

Discuss 'Merging' Aspects

By REBECCA BUFFALO

 Division of School Planning
 Director Dr. Lacy Presnell and assistant director Dr. Darrell Spencer met with members of the Greenville City-Pitt County School Merger Study Committee Tuesday to offer information and guidance on merger feasibility for the two school systems.

The Division of School Planning, a facet of the State Department of Public Instruction, offers assistance and consultation time to school systems. The Division of School Planning studied the two school systems, culminating in the publication of a data booklet published June 30, 1978.

Committee members queried Dr. Presnell and Dr. Spencer on the possibilities of drawing up a pre-plan for the possible merger of the two school systems, and the success and failure rate for systems already merged.

Dr. Presnell pointed out that most school systems merge for consolidation, something already attained by the two school systems. He noted that, as far as he knew, no merged system had decided to "unmerge" after the final decision was made.

Dr. Presnell stated that if the two school systems wanted to provide the same quality education for fewer dollars, merger would not be able to accomplish the task.

"It's not what you do to save a buck, in my humble opinion," said Dr. Presnell of merger. "It's more for wisely expending the dollars expended for the greater good of the students."

A projected school system ranging from 15,000 to 20,000 students was a figure given by Dr. Presnell as "ideal." Elementary schools should house approximately 300-600 students; middle schools approximately 500-850; and high schools, from 1,100 to 1,250 students, according to projections given by Dr. Presnell.

"Wherever we have facilities, we have to be efficient in operation," said Dr. Presnell. "Schools are becoming twice as expensive to operate, as to fuel and electricity."

Dr. Spencer stressed the importance of pupil projections as a key to possible merger. Dr. Presnell stated that pupil populations are gradually declining, and asked committee members to keep the fact in mind.

Committee members queried Dr. Presnell on the merger plan and the items that should be included in it.

Pitt County NCAE President Annette MacRae asked Presnell how plans for curricula and personnel would be drawn up in the merger plan. Dr. Presnell said that the merger plan does not usually address itself to curricula and personnel, but outlines the steps by which administrators are selected to make the decisions after merger.

Greenville City Board of Education member Sue Zadeits asked, "Then the merger plan wouldn't address itself to administration?"

Pitt County Superintendent Ott Allford stated that although the merger plan would have to meet the criteria as stated by law, it could also address itself to other items such as administration.

Dr. J. O. Carson, committee member, asked Dr. Presnell about the feasibility of getting rough costs on the equalization of facilities before merger plans. Dr. Presnell noted that

Fear 257 In Antarctica Crash Dead

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP) — An Air New Zealand DC-10 carrying 257 persons on a sightseeing flight to Antarctica crashed into a volcano on the edge of the icy continent today, authorities reported. All aboard, including 12 Americans, were believed killed in one of history's worst air disasters.

U.S. Navy search planes spotted the wreckage on the slopes of smoldering Mount Erebus, near the U.S. research station at McMurdo Sound, Antarctica, some 2,000 miles south of New Zealand. "It looks as though it burned. No survivors have been sighted. They are expecting a complete fatality," said Petty Officer Mike Hatcher of the U.S. Navy Support Group Headquarters in Christchurch, New Zealand.

The airline said the 237 passengers aboard the DC-10 included 46 foreigners — 12 Americans, 24 Japanese, 7 Australians, 2 Britons and a Canadian. The rest were New Zealanders. They paid $359 for what was supposed to be an 11-hour flight from Auckland to the coast of Antarctica and back.

Few airline disasters have surpassed the death toll in today's Antarctica crash. The on-the-ground collision of Pan Am and KLM jumbo jets at Tenerife airport in the Canary Islands in March 1977 took 581 lives, and the crash of a Turkish Airlines DC-10 near Paris in 1974 killed 346 persons.

Air New Zealand said it understood the jetliner had completed its sightseeing run and was on its way back north to New Zealand when radio contact with the plane was lost at 2 p.m. (8 p.m. EST Tuesday). It was then still over Antarctica, about 30 or 40 miles from McMurdo.

The crews of Navy helicopters sent from McMurdo reported they were unable to land at the crash site because of violent updrafts of wind around the 12,400-foot volcano, the New Zealand Search and Rescue Center said.

The Navy said the plane crashed about 2,500 feet up the slopes of the active volcano, which is in the center of Ross Island, where the McMurdo base also is situated. The island is just off the Antarctica coast, and the volcano is within sight of the McMurdo base.

"The wreckage was on the back side of the mountain," Hatcher said. "It was spread over an area of about 200 yards."

The Air New Zealand sightseeing planes regularly fly close to the volcano on their non-stop round trips to Antarctica from Auckland.

Iran Debate Delayed By Security Council

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
 Associated Press Writer
 UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Security Council delayed the start of its debate on the U.S.-Iranian crisis until Saturday night, waiting for the arrival of Iran's acting foreign minister from Tehran.

The 15-nation council launched its public consideration of the crisis with a 16-minute session Tuesday afternoon at which it heard brief speeches by Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim and Council President Sergio Palacios de Vizio of Bolivia. Then it adjourned until 9 p.m. EST Saturday.

Waldheim called on the United States and Iran "to avoid any action which could inflame" the situation further. Palacios de Vizio urged Iran to release the 49 Americans held hostage in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, renewing an appeal he made on behalf of the council on Nov. 9.

Iran's U.N. Mission said Acting Foreign Minister Abolhassan Bani Sadr would be in New York for the start of the debate Saturday night. But Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the leader of Iran's revolutionary regime, rejected in advance any council resolution "dictated" by the United States.

Khomeini in a statement broadcast Tuesday also appeared to reject the only proposal for council action that has surfaced so far, a package deal in which the Iranians would free the American hostages and end the occupation of the U.S.

Embassy in exchange for creation by the council of an international commission to investigate his charges that Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi was responsible for the death of "nearly 100,000 martyrs" and with his family and other associates plundered the Iranian treasury.

The ayatollah lumped together the charges against the shah and his charge that the American hostages were spies, saying any "investigation into the case of the deposed shah and the spies must be carried out only in Iran." He added that the hostages must be put on trial within the "spy den," his term for the embassy.

Iran had sought to delay the council meeting until next week while the United States demanded an earlier public session to call again for the release of the hostages. The United States also wanted to speak at the meeting, but after the council president made his new appeal U.S. Ambassador Donald F. McHenry told a news conference: "We came out just where we wanted to."

State Department officials in Washington said the U.S. government was willing to wait through the end of this week for U.N. action and the time had not come for the showdown. But President Carter scheduled a news conference tonight and told a group of Democrats at a meeting in Washington Tuesday: "I will protect the honor of our country and will not under any circumstances yield to blackmail."

Iran's chief U.N. representative, Jamal

Shemirani, told the council debate on the crisis would not be "opportune and productive" until after the Shiite Moslem days of mourning Thursday and Friday for the founder of the sect, the Prophet Mohammed's grandson Hossein, who was assassinated in the seventh century.

Most Iranian Moslems are Shiites, and the holy days, known as Tasua and Ashura, are the occasion for fervent religious demonstrations in Iran. Last year hundreds of thousands marched through Tehran and other cities each day to protest the shah's rule.

As the holy days approached, rumors swept Tehran that the United States was planning an attack to free the hostages and that American agents would incite the demonstrating crowds to break in to the embassy so that a rescue could be attempted during the confusion.

The militant students holding the embassy since Nov. 4 announced that they had mines planted throughout the compound and would explode them if any attempt was made to break in. The commanders of Khomeini's revolutionary guards and the regular armed forces said their men were "ready to defend Iran with the last drop of their blood."

Meanwhile, a Canadian radiologist removed a gallstone from the bile duct of the shah at the New York hospital where he has been a patient since Oct. 22.

See Worse To Come For U.S. Housing Costs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although housing costs rose last month at the steepest rate since 1947, many economists are saying record-high mortgage rates mean the worst is yet to come.

"If housing increases were high in October, the November increase will be whopping," said Commerce Department economist Theodore Torda.

And Robert Russell, director of President Carter's anti-inflation council, said mortgage rates will affect inflation with a "vengeance."

The Labor Department reported Tuesday that consumer prices rose 1 percent overall last month, fueled primarily by a 1.5 percent boost in housing costs.

By contrast, food prices were up a relatively modest 0.7 percent, fuel oil prices up 1.3 percent — compared to an average increase of 5 percent a month over the prior nine months — and gasoline increased 1.8 percent, the smallest rise since last December.

In a separate report, the Labor Department said the average price across the country for gasoline topped $1 a gallon for the first time in October. The $1.06 a gallon October figure compared to 99.8 cents in September.

Torda said last month's price survey does not reflect the unprecedented jump in interest rates that occurred after the Federal Reserve Board's Oct. 6 moves to tighten the supply of money and credit.

That interest spurt will show up in the consumer price reports for November and December, he said.

Mortgage interest rates have risen from 11 percent to 14 percent in many parts of the country. And housing experts say the interest rates paid by homebuilders are exceeding 16 percent in some places.

Figures On Arms Vague

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union announced today that its military spending in 1980 would total 17.1 billion rubles, 100 million rubles less than this year's defense budget.

Soviet Finance Minister Vasily F. Garbuzov told a Soviet parliamentary session that the decrease — about six-tenths of one percent — was "proof of the good will of the Soviet Union to significantly reduce international tension and embark upon true detente."

At the current official exchange rate, the 17.1 billion ruble military budget for next year would equal $26.2 billion.

It amounts to 6 percent of the total 1980 Soviet budget of 284.6 billion rubles, or $435.4 billion.

Western specialists say that published Soviet figures on defense spending are deceptively low because many military costs are hidden in other budget appropriations. In addition, it is not known how much individual pieces of military equipment actually cost the Kremlin in ruble terms.

According to the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, in 1977 actual Soviet military outlays were estimated at about $140 billion, calculated on the basis of what the Soviet Union's equipment and personnel would cost in the United States.

Armed Intruder

WASHINGTON (AP) — A woman carrying a knife was seized by Secret Service agents today after she rushed into the reception room of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's Senate office. She was charged with assault with a deadly weapon.

One of the agents who seized her was nicked in the wrist by the woman.

The woman tentatively identified by the secret Service as Susan Osgood, was turned over to Capitol police and led down the hall by Capitol policemen with her hands behind her back. Inspector Gilbert H. Abernathy of the Capitol Police said the woman was in her 20s.

Deny Stay For Condemned

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The Florida Supreme Court has denied a stay of execution for convicted murderer James Dupree Henry, rejecting defense arguments that the death penalty was improperly imposed.

Henry's lawyer, Craig Barnard, argued Tuesday that murder convictions and death sentences are handed out more frequently in Orange County than elsewhere in the state. "No preliminary factual basis for the contention was presented to the trial judge in this case," the court wrote in a two-page denial.

Henry is scheduled to die next Thursday in the electric chair for the March 23, 1974, strangulation of an 81-year-old Orlando man.

Hotline referred your question to "Michelle Will Tell," the column in our Sunday "Showtime." Michelle answered, "Randolph Scott was born in Orange, Va. He is currently retired and lives in Beverly Hills, CA. He is a very private person and very leery about publicity concerning his private life."

ACCESSIBILITY FEEDBACK

In response to the Nov. 6 Hotline item about the nearest place for a wheelchair-bound person to apply for a driver's license, Lynn Dodson-Whitley, Advocate for the Disabled in the Eastern Region, has contacted the State Department of Transportation about making the Greenville Tenth Street Extension Office accessible. Billy Henderson in the General Services and Maintenance Section told her, she said, that plans have been made to make all N. C. license renewal stations accessible to the handicapped. The one in Greenville will require assistance from the Department of Administration for architectural drawings and will be put out for bids. There are also plans for accessible restroom facilities. He said he believes all work should be completed by the end of 1980.

Interest Rises In Inland Port

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The possibility of an inland port for North Carolina has stirred the interests of officials of Rowan and Davidson counties, with Jan. 15 set as the date for consideration of such a plan.

State Ports Authority staff workers are expected to make a recommendation on the idea at a meeting of the authority at that time.

Davidson County reportedly was one of the first counties to take note of the idea, and Rowan officials are now talking up their area as a possible site.

Charlotte was mentioned by state consultants as a prime area for such a port, but a Charlotte-Mecklenburg planning commission spokesman said the panel has not taken up the issue.

The proposed facility would provide a central state point for shippers to have their seabound goods placed in containers for transportation by rail or truck to the state's two coastal ports.

One of the major goals of the system would be to capture more business for the state's ports at Wilmington and Morehead City, which have been losing hundreds of thousands of dollars in recent years.

William Green, executive director of the ports authority, said the study of the inland port has not reached the point where specific size, location and financing are being discussed.

Brezhnev Reports Production Goals Not Met

By THOMAS KENT
 Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Parliament met today to approve reduced economic targets for next year after President Leonid Brezhnev reported that this year's grain harvest — the worst since 1975 — is 48 million tons short of the goal and oil output is off 10 million tons.

Because of the low harvest, Western specialists expect the Soviet government may buy all 25 million tons of corn and wheat the U.S. Department of Agriculture will allow to be sold to the Soviet Union in the 1979-80 fiscal year.

The scaled-down economic plan, which is expected to be routinely approved by the 1,500 members of the Parliament, or Supreme Soviet, calls for industrial output to rise by 4.5 percent in 1980 over this year's level.

The growth target for this year had been 5.7 percent over 1978. But Soviet economists have estimated the growth actually achieved at about 4.2 percent.

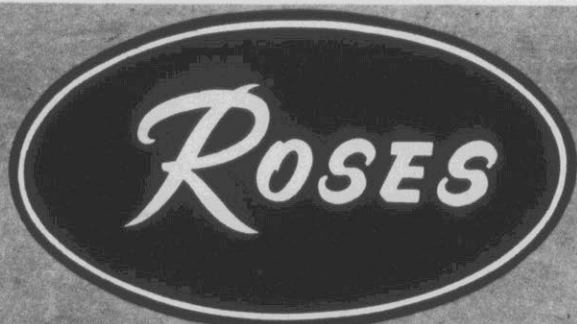

Nikolai Baibakov, chief of the state economic planning organization, presented to parliament members a series of production targets for 1980, many of them lower than those envisaged in late 1975 when the Soviet Union announced its 1976-80 economic plan.

Baibakov said oil production is targeted at 606 million tons for next year, against an original goal of 620-640 million tons for 1980. Steel production is planned for 150 million tons, compared to 160-170 million tons originally planned.

Baibakov said production in 1979 fell short of targets in steel, coal, oil, mineral fertilizers, and some consumer goods and food products.

Based on a daily rate, U.S. auto sales for the year are down 10.1 percent, the figures showed. Total sales of 7,540,647 compare with 8,381,204 for the same period of 1978.

Chrysler's share of the market was 10 percent for the latest period, up from 8.3 percent in early November but down from the 11.5 percent share for the year. GM, meanwhile, captured nearly 61 percent of the market, Ford had 24 percent and AMC and VW divided the remaining 5 percent.

Dog Owners Have Rights

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd Inc.

DEAR ABBY: In response to the complaint about barking dogs, you said, "There's a law against disturbing the peace. Call the police!"

That's easy for you to say; you don't live in Lancaster, Ohio. I do, and it wouldn't work here. True, there is an ordinance, but lawyers say it cannot be enforced, so it would be useless to take the matter to court.

In Lancaster, the dog owners have all the rights; people bothered by barking dogs all night just have to put up with it.

Maybe Ralph Nader can do something about this type of noise pollution. Please ask him.

CONSTANT HEADACHE IN OHIO

DEAR HEADACHE: Ralph Nader is more concerned with four-wheeled "dogs" than four-legged ones. But if he has any suggestions, I hope he'll send them my way.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 64-year-old, fairly attractive widow.

After losing my husband of 40 years, I sold my home and moved to a lovely retirement community. This place would be paradise—if it weren't for the women who live here with their husbands.

I have never seen such jealousy! They watch their men like hawks when I'm around. I used to be in business and have always felt comfortable around men, but since living here I'm afraid to be myself. I watch every word I utter, being careful not to come on too strong with the men, or be too charming or entertaining for fear some woman will think I'm trying to steal her husband. I once had a winning personality, but now I feel like a stupid, frustrated bump on a log.

When my husband was alive, I always encouraged him to dance with single women. Now when the music starts I go hide in the powder room for fear some man will ask me to dance and his wife will think I gave him the come-on.

What's a widow to do?

FRUSTRATED IN ARIZONA

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Be yourself, and don't try to second-guess other women. You can't know what they're thinking. The chances are that they are just as generous as you were in bygone years, but your sudden single status has caused you to be slightly self-conscious, insecure and perhaps a touch paranoid.

ed Social Security benefits in 1978, the American Council of Life Insurance notes.

The council says this was up 500,000 — or 1.5 percent — from a year earlier.

The cost of these benefits rose 9.8 percent, it says, as benefits topped $82.8 billion in 1978, up from $84.6 billion in 1977. A major reason for the increase is the cost-of-living escalator built into the Social Security program that adjusts benefits upward to keep pace with inflation.

Small Farms, Big Landowners

North Carolina may be a state of small farms, but there are also a lot of big landowners.

The "Washington (N.C.) Daily News" recently determined that four firms own 37 percent of the land in Beaufort County. The firms own 39 percent of the 501,235 acres on which taxes were paid during the current year.

The largest land owner in the county was Weyerhaeuser with 26 percent of the total acreage, or 138,759. Weyerhaeuser is, of course, a major producer of lumber and other wood products, with large manufacturing facilities at Plymouth and New Bern.

N. C. Phosphate is the second largest landowner, with 14,607 acres held by Agrico and 13,241 under N. C. Phosphate. Kennecott and Agrico jointly own N.C. Phosphate.

Texasgulf owns 25,173 acres and is engaged in massive phosphate mining at Aurora.

FMC owns 3,955 acres in Beaufort County.

Following those large holdings the acreage undoubtedly breaks down into small holdings which are characteristic of the family farms of our state.

The major companies obviously have specialized interests (tree-growing and phosphate mining), and likely much of the acreage held by them would not be suitable as good farm land. And, of course, the manufacturing facilities which accompany these operations are providing many jobs for North Carolinians, although not always in Beaufort County.

No Judge Should Handle His Own Case

A judge in Catawba County dismissed a traffic charge against himself recently.

District Judge Bill Martin handled the matter on a motion by the assistant district attorney.

Bert M. Montague, director of the administrative office of the courts said it was "the damndest thing I ever heard of."

