Hearings Begin Today For 14 Held In Greensboro Violence

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — While the FBI looked for possible civil rights violations, court hearings began today for 14 men charged in the deaths of four persons gunned down Saturday at an anti-Ku Klux Klan rally.

The first two suspects to appear before District Court Judge Robert Cecil were Rayford Milano Caudle and Michael Eugene Clinton, both of Winston-Salem.

Wearing jail-issued jumpsuits and sandals, the two asked Cecil for court-appointed attorneys. The judge said lawyers from the Guilford County Public Defenders office would be named to represent them.

Caudle and Clinton were arrested Sunday on charges of conspiracy to commit murder.

Twelve other men who were arrested immediately following the ambush at the "Death to the Klan" rally were charged with first-degree murder and conspiracy to commit murder.

After requesting an attorney, Caudle, visibly trembling, asked the judge, "Can I say something, your honor?"

"Yes," said Cecil.,

"God save America and this honorable court," Caudle said.

Cecil told them provisions for bond would be discussed later.

In the meantime, the mayor of Greensboro promised an internal inquiry on how the police handled the violence that ended with three white men and a black woman dead and 10 other persons wounded. But civil rights groups have demanded an outside investigation of police actions.

Shooting errupted Saturday morning as about 100 persons gathered in a predominantly black public housing project for a march to protest Klan activity, with a rally scheduled for later in the afternoon as part of a "Death to the Klan" demonstration organized by the leftist Workers Viewpoint Organization.

When the barrage of bullets and shotgun pellets ended minutes later, three white men and a black woman, all affiliated with the anti-Klan protesters, lay dead. Another 10 persons were wounded, and three of those remained hospitalized early today.

Greensboro police arrested 12 white men near the scene of the shooting, and police said several of the suspects described themselves as Klansmen.

Despite the racial overtones of the incident, police said there were no reports of other weekend violence in connection with the killings. There was no curfew but, in the wake of reports that the leftist group was planning another anti-Klan rally for next weekend, city officials announced a suspension of parade permits.

Organizers of the rally had taunted Klansmen by calling them "two-bit cowards" and challenged them to appear at the rally Saturday to "face the wrath of the people."

In the aftermath of the shootings, rally organizers lashed out at Greensboro police with charges that they did nothing to prevent the violence.

Greensboro Police Chief William Swing conceded that police knew in advance of the shootings that suspicious vechicles were heading toward the crowd, and he said at the time of the shooting the nearest officers were a block away.

The entire bloodbath occurred in front of several television cameras and reporters. Video tapes of the shootings showed men taking guns from the trunk of a white car and almost nonchalantly opening fire on the crowd.

No police officers were visible on the films, but Swing contended his men did all they could to handle the situation.

Rally organizer Nelson Johnson of Greensboro, who was wounded and subsequently charged by police with inciting to riot, disagreed.

"We did not believe the police would protect us, and they did not," Johnson said Sunday.

"It was an execution. They were selective in who they shot — members of the organization," he said.

But Johnson conceded that his group told police last week "not to obstruct us and to stay out of our way."

Police said some of the 12 suspects had declared they were members of the Ku Klux Klan, but local Klan leaders denied their Klan factions had anything to do with the shooting.

"It was not the Ku Klux Klan over there. It was the damned Nazis," said Joe Grady, a Klan leader who lives in nearby Winston-Salem.

Police would not confirm that any of the suspects were members of American Nazi groups but one suspect, Roland Wayne Wood of Winston-Salem, has proclaimed his affiliation with the Nazis in the past.

Harold Covington of Raleigh, state head of the National Socialist Party of America (Nazis) identified Wood as the leader of a Nazi group in the Winston-Salem area. Covington said while his Nazi organization did not plan the confrontation between white-rights advocates and leftists, he knew several Nazis and Klansmen were there.

"These were men who wanted to state a peaceful protest to the fact that communists are marching in the streets in America," said Covington. He labeled the shootings "a clear act of self defense."

"I regret the fact that 12 good men are in prison facing murder charges," said Covington, who said he was not at the shooting.

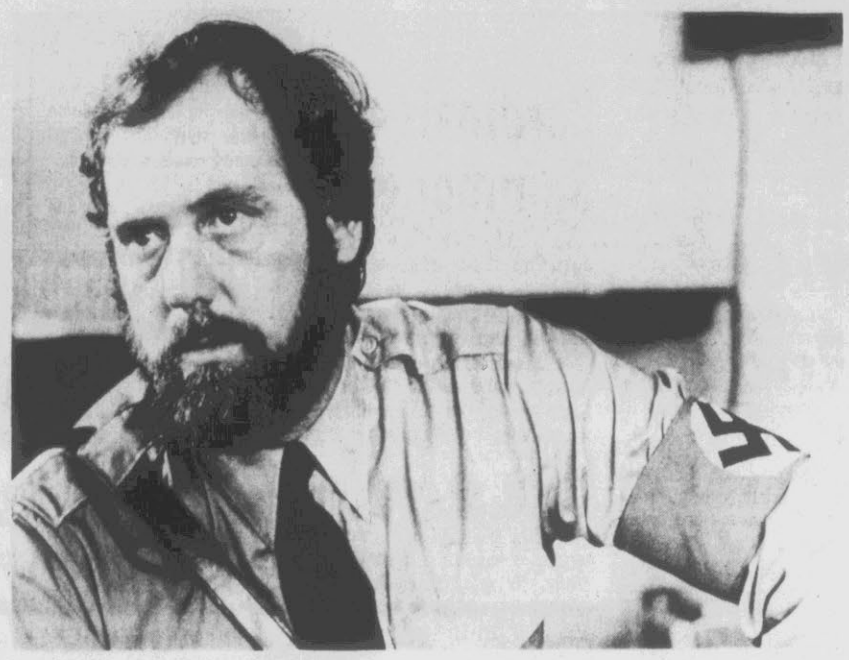

"As for the Reds, they are the scum of the earth and I don't care about them."

The dead were identified as Sandy Smith of Piedmont, S.C., a black woman, and Jim Waller, William Sampson and Caesar Cauce, all white Greensboro residens.

Paul Carl Bermanzohn, 30, a leader of the Workers Viewpoint Organization, remained in critical condition early today after undergoing surgery Saturday for severe head wounds.

The gunmen cruised into the area of the growing crowd of both black and white anti-Klan demonstrators in at least three vehicles, according to witnesses and police.

News films of the scene show men in the vehicles and persons on the street yelling obscenities at each other, and persons in the crowd are seen beating on the vehicles with wooden clubs.

Court Annex Furnishings Authorized

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Commissioners this morning authorized the county manager to proceed with the steps necessary to purchase furnishings for the third floor of the court house annex which will be occupied by court officials when the Board of Education offices move to the new county office building on West Fifth Street.

The authorization came after Jimmy Cheatham and M. E. Cavensish reported that the Bar Association committee and Chief Superior Court Judge Robert Rouse concur in plans to renovate the third floor to include offices for the district attorney, a civil Superior Court room, judge's chambers, jury room and conference and hearing room.

The renovation will occur after the Board of Education and other county offices move from the Court House to the old hospital building, when renovation of that structure is completed.

In other business today, commissioners voted to re-advertise for bids for a new radio for Pitt Memorial Hospital's emergency room because only two bids were received today; postponed action on approving bids for a bed tower at the hospital, pending final approval by the state (which is funding the project as part of the East Carolina University medical school program); and approved, subject to executive committee action, a request to amend several items in the Greenville Board of Education budget.

Commissioners appropriated $2,000 for the Pitt County Development Commission to be used for the promotion of tobacco in connection with the Tobacco Festival, scheduled to be held November 7-17, and amended the Sedimentation Control Ordinance to allow the use of certified mail for making formal notification of action as required under the ordinance, rather than the presently required registered mail, which is twice as costly.

Pitt Memorial Hospital director Jack Richardson told commissioners that moves are now under way to secure necessary state approval of a plan to lease 20 rooms at the Holiday Inn for housing ambulatory patients when rooms are not available in the hospital.

Cost of the rooms would be two-thirds that of a regular hospital room and transportation to and from the motel would be provided by the hospital, Richardson noted.

He said occupancy at the medical facility during October was averaged 91.1 percent, meaning that on many days, there were no rooms available.

Plans House Race

Joe Hollowell, a farmer and real estate agent from Edenton, reported that he will be announcing his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Congress from the First District on Nov. 12, 13, 14 and 15.

Hollowell said that he will make his candidacy announcements from the courthouse steps in each of the 21 counties of the First Congressional District.

JOE HOLLOWELL

Hollowell, who will seek the congressional seat now held by U.S. Rep. Walter B. Jones of Farmville, will formally announce his candidacy in Pitt County on Nov. 12 at 9:30 a.m.

The candidate, past state president of the North Carolina Jaycees, is married and has three children.

Iran Holding 50 Hostages

By The Associated Press

Urged on by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, Iranian protesters seized two U.S. consulates, an American cultural center and the British Embassy in Tehran today, and continued to hold the U.S. Embassy and more than 50 hostages, it was reported.

Khomeini called on the student militants to act against "the great Satan, America," in order to force it to extradite the deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, hospitalized in New York for cancer treatment, back to Iran for trial, Radio Tehran reported.

The Moslem clergyman and revolutionary leader also demanded that Britain hand over former Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar, now living in exile in Britain.

Radio Tehran said the students who seized the U.S. Embassy Sunday added a new demand today — a break in relations with the United States.

The Iranian oil minister, meanwhile, raised the possibility of cutting off Iranian oil exports to the United States — 900,000 barrels a day that amount to 5 percent of all U.S. oil.

In a Radio Tehran interview, the oil minister, Ali Akbar Moinfar, said the decision was up to Khomeini.

The British Foreign Office announced that its embassy in Tehran was seized today. Further details were not immediately available.

The official Tehran Radio, monitored in London, said student protesters also took over the U.S. consulates in Tabriz, in northwest Iran, and in the southern city of Shiraz. There was no word on the fate of the consular staffs.

Tehran Radio said Khomeini's son, Ahmad, traveled to Tehran to meet with the students occupying the U.S. embassy.

Some Iranian government officials said they hoped the younger Khomeini could obtain the release of the hostages, seized when 200 or 300 students overpowered Marine guards and took over the embassy Sunday.

Officers Named By Farm Bureau

Other elected officials were James N. Galloway, first vice president; Ben A. Gardner Jr., second vice president; Mrs. Mamie Smith, secretary-treasurer; and Mrs. Lois Briley, chairman of the Women's Committee.

ATLAS WOOTEN

In other business, the following county members were named to attend the annual North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation meeting Dec. 2-5 in Charlotte: Atlas Wooten, Wilbur Worthington, David H. Smith Jr., Eugene James, Gene Paramore, Pierce Sumrell, Ruel Dilda, Wayne K. Stokes, Kirby Bell, James R. Smith, Cecil Boyd, James N. Galloway, Ben Alton Gardner, Lindsey Briley, Bruce Garris, Earl Sermons, Grimes Lewis and W. A. Allen.

Mrs. Wilbur Worthington, Mrs. David H. Smith, Mrs. Patsy Galloway, Mrs. Lindsey Briley and Mrs. Loucille Dilda were named alternates to the meeting. Delegates to the national organization meeting will be elected at the Charlotte event.

TERRORISM TRIAL

MADRID, Spain (AP) — The government will put seven Basque guerrillas on trial on charges of terrorism in Pamplona on Nov. 26, friends of the men report.

Charge Man In Sunday Killing

Ben E. Carr, 49 of 403A Dudley St. was charged with first degree murder in connection with the shooting death here yesterday afternoon of Michael London Wilson, 58 of 1703 West Third St.

Chief Glenn Cannon said police arrested Carr after Wilson died in Pitt Memorial Hospital shortly after the 1:55 p.m. incident at 305B Dudley St.

The chief said Carr allegedly shot Wilson one time in the stomach with a .12 guage shotgun from about 30 feet away in the front yard of the Dudley Street residence, where Wilson had been visiting.

Carr was jailed without bond pending a first appearance hearing scheduled for District Court this morning.

Tried Escape

PETROS, Tenn. (AP) — James Earl Ray, serving a life sentence for assassinating Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., tried unsuccessfully to escape from Brushy Mountain Prison early today, prison officials said.

Ray, serving 99 years for the 1968 assassination plus a year for an escape in 1977, was recaptured inside the prison grounds but outside the fortress-like building in the rugged East Tennssee mountains.

Prison Sgt. Ray Tucker said inmate Donald Eugene Wolverton accompanied Ray in the attempt but was also recaptured. Tucker said a guard fired one warning shot but that no one was hit.

Ray, who pleaded guilty to the killing but has since declared his innocence, escaped with several other inmates from the prison in June 1977 but was recaptured after a few days.

Fish-Stocking Service Involves A Long Road

By REBECCA BUFFALOE
Reflector Staff Writer

Clyde Williams of Edenton had a long drive ahead of him Thursday, and an even longer one behind him. The U. S. Fish and Wildlife Services employee had traveled to Goldsboro, Snow Hill, and Kinston on his way to deliver fry (newly hatched fish) to area pond owners.

For 22 years, Clyde Williams has delivered fish to pond owners, and he has watched the number of requests for bluegills, redear sunfish, catfish, bass and stripers decline.

"A lot of farmers have irrigation systems now, so they don't have ponds like they used to," said Williams, as he scooped a cup of the tiny fish into a plastic bucket.

Applications for fish are handled through local Soil Conservation Service field offices. The closing date for requests for catfish only or catfish in combination with bass and bluegill is July 1, with other requests having an August 31 deadline.

According to Williams, bluegill, redear sunfish and catfish are stocked in the fall and winter months. Large mouth bass are stocked the following spring.

Stocking rates for North Carolina ponds are 500 sunfish and bluegill, plus 50 bass fingerlings per surface acre of unfertilized pond. Catfish are stocked at a rate of 50 per acre in combination with bass-bluegill or 100 when stocked alone. Restocking of catfish only can be made every two years, according to Tim Garrett, local SCS conservationist.

Garrett pointed out that a pond must be non-commercialized and be at least one-fourth acre in size to receive the free service.

For more information on the fish stocking program, interested persons should call the Pitt County SCS office, 752-2720.

Mystery Is Art To One

NEW YORK (AP) — Residents of a Park Avenue block are asking two questions about three sculptures: How'd they get there and what are they?

The odd-shaped, shiny black sculptures — "Kryeti-Aekyed No. 2," "Eaphae-Aekyed No. 2" and "Aezae-Aekyed No. 2." — are made of hollow steel and stand as much as 10 feet high and 15 feet long.

The three appeared on the median strip of the well-kept avenue on Sunday morning, raising eyebrows as to their source and purpose.

City Parks Commissioner Gordon Davis had one of the answers. He said the figures by Boston sculptor Douglas Abdell were brought in under cover of darkness so traffic would not be disrupted and to get spontaneous neighborhood reaction.

As might be expected, some approved, others reserved judgement and some put thumbs down.

"Just what do they represent?" one woman asked. "I'm afraid I have no appreciation for this type of thing."

Sorority Held Meeting Here

The Greenville Alumnae chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy James Saturday, with Sorors Betty James, Vivian D. Selby and Brenda Teel as hostesses.

Soror Paulette Dove, advisor to the Undergraduate chapter at ECU, Kappa Sigma, reported that the fashion show was successful.

Soror Brenda Teel reported that a Thanksgiving basket will be given to a needy person Nov. 17, and gifts for Operation Sunshine members shared.

It was reported that Soror Deborah Hall is participating in the ECU Playhouse choreopoem, "For Colored girls Who Have Considered Suicide When the Rainbow Is Enuf."

Hostesses for the next meeting will be Sorors Kathy Kea, Lillian Jones and Lucille Sayles, it was announced.

Meeting in Rome

An unusual meeting of Roman Catholic cardinals is scheduled to begin today in Rome, at the request of Pope John Paul II. The cardinals normally come together only to elect a new pope after a pope has died, or when a reigning pope decides to appoint new cardinals. At this week's meeting, the cardinals are expected to discuss church finances, and perhaps hear a report on the Polish-born pontiff's travels during his first year in office. For hundreds of years, the maximum number of cardinals was set at 70. But recent popes have abandoned that tradition and named more. 130 cardinals are expected to attend this week's meeting in Rome.

DO YOU KNOW — What cardinal, pictured here with Pope John Paul, is the archbishop of Chicago?

Ten Traffic Deaths In N.C. During Weekend

By The Associated Press

Ten traffic deaths this weekend have pushed North Carolina's highway toll to 1,254, 19 above the number recorded on Tar Heel streets and roads at this time in 1978.

The Highway Patrol said Kenny Reese Cooper, 16, and Keith Ray Cooper, also 16, both of Burnsville, died Sunday night when the car driven by Kenny Cooper ran off U.S. 19 12 miles west of Burnsville in Yancey County. The car then returned to the road, hit an embankment and landed in a river.

Michael Peter Nolan, 18, of Concord was killed Saturday when the vehicle in which he was riding ran off U.S. 29 four miles south of Concord and hit a bridge.

Michael Kelly Heavner, 18, of Lincolnton was killed when his car ran off N.C. 150 five miles east of Lincolnton. The Patrol said the car hit a tree.

Roy D. Morton, 21, of Reidsville was killed when his car went out of control and struck a tree in his hometown.

In Jackson County, Zeb Worth Baumgardner, 58, of Cashiers died when his vehicle ran off N.C. 107 and struck a guardrail. The vehicle then dropped into Glenville Lake, the patrol said.

Paul Frank Simmons, 37, of Washington, D.C., was killed Saturday when the car he was in collided with another vehicle on a rural paved road in Johnston County south of Wendell.

A collision on U.S. 401 Bypass south of Fayetteville took the life of Jerry Michael Holt, 21, of Fayetteville. The patrol said the vehicle he was in struck a concrete curbing and crossed the center line.

Richard Paul Michael, 31, of Rt. 3, Trinity, died in another collision in Randolph County. The accident occurred on a rural paved road one mile south of Archdale.

Dennis Keath Heatherly, 22, of Durham was killed Sunday when his vehicle ran off a rural paved road five miles east of Durham, struck two trees and ran into a ditch. He was thrown from the vehicle, the patrol said.

Cardinals Summoned

VATICAN CITY (AP) - Pope John Paul II and 108 of the cardinals he summoned to an extraordinary meeting on the state of the Roman Catholic Church celebrated a memorial Mass together at St. Peter's Basilica for the 10 cardinals who died in the past year.

The five other cardinals remained seated because of their age. They included John Paul's former primate, 78-year-old Stefan Wyszynski of Poland, and the Ukrainian Josef Slipyj, who is 87.

As the choir sang Gregorian chants, the pontiff and the cardinals clad in red mourning vestments offered prayers for the deceased princes of the church. Among those were two Americans, James Francis McIntyre of Los Angeles and John Wright of Boston.

The four-day special meeting, unprecedented in modern church history, was scheduled to begin this afternoon with a closed session in the Vatican's Synod Hall.

The Vatican has not said what would be discussed, but sources said the cardinals would examine such issues as the Vatican's finances and the functioning of the Curia, the central administration of the church.

The sources said the pope intended to give the cardinals details about the Holy See's financial state, described by Vatican officials as running in the red for a number of years.

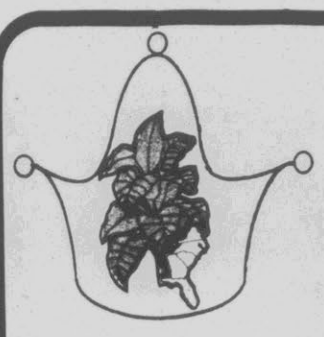

There are also reports the Polish-born pontiff wants to institute a major reorganization of the Curia, which is dominated by Italian cardinals.

