Jeering Mob Parades Captive

By The Associated Press

Iranian demonstrators blindfolded one of their 60 American hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, bound his hands behind his back and paraded him around the garden today while mobs shouted, "Death to Carter!" and "Send Back the Shah!" a witness reported.

A two-man mediation team from the Palestine Liberation Organization arrived in Tehran, meanwhile, to try to negotiate the release of the hostages. And Iran's oil minister said chances for a cutoff of oil exports to the United States were small.

But Japanese officials said they have been told that oil deliveries to that Asian country have been reduced by 5 percent for "technical reasons."

The demonstrators also accused L. Bruce Laingen, the U.S. charge d'affaires, of being a "plotting spy" and said they would hold him captive at the Foreign Ministry, where he has been since the embassy was taken over Sunday.

The spectacle at the American Embassy was reported by a witness who telephoned The Associated Press in Athens. The witness asked anonymity. NBC television said the American who was paraded around the garden was about 40 years old, but did not further identify him.

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini has rejected a special peace mission from President Carter, leaving the Palestine Liberation Organization the only apparent hope for the release soon of the American hostages, who already have been reported "pushed around, abused, intimidated and mishandled."

Tehran Radio said before any talks could be held with Carter's peace emissaries, the U.S. government would have to surrender Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi to Iran to face trial as a war criminal, something Washington has refused to do.

"The U.S. government, by keeping the shah, has declared its open opposition to Iran. The U.S. Embassy in Iran is our enemies' center of espionage against our sacred Islamic movement. It is therefore not possible, under any circumstances, for the special representatives to meet us," said the broadcast monitored in Kuwait and London.

Carter's special envoys were former Attorney General Ramsey Clark, who met with Khomeini in January while the ayatollah was an exile in France, and William Miller, a staff member of the Senate Intelligence Committee who speaks Persian. They interrupted their journey in Istanbul, Turkey, "pending clarification" from the Iranian authorities, State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said.

"It is our hope that they will be able to proceed with their mission at the earliest opportunity," said Carter.

Meanwhile, two top aides to PLO chief Yasser Arafat flew to Tehran today, after an overnight stop in Kuwait, to try to negotiate the release of the embassy hostages. Arafat's envoys were Abu Jihad, who heads PLO forces in Lebanon, and Abu Walid, who heads the organization's military operations headquarters.

Although Khomeini rebuffed Carter's representatives, he and his Revolutionary Council were expected to receive Arafat's because of the close relationship they forged as soon as Khomeini's revolution was victorious last February.

Both the U.S. government and the PLO said Arafat took a hand in the situation entirely on his own initiative, without any overtures from the U.S. government. His purpose obviously was to improve his chances for the official U.S. recognition denied the PLO so far because of the U.S. alliance with Israel.

President Carter's national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, told reporters in Washington: "Anyone who can help would be playing a constructive role."

BURN IRANIAN FLAG — James Brock, a Springfield, Mass. city employee, member of the American Legion, and a former U.S. Marine, sprays lighter fluid on an Iranian flag he and a handful of demonstrators set afire on the steps of the Springfield City Hall Wednesday evening. Talking about hostages held at the U.S. embassy in Iran, Brock declared that it is time to retaliate for acts of aggression on American citizens abroad. (AP Laserphoto)

Quiet After Altercation At College

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — The campus of Baptist College was quiet today after some students staged an anti-Iranian demonstration, prompted by an altercation with Iranian students.

Reports said today that several Iranians began cheering during a television report on the American hostages being held in the U.S. Embassy by students in Tehran, Iran.

William Doar, campus security director, said he was uncertain whether the Iranians had cheered. But "they appeared to be amused and it irritated some of the other students who were in the canteen at the time."

A student who works in the canteen, Bill Hoy, said the television reports showed the embassy, the flag burning and Iranians chanting anti-American slogans, including "Kill the Americans."

Some of the Iranian students watching the telecast rose to their feet and also cheered, he said. "I heard one or two of them saying, 'Kill the Americans, kill the Americans,'" Hoy said.

"That really got under some people's skins," he added.

Both Doar and Hoy said words were exchanged but the confrontation ended without violence.

But Hoy said several students gathered in a parking lot later in the evening, some of them anticipating the arrival of some Iranians.

Hoy said he went to close the canteen. Doar said about 150 students gathered in the parking lot.

"Many of them were just out in the parking lot because t ey wanted to be heard," Hoy said.

Doar said some of the American students made and burned a replica of the Iranian flag. The students returned to their rooms shortly after 1 a.m. when school officials ordered them to do so.

The school's 35 Iranians and a number of other foreign students left the campus after the altercation in the canteen, Doar said.

"We didn't remove them," he said. "They removed themselves. Most of them went out with friends. But we didn't ask them to leave. I'm pretty sure they'll come back and go to class."

Deadly Crash

MONCKS CORNER, S.C. (AP) — Two children were killed and 38 injured today when a tractor-trailer collided with a school bus in Berkeley County, officials said.

Deputy Berkeley County Coroner James Preacher confirmed the two deaths and the number injured, but declined to release any names immediately.

The coroner said the 38 injured children were being treated at hospitals throughout the Charleston area, most of them at North Trident Regional Hospital.

"All of them are injured seriously enough to require hospital treatment," Preacher said.

The bus was going to Berkeley Middle School in Moncks Corner.

The accident occurred about 7:45 a.m. six miles northwest of Moncks Corner.

According to reports, the truck sheared off the left side of the school bus. The truck overturned, trapping the driver in the cab.

Jerry Brown Announces He's Running

By DOUG WILLIS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California formally announced his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination today, saying that the nation's current leaders are "simply inadequate to steer the ship of state."

Brown says he stands for protection of the Earth, service to the people and exploration and industrialization of space.

That was the theme of a brief statement with which, Brown said, "I offer myself as a candidate" for the White House because the nation's current leadership is not adequate.

"Presidential leadership often seems the exception rather than the rule," he said. "It's time to wake up America, to build for the future, not steal from it."

He vowed: "I'm going to offer an alternative."

With that, Brown formally launched his challenge to President Carter and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, the latter already on the road campaigning for the nomination. Carter is to announce his candidacy on Dec. 4.

Brown said he is the candidate of the future, and that is what the nation needs.

"Today is the first day of my campaign ... for the tea leaves of the polls, I leave those to others," he said.

He called for a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced federal budget. And he proposed a national energy corporation to develop and manage the country's oil supply and said he would impose government control over petroleum imports.

He also urged that public representatives, named by the president, be appointed to the boards of directors of all multi-national corporations.

New Airport Is Strongly Urged

WILKESBORO, N.C. (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration says a new and better-equipped airport is needed in Wilkes County.

FAA studies found that the airport near Wilkesboro is the busiest small airport in the state.

County manager John Barber said today the county will look for funds to pay for the facility because the FAA has said it cannot provide construction money until 1981.

Wilkes County officials have been planning the airport since 1975. About $4.4 million is needed to buy land, build the runway and hangars. The county has applied for $3.5 million from the FAA.

Barber said that if the county could get $1.3 million, airport construction could begin next spring.

Transit Role Seen Growing

The Greenville Area Transit (GREAT) system announced that a record number of passengers were counted on its three city buses for the month of October.

A transit spokesman reported that the 21,655 passengers last month were 26 percent more than the October of 1978 figure and 459 persons above the previous high attained in July of this year.

Ridership in September totalled 17,359 passengers, it was reported, representing an increase of 5.1 percent over September of 1978 and marking the largest increase for any transit system in the state for the month.

Ridership in Greenville has risen over 14 percent in the past three months, the spokesman pointed out.

Frederick J. Haley Jr., transit manager here, commented, "We believe that more people are taking advantage of the city's bus service because of the rising costs of gasoline and of having a second car."

Haley added, "New riders are finding the GREAT system to be cheaper and an easier way to get around the city. We hope that more city residents will accept and use the buses in the future."

HOUSE BURNED

Fire and smoke damage rendered almost every belonging of the family unusable. Clothing and household goods are needed and are being requested for the family by Simpson Chapel FWB Church.

Mrs. Bell, who works at T & T Cleaners, 1100 N. Greene Street, wears size 18 clothes, size 10 shoe; her daughters, size 9-10 and 13-14 clothes and size 7 and 10 shoes.

The family is living with Mrs. Bell's mother, Mrs. Lena Daniels, now and inquiries may be made by calling the Daniels home, 758-5335. Items may be left at T & T Cleaners.

SOUNDOFF

GROSS WASTE

Why don't area builders let the public know when there is wood available? Recently I saw a huge area where acres and acres of trees were bulldozed to the middle and burned. Why couldn't individuals and civic groups be given a chance to make use of some of this wood. I think to do otherwise is a gross waste of our God-given resources. C. B.

Where there is wood available free to the general public, Hotline will be glad to make it known in this column.

Wellcome School Pupils Buried A Time Capsule

TIME CAPSULE BURIED . . . Some dig while others watch as seventh and eight graders of a Social Studies class at Wellcome Middle School prepare the site for placing a time capsule. They plan to remove it 25 years from now, in 2004.

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

A time capsule with documents and mementos of today was placed underground at Wellcome Middle School in a ceremony Wednesday morning.

Thirty-two seventh and eight graders, social studies students in a gifted and talented class taught by Mrs. Claire (Robert) Pittman contributed items for the capsule. Boys in the class took turns spading up earth as girls in the class stood by watching, occasionally adding words of encouragement.

"The students plan to dig the capsule up in the year 2004," Mrs. Pittman stated. "They are excited about looking forward to comparing the way things are then and the way they were when the capsule was buried."

Items expressing individual creativity by the students placed in the capsule include essays by the students. "These are on the concept of what Pitt County will be like 25 years from now," Mrs. Pittman said.

A cross section of items that typically represent today's culture in Pitt County were chosen by students to be placed in the time capsule.

Items selected include a disco record, computer chips, a model car and plane, blue jeans and jogging shoes, currency, both paper and coins, postage stamps, and a model of Pioneer II space ship.

Also chosen were publications — a Sears catalog, a TV Guide, and a copy of two newspapers, "The Daily Reflector" and "The New York Times."

One of the special enclosures is a taped interview with older citizens of Pitt County, persons who were able to put on record details of what life was like in Pitt County 50 years ago in the 1920's.

"All the boys and girls have really been excited about this project," Mrs. Pittman commented. "I had to veto one suggestion that a bottle of champagne be included." Another suggestion that did not materialize was the inclusion of a gold bead.

"I feel this type of project is rewarding, it's the kind of thing that stimulates the

Mrs. Spangler Chosen As Representative

ECU News Bureau

Evelyn Spangler, extension home economist for Pitt County, represented ECU in a special Career Exhibit display at the annual meeting of the N.C. Home Economics Association in Winston-Salem last weekend.

She is a graduate of the ECU School of Home Economics and was selected to represent ECU in a group of eight North Carolina home economists who have excelled in the profession.

Purpose of the Career Exhibit is to help students and adult members of the NCHEA "better understand the qualifications and responsibilities of specific career positions," said NCHEA officer Sharon Dixon.

As an undergraduate at East Carolina, Ms. Spangler was an honor student and a member of Phi Upsilon Omicron honor society. She was selected by the home economics faculty as "most outstanding senior" and by her fellow students to receive the Edith Rachel Spivey Home Economics Award.

She also received the MS degree in home economics education from ECU and has done postgraduate study at N.C. State University.

An active member of national, state and local professional organizations, Ms. Spangler is scheduled to take office as third district vice president of the Home Economics Association.

In 1974, she was honored by the N.C. Association of Extension Home Economists as the state's most outstanding home economics agent with less than ten years of service.

Evelyn Spangler

She was cited especially for her work with baby sitter training, education programs for parents of pre-school children, clothing and family resources management programs, and the Grifton Resouree Improvement Program.

Reception Invitation

The children and grandchildren of Jack and Lela Campbell request the honor of your presence at a reception honoring the Campbell's 60th wedding anniversary. The reception will be held Sunday at the Washington Holiday Inn from 2-5 p.m. A love tree will be used in lieu of gifts.

ESA Members Hear Speaker

Helen Sermons presented the program on "The Rights of the Child" at the meeting of Gamma Delta Chapter of ESA.

She stated the rights as established by the United Nations and told how the community could help children.

President Hester Latham announced the Christmas celebration sponsored by NARC would be held Dec. 20 and members voted to help with refreshments. It was also decided to aid the Salvation Army in ringing the bell for their Christmas fund.

Calendars made by the Association for the Retarded to be sold by the chapter were distributed and a report on the yard sale was given by Rubelle Goin.

The pledge ceremony for Shelby Bradshaw was conducted by Frances Cassick. Suzanne Lees was hostess for the meeting which was held at the home of Mrs. Sermons.

Bride-Elect Entertained

Miss Portia Jean Carver, bride-elect of Ernest Franklin Stine Jr., was honored Saturday night at a floating bridal shower in the fellowship hall of Antioch Baptist Church, Roxboro.

Hostesses were Mrs. Elizabeth G. Harris, Mrs. June G. Bowes, Mrs. Phyllis Garrett, Mrs. Dickie Garrett and Mrs. Doris G. Patterson.

Miss Carver, her mother, Mrs. Emogene Garrett Carver, and Mrs. Ernest Stine Sr., mother of the bridegroom-elect, were presented corsages of chrysanthemums.

The fellowship hall was decorated with a harvest-fall theme including lanterns, pumpkins, Indian corn and fall leaves.

The Baptist Young Women of Antioch Baptist Church, Roxboro, presented Miss Portia Jean Carver a white Bible Sunday.

The ceremony was held in honor of Miss Carver's forthcoming marriage to Ernest Franklin Stine Jr. The presentation was held at the home of Mrs. Linda Laws, Roxboro, and included scripture, proverts, poetry and prayer.

A tea followed and the honoree was given a corsage of silk flowers in fall colors.

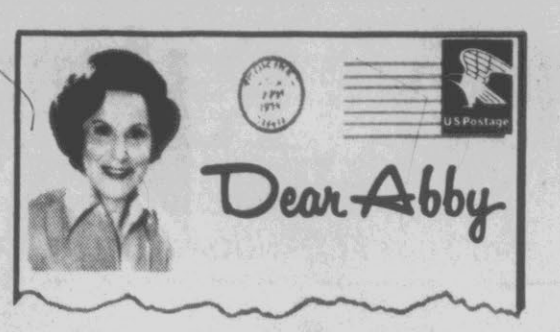
The refreshment table was decorated with a lace cloth, horn of plenty and antique lanterns.

Wash a broiler pan and rack throughly in hot suds and rinse after each use. Soak them first in hot suds to ease the job. Then use a soap-filled scouring pad to help remove burned-on particles. Be sure to clean corners and around rims, including the under edge where grease can build up.



For Answer Call Tax Collector

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I live in a very high-class apartment building. The manager of this building is not doing his job and I think his actions should be reported to the owner of this building.

When I asked the manager for the owner's name, he refused to give it to me. He said, "The owner doesn't want to be bothered by any of the tenants; that's why he hired ME!"

How can I find out who the owner is?

NO NAME IN SOUTH BOSTON

DEAR NO NAME: Look in your telephone book under COUNTY TAX COLLECTOR (OR ASSESSOR) and call that office. They have a record of who pays taxes on what. The person who pays the property tax of your building is undoubtedly the owner.

DEAR ABBY: The letter in your column from a 15-year-old clean-cut, religious Utah boy who confessed to having molested young children when he baby-sat sure hit home with me—I am locked up for five years here at the State Hospital in Atascadero, Calif., for just that reason.

I noticed you told that kid to go to his local mental health clinic for help. That advice was the best, Abby, and I hope he took it.

I am getting counseling here, and now I understand that I have had this sickness that turned me on to little kids ever since I was a little kid myself. But I never knew it was a sickness, I thought I was just a rotten pervert.

Too bad nobody told me to go to a mental health clinic when I was 15. I could have saved a lot of kids some bad experiences and straightened myself out without having to be locked up in a hospital.

FIVE YEARS FOR BAD WAYS

DEAR FIVE YEARS: I heard from a surprising number of readers who share your problem. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for printing that letter from DESPERATE IN UTAH, the boy who confessed to being a child molester. I know his feelings well. I sexually abused my own daughters until they became teenagers and had to tell someone.

Thank God I was stopped and made to get help through a program sponsored by the Family Service and Mental Health Clinic in our community. (It's called "Special Offenders.")

I am now going for weekly counseling sessions with my wife. Our daughters are also getting help they need to help them understand what has happened to them and why.

When I started this program I was very much ashamed and didn't realize that there were others suffering from the same sickness.

Most folks don't know that child molesters are victims of a mental illness. We need more than punishment—we need treatment. Thank you for letting me say this.

GETTING HELP IN ORE.

DEAR GETTING HELP: And thank you for saying it.

DEAR ABBY: What do you do when you are serving a large number of people and your guests take two servings of meat the first time around, never considering whether there will be enough for those at the end of the line?

Many times that second piece of meat will be left on their plates—to be thrown away. Kids aren't the only ones who do this, and you can't blame them; they've had some wonderful teachers in their own fathers.

Shall we tell our guests how much meat to take the first time around? Or should we just serve pasta?

FEEDING PIGS IN NORMAL, ILL.

DEAR FEEDING: When feeding pigs, don't allow them to help themselves—SERVE THEM.

Holiday Party Set Dec. 9

The American Legion Auxiliary Unit No. 39 made plans for its annual Christmas party on Dec. 9.

Post members and Gold Star mothers will be special guests.

Members voted to adopt a forgotten patient through the Mental Health Association of Pitt County. Mrs. Lois Dail reported donations were made by the group to the nursing scholarship and the Kennedy Whichard Scholarship in memory of Mrs. Pattie Mizelle.

Officers of Unit No. 160 will be guests at the January meeting. Members were reminded to bring gifts for Operation Santa Claus to the Dec. 6 meeting.

