The one-story speculative industrial building, which will be constructed in the industrial area, will contain some 40,000 square feet.

Building A Speculative Industrial Facility Here

James H. Hudson, president of J. H. Hudson Inc., general contractors here, announced to Pitt County Development Commission officials plans to construct a 40,000 square foot speculative industrial building north of Greenville.

The facility will have electric, water, sewer and natural gas services, it was pointed out, and when completed will be approximately 200 square feet of office space and the entire facility will be constructed to accommodate possible future expansion up to 200,000 square feet with additional acreage also available.

"The recent experience of industrial development in North Carolina, and particularly in eastern North Carolina, is for clients to locate where there is an

Sadat Urges Goodwill In Mt. Sinai Address

By LISETTE BALOUNY Associated Press Writer

WADI RAHA, Egypt (AP) — President Anwar Sadat appealed from the foot of Mount Sinai today to the peoples of the world to strive for "goodness and the avoidance of bloodshed, violence and hatred."

In a 15-minute speech marking the second anniversary of his historic trip to Jerusalem, the Egyptian president praised "my two friends," President Carter and Prime Minister Menachem Begin of Israel for addressing the Lord," Sadat said.

"I hope that we can together, all the believers and the faithful, do something that would glorify this magnificent achievement on this sacred spot."

Sadat has proposed the building of a single house of worship for all three religions in the valley where the Children of Israel waited for Moses while he climbed to the 7,500-foot peak to receive the Commandments.

Before his speech, Sadat said prayers of thanksgiving and, to the accompaniment of a military band, hoisted the red, white and black Egyptian flag.

About 500 guests flew into the southern Sinai for the ceremony, including Israeli officials and a U.S. delegation headed by outgoing Mideast envoy Robert Strauss.

They mixed with several hundred Bedouin tribesmen, some on camels, and prominent Egyptian officials including cabinet members, members of parliament and the religious leaders of Egypt's Moslem, Christian and Jewish communities.

Three Hostages In Iran Are Released

By The Associated Press

Three American hostages freed from the U.S. Embassy in Tehran arrived in Western Europe today and Iranian militants appeared about to release 10 more for expulsion from the country.

A White House statement said if Iran attempts to put any of the remaining 49 U.S. hostages on trial for espionage, as Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini has threatened, it would be a "further flagrant violation" of international law.

Looking fit and well, a young woman secretary and two black Marine sergeants arrived in Copenhagen on a Scandinavian airliner and were immediately transferred to a U.S. military plane. They were flown to Frankfurt, West Germany, for a medical checkup at a military hospital.

A military source told The Associated Press the three were to be taken to the U.S. Army's 97th General Hospital in Frankfurt. The source, who asked not to be identified, did not rule out the possibility they might be transferred later to a larger hospital operated by the Air Force in nearby Wiesbaden.

State Department officials in Frankfurt refused to say how long the three would remain there, but in Washington officials said they were expected to stay at least two or three days for debriefings and tests.

Their release was the first break in the embassy siege that began Nov. 4.

A report by Radio that four more women and six more blacks had been freed and would leave Tehran later today was apparently premature. ABC News said one of its correspondents in Tehran reported the official radio was anticipating the release, and the 10 hostages had not actually been turned over to the Iranian Foreign Ministry yet for expulsion.

Reports from Tehran indicated the 10 may be paraded before microphones and cameras at a press conference tonight before release. Their names were not announced.

The first hostages freed were Katherine Gross, 22, of Cambridge Springs, Pa., a secretary in the economics section of the embassy, and Sgts. William E. Quarles of Washington, D.C., and Ladell Maples, 23, of Earle, Ark.

The State Department said U.S. authorities in Germany would question them about the condition of the rest of the hostages. An official said those freed would be given "decompression time" to themselves during which reporters would be kept away from them.

The trio waved cheerfully to a crowd of reporters and photographers waiting at the Copenhagen airport, but U.S. Ambassador Warren D. Manshel rushed them into his limousine and drove them to the waiting U.S. Air Force DC-9. After boarding the military plane, they came back to the door to wave again to the reporters and photographers. But they shook their heads at questions shouted up to them.

The Air Force plane took off less than 20 minutes after the hostages arrived.

Miss Gross, Quarles and Maples were put on display at a news conference at the embassy Sunday and she told several hundred reporters:

"We haven't had any problems. We've been fed more than fairly. There haven't been any problems physically. Maybe people have been mentally upset, but other than that we haven't had any problems. The most difficult part was having to sit on hard chairs 16 hours a day with my hands tied."

Their captors said earlier that they would deliver a total of eight black men and five women to the Iranian Foreign Ministry today for expulsion from the country. Tehran Radio said the 13 had been absolved of espionage activities.

WHY SEND FINAL NOTICE?

I don't understand why the Pitt County tax collector's offices sends out what they call "final notices." The notice insinuates that taxes are past due, when everyone knows they're not past due until after the first of January. Even though the form has the disclaimer, "this is only a reminder," I feel it's like a nasty little note. The forms seem to me to be a form of duns for those who don't deserve them. H.M.

According to Geraldine Teel, office manager for the Tax Collector's office, county taxes are due in September, so therefore, those taxes not paid are past due. However, the county does not begin to charge a penalizing interest rate until after January 6. She noted that over 38,000 final notices were sent this year, many of those sent in two pieces (i. e. husband and wife joint listing of automobiles).

When Hotline contacted Reginald Gray, county manager, about the cost of mailing the final notices, he explained the county, like any other business, must bill its "customers" in order to obtain its rightful funds. He pointed out that the day we talked with him, a line was outside the tax collector's office, proving the value of the notices.

According to Gray, the county has a special permit from the Postal Service, allowing it a lower postal charge for bulk mailing and pre-sorting of its outgoing mail. The county mails pieces first class for 11 cents apiece instead of the regular 15 cents.

However, when Gray went over the costs for mailing the current final notices, he found that due to an error in the county offices, the notices had been mailed at a cost of 15 cents apiece, for a total cost of $5,770.20.

So, although you were confused on the deadline for tax payment, H. M., you pointed up an important error to county offices concerning the mailing of the notices.

City Council To Meet Tuesday

The City Council will have scheduled a special call meeting for Tuesday, Nov. 20 at 8 p.m. in the council chambers at city hall.

Business on the call agenda includes: public hearing on the annexation of the right-of-way of Mumford Road; public hearing on Articles VI-IX of the proposed Subdivision Regulations Ordinance; Consideration of an application by P.E.I. Foods Inc.

of North Carolina for a special use permit to operate a beerhall and entertainment center at 300 E. Tenth Street; consideration of a resolution, as requested by Greenville Utilities Commission, approving the acquisition of an easement from Seaboard Coast Line Railroad Co.;

Consideration of a resolution approving the sale of Disposal Parcels 50B-1 and K-7C in the Southside Project by the Redevelopment Commission; consideration of an ordinance amending the Personnel Policies Ordinance relative to temporary employees;

Consideration of a recommendation by the Recreation and Parks Commission that the West Greenville Park be named the Thomas Foreman Park; recommendation by the Recreation and Parks Commission that the Council accept a donation from L. M. Ernest Jr. of Goldsboro of a lot located on Elm Street adjacent to Elm Street Park;

Consideration of a resolution authorizing the mayor to execute and submit a petition for annexation of the Wilderness Park on Mumford Road; and scheduling of a public hearing for Dec. 11 on an ordinance amending the annexation ordinance on the Utilities Operation Center to include the right-of-way of Mumford Road.

Probe Break-In And Vandalism

WASHINGTON, N.C. (AP) — The State Bureau of Investigation, Chocowinity police and Beaufort County authorities are investigating a break-in Sunday night at television station WTTN.

Roy Hardee, the station's news director, said damages from vandalism were extensive but there is no dollar estimate of damages yet.

Hardee said vandals cut cables, broke out two doors and ransacked offices. He said the station's switcher and a camera were damaged but programming was not disrupted. Nothing was stolen, Hardee said.

Meany Carter, Reagan 'Heir' Chosen Take Fla. Poll

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lane Kirkland, organized labor's shy and scholarly administrator, won election as president of the 13.6-million-member AFL-CIO today, ending a quarter-century of leadership under George Meany.

Kirkland, 57, the ailing Meany's second in command and hand-picked successor, was elected without opposition by 1,000 delegates attending the labor organization's 13th convention.

It was the first change of leadership since Meany, 85, was installed as president after the birth 24 years ago of the merged American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations.

Kirkland, a South Carolinian who worked his way up the AFL-CIO staff during a 30-year career with the labor federation, emerges now not only as chief spokesman for unionized workers but also as a potent force in the nation's political, social and economic affairs.

Kirkland is a protege and close friend of Meany, who is retiring after 12 two-year terms as AFL-CIO president because of poor health, and his eventual election to the top post had been anticipated for years.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — In practical terms, the straw vote held at Florida's Democratic convention this weekend didn't mean a thing.

But supporters of the president — saying they're "exhilarated, excited and thrilled" — claim they're ready to beat the challenger from Massachusetts, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, in this southern state that helped put Jimmy Carter in the White House three years ago.

Both sides are bracing for a bruising battle for Florida's 100 delegates to the Democratic National Convention, to be held in New York City next summer. Those delegates will be chosen in the state primary March 11.

"We have to take our case for the president to every single voter in the state," said Jay Hakes, Carter's Florida campaign manager. "We'll have to have a much wider audience than we've had up to this point."

Carter's allies were pleased with the lopsided victory he scored over Kennedy on the straw ballot Sunday as the three-day convention came to a close with the atmosphere of a Carter campaign rally.

Carter won 1,114 delegates to 351 for Kennedy and nine with no preference, a showing Hakes called decisive. Kennedy supporters point out that most delegates were activists — office holders and that Kennedy has strong support among ordinary voters.

Another Carter challenger, California Gov. Jerry Brown, was not on the ballot.

Meanwhile, in Orlando, state Republicans gave ex-California Gov. Ronald Reagan the nod in a highly publicized straw ballot. Reagan picked up 36.4 percent of the ballots Saturday to 26.6 percent for his closest competitor, former Texas Gov. John Connolly.

Ex-CIA director George Bush netted third place in the GOP race with 21.1 percent, followed by Illinois Rep. Philip Crane and Sen. Howard Baker trailing in last place.

Oil Damage Is Less Than Fear

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Parts of Galveston Island have been smeared with oil from the burning tanker Burmah Agate, but scientists say the oil apparently is not as harmful to marine life as had been feared.

"There have been a few tar balls wash up, but it's mostly a soupy mixture of oil and water," said Coast Guard Lt. Ann Bennett.

Cleanup operations continued Sunday as light southeasterly winds pushed more oil ashore from the crippled Burmah Agate which collided Nov. 1 with an empty freighter, killing 32 sailors. The bodies of 17 crewmen have been recovered.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
1979 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: In listing the various peoples who came from other countries to build America, there was no mention of the blacks who came from Africa. Should they not be credited with giving America gospel music and jazz and the blues?

BLACK AND PROUD

DEAR PROUD: Yes. But the blacks contributed much more than music. For decades they worked our fields, cleaned our homes, cooked our meals, nursed our babies and fought our wars. Against tremendous odds, they managed to produce such outstanding Americans as George Washington Carver, Booker T. Washington, A. Philip Randolph, Jesse Owens, Marian Anderson, Jackie Robinson, Ralph Bunche, Thurgood Marshall, Andrew Young and too many more to mention here.

But it took a Civil Rights Act (1964) to grant blacks equal rights and make racial discrimination illegal.

DEAR ABBY: I am amazed that the British didn't get a special mention for their contributions to America. They gave us the very foundation for our nation!

They gave us not only George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and Benjamin Franklin, but most of our founding fathers. And of course, they gave us our language.

Our law is based on British common law.

Also, the British dominance in literature, combined with the English language, provided a tradition that gave us many of our own outstanding literary figures.

D.L. IN MICHIGAN

DEAR D.L.: You're right, or course. May heaven forgive me, and God save the king!

DEAR ABBY: When I was divorced two years ago, I gave my husband custody of our 2-year-old daughter because I felt that he was a more patient, responsible and capable parent than I. I pay a monthly support, so it's not as though I wanted an easy out from parenthood.

My problem is my grandparents who live in another state. They haven't spoken to me since my divorce because they think I'm "disgusting" for having given up my child. I've written to them, explaining my reasons for my actions. I've sent gifts at holiday time, but have been ignored. I've telephoned them, but the minute they hear my voice, they hang up on me! I've begged them to see me, but they refuse.

They see my child once or twice a month, so they're not being deprived of their great-grandchild.