We would have to agree. No judge should ever handle any charge against himself. Some action is called for in this matter.

Answer In The Schools?

By BILL NOBLITT
(Second of Two Articles)

RALEIGH — Missing from deliberations of the Governor's Crime Commission are representatives of the public schools or the state's Department of Public Instruction.

But if present members of that group, worried and even alarmed over escalating involvement of young people in anti-social and criminal behavior, have their way, that will change.

The schools may well be the last resort in combatting this condition. Educators, by and large, want no part of that notion. Their job is to teach, not to act as crime fighters and policemen, they contend.

On the other hand, if classrooms, hallways, and parking lots are so filled with students who disrupt, disobey, and commit criminal acts that the educational process becomes futile, then perhaps it is the concern of educators.

two good reasons that education must get involved in helping to restore discipline and moral behavior:

1. The schools with their experimental and innovative social promotions, and relaxation of stern discipline, played a large role in the deterioration of individual behavior;
2. The family and home has deteriorated to such a degree that only through the schools can the children be effectively reached. That, along with a corresponding reduction of membership in — and influence by — scouts, churches, and similar organizations means children are effectively on their own in learning how to behave.

Some comments from Crime Commission members as they explored juvenile delinquency point up the complexities of the frustrating condition:

We cannot legislate personal morality and responsibility, it will have to be done outside of the Legislature and the courts.

Society has changed drastically, with home and family life deterioration the most serious contributor to delinquent behavior.

Children don't believe fire burns because they are not being held accountable for their own actions.

It is time to stop trying to understand what makes a child behave badly. It is not sufficient for psychologists and analysts to puzzle why? The point is they are doing it, and must be held responsible.

Somehow young people must be impressed with the fact that somewhere in his lifetime he is going to be held accountable.

Fourth "R"

It begins with the family, and many families are not doing this. Tougher sentences earlier in life for those who get involved in real crime would help. Restitution of victims would help enforce individual responsibility for actions.

Finally, one member observed, perhaps it is time to insist that our schools get back to the basics, as some have been saying.

But with a fourth R... add to reading, writing, and arithmetic a fourth: Responsibility. We must involve the schools in crime fighting and in disciplining kids... there is no other way.

Where do we go from here? That question dominated the commission discussion. Probably, educators will be asked to join the deliberations. Likely, there will be a round of public information efforts to involve churches, schools, civic clubs and others in a campaign to convince youngsters that they should behave properly. Maybe, a way will be found to return old-fashioned ideas of individual responsibility and morality to home and school.

"It won't happen overnight. We must talk and talk and hope that the hearer ultimately will realize that this applies to him or her," one specialist commented.

FINGERS IN SO MANY PIES!

Steals Center Stage

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — While the lives of the 49 Americans held hostage in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran are in jeopardy, the Iranian crisis will dominate U.S. politics despite the reluctance of politicians to press it as an issue in the presidential campaign.

Once the crisis in Tehran ends, the Carter administration is certain to face tough questioning, both from the president's political opponents and from congressional committees concerned with foreign policy.

"Once the release of the hostages has been secured — and only then — will it be appropriate to hold a congressional investigation," said Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. "All avenues will then be open."

But with the Americans still captive, most politicians have united behind the president's efforts to reach a peaceful resolution of the crisis.

"I think it is important, or imperative, that Americans speak with one voice and that we support the administration," Sen. Edward M. Kennedy said in a broadcast interview Sunday.

Hiding Out In A Cave

WASHINGTON — I was jogging in Rock Creek Park at dusk the other day when Bascomb stuck his head out of a cave.

"Are they over yet?" he asked me.

"Are what over yet?"

"The presidential primaries," he said.

"Of course they're not over," I told him. "They've just begun."

"I was afraid of that," he replied, and started to walk back into the cave.

"Wait a minute, Bascomb.

You can't stay in a cave until the primaries are over."

"Why not?"

"Well, for one thing it's probably against the law. You have to live through them like everybody else."

"I can't take it," he said. "Why did they have to start so early?"

"It takes a lot of organization to run for President of the United States. The candidates have to campaign earlier every four years or they won't have a chance."

"Couldn't they have waited until January 1 so we all could have a nice Christmas?"

"Perhaps. But the public doesn't have any money left after Christmas to give the candidates. When you're running for office you have to tap the people before they waste all their money on toys and gifts for their families. Come on, Bascomb, get your things together and I'll jog home with you."

"No way," he said. "I have a low pain threshold. I just can't watch those guys on television every night telling me how they're going to save the country."

Other Editors Say Ponder Blue Law

(The Wilson Times)

Another bruising battle may be shaping up in Rocky Mount over the issue of easing or retaining restrictions on Sunday retail sales. The outcome will be of considerable interest to Wilson merchants who now draw some Sunday trade because of our neighboring city's "blue law."

A referendum was held in Rocky Mount in December, 1971, at which time the public voted 2,919 to 1,024 to reject repeal of that city's blue law. Following the referendum, city council modified the ordinance to allow businesses to remain open on Sunday but limited sales to certain items; primarily foods and beverages, medicines and books or magazines.

Now a majority of Rocky Mount councilmen believe the attitude of citizens has changed, or that the public should be heard again on the issue. A January 14 public hearing has been scheduled for that purpose.

The council member who seconded the motion for the public hearing commented that Rocky Mount is "losing retail sales to Wilson which does allow merchants to be open on Sunday."

Wilson killed its blue law 12 years ago after heated debate and litigation that began in 1965 and lasted more than a year. The issue was finally resolved in May, 1967 when citizens voted 2,852 to 1,624 against a Sunday closing ordinance.

The referendum was held simultaneously with a city council election in which all candidates had pledged to abide by the wishes of the public on the blue law issue. The six incumbents were returned to office and the ordinance was axed at the council's first meeting after the vote.

Since then, some merchants have opened their establishments on Sunday; others have not. Respecting the feelings of churchgoers, a vast majority of businesses that maintain Sunday hours do not open until after morning religious services and close before evening worship.

There are many working couples who find Sunday afternoons an ideal time for leisurely shopping. And a casual survey of city automobile license plates in shopping center parking lots reveals that a considerable number of people from nearby communities are drawn to Wilson for Sunday shopping.

A Rocky Mount councilman opposed to reviving the blue law issue said he feared another bitter battle. He may be right. We do not recall any question in Wilson that generated sharper debate than the blue law issue of the late 1960s. But once the voters expressed their wishes, the controversy died.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Plan A Post-Iran Inquest

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — While agreeing for now to control their anger over policies they think contributed mightily to the hostage crisis in Iran, Republican governors plan an all-out "inquest" of events leading up to the embassy take-over once the crisis ends.

That was the upshot of two days of meandering political talk by the governors at the Austin, Texas, session. Only Henry Kissinger's speech to the governors brought resounding applause and feverish excitement. But the anger of the Republicans cannot be vented until the crisis ends.

Their No. 1 question for the post-crisis inquest: How could President Carter have left the embassy unprotected at a time of obvious danger when it was well known that Iranian zealots had taken over the embassy only nine months before?

Reagan And Chrysler

Not even insiders can fully explain how Ronald Reagan, after literally years of preparation for his third and last try for the presidency, had no ready answer for one certain question: Does he favor the proposed federal bailout for Chrysler?

At his opening press conference in Washington, Reagan said he needed to study the issue before saying

"yes" or "no" to the Chrysler package. Predictably, at a New York City press conference the next morning he was asked whether he had found time for study yet. Reagan insiders decided he had to come to a conclusion. On the third day, in Grand Rapids, Mich., he came out against it.

That position fits the view of much of the business community, including the National Association of Manufacturers, and Reagan's top two congressional supporters: Sen. Paul Laxalt of Nevada and Rep. Jack Kemp of New York. But other key backers, including ex-Treasurer Secretary William Simon, were not happy.

introduce expansive political veteran Strauss to the office staff until Strauss requested it. Kraft then referred to him as somebody "who will do some fund-raising for us."

Strauss intends to do a good bit more than fund-raising. He regards himself as being in overall command of the campaign, and White House insiders are betting he will end up the winner over Kraft.

Teddy's Mobil Man

When Mobil Oil Corp. Vice President Herbert Schmetz took a leave of absence to run Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's media campaign, Kennedy's liberal backers winced and President Carter's supporters chortled.

Media consultant Robert Squier, who has produced a half-hour campaign documentary for Carter, decided to rub it in against an old friend: ultra-liberal Kennedy speech writer Robert Shrum. Squier sent Shrum a can of Mobil oil with a notation referring to "your new boss."

A footnote: Schmetz's arrival may have wiped out the Strength For Today

THE HIDDEN FIRE

If we pile up logs in the open fireplace and let them burn slowly through the evening, it may appear that the fire has not consumed them. Some of the logs still retain their original form. But next morning we touch the logs with a poker and they disintegrate into ashes. It appears that long after the fire had burned down the evening before, a secret, unseen fire was eating out the substance of the logs.

Whether it be a fire on the hearth or a fire in the heart, the effect is always the same. The burning continues long after the flame has died down. Just as the hidden fire eats away at the logs all night until by morning they are ready to crumble, so hidden fires in our hearts, such as jealousy, lust, avarice and pride keep on burning when there are no visible signs of flame.

The human heart can easily be consumed by flames of which neither we or the world are conscious.

1980s Remain Discouraging

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Those who foresee in the 1980s a rediscovery of old economic values, such as the importance of profits and the necessity of the work ethic, aren't getting much encouragement from events.

There are many such optimists in business and investment life, and some are risking reputations that took years to develop. They reason that the chaos and uncertainty of the 1970s just cannot continue.

Having tried other methods, Americans will return to what works. They will save, thus providing capital for expansion; they will reduce their demands on the marketplace, and prices will tend to stabilize.

Or so it is hoped. Business hates uncertainty, because it adds to existing risks, and so the hope is that with stability the entire economic community will be able to lay out plans and work toward them.

This will not result in a boom, they say; in fact, some look forward to a rather sluggish rate of growth as just the antidote to all the ups and downs of the 1970s. Boom leads to bust; it cannot be tolerated.

Instead, these seers say, America will be satisfied with straightening itself out. We will put our finances in order. The Federal government will cease to grow; the budget finally will be balanced.

That theme, or something akin, is found in a segment of long-range forecasts now circulated by, among others, an economic consulting firm, several insurers and one of the biggest investment advisers.

Wishes, however, do not command events, and the hoped-for pattern isn't emerging from the loom. As the new decade nears, all the threads are grey and the pattern is one of question and exclamation marks.

Inflation vies with recession as the No. 1 economic problem. Personal income falls. Interest rates are at all-time highs. Productivity has almost ceased to improve. Oil is scarce. Profit is a dirty word.

The stability that business and consumers seek is nonexistent, either domestically or on the international scene. Geopolitics has become a study in aberration. And forecasting has become nothing but guesswork.

FOCUS

Another Common Market?

What has 312 million people, a quarter of the world's grain, abundant energy, and enough natural and industrial resources to become the strongest economic power on earth? The answer is North America: Canada, Mexico and the United States. An increasing number of people, including several presidential candidates, have suggested the three countries unite to form a North American Common Market, similar to the Common Market in Europe. The member countries of such an organization would remain independent. But they would combine their economic resources, allowing people, goods, and money to travel freely among the three countries.

Appeal Ban On Beach Homes

NAGS HEAD, N.C. (AP) — Two men who own beach-front lots want to build houses on them, but the state's Coastal Area Management Act won't allow it.

The commission agreed Tuesday to postpone any decision on the matter until its January meeting.

So the two have asked the Coastal Resources Commission to waive the regulations for them. Without the waivers, said commission spokesman Liz Lance, the landowners will be unable to build.

military weakness, the problems of the poor, the search for a better life for all the people, and of course crime in the streets.

"If it's all the same to you, I'd rather stay in my cave until it's over."

I was starting to get angry. "Listen to me, Bascomb. We're all in this together. If I have to listen to the rhetoric, so do you. That's the price we pay for a free society. There is no such thing as a free lunch or a free presidential election. If you want a President you have to go through the time-honored rituals we've set up to select one. What would happen if everyone crawled into a cave just when the campaign started?"

"I've got plenty of room if you'd like to join me," he said. "It's really great. You can't get any television reception at all."

"Thanks, but no thanks," I told him. "I'd rather watch the candidates and take my lumps like everyone else."

"Okay," he said, "but don't come around in March and ask to move into my cave."

last chance for New York-based media wizard David Garth to join the Kennedy campaign. Garth was among those briefing Kennedy before his appearance on NBC's "Meet the Press," but no contract for the campaign has been signed.

Reagan Infighting
Intense rivalry within Ronald Reagan's campaign organization led to a punchline from rival candidate George Bush's field operations director in a bantering exchange with his counterpart from the Reagan campaign.

Reagan operative Charles Black asked Bush operative David Keene whether he would attend the Republican preferential convention at Orlando, Fla. Keene replied that convention fell on a Saturday and he would be in Texas with Bush campaign manager James Baker hunting — not for delegates but for deer and turkey.

"That's the difference between the Reagan and Bush campaigns," cracked Black. "We're out working, while you're out playing."

"Yeah, and there's another difference," Keene replied. "No two guys from the Reagan campaign would trust each other alone carrying guns." Black did not disagree.

New Kind Of Milk Is Eyed

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — American grocery shelves may soon be stocked with a new kind of milk that can keep for months without refrigeration.

The milk, called Ultra High Temperature milk, is popular in Europe, but it isn't marketed in the United States. Federal milk regulations are under study to provide for its sale.

W.M. Roberts, head of North Carolina State University's food science department, told participants of a conference on the milk Tuesday that recent developments, including the energy crunch, "have caused us to take a more serious look at it."

Because the milk doesn't have to be refrigerated, Roberts said, it presents potential energy savings for distributors and supermarkets.

The milk is produced by heating raw milk to temperatures as high as 300 degrees to kill the bacteria that cause spoiling.

The sterilized milk is packaged in sterilized containers so that it stays virtually germ-free.

The milk must be refrigerated only after the container is opened.

But while the high-temperature process has little effect on the nutritional value of the milk, some say its taste is affected.

Despite claims to the contrary by others, Harold Burton of the National Institute for Research in Dairying at Reading, England, said he could always distinguish the taste of the heated milk.

But, as sample servings of 1½-month-old heated milk produced at N.C. State showed, taste differs with the individual.

"It's not that bad," said one conference participant from Maine after drinking a cup.

"It would go very well with granola," said Clinton Washam of Davenport, Iowa.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Some of the most lasting relationships in my life have been made while standing in lines. I met my present gynecologist while waiting in a line at the bank one day. I exchanged recipes with a wonderful woman in a restroom line at the fairgrounds. And I still correspond with Pat, whom I discovered in a line for "Star Wars."

You can't imagine how upset I was to discover that in Florida they have set up rules for people standing in lines. It all came about with the energy crisis and the high cost of heating in the North, which created a real stampede for homes in the Sun Belt.

When a new housing development opened for sales recently, people were standing in line to hand over anywhere from $80,000 to $100,000.

The trouble started when some people hired stand-ins to camp out in line all night for them. So they issued a set of rules for line-standers.

Only blood relatives could act as stand-ins.

Anyone who left the line to freshen up, have a bite to eat, or call his banker, had to sign out and return again in person to reclaim the place in line.

I contend we line-standers can take care of our own. We don't need a lot of rules and regulations.

Once I was in a line to see an old movie classic, starring Orson Welles in "Citizen Kane." When the theatre emptied a man went along the line saying in a loud voice, "ROSEBUD IS THE NAME OF THE SLED!" We knew how to deal with him.

Another time a person tried to get into a line in front of a lot of other people who had been waiting by striking up a conversation with someone near the front of it. We got her out of there in no time flat. (I told Mother, this is no time for nepotism.)

Dedicated line-standers know a fake when they see one. Fainting from heat/hunger/old age just isn't good enough to get you a spot near the entrance.

Lines have become a way of life for Americans. I hate to see them get all tangled up in bureaucracy and red tape. I mean without a code of ethics and standards, we're just your plain, common, ordinary ... loiterers.

Pilfering Food Sent Starving

By DENIS D. GRAY
Associated Press Writer

NONG SAMET, Thailand (AP) — Cambodian refugees, part of a current mass exodus from their homeland, claim that Vietnamese troops are pilfering international food aid, mining rice fields to prevent harvesting by Cambodians and providing only starvation-level rations in the countryside.

The refugees, who reached this border area after mid-November, said they had received virtually none of the foreign aid that has been sent into Cambodia over the past two months. Almost all said they believed Vietnam, which invaded in January to set up a pro-Hanoi government, was trying to exterminate the Cambodian people.

Their accounts could not be independently verified. Access to Cambodia by Westerners is extremely limited. But a French Parliament delegation which was permitted to travel across Cambodia said on its return to Paris Tuesday that international food aid "seemed to us to be deliberately diverted away from its objectives... We fear that the elimination of the Khmer (Cambodian) people is continuing."

However, Nicolas Sommer, a spokesman in Thailand for the International Red Cross, one of the distributors of food aid to Cambodia, said: "We have no indication that there has been a wholesale diversion of international aid." But he and a spokesman for another aid distributor, the United Nations Children's Fund, noted that with fewer than 15 Red Cross and U.N. officials in Cambodia it was impossible to make detailed checks of food distribution.

Although the refugees interviewed by The Associated Press came from Cambodian provinces as far apart as Kompong Cham and Prey Veng in the east bordering Vietnam to Battambang on the northwestern frontier with Thailand, their stories were similar.

Angered Over Lice On Child

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Joanne Holland says her 9-year-old daughter complained of itching for three weeks before she found head lice on her Saturday.

And she's angry at city school officials, saying that if they had sent out available literature on the parasite, she might have detected the problem earlier.

As a result of complaints by Mrs. Holland Monday, school nurses at VanStory Hills Elementary School found five more cases of head lice. But school officials say there is no problem at the school.

Mrs. Holland said she became angry when she was informed by a nurse at the Cumberland County Health Department that information on lice has been given to the Fayetteville City schools for distribution.

"The only way we found out about it was I picked one off and looked at an encyclopedia," she said. "I'd never seen one before."

But William G. Johnston, principal of the school, said he has no information on lice other than letters used for children who have been found to have lice.

"And I don't think that letter should be sent out," he said. "Most parents would panic."

The form letter describes the treatment for head lice and the procedure for being readmitted to school. Children with lice are required by law to be sent home until they are examined and found free of lice or their eggs (called "nits") by a nurse or physician.

