Administration Stands By Oil Import Forecast

By EILEEN ALT POWELL

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is sticking by predictions it will meet its target for reduced oil imports this year despite a large increase in U.S. purchases of foreign oil in September.

Trade figures released Tuesday by the Commerce

Department show the nation imported 260.9 million barrels of crude oil and petroleum products last month, an increase of 6 percent from the previous month.

After subtracting the roughly 7 million barrels of oil products the United States exported, the September figure works out to net imports averaging about 8.46 million barrels per day for the month.

The Carter administration target is 8.2 million barrels per day.

But a White House official, who asked for anonymity, pointed out that the administration target is "an average per day for the entire year." He added that the administration had set its goal knowing "imports were likely to rise in the final months (of 1979) to replenish stocks diminished during the Iran problem."

U.S. oil imports were down sharply early this year when Iranian oil production was cut during the revolution that ousted the shah.

A staff member of the Senate Energy Committee, who asked not to be identified, added that a more critical measure — a figure published weekly by the Department of Energy — shows that imports averaged 8.2 million barrels per day in the four weeks ending Oct. 19.

"And that doesn't take into account exports, which will lower the daily average some," he said.

Meanwhile, the Senate voted Tuesday to reduce the president's power to unilaterally impose quotas and fees on imported oil.

The measure, approved 70-23, would let the House and Senate reject, by simple majority vote, any presidential quota proposal. However, the president could veto their resolution of disapproval, and both houses then would have to muster a two-thirds majority to make their original decision stand.

El Salvador Mob Attacks Embassy

By VICENTE MORALES

Associated Press Writer
SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Salvadoran troops backed by armored cars used tear gas to repel a mob of 300 leftists attacking the American Embassy in the second day of street violence in the capital of El Salvador.

There were reports that the embassy's Marine guard joined in the tear-gas barrages Tuesday. But embassy spokesman Vitas Dambrava denied this, saying, "Our Marines did not respond to the attack."

However, reporters counted 20 helmeted men, apparently Marines, on the roof of the three-story building.

The State Department said two Marines were slightly wounded. There was no report of casualties among the mob or the troops. At least 24 persons were killed and about 100 were wounded the day before in gun battles between leftists demonstrating against the new military-civilian junta and security forces.

The embassy and its grounds occupy an entire block surrounded by a high wall and metal fences. The leftists chanted "We will take the embassy!" and distributed leaflets saying "Down with imperialism" and "We want to live in peace" as they marched on the compound. The troops and armored cars responded immediately.

Witnesses said they heard four shots fired during the 15-minute confrontation, and Dambrava said there was some gunshot damage to the embassy. Some of the leftists tried to climb the wall but were driven off, and a gasoline bomb was thrown into an embassy garden but caused no damage, officials said.

Afterward, the troops and armored cars surrounded the compound to guard against other leftists staging an anti-government march on a street nearby.

In Washington, U.S. officials said the Carter Administration was prepared to offer "significant" assistance including tear gas and other non-lethal weapons to the two-week-old junta to help it overcome extremist violence. The officials said the aid was being offered even though the junta had not asked for it.

The two colonels who head the junta ousted El Salvador's military president, Gen. Carlos Humberto Romero, in a bloodless coup on Oct. 15. Moderate political groups gave them their support after they added three civilians to the junta and promised democratic reforms, but leftists are demanding an end to all military rule and a Marxist government.

Rezoning Is Given Okay

The Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission has recommended to the City Council that a request for rezoning a tract at the southeast corner of NC 43 and Red Banks Road be approved.

The planning board, meeting in a call session Tuesday afternoon, voted to recommend approval of the request by Jay M. and Cynthia S. Collier to rezone approximately 20,800 square feet from a Medical Arts designation to Office and Institutional.

It was pointed out that Collier plans to add on to an existing structure on NC 43 and the usage would not be conducive to Medical Arts designation. Three of the four corners of the intersection are zoned for Office and Institutional usage.

Residential development is located to the north of the Collier tract, church and apartment development to the east, medical offices to the south, and undeveloped land zoned for Office and Institutional use to the west.

Bobby Roberson, the city's planning director, reported that the planning staff recommended the rezoning approval.

ENERGY DILEMMAS

In these days of energy conservation awareness, I'm a little annoyed at getting conflicting reports about how to conserve energy. A recent newspaper article about energy economics stated that turning down the thermostat at night saves nine to 15 percent on the fuel bill. But another source told me that I would be wasting energy doing this because the house has to heat back up in the morning. The article also stated that one should heat only the rooms that are in use. An electrician informed me that, by closing off the rooms not in use, I would waste energy because the heat would be drawn from the rest of the house.

Reese Helms, Energy Conservation Manager at Greenville Utilities, said it is difficult to make broad generalizations about energy conservation, especially without knowing the type of heating or cooling system used. Each system has its own specific guidelines, he said. "For all types of systems except heat pumps, you can save by night setback. With a heat pump system, you should set it at the lowest comfortable setting and leave it there. People with electric resistance furnaces, gas or oil furnaces, can set their thermostats between 68 and 55 for eight hours and save 12 percent. The length of time the thermostat is turned back and how far back it is turned will, of course, determine the savings.

In answer to the question about closing off rooms not in use, Helms said normally it is recommended that no more than 20 percent of the supply registers be closed for a central forced air system. This applies to all systems — ones with large supply return registers for entire areas and ones with a separate return register for each room. The separate return register for each room will afford a greater flexibility for closing off areas not in use, however.

"You need to know what system you're using, the characteristics and requirements of that systems," Helms said. He said it is important to find out everything about a particular heating system from the dealer or service personnel for the system. With this information, the GUC Energy Conservation Department will be able to offer help to individual customers, he said.

Helena Payton Dies In Coma

Helena Payton, the Greenville native stabbed in a dormitory restroom at St. Augustine College in Raleigh Sept. 28, died yesterday morning at 9:07 in Wake Medical Center, Raleigh.

Miss Payton, 23 had been maintained by a life-support system for more than a month, her doctors said, and had been unconscious and in critical condition in the hospital's intensive care since the day of the stabbing. Dr. Jerry A. Stirman, her attending physician, said she had not been taken off the life-support system before she died. He had told the Wake District Attorney J. Randolph Riley last week that she had suffered brain death, though heart and lungs continued to function with the assistance of the machines.

Collision, Death Ended High Speed City Chase

One person was killed and another critically injured in a collision that ended a high speed chase through Greenville, early this morning.

Chief Glenn Cannon said the driver of the vehicle, Robert Gregory Jones, 19 of Route 1, Vanceboro, was admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries he received in the crash, which killed Nathan Wayne Coward, 19 of Route 1, Vanceboro, a passenger in the auto.

Cannon said the chase began after the car driven by Jones allegedly ran a stop light at the intersection of Fourth and Cotanche Streets about 1:25 a.m., and almost collided with a Police Department patrol car.

The police car turned around and followed the Jones' car South on Cotanche Street and West on Fifth Street, where the fleeing vehicle failed to stop for red lights at the intersection of Fifth and Evans and Fifth and Washington Streets.

The Jones car then turned North on Greene Street, and, traveling between 70 and 80 miles per hour, failed to stop for stop lights at the intersection of Greene and Fourth and Greene and Third Streets.

As the fleeing vehicle crossed the Tar River bridge, Cannon said, the car struck the curb at the south end of the bridge, then crossed the roadway and collided with the bridge railing on the West side of the bridge. Continuing along Greene Street at speeds of more than 100 miles per hour, the Jones car failed to stop for stop lights at the Mumford Road intersection and at the Belvoir Highway intersection, outside the city limits.

Highway Patrolman A. G. Wright, who investigated the crash, said the Jones car went out of control after passing the Belvoir Highway intersection, traveling 375 feet before hitting a culvert. After colliding with the culvert, the car was airborne for about 90 feet, then traveled 491 feet before coming to rest upside down.

Trooper Wright said that Coward was thrown from the car as it travelled out of control, while Jones was pinned in the wreckage of the vehicle for about 15 minutes.

Need Compromise In School Merger

By REBECCA BUFFALO

Reflector Staff Writer
"Merger is much like a modern marriage," said Dr. William O. Fields, superintendent of the Wilson County School System. "Neither party wants to be absorbed. There's a lot of compromise involved."

Dr. Fields, the guest speaker for the Tuesday meeting of the Greenville City-Pitt County schools merger study committee, told committee members and interested citizens that he was not at the meeting to "attempt to give the pros and cons of merger, only to share experiences."

Also on hand for the meeting was Milton Adams, chairman of the Wilson County School Board of Education. Both men fielded questions following a review of how the Wilson County, Wilson City and Elm City school systems merged, given by Dr. Fields.

Dr. Fields noted that many school system mergers have been held in the past ten to 12 years. The Wilson County-City-Elm City merger formally took place July 1, 1976, but not before extensive planning was completed.

Dr. Fields pointed out that he had been employed by the North Carolina State Department prior to his present position, and noted that he had nothing to do with the basic mechanics of the merger.

"In the late 60's, merger talk began in the county," noted Fields, who said that the question had been voted down beforehand twice by area residents. "Impetus was given by the Wilson County Board of Commissioners. They gave us encouragement, for it was difficult for them to fund capital outlay requests for three boards."

"They (board of commissioners) put sort of a moratorium on capital outlay projects until the boards talked about the possibility of merger," continued Fields. "That got the attention of the three boards, and some talks were held."

Fields stated that there were three ways to conduct a merger: by a vote of the people; by mutual agreements of the school boards involved and the board of commissioners; and by enabling legislation by the General Assembly, the route taken by the Wilson County-City-Elm City boards.

The enabling legislation for the city-county-Elm City merger was enacted in 1974, during the Assembly's second session. The legislation set up the constitution and make-up of the new school system.

From the passage of the enabling act to the July 1, 1976 merger date, all policies for the school systems were carried out by an interim board, comprised of five members from the Wilson City board, three from the county board and two from the Elm City group. Extended lead time was given for the merger in order to make plans for three new high

New Rules On Temperatures

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Changes in the president's emergency temperature regulations for certain public buildings may be in the works and could come as soon as two weeks, according to a U.S. Energy Department spokesman.

Maximum thermostat settings may be increased from 65 to 68 degrees.

The department is already receiving complaints about the required 65 degree thermostat setting on its special emergency temperature restriction hot line in Washington from sections of the country where the weather is already very cold.

"The preponderance of evidence is that people in industries are objecting to the 65-degree limit," department spokesman Odom Fanning said.

"Also, the trigger for the program was a severe oil shortage, and the reservoirs have been built up. So we think there is a different set of ground rules that justifies a consideration of modifying the program."

DOE is considering raising the thermostat limit from 65 to 68 degrees.

Fanning said objections to the regulations are coming from several different areas, including individual employers complaining of low tolerance for cold, trade associations anticipating productivity problems and telephone companies apprehensive about their operators sitting for long hours while constantly using metal equipment.

When the complaints started rolling in, the department contacted trade associations, universities and research institutes to find out how low temperatures affect people. The information was then added to the comments from the hot line.

"I expect that we could have a decision within a couple of weeks," Fanning said.

Jack-O'-Lantern

Ghosts, black cats, and witches on broomsticks are some of the familiar symbols of Halloween. But perhaps the best known Halloween tradition is the jack-o'-lantern, a hollowed out pumpkin with eyes, a nose and a mouth, glowing in the night. The tradition of jack-o'-lanterns can be traced to an Irish legend and a man named Jack. In the legend, Jack was too stingy with his money to get into heaven when he died. Because he had played jokes on the devil, he couldn't get into hell, either. Instead, he was doomed to wander the earth, carrying a lantern, until Judgment Day.

Local Woman Performs In Musical Revue

Jeannette Gardner, originally of Pitt County, recently performed in two benefit performances of "Randy and Company" in Olney, Ill.

The two-hour Broadway musical revue starred, was written by, directed by and choreographed by Ms. Gardner's husband, Randy Hugill. It was performed first in his hometown, Olney, to raise funds for a community theater through the Olney Arts Council. Performing in "Randy and Company" besides Ms. Gardner and Hugill, are Michael Crouch, Frank Root, and Colleen Zenk. All five are New York professionals with extensive experience on Broadway, concert and nightclub stages, as well as in television and film. Ms. Gardner said. She said "Randy and Company" gives the audience "an inside look at the trials and triumphs of show business life through the music and dance of Broadway shows from the turn of the century to today. One rousing medley includes numbers displaying polka, Charleston, soft shoe, jazz and tap."

Mrs. Kay Hugill, Randy's mother, joined Randy and cast in a soft-shoe number written and included in her honor and titled, "She Taught Me Everything I Know."

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Gardner of Rt. 2, Ayden, Ms. Gardner's parents, attended the performances. Following Saturday night's show, the cast and their families were honored at a buffet given at the Richland County Country Club by the Olney Arts Council. Both shows were sold out with standing room only, the Gardners said.

PERFORMANCES OF... "Randy and Company" were held last week in Olney, Ill. Jeannette Gardner,

He's Baby-Faced, She's Infantile

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am four and a half years older than my husband. He's small in stature and has a baby face that makes him look years younger than he is. I, on the other hand, look my age, even though I work very hard at keeping my figure, selecting becoming, non-matronly clothes, and doing everything I can to look youthful.

In spite of all this, my husband hasn't aged a bit since we've been married (22 years), and many people have mistaken me for his mother. Recently, I was asked if our college-age son and my husband were both my sons!

So far, my husband hasn't overheard any of these remarks. We have good communication in other matters, but I haven't been able to bring myself to discuss this with him, or let him know how much it bothers me.

Believe me, I'm doing all I can to look youthful. Now all I need is a sharp, snappy answer ready for people who hurt me in this way. Can you help me? I've noticed that you can really turn a neat phrase, Abby. I need to be prepared the next time something like this happens.

NO SIG, PLEASE

DEAR NO SIG: I don't recommend a "sharp, snappy answer" for those who inadvertently hurt you by speaking their minds. Prepare yourself by adopting a more realistic attitude. Face it, you are married to a baby-faced man who doesn't look his age, and could conceivably be mistaken for your son. Look at it this way: You must have had something very special to have captured a "younger man," so count your blessings and develop a tougher hide. (P.S. DO discuss it with him. When sensitive matters are brought out in the open, they lose their sting.)

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (25 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Poppy Report Given At VFW Auxiliary Meet

A report on Poppy Day was given at the meeting of the VFW Auxiliary held Thursday evening at the Post Home.

