Kennedy Formally Challenges Carter

BOSTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, decrying the "lack of a clear summons from the center of power," today announced that he is challenging President Carter for the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination.

In remarks prepared for delivery from the stage of Boston's historic Faneuil Hall, the third Kennedy brother to seek the White House accused the Carter administration of failing to set national aims. He said there is a conflict of direction in the administration.

"Fear spreads that our leaders have resigned themselves to retreat," the Massachusetts senator said.

"This country is not prepared to sound retreat," Kennedy said. "It is ready to advance. It is willing to make a stand. And so am I."

Members of the Kennedy family sat in the front row as Edward Kennedy launched his first bid for the presidency once held by his late brother John F. Kennedy.

Kennedy's announcement was a sharp indictment of the domestic policies of the Carter administration.

While never mentioning President Carter by name, Kennedy's references to the Democratic incumbent whom he is challenging for their party's nomination was unmistakable.

"I question no man's intentions," he said. "But I have a different view of the highest office in the land — a view of a forceful, effective presidency, in the thick of the action, at the center of all the great concerns our people share."

"The failures are stark: —Workers are forced to take a second job to make ends meet because wages are rising only half as fast as prices."

"—Families go into debt and suffer real financial hardship to educate their children."

"—This year the poorest 10 percent of our population must pay 119 percent of their income for the necessities of life. That means they go without."

In a reference to criticism both from the Carter administration and Republican presidential candidates that he is tied to a philosophy of continued high levels of government spending to deal with social problems, Kennedy said:

"We can say, and truly so, that we cannot solve any of our problems by throwing money at them. But we must develop more effective answers in areas such as education and jobs, especially for the young now entering the world of work, and measures to make our cities and towns places where people can live in dignity and safety."

On inflation, Kennedy said: "Surely, the nation that came back from the Depression half a century ago can role back the tides of inflation."

On energy, Kennedy called for a policy "imaginative enough to bring our citizens to conserve old sources of energy, while we speed the pursuit of new forms of energy, including power from the sun."

"We need not be permanent beggars at the banquet tables of the OPEC rulers," he said. "Nor should we rush to embrace a nuclear future until we are certain this will not threaten the future itself."

The theme repeated throughout Kennedy's speech was his challenge to Carter's leadership.

"Before the last election, we were told that Americans were honest, loving, good, decent, and compassionate," he said, in a reference to Carter's winning 1976 campaign. "Now, the people are blamed for every national ill and scolded as greedy, wasteful and mired in malaise..."

"Did we change so much in these three years? Or is it because our present leadership does not understand that we are willing, even anxious, to be on the march again?"

Carter Sends Mission To Iran In Desperate Plea

By The Associated Press
Former Attorney General Ramsey Clark and a Senate aide flew to Iran today carrying a letter from President Carter to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and other Moslem leaders asking them to free 60 Americans held hostage at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran under threat of death by pro-Khomeini demonstrators.

"We hope it will (succeed), we pray it will," Carter said of the mission.

The demonstrators said Tuesday they would kill the hostages if the United States attempted a rescue operation. The United States has said several times it had no such plans.

The State Department said Clark, who met with Khomeini during his French exile in January, and William Miller, a senior staffer on the Senate Intelligence Committee, left Andrews Air Force base Tuesday night after meeting with Carter, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and other top administration officials.

The letter, in addition to discussing the hostages, asks the Iranian authorities for a general review of American-Iranian relations, the Department said.

Clark and Miller were traveling aboard an Air Force jet and were scheduled to arrive in Tehran at 6:30 p.m. EST after switching to a commercial jet, probably in Athens, Greece.

NBC television reported that the letter also asks assurances that the hostages be allowed to leave Iran, makes clear that the deposed shah was allowed to enter the United States strictly for medical treatment and that the United States will not give arms to Kurdish insurgents in northwestern Iran.

The Iranian demonstrators seized the hostages at the U.S. Embassy Sunday in a bid to get the United States to extradite the shah, now hospitalized in New York.

Meanwhile, Iran's ruling Revolutionary Council warned its supporters today against attacks on foreigners but gave no indication of ending the captivity of the hostages.

The Carter administration has ruled out military action to free the hostages and rejected the students' demand that it haul the deposed shah out of his hospital bed and deliver him to Iran for trial before a revolutionary court.

Carter discussed the new crisis in U.S.-Iranian relations with the National Security Council Tuesday night amid reports that Iranian oil exports had been suspended, possibly by a strike of oil port workers. But the National Iranian Oil Co. denied the reports and said "everything is running normally."

One report from Carter administration sources said loading of U.S. tankers had been halted at Kharg Island, Iran's main export terminal. But a State Department official said other reports indicated loading of all tankers had stopped.

Elections Held In Eight Of Pitt Municipalities

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Elections were held in eight Pitt County municipalities on Tuesday with several towns choosing both mayor and council or board of alderman representatives.

Ayden voters re-elected Ross Persinger to another term as mayor, giving him a 542 to 391 vote margin over challenger D. Glenn Bowen.

Carl L. Speight was elected a town commissioner from Ayden's first ward with 703 votes (unopposed), while incumbent Robert G. Harris defeated William R. Bonar for the second ward seat by a 478 to 412 margin, incumbent J. Elliott Dixon with 361 votes won the third ward seat over Albert E. Dobbs (347) and James Alton Butler (188), incumbent J. J. Brown turned back James A. Williamson 519 to 411 for the fourth ward seat, and Aaron Hines Jr. defeated incumbent Harry G. Mumford and challenger Walter Bruce Jones Jr. for the fifth ward seat, polling 342 votes to 330 for Mumford and 259 for Jones.

Robert J. Whitehurst was elected to his first term as mayor in Bethel as he received 357 votes in an unopposed bid. Town commissioners elected in Bethel included John Lloyd Watson (332), Richard B. Johnson (328), Walter C. Latham (324), incumbent William Morgan Whitehurst (308), and incumbent C. M. Burton Jr. (300). Delton E. Perry, the sixth candidate, failed in his bid with a total of 298 votes.

Richard McLawhorn led the Grifton balloting for the three town commissioner seats with 308 votes, followed incumbent Jimmie Lewis with 255 votes and Johnny Len Craft with 148. Other candidates and their totals in Grifton included Billy R. Sutton, 134; Walter O' White, 87; incumbent John Coward, 72, and Roger Wilbur Garis, 42.

In Winterville, incumbent E. C. Hines and B. Leland Tucker Jr. were elected to the two board of alderman seats open with 132 and 126 votes, respectively. Incumbent Daniel C. Martin Jr. failed in his re-election bid with 63 votes, while Michael Lee Gillin was also unsuccessful with 28 votes.

Three incumbent office holders in the Village of Simpson were re-elected Tuesday, led by Mayor John T. McDonald Jr. with 132 votes, Galloway C. Thompson with 119, and Oscar Lee Telfaire with 113. The three successful candidates will choose a mayor from among their ranks. Louise B. Mills received 52 votes yesterday and Johnnie G. Mayo polled 42 votes in unsuccessful council bids.

Winning the five board of alderman seats in Grimesland were David Kyle Hodges (89 votes), incumbent Zella C. Galloway (86), incumbent Lee P. Perry (76), incumbent Thurman L. Clark (62), and incumbent George W. Huntley (55). Unsuccessful candidates included Rufus E. Buck with 52 votes, Delores J. Mayo with 40, John R. Sultan with 31, and William Lee Tucker with 19. The five aldermen will select a mayor from among their ranks.

Incumbent Carter G. Smith retained his seat as mayor of Fountain as he received 88 votes in an unopposed bid. Winning the five town commissioner seats were incumbent Norman A. Gardner (93), Paul Rick Burnette Jr. (92), incumbent Bruce Beasley (81), incumbent William W. Walker (71), and incumbent Hilton Owens (70). Running unsuccessfully were James T. Willoughby Jr. with 53 votes and R. L. Jones with 40 votes.

Joan W. Strickland was elected as Falkland's new mayor as she received 15 votes in an unopposed bid. A. Vernon Best led the town council balloting with 18 votes, followed by incumbents John L. Tyer and W. W. Wooten with 17 and 16 votes, respectively, as they were elected to the three council seats.

Turnout varied in the eight municipalities as several reported a high percentage of the voter registration on hand for the elections. Simpson voted 175 out of a registration of 227; Grimesland had 125 out of a registration of 188; Fountain voted 114 out of 207; Bethel voted 591 out of a registration of 927; Ayden voted 963 out of 1,868; Grifton voted 377 out of 916; Winterville had 200 out of 815; and Falkland voted 19 out of a registration of 69.

Farmville Board Votes To Ask For $3 Million Grant

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE — Farmville Commissioners voted last night to apply to the Department of Housing and Urban Development for a three-year $3 million comprehensive grant for housing and other improvements in the town.

Town Administrator Patrick A. Thomas presented four alternative application ideas, two three-year comprehensive, two single-year single-purposes. Community Development Advisory Committee members expressed a preference for Plan C, which calls for just under $1 million worth of housing rehabilitation, demolition, and relocation each of three years, with a community center to be developed in the latter years, a minipark for senior citizens, and a community arts facility. It was pointed out that HUD can choose to fund all, none or only a part of this three-year plan. If only part were approved, the town would be about as well off as if it had sought a single-purpose, single-year plan, the advisory committee said it felt. Target areas for housing improvement are surrounding the present CD project, which includes blocks between George and Walnut and Wallace and Moore Streets.

Following a brief public hearing, the board approved an amendment to the present "LIFE-1" Community Development project to divert money budgeted but not used for code enforcement general administration of the project to rehabilitation of housing. This measure will allow for the rehabilitation of two or three additional homes, it is anticipated.

Thomas, Commissioner David Stowe and Mayor-elect Linwood Mercer reported on their recent attendance of the 70th annual conference of the N. C. League of Municipalities. Assistant Administrator Ed Thorne also attended. Thomas said they learned that "active participation by mayors and board members on state-level committees can be a key means of obtaining state assistance in community growth needs."

Stowe reported on a session on annexation he attended. Mercer on a session on downtown revitalization.

A committee was appointed to explore how to best give the police department ment use of a piece of land for a firing range. The rear portion of the recently closed town landfill was promoted by Commissioner Jack Farrior and Police Chief Ron Cooper as the best location for the range. Town property at the Little Contentnea Wastewater Treatment Plant previously has been considered. It is understood that the development of the site will be accomplished with volunteer resources, largely on the part of Police Department members.

A public hearing was called for on the assessment roll for Crestwood Drive street improvements, based on a recently revised map.

The town administrator and town attorney were asked to proceed with revision of

They'll March

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Although Greensboro police suspended the issuance of parade permits in the wake of last Saturday's mass slayings at an anti-Klan demonstration, leftist activists will be allowed to carry out plans for a march through Greensboro to a cemetery Sunday.

"We don't prevent funeral processions. We never have," said police chief William E. Swing.

Authorities had scheduled another round of hearings today for 14 white males charged in the Saturday slayings of five persons at the anti-Ku Klux Klan rally, but District Attorney Michael Schlosser said the cases would be sent to a grand jury instead.

A dozen of the suspects were charged with four counts of first-degree each in the deaths anti-Klan demonstrators killed during the attack Saturday. Additional murder warrants were served on the 12 defendants Tuesday following the death of a fifth person wounded in the shootings.

The Pitt County Board of Education voted to allocate $1,600 from current funds to upgrade the JROTC program at Farmville Central High School, following a request made by Farmville Central principal Russ Cotton and SAI Thomas E. Parsons.

According to Lt. Col. Parsons, 14.5 percent of the total student population at Farmville Central is involved in the JROTC program. He pointed out that the money allocated to the D. H. Conley unit last year by the board was money "well spent."

"We can't compete, we need an equal opportunity," said Parsons. "A JROTC drill team is a drawing card for the program."

Following a presentation on the county's Exceptional Children's Program by director Pat James, the board voted to approach the county Board of Commissioners for funds to obtain an extra van and activity bus for use in the program.

According to Mrs. James, the Exceptional Children's program is steadily growing. Many of the children involved with the program must travel around the county for special programs and diagnostic procedures.

"Transportation is one of our biggest headaches," noted Mrs. James. She said that a smaller vehicle, such as a mini-bus or van, would be suitable to transport children to needed programs. Dr. Thomas Patterson stated that the county also needed another activity bus, as well as a van or mini-bus for the exceptional children's program.

Approval was given to a teacher observation and evaluation policy. County NCAE President Annette MacRae stated that teachers feel strongly concerning assistant principals conducting teacher evaluations.

Superintendent Ott Alford pointed out that assistant principals would have to be approved by him for the evaluation, and that the situation would "be an exception, rather than the rule."

John McKnight, director of testing and research for the county, reported on the ongoing studies for presentation to HEW officials in Atlanta concerning alleged Title VI violations.

"We've got studies going on in about 40 areas," said McKnight. "We are responding to the allegations that we don't fill needs of special people."

According to Superintendent Alford, the information will be compiled and given to county attorney W. W. Speight for presentation to HEW officials in December.

Approval was denied to a proposed resolution opposing the cut in school lunch reimbursement for paid lunches. Superintendent Alford noted that with the cut in reimbursement, an additional five cents would have to be attached to the present price.

Dr. Patterson stated his ap-

UMW Hold Area Meeting Recently

The United Methodist Women of the Greenville District of the North Carolina Conference held its annual meeting here at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church.

Mrs. Catharine Vick of Cary, president of the UMW in the conference, was guest speaker. She has also served as vice president of the conference and as mission coordinator of Global Concerns.

Miriam Casey, chairperson on Christian Personhood, was in charge of the memorial service which included organist, Mike Regan, and soloist, Dan Holland. The Rev. R. T. Commander, district superintendent, the Rev. James Bailey, of the host church, and Nancy Middleton, president of Jarvis UMW, extended the welcome.

The business session was conducted by District President Clara Jane Hardee. She called the roll by sub-districts and presented officers. Janis Cannon, chairperson of Memberships, presented certificates to local UMW units in Pink Hill and Salem Church, Simpson, for have a 10 percent increase in membership last year. Maxine Wiggins gave the pledge service.

Margaret Speight, Farmville, presented a special UMW membership pin to Edna Earle Baker, Farmville. Mrs. Hardee gave special memberships to outgoing officers and chairpersons, Carolyn Henderson, treasurer, Ms. Wiggins, associate treasurer, Ms. Casey, and Louise Davenport, nominations chairperson. Mrs. Hardee recognized 44 women who had received special memberships from their units during the year.

Elected officers included Lizzie Tugwell, associate treasurer, Ms. Wiggins, chairperson on Global Concerns, Eula Boomer, member of nominating committee, Mildred Mann, Washington sub-district leader, and Carolyn Henderson, Kinston sub-district leader.

The closing benediction was given by the Rev. David Goehring of the host church.

Apple Is American Favorite

By ADOLPHE V. BERNOTAS
Associated Press Writer

That threadbare cliché, American as apple pie, is apparently as misleading as it is trite. The pie, I'm told, originated in England.

Many of our most popular apple en from Germany, tart tatin from France, apple meringue from Sweden and apple beignets from Switzerland.

But other apple favorites did originate in this country, many in colonial days.

The origin of the apple is not known for certain, but it is thought to have made its first appearance in the general region of the Caspian Sea.

One thing is certain. The apple goes back a long way. Since the days of the Garden of Eden, the fruit has played a role in legend, science, art and history. Apples were cultivated in the gardens of the Phoenicians, and the ancient Romans enjoyed them.

The first settlers included apple seeds among their supplies when they journeyed to America, but later American varieties of the fruit did originate in this country. Such a one was the Sweet Rhode Island Greenings grown by a clergyman, William Blanton, in the mid-17th century.

The spread of apples across America is in part due to the efforts of John Chapman, who became known as Johnny Appleseed.

Chapman, who was born in Massachusetts, collected apple seeds from cider mills, dried them and put them in little bags, which he gave to anyone he met who was headed West. Chapman himself spent four decades traveling through Ohio, Indiana, parts of Illinois and Iowa planting the seeds.

As orchards spread across the land, a host of homespun creations came into being: dishes like brown Betty, apple cobbler, apple pan dowdy and apple bread pudding. Here's a recipe for the pudding. 1/4 cup apple cider or juice 1/2 cup dried currants 1/4 cup butter 3 medium-size tart apples 2 1/2 cups stale French bread, cut into cubes 4 eggs, beaten 1 3/4 cups milk 1/2 cup heavy cream 1-3rd cup brown sugar 1/2 cup chopped walnuts 2 tablespoons brown sugar

Soak currants in cider or apple juice. Peel and core apples, cut into slices, then halve slices in large skillet, melt butter and sauté apples 5 minutes. Remove from heat, add bread and toss lightly till cubes absorb butter. Add currants and stir well. Place mixture in buttered 1 1/2 quart casserole. In bowl, beat eggs, add milk, cream and 1-3rd cup sugar and blend. Pour over apple-bread mixture in casserole. Mix chopped nuts and the 2 tablespoons brown sugar together and sprinkle over top.

CPR Skill Was Needed

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Last night I watched a baby die. The child was 11 months old and strangled on a piece of apple. The baby's mother was away and the child was being kept by a girl down the street.

By the time the baby-sitter arrived at our house, the child was probably dead. There were 10 people at the house where I was, and only one knew what to do. The rest of us watched helplessly and horror-stricken the hopeless efforts to revive the dying child.

The baby's mother, who will never live down the fact that she was not there; the 14-year-old babysitter, who will never forget the fact that she could not help; and the 10 of us who will never forget the tragic consequences of that night cannot be helped by the fact that this is such a common occurrence.

The child was pronounced dead on arrival at a hospital despite a two-hour effort by the paramedics when they arrived.

Abby, if only one person will take the time to learn CPR—cardiopulmonary resuscitation—and what to do in a case like this, then my letter will not be in vain.

But in any case, should there be a next time for me, I will know!

DEAR DEBBIE: Thank you for writing. Readers, CPR instruction is free. For information concerning time and place of classes, contact your local Red Cross or Heart Association.

DEAR ABBY: As a pro who gets paid for writing scripts, articles, etc., I must be nuts writing to you. However, I can't resist pointing out your misuse of the expression, "lucked out." You wrote in praise of Gamblers Anonymous: "Many compulsive gamblers have LUCKED OUT by joining this wonderful group of people."

According to the Dictionary of American Slang (Wentworth & Flexner) "lucked out" means "to be out of luck" or "to have met with ill fortune or disaster."

You probably won't pay attention to this anyway. MARINA DEL REY MORT

DEAR MORT: According to Webster's New World Dictionary of the American Language, "lucked out" means "to be lucky" or "to have things turn out favorably."

So, regardless of whether one buys my authority or yours, it would appear that I "lucked out" either way.

Couple Marries In Grifton

GRIFTON — In a candlelight ceremony at the First Baptist Church here Oct. 27 at 6 p.m., Miss Elizabeth Anne Whitt and Alton Hardy Roberson were united in marriage. The single ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. John Gray. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Richard Whitt of Grifton. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Roberson of Rt. 3, Kinston.

Miss Elyce Anne Brown of Plainfield, N. J., organist, and Mrs. John Gray, soloist, presented a program of nuptial music. Mrs. Gladys Thomas directed the wedding and Carol Roberson, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, presided at the guest register.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of silk organza over tulle. The fitted bodice and key neckline were enhanced with appliques of guipure lace, which also trimmed the collar. Double ruffles formed the cap sleeves and the back closure was fastened with self-covered buttons. The full skirt flowed into a chapel train and was edged in two ruffles which were attached to the skirt with bands of guipure lace.

Her two tiered veil of illusion was edged in bands of lace and was attached to a lace covered chapel cap. She carried a formal cascade of pixie carnations, roses, daisies and sprays of greenery tied with bridal ribbons.

Wanda Warren of Ayden was honor attendant and bridesmaids included Brenda Roberson of Kinston, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, Amy Glenn of Durham, and Lou Anne Bryan of Vanceboro.

