Up 1 Percent In October

Continuing Price Spiral Seen

By EILEEN ALT POWELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Higher prices for energy products and 1980-model cars helped push wholesale prices up 1 percent in October, the government said today.

The overall increase, following a 1.4 percent surge in September, occurred despite a 0.1 percent dip in wholesale food prices.

Although food-price decline was a hopeful sign for inflation-weary consumers, few other figures in the Labor Department's Producer Price Index signaled an end to the persistent price spiral.

John Early, a Labor Department economist, said "November and December could be pretty much a repeat" of the October performance.

Prices at the producer level - one step short of retail grocery, drug and department store shelves - have accelerated at an annual rate of 12.3 percent in the first 10 months this year, Early said.

That could make 1979 the worst since 1974, when producer prices went up 18.3 percent, he said.

Changes in the Producer Price Index are watched carefully because they often show up after a month or two lag at retail stores.

Retail prices in September, the most recent month available, were 12 percent higher than in September 1978. And they have been rising at the fastest rate since 1946, when the government lifted World War II price controls.

Most of the October increase was blamed on rising energy costs, which pushed the prices of non-food items up 1.4 percent, the largest jump for one month this year.

Gasoline prices were up 5.1 percent for the month and home heating oil rose 4.7 percent, the report said.

Early noted that "this is less than the 6.2 percent (for gasoline) and 7.9 percent (for heating oil) of September, but not by much."

Energy prices, in fact, were 60.5 percent higher in October than they were in the same month last year. This reflects, in good part, the crude oil increases imposed by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries since the start of 1979.

Prices for 1980 passenger cars, reflected in the index for the first time, rose 0.6 percent last month after declining for several months during the nationwide car sales slump.

Food prices came down in large part because of drops in the wholesale cost of meat.

The Producer Price Index in October stood at 223.7. That means that goods that cost $100 at wholesale in 1967 cost $223.70 last month. The figure was 12.1 percent higher than in October 1978.

Baker Enters On Anti-SALT Note

DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr. declared his candidacy for president today, coupling a warning that "America has lost its margin for error" with a new appeal for defeat of the SALT II treaty.

Departing from the traditional generalities of presidential announcement speeches, Baker devoted a major section of his brief statement to the proposed arms treaty between the United States and the Soviet Union.

"Approval of this treaty with its acceptance of Soviet strategic superiority could guarantee to the Soviet Union the margin for error that used to be ours," said Baker, who as Republican leader of the Senate has emerged as a key opponent of the pact.

Referring to President Carter and the president's rival for the Democratic presidential nomination, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, Baker said Carter negotiated SALT and Kennedy supports it.

"They may be on the right political side," he said. "But they are short-sighted and they are wrong."

Baker said the nation needs a president who will "face up to the realities of a Soviet foreign policy that probes every weakness and fills every vacuum, a president to insist on defenses strong enough through the next generation to give us the confidence to stand tall again.

"I am ready to be that president," he declared.

He also said he could bring "unity and action" to deal with the nation's domestic problems and described himself as "articulate enough... tough enough... honest enough... compassionate enough... young enough... experienced enough" to provide the leadership the nation needs.

In an appeal to fellow Republicans, Baker said he can win votes "in the South and in the North, on the farms and in the cities, with the whites and with the blacks, with the old and with the young."

Baker, who describes himself as a "center of gravity" politician, declared his candidacy in the Senate Caucus Room, a traditional forum for launching presidential campaigns.

Tanker Collides In Gulf

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
Associated Press Writer

GALVESTON, Texas (AP)

A tanker carrying 400,000 barrels of crude oil collided with a freighter in the Gulf of Mexico today, burst into flames and sank, the Coast Guard said. Three crewmen were reported killed and more than a dozen injured.

The freighter, also ablaze, was reported stuck on right full rudder with the engines running. The ship was said to be making a large circle in a area dotted with oil drilling platforms.

Coast Guard Lt. Cmdr. George Davis said from New Orleans, "We've got oil and fire all over the place out there."

The Coast Guard said tugs would attempt to get behind the freighter and either ground it or move it away from the drilling rigs. Waters in the area are about 40 feet deep.

Private boats joined Coast Guard vessels and helicopters in rescuing crewmen from the site about four miles east-southeast of the eastern tip of Galveston Island. Four-foot seas rolled gently under clear skies.

Coast Guard Lt. Tom Pearson said two crewmen from the tanker were dead. He said a helicopter had hoisted 10 Japanese crewmen from one vessel and two from the other.

Pearson also said initial reports from the scene said an oil slick about one mile long was burning.

He said the collision involved the Liberian-registered tanker Burma Agata and a Greek-registered freighter, Mimosas, sailing out of Cyprus.

A spokesman at John Sealy Hospital here said 12 crewmen from the ships had been admitted, all apparently suffering minor injuries.

$1.5 Billion In Chrysler Aid Asked Solons

WASHINGTON (AP) -

The Carter administration, saying economic stability must be preserved, asked Congress today to approve up to $1.5 billion in federal loan guarantees to help the struggling Chrysler Corp. avert bankruptcy.

The proposed aid package is roughly double the sum the administration previously indicated it would be willing to seek from Congress to keep the nation's No. 3 automaker afloat.

Busy Agenda

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners will meet Monday at 10 a.m. at the Pitt County Court House.

Included on the agenda is the consideration of bids for a new bed tower at Pitt Memorial Hospital and for a new base radio for the hospital; a request for funds from the Southern Flue Cured Tobacco Festival; a request from J. H. Hudson to purchase three leaded glass windows in the Tucker Building; and a request by the N.C. Department of Commerce for the county to conduct an energy inspection program to be funded by the state.

Other items include: a request for clarification on control of the Senior Citizens Center; a request by Frankie Singleton for a resolution on laying cables across private roads and pathways; and consideration of appointments to the Tar River Ports Commission, the Mental Health area board, and to the 1980 Census Complete Count Committee.

Mamie Dies In Her Sleep

WASHINGTON (AP) - Former first lady Mamie Eisenhower died peacefully in her sleep early today at Walter Reed Army Medical Center.

Mrs. Eisenhower, widow of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, would have observed her 83rd birthday on Nov. 14.

Doctors attributed Mrs. Eisenhower's death at 1:35 a.m. EST to heart failure, hospital spokesman Peter Esker said.

As her husband planned, Mrs. Eisenhower will be buried beside him in a small chapel on the grounds of the Eisenhower Library in Abilene, Kan. The funeral will be Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Eisenhower, in delicate health and bedridden for months, suffered a stroke Sept. 25, 1979, and was brought to the hospital here by ambulance from her farm at Gettysburg, Pa.

The stroke paralyzed her right arm and impaired the use of her right leg. She began physical therapy almost immediately.

Just as the world knew America's 34th president by the homely childhood nickname of "Ike," so was his wife recognized simply as "Mamie." Her trademark - from youth through old age, no matter what the fashion - was the way she wore her hair in bangs across the forehead.

Mrs. Eisenhower had lived alone and lonely on the farm at the edge of the Civil War battlefield, ever since her beloved Ike died in 1969. Their marriage, begun when he was a young lieutenant in the Army, had lasted nearly 53 years.

"I miss this man of mine; he was my life," Mrs. Eisenhower would tell interviewers.

Since Eisenhower's death, his widow lavished her attention on her four grandchildren, the children of son John and his wife Barbara, and her four great-granddaughters.

The Eisenhowers' only other child, a son named Doud Dwight, died in 1921 of scarlet fever at the age of three.

Eisenhower, a West Point graduate reared in Abilene, Kan., and Mamie Doud, who grew up in wealth in Colorado, were married on July 1, 1916, the day he was promoted to first lieutenant. She was always behind him, if not at his side, as Eisenhower rose through the ranks to five-star general and Supreme commander of the allied war effort in Europe in World War II.

Just as easily she stepped into the role of first lady when the military commander became commander-in-chief as the nation's 34th president. She was a gracious White House hostess and often was found on the lists of best-dressed women, although she never tried for a role or identity of her own.

HOW COSTLY?

How much does it cost to run for municipal office in Greenville? Is it public record what each candidate spent in the last election? E. W.

According to Gail Meeks, Assistant to the Greenville City Manager, the filing fee for the mayor's office is $30; for a City Council seat, $12. The law does not require candidates in a non-partisan election to make public their campaign expenses and contributions, she said.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

THANK YOU

The family of Kristi Whitehead, the burn victim for whom a yard sale was held and a special fund was set up thanks the people of Greenville. "People here who didn't even know my niece nor my brother and his wife have helped so very much. God bless every one of them," Susan Whitehead told Hotline. An appeal for the Whitehead family was run in this column Sept. 20.

Japanese Hog Producers Study Pitt System

By REBECCA BUFFALO

Reflector Staff Writer

East met West Wednesday at Frankie Singleton's farm, Sandy Acres, for a discussion of hog production and a look at a hog waste management system.

A group of hog producers affiliated with the Soga-NoYa Swine Business of Japan toured the Clark's Neck facility, along with North Carolina State University agricultural extension specialist Dr. David Spruill and Mike Regans, Pitt County extension agent.

According to Terry Hashida, Soga-No-Ya director in charge of planning, research and development, the hog producers have visited 34 foreign countries to view various swine operations. According to Hashida, who served as interpreter for the seven-man group, the men have been "very impressed with North Carolina industry." The producers will use ideas from North Carolina in their operations.

"We have 7,000 sows at present, and plan to expand to a 11,000 sow business," said Hashida. "We are marketing monthly around 10,000 hogs."

"The major reason we are here is because we understand North Carolina has many new advanced housing facilities for swine operations," Hashida continued.

Dr. Spruill, who spent three years in Japan studying the hog market-situation, explained that the climate in Tokyo and Raleigh is roughly the same. Therefore, the Japanese producers are interested in viewing successful hog operations.

The producers were interested in taking a look at Singleton's waste management system. According to Dr. Spruill, the Japanese have to maintain a very expensive management system. The price of land in Japan is exorbitant, which deters the producers from buying extra land to spread hog waste. Also, the Japanese equivalent of the Environmental Protection Agency is very stringent in its requirement of hog waste handling.

"We want to show them what we are doing, help them get some ideas, so they can

Specialty Cookbooks Has 1980 Olympian's Recipes

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

If you're a reader of cookbooks (many of them are available at public libraries) or a cookbook collector, you know that nowadays these com-pilations often specialize. They may deal with only one food subject — and it may be anything from avocados to zucchini, pasta to pie.

Now a specialty cookbook has taken a new turn. Exactly 173 prospective U.S. participants in the 1980 Olympic Games in Moscow enjoy cooking; recipes they like to use have been published recently in a soft-cover book.

The cookbook includes prospective participants in every Olympic category: archery; athletics; track and field; basketball; boxing; canoe and kayak; cycling; diving; equestrian; fencing; field hockey; gymnastics; judo; modern pentathlon; rowing; shooting; soccer football; swimming; team handball; volleyball; water polo; weightlifting; wrestling and yachting.

The book also gives the Moscow Olympic Games' schedule of events (July 19-Aug. 3, 1980).

With the cookbook in hand, you can take your pick of athletes and their favorite recipes — ranging from appetizers to desserts.

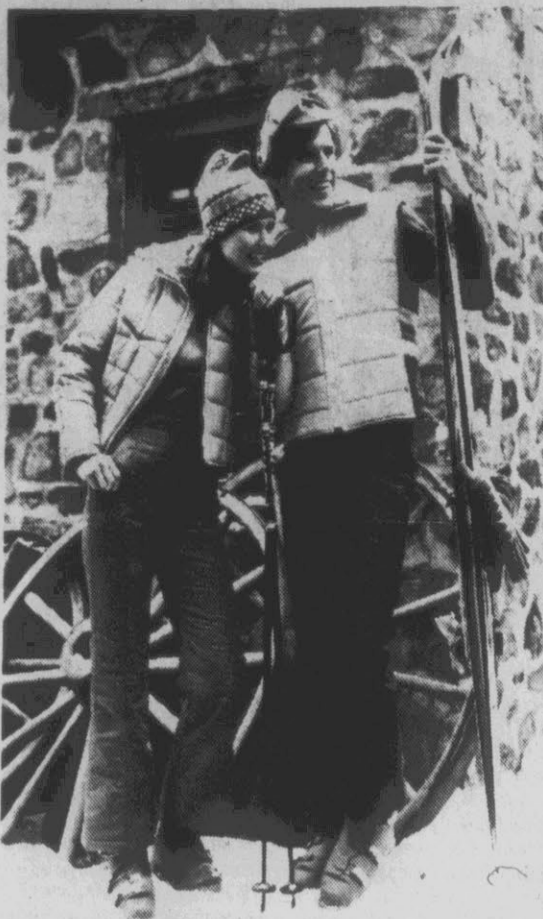

I picked 22-year-old Michael Lee Bruner and his chicken recipe. Michael, a recent graduate of Stanford University, is now postponing work in the graphic-arts field to train 33 hours a week for the 1980 Olympics. My choice was a natural one: Mike is the only prospective participant of whose cooking I have personal knowledge.

Mike's father, Dennis Bruner of California, is a longtime friend of mine. The day the 1980 Olympic Games cookbook came across my desk, Dennis was visiting New York City (where I live) and we were meeting for dinner. I took along the cookbook and asked Dennis for the lowdown: the chicken and salad recipes Mike contributed are ones he learned from his mother. This was of particular interest because through the years Dennis has kept me informed of his wife Myra's culinary talents.

When we tried it in our test kitchen, we found the Bruner chicken recipe easy to make and superb.

Michael Bruner won two gold medals in the 1976 Olympics and set a world record for the butterfly. In 1977, as a member of the U.S. swim team competing in the U.S.S.R., he placed first in the butterfly event.

How did his swimming career start? When he told his family he'd like to beat the best swimmer at the neighborhood pool, his father suggested he join a local swim club and work at his swimming seriously. The coach there recognized his potentialities. The rest is sports history. Now let's see what happens in 1980.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

People are so crabby lately and I've been trying to put my finger on it.

Is it unemployment? SALT II? Nuclear controversy? Fuel shortages? Inflation?

That may be part of it, but I think I'm on to something that really makes sense. Listen to this.

There are 217 million people in this country. There are 138 million people who own a total of 143 million cars. There are 28 THOUSAND legal parking places.

Do you have any idea what that can do to a nation? I see it every day. Sweet little old ladies driving around in circles in shopping centers spending their final days on earth writing obscene messages in the dust on the trunks of small cars.

Civilized men turned informers about a car in a tow-away zone. When it is removed, they pull into the spot.

I had my license only a few months when my small son broke his leg on a swing set. I scooped him up, put him in the car and came to a screeching halt in front of the emergency door of the hospital. "Hey lady," yelled a policeman, "You can't park there."

"I've got a 53 pound boy with a broken leg," I shouted.

"Visitor parking is in Section C...just beyond Handicapped."

The problem continues to get worse. No wonder graduates of universities are older now. They spend an extra three years trying to find a place to park.

Consider the frustration of a student in an Eastern school who was parked illegally and left the following note on his windshield.

"Have mercy. Attention police officer. I know my car is parked illegally. Could you please give me a break. My starter is dead and won't start on a cold day.

"I have done nothing this semester but worry about this car, park it, pay tickets, and pick it up after being towed. I'm doing the best I can. It will be moved tomorrow... somehow."

"I have no more funds for tickets or towing. My friends are tired of pushing this thing around."

"Please don't tow it. If you do, at least tow it to Gordie's University Texaco Station. I will commit suicide if you do otherwise. I cannot handle the situation."

I rest my case.

He Cares For A Drudge

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have been seeing my lady for three years and want to marry her. "M" is 55 and I am 62. I have a nice home, no financial worries and live alone. My problem is getting "M" away from her family. She works eight hours a day as an accountant while caring fully for her 94-year-old mother who is blind and incontinent. "M" also has a 65-year-old brother, recently retired. He's a loner, smokes incessantly, is 100 pounds overweight and has an unexplainable control over "M." I can see her only a few hours on Saturdays. Brother is so possessive that I am not even permitted the pleasure of washing and waxing "M's" car! I want a wife, not a part-time lover.

I really need her, Abby. Her family has had her 55 years. She does all the housework, laundry (in an antique washer), cooking and baking, and she's always tired. She's had four operations for kidney stones and she's not strong, yet she continues to take this beating. She spends her vacation at home washing walls, floors and curtains.

I don't feel accepted in the family. I'm never invited to dinner—even on holidays. "M" says she loves me but can't marry me until her mother dies. I question whether "M" can ever break away from her brother. I don't want to take him on our honeymoon, but I feel he is psychologically "married" to my lady. Please answer me.

MR. X

DEAR MR. X: The longest wait in the world can be waiting for someone to die. Your lady is not a prisoner of her family—she has chosen to take a beating, work herself to a frazzle and let her brother control her. SHE isn't the victim—YOU are for meekly accepting her terms.

DEAR ABBY: When I was 20 and my husband was 23 we were sure we never wanted any children, so he got a vasectomy.

Now, five years later, I find that I have changed my mind, and I desperately want at least one child. My husband still wants no children, and that is my problem.

He refuses to even discuss it. He doesn't even want to associate with couples who have children. (They are a "bad influence" on me.) He will not consider adoption, artificial insemination or vasectomy reversal surgery.

He gets angry if I mention it. I can't get any reason out of him for not wanting children except, "I don't want any more responsibility," or "We will be too tied down and broke to do anything else."

If I comment on how cute a baby is on a TV commercial, he gets hostile.

How can I get him to change his mind, Abby? I am determined not to go through life without at least one child.

CHILDLESS

DEAR CHILDLESS: Quit begging him to change his mind. If, in a weak moment, he were to give in just to please you, from what you tell me he would make a poor father. If you are determined not to go through life without a child, you may have to find another husband.

DEAR ABBY: As non-smokers, you and I are paying too high a premium for fire insurance. No one is permitted to smoke in my home, yet I am charged the same premium as the chain smoker who falls asleep with a cigarette in his mouth.

I am looking for an insurance company that recognizes the fact that 40 percent of all home fires are started by cigarettes, and therefore will allow a substantial discount to those who ban cigarettes from their homes.

Do you have any leads?

N.A. IN BINGHAMTON, N.Y.

DEAR N.A.: No. But after this hits print, if there is such an insurance company, I may.

If you need help in writing letters of sympathy, congratulations or thank-you letters, get Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for all Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Forward Pass

Today the forward pass is as much a part of football as shoulder pads and helmets. But when Notre Dame used it to beat Army on this day in 1913, the pass was still unusual. 19th century football was mostly running, kicking, tackling, and blocking. By the early 1900s, it had become so violent that President Theodore Roosevelt threatened to ban the sport unless it became safer. A rule change in 1906 allowed a back to throw the ball forward to another player. The first forward pass was thrown that same year, but it wasn't until 1913 that Notre Dame proved it could be used to win football games.

Crime Pays Only If On Right Side

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — If you're on the right side of the law, crime pays in North Carolina — at least when it comes to marijuana busts.

Many North Carolina residents are benefitting from recent large pot busts in the state to the tune of three quarters of a million dollars.

For instance, crime is paying for the education of school children in Hyde County and a university research vessel.

Property and cash valued at more than $750,000 either confiscated or paid through court-approved settlements, have been earmarked for state and county agencies.

"It's just a boon for us," said a representative of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, which received a 73-foot fishing trawler valued at $250,000.

The vessel was seized with 24 tons of marijuana aboard in a Craven County raid in February of last year.

The largest crime payment went to the Hyde County School system, a windfall of nearly $520,000 from a plea-bargaining arrangement with five defendants convicted of smuggling 14 tons of marijuana into the county last January.

In return for five-year prison terms, the defendants agreed to voluntary payments, fines and donations of property.

Hyde County Superintendent D. Scott Coble said Wednesday about $450,000 in cash had been placed in a capital reserve fund that will earn about $40,000 in interest annually at current rates.

Coble says the money will probably be used for capital improvements to the county's four schools that house 1,189 students.

As part of the same settlement, the Hyde County Sheriff's Office received $20,000 that was earmarked for new cars. The State Bureau of Investigation got $30,000 for its special investigation unit.

In a Pitt County case, the SBI received property and cash valued at $114,000. Officers seized 8,500 pounds of pot in that case. The money is expected to be spent for a new aircraft used in investigations and office remodeling.

State Ass'n Posts For Area's Nurses

Three nurses from the east were named to offices in the North Carolina Nurses' Association, which held its annual convention in Raleigh this past weekend.

Carol Cox of Greenville and Judy Wright of Plymouth were named Eastern N. C. representatives to the Commission on Health Affairs. Cox is a member of the faculty of the East Carolina University School of Nursing and Wright is nursing supervisor of the Washington County Health Department.

Ginnie Tate of Greenville was named to the nominating committee of the Association. She is associate director of nursing of the Eastern Area Health Education Center here and is director of continuing education of the ECU School of Nursing.

Tate said the group had as its "most powerful speaker" Barbara Nichols, president of the American Nursing Association, its first black president.

There was considerable discussion of the new Nurse Practice Law, which must be enacted prior to the N. C. Sunset Law deadline, Tate said.

Hard Choice For Democrats

It's positively semi-official now that Sen. Edward Kennedy will seek the Democratic nomination.

Brother-in-law Stephen Smith announced the Kennedy for President Committee which puts the senator in the race. The formal announcement is to come Nov. 7.

Immediately the Democratic party began falling apart. The mayor of Chicago lined up behind Sen. Kennedy as did a federal employees union, along with various political malcontents.

The party is on a collision course between a president in power and a major figure in the party driving for the position.

The end result could be a debacle which might mean there will not be a Democratic president in the White House in 1981.

Will Chappaquiddick be an issue in the primary and election campaigns? You can bet it will... and it should be. The fact that the tragedy occurred is not so important to the future of the nation, but Sen. Kennedy's attempt to cover up afterwards is most important in sizing up the character of the man who wants to lead our nation.

Voters have to ask if his reaction would be the same in the event he gained the White House and had to deal with a national crisis.

Kennedy has a lot of power in the Democratic Party, perhaps enough to snare the Democratic nomination next year. But then the question goes to the voters, and a large percentage of them will have a lot of doubts about Kennedy's fiber. The choice would be between Kennedy and the Republican nominee. After a bruising Democratic party fight, would anybody bet on who would win?

Enough Political Races For Everyone

There ought to be enough races for everyone in the election year of 1980.

House Speaker Carl J. Stewart, Jr. made it a Democratic party fight for the lieutenant governorship in formally announcing his candidacy this week.

Green will be opposing the incumbent Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green.

Look for this one to be a hard fought, perhaps bitter campaign.

Increased Taxes Assured

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Taxes, along with death, are two certainties of life; and even death is taxed.

Almost as certain is the continued rise in taxes as expanding governmental bureaucracies enjoy their unique rewards from population growth, inflationary increases in individual income, and economic growth of North Carolina which produces more jobs on which higher taxes are paid, and more goods and property to be taxed.

From 1960 till 1978, North Carolina tax collections (state and local governments combined) have increased by 450 percent.

This state now ranks 15th in the nation in total tax dollars collected from her citizens, with the latest firm figures showing combined state and local tax revenues of $3.2 billion in 1977. It is estimated that figure now tops $4 billion.

How does this compare with some other states? California and New York are by far the wealthiest, collecting more than $23 billion. A sharp drop to third-place Illinois shows about $10 billion, and then Pennsylvania with over $9 billion.

The Take

Texas and Michigan collections top $8 billion, followed by Ohio, New Jersey, Massachusetts, and Florida in the $6 to 7 billion range.

North Carolina is in the same league with Georgia, Indiana, Maryland and Virginia; but more than double the take in South Carolina.

Total tax dollars collected, of course, don't tell the whole story; and an entire section of the state's 1978 Tax Guide is devoted to various comparison methods designed to show how North Carolina measures up nationally and compared to other states.

Two key comparison methods are employed: the amount of taxes paid per capita and the amount of taxes paid per $1,000 of personal income. The second measure is considered the more complete way to judge tax effort, and reflects ability to pay based upon varying resources from state to state.

Ranked on tax burden per capita, North Carolina ranks near the bottom nationally (45th), just above Tennessee, South Carolina, Mississippi, Alabama and Arkansas. Ranked on burden per $1,000 of personal income, this state ranks 38th. Alaska ranks first in both categories; New York second and California third.

While the combined state and local tax burden is considerably lower here than average, the state tax effort alone is close to the national average. A very low local tax burden produces the state's low over-all tax effort.

Sources

Where does the money come from? The Tax Guide makes the point that "North Carolina relies more heavily on the individual income tax... than is typical of the average state." This state gets nearly one-fourth of its income from the individual income tax, compared to less than 12 percent in other Southeastern states, and 14.5

BILL NOBLITT

In spending the tax dollars, North Carolina puts more effort on education — and significantly more on higher education — than the typical state elsewhere in the nation. All education captures 44.5 percent of state and local tax dollars. Local schools get 29 percent in this state compared to 26 percent nationally and 25.3 percent in the Southeast. Higher education gets nearly 14 percent compared to 9.6 percent nationally and 10.5 percent in the Southeast.

Food Prices Dipped

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Shoppers got a rare break at the grocery store during October, according to an Associated Press marketbasket survey which showed the first drop in prices since June.

The decrease — two-tenths of a percent in the average cost of a random selection of food and non-food items — was only the third decline this year. Prices have increased in each of the other seven months of 1979.

The AP drew up a random list of 15 commonly purchased items, checked the price at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973 and has rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month. One item, chocolate chip cookies, was dropped from the list after the manufacturer discontinued the package size used in the survey.

The latest check showed that the marketbasket total increased at the survey store in five cities last month and decreased in eight cities. On an overall basis, the average marketbasket bill at the checklist stores was two-tenths of a percent lower at the end of October than it was at the start.

The news was not all good, however. Consumers found higher prices for breakfast staples like butter, eggs and milk which partially offset declines in the cost of meat.

The rises reflect increased demand which has risen faster than the supply. Milk production, for example, is expected to be about 1 percent larger than in 1978, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture. But consumers have been turning to cheese and other milk products as an alternative source of protein to expensive meat, keeping demand and prices high. An increase in government price supports for milk also has boosted prices.

The October decrease in the marketbasket bill compared with a September increase of four-tenths of a percent and an October 1978 rise of 1.7 percent.

Looking at today's prices and those at the start of the year, the AP found that the marketbasket bill at the checklist store increased by just under 6 percent during the first 10 months of 1979. The only declines came in February, June and October.

The food component of the marketbasket has been responsible for much of the increase. When the food items in the marketbasket were tallied separately, the AP found that the total at the checklist stores was up an average of 7.3 percent — more than one percentage point higher than the total for the food and non-food items together.

The items on the AP checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice concentrate, coffee, paper towels, butter, Grade-A medium white eggs, creamy peanut butter, laundry detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, milk, frankfurters and granulated sugar. The cities checked were: Albuquerque, N.M., Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, R.I., Salt Lake City and Seattle.