Mrs. Carrie West, poppy chairman, said $1,858.35 was raised and the money will be used for disabled veterans and their families. Mrs. West expressed her thanks to persons participating during the sale. The group voted to give 100 poppies to Mental Health for Christmas tree decorations.

The O'Berry Committee, Ver-na Whitehurst, Kathryn Evans and Hattie Manning, recently visited O'Berry Center and gave Halloween favors to the children. Plans were made to attend the O'Berry Christmas parade Dec. 7 and a donation was sent to the chapel fund there.

Margaret Brown, Americanism chairman, announced she would secure Pledge of Allegiance cards and Flag Etiquette booklets to be distributed in Pitt County Schools. She told of the recent flag presentation and program at Eastern Elementary School.

Rosa Lee Williams, Cancer Aid and Research chairman, said a fish fry will be held at the post home Nov. 12 with proceeds going to the Cancer Fund.

President Alice Moseley told of the Second District meeting to be held in Goldsboro Sunday. State President Lou Sigmon will be the department representative.

The next Auxiliary meeting is set for Nov. 8 due to Thanksgiving.

Margaret Hudson, Marjorie Bailey, Mary Lucy Taylor and Jean Wells were meeting hostesses.

Homemaker's Haven

By Addie Gore

Pitt Home Agent

During the weekend, the fish were jumping and the fishermen were there to catch them. Here are tips and pointers to help fishermen and homemakers utilize these sportmen's catches for family meals.

The most important thing to remember is that fish must be kept cold. The colder the temperature, the slower the rate of spoilage.

Preparation Tips

Fish stay fresher when they are handled as little as possible. But you may want to dress (scale, head and gut) or fillet the fish so that they will be ready to put in your freezer as soon as you get home. At many dockside markets dressing and filleting services are available for a small fee.

Dressing isn't necessary for small to medium-sized fish. But for large fish, such as tuna and amberjack, it is recommended that you bleed and dress the fish. Once the fish has been gutted and bled, the body cavity should be packed with ice and the entire fish smothered in ice. It may also be necessary to cut extremely large fish into smaller pieces so that they will fit into your ice chest.

Superchilling

To superchill, you need an insulated ice chest with a lid.

Line the bottom of the ice chest with three to four inches of flaked or crushed ice. It's also a good idea to place a rack or tray in the bottom of the cooler to keep the fish out of any water which may accumulate as the ice melts.

Next, layer the fish in a mixture of rock or table salt and flaked ice. Generally about a half-pound of salt should be used for every five pounds of fish. Salt is readily available from supermarkets or grocery stores. While flaked ice may be more difficult to obtain, it is preferred over crushed and block ice since it has greater surface area for chilling and is less likely to tear the fish. Local seafood processors or fish houses are probably the best sources for flaked ice. If flaked ice is not available, crushed ice is the next best substitute.

When the cooler is filled, top it with a generous layer of ice and securely close the lid and drain plug (if there is one).

Occasionally fish will spoil despite all your efforts to keep them fresh. When this happens there is only one thing to do—throw the fish away.

Your nose is probably the best detector of quality and freshness. Bad fish will smell bad; they will smell "fishy."

At Home

One way to guard against oxidation and freezer burn on both whole and filleted fish is to coat them with a glaze of lemon juice and gelatin. Another method is to freeze the fish in a container of water, such as a wax milk carton. To prepare the glaze: 1. Measure 2 fluid ounces (one-fourth cup) of lemon juice into a pint container. Fill the rest of the container with water. 2. Dissolve one packet of unflavored gelatin in 4 fluid ounces (one-half cup) of the lemon juice-water mixture. 3. Heat the remaining liquid to boiling. 4. Stir the dissolved gelatin mixture into the boiling liquid. 5. Cool the mixture to room temperature.

Once the mixture is at room temperature, dip the fish into the lemon glaze and drain it for several seconds. Wrap the fish in clear plastic, label and date the package and place it in the coldest part of your freezer.

Oil Firms Need Better Image

There is hardly a reader who isn't aware that profits of the oil companies have been soaring this year . . . and few of us are happy about the high profits coupled with the high prices we pay for gas and home heating oil.

Being angry at Big Oil is understandable enough, but large profits or not, we can be certain that forces are at work in the world which are going to cause a never ending spiral of gas and heating oil prices.

The main reason is the total control OPEC nations have over the price of crude oil. Oil supplies are also finite, and oil becomes more expensive as we use up the supplies.

So whether or not profits are made, gasoline will become more expensive, and this natural process makes sense if we as a nation are ever to cut our voracious appetite for gasoline.

What puzzles us is the oil companies attitude over all this newly acquired wealth. Generally the huge profits are announced with the connotation that all that money is deserved, and that is that.

We have to wonder why the oil companies don't recognize themselves for what they are, or should be . . . that is, energy companies.

If they did they would make it clear to the American public that the sky high profits will be invested in research for new energy sources, which hopefully could bring our energy costs down some day.

That is, after all, how U. S. industry is supposed to operate. Profits are invested in development of new products so that further profits can be earned in the future.

If the oil firms want to improve their image, they will use the excess profits to develop solar energy, or other energy sources. They will look a lot better to the public, and may well assure their futures as profitable and free corporations.

Those Simple Errors Caused Turmoil

The Federal Reserve Board has dismissed two errors that exaggerated the nation's money supply as errors which developed in switching to a new reporting form.

Unfortunately the error briefly threw the financial world into a turmoil, particularly in this time of drastic federal actions to curb inflation.

Anybody who has ever balanced a checkbook is aware that errors will happen. When the errors threaten the nation's financial security, however, there should be constant scrutiny to make certain that they don't happen.

Energy Incentive Thrust

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Having rid the state's cluttered lawbooks of just short of 100 tax-collecting anachronisms such as a levy on mule dealers, traveling Gypsy merchants, and those who read bumps on your head (phrenologists), a legislative study commission has now launched further study and revision of North Carolina Revenue Laws.

The major thrust of the study commission work in the 1979 session of the General Assembly was to clear up the numerous outdated laws, and to wipe out many taxes which cost more to collect than they yielded.

That aside, the commission put considerable effort into proposed revision of the intangibles tax, an effort which failed but will be tried again, and in breaks for the elderly, those inheriting property, and a general reduction in the income tax.

The intangibles tax is a local property tax against stocks and bonds, money and other valuables owned by individuals and corporations. It has been widely regarded as a major deterrent to some companies interested in locating in the state, and to many retirees who might otherwise relocate here.

Resistance

But the proposed revision would have called on business firms to increase franchise taxes to make up the local revenue loss, and that scheme ran into opposition. Meanwhile, local government officials resist any loss of the $37 million the tax produces.

But the major, new emphasis in study of the revenue laws has been directed at the role which taxes play in helping to curb dependence on petroleum products for energy.

The commission decided to study possible breaks for those who produce gasahol and those who use it as a means of encouraging this means of increasing the fuel supplies in the state. Probably emerging from talks will be some relief from the nine-cents per gallon tax for the highway fund currently collected on gasahol.

Another tax incentive measure will be considered to encourage development of small water-powered electric plants by communities, industries, or individuals.

The study commission also decided to investigate complaints that in many instances already regressive sales tax is collected twice. A case in point was a complaint from an auto paint salesman who charges the four-cents per dollar tax to a body shop which again collects the sales tax from the customer. This apparently happens in a number of businesses. Another problem frequently reported is the cashier in a variety store or grocery who adds the sales tax to each item as it is entered into the register. Actually, the tax is supposed to be on the total purchase, and when a large order is processed item-by-item, the tax can run up several cents higher.

BILL
NOBLITT

Other items due legislative scrutiny include a proposed increase in the gasoline tax, review of income and inheritance taxes to bring them more nearly in line with federal procedure, and adjustment of taxes to compensate for inflation.

Cross Lines

The committee also expressed concern over the fairness of income tax collections when the individual lives in North Carolina but works in neighboring states, or vice versa. A sharing arrangement is supposed to be in effect, but a number of people have complained they end up paying higher taxes than would normally be the case.

State Senator Jack Childers, D-Davidson County, pointed out that much of the committee's work appeared aimed at cutting taxes; but pressure from state employee organizations and promises from Gov. Jim Hunt regarding salary hikes mean "we are going to be facing a big bill to increase those salaries. We're gonna have one heck of a time making it fit together next June unless we talk about raising money. It's nice to think about cutting taxes . . . but is that realistic?"

The study commission is chaired jointly by State Senator Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston, and State Rep. Dan Illey, D-Lenoir.

Carter Saved By Ted

WASHINGTON — You would think the Carter people would be terribly upset that Teddy Kennedy is getting into the presidential race. Not all of them. One astute Carter supporter told me:

"This is the best thing that could have happened to us."

"How's that?"

"Well, look what was happening before Teddy went to see his mother, and got her permission to run. Carter was sinking in the polls — all the Washington pundits were writing him off, and the cry in the land was 'Anybody But Carter.' We were very upset by all this, but we couldn't do anything about it. We had Raftshooned the President for a year, and it got us nowhere. Money was drying up and many of us were prepared to start working on the Carter presidential library in Plains, Ga. Then Teddy decided he had to save the country and we were off and running."

"But you had Jerry Brown to run against!" I said.

"At the beginning we thought that would be sufficient, but Brown blew it and beating him meant nothing. We're very disappointed in Gov. Brown. We were hoping he would give us more opposition."

"Are you trying to tell me that you Carter people are not worried about Kennedy?"

"Well, you always have to be worried about a Kennedy," he said. "But you must be very pragmatic in politics. Before Teddy, we were faced with a terrible prospect. Carter had to run against himself and you can imagine what that meant. Last time he ran against Washington, and that's how he got elected. The President wanted to do it again, but we explained to him there were some people in the country who thought he was part of the problem. We had no issue until Teddy decided to make his move."

"When you spell it out that way it does make sense."

"We couldn't have planned it better if we had wanted to. We can now go to people who never cared much for the Kennedys and say, 'If you

What Else Is New?

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — It was like a college reunion, convened to celebrate the obvious. But for the Class of 1980, the task is just beginning.

In a sweltering automobile showroom, where Cadillac salesmen used to show their wares, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's brother-in-law was announcing what everyone already knew. He also was announcing that Kennedy would announce the same thing in person next Wednesday at Faneuil Hall in Boston.

Yes, Kennedy is running for president in 1980. So what else is new?

"The Kennedy for President Committee is now officially under way, and we look forward to an active and successful campaign," said Stephen E. Smith.

Kennedy already had said as much, in succinct if inelegant terms. "I'm tired of screwing around with this," the senator from Massachusetts said. "I want to get going."

Presumably, so do the Kennedys, the Kennedy in-laws, and the once, present and future Kennedy campaigners and aides who came to the showroom for Monday's performance.

Incidentally, Smith said there is no symbolism in the fact that Kennedy headquarters used to be a Cadillac agency. "I think this is the only campaign that is paying under $5 a foot for rent," he said.

Announcements of candidacy are a ritual of American politics. Any suspense is coincidental. By the time the candidate declares he is running for president, he is hard at the campaign.

Announcement day is a time to repeat the slogans, rally the troops, whoop it up a bit and try to get the organization ready for business. The grind of a presidential campaign is not nearly so glamorous — and nowhere near as much fun — as shouting for a candidate who has just confirmed that he is one.

So the Kennedy partisans will have another outing in Boston Nov. 7. President Carter will declare himself to be a candidate Dec. 4, and the difficult part of the contest will be under way.

Other Editors Say Ultimate Privacy

(Salisbury Evening Post)

A system without standards and rules is confusion, not a system.

It's too early to reach that conclusion about the lack of state standards for the operation of private schools; but the Clendenin case in Iredell County points in that direction.

Although it hasn't fully developed, the Post story notes that an Iredell couple has been charged with violating the state's compulsory school attendance law. They have been teaching their three elementary-age children at home, apparently using workbooks published by an Illinois Christian academy.

The fundamentalist Christian churches succeeded a few months ago in persuading the General Assembly to eliminate virtually all regulations governing private schools. It eliminated the need for state certification of teachers and state control over the courses and the textbooks. It only requires proof of attendance and that students be given "nationally recognized" tests periodically.

So does the Clendenin do-it-yourself school qualify as a private school under state law?

A representative of the attorney general's office doesn't think so. But, to put it charitably, his reasons for not thinking so sounded more contrived than firm. The Clendenin educational enterprise, he said, lacks "recognition or long-term standing", a description that would fit any number of recently organized Christian schools. The state law does not say a school to be accepted as a school has to be either recognized or of long-standing operation. If there are other criteria in the law, the attorney didn't mention them.

If the Clendenins fight the case, it will be interesting to see if the other Christian schools, so anxious to rid themselves of state standards, will stand behind them in court. After all, the home private school is the ultimate in fundamental private education.

It would be an interesting and a significant test of state lack of law.

To the editor:

It was not with much surprise that I read the story in Friday's newspaper concerning the hysterical incident that occurred in the Florida school last week. The happening should concern every parent with children and folks who have parenthood to look forward to.

The bare facts are very clear — hypnotism, ESP, transcendental meditation, and all aspects of the supernatural are being taught in the nation's schools. To the sad awakening of many, they are to find that these are not fads or popular fun pastimes, but are straight from the kit bag of The Adversary, or as still many people refuse to believe in "The Devil."

America's school could teach the only defense against the Devil's work; i. e., the Bible, but not enough people have "had it happen to them" to the point where they are shaken from apathy.

When the founding fathers of this country proposed the solution of separation of church and state, the problem they were solving was denominational warfare. They were not excluding God from government!

If the anti-Christ can be taught in schools, why can't the true Christ be taught, also.

INSIDE REPORT

Grateful To Joe Kennedy

By ROWLAND EVANS

and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Far from White House anger over young Joe Kennedy's blast at the Carter presidency during the John F. Kennedy Library dedication, Jimmy Carter and his top political advisers were actually thankful.

"Joe made it easier for us," a key presidential political aide told us. "The overkill in that blunderbuss attack was clearly out of place in what everybody wanted to keep as a non-political tribute to John Kennedy. Joe created on-the-spot sympathy for the president." That sympathy made Carter's speech look all the better when it came right after Joe's.