"There's nothing wrong with the principal sending anything home," said Max Abbott, superintendent of the Fayetteville City Schools. "I just don't know if that's necessary."

Abbott said the cases at Van-

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina will receive more money than any other southeastern state to help the poor, the elderly and the handicapped heat their homes this winter, but state officials aren't sure how they will distribute the aid.

A total of $29.4 million — the 14th largest amount of the 50 states — will be available to help the needy heat their homes in North Carolina this winter.

That amount was assured as President Carter signed the $1.35-billion Low Income Energy Assistance program into law Tuesday.

According to figures released in Washington, North Carolina's share of that amount will be $16.1 million. Money from two other energy-aid programs brings the total to nearly $30 million.

Gary Pearce, press secretary to Gov. Jim Hunt, said the governor will make a decision soon — probably this week — on what method will be used to distribute it and who will be eligible for the aid.

"All I know is somebody is supposed to be developing a recommendation on which of the options is best," said Gary Pearce, press secretary to Hunt. "We haven't decided yet."

There was confusion among state agencies Tuesday over who would handle the money and what requirements would be set for eligibility.

Lillie Murdock, spokesman for the state energy division, said her office learned from South Carolina officials that the state has four options on how to distribute the money. The governor could decide to base distribution on an existing welfare program, base it on a combination of welfare programs, expand a similar program now run by the state economic opportunity division or come up with his own plan.

One of the smaller aid programs, previously enacted as a "crisis assistance" package, will provide $4.9 million in North Carolina, according to Bob Spencer, spokesman for economic opportunity division. A third aid program will send energy assistance money directly to North Carolina citizens who already receive money from the federal Supplementary Security Income program. According to figures released in Washington, that will amount to $73 per recipient in North Carolina.

The economic opportunity division, part of the Natural Resources and Community Development Department, has plans to handle the $4.9 million expected earlier. But Pearce said the additional money allocated Tuesday may be more than that office is capable of handling.

Under that program, some 12,000 to 14,000 North Carolina homes will receive up to $400 in grants to help pay heating bills this winter.

To qualify for the money North Carolina officials already have plans to distribute, recipients must have an income of less than 125 percent of the poverty level.

There are 780,000 persons in North Carolina that have incomes below the poverty line, Spencer said. That program gives a top priority to the elderly and the handicapped.

Garwood Asks Drop Charges On Health Grounds

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL, Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Marine who returned to the United States in March after 13½ years in Vietnam says he may not be well enough, physically or mentally, to defend himself against charges that he deserted and collaborated with the enemy.

Pfc. Robert R. Garwood asked the nation's highest military court Tuesday to force dismissal of the charges, two of which carry the death penalty, and to order that he be honorably discharged.

"I have grave doubts that I will have the resources or the mental or physical health to survive and adequately defend myself," Garwood told the U.S. Court of Military Appeals.

He is charged with desertion in time of war, acting "as an interpreter, informer and guard" for the enemy, soliciting American forces to lay down their arms, informing on two fellow prisoners who were then tortured, and conducting indoctrination courses for the enemy.

Garwood said the charges should be dropped because:

—He was unable to take advantage of needed physical and mental help since under military law his conversations with the doctors could be used against him in a trial.

—Military authorities have refused to let him withdraw money from the $145,000 he has coming in pay and allowances, meaning that "he would be financially incapable of preparing a timely defense."

—The military needlessly reinvestigated his case and delayed in ending it. He said in the eight months since he was charged, the Marines had taken

"not a single further procedural step" to move the case toward dismissal or a trial.

Without his consent, he said, the Marines extended his enlistment and "I have absolutely no doubt that the charges are the products of enormous personal hostility."

The Marine Corps had no comment on Garwood's petition, saying the case still is under investigation.

Garwood also submitted a deposition that in Vietnam he suffered malaria, tuberculosis, cardiac arrest, liver disease and a blood infection normally restricted to birds. He said his medical records also indicate he is carrying bomb fragments in his body.

The 33-year-old Garwood of Greensburg, Ind., has been stationed at Camp Lejeune, N.C., since his return. He was released March 22.

He said in a deposition that after his capture on Sept. 28, 1965, he was forced to live in a totally foreign environment; English became a weak, second language; and he had to relearn such fundamental things as tying shoelaces and shaking hands.

He said on his return to the United States, he was the target of irresponsible public attacks.

"A member of Congress publicly called for my conviction and jailing, although I had not yet even been tried," Garwood said.

"The media published as established fact the claim that I had voluntarily stayed in Vietnam ... the initial public response showed enormous hostility," he contended.

Ate Nearly 5 Lbs. Collards

CLINTON, N.C. (AP) — Only a love for collards or maybe a $50 first prize could tempt a grown person to tackle 60 pounds of collards to see how much he could eat.

But 12 brave souls made the assault on their gastrointestinal tracts at the first Colossal Collard-Eating Contest. The winner consumed nearly five pounds of the green stuff, only 21 ounces short of the world record.

The competition was part of the North Carolina Fresh Vegetable Growers Association's third annual trade show held in Clinton on Tuesday.

Several hundred area growers attending the trade fair showed their approval by loudly applauding and shouting encouragement and advice during the 30-minute contest.

Winner Sam Hudson, a young Sampson County farmer, said he was eating for the $50 prize rather than a place in the Guinness Book of World Records.

Hudson, while still alert and on his feet, was struggling for control and unavailable for comment on his victory.

Restaurateur Ralph Hamilton, who supplied the collards, admitted he didn't really care for the stuff and the only reason he managed to down two and a half pounds of collards was to "support my cook."

Cook Bea Herring smiled and smiled. "They're a lot more tender after the frost has sat on them," she said, referring to the collards.

But some would not admit the world champion collard eater doesn't come from Sampson County.

"They served up the wrong kind," one observer said.

Another maintained there are two kinds of collards. "There's the kind you grow and the kind you steal," he explained. He admitted to hearing about the store-bought kind, but said he didn't think they counted for much.

"In Sampson County, everyone knows the kind you steal taste a whole lot better than the kind you grow," he said, adding that he and his neighbor maintain a habit of stealing from each other's garden.

Sinners Won? Cigarette Smugglers Face Sentencing

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The concept of rehabilitation should be forgotten, a psychologist told a group of priests Tuesday at a workshop on prison ministry.

"There is nothing to rehabilitate in most prisoners," said Stanton E. Samenow, a Washington psychologist who is conducting the workshop for the Roman Catholic Diocese of Raleigh. "The task is much larger."

His view is that some people are bad. From early childhood they choose to engage in antisocial behavior, such as telling lies and being evasive, manipulative and secretive.

"A half-hour of counseling a week in an effort to rehabilitate a career criminal is like trying to catch a tidal wave with a bucket," he said at a news conference. "You won't make a respectable butcher out of Jack the Ripper with vocational training."

Research he has done yielded a detailed profile of how criminals think, he said. The work has resulted in a new way of counseling, pegged to changing a criminal's thinking by degrees.

In order to do that, he conducts lengthy individual therapy "to help people learn ways of thinking most of us learned in third grade. I mean the concepts of injury, putting one's self in place of another and interdependence."

However, he said his methods might help only 10 percent to 20 percent of criminals and must be confirmed by other researchers.

The priests attending the workshop appeared impressed by Samenow's views.

Said one after a tour of Central Prison, "Gee, we lost. The sinners won."

Another, Father Thomas P. Hadden of the Sacred Heart Cathedral in Raleigh, said Samenow's methods will help him "not make the mistake of empathizing with a criminal. It will help me accept the criminal as he is."

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Three North Carolina men and one other who have pleaded guilty to smuggling cigarettes into Pennsylvania face sentencing today from a federal judge who ordered jail terms Tuesday for five others who had also pleaded guilty in the contraband case.

The four who are to be sentenced today are Edward Lee Bryan, 32, Charles Snipes, 38, and William Seymour, 46, all of Goldsboro, N.C.; and Robert Breggar, 32, Exton.

U.S. District Judge John Fullam rejected Tuesday pleas for probation in giving jail terms to the five who pleaded guilty to smuggling cigarettes from North Carolina that cheated Pennsylvania of $7.5 million in taxes.

The stiffest sentence went to 71-year-old Frederick McCurry of Philadelphia, described by the government as "the conspiracy kingpin" and "a high level smuggler." McCurry was ordered imprisoned five years and fined $10,000.

Fullam said he could have given McCurry 120 years "because this is a very serious case."

Louis Pichini, special attorney for the Justice Department's Strike Force, said McCurry "inflicted enormous harm on society, and may be more harmful than a drug dealer or a bank robber because he was masquerading as a good citizen."

Also sentenced to prison were Walter Rosenbaum, 69, Philadelphia, three years and a $2,000 fine; while three months were given to Irving Breggar, 59, Broomall; his brother, Herbert Breggar, 54, and Dominic Corvino, 51, both of Philadelphia.

All five men were placed on five years probation to begin when they leave prison.

Herbert Breggar, the only defendant to ask Fullam for leniency, said he got into the scheme "to get our business back on its feet, but it was wrong, and it has done terrible damage to my family."

Fullam responded, "This would be a case for probation if it were not for the magnitude of the enterprise."

A tenth defendant in the case, Ollie Ray Davis, 56, of Raleigh, N.C., committed suicide shortly after last June's indictment.

The government alleged that since 1972 McCurry purchased more than 4.1 million cartons of cigarettes from the Southern Wholesale Co. of Goldsboro, owned by Bryan, paying approximately $10.4 million for them.

Pichini said the cigarettes were distributed by McCurry, Rosenbaum and the Breggars through different Pennsylvania cigarette vending and wholesale companies, using a tax stamp machine licensed by the Breggars.

"McCurry tried to protect himself by bribing tax officials who would investigate him," Pichini said. "He tried to place himself beyond the reach of the law."

Attorney Herman Bloom, representing Rosenbaum, scoffed at the government allegation that there were political pay-offs.

However, the judge said, "It seems impossible to me for this scheme to continue as long as it did without somebody being paid off."

The indictment alleged that

McCurry paid $1,000 weekly to unidentified "high officials" of the state Revenue Department who kept him informed "of confidential state cigarette smuggling investigations and joint state-federal cigarette investigations." Recipients of the alleged pay-offs were never identified.

Morgan Defends Judgeship Choice

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C., is defending his choice of a former campaign manager for a federal judgeship in 60,000 newsletters to be mailed today.

The nomination of Charles Winberry Jr. of Rocky Mount is believed shaky because of allegations of bribe-passing and political back-scratching. The bribe-passing allegation has never been substantiated.

"I recommended Mr. Winberry to the president for the appointment and I firmly stand by that recommendation," Morgan said in the newsletter.

"His nomination has been delayed for an unconscionable time," he said.

Carter made the nomination last March.

The U.S. District Court judgeship is a lifetime post and carries a salary of $54,500 a year.

In a telephone interview Tuesday with the News and Observer of Raleigh, Morgan said he had met with Carter Monday, and the president offered his help in getting Winberry's nomination confirmed by the Senate.

"I said, 'I'll let you know if I need you,'" Morgan said.

In another development, the newspaper reported that Senate Judiciary Committee investigator Carmine Bellino has been reviewing Winberry's testimony earlier this month to a subcommittee. He is comparing it to Winberry's answers to an earlier interview the lawyer had with Bellino.

Bellino is believed to be making the comparisons at the request of Sens. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, and Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., both of whom have raised questions about the nomination.

Morgan said he continues to support Winberry.

Winberry, the newsletter says, "has a long record of public service ... and is known in North Carolina as a 'lawyer's lawyer.'"

Morgan's 1974 Senate campaign was managed by Winberry. He also worked for Gov. Jim Hunt.

Building Fund Service Planned

A special building fund service will be held at New Hope Fellowship Tabernacle Holiness Church Wednesday, Nov. 28, and Friday, Nov. 30, 8 p.m.

Wednesday night, the Rev. Smith from New Hope of Terra Leia will speak, with the Rev. Bobby Wooten of Friendship Church, Falkland Friday. Missionary Gloristeen Barnhill, sponsor, invites the public to attend these services.

Sunday, Youth Day will be observed at New Hope Church, with services beginning at 12 noon. Elder B. R. Barnhill is pastor.

Also Reduce Prime Rate

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Three major North Carolina banks have joined others across the nation in lowering their prime lending rate.

Officials at both North Carolina National Bank and Northwestern Bank said their prime rates will move today from 15 1/2 to 15 percent. First Union National Bank moved its prime rate from 15 1/2 percent to 15 percent Tuesday.

New York's Chase Manhattan Bank cut its prime lending rate by one-half percentage point Tuesday to 15 1/4 percent.

"From a purely domestic economy standpoint, this is probably at least an intermediate-term turning point," said Mal Murray, senior vice president for commercial lending at First Union.

NCNB Corp. economist Al Smith predicted that in another three weeks the prime rate and other short-term rates should rise again.

But Hugh Durden, head of the Wachovia Bank & Trust Co. loan administration division, was optimistic.

"In the absence of any external events — like the Mideast or a weaker dollar — this is probably not a fluke. We can expect lower rates," he said.

Wachovia held its prime rate at 15 1/4 percent.

When 'Historic Preservation' Becomes Hardship

By MASHA HAMILTON
Associated Press Writer
INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The middle-aged woman — a mother of four — stands outside on the porch of her house. Her eyes blaze.

"I ain't going nowhere," she says. "I'll be here fighting for a long time. It's they who are intruding."

"They" are the state's Historic Preservation Commission, which recently designated the woman's downtown neighborhood as a historic district, and the people who are buying houses like hers to renovate.

What she is fighting goes by different names: historic preservation, forced displacement, urban renewal or gentrification. It is moving like brush fire through cities across the nation.

Old, often-deteriorating neighborhoods are being renovated by the upper middle-class who just a few years ago abandoned them for the suburbs. Those once relegated to the inner city — blacks, the elderly, those on fixed incomes — are being driven farther from the core.

Most go quietly, unable or unwilling to fight. A few like the angry woman stand their ground in the face of fear and economic pressure.

She refuses to let her name be used. She says her dog has been shot. Her children have been harassed. Her house has been set on fire, its electrical wires ripped.

"It's no secret that arson is a way of life down here," says Dorothy Burse, director of a downtown social agency. "You use it to get rid of something you don't want."

"Displacement occurs when a neighborhood is not designed anymore — in somebody's mind — to accommodate black or poor," she added.

Some long-time inner-city residents are forced out by the vandalism, even if they aren't sure where they will go.

"If your house is worth $7,000 and you're worried it may be burned, and someone comes in and offers you $4,000, you think you're lucky. Especially if you're 70 and don't feel safe," says Eve Kranig, who has lived in downtown Indianapolis for 52 years.

Reed Williamson is director of the Historic Landmarks Association, which helps hunt down federal and state funds to offer as loans — usually at 3 percent interest — to middle and upper income individuals who want to restore inner city houses. He said the funds are usually unavailable to people on fixed incomes, even if they are living in historic houses.

Williams acknowledges that displacement occurs, but he denies people are harassed to encourage them to leave. "I know of no harassment techniques that are carried on," he said.

However, an Indianapolis fire lieutenant who is conducting his own investigation of arson in a downtown historic district brands it a white-collar crime, with a purpose of displacing undesired elements.

"There are definitely planned arsons in that area," says the officer, who asked not to be identified. "New residents have openly said they are going to get all the blacks and poor whites out."

The lieutenant, who began the investigation as a department project 10 years ago, says arson is "a touchy issue because upper-management fire officials interested in moving into the city have bought property there themselves. They are among the displacers and don't want the area to be associated with arson. It's touchy because we're talking about lots of money, lots of dollars and cents," he says.

No one seems certain where the displaced go — even those who make it their business to try and keep track of the new nomads.

"We aren't sure where they are. They are here one day and gone the next," says a Catholic priest who did not want his name used. He helps out at an agency that maintains contact with displaced persons.

Indiana's preservation commission designates historical areas and encourages renewal, but it says displacement problems are outside its realm of responsibility.

"We're not equipped by statute or staff to look at the social effects," says commission historian Jim Glass. "But usually we have observed our designation is not the principal triggering of displacement."

Glass says the commission often declares an area or building historic only after demolition is threatened. By then, he says, most residents already have been displaced.

But the fire lieutenant argues that fires are used to damage an area badly enough that repairs are too expensive for low-income homeowners. Then the preservation commission steps in, he says.

"For people on fixed incomes who can't get loans and must find another home, it's a no-win situation," said state Sen. Julia Carson, an Indianapolis Democrat. "...It's displacement that is being subsidized by the federal government under the guise of historic preservation."

Time Limit On Big Inventory

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Smithsonian Institution, the world's largest museum complex, has four years to catalog the 78 million specimens it holds.

The monumental task, imposed by Congress, involves a physical inventory of collections that then has to be matched against catalog information to insure the existence of every item from Alexander Bell's original telephone to moon rocks brought back by astronauts, from paintings by old masters to microscopic marine life.

To tackle the job that must be completed by June 1983, a large-scale Honeywell computer system is being used. There are 12 Smithsonian museums — seven on the National Mall in Washington, four others elsewhere in the city of Washington, and another in New York City.

Traveler Checks Go Into Billions

NEW YORK (UPI) — Some $30 billion worth of travelers checks are issued world wide each year, one industry source estimates.

A new entry into the travelers check market, Visa credit card, says it hopes to collar 10 percent of the market, some $3 billion worth, during the 1980 season and that it aims to gain 40 pct. within five years.

John Paul II Ignores Dangers In Visiting Turkey

By PHILIP DOPOULOS
Associated Press Writer

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Pope John Paul II arrived in Turkey today to advance the cause of Christian unity, but the Moslem nation's press was hostile and security was heavy after a death threat.

"Love is greater than danger," the pontiff said. As he stepped off his special Alitalia jetliner from Rome, the pope kissed the red carpet that led from the plane's ramp to a military honor guard.

He was met at the Ankara airport by Turkish President Fahri Koruturk, Premier Suleyman Demirel, Foreign Minister Hayrettin Erkmen and other officials. The weather was chilly and the sky was overcast with dark clouds.

Before taking off from

Rome's Leonardo da Vinci Airport, the pope called his trip an "important step toward the full and perfect unity of all Christians."

He told a small crowd of Italian government officials and diplomats at the airport that he was following in the footsteps of Pope Paul VI who visited Turkey in July 1967.