DEAR PAT: I recently saw a crocheted sweater with a waistband that looked somewhat like a knitted ribbing. The sweater was given to a friend of mine and we would both like to know how this was done. Can you help? I design my own crocheted sweaters and would like to know how to do this. —DOT L., MYRTLE BEACH, S.C.

Crocheted ribbings do add a professional look and are, fortunately, quite simple. They are worked from side to side rather than from the bottom of the band up.

First, decide how deep you want the waistband to be. Then, make a chain to that measurement, plus one additional chain stitch. Work a single crochet in the second chain from the hook and in each remaining chain. Chain one and turn.

On the next row, working through the back loops only, work a single crochet in each stitch across. Chain one and turn. Repeat this last row over and over until band reaches the measurement you need from one side seam to the other.

When this measurement has been reached, you will stop working along the short edge and will now work a row of single crochets along one long edge, thus starting the body of your sweater. You will have to figure for yourself exactly how many single crochets to make along this edge. As a general rule, however, work one single crochet in each row of ribbing, adding an extra one in every eight or nine stitches.

If you prefer to work the body of your sweater all in one piece instead of in separate pieces for back and front, work the ribbed band until it is long enough to reach all the way around your body. When this measurement has been reached, join the beginning end to the last row just worked with slip stitches. You can now work in rounds until you reach the underarms.

If you want a crocheted ribbing on a finished edge, you will have to work it separately to the desired width and length and then sew it onto the garment.

For you, Dot, and for others who like to design their own crocheted garments, next week I will give you some tips on working seamless garments starting from the neck edge and working down.

Because of the large volume of mail she receives, Pat is unable to answer your letters personally. However, she welcomes all questions and hints and will use those of general interest in the column whenever possible.

Couple Weds In Washington

WASHINGTON — Ella Harris Sutton of Washington and Elvin Lee Watson of Belhaven were married Oct. 25 in a 7 p.m. ceremony performed by pastor J. B. Hewitt at his home here.

The wedding was attended by members of the immediate families and close friends of the couple.

After the ceremony a dinner and cake cutting was held at J and J Restaurant.

The couple will live at Rt. 5, Washington, after a wedding trip to Nashville, Tenn.

Mature Party Breaks Silent Treatment

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I've often seen letters in your column from people who have suffered "the silent treatment." This is something I know a lot about because my father used to pull this on my mother and me. It went on for years.

Finally, when I was in my late teens, it happened again. I didn't have any idea what I had done to displease him. This time, instead of my usual begging, "Please, Daddy, tell me what you're angry about," I decided not to go along with this kind of blackmail.

If he chose not to talk to me, that was his privilege. I made absolutely no effort to re-establish communication. He sulked for about two weeks, then finally broke the ice by starting a conversation.

After that, he never used this "silent treatment" device on me again. But he continued to use it on my mother because she would practically get down on her knees and beg him to tell her what she did wrong. (That was HER choice.)

The silent treatment is an adult version of a child's temper tantrum, and the only way to deal with it is to ignore it.

BEEN THERE IN GALVESTON

DEAR BEEN THERE: Where there is total silence, no progress can be made in righting wrongs or settling disputes.

Apropos of prolonged silences: it has been my observation that it's the more mature party who breaks the silence.

DEAR ABBY: I lost my virginity twice. Once when I was 15, and again when I was 18.

I am getting married next month, and the guy I'm marrying doesn't know anything about Guy No. 1 and Guy No. 2. But I suppose after we're married I will have some explaining to do.

I hate to lie, but if he asks me who the other guys were, should I tell him?

WORRIED IN GRIFFIN, GA.

DEAR WORRIED: I didn't know there was a lost-and-found department for virginity. But if he hasn't found that you lost it, twice, why tell him?

DEAR ABBY: You wrote, concerning men who talk about sex all the time, that "Those who CAN do, and those who CAN'T, talk about it."

That sure didn't apply to my late husband. He was a morning, noon and night man—seven days a week! He always came home for the noon hour, then again at 5 p.m. on the dot, so I never suspected a thing when he talked about his "other girls," which he did constantly.

Not until he was 60 did I learn that he'd been known at the office as a chaser for 30 years! At 65 I caught him with another woman who boldly said, "If you took care of your husband's needs at home, he wouldn't have to go elsewhere." (He had told her I was frigid!) I couldn't believe it. I started laughing, and haven't stopped yet. Meanwhile I was exhausted trying to keep up with him!

No, I didn't divorce him. After that, I just told him to stay downtown for lunch. Abby, I loved that man until the day he died. He was 76. He never slowed up, and never stopped chasing, and never stopped talking about sex, either. I just had to tell you that not all men who talk about sex are only talkers. Some are doers. At least mine was.

Holiday Gifts: Spiced Pecans

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Some months ago I read that Frank Sinatra and Liza Minnelli were "nuts about the spiced pecans" concocted and sold by a candy shop in New York City at $10 a pound.

Several friends of mine and I made a point of sampling the shop's confection. Frankly, the expensive spiced nuts disappointed us. My friends decided to try to come up with a version better than the original.

I'm happy to say they did. Tested in my kitchen, my tasters' response was, "Let's phone Frank and Liza to come over!"

You may want to offer this confection to Thanksgiving guests and use the recipe later for Christmas gifts.

SPICED PECANS

1 cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground allspice
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1-3rd cup water
¼ cup light corn syrup
2 cups pecan halves
1 teaspoon vanilla

Butter 2 large cookie sheets. In a heavy 2-quart saucepan thoroughly stir together sugar, salt, allspice and cinnamon; stir in water and corn syrup. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until boiling. Continue cooking over medium heat, stirring occasionally, to 235 degrees on a candy thermometer — at this stage a half-teaspoon of the mixture dropped into a quart of very cold water forms a soft ball that flattens on removal from water. Remove from heat at once. Add nuts and vanilla; stir until syrup mixture begins to thicken. Working quickly with a fork and a small metal spatula, drop each coated pecan half — well apart — onto prepared cookie sheets. Cool completely. Store in an airtight container. Makes about 1 pound.

Food Editor's Note: It's best to have a cooking partner help drop the coated pecan halves onto the cookie sheets. — C. B.

The Economy Is For Guessing

North Carolina generally has come through post World War II recessions with less adverse effects than many more industrialized states.

There is hope that we will weather the one we are in, or that is expected, pretty well.

Each of the economic dips has its own characteristics, and North Carolina is becoming more industrialized through the years.

Still recessions are slow affecting our economy and frequently the downturns are over before many of our citizens have personal financial effects from them.

Recessions are always serious, however. While they might not pinch us severely individually the collective effect is felt by state government. There is virtually always less revenue to meet the constant demands on state government.

State Legislative analysist Sam Byrd says the expected decline in revenue will make it difficult to meet state worker and teacher demands for a 15 percent raise next year.

Byrd said the state would have to find $322 million in new revenues to meet the request.

In addition there will be the usual capital improvement requests, plans for expansion of various departments and increases in budgets to meet the never ending costs of inflation.

Predicting the economy is not a great deal more than a guessing game. The recession might not be as severe as many think. Economists almost universally see a slowing down of the economy, however, and that is certain to result in reduced growth in state revenues.

Some Action Among Republicans, Too

If Democratic presidential politics is warming up, there is also some action among the Republican counterparts.

Sen. Howard Baker, who has been considered a sure candidate for the GOP presidential nomination, made it official last week.

He made his entrance with a blast at the SALT II treaty.

The GOP nomination is wide open this year. There will be others in the race, and there will be a real shakedown of candidates before the final choice is made next summer.

Carter Sticks To Job

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — On Wednesday, when Sen. Edward M. Kennedy announces his presidential challenge, President Carter will be engaged in a struggle for Senate support of the arms limitation treaty.

On Thursday, when Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California declares his presidential ambitions, Carter will be conferring with the prime minister of Ireland.

"A fairly routine week for us here," says White House press secretary Jody Powell.

This is the week, one year from Election Day 1980, when Carter comes face-to-face with the reality he has known for months: he is facing a stiff challenge for the Democratic nomination. Kennedy and Brown are hitting the road on cross-country campaign swings.

Today, for example, he was to sign legislation giving him authority to impose gasoline rationing in a crisis. There is an arms treaty briefing, a breakfast meeting with the Democratic congressional leadership and a conference with economic advisers.

At the end of the week, there are three diplomatic events — the meeting with Ireland's Jack Lynch, a state dinner Thursday night for the prime minister, and then a trip to Canada for meetings with Canadian Prime Minister Joe Clark and a speech to the Parliament.

It all adds up to a fairly common campaign strategy for an incumbent: a portrait of the president hard at work on presidential matters while his would-be replacements are out chasing votes.

Carter's own candidacy will be announced Dec. 4. It will be followed by a cross-country fund-raising trip certain to gain him wide media coverage after this week's focus on the Kennedy and Brown announcements.

Powell predicted that a straw poll, taken in Ames, Iowa, at a Democratic Party fund-raising dinner Saturday night, would offer a counter-measure on behalf of Carter.

The poll results were expected to become available later today.

Another weekend poll, meanwhile, indicated that the scramble for the Republican nomination may be heating up, as George Bush finished unexpectedly strong in a straw vote at a Republican forum in Maine.

Bush got 466 votes, outpolling Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee, who had 426 votes, and former Texas Gov. John Connally, who got 236 votes.

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, usually considered the front-running candidate among Republicans nationwide, came in a distant fourth, picking up only 98 votes. Reagan plans to declare his candidacy in New York on Nov. 13.

Baker's campaign since his formal declaration of candidacy last week had been aimed at winning the straw vote in Maine.

Kennedy, meanwhile, campaigned over the weekend in upstate New York and in West Virginia. He focused his attack on Carter administration energy policy, especially the president's support of lifting price controls from oil and natural gas.

Speed On The Interstates

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Units which have monitored speeds on North Carolina interstate highways from hidden observation points confirm what most motorists already knew: the speed is well above the legal 55 mile-per-hour limit.

Persistent reports of high interstate speeds, and of State Highway Patrol personnel apparently ignoring the lawbreakers, have been a regular thing since the speed limit was lowered five years ago.

Burley Mitchell, chief of the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety, says there is a good reason that speed law enforcement is slacker on the interstates. They are safer, there are fewer accidents, and the primary responsibility of the Highway Patrol is to reduce accidents and protect lives, Mitchell said.

Compliance

The monitoring of speeds was done statewide as part of the Federal requirement that a state be in compliance with the energy-saving 55 mile limit to avoid cuts in federal funds for highway construction.

Speed checks demonstrated that 45 percent of the drivers comply with the speed limit, statewide. But the compliance pattern is out of kilter. In mountain counties, where roads are winding and few interstate highways exist, compliance is as much as 70 percent.

In central Piedmont counties, the number of speeders increases sharply. That is where the better roads are. Highest speeds of all are in the counties surrounding Wake where flat terrain and good roads combined seem to encourage speeding.

On all traffic monitored, the average speed is 56 miles per hour ... close enough to the limit to satisfy most.

But a closer inspection of the computer printouts shows that on interstate routes, and four-lane highways of interstate design, practically 80 percent of the traffic is exceeding 55. Nearly one-third is speeding over 60; a sizeable number exceed 65.

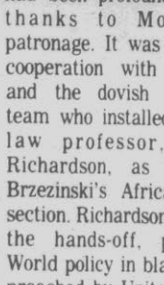

Mitchell doesn't argue with reports that State Troopers sometimes ignore the higher interstate speeds. "Our function is to prevent the loss of lives. We go where the statistics say the wrecks happen ... and that is not on the interstates", he commented.

Troopers are doing an excellent job enforcing the speed law, "but it is simply impossible to have enough officers to apprehend all the violators .... That's why compliance must be voluntary. We can't put a law officer in every vehicle", Mitchell says.

A Sport

But Mitchell does agree that the General Assembly could be a little more helpful in allowing law enforcement officers to crackdown on speeders.

Legislators seem to have a fondness for the "sport" which exists between speeding drivers and lawmen. The Highway Patrol has been restricted in use of airplanes, speed detection devices, and number of unmarked cars. At the last session of the General Assembly, at a time when public concern over speed limit enforcement was high, the General Assembly ordered a reduction in number of unmarked Highway Patrol cars which discouraged a plan to provide sportily colored and equipped police vehicles not so easily detected by lawbreakers.

BILL NOBLITT

But Mitchell says he will come back to the General Assembly later with proposals for increased manpower and equipment in hopes of improving the Patrol's odds in the face of widespread flaunting of the speed law.

The Good Oil Company

WASHINGTON — They had a big celebration at Ashland Oil Co. last week. While other companies were forced to report windfall profits, Ashland had to announce a downturn for the third quarter from the previous year.

When a top Ashland executive told the directors that profits had declined by 14.5 percent everyone in the room applauded.

"How on earth did we do it?" a board member wanted to know.

"I guess we're just lucky," the executive replied. "We have no overseas operations and that's where the big money came from for the other oil companies."

"Exxon must be burning up," another director said. "By being down 14 percent we now have the best public image in the country. No one can call us obscene. We're very proud of management for our lousy showing."

"We can't take all the credit, sir," the executive replied. "You see we had two hurricanes and this really hurt our construction division. Then our coal operation has gone to the dogs. Also, since we don't produce crude, we've had to replenish our inventories. Compared to the other oil companies I would say we've had a miserable year."

"You're being too modest," another board member said. "It takes ingenuity for an oil company not to show any windfall during this period. I got a call from the White House yesterday congratulating us. The President said if everyone did as badly as we did, he wouldn't have any problems decontrolling oil."

The executive said, "I'm being bombarded with calls from the other oil companies accusing us of publicizing our losses just to make them look greedy. They're boiling mad."

ART BUCHWALD

"That's just too bad," someone said. "They should have thought of that before they started raking in all that money. Exxon, Texaco and Gulf are being portrayed in the press as the highway robbers of America. At least everyone from Ashland can look at himself in the mirror when he shaves in the morning."

"I'll second that," another board member said. "The Seven Sisters oil companies are jealous of us because we refused to make windfall profits. They would like to be in our spot, but they don't have the know-how."

The Ashland executive said, "The only people who seem to be questioning our relatively poor showing are our stockholders."

"I don't think that's a big problem. You can't put a price on the goodwill that we engendered last week. When someone sees an Ashland logo in front of a station, they

Army recruiters in many areas are under fire for some of the tactics used in meeting their quotas.

Specifically, they are accused of coaching applicants on their examinations.

Senator Robert Morgan has taken the lead in a congressional investigation of recruiting practices. The investigation apparently is in order.

But so is some objective assessment of the problem.

If recruiters had an abundance of qualified applicants for military service, there would be no need to coach anyone on the examinations.

But the truth of the matter is that there is a dearth of bright young people today wanting to enter some branches of the service despite excellent pay and benefits.

Yet, the military must have new recruits to fill vacancies caused by people leaving the service. Pressure is, of course, on the recruiters to provide these people.

If they don't, the recruiters are in trouble and, far more seriously, so is the military.

Given a choice of good people, any military commander will choose the good people. But given a choice of poor people or no people, the commander is in the unfortunate position of having to take what he can get.

It is appalling that some segments of our military service might be made up in part of people who are at the low end of the intelligence scale.

Instead of the congress and the courts making scapegoats out of recruiters, we should be re-instituting the compulsory military service. Those who enjoy the benefits of this land of ours should not be immune to having to give a couple of years of service to prepare to protect it.

THE INSIDE REPORT

New Brzezinski Appears

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Zbigniew Brzezinski's quiet recruitment of a tough-minded Air Force general as top defense strategist for his National Security Council (NSC) staff, far from being a routine staff addition, signals growing influence and new self-confidence for President Carter's often beleaguered national security adviser.

The new aide is Air Force Maj. Gen. Jasper Welch Jr., considered one of the Pentagon's top experts in the eerie science of U.S.-Soviet military balance — a balance now clearly tipping toward outright Soviet superiority.

Brzezinski's decision to hire Welch was urged by Dr. James R. Schlesinger, the one-time Nixon-Ford defense secretary and until recently Jimmy Carter's energy secretary. It raises important — and as yet unanswerable — questions: As Carter moves toward his final first-term year, does he now begin to share Brzezinski's forebodings about the worldwide threat of growing Soviet power? Or does Brzezinski's new confidence, symbolized by the recruitment of Welch, simply reflect a Carter political tactic to look hawkish to get his new arms treaty (SALT II) through the Senate?

Although there is no answer yet, the new staff role now being readied for Welch is certain to produce a much sharper focus within the NSC on overall strategic policy — a focus long desired by Brzezinski. It will also give the NSC a more persuasive voice within the administration.

It is not generally understood even in Carter's Washington that Brzezinski's power to place experts of his own choice in NSC staff positions has been limited until recently. When he accepted the top NSC staff job, foreign policy was in the hands of the McGovernite staffers who controlled appointments to major second-level posts in the State and Defense Departments — and in Brzezinski's own NSC.

For example, Brzezinski had no say in the choice of his No. 2 man, David Aaron, a one-time NSC technician under Henry Kissinger who became foreign policy adviser for Sen. Walter F. Mondale. Vice President Mondale dictated his appointment to the NSC.

The Brzezinski-Aaron relationship has been cool during the whole Carter presidency. Recently, in another display of his rising self-confidence, Brzezinski quietly reduced Aaron's power within the NSC bureaucracy, stripping him of authority over several major functions. U.S. economic policies toward Europe and the Third World were handed over to Henry Owen.

Until recently, Aaron's political clout within the NSC had been profound, mainly thanks to Mondale's patronage. It was Aaron in cooperation with Mondale and the dovish transition team who installed a black law professor, Henry Richardson, as chief of Brzezinski's African policy section. Richardson espoused the hands-off, pro-Third World policy in black Africa preached by United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young and Assistant Secretaries of State Richard Moose and An-

Strength For Today

INDIRECTLY ANSWERED

In his famous book, "Confessions", St. Augustine relates that as a young man he desired to leave his home in Hippo, in norther Africa, and journey to Rome. His mother, a devout Christian, knew that he would encounter many temptations there, and knowing her son's moral weaknesses she was well aware of what could happen. She earnestly prayed, therefore, that he would be turned back on his journey.

But he was not turned back. While in Rome he heard the preaching of the great St. Ambrose, and was converted to his mother's faith. Later, when he became the outstanding churchman of his day, he wrote that his mother's prayer had been answered, "though not in outward form nevertheless in inward heart".

Thus many of our prayers are answered in unexpected ways that may astonish us. We can look only a short distance beyond our stumbling steps, but the eye of God looks down the whole pathway of our lives.

Best 'Til The Going Gets Rough

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Free enterprise, its advocates say, is the defender of democracy, the energizer of productivity, the provider of taxes, the financier of social and cultural betterment. It is simply the best.

That is, until the going gets rough. Three current events demonstrate another side to the popular pitch, growing louder every day, against government regulation and involvement in private matters.

—The Chrysler Loan Guarantee.

Lee A. Iacocca, Chrysler chairman, told a House subcommittee as he pursued a federal loan guarantee for his deficit-ridden company: "I am sure you share my conviction that in the long run the answers to our problems are going to be found not in the halls of Congress, but in the marketplace....

"However, given the alternatives facing this corporation, and the workers who depend on Chrysler for employment, we have no choice in good conscience but to seek assistance until we can again be profitable and sustain ourselves."

The administration said last week it would offer $1.5 billion in loan guarantees to aid Chrysler — its managers and shareholders as well as its workers — if it could privately raise a similar, non-guaranteed sum.

