UN Security Council To Stage U.S.-Iran Debate

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The U.N. Security Council was expected to begin debate today on the U.S.-Iranian crisis in response to a request from Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim contending that it is the most serious threat to peace since the 1962 Cuban missile crisis.

The United States, which for nearly two weeks blocked an Iranian request for the debate, agreed because it believed the debate would result in a strong resolution demanding release of the 49 Americans held hostage in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran for three weeks, a State Department official said.

The hostages were visited Sunday for the first time since their ordeal began Nov. 4 by an American official as tens of thousands of Iranians held the daily anti-American demonstration outside.

The official, Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, reported the captives were still being kept with their hands tied loosely and were "anxious" but healthy. He also reported one of them was recovering from chicken pox.

In Tehran, revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini today urged his Islamic followers to mobilize against the United States and said all Iranians must learn to handle a weapon.

In a speech to revolutionary guards, the Moslem patriarch envisaged his nation of 35 million people producing a 20-million strong army within a few years. "Our Islamic principles say everyone should know how to shoot and how to ride a horse," he said.

Waldheim in a letter to Security Council President Sergio Palacios de Vizzio of Bolivia said the tension between the United States and Iran "could have dangerous consequences for the entire world." He asked that the council "be convened urgently in an effort to seek a peaceful solution."

Diplomatic sources said they expected the 15 council members to consult privately this morning and to meet publicly in the afternoon to start the debate.

These sources said they expected council members generally would make it very clear that they considered the main issue release of the Americans held by Iranian students demanding that the U.S. government surrender the deposed shah for trial in Iran.

Iran's U.N. delegation asked Tehran for instructions. Acting Foreign Minister Abolhassan Bani Sadr asked on Nov. 13 for a council meeting to hear the Iranian revolutionary regime's charges against the shah and the United States. But the council refused to grant the Iranian request because it had not replied to a council statement Nov. 9 urging immediate release of the hostages.

Waldheim's request for a council meeting was announced at 3 a.m. Monday

Tehran time and there was no immediate reaction from the Iranian capital. On Sunday, Pars, the official Iranian news agency, announced that Bani Sadr would fly to New York today to address the council and demand that the United States surrender the shah. But several hours later a government spokesman said the trip was delayed a week because of the Ashura religious holiday and the national referendum Dec. 2 on Iran's new Islamic constitution.

Waldheim's spokesman, Francois Giuliani, said it was the second time in U.N. history that a secretary-general requested a Security Council meeting because of a threat to peace. The other time was on July 13, 1960, when Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld convened a council meeting because of trouble in the newly independent Congo.

High Court Will Review Federal Abortion-Funding

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

The Supreme Court today agreed to consider whether Congress can refuse to pay for most abortions for women on welfare.

Stepping into a controversy marked by inflamed emotions, the justices said they will study the constitutionality of the so-called Hyde amendment.

The court will study the amendment as it was adopted in 1976. It bars Medicaid spending for abortions unless a woman's life would be endangered by childbirth, in cases of promptly reported rape or incest, or when two doctors say childbirth would cause "severe and long-lasting physical health damages to the mother."

The amendment was first adopted in 1976 as part of the appropriation for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Just recently Congress agreed on a new Hyde amendment for fiscal year 1979. It is more restrictive, eliminating the "severe and long-lasting physical health damages" exemption.

A federal judge in Chicago last April struck down the restriction on abortion spending — both the Hyde amendment and the Illinois law patterned after it — as unconstitutional.

U.S. District Judge John Grady ruled that Illinois must make Medicaid money available for all "medically necessary" abortions until a fetus reaches the point where it can survive outside the mother.

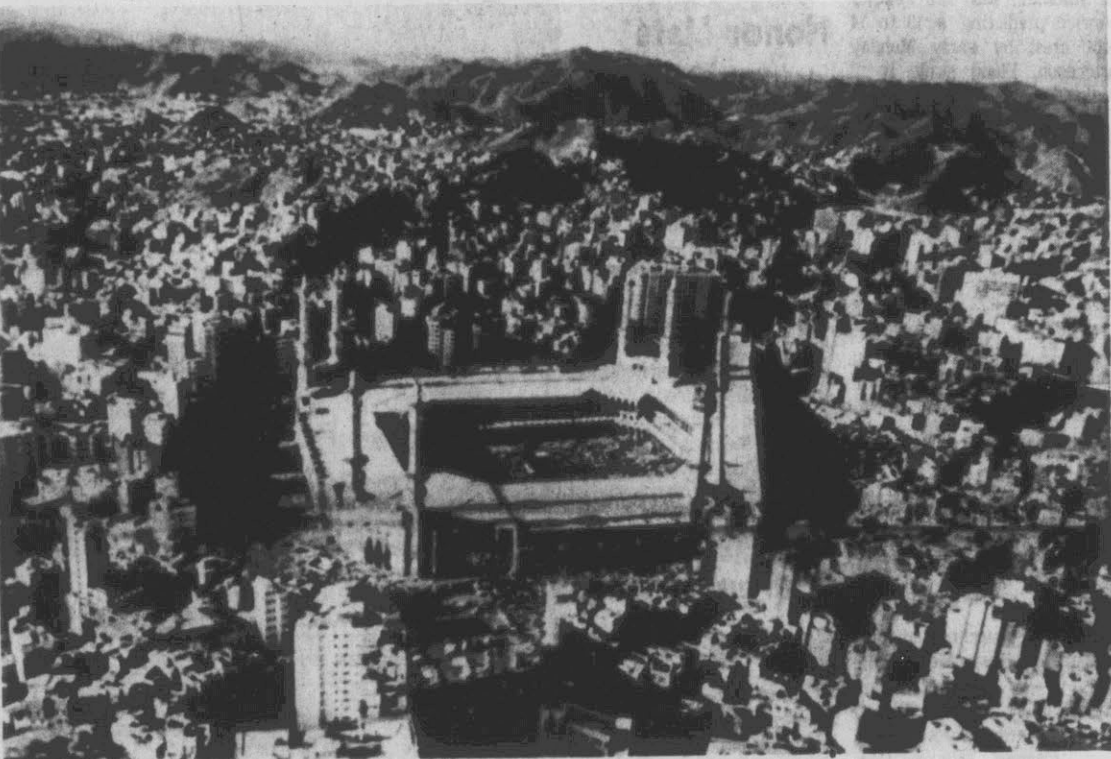

Just when that

"viability" occurs varies in individual cases. But usually it is sometime between the 20th and 30th weeks of pregnancy.

Because Grady's final order was limited to Illinois' participation in the federal Medicaid program, it did not immediately affect the federal government's spending for abortions.

As a result, Illinois has had to pay for all "medically necessary" abortions even though it is not receiving federal matching funds for most of them.

In today's order, the justices left themselves an opening to dispose of the case without reaching its merits. They said they will hear arguments and then decide whether they have the necessary jurisdiction to rule on the constitutional issue.

Plea To Emirates By Miller

ABU DHABI, United Arab Emirates (AP) — U.S. Treasury Secretary G. William Miller hopes to convince officials of three cut back on oil production. His arrival here today marked the second stop on a tour designed to encourage moderate members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to maintain high production levels.

Miller failed earlier to win an outright commitment from Saudi Arabian officials in response to a U.S. request that the Saudis maintain peak oil production at 9.5 million barrels a day. American officials are hopeful such a commitment will be announced very soon, however. The United States receives about 24 percent of its total oil imports from Saudi Arabia.

In Abu Dhabi, the major oil producer and most powerful of seven members of the United Arab Emirates, Miller will try to talk officials out of plans to trim their oil output next year to about 1.3 million barrels a day, down from the current level of 1.5 million barrels.

Miller will continue Tuesday to Kuwait, the third and final stop on his Middle East tour.

Miller's message is the same in all three countries: A slowdown in production now could create oil shortages that would send prices skyrocketing again and bring on a worldwide economic recession.

Miller was greeted at the Abu Dhabi airport by the nation's finance minister, Sheikh Hamdan Bin Rashid Al-Maktum. He will meet later today with the president of the United Arab Emirates, Zayid Bin Sultan Al Nahayyan.

The United Arab Emirates, which extend along the Persian Gulf on the eastern shore of the Saudi Arabian peninsula, have a total population of about 760,000.

Earlier, Saudi Finance Minister Muhammad Al-Balkhail indicated his government doesn't plan to cut oil production in the immediate future. He said no decision has been made on next year's output, but added he saw no reason to reduce production.

Miller made his appeal for continued high output at a meeting with the Al-Balkhail and Oil Minister Ahmad Zaki Yamani.

Has Dim View Of Lawmaker's Trip

By BROOKS JACKSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House press secretary Jody Powell said today the Carter administration opposes Rep. George Hansen's personal mission to Iran and believes it may prolong the holding of 49 American hostages there.

"I don't think that sort of thing is helpful," Powell said of Hansen's negotiating independently with Iranian officials.

Hansen has proposed congressional hearings into charges against the deposed Shah of Iran as leverage to win the release of American hostages held for 23 days in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. President Carter has not endorsed any such proposal.

To the contrary, he has in any way with Iran's leaders as long as the Americans are held captive.

When a reporter asked if there was a danger that Iranians might misinterpret Hansen's statements as an official signal from the administration, Powell said, "Yes. If he gives a conflicting view to the students...he could prolong their (the hostages') stay."

Powell said the administration continues to oppose such private missions as Hansen's.

It was the administration's decision to admit the shah into the United States that sparked the seizure of the embassy Nov. 4 by militant Iranian students supported by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini. Iran's leaders have called repeatedly for extradition of the shah, hospitalized in New York City for treatment of cancer, as the price for releasing the hostages.

Hansen, an Idaho Republican, went to Tehran on his own last week and, in discussions with Iranian officials, proposed that a congressional committee investigate charges against the shah. Hansen said his proposal was well received in Tehran.

On Sunday he was allowed to see about 20 of the 49 American hostages at the embassy. He said their reaction to his presence made his trip worthwhile.

BELL'S FORK DANGEROUS

The intersection at Bell's Fork is very, very dangerous. When will something be done? To get out on the highway, you really have to take a chance.

According to Gerald England, Division Traffic Engineer with Dept. of Transportation, the Bell's Fork intersection has been reviewed and plans have been submitted to Raleigh. A signal was not warranted, but some construction of additional lanes have been proposed. When the project is funded, the improvements will be made.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

MORE THAN $600

More than $600 was raised during a yard sale given by Henry Faye Cayton and Margaret and Larry Baldree to pay for the replacement of a motor in a car specially equipped for a handicapped man.

The benefactor, William Rhinehart, and his wife, Betty, have asked Hotline to express their appreciation to the Caytons and the Baldrees and to all the persons who attended the sale and made contributions. They also thanked Arthur's Chapel FWB Church, which raised money for the same cause, and to H. L. Austin of Auto Specialty Company here which did the work on the car.

Search Mosque For Remnants Of Armed Band

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
RIYADH, SAUDI Arabia (AP) — Saudi troops combed the Grand Mosque in Mecca today, seeking remnants of the band of Moslems who seized Islam's holiest shrine six days ago.

"The whole mosque is under our control," Oil Minister Ahmad Zaki Yamani told reporters in Riyadh after Saudi troops routed the armed men from the upper floor of the building Saturday evening. But he said "some gangs" were still at large in the tunnels and passageways beneath the stadium-size building and courtyard and that they held some hostages.

"There is no danger from them," Yamani added.

Others were said to have escaped into the surrounding countryside and were being pursued by government troops. Part of the mosque was reported reopened for public worship on Sunday, for the first time since it was taken over during early morning prayers last Tuesday.

Diplomats said the men who took over the shrine in the holy city 480 miles southwest of Riyadh were members of the ultra-conservative Oteiba tribe from southern Saudi Arabia. Their leader, who proclaimed himself the messianic Mahdi, or prophet, and was identified as "Johaiman," was reported among those captured.

During the siege, he demanded that the government abolish radio, television and soccer and prohibit women from engaging in business.

Officials said earlier that those captured would be dealt with severely. A Moslem leader said Friday that they were guilty of "spreading corruption on earth," and the penalty for this is dismemberment.

Saudi national guardsmen, acting on orders from King Khaled, used howitzers and rapid-firing armored personnel carriers to blast most of the invaders from the upper floor of the mosque, diplomatic sources said. They said witnesses reported the attack was led by two armored personnel carriers that circled the inner courtyard, firing into the ramparts of the building where the intruders were holed up.