"I am going to that nation to continue with renewed efforts the pledge toward unity of all Christians" proclaimed by the 1962-65 Second Vatican Council, he said.

The pope added his trip also aimed to show the "importance that the Roman Catholic Church gives to relations with the venerable Orthodox churches on the eve of the start of a theological dialogue."

The highlight of the papal visit will be the start of talks with Ecumenical Patriarch Demetrius, spiritual leader of the Eastern Orthodox Church, which split with Rome more than nine centuries ago. The Latin and Eastern rites are Christianity's two largest branches and have nearly 1 billion adherents.

The pope and Demetrius meet twice in Istanbul, seat of the Eastern patriarchate, and jointly celebrate a special religious ceremony to mark St. Andrew's feastday on Friday. Andrew is the patron saint of Istanbul's Christians.

Although the patriarchate is in Istanbul, the Christians form a minority in Turkey, which like the rest of the Islamic world is caught up in the wave of anti-Western fervor being spread by Iran's Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini. Most of the 200 million Orthodox live in communist Eastern Europe.

Confessed Turkish terrorist Mehmet Ali Agca, a Moslem facing the death penalty for murdering a Turkish newspaper editor, escaped from prison Sunday and wrote a letter to a paper saying he wanted to kill the pope.

An organization called the Armenian Secret Liberation Army set off bombs in Madrid Spain, to protest the Pope's visit and warned he should cancel his trip. Hundreds of thousands of Christian Armenians were systematically exterminated by the Turks at the beginning of this century.

Most of Turkey's major dailies have taken critical shots at the pope since the visit was announced earlier this month.

Simple Postal Tips On Packaging Of Presents

Christmas packages will stand a better chance of arriving at their destinations in good shape if customers follow a few simple instructions, according to Greenville Postmaster H. Lloyd Mills.

"Select a corrugated fiberboard box with the 'burst test' number printed on it. That number is usually found in a little circle on the bottom of the box," Mills said. "The higher the pounds-per-square-inch number, the sturdier the box."

Boxes rated 125 pounds may be used for many types of merchandise weighing up to 20 pounds. A box rated 175 pounds can hold up to 40 pounds of goods. Items that are fragile or breakable such as cameras or glassware should be packaged in a 275 carton.

Books or other dense or heavy materials also need stronger boxes. Check appliance stores for these heavier cartons and make sure the seams aren't broken, Mills suggested.

Mills offered these additional tips for wrapping gifts for mailing this Christmas:

Make sure the contents are well-cushioned and there is no empty space in the box. Use crumpled newspaper around the item, on the bottom, the sides and on top of your gift. Foamed plastic shells and air pocket padding are good cushions.

Brown wrapping paper and twine cord are not necessary. Wrappings can rip off and twine can get caught in processing machinery.

Put a slip of paper with the recipient's name and address and your return address inside the box.

Use sealing tape to close and seal the box. Three types are recommended — pressure-sensitive, kraft paper reinforced with nylon or glass and filament-reinforced pressure-sensitive. Don't use masking or cellophane tape.

Use a smudge-proof ink for the address, which should appear in the lower right-hand corner of the box. Write your return address in the upper left-hand corner. Be sure to include the zip code for both the addressee and the sender. Remove all other labels and addresses from the carton.

Recruiters Will Receive Award For Excellence

Greenville's Navy recruiters assigned to the Navy Recruiting District Headquarters in Raleigh will receive the Meritorious Unit Commendation for recruiting excellence in fiscal year 1979.

Chief Johnny Stevenson, Chief Jim Steadman and Petty Officer Hip Holcomb are responsible for recruiting in the counties of Pitt, Beaufort, Martin, Hyde, Dare, Tyrrell, Bertie and Washington.

Capt. Jim High, commander of Navy recruiting area three in Macon, Ga., said that the award spotlights the consistent performance of area recruiters who have met or exceeded Navy goals every year since the beginning of the all volunteer force.

The Raleigh District is responsible for recruiting in 95 counties in the state and four counties in South Carolina. The district has 79 recruiters and 29 Navy recruiting stations Talked tenderly to yourself lately? Have you rolled your head or rowed an imaginary boat while waiting in line, say, at the bank, at the checkout counter, for a bus?

Formed a really supportive friendship with another woman? Said nuts to housework?

My dear, if you answered "no" four times you're not likely to succeed in a career — and might even flunk a lot of other things as you wobble through life.

Before you toss a people-sized butterfly net at me, hear this: These questions are based on recommendations from perfectly sane authorities who shared secrets with several hundred career women assembled at the Ford Foundation the other day. They all were high-priced experts and included two psychologists, a heart doctor, a career development dean.

To buy 15 minutes of time from any one of them would cost big bucks. But women attending got 2½ hours of advice for just $5 — paid to the non-profit Business and Professional Women's Foundation.

The BPWF and Clairon Living Care Scholarship fund for women over 30 sponsored the event.

What about those questions at the top? Well, first, you've got to like and love yourself and talk tenderly to yourself or else you can't like, love, or talk tenderly to others, which is necessary to succeed, according to Dr. Penelope Russianoff.

The psychologist, in private practice, teaches at the New School for Social Research. You may have seen her in the movies — she turned actress to play the psychiatrist in the film "An Unmarried Woman."

Tall, lean and with a delivery sometimes reminiscent of a comedienne, Russianoff wanted everyone to know she's 62, plays life for all it's worth and gulps a liquid laced with vitamins and minerals every morning.

She also made the pitch about women needing "the wonderful companionship of other women" — supportive friendship.

"Lots of men are jealous of good female friendships," she said (but her husband isn't among them, she says).

Men who are jealous should get over that, she suggested. They can't be the kind of a friend to wife or sweetheart that another woman can be.

Dr. Russianoff warned against "getting hung up on homophobia" — fear of homosexuality — in a female friendship network that she figures is a vital component of success.

"The notion that closeness and intimacy always includes sex is erroneous but rampant in our society," she said.

Exercise — any time, any place — was part of success-advancing and stress-reduction tips from Dr. Rosalind Forbes, psychologist. She's shown more than 50 blue chip corporations how to channel stress into a positive management force.

She demonstrated, first asking the audience of business women of various ages to stand. Then she had each one shake hands with the persons on either side. Giggles accompanied the handshaking as the perfectly dressed career women faced one another, amazed to see almost dressed-alikes.

The uniform for the day was variations of the uniform for the times: blazer, skirt, shirt. Or man-tailored suit with vest, featuring skirt instead of pants.

Dr. Forbes said it's important to read handshakes and that if a hand is clammy or limp it would indicate the person is scared or unsure. Under stress, our bodies as we tote this stress overload around."

And she noted that a stress overload is a roadblock on the road to success.

Dr. Forbes said stress comes in three types: Under-stress — too little, that is; regular — the kind that keeps you keyed up and full of zest; stress overload — that kind that burns out physical, mental, emotional circuitry.

The best kind is regular stress, panelists agreed. Too little stress is almost as dangerous as too much, by the way.

The experts agreed trouble's ahead when a person in a career gets too little stress in a career. Next comes boredom, followed by absenteeism, followed by booze and pills — maybe both.

And there's no sex difference either when it comes to reaction to under-stress, regular stress or over stress.

It happens to men the same way it happens to women, according to Dr. Stephen Slaton Scheidt, heart doctor at New York Hospital and Assistant Dean at Cornell University Medical College.

Scheidt said men and women with a stress overload can develop physical illness.

"If you have symptoms or feel fatigued all the time, make reasonably certain there's no organic disease," he said.

"Ask a doctor friend at a cocktail party, read the Merck manual (a book of how-to-doctor and read a lot by a lot of doctors), ask a friend.

"As a last resort, see a doctor and if the trouble is stress related, he might suggest a change of lifestyle."

Scheidt said figures showing women see doctors more often than men do, go to the hospital more often, are misleading.

When you subtract the hospital admissions and doctor visits for pregnancy, women really aren't heavier users of doctors or hospitals, he noted.

Now, for the best part — nuts to housework. Something has got to give when a woman in a career, brought up to be perfect in all things, finds she can't be Ms. Wonderful all the time, according to Dr. Marcia Fox.

The assistant dean of career development and job placement at New York University's Graduate School of Public Administration got the most rousing response from the audience when she said in her life housework is what gives. Apparently, when it comes to the "nuts to housework" bunch, she's a master.

"A television crew is coming to tape my daughter, 2, and us at a typical breakfast tomorrow morning at 8," she said.

Dr. Fox said she resolved that morning not to clear the domicile of its usual clutter. But she would excavate the dining room table. She had to do that to set three places for the filming.

Her message: don't feel guilty and get a stress overload about being a punk housekeeper.

No one can be perfect in all things, she reminded. You have to make tradeoffs.

And trading off housework — well, that suits a lot of career women, including herself, just fine, according to Dr. Fox.

I don't know about you. But Dr. Fox can count me in!

CONTROL YOUR DEBTS

If your present bills, because of economic pressures, cannot be met by your income, legal relief may be available to you under the provisions of Chapter 13 of the Bankruptcy Reform Act of 1978, which permits individuals to petition the Court for an arrangement allowing a thirty-six month period to discharge indebtedness, without property repossession or creditor harassment. Attorney's fees, which may be paid in monthly installments, are determined by the Court. There is no fee for an initial conference to discuss your eligibility for a "Wage Earner Plan".

Cheap, And No Inflation

By RON AMADON
CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — Water once made New England the envy of the industrialized world. Cascading rivers and streams powered its textile mills and factories, feeding a national economy that became the strongest man has ever known.

But now New England, more so perhaps than the rest of the country, finds itself increasingly at the mercy of foreign petroleum producers. And it hurts a Yankee's pride, as much as his pocketbook, to see the price of home heating oil creeping toward the $1 a gallon mark.

That is why, more and more New Englanders are buttoning up their overalls, digging out their tools and going out to reclaim the energy they have let float by for decades.

"It's gotten to the stage where water is cheaper than oil," said Ed Clark of Littleton, N.H., who has joined a national movement to resurrect long forgotten hydro-electric dams.

The water power bug has bitten more than tiny New England. In the West, where they do things big, the hydro projects are massive. On the Columbia River in Washington State, new generators are being added at the Grand Coulee Dam and further downriver at the North Bonneville Dam.

White water canoeists are making waves over a plan to build a new hydro facility on the Stanislaus River in San Joaquin Valley of central California. The dam would result in the flooding of a 12-mile stretch of river which provides some of the best white water canoeing in the West.

And a new powerhouse is being added to the Hoover Dam on the Colorado River to produce 500 megawatts of power — more than the backyard tinkers in New England could generate in a month.

But in small towns throughout New England, the local "jack of all trades" types tucked their wood supply away early this year, freeing enough time to transform the liquid fury of their rivers into power. Clark and his partner Frank Hubley gaze with pride at the chimneylike generator they have spent many hours restoring in their workshop which looks like something right out of Gasoline Alley.

They don't plan to get rich by rebuilding the generator or the 43-year-old concrete dam that will drive it. They're just fighting mad at the Arab oil cartel.

"Every little bit we do stops the oil coming from Arabia," the balding, Humbley said, wiping some grease from his green overalls.

A study by the New England River Basins Commission showed that if all 1,750 hydro sites in the six state region were retooled and reactivated to their maximum potential, their combined output would be 1.3 million kilowatts — more than 5 percent of the area's power needs.

In a year's time, the region could save 5 million barrels of oil.

Even in New Hampshire, which ranks 44th among the states in size, the potential for hydropower is impressive.

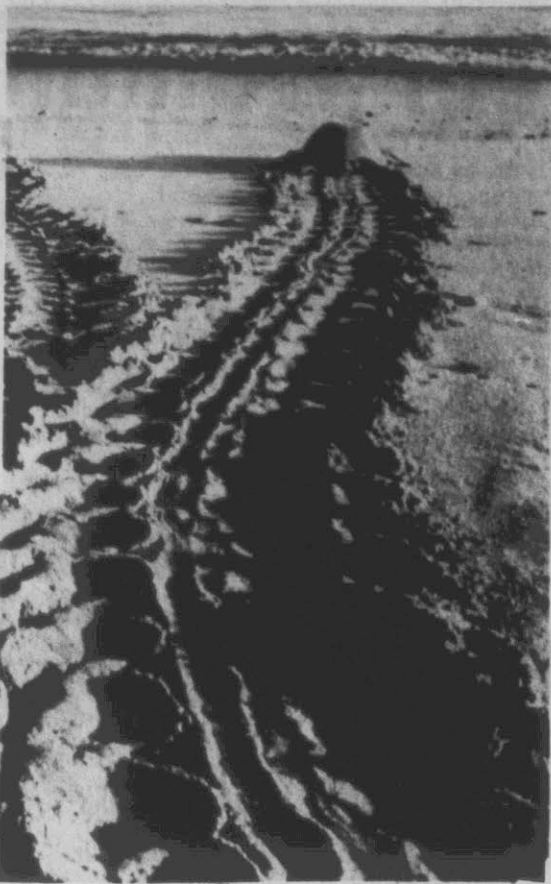

A 1976 study revealed that if all the retired hydro-electric stations in the state were brought back on line, they could light 40,000 homes and save 430,000 barrels of imported oil a year.

Cities, towns and private companies throughout New England have filed at least 40 requests with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission for permits or licenses for construction of hydropower facilities.

The price tag for those renovations in the New Hampshire alone totals a healthy $82.5 million.

But that figure doesn't faze a fiscally conservative Yankee like Bruce Sloat of Lost Nation, N.H. "Water is the only inflation free energy source there is," he says.

Shaking hands with Sloat is like shaking hands with a course grade of sandpaper. His gnarled fingers give living proof of the time he has spent constructing a small hydro-

BACK TO THE SEA — A female turtle, having just nested, makes her way down to the water leaving the easy way to follow tracks back to her nesting site. The fact that the eggs are easy to find, combined with other factors, is pushing the gentle creature to the brink of extinction. (AP Laserphoto) generator which he uses to light his three-story house, the centerpiece of a 500-acre farm nestled deep in New Hampshire's White Mountains.

The apple cider Sloat freely dispenses when the leaves begin to turn ("white cap is the sweet stuff, red cap has a little more zing") is prepared in a press driven entirely by the force of water.

His German-made generator turns out 15 kilowatts in peak season — more than he needs to keep his farm humming.

Sloat and his colleagues look at hydropower as a return to the good old days.

At the turn of the century, thousands of mills and factories were constructed alongside the myriad of streams and rivers that slice through New England on their way to the Atlantic Ocean.

The giant Amoskeag Textile Mills in Manchester, N.H. — once the largest complex of its type in the world — feasted on the power of the Merrimack River.

But when the industrial age shifted into high gear, electric companies found it was cheaper to generate electricity at a central location, using fossil fuels.

Gradually, one by one, the hydro generators that powered the factories began to close. Many have crumbled into the very rivers they once mastered.

But now — as the vise of the energy crisis turns ever tighter with each passing year — farmers, mechanics, major utilities and even state legislatures are beginning to take another look at the rivers.

For small hydro operators the obstacles are technical, financial and legal.

"The environmental damage has already been done," Sloat said.

Technical problems stem from trying to renovate generators which have suffered from years of neglect. In many cases, the small operators feel those problems can be overcome with "TLC — tender lubrication and care."

Sloat and others say financial and legal problems are tied in with safety issues.

Old Slave Trade Center In Senegal

SIDE BY SIDE—Goats grazing peacefully contrast sharply with coastal guns dating from World War II on Goree, Senegal. In the 16th century the island became a slave trading center from which captives from throughout West Africa were shipped into slavery in the Western Hemisphere.

By CLAUDE E. ERBSEN
Associated Press Writer
GOREE, Senegal (AP) — Plastic bottles, dirtwood and assorted trash clutter the tiny rocky beach from which thousands of Africans began the harrowing journey into slavery in the Western Hemisphere.

The beach, only a few feet wide at high tide, is reached through a small door in the foot-thick walls of the House of Slaves, the warehouse-like building where captives from throughout West Africa were assembled for shipment between 1536 and 1848.

Today the house is a tourist attraction, and urchins jostle each other to guide visitors through the 8- by 8-foot sand-floored cells where their ancestors were once jammed while waiting for the westward-bound slave ships.

Located about three miles off the West African coast, just off Dakar, the capital of Senegal, Goree was settled by the Portuguese, the Dutch and the French in rapid succession during the 16th century, and became a slave trading center in 1536 when slavers realized the island's escape-proof character. There are no exact figures on how many African men, women and children passed through the Slave House and similar buildings before abolition of the trade in 1848, and before the last shipment of "African immigrant workers" in 1862.

Jo Indriaye, a veteran of World War II combat in Asia who serves as curator for the House of Slaves, claims that 20 million passed through the island, and that more than 100,000 were sent across the ocean in 1845-1846. However, these figures do not stand up to scrutiny when compared with the list of slave-ship sailings displayed in the building.

The list shows an average of two ships per month in the 19th century, carrying between 300 and 400 slaves apiece.

Whatever the exact number, the House of Slaves and its surrounding buildings are being maintained as symbols of the cancer of slavery, and are obligatory stops for dignitaries visiting Senegal.

Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger called it "moving and sad experience," according to a sign over the building's main gate.

The seaward door of the Slave House bears another sign, in French: "Through this door they went, on a voyage without return, their eyes fixed on the infinity of suffering."

Elsewhere on Goree, which is reached by a 20-minute launch trip from Dakar, tourists climb over the ruins of Mame Coumba Castle, perched on a rocky hillside commanding a breathtaking view of Dakar as well as the main shipping route along the coast of West Africa.

During World War II the island's massive coastal guns — two of which still rust in the blazing sun — helped keep the sea lanes open to Allied shipping. Later the fort was used to film "The Guns of Navarone," and the rusting remnants of some of the film's incredibly small props still dot the hillside.

Near the jetty where the tourist launch docks, the 20th century collides with the carefully preserved historic setting, as hawkers pour deep-fried pastries and other goodies into paper cones made out of computer printouts.

Successes Seen By Job Service

"Pitt County employers have hired 59 individuals on the Targeted Jobs Tax Credit program," Jim Hannan, Manager of the manager of the local Job Service Office commented.

Hannan noted that of this number, "50 are minority men and women between the ages of 18 and 24, and six are Vietnam era veterans."

The program applies to wages paid between January 1, 1979 and December 31, 1980, and is a federal program that gives companies tax credits for hiring disadvantaged workers.