Local Elections Highlighted In State Yesterday

By The Associated Press
Voters elected mayors in three major North Carolina cities Tuesday, returning Greensboro Mayor Jim Melvin to office, electing Democrat Eddie Knox in Charlotte and conservative Harry Rodenhizer in Durham.

Local offices were also filled in a host of other municipalities.

Melvin easily beat out opponent Sol Jacobs, outpolling Jacobs 14,441 to 7,154 in a non-partisan race.

Melvin's victory came as he and Greensboro police struggled in the aftermath of the anti-Klan rally last Saturday that ended in five shooting deaths.

Knox won easily in Charlotte, and the man he defeated claimed afterward that Knox's 10-to-1 campaign chest was an unfair advantage.

But Republican Barry Miller said he was pleased with the 31,498 to 20,445 loss because most people had predicted it would be a landslide for Knox, who credited victory to the organization of 2,500 volunteer campaign workers.

Conservative Harry Rodenhizer won a runoff against Margaret Keller for mayor of Durham.

Rodenhizer, a former city board member, favors completion of the controversial East-West Expressway.

In Goldsboro, A.R. "Ticky" Williams failed in his campaign to become the city's first black mayor. He was defeated by Hal Plonk.

Rosman voters chose write-in candidate William Cathey over incumbent appointee Buford Posey. Posey's election to his first full term looked like a sure thing until Monday, when residents became upset at published accounts of his past civil rights activities in Mississippi.

Posey has gone into hiding since he received threats on his life after the story was published Monday. He was also fired by the town board Monday night.

In Lenoir, incumbent Robert Gibbons won re-election to office over Lindsey Bowman. Gibbons is also the newly-elected president of the N.C. League of Municipalities.

Evelyn Parker, one of several women to win election Tuesday, eked out a two-vote win over incumbent Odell Jones in Spring Lake. In Waxhaw, Lola M. Blackburn outpolling three men to become the first woman mayor of that Union County town. She is also the first mayor to serve under a new four-year term. And in Hildebran, Maxine Lynn became the first woman mayor, defeating C. Irving Eggeres.

Chapel Hill selected Joe Nasif to succeed Jim Wallace as mayor of the town, and Manteo picked 27-year-old John Wilson

III as the new mayor.

At least three northeastern North Carolina mayors won their re-election bids. Included in the list were Elizabeth City's John Bell, Edenton's Roy L. Harrell and Hertford's Bill Cox.

In some of the more unusual results across the state:

Two write-in candidates battled it out in Booneville in Yadkin County. Incumbent Mayor Harvey Smith won a write-in campaign for the 11th consecutive time, defeating another write-in candidate, Philip Mendenhall, by 137-47. Since he first tried for office 24 years ago, Smith has never paid a filing fee in an election.

Political apathy is unknown in Belville in Eastern North Carolina, where a third of the town's 26 voters ran for office. The husband-wife team of Albert and Mildred Boney didn't profit, however. Mrs. Boney lost the mayor's race to John Long, 16-6, while Boney lost in his campaign for one of four town board seats to Eunice Arbaugh, who got 15 votes.

It was a tie for a council seat in Cerro Gordo where Louise Coleman and James Ford each captured 42 votes, according to unofficial results.

Atkinson Mayor Morris Bloodworth didn't run for re-election but won anyway on a write-in vote. Bloodworth beat declared candidate W.J. Barnhill 97 to five.

Wilson voters selected a new mayor. Ralph El Ramey, a local insurance agent, defeated incumbent H.P. Benton.

Bond referendums that would have provided a new $33 million coliseum-complex in Winston-Salem and a $5 million civic center in Catawba County were turned down.

Deputies In Lenoir Idle

KINSTON, N.C. (AP) — Lenoir County sheriff's deputies are still on leave today after walking out Monday afternoon to protest the county's failure to increase their salaries and leave time.

The state Highway Patrol has sent troopers to help the sheriff and shift supervisors who were left to patrol the county. There were two highway patrol cars on duty Tuesday night, but no crimes were reported.

The Kinston Police Department also is on standby in case there is a major emergency.

Lenoir County's chief detective and three shift supervisors who have remained on duty say they will walk off the job today if county commissioners do not take some action on the deputies' requests.

In an emergency meeting Tuesday morning, Lenoir county commissioners asked for help from the Highway Patrol but made no mention of salary to the deputies.

International Pastime

Baseball, which began in the United States in the mid-1800s, has often been called America's "national pastime." But baseball is also popular in Canada, Italy, Latin America, Taiwan, and Japan. Now Japanese baseball fans are getting a chance to watch some top American players in action. Starting today, Baltimore Orioles manager Earl Weaver will lead a team of 22 American League all-stars against a National League all-star team managed by Tom Lasorda of the Los Angeles Dodgers. The teams will play a seven-game series in Japan, with each player on the winning team getting $10,000, and each losing team member receiving $7,500.

DO YOU KNOW — What Japanese baseball star holds the career home run record with more than 800 home runs?

TUESDAY'S ANSWER — Al Ullman is chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Provided Ayatollah A Weapon

Just when we think the Carter administration is maturing in its ability to run the government, its representatives will do something naive.

The latest poorly thought out move by the administration was allowing the Shah of Iran—or former shah, if you prefer—to enter this country for any reason.

The shah was allowed in for medical treatment, supposedly treatment he could receive no where else in this world.

The administration relied on the cause of humanitarianism to allow it to get by with this move. That has a good sound, but to an Iranian government which wants the shah dead anyway, his salvation by American doctors doesn't have much of a ring.

At any rate, that allowed Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini all the excuse he needed to move against the U. S. Iranian students took over our consulates and are holding innocent American workers prisoner demanding the shah's return, all with Khomeini's blessings.

If those who made the decision had but thought a little, they would have recognized that we had little to gain in admitting the shah for treatment.

What could we lose? Iranian students could take over our consulates. Possibly American lives would be lost. And perhaps the Iranian oil coming to the United States would be cut off.

Sometimes you have to play the odds, but even a poker player knows not to play a losing hand.

If the Americans being held by emotional students die, the administration will almost certainly have to retaliate, and an Iranian oil cutoff would be virtually certain.

There is no rolling back events, however, and the United States will have to stand firm against blackmail and accept the consequences.

Must Stand Firm Against Blackmail

President Carter signed the standby gas and diesel rationing bill this week, and it may not come a day too soon.

With the deteriorating situation in Iran the United States faces the loss of an important oil supply.

The Difference Abound

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Hardly a cleaner, more definite line could be drawn between the two men who are the principal contenders for the office of lieutenant governor in North Carolina's May 6 Democratic primary.

It is widely accepted that the campaign will focus on differences in style, personality and philosophy rather than issues in a contest overshadowed by gubernatorial and presidential politicking.

"The interest may arise from the fact that there are two very different people running," says Carl Stewart of the race which puts him in the position of challenging the incumbent, Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green.

"That incumbency gives him an advantage," Stewart says of Green. "But that will be offset by my service as Speaker of the House of Representatives for two terms."

Additionally, Stewart is seeking to enhance his face and name by working the grassroots. He has been in 90 counties in the past six months, making speeches and talking with people.

New Group

At the same time, he is building his own political organization separate from any previously operating. Traditional money sources in Democratic Party politics, and local organizations, are not being tapped, Stewart says. "The people who fund and run political campaigns tend to be the same year after year. We are attempting to organize a new group of people ... to build a Stewart organization of people I know and trust ... and avoid the established lines."

"We are doing this very meticulously, going into every holler and marsh in North Carolina."

On his forays into the far reaches of the State, Stewart says there are issues which can be talked about: the court system, fighting crime, speedy trials, education, transportation, water and air cleanliness, relations and financing problems between state and local governments, statewide planning, need to recruit higher wage and technology industry and discourage "certain kinds which come here simply to take advantage of low wage rates."

But, says Stewart, "I don't know that those are issues on which I can engage the lieutenant governor in dialogue. He doesn't want to debate me. That would give me public exposure. And further ... I have taken a public stand on these issues; I have sponsored legislative proposals on many of them, and supported legislative initiatives which are progressive. I can't name a single legislative proposal which the lieutenant governor has sponsored."

It comes down, then, to differences in personality, political philosophy, and style between the two contenders. Stewart sees himself as a "moderate in the mainstream of Democratic Party politics", a close friend and ally of Gov. Jim Hunt, and proponent of openness in government.

Differences

Here is the way Stewart sums up the differences:

Stewart was raised in a mill village, the son of an industrial worker and comes from a Piedmont, urban, blue collar setting while Green comes from the rural, agrarian, landed heritage. Green makes his pitch to conservative, rightwing elements, and is courting the financial support of Republicans while Stewart labels himself a moderate.

Stewart says his campaign involves a lot of young people, women and blacks, while Green's organization is dominated by older males. In style of leadership, Stewart claims he opened the House of Representatives to younger people and put many new people in positions of responsibility while encouraging open debate and committee work on legislative proposals while Green favors a close inner circle of key people consulted daily to make closed decisions. Stewart supported Gov. Hunt's programs while Green and Hunt are barely civil to one another and are at odds both personally and politically.

In a future column, we will explore these differences from the perspective of Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Teddy Plans A Quick Win

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Despite public claims by his lieutenants that they expect a prolonged war of attrition for the Democratic presidential nomination, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy privately plans a quick knockout of President Carter by the end of March.

Kennedy spelled this out in a telephone call to Gov. Hugh Carey of New York when he asked Carey to go along with state Republican leaders in pushing for a March 25 presidential primary rather than a later date. Besides wanting to quickly compensate for any Carter primary wins in the South, the senator explained, an early win in New York fits his strategy of a delivering a spring knockout punch to the president.

Carey went along with Kennedy, without argument. Although some key figures in the Kennedy apparatus still suspect the governor harbors dreams of being Jimmy Carter's eastern Catholic vice presidential running mate in 1980, Carey surely will endorse Kennedy. In fact, he has proposed putting some of his key operatives in Kennedy's Washington campaign headquarters.

Carter's Budget Pitfalls

President Carter's budget officials are warning him that if he goes along with defense-oriented senators for increases in military spending, he will immediately be squeezed by other departments for similar budget increases.

But Carter has little choice in the matter. He is willing to go far to satisfy demands for higher military spending as the only conceivable way to gain Senate approval of the arms control treaty (SALT II).

That will automatically rule out fulfilling Carter's pledge of dramatically reduced budget deficits. With the principle of a balanced budget down the drain, the president's other big-spending constituencies—particularly the Department of Health and Social Services (formerly HEW)—will feel free to demand equal treatment.

Watch It, Anatoly

Shortly after President Carter backed away from his demand that the Soviet combat brigade be taken out of Cuba, one of his closest aides told Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin: "Now don't you go sending any Soviet naval task force into the Caribbean if you want the (SALT) treaty ratified."

Dobrynin just smiled. The point the White House aide was trying to make was that

Flight To Old Lhasa

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
LHASA, Tibet (AP) — Our stay in Tibet, for those of you who conspired to miss my little talk at Rotary, began like a Chinese remake of "Lost Horizon," the Columbia Pictures weepie promulgated by Frank Capra.

The plane, a Russian copy of the old Lockheed Electra four-engine prop-jet blew two tires on landing at Gun Ga airport and rolled to a smoky, spark-sputtering stop on wobbly rims bent badly out of shape.

In the film, out stepped the mustachioed figure of Hugh Conway, Oxford-bred British foreign service officer as played by the dashing, debonair Ronald Colman. In the real life spinoff, out stepped Hugh Mulligan, dashing AP columnist whose forested upper lip is perhaps more suggestive of a cross between Oliver Hardy and a Louisiana catfish.

Hugh Conway, if you recall the James Hilton novel, was a victim of the world's first hijacking in fact or fiction. Although fewer than a couple of thousand Westerners have visited Tibet in its entire recorded history, our arrival on the roof of the world was thoroughly programmed and normal, discounting the fire engines racing across the gravel runway. We were guests of the China News Agency.

Radioactive Garbage

WASHINGTON — If you talk to most governors (Jerry Brown is the exception) they're all for nuclear energy. But there is one problem — no governor wants to accept the nuclear waste that is produced by the energy. Everyone thinks it should be buried in another state.

Since we only have 50 states, our options as to where to dump the stuff are limited.

Nuclear waste is not your everyday garbage. Its life is anywhere from 10,000 to 50,000 years. While it doesn't give off any smell, it radiates like mad and there doesn't seem to be any canister which will hold it more than a couple of decades.

What's the answer? A broker friend thinks he has it. "We must make nuclear waste a precious commodity like gold or silver and have people start speculating in it. The government could hold an auction on the waste, and then the commodity people would begin dealing in futures. A pound might start off at $100, and then the speculators would take it from there. In a good market I could see it going up to $500, with delivery in six months."

"Wouldn't the traders be afraid of taking delivery on the nuclear waste they bought?"

"Commodity speculators never know what they're dealing in," he said. "To them it's all paper. Do you think they have ever seen a soybean or a pork belly? All they're trying to do is make a killing and if they can't make it in silver, they'll make it in garbage."

"But eventually someone is going to be stuck with the nuclear waste."

"You don't understand the people who play the commodity game. They never believe they're going to be the last guy in line. They always hope to unload the commodity before delivery time. If someone gets stuck, it's his tough luck. He'll have to bury it in his own back yard."

"His wife won't like that," I said.

"Commodity speculators don't think about their wives. If they did, they'd never be in the business. Look, I've got this thing all worked out. Once you put nuclear waste on the market everyone is going to believe it must be valuable or people wouldn't be speculating in it. If nuclear waste goes up and the dollar goes down, you'll have people all over the world trying to buy in. The Arabs will figure there must be something to the waste or we wouldn't be selling it at auction. The gnomes of Switzerland will recommend it to their clients, and pretty soon all the big banks will start stockpiling the waste in their safes."

ART BUCHWALD

"If we get everyone buying it, we could wind up with a shortage."

"It's a good plan," I agreed, "particularly if the OPEC countries start demanding to be paid for their oil in nuclear sludge. How do we get it off the ground?"

"The first thing we have to do is persuade the President to go on television and say the country is running out of nuclear waste and unless we all conserve, there will be none left 100,000 years from now. That's all the speculators will need to dump their holdings in wheat and start gambling in radioactive garbage."

To the editor:

The concert given by the East Carolina Symphony Orchestra Sunday afternoon, Nov. 4, indeed afforded me a pleasurable interlude. A group of talented people working together achieve accord and produce the end result of a harmonious blending of uplifting beautiful music.

For me, so uplifting my thoughts transcended to the hope that, if people working together can thus attain such excellent results, then too people have the potential within themselves to eliminate the malaise of today's world and bring about universal harmony.

As a Greenville resident, I appreciate the fact that the public is invited to the East Carolina University Symphony Orchestra's concerts and, no admission charge at that!

Helen Y. (Mrs. Malcolm S.) Trupp

To the editor:

I wish to express my appreciation to Stuart Savage and "The Daily Reflector" for the article in the Sunday, Nov. 4 edition concerning my possible candidacy for the U. S. Senate. Mr. Savage not only quoted me accurately in every instance, but he captured the essence of my position on this potential campaign. Those involved in public matters, myself included, are often quick to criticize media "inaccuracies" and "distortions." In this case, I wish to offer praise and appreciation.

Controversial Thoughts Here

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — You may disagree with the following ideas, proposals and findings, but they represent the thinking of some of the most influential individuals and institutions in the nation.

—From a conservative economist:

Interest rates are "too low," according to Milton Friedman, the Nobel laureate economist. And he means what he says, even though almost all rates are into historically high territory.

Friedman explained his position a couple of weeks ago to an alumni group at Stanford University.

There is still a gap between the rates of inflation and interest, he explained. In many instances inflation rates are higher.

When that gap is taken into account, Friedman said, people who borrow now are "being paid 2 percent for the privilege." Such a statement would assume, for example, an 11 percent loan and 13 percent inflation.

Consumer borrowing rates in most areas of the country are now higher than 11 percent, except in states with low usury ceilings, but the thrust of Friedman's argument, that it pays to borrow, may be correct.

Not only do borrowers repay in cheaper dollars, but they earn tax deductions too. Therefore, according to his thesis, interest rates are still too low.

—From Citizen's Choice, a self-described "national grassroots organization," closely allied with the U.S. Chamber of Commerce:

"Skyrocketing taxes, deficit spending and a deteriorating relationship between the taxpayer and the Internal Revenue Service demand that immediate measures to resolve these problems be taken now."

Therefore, a commission to investigate the relationship between the IRS and individuals will conduct nationwide hearings, during which questions such as these will be put to the public:

"Should the advice which IRS employees give to taxpayers be guaranteed, so that if a taxpayer follows it he will not be penalized later by another agent's ruling?"

"Should the IRS eliminate the bounty paid to taxpayers who turn in the name of fellow citizens for a special IRS audit?"

"Should the IRS be required to reimburse taxpayers for the money they spend to defend themselves during IRS audits when the taxpayer is sustained?"

Citizen's Choice calls its effort "a massive undertaking of vital importance to the future of taxpayer-government relations."

Backstage Reagan Troubles

Backstage problems in the Reagan campaign were hinted at with the easing out as Ronald Reagan's Florida campaign chief old pro Patrick Hillings of California. Hillings, a former congressman from California and onetime political intimate of Richard M. Nixon, worked closely on the 1968 Nixon campaign with Reagan campaign manager John Sears. It was Sears who brought Hillings into the Reagan operation to run the campaign for the critically important March 11 primary in Florida.

It was also Sears who recently informed Hillings that Charles Black, Reagan's director of field operations, wanted a home-grown Florida Republican in charge. Sears hinted he would have been happy to keep Hillings but that Black insisted on the shift.

The Reagan Quest

The constant quest by Ronald Reagan's campaign for big-name moderates has been concentrating on a key politician in a state that has become central to campaign manager John Sears' strategy: Republican State Chairman Frederick K. Biebel of Connecticut.

Although Biebel told us he has not decided to back Reagan and may not endorse anybody, senior Reagan officials believe negotiations to bring him aboard are near fruition. Sears has made Connecticut a symbol of Reagan's ability to show that he can win in a northeastern industrialized state with a non-conservative tradition.

Say It Again, Ham

Eyes boggled in the senior White House staff meeting one recent morning when Hamilton Jordan, the White House chief of staff, warned against continuing the talk about presidential politics that had dominated the session.

"No more politics, please," said a straight-faced Jordan. "We're on the taxpayers' business in this house, not campaign politics." Discussion of political problems dealing with the 1980 election,

Antonia Dalapas Seeks Fine For Braniff Giving Recital

Antonia Dalapas, soprano and member of the faculty of the School of Music, East Carolina University, will be in recital at 8:15 p.m. Sunday, November 11 in the A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall.

She will be accompanied by Everett Pittman, pianist, Dean of the School of Music.

The recital is free and is open to the public on a first-come, first-seated basis.

For her program, Ms. Dalapas has chosen songs by Handel, Brahms, Faure and Ginastera. She will also sing the aria "In quelle trine morbide" from Puccini's "Manon Lescaut," Greek folksongs arranged by Valtziotis and Evangelatos, and five popular Greek melodies arranged by Maurice Ravel.

An assistant professor in the School of Music, Ms. Dalapas has performed in Oregon, New York and Washington, in addition to numerous appearances in FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration says Braniff Airways should be fined $1.5 million for flying passenger jets that are not airworthy and that it may ground the planes if Braniff does not improve its performance.

The FAA said Tuesday in recommending the fine that it would consider grounding the fleet if the alleged violations continue during a special one-year surveillance period.

"The violations in question appear to reflect a basic pattern of continuing disregard of federal aviation regulations on the part of Braniff management by using improper and unapproved maintenance procedures, by operating aircraft that had not received required inspection, and by failing to keep adequate records of repairs performed..." FAA Southwest Regional Director C.R. Melugin Jr. said Tuesday.

The FAA cited 10 major violations and several minor ones. Braniff denied the allegations in a statement. "This notification appears to be a new FAA practice," it said. "We understand, however, we will now have the opportunity for our technicians to meet with the FAA and we are confident that we can satisfy any questions they might have about any alleged discrepancies."