Abby, it hurts terribly to be treated this way. How can I get back in their good graces?

REJECTED IN RENO

DEAR REJECTED: You've done all you can. Quit crawling and begging. You didn't deserve to be rejected in the first place. I think it took a great deal of character and unselfishness to have given up your child for the reasons you did. I hope time will soften their hearts and harsh judgment of you. If it doesn't, they will be the biggest losers.

CONFIDENTIAL TO A READER IN POPLAR BLUFF, MO.: Hodding Carter said, "There are only two lasting bequests we can hope to give our children: One is roots; the other, wings."

Let go.

Sanitation Div. To Observe 2 Holidays

The Sanitation Division of the Public Works Department will observe Thanksgiving on Thursday, Nov. 22 and also Friday as a regular holiday.

The business district will be serviced on Friday because of the large amount of trash, it was noted, with employees who work on Friday receiving another day off.

The Sanitation Division, in apologizing for the inconvenience of having only one backyard pick-up during Thanksgiving week, encouraged all residents to put all trash or yard raking out front Tuesday evening. All residents will be serviced with an early Wednesday curbside pick-up.

Stewart Sees No Conflict Of Interests In Serving Clients

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State House Speaker Carl Stewart says there is no conflict of interest between representing his legal clients before a state regulatory body and his elective office.

Stewart, who has a Gastonia law firm, may have benefited to the tune of $100,000 from a 1977 move by the General Assembly to approve stock-owned savings and loan companies.

The candidate for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor in 1980 has represented nine of the new stock associations in addition to two mutual associations.

The legal fee is believed to be $10,000 for each application, but Stewart would not disclose the exact amount. That could mean more than $100,000 income for Stewart since the bill was passed.

Stewart has helped five of the stock companies get charters and two mutuals get permission for branches from the N.C. Savings and Loan Commission, a state Commerce Department agency. Like other state departments, it receives its orders and funding from the General Assembly.

But Stewart says there's no difference between representing clients before a state regulatory body or a state court.

"I make no apologies for that," he said last week. "It's the system we have in North Carolina, that of a citizen-legislator, and lawyers must continue to practice law and I have and will continue."

Stewart favored passage of legislation permitting stock-owned associations.

He says there would be a conflict of interest if as speaker he appointed members of the commissions or if he had some financial investment in the organizations he represents before the commissions.

The 1977 legislature approved the change in the savings and loan associations. The bill was introduced by Stewart's hometown colleague, Rep. Graham Bell. Stewart appointed Bell chairman of the Banking Committee.

Since the legislature approved the change, 55 stock groups have applied to become state-chartered, privately-owned savings and loans. Of those, 30 have been approved. Stewart has represented one-sixth, or about nine, of the applicants.

N.C. Deputy Savings and Loan Administrator George King said former state Sen. John Jordan of Raleigh, chief lobbyist for the N.C. Banking Association, has represented as many associations as Stewart. Mosts other lawyers have represented two or three clients.

Other legislators have practiced before the state commission. They are Rep. James Ezzel, D-Rocky Mount, and Rep. William McMillan, D-Statesville.

Some members of the savings and loan industry and Gov. Jim Hunt have grumbled about legislators practicing before regulatory bodies.

Last week, Hunt issued a statement saying, "That is something that legislators should give serious thought to and something they should consider very carefully."

Stewart, who actively sought a legislative ethics bill several years ago, contends his activities before the commission are a result of his area of specialty. "There is a relatively limited number of attorneys who have been active in this area, and it is natural for a financial institution to turn to one of the half-dozen or so attorneys who specialize in it."

Alumni Held Conn. Meet

NEW HAVEN, CONN. — The annual meeting of the H. B. Sugg Charitable Organization was held here recently.

The organization, made up of alumni of H. B. Sugg High School in Farmville, has chapters in Farmville, Norfolk, Va., Boston, Mass., Stanford, Conn., Baltimore, Md., New York City, and Washington, D. C. The annual meeting is held each November.

National officers elected were John B. Slade, president; Eddie Artis, vice president; Desiree McLawhorn, secretary; Lellon C. Gorham, financial secretary. The position of Cleveland Vines as chairman was unchallenged.

The agenda also included revising the constitution, planning of Labor Day activities, chapter reports, financial reports, budget committee report, charitable donations, election of national officers and establishing a Northern Connecticut chapter. The executive board will meet next at a time and place to be determined by the national president.

A spark on the rug! An explosion in the living room! Smoke in the den!

Suddenly, the friendly, comfortable, sturdy-looking wood burning stove that attracted so many comments from your neighbors is endangering your home and family.

A bit melodramatic? Perhaps. But the Insurance Information Institute notes that many of the nation's home owners who installed wood burning stoves to provide heat and reduce fuel costs have discovered that these stoves also can be responsible for destructive fires.

Fire prevention officials, stove manufacturers, the Consumer Product Safety Commission and the insurance industry, agree that improperly installed and maintained wood burning stoves are an increasingly serious hazard to life and property. They also agree that the overwhelming number of fires that are occurring could be prevented if just a few simple rules are followed.

The Institute suggests a number of do's and don'ts:

DO—make sure there is the proper clearance between the stove and any combustible material (wall, ceiling, furniture, newspapers, or other inflammable object).

DO—place the stove on a fireproof base.

DO—consult a detailed safety manual to be sure the stove pipe and flue meet safety requirements.

DO—make sure your stove is made of sturdy, suitable material, such as cast iron or steel. Look for stoves bearing the Underwriters' Laboratories (UL) label or other evidence of testing by recognized laboratories.

DO—remember, if you purchase a used stove, to check it carefully for cracks or other defects. The legs, hinges, grates and draft louvers also should be checked carefully.

DON'T—ever burn anything but seasoned, dry, hardwood in the stove.

DON'T—ever use gasoline, kerosene or any inflammable liquid (including lighter fluid) to start a fire. Start a fire by using small strips of paper and twigs.

DON'T—treat the stove as a garbage unit.

DON'T—let a wood fire burn unattended or overnight.

DON'T—light this year's first fire without fire cleaning smokepipe elbows, joints and flues, as well as the chimney.

Printed information on wood burning stove selection and installation and on firewood may be secured by calling or writing your Pitt County Extension Office, P. O. Box 1427, Greenville.

Council Women Praised By Gov. Hunt At Meet

By ROSALIE TROTMAN
Reflector Woman's Editor

RALEIGH — "I like the title of this conference, Women in Action, because you are truly women in action," said Governor James B. Hunt Jr. Saturday morning during a session of the County Councils on the Status of Women.

The fifth annual meeting was held Friday evening and Saturday at the Royal Villa here.

Continuing Gov. Hunt said, "There are 57 councils now in North Carolina and I am pleased, but these are not enough. We need one in every county. Get people organized and get the councils organized."

"You are in tune with the needs of local women and you are helping them in very concrete ways — by helping them learn job skills and leadership skills by giving them a place to go for information and support. You are a network of people who care about women, who care about families, who care about the future of North Carolina. Your actions show that you care."

"Last year you touched the lives of at least 37,000 North Carolina women. That is the number we can document who attended your regional and state leadership conferences, workshops, exhibits and speeches. Countless thousands of other North Carolinians benefited from those contacts because the women you touched came away better informed, more self-confident, with better skills for living and working."

"...beginning this month you are opening four Career Centers for Displaced Homemakers to help about 250 women a year re-enter the job market. These women, most of whom have spent their lives raising families, need special help to learn how to apply for jobs, assess their skills and prepare themselves to compete in the marketplace."

"You are beginning to hold leadership development conferences in all 100 counties to help women take the kind of active role in business and government that they want to take," he stated.

"As we look ahead to the future, I'd like to see a number of things happen in North Carolina. County Councils on the Status of Women in all 100 counties, more women in the North Carolina senate and house, more women working in the top jobs in the factories and on the construction sites, women in action in every community, working to improve the schools, the courts, the government. I'd like to see more women living and working to their fullest potential, earning top dollars and getting a lot of joy out of life. I'd like to see little girls growing up to be doctors, lawyers and engineers as well as good mothers and loving wives."

"I think the future is bright in North Carolina. We are moving forward. We have many challenges ahead. We've already seen what we can do together and I'm confident we'll succeed if we keep on. We must stand shoulder to shoulder and we shall not fail," he concluded.

Others present for the breakfast session included Jane Smith Patterson, acting secretary, N. C. Department of Administration, Henry E. McKoy, assistant secretary, N. C. Department of Administration, and Senator Helen Rhyne Marvin, who presided.

Juanita Bryant, executive director, Leadership Conferences for Women, Claire Millar, director, Career Development Centers for Displaced Homemakers, Lillian Lee, director, Work Options for Women, and Paula Richardson, project director, Sexual Assault Project, with moderator Miriam J. Dorsey were panel members discussing the programs of the state council. This was followed by concurrent sessions on Linking County Councils and State Activities.

The afternoon sessions included Working Together in Six Regions with one of the sessions conducted by Helen Simpson of the Williamston region. Similar councils met together, updating what each has done and are planning followed by the state perspectives Working Together in the 1980s: New Strategies.

Sen. Marvin chaired a panel Friday night on the State Council in Action: New Staff and Directions for 1980, which was followed by a reception.

Mrs. Harrington Speaks To Club

The Lakewood Pines Garden Club held its meeting Tuesday at the home of Rosalie Harrell assisted by Peggy Morrison and Nelda Hedges. The program was given by Linda Harrington on holiday arrangements.

The decorations emphasis were on colorful bows, wicker accessories and dried greenery.

The horticulture report was given by Lib Wright. Pat Dubber suggested the library purchase some new books for use by garden club members.

Members were reminded to participate in a bake sale auction at the next meeting.

The Art of Carpeting & Decor
by Larry C. Whitlow

On a tight budget and shopping for carpeting? Consider that there is sometimes money to be saved by purchase of factory rejects or irregulars (seconds). Examine the items carefully, realizing that many imperfections are not visible and can affect performance. Remember that you normally will get what you pay for. "Not much money not much carpet!" Also discontinued floor coverings may be another source to examine. Remember too, that otherwise perfect remnants and mill-ends can save you CASH. Be sure to buy enough to fully complete the floor. Also, floor samples are sometimes reduced by carpet dealers. These are usually sold as is, which means that there is no recourse or guarantee if the carpeting is damaged or defective.

For all your carpeting and other flooring needs talk to us at LARRY'S CARPETLAND INC., 3018 E. 10th St., 794-2200. In addition to wall to wall carpeting, we have the largest selection of Oriental and area rugs in eastern North Carolina. Our stocks also include Armstrong Congoleum, and Mannington vinyl floors. Open: 9 a.m. - 5:30 Mon. thru Fri., 9 a.m. - 1 p.m. Sat. Have a nice Thanksgiving!

A Laudable Effort For Growth

Three area municipalities were among the 71 which received the governor's Community of Excellence awards at a banquet in Raleigh Thursday night.

Honored were Farmville, in Pitt County; Snow Hill, in Greene and Williamston in Martin County.

The awards were presented to communities which met certain criteria to be attractive to industry.

If there is one certainty in seeking industry, it is that good industries seldom just come to a community.

There are many things that a blue chip industry looks for in seeking a location. Important among them are clean and progressive municipalities, good schools and forward looking citizens seeking to build better communities.

Actually the things we need to do to attract industry are also things that make our communities more livable for the citizens who are already there. Thus a municipality which meets the Community of Excellence criteria is helping itself to a better way of life.

The citizens of Farmville, Snow Hill and Williamston have taken specific progressive steps to win the governor's awards. They are to be congratulated for their efforts.

Small Symbol Of Hope On Mt. Sinai

If there is any hope for settling Middle Eastern problems maybe the raising of the Egyptian flag over Mt. Sinai was symbolic of it.

Israel had won the sacred mountain with its blood, yet it is returning the captured Egyptian land in the interest of peace.

It doesn't solve all the troubles of that part of the world, but it is a giant beginning. The spirit of cooperation could spread throughout the area.

THIS AFTERNOON

The Five-Year Countdown

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — It will be five years before the various phases of North Carolina's revision of the way teachers are trained and certified are fully implemented.

When completed, however, educators are convinced the program will represent a systematic and comprehensive Quality Assurance Program.

The program was developed jointly between the State Board of Education and the Department of Public Instruction, which are responsible for hiring public school teachers; and the state's university system which trains most of the teachers.

J. Arthur Taylor, director of teacher education standards and certification at the State Department of Public Instruction, describes the program as one directed at quality assurance in seven specific areas: admission of prospective teachers, general education of prospects, preparation in specific fields, effective working partnership between those who train teachers and those who hire them, testing before graduation, performance evaluation both for teacher certification and retention, and regular evaluation of how the system itself is performing.

