

ECU Attacks Explosive Mountaineers

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Boone may be a nice place to live, but Pat Dye doesn't like to visit there.

While the East Carolina coach won on his last trip up the mountain, he definitely has some bad memories of his first two visits up there.

Like back in 1975, when the Appalachian State Mountaineers ran all over the Pirates in a 41-25 shellacking. And the year before when a late field goal handed the Pirates a 23-21 setback.

So Dye might be excused if he looks at this weekend's game with a slight shudder to his shoulders. Traveling to Boone is not exactly a trip to Fun City.

"It's very important that we win our next four games," Dye said. "And we've got to start by winning Saturday against Appalachian State.

"Appalachian is very, very scary to me," Dye said. "They have a great offense, a lot like we are, but they do more passing."

Dye added that Appalachian has a great quarterback in Steve Brown and an outstanding receiver in split end Rick Beasley. They rank among the national leaders in passing, total offense and receiving.

"Their defense has given up a lot of yards and points, but they are capable of coming out and giving you a lot of problems. I'm sure that they'll be ready for us."

Dye added that while the Appalachian offense is potent, the Mountaineers also have a strong kicking game.

"Those facts, plus playing in Boone, should make it quite a game. I'd have to say that if people like to see a lot of scoring, they should be in Boone on Saturday. It should be quite an offensive show, with a lot of footballs in the air and a lot of points on the scoreboard."

Dye isn't too worried about the Pirates looking back at their 24-24 tie with North Carolina instead of ahead to the Mountaineers. "We've had excellent practices the first part of the week, and from everything I've seen, we're not looking back.

"We can't be looking back," he added. "This is too important a game for us."

Brown is the do-it-all man for the Mountaineers. He's ranked fourth in the nation in total offense, and is in the top 20 in passing efficiency.

Brown has carried the ball out of the ASU wishbone backfield for 170 yards on 98 carries, but has made most of his yardage through the pass. He's connected on 108 of 212 tries, with 11 picked off. That has accounted for 1,690 yards and 12 touchdowns for the Mountaineers.

The leading rusher is fullback Eddie Estes, who has lugged the ball 91 times for 375 yards. Halfback Arnold Floyd has added 307 yards on 62 carries.

Brown's favorite target has been split end Beasley, whose nine touchdown receptions is second in the nation. He's tied for first in the country in receptions per game, catching 6.2 per outing.

Beasley, overall, has 50 catches, nearly half of the ASU total, for 846 yards. Second to him is backup halfback Pete Camelo, who has taken in ten for 191 yards.

Beasley is also the leading scorer on the team with 54 points, an average of 6.8 per game. Estes is next with 36 points, while kicker Mark French has 35 on 20 of 20 extra points and five of ten field goals.

Appalachian leads the series between the two schools, 19-9, but Appalachian won the first ten games of the series, which dates back to 1932. ECU's first football season. The last three in a row have gone to the Pirates, along with five of the past eight.

The game could become a milestone for ASU Coach Jim Brakefield, who will be looking for his 75th career win against the Pirates. His overall record stands at 74-62-4, with a 46-46-4 mark at ASU. This year's team has only a 2-6 record.

The victories came over Western Carolina, 35-27, and in last weekend's game at East Tennessee, 24-10. That was marked as an upset, since the Buccaneers were two touchdown favorites.

Losses include a 30-23 decision against Wake Forest, a 41-32 defeat at Virginia Tech, a 24-23 loss at The Citadel, a 24-21 defeat by UT-Chattanooga, a 27-22 loss to VMI, and a 31-17 upset by Furman.

Kickoff in the contest is set for 1:30 p.m. in ASU's Conrad Stadium Saturday.

Rampant Cubs Move Into 1st

WILSON — Rose High School's junior varsity football team romped to a 41-0 victory over Wilson Hunt last night, moving into first place in the JV standings.

Rose scored twice in each of the first two periods, then added single scores in the third and fourth quarters.

Marty Tyson got the first touchdown, pulling in a 60-yard pass from Barry Smith. Mike Thurber kicked the first of five extra points following the score.

Later in the period, Mike Spell went over from a yard out, raising it to 14-0.

Thurber got a touchdown on a 13-yard pass from Smith to open the second quarter. Later on, Henry Williams pounced on a Hunt fumble in the end zone for the next touchdown. That made it 28-0 at the half.

Robert Brown scored both of the second half scores. He went in from one yard out in the third and from four out in the fourth. A bad snap halted the first PAT try.

Rose is now 8-1 and closes out the season on Thursday, playing host to Northeastern.

Aycock In 14-6 Win

ROCKY MOUNT — E.B. Aycock Junior High School completed its 1979 football season yesterday with a 14-6 win over the Rocky Mount "Gold" team.

Donelle Lee scored on an eight yard run in the second period to give Aycock a 6-0 lead, but Rocky Mount came back before the half to score on a five-yard run to tie it at 6-6.

In the third period, Roderick Harrell broke away on a 37-yard scamper to return Aycock to the lead. Lee ran over the two-point conversion for the final 14-6 margin.

Aycock finished the year with a 3-3-1 record.

Fuller Is Returned To Starting Role As Kansas City Quarterback

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

The Kansas City Chiefs say they're not writing off the 1979 season just yet — but the handwriting may be on the wall for Mike Livingston.

The 12-year quarterback, given two chances earlier this year to become No. 1 on the Chiefs, will be back on the bench Sunday when the San Diego Chargers visit Kansas City.

Steve Fuller, the rookie who started out as No. 2, became No. 1 after a few games, then was relegated to second string a couple of weeks ago.

But since then the Chiefs' offense has sputtered and they've dropped two in a row.

Enter Mr. Fuller once again — for the rest of the year, according to Coach Marv Levy, who says he's decided he wants his young quarterback to mature along with the rest of the young Chiefs.

"By no means are we writing off this season," Levy insists, "but this is the direction we're going to go in now. We have to muster more offense to keep our defense off the field. When we do get the ball, we've got to do more with it."

Sunday's other games are New Orleans at Denver, Los Angeles at Seattle, San Francisco at Oakland, New England at Buffalo, Cleveland at Philadelphia, Dallas at the New York Giants, Tampa Bay at Atlanta, Washington at Pittsburgh, Cincinnati at Baltimore, Minnesota at St. Louis, Detroit at Chicago and the New York Jets at Green Bay. Houston visits Miami Monday night.

The Chiefs, 4-5 and two games behind the Chargers and Denver Broncos, American Conference West co-leaders, have made their mark with defense, the fifth-best in the AFC. But on offense they're dead-last in the conference, with Fuller, the rookie from Clemson, 13th (next-to-last, ahead of Houston's Dan Pastorini) in AFC passing.

Virtually on the other end of the spectrum, behind only Buffalo's Joe Ferguson, is the AFC's No. 2 passer, Dan Fouts of the Chargers, who has thrown for 300 or more yards in his last four games, most recently the 45-22 loss in Oakland eight nights ago. San Diego leads the league in aerial offense because of his passing yards (2,243) and completion rate (63.1 percent).

"That's amazing," says Levy. "He throws the ball well, he sets up well and he understands his offense well."

While the Chargers and Broncos each hope to get an edge on each other in the AFC West, New Orleans will be trying to retain its one-game lead over Los Angeles in the NFC West. The Saints, behind quarterback Archie Manning, are No. 2 in NFC offense.

The 4-5 Rams will be out to halt their skid against one of the most explosive teams in the league, the Seahawks, who rode Jim Zorn's passing and Dan Doornink's bull-like running to their Monday night triumph in Atlanta. Seattle is 4-5, tied with Kansas City and one game back of Oakland.

Stickers In Finals

ROCK HILL — Fourth-seeded East Carolina upset No. 1 seed High Point, 1-0, here Thursday afternoon to advance to the finals of the NCAIA Division II Field Hockey Championships. The Pirates meet Pfeiffer, a 1-0 winner over Davidson, today for the title.

