRY STRIEGEL
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Police said they arrested more than 600 anti-nuclear protesters this morning as they tried unsuccessfully to shut down the New York Stock Exchange on the 50th anniversary of the stock market crash of 1929.

The demonstrators, who numbered more than 1,000, sang and chanted as they sat in small circles on streets around the exchange, waiting for police officers to lift them onto stretchers and take them to vans for a ride to headquarters for booking on disorderly conduct charges.

The protest in lower Manhattan was the largest of several anti-nuclear demonstrations in cities around the country today, including Bangor, Wash., Groton, Conn., and the nation's capital.

Deputy Police Chief Michael Willis said that more than 600 persons had been arrested by the time the exchange opened as usual at 10 a.m. Hundreds of annoyed Wall Street workers had been passed through barriers around the exchange by flashing identity cards to police.

Police used 10 buses and a like number of smaller paddy wagons to drive their prisoners to a central booking facility in Manhattan. When processing began to back up, some of the overflow prisoners were sent to a second central booking site in Brooklyn.

Inside the exchange, a cheer went up from the floor as the red warning light went on at 9:59 a.m., followed by a louder roar at 10 a.m. when the bell sounded for trading to begin.

"Usually they cheer when it's closing," said James Fuller, exchange's senior vice president. Fuller said all the exchange employees were at work, some because they had come in Sunday and stayed overnight.

Stock prices rose moderately in early trading, but there were slight declines in some of the nuclear issues targeted by the protesters.

Outside, the mood was almost festive, with little acrimony displayed among the protesters and hundreds of police officers on hand. A 15-piece brass band played circus music and spectators watched the protest from nearby vantage points, including the steps of the Federal Building.

"I haven't had this much fun since the 1960s," Police Capt. Thomas Ryan told some of the demonstrators.

"Tell my mom I'll be late for dinner," a young woman called out as she was lifted onto a stretcher.

Among those taken into custody was Daniel Ellsberg, the key figure of the Vietnam-era, Pentagon Papers case.

The protesters were from a group calling itself Wall Street Action. Leaders said the demonstration was a move to protest investment in the nuclear industry and "expose the abusive role of corporations and the financial community in controlling people's lives."

"This is a new focus for the anti-nuclear movement," said Sharon Tracy, a leader of the action. "Until now it's been focused just on the installations. Now we're targeting the financiers."

Stock exchange officials had asked employees to arrive early and were planning to close their doors once all employees were inside.

Report Slight Increase For U.S. Productivity

By OWEN ULLMANN

AP Labor Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The productivity of American business and workers rose at an annual rate of 0.1 percent in the third quarter, reversing two consecutive quarters of sharp declines, the Labor Department reported today.

However, the slight rise was not likely to cheer government economists who predict that a stagnant productivity rate will mean high inflation and a diminished standard of living for the foreseeable future.

Productivity, a measure of goods and services that the economy turns out per hour of paid working time, has drawn increased attention from economists lately because of its sluggish growth and resulting impact on inflation. Today's figures pointed to a continuation of that poor growth.

Productivity declined at an annual rate of 2.2 percent in the second quarter and 3 p 2.2 percent in the second quarter and 3 percent in the first quarter, according to revised Labor Department figures. Both declines were the sharpest since the 1974-75 recession.

The 0.1 percent productivity rise in the three months ended Sept. 30 applied to all private businesses. Among non-farm businesses, the rate rose 0.2 percent, and among manufacturers the annual increase was a healthier 3.2 percent, the government reported.

Output by the private sector rose at an annual rate of 2.5 percent during the third quarter, while hours worked rose 2.4 percent, thus ac-

British Hosting New Chairman GACOC Board China's Premier

LONDON (AP) — The British government whirled Chinese Premier Hua Guofeng into a busy schedule today with the emphasis on increased trade between their two countries.

After a ceremonial welcome Sunday for Hua on his arrival from West Germany and a night at Claridge's Hotel, the sales pitch was starting today with a short Hovercraft trip down the Thames to the Tower of London for a look at the crown jewels.

The Hovercraft is one of many products British manufacturers would like to sell to China under a new six-year, $14-billion economic agreement.

Chinese-British trade, including China's desire to buy 80 to 90 British vertical takeoff Harrier fighters, was to be a major topic this afternoon at the first of Hua's two meetings with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

The Soviet Union has objected strongly to the $350-million sale, which was delayed by China's invasion of Vietnam. But Hua, who reportedly offended the French with his anti-Soviet rhetoric on the first leg of his trip and toned it down during his visit to Germany, is expected to find a sympathetic spirit in Mrs. Thatcher. She has spoken out strongly recently about the Soviet military threat, and Hua in his arrival remarks to her at the airport Sunday said: "There is much common ground between China and Britain on a large number of international issues."

Elvira: Resident Ghost Of Old Opera House

WOODSTOCK, Ill. (AP) — Elvira, Elvira. Oh, wherefore art thou, Elvira?

Since the turn of the century, Elvira has been the beloved resident ghost of the 90-year-old Woodstock Opera House.

Although she is a ghost of all seasons, she seems to get most restless when Halloween approaches.

Doors click shut, moans come from above the stage, radiators pound, clank and chatter.

"I don't think I believe in Elvira, but I go along with it," said John Scharress, technical director. "There are explanations for everything. A door near the stairs, if left ajar, will click shut when your foot is on a certain step. Vibrations of tensioned steel cables on the grid above the stage sometimes give off spooky, moaning sounds. Most old radiators clank when they are warming up."

Elvira is a welcomed ghost who lives in the Opera House, not haunts it. Some school children in this community northwest of Chicago have heard more about her than about Orson Wells, Paul Newman, Geraldine Page, Shelley Berman, Tom Bosley, Betsy Palmer and Lois Nettleton — all one-time summer-season Woodstock Players.

Elvira, so the story goes, was a beautiful actress who hanged herself in the Opera House belfry when her actor lover spurned her.

Most of those who have performed on the stage believe they have seen Elvira during rehearsals, sitting in her reserved seat, DD113, on the aisle in the balcony.

"During regular performances, that seat usually is the first of the 440 to be sold," said Doug Rankin, 30, director of the Opera House. "About 12,000 people tour the Opera House during the season and 50 percent of them want to sit down on seat DD113, and nine out of 10 of them will ask about Elvira."

Rankin said he never has seen Elvira in the four years he has been director. "I just don't think she comes around the administrative offices," he said.

Esther Wanleck, who is active in Woodstock opera affairs, insists she has seen Elvira a half dozen times.

"She wears a diaphanous, full-length, pink gown," said Mrs. Wanleck. "Her flaxen hair flows over her shoulders. She is tall and slender. Those who have not seen her have felt her spirit. She never talks, but her sighs can be heard of approval, disapproval, boredom, frustration or happiness."

Two Dead, Six Injured In Suspected Drag Race

By The Associated Press
Two teenagers were killed and six other persons injured, one critically, when a speeding car believed to be drag racing went out of control, causing a four-vehicle accident on North Main Street in High Point on Saturday night.

The State Highway Patrol said the accident brought the weekend fatality count to 13 persons. That brings the number killed on the state's highways so far this year to 1,224, compared with 1,200 during the same period last year.

Dead are Tony Leonard Nolan, 17, of 130 Penny Road, High Point, and Robert Euel Thornton, 18, of Jamestown Apartments, Jamestown.

Police and eyewitnesses said the accident, which occurred about 9:30 p.m., happened when Nolan lost control of his car, crossed the median, overturned and hit three other cars.

"Bodies were scattered everywhere," said a High Point ambulance attendant, one of the first of eight rescue units from High Point, Guilford County and Horeytown summoned to the accident scene. Traffic was rerouted around the busy thoroughfare for three-quarters of a mile.

Edith McKinney, 48, of Laurel Hill, was killed in a wreck three miles west of Laurinburg about 8 a.m. Sunday. The patrol said she was killed when the car in which she was riding pulled into the side of a tractor-trailer truck.

The patrol reported that Peggy Ann Best, 24, of Rt. 1, Ayden, was killed when she crawled into the path of traffic about 10 miles east of Snow Hill. The accident happened about 7 p.m. Saturday.

Michael Dale Evans, 18, of 58 Spring Garden Circle, High Point, was killed, the patrol said, when he lost control of his car and overturned near the High Point city limits.

A head-on collision on a rural road three miles east of Gastonia early Saturday resulted in the death of Roger Eugene Hibberts, 27, of Gastonia.

Two brothers, Tommy Pressley, 24, and Michael Pressley, 27, of Star Route, Carthage, were killed in a wreck on a road near Robbins on Friday night. The patrol said a car being driven by Tommy Pressley at high speed ran off a rural road and overturned.

Carrie Belle Dunn, 65, of Rt. 2, Knightdale, was killed in a wreck Friday night four miles north of Knightdale in Wake County. The patrol said a car in which she was a passenger struck a vehicle that had run a stop sign.

Trailerload Of Wood Donated

In an early response to the War on Winter appeal for firewood for the area's needy families, members of St. Peter's Catholic Church here have contributed a trailer-load of firewood.

Each family of the parish was asked by the Spiritual Life and Welfare committee of the parish council to give a piece of firewood from their own stocks. The contributions were accepted at Sunday's services.

SERVED AS PAGE
Miss Kimberly Cox of Greenville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cox, served as a page last week in Gov. Jim Hunt's offices in Raleigh.

She is a freshman at E. B. Aycock Junior High School.

The patrol said Cora Rosemarie Johnson, 51, of Rt. 1, Battleboro, was fatally injured Friday when she stepped into the path of an oncoming vehicle. The accident occurred on a rural road three miles west of Battleboro in Nash County.

Andrew W. Scott Mason, 23, of Winston-Salem died when the car he was driving struck a building in Winston-Salem shortly after midnight Friday night.

Cannot Confirm It Was Oswald Body

By MARGY McCAY
Associated Press Writer
IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — The pathologist who performed the autopsy on the body of Lee Harvey Oswald says he has no way to confirm the identity of the man accused of assassinating President John Kennedy.

Dr. Earl Rose, pathology professor at the University of Iowa, was a Dallas County medical examiner in November, 1963, when Oswald was shot by Jack Ruby.

"I performed an autopsy on a body identified to me as Lee Harvey Oswald," Rose said Sunday. "X-rays were taken and I made fingerprints and the police made fingerprints."

He said those records were included in the autopsy report, and he made no attempt to confirm Oswald's identity by comparison with military records.

"It's up to someone else to match them," he said. "I didn't attempt to do this and I would not. I'm not a fingerprint expert. An autopsy is done to determine the cause of death."

Rose said there are three ways to identify a body — fingerprints, X-rays and dental records — and each requires existing records with which comparisons are made.

"I have never seen those records," Rose said. "I assume somebody in the military would have them, but again, I don't really know."

Rose, who worked in Dallas from 1962 to 1968, said he doesn't know whether examining Oswald's body will resolve questions raised by a

Call Attention To 2,500 MIA

WASHINGTON (AP) — A weekend demonstration calling attention to the nearly 2,500 Americans still listed as missing in Vietnam was attended by about 500 persons, according to U.S. park police.

The rally held Sunday in front of the White House was sponsored by the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia.

A news release distributed by the group cited "the Carter administration's lack of effort to obtain an accounting from the Vietnamese" and said "refugee reports of live Americans now held captive in Southeast Asia are increasing in number and validity."

President Carter was at Camp David during the demonstration.

Driver Charged In Accident

Leroy Williams Jr., of 1211 South Pitt St. was charged with driving under the influence and failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety, following investigation of a 5:52 p.m. collision yesterday on South Pitt Street.

Officers reported the truck driven by Williams collided with a car operated by Ernest Taylor Jr. of 1415 Railroad St., causing $600 damage to the car and $900 damage to the truck.

Americans Cooler To Big Outlays

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans are in a go-slow mood on government programs, spending and taxes. And they tend to think they get more for their tax dollar out of City Hall than from Washington or the state house.

While the tax revolt that caught national attention 18 months ago may have cooled a bit, the attitudes that produced it still are firmly held.

An overwhelming majority of taxpayers say government at all levels should do no more — and cost no more — than it is doing now.

Six times as many people want government services curtailed as want them increased.

Those attitudes are reflected in a public opinion poll commissioned by the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations, which also judged the federal income tax to be the most disliked levy Americans are paying these days.

Local property taxes used to be the most unpopular on the list, but California's tax-cutting Proposition 13 and its offshoots appear to have changed that.

The poll, conducted between May 14 and June 4 by Opinion Research Corp., showed 37 percent of the people surveyed consider the federal income tax to be the worst, most unfair tax collected at any level of government.

The survey of 2,022 adult Americans showed that 27 percent think the property tax is the worst of the lot, and 15 percent consider state sales taxes the least fair.

The commission, created by Congress to monitor the interplay of governments, suggested that increasing resentment against the income tax may stem from the rise of tax liabilities as inflation pushes taxpayers into higher income tax brackets.

At the same time, the growth of local property tax rates has slowed somewhat due to hold-the-line spending policies and new limits on taxes, both offshoots of the tax revolt of 1978. After California voters rebelled and ordered a cut in property taxes, a dozen more states approved measures to restrict taxes, spending or both in the 1978 elections.

While that movement is less visible lately, the mood that created it is still there. According to the commission and its poll, an overwhelming American majority favors a go-slow policy on taxes and spending.

Four U.S. Prisoners Killed In Crash Of Mexican Aircraft

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Four American prisoners headed for a Tijuana border exchange were among 10 persons killed when a Mexican government plane crashed into a telephone pole and burst into flames, officials said.

Also killed in the Sunday morning crash were the two Mexican pilots and four prison guards, according to the U.S. consulate in Tijuana, Mexico.

San Diego police Lt. Dave Spisak said the pilot of the Otter turboprop apparently became disoriented in fog, wandered over the Mexican border and crashed a half-mile north of the international border between Tijuana and the rugged Otay Mesa area of San Diego.

The four Americans were en route to the United States as part of a prisoner exchange program. They were identified as Steve Michael Olsen of Imperial Beach, Julie Ann Sheldon of Cambria, Lotus Mary Sanchez of Garden Grove, and Gerald John Lapinski, hometown unknown.