Cornerstone Both the general public and the State Board of Education are intent on the course of insisting that "the cornerstone of the instruction program delivery system ... the competence of the professional personnel charged with the responsibility of operating our schools" be improved, Taylor feels.

"We are convinced that present procedures used to evaluate institutional programs of teacher education and the product of approved programs are inadequate", Taylor adds.

He says the public has "expressed its expectation that instruction programs in the schools of this state should provide boys and girls with the basic knowledge and competence to meet life's needs in an adult society."

Improved instruction of public school students is "the only legitimate objective for the state's involvement in teacher education and certification," Taylor said. Revamping that entire approach is a means to an end ... improving the product of the schools.

The broad goals and programs in the Quality Assurance Program have already been endorsed by both the university's Board of Governors and the State Board of Education. A collection of study groups are now beginning their work, with broad representation from all elements of the education community, developing precise policies and procedures. This preparation will take a year, and results will remain subject to further change and refinement as specific steps are implemented and tested.

One of the recommended steps has already been taken. Over the next four years, scores on the required National Teacher Examination will be increased.

Other Steps

The other essentials of the Quality Assurance Program involve setting entrance requirements by teacher training institutions which would weed out those not prepared either academically or personally to go into teaching, and continuing checkpoints to "assure that individuals are achieving the objectives established for each phase of the teacher education program", Taylor explained.

This process would assure quality of entering students which is considered "undoubtedly the greatest single factor for consideration."

BILL NOBLITT

Pre-teacher education screening tests in English, literature, fine arts, social studies, mathematics, and science would typically be given at the sophomore year of college and those who "do not meet the minimum level of proficiency specified by the state must elect to go into some other program or spend the time necessary to achieve the minimum level," Taylor says.

Student teacher experience, now operated by the colleges, would move to direction of the school system instead, with those training and supervising the interns specially selected, prepared, and paid to perform that role.

COME NOW, WE CAN ALL LIST A FEW THINGS!

Bring Home Hopes

By WILLIAM M. WELCH

Associated Press Writer RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt and his entourage returned from the Orient last week, their arms full of gifts and purchases but without a lot of serious optimism about establishing meaningful economic ties with China.

The five day trip to China, part of a three-week visit to the Far East, was described as solely a tobacco trade mission by Hunt before he left.

There were vague press release comments from Hunt about a rosy future for tobacco trade during the China trip. But those who made the visit acknowledge there is little real prospect for a new market for North Carolina tobacco in China anytime soon.

"Very realistically, it is going to be some time we have any kind of market there, four or five years at the best," said Gary Pearce, Hunt's press secretary who was part of the delegation. "I think what the want is technology."

The cost of the trip to North Carolina taxpayers is official estimated at $35,000 for the 1 state officials, including two security agents.

What the state got for it money was the announcer of three new plants to be located in North Carolina by Japanese industries, and the possibility of landing three more.

When Hunt left, he noted that China was once one of the world's largest markets for North Carolina tobacco, and that the trip would be the first tobacco mission from this country to China in 30 years.

No one has predicted a return to that status following the trip in part because the Chinese have little money for such purchases and also because they grow plenty of their own leaf.

With a per capita income of less than $300, there is little available for purchase of consumer goods such as cigarettes.

"This is a very poor country, and it has little hard currency with which to buy goods on the world market," Hunt said while in Peking. "It has become clear to us that they are going to have to sell their products on that world market and bring in currency before they will be in a position to buy substantial amounts of our tobacco."

How the Chinese might raise that money may be of concern to North Carolina interests also.

Hugh Kiger, vice president of the Leaf Tobacco Exporters Association, accompanied Hunt into China. He said upon returning that increased exports of Chinese textile products to this country could be one way for that country to produce capital — a move that North Carolina textile manufacturers, who hope to limit import quotas during current international negotiations, would surely oppose.

Another possibility for export could be tobacco itself. China produces as much flue-cured tobacco as the U.S.

But Kiger dismissed the possibility China could sell a significant amount of its own tobacco on the world market and become a competitor of North Carolina farmers. Its own population, he said, is large enough to consume that Chinese crop.

Hunt and his companions returned from their trip with plenty of souvenirs. Hunt bought a rabbit fur hat. Christ

Dealing In Real Estate

WASHINGTON — If you want to know where the real estate market is at the moment, pay close attention.

Berman wanted to buy Shaw's house. This was okay with Shaw because he wanted to buy a Victorian home in Glencoe owned by the Katz family. Before Berman could buy Shaw's house, he had to sell his. Once Berman paid

Shaw, then Shaw could buy the Victorian home from the Katz estate (Mrs. Katz died at the age of 90 and none of her children wanted it).

Berman put an advertisement in the newspaper saying his house was for sale. He heard from every real estate agent in the area. They all wanted to represent him in making the deal. One said she had a buyer — a Mr. Hardy.

Hardy came out to the house and said he would like to buy Berman's home, but in order to do so Hardy would have to sell his own house in Silver Lake. He put it on the market and the Glucksterns, who were about to have another child, thought the Silver Lake place would do just fine.

Gluckstern did not own a house — he rented. This seemed to solve the problem of Gluckstern having to find a buyer for his house first. Gluckstern told Hardy he would get a loan from the bank. Hardy called Berman and told him not to sell his house because he had a buyer

Other Editors Say A Quiet Triumph

(The Raleigh Times)

Juanita Kreps' return to Durham from three years as Secretary of Commerce is in many ways a quiet triumph. Notwithstanding the family near-tragedy that played a part in her resignation, she can take satisfaction in a job done not only well but with courage and grace. How many high officials leave Washington with the kind of praise the Washington Post meted out to Secretary Kreps recently?

"In a town", said the Post editorial, "where there seem sometimes to be only issues and forces ... and communities ... and an artificial, floating idea known variously as 'the public' or 'the people', we believe we have just heard that rarest of sounds: a human voice. It belongs to Juanita Kreps..." whose Post interview with Hobart Rowen "was extraordinary precisely because it was so ordinary, so unassuming and plain ... we have an awful feeling that the word we are looking for is 'honest'."

The Post went on to praise Mrs. Kreps for, essentially, not letting three tough years in the cockpit near the top toughen and cynicize her. She calmly admits to taking some beatings for Commerce in the bureaucratic power wars, to being shut out of the economic kingpin circles she believed she should have been in on, and to facing the real-world unworkability of some economic theories she had taught and cherished.

The lady from Duke, in fact, dares to admit she has been wrong on occasion. But without breast-beating and other over-reaction, without fearing to claim equally calm credit where she has been right, and especially without showing the neurotic need to scapegoat or to dump on others responsibility she is grown-up enough to take.

Mrs. Kreps had commented that coming to Washington for a major job has a "terrifying quality". The Post notes one such terror must be that the jobholder's character and personality will disintegrate or be corrupted under the heat and the pressure.

"On that score, ends the Post, "Mrs. Kreps need have no fears. Self-evidently she leaves Washington with the same great personal dignity she brought here. Not everyone, to put it mildly, can say as much." Amen to that.

for the Hardy home. Berman immediately called up Shaw and said, "I think I can swing the deal."

Shaw got so excited he called the Katz family lawyer and told him to draw up the papers.

Everyone sat around kitchen tables talking about how they were going to fix up their new houses.

Then the Glucksterns went to their bank and asked for a mortgage for the Hardy house.

The bank officer said, "We don't have any mortgage money."

"What kind of money do you have?"

"We don't have any money at all. If you'd like to open an account with us, we'll give you a toaster for your new house."

"Why would we need a toaster for our new house when we can't borrow the

THE GALLUP POLL

Gaining On Kennedy

By George Gallup

PRINCETON, N.J. — Sen. Edward Kennedy's announcement of his candidacy came at a time when his lead over GOP frontrunner, Ronald Reagan, had slipped from 61-to-33 percent in September to 54-to-38 percent in the latest trial heat.

Kennedy's lead over Gerald Ford, the second choice of Republicans for nomination, has also declined — from 58-to-38 percent in September to 51-to-42 percent in the most recent survey. Ford, while not an active candidate, has not ruled out his availability for a draft.

While Kennedy lost ground to the two Republican frontrunners over this period of time, President Carter picked up strength. In early September, Carter and Reagan were virtually deadlocked, 47 percent for Carter and 46 percent for Reagan. In the mid-October survey, Carter's lead was 48-to-42 percent over Reagan.

In addition, Ford's 51-to-42 percent lead over Carter in September had shrunk to 47-to-41 percent in the October survey.

Here are the questions asked:

"Suppose the presidential election were being held TODAY.

If (name of Democrat) were the Democratic candidate and (name of Republican) were the Republican candidate, which would you like to see win?"

Those who named another person or who were undecided were asked: "As of today, do you lean more to (name), the Democrat, or to (name), the Republican?"

Here are the national results from the latest trial heats, based on the choices of registered voters:

	KENNEDY vs. REAGAN
	Kennedy	Reagan	Other	Undecided
LATEST (Oct. 12-15)	54%	38%	2%	6%
Sept. 7-10	61	33	2	4

	Carter	Ford	Other	Undecided
LATEST (Oct. 12-15)	41%	47%	4%	8%
Sept. 7-10	42	51	3	4

The trial heat results reported today are based on personal interviews with 1,118 registered voters out of a total sample of 1,539 adults, 18 and older, taken in more than 300 scientifically-selected localities across the nation during the period Oct. 12-15.

Strength For Today

WORLD NEEDS DOERS

The inertia of good people is more dangerous in the long run than the evil tendencies of bad people.

Thoroughly bad people comprise a very small proportion of the population and usually can be readily recognized. Most of life's troubles arise from the fact that good people allow their wholesome impulses and lofty ideals to evaporate as these people are confronted by the continuing problem of everyday living.

A way of life, no matter how theoretically sound it may be, which does not involve sacrifice is not a good way of life. So if we are going to be good, then we have a responsibility to be good for something. Goodness which does not make a difference is little more than pious hypocrisy. The world cries out in every generation for saints who can be doers, for dreamers who can be practical, for theorists who can make their theories work.

Gave 75 Pints In Bloodmobile Visit

Ott Alford, chairman of Pitt County's blood program, said that last week's Bloodmobile visit at Procter & Gamble Co. here resulted in a good collection total of 75 pints of blood.

Alford reported that in addition to the units of blood donated by plant personnel, eight persons were deferred for various health reasons.

The blood chairman offered his appreciation to the P & G donors and to Pam Gardner, plant nurse who spearheaded the drive. Alford also thanked the women of the Greenville Service League and other volunteers who assisted.

The next Bloodmobile visits in the county will be on Dec. 10 at Farmville Central High School and on Dec. 11 at Union Carbide in Greenville. The school visit will be for faculty, students and other Farmville Central personnel only, while the Union Carbide blood drive will be open to the public.

Alford said that since the beginning of the current fiscal year on July 1, some 1,735 pints of blood have been collected in the county and the figure should top the 2,000 pint mark after the December visits. He noted that the county is well on its way toward the goal for the year of some 3,400 pints of blood.

In return, Hunt handed out those red, white and blue lapel pins that are the shape of North Carolina and a ubiquitous symbol of the Hunt campaign and administration.

"The Chinese gave me a very valuable gift, a turnip carved in the shape of a bird," said Pearce. It was an award, Pearce said, for consuming the largest amount of a volatile drink he called a "kerosene cocktail" at a state dinner in Shanghai.

"I didn't bring it back though. It got a little ripe over night," he added.

While Hunt was gone, the first of several shifts of people from his administration to campaign staff began.

Joe Grimsley took a leave as secretary of Administration to become campaign manager, and deputy press secretary Stephanie Bass will leave the Capitol to join the campaign at the end of this month.

Pearce said Howard Lee, secretary of Natural Resources and Community Development, may also join the campaign.

Despite the hiring freeze imposed on state government by Hunt, he plans to hire a replacement for Ms. Bass' position on the press secretary's staff.

"I would argue that I can't do the job alone as well as everything else I do," said Pearce, who has increasingly become a policy advisor to Hunt.

Consideration within the administration has also been given to promoting Pearce to a full-time special assistant to Hunt for policy matters, and naming a new press secretary.

A Boston "Covenant"

Religious leaders in Boston have called for a "covenant" of racial harmony to end the unrest and occasional violence troubling the city's schools. Tension between black and white students has been a serious problem in Boston, since a federal court ordered busing to integrate the city's schools. In September the tension led to the shooting of a black high school football player. City officials and the New England Patriots football team have tried to reduce the tension. The religious leaders hope to get every citizen of Boston to sign a "covenant of justice, equity, and harmony." They plan to open their campaign with an ecumenical service today.