Fifty percent of first-year wages and 25 percent of second-year wages paid to each qualified worker is credited for tax, with a maximum credit of $3,000 per employee for the first year and $1,500 for the second year. The credit applies to workers hired after Sept. 26, 1978.

Hannan revealed that an Internal Revenue Service report shows that Tar Heel businessmen had hired 1,673 persons from groups that traditionally need jobs but have trouble getting them. Of this statewide total, 706 are black men and women in the 19-24 age group. Some 145 Vietnam veterans hired under the program. The majority of the workers are earning between $2.90 and $3.99 per hour.

"The Greenville Job Service staff is ready to help any employer who wants to hire employees eligible for this tax credit," Hannan said. Present employees may be eligible for retroactive certification. More information is available by calling 756-2686.

although all facilities need to be of good quality before the actual merger, it would be hard to estimate costs with the rising building prices.

"Your commissioners have the authority to do something about your facility needs now," said Dr. Presnell. "Facilities aren't a cost of merger. If you have surplus buildings that the other system could utilize, then that makes merger more attractive."

Board members agreed to meet Dec. 4 to discuss the information presented by Dr. Presnell and Dr. Spencer, so that questions could be drawn up to present to the Division of School Planning for guidance in studying the school systems' situation.

Proxmire Raps The Good Life

WASHINGTON (AP) — What Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wisc., sees as a prime example of government waste, the Air Force sees as a noble attempt to make life better for the troops.

At issue is $715,000 spent on improvements at Clark Air Base in the Philippines late in the fiscal year just ended. Proxmire gave the base his monthly Golden Fleece Award for silly or wasteful spending. Some of the money went to re-surface tennis courts, buy air conditioners and clean swimming pools. The Air Force said in a statement that its top officials "are extremely pleased to receive the award." A spokesman, who asked not to be named, said the award is "recognition that Air Force commanders in the field are trying to improve living conditions for the troops."

PRAYER MEETING

A prayer meeting will be held at the home of Eldress Shirley Atkinson Thursday night at 7:30 p.m. Eldress Graham from Allen Chapel Church in Greenville will be the guest speaker. The public is invited to attend.

Vandals Hit Their Buses

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Church workers cried. The pastor just shook his head. For the third time in less than a year, their church buses had been vandalized.

But this time, vandals won't have anything to come back to. The buses that carried black and white children to church services and puppet shows were gutted by an arsonist's torch.

"Right now I'm terribly upset, this just sickens me," said the Rev. Thomas Koon, pastor of the Ambassador Baptist Church in suburban Wyoming.

"They are like old friends," Koon said. "Many of us have crawled under them in the winter to get them going. Fire officials said someone apparently poured a flammable liquid on the seat of one bus and ignited it Sunday night. The flames tore through an adjacent bus and the intense heat damaged a third."

Koon said the buses were first hit by vandals earlier this year.

"At that time, someone broke the windshields out, walked between them and proceeded to break the side windows as well," he said. A week later, the windows were replaced and the vandals returned for a repeat performance.

The pastor thinks someone is opposed to the bus ministry, which he started in 1972. The buses, which are not insured for fire damage, take church members to summer camp, Sunday School and other events, like Christmas caroling parties at area nursing homes.

TRAIL PLAN AIDED

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina's proposed mountain-to-the-sea trail got a major boost Tuesday with the signing of an agreement allowing the trail to cross federal lands.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market opened lower today, continuing the sell-off begun late in Tuesday's session. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial issues slumped 4.43 to 821.42 in the early going. Declines outnumbered advances by a 3-2 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Although Wall Streeters continued to be pleased with an apparent end of the recent interest-rate spiral, two news developments early today pushed stocks down.

The dollar slumped in Europe today and gold cracked through the $400-ounce barrier. And the Labor Department revised its third-quarter productivity figures, showing a 0.7 percent drop rather than the originally reported 0.1 percent rise.

Among early trades, Mesa Petroleum was down 1/4 to 48 1/2. IBM slipped 1/8 to 64 1/2.

Rampants Whip Panthers

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
Rose High School's Rampants, still missing several players due to the length of the football season, were able to get fine performances from two other returning veterans and grab off a 69-56 opening game victory over North Pitt last night.

North Pitt's girls gained a 47-40 win over the Rampettes in the opening contest. Anthony Gorham poured in 26 points, while Donald House added 20 as the Rampants led most of the way in the contest. They took advantage of ball-handling problems by the Panthers in the opening period to forge an eight point lead, then held off several Panther rallies in the second and third periods.

Behind the scoring of Melvin Simmons, the Panthers were able to come back and push ahead once, 39-38, but Cliff Kilpatrick scored seven points, while House added two for a quick eight point lead. After that, it was just a question of running out the clock.

"It feels good to win the opener," Rose Coach Jim Brewington said. "We played raggedly, but I'm tickled to come out with the win."

Brewington praised the play of Gorham and House, but noted the Rampants still have a lot of work to do.

"We were definitely hurting at the guard positions (where two potential starters are still with the football team). And we had some trouble inside in the third and fourth periods with Simmons. But then, we've only worked two days on our defense, so I expect it to be rough. But it'll come along later."

For North Pitt's Cobby Deans, it was an unhappy time. "We made a lot of first game mistakes," he said. "We had a problem with our ballhandling (29 turnovers), more than I thought we would have. We just have a lot of work to do in all areas of the game."

Deans praised the play of Rose, "especially in their situation" of having so many out with football still.

Deans said that the plan was to get the ball to Simmons, but that he had gotten into foul trouble early. "I thought we had a good shot at them when we made our comeback, but we just didn't play any defense at all. We didn't stop them, so that's when we lost it."

Rose used an advantage of five turnovers in the first half, coupled with good free throw shooting to forge their first half lead. North Pitt, which hit only four of 15 at the line all night, found that a problem all evening.

Rose took the initial lead, saw North Pitt tie it at 2-2, then House hit six straight points for an 8-2 margin. Rose stretched that to 14-6 on a steal by Gorham, and held that lead until the horn, when it was cut to 20-14.

North Pitt fought back in the second period behind Vince Parker and Ronnie House to finally tie it at 26-26, but Rose again hit six straight, four of them by Gorham and gained a 32-28 halftime margin.

Simmons returned at the start of the second half and led a charge that put the Panthers ahead—if only briefly. He hit the first 11 Panther points, while the Rampants were getting only six, and that gave North Pitt at 39-38 advantage with 3:48 showing.

But Kilpatrick and House both hit, followed by five more by Kilpatrick, and with 2:06 left, Rose had run its lead back to 47-39. They increased the lead to 11, 52-41 just before the period ended at 52-43.

Simmons again led a charge that cut it back to 58-54 with 3:26 to go in the game, but another Rose surge over the next minute and a half ran it back to 11, 65-54, and the Rampants upped it to 69-54, their biggest lead, before one final Panther score.

Both teams shot well, Rose hitting 50.8 per cent and the Panthers, 44.8. Rebounds were nearly even, with Rose holding a 40-38 edge.

In addition to the scoring by Gorham and House, Kilpatrick added 12 for Rose. Simmons had 20 for North Pitt and was the lone scorer in double figures for the Panthers. In the girls' game, North Pitt grabbed the early lead and never trailed. The Pant-HERS ran out to a 14-5 lead in the first period and extended that margin to 27-12 by halftime.

Rose then made a comeback in the third period, trimming the lead to three points on several occasions. They had the chance to pull within one a couple of times, but never were able to hit. They trailed, 33-30 at the end of the third.

North Pitt pulled back out by eight, 42-34, midway through the final quarter, before Rose made one last effort. That pulled the Rampettes to within three, but once more the Pant-HERS pulled away, scoring five straight points.

Carolyn Best led the Pant-HERS with 17, while Jeanette Brown added 10. Rose was led by Sharon Williams with 17 and Donna Cullipher with 14.

"I'm very pleased with winning the first game," Pant-HER coach Gail Stanfield said. "We're still weak in some areas."

Referring to the Rose rally, she said that the team had third period problems last year also. "Rose switched its defense too, and that hurt us. But we finally adjusted and got ourselves together. We didn't do anything special, just stuck to our offense and defense."

For coach Dennis Gibson, his first game with the Rampettes saw mixed emotions. "We played very poorly in the first half, but we came back and played well in the second. We were stiff and timid at the start, probably due to our youth. We pressured them in the second half, and that caused them some troubles. But I think our depth hurt us. When we got tired, we had to go with inexperienced people.

"But we've got that first game under our belts now. We just need to go back to work and iron out our mistakes."

Rose's Friday game with Washington has been rescheduled for January 5. The Rampants travel to Kinston on Tuesday.

Nissalke Undaunted By Jazz's 2-19 NBA Record

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer
Fourteen consecutive losses and an overall record of 2-19 would discourage some people, but not Utah Jazz Coach Tom Nissalke.

"We've got a good team now," contended Nissalke Tuesday night after the Jazz dropped a 122-118 decision to the Los Angeles Lakers. "I'm pleased with our team now."

Utah has made wholesale roster changes since the franchise was moved from New Orleans to Salt Lake City over the summer. Nissalke and general manager Frank Layden feel they are gradually accumulating the players they want, even though the club's record is by far the worst in the National Basketball Association.

Perhaps Utah's best move was the trade of forwards that brought Adrian Dantley from Los Angeles in exchange for Spencer Haywood on Sept. 13. Dantley burned his ex-teammates for a career-high 50 points Tuesday night, the most by any player this season.

But it was not enough to provide a victory for the Jazz's largest home crowd of the season, 11,673. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar clinched the triumph for the Lakers with six free throws in the final 30 seconds.

Jamaal Wilkes led Los Angeles with 29 points, including 12 in the second period when the Lakers built a 91-83 lead. Abdul-Jabbar finished with 28.

Dantley, a muscular 6-foot-5 forward who won Rookie of the Year honors with Buffalo in 1977 but is now playing for his fourth pro team in as many seasons, made 21 of 27 field goal attempts.

"Nobody in the league can stop Dantley," said Nissalke. "He is one of the top three or four forwards in the NBA—without question."

"I've got to commend the Jazz and A.D. (Dantley) for that effort tonight," said Lakers Coach Paul Westhead, "but I would rather win the game."

Hawks 143, Spurs 120

Atlanta moved one game ahead of San Antonio in the Central Division race by beating the Spurs in San Antonio with a brilliant 87-point second half that Hawks Coach Hubie Brown described as "an explosion." The Hawks shot 77 percent in the third quarter and 74 percent in the final period, leaving San Antonio Coach Doug Moe frustrated and searching for words.

"They got everything they wanted," said Moe. "Whatever the worst word you can use for our defense, that's the word."

San Antonio led most of the way and was ahead 104-102 before the Hawks really turned it on, outscoring the Spurs 41-16 the rest of the way. Atlanta forward John Drew scored 12 consecutive points during one 90-second spurt in that stretch and finished with a season-high 40 for the game.

The Spurs, who got 39 points from George Gervin, played without veteran guard James Silas, who gained a son and lost his starting job Monday. Silas, demoted in favor of rookie Mike Evans, mystified team officials and fans when he inexplicably did not appear Tuesday night. He told reporters later that he missed the game to stay at the hospital with his wife, Hazel.

Nets x18, Bucks 93

Mike Newlin scored a season-high 35 points as the Nets stunned the Bucks in Milwaukee to snap a four-game losing streak. New Jersey led by 15 points at halftime and stretched that margin to 25 points during the third period.

Knicks 116, Pistons 114, OT

Ray Williams scored 26 points, including the first five of the overtime, as the Knicks overcame an 18-point first-half deficit to deal Detroit its ninth straight road loss.

Clippers 128, Bulls 103

Chicago suffered its 11th straight road loss as Lloyd Free scored 14 points in the first period to start San Diego on its way. The Clippers led by as many as 22 points in the first half and were never in trouble. Free finished with 32 points and Swen Nater had 16 rebounds.

Kings 117, Rockets 115

Phil Ford's off-balance jumper from 16 feet out with five seconds left gave Kansas City the victory over Houston. Ford had 25 points and teammate Scott Wedman scored 26, while Moses Malone had 29 and Rick Barry a season-high 20 for the Rockets.

Nuggets 96, Bullets 91

David Thompson led a balanced attack with 17 points as the Nuggets beat the Bullets in Landover, Md., dropping the defending Eastern Conference champions below the .500 mark at 9-10. George McGinnis contributed 12 points, 16 rebounds and 12 assists for the Nuggets and scored his 15,000th career point.

Winner To Be Named Monday Griffin To Sims: Second Heisman Toughest

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

The second one is the toughest, says Archie Griffin, referring to Billy Sims' bid for a duplicate Heisman Trophy.

"You don't think about it much the first time," adds the 5-foot-9, 193-pound ball-carrier out of Ohio State, the only player ever to be twice voted the best college football player in America. "You're just out there doing the best you can for the team."

"Once you've won it, you're a target. Also, you start pressing. It's natural. You don't like the thought of somebody taking it away — not while you're still playing."

"If Sims had asked me for any advice before this season, I would have told him to try to forget about the Heisman and just concentrate on his job."

Sims, the hard-running Oklahoma halfback who captured the Heisman a year ago after leading the nation with 1,762 yards rushing, is involved in close competition with Southern California's Charles White for the 1979 honor.

Voting completed, the winner will be announced next Monday by New York's Downtown Athletic Club. White is regarded as the favorite.

White, a 6-foot, 183-pound dervish, has run for 1,803 yards and 18 touchdowns this year compared with 1,506 yards and 22 touchdowns for the 205-pound Sims, who carried for 529 yards in his last two games. Records of the two men are quite similar, White scoring 296 points and Sims 300 for their regular-season careers.

Griffin, now with the Cincinnati Bengals, won the trophy in 1974 and 1975, amassing a career total of 5,589 yards and 26 touchdowns, both Ohio State records, while performing for Woody Hayes. He had 31 consecutive games in which he ran for 100 yards or more.

He was the fifth player since the award was inaugurated in 1935 to win in his junior year. The others were: Doc Blanchard, Army, 1945; Doak Walker, Southern Methodist, 1948; Vic Janowicz, Ohio State, 1950; and Roger Staubach, Navy, 1963. None repeated.

Griffin learned to his dismay that the Heisman is not an automatic "sesame" that opens the door to super stardom in the pros. A conscientious team man who brought the same skills he had in college to the Bengals, he has not — in the vernacular — set the world ablaze.

The gauge of a good running back is a 1,000-yard-plus season, preferably nearer 1,500. Griffin, despite his collegiate heroics, has never reached that plateau, collecting 625, 549 and 484 his first three seasons.

Archie said he has watched both White and Sims on TV and, if he were a selector, would be hard-pressed to make a choice.

"Sims is bigger," he added,

"a very powerful and deceptive runner. White gets the ball more. He has terrific moves."

Archie says one of his 25-pound Heisman trophies has been given to his mother, the other he keeps himself.

"Constant reminders," he added, "that God gave me something special. I am humbled. The trophies help me glorify God."

Ayden-Grifton Girls Win, 47-35

Roanoke Whips Chargers In Opening Game

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

ROBERSONVILLE—Playing a tight 1-2-2 defense the Roanoke Redskins held Ayden-Grifton scoreless the first five and a half minutes en route to an easy 63-44 win over the Chargers Tuesday night.

Earlier, in the girls' game, Ayden-Grifton whipped Roanoke, 46-35.

With all five starters scoring in the early minutes, the Redskins cruised to a 10-0 lead. From there, Roanoke continued to harass a young and inexperienced Charger team into numerous miscues and missed scoring opportunities to win its opening season basketball opener.

Anthony Latham led the Red-skin charge, scoring 14 points, followed by Glenn Cargile's 11. Donald Weathersbee, Carlton Moore, Bobby Knight and Grady Smith all had eight for the Redskins.

The Chargers were led by Chris Phillips and Clarence Baker, with 10 points each. John McCotter added nine for the visitors.

"We were a little tight early,"

Charger coach Bob Murphrey said. "We don't have a single starter back from last year's team and I think that hurt us."

"We had too many turnovers, especially early, and we missed a lot of easy shots."

To illustrate his point, Murphrey ran his finger across a shot chart affixed to his clipboard. "Look at this: we had seven or eight missed shots right in the lane in that opening quarter. When you get that close you hope you can at least make 50 percent of them."

Trailing 16 at the end of the first period, Murphrey's

Chargers briefly rallied. The Chargers, behind four points by Chris Phillips and two each by John McCotter, Tim Edwards and Harvey Bell, closed the gap to six, 20-14.

The Redskins, however, responded to the threat, reeling off six quick points to take a 26-16 halftime lead.

"Coming into the game, we thought we'd be able to handle them better on the boards than we did," Murphrey said. "They're a small team and we didn't do a very good job on the boards."

"I'm disappointed in that, and I'm also disappointed in our defense. We've got a lot of work to do in a lot of areas, but I guess that's why we've got early season (nonconference) games."

In the second half, the Redskins continued to force the Chargers into turnovers, pulling away to a 45-28 third quarter bulge.

In the final period, both teams began to substitute freely, but Roanoke continued to build its lead, which, at one point late in the period, reached 21.

In the women's game, Ayden-Grifton, led by Marie Lewis' 16 points and Aretha Cannon's 12, jumped out to a 10-point lead in the first period, 20-10, on its way to an opening season triumph.

The Chargers extended their lead to 13, 30-17, at the end of the half, before coasting home to win by 12, 47-35.

When asked afterwards whether she was surprised by the ease with which her team won, Charger coach Kathy Purvis said. "Yes and no. It seems practice has gone by too fast and I wasn't sure how we'd respond tonight. But I did feel like going into the game we were ready," Purvis said.

"We played them last year in the districts and so we had a pretty good idea what kind of team they had before we came in."

"I did think we might have a height problem but we managed to hold our own on the boards and I was pleased with that," she said.

"Overall, I was pleased with our outside shooting, but our defense needs some work."

Purvis praised Irene and Marie Lewis, Aretha and Sarah Cannon and Joan Albritton for their play against the Redskins, saying, "Overall, I was pleased with the way they played and with our outside shooting. But our defense—our press—needs work."

Conley Snaps Pam Pack Streak

WASHINGTON—D.H. Conley High School handed Washington High School a setback 56 games down the line. The Pam Pack went on from there to win two consecutive state 3-A titles. Last night, the Vikings snapped that 56-game winning streak, taking a 75-72 victory on the Pam Pack's home court.

The Valkyries also came away with a win, 44-43.