Senior Kathy Zwigard scored in the second period on an assist by Carol Belcher to lift the Pirates past the previously undefeated Panthers. Zwigard also scored the only goal as East Carolina shut out Wake Forest, 1-0, in Thursday morning's first-round action.

Davidson, seeded fifth, blanked Catawba, 3-0, to advance to the semifinal meeting with Pfeiffer.

First-round scores: High Point vs. Wake; ECU 1 Wake 0; Pfeiffer vs. Davidson 3 Catawba 0. Semifinals: ECU 1 High Point 0; Pfeiffer 1 Davidson 0.

S. Carolina Leads Golf

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — South Carolina used a par 70 round by Steve Liebler to compile a team score of 300 for the first round lead Thursday in the Guilford College Invitational golf tournament at the Cardinal Golf Club.

The Gamecocks bolted to a three-shot lead over Duke and the host Quakers. The second and final round is slated for Friday.

Following Duke and Guilford were Coastal Carolina at 305, Wake Forest and UNC-Charlotte at 307, Virginia Tech and East Carolina at 309 and North Carolina at 311.

Following Liebler in the individual race were Coastal Carolina's Ray Freeman at 71, and Guilford's Jay Kennedy and Virginia Tech's Barry McCarty at 72.

Three teams, Gardner-Webb, Elon, and High Point, were unable to finish Thursday's round due to darkness and will finish this morning.

Lady Bucs Take Two

GREENSBORO — East Carolina University's volleyball team picked up a pair of victories last night, beating both Appalachian State and UNC-Greensboro.

In their first match, the ECU lassies downed Appalachian in split sets, 15-11, 3-15 and 15-4. They came back later in the evening to dump hosting UNC-Greensboro, 15-7, 8-15 and 15-11.

"Stacey Weitzel had a pretty good night spiking the ball coming off an ankle injury," Coach Alita Dillon commented. "Now we can rest up over the weekend to get ready for our final regular season match and the state tournament next weekend."

The Lady Pirates, now 18-20, play host to William & Mary on Tuesday, and participate in the NCAIA tournament on Friday and Saturday at N.C. State.

Two Gain Regionals

WILSON — The Rose High School duo of Martha West and Lisa Grant captured a quarterfinal victory yesterday in the Wilson Sectionals Tennis Tournament, and qualified for the regionals.

The regionals will be held next Wednesday and Thursday at Goldsboro.

West and Grant had to face teammates Laurie Smith and Jan Stoughton in the quarterfinals of the doubles play, with the winners gaining the automatic berth in the regionals. West and Grant won the match in split sets, 7-6, 4-6, 6-3.

They were then defeated in the semifinals of the tournament by Sheila Colby and Teresa Gurley of Charles B. Aycock High School, again in split sets, 0-6, 6-4, 6-2. Gurley and Colby finished second in the field, losing in the finals.

The bottom is bound to fall out at any time. We are waiting and just hoping that it won't come any time soon.

Another fine week, with a 9-2 record, increased this writer's lead in the panel of expects pickings, while the rest of the panel proved not to be too expert.

Currently the standings show us in the lead with a 68-25 record, now three ahead of fellow sports writer Rick Scoppe, who has 65-28 mark.

Further back, Tom Baines is knotted with our guests for third place, both with 60-33 records, followed by Etha Allen at 59-34, and Joe Jenkins, bouncing around in the basement with a 58-35 mark.

Last week's guest, WITN-TV Sports Director Dick Jones came limping in with a 5-6 record, worst of the week, and he trails WNCT-TV's Jim Woods, who had a 9-3 record a week earlier.

This week, we've invited in WCTI-TV's Lee Moore, to complete the triple play, and he vows to outdo Woods. "There won't be any trouble with Dick," he laughed.

Before hitting this week's picks, we'll look at the high school forecast.

Our high school record isn't up to the same par as the collegiate, as we are now 39-18 following a 4-3 week last time out.

This week's games find Roanoke at Edenton,

Mississippi Coach, Unhappy For Himself, Won't Get His Wish

By The Associated Press
Emory Bellard, Mississippi State football coach, says, "I would like to see a game where Alabama's offense played Alabama's defense."
"You would have a heck of a battle there," he said.
Perhaps the only ones who will see such a game are Alabama Coach Bear Bryant, his staff, the Crimson Tide players and others associated with the team.

Instead, Bellard will have to contend with both Alabama's offensive and defensive units Saturday when he sends his Maroons against the nation's top-ranked team at Tuscaloosa.

The Crimson Tide has been virtually unbeatable at home under Bryant, winning 47 in a row in friendly Tuscaloosa and 62 of its 63 games there under the venerable coach. Adding to Bellard's woes, Alabama has beaten Mississippi State 21 consecutive times, has the nation's longest current winning streak (16, including seven this year) and has won 20 straight Southeastern Conference games, equalling the league record.

Despite Alabama's apparent superiority, Bryant is expressing concern about the Bulldogs, who are 2-0 in the SEC but have lost four non-league games.
"They are big and strong and when they are emotionally ready, they can play with any team in the nation," said Bryant. "They have a history of playing well one week and being off the next. I'm sure this will be their week to play great."

In other games Saturday involving members of The Associated Press Top 10, second-ranked Nebraska visits Missouri, No. 3 Southern California entertains Arizona, fourth-rated Houston is at Texas Christian, fifth-ranked Ohio State is at Illinois, No. 6 Florida State plays at Cincinnati, seventh-rated Oklahoma is at Oklahoma State, eighth-ranked Texas is home against Texas Tech, No. 9 Arkansas visits Rice and 10th-rated Michigan entertains Wisconsin.

In the Second 10, No. 11 Brigham Young is at Colorado State, 12th-rated Pitt is home against Syracuse, 13th-ranked Notre Dame entertains Navy, No. 14 Wake Forest is at Clemson, 15th-ranked Purdue visits Iowa, 16th-rated Washington is at California, No. 17 Tennessee is home against Rutgers, 18th-rated North Carolina plays at Maryland, No. 19 Penn State hosts Miami of Florida and 20th-rated Auburn faces Florida at home.

The Notre Dame-Navy game will continue the nation's longest-running intersectional rivalry.

It will be the 53rd meeting between the Fighting Irish and the Middies, with Navy seeking its first victory since 1963, when Roger Staubach was the team's quarterback.

The Middies, unranked despite a 6-1 record, are hurting physically, and as many as seven starters, including tailbacks Steve Callahan and Mike Sherlock, the team's top two rushers, are likely to miss Saturday's game.

Cartwright Leads Knicks To Win Over Jazz Scoring 31 Points

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — New York Knicks Coach Red Holzman had nothing but praise for 7-foot Bill Cartwright after the rookie from the University of San Francisco scored 31 points in a 134-118 National Basketball Association victory over the Utah Jazz Thursday night.

In the only other NBA game, Cleveland beat Detroit 127-125. "Cartwright is going to be one helluva player," Holzman said. "He needs some time to develop but he's learning real quickly. We always go to Cartwright, that's part of our game plan against anyone."

Cartwright wasn't the only hero in the Knicks' come-from-behind triumph over the Jazz, which has won only two of its 10 outings in its first year in Utah.

Toby Knight equalled Cartwright's point production, getting 25 of his 31 in the first half while Utah was running up a 69-61 lead.

Ray Williams and Michael Richardson were the key figures in the New York comeback, scoring 37 points between them in the final two quarters. Their outside shooting, most of which came while Knight was on the bench with four personal fouls, catapulted the Knicks from a 10-point deficit, 71-61, to an easy triumph.

Williams wound up with 23 points for the night and Richardson finished with 21.

Ron Boone, playing his first home game for Utah since coming to the Jazz from the Los Angeles Lakers, scored 22 points for the losers, as did Adrian Dantley.

Boone was a crowd favorite when he played for the Utah Stars of the defunct American Basketball Association from 1970 to 1975, and the crowd Thursday night of 8,326 was the largest of the season.

Duck Williams added 20 and Bernard King 19 for Utah.

