Militants Reject Offers Short Of Shah's Return

By The Associated Press
Iranian leaders today offered new proposals for ending the 10-day-old Tehran embassy impasse, stopping short of insisting on the shah's immediate extradition. But the Moslem militants holding 98 hostages at the U.S. Embassy rejected any compromise, Tehran Radio reported.

The officials said the hostages might be freed if the United States acknowledges that Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi is a criminal, allows an international investigation of the deposed monarch and hands over his U.S. property, it was reported from the Iranian capital.

The State Department said this appeared to represent a softening of the Iranian position.

But a Tehran Radio broadcast said later that spokesmen for the student militants rejected "any conciliatory proposal" regarding the shah.

The students said their movement was based on ideological principles and they cannot compromise, according to the broadcast, monitored in London.

Iranian Foreign Minister Abolhassan Bani Sadr today reiterated the key demand of the students — that the United States surrender the shah to Iran for trial, the Kuwait news agency reported from Tehran. He is currently hospitalized in New York for cancer treatment.

But Bani Sadr added, "The United States should at least acknowledge the shah is guilty," the report said.

Another member of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's Revolutionary Council, Sadeq Gotbzadeh, set out more detailed conditions, said Iran was not retreating from its demand for the shah's extradition, but added that the Iranians were ready "to end the occupation of the U.S. Embassy before the extradition of the shah for humanitarian reasons and the interests of the hostages," the Kuwait news agency reported from Tehran.

"We will get the shah sooner or later," he was quoted as saying. He said the hostages "may be freed if the United States acknowledges that the shah is guilty" and agrees to an international inquiry "to investigate his crimes," the Kuwait agency reported.

The Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported that Gotbzadeh said the United States must also agree to return all of the shah's U.S. property to the Iranian government.

Gotbzadeh, who is director Iranian radio and television, said he was speaking only in his own name and not for the Council. Bani Sadr has emerged as the leading spokesman for the Khomeini regime, however, and his statements were believed to represent the official position.

State Department spokesman Jack Tuohy said the report must first be confirmed as authoritative, and that if it is "the United States would show great interest in any change in the position....If true, this would appear to be a softening of their position....Any movement is welcome as long as it's upward."

The revolutionary regime responded Monday to President Carter's ban on U.S. imports of Iranian oil with the announcement that the Revolutionary Council already had decided to cut off exports to the United States. Radio Tehran reported early today that workers at the Kharg Island terminal in the Persian Gulf stopped loading a tanker, the 125,582-ton Northern Lion, that was taking on oil for the United States.

It appeared unlikely, however, that the new action reported in the offing was in retaliation for Carter's ban. Radio Tehran reported Monday before the president's announcement that the Revolutionary Council was going to discuss "a proposal concerning the American Embassy."

The Security Council appealed to Iran last Friday for the immediate release of the 98 hostages held prisoner.

David Gordon Chosen Redevelopment Chairman

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
For the first time in 12 years, the Redevelopment Commission has a new chairman following Monday night's annual election session held prior to the regular November meeting.

Commissioners elected David Gordon as chairman, succeeding Billy Laughinghouse, who has left the board after completing his maximum tenure. Laughinghouse served two five-year terms as a commissioner, plus three years of an unexpired term following his appointment in April of 1967.

Gordon, who has served as vice chairman for the past two years, is currently in his second five-year term as a board member. The new chairman was first appointed by the city in October of 1971 and then reappointed for his current tenure in October of 1976.

Succeeding Gordon as vice chairman for the coming year will be commissioner Roscoe Norfleet, while Joe Laney, executive director, was reappointed to serve as secretary-treasurer.

Commissioners welcomed Gene Taylor, city executive for North Carolina National Bank, to his first meeting last night following his appointment by the City Council to fill the seat vacated by Laughinghouse.

In business on the regular agenda, commissioners accepted two bids for disposal parcels, subject to approval by the City Council, and qualified the two bidders as developers.

Laney said that Dr. Isaac Artis, a doctor of internal medicine, submitted the minimum bid of $8,000 for disposal parcel K-7C, located on the north side of 16th Street adjacent to the dental offices of Dr. Hazel Brown.

Laney reported that Artis indicated plans to develop the western section of the property into a medical office. The tract contains some 20,000 square feet. Artis submitted the only bid on the parcel, it was noted.

Hallow Distributing Co. submitted the minimum bid of $17,500 on Disposal Parcel 50B-1, located west of the present Hallow facility in the South Evans Community Development area. Some 35,000 square feet is involved in the tract, which is the first disposal parcel in the CD program.

Laney said that Hallow plans to add from 4,000 to 6,000 square feet to the present facility, including office and storage area. The remainder of the tract would be developed for now with parking, loading facilities and landscaping.

Both Artis and Hallow were accepted as developers for the two respective tracts, subject to city concurrence.

Commissioners voted to recommend to the Council minor changes in the Central Business District program that will affect the status of six parcels now designated for acquisition.

Three of the parcels, Laney pointed out, will be recommended for removal from the acquisition list, while the other three will be changed to not-to-be-acquired status if successful negotiations can not be worked out with the owners by June 30 of 1980.

Demonstrated Monday

An estimated 250 East Carolina University students demonstrated late yesterday afternoon here for the freeing of United States citizens who are hostages in the American Embassy in Tehran, Iran.

"It seems to have been a spontaneous effort," ECU Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs Elmer Meyer said this morning. "As far as we know, there was no particular organization or group involved. It just developed in the dormitories, began on campus and moved on to the Court House downtown."

"It went just fine," Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon said of the rally at the Pitt County Court House. "We saw no violence, no misbehavior of any kind. It seemed just as feeling, yet peaceable as could be."

Selecting Jury For Best Trial

The selection of a jury began this morning in Pitt County Superior Court in the trial of Dr. Andrew Best, a Greenville physician charged with conspiracy and embezzlement in connection with the alleged theft of some $13,400 from the Eastern Tar River Credit Union from April 1973 to December 1975.

Judge Henry L. Stevens is presiding over the trial, while chief assistant District Attorney Tom Haigwood and assistant Attorney General Don Stevens are representing the State in prosecution of the case.

Donald Pollock of Kinston is representing Dr. Best.

Mrs. Ruth Staton, a former secretary and treasurer of the credit union, who pled guilty to several charges brought against her in connection with a series of embezzlements from the credit union, is expected to testify for the State.

At the time the alleged incidents occurred, Best was a member of the board of directors of the credit union.

Ayden Bd. Honors Mumford For Long Service

By REBECCA BUFFALO

AYDEN — The Ayden Town Board of Commissioners approved a resolution Monday honoring Harry Mumford, who ended a 30-year term of service with the board at the November meeting.

Mayor Ross Persinger, in making the presentation of a copy of the resolution to Mumford, commended him for his distinguished service to the board. Town Attorney Robert Booth, who has worked with Mumford many years in town affairs, noted Mumford's "conscientious effort to serve both the poor and the rich."

Mumford, who lost in the Nov. 6 elections to Aaron Hines Jr., stated his pleasure of working with the board members and offered his assistance to the town when needed.

Following a public hearing, the board voted to grant a conditional use permit to John McGlohan for the placement of a trailer in RA-20 zoned property.

The board accepted a bid from Venters Ford of $6,042.75 for a one-ton dump truck for the Street Department. Town Manager Don Russell explained that

SYNCHRONIZATION?

I wonder why the traffic lights around Greenville aren't in sequence with the flow of traffic. J. L.

According to Ron Sewell, city engineer, it is impossible to set up an extensive progression. The two-way traffic, bypass situations, and the number of streets make synchronizing the entire Greenville area impossible. Sewell said the state has, in the past, considered putting the traffic lights on Greenville Boulevard at Charles Boulevard, Arlington Boulevard and the Greenville Square Shopping Center entrance between them in sequence, but the cost of this project alone would have been approximately $40,000. The cost was one factor affecting why it wasn't done, he said. He said the sequencing of lights more than 1,000 feet apart is impractical.

The lights on Fifth Street were sequenced as part of an urban renewal project with some federal funds, he said. "The sequencing on this street is better than it has been, but still isn't perfect," he said.

He said he'd be glad to answer specific questions from anyone. He may be reached through the main city switchboard, 752-4137.

FOCUS

Secretary of Education

This is American Education Week, and one person who could soon play an important role in deciding the federal government's education policies is Shirley Hufsteler, President Carter's choice to head the Department of Education. The Department of Education is the nation's newest Cabinet department, and is scheduled to begin operations next year. It will take over many programs now in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and other Cabinet departments. Mrs. Hufsteler has served as a federal judge in California since 1969. If the Senate approves her nomination, she will head an agency with a $14 billion budget and about 18,000 workers.

EMS Program A Trailblazer

By DOUG HINSON
ECU Medical Writer
A unique program sponsored by the East Carolina University School of Medicine could be the first step in establishing uniform procedures for emergency medical service in Eastern North Carolina.

The Advanced Life Support Program is a first in the state, and program coordinator Sandy Landis says the program is necessary to upgrade emergency medical treatment in the 29 eastern counties. "Right now, there is little uniformity in emergency treatment," said Landis. "One rescue squad may do something one way, while another uses a different method. Procedural uniformity is very helpful in advanced life support."

The medical school coordinates the curriculum and provides instructors, mainly medical school and community physicians throughout the area who have expertise in particular aspects of emergency medical care. Dr. Charles Rob, professor of surgery, serves as medical director for the program.

A rescue squad has to meet several requirements to be eligible for the program, Landis said. It must have a sponsoring hospital to assume liability, and local and county governments must give approval.

In addition, the squad must provide 24-hour coverage to assure the citizens the benefits of continuous service. Once certification is attained, squad members participate in monthly education programs to supplement their skills.

The program will be held in the sponsoring hospitals and tailored to the educational needs of the participating squad members.

The Greenville Fire and Rescue Department, under the sponsorship of Pitt County Memorial Hospital, is the first squad to enroll in the program. "We hope squads in all 29 counties will eventually join," Landis said. "We've had excellent cooperation so far."

In addition to assuring quality medical care, the program will facilitate communication when physicians give orders to rescue personnel. Treatment will be easier and safer because they will be talking the same language, Landis said, and doctors will be more comfortable with the care patients receive before they reach the hospital.

There are three levels in the Advanced Life Support Program. The first level, emergency medical technician (EMT), is awarded after completion of a 100-hour course that is offered in many community colleges across the state. The EMT-intravenous level consists of 50 hours of classroom instruction and 30 hours of clinical work, which emphasizes intravenous injections, withdrawing blood, clearing air passages and anti-shock mechanisms.

The final step in the program is the paramedic level, an intensive 300-hour course focusing on advanced techniques such as cardiac therapy, drug therapy and defibrillation (stopping uncoordinated contractions of the heart by electric shock).

Club Plans Yule Party

The Greenville Toastmasters Club made plans for its annual Christmas party at the regular meeting. The party will be held at Joe Sherwood's residence Dec. 14.

Members were reminded that the 1980 officers would be elected at the Wednesday, Nov. 14 meeting.

The Toastmasters Club is devoted to the development of communication skills, especially public speaking, and the development of leadership skills.

About 50 Still 'In The Running'

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Approximately 50 people remain in the running for chancellor of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. One of those is former U.S. Secretary of Commerce Juanita Kreps, but a spokesman said she is not interested in the job.

Ralph M. Strayhorn of Winston-Salem, chairman of the search committee, said the group has cut the list of nominees in half. He hopes a new chancellor will be chosen in January and he said interviews will start soon.

N. Ferebee Taylor said last August he would step down as chancellor Jan. 31. Taylor, who suffered a heart attack earlier, will resume teaching law.

TVA Asks Federal Marshals To Evict 2 From Condemned Farms

By MATT YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
LOUDON, Tenn. (AP)—The Tennessee Valley Authority today asked federal marshals to evict two former landowners who have refused to leave their farms which were condemned to the Tellico Dam.

TVA filed writs of assistance asking the marshals to enforce court orders in 1971 and 1974 which turned over farms formerly owned by Nellie McCall and Beryl Moser.

But when marshals arrived at the home of Mrs. McCall, the 75-year-old widow already was packing to leave her 91-acre farm on her own. Moser, a postman, vowed marshals would have to serve him with an eviction order before he would leave his five-acre farm. A clerk at the federal courthouse in Knoxville said deputy marshals picked up the orders immediately after they were filed at 8:30 a.m. TVA had given the holdouts a deadline of Friday last week to leave voluntarily.

One family, the W.B. Ritcheys, threw in the towel Monday and began preparing to leave their 119-acre farm but Moser and Mrs. McCall had vowed that marshals would have to physically remove them.

"We figured it was the end of the trail," Jean Ritchey said as her husband and daughters were packing their belongings. "We didn't give up, we just saw that it was time to go."

The Ritcheys, Moser's and Mrs. McCall's land was among 38,000 acres TVA condemned to the dam's 16,000-acre lake and the planned industrial and recreation development on its shores.

"I haven't got too long here so I guess it just doesn't make any difference," Mrs. McCall said. "I guess I'll go to Loudon and ask for welfare. It's awful that this has happened, but it has." Her daughter arrived from Maryland Monday to help her move.

Boone Dougherty, the Ritcheys' and Mrs. McCall's attorney, met with TVA lawyers Monday in an effort to avoid a showdown. Dougherty, who also led the snail darter fight against the dam, told his clients over the weekend that their legal recourses had been exhausted.

The Ritcheys have rented a house off the government's land that is a half mile down the road from where they are leaving. They turned down TVA's offer to pay for moving or storing their furnishings.

"We're doing the work and we're doing it all with our own truck," Mrs. Ritchey said defiantly, her voice cracking. "We don't need the likes of them to help us move."

The Ritcheys mailed back the $115,218 government check they received in 1976 for their land. It and checks of $14,718 to Moser and $86,068 to Mrs. McCall are deposited with the U.S. District Court in Knoxville.

More than 90 percent of the work on Tellico project was completed three years ago, when the dam was halted by the snail darter, a rare tiny fish whose Little Tennessee River home the lake will destroy.

Congress last summer ordered dam completed despite the snail darter and "not withstanding any other law." TVA finished it a month ago but is waiting for farmers to complete their harvests before closing its gates.

Cherokee Indians' petition to the Supreme Court for an injunction to stop the dam remained untouched on Justice William Brennan's desk Monday. The Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals and Supreme Court Justice Potter Stewart denied the injunction last Friday.

The Cherokee claim a lake over their ancestors' graves violates their religious freedom.

Diet facts & fallacies

These nutritional tips brought to you by
DIET CENTER

How much protein should a person eat to be healthy? One of the most amazing facts that a person who has lost a great deal of weight learns is that people do not need to eat very much food to maintain a healthy body weight. The secret of maintaining optimal health is in correct choices of food. An average woman needs 46 grams of lean protein per day and a man needs 56 grams. How much is this? About 7 ounces of meat for the average woman for the entire day and 10 ounces for the average man. When more protein is taken into the body than is required, the protein will be converted to excess fat in storage. Protein is essential for rebuilding cells. This is the food that builds the body to keep the body healthy. It also provides a prolonged energy and keeps the body in good repair.

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

This classic cowl-neck pullover, designed to be knitted with soft and fluffy Brunswick Eleganza yarn, is truly a beginner's delight. Only the simplest of stitches are used and the directions are written entirely without abbreviations and with the beginner in mind.

You are given a choice of two ways to do the knitting. You can either work each piece separately on straight needles or you can work it all in one piece, from the neck down, on circular needles. Either way, the gauge is five stitches per inch and directions are for sizes 10 through 20.