Power Of A President

Terence Smith of the New York Times ponders a well-known fact but, unhappily, gets it all wrong. President Carter, observed Mr. Smith, finds himself having to take responsibility for matters still removed from federal authority (hard though these are to find). There was, for instance, the lady at a recent town meeting who stood up and advised the president that much energy could be saved if he would cut down on the number of stop lights. The president smiled and said that he had no control over the number of stop lights. It is surprising he didn't tell the lady to take her complaints to Exxon.

The grander theme of Mr. Smith's meditation is that we have arrived at the point where the federal government is assumed to be responsible for everything, and at the point where the government is anthropomorphized in the public mind as — the president of the United States. Consider the drop in Carter's popularity: it is in inverse proportion to the rise in inflation. That means, says Mr. Smith, that people tend to blame the president for inflation. Mr. Smith quotes a political science professor at Syracuse University who ought to be in another business. He said that the president of General Motors "has far more direct power over the economy when he sets the price of a new car than the president of the United States when he sets policy."

That statement is breathtaking in its ignorance and mischievous in its implications.

Assuming that the president of General Motors had the unilateral authority to raise the price of his automobiles (which he doesn't — a weighty board of directors would pass on substantial raises), I remind the professor that he has the absolute authority to decline to buy a General Motors car and still remain quite mobile. I haven't owned a GM car (no slight intended) since 1967, and in the 12 intervening years have gadded about without any sense of strain. There is, to begin with, a Ford or a Chrysler or an AMC available. Then there are about three dozen foreign models. And (the greatest dampener on extortionate pricing) there is the weightiest competitor of them all: the second-hand market.

But here is what the president of the United States can do about the economy. He can appoint the members of the Federal Reserve Board. He can present to Congress a pared-down budget. He can veto spending bills. He can endorse sunset legislation for the regulatory agencies, which add so much to the cost of doing business. He can pick his own economic advisors. Gerald Ford, availing himself of such powers as these, spearheaded a drop in the inflation rate from 10 percent to 4 percent. And all that happened after OPEC had quadrupled the price of oil. The final power of the president is to mobilize public sentiment. The only mobilization

Terrorism A Soviet Tool

By REP. JACK F. KEMP

Terrorism is not new. It has been used for centuries by the disaffected to impress not only the victims of terrorist acts, but also those who witness them. Modern communication merely makes it possible for millions to "witness" these assaults. What is new about terrorism is its transnational character — the internationalization of what the British specialist on terrorism, Brian Crozier has called "motivated violence for political ends."

The internationalization of terrorism has many immediate causes. Vast improvements in transportation allow terrorists to move swiftly and anonymously from nation to nation without fear of detection. The diffusion of modern military technology has simplified the process of inflicting destruction on an unprecedented scale, and modern communication eases the international dissemination of its "message."

International terrorists, contrary to their image, are not usually the warped, demented individuals so often portrayed in the news media. They are dedicated, ideological, and highly motivated. They are almost uniformly to the far left politically, unlike strictly local terrorists who reflect every shade of ideology and opinion.

International terrorists are well-financed, able to move throughout the world with changing identities and forged documents, and they have safe places to hide from pursuers in many nations of the world. They are well trained in organization, frequently proficient in the use of small arms and explosives, competent with modern communication equipment, and are particularly well informed about the vulnerabilities of their local adversaries. Unlike their local terrorist counterparts, international terrorists are few, and rarely represent any serious indigenous mass movement, although they may exploit local opportunities.

I am convinced that it is crucial to the success of an American or multi-lateral effort to combat terrorism that we recognized at the outset, the central role that the largely unseen hand of the Soviet Union has played and continues to play in both the direct and indirect role of terrorism.

The Soviet Union promotes international terrorism because it stands to gain from terrorist success. The Brazilian theorist of international terrorism, Carlos Marighela has described the purpose of terrorism to be to "make life unbearable" for ordinary people, and to create a climate of collapse in the target regime. This favors the ends of both the terrorists and their Soviet mentors. The Soviet interest lies with disruption and chaos — as in Iran, for example — as much as it lies in outright takeover. The West is placed in the dangerous position of continuing to seek formalized improvements in relations (e.g. SALT II) on

Other Editors Say Sunbelt Superstar

(Morganton News Herald)

If you were running a business and wanted to relocate, would you move to North Carolina?

Aside from the good climate, sound financial base, diversification of recreational and cultural amenities, North Carolina ranks at or near the top in areas businessmen and accountants look at first in making decisions to relocate.

A recent issue of Forbes Magazine reports that in the past two-and-a-half years, industry has announced plans for more than $5 billion in capital investment in North Carolina. The result of this influx will be 80,000 new permanent jobs.

And, the state has the highest credit rating among the 50 states as well as the lowest building costs.

Despite the problems with taxes (and revaluation) in Burke County this year, local property and state income taxes are lower in North Carolina than the national average and the state's corporate income tax rate is six percent.

Here are other advantages:

- Business failures in North Carolina are less than half the national average and the eighth lowest in the country;
- Good labor-management relations prevail, as evidenced by consistently low work stoppages and high productivity;
- The average time lost to labor disputes during the past 15 years is .04 percent — the national average is five times that rate.

If you and I, as individual citizens, were assessing the state, we may look first at the breadth of geography, majestic mountains, fertile cropland and natural coastal plains. We would be impressed.

The men with the calculators and slide rules look at another picture, but what they see tells them the same message. Little wonder we're earning the name given us by national publications: "Sunbelt Superstar."

Strength For Today

RESTLESS SPIRITS

The writer Nathaniel Hawthorne once said that the world owes its onward impulses to men who are ill at ease. "The happy," he declared, "inevitably confine themselves within ancient limits."

Columbus was ill at ease — so ill at ease that he found no contentment until he started on his perilous adventure across the Atlantic. Centuries before, St. Paul had been ill at ease, longing to start out from Antioch, spread the gospel through Asia Minor, and carry the torch of Christian truth to the continent of Europe.

The people who are ill at ease are the people who lead the world on to new achievement. The man who at the end of the day is perfectly content just to drop his work, who loves quiet evenings and a placid life, has much to be thankful for — but the world will never make any advance because he has lived. The people who are ill at ease are not always happy. But the restless spirits get us somewhere.

Growth Due Personal Savings

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
CHICAGO (AP) — More than half of voting-age Americans have grown up since the Great Depression. That, says Professor Michael Boskin, can make all the economic difference in the world — and probably will.

Boskin, in his early 30s, one of the new breed of economists who have far less faith than their predecessors in the ability of government to manipulate the economy, explains:

Much of American political and economic thinking was influenced by the experience of the 1930s, especially that of unemployment. Voters saw government as their savior, and trusted it to pump the economy.

Votes were cast with that dismal experience in mind, and elected officials never forgot it. Government spent heavily and it ran up deficits. The top priority was the reduction of unemployment.

Then came the post-depression voters. Their experience has been different: it includes inflation, taxes, regulations and, more recently, stagnation. They have been hurt by continued deficits.

Their economic view is different, as different as that of some of the young economists who grew up in the past three decades, said Boskin, of Stanford University.

"I see that bloc of voters changing how we view economic policy," he said in an interview following his address to the U.S. League of Savings Associations — the home mortgage lenders — ability to save, said Boskin.

Again the statistics document it. Last year the savings rate was 5.8 percent of personal income, but in the third quarter of this year it was only 4.1.

Contrast those figures with a 1973-1977 personal saving rate in Japan of 24.9 percent, France 15.2 percent and West Germany 17.7 percent, and you understand something of the dollar's decline.

Boskin explained that private saving serves two crucial purposes:

"It is the major source of finance for new investment, and hence expansion of jobs, productivity and standards of living."

"And it is the vehicle by which citizens transfer resources from one stage of their lifetime to another, such as from peak earning years to retirement."

both a bilateral and multi-lateral basis, while the Soviets continue to support a covert effort ultimately aimed at the Western democracies.

The Cuban intelligence service, the DGI, has been under the command of a Soviet KGB Major General since 1968. The Cuban government through the DGI is becoming the major Soviet link with the international terrorist movement, sending its representatives to virtually every area of the developing world. The Soviet Union is the ultimate source of terrorist weapons, logistic support, intelligence collection, transportation and training, but typically, only the intermediary nations such as Cuba, (although Libya, East European nations, and North Korea also participate) are identified with international terrorism. PLO terrorists are now being trained under KGB supervision in Cuba, Hungary, and Bulgaria, as well as the Soviet Union.

The Soviet Union's extensive involvement in international terrorism is a fact that no Western government can afford to ignore, but few will acknowledge in public. Until Western governments face the difficult problem posed by covert Soviet support for international terrorism, many well-intentioned international efforts will be doomed to failure.

What is required is a determined effort by the nations most affected by terrorism, the U.S., West Germany, Britain and perhaps a few others, to take more direct, and where desirable joint action against the Soviet conduits for terrorism. Similar coordination is also called for from a diplomatic perspective. Greater efforts must be made to deny known representatives of terrorist organizations the undisturbed freedom to travel in Western nations, or to lend prestige and legitimacy to terrorist organizations through the slightest gesture of official recognition. Finally, we must scrutinize the concept of detente itself with the Soviet Union, for it appears that it has become little more than a means of disabling the West from dealing with less-than-total threats to its survival, especially international terrorism and wars of national liberation.

Jack F. Kemp, Republican Member of Congress from New York. Member of the House Subcommittee on Defense and Foreign Operations, a Congressional delegate to SALT negotiations.

President Carter is particularly interested in these days is the Cook County Machine for Carter. He proved as successful in his fight for it as he has proved in his fight against inflation.

Moreover, the people who run for president hardly deny the authority the Constitution and two generations of heliocentric Congresses have invested in the executive. When Carter ran for president, he was always criticizing President Ford for inflation. It is no where recorded that he acknowledged that the Congresses of the United States have been run by Democrats since 1955.

President Carter's principal dereliction is a misunderstanding of economics that has its roots in populist mythology. We read nowadays about the swaggering profits of the oil companies. About the powers of the president of General Motors. A recent study of taxation returns yields this fascinating datum. If the highest tax on the incremental dollar were reduced from 70 percent to 36 percent — i.e., cut in half, the reduction in the total tax paid into the Treasury would be a mere 4.9 percent — $7.5 billions, or three quarters of the budget of the Department of Energy.

You could find one or two well-informed people who would defend the notion that we should tax as high as 70 percent, even as you can find one or two well-informed people who believe in astrology. But there was never a clearer division between sound economic advice and demagoguery. It is quite simply inconceivable that a reduction of the top rate to 36 percent wouldn't, in the end, augment government revenues, reduce inflation and reduce unemployment. But one of the powers Mr. Smith forgot to enumerate, which the president preeminently disposes of, is: The power to preserve ignorance.

ACCIDENTAL DEATHS

WASHINGTON (AP) — An estimated 105,000 Americans died as a result of accidents in 1978, an increase of 1,000 from a year earlier, says the American Council of Life Insurance.

Violent Deaths This Halloween

By The Associated Press

Three Halloween trick-or-treaters and the mother of one of them were killed in two separate traffic accidents, and a 17-year-old youth died when a man fired shots at a group of Halloween vandals, police said.

In Philadelphia, a 5-year-old boy who was abducted Wednesday on his way to a Halloween party dressed as Superman was found unharmed after being held for several hours, according to police.

And a bandit dressed in a mummy's mask held up a Bank of America branch in Beverly Hills, Calif., and made off with an undetermined amount of cash.

Homicide detectives took a 40-year-old man into custody in the shooting in Kansas City, Kan., which left a second teenager wounded, police said.

Authorities said the man, who was not identified, told them a group of eight to 10 youths had thrown rocks through the front window of his home, spraying glass into the living. The man said glass hit him and his infant son.

When the man went to the front porch of the house and yelled at the youths, they responded by throwing stones at him, police said. After the group started to move toward him, the man fired a .22-caliber rifle and fired it twice at the youths, who scattered, police said.

The dead youth was identified as Anthony Smart of Kansas City.

In Louisville, Ky., a woman and her small daughter were struck and killed by a hit-and-run driver Wednesday night as they were trick-or-treating, Jefferson County Police said. A suspect was arrested a short time later and charged with two counts of murder, police said.

Two Hazleton, Pa., teen-agers out trick-or-treating were killed when they were hit by a car pulling around a tractor-trailer, which had stopped at an intersection to let them cross, said officials.

Meanwhile, a 21-year-old Philadelphia man was arrested Wednesday and charged with kidnapping in connection with the abduction of Tremaine Ballard. Police said the boy was found unharmed on a park bench after the boy's father was instructed to leave $75,000 at his variety store. The ransom was not paid.

Company near Port Mayaca, Fla. Wednesday. (AP Laserphoto)

Florida Flash Flood Results In Evacuation Of Thousands

BY RICK SPRATLING
Associated Press Writers
OKEECHOBEE, Fla. (AP) — Hundreds of central Florida residents jammed into motel rooms today, their vacation trailers and retirement homes surrounded by hordes of venomous snakes and flood waters from a crumbled reservoir.

Civil defense officials said 500 to 1,700 persons were evacuated and homes sustained at least $1.3 million in damages when a wall of the Lake Okeechobee reservoir gave way. However, officials predicted the damage figure would escalate as reports came in on devastated crops, cattle, roads and camps.

And officials said 300 or more mobile homes and houses around the lake were struck Wednesday by floodwaters up to 8 feet in depth.

"I can't even think of what our loss will be. It's everything we've got in the world," said an exhausted Ralph Knapp, whose two large mobile homes, a recreation building, a new swimming pool and sea wall were inundated.

There were no reported injuries or deaths — perhaps, officials said, because a surprised train company crew warned authorities of the rushing water when their 21-car train was washed off the tracks.

Authorities warned refugees to watch out for poisonous snakes that had been driven out of the underbrush and were slithering across U.S. 441, which runs along the east side of the huge lake.

"Water moccasins, grass snakes, anything you can imagine," said Sheriff Clayton Williams, who toured the area in a pickup truck late Wednesday.

"I've been running over them all day."

Dead cows also were seen floating across the roadway.

The 6,700-acre reservoir was constructed to provide cooling water for four generating units now under construction.

The water broke through a 300-foot section of earth-and-cement reservoir wall and surged across gently sloping sugar cane fields toward the basin of Lake Okeechobee. The dirty brown water hit a dike and backed up, covering a 13-mile stretch of U.S. 441, pushing northward toward the resort town of Okeechobee.

The flood waters swept through a line of fishing camps and mobile home parks, many occupied by elderly residents.

Living nearest the breach in the dike was cattle rancher William Arrieta and his wife, Judy. The couple awoke to find a knee-deep torrent of water in their bedroom and grabbed their children, Patty, 6, Shayne, 12, and their married daughter, Alisa Barfield, 19.

"By the time we got to the front door, it was five feet deep," said Arrieta, 43. Linking hands, the family swam to safety on a steep barn roof. They shivered in the night air for four hours before being rescued by a helicopter.

"I'm only about 5 feet tall and it was nearly over my head and I had to swim," Mrs. Arrieta said.

Charlie Scheer, spokesman for Florida Power and Light Co., which owns the reservoir, said a team of engineers was investigating the break in the dike. He said water had been seeping through other sections of the 35-foot structure, but not at the spot where the dike crumbled.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The outraged father of 2-year-old Kristin Gore stormed into the congressional investigatory office, appalled that for six months his daughter had taken a formula now linked to severe internal disorders.

"She's all right now," Rep. Albert Gore Jr., D-Tenn., says of his rambunctious toddler. "We consider ourselves extremely fortunate that she was also eating solid foods, and so had no ill effects."

But Gore isn't letting the matter rest.

Today he summoned representatives of the manufacturer and the Food and Drug Administration before a congressional hearing.

Gore wants to know why the formula, Neo-Mull-Soy, was sold without chloride, a component of salt that humans must have to live.

And he wants to know why the FDA didn't make sure the formula and a sister product, Cho-Free, were removed from store shelves after the agency issued a recall of the products three months ago.

"I'm outraged that we as parents have been giving our children something that's a mild poison," Gore said in advance of the hearing. His daughter was put on the formula last year when her pediatrician suspected an ear infection was caused by an allergic reaction to cow's milk.

Gore demanded the investigation after hearing recent news reports that Neo-Mull-Soy was still being sold in two Washington-area pharmacies.

On Wednesday, the FDA said four of 99 pharmacies checked by its inspectors still had the two chloride-free formulations on the shelf.

The FDA said it also found the formula on sale at pharmacies in Boston, Miami and Mayaguez, Puerto Rico. Gore said his staff found the formula on shelves in Tennessee, too.

The formulas' maker, Syntex Laboratories Inc., of Palo Alto, Calif., recalled the two soy-based formulas Aug. 2, after reports that some babies fed nothing but the milk substitutes had suffered constipation and lethargy. There were no reports of deaths from the condition.

Ohio Hunts 2 Monkeys

MARION, Ohio (AP) — Small, peaceful Marion County in central Ohio has been startled recently — by monkeys.

Two furry primates escaped from the Columbus Zoo in June, but apparently have survived in the wilds of Ohio. They were spotted last week and Sunday in opposite ends of Marion County, about 30 miles north of the zoo.

"A farmer spotted one a week ago," said Marion County Dog Warden Stanley E. Long who has been receiving calls from people spotting the monkey in his county. Long reported another sighting Sunday in another part of the county and said he's seen both monkeys.

Columbus Zoo officials confirmed that a 6-year-old, brown-haired male Japanese Macaque, or snow monkey, escaped in June by climbing a hose used to fill a moat around the "Monkey Island." The fugitive was described as 2½ feet tall and about 35 pounds, with the potential to fight if frightened.

Offers Tips On Priority Mail

One of the lesser known, but very effective package delivery services offered by the U.S. Postal Services is Priority Mail, according to Postmaster H. Lloyd Mills.

"When you send a package by Priority Mail, it is separated from the regular parcel mail stream and treated as first class mail," said Postmaster Mills. "If the destination is nearby, the package receives expedited surface transportation. For all other places in the U.S., Priority Mail goes by air."

As a result, more than 35 percent of Priority Mail packages are delivered the next day, and over 90 percent are delivered within three days. Postmaster Mills explained that the cost for a small package is not much more than parcel post and about one-third the cost of overnight services.

reduce their costs," said Spruill. He noted that the Japanese pay approximately $6 per hog in capital items for waste management, then another $6 for operating expenses.

Singleton's operation, approved by the North Carolina Agricultural Extension System, is based on pumping water from a manmade lagoon into the hog waste collection site. The liquidated waste is then pumped through a series of valves and aerated over Singleton's acres of coastal bermuda grass.

The nitrogen-rich aerated waste keeps Singleton from fertilizing, which cuts costs when the bermuda grass is harvested and sold.

"I haven't had too many problems with this system," Singleton noted. "I put it in around seven years ago. Now I don't have to haul the waste off and put it back on the land. This coastal bermuda does well on the sandy soil."

A seven and a half horsepower electric motor pumps 60 gallons of water per minute over the two acres of planted grass. Singleton hopes to expand the hay operation to ten acres in the coming years.

Following their visit to the Singleton farm, the Japanese producers, along with Spruill, went on to Goldsboro to eat at a local barbecue restaurant and visit another hog operation.

The Japanese will conclude their month-long tour around Nov. 15, following visits to North Carolina and Nebraska hog facilities.

Mexico City Plane Crash Claimed 74

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A landing on the wrong runway was blamed for the crash of a Western Airlines DC-10 at the Mexico City airport in which 74 persons were reported killed.

"It was definitely not structural; there's no question about that," said FAA spokesman Dennis Feldman in Washington. The airport was shrouded in fog when the plane from Los Angeles landed before dawn Wednesday on a runway that was closed for repairs, hit a truck and crashed into two buildings. Officials said 71 of the 88 persons aboard the jetliner and three on the ground were killed.

Seventeen others aboard Flight 605 survived. Three were in intensive care, nine were reported in satisfactory condition, and five were released after first-aid treatment.

The pilot, Capt. Charles Gilbert, 53, of Rolling Hills, Calif., was among those killed.

Mexican officials said the runway on which the plane landed had been closed for two weeks for repairs and was dark, while the adjacent, parallel runway that was open was well lighted.

Tail marks on the runway indicated that the pilot tried to take off, officials said, but the plane's landing gear hit a truck, killing the driver. The impact sent the airliner sliding across to the other runway and it crashed through a mobile lounge and slammed into an Eastern Airlines building, killing two people in the building. "Everybody didn't die right away," said Pandora Drickerson Scott, 19, of Chico, Calif., a passenger who survived the crash. "Some were trying to get out. Some of them...they were crying 'Help, Help!' then they were either calm or something must have happened to them."

In Washington, the FAA officials said after talking with Mexican officials that the crash was caused by an "unknown approach-and-landing error." Searchers found the black box of recorded conversations between the plane and the control tower and among the cockpit crew, and officials hoped to learn from it what caused the landing on the wrong runway. Among those killed was Ken Luyckoff, 31, a news producer for ABC, who was en route to El Salvador to cover the political violence there.

Two of the injured in intensive care, Rafael Martinez and his wife, Rocio, were from DC-10s, made by McDonnell Los Angeles. The third was a Douglas, to check for structural faults.

The worst aviation disaster in U.S. history occurred May 25 at Chicago's O'Hare Airport when an engine on an American Airlines' DC-10 fell off a wing during takeoff and 273 persons were killed. For 37 days afterward the FAA grounded the DC-10s, made by McDonnell Los Angeles, to check for structural faults.

The new vice chairmen are as follows: Robert Griffin, Procter & Gamble executive vice chairman; Mack Howard, Howard, Vincent, & Duffus, vice chairman of legal counsel; Larkin Little, Home Savings & Loan, vice chairman of finance; Dr. Jon Tingelstad, ECU, vice chairman of the Community Development Council; Gene Taylor, NCNB, vice chairman of the Economic & Industrial Development Council; J. T. Snowden, Marketplace, vice chairman of the Organization & Membership Council; David Duffus, Howard, Vincent, & Duffus, vice chairman of the Public & Governmental Affairs Council; and Henry Leslie, Burroughs Wellcome, vice chairman of the University Affairs Council.

The vice chairmen will be coordinating efforts of more than 800 volunteers during 1980. They will assume their duties in January 1980.

Edwards, Griffin, and Little were elected to serve as the Chamber's officers. Howard, Tingelstad, Duffus, Taylor, Snowden and Leslie were appointed.

Each of the council vice chairmen will be responsible for leading planning sessions at the Chamber's Out of Town Planning conference in Williamsburg, November 2-4.

Highway Patrolman W. A. Basnight of Farmville, has been promoted to the rank of sergeant and is being transferred to Whiteville, Patrol Troop A Commander, Capt. Carl Gilchrist said today.

A Ridgeway native, Basnight graduated from Chowan College in 1966, then spent three years with the U.S. Army. He served as a Wildlife Protector with the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission in Warren County, and was named Wildlife Protector of the Year in 1969 by the North Carolina Wildlife Federation, before joining the Highway Patrol in August 1971.

Trooper Basnight was assigned to Farmville in January 1972.

Burley B. Mitchell Jr., Secretary of the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety, said, "Basnight has distinguished himself in his eight years of service to the people of North Carolina as a Highway Patrolman," adding that Patrol Commander, Col. John Jenkins (former Troop A Commander), "and I are proud of him..."

Found Religion Study Easier

LONDON (AP) — Singer Pearl Bailey says the mysteries of religion are less perplexing than the syntax of French.

The singer, in England to speak at Canterbury University, was quoted by the London Evening Standard Wednesday on why she once changed courses at Georgetown University.

"I switched from French to theology because I discovered God was easier to understand than French."

Discharge For Homosexual

FORT LEWIS, Wash. (AP) — Pvt. Roger Cutsinger, who says he is a homosexual, will be honorably discharged by the Army, a Fort Lewis spokesman said.

Cutsinger's commanding officer, Col. Arch H. Ely Jr., agreed Tuesday with an earlier administrative board recommendation that Cutsinger, 21, should be discharged because he says he is a homosexual.

Three Collisions In City Yesterday

An estimated $2,350 property damage resulted from three traffic collisions investigated here yesterday by Greenville Police.

Officers reported an estimated $500 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 12 Noon mishap at the intersection of Chestnut Street and Pennsylvania Avenue.

Drivers of the vehicles involved were identified as Dennis Herman Jones of 1109B Forbes St., and Darryl Keith Brown of Raleigh.

Brown was charged by police with failing to stop for a stop sign.

Kent Brewer of Route 3, Maxton, was charged with following too close, after investigation of an 8:25 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Fifth and Tenth Streets.

Investigators reported the Brewer car collided with a vehicle driven by Stephen Smith of 107B Cherry Ct., causing an estimated $200 damage to the Smith car and $500 damage to the Brewer auto.

Cars driven by Sybil Ann Hobgood of 800 Heath St. and Sherry Boswell Morris of Route 1, Greenville, collided about 5:10 p.m. on Cotanche Street, 20 feet North of the Eighth Street intersection, causing an estimated $350 damage to the Hobgood car and $300 damage to the Morris auto.

Peanut Sale Begun By Kiwanis Club

The annual Kiwanis Peanut Sale to benefit youth organizations in the Greenville-Pitt County area began today, according to Harry Hagerty, president of the Greenville Kiwanis.

The sale of over 12,000 pounds of shelled peanuts, a joint project of the Greenville Kiwanis and the Greenville-University City Kiwanis Clubs, is expected to raise around $6,000 net profit, according to Don Parrott, University City club president.

Both clubs will distribute money from the sale to youth organizations, with some of the money going for East Carolina University scholarships for outstanding area high school students. Hagerty and Parrott explained.

Although $2 per bag peanuts will be available at a number of locations in the Greenville area, and from any Kiwanian, club members will hold a special sidewalk sale Nov. 16 and 17 at several locations in Greenville, according to Edwin Gray, overall chairman of the project.

The award of the Mental Health Association of North Carolina for the best Operation Santa Claus project in the state last year was presented to the Mental Health Association in Pitt County in Winston-Salem this past weekend.

This award was presented to Betty Brewer, 1978 Operation Santa Claus chairman, during a tea given by her at her home Monday after for the Operation Santa Claus Committee for 1979.

The Mental Health Association in Pitt County also brought home from the state meeting the award for the best radio communication with the public. This award was given by the Sunday morning program, "Listen," aired on WOOW radio. Dr.

Charles Mitchell, president of the MHA in Pitt County, presented this award to Mr. and Mrs. Danny Jacobson, owners and operators of WOOW.

Mrs. J. B. Spilman, first executive director of the State Mental Health Association, told the Operation Santa Claus workers from throughout the county about the beginnings of Operation Santa Claus. "At a time when many people in our county would not even allow a brochure on mental health to come into their homes, we saw a special need to remember our people who were in institutions at Christmas."

Dr. and Mrs. William Laupus, honorary to the county chairmen by Mrs. Frances Young, board member.