Utah Coach Tom Nissalke attributed his team's poor second-half performance partially to the fact that he has little depth on the guard line.

Richardson, the Knicks' second-year guard from Montana, had a perfect shooting night, pumping in 9-of-9 shots from the field and was 2-for-2 from the foul line.

Knight was nearly as accurate, hitting 14 of his 16 attempts from the field as New York shot 65 percent from the field in running its record to 6-5.

Cavaliers 127, Pistons 125

A 25-foot jumper by Randy Smith at the final buzzer lifted Cleveland over Detroit. The Cavaliers capitalized on a Pistons error with seven seconds to go to set up the winning shot by Smith.

The Pistons had led by as much as 12 points in the first half before Cleveland rallied.

Smith tied the game at 125 with seven seconds left. Detroit called time out to set up a play at midcourt, but gave up the ball when forward Terry Tyler was unable to pass it inbound in the prescribed five seconds.

Cleveland then took over and Smith responded with his winning shot to climax a thrill-packed final three minutes, in which the lead changed hands six times and was tied on five other occasions.

Baker Has To Wait To Know

HAMPTON, Ga. (AP) — Buddy Baker may have won $27,000 when he drove his Chevrolet 164.813 mph around Atlanta International Raceway for the fastest qualifying speed for Sunday's Dixie 500.

But he had to wait another day to find out if the money and the pole position were his.

Because of a rain delay, Neil Bonnett and four other drivers did not get a chance to qualify Thursday. The five were to try again today.

The Grand National driver who wins the most pole positions this season wins $25,000 from a beer company, and the Dixie 500 pole winner receives another $2,000.

Baker has won six pole positions this season, while Darrell Waltrip has five and Bonnett four. With only one more race this season, at Ontario, Calif., Baker would win the big money with a pole victory here.

But if Bonnett beats Baker's time today, all three drivers will have a chance in California. In case of a tie, the fastest qualifier at Ontario would win the prize.

Baker's time Thursday was almost 4 mph slower than the 168.425 mph track record set by Cale Yarborough during qualifying for last year's race. Yarborough, who has not won a pole position all season, was second Thursday at 164.378 mph.

Besides Bonnett, H.B. Bailey, Wayne Wattercutter, Dick May and Jimmy Means were to attempt to qualify for the top 15 positions today in a special qualifying session before the remaining 21 drivers competed for positions 16 through 30.

Bobby Allison, of Hueytown, Ala., had the third fastest qualifying time Thursday, clocking 162.743 mph in a Ford. Tighe Scott, of Pen Argyl, Pa., was fourth at 161.834 mph in a Buick.

Higuchi Leads Japan Tourney

HANAYASHIKI, Japan (AP) — Japan's Hisako "Chako" Higuchi took a one-stroke lead Friday in the 54-hole $125,000 tournament on the Ladies Professional Golf Association (LPGA) tour with a 3-under-par 71 for a 36-hole total 7-under-par 141.

First-round leader American Janet Cole shot a 2-over-par 76 and slipped into a three-way tie for 16th place with a 69-76-145.

In second place with a 6-under-par 142 were Sandra Post of Canada and Lori Garbacz of the United States. Post, who was in sixth place, shot a 71 and Garbacz moved up from 16th with a 69.

Playing in fine weather, Higuchi rolled in four birdies against one bogey on the 6,130-yard par-74 Hanayashiki Golf Club course in Western Japan.

"The old putter which my mother gave me was very helpful," Higuchi said.

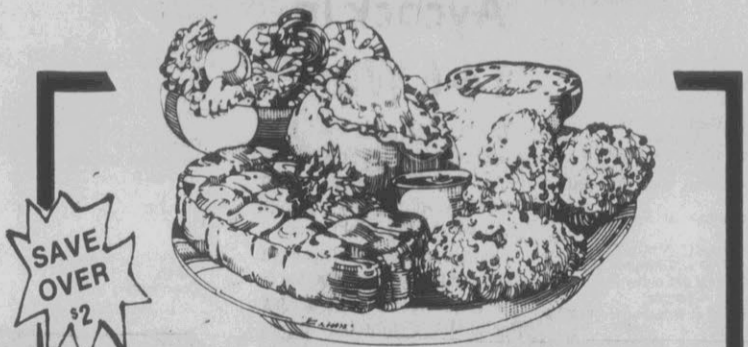

American rookie pro Beth Daniel tied for fourth place with South Africa's Sally Little and Japan's veteran pros Masako Sasaki and Tatsuko Ohsako at 5-under-par 143. Daniel and Ohsako each fired a 71, and Little and Sasaki 72s.

Tied for eighth place at 4-under-par 144 were Americans Amy Alcott and Donna C. Young and Japanese Yuko Moriguchi. Alcott, who won three tournaments this season, had a 73, Young 71 and Moriguchi 74.

Interesting Names On Free Agent List

NEW YORK (AP) — For baseball owners equipped with a sense of nostalgia seasoned by a dose of good humor, there were some interesting names available in today's 44-player free agent draft.

Clubs who might need help running the show, for example, could go after an ex-manager and a coach, both up for grabs. The former manager was Don Kessinger, who started last season as both pilot and part-time shortstop of the Chicago White Sox. He gave up both jobs in midseason after batting

.200 in 56 games with just 110 at bats. Kessinger is 37 years old. The coach is Jesus Alou of the Houston Astros, who directed traffic at first base last season. Alou also was a part-time player, batting 43 times and hitting .256. He is 36. The draft also had two players named May — one a catcher and the other a pitcher. Catcher Mill May of the Chicago White Sox and pitcher Rudy May of the Montreal Expos provided teams a unique opportunity to acquire a single-named battery, both at the same time. There were also some glamorous names in a draft that has produced by unofficial count 34 millionaires since it was introduced in 1976. Among the more exciting players available today were flame-throwing Nolan Ryan of the California Angels; Bruce Kison, who started the opening game of the World Series for the Pittsburgh Pirates; Dave Goltz, former 20-game winner for the Minnesota Twins, and reliever Al Hrabosky, the Mad

Hungarian of the Kansas City Royals. The draft also offered some veteran sluggers like Tony Perez of the Montreal Expos, Willie Horton of the Seattle Mariners and Bob Watson of the Boston Red Sox. Also up for grabs were long-time regulars like shortstop Fred Patek of Kansas City and second baseman Joe Morgan of Cincinnati. With more than 40 players available, each team could sign up to three free agents unless it stood to lose more. The New York Yankees, for example, had five players in the draft pool — pitchers Don Hood and Jim Kaat, outfielder Roy White, infielder Lenny Randle and first baseman George Scott — and so could sign five free agents. Each player could be selected by 13 teams and, if it wanted to, his old team could also select negotiating rights, as well. But drafting players and signing them are two very different jobs. In the first three drafts, the No. 1 selection has never signed with the first team to draft him. In 1976, the Montreal Expos made Reggie Jackson the opening selection, but he subsequently signed with the Yankees. In 1977, the first pick was Lyman Bostock, by Toronto. He signed with California. In 1978, the New York Mets made Pete Rose the first pick and he wound up with Philadelphia. Toronto made the first choice in today's draft followed by the New York Mets. Teams rotated by league, drafting in inverse order according to their worst records for the 1979 season.

McNally Glad To Be Out Of The Picture He Has Helped To Paint

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball's fourth annual garage sale — the free agent draft — pitched its tent today, with price tags on some 44 major league players who hope to become instant millionaires. If one-fourth of them don't, it will be an upset. The first year of player freedom in 1976 saw 14 sign for $1 million and more while 10 millionaires have emerged from each of the last two grab bags. "I am glad I am not involved," said Dave McNally, former all-star pitcher of the Baltimore Orioles, now retired and prospering in the automobile business in Billings, Mont. "Before the big decision, the cards were stacked heavily in favor of the owners. Now they are stacked in favor of the players. "One of the reasons I quit — other than my bad arm — was that I don't think I could have stood shuttling from one team to another. It's bad for everybody."