To obtain directions for making the classic pullover, send your request for Leaflet No. 7834 with $1.00 and a long, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler, "The Daily Reflector," Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582. Or you may order Kit No. K-7834, containing the instruction leaflet and Eleganza yarn, from Pat Trexler at the same address. Send check or money order as follows: $19.00 for sizes 8 or 10; $21.50 for sizes 12 or 14; $24.00 for sizes 16 or 18; $26.50 for size 20. Please specify your choice of coral, ivory, French blue, mink brown, willow green, mauve mist, burnt orange or sand beige.

Many, many people love to knit and crochet but strongly dislike the joining or sewing together of the separate pieces. For these people, the best choices are those styles which can be started at the neck and worked down in one piece without seams.

You can often find knitting directions written in this manner, but it is often quite difficult to find crocheting directions. As promised last week, here are some guidelines for those of you who would like to design your own seamless, crocheted garments.

First, you will need to find the best gauge for the yarn you are planning to use with the type of stitch you will use. The formula I'll be describing works best with a half-double crochet. Let's assume that you will have a gauge of four stitches per inch and four rows per inch.

Measure loosely around your neck at its largest point. Now multiply that measurement by your stitch gauge, and the result will be the number of stitches needed to fit all around the neck. Fourteen inches times four stitches per inch gives you 56 stitches, for example. Be sure to use your own measurement and gauge instead.

Unless you want a very high, round neck, you would not start with this many stitches, however. Normally, the front neck of a garment is lower than the back neck edge, so the front stitches need to be added gradually.

To figure how many stitches you need, allow approximately one-third of the total for the back section, one-sixth of the total for each sleeve, figure on four raglan seam stitches and two stitches for each front section.

A BEGINNER'S DELIGHT... a classic cowl-neck pullover made with simple stitches.

When the number is not evenly divisible by 3 or 6, use the next lowest number in counting the back and sleeve stitches.

In this case, for example, one-third of 56 equals 18 stitches and one-sixth of 56 equals nine and one-third stitches, so you will use 18 stitches for the back, nine for each sleeve, four for seam stitches and two for each front. In the sample gauge, that would mean that you would start with 44 stitches. In working half-double crochet, you always need to chain two more than the desired number of stitches, so start with a chain of 46 stitches.

Make a half-double crochet in the third chain from the hook and in the next chain. In the following chain, make a half-double crochet and mark this stitch with a strand of contrast yarn. This marked stitch will be the seam stitch between one front section and one sleeve section.

Continue across in this manner, making a half-double in each of the next nine stitches for sleeve, making another stitch and marking it for seam; making 18 stitches for back, marking the next for seam; making nine more for other sleeve, followed by one more marked seam stitch; and ending with the two stitches for the other front section. At the end of the row, chain two and turn.

Work the next few rows as follows: Make two half-doubles in the first and last stitches of each row, three half-doubles in each marked seam stitch and one half-double in all other stitches across. Each time that you make the seam increase, move the marker up to the center stitch of these three stitches. Chain two and turn.

Continue to work in this manner until the total of the stitches in the two front sections is four less than the total of the stitches in the back section. When this point is reached, you can decide if you want a cardigan front or if you want a pullover.

I will have to continue these instructions next week, but if you will be making a cardigan, you can proceed by continuing in the same manner, EXCEPT you will not make any more increases in the first and last stitches of each row. Work only as far as the point where you think the underarm shaping would begin and we'll pick up the instructions at that point next week.

Because of the large volume of mail she receives, Pat is unable to answer your letters personally. However, she welcomes all questions and hints and will use those of general interest in the column whenever possible.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

If there is comfort in someone else's misery, "The Book of Heroic Failures" should make the author, Stephen Pile, a legend in his own time.

He lists such failures as The Least Successful Alcoholics Anonymous meeting ever held. Staged in Belfast, Northern Ireland in 1974, it ended in a cloakroom brawl after $847 had been spent at the bar.

The Least Successful Television Program was shown in France on Aug. 14, 1978. It was an interview with an Armenian woman on her 40th birthday in which she discussed the way she met her husband. An opinion poll showed not a single viewer watched it.

The Worst Homing Pigeon ever released was set airborne in June, 1953, in England. It was returned by mail, dead, in a cardboard box 11 years later from Brazil.

I started my own personal book of Unparalleled Failures 30 years ago. I defy Mr. Pile to top them.

The Most Underrated Case of Flu and Water Retention was treated without success in July 1952. In April 1953, I delivered an eight-pound, four-ounce son.

The record for the Biggest Failure Ever Recorded by the Department of Motor Vehicle Driver's Testing Program occurred in 1959. My daughter, on her 15th temporary permit, made a U-turn in front of a police officer, parallel-parked with two wheels on the curb (the front ones), ran over the examiner's foot and asked, "Does this mean I don't get my license?"

The Most Miserable Meal Ever Served at a Family Gathering was a Thanksgiving dinner which I hosted last year. Without benefit of glasses, I thought 1.50 was the weight and not the price of the turkey per pound and cooked a 17-pound turkey in a 325-degree oven for 25 minutes, then served it to a mother-in-law who observed, "You're not pretty enough to cook this rotten."

The Worst Idea for Traveling With a Dog Who Is Trained to a White Shag Carpet goes to my husband, who devised a plastic arrangement of a bush, a couple of daisies and a few fake leaves. The dog ate the arrangement and wet on my husband's foot.

Back to Mr. Pile, he listed the Least Accurately Labeled Museum Exhibit ever. It was a Roman sestertius coin, minted between A.D. 135 and A.D. 138. It was impressive until a nine-year-old kid pointed out it was really a plastic token given away by a soft drink firm. I feel better already.

Tobacco Farmer Show Opening

Tomorrow will be the high point of the Second Annual Southern Flue Cured Tobacco Festival with the opening of the Tobacco Farmer Show at Farmers Warehouse.

The event will begin at 9 a.m. with opening ceremonies for the fourth annual show. There will be some 175 displays of farm equipment used primarily in the production of tobacco.

Farmers will come from long distances to view the equipment which will make the planting, harvesting and curing of tobacco a more efficient operation.

Mechanization and farm ingenuity has been the salvation of the tobacco producer. If the operations were still done totally by hand as they were for over 200 years, tobacco farmers would now be out of business.

Instead, the farmer and developers of equipment have worked together to develop more efficient equipment and farming methods. Not only has the cost of producing tobacco been held down, but also modern farmers are marketing a better quality leaf.

The Tobacco Farmer Show will be serious viewing for those engaged in tobacco farming. It will also be interesting to those who are not in farming but who recognize what a tremendous stake our area has in tobacco.

Explosive Situation Closely Controlled

Greensboro was the object of what must have been unwelcome national attention during the weekend when a funeral march for communists killed in a gun fight with Ku Klux Klansmen and Nazis was held during the weekend.

It could have been an explosive situation, but for the hundreds of law enforcement officers and National Guardsmen who guarded the route.

Credit is also due to the people of the area who handled the situation with reserve and maturity.

THIS AFTERNOON

Night-Time Schools Next

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — High schools across North Carolina would become bustling activity centers in late afternoons and at nights rather than only during regular business hours if a plan endorsed by the State Board of Education catches on.

The goal is to make high schools serve the needs of students instead of trying to force students into an 8-to-3 mold.

The immediate result would be to spread the Extended Day concept, currently in use at half of the state's 144 local school units, to all high schools in the state.

Extended Day was launched seven years ago, and designed especially to help dropouts or those about to drop out, by allowing them to hold daytime jobs and take courses at night.

The recommended expansion will take the Extended Day approach much further, serving all students with a wider offering of programs.

Flexible
"The modern high school can no longer operate on the time-worn philosophy that the school structure is fixed and that students must be made to fit into that structure," Dr. Jerry Beaver, head of the secondary schools office at the State Dept. of Public Instruction, pointed out in his report to the State Board of Education.

"On the contrary, high schools must assess the real needs of students and then establish the structure around those needs," the report noted.

The result: a flexible structure with expanded offerings and numerous options. Not only potential dropouts or those re-entering school would be served, but a student with a class conflict could get a typing course in the evening; expensive laboratory equipment could be used more fully; gifted and talented students could get together in cultural arts programs; gymnasiums and other expensive physical education equipment could be more fully used; libraries with all their resources would be open for research and study.

There was considerable concern evident about the action taken by the State Board of Education. One of the ingredients in the plan is to do away with special, separate funding and administration of the Extended Day program. Some observers worried that this would cut down rather than enlarge the effort.

In his report, Beaver pointed out that present policy has "supported the concept that these programs cannot be started without special funds. This is not the case. Present allocations, from all sources, if used wisely, can support limited programs. After the first year, earned ... attendance ... credits automatically place the programs on firm monies."

More Money

This will end discrimination in favor of Extended Day programs already operated which get preference in special funding. Further, the board agreed to seek budget funds to allow the broader and more rapid expansion program.

Under the plan, high school Extended Day programs would then fall under normal state requirements for certification of teachers, supplies and equipment, funds, etc., instead of being treated differently.

As the recommendation to the board puts it: "... they must not be defined as separate and apart from the regular school program. They should rather be viewed as another means of meeting the individual and collective needs of students through an existing comprehensive high school program."

Moscow's Gains In Iran

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Although the Soviet Union cannot be credited with a major role in the revolutionary student takeover of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, Moscow will reap large rewards from the breakdown of U.S.-Iranian relations.

The Russians have kept up a battering-ram attack on the U.S. in its "National Voice of Iran" clandestine radio broadcasts from Baku into Iran. These broadcasts, crafted right in Moscow with the Politburo's obvious blessing, charge the U.S. with plotting to take over Iran and with using the U.S. Embassy as a center of imperialist and anti-Iranian conspiracy.

The benefit the Kremlin hopes to reap from a total U.S.-Iranian break is special oil concessions from Iran.

long a major U.S. supplier. The U.S.-Iranian confrontation also helps clear the decks for Soviet plots along Iran's borders. An Afghan attack against Iran in the southern border region between Iran and Afghanistan, where the Soviets seized political control a year ago, could give Moscow its long sought warm water port on the Arabian Sea.

Connally Watches 'Teddy'
John B. Connally's longtime fascination with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy showed itself again when he interrupted campaigning in Florida to watch "Teddy," the CBS documentary Nov. 4. Connally informed aides that he did not care where he was or what he was supposed to be doing but that he wanted a television set in front of him at 10 p.m. that night. Connally watched in silence but shook his head, in apparent disgust, during Kennedy's stumbling replies to questions.

Shortly thereafter, Connally again predicted Kennedy would be the Democratic nominee and that the Republicans would need an "alley fighter" — John B. Connally — to beat him. He began talking about a Kennedy-Connally duel well over a year ago, long before either seemed a serious possibility.

So Long, CIA
The Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) has suddenly disappeared from George Bush's Republican presidential campaign literature.

Earlier leaflets stressed the year spent by Bush as CIA director as part of his extensive government experience. What's more, ranks of Bush campaign volunteers are studied with CIA alumni. But polls show the CIA with a negative public ranking, partly because of alleged abuses of civil liberties.

So, the new leaflet says this of Bush's CIA days: "Head of our national intelligence system. Initiated reform to protect individual rights of Americans while ensuring our national security." The CIA in Bush's literature has gone the same place as the anonymous congressman in John B. Connally's literature (Lyndon B. Johnson) who brought him to Washington.

Scoop's Jewish Veto
Sen. Henry M. Jackson, prime mover of the Jackson-Vanik amendment denying trade concessions to the Soviet Union without guarantees of Jewish emigration, has refused an all-out plea by a leading American Jewish group to drop the ban.

The appeal came from an umbrella Jewish organization called the Committee on Soviet Jewry, which worries that the record emigration rate of 50,000 this year may soon slow to a trickle if the Russians are not given full equality in trade with the U.S. More militant Jewish organizations, including the American Jewish Committee, still support Jackson.

The Committee on Soviet Jewry claims that the Soviets have now given good-faith proof of liberalized Jewish emigration. They worry that U.S. refusal to grant the trade concessions would soon drop the Iron Curtain on future emigration of Soviet Jews.

DAMOCLES ONLY WORRIED ABOUT A SWORD!

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Kind Words For French

PARIS — An American traveler in France can find plenty to complain about in terms of high prices, but except for a few other hazards and shortcomings he will find far more to praise. Such, in any event, is the judgment of my fellow countryman from Rappahannock County, Va., J. Taliaferro Spelvin.

J. T., as he is universally known in Sperryville, Woodville, Flint Hill and Jenkins Hollow, has been wandering about France for the past several weeks. We met for a stroll in the Tuileries. In his best Virginia accent, which is fine for speaking Virginian but abominable for speaking French, he was saying "bonjour" to passersby. To my amazement, they were smiling and saying "bonjour" back at him.

"The old horror stories about the rudeness of the French," J. T. remarked, "are no longer to be believed. Even the people who work for Air France, who used to be hired on a snootiness rating from one to 10, have been unbelievably civil. Innkeepers, waiters, taxi drivers, gendarmes, salesclerks — they are as friendly as folks in Dallas or Memphis. Watch this."

My friend stopped a lovely young lady. "Pardonnay moy," he said, "oo eh la moosay daze ampresioneestes?"

"La," said the girl, pointing to the nearby L'Ecole des Impressionistes, and she gave old J. T. a smile of at least 500 watts.

"It has been that way everywhere," J. T. continued. "Look at the people on the sidewalks, and look at the faces of the drivers. Maybe I'm wrong, but I see only half the frowns and scowls that I'd see in Washington or New York. The French economy, from what I read, is not much better or worse than ours, but the people don't seem to worry as we do."

What else had pleased him in France? The highways and the land, to mention only a couple of items. The super-highways are at least equal to our interstates, and the rural roads — J. T. had driven 800 miles on rural roads — are kept incredibly clean and trimmed. Eighty percent of the drivers, by his estimate, use their shoulder harness seat belts.

"Of course," he added meditatively, "there may be a reason for that. A little lust for the Grand Prix dwells in the heart of every true Frenchman. Set loose on a limited access highway, where the speed limit of 79 miles an hour is constantly ignored, he lays a heavy foot on the pedal. The other day I was passed by a Citroen doing 100 miles an hour, and then a Peugeot swept by him. But the French are as skilled as the drivers of Los Angeles, and nearly all of them seem to survive."

My friend Spelvin, himself a farmer, said he had to admire the intensive use that is made of land. "We could teach them a thing or two about raising corn," he said, "and their beef cattle didn't look up to ours, but the thing is, they put all their land to work. And it's beautiful. The vineyards of Burgundy are all red and gold in the autumn. On a hazy day, with chateaus in the distance, it's fairybook stuff."

What else? "Fontainebleau," said J. T. "Over the years I've seen most of

Other Editors Say Ability To Cope

(The Sanford Herald)

The recollections of depression days by some local "old-timers", which appeared in Friday's edition of The Herald, indicates one trait which was vital, and in abundance among those persons who lived through the period: They had an ability to cope.

As the story indicated, times were not quite as hard in rural Lee County during the depression as they might have been in the crowded cities of the North — but they were difficult enough. No matter how rugged the situation became, most people during those times never lost hope or gave up a strong faith that things would get better, as they eventually did.

One thing which bothers observers of the modern scene is the question of whether that same faith exists today — whether the average citizen is willing, or even able, to take on his daily problems in the belief that eventually things will improve. Although times are not nearly so rugged, that is, the wolf is not at the door for as many people — the average American today has enough to concern him, enough to keep him busy in pondering the uncertain future. Inflation still has not been slowed appreciably, the energy crisis shows no signs of being solved in the foreseeable future, and there is always that more remote, but just as frightening possibility of an all-out war, if some leader miscues or pushes the wrong button.