Melugin said several FAA violations involved the operation of Boeing 747 and 727 and Douglas DC-8 aircraft that "did not meet applicable airworthiness requirements for scheduled airline operations."

Avers Deadline Pressure Fatal

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Deadline pressure on Eastern Airlines' pilots was the reason for a series of crashes that occurred prior to the 1974 crash of an Eastern jet in Charlotte that killed 72 persons, an aviation safety specialist contends.

That was his testimony Tuesday in the second day of a civil trial involving three suits against Eastern. The airline has filed countersuits against the federal government charging negligence on the part of air traffic controllers in Douglas Municipal Airport at the time of the Sept. 11, 1974, crash. Ten persons survived that crash.

C.O. Miller, 55, of McLean, Va., a private consultant, testified that nine crashes from June 1972 just prior to the 1974 crash near Douglas had one common denominator.

"The predominant thread is what we in our trade call the 'press on theory,'" Miller said. "Due to a pressure exerted by management, or a policy, stated or otherwise, that it is important to meet schedules and get on the ground."

Miller said most of the nine accidents, which killed 99 persons and injured at least 89 others, demonstrated a "lack of crew coordination and cockpit discipline."

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C. — Wednesday, November 7, 1979 — 5

"When you see incidents in this country of the type I describe for a major airline in this country, management should have considerable concern for the safety of its airline," Miller said. "A reasonable manager for safety would have the view a serious problem is present in this area."

For four years prior to 1972, Eastern had no serious accidents, Miller testified. But in early 1974, because of the nine accidents, Eastern put together a safety program it took on the road to show its pilots in early 1974, he said.

But the show was not very effective because high-ranking company officials did not push the safety theme, Miller said. The program also stressed meeting the competition, he said.

Miller was the first witness in the case in U.S. District Court. Two survivors and the estate of a deceased passenger are suing Eastern for real and punitive damages of nearly $20.5 million.

'Harbor Master'

EGG HARBOR CITY, N.J. (AP) — It's been a long time since a boat docked here, so the new harbor master of Egg Harbor City — 10 miles inland — doesn't expect to have much to do.

Joe Wimberg, 63, a chemical salesman, cornered 54 percent of the vote Tuesday to defeat incumbent Charlie Mancuso, a 66-year-old retired linen truck driver, for the municipal job.

The tiny city is on the Mullica River at Landing Creek. But no one remembers a ship ever docking here. And during their campaigns, the two men agreed there was not a lot for a harbor master to do.

Mancuso promised to wait for the city to build a harbor, and then "go out there and supervise."

Wimberg promised voters he would return his salary to the city so it could build a boat to sail down the river.

The job pays $25 a year.

Arrest 157 In Pot Busts At Schools

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Wake County law enforcement officials worked an unprecedented undercover operation in the county schools for two months using college students as drug agents, an investigation that resulted in 157 arrests Tuesday.

Most of those arrested were students from the county's 12 senior high schools who were caught with drugs or selling drugs by young criminal justice students from a Piedmont technical school who posed as fellow high school students.

The charges involved the selling of drugs or conspiring to sell drugs and most involved marijuana.

Police said the undercover agents made drug buys on and off school campuses. The investigation involved Wake County school officials, Raleigh police, the Wake County Sheriff's Office and the Wake County District Attorney's Office. It was initiated by school superintendent John Murphy.

Raleigh Police Chief Frederick K. Heineman said Tuesday placement of the undercover agents in the schools was an unprecedented move in a drug investigation.

"As far as I know, it's the first time it's been done any place," Heineman said.

Heineman said the undercover agents were "absolutely not" advised to solicit students for drugs. But that was disputed by a number of students at one of the high schools involved. Those students claim a student they suspected of being an undercover agent flashed large sums of money and asked students where he could find large quantities of marijuana.

School principals were told about the planned investigation, Murphy said, but they were not given the option of refusing to have their schools involved.

Murphy said he asked for the operation when statistics showed the number of students expelled from school for possession of drugs was increasing.

A Wake County grand jury handed down 206 indictments against 157 people in a late-night session Monday.

Of the 157, 117 were high school students, another 33 were non-students charged with selling drugs to students. Fifteen ABC violations were filed for alleged sale of alcoholic beverages to minors.

PLO Moving To Intercede

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, its drive to free some 60 American hostages in Iran stalled, is keeping a close eye on a move by the Palestine Liberation Organization to intercede with the Khomeini regime.

American discussions with Iranian officials — aimed at securing their intervention with the students holding the hostages in the U.S. embassy — have been at a standstill for nearly two days, both here and in Tehran.

With the fall of Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan's government, the United States had only low-level officials left in Iran to deal with directly.

But reports reached the State Department late Tuesday that a new civil government may be formed shortly, possibly under Bazargan.

"This could start things moving again," said a department official, who asked not to be identified.

The announcement by the PLO, meanwhile, that its delegation is going to Tehran "to secure the lives" of the Americans held prisoner clearly intrigued U.S. officials.

To a man, the officials said the administration did not initiate any overture to the PLO, or have anything to do with the development, which was seen here as holding out some hope of breaking the deadlock.

Hasan Abdel Rahman, deputy PLO observer at the United Nations in New York, told reporters the delegation would fly to Tehran from Beirut, Lebanon.

Tariff Loss
On Tobacco

WASHINGTON (AP) — An official General Accounting Office study estimates that the United States has lost as much as $188 million in tariffs over the past 10 years on imported tobacco improperly classified by customs officials as scrap.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., who asked for the GAO probe, said its findings support his contention that the U.S. Customs Service has improperly classified scrap tobacco.

The report said, "Customs' use of the scrap classification likely has been a factor in the doubling of tobacco scrap imports during this (10-year) period."

Helms and others had been concerned that foreign scrap imports were flooding into the country and that improper classification was costing extra tax revenues. John W. Sledge, president of the N.C. Farm Bureau Federation, has petitioned Customs to change its definition of scrap.

Helms released the GAO report as part of a letter he wrote to the Commissioner of Customs in support of Sledge's petition requesting reclassification. He urged prompt action on the request.

The report said that imported tobacco that has been processed into strips for use in cigarette and cigar making is entering the country as scrap.

The import duty on tobacco classified as scrap is 16.1 cents per pound, while the duty on stemmed cigarette leaf is 45 cents per pound, Helms said. This means that manufacturers can purchase the scrap tobacco that even with the tariff competes unfairly with domestic leaf, he said.

The GAO, which is the auditing arm of Congress, made no formal recommendations for dealing with the situation in its report.

But it said legislation might be a quicker way of settling the issue. However, Sledge and other industry officials said they did not think legislation was necessary.

"We've petitioned the Congress to do the job," he said. "We think they have the authority to do it. This doesn't need to be drawn out over a long period of time. But if it takes legislation, then so be it."

Opening A
New Exhibit

A reception with refreshments, open to the public, will be held beginning at 8 p.m. Thursday, November 8 at the Wellington B. Gray Gallery on campus. The reception marks the opening of a new multimedia exhibition featuring contemporary art by 28 southeastern artists. The exhibition has been organized by the Southeast Center for Contemporary Art (SECCA) in Winston-Salem.

Gray Gallery is located in the Leo W. Jenkins Fine Arts Center, which faces Fifth Street.

All interested persons are invited to attend the opening. The reception also honors the opening of Kim Irwin's thesis show, one of soft works.

A catalogue of the SECCA organized show will be on sale and is priced at $4.

Nutrition Talk
Given Pupils

Dorothy Hamill, food services manager at Wellcome Middle School, spoke to seventh graders at the school Monday about the importance of good nutrition.

Mrs. Hamill pointed out that good nutrition is essential for growth, as well as learning. She discussed the food service program in public schools, and named the signs of good health through nutrition.

Tony Coggins, one of the student leaders for the discussion, served classmates a variety of foods. Angelene Wallace was responsible for keeping the class record.

'Propositions' See Mixed Results In Tuesday Vote

By LEE MITGANG
AP Urban Affairs Writer

California voters have overwhelmingly approved a "Spirit of '13" state spending limit initiative and an anti-busing amendment, while a tax-lid proposition was passed in Washington state.

Among the propositions defeated Tuesday were bottle laws in Ohio and Washington state, and a bid by Westchester County, N.Y., to begin a possible takeover of the facilities of Consolidated Edison.

Maine voters resoundingly defeated an industry-sponsored initiative to repeal that state's bottle law, which mandates deposits on beverage containers as a means of curbing litter.

Rent control propositions were defeated in San Francisco but approved in Baltimore.

Also in San Francisco, a proposed 20-story limit on new skyscrapers and a rent control measure — billed as perhaps the nation's most stringent — were trailing in early returns.

A proposal in the San Francisco Bay area to create a solar village at Hamilton Air Force Base in Marin County was headed for defeat.

California's spending limit initiative will tie future state spending to inflation and population growth.

With 25 percent of the vote counted, it led by 602,593 votes to 228,049.

One of the sponsors of the measure was Paul Gann, who with Howard Jarvis co-authored Proposition 13. That proposition, which was approved

17 months ago and set off a nationwide tax revolt, slashed California property taxes by $7 billion.

With 25 percent of the vote in, California's anti-busing amendment, whose wording made it unclear whether it would actually limit busing to achieve integration, led 540,178 to 303,628.

On other "pocketbook issues," Washington state voters approved a proposition that ties state revenues to the growth in personal income by a 2-to-1 margin in early tallies.

Oklahoma, on the other hand, rejected a Republican-backed proposition aimed at granting taxpayers a federal income tax deduction on state income tax returns.

In Maine, with 97.5 percent of precincts counted, voters rejected the bottle law repeal effort 219,285 to 40,510.

But Ohio's proposal setting a 10-cent deposit on beverage containers was rejected almost as decisively. With 11,187 of 13,262 polling places reporting, the bill was defeated 1,741,984 to 662,187.

And the bottle initiative in Washington state that would have required consumers to pay a nickel deposit on all soft drink and beer cans and bottles was defeated 274,305 to 210,689.

Westchester County voters defeated a measure that might have been the first step to a county takeover of Con Ed, the private utility that charges the highest electricity rates in the region. The contest was marked by a $1.2 million media blitz by Con Ed and other foes of the proposition.

N.C. Poll Puts Carter Ahead

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Neither President Carter nor Sen. Edward Kennedy has amassed a majority of support among North Carolina Democrats for next year's presidential nominee, a recent poll shows.

The poll, conducted by the University of North Carolina Television Network, shows Carter was the choice of 30.7 percent, while Kennedy, D-Mass., was named by 28.5 percent of those asked. "Who would you like to see be the Democratic nominee for president in 1980?"

The poll also shows a substantial number — 26.8 percent — favored Democratic candidates other than Carter or Kennedy, and 14 percent said they were unsure.

The poll used a randomly selected sample of 501 North Carolinians. It asked those who said they were registered Democrats who they favored.

The same question, when posed by the surveyers to registered Republicans, showed 22.7 percent picked former president Gerald Ford and 19.6 percent chose Ronald Reagan. John Connally got the support of 10.3 percent, followed by Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., with 8.2 percent. All other GOP candidates polled 19.6 percent, with another 19.6 percent undecided.

The poll was conducted as research for a television documentary to be shown next spring.

Meanwhile, several of Carter's earliest and most generous supporters in North Carolina say they aren't pleased with the president's performance, but few say they will support Kennedy.

Interviews by a newspaper with 12 people who donated at least $500 to Carter in 1976 revealed that most have reservations about Carter's performance to date. Two indicated intentions to make a donations to Carter again.

However, Carter's fundraisers in the state say they're not worried about the Kennedy threat, saying the Massachusetts senator's liberal image will scare off many wavering party supporters.

"There are a lot of Democrats who are disenchanted with Carter," said Felix Harvey, a Kinston businessman who with his wife donated $1,500 to Carter in 1976.

CORNER OF GREENVILLE AND ARLINGTON BOULEVARDS

Gentle Indiana Giant Is Still Growing

By NANCY SHULINS
Associated Press Writer
EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — As T-shirts go, it was simple, emphatic and to the point. "Don't Ask," it said on the front, and on the back it gave his height: 7 feet 5 inches.

John Hollinden hoped it would stem the steady parade of gaping jaws, hissing whispers and pointing fingers. But before he could judge its effect, something happened he hadn't counted on.

He outgrew it. At 21, Hollinden now measures 7 feet 6½ inches from his thick brown hair to the soles of his sneakers. It's a good bet there's more to come. It's a good bet, too, that the whispers will keep pace.

But Hollinden's patience is as long as his body.

"I'd rather be happy than mad or sad," he said. So he talks about the good things, like being able to see across supermarket aisles and winning a full basketball scholarship to Indiana State University at Evansville, his hometown.

"I'd rather be happy than mad or sad," he said. So he talks about the good things, like being able to see across supermarket aisles and winning a full basketball scholarship to the University of Evansville in his hometown.

He's the second-tallest college player, half an inch shorter than George Bell, a 20-year-old junior at Atlanta's Morris Brown College.

But for every supermarket aisle, for every free throw that hits its target, there's a shower that's too short, a suit that must be custom made, a telephone booth that's too low.

And always, there's the endless parade of people who won't leave John Hollinden alone. In shopping malls and at movies, in airports and at concerts, they stalk him like some rare, exotic bird.

"HEEEY, gettalooda that!" It was a woman this time, with pungent face powder and a voice that carried. She scurried across the street to where Hollinden stood outside an Evansville restaurant.

"I'm guessing that you're French," said the woman, whose flapping kerchief lined up two inches above his belt buckle.

"No, actually, I'm ..."

"HEEEY, I bet you play basketball," she interrupted.

"Yes, I do," he said politely. "At ISUE. Come see us sometime."

Sometimes the questions bother him. Often, they don't. "Shoot, if people are pointing and staring and acting like fools, that's their problem, not mine," he said.

"It's something he's had to learn to live with," said his mother, Anne Hollinden, who stands 5-foot-8. His father is 6-foot-3.

"I've never seen John fight with anybody, not with words, not with fists," said his teammate and friend, Doug Alexander.

"A gentle giant," said his coach, Wayne Boultinghouse.

"Aw, shoot," said Hollinden. "As long as I'm healthy."

He's healthier now than ever. At 230 pounds, he's "filled out a lot" since his early days at Evansville's Central High School, when he stood slightly over 7 feet and weighed in at 150 pounds.

"Now that," said Hollinden, "is skinny."

With the added pounds have come strength and stamina. Boultinghouse said, and Hollinden's coordination, once "sub-par," is now average.

"I don't think he'll be a professional prospect, and I don't think John is the answer to our dreams," the coach said. "But he will give us great visibility within the community. He'll be very much a contributor. And he's a lot of fun to be around — he's got a cheery word for everyone."

An Evansville native, Hollin-den spent his freshman and sophomore years at Oral Roberts University in Tulsa, Okla. He transferred last year but due to a rule requiring transfer students to sit out a year, he won't play his first game here until December. A communications major, Hollinden is considering a career in radio or TV. To relax, he plays piano, guitar, harmonica and clarinet. "A piano and a basketball court — that's all I need to be happy."

He doesn't know why he's head and shoulders above the crowd. But he does know his height has put golden opportunities within his reach.

"If I were shorter, I probably wouldn't have been good enough to get that scholarship. I would have gotten a job somewhere, or gone to school and worked part-time and come home for Christmas," he said.

"But being so tall, I could have gone to college anywhere. I've gotten to travel a lot, see a lot of schools and meet a lot of people. It's a great way to meet people."

Being tall is also "a silly thing to worry about," said Hollinden, who thinks people "generally worry too much."

"They worry about being tall and they worry about being short, about being skinny and about being fat."

"Shoot, why can't people just be happy the way they are?" There wasn't time to speculate, though, for just then, it happened again.

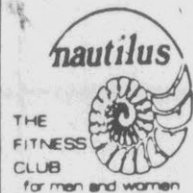

"Excuse me, but would you mind telling me ..."

"Seven feet 6½ inches," he said, for the fifth time in an hour.

But this time, he smiled.

LONG-DISTANCE — This seven-foot telephone booth may be tall enough for most people, but 7-foot 6-inch John Hollinden finds the receiver a long way down. (AP Laserphoto)

N.C. Supreme Court Upholds Death Penalty

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina Supreme Court has upheld the state's death penalty law and refused to set aside the death sentence of a Robeson County woman convicted of poisoning the man she lived with.

Tuesday's ruling marked the first time the high court has dealt formally with the death penalty's overall constitutionality. It also was the first time the court let a death sentence stand under the law, which was enacted in 1977.

The court said the death penalty was "not excessive or disproportionate considering both the crime and the defendant" in the case of Velma Margie Barfield of Lumberton.

Mrs. Barfield was convicted of first-degree murder in Bladen Superior Court in November 1978 in the poisoning death of Stewart Taylor, 53. She has confessed to poisoning her mother and three other persons.

Mrs. Barfield has said she wants to die. Her lawyer, Robert D. Jacobson of Lumberton, was not available for comment Tuesday. He has the option of petitioning the U.S. Supreme Court to hear the case.

A jury that convicts a person of first-degree murder must also decide the sentence — death or life in prison — in a separate proceeding where additional evidence and arguments are presented.

All death sentences are appealed automatically to the state's highest court.

The U.S. Supreme Court struck down North Carolina's previous death penalty in 1976. It said mandatory death sentences for certain crimes were unconstitutional.

The 1977 General Assembly enacted the present statute that requires the separate sentencing hearing and allows certain factors to be weighed by a jury during its sentencing deliberations.

Writing for the court, Justice David M. Britt said: "It is clear ... that the present North Carolina death statutes are not mandatory in nature, but instead provide for the exercises of guided discretion in the imposition of sentence."

Jacobson had appealed the sentence on the grounds that it is cruel and unusual punishment, that the law makes it mandatory in nature and that the state should have to prove there are no mitigating circumstances before it can be imposed.

The public is invited to attend.

Church Showing Film Sunday

"The Climb", a movie filmed in the peaks of the American Rockies, will be shown at the Winterville Free Will Baptist Church on Sunday, Nov. 11 at 7:30 p.m.

"The Climb" is a drama telling the story of four mountain climbers facing the dangers of a treacherous climb. Apart from the danger scenes, "The Climb" focuses on two young people whose love for their atheist friend is motivated by their faith in Christ.

ECU Trustees Meet Saturday

ECU News Bureau
The board of trustees of East Carolina University will hold its regular fall meeting on campus Saturday, Nov. 10, at 2 p.m. in Mendenhall Student Center.

Meetings of the development committee, the educational planning and faculty affairs committee, the student life committee and the executive committee will be held earlier in the day Saturday. The board's buildings and grounds committee will meet on campus on Wednesday, Nov. 7, for on-site inspections and reports. Reports by these committees and the athletics committee will be received by the full board at the Saturday afternoon meeting.

In addition, the board will receive staff reports from Chancellor Thomas B. Brewer, from the vice chancellors, from the dean of the School of Medicine and director of Athletics. A faculty report will be given by Dr. William H. Queen, Director of the Institute for Coastal and Marine Resources.

$64,000 Grant To ECU Anatomist

Dr. Hubert W. Burden, associate professor of anatomy at The East Carolina School of Medicine, has received a $64,000 grant to study the influence of certain nerves in the female reproductive tract.

The three-year grant from the National Institutes of Health will focus on how nerves in the ovary control the function of the gland and what their role is during childbirth.

"Scientists have traditionally thought that ovaries are under the control of hormones, and that local ovarian nerves play little or no role in the control of the function," Burden said. "Now we have preliminary evidence which suggests that nerves within the ovary may also have a direct role in the function of the ovary."

Burden said the study should contribute to the basic understanding of the reproductive function and may be applied to the development of newer techniques for birth control.

Also collaborating on the project are Drs. Irvin Lawrence and Tom Louis of the anatomy department.

Mayoral Office Still In Family

WARM RIVER, Idaho (AP) — Warm River is assured of a "Mrs. Lewies" being mayor again for another four years. In fact, Warm River has never had a mayor who wasn't a Mrs. Lewies.