—The Thrifty Thrifts.

Thrift institutions, which are mainly savings banks and savings and loan associations, are committed by charter to channeling the funds of mostly small savers into the housing industry.

What can they do with those unprofitable loans? Dump them on the government, of course.

Senators Jacob Javits, RN.Y., and Alan Cranston, D-Calif., seek to have a government agency buy $4.5 billion of such loans over a three-year period.

The American Stock Exchange Exchange.

We'll move out of New York if you don't put up a new building for us. This, in effect, is what the nation's second largest stock exchange, a symbol if not bastion of capitalism, told city and state officials.

What the Amex presented, in its view, was a fair exchange of benefits: Its continued residency for a new home. Some state officials called it extortion. Still, both houses of the state legislature gave their approval and the governor is expected to sign the bill.

The Amex will pay annual rent of $2.57 million for the 12-story tower and 50,000 squarefoot trading floor. That amounts to an outlay of 19.5 times the rentroll, a deal most real estate investors would refuse.

In fact, all three deals are the sort that private investors would decline, because the investments do not provide sufficient return or the risks involved are not compensated for by the financial benefits.

In all three instances, however, proponents emphasize that the financial returns are but a piece of the total return. They say that jobs, related industries, economic stability and more are at stake.

Mekong River Opened To Aid Shipments Set For Cambodia

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Diplomats meet here today to pledge food supplies for millions of starving Cambodians, and hours before the talks began the Phnom Penh government announced it was opening the Mekong River to Western food shipments to its huntry people.

The United States and 31 other nations are studying a report issued by the U.N. Children's Fund and the International Committee of the Red Cross asking for $111 million to supply 165,000 tons of food over a six-month period.

The report said 2.5 million Cambodians in "extreme need" include 700,000 children and sick people. It said 80 to 90 percent of the children were severely undernourished, that malaria, dysentery, and respiratory diseases were epidemic, and that only about 50 doctors were available to care for some 4 million persons.

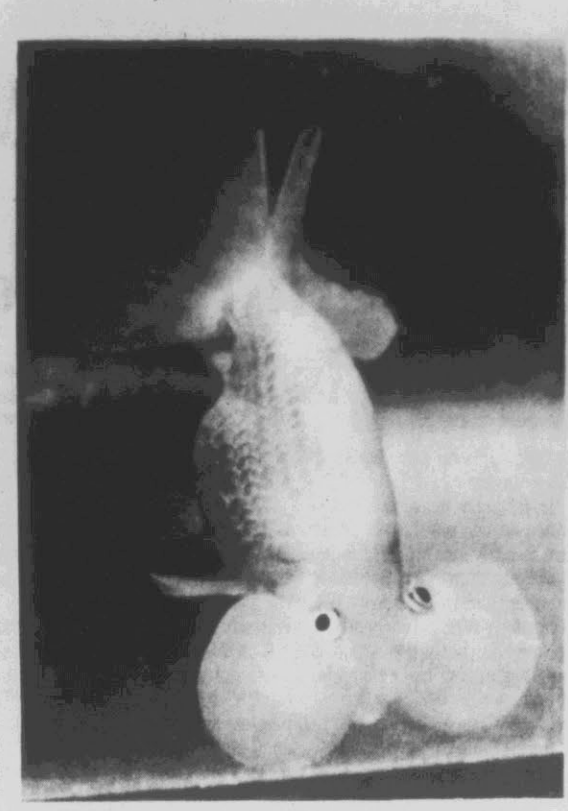

It said about 300 tons of food, medicines, surgical supplies, shelter materials and other things had been airlifted to Cambodia since the end of July in one flight daily from Bangkok.

"An immediate need is seen for large-scale transport," the report said. It did not mention the fact the Vietnamese-backed Cambodian government of President Heng Samrin turned down a U.S. proposal for delivery of relief goods by truck convoys from Thailand. The Phnom Penh government rejected the American proposal because some of the food would have gone to areas controlled by the Khmer Rouge government of Premier Pol Pot which the Vietnamese invasion last winter drove into western Cambodia.

In a statement broadcast today by the Vietnam News Agency, the Heng Samrin government said "the People's Republic of Cambodia is from now on ready to receive whatever quantity of humanitarian aid" and "without political conditions."

Although fighting continues in western Cambodia between the Vietnamese and the Khmer Rouge, the statement added: "From Phnom Penh in the center of Cambodia we are capable of carrying this aid to whatever region of the country including the regions bordering on Thailand."

The Phnom Penh government had been restricting incoming food supplies from non-communist sources to the daily flight and deliveries by ship to the country's only deepwater port at Kompong Som, which reportedly could unload only four ships at a time.

thony Lake, major Brzezinski adversaries. Brzezinski managed to ease Richardson out several months ago, after Brzezinski had gone public against Fidel Castro's blatant intervention in foreign countries as Soviet surrogate.

But despite the growing public — and therefore political — awareness that the administration's soft-line approach to the Soviet offensive was clearly not working, Brzezinski continued to move furtively and cautiously, fearful that anti-Brzezinski hostility within the bureaucracy — plus the president's tendency to come down simultaneously on both sides of tough foreign problems — might isolate and destroy him.

That period seems now to have ended. Brzezinski's self-confidence is pushing him to bear down harder with his own more pessimistic views about the U.S. decline. He gained crucial yardage during the recent Cuban crisis over the Soviet combat brigade, even though it was the president who backed down.

Marshal Shulman, the State Department's Soviet expert, had predicted to Vance — and thus to Carter himself — that Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko would be "flexible" in dealing with Carter's demand that the status quo be changed.

But Brzezinski and his own Soviet experts took a more realistic and, as it turned out, more accurate view: that the Soviets, reinforced by their worldwide military power, had no intention of giving in to Carter or saving his face.

"Zbig had nothing to do with the sorry way the brigade crisis was handled at State," one White House insider told us. More important, Brzezinski argued hard against a proposal that Carter publicly attack Castro after the unsatisfactory conclusion of the crisis over the Soviet brigade. Insiders insist that Brzezinski viewed this proposal as a bluff that copuld have only one effect: build up the communist dictator of Cuba. Carter took that advice.

Brzezinski wants fewer tough words and more real deeds on the old-fashioned assumption that the only way to deal with the Soviet world offensive is to be backed by adequate military strength.

The recruitment of a high-level Air Force general to the NSC is a major move toward that goal. It signals the terminal point of what one aide calls the "understandable insecurity" that hobbled Brzezinski during the first 30 months. That could stiffen Carter's spine for the harder Soviet battles that lie just ahead.

Heavy Booking At Ski Resorts

By The Associated Press

North Carolina ski resort operators are hoping Mother Nature will be nice and won't fool them this year when it comes to weather.

The operators say bookings are running ahead of last year and they can expect a banner year if Mother Nature cooperates.

"It all depends on the weather," said Grady Moretz of Appalachian Ski Ranch in Blowing Rock. "Bookings are the best we've ever had, and we could do better than last year if only the weather is kind to us."

Last winter, Moretz said, "was our second-best year. The weather prevented it from being our best. We'd have perfect conditions during the week, but it'd always rain on weekends."

They may be hoping for good weather, but the operators are not concerned about the economy, gasoline shortages, or other problems.

"You really can't worry yourself about the weather, gas shortages and things like that, because those are things you can't do very much about," said Eric Bindlechner, ski director at Suger Mountain in Banner Elk.

As a precaution, though, some operators are encouraging customers to car pool or charter buses. Charter reservations were up at all the resorts contacted.

"It's a significant increase over last year. We've got one group from Greensboro coming 37 times in buses," Bindlechner said.

The operators said their prices, like everybody else's, have gone up because of inflation. But they don't think that will keep skiers away.

"Sitting at home is depressing and it makes you wonder what you're working for," Bindlechner said. "People will come regardless of the cost."

Awarded A Scholarship

RALEIGH — Karen Jean Lloyd of Grimesland has been awarded an Academic Honors Scholarship at Peace College for the 1980-81 academic year. Dr. S. David Frazier, president of the Presbyterian junior college for women, made the announcement of the scholarship award.

Miss Lloyd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Lloyd of Rt. 1, Grimesland, is a senior at D. H. Conley High School. Selected for inclusion in "Who's Who Among American High School Students", she was a marshal and is a member of the National Honor Society. She has been active in Bi-Chem-Phy, Pep Club, Literary Club and as junior representative to the Student Council Association, as a majorette during her sophomore year and as statistician during her junior year.

Honors scholarships are awarded annually on the basis of academic excellence, citizenship, test results and promise of future usefulness to society. The scholarship is renewable for the second year of study at Peace.

Fundamentalists Aim At Public Education

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state's fundamentalist schools, ecouraged by their victory in ridding their schools of most state regulation this year, are planning a far more sweeping attack on public education.

"I think it is the most dangerous trend that is occurring in this country today," said Jerome H. Melton, deputy state superintendent of public instruction, of the fundamentalist attack on the educational system.

Fundamentalists demonstrated their political strength in the spring when they persuaded the Legislature to remove most state regulations from private schools.

Fundamentalist religious leaders accuse the public schools of spreading an atheistic doctrine, known as "secular humanism" that undermines religion and the family.

State fundamentalists say they plan to set up an organization to monitor what is taught in the public schools and what textbooks are used and to distribute the information to church groups throughout the state.

Public school educators say they fear an attack on their curriculum, their textbooks and perhaps even on the traditional means of financial support for public schools.

Fundamentalists maintain the secular humanist philosophy has caused public educators to advocate sex education, the teaching of evolution, socialism, abortion, the dissolution of the family and lax moral values.

The Rev. Jerry Falwell, a Lynchburg, Va., television evangelist who led an "I Love America" rally in Raleigh Friday, said, "The foundation stone of humanism is atheism, that man is his own god. It teaches situation ethics, that nothing is always right or wrong. Its ultimate goal is one-world socialism."

Public educators say such views are absurd. They say the public schools try to be neutral on matters of philisophy and religion.

"Who are the teachers in the public schools?" Melton asked. "They are average, hard-working, God-fearing people. They go to church and Sunday school, contribute to the United Fund and are members of the Rotary Club.

"You tell me these people are capable of an atheistic, communistic conspiracy in the schools?"

Boat And Car In Collision Here

It rained Saturday, but not enough to justify the collision between a boat and car here, reported at 7:45 a.m. yesterday.

Police said a hit-and-run driver was responsible for collision at 801 Douglas Ave.

Investigators reported a hit-and-run vehicle collided with the boat, owned by Robert Lee Cherry. In turn, the boat collided with Cherry's car, causing an estimated $500 damage to the car and to the boat.

Investigation of the incident is continuing.

know that we're not ripping them off."

"I understand about hurricanes and the coal mines," a board member said. "But surely there must be other reasons we're not rolling in petro dollars."

The executive said, "The real big money in oil comes from production. The companies that have their own oil wells can fiddle and faddle and get $30 or $40 for a barrel on the spot market in Europe. Those of us without our own crude have to count our profits in pennies."

"Well, let's keep it that way," a board member said. "Let the other guys face the wrath of the American people. We'll sit back and enjoy our piddling gains in style. I propose the board give our management team a vote of confidence for what they have done in the last quarter, and urge them to keep the profit picture as bleak as possible for the coming fiscal year."

The board voted unanimously to pass the resolution.

Tobacco Crop Control Very Old Idea

By BILL HUMPHRIES
NCSU Agricultural Information

Control of tobacco production— an issue on which farmers will vote in December— is not just a modern idea. It dates back more than 350 years.

"Almost from the time tobacco was first planted as a commerical crop there have been problems of overproduction," says S. N. Hawks, an extension tobacco specialist at North Carolina State University.

Various methods have been tried over the years to cope with the threat of surplus supplies and depressed prices.

At Jamestown, Va., where John Rolfe in 1612 grew the first successful crop for export to England, tobacco quickly became a profitable and popular crop. Soon Captain John Smith had to issue orders that each settler must produce a certain amount of food along with his tobacco, in order to prevent starvation in the colony.

Half the tobacco grown in the Virginia colony in 1639 was burned in order to reduce supplies to the 1630 level of 1.5 million pounds.

"The colonial government tried to control production by limiting the number of plants each worker might set out," said Hawks. "This was unenforceable."

At one stage, limits were placed not only on the number of plants per grower, but also on the number of leaves per plant.

In the 1660's, efforts were made to get growers in all three of the tobacco producing colonies, Virginia, Carolina and Maryland, to cease raising tobacco for an entire year. The assemblies of Virginia and Carolina approved the plan, but Lord Baltimore of Maryland refused to go along with it.

In 1682, enraged planters in Virginia instituted their own crop control by rioting and destroying about a million pounds of leaf.

Early in this century, burley tobacco growers in Kentucky attempted to reduce surpluses and boost prices by participating in a voluntary production control program. When neighboring farmers declined to cooperate, often their barns or packhouses were burned or other violent acts weree committed by a group known as the "Night Riders."

A novel by that name, describing the violence in Kentucky tobacco areas during that period, was written by Robert Penn Warren.

In the 1920's, flue-cured tobacco growers in the Carolinas and Virginia organized the Tri-State Tobacco Growers Cooperative Association. Members signed five-year contracts to market the tobacco only through the co-op.

Despite massive support, the cooperative marketing venture failed. As members withdrew tobacco, market prices rose considerably. Non-members were then encouraged to increase production, and the entire effort proved to be an exercise in futility.

None of the efforts to improve prices through production control or cooperative marketing succeeded until the Agricutlural Adjustment Act of 1933 was enacted.

J. C. Williamson Jr., an NCSU economist, said the purpose of this act was to increase and stabilize farm prices. It authorized government contracts with individual growers of major crops to reduce production below their 1931-33 base. Contracting growers received rental payments from taxes collected from the first processor.

"Experiences with the cooperatives indicated that non-contracting tobacco growers might increase production in anticipation of higher prices, offsetting reductions by those who did contract," said Williamson. "To prevent this, the Kerr Tobacco Act of 1934 imposed a stiff penalty of sales by non-contracting growers. This had the effect of making tobacco contracts mandatory."

The tobacco quota and price support program in effect today has envolved over a period of nearly half a century. The baisc legislation, amended several times, is the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938. Basic features of the program are the national marketing quota, farm quotas based on production history, and mandatory price support on crops for which quotas have been approved.

The quota program must be approved by a two-thirds majority of growers voting in a referendum every three years. In the last previous flue-cured referendum, held Dec. 16, 1976, the total vote was 141,353 and the proportion voting in favor of the quota program was 98.5 percent.

If this year's referendum carries by the required majority, quotas will be in effect on the 1980, 1981, and 1982 flue-cured crops. Price support will be available in 1980 at about $1.41 per pound, approximately nine percent above the 1979 price level.

Southern Pine Beetle Count Is Building Up

The southern pine beetle is back— again.

In fact, this forest pest which killed enough pines in the South in the early 70's to build 55,000 new houses never left But beetle numbers did drop sharply between early 1975 and early 1979.

Now the beetle population is building again, fast, said Jim McGraw, extension forest resources specialist at North Carolina State University.

The new southern pine beetle infestations are most evident in the Piedmont, MoGraw said. Their first victims are short leaf pines growing on abandoned farmland' where the clay soils have been heavily eroded. Overstocked, slow growing pines are especially susceptible to the beetles.

While the beetles prefer short leaf pines, they will attack loblolly and Virginia pines. They can also move into stands that are relatively healthy, including yard trees.

However, a healthy pine can sometimes "pitch out" beetle attacks by entrapping or smothering the invaders with a heavy and prolonged flow of pitch.

Therefore, McGraw's advice to landowners and homeowners is to try to keep their pines healthy. He points out that people should avoid injuring trees with machinery, or creating heavy traffic around them. Wounded, sick or lightning-struck trees should be removed as soon as possible, said McGraw.

The first sign of a beetle attack is popcorn-size lumps of pitch, known as pitch tubes, on the trunk. Another early symptom is the yellowing of needles in the crown of the pine.

If a thick patch of bark of a beetle-infested tree is removed, the "S" shaped galleries of the beetles can be seen. Females lay eggs along these galleries. The beetles also introduce a blue stain fungus which plugs the tree's conductive tissues.

Once the eggs hatch, the young chew their way through the conductive tissue. The tree is killed by the plugging action of the fungus and the girdling action of the larvae.

Based on past experience, McGraw says local outbreaks build for about two years before declining. He cites a study prepared by Coleman A. Doggett, an entomologist with the N. C. Division of Forest Resources, which shows that periodic outbreaks of pine beetles have been occurring for nearly 200 years.

The Moravians reported the loss of many pines near what is now Winston-Salem in 1796, and Doggett believes the dying pines were the result of southern pine beetles.

J. S. Holmes, who became state forester in 1915, reported a severe epidemic of southern pine beetles in Mecklenburg, Gaston, Union and Cleveland Counties in 1911-12. The beetles killed more timber in the Southern Piedmont than fire during the period.

Doggett reports that little beetle activity was reported in the state from 1922 until 1962. A new epidemic began in 1962 in the Southern Piedmont near Charlotte, and by the mid-70s, this outbreak had spread through the entire state.

Additional information on controlling these pests may be obtained by calling Extension Teletip, 1-800-662-7301, a statewide toll-free number. For information on controlling beetles in yard pines, ask for message 2585. Information on wood pines may be obtained by asking for message 2635.

Form A New Adult Education Ass'n

ECU News Bureau

Three eastern North Carolina women have been installed as officers in the newly-formed East Carolina University Adult Education Association.

They are Georgia Saum of Kinston, president; Kathy Sprau of Greenville, vice president; and Terry Shank of Greenville, secretary-treasurer. Ms. Saum and Ms. Shank are recent graduates of ECU's adult education program, and Ms. Sprau is currently a candidate for the master's degree in adult education at ECU.

Ms. Shank is currently director of cooperative education at Pitt Community College.

The three were formally installed by Connie Tindel, a faculty member in the ECU School of Education, at a recent organizational banquet meeting. Featured speaker was Sam Bundy, member of the N.C. House of Representatives.

Purpose of the organization is to enable members to keep abreast of educational trends and to enhance the professionalism of adult education at ECU by encouraging increased communication between students and educators, recognizing academic achievement, and sponsorship of visiting speakers and workshop programs.

According to Ms. Sprau, the ECUAEA will also develop a method for collecting and distributing job information in the field of adult education.

Student Group Elects Officers

ECU News Bureau

Five students in the East Carolina University School of Home Economics have been elected officers in ECU's chapter of the N.C. Vocational Education Student Association.

Debra Boswell of Edenton is the newly-elected president.

Other officers are: Andree Blanchard of Hookerton, vice president; Pamela Beck of Hillsborough, secretary; Terry Bonnel of Waretown, N.J., treasurer; and Carrie McCune of Lucasville, Ohio, reporter.

Faculty sponsors for the group are Dr. Vila Rosenfeld, chairperson of home economics education at ECU, and Dr. Paul Waldrop of the ECU School of Technology.

Commercial Art Work Display

ECU News Bureau

Commercial art work by Lucinda Sager of Raleigh, senior student in the East Carolina University School of Art, will be on display in ECU's Joyner Library Nov. 9-15.

The show includes layouts, graphic art work, illustrations and several acrylic paintings.

Ms. Sager is a candidate for the Bachelor of Arts degree in communication art with a minor concentration in painting. Upon graduation she plans to pursue a career as a free lance commercial artist in the Raleigh area.

Honor Society Installs Officers

ECU News Bureau

Four students in the East Carolina University School of Technology have been installed as officers in ECU's Beta Mu chapter of Epsilon Pi Tau honor society in industrial technology.

New president of the chapter is Grady Dickerson of Oxford, a senior at ECU.