Dave McNally and another pitcher, Andy Messersmith, lately of the Los Angeles Dodgers, were principals in the historic arbitration ruling by Peter Seitz that a ball club could not bind a player to his contract for life as specified by the reserve clause. Seitz's ruling on Dec. 23, 1975 had a cyclonic effect on the lords of the game. If allowed to prevail, warned Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, "it would be a disaster for most of the players, the clubs and, most of all, the fans."

Too Tall 'Set For Ring Debut

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (AP) — At 6-foot-9 and almost 250 pounds it might seem that Ed "Too Tall" Jones would be easy to hit. But professional boxing's celebrated newcomer says no way. "People think that because I've got a big body I'll be an easy target," said the former Dallas Cowboy defensive end who will make his ring debut Saturday.

The two fighters and their managers have declined to reveal any fight strategy. But all have indicated the fans should expect to see a slam-bang slugfest. "I'm not going to give any ground. It shouldn't go more than three rounds," said the 28-year-old Jones. "His (Meneses) fights don't last a long time," added Jones' manager, David Wolf. "We know Ed can punch. What it's going to be is a brawl."

"I've never backed away from anyone, and I'm not going to do it this time," said the 6-2 Meneses. "I've fought big men before. I knocked them out. I'm capable of winning this fight the same way." Meneses will be giving away pounds as well as inches. He expects to weigh 211 or 212, while Jones expects to go in at 247 or 248.

But the 20-year-old Meneses will have the edge in experience. The slugger from Ciudad Obregon, Mexico, boasts a 10-4 record with all his victories coming by knockouts. Seitz and McNally can look back and view the landmark decision with detached objectivity. Messersmith, picked up by Atlanta for $1 million, graviknow how an equitable agreement can be reached. "It's a puzzle," he said, "protecting a player's rights on the one hand and the owners' investment on the other while being fair to the fans. The answer probably lies in good heads and collective bargaining."

Seitz insists now he doesn't know how an equitable agreement can be reached. "It's a puzzle," he said, "protecting a player's rights on the one hand and the owners' investment on the other while being fair to the fans. The answer probably lies in good heads and collective bargaining."

The best contract was reached after a routine auction. North had a difficult bid to make at his second turn, and his jump rebid of his reasonable six-card suit was as good a selection as any.

West led the fourth-best of his longest and strongest suit, and declarer perforce won with dummy's king. It was obvious that he had to set up dummy's diamonds, so at trick two he led a diamond to the queen. The lady won the trick. Now the contract was lost. Declarer needed three more entries to establish and run the diamonds, but dummy had only two—the kings of hearts and clubs.

Declarer's problem was that he was not in a giving mood. Had he remembered that charity begins at home,

Early Christmas For Dean, Mac

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Dean Martin and Mac Davis are celebrating Christmas earlier than most with individual Yuletide specials for NBC-TV which go into production this month.

Martin's show, the first of a new three-year contract with the network, is scheduled for Dec. 13 and will feature Shirley Jones, Dom DeLuise, Charlie Callas and the Goldiggers.

Davis' Christmas TV celebration, Dec. 21, includes guest stars Kenny Rogers, Dolly Parton and Robert Urich.

he might have found the winning line.

Unless a defender had started with specifically a doubleton jack of diamonds, the queen of diamonds was nothing but a liability. Observe the difference of leading the king of diamonds from dummy at trick two, sacrificing the queen under it!

If East elects to hold up, declarer simply continues with the ten of diamonds, forcing East to win. Now declarer still has two entries to dummy, but East is left with only one diamond stopper.

Best defense is for East to revert to spades after winning his first diamond trick. However, declarer can secure his contract by following with the nine. West wins the jack, but he cannot profitably continue to attack spades. Regardless of which suit he shifts to, declarer wins in dummy, drives out East's remaining diamond honor, and the contract comes rolling home with an overtrick.

Eric Clapton On Extensive Tour

LONDON (AP) — British rock guitarist and songwriter Eric Clapton will play for fans in Communist Yugoslavia, Poland and Czechoslovakia as part of a world concert tour that will take him to 10 countries including Israel, Hong Kong and Japan before the end of this year.

Clapton, whose career began back in 1963, was voted British musician by readers of the Melody Maker music weekly when he, Jack Bruce and Ginger Baker made up the hit-making Cream group.

It will be Clapton's first appearance in Eastern Europe, as well as in Austria, Israel, Thailand, the Philippines and Hong Kong. He will also play in Germany, where he has previously performed.

By PETER J. BOYER

AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — This could be serious. NBC's cute young star, Gary Coleman, is mad at ABC's cute young star, Geraldo Rivera. And now the grownups on both sides are involved.

Coleman's grownups have filed a $1 million suit against ABC and "20-20," the news-magazine show for which prize-winning investigative reporter Rivera reports. The suit claims that Rivera unfairly used aggressive reportorial tactics to coerce young Coleman into doing an interview after Coleman's agents had denied permission for same.

According to reports from various sources, the dispute between Coleman, 11, and Rivera, 36, evolved this way:

Rivera, the prize-winning investigative reporter, is compiling a "20-20" segment on child stars. No such report, naturally, would be complete without a piece on Gary Coleman, The Kid Who Saved NBC. Coleman has the corner on the cute market, he makes a reported $30,000 a week for his "Diff'rent Strokes" work, and he is precocity itself in interviews.

Coleman's agents, however, said no. "How many times can an 11-year-old kid give the story of his life?" asks Vic Perillo, the youngster's agent.

Okay, said Rivera. We'll do the other kid on "Diff'rent Strokes," Todd Bridges. Rivera and his crew got permission to film young Bridges during the show's shooting at Metromedia in Hollywood. At this point, the story sort of goes in two directions, Coleman's and Rivera's.

According to one of Coleman's grownups — a lawyer —

Rivera "with an ABC cameraman and supporting staff barged into the dressing room of Gary Coleman during his lunchbreak... When Mr. Rivera forced his way into Gary Coleman's dressing room, only Gary and his mother were present."

"Confronted with the aggressiveness of Mr. Rivera and his insistence upon doing a filmed interview of Gary, they were overwhelmed."

Did not! claims Rivera. His wife Sheri, who is the field producer for the story in question, recounts the affair this way: Rivera, with permission, was at Metromedia filming young Bridges at work. Mrs. Rivera's wife was in Todd's dressing room talking to Todd's teacher. "I asked, 'Where's Todd?'" She told me that he was next door, in Gary's dressing room, playing with spaceships that he and Gary made."

Mrs. Rivera, thinking that would be a cute scene for Rivera's piece, asked Mrs. Coleman's permission to shoot it. An associate producer also asked permission, says Mrs. Rivera, as did Geraldo himself. To all three, Gary and Mrs.

Coleman said, "Sure," according to the Riveras.

Bach's Music In Yule Special

NEW YORK (UPI) — The music of Johann Sebastian Bach will be the subject of a Christmas season television special on the Public Broadcasting Service network.

The one-hour program, entitled "The Joy of Bach", will be served to network points on Dec. 23 under a grant from Honeywell Inc. The classical side of Bach will be presided by performers from five countries, including violinist Yehudi Menuhin and Rosalyn Tureck and the Berlin Chamber Orchestra, and the modern interpretation of Bach will be the psychedelic translation of a Bach fugue by organist Virgin Fox at the St. Paul Civic Center and at a disco in Brooklyn.

Critics Praise Polanski Movie

PARIS (AP) — Good news for fugitive filmmaker Roman Polanski.

His latest film, "Tess," dedicated to his slain wife Sharon Tate, opened to rave reviews in Paris and promises to be a box-office hit.