Mrs. Sarah J. Ashton attended the fall conference of the group held at the Great Smokey Hilton, Asheville, Nov. 2-4.

The meeting was conducted by Mrs. Frances Strawn, vice president. Meeting hostesses were Mrs. Saley Reagan and Mrs. Bratha Abee.

Before storing summer clothes be sure to wash and dry them thoroughly to prevent the growth of mildew.

World Court

The United Nations is scheduled to issue a new set of stamps tomorrow, honoring the work of the International Court of Justice. Also known as the World Court, the International Court of Justice provides nations with a means of settling disputes between each other without resorting to war. Because countries are not required to appear before the court, or to recognize its authority, the court does not hear many cases. But if a nation agrees in advance to accept the court's verdict in a case, it must obey the court's decision. The UN General Assembly and Security Council elect the court's 15 judges, who serve nine-year terms.

Iranian Guests Anger More Americans

By DON HARRISON
Associated Press Writer

A growing number of Americans appear to agree with the sentiment expessed in a banner hung from a college dormitory window in New England: "Iranians go back to your fascist dictator."

The banner, discovered Wednesday dangling from a dormitory window at the University of Brigeport in Connecticut was one of many responses to the continuing stalemate at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, where about 60 Americans are being held hostage by Iranian students.

Some 200 Iranians attend the University of Bridgeport.

The words were different, but the message this week has been the same at other schools, meeting halls, street corners and living rooms. Some people have picketed. Others have shouted.

The captors are demanding the U.S. return the deposed Shah of Iran, hospitalized in New York with cancer, to face trial. Iran's ruler, the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, has supported them, and efforts to resolve the standoff through diplomacy have failed.

The Carter administration has ruled out resolution by force, but many Americans don't want the U.S. to back down, either.

"It's time for Americans to take a stand," said Mike Hyman, student body president at Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge, where an open-air forum known as Free Speech Alley drew 500 persons — many more than normal — for a discussion on the trouble in Iran.

"Too many people have died for that American flag for them to deface it like that," said Hyman.

An Iranian student supporting his countrymen was shouted down.

In Houston, where about 60 Iranian students paraded through downtown to demand the shah's extradition, several spectators heckled and one pulled a sign from a student's hands and tore it up.

In an angrier confrontation earlier in the week, dozens of students at the University of Washington at Seattle shouted "Go Home! Go Home!" at Iranian students protesting the shah's U.S. stay.

Two Iranian students at Pittsburg State University in Kansas were punched in the face Wednesday by a man in a ski mask. One of the students was hospitalized in good condition with facial cuts.

Student senate president Mark Huffman said the assault was "an attack against Iranians in general, not just those two."

The embassy impasse created special fears for the families of the hostages. Their captors are armed, and a State Department official, who asked not to be identified, said hostages were being "pushed around, abused, intimidated and mishandled."

In Columbia, S.C., Angela Belk, 23, wife of State Department diplomat William Belk, picketed with her brother and sister in front of the state capitol. She wore a sign that read: "Please help bring my husband home safe."

"No one seems to be doing anything...," Mrs. Belk complained.

Guerrillas Free Two Americans

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — A leftist guerrilla gang freed two American businessmen kidnapped seven weeks ago and the pair immediately called their families in the United States, authorities said today.

In Los Angeles, a spokesman for Beckman Instruments Co., said Dennis R. McDonald and Fausto Buchelli, employees of a Beckman subsidiary, were freed near a San Salvador supermarket and were in good condition.

Few details were available here, but Buchelli, a Puerto Rican engineer, said he was leaving immediately for the United States.

After raiders kidnapped McDonald and Buchelli and killed their bodyguard Sept. 21, a previously unheard of group, the Revolutionary Party of Central American Workers, claimed responsibility.

Beckman met the guerrilla's demands by paying for anti-Salvadoran government advertisements in leading U.S. newspapers. There was no word if a ransom was paid, although there were reports the group had asked for $10 million to free the captives.

Prior to the Oct. 15 overthrow of rightist President Carlos Humberto Romero, leftist groups kidnapped numerous foreign businessmen to raise a war chest of ransom to support a guerrilla war against the rightist regime.

As it turned out, moderate military officers toppled Romero, but leftists kept up the pressure, nearly 100 persons were killed in fighting, and two weeks ago leftists occupied two government buildings, holding up to 300 hostages.

The Popular Revolutionary Bloc, the nation's largest leftist group, held the ministries of economy and labor and at first refused to recognize or bargain with the new civilian-military government.

But this week, after two days of negotiations between the bloc and representatives of the new junta, the bloc ended the occupation and agreed to give the government 30 days to show good faith and intent to carry out its promises to implement social and economic reform.

Talks Crime Watch Role

Doug Thurston, a member of the Greenville Police Department, gave a talk on the Neighborhood Crime Watch and community safety at a recent meeting of the Town and Country Senior Citizens Club.

Mrs. Frances Dixon, club vice president, announced that the Thanksgiving luncheon will be held Nov. 15, 11:30 a.m., at St. Paul's Episcopal Church. Reservations must be made with club president Sarah Ashton, 752-2912, by Friday, Nov. 9.

Mrs. Dixon reminded members to bring canned goods for the Salvation Army Food Closet. A guest, Mrs. Thelma Bateman, was welcomed to the meeting.

Refreshments were served by Elinor Jones, Lena McLawhorne, Eva Worthington, Levi Worthington, Lillie McLawhorne, Ella May and Thelma Worthington. Seventy members attended the meeting.

Retailers At Trade Show

Over 300 retailers from a three-state area were in Greenville on Monday and Tuesday attending the Garner-Wynne-Manning Inc. fourth annual trade show.

A spokesman for the Greenville firm, which deals in non-food merchandise for grocery and convenience stores, said that the retail customers received a two-day look at general merchandise lines.

The customers from North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia viewed over 200 displays of rack merchandise offered by some 20 different manufacturers, it was noted. Display emphasis was placed on beach merchandise such as suntan lotion, sun glasses and ice coolers.

Visitors from Raleigh-Durham to Ocracoke and from Myrtle Beach, S.C. to South Hill, Va. were on hand for this year's trade event.

The activities, which lasted from 10 a.m. until 10 p.m. each day, were held at the Holiday Inn Holidome.

EXHUMED AND REBURIED

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The bones of Carlos Amador, founder of the Sandinista National Liberation Front, were displayed in Revolution Square Wednesday then buried on the third anniversary of his death.

Approve Request For Soliciting

City Manager Ed Wyatt announced the approval of a request by the Women's Missionary Band Church for permission to conduct a door-to-door and merchant solicitation from Nov. 15 through Dec. 15 in order to raise funds for the church.

Wyatt said the request was submitted by Mrs. Ethel M. Grooms of Greenville.

Eventually, Reliance On Coal ?

The President's Commission on the Accident at Three Mile Island, reporting last week, found deficiencies in the way nuclear reactors are constructed, operated and regulated.

The commission recommended changes to reduce the risks. Even then, it said, there is "no guarantee that there will be no serious future nuclear accidents."

A new independent agency to regulate nuclear reactors was recommended, along with a presidential oversight committee. Careful review of emergency plans was advocated, along with changes in the recruiting and training of reactor operating personnel.

It was obvious that the commission still had concern about nuclear reactors, yet stopped short of ordering a complete shutdown.

The reason is clear. Shutting down all the nuclear plants operating would be disastrous for the nation now. There would be no way to make up the electric power generation that would be lost.

The only course open is continuing study of safety factors involved in the currently operating nuclear plants to make them absolutely safe. If future plants are to be authorized, they will almost certainly be placed in the remotest areas with the least possible risk of natural disasters such as earthquakes.

It is likely, though, that the United States will turn to its most abundant fuel — and the one that started power generation — coal. It is there and the technology is there to burn it efficiently. Why not use it?

The Elected Owe Their Best Efforts

A number of area municipalities chose new mayors and governing bodies in elections held Tuesday.

Greenville and Farmville held their elections last month and neither town required a runoff.

Many incumbents were returned to office Tuesday and there will be some new members of the governing authorities.

All those elected have a real duty to give their best efforts in building their communities and the area as a whole.

Humanists Stir Concern

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Appointment by President Jimmy Carter of Shirley Hufstedler of California to head the nation's first Dept. of Education is certain to intensify the developing fight between Fundamentalist Christians and the public schools.

Among the credentials of Mrs. Hufstedler is leadership in the Aspen Institute for Humanistic Studies.

It is the creed of Humanism and the organization which embraces that belief against which much of the anger of Fundamentalists is aimed.

Several recent columns in this space have detailed plans of North Carolina Fundamentalists through the Organization of Christian Schools to become more openly and aggressively involved in politics.

As Fundamentalists have fought against state regulation of public schools, their constant and central complaint against the public schools as operated by the state is that Humanist notions about free sex, atheism, and rejection of parents is at the bottom of many present social and family ills.

A Dialogue

Responding to those columns, Joe Felmet of Winston-Salem a former unsuccessful candidate for the U.S. Senate and self-styled organizer of Humanists in North Carolina, says "a dialogue between Fundamentalists and Humanists is healthy", and encourages that interested persons read the Humanist Manifesto to determine for themselves where the movement stands. Felmet rejects the complaints against Humanism lodged by Fundamentalists through spokesman Daniel Carr, also of Winston-Salem, who is president of the Organized Christian Schools and a Baptist pastor.

Carr and other Fundamentalist leaders express grave concern that so many educators embrace Humanism, and that one of the lead signers of the Manifesto was John Dewey, acknowledged father of modern educational philosophies and techniques. In fact, a review of the signatures attached to both Manifesto I and Manifesto II show a predominance of educators.

It is this influence of Humanists in the schools which causes alarm among Fundamentalists who see a conspiracy of anti-God social revolutionaries at work, intent on overthrowing the family, home, church, and free enterprise system.

What do the two Humanist Manifestos, the first adopted in 1933 and the second in 1973, have to say? Here is a brief look:

There is no God, and the universe is self-existing and not created. Religious ritual, creeds, traditions and myths are rejected by Humanists who term themselves "non Theists", and say they "can discover no divine purpose or providence for the human species .... No deity will save us, we must save ourselves ... Promises of immortal salvation or fear of eternal damnation are both illusory and harmful .... There is no credible evidence that life survives the death of the body."

One World

On matters of economics and politics, Humanists proclaim need for world law and order and an end to national boundaries and loyalties. Existing "acquisitive and profit-motivated" society needs to be radically changed so that all people share in the equitable distribution of goods.

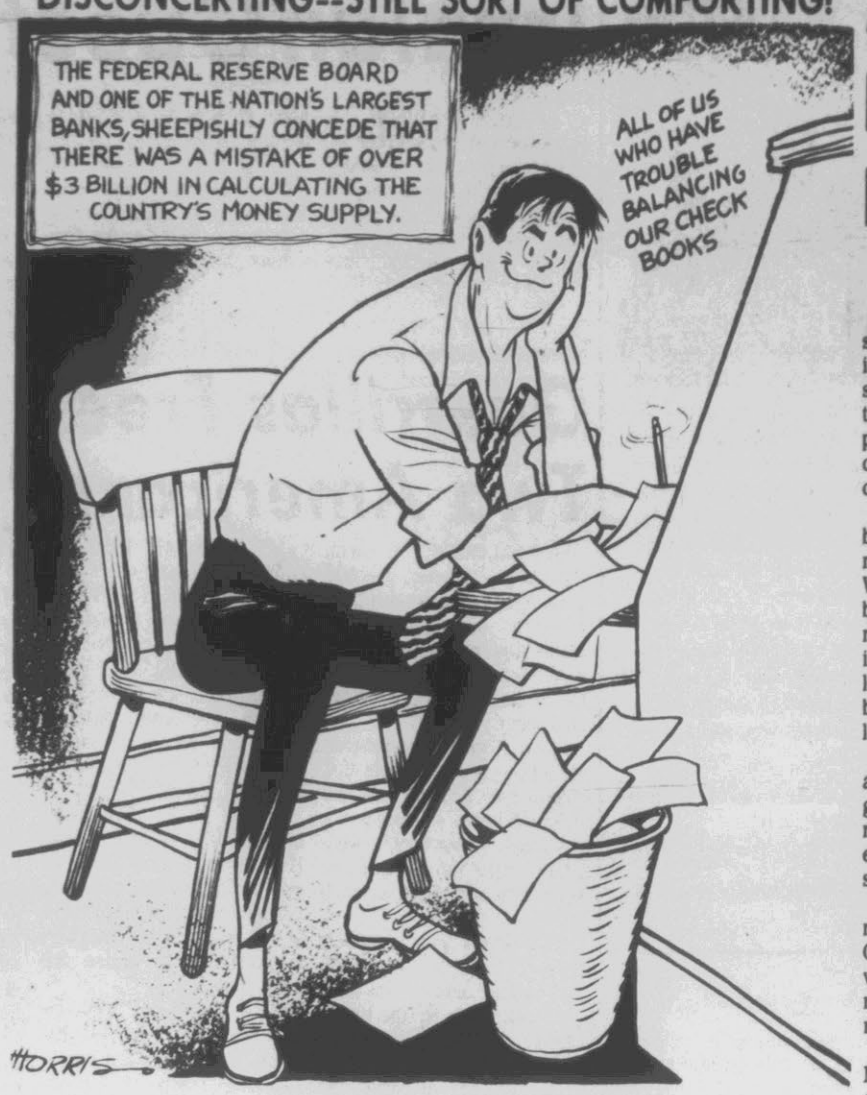
Humanists urge tolerance for all forms of sexual behavior and urge that short of harming others "individuals should be permitted to express their sexual proclivities and pursue their lifestyles as they desire."

BILL NOBLITT

Humanists embrace a full range of freedoms, placing individual freedom above all and urging that in government, the school, the family, the workplace and anywhere else there be widespread involvement of all people at all levels in decision-making Civil liberties are even extended to include "right to die with dignity, euthanasia, and the right to suicide."

Numerous other viewpoints are presented in the Manifestos, and those mentioned here are enlarged and explained in detail.

DISCONCERTING--STILL SORT OF COMFORTING!



Money Policy Is Firm

By GLENN RITT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite growing opposition to high interest rates, the Federal Reserve Board will not reverse its tight-money course until the public is convinced inflation can be beaten, the board's vice chairman says.

"It's not our intention to break the back of the economy," Frederick Schultz said Wednesday, adding that the board's sweeping actions last month are aimed at breaking inflationary expectations that lead people to spending and borrowing more while saving less.

If such expectations can be altered, interest rates will begin to fall "within the next few months," Schultz told a conference called by the National Association of Home Builders.

His statement came as the nation's third-largest bank, Chase Manhattan, announced it was raising its prime lending rate from 15¼ percent to a record 15½.

Earlier Wednesday, House Majority Leader James Wright sharply attacked the board's policies, saying that continued high interest rates would "drive the economy into the ground, needlessly and foolishly."

He urged immediate reductions in the record-high interest rates, which he said are "counterproductive" and the "worst possible medicine" to fight inflation, which now exceeds 13 percent a year.

Wright said controls on consumer credit would be "infinitely preferable" to "abdicating" anti-inflation policy to the Federal Reserve Board.

Schultz also rejected credit controls, which could be imposed by President Carter. He said controls would cause more problems than they would solve.

Despite soaring interest rates, American consumers in September extended their use of installment credit by a record $4.45 billion, the Federal Reserve Board reported recently.

The Federal Reserve Board's Oct. 6 tight-money actions will deepen and lengthen that recession, many economists say.

The homebuilders' association now predicts housing starts next year will plummet by as many as 500,000 units, increasing unemployment in that industry by up to 25 percent.

Mortgage money has virtually dried up in nearly half the states, and where it is available, the cost is 13 percent to 14 percent.

Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., chairman of the House Banking Committee, sharply criticized Chase Manhattan's action. "This is bad news for workers who will lose jobs and businesses that will go broke because of unnecessarily high interest rates," he told the conference.

The prime rate has increased more than 60 percent since last year, sharply boosting the costs of borrowing for government, business and consumers.

As recently as Aug. 1, the prime was 11¾ percent.

Numerous speakers at the conference, which continued today, defended the board's moves and blamed excessive spending by Congress for the nation's high inflation.

An Anarchist's Progress

Over the course of a single fortnight one is reminded what is the kind of thing that brought H. L. Mencken to write that "government is the enemy of all well-disposed, decent and industrious men." Grant that man is inherently flawed and capable of evil. Still, we do aspire to codify rules of conduct, so that when an individual violates a code, he excites retaliatory mechanisms, whether criminal or social. On the other hand, there is no end to what one can do if one acts as a collectivity or on behalf of a collectivity. Five items:

—The shah of Iran is admitted into a New York hospital on the assumption that he has cancer. The Ayatollah Khomeini gives out to the press his commentary: "I hope he does have cancer." The ayatollah, whose profession is that of a holy man, will not accept minimal restraints on his appetite for vengeance. There is something more barbarous about saying one wishes one's political enemy would contract a terrible disease than saying one wishes he would be brought to trial for his crimes. It is the appalling rupture of basic standards of civil discourse that catches the eye, indeed the breath.

—The queen of England goes all the way downstairs at Buckingham Palace (these gestures, though requring so little physical energy, mean a great deal in British protocol) for the purpose of displaying a special warmth toward Hua Guofeng. He is the traveling chairman of the world's largest totalitarian power, who left his country at about the time a diffident dissenter who asked for a few civil liberties in the accents of Oliver Twist asking for "more" was tried and sentenced to 15 years in prison. The crimes of the regime with which Hua is associated, the mutilation of the spirit under the Cultural Revolution, the increasingly perceived lunacy of Mao Tse-tung's tyranny, are appalling. The queen is instructed by her ministers to go the extra mile to receive Chairman Hua more warmly than, probably, she would receive Mother Teresa.