The ability to deal with unpleasant situations — the knack of coping — however, is an inborn trait with most people. They may do it reluctantly, but once the choice is clear, most people will buckle down and handle their problems in the best way possible, by getting back to the basics.

The difference between the approach to today's relatively easy but still annoying problems and those basic problems of the depression is that most people are not yet convinced that there isn't a better solution. If the choices are narrowed down to one, most will be able to handle the situation in some manner — to cope with it.

Self-Sacrifice Is A Sure Cure

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the most effective restraints on inflation is self-sacrifice, or the willingness of individuals and groups to live with less. It's guaranteed to cut into inflation.

But, as it is with so many of the solutions, the difficulties begin with the execution.

Doing with less might sound good to people who feel the need for self-discipline. But who goes first? The White House? Congress? Business? Labor? Farmers? Consumers? Landlords or tenants, big business or small?

Perhaps the United Steelworkers of America. At least that union's wage policy committee has issued a document that takes a more comprehensive view of conditions than is customary in union-management relations.

The 36-page report find that wage and benefit levels won by the union in earlier contracts have put some employers "at a serious competitive disadvantage" and "cost literally many thousands" of jobs.

The report doesn't advocate that negotiators go easy on the steel companies, but it does suggest that the union restrict the rate of wage increases at some plants to permit them to remain in business.

A small beginning, and maybe one made mainly for reasons of self-interest, but it exceeds the accomplishments of certain other groups, including, some would say, the executive branch of the government.

The latter is criticized by inflation fighters for reneging on its promise to balance the budget and instead continuing to maintain big deficits, which economists maintain have helped to worsen inflation.

But there also have been scattered examples of restraint similar to that of the steelworkers.

Earlier this month the U.S. League of Savings Associations declared its support for the Federal Reserve's anti-inflation policy of monetary restraint, "even though it will adversely affect our earnings."

Citibank, said it refrained from raising its prime interest rate to 16 percent last week, although a formula it had followed earlier in the year, based on money costs, indicated such a move was called for.

Retailers throughout the country have held the line on selected items, even lowered prices on some.

Strength For Today

A PIONEER WITH FAITH
"And he went out, not knowing whither he went."

Thus does the writer of the Epistle to the Hebrews speak of Abraham. This brave pioneer was full of the spirit of adventure, but more important, he had a great capacity for religious faith. He left his home in Ur of the Chaldees; then later his home in Haran, and turned southward in response to divine command. We do not know how this command was given, by vision or by audible word, or by the promptings of his heart which knew how to keep close to the Lord.

We may look to friends for advice and to those near and dear to us for the support of their love, but when the affairs of life become tumultuous beyond our capacity to handle them, we must look to higher sources of support. In these situations we would do well to follow the example of Abraham. He knew not whither he was to go, but he knew that God had sent him.

No Heir Seen As Soviet Chief

By JOHN MOODY
MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union is ruled by bid men unwilling to relinquish their awesome power and mistrustful of younger, eager heirs-apparent.

The conspicuous absence of Premier Alexei Kosygin from last week's Revolution Day parade, and last month's umpteenth rumor that President Leonid Brezhnev had died has set veteran observers once more to asking: Who will lead the Soviet Union in the last years of the 20th Century? No one claims to have the answer, least of all the members of the Communist Party's reigning Politburo.

Normally composed of about 15 members, death and indecision have caused the number to dwindle to 13. For admitting another man — there has been only one woman member — to the most elite club in Russia means redividing power, loyalties, cabals and possibly, changing the face and future of communism.

Rosalynn Urges Pledge Calls

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rosalynn Carter is urging Americans to call a toll free telephone number to pledge assistance for starving Indo-Chinese refugees.

Mrs. Carter, who described the refugee camps she inspected in Thailand last week as "devastating" and "unbelievable," is calling for the donations in conjunction with a report to President Carter on her fact-finding mission.

She was delivering the report to her husband today during a White House meeting with a coalition of relief agencies.

In it, the first lady recommends several specific actions to help thousands of refugees living in famine and squalor in camps in Thailand.

Among them is a call for immediate shipment of special foodstuffs needed to balance the diet of refugees, especially children, suffering from malnutrition.

The toll free number to pledge money or other items is 800-221-2870. In New York, the number is 212-686-5522.

But in October 1977, Brezhnev engineered the election of silver-haired Konstantin U. Chernenko, a longtime protege from Brezhnev's salad days as party leader in Moldavia in the 1950s, as a candidate member of the Politburo.

By November 1978, Chernenko was a full, voting member, a spectacularly quick jump through the ranks that made some Kremlinologists believe Brezhnev was grooming him as a successor instead of Kirilenko.

Observers took special note of the fact it was the 68-year-old Chernenko, not Kirilenko, who accompanied Brezhnev to the Vienna signing of the SALT II treaty.

It also was Chernenko who traveled with the Soviet president to Berlin last month and received the Order of Karl Marx — the same one given to Brezhnev.

But last week, there was a new twist.

It was Kirilenko who delivered the "report to the nation" speech on the eve of the Revolution Day parade. And during the celebration Nov. 7, Kirilenko stood only one spot away from Brezhnev atop Lenin's tomb, next to revered

Equal Time Plaint By Other Charities

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United Way's slogan that it "works for all of us" is false and should not be broadcast on television without contrasting opinions being presented, a coalition of charities says.

And because the three major commercial television networks have refused to present a different viewpoint, the National Committee for Responsive Philanthropy filed a fairness doctrine complaint today with the Federal Communications Commission.

Officials with the committee, comprised of roughly 100 non-profit groups that say they are generally excluded from United Way campaigns, said the complaint focuses on the United Way's "exclusive access to $18 million of free public service air time during National Football League games."

Under the FCC's fairness doctrine, broadcasters must cover "controversial issues of public importance" and provide a reasonable opportunity for the presentation of opposing viewpoints.

The committee alleges the United Way's claim that it "works for all of us" has become such an issue.

Robert O. Bothwell, the committee's executive director, said, "As an increasing number of people across the country are pointing out, while United Ways do much good work, they definitely do not work for all of us, either for all charities or for all citizens."

Edmisten Plans Re-Election Bid

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Attorney General Rufus Edmisten said Monday night he will seek re-election in 1980 to a second four-year term.

Edmisten, in an interview, said he would make a formal announcement of his candidacy later. He won an abbreviated term in 1974 when Robert Morgan was elected to the U.S. Senate and then was elected to a full term in 1976.

Edmisten was in Greensboro to address a reception for legislators sponsored by the North Carolina Student Legislature at UNC-Greensboro.

Media Whiz Of '79 Just as the Nov. 6 off-year elections were a Republican disaster, they were a personal triumph for Washington-based media expert Robert Squier.

Squier's television commercials were an important ingredient in electing as governor two candidates given little chance at first: John Y. Brown Jr. in Kentucky and William Winter in Mississippi. Squier also could help elect a third Democratic governor in Louisiana: state Public Service Commission Chairman Louis Lambert, who came from nowhere to make the runoff Dec. 8.

Squier's success in using television to lift Lambert from obscurity should give cause for alarm to Sen. Richard Stone of Florida. Squier is handling the media campaign for state Sen. Buddy MacKay, who in the Democratic senate primary will harp on Stone's support of the Panama Canal Treaty.

"I tried to work up a figure," said my friend, a great one for working up figures, "on the heating of the place. It must have taken a thousand servants and two acres of forest a day just to keep the fireplaces going. When you think of the cooks, footmen, gardeners, stable boys, blacksmiths, carriage makers, chamber maids and candlemakers that the palace required, simply to keep the court lolling in luxury, it's no wonder the people rebelled."

It was not like J. T. to award unstinting praise. Could he find nothing wrong? He thought a while. "Well," he said at last, "we've stayed in six hotels and none of them had a decent light by the beds. The French evidently don't expect you to read in bed — other things, maybe, but not reading. The telephones have a long way to go. We do a better job on TV news. Their best newspapers are not up to ours in worldwide reporting. But otherwise," and here Mr. Spelvin waved his beret, "vive les gloires de la France!" He was almost, but not quite, understandable.

although M & W Chevrolet had submitted a bid of $6,012.99, it was felt that the past performance of the Ford trucks and the quality of service offered by Venters Ford allowed the acceptance of the higher bid.

Approval was given to the final plat of North Hills Subdivision II, as recommended by the Planning Board. A low bid of $245,182 by Delmore White Construction Company was accepted for sewer improvements to the Pines and Deerfield areas. Town Manager Russell noted that a minimum of three to four weeks would be needed to finish negotiations with the FHA, and advised that sewer improvements not begin until after the Christmas-New Year holidays.

Russell pointed out that it was always a problem to put in utilities around existing houses following discussion by board members on when construction should begin for the areas. Contractor Chester Stocks, who was present at the meeting, noted that it was best to go ahead and work with the low bidder as soon as possible before the contractor became busy with other projects.

The board voted to set a public hearing for the Dec. 11 meeting for the preliminary assessment roll for improvements on Fenner College Street. A public hearing on the same date was set for citizen participation in preparation for obtaining a community block grant. Citizens may also wish to go to a public hearing Nov. 19 on the community block grant application.

Board members discussed the town's present use of three meter readers. Utilities Director Mike Finney explained that one is in charge of reading the water meter, one the light meter, and the other is in a trainee capacity. He noted that all three ride together in the same truck to save gasoline.

"It takes five to six months for a meter reader to learn the routes," said Finney. Town Manager Russell said that many Ayden citizens are not aware of the span of service the town utilities cover. Finney pointed out that of the approximately 4,800 meters read each month, approximately eight mistakes are made.

Town Clerk Ralph Ford reported that the utilities service had approximately 300 cut-ons and cut-offs each month.

In other business, the board voted to amend $25,000 to the electric capital project ordinance for the payment of sales tax on equipment, and adopted a resolution concerning revenue sharing to be sent to appropriate officials.

Promoter Of Fitness

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Business and industry, increasingly aware of the dollars and cents value of physical fitness, purchase more athletic equipment each year than all the high schools and colleges in the nation, says a Syracuse University fitness researcher.

Gary Shine, assistant professor of health, recreation and physical education, says research has proven that physically fit employees generally have better attitudes toward their jobs, are more productive and have lower absentee rates.

"Employees are most productive between the ages of 35 and 55 and an employee's death during that time span is extremely costly to industry," Shine says. "Not only must a business rehire someone, but it must retrain and deal with the loss of contacts and experience. It's more sensible and productive for industry to get people involved in a fitness program to keep them healthy — and alive — during their prime working years."

An increasing number of employers encourage fitness by creating in-house gymnasiums, sponsoring exercise and running programs and emphasizing the benefits of physical fitness for their employees. In some cases employees are encouraged to use exercise facilities during the working day. In others, special before-and-after-work hours give personnel a chance to exercise.

Some of the newly developed equipment undergoes testing at Syracuse University's Institute for Fitness Research, which designs programs for business and industry, screens youngsters for hypertension and studies the psychology and motivation affecting exercise.

The fitness institute makes use of specialists in physical education, nutrition, medicine, psychology, special education and engineering. In the human-performance laboratory, treadmills, stationary jogging apparatus, electrocardiograph

Day Care Center Has Reopened In Farmville

FARMVILLE — Little University Day Care Center here reopened this morning. It had been closed since Thursday afternoon while the children took four days' dosage of an antibiotic to rid them of a germ that caused bacterial meningitis in one of the children who attends the center.

"I asked the Health Department to come in," the center manager, Reba Lancaster, said. "I couldn't take a chance on any more of the children getting it." "They told us that most of the children could have had the germ with no ill effects," she said. "But they thought it best to go ahead and give them all antibiotics. The Health Department supplied them free."

Mrs. Lancaster said Nikki Bailey, the child who did contract hemophilus influenza meningitis, was treated at Pitt County Memorial Hospital and is now doing fine.

"This is a bacterial, not a viral, meningitis," Dr. Robert Ehnger, Pitt County Health Director said. "It is easily treatable."

"About five out of any 100 children whose throats you'd culture would have the germ at any given time. At this day care center, we found 18. This seemed high, and since the one child had already contracted the disease, Dr. Dan Granoff, the infectious disease specialist at the medical school, thought it best to go ahead and give all the children prophylactic antibiotic.

"Mrs. Lancaster and everyone at the center sure helped us out. We're 99 percent sure the germ is wiped out in that segment of the population."

Six-Story Fall By Wedding Couple

WEST HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — A bride and bridegroom face a long recovery after surviving a six-story fall from a balcony during a photo-taking session on their wedding night, authorities said.

Kenneth and Donna Burke suffered multiple injuries when they tumbled from the balcony and landed on rain-softened grass just inches from a concrete patio, police said. Burke lost his balance while trying to help his bride onto a ledge on the balcony, said Police Chief Salvatore Malinconico.

"It was a miracle," said Malinconico. "A couple of inches and they wouldn't be alive." The couple were admitted to the intensive-care unit of Yale-New Haven Hospital after the fall Saturday night but their conditions were upgraded late Monday to satisfactory.

Burke, 39, who works for Xerox Corp. in Rochester, N.Y., suffered multiple face and skull fractures, a dislocated and broken hip, liver injury and damage that required removal of his spleen, hospital officials said.

Mrs. Burke, 30, broke her left arm and injured her spine and hip.

Neither was well enough to talk with reporters, the officials said.

"They need everyone's prayers to get through this," said Janet Drexler, the bride's mother. "It's going to be a long recovery period."

"It's one wedding celebration that they aren't going to forget. It was a terrible thing," she added.

She said she was not at the party when the couple fell.

Police said the newlyweds invited a few friends after the small wedding to the luxury high-rise that had been Mrs. Burke's home before the wedding.

About 11 p.m. the couple went onto the balcony for Burke's brother, Kevin, to photograph them sitting on the brick ledge or railing with city lights in the background, police said.

"That ledge must have been a little higher than sitting height," Chief Malinconico said.

Kevin Burke told police his brother climbed onto the ledge first and was helping his bride up when he faltered, the chief said.

"When he did, he must have lost his balance and pulled her over as he fell," he said.

Iranian Oil Import Ban Likely To Hike Fuel Cost

By EILEEN ALT POWELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans may pay more for home heating oil and face service station lines for higher-priced gasoline as a result of President Carter's decision to end Iranian oil imports, officials in and out of government say.

Prices will probably climb and gas station lines, reminiscent of the spring, could return, especially if Iran decides to reduce its crude oil production and lower the world's already tight oil supply, the experts said Monday.

They were not precise about prices and supply, however, because what happens in coming weeks depends on such diverse factors as the effectiveness of U.S. conservation efforts and the prices U.S. oil companies have to pay for crude oil in markets outside Iran.

Carter's action Monday — a response to the seizure of some 60 American hostages in Tehran — will halt imports of about 700,000 barrels per day of Iranian crude oil and petroleum products made from Iranian crude. That represents about 4 percent of the nation's daily consumption.

The president coupled his decision with a plea to Americans to "redouble efforts" to conserve gas and oil.

A Carter administration official told a news briefing that the nation could "totally offset" the loss if every car was driven three miles less each day.

But administration officials, asking not to be named, acknowledged that any oil bought to make up for whatever Americans fail to conserve likely will be more expensive than Iranian crude.

This would lead to higher prices at the gas pump and from fuel-oil suppliers, one official said, although he estimated "it would not be a very significant amount."