The tiny resort town near Yellowstone National Park overwhelmingly elected Lillian Lewies to another term by a 3-0 vote Tuesday.

Mrs. Fred Lewies was elected mayor in 1947 when Warm River was incorporated so slot machines could be legal at the town's principal business — the Warm River Resort.

Mrs. Lewies died in 1961 and her daughter-in-law succeeded her as mayor. Lillian Lewies has been mayor ever since. Her husband, Harry, operates the resort and serves on the City Council.

Biology Seminar Slated Friday

ECU News Bureau
Sanford Overton of Greenville, graduate student in the East Carolina University Department of Biology, will share results of his research in a departmental seminar Friday, Nov. 9, at 1 p.m.

His topic is "Structure and Development of 'Haliphthorax milfordensis.'" The organism is a fungus that is parasitic on some types of sea animals.

All interested persons are invited to attend the presentation, which will be held in the Helms Room of the ECU Science Complex.

Overton's research was undertaken in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the master's degree in biology at ECU.

Chaining To Bell Is Tried

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Four Iranian students were arrested as they tried to chain themselves to America's greatest freedom symbol, the Liberty Bell, police said.

Chief Inspector George Fencel of the police civil disobedience squad said Tuesday the three men and a woman claimed they were tourists when they entered the Bell Pavilion, located in Independence National Historical Park a block from Independence Hall.

"They took out chains and were seized before they were able to do anything," said Fencel, who ordered the four taken to police headquarters for questioning before they are released. "Since they never actually accomplished what they wanted to do, we won't charge them."

About 50 members of the Confederation of Iranian Students marched a half mile from Philadelphia's City Hall to the Bell Pavilion carrying huge banners and chanting such slogans as, "Death to the shah."

Meet Thursday

The Pitt County Beekeeper's Association will meet Thursday, Nov. 8, 7:30 p.m., at the Pitt County Agricultural Extension office, 203 W. Third St.

Discussion will be held on registration of bee colonies with the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) and procedures to be followed in the event of a pesticide related bee kill. Those who rent bee colonies for pollination purposes or maintain colonies adjacent to fields where pesticides may be applied should attend the meeting. The Association meets the second Thursday of each month.

Iowa Debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy will plunge into election-year activities by squaring off in Iowa at a newspaper-sponsored debate.

The president has accepted an invitation to the Jan. 7 forum sponsored by the Des Moines Register and Tribune, a White House official said Tuesday.

Kennedy, who is challenging Carter for the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination, also has accepted the invitation, the Des Moines Register confirmed.

California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., who is to announce his candidacy for the party nomination Thursday, has not been invited because he "has not mounted any campaign here that is discernible," according to James Gannon, executive editor of the Register and Tribune.

Iowa will be the scene of important Democratic and Republican caucuses Jan. 21. A debate among GOP hopefuls is planned by the two newspapers Jan. 5.

A 21-item agenda has been prepared for consideration by the City Council at Thursday's 8 p.m. meeting at city hall.

Items under "old business" include: appointments to boards and commissions; public hearings on two rezoning requests; public hearing on a recommended increase in bus fares here; public hearing on the Small Cities Community Development program; and consideration of a resolution adopting a bikeway plan map.

"New business" on the agenda includes: public hearing on two special use permit applications; consideration of a resolution accepting and supporting the Young Adult Conservation Corps program;

Consideration of an ordinance adding the J. T. Williams property on the south side of Tenth Street between Cedar Lane and Greenville Boulevard to the fire district; pay plan consideration; consideration of two recommendations by the Traffic Commission;

Consideration of the acceptance of three streets for permanent maintenance; scheduling of public hearings on two rezoning requests; consideration of a request for rezoning property on NC 33 across from Brook Valley; scheduling of a public hearing on the annexation of right-of-way on Mumford Road;

Consideration of a recommendation that the Council approve the Greenville water service area; consideration of applications for beer and wine privilege licenses; consideration of tax releases and refunds; and consideration of a resolution adopting the Positive Litter Reduction Program offered by the U.S. Brewers Association.

Unemployment Claims Top '78

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — New claims in September for unemployment insurance benefits declined by 6.5 percent from August, but increased more than 40 percent from the same month in 1978.

The Employment Security Commission said Tuesday that almost 70 percent of the state's industries registered declines, the largest being in furniture. The greatest increase for the month was hosiery.

The number of claims averaged 3,622 in the state.

Directs N.C. Blind Services

RALEIGH — Earl Jennings, native of Elizabeth City and a graduate of East Carolina University, has been named new director of the Division of Services for the Blind of the North Carolina Department of Human Resources.

Jennings, who was not born blind, explains that "I gradually began losing my own vision around 1951 or 1952 when I was traveling for an insurance company. I kept seeing gray spots, so I went for a checkup which revealed that my eyesight was gradually deteriorating."

When he was told this, Jennings gave up his driving job and went to work as an x-ray technician at Alenbarle Hospital in Elizabeth City. He notes that "One day George Staton walked in to have his broken arm x-rayed. I could tell he was blind, yet I noticed he had a class ring on his finger. We got to talking and Staton encouraged me to continue my education."

Staton worked for the division at that time and is currently assistant director for programs and facilities.

Jennings decided to attend East Carolina University. "My wife Mary, who is now employed with the Division of Health Services, was my reader and tutor," Jennings said. "It was tough on both of us, but we made it." After getting his undergraduate degree at ECU, Jennings later earned his masters degree at NCSU, Raleigh.

He went to work for the division in 1959 as a placement counselor, and in the intervening 20 years, has worked his way up through several positions to deputy director, on to his new position as the division director.

Found Farmers Are Healthiest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Judging by occupation, the healthiest Americans are farmers, according to the Health Insurance Institute.

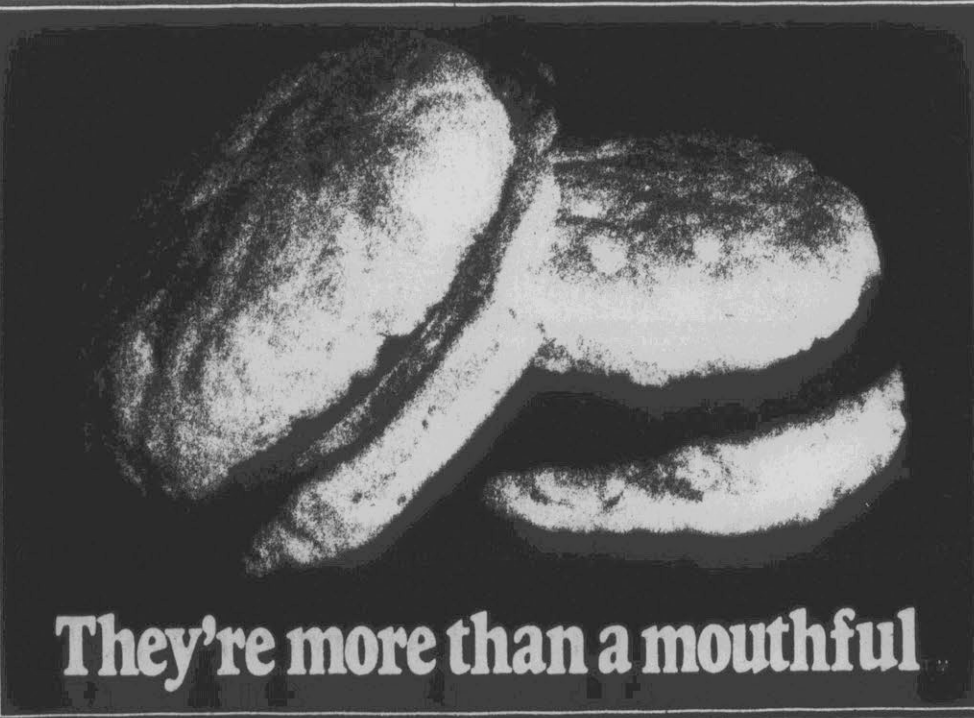

"Government data show that farmers had fewer days of restricted activity caused by illness or injury in 1977 than 10 other types of workers," according to the institute.

While the farmer averaged 9.1 days of restricted activity, the white collar worker averaged 11.4 days, and the blue collar worker, 12.4 days.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market fell sharply today amid unconfirmed rumors that supplies of oil from Iran had been cut off.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 7.33 to 799.15 in the first half hour.

Losers took a 4-1 lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Unconfirmed reports continued to circulate today that the flow of oil from Iran had been shut off. The rumors drew denials from several sources, including the National Iranian Oil Co.

But analysts said investors remained edgy over the mounting tension between the United States and Iran.

President Carter dispatched two emissaries to Iran today with a letter to the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini asking that 60 Americans being held hostage in Tehran be freed.

Today's early volume leaders included American Electric Power, off 1/4 at 18; American Telephone & Telegraph, off 1/4 at 52 1/2, and Merck, down 1/4 at 65 1/2.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 6.15 to 806.48, following a 6.31 loss the day before.

Declines outnumbered advances by a more than a 2-1 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume came to 21.96 million shares against 20.47 million Monday.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index lost .33 to 57.48.

The American Stock Exchange's market value index was off 1.09 at 207.24.

a franchise for North Carolina Natural Gas Company. The Commissioners said they believe, based on extensive communication lately, that the gas company is aware of the town's feeling that the company should do all it can to comply with line extension requests within the town.

The board agreed to release 50 percent of Farmville's fiscal year 1980 assessment for the Mid-East Commission, based on the Commission's indication that "exploration of alternative organizational structures for the Commission" are underway. Farmville and other towns in the area have been withholding money to encourage the executive board of the Commission to take steps to change to a Council of Governments form of government.

The town will send with its half-payment a letter indicating that the balance will be paid upon issuance of a full report by the task force studying organizational changes. A resolution was passed requesting transfer of State Road 1286 (a portion of Mandarin Drive and Pine Street creating industrial area access) from the state to the town street system. The state recently paved this street portion and the town will maintain it.

W. A. (Nick) Norman, chairman of the Farmville Housing Authority, was reappointed for a five-year term. Mrs. Anne Walters was appointed to the Farmville Public Library Board of Trustees to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of the Rev. William Gordon.

It was reported that sales are slow on the Community Appearance Handbooks and facade renderings for downtown buildings. An understanding was approved with the Housing Authority regarding installation of utilities and other services in the planned 35-unit addition to the public housing of the town.

A public hearing was called for Dec. 4 on the rezoning of the west side of Pitt Street between Wilson and Grimmersburg Streets from R-6 to R-8 residential. The Planning Board has recommended this rezoning. Property owners in the area are apparently fearful of the addition of multi-family dwellings in the area.

The rezoning petition was submitted by Sam Hobgood Jr. and John M. Wilkinson. The board indicated it will not participate in an Alternative Energy Corporation suggested by the N.C. Utilities Commission until costs are known. The board indicated it will not comply with the state's request that the town provide building inspection personnel to conduct inspections under the Federal Emergency Building Temperature Restriction Program.

A bid was awarded to Messer Chevrolet for a police car (Chevrolet Malibu police package) at a cost of $6,939.08. A public hearing was scheduled for Dec. 4 for proposed new extrajurisdictional boundaries and zones. The area to be dealt with is the U.S. 264 West annexation area. Further study was called for on the Planning Board's request that its powers be expanded to require that all annexation proposals be submitted to the Planning Board before going before the Town Board.

The board indicated it wants the town's refund from Carolina Power and Light, when the 1976 Wholesale Rate case is decided and if it is decided in customers' favor, in the form of a check, instead of billing credit. Douglas Faison and Paul proval of the cut, saying that the federal government was unable to shoulder additional costs in the lunches. Assistant Superintendent Leck Keeter announced that teachers would be receiving the $200 bonus checks from the state Nov. 30, following a question by NCAE President MacRae.

Review SALT Votes

WASHINGTON (AP) — At the request of Republican critics, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee is reconsidering previous votes to reject four "killer" amendments to the strategic arms limitation treaty.

The committee had hoped to bring SALT II to a final vote today but staff aides now believe there is only a "5 percent chance" of actually doing so.

In a last-minute ploy, the committee's Republican minority hired one of the treaty's leading critics — retired Army Gen. Edward L. Rowney — to help them restate the case for making substantive changes.

"It's likely we will have to do a full dance on this," said an aide to a Democratic committee member who asked not to be identified. "When they feel they have made enough of a record, we'll be able to move on to a final vote."

Sen. S.I. Hayakawa, R-Calif., said he believes it is highly unlikely that a two-thirds majority can be rallied to ratify the pact on the Senate floor unless it is substantially altered.

He asked the committee to vote again on the four amendments, which it previously rejected by narrow votes.

The proposed changes include bids to ignore Russian wishes and count the Soviet Backfire bomber as a strategic weapon and to eliminate or reduce Soviet heavy missiles in the present treaty instead of waiting for SALT III.

Correction

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners, Monday, appointed Charles Hudson of Greenville, to the Tar River Ports Commission.

An article in Tuesday's edition of "The Daily Reflector" incorrectly reported that the board had named Mrs. Charles Hudson to the Ports Commission.

Tripp, citizens, called on the board to "do something about dogs." No action was taken, but Police Chief Ron Cooper reported that one of his men has recently attended an Institute of Government program on animal control and that an ordinance to deal with the problem is being drafted.

Mayor Sara Albritton closed the meeting by saying it was her last as mayor and thanking citizens and town officials for the opportunity. She was given a standing ovation, after which citizen, Richard Dupree, made a brief tribute about "Mayor Albritton's fine work for all the people of Farmville" and suggested a second standing ovation.

School Board...

William Earl House reported on the recent meeting of the city-county school merger study committee, and voiced his approval of the information presented by Dr. W. O. Fields, superintendent of Wilson County Schools. It was noted that the committee would meet again Nov. 27 with officials from the State Department of Instruction.

Associate Superintendent Tom Craft reported that 18 schools have received sanitation certificates so far this school year. He presented facts on school bus accidents as to the 1979-80 school year, noting that 12 accidents had occurred, with approximately $12,000 damages to buses, and $10,000 damages to other vehicles.

Debts Mount

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the first time in history, Americans owe more than $300 billion for credit card and other installment loan purchases.

The $300 billion mark was passed in September as consumers increased their debt by a record $4.45 billion for the month, according to a report issued Tuesday by the Federal Reserve Board.

In fact, Americans at the end of September owed $303.9 billion on their bank, retail store and gasoline credit cards and for loans written on automobiles and mobile homes. The statistics do not include the more than $750 billion that the nation's families owe for their homes.

Huge Magnet Is On The Road

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Argonne National Laboratories officials say they are pleased about the progress of a 107-ton magnet being moved through Iowa by highway on its route from Illinois to California.

There was some concern about heavy snow in the mountains of Wyoming, Utah, Nevada and California, but "so far, we're moving faster than we anticipated," said Dan Giroux, an Argonne spokesman.

The 214,000-pound magnet is the largest load ever moved such a distance by highway. It is known to scientists as a superconducting electromagnet, which when assembled has a magnetic field about 36,000 times that of the Earth.

Farmville Goes For Unbeaten Season Friday

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

The Farmville Central Jaguars go after their first undefeated season under Coach Gene Brewer Friday night while the remaining Eastern Carolina Conference teams just look to improve their records in the final week of the high school football regular season.

The Jaguars, headed for the playoffs for the fourth straight season, upped their record to 9-0 overall, 7-0 in the league, with their title-clinching 41-6 win over Ayden-Grifton Friday.

Farmville's win marked its 30th consecutive ECC victory over the past four seasons and left the Jaguars only having to beat Southwest Edgecombe this week to end the regular season with a perfect slate.

In other games last week, Greene Central continued to improve, blanking D.H. Conley, 17-0. The Rams, after losing three of their first four ballgames, have won their last five and are 6-3 overall and 5-2 in the conference.

North Pitt was stopped short of the goal line in the late going and wound up in a 13-13 tie with East Carteret. The Panthers are 1-6 in the ECC and 2-6-1 overall.

Also last week, C.B. Aycock knocked off North Lenoir, 34-12 and Southern Nash rolled past Southwest Edgecombe, 34-6. Also, Edenton ripped Roanoke, 26-6. Jamesville ended its regular season with a 15-0 win over Creswell and Monday night Williamston upended Plymouth, 27-0.

This week's ECC schedule has Southern Nash at C.B. Aycock, D.H. Conley at North Pitt and North Lenoir at Greene Central. In other action, Roanoke plays host to Williamston.

Ayden-Grifton

During the preseason, Ayden-

AG's Ronnie Strong

ECU Spikers Top Pembroke State

East Carolina volleyball coach Alita Dillon didn't know whether to smile or frown after the Pirates won their last two games of the season, topping Pembroke State, 15-9, 15-6, and William & Mary, 15-13, 15-17 and 15-4.

"I was pleased that we won and evened up our record," said

Grifton coach Dixon Sauls was concerned about his team's lack of experience at the "skill positions."

Ten weeks and a football season full of experience later, Sauls has another concern.

"The biggest disappointment to our coaching staff this year was that we did not improve from the first game to the tenth game like we would have liked," Sauls said.

"We improved some from early in the season to about midway through, but then we seemed to hit a low spot and didn't improve much after that."

"We knew we were going to be young, but you're never satisfied with five wins and five losses. But looking at the injury situation we had from midseason on, and the caliber of opponents we played down the stretch, we certainly did a respectable job," Sauls said.

The Chargers ended their season Friday with a 41-6 loss to ECC champ Farmville Central. The loss put the Chargers' record at 5-5 overall and 4-4 in the league.

After winning three of their first four games, the Chargers lost senior fullback Billy Holland to an ankle injury. Holland, the second leading rusher in the league a year ago, struggled back late in the season, but was never 100 percent after the injury.

Sophomore Greg Jackson replaced Holland and seems to have laid claim to the starting fullback job next season, unless a late season ankle injury does not mend.

"We're losing five seniors, including our two running backs," Sauls said. Along with Holland, the Chargers will lose half back

NP's Mike Brown

Calvin Ellison. Ellison was ranked third in the league in rushing before last Friday's game, having ground out 722 yards.

"But, on the positive side, we'll have 20 players returning," he said. Along with Jackson, the Chargers will have quarterback Bernard Riccarelli and split end Timmy Edwards back.

"With Bernard having played in 10 games at quarterback as a sophomore, and Greg playing like he did, we feel we have gained some experience at those positions and will have a good nucleus for next year."

North Pitt

With the scored tied 13-13 with 40 seconds left in its game against East Carteret Friday night, North Pitt appeared to be on its way to its third win of the season.

Having driven inside the Mariner 40-yard line through a continuous downpour, the Panthers went to the air. "We threw a pass to Ronnie House, who ran it to the goal line," Panther coach Pat Smith said. "They hit him right at the goal line. The rain had erased the stripes and he thought he was in, and so did our flanker on the play."

The officials, however, ruled House had not crossed the goal line, putting the ball on the one-foot line.

Following a time out — the Panthers' last — and a dive play which didn't get the Panthers a score, quarter back Bob Hemingway quickly got his troops on the line for a pass play to kill the clock. As the pass sailed out of bounds an official's flag was spotted: holding against North Pitt.

"That moved us back to the 16," Smith said. "With the rain and all we just didn't have anyone who could kick a field goal from there. We were just trying to stop the clock (on the pass) so we could get our field goal team in."

As it was, the Panthers were forced to go for the touchdown. "We threw it into the end zone and before the ball got there our receiver was knocked down and they intercepted," Smith said.

"We should have had the game. We knew it. We should have won," Smith said.

This week, the Panthers play host to D.H. Conley and will again be looking for that elusive third win.

"I'm sure they'll be fired up. You usually can throw our the records on this one," Smith said. "If we play, it'll be a good, close game. If we don't, then it won't."

