City Council Wraps It Up

BY JOYCE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

The City Council met at 8 p.m. Tuesday for a special call meeting to complete unfinished business before the newly elected Council takes office on Thursday.

Charlie Holliday, former city engineer of Greenville for 23 years, and Ray Smith, former fire chief, received plaques for their outstanding years of service. The late S. Eugene West also was honored with a plaque for outstanding service to Greenville.

The audit report for fiscal year 1978-79 depicts a conservative operation, according to Mayor Percy Cox. Revenues exceed expenditures, and the general fund looks good, said the auditor. But the transportation fund shows an operating loss of approximately $60,000 this year.

The executive director of the Mid-East Commission, Daneel Le Roux, spoke to the council about ideas for better communication which will help give good service to Greenville, Pitt County, and adjoining counties.

Councilman John Howard expressed a complaint about the Mid-East Commission. He said a lack of representation is the biggest complaint the city council has. "With 35,000 people, we felt we should have people involved in the monthly input on the Mid-East Commission,'" said Howard.

A public hearing was conducted on the Small Cities Community Development application, and the council approved the adoption of the plan. Ben Shivars, Community Development Coordinator, briefed the council on the criteria of the plan. It must be addressed to locally determined needs particularly for low and moderate income persons, he said.

The council adopted several ordinances and held public hearings on rezoning requests. It adopted an ordinance for rezoning from RA-20 to R-6 of approximately 14.5 acres located on the southeast side of U. S. 264 Business across from Westwood Subdivision. An ordinance was adopted for rezoning, from Medical Arts to Office and Institutional, of approximately 20,800 square feet located at the southeast corner of N. C. 43 and Red Banks Road.

A request to rezone property located on N. C. 33 across from Brook Valley entrance was denied because of a public petition, opposing the request.

A motion was passed not to erect "No Parking" signs stipulating parking between the hours of 1 a.m. and 8 a.m. near the south side of East Eighth Street from Evans to Forbes Street.

A public hearing was set for Jan. 10 for Carlton Leon Edwards' application for a Certificate of Public Conve-

Swearing In

A new mayor and three new City Council members will join three incumbents in taking their oaths of office Thursday evening during ceremonies at city hall.

The swearing in activities, scheduled for 8 p.m. in the Council chambers at city hall, will mark the beginning of a new tenure for the city's recently elected governing board.

Mayor-elect Don McGlohon will receive the oath of office while Louis Clark, William Hadden Jr. and Richard J. McKee will take their seats on the Council with incumbents Judy Greene, Joseph Taft Jr. and Clarence Gray.

The meeting will serve as the organizational session for the new mayor and Council.

Carter Seeks Arms Buildup

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has approved a defense budget proposing 3.5 percent "real growth" in military spending next year to reassure Senate critics of the SALT II treaty, administration officials say.

Defense Secretary Harold Brown soon will give senators an unusual preview of plans to spend about $14 billion more in fiscal 1981 to strengthen overall U.S. military power, the sources said. Total spending would rise from $127.4 billion to about $142 billion.

He also will outline a program calling for additional boosts in each of the following four years, the officials said.

Administrations normally withhold their budget proposals until the opening of a new congressional session in January.

But SALT critics prodded the Carter administration to move up the timetable for the defense section of the budget this year so they could examine it before the Senate considers the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty with the Soviet Union.

Carter scheduled a speech on defense later today, but it was not known to what extent he might discuss the new defense program.

In the complex world of federal budgets, administrations offer proposals translating into spending and into another category called budget authority. This latter category includes legal permission to spend some of the money in future years.

According to administration sources, who asked not to be named, the fiscal 1981 budget proposal could provide budget authority totaling about $158 billion, or an increase of 5.5 percent over fiscal 1980.

For the following four years, officials said, the administration's program contemplates increases of more than 4 percent annually.

The administration proposal is designed to meet the demands of Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., for a steady boost of 4 percent to 5 percent a year — above inflation — to strengthen U.S. conventional and stretegic forces while the United States and Russia limit nuclear striking power under SALT II.

Nunn and others argue that the United States has been falling behind the Soviet Union over the last 15 years and that it is essential to build up U.S. military strength across the board.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff are on record as urging a 5 percent increase in the defense budget annually.

Historic High

LONDON (AP) — Gold hit a historic high of $451 an ounce in Zurich today as the dollar came under pressure on European money markets over fears of a hike in the oil price.