—Elsewhere in London, Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo are treated with the deference owed to respectable representatives of a contending position. Always the realist, perhaps the day will come when the British government entertains the assassins of Lord Mountbatten at Claridge's, and discusses with them, joking where necessary, the terms by which they might be persuaded to stop disemboweling women and children in pursuit of peers.

—At the United Nations, which perversely prime ministers, kings and popes regularly address as though it were the gathering place of the birds of paradise, Fidel Castro gives his usual speech, denouncing the usual people, applauding the usual people. He has emerged as the leader of the non-aligned world, thanks to an ideological semantics entirely controlled by the left. When he is done, he is given a rousing ovation. His appearance is roughly contemporaneous with the release after 20 years' imprisonment of Huber Matos. A description of those 20 years as Castro's guest in Castro's prison makes one wonder over the stamina of human sadism. Year after

To the editor:

As a resident of Greenville for over 30 years and an ECU graduate, I have seen the movies in Greenville become so bad that theatres I went to as a child and teenager almost every week, I do not attend now because of the very nature of the films. My children are not allowed to go to the movies like I used to be because you only see a G-rated film about once a year.

Now — a movie, "The Life of Brian" by Monty Python comes to town and I think someone should speak out and let it be known that this film not only pokes fun at the life and ministry of the Lord Jesus Christ, but actually ridicules and downgrades His virgin birth, His miracles, His purpose in life here on earth, His mother Mary, His sinless life, the Church and His death on the cross and resurrection.

One might say, "Well, it was only a comedy about someone who was born near Jesus and mistakenly compared and/ or thought to be Jesus Our Savior. But I say that to make this type of comparison is to speak lightly of Jesus and therefore, vainly. This is a definite violation of one of the Ten Commandments: "Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain." Any time you use the Lord's name lightly, you are violating this commandment.

I ask everyone who agrees with me to call the theatre where it is to play and tell the manager of your concern over such a movie being shown. It is not a question of freedom of press or choice, but of decency and respect.

Jesus willingly sacrificed Himself so that we might become righteous in the eye of the Father, knowing that we through our own deeds and works cannot do so — the only way is through Jesus Christ. Show your respect and honor Him every day of your life.

Inflation Is Sure To Grow

By HENRY HAZLITT

Inflation in this country will continue, and for as many years ahead as one can reasonably foresee. Its rate will increase, at least in the next few years. The dollar will probably continue to decline, in the next year or two, in relation to other major currencies. Our "voluntary" price controls will become mandatory price controls. This will lead to increasing shortages of one commodity after another, but they will be blamed on business. Rationing will be imposed, and it will spread.

Why can we make these predictions with reasonable confidence? Because the policies of the Carter Administration, of Congress, and of our monetary authorities have already been bringing about these consequences for the last couple of years, and there is no sign whatever that these policies are going to be substantially changed.

Inflation will not be stopped until we balance the Federal budget. It will not be stopped by promising to balance it in some future year, but only by balancing it. This is not merely because nobody any longer trusts such promises, but because the billions of Federal expenditures not paid for out of taxes will inevitably continue to be paid for by printing more paper dollars. This will continue to mean a depreciating dollar.

In his election campaign in 1976, Mr. Carter promised to balance the budget in 1980. But he took no steps whatever to bring such a balance about. In January of this year he was estimating the deficit for 1980 at $29 billion and, when he included "off-budget" expenditures in his total, a deficit of $41 billion. His estimated deficit for fiscal 1981 was much lower, but for fiscal 1982 he was still estimating the deficit at $38 billion.

If anyone wants to take consolation from the fact that this estimated deficit was at least lower than for 1980, he should keep in mind that it was to be achieved only by collecting still more taxes from the American people. Expenditures were planned to rise from $532 billion in 1980 to $615 billion in fiscal 1982.

Since that January estimate was made, of course, Mr. Carter has proposed in his television speech of July 15, "the most massive peacetime commitment of funds and resources in our nation's history to develop America's own alternative sources of fuel." He spelled this out the next day as an "investment of $140 billion for American energy security", and casually threw in $60 billion more for improving mass transit and fuel-efficient cars. In some unspecified way, this was to be spread out over the next

Strength For Today

DOES THE WORLD GET ANY BETTER?

Is the world getting better or worse? Since none of us has access to absolute knowledge, there is no way to answer that question with complete certainty.

But to judge from history, the world is probably slightly better than it was some centuries ago, and considerably better than it was 2,000 years ago. If this were not true, we would not be able to attribute much influence to the Christian religion. But the process of improvement is a case of two steps forward and one step back.

For example, people today have a much more acute awareness of social problems than people of former generations, but never before have nations worked so desperately to be in a position to destroy the entire world.

Slowly and painfully the world gets a little better, decade by decade. Our problem is to struggle to keep the areas about us habitable and wholesome.

Money Is Available To Some

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Money is tight? You've heard about tight money policy of the Federal Reserve Board, and then you read that installment credit surged $4.45 billion in September, a record for any month.

And you receive this unsolicited letter from one of the world's largest financial institutions:

"I have enclosed a Request Certificate made out to you in the amount of $2,500. Simply fill out the back of the Certificate and mail it to me. ...

"Feel free to use the $2,500 as you see fit ...perhaps now you can take that special vacation trip you've been thinking about for so long."

You might even reinvest the money and make an after-tax return on your money sufficent to repay the loan and leave you a profit, says the letter writer, and he offers suggestions on how to do it.

"The fact of the matter is that we have done our utmost to make it extremely attractive for you to get cash from Chase right now, even though you are not a customer of ours at present," the letter states.

Most banks, says the writer, Thomas Harmon, vice president, Chase Manhattan Bank, "would say they want to do business with a person like you. In this instance we are 'putting our money where our mouth is.'

"Personally, I think it's one of the best moves we've ever made."

Tight money? Hardly, at least for consumer loans in some areas. Not when lenders can earn relatively high interest on small, short-term loans. Not when banks are seeking more of the retail business.

Besides, retail customers, or consumers, often bring with them other business, such as savings and checking accounts, and they're candidates also for the bank's credit card and various other services.

Letters such as Chase's aren't uncommon. A Chase spokesman explains that the recipient's name comes from a mailing list company that offers a "specific list of preapproved customers."

He explained: "Things are tight right now, but the way we look at it the situation is fairly short term." Rates and other factors will ease soon, he said, "and we want these folks as our customers."

And how can Chase or any other commercial bank be so casual with loans when the Federal Reserve is cutting back on the availability of funds?

"It's difficult to explain to someone not a line banker," said the spokesman.

The retail banker, he observed, deals with individuals, the wholesale banker with industry. Retail loans are really quite small: they involve thousands of dollars, but business loans usually involve many millions.

DECLARED NO PAUPER — Fomer United Mine Workers president W.A. "Tony" Boyle was told by a judge in Media, Pa. Thailand Preparing A Royal Welcome For Rosalynn's Visit

By SETH MYDANS
Associated Press Writer

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The Thai government readied a royal welcome and the protection of thousands of troops and police for Rosalynn Carter, arriving tonight to visit hungry Cambodian and Laotian refugees.

Crown Prince Vajiralongkorn headed the welcoming party for President Carter's wife and her companions, Surgeon-General Julius B. Richmond, former Ambassador Andrew Young's wife Jean and former Sen. Harold Hughes of Iowa. The Thai government mobilized thousands of troops and police including marksmanship medalists at last year's Asian Games to protect them.

The White House said President Carter sent his wife to assess the obstacles to delivery of food and medical supplies to Cambodia and the refugee camps in Thailand.

"I just think it is very important to go because there are people dying every day," Mrs. Carter said during a refueling stop in Tokyo.

Since the aid situation has already been studied by three U.S. senators, six governors, Asst. Secretary of State Richard Holbrooke and U.S. experts stationed in Thailand, some high-ranking Thai officials suggested Carter might be hoping his wife's visit would boost his campaign for renomination.

But the president as he saw his wife off said: "We have no political motives....This trip we hope will increase both the public and private commitment to alleviate suffering."

Mrs. Carter was to begin her fact-finding early Friday with a visit to the new Sa Kaew refugee camp 120 miles east of Bangkok and 48 miles from the Cambodian border. Since the camp opened two weeks ago, many have died of disease and malnutrition and others among the camp's 31,000 Cambodians are ill and underfed.

Mrs. Carter was expected to fly from there to the Ubon camp, in northeast Thailand, where some 36,000 Laotian refugees are waiting for some country to admit them. Many have been waiting for years.

More than 200,000 more Cambodians are camped along the Thai-Cambodian border, but Thai military sources said security conditions would determine whether Mrs. Carter would visit any frontier areas. There has been sporadic Cambodian shelling across the border in recent weeks.

On her return to Bangkok Friday, Mrs. Carter will be received by King Bhumipol and Queen Sirikit. She was carrying a personal message from the president to them and to the Thai government expressing his appreciation for Thailand's help to the refugess.

Mrs. Carter returns to Washington Saturday night.

Mrs. Carter is being followed by a group of U.S. congresswomen who arrive Friday to visit refugee camps over the weekend and hope to go to Phnom Penh, the Cambodian capital, on Monday. One of the congresswomen, Rep. Millicent Fenwick, R.-N.J., said Mrs. Carter should have gone with them to save plane fuel.

year after year in solitary confinement, wallowing in his own ordure, not seeing light of any sort; a former companion-in-arms of Castro himself, whose heart was stone when successive appeals reached him for mercy, which heart, however, now weeps copiously at the General Assembly of the United Nations for the poor and afflicted of this world. The greatest boon Castro could make to aid the poor and afflicted would be to disappear. The ayatollah would put it: to contract cancer.

—And finally, there is Cambodia. Much of the suffering from hunger and disease in this world is something of a Malthusian scourge, which asymptotic efforts can and must be made to alleviate. But in Cambodia, between the time these words are written and read, possibly as many as 10,000 people will die, and several millions will wish they were dead rather than endure their awful hunger. Listen: There are five "government" bodies involved. 1) The Chinese; 2) Pol Pot's; 3) The Soviet Union's; 4) Cambodia's puppet government; and 5) The Vietnamese. All five of these "forces" have subordinated the survival of the Cambodian people to their factionalist ends. There has never been a more striking example of the utter irrelevance of the human being when the politics of totalism is involved.

But you can count on it. Whoever prevails, the leaders will in due course appear in the United Nations, even as Pol Pot's representative already has, and be greeted there as, what, a peer? One fears that that is exactly what these men are. Peers. Peers of all those who exercise powers. These are the anarchic thoughts of this morning.

Hazlitt Col. . . .

decade. So much for any hopes of a future budget balance.

Turn now to the creation of new credit and new paper money. Here, it is true, the Federal Reserve Board, on October 6, announced a dramatic change — it raised the discount rate a full percentage point, from 11 to 12 percent, the highest on record. It imposed an 8 percent marginal reserve requirement on increases in certain liabilities of member banks. And most important for the long run, it announced that henceforth it would pay more attention to holding down the growth of the money supply than to trying to control key interest rates.

The immediate result was that the member banks raised their prime rate to borrowers from 13.5 percent to 14.5 percent, and that the stock market took a violent plunge downward, losing 48 points on the Dow Jones industrial average in three trading days. The plunge was attributed to the high interest rates and to the belief that the inflation rate would in fact be substantially slowed down. But this hardly explains rising gold prices and continued weakness in the dollar.

The Federal Reserve Board is to be congratulated on its new display of courage. It is acting in the right direction. But two considerations remain to be pointed out. If consumer prices continue to rise at a rate of around 13 percent a year, even a nominal borrowing rate of 14.5 percent translates into a real interest rate of a little more than 1 percent — hardly a rate to choke off expansion of credit. And if Congress and the President continue to run huge budget deficits, the monetary authorities will be forced to resume inflationary expansion to pay for them.

Mrs. DeGaulle Dead At 79

PARIS (AP) — Yvonne de Gaulle, widow of the French leader, died early today, the eve of the ninth anniversary of her husband's death, the Institute Charles de Gaulle said. She was 79.

The Institute said she died at 1:30 a.m. in the Val de Grace military hospital in Paris where she had undergone two operations this year for an unspecified illness.

The de Gaulle family home at Colombey-les-Deux-Eglises is being opened to the public Friday, the anniversary of the general's death.

Family sources said according to her wishes, her body was to be taken directly to Colombey-les-Deux-Eglises, where funeral services will be held and she will be buried in the village church cemetery alongside her husband in the family tomb.

During their lives as the President and first lady, he ran the show and she stayed in the background, and twice, they escaped assassination attempts.

Throughout the decade of President Charles de Gaulle's rule, his wife was popularly known as "Tante Yvonne" (Aunt Yvonne). It was not so much a term of endearment as an irreverent label attached to a first lady regarded by many Frenchmen as profoundly out of step with her times.

De Gaulle's dominant personality left no room for anyone — not even his wife — to influence him. The widespread belief that she could make or break a minister or presidential aide appalled the first lady, who deliberately kept behind the scenes throughout her husband's public career.

Yvonne de Gaulle was always a woman of simple, even frugal tastes, well suited to her austere and haughty husband. She much preferred her cosy country home in Colombey-les-DeuxEglises to the ornate and drafty Elysee Palace, official residence of French presidents.

When de Gaulle swept to power in 1958, she agreed to move to Paris only after de Gaulle promised they would spend a weekend a month in Colombey.

He kept his promise, and she could be seen on those weekends shopping at the village grocery, discreetly trailed by security men.

The trips became so regular that in 1961 rightists opposed to independence in the French holding of Algeria planted a remote-controlled bomb beside the road to Colombey, and detonated it as the de Gaulles passed. But it exploded fractions of a second late, and the couple escaped injury. A year later, de Gaulle and Yvonne had another narrow escape in a spectacular machinegun assassination attempt on the outskirts of Paris.

School Holding Visitation Day

GRIMESLAND — Friends and parents of G. R. Whitfield School are invited to Parent Visitation Day open house Monday, Oct. 12, between the hours of 1-7 p.m. Classrooms will be open and the P. T. A. will serve refreshments in the lunchroom.

Parents are invited to visit the school Tuesday through Friday in observance of American Education Week.

Embezzling Is Charged

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — William J. Anderson, owner and former administrator of the Biltmore Manor Nursing Home, was convicted Wednesday of embezzlement of patients' funds.

He was given a 10-year suspended sentence, fined $8,525 and court costs and ordered not to operate, own stock in or manage any nursing home in North Carolina during a five-year probationary period.

Anderson, 55, was convicted by a Buncombe County Superior Court jury of taking more than $17,000 from a trust fund, administered by the nursing home staff, containing money belonging to patients.

State officials said it was one of the first trials involving patient funds in the nation.

"It's a great step forward in the protection of nursing-home patients' rights," said Donald W. Grimes, head of the fraud unit and an assistant attorney general.

According to evidence presented during the week-long trial, Anderson was having financial trouble within his nursing home operation and took the money to cover overdrafts in operating and payroll accounts.

State Attorney General Rufus L. Edmisten said the sentence was light, but the trial would serve to put "all Medicaid providers on notice that the public is not going to tolelrate Medicaid fraud and patient abuse."

The state Medicaid Fraud Unit of the attorney general's office, working in conjunction with Buncombe County District Attorney Ronald C. Brown, brought the charges against Anderson.

Anderson has filed notice of appeal of his conviction on the embezzlement charges to the N.C. Court of Appeals. He has 12 Medicaid fraud indictments still pending against him.

OFFICE IN JAPAN?

TOKYO (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt said Wednesday that Japan is the most important country to North Carolina and the state should set up an economic development office there.

Disciplinary Step For Ray

PETROS, Tenn. (AP) — James Earl Ray's fourth attempted prison break has drawn him a sentence of 30 days in administrative segregation.

The disciplinary board of Brushy Mountain Penitentiary handed down the sentence Wednesday after finding Ray, convicted assassin of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., and cellmate Donald Wolverton guilty of escape. The two were found outside the prison walls early Monday.

Wolverton and Ray, who escaped from the prison for 54 hours in June 1977, will be isolated from other prisoners and allowed only one hour of recreation per day for the duration of their 30-day sentences.

Iraq Stung By Neighbor

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Stung by attacks on its missions in Iran and emboldened by the continuing chaos there, Iraq is building up its armed forces and pressuring Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini to renegotiate a five-year-old peace agreement between the two neighbors.

The renewed friction between the two oil powers — Iran is the world's second largest exporter, Iraq the third — threatens the security of the Persian Gulf, through which a third of the world's oil passes.

President Saddam Hussein's Iraqi government has protested to Iran twice this month because of armed attacks on its consulates in Kermanshah and Khoramshahr and its embassy in Tehran. The Iraqi news agency also has said that Iraqi troops fired on Iranian border towns.

The Iraqi ambassador in Beirut, Abdul-Hussein Moslem Hassan, told a reporter recently that Iran, a Moslem but non-Arab nation, must give up its territorial claim to the Shatt-al-Arab estuary, a key oil-tanker route for both Iraq and Iran at the northern end of the Persian Gulf, and must evacuate three strategic islands near the narrow entrance to the gulf from the Gulf of Oman and the Arabian Sea.

Iraqi sources here said President Hussein is not planning unilateral abrogation of the 1974 Algiers pact, which governs relations between Iran and its Arab neighbors.

Avoid Those Feuding Couples

LONDON (AP) — Princess Anne has learned a valuable lesson: Don't get between a feuding couple — especially if they're elephants.

A three-ton male elephant named Maxie charged toward the princess and her husband Mark Phillips during a circus act Wednesday. Maxie was pushed back by trainers after coming within inches of the couple.

Trumpeting loudly, Maxie lumbered around the ring and then ran out into a London park, followed by Womba, an irate female elephant. Police said the animals were caught and returned to their cages.

Roustabout Dave Stephenson said Maxie became upset when Womba butted him.