Carter's speech was perhaps the best he has made as president. It was written by chief White House speech writer Rick Hertzberg after several meetings of the inner staff at which Carter laid down two rules of what he wished to say: that he had had a feeling for President Kennedy that approached hero worship; and that Kennedy's own emphasis on the inevitability of "change" should be used to make Carter's point that political challenges faced by Kennedy had completely changed in the intervening 20 years, making Carter's presidency much tougher to handle than Kennedy's.

Connally Snares Findley
One unexpected offshoot of John B. Connally's highly controversial Middle East speech calling for Israel to withdraw from the West Bank and linking an Arab-Israeli settlement to U.S. Mideast oil policy was the conversion of Rep. Paul Findley from anti- to pro-Connally.

Findley personally intervened with Gerald Ford at the 1976 Republican presidential convention to argue against Connally as a possible Ford running mate. The Illinois Republican was regarded as one of Connally's chief congressional enemies.

But after Connally's Mideast speech — which was attacked by pro-Israeli politicians and praised by pro-Arab interests — Findley wrote him a letter calling the speech one of the best ever made on the Mideast.

Findley is the foremost congressional advocate of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) and has long argued that the U.S. should negotiate the West Bank question directly with the PLO (ruled out by the Ford administration's pledge to Israel not to talk with the PLO until it recognizes Israel's sovereignty).

Strength For Today

LAW OF HABIT

The law of habit is inexorable. Once we do a thing, it becomes easier to do it the next time. The psychologist, William James, writing nearly 75 years ago, declared that every act we perform tends to bring about a little change in our nervous system which allows energy to flow a little easier over the nerve course every time the action is repeated.

We all recognize the law of habit as it operates in acquiring a skill. But the law of habit also works in reverse. If we neglect a duty, it is easier to neglect it the next time. Harbor an evil thought today and it will probably put in its appearance again before the day is over and will certainly be on hand tomorrow. Give full rein to an illicit desire and it comes at last to fill the whole of one's horizon and dominate every desire.

Every day we are building good or bad habits. The best way to deal with a bad habit is not to let it get started.

ministrator Jack Sullivan, who won widespread praise running Jimmy Carter's 1976 campaign in Pennsylvania, may not be on board this time.
Although Pennsylvania politicians had expected Sullivan to manage Carter's uphill fight against Sen. Edward M. Kennedy in their state, he has privately suggested he may pursue his own political interest this time. Specifically, Sullivan is thinking of joining the stampede of Democratic candidates trying to replace Republican Sen. Richard Schweiker, who is not seeking re-election.
Whether or not Sullivan actually runs for the Senate, he may pass up a major role in the presidential campaign anyway. An Annapolis classmate of Carter's, he has not enjoyed good relations with the men around the president.

Vaky's Vacancy
The real reason for Assistant Secretary of State Viron Vaky's resignation as top Latin American policy-maker is the constant, probing and powerful intervention into his diplomatic business by the State Department's human rights bureau, headed by Assistant Secretary Pat Derian.
Derian's zealous human rights bureaucrats, working under the top-level Christopher Committee, virtually controlled what Vaky and his policy-makers could say about Latin nations that have been charged by Derian with human rights abuses.
The Christopher Committee is headed by Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher, but Derian and her top aide, Mark Schneider, run it. It got so bad for Vaky that almost every statement he made about such alleged violators of human rights as Brazil, Chile and Uruguay had to be cleared by Derian before he could make it. Unable to assert broader American policy interests in the inflammable Latin American cockpit, Vaky chose resignation.

Finessing Illinois
Although the White House has referred to Illinois as a state that President Carter must win to be renominated, campaign manager Tim Kraft is quietly passing the word that he may skip the preferential primary there next March 18.
This would constitute a finesse by the Carter campaign aimed at neutralizing Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's advantage in the city of Chicago, which accounts for half the state's Democratic primary voters. Carter would not lose any convention delegates by not running in the Illinois preferential primary — strictly a "beauty contest" unrelated to delegate selection.
Assuming that the Chicago Democratic organization will run uncommitted delegates as usual — who will be unopposed — the Carter vs. Kennedy battle would then be limited to contests for delegates downstate. Since Carter strategists feel the president has an edge over Kennedy in the downstate counties, they could then claim a victory of sorts in Illinois.

don't give us money, Teddy will take away your three martini lunch. That's all it usually takes."
"I thought Carter was against the three martini lunch, too."
"He is, but as with most things no one pays any attention to him. If Teddy wants to do away with the lunches people will start taking it seriously."
"I do," I admitted.
"The beauty of it all is that now that Teddy is in the race the media is all excited. When Carter had no opposition it was hard to get him on Page 19. Now when Teddy makes a speech the media expects Carter to answer him. Then they expect Teddy to come back and answer him. If Carter won't respond Rosalynn will. The contest between the two of them has wiped out all the Republican candidates."
"The Republican campaign managers are going up the wall trying to get space for their people. The media are treating the Carter-Kennedy confrontation like the Super Bowl. You can't believe what's it's done for the morale of our people."
"I feel sorry for the Republicans. It looked for a while as if the big dogfight would be in their party. Let me ask you something. Suppose Teddy gets the nomination? Won't that make you feel bad?"
"Not as bad as if Carter got the Democratic nomination and got clobbered by the Republicans. If Teddy beats us at least we can go down with dignity. But without Kennedy, Carter could have been beaten by himself-and that's a terrible way to lose."

Mears Col. . . .
Kennedy has said he expects a long, closely fought campaign.
But so far, the speculation — published and gossiped — is centered on the possibility Kennedy will so far outdistance Carter in the presidential primary elections that the president will be forced to drop from competition.
Kennedy never has suggested he thinks he can score an early season victory over the president. He says he expects Carter will be in the race for the duration.
For that to happen, Carter is going to have to win a good number of presidential primaries and Kennedy is going to have to lose more than his family's politicians ever have before.
The Kennedys are not accustomed to losing elections. John never did, Edward never has and Robert lost only once, in the 1968 Oregon presidential primary.

Ridership Is Down On Railroad That Goes Up

By JOHN NOLAN
Associated Press Writer
CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — The gasoline shortage is making it an uphill climb for the Incline Railway, a line which has hauled spellbound riders up steep Lookout Mountain since 1895.
The railway, advertised as "America's Most Amazing Mile," has suffered sharp ridership losses in recent months. Officials blame the problem on decreased tourist travel.
"People just didn't travel, like they did, this summer," Bob Ronka said. "It's nationwide, not just in Chattanooga."
Ronka is general manager of the Chattanooga Area Regional Transportation Authority, a publicly funded agency which operates the Incline Railway and buses in the city and surrounding areas.

The railway averages 500,000 riders annually and Ronka said he could not recall a year in which it had lost money. He projected that it would at least break even this year.
CARTA figures show the Incline's ridership was down 26.8 percent in June from the same month in 1978. In July it was down 47.5 percent and off 10.8 percent in August. At last count, in September, ridership was lagging about 20 percent.
If the railway does lose money this year, Ronka said, CARTA would try remedies such as reducing fares. Selling it would be a last resort, he said.
"It's too important a part of the whole history of this area," he said in a telephone interview. "It's not something we take lightly."

The railway's tracks run 9-10ths of a mile up the historic mountainside, which straddles the Tennessee-Georgia border at Chattanooga. At the steepest portion near the station at the top, the tracks are inclined more than 72 degrees. Railway officials say that, to their knowledge, this is the country's steepest track.
Two 40-seat, steel-and-glass cars, weighing 7.5 tons each, move up and down on the parallel rails at eight mph, affording passengers a panoramic view of Chattanooga near the top.
Two cables are attached to each car and a pair of 100-horsepower electric motors in the station provide the pulling force.
Arden Blaylock, CARTA assistant general manager who has worked with the railway since 1939, said the operation was much like an elevator's upward and downward motion with a counterweight. As one car goes downhill pulling on its cables, it helps pull the other uphill, he said.
He said no cable had ever broken and there had been no serious accidents in the railway's history.

John T. Crass originated the railway idea and was one of the investors who backed it, Blaylock said.
He, too, attributes the Incline's ridership troubles to the effect of tighter gasoline supplies on tourist travel. Blaylock says traffic has declined on Interstates 24 and 75 into Chattanooga and ridership is down by similar proportions.

Would Fire Disloyal Appointee

By DON McLEOD
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's campaign manager says he hopes the administration will fire any political appointee found to be flirting with the campaign of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

After watching two Carter administration officials defect to the Kennedy camp, Tim Kraft said he thinks loyalty should count in politics.

A White House official who asked not to be named said it would be no surprise if some others now on the administration roster switched to the camp of the president's challenger. But he said, "We have had and will have our share of support and endorsements."

Asked whether he thinks the administration should dismiss likely defectors before they publicly break with the president in favor of Kennedy, Kraft replied:

"As campaign manager, I'm not an official member of the administration. But as a political person who respects loyalty, I hope to hell they do."

Kraft commented in an interview Tuesday after former Iowa Sen. Dick Clark said he is leaving the Carter administration to work for Kennedy and J. William Heckman Jr., resigned as deputy assistant attorney for legislation to join the Kennedy committee. In related, 7th graf.

In related developments Tuesday, the 70,000-member National Treasury Employees Union announced its support of Kennedy and Chicago Mayor Jane Byrne made a formal announcement reaffirming her weekend endorsement of Kennedy.

There was a particular sting to the defections by Clark, who was given a $57,500-a-year job as U.S. coordinator for refugee affairs after being defeated for re-election last year, and by Heckman, a personal friend of Carter campaign lawyer Tim Smith.

In accepting Clark's resignation, Carter noted that he had understood Clark would remain neutral in the 1980 campaign and devote his attention to refugee problems.

However, Clark said in an interview the refugee programs have been overhauled and "it seems as appropriate as any time to make the change."

A Clark spokesman, Bob Miller, said Clark had pledged to remain politically neutral while in the administration, but that he had not promised to remain out of the race indefinitely.

Clark's bolt to Kennedy came one day after formation of a Kennedy campaign committee and announcement that Kennedy would formally announce his candidacy Nov. 7 in Boston.

Mayor Byrne's stand ran counter to a long string of endorsements Carter has been garnering from state and local officials, but the White House and the campaign committee insist it is an isolated case and not a turning tide.

Kraft pointed out that Carter picked up backing from strong majorities of the Democratic mayors and governors at their conventions last summer and that many of them were at a Carter dinner-rally here last week.

Other than clamping down on defectors, Kraft sees no major adjustments to the Kennedy threat.

Anticipates Investments

TOKYO (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt of North Carolina said today that three out of seven Japanese companies contacted during his visit here are making plans to locate in his state. He declined to name them, however.

In an interview with Japan's domestic Kyodo News Service, Hunt said, "We expect announcements in the next two or three months."

He told Kyodo the companies involved range from electrical machinery to seafood processing.

The 42-year-old governor arrived in Tokyo Oct. 23 at the head of a 50-member delegation to promote trade and encourage investment by Japanese firms in North Carolina. He said he has another 11 firms to call on while he is in Japan.

Hunt leaves Thursday for Peking, leading the first U. S. tobacco mission to China since the Communist takeover in 1949. He said he will visit Shanghai to see tobacco manufacturing and cigarette plants.

"We are looking forward to the time when we establish trade with China but we are aware that this may be seven years off," Hunt told the Kyodo interviewer.

Noting that investment in North Carolina had tripled to three billion dollars in 1978, Hunt said: "The greatest potential for encouraging foreign investment in my state lies with Japan."

"Some estimates," he added, "have indicated that the amount of Japanese investment in the United States may increase four to five times in the next 10 years."

Suspects Thief A Baseball Fan

CHICAGO (AP) — Whoever broke into James Sparks' pet shop was either a baseball fan or just very picky. The thief made off only with Coco, a talking macaw who can say, "Go, Go White Sox" and "Merry Christmas."

"I feel it was someone who wanted the bird for himself, not to sell," Sparks said Tuesday.

Sparks said the thief smashed a plate-glass window at the shop Monday night and then broke open the locked cage of the 5-year-old scarlet South American macaw.

"I've had Coco since he was a baby bird and am very fond of him," said Sparks. "He has a vocabulary of about 60 words. I just hope the thief keeps Coco warm and away from drafts."

Oil Crunch Is Trouble For Toyland

BY RUTH YOUNGBLOOD
HONG KONG (UPI) — While visions of spaceships and electronic wonders lull tots to sleep, toymakers in Santa Claus' largest workshop are having nightmares over the oil crisis.

The world's biggest contingent of elves has come up with gadgets to delight the entire family. But a hefty price increase has made manufacturers a little less jolly this year.

William Blaauw, a leading producer and chairman of the Hong Kong Exporters' Association, said the industry has spared no effort or expense to upgrade quality, ensure safety, diversify and invent new ways to have fun.

But manufacturers rely primarily on plastic, a petroleum derivative whose prices have soared. Some types are 100 percent higher than a year ago.

Blaauw expects that trend to continue, "further increasing toy production costs and the tags."

He said higher prices for materials are reflected in 25 to 30 percent increases in retail prices, compared with a year ago.

The other ghost of Christmas present is the ever-increasing cost of freight.

"Freight costs constitute up to 30 percent of their landed prices in some countries," Blaauw said in an interview, "and this is dreadful."

Despite the financial battering, the 32,000 Hong Kong workers in almost 2,000 companies increased their exports during the first seven months this year.

Blaauw predicts year-end global exports of $7 million, topping 1978's $6.7 million.

He attributed his optimism to the industry's rapidly advancing technology, sophistication and creative design.

"Our toy industry has absorbed the universal price increase better than our competitors, Taiwan and Japan," he said.

Hong Kong toys now getting final touches for the Christmas rush include many space age toys such as electro-mechanical robots that walk, talk, shoot, rotate and glow; motorized intergalactic vehicles with missile launchers; and space mobiles equipped with attack craft.

Also, electronic toys, computer games, battery-, radio- and sonic-controlled vehicles, dolls and stuffed animals that do everything but breathe.

The United States accounts for almost half of Hong Kong's toy exports. So manufacturers are particularly anxious to set new trends.

Their products include handheld computer games no larger than a table tennis racket for baseball, basketball, soccer and football.

Visual light shooting games add a whole new realm to target practice. A trigger sets off a stream of light at a spaceship on the floor. The vehicle moves backwards or forwards if the target, a bulb, is hit. The same concept tests marksmanship with an owl that hoots and a lion that moves and roars.

There are life-sized electronic car dashboard consoles featuring steering, ignition key start, engine idling sound and acceleration roar.