Favorites In A YDC Poll

WILKESBORO, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt and House Speaker Carl Stewart Jr. came out on top in a straw poll by North Carolina's Young Democrats to test support for candidates for the state's top offices.

More than 90 percent of the Young Democrats' votes went to Hunt in his race for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination against former Gov. Bob Scott.

Stewart got 93 percent of the vote in his bid for lieutenant governor against incumbent Jimmy Green.

The YDC delegates, representing 53 community and college chapters, chose President Carter as a heavy favorite over Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., to win the presidential nomination.

The YDC voted 448-445 for abolishing capital punishment during their annual fall platform convention Saturday.

They voted 446-408 against a proposal to legalize the sale and use of marijuana.

Other proposals adopted by the delegates included endorsing the cutoff of American food being sent to Iran, the reinstatement of Selective Service registration but not the resumption of the draft, and a temporary ban on the licensing of nuclear power plants.

Several platform planks were adopted without debate. Among them were proposals to support ratification of the SALT II pact between the United States and the Soviet Union; establishment of sex education, counseling and family planning services in the state's public school; and the University of North Carolina in its desegregation dispute with the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

money to buy it?" "It's not my fault. It's people like Landsberg who are responsible."

"Who's Landsberg?"

"He had an account here. But he withdrew all his money and put it in Treasury bonds. He told us that when we pay as much interest as the U.S. government does, he'll put his funds back in."

Gluckstern went to see Landsberg and said, "I can't buy Hardy's house because of you."

"Who told you that?" Landsberg said.

"Atwood, at the bank. He said you took all your money out and now he can't make any real estate loans."

"Atwood has plenty of money," Landsberg said. "He just doesn't want to tie it up in long-term mortgages. Ask him for a 90-day loan at 18 percent and he'll give it to you in a minute."

Gluckstern was not mollified. "How would you like it if someone took all his money out of the bank and prevented you from buying a house?"

"I have a house and a 5 percent mortgage. Don't complain to me. Go tell your story to the U.S. Treasury. They're the ones who are paying the high interest rates."

Gluckstern went to see the man at the Treasury who deals in bonds. "How come you're paying higher interest rates to Landsberg than the bank does?"

The Treasury bond man said, "Because the government needs the money."

"What does the government need the money for?"

"Well, for one thing, to help people find housing. Whether you know it or not, Americans are having a tough time these days buying a new home."

Structure Of Farming Affects Broad Spectrum Of Americans

By BILL HUMPHRIES
NCSU Agricultural Information

RALEIGH — Millions of Americans have never set foot on a farm. But they, like the people who live and work on farms and those engaged in farm-related businesses, are directly affected by the economic and social structure of U. S. agriculture.

The term "structure" is used to describe the number and size of farms; who controls them; what they produce; the relationship between farmers and their suppliers and markets; and the other institutions that make up the nation's food and agriculture system or influence how it operates.

A national dialogue on farm structure is now under way. It was initiated by Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland in a speech last March.

"We have an unprecedented opportunity today to anticipate the future, to begin considering the effects of our current programs and the kind of agricultural structure that will best serve society and our family farm operators in the years ahead," said Bergland.

Ten public meetings have been scheduled for the Secretary to hear the views of individuals and organizations concerning the structure of U. S. Agriculture. They will be held between Nov. 27 and Dec. 18.

A hearing for residents of North Carolina, South Carolina,

Virginia, West Virginia, Delaware and Maryland will be held in the Cumberland County Memorial Auditorium in Fayetteville on Wednesday, Nov. 28, beginning at 9 a.m.

Dr. Charles R. Pugh, extension economist in agricultural policy, North Carolina State University, said the system of agriculture that has evolved in this country over the past 200 years has been affected by many economic, social and political forces.

In the long history of mankind, the United States in this century became the first country of significant size to experience the problem of chronic overproduction of farm commodities, a situation that resulted in depressed prices to farm producers.

This was known as the "farm problem." It was widely discussed in the 1930's and the decades following World War II. To deal with the problem, several major farm programs were initiated by the federal government during the 30's and others were added later.

Simply stated, the basic cause of the "farm problem" was that more resources (land, labor and capital) were devoted to farm production than could earn an adequate return for their services. Low prices resulting from abundant production meant that these resources received a lower return than they might have commanded elsewhere in the economy. Changes in agriculture occurred over the years but despite federal programs which, though modified, are still in effect today, the problem of surplus farm output and depressed prices continued on into the 1970's.

Beginning in 1972, a series of events occurred in a short period of time that fundamentally altered the American agricultural environment. Crops were poor in many areas of the world, and the Soviet Union and other countries turned to the United States for food and grains.

Once the excess grain stocks in this country had been drawn down, U. S. farmers committed most of their cropland to production. The volume of U. S. farm exports doubled in one year and has continued to increase.

Today, except for relatively minor adjustments in some years, the nation's cropland base is being nearly fully utilized. Furthermore, during the 1950's and 1960's, millions of people left the farm to live and work elsewhere.

"It is in this decade that agriculture has reached relative resource equilibrium for the first time in over four decades, since its acute problems emerged in the Twenties," said J. B. Penn, USDA economist.

Urgent demands continue to be made upon U. S. agriculture. The questions are: how can those demands best be met, and what type of agricultural system will best serve this nation and its allies in the years ahead?

In the current dialogue initiated by Secretary Bergland, the dimensions of farm structure are viewed in terms of:

— The number and size distribution of farms by commodity, type of operation and geographic region.

— The degree of specialization in production and the related organization of the farm firm (organization of productive resources and the technology employed.)

— The ownership and control of productive resources, including form of business organization, tenure and arrangements used to coordinate activities in the farm sector with other sectors.

— Barriers to entry into and exit from the farm sector.

— Socioeconomic characteristics of farm operations and resource owners.

Show And Speakers Set

The North Carolina Fresh Vegetable Growers Association will hold its third annual trade show and educational meeting at the National Guard Armory in Clinton Tuesday, Nov. 27.

Association president Daniel Wilson of Clinton said the trade show will feature chemicals, seeds, packages, planting systems, equipment and other items needed by vegetable growers.

The educational meeting will begin with Douglas Sanders, horticulture specialist with the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service, who will discuss, "How the Yankees Get More Out of Their Land." Other speakers will be present, and Duplin County extension agent Debra Joneck will conduct a col-lard eating contest.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

Cloudy, with chance of showers Wednesday and Thursday. Prospect of showers on the coast Friday, but skies will be clear elsewhere. Highs mostly in 60s except for 70 on the coast; lows in 40s except for 30s in the mountains on Friday morning.

PROUD OF HIS CROPS — Robert Tyndall, a Craven County farmer, displays some of the tobacco he raises. Tyndall's farming operation has been completely mechanized since 1976, and he's pretty pleased with the outcome. (NCSU Photo)

NEW BERN — Robert E. Tyndall, 35, is old enough to have seen tobacco mechanization get its start and young enough to become one of its primary beneficiaries.

He doesn't plan to allow the opportunity to pass him by.

Tyndall and his wife Fredda have mechanized their tobacco operation to the hilt at a cost well over a quarter of a million dollars.

"It's the only way to go," Tyndall believes. "There is no way we could ever farm on the scale that we are now without mechanizing. I don't think I would even try to grow tobacco without the machines."

The Tyndalls grew 132 acres this year and have been as high as 170. Tobacco represents about three-fourths of their total income, although they grow over 900 acres of soybeans and corn.

Tyndall is a winner of an outstanding young tobacco grower award in a belt-wide recognition program sponsored by Philip Morris U. S. A. and conducted in the state by the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service and North Carolina State University.

The award winner's first tobacco was the eight acres he sharecropped with his father in 1962. Tyndall's acreage grew slowly during the period when the NCSU-developed bulk curing and automatic harvesting equipment was being perfected and proven practical in the '60's and early '70's.

He bought his first bulk curing barns in 1967 to begin the mechanizing process. The Tyndall operation became fully mechanized in 1976.

Tyndall tobacco is now cured in large metal boxes filled in the field by automatic harvesters. Each of the eight boxes in a bulk curing barn holds between 1,500 and 2,000 pounds of green leaves. Only a few years ago, the leaves were broken from the stalk by hand, a leaf at the time and strung on sticks for curing.

"The labor factor has been cut so much that it's almost impossible to imagine how many people it would take to handle the acreage the Tyndalls now have," said Edward Simpson, Craven County agricultural extension chairman.

"It just wouldn't be practical for one farmer to try to grow that much without mechanization," he added.

Tyndall, hiring mostly high school and college-age workers uses two harvest crews five people each.

They can empty and fill four barns a day, covering 30 to 35 acres. That is as much as a crew of 14 to 18 could handle in a week before the machines came.

Tyndall oversees the field and barn operations. Mrs. Tyndall markets the crop and keeps the business records. If any hand labor is required to pull suckers top or hoe, she is responsible for recruiting the labor and seeing that the jobs are done.

The Craven farm family, with such a large part of its future dependent on tobacco, is acutely aware of the role of quality in profitable production.

"The small grower can be a little on price, if he does a good job, because hand harvested tobacco is a little more attractive to the buyer, but we can produce good quality with the system we have," said Tyndall. "Our tobacco is in demand and we haven't been disappointed at the market."

The farmer said his 1978 crop sold for over five cents a pound above the market average.

"We sold a good bit of tobacco this year for $1.50 a pound," said Tyndall. "That's a pretty good indication to me that the quality of the crop we're producing isn't so far off the tobacco we were growing just a few years ago when everything was being done by hand."

Conference Set

The 16th annual irrigation conference will be held Nov. 28 and 29 at the North Carolina State University Faculty Club, Raleigh.

The conference, sponsored by the North Carolina Irrigation Society, will include discussions of corn, peanut and tobacco irrigation, as well as sessions on methods and equipment. Awards will be presented Wednesday, with Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham as featured speaker. Thursday will close with discussions on vegetable and soybean irrigation, water laws and irrigation systems.

Henderson Editor Dies At His Home

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP) — Henry Arnold Dennis, president and editor of the Henderson Daily Dispatch since 1922, died at his home at midnight Saturday. He was 87.

Dennis, who had been ill for 10 days, went home from a Henderson hospital earlier Saturday.

Dennis was president of the North Carolina Press Association in 1957-58 and served on its board of directors for several years. He was also chairman of the Vance County Board of Education for several years.

He was president of the state-owned North Carolina Railroad Co. in 1945-46, and served on its board of directors under three governors.

Before joining the Dispatch staff in 1915, Henderson was on the news staffs of three other North Carolina newspapers: The Greenville Daily Reflector, The News and Observer of Raleigh and The Rocky Mount Evening Telegram.

A native of Concord, Dennis was a graduate of Trinity College, now Duke University. He was a member and past president of the Duke Half-Century Club.

A funeral service will be held at 3 p.m. Tuesday at the First United Methodist Church in Henderson. Burial will follow at Elmwood Cemetery.

Dennis is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Doris Tharrington of Henderson and Mrs. Ruth Caswell of Greenville, S.C.; a son, William B. Dennis of Henderson, and a brother, Robert K. Dennis of Rocky Mount.

Consumers Cool To Energy Audit

By MICHAEL J. CONLON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — By both government and industry estimates, American consumers are not exactly warming up to home energy inspections now offered by many utilities.

The inspections — called audits — are designed to conserve fuel by letting the homeowner know exactly what repairs or modifications are needed in a house to save energy. The audits can be done either by an inspection of the premises by the utility company, or by the homeowner who fills out a form and returns it to the utility.

Esther Peterson, President Carter's consumer adviser, said recently less than 1 percent of utility customers are taking advantage of the offers. The Edison Electric Institute, which represents investor-owned utilities, places the figure at around 2 to 3 percent.

The estimates are an average. In some parts of the country consumer acceptance of audits has been higher.

The Institute adds that it knows of 166 companies across the country now offering audits. Inspections will become even more commonplace next year because a new law requires larger utilities to offer audits by next fall.

The Energy Department has drawn up regulations covering the audits. The states now have six months to submit plans to DOE on how their regulated utilities will carry them out.

The audits are voluntary. The question as yet unsettled is who will foot the bill.

Mrs. Peterson's office is offering advice about a few energy leaks in the home that are sometimes overlooked.

For about $10, she suggests, clear plastic can be taped inside windows that have no storm windows, a move that will cut heating bills up to 15 percent.