But by lunchtime, it had advanced to $451 in Zurich, where it closed Tuesday at $445.50. London's major bullion houses "fixed" the price for the morning trading session at $449.75.

NATO Meets On Missile Project

By ROBERT WIELAARD
Associated Press Writer

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The foreign and defense ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization gathered today to give final formal approval to plans to station 572 new medium-range American nuclear missiles in Western Europe.

The plan, which has stirred considerable controversy in Europe in recent weeks, already has been accepted by key European governments, and the ministers' approval at NATO's annual winter meeting was considered a formality only.

The 464 Tomahawk cruise missiles and 108 Pershing 2s are to be stationed in West Germany, Britain, Italy, Belgium and the Netherlands. They will have sufficient range to hit targets in the Soviet Union.

The Carter administration and other advocates of the plan say Western Europe needs the weapons to give it a "flexible response" to the Soviet's new SS-20 nuclear missiles. Opponents contend they will escalate the nuclear arms race and advocate arms control talks with the Russians instead.

The Soviet Union and its Warsaw Pact allies have condemned the NATO plan.

Four of the 15 NATO government were still jittery about introduction of the U.S. missiles. They were the Netherlands and Belgium, each earmarked to have 48 cruise missiles on their territories, and Norway and Denmark, which have misgivings although they would not have any of the nuclear weapons.

The Dutch Cabinet conferred until late Tuesday and was to meet again this morning to formulate the position its ministers would take at the Brussels meeting. Dutch officials declined to predict what this would be.

The Belgian government was reported advocating a compromise: if arms reduction talks with the Russians show real progress in the next six months, the decision to deploy the missiles would be rescinded.

NATO officials said even if the Dutch and the Belgians refuse to admit the weapons to their territory, they will be stationed in Britain, West Germany and Italy.

The first of the 572 missiles is not expected to be in place until 1983 at the earliest. NATO planners say it will take another eight years to deploy the rest.

The Soviets have at least 120 of the SS-20 missiles in place. These carry three warheads and have a range of about 2,500 miles, long enough to hit any European capital from their launchers deep inside the Soviet Union.

The new U.S. missiles will replace NATO's aging battlefield weapons, the Pershing 1 missiles now in position in West Germany, which have a maximum range of only 400 miles. The new missiles have a range of 1,200 to 1,500 miles, long enough to strike targets in western Russia.

Insists Kennedy Cabled

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh brushed aside denials by his own ministry and Sen. Edward Kennedy today and insisted Kennedy cabled the Foreign Ministry seeking a meeting with Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

Ghotbzadeh's announcement, in a radio interview, came a few hours after an official at the Foreign Ministry said a letter purportedly written by Kennedy and pledging support for Khomeini's revolution was a fake.

Although Ghotbzadeh spoke of a telegram, it was clear he was referring to the letter broadcast and published here this morning that allegedly was sent by Kennedy, addressing Khomeini in laudatory terms and seeking to visit Iran.

Ghotbzadeh said: "We received such a telegram and sent it to (Khomeini) ...Apparently because of Senator Kennedy's opposition to the shah and the atmosphere in the United States, Senator Kennedy has refuted this telegram."

However, a Foreign Ministry spokeswoman who was told that Kennedy's spokesman in Washington denied Kennedy ever communicated with Khomeini, said: "What the senator says is correct." Asked if the purported Kennedy letter was a fake, she added: "We confirm that.

Greenville Utilities Commission Approves Installment Pay Plan

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville Utilities Commission last night gave approval to an installment pay plan for water and sewer main and acreage fees.

Under the plan, customers, whose total fees are in excess of $500, may elect to pay the fees on an installment plan.

The plan provides that the payment of fees may be spread over a 12-month period, provided the customer signs a note and deed of trust, and pays interest at the rate of one percent per month on the unpaid balance due.

The plan adopted last night provides that any unpaid fees would become a lien against the property, which could be sold at public auction to satisfy the lien.

Commissioners last night awarded a contract for the 1979-1980 audit to John C. Proctor and Co. at a cost of $5,250, and authorized GUC employees to institute changes in the commission's service termination procedure, on a trial basis.

The changes, GUC director Charles Horne told commissioners, would bring the commission's policy more in line with a policy adopted by the N.C. Utilities Commission for private utilities, although public utilities, such as the GUC, are not required to follow the N.C. Utilities Commission directive.