The 46-year-old, Polish-born director's latest movie is said to be faithful to the 1891 Thomas Hardy novel, "Tess of the d'Urbervilles," a gently told story of star-crossed love, youthful mistakes and miserable penance, and, above all, honor.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, NOV. 3, 1979

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are able to put in motion some new arrangement that means a good deal to you. You are able to get into a whole new set of details, circumstances under which to make a specific course of action a real success.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Finish making plans early that gain your finest aims. Be more practical where finances are concerned. Improve property.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Come to the right decisions with regard to future activities. Listen to a trusted adviser has to say. Be active and be happy.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Morning is best for dealing with matters concerning friends. Then consult with advisers later in the day. Be careful with money.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A good day to deal with money matters. Make social plans early so that they work out admirably later.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Make plans early by consulting with an expert adviser and backer. Follow your intuition for good results. Get into community work.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Keep any promises you have made to others and then get out to new and interesting activities. Show special thought to mate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Set aside some time for discussing policy matters with associates. Something occurs that will assist you in improving outside affairs.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You can polish off that work that has been hard to do before this. Make new arrangements with co-workers and associates.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get started on creative ideas early and get good results. Spend as much time as you can with loved ones and increase happiness.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study a new project from every potential and let it work to your complete satisfaction. Confer with an expert.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Turn casual friends into close friends and gain their goodwill. Get into a community affair that can be helpful and pleasurable.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) One in a position of power can help you a good deal, so don't hesitate to ask for favors. Think along more constructive lines.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have big ideas early in life and will want to learn, be a fine student and have ambitious plans which can be whittled down to a practical level. Teach early to go to the head person when asking for work, special favors for best results. Some musical talent here.

Kennedy Campaigns In W. Va.

STATE AWARDS — The Mental Health Association of Pitt County received awards at the annual meeting held in Winston-Salem. The Mental Health Association North Carolina presented the Operation Santa Claus Award (best Operation Santa Claus in the state) Radio Media Award (Listen WOOW) and the Silver Bell Award (overall excellence) to association members Marguerette Shelton, Howard Dawkins and Patsy Mills, left to right.

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, on the brink of announcing his own bid for the presidency, is visiting the state that delivered his crucial primary victory nearly two decades ago: West Virginia.

Kennedy's trip today to address a Jefferson-Jackson dinner in Charleston, the state capital, has been planned for several months. But the symbolism of the visit hasn't been lost on Kennedy organizers. It's the Massachusetts Democrat's first campaign-style trip since he formed a presidential campaign committee Monday and made his challenge official.

"Obviously, it's a special state for us," said Kennedy spokesman Tom Southwick.

William T. Brotherton, president of the West Virginia State Senate, expressed the same sentiment the other way around.

"The (Kennedy) name is magic in West Virginia," he said.

In fact, a poll conducted this week for the Charleston Daily Mail and Charleston station WCHS-TV showed Kennedy holding a commanding lead in popularity over President Carter among West Virginia voters.

The poll of registered Democrats showed 49.3 percent favoring Kennedy, 31.7 percent for Carter and the rest undecided.

It was John Kennedy's sweep of the West Virginia primary on a wet, drizzly May 10, 1960, that showed the rest of the nation he was a candidate to be reckoned with.

John Kennedy later credited it as being the most important boost his campaign received en route to winning the Democratic nomination and the presidency.

His decisive West Virginia victory knocked both Hubert Humphrey and the issue of religion out of the 1960 race.

Edward Kennedy was scheduled to be the featured speaker at the annual $25-a-plate fundraising dinner, an event expected to be attended by the state's top Democrats. The funds are to be used to help support the Democratic nominee in 1980.

Kennedy also plans to attend a rally Saturday morning in Buffalo, N.Y., before returning to Washington. He will formally announce his candidacy Wednesday in Boston and then embark on four days of campaigning around the country.

On Thursday, campaign manager Stephen Smith announced Kennedy had qualified for federal matching funds for his campaign.

To qualify for the federal money, presidential candidates must raise $5,000 in each of 20 states from individual donations of not more than $250. The money will be distributed starting Jan. 1 to qualified candidates.

Kennedy doesn't plan to mention his late brother's 1960 primary victory in tonight's speech, Southwick said.

"The things that made West Virginia important for President Kennedy aren't here any more," said one West Virginia Democratic official who didn't wish to be identified.

"In 1960, it was one of the nation's few primaries. Now, almost every state has a primary. West Virginia's isn't that important nowadays. And it's later now, not until June 3," he said.

Campus Police Dealing With A Unique Field

The job of policing the East Carolina University campus was discussed at the Pitt County Safety Council meeting yesterday by Joseph Calder, director of security at the university.

Calder described the job of policing a university campus as very different from that of the policemen most persons visualize. He said policies concerning the policing of the campus are set by the administration and enforcement efforts may vary from year to year.

He described the university as a unique organization consisting of many young adults who are from the top ten percent of their age groups intellectually. "This is probably why most students apprehended are guilty of perpetrating pranks, rather than outright criminal activity," Calder said. "It also makes the officer's job more difficult because he must decide whether the incident was a prank or not," he added.

Bloodmobile At School

The Bloodmobile had a "super visit" Thursday at North Pitt High School, according to Pitt blood chairman Ott Alford.

Alford reported that 133 pints of blood were collected during the visit and 27 persons were deferred for various health reasons.

The spokesman pointed out that the majority of the students and staff members giving blood yesterday were first time donors. He said that the Bloodmobile had not made a visit to North Pitt for several years.

Alford credited the work of North Pitt Principal Josh Potter and his staff for making the one-day visit a success. He also thanked the volunteer helpers for their assistance.

New Session Of Junior Crafts

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department will begin a new session of Junior Crafts on Monday, Nov. 5 and on Wednesday, Nov. 7. Classes are for children 7-9 years old and are held from 3:30 to 5 p.m. A $5 fee is charged for the seven week session, which includes material.

Classes for those 10-years old and older will be from 7 to 9 p.m. on Wednesdays, with a $7 fee for seven weeks.

Classes will be held at the Recreation and Parks Administrative Office on Cedar Lane. For information, call 752-4137, extension 263, or register on the first day of class if space is still available.

Sees Chance To Drop VEPCO

RALEIGH — "I believe that there is real hope that our cities will in the future be able to get their electric power from CP and L and will be in a position to drop VEPCO as their supplier," David R. Taylor, chairman of the N.C. Municipal Power Agency Number Two, said yesterday.

Taylor, manager of the Town of Tarboro, made the comment after announcing that the power agency is involved in a series of ongoing discussions with Carolina Power and Light Co. about providing a future power supply to the 16 municipal electric systems in Northeastern North Carolina that now buy power from Virginia Electric and Power Co.

Greenville, through the Greenville Utilities Commission, is one of the municipal members of the power agency. Other municipalities include Ayden, Winterville, Robersonville, Washington, Belhaven, Edenton, Elizabeth City, Enfield, Hamilton, Hertford, Hobbgood, Oak City, Scotland Neck, Windsor and Tarboro.

Taylor noted that the discussions with CP and L could lead to the future joint ownership of generation facilities by CP and L and Power Agency Two.

"I can assure you," Taylor emphasized, "that if an arrangement can be made whereby our member cities can switch from VEPCO to CP and L as their future power supplier, the savings would be substantial."

Taylor added that, "if a mutually satisfactory agreement can be reached, we are going to reach it, and you can believe we will tell the world about it just as soon as we can."

A Review Playhouse Scores Again With New Production

The East Carolina Playhouse has scored high again with its production of ntozake shange's play in choreopoem form, "For Colored Girls Who Have Considered Suicide When The Rainbow Is Enuf."

The play, the second this season for the Playhouse, opened Wednesday night at the Studio Theater on campus, and will be on stage nightly through Saturday, and again on Monday through Wednesday' November 7. Curtain time is 8:15 p.m.

An earthy, witty, often bawdy but warmly human probe into what it must be like, as expressed in one of the play's line — "to being alive, being a woman, and being colored," the play is given excellent interpretations by the seven women in the cast.

Character identification is indicated by the color of the dress worn by each player — thus, there's "The Lady in Brown," — in Yellow, Purple, Red, Green, Blue and Orange. Physically, the girls range from one who is Twiggy thin to a lovely young lady of goodly proportions.