Other officers are: Susan Barbe of Tarboro, vice president; Georgeann Burroughs of New Bern, secretary-treasurer; and Ronnie Lewis of Plymouth, recorder.

Epsilon Pi Tau recognizes and rewards outstanding achievement among students preparing for careers in industrial technology. Membership is based upon a student's performance in scholarship and pre-professional leadership.

Several Minor Power Outages Over Weekend

Periods of blustery winds over the weekend apparently triggered several minor power outages here, including a brief problem Saturday morning along First Street.

Malcolm Green, assistant director of Greenville Utilities, reported today that scattered calls were received but the only problem of any significance involved a repair period of just over 30 minutes to correct a power line situation on First Street.

Green explained that GUC is in the process of rebuilding the power line on First Street from the Shore Drive area out to Warren Street. When the contractor secured the lines for the weekend, apparently a little slack was left in one line and the wind caused the wires to blow together, he said.

Green noted that when the lines touched, a circuit was knocked out and due to the wind blowing the line back and forth into the other wire a situation resulted of on and off power.

He said that it was decided to shut the line down and correct the situation and actual repair time was from 9:20 a.m. until 9:52 a.m. Saturday.

The GUC spokesman noted that during the rebuilding of the First Street line, momentary outages will occur as the contractor replaces wire. He said that the work is part of GUC's overall maintenance program.

A small segment of rural customers west of Winterville experienced an outage of some 45 minutes over the weekend, Green said, but the exact cause of the problem has not been determined.

Winterville residents had a short power outage over the weekend, according to Town Clerk Elwood Nobles, who said that problems were also experienced with blinking lights.

Green pointed out that many minor power problems this time of year result when winds blow brittle tree limbs down throughout the area.

Annual Supper On Wednesday

The annual covered dish supper for supporters of the South Greenville Recreation Center will be held Wednesday at 6 p. m.

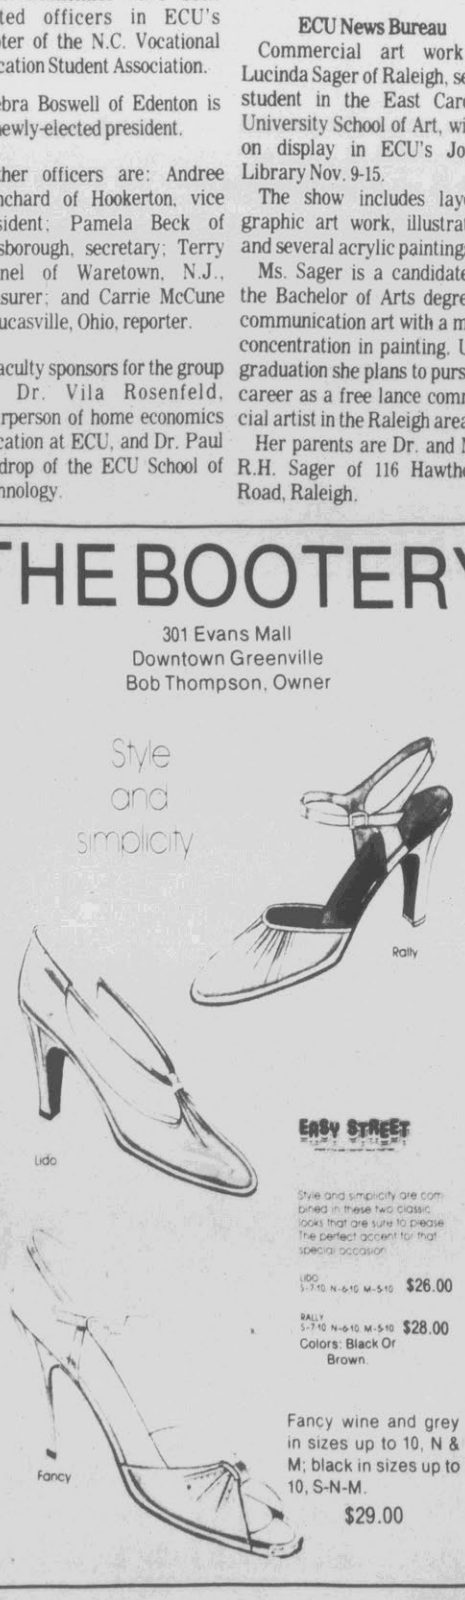

The purpose of this event is to promote good relations between the community and the community center. Entertainment will be provided by Brenda Weatherington, who will present a showing of the latest fashions in clothes and hairstyles. For more information, one may call 752-4137, Ext. 253.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

Chance of showers Wednesday, turning fair Thursday into Friday. Highs in the 60s with some low 70s near the coast. Lows in 40s for interior with some 50s near coast and 30 higher in the mountains.

Massive Dresden Restoration Work Still Dragging

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer

DRESDEN, East Germany (AP) — Despite a massive reconstruction campaign, architectural treasures of this city of art and culture will still be in ruins nearly 50 years after the World War II air raid that destroyed it.

The baroque Zwinger galleries, which house collections of paintings and porcelain, have been restored, as has part of the 16th-century residence of the Saxon kings.

But the Taschenberg palace, the old Opera house, the Frauenkirche church and other buildings which helped make Dresden an architectural showpiece still lie in ruins, destroyed in an Anglo-American air raid on the night of February 13, 1945.

City fathers say it will take until the 1990s before all the famous buildings have been restored.

"It is planned that all the buildings will be restored," said Wolfgang Zimutha, city council member in charge of tourism. "But it's a question of economics. We simply don't have all the means. Perhaps our children or our children's children will have the means to do it."

In the meantime, the Communist government spares no effort to remind visitors the city was blown to bits by the British and the Americans, allegedly to keep its treasures from falling into the hands of the advancing Soviet Army.

The bombs leveled 15 square kilometers, engulfed the city in huge fire storms and killed some 35,000 people, many of them women and children. American author Kurt Vonnegut, a prisoner of war in Dresden, wrote of the raid in his novel "Slaughterhouse Five."

"They only confirmed that brutality and destruction, hostility to art and culture was and is an essential trait of imperialism," a tourist booklet, Inferno Dresden, says of the raid.

The Soviets, however, are lauded for saving the art collections and returning them to the city in the mid-1950s after reconstruction was under way. Zimutha said it had taken until 1951 — six years after the war — just to clear the rubble. Most of the reconstruction took place between 1958 and 1964, with housing taking top priority.

Since the war, Dresden has again become a cultural center, with over 5 million tourists coming each year to wander through its galleries, stroll the shaded walks along the Elbe River, or attend symphony and opera performances in the glass and cement Palace of Socialist Culture.

But the city — East Germany's third largest with over 500,000 inhabitants — has emerged as a curious architectural blend of German traditional and Soviet modern.

It reflects the mood of a country which seeks to portray itself as something new and unique — "the first socialist German state" — while pointing with pride to the same set of classical German authors, musicians and philosophers revered by the West Germans.

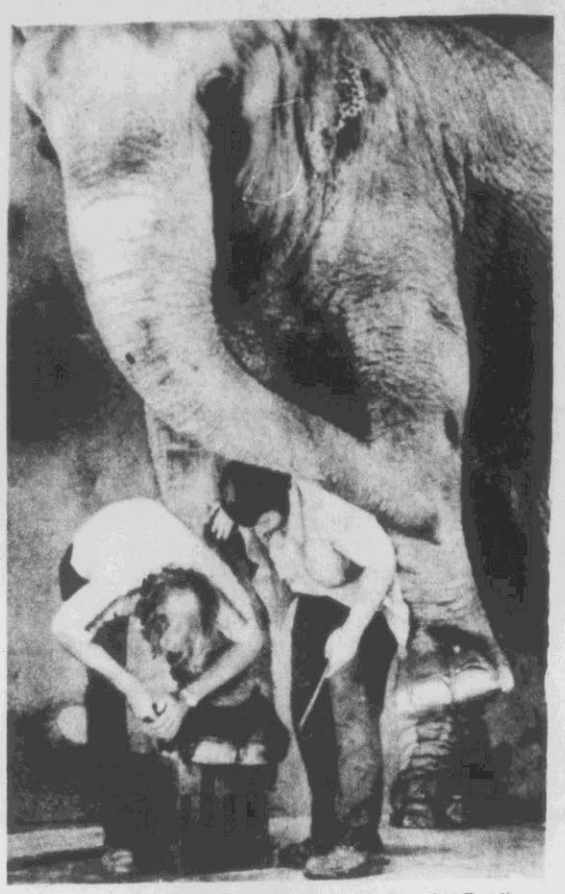

"In rebuilding the Zwinger, the experts used sandstone which appears to age quickly and after 10 years looks as old as the original," said Zimutha. "Experts have been brought from Switzerland and Austria to advise on reconstruction."

But much of the city was rebuilt along standard, Soviet-style models indistinguishable except for the language on the signs from parts of Warsaw, Moscow or other Eastern European cities. What was once a compact, classical, German-style city of narrow, crooked streets now has broad, grassy parks.

Other Central European cities heavily damaged in the war — including Augsburg and Nuremberg in West Germany and Gdansk in Poland — were rebuilt as faithful copies to look as if the war had never occurred.

But the commercial heart of modern Dresden is Prager Strasse, a broad, pedestrian mall decorated with modernistic fountains and flanked by off-white rectangular buildings with stylish shops.

Prager Strasse also includes a statue of Lenin, the Leningrad Restaurant and a towering, neon sign honoring the Soviet Union, to remind the visitor of the city's new, postwar perspective.

Hometown Will Salute Mamie

By The Associated Press

Two hundred people in Boone, Iowa, remembered Mamie Eisenhower as the meatpacker's daughter who didn't turn her back on her hometown when she became first lady.

"She came back, which is a reaffirmation of rural life," the Rev. David Crow said at memorial services Sunday for Mrs. Eisenhower, who died in her sleep Thursday.

Mrs. Eisenhower, widow of the former President Dwight Eisenhower, was to be honored today in memorial services in a suburb of Washington, D.C., and in a day of mourning in Pennsylvania, where she spent the last ten years of her life on a Gettysburg farm.

First Lady Roslynn Carter was to be among the dignitaries at a memorial service at the military post chapel in Ft. Meyer, Va.

Flags were to be flown at half staff throughout Pennsylvania.

On Sunday, friends and admirers gathered at the First Presbyterian Church in Boone. Mrs. Eisenhower attended the church when she came to visit Boone, and relatives asked that memorial services be held there.

Stanley Moffitt, co-chairman for the memorial service, said the mood of the ceremony was "cheerful" and "upbeat" and that he saw no tears shed during the ceremony.

"It was a time for happy reflection on Mamie and her Iowa roots," said Moffitt.

Mrs. Eisenhower was born in Boone 83 years ago Nov. 14. She died of heart failure at the Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington and was buried Saturday in Abilene, Kan., beside her husband of 53 years.

She had been undergoing physical therapy at the medical center since she suffered a stroke Sept. 25 at her Gettysburg farm.

A White House plane flew her body to Abilene, where a military honor guard carried her bronze coffin into the Place of Meditation, a chapel at the Eisenhower Center.

She was buried following a 45-minute service attended by about 35 family members and invited friends, including former President Richard Nixon and his wife, Pat.

About 2,000 other mourners, shivering in a cold wind, kept a vigil outside the chapel to catch a glimpse of the funeral procession.

NEW YORK (AP) — Reports that Iran was considering halting oil shipments to the United States sent stocks down sharply today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial issues was down 6.48 to 812.46 at noon.

Declining issues led advances by a 2-1 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

A group of Iranian students is occupying the American embassy in Iran, calling for a break-off of relations with the United States. Severed U.S.-Iranian relations could stop the flow of Iranian oil to the United States, and Iranian Oil Minister Ali Akbar Moinfar said he would not rule out the possibility of an embargo on oil shipments to the United States.

A shutdown of Iranian oil imports could plunge the United States into another energy crisis, and that possibility had Wall Streeters jittery. "That's all you need," said Newton D. Zinder, an analyst at E.F. Hutton.

Mobil led the most-active list at midday, one of several oil companies making the list. Mobil was off 1¼ to 48¾.

The NYSE's composite index of more than 1,500 listed common stocks was off .39 to 57.80 at noon. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down 1.17 at 207.87.

Big Board volume came to a light 9.53 million shares in the first two hours of trading, compared to 11.58 million at the same point in Friday's session.

Among other active issues at noon, IBM was off ⅜ to 62⅞, Exxon lost ¼ to 57½, Charter Co. fell 1⅞ to 37⅞, Gulf dropped ⅛ to 33¾, Reserve Oil lost ¼ to 32⅛ and National Semiconductor was down ¾ to 29½.

Political Overtones Behind Violence

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) - Causes behind the weekend violence that left four dead and three gravely wounded in an attack on demonstrators by Ku Klux Klansmen aren't as simple as black and white.

Revolutionary and reactionary politics on both sides of Saturday morning's gunfire clouded the racial overtones and, perhaps, helped avert further violence in this city.

It was a confusing mix of fringe groups, who have baited and taunted each other before in North Carolina, that faced each other at the "Death to the Klan" rally in a black neighborhood.

Holding the rally was a far-left group calling itself the Workers Viewpoint Organization. Most of its leaders were white, and in the aftermath the group announced it had dropped that name and become the Communist Workers Party.

Charged with doing the shooting was a mixture of western North Carolina men, some claiming Ku Klux Klan affiliation, according to police, and at least one a self-avowed leader of the National Socialist Party of America, the Nazis.

Leaders of the leftist group, while expressing hatred for the Klan, called the KKK dupes of the group's larger opponents — "the state," unidentified government officials and the capitalist system.

Nelson Johnson, a black and an organizer of the rally, voiced the leftist group's political leanings when he said it was not the Klan but the government that caused the shootings.

"We are not dealing primarily with the Klan on this thing," said Johnson, who was wounded and charged by police with inciting to riot. "We are dealing with the state, the government, the capitalists."

The bullets police said were fired by Klansmen were not aimed solely at the blacks. The dead were all leaders of the workers-communist group.

Three of them were white men; one was a black woman.

Greensboro city leaders complained that those from outside the city were responsible on both sides.

Charged in the shootings were 14 men, all from outside Greensboro. Three of the dead were from Greensboro, but some of the wounded were not. The workers group's wounded leader, Paul Barmanzohn, was from Durham, and had organized an earlier anti-Klan rally in China Grove.

Greensboro city leaders drew distinctions between this tragedy and the racial violence the city endured in the 1960's.

Mickey Michaux, a hip black who is the U.S. Attorney, said the communist leanings of the Workers Viewpoint Organization weren't widely shared in the black community.

Police reported no violence in Greensboro in the two nights following the shootings, and Michaux said both the racial makeup of the Workers Viewpoint Organization and its communist orientation was a calming factor.

"I don't see any polarization of the community coming about because of this," he said. "It wasn't one white group against one black group. It was one white group against another white group that was trying to elicit support from the black community."

There was also confusion in the aftermath over the police's preparation for and reaction to the anti-Klan rally and ensuing violence.

The shootings were captured on video tape by television camera crews on the scene and brought to television viewers around the country in stunning clarity. A viewing raised questions about how those who did the shootings could do so with such apparent calmness — and have the time to get out of their cars, shoot, return their weapons to their cars and try to flee.

"They took their time," said Signe Waller, whose husband James Waller was killed in the violence. "They calmly packed their guns back in their truck."

Police were in the area of the rally when the gunmen arrived, and there was a brief period before the shooting when both sides traded racial slurs. But how quickly the police responded to the trouble was debated here.

"As soon as that Klan convoy entered the area in which the marchers were organizing, it should have been evident to the police that violence was the intention," said George Gardner, head of the N.C. Civil Liberties Union, who joined civil rights leaders in criticizing the police Sunday.

Also a subject of debate was whether police officers had spotted a carload of gunman before arriving on the scene and relayed word to officers there. Police spokesmen said officers told Johnson of the potential for trouble and asked him to stop the rally. Johnson called that "a lie."

There were also questions about how some persons that may have been with the alleged gunmen fled the scene, and about a mysterious white compact car from which gunmen appeared to remove weapons on tape and in photographs. Police did not capture that car. "They got away," Captain James Hilliard, official police spokesman, explained.

Those questions led to a hostile confrontation between Greensboro Mayor Jim Melvin and City Manager Tom Osborne and reporters at a Sunday news conference. Melvin said he had complete confidence in the police department's handling of the case.

But Melvin and Osborne said questions about police response must await an internal investigation. "I think the actions of our police department yesterday were very commendable," Melvin said.

"I think a lot of people have jumped to a lot of conclusions," said the city manager.

Such assurances were not enough for Gardner and others, among them Leon White, head of the United Church of Christ's Commission on Racial Justice. They called for an outside investigation of the police actions.

Regardless of whether the criticisms prove justified, the death scene which Melvin said was "unjustly ours" has become another event that has blemished North Carolina's reputation. It will no doubt join the cases of Joan Little, the Wilmington 10 and the Charlotte 3 as evidence, at least on the surface, of continuing racial tension and trouble in North Carolina.

Gov. Hunt To Continue Tokyo Industry Mission

TOKYO (AP) — North Carolina Gov. Jim Hunt was to return to Tokyo today after spending four days in Peking as the leader of the first American tobacco mission to China in three decades.

Hunt plans to continue his economic development mission in Tokyo until Nov. 12, when he is to return to North Carolina.

Hunt and his delegation flew to Shanghai Sunday afternoon to visit a tobacco factory. Earlier in the day, he met with China's Vice Premier Kang Shi En in Peking, according to the Xinhua news agency.

According to the Xinhua report, the mission has been studying the processing and production of tobacco in China since arriving Thursday as guests of the Chinese Ministry of Light Industry.

Hunt expressed satisfaction, according to Xinhua, with discussions during the weekend with Chinese departments concerned with the prospect of strengthening cooperation in tobacco production.

The mission headed by Hunt is an effort to restore the once-strong Chinese trade with the American tobacco industry. North Carolina is the largest producer of flue-cured tobacco in the United States.

The rest of the North Carolina delegation will stay in China for another 10 days after Hunt leaves to visit tobacco production, processing and manufacturing centers.

After meeting with Kang, Hunt said he was "confident that we will have tobacco trade with China in the not-too-distant future."

Kang also expressed pleasure with the talks, according to Xinhua, and urged further expansion of friendly cooperation in light industry.

U.S. Ambassador Leonard Woodcock and Liang Lingguang, China's light industry minister, also attended Sunday's meeting.

Reconciliation Effort In Seoul

By EDITH M. LEDERER
Associated Press Writer

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — South Korea's major opposition party met today to call for democratic reforms and free elections as the government took a first step toward reconciliation with the foes of the late President Park Chung-hee.

Members of Park's Democratic Republican Party voted today, after reconvening the National Assembly, not to accept the resignations 69 opposition members submitted three weeks ago. There were indications the opposition legislators would return to the assembly to press for a return to democracy.

Leaders of the New Democratic Party, which topped Park's party in the popular vote in the 1978 election, met today to formulate a platform, and one member, Assemblyman Chung Dae-chul, told reporters:

"We don't have to stay out of the Assembly any longer since the political situation is completely changed by the death of President Park."

Park was assassinated by the head of the Korean Central Intelligence Agency on Oct. 26. The 66 New Democrats in the Assembly and three members from the Democratic Unification Party resigned Oct. 13 because Kim Young-sam, the leader of the New Democratic Party, was expelled from the assembly for criticizing Park.

Chung said the New Democrats "are in agreement that our strategy will be to amend the constitution before 90 days, through the Congress or by the acting president, then hold a national referendum. I'm sure we would win a new election without any serious difficulty."