An electronic teddy bear should be welcomed by sleepless parents. A device in the toy generates a sound designed to lull babies to sleep almost instantly.

The manufacturer's company manager, Jim Schultheis, said the teddy resulted from work by Dr. William C. Eller, chief of obstetrics at Holy Cross Hospital, Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Theorizing that an infant would be more relaxed upon hearing a familiar sound, Eller made a scientific recording of the sounds the baby hears prior to birth. The sounds were incorporated into a special electronic generating circuit, complete with a volume control.

Schultheis said the toy won't quiet an infant who is hungry or in pain, but is an answer for the usual cranky spells.

His company makes the system for the inventors.

Several firms that originally made plastic toys have turned to metal. New products include stunt cars that explode. When the front bumper hits an obstacle, the vehicle's spring-triggered body flies off. Others are designed to flip over when they crash.

Manufacturers are reluctant to talk about prospects for Christmas 1980. The industry was faced with a brief plastic shortage earlier this year but the problem was not serious enough to affect 1979 orders. Exports will remain stable in terms of quantity, they said.

Helena Payton...

this information, the district attorney had said he planned to file a murder charge if a suspect in the stabbing was apprehended, even if Miss Payton were still being maintained by a life-support system at the time. Raleigh police have followed up dozens of leads, according to Detective Donald C. Brinson, but had, as of this morning, made no arrest.

A composite sketch of the suspect has been issued and Gov. James B. Hunt Jr. has offered a $5,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the assailant.

Miss Payton's death makes no change in the intensive investigation and the anticipated charge, Det. Brinson said.

Dr. Stirman issued a statement through the hospital yesterday: "While all her life-support systems were functioning, she was very unstable despite all the resuscitation measures that were being taken."

"Within the last 24 hours Miss Payton began showing signs of cardiac decompensation (the inability of the heart to maintain adequate circulation). She developed a slowing heart rate that did not respond to resuscitation measures. At 9:07 this morning, her heart stopped."

Miss Payton's mother, an employee of Pitt County Memorial Hospital, was at the hospital when her daughter died. Her father, Ben Payton, an employee of Eastern Lumber Company in Winterville, drove to the hospital when he was notified of her death.

Miss Payton was a St. Augustine senior majoring in early childhood education. Witnesses have told police she was stabbed in the neck by a man who hid in the sixth-floor restroom of Latham Hall and then fled.

St. Augustine classes were suspended yesterday and are also not being held today in memory of the student. Some 700 students and faculty attended a prayer service yesterday afternoon in the school chapel and College Pres. Preznell R. Robinson ordered school flags flown at half-staff. He said about 150 students plan to attend Miss Payton's funeral in Winterville. Funeral arrangements have not been announced by Mitchell's Funeral Home, which is handling arrangements.

The cause of death was listed as cardio-respiratory failure, according to an autopsy performed at Wake Medical Center by Dr. Gordon LeGrand.

Arrest 5 More In Fraud Probe

GOLDSBORO, N. C. (AP) — Five more persons have been arrested in connection with an alleged $120,000 grain scheme, bringing to nine the total number arrested.

In the latest arrests Ronald Lee Mitchell, 28, of Goldsboro, has been charged in 12 counts of false pretense, alleging he received $10,851 for using forged grain weight tickets. He was jailed under $25,000 bond. Joe Carroll Blizzard, 28, of Rt. 1, Fremont, was freed under $5,000 bond on four charges of false pretense, alleging he received $6,873.

David Franklin Potter, 33, of Dudley, David Allen Pucker, 22, of Rt. 2, Dudley, and Donald Phillips Evans, 23, of Rt. 1, Fremont, were freed under $3,000 bond on one charge each of false pretense.

ris, said Coward died of head injuries, although the youth suffered a stab wound to his chest caused by a tree branch.

Damage to the new car, which according to Wright had about 1,000 miles on the odometer, was set at $8,000.

Although investigation of the incident by police and the Highway Patrol is continuing, Wright said James would be charged with driving under the influence, careless and reckless driving and manslaughter.

Rezoning...

Commissioners voted unanimously to change the name of Railroad Street, from Howell Street northward to 14th Street, to Beatty Street as a gesture in memory of the late Ken Beatty. Beatty served as director of the Public Works Department here.

Approval was given to the final plat of Baytree Subdivision, located at the southwest corner of Red Banks Road and 14th Street Extension.

The planning board adopted a resolution "asking the City Council to be deliberate and prudent in selecting the qualified candidate" to fill the commission vacancy created by the resignation of Ms. Priscilla East.

The resolution mentioned that "the members of the Commission have expressed concern over the position being vacated" and it stated that "persons being considered for the position should be informed that by accepting the position he or she will be required to attend night meetings and special call meetings in order to transact business of the Commission."

The resolution added that "the Commission expressly desires an individual who can serve the long-range interest of the community, unbound by promises to special interest groups, has no political expediency, and is concerned about the future of the our city."

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt's re-election campaign will be coordinated by Joseph Grimsley, state secretary of administration, it was announced today.

Scores Killed In Crash

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A Western Airlines DC-10 jetliner bound from Los Angeles with some 90 persons aboard and landing in a fog crashed at the Mexico City airport today, plowing into two buildings.

Reporters at the scene counted 40 bodies retrieved from the wreckage.

One witness said the crash sounded like a clap of thunder and "there was a big flash of light." Other witnesses said the DC-10's right wing hit one airport building and then the plane crashed against a new building under construction, part of which is used by the Mexican post office and the roof crashed in.

One airport rescue worker said there were three children among the dead, but this could not be further verified.

An airport control tower employee said he understood there were at least 10 survivors, among them a purser, unidentified, and the captain, whose last name was given as Jilber.

Red Cross spokesman Julio Mendela, said "there are survivors and dead but we do not know exactly how many."

A spokeswoman for the emergency ward at the Centro Medico hospital said four injured were taken there, all in serious condition. She said three of them were identified as Americans.

An American Airlines DC-10 crashed after takeoff from Chicago's O'Hare International Airport last May 25, killing all 273 persons aboard in the worst aviation disaster in U.S. history.

Crewmen Eject In Jet's Crash

MILDENHALL, England (AP) — A U. S. Air Force F111-E jet fighter crashed near the university town of Cambridge Tuesday, but the two crewmen ejected safely, the Air Force said.

The crewmen were identified as Capt. Eugene S. Ogilvie, 28, the pilot, of Rochester, Minn., and Capt. Albert P. Manzo, 26, weapons system officer, of Fort Bragg, N. C.

Judgeships

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N. C., apparently has decided to recommend Judge Richard C. Erwin of the North Carolina Court of Appeals and Asheville lawyer Bruce Elmore for two new U. S. District Court judgeships in North Carolina.

"We're fixing to do something," said a Morgan aide who added that Erwin and Elmore were called by telephone Tuesday and asked to mail resumes to Morgan's office in preparations for an announcement.

Morgan's press aide, declining comment on the two apparent choices, said only that he hoped an announcement could be made within a week.

In Hot Water Due Criticism

LONDON (AP) — Prince Andrew, 19-year-old Royal Navy Midshipman and son of Queen Elizabeth II, has landed in hot water with dozens of other junior naval officers who allegedly behaved like "drunken louts" during a student race earlier this month.

Retired Army Lt. Col. Ian

Greenlees, a local official, complained Tuesday of "loutish behavior" by students at Dartmouth Royal Naval College during a beer-smuggling race.

Andrew is second in line to the British throne. Buckingham Palace spokesmen declined comment, but Cmdr. Richard Rolls, commandant of Dartmouth College, said the only complaint he had received concerned four students who crossed private land without permission.

Flash Flood After Earthen Dam Burst

INDIANTOWN, Fla. (AP) — An earthen bank surrounding a reservoir ruptured today, sending torrents of water rushing through a rural area, flooding roads and washing out railroad tracks. At least 80 people were evacuated, sheriff's officers said.

There were no reports of injuries or deaths in sparsely populated western Martin County.

One farm family was rescued by helicopter from the top of their barn, and another helicopter pulled two crewmen from the top of a stranded train.

The water was gushing from a 600-foot-wide breach in a dike surrounding a 6,700-acre cooling-water reservoir for a new Florida Power & Light power plant near Indiantown. Authorities said the concrete wall lining the reservoir was intact, but the water had flowed under it through a crack in the earth.

Most of those evacuated were from a fishing camp west of Indiantown, beside U.S. 441 on the banks of Lake Okeechobee.

School Merger...

school groupings, pulled together from the existing ten high school systems.

Fields came to the board as an administrator in March of 1975, working 15 months with the group. He later was elected to become the full-time superintendent after the merger date.

Fields stated that a group considering merger should think about the financial concerns for the systems involved. He pointed out that over $13 million in capital outlay funds have been spent in construction for the new school system since the merger. He also said that good legal advice was needed, since there were a lot of legal angles to be considered in a merger situation.

An important point Fields brought up was that if the school systems involved want to maintain the same quality programs, more money will be spent in a merger.

He said that the new Wilson County system was able to honor all personnel contracts on the teaching level when the systems merged, but that some reorganization was needed on the central office level.

As to the attendance zones, Fields noted that no changes were made at the first of the merger, but when the three new high school groupings were arranged, massive reorganization was required.

"The role of the school board has more to do with the success of the school system than anything else," said Fields. "If there had been constant bickering, it never would have been successful."

Although public hearings were held before the final consideration to merge, no vote was held to ascertain the feelings in Wilson County. Both Dr. Fields and Adams said that the public hearings were sufficient in getting the feeling of the people. However, when a vote was held last year on school board members, two out of three incumbents running for their posts were re-elected.

In a question-answer session, Adams said that the three boards decided on the make-up of the interim board. Wilson City had a seven member board with about 60 percent of the student population; Wilson County had a five member board and approximately 30 percent of the population; and Elm City had a nine-member board and about ten percent of the population.

Fields said that in the three high schools, Wilson Fike, Hunt High School, and Beddingfield High School, all curricula was roughly equal, with some more expensive trade programs as graphic arts offered only at one school. Shuttle buses are provided by the school system for transportation to the programs only offered at one facility. However, he stressed that students must take the major portion of their requirements at their home base schools.

Committee member Nancy Middleton queried Dr. Fields and Adams on their attempts to "educate" the three boards and the general public on the merger situation. Adams replied that the Wilson Educational Development Council traveled around the county, giving information to interested citizens. The public hearings were held to get the feelings of the people. Adams stated the three boards felt that the hearings were sufficient in getting the feelings for the merger question.

Another point brought up during the meeting was the

Tribal Charges Are Dismissed

ROSEBUD, S.D. (AP) — A Rosebud Sioux Tribal Court has dismissed charges lodged against Norman Wilson on the election day last week when he ousted Ed Driving Hawk as tribal chairman by 35 votes.

Wilson, formerly a tribal housing inspector, filed a motion Monday contending the embezzlement and misconduct-in-office charges were politically motivated and there was no evidence he had broken any law.

His attorney, Keith Tidball of Pierre, said the court agreed and dismissed the charges. Driving Hawk has until today to challenge results of the election.

HUNGER STRIKE
MOSCOW (AP) — Anatoly Shcharansky and 200 other political prisoners staged a one-day hunger strike on the fifth anniversary of "Prisoners of Conscience Day", dissident sources reported.

fact that elementary school children still attend the same historical attendance areas. Only two small elementary schools have been closed during the merger, since more space was made when some grades moved into the new high schools.

When asked if merger is a worthwhile thing, Fields replied that the program advantages were to be considered. Adams said that although there were still mixed feelings, the majority of the population felt the merger was a good thing.

Members of the merger study committee voted to ask Greenville City Superintendent Glenn Cox to contact the State Department of Public Instruction for a representative to meet with the committee in the next 30 days.

New from Lorillard!

Flavor-Intensified Triumph!

Delivers taste at only 3 mg. tar!

All too many low tar cigarettes promise taste. All too few deliver on it. As for very low tar cigarettes, even fewer have dared to promise taste. Until Triumph!

Taste unlocked by Lorillard.

Lorillard, America's oldest tobacco company, found a way to unlock the natural flavor of fine tobaccos—while limiting tar to a mere 3 mg.

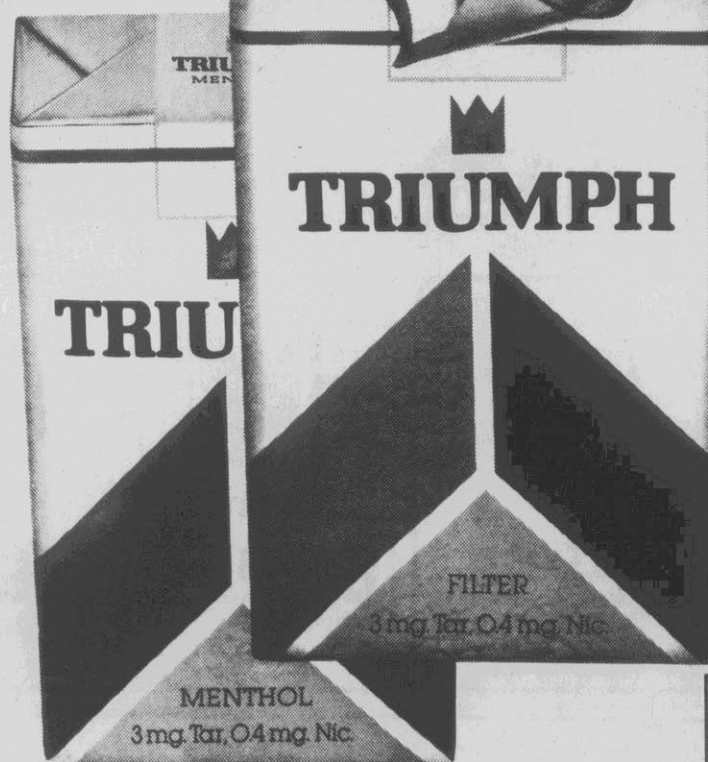

To achieve this breakthrough, Lorillard scientists pushed their technology to its limits.

Combining two types of fiber in the filter. Developing a special blend with costly, high taste tobaccos. Placing tiny "vents" in the filter-rim. Everything that could be done to intensify flavor at only 3 mg. tar was done.

Even the draw will surprise you.

With Triumph, there's none of the struggle you may have experienced in other very low tar brands. The smoke comes through abundantly, the taste reaches you smoothly. Taste that is good enough to stay with, pack after pack.