Conley slipped into a 15-13 lead in the first period, but couldn't shake the Washington club. At the half, Conley still held its two-point spread, 37-35.

In the third period, however, the Vikings managed to open a little breathing room. With a 13-9 edge, they built a 50-44 margin. Washington tried for a comeback in the final quarter, but was never able to close the gap.

Carnell Burney led the Conley scoring with 17, 15 of those coming at the foul line. Sammy Tucker added 16. James Boston and Willie Boyd each scored 22 for the Pam Pack.

In the girls' game, Washington eased ahead, 15-12, in the first period, and extended that to 31-23 at halftime. But the Valkyries fought back, holding the Pack to just two points in the third period, while scoring 11 of their own. That cut the lead away and gave Conley a 34-33 edge at the horn.

It stayed nip and tuck the rest of the way, with Cheryl Tyson stealing the ball for the final score with 32 seconds left. Washington twice missed on late shots.

Glenda Green led Conley with 21 points and 18 rebounds, while Cheryl Tyson added 10 points.

Williamston Wins Two Over Bullets

JAMESVILLE—Williamston High School opened its 1979-80 basketball season with a twin-killing of Jamesville last night. The Tigers clawed their way to a 43-36 win, while the Tigertettes downed the Lady Bullets, 58-41.

In the girls' game, Williamston shot out to an 18-8 lead in the first period of play. They continued to pad this, building their margin to 31-15 at the half.

The Tigertettes kept it up in the third period, moving into a 46-24 lead. Jamesville rallied against the reserves in the final period, 17-12, but too late.

Jan Rogerson led Williamston with 25 points, while Shelley Hardison had 12 to lead Jamesville.

In the boys' contest, the win came harder. Williamston inched ahead, 9-7 after one period, but couldn't gain any breathing room. Jamesville stayed close, trailing only 20-19 at intermission.

The Bullets took command in the third period, outscoring the Tigers by six to a 33-28 lead. But in the final frame, they got only three points while the Tigers pushed through 15 to win going away.

James Woolard led the winners with 15, while Edward Williams had 13. Trent Ange and Gerald Keys had 11 each for Jamesville, and Dan Cross added 10.

Beddingfield Rips Greene Central

SNOW HILL—Greene Central opened the 1979-80 basketball season last night in a split with Wilson Beddingfield High School.

The Bruins romped over the hosting Rams, 70-56, in the boys game, while the Greene Central girls nipped Beddingfield, 44-43, in their inaugural.

Beddingfield had some early problems with the Rams, who powered their way into an 18-16 lead in the first quarter. But the Bruins put things together in the second quarter, outscoring the Rams, 16-9, to take a 32-27 halftime lead.

Beddingfield kept it up in the third frame, pulling away to lead, 52-38, at the horn. Both teams pushed through 18 points in the last quarter.

Edward Farmer led the Bruins with 17, while Anthony Yelverton added 15. Cecil Streeter led the Rams with 15.

The Lady Rams pushed into a 14-9 lead in the first period, but saw the Bruins come back to tie it at the intermission, 24-24.

Greene Central managed to inch back out, 36-35, in the third period, and matched points with Beddingfield in the final period. It took a goal by Melody Ham with ten seconds left to insure the win, however.

Ham and Lisa Taylor each had 12 to pace the Rams, while Sharon Suggs had 10. Judy Barnes led the Bruins with 18.

Sutcliffe Named NL Rookie-Of-The-Year

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Rick Sutcliffe, a rock-solid starter on a troubled Los Angeles Dodgers pitching staff, was named today as the National League's Rookie of the Year for 1979.

Sutcliffe, who led the Dodgers staff in victories with 17 after starting spring training with little hope of making the team, was an easy winner over outfielders Jeff Leonard of Houston and Scot Thompson of Chicago.

The Baseball Writers Association of America handed Sutcliffe 20 out of a possible 24 votes while Leonard received three and Thompson one.

"I still don't believe I won it," said an incredulous but euphoric Sutcliffe, who had a 17-10 record and a 3.46 earned run average in the 242 innings he pitched. "I didn't think that pitchers had as good a chance as the everyday player because they don't get the exposure. I don't know who I impressed."

The writers, though, were obviously impressed with Sutcliffe's energetic performance after inauspicious beginnings.

"It didn't even look like I would make the club," Sutcliffe said. "The Dodgers had a lot of name pitchers down in spring training. But, fortunately for me, there were a lot of sore arms. I had to beat out Pete Broberg for the eighth spot on the staff."

Sutcliffe spent some time in the bullpen at the start of the year, then got his chance to shine when Burt Hooton was felled one day by the flu. That was May 3.

"I remember I pitched a complete game against Philadelphia," Sutcliffe said. "I didn't know I was starting until about an hour or two before the game."

Ironically, the 6-foot-7 rookie had run three miles that day, not knowing he would be in the starting lineup.

"Then I won the next few games and stayed in the starting rotation the rest of the season," Sutcliffe said. "Someone asked me late in the year if I ever thought I'd have that many victories and I said, sure, but in Triple A, not the majors."

Sutcliffe closed with a rush, winning nine of his last 11 decisions to help the Dodgers finish strong in the NL West race. Six of his 10 losses, by the way, were by one run.

Sutcliffe is the eighth Dodger to win the award — a major league record — since it was started by the BBWA in 1947. The others included: Jackie Robinson the first year; Don Newcombe in 1949; Joe Black in 1952; Jim Gilliam in 1953; Frank Howard in 1960; Jim LeFebvre in 1965 and Ted Sizemore in 1969.

"It's a crime we couldn't have won our division," Sutcliffe said. "I think we have the best talent in the league. But we all got down ourselves after the pitching fell apart. I think with the addition of Don Stanhouse and Dave Goltz, we'll be a lot tougher next year."

Leonard batted 290 with 47 RBI in 134 games for the Astros. Thompson played in 128 games for the Cubs, batting .289.

Swimming Progress Slower Than Scharf Anticipated

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina University's swimming teams take off into different parts of Pennsylvania this weekend, as the season swings into high gear before the holiday break.

The women's team will be participating in the Pittsburgh Relays, while the men will be at the Penn State Relays.

With one relay event and one dual meet behind the Pirates, Coach Ray Scharf isn't as happy as he hoped he would be at this point—at least with his men's team.

Scharf is more pleased. "We have more togetherness on the women's team, but then, they had nowhere to go but up. We have a great bunch of freshmen, led by Tammy Putnam. She's doing a great job of leading by example, along with a sophomore, Karen Davidson."

Scharf added that the girls have already reached national cutoffs for Division II AIAW competition on the national level in nine events.

Among the sprints in the freestyle, Cindy Sailer, senior record-holder, leads the women in the 50, with freshman Lauren Grimes showing improvement, having already broken the freshman record. Putnam is the tops in the 100, with Hanks and Sharon Burns close behind.

Hanks tops the middle distance sprinters, with Davidson, Putnam and Julie Malcolm adding depth.

In the distances, Davidson, with a time of 10:47 in the 1,000 already, has surpassed the national standard by nearly 45 seconds. Putnam and Malcolm are also strong here.

Putnam is also the leader in the backstroke, with Davidson, Paula Schaefer, Lucy Weckerling and Beth Balentine adding additional depth.

Malcolm and Putnam lead in the breaststroke, along with Ellen Bond. Beth Reen and Sailer are the top people for the women in the butterfly.

Putman is the leader in the individual medley, with Carol Shacklett slated for backup when she recovers from an appendectomy.

For the men, Bill Fehling leads in the freestyle sprints, having already posted a 21.5 in the 50. Mike Triau and Mark Medel are next.

Ted Nieman will be the leader in the 100 and 200, with Scott Ross, John Akright and John Bennett adding depth. Ross and Akright lead in the distance events. "We're not as strong in these events as we have been in the past," Scharf pointed out.

The backstroke has several who could do well for the Pirates. Doug Nieman is the leader, with Bjorn Johansen, David Evans, David Gilvine, Neil Ullman and John Richards all showing promise.

Hopkins, Matt McDonald and Joel Knubowitz are the top people in the breaststroke.

With Clowar out, the Pirates are not as strong in the butterfly or individual medley. Mark Lovette and Perry Newman add butterfly depth, while Doug Nieman and Mike Triau added IM depth.

In the diving, Scharf lists Connie Wages and Tom Bell. "Both are good divers and we are fortunate to have them."

Overall, Scharf feels he will have to wait until after the holidays to really assess this year's team. "I just hope we come around. We have all the prospects. We just have to arrive."

Gymnastic Classes Set

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department will offer a progressive gymnastics program for young men and ladies, grades one through college.

The program will be held at Elm Street Center on Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons. There will be a three-week class before Christmas for a fee of $15, and a continued class after Christmas for those interested.

An organizational meeting will be held on Friday at Elm Street Center at 4 p.m. Times and levels of gymnastics will be decided at this meeting.

The class will concentrate on acrobatics, tumbling routines and Nadia Comaneci floor exercise routines. They will also work on coordination, individual and group performance, self-confidence and strength. April Maxam will serve as instructor.

Further information can be obtained by calling 752-4137, extension 220, or 752-1994.

'Oak Tree' In Draw

Edwards, weighing in at 183, fought to a six-round draw with 170-pound Greg Paine of Florida.

Pioneers Fall To Albermarle

EVERETTS — Don Abernathy scored 24 points and Pete Smithson added 21 to lead Albermarle to an easy 66-29 victory over Martin Academy in the first basketball game of the year for both squads.

Earlier, in the girls' game, Albermarle nipped Martin Academy, 32-31.

In the men's contest, Albermarle jumped out to a 19-4 first quarter lead and increased that to 33-14 at the half.

The Pioneers continued to be plagued by poor shooting in the second half, falling behind 47-20. In the final period, Albermarle coasted in, winning 66-29.

The Pioneers were led in scoring by Allen Warren, who tallied 13 points. Jerry Brannon and Richard Wilson added eight for the home team.

In the women's game, the Pioneers failed to score in the opening period, falling behind 8-0, before rebounding in the second period to narrow the gap to 14-13.

The second half saw both teams trade baskets as each squad scored 10 points in the third and eight in the fourth quarter.

Albermarle was led in scoring by Kitty Cartwright's 16 points. Beth Perry topped the home team with 14.

REX GOT THE WORD

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Head football coach Rex Dockery of Texas Tech laughs when he recalls his debut as a coach in September of 1978. His team journeyed to Los Angeles to play Southern California and checked into the L.A. Coliseum for a workout the day before the game.

"We weren't supposed to be too good and everyone knows about the great tradition of the Trojans," Dockery said. "There was an elderly guard stationed at the ramp which led to the field and our players went by him with the coaches bringing up the rear. As we passed him, he shrugged and muttered: 'Is that all you've got?'"

Southern Cal won the game the next day, 17-0.

Some of the bright spots would include the performances of Kelly Hopkins in the breaststroke, while Doug Nieman, Scott Ross, and John Bennett. "We have some good freshmen, but they've got to come along for us. It's just taken longer than I expected."

Turning to the women's team,

Astrologer Had Delaware Help

By GWEN FLORIO
Associated Press Writer
DOVER, Del. (AP) — In the heart of Dover's historic district, where prominent lawyers and stockbrokers work in renovated 18th-century homes, the area's first astrologer has hung out her shingle.

But Roberta Jensen says she couldn't have started her Astro Guidance service without help from the state of Delaware.

Ms. Jensen, 32, who is legally blind and restricted to crutches because of rheumatoid arthritis, received funds from the state Division for the Visually Impaired to help her pay for astrology books and training.

"There were some eyebrows raised" when Ms. Jensen applied for the funds to help set up her astrological counseling service, admitted James Burcham, administrator of vocational rehabilitation services for the division.

"It caused ripples that were felt all the way through the division, down to the person who read the purchase orders. The usual reaction was, 'You're doing WHAT?'" he recalled with a chuckle.

"The justification for her financial aid was the same as for everyone who receives aid — it's an occupation at which someone could make a living," he said.

Ms. Jensen, who started her business only recently, said that most of her customers so far were coming out of curiosity.

"Many times, though, we will discuss problems they have and sometimes I can help them with those problems. Let's face it, it's a rare bird who doesn't have any problems," she said.

Her customers are asked to supply her with the date, place and hour of birth. This and other background information is given in a preliminary meeting. The customer is asked to come back about two weeks later, by which time Ms. Jensen will have prepared an astrological chart showing a personality profile, skills, aptitudes, outlook for marriage and other aspects of a person's life.

"I can't predict the future — I'm not a fortune teller — but I can help a person see trends," she said. "The understanding of this seems to help people a lot. Most people are interested in understanding themselves better."

"Astrology is a tool, like psychology," she added. "I don't know why many people choose to see me instead of a counselor. Some of the types of problems are the same. I'm very interested in trying to help people."

Because she is not classified as a fortune teller, no special license was required by the state before she could go into business. Nor does Delaware require that an astrologer have any special credentials, she said.

Plaster is often being replaced with lightweight, high-strength glass fiber casts — recently cited by the American Hospital Association as being among today's top 10 advances in hospital care.

Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp., a supplier of the glass fiber filament for the casts, says the material is two to three times stronger and one-half to one-third the weight of plaster, allowing greater comfort and mobility.

Hospitals Use Lighter Casts

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Some orthopedic patients are finding the weight being lifted from their shoulders, arms, legs, or any other area that is set in a cast.

REFUGEES IN TAIWAN
TAOYUAN, Taiwan (AP) — A group of 154 Vietnamese refugees, including 39 children and some ethnic Chinese, have arrived in Taiwan aboard a China Airlines plane for temporary resettlement.

Unexpected Events Can Stretch Budgets Too Fa

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

First it was the new house. "Everything seemed to be going up and we got caught into that."

A sister in college lost a scholarship. "So we picked up those expenses."

A death left another family member in trouble. "And we ended up helping him."

All in all, recalls Susan, "We just stretched our income too far."

Susan and her husband Jeffrey don't want their real names used, but they are real people. They live in a relatively small Midwestern town and have two children. Both of them work in white collar jobs.

Together, they earn more than $45,000 a year. Together, they owe almost $45,000 in installment debt.

"We weren't actually being dunned, but we were getting all these letters in the mail all the time," Susan said. She read a newspaper article about non-profit credit counseling centers and decided to ask for help. "It was almost exactly a year ago, just before Christmas," she said.

Today, Susan and Jeffrey are on the road to recovery. It will take them more than three years. Each month, they set aside $800 and give it to a counselor who divides it among the couple's creditors. "Over a dozen of them," said Susan.

How do two people with an income that is more than twice the national median get into that kind of trouble? Did Susan and Jeffrey just throw the money away?

Credit experts say Susan and Jeffrey are not unusual. The more money you have, they say, the more temptations there are to spend.

Robert Gibson, director of the National Foundation for Consumer Credit said that in a strange sense the poor are less likely to run into credit problems.

"Many of the poor have been denied access to the credit markets," Gibson said. "In terms of credit cards and bank loans and things of that nature, the middle and upper-middle income people have had greater access to the market and have used it to a greater extent and therefore, potentially, face more problems."

Susan and Jeffrey are victims of success. They both come from large families. They turned down for credit. "People will assume that because you're doing what you're doing, you've got a good job, you should be able to handle it," said Susan.

The new budget leaves the family with "enough to get by," she said. They have managed to keep up the payments on the mortgage, but there are no curtains on the living room windows. New furniture will have to wait.

She and her husband have changed their spending habits, and can anticipate what to expect and what we can do dicting on what's coming up

Then came the lost scholarship. Another sister got into trouble with drugs and Susan and Jeffrey took on new loans to help pay the cost. Susan's mother died and her father couldn't support the six children left at home. "I don't want it to sound like I'm using other people as excuses," Susan said, but "we ended up supporting two or three families."

Creditors included "retailers and banks, the finance companies, the whole bit," said Jeffrey. "You'd run and do this, that and the other. We didn't stop to think about which way we should go."

Susan and Jeffrey never got

A two-time North Carolina Press Association winner and three-time North Carolina Press Women award winner, Carol is always on the lookout for a good story. Since 1966, her candid writing has earned such a fine reputation among Greenville and Pitt County citizens that she is often approached with more story ideas than she can do justice to at any one time. But she usually finds a way and the readers get an interesting story every time.

Feature stories may be Carol's forte, but her coverage of Farmville news surely proves her to be a reliable and competent newspaperwoman. Her investigations into consumer complaints, ripoffs and other problems brought to her attention through the HOTLINE column often bring results for the reader that they were unable to achieve alone.

In the five years Carol has been working with HOTLINE, she has obtained refunds for inferior or non-existent products, appealed for clothes and household items for families who lost all they had in a fire, brought about energy-saving measures for the elderly and those on fixed incomes who would otherwise suffer greatly with the rising cost of heating their homes.

The list goes on and on, one problem solved after another. That's what THE DAILY REFLECTOR is for — to keep you informed on the things that matter the most to you right here at home.

Now that you've met Carol, why not make it a point to read her articles that appear regularly in THE DAILY REFLECTOR. Along with all the news, sports, advertised specials and other features that have been a part of your local newspaper for almost a century.

Twins Together In AF Careers

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — At MacDill Air Force Base two men who flew side-by-side as World War II combat pilots discharge their duties today still side-by-side in adjoining offices. They are Lt. Gen. Charles C. "Buck" Patillo and Maj. Gen. Cuthbert A. "Bill" Patillo — 55-year-old twin brothers. Buck Patillo is vice director of the Air Force's Joint Deployment Agency, which is responsible for military transportation and troop management around the world. Bill Patillo is deputy commander of the Air Force's Readiness Command, which has responsibility for 225,000 men. At age 18, outside Atlanta where they grew up, the Patillo brothers enlisted in the Army Air Corps. "I wanted to fly airplanes ... Hell, I wanted to be a military guy," says Buck. "Me too," adds Bill, as they relax on base. The government put them through flying school together, first at Lodwick School of Flying in Lakeland, then more training in Miami, Marianna and Punta Gorda, all in Florida. "It was a concentrated thing," Bill says. "But we wanted to be doing it," adds Buck. From an Air Corps replacement depot in Tallahassee they were assigned to the 352nd Fighter Group outside London. That led to their first separation. The brothers, then first lieutenants, were flying P-51 Mustangs, escorting heavy bombers on missions to Munich, Dresden, Berlin, strafing the German lines at the Battle of the Bulge in 1944. Bill took a hit. His plane caught fire and he had to ditch in a field inside enemy lines. He was taken prisoner and marched to a POW camp near Freising, Germany, where there were French, Russian, British and American prisoners. "One morning I looked out this window and there was one of General Patton's great, big, old tanks staring down on us. They'd been shelling the camp for days, and now they were there," Bill says. "The Germans were scared to death of the Russians, so they came to me and said they wanted to surrender to me. I accepted the surrender and

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C. — Wednesday, November 28, 1979 — 23 went out to where those tanks were with a white flag." Buck, meanwhile, had known his brother's plane was shot down. He was strafing the airfield when he heard the report over the radio. But he didn't know what had happened to Bill for six weeks. "I had been waiting all this time, not knowing where my brother was ... I had been expecting the worst." One day an MP approached him on base and said "Hey, did you hear about your brother...? He's over at the officer's club. "I went over and we had a reunion — a wet one." The Patillos were shipped home in December 1945 and flew with the Georgia National Guard until they re-enlisted in 1948 and went back to Europe. By this time, the Air Corps had been reorganized into the U.S. Air Force.