Other armored personnel carriers took up positions outside the building and after the fighting was ended, government troops could be seen atop the walls, apparently in complete control.

Rep. Edwin Bethune, R-Ark., on an official visit in Riyadh with Treasury Secretary G. William Miller, said he had pieced together from various sources estimates that the invaders totaled between 200 and 1,000 and that casualties on both sides totaled between 50 and 300.

Experts Feel Days Of Easy Credit Numbered

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Buying now and paying later — and later — has become a way of life for millions of Americans, but the days of easy credit are numbered.

Look at what some experts have to say: "The amount of risk that lenders ... are willing to take is diminishing," Robert Gibson, head of the National Foundation for Consumer Credit, a counseling agency.

"I would be surprised if there weren't some tightening up," Robert Evans, director of the National Consumer Finance Association whose member finance companies account for about 20 percent of outstanding installment debt.

"Credit is tougher to get ... It's tougher to get a loan," Dale Walworth of Wells Fargo Bank in San Francisco.

The tight money policy that economists have been talking about means lenders have to pay more for the dollars they loan. State usury laws limit the amount they can charge in interest. They don't want to take a chance on customers who may not be able to repay what they borrow.

Money wasn't always so expensive.

During most of the 1970s, there was "a very competitive scenario in which most of the major banks tried to expand their consumer credit businesses," said Donald Aueremma, vice president of New York's Chemical Bank.

Being competitive meant sending letters to people who were not depositors, offering Master Charge and Visa cards, overdraft checking, low-cost loans and a host of other credit. In many cases, the amount of the credit was approved in advance: Fill in the form and you're automatically entitled to $500. Or $1,000. Or more.

Outstanding consumer installment debt — not counting mortgages — has more than tripled in the past 10 years, increasing at a rate one and a third times as fast as personal income. At the end of September, Americans owed a record $303.9 billion in installment debt, compared to just over $98 billion at the same time a decade earlier.

The biggest growth has been in the area of revolving credit — the kind offered by bank cards and retailers. In September 1969, outstanding revolving credit totaled about $3 billion; today, it is more than 16 times that much or $50.4 billion.

But which China should send its athletes to the Olympic Games? This month, the 89 members of the International Olympic Committee have been voting on a proposal that would allow both Chinas to compete next year. The Peking team would represent the People's Republic of China. The team from Taiwan would represent the Chinese Taipei Olympic Committee, but would not use the Nationalist Chinese anthem or flag. Wedding Cancelled By Sudden Death

FARMVILLE — Patsy Britt and Neal Yontz were to be married in the First Baptist Church here Saturday.

Thanksgiving afternoon, while the couple was visiting with Miss Britt's parents, brother and sisters, nieces and nephews, all home for Thanksgiving and the wedding, Yontz died.

Family members said his death was sudden and quiet and apparently painless. He had not complained of being sick or feeling bad, they said.

Yontz, 37, died as the result of a malfunction of his heart caused by a malformation from birth of the heart, an autopsy done at Pitt County Memorial Hospital indicated.

Pitt County Medical Examiner Dr. Lawrence S. Harris said he understands Yontz suffered his first apparent heart malfunction at age 30. His fiancée said she was aware he had a congenital heart problem, but knew little about it.

Miss Britt, daughter of Russell and Rosalind Britt, had recently given up her job in the State Personnel Office, Raleigh, to live in Greensboro after her marriage. Yontz was general superintendent at Daniel Construction Company, Greensboro.

The funeral was held in Saltville, Va., his hometown, Sunday afternoon.

Rains Bring Flooding To Western Carolina

By The Associated Press

Rivers continued to rise in Western North Carolina early today, and at least 35 people were evacuated from their homes in Rosman late last night because of flooding on the Upper French Broad River.

The National Weather Service said at midnight that the river was expected to crest at 10.5 feet, or 2½ feet above flood stage, at Rosman in Transylvania County early this morning. The river reached flood stage about 9 p.m. Sunday.

"All the secondary roads are flooded," said a spokesman for the Transylvania County Sheriff's Department.

The weather service changed a flash-flood watch to a flood warning for the mountains of North Carolina late Sunday

Chemical War From Russia?

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. intelligence officials strongly suspect that the Soviet Union provided chemical weapons they believe were used against Laotian tribesmen resisting communist Pathet Lao and Vietnamese forces.

These officials, asking to remain anonymous, said a team of Russian chemical warfare specialists was detected earlier this year in western Laos, scene of reported poison gas attacks on H'Mong hill tribesmen who have never accepted communist victory in Laos.

"We'll probably never be able to come up with conclusive evidence, but we have high suspicion that the Russians provided the chemical agents," one official said.

An Army investigating group, including several doctors, concluded that at least two and possibly three different chemicals were used against the tribesmen — a nerve agent, a substance that caused massive bleeding and probably a riot-control gas.

The Army investigators based their report on medical symptoms and other signs described by 43 tribesmen they interviewed last month at three refugee camps in northern Thailand.

The tribesmen estimated 700 to 1,000 people died and that many more were sickened as a result of attacks by planes and rockets. Whole villages were said by the tribesmen to have been wiped out.

The H'Mong refugees were said in the investigation report either to have been directly exposed to chemical agents or to have witnessed attacks.

Nixon Host For Fund-Raiser

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon hosted a $1,000-per-person Republican fund-raiser at his estate here in a farewell reception for 400 friends and political supporters.

The Nixons have sold the estate — reportedly for about $2 million — and expect to move to a New York City apartment, where they will be closer to their daughters, early next year.

Former first lady Pat Nixon did not attend the Sunday gathering. She was hospitalized last week with pneumonia, and was resting.

"This is our way of saying thanks to my many supporters during 33 years of political life," a brunch organizer quoted Nixon, who resigned from office during the Watergate scandal, as saying.

night as heavy rain continued in the mountains.

Some areas reported rainfall of more than three inches in a 24-hour period.

The heavy rains were brought on by a stalled low-pressure area over the mountains. But the weather service said skies would probably clear by later today, with the chance of rain steadily diminishing.

Those evacuated from Rosman, which sits on the Upper French Broad River, were taken to the local high school, which sits on a hill, authorities said.

In Buncombe County, emergency crews were placed on alert as the river continued to rise. The river was expected to crest at one foot above flood level late this morning at Asheville.

Authorities evacuated one woman from a trailer near the river in Buncombe County late Sunday night.

The river was just below flood stage at Blantyre in Transylvania County late Sunday night. It was expected to crest at one to two feet above flood stage by early this afternoon.

Heavy flooding was expected at Marshall, with the weather service predicting a 13 to 14 foot crest by early Monday afternoon. Flood stage is 10 feet.

The river was expected to crest at two feet above flood stage at Hot Springs early this afternoon and at one foot above flood stage at Biltmore this morning.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Virginia Electric and Power Co. plans to bring some North Carolina legislators to Richmond, Va., for a briefing next month, at the power company's expense.

At least eight legislators, all from the area that Vepco serves in the northeastern part of the state, say they plan to attend, company officials say.

A number of state officials, including Gov. Jim Hunt, have taken Vepco to task recently, saying its high rates are hampering industrial development in the region. Hunt called on the company sell its territory in the state to Carolina Power & Light Co.

But N.W. Chalmers, staff administrator for the North Carolina territory, said he didn't know whether the topic would come up in the Dec. 6-7 meeting.

The meeting was arranged to "get legislators brought up to date" on Vepco's activities, said Randolph D. McIver, vice president for Vepco's North Carolina service area in the northeastern part of the state.

Among the topics the company wants to discuss with the legislators are Vepco's nuclear-power program, its efforts to convert its more expensive oil-burning plants to coal and its proposals for peak-load pricing, McIver said.

The meeting will be closed to the public. McIver said the company plans to hold a briefing for reporters at the beginning of the year on the same topics.

The legislators planning to attend the meeting were Sen. Melvin R. Daniels Jr., D-Elizabeth City and Reps. Charles D. Evans, D-Nags Head; George P. Cullipher, D-Williamston; Roger W. Bone, D-Rocky Mount; James M. Ezzell, D-Rocky Mount; Roberts H. Jernigan Jr., D-Ahoskie; J. Guy Revelle Sr., D-Conway and Allen C. Barbee, D-Spring Hope, Chalmers said.

Sen. Julian R. Allsbrook, D-Roanoke Rapids, and Rep. Vernon G. James, D-Elizabeth City, said in interviews that they might attend. Chalmers said Rep. George A. Hux, D-Halifax, had told the utility he might attend.

At least five legislators have turned down the invitation, he said. They are Reps. H. Horton Rountree, D-Greenville, and Howard B. Chapin, D-Washington, and Sens. J.J. "Monk" Harrington, D-Lewiston, Vernon E. White, D-Winterville, and Dallas L. Alford Jr., D-Rocky Mount.

James E. Gibson Jr., director of the state energy division, will also attend the meeting, Chalmers said.

J. Larkin Little, the Greenville chairman of Operation Overcharge, organized to protest Vepco's rates, said he was surprised that the legislators had agreed to the closed meeting with Vepco.

"These are public officials, and they're a public company, so why is the meeting closed?" he said.

OUT-WITTING HUMAN NATURE

An escrow account is, normally, money which is held by a third party to pay off a future debt. When you make your monthly mortgage payment, you are probably paying money into an escrow account over and above the loan installment for hazard insurance and property taxes.

In one way, the escrow account helps you out-wit human nature. It is said that the first thing that gets cut when the budget has to be balanced is the monthly savings deposit, which normally would be used to pay taxes and insurance.

Here's how you escrow account is set up. At the beginning of each year, your account is reviewed and your costs are estimated for the next year. The total is divided by 12 to get the monthly payment. This payment could increase for one or a combination of three main reasons: 1) Your tax rate or premium rate has increased; 2) Your assessed valuation has increased; 3) Additional funds are needed to make up a deficit in your escrow account.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at BLOUNT & BALL REALTY CO. 201 E. Arlington Blvd., Greenville, Phone: 756-3000. We're here to help!

Explain To Friends You Are Trimming

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: How do you go about putting a stop to exchanging Christmas gifts with people you hardly ever see? I don't mean relatives. I mean out-of-towners who used to be neighbors and whose children were friendly with our children (all grown now), and folks we are no longer close to.

Shopping, wrapping and mailing Christmas presents has gotten to be a real chore, and I am not as young as I used to be. I would just as soon get off a lot of people's lists and take them off mine, too! I'm sure they feel the same way about it, but don't know how to get off ours.

So how do I get off this merry-go-round, Abby? I would just as soon send Christmas cards to a couple of dozen people who are still on my Christmas list. Thanks from... CHICAGO

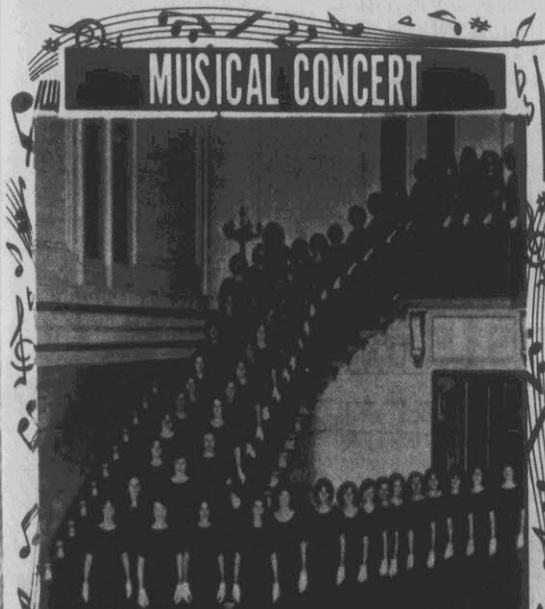

DEAR CHICAGO: Early in December write a note to those you'd like to take off your gift list and put on the card list, saying you are "thankful" for friends with whom you can be perfectly frank. Explain that this year, along with trimming your Christmas tree, you're trimming your gift list and sending cards instead. I'm betting they'll appreciate your practical approach and will reciprocate accordingly.

DEAR ABBY: What do you do with a big-hearted husband who gets loaded at a party on Saturday night and invites everyone there to come to our house on Sunday for a Bloody Mary brunch? When I hear him say this, I feel I have to say, "Oh, yes, do come, we'd love to have you"—but what I would love to do is conk him on the head!