Two of the prisoners, Olsen and Ms. Sheldon, were married in prison and were returning to the United States to be reunited with their 9-month-old daughter, authorities said.

The couple was arrested on marijuana charges while vacationing in Mexico about a year ago and their child was being cared for by Ms. Sheldon's mother, Patty Sheldon of Cambria.

The two Mexican pilots were identified as Rene Hernandez Rodriguez and Marco Antonio Fano. The four federal guards accompanying the prisoners were Rafael Gama Avistas, Ramon Lara Estrada, Fernando Ijiarte Aceves and Raul Santos Benevides.

It is not uncommon for planes landing in Tijuana to approach using American airspace, particularly during an instrument approach to the field, a Federal Aviation Administration official said.

The pilot of the turboprop had requested clearance into U.S. airspace through the Tijuana airport tower several minutes before the crash, the FAA official said. Both Mexican and U.S. officials are investigating the accident.

The prisoner exchange program, in effect since December 1977, allows American prisoners in Mexico and Mexican prisoners in the United States to finish their terms in their native countries.

The exchange agreement between the two governments followed reports that American prisoners were being abused inside Mexican jails.

Heed Hazards Of Halloween

By Abigail Van Buren
1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR READERS: With Halloween just around the corner, may I point out that this happy holiday sometimes ends in disaster for some. According to the National Safety Council, 135 Halloween fatalities occurred last year. Some were children who died in Halloween-related traffic accidents. Some were youngsters who were fatally burned due to flammable costumes. And others died after eating booby-trapped "treats."

The American Optometric Association, whose 22,000 members are concerned with the need for seeing and being seen, offers the following safety tips:

- Buy FLAME-PROOF costumes only. Or if costumes are made at home, treat the fabric with a flame-resistant solution.
- Because masks, floppy hats, wigs and veils often interfere with a child's vision, use MAKEUP instead.
- Accessories such as swords, broomsticks, hatchets, wands, etc., should be made of CARDBOARD rather than plastic, metal or wood. Sharp items are dangerous.
- Provide youngsters with flashlights to prevent falls on sidewalks or porch steps. (Positively NO lighted candles should be carried!)
- Decorate your child's costume and trickster bag with reflective tape to make them highly visible to motorists.
- Remind children that they should NEVER enter the home of a stranger or accept rides.
- Adults can help by keeping their yards well-lighted. Parents should check all "treats" before allowing children to eat them.
- Very young children should always be accompanied by an adult.

DEAR ABBY: A woman physician, married for nine years to a career officer in a foreign military service, says their marriage was never consummated. She signed herself DOING FINE WITHOUT.

I am reminded of a quotation from Voltaire, who said (in French): "The only aberration is abstinence."

Respectfully,
JOEL FRIEDMAN

DEAR JOEL: One could say, "Abstinence makes the heart grow fonder."

DEAR ABBY: The invitations are out, the wedding gifts are coming in and the wedding is to take place soon.

My fiancé and I went to see a counselor because we can't seem to agree on many things. (We argue constantly.)

I am beginning to think it's a mistake to continue. The counselor says to either postpone the wedding or forget it. What does one do (and how) at this stage?

It can only get worse.

CHICKEN

DEAR CHICKEN: Cancel the wedding either by telephone or telegram immediately. It will be somewhat sticky, but far better than being stuck in a bad marriage.

Persian motifs from medieval times and Old English monograms make stunning designs for easy-to-stitch "plastic point" coasters. Acrylic yarns and plastic needlepoint canvas make these coasters completely washable, too. The instruction leaflet includes four Persian designs and a full Old English alphabet on graph charts.

To obtain directions for making the plastic point coasters, send your request for Leaflet No. S-699 with $1.00 and a long, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler, "The Daily Reflector," P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or you may order Kit No. K-699 by sending check or money order for $8.50 to Pat Trexler at the same address. Each kit contains sufficient materials for making eight coasters plus the instruction leaflet. Specify your choice of the following color combinations: red/lack, brown/gold, blue/green, burnt/orange/pale coral. The designs are not stamped on canvas, but are worked from charts.

DEAR PAT: Although I had been advised that the 10-mesh plastic canvas was not suitable for doing Bargello, I decided to try it anyway. The first piece I worked looked great. Much to my surprise, the second piece looked quite different, with ridges of the canvas showing through at many places. Since I was using the same yarn and the same stitches, I couldn't understand this at first.

Upon closer examination, I could see why this occurred, however. On the first piece, I had worked over the ridges and on the second one I had worked "with" or between the ridges.

As I was ripping out the second piece, I thought about you and decided to share this experience so that you could write about this problem and perhaps save others from having to rip.

— FRANCES E., CHARLOTTE, N.C.

This is a subject which I have not covered in previous columns, so I was happy to have your suggestion, Frances.

For the benefit of those who may not be familiar with the term, I might explain that Bargello refers to long, straight stitches worked over several canvas threads. In my opinion, it is the quickest and easiest of the needlepoint stitches and a surprising variety of effects can be created with the different Bargello patterns.

The 10-mesh plastic canvas does have definite ridges. This is not too noticeable to the eye, but you can certainly feel them by running a fingernail over the surface.

Interestingly, on one side of the canvas the ridges run vertically, while on the other side they run horizontally. If you are doing vertical Bargello stitches, you must have the side with the horizontal ridges facing you, thus working over the ridges rather than between them.

You should also be aware of the fact that the plastic canvas does not have an exact even weave. By that, I mean that, over a span of several inches, there will be more holes and threads in one direction than there are in the other. This can also be true in traditional natural fiber or polyester canvas, by the way.

For this reason, when you are making two or more pieces which should be identical (such as back, front and sides of a tote bag), be absolutely certain that the pieces have been cut in the same direction and that the holes match exactly.

Also, in some items, such as the coasters featured today, the finished product will not be exactly square, even though there are the same number of holes in each direction.

Because of the large volume of mail she receives, Pat is unable to answer your letters personally. However, she welcomes all questions and hints and will use those of general interest in the column whenever possible.

Annette Franke And Donald Tison Marry Recently

WINTERVILLE — Annette Lorraine Franke and Donald Carey Tison were united in marriage at the Winterville Christian Church Saturday evening, Oct. 20. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Jim Bussell of Williamston.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Tommy Manning of Ayden, organist, and Mrs. Kitty Maddrey of Silver Spring, Md., soloist.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Franke of Winterville, and Mr. and Mrs. Carey Chaplin Tison of Silver Spring, Md.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of white satin over peau de soie. The gown was fashioned with long fitted sleeves, colonial neckline and an A-line skirt which fell into a chapel length train. Re-embroidered alencon lace over English net and bridal pearls adorned the sleeves and matching lace and pearls with iridescent were featured at the neckline and bodice. The skirt was bordered with re-embroidered alencon lace and applied motifs were scattered over the front of the gown.

The bride wore a white walking length mantilla of imported silk illusion. It was bordered with re-embroidered alencon lace and bridal pearls and fell from a Camelot cap with satin and matching lace. She carried a full cascade bouquet of talisman roses.

Miss Joanne Franke, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Mrs. Joyce Edwards Franke of Chapel Hill, sister-in-law of the bride, and Miss Caroline Tison of Silver Spring, Md., sister of the bridegroom.

Thomas Dove of Nashville, Tenn., served as best man. Ushers were Leo and George Franke of Chapel Hill and Warren Franke, brothers of the bride, and Dale Tison of Silver Spring, Md., brother of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Sue B. May, aunt of the bride, directed the wedding. Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church fellowship hall. Mrs. Myrtle Nobles, aunt of the bride, and John M. May, cousin of the bride, greeted guests. Miss Annette Wysocki and Miss Phyllis assisted with refreshments. Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Nobles presided at the guest register and said good-byes. The bridegroom used his Navy sword to slice the first

Season To Taste, But Spell Right

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Now that the food field has turned into a fascinating hobby for many people, lots of cooks are having fun experimenting with herbs and spices. This, then, is the time to check up on the correct spelling of their names. Here are six common misspellings in the seasoning world.

MISSPELLING: Anis. Please add an "e." ANISE is the correct spelling. Anise seeds are sometimes used to top cookies and breads. Ground anise seeds may flavor fillings and frostings for cakes, cookies and pastries. Anise oil, made from crushed anise seeds, is widely used in the cordials and liqueurs of which Italian-Americans have always been particularly fond. And now, too, Latin-America has taken these beverages to its heart. In France, a soupçon of anise-flavored liqueur may be used in a seafood soup or to flavor snail butter.

MISSPELLING: Caraway. Just one "r" please. The correct spelling is CARAWAY. Caraway seeds are popular in sauerkraut dishes — a combination Americans have adopted from German cooking. And some connoisseurs of rye bread do not consider it worth eating unless it contains caraway seeds. In the last 15 years, in the United States, Munster cheese with caraway seeds has become popular. Various cheeses flavored with caraway seeds are also well-liked in Scandinavia, the Netherlands and Germany.

MISSPELLING: Cardamon. No "n" at the end please. The correct spelling is CARDAMOM. Americans of Scandinavian descent know that cardamom adds delicious flavor to breads, coffee cakes, cookies and pastries. Cooks in Scandinavia use sugar mixed with cardamom much as Americans use sugar mixed with cinnamon. In India, cardamom is a favorite addition to curries and some desserts.

MISSPELLING: Comin. The correct spelling is CUMIN or CUMMIN. Many Americans who use cumin have taken their cue from Mexican cuisine where it is blended with hot chili peppers, garlic and oregano. These are the staple ingredients of bought chili powders, though they usually contain other spices as well. I like cumin so much in chili con carne that even though I use a brand of chili powder that contains plenty of the spice, I sometimes add extra cumin.

MISSPELLING: Poppyseed. (I confess I have faulted on that one.) The words should be separated: POPPY SEED. Sprinkling bread and rolls with poppy seed gives them a fillip. European-style coffee cakes with rich poppy-seed fillings have their devotees in the United States. Although poppy-seed cakes had their heyday in the '20s and '30s, they are still baked today. Adding poppy seed to buttered noodles has been popular for a long time.

MISSPELLING: Turmeric and tumeric. The correct spelling is TURMERIC. In the United States, as far as I know, turmeric comes only in powdered form because, unlike some other spices, it is too hard to grind at home. For many years American cooks used turmeric chiefly in relishes and pickles. Nowadays canny cooks may add a pinch or so of turmeric to a yeast bread to simulate the color that egg yolks would give.

Likely Invitation To Fraud

We don't suppose anyone in our country is in favor of a single person freezing to death. That, however, should not preclude raising questions about the fuel-aid program which is being rushed through Congress.

The emergency program setting up a $1.35 billion program passed the House last week. Another version appropriating $1.2 billion has already passed the Senate, and a program calling for expenditures somewhere in between is virtually certain.

Even though the program is labeled an emergency one, we can be sure that the principle of the federal government providing specific aid for fuel costs will forever be built into our system. The costs could eventually be enormous. We can already see possibilities of families who qualify for fuel-aid payments living in toasty warm homes — with the accompanying waste of fuel — while families who provide for their fuel out of their total budget strive to keep home temperatures down.

We can envision all kinds of fraudulent use of the fuel credits, and endless abuses of the program. We can see little incentive for fuel-aid families to weather-tighten their homes. And, if enough safeguards are built in to expose the abuses, the privacy and freedom of the participating families will be further abridged.

We hope these things don't happen, and that everyone involved in the fuel aid program will use it properly. Experience tells us it won't be that way, however.

Bonds Face Uphill Fight

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Chief political strategists in North Carolina's public school leadership are privately worried over the outcome of a proposed statewide bond election either in 1980 or 1981.

A study commission of the General Assembly has been named to study the matter and determine if the Legislature will authorize the election. That body is to report by March 1, 1980, and recommend which course to take.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction Craig Phillips first pushed for the election as early as this year, but was advised that a number of factors would work against passage.

Phillips now points to steady inflation adding more than one percent per month to construction costs, and the immediacy of some of the proposed work as reasons to push ahead. Strategists propose that the election be held at the November, 1980 general election of possible so that candidates can be committed on the question as part of the process of selecting legislators and occupants of the governor and lieutenant governor offices.

The Amount
Original discussion centered around a bond issue of $650 million, but that has been pared down to between $500 and $600 million.

Still, those in favor of the bonds are readying their answers to critics who will point out that this amount will be the largest single bond issue ever authorized in the state, and that it will effectively double (including interest) the state's present load of bonded indebtedness.

At the end of last fiscal year, the state's total debt in both General and Highway funds totaled $734.3 million. Interest will add another $300 million to that.

Another $453 million in bonds have been authorized but not yet sold, and yet another $415 million in revenue bonds for the State Ports Authority and institutions of higher learning (plus interest) are on the books.

Local debts added, North Carolina's total borrowing now tops $3.6 billion.

Given the Tar Heel tradition for fiscal conservatism and still-rumbling echoes of Proposition 13 ... not to mention public disenchantment with public education's shortcomings ... bond proponents know well the struggle which lies ahead convincing a majority of voters that the bonds ought to be sold.

Officials at the State Department of Public Instruction are trying now to anticipate the questions sure to come from legislators, and then from the public if the election is authorized. Even Gov. Jim Hunt whose support would normally be considered automatic says he is waiting to be convinced of the need.

A major problem is the continuing decline in public school enrollment which would seem to indicate diminishing need for buildings.

Growing
Officials say that adding public kindergarten, some daycare programs, meeting the needs of special students, and phasing out temporary teaching spaces all add up to no real decline in building needs.

Still, the key campaign pitch will be the need to upgrade, modernize, renovate, and make more energy efficient existing structures rather than the need for new buildings.

Increasingly stiff local opposition to school bond issues will also be used as an argument in favor of a statewide issue, and it is expected that state officials will stress the point that a major state bond issue is a stronger step in the direction of equalizing public schools in every county regardless of geography or wealth.

Some Black Thoughts

WASHINGTON — Every white person should have one token black friend — and every black person should have one token white friend.

Then if you're a white person you can call up your TBF and say, "What do you black people think about nuclear energy?" Or if you're black you can call up your TWF and ask, "Do your people really think Cheryl Tiegs is good looking?"