Regular and Menthol

3 mg. "tar," 0.4 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette by FTC Method.

Some Change In Merger Trends

INTERSTATE SECURITIES CORP.

A survey conducted by a law firm considered expert in proxy contests and tender offers concluded recently that such activities are likely to continue as long as stocks are selling at depressed levels.

In the past five years, 159 publicly-owned companies received unsolicited bids to merge, and only 42 remained independent. Of those that were finally acquired, 30 were bought at the original price, 42 at a higher price by the original offerer, and the remaining 42 were acquired by third parties at higher prices. There were a total of 421 offers, including revised offers, made for the 159 companies.

There has been a change recently in merger trends, with an increasing number of leveraged buyouts. These are deals where a group of investors—sometimes company management or employees—borrow a large part of the capital needed to buy out the shareholders. A recent example of this is the purchase offer for Foremost-McKesson from an investors' group which included some of the officers of that company. This was considered an attempt to thwart an unfriendly takeover bid from another company.

Another technique is block investment, wherein a company purchases from 5 to 20 percent of a company's stock. This type investment can then go two ways. It can be either the first step to a tender offer and subsequent merger, or the firm which bought the stock can sit back and wait for the company to buy it back from them, often at substantially higher prices.

Increased activity in the merger/takeover/tender offer area in the past year has led to greater regulation and that trend is expected to continue in the future. SEC concerns include proper disclosure and leaks before that disclosure. A few court cases fighting unfriendly takeovers have been won on the basis of failure to meet SEC requirements. Despite the increased regulation, there appears to be plenty of cash in corporate coffers to finance large-scale acquisitions. This activity is not likely to cool during a recession. In the 1974-75 period, the number of acquisitions dropped, but the total value of those mergers increased.

Credit tightening by the Federal Reserve Board is not likely to halt the trend, either. The survey concluded that interest rates would have to approach 20 percent, because of the tax deductibility of interest and earnings of the acquired company, before this kind of activity would be halted. Mergers will continue to highlight those companies which are well run and offer opportunities for geographic and product expansion.

TO BE IN SUNDAY CONCERT — Marian Harding of Williamsburg, Virginia, who is harpist with the Virginia Classical Symphony and harp instructor at East Carolina University and Old Dominion University in Norfolk, will perform in concert with the East Carolina University Symphony Orchestra in Wright Auditorium at 3:15 p.m. Sunday, November 4. There is no admission charged, and the public is invited to attend.

Delay Vote On Unionization

FORT BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — A unionization election among the Fort Bragg school system's 230 teachers has been delayed indefinitely by the filing of two unfair labor practice complaints by the North Carolina Federation of Teachers.

The complaints were filed Monday with the U.S. Department of Labor. They claim Superintendent Haywood Davis made defamatory statements about the union and showed partiality to its rival organization, the North Carolina Association of Educators.

The local chapters of the two organizations have petitioned the department to hold a representation election among the Fort Bragg teachers to determine which group will negotiate their contracts.

The favoritism complaint was based on the union's contention that Davis had appointed only association members to faculty committees dealing with tenure and grievance procedures, according to Marguerite Waple, president of the union's Fort Bragg chapter.

The second complaint resulted from disparaging statements Davis allegedly made at an August faculty meeting, she said.

Davis denied both allegations Tuesday.

"I haven't appointed anyone to a committee because of their professional affiliation," he said. "Choices were made on the basis of their position on the staff."

"Maybe there are such and such a number of NCAE members, but I don't keep track of that, any more than I would keep track of who's Protestant and who's Catholic."

He said he did not remember making any disparaging remarks at the August meeting.

The unfair labor complaints must be resolved before the representation election can be held. However, a hearing is not automatic, according to Seymour X. Alsher, regional director of the Federal Labor Relations Authority.

"The hearing is not automatic just because a charge was filed," he said. The complaints will have to be investigated, and Alsher said he doubted they would be investigated in time for a hearing scheduled for November on five previously-filed complaints.

Five complaints were filed earlier by the federation and are scheduled for a Nov. 27 hearing at Fort Bragg.

Davis is also named in the previous complaints, which claim he and the school system interfered with the election process by discouraging teachers from voting to bargain collectively.

ELECTED — Councilman Richard Arrington, above, polled 51 percent of the votes Tuesday to be elected mayor of Birmingham, Alabama. His election victory makes him the third black mayor of a major city in the South. (AP Laserphoto)

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market was mixed today, hesitating after Tuesday's sharp rally.

Gainers outpaced losers by more than a 2-1 margin in the early rally.

But the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slipped .18 to 823.63 in the first half hour.

Analysts viewed Tuesday's upsurge as primarily a technical rally rather than a response to any particularly positive news.

They noted that investors were still faced with prospects of more increases in world oil prices and record-high interest rates.

In foreign-exchange markets today, the dollar was mixed, while gold prices rose slightly.

McDonnell Douglas was delayed in opening. A Western Airlines DC10 jet on a flight from Los Angeles crashed in Mexico City today, killing an undetermined number of people.

Texaco led the active list in early trading, unchanged at 28.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average jumped 15.19 to 823.61 for its sharpest gain since it rose 17.24 points on Sept. 20.

Advances outnumbered declines by more than a 3-1 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume came to 28.89 million shares against 22.72 million the day before.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index climbed 1.06 to 58.11.

Scholarship At Age 4 Months

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Amber Rae Hardin never heard of the Rochester Institute of Technology. She can't even say it. But at 4 months, her college future is assured — she has a scholarship to the New York school.

Amber was born here on June 12, the same day the Rochester school was celebrating its 150th anniversary. Someone — mother Lisa doesn't know who — sent the baby's name to the institute, which was offering 150 scholarships to babies born that day.

A spokeswoman for the Rochester Institute, Carolyn Rankin, said it was first-come, first-served in the scholarship sweepstakes. In all, the school received 1,451 applications for the 150 scholarships, each valued at $1,500 and collectable in 1997, when the class of 2001 should be ready to start college.

Each winner must meet the school's admission qualifications. But on Tuesday, Amber was more interested in the little rubber pig and rattle on the tray of her swing set.

Contempt For Mild Sentence

HOUSTON (AP)—A federal judge who sentenced three former policemen to one year and one day for their convictions in the death of Joe Campos Torres has brought "contempt upon himself," says the head of the state's most powerful Hispanic organization.

Terry Denson, 27, Stephen Orlando, 22, and Joseph Janish, 22, faced a possible maximum term of life in prison for a violation of the young Mexican-American's civil rights that resulted in his death.

U.S. District Judge Ross Sterling, who was ordered by the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals to sentence the officers, Tuesday gave them the lightest prison term possible.

"Judge Ross Sterling is a man who has neither respect of nor appreciation for the discrimination suffered by Hispanics for generations in Texas," said Ruben Bonilla, president of the League of United Latin American Citizens. "We are calling for immediate and meaningful disciplinary sanctions...He has brought contempt upon himself, upon law enforcement and upon Hispanic-Americans."

In May 1977, the body of Torres, 23, was found floating in Buffalo Bayou, which flows through downtown Houston near police headquarters.

He had been arrested a few days earlier during a disturbance at a bar. He was in police custody when he was either pushed, jumped or fell into the bayou.

Carlless E. Elliott, a rookie officer at the time, reported to his superiors that Torres had been taken to the banks of the bayou, slapped around and verbally abused by the other officers.

The three defendants had said Torres was troublesome, had screamed and kicked when arrested and warned them he had served in an Army unit specializing in martial arts. They said Torres either jumped or fell off a 17-foot embankment into the bayou.

The three former officers were sentenced to one year in jail on a misdemeanor conviction and 10-year suspended sentences with five years probation on the felony conviction. The appellate court ruled the suspension was illegal and ordered Sterling to resentence them.

Jaguars Seek To Clinch 4th Straight ECC Title

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer
Coming off two tough wins on the road over two teams ranked in the top 10, the Farmville Central Jaguars can clinch their fourth consecutive Eastern Carolina Conference crown and a trip to the state high school football playoffs with a win over Ayden-Grifton Friday night.

The Jaguars, 19-14 winners over No. 2 Havelock Friday, will be looking for their 30th consecutive ECC victory. Farmville's last loss in the ECC was in mid-1975 to Ayden-Grifton, 7-0.

Farmville, ranked No. 1 nearly all season by the AP, is 8-0 overall and 6-0 in the conference. The Chargers, who lost to second place Southern Nash, 34-0, Friday, close out their season against Farmville, a week earlier than the remainder of the league.

In other games last week, C.B. Aycock stunned D.H. Conley, 27-15, Greene Central defeated North Pitt, 49-6, and Southwest Edgecombe blanked North Lenoir, 14-0.

Also last week, Edenton handed Williamston its second straight loss, 28-6, Roanoke stunned Tarboro, 27-22, and Jamesville shut out Scotland Neck, 14-0.

The ECC schedule this week includes C.B. Aycock at North Lenoir, Greene Central at D.H. Conley and Southwest Edgecombe at Southern Nash. In a nonconference battle, North Pitt travels to Beaufort to take on East Carteret.

Also this week, Roanoke travels to Edenton, Plymouth goes to Williamston and Jamesville ends its season against Creswell at home.

Farmville Central
After two weeks on the road against two teams ranked in the top 10, Farmville Central coach Gene Brewer is happy to return home.

"After the last two weeks, we're glad to be home," he said. Two weeks ago Farmville beat the then tenth-ranked Firebirds of Southern Nash, 13-8. This past Friday, the Jaguars beat the second-ranked Rams of Havelock, 19-14.

"It's homecoming for us, but I'm not real anxious to play Ayden-Grifton this week," he said. "They're conference team, a county team."

Brewer, whose Farmville squad is rated as the top 3-A team in the state by the AP, said he feels the Chargers will do some things different come Friday night.

"I feel, defensively, they'll come at us more than they have some other teams they've played. Offensively, I expect they'll throw the ball on us more than they have in the past," Brewer said.

Against Havelock last week, Brewer said his team's defensive play was inconsistent. "We'd have a real good play and then we'd give up a big play. In some cases, they were missing assignments."

"But in the last part of the third quarter and in the fourth quarter, we showed the kind of defense we're capable of playing," he said.

During that span, Farmville limited the Rams to 27 yards on the ground, and only seven yards in the fourth period.

"Havelock had a little to do with our inconsistent play. But it concerns me that we didn't fulfill our assignments."

Ayden-Grifton

The Ayden-Grifton Chargers face their toughest challenge of the season Friday night when they travel to Farmville to meet the conference leading Jaguars.

The Chargers, who last Friday lost to second place Southern Nash, 34-0, must face the unenviable task of trying to derail Farmville's bid for its fourth consecutive league crown.

"We're probably going to have to do some things different on both offense and defense this week," Coach Dixon Sauls said. "Hopefully, they'll have to adjust to them during the game."

Sauls, whose team ends the season Friday against the Jaguars, realizes the challenge laid before the Chargers. "We have respect for Farmville and their record," he said. "They have an outstanding team. They're ranked number one in the state, but we're going to go out and play as well as we can."

"It's going to be a tremendous challenge for us. To win, we'll have to catch them on an off-night and be able to take advantage of the breaks," Sauls said.

Last Friday against Southern Nash, the Chargers, who are 5-4 overall and 4-3 in the ECC, were the victim of their own mistakes.

"We had some opportunities early, but we hurt ourselves with a critical turnover and then we were stopped at their 12," Sauls said.

"We gambled early in the game and they scored on an option and then they scored again on a fourth down pass when we had a missed assignment," Sauls said.

"Once they got those two touchdowns it was hard for us to come back. We certainly had a good effort, but we felt once we got down it made it difficult for us to play with the enthusiasm we needed."

NP's Juan Atkinson

North Pitt

As he has been for most of the season, Coach Pat Smith was not pleased with his team's effort Friday night against the Greene Central Rams.

"I don't really know what's wrong. We're just not playing the kind of football we're capable of," Smith said of his team's 49-6 loss to the Rams.

"It's hard to put your finger on it. The things we've been through this season have hurt us and now that it's near the end of season we're just not willing to make the sacrifices we need to make to win."

"I really don't have much to say about the loss, though. We're just not playing well."

Against the Rams, the Panthers surrendered 379 yards on the ground. This week, North Pitt faces East Carteret, a team which includes the Coastal Conference's leading rusher from a year ago, Ricky Jones.

"We've got to stop him if we want to win," Smith said. The Mariners are 3-5 on the year and are struggling in the Coastal Conference.

"They're a better team than they were last year," Smith said. "They've got one of the better teams that they've had in the past few years."

D.H. Conley
D.H. Conley coach Jimbo Walker has a ready explanation for his team's 27-15 upset loss at the hands of C.B. Aycock last Friday night.

"We just didn't play good, and that was the result of bad coaching. We faced a little adversity and weren't able to face it the way we should have," Walker said.

Flanagan Wins Cy Young

BALTIMORE (AP) — Mike Flanagan picked up an effective changeup delivery, learned how to deal with the news media and wound up as the American League's Cy Young Award winner for the 1979 season.

The 27-year-old left-hander, who posted a 23-9 record for Baltimore's league champions, was a runaway winner in the balloting conducted by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Flanagan received 26 of 28 first-place votes, with New York Yankees pitchers Tommy John and Ron Guidry, the 1978 winner sharing the other two.

"I'll always look at the award as a team thing," said Flanagan, the fifth Orioles' pitcher in 11 years to win or share the prestigious award. "Maybe I was the best pitcher," Flanagan said while noting the Orioles won 108 games in regular and postseason play, "but I was also on the best team."

Flanagan, a native of Manchester, N.H., who was Baltimore's seventh choice in the June, 1973 draft, credited teammate Scott McGregor with turning his season around by teaching him a changeup.

"It came natural from the first time he showed me how to throw it," Flanagan said. "In the first half of the season, if I didn't have a good curveball, I got beat. But after I learned the changeup and threw my slider more, I became a four-pitch pitcher. The change set up my whole game plan and put me over the hump."

From July 9 on, Flanagan won 13 of his last 16 regular season decisions, turning in a 2.23 earned run average over 18 starts. He finished fourth in the AL with a 3.08 ERA.

In addition to leading the major leagues in victories, he shared the league lead with five shutouts, was second with 38 starts, and third with 190 strikeouts and 2652.3 innings pitched.