Reorganization Of Community College System Offered Board

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The newly-appointed president of North Carolina's community college system has proposed a department reorganization that would result in a staff reduction of 25 percent.

Dr. Larry Blake presented his reorganization plan for the Department of Community Colleges to the State Board of Education Community College Committee Wednesday. The committee endorsed Blake's proposal but action by the full board was delayed until December because of the absence of board member Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green. Green is on an overseas trade mission.

Blake said the reorganization would eliminate 50 positions in the department by June 1980. He said efforts would be made to place the employees in those positions in other jobs.

One entire management level, nearly half the area program coordinators, some public information services and other functions would be cut.

"The new organization has been developed to reflect the current and future roles of the department in support of the governing role of the State Board of Education and in providing necessary services to the 58 institutions of the system," Blake said.

"I find the reorganization plan rational, humane and appropriate," said board chairman H. David Bruton. "I realize it is tough, tough, tough when you start reducing the size of any governmental agency."

The area coordinators program includes about 40 persons who work with specialty training programs in assigned geographic areas. The programs won't be eliminated but coordinators would be cut in hospitality services — hotel and motel management and restaurant services — and arts and crafts training.

Coordinators in industrial services, fire services, law enforcement and human relations development would be kept.

On the management level, Blake has proposed the elimination of several associate vice president positions. Helen Dowdy, assistant to Blake, said some people may be reassigned to other positions, while others may be let go.

Blake was not available for comment on who he plans to phase out or how much, if any, money his plan would save.

Blake wants the educational services division to be eliminated, and the work of the division distributed to other areas, Mrs. Dowdy said.

Since all technical institutes and colleges and community colleges already must be accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, Blake has proposed cutting out the department's accreditation program.

"I have been assured the full support of the institutions and the state Personnel Office in finding jobs for those individuals whose positions will be eliminated," Blake said in his proposal.

Still Voting On Carolina Tel Accord

TARBORO, N.C. (AP) — Preliminary results from voting by members of the Communications Workers of America on a new contract at Carolina Telephone & Telegraph were expected to be in tonight.

If the telephone company employees in the union ratify a proposed two-year contract, a month-long strike against the company will end.

About 3,100 of CT&T's 5,100 workers are represented by the union.

CWA members voted in 44 North Carolina counties Wednesday and today to decide whether to ratify the two-year contract agreement reached Saturday by negotiating teams.

Union officials will tally the ballots after they are transported to Greenville.

The strike began Oct. 1 when between 50 percent and 75 percent of the telephone company workers walked off the job after talks between labor and management broke down. The sticking point in negotiations was a cost-of-living adjustment sought by the union.

That adjustment was not included in the contract proposal being voted on. It would have tied future wage increases for union members to the national cost-of-living index.

After rejecting the cost-of-living request, the company offered a $15 million, three-year package of benefits calling for a 10 percent wage hike the first year and 9 percent increases during each of the next two years.

About 250 of the union members are employees of Norfolk-Carolina Telephone Co., which serves all or part of six northeastern North Carolina counties. Norfolk-Carolina and CT&T are in the process of merging.

Since the merger will not be completed until the end of the year, the Norfolk-Carolina workers voted on a slightly different contract that reflects only 75 percent of the wage increase projected for other CT&T workers. Salaries for that area are already higher than those of the other telephone company workers.

IN A WORLD OF CHANGING PRICES, SINGER PRICES HAVE CHANGED TOO.

This year, when the cost of almost everything went up, the cost of a Singer* sewing machine came down. We lowered prices on many of our machines — on one model as much as $250.

For example, we dropped the regular price of this Stylist* machine $30. And right now, we're reducing it $40 more. So, for a limited time, you can buy it for $70 less than you could last year.

It has a free-arm, 6 built-in stitches, a built-in buttonholer and a front drop-in bobbin — features that help make sewing easier on a Singer machine. *A Trademark of The Singer Company.

NIGERIA'S FIRST
JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Nigerian surgeons performed their country's first successful open-heart operation this week. Radio South Africa reported.

Found New Approach To Hypertension

DR. JOHN LARAGH

By GENE SCHROEDER
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Research into the mysteries of high blood pressure — known as "the silent killer" — has brought a new approach to treatment of the disease, according to an award-winning scientist.

"This doesn't mean we have the final solution to the problem," says Dr. John H. Laragh, chief of the Hypertension and Treatment Center at New York Hospital-Cornell University Medical Center.

"But it does mean we've taken one more layer off the onion as our understanding of high blood pressure gets closer and closer to the origin."

High blood pressure — "hypertension" in medical terminology — afflicts some 25 million Americans and is the underlying cause of hundreds of thousands of deaths yearly from stroke, heart attack and kidney failure.

It is called the silent killer because it gives virtually no warning before the victim is struck down.

The disease — some types of which are malignant — may hit at any age, but the chances of having it grow with advancing years. Most cases can be controlled with drug therapy, Laragh says.

"If our research has done anything," he said in an interview, "it has established beyond all doubt that all high blood pressure is not alike."

Historically, Laragh says, as doctors and scientists have studied it, the assumption has been that high blood pressure is one disease.

"But our research established that cases can be divided up because they are quite different biochemically in terms of the hormones that regulate blood pressure."

Laragh, co-winner of the $50,000 Stouffer Prize in 1969 for his research work, says a key role is played by renin, a kidney hormone produced in response to a drop in blood pressure.

"There are people with hypertension who have low renin activity in the blood, those with medium activity and those with high," he explained.

"We have shown these three kinds of essential hypertension have different causes and different susceptibility to stroke and heart attack. In turn, they respond to entirely different types of drug treatment."

Laragh and his research team have developed a simple test based on laboratory analyses of blood and urine samples to determine the patient's renin and sodium levels. These readings tell the doctor which drugs should be prescribed.

What is good for the low-renin patient may be the wrong drug for the medium and high, he said.

These renin-sodium profiles, as the tests are called, also disclose whether the patient has kidney or adrenal disease, which are curable surgically, he added.

The profiles, Laragh says, also sort out which patients are more likely to have strokes or heart attacks and which could live to be 80 even though their blood-pressure readings are extremely high.

The next step for Laragh and his fellow researchers?

"We now know that renin is a very important factor in many cases," he says. "But we don't know yet why the renin is too high in some patients, and that's what we're working on now."

"We also don't know why in low-renin patients there is too much salt and water in the body. We've directed ourselves to a new point of attack — and the final solution seems nearer than ever before."

division is more likely, especially when you take into account that declarer can protect against those 4-0 diamond splits where the player who wins the defensive trump trick has the diamond void, or three trumps.

The way to neutralize a 4-1 trump holding by either defender is simply enough. After ruffing the opening lead, declarer should cash the queen of spades and then duck a spade. That will leave a trump in dummy to control the heart suit, and no matter what the defenders do, declarer will be able to get to his hand to draw the remaining trumps. Then he can run the diamonds for the rest of the tricks.

Church Bazaar Here Saturday

Here's an opportunity to see if you can do better than the expert who held these South cards in a recent tournament. Cover up the East and West hands with your thumbs and plan your play in six spades after the lead of the king of hearts.

The bidding needs some explanation. In the methods used by North and South, the jump to four diamonds showed a long, solid minor suit with four-card support for responder's major. South cue-bid his club control and North jumped to slam.

West led the king of hearts, and declarer was disappointed that he was not in a grand slam. He ruffed the opening lead, cashed the queen of spades and continued with a spade to the ace. When West failed to follow, declarer was a dead duck. Try as he might, the slam was no longer makable.

Declarer's line of play would have been correct had he been declaring seven spades—he would have needed a 3-2 trump break to make that. But since the contract was only six spades, he should have taken extra care to make sure that he did not lose a seemingly impregnable small slam. Naturally, we are sure that our readers did not fall into the same trap.

The only thing that can put the contract in any jeopardy is a 4-1 trump break. A 4-1 trump

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Snow is forecast over parts of North Dakota and Minnesota today into early Friday. A wide band of rain and showers are predicted from Mississippi and Alabama north to New England with mostly sunny conditions elsewhere. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
An area of high pressure which had controlled North Carolina's weather for several days was moving offshore today while a cold front moved toward the state from the west. The approaching new front was expected to bring showers to the mountains during the day and spread showers across the state Friday. Some thunderstorms also may develop with the showers.
Along the coast, small craft advisories were in effect with a forecast of northeast winds of 15 to 25 mph.
Highs today were expected to range in the 50s in the mountains to the 70s along the coast. Lows will be in the upper 40s to the low 50s.
Skies were mostly cloudy over the mountains Wednesday and mostly sunny elsewhere around the state. Temperatures climbed mostly into the 60s and 70s while holding to the 50s in the mountains.

Association Is Seeking A Mother Of The Year

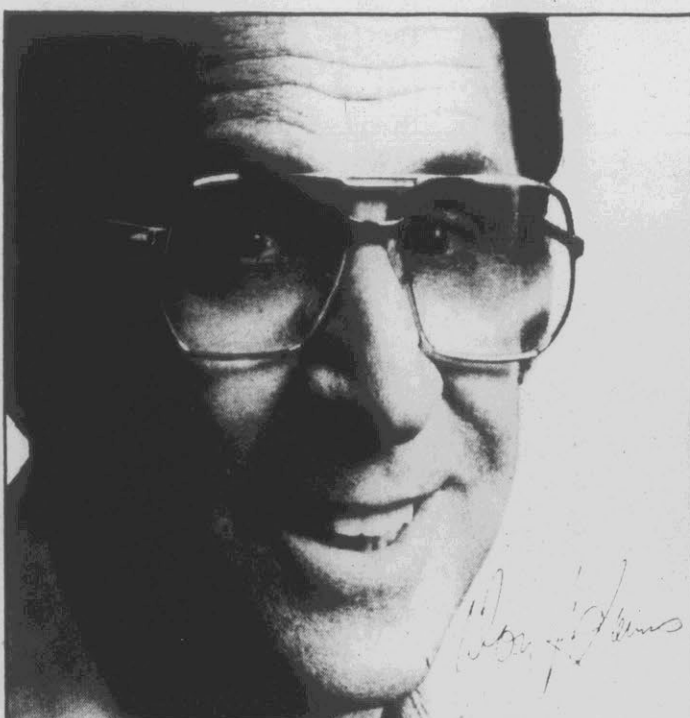

The North Carolina State Mothers Association of the American Mothers Committee, Inc. announces that the search has begun for the 1980 North Carolina Mother of the Year.
A mother may be nominated by any organized group, for instance a civic association or a Sunday School class. She must be the legal mother of at least one child, the youngest being not under 15 years of age. Her own age must be at least 45 and no more than 75. She must be an active member of a religious body, participate in civic activities, and be qualified to represent the mothers of America in all responsibilities attached to her role.
The North Carolina Mother of the Year will be selected from the nominees by a panel of judges, and will be announced at an Awards Luncheon in Raleigh on February 16. The American Mother of the Year will be chosen from the Mothers of the Year from all the states, and will be named at the annual meeting of the American Mothers Com-

Court Monitor Meeting Set

The Pitt County Court Monitors will meet Sunday, Nov. 4, at 4 p.m. at 406 Rotary Ave., the home of Elaine Warshauer, chairperson of the program.
The purpose of the session is to provide a final briefing for persons in the court monitoring program which will begin in District Court on Monday, Nov. 5.
All persons interested in learning about the program are invited to attend the meeting Sunday.

Quarterly Meet This Weekend

Quarterly meeting services will be held this weekend, Nov. 2-4, at Allen Chapel Church. A board meeting will be held Friday at 7:30 p.m.
Holy Communion will be held Saturday, at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, 11 a.m., morning worship services will be conducted by the Rev. J. L. Tyson, pastor, with the senior choir and ushers in charge. Elder Hill and the Union Grove Church will be in charge of the 3 p.m. services. The public is invited to attend.

By SANDY COLTON
AP Newsfeatures

If you're interested in photographing birds or wild animals, Laura and William Riley have compiled a comprehensive guide to America's almost 400 wildlife refuges.

In "Guide to National Wildlife Refuges," you'll find where the refuges are located, how to get there, what to see and do, where to camp or stay, the best times to visit, how to dress and what equipment to take. You'll also find a number of color photos of wildlife, excellent examples of what you might be able to photograph.

The pictures were taken by Laura Riley, a well known wildlife photographer with credits in National Geographic, National Wildlife and a host of other publications.

I asked Mrs. Riley if she would share some of her expertise with you through this column. The first part of her two-part report follows:

Wildlife photography has its own special rules. You must either love it or leave it alone. This means you should really love to watch wild creatures and find their lives and activities so engrossing you can sit and watch them almost endlessly.

Most wild things don't like to have their picture taken. You'll notice this when they either try to leave or, at best, show no interest whatever in posing.

Getting good pictures of any wild creature, be it a beautiful butterfly or bird or massive antlered elk, can require much time and patience. You may have to wait for hours in a cramped position in suffocating heat or freezing cold.

If you don't really like it, you won't last. If you do, you'll hardly notice.

If you can observe as intently as this, you will learn to spot an instant (all the time you'll often have) what makes an arresting shot, and take it.

Beyond that, most successful wildlife photography has these three ingredients:

READY FOR THE HUNT: Laura Riley, a wildlife photographer and co-author of a comprehensive book on national wildlife refuges, holds a Hasselblad camera equipped with a telephoto lens and special gun stock. It is one of a variety of cameras and lenses she uses on her photographic forays in search of wildlife.

—1: The creature is shown close up. Unless it is part of a larger scenic composition, the bird or beast is big enough to command the viewer's full attention, often filling the frame.

—2: The subject is in razor-sharp focus — more so than almost any other kind of photography. An occasional special effect can be blurred — but this is the exception.

—3: The subject, whether lowly beetle or lordly bald eagle, is shown doing something — preferably at some climactic point of activity or at least appearing intensely alert and alive.

This can be done in several ways.

First, get close. You can sometimes sneak up on your subject by being very quiet. Otherwise, you use a telephoto lens. Don't be deceived into thinking that this is a magic route to the results you want. It's a trade-off. If you do use a getting in close. You can do this, with or without your telephoto, by concealing your presence. Try building a blind. You can do this, as I did, with metal tubing covered with a fabric such as burlap and with openings for your camera lens.

My favorite way is also the simplest. Buy nine yards of camouflage cloth netting (cotton is best) at a surplus store. Cut it into thirds and stitch or staple it into a large square with openings. Then, simply throw it over yourself and sit and wait in a strategic spot. It's light, it's portable and I've had birds come too close to photograph while sitting under it, because they'd landed on my head!

As for film, there is no magic answer. Use the slowest film you can for fine grain and clarity. I use ASA 64 color film more than anything else but ASA 25 film is even better if conditions permit.

To get that razor-sharp image, focus on the smallest detail you can see — an eyelash, for example. And to get the moment of climactic activity, study the creature, for each is different.

Practice on robins in your back yard, or in the local park, or with wildlife at your local zoo.

Once you've achieved a degree of competence close to home you can venture further afield to that whole wonderful world of wildlife out there. Some of the best you'll find at U.S. national wildlife refuges. There are almost 400 of them located in almost every state.

Most are set up to make it easy for visitors, and some even have photographic blinds in place or will let you use your own if you call ahead to make arrangements.

("Guide to National Wildlife Refuges" is published by Anchor Press-Doubleday.)

Scott Luce To Be Radio Guest

Scott Luce, geriatric specialist at the Pitt County Mental Health Center, will be guest Sunday at 1:06 p. m. on "Mental Health Matters" on WNCN radio.

In addition to talking about his work at the center, he will discuss epilepsy. He said November has been designated as Epilepsy Month and public awareness is being stressed.

Luce also will talk about socialization groups being offered by the center for geriatric clients. He encourages anyone interested in such a group to call 752-7151.

Pitt's Jobless Rate Is Lower

Work force figures recently released show that the unemployment rate in Pitt County is slightly less than the state level and considerably less than the national level.

Jim Hannan, manager of the Greenville office of the Employment Security Commission, reveals that for the month of September, the unemployment rate in Pitt County stands at 4.4 percent.

This figure compares with a North Carolina unemployment rate of 4.6 percent, and a national rate of 5.6 percent.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market recorded a small gain today as interest rates continued their climb but as the rate of wholesale price increases slackened.

The government said producer prices rose 1 percent in September, following a 1.4 percent gain in August. Food prices fell and the pace of energy price gains slowed.

Chase Manhattan and Chemical banks joined several others in going to a 15 1/2 percent prime rate. This week's rate hikes by central banks in Europe and Japan increased the chance of a Federal Reserve discount rate boost here, some analysts said.

The discount rate is the charge on loans to Federal Reserve System member banks and is one of several key factors in the Fed's fight against inflation.

The Carter administration asked Congress for up to $1.5 billion in loan guarantees to aid the ailing Chrysler Corp. in the largest proposed financial bailout in U.S. corporate history.

At noon, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up .68 at 816.38, as gainers held even with losers in New York Stock Exchange consolidated trading. Big Board trading came to 10.45 million shares after two hours, against 13.66 million at noon Wednesday.

IBM gained 1/2 at 62 1/2 after it announced price cuts and unveiled two powerful computers. Analyst Peter Labe at Smith Barney Harris Upham & Co. said the moves "are going to help their earnings" by boosting sales, rather than rental, revenues.

Colgate Palmolive led the NYSE most-actives, falling 1/4 to 14. Reserve Oil & Gas rose to 32 after signing a $35-a-share merger deal with Getty Oil. Weerhauser was off by 1 1/2 at 29 1/2 after several analysts predicted poorer earnings for the wood-products business.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index rose .10 to 57.81; the American Stock Exchange market value index rose 1.69 to 205.33.

HOUSE DESTROYED — Fire completely destroyed the home of Burnice Bowen on rural road 1205 last night. Firemen arriving on the scene found the house completely involved with fire. There was no estimate of damage available according to Pitt County fire officials. The house was occupied at the time of the blaze.

but there were no injuries. Investigation into the fire is continuing. Members of Red Oak, Falkland, and Belvoir fire departments were called to the 8:19 p.m. blaze. Members of the Falkland Rescue Squad also responded. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Pitt Educators Elected To Organization Posts

Helen Johnson of Greenville has been elected as president of the Pitt County chapter of the Association of Classroom Teachers (ACT), with Mrs. Annette MacRae of Bethel as president of the county chapter of the North Carolina Association of Educators (NCAE).

Ms. Johnson, a native of Carthage, has taught in North Carolina schools for 14 years. She currently teaches sixth graders at Farmville Middle School.

She is a member of the district and state ACT organizations, district and state NCAE, and the Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority.

Mrs. MacRae, a Pitt County native, has taught in North Carolina public and higher education schools, as well as federal dependents' schools. She currently teaches English at North Pitt High School.

She is active in many professional organizations, including the College English Association, the Modern Language Association, the National Education Association, the NCAE and the ACT. She is also a member of the Order of the Eastern Star, the White Shrine of Jerusalem and the American Numismatic Association.

Redd Foxx In Divorce Court

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian Redd Foxx's three-year marriage to a Korean-born artist has wound up in divorce court with Yun Chi Foxx claiming the star hit her and denied her Korean food when she was ill.

Yun Chi, 37, who filed suit Wednesday, seeks half of the 57-year-old Foxx's assets accumulated during the marriage including real estate, eight cars and royalties and residuals from the TV show, "Sanford and Son."

Her attorney, Marvin Mitchellson, also sought an injunction preventing Foxx from "harassing, molesting, abusing or otherwise disturbing the peace" of his wife.

Uncertain On N.C. Pay Hike

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The continuing decline in the economy and the uncertainty over how low it will dip is going to make it pretty hard for state workers and teachers to get the 15 percent pay raise they want next year.

That's the estimation of state legislative analyst Sam Byrd. Byrd said Wednesday a decline in the state's real sales makes it unlikely educators and other state employees will get a 15 percent raise. Taxes on the sale of goods and services is one source of funds for drawing state-paid salaries.

The North Carolina Association of Educators plans to present a legislative package to the 1980 General Assembly that includes the request for a 15 percent wage hike. Two state employee organizations have joined NCAE in its efforts.

Fifteen percent is not unreasonable when increases in the cost of living are considered, Byrd said.

"But it's a different story when you consider it will cost the state $21.5 million for every 1 percent salary increase it gives," he said.

That means a 15 percent raise for about 160,000 public

Obituary Column

McGrath
 Dr. Harold M. McGrath, Professor Emeritus, Department of Business Education and Office Administration, School of Technology at East Carolina University, died Wednesday night at his home, 103 Deerwood Dr.

Funeral services will be held Saturday, 2 p.m., in the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by the Rev. Roy L. Turnage, Methodist minister of Goldsboro. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery, Greenville.

Dr. McGrath, a native of Cortez, Colo., joined the staff at East Carolina University in 1957 and had taught there continuously until his retirement in May of this year. Dr. McGrath was a veteran of World War II. He was listed in Who's Who of the South and Southwest, Men of Achievement, and Personalities of the South. He held the doctor's degree from the University of Northern Colorado at Greeley. He was a charter member of Holy Trinity United Methodist Church.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mildred Taylor McGrath; a daughter, Miss Patricia Ann McGrath of the home; and a son, Michael A. McGrath of the home.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home from 7-9 p.m. Friday. The family suggests that anyone desiring to make a memorial contribution consider Holy Trinity United Methodist Church.

Starks

Mrs. Starks was born and reared in Pitt County, but had made her home in Trenton, N.J. for a number of years. She was a member of the Tabernacle Baptist Church, Trenton, N.J.

Survivors: one brother, John Bruce Hall of New Bern; three sisters, Mrs. Lizzie Worthington and Mrs. Lillian Tyson, both of Greenville, and Mrs. Minnie Bell Spell of Baltimore, Md.

The family will receive friends at Phillips Brothers Mortuary from 8-9 p.m. Friday.

B. Church. She was first married to William Thomas Mobley, who died in 1952. She was later married to Mr. Taylor, who survives. Also surviving are two sons, T. C. (Smoke) Mobley and Cleveland Mobley, both of Washington; three daughters, Mrs. John W. Phillips of Henderson, Mrs. William D. Cox of Vanceboro, and Mrs. James H. (Tommy) Brown of Washington; two brothers, Guy E. Evans of Grimesland and Joshua T. Evans of Norfolk, Va.; three sisters, Mrs. Thelma Whitley of Washington, Mrs. Hal Brenner of Studio City, Calif., and Mrs. Andrew Pratt of Vanceboro; eight grandchildren; seven great-grandchildren.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home from 7-9 p.m. Thursday. The family will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Cox, Rt. 1, Box 193, Vanceboro, near Wilmar.

New Bonds Bill Before House

WASHINGTON (AP) — It will be at least a week before the House Ways and Means Committee acts on a new bill that would ban use of tax-exempt bonds to finance mortgages for single-family homes.

The bill introduced Tuesday by Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., would replace the mortgage bond programs with tax incentives designed to encourage savings account deposits. The committee voted 18-13 to give members at least a week to study the proposal. It is a substitute for a bill rejected last week by the House Rules Committee.

Saw Relatively Quiet Halloween

Other than a half-dozen egg throwing reports, all seemed quiet last night...with the exception of the little ghosts and goblins making their annual Halloween trick-or-treat outings.

Chief Glenn Cannon said the Police Department received a half-dozen complaints of egg-throwing vandals operating in various sections of the city, but noted that no arrests were made following investigation of the incidents.

Cannon noted that night spots in the downtown section of the city — as they have been for the past several years — were closed last night for Halloween. "All went well," Cannon said of Halloween night, adding, "we were very pleased."

Candidate Forum Planned

AYDEN — A forum for candidates seeking municipal offices in Ayden's Nov. 6 election will be held here tonight at 7:30 p.m.

All 13 candidates for local offices, including mayoral and commissioner aspirants from five wards, are scheduled to take part in the session.

The forum will be held in the court room of the Ayden municipal building.

Rampants Close Home Slate Vs. Hunt

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Jack, the Giant Killer comes to town this week, and Rose High School's Rampants must keep a wary eye on 'em.

Jack, in this case, is Wilson Hunt High School, the only team in the Division I ranks with a victory over defending champion Rocky Mount. But, also, being the giant killer had its come-uppance too. Hunt was upset by fellow Wilson school Beddingfield last weekend, 24-12.

Rose, fresh from its 42-27 win over Wilson Fike, will be closing out its regular season home slate with the game, set for 7:30 p.m. in Ficklen Stadium. They have one other contest remaining, against Northeastern in Elizabeth City next week.

At stake over these next two weeks is a berth in the state playoffs. Division I has two entries this year, and Rose, Rocky Mount and Bertie are all knotted for first place. The latter two play each other this weekend, and that could eliminate one of them.

"But we can't wait around to watch and see what the others are going to do," Coach Dave Bumgarner said. "We have to take care of ourselves and win our last two games. They are important to us."

Last Week's contest with Fike got off on a sour note, as the Demons ran back the opening kickoff for a score, recovered a fumble two plays later only to fumble it back in the shadow of the goal posts. After then holding Rose, Fike got the benefit of a short punt and took that in for a second score and a 13-0 early first period lead.

Rose came back to score the next six times it got the ball, however, to post the victory.

"I don't really know why the situation got out of hand there at the start," Bumgarner said. "Some of it may have been poor coaching, or the kids not listening to what we told them. The fumble created problems for us, and kept us in a hole. Luckily, we were playing well enough to overcome our mistakes."

While the touchdowns put the Rampants in a bad situation, Bumgarner felt that the third one, late in the half, came because of Rose mistakes. "We gave them over 60 yards on that drive through penalties. I think the score could easily have been 42-7 if we'd played like we really should have."

"Don't get me wrong, I think Fike has a good football team. They are putting things together now and will be tough in their last two games."

Hunt comes into the game following its loss to Beddingfield, and with a 2-6 overall mark. They are 1-4 in conference play.

"But they've played some good games. They held Bertie to a 7-6 score until the final period," Bumgarner pointed out. (Bertie won 34-6), and they played Northeastern a good game (20-11). Fike didn't beat them bad either (17-11).

"Then, they beat Rocky Mount, 9-7. So you know that they are capable," Bumgarner said.

"I was very concerned going into the Fike game, and I'm just as concerned going into the one with Hunt. They are not a bad team. They do a lot of good things. Their victory over Rocky Mount was no fluke."

Bumgarner feels that Hunt's defeat at the hands of Beddingfield was a combination of their being down following the Rocky Mount game, and the improvement of Beddingfield. "They (Beddingfield) changed their offense a couple of games back and are much-improved," Bumgarner said.

Asked if he was worried about a letdown by the Rampants, Bumgarner said, "Well, if we are going to have one, I'd certainly think that this would be the week for us. But even so, I still think we have the physical strength to win the game."

The Warriors run out of a wishbone, and do many things that the Rampants do from their 'bone set. "They do pass a little more than we do," the coach said.

"They have a real good running back in Mike Wells, and a fine quarterback too."