The possibility of higher prices for gasoline and heating oil comes at a time when the nation's families already are paying record energy bills. It also comes as the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries plans to meet next month to discuss prices.

The American Petroleum Institute, an industry lobbying group, said it will take four to six weeks for the president's ban to be felt because of the amount of Iranian oil already on its way to refineries.

Despite the lag time, an oil industry official who asked not to be identified said Americans "may see prices go up immediately in anticipation" of a future squeeze.

The biggest "ifs" about the future price and availability of petroleum products hinge on what Iran decides to do with those 700,000 barrels. Iran could sell the oil elsewhere or not at all, although Iranian oil minister Ali Moinefar was quoted on Tehran radio as saying: "We have many clients, we can sell it with no problem."

The most optimistic scenario has Iran finding other countries for the supply earmarked for the United States. Those countries, in turn, would then need less from their regular suppliers and the "surplus" could be delivered to U.S. oil companies.

"We'd simply have a reshuffling of crude sources coming into the United States," said Fred L. Hartley, chairman of the Union Oil Co. of California.

Robert Stobaugh, a Harvard specialist on Mideast oil, said, "American companies will be able to deliver the oil they buy in Iran somewhere else or else they'll swap it for oil to be delivered here. The bigger companies can do it within themselves....The smaller companies exchange oil among themselves."

The United States then would be in about the same position as before.

—A less optimistic possibility is that Iran begins selling 700,000 barrels more per day on European "spot markets." This would raise prices at retail considerably because crude oil is selling on the spot market at about $20 more per barrel than it costs when purchased directly from oil-producing nations.

panies most dependent on Iranian crude "are not disadvantaged by this decision."

That could mean companies that buy their crude from other nations would be asked to share with Amerada Hess, Ashland, Arco, Exxon, Getty, Gulf, Marathon, Mobil, Phillips, Shell, Amoco, Sun and Union oil companies, the officials said.

A Discovery Derailment Evacuation In Dyslexia In Canada Nears End

BOSTON (AP) — Researchers have found evidence that dyslexia, the learning disorder that affects the reading or writing of an estimated 10 to 15 million Americans, may be caused by abnormalities in the brain, it was reported today.

Neurologists examined the brain of a 20-year-old dyslexic man killed in an automobile accident and found "striking" abnormalities only in the section of his brain considered responsible for language function. The Boston Globe reported in today's editions.

"Dyslexia has been thought to be a psychology problem, but it is really a neurological abnormality," said Dr. Anthony Galaburda, who conducted the research with Dr. Thomas Kemper at Beth Israel Hospital in Boston.

"Our study shows for the first time there are actual differences in the anatomy of the brain of a dyslexic person."

Dyslexia most often manifests itself in reversed reading of words and letters, but it may also affect writing. It frequently affects children with above-average intelligence.

Dr. Roger Brown, Massachusetts associate commissioner for special education, said he and other learning disability specialists have long suspected that dyslexia resulted from a brain abnormality, but the Beth Israel research is the first evidence.

Dr. Norman Geschwind, head of Beth Israel's neurological laboratory, said the discovery could lead to successful treatment of the disorder, even though there may be other causes of dyslexia, too.

"Whenever we have made a finding of distinct organic problems, it has led to a remedy," Geschwind said.

"Obviously, this is only one case, but the change found in the brain in this particular case are nothing borderline. They are striking and clear-cut," Geschwind said.

By JOHN C. GIVEN
Associated Press Writer
MISSISSAUGA, Ontario (AP) — More than 220,000 Canadians spent their second night away from home because of a chemical train derailment and fire, but the government said they should be able to begin returning today.

In the United States, six derailed propane tank cars in northwest Florida were burning for the third day, and about 500 persons had been evacuated from their homes. But about 1,500 evacuees in Holland, Mich., returned to their homes Monday after a derailed tank car of highly toxic hydrogen fluoride gas was righted and a leaking escape valve was closed.

Several hundred firemen brought the fires in the wreckage of the derailed Canadian Pacific freight train under control Monday and put a temporary canvas patch on the rupture in an upended tanker leaking chlorine that vaporized into a deadly gas.

Propane gas was still burning in another derailed tank car nearby, and Fire Chief Gordon Bentley said until that fire was out, the chlorine could still explode. He said the fire should be extinguished today, and then a steel patch would be fitted to the car and the chlorine would be pumped out and taken away.

The derailment occurred just before midnight Saturday, when 25 of the 106 cars in a CP Rail freight train loaded with chemicals jumped the tracks half a mile from one of the most densely populated areas of Mississauga, 10 miles west of Toronto.

No one was injured, but the provincial government ordered a 60-square-mile area evacuated because burning cars of propane threatened to explode the chlorine. An estimated 223,000 persons fled from their homes in Mississauga and part of nearby Oakville, taking refuge with relatives and friends or in hotels and hastily improvised public shelters in the Toronto area.

It was the biggest peacetime evacuation in Canadian history.

Propane, butane and toluene fumes also were escaping from some of the cars damaged in the derailment as several hundred firemen fought the fires, and 400 police patrolled the nearby deserted city to prevent looting.

Small Gap In Ranks Of Coeds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Women are catching up with men in enrollment at the nation's colleges, according to a new Census Bureau report.

The study, released Monday, says men attending college outnumbered women by 1.4 million in 1970, but by 1978 the gap had shrunk to about 410,000. The report says two-year colleges have been a significant factor in the increase. It says increased enrollment at those schools, especially by women, "is a result of their locations, scheduling, and orientation of courses toward the students who had other full-time or part-time responsibilities such as a job or family."

Uncle Sam Leads Battle Against Noise Pollution

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Health Editor

Muffle those garbage cans at dawn's early light. Dial down those disco decibels.

Haven't you heard? Uncle Sam wants America, the noisy, to hush up. For our ears' sake.

Studies show that excessive noise causes first subtle, then bold damage to one's hearing.

The loss of hearing is gradual. At first, you don't hear the little things: the chirping of birds, the rustle of leaves, a lover's whisper.

Later comes more severe damage, making it tough to hear even loud sounds. And what you don't hear could kill you — a train whistle as your car approaches tracks or a fire alarm.

Or what you don't hear might endanger a life not your own — screams of an infant in distress, for example.

Research shows inner ear hair cells, vital to hearing, eventually are destroyed by long-term exposure to excessive noise. You've got so many at birth and like brain cells they don't grow back once wiped out.

From a health standpoint, there is more than that to noise pollution.

Sudden noise, for one example, pumps more adrenalin into your system and is nature's way of getting you ready for fight or flight.

Noise can't kill a person or at least hasn't yet, but it has killed laboratory animals. Acoustic energy, trapped under the animal's fur, burned them up.

Douglas M. Costle, Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, said EPA investigations of the health and physiological effects of noise has extended beyond the solely auditory effects.

"We are currently in the second of a four-year study which is examining the non-auditory effect of noise on primates — monkeys.

"Results to date give us something to worry about.

"When exposed to noise levels similar to those experienced by millions of Americans in urban areas, the laboratory animals experience

NOISES SCREENED — Dr. Marc Kramer holds a precision sound level meter near N.Y.C. Fire Dept. superpumper that knocks out walks with a stream of a 30 percent elevation in blood pressure.

"Further, when the primates are withdrawn from the noisy environment, their high blood pressure persists."

The findings at the University of Miami in Florida correlate with 40 epidemiological studies in 11 countries — all linking excessive noise exposure to cardiovascular disease.

At the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences in Research Triangle Park, N. C., scientists have shown much noise-induced inner ear damage in newborn guinea pigs exposed to high levels.

They said the severe damage to two- and eight-day-old guinea pigs, much greater than that in eight-month-old guinea pigs, makes it "medically prudent" to avoid exposing newborns to excessive noise.

Costle says 20 million Americans every day are exposed to excessive levels of noise.

To keep them from joining 16 million Americans already hearing impaired, including 3.5 million children, is the aim of Uncle Sam's noise abatement crusade.

Local governments are pulling oars, too. Local noise control laws now number over 1,000 — up from 275 six years ago.

One in Hawaii aims at incessantly barking dogs and mandates that the owner must train his dog and get it to break the bad barking habit.

The Congressional edict for a quieter America is in the Noise Control Act of 1972, bolstered by amendments — The Quiet Communities Act of 1978.

Say experts: the noise pollution battle is where the battles against water and air pollution were 15 years ago. Giant steps are needed to tone down America by the year 2,000. This year, however, only $14 million in federal funds aim at the noise problem. That is around one percent of EPA dollars.

Among potentially harmful noises are vibrations booming out of disco loudspeakers — measured at from 115 to 130 decibels.

A decibel is a measurement of noise. At 140 decibels, noise causes pain. Damage to hearing in susceptible persons depends on time exposed and authorities say ear protectors probably are wise at from 85 to 90 decibels.

Normal conversation is 60; a lover's whispered sweet nothings, around 30; the rustle of leaves 10 or below; moderate rainfall, 50; and "quiet" in the library, 40; the average factory, 85.

Vacuum cleaner, 75; heavy traffic, 80; motorcycles, modified, 95; chainsaws, 100; rock music, amplified, 110; jet takeoff, 100 feet, 120; air raid siren, 130.

Some authorities fear disco deafness will be posted on medical records of many of today's disco freaks by the time they reach middle age.

Hearing exams given 7,000 grade, high and college youths by Dr. David Liscomb show this fear to be real.

Liscomb, head of the Noise laboratory at the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, found progressive hearing damage with up to 60 percent of college freshmen impaired.

It is worse than it was ten years ago. "They are two or three decades ahead of themselves in hearing deterioration," he said.

Los Angeles and some other cities ruled discos must post signs outside warning of a possible hazard to hearing. In Montgomery County, Md., bands at school dances are to be kept below harmful decibels.

A survey of noise levels of 18

discos in the District of Columbia showed 50 percent of the discos constituted an occupational hazard for disc jockeys and bartenders.

At noisier discos, experts said, patrons should not be permitted to stay more than two hours.

Dr. Marc Kramer, head of Noise and Hearing Consultants of America and Director of Audiology at Long Island Hospital of Brooklyn, N. Y., said audiologists put the noise danger zone at between 85 and 90 decibels.

Damage is linked to time exposed. The higher the decibel count the less time it takes.

Kramer, consultant to public and private agencies nationwide, counsels New York City's Fire Department.

He said the fire department's superpumper that knocks out concrete walls with a stream of water generates noise at the 117 decibel level.

But, he noted, there hasn't been hearing damage in 10 years, the time firemen assigned to the pumper have been wearing "ear muffs," protectors. These let in nonharmful sound but screen out the bad.

Kramer said good ear plugs, likewise, keep out the bad and let in the non-damaging sound. But when most people hear "ear plugs," he said, they think they won't be able to hear.

"If you have to raise your voice to talk over the noise, it's too loud," Kramer said. "This is an accepted rule of thumb."

Personal radios "worn" over the shoulder are a particularly irritating form of noise pollution in the cities.

In New York City, the words "... and radio playing" have been added to the signs in subways and buses calling attention to the prohibition of smoking, drinking, spitting.

But enforcement is difficult. Radios turned off on command from a cop are on again as soon as he gets out of earshot.

In San Francisco, Officer Robert Weibel, tells what happens typically.

He tells a "street radio" to quiet down.

The radio player says something like:

"Hey, man. So so why do they make it so it goes this loud?"

A good question — why do manufacturers build so much noise in.

The question is being addressed by the Environmental Protection Agency on behalf of consumers.

The EPA soon will force manufacturers to pay attention to loudness — not just of radios but also of household appliances and home workshop tools, powermowers, chainsaws and such.

A new regulation, according to EPA Administrator Costle, "will require manufacturers to affix labels to products that produce noise capable of adversely affecting public health or welfare."

The label on noise-emitting products will provide consumers with a noise rating. This will be a number showing the number of decibels of noise the product's innards produces.

The label also will provide the range in decibels of noise put out by the same kinds of products from other manufacturers. The lower the rating, the quieter the product.

The first products selected for ratings are hearing protectors. Other products will be identified on a continuing basis. Costle said EPA will put primary emphasis on requiring labels on products used in and around the home. Several industries already are at work on voluntary instead of mandated noise labeling.

Costle said labels also will be required on products sold to reduce noise — Noise Reduction Labels.

This will be a number giving a measure of the product's effectiveness in reducing noise. The label, according to law, also will provide the range of noise reduction ratings for competing products. The higher the rating the more effective the product should be.

Decibel readings around the house include these: power-mower, 87 to 105; some dishwashers, 85; some hair dryers exceed 85; refrigerator, 40; stereo systems as played by some teenagers, as high as 120; chainsaw, 100 decibels.

The EPA already is out with specifications for quieter garbage trucks — newly manufactured ones. Federal authorities, claim garbage truck noise rattles 19 million.

EPA Assistant Administrator David G. Hawkins said some garbage trucks now on the road have noise levels greater than 90 decibels — more than twice as loud as the standard EPA is imposing.

Those trucks looking like super tanks from a battle zone, are called compactor vehicles. After Oct. 1, 1980, the EPA says they must be much quieter — and tells how it's to be done. The telling is the usual government way: pages of regulations for manufacturers. Americans want quiet, by the way.

"A recent poll conducted by the U.S. Bureau of the Census showed that noise is considered to be the most undesirable neighborhood condition — more irritating than crime and deteriorating housing."

In the campaign for a quieter America, the EPA has promulgated regulations for ceilings on noise from portable air compressors. These supply air for equipment such as pavement breakers and rock drills, major sources of noise at construction sites.

Other regulations set noise standards for pavement breakers and rock drills, affecting more than 27 million Americans and pose possible severe hearing damage to workers.

The regulations are supposed to result in a 45 percent reduction in the extensiveness and severity of construction site noise.

The EPA also has taken action toward reducing noise from medium and heavy trucks, diesel and diesel-electric locomotives.

Makers of crawlertractors — bulldozers and front-end loaders — also must meet EPA noise standards.

Regulations call for less noisy power lawn mowers also. There are an estimated 40 million walk-behind and riding power lawn mowers in the United States. The EPA claims the majority produce noise levels potentially harmful to the hearing of operators.

10,000 More Arrive

By SETH MYDANS
Associated Press Writer

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — More than 10,000 Cambodians, fleeing a new round of fighting in their homeland, crossed into Thailand today, and 20,000 more are expected to cross the border later this week, the Thai command said.

The command said the refugees are civilians loyal to ousted Cambodian Premier Pol Pot who is leading a guerrilla war against the Vietnamese-backed regime in Phnom Penh that ousted him in January.

A group of U.S. congresswomen toured refugee camps along the Thai-Cambodian border and flew to Phnom Penh Monday for talks with Cambodian leaders on relief aid to sick and starving refugees in Cambodia. Cambodian Prime Minister Hun Sen told them he was grateful for international aid arriving by plane and ship but termed "not practical" an earlier plan by three U.S. senators to truck in supplies from Thailand.

The congresswomen also had been given permission to visit Vietnam today but decided that such a trip would "not be worthwhile."

Sources in the U.S. mission here said they were "puzzled" by such a decision especially since the Vietnamese are a key to the humanitarian problem in Cambodia.

The congresswomen left Thailand for the United States today but returned shortly after takeoff when one of their aides took ill.

Not All Cherokees Involved

CHEROKEE, N.C. (AP) — A suit filed by a group of Cherokee Indians to stop construction of the Tellico Dam has elicited less than overwhelming support from North Carolina tribe members on the reservation in the western part of the state.