Circus owner Jimmy Chipperfield said, "The princess didn't panic at all, she was very cool. She said afterward that she had had a wonderful time and thought it very strange that a female should chase the male."

SANCTIONS TO END

LONDON (AP) — The British government will allow 14-year-old sanctions against Rhodesia to expire Nov. 15 and rely instead on laws that bar direct trade and money transfers to the breakaway African colony.

Cite Reasons Parents Favor Non-Public Schools

By PAMELA BROWNSTEIN

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — Like parents across the nation, New Jersey's Assembly and Senate members have serious concerns about the education their children are getting.

But unlike most of the people they represent, a UPI survey shows more than half of the legislators have sent at least one child to a parochial or private school.

"If I had to do it all over again I would have sent them all to parochial school," said State Sen. Brian T. Kennedy, a father of four whose children have attended public and Catholic schools. "Because," he added, "then they would have learned something!"

The judgment against the schools is even worse. Privately, one legislator described public schools as a "battle zone" where drug abuse and violence against teachers and students are common. Several others said essentially the same thing.

The bulk of their criticism against public schools focused on their lack of discipline, poor emphasis on basic skills, questions about teacher quality, and violence and drug abuse by students.

Interviews also showed many chose to live in certain communities primarily because they liked the local public schools.

Assemblyman Chuck Hardwick said he moved to his community because of the public schools. He said his "daughter was challenged to the hilt" in Westfield, one of the more affluent communities in the state. "Good students have exceptional opportunities."

Although a check showed only five of the 17 department heads in Gov. Brendan T. Byrne's cabinet sent their children to non-public schools, many of the cabinet members live in affluent communities where the school systems are considered better than average.

The state's public school system enrolls 1.3 million students, compared with 220,000 in non-public schools.

Of the present 79 Assembly members, 42 have sent some or all of their children to non-public schools. Of the 38 senators, 25 have enrolled children in non-public schools.

There appeared a pattern among the lawmakers of switching between public and non-public schools in search of the learning environment the legislators felt would be best.

Many said the bottom line is how well any school's students do on statewide tests, the proportion of students who go to college and the school's emphasis on higher education.

Many also believe non-public students progress at a faster pace and develop better study habits than do public school pupils.

The majority of those sending their children to non-public schools chose parochial schools. The main reason cited was the religious instruction.

A few male lawmakers said their wives insisted on a non-public education or that the parochial schools were closer to home. Several said public schools were overcrowded or on double sessions or that they sent their children to non-public schools because the youngsters wanted to be with their friends.

"I'm concerned whether school authorities are working closely enough with law enforcement authorities to control" drugs in the school, said State Senate Minority Leader Garrett Hagedorn, who added he sent his three children to parochial school to get the "Christ-centered education" that he did as a boy.

Several lawmakers said parochial schools' educational standards had declined in the past few decades — especially since lay teachers began replacing nuns and priests in the classrooms. Nevertheless, they praised the generally tougher discipline standards in non-public schools.

"We have forgotten to teach children to respect other people's property and each other. We have been more concerned with teaching children to ... be happy," said State Sen. S. Thomas Gagliano, who sends his four children to both parochial and public schools.

The lawmakers said parochial schools often have fewer discipline problems because they do not have to keep disruptive students and that public school teachers who do discipline children worry if the parents will object.

"The public school system does not seem to have that upper hand," said Assemblyman Francis McManimon. Discipline used to be shared by the parents, teachers and clergy, with the entire burden now on educators, said the assemblyman who has enrolled all his four children in Catholic schools.

"The progressive attitude" of the public schools has not fared very well, said Assemblyman Vincent Pellechia, who remembers that when he was growing up, "we had to know it (the basics) before we moved on to to the next class." His children attended both public and parochial schools.

The feeling of several lawmakers, however, could be summed up in the words of Assemblyman Emil Olszowy, who sent his son to a private school so that he could improve his grades in his last year in high school.

"It's not the school, it's mostly the student. You can send a kid to Harvard and if he's going to flunk out, he's going to flunk out."

Martial Law Is Lifted By Bolivian Dictator

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) - Bolivia's new military dictator lifted martial law and censorship and promised elections as resistance to his coup waned.

Banks and businesses in La Paz opened Wednesday, breaking a six-day general strike called by the central labor federation. The city's buses and taxis were running, and residents of the city returned to streets deserted except for anti-military demonstrators and troops since Col. Alberto Natusch's takeover last Thursday.

The tin miners, mainstay of the nation's economy, were reported still on strike Wednesday, but the unions suspended the general strike Wednesday night.

After four days of clashes in which the Red Cross said army fire killed at least 60 persons, there were no demonstrations Wednesday for the second day and no shooting.

Natusch in a telecast made no reference to a proposal by Congress that he form a junta with two of its members. But he offered an unspecified post in his government to the president of Congress, Lidia Gueiler.

The colonel said a presidential election would be held in accordance with the decision of Congress, which had scheduled one for next May. And he gave "total guarantees" for free operation of the central labor federation's headquarters in downtown La Paz, which troops shot up on Sunday. Some union leaders were reported arrested on Tuesday, while others had been in hiding.

Resistance to the coup continued among the rank and file of the Roman Catholic clergy, who said in a communique that they planned to close the churches throughout the South American nation of 5 million people next Sunday.

Walter Guevara, the elected civilian president overthrown by Natusch, remained in hiding and in a recorded message to Congress urged it not to make a deal with the colonel. He said he considered himself president and would not resign.

The Congress was elected in July after a decade of military rule, but the presidential election ended in a standoff between former Presidents Victor Paz Estenssoro and Hernan Siles Zuazo. When Congress was unable to break the deadlock, it elected Guevara, the president of the Senate, to serve for a year.

Just Airing Their Gripes

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — What started out as a student protest of academic standards at Atlantic Christian College turned into a general gripe session Wednesday.

John F. Pearce, student leader of the protest, said some ACC students felt there should be better academic programs at the school, so, armed with signs, they marched on the Hardy-Belk Administrative Complex on Wednesday morning.

After about three minutes, the Rev. Harold C. Doster, school president, brought the students to his office for a talk. Hours later the students left, satisfied the school was taking steps to correct some of the problems.

"When we went back outside, about eight other students had come up and picked up our signs and started picketing," Pearce said. "But they weren't protesting about what we were talking. It had turned into sort of gripe session out there.

The protestors found their surprise replacements speaking out on a variety of campus issues, including school policies on alcohol consumption, before television cameras that had arrived.

Rats Share In School Menu

TAMARAC, Fla. (AP) — Fluffy and Champ get a complete school lunch every day — things like string beans, hot dogs and fruit. But they just nibble at the food.

The beady-eyed rats have been the center of attention at Tamarac Elementary School since their arrival four weeks ago as assistants in a fifth-grade nutrition project. The two are fed the regular school menu, but Fluffy gets milk while Champ laps up soft drinks.

After four weeks of the unbalanced diet, Champ weighs less than Fluffy and has dim eyes and blotchy fur. Fluffy, meanwhile, is robust and shiny looking.

Science teacher Pete Davis says the students are enthusiastic about handling, feeding, cleaning and measuring the live animals.

"I like class now," 10-year-old Vaughn Hernandez says. "Last week I was the rat specialist."

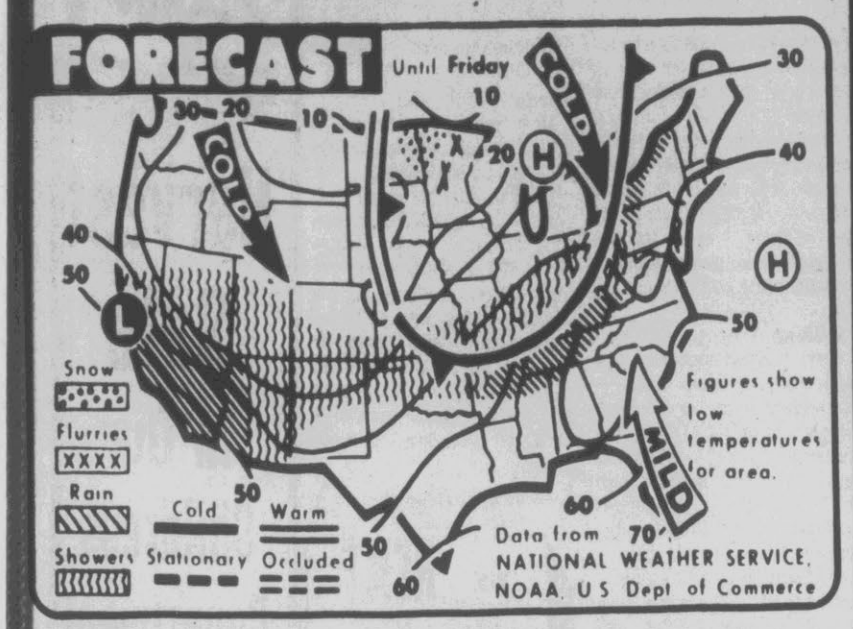
How's The Weather?



WEATHER FORECAST — Showers and rain are forecast for much of the nation today, ranging from the West Coast through the Southwest, across the southern Plains, through the Midwest and as far north as New York. Snow is predicted for parts of North Dakota and Minnesota along the border with Canada. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press

High pressure that has given North Carolina its fine fall weather of the last few days is drifting out over the Atlantic and a major change in the weather pattern is shaping.

A low pressure system is expected to form in the midwest and with winds increasing from the south there will be a flow of warmer and more humid air from the Gulf of Mexico.

In addition, a cold front will be approaching from the west late Friday. This will raise the threat of showers in the mountains and Piedmont late Friday and across the state through the first part of the weekend.

It was expected to remain fair and dry today with cloudiness increasing from the west during the day. The forecast called for temperatures to range generally in the 60s with readings three to five degrees warmer on Friday.

On Saturday, temperatures in the 70s can be expected in much of the eastern part of the state.

Skies were generally sunny around the state Wednesday and temperatures ranged from Asheville's 59 degrees to 69 at New Bern

Semifinalist In Program

Byron C. Mayes, son of a Farmville native, has been selected a semifinalist in the 16th annual National Achievement Scholarship Program for Outstanding Black Students.

The son of Dr. and Mrs. McKinley Mayes of Burke, Va., he also was named a "commended student" in the 25th annual National Merit Scholarship Program. This commendation was given in recognition of his outstanding performance on the test for the Merit Program administered to high school juniors

A senior at Lake Braddock Secondary School in Burke, he finished in the top five percent nationwide.

He was one of 1500 students selected from among more than 50,000 in the achievement program for outstanding black students. Finalists will be considered for awards in 1980.

His mother, the former Mattie L. Dupree of Farmville, is a former Pitt County Schools teacher.

Senior Choir To Close Program

The Senior Choir of English Chapel FWB Church will close out its program for the year Sunday at 4 p. m. with preaching by the Rev. Willie Joyner.

Mother Louise Dixon and Sister Rebra Best will be in charge of the service. A barbecue dinner will be served after the service. The public is invited.

Dethroned By Older Sister

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Crown Prince Carl Philip has been dethroned by his sister — and he's not even out of diapers yet.

Parliament decreed Wednesday that princesses shall have the right to become reigning monarchs. The only difference between them and princes in the succession will be who was born first.

The bill amends the Act of Succession of 1810 that said the eldest son of the king and the queen must succeed to the throne and that daughters cannot become ruling queens.

The change means Prince Philip will be replaced by his elder sister, two-year-old Princess Victoria, as heir to the Swedish throne. She would be the fourth ruling Swedish queen since the Viking era, all prior to the 1810 act.

King Carl XVI Gustaf — currently visiting Austria with Queen Silvia — has said he would rather see Carl Philip as his successor, arguing that a princess should be second choice.

GOSPEL CHORUS CELEBRATES 29th ANNIVERSARY

The Gospel Chorus of Selvia Chapel Church will observe its 29th anniversary Sunday, Nov. 11, at 4 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

Only Optimists Found In Ski Resort Areas

By FRED FERGUSON
United Press International

Who's afraid of mother nature, tight money, high prices, the gasoline crunch?

Not ski area operators.

They're shouting it from the highest peaks.

"It looks great for snow and super for people," said Sharlene Antonelli, Kissing Bridge Ski Resort, near Buffalo, N.Y.

Snow?

They've consulted the important forecasters.

"A wise old Indian told me if we have a dry summer and lots of yellow jackets, the snows will be real heavy," says Sherley Hamacher, Schweitzer Ski Area, Idaho, asserting the conditions have been fullfilled.

"The wooly bear caterpillers are wearing heavy coats and that means a lot of snow," says Sara Widness, Killington and Mt. Snow, Vt. Killington got natural snow and had 1,000 skiers on the slopes Oct. 10, its earliest opening ever.

Some of them even consult the weatherman.

"Meteorological long-range forecasts are for good snowfall this year with the season beginning around Thanksgiving," reports California's Mammoth Mountain Ski Area.

George Gregg of the National Weather Service in Albuquerque, cites forecasts for "a pretty average winter with higher than usual temperatures on the West Coast (meaning less precipitation), cooler temperatures in the central states (more moisture)." For Taos, he says, "We're caught in between. We don't know what to expect."

John Graff, chief meteorologist for Minnesota, says, "the statistics suggest we'll have less than last year's 68.4 inches for Minneapolis-St. Paul." But relief from the last two winters' abnormal cold also is in the offing and the area's average of 45 to 50 inches will be plenty.

In the East, Tom Hildreth, Maine's Sugarloaf USA, says, "They're talking slightly warmer than last year and above average snowfall." For his area, that's better than last year's February spell of bitter cold.

Recession?

"The recreation dollar is still there to be had," says Gary Engelsen, Minnesota's Hyland Hills Ski Area.

"Advance reservations far surpass any other winter season we've experienced," says Steve Corneillier, of Colorado's "Ski the Summit" marketing cooperative for Keystone, Copper Mountain, Breckenridge and Arapahoe. Comment from most other areas was the same.

"In the 30 years I've been in the ski business," says Ernie Blake, owner-operator, Taos, N.M., Ski Valley, "the ups and downs in the economy have made absolutely no difference in the ski business... The sport has become such a mental disease, people just can't give it up. They set money and time aside regardless of whether they can afford it."

Inflation?

You know it.

Bob Schaller, who runs the Mammoth Ski and Racquet Club at California's Mammoth Mountain south of Reno, has raised prices at his lodge 10 per cent. Mammoth's lift tickets have gone up from $11 to $14. Elsewhere across the nation, lift tickets generally are up $1 with the top generally at $16 on weekends and holidays and the bottom at $7 weekdays but package and group rates run as low as $5.50 in some areas.

The bargains are for use of cross country trails, which many areas have added. Typically, at Wisconsin's Telemark, Tom Kelly says lift tickets are $13, up $2, on weekends and $11, up $1, weekdays while cross country has gone to $6 weekends, $5 weekdays. He calls room rates economical at $51 for two persons weekdays and $78 per person weekends, up $7 and $11 respectively.

Mary Anne Miles at Montana's Big Mountain says lodging, lift and meals are up 7 percent there. "We kept it down because the competition I hear went up as much as 15 percent."

Will the skiers stomach the rate hikes?

"Public-oriented recreation is one of the last things people give up. they'll save money in other ways," says Dick "Hawk" Scherzer, ski director at Oregon's Mt. Bachelor.

"Inflation may keep poorer people and even some in the middle income range from skiing," says Ian Brown, publisher of Northwest Skier and president of Western Ski Promotions for Washington state. "The rich will continue to ski, but I don't think that's anything new."

Asked how the skier can cut costs, several ski area operators gave their traditional advice for dedicated downhillers: Look for the package deals and shop around.

Skiers in many areas have switched to cross country, at least on weekends, both for lower rates and to avoid long lift lines.

Gasoline?

"I don't think dollar-a-gallon gasoline will affect us at all," says William Norton at New Hampshire's Cannon Mt.

"If a skier makes up his mind to go, he's gone," says Dick Hamilton of New Hampshire's 8-area Ski the White Mountains Association at Franconia Notch.

"We hope to encourage people to come as a group instead of in individual cars," says Beverly Stein, Jiminey Peak, Hancock, Mass. Others said the same. They talked of more bus tours, possible revival of ski trains, discounts for groups and car poolers, too.

One fear: Sunday filling station closings.

"On an industry basis, an effort has been made to get this Sunday closing out of the energy office," says Rick Coker, Cataloochee Ski Area, Maggie Valley, N.C. "We are willing to share in the energy shortage but we don't want to carry the whole ball."

Areas closer to major population centers may benefit at the expense of the more distant slopes. "The energy crisis couldn't have come at a better time for us," says Joe Kohler, Bristol Mountain, near Rochester, N.Y. "We expect a tremendous influx of Rochester area skiers who normally might have driven past us to New England."

New Hampshire's Gov. Hugh Gallon is pushing for revival of a weekend ski train from Boston by late February. Oregon's Mt. Bachelor is trying to get Amtrak to drop off skiers at a point an hour and a half closer to the lifts than the present one 2-1/2 hours away. Montana's Big Mountain has been promised improved Amtrak service.

Salt Lake City's biggies — Alta, Snowbird and Park City — worry little about gasoline because they are close to the airport and skiers take a taxi from the plane, then spend two weeks at the resort.

At Sun Valley, Idaho, and elsewhere, they're talking about the "destination" skiers who fly in, come less often but stay to ski longer, thus avoiding fuel worries.

"Reservations for stays of longer periods are more numerous," says Leslie Otten of Maine's Sunday River. "If they're going to spend the gas to get up here, they're going to make it worth their while."

Facilities

Snow making equipment has been added in many areas — particularly those in the West which were hit by the disastrous drought of 1974-75 and 1975-76. And there's a push for more cloud seeding in Colorado where limited water tends to limit snow gun use.