Most people have sense enough not to come, but some do. What's the solution?

NEWPORT

DEAR NEWPORT: Should you hear your husband issue such an invitation, good-humoredly let it be known that hubby is tipsy and there will be no party. And if somebody shows up, let HIM entertain them.

Wedding Vows Are Solemnized Sunday

Miss Gracie Fleming and Julius Sneed Jr. of Greenville were united in marriage Sunday at 5 p.m. in the English Chapel F W B Church.

The Rev. Blake Phillips performed the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Dudley, organist, and Mrs. Bessie Edwards, soloist, presented a program of nuptial music. Mrs. Edwards sang "I Love You Truly," "We've Only Just Begun" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The church was decorated with an arrangement of white gladioli and daisies flanked by a candelabra arch of 15 candles and two seven branch candelabra. The couple knelt on a profile prie-dieu adorned with satin ribbons matching family pew markers.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Willie Fleming and Mr. Julius Sneed Sr. of Washington, and Mrs. Catherine Norfleet of Greenville.

The bride was given in marriage by Clarence Atkinson, her uncle. She wore a formal length gown of white sheer woven polyester lined in acetate taffeta. The gown featured a lace applique edging at the front pleated insert and empire waist, long sheer sleeves and appliqued trimmed cuffs. The gown had a chapel length train. She wore a matching veil and carried a colonial design of white daisies, baby's breath and greenery tied with satin ribbons.

Clara Reddick, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and Willie Mae Ward, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor. Mrs. Reddick wore a formal gown of emerald green designed with an asymmetrical neckline with a floor length back drape. The empire bodice was accented with appliques of matching Venice lace and the gown had long fitted sleeves and a modified A-line skirt. Mrs. Ward wore a formal length gown of jade green organza designed with a portrait neckline with a bertha collar edged in ivory Venice lace. An inset band at the waistline of the empire bodice featured a Dior bow at center back. The modified A-line skirt was enhanced by a ruffled flounce at the hemline that extended up the back to form a bustle. They carried bouquets of yellow daisies.

Bridesmaids included Rosa Marie Carr, Ellen Roach, Hilda Carr, Coristine Arrington, cousin of the bride, of Greenville, Judy Gorham of Falkland and Lillie Barreiteau of Georgia. They wore Nile green floor length gowns, slightly flared with a high fitted lace bodice, jewel neckline and laced side fronts. The sleeves were full lined and gathered into buttoned cuffs. The gown extended into back pleats and gathers. They carried colonial bouquets of mixed yellow and white daisies with baby's breath and satin ribbons.

Shonda Pitt was flower girl and wore a long yellow dress gathered at the waist with a bow tied in back. The yoke and hemline were enhanced by lace. She carried a miniature of the bridal bouquet of white daisies.

Junius White and Stephen Ward, brother of the bride, were best men. Ushers were William E. Ward Jr. and Curtis Reddick, nephews of the bride, William Ward Sr., brother of the bride, David Foreman, Frederick Laughinghouse and Joshlyn Barreiteau of Panama. Kelvin Fleming, son of the bride, was ring bearer and carried a white acetate satin heart shaped pillow edged in nylon and acetate and satin streamers.

The mother of the bride wore a beige dress of million silhouettes interlock knit with a spread collar and front bodice tucks. She was given a rose by the couple.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall after the ceremony. The table was covered with a white lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of white gladioli and yellow and white daisies, candles and greenery. Mrs. Corina Atkinson, aunt of the bride, served cake and Mrs. Debbie Clemons poured punch. Carolyn Reddick, niece of the bride, registered guests and Ms. Margaret A. Phillips directed the wedding.

For a wedding trip to unannounced points, the bride changed into a two-piece red and white suit and wore her mother's corsage. The couple will be living in Greenville.

The bridal couple graduated from Rose High School. She is employed by University Nursing Center and he is employed by Charles Paint Co.

An after-rehearsal party was given by the parents of the bride. A bridal shower was given by the bride's sister-in-law, Willie Mae Ward, and a shower was given by her co-workers.

Moslem Unity Signals Shoals

The attack on the United States embassy in Pakistan added a new and very dangerous dimension to American problems in the Middle East.

Many Middle East observers believe that the attack was inspired by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's broadcast statement that the United States was involved in the takeover of the Grand Mosque of Mecca in Saudi Arabia.

Nothing could have been further from the truth, of course, and the Mosque was in fact seized by extremist Moslems, who may well share the Ayatollah's beliefs.

The statement was enough to convince a mob in another land, however, and the U. S. embassy was burned and lives were lost.

It was evidence enough that Khomeini, as he flaunts all international law, may be picking up popular support in other Moslem nations.

Such a situation has danger written all over it, not only for the United States and its allies but also for the Soviet Union, whose communism is totally rejected by Moslems.

Mob Rule Especially Terrifying Today

Mob rule is terrifying at any time or place.

It is particularly terrifying today in Iran where a howling mob of extremists hold innocent Americans hostage with the blessing of their religious leader.

The mob rules in Iran with a potent weapon — fear. There can be little doubt that thousands of citizens in Iran march and chant today more out of fear than enthusiasm. If the proper fervor is not shown the occupiers of the U. S. embassy could turn on their own people. Mobs are unpredictable.

In that sense the people of Iran are hostages as much as the Americans held in the embassy.

'Fair Sentencing' Worry

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Prison and court officials across North Carolina are even now fretting over what many expect to be adverse effects of the state's untried Fair Sentencing Act whose implementation is still seven months away.

Whenever judges, district attorneys, or prison officials come together for whatever purpose, the worries about what will happen when the new law takes effect next July overshadow other concerns.

The most worrisome consequence predicted is a sharp increase in active prison terms handed down by the courts. For a state whose prisons are already crowded, and in which statistics show an imprisonment rate among the highest in the nation, this is no small concern.

Maurice Braswell, senior resident superior court judge from Fayetteville, predicts flatly, "Fair Sentencing will flood the prisons."

Overcrowded

Prison officials originally predicted the same outcome.

but backed off as the General Assembly was considering the measure pushed by Gov. Jim Hunt.

Today, prison officials privately acknowledge that both admissions and length of stay are bound to increase under Fair Sentencing. What will they do? "We will take them, and we will stack them in," one top-level official of the Department of Correction confides.

Judge Braswell says he and many of his colleagues regard the measure as simply a fad, a swinging of the pendulum as it moves from one extreme to the other.

Fair Sentencing as it is known in North Carolina has been tried in several other states under differing names: presumptive sentencing, mandatory sentencing. The system was proposed here by a legislative study commission on prison reform chaired by former State Senator Eddie Knox, close ally to Gov. Hunt.

The basic purpose of Fair Sentencing is to cause the courts to hand down punishment in a reasonably consistent and logical way. Judges have had wide discretion with no guidelines, and that has resulted in inequities.

The courts have argued that discretion allows consideration of individual motivations and chances for rehabilitation in passing sentence, and judicial opposition to mandatory sentencing was the primary reason the name was changed to Fair Sentencing.

The new law sets a standard prison term for each felony. The judge must impose that term unless he makes a written finding of circumstances warranting deviation. The judge may still decide between active time and probation.

Minimums

Those knowledgeable of the system say judges typically will consider the new presumptive sentences as minimum ones, and will routinely increase the prison terms in aggravated cases. It is expected that forms will be developed by court clerks to satisfy the "written findings" segment of the law. Since parole procedures change to allow one day off for each day of good behavior, that process becomes almost automatic, and judges will likely increase terms to offset that condition.

Also, given two defendants on the same charges, Judge A may give the presumptive term plus one year, while Judge B sees a spark of remorse and hope for rehabilitation and orders probation.

"It will not eliminate disparity in sentencing as the Legislature thought it would. It will flood the prisons and I don't know how they will handle this," comments Judge Braswell.

"But with all these potential problems, the Legislature has commanded that we do this, and the judges will do this."

Turks Feel Unsure

By SAMUEL KOO
Associated Press Writer
ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — The Turkish government has mixed feelings about this week's visit of Pope John Paul II. It hopes it will help tourism but fears adverse reaction from militant Moslems.

The Turks are pleased because the three-day papal visit beginning Wednesday will focus foreign attention on such tourist attractions as Istanbul, Izmir and Ephesus, all on the papal itinerary. But official sources said the current unrest in the Islamic world is likely to put restraints on the Turkish government's official welcome for the pope.

"We will receive him cordially in accordance with international practices," said one official in Ankara, the capital. But he said he knew of no plan to "mobilize the people" to line the streets for the papal motorcades.

An editorial Sunday in Turkey's largest newspaper, Hürriyet of Ankara, said the "timing of this visit is wrong for Turkey because it comes at a time when Moslem-Christian differences are provoked, particularly by the events in Iran."

Oktaay Eksi, the paper's chief editorial writer, noted that the chief purpose of the visit was to pursue the reunification of Roman Catholicism and the Eastern Orthodox Church. But he said the pope should take special care not to injure the sensitivities of this predominantly Moslem nation.

"The pope might make some statements and gestures to look sweet to the Orthodox community. No one would have any objections to this providing these statements and gestures do not injure sensitivities of this nation," he wrote.

"But if, for example, the pope treats the Hagia Sophia not as a museum but as a church, there would be complications," he wrote.

The Hagia Sophia in Istanbul was one of Christendom's largest churches until it was converted into a mosque in 1453, after the Ottomans conquered Constantinople, the former name of Istanbul. It was turned into a museum in 1923 after the Turkish republic was founded and religious worship there was banned.

Obscurity Saves Jobs

WASHINGTON—There was a fear when the Freedom of Information Act was passed that government officials would not put anything into writing any more. Happily this has not been the case. Since a government servant now knows that his actions could be questioned by anyone, he is putting more and more of his decisions on paper to protect himself.

My source for this is Wilfred Amberduke who works in a federal agency and is charged with writing up memoranda and regulations for his supervisor.

He told me, "The first thing you have to do when writing a government directive is to figure out how you can say something so no one will understand it. In this way a supervisor will be covered in case someone questions his decision. The more obtuse the communication, the happier your boss will be."

"And your role is to please your supervisor."

"That's the only role any of us in the government has," he said. "If you can protect your supervisor's job, you will be considered a loyal team player subject to praise and promotion. One of the keys to this is to devise ways of writing a directive over his signature which makes no sense to anyone who reads it."

"How do you manage to do this?" I asked.

"It's not easy. The main trick, of course, is to write long. You can create a lot more confusion in a 10-page memo than in one which only takes up five pages."

"Before I learned the system, I wrote a one-page directive for my boss which was so clear and concise that even he could understand it. He threw it back at me and said, 'Amberduke, you're after my job.'"

Other Editors Say Not So Friendly

(Hickory Daily Record)

Speaking to a national gathering of education administrators at Des Moines, Iowa, Governor Hunt offered the judgment that the news media are unfriendly toward education, and this has become a great problem to educators.

Newspapers in particular, he said, are prone to pick out the "things that are wrong and refuse to cover the good things."

Whether or not the generalization is accurate, it would have caused no groans in a group that lives on public funds (attends national conventions on them, too) and wishes the public got more generous accounts of the good things they do.

Just as strong a case of news media error can be argued, however, on past practices of education news reporting.

Almost universally it amounted to spoon-feeding the public, in the guise of news, what superintendents and principals said was going on in the schools. Questions about competent instruction and measurable learning weren't asked until recent times. Such policies as social promotion were practiced for years before most newspapers reported them.

Neither were administrators asked serious questions about the many flash-in-the-pan innovations that dominated the school scene during much of the 1960s and '70s. For the most part the fads were treated as exciting news to be reported with enthusiasm and applauded uncritically on editorial pages.

Some of the foolishness, such as the new math, which cost millions in new textbooks and retrained teachers, has fallen of its own weight. Other aspects of it, such as the flawed concept of "open education" remains in cavernous high schools like Burke County's.

Maybe the news media have moved from an excessively friendly posture toward education to the opposite, as Governor Hunt charges. Just as likely, the governor is counting skepticism about the education bureaucracy as unfriendliness toward education.

"Could you give me an example of how you fill up the pages of a government directive?"

"All right. Suppose we want to put out a directive which says that 'River restaurants will not contaminate river waters.' The first thing we would do would be to define a river. Then we would spell out the characteristics of a restaurant. We would devote several paragraphs to the meaning of contamination, and finally we would give the accepted definition of water."