D.H. Conley

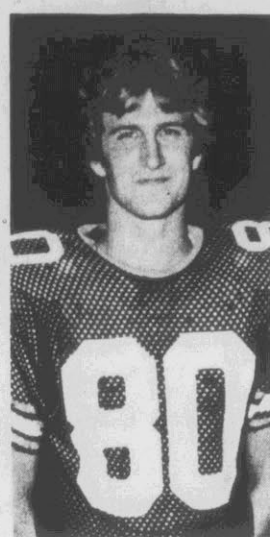

D.H. Conley will try again this Friday to assure itself of its first winning season in the school's history when the Vikings travel to Bethel to take on North Pitt.

The Vikings, 4-1 overall, 3-4 in the league, have had their last two attempts of guaranteeing themselves a winning record sidetracked.

Two weeks ago, the Vikings were upset by C.B. Aycock, 27-15, and last week Conley was beaten by Greene Central, 17-0.

Although Conley would appear, from the respective records, to be a solid favorite to beat North Pitt Coach Jimbo Walker is uneasy about the game.

FC's Tony Eason

"They've improved every week," Walker said of the Panthers. "We're looking forward to playing them."

"We've got to pull this one out," he added. "It isn't going to be easy, because I'm sure they'll be ready to play Conley Friday night."

In last week's loss to the Rams, Walker said his team made too many mistakes to win, something, he indicated, the Vikings will need to do less of to beat the Panthers.

"Greene Central blocked a punt of ours and we fumbled down close to our end zone another time," Walker said. "We just made too many mistakes. We're still not doing the little things right that we should be."

"I don't know why," he said. "I haven't got any idea."

Farmville Central

The Farmville Central Jaguars can wrap up their first unbeaten season under Coach Gene Brewer this Friday with a win over Southwest Edgecombe, and that, if nothing else, should keep the Jaguars' eyes trained on the Cougars and not looking ahead to the state high school football playoffs.

The Jaguars play host to either Edenton or Ahoskie in the first round of the playoffs next week. But for now, Brewer is mainly concerned with beating the Cougars.

"I don't think we're looking ahead," Brewer said. "We're just trying to look at this one first."

Southwest Edgecombe, 2-6 in the league and 3-6 overall this season, runs from wishbone, an offense Havelock used effectively against the Jaguars earlier in the season.

"Their wishbone isn't like Havelock's though," Brewer explained. "They're more of a power team, not an option team. Basically, their offense will come right at you."

Sutter Named NL Cy Young Winner

NEW YORK (AP) — Chicago Cubs reliever Bruce Sutter, who tied the National League record for saves with 37 last season, today was named winner of the NL Cy Young Award for 1979.

Sutter, who came within one save of the major league record set by John Hiller of the Detroit Tigers in 1973, narrowly defeated 21-game winner Joe Niekro of the Houston Astros in voting by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

The forklifting right-hander earned 10 of the 24 first-place ballots to become the second NL reliever and the third in baseball history to win the prize. Mike Marshall won it for the Los Angeles Dodgers in 1974 and Sparky Lyle of the New York Yankees took the American League honor in 1977.

Sutter also received six second-place votes and four third-place votes for a total of 72 points, with five points awarded for first-place mention, three points for second and one for third.

Niekro was second with 66 points. Strikeout champion J.R. Richard of the Houston Astros was third with 41 points, followed by Tom Seaver of the Cincinnati Reds (20 points), Pittsburgh Pirates reliever Kent Tekulve (14 points) and Phil Niekro of the Atlanta Braves, who was sixth with three points.

Sutter appeared in 62 games for Chicago, compiling a 6-6 record and a 2.23 earned run average in 101 innings. He struck out 110 batters and walked only 32 in becoming the second member of the Cubs to win the Cy Young. Ferguson Jenkins won it for Chicago in 1971.

Joe Niekro earned nine first-place votes and Richard garnered four, with Tekulve collecting the other.

Joe Niekro, along with brother Phil, led the NL in victories. He had a 21-11 record in 38 starts with 11 complete games and a 3.00 ERA.

Richard led the NL in strikeouts with 313 while building an 18-13 record and finishing with an ERA of 2.71.

In 1977, Sutter amassed 31 saves to tie the club record set by Ted Abernathy in 1965 and his 1.35 ERA led NL hurlers who pitched 100 innings or more. He added 27 saves in 1978.

Sutter also had 10 saves in 52 games during the 1976 campaign — his first in the major leagues — giving him 104 saves in just under 3½ seasons with the Cubs.

Crum Says Clock Allowed To Run Out On Tar Heels

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Dick Crum didn't want to talk about the final second of the Maryland game, but he'd backed himself into a corner and there was only one way out.

So, as if he were trying to break the world's record for the 100-yard dash, the North Carolina football coach rambled through a short statement Monday. He said a Maryland-based clock operator had permitted the final second to elapse when the Tar Heels thought they had time for one more play 21 yards short of victory.

They suffered a 17-14 upset at the hands of the Terrapins, and were all but eliminated from the Atlantic Coast Conference race. Afterward he questioned the objectivity of the clock operator.

"They really worked you over in the Washington papers; they chewed you up and spit you out. Have you seen any of those stories?" a writer asked Crum at his weekly press conference.

"No, I don't read the Washington papers," said Crum. "They have a lot of people writing about politics. Maybe they sent one of them to the game."

At least one story in a Washington newspaper categorized Crum as a crybaby. They said his remarks about the clock operator amounted to sour grapes.

Then Crum added fuel to the fire. He said the situation last Saturday was the reverse of what it was once during a basketball game at Maryland.

"Dean (Smith, the Tar Heel basketball coach) had the clock run out on him with Carolina winning," Crum explained. "But they set it back to three seconds. I guess they figured the clock would work in the field house but not on the football field."

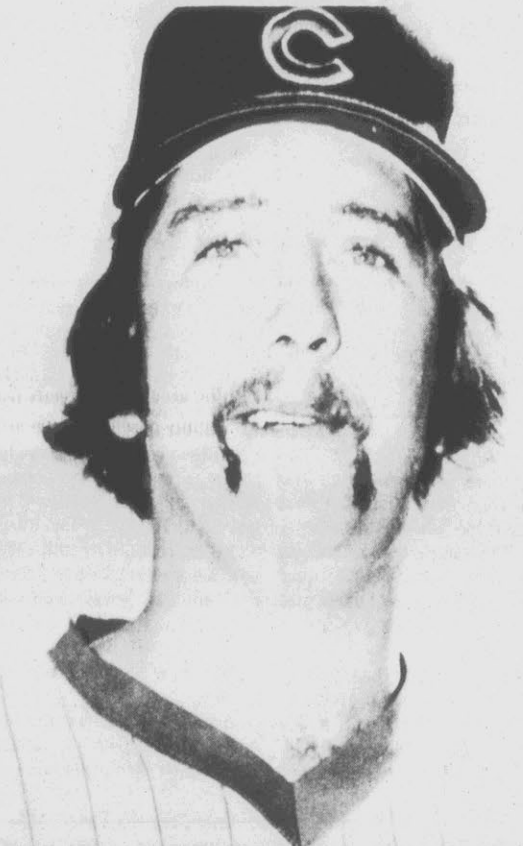

It was the second time this season that Crum has been critical of official decisions. Coincidentally the first came in a 24-19 loss to Wake Forest, one of only two the Tar Heels have suffered.

Most observers felt a slow whistle did not hurt the Tar Heels, but actually had cost Wake Forest a late touchdown. Later Crum had nothing to say publicly when his team benefited from some apparently erroneous calls that turned an even game into a 35-21 victory over North Carolina State.

Crum said he has tired of the emphasis being placed on North Carolina's bowl hopes.

"I'll tell you, that's what's going wrong with football teams," he said. "About the fifth game people start talking about bowl games."

After five games North Carolina was 4-1. After eight the Tar Heels are 5-2-1 and not getting any better.

Cy Young Award Winner

Chicago Cubs' reliever Bruce Sutter was named Monday winner of the National League Cy Young Award for 1979 by Baseball Writers Association of America. The forklifting right hander earned 10 of the 24 first-place ballots to become the second NL reliever and the third in baseball history to win the prize. (AP Laserphoto)

Grambling Probed By NCAA

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The NCAA is checking whether six Grambling University football players should be declared ineligible for postseason games this year, the Jackson Daily News reported.

The newspaper said Grambling Coach Eddie Robinson requested the investigation but refused to make public any details about it.

"When I get ready to tell the players, I'll tell you all about it," Robinson was quoted as saying. "I don't want the players thinking, 'What am I doing now if I can't play in the playoffs?' It could really affect us getting into the playoffs.

"Besides, if I don't think we could represent Grambling with the people who we have out there, then I'll tell the NCAA committee to keep us out."

Grambling was declared ineligible for the playoffs last season because of a fund which was set up to make loans to players. Last year Grambling won the championship of the Southwestern Athletic Conference.

The team has nailed down at least a tie for the SWAC championship again this year and has only one conference game remaining — against arch-rival Southern on Dec. 1.

On Saturday, Grambling meets South Carolina State.

The exact eligibility questions and the names of the players were not made public.

The newspaper said Jerry Miles, the NCAA's director of events, said Grambling appears to be the only school in contention for a I-AA bid which has eligibility questions.

The team was the No. 1-ranked I-AA club last week before beating Alabama State 21-7.

Nebraska Hoping For NCAA Title

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Nebraska has not had a national champion since Bob Devaney's teams won consecutive titles in 1970-71. From his current vantage point as Nebraska's athletic director, Devaney can cast a discerning eye on the 1979 Cornhuskers, ranked second nationally with an 8-0 record.

He likes what he sees.

"To this point, they're every bit as good," Devaney says, comparing the present Cornhuskers to his powerhouses. "The season's not over yet and I wouldn't say they look any better than those '70-'71 clubs, but they look just as good."

For those with short memories, the 1970 Cornhuskers were 11-0-1 and captured the national championship by defeating Louisiana State 17-12 in the Orange Bowl after Texas and Ohio State were knocked off earlier in the day in the Cotton and Rose Bowls, respectively.

A year later there was no doubt about it. Nebraska posted a 13-0 mark and swamped Alabama 38-6 in the Orange Bowl.

"Johnny Rodgers (the 1972 Heisman Trophy winner) probably had an edge on Kenny Brown at wingback, but Brown's not too far behind," says Devaney. "At quarterback, Jerry Tagge had a little edge on Tim Hager as a runner, but Hager is as good a passer."

On Saturday, before Rutgers' game against heavily favored Tennessee in Knoxville, Coach Frank Burns read his team the following from a local prediction column:

"People around here just don't know a lot about New Jersey and the East, and I guess I have been asked a hundred times this week, 'What are Rutgers?' Some people seem to think that they are something like mathematics or physics. Others say that they always come in groups, and that it is impossible to find just one Rutgers by itself. One housewife told me that she bought a pound of them at the supermarket last week for 59 cents, but they must have been on sale because another lady said that she usually pays 89 cents a pound for them. This one man who has been up East told me that he doesn't know exactly what Rutgers are but he's pretty sure that they are quite a bit like yonkers. Now if I just knew what yonkers were."

The folks in Tennessee still may not know that Yonkers is a city just north of New York, but they're fully aware that Rutgers is the State University of New Jersey.

You see, Rutgers was supposed to be a breather for Tennessee between Alabama and Notre Dame, but instead Tennessee was a breather for Rutgers between William & Mary and Army. The score was Rutgers 13, Tennessee 7.

"It's the best win I've ever had in my coaching career," Burns concedes, "and it has to be somewhat of a help to our program. At least for one week people will think we can play with anyone."

The triumph was no fluke. Rutgers outgained Tennessee — a team that led No. 1-ranked Alabama 17-0 two weeks earlier before losing — 388 yards to 257.

76ers Beat Bucks In Overtime

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Milwaukee led Philadelphia by four points with 16 seconds to play, but Brian Winters wasn't fooled.

"That means nothing in this league," said the Bucks' all-star guard. "Twenty points can sometimes mean nothing."

The 76ers wiped out Milwaukee's margin on baskets by Julius Erving and Doug Collins, then went on the beat the Bucks 118-117 in overtime Tuesday night in a matchup of National Basketball Association division leaders.

"You know there is always a chance," said Collins. "In pro ball the clock stops after each basket and you get the ball at halfcourt on a timeout. You can never give up."

In other NBA games, the Seattle SuperSonics beat the Chicago Bulls 114-97, the Cleveland Cavaliers outscored the Indiana Pacers 134-117, the Phoenix Suns topped the Utah Jazz 120-107, the Atlanta Hawks edged the New York Knicks 98-96, the San Antonio Spurs beat the New Jersey Nets 108-95 and the Los Angeles Lakers defeated the San Diego Clippers 127-112.

Erving scored Philadelphia's final seven points in overtime, enough to offset a pair of desperation three-point field goals by Winters. Erving finished with a game-high 34 points for Philadelphia, which leads the Atlantic Division with a 10-2 record. Milwaukee remains atop the Midwest at 10-3.

Sonics 114, Bulls 97

Seattle got eight straight points — four each by Lonnie Shelton and Jack Sikma — to take a 63-51 lead in the third period en route to its fifth consecutive victory. Dennis Johnson led the Sonics with 30 points. Sikma finished with 14 points and 16 rebounds and Shelton had 12 points and 14 rebounds.

Chicago has lost seven in a row and eight of 10 games since center Artis Gilmore got hurt.

Cavaliers 134, Pacers 117

Kenny Carr, a reserve forward acquired recently from Los Angeles, scored 19 of his 21 points in the fourth quarter to lead the Cavaliers to their third consecutive victory. Center James Edwards of Indiana led all scorers with 33 points.

Suns 120, Jazz 107

Walter Davis and Paul Westphal combined for 25 points in the fourth quarter for Phoenix, which played without flu-stricken center Alvan Adams. The Jazz led 100-98 before Davis scored seven points in a nine-point Phoenix run that put the game away.

Westphal finished with 31 points. Len "Truck" Robinson had 22 and Davis 21 while Adrian Dantley and Pete Maravich each scored 29 for Utah, whose 2-10 record is the worst in the NBA.

Hawks 98, Knicks 96

Steve Hawes came off the bench to score 11 of his 15 points in a span of 5:34 in the second half to help Atlanta trim New York for its fourth consecutive victory and seventh in the last eight outings. John Drew shot 10-for-14 for 23 points and Dan Roundfield contributed 18 points, 13 rebounds and six assists.

Spurs 108, Nets 95

San Antonio pulled away from New Jersey with a 39-point fourth quarter in which reserve forward Kevin Restani scored eight points. George Gervin topped the Spurs with 24 points, seven of them in the final period.

Lakers 127, Clippers 112

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar had 28 points and 14 rebounds as the Lakers won their seventh home game in eight starts. Los Angeles, which shot 58 percent from the field, opened a 16-point lead in the third quarter and coasted home.

Sale Of Athletics To Be Discussed

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The possible sale of the Oakland A's to a Denver oilman and the upcoming negotiations with the players' union were scheduled to be major topics of discussion today in a meeting of major league baseball owners.

A spokesman said the meetings would begin at 2 p.m. CST, and all major league clubs would be represented. American League owners were scheduled to meet separately to discuss the possibility of the sale of the Oakland franchise, which drew only about 300,000 fans last season, to Denver oilman Marvin Davis.

But American League President Lee MacPhail indicated no immediate action was likely.

"It could be weeks, it could be months or nothing may happen," MacPhail said. "Nothing is going to happen at this meeting. We are just going to update the clubs on what the situation is at this time."

The A's have eight years remaining on a lease with the Oakland Coliseum, apparently the only problem blocking the sale.

The Associated Press learned earlier that a sale was in the works that could bring major league baseball to Denver for the 1980 season.

"We've been working at this for three years," MacPhail said, "so I can't tell you it is going to fall in place at this time. We are having a player relations meeting and, because all of our people will be together, we decided to review the Oakland situation."

"There are two big pieces that have to come together," MacPhail said, adding that one is A's owner Charles O. Finley and "the other is the Oakland Coliseum Board. We do not have an agreement with the Coliseum Board."

Ewing Kauffman, owner of the Kansas City Royals and a member of the AL Planning Committee, talked optimistically about resolving the Oakland problem.

Jaguars Still No. 1

By The Associated Press
The Class 4A high schools have a new leader in the football rankings in this week's Associated Press poll as North Carolina prep teams head into the final week of regular season action.

Kannapolis has moved into the top spot in 4A with a three-point lead over second-place Hickory. Last week the two were tied for the No. 1 position.

The race for No. 1 in 4A is actually a three-way fight.

Northern Durham is third with 84 points, only six behind Kannapolis.

Farmville Central remained atop the pile in 3A with a 20-point lead over second-place Belmont South Point. West Columbus, a 77-0 winner Friday over Fairmont, climbed two places into third. Havelock narrowly leads East Henderson for the No. 4 position.

The 2A-1A schools also have a new leader. Maiden moved ahead of Jordan-Matthews with a four-point lead. Swain County and Charlotte Catholic are tied for third, and fifth-place West Montgomery is only one point behind. Avery County, in sixth, trails Swain and Catholic by just three points.

Maiden has a difficult game Friday, traveling to eighth-ranked East Lincoln.

There are only two new teams in the Top 10 this week. Rocky Mount moved to ninth in 4A, and Burlington Cummings got the seventh slot in 3A.

The poll is conducted by a statewide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Here is this week's Associated Press high school football poll, with team names, number of first place votes, records and point totals. Points are assigned on basis of 10 for first-place vote, then 9, 8, 7, etc.

Fickle Season

Seattle Seahawks' quarterback Jim Zorn has had a roller coaster year in his fourth NFL season. He completed only two passes in a 24-0 loss to the Los Angeles Rams last weekend at Seattle's Kingdom in a game in which the Seahawks were held to an NFL record minus seven yards. But he also has had passing performances of 277 and 252 yards in victories this season. "I'm not going to forget about that game," he says of the defeat to the Rams. (AP Laserphoto)

Zorn Experiencing Ups And Downs Of NFL

SEATTLE (AP) — In his fourth season as a National Football League quarterback, Jim Zorn is discovering the ups and downs of his sport.

The Seattle Seahawks' left-hander may have had his hot and cold days in his first three professional seasons, but this has really been a roller coaster year for him.

In the Seahawks' regular season opener against San Diego, he was intercepted three times and he lost a pair of fumbles. Seattle lost 33-16.

In Seattle's third game, a 27-10 victory over Oakland, he completed 13 of 22 passes for a career best 277 yards and three touchdowns.

Three weeks ago, in a 34-14 triumph over Houston, he set a Seahawk club record by completing 78 percent of his passes — 18 of 23 passes for 252 yards and three TDs.

On Sunday, Zorn and the Seahawks were embarrassed by the Los Angeles Rams 24-0. Their total yardage was minus seven yards, an NFL record for futility. The Seattle quarterback was just 2 for 17 for 25 yards.

"I'm not going to forget about that game," he promised.

His statistics aren't that far off his statistics of last season when he led the American Football Conference in passing yards.

For this season, he has completed 154 of 294 passes — 52 percent — for 1,882 yards and nine touchdowns. He has been intercepted 12 times.

Last season he completed 248 of 443 passes — 56 percent — for 3,283 yards and 15 touchdowns. He threw 20 interceptions.

Zorn isn't sure if the quarterback should get the blame for a team's defeat or a team's victory. But he also knows that's the way it is in football — college or professional.

"I know that and I accept it because that's the way it is," he said. "But I don't know how fair it is."

The Kingdome crowd of 62,048 booed Sunday. Like it or not, the Seahawks are finding out that Seattle is growing up as an NFL city. Flushed with the success of last season, the Seahawk fans are showing their displeasure with their team's results this season.

The Seahawks were 9-7 last season but stand only 4-6 this year. With six regular season games remaining, their prospects of making the NFL playoffs appear dim.

Zorn did not offer any alibis after the Rams humiliation.

"There was no effect from playing Monday night," he replied to a question about the Seahawks' 31-28 Monday night national television debut at Atlanta.

Under a swarming Ram defense, Zorn didn't have much of a chance, particularly in the second half when his team trailed 21-0. But he refused to criticize his offensive linemen.

"There are a lot of things to learn from a game like that," he added. "We were prepared, but we just didn't execute."