Demonstrating their exhuberant optimism, operators have pumped millions of dollars into new lifts, trails, lights for night skiing, rental equipment, grooming equipment, cross country areas, lodges and other facilities. There are new triple or double chairlifts or trails at 10 Colorado areas alone.

Beaver Creek, a new area under construction 10 miles from Vail, has achieved a certain notoriety for spiraling property values such as the $300,000 Gerald Ford paid for less than an acre — for the land alone.

Energy

Most resorts are trying to curb their fuel use, particularly for lifts and snowmaking.

Hardest hit by rising fuel costs is the biggest snowmaker, New Jersey's Vernon Valley-Great Gorge which is converting to electric snowmaking but is still saddled with jet-fueled compressors. Anne Trombetta says that big area just 48 miles from New York City expects its fuel costs to double from $1,00 to $2,000 per hour of snowmaking.

ON THE SLOPES — Skiers enjoy an October day on the artificial snow at Killington, which had its earlier opening ever. Speaking about the real thing, the ski resort's director said: "The wooly bear caterpillers are wearing heavy coats, and that means a lot of snow." (UPI Photo)

Ski Area Optimists...

Another such area, New ork's Hunter Mountain, hopes o set the conservation pace by unning only those lifts neces- ary rather than making a ow by running empty ones nd by making snow only when, s Paul Pepe puts it, "e have rost and know it will stick."

He says Hunter also will nake more use of its six ireplaces for heat in the odges.

Others are looking further head to when power to run the ifts, light the slopes, heat the odges, may be in even shorter upply.

There is a solar energy roject at Mt. Cranmore and a wind-powered generator at Mt. ttatash in Vermont. Both are ederally funded experiments.

A fan snowmaking system at New York's Bristol Mountain uts 10 percent of the energy se from the traditional air compressors

The economy and energy runch have spurred com- petition.

Speaking for the Ski Maine Association and the state publicity bureau, Bruce Taylor baldly declared:

"We're out to steal skiers an show them our mountains are every bit as big and well developed as Vermont and New Hampshire."

"They've been trying to steal our skiers for a very long time," said Vermont's Gov. Richard Snelling. "I understand they are making a determined search for mountains which have sufficiet snowfall..."

Others are going farther afield. Colorado's resorts have promotions with airlines seeking skiers in Texas, Louisiana and Florida. New England also looks to the South. "The Miami Ski lub is one of the largest in the country," says Sara Widness of Vermont's Killington. The growth in Canadians skiing throughout the West and New England has boosted the gate at many resorts. Wisconsin's Telemark says it is getting more and more Europeans because of it's 100 kilometers of cross country trails, not to mention the state of the dollar.

Some areas, particularly in the West, have eliminated the prohibition against weekend and holiday arrivals on package ski weeks. "You can come at any time," says Rick Stein, describing three packages offered by California's Squaw Valley. It helps skies to utilize cut rate airline fares.

Award By Jury Struck Down

By LARRY LAUGHLIN
Associated Press Writer

WEST WARWICK, R.I. (AP) — Gerald P. Zarella, the man who accused his best friend of stealing his wife and sued, apparently won't be getting the $75,000 damages a jury awarded him.

Zarella had hailed the jury's decision as a victory for the family institution. But now the judge says the jury misunderstood his instructions and has struck down the award.

Judge Ronald R. Lagueux said Wednesday the Kent Superior Court jury erred last month in granting damages to the contractor without agreeing that Sydney R. Robinson had alienated his wife's affections.

Robinson said he was "relieved" Lagueux remitted the penalty he called "unbelievable."

"I am relieved that he had enough courage and sense to reverse the jury's decision and bring everything back into perspective," said Robinson, who is married to Zarella's former wife, Lila.

Zarella, 34, and his lawyer were in Chicago today taping his second appearance on the Phil Donahue television show. Neither was immediately available for comment.

Lagueux allowed the jury's award of $5,000 in compensatory damages to stand based on the panel's Oct. 23 finding that Robinson, a 36-year-old contractor, had criminal conversation with Zarella's wife. The term is a euphemism in state law for illicit sexual intercourse.

Robinson's lawyer, Joseph J. McGair, who sought the hearing to seek a remittance of damages or a new trial, said he was "delighted, to say the least," by Lagueux's decision.

"He said the jury misinterpreted his charge. He said in order to find punitive damages for criminal conversation they needed proof that it aggravated the alienation of affection, and they didn't have at," said McGair.

Zarella said he learned his wife was seeing Robinson about a year before they were divorced in 1976. He filed suit against Robinson asking for $1 million in damages after researching Rhode Island's obscure law on criminal conversation. He has custody of the two children from his marriage to Lila.

Windowless Room Stressful

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Windowless rooms can be hazardous to emotional well-being, says Dr. Samuel Vaisrub, an editor for the Journal of the American Medical Association. The problem stems not from lack of light or ventilation, but from lack of an outlet for people's visual curiosity. Vaisrub told the Health Insurance Institute studies show stress can result when people are deprived of visual stimuli from the outside world.

Factors Affect Food And Drink

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new federal government study says age, sex and income indicate what types of food and drink a person is apt to consume.

Predictably, middle-aged and elderly women are the biggest buyers of coffee. Singles 35 and younger spend nearly three times as much for soft drinks as do singles 65 and older. Women spend more than men on sugars, sweets, fats and oils — probably because they bake more, say economists Jitendar S. Mann and Benjamin H. Sexauer. They reached these conclusions in analyzing food-buying patterns in single-person households — which now represent more than 20 percent of all United States households.

They found lower income young men buy the most prepared foods and upper income young men spend more than half their food dollars on dining out.

Seven Inducted In Honor Soc.

The Rev. Cedric Pierce Jr., pastor of Black Jack F. W. B. Church, has announced that seven of his young members have been inducted into the Society of Distinguished American High School Students.

The members are Cindy Gaskins, Angela Buck, Susan Hudson, Connie Hardee, Regina Hardee, Doug Pierce, and Karen Stokes.

Greensboro Police Aware Klan Knew March Site

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Police knew two days in advance that a Ku Klux Klansman had obtained the names of streets where anti-Klansmen planned to march last Saturday.

Five people died after gunmen found their way to the rally and opened fire on the anti-Klan demonstrators.

Capt. J.W. Hilliard revealed Wednesday that a man who identified himself only as Dawson asked police for a copy of the demonstrators' parade permit last Thursday.

"At the time he talked with personnel of our department, he was asked if he was a Klan member. He replied yes," Hilliard said.

Police asked the city attorney about the request, Hilliard said, and the man was given the parade permit when the city attorney said it was a public record.

Hilliard refused to say whether police kept the man under observation. Local news accounts have identified a Greensboro Klansman named Dawson, but that man denies he was the one who received the parade permit.

Organizers of the anti-Klan march publicly listed their starting point as a community center, but on the parade permit they changed to a different location for security reasons.

Rally organizers say only their members and police knew about the change.

Fourteen persons, at least six claiming to be Klansmen and another three vowing they are Nazis, have been arrested in connection with the shooting spree on Saturday.

Hilliard said officers continued to search for a man named Jack Wilson Fowler Jr., 27, of Winston-Salem, who is charged with murder and conspiracy to murder in the shootings.

According to Klan and Nazi leaders, Fowler is a Nazi.

Meanwhile Wednesday, members of the Communist Workers Party that organizd the Saturday rally, vowed they will be carrying guns in a funeral march for their slain "comrades" on Sunday.

Tentative plans call for the marchers, who will accompany coffins carrying the corpses, to wind their way along a 2.5-mile route starting in downtown Greensboro.

Hilliard said Wednesday that police may ask the National Guard for assistance in handling the march.

"In preparing for this, we are making contingency plans, and we have every intention of using resources available to us as we see the need. The Guard would be one resource," Hilliard said.

Spokesmen for the Communist Workers Party said they were preparing a $500 million lawsuit against the FBI, the State Bureau of Investigation, the City of Greensboro and the local police department.

"We accuse the defendants in this of orchestrating the assassination of our five comrades ... and planning the escape," said Sally Bermanzohn, a party member whose husband was critically wounded in the gunfire.

Mrs. Bermanzohn said investigators are continuing to "threaten us, harass us, follow us and tap our phones," but she gave no evidence to back up her claim.

Party members say police allowed the gunmen into the area and stood by during the shooting.

Police contend they took all steps that they could to prevent violence at the rally.

Law enforcement agencies have flatly denied any involvement in the shooting and have complained that party members are refusing to cooperate by telling investigators what they saw.

Hilliard also said Wednesday that police confiscated a white Ford that was one of the vehicles in the procession that brought the gunmen to the rally.

Hilliard said the car was impounded in nearby Winston-Salem, but he would not say if guns were found in it or who it belongs to.

Police have said eight or nine vehicles carried the gunmen to the scene. The white car marks the third vehicle they have impounded in the case.

U.S. Attorney H.M. "Mickey" Michaux of Greensboro said Wednesday that 24 to 30 FBI agents have been investigating the slayings since Saturday. He said the Greensboro federal force is part of a nationwide investigation of the Ku Klux Klan put together at the direction of the White House.

He said the probe will center on the Greensboro slayings and "fan out" from there. Federal officials will be looking at allegations by the American Civil Liberties Union that police response to the shootings was inadequate.

Concerning the CWP lawsuit, Michaux said, "I would suspect there are a lot of suits that will be coming out of that."

In three North Carolina cities Wednesday, hundreds of people stood in a silent vigil in memory of the five slain. Two hundred gathered in Durham, another 200 in Chapel Hill and about 80 in Raleigh.

Many wore black armbands and carried signs protesting violence by the Klan. Police observed the vigils, but no trouble was reported.

Reducing Birth Rate In U. S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — One American women in 10 between the ages of 18 and 34 doesn't plan to have any children, a new Census Bureau study reports.

The study of the fertility of American women, conducted last year, also found that women are waiting longer to have children and that large numbers are returning to work after childbirth.

A PLEA FOR HELP — Angela Belk of West Columbia, S.C., is shown carrying a sign in front of the South Carolina State House. She identified herself as the wife of a State Department employee being held in the U.S. Embassy compound in Tehran. She said her husband, William Belk, 43, works in the records and communications office of the embassy. In the background also carrying a sign is her brother, Bobby Brown. (AP Laserphoto)

Man Jailed On Drug Charges

A 19-year old Pitt County resident is in Pitt County jail under a $10,000 bond, charged on five counts growing out of a drug raid on his home on Clark Neck Road, Route 3, Washington.

District 2 Alcohol Law Enforcement officers, assisted by members of the Pitt County Sheriff's office and Pitt County ABC officers, raided the home of Steven Woolard Wednesday night, according to ALE agent Danny Dilda.

Dilda said the arrest followed a buy made by an undercover agent of the ALE.

Woolard has been charged with selling marijuana to an undercover agent; with possession with intent to sell a controlled substance; with possession of a controlled substance with intent to deliver; with making a dwelling house a place for selling a controlled substance; and for the possession of more than one ounce of marijuana for the purpose of sale.

Each of these counts, Dilda noted, is a felony and carries a maximum on each count of five years imprisonment and a $5,000 fine.

Dilda said that raiding officers confiscated controlled substances valued at about $300 to $400, about that same amount in currency, and some paraphernalia.

A hearing for Woolard has been scheduled for today.

Investigate Three Traffic Accidents

An estimated $4,300 property damage resulted from a series of three traffic mishaps investigated by Greenville Police, Wednesday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from an 8:30 a.m. collision at the intersection of Charles and 14th Streets, involving a car driven by Robert Douglas Norville of 303 Prince Rd., and a truck driven by Ed Lee Artis of 420B Moore St.

Police, who charged Artis with failing to stop for a stop light, estimated damage at $2,000 to the Norville car and $500 to the truck.

Cars driven by Francis Cash Tyson of 224 Churchill Dr., Grian Gemmell Salomon of 108 Tanchewood Dr., and Ruth Harris Berkley of 221 King George Rd., and a truck driven by Raymond Earl Williams of Grimesland, were involved in a 5:13 p.m. collision on Tenth Street, 75 feet West of the Greenville Boulevard intersection, according to investigators.

Damage from the mishap was set at $100 to the Tyson car, $800 to the Salomon vehicle, $150 to the Berkley car and $50 to the Williams truck.

Joseph Millard Butterworth of Bethel was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 12:58 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Trade St.

Police reported the Butterworth car collided with an auto driven by Donald Langley of 411 West Roundtree Dr., causing an estimated $600 damage to the Langley car and $100 damage to the Butterworth vehicle.

Farmville Tax Payments Due

FARMVILLE — the Town of Farmville reminds local property owners that the time for paying local property taxes without penalty is drawing short and that persons owing taxes should consider paying them before holiday spending cuts into personal budgets.

Tax Collector Patrick Thomas reports that municipal tax collections, measured by percentage levied, are slightly behind those of the same time last year. He reminded that the two percent interest penalty that will accrue to unpaid taxes in January is higher than the 1.5 percent that would be charged on most revolving charge accounts.

Farmville's ad valorem tax rate this year is 65 cents per $100 valuation, one of the lowest in the area for a town its size, Thomas said.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today amid continued uncertainty about the tense situationn in Iran.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial issues, which sank below the 800-point level Wednesday for the first time this year, recovered slightly in the early going today, rising 2.90 to 799.57.

But declines led advances by a 3-2 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Iranian students continued to hold several dozen Americans hostage in the American embassy in Tehran. The Iranians have rejected U.S. attempts to negotiate for release of the hostages.

The flow of oil from Iran resumed after a daylong halt, and the Iranian oil minister said previous reports that the nation was cutting oil exports were untrue. Japanese oil industry officials, however, said they had been informed that Iran was reducing oil sales to Japan by 5 percent.

Among today's early stock trades, Gulf oil was off ⅝ to 32, Eastman Kodak lost ¼ to 48⅜, Bethlehem Steel was unchanged at 19⅜, Texaco held steady at 27⅛ and Pan Am rose ⅛ to 5⅞.

On Wednesday, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 9.81 to 796.67, its first close below 800 since Dec. 23, 1978, when it finished at 794.79.

Declines outnumbered advances by a more than a 4-1 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Big Board volume came to 30.83 million shares against 21.96 million the day before.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index lost .73 to 56.75.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index dropped 3.29 to 203.95.

Probe Possible Meal Pay-Offs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The General Services Administration says there are "strong indications" that some of its employees may have accepted free meals from contractors who provided government cafeteria services.

The probe centers on employees who handled cafeteria contracts at federal buildings in two East Coast cities. "We have found that on a regular basis certain GSA employees responsible for administering these contracts have taken meals for which they have not paid," said GSA Administrator Rowland G. Freeman III.

Annual 'Ladies Night' Friday

The Pitt County Shrine Club will have its annual Ladies' Night Friday at 7 p. m. at the Masonic Temple on Charles Street here, it was announced today by Hugh T. Hardee Jr., president.

During this event the local club will turn proceeds of its chicken fry over to the Shriners Crippled Children's Hospital. Noble Berl M. Kahn of Goldsboro, Chief Rabban, will represent Sudan Temple, along with Noble James W. Brewer of Greenville, High Priest and Prophet. Pres. Hardee urged attendance by members and "their ladies."

Buy Stock In Piedmont

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Air Florida has purchased 4.8 percent of the outstanding stock of Winston-Salem based Piedmont Aviation.

The purchase has raised speculation that Air Florida may be thinking of an eventual takeover of Piedmont.

A spokeswoman for Air Florida said Wednesday the company hasn't decided whether to hold the stock or to continue to buy Piedmont stock toward an eventual takeover.

William Howard, Piedmont senior vice president, said he doesn't know what Air Florida is planning.

The Florida airline showed a profit of $2.4 million for the fiscal year ending in June. The profit is 106 percent above the previous year.

Profits for Air Florida rose after the Civil Aeronautics Board deregulated airlines. The company was started in 1972, flying among Miami, Tampa, St. Petersburg and Orlando. It acquired Air Sunshine in December 1978.

Air Florida has had 36 consecutive months of record increases in traffic.

Piedmont has seen similar increases in traffic since deregulation. The company has been adding routes aimed at making it a national rather than regional carrier.

Journal Club Programs Set

November Journal Club program at the Pitt County Mental Health Center will be concerned with education and prevention, according to Journal Club Coordinator Jay Ritzer.

Dr. Robert Ratcliffe discussed' "The Myth of Prevention in Mental Health" Nov. 6 and Nancy M. Middleton will present "in counterpoint" "The Necessity of Prevention in Mental Health" Nov. 27. Nov. 13 Deborah Doucette and Betsy Kelly will tell about "Principles, Goals, and Growth in the Court-Referred Alcohol Education Program."

Author Charged For His Buzzing

NEW YORK (AP) — An author who buzzed the United Nations in a rented plane, forcing evacuation of the area, has been charged in an indictment with federal crimes carrying penalties of 27 years in prison.

Robert Baudin, 61, who took to the skies Oct. 9 in an aerial protest against his publisher, was named Wednesday in a variety of charges, including obstructing commerce and movement of commodities by committing an act of extortion.

Baudin, who will remain free on bail until trial, allegedly was upset that his publisher omitted parts of his autobiography.

$55,225 Grant Is Approved

Congressman Walter B. Jones announced Wednesday the approval by the Economic Development Administration of a $55,225 grant to the Mid-East Economic Development Commission in Washington, N.C.

These funds will be used to pay administrative costs for one year, to conduct research, planning and promotional activities in support of economic growth in Beaufort, Bertie, Hertford, Martin, and Pitt counties.

Rose Chases Playoff Berth vs. Eagles

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

The 1979 high school football season comes to an end Friday night for nearly all of the schools in the state. Sixteen 4-A schools will continue on into the playoffs, however, and it will be sometime late Friday before Rose High School knows if it will be among that group.

In fact, it could come even later.

Rose travels to Elizabeth City to face Northeastern in an 8 p.m. game Friday, and all the marbles are in the ring. It's do or die for Northeastern, and in many ways, it's the same for the Rampants.