Mrs. Peterson also suggests caulking doors and windows can save 10 percent of annual energy costs; making sure the fireplace damper is closed can save about $30 per year; and insulating heating ducts at their joints can save $25 to $35 per year.

If you do invite a utility representative into your home for an audit, you may want to keep in mind something Albert Foer of the Federal Trade Commission's Bureau of Competition said recently.

The FTC will enforce the energy audit law. Foer anticipates one possible problem. It centers, he said, "on the behavior of energy auditors in customers' homes. Their job is to analyze the energy conservation potential of each home and to suggest measures for realizing that potential."

"Their job is not to sell their utility's products or to recommend their friend's insulation firm. This is a potential problem which a good utility training program should be able to minimize."

Big Harvest On Tree Farms

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina tree farmers expect this holiday season to be jolly — and expect the upcoming Christmases to be even merrier.

That's because they expect a record Christmas tree harvest this season and even bigger crops on the way. William T. Huxter, extension forestry specialist at North Carolina State University, estimates 1.4 million trees will be for sale this year.

Farmers planted an estimated 5 million trees in 1977 and 1978 and 5.5 million this year. The supply of trees, which take six to eight years to grow, should increase sharply in a few years, Huxter said.

"We're now cutting about 4 percent of the Christmas trees sold each year in the United States, and the percentage will be even higher in the years ahead. Our goal is 15 percent of the national market," Huxter said.

Plan Service Of Thanksgiving

A Thanksgiving service will be held in Bell Arthur Community on Wednesday, November 21 at 7:30 p.m. at Arthur Christian Church. Pastor of the church, Rev. Bill Clifton, will preside.

The evening service will be given by Rev. Randy L. Wall, pastor of Bell Arthur United Methodist Church. "Thankful Even Amid Trying Circumstances" will be the topic for the evening sermon. Music will be provided by a combined choir with participants from Arthur Christian Church and Bell Ar-

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market opened lower today, reflecting continued Wall Street apprehension about the situation in Iran.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial issues was off .43 to 815.27 in the early going.

Declines held a slight lead over advances on the New York Stock Exchange.

Iran released three of the 62 American hostages held in the U.S. embassy in Tehran, but it was unclear when others would be released. And Iranian authorities hinted that some of the Americans held might be tried on espionage charges.

The dollar dropped sharply in Europe and was lower in Tokyo on the Iranian worries.

In early trades, Mobil rose 1/4 to 50 3/4, Goodyear was unchanged at 12 1/4, General Motors dropped 1/4 to 53 1/4, Pan Am slipped 1/4 to 5 1/4 and Bally was unchanged at 32 1/4.

On Friday, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials declined 5.63 to 815.70.

LWV To Offer Energy Program

The League of Women Voters will present a program on energy conservation at its monthly meeting to be held Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the First Presbyterian Church.

Philip B. Morin, Energy Projects Coordinator for Greenville Utilities Commission, will give a slide presentation on ways to eliminate energy waste in the home during all seasons of the year. Linda Hix, Coordinator of the Citizen's Advisory Task Force, in conjunction with the Greenville Energy Program, will explain the objectives and activities of the program. Concerned citizens are urged to attend. Time will be allowed for questions and citizen input.

available, suitable building in place," the developer commented. "The objective of this program is to present a building which will help to attract additional industrial firms to our area."

During 1978-79 the Pitt Development Commission attracted three new industries to the area to three available buildings, creating over 200 new jobs and payrolls in excess of $2.4 million.

Figures released by the N.C. Department of Commerce for 1978 indicate that 73 percent of all new industries to eastern North Carolina located in available buildings.

Hudson added, "The current growth potential of the Greenville area, the sound available labor climate and the marketing assistance of the Development Commission were important factors in deciding on a Greenville location for this project."

Hudson recently sold his first speculative building of 51,200 square feet in Roanoke Rapids to Kennametal Inc. of Latrobe, Pa. A 48,000 square foot facility is under construction in Elizabeth City and company plans are to construct at least one other shell building in eastern North Carolina in late 1980, it was reported.

Development Commission officials will solicit utility, railroad, Department of Commerce and local Chamber of Commerce assistance in securing a tenant as soon as possible.

Commission chairman Bruce Beasley observed, "Mr. Hudson is to be congratulated on his initiative and confidence in our community. Our objective will be to secure hopefully a light manufacturing tenant employing at least 150-200 persons, predominantly female. This building and anticipated employment goal is one of the principal objectives of the Development Commission for the current fiscal year."

Traffic Dead Leading 1978

By The Associated Press

Two triple-fatality accidents have raised the number of persons killed this weekend on state roads to 11, the state Highway Patrol reported today. That brings the toll to 1,301, six more than during the same period last year.

A Charlotte police car that was traveling in excess of 65 miles per hour slammed into a car late Friday, killing three members of the same family and critically injuring a fourth.

Police officer M.J. Flaherty, driver of the patrol car, suffered multiple injuries and was in stable condition Sunday at Mercy Hospital in Charlotte. He was responding to a call when the accident happened.

Killed were George Farrar Parker Jr., 46, driver of the car; his wife, Gilles Brown Parker, 36; and their son, George Farrar Parker III, 13, all of Charlotte.

A daughter, Dana Clyburn Parker, 12, was reported in critical condition in Charlotte Memorial Hospital early this morning.

In another triple fatality, DeLores Titallo Wrenn, 35; Brian Odell Jackson, 7; and John Walton Jackson Jr., 5, all of Greensboro, were killed Saturday after their vehicle hit another on a rural road 7 miles northwest of Greensboro. The child died about seven hours after the accident.

The patrol reports that Lexie Alexander Thomas, 41, of Ashboro was killed Saturday when the car he was driving ran off both at West End Circle, and with breaking and entering in connection with an incident at Providence Finance Co. at West End Circle on the same date.

The Sheriff's Department picked the two up about 3:30 a.m. and charged them with larceny of gas, breaking, entering and larceny from an auto, and possession of burglary tools, after they allegedly took gas from one car and a tape player from another vehicle at the M and W Chevrolet Co. near Ayden.

Both Miss Woolard and Hudson were placed under $6,000 bond each in connection with Greenville cases.

Up To 12,700 Soldiers Wrongfully Recruited

WASHINGTON (AP) - An investigation of the Army's worst recruiting scandal since the end of the draft shows that up to 12,700 soldiers were enlisted through fraud or other irregular practices over the last two years, officials said today.

Opening the books on a six-month investigation, the Army told Congress that 427 recruiters have been relieved of their duties in the last year because of malpractice.

Officials said there was more malpractice among seasoned recruiters than among newer recruits. Many of those who lost their jobs had received awards for recruiting successes.

Seventy-five percent of the cases of fraudulent or irregular enlistments involved discrepancies in the educational records of potential recruits who had not graduated from high school, officials said.

Other cases involved illegal coaching for enlistment tests and concealment of police records, medical problems and dependents.

While readily acknowledging that recruiters are under pressure to meet recruiting goals, Army officials said the pressure is not overbearing. "No one is forced to cheat in order to recruit for the Army," said Brig. Gen. Donald W. Connelly, head of a 55-member investigation task force set up last May.

Connelly, joined by Army Secretary Clifford Alexander and Lt. Gen. Robert G. Yerks, the Army's top personnel official, testified on the recruiting scandal before the Senate Armed Services manpower subcommittee.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., the panel's chairman and a skeptic about the all-volunteer military's ability to attract enough servicemen, said the administration is determined "to make the all-volunteer force work no matter what the cost or consequence."

Nunn noted that all branches of the service failed to meet their recruiting goals in the 12 months ending last Oct. 1, and said the Army and Navy are lowering the level of education needed for enlistment.

Alexander said the Army has never fallen more than 2 percent below its authorized manpower strength since the draft ended in 1973. It was 16,000 persons short of a goal of 158,700 new recruits in a recent 12-month period.

"Overall results have been very good," said Alexander. He blamed the shortages on the failure "to commit the resources necessary to make military service attractive in today's economic environment."

Oilers Win, Tie Pittsburgh For Central Lead

Steelers, Cowboys Drown In Sea Of Turnovers

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Because neither of them played particularly like Super Bowl teams, Pittsburgh and Dallas find themselves tied at the top of their respective National Football League divisions today.

Both the Steelers and Cowboys, who met in last January's Super Bowl, drowned in a sea of turnovers Sunday.

Pittsburgh saw its four-game winning streak go up in flames as San Diego intercepted five passes and turned four of them into Charger touchdowns and a 35-7 rout of the defending champions. The loss, combined with Houston's 42-21 victory over Cincinnati, left the Steelers and Oilers tied for first place in the American Conference Central race.

Dallas turned the ball over five times and Washington added a half dozen quarterback sacks in a 34-20 romp that dropped the Cowboys into a three-way tie for first place in the National Conference East. The Redskins and Philadelphia, which nipped St. Louis 16-13, share the lead with the Cowboys.

San Diego's victory over Pittsburgh kept the Chargers tied for the AFC West lead with Denver, which whipped San Francisco 38-28. New England moved one game in front in the AFC East, defeating Baltimore 50-21 while Miami was dropping a 30-24 overtime decision to Cleveland.

Tampa Bay remained two games in front in the NFC Central, ripping the New York Giants 31-3, but New Orleans had its NFC West lead cut to one-half game over idle Los Angeles, losing to Seattle 38-24.

Elsewhere, it was Chicago 23, New York Jets 13; Buffalo 19, Green Bay 12; Minnesota 14, Detroit 7; and Kansas City 24, Oakland 21.

Atlanta plays at Los Angeles tonight, completing the season's 12th week of play.

Chargers 35, Steelers 7

Pittsburgh's Terry Bradshaw had a terrible time with San Diego's linebackers. Ray Preston intercepted him twice in the first half, each time setting up a San Diego score. Then another linebacker, Woodrow Lowe returned another interception 77 yards for another Charger TD.

The 35 points were the most the Steelers have surrendered in a single game since 1974.

Redskins 34, Cowboys 20

Joe Theismann threw three TD passes and Washington's defense simply wore down Dallas. The Redskins added insult to injury, sending Mark Moseley out for a 45-yard field goal with nine seconds left and the victory already secured.

"When they get us down, they want to rub it in our face," charged Cowboy defensive end Harvey Martin. "It was totally an insult."

Eagles 16, Cardinals 13

Ron Jaworski hit Keith Krefle with a 40-yard TD pass in the fourth quarter, giving Philadelphia its victory over St. Louis and a share of the NFC East lead.

Seahawks 36, Saints 24

Jim Zorn, who passed for 384 yards, threw TD passes to Steve Largent and Brian Peets in the final 6:16, snapping a 24-24 tie to defeat New Orleans.

The late TDs were the third and fourth of the game for Zorn as the Seahawks won their fourth game in the last five weeks and evened their season's record at 6-6. New Orleans also is 6-6.

Bucs 31, Giants 3

Doug Williams threw a pair of TD passes to Larry Mucker and Ricky Bell rushed for 152 yards, 102 in the first half, as Tampa Bay ripped New York. Linebacker David Lewis scored another TD, returning a Phil Simms fumble 39 yards as the Bucs avenged an earlier 17-14 defeat.

game in the Oakland Coliseum in 13 years, beating the Raiders when Jim Breech missed an 18-yard field goal in the final seconds.

Ken Stabler threw three TD passes for the Raiders and nearly pulled out the game, moving Oakland 74 yards in the final two minutes only to have Breech miss the field goal that would have sent the game into overtime.

The victory ended a five-game losing streak for the Chiefs.

Bears 23, Jets 13

Mike Phipps moved Chicago to its fourth straight victory, throwing two TD passes in the triumph over New York.

Dave Williams scored twice for the Bears, who moved their record to 7-5 and stayed two games behind Tampa Bay in the NFC Central.

Bills 19, Packers 12

Nick Mike-Mayer kicked four field goals and Buffalo broke a fourth quarter tie with its only TD of the game — a 1-yard burst by Mike Collier — which delivered the victory over Green Bay.

Mike-Mayer's field goals traveled 37, 34, 31 and 32 yards and then the running of Terry Miller and Curtis Brown positioned the ball for Collier's winning TD.

Vikings 14, Lions 7

Rickey Young scored both

Minnesota TDs in the second half on runs of 23 and two yards as Detroit suffered its 11th loss in 12 games. The victory ended a three-game slide for Minnesota and moved its record to 5-7.

Pittsburgh Steeler quarterback Terry Bradshaw is knocked to the ground while scrambling on an attempted pass as San Diego's Leroy Jones comes flying over the top during the third quarter of their game Sunday in San Diego. San Diego defeated the Steelers, 35-7. (AP Laserphot)

Broncos 38, 49ers 28

Craig Morton threw three TD passes and Bob Swenson returned a fumble 88 yards for another score as Denver won its fourth straight.