The state policy provides for customer notification 48 hours in advance of cut-off, telephone calls or personal contacts when practical, notice left on the door following termination advising customers of the procedure necessary for reconnection, and a review of customers on the cut-off list to prevent elderly or handicapped customers' service being terminated.

In other business last night, the commission awarded contracts to low bidders for the purchase of a number of items.

The purchases included: 23 fire hydrants, American-Darling Valve Co., $8,310; six fire hydrants, American-Darling Valve Co., $2,252; one three-quarter ton truck, Phelps Chevrolet, $6,355; one one-ton crew-cab truck Phelps Chevrolet, $7,191; two over-current protective devices, Westinghouse Electric Supply Co., $20,636; 100 pole type transformer, Hesco, Inc., $38,300; 30 padmount transformers, Carolina Transformer Co., $17,400; six padmount transformers, $14,880; and 10,000 feet of cable, Rigby Electric Supply Co., $12,780.

The commission rescheduled its regular meeting in January, from January 8, to January 15.

SCROOGE

Someone told me about an organization called SCROOGE, which is against the celebration of Christmas. I'd like to know more. The Rev. B.B.

According to Charles G. Langham, its founder and executive director, SCROOGE (Society to Curtail Ridiculous, Outrageous and Ostentatious Gift Exchanges) is not against the celebration of Christmas. On the contrary, it's for "the true spirit of Christmas" centered around gifts for small children, decorated trees, good cheer with the family and friends, Christmas cards with personal notes and visits to the sick and elderly — not big spending. See related story in this issue.

'Wife Of SCROOGE' Enjoying Her Yuletide

By CAROL TYER

CHARLOTTESVILLE, VA. — Wife of Scrooge, some people call her, but Adella Langham doesn't mind She's having the best Christmas season of her married life, she says, thanks to the free thinking of her husband, Charles, founder an organization called SCROOGE.

Langham, a 38-year-old Army publications officer and resident of this Blue Ridge Mountains-of-Virginia town, formed the "Bah, humbug" organization about Thanksgiving of this year. He coined the acronym by which it's called — SCROOGE — Society to Curtail Ridiculous, Outrageous and Ostentatious Gift Exchanges — some time last year, his wife said in a telephone interview conducted Tuesday.

"We're not saying 'bah, humbug" to the true spirit of Christmas," she explained. "We're only pointing out the craziness of extravagant gift-giving."

"We've never had a Christmas since we've been married, that wasn't way overdone gift-giving-and-receiving-wise," Mrs. Langham, a medical technologist, said. "We always wore ourselves out looking for just the right gift for each family member, knowing full well all of recipients had everything they needed."

Three years ago, she said, the couple ran up between $500 and $600 worth of Christmas credit card bills. That's when the ridiculousness of it all hit them.

This year Langham had some cards printed up giving the principles of SCROOGE:

1. Confine Christmas giving mainly to small children. Let's give Christmas back to the little ones.
2. Whenever possible, give to an adult only in the form of a contribution to his or her favorite charity.
3. Instead of giving useless gifts, make visits to the sick and the elderly.
4. Pay cash only for

Secretaries Enjoy Their Jobs

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — A survey of more than 600 professional secretaries who attended a National Secretaries Association convention here indicates that most of those polled like their jobs.

"The survey clearly substantiates our opinion that professional secretaries enjoy what they are doing and welcome new challenges," says NSA president Ann Michele of Albuquerque, N.M. "They're not bogged down at the point of who gets the coffee. They are part of a management team and they realize how valuable they are."

For example, she points out, while 95 percent still type and take shorthand, a growing area of daily activity is business-meeting preparation. A fourth of those surveyed spend part of a typical day helping to prepare meeting presentations such as slides, visuals, graphs and overhead projector transparencies.

Among the daily activities the respondents reported were typing correspondence and reports; making copies of letters and reports; writing letters for the executives with whom they work; filing; arranging meetings; taking shorthand; making travel arrangements, and serving coffee and food at meetings — a function reported by 53 percent.

The poll showed that most enjoyed "writing letters for the boss," with 77 percent responding positively in this area and 29 percent saying that writing letters was the most satisfying activity they handled.

The activities found the least satisfying were filing, making copies of letters and reports, and serving coffee or food at meetings.