"After that we would cross-reference it with other directives spelling out the limitations and strictures thereof. If the river restaurant also bordered a highway, it would be subject to Paragraph 12, Section A, of the Clean Highway Act, unless it was located over a 5,000-foot elevation, in which case said restaurant would be govern-

ABC Officers Get Big Have

ABC officers of three counties yesterday located and destroyed five stills — four in Martin and one in Beaufort County. Two Pitt County officers joined with two from Beaufort and three from Martin in stamping out the source of liquor supplies believed to be flowing in all three counties.

A total of 3,800 gallons of beer was found at the five plants although no liquor was found.

ABC officers in counties in this section work together helping each other and on the theory that destroying a still in any county in this area cuts off the supply in all of the counties.

Skeleton Kennedy Team

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina supporters of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy for the Democratic presidential nomination have been forced to stall their plans to unveil an official campaign organization and headquarters.

But they've continued to quietly organize this fall, and claim to be ready to announce a relatively strong North Carolina campaign committee as soon as the national Kennedy for President campaign gives the word.

"We have the skeleton. We're just waiting to put the meat on it," said Tony Adams, a Raleigh writer and radio show host who is de facto head of the Kennedy effort in North Carolina.

"North Carolina's primary is so late (May 6), there's no great hurry to open a headquarters. That costs so much."

Adams has been saying for weeks that the Kennedy campaign would soon open a Raleigh headquarters, but those plans have been delayed by officials in the Washington headquarters.

Because of federal campaign spending limits on the pre-convention campaign, national campaign leaders don't want to spend too much money early — especially in a late primary state like North Carolina.

But the Kennedy campaign has also been raising money in North Carolina, with the fund-raising directed by Charlotte radio station executive Stan Kaplan. Kennedy campaign officials in Washington won't say how much they've raised in North Carolina so far.

Most of the county leaders for Kennedy's challenge haven't been willing to go public yet either — in part because most of North Carolina's Democratic Party establishment is aligned with President Carter.

Adams says his group has successfully organized a committee of workers in one-third of the state's counties, including most of the 10 most populous ones.

Among them are: in Burlington, Mayor Bill Durham; in Raleigh, former councilman Oliver Williams; in Durham, Margaret Gosling, wife of the N.C. Symphony conductor; in Charlotte, Kaplan; and in Greensboro, local Democratic Party officials Joan Fulton and Joe Wood.

The Kennedy campaign lost one North Carolina elected official who had promised support earlier this month. Mayor Buford Posey of Rosman in Transylvania County had signed on to the campaign, but left the town abruptly when it was revealed he had been an FBI informant on the Ku Klux Klan in Mississippi in the 1960's.

Although North Carolina has been considered a Carter state in light of the president's 1976 primary victory, Adams says Kennedy campaign leaders think the state may yet be fertile ground for Kennedy.

Encouraging, they say, was a University of North Carolina School of Journalism poll in early October that showed Carter with only a 6 percent lead over Kennedy among Democrats, with 10 percent undecided and a 5 percent margin of error big enough to wipe out that difference.

HOPE

"And now abideth faith, hope, and love." We read these lines and attach great importance to faith and love. But perhaps few people linger over the statement long enough to realize that hope is just as much a Christian quality as faith and love.

What is hope? It is the conviction that God means what He says, and that He has made us and the world in which we live for triumph, not for defeat. If we really believe this, then why do we ever become downcast? Convinced Christians are filled with confidence about God and His purposes.

There should be no such thing as a dejected Christian. Certainly Christians should be serious, but there is no necessary conflict between being serious and being joyful. The joy of hope can be expressed in an ebullient fashion, or with quiet, serene confidence. When Christian hope comes into the heart, fear and despair take their leave.

Christmas Tree Costs More

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The countdown to Christmas has begun and shoppers can add another item to the list of things that will cost more this year — Christmas trees.

The National Christmas Tree Association says prices for live trees will be about 5 percent to 7 percent higher than they were last year.

Association spokesman Donald L. McNeil blames the increase, which the growers describe as "nominal," on transportation and handling costs.

McNeil says prices for good to top-quality trees should range from $2.50 to $3.50 a foot. He also said, however, that there will be more trees available at the top end of the price scale than at the bottom.

In contrast to last year, when there were spot shortages of trees, the 1979 supply is expected to be adequate to meet the demand. The growers association predicts about 30 million live trees will be sold during the upcoming holiday season.

Artificial and real trees are now about equal in popularity. Artificial trees — McNeil, admitting to bias, prefers to call them "fake" — made a splash in the late 1960s and early 1970s, but the real variety has regained some of its popularity in the past five years.

Studies conducted for manufacturers of artificial trees indicate that sales are expected to reach $115 million a year by 1980. The studies also show that people are choosing more expensive varieties of artificial trees, with some of them costing $60 or more.

The most popular type of real tree is the Scotch pine which accounts for 37 percent of the market, according to the growers association. It has needles which occur in clusters of two and are usually twisted, 1½ to 3 inches long and blue or grayish-green in color.

The Douglas fir — picked by 25 percent of buyers — is the second favorite. You can recognize this species by its horizontal branches, flat, short needles and blue-green or dark yellow-green color.

The best trees have a symmetrical shape and are tapered at the top. They are full all the way around. If your tree will be in the middle of the room, the fullness and symmetry are important. If, however, you're going to stand it in a corner or close to a wall, you may be willing to sacrifice shape in exchange for a lower price.

Freshness is a major factor. Here's what to look for:

—Needles that spring back into place when you bend them.

—Needles that are firmly attached.

—A stump that is moist and sticky with sap.

Keep your tree in a relatively cool place, away from fireplaces, radiators or electric heaters. Do not rely on do-it-yourself flameproofing treatments. The Consumer Product Safety Commission says they are "virtually impossible to apply correctly at home."

"I think it's pretty close really," said David Price, executive director of the state Democratic Party. "I think if the thing is still undecided, North Carolina might be a fairly likely state for Kennedy to feel he needs to make a strong showing in."

"I think probably you'd have to say Carter is the favorite in North Carolina," he added. "But it might be that Kennedy could do well in the state."

Kennedy leaders have also taken an encouraging sign Gov. Jim Hunt's statement that, while he continues to support Carter, he is not going to spend any time helping the Carter campaign in 1980.

"That was definitely a boon for us," Adams said. "He has a lot of prestige committed to President Carter's reelection."

In North Carolina as elsewhere, of course, much will be riding on Carter's ultimate performance in the test presented by the Iran crisis. Much too, may depend on the economy.

But for the North Carolina primary, Kennedy voters are signaling that if it is still a contest in May, they intend to put up a strong effort in this southern state. They have much to gain here because by all reasoning if Carter cannot win in North Carolina, he will be in big trouble everywhere.

"We're the underdog now, because this is supposed to be Carter country," Adams said. "I think we're in pretty good shape."

made the first papal visit to Turkey in 12 centuries, the government gave him a low-key welcome, and small crowds turned out to see him. But despite the ban on worship at the Hagia Sophia, he prayed there, and afterward a group of Moslem Fundamentalist students held a demonstration, saying, "if the pope was allowed to pray there, we will pray there, too."

"It was bad enough then, and I hate to think what sort of thing could touch off this time with the Islamic fever sweeping the world," said Cevdet Uysan, an Istanbul University professor.

Vonnegut Weds A Second Time

NEW YORK (AP) — Best-selling author Kurt Vonnegut and photographer Jill Krementz were married at the Christ Church United Methodist Church here over the weekend, a church official says.

Vonnegut, the author of "Slaughterhouse Five," "Breakfast of Champions," and other popular novels, was married once previously, in 1945, to Jane Marie Cox. He had three children by that marriage.

The Art of Carpeting & Decor

by Larry C. Whitlow

The wall decor can be the most dramatic and effective of all the accessories in your home. Most important is that the combination of various types of accessories create a wall of unusual interest and reflect the ingenuity of the decorator. Walls are the one place where the mixing of materials and design periods can be most impressively demonstrated. Depending on the size of each wall and the furniture against it, wall arrangements can run the gamut from elaborate to starkly simple. Each wall should be studied for its best potential, each should get individual treatment that will blend with the others in the same room.

To be sure your home has that individual look, see us at LARRY'S CARPETLAND INC., 3010 E. 10th St., 758-2300. The services of our interior decorator, Barbara, can and Virginia Anderson are free to you when you purchase our products. We have a complete selection of wallpaper, and can custom make Norman and Carol draperies to your specifications. Of course, we handle a wide choice of carpeting and vinyl floors. Hours: Mon. thru Fri. 9 a.m.-5:30 p.m., Sat. 9 a.m.-1 p.m.

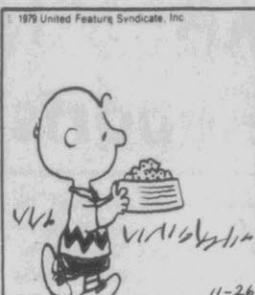

DECORATING TIP: When hanging mirrors it is essential that they be hung low enough to be used.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market rose on a broad front Monday, continuing a rally begun late last week in the face of the tense situation in Iran.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 7.26 to 819.03 in the early going.

Advancing issues led declines by a 3-1 tally on the New York Stock Exchange.

The United Nations security council was preparing to discuss the Iranian situation, which continued unchanged. The UN move was the first visible diplomatic effort to solve the crisis since it began three weeks ago.

Analysts said the market was heartened by suggestions by analysts that a peak in the recent spiral of interest rates was near.

Among early trades, Gulf Oil rose 3/4 to 36 3/4, Atlantic Richfield gained 1/4 to 2, Ford went up 1/4 to 31, Bally rose 3/4 to 34 1/4 and Boeing went up 1/4 to 45.

On Friday, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 4.35 to 811.77.

Advances outnumbered declines by a 2-1 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

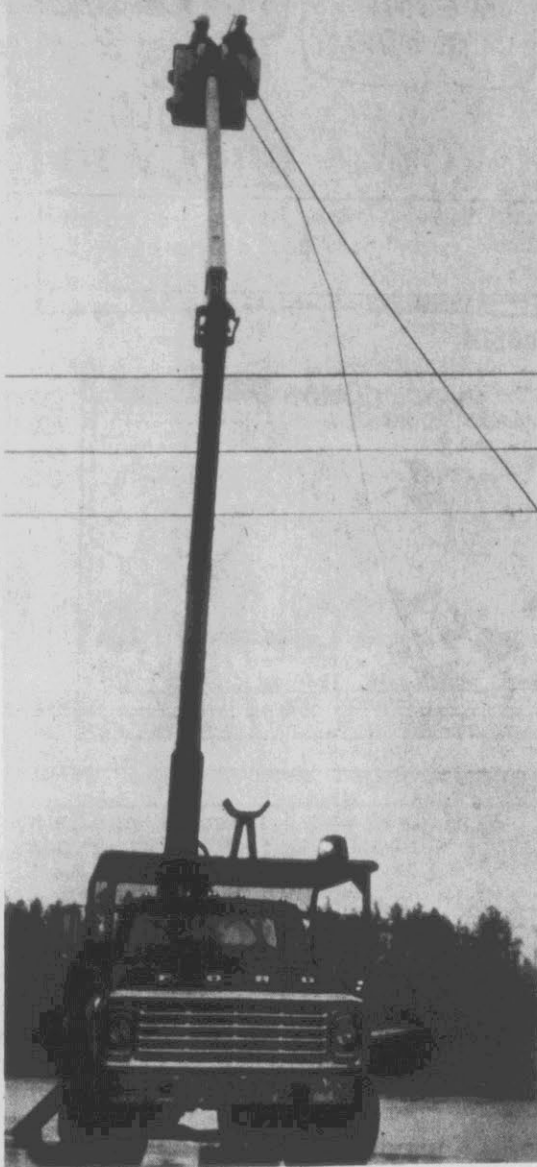

Big Board volume totaled 23.30 million shares, against 37.02 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index rose .48 to 59.66.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 3.08 at 223.14.

Winds Caused A Power-Loss

POWER PROBLEM...Carolina Power & Light Co. workmen remove the "tag line" rope that caused transmitter power problems at WITN-TV's new tower site near Grifton. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

GRIFTON — Gusting winds this morning caused a power problem at WITN-TV's transmitter site east of here, knocking the station off the air for approximately one hour.