The lives of these seven women are not ones nourished by material ease, family solidity, or other foundations for the so-called good life. Their fates, individually and collectively, mirror instead a segment of society which, in order to escape despair, must find its own gut philosophy in order to survive.

The major strength, and the appeal of this finely honed play rests on the playwright's sensitivity to a wide range of emotions expressed in passages that are sometimes tender and wistful, at other times sharp and bitter. Personally, I would have preferred more references to food, front porches, and the poetry of music, with less allusion to fervent sexuality. But it must be added that in the lifestyles of these women, the emphasis on sex seems rooted in the validity of reality as seen in the eyes of the playwright.

A refreshing viewpoint in "Colored Girls" is that the basic suffering, the dilemma of being a colored woman is fundamentally attributable not to whites, but to "colored man." This is pointedly limned in the group conversation on all the ways a man can say "I'm sorry." Exciting dialogue is the prime virtue of "Colored Girls," but there's an exuberant weaving in of full bodied music and dancing, especially the rousing song about sanctified music. The Lady in Green also contributes with an interpretive dance solo.

The young women in the cast of "Colored Girls," and the characters they portray, keyed to the color of their costumes, are: Charla L. Davis, brown; Penelope Alford, yellow; Debra Zumbach, purple; Deborah Arlena Hall, red; Renee DuLaney, green; Gloria Brewington, blue; and Crystal Barnes, orange.

Each actress, whether delivering a monologue or taking part in a group conversation, is attuned to the dynamic pulse of the dialogue, with the happy result the portrayals give substance to the emotions of the text.

Supporting vocalists are Pamela Henry, Melinda Richardson, Earlie M. Washington and Vernon Jones. Instrumentalists are Tony Joyner, conga drummer, and Tony Becton, percussionist.

Edgar R. Loessin directs, musical staging and choreography is by Alfred Gallman, Gregory Buch and David F. Downing are responsible for the effective scenery and lighting, musical director is Vernon Jones, and costume coordinator is Peggy Anton.

Chances are that "Colored Girls," like its predecessor, "The Streets of New York," will be a sell-out. Tickets are priced at $2.50 and can be reserved by calling 757-6390 from 10 to 4 daily.

Engineers Are Scarce Today In Swelling Aerospace Boom

By STEPHEN FOX
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — It used to be you could tell an aerospace engineer by the pink slip peeking out from behind the half-dozen pens in his shirt pocket. Now engineers are so scarce that defense firms are paying bounties to steal them from each other.

A simultaneous jump in defense and airliner business has Texas Instruments running ads in Los Angeles on the virtues of Dallas, Northrop offering $1,000 in cash for new workers and Boeing hiring overseas for the first time in a decade. The boom-or-bust aerospace business is booming again.

The Commerce Department's Bureau of Economic Analysis predicts that aerospace companies will sell $47 billion worth of missiles, planes and other defense equipment this year, a 20 percent jump over 1978. In addition, several companies are beginning new commercial airliner programs and the result is unprecedented demand for engineers and other skilled workers.

"When we're in sync with Douglas, Rockwell and Hughes, that's what causes the problems," says Dave Crowther, spokesman for Lockheed-California Co. "If it's not so that when we're hiring, Hughes is laying off, that's beautiful. But if the needs are the same across the board, there's just not enough people to meet the demand."

Lockheed has added 6,000 employees in the past year as it speeds up production of its L1011. Seattle-based Boeing has added 631 engineers to its permanent staff and 533 temporaries — almost a third of the temporary workers from either England or Canada, said Boeing spokesman Pete Bush.

Boeing has also "borrowed" engineers from some of its subcontractors, he said.

So far this year, Lockheed has paid out $45,500 in bounties for 91 new employees, and Northrop said it has paid out several hundred thousand dollars under its "Refer a Friend for a Career at Northrop" program.

But some managers don't like the bounty system.

"You can run into all sorts of sticky problems," says Rockwell International's Al Borwell.

But Wednesday night after a tearful farewell party, its ramshackle eatery, filling station and bait and tackle shop shut down forever.

Soon Andytown, 20 miles west of Fort Lauderdale, will be bulldozed to make way for an interchange for Interstate 75.

"There are so many memories, so many people. People come here to relax. It's an oasis in the middle of nowhere," said Gus Tsanos, who inherited the place from founder Andy Poulos.

Andytown was so remote that until a few years ago the only way to telephone the bar was to call a mobile radio operator and ask for "Andytown One."

According to local legend, Poulos, a Greek immigrant, bought the land in 1947 for $50,000 after he stopped at a diner and found flies in his milk. He left, only to come back the next day to build an outpost for family, friends and passersby.

"Andytown will be so large," he predicted, "that Miami will be its suburb."

But it was never really an incorporated town and never had more than 11 residents. Its last family moved out seven years ago. Its last resident, who lived in a tent, left several months ago.

SUNDAY SERVICES

Services convene at Corey's Chapel FWB Church Sunday at 11 a.m. The pastor, Rev. J. B. Taylor, invites the public to attend.

Miss Myerson writes a consumer affairs column for the Daily News.

She is divorced and the mother of a daughter.

"You wind up with internal squabbles over who really referred the new employee, and you also have the situation of people aggressively trying to attract one another's employees."

The personnel shortage has been exacerbated by the many engineers who left the industry for good during earlier slumps and by the declining number of college students in engineering, industry spokesmen say.

ATLANTA (AP) — Southeastern industrial developers captured record amounts of plant investment in 1979, but they wonder if the good times will last.

Development experts say the current boom-time rate of investment in the Sunbelt — several Southeastern states will record billion-dollar investments this year — cannot last. Nevertheless, they believe the South should fare better than the rest of the nation in a slowdown.

Fear A Drop In Big Investments

Capital investment for plants in Florida should reach $1 billion this year, "if the wheels don't fall off," Williamson said.

Foreign investment also will beef up industrial development in the 1980s, said Jim Horne, industrial manager for the Georgia Chamber of Commerce.

"The foreign projects we have been involved with seem to be moving ahead faster than our domestic firms," said Horne.

North Carolina landed a record $2.2 billion in new plants in 1979, said Larry Conick, executive director of the state's Economic Development Division.

Alabama also expects more than a billion dollars in industrial development for 1979, Industrial Development Director Ben Collier said.

And Hugh Zimmer, president of the Society of Professional Realtors, said, "There is no question the Sunbelt is for real. Florida, Southern California, Phoenix, Houston, Atlanta and Dallas — that's where the action is."

been so severe up North that companies there that are not transportation-intensive and can move are looking" for new sites, Williamson said.

Andytown Is Shut Down

ANDYTOWN, Fla. (AP) — For 32 years, Andytown was a tiny but well-loved outpost near Alligator Alley where truckers, hunters and fishermen could get a fillup, a burger, a beer or a pint of something stronger to take into the Everglades.

But Wednesday night after a tearful farewell party, its ramshackle eatery, filling station and bait and tackle shop shut down forever.

Soon Andytown, 20 miles west of Fort Lauderdale, will be bulldozed to make way for an interchange for Interstate 75.

Meyerson Is Planning Bid

NEW YORK (AP) — New York City Consumer Affairs Commissioner and Miss America 1945, has told friends she will run for the U.S. Senate from New York State in 1980, the Daily News reported in today's editions.

The News quoted Rep. James Scheuer, D-Brooklyn-Queens, as saying Miss Myerson will announce her candidacy soon after the first of the year, but meanwhile she is lining up support from state and city politicians whom she has endorsed and aided in the past.

Scheuer said Miss Myerson "said unequivocally she was running and that she would win," according to the News.

Scheuer reportedly also told the newspaper that he has been helping Miss Myerson by introducing her to Brooklyn congressmen and party officials.

Sen. Daniel Moynihan, D-N.Y., reportedly has helped Miss Myerson by accompanying her on a trip upstate to meet party officials in Utica, Niagara Falls, and Buffalo.

Christopher Crittenden Gave Of Self To North Carolina History

JR LIGHT OF HISTORY
 By DR. H.G. JONES
Written for The AP

By Dr. H.G. Jones
For The Associated Press
 CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) - Nobody ever contributed more to the promotion of North Carolina history than Christopher Crittenden.