Defensively, the Warriors operate from a 5-2, and Bumgarner feels that they are strong in this part of the game. "They'll probably have as tough a defense as we've seen," Bumgarner commented.

The coach had special praise for his reserves.

"We've been playing about 35 people in every game. It looks like we could letter around 40 people this year, and that would be a lot," the coach said.

Rose comes into the game with a 6-2 overall mark and a 4-1 Division I mark.

Four Advance In Sectionals

WILSON — Four area girls, all from Rose High School, advanced into the quarterfinals of the Sectional Tennis Tournament in action yesterday.

Rose High School's Laurie Smith and Jan Stoughton teamed up to advance into the quarterfinals of the doubles competition while Martha West and Lisa Grant also made the quarterfinals in doubles.

Smith and Stoughton, after winning over Shelly and Bridget Stevenson of Northeastern, 6-1, 6-0, then defeated R. Holland and

T. Blanchard of Tarboro, 6-2, 6-4, to gain the quarters.

West and Grant, with a first round bye, beat I. Holmes and R. Woolard of Washington, 6-2, 6-3, in gaining their quarterfinal berth.

The two duos, however, are matched against each other in the quarterfinal match, and the winner, in addition to moving into the semifinals, will also qualify for next week's Regionals, to be held at Goldsboro.

Two other Rose girls were knocked out in earlier singles competition. Bernestine Haselrig, after a first round bye, lost to Mollie Sims of Hunt, 6-1, 6-0. Lou Taft, also with a first round bye, was defeated by Lisa Dickens of Roanoke Rapids, 6-2, 7-6.

Roanoke High School's Deanna Morris defeated Patty Jackson of Tarboro, 6-4, 6-3, in a second round match after a first round bye. She was then defeated by Becky Nix of Kinston, 6-1, 6-2.

Farmville Central's Diana Gordon beat Martha Harless of Edenton, 6-1, 6-1, and Kim Adkins of Hunt, 6-1, 6-1, before bowing to Charles B. Aycock's Leayne Summerlin, 7-6, 6-1.

Courtney Lancaster of Farmville had a first round bye, then beat Chris Poplin of Rocky Mount, 7-5, 6-4, before bowing to Sims, 6-1, 6-1.

Another Farmville entrant, Pat Cutler, lost in the first round to Kinston's Julie Privette, 7-6, 6-4.

Death Was Natural

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — A University of South Carolina football player who collapsed Sept. 25 before a practice session died of natural causes, Richland County Coroner Frank Barron III has ruled.

The official ruling followed a final autopsy report that showed that Scott B. Sinclair of Homestead, Fla., died of "clinical terminal cardiac arrhythmia."

Barron said that means that "his heart, due to deterioration of a valve, quit beating at an adequate rate."

Pathologists from the Medical University of South Carolina at Charleston and Baptist Hospital in Columbia analyzed heart and lung tissues taken during the autopsy.

Sinclair, a 19-year-old defensive end, collapsed as he was waiting to have his ankles taped in the locker room before practice.

Garris Takes Golf Tourney

Luba Garris of Wallace, came in with a 36-hole total of 160 to win the Ninth Annual Brook Valley Women's Invitational Golf Tournament yesterday.

Second place in the championship flight went to Lucille Pinner of Virginia Beach. Harriette White of Greenville won the low net division in the championship flight, while Barbara Walker of Brook Valley was second.

In the first flight, Evelyn Williams won low gross, followed by Mildred Clemmer. Mary Gurley took low net, followed by Linda Powell.

Mable McDuffie won the low gross division of the second flight, with Jean Smith in second place. Malvine Hudgins took low net, with Vera Bernard second.

In the third flight, Gertrude Perry won low gross, with Julia Nelson second. Margaret Weatherly was the low net winner, followed by Eleanor Sowers.

The fourth flight low gross was won by Sue Dye, while Grace Flanagan was second. Patti Hamby won low net, with Shirley Vail second.

Glo Clark won the low gross in the fifth flight, with Mary Bruton second. Faye Curtis was the low net winner, followed by Joy Scott.

Sixth flight winners were Ellen Fleming, low gross, and Jane Kanetzke second. Delores Kelley took low net, followed by Sue Cox.

Milwaukee Captures Ninth Straight

By The Associated Press
It was a night the players enjoyed playing, the fans enjoyed watching and the Milwaukee Bucks really enjoyed winning. "This is what the NBA should be about every night," said the Bucks' Marques Johnson, who scored 25 points to help Milwaukee beat Los Angeles 110-106 and record its ninth consecutive National Basketball Association triumph.

"These were two of the best teams in the league, playing with all-out intensity," Johnson continued, "and it's just enjoyable to play in a game like that. It would have been enjoyable if we lost, because both teams played so hard and so well."

Milwaukee got the little extra it needed when Dave Meyers and Kent Benson scored four points each in the final 2½ minutes to help snap the Lakers' five-game winning streak.

Los Angeles rallied from an 11-point, third-quarter deficit to tie it 96-96 with 2:50 remaining before Meyers and Benson went to work.

"This meant a lot to us because tonight I think we proved to everybody that we can play," Johnson said. "The Midwest Division has been kind of laughed off as being mediocre. Maybe from second place down it is, but the Milwaukee Bucks showed they can play with the Lakers, who are a collection of all-stars."

Los Angeles got 24 points from guard Norm Nixon and 23 from center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar while Earvin Johnson was held to 10 points.

In other NBA games, it was Atlanta 102, Philadelphia 97; Boston 116, New Jersey 79;

Washington 114, Cleveland 105; Indiana 133, Houston 129 in overtime; Kansas City 125, Utah 108; Golden State 111, Portland 105; Seattle 97, Denver 89; San Antonio 130, San Diego 123.

Hawks 102, 76ers 97
John Drew collected 23 points and Eddie Johnson scored four of his 18 points in the final 42 seconds to power Atlanta past Philadelphia.

Julius Erving had 26 points and Doug Collins 23 for the 76ers.

With Philadelphia leading 3-2, the game was delayed 31 minutes by a wet floor at the Omni in Atlanta. Moisture from the hockey ice underneath seeped up through the basketball boards and players were slipping and falling.

The floor was mopped during every timeout.

Celtics 116, Nets 79
Cedric Maxwell scored 25 points and Larry Bird added 18 as Boston pulled to leads of 16-2 and 28-7 and went on to blast New Jersey.

The Nets lost forward Tim Basset after a second-quarter collision that left him with a chip fracture plus stretched ligaments in his left elbow. He is expected to be sidelined 3-4 weeks.

Bullets 114, Cavaliers 105
Washington got 31 points from Bob Dandridge to beat Cleveland and keep the Cavaliers winless in five road games this season. Dandridge made 14 of 21 shots in the contest and scored 25 points in the second half.

Pacers 133, Rockets 129
Joe Hassett scored 21 points, including three three-point field goals, to help Indiana hand Houston its sixth consecutive road loss.

Indiana, unbeaten in five games at home, rushed back from a 15-point first-half deficit with help from Hassett and Clemon Johnson. They tied the game at 119 with 47 seconds left in regulation, then scored the first six points of the overtime.

Mickey Johnson had 27 points for the Pacers while Moses Malone had 26 for Houston.

Kings 125, Jazz 108
Otis Birdsong amassed 31 points, 18 of them in the second half, to pace Kansas City's victory over Utah. Adrian Dantley had a game-high 32 points for the Jazz, which played without Pete Maravich.

Maravich suffered spasms in his back and neck earlier Wednesday and flew back to Salt Lake City.

Warriors 111, Trail Blazers 105
Purvis Short erupted for a career-high 37 points, including 17 in the final six minutes, in leading Golden State past Portland. The Trail Blazers, who suffered their second consecutive loss after nine victories, got 20 points from Maurice Lucas.

SuperSonics 97, Nuggets 89

Fred Brown came off the bench, scored 10 of his 19 points in the fourth quarter, and helped Seattle capitalize on a Denver shooting drought to help the SuperSonics beat the Nuggets.

Denver, led by David Thompson's 19 points, made just four of its 19 field goal attempts in the final period.

Spurs 130, Clippers 123
San Antonio was powered by George Gervin, who collected 33 points, in its victory over San Diego. The Clippers, who trailed by 19 points in the first half, rallied to within 123-121 with 1:15 left before Gervin made a field goal and Larry Kenon — who had a season-high 31 points — added a dunk shot to open a six-point San Antonio lead.

Colts To Stay In Baltimore

DALLAS (AP) — The Baltimore Colts will be in Memorial Stadium in 1980 and owner Robert Irsay is optimistic they will be there for a long time to come.

Irsay told the other 27 National Football League owners Wednesday that he plans to stay in Baltimore if the refurbishing of Memorial Stadium, home of the Colts and the Baltimore Orioles of the American League, can be worked out with the city and the state of Maryland.

"I've said that if Baltimore does not give me what I am asking I was going to leave and I still say it," said Irsay.

Irsay said he did not decide until early Wednesday to accept a proposal from the State of Maryland and the city of Baltimore.

"We would have spent next year there anyway," said Irsay. "But if I don't get an agreement from the city of Baltimore and the State of Maryland I will go back to the NFL."

Irsay had been flirting with such cities as Jacksonville, Fla., and Memphis, Tenn., as possible sites for his franchise. He would have needed a vote of 21 of the 28 NFL owners to move.

"I wasn't using those people to get what I wanted," said Irsay. "I'll take a plane and explain to those people what happened. If anything, it strengthened the positions of those two cities (Jacksonville and Memphis) when it comes time for expansion. They made fine proposals. It put them in the limelight. If anything, I've done them a favor."

Commissioner Pete Rozelle, who sat with Irsay at a news conference, said, "We have no expansion timetable. We will move when we feel we have ab-sorted our most recent expansion. Bob made it clear that if this works out for him in Maryland, then Jacksonville and Memphis would be strong spots for expansion."

Gov. Harry Hughes told Irsay he must be willing to make a long-term commitment to stay in Baltimore and Irsay said Wednesday: "I think we could work it out."

The cost of the improvements, which would have to be approved by the Maryland legislature in January, range from $17 to $36 million.

"I would benefit nothing from the stadium improvement," said Irsay. "It needs washrooms, lockerrooms, concessions. We will get some 13,000 new seats but they will just be rectifying some bad seats. It would bring the stadium down to 58,000 good seats. I believe this will bring the fans back."

Rozelle interjected, "As will (quarterback) Bert Jones if the shoulder stays intact."

Irsay said he had spoken with about 15 owners discussing a potential franchise move.

"I never tried to get a vote but I would have today if Maryland hadn't come through," Irsay said.

Rozelle said he was pleased the Colts will stay in Baltimore because "we don't like to see franchises shift."

Notes

The top offensive and defensive teams in the Atlantic Coast Conference collide Saturday in Clemson's Death Valley when the Tigers play host to the Demon Deacons in a regionally televised game.

The Tigers, coming off a hard-fought 16-13 loss to N.C. State, which all but eliminated them from the ACC race, are the league's number one defense team, limiting opponents to only 212 yards a contest.

The Deacons, everyone's surprise team of the season, are coming off a big 42-38 win over Auburn and will be looking to further their chances of landing a "Big" bowl bid with a win Saturday.

Wake, which has the kind of offensive team bowl scouts love, leads the ACC in total offense, averaging over 410 yards per game. The Deacs are lead by quarterback Jay Venuto, who ranks first in the ACC in total offense and third in the nation, averaging over 247 yards a game.

Other ACC players among the NCAA leaders include UNC's Matt Kupec, who is rated fourth in passing efficiency. Kupec, who leads the ACC in passing efficiency, has completed 82 of 144 passes for 1,156 yards and 13 touchdowns. The New York senior has had only four passes intercepted while averaging just under 150 yards a game through the air.

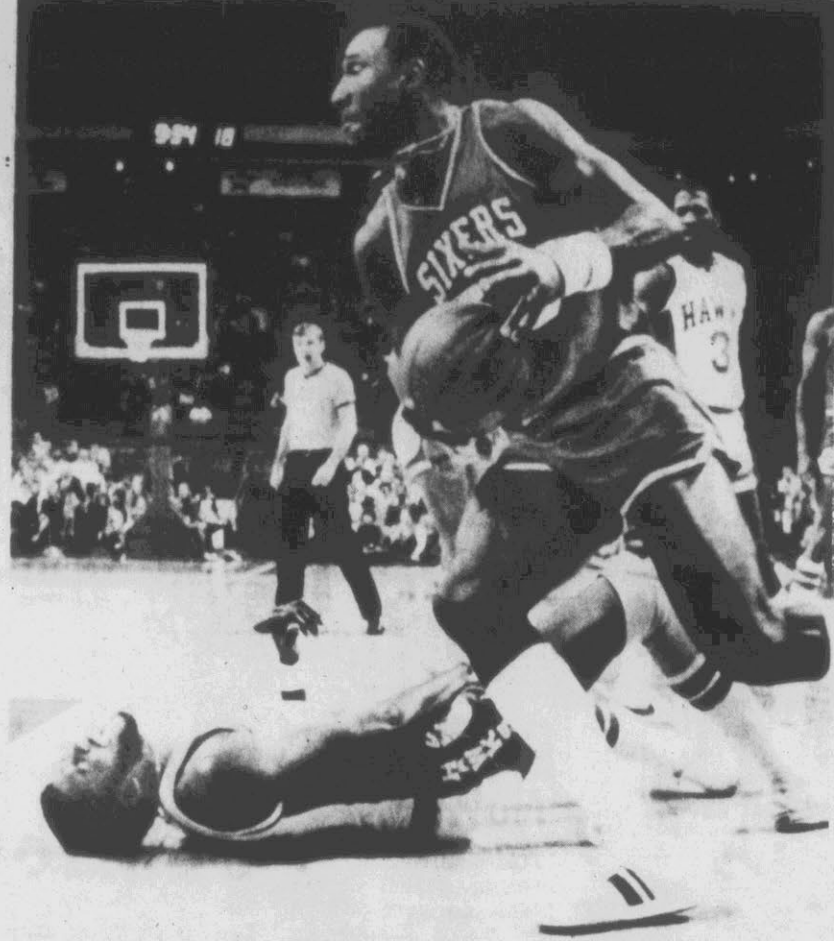

When East Carolina travels to Boone on Saturday to take on Appalachian State University, the Pirates will face one of the nation's top offensive leaders.

ASU quarterback Steve Brown is ranked fourth in the NCAA in total offense, averaging over 232 yards a game.

Other ACC stats include: Maryland's Charlie Wysocki leads in rushing, averaging 105.5 a game...Wake's James McDougald, however, has rushed for the most yards, 807...UNC's Amos Lawrence is fifth in the ACC in rushing, with 644, while Greenville native Doug Paschal is sixth, with 596 yards.

The Virginia Cavaliers lead the league in rushing offense, averaging 259 yards a game, and have the second and third leading rushers in the ACC.

UVA's Tom Vigorito, ranked second, has run for 729 yards while teammate Greg Taylor has galloped for 728 yards.

Venuto Still Top Producer

By The Associated Press
Wake Forest quarterback Jay Venuto remained atop the list of Atlantic Coast Conference football players in total offense this week, according to league statistics released Thursday.

Venuto, also among the nation's leaders in total offense, has compiled 1,982 yards in 326 plays this season for an average of six yards a play and 247 per game.

The Salem, N.J., senior is the player probably most responsible for turning the previous perennial 1-10 Deacons, now ranked 14th, into a serious contender for the ACC crown.

Following Venuto was North Carolina's Matt Kupec with a total of 1,164 yards in 183 games for an average of 166 yards per game.

Kupec also led the league this week in passing efficiency. To date he has completed 82 of 144 tosses for 1,156 yards. Close on Kupec's heels was North Carolina State quarterback Scott Smith, who has completed 54 of 95 passes for 858 yards and a 56 percent completion mark, just as Kupec.

Maryland's Charlie Wysocki remained the number one ACC rusher with 633 yards so far this season on 145 carries for an average of 105 yards per game.

Virginia's Greg Taylor remained in the second spot in rushing with a game average of 103 yards.

George Dickel Tennessee sippin' whisky. Smooth as moonbeams.

"Tastin' is believin'."

—Merle Beatty, Store Owner, 1871

"I remember we were tryin' to tell this city feller that George Dickel's whisky tastes smooth 'cause it's made with clear, sweet springwater.

"And it's mellowed good and proper 'cause Ol' George gives his sour mash extra time to get into the flavor.

"Well, I could see this city feller wasn't much impressed with our jawin', so I stopped talkin' and started pourin'.

"One sip was all it took. Said he'd never tasted a finer Tennessee Sour Mash. Didn't surprise us none. 'Cause when it comes to George Dickel's whisky, tastin' is believin'."

Deacons Can Sew Up Bowl Hopes

By DICK BRINSTER
Associated Press Writer

"Twas the night before Clemson and all through the house, not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse. The Deacons were sleeping, all tucked in their beds, while visions of bowl bids danced in their heads.

Yes, the postseason invitations are still a few weeks off, but 14th-ranked Wake Forest, almost a certainty to appear on somebody's holiday menu, could all but unwrap its Christmas present seven weeks early with a victory Saturday over Clemson.

But heed the words of quarterback Jay Venuto, the player perhaps most responsible for turning the perennial 1-10 Deacons into a 7-1 team.

"We don't pick them," Venuto said last Saturday when asked what bowl he thought may select the Deacons. "They pick us."

Venuto, among the nation's leaders in total offense, had brought the Deacons back from a 38-20 deficit against Auburn and walked off the field with a 42-38 victory. The nation stood up and took notice, and the loyal Deacon following showered Groves Stadium with oranges.

And the architect of perhaps the greatest miracle this side of the 1969 New York Mets, Coach John Mackovic, has been inundated with Orange Bowl requests. But the return address of those extending the invitations is Winston-Salem, N.C., site of dear old WFU.

"We have to worry about Clemson, not bowl games," Mackovic has said.

How true that is, Danny Ford's Tigers, the defending Atlantic Coast Conference champions, are in Mackovic's words, "The best defensive team in the conference."

In addition to the regionally-televised battle between Wake Forest and Clemson, North Carolina visits Maryland in another key ACC game. In other games, North Carolina State visits South Carolina, Virginia is at Georgia and Duke travels to Georgia Tech.

The 14th-ranked Deacons, who have gone down to wire in all eight starts, are in a virtual tie with North Carolina and N.C. State for the ACC lead. They need a victory over Clemson, a team that was eliminated from the title chase in a 16-13 loss last Saturday to N.C. State.

N.C. State stands 4-1 in the ACC. Wake Forest 3-1 and North Carolina 1-1.

The Tigers (5-2) will pin their continuing hopes for a bowl bid on a defense led by defensive tackle Jim Stuckey, an All-America candidate, and linebacker Bubba Brown.

The Deacons rely on their own All-America candidate, noseguard James Parker. Offensively, Venuto gets plenty of help from tailback James McDougald and receiver Wayne Baumgardner.

North Carolina (5-1-1) is coming off a 24-24 tie with East Carolina. It hopes for a continuation of the leadership provided by quarterback Matt Kupec, who has thrown for 57 percent, including 13 touchdowns and just four interceptions.

Maryland (4-4) ended the only four-game losing streak in Coach Jerry Claiborne's eight-year tenure when it blanked Duke, 27-0. North Carolina leads the series, 23-18-1.

N.C. State and South Carolina bring identical 5-2 records into their game, which bears watching because both are very much in bowl picture.

Virginia (4-3) is looking to become the third ACC team to beat SEC foe Georgia (4-3).

Clemson and Wake Forest already have accomplished that.

Duke (2-4-1) plays the newest ACC member, Georgia Tech (1-5-1), although the game does not count in the standings. Duke is Tech's only conference opponent.

Two High Powered Offenses Set To Meet When ASU, ECU Collide

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

"I doubt that there's three points difference in Wake Forest, North Carolina, North Carolina State and East Carolina," Pat Dye told his listeners at yesterday's weekly news conference.

"It's just unfortunate that we have to play all four of them on the road. I think we are just as good as any of them. If we had the chance to play any of them at home, I believe we could have won."

Dye, in reflecting on last Saturday's 24-24 tie against the Tar Heels, said that the Pirates went into that game with the least disadvantages of their four ACC opponent games. "And the only reason I say that is that we had an extra week to prepare for Carolina."

"I think enough has been said about playing to a tie, but I think that our players showed a lot of character in coming back like they did. Holding Carolina to zero points for all but the last 20 seconds has got to be something our defense can be mighty proud of. They didn't do it completely on their own, but they scratched and fought when they had to."

Dye also praised Carolina for coming back in the closing minutes as they did.

"The fact that we took the ball in twice on long drives in the second half has got to be a tribute to our offense. Right now, I feel I can definitely say that this team is the best offensive team ever at East Carolina."

While the Pirates are currently 3-3-1, Dye doesn't feel that the Pirates are totally out of the bowl picture. "A lot of things can happen in college football. If we can win the rest of our games and be impressive in doing it, and if some other teams get knocked off during these next four weeks, I think we can get back in it."

"The way our offense is moving the ball has got to make us an attractive team if we keep doing well," Dye said.

The Pirates continue to lead the 13 Southern Independent schools in total offense, rushing offense and scoring.

According to the latest figures, the Pirates are accumulating 428.6 yards a game, well ahead of second place Tulane with 364.5. The ECU figure ranks 10th in the nation.

In rushing, ECU is picking up 318.1 yards a game, fifth in the country, and tops among the Southern Independents. Second in the South is South Carolina with 259.7 yards a game.

Tennessee State continues to lead in passing with 229.4 yards a game, while East Carolina is seventh with 110.4. This week's opponent, Appalachian State, ranks 11th in the nation in passing offense, 218.5 yards a game.

The Pirates are first in scoring in the South with 29.0 points a game, ahead of number two Tulane and Florida State, tied at 24.7. The ECU figure is good for 15th place nationally.

Defensively, Florida State continues to lead in the rushing, total defense and scoring defense categories. They are allowing 110.7, 228.3, and 10.7 respectively. In pass defense, Northeastern Louisiana is tops with a 70.6 figure.

ECU ranks ninth in total defense, 324.9; seventh in rush defense, 175.3; tenth in pass defense, 149.6, and tenth in scoring defense, 18.9.

Roch Hontas of Tulane is still the total offense leader with 220.2 yards a game. Leander Green of ECU is fourth at 138.7.

Anthony Collins is second in rushing offense with a 97.1 yard per game average. He is 26th in the nation in the category, and his 8.1 yards per carry is tops among the national top 50 rushers. George Rogers of South Carolina is the top rusher with 134.1 yards a game. ECU fullback Theodore Sutton is sixth in rushing with a 61.0 average.

Green is the number two scorer in the South with a 6.3

point average, behind Southern Mississippi's Ricky Flord with an 8.2 mark. Bill Lamm, the Pirate kicker is fourth among the Southern group with a 5.4 average.

Among Appalachian stars, quarterback Steve Brown is fourth in the country in total offense, averaging 232.5 yards a game. He's 16th in pass efficiency. Split end Ricky Beasley is tied for first in receptions with 6.2 per game, and is second in touchdowns scored receiving, with nine.

Makes Run At Aces

STOCKHÖLM (AP) — Joseph O. Boydstone, a California doctor and golfer, shot 11 holes in one in 1962, a record that stands today. But a 16-year-old Swedish golfer has made remarkable run at the milestone in the last year.

It's every golfer's dream, but very few hit even one ace in a lifetime. The chances have been estimated to be about 1 in 10 million. Statistically, it would take about 30 years for an average golfer to do it.

Jan Brostrom, who took up the game 18 months ago, has defied astronomical odds and shot six holes-in-one within 370 days.

Boydstone got his 11 in places like California, where the season never ends. But Brostrom has mounted his challenge in Sweden, where golf can only be played half the year.

Attorney Ads Catch On; 35,000 Now Advertising

By TIM CODER
CHICAGO (UPI) — An advertising consultant offers this piece of marketing advice to lawyers who, armed with Supreme Court sanction, are taking the Madison Avenue plunge by the thousands:

"You are known by the company you keep. If your long-term objective is to be a prestigious, reputable law firm, you must act like it. Never run you ad in the classified section next to massage parlor solicitations."

The advice given by the William F. Arens advertising agency might have caused Oliver Wendell Holmes, Learned Hand and other legal patricians to blanch over tea and torts, but it is gospel now to thousands of lawyers across the country.

With the 1977 Supreme Court ruling in Bates vs. State Bar of Arizona, which recognized the First Amendment right of professionals to advertise, legal services were thrust into the 20th century marketplace.

Like the mechanic, the beautician, the restaurateur and other service providers, the general practice lawyer who gets the business is often the one who advertises in the print and broadcast media.

From the ABA to the legal storefront, lawyers are hailing the decision as a consumer victory that has opened their services to the middle class and lowered fees accordingly.

"I had to lower my fees for contested divorces from $350 in 1977 to $150 as the competition developed in pricing," said Van O'Steen of Phoenix, who took the fight to the high court along with his former partner, John R. Bates.

"A lot of people are shopping around for services by phone. What used to be surrounded by secrecy and mystery — the prices — is out in the open now. Clients aren't afraid to ask questions about the cost."

O'Steen uses about 25 30-second television spots every three weeks, plus the yellow pages, to advertise his general legal services.

Said Bates, who has dissolved his partnership with O'Steen since the high court victory to enter a more specialized practice, "people all over the country saved millions in fees."

"Of course, it hasn't had any effect upon commercial or corporate law practices," he added.

Justin Stanley, ABA president in 1976-77 and a partner in a large Chicago law firm, agrees lawyer advertising is not geared to the business world.

"Nobody's advertising who's a specialist in, say, corporate reorganization," said Stanley. "I suppose the people who need legal services in those areas are sufficiently sophisticated to be able to find the lawyers they want."

Roger Brosnahan of Minneapolis, chairman of the LAWYER KEN HUR, who says his legal clinic has a $25,000 annual advertising budget, has reached near celebrity status with his unorthodox ads. (UPI Photo)

ABA's commission on advertising, said a July survey shows about 35,000 attorneys — 7 percent of the nation's lawyers — are advertising. In May 1978, a commission report showed only 3 percent advertised their services.

In addition, supreme courts in 41 states and the District of Columbia have adopted new lawyer advertising guidelines since the Bates decision, the commission on advertising reported.

In other states, such as Illinois, new guidelines are being proposed. And in Virginia, court battles are being waged to overturn a state bar association ruling forbidding advertising.

The ABA's commission on advertising estimates state and local bar associations will spend more than $1 million on advertising campaigns this year. The Ohio Bar Association alone is spending $275,000 for ad production, purchase of media time and space and market research.

Like their colleagues in the medical professions, conservative lawyers had traditionally opposed advertising their own services for fear it would somehow demean them and open the door for a breed of barrister hucksters.

They feared the likes of Ken

Hur, a 300-pound showboat from Madison, Wis., whose unorthodox ads have vaulted him into near celebrity status — to the chagrin of the state's old-guard legal establishment. Wisconsin guidelines are among the nation's most liberal, prohibiting ads that are not "false, misleading or deceptive."