FDA 'Recall' Came At The Worst Possible Time

By WILLIAM KRONHOLM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Cooks in thousands of Thanksgiving Day kitchens shuddered. The radio was saying, over and over again, that the government was recalling cans of pumpkin pie filling as potentially hazardous.

But to Frank Patane, manager of the company that canned the filling, the announcement was "dirty business" by a bungling federal agency. "When they break you up and then come back and stomp on you, that's going too far," he complains.

Patane is manager of Sterling Cooperative Inc. These days, he sits in his Sterling, N.Y., office answering phone calls — from food buyers and distributors, newspapers and broadcast stations.

Patane explains to all that the recall actually was conducted in late summer and that it involved pie filling distributed more than a year ago, before October 1978.

Through a string of apparent coincidences, the Food and Drug Administration announced the recall at the one time of year, almost to the minute, when it would be guaranteed intense national publicity, whether or not the public was in reality endangered.

And, both the FDA and Sterling agree, it really was not.

The pumpkin tale began in August, when company auditors discovered that a batch of Sterling pumpkin pie filling had been underprocessed, leaving the possibility of bacterial contamination.

The filling had been distributed between Oct. 14, 1977, and Oct. 26, 1978. Although cans of the product had been on the shelves for as much as 22 months, no illnesses had been attributed to it. Patane said local health authorities told him the act of baking the pie would destroy any harmful bacteria.

Nevertheless, on Aug. 28, Thanksgiving, Sterling sent letters to its customers telling them to pull any remaining pie filling from their shelves. Copies of the letters were routinely sent to the FDA in Washington.

While Sterling was conducting its recall, the FDA was sending letters back and forth to its Buffalo district office, which has jurisdiction over Sterling. Over the next two months, the FDA determined that the recall was, indeed, a recall and assigned it a classification and a number.

By Nov. 1, its paperwork virtually complete, the FDA drafted a notice announcing the recall and sent it by intra-department mail for publication in the weekly FDA enforcement bulletin.

Unfortunately, the FDA says, the notice did not reach the bulletin office until Nov. 15. Once there, it was routinely scheduled for publication in the next issue — Nov. 21, the day before Thanksgiving. "If they'd only announced it a week earlier, there would have been explanation and everything," means Patane.

But announcing the recall of a traditional Thanksgiving food the day before Thanksgiving was a red alert for reporters.

All Wednesday night and all day Thanksgiving, every hour on the hour, radio stations in the areas where Sterling distributes its products announced the recall and gave the brand names Sterling uses.

The reports were well-intended, but the brief news reports did not always say the pie filling had been distributed as much as two years earlier or that the recall had been conducted three months earlier.

In fact, said FDA spokesman Wayne Pines, publication of the recall in the enforcement bulletin should not have created such a furor. Publication amounts to recording the recall rather than enforcing it.

"In this country, there are over 1,000 recalls each year in areas regulated by the FDA," Pines said. "Most of them do not involve a direct hazard, but a technical violation of food and drug law" such as a labeling violation or a short weight. Pines said the FDA published the notice simply as a matter of routine. There was little public hazard and no press release was issued on it, he said, because "we do not seek publicity for recalls like that. We try to avoid crying wolf on product recalls."

For Patane, however, the FDA is clearly the villain because of its poor sense of timing.

"I'm really thoroughly discouraged by this," he said. "It's terrible on the people here."

Hospital Has Interpreters

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — At Thomas Jefferson University Hospital here, an interpreter service under the direction of the department of patient and volunteer services is helping patients who cannot speak English communicate.

There are 80 Jefferson employees and volunteers who can be called on, often on short notice, to interpret languages ranging from African to Vietnamese and even American sign language.

HUNTING 'ILLEGALS'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Immigration authorities are expected to be ordered soon to concentrate on workplaces in tracking down people in this country illegally, Justice Department sources say.

Other canned goods are also being returned to the factory as unsalable. Patane says he cannot guess how much the recall will hurt sales of other Sterling products.

"I can't give you too many answers there," he said. "They're calling back and saying they're returning two truckloads here, four truckloads there..." Marketing Institute, a division of the National Association of Realtors. The grant to Wardrep was one of five such grants to colleges and universities across the U.S.

Objective of the project is to test the effectiveness of various advertising media on the key market segments of a residential realty firm, Wardrep said.

These key groups include home buyers (local and out-of-town), home sellers (local moves and out-of-town moves), and sales associates. In addition to the results of the study regarding effective advertising, the Wardrep project is expected to produce a workable method for testing a real estate firm's ability to reach its markets.

Wardrep formally accepted the grant at the recent meeting of the National Association of Realtors in New Orleans. He also spoke on "Image Study of Your Own Realty Firm" at the convention.

Wins Grant By Realtors

A grant of $5,300 has been awarded Bruce Wardrep of the East Carolina University School of Business faculty for a study of real estate advertising.

Wardrep's project, "Media Effectiveness of Real Estate Advertising," received funding from the Realtors National

North Carolina Awards To 5

RALEIGH — Five North Carolinians are the recipients of North Carolina Awards, the state's highest honor given each year in recognition of outstanding achievement in the fields of public service, literature, science and the fine arts.

At the 16th annual awards banquet held in Raleigh Tuesday night, Governor James B. Hunt, Jr. presented awards to two persons in public service, and one each to an individual in the three other fields.

The 1979 recipients of the North Carolina Awards are:

— Public Service — Archie K. Davis of Winston-Salem and John D. deButts, Greensboro native.

— Literature — Harry Golden of Charlotte.

— Science — Dr. Walter Gordy, Duke University, Durham, and — Fine Arts — Sam Ragan, Southern Pines.

Davis was cited for contributions on a national as well as state level. Of particular significance has been his role as president of the Research Triangle Foundation and his influence toward bringing the National Humanities Center there. Davis has also served as president both of the Chamber of Commerce of the U.S., and the American Bankers Association.

deButts, a Greensboro native who now lives outside the state, received an award for his professional, philanthropic and community service contributions. "Business Week" recently said he is "a corporate strategist with few peers," and that he "implemented changes that few other men would have dared."

His volunteer efforts have included work with the United Fund, the National Conference of Christians and Jews, the Boy Scouts of America, and the Business Committee for the Arts.

Charlotte's journalist, essayist and humorist Harry Golden left North Carolina in 1940, and in North Carolina he first worked on the Charlotte "Observer" before founding "Carolina Israelite," a monthly journal of personal opinion. His first book, "Only in America," brought him national attention. The literature award recognizes the "insight, compassion and courage that has appeared in all his writing."

Dr. Gordy, winner of the North Carolina Award in Science, founded the Microwave Research Laboratory at Duke University. He is the James B. Duke Professor of Physics, and his work has insured that North Carolina's institutions remain in the top rank of scientific research centers. The Microwave Laboratory has become a major center internationally for work in spectroscopy.

operates Weymouth Center for the Arts and Humanities in Southern Pines.

Sam Ragan, this year's winner for the fine arts category, was the first Secretary of the North Carolina Department of Cultural Resources (then the Department of Art, Culture and History). Now editor of "The Pilot" newspaper in Southern Pines, he was previously managing editor and executive editor of the "News and Observer." Ragan has written two books of poetry and three non-fiction books, and now serves on the N. C. Arts Council and as president of Friends of Weymouth, which operates Weymouth Center for the Arts and Humanities in Southern Pines.

Ingram Will File Appeal

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — An appeal will be filed challenging a recent N.C. Court of Appeals ruling allowing a 9.1 percent increase in homeowners' insurance rates, Insurance Commissioner John Ingram said Tuesday.

The appeals court ruled in favor of the insurance companies even though homeowners' loss claims hadn't been audited in North Carolina, he said.

By law, the N.C. Supreme Court must hear the appeal because the lower court's ruling last week wasn't unanimous.

"This ruling is opposite to an earlier Court of Appeals decision which held that the insurance commissioner could require audited data," Ingram said at a news conference.

"In the past, my staff proved the multi-million dollar errors in un-audited data resulted in excessive charges (to consumers)," he claimed.

The increase in homeowners' insurance rates went into effect in 1978 over Ingram's objections.

The industry has been collecting the increase and holding the money in escrow accounts, subject to refund, pending the outcome of the appeal.

The appeals court found that not enough evidence was submitted to back up Ingram's contention that the data submitted with the increase request weren't reliable because they hadn't been audited.

Ingram also lashed out again at the Legislature for stripping him of much of his power to block rate increases.

Different Roles Seen By College Presidents' Wives

By GAY CAMPBELL
Written for UPI

Nadine Skotheim sees herself as one part of a two-person career and that's the way she likes it. Ellen Jagow says she "sees red" when she hears women in her position say they are totally immersed in their husbands' work.

Both are college presidents' wives, a tradition-based role that is changing faster than the women's movement itself.

Mrs. Skotheim, whose husband Robert is president of Whitman College, Walla Walla, Wash., devotes most of her time to entertaining, travel, and other support of her husband's career. She had something scheduled every day from the end of August through November 10.

"For me, it's as fulfilling and demanding as a formal career outside the home," she says. "Although I would in no way advocate it for every president's wife, I feel fortunate that I am in an institution which accommodates itself so well to my own needs and abilities."

Mrs. Jagow, whose husband Elmer is president of Hiram College, Hiram, Ohio, is a professional artist who schedules one major show a year.

"There's no way you can give yourself totally to another person's career and maintain your own personal self esteem," she says. "Women who do that end up angry and resentful in a year or two."

Rose Sharp, whose husband Paul has been president at two private and two state schools and recently retired as president of the University of Oklahoma, has followed the traditional role of supporting her husband's career.

"I've had a good time and can't think of a more exciting role," she says. "And his position has opened doors for me that would not ordinarily be open."

Isabel Coll-Pardo, program associate for the American Council on Education in Washington, D.C., plans leadership seminars which include sessions for new college president's wives.

"One thing we include in our sessions is things wives are doing for themselves," she says. "We point out some options to some demands of the job."

She sees more wives each session who want careers of their own and many who already have them. Some president's wives, such as Cecily Bok of Harvard, are active scholars and writers in their own right. Many have tenure in teaching or other careers which causes conflicts when their husbands change jobs.

"Most college presidents stay one place only five to seven years," says Mrs. Coll-Pardo. She says spouses are included in more than half of the interviews for college presidents.

"That's the time when the wife has the most leverage," she says. "I tell them to find out what the board of trustees expects of them and to let the trustees know what they intend to do."

Mrs. Sharp says she knows of one president of a college in the East who was told he could have his position only if his wife served an integral role in the job.

Mrs. Jagow was included in her husband's interview at Hiram 14 years ago.

"I told them I painted two days a week," she says, "and they thought that was fine. Later I started using an arc acetylene torch for metal sculpture. I wonder if they would have reacted so positively at that time to such a traditionally masculine pursuit."

Now that some women are being named to college presidencies, Coll-Pardo sees an occasional husband in the training sessions.

"But the trustees don't really expect them to do anything," she says. "Some of the women are openly urging a salary in return for performing traditional duties."

"There is a good deal of debate on this point," says Mrs. Skotheim. "In a discussion with a group of presidents' wives at a national meeting recently, I found that most I talked with were reluctant to formalize the job description by attaching a salary to it."

The opportunities for travel are named as one reward of the job and most of the women travel extensively with their husbands, often at college expense.

"One year my husband went around the world to visit university programs," says Mrs. Sharp. "For that particular trip I had a grant from private foundation to study the changing lives of women in those countries. His position helped me do a better job of that."

Many of them express concern about their futures if they should suddenly become widowed or divorced.

"A woman who devotes her whole career to her husband can be pretty bitter if he suddenly dumps her," Mrs. Coll-Pardo says. But she feels presidents' wives are highly qualified for public relations or fund raising positions.

An example of this is Katharine Sheehan, widow of former Whitman College President Donald Sheehan. Mrs. Sheehan is now assistant director of development at Smith College. She finished college after her husband's death.

"I sometimes wonder if I might wish I had had a salary when social security time comes," says Mrs. Skotheim. All of the women say their role and happiness depends to a large extent on their relationships with their husbands.

Mrs. Jagow says that living with a college president isn't easy.

"Everyone tells me all day how great he is, so his self-esteem is really built up. The woman has to feel good about herself and what she is doing if she is going to like herself and help him keep his perspective on his role."

Mrs. Skotheim says, "I think this whole thing has to do more with the marriage than cultural trends. If you're married to someone you like, you try to help them out. The problems arise with the women who feel there is a pressure to do things they really don't want to do. When they go ahead and do them anyhow they feel torn, just as any woman does when she is doing things she doesn't want to do."

Football Death Count Is Down

CHICAGO (UPI) — During the last 20 years there has been a decrease in fatalities from playing football but an increase in serious brain injuries, according to a report by Dr. Joseph S. Torg in a recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

A study by the National Football Head and Neck Injury Registry listed 1,129 serious football injuries from 1971 through 1978, mostly among high school and college players. Of these 550 were broken necks, of which 176 resulted in permanent paralysis from the neck down, said Dr. Torg of the University of Pennsylvania Sports Medicine Center which handled the tabulation.

Host Of TV Specials For Yule Season

By JOAN HANAUER
UPI Television Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Christmas season will be celebrated on television by a range of characters from The Little Rascals to Henry Winkler, from the Grand Ole Opry crew to Maureen Stapleton. The cartoon favorites of the past will be there — Rudolph and Frosty, the Raggedies and Charlie Brown, Bugs Bunny and, new this year, the Berenstain Bears. There then are the signature specials — Christmas with celebrities, mostly musical, including Perry Como, Bob Hope, Dean Martin, Johnny Cash, Pat Boone, John Denver and the Muppets, Donnie and Marie, Mac Davis — even superdog Benji. For sentiment, there still will be "White Christmas" — in a show titled "Bing Crosby's Christmas...Like the Ones We Used to Know."

Properly heartwarming seasonal dramas will include "The Gathering II," "The Gift," and "Christmas Lilies of the Field," among others.

There's even a Biblical drama — "Mary and Joseph: A Story of Faith."

The Christmas season began early this year, on the first Sunday after Thanksgiving, when CBS presented a rebroadcast of the animated "A Christmas Carol" and ABC offered a new cartoon, "Rudolph and Frosty's Christmas in July."

Here's a rundown on December highlights (all times EST): Dec. 2: ABC reruns "Santa Claus Is Coming To Town," 8-9 p.m.

Dec. 3: NBC comes through with two new shows. "The Berenstain Bears Christmas Tree" goes on 8-8:30 p.m. Then, gulp, sob, sniff of nostalgia, there's the animated "Little Rascals Christmas Special," bringing back Alfalfa, Spanky, Darla, Stymie, Porky, and Pete the Pup in a story about love and a Christmas misunderstanding. That's on from 8:30-9 p.m.

Dec. 5: "John Denver and the Muppets Christmas" goes on ABC, 8-9 p.m.

Dec. 6: Larry Linville (formerly Maj. Frank Burns on "M-A-S-H"), is the villain of NBC's "A Christmas for Boomer," but the show undoubtedly will be stolen by a mutt named Boomer in love with a poodle named Celeste — to air 8-9 p.m. The network follows with "Bing Crosby's Christmas," showing excerpts from the late crooner's past holiday shows. Competing on CBS from 9-10 will be "Johnny Cash Christmas," with guests including Andy Kaufman and Anne Murray.

New 'Maverick' Lacks Old Aura

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Something called "The Young Maverick" makes a quick appearance on CBS' schedule tonight, hoping to work the memory of the classy "Maverick" series for some easy ratings points.

A clumsy con, this unworthy of the name Maverick (which, you'll remember, is synonymous with guile and wit and cleverness in the old West). Bret Maverick would have sooner drawn to an inside straight than to bet on this longshot.

This scam has a built-in foil. The idea is to lure viewers with the name "Maverick" and then hope that they don't compare what they're seeing with the lustrous memories that urged them to watch. This can't work, of course, especially since the CBS promos scream out, "Maverick's Back."

Viewers looking for "Maverick" will be disappointed. Depressed, even. But probably not surprised.

The original 1957-1962 "Maverick," which starred James Garner, Jack Kelly and (occasionally) Roger Moore, featured bright charmers named Maverick who were everything that other Western heroes weren't: They were witty, disinclined to violence and rather cowardly, and they didn't much care for riding horseback.

The "Young Maverick" at hand, Ben Maverick (Charles Frank), also displays those characteristics, which is easy enough because such things can be written into the script.

Ben Maverick is the son of Beauregard (Moore's old part) and cousin to Brothers Bret and Bart (Garner and Kelly). He has inherited, CBS' promotions tell us, the Maverick "good looks and charm, great skill with cards and a healthy respect for cowardice."

Unfortunately, he has not inherited Roy Huggins, who made the original "Maverick" with a special touch, or the exquisite charm of James Garner's Bret — things that can't be written into the script.

Tonight's premiere episode, written by David Peckinpah (son of director Sam Peckinpah), is about Ben's efforts to pay back a gambling debt (and thereby remain physically intact) by out-conning a couple of cons, an old Maverick theme.

There isn't much hope for the chance that after awhile, "Young Maverick" will quit trying to imitate the original and will develop its own style. It's been reported that CBS will make its decision on the show based on the performance of tonight's episode, which suggests a cloudy future for young Ben Maverick.

By the way, Cousin Bret does make an appearance of sorts in tonight's debut. It's a 60-second bit featuring James Garner that was tacked on at the front of the show after the episode was already shot (yet another foolish invitation to compare it to the original).