Rose comes into the game after a somewhat sluggish victory over Wilson Hunt, 21-7, last Friday. Northeastern comes in followino a 20-8 win over Wilson Beddingfield.

"Our first touchdown came too easy," Coach Dave Bumgarner said of the Hunt game. "We just seem to take it for granted after that, and sort of lay back. I do think Mark Shank (141 yards) had a good game.

"I expected us to have an off-night after being up for the other conference games. Nearly all of them have been key games for us, and then when we slacked off after the first touchdown, I think that caused us some problems. We fumbled several times when it hurt, and we went for fourth and short yardage and didn't make it when we usually would have."

Bumgarner also noted that Hunt was a better defensive team than expected. "They probably had the best defense we've seen so far this year."

But after nine games, it all boils down to Friday night's encounter with the Eagles. And even then it may not be over.

One thing is certain, a Rose victory would definitely wrap up one of the two Division I playoff spots. Which spot would be decided in the Fike-Rocky Mount game. A Rocky Mount win would sent the Gryphons into the top seeded spot by virtue of having beaten Rose, since the two would then be tied for the championship. Rose would take the number two spot.

End Tyrone Tucker

Jerry Daniels

Should Rose lose, they would be tied with Northeastern for second. Northeastern would then take the spot only if Beddingfield beats Bertie. A Bertie win, however, would mean a three-way tie, and either a coin-flip or a coaches' vote would decide the position.

And should Northeastern win, Bertie win and Rocky Mount lose, there would be a four-way tie for the title, with Rocky Mount, having beaten the other three moving into the number one spot, and a coin-flip or vote deciding the second spot.

All in all, it could become thoroughly confusing.

"What we've got to do is make sure that there is no mistake about it," Bumgarner said. "We've got to go out and play good football and win. That won't leave any doubts about who goes.

"It really seems like every game we've played in the conference has been a big game, and this one is no different. We certainly can't afford to make the kind of game-opening mistakes we made against Fike and hope to win.

"Northeastern has an outstanding defense. I praised Hunt, but Northeastern could be better. They are big and strong, a very, very good on defense."

Bumgarner pointed out that while the Eagle offense sputtered early, it had come on strong in recent games. "They have run the ball very well during the last four or five," he said.

"They have an adequate quarterback in Jerry McGee (son of head coach Jerry McGee), and he has good receivers. They have a fine offensive line."

Bill Lee

Northeastern runs out of a multiple setup, usually with a I. "McGee likes to run with the ball and works the option quite well," Bumgarner noted.

Defensively, the strong line is anchored by James Copeland, the 6-4, 225-pound nose guard. "They're probably the biggest defensive team we've seen."

Bumgarner said he'd been pleased with the practices so far this week. "The players seem to know the challenge awaiting them. They've all been very attentive all week."

The season—nine games old—all comes down to Friday night. A win sends Rose onwards. A loss more than likely sends them home.

Lady Pirates Seeded Third

East Carolina University's volleyball team goes into the State Tournament at Raleigh this weekend, seeded third.

Four and four against league competition, the Pirates will face second seeded N.C. State in a 6 p.m. game Friday in State's Carmichael Gym. Appalachian State and Duke meet at 4 p.m., with the winner facing top-seeded North Carolina at 8 p.m.

The double-elimination tournament then resumes play at 9 a.m. Saturday morning, with the finals set at 7 p.m.

East Carolina goes into the tournament with a 20-20 record, having won their final two matches against Pembroke State and William & Mary.

Coach Alita Dillon seemed pleased with the seeding. "If I had my choice, I would rather have chosen State over North Carolina," she said. "We've played better against State, even though we haven't won a match. We've proven they are beatable in several games.

"Our players understand that they have got to play consistantly. They have a lot more confidence in their defense and they know if they can play their best and capitalize on the other teams' mistakes, we can win."

Dillon added that while the Pirates are not likely to stun anyone, they do have to be figured as a contender.

Women In Final Win

Greenville's East Carolina Tennis Association women's team gained revenge for its only loss of the year with a 5-4 victory over Kinston yesterday.

The victory left Greenville with a 5-1 mark on the season. Their only defeat came, 5-4, at the hands of Kinston in an away match. The match closed out the fall season.

Summary:

Nancy Powell (G) defeated Torrey Stroud, 4-6, 7-6, 7-5.
Frances Cain (G) defeated Judy Whitlock, 6-2, 6-1.
Pat Houck (K) defeated Anne Sayetta, 6-0, 6-0.
Penn Flournoy (K) defeated Mary Angela Lee, 6-1, 6-0.
Sue Ettinger (K) defeated Lib Proctor, 6-4, 2-6, 6-4.
Myra Hill (G) defeated Juliet Barrus, 6-1, 7-5.
Cain-Barbara Close (G) defeated Houck-Whitlock, 2-6, 6-4, 6-1.
Flournoy-Stroud (K) defeated Powell-Proctor, 6-2, 6-1.
Lee-Sayetta (G) defeated Barrus, Ettinger, 6-3, 6-4.

Pair Bows In Tourney

The Rose High School tennis duo of Lisa Grant and Martha West were defeated in the first round of the Eastern Regionals Tennis Tournament yesterday.

Carol Garris-Elizabeth Mangum of North Duplin gained a split set victory, 2-6, 6-3, 6-1, over West and Grant to advance into the second round of the tournament. Garris and Mangum also won in the second round, but were defeated in the quarterfinals.

Rose did not have anyone participating in the singles competition. Those reaching the quarterfinals qualified for next week's state tournament, to be held in Chapel Hill.

Pirates Top Greensboro

An ecstatic East Carolina soccer team exploded for three goals in a 14-minute span and proceeded to defeat the UNC-Greensboro Spartans by a score of 3-1 yesterday.

Sophomore Brad Winchell was responsible for two of the goals and senior Jeff Karpovich contributed the other tally. East Carolina grabbed the momentum early, even without scoring leader Phil Martin, who is out with an injured ankle.

"A large majority of our boys hail from Greensobor, so this game meant a lot to them and I'm proud we were able to pull it off," said Pirate coach Brad Smith after watching his team record its second straight win.

The Pirates were clearly the dominant force in the first half. However, in the second half, they became dangerously complacent and UNC-Greensboro's John Moon capitalized with the Spartans' lone goal. The Pirates did regain their composure in time to record their sixth victory against ten losses and two ties and could tie a school record for the most wins in a season with seven when they play Duke at home on Wednesday. A home game with Averett, set for Saturday, has been cancelled.

The Spartans concluded their schedule with the loss, finishing 10-5-4.

The 1920 Chicago White Sox and the 1971 Baltimore Orioles both had four 20-game winners on their pitching staff.

Dye Feels ECU Offense Could Put On A Fine Show In A Bowl

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Pat Dye is apt to get a little defensive about his offensive football team.

Not that the Pirates need defending. Their offense the last few ball games has turned on the full speed and is galloping up and down the field.

Over those last few contests, the Pirates have averaged nearly 40 points a game, moving into the top 20 nationally.

And Dye is beginning to talk of the unit from this year's team as the best ever.

Statistics tend to back up him. The Pirates have rushed for 2,677 yards already, less than 600 yards behind the school record of 3,263. They are averaging 334.6 yards a game rushing, tops among the 13 Southern Independents and fourth in the nation. They are averaging 5.4 yards a carry, ahead of the 5.1 pace.

In total offense, the Bucs have piled up 3,544 yards, just 701 yards behind the record. Again, their per game average of 443.0 would tend to set a record. That pace is tops among the Independents and seventh in the country.

In scoring, however, it could be a race to set a mark. The record of 352 could be broken if the Pirates maintain their recent 40 per game. Currently they have 241 points, and a 30.1 average. That again is tops among the independents, and 14th nationwide.

"What our offensive team has done so far is far and above what has been done in the past by any other team. This is a great group of people all working together," Dye said.

He also hasn't given up hope for a post-season game, should the Pirates win their final three games. "If people like to see the ball moved up and down the field, then they ought to fill the stands to see us."

Dye pointed out that a match-up of East Carolina and either Clemson or South Carolina, "maybe in the Peach Bowl," would be a natural, and would pack Atlanta.

Individually among the Independent teams, Leander Green currently stands fifth in total offense with 139.6 yards a game.

Anthony Collins, with 100.2 yards a game, is second among the Indepedents and 20th nationally. He also stands fifth in all-purpose running nationally with a 150.9 yard average. His 7.8 yard per carry rushing average is second.

Collins is second in scoring in the Independent group at 6.7 per game. Green is third at 6.5 while kicker Bill Lamm is sixth at 5.5.

East Carolina leads the country in fewest turnovers, having had only ten.

Turning to last week's game with Appalachian State, Dye expressed the opinion that he was "mighty glad to win up there."

He praised ASU as a fine offensive team, and one well-prepared to play defense against the Pirates. "But our team had

Notes

The Farmville Central Jaguars will face either Ahoskie or Edenton next Friday night in the opening round of the high school football playoffs, the Jaguars' fourth straight year in the battle for the 3-A championship.

If the Jaguars win in the first round they will travel to either Havelock or Clinton for the second round, the only game Farmville would play on the road in the four-game schedule.

The Jaguars, who go for their first undefeated season ever under Coach Gene Brewer tomorrow night against Southwest Edgecombe, have beaten both Clinton and Havelock this year.

In the opening game of the season, Farmville blanked the Dark Horses, 19-0, while two weeks ago the Jaguars, ranked No. 1 in the state by the AP, nipped Havelock, 19-14.

East Carolina goes into its game with Richmond this weekend leading the nation in fewest turnovers, having turned the ball over only 10 times in eight games.

The Pirates, 4-3-1 and still entertaining hopes of a bowl bid, are seventh in the nation in total offense, averaging 443 yards per game. ECU is fourth in the NCAA in rushing, behind Nebraska, Alabama and Oklahoma, with a 334.6 average.

Leading the Bucs' wishbone attack is halfback Anthony Collins, whose 7.8 yard average per carry is second in the nation. Collins ranks 20th nationally in rushing with 802 yards.

The Pirates trail in their series with Richmond, which began in 1965, 11-9, but have won the last three and five of the last seven.

The Spiders, 0-9 on the season, invade Ficklin Stadium averaging 240 yards game total offense, 134 on the ground and 106 through the air.

Defensively, Richmond has given up an average of 365 yards a game total offense, 250 on the ground and 115 in the air.

Freshman quarterback Carlton Nelson (6'1", 170) is looking like the heir-apparent to Green's job.

"He had an unbelievable day on Monday. He's the best we've ever had at this stage. How good he eventaully is depends on how far he progresses," said Dye with a smile.

Bethel's Walter Latham To Be Inducted Into Elon Hall Of Fame

BETHEL — One of the legends of sorts in Pitt County will be inducted into the Elon College Sports Hall of Fame on Saturday during Homecoming ceremonies at the school.

Walter Latham, a 1934 graduate of Elon, who served as basketball coach at Bethel High School for 28 years, will be among six former Elon athletes to be honored.

The ceremonies will take place at 10 a.m. in Whitley Auditorium on the campus of Elon College and are open to the public.

Joining Latham in going into the Hall are the late Russell T. Bradford, class of 1916, basketball; Paul C. "Lefty" Cheek, 1936, baseball and basketball; Graham L. "Doc" Mathis, coach from 1949 to 1959, basketball, football and baseball; Richard D. McGeorge, 1971, football and basketball; and Robert J. "Bob" Stauffenberg, 1958, football and track.

Latham came to Elon as a star in football, basketball and baseball in 1928 after a high school career in Washington and Bath. Playing under the late D.C. "Peahead" Walker, Latham played 60 minutes in each of the ten games that season, which saw Elon have a poor year with 10 of the 27 squad members put on the injured list in the first game. Latham played wingback in the opening games, and later switched to fullback and linebacker.

He was a first-string substitute on the basketball team that year, and was the only freshman to make the baseball team, converting to first base from his accustomed catching position. He also pitched six games, including a no-hitter against Wofford.

Following his freshman year, Latham had to drop out of Elon. "My father died," he explained, "and I had to help my mother with eight younger brothers and sisters. I worked a year, then returned to school for another year. I got a teaching certificate, and then taught for a year in Washington." He also helped coach football that year.

Walter Latham

Returning to Elon in 1932, Latham was all-Conference in football and elected president of the junior class. As a senior, he was director of minor sports, and served as an assistant coach with Walker. "Since it was my sixth year, I wasn't eligible for conference games, but I did play in the four non-conference games."

Following his graduation, Latham returned to the East, becoming a teacher and coach at Bethel High School. After five years, he became principal of the school and continued to coach until 1961, when a rule prohibiting principals from coaching was passed.

During those 28 years, he won nearly every league championship in basketball, capturing a number of district championships. His 1948 team won the State Class B title.

"I really don't know how many games we won," he said. "We played just about anyone who'd play us, including a lot of the big teams like Elizabeth City, Kinston, Raleigh Broughton and teams like that. Someone once figured up that we won something like 80 per cent of the games."

Latham also coached baseball at Bethel, and played pro and semipro baseball during the summers. "I played with people like Bo Farley, Reynolds May, Ty Wagner and Ace Parker, back in the old Coastal League."

Following the end of his coaching career, Latham continued as principal at Bethel, becoming principal at North Pitt High School when merger was accomplished.

He retired several years ago, and while he still maintains his college weight, at 70 has given up tennis in favor of quail hunts and fishing.

Pirate Wrestlers, With New Coach, Set To Open Mat Season

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina University's wrestling team, under new head coach Ed Steers, opens the 1979-80 season Friday at the Monarch Open in Norfolk, Va.

Steers, taking over after a successful tenure at William & Mary, is hopeful of restoring East Carolina to its former position atop the North Carolina collegiate wrestling programs.

While injuries during the early season have been a problem, Steers still feels that he will field a fine group in the tournament, the first of two that open the season. The Pirates' first dual meet comes Nov. 21 against Richmond.

"We have 11 freshmen and two two transfers that helps to give us a lot more depth. We are still thin at some positions, but we're going to have to bring a lot of people in an develop them. We are not strong financially since we don't approach the 11 grants authorized by the NCAA."

Once the top team in the state, the Pirates have slipped in recent years. Over the past two seasons, ECU won only four dual meets, an unheard of situation several years back, when the Pirates were highly regarded both in the state and nation.

"I think this will be an exciting year for us," Steers said. "We don't intend to lie down; we're going to win. It will be a struggle, but we'll get back on top."

Tops among the Pirate matmen are two with national caliber, heavyweight D.T. Joyner, and 177-pounder Butch Revils. Joyner was eighth-seeded in the 1978 Nationals, and was red-shirted last year. Revils won the highly regarded Wilkes Open last year and was a national qualifier.

Tops among the 118-pounders is Bob Passino, a sophomore. "We expect a lot from him," Steers said. Two freshmen, John Brennan and Nathan Kluttz are outstanding prospects and could challenge before the year is over.

At 126, Charlie McGimsey and Steve Milanese, both veterans return. Freshman Greg Sours is also expected to give them a challenge before long.

Danny Keene, a sophomore who had weight problems last year, is looking good at 134. Dutch Schwab and Jeff Boyce are prime back-ups.

"I've been real pleased with Scott Eaton, a sophomore, at 142," Steers said. Backup roles should be provided by Jim Osborn and Don Foster.

Frank Schaede and Frank Prewitt are both cast in the 150-pound level, and Steers feels that makes this position quite strong. "They are two of our better kids," he said. Schaede was runner-up at the Monarch two years ago.

"We won't have a 158-pounder in the tournament," Steers said. "When we go to dual meets, we'll probably move Prewitt up."

Steve Goode has been doing a good job filling the 167-pound class. "He probably has as much ability as anyone on the team," the coach said. "He just needs confidence."

Jay Deaver will occupy the 190-pound level, with Ronnie Goodall, a former Rose High School wrestler, backing up.

"Joyner is one of the hardest working heavyweights I've ever seen," Steers concluded. "Before I always thought that he had outstanding ability, but now I see that he isn't the most gifted wrestler, but makes up for it with his super-hard work."

The Pirates, following the Norfolk tournament, will participate in the North Carolina Tournament on the 16th and 17th.

In nine seasons of play with the Chicago Bears, linebacker Dick Butkus personally took the ball away from the other team 47 times, recovering 25 fumbles and intercepting 22 passes.

BEN KINCHLOW

AMERICAN LEGION BLDG.
St. Andrews Drive
Greenville, North Carolina

Ben Kinchlow the son of a Methodist Minister, was born and raised in Uvalde, Texas. The veteran of 13 years military service was awarded the American Legion Award of Merit, earned a 3rd degree black belt in Karate, and is also a graduate of Southwest Texas Junior College where he was a member of Phi Theta Kappa, President of the Senior Class and listed in "Who's Who in American Small Colleges". After his honoragle discharge from the Air Force, he was impressed with the teachings of Malcolm X and considered becoming a Black Muslim. When Malcolm X was killed, he drifted away from the Muslims, as did many others. His marriage began to disintegrate. "My wife and I eventually separated, and my kids were caught in the middle," he says, adding that Jesus has since resolved their problems.

He worked part-time as a salesman and as a test car driver. While driving a test car around a track at 80 MPH, "Jesus Christ changed my life." Sitting behind the wheel, he asked, "Are YOU really out there? If YOU really are, show me." God showed him. His life was changed. He was a born-again Christian, or as the Bible says, "a new creation."

Ben quit his job and opened "His Place" to minister to street kids, then worked at a Christian drug and alcoholism rehabilitation farm in Killeen, Texas. After a guest appearance on the "700 Club", he joined the Christian Broadcasting Network, Inc. (CBN) as Dallas area director, and has been Co-Host of the "700 Club" since 1975.

Ben and his wife, Vivian, live with their three sons, Nigel, Levi and Sean Erik, in Virginia Beach.