Here is this author's first "In Light of History" story that was distributed by The Associated Press 10 years ago:

When Dr. Christopher Crittenden died on Oct. 13, 1969, he became, in the words of Gov. Bob Scott, "a part of the history he loved so much."

Eulogies were easy to prepare, for Crittenden who for a third of a century was the state's foremost spokesman for history. The struggling North Carolina Historical Commission, of which he became head in 1935, grew into the distinguished state Department of Archives and History, recognized as one of the three outstanding state historical agencies in the nation.

Between 1935 and 1969, as secretary-treasurer of the N.C. Literary and Historical Association, Crittenden handled arrangements for every one of the annual "Culture Week" programs that drew Tar Heels interested in the preservation of their history and heritage.

He wrote many books and articles, gave hundreds of talks and served as a founder and president of two great national organizations - the Society of American Archivists and the American Association for State and Local History.

For more than six years, Crittenden wrote "In Light of History" for the AP.

While others will remember his contributions to his state and nation as a historian and administrator, members of his staff will hold on to memories of his humanity.

In daily life, Crittenden was the bald, every-smiling beanpole of a man with the extended hand and a friendly "I'm Chris Crittenden" greeting.

Never a stuffed-shirt scholar, he delighted in acts of kindness as well as in practical jokes. While he visited other departments, he carried along candy bars for the secretaries. He kept his calendar filled with birthdays. He seldom started a conversation without telling a joke, often of his own creation.

Staff members soon learned to be suspicious of him on April Fool's Day.

One could usually spot Crittenden on the highway by picking out the oldest car in sight. He had great fun with his rattletraps, offering rides to everybody from the governor to the janitor. His spirit of exploration on back roads was legendary. If there was a back way to his destination, he would take it.

To the chuckles of his staff, he sometimes became lost, though he would always insist that he knew exactly where he was because "Mr. So-and-so lives down yonder on the creek."

Crittenden formed, along with some of his out-of-state friends the "Old Goats Club" and proudly wore a dog emblem on his lapel.

When the state finally bought a new chair for the governor in 1965, Crittenden rushed out and salvaged the old one, which after being used by four governors tilted threateningly to the left.

He put it behind the huge Virginia Dare desk that was made for the Columbus Exposition in Chicago in 1893, and he took delight in telling visitors that he had "assumed the governor's chair."

Crittenden retained his wonderful sense of humor to the end. Though he kept it from his staff, he knew that he health was not good.

On Aug. 25, 1969, he sat down at his ancient typewriter in the office and typed out a one-page statement titled "Suggestions for My Funeral and Related Matters."

After he had finished, he placed the original paper in the desk drawer. Less than three weeks later, he entered the hospital never to return.

Following his death his staff took out the paper. The first instruction was that his body be given to the Anatomy Department at Duke University.

Then, undoubtedly with an audible chuckle, he had written, "Kindly have the doctor double check to make absolutely certain that I am dead."

Just before his signature, he had written, "Good luck to everybody."

With heart transplant surgery the person has to be in such bad shape he can't get across the room," he said. "My heart is working at 25 percent capacity."

He said his friends shouldn't be disappointed because "if people didn't do what they did I wouldn't be here now."

The announcement Thursday from Bill Snyder, information officer at Stanford Medical Center, said "doctors determined that he does not meet the criteria at this time of receiving a heart transplant."

At a special town meeting Oct. 10, Framingham citizens voted 104 to 13 to appropriate $60,000 from city reserves for the transplant. Kelley's insurance policy did not cover the operation.

Kelley, 39, suffered two heart attacks in 15 months and doctors at Massachusetts General Hospital told him he had six months to a year to live unless he had a successful heart transplant.

Transplant Is Turned Down

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) - Fireman Fred Kelley, who came here in search of a new heart with funds voted him by his hometown, says he isn't all that disappointed at being rejected for immediate transplant surgery because his bad heart isn't bad enough.

"That's the way it goes," he said in an interview Thursday. "Well, I think in a way it's kind of good. With this drug they're going to give me I could live another year...but that time I would probably have to go into transplant - with a transplant I could have another five years."

Kelley said the drug is nitroglycerine, a muscle relaxant associated with treatment of the heart disease angina pectoris.

"With heart transplant surgery the person has to be in such bad shape he can't get across the room," he said. "My heart is working at 25 percent capacity."

He said his friends shouldn't be disappointed because "if people didn't do what they did I wouldn't be here now."

2,500 Free Calendars

WASHINGTON (AP) - Each House member will have 2,500 "free" congressional wall calendars to distribute as gifts this Christmas - despite a House vote to curb the million-dollar-a-year practice.

"I think it's a ridiculous waste of the taxpayers' money," said Rep. Peter H. Kostmayer, D-Pa., author of legislation he thought had stopped the calendar tradition.

But Kostmayer was outmaneuvered. So, just as if his amendment had never been adopted last year, the calendar presses are again rolling at full speed.

Basement corridors in House office buildings soon will be jammed with cardboard cartons full of the calendars - as they have been yearly with the approach of Christmas.

House leaders say they see nothing wrong with the custom and think most members want to keep getting the calendars. The handsomely printed calendars, with a congressman's name stamped conspicuously across the bottom, are usually sent to friends and favored constituents.

House members were sent forms this week asking how they wanted their 2,500-calendar allotment: two-year ones with pictures of the Capitol, one-year "Historical Calendars" with lavish color photos for each month, or a mix.

According to figures compiled by the house clerk's office, it costs about $1 apiece to print, package and mail the calendars - or just over $1 million for the 435-member House.

Storing Their Nuclear Waste

SOUTHPORT, N.C. (AP) - The problem of how to dispose of nuclear wastes - both high level and low level - is getting increasingly difficult for Carolina Power and Light Co.

The recently announced restrictions at a disposal site in Barnwell, S.C., and the closing of the only other two such sites in the country haven't helped the situation, officials say.

CP&L's Brunswick plant manager Ed Tollison said he was not sure "what the effect will be. But all the low-level wastes we produce go there. I expect it will have some impact on us."

"This also will be a problem with our other nuclear plant, the Robinson plant in South Carolina," Tollison said.

As a result, the Brunswick plant had been trying to minimize the volume of low-level wastes by "compacting it as much as we can here," he said.

Low-level wastes at the Brunswick plant primarily consist of paper aprons and similar materials used to protect workers' clothing from contamination. Tollison said, Officials are counting on early completion of waste storage space at the Shearon Harris Nuclear Power Plant near Raleigh to ease the problem of high-level waste storage and disposal.

High-level wastes are products of spent bundles that have been removed from a reactor, he said.

The Brunswick plant has refueled three times, leaving the plant with 390 fuel bundles weighing about 800 pounds each that need to be disposed of. The plant also is holding some high-level wastes from the Robinson plant.

Since there is no disposal site in the United States for high-level wastes, they are stored in temporary sites at plants.

"We should have enough storage here to last us into the '80s," he said. "And one of the first things we hope to complete at our Harris plant near Raleigh is storage, so we won't have to keep it here anymore."

The wastes stored in Brunswick should pose no hazard to residents in the area until that time, he said.

Disciplinary Action Set

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - Insurance Commissioner John Ingram said Thursday that the main insurer of Smith-Douglass Co. will have disciplinary action taken against it because of the way it handled claims by farmers whose tobacco was damaged by a herbicide-contaminated fertilizer the company sold.

Affiliated Factory Mutual Insurance Co. is the main insurer for Smith-Douglass.

Ingram also said Smith-Douglass Co.'s secondary insurer, Lloyds of London, had agreed to reopen all claims that had been filed.

Insurance Department hearings were held last month after farmers whose crops were damaged complained about the settlements and the methods used by the Affiliated FM and its agents.

Ingram can either revoke or suspend Affiliated's license to operate in the state. He said Thursday that he doesn't know which he will do yet.