Informed political sources said the government party wants the new president chosen in accordance with the present constitution, which Park rewrote in 1972 to insure his continuance in office. It provides for the election by an electoral college which is now made up of Park supporters.

The Democratic Unification Party called on Acting President Choi Kyu-hah to release former President Yun Po-sun and former presidential candidate Kim Dae-jung. Both were under house arrest for opposition to Park and for advocating democratic government.

Meanwhile, the U.S. aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk and three other ships from the 7th Fleet arrived at three South Korean ports today in a show of force warning North Korea against military action. The carrier and the guided missile cruiser Jouett went to Pusan, on the south coast; the destroyer David R. Ray anchored in Inchon, 28 miles south of the North Korean border, and the salvage ship Bolster went to Chinhae, on the south coast.

Carter Up In Time Poll

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, who had a 2-to-1 lead in popularity over President Carter in public opinion polls this summer, now holds a lead of just 10 percentage points over Carter, Time magazine says.

A poll of 1027 voters conducted Oct. 23-25 by the research firm of Yankelovich, Skelly & White shows Kennedy, (D-Mass.) ahead of Carter 49 percent to 39 percent in popularity, the magazine says in its current edition.

Kennedy is expected to formally announce his candidacy for the 1980 Democratic nomination for president on Wednesday.

The poll also shows that although Carter trailed Republican presidential hopeful Ronald Reagan by four percent in August, the president has pulled ahead and leads Reagan by 45 percent to 41 percent. Time also says Carter has widened his earlier lead over Texan John Connally to 13 percentage points.

However, the poll says Kennedy continues to hold an even wider advantage over both Republicans.

GOP candidates pitted against each other showed Reagan gaining 42 percent of the popularity votes while Connally got 17 percent. Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee got 16 percent, and George Bush of Texas got 6.

The poll found that 76 percent said 'yes' to the statement, "It is time to forget Chappaquiddick and judge Kennedy by what he has done since then."

Setting Up New Education Dept.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Time is running short and Carter administration efforts to set up the new Department of Education are in high gear.

Under the law, the government has only six months to get the department in shape for operations after the Senate confirms the person named to head the agency. Senate confirmation of Judge Shirley Hufstedler, President Carter's nominee for education secretary, is expected in early December.

That means the reorganization force at the Office of Management and Budget likely will have to make the department a reality by next spring. It's an awesome task. The transition team has to consolidate 152 different federal programs for the fledgling department, which will have 17,000 employees and an annual budget of more than $14 million.

Union Strikes Another Union

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A union representing the professional staff of the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union struck the ACTWU today in a labor dispute.

The unusual strike, involving a union against a union, was called by the Federation of Union Representatives. An ACTWU spokesman in New York said the union represents about 275 to 300 employees in several locations in the United States.

FOUR spokesman Fred Nye of Charlotte said today professional staff personnel and organizers were involved in the strike. He said negotiations broke down Sunday night in a dispute over pay levels.

Nye said picket lines went up today in several locations, including Charlotte, Eden, Greensboro, Raleigh and Anderson, S.C.

Excavators Find Stone Tools

PITTSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Archaeologists digging through the site of what will be the B. Everett Jordan Reservoir have found stone tools they say may date back as far as 12,000 years.

The excavation began three months ago after the Army Corps of Engineers discovered artifacts apparently left behind centuries ago by nomadic tribes.

Bundy To Speak At Gatherings

Sam D. Bundy has three speeches scheduled for November.

Thursday, Nov. 8, he will speak at the annual meeting of the Pitt-Greene Electric Membership Corporation; Wednesday, Nov. 14, to the Christian Men's Fellowship of the First Christian Church of Greenville and Thursday, Nov. 15, during Ladies' Night at Cooper's Ruritan Club, Nashville. Tuesday, Nov. 20, he will attend a meeting of the Mount Olive College Board of Trustees.

Sixteen-Year-Old Ready To Die For A Homeland

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Muayed Kilani is a 16-year-old Palestinian "guerrilla cub" who wants to die for a country he has never seen.

"My father met his martyrdom for the sake of Palestine and, Allah willing, I shall die for the same cause," the lean, wiry schoolboy said during a break in combat training at the Palestine Liberation Organization's Chatilla camp here.

GUERRILLA CUBS — Muayed Kilani, right, is a 16-year-old Palestinian "guerrilla cub" who wants to die for a country he has never seen. The schoolboy was photographed during combat training at the PLO's Chitilla camp near Beirut last week. (AP Laserphoto)

With sweat pouring from his face, Kilani spoke with determination of the mission of the "cubs," aged 14 to 19, who will graduate and join one of eight guerrilla groups that make up the PLO. They average four hours of training a day.

"We are the sons of the Palestinian revolution, and we want to die revolutionaries," he said. "Our mothers fed us the love of Palestine with the milk of their breasts. The Palestine of our dreams is indeed more sacred to us than the reality of Palestine was to our fathers."

Trainer Abu Khaled roared a command, and the youngsters jumped and cried out in unison, "Revolution until victory!"

"A drop of sweat in training saves a drop of blood in combat," Abu Khaled reminded them. "Let your triumphant cry ring in enemy ears like a tocsin of bloodletting and utter death."

Holding Soviet-made Kalashnikov rifles, the boys thrust and zigzagged through their drills in a sprawling compound of tents and tumble-down, sun-bleached shacks.

"Some of us cursed our fathers because they failed to fight, but our sons will not curse us," said Kilani, brandishing his rifle and patting its butt.

His guerrilla father was killed in southern Lebanon two years ago, leaving a widow and three boys to "refuel the revolution" against Israel, he said.

"My mother has always been proud of my father's martyrdom, and we never felt like orphans," he said. "The Palestinian revolution is our eternal father."

Kilani, his mother and two brothers have since been living on the dole, a meagre 300 Lebanese pounds — $93 — a month, from Yasser Arafat's PLO.

Raising a portrait of Arafat and a four-color Palestinian flag, the boys marched under a group of pine trees at the head of a "cub formation."

"The white portion (of the flag) symbolizes our intentions, the green our land, the black our battles and the red our swords," he said.

Rams Win As Defense Holds Seahawks To Minus Yardage

Bradshaw Leads Steelers To Romp Over Redskins

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

"You don't design a day like this. You just go out there and it happens," Terry Bradshaw said of the Pittsburgh Steelers' offense.

He could have been talking about the Los Angeles Rams' defense, too.

Bradshaw, the Steelers' quarterback, virtually duplicated his Super Bowl performance (318 yards, four touchdowns) of last January when he ripped Washington for 311 yards and four TDs in a 38-7 victory over the Redskins.

The Steelers amassed 545 yards in total offense. That must have left the Seattle Seahawks shaking their heads. They managed 552 fewer yards.

Yes, you read it right. They finished with a minus seven yards in total offense against the aroused Los Angeles defense, surpassing the National Football League futility record previously held by Denver. The Broncos came out of a Sept. 10, 1967, game against Oakland with minus five.

In Sunday's other games it was Cleveland 24, Philadelphia 19; Dallas 16, the New York Giants 14; New England 26, Buffalo 6; Atlanta 17, Tampa Bay 14; Baltimore 38, Cincinnati 28; St. Louis 37, Minnesota 7; San Diego 20, Kansas City 14; Chicago 35, Detroit 7; Denver 10, New Orleans 3; Oakland 23, San Francisco 10, and the New York Jets 27, Green Bay 22.

Houston visits Miami Monday night.

"That's the best I've ever seen Bradshaw. He was exceptional," Washington Coach Jack Pardee marveled after the Steelers raised their record to 8-2 and retained their one-game lead over Cleveland in the American Conference's Central Division.

John Stallworth, who caught six passes for 126 yards, had an 11-yard TD catch in the first quarter and nabbed Bradshaw's last pass of the game just five plays into the third period with a reception for a TD covering 65 yards.

Rams 24, Seahawks 0

For the past few games, the "What's wrong with the Rams?" That talk had be accentuated by discomforting sounds from the stands — booing, then the shuffling of feet ad people headed toward the exits long before the final gun.

"It was nice to hear the crowd boo somebody else for a change," guard Dennis Herrah said after the Rams had demolished the Seahawks in the Kingdome. "I'd like to have seen people walk out in the fourth quarter," added defensive end Fred Dryer.

The victory put the Rams at 5-5, tied with New Orleans atop the National Conference West.

"It's been a miserable three weeks," Haden said. "Everybody's been on our backs." He'll be on the bench next Sunday in Chicago. After hitting 17 of 21 passes for 172 yards and two touchdowns against Seattle, he broke a finger on his passing hand in the second period.

Browns 24, Eagles 19

So did the Eagles, despite Wilbert Montgomery's 197 yards rushing and Harold Carmichael's record reception in a 106th consecutive game.

The Browns, trailing 19-10 late in the fourth period, cut the margin to two points on Brian Sipe's 5-yard pass to Ozzie Newsome, then got the winning TD with 55 seconds left on Mike Pruitt's 24-yard sprint.

Cowboys 16, Giants 14

Roger Staubach passed 32 yards to Drew Pearson for a touchdown with 2:24 to play, then guided Dallas into position for Rafael Septien's third field goal of the game, a 22-yarder with 3 seconds remaining that beat the Giants.

The Giants, whose four-game winning streak was halted, scored on Phil Simms TD passes of 32 yards to Johnny Perkins and 23 yards to Billy Taylor. Dallas, at 8-2, leads Washington and Philadelphia by two games in the NFC East.

Patriots 26, Bills 6

Steve Grogan passed for 350 yards and three touchdowns — including bombs of 63 and 34 yards to Stanley Morgan — while New England sacked Joe Ferguson seven times in the shellacking of the Bills.

The victory gave New England, 7-3, a temporary one-half game lead over Miami.

Falcons 17, Bucs 14

Steve Bartkowski pitched 4-yard TD pass to Jim Mitchell early in the fourth quarter and Bubba Bean raced 60 yards for a score with 1:22 to go to beat Tampa Bay. The Bucs, with the loss, lead Chicago in the NFC Central by two games.

Colts 38, Bengals 28

Bert Jones threw a TD pass, then reinjured his right shoulder, so Greg Landry took over and threw two second half scoring strikes to carry the Colts past Cincinnati.

"This is a real step forward for us, to be able to win the game without Bert," said Coach Ted Marchibroda. Without Jones calling the signals the past two years, Baltimore has staggered from contention.

Cardinals 37, Vikings 7

Ottis Anderson rushed for 164 yards and two TDs to lead the Cardinals past Minnesota. Anderson thus became the first St. Louis rookie to reach 1,000 yards. He ran 34 yards for one score and caught an 8-yard Jim Hart pass for the other one.

Chargers 20, Chiefs 14

Dan Fouts passed for 229 yards — failing to reach 300 for the fourth straight week — and one touchdown in San Diego's victory in Kansas City. "Oh, well," he shrugged.

The Chargers, 7-3, remained tied with Denver in first place in the AFC West.

Bears 35, Lions 7

Steve Schubert returned a punt 77 yards for one TD and Walter Payton rushed for 113 yards and two TDs (from 1 and 5 yards out) in Chicago's thumping of the Lions.

Broncos 10, Saints 3

The game's lone TD came in the fourth quarter, Craig Morton's 12-yard pass to Rick Upchurch capping a 76-yard, 17-play drive highlighted by Morton's 20-yarder to Haven Moses on third-and-7.

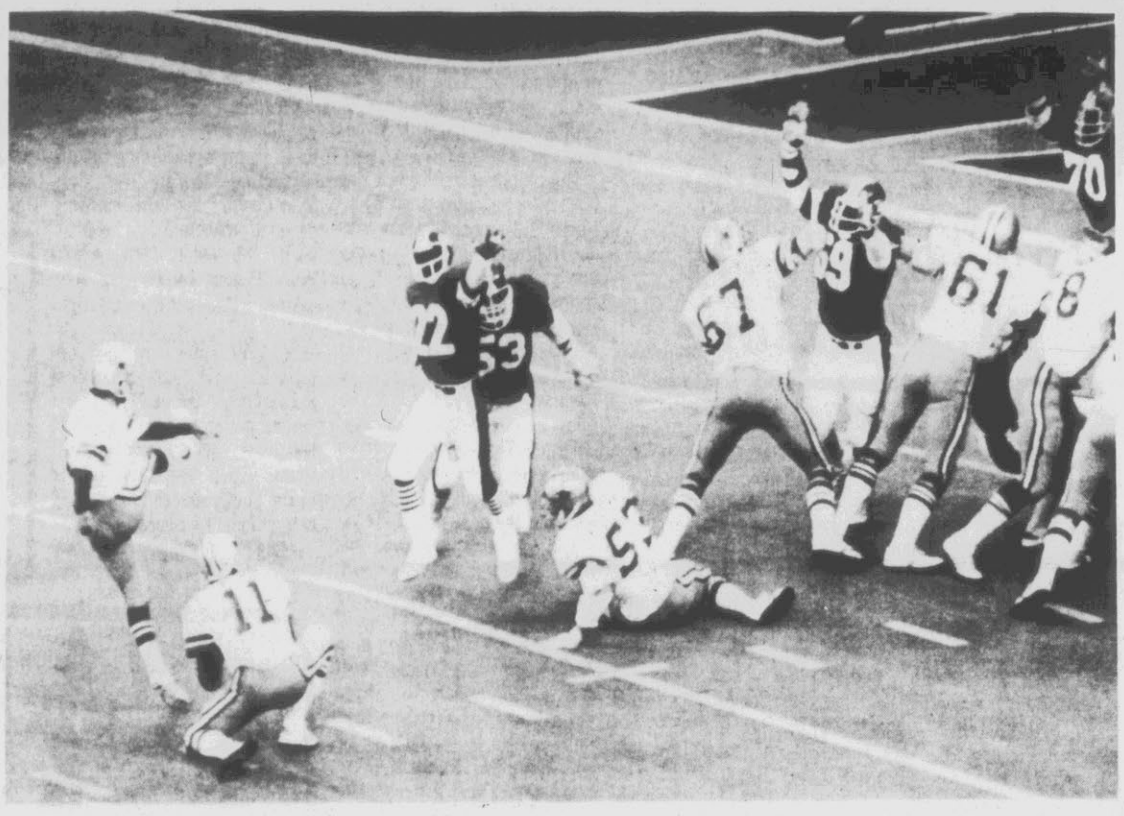

Raiders 23, 49ers 10

Ken Stabler hooked up with Cliff Branch on scoring passes of 8 and 9 yards to keep Oakland within one game of the AFC West lead and hand the 49ers their eighth loss in nine games, matched only by the Lions.

Jets 27, Packers 22

Richard Todd's TD passes of 6 yards to Bruce Harper and 32 yards to Jerome Barkum, Toni Linhart's two field goals and Greg Buttle's interception of a David Whitehurst pass at the Jets' 24-yard line in the final minute carried New York past Green Bay.

A Kick—A Win

HAMPTON, Ga. (AP) — While Neil Bonnett was winning the Dixie 500 Grand National stock car race, Richard Petty and Darrell Waltrip were waging a private battle with a bigger prize.

Petty and Waltrip are after the Winston Cup, awarded to the top NASCAR driver each season. Going into Sunday's race, Petty had an eight-point lead over Waltrip in the race for the cup. But Waltrip finished fifth to Petty's sixth Sunday and earned bonus points for briefly leading the race to take a two-point lead with one race remaining.

The championship will be decided in two weeks at Ontario, Calif.

Not since 1972, when Petty beat Bobby Allison for the championship, has the race for the Cup been so close.

"When we go to California, I will be racing one car. We've got to beat that car," said Waltrip, who has never won the championship. "As far as I'm concerned, that will be the only car on the race track."

Petty, who has won six championships, said, "I understand that Darrell is now ahead by two points. Well, it has been that kind of season. I've got to beat him by one position in California."

While Waltrip and Petty were battling farther back in the field, Bonnett waged a battle of his own before capturing the winner's share of the $191,950 Dixie 500.

Bonnett, rookie Dale Earnhardt and Cale Yarborough swapped the lead over the last 50 miles before Bonnett moved into first for good with four laps remaining.

Bonnett, who earned $20,000 with the victory, averaged 140.120 mph and finished one car length ahead of Earnhardt, who took home $16,700. Yarborough won a third-place check worth $13,150 and another $10,000 for leading the race the longest, six times for a total of 137 laps.

Bobby Allison's fourth place finish was worth $10,200.

The lead changed hands 23 times among seven drivers. Five caution flags were flown, slowing the race for 30 laps and keeping the average speed well below Petty's race record of 142.712 mph set in 1970.

Bonnett, of Hueytown, Ala., had captured two other titles this season in his Wood Brothers Mercury, winning the Mason-Dixon 500 in May and the Firecracker 400 in July. But in his last seven starts before Sunday's victory, Bonnett failed to finish.

"I'm just tickled to death the motor finished. I had to run hard all day long and the motor stayed together," said Bonnett. "We didn't push the engine to the limit like it's capable of doing, but as good as that thing ran today, it looks like it doesn't have a limit."

Yarborough, of Timmonsville, S.C., said his Oldsmobile couldn't keep up with Bonnett's Mercury or Earnhardt's Chevrolet.

Houston Faces Miami Tonight

MIAMI (AP) — A possible repeat of last year's shootout against the Houston Oilers had Miami Dolphins center Jim Langer tossing and turning in his hospital bed.

Last year, Houston outlasted Miami 35-30 in one of the wildest Monday night games ever played. It isn't likely to happen again, but that didn't calm Langer, who just had surgery to replace bone chips in his leg.

"You can ask our defensive people," Langer said. "Whenever they play against a rookie or someone new at a position, they try to do everything they can to confuse and intimidate him."

Mark Dennard will make his first start tonight against the Oilers. He spent most of the week getting a taste of what to expect from the Dolphins' nose tackle, Bob Baumhower.

"I'm not so nervous that I can go out and play, but it's exciting," said Dennard, a 10th-round draft choice last year from Texas A&M. Just in case, Langer will be on crutches along the sideline to give advice.

Buck's 10-Game Streak Ended By Supersonics

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

"The better we play defense," says Seattle's Gus Williams, "the easier it is to play offense."

The SuperSonics played both well enough Sunday night to beat Milwaukee 114-101 and snap the Bucks' 10-game National Basketball Association winning streak.

Despite being on the road, the Sonics were red hot from the start, outscoring Milwaukee 42-24 in the opening period. Williams scored 19 of his 27 points in that quarter.

"I don't usually shoot like that; it was just going for me tonight," said the backcourtman. "We were playing good defense and getting the good shots."

The Sonics hit 71 percent of their shots from the field in the first half and limited the Bucks to 36 percent shooting, the result being a 62-44 halftime advantage. Milwaukee came no closer than 12 points in the second half.

In other games, the Portland Trail Blazers beat the San Antonio Spurs 127-124 in overtime and the New Jersey Nets defeated the Kansas City Kings 101-98.

"I think we are more mentally ready to play now than we were at the beginning of the season," he said. "It's tough coming off two straight years in the playoffs and coming back to play in September."

Marques Johnson and Junior Bridgeman scored 20 points apiece for Milwaukee while Lonnie Shelton had 17 points and Dennis Johnson and Jack Sikma scored 15 each for the Sonics.

"It certainly was an off-night for us," said Bucks Coach Don Nelson, who called Seattle "the best defensive team in the league. They shot well, and the combination of the two beat us badly."

Blazers 127, Spurs 124

Portland overcame an eight-point deficit with 46 seconds remaining in regulation play to raise its record to 11-2, tops in the NBA.