My TBF is Harold Random and I always hear from him when he's upset about something that has just appeared in the newspapers.

I got the call the other day. "I just saw a headline in the paper this morning which

Primary Costs Inflated

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — As Gov. Jim Hunt readies his re-election campaign, his handlers are concerned that the governor may have more trouble spending money than raising it.

Campaign spending limits on media and related expenses, which covered state campaigns for the first time in North Carolina in 1976, have become much more restrictive this year because of the effects of inflation.

And it is ironic that, while Hunt's campaign staff may be chafing under the restrictions, it was Hunt who backed legislation setting the limits and helped it to passage while lieutenant governor.

The official limit on campaign media spending for statewide candidates was established just last week by Alex Brock, director of the state Board of Elections.

The limit set by law is equal to ten cents for every North Carolina citizen of voting age — 18 or older. For the 1980 campaign, using federal census estimates, Brock said the media limit for each candidate will be $393,800 per election.

For a party nominee, the candidate will be allowed to spend three times that amount on media during all of 1980 — close to $1.2 million, which should be plenty for the richest campaigns. The limit would be tripled by the primary, runoff and general election, even if there was no opposition from within the party.

But the problem arises because a campaign can't go over the $393,800 limit for the first primary by drawing from the limit on the second or third election. Each candidate must stay within the limit for each election — causing a problem if Hunt finds former Gov. Bob Scott a pressing opponent before next May's Democratic primary.

Further, the limit is only about $30,000 more than it was four years ago, while inflation has driven the cost of campaigning much higher since then.

Hunt press secretary Gary Pearce says Hunt campaign leaders are concerned about the effects in their primary race. And Hunt's treasurer, John Talton, doesn't like it either.

"As I understand it, the cost of media is up 30 percent since 1976," Talton said in an interview. "That would mean it will take, say half a million, just to get what you got last time."

State law places no limit on total campaign spending, as does federal law in the presidential race. But the expenses counted in the media limit are extensive — television and radio airtime for commercials, production costs in making the commercials, newspaper advertising and billboards.

Other Editors Say Examine Carefully

(Washington Daily News)

The taxpaying citizens of the City of Washington face a difficult and momentous decision, provided of course that the N.C. Local Government Commission gives approval for the bond issue.

We speak specifically of the proposed bond issue in the amount of $9 million with which to switch over from VEPCO to CP&L and to realize certain needed utility facilities. Actually, the story says that around seven million dollars are needed for the switchover and around two million dollars for the needed facilities.

There are many questions to be answered. Our citizens are going to demand some good answers. A nine million dollar bond issue is not to be taken routinely.

1. Why does it cost so much to switch over from VEPCO to CP&L?
2. One paragraph in the story read "Lloyd Shank, director of the city utility, told the council that much of the money would have to be spent eventually anyway 'no matter who our supplier is'." Now how many dollars is "much"? For what will the money eventually be spent?
3. To hold a nine million dollar bond issue referendum, if it passes, how much would taxes within the City of Washington be raised? Would part of the bond payments be made from electric receipts?
4. How much longer will the City of Washington continue paying Electricities more than $1,000 per month for services of a doubtful nature?
5. Exactly how much is it estimated that city taxpayers will pay if the city should continue with VEPCO?
6. Will the savings on electric bills with CP&L as supplier offset the increased tax bills our citizens will be called upon to pay?

Admittedly, there are many other questions that need to be asked and answered. After all, the nine million dollar bond issue proposal has hit us squarely between the eyes before we were expecting it.

The Daily News wishes to make it clear that as of this time we seek clear-cut information. We want to discuss the proposal as fully as possible, and we need to have all the facts that it is possible to get. This is no time for propaganda of any nature. We have too much at stake for that.

are divided. It only rates a headline if we agree."

"I don't understand that," Harold said. "Why can't blacks have the luxury of fighting with each other just like everybody else in this country? Can't we disagree without someone making a federal case out of it?"

"It's not that simple, Harold," I said. "If you recall, what precipitated this whole thing was Andy Young's firing. Then the press wrote that ALL the blacks were mad at the Jews. This was followed by Rev. Jackson's kissing Yasser Arafat in Beirut. As far as we white people were concerned, all the blacks in the United States were for the PLO. Then Vernon Jordan and other black leaders announced they didn't know where the black people stood any more. It's much easier for us to deal with a problem if you all think alike."

"Bullwhip!" I thought I heard Harold say. "You white people can have a hundred opinions on anything."

THE INSIDE REPORT

Philadelphia For Kennedy

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
PHILADELPHIA — The notion of President Carter's political resurrection, which has taken root in Washington the past month, encounters credibility problems 136 miles away in Philadelphia where a four-hour visit by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy pointed up the awesome task faced in renominating the president.

Kennedy showed himself as a powerful, though unpolished, platform speaker. While consciously escalating his attacks on Carter's leadership, Kennedy dodged Carter's effort to identify him with the Democratic party's left wing. What's more, bitterly antagonistic factions of Philadelphia Democrats are all moving to Kennedy with scarcely anybody of prominence loyal to the president.

Philadelphia is, therefore, a political wasteland for Carter. Victory in the Pennsylvania primary clinched the 1976 nomination for him, and his strategists had looked to the 1980 primary next April as the potentially decisive Kennedy-Carter test. But no Carter base in Philadelphia, thanks to three years of inflation, makes for bleak statewide prospects when combined with Kennedy's appeal.

Kennedy's performance here, in three pep talks and one full-scale speech, belied the widening theory that Teddy as candidate will be less popular than Teddy has been as noncandidate. Although his voting record is to the left of even Sen. George McGovern, Kennedy made clear he is no self-destructing doctrinaire through the non-ideological content of his speech and his ability to attract disparate elements of the party.

His speech at a fund-raiser for ex-Rep. William Green's campaign for mayor denounced "leadership that has failed to do the job," containing no more ideological overtones than John F. Kennedy's exhortations to greatness in 1960. Save for an attack on oil decontrol, it could easily have been delivered by John B. Connally.

Like JFK's campaign oratory, Ted Kennedy's comes over stronger on the stump than it reads in cold print. One Democratic insider who was shown an advance copy of the speech here was disappointed by "ho-hum rhetoric." He was shocked that when delivered in Kennedy's high-pitched, singsong style, the prosaic language became a searing indictment of the Carter presidency.

The $100-a-plate dinners, including top corporate officials, applauded frequently but with restraint. A more spirited reaction came later at a South Philadelphia rally where some 4,000 persons cheered. Speaking without notes, Kennedy shouted in tones of a carnival barker that in years past "we didn't throw up our hands in despair. We didn't talk about a malaise of the American spirit. We rolled up our sleeves."

Old friend Bill Green was with Kennedy at every stop. But also at Kennedy's side during the South Philly rally were allies of outgoing right-wing Democratic Mayor Frank Rizzo, long Green's enemy. Kennedy also telephoned to pay his

You Would Pay Consequences

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — If you did what the Fed did earlier this month, that is, overestimate your money supply, you'd have checks bouncing like pingpong balls, you'd be fined, and your reputation would be damaged.

But the Fed, the nation's central bank, won't suffer many financial consequences. Those will be borne by those who made financial and investment decisions based on what they thought were the facts.

They will not be the first to be misled by the official numbers that so many elements of the economy must rely on for a sense of direction.

But first the latest case. The Federal Reserve system, whose error amounted to $3.7

billion, will not escape totally without damage. Its image, its reputation, its integrity, its credibility are priceless.

If, for instance, its figures are suspect, who will have confidence that it is on track in its battle with inflation? Who will not suspect it hasn't rigged figures to produce the interest rates it seeks?

What the Fed did was miscount the supply of money circulating for the first two weeks of October. In conceding the error, it also admitted in effect that things may not have been as bad as pictured.

As a consequence, many money market people now assume that the Fed probably clamped down overly hard on inflation, and that the resulting rise in short-term interest rates was a consequence of that policy.

Whatever, short-term rates fell sharply after the Fed announced its error, to the chagrin of those who already had borrowed at the higher rates which prevailed just before the announcement.

Bitter though they are over being misled, they are not unique. Others too have been misled by other numbers, official government numbers, that are regularly revised (corrected) or which have long been suspect.

Critics aren't unanimous on whom to blame. Some claim to see errors of methodology, and blame the government. Others contend that those who accept the numbers as chiseled in granite are themselves to blame.

Both schools abhor what they feel is a mindless reliance on numbers as the basic interpreter of the economy. Businessmen, unions, presidents, offer them as concrete testimony to the correctness of their positions.

The fact is that they are not indisputable monitors of the economy, and those who compile them are those most aware of the deficiencies. Most numbers are, in fact, not counts but calculations.

What's the difference? A calculation is the product of a formula, one that might be weighted or seasonally adjusted. It contains an element of arbitrariness, of subjectivity. It is often, if not always, revised.

Monthly retail sales, for example, are often revised. So, too, the monthly index of economic indicators. Sometimes the jobless rate, too. And the jobless rate, of course, is seasonally adjusted as well.

JUSTICE OR MERCY?
"Give me justice!"

If you are addressing your plea to God, then you had better change that plea quickly. For if all we get on the last great day is justice, we are altogether lost. What we need, and what we must have on that supreme occasion, is mercy.

The prayer of confession declares that there is no health in us. Some people choke a bit over this statement, but it is true nevertheless, and whether we like it or not we have to accept it. No matter what we are doing, we need it now, and as the years go on, our need for it will increase.

We need mercy because of the good we have left undone. We need mercy because we have so often chosen evil instead of good. Above all, we need mercy because of the kind of persons we are in the inner core of our lives.

No Guidelines For Charities

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Before you know it, street corner Santas will start to "Ho, ho, ho." The familiar black kettles will dot the sidewalks. There will be new appeals: "In a season of joy, remember the less fortunate."

Americans gave nearly $40 billion to charity last year, up almost 10 percent from 1977. Most of the money — some $33 billion — came from individuals.

There are thousands of charities. Some seek money on a year-round basis; others run one-time fund-raising drives; and still others count on the Christmas spirit to fill their coffers.

Which charity should you support? How can you be sure your money will reach the people it's intended for? Which cause is worthiest? Who needs help the most?

"Reputation alone ... is no surefire guide to wise giving," writes Carl Bakal, author of a new book, "Charity U.S.A." Bakal says: "Many well-known and highly regarded organizations are efficiently run and dedicated to a real social need. Others, however, although equally sincere in purpose, are badly run or directed toward an outmoded or not particularly urgent need..."

More than half the states have laws regulating the solicitation of charitable contributions, but the statutes vary widely. Some limit the amount that can be spent on fund raising; others merely require the filing of an annual report.

The National Information Bureau and the Council of Better Business Bureaus publish rating lists of charities, indicating whether they meet organization standards. The lists cover only a few hundred charities each, but they can be useful. For information write: Philanthropic Advisory Division, Council of Better Business Bureaus, 1150 17th St. N.W., Washington, D.C., 20036 or National Information Bureau, 419 Park Ave.

South, New York, N.Y., 10016.

The final decision about giving is up to you, but experts advise consumers to follow these general rules:

—Restrict donations to groups you are familiar with. Don't give to organizations you have never heard of or know nothing about.

—Ask for a financial statement before you give. Check to see whether the charity has been independently audited by a certified public accountant.

—Figure out how much of your dollar will go to fund-raising costs. There is no rule of thumb you can use to determine whether the amount is too high. Better Business Bureau standards require that a "reasonable percentage" of the money raised — generally 50 percent or more — go for program purposes.

—Don't give in response to a telephone call from a stranger. Ask the caller to write, giving detailed information about the organization in question.

Planning Board Meets Tuesday

The October meeting of the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission, postponed last week due to lack of a quorum, has been rescheduled for Tuesday, Oct. 30 at 4 p.m. at city hall.

Items on the revised agenda include: consideration of a proposed change in the name of Railroad Street, from Howell Street northward to 14th Street, to Beatty Street;

Request of Jay M. and Cynthia S. Collie for rezoning some 20,800 square feet at the southeast corner of NC 43 at the corner of Red Banks Road from Medical Arts to Office and Institutional; and Consideration of the final plat of Baytree Subdivision, located at the southwest corner of Red Banks Road and 14th Street Extension.

The meeting will be held in the third floor council chambers.

Evans-Novak . . .

respects to another Rizzo stalwart: city Democratic Chairman Marty Weinberg, absent from the evening's Green-for-mayor events.

Once Kennedy actually announces for president, Weinberg is likely to support him. So is ward leader Pete Camiel, who feuded with Rizzo as city Democratic chairman. They will surely be joined by Ed Toohey, head of Philadelphia's AFLCIO, and most of the city's other labor leaders. Philadelphia liberals long ago backed Kennedy.

Against this ecumenical array, who is for Jimmy Carter? Nobody but some black leaders (believed unable to swing black voters from Kennedy) and 78-year-old ex-Sen. Joseph S. Clark. Green has endorsed Carter as part of a deal with black leaders. But nobody expects it to stick.

The president is reaping the bitter harvest of three years neglecting the city whose 258,000 plurality overcame Gerald Ford's 127,000 edge elsewhere in the state. The fact Carter has not set foot in Philadelphia as president may be justified by desire to avoid Rizzo. But that does not explain ignoring other party leaders.

Carter operatives talked privately of Pittsburgh-for-Carter counteracting Philadelphia-for-Kennedy with the issue settled in the smaller counties. But there is no sign Kennedy is significantly less popular in Pittsburgh than in Philadelphia. Furthermore, Carter cannot count on Peter Flaherty, who as mayor of Pittsburgh spearheaded Carter's 1976 Pennsylvania campaign. Back home after a short tour as Carter's deputy attorney general, Flaherty calls himself "totally undecided" and, in fact, traveled to Philadelphia for Kennedy's appearance.

Above all, Carter is fighting a legend: the little dance orchestra wailing out "Camelot" at the dinner, accents reminiscent of the two earlier Kennedys, the staccato call to greatness. Since Kennedy will not match his rhetoric to his Senate voting record, Carter's irresistible course in this and other important states may be personal attack. His Philadelphia wasteland would then turn into a bloody battleground.