The suit asks the Tennessee Valley Authority be barred from completing the $130-million dam. The case rests in the U.S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals.

Saturday the Indians asked Supreme Court Justice William Brennan for an injunction to stop completion of the dam during the appeal. He has made no ruling. Water from the dam will flood the site of Chota, ancient capital of the Cherokee nation and site of burial grounds used for nearly 300 years. Indians settled there for at least 12,000 years before that.

A number of Cherokees in North Carolina are bothered by the desecration the dam will bring to land in that Tennessee valley.

"Our belief is that the whole world is like a great cathedral," said Lloyd Owl, 36, a sculptor. "I think the dam is a useless thing. It's a slap in the face to American Indians, a conquered tribe."

They are joined by archaeologists and anthropologists who are interested in the 300 historic sites in the valley. They see the Little Tennessee Valley as the most important site of its kind in the Southeast.

"There are Cherokee sites elsewhere in Western North Carolina and East Tennessee, but this is essentially it," said Dr. Jefferson Chapman, a University of Tennessee anthropology professor who heads the archaeological exploration on some sites.

"To see any cultural source destroyed is a loss," he said. "Once it's gone, it's gone."

But the artifacts, the sacred history and the beautiful land are not a concern to some Cherokees. "We have 90 percent of the local people, I mean the leaders, in our restaurant every week," said Carol Bradley, who works at the Holiday Inn, "and you just don't hear any talk about the burial grounds. I don't believe there are 20 or 30 people here who know or care about it."

Some of the Indians say they are too preoccupied with the problems of daily living to worry about the Tellico Dam.

"I don't have any interest in it," said Edwin George, a motel maintenance man. "I never been there. I'm interested in getting my road fixed. I asked the tribal council and asked them, and they keep saying, 'It's coming, it's coming' and it's never come yet."

Edith George, 51, apologizes for her lack of knowledge on the subject. "I didn't know anything about it until just lately. But if that's some of my people I've got to be for it (stopping the dam)."

"Those government people, I don't know what more they want. They already took most everything we got," she said. Others don't know much about the dam but say it would be nice to keep the land.

"It would be nice if that land came back to us," said Going-back Chiltowskey, 72, a full-blooded Cherokee whose wood carvings are known across the nation.

"It was taken from us. Our land decreases and our tribe increases. We have no other place to go."

Wake Forest Issue To Again Face Baptists

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — The long-standing controversy over control of Wake Forest University was expected to come up today as the Baptist State Convention's three-day annual meeting enters its first full day.

The Rev. Mark C. Corts opened the convention Monday night with a call for unity, despite the university-control issue.

"Don't stay on the edge and complain of dirty denominational politics or decisions made by some small group meeting in a side room somewhere," Corts told the delegates in his sermon during the opening session.

"I declare to you, I have never been involved in anything that was more openly and fully discussed, argued, philosophized over, than the Wake Forest decision," he said.

At stake in the issue is whether the university should have the power to name its own trustees, who in the past have been appointed by the convention. A convention committee has recommended a compromise that would allow the university to name 12 trustees who could be Christians living outside the state. The other 24 trustees would be named by the convention. To date, the convention has required that trustees it appointed be North Carolina Baptists.

The university's part of the compromise would be the loss of automatic financial support from the convention churches. If the proposal is accepted, individual churches would have to designate any monies intended for the university. Currently 6.04 percent of a church's contribution to the Baptist Cooperative Program automatically goes to the university.

Trustees of the university were in on the drawing of the compromise and have approved it. And it also has the backing of the convention's general board and of Corts.

However, substitute recommendations, including one or more calling for severance of all convention ties with the university, are expected from the floor.

Substitute proposals will be voted on before a vote is taken on the committee's plan, Corts said.

"The majority feeling I get is: 'We've studied this enough. Let's take action and get this behind us and go on.' People are tired of hearing about it and they are tired of studying it," he said.

If the recommendation is approved by two-thirds of the messengers, it will require changes in the convention's constitution. Those changes would be voted during this annual meeting.

"There are those who say that they are pessimistic about the resolution of the Wake Forest matter," Corts said, "that they are afraid the matter will come back. We ought not expect this matter ever to be resolved once and for all. We are a diverse people, with diverse convictions."

Goal: To Bar Oil 'Weapon'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's top advisers concluded the safety of American hostages in Tehran would not be jeopardized by cutting off oil purchases from Iran, according to informed U.S. officials.

With that judgment reached, Carter decided to go ahead — making his move with some expectation that Iran was about to impose an oil boycott anyway.

"We wanted to strip them of oil as a psychological weapon," said one official, who asked not to be identified.

Negotiations for release of the 60 or so American hostages at a stalemate, Iran's options for further strikes at the United States — short of harming the prisoners — were few.

But those options included the prospect of choking off oil supplies to this country, officials here said.

Carter was mindful of that possibility as he weighed, in a series of top-secret meetings, whether to anticipate such a move by the Khomeini regime and order U.S. imports halted, they said.

But the well-being of the hostages, who remain prisoners in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran a 10th day, had the highest priority in the review of a cutoff.

"We considered it and did not believe it would affect their safety," another official said.

For that matter, after Carter's nationwide telecast Monday, authorities in Iran claimed they had decided to end oil shipments some three hours before he went on the air.

"We have many clients, we can sell it with no problem," said Ali Moimfar, the Iranian oil minister, in a Tehran broadcast.

Iran supplies about 700,000 barrels a day to the United States, roughly 4 per cent of the petroleum consumed by Americans.

The cutoff, said officials in and out of government, may mean higher prices for home heating oil and gasoline plus the reappearance of service station lines.

Resignation By Mayors

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Mayors of seven towns in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River resigned today to protest an Israeli expulsion order against the Arab mayor of Nablus, Bassam Shakaa.

Israel also expected protests from Egypt at today's negotiating session on Palestinian autonomy. Egypt's Foreign Ministry has denounced the arrest of Shakaa and a new plan for more Jewish settlements in the occupied West Bank as obstacles to peace.

Kerim Khalaf of Ramallah, north of Jerusalem, and Ibrahim Tawil, of El Bireh, handed in their resignations along with five other officials of towns in the Ramallah area.

Nablus and Ramallah were closed by commercial strikes, a number of schools were shut by student strikes, and Israel Radio reported the arrest of five Palestinian students for throwing stones at Israeli cars.

Shakaa lost an appeal to Israel's supreme court Monday that he be freed pending the outcome of a legal battle over the expulsion order. The court has issued a temporary injunction forbidding his expulsion.

The military government ordered Shakaa's expulsion after the nationalist mayor told Israel's coordinator for the occupied territories during a conversation last Tuesday that he felt a 1978 Palestinian terror attack that left 34 Israelis dead was justified as long as Israel's occupation continued.

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market advanced broadly again today, extending the rally that began late last week.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 24.32 points in the past two sessions, rose another 1.28 to 823.21 in the first half hour.

Gainers took a 3-1 lead over losers in the over-all count of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said traders were responding favorably to President Carter's order that oil imports from Iran be suspended immediately.

Experts expected the action to have a relatively small impact on energy supplies in this country. And given the emotional mood engendered by tensions with Iran, some observers speculated that Americans might respond well to Carter's accompanying call for intensified efforts to conserve energy.

Also working in the market's favor was talk that interest rates might be close to a peak, or possibly even past it. Some key rates, though still at double-digit levels, have been declining in recent days.

Actively traded oil stocks included Conoco, up 1/4 at 45 1/4; Tesoro Petroleum, up 1/4 at 16 1/4; and Gulf Oil, unchanged at 34 1/4.

On Monday the Dow Jones industrial average jumped 15.45 to 821.93.

Advances outnumbered declines by more than a 3-1 margin on the NYSE.

Volume on the Big Board came to 26.64 million shares, down from 30.06 million shares Friday.

The NYSE's composite index of common stocks rose 1.08 to 58.82.

Ask More Data On Winberry

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate Judiciary Committee has called for additional investigation into the background of Charles Winberry before it votes on his nomination to a U.S. District Court judgeship in North Carolina.

Winberry, 38, a Rocky Mount, N.C., attorney, testified before the committee last week. That testimony was believed to have included comments about his involvement in alleged fixing of cigarette smuggling cases and a 1971 traffic accident in which a man was killed. The committee also reportedly is concerned about Winberry's limited courtroom experience.

Committee sources said Monday some of the senators were unsatisfied with Winberry's answers and results of an initial background investigation.

Arrested Soon After Holdup

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) - Minutes after the Clinton Road branch of First-Citizens Bank & Trust Co. was robbed by an armed bandit Monday, a 35-year-old Durham man was arrested.

The FBI said Willie Wren had been charged previously in a federal warrant with the Oct. 29 robbery of the Wellons Village branch of the North-western Bank in Durham.

Fayetteville Police Chief Danny Dixon said Wren could be charged with bank robbery. More than $5,000 was recovered, Dixon said.

Patrolman Wayne Kaczowski said he drove up to the bank at 9:39 a.m. and saw Wren leaving the building. Wren started running so the patrolman chased him into a wooded area. Most of the money was found scattered along Wren's trail from the bank.

Officers said the bandit was armed with a pistol.

removed from the acquisition list, are designated in the CBD plan for parking and at present the private owners are utilizing the parcels for parking. The tracts involve: Wachovia trust property (Flanagan property) behind Coffman's on Cotanche Street between Third and Fourth Streets; First Federal Savings and Loan property on Washington Street between Third and Fourth now used for parking and for access to the drive-in window; and the parking lot behind the Skinner Building (Blount property) at the corner of Third and Washington Streets.

The three parcels that will be removed from the acquisition list if negotiations with the owners are not successful involve: the Fleming parcel off Fifth Street between Evans and Cotanche Streets (severance involved in order to provide a pedestrian walkway to connect the parking lot at Fourth and Cotanche to Fifth Street); the Humber house at Fifth and Washington Streets (house is maintained as a residence but negotiations were ceased regarding purchase when Mrs. Humber was hospitalized some two years ago); and Hopkins property on Pitt Street.

Laney said that the three parcels involve difficult negotiation situations and the commission does not want to take the parcels without the concurrence of the owners. Commissioners approved the formal transfer of two parking lots in the downtown section to the city. Both of the parcels are now being utilized for parking and involve 18,654 square feet and 38,319 square feet.

Staff real estate officer and Southside project manager Faye Brewington reported that four acquisitions were made since the October meeting, involving single parcels in South Evans and the CBD areas and two in the West Meadowbrook area.

Three demolitions took place, she said, involving two in the South Evans area and one in Southside. Four options were obtained on parcels in West Meadowbrook, she said, and one option was obtained on a South Evans parcel.

Ed Cobb, rehabilitation officer, reported that three rehabilitation grants were completed since the last meeting and contractors are currently working on six loans and one loan and grant combination.

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) - A military policeman with the 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg was among 35 persons arrested during a funeral march for five leftist activists in Greensboro Sunday, authorities said today.

The man, Richard Timothy Boose, 23, was charged with illegal possession of firearms. Boose's wife, Doretta, 18, also was arrested.

Boose was charged by federal authorities in early 1978 with using illegal explosive devices but Fort Bragg officials said he was never brought to trial on the charge.

About 450 persons participated in Sunday's 2 1/2-mile funeral march for five members of the Communist Workers Party who were shot to death while staging an anti-Ku Klux Klan rally in Greensboro Nov. 3. Fourteen persons, including several claiming to be Klan members or Nazis, have been charged in the shootings.

About 1,000 National Guardsmen, Highway Patrol troopers and Greensboro police lined the parade route. They had authorization from a Superior Court judge to search cars and individuals for weapons.

Fear Pay Scale Losing Key Men

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Joint Chiefs of Staff say a recent 7 percent pay increase is not enough to keep essential military personnel in the armed forces.

In a memorandum to Defense Secretary Harold Brown last week, the chiefs said disillusionment with military pay is the main reason skilled enlisted personnel and junior officers leave the all-volunteer military. They said civilian policymakers must pay higher salaries or settle for diminished military readiness. While they indicated the 7 percent pay increase would not be adequate, the chiefs did not specify another figure, saying only that military salaries must keep pace with inflation.

It urged a shift in interest by the state groups from emphasizing low-level radioactive wastes related to the medical field to nuclear radiation. PIRG said radioactive wastes are transported by truck through North Carolina, mostly from the Portsmouth, Va., port, on the average of nearly once a week, with little effort to monitor the contents or how they are packed.

It recommended that state regulations require an inspection of such shipments when they enter the state and when they leave North Carolina. The state should be notified at least five days in advance before such shipments are made, the group said.

PIRG also called for a delay in the granting of a license to the Shearon Harris nuclear plant south of Raleigh, contending an adequate preparedness and evacuation plan has not been developed.

Complain State Falls Short In Waste Care

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - A private research group said today that North Carolina is not doing an adequate job of protecting its citizens from the dangers of high-level radiation resulting from nuclear power plants and the shipment of wastes across the state.

The North Carolina Public Interest Research Group, in a report released at a news conference, said it had "arrived at the conclusion that an accident in North Carolina involving radiation could be disastrous because the state is ill-prepared to respond to such an accident."

Julie Weiss, author of the 39-page report, said a study of the state's preparedness and procedures showed that:

"There is a complete lack of emergency detection equipment at the Brunswick nuclear power plant ... (and that) existing evacuation plans for the area around the plant are skimpy and clearly inadequate."

"There is virtually no effective monitoring of the hundreds of radioactive shipments traversing North Carolina's roads and urban areas each year."

"The Radiation Protection Section cannot possibly protect North Carolinians with its present small budget, but even the resources it does possess are misallocated into the medical field."

"The president has already postponed a trip to Canada until early next year. It had been scheduled for last Friday and Saturday."

Carter Cancels Planned Trip

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter decided today to cancel a trip this afternoon to Philadelphia and Harrisburg, Pa., because of the Iranian crisis, White House sources said.

The president had been scheduled to hold a town meeting in Philadelphia in late afternoon and then fly to Harrisburg for a Pennsylvania Democratic State Committee dinner.

The trip is the second cancelled by Carter as a result of the takeover of the U.S. embassy in Tehran on Nov. 4.

The president has already postponed a trip to Canada until early next year. It had been scheduled for last Friday and Saturday.

Arts Center

MANTEO, N.C. (AP) - If all goes well, an 800-seat, multi-million dollar cultural arts center will be standing on Roanoke Island by 1984, in time for the 400th anniversary of the founding of the English colony on the island.

That band of settlers is known today as the "Lost Colony," and the story about their time in the new world is recreated in the long-running historical drama by the same name. Roanoke Island is the home of the "Lost Colony" drama.

The center is still in the planning stages, but there is a commitment that it will be erected.

Chuck McLendon, public relations director for the drama, said present thinking calls for the 800-seat theater to be used by the "Lost Colony" troupe and other performing groups. There will also be meeting rooms, dressing rooms and rehearsal halls.

The Roanoke Island Historical Association, which oversees the drama, has approved preliminary plans for the center.

"This would be a building the association could use in the summertime, and the Albemarle area could use other times, from Sept. 1 until June," said Mrs. Fred Morrison, producer of the "Lost Colony."

Tentative figures indicate it will cost between $3 million and $6 million to build the structure.

Committees have been formed to investigate costs, fundraising possibilities and location, among other matters.

"There are all kinds of suggestions about where we should locate. This is why a local committee is good to sort of receive these ideas and screen them for us," Mrs. Morrison said.

The center will be built on Roanoke Island, however, McLendon said.