Of the secretaries studied, 96 percent said they were proud to be a secretary; 91 percent think they make their executive look good to the rest of the company; 91 percent take pride in keeping the office neat; 90 percent feel they and their executive work as a team; 89 percent feel they are treated fairly; 86 percent consider themselves more of an assistant than a secretary.

As to the future, more than half of all the professional secretaries surveyed would be happy with the same position, but with a higher salary, though 38 percent have hopes for promotion to higher secretarial positions. Only 40 percent of the total polled have aspirations for a non-secretarial position with their present employers.

The study, sponsored by 3M Visual Products Division and the NSA, was conducted by Market Facts, Inc. Average age of those surveyed was 46. Of these, 37 percent had one or more dependent children; 57 percent were married and 19 percent had never married.

Of the group surveyed, 79 percent are college graduates or have had some college, and virtually all were high school graduates.

The average number of years worked in a secretarial position was 20.4 and the average number of years at the current job was 9.7, indicating the professional and career orientation of those surveyed.

Dear Abby

Giving Thought To Gift-Giving

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Last year you devoted an entire column to what and what not to give for Christmas gifts. I thought it was one of the most helpful columns you ever wrote. Please run it again.

OVER 80 IN OKMULGEE, OKLA.

DEAR OVER 80: That column was so well received I've updated it. And here it is:

DEAR READERS: Can you believe it's time to prepare for the holidays again? Well, it is, so do yourselves a favor and do your Christmas (or Hanukkah) shopping early.

If you're wondering what to give Aunt Bessie or Grandpa, who don't get out much, let me tell you what NOT to give them:

No dusting powder, after-shave or cologne. (They probably have several unopened boxes gathering dust on their closet shelves.)

Grandpa doesn't need another necktie, and Aunt Bessie doesn't really want any more brooches, necklaces or bracelets.

With the price of groceries so high, folks who live alone on a fixed income probably would be delighted to receive a basket of goodies. Include small cans of salmon, chicken, ham, tuna, vegetables, fruit, instant coffee, tea bags, crackers, cookies and instant soup mixes.

Older people who live in confined quarters do not need more "things" that are ornamental only. Don't send music boxes, statuettes, or other bric-a-brac.

Shut-ins would appreciate a box of greeting cards for all occasions so that they, too, can send birthday, anniversary, graduation, get-well and condolence cards to others. (Be a sport! Stamp some envelopes.)

If you're tempted to pass along a scarf, purse, wallet or some other useless little doodad you received for Christmas three years ago, please don't. It's a pretty fair bet the recipient will find it just as useless as you did. (Besides, YOU might get it back the year after next.)

If someone on your gift list is living on a pension, a check for ANY amount would be much more appreciated than a frivolous little trinket. Or give someone who's counting his pennies a year's subscription to a newspaper or magazine you know he'll enjoy.

Please, don't ever send a gift in a box bearing the name of a store unless you bought it there. Should the recipient want to exchange it, he will be embarrassed, the store clerks will look bewildered, and it won't make YOU look too good.

If you buy a gift on sale, be sure it's appropriate since if the recipient tries to take it back he will be told, "Sorry, Sale merchandise is not returnable."

Don't give a pet to anyone unless you're absolutely sure it's wanted and will be properly cared for. And if you want to delight someone who considers his pet a "member of the family," include a tin of cat or dog food for the pet.

Don't give gifts of wine or liquor unless you're sure the recipients imbibe. Candy, nuts and fruitcake make wonderful gifts for those who aren't counting their calories, but please have compassion for those who are, and lead them not into temptation.

Resist giving toddlers stuffed animals and dolls that are bigger than THEY are. And parents will thank you for not sending their children horns, drums, sirens or whistles. If you give a child a game or book, be sure it's in the appropriate age range.

Instead of giving someone a gift with permission to "take it back and exchange it if it's not what you want," why not save yourself (and them) much time and effort by giving them a gift certificate in the first place?

Holiday time can be very depressing for people who are alone, so if you know someone who might be alone and lonely, give him (or her) the best gift of all—an invitation to spend the holiday with you and your family. The ultimate poverty is loneliness.

Love,
ABBY

Preplanning The Key To Houseguests' Comfort

Holidays often bring a round of houseguests. Make the living easy by planning in advance for their comfort and the convenience of household members.

Try to adapt normal routines to accommodate and make a visitor feel at home. Let them know the general schedule of events — such as when the bathroom should be free for school and working people to use, time for dinner, etc. Put them at ease about using facilities. Show what is on hand and where — food, linens, cleaning and grooming supplies — and in some cases, how to operate appliances.