Plan Carnival At Elmhurst

The Elmhurst Elementary School Halloween Carnival will be held Tuesday evening from 5:30 until 8:30 p.m.

The carnival will feature a Haunted House, basketball, putt putt and various other games. Dinner will be served. The public is invited.

But we're not ready yet for your race to have valid disagreements among yourselves. The time may come in our lifetime when the headline writers might say, 'Vernon Jordan Attacks Jesse Jackson,' but it isn't going to be tomorrow. This country likes to put everyone in a pigeonhole. If we can deal with you as a racial entity, then politically it makes life so much easier for us to deal with the blacks if they all decide to march to a different drummer."

"If you think you've got problems, what about us?" Harold said. "You people are messing up inflation, unemployment, energy, and you're not doing so hot in Cuba, either. Why can't we ever see a headline which says 'White People Send Stock Market Prices Tumbling on Wall Street?'"

"That would be a racial slur, Harold."

"That's what I thought," he said. "Have I made my point?"

"You have, Harold, and it's valid. I admit it. Oh, by the way, while I've got you on the phone, What teams would your people like to see in the Super Bowl?"

Crash
Newspaper headlines told a grim story 50 years ago today, as prices collapsed on the New York Stock Exchange. But the news did not surprise everyone. In September, 1929, economist Roger Babson predicted that "sooner or later a crash is coming, and it may be terrific." A year earlier, novelist Sinclair Lewis remarked that "within a year, this country will have a terrible financial panic." In 1927, somebody asked Mrs. Calvin Coolidge why her husband had decided not to run for president again. Mrs. Coolidge replied, "Poppa says there's a depression coming." Events following the crash of 1929 would prove that "Poppa" was right.

DO YOU KNOW — Who was president when the stock market crashed in 1929?

Mishap Fatal To Skydiver

LOVE VALLEY, N.C. (AP) — A veteran parachutist collided in mid-air with another jumper and tumbled for more than 3,000 feet to his death at the National Balloon Rally early Sunday.

The victim was identified as Jay Curlee, 25, of Chapel Hill, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Curlee of Charlotte.

Authorities said Curlee, who had more than 500 parachute jumps to his credit, and Don Carrington of Raleigh jumped from the baskets of separate hot-air balloons about 8 a.m. They planned to join hands in mid-air, free fall and then open their chutes.

But they collided instead. Authorities believe Curlee was knocked unconscious by the impact and was unable to open his twin parachute. Carrington sprained his hand in the collision but managed to open his parachute and land safely.

"Both those (twin) parachutes were in working order," said Arthur Patterson, a safety officer for the U.S. Parachute Association.

"I would say the cause of death was mid-air collision," he added. "It was just one of those freak accidents."

Curlee's body was found about 1:30 p.m., approximately one half-mile from the intersection of N.C. 64 and Interstate 40, about 13 miles from Statesville.

"He hit flat on his back ... left a six-inch dent in the ground, then bounced and landed six feet away face down," said Jack Koonz, chief of the County Line Volunteer Fire Department and a member of the search party.

Authorities estimate Curlee tumbled head-over-heels through the air at more than 120 mph. His hockey helmet was shattered when he was found, but no one knew whether that happened in the fall or the mid-air collision.

About 300 searchers combed the area before a National Guard helicopter crew found Curlee's body.

Patterson said the Federal Aviation Administration, which licenses hot air balloons, may investigate Curlee's death.

The accident happened on the final day of the sixth annual balloon rally, which drew more than 100 hot air balloonists to northern Iredell County from as far as Canada, Belgium and Australia as well as New York, Florida, Michigan and Texas.

If you want a loan, Boss, you rate a special deal.

At Branch Banking and Trust, the customer's Boss. That's you. And that's why we offer you the BB&T Simple Interest Loan.

Because when you want a loan for home improvements, farm machinery, a car, a vacation, or any other worthwhile purpose, you deserve the kind of loan that can save money.

And that's just what Simple Interest can do. Because it's the fairest kind of financing you can get, allowing you to sign a note for only the amount you borrow for the time you borrow it. With no interest added in advance.

This means that, instead of paying interest on the principal throughout the term of the loan, you pay it only on the amount you still owe. So your interest decreases as you pay off the loan.

You can save money by making payments early, or by paying extra amounts at any time. There's never a prepayment penalty. And never a delinquency charge.

So visit any BB&T office soon. Tell us what you need to make your life a little nicer, and we'll do our best to provide the Simple Interest Loan that does the job.

Because, being the Boss, you deserve nothing but the best.

Row Crops Up, 'Time Bomb' Beneath Chowan River

Total cropland in North Carolina decreased about 364,000 acres, or about 5.5 percent from 1967 to 1977, according to Jesse Hicks, head of the North Carolina Soil Conservation Service (SCS). However, row crop acreage increased approximately 46 percent during the same period.

The cropland shrinkage came as a result of urbanization—shopping centers, highways and other roads, business houses, dwellings, and even new bodies of water, such as municipal reservoirs.

Although row crop acreage showed a dramatic increase, land used for close grown crops such as barley, wheat, and oats decreased, as did rotation hay and pasture land. These findings were derived from the National Resources Inventory, a compilation of information from every state on the status and condition of the land resource.

The trend in row crops shows an upsurge in continuous cropping patterns, noted Hicks. He pointed out that North Carolina farmers should intensify their conservation practices to keep topsoil in place.

More than 6.2 million acres of land are being used for cropland in North Carolina, according to the inventory. Two million are planted in native or improved pastures, while 16.8 million acres are in non-federal forest land.

Hicks stressed the findings of the inventory which point out that the average rate for erosion of cropland topsoil is 7.64 tons per acre per year, resulting in an estimated 47 million tons of soil lost a year.

North Carolina's average yearly erosion rate for improved pasture is 1.25 tons per acre, with forested land showing a .14 tons.

Field conservationists of the SCS collected the data for the inventory from 1,481 North Carolina primary sample units. Each unit measured 160 acres, with data collected at three points on each unit for a total of 3,662 locations.

Hicks says that the SCS will monitor each location for trends in status and condition of land and water resources on a regular basis, both on the state and national level.

TUNIS, N.C. (AP) — Bald cypress and black gum trees crowd the swampy banks of the Chowan River, reflected in the cool dark-blue water.

It is a tranquil scene. But under the slick surface lies a time bomb — blue-green algae, ready to bloom in the river's nitrogen-rich water.

It's happened several times in the past six years. Algae, spurred by the nutrients in the water and aided by warm weather and slow water flow, grows furiously. The result is an odorous green slime that infests the river, choking out other life.

Scientists call what's happening to the Chowan advanced eutrophication. That means the river is dying.

State officials hope it can be brought back to life.

Last week, the state Department of Natural Resources and Community Development released a plan called the Chowan River Restoration Project, "a plan of action to restore the quality of the Chowan River water to acceptable levels."

"We are relatively sure of several different things that have to be done to clean up the river, and none of them is easy," said Dr. Neil Grigg, assistant secretary of natural resources, in discussing the plan. "We want to make sure we do the very best we can."

Grigg made the remarks while standing on a grassy bluff that overlooks the river. The bluff also overlooks a dying swamp, testimony to the problems the state, and the river, face.

"It's on this site that the bad disposal practices for nitrogen took place," he said. Grigg and other state officials, including Natural Resources Secretary Howard Lee, were at CF Industries, a fertilizer plant on the banks of the river near Tunis, a crossroads community in Hertford County.

CF has long been blamed for the algae blooms and resultant fish kills on the river. State officials say it isn't all CF's fault, but probably was the final straw in the river's demise.

The Chowan starts just above the North Carolina-Virginia border where the Nottaway and Blackwater rivers join.

And the Chowan's problems start in Virginia, where a large part of the river's watershed is located.

At Franklin, Va., Union Camp Corp.'s bleached pulp and paper and building-products complex represents "the largest single point-source (direct) contributor of nitrogen in the (river) basin, and the North Carolina Division of Environmental Management suspects that the nutrients are stored in the Chowan and remain there for considerable periods," the report on the river states.

According to state officials, Union Camp has long denied it is contributing to the problem in the Chowan. Grigg and Lee say that they are working with Virginia to encourage monitoring of the plant and that they may call in the federal Environmental Protection Agency to help with the problem.

so that runoff will eventually be limited.

By the time the river passes the CF plant, the problem is already bad, but probably not critical. It is at this point that the state has the biggest problem.

"Our studies indicate that the nitrogen in the river below CF does not appear to result from ongoing activities at the site, but from poor management practices from previous years ..." the report states.

Fishermen report that almost no commercially desirable fish are left in the river below the CF site. And red sore disease, a bacterial infection of fish, is reaching epidemic proportions this year in the river and the upper Albemarle Sound. "The disease has been linked to deteriorating water quality ..." the state report says.

Farmers Chemical Association Inc. operated the plant originally. The plant opened in late 1969, with the promise nitrogen-contaminated water wouldn't be dumped in the river. But within a few months, it became clear that nitrogen was flowing into the river. Legal action continued for several years, including after CF took over in February 1973.

"We can no longer deny the state of North Carolina, about 10 years ago, made a calculative mistake," Lee said of the decision to allow the fertilizer plant to operate.

CF eventually built retaining walls to hold in contaminated groundwater and improved its waste treatment.

But the dying swamp stands as testimony to the continuing problems. The swamp contains large amounts of nitrogen, a result of the flow from the plant's early years. It leaches into the river, aggravated by rain and by the plant's relatively clean wastewater that washes over the swamp and picks up nitrogen as it flows.

CF promised the state last week that it would extend the pipe so the clean wastewater flows directly into the river. But officials of the plant disagree that the swamp's high nitrogen content is CF's fault. T.H. Traylor, CF operations vice president, said swamps may be naturally high in nitrogen.

Lee promised to ride herd on CF to see that the problem is taken care of.

Another even more difficult problem is the nitrogen-rich sediment on the bottom of the river. The nitrogen is recycled into the water, and the state report says "The algal blooms may continue until the sediments are cleared out either by a dredging project or by a hurricane." State officials are studying dredging parts of the river.

Tanner Will Chair Farm-City Week

Ken Tanner has been named Pitt County Farm-City Week chairman for the 1979 observance of Farm-City Week. Mrs. Frank Phillips, Sr. of Newland, state Farm-City Week chairman, announced the appointment.

Leroy James will serve with Tanner as co-chairman.

Farm-City Week will be observed nationally November 16-22, ending on Thanksgiving Day. The event is to help create a better understanding between rural and urban people.

The theme for 1979 is "Farm and City, Partners in Economic Progress with Pride in the Past and Faith in the Future."

This will be the 25th annual observance of Farm-City Week. Last year's observance, according to reports from national headquarters, involved active participation of more than 25,000 communities in the U.S. and Canada.

The non-profit organization is being chaired for 1979 by David H. Stroud, president, National Livestock and Meat Board, Chicago. Kiwanis International will serve as coordinating agency.

Farm-City Week has won the Freedoms Foundation's Distinguished Service Award, and the Silver Anvil Award from the Public Relations Society of America for being an outstanding community relations program.

SBI Team Disbanded

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — A special State Bureau of Investigation task force has been disbanded because officials don't feel they have the manpower to investigate old, unsolved murders and all the new ones that keep coming up at the same time.

State Attorney General Rufus Edmisten said the SBI's murder task force had to suffer when he only got funding for four new agents over the next two years from the General Assembly, instead of the 37 he had asked for.

"I could not in good conscience have a squad working on unsolved murders when so many new ones are popping up," Edmisten said. Since there is a greater chance of solving recent murders, they must take priority.

Edmisten formed the squad two years ago, saying he wanted to let new agents work on old cases in hopes they'd find clues that had been overlooked before.

Six court convictions have been obtained from further investigation of the 57 cases.

All but one of the cases which remain have been distributed among the bureau's eight regional offices for agents to work on if they have the time, said Harold E. Elliott, deputy SBI director.

The only exception is the investigation into the triple slayings of the Bryce B. Durham family in Boone on Feb. 2, 1972. There is still an agent working full-time on that case.

Edmisten is a native of Boone and is involved personally in the case, according to Max Bryan, who oversees murder investigations.

Seek Views On Peanuts

Farmers and other interested persons are invited to make recommendations and suggestions for the 1980 peanut price support program. The written comments must be received by USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) no later than Nov. 15.

"Consideration will be given to amounts for the national acreage allotment and outland quota, and the apportionment of such allotment to States," said W. F. Tyson, chairman of the ASCS committee.

The acreage allotment legally must be at least 1,614,000 acres and the poundage quota at least 3,032 million pounds, according to Tyson.

"The poundage quota will establish the quantity of 1980-crop peanuts eligible for loan," said Tyson. He pointed out that Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland could increase the quota if he determined that estimated requirements for domestic edible use and a reasonable carryover will require additional production.

Comments on the program should be mailed to the Director, Price Support and Loan Division, ASCS-USDA, Room 3741-South Building, P. O. Box 2415, Washington, D.C. 20013.

State Grange To Gather Nov. 2

RALEIGH — The 51st annual State Grange Convention will be held Nov. 2-4 here at the Royal Villa.

Sen. Robert Morgan will address the Fellowship Banquet Friday, 6:30 p.m. An outstanding man and woman will be recognized for their contributions to agriculture. The Peace Junior College Choir will perform during the banquet.

Saturday, 12:15 p.m., Dr. Albert Edwards, pastor of Raleigh's First Presbyterian Church, will address the Grange Membership Luncheon. Norfleet Sugg, executive vice president of the North Carolina Agribusiness Council, will be the featured speaker at the 6:30 p.m. youth banquet.

Sunday, 11 a.m., members will gather for the worship and memorial service, with Dave Lambert of the National Grange as speaker. Dr. Ada Dalla Pozza of the Home Economics Department, North Carolina State University will speak at the Women's Activities Luncheon at 12:15 p.m.

By The Associated Press
A weak cold front is passing through North Carolina today.

After a fine weekend statewide a small change in the weather pattern for the state is expected today. Some cloudiness and isolated light showers could be anticipated over the next few days, but little change in the temperatures.