From the opening day of the Seahawks' training camp at Cheney, Wash., in mid-July, Zorn refused to make any play-off predictions.

Ten games into the regular season, it seems like he made a wise decision to keep his crystal ball covered.

Jim Brown of Syracuse scored 43 points against Colgate in a 1956 football game, making six touchdowns and seven extra points.

'Choo-Choo' Urges Series Renewal

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
Charlie "Choo-Choo" Justice, one of the greatest ever to wear the Tar Heel blue on the football field, joined in the effort of East Carolina University to get the University of North Carolina to continue its football series after 1981.

The series is due to expire then, with Carolina athletic director Bill Coby saying that all non-ACC games against instate teams would be discontinued since UNC couldn't play everyone.

"I think the campaign ought to start right here," Justice told the Greenville Sports Club yesterday. "And I think you ought to take it right to the legislature if you have to get Carolina to continue the series. It has been one of the most exciting ever. Carolina ought to be playing East Carolina every year."

"I don't care if it does seem like the Super Bowl," Justice continued. "There may be a day down the road when Coby will be glad to have a Super Bowl on his schedule."

Justice praised East Carolina as having one of the greatest offensive units he's ever seen. "I tell you, Carolina was lucky to have had an opportunity to tie East Carolina. And by all accounts in the press, Carolina really lost the game."

Not that folks should get the wrong idea, Justice is still a Tar Heel, through and through. "There is nothing like the Carolina tradition," he said. "Carolina has the greatest supporters anywhere, and it's only right that the alumni should support the athletic program."

"But sometimes, we (like people at every other school) begin to get the idea that we're the ONLY school, and that's wrong. For instance, I think the Carolina people in this area should give East Carolina their full support, including financial. I'm a member of the Iron Duke Club, as well as being in the Rams Club, to show you what I mean. And I think everyone should get behind the move to refurbish Wallace Wade Stadium."

"Think about it, this is the only place where the Rose Bowl was played outside Pasadena. It's an historical place. Duke really brought big time football to North Carolina."

Justice, who gained All-America fame as a collegian, talked of his career as a prep star in Asheville, of being on the Navy service team during World War II, then going to Chapel Hill. "Really, everything that has happened to me are things that I didn't want to happen. I didn't want to be in the Navy, and I didn't want to go to Carolina, but it all turned out to be the best thing for me."

Twice a runner-up for the Heisman Trophy, Justice said that was one of the two big disappointments of his career. The other was being held out of the Notre Dame game played in New York. "I had an ankle injury, and Coach (Carl) Snavely wanted me to sit out to get ready for Duke—a more important game," Justice said.

Justice also feels that current Tar Heel tailback Amos Lawrence can win the Heisman, but with three if's. "If he plays with a winning team, if he has the right attitude and stays healthy, and if he gets the proper publicity, he has a chance."

"But I can say this from my own experience. For every All-American, there are 100 others who deserve the same honor. It's being at the right place at the right time that gets it done," Justice said.

Speaker for the November 20 meeting of the Sports Club will be Dave Odom, new East Carolina basketball coach. Upcoming speakers include UNC football coach Dick Crum; Wake Forest football coach John Mackovic, and Wake athletic director Gene Hooks.

For First Time, Two Awards In Tie Vote

RALEIGH — For the first time in its more than 20-year history, the North Carolina Federation of Music Clubs offered two awards in a tie vote on the Hinda Honigman Composer's Cup at Tuesday night's banquet, the kick off event of the 66th annual observance of Culture Week in North Carolina, held in Raleigh.

A university faculty member and a Lumbie Indian are the two winners of the Honigman Cup. Dr. Roger Hannay of the UNC-

Chapel Hill School of Music faculty won for his composition, "Sphinx," a work for trumpet and electronic tape. Lumbie Indian Willie Lowery of Red Springs is winner for "Proud to be a Lumbie," an album that won a cup for the best composition in folk music.

The winning compositions were performed during the banquet session, and George Holt, president of the North Carolina Folklore Society, spoke on "North Carolina Folklore."

In another Culture Week event held Tuesday, Dr. David Phelps, professor of anthropology at East Carolina University, was luncheon speaker at the meeting of the board of directors of the Roanoke Island Historical Association, producers of "The Lost Colony."

The third organization meeting on Tuesday, the N. C. Museums Council, named Charles R. McNeill, curator of the Hampton Mariner's Museum in Beaufort, as the recipient of the annual award presented by the council. A multi-projector audio/visual presentation of North Carolina's natural history was presented, and Dr. John Spencer, chairman of the Duke University Art Department and former director of the National Endowment for the Arts, was guest speaker. This year marked the 100th anniversary of the N. C. Museum of Natural History.

New President Of Economists

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert T. Parry has been elected president of the National Association of Business Economists. Dr. Parry, senior vice president and chief economist of Security Pacific National Bank, Los Angeles, succeeds Dr. Albert G. Matamoros.

1979 Flu Vaccine

The influenza vaccine this year contains antigens to fight three different flu strains — Brazil, Texas and Hong Kong, according to a news release from the North Carolina Medical Society.

Adults over 26 should receive one injection for adequate protection; however, persons from six months up to 26 years need two shots spaced at least four weeks apart to be fully immunized.

This year's flu immunization campaign is geared mainly for those persons who have a high risk of flu complications. The high-risk population is defined as all adults 65 or older, adults and children of any age who have chronic conditions like heart disease, diabetes and other diseases which increase an individual's susceptibility to infection, persons with chronic anemia such as sickle cell disease; and persons taking medications which might suppress function of the body's immunity system.

Slave Trade Banned In Southern Constitution

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — The faded ink says the slave trade is forbidden and the president's tenure in office is limited to one six-year term.

The writing is on the original manuscript of the Constitution of the Confederate States of America.

It is a 12-foot, vellum scroll, which is kept in the University of Georgia library.

The fathers of the Confederacy probably tried to make their constitution more impressive than that of the United States, so they put it in scroll form, said Robert Willingham, rare books librarian and keeper of the Confederate Constitution.

"The South was a very formal society," he said, "and they needed a dignified document. They were trying to give themselves an identity."

The Confederate Constitution outlines a system of government that is closer to the British parliamentary system than the United States federal system.

"The South was very near to England in spirit," Willingham said. "Like Mark Twain said, we were still suffering from the Sir Walter Scott syndrome."

The document, kept in a lead-lined copper tube under constant climate control, is impressive, but contains few new ideas, Willingham said. The biggest is a one-term, six-year presidency, compared with an unlimited number of four-year terms found in the U.S. Constitution at the time.

"If the Confederacy had only lasted a few more years, they would have had to have a presidential election. And that would have been interesting," Willingham said.

The document also forbids "the importation of Negroes of the African race, from any foreign country," and orders the Confederate Congress "to pass such laws as shall effectually prevent the same."

"I think they put it in so they could say, 'OK, Northerners, look at you bunch of hypocrites; we've prohibited slave trade.' They didn't need any more slaves, anyway, and slave importation had been phased out. But they didn't prohibit slavery," Willingham said.

The idea for the prohibition of the slave trade came from T.R.R. Cobb of Athens, a major contributor to the Confederate Constitution, Willingham said.

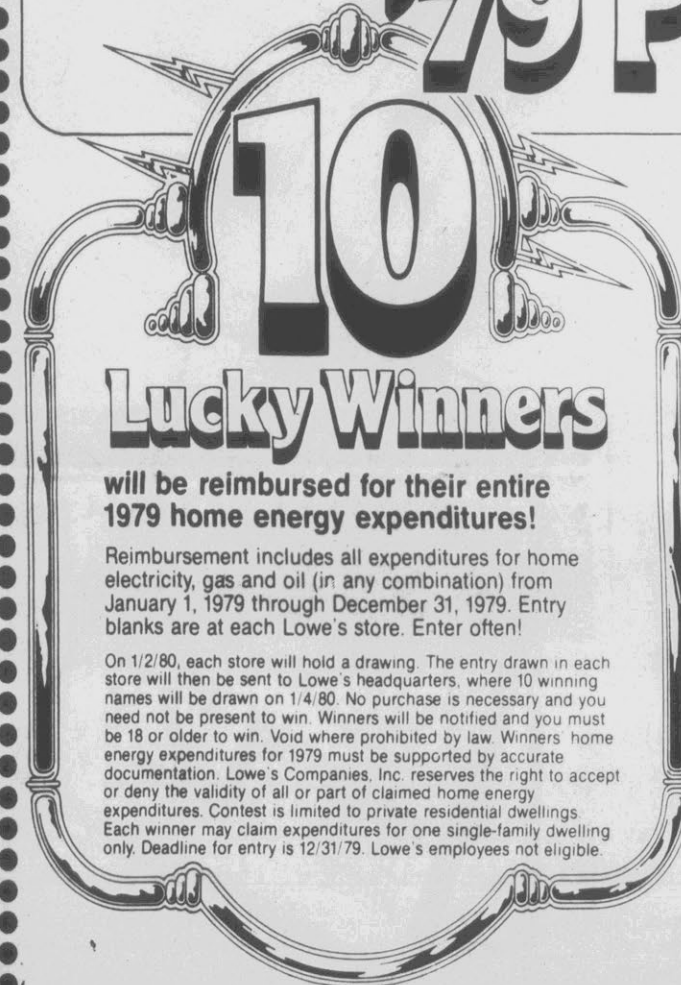

The document and other key government papers were kept at the Confederate capital in Richmond, Va., and were rushed southward when Union Gen. U.S. Grant's army bore down on the city in 1865.

A newspaper correspondent, Felix DeFontaine, heard that the government records had been abandoned on a train in Chester, S.C., in April, 1865, "and hurried down to the depot where he saw a trainload of papers. He looked in the boxes and grabbed what he could," Willingham said.

DeFontaine sold the document to Mrs. George DeRenne of Savannah in the 1880s and it remained in the DeRenne family library until the university obtained it in 1938, he said.

Now it is kept locked up for its own protection, but put on display every April 26th, Confederate Memorial Day.

AMERICAN LEGION BLDG.
St. Andrews Drive
Greenville, North Carolina

Ben Kinchlow the son of a Methodist Minister, was born and raised in Uvalde, Texas. The veteran of 13 years military service was awarded the American Legion Award of Merit, earned a 3rd degree black belt in Karate, and is also a graduate of Southwest Texas Junior College where he was a member of Phi Theta Kappa. President of the Senior Class and listed in "Who's Who in American Small Colleges". After his honorable discharge from the Air Force, he was impressed with the teachings of Malcolm X and considered becoming a Black Muslim. When Malcolm X was killed, he drifted away from the Muslims, as did many others. His marriage began to disintegrate. "My wife and I eventually separated, and my kids were caught in the middle," he says, adding that Jesus has since resolved their problems.

He worked part-time as a salesman and as a test car driver. While driving a test car around a track at 80 MPH, "Jesus Christ changed my life." Sitting behind the wheel, he asked, "Are YOU really out there? If YOU really are, show me." God showed him. His life was changed. He was a born-again Christian, or as the Bible says, "a new creation."

Ben quit his job and opened "His Place" to minister to street kids, then worked at a Christian drug and alcoholism rehabilitation farm in Killean, Texas. After a guest appearance on the "700 Club", he joined the Christian Broadcasting Network, Inc. (CBN) as Dallas area director, and has been Co-Host of the "700 Club" since 1975.

Ben and his wife, Vivian, live with their three sons, Nigel, Levi and Sean Erik, in Virginia Beach. Special Music Ministry by the Waters Family from Washington, N.C.

The precious, sweet spirit of Jesus lives in this man—just as He can and will live in any and all of us who will let Him into our lives. Come join us and let's all lift Jesus higher than others may be drawn to Him. (John 12:32)

Democrats Retained Control In Most Big Cities

By DON McLEOD
AP Political Writer

Cleveland Mayor Dennis Kucinich is out after two years of battling the city's bankers and his own party establishment. But Democrats retained control of other big-city governments and withstood spirited statehouse challenges in Mississippi and Kentucky.

Kucinich, who had survived last year's recall vote and two defaults on the city's debts, lost decisively to George V. Voinovich, Ohio's Republican lieutenant governor.

Even in defeat, Kucinich was still fighting. "We sacrificed the mayor's office because we refused to bow and serve to the money power of this community," he said in a defiant concession speech late Tuesday.

The final tally gave Voinovich 94,407 to 73,505 for Kucinich, who told his subdued supporters, "We stood up for the people against the corporations that are attacking the consumers every day."

Political novice John Y.

Brown was elected governor of Kentucky, while political veteran William Winter captured the Mississippi statehouse.

Democrat Kevin White won an unprecedented fourth straight four-year term in Boston. And in Philadelphia, former Democratic U.S. Rep. William J. Green will succeed flamboyant, law-and-order Mayor Frank Rizzo.

In Minneapolis, Donald Fraser scored a comeback for the Democratic-Farmer-Labor Party with his election as mayor of the city he served as congressman for 16 years.

San Francisco Mayor Dianne Feinstein, appointed after Mayor George Moscone was slain last year, apparently faced a Dec. 11 runoff with second-place finisher Quentin Kopp, a city supervisor. With 99.7 percent of the vote counted in the 10-person race, Ms. Feinstein held a narrow lead with 80,914 votes to 77,643 for Kopp.

Another runoff is in store in Houston, where Democratic Mayor Jim McConn finished first but will have to battle Councilman Louis Macey, his chief critic in city government, on Nov. 20.

Democrat William Donald Schaefer won a third term in Baltimore. Republicans Tom Moody in Columbus, Ohio, William Hudnut in Indianapolis and Margaret Hance in Phoenix, Ariz., were returned to office.

Ted Wilson, a Democrat, won re-election easily in Salt Lake City.

Richard Hatcher, who was the first black elected mayor of a major city, easily won a third term in Gary, Ind.

Incumbent Democrats Doug DeGood in Toledo, Ohio, Maurice Ferre in Miami and Lewis Murphy in Tucson, Ariz., also won.

Rizzo in Philadelphia, Gov. Julian Carroll in Kentucky and Gov. Cliff Finch in Mississippi all were barred by law from seeking re-election, although Rizzo tried unsuccessfully last year for a city charter revision that would have allowed him a third term.

The national Republican Party had banked heavily on Mississippi, contributing $150,000 to millionaire automobile salesman Gil Carmichael. Presidential candidates Ronald Reagan and John Connally also campaigned for the Mississippi ticket.

With over two-thirds of the vote counted, Winter had 274,956 to Carmichael's 184,244.

Former Republican Gov. Louis Nunn put up a stiff fight in Kentucky, but lost decisively to Brown after a bitter campaign. With virtually all the precincts counted, Brown had 553,077 votes; Nunn, 379,932.

Nunn, announcing his retirement from politics late Tuesday, told supporters, "The voters have done my family and me a personal favor. What they have done for themselves has yet to be determined."

Brown, who made a fortune in the fast-food business, is married to former Miss America and TV personality Phyllis George.

Noting Nunn's campaign attacks on his jet-set lifestyle, Brown told supporters, "There was a lot in this campaign that was an embarrassment to this state (but) truth always wins out. It's obvious that the mud didn't stick."

Green, 41, represented Philadelphia for six terms in the U.S. House and had lost to Rizzo in 1971.

Marston, one of best known Republican candidates in Philadelphia in recent years, won national attention when he resisted unsuccessfully the Carter administration's moves to replace him as the city's U.S. attorney while he was investigating several Democratic congressmen.

In racially-troubled Boston, White noted that he had won in every neighborhood and said

"this is the first time in 12 years that this city has not been divided."

Green echoed those comments, saying, "We set out to end the bitterness, the divisiveness in this city. It ends tonight. Philadelphia is whole again."

Fraser had served Minneapolis as congressman for 16 years but gave up his safe seat last year only to lose in a primary race for the Senate. His party, which had dominated Minnesota politics under the leadership of the late Hubert H.

Humphrey, lost the statehouse and both Senate seats in last fall's general election, and point.

Tuesday's contest was viewed by many as a do-or-die turning point.

Rosalynn Carter Flies On Cambodian Mission

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — First lady Rosalynn Carter left for Thailand today, sent by her husband "to observe at first hand the consequences of the horrible tragedy occurring there."

The president's wife will visit camps holding refugees fleeing from Cambodia.

"I want to go to see what our whole country can do to help," Mrs. Carter said before leaving Washington just after dawn.

"It's important we maintain our commitment to all the starving people there, regardless of their affiliation" with the deposed Pol Pot government or the Vietnamese-backed regime, the president said at a departure ceremony on the White House south lawn.

He said he was asking his wife to assess the bureaucratic obstacles to sending food and medical supplies into Cambodia.

Mrs. Carter was being accompanied by Dr. Julius Richmond, the U.S. surgeon general, and Jean Young, wife of former U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young.

The delegation is expected to return to the United States on Saturday.

Carter said his wife was carrying a personal message to the Thai government and royal family expressing his appreciation for Thailand's help to hundreds of thousands of refugees despite its own limited economic resources.

The president said the warring factions in Cambodia have presented "unwarranted obstacles" to the delivery of food to the starving population.

He said the tragedy of Cambodia, with half of its population since 1971 dead, is of "unbelievable proportions."

The United States has pledged $69 million in aid — more than one-half of the original estimate of needed assistance — and Carter said "we are ready to do more."

Capital Gain Tax Cut Had Good Impact

INTERSTATE SECURITIES CORP.

A recent Wall Street Journal article provided clear evidence that last year's cut in the capital gains tax, the first such reduction in 40 years, was positive.

The impact of the reduction can be seen through three measurements: price performance of smaller capitalization companies, initial public offerings of stock in such companies, and venture capital investments.

There are three basic groups of stocks in today's markets — the large capitalization companies (such as those in the Dow Jones Average) are those most favored by large institutions, many of which don't pay capital gains taxes. The middle tier, secondary stocks, are bought by institutions and individuals alike. The lower tier consists of small capitalization companies which generally offer the potential for high returns but with a high risk factor. Investments in the last group of stocks are made primarily by individual investors who stand to benefit from the capital gains tax reduction.

From the time the tax reduction was in effect through September, the performance of these three stock groups was substantially different. The Dow Jones average was up 6 percent and the S&P 500 was up 13 percent. But the American Stock Exchange Index rose 57 percent and the NASDAQ index was up 31 percent. These two areas are principally the province of individual investors, and it seems clear they looked upon smaller stocks with greater favor following the tax reduction.

The tax reduction also had substantial impact on initial public offerings of stocks of smaller companies. In the second half of 1978, when it was clear there would be a reduction in capital gains taxes, the number and dollar value of public offerings more than doubled from the first half of the year. Through the first half of 1979, the number of initial public offerings and their dollar value exceeded the full year 1978 level.

The effect on venture capital investments has been equally dramatic. One estimate of such investments for the years 1974-1977 shows that the maximum invested in any one year was $25.7 million, in 1977. In 1978, however, private venture capital investment rose to $215 million. Most of that took place in the final quarter of the year, when it was certain capital gains taxes would be cut.

These statistics show that the capital gains tax reduction had a positive impact on individual investment. There is at the present time a great deal of interest in measure designed to stimulate savings and investment. The capital gains tax reduction is a good example of how such measures can work.

Area Fraud Investigator

One of North Carolina's 14 unemployment fraud investigators is now stationed in Greenville at the Employment Security Commission, according to James Hannan, manager.

Until October, 1978, fraud reports relating to unemployment insurance were investigated by the Unemployment Insurance Hearing Officer after the regular hearings were completed, stated Hannan. During periods of recession, the fulltime hearing load precluded any fraud investigations, so fraud investigators have been put to service to detect fraud as to unemployment insurance.

Hannan noted that as of May 28, 1979, fraud against an unemployment insurance claim carries a penalty of up to two years confinement on each count, with each filing week for unemployment insurance benefits considered a separate offense.

In addition to tips from employers and concerned citizens, the Employment Security Commission now uses the computer network to detect persons committing fraud. A total of $77,939 in overpayments to individuals receiving unemployment insurance was recovered statewide last month, and a total of 59 fraud cases were prosecuted, with an additional 200 persons repaying $40,357 in overpayments.