Lloyds took over settlement of the claims after Affiliated reached its $10-million liability limit.

Surgery or Drugs for 'Silent' Gallstones?

My doctor suspected that I might have a hiatus hernia. X-ray examination did not show it. He did find, however, that I had some gallstones which never gave me any problem. He doesn't think I need an operation, but I worry about the stones. Wouldn't it be smarter if I had the operation and got it over with? - Mr. J.Y., Pa.

Dear Mr. Y.:

The problem of "silent" gallstones has occupied the attention of doctors for many years. Many people like yourself have been found to have stones in the gallbladder which caused no symptoms of any kind.

There was a time when these gallstones were removed routinely in order to be sure that complications did not occur. This attitude has been abandoned, especially in those patients who are under the constant supervision of their doctors.

Sometimes, the anxiety level of patients is so great that they insist on surgery, even though their doctor would prefer to treat the patient conservatively.

At the present time, there is great interest in the drug, cheno-deoxy-cholic acid, which has been proven successful in dissolving small "silent" stones. Many new studies are ongoing to compare the value of the drug with the possibility of surgical intervention.

Many doctors will follow patients with "silent" stones for three or four years. If the patient remains free of symptoms after such a period, the chances are slight that any serious complications will arise.

For the past year I have had excruciating pain between the toes on my left foot. I think

Art Scholars Tell Discovery Of Lost Mural

By NAOMI KAUFMAN
Associated Press Writer
DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Art scholars have known for four centuries that Leonardo da Vinci painted a huge mural on the inside wall of the Palazzo Vecchio in Florence, Italy.

But they had no idea what had become of it until recently. Several years ago, Travers Newton of Harvard's Fogg Museum and John Spencer, chairman of the Duke University Art Department, set to find out.

The result was the announcement Thursday at Duke that the long-lost masterpiece, "Battle of Anghiari," has been located — but not where most people had been looking.

Spencer and Newton told a tale of art detective work coupled with frustration and exasperation that finally led to the discovery of the mural.

which portrays a battle. Newton said he and his team had been working on one wall of the Palazzo for half the night when they decided to switch to the opposite wall.

"It was an act of desperation, if anything," Newton said. Added Spencer: "The data was in direct contradiction" to the actual location of the mural, one of only two Leonardo murals known to have survived.

The other is "The Last Supper," painted in 1497, eight years before the battle mural was started. The mystery resulted because in 1563, the painter Giorgi Vasari covered over the mural with a fresco of his own. And many scholars thought the original work had been destroyed earlier.

Although Spencer and Newton

still don't know what condition the Leonardo is in, based on paint samples they have taken they say they are confident much of it is intact.

Getting to the masterpiece involves even more detective work.

Newton used ultra-sound and infra-red techniques to discover the mural underneath the Vasari fresco.

Now, workers must remove the Vasari to expose the Leonardo.

Italian craftsmen, whom Spencer described as "exceedingly skilled," will cover the Vasari with layers of glue and canvas. When it is dry, the glue and canvas will be removed and with it will come the Vasari.

Under it, the scholars hope, will be the intact Leonardo.

Spencer said no one knows why Vasari, an admirer and biographer of Leonardo, might have covered up the work. Some, he said "say the painting was damaged. That may have been reason enough."

Two other reasons have been advanced. Vasari may have known Leonardo was dissatisfied with the work. And the Leonardo battlescene depicts a military victory by the Florentine Republic. A few years later the Medici returned to power, and said Spencer, the battle heroics of the Florentines may have been embarrassing.

Spencer said he had no words to describe how it felt to confirm the Leonardo was located at last. "It's like finding something you've known about all your life, but you've never been able to see," he said.

Spencer, 56, and Newton, 30, said copies of a portion of the mural show a swirling mass of men and animals moving together. The style is described as High Renaissance, but with Baroque elements.

Rubens and Raphael copied it. Much later Delacroix borrowed from it.

Spencer described the mural as one of the artist's most significant works. "To him and to his fellow citizens, it was considered his most important work."

Newton said one of the last known references to the mural in 1549 describes it as "a miraculous thing."

Says Carter Must Do More In Defense Field

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Sam Nunn, a Georgia Democrat, says President Carter is going to have to do more for defense if he wants his support for the SALT II treaty.

Nunn says the administration should make "a clear and unambiguous commitment to request and fully support defense budgets for fiscal 1981 through fiscal 1985 which allow real growth in defense budget authority on the order of 5 percent annually or more."

In a speech prepared for delivery in the Senate today, Nunn also called for "a commitment together with a public explanation of the need to make real increases each year in defense purchasing power for as long as the Soviets continue their substantial military buildup."

Nunn said Carter must convince him that the president will "alert the nation and the world to what has transpired in the global military arena for the past 15 years" because of a failure to match Soviet military expansion.

Nunn says the administration commitment to a 3 percent real growth in defense spending is insufficient.

Nunn also called for "A firm commitment to a process of getting more military strength from the defense dollar by setting a limit on the proportion of manpower costs in the defense budget."

He said manpower costs have risen from 48 percent of the defense budget in 1964 to about 60 percent at present.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee, meanwhile, approved by a 13-0 vote Thursday a resolution offered by Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., urging the president to negotiate in SALT III for "significant and substantial reductions" in nuclear arms through year-by-year percentage reductions.

McGovern said his vote for the treaty rests on whether or not the resolution is adopted by the full Senate.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the committee, said the committee could complete work on the treaty by next Tuesday, which could put it on the Senate calendar by Nov. 15.

New Millionaire Has A Problem

DETROIT (AP) — Joseph Frolich has not decided how he's going to spend his million dollars, but a lot of other people already are trying to give him some ideas.

"I didn't have an idea of winning when I came in here," Frolich, 74, said after his name was drawn for the grand prize in the "Michigan 1,000" lottery drawing Thursday.

"I'm not planning on anything right now, but I've had a lot of people here telling me they could sure use some of it," he said. "I've got a wife and two lovely children and four grandchildren. We'll do something with it — I won't have any problem on that end."

Frolich was one of 10 people selected Oct. 18 in Lansing during an elimination drawing for the big lottery. While the top prize was $1,000 a week for life, Frolich is guaranteed a minimum of $1 million.

"I'm kind of shaky yet," the instant millionaire said.

Woes Beset His Pageant

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — Promoter Carl Alkerton says he may have to find out from a hospital bed how his Queen of America's nude beauty pageant came off.

"All this strain is going to have me in a hospital yet, I hope," he said.

First, the hotel where the pageant is to be held Saturday tried unsuccessfully to back out of the deal.

Then, on Thursday, Alkerton was denied a court injunction that sought to prohibit the city from enforcing a city ordinance banning public nudity.

Now, the Hollywood Police Department says it will enforce the ordinance — even if it means arresting the contestants.

Hollywood Police Chief Sam Martin says he'll wait until the pageant begins at 9 p.m., take a peek, then proceed accordingly.

"It all depends on their attitudes," Martin said when asked if he'll arrest the participants. "I would hope for people to cooperate and I would prefer to just issue citations — if I have to do anything at all."

Misnamed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The General Accounting Office has determined that the U. S. Customs Service has improperly classified "scrap" tobacco, letting importers pay far less duty than they should, according to a congressional source.

A GAO report on the scrap tobacco issue, one of major concern to the tobacco industry, probably will be issued Wednesday, according to the source, a congressional aide.

In a memo to a member of Congress, the aide said the GAO report would be unusual in that it would contain no recommendations for correcting the scrap tobacco problem.

GAO reports usually contain findings, conclusions and recommendations.

Farm leaders from the major flue-cured tobacco states, including North Carolina, have sought a ruling from the Customs Service redefining scrap tobacco to assure that high-quality leaf cannot be imposed as scrap.

John W. Sledge, president of the North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation, has filed a formal petition with the Customs Service asking for the redefinition.

Domestic tobacco growers contend that foreign nations have been able to import quality tobacco under the scrap definition, paying 16.1 cents per pound duty rather than 45 cents per pound.