Ample sunshine Sunday helped boost afternoon temperatures into the pleasant 70s over a good portion of the state. Some of the higher mountains had cooler temperatures, as was the case at Grandfather Mountain where a cool 56 degrees was observed Sunday.

Cloudiness moving in from the west overnight helped keep minimums from falling to their potential levels. For example, during the early hours of the morning today temperatures had only dropped into the range of the mid 40s to the mid 50s east of the mountains.

Some scattered light rain fell over the western mountains just after midnight.

Some cloudiness and isolated showers today through Tuesday will give way to fair weather Wednesday through Friday. Temperatures will be near normal into Tuesday and above normal for the rest of the week. Little if any rainfall is expected.

Lt. Gov. Race Turns Bitter

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — As many political observers had predicted, Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green's campaign against House Speaker Carl J. Stewart Jr. for the Democratic nomination seems to be turning bitter.
The Dunn Daily Record recently quoted Green as saying Stewart was on a "personal ego trip because he wants to get to the public trough." He also called Stewart a "wide-eyed" liberal who is "no friend to eastern North Carolina."
John Mobley, Green's press aide, said the lieutenant governor would make no comment on the remarks. "He hasn't seen the story and doesn't want to comment on it," Mobley said.
Stewart said, "I don't have a response other than it's what we've learned to expect from him. It's characteristic of him to denounce those by whom he feels threatened."

EMINENT DOMAIN

A home may be a man's castle, but even the king of his castle has little clout if his property is needed for public use—be it urban renewal, schools or public highways. The process is known as eminent domain. It is the power built into the federal and all state constitutions to take private property for public use upon payment of "just compensation" which has been interpreted by the courts to mean "fair market value".

Your land is deemed to be taken even though you may not be physically deprived of it. It is a taking if you are simply deprived of the normal use of your property. Only the amount of the property which is necessary for the intended public use may be taken away from you. If there is only a partial taking, you are entitled to the difference between the fair market value of your whole property before the partial taking and the fair market value of the remaining part of your land after the taking. We can help you determine that difference. Phone us.

LONDON (AP) — The first tremors of America's Great Depression barely jiggled the consciousness of much of Europe.
Dutch newspapers didn't even play the Wall Street crash on front pages. The Algemeen Handelsblad called it "a thunderstorm that clears the air." Denmark's business community dismissed it as a comeuppance for foolish Americans.

News of the crash telegraphed to England, however, caused an immediate sag on the London Stock Exchange. Sir George Bolton, who was working in the Bank of England on Oct. 24, 1929 — the Black Thursday which started a five-day stampede to the Oct. 29 disaster of Black Tuesday — recalls: "We thought it was the end of the world."

But it took almost two years for the "end of the world" to reach other financial centers and most ordinary Europeans. Bank and business failures, inflation, unemployment, strikes and riots showed Europe it wasn't immune to America's troubles.

The Bourse, Paris' small domestically oriented stock exchange, hardly stirred over the October news. But by spring prices had begun to slip. By fall 1930 the slip had become a rapid slide.

A brokerage firm failed and took with it two banks. Then two more banks failed, taking a number of secondary banks with them. Paris was plunged into a financial crisis.

London, a mammoth overseas market for American stocks, watched stock values drop, interest rates rise and credit freeze. By the end of 1929 business was stagnating.

Reverberations spread through the British Empire. Booming Australia was ravaged by falling wool and wheat prices and moved toward its own Great Depression.

"Schwartz Freitag" (Black Friday) — Germany's time-zone delayed morning-after to Black Thursday — halted a remarkable post-World War I recovery. The Germans had borrowed huge sums from Wall Street to finance reparations payments and reconstruction. The source — and the money — dried up overnight.

Even the clockwork Swiss economy suffered — although much less than most. The 90 percent plunge in U.S. stock prices had only a 58 percent echo in Switzerland. American industrial production was cut in half, contrasting to a drop in Switzerland of only 8 percent.

Swiss unemployment peaked at 5 percent but was taken so seriously that employers and employees worked together to save jobs. The new mood resulted in a 1937 agreement between labor and industry that has kept the country free from major strikes since.

The crash wiped out the 400-company empire of Swedish "Match King" Ivar Kreuger and almost toppled the Skandinaviska Banken, to which Kreuger owed $89 million — almost a third of its total loans. The bank director was imprisoned. Kreuger killed himself in 1932.

Gradually the impact of America's Depression moved to the less developed countries of Europe, and to the common people.

Polish farmers say food prices sank so low they were virtually without money. The Dutch remember the shame of having holes punched in their bicycle license tags, signifying the rider was jobless and got the license free.

Unemployment in Poland rose 150 percent in two years. In Italy, it jumped almost 360 percent, from 140,000 in 1930 to 500,000 in 1932. The German jobless toll went from 1.9 million in 1928 to 3.4 million in 1930 to more than 6 million in 1932 — a third of the work force.

For those lucky enough to have jobs, salaries dropped. The Dutch cut civil service and military pay 30 percent between 1932 and 1936, trade and industry salaries by 15 percent. Italian dictator Benito Mussolini sliced farm incomes up to 25 percent. Polish workers' pay fell 49 percent.

Discontent turned to riots in Belgium's industrial south, to clashes with police in Czechoslovakia and Denmark. Dutch battleship sailors in the East Indies mutinied over wages and were bombed by the Dutch air force. In Sweden police opened fire on 3,000 pay protesters, killing five. A short, bloody civil war broke out between right and left political factions in Vienna.

A wave of bankruptcies and bank failures in Austria stirred ferment that helped the Nazis to a foothold and set the stage for Adolf Hitler's annexation of Austria in 1938.

The big German minority in Czechoslovakia's Bohemia province was fertile soil for secessionist Nazi propaganda, opening the way for the country's dismemberment at Munich in 1938.

In Germany, the Nazis promised jobs, social welfare and a revived economy in the 1930 Reichstag elections. Their second-place showing catapulted Hitler into national prominence. Three years later President Ludwig von Hindenburg named him chancellor.

Today — as Italians recall "Il Crack," the French "Le Krach" — many European analysts say it cannot happen again.

"It would be crazy to try to see any analogy between the 1929 Wall Street collapse and the present crisis," says a foreign exchange dealer in Milan. "They are completely different situations."

Analysts in Paris, Frankfurt, Geneva and Warsaw agree. They point to the growth in regulation of national economies and of international bodies like the World Bank and International Monetary Fund.

"If something like Black Thursday were so much as hinted nowadays, counter-measures would be introduced immediately," says an expert at Commerzbank, Germany's third-largest bank.

The economic adviser of Credit Suisse, one of Switzerland's big three, notes that the hottest speculation today is mostly outside the stock markets — in currency or gold.

But Polish economist Stanislaw Chelstowski and French economic professor Maurice Allais say potential problems exist in an oversupply of overseas dollars. Because the dollars are outside the United States, they are not subject to normal exchange controls.

"A major danger to the world economy is the Eurodollars circulating in Europe," says Chelstowski. "These $40 billion are speculation capital, shuttling to and fro."

Allais says that a rapid movement of uncontrolled Eurodollars could start a panic, just as the crumbling of the international credit pyramid touched off the crash half a century ago.

Republicans In A Coastal Rally

TOPSAIL BEACH, N.C. (AP) — Several hundred North Carolina Republicans gathered for what was described as the "Coastal Elephant Hunt" over the weekend.

Representatives of presidential candidates Ronald Reagan, John Connally and Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn. attended the gathering. Although Reagan buttons seemed to hold a plurality among the guests, most of the attention focused on the Connally campaign. The former Texas governor's son and daughter-in-law, Mark and Ann Connally, were at the event.

The younger Connally, of San Antonio, Texas, predicted that his father would overtake Reagan as the national and state leader as the campaign progressed.

ON SOUTHERN RAILWAY, THIS COMPACT CAR
TRAVELS 145 MILES ON A GALLON OF FUEL.

"Guess how far it could travel on a truck."

L. Stanley Crane, Chairman, Southern Railway System, Washington, D.C. 20013

The railroad is the most efficient user of fuel in the transportation industry. Bar none.

And the Southern Railway is one of the most efficient railroads in the country.

For instance, on the Southern, a 3,089 lb. compact car can travel

145 miles on one gallon of fuel. How far could a truck carry it on the same amount of fuel? Well, the railroad is four times more efficient than trucks, 60 times more efficient than planes, and even more efficient than barges. So it's easy to see that trucks can't carry freight anywhere near as far as railroads can per gallon of fuel.

What does this mean for the future? Well, it means that trucks will be used less and less for long hauls. More and more products will ride on the Southern, and trucks will be used for distribution at the other end of the line. Because, in the coming years, only the railroad will have the energy efficiency for long hauls.

We have the energy for the long haul.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices moved up in light trading today as chanting anti-nuclear demonstrators failed to halt trading on the 50th anniversary of one of the worst days of the 1929 stock market crash.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 3.33 to 812.63 in the first two hours of trading. Advancing issues led declines by a 3-2 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

A cheer went up on the NYSE as the opening gong signalled the start of trading. Outside, more than 600 protestors were arrested as they tried to keep brokers and other workers from entering the stock exchange building.

Oct. 29, 1929 came to be known as "Black Tuesday" as volume reached a staggering 16.41 million shares. The day before the Dow average had plunged 38.33 points to set a record that still stands.

The demonstrators had demanded the NYSE stop trading in stocks related to nuclear energy. Some of those stocks moved lower, with J. Ray McDermott, the maker of the reactor at Three Mile Island, down 1/4 to 20 1/2 and General Public Utilities, its owner, down 1/4 to 8.

But Combustion Engineering, another nuclear equipment maker, rose 3/4 to 45. Oil issues were strong whether or not they have strong nuclear commitments. Exxon rose 3/4 to 57 and Kerr-McGee rose 1/4 to 56 1/4. Gulf rose 3/4 to 32 1/4 and Standard of Indiana climbed 3/4 to 76 1/4.

The Labor Department reported that productivity of the nation's workforce rose at an annual rate of 0.1 percent in the third quarter after two quarters of steep declines.

The NYSE's index of more than 1,500 common stocks rose .27 to 57.23. Volume was 9.68 million shares in the first two hours, down from the previous session's 14.45 million.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose 2.23 to 203.02.

counting for the slight productivity gain.

Worker compensation per hour rose at an annual rate of 8.5 percent during the quarter, while unit labor costs increased 8.3 percent. Both figures are the smallest since the fourth quarter of last year.

Separately, the department reported that major union contracts negotiated during the first nine months of the year provided average first-year increases of 7.5 percent. That is down slightly from an average of 7.6 percent in such boosts in all of 1978.

The figures do not include fringe benefits or cost-of-living raises that employees might receive in addition to wage increases.

Among larger contract settlements, those covering 5,000 or more workers, the department said first-year wage and fringe benefit increases are averaging 9.1 percent this year, up from 8.3 percent last year.

The department also reported that contract provisions for cost-of-living pay increases accounted for only 56 percent of the inflation rate so far this year, as measured by the Consumer Price Index.

Charles L. Schultze, chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers, warned last week that unless productivity improves, Americans can expect inflation to run at 8 to 9 percent a year for the indefinite future.

Inflation now is running at a 30-year high of 13 percent annually. Schultze said soaring prices for energy, housing and loans are causing nearly half the current inflation, with prices for other goods and services rising at less than 10 percent a year.

Curfew Plan Sees Argument

HAVELOCK, N.C. (AP) — If a proposal that has touched off heated debate between generations is approved, Havelock will become the first town in North Carolina to restrict the activities of its young people by a curfew law.

Eva Sermons, the mother of six and a member of the Havelock Town Board of Commissioners, is advocating a town law that would make it illegal for anyone under 18 to be in a public place between 10:30 p.m. and 6 a.m. Sunday through Thursday and between midnight and 6 a.m. on Friday and Saturday.

The curfew proposal has sparked arguments between and among the generations in the Craven County town of 4,500. Mayor Eugene P. Smith said the intensity of the debate was as heated as recent disagreements over the dog and cat leash ordinance and the Sunday sale of beer.

Among those who disagree with Mrs. Sermons is her daughter, Ginny, a 17-year-old senior at Havelock High School. Ginny Sermons started a petition drive protesting the proposal which had been signed by 251 out of about 300 students at the school by Friday afternoon.

Police Chief Donald R. Richards said there have been several incidents of vandalism blamed on youths this year. In one case, several youths broke into the Havelock-Cherry Point Child Development Center and caused $3,000 damage by, among other things, defecating on the floor. No arrests have been made, he said.

"We also have had kids throwing eggs at cars, destroying street signs and riding along in their own autos, bashing mailboxes with heavy clubs," he said.

If the proposal is approved, the town could face a legal battle over whether or not it is constitutional, according to J. Troy Smith, attorney for the town board.

Deputy Attorney General James F. Bullock said last week that the law appeared unconstitutional.

"You can have curfews in emergency situations, but in general circumstances, unless they could justify it under the police powers, I doubt if it's constitutional," Bullock said. "I don't think it could be enforced," said Commissioner Donald P. Haley. "Once you say kids can't go out after 10:30, you'll instantly have some just trying to overthrow authority."

Mrs. Sermons said young people get into trouble because they are bored. "I was taught that idle hands are the devil's workshop," she said.

Dr. Fields To Address Group

Dr. W. O. Fields, school superintendent for Wilson County, will be the featured speaker at the Greenville City-Pitt County Schools Merger Study Committee Tuesday, Oct. 30, 7:30 p.m., in the Pitt County District Courtroom.

Dr. Fields will discuss the merger of the Wilson City and County school systems. The public is invited to attend this meeting.

Ali: I Could've Whipped'em Both

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
On the day that big John Tate, out of the hills of Tennessee, won Muhammad Ali's vacated WBA heavyweight boxing crown in South Africa, "The Greatest" wasn't watching. He was back in the counting house, counting his money.

"I coulda whipped 'em both," Ali said when he surfaced for air. "I could get in shape and beat both Tate and Holmes."

Larry Holmes holds the World Boxing Council (WBC) version of the fractured title. Tate wears the solid gold belt of the World Boxing Association.

It doesn't matter much. "The Great Man," who dominated the sport for close to a decade, just won't go away.