Portland trailed 115-107 with 46 seconds remaining, but Tom Owens hit two field goals and Ron Brewer made a three-point jumper to cut the Blazers' disadvantage to 116-114 with 14 seconds left. T.R. Dunn deflected the Spurs' inbound pass and Maurice Lucas drove from midcourt for a layup that tied the game 10 seconds from the buzzer.

Lucas then scored six points in the five-minute overtime.

George Gervin of San Antonio led all scorers with 32 points. Owens scored 24 and Lucas finished with 18.

Nets 101, Kings 98

John Williamson scored 23 points, including two baskets after the score was tied 90-90 and two free throws that clinched the victory in the closing seconds.

The Kings had overcome a 20-point third-quarter deficit only to suffer their third straight loss on the road, despite 26 points from Phil Ford.

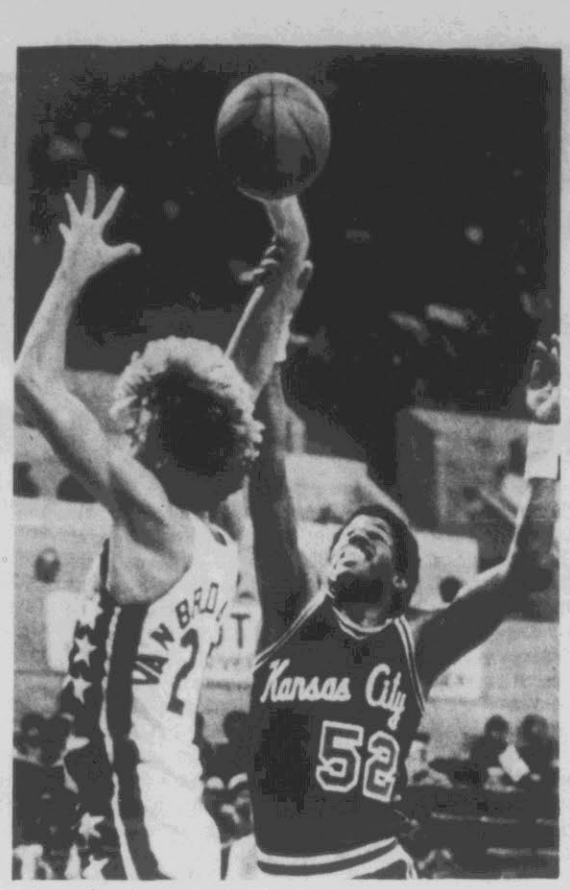

UNC Wins X-Country

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — North Carolina won the Atlantic Coast Conference cross country championship Saturday as the Tar Heels' Gary Hofstetter set a course record. Five North Carolina runners finished in the top 12.

Hofstetter ran the 10,000 meters in 30:42.8, breaking the mark of 31:24.0.

Behind him were Mike Cotton of Virginia, Martin Green of Maryland, Steve Francis and Dan Lyon, both of North Carolina State.

The Tar Heels piled up 37 points to No. 2 Maryland's 62. N.C. State had 77, defending champion Clemson 87, Virginia 122, Wake Forest 145, Duke 173 and Georgia Tech 174.

'Too-Tall' Feels Super Pressure

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (AP) — Too Tall Jones' first pro fight, a six-rounder in a little Mesilla Valley town against an obscure Mexican, generated more pressure than a Super Bowl.

"Oh, yes, much more," Too Tall said after surviving a last-round knockdown and gaining a controversial, loudly-booed split decision over jaunty Jesus (Yaqui) Meneses Saturday.

"I was much more tense, much more tight," Too Tall said.

"There was enormous pressure on me. I'm glad to get that first one out of the way, get it behind me. Now I can go on, and relax and buckle down and do my thing."

It was obvious that the giant Jones, 6-foot-9 and 255½ pounds, has a long way to go. Manager Dave Wolf was the first to admit it.

"It was a win. It wasn't the knockout, the overwhelming victory we may have wanted, but it was a win. We'll take it and go on from there," Wolf said.

"It was a learning process for him. A really good lesson. He needs a lot of activity, a lot of experience. This didn't damage him in any way.

And Too Tall, who played on three Super Bowl teams in a five-year career as a defensive end before retiring from the Dallas Cowboys, has a heavy schedule in front of him. His next bout is in Phoenix Nov. 13. He's also set in Washington, D.C., Nov. 24 and has tentative fights in Tucson, Ariz. and Dallas before the middle of December.

Meneses, a 6-2, 20-year-old who weighed in at 204, kept away in the early going, then began ducking Jones' 15-inch fist on the end of an 88-inch reach, ducking and going inside. And he piled up the points in the fourth and fifth rounds.

Early in the last round, in an exchange in his corner, Jones said he "walked into one." He went down, with Meneses half-falling on top of him. Jones said it was "more a push than a knockdown." Referee Buddy Basilico of Las Vegas, Nev. ruled it a knockdown, though he never started a count.

Stickers Fall, 2-0

ROCK HILL — The East Carolina field hockey squad ended its season with a 2-0 loss to Appalachian State on the final day of the Deep South Tournament, but not all the Pirates are through with field hockey for the year.

Three Pirate women were named to the Deep South squads which will begin the Southeast Regional playoffs next weekend at Towson State in Maryland. Making the Deep South II team were sophomores Carol Belcher of Virginia Beach, Va., and Dru Kennedy of Moorestown, N.J. Dana Salmons, another native of Virginia Beach and a freshman, was named to the Deep South III team.

ACC Teams Hoping Duke Can Produce A Miracle

By DICK BRINSTER
Associated Press Writer

Perhaps the would-be also-rans of the Atlantic Coast Conference should heed the words of Fleetwood Mac's "You Make Loving Fun," and send them to Duke's University's football team.

"I never did believe in miracles. But I've a feeling it's time to try."

Those words accurately sum up the predicament of Clemson, Maryland, North Carolina, Virginia and Wake Forest. With two ACC losses apiece, their chance for a share of the title with once-beaten North Carolina State rests with winless Duke.

What they need is the greatest upset since Jimmy Carter left the peanut farm for 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. Somewhere it is written that hope springs eternal in the human breast ... but there are limits.

Despite N.C. State's 30-28 loss to non-conference foe South Carolina, the Wolfpack needs only to defeat Duke Nov. 17 to claim the prize most experts said would belong to them before the race began.

The Wolfpack clinched at least a tie Saturday when Wake Forest's Demon Deacons ran out of prayers and North Carolina's Tar Heels ran out of time. Clemson shelled Wake Forest, 31-0, and Maryland upset North Carolina, 17-14.

But the biggest surprise of the day was Virginia's 31-0 victory at Georgia. Duke and Georgia Tech emerged from their game with identical 2-5-1 records after Tech won the battle of the have-nots, 24-14.

Midnight finally arrived for Wake Forest's Cinderella team, but the Deacons were offering no excuses.

"I give Clemson a good deal of credit," said Wake Forest Coach John Mackovic, whose team has shocked college football experts by winning seven of its nine games. "We'll bounce back and get ready for Duke."

Clemson buried Wake Forest because it was able to do what no other team had done — stop Deacon quarterback Jay Venuto. The Tigers limited him to 13 completions for 114 yards and intercepted him three times.

"They were like bees on honey," Venuto said of the Clemson secondary.

And it wasn't so much the pass rush, as Clemson Coach Danny Ford noted. It was the secondary.

"Wake Forest did a very good job in their pass blocking," said Ford, whose Tigers are now 6-2. "That's the hardest thing to do in football and I don't think we got to their quarterback but twice."

Quarterback Billy Lott also had a big hand in the victory. He ran and passed well and put points on the scoreboard early when Wake Forest made key mistakes. Lott, freshman tailback Chuck McSwain and fullback Marvin Sims were the dominant offensive figures for Clemson.

"The seniors came back to play their last game in Death Valley and did a whale of a job," said Ford. "We're just real proud of them — offensively, defensively, the kicking game — all of them."

Virginia moved to within a game of its first winning season in 11 years by crushing an unsuspecting Georgia. But Cavalier Coach Dick Bestwick wondered if the Bulldogs, who already had lost to Clemson and Wake Forest, might have been taking a third ACC team lightly.

"I don't know how they approach their Atlantic Coast Conference games ... but you've got to play all 11," said Bestwick of Vince Dooley's team, which despite being 4-0 in the Southeastern Conference, now stands 4-4 overall.

"That's obviously the best game we've played since I've been here," said Bestwick, whose team stands 5-3.

"There are two things that are very obvious," said Dooley. "Virginia came to play and indeed they are a good football team."

"They had the end zone well defended and that play (a dump pass to fullback Billy Johnson) takes four or five seconds to run ... we know that," said North Carolina Coach Dick Crum.

But the clock, which read six seconds prior to the eight-yard gain to the Maryland 21, showed time had expired, and with it the Tar Heel hopes of an ACC crown.

N.C. State and South Carolina threw defense to the wind and the result was predictable, according to Wolfpack Coach Bo Rein.

"It was a game where we came back, but not enough to win," Rein said after the Wolfpack made up all but two points of a 16-point deficit and nearly recovered an onside kick with one minute remaining in the game.

Georgia Still Only Two Wins Away From Sugar

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Yes, Sugar Bowl, there is a Virginia. Unfortunately, there also is a Georgia, which still is only two victories away from a Jan.1 trip to New Orleans despite Saturday's embarrassing 31-0 thrashing by Virginia.

Georgia's loss left the Bulldogs at 4-4 overall. But they have had the presence of mind to win their four Southeastern Conference games while dropping their four non-league affairs.

Still to come are Florida (SEC) next weekend, Auburn (SEC) on Nov.17 and Georgia Tech (independent) on Dec.1. If the Bulldogs win the first two, they go to the Sugar Bowl regardless of what top-rated Alabama does.

They'll go even if Alabama ties Georgia for the SEC lead, which the Crimson Tide did Saturday by defeating Mississippi State, 24-7. The Orange and Cotton Bowls, of course, are solidly in Georgia's corner and are ready to wage a duel to the death over Alabama — if the occasion warrants.

The Orange Bowl would like to pair the Crimson Tide in a national championship showdown with runnerup Nebraska, which nipped Missouri 23-20 on Dean Sukup's 19-yard field goal with 3:15 remaining. The Cotton Bowl has visions of a match between Alabama and fourth-ranked Houston, a 21-10 winner over Texas Christian.

Third-ranked Southern California, undefeated but tied, maintained its Pacific-10 Conference lead by downing Arizona 34-7 as Paul McDonald passed for a school record 380 yards and Charles White rushed for 167. If the Trojans make it back to the Rose Bowl, they likely will face the Ohio State-Michigan Big Ten survivor. Tenth-ranked Michigan walloped Wisconsin 54-0 as Butch Woolfolk scored three times, including the longest run in the school's history, a 92-yarder.

Seventh-ranked Oklahoma remained tied with Nebraska for the Big Eight lead by routing Oklahoma State 38-7 as Billy Sims scored four times. Eighth-ranked Texas and No.9 Arkansas remained on Houston's heels in the Southwest Conference along with idle Baylor. Texas edged Texas Tech 14-6 while Arkansas drubbed Rice 34-7.

Alabama stretched the nation's longest winning streak to 17 games and set an SEC mark of 21 in a row by defeating Mississippi State as Steadman Shealy rushed for 190 yards, most ever by an Alabama quarterback, while backup Don Jacobs scored one TD and passed for another.

"I'm glad I'm not a fan because you never know what Alabama is going to do," said Shealy. "We've got a great test coming up next weekend (at Louisiana State) and it's now time for us to start playing like national champions."

Nebraska played like potential champions for 44½ minutes, rolling to a 20-6 lead over Missouri. But the Tigers capped a 90-yard drive by pulling within 20-12 with 23 seconds left in the third period and they needed only eight more seconds to tie the game.

Nebraska's Anthony Steels fumbled the ensuing kickoff, Missouri's Orlando Pope grabbed it out of the air and ran 17 yards for a touchdown and Phil Bradley's 2-point conversion pass to Tim Hornof knotted the score.

After Sukup put the Cornhuskers in front again, Missouri marched 69 yards to the Nebraska 11. With three seconds left, Coach Warren Powers disdained a game-tying field goal attempt but defensive end Derrie Nelson trumped the gamble when he broke through and sacked Bradley.

"Our football team wasn't ready to play a team like Nebraska for a tie," Powers explained. "I don't think my kids wanted to go for the field goal; they wanted the win."

McDonald set Southern Cal records with 25 completions for 380 yards, including touchdown strikes of 17 and 42 yards to Kevin Williams and a 5-yarder to Vic Rakhshani.

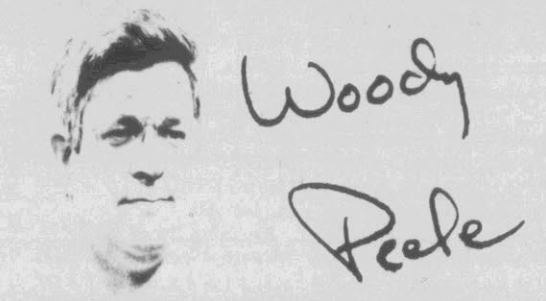

Terald Clark rushed for 103 yards and two touchdowns to lead Houston over TCU and Todd Bell returned a blocked punt 16 yards to spark Ohio State's romp over Illinois.

Wally Woodham, who lost his starting job a week ago, came off the bench and threw two touchdown passes as Florida State scored three times in the final period to overhaul Cincinnati after trailing 21-7. "I thought we were beat; I thought we were whipped," admitted Coach Bobby Bowden.

Texas held off Texas Tech as freshman Rick McIvor, the Longhorns' third-string quarterback, threw his first collegiate touchdown pass and sophomore Brad Beck ran 11 yards for a fourth-quarter score. Arkansas' Kevin Scanlon passed for two touchdowns and ran for two against Rice.

Freshman Dan Marino's two touchdown passes helped Pitt turn back Syracuse. Vagas Ferguson rushed for 155 yards and a touchdown as Notre Dame blanked Navy. Jeff Davis returned one of three Clemson interceptions for a touchdown as the Tigers routed Wake Forest and Mark Herrmann passed for 256 yards and two touchdowns as Purdue topped Iowa.

In the wildest game of all, Furman outlasted Davidson 63-55 in the highest scoring contest since the NCAA began keeping records in 1937. The teams also set a record by combining for 17 touchdowns and the 50 points in the second quarter (Furman won the period, 35-15) was a record for one period.

Quick now, how many NCAA Division I-A teams from North Carolina (and there are seven of them) were winners this past Saturday in college football?

The answer: one. It was East Carolina.

It may be one of the few times that the Pirates are able to make that statement, since it is a rare Saturday in which all of the other members are losers. Naturally, Appalachian State was a loser, since it was the Pirates' victim. But also losing were N.C. State, North Carolina, the Cinderella Deacons from Wake Forest, Duke, and Western Carolina.

The result could end up seeing all of the state's teams omitted from the Associated Press and United Press International polls this week.

East Carolina's victory over Appalachian did not come easy. The Mountaineers, despite their record, always seem to come up very strong for the Pirates in Boone.

And even though the Pirates won the game, they still came away from Mountaineer country with some bad memories.

The second of the two team buses suffered engine trouble, causing several hours delay in part of the team's return to Greenville. WITN-TVs station wagon also had engine trouble, causing that station's personnel covering the game a delay in leaving.

And our own memories are cool ones. Our motel room turned out to be without heat, and we had to travel down to North Wilkesboro late at night to find a heated one.

Anthony Collins has a chance to make a run at Carlester Crumpler's career school rushing record of 2,889 yards, depending on his yardage for the next three games and those of next year.

Currently, Collins has rushed for 1,376 yards, not quite enough yet to move him onto the list of the top ten producers for the Pirates, career-wise. He needs 1,449 to surplant Billy Wallace, who currently resides there.

But if Collins can keep up the 100-yard per game rushing, 14 games would put him very, very close to Crumpler's total and would surely surpass number two Butch Colson.

Currently, Theodore Sutton has rushed for a career total of 1,888 and stands sixth on the list. He needs just over 200 to pass former teammate Eddie Hicks, who with 2,101 yards, is in fifth place. With luck, he could climb past number three Ken Strayhorn, who had 2,155.

Leander Green is also making waves. His 805 yards passing for this season stands tied for seventh among the top ten, with three games left to play. His completion total of 57 is eighth. Vern Davenport, with 23 catches, has tied for tenth place on the list, while Collins, with 54 points, has also tied for tenth.

Green's total offense in his career, now 3,012, is fourth among the Pirates of the past, and is right behind Colson's 3,025 total. In passing, Green has 1,821 yards, firmly in fourth place on the list. His completions, 117, ranks fourth.

Tight end Billy Ray Washington has 953 yards in career receptions, good enough for fourth on the list, and he can still move up.

Both Green and kicker Bill Lamm have moved onto the top ten list in scoring. Green has 118 points, putting him in eighth place, while Lamm with 108, is tenth. They knocked off Jim Woody and Willie Hawkins, who had 107 and 104 respectively.

Carlen Appreciates Contract Extension

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Jim Carlen said he appreciates the "endorsement" which the University of South Carolina trustees gave to his football program in extending his coaching contract two years.

Carlen's future at South Carolina was the subject of much speculation after the trustees had voted in early September not to renew the dual contract under which Carlen serves as head football coach and athletic director for all sports but basketball.

But this weekend, both the trustees and university President James B. Holderman praised Carlen — verbally and contractually.

Holderman announced Saturday that the trustees had voted to extend Carlen's coaching contract through Dec. 31, 1984. Carlen currently receives a salary of $56,680.

"In light of the success of this football season, it is appropriate that we recognize the accomplishments of Coach Carlen," Holderman said.

"The Board of Trustees and the administration are fully supportive of our athletic program," he said. "It is our goal to attain success in all endeavors of the university, in academics and in athletics. Certainly, they both bring honor and recognition to the institution and to the state."

The 1979 Gamecock squad had a 6-2 record following Saturday's 30-28 victory over North Carolina State. Carlen's record at USC is 29-24-1.

Approval came last week in a telephone canvass of the board, Chairman R. Markley Dennis said.

Dennis said the extension calls for no increase in Carlen's present salary — an undisclosed amount — and does not affect his role as athletic director, at least for the present.

downs and 199 yards while Miami quarterback Bob Griese had the best statistical game of his career with 23 completions in 33 attempts for 349 yards.

But several factors make another shootout unlikely:

—Campbell's bruised thigh has slowed him to just 41 yards on 14 carries in the Oilers' last two games.

—The steadily improving Dolphins' defense is now the second-best in the National Football League against the run. Five teams have managed fewer than 100 yards rushing in Miami's nine games this year, and no individual runner has broken 100 yards.

—Both quarterbacks, Griese and Houston's Dan Pastorini, have struggled this year. Griese had his first solid game of the season last week when he passed for 287 yards against Green Bay. Pastorini has been intercepted 14 times and has hit just 46.4 percent of his passes.

—Last week, the Dolphins lost halfback Delvin Williams, Langer and reserve fullback Norm Bulaich to injuries. Promising fourth-year pro Gary Davis will start in Williams' place and Bob Torrey, a New York Giants reject, will spell Larry Csonka at fullback.

But the game is vital for each team. Both Miami and Houston are 6-3 this season and each is in a thick cluster of playoff contenders. Last year, Houston eventually beat Miami 17-9 here in a wild-card playoff game.

The Dolphins are battling New England in the AFC East, while Houston is struggling against Cleveland to challenge Pittsburgh in the AFC Central.

Miami is a three-point favorite, the oddsmakers say. Club officials expect a crowd of 65,000 in the 72,000-seat Orange Bowl. The game, televised at 9 p.m. by ABC, will be blacked out in the Miami area.