Hur, 55, who said his legal clinic has a $25,000 annual advertising budget, much of it for television spots, has rented an airplane to fly over a packed football stadium with a large "Call Ken Hur" sign flying behind it. His son spins around town in a clunker hearse with the message painted on its side: "No Frill Wills $15."

Hur's latest television gimmick offers a 10-speed bicycle to any client convicted of drunk driving. Since the offer began this summer, Hur said he has lost 10 drunk driving cases but no one has demanded a bike.

Hur insists his tactics demean neither the legal profession nor his own abilities.

"Advertising is a function of advertising, not the delivery of law services," he said. "I don't demean my profession in the court room. Eighty-five percent of my colleagues love it. The 15 percent who don't wear short hair, white shirts and belong to firms with four or five names in them.

"As a result of studies, we are of the opinion that the matter of legal advertising should be approached not so much from the standpoint of ethics and decorum as from the standpoint of the delivery of legal services."

Brosnahan, who said the ABA has seen few disciplinary actions across the nation, refused to criticize Hur.

"He's often pointed to as the example of horror stories that can be expected," he said. "My observation would be that Hur is utilizing the TV medium in a humorous way, in a way attractive to the public, and not offensive to a lot of lawyers."

But Boston lawyer Harley Gordon, who with his partner, Thomas Faust, were among the first in Massachusetts to advertise, said Hur's approach would be devastating in New England.

"If I ever did that in Boston, honest to God, they'd disbar me," said Gordon, who has focused on advertising his firm's speciality, a 24-hour quickie divorce in the Dominican Republic. "It's different out here. People (lawyers) are very uptight."

The Bates decision also spawned the tremendous growth of another phenomenon — the legal clinic for middle class consumers.

The largest is Jacoby and Meyers, which offers a high volume of legal services geared to the individual rather than businesses.

The firm, which was struggling with four California offices and battling the state bar association over advertising at the time of the high court ruling, now has 35 offices in California and metropolitan New York.

Stephen Meyers, a partner, said the firm advertises with about 200 spots a month in all markets.

"The virtue of TV advertising, it lets people know of our services," he said. "Before advertising, no one in New York knew about us. It allows us to plan."

Jacoby and Meyers' fees vary according to the amount of work done, Meyers said. But the fee for an uncomplicated divorce would run about $195, compared to up to $1,000 in some private law firms, he said.

Advertising also paved the way for the Consumer Services Organization in Illinois. It offers a pre-paid legal program for $225 a year, providing legal services that include divorces, real estate closings, simple wills and personal bankruptcy, as well as unlimited consultation on all non-business matters.

"Television has been very effective for us," said Dr. Steven Blutz, 34, director of the organization which has more than 3,000 client-members.

"I think there's a huge group of people out there who need legal services but don't know how to find them, are afraid how much they will cost. I'd say we're hitting the stable middle class and even some upper middle class."

Columbus, Ohio, attorney Joseph Waterman saw his law firm grow from a staff of two — himself and a nephew — to 15 employees in a two-year span, thanks to the Bates decision and a $15,000 monthly advertising budget.

Pitt County Gets 2 Grants

Two federal grants, totaling $26,852 have been received by Pitt County, one for a specialized foster care program and the other for an in-school suspension program.

Ted Shaw, local services planner for the Mid-East Commission said a $15,852 grant was allocated to establish a specialized foster care program to serve children, primarily between 13 and 18 years old, who are undisciplined, delinquent, and are at risk of becoming involved with the Juvenile Justice System.

The grant, he noted, allows for the recruitment and training of specialized foster care parents in order to insure effective placement for children who are frequently on their own and unsupervised when not attending school.

The goal of the program, Shaw said, is to reduce the incidence of juvenile crime and to provide alternative placement options for youth on a short term basis.

The second grant, for $11,000, is designated for an in-school suspension program which will deal with the problems of suspended students at North Pitt High School, and if space permits, with students at Wellcome Middle School.

Instead of allowing suspended students to be out of school for several days, Shaw said the in-school suspension program will provide a self-contained classroom situation for suspended students so they will be supervised and required to continue their school assignments.

That program, Shaw noted, provides logical consequences for inappropriate behavior and affords a means of decreasing the number of students acquiring criminal records by reducing juvenile daytime arrests in the North Pitt High School area.

Revival Series

Revival services will be held Nov. 2-4 at Providence United Methodist Church in Chocowinity, located next door to the Red and White Supermarket. Services will begin at 7:30 each evening with the Rev. Dennis Fox of Holly Springs United Methodist Church as guest evangelist.

Plaque For Honor Soc.

ECU News Bureau
A commemorative plaque has been given the East Carolina University chapter of Epsilon Pi Tau honor society in technology by the Greenville Utilities Commission energy department for the chapter's assistance with GUCO's Energy Booth at the recent Pitt County Fair.

The booth, designed by Phil Morin, Robbie Tugwell and Linda Hix of GUCO in collaboration with Dr. Paul Waldrop of the ECU School of Technology, was a modular unit which can be set up to fit a square, triangular, rectangular, trapezoidal, hexagonal or octagonal area. In addition to its flexibility, the booth features ease of assembly; it was designed and built to be put together by two persons in about half an hour.

Epsilon Pi Tau members constructed the booth during a series of evenings at the new Greenville Maintenance Center on Mumford Road.

Participants included Waldrop and another faculty member, Kenneth Mayer, as well as several student Epsilon Pi Tau members: Susan Barbe, Ray Jenney, Georgeann Burroughs, Ronald Lauman, Ronnie Lewis, David Barbe and Ricky Jenkins. Also assisting was the chapter's co-trustee, Dr. William Hoots.

Bible Week Proclaimed

Mayor Percy Cox proclaimed Nov. 18-25 as "Bible Week" in Greenville and urged "participation in this important observance by reading the Bible and developing a study program to become familiar with its teachings and principles."

In his proclamation, Cox pointed out that the "new easy-to-read translations and electronic aids give us unprecedented opportunity to overcome the appalling ignorance of the Bible, the 'Foundation Book' of our free, democratic system."

The mayor mentioned that, "The Laymen's National Bible Committee has developed an exciting media campaign to promote Bible reading and study, particularly among young people."

According to Cox, "Hundreds of churches and synagogues, civic clubs, youth organizations, libraries, book stores, the Armed Forces chaplains, and governmental leaders are participating in this non-sectarian campaign."

"They don't handle divorces anyway. They handle oil companies."

Incensed at his tactics, the Wisconsin State Bar Association asked the state supreme court to expand its guidelines to prohibit comedy or mockery of the profession. The court turned down the request.

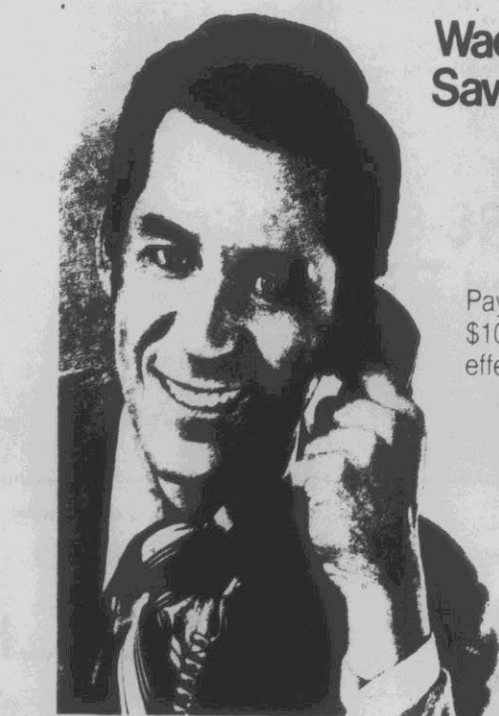

Indeed, Brosnahan said his commission on advertising is recommending the ABA's Model Code be amended to take a broad approach on acceptable ads.

The gist of one television spot, Waterman said, goes something like: "If you're rich and in trouble, you can afford any kind of legal assistance. If you're poor, you can get free legal aid. But if you're in the middle, like most of us, you need Calig and Waterman."

Added Waterman, who despite the surge in business has retained spartan qualities in his cubbyhole office, "The wage earner, the secretary, that's 95 percent of us after taxes. The rich hobnob with attorneys at the country club."

Lone storefront practitioners such as Harold S. Entes, who practices law in the impoverished South Bronx, also have benefitted from the Bates decision.

Entes, who spends about $500 a month for advertisements in the New York Post, the Daily News and El Diario, said he grosses an extra $1,000 a month because of his advertising. His pitch is simple — "Spanish spoken."

"I'm in the Bronx and I know there are many Hispanics in the Bronx," he said. "If I were in a Greek area, I'd reach for Greek clientele."

Of An Amazing Horseman - And Amazing Horse

By FRED FERGUSON

NEW YORK (UPI) — They ought to call him the amazing Barney Ward.

Well, some already have.

Doctors said he would be paralyzed for life as a result of a broken neck caused by a spill from a horse last year.

Six months later he jumped in the Puissance — a perilous event with one jump, to see who can go highest — in the National Horse Show in Madison Square Garden. Then he went to Canada's Royal Winter Fair at Toronto. Riding Lucky Hit in the Puissance there, he set a new world record, jumped 7-foot-5.

Amazing? There's more. There's Luger.

Barney can tell about a horse from a good look at him, a walk around him, a quiet watch of him loose in the paddock. Barney saw Luger in New England last winter.

Luger was a veteran at flat racing. He had raced for 8 years. Eight years! Like Barney says, "he must have had something to have raced that long."

And Luger's sire was Bold Ruler, won the Preakness in '57. Like Barney says, "he was a pretty fancy race horse."

Luger was 10 years old, almost antique for a race horse. But Luger could show for a good many years — if he could jump.

Thing was, Luger had never jumped. To train a top jumper takes years, right?

Most horsemen will tell you so. But Luger is different.

"It's like a kid playing basketball. You spot one with super talent but no real polish. That was Luger."

Barney knows about athletes. After working his way through the University of Rhode Island, he played a year of pro football. Got in some games with the Providence Steamrollers, then a farm team of the Boston Patriots. The pay was lousy. "We didn't even have insurance if we got hurt." He turned to horses to make a living.

So last winter he bought Luger. We won't talk about price. A trainer buys low — in the thousands of dollars. If he can bring the horse along, he sells high — in the tens of thousands. "But a lot of times they don't turn out," says Barney.

Such gambles, however, have made Barney a good living. He is the first to say so.

"I bring them along fast," he says of his horses. "Some people say too fast. But I pick my horses. They like what they are doing. That's the key."

Luger was jumping within six months. On the show circuit this summer, Luger was placing — seventh here, fourth there, third, second.

There's a point where a jumper passes from green to seasoned. Barney thinks that point is close.

He hadn't planned to show Luger in this year's National, which opens Oct. 30. But now he's entered.

"He just might win. He can do it. The only thing that can stop him is his inexperience."

Perhaps Luger's story is not so amazing when you take a look at Barney's record. He's trained a lot of great jumpers. Some have gone on to the international teams.

He was training a young horse at his stable at Bedford Village, N.Y., a year ago April when he took that spill. The horse fell on him.

"I knew my neck was broken. But I walked out of the field." He was in a hospital for two months. The doctors believed he would be paralyzed from the neck down. Later, they said he would have some mobility. But he would never ride again.

"They had me in a plaster cast from my waist up above my head.

"They wanted me to stay in the hospital. But I went home.

"They said I wasn't supposed to be doing anything. I started running." He did it in that cast.

A month later, he started riding — every day. They had to lift him onto the horse. He was still in that cast.

"My wife, Kris, wouldn't look."

"Riding is everything to me. I could see it slipping away. So I was going to ride. Once she knew it, she gave me all the support in the world.

"I started jumping little fences. I had the guys watch in case I fell."

When he jumped, the cast would come up over his face. He'd push it down in time to jump the next one.

Within four months, he was jumping in shows again — in that cast.

The doctors took the cast off. He never did go back for his final checkup, too busy training and showing horses.

"It isn't the money. It's an ego thing — like the chance to go to Madison Square Garden, being thought of as one of the best.

"For a boy whose grandma's ambition was for me to be a pole man for the gas and electric company, whose father worked in a foundry, whose mother was a waitress, that's something.

"It was never in my mind that I wouldn't do it, that I couldn't do it."

Barney, 5-foot-6, short and stocky for a rider, has overcome a lot of things. "They said I shouldn't try to be a horseman. I wasn't their kind.

"My family, we didn't have money. But my father, he liked horses. We had a couple. Those days, you could buy a horse for $50-$75.

"So I grew up loving horses." Barney never had a formal lesson. But he worked around stables near his hometown, Providence, R.I. He taught himself.

From exercising horses for well-to-do owners, he graduated to jumping them in shows.

After his year in football, he rode for individual owners. Later he worked for established stables. Twelve years ago, he set out on his own.

To be a top rider, he says, "you've got to be a hell of an athlete. "It's as tough as any football training I ever had."

He runs 5 to 10 miles after a day's riding at the stable. The Wards have two sons.

Riders? "Well," Barney admits, "Not the oldest." Jay, 14, races trailbikes. But, Barney says, there's Maclain. He rides. He's 3.

Perennial Species Of Corn Poses A Promise

By HARRIET LEEDS

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — The discovery that may someday lead to the development of perennial corn almost didn't happen.

A perennial species of wild corn was found about a year ago in the remote Sierra de Manantlan mountain region of southwestern Mexico by an international team of scientists.

"Five cobs in the wrong place and that plant would have been wiped out," said Hugh H. Itlis, a University of Wisconsin botanist who led the expedition.

Other members of the team were John Doebley of the University of Wisconsin, Batia Pazy of Hebrew University in Jerusalem and Rafael Guzman of the University of Guadalajara in Mexico.

The species of wild corn they discovered and named Zea diploperennis has the same number of chromosomes as domesticated corn. This makes crossbreeding possible, something that could not be done with another form of perennial wild corn called teocinte which was discovered in 1910 by Albert S. Hitchcock of the Smithsonian Institution. When bred with corn, teocinte, with twice as many chromosomes, formed sterile hybrids.

Itlis and his colleagues published an article about their discovery about nine months ago. Since then, scientists all over the world have begun research that may lead to corn crops that spring up each year with no need for replanting.

Itlis sent seeds to such countries as West Germany, Spain, Italy, Israel, Columbia, India, Pakistan, Japan, China and the Soviet Union.

At a seminar in Irkutsk, Siberia, this summer, Itlis said he bumped into one Soviet researcher who was "excited as a kid" to get the seeds.

Development of a seed to produce an economically feasible, marketable product may be 10 to 100 years in the future, depending on the optimism of the scientist speaking.

"I've been skeptical," Doebley said. "People have to wait and see. It may take 100 years for the genetic technology to develop. Perennialism can be controlled by many genes."

Itlis said other benefits of the discovery — such as disease-resistant hybrids — are likely to come sooner.

Itlis said he had long suspected the existence of an even more primitive plant than teocinte and felt if it survived it would be growing somewhere near the plants Hitchcock found.

He and his group reached the area with the help of a supporting party of local Indians, four mules, two horses and one donkey.

The new-found plant is thought to be an ancestor of corn, but does not closely resemble it. The plant produces rows of six to 10 triangular seeds fitted together in one husk.

Corn, one of the world's top three food crops (the others are wheat and rice), is the United States' biggest and most valuable agricultural crop.

About 10 percent of the U.S. crop is eaten by people in a wide variety of forms from corn-on-the-cob to popcorn. The rest is consumed by animals and ultimately provides food for people in the form of meat, milk, and eggs.

Dr. Lowell R. Nault of the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center told Itlis his early experiments showed Zea diploperennis highly resistant to several viruses.

"The locals considered the plant a mala yerba — a bad weed — and were trying to eliminate it," Itlis said. "For God's sake, it's immune to everything."

Itlis said the importance of the discovery is overshadowed by the need for conservation of the Mexican wilderness to save from extinction endemic species that may prove useful to man.

"The big question is, will this be possible without a national park system in Mexico," he said.

"To have a national park of some sort there would not be unjustified considering that it is much more diverse and at least as beautiful as The Great Smoky Mountains National Park (on the North Carolina-Tennessee border)."

Lost Da Vinci Mural Is Found

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — A Leonardo da Vinci mural painting, lost for 400 years, has been discovered hanging in a gallery in Italy by a Duke University art professor and another American.

"The Battle of Anghiari" was found beneath a Giorgio Vasari fresco by John R. Spencer, chairman of the art department at Duke, and Travis Newton, an art historian at Harvard University, in the Palazzo Vecchio in Florence, Italy.

Spencer and Newton have scheduled a news conference today at the university to formally announce the discovery.

Spencer said da Vinci began work on the painting in 1506, about the same time he started the "Mona Lisa."

"It has been lost 400 years," he said Wednesday night. "If there's much of it left, it is going to be a very important discovery."

Spencer said he and Newton conducted tests that led to the discovery. Newton had been working on the investigation since 1975, and Spencer joined him more than a year.

The two have not seen the work, "but we are quite convinced" it is genuine, Spencer said.

It differs from a fresco, a painting involving water colors on plaster, in that da Vinci used "an oil or a resin, we could not be certain which," instead of water, he said.

Italian art experts have begun working to uncover the hidden mural. As yet there is no report on the condition of the work Spencer described as a "careful and very painstaking task."

Da Vinci was commissioned in 1503 to portray an event in the history of Florence, and he chose the battle of Anghiari, where Florentine forces defeated opponents from Milan.

The work is familiar today because of preliminary sketches and copies done by later artists.

Vasari, who did the fresco, was a 16th century Italian painter, historian and architect.

Seek Vets In Nuke Tests

The Defense Nuclear Agency, in an attempt to find veterans possibly exposed to radiation while participating in atmospheric nuclear tests, is urging veterans who participated in those tests to contact the agency.

The DNA, serving as an agency for the Department of Defense, advises veterans taking part in the tests largely held in Nevada and at Bikini and Enewetak atolls, they may contact the Defense Nuclear Agency at toll-free number 800-336-3068.

C.A. Beddingfield, Jr., Assistant Secretary for Veterans Affairs in North Carolina, advises former personnel concerned that possible exposure may have adversely affected their health, to consult their doctor or contact the nearest VA hospital for a physical examination at government expense.

According to the DNA, research to date indicates radiation exposures were low, though there is some disagreement within the scientific community about the magnitude of this risk.

The Defense Nuclear Agency is attempting to reconstruct a complete history of the atmospheric nuclear test program including names of participants and any radiation doses they may have received. One of the purposes of the effort is to enable the National Academy of Sciences and other scientific organizations to determine if there are health hazards resulting from participation in the tests.

ORDER OF THE RAVEN — Cyndee Lewis Moore of Paris, Texas is the first female to qualify for the Order of the Raven by flying her hang glider for more than one hour (1 hour 23 minutes) above the peaks of 6,000-foot Grandfather Mountain in North Carolina. Cyndee is quite a girl, because previously 103 men had qualified, and no women. She has reason to be proud. Only 200 of the limited edition Raven certificates featuring a painting by wildlife artist Ray Harm will be issued.

Laffer Curve Would Cut Taxes To Cut Inflation

By JAMES J. DOYLE
LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A young economist at the University of Southern California advocates an economic theory that could become very popular. Not only does it promote tax cuts but just about anyone can understand it.

Dr. Arthur B. Laffer thinks taxes should be cut for business and individuals alike to spur incentives to produce. Laffer, 39, Charles B. Thornton Professor of Business Economics at USC, sees his theories, embodied in the "Laffer Curve," as an answer to inflation and lowered production.

The Laffer Curve has taken on the role of the cutting edge of supply-side economics. Current theories which have guided our economy for the past several years are based on Keynesian economics — or demand-side economics.

Government policymakers have focused, at least since the end of the Kennedy Administration, on managing the total demand of the economy. When demand dropped, the government increased federal spending and reduced taxes.

When the economy burgeoned too quickly, the federal government cut spending and raised taxes.

The traditional wisdom is that the supply of workers, material and production would meet the level of demand.

That's based on the theories of John Maynard Keynes, the British economist who believed that government control and massive government spending was the answer to economic crises in the early part of the century.

Laffer, however, believes that people change their behavior when incentives are ample and will produce if they are rewarded for production.

"Basically, what the curve does is illustrate two effects," he said. "One is an arithmetic effect. If you raise tax rates you collect more revenue per dollar and reduce incentives to work."

"The other goes in the opposite direction. Sometimes when you cut taxes, you raise revenue, not lower it."

The idea is described as the "new, new economics," by one business publication. But Laffer said, "It's been around since the original writings, but it hasn't been analyzed or used."

Simply, if taxes are cut, workers are rewarded, produce more, have more income to spend and there are more dollars to tax.

Laffer defines the current economic theorists as "macro economists," those seeking long term beneficial effects by measures designed to respond to demand only.

"They're not incentive type economists — no room for incentives. This theory, or relationship, only makes sense where incentives play a major role."

"If you want to get more supply, you pay the suppliers more for producing. If you want more demand, you lower the price to the demanders."

If quantity is the goal, Laffer said, lower the wedge between the price paid and the price received, which is the tax wedge.

"If you have a bumper crop of apples, the price of apples goes down. More goods, lower prices. But the other side, the Keynesians, say that is bad for the economy."

"We view inflation very differently from the Keynesians. The economy is far more resilient from what is imagined."

"Taxes have never been higher. What enormous (government) interventions and in what silly ways!"

The problems with the economy, according to some other economists, have been years in the making and will not be resolved by the current wisdom of stimulating demand.

One of the problems is investment. Unless tremendous capital is involved, inflation will defeat investment for gain and traditional investment avenues are going begging.

The so-called "new economics," still ruled by Keynesian theorists, suggests propping up investments as one part of overall demand. But supply-side economics sees investment as part of production, a key to supply without increasing inflation.

The economy, suffering from commodity shortages, lowered production of hard goods, shortages, slow growth, poor capital investment, and raging inflation, is still dominated by the theories Keynes developed after World War I and which became predominant in the west after the Second World War.

"Now we have to return to the time of the Kennedy era," Laffer said, "the time, not the person. We have to return to the stage where we cut taxes and get it going again, and retain a stable dollar."

"We have to set the dollar at the price of gold and make it convertible to gold. Everytime we have had stability, we have had a convertible dollar."

"We have to cut taxes for business and make big personal tax cuts."

Sen. Russell Long, D-La., became interested in the theory last year when he led a fight to reduce capital gains taxes. Recently, he has won approval of a $240,000 grant to pay for a supply-side econometric model by economic consultant Michael Evans.

The model, to focus on tax cuts as incentives, is due for completion this year. Evans says his model will trace the impact on work effort, investment and productivity.

Productivity is the crux of supply-side economics and achieving it through incentive tax cuts is the concern of the Laffer Curve.

Most economists, in and out of the government, have become alarmed by the negative growth measured in the first half of 1979 when output per man hour dropped at a 3.3 percent annual rate.

The slump in productivity and lowered performance, which in many cases goes hand-in-hand with protectionist policies, increases inflation drastically.

One Harvard University study showed primary metals, as an example, had a 2 percent inflationary gain per year combined with poor performance and increased protection from foreign competitors.

To Laffer, "The protection philosophy is the same as the taxing philosophy. It makes no sense."

Laffer has been described as far right of current economic principles, but he puts that definition in the same bag with the descriptions of "new, new economics." It doesn't apply.

Alan Greenspan, President Gerald Ford's chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, characterized supply-side economics as one-time partisan Republican Party philosophy which has become centrist through wider acceptance. But Laffer does not see the theory nor his own contributions as responsive to political partisanship.

"It is not a partisan view," he said. "And it surely hasn't been a Republican party concept for a long time."

Sinister Echoes From Sickly Past Continue

By BRIAN SULLIVAN
AP Science Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Sinister echoes from our sickly past: plague, smallpox, tuberculosis, diphtheria, whooping cough, polio.

Scare words from history? Not entirely. Even plague, a disease now far from people's minds, crops up each year in the southwestern and western United States. Thirteen have been stricken this year by what used to be called the Black Death; 20 in 1976.

Small reminders of the pestilence that wiped out 25 million people — a quarter of Europe's population — in the 14th century.

Heart disease and cancer are this century's epidemics, because people live long enough to encounter them, spared the terrible toll that kept the average lifespan to the thirties in earlier centuries.

But the old devils still leave their calling cards.

Little is heard of tuberculosis anymore, and it's wholly curable now. In 1965, about 50,000 cases were reported in the United States, down to 28,521 last year.

Far from the scourge it used to be, tuberculosis nevertheless keeps cropping up "every day," says Dr. Lawrence Farer of the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta. There are still pockets with high case rates in areas with new immigrants from Asia, Africa and Latin America, and TB remains a health problem with American Indians.

But drug treatment today is so effective that "there's no reason that anyone should die of TB," says Dr. Farer. Still, as late as 1976, there were 3,130 deaths.

TB has a long incubation period and some cases occurring now result from infection as long as 30 years ago, when it was still rampant.

Plague is less significant, with only about 1,000 to 1,500 cases worldwide each year. In the United States, the plague seems to peak in five-year cycles, for no obvious reason, according to Dr. Arnold Kaufman of the CDC. "In 1980 and 1981 there should be another peak and then slide off again," he says.

The plague bacillus is spread by fleas that live on rodents, causing an inflammation of the lymph nodes — the classic bubonic plague. Pneumonic or pulmonary plague is more dangerous, because it is more contagious. Patients are isolated at the first sign of infection and treated with tetracycline, streptomycin and sulpha drugs.

Cases in the United States are concentrated in Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado, and Utah and in California and Oregon. Prairie dogs can transmit plague via their fleas, posing a threat to campers who place their sleeping bags on old rodent burrows. Hunters also should exercise care, avoiding dead animals and those that appear sluggish.

Polio is as nearly extinct as the plague, though a reminder of the days when it was a fearsome thing came recently with an outbreak among unvaccinated Amish in Pennsylvania, Iowa, and Wisconsin. The numbers are small, though, 15 cases in the United States and Canada this year. In 1952, the United States had 20,000 cases.

Also at an all-time low is measles, with fewer than 12,000 cases up to August. As with polio, the decline is the result of vaccination, and Dr. Alan Hinman, director of CDC's immunization division, says he thinks the October, 1982, target for complete eradication will be met.

Other diseases that nowadays are mostly reminders:

Whooping cough, with 250,000 patients in the late 1930s, is now down to 2,000 a year. Diphtheria, from 200,000 in the 1920s to fewer than 100 now. Mumps, from 152,000 cases in 1968 to 16,600 in 1978. German measles — rubella — dropped from 57,000 in 1969 to 17,000 last year.

Worldwide, the most dramatic achievement in relegating a scourge to history involved smallpox, now virtually eradicated. The United States hasn't reported a case since 1949.