Despite Win, Franklin Unhappy Eagle

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Looking at Tony Franklin, you wouldn't think he and his Philadelphia Eagle teammates had just beaten Dallas for the first time since 1974.

And you sure wouldn't think Franklin had booted a monster field goal of 59 yards, second longest in National Football League history, on the way to the 31-21 victory.

His head hanging amid the hand-slapping, shouting jubilation of the locker room, Franklin said: "Poor. That's all I can say. I made one I wasn't supposed to and missed two that I was."

While Franklin was being sullen, Philadelphia Coach Dick Vermeil was enjoying his first victory over Cowboy Coach Tom Landry and the game ball his players awarded him.

"This (the game ball) is the most meaningful thing that ever happened to me," Vermeil said. "You see, this didn't just happen overnight." Holding court from a perch on top of an equipment box, Vermeil said his team "realistically is going for a wild-card spot."

The Eagles and the Washington Redskins trail Dallas in the National Football Conference Eastern Division by one game with 7-4 records.

Vermeil said Franklin's towering 59-yarder was the product of a committee. "Tony told me he could make it, so I told him okay, so go do it."

Stunned by a Dallas touchdown in the opening 61 seconds, the Eagles didn't play favorites in coming back to win.

Dallas stunned the Eagles, using just three plays to get on the scoreboard with the payoff coming on a 48-yard Roger Staubach pass to Tony Hill. Philadelphia quarterback Ron Jaworski evened things up after Tony Dorsett fumbled the ball away to the Eagles.

Jaworski spotted giant tight end Harold Carmichael in the end zone for a 32-yard touchdown that tied the score.

A few plays before, Carmichael had gathered in a third-down pass to mark the 107th straight game in which he has caught a pass, extending his own record.

"I was happy about breaking the record," Carmichael said. "I guess it will end when I quit football."

The Jaworski-Carmichael combination was a familiar one to Eagle watchers, but it wasn't the only game in town. Jaworski departed late in the second period with a wrist sprain but was to return in the second half.

In the meantime, backup John Walton managed to stretch the Philadelphia lead with a 29-yard touchdown pass to Charlie Smith, who recorded his first TD reception of the year.

Franklin's club record 59-yarder followed to make the score 17-7 at halftime.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry said the field goal took a lot out of his team.

"That took the juice out right before the half," Landry said. "Franklin just made a super kick."

In the third quarter, Philadelphia open up its ground game behind Wilbert Montgomery, who became the first Eagle runner to record consecutive 1,000-yard seasons. Montgomery finished the night with 127 yards and one touchdown on 25 carries.

Montgomery's rushing led the Eagles to a 13-yard TD from Jaworski to Carmichael.

The Cowboys closed the gap as Staubach again hooked up with Hill, this time for a 75-yard touchdown.

Fighting the clock as well as the Eagles, Staubach managed to strike for another score on a 5-yard pass to Billy Joe Dupree that brought the Cowboys to within three points at 24-21.

An inside kick failed and the Eagles faced a third-and-two situation at the Dallas 37. Montgomery slid along the jammed center of the line and broke off the left side for a touchdown, sealing the win for Philadelphia.

Jaworski summed up the victory: "We play as a team and we win as a team."

Ohio State's Rookie Coach Is Looking For Top Poll Position

By The Associated Press

Ohio State's freshman football coach, Earle Bruce, won't admit he is eyeing No. 1, but the national title loomed closer for the Buckeyes today.

Bruce and his Buckeyes have moved from third to a close second behind Alabama in The Associated Press college football poll, with Nebraska dropping to third from the runnerup spot.

"I can't say I ever thought about being No. 1," said Bruce, whose Buckeyes clobbered Iowa 34-7 last Saturday and face a tough Big Ten Conference test next weekend against Michigan. "I have thought about being 10-0. I never thought about being 0-0."

"I am going to have to let those things (rankings and bowls) concern themselves after we play our 11th game."

In balloting by a national panel of sports writers and broadcasters announced Monday, the 10-0 Buckeyes received 14 first-place votes for 1,218 points. Alabama, which eked out a 3-0 victory over Louisiana State Saturday night, had 34 top votes and 1,262 points.

Nebraska, which beat Kansas State 21-12 Saturday to remain unbeaten in nine games, attracted five first-place votes for 1,209 points. The Cornhuskers were followed in the poll by Southern California, 9-0-1, with 12 first-place votes and 1,164 points, and Florida State, 9-0, with 983 points. Florida State had been seventh the previous week.

The remaining first-place ballot was split three ways among No. 6 Texas, No. 8 Arkansas and

No. 9 Houston. Texas, 7-1, had 981 points, Oklahoma was seventh with 960, Arkansas had 859 and Houston 788. Brigham

Some Surprises During Early Weeks Of The Pro Cage Season

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

The season is a month old and the first coach has been fired, so it's time to check up on happenings — strange and not-so-strange — around the National Basketball Association.

In many cases it's business as usual: Bill Fitch is cracking jokes, Kevin Loughery is yelling at referees, George Gervin and Lloyd Free are pouring in points, Moses Malone is sweeping the boards and Bill Walton is on the injured list.

But there have been some surprises: Nate Archibald has shaken off years of injury and rust and is leading the league in assists for Boston. Houston and Denver have gotten off to dismal starts, the Milwaukee Bucks have won nearly as many games as the other four teams in the weak Midwest Division combined and the playoff finalists of the last two years, Seattle and Washington, have a combined record of just 13-13.

Last week's firing of Detroit Coach Dick Vitale was the second major change of address this season. The first, of course, was the stunning proclamation by Darryl Dawkins, Philadelphia's irrepressible center, that he had switched his home planet from Lovetron to Chocolate Paradise.

Speaking of moves, how about John Y. Brown? He made one of the more intriguing transitions of recent times. A year ago he was the bachelor owner of the Boston Celtics, a losing basketball team; now he's the governor-elect of the sovereign state of Kentucky and the husband of one-time Miss America Phyllis George.

The Celtics, meanwhile, are soaring on the wings of their high-flying young Bird — Larry, the hick from French Lick. The impact of the Indiana State All-American on the Boston franchise has been even greater than expected, both on and off the court.

Boston's 10-3 record is the third-best in the NBA, quite a turn-around from last year's 2-11 start. And the big reason has been Bird, who has put a smile back on the face of Fitch, the new coach of the Celtics who went through some hard times in Cleveland.

Bird also has put people back in the seats at Boston Garden. The old North Station arena with the parquet floor has been filled to the rafters for four of the Celtics' five home games so far this season, the lone exception being a game that was played on the same night as the seventh game of the World Series.

The NBA's other rookie sleight of hand artist, Earvin "Magic" Johnson of Los Angeles, is having a similar impact, though not quite as dramatic.

The Lakers, a perennial title contender, are off to a fine 11-4 start, with Johnson, the former Michigan State star, averaging 20.3 points and 7.4 assists per game.

It's too early to tell whether those two freshmen will have the overall effect the NBA is hoping for, namely the revival of pro basketball following a couple of stagnant seasons.

Stadium Plans Announced

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Duke University announced plans Monday for a $4 million project to renovate Wallace Wade Stadium and to construct a related sports and physical health building.

Athletic Director Tom Butters said the new building would include a press box for the stadium but would be used primarily for "diagnosis and rehabilitation of sports-related injuries in the Southeastern United States."

"I'd have to say this is the most positive commitment to athletics that has occurred in two decades at Duke University," he said.

Butters said the project would be financed through private contributions channeled through the Iron Dukes, the school's athletic fund-raising organization.

The press box-physical health building will include a cardiac care unit, sports medicine laboratories, an indoor running track, weight room, hydrotherapy pool and locker rooms. It will extend about 60 yards along the top of the stadium's west side.

Renovation of the 50-year-old stadium will include the replacement of all seats with aluminum bench seats, construction of new restroom facilities and replacing or sealing much of the concrete.

Butters said the stadium improvements would be completed before the 1980 football season. Work on the building, however, is not scheduled to be completed until 1981.

Contest Winners

Women dominated the results of the weekly "Daily Reflector" Football Contest from last week, capturing both first and second places.

Eleanor Scheipers of the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department took first place in the contest, picking 26 of the 32 games correctly. She won first place on the basis of her point guess. Her guess of 73 was closest to the actual 67 scored in Harvard's 41-26 win over Pennsylvania.

Second place was won by Charly Barber of P.O. Box 25, Jamesville. She also had 26 correct picks but was further off in her point guess, with 82.

One other person also had 26 right, but was further off in the point guess.

The final contest in this year's series appears on the following pages.

Brother's Hit Nails Blackwood

MIAMI (AP) — Last week, Baltimore Colts safety Lyle Blackwood joked about facing his brother in a National Football League contest for the first time.

"I told him I was going to nail him," Lyle said of his brother, Glenn Blackwood, a rookie safety for the Miami Dolphins. "He told me he's going to show me a few new wrinkles."

Lyle turned out to be right. Lyle the seven-year veteran rammed Glenn on a punt return in Miami's 19-0 victory over Baltimore Sunday. Dolphins Coach Don Shula announced Monday that Glenn would undergo knee surgery today.

Shula said he had placed the rookie on injured reserve and signed veteran cornerback Dwight Harrison in his place.

"Glenn was covering a punt and they just hit each other. Neither of them went down to the ground, but Glenn's knee went," the coach said.

Harrison, an eight-year pro, was waived by the Colts Saturday. He was obtained from Buffalo last season. In 1975, his eight interceptions were second-best in the American Football Conference.

Harrison was Denver's second-round draft choice from Texas A&I in 1971.

DUNKEL COLLEGE FOOTBALL INDEX

EXPLANATION - The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

This week's Dunkel Index was not received in time for publication today.

It will be run on the sports pages

Investigate Reports Of Track Payoffs

LONDON (AP) — Officials are investigating reports that several world-class track and field athletes, including American hurdler Edwin Moses, took illegal payments at an international meet in England during the summer of 1978.

The investigation was ordered Monday by the International Amateur Athletic Federation (IAAF), and if the allegations are proven true, it could endanger the athletes' eligibility for the 1980 Summer Olympics in Moscow.

The IAAF has given the British Amateur Athletic Association (BAAA) a deadline of Dec. 1 to complete the inquiry.

"We don't want this matter to drag on until after the end of this year," said John Holt, secretary general of the IAAF.

Officials were alerted by newspaper stories which claimed that a total of 9,000 pounds — or $18,000 — was paid in illegal expense money to the athletes at an international meet in Gateshead, England, in July 1978.

Along with Moses, the group under investigation included England's Sebastian Coe, who this year set world records for the mile, 1,500 and 800 meters, woman javelin star Tessa Sanderson and sprinter Sonia Lannaman.

Also allegedly involved are Donald Quarrie of Jamaica, the 1976 Olympic gold medalist at 200 meters; Rod Dixon of New Zealand, a long distance runner, and such prominent British competitors as shot-putter Geoff Capes and runners Mike McLeod and David Moorcroft.

The latest newspaper story on the meet, published in this week's Sunday People, said that Moses received a sum of money in addition to his air tickets, accommodations and food. Moses was not immediately available for comment but a spokesman for the Amateur Athletic Union (AAU), who asked not to be identified, described the hurdler as "a pretty high class individual."

"You hear stuff like this all the time, especially in track and field," said the AAU spokesman. "It seems there is at least one scandal every year."

The People also reported that Sanderson received about $300 and quoted her as saying: "I wish I had never gone to Gateshead. The money must have been for traveling expenses."

Lannaman also received $300, according to the People. She was quoted as saying it was "an advance against my traveling expenses."

Coe declined to see reporters, but his coach said: "We know about these investigations but are not worried."

Payment of money to such athletes is not necessarily a crime for Olympic disqualification. The Olympic eligibility rules, revised in 1975 are complicated and the word "amateur" no longer appears in Rule 26 of the Olympic Charter, which deals with eligibility.

Athletes are specifically allowed to receive expenses and compensation for lost earning time but are forbidden to take more money from sports than they would have earned if they had been working.

State Must Put Loss Behind For Weekend

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina State Bo Rein means it when he says anybody has got a chance in a football game. He learned only too well last week when Penn State snatched a victory from the Wolfpack in the final second of the game with a 54-yard field goal.

That heartbreaking loss and the fact that the Atlantic Coast Conference championship will be on the line will ensure that

Coach Hurt In Fight

CHICAGO (AP) — A squabble over whether the wrestling or basketball team could use a college gym apparently left the basketball coach partially paralyzed with a broken neck, police say.

Police said they were looking for the wrestling coach and five or six of the wrestlers at Kennedy-Kings College for questioning about Monday's incident.

A spokesman at Northwestern Memorial Hospital said Dan Davis, 32, the basketball coach, was in fair condition in the intensive-care unit with a broken neck, spinal injuries and partial paralysis from the neck down.

Witnesses said Davis and wrestling Coach Al Turner got into a pushing match over use of the gym, according to police spokesman Lt. Joseph Curtin. He said several wrestlers in the gym then allegedly attacked Davis, bouncing him off the walls and the floor.

The coach and the wrestlers left the school without reporting the incident, Curtin said.

Turner was unavailable for comment.

Duke seriously this Saturday.

"Even though Duke has been going through a tough season, I don't believe anyone on our team will take them lightly. Anybody's got a chance in a football game. We didn't think Penn State had a chance when they had a fourth down and 24 yards to go last Saturday, but they did," Rein said.

"That game shows you that a football game is for 60 minutes and not 59 minutes and 59 seconds," Rein said. "And that's why we expect a tough game back at Duke."

The Wolfpack has known the game with Duke would be decisive since it beat Clemson to gain a 4-1 conference record. Rein said Duke has good athletes at skilled positions. He said he's most impressed with the Blue Devil's defense. Duke is averaging four turnovers a game.

"Also, the fact that they have changed styles on offense throughout the year is another concern for us," said Rein.

The Wolfpack is 6-4 overall and 4-1 in the ACC. Duke is 2-6-1 overall and 0-4 in the ACC.

"The best tonic we have after Saturday is to play a game with Duke that means something. If this game didn't mean anything then it would be tough to get ready to play, but since it's for the conference crown then I think we can bounce back," Rein said at his weekly news conference.

Running back Billy Ray Vickers out for the final regular season game due to a knee injury against Penn State, Rein said. Wide receivers Lee Jukes and Curtis Rein are also lost; both are suffering ankle injuries.

Sports Briefs

TENNIS
STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Defending champion John McEnroe fought off a brisk challenge from Gene Mayer and won the men's singles title in the $210,000 Stockholm Open Tennis Championships 6-7, 6-3, 6-3.

The top-seeded McEnroe became the first player ever to win two straight titles in this tournament. McEnroe's 10th singles title of the year — including the Masters, the WCT finals and the U.S. Open — earned him $25,000.

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) — Third-seeded Bill Scanlon scored a 6-2, 7-5 victory over New Zealand's Chris Gunning in the opening round of the $75,000 Taipei Open Tennis Tournament.

BASEBALL
TOKOROZAWA, Japan (AP) — Willie Wilson of the Kansas City Royals singled home the winning run in the bottom of the ninth inning, giving the American League All-Stars a 6-5 come-from-behind victory over the National League.

It was the AL's second victory against one defeat and one tie in a nine-game Japan tour.

GOLF
CINCINNATI (AP) — Nancy Lopez and Tom Watson won the 1979 Golf Writers Association of America Player of the Year awards.

The winners were a repeat of last year's selections and it was the third consecutive year that Watson has received the honor.