On the day that John Tate, the massive bronze medalist of the 1976 Olympic Games, returned triumphantly to New York, the scalp of Gerrie Coetzee dangling on his belt, it wasn't his picture but that of his charismatic predecessor that he saw splashed all over the place.

There Ali was on the cover of TV Guide, all decked out in top hat, velvet-trimmed coat, black vest and tie, advertising "Freedom Road," the movie version of Howard Fast's bestseller, a four-hour drama to be aired by NBC in prime time tonight and Tuesday night.

Co-starring with Kris Kristofferson, Muhammad assumes the role of a slave in the mid-1800s who rose from slavery to a seat in the U.S. Senate.

"In 1865, they called him 'Boy,'" said the advertising blurb. "Ten years later they called him 'Senator.'"

Ali flew to Mississippi to assume the fictional role of Gideon Jackson. He got $1 million for 12 weeks' work on the $7.5 million production.

"There is little doubt," said the TV critic, "that Ali is indeed the most recognized face on the planet. His aides even speak of the possibility that he may some day run for president."

If Tate, who was pictured on the back page of New York's afternoon newspaper upon his reentry into the United States, had thumbed to the front of the paper he would have seen another picture of the ex-champion, beaming from a placard showing a popular Japanese compact car and unrecognized Arabic script.

"Ali to Arabs," said the headline, "Buy Cars."

The item went on to say Muhammad had signed a contract to star in a precedent-setting $4 million advertising campaign aimed at persuading the oil-rich Arabs to do away with their sleek limousines and buy the economical Japanese car. "The Greatest" just won't go away.

This must be very frustrating to guys like Holmes, Tate and Two-Tall Jones, all struggling for recognition.

To fight fans, one man is still "The Greatest."

Says the TV critic: "Muhammad Ali, man-child come to Hollywood, magician of moods...prankster or poet, actor or ambassador, we have not seen the last of Muhammad Ali."

Falcons Challenge Seahawks

ATLANTA (AP) — The record doesn't reflect it, but Coach Leeman Bennett of the Atlanta Falcons says, "I still feel like we're a better team than we were last year."

Bennett, hoping to regain the intensity that sent Atlanta to the playoffs last year for the first time in its history, returned to preseason-type practice sessions in preparations for tonight's nationally televised (ABC) battle with the Seattle Seahawks.

The Seahawks entered the first Monday Night Television appearance in their history as a two-point favorite in a game matching National Football League teams with 3-5 records. Atlanta, needing a victory to remain within one game of the lead in the National Conference West race, has lost five of its last six games, including the single first-half victories recorded by the Detroit Lions and the San Francisco 49ers.

The Seahawks, meanwhile, have won two of their last three outings and turned in an impressive 34-14 victory over Houston last week in which quarterback Jim Zorn passed for 252 yards and three touchdowns, two of which went to his favorite receiver, Steve Largent, who had six catches for 135 yards.

This will mark Atlanta's ninth appearance on the prime-time NFL weeknight telecasts.

The torch may have been passed, once and for all, in the National Football Conference's West and Central Divisions.

Los Angeles and Minnesota have ruled those two divisions for years but both have faced disheartening reversals this season and Sunday's games may have signaled the end of their control.

Los Angeles surrendered first place in the NFC West, losing for the first time since 1961 to the suddenly-sizzling New York Giants, 20-14, and dropping one game back of New Orleans, which beat Washington 14-10.

Minnesota, six times champions of the Central, went head-to-head with this year's leader, Tampa Bay. The Vikings came out on the short end of a 12-10 score and slipped three games back of the Bucs.

Elsewhere in the National Football League Sunday, Houston edged the New York Jets 27-24, Pittsburgh downed Dallas 14-7, Buffalo edged Detroit 20-17, Baltimore outlasted New England 31-26, Cleveland ripped St. Louis 38-20, Miami beat Green Bay 27-7, Cincinnati stunned Philadelphia 37-12, Denver whipped Kansas City 20-3 and Chicago edged San Francisco 28-27. Oakland defeated San Diego 45-22 Thursday night.

Seattle plays at Atlanta in the Monday night game.

Giants 20, Rams 14

Rookie Phil Simms threw a pair of TD passes as the Giants won their fourth in a row and dropped the Rams to a 4-5 record and second place in the NFC West, where they've won the title for six straight years.

It was the third straight loss for injury-riddled Los Angeles and marked the first time since 1966 that the Rams have been under .500 this late in the season.

Saints 14, Redskins 10

New Orleans' defense sacked Redskins quarterback Joe Theismann seven times and stopped Washington 18 times on goal-to-go plays to deliver a vital victory for the Saints.

Archie Manning hooked up with Wes Chandler on a 45-yard TD pass play and Tony Galbreath's 2-yard burst supplied the other Saints' TD. But the defense turned the game.

Bucs 12, Vikings 10

Tampa Bay came from behind against Minnesota, with Ricky Bell's 2-yard TD in the fourth quarter supplying the winning points. The Bucs had trailed 10-3 before Neil O'Donoghue's 44-yard field goal narrowed the Vikings' lead in the third quarter.

The victory moved the NFC Central-leading Bucs to a 7-2 record compared to 4-5 for the Vikings, six-time champs of the division.

Steelers 14, Cowboys 3

Flacco Harris rushed for 102 yards and scored TDs on runs of 1 and 48 yards, leading Pittsburgh past Dallas in a rematch of the Super Bowl X and XIII opponents.

The Steeler defense limited the Cowboys to 79 yards on the ground, 73 by Tony Dorsett, who had his string of 100-yard games ended at four.

Oilers 27, Jets 24

Toni Fritsch's 35-yard overtime field goal was the difference for Houston after New York had rallied for a pair of fourth quarter TDs to send the game into an extra period.

"Everytime I look up and see that kid on the field, I thank God for our immigration laws," said Houston Coach Bum Phillips of his Austrian placekicker who also delivered an earlier overtime victory against Cincinnati with a three-pointer.

Bears 28, 49ers 27

Walter Payton scored three TDs and rushed for 162 yards, becoming the first NFL player to go past 1,000 yards this season, but Chicago needed a 48-yard bomb from Mike Phipps to James Scott with 1:29 left to defeat San Francisco.

Steve DeBerg passed for a career-high 332 yards for the losers.

Dolphins 27, Packers 7

Bob Griese shook off a slump, passing for 287 yards and leading Miami past Green Bay. Duril Harris set Dolphin club records with 10 catches for 180 yards.

Broncos 20, Chiefs 3

Denver moved into a first place tie with San Diego in the AFC West by downing Kansas City.

Craig Morton threw a pair of first half TDs and Jon Keyworth added another score on a 32-yard option pass.

Bengals 37, Eagles 13

Ken Anderson threw two TD passes and ran for another score as Cincinnati surprised Philadelphia.

Rookie Jim Browner set up two of the Bengal scores with an interception and a recovered fumble and Dick Jauron also recovered two fumbles for the Bengals, who won their second game.

Archie Griffin ran for 103 yards for Cincinnati and caught one of Anderson's TD passes. Pete Johnson grabbed the other and also ran one yard for another TD.

Colts 31, Patriots 26

Joe Washington's third TD of the game, a 12-yard sweep with 4:51 to play, carried Baltimore past New England. The loss dropped the Pats into a first place tie with Miami in the AFC East.

Bert Jones passed for 280 yards for the Colts, who won their second straight game since he returned to action.

Bills 20, Lions 17

Joe Ferguson, the NFL's leading passer, threw a 7-yard TD pitch to Reuben Gant with 1:25 left, giving Buffalo its comeback victory over Detroit. Ferguson threw for 339 yards for the Bills, who blocked a 42-yard Lion field goal try as time ran out to secure their victory.

Browns 38, Cardinals 20

Cleveland came from behind against St. Louis, taking the lead on a 1-yard TD by Pat Moriarity in the third quarter. Then the Browns put the Cardinals away on three fourth-quarter TDs by Dave Logan, Cleo Miller and Dino Hall.

Martin Out As Manager Of Yankees

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Martin, fresh from another of his celebrated controversies, has been fired as manager of the New York Yankees.

The Yankees announced that Dick Howser, a previous Yankees' coach and presently manager of the Florida State University baseball team, would be Martin's replacement.

Martin, who led the Yankees to the World Championship in 1977 and 1978, was involved in an alleged altercation in Minnesota last week and his ouster had been rumored ever since.

Destiny's Darlings Win Again

By DICK BRINSTER
Associated Press Writer

A smart hustler interested in making a fast buck in the gimmick market probably would do quite well peddling glass slippers and pumpkins outside Groves Stadium.

But those who believe Wake Forest football coach John Mackovic is about to become a frog will have to turn the page at least one more time. Destiny's Darlings have kept the prince alive through another midnight.

Sure, Wake Forest overcame an 18-point halftime deficit Saturday to beat 13th-ranked Auburn, 42-38, but the resident experts of the Atlantic Coast Conference realize that sort of thing can't go on much longer.

"They won't beat Clemson down there," said one of them in discussing Saturday's meeting that could put 18th-ranked Wake Forest in a position where it would have to beat only hapless Duke to get a least a piece of the ACC crown.

This sort of talk is commonplace throughout the conference, although each Deacon victory convinces more of the skeptics to make a lot less noise. Five times an underdog, Wake Forest has rolled up a 7-1 record and beaten three nationally ranked teams in the process.

"Yes, they can sell us as the Cinderella team," said Mackovic, when asked last week if the Deacons would get a bowl bid.

Whether Wake Forest will get a bowl bid is no longer the question. The question now is which bowl.

Students on the Winston-Salem campus chanted "Orange Bowl, Orange Bowl" after Mackovic's Cardiac Kids had won another of their less-than-touchdown victories. This, after Auburn Coach Doug Barfield complained that the record crowd of 34,000 had intimidated three Southeastern Conference officials who had paired with a trio from ACC to work the game.

"Intimidation!" Mackovic said. "That sure is a landmark in Wake Forest football."

Nonetheless the Deacons are an even bet to be the underdog when they ride into Death Valley. On Saturday North Carolina State survived the terror of all, however, and came away with a 16-13 victory over the Tigers.

In the only other conference game, Maryland broke a fourgame losing streak by limiting Duke to minus five yards rushing in a 27-0 victory. North Carolina rallied for a 24-24 tie with East Carolina and Georgia Tech was beaten by Tulane, 127.

Wake Forest was able to overcome the Auburn lead because Jay Venuto passed for an ACC-record 358 yards and James McDougald rushed for 147 and four touchdowns. The Deacons rolled up 587 yards in total offense despite five turnovers.

"Venuto is great player, I want to say that," offered Barfield. "We were only able to get to him once today."

That, Mackovic has insisted for several weeks, is to the credit of an offensive line spearheaded by guards Bill Ard and Syd Kitson. They have been taught to pass block as well as any unit in the nation.

N.C. State gets a chance to watch its pursuers in the ACC race, Wake Forest and North Carolina, battle Clemson and Maryland Saturday. The muchmaligned Wolfpack defense threw up a late goal line stand against Clemson and won on the strength of Nathan Ritter's third field goal of the day.

"The fans here (at Clemson) saw two great football teams going at each other," said Wolfpack Coach Bo Rein. "You've heard about how beat up these teams were and how they weren't going at full strength, but you sure couldn't tell it today."

Ritter's field goals were the difference for N.C. State, while two by Dale Castro were incidental in Maryland's rout of Duke. The first, a 42-yarder, set an NCAA record, however. It was Ritter's 14th straight, and he extended the streak to 15 with a 30-yarder in the fourth period.

"I'm real happy for him," said Terrapin Coach Jerry Claiborne, who was even happier for the team.

The Terrapins, who will try to all but eliminate North Carolina from the race Saturday, had lost four games in succession for the only time in Claiborne's eight years at the helm.

It was a grand day for field goal kickers, and North Carolina's Jeff Hayes was among them. His 47-yarder with 13 seconds remaining salvaged a tie for the 15th-ranked Tar Heels against underdog East Carolina.

Quarterback Matt Kupec, who led North Carolina on the game-tying drive, passed for 265 yards and three touchdowns.

Georgia Tech experienced its usual offensive problems in losing for the fifth time in seven outings. The Yellow Jackets hope to get on the winning track Saturday against Duke.

Virginia, which was idle Saturday, will have its hands full at Georgia.

Davis' Shot Wins It

Phoenix Nips Portland

By The Associated Press

It didn't much matter to Walter Davis that his Phoenix Suns were playing the unbeaten Trail Blazers in Portland. The thing that concerned him was that his team was only three seconds from defeat.

"I just had to go up with it," said Davis, who took an inbounds pass, dribbled once, ignored a crowd of defenders and sank a 20-foot shot at the buzzer to give the Suns an 89-88 National Basketball victory Sunday night. The defeat was the first for the Trail Blazers after nine victories this National Basketball Association season.

"He's so good in that situation," said Phoenix Coach John MacLeod. "The play was to free Walter off the screen."

"When he put the ball on the floor, well, that was risky with three seconds to go. But it went in, and this kind of thing can really give a team a lift."

The loss will not demoralize Portland, said Coach Jack Ramsay. "We lost a game by one point on a difficult shot," he observed. "That's not a drastic situation."

Ramsay was more troubled by the Trail Blazers' early ineffectiveness as the Suns scored the first 10 points of the game and held a 15-point lead early in the third quarter.

"We didn't execute well under pressure in the first half," said Ramsay. "We really weren't attacking offensively."

They rallied after intermission and took an 83-81 lead with 2:07 remaining on a rebound basket by Kermit Washington. Then the lead changed hands five times in the last 90 seconds.

Paul Westphal led all scorers with 25 points. Davis added 20 while Maurice Lucas had 18 to pace the Trail Blazers.

Elsewhere in the NBA, the Los Angeles Lakers topped the Golden State Warriors 97-90, the Seattle SuperSonics downed the Chicago Bulls 108-97, the Kansas City Kings defeated the San Diego Clippers 106-101 and the New Jersey Nets trimmed the Houston Rockets 120-115.

Lakers 97, Warriors 90
Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 18 of his game-high 26 points in the second half to lift Los Angeles to its fourth consecutive victory. Norm Nixon added 18 points for the Lakers. Robert Parish was the high point man for Golden State with 19.