As the season neared an end and Flanagan was deluged with questions about the Cy Young Award, he sought advice from teammate Jim Palmer, a Cy Young winner in 1973-75-76.

"I was afraid to talk about it because I thought I'd jinx myself," Flanagan said. "I didn't even want to say anything to Palmer, so I just hinted around about what procedure to follow. He told me not to worry."

"Jimmy leads by example. I've had good pitching coaches in George Bamberger and Ray Miller, and the experience of Palmer on the field."

Flanagan also came under the calming influence of his father, Edward Flanagan, a former right-hander in the Boston Red Sox organization.

"The hardest thing about the World Series was dealing with the press," Flanagan said. "I told my dad I had to answer the same question 75 times."

"He told me, 'I'm not worried about you pitching to the Pirates, so don't you worry about the press,'" Flanagan recalled.

Flanagan won the opening game of the Series, lost Game Five and then faced one batter in the ninth inning of the final game as Manager Earl Weaver used almost his entire staff in a futile effort to stop Pittsburgh's clinching victory.

"That was the hardest time I ever had trying to pitch," Flanagan said of the seventh game. "I didn't find out until 10 minutes before the game that my wife was all right."

Flanagan's wife, Kathy, collapsed at home on the morning of the deciding game, and subsequently underwent 2½ hours of surgery for appendicitis and accompanying internal bleeding.

The Flanagans now reside in Cockeysville, in the suburbs of Baltimore, but they are also building a home in Manchester, where Mike will be honored by a parade and testimonial dinner by his friends next month.

Asked if he would seek to renegotiate the remaining two years of a five-year contract he signed in 1977, Flanagan said:

"I haven't even thought about it. I have enough money now, I'm content. For the lifestyle I lead, I'm a very rich person in New Hampshire. I can't complain."

"It all adds up to bad coaching."

Against the Falcons, Conley was held scoreless until the fourth period, when the Vikings were able to push over two scores, one coming as time ran out.

"We didn't play the way we can against them. We had three fumbles, three interceptions, 130 yards in penalties and lost some personnel, all of which we weren't able to overcome," Walker said.

The loss dropped the Vikings to 4-3 overall and 3-3 in the league with two games remaining. This week, the Vikings take on the Greene Central Rams, a team that has improved each week since an early season loss to Farmville Central.

"It'll be a good ball game," Walker said. "We're at home. I hope we can come back against them."

Despite last Friday's loss, the Vikings still have a chance to come out of the season with a winning mark, their first in many years.

"We're gonna have to scramble now, though, for a winning season," said Walker, who is in his first year at Conley.

Heels To Face Terps

UNC Recalls Last Year

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — A year ago North Carolina was one of the choices to win the Atlantic Coast Conference football championship, and looked like a solid bet when it scored twice in the second half to a take 20-15 lead over Maryland.

But the Terrapins came back in the fourth period to nip the Tar Heels, 21-20, and North Carolina never recovered. The following week the Tar Heels suffered a heartbreaking loss to Pittsburgh and then the insult of being beaten by the team Coach Dick Crum had deserted, Miami of Ohio.

A season filled with high hopes disintegrated and only a miracle finish in the finale against Duke salvaged a 5-6 campaign. Nonetheless, it was a disaster.

Today the Tar Heels are one of three ACC teams with a single loss in league play, a 5-1-1 team headed in the right direction despite a loss and a tie in the last three weeks. And with a mediocre and injury-riddled Maryland team the opposition on Saturday the Tar Heels hope history does not repeat itself.

"They're not that far from being a good football team," Crum said Tuesday in discussing Jerry Claiborne's Terps.

The irony of it is this; Crum was able to say Maryland is not now a good team. That may be a first, but the accuracy of the statement cannot be disputed.

With 11 starters from its pre-season depth chart sidelined by injuries, the Terps are starting a whole host of underclassmen. They broke the only four-game losing streak they've had in Claiborne's eight years at the helm with a 27-0 victory over hapless Duke on Saturday to even their record at 4-4.

But the Terps did not look good offensively. They turned over the ball three times in the first half and built a 17-0 lead because Duke managed only one first down and just 26 total yards. Crum's concern, however, lies with the Terrapin defense, which despite the presence of just one senior has given a good account of itself in all but one game. Maryland held Duke to minus five yards rushing.

"They base their whole program on a strong, physical defense," Crum said of Maryland. "There is no magic secret to how this ball game is going to be won. It'll be won at the line of scrimmage, in the trenches."

Sophomore tailback Charlie Wysocki is due to return to the Maryland lineup, and that's good news for the Terps. But Crum is not that concerned with Wysocki, despite the fact that Maryland began to play poorly on offense when he was injured several weeks ago. "Jerry Claiborne said that this may have been his best offensive line, so he's going to get yardage no matter who he plays at tailback," said Crum.

Monte Irvin of the New York Giants stole home in the first World Series game he ever played in, the 1951 opener against the New York Yankees.

Kush's Firing May Have Broken Rules

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The Arizona attorney general probably will issue an opinion that Arizona State University's removal of head football Coach Frank Kush did not comply with Board of Regents rules, the Arizona Republic said today in a story quoting informed sources.

Attorney General Bob Corbin, asked for comment, said research is proceeding and a conclusion isn't due until later in the week.

"The research process is still under way," Corbin said. "What was seen was a preliminary study, which may or may not reflect the final opinion."

The Phoenix newspaper said its story was based on a preliminary opinion that could be changed by Corbin or his staff before it is issued.

Rep. Burton Barr, R-Phoenix, the House majority leader, had sought the opinion after Kush's removal by Athletic Director Fred Miller on Oct. 13. Miller said Kush was ousted for an attempted cover-up of an incident in which the coach allegedly struck Kevin Rutledge, a former ASU punter who is suing the school and Kush for $1.1 million.

Kush denied striking Rutledge or attempting a cover-up.

Barr said he felt the regents' rules provide that any complaint damaging to a university faculty member must be resolved by filing charges with a university trial board.

If the rules apply to Kush, the university will have to bring new procedures if it wants the coach out, Barr said, adding: "They're back to ground zero."

The university did not give Kush a hearing on the charges it made against him.

Bob Owens, an assistant coach under Kush, has been handling the team since Kush's removal.

In a related development, the Pacific-10 Council scheduled a hearing for Thursday on the eligibility of eight Arizona State University football players.

"It's possible that the charges may be resolved and penalties, if any, handed out on Thursday," said Jim Muldoon, Pac-10 public relations director. "Or it may carry over until Friday."

Robert Knox, Arizona State faculty representative for athletics, requested the Pac-10 ruling on eligibility. An internal investigation revealed credits transferred from other schools that may not be acceptable at Arizona State, he said.

Arizona State is in the running for the Pac-10 championship and a Rose Bowl bid with a 3-1 conference record. If the Sun Devil players are found ineligible, the conference victories may have to be forfeited.

The Sun Devils will be informed of any penalty before they play their next conference game Saturday at Stanford, Muldoon said.

Marshmallow Salesman Tells Of Martins' Sucker Punch

NEW YORK (AP) — Joseph Cooper, a 52-year-old marshmallow salesman from Illinois, had kept quiet for a week. He said he didn't want the man, whom he later accused of sucker-punching him, to lose his job.

The man was Billy Martin, twice but no longer the manager of the New York Yankees. Cooper's reason for remaining silent ended Sunday when Yankees owner George Steinbrenner fired Martin.

And Cooper finally broke his silence Tuesday night in a telephone interview with The Associated Press from his home in Lincolnshire, Ill.

"The reason I stayed silent so long was I didn't want Martin to lose his job," Cooper said. "But I couldn't stand all the lies that went around."

"I feel very badly about it," Cooper said. "It's something that happens in life that you don't like to see happen."

Cooper, a family man with two sons and a productive sales job, described the scenario leading to "The Punch" late Oct. 23. It was a punch that cost the 51-year-old Martin his job, and perhaps his career in baseball.

"I was in Minneapolis on business, and I had dinner with a business associate at the L'Hotel de France," in Bloomington, Minn., Cooper said. "After dinner, my business associate asked if I would like to have a nightcap, so we went into the bar."

"The only place open was a section of the bar between Billy Martin and Howard Wong (a longtime associate of Martin). Martin was there, but he had a cowboy hat on, and I didn't really recognize him. But my business associate did recognize him."

"He said, 'Hi, Billy,' and we talked to him about his job and what the future looked like, and so forth. Then I made a statement to Billy that I thought it was a good choice picking Dick Williams (of Montreal) as manager of the year, although I thought Earl Weaver (of Baltimore) did a good job too."

"Billy said, 'They are both holes, and you're an hole too for saying it.'"

"Then he asked me what I did for a living, and he asked my business associate too. I told him I was in sales with marshmallows," Cooper said. "They thought it was a big joke, as everybody does. Then he introduced us to Howard Wong and asked if we wanted to meet a millionaire."

"Then Martin mentioned that he thought it was a bad choice that Williams was manager of the year, and he said he wanted to go outside and 'whip your.'"

"People were always coming up and asking him for his autograph, and we forgot about it for a while. He finally came back to me, and he said, 'Tell you what, Joe, here is $500 to your penny I can knock you on your.' -It was five $100 bills."

"I still didn't say too much, but he was harassing me, but time comes when pride comes into focus. I put a penny on his $500 and said, 'Let's go.'"

"Between the bar and the lobby is probably about 30 feet, and there's an archway in between. He was ahead of me, and I was behind. As we walked through the archway into the lobby, he abruptly turned and hit me in the mouth."

"I assume all of his fights have been sucker punches."

To The Editor:

I wish to salute the ECU defense for its second-half work at UNC-Chapel Hill Saturday. They are either the most improved defensive unit in the nation or they played some quite inspired football. Either way it was pretty to watch. The offensive wasn't bad either but I have come to expect excellence over there this year. We could/should win from here on out and have some fun.

Regardless of what happens during our remaining games we soon will have gone two complete seasons (1978, 1979) without a win over a team with equal financing to our own. Put another way that is six consecutive non-winning efforts against ACC opponents.

I believe the nearest thing we have to a crisis in ECU athletics is our poor football scheduling situation. It is common knowledge that ACC schools are dropping us at their convenience. Coach Stasavich had several verbal deals set with Wake Forest and others. These deals seemed to have passed with the old coach. We simply cannot support our ambitious program and our growing facilities with home dates like Marshall and North Texas State. Likewise we are being presumptuous to expect continued faithful fan attendance and contributive support with such schedules. I understand we have nine games for 1980 plus one maybe and one wish. Our athletic director is charged with scheduling responsibilities. I feel it is time to dispense with promises and good intentions and get on with the responsibilities of the job. Otherwise the hard work of many people and supporters could go down the drain back to mediocrity.

Cooper wound up with about 15 stitches in his lip and something pretty important to think about, especially for a man from Lincolnshire, a man unused to the limelight that follows men like Martin.

"It's a sad affair," he said, "and I just want it to disappear. I would have forgot about it, and I guess he would have too. But the thing that really upset me were the lies."

Cooper said that the two primary untruths that surfaced during the incident were that he cut his lip in a fall and that he swung at Martin, "which I never did."

With the story all but dying out, Martin also chose Tuesday to release a three-part statement through his agent, Doug Newton.

"One, I have read and heard a lot of things about myself in the past several days that are untrue which have hurt me very much," the statement said.

"Two, I am in touch with the offices of the Commissioner of Baseball and the American League and at my request will be meeting with them to discuss each and every statement and circumstance leading up to and following my firing. I have nothing to hide."

"Three, I do not want or need anymore of George Steinbrenner's so-called help. He should not be allowed to run my life anymore or to interfere with my future in baseball. I will always love baseball and I want the fans to know I will be back."

Martin's reference to "so-called help" from Steinbrenner stemmed from quotes by several friends of the Yankees owner.

"George is worried about Martin getting involved in more serious incidents," a source close to Steinbrenner said. "What happens if another guys falls down and is hurt more seriously or if a guy pulls a knife and kills Billy?"

The source quoted Steinbrenner as saying: "I don't want that to happen to Billy, his family, to the Yankees or to baseball."

Martin's history with the Yankees was one punctuated by punches, squabbles and hard drinking.

Suns Maul Spurs, 142-109

Let Me Through

By The Associated Press

The Phoenix-San Antonio game was like an election with only one candidate on the ballot. The Suns made 57 percent of their field goal attempts in a 68-point first half and led by as many as 39 points at one stage of the contest.

"We couldn't have beaten a good high school team tonight," said San Antonio Coach Doug Moe after the Suns romped to a 142-109 laughter over his Spurs Tuesday night. "It seemed like they had everybody scoring and no one on our team was guarding anybody out there."

Leonard "Truck" Robinson led the Phoenix scoring parade with 23 points and was joined by seven other Suns in double figures. Phoenix added insult to injury by tying a team record with 15 assists in their 40-point third period.

Suns Coach John McLeod attributed the high assist total to the fact that the Spurs "were overplaying our forwards, so it opened up the passing lanes and we got a lot of layups and inside stuff."

"They fell behind early and had a lot of new players in there to give them experience," McLeod said. "I'm sure they're a lot better team than they showed tonight."

In other NBA games, the Denver Nuggets bested the

New York Knicks 121-112, the Los Angeles Lakers topped the Chicago Bulls 111-105 and the Cleveland Cavaliers beat the Houston Rockets 124-112.

The victory was the fourth in a row for Phoenix, which got 18 points from Johnny High and Walter Davis while Paul Westphal added 15. Alvan Adams, Mike Bratz and Joel Kramer had 12 each.

George Gervin had 18 points, 12 below his average, for the Spurs.

Nuggets 121, Knicks 112

Dan Issel scored 32 points and David Thompson added 28 as Denver defeated New York. The Knicks, who never came closer than eight points in the final period, got 32 points from rookie center Bill Cartwright.

Cartwright scored 21 first-half points to 20 for Issel, but the Nuggets put it away in the third period by pulling to a 99-82 lead.

Toby Knight added 26 points for New York.

Lakers 111, Bulls 105

The backcourt duo of Earvin Johnson and Norm Nixon combined for 42 points to help Los Angeles withstand a fourth-quarter Chicago surge and beat the Bulls.

"We always seem to come back, but it's always too little, too late," said Coach Jerry Sloan, whose Bulls pulled to within 108-103 with 1:59 remaining.

Johnson had 24 points for Los Angeles. David Greenwood had 14 for Chicago.