These advances in public health are reflected in the CDC itself. It began in 1942 as the Office of Malaria Control in War Areas, then in 1946 became the Communicable Disease Center. In the 1960s, the center became involved in international, as well as domestic, infectious disease control. The name change to the Center for Disease Control reflects its change in direction to prevention of disease.

"Much of the improvement in life expectancy in the 20th century can be attributed to the prevention of communicable disease," says Dr. William H. Foege, center director. Now the center is focusing more on chronic rather than infectious diseases.

For example, the CDC contracted in late 1977 with 10 states — Colorado, Georgia, Illinois, Maine, Michigan, Mississippi, Nebraska, New York, Rhode Island and South Carolina — to conduct community diabetes demonstration projects.

"If we look to the century's final two decades," Dr. Foege says, "it appears obvious that further improvements in life expectancy and reduced morbidity will result from the prevention of the chronic diseases."

Sec. Kreps Saddled With 2nd Class Department

By EILEEN ALT POWELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a town that ranks almost everything, Juanita Kreps has been regarded as a first-rate administrator of a second-rate department.

But Mrs. Kreps, who leaves the capital at the end of this week after 33 months as secretary of Commerce, takes exception to the characterization of her agency.

"Anyone who says that has not very good touch with reality," she said in an interview, "especially in their understanding of what is going on in the world, where commercial matters are so central."

It is a defense she has been making since she was sworn in as the first woman and first professional economist to head the $3 billion agency on Jan. 23, 1977.

JUANITA KREPS

Now, she says, she hopes her successor — expected to be named by President Carter this week — "will keep the momentum ... make use of the excitement and enthusiasm" she senses at the agency.

Mrs. Kreps, 58, has acknowledged to friends that her resignation was due in good part to concern about her husband, Clifton Kreps Jr., who attempted suicide earlier this year.

She says she is eager to "have more time with him" at their home in Durham, N.C. After a vacation in Bermuda and holiday gatherings with their three children, she adds, she will select a job "that combines both higher education and the corporate world."

Before joining the Carter administration, Mrs. Kreps was vice president of Duke University in Durham, where she had also taught economics and written a number of books on labor and working women.

She served on numerous corporate boards of directors — among them the New York Stock Exchange, R.J. Reynolds Industries, J.C. Penney Co., Eastman Kodak Co. — often as the first woman in the post.

Close colleagues at Commerce describe her as "a Southern lady" but caution that her soft-spoken demeanor should not be misread.

"She is clearly above average among the Cabinet officials the Carter administration has had — male or female," said Jack Carlson, executive vice president of the National Association of Realtors and a former vice president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. "It's going to be a hard act to follow."

Critics don't complain about Mrs. Kreps but about a department they believe has outlasted its usefulness.

"The job of secretary of Commerce has never been that much of a heavyweight in the formation of national policy," said a Treasury official who asked for anonymity. "There's almost no excuse for a Department of Commerce — or a Department of Labor — anymore. Business and labor can take care of themselves."

He also said he thought Mrs. Kreps "has been disappointed for a long time because the position doesn't give her enough clout."

Some of the "clout" was removed late in 1977 when W. Michael Blumenthal, then treasury secretary, cut Mrs. Kreps and Labor Secretary Ray Marshall from the interagency Economic Policy Group, which advises the president on domestic priorities.

"Yes, I did feel cut out," she said this week. "But 'the boys' breakfast club' is not the only way one could have some impact on economic policy. So I spent my energies on trade and economic development rather than fretting about not being invited to breakfast."

She lists what she considers her greatest accomplishments with enthusiasm:

—Calling attention to the heavy U.S. trade deficit and the need to expand exports.

—Working for expansion of the Economic Development Administration, which this year will have its funds for business projects more than quadrupled from last year's $628 million.

—Shifting more of the responsibility for day-to-day promotion and policing of trade from State and Treasury to Commerce.

—Improving communication among what she called "a loose conglomeration of agencies" with responsibilities ranging from control of shipping to business loans and weather forecasting.

Mrs. Kreps also could have cited the half-dozen successful overseas missions she conducted for Carter. The most recent, in May, saw her initial an agreement with China that has become the basis for re-establishing trade relations after a 30-year lapse.

She has described Commerce as being like Noah's ark, but with only one of everything.

Her staff apparently wanted her to remember the variety:

gifts at her farewell party last Friday included a lobster pot, complete with live lobsters, from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration; signal flags for the letters "J" and "K" from the Maritime Administration; and hard hats from several development groups.

"And we all chipped in and bought her Cabinet chair for her," said an aide. "It was a hard goodbye."

Strongman Is Emerging

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Gen. Chung Seung-hwa, the army chief of staff who automatically became martial law commander after the assassination of President Park Chung-hee, is emerging as the strongest figure in post-Park government, informed sources said today.

Chung wielded considerable power as chief of the 560,000-man army before the assassination last Friday. Insiders say he now is one of the most influential members — and may be the most influential — of the small committee running the government, a group that includes Acting President Choi Kyu-hah and other key military and cabinet officials.

Chung increased his power by having his deputy, Lt. Gen. Lee Hui-sung, named acting head of the Korean Central Intelligence Agency, a key source of Park's power during his 18 years of authoritarian rule.

Lee replaced KCIA chief Kim Jae-kyu, named by the government as the master mind of the assassination plot and the man who shot Park and his chief bodyguard. And the investigation into the assassination is headed by the defense security chief, Maj. Gen. Chon Doo-hwan.

Installing New Church Officers

Installation of church officers will be held Saturday, Nov. 3, at Philippi Church of Christ.

Dr. C. E. McCollum and his congregation from Second Missionary Baptist Church of Roanoke Rapids will be in charge of the installation worship services. All choirs of the Philippi Church will conduct the devotional service. The Rev. A. F. Norfleet will give the installation prayer and give the charge to all elected officers. The public is invited to attend this service.

Dying Clown Continues Make Children Laugh

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — They helped Jack Thum into his clown suit and wheeled him out on the hospital auditorium stage. As 400 school children cheered and laughed, the dying clown blinked back tears.

It was not just another hospital visit by Thum, who estimates he has performed before sick and ailing children more than 2,000 times in his 23 years as a professional clown.

Thum now is confined to the hospital, perhaps permanently, with cancer spreading through his body. Doctors told him in July 1978 he had less than two years to live because of spreading lung cancer.

"I'll go out making people laugh," he said. And he kept performing at benefits and such as long as he could. But radiology and chemotherapy treatments have made his bones so brittle he may break a leg just trying to stand, doctors said.

"I can think of nothing more beautiful than making the kids laugh, being a clown for them for probably the last time," he said before being taken to the auditorium of the Mount Sinai Hospital Medical Center. A small plastic tube ran into his body from a glass container, giving him liquid food continuously. He no longer can eat.

He gave a brief show of little magic tricks and jokes. His 15-year-old granddaughter, Jackie, also was in her clown suit to help out.

"I will carry on as Jackie the Clown when he is gone," she said. "He has been teaching me since I was eight."

Halloween was proclaimed by Mayor Jane Byrne as "Jack Thum" Day in Chicago. In a brief speech to the audience, Thum told of the honor to have a special day like Halloween. "I thank you all for coming and for letting me perform as best I can," he said. "God bless all of you and I wish you many happy years ahead."

Way Cleared To Try Bishop

DETROIT (AP) — A judge has cleared the way for the trial of a Romanian Orthodox bishop accused of World War II war crimes.

Bishop Valeria Trifa, 65, faces federal charges that he lied about his alleged role as leader of the anti-semitic Romanian iron guard. The government charges Trifa lied so he could become a U.S. citizen.

Judge Cornelia Kennedy of the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals rejected on Monday arguments by Trifa's attorneys that the United States should not prosecute Trifa because it had the same evidence when he became a citizen in 1957 and did not halt his naturalization. Attorneys say he could be tried in December.

Big Electric Bill Due Computer

DENVER (AP) — Birdie Casement owns a 1,200-square-foot cabin in the mountains near Grand Lake but hasn't been able to spend any time there during the past two months.

So when her bill from Mountain Parks Electric Inc. arrived this month, she was shocked.

The bill, for the last half of September and the first half of October, was for $24,641.71, she said.

"It made my jaw drop," Mrs. Casement added.

Marguerite Holland, office manager for the utility, said it was all a computer mistake. "I'm sorry we had to get Mrs. Casement's attention so emphatically with such a bill," Mrs. Holland said.

Mrs. Casement's bill was corrected to the usual monthly winter rate of $3.97.

Networks Going All Out For 'November Sweeps'

By JOAN HANAUER
UPI Television Writer
NEW YORK (UPI) — There are only two nights during the first 28 days of November in which there are no preemptions, big movies or specials on commercial television.

The bill for all this November spending by the three networks could run as high as $60 million.

The occasion is what the industry calls "the November sweeps." Actually, there are three sweeps periods — November, February and May. That's when the Nielsen and ARB ratings services go into the field to poll viewing in 200 local markets.

Advertising rates for network and local shows are based in large part on the results of these "sweeps." The rates also are based on what the market will bear, but that's another matter.

There has been increasing criticism of the sweeps lately. Since all three networks throw in an enormous amount of special programming, the sweeps results are not really indicative of viewing habits. The networks, caught in their own rivalry, are paying out huge sums.

As the November schedules now shape up — all subject to change — each network will be using theatrical movies, television dramas and long forms of regular series — but NBC will be big on theatrical movies? CBS on television drama and ABC on special series episodes.

One of the big splurges during the sweeps will be big movies. ABC has the top-ranking movies for the period — "Jaws" — which will be broadcast Nov. 4. "Jaws" is the second-biggest grossing theatrical movie of all time. That's the only theatrical movie ABC has announced for the sweeps period so far — but ABC has been coyly reluctant to announce its sweeps entries, so perhaps there are some surprises coming.

NBC, anxious to hang onto its new ratings respectability and with more non-series time on its schedule than the other networks, offers Gregory Peck in a two-part "MacArthur," the final segment to compete with "Jaws."

Other NBC movies include "Heroes," with Henry Winkler and Sally Field; "Dog Day Afternoon," starring Al Pacino; "The Omen," starring Gregory Peck and Lee Remick; "The Duchess and the Dirtwater Fox," with Goldie Hawn and George Segal; "A Bridge Too Far" in two parts, starring all sorts of people; and "Escape from Witch Mountain."

The CBS movies include George Burns in "Oh God!," a box office blockbuster; "The Turning Point," with Anne Bancroft and Shirley MacLaine; "Race for Your Life, Charlie Brown," "Avalanche," starring Rock Hudson and Mia

Farrow; and Gene Wilder, Jill Clayburgh and Richard Pryor in "Silver Streak."

CBS has one of the best dramatic specials of November — or of the year, for that matter — in its remake of "All Quiet on the Western Front," to show Nov. 14. It also has Joanne Woodward in "The Streets of L.A.," and Miss Woodward's appearance is almost a guarantee of quality.

Other dramas include Bess Armstrong and Max Gail in "11th Victim," about the sleaziest side of Hollywood; Angie Dickinson in "The Suicidal Wife;" Elizabeth Montgomery in "Act of Violence" about a woman mugging victim; David Soul and James Mason in a four-hour, two-part vampire story called "Salem's Lot;" Valerie Bertinelli and Timothy Hutton in "Young Love, First Love;" Anthony Hopkins and Richard Crenna in "Mayflower: The Pilgrim's Adventure;" and David Birney and Mike Connors in "High Midnight."

ABC's specials lead off with Kate Jackson and husband Andrew Stevens in an updated remake of "Topper," with Jack Warden in the title role, to be shown Nov. 9. Others include Darren McGavin in "Love for Rent," a drama about an escort service; "The French Atlantic Affair," starring Telly Savalas and Shelley Winters in a three-part adventure as cultists take over an ocean liner; and "Birth of the Beatles," on Nov. 25, which ABC hopes will be as good for ratings as its "Elvis" special.

NBC offers two big dramas — the two-part "Beggarman, Thief," conclusion of Irwin Shaw's "Rich Man, Poor Man," based on the book; and the three-hour "The Last Ride of the Dalton Gang." NBC also has Bob Hope and Bee Gees specials, and a "Little House on the Prairie" retrospective.

There also will be all sorts of playing around with regular series, celebrity game shows and other ways of catching the competition's audience.

CBS even has a CBS News Special Report that should draw better than most — it's titled "Teddy" and that doesn't refer to Roosevelt.

TV Movie Form Given A Touch Of The Adult

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The new ABC vice president ponders the network executive, curious breed, and comments:

"I've been to meetings with the networks when I've wanted to kill these executives because they're 10 years old, they think they know everything, and they're (expletives). They're ridiculous."

Meet Jacqueline Babbin, a lady easy to like. A few minutes with her makes you think that you've stepped into a Norman Lear comedy pilot: Strong-minded, statuesque, independent producer, after 25 years of hassling with the networks, is hired by the No. 1 web as a vice president. The caustic outsider working on the inside.

Bea Arthur would be perfect.

ABC hired Ms. Babbin to be Vice President, Novels for Television and Mini-Series, ABC Entertainment. She asked why they wanted her.

"Because you're adult," replied Brandon Stoddard, ABC's movie chief.

"I think ABC is very smart," she comments, and you're inclined to agree. The TV movie, as an art form, could use a large dose of adult.

ABC's new vice president has been on the production end of television since 1954 — "My God, that's a long time! My career is older than most people who work in television" — and her list of credits include some of TV's classics, such as "Sybil" and "The Adams Chronicles."

able to make them happen. Her production of Aldous Huxley's futuristic "Brave New World," said to be a first-rate film, has been finished and collecting dust at NBC for too long a while.

When Ms. Babbin's move to ABC was announced, someone asked her why she would interrupt her career as an independent producer. "Because it means I will never have to speak to NBC again," she responded.

Richard Boone

Has A Checkup

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP) — Actor Richard Boone says he expects to wind up a three-day hospital visit with a clean bill of health from his doctors.

After being hospitalized Tuesday in an intensive care unit, Boone, 62, said physicians performed a battery of tests and told him he was in good shape.

"I just really felt lousy," he said Wednesday when asked about his visit to Flagler Hospital. "I was tired. I just didn't generally feel well."

Boone, who said he expected to be released today, gained fame playing the character Paladin in the long-running television series "Have Gun Will Travel." He also starred in other series and has had leading roles in films.

NEW VERSION OF CLASSIC — Ernest Borgnine (right) and Richard Thomas co-star as Katczinsky and Paul Baumer, respectively, in the "Hallmark Hall of Fame" presentation of Erich Maria Remarque's classic World War I novel, "All Quiet on the Western Front," Wednesday (Nov. 14, on the CBS Television Network.

Janet Gaynor To Try Broadway

NEW YORK (AP) — Film star Janet Gaynor, who retired from the movies more than 40 years ago, says she'll try her luck on Broadway.

Miss Gaynor will star in a musical version of "Harold and Maude," a film about an 80-year-old woman who takes a 19-year-old boy for a lover. The show opens in New York on Jan. 28.

"I never thought I'd go back to being an actress," said Miss Gaynor, 72, who won an Academy Award for her role in the 1927 film "Seventh Heaven" and retired from movies in 1937. "But I have no reservations about it at all. I felt I could do the part as soon as I read it."

Her only previous stage role was in "The Midnight Sun," a 1959 play that closed before coming to Broadway.

Ruth Gordon had the role of Maude in the 1971 film version.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You have a considerable amount of energy which should be used in trying a project. Don't try to accomplish too much quickly, but be sure your policy plans have been carefully thought out.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Your creativity is high and you can come to a fine understanding of your talents with others. Avoid a partner looking for information.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Consult with an expert about future activities. Show more affection for mate, loved one. Show that you are a generous person.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You can get friends to cooperate with you if you state your aims clearly. Avoid one who never keeps promises. Relax tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make sure you know exactly what one who has power over your affairs expects of you and try to please.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Any aims you have in mind can meet with success, provided you are particular with details where partners are concerned. Don't lose temper.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Analyze your business matters as well as your private relationships with others. Do whatever will improve your health, also.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You can carry through with constructive aims with partners and good friends. Forget any hurt feelings and concentrate on expansion.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Accomplish a good deal provided you do not argue with one in a position of authority. Follow rules and regulations that apply to you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Creative ideas can be an inspiration to you and you can get ahead via new opportunities. Avoid a friend who undermines your efforts.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Confer with experts and on how to get your life on a more ideal basis from the policy level. Follow hunches which are accurate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Talk over new plans with partners that can bring greater mutual success. Find a more modern system that can be very helpful.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Good day to improve your appearance and surroundings. Come to a better understanding with fellow workers. Smile and be happy.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have a mind that runs from one thing to another, and should be taught early to complete one task before going on to another. A romantic nature here, also, and a happy and successful life is denoted.

New Jersey Law Requires New Home Warranties

By ELLEN L. SLOTT
TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — Karen Giordano moved into her newly built home in Edison, N.J., last March to find the porch noticeably crooked. The roof leaked, and every time it rained a lake formed in an ungraded section of adjoining woods.

Ms. Giordano's builder, under orders by the state, eventually fixed most of the problems, but not until there were "months and months of grueling arguments and aggravation."

Today in New Jersey and soon in many other states, people who get insurance for cars and health are getting a warranty on probably the most important and largest expense they'll ever encounter — their home.

A state-mandated New Home Warranty Program — the first of its kind in the nation — went into effect this summer. It applies to every new house, duplex, condominium or cooperative sold after July 1, 1979.

New Jersey officials have gotten requests from Florida,

Louisiana, Delaware, Minnesota, Pennsylvania, Vermont and Virginia on how to run such a program.

The plan places a one-year warranty on general materials and workmanship, a two-year guaranty on mechanical, electrical and plumbing systems, and a 10-year warranty on major structural defects.

Many builders believe the new trend to insure homes is largely the result of a negative, distrustful attitude the public has toward builders.

"I hate being introduced as a builder," said Michael Jones, a Surf City, N.J., developer. "I think people think that builders are generally a shifty lot and will get away with anything we can."

Philip J. Cocuzza, executive vice president of the New Jersey Builders Association, said the poor impression has evolved since the end of World War II when builders hurriedly bulldozed large areas to meet the increased demand for housing.

"I think most people have the wrong impression of builders," he said. "They think most are rich and defilers of the environment. That's not true anymore."

New Jersey requires its 4,000 home builders to register with the state at a biennial fee of $200 — or be fined $2,000 for each house sold — and join either the state-run insurance plan or an approved private plan, such as the National Association of Home Builders' Homeowner's Warranty plan.

Under the state program, a homeowner must wait 120 days during which he will try to get the builder to fix the problem.

If no agreement is reached, a conciliator will try to find an equitable solution. Failing that, the case is sent to binding arbitration.

An uncooperative builder can lose his registration and be forced out of business.

"I think it upgrades the industry, makes people do better work," said John J. Ploskanka, a Manalapan, N.J., builder.

"I think the majority of builders in the state are building in accordance with good construction practices," said Philip B. Caton, director of the state Division of Housing. "In case of builders who aren't, it will insure homeowners the repairs will be made."

The law specifies which repairs a builder is responsible for and which he isn't. For example, minor cracks from settling foundations are not covered.

Maureen Bernius, whose new home in Flemington, N.J., had a wet basement until the state forced her builder to fix it, said: "It's just the quality of building. The inspectors are not coming in and doing their job."

Josiane Pysiak, a neighbor of Mrs. Giordano, said she and other neighbors could not get their builder to fill in the ground in the lake-filled woods until she called the state.

"After that, things started happening," she said. "The builder even called me to ask why I called the state. Playing innocent. But it finally got done."

The homeowner, of course, is not getting the insurance for free. The costs for such a plan are being passed on to homeowners and are set according to the price of the house. The state plan fixes a premium of four-tenths of 1 percent on the cost of a house and the HOW plan charges $2 for every $1,000. Therefore, a $50,000 house on the state plan costs the builder $200 and on the HOW plan $100.

In addition to the premium costs, Ploskanka estimated an additional $500 to $1,000 going into a house in workmanship and materials; Medina an extra $400 and Michael Pavulak, a Mount Laurel, N.J., builder, an extra $1,000.

"In the immediate sense, it's not a good thing. The consumer will have to pay more money," Medina said. "But if you're stuck with a problem, you'll be happy to sign on that line."

"If it's a few hundred dollars, I think it's well worth it," said Mrs. Pysiak.

"It takes only one thing to go wrong and it could cost you so much more," added Mrs. Giordano. "You don't skimp on something like a house."

NAHB President Vondal Graylee said, although he encourages builders to give a warranty, he does not favor a state-mandated program.

"More and more builders are finding that it's to their benefit to get into the program," he said. "But we don't need regulations for everything."

Cherokee Rebuff

By MATT YANCY
Associated Press Writer

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—A federal judge, saying freedom of religion is not a license to go on someone else's property, today dismissed a suit by Cherokee Indians challenging the Tellico Dam as a violation of their First Amendment rights.

U.S. District Court Judge Robert L. Taylor denied the Cherokee's request for an order to prevent the Tennessee Valley Authority from closing the gates of its embattled dam and granted TVA's motion to dismiss the suit.

The Indians claimed in the suit filed Oct. 12 that the lake to be created by the dam 25 miles from Knoxville would flood their ancestors' sacred burial grounds in violation of Cherokee religion.

"Other than preventing access to certain land, the impoundment of the Tellico Reservoir has no coercive effect on plaintiff's religious beliefs or practices," Taylor said in a seven-page ruling.

"The free exercise clause is not a license in itself to enter property, government-owned or otherwise, to which religious practitioners have no other legal right of access," the judge said.

Robert Stivers, an attorney for the Cherokees, said Taylor's ruling will likely be appealed to the U.S. Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati.

"Assuming that we file an appeal, and it's almost a certainty that we will," Stivers said, "it will be no later than Monday. We'll be meeting on the strategy the rest of the day today."

Taylor already has been reversed once by the court of appeals and ultimately by the Supreme Court on a suit challenging the dam. In May 1976, the judge dismissed a suit seeking to halt the dam on grounds that it would destroy the snail darter, a rare three-inch fish protected by the Endangered Species Act.

U.S. Unemployment Rate Inches Back To 6 Percent

By OWEN ULLMANN
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A spurt of layoffs, mostly among women and blacks, pushed the nation's unemployment rate back up to 6 percent in October, the government reported today.

The Labor Department said the number of unemployed persons rose by 200,000 from September to 6.2 million. As a result, the jobless rate returned to the level reached in August following a drop to 5.8 percent in September.

Despite the rise, Labor Department analysts said the figures did not provide signs that a recession is taking hold.

"You would have to have a crystal ball to say these are indications to say we're in or about to enter a recession," said Labor economist Norman Bowers. "The figures don't say that."

Bowers said the rising unemployment appeared to stem from the fact that new jobs were not created at a fast enough rate to provide employment opportunities for those who had lost their jobs.

The nation's unemployment rate has fluctuated between 5.6 percent and 6 percent for the past 15 months.

The Labor Department said the increase in unemployment last month resulted from workers losing their jobs, as opposed to people who entered the job market but were unable to find work. Two-thirds of the job losses struck women or blacks.

Total employment, as measured by the government's survey of households, declined by 220,000 during October, to 97.3 million. However, a supplemental survey of business establishments reported a contradictory rise of employment by 300,000 jobs.

The Labor Department, which uses the household survey to determine jobless figures, was at a loss to explain the discrepancy, other than to note that such a result has occurred occasionally in the past.

The jobless rate among adult women rose from 5.5 percent in September to 5.8 percent in October, and the rate for blacks jumped from 10.6 percent to 11.7 percent.

The jobless rate among minority teen-agers went from 31.5 percent in September to 35.7 percent, the highest in nearly a year.

The department provided these other breakdowns on unemployment rates for October:

—Adult men: 4.3 percent in October, up from 4.2 percent in September.

—Teen-agers: 16.6 percent, up from 16.4 percent.

—Whites: 5.2 percent, up from 5.1 percent.

—Full-time workers: 5.5 percent, up from 5.4 percent.

—Part-time workers: 9 percent, up from 8.3 percent.

—Blue-collar workers, 7.3 percent, up from 7.1 percent.

—White-collar workers, 3.5 percent, up from 3.3 percent.

Health Care Unit Sets 5-Year Plan

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

The Eastern Area Health Education Center Board of Directors approved yesterday afternoon a new Five-Year Plan for the health care continuing education organization.

This action was taken following a 30-minute summary of the 87-page Plan of Operation draft, given by AHEC Deputy Director Joel Vickers during a once-a-year meeting of the EAHEC Board. Eastern AHEC has now been in operation five years, Vickers pointed out and finds its demands increasing and its budget virtually stabilized. He said the next five years will be a time in which the staff seeks to refine its operation and enter into more interagency collaboration to meet its goals of providing quality continuing education for doctors, nurses and other health professionals throughout Eastern North Carolina, as it ups its demands on itself to provide clinical education opportunities for health care students and residents. He said locally based programs will be emphasized, enticement of minorities into the health care field will be stressed, and new forms of communication like teleconferencing will be utilized.

The Five-Year Plan draft is to be sent by Nov. 30 to the State AHEC Office, which will review this and the eight other AHEC plans from throughout the state for implementation and funding. Dr. F. H. Simmons Patterson, executive director, pointed out.

By-laws of the organization were amended. Among these amendments was one which deleted the office of East Carolina Vice Chancellor for Health Affairs from membership. The Board immediately took action to elect Dr. Edwin Monroe, who has held this now-defunct position and served as president of the EAHEC Board of Directors, to the Board of Directors once again. This was done by naming Dr. Monroe, who is now ECU School of Medicine Associate Dean for External Affairs, to one of four seats on the Board filled by representatives of East Carolina University.

In an executive committee meeting, following the regular board meeting, Dr. Monroe was elected president of the board. L. Daniel Duval Jr., director of Lenoir Memorial Hospital, was elected vice-president and John Blanton, administrator of Roanoke-Chowan Hospital in Ashokie was elected secretary-treasurer.

New Board of Directors members introduced included Philip L. Crump, director of nursing of Wayne

Union Fails To Ratify Carolina Tel Contract By A 3-To-1 Margin

The strike against Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co., now in its 33rd day, will continue since company members of the Communication Workers of America failed to ratify a proposed two-year contract.

Preliminary results from two days of voting, which were tallied by union officials in Greenville Thursday night, showed CWA members turned down the new contract by a 3-to-1 margin.

Union spokesman Jasper J.

Gurganus said the vote was 1,348 to 428 by CWA members stationed throughout Eastern North Carolina.

Gurganus said the union was willing to re-open talks with CT&T, but a company spokesman said no decision on resuming the talks had been made.

A CT&T spokesman said company officials were "very, very disappointed" at the vote. But he said it would not change the company's opposition to an automatic cost-of-living raise the union has pushed for.

That raise was the sticking point that caused a breakdown in negotiations and a walkout by nearly half of the company's 5,100 employees Oct. 1. The union contract covers the 3,100 employees, but of those only 2,000 are actually in the union.

The cost-of-living raise was not included in the contract proposal employees voted on Wednesday and Thursday.