The Broncos had to come from behind after San Francisco, held to just 88 yards in the first half, nevertheless moved to a 21-10 lead. Rookie James Owens returned a kickoff 85 yards for a 49er TD.

Oilers 42, Bengals 21

Dan Pastorini hit 10 of 13 passes for 182 yards and led Houston to a 21-7 lead over Cincinnati before being forced out of the game with a scratched right eye. Gifford Nielsen finished up for the Oilers, completing 19 of 16 for 139 yards.

Pastorini returned to the sidelines in the second half, wearing a patch over his right eye. His injury was not believed to be serious.

Patriots 50, Colts 21

New England recovered from last week's 42-7 drubbing by Denver, getting its revenge at the expense of Baltimore. Steve Grogan passed for two TDs and Stanley Morgan returned a punt 80 yards for another.

"It was our turn to mushroom instead of getting mushroomed," said New England Coach Ron Erhardt, recalling the Denver debacle.

Browns 30, Dolphins 24

Cleveland moved within one game of Houston and Pittsburgh in the AFC Central by beating Miami in overtime. Brian Sipe's 34-yard TD pass to Ozzie Newsome with 1:21 left to play tied the score and then Sipe hit Reggie Rucker with 39-yarder less than two minutes into the overtime for the victory.

"We were magnificent," decided Tampa Bay Coach John McKay.

Chiefs 24, Raiders 21

30 Teams In Bowl Games; Are They All Deserving?

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Here's some new math for you — find 30 teams to fill 15 bowls.

You'd think that with 136 major college football teams to choose from — three others are on probation — surely 30 would emerge as bowl-worthy. Thirty teams will wind up in bowl games, but whether all of them are deserving is another question.

Certainly, some of the bowls will deserve what they get with all their wheeling and dealing.

Fifteenth-ranked Auburn's 33-13 victory over Georgia, which prevented the Bulldogs from clinching a Sugar Bowl berth — was supposed to clear things up. So this is what a "clear" bowl picture looks like, complete with Associated Press Top Twenty rankings:

Sugar — Alabama (1) or Georgia vs. Texas (6) or Arkansas (8).

Rose — Ohio State (2) vs. Southern California (4), if the Trojans beat UCLA next Saturday, or Washington (16), if USC loses.

Orange — The Nebraska (3)-Oklahoma (7) winner vs. Florida State (5).

Cotton — Texas, Arkansas, Houston (9) or Baylor (tied for 20) vs. the Nebraska-Oklahoma loser.

Gator — Michigan (13) vs. North Carolina.

Fiesta — Pitt (11) vs. a team to be announced.

Liberty — Tulane (tied for 20) vs. Penn State.

Bluebonnet — Purdue (12) vs. Tennessee (18).

Sun — Texas, Arkansas or Houston vs. Washington, unless the Huskies wind up in the Rose Bowl.

Holiday — Indiana vs. next week's Brigham Young (10)-San Diego State winner.

Peach — Clemson (14) vs. Baylor, unless the Bears wind up in the Cotton Bowl, a remote chance but a mathematical one.

Tangerine — Wake Forest (17) vs. Louisiana State in Charlie McClendon's last game as LSU coach.

Hall of Fame — South Carolina vs. TBA.

Garden State — Temple (18) vs. TBA.

Independence — McNeese State vs. Syracuse.

Lakers Wallop Pacers, 127-104

Clippers Win Without Walton, Free

By The Associated Press
With Bill Walton and Lloyd Free out of the lineup, the San Diego Clippers are starting to feel like a bunch of long shots.

Brian Taylor, especially. "Coach (Gene) Shue has been encouraging me to take the three-point shot, even to the point of having set plays," says

Taylor. The three-point shots were there for Taylor to take Sunday night — and he took them. He made five of those long-distance shots to help the Clippers beat the Milwaukee Bucks 112-96 in the National Basketball Association.

"At the start of the season, I didn't even try to take the three-point shots," said Taylor after scoring 23 points, "but now I'm going after them. It's a tough shot but I have confidence I can make it."

"Our offense was so geared to Free scoring over 30 points a game that it took us time to adjust playing without him. We have to play very hard to win without our two superstars — Free and Walton."

The Clippers took command of the game by scoring the final 11 points of the third period to turn a 73-72 deficit into an 83-73 advantage entering the fourth quarter.

Lakers 127, Pacers 104
Jamaal Wilkes scored 21 points and reserve guard Michael Cooper added a career-high 20 as Los Angeles rolled to an easy victory over Indiana. The Lakers took a 32-21 lead after one quarter and the Pacers were never closer than seven points after that as Los Angeles won its ninth straight home game.

Kings 109, Nuggets 92
Kansas City's dynamic backcourt of Phil Ford and Otis Birdsong combined for 55 points as the Kings defeated Denver. The Kings, winning their fourth straight game, had no trouble at all against a listless Denver team that was playing without David Thompson, sidelined with a virus.

Ford, who made nine of his first 10 shots, was the Kings' high scorer with 28 points and also had 12 assists while Birdsong tallied 27.

Warriors 99, Suns 95
JoJo White and Sonny Parker contributed key points in the second half to help Golden State beat Phoenix and stop the Suns' four-game winning streak.

A pair of free throws by White, four more by Parker and a basket by rookie Wayne Cooper in the final 2:24 took the game back from the Suns, who had grabbed their first lead of the night since the opening field goal at 94-93.

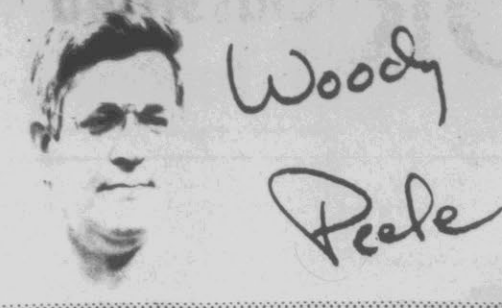

Nets 107, Spurs 105
Calvin Natt's dunk shot at the buzzer lifted New Jersey over San Antonio, giving the Nets their first victory over the Spurs in nearly three years.

Natt, who had a game-high 33 points, scored the final basket on a feed from Eddie Jordan. Jordan had stolen the ball from San Antonio's James Silas, who was attempting a final shot for the Spurs with the score tied.

Blazers 100, Sonics 95
Ron Brewer scored 21 points and Tom Owens added 18 to lead Portland over Seattle. Owens scored five of his points in the last 67 seconds to help the Trail Blazers hold off a late charge by the Sonics.

Seattle had trailed by 17 points, 75-58, at one time and scored 10 straight points at the end of the third quarter but couldn't quite catch the Blazers.

Despite the offensive show that the Pirates of East Carolina are putting on these days, nobody seems to be watching.

Pat Dye is hollaring for a chance for the Pirates to go to another bowl game, but the "name" apparently isn't there. The bowl sponsors want teams with proven draws, that people will instantly recognize, regardless of their records, to a large extent.

Even the Independence Bowl, which is said to be seeking either N.C. State, Virginia, Maryland or Syracuse, has been said to be willing to take a 6-5 team with a "name" over one with less of a national reputation and a better mark.

While N.C. State hasn't received a bowl game, and both North Carolina and Wake Forest have, (thanks, we understand to a generous contribution to the ticket sales of the Tangerine Bowl by Arnold Palmer), there is still a good chance that the Wolfpack will end up somewhere. The Garden State Bowl is said to be somewhat interested.

But for the Pirates, things seem dim. While there are still some unfilled spots, most seem reserved for other choices. And there is only really one true blemish on the Pirate record—the loss to Duke. Losing to N.C. State, the ACC champ, in a fine effort, and bowing to Wake, the Cinderella team of the country, and a bowl team; and tying North Carolina, another bowl team, is no disgrace. Certainly there will be teams with lesser records in the bowls.

The Pirates have shown too, that the rest of their schedule is no match for them, running up and down the field almost at will.

Quarterback Leander Green, called by Dye the best in the state at his position, and one of the best in the country, broke the school's single game total offense mark with 285 yards Saturday against North Texas State.

Behind his leadership, the team has already broke the single season mark of 3,263 yards rushing (1973), with 3,549 with one game still to go. They have topped the single season total offense mark of 4,245 (1973), with 4,688 and could top 5,000 yards this weekend.

In scoring they are just ten points behind the record of 352 set in 1973, and have already scored more touchdowns than that team, 46 as compared to the old record of 44. They've also kicked more PAT's, 41 to 39. They've rolled up 234 first downs, breaking the old record of 227, set in 1972.

Green's season total offense mark of 1,626, leaves him just 74 yards short of Carol Summerell's 1,700, the school record set in 1972. Bill Lamm, the place kicker, has kicked 40 this year, breaking the old mark of 39 set by Jim Woody in 1963.

Anthony Collins is just one kickoff return short of the mark of 22, and just 52 yards shy of the record of 525, both set by Willie Hawkins in 1977.

Like Pat Dye said: the Pirates are a very, very good team on offense. They are one that could put on quite a show.

Only trouble is, they probably won't get the chance.

Support is the name of the game, both for East Carolina and for Rose High School.

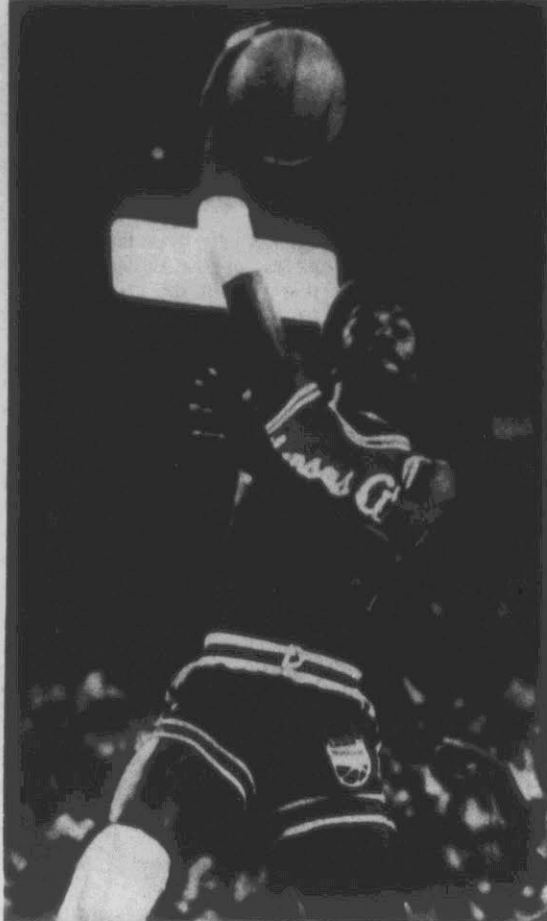

Many fans of the Pirates don't like the fact that the Pirates don't have "name" teams in Ficklen Stadium. Find Bill Cain one willing to come, and he'll have them here. Most of the teams that people here want to see don't want to even play the Pirates anywhere, let alone in Greenville, where losses come even fewer than at a lot of other places.

Some fans, therefore, won't come to see the lesser names. It may come to the point of having to put four "nameless" teams on the schedule, and then pay through the nose to get one "name," here. But even then, the fans would have to support ALL of the games, not just the big one.

Turning to Rose High, the support that team has received this year is very poor. While it is true that most of the home games were played at bad times, better attendance could have been observed. Rose has one of the top defensive teams in the state, allowing only 118.0 yards a game during the regular season.

This past week, as Rose entered the playoffs, WNCT-Radio, which carried the regular season games, sought in vain for sponsors for the first playoff game. They couldn't find them. Nobody was interested enough in the team.

Seems a shame that the businesses of this community don't have that much pride in their future citizens.

30 Teams . . .

The entire situation has become so wacky that it's possible for Alabama and Southern Cal to be shut out of the bowl picture while a rematch of last month's bloodletting between Texas and Oklahoma in the Cotton Bowl is a possibility, albeit a slim one, for... of all places...the Cotton Bowl.

Although 12 berths are still undecided, many of them are just awaiting the outcome of conference races. Sunday's only additions to the lineups were Tennessee in the Bluebonnet Bowl and Syracuse in the Independence.

Syracuse is 6-5 and Tennessee and LSU could be. Bowl trips used to be rewards for outstanding seasons but that was before the National Collegiate Athletic Association glutted things by sanctioning everything but the Kitchen Sink Bowl. And next year comes a game pairing the champs of the Mid-American Conference and the Pacific Coast Athletic Association.