O.J. Sits On Bench Without Complaining

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The benching of a superstar — a former superstar, to be more exact — has occurred without a fuss because of O.J. Simpson's class and the play of Paul Hofer.

"Paul is the starter and had a great game. The coach told me not to worry about it, and I understand," said Simpson after sitting out an entire game and watching Hofer rush for 147 yards in the San Francisco 49ers' latest loss.

This season, Simpson's 11th in pro football, will be his last, and the 49ers, with a 1-10 record, must think of the future.

Hofer, a running back in his fourth National Football League season, also caught three passes for 30 yards Sunday at New Orleans, turning in his second straight outstanding performance as the 49ers lost 31-20 to the Saints.

Simpson started a week earlier against the Oakland Raiders, carried three times for eight yards, then left the game. Hofer ran 12 times for 102 yards and caught seven passes for 64 yards.

Simpson, at age 32 and with several knee injuries behind him, makes no claim that he is the running back he once was, the one who set an NFL season record with 2,003 yards rushing in 1973 for the Buffalo Bills. He doesn't argue with Coach Bill Walsh's decision to go with Hofer.

"I would like to play more, but I do understand what the coach is doing and he's doing the right thing," said Simpson. "He's got to think about next year and I'm not going to be here."

"Fortunately, I don't have an ego problem."

Walsh said he decided early Sunday, after New Orleans raced to a big lead, not to use Simpson, the NFL's No. 2 all-time rusher with a total of 11,159 yards and No. 1 all-time money-maker with his current salary of about $800,000.

"There wasn't any sense in putting him through the punishment and pounding on that artificial turf. But he's a great asset to this team and there will be a game or two or three yet where he will help us," said Walsh.

Simpson, a native San Franciscan, has been treated kindly by the 49ers' fans although he has rushed for only 976 yards — 593 in 10 games last season and 383 this year since joining the team.

But Hofer, because of performances as a part-time player in past seasons, ranked as one of the most popular of the 49ers' players even before moving ahead of Simpson midway in the season.

"I just can't believe it's happening to me. I came in as a special teams player," Hofer said of his development into a starter playing ahead of O.J. Simpson.

Walsh likes to think of it as the 49ers finding a new star rather than saying goodbye to

Deacons Seek Bowl Wrapup

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — A win against South Carolina this weekend will mean more than a school-record nine victories in a season for Wake Forest.

It will probably determine if there is a bowl invitation in the mail to the Demon Deacons.

"We know what the bowl situation is," Coach John Mackovic said on Monday. "We know that bowl invitations will be going out and for both Wake Forest and South Carolina that is important."

"It's an incentive for both teams."

At this time last year, no one was even remotely considering Wake Forest as a candidate for a bowl bid. Who would, with a season tally of 1-10 two years in an old one.

"Paul Hofer hits the hole as quickly as any back I've seen in a while, he has excellent balance and will give you everything he's got down to his last breath," said Walsh.

This year, however, things have changed. Behind the throwing arm of quarterback Jay Venuto, the Deacons have rolled up eight victories to two losses — Clemson and North Carolina State.

Mackovic says his team will need to be in top shape to prevent a third loss.

"South Carolina will be the strongest team overall that we've played this season," Mackovic said. "They have an outstanding ground game; they are big, quick and fast; and their offensive line is extremely big and strong."

The 213 yards in rushing by tailback James McDougald last week was a key to the 17-14 win over Duke.

"I think James had a super afternoon and it's a tribute not only to his individual ability but also to our offensive line," he said. "Many people think we are solely a passing team but James has given us a great added dimension."

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

If the National Football League season ended today, the Detroit Lions and San Francisco 49ers would be delighted.

But seriously, if the season ended now, there would be more than a couple of teams in the American Football Conference wondering if there is any justice in the world.

Consider, the NFL's playoff formula — three division champions plus two "wild cards," non-championship teams with the second- and third-best records in each conference.

It is possible, of course, for the runnerup in one division to have a better record than a champion in another. Witness last year's Miami Dolphins, 11-5 and second in the AFC East while Denver won the West at 10-6. Or, in the National Football Conference, take Philadelphia (East) and Atlanta (West), the two wild-card teams, each at 9-7 while Minnesota was first in the Central Division at 8-7-1.

Now consider today's standings. In the AFC, seven teams have records of 7-4 or better — New England and Miami in the East, Pittsburgh, Houston and Cleveland in the Central and San Diego and Denver in the West. In that group, there are two teams which, no matter how well they play, will sit out the playoffs. And there are the Oakland Raiders, lurking in the background at 6-5 and hoping for some team to stumble.

In the NFC, excluding Monday night's game, only three teams have records of 7-4 or better — Dallas, Tampa Bay and Washington. And one of them — Washington — isn't even a division leader. Three other teams — Philadelphia, Chicago and New Orleans — were equal to Oakland's 6-5.

So what we have here is inequity.

And perhaps what we have here is a crying need for a change in the playoff structure.

Unless more than a couple of teams take a tumble of gigantic proportions, or unless a few suddenly catch fire, there are going to be some frustrated football players mumbling to themselves about the injustice of it all.

Imagine, for example, being a member of the Miami Dolphins or the Houston Oilers, or maybe the Denver Broncos. (This is all hypothetical; no need to get worked up over it.) You've just spent 16 weeks working hard trying (without success) to win a division title and have, instead, finished with a record of, say, 11-5 or 10-6. Not bad...but not good enough to make the playoffs.

The wild cards have been dealt to the guys sitting on either side of you while all you've gotten is a plane ticket home and a "better luck next year."

Then you glance at the NFC and what do you see?

A division winner with a record of maybe 8-8 or 9-7!

Wild-card winners with the same mediocre marks!

Is it any wonder more than one member of the Seattle Seahawks, Oakland Raiders and San Diego Chargers must have felt at least a bit of envy glancing at Minnesota after the 1978 season, when 9-7 records kept them out of the AFC playoffs while the Vikings won one less game and crept into an NFC division title?

It is time for the NFL to get rid of the conference concept. Leave the six conferences as they are, but discard the NFC and AFC tags (the NFL, unlike baseball, does not keep them apart until the championship).

Make things simpler and more honest by making all six divisions equal. When the season ends, open the playoffs to the six winners and the next four best teams, regardless of division. Without the artificial conference separations, the NFL's best will really be represented.

Sooner Coach Looks To Bowls

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Bowl negotiating between the universities of Oklahoma and Nebraska is apparently in full swing, as the Saturday deadline for the announcement of post-season bowl invitations nears.

Coach Barry Switzer said Monday he talked to Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne that morning. He also admitted a proposed agreement that could keep the Sooners out of the Sugar Bowl doesn't bother him.

"I felt like some kind of deal was going down there," Switzer said of a report of a potential Sugar Bowl agreement Monday. "The Sugar Bowl hadn't contacted us and so I knew they weren't interested in us."

Earlier, Switzer said if his team loses out on a trip to the Orange Bowl, which probably rests on the Sooners Nov. 24 game with Nebraska, he would like to take "a good trip" to the Sugar Bowl.

However, Monday reports out of Little Rock, Ark., indicated an arrangement might be in the works between Southwest Conference teams, Arkansas and Texas, and the Sugar Bowl Committee.

"It seems logical to me that some kind of agreement like that would be discussed," Switzer said. "But, if we miss out on the Orange Bowl they still are going to need a visiting team at the Cotton Bowl. There is also the Fiesta Bowl. We've been there before and that is a nice trip."

Both the No. 7-ranked Sooners and Nebraska, now No. 3, are undefeated in the conference. Nebraska has a perfect record overall, while the Sooners took a non-conference loss to Texas earlier in the year.

Oklahoma travels Saturday to Missouri while Nebraska hosts Iowa State.

Earlier, Switzer said he would "negotiate" with Osborne prior to the Cornhuskers' trip to Norman in an effort to secure a guaranteed bowl trip for the loser of the game.

"This is purely speculation," Switzer said. "But, the Cotton Bowl is a really big bowl and they need somebody good to go down there, so who knows."

McDougald, Newhall Named Best In ACC

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Wake Forest tailback James McDougald became the first Atlantic Coast Conference runner to reach 1,000 yards this year on Saturday, and Monday he was named one of the league's offensive players of the week.

Virginia tight end Mike Newhall also took the honor.

In winning back-of-the-week honors for the second time this year, the 5-9, 190-pound McDougald ran for 215 yards on 32 carries and scored two touchdowns to lead Wake to its eighth win in 10 games this season. The yardage, 118 of which came in the second half, gave the Maxton, N.C., native 1,055 for the year. The two touchdowns set a school record of 30 for him.

"James was the key to our game," said Wake Forest Coach John Mackovic. "He had an outstanding day and was punishing inside. He is a great clutch performer."

Newhall caught four passes for 40 yards in the Wahoo's 20-18 victory over arch-rival Virginia Tech.

"Mike hasn't dropped a pass in four years," said Virginia Coach Dick Bestwick of his 6-3, 235-pound senior. "He's just one super tight end and without question one of the very best in the country."

The Virginia Beach, Va., is the leading receiver for his team this year with 19 catches.

The weekly picks are made by a committee of the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association. Earlier, the committee picked Clemson defensive tackle Steve Durham and North Carolina State defensive back Sonnie LeGrande for defensive honors.

Word Is Out 'Prime Time' Will Depart

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — NBC's "Prime Time Sunday" made its debut last summer making noises like a world beater, possessed of all the brass and confidence of its host, Tom Snyder.

The show was live, and it had flash — including right-now transmissions by satellite and on-camera technical directions. NBC President Fred Silverman gave the show a boost by starting it in June so it could have a head start on the season; in a bold show of bravado, Snyder vowed before NBC affiliates to make it work, even suggesting he'd quit the business if "Prime Time" flopped.

Silverman and his corps of executives repeatedly declared that NBC wanted a prime-time newsmagazine, and that "Prime Time Sunday" was it. Now, apparently, they aren't so sure.

Last week, word came from industry sources that "Prime Time Sunday" was on its last legs, that the show's disastrous ratings were too low to support NBC's staying with it for a full year, as its producers had been promised. It was said that "Prime Time" would air three more times and then be removed from the schedule in December.

NBC, while conceding that the show's ratings have disappointed, denied that "Prime Time" has been given a cancellation notice. Indeed, a Los Angeles producer is working on a segment scheduled to be aired in late January.

And Silverman and others in recent weeks have repeated that NBC is standing by the show. "Prime Time is firmly in the NBC schedule," an NBC spokesman said. "It has the full endorsement of Mr. Silverman and Mr. Small (NBC news chief Bill Small)."

Perhaps, but during the important November ratings sweeps period, when competition between the networks is at its fiercest, "Prime Time Sunday" was only allowed to air twice. The show was preempted on Nov. 4 and Nov. 11 by movies.

The last time "Prime Time Sunday" aired was Oct. 28, and then for only 20 minutes — the first two-thirds of the show being bumped by the conclusion of "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest." That mini-edition of "Prime Time Sunday" finished dead last in the Nielsen ratings for the week.

Before that, in the first six weeks of this season, "Prime Time" aired only four times, finishing near the bottom of the ratings in each outing with an average audience share of about one-in-five viewers.

Similar ratings failures and frequent pre-emptions preceded the death of "Weekend," the predecessor of "Prime Time." Meanwhile, ABC's news-

Composer Is Dead At 85

LONDON (AP) — Dimitri Tiomkin, Oscar-winning American composer of more than 160 movie scores including "High Noon," has died in London at the age of 85, his wife said today.

She said he died early Sunday morning at his home in Highgate, north London, two weeks after a bad fall in which he fractured his pelvis.

The symphonic sweep of his colorful scores brought him four Oscars — for "The Alamo," "The Old Man and the Sea," "The High and the Mighty" and "High Noon" with its unforgettable theme song, "Do Not Forsake Me Oh My Darling."

Reagan Announces Via TV Stations

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — When Ronald Reagan announces his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination Tuesday night, audiences of six North Carolina television stations will be able to watch the speech.

The stations will be among 200 across the country that sold air time to Reagan.

The three major commercial networks refused to sell Reagan the 30-minute slot he requested, so it became necessary to buy time from individual stations, said Kenneth Kling, Reagan's Southeastern regional political director.

"We had to go to each area individually and go to the local stations to buy time," he said.

Kling said the former California governor taped the program Monday in New York and will air it on a piecemeal network at a cost of about $400,000.

North Carolina stations that sold time to Reagan are Raleigh's WPTF-TV, Washington's WITN-TV, High Point's WGHP-TV and Charlotte's WRET-TV.

Some viewers in North Carolina will also be able to see the announcement on the Spartanburg, S.C., station, WFBC-

Eye Test Is Set On TV

Dr. Dorothy Talbot, president of the North Carolina Society to Prevent Blindness, has announced a first for North Carolina—a television broadcast program designed to enable viewers to take part in an eye test.

At 6 p.m. Sunday, November 18, under the sponsorship of the North Carolina Society to Prevent Blindness, WNCT-TV, Channel 9, will broadcast the special program.

North Carolina, along with Colorado and Texas, are the states chosen for the first time showing of this test on commercial television.

Dr. Milton Flock, an ophthalmologist at Stanford University, California, has developed the television eye screening test, which takes 12 minutes viewing time.

According to Dr. Flock, "It is possible for viewers using their own television sets to test their eyesight, to the point of discovering whether they may have vision problems requiring immediate professional attention and treatment."

After the test is introduced, the screening process will begin. Viewers will have about 15 minutes in which they may respond by telephone. A bank of phones will be set up in the TV studio, with volunteers available to respond to questions on a person-to-person basis for about half an hour after the program's conclusion.

Robert K. Adams, Jr., ECU director of Resource Development, is serving as volunteer coordinator for the project in the WNCT-TV viewing area.

Opening lead: Seven of ♣.

Today, you be the judge. Study the play of this hand carefully, then decide whether declarer was just lucky or whether he had played the hand properly.

After South's jump in diamonds, North's heart bid was not an attempt to find a better contract. He was cue-bidding to show a maximum no trump with good support for diamonds. South cooperated by introducing his second suit. North then cue-bid in the other major to reaffirm his slam ambitions, and South decided that the fact all of his high cards were in his long suits made his hand worth contracting for twelve tricks.

West led a spade. Declarer won the ace and drew trumps in two rounds. Next came three rounds of clubs, declarer discarding a spade from dummy on the third round. Now East was presented with a spade trick.

East, down to nothing but major suit cards, was faced with a choice of losing options. If he returned a heart, it would be into dummy's A-Q tenace. And if he exited with a spade, declarer would ruff in dummy while discarding a heart from his hand. Either way, the defenders couldn't get a heart trick.

Not a bad result, consider-

Political Campaign Trail Is Old Story To Senator Baker's Wife

WASHINGTON (AP) — Campaigning is nothing new to Joy Baker. She's been doing it ever since she was three and says she will keep on the campaign trail as her husband tries to become president.

Mrs. Baker was with her husband, Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker, when he began his official campaign with a swing through New England.

At Brown University in Providence, R.I., while Baker was answering questions from enthusiastic students, she stood up on the platform, walked behind Baker and whispered into his left ear.

"My wife just told me that I owe the next question to a young woman, that young woman at the microphone there," Baker said. The question: How do you stand on the Equal Rights Amendment? He's for it, but opposed extending the time for ratification "because I don't think we should tinker with the Constitution by a simple resolution of Congress."

Getting up in front of audiences is something the only daughter of the late Everett Dirksen of Illinois has been doing since she was three. "I remember going with my father to rallies and speeches," she said.