Roy Hardee, Television Seven's vice president-news, explained that transmission power at the station's new tower was lost around 6:05 a.m. when a "tag line" rope broke loose from the base of the facility and was blown by winds across heavy power lines.

Hardee, who said that the tag line is some 2,000 feet long and attached at the upper level of the tower, pointed out that the inch-and-a-quarter diameter rope blew over onto power lines which run in front of the station site.

The spokesman mentioned that Carolina Power & Light Co. crews were summoned and traffic was re-routed by Grifton Police and Pitt Sheriff's Department personnel as the tag line was removed from the power line.

A problem with a smaller power line was also experienced back toward Grifton along NC 118, Hardee pointed out, and a section of rope approximately 25 to 30 feet long and apparently off the tower tag line was found near the problem site. Hardee said the winds could have blown the shorter section onto the line, causing the second power problem.

WITN-TV was back on the air at 7:02 a.m., he said, noting that the station's old transmitter located across the road was used in a back-up capacity while power was being restored and systems checked on the new facility.

Hardee said that no structural damage occurred to the new tower in the incident. Repairs were made during a period of driving wind and rain, he added. The new tower has been operation for the Washington station for approximately one month.

Wouldn't Take VP Nomination

NASHUA, N.H. (AP) — California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. says he wouldn't accept a vice presidential nomination himself, but has "no problems" with the idea of a woman for his running mate.

Brown affirmed his support for the Equal Rights Amendment and said any controversy over women holding high office stems from "anxiety created in the minds of people who are not used to seeing women in power."

Brown, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, also said Sunday that the women's movement is in "mid-passage," with several years remaining before most resistance can be eliminated.

MORGANFIELD, KY. — Job Corpsmember David Hughes of Rt. 2, Grifton, was awarded his general equivalency high school diploma at the Breckinridge Job Corps Center during recent special award ceremonies.

Corpsmember Hughes is completing studies in building trades.

Five Rob Hotel Deposit Boxes

NEW YORK (AP) — Five well-dressed men emptied 10 safe deposit boxes at the posh Mayfair Regent Hotel in a caper reminiscent of thefts at several other luxury Manhattan hotels in recent years.

Police weren't sure how much was taken Sunday. Officers also said they couldn't say whether the Mayfair heist was carried out by the same group that tried to hold up the Carlyle Hotel two years ago or that successfully netted between $2 million and $4 million in valuables from a robbery at the Pierre Hotel.

VERMONT AMERICAN

We often wonder why do large major manufacturing firms like Vermont American, Procter and Gamble, Eaton, TRW and others locate a plant in Greenville, North Carolina.

We, the employees of Vermont American can answer that question. It is because of the availability of a workforce that is highly independent, free thinking, intelligent and vitally interested in seeing to it that they give their employer a "fair days work for a fair days pay."

We are presently being asked to join a highly structured, regimented group that forces its will on the majority and discourages individual freedom and initiative.

We, the employees of Vermont American do not feel we need a third party like the UE coming between us and our company and neither does Greenville need such a group.

We plan to VOTE NO!!!

Eagles Win, Lead NFC East
Steelers Edge Cleveland

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

The nation got its chance to watch Texas' two teams whoop it up in the National Football League last Thursday. Today, Pennsylvania has more reasons to cheer. It has twice as many winners.

The Houston Oilers defeated the Dallas Cowboys 30-24 on Thanksgiving Day. On Sunday, the Pittsburgh Steelers edged Cleveland 33-30 in overtime and the Philadelphia Eagles defeated Green Bay 21-10.

As a result: —The Eagles own first place outright in the National Conference's East Division with a 9-4 record while the Cowboys, at 8-5, share second place with Washington, a 14-6 loser to the New York Giants on Sunday, and...

—The Steelers share first place in the American Conference's Central Division with the Oilers, each at 10-3, while the Browns are second, two games back at 8-5.

"This was a very, very pressure-packed game where we showed we could come from behind against a good team," defensive tackle Joe Greene said after the Steelers scored 10 points in the final 4 1/2 minutes of regulation play, then beat the Browns on Matt Bahr's fourth field goal of the game, a 37-yarder with nine seconds to go in overtime.

Franco Harris' third touchdown of the game, on a 3-yard run, cut Cleveland's lead to three points and Bahr tied it 24 seconds from the end of the fourth quarter with a 21-yard field goal.

Terry Bradshaw, who completed 30 of 44 passes for 364 yards — all career highs — against Cleveland, scrambled 28 yards from his own 34 on a third-and-10 play to set up Bahr's game-winner.

Eagles 21, Packers 10
While Franco Harris was rushing for 151 yards for Pittsburgh, Leroy Harris was amassing 137 for Philadelphia, 80 of them on a fourth-period jaunt that preceded the Eagles' clinching TD, Ron Jaworski's third scoring pass and second to Harold Carmichael.

"Leroy has feet that go 100 miles an hour and a body that only goes 30, but that was the big play," joked Jaworski.

Giants 14, Redskins 6
Washington is tied with Dallas rather than Philadelphia because it couldn't stop Billy Taylor, who rushed for 126 yards, 74 of them in a one-man drive capped by his 1-yard dive for the clinching touchdown in the fourth period.

Vikings 23, Bucs 22

Tampa Bay, a winless team in 1976, had an opportunity to win the first division title of the 1979 season thanks to Chicago's 20-0 loss to Detroit last Thursday.

But Minnesota, whose best weapon may be the blocked kick, employed that tactic to perfection and kept the Bucs from wrapping up the NFC Central crown. The Vikings got their paws on two extra points, a field goal attempt and a punt while Tommy Kramer passed for three TDs and Rick Danmeier kicked three extra points and a field goal.

Bills 16, Patriots 13
Buffalo's Joe Ferguson hit Lou Piccone with an 11-yard touchdown pass just 11 seconds from the end of the fourth period to force overtime, then hooked up with Jerry Butler on a 51-yard pass to set up Nick Mike-Mayer's game-winning 29-yard field goal at 9:15 of overtime against the Patriots.

The loss dropped New England back into a first-place tie with the Dolphins, each team at 8-5 in the AFC East, one game ahead of the Bills.

Dolphins 28, Colts 24

A week ago, Miami Coach Don Shula relegated Bob Griese to benchwarming duties, handing the starting quarterback job to Don Strock. But when Strock was knocked silly by the Baltimore defense, Griese regained his touch with two TD passes against the Colts.

Saints 37, Falcons 6

The Saints' defense forced six turnovers and chalked up five quarterback sacks en route to the rout that ended their "jinx" against Atlanta, which had recorded three-straight miracle-finish victories against them.

Archie Manning passed for 263 yards, hitting Henry Childs for 37 and a score and setting up TD runs by Mike Strachan and Chuck Muncie to help keep

New Orleans tied with Los Angeles atop the NFC West, each team at 7-6.

Rams 26, 49ers 20

Los Angeles' reserve quarterback, Bob Lee and Vince Ferragamo, passed for a TD apiece and Sid Justin ran 80 yards for a score with an abortive San Francisco field goal attempt to beat the 49ers.

Justin's dash came after a kick by Ray Werschling hit the back of a 49er blocker and was deflected into Justin's hands.

Chargers 28, Chiefs 7

Dan Fouts passed for 350 yards — 19 yards shy of the single-game club record he shares with Tobin Rote — and three touchdown passes as the Chargers, 10-3, battered Kansas City and moved one game ahead of Denver in the AFC West.

Raiders 14, Broncos 10

Booker Russell raced 72 yards to set up Ken Stabler's 3-yard TD pass to Dave Casper just before the half, then bulled in from the 1 in the third period of the Raiders' victory over Denver.

Bengals 34, Cardinals 28

Ken Anderson passed to Isaac Curtis for TDs covering 43 and 19 yards, Pete Johnson ran for scores from the 2 and 4 and Chris Bahr, Matt's brother, kicked field goals of 38 and 33 yards to carry Cincinnati past the Cardinals in Sunday's only game not involving a playoff contender.

Rose Opens Basketball Play Tuesday

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Despite the fact that Rose High School's Rampants haven't finished the football season, the basketball team will be opening the 1979-80 season Tuesday night.

Rose will be playing host to Pitt County rival North Pitt in the opening contest, with the girls' event set to start at about 6:30 p.m.

Coach Jim Brewington still has eight potential players involved in football, and they won't be joining the team until the grid season has been completed.

Girls' coach Dennis Gibson faces the problems of coming up with some new people to fill the backcourt spots, hit by graduation.

Boys' Basketball

Brewington feels that the Rampant cagers have the potential to have a good season. "We have three returning lettermen out right now (not counting those on the football team) who have been doing a good job in practice. But we've really only had a few more than a half-dozen practices. We haven't cut anyone yet, and we have 13 out."

When the eight from football join practice, that will see some of the cuts made.

"It's tough to gauge how we'll do in the early season, since we've got so many question marks because of football. But we will try to fulfill our obligations," Brewington said.

At least two potential starters will be coming off the football team, Wallace Brown and Calvin Whichard. Don Johnson, Tyrone Tucker, John Sheppard, James Brewington, William Frizzell and Dave Maier are all potential starters or reserves who could also come up from football.

"I know Brown, Whichard, Tucker and Sheppard are veterans, and will be there, but the others are uncertain," the coach said.

So far, Brewington reports that Anthony Gorham has been the biggest surprise so far. "He's come a long ways since last year. Donald House, our most valuable player last year, is also looking good."

Rose lost just two starters, Derwin Clemons in the backcourt, and Dennis Ross in the forecourt, and will have to replace them. Gorham is likely to replace Ross, joining House and Cliff Kilpatrick in the front line. "Some of our footballers are going to be at some disadvantage, since the others have the jump on them," Brown is the most likely candidate to take over the guard spot vacated by Clemons.

"I hope that we can put things together by the first of January," Brewington said. "I expect us to do a lot of work over the holidays, to get ready for our tournament (December 28-29)."

Among the other newcomers, Brewington has been and Carlton Smith.

While Rose will, as usual, be giving up some height in the conference, Brewington feels that the Rampants can be in the battle for the title. He picks Fike and Beddingfield to be the teams to beat. "Our chances are good, and I'm not conceding to anyone. They'll have to beat us. A couple of breaks here and there last year, and we could have won the title. Maybe we'll get those breaks this year."

Girls' Basketball

The girls' team has also been somewhat handicapped by the lack of practice time. "We've been working a lot on basics," Gibson said. "We're a very young team, with just three lettermen back."

Those three include forward Kim Waller, center Donna Cullipher and guard Sharon Williams. "All three of those will be starting, and we'll try to build our offense around Donna," Gibson said.

Currently there are 16 players out, but the coach expects to cut down to 12 before the season starts.

Top newcomers appear to be Monica Gatlin, a sophomore guard, Sarah Sanford, a 5-8 transfer, while veterans Mary Gay has shown improvement. Belinda Haselrig, another newcomer, is also looking good, according to Gibson. "Loretta Wilson, who didn't play last year, has shown a lot of composure at guard, and is a possible starter."

Depth, however, will be a problem for the Rampants, since it lacks experience.

"I think we can be competitive in the conference. Fike will be strong, while Northern Nash and Rocky Mount will also have good teams. We'll probably be somewhere around the middle, maybe better if we come along quickly."

Seattle To Face Jets

SEATTLE (AP) — The Seattle Seahawks probably won't make the playoffs this season, but they've established themselves as a leading National Football League attraction because they're willing to gamble.

The Seahawks, 6-6, are six-point favorites to make the New York Jets, 5-7, their fifth victim in six games tonight in a nationally televised game at the Kingdome. New York has lost three of its last four starts.

In his third season as the Jets' coach, Walt Michaels has to be disappointed this season. New York rebounded from a 3-11 season in 1977 to a 8-8 mark last year.

The Jets' defense ranks last in the league — two notches below that of the Seahawks.

Seattle made quite an impression on Monday night television four weeks ago by nipping Atlanta 31-28 as placekicker Eftren Herrera caught a pass from quarterback Jim Zorn on a fake field-goal play.

"It's not that we try to come up with something new every week," Seahawks' Coach Jack Patera stressed. "We just throw something out when the situation calls for it."

New York quarterback Richard Todd completed 15 of 25 passes for 202 yards but was intercepted twice last week. Wide receiver Bobby Jones had seven receptions for 99 yards.