If you think that's a clear picture, what would you think about Georgia in the Sugar with a 5-6 record? That's still possible if the Bulldogs lose to Georgia Tech while Auburn beats Alabama. Don't even suggest that to the Sugar Bowl unlike you like to live dangerously.

"If we can't beat Auburn, I'd just as soon stay home and plow," said Bear Bryant.

What is clear is that Alabama stretched the nation's longest winning streak to 19 games by crushing Miami, Fla. 30-0 as Steadman Shealy tossed a 56-yard touchdown pass to Tim Travis while the opportunistic Crimson Tide intercepted five passes for a school single-season mark of 25.

Meanwhile, Auburn got 200 yards on the ground from James Brooks, 166 more from Joe Cribbs and two touchdowns from each in trouncing Georgia.

Ohio State won its annual shootout from Michigan 18-15 when Jim Laughlin blocked a punt and Todd Bell scooped it up and ran 18 yards for a touchdown with 11:21 left to play. The Buckeyes finished the regular season 11-0 and earned a Rose Bowl trip in Earle Bruce's first year as head coach.

"I had a free lane," Laughlin explained. "If somebody gets a piece of me, I can't block it." "I feel mentally drained," said Bruce. "Our kicking game has beaten us all year," moaned Michigan's Bo Schembechler. Third-ranked Nebraska remained unbeaten by trimming Iowa State 34-3 as Jeff Quinn, starting for the first time since the second game of the season, threw two touchdown passes to Junior Miller and ran for another.

Next Saturday, the Cornhuskers visit Oklahoma, which edged Missouri 24-22 as Billy Sims galloped for 282 yards, including a 70-yard touchdown run that put the Sooners ahead to stay in the third period.

Fourth-ranked Southern Cal was idle.

With Alabama forced to wait two more weeks to decide the Sugar Bowl host, the Orange Bowl snatched Florida State, which then went out and walloped Memphis State 66-17 behind Jimmy Jordan's three second-quarter touchdown passes.

"If we could have selected between different bowls, the Orange Bowl would have been the pick of my players," Coach Bobby Bowden said of unbeaten Florida State's first-ever major bowl invitation.

Arkansas' Kevin Scanlon completed 12 of 15 passes for 127 yards while Darryl Bowles rushed for 169 yards as eighth-ranked Arkansas defeated Texas A&M 22-10 and remained in the driver's seat for the Cotton Bowl.

If Arkansas beats Southern Methodist next week, Texas will be eliminated from the Cotton Bowl race. The sixth-ranked Longhorns whipped Texas Christian 35-10 behind A.J. "Jam" Jones' four touchdowns. Ninth-ranked Houston was idle.

Two ECU Wrestlers Lose In Finals

CHAPEL HILL — East Carolina University sent two wrestlers into the finals of the North Carolina Invitational Tournament Saturday night, but both failed to win titles.

Heavyweight D.T. Joyner was beaten by Auburn's Chris Gardner, 5-1, while Frank Schade, at 150 pounds, was beaten by Joe Galli of North Carolina, 4-2.

Butch Revils, 177 pounds, captured third place in the event, beating Eli Blazif of Auburn 10-4. He had earlier beaten the same wrestler, 12-8, to gain the finals.

In other consolation matches, 167-pounder Steve Goode lost to UNC's Rodrigues, 6-5, to finish fourth, and 118-pounder Steve Milanese lost to N.C. State's Negrette, 6-4, also to end up fourth. Earlier Milanese had defeated Andy Stone of Old Dominion, 5-3, while Good had bowled Bob Kyst of Georgia by forfeit.

In earlier semifinal results, Milanese pinned Tony Leonino of Auburn in 2:30; Charlie McGimsey was defeated by Matt Oddo of Auburn, 16-5, at 126; Schade defeated Roger Randle of Old Dominion, 6-5; Goode was defeated by Jaimie Milkovich of Auburn, 6-3; Revils was defeated by Matt Reiss of N.C. State, 8-6, and Joyner pinned Christian Holljes of Duke in 2:54.

Several other ECU wrestlers were one match away from placing. They included: John Brennan (118); McGimsey (126), Gary Sours (126); Dan Keene (134); Jim Osborn (142), Scott Eaton (142), Tom Robinson (158), Brian Merriam (177), Jay Dever (190) and Ross Sternheimer (Heavyweight).

East Carolina travels to Richmond for its first dual match on Wednesday.

Rams Meet Falcons

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The 1979 National Football League season has not been a banner year for either the Los Angeles Rams or Atlanta Falcons, but both teams are fortunate in one regard — they're in pro football's weakest division.

Going into tonight's nationally televised contest, both the 5-6 Rams and 4-7 Falcons are still well in the thick of the NFC West race.

Los Angeles, in fact, can move into a tie for the division lead with a victory over the Falcons, since New Orleans fell to 6-6 via a 38-24 loss to Seattle on Sunday. And in a division where 500 is tops, the Falcons can move within a game of first with a triumph over the Rams, who are favored by a touchdown in this meeting.

As an example of what kind of year it's been for the Rams, they're hoping against hope that their No. 2 quarterback, Vince Ferragamo, can start against the Falcons.

Injury-riddled Los Angeles, NFC West champions the past six years, has lost starter Pat Haden for the season with a broken finger, and backup Ferragamo — who has never started an NFL game — has been sidelined since Oct. 14 with a broken bone in his throwing hand.

Bob Lee, the 11-year NFL veteran who formerly played for Atlanta and Minnesota, has been with the Rams for less than two weeks, and he and rookie Jeff Rutledge are the other Los Angeles quarterbacks.

The Falcons, too, may have a reserve at the controls. June Jones III will start at quarterback if Steve Bartkowski is unable to play. He was listed as doubtful because of a hip injury suffered in last Sunday's 24-3 loss to the New York Giants.

Jones, who has completed nine of 17 passes for 159 yards this season, came off the bench last year to lead the Falcons to a 15-7 Monday night victory over the Rams in Atlanta. Ferragamo is seven of 17 for 89 yards for the Rams this year.

The opposing coaches, Atlanta's Leeman Bennett and Los Angeles' Ray Malavasi, agree that neither team can afford many more losses.

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) — "King" Richard Petty won his seventh national stock car drivers' title by "racing as hard as I could" in the final event of the season, although running hard was the only way he might have lost the driving crown.

While Benny Parsons was winning Sunday's $188,050 Los Angeles Times 500, the last race of the 30-event NASCAR season, Petty was charging with the leaders all the way.

Petty stayed on a razor edge — somewhere between too chancy and just barely under control — when he might have coasted the last 350 miles to win the drivers' title from hard-luck runnerup Darrell Waltrip.

In a furious dash to the finish, Petty wound up fifth — but he was only .78 seconds behind the winner.

"I probably took some chances I shouldn't have taken," said the 42-year-old Petty, of Randleman, N.C. "But every time I've won ... I won it wide open.

"You can get in as much trouble cooling it as you do running as hard as you can," Petty said of his philosophy about holding onto a full lap lead over Waltrip — who was Petty's only competition for the driving title.

Waltrip admitted planning a conservative strategy Sunday that ran counter to his nickname of "Jaws." Hoping to outlast the always-charging Petty, Waltrip continued to experience the kind of hard luck that clouded him the last few months of 1979. He had won seven of the first 21 races this year and at one time was over 300 points in front of Petty in the driver standings.

The moment of truth, or untruth, came for Waltrip in the 39th through 41st laps when NASCAR officials said he dropped one full lap behind the pack of leaders. He was in eighth place when the 200-lap event ended.

"I ain't never going to figure it out," Waltrip, 32, of Franklin, Tenn., said of the official decision he had fallen a lap behind. "Never. Never. They took it away from me and it broke my heart."

The NASCAR lap count put Waltrip one lap behind after he was forced to spin into the infield on lap 39 to avoid the car of John Rezek, which had spun and was blocking turn 3.

"It was early in the race and I didn't want to take myself out of it so I took the dirt," Waltrip said. "I got right back on the track and I was still on the same lap as the leaders. I know

I was. Then two laps later we all went into the pits at the same time and came out at the same time."

But about four laps later, Waltrip learned on the radio from his pit crew that he was being counted by NASCAR as one lap back. The opportunity to unlap himself never came the rest of the way, although a crash by Petty might have handed the title to Waltrip.

Waltrip's crew chief Buddy Parrott considered an official protest of the lap count. But Waltrip couldn't get past the leaders and didn't get his car into the final chase, and the protest was never filed.

"I was a little surprised at how hard Richard ran," said

Parsons, who won $24,950 in capturing his second victory of the year — both in the final four events of the season. "He stayed right up there in the thick of the race."

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold: ♠865432 ♥A10 ♦83 ♣AJ4 The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass ? What action do you take?

A.—This hand is deceiving. If you think it is a minimum, look again! Now that partner has raised spades you must reevaluate your hand as if you were the opening bidder. Your fifth and sixth spades gain added value—despite the raggedness of your suit, you might not lose a trump trick in view of partner's support. In addition, you have fine support for partner's club suit. Your hand is, in fact, worth a full opening bid, so to bid less than four spades would be a dereliction of duty.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold: ♠AKQ9 ♥52 ♦K7 ♣109832 The bidding has proceeded: East South West North 4 ♥ Pass Pass 4 ♠ Pass ? What action do you take?

A.—East's preempt has achieved its purpose—here you are at the four-level with a good hand and you don't know what to do! We would not criticize a bold jump to six spades, for partner might easily have the right hand. Ideally, we would like to invite to slam, but there's no good bid. If you try five spades, partner will almost surely reject you because his trump suit is shoddy. All in all, we would stay fixed and take a certain profit by passing.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold: ♥AKJ52 ♦AQ94 ♣Q1072 The bidding has proceeded: North East South 1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass ? What action do you take?

A.—Once again the preempt has worked—no longer have the room to explore scientifically the full potential of the hand. However, this time we are not prepared to stay out of slam. The best way to describe our hand is to make a cue-bid of five spades and see how partner reacts.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold: ♠9853 ♥AQ85 ♦Q ♣AKJ10 The bidding has proceeded:

East South West North 1 ♦ Dble. Pass 1 ♥ Pass ? What action do you take?

A.—If you discount your queen of diamonds, you do not have much more than a minimum takeout double. However, there are many hands that North might have for his simple one heart takeout that would offer a reasonable play for game. Your hand just about merits a raise to two hearts.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold: ♠AJ1032 ♥A93 ♦K102 ♣AQ The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1 ♠ Pass 2 NT Pass ? What do you bid now?

A.—Your prime values, intermediates and fifth spade made your hand just too strong for an opening no trump bid. Since partner's response shows 13-15 points, you are in the slam zone. However, you are not quite strong enough to bid the slam yourself. An invitational jump to four no trump, which is not Blackwood, describes your values adequately.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold: ♠AKJ72 ♥Q8 ♦A93 ♣A87 The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1 ♥ Pass 1 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Pass ? What do you bid now?

A.—Despite the fact that his heart suit isn't solid and that he has only one ace, partner had enough to open the bidding and then jump raise your suit. There are all sorts of fancy bids you could make, and you could even ask for aces and kings, but nothing is going to give you more information than you already have. Bid a grand slam. Seven spades should be slightly safer, but we won't quarrel with seven no trump.

Q.7—As South, vulnerable, you hold: ♠6 ♥KQJ10 ♦9852 ♣AQ83 The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1 ♥ Pass 2 NT Pass ? What action do you take?

A.—The auction has developed in an unfortunate manner. Since partner could not respond one spade, there is a very real danger that your shortness in the suit could prove fatal to a no trump contract. Nevertheless, partner's jump to two no trump is forcing, and the only intelligent action you can take is to raise to three no trump. If you introduce one of your minors, partner will almost surely assume that you have five hearts, which could land you in an even worse contract.

Q.8—As South vulnerable, you hold: ♠A ♥AK10873 ♦Q95 ♣KJ6 The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1 ♥ Pass 1 ♠ Pass 3 ♥ Pass 4 ♦ Dble. Pass Pass 5 ♥ Pass ? What action do you take?

A.—Partner's jump over game after a strong auction conveys a specific message. He has two fast losers in the unbid suit—in this case, clubs. Since you have that suit under control, you must bid six hearts.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, NOV. 20, 1979

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Double check your judgment early in the day and make sure it is correct. Find new ways that can increase your income in the future. Study whatever has been puzzling you in the past.