Cavaliers 124, Rockets 112

Randy Smith scored 30 points to help Cleveland snap a four-game losing streak and hand Houston its fifth loss in as many road games.

Calvin Murphy had 21 points to lead the Rockets and Houston's Moses Malone contributed 19 rebounds.

Yale Seeks 700th

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Big Red to a college football fan usually means Nebraska or Oklahoma, but the Big Red that stands in the way of an unprecedented 700th football victory for Yale is Cornell.

Yale, the only unbeaten major college team in the East this year, faces Cornell Saturday in a key Ivy League football contest that will be televised regionally.

Yale will be seeking its seventh victory without a defeat this season and its 700th football triumph in history. If Yale wins, it will become the first college in the game's history to reach that milestone.

Cornell, on the other hand, would like to inflict Yale's 200th defeat ever and knot this year's Ivy League race when the two teams meet in Ithaca, N.Y.

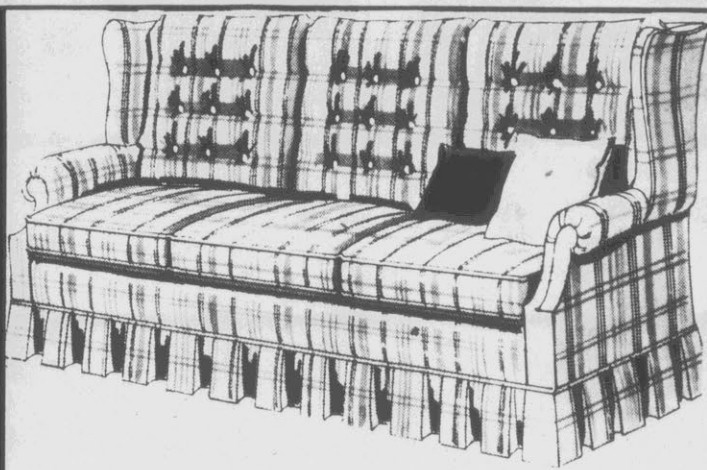

Yale — with its 699-199-53 all-time football record — has not lost in 11 consecutive games over the past two seasons. But Coach Carmen Cozza is cautious about the game against Cornell, which is 4-2 overall and trails Yale by one game in the Ivy League.

"Without a question, they're the best offensive team we've played this year," Cozza said at a press luncheon Tuesday. "They're definitely much better than last year."

Yale clobbered Cornell 42-14 in New Haven last season with Eli quarterbacks scoring five touchdowns and Ken Hill returning the second half kickoff 100 yards for a score.

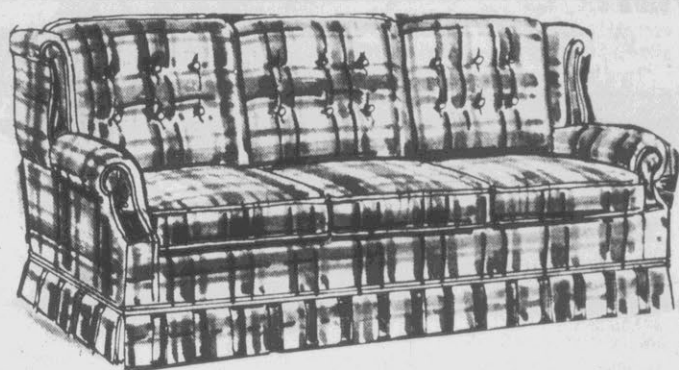

Cozza pointed out that Cornell has the top offense in the Ivy League and rushed for 375 yards against Dartmouth last week.

WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Oct. 18 through Oct. 24.

HOUSE
SUGAR BILL — By a vote of 158 for and 249 against, the House rejected a bill to protect the domestic sugar industry against competition from lower-priced sugar.

The bill (HR 2172) would have provided higher prices for U.S. sugar and duties on imported sugar. It also would have allowed direct federal subsidies to U.S. growers and processors of up to $50,000 per year.

Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., a supporter, said the U.S. sugar industry is "going down the drain if we do not do something to stabilize prices."

Rep. Thomas Downey, D-N.Y., an opponent, said the U.S. cannot maintain its current sugar industry "without a big raid on the Treasury."

Members voting "yea" favored bolstering the domestic sugar industry with higher prices.

Reps. Walter Jones, D-1, L.H.

Fountain, D-2, Charles Whitley, D-3, Ike Andrews, D-4, Stephen Neal, D-5, Richardson Preyer, D-6, Charles Rose, D-7, James Broyhill, R-10, and Lamar Gudgeon, D-11, voted "yea."

Reps. W.C. Hefner, D-8, and James Martin, R-9, did not vote.

GASOLINE PRICES — The House rejected, 189 for and 225 against, an amendment to remove government controls from the price of gasoline and do away with the government-run allocation of gas supplies. Federal price controls, in effect since 1973, are due to be phased out by the end of 1981. This amendment would have immediately removed them and let the oil companies and the marketplace set the price. It was proposed to HR 3000, a department of Energy bill passed and sent to the Senate.

Rep. James Courter, R-N.J., the sponsor, said that by doing away with allocation his amendment would avert future gas lines. Since controls are to be eventually removed, he added, "we might as well do it now when we have a situation where inventories are up and consumption is low."

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., an opponent, reminded the House that "our oil companies are making outstanding profits at this time," and added that the president should retain authority to control prices in order to protect consumers against the pricing consequences of any future cut-off of Middle Eastern oil.

Members voting "yea" wanted to immediately remove controls from gasoline prices.

Martin and Broyhill voted "yea."

Jones, Fountain, Whitley, Neal, Preyer, Rose and Gudgeon voted "nay."

Andrews and Hefner did not vote.

IS THERE AN OIL SHORTAGE? — The House adopted, 264 for and 143 against, an amendment requiring the Department of Energy to publish monthly reports on the major oil companies' supplies of crude and refined oil. The amendment was attached to HR 3000 (see previous note).

Rep. Peter Peyser, D-N.Y., the sponsor, said the amendment strikes at the very heart of every problem we are facing in this country on the oil crisis. "He contended that people 'have not believed the condition that exists in the oil industry' because the American Petroleum Institute, an industry trade association, provides the data on oil supplies."

Rep. Clarence Miller, R-Ohio, an opponent, said "This amendment will drive the price of the refined products even higher... The cost to the consumer through the price of higher oil products due to these reports greatly outweighs the benefits derived from obtaining these statistics."

Members voting "yea" wanted the government to publish the oil data.

Fountain, Whitley, Neal, Rose and Gudgeon voted "yea."

Jones, Preyer, Martin and Broyhill voted "nay."

Andrews and Hefner did not vote.

SENATE
SPECIAL AMBASSADOR — The Senate confirmed, 48 for and 35 against, the nomination of former Rep. Robert Krueger, D-Tex., to the new post of Ambassador at Large and Coordinator of Mexican Affairs.

At issue was not Krueger but the precedent of creating a second ambassadorial post to deal with a single country. Some senators speculated that the appointment was intended to circumvent U.S. Ambassador to Mexico Patrick Lucey, who later resigned.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Cal., who supported the nomination, said a special coordinator is needed to insure that U.S.-Mexican problems are not "buried in the bureaucratic maze and left to simmer."

Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., an opponent, said Mexican officials suspect the move is President Carter's method of "working out a personnel problem in his administration."

Senators voting "yea" favored Krueger's appointment.

Sen. Robert Morgan, D. voted "yea."

Sen. Jesse Helms, R, voted "nay."

D.C. BUDGET — The Senate approved, 64 for and 19 against, a $1.4 billion District of Columbia budget for the fiscal year which began Oct. 1. The budget is drafted by D.C. Major Marion Barry and refined by House and Senate committees. The majority of the budget is raised by D.C. through taxation. About $238 million is the "federal payment" to the capital city. The main issue during floor debate was tough anti-abortion language which the House had attached to the bill.

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., a supporter, said: "I can understand the frustration of Mayor Barry. He is trying to do a job, a good job, for his city" and does not like "seeing these budgets held up time after time after time on abortion language."

Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., an opponent, said that polls show abortion funding is not among the top 20 concerns of the American public. "The issue is the greatest non-issue in the country today," he said, "although it is not a non-issue in the Senate and in the House."

Senators voting "nay" either were liberals who disliked the tough anti-abortion language or conservatives unsympathetic toward D.C.

Morgan voted "yea."

Helms voted "nay."

FIRE FUNDS — By a vote of 38 for and 55 against, the Senate blocked a proposed 50 per cent cut in funds for rural fire protection grants. This vote killed a motion in favor of the cut.

The amendment was offered to an Interior Department money bill (HR 4930) that was passed and sent to conference with the House. As passed by the Senate, the program provides $30 million annually to the states for grants to benefit rural fire departments.

Sen. Walter Huddleston, D-Ky., who favored the cut, said senators cannot restrain federal spending if they support "every budget increase that happens to be popular."

Sen. Donald Stewart, D-Ala., an opponent of killing the budget increase, said many states cannot afford adequate fire protection without the federal aid.

Senators voting "yea" favored reducing the fire protection outlays.

Morgan and Helms voted "nay."

Plan A Benefit Dance-A-thon

ECU News Bureau

A benefit Dance-A-thon has been scheduled by East Carolina University's chapter of Gamma Sigma Sigma service sorority for the Eastern Lung Association Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 17-18.

The event, set for Wright Auditorium on campus, will begin at 8 p.m. Saturday and run until 8 a.m. Sunday. Interested couples of all ages are invited to participate by collecting monetary pledges for each hour they remain on the floor.

Dancers should seek sponsors from among friends, neighbors, relatives, teachers, businesses or organizations, and may, if they wish, wear signs designating who their sponsors are. Awards will be given to the individual, couple and organization raising the most pledge money.

Printed sheets on which sponsors for each couple are listed and further information are available from the Mendenhall Student Center Information Desk or the campus Student Supply Store.

According to Cheryl Boehm of Jacksonville, a member of Gamma Sigma Sigma, funds raised from the Dance-a-Thon will be invested in Eastern Lung Association's programs of medical research, public health education and community services — all aimed at the prevention, treatment and cure of crippling lung diseases.

Annual Meet On Nov. 8

The annual member meeting of the Pitt & Greene Electric Membership Corp. will be held Thursday, Nov. 8, beginning at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium of Farmville Central High School.

Joe Patterson, manager of the cooperative which serves some 5,000 homes and businesses in Pitt, Greene, Lenoir, Edgecombe, Wilson and Wayne Counties, said that directors will be elected from three districts.

Patterson noted that Gordon Owens and James E. Manning, both of Rt. 2, Walstonburg, and Milton Tugwell Jr. of Rt. 1, Farmville have been nominated from District Three. W. Ray Jones, Walter L. Heath and Rom Beaman Jr., all of Rt. 1, Snow Hill, have been nominated from District Four, while Hilton Webb and Kenneth W. Stallings, both of Rt. 1, Macclesfield, have been nominated from District Eight.

State Rep. Sam D. Bundy of Farmville will be the guest speaker for the meeting, while "The Ramblers," a singing group from Greene Central High School under the direction of Kenneth Ginn, will provide entertainment.

Discards Make Pocketed Bags

TOLEDO, Ohio (UPI) — A homemakers' news service suggests using discarded drapery and upholstery samples to make pocketed bags for hanging from the arms of wheelchairs for nursing home patients.

The samples can be obtained from local stores, the service says, "... and if you're lucky, you may get samples with grommets that make tying to the arm of the chair easy. For those samples without grommets, just sew on ties for easy attachment."

The suggestion is from a panel member of National Family Opinion, Inc., a Toledo-based market research company.

SEEKS SEX CHANGE — James Gootie, calling himself Lorraine Gibson, says he will file for a federal court injunction to keep his job as a civilian clerk-typist at Keesler AFB, Biloxi, Miss., and wear women's clothes. Gootie, 42, divorced father of seven children, is seeking a sex change operation, and doctors have instructed him to wear women's clothing for one year prior to the operation to assure himself he is comfortable in the role of a woman. "I'm more emotionally happy now than I have ever been," he said, "I'm being myself. Before, when I was having to pretend, it was hell." (AP Laserphoto)

Learning Bilingualism In Immersion Education

By BARBARA RIEGELHAUPT
Associated Press Writer
SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Eight-year-old William Arxuthnot was in a hurry and didn't realize he was speaking Spanish when he asked the store clerk for a can of soda. Nine-year-old Darin Albert was talking aloud in her sleep — in Spanish. The three Kimbri youngsters speak Spanish when they don't want the folks to know what they're saying.

These children are native English-speakers who are learning bilingualism in a program known as "immersion education," which employs the new language as the basic tongue for the curriculum.

Teachers speak only Spanish, students do arithmetic in Spanish-language workbooks and they learn to read in Spanish.

"We're teaching what every other child is learning, but through Spanish," says Hal Wingard, foreign language curriculum specialist for the San Diego Unified School District. "We're not teaching Spanish, we're teaching subject content. Spanish is simply the medium of instruction."

San Diego's immersion program, now in its second year, is the largest in the United States. Others are located in Milwaukee, where the language is German; in Silver Springs, Md., and Plattsburgh, N.Y., which have French programs; and in Culver City, Calif.,

which also offers Spanish.

While relatively new in the United States, immersion education has flourished in Canada for more than a dozen years and it was the Montreal program that encouraged Wingard to start one in San Diego.

Test results from Canadian cities show youngsters in immersion programs on a par in achievement levels — including reading — with children who learn in English-speaking classrooms, Wingard says.

"What they discovered in Montreal is that children learn to read once in their lives," says Wingard. "Once they've learned the process, then any language the child knows — in other words, speaks — he can read."

The only admission requirement for the program is that a child not already be fluent in Spanish. Slow learners are welcome, Wingard says, and face problems no different from a regular classroom.

In a third-grade classroom in San Diego, teams of youngsters compete in a Spanish "multiplication bee" in which one child from each team was given a problem and tried to be first to shout out the answer.

Fifth-graders work on math problems involving percentages. On the classroom walls are charts depicting "El Sistema Planetario Solar." In a fourth-grade classroom, a poster on the wall depicts the human skeleton with its parts identified in Spanish.

"It's phenomenal to go into a classroom and see these children and not know that they're native English-speaking," Wingard remarks.

Slips of the English tongue sometimes happen in the classroom — in the youngsters' conversations, and occasionally by teachers explaining a concept above the children's Spanish comprehension ability.