After a dozen games, fourth-year running back Clark Gaines is the Jets' top rusher with 675 yards on 119 carries for a 5.2-yard average. He ranks fourth in the American Football Conference in total yardage, but his average is the best in the NFL.

Todd, in his fourth-year from Alabama, has completed 52.9 percent of his passes — 118 for 223 — for 1,845 yds and 12 touchdowns. He has been intercepted 18 times.

With four victories in the past five weeks, the Seahawks aren't mathematically eliminated from the playoffs in the highly competitive AFC yet, and they're still trying hard.

They've been developing a razzle-dazzle image, too. Seattle has converted 13 of 21 fourth-down attempts this season, Herrera has been successful on three of four outside kicks and punter Herman Weaver has caught two passes.

Coming off a club record 384-yard, four-touchdown passing performance, Zorn will attempt to lead the Seahawks to their third consecutive triumph.

Zorn, a left-handed free agent from Cal Poly-Pomona, was absolutely "fantastic" in the eyes of New Orleans quarterback Archie Manning in the Seahawks' 38-24 victory over the Saints last Sunday in Seattle.

Zorn was 24 of 33 and extended his streak to 109 passes without an interception. He joined Joe Namath and Norm Snead as the only quarterbacks in NFL history to go over 10,000 passing yards in their first four NFL seasons.

Carr Scores 22, Has 11 Rebounds Cavaliers Whip Nets, 112-103

By The Associated Press
For a couple of years in Los Angeles, Kenny Carr sat on the bench and waited for his big chance.

He never got it.
"It was a tragedy," says Cleveland Cavaliers Coach Stan Albeck. "If he had been playing, he would be a tremendous player now."

Carr seems to be making up for lost time, though, since being traded to Albeck's team last month. His latest game included a 22-point, 11-rebound performance as the Cavaliers defeated the New Jersey Nets 112-103 Sunday night.

"I'm glad I came to Cleveland because I knew I would get playing time," said Carr. "I don't know how much ability I really have yet. I haven't reached my potential, and I'm still getting my feet on the ground."

Another Carr on the surging Cavs, Austin, also helped with quick points in the last quarter to help Cleveland forge a 97-84 lead.

"What we have done is unbelievable," said Albeck. "We've won four games out of five, in six nights, after traveling all over the place and getting up at 6 o'clock every morning. We're playing like champions."

New Jersey managed to stay close to Cleveland until early in the fourth quarter, when the Cavaliers pulled away from an 83-82 lead with a 14-2 spurt as both Carrs took charge. Randy Smith led the winners with 25 points.

Bucks 114, Warriors 90
Marques Johnson paced a balanced scoring attack with 20 points as Milwaukee defeated Golden State. Junior Bridgeman added 17 points for the Bucks, who led the Warriors 65-45 at the half and 82-67 after three quarters.

"We wanted to get them into a running game, a fast-break game," said Milwaukee Coach Don Nelson. "They were tired after a long road trip and we knew we could take advantage of that."

Suns 87, Blazers 86
Alvan Adams' free throw with 55 seconds remaining gave Phoenix a tight victory over Portland. The Blazers trailed 80-73 with 6:43 to go but out-scored Phoenix 11-3 to take an 84-82 lead with 2:32 left.

Walter Davis hit two jumpers to give the Suns an 86-84 lead with 1:27 to go. Two free throws by Portland's Dave Twardzik tied the score at 86 with 1:16 remaining before Adams' game-winning foul shot.

Lakers 111, Knicks 110
Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 25 points, pulled down 15 rebounds and equalled his career high with 11 blocked shots to lead Los Angeles over Kansas City. Earvin "Magic" Johnson's layup with 1:28 to play gave the Lakers an 111-108 lead and their eventual winning point.

Kupec Changes Tune After Win

By DICK BRINSTER
Associated Press Writer
Finding a player more satisfied with the outcome of North Carolina's 37-16 victory over Duke Saturday than Tar Heel quarterback Matt Kupec would be difficult, to say the least.

A week earlier Kupec had leveled biting criticism at Coach Dick Crum, and very nearly found himself an ex-member of the team. His public apology committed to history, Kupec put himself into the record book.

He threw his 18th touchdown pass of the season, establishing an Atlantic Coast Conference mark. In the process he earned a share of another record for teammate Mike Chatham, who caught his eighth scoring pass.

"The coaches and players were great about it," said Kupec when asked to comment on his week of practice following the much-publicized criticism of Crum. "I felt bad about it and admitted I was wrong. We just got it all out of the way and concentrated on Duke."

The victory enabled North Carolina to finish 7-3-1 in tuning up for its Dec. 28 Gator Bowl meeting with Michigan.

In the only other ACC game, Maryland completed a 7-4 campaign with a 17-7 victory over Virginia.

In other games, South Carolina beat Clemson, 13-9, and Georgia stopped Georgia Tech, 16-3.

North Carolina had three individual goals in the game. The Tar Heels wanted to get Kupec and Chatham into the record book, and they wanted to get tailback Amos Lawrence over the 1,000-yard mark in rushing for the third straight season.

Ironically, it was Lawrence, who wound up with 1,019, who set up the Kupec-Chatham touchdown with a great leaping catch to complete a 50-yard pass to the Duke three with just five seconds remaining in the first half.

"He just made a phenomenal catch ... I was trying to hit him all the way," Kupec explained. Among those particularly impressed with the play of Lawrence was Duke Coach Red Wilson, who called the Tar Heel junior a "great, great back."

Twice the Tar Heels marched great distances in less than a minute to score, prompting an amuse of Crum's many understatements.

"Once we get moving it doesn't take us much time to score at all," he said.

Lawrence was one of four ACC backs to eclipse the 1,000-yard mark for the season. The top ground gainer was Wake Forest's senior tailback James McDougald, who finished a week earlier with 1,177.

The other two — Maryland sophomore Charlie Wysocki and Virginia junior Tom Vigorito — achieved that status in the same game. Wysocki gained 202 yards to finish with 1,140 and Vigorito compiled 81 to close out the season with 1,044.

Despite finishing 7-4, Maryland was left out of the bowl picture for the first time since 1972. Terrapin Coach Jerry Claiborne, who brought his team back from a midseason slump due largely to a rash of injuries, was not happy with that.

"I think a 7-4 team ought to go before a 6-5 team," Claiborne said.

His statement was aimed at Missouri, one of five bowl teams with records inferior to that of the Terps. The Tigers play South Carolina in the Hall of Fame Dec. 29.

"Missouri had won two games in their last seven before today," said Claiborne. "Bowls should be a reward for a good season."

In a battle of bowlbound teams South Carolina limited arch-rival Clemson to three Obed Ariri field goals. But the Tigers, who matched the Gamecocks' 8-3 record, met Baylor in the Peach Bowl Dec. 31.

"We didn't control the line of scrimmage, and that pretty much says it," explained Clemson Coach Danny Ford.

Georgia, which stayed alive in the Sugar Bowl picture, did what practically every Georgia Tech opponent has done — keep the Yellow Jackets from establishing a running game. Pepper Rodgers' team, which finished 4-6-1, gained just 40 yards rushing against the Bulldogs.

"Georgia kept us pinned up all day," said Rodgers. But Bulldog Coach Vince Dooley had praise for the Georgia Tech defense.

"We had several chances to put the ballgame away, but to the credit of the Tech defense, they didn't let us do it," he said.

'Big Men' ACC Picks

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Two of the Atlantic Coast Conference's big men have been tabbed by conference sportswriters and broadcasters as their pre-season choices for basketball player and rookie of the year.

In balloting conducted at the league's Operation Basketball recently, Duke center Mike Gminski, 6-11, was picked to repeat as ACC Player of the Year.

And Virginia's highly touted 7-4 freshman center, Ralph Sampson, was chosen to win rookie-of-the-year honors.

Gminski averaged 18.8 points and 9.2 rebounds a game last year for the Blue Devils in their 22-8 season. He was named on 64 of the 101 ballots cast, well ahead of runner-up Mike O'Koren of North Carolina, chosen by 24 of the voters.

Others named were Virginia's Jeff Lamp, North Carolina State's Charles "Hawkeye" Whitney; North Carolina's Al Wood, Maryland's Buck Williams and Sampson.

Sampson, of Harrisonburg, Va., picked up 84 of the 101 ballots in the rookie voting. North Carolina's James Worthy, from Gastonia, was second in the balloting with 14, followed by N.C. State's Sidney Lowe.

National Championship Clash Still Possible

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

A national championship shootout between the No. 1-2 college football teams still isn't out of the question, but for now the Rose Bowl has two of the top three teams and two out of three ain't bad.

While Alabama, the No. 1 team in The Associated Press ratings, was idle over the weekend and looking ahead toward next week's annual regular-season windup with Auburn, fourth-ranked Southern California earned a trip to the Rose Bowl against No. 2 Ohio State by routing UCLA 49-14 while eighth-ranked Oklahoma destroyed the Orange Bowl's hopes of matching a pair of 11-0 teams in Nebraska and fifth-ranked Florida State, which turned back Florida 27-16.

Instead, the 10-1 Sooners are headed for Miami while Nebraska will go to the Cotton Bowl against either seventh-ranked Arkansas, a 31-7 winner over Southern Methodist, or No. 9 Houston, which held off Texas Tech 14-10 after trailing 10-0 with 16 minutes left.

Sixth-ranked Texas, though still in a virtual three-way tie for the Southwest Conference lead, nevertheless was eliminated from Cotton Bowl consideration despite a 13-0 victory over No. 17 Baylor. If the Longhorns beat Texas A&M next Saturday, they will go to the Sugar Bowl and put Arkansas in the Cotton Bowl. If they lose and Houston wins, the Longhorns probably will go to the Sun Bowl while Houston goes Cotton and Arkansas gets the Sugar.

Get it? It's a lot clearer than last week, even if it doesn't sound that way. The rest of the bowl lineup looks like this:

Sugar, Alabama or Georgia vs. Texas or Arkansas; Gator, Michigan-North Carolina; Liberty, Tulane-Penn State; Bluebonnet, Purdue-Tennessee; Holiday, Brigham Young-Indiana; Peach, Clemson-Baylor; Tangerine, Wake Forest-LSU; Hall of Fame, South Carolina-Missouri; Garden State, Temple-California; Independence, McNeese State-Syracuse; Georgia, LSU, Missouri, California and Syracuse all have five losses, but who cares?

"I know of some people who have been saying we shouldn't go to a bowl with a 6-5 record," says Dave Hart, athletic director at Missouri, which got the Hall of Fame bid by crushing Kansas 55-7. "But if the bowl people think we are the best possible team available, I think we should go."

The Hall of Fame Bowl would have invited Kentucky, but the Wildcats lost to Tennessee 20-17 on a 25-yard field goal by Alan Duncan with five seconds remaining and finished 5-6. That's not quite good enough for a bowl bid this year, but who knows what the future holds.

Elsewhere in the Top Twenty (eight teams were idle):

—No. 10 Brigham Young completed an 11-0 regular season and won its way to the Holiday Bowl by thrashing San Diego State 63-14 as Marc Wilson threw four touchdowns on his first five passes.

—No. 19 South Carolina (Hall of Fame Bowl) nipped No. 13 Clemson (Peach) 13-9.

—And No. 18 Tulane (Liberty Bowl) spoiled the regular-season finale of Louisiana State (Tangerine) Coach Charlie McClendon 24-13.

Oklahoma's Billy Sims and Southern Cal's Charles White, who were picked before the year to wage a battle for the 1979 Heisman Trophy, wound up their regular seasons with outstanding efforts. Sims, the 1978 Heisman winner, rushed for 247 yards on 28 carries — he has 529 in his last two games — and set up both Oklahoma touchdowns while White carried 35 times for 194 yards and four first-half touchdowns.

"What can I say about Billy Sims?" cackled Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer, who had plenty to say about an underrated defense that held the Cornhuskers to 336 total yards, almost 150 under their average. "That was the greatest Oklahoma performance I've ever seen," Switzer raved. "It was the best defensive performance ever."

Nebraska had yielded only 67.1 yards a game on the ground but Sims romped for 132 by himself in the first half. He also had a 68-yard touchdown run chopped to 33 because of a penalty and that cost him a national record. His two-game total of 529 fell nine short of the 538 by Colorado's Charlie Davis in 1971.

A 71-yard dash by Sims set up the decisive score, a fourth-down 3-yard run with 7:55 to play by quarterback J.C. Watts, who teamed with Forrest Valora on a 58-yard TD pass play in the third period.