Persons aware of fraudulent activities may contact the Commission, 756,266, 3101 Bismarck St. All information will be kept confidential.

College In A Motel Thrives Without Federal Aid

BEDFORD, N.H. (AP) — With a Herculean leap backward, tiny Magdalen College is thriving where the Bedford Motel failed.

Small liberal arts colleges have been closing under financial pressure in New Hampshire and elsewhere in the United States. But Magdalen, a conservative, coeducational Roman Catholic school proud of being an academic throwback, flourishes without a penny of federal aid or endowment. Yet its $3,300 annual fees are competitive.

Except for the small "Magdalen College" sign along U.S. 3, the college looks like a cut-rate motel that saw better days before the turnpike went through.

But the school's founders wanted no-nonsense education, and just needed a place to carry out their plan. The motel and five acres behind it seemed heaven-sent.

President and co-founder John Meehan said loans were secured without collateral to refurbish the motel with materials and cheap labor "mostly through volunteer work and God's grace."

Since it opened in 1973, Magdalen has focused on liberal arts — but not the kind found in many colleges today.

"We know what a student needs to be well-educated," says former-businessman-turned-professor and co-founder,

Francis Boucher. "He needs to be told what to study. He doesn't need electives..."

Magdalen has no easy courses, no electives, no inter-collegiate sports, no student union and no visits between men's and women's rooms. Chapel is mandatory. Classes begin and end in prayer.

The four-year curriculum ranges from Aeschylus to Marx — Karl, not Groucho — with Archimedes, Darwin, Dostoevski, Einstein, Machiavelli, Niebuhr and Nietzsche in between.

"In the true sense, liberal arts are a strenuous and difficult course of studies," says Boucher. "Their intention is to cultivate your faculties, not to fill you with facts and information but to allow you to think better."

The 70 students are taught by seven faculty members for "apostolic salaries" — about $5,000 a year less than other schools. But faculty backgrounds include Harvard, the University of Michigan and the New England Conservatory of Music.

Of Magdalen's 20 graduates, 10 are in graduate programs, eight teach in Catholic schools, two are in religious life.

"When we first started, we were considered a bunch of weirdos, reactionaries and screwballs in the Catholic community," says Meehan. "But I think they've changed their minds..."

MOTEL SERVES AS COLLEGE — Magdalen College, an ultraconservative Catholic school located in a former motel, thrives in New Hampshire while other small liberal arts colleges have been closing under financial strain. At left is partially erected college chapel. (AP Laserphoto)

Dr. Nennolo Engineer Finds Flaws In Coast Construction

Dr. Robert P. Nennolo, psychiatrist at the Pitt County Mental Health Center, will answer questions about alcoholism on weekly radio segments during November.

"What's On Your Mind?" is aired each Monday at 12:55 p. m. on WOOW radio.

According to the program moderator, Nancy M. Middleton, Dr. Nennolo will talk about how the problem drinker can be reeducated, strategies for getting the alcoholic into treatment, and how the family may seek appropriate help in dealing with the disease. He will address the relationship between alcoholism and depression, and explain why alcoholism is a "family disease" and how the family members involve themselves inappropriately without professional help.

The Alcohol/Drug Abuse service area at PCMH is offering diagnosis, treatment and education at a new location. Since Nov. 1, the Alcohol and Drug Center of Pitt County has been located at 2020 W. Greenville Boulevard.

North Carolinians breathed a sigh of relief after a minor brush from Hurricane David.

But what about next time? Forecasters say the state is due for a more direct hit. Some people are concerned that many of the state's coastal buildings would not withstand high winds and strong storm surge.

Sea Grant coastal engineer, Spencer M. Rogers, who visited Mobile Bay, Ala. after Hurricane Frederick, said much of the destruction there could have been eliminated if builders had

HOSTAGES UNKNOWN
WASHINGTON (AP) — A State Department spokesman said Tuesday that the department has not released a list of the hostages in the U.S. Embassy in Iran for several reasons, including the fact that it does not know exactly who is there.

used a few simple construction practices.

Rogers says many homes floated or were blown off their pilings because of inadequate ties between the pilings and the floor structures. Bolts, instead of nails, should be used to faster the pilings to the floor structure, he said.

Rogers also noticed that some builders had cut the notches in their pilings too deep at the points where the pilings and floor structures joined. The connections were too weak to hold, he said.

Some Mobile Bay structures failed because their pilings were not deep enough in the ground. The North Carolina Residential Building Code's appendix on coastal construction specifies that pilings be placed at a depth of eight feet. But Rogers says that's often not enough.

"The seaward dunes and beachfront areas are likely to undergo a lowering of elevation because of severe erosion during a hurricane and, many times, more than eight feet of sand are lost," Rogers said.

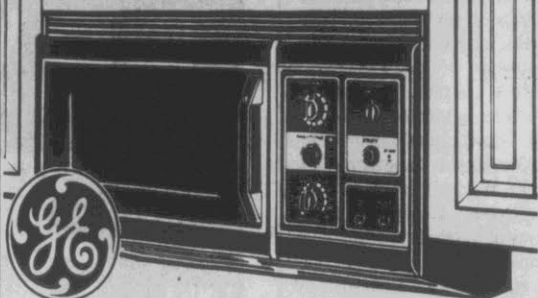

How deep in the ground pilings should be depends on the structure's proximity to the shoreline. Oceanfront homes need deeper pilings than houses two blocks away, he said.

There should also be sufficient piling elevation above the ground to allow the storm surge and flood waters to pass beneath the house, Rogers said. Pilings also should not be enclosed.

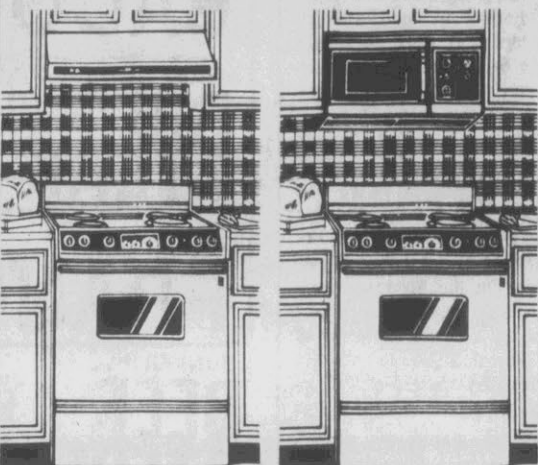

Keeping these construction practices in mind while building now could save North Carolinians costly rebuilding later, Rogers said.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today and tonight are excellent for you to put your time and attention in improving matters that concern your home, family, property and possessions, so concentrate upon these.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You now understand what some family members expect of you, so cooperate and have a more ideal home life in the future.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Have a group meeting with associates and make plans to have greater prosperity in the future. Think constructively.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Attend to important monetary affairs early in the day and show that you can think straight and figure well.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Ideal time to go after your personal aims and gain added satisfaction. Take no risks with your reputation at this time.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Confer with a trusted adviser and know how to make your life more successful and increase happiness. Safeguard your money.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Look to loyal friends for assistance in improving the quality of your life. Strive for more rapport with the one you love.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A day to study civic duties well and to handle them intelligently. An influential person can give the support you need now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Conditions are such that you can accomplish a great deal today, so get an early start. New acquaintances can be of help to you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be sure to take care of all your responsibilities in a most precise way. Show more affection for loved one.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A business matter arises suddenly that you can handle in an excellent fashion. Be careful in the handling of money.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Express your talents and handle your duties in a most precise and intelligent fashion. Show others you have wisdom.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You can have an excellent time after work is done at your favorite recreation and relieve tensions you have been under.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one who can easily work out problems that come up. Teach to put life on a secure structure and then there can be much happiness. A determined persons who will require a good education to gain success.

'The Golden Circle' Is Newest Network Rival

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Yet another competitor for your evening attentions has entered the prime-time television fray, something called The Golden Circle.

The Golden Circle, a production group formed by Metro-media Producers Corp., plans to use a package of slick, high-adventure original programs to lure viewers from the three major networks and its chief non-network competitor, Operation Prime Time.

In fact, Operation Prime Time, in its success, inspired the creation of Golden Circle. OPT was the first major effort by local stations to underwrite the production of expensive, attractive shows meant to compete with ABC, CBS and NBC and to move independents out of the rerun syndrome.

Operation Prime Time has worked, with OPT shows such as "The Bastard" outrating network shows in many cities, often on network-affiliated stations. And ratings, of course, mean advertising dollars.

Thus, Golden Circle. "Operation Prime Time started it," says Len Ringquist, president of Metromedia Producers. "We watched them very carefully, and decided we could do it better."

First, Ringquist says, Golden Circle needed stories, stories about heroes "that were larger than life, big, bold and brassy, with plenty of action and a long shelf life." (That, by the way, is the formula proven effective by Operation Prime Time.)

So, they bought Brian Garfield's "Wild Times," whose chief character, Hugh Cardiff, is described as "a sharpshooter, fugitive from the law, sailor before the mast, Indian fighter, actor, buffalo hunter, pioneer moviemaker, and lover of many women."

Sam Elliot, who was grimy and tough in NBC's "The Sacketts" last year, will play the versatile Mr. Cardiff.

Golden Circle has 51 stations lined up for the four-hour inaugural show, scheduled for January, and plans to bring another 25-50 stations aboard soon. More than half of the stations, says Ringquist, will be network affiliates.

That means that some stations will be showing "Wild Times" instead of "Laverne and Shirley" or "Real People" or some other network show, which means Golden Circle won't be spoken of gently when network bosses gather in steamrooms after racquetball.

But there is enticement for network affiliates to go with Golden Circle or Operation Prime Time, money. Affiliate stations know that the big, splashy independent shows draw ratings, which means advertising bucks. Best, the stations get to keep the money earned from a Golden Circle show, while the usual take from a network program is 33 percent.

Mathematically, all finesses have exactly the same chance of success. However, that does not mean that all finesses are equal! On some hands, positional factors will dictate which finesse to choose when more than one is available. On other hands choosing the right suit first could enable you to try both finesses, instead of putting all your eggs in one basket.

The bidding requires little comment. South's two no trump opening bid was textbook and North had something in reserve for his raise to game. It is a pity that all those assets were squandered in the play.

West led his fourth-best heart and declarer decided that his best chance was to exhaust East of hearts and then take the club finesse. Therefore, he allowed the jack of hearts to win the first trick.

This plan, however, was easily countered by the defenders. East returned a heart and West ducked! Declarer tried the club finesse. When East won the king, he still had a heart to return, so West cashed three heart tricks to defeat the contract one trick.

Declarer overlooked the fact that he had available finesses in both minor suits and could have made his contract had either succeeded. By timing the hand correctly, he would have improved his chances considerably.

Since nothing can be gained by a holdup in hearts, declarer should win the first heart. Then he crosses to dummy with the queen of spades and runs the nine of diamonds. If this wins, declarer repeats the diamond finesse and he can pick up the suit to guarantee the contract.

But even if the diamond finesse loses, declarer is still in the game. West cannot attack hearts without conceding a second trick in the suit—and the contract—to declarer. Thus, South will still have time to try the club finesse for his game-going trick. By taking his finesse in the right order, declarer's prospects for the contract would have increased from 50 percent to 75 percent!

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deaf opening leaders!" Heading 'Titanic' Cast

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jason Robards will head the cast of "Raise the Titanic!" a Marble Arch production of Clive Cussler's novel, which has been in preproduction for almost a year.

The story, based on the challenge of raising the famous luxury liner which hit an iceberg and sank in the North Atlantic 70 years ago, will be filmed on a multimillion-dollar set at Studio Center in Los Angeles.

The film, which costars Richard Jordan and David Selby, will also be shot on locations in Washington, D.C., San Diego, Alaska, Greece, Malta and England.

THE ROLE OF G-MAN — Larry Bellis of Greenville will play the role of the G-Man in the N.C. State University production of "You Can't Take It With You," to be presented Nov. 9-10 and 12-17 at Thompson Theater on the NCSU campus. A sophomore history major at NCSU, Bellis is a graduate of Rose High School and is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Vincent Bellis. Tickets to the play can be reserved by calling 737-2405.

Art Carney In A Rock Comedy

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Academy Award winner Art Carney will costar with rock star Meat Loaf in the rock and roll comedy, "Roadie," for United Artists.

Carney, who won an Oscar for best actor in 1975 for his performance in "Harry and Tonto," will play Corpus C. Redfish, owner of Redfish Salvage, Quicksand, Texas, population 3.

Production, under the direction of Alan Rudolph, will take place on locations in Austin, Texas, New York City and Los Angeles.

CHOOSING FILM ROLE — HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Elizabeth Montgomery, who appears to have her choice of dramatic television roles, will star in "Act of Violence" playing a newsreader who survives a brutal mugging.

NOTICE OF SERVICE OF PROCESS BY PUBLICATION STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA
PITTS COUNTY
In the District Court
Heilig Meyers Company vs. Shirley Edwards
TO: SHIRLEY EDWARDS
TAKE NOTICE THAT a pleading seeking relief against you has been filed in the above entitled action. The nature of the relief being sought is as follows: to collect an account due for sale of furniture under a security agreement executed on June 5, 1979, and for an order authorizing the plaintiff to sell the collateral for payment on account and such other and further relief as the Court may deem just and proper. You are required to make defense to such pleading not later than December 10, 1979, and upon your failure to do so the party seeking service against you will apply to the Court for the relief sought.

This, the 29th day of October, 1979.

PUBLIC NOTICE
WATER EXCEEDS BACTERIAL LIMIT
The Quail Ridge Community Association reports that analyses of samples taken during October showed the maximum contaminant level listed in the United States Environmental Protection Agency's National Interim Primary Drinking Water Regulations.

Although there is no routine laboratory procedure for determining the presence of specific disease-producing bacteria in drinking water, coliform bacteria which is normally found in the intestinal tract of man or other warm blooded animals can be readily detected. Therefore, the presence of this non disease producing bacteria is used to indicate that some contamination has occurred.

The Quail Ridge Community Association has taken the following action to correct this problem:
The Quail Ridge Community Association is working with Jim Wisely of the Department of Human Resources, Sanitary Engineering Section to correct the problem. A new water sample has already been taken by the local Department of Human Resources and sent off. If you have any questions concerning this notice, please contact Sid O'Neal, Rt. 4 Box 26, Quail Ridge, Greenville, N.C. or telephone 752-4094.

Remember: Compare this estimate to the EPA Estimated MPG of other vehicles. You may get different mileage depending how fast you drive, weather conditions and a long length. Actual highway mileage will probably be less than the EPA Highway Estimate.

Corolla Tercel Standard features that don't cost you extra:

- Front wheel drive 1.5 liter 4-cylinder SOHC engine
- 4-speed synchromesh transmission
- Power-assisted front disc/rear drum brakes
- Steel-belted radial ply tires
- Side window defoggers
- Reclining hi-back front bucket seats
- Fully transistorized ignition system
- MacPherson strut front suspension
- Welded unitized body construction
- Power-assisted Flo-thru ventilation
- And more ... and more ...

How Tar Heel Representatives, Senators Voted

Roll Call Report Service
WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Oct. 25 through Oct. 31.

HOUSE
MONEY FOR HEAT — The House passed, 290 for and 105 against, a bill appropriating $1.35 billion to help the poor pay heating bills this winter. Added to $250 million already appropriated, the money will provide one-shot payments of up to $400 to poor families. Most of those benefitting will be welfare recipients on the rolls of Aid for Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) and Supplemental Security Income (SSI). The bill (HJ Res 430) was sent to the Senate.

Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., a supporter, said it would be "a shameful act for this Congress ... to allow anyone in this land of such vast wealth to face a frigid and perhaps fatal winter."

Rep. Robert Michel, R-Ill., an opponent, called the distribution system a bureaucratic hodgepodge, and said "most of the money will not get into the hands of the recipients until next January and February at the earliest, and a good portion will be siphoned off ... to individuals regardless of heating needs."

Members voting "yea" favored the emergency aid program.

Reps. Walter Jones, D-1, Ike

Andrews, D-4, Stephen Neal, D-5, Richardson Preyer, D-6, and W.G. Hefner, D-8, voted "yea."

Reps. L.H. Fountain, D-2, Charles Rose, D-7, James Martin, R-9, James Broyhill, R-10, and Lamar Gudger, D-11, voted "nay."

Rep. Charles Whitley, D-3, did not vote.

INDOCHINA AID — By a vote of 301 for and 69 against, the House passed a bill authorizing $30 million immediately to feed starving Cambodians and about $205 million in each of the next two years to help bring Indochina refugees to the U.S. The bill (HR 4955) was sent to the Senate.

Rep. William Green, R-N.Y., a supporter, praised the House Foreign Affairs Committee, which produced the bill, "for acting so swiftly and conclusively to help alleviate the suffering of millions of people in Cambodia — a suffering and deprivation reminiscent of Nazi Germany and Biafra."

No opponent spoke against the bill.

Members voting "nay" were opposed to the bill to aid starving Cambodians and Indochina refugees.

Neal and Preyer voted "yea." Fountain, Andrews, Rose, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and Gudger voted "nay."

Jones and Whitley did not vote.

ENERGY MOBILIZATION BOARD — The House rejected, 56 for and 357 against, an amendment to make the new Energy Mobilization Board part of the Department of Energy (DOE) rather than a totally independent agency. The board is President Carter's proposed mechanism for speeding federal, state and local actions to ease the energy shortage. It will, for example, cut red tape slowing the construction of refineries and synthetic fuel plants.

The amendment was offered to HR 4965, later passed and sent to conference with the Senate. The bill creates the energy board over objections of those who see it as an infringement on states' rights and the environment. The attempt to locate the board within the Department of Energy was an effort to restrict its powers.

Rep. Tom Corcoran, R-Ill., a supporter, said that if Congress gives the board independence "we lose control, we lose policy accountability, and we dilute the authority vested in the secretary of energy to be responsible for the policies we give DOE to administer."

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., an opponent, said the energy board "must have freedom apart from the bureaucratic wrangling, in fighting and boondoggling that goes on between the Department of Energy and other governmental agencies..."

Members voting "yea" wanted the new fast-track energy board located in the Department of Energy.

Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and Gudger voted "nay."

Jones did not vote.

SENATE
FEDERAL JUDGES — The Senate passed, 56 for and 33 against, a bill (S 1873) establishing a procedure for disciplining federal judges. U.S. judges, appointed for life, presently are subject only to impeachment as penalty for gross judicial misconduct. Under the bill, complaints against judges would be processed by newly-created judicial councils, which could dismiss the complaint or take action ranging from public reprimand to requesting a judge's retirement. A new Court on Judicial Conduct and Disability would review actions of the judicial councils and could recommend that the House undertake impeachment proceedings. The bill was sent to the House.

Sen. Dennis DeConcini, R-Ariz., a sponsor said: "Although, on the whole, the general caliber of the federal judiciary has been extremely high, the problem of the unfit judge is a serious challenge to our judicial system."

Sen. Charles Mathias, R-Md., an opponent, called the bill unconstitutional, saying: "It is inconceivable to me that our Four-ding Fathers, who took such care to develop the impeachment process and to otherwise safeguard judicial independence, would have endorsed" this bill.

Senators voting "yea" favored the bill.

Sens. Robert Morgan, D, and Jesse Helms, R, voted "yea."

BANKING ISSUE — By a vote of 61 for and 32 against, the Senate adopted an amendment to prevent bank holding companies from establishing out-of-state trust operations. If it becomes law, the amendment will most immediately thwart the plans of seven large holding companies, from money centers such as New York and Chicago, to open trust offices in Miami. The vote came during debate on a bill lessening regulation of depository institutions (HR 4986), later passed and sent to conference with the House.

Sen. Richard Stone, D-Fla., a supporter, said: "Florida's total banking assets are $37.6 billion compared with $148.3 billion for just these seven bank holding companies. How in the world can the banks in my state, or very many other states, begin to compete with the awesome power of these giants?"

Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., an opponent, said the measure "contemplates states hiding behind their boundaries, protecting the trust facilities and other industries from competition, all at the expense of not only the people of those states but the national welfare."

Senators voting "yea" wanted to prevent certain large trust operations from expanding out-of-state.

Morgan and Helms voted "yea."

CASH FOR ADOPTION — The Senate rejected, 13 for and 77 against, an amendment to block proposed federal payments to families which adopt hard-to-place children. The payment would subsidize the child's living expenses. Failure of this amendment left intact language to establish the cash-incentive program. The program is part of HR 3434, a child welfare bill passed and sent to conference with the House.

Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, the sponsor, said financial incentives should not be "a consideration when the decision is made whether or not to adopt. Prospective parents do not need to be paid by the federal government if they are motivated by the right reason."

Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., an opponent, said: "Financial stress should not be added to the burdens which (families) have already assumed in adopting a physically, mentally, emotionally or medically handicapped child."

Senators voting "nay" favored the policy of financial incentives.

Helms voted "yea." Morgan voted "nay."

THE LOOK OF FEAR — A young Cambodian woman stares off in space in this hospital crowded with other sick refugees at Sa Kaew, Thailand. Although the death toll is dropping, there are still hundreds of critically ill people. (AP Laserphoto)

Plan Pipe-Smoking Contest Saturday

A pipe smoking contest will be held Saturday, Nov. 10, at 3:30 p.m. in the Carolina East Mall.

The Southern Flue-Cured Tobacco Festival event to be at the Tinder Box, is designed to offer an equal challenge for the novice smoker as well as the long time pipe smoker. It will be conducted like a miniature version of the world pipe smoking championships held annually in St. Claude, France where the first briar pipe was made around 1825.

The object of the competition is to keep 3.3 grams (one full bowl) of pre-determined tobacco lit as long as possible using only two matches.

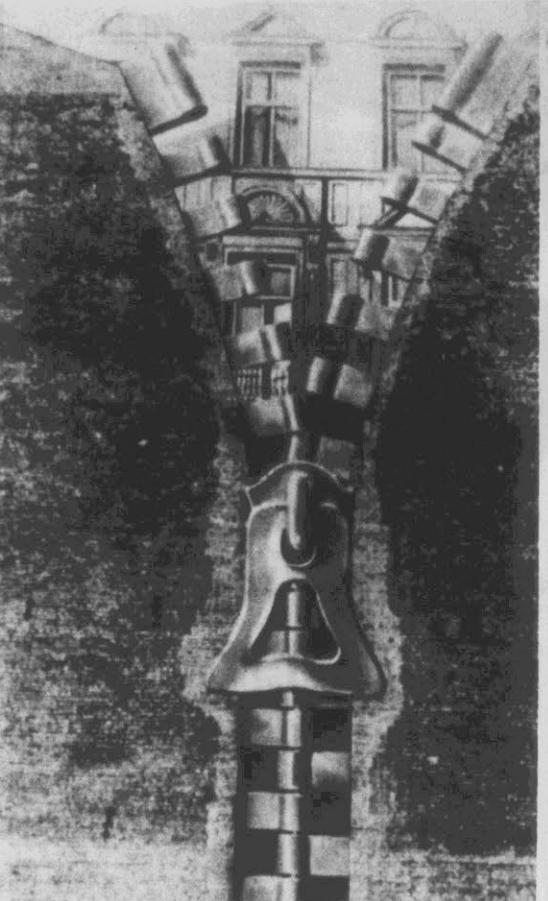

The first place winner will receive a Southern Flue-Cured Tobacco Festival plaque, a blue ribbon and a handcrafted eagle claw meerschaum pipe. In addition to the prizes, the first place winner can attempt to break the world record time. If he or she is successful, then the winner's name will be submitted to the Guinness Book of World Records.

Prizes and ribbons will also be awarded to second through fifth place winners. The contest has no entry fee and is open to all interested persons, men and women. To enter the contest, contact the Tinder Box in the Carolina East Mall.

A mini-seminar on the proper procedures for loading and lighting a pipe will be offered to contestants and interested observers before the competition begins. Contestants should only bring their favorite pipe and perhaps a good magazine or book. All other materials including matches, tobacco tamper and pipe cleaners will be supplied by the Tinder Box.

The contest will become an annual event and is the only competition to be held in North Carolina that could result in a world qualifying time.

COULD SAVE ENERGY — If it wasn't a painting, this kind of housewall construction with a zip-fastener could save a lot of energy. However, it's just an eye-catching painting on a huge fire wall in Berlin's district Charlottenburg. (AP Laserphoto)

Author Says Teach Them Job-Hunting

By DREW VON BERGEN
WASHINGTON (UPI) —
Author Richard Lathrop has a simple theory to help deal with unemployment — "If you tell people how to find jobs, they'll find them quicker."

But, Lathrop said, the government ignores such advice. There are about 6 million people unemployed currently, but at the same time about 3 million job openings.

Lathrop calls the people who are out of work because they cannot connect with an available opening "frictional unemployment."

It's not quite like "structural" unemployment caused by lack of skills, or "cyclical" unemployment stemming from a depressed business climate, but just as real, according to Lathrop.

Lathrop is director of the private National Center for Job-Market Studies and author of "Who's Hiring Who," a textbook on how to find a job. He said in an interview that government experts look only at the number of people out of work, ignoring the excessive time they spend in finding new jobs.

He said the current average search time is about 70 days, but warned it could easily go as high as 100 days if the unemployment rate continues to rise.

"If there was a national (guidance) program launched ... you could reasonably expect a 10 percent decrease in job search time and unemployment," he said.

Lathrop said a one week reduction in the time consumed in searching for new jobs would reduce the unemployed count by 2.5 million. That is based on the fact there are 25 million people unemployed at one time or another during the year.

He cited a study made in Carbondale, Ill., by research psychologist Dr. Nathan Azrin that showed 75 percent less time and 33 percent higher pay received by unemployed workers who received guidance, than another group operating without help.

"The problem is the applicants and employers are just not getting together fast enough," he said.

Lathrop went so far as to suggest that private and government unemployment agencies actually worsen the problem because they seek mainly to fill job openings for employers, rather than get jobs for the unemployed.

"As long as you waste job-seeking time, you add to unemployment," Lathrop said. "If you close all public employment offices, unemployment will begin to drop."

"Help wanted ads are a much better source of job openings" than the employment service centers, he added, noting that the average job counselor, public and private, is paid less than a bricklayer's apprentice.

"Tragically, national planners have erroneously concluded that 'frictional' unemployment is unavoidable," he said. But Lathrop said that if a person is unemployed for 3 months instead of 6 months, he would appear in unemployment data only half as long.

He said only 25 percent of job openings are listed, either privately or publicly, with employment offices, and the remaining 75 percent usually contains the top jobs.

Lathrop also challenged the Labor Department's push to reduce the number of structurally unemployed among blacks and minorities.

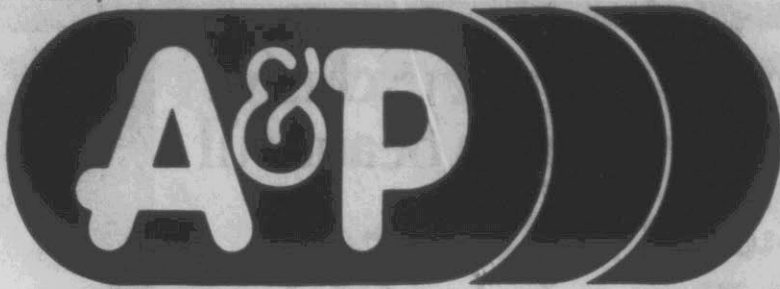

"They are forgetting the 90 percent that are unemployed needlessly," saying if productive workers get jobs, the resulting rise in productivity will cause more job openings in categories available for the less-skilled workers.

Re-Elected To Society's Board

Mrs. Hester Latham of Greenville has been re-elected to another term on the North Carolina Easter Seal Society's Board of Directors. The election was held this weekend at the Society's statewide annual meeting, at Camp Easter-in-the-Pines.

Mrs. Latham, an active Easter Seals volunteer on both the local and state levels, will continue to serve on the local Northeast Regional Council of the East Seal Society.

Bert Collins of Durham was elected president of the Board of Directors. Members each serve a three-year term.

If Japanese Can Learn, Anybody Can

By JOHN NEEDHAM
TOKYO (UPI) — The foreign resident in Japan for five months — two months of that in thrice-weekly Japanese lessons — walked into a restaurant to order a ham sandwich on toast.

"Hamu sando toasto," he said, translating the squiggles on the menu. It almost worked. As he was nearly finished with his ham sandwich — on untoasted bread — the attentive waiter swept in with a side order of toast.

It was just one of those daily incidents that for a foreigner constitute "the language barrier" in Japan.

In this case, the foreigner was speaking a "Japan-ized" version of English. But the Japanese have devoted one of their two syllabaries primarily to foreign words and expressions.

As for learning Japanese itself, it's not easy, as anyone who has tried will quickly point out.

There are at least 53 schools, listed in an English-language "yellow pages" book, which will try to teach the foreigner Japanese.

One advertises with the slogan, "We've got to be cruel to be kind." Another claims that after six months of lessons three times a week, 90 minutes each time, costing a bit more than $500, "you will be able to handle yourself in just about any daily situation."

Of course, any foreigner who can speak 50 words of Japanese knows he'll be told once a day, by taxi driver or salesman, how well he speaks the language. He also knows it's a fib, an example of Japanese politeness.

"Whenever someone tells me how well I speak Japanese, I know I've just made a huge mistake," said a British businessman in Tokyo. "I know they really mean I'm doing the best I can but I'll never master their language, because they believe only a Japanese can speak Japanese."

A novice student of Japanese who has painfully absorbed a bit of the vocabulary word by word and incomprehensibly memorized dozens of particles, is likely to break down over the numbering system. Take the number "one." In some cases it is "hito" and so "hitori" means "one person." But sometimes it's "ichi" and "ichiban" means "number one."

To confuse things, there also are counters — and not just prides of lions or flocks of geese. The counter for a long, flat object differs from that for a bottle. The counter for a small animal differs from one for a large animal.

So "Ichi-mai kami" is okay for one sheet of paper, but only "ip-pon biru" will do for one bottle of beer, "ip-piki neko" for one cat, "ittou zo" for one elephant.

When in doubt and worried about losing face and not being understood, one can point to an object, grunt, and hold up the appropriate number of fingers.

The written language is more complex, containing as it does two syllabaries plus hundreds of characters taken from Chinese.

Still, the language schools do a good business.

Philip Bachtold, a Swiss importer-exporter living in Tokyo, has just finished 11 weeks of "Introductory I" Japanese and is about to embark on "Introductory II," which will cost his company another $250 and get him to the stage where he's ready for yet another 11 weeks, this time of "pre-intermediate."

"I figure if 110 million Japanese can learn this language, so can I," Bachtold said.

Starting New Lamaze Class

The Greenville Childbirth Educators will begin a series in Lamaze childbirth preparation Wednesday, Nov. 14.

Topics covered will include labor and delivery, Caesarean birth, breastfeeding, the newborn, post partum, and parenting. For more information, one may call 752-3071 or 756-6304.

CAMERA Angles

By SANDY COLTON
AP Newsfeatures
Laura Riley, an accomplished wildlife photographer and co-author, with her husband William, of the book "Guide to National Wildlife Refuges" continues this week with her advice to aspiring wildlife photographers:

Wildlife photography, as Edward Steichen said of his own camera career, is both ridiculously easy and impossibly difficult. But you can lay some groundwork that will make the impossible a little easier.

Let's assume you have a starting array of equipment: a camera whose workings you understand and can operate almost by reflex action, and one or two lenses that will cover most of your initial needs.

These might be a close-up lens for wild flowers, a 400mm telephoto for creatures you can't get as near to, or perhaps something in between, like an 80-200mm zoom.

Then try to think of what kind of picture you want to take and how you'll go about it. Every natural subject I've ever encountered has presented a different problem, in ways I couldn't have predicted beforehand. So it is no waste of time to take a survey trip to the site, just observing without a camera. Or, go through books at the library, studying the natural habits and behavior of the creature you wish to photograph.

Observe that most birds, other than hawks or owls, are seen to best advantage in profile. Is the likely subject a raccoon? What are its special characteristics and how are they best shown? With a raccoon you'll want to show that black face mask and alert, shining eyes.

A mockingbird may throw its head back in mimicking song; an eagle might display its aggressive power, perhaps throwing out its talons as it comes in for a landing. With an elk, it's the wide spread of antlers, but beware of two elks! Their bodies can combine to look like a two-headed beast.

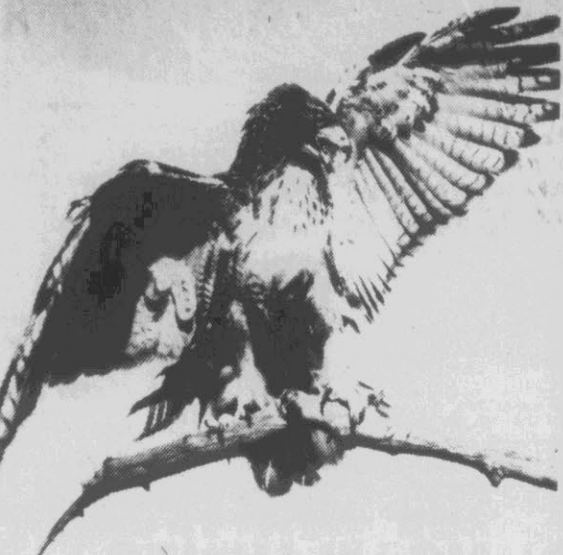

Remember the camera will not fill in details it does not see. A failing of beginning nature photographers is to assume that they will get back pictures that existed only in their mind's eye.

If you yourself cannot see clearly every spine on that grasshopper's leg, or the eagle's talons or the glint in its eye, and if the shutter speed is not fast enough to stop the motion at the same time the lens opening admits the proper amount of light, all this executed instantly at the moment of climactic activity — then it just won't be there.

That's why planning and research can help so much. If you've observed robins on your lawn, for example, you already know and half wait for the moment of actual tension when it gets hold of a worm and tries to pull it out of the ground while the worm pulls back and says nothing doing.

There's no better place to practice than on small birds around a bird feeder in your yard. Later, visit the nearest national wildlife refuge and see what it has to offer. These wonderful places cover more than 30 million acres and are located in almost every state. The refuge staff can suggest what is around at the moment and how best to observe and photograph it.

Always get a glint of reflected light in the eye (exceptions: special backlit effects). It makes all the difference between an alive-looking creature and one that looks dead. This is even true of insects.

Always bracket exposures — take a few with more light and a few with less than you think is right.

Take lots of exposures, if you can, and vary the vantage point. Film is the cheapest outlay you'll make.

Avoid cluttered backgrounds. Work for pleasant but not glaring contrast. Blue sky is wonderful for many natural creatures. So is out-of-focus green grass.

Don't photograph in the harsh overhead light of midday. The best time to shoot is early- to mid-morning and mid-to late-afternoon.

Don't hunt for exotic subjects. Photograph the obvious.

It's readily available and every natural creature offers fantastic opportunities.

Don't get discouraged. Wildlife photography is challenging and difficult. That's why stunning nature pictures are rare.

Once, at a gathering of outstanding nature photographers, I asked a number of them what results they expect, on the average, from a 36-exposure roll of film — how many shots will be really good, satisfying most of the requirements described here. Every single one of them said he would be happy with one and on a really lucky day, two.

("Guide to National Wildlife Refuges" is published by Anchor Press-Doubleday.)

Warden Urges 'Deter Youth'

SOMERS, Conn. (AP) — As a young man, Carl Robinson nearly had a career as a lineman in professional football. In that sport, an offense is what scores points and wins game.

But today, in his job as warden of Connecticut's maximum security prison, Robinson knows that the term "offense" is often a mild legal description for the crime that keeps men behind bars.

"You know that nine times out of 10, they are not going to realize their potential," he said of the inmates, adding, "That's the one thing that I feel is difficult about the job."

The 44-year-old Robinson has been at Somers for seven years. While he concedes that it is sometimes sad work, he says his years in corrections work haven't left him bitter.

"A lot of our people are victims of society. They never had a chance and that's sad," he said. "That's really what we should be addressing. At all cost we should keep young people out of the criminal-justice system because once they get on that cycle it's the end."

Robinson is familiar with that fact. He previously served as superintendent at the state corrections facility for juveniles at Cheshire, and the former state School for Boys in Meriden.

Robinson is an enormous man — 6 feet 5, weighing 325 pounds — and still resembles the professional football player he was 20 years ago during brief stints with the San Francisco 49ers and the Boston Patriots.

But the native of Georgia, who grew up in Meriden, did not have to rely on the capricious sports world for his success. He earned a degree in education from South Carolina State College and a master's degree from Southern Connecticut State College in special education, with an emphasis on work with the mentally retarded.

He said being a black warden, one of the few around the country, was not an issue.

"When you come down to the bottom line it's respect and how you treat people," he said. "People are always looking to beat the system and the system can be beat," says Robinson of prison life. "I'm trying to minimize the opportunities to beat the system. It's a never-ending battle."

He says taking a chance on someone still motivates him.

"Some of our people have gone on to be very successful. That one out of a thousand often gives you the push to go on," he added.

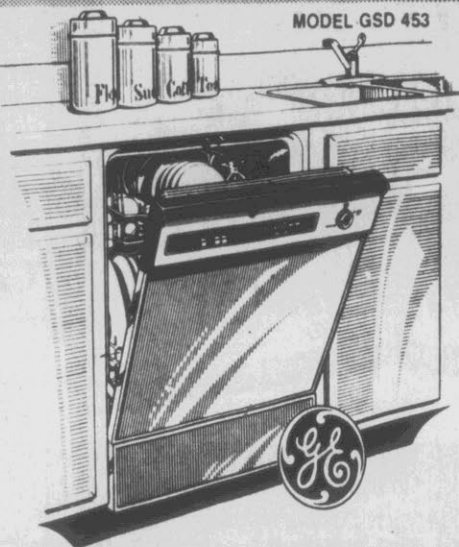

NEAR-PARALYSIS

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — A strike of 3,500 heavy cargo truck drivers and owners has virtually paralyzed construction for the past month and observers see little hope for a quick settlement.

N.C. Observing Book Week

"Every Kid with a Card" is the theme for "Children's Book Week in North Carolina," a statewide effort to get children to urge friends to register for library cards.

Governor James B. Hunt Jr. has proclaimed the week of November 11-17 as "Children's Book Week in North Carolina." Up to 80,000 youngsters all over the state are expected to receive library cards during the week. Every child who registers for a library card will receive a certificate bearing the governor's signature.

In Greenville, observances will be spearheaded by Joe Stines, children's librarian at Sheppard Memorial Library. Librarians in local schools will also be planning special activities in conjunction with the week-long observance.

Kroger Sav-on garden

It's Easy Pickin' In The

Shop with your eyes . . . and get more for your food dollar! At Kroger, you'll find many informational aids, planned to help you shop and save. In the produce department, you'll find "buy and care" information printed on plastic bags, as well as signs on unusual produce, such as Oriental vegetables, and a helpful attendant who can answer your produce questions. In the Kroger garden, you select just what you want, one tomato or twenty, one peach or a bushel! Whatever you choose, you can count on quality . . . because we guarantee total satisfaction. Kroger gardeners will be happy to help you with your selection. Use the shopping information in your Kroger supermarket . . . and save!

HEAVY-DUTY Permanent press laundry pair

2-speed motor

Provides gentler action for knits and delicate fabrics than one-speed.

3 water levels

Allow you to select amount of water to suit load size — conserves water.

3 temperatures

Choice of cold, warm or hot water for washing (with cold water rinses).

Permanent press

High-heat cycle is followed by cool-down — helps to prevent wrinkling.

Knit/delicate cycle

Knits, fragile fabrics get gentle drying care with this low-heat cycle.

Air-only cycle

Use to fluff, freshen feather pillows — or to dry plastic or rubber items.