SuperSonics 108, Bulls 97
Fred Brown came off the bench to score three consecutive baskets, helping Seattle to a 104-97 lead over Chicago with less than a minute to play. Gus Williams had 26 points for the SuperSonics while Ricky Sobers led Bulls scorers with 19.

Kings 106, Clippers 101
Kansas City snapped a fourgame losing streak as Scott Wedman scored 17 second-half points against San Diego. The Clippers' Lloyd Free, who entered the game with a 34.0 scoring average, was held to 15 points. Joe Bryant scored 23 points for San Diego.

Nets 120, Rockets 115
Calvin Natt scored 30 points and Mike Newlin added 27 as New Jersey snapped a sixgame losing streak by beating Houston. Moses Malone had 32 points for the Rockets — 22 in the second half.

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — George Burns and Ben Crenshaw were coasting along with a comfortable lead until their birdie streak seemed to dry up on the back nine of Disney's Magnolia Course in the $24,000 National Team Golf Classic.

"Oh, oh," said Gentle Ben on Sunday. "I could see visions of our Friday round all over again." That's when they "skied" to a 66 and had to struggle to make up lost ground on the final two rounds.

But Burns — on the PGA Tour only four years but winner of more than $100,000 in 1979 — got the duo back on the victory trail by chipping in from the fringe with a seven-iron on the par 3 15th for their fifth birdie of the day. They added two more and that was the end of everybody else's hopes of taking the best-ball title and splitting the $45,000 first prize.

"It feels real good to win for the first time," said the tall, blue-eyed Burns, who had career earnings of more than $200,000 but no four victories until the Disney tourney, the last PGA event of the year.

Crenshaw, winner of seven PGA tourneys and more than $500,000 in seven years, said about his three-stroke victory over the par 3 15th yard Magnolia.

Six teams were tied at 260, five strokes back of the winners, including last year's team champions Wayne Levi and Bob Mann.

Ickx, Waldrup Win At Riverside

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — International racing star Jacky Ickx has finished his career, with the possible exception of a start at Le Mans next year, and the Belgian driver closed out his career in style.

Tucked in a close duel with Elliott Forbes-Robinson for the Can-Am Series championship going into Sunday's concluding event at Riverside International Raceway, Ickx won the race and the point title.

Bobby Rahal of Glen Ellyn, Ill., was second and Forbes-Robinson from La Crescenta, Calif., finished third in the race and second in the 10-race Can-Am Series.

In Sunday's co-feature at Riverside, Darrell Waltrip edged NASCAR rival Bobby Allison to win the International Race of Champions.

Ickx's distinguished career took him literally from a motorcycle to a tank — a stint in the Belgian army — to a sleek and sophisticated Formula 1. On two occasions, he finished second for the world championship.

Why did the 34-year-old Ickx decide to retire?
"Because I've had enough," said Ickx. "I've been doing this sort of thing for 19 years now, and I just think it's time to retire."

"It was a great privilege to do what I've done in racing and I hope I can find something in the future that will give me the same pleasure, be as attractive and interesting to me," he continued. "That's one of the things about quitting something, you can't be sure anything else will ever again be quite so satisfying."

Big Ten Looks Like Big Two . . . Again

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The Big Ten looks like the Big Two once again — what else is new? — and Ohio State and Michigan both have No. 1 on their minds.

There's just one little difference...Ohio State has its sights set on a No. 1 national ranking while Michigan is grateful for the last-second heroics of freshman wide receiver Anthony Carter, who wears uniform No. 1.

While Ohio State, tied for No. 4 with Arkansas in The Associated Press ratings, was mauling Michigan State 42-0, 10th-ranked Michigan needed a last-second 45-yard touchdown prayer from John Wangler to Carter to salvage a 27-21 victory over Indiana and remain tied with the Buckeyes for the Big Ten lead. They meet in Ann Arbor, Mich., on Nov. 17.

Art Schlichter threw scoring passes of 53 and 12 yards to Doug Donley and scored on runs of 3 and 6 yards as unbeaten Ohio State piled up more than 500 yards in offense for the third week in a row and handed Michigan State its first shutout in 51 games.

Coach Earle Bruce, whose eight victories in his first year at the helm have surpassed last year's seven under the ousted Woody Hayes, was asked if he thought the Buckeyes should be No. 1 nationally. "I don't know about that," he replied. "We are looking right down the line at Illinois and Iowa."

And then comes Michigan, whose miracle finish sent Indiana's affable Lee Corso into a state of shock. Corso clutched smelling smalts during his post-game interview and refused to let newsmen talk to his players.

The Hoosiers had tied the score with 55 seconds left on Tim Clifford's 3-yard pass to Dave Harangody and Kevin Kellogg's conversion. But Wangler then took the Wolverines 73 yards in five plays. On the last one, he hit Carter down the middle at the 15-yard line and the slender freshman stumbled and weaved his way through the secondary into the end zone.

There were plenty of other minor-miracle finishes, but none quite matched Michigan's. Eric Hipp's 45-yard field broke a tie with 2:46 to go and Charles White added a last-second 5-yard touchdown run as No. 3 Southern Cal shaded stubborn California 24-14. Sixth-ranked Houston got fourth-quarter field goals of 37 and 19 yards from Kenny Hatfield, the latter with 1:12 left, and then blocked a 42-yard attempt by Arkansas' Ish Ordonez on the final play to nip the Razorbacks 13-10. Arkansas had been tied for No. 4 with Ohio State.

Wake Forest, ranked No. 18, used three second-half touchdowns by James McDougald to erase a 38-20 deficit and turn back No. 13 Auburn 42-38. Fourteenth-ranked Notre Dame waited until only 42 seconds remained to edge South Carolina 18-17 on Rusty Lisch's 14-yard pass to Dean Maszatk plus a 2-point conversion toss to Pete Holohan.

No. 15 North Carolina blew a 21-10 halftime lead and needed Jeff Hayes' 47-yard field goal with 13 seconds left to salvage a 24-24 tie with East Carolina. And Mark Herrmann lifted No. 16 Purdue past Northwestern 20-16 with a 17-yard pass to Mike Harris in the final period. Herrmann threw for 228 yards and became the Big Ten's career passing leader with 5,786 ... and he still has another year to go.

Meanwhile, top-rated Alabama trounced Virginia Tech 31-7, runnerup Nebraska whipped Colorado 38-10, seventh-ranked Oklahoma trimmed Iowa State 38-9, No. 8 Florida State downed Louisiana State 24-19 and No. 9 Texas overpowered Southern Methodist 30-9.

Elsewhere in the Second Ten, No. 11 Brigham Young swamped New Mexico 59-7, No. 12 Pitt tripped previously unbeaten

No. 17 Navy 24-7 and No. 20 Washington crushed UCLA 34-14. Tennessee, the No. 19, was idle.

Speaking of prevent defenses, Notre Dame's Lisch, who took the Irish on an 80-yard game-winning drive, said South Carolina was "in a three-man rush, which gives you 20 yards a crack, and that's not too shabby. I wonder why anyone goes to a three-man rush. The best pass defense is rushing the passer."

Quarterback Steadman Shealy scored on runs of 14 and 6 yards as Alabama presented Bear Bryant with his 200th coaching victory — 291st overall — since he returned to Tuscaloosa in 1958. "We didn't have that much intensity, but we did have enough pride," Bryant said. "We weren't all that fired up. I didn't expect us to be. You can't be every week."

Jarvis Redwine rushed for 205 yards and three touchdowns as Nebraska drubbed Colorado and Oklahoma's Billy Sims exploded for 202 and four TDs in the Sooners' rout of Iowa State. Jimmy Jordan passed for 312 yards and three touchdowns as Florida State downed LSU and Texas got its weekly three field goals or so from John Goodson in beating SMU.

Marc Wilson passed for 366 yards and four scores to lead BYU over New Mexico and freshman Dan Marino came off the bench to direct three second-half scoring drives as Pitt turned back Navy.

Washington gave Tom Flick his first starting assignment of the season and he responded with a pair of 16-yard scoring passes as the Huskies broke a two-game skid by thrashing UCLA.

The major conference races look like this:

Big Eight — Nebraska and Oklahoma tied at 4-0.
Big Ten — Ohio State State and Michigan tied at 4-0.
Pacific-10 — Southern Cal at 3-0-1, Washington and Arizona State at 3-1.

Southeastern — Georgia at 4-0, Alabama 3-0, Mississippi State 2-0.

Southwest — Houston 4-0, Baylor 4-1, Arkansas 3-1, Texas 2-1.

In the Atlantic Coast Conference, North Carolina State is 4-1 to Wake Forest's 2-1 and North Carolina's 1-1. BYU leads the Western Athletic Conference at 4-0 while Utah and Colorado State are 3-1.

Saturday afternoon, as the crowds drifted away from Kenan Stadium in Chapel Hill, one fellow came up to me and offered the following: "Anybody who wants to cancel the series between these two schools has got to be crazy. This was one of the best football games I've ever seen."

We have to agree with that statement. Despite the heartbreak of the East Carolina football team at not coming away with a win, it was still an accomplishment for the Pirates.

Most of the Pirate faithful who helped make up the crowd of just under 50,000, went away with the feeling that their team had won the game, despite the 24-24 score that showed on the scoreboard. Carolina's decision to go for the tie rather than to have gone down fighting angered some Carolina fans, and reportedly didn't sit too well with the team either.

At any rate, it must have snapped one of the longest "untied" strings in the country. It's been over 13 years since the Pirates were last involved in a tie game. That came in 1966, when the Pirates and William & Mary played to a 7-7 deadlock in the opening game of the season. Since then, 142 games have been played without a tie.

The contest was a typical Carolina-East Carolina struggle that saw the game go right to the wire. In all but two games of the series, it has been close. While the Tar Heels started out as if they would blow the Pirates off the field, for the second straight game, they were unable to move the ball in the second half, and it nearly cost them. Whether they will be able to hold onto their 15th place ranking on the AP poll will be seen tomorrow.

Pat Dye may have summed up the feelings of a lot of people when he said, standing in front of the locker room, hoarse and emotional. "I know one thing, we may not have won the game today, but we won the hearts of 40,000 or however many people were here today, and the millions who'll read about it afterwards."

It's unfortunate that the season has to be regarded in terms of won and lost. This was the first, an may be the last, time that the Pirates have faced all four of the "Big Four" teams. They didn't win any of the games.

But consider this. Aside from the Duke game, the Pirates played nose-to-nose right down to the wire with three teams that are or have been ranked, and were in the game all the way. One play in any of those games could have resulted in three ECU wins.

East Carolina, despite being 0-3-1 against the ACC, proved itself the equal of any of them.

And we'll cast our early and unofficial vote for Coach of the Year in the country. It's got to go to Wake Forest's John Mackovic.

His turnaround of the Deacons would make giving it to anyone else a mockery.

With three games still to play, the Deacons are 7-1 and have Duke, Clemson and South Carolina upcoming. It is possible that they could win all three. They will certainly be favored in one, and maybe even two or all three, depending on what happens over the next three weeks.

With their win over Auburn, they have established themselves as a solid bowl team, needing only another win or two to insure themselves of a major bowl bid.

Team In Tourney

LUMBERTON — The Greenville Lopez Karate team took six places, including two firsts, in the Lumberton Pro-Am Karate Tournament Saturday.

Eleven-year-old Robin Cates took both first and second in the Pewee Division, while teammate Mitch Johnson took second. Cates has a brown belt while Johnson has a green belt. Also placing in the pewee division was nine-year-old Clint Barber, who finished fourth. Barber has a yellow belt.

Instructor Tony Lopez took a first and third place while Don Brown captured a fourth place.

The club's next match is November 10 in Goldsboro at the fourth annual Carolina Karate Championships.

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Nobody pulled out that old sports chestnut, "A tie is like kissing your sister," after Saturday's 24-24 football impasse between East Carolina and North Carolina, but what they did say reflected the same sentiments.

Pirate Coach Pat Dye tried to view it as a character-building experience.

"Our players are heartbroken," he said. "The character that comes out of playing football and other things that you learn come from this, but it's mighty disappointing."

"To me, it's like a loss," said Anthony Collins, who rushed for 91 yards. Added teammate Vern Davenport, whose touchdown catch in the fourth quarter gave the Pirates a 24-21 lead, the only time they were ahead in the game: "It's just like we lost."

The 15th-ranked Tar Heels were equally dissatisfied. "A tie is close to a loss for us," said Steve Streater. "It's a little bit better than losing, but it's leaning toward the side of a loss."

In the first half, North Carolina, now 3-3-1, built a solid 21-10 lead as quarterback Matt Kupec threw touchdown passes of 8, 46 and 18 yards.

Kupec finished the game with 13 passes for the season and 28 in his career, both Tar Heel records. That moved him past one-time Wake Forest standout Norm Sneed to third in Atlantic Coast Conference career stand-

East Carolina, now 5-1-1, closed to within 21-17 when Ted Sutton followed blocks by Sam Harrell and Anthony Collins into the end zone from 21 yards out midway through the third quarter. Then East Carolina quarterback Leander Green's first touchdown pass of the season gave the Pirates their 24-21 lead. With 13 seconds remaining, kicker Jeff Hayes saved it for the Tar Heels with a 47-yard field goal.

KINSTON — Bethel Christian scored in both halves to defeat Greenville Christian, 2-1, in a soccer match this past Friday.

Richard Power scored both Bethel goals in the win. Greenville Christian is now 1-7. The Knights play their final match of the season Friday in Greenville against Friendship Christian.

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦J965 ♥A95 ♦A82 ♠A103

What is your opening bid?
A.—You have just too much to pass, for despite the fact that you should deduct one point for your flat distribution, your three aces, which are undervalued in the point-count method, are adequate compensation. Since your four-card spade suit is not bid-dable, open with a "convenient" one club bid.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦AK8 ♥A854 ♦AJ6 ♠A92

What is your opening bid?
A.—You are much too strong to open one no trump, but a shade light for two no trump. In order to give partner the maximum amount of room to respond, we recommend a "convenient" one club opening. If partner responds one heart, we have a sound raise to four hearts, while over any other response, our intention is to leap to three no trump to show our balanced powerhouse.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦3 ♥A652 ♦KQ10542 ♠94

Partner opens the bidding with one no trump. What do you respond?