Special Music Ministry by the Waters Family from Washington, N.C.

The precious, sweet spirit of Jesus lives in this man—just as He can and will live in any and all of us who will let Him into our lives. Come join us and let's all lift Jesus higher that others may be drawn to Him. (John 12:32)

Yankee Reconstruction Is Continuing

NEW YORK (AP) — The reconstruction of the New York Yankees was expected to continue today when free agents Bob Watson and Rudy May officially sign contracts with George Steinbrenner's club.

That means over the last dozen days, the Yankees have hired a new manager and a new general manager, completed two six-player trades, signed two free agents and prevented two others from going into the re-entry draft.

How's that for reconstruction?

Following Billy Martin's adventure with the marshmallow man in Minnesota, Steinbrenner hired Dick Howser as his new manager and Gene Michael as the new GM.

Then the owner blocked the moves toward free agency of first baseman Jim Spencer and shortstop Bucky Dent by signing them to new, lucrative, long-term contracts.

Then came the trades with Seattle and Toronto delivering center fielder Ruppert Jones and catcher Rick Cerone among others.

Now, it's Watson to provide right-handed punch to a lefty-laden lineup, and May as an added arm for either the bullpen or starting rotation.

Watson, the Yankees' No.1 selection in last Friday's re-entry draft, did not come cheaply. The 33-year-old first baseman who split last year in Houston and Boston, reportedly agreed to a four-year deal worth close to $2 million. Compared to that, the $1 million, three-year pact that May received puts the 35-year-old pitcher who was drafted fourth by New York in the bargain basement category.

The Yankees had hoped that pitcher Bruce Kison, their second re-entry pick, could be part of today's signing spectacular. He also is a client of attorney Tom Reich, who negotiated Watson's contract with New York. But Kison is not close to signing with anybody yet.

"Reports that Bruce has agreed are irresponsible and unfounded," said Reich. "There is absolutely no truth to those reports."

Reich said Watson was interested in either remaining with the Red Sox or moving to New York and that the nine other teams drafting negotiating rights were not contacted.

"There was no discussion with any other teams except Boston and New York," the attorney said. "We didn't want to take advantage of anyone else. We didn't feel it would be fair."

Watson is a power hitter who tagged 13 home runs and drove in 53 runs while batting .337 in 84 games with the Red Sox after being acquired from the Astros. He gives the Yankees important right-handed balance and will serve as designated hitter while sharing first base with Spencer.

Census Bureau's Effort Will Involve High Stakes

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Census Bureau — poised for its largest population tally ever — wants to make sure it counts every last American man, woman and child in 1980.

And to make certain that task is done, towns and special interest groups have put the bureau under intense scrutiny. At stake are millions of federal and state dollars for such projects as housing, job training, poverty relief and urban aid.

The dollars are distributed according to formulas based on census data. The Census Bureau says it counted 97.5 percent of all Americans in 1970.

But the undercount was much greater among blacks and Hispanics than among whites, which reduced aid to many communities and led to pressure to adjust the figures and adopt better counting methods.

A decade ago, minority leaders ignored the Census, but they have since developed a keen understanding of the multi-billion dollar stakes and are working with the bureau to encourage cooperation among people long distrustful of government.

"Demographic statistics represent a way of allocating public benefits at once scientifically and politically painlessly," said Bryant Robey, editor of American Demographics magazine.

The political spotlight is now glaring on those who collect the statistics, rather than the politicians who use them, Robey said.

The federal revenue sharing program launched in the early 1970s brought census figures into sharp focus for communities, since the money they receive is based on their population.

For fast-growing communities, even special censuses and updated bureau estimates have not always been sufficient to boost their shares of the federal pie sufficiently.

Fairfax County, Va., for example, is conducting its own survey to try to prove the census estimate of its population is too low.

Meanwhile, minority groups are struggling to get a more accurate count for their members. Because the 1980 count will provide new population figures, it presents the possibility of large redistribution of programs and funds.

Bureau officials have been cautious about discussing adjustments, stressing the difficulty of determining how many people are missed and who and where they are.

On Tuesday, the bureau announced it has been unable to figure out how many Hispanics it missed the last time around. It said a major problem was how to determine just who is Hispanic, based on language, surname or parentage.

The estimated undercount of whites in 1970 was 1.9 percent, of blacks 7.7 percent. The bureau said the Hispanic undercount was probably somewhere in between.

In his confirmation hearings, Census Director Vincent Barabba promised the bureau would "face squarely the issue of whether and how adjustment for undercount should be made, and we are going to ... explore every facet of the issue carefully and openly."

For members of Congress, who face constituent pressure, the undercount and adjusting the figures are major considerations.

"We need the best information we can get. If we have to admit there is an undercount through error or bias, we may have to consider an adjustment," said Mike Farrell of the House census subcommittee.

Widespread distrust of government exists among many minority groups. The bureau's Larry Lucas said the problem of confidentiality is most widely discussed in the Hispanic community, which has many illegal aliens.

Lucas said even simple questions about housing make people hesitant. For example, he said, if 10 people are living in an apartment and the local housing code limits the apartment to five, the residents will be reluctant to tell a government agency.

In its effort to reach minorities, the Census Bureau has set up special programs aimed at blacks, Hispanics, Asians, Indians and other groups.

Al Perez of the Mexican-American Legal Defense and Education Fund said his group is working to change opinions with efforts ranging from advertising to church meetings to disc jockey announcements, but he was not confident about getting people to cooperate.

"People have to be convinced that the information is legally confidential. I don't think we'll make much progress on that," Perez said.

Althea T.L. Simmons of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People said the NAACP is trying to encourage people to cooperate with the Census, working through church groups, community organizations and even in taverns.

"We think when people realize how much it means to them, they will cooperate," she said.

Prostaglandins Help Heal Ulcers

My father has been confined to bed since he had a stroke eight months ago. Recently, he developed an ulcer around the ankle which refuses to heal, even though every kind of medicine has been applied to it. I am hoping that you have come across something, in America or in Europe, that would be more helpful than the drugs we are now using. — Mrs. D.C., Maine.

Dear Mrs. C.:

The story of the stroke and the ucler of the foot points to the fact that your father probably has a degree of arteriosclerosis. Usually, such a disease of the arteries interferes with the proper supply of blood and oxygen to the area of the ulcer and prevents it from healing.

Many years ago, this presented a far more difficult problem than it does today. There are many ways by which the blood supply can be increased. Compression boots, drugs, and surgical by-pass operations have been remarkably effective in some cases that have failed to respond.

Recently, prostaglandins have been found to be extremely effective in curing difficult cases of ulcers of the extremities due to arterial disease. Prostaglandins are a very interesting group of fatty acids which have already proven themselves to be amazing in many fields of medicine.

There are various forms of prostaglandins. One, prostacyclin, has been found to be particularly valuable in the rapid healing of ulcers of the legs and feet. Many people who are threatened by the possible catastrophe of gangrene have been spared amputations by the use of prostacyclin.

I am certain that your doctor is aware of this valuable addition to treatment and will undoubtedly consider it if conventional forms of treatment are not effective.

* * *

I've had a cold without interruption for five months. I was out of the country when this happened. Could I have picked up a virus and kept it in my system for this length of time? — Mrs. G.L.L., N.C.

Dear Mrs. L.:

It is difficult for me to believe that a virus infection could persist that long without progressing or disappearing. It is so easy to consider a virus the cause of any medical condition that is not quickly apparent. The likelihood is greater that you are suffering from some form of allergy which may, or may not, be complicated by a low-grade infection.

Blood studies can clearly differentiate infections from allergic responses. Nasal smears, when examined under a microscope, may reveal certain specialized cells, eosinophiles, which are characteristic of allergy.

Instead of assuming that your annoying condition is due to a virus, track down the basic cause, with the cooperation of your doctor.

Report $152,697 In Bond Sales

The U. S. Treasury Department today announced that the sale of Series E and H Savings Bonds in Pitt County for the third quarter of 1979 totaled $152,697.

R. W. Howard, county volunteer chairman, reported that the January-September sales totaled $485,768 — only 56.5 percent of the $860,430 goal for the year.

State-wide, $89.63 million in Series E and H bonds were sold during the nine-month period, some 71.9 percent of the $124.7 million goal.

Feuding KKK United Only In Beliefs

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The hooded men of the Ku Klux Klan espouse white supremacy to save the United States from communism, but beyond the apparent unity of their beliefs lie feuding and bitter bickering.

The FBI agents assigned by President Carter to investigate the Klan in the aftermath of five killings at a leftist "Death to the Klan" rally last Saturday will have to unravel a tangle of philosophies and factions, all trying to court the state's "good ol' boys."

Six or seven groups operate in North Carolina, claiming close to 10 percent of all Klan members — estimated nationally at about 9,000 by the B'nai B'rith Anti-Defamation League.

Six of the 14 suspects in the weekend attack have told police they are Klansmen. Another three avow they are Nazis.

Linking the Klansmen and extremists such as Nazis is a hatred of communism. Klansmen say communism, not racial integration, is now their main target. Blacks, they say, are pawns of communism; integration is just a salvo in the battle to destroy America.

The five victims of Saturday's shooting — all organizers of the rally — were four white men and a black woman. They were shot when several carloads of men drove up to the rally, jumped out and opened fire. Nine persons were wounded.

Twelve men are charged with murder, two with conspiracy, and a 15th man — Jack Fowler, described as a Nazi with a Klan background — is being sought on murder charges.

The violence was preceded by months of increased Klan visibility in North Carolina and other areas of the country. Factions announced increased membership, and rallies have been held throughout the state — although few have attracted more than 100 persons.

Six factions are active in North Carolina alone: the United Klans of America, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, Federated Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, White Knights of Liberty, Confederation of Independent Orders of Knights of the Ku Klux Klan and Invisible Empire-Knights of the Ku Klux Klan.

The Knights of the KKK, based in Winston-Salem, staged an exhibit of Klan paraphernalia at the public library in February. The exhibit was closed after a shouting match between anti-Klan people and Klansmen.

In March, the Winston-Salem chapter of the Federated Knights showed a pro-Klan movie at the civic center without incident. The same group held a rally on July 8 in China Grove and were confronted by members of the Workers Viewpoint Organization. That group, now called the Communist Workers Party, organized the fatal weekend rally.

A white supremacy rally in September drew Klansmen, Nazis and the National States Rights Party to the little town of Louisburg for the unveiling of another extremist group, the United Racist Front.

"You take a man who fought in the second World War, it's hard for him to sit down in a room with swastikas," said Gorrell Pierce, a Winston-Salem farmer and leader of the Federated Knights. "But people realize time is running out. We're going to have to get together. We're more effective when we're organized."

Other Klan leaders scorn the Nazis as dangerous and un-American.

"You can't be a Nazi and a Klansmen — it would go against your oath to uphold the government," said Joe Grady, 49, a building contractor who was once Pierce's superior in the Federated Knights.

Grady recently split to form the White Knights of Liberty because of Pierce's sympathy for Nazis.

"Those weren't Klansmen," Grady said after the Greensboro shooting. "They were damned Nazis."

Klan observers who asked not to be identified said the shooting suspects appear to be North Carolina members of the Louisiana-based Invisible Empire, one of the more militant factions.

But according to local press reports, many of the suspects are suspected members of the South Carolina-based Confederation of Independent Orders. The reports say the FBI is looking for Virgil Griffin of Gastonia, a Confederation leader. Sources told The Associated Press the Confederation is the most militant Klan group.

Except for three men from Winston-Salem, all suspects charged in the Saturday shooting are from areas of western North Carolina where both the Invisible Empire and the Confederation are active.

Differences in Klan chapters go deeper than their names.

—The Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, headed by David Duke, 28, of Metairie, La., purports to be the "new" Klan — seeking to obtain its goals through nonviolent political action rather than confrontation. Its members condemn such Klan standards as cross-burnings as "Hollywood."

—The Federated Knights proclaims its white supremacy approach more boldly and offers marksmanship training to its members. Its former head of security, Raeford "Nighthawk" Caudle, is one of those charged with murder. He now claims to be a Nazi.

—The United Klans of America, which counts most of its members in conservative eastern North Carolina, contends it is the one true Klan and plays little attention to other groups.

"I don't know much at all about the Duke group," said E.J. Melvin Jr. of Goldsboro, said to be the United Klans Grand Dragon, in an interview earlier this year. "And Joe Grady, why, I never have been able to figure out what he stands for. Joe changes his philosophy every two or three weeks."

The Nazis in North Carolina are led by Harold Covington, 25, of Raleigh, who often wears swastikas. Covington ran unsucessfully for a city council seat two years ago and for mayor of Raleigh this year.

Covington said some of his men were in Greensboro on Saturday. "What I regret are that 12 good men are in jail," he said after the shootings. "As for the Reds, I don't give a damn about them."

Youth Choir To Sponsor Concert

A concert sponsored by the Allen Chapel Youth Choir will be held at the Sadie Saulter Elementary School Sunday, Nov. 11 at 2 p.m. Special guests at the concert will be The Vine Sisters of Farmville and The Gospel Silverlettes of Greenville.

Tickets may be purchased at the door for $2. The public is invited to attend.

VISIT AILING SHAH — Tricia Nixon Cox, and her husband, Edward arrive at New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center Wednesday, carrying a small package. The daughter of the ex-president and her husband were visiting the deposed Shah of Iran. Mrs. Cox's mother, Pat Nixon, had also planned to visit but cancelled her visit as she was feeling unwell, a spokesman for the shah said. (AP Laserphoto)

Early TV Westerns Fail To Attract Audiences Of Today

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The emergence of Pernell Roberts in the new "Trapper John, M.D." series and announcement that "Young Maverick" will soon make its debut stirs memories of a time when westerns ruled the TV roost.

Roberts was the guy who quit "Bonanza" a few years after it began a 14-year run. "Maverick" was one of the most popular horse operas of its day.

But there are more than a score of oaters that have all but been forgotten. Few are seen in reruns, possibly because the simplistic plots and sexless stories are too unsophisticated for today's tastes.

Studio back lots are strewn with the bones of men who once sat tall in the saddle. A few western actors managed to go on to bigger and better things. Others were simply dry gulched.

"Gunsmoke!" — which ran for 20 years — made Jim Arness a multimillionaire who dabbles in TV occasionally. Milburn Stone (Doc Adams) is semi-retired. Dennis Weaver (Chester) stars in TV movies. Amanda (Kitty) Blake is retired and lives in Arizona. Ken Curtis (Festus) is active in TV films and episodic shows.

"Bonanza's" Lorne (Ben Cartwright) Greene hosts a TV nature show. Michael (Little Joe) Landon produces and stars in "Little House On The Prairie." David Canary has disappeared from the screen and the aforementioned Roberts (Adam Cartwright) is playing a doctor now in his own show.

Some of the early TV western stars went on to major movie-TV stardom — Clint Eastwood (Rawhide), Steve McQueen (Wanted: Dead or Alive), Burt Reynolds (Riverboat and Gunsmoke) are superstars.

Jim Garner (Maverick) is the star of "The Rockford Files" and Roger Moore is the new James Bond.

A few of the actors who rode the old west are now deceased, including Dan Blocker (Bonanza), Nick Adams (The Rebel), Eric Fleming (Rawhide), Ward Bond (Wagon Train), and Richard Long (The Big Valley).

Others have more or less faded from the Hollywood scene — Will Hutchins (Sugarfoot), Jack Kelly (Maverick) has considerable business and real estate holdings, Wayde Preston (Colt .45), James Drury (The Virginian), Jock Mahoney (Clancy Derringer), Robert Horton (Wagon Train) and John Smith (Cimarron City and Laramie).

Peter Breck (The Big Valley) isn't as visible on TV as he once was.

John Russell (The Lawman) still is an active actor. Chad Everett moved on from "The Dakotas" to his own series "Medical Center" which has since been canceled.

Chuck Connors (The Rifleman) tried another, less successful western, "Branded," and continues to prosper as an actor. Johnny Crawford, who played his son in "The Rifleman," hasn't been heard from in years.

Darren McGavin has remained active in TV, appearing in several series since "Riverboat" sank without a trace.

Earl Holliman (Cafe De Paree and Wide Country) moved on to "Police Woman" and TV films. Bob Fuller (Laramie and Wagon Train) graduated to the "Emergency" series and movies. Doug McClure (The Virginian) is active in TV films.

Jack Lord (Stoney Burke) stars in one of the longest running TV shows on the tube, "Hawaii Five-O." Lee Majors (The Big Valley) became "The $6 Million Man."

Dale Robertson (Wells Fargo) pops up now and then in commercials. Hugh O'Brian (Wyatt Earp) finds occasional roles as do Ty Hardin (Bronco), Gene Barry (Bat Masterson) and Clint Walker (Cheyenne).

Robert Conrad (The Wild, Wild West) stars in a new series almost every week while his costar in the old show, Ross Martin, is a busy character actor.

Pat Conway played a lawman in "Tombstone Territory" and now is involved in real estate and other investments in Southern California.

Trivia buffs could spend hours running down the stars of such other horse operas such as "Death Valley Days," "Shane," "Laredo" with Bill Smith and Neville Brand.

One example is the cast of the comedy western, "F Troop." Forrest Tucker and Ken Berry are still working in TV. But what of costar Larry Storch? Or Larry Ward (The Dakotas).

Fess Parker (Davey Crockett and Daniel Boone) and Richard Boone (Have Gun Will Travel) failed to find as much success in other projects.

Jack Elam (The Dakotas) bombed out this season in a dreadful situation comedy titled "Struck By Lightning."

Peter Brown (The Lawman and Laredo) has appeared in several series since the old shows were blasted out of the saddle.

A few movie stars tried their hands at TV westerns, including Glenn Ford (Cade's County), John Payne (Restless Gun) and Henry Fonda (The Deputy) before thinking better of it.