White began Southern Cal's scoring against UCLA with a 2-yard run in the first period and Ronnie Lott's 30-yard interception return made it 14-0 after one period. White added touchdown runs of 1, 26 and 2 yards in the second quarter for a 35-0 halftime spread and finished his career with 5,598 regular-season yards, second only to Tony Dorsett's 6,062 in NCAA annals.

"Even more important than the game itself is that you have to reflect on our senior class," said Coach John Robinson. "This is the greatest class of football players in the history of football at Southern California. They performed so well for so long. In their careers at USC their record was 41-6-3, with one game to play."

Tackles Steve McMichael and Bill Acker keyed a mighty Texas defense that held Baylor to two first downs while, Johnny "Lam" Jones snagged a school record eight passes for 196 yards — including a 54-yarder from Rick McIvor in a first-period score — and John Goodson kicked third-quarter field goals of 44 and 42 yards.

Kevin Scanlon led Arkansas over SMU by firing two touchdown passes to Steve Clyde and one to Gary Anderson and scoring once, all in the first half.

BYU's Wilson fired touchdown strikes of 25 yards to Dan Plater, 42 to Bill Davis and 57 to Eric Lane in the first period and added a 46-yarder to Scott Phillips in the second quarter as the Cougars flattened San Diego State. His 3,720 passing yards and 3,604 in total offense wiped out the NCAA marks of 3,343 and 3,464 by Tulsa's Bill Anderson in 1965.

South Carolina's triumph over Clemson enabled the Gamecocks to finish the regular season at 8-3, the school's first eight-victory season since 1903, and Tulane's Roch Hontas passed for 259 yards and three touchdowns as Tulane downed LSU.

Elsewhere, North Carolina (Gator Bowl) trounced Duke 37-16, Temple (Garden State) thumped Villanova 42-10 and Georgia kept its Sugar Bowl hopes alive by downing Georgia Tech 16-3.

Meanwhile, Utah State tied San Jose State for the Pacific Coast Athletic Association title by defeating Fresno State 41-31. Central Michigan completed a 10-0-1 campaign by shading San Jose 34-32. Colorado downed Kansas State 21-6 to wind up 3-8 under Chuck Fairbanks and Notre Dame ended at an embarrassing 7-4 despite a 40-15 triumph over Miami, Fla. in Tokyo.

Dampened Enthusiasm

Notre Dame's spirit appears dampened but not diminished by pouring winter rain Sunday as Fighting Irish cheerleaders carry on during the game in Tokyo. Notre Dame won the 'Mirage Bowl' over Miami University, 40-15. All-American running back Vagus Ferguson led the Irish to the win with three touchdowns. (AP Laserphoto)

Yankee Clipper Turns 65

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Joe DiMaggio cut a cake with a coterie of cronies and played a round of golf Sunday on his 65th birthday.

The Yankee Clipper 65? It doesn't seem possible. The whole world has to feel older.

"Golf is my main form of recreation and exercise these days," said the San Francisco fisherman's son who grew up to be one of baseball's greatest sluggers and an American folk hero preserved in fable and song.

"I wish I could play golf better. This back trouble gives me fits. I have to restrict myself to a three-quarter swing. I can't get below a 12-handicap."

DiMag was in New York briefly last weekend. He spent a tonesome Thanksgiving, his two granddaughters — Kathy, 17, and Paula, 15, the apples of his eye — having spent the holiday with their maternal grandmother. Then he hied off to the Dunes in Las Vegas for his golf date.

"I manage to keep busy," he said. "I am always traveling, visiting friends, making appearances for causes and things like that. I get tired and go back to San Francisco for four or five days. Then I get restless and am off again."

It was in San Francisco that DiMag, son of an Italian immigrant, grew up with four brothers, two of whom — Vince and Dom — had successful major league careers, and a sister Marie.

Marie presides over the family homestead and handles all of Joe's mail and appointments. When home, Joe spends his idle hours with old chums at DiMaggio's restaurant on Fisherman's Wharf.

Quiet and introverted as a player, the man they called The Yankee Clipper still guards his privacy zealously, yet he has opened up somewhat as a result of his two TV commercials — one nationally for a coffeemaker (Mr. Coffee) and the other in the New York area for a savings bank.

He shuns the Hollywood and jet-set crowds who once fawned over him, and restricts his circle of friends to everyday people whom he met and liked along the way, such as clothier Henry Blank and publicist Ted Wornor. He refuses TV talk shows.

At 65, DiMaggio is a handsomer man than in his dugout days — 6-foot-1, 190 pounds, ramrod straight, silver grey hair framing his strong Latin features.

He wants people to remember him as the man who succeeded Babe Ruth, batted .325 and hit 361 home runs in his 13-year career, won three MVP's and set a hitting streak of 56 games that may never be duplicated.

Reminded of one of baseball's most unattainable marks, the Yankee legend shrugs his shoulders.

"There are a lot of records that compare with mine," he says modestly. "What about Lou Gehrig's 2,130 consecutive games? And Johnny Vander Meer's consecutive no-hitters? They'll be tough to top."

Identity is the key word. While few people in the North Carolina-South Carolina-Virginia area don't know of the East Carolina Pirates, there are comparatively few outside that area familiar with the Pirates.

That means the average fan. There are a lot of people close to the game familiar to the Pirates. Those who keep up with statistics know the Bucs.

Unfortunately, those people who are in charge of seeking out teams to participate in bowl games are not among these few. They look at one thing only: the dollar sign.

For that reason, teams with barely winning records are in the bowl games this year, while teams like East Carolina and unbeaten Central Michigan will be looking on via television.

Once upon a time, a bowl game used to be a reward for a winning season. No, not a winning one, an outstanding one. Nowadays, a bowl game goes to teams with a "name," with record only secondary. Alabama, for instance, could probably get a bowl game with a losing record, just because they are "Alabama."

The problem is how to get identity. It's possible, but it takes a long, long time. Look at Arizona State. It took them years of producing good football teams before anyone looked at them. Now, (in better times than those this year), they are highly regarded.

It takes "big" wins, something the Pirates didn't accomplish this year. They won big, but they didn't win the big games—those against much better known ACC teams.

Next year's schedule, while not released yet, has some big games on it. But with the heavy losses facing the Pirates through graduation, a good deal of recruiting must be done this winter, along with some heavy training of returning veterans this spring.

East Carolina produced quite a team this year. Its offense was awesome. Pat Dye called it the best he's ever been around—at East Carolina, Alabama or Georgia.

Check off these records set by the Pirates as a team: most yards rushing, 4,053 (old 3,263 in 1976); most yards per rush, 5.9 (5.1, 1976); most total offense, 5,228 (4,245, 1973); most yards per play, 6.2 (5.8, 1964); most points, 380 (352, 1973); most touchdowns, 49 (44, 1973); most PAT kicks, 44 (39, 1973); best punting average 39.8 (39.3, 1974); and most first downs, 263 (227, 1972). The Pirates have also scored in 98 consecutive games.

There were four individual season records set. Sam Harrell's 7.4 yard per rush average broke the mark of Leander Green, set in 1977 of 6.0. In fact, Harrell, Theodore Sutton and Anthony Collins, all surpassed that old mark, along with reserve Marvin Cobb.

The others included Green's 1,714 yards of total offense, surpassing Carl Summerrell's 1972 mark of 1,700; Collins' 7,335 yards per carry, bettering Bill Cline's 1964 mark of 7,253; Bill Lamm kicked 45 extra points, surpassing Jim Woody's 39 in 1973. Lamm also set two new career marks, the only career marks set. His 69 PATs moved past Woody's 65, and his 21 field goals moved ahead of Pete Conaty's 21.

Several Pirates moved up the ladder in single season marks. In addition to Green's takeover of the number one spot in total offense, Collins, with 1,130 is third in rushing; Green, with 1,082 is fourth in passing, and with 73 is fourth in passes completed. Billy Ray Washington, with 484 yards is seventh in pass receiving, while Vern Davenport, with 26, is seventh in passes caught. Collins finished sixth (84), Green, seventh (76), and Lamm, ninth (69), in points scored.

Among career leaders, Green, with 3,509 yards, is number three in total offense, while Sutton, at 2,144 is tenth. Sutton is fourth in rushing with 2,144, while Collins is ninth at 1,704. Both have a shot at Carlester Crumpler's record of 2,833 yards next year, if Sutton elects to return through the red-shirt rule.

Green's 2,098 is fourth in passing; and his 133 completions is fourth. Washington with 41 catches in ninth, and third with 1,096 in yards receiving.

In scoring, Green stands sixth with 142, Lamm, eighth with 133, and Collins, tenth with 114.

All-in-all, a good year for East Carolina, but as Pat Dye said, it's a shame that these players won't be going anywhere in the post-season.

Ten Are Killed On N.C. Holiday

By The Associated Press
Four deaths in a three-vehicle collision near Salisbury Saturday pushed North Carolina's Thanksgiving holiday highway death toll to 10, the highway patrol reported Sunday.

Salisbury police said two Virginians and two Georgians were killed in the wreck on Interstate 85. One of the cars exploded, trapping two people inside.

Police identified three victims as Faye Adair Poole, 48, and Lisa G. Poole, 24, both of Anndale, Va., and Arthur Thomas Dollar, 24, of Tucker, Ga., all of whom were riding in a car. The fourth victim was identified as Joel Anthony Poole, 25, of Dublin, Ga., driver of a tractor-trailer truck.

Police said he wasn't related to the Poole women. Three others were injured in the wreck. The patrol listed these other traffic deaths:

—Adolph Best, 26, of La-Grange, killed Friday when the car he was driving ran off the road and overturned on a rural road near Goldsboro. The patrol said Best was thrown from the car.

—James David Walters Jr., 19, of Carthage, killed Thursday night when the car he was driving collided head-on with another car on N.C. 42 near Sanford.

—Llewellyn Willis, 49, of Harkers Island. He was killed on a rural road in Carteret County when the car he was driving struck a tree and burned Friday.

—Debra Lynn Rathbone, 16, of Clyde died Saturday when the car she was driving struck another car on N.C. 209 in Haywood County.

—Richard Leon Sherin, 19, of Asheville died Friday in a wreck on a rural road in McDowell County. The patrol said the car he was driving ran off the road and struck a tree. —Seventeen-year-old Lisa Kim Pickard of Hurdle Mills died Saturday when the car she was driving ran off a rural road near Roxboro. The patrol said she was thrown from the car.

The Associated Press count of weekend fatalities lasted from 6 p.m. Wednesday to midnight Sunday.

Buck Fever

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Hundreds of thousands of hunters have begun combing Pennsylvania's forests and lowlands on the opening of the state's antlered deer season — a day that often leaves schools and businesses idle as employees come down with buck fever.

The Pennsylvania Game Commission expected the hunters, who outnumber any other state's, to kill 57,000 bucks before the season ends at sunset on Saturday, Dec. 8. Last year, the reported kill was 61,696. However, wildlife managers say the deer herd is down slightly from last year's estimated 730,000.

Crash Killed 157 Persons

JIDDA, Saudi Arabia (AP) — A Pakistani airliner flying Moslem pilgrims home from Mecca caught fire, exploded and crashed shortly after taking off early today from Jidda, and all 157 persons aboard were believed killed, Pakistan International Airlines reported.

PIA officials said they did not rule out sabotage, but PIA engineers in Karachi, Pakistan, the plane's destination, said they believed a short circuit caused the fire and explosion.

An airline spokesman said the Boeing 707 crashed about 20 minutes after taking off from this Red Sea port city. The wreck was about 70 miles northeast of Jidda, in rough and mountainous desert to the north of Mecca, site of Islam's holiest shrine.

The spokesman said the wreckage was scattered over a three-mile area.

Saudi helicopters, carrying civil aviation and Pakistani airline officials, left Jidda before dawn for the wreckage about 15 miles north of Taif.

The PIA plane had come from Kano, Nigeria, and left Jidda shortly before 1 a.m. bound for Karachi.

Officials said the captain reported smoke in the cabin and cockpit soon after the takeoff. Five minutes later, he radioed: "May Day! Ooeee, no further!" and radio contact was broken.

Arrests For Betting Ring

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Raleigh police said Sunday that they arrested three men on gambling charges in connection with what they said was a $250,000-a-year sports betting ring.