Gurganus said it was the reason workers failed to ratify the new contract.

"I think the union members have spoken out against a contract that would not have protected their buying power," he said.

CT&T spokesman Hubert D. Terry of Tarboro said the company really expected the proposal to be ratified.

Progress Is Inch By Inch

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vote by vote and bill by bill, President Carter is piling up victories in Congress on his energy program.

The House handed the president his latest triumph Thursday, voting 299-107 to create a powerful Energy Mobilization Board designed to speed construction of high-priority energy projects.

Included in the measure is a hotly debated provision permitting certain federal laws to be set aside if they pose an impediment to important projects. The waivers would be subject to approval by the president and both houses of Congress.

The bill was not exactly as Carter requested it — few measures passed either by the House or Senate are — but White House energy aide Bert Carp promptly termed House passage a "major advance for our energy program."

The Senate has already approved a similar measure, and a House-Senate committee will be appointed to work out the differences.

The vote came as top House Democrats predicted Congress would enact much of Carter's energy program before it closes shop in mid-December.

"We think by the end of the year we'll have all of the energy legislation out of the way," said House Speaker

Thomas P. O'Neill of Massachusetts.

The No. 2 Democrat in the House, Jim Wright of Texas, said bills passed to date constitute "a strong national energy package. We passed it piece by piece and some people don't realize what we have done," he said.

These other major elements of Carter's energy program are moving through the congressional mill:

—The House has passed his "windfall profits" tax on the oil industry. The Senate Finance Committee has passed a weaker version, and Carter is lobbying for changes when the full Senate begins debate, probably in about two weeks.

—The House has approved legislation to foster development of a synthetic fuel industry. The Senate Energy Committee has done the same, with Senate approval expected shortly.

—The Senate Energy Committee also has approved a multi-billion-dollar program to promote energy conservation and installation of solar equipment. Senate debate is expected shortly, and Wright said a similar House bill will be scheduled for debate.

—Both houses have voted for money to help poor people pay their fuel bills this winter. A House-Senate conference is at work reconciling the two bills.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used.

GLASS ETCHING

I'd like to know if there is someone in the area who does glass etching. I have a special idea for a Christmas gift. M. N.

Hotline has not been able to find a glass etcher, but we have located Marilyn Davenport, who carves in acrylic and other materials to make decorative articles. She said she'd be glad to help you if she can. She lives on County Road 1128 near Reedy Branch Church, west of Winterville and plans to open a shop there within the next month. Her phone number is 756-3015.

If there are glass etchers in the area, we'll be glad to hear from them and do a Hotline feedback.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

"ATTACK" BEGINS TOMORROW

The Greenville Junior Woman's Club-Greenville Energy Program "War on Winter" program, first publicized in the Hotline column, will get underway officially tomorrow.

Information not previously given is the following: Volunteers to winterize homes of the elderly and disabled of Greenville who have requested the service should meet at the old West Greenville Fire Station, corner of Chestnut and Skinner Streets, tomorrow at 9 a. m. and bring tools like hammers, screwdrivers, scrapers, ladders, caulking guns and staplers.

Woodcutters are asked to meet at 8:30 a. m. at the Pitt-Greenville Airport Ground Station and bring woodcutting equipment and pickup trucks.

"Everyone's help is needed and every contribution will be appreciated," Barbara Privette, co-chairman of the project said.

Separatists Formally Open Quebec Campaign

QUEBEC (AP) — The separatist leadership of French-speaking Quebec has formally proposed that the province withdraw from the 112-year-old Canadian confederation but maintain close economic ties to it.

The federal government in Ottawa had no immediate comment about the plan for a "sovereignty-association" set forth Thursday in a policy paper issued by provincial Premier Rene Levesque's government.

Opposition leader Pierre Elliott Trudeau joined several other politicians voicing skepticism about the proposal. Trudeau told a news conference the plan was cleverly designed "to make people believe they can have the cake and eat it too." Trudeau, a former prime minister, has consistently opposed Quebec separatism.

The 109-page document, entitled "Quebec-Canada: A New Deal," said a unilateral declaration of independence was "completely out of the question." However, it said continuation of the status quo was equally unacceptable.

Levesque's Parti Quebecois, which advocates a separate Quebec, came to power three years ago. It contends that the rest of Canada, which is overwhelmingly English-speaking, has held down the French-dominated province culturally, politically and economically.

Though the policy paper contained no new ideas, it marked the opening of debate leading to a province-wide referendum next spring on Quebec's status.

At that time, Quebec's 6 million citizens, of whom 5 million are French-speaking, are expected to vote on whether to authorize Levesque's government to negotiate terms of Quebec's separation from the rest of the country.

"I had thought they would ratify it, especially since other strikers in Tennessee and New Jersey ratified a contract this week with the same terms we were offering," he said.

The proposal included a 10 percent pay raise during the contract's first year and a 9 percent raise the second year.

Since the strike began, the company has been operating with non-striking personnel and management. And on Oct. 15, it began hiring new workers to replace the strikers.

CT&T serves about half a million customers in 44 counties in Central and Eastern North Carolina.

State Bd. Asks For Bond Vote

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state Board of Education says North Carolina school students are in need of some new buildings in which to learn their lessons.

So the board asked Thursday that a statewide school bond issue be placed before the voters in November. Although no amount was put on the request, authorities are expected to lobby for a record $600 million bond issue.

The largest school bond ever — $300 million — was approved in 1973.

Despite the fact that voters may be in a more conservative mood in 1980, several state education leaders said they are optimistic a statewide school bond will be well received by the Legislature and voters.

"I am convinced even though times are tight, most people will support a state school bond program," said A. Craig Phillips, state superintendent of Public Instruction.

A state bond issue already has the support of key groups like local school boards and county commissioners.

Honor Plant's Safety Record

The National Safety Council has presented its award of honor to the Burroughs Wellcome Co. manufacturing facility here for its outstanding safety performance in 1978.

The award was presented during ceremonies Thursday at the Greenville plant.

Vincent Tofany, president of the National Safety Council, explained that Burroughs Wellcome qualified for the award because of its low injury rates in 1978.

Tofany noted that the company's injury frequency rate was 82 percent better than its "par" rate, which is computed by the National Safety Council from the plant's experience in other years and from the rates of the industry classification to which the plant belongs.

Tom Kennedy, BW vice president for organization development, commented, "We're very proud of our Greenville employees. This prestigious award is the highest order of recognition for outstanding occupational safety performance. Only five percent of the industries evaluated received this honor."

It was pointed out that approximately 1,250 men and women are employed by Burroughs Wellcome in Greenville.

Launching Center For Displaced Homemakers

By CAROL TYER

"A woman may have worked for years as a homemaker. Then suddenly she may find herself widowed, separated, divorced or otherwise without means of support because she isn't prepared educationally, experientially or emotionally," Nan Cheek said.

"We can help this woman," Nan Cheek said of the Career Development Center for Displaced Homemakers which is beginning screening here Monday. Cheek is the Center Director.

"We can help her realize and develop marketable skills for well-paid work. And we can also help her discover her own abilities and build self-confidence. We can also help her with the very practical problem

The Career Development Center for Displaced Homemakers is located in the Wilcar Executive Center, 223 W. Tenth Street, Greenville. The phone number is 752-0642.

Screening for the first session will take place Monday through Friday of next week from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m. Requests for information will be welcomed, Cheek said. She said the program is open to women "within a reasonable traveling distance of Greenville."

These are the eligibility requirements, she said:—has been dependent on the income of another family member, but is no longer supported by that income;—is unemployed or underemployed and needs help getting or upgrading employment.

This is a program of the Council on the Status of Women of the North Carolina Department of Administration. It is funded by the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act. There are three other such centers in the state — in Shelby, Roxboro and Oxford.

Deadlock Over A Council Seat

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The General Assembly, after 19 tries, has been unable to break a deadlock between Cuba and Colombia for the Latin American seat on the U. N. Security Council. This has raised the possibility that the 15-nation council may go into the new year one member short.

The battle for the seat is scheduled to resume today in the General Assembly.

Speaking of the prospect of a Security Council shy one member, the General Assembly president, Ambassador Salim Ahmed Salim of Tanzania, told a reporter, "That is a possibility that we must avoid at all costs."

The U.N. Charter says the Council "shall consist of 15 members" and "shall be so organized as to function continuously."

The General Assembly took 13 ballots last Friday and 6 more Tuesday without giving either Cuba or Colombia the two-thirds majority required for election.

The last ballot gave Cuba 76 votes, Colombia 62, the Caribbean island of Saint Lucia 2 and Chile and Peru 1 each.

That meant Cuba, though 14 votes ahead of Colombia, was 19 votes short of the needed majority.

Delegates looking for a way out said Cuba had been willing to split the two-year term so as to serve one year while Colombia served the other year, but Colombia had turned down that idea.

They said that, on the other hand, Colombia now seemed more inclined than Cuba to agree that both contenders should step aside in favor of a compromise candidate, a role Peru was prepared to undertake.

Leary Refused To Talk Drugs

NEW YORK (AP) — Some-time drug guru Timothy Leary stormed off the set of a New York television talk show when the host insisted on talking about drugs and bringing out a reformed drug addict as a guest.

"I didn't want to come here and talk about drugs," Leary said Thursday when the host of "The Final Days of Stanley Siegel" placed a telephone call to Columbus, Ohio, where TV personality Art Linkletter had a speaking engagement.

Linkletter's daughter, Diane, died in 1969 at the age of 20 when she jumped from the window of her sixth-floor apartment during an LSD episode.

Linkletter has laid part of the blame at Leary's feet.

Anguish Is Still Felt Grants Divorce To Mick, Bianca

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward Kennedy says he feels a sense "of anguish and a sense of loss" every day of his life because of the accident at Chappaquiddick.

But Kennedy maintained in a television interview Thursday night that he was "absolutely satisfied" that he did everything possible to save the life of Mary Jo Kopechne.

Miss Kopechne drowned after Kennedy's car plunged off a bridge following a party the night of July 18, 1969.

In an interview on the ABC program "20-20," Kennedy, who has decided to challenge President Carter for the Democratic presidential nomination, was asked about the questions that have been raised over the years concerning the accident.

Kennedy shed no new light on such issues as why he took the wrong road and why he failed to report the accident to police until 10 hours later.

The Massachusetts senator told ABC reporter Tom Jarrell: "I have relived this a thousand different times and wished that I had taken other actions, but this is the way it happened."

On another matter, Kennedy said he would be willing to debate Carter, but that the main thrust of his campaign would not be a race against the president but "for the office."

LONDON (AP) — In a brief 18-minute hearing after months of trans-Atlantic legal argument, rock star Mick Jagger and his jet-setter wife, Bianca, were granted a divorce today in a London court. Terms of any financial settlement were not disclosed.

The 36-year-old leader of the Rolling Stones rock group and the 32-year-old, Nicaraguan-born Bianca had been married for eight years.

Jagger was not present but his wife, who filed for divorce on the grounds of adultery, seemed to hold back tears as she took the witness stand in the High Court, court reporters said.

Dressed in black and wearing a black pillbox hat and veil, the disco-loving Mrs. Jagger was in the witness box only three minutes.

Jagger did not proceed with his cross-petition alleging "unreasonable conduct" by his wife. In an uncontested action, Judge Michael Eastham granted a divorce decree and said that by agreement of both parties, the divorce is to be made absolute in six weeks.

Also by mutual consent, Bianca was granted care and control of the couple's only child, 8-year-old daughter Jade. Jagger is to have "reasonable access" to his daughter.

The two were married at St. Tropez on the French Riviera on May 12, 1971. They have not lived together since 1977.

She originally filed for divorce in London, where she resides, then changed her mind and filed in Los Angeles Superior Court, where her lawyers said she hoped to collect a much bigger chunk of Mick's reputed multi-million-dollar fortune.

The Los Angeles court postponed proceedings last May until jurisdiction was settled, and a final ruling came from the London Appeal Court last month, ordering the case to be heard here.

Bianca smiled as she left the court and asked a crowd of waiting reporters for a cigarette.

Asked whether she was relieved it was all over, she said, "I am sure that when you get divorced you would not like to be asked questions."

More Troubles For Studio 54

NEW YORK (AP) — Studio 54, disco playground of the rich and the beautiful, was in new trouble today even as two of its owners and a former manager, sources said, were planning to plead guilty to tax evasion charges.

A spokesman for the State Liquor Authority revealed Thursday that the authority had filed charges against the club involving drug use and tax evasion and that the proceeding could lead to lifting of the club's liquor license.

Sources close to the tax case said Thursday that owners Steve Rubell and Ian Schrager would go into U.S. District Court in Manhattan this morning and plead guilty to corporate and personal tax evasion.

The sources, who asked not to be quoted by name, said the former manager, Richard DeCourcy, was ready to enter a guilty plea to a charge of personal income tax evasion.

Rubell, Schrager and DeCourcy could not be reached for comment.

Hunt Trio For Shotgun Death

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Greensboro police were searching Thursday night for three Guilford County men charged in the shotgun slaying of William Victor See, 27, of Greensboro.

See was hit once in the chest with a shotgun blast, and a detective has said the killing might have been motivated by revenge.

Charged with murder in the shooting are Franklin Delano Thomas Sr., Franklin Denalo Thomas Jr. and Robert Clifton Hill. All three are from the High Point-Jamestown area.

Dr. Fore Named Soc. President

ASHEVILLE — Dr. William W. Fore of Greenville was elected president of the North Carolina Society of Internal Medicine during the Society's recent annual meeting here. Dr. Fore succeeds Dr. Lawrence Cutchin of Tarboro.

The Society is a professional organization having some 500 specialists in internal medicine as members. It is a component society of the American Society of Internal Medicine.

Convictions In Jobless Claims

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Convictions in 21 of 25 court cases involving fraudulent unemployment insurance claims were obtained by the state Employment Security Commission during October.

A total of $77,939 in overpayments to individuals receiving jobless benefits was recovered last month, the ESC said. Of that, $25,171 was recovered through refunds from recipients and $52,768 was regained by reducing or withholding payments to eligible claimants to make up for overpayments received in the past.

The ESC said a total of 275 cases were investigated in October and 200 were found to have been overpaid by $40,357.

FOCUS

Will Rogers

"All I know is what I read in the papers," Will Rogers said. As a rodeo cowboy, stage performer, movie actor, and columnist in 350 newspapers, Rogers spent most of his life entertaining Americans, making them laugh and making them think. He often poked fun at the news of the day, at what he "read in the papers." He became the country's favorite humorist. "I never met a man I didn't like," was one of Rogers' favorite lines. When he died in an airplane crash in Alaska in 1935, there weren't many Americans who didn't like Will Rogers. This Sunday, November 4, marks the 100th anniversary of Rogers' birth.

Miss Ellen Morton Weds In Garden Ceremony

Miss Ellen Louise Morton and Joseph Benjamin Leggett were united in marriage Saturday at 4 p.m. in the garden of the bride's mother, Dr. Robert L. Holt performed the double ring ceremony and Miss Liza Heller, organist and guitarist, presented a program of music.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Lenore M. Morton of Greenville, and Dr. Leslie B. Morton, Swansboro, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Leggett, Greenville.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her uncle, John T. McGreevy of Panama City, Fla. She wore a formal gown of ivory silk organza over peau de soie. The bodice featured double rows of Italian lace trimming the V-neckline, raised waist and encircled the full bishop sleeves and cuffed. The full circular skirt fell into an attached chapel length train, bordered with matching lace. She wore a bridal hat featuring a layer of silk organza appliqued with lace and a veil of silk illusion flowing down the back. She carried an ivory silk lace fan with orchids and gardenias.

Maureen Ann Morton-Yohe of Budd Lake, N. J., sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and bridesmaid was Miss Patricia Ann Jackson of San Francisco, Calif., cousin of the bride. They were attired in cinnamon organza floor length gowns. The fitted bodice featured a scoop neckline outline with a bertha collar. The natural waist was banded in satin ribbon ending with bow and streamers. The full length skirt featured a flounce hemline accented with a bustle back. They wore matching cinnamon wide-brimmed hats encircled in the crown with lace and accented with bow and streamers. They carried natural wicker baskets filled with rust, cinnamon, ivory and yellow mums tied with matching bows.

Fred Brink served as best man and Leslie Bryant Morton Jr., brother of the bride, was usher. Mrs. Marie Cox directed the wedding.

The guests entered the garden under a bridal arch flanked by hanging baskets. An altar was improvised in the garden, tall white arches garlanded with fall flowers in rosettes, cushioned, and daisy pom poms with California mums and long sprays of green springer. Under the arch was a wrought iron prie-dieu decorated in fall flowers, where the ceremony took place.

The aisle was covered with white ducking leading to the altar flanked with hanging baskets filled with fall flowers and greenery. Throughout the garden were circles of fall flowers, hanging baskets on tall shepherd crooks and bordered with lawn furniture.

The bride's mother wore a white orchid wristlet, and the bridegroom's mother wore a white orchid corsage. The grandmother wore a yellow orchid corsage.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother. The walk was outlined with hurricane lamps and white bows. The refreshment table was covered with an off-white cloth centered with an arrangement of fall flowers. The bride's table held the decorated wedding cake. The home was decorated with fall flowers. Assisting at the reception were out-of-town relatives of the bride.

The bride received a bachelor's degree in nursing from East Carolina University and a master's degree in public health nursing education from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. She is employed as a perinatal nursing consultant, Eastern Division, North Carolina Dept. of Public Health.

The bridegroom is a graduate of East Carolina. He is a hydrologist and co-owner of Leggett's Well-Drilling and Pump Company.

Following the wedding trip, the couple will reside in Greenville.

NEW BERN—For the first time since Tryon Palace was opened to the public 20 years ago as North Carolina's restored Colonial capitol, visitors during most of December will be able to experience the full flavor of an 18th century Christmas, including three evening candlelight tours.

Beginning December 9, the interior of Tryon Palace will be decorated for the holiday season with authentic 18th century exhibition Christmas decorations.

In addition, the two other buildings in the Tryon Palace complex—the John Wright Stanley House and the Stevenson House, will also be elaborately decorated.

The first floor of two other restored dwellings in the complex—the Jones House, built about 1809, and the Commission House, built about 1882, will respectively feature antique toys, and a 12-foot cedar wreathed in cranberries and popcorn. These two buildings are rarely open to the public.

Candlelight tours of the five buildings will be offered from 5-8 p.m. on three evenings—Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday, December 9, 11 and 13. During these tours, harpsichord music will be played and carolers will sing in the Palace's inner courtyard. Wassail bowls will be in both the Jones House and the Commission House.

Tickets for the candlelight tours are priced at $2 for adults and $1 for children.

Also, the annual Christmas outing—the 18th of this event—will take place from 1:30 to 4:15 p.m. on Sunday, December 16. At that time the grounds and gardens of Tryon Palaces and the Jones and Commission Houses will be open to the public free of charge.

The New Bern High School Choir will perform from the main portico of Tryon Palace. (Regular admission will be charged for guided, interior tours of buildings in the complex).

Tryon Palace will be closed only on December 24-26 and on January 1.

To reserve tickets for the candlelight tours or to arrange for group reservations, write 18th Century Christmas, Tryon Palace, New Bern, N.C., 28560, or call 638.5109.

Mamie Had Love, Gratitude

A great lady died Wednesday. Just as her husband was tapped by fate to play a major role in world history, so, too, was Mamie Eisenhower enveloped in a lifetime of public life. As the wife of the nation's perhaps greatest World War II general, then as First Lady she handled her responsibilities well and won the hearts of the nation. There was never a regal aura about Mamie Eisenhower, never was she the dowager queen in an American hierarchy. She was a part of middle class America, who sought to be nothing else.

In other times she might have gone through life as the unknown wife of a highly competent peacetime army officer. History's most terrible war abruptly changed all that. Mamie Eisenhower was to become famous along with her husband, and eventually she would manage the White House. Some suspect she would have chosen a more obscure life, but like so many of us might, when the responsibilities came she accepted them graciously and she gained our love and gratitude.

Time Running Out On Brave Forecast

If the administration needed any more bad news, it got it with the announcement that there was a big increase in imported oil in September.

Despite this, administration spokesmen say it expects to meet its goal of reduced oil imports this year.

That is a brave prediction, and one we hope the nation can live up to. We have to become less dependent on foreign oil, not only to stop the dollar outflow, but also because our economy is so vulnerable to an oil cutoff.

THIS AFTERNOON

Studying Alcohol As Fuel

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — State Rep. Vernon James has more than a passing interest in alternatives to increasingly expensive, and scarce, gasoline.

The Pasquotank County farmer handles marketing of commodities on the sprawling family property, and has been traveling the world recently keeping a sharp eye on both of his main concerns: fuel, and farm goods.

Now he is co-chairman of a legislative study commission set up to seek ways to push alcohol as a possible alternative fuel. The substance can be used diluted with water to run motors and heating units. The current most common use is mixed with gasoline (10 parts alcohol to 90 parts gasoline) to form gasohol which can be burned without adjustment in truck, tractor, and auto engines.

State Senator Jim Garrison, a Stanly County oil jobber, is the other chairman of the committee. At the organizational meeting the other day, Garrison reminded members of the study group that nothing is on the horizon to make fuel either more plentiful or less expensive. To the contrary, he predicts more shortages and higher prices.

There is some general skepticism of alcohol as a fuel: it costs about as much to produce as current gasoline prices, and it would take vast quantities of farm goods to make enough alcohol to put a dent in the gasoline consumption figures.

James looks at the gasohol situation from two viewpoints: a farmer who sees his operation guzzle up to 1,000 gallons of fuel daily; and a farmer seeking a market for his crops. Obviously having given considerable study to the matter, he spelled out a host of arguments in favor of expanded research and testing in alcohol production.

His comments follow this track:

Fuel is essential to keep the farm machinery running to produce the food needed for North Carolina, the nation, and the world. Producing grain or other commodities for alcohol distillation would open up new markets and encourage farmers to produce more profitably while guaranteeing continued ability to grow food.

BILL NOBLITT

The material used in alcohol is not wasted. The food (protein) material from the mash is used as a high-value, high nutrient feed for livestock. Additionally, available products can be used such as wood or sugar cane in addition to grain crops.

The present cost is high for alcohol production, but can be lowered considerably after research and initial investments are retired. Even at the present high cost, however, the money is kept "at home" by American farmers instead of spent with foreign petroleum producers.

Defense

James also sees considerable merit in the idea of hundreds of thousands of small alcohol stills operating all over the countryside. "It's a national defense improvement. We now have only 15 refineries in the nation, and an enemy attack could wipe all of them out in less than 15 minutes. We would be without fuel. But 100,000 stills in operation could keep on making fuel."

The legislative study committee plans to investigate methods of production and use of alcohol, and ways in which state law could encourage this development. One obvious step would be relief from the highway tax on alcohol mixed with gasoline.

The group will also look at the possibility of a state-owned and operated distillery to produce alcohol to fuel state vehicles and heat state buildings.

The Sadist Computer

WASHINGTON — The beauty of computers, so the advertisements tell us, is that they make life easier for all of us. Don't you believe it.

I have been corresponding with two computers who work for my insurance firm — the company that advertises on television during football games and shows a man's house being blown down and five seconds later the agent for the company building him a new one.

These two computers whom I've dubbed Adolph and Dave are as different as day and night. If you were captured, Adolph would be the one who hit you over the head with a truncheon, and

Dave would be the one who offered you a cigarette.

Adolph is one mean computer. He wants to cancel my automobile insurance. He's really mad at me and I figured out why. I've never put in a claim for an accident, and therefore he has no legitimate reason to take me off the books. He's just waiting for one minor incident, even a crushed fender, and he'll push me out the window.

Every month I get a nasty letter from Adolph wanting to know how many people are driving my car, what ages they are and whether I've committed adultery in the last six months. He also wants to know how much money I make, if I go to

Other Editors Say The VP Role

(Chapel Hill Newspaper)

Would it not be in the best interest of our federal government if the vice-president of the United States became a little more involved in the actual day-to-day operations of our executive branch of government?

For as long as we can remember the general public has not seen fit to take the position of vice-president seriously enough. He is there to appear at functions which the president cannot attend, and he does a lot of what one might call good-will traveling. However, he is a person without any real power, and those who host his visits are aware of it. In the case of President Carter, one might even assume that his wife Rosalynn has assumed a lot of the duties normally handled by the vice-president. A writeup in the U.S. News & World Report recently reported that Rosalynn's ratings with the voters were even higher than those of the president. There are many more requests for her to appear at various functions than there are for the vice-president.

Just the opposite seems to be happening at the state level. Bob Scott and Jim Hunt were two former lieutenant governors who ended up being governor of North Carolina. Pres. Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green had the same idea. Since the laws were recently changed in North Carolina to allow a governor to succeed himself, Green has decided to run for the lieutenant governor's job once again. He is even expected to have some stiff opposition from Carl Stewart of Gastonia.

Green has been able to build up a strong political following in the job, and he has exercised the authority of the office more than anyone we can remember. During the last legislative session he won several tough skirmishes with Gov. Hunt.

We have had some good vice-presidents of this country but it seems to be a difficult task to make the people realize how important the job should really be. Vice-President Mondale has been so far away from President Carter that no one has blamed him for anything. However, the consensus among politicians seems to be that he will repeat as Carter's running mate if Carter receives the nomination.

To the editor:

One of the greatest blessings that God has given man is the ability to make decisions. This being Sunday School Teachers' Week (Nov. 18-24), we at St. Matthew Free Will Baptist Church would like to emphasize the fact that the decision anyone can make is to try to determine the will of God and then follow it completely. We are trying very hard to help each child realize that we have a great and powerful God, and He wants His believing children to choose His way, because it is the only way to contentment. Why should a child choose God's way? That choice is hard for adults, so growing children may find it especially difficult because it is easy to believe that happiness increases in direct proportion to their freedom and material blessings.

Parents, we urge you to discuss the Bible with your child and, if your child brings a project home from Sunday School, be aware of that project. These projects are good reminders to help children choose the Lord's way. "Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it." (Proverbs 22:6)

WASHINGTON TODAY

Bandwagons Bog Down

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) —

Once there was a presidential candidate who harvested such a crop of campaign endorsements it was hard to keep track of them all.

Just about every Democrat who was anybody endorsed Sen. Edmund S. Muskie. His campaign collapsed before the last frost of 1972.

That is worth noting as Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and President Carter wage their struggle for endorsements in the campaign for the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination.

The support of Democratic officeholders and party leaders is an asset to any candidate. But the only endorsements that count are the ones that spell votes in the competition for nominating delegates.

Every candidate tries to create a bandwagon psychology, and a succession of campaign endorsements can serve that goal. There is concern in the Carter White House that defections to Kennedy are going to give the impression of a stampede from the president to his challenger.

Carter's people say they have plenty of endorsements, too, and expect more. They count 20 governors on the president's side, and mayors of such major cities as New York, Los Angeles and Detroit.

They are braced against the prospect that some people who now work for the administration will walk out and join the Kennedy campaign, but it still smarts.