Now, she said, "I'll be campaigning with my husband in a race which is the most important one of his life."

Mrs. Baker's father was Senate Republican leader when she and Baker married in 1951, but she was not always with Baker at every campaign stop as he worked toward assuming the job Mrs. Baker's father once held.

Most reporters and political leaders in Tennessee and Washington knew why she was sometimes absent, but it was not until the 1976 Republican National Convention in Kansas City that the nation knew.

An alcoholic, Mrs. Baker battled the bottle for years. The news was leaked by the White House to reporters after Baker, then a vice presidential candidate, disclosed it as something that could prove embarrassing.

In 1971, she underwent treatment in Connecticut and Baker said earlier this year, "She has overcome the cruellest disease of all. I'm proud of her." While others enjoyed cocktails on Baker's campaign plane in New England, the candidate's wife sipped soft drinks.

She accompanied Baker at handshaking and speaking engagements throughout New England and finally to Portland, Maine, where Baker lost to former CIA director George Bush in a nonbinding caucus vote he expected to win.

After that loss, Mrs. Baker began smiling first, and by the time Baker returned to Washington, his own glum countenance was replaced by a smile.

"I've campaigned with Howard through all his Senate races and I plan to travel with him throughout the nation in this race for the presidency," she said.

But after the initial swing, Mrs. Baker took a week off. The Bakers' daughter and campaigner, Cissy, missed her father's announcement and early campaigning because of an emergency appendectomy.

So Mrs. Baker stayed behind with Cissy, 23, when Baker went to the Midwest last week.

MEGAN MARSHAK, the staff aide who was with Nelson Rockefeller when he died last January, has been hired to handle publicity for Broadway producer Alexander H. Cohen. She will also work as an assistant to Cohen's wife, Hildy Parks, who produces the Tony awards show with her husband each year. (AP Laserphoto)

Ruled Innocent In Son's Death

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Nancy Wolfe, who authorities say devoted 13 years to caring for her handicapped son before shooting him to death, has been found innocent of manslaughter by reason of mental defect.

Judge Ted E. Wedemeyer of Circuit Court made the ruling Monday after two hours of testimony from psychiatrists.

James R. Wolfe Jr., 13, was fatally wounded Aug. 3 with a .38-caliber pistol. His mother, 39, pleaded innocent.

The boy's father said his wife was overcome by the stress of caring for the boy, especially after receiving a letter from public school officials that the youth would be transferred to a new school for which she felt she had not prepared him.

The quadriplegic boy had cerebral palsy, was usually confined to a wheelchair, was virtually deaf and could not speak.

In a letter to school officials three years ago, Mrs. Wolfe detailed her efforts to raise the child after doctors "told us bluntly that our son would remain in a 'vegetable state' the rest of his life."

She learned sign language, used "daily efforts at physical therapy" to teach him to crawl by age 3, and provided "five to seven hours of therapy a day" to ease his pain after leg surgery when he was 9.

The senior Wolfe said his wife had encountered increasing difficulty handling the boy as he reached adolescence.

Wolfe, a factory worker, was grocery shopping when neighbors found Mrs. Wolfe lying on her lawn, sobbing and saying: "They'll never hurt him again."

The boy was found in the home with a fatal head wound. Mrs. Wolfe admitted herself to a mental hospital after the shooting.

Wedemeyer has scheduled another trial-hearing for Nov. 27 to determine her current mental state.

Psychologist Joanna Spiro testified Mrs. Wolfe had sought treatment for trances brought on by the struggle.

They occurred, Mrs. Spiro said, "when she was unable to convince the schools, social services...that her son needed a certain kind of help."

Mrs. Wolfe is free on $1,500 bail.

City Counts 2 Accidents

An estimated $2,000 damage resulted from two traffic mishaps investigated by Greenville police yesterday.

Heaviest damage, according to investigators, resulted when cars driven by Peggy Ebron Gatlin of 118 Fox Run Cir., and Rhessa Aleta Davis of 518 Winchester Dr., collided about 9:12 p.m. at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Greenville Boulevard.

Damage from the mishap was estimated at $900 to the Gatlin car and $500 to the Davis auto.

Paul David Schlesinger of Raleigh, was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety, following investigation of a 6:59 p.m. collision on Memorial Drive, 72 feet South of the Millbrook Street intersection.

Police reported the Schlesinger car collided with an auto driven by Valerie Harding Banks of Eastwood Apts., causing an estimated $400 damage to the Schlesinger car and $200 damage to the Banks auto.

Back To Normal After Greensboro's Weekend

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) - Greensboro police said late Monday night the city was quiet and appeared to be back to normal following the lifting of a state of emergency after a funeral march for five leftist activists who were slain during an anti-Ku Klux Klan rally.

What officers described as a routine day Monday was in marked contrast to the events of the past two weekends. On Nov. 3, five members of the Communist Workers Party were gunned down at a "Death to the Klan" rally staged in a predominantly black neighborhood.

Four died at the scene and the fifth two days later. The shooting came as black and white demonstrators gathered for the rally. Several carloads of whites rolled in and, after heckling from both sides, gunfire erupted.

And a court order allowing law-enforcement officers to search cars and individuals for weapons also expired Monday afternoon. City officials also lifted a moratorium on parade permits.

Police said violence was prevented during the march by the elaborate plan set up by state and federal law enforcement agencies, local hospitals, emergency transportation services, National Guard, fire departments, college security forces and human relations experts.

Cost estimates for the operation were not available Monday. Col. Kenneth Newbold, commander of the guardsmen, said the federal government will pay for one day of the guard's services while the state will pick up the tab for Sunday.

Normally, fractures heal with great rapidity. When the fracture is very severe, or when some infection is present, healing may be delayed for a long time.

My mother and I were in an automobile accident. I fractured my right arm. My mother broke her left leg. We are both pretty healthy. I am 22. I healed in about seven weeks. My mother is 54. She has been in a cast for 11 months. Her fracture hasn't healed yet. How do you explain this? - Miss R.F., R.I. Dear Miss F.:

All healing is an intricate process which depends on many factors. Not all of them can be readily pinpointed or explained. Healing, however, can be enhanced by the newer advances in the science of orthopedics.

In addition to delayed healing, there are other factors at work which make it impossible for the fragments of bones to knit. This is known as "non-union" of fracture. In older people, particularly, poor blood supply is the major reason for delayed healing, and even non-union. Because the blood supply is poor, transportation of blood, with all its nutrients, is diminished and healing is delayed.

My father has cancer. He is 68. I don't want to go into the details of where the cancer is or the complications that have arisen. We are overwhelmed by the kindnesses and caring that have been shown by his doctors and his surgeon. Our general family physician has been incessant in his attentions. We feel we are blessed by their insight and empathy. You may wonder what, then, is the problem? Both my father and my family need the absolute assurance that he will not die in pain. It would be an immeasurable gift if we could have that assurance. - Mrs. T.W., Conn.

"Caring" is a very special ingredient in the practice of medicine. It offers support to the patient and to the family, and very often helps bridge the paths of sorrow. It is interesting that even when you are so burdened you want to express your appreciation of your doctors' solicitude.

Scoutorama Drew Crowd

Approximately 5,000 persons attended the Saturday Scout-O-Rama at McGowan's Warehouse, Greenville. The event was hosted by Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts and Explorer Scouts from Pitt, Lenoir, Greene, Beaufort, Hyde, Edgecombe, Nash and Halifax Counties.

Approximately 400 Scouts were involved in the Scout-O-Rama, said Manning, with proceeds going toward individual troop projects. All Scouts are in the East Carolina Council.

With psychological guidance and religious support, this despairing period in your lives can be modified. "Caring" is, indeed, a remarkable drug.

First and Third grades will attend a story-telling session with Mrs. Alice Angell, a grade parent, and the sixth grades are anticipating a return from Dr. Norman Pendered of the ECU School of Technology. Dr. Pendered has done extensive research into pirate lore of the Outer Banks and has written two books about famous pirates, Blackbeard and Stede Bonnet. He will present an illustrated slide talk for the students.

Second grade children will visit the neighborhood public library, Carver, where the librarian Willie Mae Gibbs, will show movies. All children are involved in making book marks, decorating their classroom doors, and preparing bulletin boards.

Other activities will include slide talks by the librarian, Lillian Scott. Fairy tales, folktales, and book classic sound filmstrips will be shown, in the media center and classrooms. Fifth grade classes are planning a story book parade Wednesday.

Agoraphobiacs Choke Back Fears In Group Effort

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — One night a week, they summon enough courage to pull themselves together to go out in the night. They share a common enemy and on this night they are choking back the fear to battle that enemy.

They suffer from an affliction called agoraphobia, a Greek word that means fear of the marketplace.

Many of those afflicted, however, come to fear almost everything, experts say. In restaurants, shopping centers, theaters, stadiums and department stores, agoraphobiacs are apt to suffer anxiety attacks.

About one out of every hundred Americans suffers from it with varying acuteness.

Some agoraphobiacs are possessed by so many fears they are unable to function in society. Others are defeated by certain tasks every day life requires of them.

On Wednesdays, some agoraphobiacs in North Carolina head for First Christian Church in Winston-Salem in an attempt to conquer their fears.

They are attending 16 weekly, 2½-hour sessions at a TERRAP "territorial apprehensiveness" Center conducted by Robert Reid, a recovered agoraphobiac and Dr. Stephen Moyer, a Winston-Salem psychologist.

The course costs $600. Reid doesn't claim miracle cures, "but all who have taken the course (it was begun in May 1978) have benefited to some degree," he says.

At one recent session, there was a woman who rarely leaves her apartment complex. When transported to the weekly sessions, she keeps her eyes closed and trembles the entire way.

Also in attendance was a well educated man from Boone with exquisite manners. But he will not eat in restaurants or attend dinner parties because he fears he will become sloppy and spill food and drink.

There was a college student petrified at the thought of asking a question or participating in a class discussion. He also is unable to bring himself to ask a girl for a date.

During sessions, group members discuss problems and take comfort from seeing others in the same boat. They are presented reading material and homework assignments.

Toward the end of the 16 weeks, they are required to directly confront their fears.

They go on field trips to shopping centers, high-rise buildings, elevators or expressways. Many are terrified of airplanes, so they go to an airport and board a plane for a simulated flight.

TERRAP officials say one of their biggest success stories involves a Lutheran minister, the Rev. Fred Hedt, of Concord.

His fears started in seminary.

"I was in class one day and all of a sudden I didn't know what was happening to me. I began feeling shortness of breath and the feeling of dread swept over me," he said.

Hedt managed to finish school although the feeling recurring periodically.

He became a pastor and won praise for being so devoted to his parish. But the truth was he was afraid to leave its boundaries.

"I just about had to limit my life to my work," he said.

He began avoiding ministerial conferences in other cities. He found he could not ride as a passenger in a car. He developed a fear of airplanes and even started having anxiety attacks in theaters, though he loves movies.

"One thing I wanted to do but couldn't was take up jogging. It was the distance from home. In a car, with me driving, I could handle it. But on foot, I became fearful I couldn't get back home if I panicked," Hedt said.

He realized what his problem was when he heard it described on a television program in 1978. He was elated.

"Until that moment I thought I was the only one in the world like that," he said.

He found his way to Reid's program and has completed the course.

"I am 95 percent recovered," he said. "I am doing things I wouldn't have dared two years ago. I have flown to California and back, and may soon fly to Colorado."

He's active outside his parish, attends movies and jogs.

Bertie Shehdan of Raleigh is another TERRAP graduate who is still struggling with anxiety. Mrs. Shehdan's main fears are airplanes and high-rise buildings. If there is a party at Raleigh's exclusive City Club high atop a downtown building, she doesn't go. When she stays in a hotel, it has to be on a lower floor.

"I can handle small rooms, but it is the enclosed mechanical things that bother me, such as planes and elevators. My heart starts racing," she said.

Her fears persist, but she says TERRAP "has helped me a great deal. I didn't expect to be cured in just 16 weeks, but I do know a lot more about what is wrong with me. I don't try to cover it up anymore."

Eventually, she said, she believes she will take an airplane ride or visit a high-rise. She mustered enough courage recently to board a plane for the simulated flight. The experience produced anxiety but she didn't panic.

"Two years ago, I wouldn't even have attempted that much."

Wave Of Illness Struck School

HUGO, Okla. (AP) — "Our teacher said, 'Anybody who feels sick can just run to the bathroom,' and everybody got up and started running."

The unidentified student was describing a wave of illness that hit her school Monday when students and faculty began "falling like flies," vomiting and complaining of cramps and diarrhea after a school lunch of beef tacos, okra and peach cobbler.

Doctors said none of the some 270 victims were likely to die, but some might "wish they were dead."

Officials at Franklin Junior High School said the victims contracted what appeared to be food poisoning following the school cafeteria lunch.

"People just started falling down and bumping into each other," said seventh grader Vince Johnson.

Schools were closed today as four other cafeterias in the school system were checked for possible contamination.

None of the victims was reported in critical condition. About 102 students and faculty members were admitted to hospitals in Hugo, Antlers, Idabel, and Paris, Texas. Another 168 were treated and released.

The 76-bed Choctaw County Memorial Hospital was filled to capacity, and broom closets, lounges and offices were converted into emergency bed space. Mattresses were lined up on hallway floors and intravenous bottles were hung with coathangers from TV sets and door frames.

"Children were everywhere vomiting uncontrollably," a reporter at the hospital said.

Frantic parents checking on the welfare of their children caused a traffic jam for a four-block radius around the hospital.

"If it's what we think it is, it will not kill anybody, but it will make them wish they were dead," said Dr. Robert Coates, a staff physician at Choctaw Memorial.

He and other physicians suspected a staph infection caused the ailment. Coates said the symptoms usually persist for 24 to 48 hours.

Coates said youngsters affected ranged from third graders through high school students. He said all of those who became ill ate at the junior high school cafeteria at noon or later. Students and staffers who ate during an 11 a.m. lunch break did not become sick.

Book Week At Eastern

Children's Book Week at Eastern Elementary School started this week with all students placing a star in the front hall of the school for each book he reads.

This will continue all week, and hopefully, by Friday, the entire hall will be covered with stars. The theme of Book week is "More Books in the Home" and the activities of the week aim to encourage reading books, both at school and elsewhere.

Other activities will include a visit by a local author, Dr. Norman Pendered of ECU School of Technology. Dr. Pendered, the author of two books about Blackbeard and Stede Bonnet, will give an illustrated slide presentation of the intermediate pirates.

Billy Stinson of Rose High School will present two separate programs Thursday telling folktales to the accompaniment of several musical instruments.

Classrooms are exhibiting displays, bulletin boards, and conducting the reading contests. Story book characters will also be featured by children in various classes.

Mrs. Mona Moye is librarian at Eastern Elementary School.

Arrest Two In Bomb-Throwing

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Cumberland County Sheriff's deputies have arrested two Fort Bragg soldiers and charged them with throwing a bomb at the home of an Army sergeant.

Stephen Joseph Cantz, 26, and Cindy Lynn Baker, 20, both of the 5th Special Forces Group, were being held under $6,000 bond Monday night. Authorities would not release the ranks or duties of either.

They were charged with throwing the bomb, a quarter-pound slab of TNT attached to a mock hand grenade, at the home of Master Sgt. James E. Ross late Sunday. The bomb bounced harmlessly off Ross' house and landed beneath the bedroom window where one of his grandchildren was sleeping, authorities said.

The mock hand grenade exploded on impact, but did not set off the TNT.

Ross said he was once in charge of a unit to which Cantz was assigned.