Anticipated Recession Hasn't Shown Up In 1979

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whatever happened to the 1979 recession?

Well, it didn't happen in 1979, at least not yet. Evidence continues to accumulate that the economy is turning up, not down, as the year draws to a close.

The index of economic indicators that came out last week was up by 0.8 percent, the biggest advance in 14 months. Factory orders for September, also reported last week, rose 3.9 percent, the most in a year.

The growth in the economy has frustrated efforts to curb inflation. Wholesale prices increased another 1 percent in October, the government said Thursday.

Unemployment rose slightly last month, to 6 percent, but was still lower than anyone would have predicted a few months ago. And employment increased by 305,000, a business survey showed.

The economy, in fact, is looking downright robust.

"It's the case of the missing recession. It's out there somewhere, but nobody can find it," says Charles L. Schultze, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

"The economy is simply not behaving in response to economic weakness as it used to," Lyle E. Gramley, a council member, said in an interview Friday.

Gramley said one reason for continued growth is that consumers are spending much more in relation to their income than they used to, the result of "being motivated by inflationary expectations."

Treasury Secretary G. William Miller, who declared in September that the nation was in a recession, and that it was half over, says the economy is giving off "false signals." But he has retracted his half-over statement.

Miller wasn't the only one who was fooled. A sizable 2.4 percent increase in the nation's gross national product in the third quarter caught nearly everyone off guard, including most private forecasters.

George Perry, an economist at the Brookings Institution who also thought a recession was underway, said the most surprising economic statistics were the September home-building figures, which showed housing starts at an annual rate of 1.9 million during the month.

"Everybody underestimated housing and how strong it would be even with the high interest rates of summer," he said in an interview. He said "one had to wonder" whether interest rates were high enough.

It is generally accepted that the nation's GNP, the value of total output of goods and services in the economy, including housing, must decline for at least two consecutive quarters for a recession to occur.

The GNP had declined at a 2.3 percent rate in the second quarter, and just about everyone else had taken it as a foregone conclusion that the third quarter GNP would decline as well.

The National Bureau of Economic Research, which makes the offical determination of a recession, said after a meeting on Oct. 25 that the "the recent strength of the economy" makes any such assessment premature. It scheduled another meeting in December.

Most forecasters still expect a recession to occur, especially in the wake of the new measures announced by the Federal Reserve Board on Oct. 6 to curtail growth of the money supply. The actions resulted in another big jump in interest rates, and the housing industry already is feeling the strain.

But the events in the third quarter have led forecasters to be more cautious in predicting when the downturn might begin.

Gramley said the impact of the Fed's actions probably won't show up in the economic statistics until early next year.

"The big issue is what effects the rise in interest rates has had on the outlook for housing and other sectors of spending," he said. "It's premature to make any judgment, except that the uncertainties have increased."

He said the nation entered October "with a much stronger economy than anticipated" and added he would not be surprised to see it grow again in the fourth quarter, although not so much as in the third.

But while the economy isn't yet sinking, inflation is still soaring. Administration economists have given up all hope of reducing inflation below 10 percent by the end of the year, and expect it to remain at the current level of about 13 percent through December at least, although maybe just slightly under.

Robert Russell, director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, said Friday there is "no realistic way to prevent the underlying rate of inflation from increasing" in 1980, and predicted price increases of between 9 percent and 10 percent for the year.

Regarding the outlook for inflation and the economy, Perry said, "I'm worried we will not get away from all those upward pressures on prices. I'm worried that wages may catch up with prices. I'm worried in any direction you look, and with good reason."

Trucking Family Takes To Life On The Road

By GREG STONE
Associated Press Writer

STONINGTON, Conn. (AP) — Sue Gagne sat on the asphalt curb outside a convenience store just off Interstate 95 trying to amuse her two children.

Jasmine, 2, and Jed, 1, were getting impatient. The family dog, a terrier cross-breed known as Tanya, watched patiently as the morning traffic rolled by.

Sue was waiting for her husband, David, to repair the engine on the used tractor-trailer rig they had bought a few months ago. It had broken down the night before.

"Would you believe it, the engine dropped," Gagne muttered.

Jasmine whined.

"They like to be on the move. They don't like to stay still long," the 24-year-old mother and apprentice truck driver explained.

Gagne is of late an independent trucker from Dover, N.H. Like Roman soldiers of ancient times and an increasing number of truckers, he hauls his family with him on the long treks across the country.

"Why not? I mean, that rig has everything a Winnebago does except running water and a toilet. And you can find those at truck stops," Gagne, 25, says. In fact, he adds, the life he and his family lead isn't very different from that of cross-country campers.

The Gagnes are known on the circuit as a truck family. The kids sleep in in the back of the rig, the parents forward. They eat in truck stops and restaurants along the way. It beats getting lonely, Gagne said. His wife added that the route was an improvement over housework.

Gagne has been driving heavy rigs since he was 18. Until recently, he worked for a meat-packing firm. But in July he made what he said was the next logical step up a trucker's career ladder. He bought a 1973 rig, investing about $15,000 in it.

"When we were getting ready to buy the truck, he used to call me and say, 'Think about it,'" Mrs. Gagne said, explaining the process by which she, Jasmine, Jed and Tanya wound up making a trailer rig their home.

"I said I'd try it a couple weeks at a time and see how it works," she said.

Mrs. Gagne says she's learning to drive the rig. A lot of women drive trucks, she said.

On this particular day, as Gagne struggled to correct his rig's engine problems, the family was on its way to Wheeling, W.Va., with a load of candy from Boston.

They planned to stop to visit relatives in Pennsylvania. After reaching West Virginia — who knows — Gagne said. They could pick up a new freight load there and wind up in Texas.

"It's great for the kids. Most kids their age are tied down to home and a nursery school. They're out seeing the country," Gagne said.

When Jasmine and Jed reach school age, the Gagnes don't expect to be hauling freight. They have ambitions of owning a truck fleet and running a farm in New Hampshire.

They don't consider themselves nomads. Before they bought the rig, they built a house in Dover. Mrs. Gagne said she enjoyed being a housewife. But she says she also enjoys being with her husband when he's on the road for weeks at a time, rather than at home alone with the children.

Gagne finally had the rig in working order.

He swept up Jasmine and Jed from the curb with both arms and hoisted them into the cab. The two were smiling. Tanya followed, then Sue and David.

Problems For Poster Child

DANVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Robin Benson's world shrank five years ago, from a dizzying whirl of parades, dinners and attention, to the steel confines of a wheelchair.

She has yet to get over the trauma.

Robin, 13, has been paralyzed since birth from the thighs down, afflicted by spina bifida, commonly known as open spine. It wasn't always a handicap.

From 1971 through 1974, Robin was Kentucky's March of Dimes poster child. A poster child is, by design, an attractive child whose plight causes adults to reach into their wallets for donations to a charity.

"I sure did," she said. "Everything about it, while it lasted."

Her mother, Karen Benson, saw the opportunity — and the possible problems.

"We couldn't deprive her of that opportunity," she said. "She was in the Kentucky Derby parade, she did two telethons a year, she went to Chicago, she appeared at walk-a-thons, luncheons, things like that.

"But I figured being a poster child might cause her some problems, and it has," Mrs. Benson said. "She has had reality problems, not knowing or facing what she has to do. She learned to use her handicap."

George Benson agreed.

"Those are the personality-forming years, and for her it was a fantasy," he said. "Everyone catering to her. That's not the way the real world is. I still see a lot of that in Robin's attitude."

Robin's real world the past few years has been the environment of any 13-year-old. She goes to school, nurtures silent crushes for a couple of boys at school, and battles the books.

Her troubles began shortly after her reign ended. Her grades were so low that she had to repeat the sixth grade. Even now, she gets lazy and won't concentrate on gaining self-reliance, her parents said. She gives herself a "half-and-half" rating.

"It's hard for kids her age to face the pressures," Mrs. Benson said. "But in her case it's doubly hard. But she'll never make it if she doesn't."

Charles Pratt, who is active in Prime Movers, a Louisville research agency concerned with rights of the disabled, said he isn't surprised by Robin's troubles.

"The poster-child image is created for the purpose of fund-raising," he said. "It is not created for her to become independent or self-reliant.

"The image is one of a person who is cheerful and very dependent. The whole image is pity. Charitable organizations use that as a very strong tool."

There is hope for Robin, however. Lately, her report cards have been sprinkled with better grades. And she's only bitter part of the time, she says, "when I think that I'll never not be handicapped."

Triplets In Same Class

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The three Fort Lauderdale women don't usually take the same classes at the University of Florida. But this quarter, the Donlin triplets landed in the same French class.

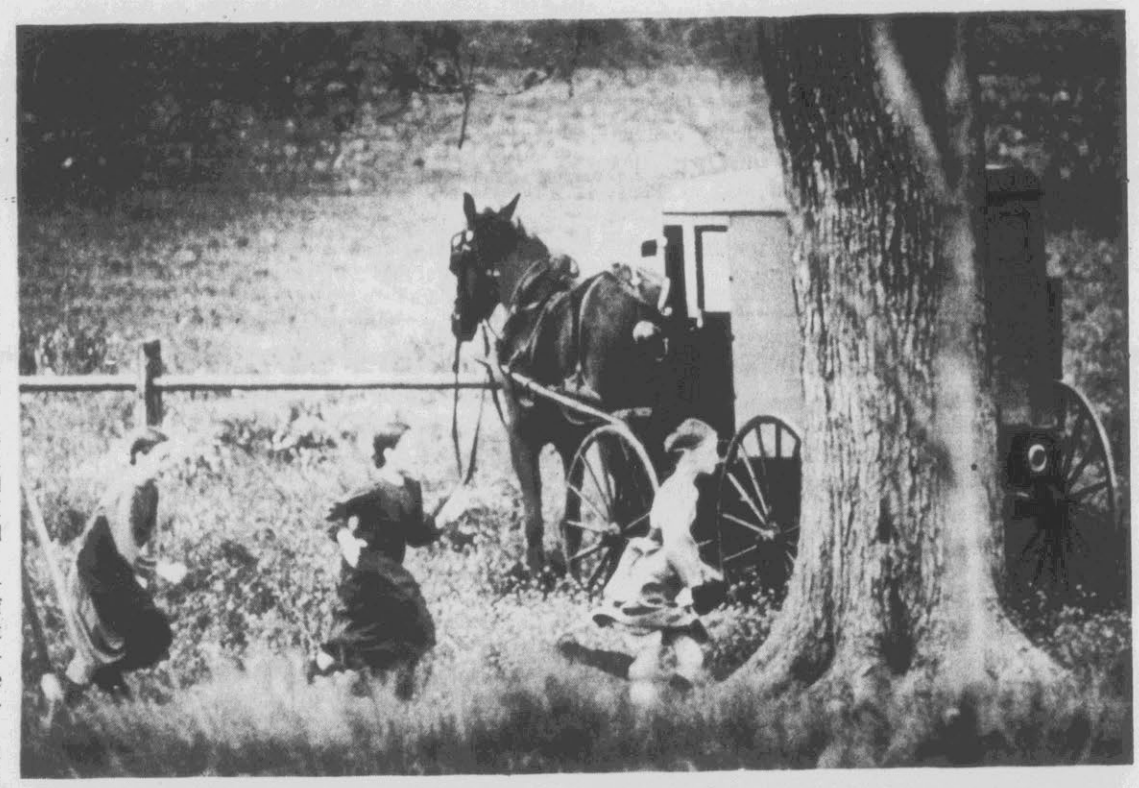

The sisters, Lisa, Mary and Susan Donlin, 20, said they drew numerous questions and stares from their classmates on the first day of school.

"The first day we didn't sit together," said Lisa, a political science major. "People stared and asked if we were sisters. I really freaked them out and told them no."

The women say a fluke landed them in the same section of a beginning French course. But they do participate in many activities together, playing on the same softball team and modeling for catalogs.

The trio says even best friends still confuse their identities. Mary, who is studying psychology, said customers got confused when they all worked as waitresses at the same restaurant.

"People think it bothers us when they don't know which one we are," Susan said. "It really doesn't bother us. I'd rather they ask than guess."

Sell Blood For Fuel Program

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Members of three motorcycle clubs raised $240 to provide fuel for the indigent elderly this winter by selling their blood Saturday.

The Rev. Mike Aiken, director of Fayetteville Urban Ministries, praised the bikers, many of whom were wearing their club patches.

Bikers participating in the program came from the "Wings of Hell" club in Fayetteville and the "Satan's Avengers" clubs in Fayetteville and Wilmington.

WAGE-PRICE FREEZE

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — the new Danish government has imposed a freeze on wages and prices for the rest of the year. Prime minister Anker Joergensen said the freeze was the first step in reshaping Denmark's economy to get rid of a perennial balance-of-payments deficit.

Church Says It's Trying Mediate Bolivian Strife

By TOM WELLS
Associated Press Writer

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — The Roman Catholic Church says it is trying to mediate between Bolivia's new military president and representatives of Congress as opposition to Col. Alberto Natusch's coup continues.

"The theme of the mediation is that power should be turned over to the Congress and that it should be that body that elects a new president," said Auxiliary Bishop Genaro Prata after meeting Sunday with representatives of both sides.

Congress, which was elected in July after 10 years of military rule, was dissolved by Natusch after he ousted President Walter Guevara on Thursday. None of the major political parties has indicated support for the new strong man, and a crippling general strike, now in its fifth day, has been joined by the national businessmen's group.

Informed sources said opposition to the coup had spread to Cochabamba, Bolivia's third largest city, where the police declared themselves opposed to Natusch.

While the church was trying to bring peace, the new government declared martial law, ordered press censorship and sent two air force jets screaming over San Francisco Plaza in downtown La Paz with guns blazing, scattering students and workers protesting the coup.

No casualties were reported, and witnesses said it appeared the jets were firing into the air rather than into the crowd. But shortly after fighting broke out in the downtown area between troops and demonstrators, and shooting was heard into the night.

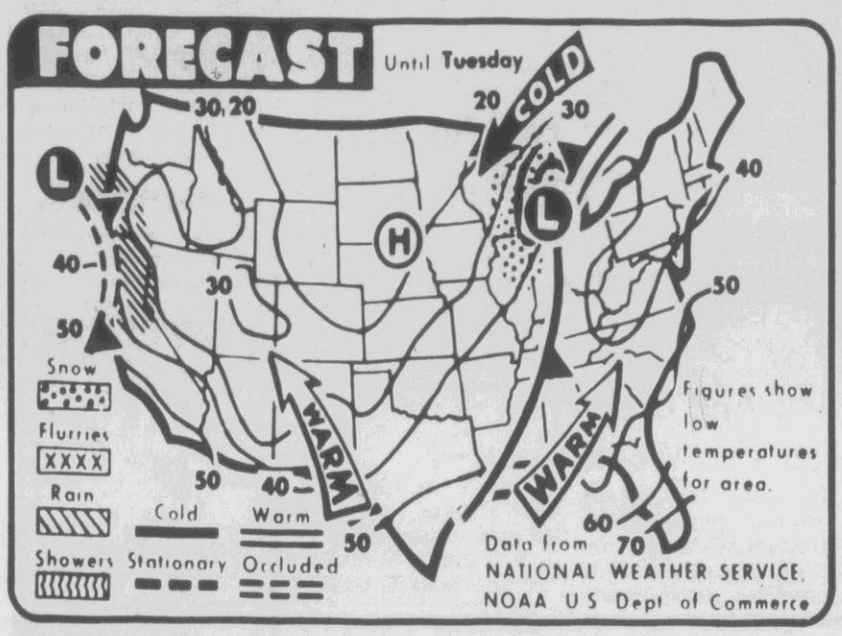

Red Cross officials said two persons were treated for gunshot wounds.

The Red Cross reported at least 20 persons killed and 40 wounded Saturday night when troops for five hours attacked opponents of the coup building barricades in the streets of La Paz.

In a television address, Natusch, a 47-year-old rightist, accused "anti-democratic and anti-social sectors" of trying to "change our way of life for a totalitarian and anti-national version."

Another broadcast attacked former Presidents Victor Paz Estenssoro and Hernan Siles Zuazo, the leaders of the country's two biggest political parties, and the union leaders who called the general strike.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Snow is forecast over parts of the Great Lakes today into early Tuesday. Rain is expected over the Central Pacific coast states. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press

A high pressure covering the Eastern Seaboard will continue to bring sunny, cool weather to North Carolina for the next several days.

The system is expected to continue slowly eastward and as a result, temperatures will warm.

Highs today should be in the 50s in the mountains ranging to the 60s at the coast. The lows will be in the 30s in the West and the 40s at the coast. Tuesday's high should be in the 60s.

Across the Tar Heel state Sunday, skies were sunny and temperatures were in the upper 50s to low 60s. Some points in the mountains recorded temperatures in the low 50s.

The high for Sunday, 61, was recorded in Cherry Point, Fayetteville, Hickory and New Bern. Grandfather Mountain recorded the low of 44.

Temperatures this morning ranged from 20s in the mountains to 40s in the Southeast. There was no rain recorded during the past 24 hours and it should remain that way until the middle of the week.

FIREMEN BATTLE SUNDAY MORNING BLAZE — Pitt County firemen from three departments battle a blaze Sunday morning that destroyed the home of Sam Coley, of Rt. 2, Ayden. According to firemen on the scene, the brick home was blazing in the center when the first fire units arrived from Ayden. Ayden firemen were assisted by departments from Winterville and Grifton. Assistant Fire Marshal Terry Payne said a smoke alarm woke Coley and his wife, and they escaped the flames. Value of the house was placed at $50,000, and cause of the fire was not immediately known. There were no injuries reported in the 3:30 a.m. fire. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Family Hires Lawyer To Probe Jail Death

NASHVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The family of Hardean Massenburg, a 31-year-old epileptic who died in the Nash County Jail over two weeks ago, has hired an attorney to probe into questions they want answered about his death.

Massenburg died Oct. 20 of a fractured skull, according to a Nash County Medical Examiner. He injured his head when he had an epilcptic seizure and fell from a bench next to his cell, local officials believe.

But Massenburg's relatives, who live near the Edgecombe County town of Whitakers, "feel some things have happened that they don't understand," said James Smith, the Henderson lawyer they have hired to look into the death.

"They feel there might have been some foul play, but they don't know. They're not saying anybody has done anything wrong."

One thing that bothers family members, Smith said, is that they heard Massenburg yelling when they went to the jail about 7 p.m. on the Saturday night he died. But the attending doctor said Massenburg was already dead when he got there about 7 p.m.

The family became suspicious when Nash County Sheriff Franklin D. Brown refused to release the name of the victim to the news media, Smith said.

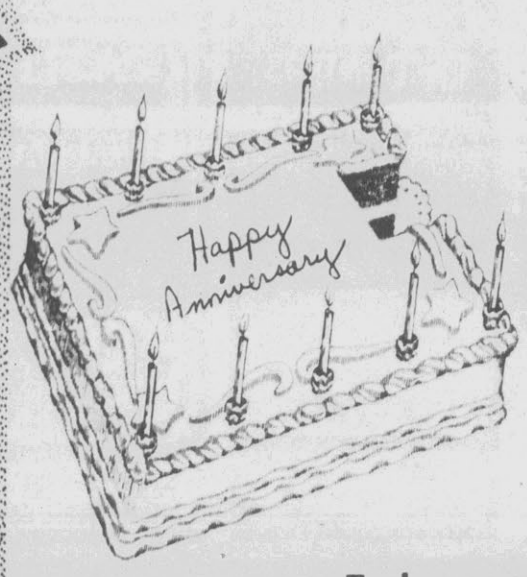

Brown said last week that in hindsight, he regrets his decision to withhold the name. He said it is at the core of a local furor that has arisen over Massenburg's death. Brown said he withheld Massenburg's name in an effort to do the family a favor, "but it backfired."