ARIES (Apr. 21 to Apr. 19) Be sure you have correct data before making any important decisions today. Be alert to new opportunities now present.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Your mate is cooperative so make the most of this now. Your intuition will improve as the day gets longer.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Use caution in whatever you do early in the day, but later all goes smoothly and you can throw caution to the winds.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be sure your activities are well scheduled before you start working. Strive for more harmony with family members.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Be sure to handle difficult work early in the day so you will have more time for social activities later in the day.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study new interests that could be profitable in the future. Make sure you invest money wisely and well. Be more cheerful.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Contact higher-ups who can give the support you need at this time. The evening is fine for social pleasure with congenials.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't take any chances with money in the morning or you could regret it later. Don't let an outsider take advantage of you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Morning is not the time to go after personal goals, but the rest of the day is fine. Friends can bring you pleasure in the evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Concentrate on how best to solve problems that have been puzzling to you in the past. Health treatments can be helpful to you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Ideal day for seeing as many persons as you can, either for business or personal reasons. Show that you have wisdom.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan how to expand in your line of endeavor. Be sure not to let an opponent upset you in any way. Relax in the evening.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be able to comprehend anything having large scope to it, be projects or philosophies. There could be fame and wealth in this chart. Teach good manners and give good religious training early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Fonzie has this problem. The leather-jacketed hero of ABC's "Happy Days" is losing his cool, or at least some of the magnetic appeal he's held for Tuesday night TV audiences for six years.

Tuesday night has belonged to The Fonz since ABC became the No. 1 network. In fact, "Happy Days" played no small role in the uplifting of ABC.

But this season something happened. Fonzie started losing viewers. Not, as some had expected, to the CBS' "Happy Days" imitation, "California Fever," but to a redneck sheriff named Lobo who works for "surprise of surprises — NBC. "Happy Days" actually lost to "Sheriff Lobo" in the ratings one Tuesday this season (Oct. 9, to be precise), a ratings upset that reasonable minds couldn't have imagined two months ago. And it wasn't a freak.

"Lobo" has consistently given "Happy Days" strong competition this season, effectively combining slapstick, silly and TV's version of sex (braless buxom types just sort of bouncing around) to become a secure hit. "Happy Days" ratings are down a reported 19 percent this season.

The development did not cheer ABC executives, who have witnessed a general erosion of many of their network's successful series this year. Faced with the November ratings sweeps period — hardball time in TV land — they decided to give "Happy Days" a fix. The sex fix.

Rush orders were put in for a couple of episodes with "promotable" (read "titillating") episodes, resulting in one show featuring a "red-hot burlesque show" and another, last week, about nude photography.

The ratings aren't in on this last artwork, but the "red-hot burlesque" gimmick worked nicely, earning "Happy Days" a whopping 38 percent of the audience, even though the show was competing against a special two-hour "Lobo."

Strangely, ABC seems loathe to admit the sex-fix tactic, even though the evidence — spicy promos and the programs themselves — were right there for the world to see. I guess the sex-fix is something you just do, but don't talk about (like putting catsup on cottage cheese).

"No, we haven't asked them ("Happy Days" producers) to redefine the series in a sexier way," said Ron Taylor, ABC's vice president of ongoing programs. "We haven't pressured them for exploitive shows."

"But in a sweeps period, we try to get the most promotable show possible without being exploitive. During the critical sweeps period, we try to maximize the promotability, we're going for the most promotable shows we can muster."

Reaction In Campus Tide

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — American students, many of whom turned away from supporting their government during the 1960s, seem to have been drawn back toward traditional patriotism by the takeover of the U.S. embassy in Iran.

"For once, it is a cause, an issue, on which all Americans seem to feel the same ... The reaction is kind of satisfying to students and probably to the American public in general," said Dan Fleitas, an associate professor of political science at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte.

But Fleitas, who teaches a course on political socialization, cautioned against an over-optimistic view of the current campus demonstrations.

"There is not an ideological unity. It's a feeling these kinds of acts just can't be condoned," he said.

"What we're seeing on American campuses is a kind of universal reaction by almost all students toward what they view as inhumane terrorist action against the hostages."

Campus demonstrations have been restrained, Fleitas said, because, "so far, nothing tragic has happened to the hostages. The president himself has asked them to cool it. Even the Republicans have."

And Southern campuses traditionally have shown more restraint than some in other parts of the country, Fleitas added.

But if the hostages are released, campus politics probably will split again into conservative vs. liberal groups, this time over the question of what to do about the former shah of Iran, Fleitas said.

British Govm't Shaken By Unveiling Soviet Spy

By MICHAEL DENNIGAN
LONDON (UPI) — "The name which the honorable gentleman has given me is that of Sir Anthony Blunt."

With that explosive sentence in a hushed House of Commons Thursday, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher stripped away another layer of secrecy surrounding what is possibly the Soviet Union's most successful intelligence penetration of high places in the West.

The shock waves reached into Buckingham Palace itself — for Professor Anthony Blunt, tall, silver-haired and distinguished, a world recognized authority on art and for many years the queen's chief adviser on the priceless royal collection, was what intelligence professionals call a "mole."

He was a Soviet agent. Blunt, now 72, operated under deep cover for decades at the highest levels of the British establishment — including a stint in British intelligence during World War II — before moving into the queen's own residence at Buckingham Palace as an honored servant.

He was the unknown key figure in a spy web that still causes shudders to Western counter-espionage services — the penetration of British and U.S. intelligence in the 1940s and '50s by three old friends from Cambridge University of the pre-war years.

They were called Guy Francis de Moncy Burgess, Donald DuArt Maclean and Harold "Kim" Philby. Blunt was the "fourth man" of the network, the man who tipped Burgess and Maclean in time to flee to Moscow in 1951 before they could be picked up for suspected treason.

The four, from wealthy or upper-middle-class families, were among the most brilliant Cambridge undergraduates of their time, destined for the glittering prizes of life. They were members of the university's most exclusive private club — the Apostles, restricted to the brightest young men, many of them homosexual.

But like many other youths of their generation they were appalled by the poverty of the masses in the great worldwide depression.

They saw salvation in the great experiment of Soviet communism under Stalin and joined the Communist Party, like so many young idealists at the time.

Blunt, who never concealed his lifelong Marxism, said in an interview earlier this year that he was converted by Burgess, with whom he shared an apartment — not the other way round.

Sometime before graduation they were recruited by a top Soviet agent in London who decided it made more sense to work from the inside of the British establishment.

He couldn't have chosen better. Blunt stayed on at Cambridge as a teacher — and a talent spotter for Moscow intelligence — while building a formidable international reputation as an art historian and writer that was to take him to Buckingham Palace and a knighthood from the queen.

Burgess and Maclean set out on parallel diplomatic careers that ultimately took them to the secret files of British and American atomic and security information in the British Embassy in Washington.

Maclean was one of Moscow's most valued atomic spies — feeding it U.S. secrets at a time when the Soviet Union was desperately trying to catch up on America's atomic lead.

Philby was even more spectacular. After a brilliant career in the secret service during World War II, and head of field operations in Turkey on the Soviet borders, he was senior British intelligence officer in Washington by 1949.

He was acknowledged as the West's top Soviet expert and as such was consulted by American intelligence on major anti-Soviet operations. He wreaked havoc.

He helped plan a joint Anglo-American project to drop guerrillas into Albania in 1951 to foment revolution. Then he betrayed it to Moscow. The Soviets were waiting and hundreds died in the ambush and subsequent repression.

U.S. counter-espionage suspected his treachery but could not persuade London. In frustration, Washington at one time refused to divulge any secrets — atomic or otherwise — to the British for fear of leaks to Moscow.

But suspicion of Philby — at one time considered a possible head of the service — grew in London after Burgess and Maclean fled to Moscow. Philby quit and went to the Middle East as a journalist for the London Observer and The Economist.

In Beirut in January 1963, he too slipped away to Moscow — to pick up a Soviet decoration and his back pay and pension as a long-serving KGB colonel.

A year later, British security wrested a confession from Blunt — the old Cambridge associate of the three fugitives — in return for immunity. By this time Blunt had served at the palace for 14 years, had been "Sir Anthony" for 6, and had a worldwide reputation. The matter was hushed up.

Whether the queen was told at the time her chief art adviser was a Soviet spy and traitor was not clear, and is a source of growing controversy.

The queen waited until it was made public last week before stripping Blunt of his knighthood — although he held posts at the palace until retirement last year.

Mrs. Thatcher decided to publicly expose Blunt amid mounting pressure from parliamentarians following recent publication of books on the Burgess-Maclean-Philby affair that drew heavily on CIA material unavailable in London.

Blunt, given 24 hours "courtesy warning" by the government, dropped from sight. His lawyer denied speculation he had gone abroad and said he might issue a statement next week.

Adding Blunt to the list of Philby's accomplices showed only the tip of the iceberg, according to Andrew Boyle, whose book "The Climate of Treason" forced the disclosure. There were at least 25, he said.

"Some have died and quite a few — half a dozen — are walking free. One or two are still in influential positions, but I think they have long ago been neutralized," Boyle said.

Boyle said he got most of his clues from declassified CIA material that is still secret under British law.

More Overdue On Payments

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina bankers say inflation is cutting into the amount of money available and as a result, overdue payments on credit card purchases are rising.

In some cases, they say, customers are borrowing on one card to pay off debts run up on another.

There are also more cards in circulation now than in recent years. Some North Carolina banks began issuing two different cards last year, and credit was granted more easily to attract new customers. Out-of-state banks, especially Citibank of New York and Continental Illinois Bank of Chicago, made extensive promotion offers in North Carolina last year for their cards. Some North Carolina banks countered with their own offers.

"This was kind of spurred on by the fact that Citibank and Continental Illinois and others were coming into our market area," said Byron E. Hodnett, First Union's senior vice president for consumer banking.

"No matter what business you're in, you don't want a competitor coming and taking your business away."

But in response to the overdue payments, some banks are tightening their screening and collection efforts for credit card programs. Banks are making a specific effort to collect on credit card accounts as soon as they become delinquent, usually 30 days after a statement is mailed to a customer.

James T. Brewer, senior vice president in charge of retail banking for Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., said the increase in delinquent accounts is moderate.

But, "with the economic environment what it is, we're very attuned to the fact that this may be the bellweather of further rises."

"The next 18 months are going to be tough. We had a business recession in 1974-75. This time it's going to be a consumer recession," said Robert Lane, a vice president for First Union National Bank.

At North Carolina National Bank, senior vice president Winton R. Poole said his firm has added more people to its collection effort and is devoting more time to collections.

"We have no collateral for the debt. It's primarily a sales job by the collector to try to convince the customer that it's in his best interest to pay," Poole said.

Nationally, delinquency rates range from 3.5 to 4.5 percent, but North Carolina banks apparently prefer a rate of about 2 percent. Hodnett said First Union's delinquency rate on accounts opened last year is about 3 percent.

Sudden Change 'Amazes' Shah

LONDON (UPI) — The deposed shah of Iran defended his human rights record, denied he was a dictator and spoke bitterly of President Carter in an interview published Sunday in the London Sunday Times.

The shah, who gave the interview seven weeks ago while still living in Mexico, also described the sudden appearance of widespread civil disturbances that led to his exile from Iran last January as unprecedented in history.

"What happened was unnatural and unpredictable," Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi said.

"Driving through the city of Mashhad in an open car only four months before the situation became desperate, I was acclaimed by 300,000 people. Just after the troubles in Tabriz (in January, 1977), my prime minister went there and had an overwhelming reception. I can recall nothing in the history of the world — not even the French revolution — to compare with what happened subsequently," he said.

The interview was not published until the newspaper resumed publication Sunday after a lengthy shutdown caused by a labor dispute. The shah is currently in New York for medical treatment, which triggered the takeover of the American Embassy in Tehran 14 days ago.

The shah spoke "in a bitter tone" about his allies in Washington, the interview said.

"When President Carter visited me in December, 1977, he spoke not only of Iran as 'an island of stability in one of the more troubled areas of the world,' but also paid me personally some very warm compliments," the shah said.

The newspaper quoted him as adding, "But 12 months later..." as he shrugged his shoulders and rolled his eyes upwards "in an evident imitation of incredulity that such bad faith could exist."

Asked about the Secretary-General of Amnesty International's accusation that under the shah, Iran's record of human rights was "worse than any other in the world," the shah showed "anger and emotion," the newspaper said.

"Tell me the name of one man who under my rule was murdered for alleged political offenses," the shah challenged. "Terrorists are different — they must be dealt with firmly."

"Look at what is happening in Iran now — that is the best answer to my critics," he said.

The shah described himself in the interview as "a king and not a dictator (who) did not think it right to authorize massive repression, although many people advised this."