Those instances are rare in the second year of the program, and more common in kindergarten and in the upper grades where the children started their schooling in English.

Beginning in third grade, part of the school curriculum is conducted in English, no matter how fluent the children are in Spanish.

"We know the children will be handicapped in the spelling of English unless we do something about it," Wingard explains.

"So for the children who begin the program in kindergarten through second grade, they will have an average 15 percent of their class time committed to English in the higher grades for spelling and capitalization. ... We also want them to be able to express themselves in writing through English, so they will be writing stories and poems in English — things we're not sure they would get at home," he continues.

Most parents are enthusiastic about the program, and the children say they enjoy learning a second language.

"I like talking two languages," says 7-year-old Erica Olson. "It's fun talking Spanish."

"My mom put me in this because everybody knew how to talk Spanish in the family," says Gina Galindo, 8, who explained that both her parents were born in Mexico. "She likes how I talk Spanish. Now everybody knows how to talk it."

Donna Kimbri, whose twin 8-year-old daughters and 11-year-old son are all being "immersed," is effusive in her praise.

"I think it's fantastic," she says. "My children speak excellent Spanish as far as I can tell, because I don't understand it. They'll talk to each other in Spanish all the time and they talk to me in Spanish, too, so I'm beginning to pick up a few phrases."

Alan and Laurie Olson, Erica's parents, note that the Canadian studies showed immersed youngsters may fall slightly behind their peers in English for the first couple of years before catching up. The Olsons say they're not worried, but not all parents are as comforted by the statistics that show immersed youngsters eventually overcome the handicap of learning in a foreign language.

The parents most concerned are those whose children are in higher grades and who have more difficulty transferring the learning process from English to Spanish.

"My daughter doesn't understand all the problems in her math book," says Ray Sly about his sixth-grade daughter. "I don't think she's keeping up with other schools. My other children were working on minor algebra in their fifth and sixth years and she's still in basic math. That disturbs me somewhat."

Wingard says he understands the fears of parents like Sly, but stresses that tests given by the school district last spring showed immersion students were doing as well as they would be expected to in a regular class.

"I can never tell a parent that what a child does in our program is the same as he would be doing if he weren't in the program," acknowledges Wingard. "But statistically, the achievement of children in immersion is the same as if they were not in immersion."

"But if you have a child who is a slow learner, he's not going to become a rapid learner in immersion," Wingard says. "What you are going to have is a slow learner who is bilingual."

A Marriage Withstood 75 Years

COVE GAP, W.Va. (AP) - In our anxious age of fragile relationships and fleeting marriages, Isaac and Ella Collins stand together like a pair of patient oaks.

And they've stood that way for 75 years. The southern West Virginia couple recently celebrated their diamond wedding anniversary.

"It was the last day of August," says Mrs. Collins, 95.

Ellie and Ike, as they call each other, can well remember their wedding day, back in 1904. Collins came to the wedding, with his father, a sister and a brother, in a horse-drawn buggy. When he went home, he took his bride with him.

"My mother stayed home to cook supper," he recalls.

Ellie Collins was 21 when she was married. At that time, the limits of her world — and her husband's — extended no further than a couple of miles in any direction.

"Ike's mother gave us a feather bed," she says. "My mother gave us some pillows and some quilts she had made."

"And don't forget the geese," reminds her husband. "Your mother also gave us a bunch of geese."

He shook his head as he remembered the geese.

"They strayed off the next day and we never saw them again. We always thought a peddler got them."

Pipe smoke curled around Ike's huge, white, handlebar mustache as he reflected on the years.

"I've had a mustache since I was a young man," says Collins, who is 97. "Always hated to shave my upper lip."

But Ellie can remember Ike when his upper lip was as bare as a newly-mowed hayfield.

"He was 13 when we met," she says. "I was struck on him from the first."

"Me, too," Ike says. "Ellie was the only sweetheart I ever had. Our parents owned adjoining farms and we went to school together in a one-room school."

Ike and Ellie Collins have stayed put during their lives together. They live in a small mobile home in Cove Gap, about 40 miles south of Huntington on the northern edge of the southern West Virginia coalfields. They live next to their son, Burl, who is in his 70s. They were born right nearby.

"Where we live now is in Wayne County," says the elder Collins. "We were born just over the hill, in Lincoln County. Until eight years ago, Ellie and me lived up on top of the hill, just a couple of miles from here."

At the beginning of their marriage, Ike and Ellie Collins lived with his parents in a log cabin built by Collins' grandfather.

"My parents moved out after a few months," he says. "They went over to Big Creek to set up a store."

Shortly after his parents departed, Collins built a new home for himself and his bride. By then, she was pregnant.

"I cut the logs and hauled them down to the sawmill," he recalls. "Then I brought them back up the hill and planned them by hand. When I was finished, we had the first frame home in these parts."

Collins took over his grandfather's 190-acre farm, a rugged expanse of hills and hollows. He raised cows, corn, wheat, sheep and pigs, among other things. He also cut plenty of timber.

"I went timberin' the day after we were married," he recalls. "Didn't believe in honeymoons. Still don't."

Ellie, meanwhile, raised a vegetable garden, cooked and canned. She also made quilts and blankets, carding the wool from the sheep.

And she had five children, four of whom survived. Each child received a feather bed made by his mother, who had gotten another flock of geese and had plucked their soft, downy underfeathers.

"We never had electricity or running water until we moved down off the hill," says Ike Collins. "And I never owned an automobile or any other motor vehicle. But I drove plenty of teams of horses, and oxen and mules."

In the past few years, however, Ike and Ellie have slowed down. Ike Collins now spends a lot of time napping in a bedroom that contains a large picture of a handsome, brown-haired young couple.

"That was taken a few months after we were married," says Ellie Collins.

Yesterday's Cryptquip - LOCAL POLITICIAN ASPIRES TO RE-ELECTION.

Today's Cryptquip clue: L equals O

Gary's Mother Bringing Suit

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The mother of 11-year-old television star Gary Coleman has filed a $1 million damage suit contending television interviewers met with her talkative son under false pretenses.

Edmonia Coleman filed the suit Tuesday in Superior Court against the American Broadcasting Co. and its network news-feature show, "20-20."

She charged that "20-20" interviewed her son, who stars on the NBC series "Diff'rent Strokes," after permission had been denied. And Mrs. Coleman alleged that the interviewers gained access to her son's dressing room under false pretenses.

Computer Counseling Is Realized

By KILEY ARMSTRONG
Associated Press Writer
DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — First it was computerized dating services. Now couples who need help staying together can turn to computerized marriage counseling.

More than 1,500 couples, married, engaged and otherwise, have used the Relationship Intimacy Barometer since it was introduced last summer by marriage counselor P.J. McDonald of Des Moines, McDonald says.

RIB, which consists of a questionnaire, workbook and computer printout, "uncovers latent information" about the couples' similarities and conflicts, said McDonald, who with his wife, a counselor, and Des Moines computer analysts Charles Cleveland and Ellen Pirro has formed a company called Gray Matter Inc. to process the questionnaires for counselors around the nation.

For Mary and Joe, her husband of 14 years, the prescription was "to develop more openness and spontaneity."

The couple, who asked that their real names and hometown not be disclosed, each took about an hour filling out a questionnaire, answering questions about their relationship on a scale from one to seven.

For example, to the question, "How do you summarize your relationship?" the choices range from "We share things and enjoy every minute of our life together" to "I do my thing and my partner does his-hers."

After sending their questionnaire for computer analysis, Joe and Mary spent about six hours discussing questions from the workbook. They wrote which times they felt the need for closeness and when they needed to be alone, how they communicate without words and which ingredients of the relationship — such as love, sex, communication — are most important to each partner, and compared their own evaluations to the computer's conclusions.

The two said in a recent interview they learned they had a "communications breakdown."

"Both of us are extremely busy and we tend to hold grudges," said Joe, an attorney. "We've learned to share how we feel and how to handle being angry. We don't hold things inside now."

McDonald said the computer results cost $10, but a professional marriage counselor is needed to interpret them.

He says the computer saves hours of counseling time and conveys credibility by "allowing the clients to see the results in black and white, rather than just taking the word of a marriage counselor."

"Everybody's interested in finding out about themselves," Joe said. "We've lived together 14 years and there still are things we don't know about each other."

Something Sets Off A Delayed Stress

By BARRY RENFREW
Associated Press Writer
HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — For years, the men seem calm.

Then something sets off the guns in their heads, the long silent guns of Vietnam, bringing back the trauma of combat and reopening the festering wounds.

Harold Mann, who was a medic in Vietnam, held 27 persons hostage at gunpoint in a tiny church in St. Albans, W.Va., nine days ago. He surrendered after making an obscene statement on the radio in which he complained of medical problems the military had ignored.

Clinical psychologists believe the Vietnam veterans who explode so violently are reacting to delayed combat stress, the haunting return of the memories and fears of combat in Vietnam.

"These people are not crazy," said Don Crawford, a Veterans Administration official. "They've been traumatized by war and need help to adjust."

Little is known about the delayed stress reaction. Researchers are just starting to study the problem, and they warn that Mann will not be the last veteran to explode.

"They have flashbacks of injury and death. In one case, a vet kept seeing decapitated bodies after 10 years of no problems," said Malcolm Farmer, head of counseling at a local VA center.

"We're going to have to live with it for years and years," said Crawford. "If we had started doing something about it 10 years ago it might have been better. Now the problems are complex beyond our understanding."

"We've made a national error that we're going to have to live with," Crawford said.

In an effort to deal with delayed stress and other chronic problems that trouble veterans, Congress this summer authorized the VA to set up Operation Outreach. Under Crawford's direction, 71 special counseling centers are being set up around the country.

The program was first proposed eight years ago.

Larry Lapelle, a VA vocational counselor in Huntington, dealt with Mann in a number of veterans programs. He also grew up with Ashby Leach, the Vietnam vet from Huntington who held 13 persons hostage at the Cleveland headquarters of the Chessie System railroad in 1976.

Both men raged at what they said was the indifference of America to the problems and anguish of Vietnam vets. Before their outbursts, they were quite different, Lapelle said.

Mann, working as an ambulance paramedic, was "very, very upset about where he was in life and what he wanted to do," Lapelle said. Leach — a former Chessie employee — "was a pretty solid citizen without any problems." Leach is now in an Ohio prison. Mann, charged with kidnapping, is at Weston State Hospital for psychiatric tests.

Lapelle said Mann's "reactions were quite normal."

"We just don't know that much about these explosions. Maybe more contact with Mann could have prevented it. But there was just no time," he said.

Charles Figley, professor of psychology at Purdue University and a pioneer in the study of delayed stress reaction, described the phenomenon as the eruption of long-simmering pressures and memories.

"Delayed stress basically is putting off dealing with an extremely difficult period in life," he said.

Combat stress is not new but Vietnam veterans faced unique conditions in combat and at home, Figley said. A nightmarish guerrilla war in a threatening, alien world and the nation's indifference when they returned clouded their minds with feelings that have never been confronted, he said.

"They're acting out of resentment, the feeling that they gave part of their lives and deserve some recognition," Figley said. "If you scratch any Vietnam veteran that hostility will come through. Unlike veterans of other wars they never received any recognition."

Studies suggest that up to 85 percent of Vietnam combat veterans are troubled by war memories and a sense of "bitterness and resentment over feelings of being used," Figley said. Within that group, as many as 2,500 veterans may be teetering on the edge of psychopathic rage, Figley estimated.

"We would predict that these people are at a highly extreme risk," he said. "And it's never going to go away."

Figley links the surfacing of stress to the veterans' age. "Many of them are in their 30s now, which is a very difficult time when most people naturally reflect on their lives and achievements," he said.

The way soldiers entered and left Vietnam alone, rather than in units where buddies could lend emotional support, also contributed to the stress, he said.

When Vietnam vets came home, often within days of leaving combat zones, "the only way they could deal with their experiences was with themselves. If they tried to talk to their wives or families, they didn't want to know," Figley said.

Steven Champlin, a spokesman for Vietnam Veterans of America in Washington, said the problem "is going to get worse. When they come out of the woodwork, it's unclear what we're going to be able to do about it."

Dear Omar:

Thanks for your recent letters. While dusting off my records, I unearthed a hand that illustrates the insidiousness of falling into a rhythm of doubling. This hand almost cost us a semifinal match in the Vanderbilt Team Championship.

Even experienced players will, from time to time, be swept away by the desire to punish the opponents for a supposed indiscretion. If the opposition appears to be floundering and runs from one contract to another, doubles seem to flow automatically—not from logic but from impulse. I know of some players who take advantage of this thirst for blood by what I call "round-robin" bidding—they bid a number of suits they do not have in an effort to induce opponents to double all contracts, including the final landing spot, which they expect to make.

On this hand, our side fell into this trap. My partner made a distributional opening bid of one club, an action I heartily endorse. Since two-suited hands are awkward to handle with a takeout double, South chose to "pussyfoot" with a simple overcall of one spade.

The trouble started when I elected to double one spade. I am convinced that this was bad strategy on my part. When you make a low-level penalty double with nothing but length and strength in the adversely bid suit, more often than not the opponents will maneuver themselves into a superior spot. Partner may then double, relying on you to take tricks which do not materialize in the play.

East's double of two hearts was natural, and South removed to two no trump with the diamond suit as backbone. I passed, as did North, and my partner made an impulsive double. If he had given the hand more thought, he would have known that I couldn't have any values in diamonds. After all, he was known to have strength in clubs and hearts and I had made a penalty double of spades. With diamond values as well, I would have doubled two no trump myself and not passed the decision back to him. The contract was fulfilled with an overtrick.

We had gotten caught in the swing!

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deal opening leaders!" SERVING YOU COMES FIRST IN THE KROGER SAV-ON GARDEN

WE MOVE WITH THE CROPS TO BRING YOU THE CREAM!

From Michigan to California. From the Carolina's to Missouri. From New Jersey to Idaho. From planting to harvest our buyers travel to find the cream of each crop. They study the planting. They choose the growing region that promises the most abundant, high quality products. And finally, before buying, they inspect the crops personally.

They bring you the best values throughout the year and remain as cost conscious as possible, too. That includes keeping their buying to the closest sales facilities so as to take advantage of the lowest freight costs.

It takes constant movement. Dedicated attention to growth, conditions and product outcome. And it's all done with extreme care. So we can bring you high quality at the lowest cost ... all year.

Kroger ... working to bring you lower prices.