The doctor who treated Massenburg during the four days he was in the county jail said in an interview that if he had known how serious his condition was, he would have transferred Massenburg.

But Dr. F.C. Bryant said Massenburg told him several times after a fall in the jail that he was all right and did not want treatment. Massenburg appeared to present no danger to himself or others, which would have been the criteria for shifting him from the jail to a hospital, Bryant said.

Massenburg was arrested by the state Highway Patrol on Oct. 16 on charges of drunken driving and driving while his license was permanently revoked. It was the latest in a series of alcohol-related driving offenses for Massenburg which dated back to 1976.

GOREN BRIDGE

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AQJ75 ♡J10632 ♢K6 ♣7
Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one heart. What action do you take?

A.—Normally, if an opponent opens in your long suit, you should pass and await developments. However, this is not the hand for that course of action. Your second suit is as long and far stronger than your heart suit. Bid one spade. If you do not overcall now, you will be awkwardly placed later, no matter how the auction unfolds.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q92 ♡A7 ♢QJ962 ♣872
Partner opens the bidding with one no trump. What do you respond?

A.—You can't respond two diamonds, because that shows a weak hand. However, you aren't strong enough to jump to three diamonds. The choice is between raising to two or three no trump. Since you have a reasonably good five-card suit, which rates to produce four tricks opposite as little as ace or king doubleton in partner's hand, we would choose the more aggressive action.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AK8 ♡AQ7 ♢AK108 ♣KQ6
What is your opening bid?

A.—With 25 high-card points, you are too strong for two no trump—that shows a maximum of 24 points. The correct opening bid is three no trump. Armed with the knowledge that you have a balanced hand of 25-27 points, partner will be perfectly placed to decide the level of the final contract.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q93 ♡AK652 ♢764 ♣K8
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	2 ♢	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♢	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	5 ♡	Pass

What action do you take?

A.—There is no denying the fact that you have a minimum opening bid and that you have done nothing, so far, to discourage partner's efforts to get to slam. Nevertheless, there is one key feature of your hand that has not been revealed by the auction—you can guard against the loss of two fast club tricks, a suit which partner obviously cannot control. Bid six hearts. Partner's spade suit should furnish enough discards to enable you to make slam against any opening lead, assuming normal splits.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable with 60 on score, you hold:
♠KQ83 ♡J105 ♢K9 ♣QJ93
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 NT	Pass	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	3 ♢	?

What action do you take?

A.—Resist the temptation to bid three no trump in an effort to close out the rubber, for partner might have made a tactical one no trump opening on shaded values. A far more profitable course is to double. Regardless of the size of penalty you collect, and it could be handsome indeed, you will still be overwhelming favorites to win the rubber on a later hand.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠1094 ♡A6 ♢QJ10 ♣AK986
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
1 NT	Pass	2 ♠	Pass

What action do you take?

A.—North should have a six card suit for his two-spade rebid—with a balanced hand and five spades, he would have passed one no trump, and with a distributional hand, he would have bid another suit. However, partner's strength cannot be determined. Since you have three quick tricks, fine spade support and a ruffing value, we recommend a raise to three spades in the hope that partner can bid a game.

Q.7—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠83 ♡95 ♢AK854 ♣Q632
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South
1 ♠	2 ♡	?

What action do you take?

A.—What do you want to do? With two low spades, you cannot support partner's suit. And with only 9 HCP, introducing your diamond suit at the three-level, which would be forcing, risks far more than it could gain. Pass. If partner also passes, the most you will lose is a partscore.

Q.8—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J764 ♡6 ♢872 ♣KQ763
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 NT	Pass	?

What action do you take?

A.—It is a delight to hear that partner has a strong, balanced hand. However, don't let that deter you from doing your duty. Your hand is unbalanced, and better designed for suit play than for no trump. Therefore, correct to four spades. This does not show additional values; it is simply taking a preference.

The Halloween Kid Test Spells Trouble For A Television Show

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — I was expecting The Incredible Hulk over the other night. He never showed up. There is significance in this.

I was expecting The Hulk because it was Halloween, and I wanted to test a theory.

I'd come across some old speeches by Fred Silverman, president of NBC, and Fred Pierce, president of ABC, aimed at refuting reports that Americans were watching less TV, and watching it with less interest. They pointed to A.C. Nielsen Co. findings showing, of course, that tube viewing was not declining at all but was, rather, on the rise.

I thought I'd do a little research of my own, less scientific than Nielsen perhaps, but reliable on a gut level. I'd give TV the Halloween Kid Test.

Kids being great barometers of the social climate, and Halloween being a kids' holiday, it figured that if TV were healthy, the Hulk (or maybe Fonzie) would appear on my porch. I remembered some wonderful TV-inspired costumes from Halloweens past — My Favorite Martian, Dr. Spock, Howdy Doody, Zorro, The Lone Ranger, Paladin... I remembered one kid who actually came as a TV set, knobs and everything.

The first ring of the doorbell came at precisely 5:30. A witch, the first of many traditional spookies to cross the porch last Wednesday night. Halloween convention, at least, seemed alive and well.

A couple of ghosts and skeletons came and went, then a couple of fairies, some more witches, a rock star, a bunny rabbit, a pirate, a horde of R2-D2s and several Darth Vaders. "Star Wars" was still big in my neighborhood.

But no Hulk.

At about 8:00, a big kid came by, dressed as a hobo and toting a grimy paper sack. I think it was a real bum.

An obnoxious kid came to the door wearing a big green suit with placemats plastered on front and back. "How cute," my wife said. "What are you, a frog?"

"A frog?! I'm a sea turtle, lady. Got any M&Ms?"

Then a child with bandages all over his body. "You're the mummy, right?" I asked. "Nah," he said, "I'm pretending to be a man who's been hit by a car."

But no Hulk. Not a single character from TV came to my house last Wednesday night. There is significance in this.

I don't know why the Hulk never showed, but I realize why no other TV characters made the rounds on Halloween. There aren't any great TV heroes.

So, there it is, TV executives, the Halloween Kid Test. Its findings are rather dark, but it came cheaply enough.

Arts And Crafts Fair This Week

The Coastal Plain Arts and Crafts Fair, sponsored by the Agricultural Extension Service, will be held 8, 9, and 10th at Tarrytown Mall, Rocky Mount, North Carolina.

This year there will be 125 craftsmen featured from 8 counties in Eastern North Carolina. These counties include: Edgecombe, Franklin, Halifax, Johnston, Nash, Northampton, Wake and Wilson.

A large variety of handcrafted items will be exhibited. Also, an assortment of home baked and canned goods will be featured in the Country Kitchen.

The general public is invited to visit the 14th Annual Coastal Plain Arts and Crafts Fair at Tarrytown Mall located at the junction of U.S. highways 64 and 301 in Rocky Mount, North Carolina on November 8, 9, and 10th.

A Policeman Is Always Waiting

NEW YORK (AP) — There's always a policeman waiting for Ann Jillian after she finishes her stripper's act at Broadway's Mark Hellinger Theater.

The policeman is her husband, Sgt. Andy Murcia, who has taken a leave of absence from the Chicago Police Department. He escorts her to her hotel every night after her performance as the queen of a burlesque show in the hit musical "Sugar Babies," which stars Mickey Rooney and Ann Miller.

Paul McCartney To Tour Britain

LONDON (AP) — Paul McCartney, the only former Beatle to tour Britain since the group broke up in 1970, is coming home.

McCartney will begin a 15-date tour at the Royal Court Theater Nov. 25-26 in his hometown of Liverpool, his agents announced Sunday.

It will be the first British tour in four years for McCartney, who is listed in the Guinness Book of Records as "the most successful musician in history."

The tour will feature a new line-up of the chart-topping band Wings, which he formed with his wife, Linda.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A change in attitude would be good for you now and give more breadth and scope to you activities. You can be successful now in whatever is of primary importance to you.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be alert to whatever is happening around you and take advantage of opportunities to advance. Use caution in dealing with others.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) State your position accurately to financial advisers for best results. Take no risks with your health at this time.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Be candid in going after a personal wish so that others will not misunderstand your motives. Strive for increased happiness.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Listening to the suggestions of associates is wiser than having private conferences with intimates. Be more outgoing.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Try to be of assistance to friends who need your help. The evening is ideal for the type of recreation you most enjoy.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You must be tactful in dealing with higher-ups today if you wish to gain your goals. Be careful in spending your money.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) New projects are fascinating to you but look at them in a factual way for best results. Avoid extravagance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Study how to become more proficient at your work and gain the respect of associates. Show more affection for your mate.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 22.) Friends from all walks of life can give you excellent ideas at this time. Obtain information you need from the right sources.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have much work to attend to but be sure you follow orthodox methods for best results. Perserverance pays off now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Engage in new activities that will help you advance in your line of endeavor. Strive for increased happiness.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make plans to have your surroundings more ideal and increase happiness. The planets are most favorable for you now.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one with the capability to advance in whatever field of endeavor is chosen, so be sure to give the best education you can afford. A good all-around sport in this chart and a person who likes other people.

HIGHER FIGURES

Union Carbide reported that third quarter sales and earnings were substantially higher than those of the 1978 third quarter. Net income of $149.4 million was 85 percent higher than the $80.7 million reported for the third quarter last year.

Earnings for the first nine months of 1979 were a record $424.5 million, Union Carbide said, an increase of 59 percent over last year's earnings of $266.4 million for the same period.

Worldwide sales for the quarter were $2.33 billion, up 18 percent over the $1.98 billion sales reported for the 1978 third quarter. For the first nine months, worldwide sales were $6.78 billion, 17 percent above sales of $5.78 billion for the same period last year.

CREDIT ROSE

According to weekly figures released by the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, bank credit at 19 large commercial banks in the Fifth District rose $12,173,000 in the week ended Oct. 10, raising bank credit outstanding to a level of $30,257,049,000.

Total loans, adjusted—total loans exclusive of loans to domestic commercial banks—fell $56,475,000, while total investments climbed $68,648,000.

Private demand deposits rose $301,982,000, while time and savings deposits (deposits exclusive of accounts in excess of $100,000), increased $16,087,000. Negotiable CD's and other large time deposits also increased $40,818,000.

LARGEST VOLUME

Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Co. reported new life insurance sales totaling $736,145,000 for the first nine months this year, the largest nine-month sales volume in company history.

The nine-month sales figure represents a gain of $90,188,000 or 14 percent over volume for the same period last year, according to Seth C. Macon, senior vice president-agency.

Macon said that ordinary life insurance in force with Jefferson Standard was reported at an all-time-high of $6,159,519,000 on Sept. 30, a record gain of $314,204,000 for the preceding nine months.

RECORD RESULTS

Investors Title Co. and its subsidiary, Investors Title Insurance Co., achieved record premiums written and revenues for the three months ended Sept. 30, according to J. Allen Fine, president.

Fine said that compared to the third quarter of last year, net income increased 62 percent to $106,032 on an increase in revenues of 41 percent to $386,474.

Investors Title Insurance Co. has two issuing offices in Charlotte and offices in Greenville, Chapel Hill, Durham, Greensboro, Fayetteville and Wilmington.

NEW REPRESENTATIVE

David M. Pickett has joined the local agency of The Life Insurance Co. of Virginia as a representative, it was announced by Harold H. Pittman, CLU, agency manager.

Life of Virginia, with over $11 billion of life insurance in force, has more than 150 offices in the United States and more than 2,300 sales and service representatives.

RANKED IN TOP 15

The Arthur S. DeBerry and Associates general agency, representatives of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Milwaukee, ranked in the top 15 among NML's 114 general agencies in total sales volume for September, the company reported.

INTEGON TOTALS

Integon Corp. reported nine month and quarterly financial results.

For the January through September period, Integon had $11.7 million of income from operations, a record $1.87 per share and up nine percent over the $1.72 per share last year.

Nine month consolidated revenues increased ten percent to $166 million, it was reported, and Integon's two life insurance and three property and casualty insurance subsidiaries paid or provided $93 million in policyholder benefits, up 12 percent over January through September of 1978.

Third quarter income from operations for the months of July through September was off seven percent per share from the record set during 1978's third quarter. This year Integon reported earnings of $4 million compared with $4.3 million in the third quarter of 1978.

GAINS REPORTED

First-Citizens Bank & Trust Co. reported income before securities transactions of $8,537,000 for the nine months ending Sept. 30, up from $5,030,000 for the same period in 1978.

Net income after securities transactions as of Sept. 30 totaled $4,150,000, compared with income of $2,807,000 for the same period in the preceding year.

Third quarter income before securities transactions totaled $3,357,000, up from $1,500,000 for the third quarter of 1978. Net income after securities transactions for the third quarter was $1,662,000, compared to $1,089,000 in the same period of 1978.

Patient's Confusion Causes Anxiety

I recently learned that I have osteoporosis. I have been very distressed about this, mostly because I don't completely understand it. It sounds like a terrifying condition and I don't know where it's going to lead to. Can you tell me more about it? — Mrs. E.W., Ohio.

Dear Mrs. W.:

It's astonishing how often a patient leaves a doctor's office without really understanding the diagnosis and the planned treatment for a condition. When patients fail to pursue their inquiries, the doctor has a right to assume that there is no area in their discussion that is not completely clear and understood.

This lack of interpersonal communication can do the patient a double injustice. First, because a patient leaves the office in a state of confusion, there is a mounting anxiety about a condition the name of which may be frightening even though the condition may not be important.

Second, it has been found that patients that do not thoroughly understand the nature of their condition very often fail to maintain the medical regimen that a doctor prescribes. Very often they will interrupt the taking of medicines without any rational reason for doing so.

Perhaps doctors should ask this single question before a patient leaves their offices. "Do you understand everything I have been saying? If you don't, let me repeat it." Shyness at a time like this serves only to disrupt a vital aspect of the communication process.

Now, about osteoporosis. It is an imposing-sounding word which, when not thoroughly explained, can induce marked anxiety. All it means is that there is a decrease in the mineral and protein content of the bone. It has been found that women in the menopausal and post-menopausal periods tend to have less calcium in their bones. The reason for it is a complicated one. It involves the body's utilization of calcium and is intimately related to hormone deficiencies and imbalances.

There are two basic types of osteoporosis. Each has its own causes and forms of treatment. Again, I reiterate that you might spare yourself a great deal of anxiety if you discuss with your doctor every aspect of the condition and the contemplated forms of treatment.

* * *

I had an eye operation and was told that I would be out of the hospital in two days. Instead, I was there for 10 days because of an infection in the eye. Whose fault was that? — Miss G.T., Mich.

Dear Miss T.:

There is no possible way to fault anyone when such an unpleasant experience occurs. Fortunately, instances of infection after surgery are extremely rare. The use of antibiotics before, during and after surgery has reduced post-operative complications to a bare minimum.

Even though the statistics are so heartening I can understand your own disappointment that it happened to you.

Named To Nat'l Committee

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state Democratic Executive Committee has named Wallace N. Hyde of Asheville to the National Democratic Committee. He will succeed Rowe H. Motley of Charlotte.

Russell G. Walker, the state party chairman, said Motley had to resign from the netional committee after accepting an appointment last month as regional recruitment coordinator for the U.S. Census.

Motley, a black, held one of four seats on the national committee filled by North Carolinians. The others are filled by whites.

Hyde's election Saturday brought protests from some blacks at the meeting. One black spokesman, Larry S. Hinton of Durham, told the committee that promises to blacks had been broken.

Unionized N.C. Markets Struck

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Members of the United Food and Commercial Workers International Union struck unionized A&P supermarkets in North Carolina Sunday.

Union spokesman Gene Burris said the strike by employees represented by the union's retail clerks and meatcutters locals came after a bargaining committee rejected A&P's "final offer" Saturday night. He said the prime obstacle to a new contract is job security.

Company neogtiators were not available for comment Sunday, but an A&P spokesman said talks with the union were continuing.

Burris said the strike would affect "in the neighborhood of 50 stores" in North Carolina.

LEGAL NOTICE

The Certificate of Need Section, Division of Facility Services, North Carolina Department of Human Resources, announced on October 26, 1979 approval of the proposal of Pitt County Memorial Hospital to acquire a mobile gamma scintillation camera to be located within the hospital.

Review of the project was conducted pursuant to Section 1122 of the Social Security Act and Chapter 131, Article 18 of the General Statutes of North Carolina. Prior to approval, the project proposal was reviewed by the Eastern Carolina Health Systems Agency, Inc., in Greenville, N.C. and found to conform to the applicable plans, standards, and criteria.

After reviewing the findings of the recommending agencies, the Certificate of Need Section determined that the project is needed, financially feasible, will be adequately staffed and operated, and promotes cost containment. Any individual who is aggrieved by the Certificate of Need decision is offered the opportunity to appeal this decision within thirty days of the approval date. For additional information, please contact the Certificate of Need Section, Division of Facility Services, N.C. Department of Human Resources, P.O. Box 12200, Raleigh, N.C. 27605.

By DION HENDERSON
Associated Press Writer

BARABOO, Wis. (AP) — The pioneer wagon track is blacktopped now. The trees the young people planted cast disorienting shadows on the sand. But in the clearing, The Shack looks exactly as it did 30 years ago.

It looks as though you might sit on the oaken bench beside the door in early morning, and Aldo Leopold might come out with a notebook and coffee, and wait for the first robin to chirp, and you would know that one-tenth of a foot candle of light had come to the land.

Perhaps on such a morning he wrote in his notebook, "At daybreak, I am the sole owner of all the acres I can walk over. It is not only boundaries that disappear, but also the thought of being bounded."

This is where those words were written. There is a boulder nearby, where two sentences cast in bronze attest to it:

"It is here that we seek — and still find — our meat from God."

And it was here that Leopold filled the journals that became the book that was — and still is — the bible of the ecological movement.

"A Sand County Almanac, and Sketches Here and There" it was called by a publisher, and in 1949, it doubtless was read by academics.

But long since, there must be scarcely any environmentalist who cannot look you in the eye and quote its opening passage: "There are some who can live without wild things, and some who cannot."

Leopold compiled the Almanac, which also included episodes that "taught me gradually and sometimes painfully that the company is out of step," and concluded with the towering postulates of the Land Ethic, at the climax of a 40-year career in conservation.

A native of Iowa and a Yale graduate, he worked as a federal forester in the Southwest, and in 15 years became chief operations officer for Arizona and New Mexico. He helped formulate the national forest policy and came to Wisconsin as associate director of the Forest Products Laboratory at Madison. For several years he was a consultant on wildlife populations, and finished "Game Management," a monumental book that established a new science and introduced the nomenclature of environmental manipulation into the language.

Then, in 1933, the University of Wisconsin created a Chair in Wildlife Management for him, and he moved into the academic world.

Two years later, on a snowy February day, he loaded his wife, Estella, and five teen-aged children into the family automobile and churned northwest from Madison on a diminishing trail to a windswept clearing whose only building was what eventually came to be known as the most famous chicken shed in North America.

The children, says daughter Nina Leopold Bradley, knew that he was driven by convictions they could only vaguely understand — "never more vaguely than that day in the snow."

That was the very heart of the idea, it turned out.

"Nothing could be more salutary at this stage," Leopold wrote in the Almanac, "than a little healthy contempt for a plethora of material blessings."

And again: "On this sand farm in Wisconsin, first worn out and then abandoned by our bigger and better society, we try to rebuild, with shovel and ax, what we are losing elsewhere."