It certainly did in the case of former Iowa Sen. Dick Clark. The Carter people thought they had effectively neutralized him, since he was on the administration payroll at $57,500 a year as refugee coordinator.

But Clark said he never promised to remain neutral forever, only for as long as he held the State Department job. He cleaned out his desk and joined the challenger Thursday.

Clark could be particularly valuable to Kennedy, since the leadoff contest of 1980 will be the Iowa precinct caucuses Jan. 21. He will presumably try to use whatever organization remains from his unsuccessful bid for Senate reelection in 1978 to boost the Kennedy cause in that presidential contest.

Endorsements and allies are no substitute for political organization, particularly in competition as specialized as the Iowa caucuses. The key task in any campaign is to identify and get out the candidate's vote. That goes double in the kind of neighborhood politics that begins the selection of delegates in Iowa.

While Clark was joining Kennedy, Gov. Edward King of Massachusetts was declaring his support for Carter. That may sound like a boost for Carter in Kennedy's home state.

But all the endorsements a candidate can claim don't have the impact of one primary election victory. As Muskie said when he was collecting names in 1972, the primaries are the test.

"I've got to make an early showing or I'm dead," he said.

He didn't, and he was.

Opinions In Brief

"Human history becomes more and more a race between education and catastrophe." — H.G. Wells.

LIMITS OF REFORM
In every generation we hear much about reform — political, social, economic. It is the world's way of trying to make people better and happier. But the Bible has a different way. The way of the Bible is not the way of reform but the way of redemption — or, as it is sometimes called, spiritual regeneration.

Reform attempts to bring people into proper relationship with the world in which the live; spiritual regeneration attempts to bring people into proper relationship with the universe, which is spiritual. Reformation deals with programs and campaigns; redemption and regeneration have to do with growth, increased vision, faith, and the deepening of moral purpose.

We should open the Bible and solemnly ponder the provision which God has made for the redemption of the world. The world and its philosophy try to change people's conduct; the Bible tries to change the people.

China Breaks Ground

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
PEKING (AP) —

Given the lavishness of college marching bands and the decolletage of profootball cheerleaders, it was only a matter of time before the halftime show became the wholetime show.

But no one, least of all this thrice-weekly diviner of trends trivial, expected the pioneer breakthrough to come in the People's Republic of China.

Here the medium has become the message. Or at least the rah-rah and the razzmatazz have displaced the jocks as the main attraction at an athletic event. In fact at the opening day of China's national games, which are held every five years, the contestants only did a walk-on in their numbered unionsuits and were not permitted to sully the ambience of Peking's Workers Stadium with their sweaty exertions.

The pageantry was all. In the presence of the Queen of Denmark, Chairman Hua, and 70,000 other spectacle-dazzled spectators not a javelin was heaved in competition or a chalk line blurred by a flying cleat. Like placards at the side of a vaudeville stage, even the scoreboard was devoted to announcing the next act to be performed by a cast of 27,000 — count 'em.

The extravaganza got under way with the release of 1,000 doves into a smog-gray September sky, then the 30 trombones, 80 piccolos, five base drums and 300 other instruments of the People's Liberation Army band struck up a march that sounded uncannily like "When the Backs Go Tearing By."

A 600-strong pom-pom section on the left side of the field looking down the side lines from the ground level press box waved them on with appropriate flourishes, while across the way in the bleachers an enormous card section of 8,000 card-carrying Chinese communists flapped forth scenes of the Forbidden City, bursting fire works and monstrous portraits of Chairmen Mao and Hua.

There was no Oriental version of the Purdue Golden Girl to toss a baton skyward and, in a country where cleavage is al

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain and showers are due over the Atlantic coast states from Florida to Maine today into early Saturday. Rain and showers are also expected over the Pacific Northwest and northern California.

By The Associated Press
A cold front that hung over the western portion of North Carolina early today brought showers and thundershowers that were expected to continue across the state through Saturday.

A flash flood watch was in effect for the foothills and for the central and southwest mountains, where there was a possibility of heavy rains at times.

The rain was expected to be decreasing over the west tonight while continuing over the eastern portion through Saturday. The forecast called for a wide range in temperatures today. Highs were expected to be in the 50s in the mountains going up to near 80 over the southeast portion. The forecast called for lows tonight in the 30s in the northwest mountains to the low 60s on the Outer Banks.

Saturday will be colder with high readings from the 40s in the northwest to the low 70s on the coast.

Skies were mostly partly cloudy around the state Thursday with some light rain and drizzle in the mountains. Temperatures generally were in the 60s and 70s but Fayetteville got even warmer with a high of 82 degrees.

Plan Conservation Month Activities

November has been declared "Energy Conservation Month in Greenville" according to a proclamation issued by Mayor Percy Cox.

The community-wide "War on Winter" project will open the special month, with volunteer effort to winterize the homes of the elderly and disabled and cutting of firewood to distribute free to the needy.

Self-help workshop to show citizens how to winterize their homes and thus cut fuel and utility expenses will be held. For more information, one may contact Phil Morin at Greenville Utilities, 752-7166.

A Home Improvement Fair featuring energy-conserving products will be held through Saturday at the Carolina East Mall, sponsored by the Greenville Homebuilders Association. Educational materials on energy and energy conservation, furnished by Exxon, are being distributed to students in the Greenville City Schools. A poster contest on energy conservation is being held for Greenville City Schools students, also. The deadline is today. The posters produced will be displayed in local business places.

Begin Salvage A Lost Harrier

CHERRY POINT, N. C. — Marine officials said Thursday a salvage operation was underway for the wreckage of an AV-8A Harrier aircraft, which has been located almost a month after it went down.

Navy divers aided by side-scanning sonar found the wreckage Sunday less than a mile north of Cape Lookout, a crashed Oct. 12. Marine spokesman said. The aircraft's pilot, 1st Lt. Robert C. Murray of Brandon, Miss., has been declared dead. He was on a routine flight out of the Marine Air Station at Cherry Point when his aircraft crashed. The Harrier is able to sit on the ground pointed straight up, and take off like a helicopter. Several have during the year, causing intensive investigation of the plane's capabilities.

discos and how many times I clean my ashtrays.

I answer every question dutifully because I know he's just waiting for me to make one slip.

Every time I send in the form Adolph pretends he didn't get it and sends me another one, which says in caps on the top: "YOU HAVE 10 DAYS TO COMPLETE THIS FOR OUR RECORDS OR YOUR POLICY WILL BE AUTOMATICALLY CANCELED."

I've never been late with a form and I know this burns Adolph up. Once he sent me a letter saying that there had been too many accidents in my area and although I hadn't had one, they were thinking of canceling my policy anyway.

Once someone crashed into the back of my wife's car and she said we ought to notify the insurance company.

"Are you crazy?" I yelled. "That's exactly what Adolph would like. He's been waiting years to get us. One call from me and he'll hit the cancellation letter button just like that! No one will ever give us auto insurance again."

"Who is Adolph?" my wife wanted to know.

"He's a Nazi computer who escaped to Argentina at the end of the war. Then he was shipped to the United States under another name and got a job splitting out threatening letters to poor helpless people like us. He's responsible for the deaths of more auto insurance policies than any computer in the country."

"Why do we pay premiums if we can't collect when we have an accident?" she asked.

"Because if we don't pay our premiums Adolph will put our names in another computer and we'll never be able to get credit again. I'll pay to fix your car but I don't want you to report it to the police. Adolph is plugged into every accident division in the United States."

While Adolph is writing his sadistic letters to me, Dave keeps urging me to buy more insurance from the company. He sends me pictures of houses burning to the ground, thieves breaking into windows, and widows with children whose husbands failed to take out life insurance. Dave wants me to know the company cares about my welfare, my family and my possessions. He even worries about my kid's education and my retirement plan. Dave has a toll-free number that I can call to get further information. He's all heart. The only thing I can't understand is how he can stand to work in the same office with someone like Adolph.

APPRECIATION SERVICE
FARMVILLE — Willie Earl Daniel of Bell Arthur will be honored at an appreciation service Sunday at 4 p.m. at the St. John FWB Church. He is the son of Jarvis and Lillie Daniel and is the musician for the church's Male Chorus, which is giving the service.

ways political, no equivalent of the decorous Dallas Cowgirls. However, the lassies from Lhasa, the Tibetan Girls Team, created quite a stir in skimpy short shorts that revealed elevations of leg not normally visible at sea level in China. The Kilgore Rangerettes they were not, but our guides and interpreters perspired perceptibly under their anti-clerical Mao collars and politely asked to borrow our binoculars.

The stadium show was the best I had ever seen anywhere — and I regard myself as a connoisseur of the halftime spectacle, having honed my voyeur skills at Tiger Stadium in Baton Rouge. There the keepers of the academic flame inspired scholarship with Neoronian circuses that included a caged Bengal tiger, gorgeous co-eds in purple and gold bouncing on trampolines and legions of leotarded lovelies strutting their stuff and TV's NCAA game of the week.

SENIOR USHER ANNIVERSARY
The Senior Ushers of Clemons Grove Holiness Church will observe their anniversary Sunday, Nov. 4, 3 p.m. Elder Jackson of Little Creek Church will be the guest speaker. All ushers are invited to attend.

Dedication At Church Sunday

Dedication services for the newly-renovated auditorium and Family Life Center at the People's Baptist Temple Church will be held Sunday, Nov. 4, beginning at 10:45 a.m. The church is located at 2001 Greenville Blvd.
Dedication for the Family Life Center will be held at 2 p.m. The Rev. Jim Herchenhahn, pastor of Grace Baptist Church, Wilmington, will be the speaker for the day.
"Remodeling of the church auditorium has given the Greenville Christian Academy nine new classrooms," says the Rev. J. M. Bragg, pastor. "God has seen fit to fill these classrooms with additional students this year."
"The Family Life Center's purpose is to minister to the families of Greenville," he con-

Ensemble Giving Church Program

The Vocal Ensemble of Free Will Baptist Bible College, Nashville, Tenn., will present a program of sacred music Saturday at 7:30 p.m. at Parker's Chapel F.W.B. Church here.
In addition to presenting their music program, members of the ensemble will speak on the educational advantages available at their college and testify about their relationships with Jesus Christ.
The service is open to the public, according to Parker's Chapel pastor, the Rev. Jim Nason.

Singers Perform Sunday

First Presbyterian Church will honor the St. Andrews Chamber Singers, Lee T. Kesselman, director, during their 11 a.m. Sunday morning worship service Nov. 4. St. Andrews is a four-year liberal arts college in Laurinburg.
First Presbyterian Church is located on the corners of 14th and Elm Streets. The public is invited to attend.

Anniversary For Auxiliary

The Lighthouse Principle

Maybe few of us landlubbers ever thought about it, but those graceful old lighthouses were built on a firm and logical principle.
They assumed their light would be seen and understood. In fog ships did not see the light and many foundered on the shoals. Occasionally captains mistook the light for that of another vessel and sailing across its bow or stern they came to grief upon the rocks. Yet despite hazards of nature and blunders of man, lighthouses became the landmarks of our coasts.
Whenever in your travels, work or play, you see a church think of it as a lighthouse. Its gleam may not reach every soul. But it's there for those who see and understand.
It lights our way to port while keeping us off the shoals.

Disclaims UNC 'Interference'

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — University of North Carolina President William Friday says the university has no intention of attempting to interfere with employees who want to testify at a U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare hearing concerning the university's desegregation dispute with HEW.

HEW charged in legal documents filed this week that UNC was using coercion and intimidation to keep employees from testifying at a scheduled March 10 hearing on the desegregation case. HEW is attempting to cut off some of the $89 million in federal aid to the university because the two parties failed to reach an agreement for further desegregation of the 16-campus system. "I categorically deny that any university policy or practice is being used to coerce or intimidate any university employee," Friday said in a statement released from his office Thursday.

"At the HEW hearing ... the government is free to produce whatever witnesses it chooses," Friday said. "HEW already has notified the court and us of its intention to call as witnesses a long list of university officers and employees."

HEW spokeswoman Coleen O'Conner of the Office of Civil Rights would not comment on Friday's denial except to say, "I just think that we will have to say the matter is in litigation, and we will not comment — unlike Dr. Friday."

Lawyers for HEW charged that UNC had "convinced (its employees) that, if they choose to dissent from the 'party line,' they will be risking their jobs."

Included in the documents filed with Administrative Law Judge Lewis F. Parker, who will preside over the March 10 hearing, is a North Carolina Central University professor's affidavit that he is "unable to testify at the ... hearing because the (UNC) administration has imposed a 'gag rule.'"

Professor David Bishop said in the affidavit that, if it were not for the alleged gag rule, he would be willing to testify "about the inequality among the (five black, 11 white) universities in the system."

Friday said earlier that at the direction of counsel, he issued a memo to UNC employees suggesting that if they wished to cooperate with HEW they do so on their own time.

Cites A Road To Civil War

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — This Central American nation's new ruling junta, hit by a wave of political violence that has claimed 72 lives since it came to power 18 days ago, appealed to the public to accept the new government or risk civil war.

"There are two roads to resolve our problems," junta leader Col. Adolfo Arnoldo Majano said in a television address to the nation Thursday. "The road to violence and civil war that extreme right and left wing minorities want to force us into, (or) a regime of participation and true social change urged by ... the armed forces."

Arnoldo Majano and a second army colonel led the coup that toppled President Carlos Humberto Romero on Oct. 15. Three civilians then joined the junta in a bid to give it broad-based representation.

Several leftist groups threw their support to the new government but others have continued their fight to install a Marxist government in El Salvador.

During the broadcast the junta announced it has set up a special commission to determine the whereabouts of political prisoners and others the leftists claim disappeared under the previous administration. The junta said it has been unable so far to account for about 550 persons reported missing by the leftists. The commission was given 60 days to try to locate them.

Proposal By Hospital OK'd

A proposal by Pitt County Memorial Hospital to acquire a mobile gamma scintillation camera has been approved by the Certificate of Need Section, Division of Facility Services, North Carolina Department of Human Resources.

The approval came after the Certificate of Need Section determined that the project is needed, financially feasible, will be adequately staffed and operated, and promotes cost containment.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE PUBLIC:

WILL YOUR NEXT CAR BE A MOTORCYCLE?

Everyone's concerned about the price of gasoline today and the big bite it's taking out of our budget just to get to work and back, or go shopping. But even the high price of gas is less frightening than waiting forever in long lines or the even more gloomy prospect of rationing or no gas at all. Certainly a motorcycle that gets 80 to 100 miles to the gallon would seem to be a practical solution, if you're not worried about rain or snow or buying a sidecar and a trailer to carry your family and luggage to go to Grandma's house for the holidays.

Right now there is no car on the market that gets the kind of gas mileage a motorcycle or mo-ped will get. But there is a down-to-earth solution. A Toyota. It's a car that delivers the kind of gas mileage we really need today with $1.00 a gallon prices at the pump. A Toyota is fun to drive and it gives you all the room and comfort you expect in a quality automobile. And you don't need a helmet to drive a Toyota.

THE SMALL CAR EXPERTS.

Since 1936, Toyotas have been designed and built to deliver not only good mileage, but thousands of miles of carefree, pleasurable driving. And car buyers the world over recognize Toyota value. That's why it's the best selling economy car in the world.

But what does our being #1 mean to you? Well, it means that a Toyota certainly has to be a very good car because we certainly have plenty of competition. We're #1 because we offer you a car that is well designed, well built, with quality as its most important feature. Its initial cost is low. It's thrifty to operate and it's as good-looking a small car as you can find anywhere.

The thing that surprises most first-time Toyota buyers, especially people who have been used to big gas guzzlers, is the room and comfort that a Toyota offers in a small package. No, you can't get the Boston Celtics basketball team into it, but you will find the headroom and legroom you need. And you'll discover the pleasure of driving again instead of aiming a big tank. You're in control when you drive a Toyota. The quick, responsive steering. The fun of putting it through its gears. It's a nimble car that is truly fun to drive.

ASK A TOYOTA OWNER.

We have a very simple business philosophy: our customers should be our best salesmen. They not only have to be completely satisfied with the car itself, but they have to be satisfied with their Toyota Dealer. When you buy a Toyota, you're buying the dealer. Not just his excellent deal, but his service and personal attention too. Our 155 Toyota Dealers in the Southeast are committed to selling you low-priced transportation in a new Toyota and to keeping your Toyota running for a long time with highly trained Toyota mechanics and genuine Toyota parts that are always immediately available.

No, you don't have to consider a motorcycle to have economical transportation. We think you'll be delighted with a new Toyota car or truck and your Toyota Dealer. See him soon and discover a car or truck that will last a long time, run better and has excellent resale value — a Toyota.

Sincerely,

Jim Moran

Day Care Centers Face Cutback In State Funds

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The state Social Services Commission is expected to act on a proposal this month that would end full support of the 42 county-operated day-care centers located in 23 North Carolina counties.

And officials in one of the counties that would be most affected, Mecklenburg, said approval of the plan would place that program in jeopardy.

Approval would mean the affected counties would have to find space for low-income children in private day-care centers. It would set the same maximum per-child support for county programs it allows the private providers.

In Mecklenburg County, there are 400 children of low-income families already on a waiting list for day-care services.

"We have a very heavy and sad heart that this type of change is coming to our agency," Ed Chapin, county social services director, said Thursday.

The state is spending about $3 million annually for the county programs that serve 1,517 children.

"The state's interest is obviously to try to serve as many children as possible," said Robert Fitzgerald, assistant director of plans and operation for the state Department of Human Resources.

The commission will act on the proposal at its Nov. 20 meeting.

Human Resources administrators the federal money that pays for 75 percent of day care for children of low-income families.

School Bus Ran Off The Road

WILKESBORO, N.C. (AP) — A school bus ran off a rain-slick road and overturned down an embankment today as it headed for school and seven children were slightly injured, the Highway Patrol said.

The accident occurred shortly before 8 a.m. on a dirt road off of N. C. 16, according to trooper Doug Brown, who said the bus apparently was traveling at an unsafe speed.

Moretz Attends Training Meet

Leonard Moretz, Program Director of the Boys' Club of Pitt County Inc., attended a week-long training seminar in Atlanta, Ga. recently.

The seminar covered such topics as ideal program goals, children in America, program delivery methods, assessing the needs and interests of children and working with small organized groups of children.

Moretz is a 1978 graduate of East Carolina University and has been employed by the Boys' Club here for one year.

Jetliners In Health Care Unit .. Near Miss

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two jetliners traveling in opposite directions on flights between New York and Florida came close to colliding because of what the Federal Aviation Administration calls a "system error."

The near-collision occurred over North Carolina Wednesday night following the failure of ground air traffic radar, FAA spokesman Fred Farrar said Thursday.

The planes were a Delta Air Lines L-1011 with 115 persons aboard, enroute from New York City to Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and an Air Florida Boeing 737 with 93 persons, headed from Miami to New York.

Delta spokesman Bill Berry said in Atlanta that the Delta captain saw the lights of another aircraft at about 8 p.m. Wednesday night and immediately turned on his landing lights. "The other aircraft turned, and that's it," Berry said.

In Miami, Air Florida spokeswoman Robin Cohen said the Air Florida pilot "saw there was a Delta plane in the path ... and he took his own measures and swerved."

She said the planes passed within about 200 to 300 feet of each other.

The FAA's Farrar said the incident was a "system error" that resulted in the planes coming within "less than standard separation." He said it happened after a primary radar system at the FAA's Leesburg, Va., air traffic control center malfunctioned.

Samuel Eberdt, administrator of Beaufort County Hospital; Mrs. Marion Sloan, a member of the Board of Trustees of Beaufort County Hospital; David Henson, acting administrator of Choway Hospital, Ahoskie; Dr. Adman Taj-Elden, a member of the medical staff of Onslow Memorial Hospital; and Dorcas Oakley, director of nursing of Martin General Hospital.

John Payne, a deputy director of North Carolina AHEC, complimented Dr. Patterson and his staff for being the AHEC in the state with the best record of making its continuing education programs pay for themselves.

Dr. Patterson, in his report of the past year's work, introduced new staff members, Helen Brinson in nursing; Deborah Ramey in allied health and related professions; Dr. Stephen Porter in pharmacy; and David Kennedy, financial officer. It was pointed out that EAHEC, which began in January, 1975 with three employees now has 23 and is "bursting out of" its office space. A courtyard is being closed in at the present time to allow more office space in the AHEC central office located adjacent to Pitt County Memorial Hospital in Greenville.

A $1,505,653 budget was approved.

According to a report given by Dr. Patterson, Eastern AHEC has, during the past year, provided 3,083 instructional hours of continuing health education, given 542 programs, and served 12,894 participants. More than half of these program were done in locations other than Greenville and 58.8 percent of the participants were from outside the Greenville area, he indicated. There were clinical rotation programs for students in medicine, physicians' assistance, nursing, dietetics, laboratory technology, physical therapy, radiologic technology, occupational therapy, public health, and pharmacy for students from area hospital and community college training programs, Duke University, UNC-Chapel Hill, Bowman Gray, as well as East Carolina University, he pointed out.

Dr. William W. Fore of Greenville was re-elected as a Pitt County Memorial Hospital representative on the board's executive committee and Dr. Jack W. Wilkerson, also of Greenville, was named an at-large executive committee member.

CONTROL YOUR DEBTS

If your present bills, because of economic pressures, cannot be met by your income, legal relief may be available to you under the provisions of Chapter 13 of the Bankruptcy Reform Act of 1978, which permits individuals to petition the Court for an arrangement allowing a thirty-six month period to discharge indebtednesses, without property repossession or creditor harassment. Attorney's fees, which may be paid in monthly installments, are determined by the Court. There is no fee for an initial conference to discuss your eligibility for a "Wage Earner Plan".

'Pulling The Plug' Question Again Before Court

By JOAN J. CIRILLO
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Brother Joseph Charles Fox often spoke of Karen Anne Quinlan, his religious superior recalls, always firm in his belief that the comatose woman's parents had the right to let her die.

Now the 83-year-old Fox is himself lying in a coma, and his superior and longtime friend, the Rev. Philip Eichner, is asking a court to allow him to exercise that same right.

"This is a very real question and it touches almost every family in the United States," he said of Fox's situation. Families daily are facing life and death issues and the church's position — that persons are not held to extraordinary, heroic means to prolong life — applies to countless medical situations including treatment for diseases such as cancer, he said.

Eichner is head of the 40-member Marianist community that runs Chaminade High School in Mineola on Long Island. Marianists, members of the Society of Mary, are a Catholic teaching order numbering 2,200 world-wide. Illuminating the moral and ethical principals of the church is a natural outgrowth of the order's role as educators, said Eichner.

"This is called the positive aspect of the Fifth Commandment, Thou Shalt Not Kill, involving the reasonable care of your life," said Eichner. A person is not obligated to take measures to prolong life that would present a grave burden on himself or others, he explained.

For example, he said, a patient needn't undergo a prohibitively expensive cancer operation that would briefly extend his or her life. "This is not mercy killing," Eichner stressed. He said the distinction is that mercy killing is a direct act to end a life; the other is an indirect act or decision not to prolong life.

But the priest said making such decisions often is complicated in a society that attaches more importance to life on earth than an afterlife and surrounds death with a sense of guilt. As a religious community, the Marianists decided to confront the issue when Fox slipped into a coma on Oct. 2 at Nassau Hospital. Fox suffered cardiac arrest while undergoing a hernia operation.

"He was a marvelous image for the community of how to grow old gracefully," said Eichner of his friend. The two men had met decades before when Eichner was just entering the order and Fox was his prefect. When Fox retired to Chaminade in 1970 after teaching at Marianist schools around the world, the roles were reversed — Eichner was the superior at Chaminade.

Prompt Action In House Seen On Chrysler Loan Guarantees

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration's plan for $1.5 billion in loan guarantees to help Chrysler Corp. appears to be headed for swift action by a House panel, but faces doubts and delays in the Senate.

A spokesman for the House Banking Committee said its subcommittee on economic stabilization hopes to question Treasury Secretary G. William Miller within a few days and act on the proposal next week. Approval by the full banking committee is expected to follow quickly, sending the measure to the floor, where both supporters and opponents have predicted it will pass.

In the Senate, however, Sen. William G. Proxmire, D-Wis., banking committee chairman, said he would begin hearings Nov. 19 and continue them "until the many issues involved ... have been thoroughly explored and discussed."

Proxmire is an outspoken opponent of government aid to the nation's No. 3 automaker, which has said it expects to lose more than $1 billion this year. Sen. Jake Garn of Utah, ranking Republican on the banking committee, said, "A lot of questions must be answered before I would even consider committing public funds for loan guarantees."

Garn said the plan is based on assumptions by Chrysler which may not be realized, including ample fuel supplies, inflation of around 8 percent and a 20 percent increase in the company's share of the U.S. auto market. "If one of the assumptions does not materialize — if the economy turns out to be worse than expected — then Chrysler financing needs may be even greater than projected, and its hopes for recovery diminished," Garn said.

A supporter of loan guarantees, Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., also questioned portions of the administration proposal. The plan outlined Thursday by Miller is conditioned on Chrysler obtaining an additional $1.5 billion, without loan guarantees, from banks, state and local governments, its workers, dealers and suppliers and the sale of its own assets.

"This raises several questions," said Levin. "Is it a practical, achievable requirement? Does Chrysler have to have all these commitments in hand before it can draw on the federal loan guarantees? What constitutes a commitment? Who will make that determination?"

"We also want to know how much involvement the federal government might seek in the management of the corporation," Levin said.

What are you actually getting for all those insurance premiums?

If You're Not Sure, Take This ONE-MINUTE QUIZ

1. Are you getting, through your present agency, the protection of a national company like Etna Life & Casualty, a company that can provide protection for all your insurance needs: individual, family, home, car, and business?
2. Are you getting the satisfaction of being protected by an independent insurance agent, one that is both able and willing to recommend the right protection at the right price?
3. Are you getting personal service — the kind of service that comes only from an agent that lives near you, knows you, and really wants to help you?

If you answered "no" to even one of these questions, you're getting less than you deserve. But cheer up! You can call us! Then all your answers will be positive.

Think Positive. Think Etna. Think...

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, continuing the erratic pattern of the past few sessions.
 Gainers outnumbered losers by close to a 2-1 margin in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.
 But the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slipped 43 to 819.71 in the first half hour.
 Late Thursday the Federal Reserve reported a $1.3 billion decline in the basic measure of the money supply for the latest reporting week.
 The figures brought some tentative signs of progress in the Fed's effort to slow monetary growth.
 But analysts said traders still seemed a bit gun-shy after October's sharp decline in the markets, which drove the Dow industrials down almost 63 points for the month.
 Today's early volume leaders included Phillips Petroleum, up 1/4 at 43 1/2; Snap On Tools, up 1/4 at 23; and International Telephone & Telegraph, unchanged at 25 1/2.

On Thursday the Dow Jones industrial average rose 4.44 points to 820.14.