A.—Slam is possible if opener has the magic hand, but it will be very difficult to determine if that is the case. As a practical matter we would be content with game, and would wheel out the Stayman Convention in an effort to locate the best game. If partner shows a four-card heart suit, game in hearts should be preferable to three no trump because of our unbalanced distribution.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦K1054 ♥83 ♦AK952 ♠K8

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 2 ♦ Pass
3 ♦ Pass 4 ♦ Pass
5 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Partner's "high" reverse has shown a hand of 17-19 points, so small slam is certain. It's simply a matter of determining whether or not you have the values for a grand slam. Given our druthers, we would opt for seven spades, but a better approach is to cue-bid six clubs to show our king. If partner signs off in six spades over this encouragement, we would retire reluctantly. But if he makes any other move, we would leap to seven.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

1 ♥ Pass Pass Dble.
Pass 1 ♦ Pass 2 ♦ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—You were quite correct to bid only one spade over partner's takeout double, because partner did not promise that much for his fourth-hand action. However, partner's raise to two spades has confirmed that he has the equivalent of a full opening bid. In view of the placement of your heart honors, the singleton club and your fifth spade, it would be pusillanimous indeed to bid less than four spades.

Hunt Man Who Entered Home

Greenville Police today are hunting for a man who entered a Forbes Street home early Sunday morning and woke a sleeping woman by placing his hand on her leg.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Ann Willie Andreus of 1110 Forbes St. told investigators she was awakened about 4:10 a.m. by a man in her bedroom.

Officers said another occupant of the dwelling, George Davenport chased the intruder from the residence with a .30-30 caliber rifle, but was unable to stop the fleeing man.

Concord Hotel Fire Confined

CONCORD, N.C. (AP) — Two policemen evacuated between 60 and 65 elderly persons from the Concord Hotel Sunday night after they spotted smoke coming from a fourth floor window.

Police said most residents had returned to the hotel by 9 p.m., three hours after they left. Authorities are investigating the cause of the blaze.

No injuries were reported.

1 ♦ Pass 2 ♦ Pass
3 ♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Partner's bid of three diamonds asks you to evaluate your diamond holding for game purposes. You have the worst possible holding, so it would seem that you should sign off with three spades—your 4-3-3-3 distribution is also a drawback. However, your hand could hardly be better for a single raise—you have two aces and the queen of partner's trump suit. Therefore, we would bid four spades.

Q.7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦K6 ♥KJ92 ♦K93 ♠AJ82

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 2 NT Pass
4 NT Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—North's raise to four no trump is not ace-asking. It is a quantitative raise in no trump, requesting you to bid a slam in no trump if you are at the top of the range for your response. With 15 HCP and potentially useful intermediates, you could hardly have more, so bid six no trump with alacrity.

Q.8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦1032 ♥KQJ52 ♦QJ9 ♠J3

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
1 ♦ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—Your hand merits another bid, and only two possibilities are worth considering: two hearts, to stress the quality of your suit, or one no trump. Our preference is for the latter. Since your hand is balanced, one no trump is a more descriptive rebid. It also serves to highlight your values in diamonds. Two hearts would suggest a more unbalanced hand with a six-card heart suit.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, OCT. 30, 1979

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Except for the favor and support of an influential man, you do not have any good possibilities of achieving much of importance today. Your judgment in dealing with other persons is not good. Listen closely to what experts advise and follow their suggestions.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You feel limited and that you cannot accomplish much, but by obeying all rules and regulations you carry on nicely. Try to please.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't waste time with friends today since you have much to do with associates in business. Don't be forceful in getting what you want.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Use diplomacy in dealing with powerful individuals and handle credit matters wisely. Attend a worthwhile social affair this evening.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Not a good day or evening to get into new projects, make drastic changes, so pursue regular activities. Use good sense.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Come to a better understanding with a co-worker and relieve tensions thereby. Keep an open mind where a close tie is concerned.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A clever associate stops you from making a big error, so be glad for it. Take time to get the information you need and get it easily.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Consult with a money expert so that you can better your financial position. Improve conditions at home or place of business.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have good judgment and can also help others, but avoid those who could give you trouble of some kind. Dress in style.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) The situation at home could be difficult, so get advice from one you trust. Talk little and you get the information you need.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Look to a clever friend for the assistance you need to solve a problem. Go out socially and add to prestige.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study how to handle problems with the aid of an expert. Plan how to make needed repairs to your property. Avoid a gossip.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Listening to suggestions to one with varied experience is wise. Plan that trip for both personal and business reasons. Be economical.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will understand problems that plague mankind and know how to alleviate conditions. Teach to play an instrument of some kind to relieve tensions.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Entry Qualifies For Quarter Horse Event

1979 WORLD CHAMPIONSHIP QUARTER HORSE SHOW ... Macs Limit will be competing for world champion in November.

Fenner, Allen & Sons of Winterville has qualified their American Quarter Horse, Macs Limit, for the 1979 World Championship Quarter Horse Show to be held in Oklahoma City, November 13-18.

Macs Limit is competing with some 1,700 American Quarter Horses that are expected to qualify for this prestigious show to be held at the Jim Nirk State Fair Arena.

The Show is being sponsored by Copenhagen and Skoal moist smokeless tobaccos. Prize money of $1,000 has been added to each of the 50 classes.

Fenner, Allen & Sons will enter Macs Limit in the Junior Western Pleasure event seeking the World Championship. There will be a total of 50 events, and

No Charges To Scholars

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — The director of the state Science and Math High School says North Carolina students will not be charged for tuition, rooms or meals when the school opens next year.

Charles Eilber said the school's board of trustees decided last month cost should not prevent a student from attending the school created by last year's General Assembly.

The original proposal for the school, the idea of Gov. James B. Hunt Jr., called for students to pay room and board while the state would pay tuition.

The school will provide special programs in science and math for gifted students. It will also provide workshops for high school teachers from across the state.

Eilber said all students will live at the school when it opens next fall in Durham.

Out-of-state students, who will be required to pay tuition, room and board, will not be accepted for two years. Their fee has not been set.

The school will have space for 150 juniors next September. A year later, another 150 juniors will be added to the school and its enrollment will be gradually increased to between 750 and 900 students, Eilber said.

Spending More, Savings Shrink

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolinians, like consumers across the nation, are spending more and saving less, attempting to use debt as a way to beat inflation.

"A lot more people are using debt than formerly," said Maurice W. Lee, a professor at the School of Business Administration at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. "They feel its the only way to beat inflation."

"This pulls down the savings rate, but in my view, consumers are monitoring themselves well."

Net savings in North Carolina for August, the latest month for which figures were available, were $21.3 million, down from $53.2 million in August 1978.

David W. Doerner, an economics officer at North Carolina National Bank in Charlotte, said there are two reasons for the decline.

"Inflation is an obvious factor," he said. "When prices go up, people don't have as much money to save. And then, too, they've learned that the interest rate on their savings doesn't match the rate of inflation. People are increasingly taking money from savings and putting it in higher-yield money-market funds."

Another factor is that the baby boom has come of age. This generation is spending and borrowing money for houses, cars and furniture, which affects overall savings, Doerner said.

Lee feels the figures are no cause for alarm. Because of inflation, goods purchased today will increase in value, he said, while the debt remains constant. Interest payments for debts can be deducted from taxes and dollars borrowed now will be more valuable because buying power will drop.

14 World Champions will be chosen during these performances.

Horses must earn a predetermined number of points by competing at an AQHA show held in 1979 to qualify for this invitational show. Macs Limit qualified at The All-American Quarter Horse Congress recently earning a total of 51 points. Competing against 200 or more horses in his class, Macs Limit placed in the top 20.

For the American Quarter Horse owner, winning a World Championship, the "Oscar," is considered the highlight of the show season.

Total prize money is estimated to be in excess of $160,000. Presently, there are 1,100 horses expected to participate in this event.

Added attractions at the Show will be a Quarter Horse consignment sale, western barbecue and dance, Quarter Horse farm tours and trade show. Retailers and manufacturers from all facets of the horse industry will be present.

Need Volunteer Woodcutters

Volunteers taking part in the wood cutting for the needy being sponsored by "War on Winter" Saturday and also Saturday, Nov. 10 are asked to meet at the Pitt-Greenville Airport Ground Station at 8:30 a.m.

"Bring yourself, any wood cutting equipment you can and pickup trucks if you can," Wood-cutting project co-chairman David Goehring said. He said participants need not bring lunches, as lunches and snacks will be provided by local businesses.

"We want to get right to work those mornings," Co-chairman Jesse Harris said, "so we're going to gather at the site and do just that."

Rural Crime Is Growing; Takes Diversified Forms

By LEE MITGANG
AP Urban Affairs Writer

Indiana farmers used to worry about kids cherry-bombing their mailboxes. Now those same kids are often high on drugs or booze, and farmers are locking their doors against thieves and vandals.

Cattle-rustling in New Mexico jumped 300 percent in the past year.

Fruit by the truckload is routinely ripped off in Florida.

From the cornfields of Ohio to the coalfields of West Virginia to the cow country of the Southwest, an almost fivefold increase in crime in the past two decades is threatening the easygoing, secure lifestyle of rural America.

Annual FBI statistics show that since 1960, crime in rural America is increasing more rapidly than in urban areas.

In 1960, the rural crime rate was 423 incidents per 100,000 population. In 1977, the latest year for which figures are available, the rate stood nearly five times higher at 2,012 per 100,000 population. During the same period, crime in metropolitan areas rose about four times higher.

Put another way, in 1960 the odds of someone in a rural area being a crime victim were about one in 236. By 1977, the odds were one in 49.

Professor Howard Phillips of

Ohio State University says the FBI figures show that rural crime is now roughly equal to urban rates reached in 1967.

"The question I have," says Phillips, "is do you have to catch up to the problems of urban centers before Washington and others will pay attention?"

Information on the nature and extent of the problem is sketchy, but researchers generally agree rural crime has certain characteristics:

—Property crime is the leading problem, especially vandalism and theft. Phillips estimates that in rural Ohio, vandalism accounts for as much as 50 percent of crime. Purdue University studies of two Indiana counties found vandalism accounted for 23 percent of crime.

In Hampshire County, W.Va., farm equipment theft is the most prevalent crime, according to researchers Thomas Bean and Layle Lawrence, and a local hunter there was recently caught shooting up a farmer's house.

This summer, someone took a four-wheel drive vehicle and ripped through cornfields on the outskirts of Toledo, Ohio.

Around the country, tractors, combines and other expensive farm machines are easy prey for thieves, because many rural Americans can't get used to the idea of locking things and removing keys.

—Rural crime is generally not as violent as urban crime, but the murder rate in rural areas is only slightly less than in cities.

—Rural criminals are almost always young males. They usually commit their crimes in their home county, although not in the same town.

"One thing's for sure. It's not people from metropolitan areas running out and victimizing rural areas," says Purdue researcher Joseph Donnermeyer.

Several reasons are offered for the rise in rural crime. A leading cause cited is the lack of law enforcement personnel in rural areas.

A second factor is the wealth in many country towns: there's plenty worth stealing and not much protecting it. Rural America is much more affluent these days.

In Montmorenci, Ind., Thunderbirds are parked in front of $100,000 homes. As often as not, the keys are left in the cars, and the front doors of the houses are unlocked.

Inside are stereos, color TVs and microwave ovens.

New highways and new industry have helped open the way for crime in rural America. Strange cars cruise through, strangers move in.

In many towns, city people buy country homes. The distinction between country and suburb is gradually blurring.

Phillips notes that the past decade witnessed the first increase in rural population in years. Rural communities are losing their first line of defense: knowing your neighbor, knowing who belongs.

"What you have is homogeneous communities becoming more heterogeneous. People don't know each other," he says.

Life for rural teen-agers has also changed. In many states, tight money has forced small high schools to consolidate into sprawling county schools just as crowded as their city cousins.

Donnermeyer says peer pressure and lack of adult attention in these county schools often lead to drug use, drinking and sometimes crime.

Ironically, according to sociologists, rural America finds itself facing the same basic problem faced by crime-ridden city neighborhoods: the ripping of the social fabric, of knowing and caring about neighbors.

Many, including the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration and the National Sheriffs Association, feel the answer is to restore the strength of country neighborhoods, to make the neighbors care again.

Since 1972, the sheriffs' group has received an annual $250,000 grant from LEAA to operate a National Neighborhood Watch Program. The program, initially geared toward the suburbs, is shifting its emphasis toward rural crime.

Director Ben Gorda says the program teaches people to fight crime with common-sense precautions like locking doors and vehicles and installing anti-burglary devices.

It also encourages people to keep an eye on strange cars driving along rural roads, and note license plates if they appear suspicious.

But beyond such programs, many who have studied rural crime complain the problem has gotten meager attention from government.

"There is a myth about rural areas being relatively crime-free, and that's not true," says Donnermeyer. "I don't think the government recognizes the problem yet."

Superior Court Report

Judge Henry L. Stevens, III disposed of the following cases during the September 10 session of Pitt County Superior Court.

Mary Esther Ross, Route 1, Greenville, accessory before the fact of murder, 20 years jail.

Electrocuted In Antenna Mishap

KING, N.C. (AP) — Two teenage brothers and another man were electrocuted Saturday night when the citizens-band antenna they were taking down tangled with a high-voltage electrical wire.

The Stokes County Sheriff's department identified the brothers as Randy Lee Taylor, 15, and Ricky Gray Taylor, 17, both of Tobaccoville. The third man was identified as Jerry Lewis, 32, of King.

Authorities said the accident occurred when the Taylor brothers tried to help Lewis take the antenna down from a pole at a trailer park. Police said the three were holding the antenna when it tangled with an electrical wire overhead.

A Duke Power spokesman said the line carries 7,200 volts.

HAD NO RESPONSE
UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Special Committee against apartheid has disclosed it asked 13 countries to end their exchanges of military, naval or air attaches with South Africa, and not one had reacted.