Cousin Bret doesn't stick around to get involved in the story. He's got his reputation to consider.

The bidding:
 South West North East
 1♣ Pass 1♦ Pass
 2NT Pass 3NT Pass

 Opening lead: Queen of ♣.

To make his ninth trick at a contract of three no trump, South was faced with two 50 percent possibilities — leading a spade to the king or taking the heart finesse. Which would you have chosen?

The bidding was straightforward. South's two no trump rebid showed 19-20 points, and North's five-card suit was good enough to induce him to go on to game.

West led the queen of clubs, and declarer could count eight tricks. There were two equal chances to bring in the ninth. Declarer made his contract by ignoring both of them in favor of a virtual sure-trick line.

Declarer's initial move was to allow West to hold the first trick. West continued with the jack of clubs and declarer won the king. He was delighted that East followed to this trick.

Now declarer cashed five rounds of diamonds, discarding two spades and a heart from his hand. It made no difference what the defenders discarded. Declarer returned to his hand with a club, and when East showed out on the third club, the contract became ironclad.

Declarer simply exited with his last club and West found that he was well and truly end played. Whether he returned a spade or a heart, he would have to give declarer his ninth trick.

Naturally, we expect that our readers found this line. What is this we hear? You would have played the hand in this manner had we not asked you which of the two other possibilities you would have selected?

Gas-Saving For Drivers

In light of President Carter's order of an embargo against further Iranian oil imports, the Greenville Energy Program reminded citizens that saving gasoline is an important conservation measure.

The GEP noted that smaller, more fuel-efficient cars are growing in popularity; however, the single most important element in determining the fuel economy of any size car is the driving technique of the person behind the wheel.

A careful driver should get at least 30 percent better mileage than the average driver and 50 percent better mileage than a poor one, it was asserted.

The local energy program offered several suggestions for good driving habits: plan trips so that all business and shopping can be done without going back over the same route; when possible, carpool, bicycle, walk or take the bus; drive at steady speeds; keep vehicles in peak operating conditions; and drive at moderate speeds.

$43.1 Billion In Health Benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Private health insuring organizations paid $43.1 billion in benefits in 1977, according to the Health Insurance Institute.

The institute said the 1977 total "was a 10.6 percent increase over 1976 and nearly four times the amount paid 10 years earlier."

The increase was attributed as being mainly due to the rising cost of medical care, expansion of benefits and higher utilization.

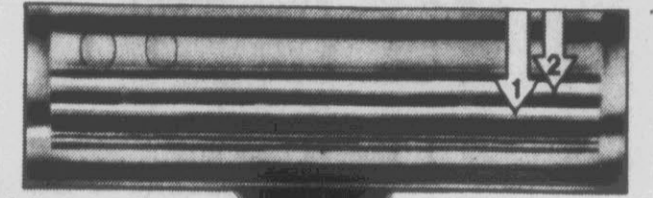

Ponder Other Energy Sources

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Latin America can supply 11 percent of its energy needs by 1995 through the development of non-conventional sources of energy, according to a report by the Bariloche Foundation of Argentina.

The study, funded by the U.N. Development Program, indicates these non-conventional sources — solar power, wind, plant and animal wastes, geothermal, waste heat and alcohol — account for only 0.8 percent of Latin America's energy production.

It says solar power has the greatest potential. Over 74 percent of Latin America's population lives in the three areas best suited for solar energy: Mexico, the Caribbean and Brazil.

Opera Star Just Loves The Blues

By CONNIE GRZELKA
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — If singer Mignon Dunn could record a fantasy album, she says she'd like to belt out the blues on one side and sing operatic arias on the other.

The mezzo-soprano, who has been associated with the Metropolitan Opera for 20 years, says in a Southern drawl, "I just love the blues."

MIGNON DUNN

Miss Dunn, a Memphis native who was brought up on "an honest-to-God cotton plantation with four pillars," says her accent often perpetuates her image as "an operatic Loretta Lynn."

When she's not performing in New York or on international stages during the season, Arkansas is her home and she's a firm booster of the region — "the South isn't all quilts and country music."

The singer was in Detroit recently with her husband, conductor Kurt Klippstatter, to open a new production of Tchaikovsky's "Joan of Arc" with the Michigan Opera Theater.

Long praised for her dramatic as well as her vocal skills, Miss Dunn described her role here as "the dream part of every mezzo-soprano."

Miss Dunn says the repertoire contains starring roles mainly for sopranos and much fewer for the mezzo voice. Besides having the title role, Miss Dunn also had the opportunity to portray a character on the heavenly side:

"Not many of the roles I get to do are angelic. It's mostly wicked women, the other woman or the woman who causes the trouble."

Possessing a strong acting ability can make a performance powerful and concentrated on stage, but it can also blur the role, Miss Dunn says.

"It's important to keep watch over yourself because if you get too involved, the voice can go in 14 different directions. It's important that your audience feels it more than you do. Otherwise, you're shortchanging the music and the audience, and that makes it an ego trip. An actor or actress can't do this and a singer can't either."

She started singing at age 5 and performed for the Lions, Rotary Club and other community groups. After her mother took her to see the Verdi opera "Aida" when she was 10, "I thought that must be the best thing in the world."

"It's fortunate that I grew a voice because that's what I really wanted to do."

Although the Met was only two steps away from her first big role as Carmen with the Experimental Opera Theater of New Orleans, and one step away from early engagements with the New York City Opera, Miss Dunn flunked her first voice competition at the age of 9.

"It was 'Shortnin' Bread,' and I acted it out. Everybody else was standing around quiet with their hands folded. Still, I thought it was a great piece."

Multi-Use New Cooking Ware
 NEW YORK CITY (UPI) — A new, multipurpose microwave cooking utensil is a roasting dish with clear cover. The oblong base with integral rack has a drainage channel for fat and juices. The base reverses to a 10½-by-9 flat cooking surface that can be used for baking breads and pastries, canapes, fish, meat dishes and apples, among other things. The platter can be bought alone or with the 8¼ inch high dome, which is vented to release steam and accommodate a temperature probe.

Hunkerdown Is A Forum Of Farmers

By STRAT DOUTHAT
Associated Press Writer
PICKAWAY, W.Va. (AP) —
In the evenings, when their day's work is done and the supper dishes have been put away, James Beckett's neighbors start gravitating toward his farm.

If it's a warm evening, they congregate outside Beckett's garage. If the weather's chilly, as it is this time of year, they go inside the garage and hunker down beside the wood-burning stove.

On a recent evening, nearly 20 of Beckett's friends and neighbors were crowded inside his garage.

"This goes on year 'round," he said, taking a sip of cider as he surveyed the laughing, talking men and women crowding the garage. "Some nights there's a crowd and some nights there's not more than two or three people here. But somebody's here every night."

The folks of Pickaway have come to call these nightly get-togethers "hunkerdown."

"We've been gathering here and talking about whatever's on our minds for years now," said Beckett, a friendly, slender gray-haired man of 62. "We talk about the crops and the weather and the cattle market. Sometimes we talk about hunting and fishing. The fish get bigger with each telling, of course."

Beckett's wife, Maxine, sat next to her husband. Later, she left the garage and returned, carrying two trays of steaming popcorn.

The word "community" constantly pops up in conversations when residents of this Monroe County village discuss their lives.

"Everybody helps everybody else around here," said one of the young farmers in the Beckett garage. "We trade labor. If somebody's cattle gets loose, everybody comes to help. Nobody charges anybody. We just sort of keep track of it in our heads and it works out."

Beckett, who raises hay and Black Angus steers on his family's 318-acre spread, echoed his neighbor's sentiments.

"This is a fine community," he said. "Everybody's friendly. We're just like a big, happy family. You know, that's something money can't buy."

Money also can't buy many of the picturesque farms in this Southern West Virginia county, which is noted for its Victorian-style farm homes and graceful, rolling terrain. Much of the land in Monroe County has been held by the same families since before the Civil War.

"Part of this farm has been in my family for nearly 100 years," said James Beckett, placing a pinch of snuff in his jaw. "My grandfather came to this country in 1880 and settled in this area. He bought the place in back of this farm and I'm the third generation of my family to farm this land."

Until the past dozen years, Beckett worked his land with draft horses.

"I bred them and trained them and worked them," he said. "Actually, that's how this hunkerdown business got started. There's something about horses that attracts people. So, folks would come to the stable and watch me train the horses and talk and chew. When I gave up the horses a few years later, they began coming to the garage instead of the stable. But they're doing the same thing; they're still talkin' and chewing."

A few feet away, near the stove, two of Beckett's neighbors were discussing the problems they had had with their hay this fall. He eavesdropped for a moment and then said, "Now that's the kind of things we usually talk about here — farm things and who needs help and things like that."

"Yessir," he added, "things are changing in this world but this is still a fine place to live. And you know something? I never watch television because these hunkerdowns are better than TV. No commercials."

Science Is Tampering With Birds

By B. J. McFarland
CORVALLIS, Ore. (UPI) — Scientists and researchers at Oregon State University have been experimenting with some "wild and crazy" chickens that may be of value in improving the poultry industry.

Scientist Fred Benoff told the national Poultry Science Association at its recent meeting in Gainesville, Fla., about OSU projects involving chickens that lay odd-shaped eggs and a type of "dwarf" chicken that increases its output of shell-less eggs as it ages.

He said payoffs for the research could come in helping commercial broiler producers increase the survival rate for hatching chicks and in providing useful information to egg producers eyeing the potential of the dwarf chicken as a commercial laying hen.

Broiler producers may profit from a study he and Joe Renden made at OSU using a measuring system to come up with standard diameter ratio ranges for the shape of an egg. They could use the data to identify eggs with abnormal diameter ratios and removing the hens that laid them from their foundation breeding stock.

Asked why irregularly shaped eggs, especially those more symmetrical than normal eggs with a narrow end and a larger blunt end, were unpopular, Benoff explained that a chick's chances for survival when hatching about 20 percent higher if it pecks its way through the end of the egg containing an airpocket called the air cell. The pocket allows the chick to begin using its lungs before venturing into the world.

The air cell is located in the large end of the commonly shaped egg, and a chicken embryo develops with its head oriented up. So broiler producers try to encourage hatching through the air cell by placing an egg in the incubator large-end up.

It's hard to tell which end of a symmetrical egg contains the air cell.

As for the dwarf chickens, Benoff said another study on egg production in the university's population of "sex-linked, dwarf" Leghorn chickens he found the output of defective eggs with only a thin membrane for a shell skyrocketed 10-fold during a 20-week period following the onset of sexual maturity.

He said reduction or elimination of the defective "membrane eggs" through selective breeding could make dwarf Leghorns more attractive as commercial laying hens. Benoff said dwarf Leghorns have been considered possible candidates for commercial egg-laying use because the dwarf can produce eggs more efficiently while eating less food than larger chickens, and they have higher tolerance to heat.

The stumbling block to commercial use of dwarf chickens is that their eggs are smaller and they lay relatively fewer eggs. Benoff says the question now is, "Are they really not laying enough eggs? Or, are they just laying defective eggs, especially as they get older?"

Found History In A Mousehole

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Clair the cat refused to investigate the mouse hole, so John Coleman stuck his hand in. Instead of a mouse, he found some negatives, a letter written in Finnish, a 1913 whiskey bottle — and a penny possibly worth as much $1,000.

The battered coin, dated 1848, was in use before the Gold Rush.

Last weekend, Coleman, a 31-year-old truck driver, found a hole in a wall behind a cupboard drawer. Mice, he figured.

Clair, his 5-year-old black-and-white female cat, regularly catches snakes, but she draws the line at mice. So Coleman reached into the wall and made his discovery.

The penny, he said, is to be passed on to his daughter, Kelly Adele, when she reaches the age of 18 in 1997.

"I don't care how much it's worth now," he said of reports the coin might bring $300 to $1,000. "I'm saving it for her when she gets to be 18... This is for Kelly — this is something for her to have when she grows up, a memento of the old days in San Francisco."

U.S. Could Grow Oil At 10 Barrels To The Acre

By LeROY POPE
UPI Business Writer
NEW YORK (UPI) — Crude oil can be produced economically in substantial amounts from replantable trees and shrubs, says a Nobel prize winning chemist.

In fact, Dr. Melvin Calvin of the University of California at Berkeley told UPI that, with a considerable effort, the United States could meet 10 percent of its petroleum requirements that way in five years.

If Calvin is right, that would add a fourth potential source of fully replenishable energy. The others are alcohols, the fast breeder nuclear reactor and hydrogen.

The achievement of fully replenishable energy sources by the United States and other countries would make a vast difference in the world.

The political and economic power of the Arabs and other petroleum producing countries would be greatly reduced. The United States would be relieved of the threat of political blackmail over oil supplies and so would other countries. Specifically, the United States would be relieved of the danger of being unable to defend itself militarily or to continue to maintain a reasonable balance of power in the world.

Large replenishable energy sources also would reduce the financial and political clout of the international oil companies.

If oil can be grown and harvested freely as crops without the absolute necessity for multibillion dollar investments in exploration and drilling, the oil companies could not control the supply, refining and distribution of petroleum to the extent they do now.

Calvin, in a telephone interview, made no estimate of the ultimate possibilities of crude oil from plants, but said the 10 percent of national requirements that could be met in five years could be produced at prices competitive with oil from the ground.

With a yield of ten barrels to the acre, he said it could sell for $40 a barrel and any improvement in the yield by agricultural scientists would reduce the price.

"We already are paying $40 a barrel for naphtha," he pointed out, "and the price may go higher." Crude oil has fetched prices as high as $45 a barrel in the global spot markets recently.

Calvin said there are more than 1,000 replantable shrubs and trees that are potential producers of oil. The best, he said, are the milkweeds. It appears to make better sense economically than growing expensive grains to make alcohol for gasohol.

Calvin said plant petroleum would be cheaper to produce in the long run because its energy content would be higher by weight — 17,000 BTU to the pound, equal to that of fossil petroleum.

He said he had devoted most of his time for the past six years to this field and, to the best of his knowledge, there are perhaps a dozen good chemists around the world working on plant petroleum, half of these in the United States.

"But I get telephone calls and letters about it from all over the world," he said.

Calvin said at least two oil companies, two chemical companies and a mining company, which he would not name, were backing his efforts. The mining company is interested because it is required by law to restore the land after it strip mines (presumably for coal) and the oil-producing shrubs could make suitable cover crops for that.

He said many government agencies, presumably both federal and state, had shown interest in the work he and other chemists are doing in plant petroleum and have made small grants to finance it.

Calvin said he was not surprised to hear that the Rhodesians had succeeded in using sunflower seed oil as a diesel fuel but said he knew nothing about its economic feasibility.

Calvin won the Nobel prize in chemistry in 1961. He is an authority in several fields, including chemistry and radiation and plant chemistry.

Alcohols, both ethanol and methanol, are replenishable sources of energy. Although methanol is used as a racing automobile fuel, it contains only about half as much energy by volume as gasoline and doesn't mix with other fuels. The name methanol means wood alcohol but the alcohol, which is quite cheap, often is made these days from natural gas.

Ethanol alcohols, made from grain, sugar, tapioca or food and farm refuse, contain much more energy and mix well with gasoline to make gasohol.

The gasohols presently being sold in the United States contain only 10 percent alcohol and use only expensive 200-proof anhydrous ethanol. But Brazil is using 20 percent alcohol in its gasohol and chemists say mixtures of 40 percent are feasible. They also say cheaper ethanol alcohols containing water can be mixed with gasoline if certain catalysts are employed.

The fast breeder nuclear reactor technology is still some years down the road and it has a lot of political opponents including President Carter. But no one disputes that, once brought to practical operation it would produce more nuclear fuel than it consumed.

The outlook for hydrogen has brightened recently. The trouble with hydrogen has been that, even though the seas and rivers and lakes contain inexhaustible supplies, it takes as much energy to extract it as you get out of it.

Lately, however, chemists and inventors experimenting with reactions of hydrogen and other chemicals, notably chlorine, in the presence of ultraviolet light have produced enormous amounts of energy. This would make hydrogen extremely cheap but much work remains to be done to prove it out.

The existence of plant petroleum shouldn't surprise anyone. Wood pitch was used for centuries before minerals were used.

GROW CRUDE OIL? — Crude oil can be produced economically in substantial amounts from replantable trees and shrubs, says Dr. Melvin Calvin, Nobel Prize winning chemist. Here he displays a bottle of oil he has obtained from a copaifera tree in Brazil. (UPI Photo)

African Wilderness Is Reportedly Shrinking

By CYNTHIA STEVENS
OKAVANGO SWAMPS, Botswana (AP) — Africa to the Western child is wild beasts roaming grassy fields and dense jungles. This corner of Botswana is one of the last unspoiled places where such imagination meets reality.

Elsewhere on the developing continent, people, farms, poachers and hunters have squeezed out the wilderness. But the unique inland delta of the Okavango Swamps still provides an unchanged habitat for elephants, lions, gazelles, giraffes and the native Bayei tribesmen.

The area is reachable only by light plane.

Ironically, conservationists say the 16,000-square-kilometer paradise in the northwest may be threatened by the fight to eradicate the tsetse fly. Without the deadly insect, cattle farmers likely would move to the lush flood plains and upset the delicate ecological balance.

The estimated 16,000 Bayei who have lived here since the 18th century and unobtrusively poled their dugout canoes through the seasonal streams, blend into their environment. They feed on fish and the wildlife.

Instinctively they know the way from island to island through endless reeds and feathered grasses, past clusters of tropical trees and 10-foot-high termite hills that all look the same.

Chatting happily among themselves from boat to boat, they guided a photo safari through the clear, shallow waters in search of game.

Giraffes peered through the treetops, a hyena scowled then ran, and a herd of impala took one stricken look before sprinting suddenly out of sight like a silky fawn ribbon carried by the breeze.

Zebra grazed quietly in the distance, while three swamp antelope thundered across the channel, halting dramatically every 50 feet to assess the intruders.

On land, the nine visitors were determined to see the mightiest and most courageous of mammals — the elephant and lion — and set out single file after dawn one morning along a haphazard trail of dung heaps and footprints.

Two Bayei trackers, armed with a 9-pound elephant gun and an ax, sandwiched the line to guard the intruders against any unexpected attacks by the inhabitants of Chief's Island.

Clive Walker, chairman of South Africa's Endangered Wildlife Trust and the trail leader, insisted, after five