Arrested were David R. Goodman, 29, and Carl Andrew Ingle, 48, both of Raleigh and Martin L. McIntyre Jr., 27, of Garner, police said.

Goodman was identified by police as vice president and general sales manager of Goodman Toyota and McIntyre was identified as a former Raleigh police officer and park ranger.

The arrests ended a three-month investigation into the betting ring, said Raleigh vice detective R.C. Gay. He estimated that the ring served about 300 bettors and handled $250,000 a year in bets.

Gay said officers confiscated "bookmaking" equipment, records of betting and $100,000 in cash and checks" during a search of McIntyre's house Sunday. He said the three men were arrested in a small office beside McIntyre's house.

Confiscated records showed the ring accepted bets of up to $500 on athletic events, Gay said. He said he didn't know how long the ring might have been in operation.

The three men were released on bond of $500, and all are scheduled to appear on the charges in Wake County District Court Jan. 2.

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠73 ♠AKQJ62 ♦KQJ105

What is your opening bid?

A.—Even though you have game in hand, resist the temptation to open with a demand bid of two hearts—you do not have the high card requirements for that action.

The danger in opening with a forcing two-bid is that you might find partner with something like the king-queen in spades and ace-king in clubs, in which case wild horses couldn't stop him from contracting for a slam. Just open one heart. The chances of everyone passing are practically nil.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠A93 ♥A7 ♦AKJ83 ♣QJ5

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass

2 NT Pass 3 ♦ Pass

What do you bid?

A.—You have already told partner that you want to play the hand in no trump, but he is suggesting an unbalanced hand. Either he wants to play in a suit, or he is interested in slam. Regardless of his intentions, your hand contains an asset not yet disclosed by the auction—support for partner's suit. Simply bid three spades and wait for his next move.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠954 ♥AK6 ♦K93 ♠AJ102

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass

2 NT Pass 3 ♦ Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Don't let your plethora of aces and kings go to your head. Whatever extra value those cards are worth is offset by the fact that you have 3-3-3-4 distribution, for which you must deduct a point. You have a minimum opening bid, so show it, and your shape, by rebidding one no trump. There is no game unless partner takes further action.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠A1087 ♥7 ♦AQ94 ♠KQ72

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass

2 NT Pass 3 ♦ Pass

What action do you take?

A.—Your singleton heart is the key. It suggests that game is unlikely because of a misfit. But the corollary, a penalty double of the opponents, might produce a highly satisfactory result if partner has a suitable hand. That is the action we would recommend, assuming partner remembers that all low-level doubles are, to a large extent, cooperative efforts.

Q.5—As South vulnerable, you hold:

♠KQ104 ♥K985 ♦5 ♠J873

Partner opens the bidding with one heart. What do you respond?

A.—In support of hearts, your hand is worth 12 points—almost good enough for a jump raise, and far too strong for a single raise. A jump to four hearts does not thrill us. We would tend to respond by one spade, and then support hearts at our next turn—with a jump preference, if necessary.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠J83 ♥J9862 ♦A7 ♠KQ4

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South

1 ♠ 1 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Don't waste your time bidding no trump. Partner, who is almost surely short in hearts, is unlikely to accept a no trump contract, and your stopper is not all that robust. This is simply a matter of whether you should bid three spades or four. With a fourth spade, we would jump to game. As it is, we think that three spades is enough. Partner might have handling problems, especially considering that his left-hand opponent will be poised to overruff him in hearts.

Q.7—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠QJ6 ♥AJ ♦AKQ83 ♠962

Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one spade. What action do you take?

A.—A simple overall of two diamonds does not do your hand justice. However, a double followed by a diamond bid also misdescribes your hand. You have 17 HCPs and balanced distribution and there is only one bid for this occasion—an overall of one no trump. Don't let the fact that you do not have a club guard deflect you from this descriptive bid. Your strong five-card suit is a compensating factor.

What is your opening lead?

A.—The one thing we know from the auction is that East does not have a four-card major suit. Therefore, we should not be as reluctant to lead from a four-card major as might have been the case. We see no reason on this hand to depart from the old bromide: "Fourth highest from your longest and strongest." Our choice is the deuce of hearts.

Crippled Farmer Raises Hogs

By WOODY UPCHURCH
NCSU Agricultural Information

Joe Farmer steadied himself on one crutch and leaned over the fence to scratch the big hog's back. "This is Oscar," Joe said, eyes twinkling and a broad grin spreading across his face. "The other one over there is Roger."

"We usually name them after the man we buy hogs from," the 38-year old Hoke County man said. "The hogs don't seem to mind and we never tell the people we buy them from."

Even when the subject of depressed hog prices came up, Farmer maintained the happy, jovial mood as he showed a visitor every nook and cranny of his small pork production unit.

The visitor had toured many hog farms—most larger than this one and some as efficient and well run—but none whose owner had quite the pride and enthusiasm as Joe Farmer showed in his.

But Joe isn't an ordinary farmer—although he would probably argue the point. He is severely crippled by cerebral palsy. He didn't walk a step until he was almost nine years old, spent over a year in the Lenox Baker Hospital in Durham in 1951 and 1952, underwent 11 operations and wore casts for 26 weeks during 1951.

"His first steps were between two parallel bars," said Joe's father and farming partner, Joe Sr. "He graduated from that to a heavy brace and crutches and then to the one crutch he uses now."

Joe was the 13th patient admitted to the hospital which now bears the name of the doctor who operated on Joe and got him on his feet.

"Dr. Baker said I was the fightin'est patient he ever had," Farmer said proudly.

It was this grit and determination plus the strong support and love his mother and father that got Joe on his feet, allowed him to finish high school, hold an office job briefly and to become a hog farmer.

Joe became interested in raising hogs around 1971. "He always felt he could do anything anybody else could," said his father. "He wanted to do something worthwhile and was always trying. Not a day went by that he didn't ask if he could help me with whatever I was doing. He couldn't, but he never stopped asking."

Phil Ricks, former Hoke County agricultural extension agent, worked with Joe in getting started with his first hogs.

"His greatest assets are his sharp mind and his positive attitude," said Ricks, who is now on the Johnston County extension staff.

It was largely through help of Ricks and his successor in the Hoke County office, Freddie O'Neal, and the understanding of a representative of the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation that Farmer got started.

The hog units Ricks designed is for 50 sows, although Joe hasn't been higher than about 30. He sells the pigs when they are around 50 pounds in size, or soon after they are weaned.

"I started out with two 40-pound gilts," Joe explained. "I paid $40 apiece for them and thought that was outrageous, but they eventually produced 13 litters each, so I guess we got our money out of them."

Farmer says he has sold pigs for as much as $60 a head and as little as $20. "It's costing us about $30 a head to raise the pigs to 50 pounds now," said Joe. "We're only getting $20 a head for them, so we're looking forward to improvement in the market."

The pigs are born in a small farrowing building that Joe's father built from a design worked out by extension agent Ricks. It incorporated features that would allow Joe to work in it with his physical limitations.

O'Neal, who now is in Jones County, later worked out a flush waste disposal system that eliminated the most difficult job the farmer had. "We had to borrow about $1,000 to raise the floor and put in the flush system, but it was the best money we ever spent," said Joe.

The new system has paid off in more pigs saved from each litter. Before the floor was raised and the flush system installed, Joe's herd averaged just over nine pigs per litter. Under the new system, the averaged weaned litter size is 11.5, compared to the state average of seven.

Wendell Young, Hoke County agricultural extension chairman, said Joe's was the first flush waste system in the county.

"Freddie O'Neal worked very hard, and a lot of it after his regular working hours, to help this thing work," Young said.

"Now we're using it to demonstrate to other small producers what they could do with a similar design."

Joe Farmer gives Young, Ricks and O'Neal the credit for helping to make him a good pork producer. "We couldn't have made it without their help and the assistance from Vocational Rehabilitation," said Joe.

Young said Farmer has become one of the strongest supporters of the pork industry in Hoke County.

"He's interested in not just the operation but everything that affects the welfare of the industry," said Young. "He goes to educational meetings, reads everything he can find on hogs and calls us regularly when questions come up."

Despite depressed hog prices, Farmer is planning for the future. He and his father have a nursery building about 70 percent completed. "We don't owe a cent on it, although we have slowed down on it until pig prices pick back up," said Joe, ever the optimist.

"This is more than just another hog operation," said Young. "It has made possible for a man to feel that he is earning his own way in the world. There's no substitute for that."

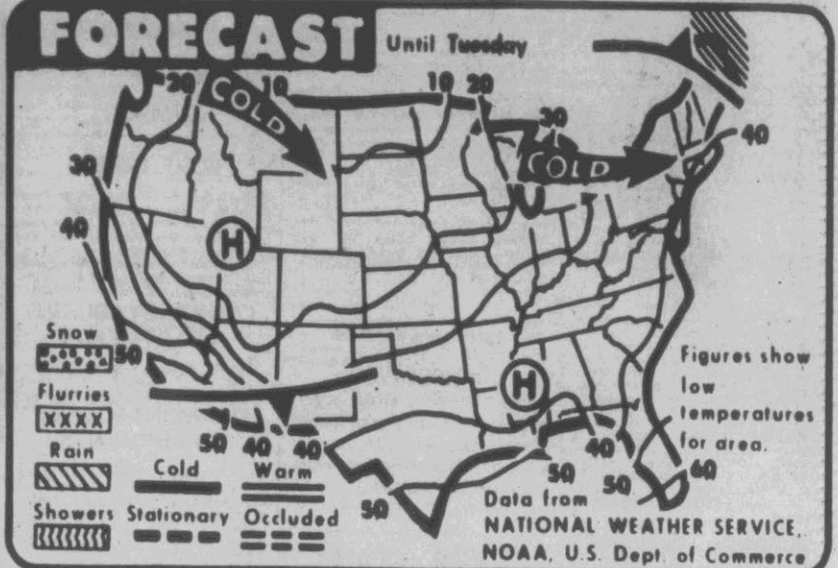

O'Neal agrees. Recalling his work with Joe, the former Hoke County extension agent said, "Joe's smart, eager to learn and does an exceptionally good job within his physical limitations, and his father picks up there and does the rest. The most important thing about it is that he can say, 'I raise hogs for a living.' That's pretty impressive when you think about it."

"I've worked with farmers who had as much drive and determination as Joe, but theirs came from a desire to make money. Joe's comes from a burning desire for personal achievement," said Ricks.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Colder weather is expected in the forecast period until Tuesday morning across the northern tier of states from the Pacific Northwest to northern Maine. Warming weather is expected for southern states, and little or no precipitation is indicated. (AP Laserphoto Map)

A rapidly changing weather pattern brought a tornado watch this morning on the heels of flash flood watches and warnings issued Sunday.

A tornado watch was in effect until 11 a.m. today for residents of the Coastal Plain to the coast.

But the rain was expected to end and skies clear in the West early today and in the East by this evening. By Tuesday, skies should be mostly sunny with a few clouds over the mountains.

A cold front that moved east through the Carolinas brought a low pressure center and with it the warm, moist and unstable air. Strong, gusty winds and rain and thunderstorms were the result.

Temperatures were expected to be mild today, with the highs in the 60s in the West and the low and mid 70s in the East. It should be fair and cooler tonight with lows in the 30s to the 40s in the East.

Tuesday's highs will be mainly in the 60s.

Additional rainfall late Sunday caused flooding in several areas of the mountains. Rainfall amounts between 2 and 4 inches were reported. Many roads were under water and some evacuations were reported. The weather office at Asheville measured just under 2 inches as of 1 o'clock this morning.

Rainfall east of the mountains has been from one-half to three-quarters inch in the Piedmont with amounts less than one-quarter inch along the coast.

Catch 50 At Cock Fight

WILKESBORO, N.C. (AP) — The Wilkes County Sheriff's department arrested 50 people Saturday night and charged them with cock fighting.

The arrests were made about midnight after a raid at a barn in the Mount Pleasant community, about seven miles west of Wilkesboro.

Sheriff Kyle Gentry said about 25 dead roosters and several living ones were found in the barn, which was set up like an arena.

Because of the amount of paperwork, police divided those arrested into two groups — those from Wilkes County and those from elsewhere. The 33 people from outside the county were immediately charged and all were released after posting $50 bail.

The people were from Virginia, Tennessee and New York.

The 17 Wilkes County residents will be charged today.

Gentry said the raid was conducted after his department received a report of a disturbance in the county.