Nor can the history of TV oaters of the '50s go reported without cognizance of Guy Williams (Zorro) and Robert Culp (Trackdown). Williams has dropped from sight while Culp continues to appear on films and TV.

Theater producers, performers, unions and theater owners on Wednesday kicked off a drive to raise $100,000 worth of medical supplies by passing the hat after performances.

"We want to bring attention to the plight of these people," said producer Joseph Papp, who with actress Liv Ullmann and actor Michael Moriarity have helped formed the Theater Committee for Relief to Cambodian Refugees.

Profits from Wednesday night's performance of "A Chorus Line" at the Shubert Theater were donated.

John Paul Real Recording Star

A 52-minute record of highlights of his three-day visit to Ireland Sept. 29-Oct. 1 has sped to the top of the country's LP charts in the five weeks it has been on the market and is expected to earn him a double platinum disc for 100,000 records sold within the next week.

BAZAAR, BAKE SALE

The Hickory Grove Free Will Baptist Church Women's Auxilliary will sponsor a bazaar and bake sale Saturday, November 10. beginning at 9 a.m. Christmas decorations and arts and crafts will be for sale. The public is invited to attend.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, NOV. 9, 1979

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The daytime finds it possible to have more success in life by combining the old with the new. However, the evening finds poor judgment at work, so doublecheck your thoughts.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Take steps to have increased harmony at home. You need to put forth more effort now if you wish to gain your aims.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Good day to study new methods of operation that can be helpful to you in career matters. Think along more modern lines.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Handle monetary affairs wisely early in the day and then enjoy cultural pursuits. Show true loyalty to family members.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You can handle personal affairs very well early in the day, but you have to exercise more care in the evening.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Fine day to plan the future more intelligently and use wise methods in doing do. Don't overlook an important business matter.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Plan how you can help good friends who are struggling now and deserve your assistance, but don't neglect personal aims.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Delve right into public affairs that are important and gain added prestige. Showing more appreciation of loved one is wise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Study new projects that fascinate you and which could help you to advance in the future. Relax in the evening.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be sure to carry through with obligations early in the day so you'll have more time for social activities later.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Try to economize more so you won't be caught in a financial pinch in the future. Use right methods to solve a problem.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Tackle all that work ahead of you early in the day and feel better about it. Try to please fellow workers more.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have to be extremely careful in motion to avoid possible accident. Look for quiet pleasure later in the day.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will understand most problems that come up, so direct education along lines that have to do with catering to the public and much success will follow. Give religious training early in life, and permit to enjoy sports.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Opening lead: King of ♣.

With nine cards of a suit missing the queen, what is the best chance to take all the tricks in the suit: the drop of the finesse? The mathematical tables state that trying to drop the queen is slightly superior. However, the percentage in its favor is so minuscule that any factor, no matter how nebulous, that points in the other direction should be given serious consideration in determining the play.

North and South reached the normal contract of four spades in quick time. Note that this is not the time for North to open one spade on four spades, five hearts and a minimum hand. There is just too great a disparity in the quality of the suits.

Here, declarer has nine trumps in the combined hands. Therefore, the percentages favor the drop. However, declarer should take into account West's overcall. Since West has length in clubs, he is probably short in some suit, most likely spades. But even in the absence of an overcall by West, the proper play would be to take the trump finesse!

The danger of the hand is not the loss of a trump trick. The real menace is misguessing trumps and then having the lead come through the king of diamonds. If East can be kept off lead, that card cannot be attacked profitably and, against normal distribution, the contract is safe. Even if the spade finesse loses to West, the defenders can do no better than collect a trump trick, a club and a diamond.

Declarer should win the opening club lead, cross to the king of spades and lead a trump to the jack. When this holds, declarer draws the last trump and sets up hearts with a ruff. Now he concedes a trick to West's marked queen of clubs. Whether West takes the ace of diamonds or not, he cannot score more than one trick in that suit. Proper play has earned South an over trick.

Note that if declarer had played for the drop, he would have been defeated. East would ruff the third round of hearts and shift to diamonds, enabling the defenders to collect two tricks in that suit in addition to the two black queens.

National Recognition For Contribution To History

IN LIGHT OF HISTORY

By DR. H.G. JONES

Written for The AP

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — A newspaper editor, a television station, a historic house restoration project and a school of architecture will be nationally recognized Friday for distinguished contributions to state and local history.

The American Association for State and Local History will present awards at a luncheon meeting of the North Carolina Literary and Historical Association in Raleigh during the state's unique Culture Week.

Each year the AASLH recognizes especially meritorious services of individuals, organizations and institutions. Winners are selected through national competition. North Carolina's recipients were survivors among scores of nominations from across the country.

Jack Claiborne, associate editor of the Charlotte Observer, will receive a certificate of commendation for "distinguished editorial writing on the theme of historic preservation."

Long a history buff, Claiborne was fluential in stimulating interest in the preservation of the historic and architectural heritage of downtown Charlotte. Professor Chalmers Davidson, who nominated him, noted that the editor persuaded both capital and labor that they had a stake in preservation.

As a result of Claiborne's hard-hitting editorials, Davidson said, "preservation became fashionable," and Charlotte now has an active historic preservation program.

WRAL-TV in Raleigh will receive a certificate of comendation for Ray Wilkinson's 90-minute interpretive telethon titled "Digging at the Capitol."

The live program, conducted on a busy Sunday afternoon in June 1978, featured an archaeological excavation on the Capitol grounds, scenes in the renovated state capitol and interviews about the history and architecture of the national historic landmark.

In addition to its educational contribution, the telethon raised more than $2,000 in pledges and furnishings for the Capitol.

The restoration of the residence of William Lenoir, a Revolutionary War soldier, won an award of merit for Fort Defiance Inc., of Caldwell County.

Built in stages from 1788 to 1890, the house in Happy Valley was in a neglected condition when it was acquired by the Caldwell County Historical Society. The nonprofit Fort Defiance corporation then took it over, raised more than a quarter of a million dollars from local, state and federal sources, and supervised its restoration.

The Fort Defiance award specifically cites the work of Mildred McDowell Jones and Margaret E. Harper in carrying out the successful project.

An award of merit also will go to the School of Design at North Carolina State University for the preparation and publication of two important studies on the architecture of North Carolina.

A two-volume work, "100 Courthouses," resulted from a study of the needs, design criteria and architectural values of the courthouses of the state. The survey was instrumental in the nomination of 58 courthouses for inclusion in the National Register of Historic Places.

The other publication, "Carolina Dwelling," reviewed the vernacular buildings of North Carolina. Edited by Doug Swaim, a student in the school, the profusely illustrated book contains articles by architectural specialists. A 30-minute videotape was produced in conjunction with the book.

From its beginning, the American Association for State and Local History has had close ties with North Carolina. Christopher Crittenden was one of its founders and its first president, Professor William S. Powell was its first editor, and Dr. H.G. Jones is its present secretary. The organization has held two of its national meetings in the state.

CONTROL YOUR DEBTS

If your present bills, because of economic pressures, cannot be met by your income, legal relief may be available to you under the provisions of Chapter 13 of the Bankruptcy Reform Act of 1978, which permits individuals to petition the Court for an arrangement allowing a thirty-six month period to discharge indebtednesses, without property repossession or creditor harrassment. Attorney's fees, which may be paid in monthly installments, are determined by the Court. There is no fee for an initial conference to discuss your eligibility for a "Wage Earner Plan".

Appointed Head Of Nephrology Section

Dr. Richard H. Merrill has been appointed associate professor of medicine and head of the nephrology section at the East Carolina University School of Medicine.

Merrill's special areas of research include defective immunity and hypertension in patients with renal disease.

He received his undergraduate degree from Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Maine, and his MD from Boston University School of Medicine. He completed an internship at D.C. General Hospital, Washington, D.C., and a residency in internal medicine at Tripler Army Medical Center, Honolulu, Hawaii.

He did a fellowship in nephrology at Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington.

Dr. R.H. MERRILL

Prior to joining the medical school, he served as chief of the internal medicine branch at the U.S. Army Institute of Surgical Research and chief of nephrology at Brook Army Medical Center, Fort Sam Houston, Texas. He also held a clinical appointment as assistant professor of medicine at the University of Texas Health Science Center, San Antonio.

Officers Chosen By Radio Club

New officers of the Brightleaf Amateur Radio Club, Inc. were elected at the October meeting, for the 1979-80 year. Douglas Sanders was named president, Danny Sullivan re-elected as vice president, and Bernice B. Turnage is the new secretary-treasurer.

The club's next regular meeting will be held on November 13 at 7:45 p.m. in the basement conference room of the Planters National Bank building in downtown Greenville. Main topics of the meeting will be discussion of plans to hold the 1980 Eastern N.C. Hamfest in Greenville, and the Christmas party in December.

Write-Ins

A story in Wednesday's edition regarding the town election results in Grifton indicated that incumbent commissioner John Coward received 72 votes as an unsuccessful candidate for the town board. Actually, Coward did not seek re-election but received 72 write-in votes.

Exercising Eye Is Not A Remedy

One mid-life "crisis" that comes to virtually all of us as we approach 40 is the gradual loss of ability to focus our eyes on near objects — such as the fine print in a newspaper or phone book," says Abraham L. Kornzweig, M. D., a New York ophthalmologist who is chairman of the American Association of Ophthalmology's Committee on Aging.

Known to eye physicians as presbyopia, the condition is not dangerous and usually may be corrected with reading glasses. Presbyopia results from the gradual hardening of the eye's lens, he said. "When we are young, the lens is elastic and can change its shape allowing us to focus on objects both distant and close. With age, the consistency of the lens changes, making it more resistant to changes in shape and resulting in a decreasing ability to see objects close to the eye. When the nearest point of clear vision has moved too far from the eyes for comfortable work, the opthalmologist can prescribe corrective glasses for close work."

He pointed out that there is no perfect near-vision lens. Every lens has an optimum focusing distance, depending on its power. The correct lens depends on the range of the individual's close work. Bifocals can be prescribed for persons who need distance as well as reading glasses, he said.

The Beatles were made members of the Order of the British Empire in 1965.

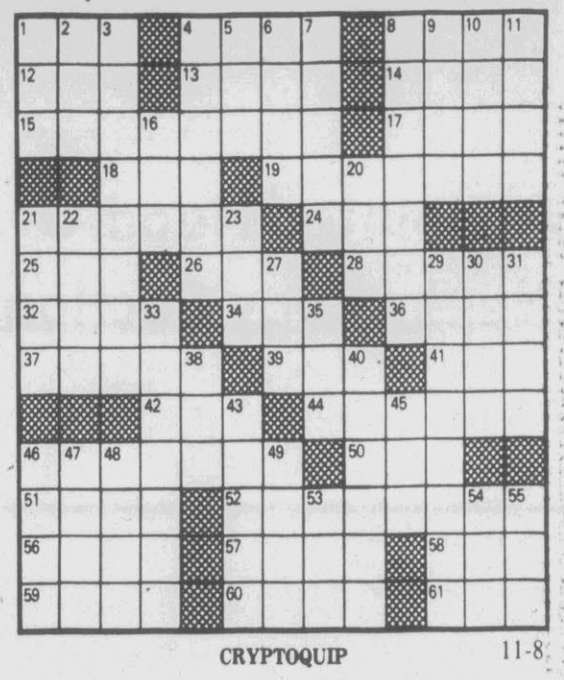
Answer to yesterday's puzzle.



CRYPTOQUIP 11-8

Q B A O J Y O A P Q L P Y L P L U K L W Q Q B L C C U K L W W L K J L P Q

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — APPROACH OF RICH FEAST ENGAGES FINE HOSTESS.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: J equals I

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

BACTERIA LIMIT
The Quail Ridge Community Association reports that analyses of samples taken during October showed a coliform bacteria concentration above the maximum contaminant level listed in the United States Environmental Protection Agency's National Interim Primary Drinking Water Regulations.
Although there is no routine laboratory procedure for determining the presence of specific disease-producing bacteria in drinking water, coliform bacteria which is normally found in the intestinal tract of man or other warm blooded animals can be readily detected. Therefore, the presence of this non-disease producing bacteria is used to indicate that some contamination has occurred.
The Quail Ridge Community Association has taken the following action to correct this problem:
The Quail Ridge Community Association is working with Jim Wisely of the Department of Human Resources, Sanitary Engineering Section to correct the problem. A new water sample has already been taken by the local Department of Human Resources and sent off.

INTRODUCING THE LOWEST PRICED FRONT WHEEL DRIVE.

Corolla Tercel 2-Door Sedan. Lowest in price . . . and Toyota's highest in EPA mileage ratings. And there's plenty of room in this small car — as much front leg room as any other front wheel drive car of any size! Come see for yourself. You'll like the price and the long list of standard features that won't cost you extra.

Corolla Tercel 2-Door Sedan

33 EPA Estimated MPG 43 EPA Estimated Highway MPG

Remember: Compare this estimate to the EPA Estimated MPG of other vehicles. You may get different mileage depending how fast you drive, weather conditions and trip length. Actual highway mileage will probably be less than the EPA Highway Estimate.

Corolla Tercel Standard features that don't cost you extra:
- Front wheel drive 1.5 liter 4-cylinder SOHC engine
- 4-speed synchromesh transmission
- Power-assisted front disc/rear drum brakes
- Steel-belted radial ply tires
- Side window defoggers
- Reclining hi-back front bucket seats
- Fully transistorized ignition system
- MacPherson strut front suspension
- Welded unitized body construction
- Power-boosted Flo-thru ventilation
- And more . . . and more . . .

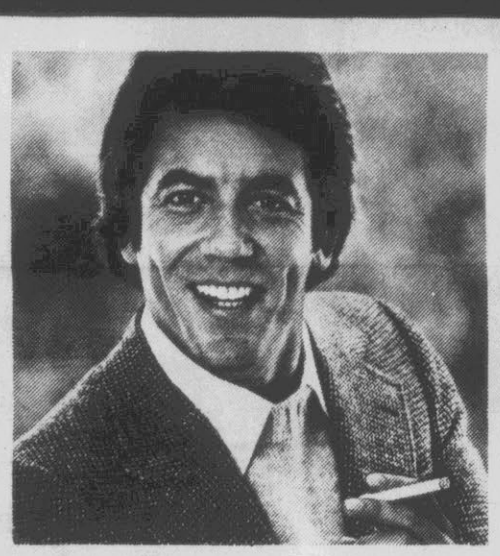
NEW VANTAGE ULTRA LIGHTS

INTRODUCING ULTRA TASTE—AT ULTRA LOW TAR.



Ultra taste. Never-before, silk smooth, truly satisfying taste—in an ultra low tar cigarette!

(And we do mean ultra low. At only 6 mg of tar, it's lower than 90% of all the cigarettes that people buy.)

How is it possible?

Through a unique blend of very select, flavorful tobaccos.

That's the Ultra Cigarette—new Vantage Ultra Lights from Vantage.

ONLY 6 mg tar

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

6 mg "tar", 0.6 mg nicotine av. per cigarette by FTC method.

PURPLE & GOLD CITY-WIDE HARVEST SALE

Time for quiet elegance in Ultra-Thin Dress Quartz from Seiko.

Seiko combines all the distinguishing qualities a man wants in a dress watch. Like strong simple designs. And superb quartz accuracy and performance. With an instant day/date setting calendar that displays the day of the week in either English or Spanish. And a convenient step-motion second hand. All handsomely protected with a HARDLEX mar-resist crystal. Square design in yellow with a gilt dial. Round design in yellow with a white dial. Seiko.

6½ FT. TALL

Revolutionary "Fast & Easy" Scotch Pine Christmas Tree

$12.98

Realistic "Fast & Easy" Christmas tree is a major breakthrough in stick-in tree design! Center pole is made of steel—won't warp or crack like wooden poles! Color coded branches slip easily into sockers, preventing them from turning or cocking and avoiding the troubles of drilled holes such as splitting, splintering and differing hole sizes. Includes natural-look bark wrap and sturdy stand.

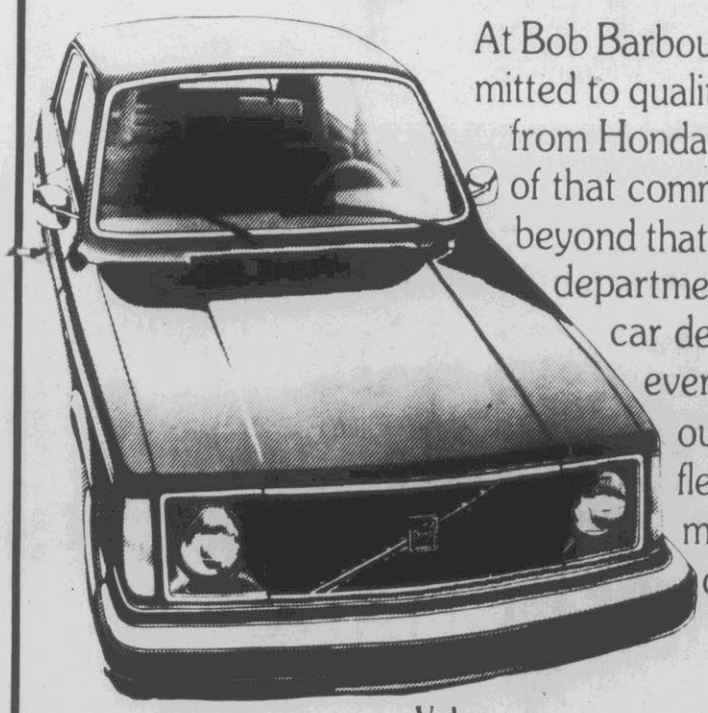
QUALITY.



Volvo

At Bob Barbour Honda/Volvo, we're committed to quality. Of course, the great cars from Honda and Volvo are part of that commitment. But it goes beyond that. From our service department to our used car department... everything about our operation reflects our commitment to be a quality dealer in every way.