As much as possible, provide privacy. A separate guest room is ideal, but often not the case. A hide-a-bed or sofa in the family or living room, shifting children, or sharing quarters with family members may be necessary. Help eliminate clutter and confusion by clearing some closet and drawer space for guests. Try to provide a bathroom shelf for supplies.

If there are small children in the household, advise guests to keep valuables, breakables, and medication out of their reach. Other safety measures: put a flashlight near the bed to help a person find light switches; use night lights to illuminate unfamiliar hallways, bathrooms, staircases.

Amenities may include extra blankets or pillows, providing reading materials, stationery.

For a hostess or host, meals are an important consideration. If planning to eat many meals at home, easy fare keeps the cook's time in the kitchen at a minimum. Stocking the freezer ahead of time with ready-to-heat main dishes, appetizers, and desserts cuts corners.

Make mealtime cleanup as quick as possible. Plan ahead and have things ready. If necessary, rearrange space a little so additional dishes for serving and leftovers are handy. Just before serving a meal, fill a dishpan with hot sudsy water. Place soiled pots and pans in suds to soak during mealtime. Food particles will loosen while you enjoy leisurely dining. If using a dishwasher, load the appliance as dinnerware is removed from the table.

Organization, extra niceties and streamlined meal serving and cleanup can make entertaining easier for you, put guests at ease, and extend a holiday welcome.

For Kitchen, Bath or Preparing For the Yule... Try Decorating With Washable, Fabric-backed Vinyl

Fabric-backed vinyl is available by the yard and comes in a variety of patterns and bright colors for creative home decorating. The fabric can be folded and sewn like cloth, or glued onto surfaces. Easy to keep clean with a sudsy sponge, it is ideal for use in the kitchen and bathroom and makes a great decorating cloth for the holidays!

Besides kitchen curtains, tablecloths, shelves and cabinets, try covering wastebaskets and canisters with matching or contrasting vinyl. This is a good way to make sets out of odd pieces or dress up coffee cans and other containers to store cookies and snacks. Or, turn a variety of receptacles into attractive planters.

In the bathroom, window shades and shower curtains made of the material are suds-scrubbable and will not crack or wrinkle. Brighten up the medicine cabinet and other bathroom shelves with the easy-care material, too.

For a striking decoration at Christmas, attach white fabric vinyl with staples or thumbtacks to completely cover a door. Then cut wide strips of red material and place to simulate a gift wrapping. Add a big red bow. Finish the package by attaching sprigs of fresh evergreen.

The material can also be fashioned into an apron for the base of the Christmas tree, used to wrap gifts, and cut into all shapes and sizes for tree ornaments. There are a host of other items which can be made with the fabric — baby bibs, lampshades, garment and shoe bags, aprons — just to mention a few!

Sweeten Christmas With Candy

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: As gifts for Christmas I want to make various kinds of candy. Can you recommend a book on the subject? I'm sure a number of such cookbooks have been published over the years, but I feel an up-to-date one might have the most detailed and reliable recipes. — TOUTE SUITE.

DEAR TOUTE SUITE: You best bet is to get hold of "Anita Prichard's Complete Candy Cookbook" by Anita Prichard (Harmony). Maybe you can borrow it from your library. It was published in 1978 and has met with great success.

It's popularity is undoubtedly due to its clear organization, exact instructions and delicious recipes for the types of candies most often made in the United States. Among the recipes are ones for fudges, fondants, brittles, toffees, taffies and crunches. There's also a chapter on quick and easy confections needing little or no cooking — from marshmallows to those using dried fruit or cereal. Chocolate dipping and glazing fruits and nuts are also covered.

When we tried the following recipe for Anita Prichard's delightful nougat, we followed her directions and used a heavy-duty electric mixer. As she says, "It's a must." — C. B.

ANITA PRICHARD'S GOLDEN NOUGAT

- 1½ cup light brown sugar, firmly packed
- ½ cup light corn syrup
- ½ cup water
- 1 egg white, room temperature, stiffly beaten
- 1 cup lightly roasted almonds, slivered
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- Cornstarch for coating

Lightly grease sides of saucepan. Add sugar, corn syrup and water. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly with a wooden spoon, until sugar is dissolved. You should not be able to feel sugar grains when you rub the spoon against the side of the saucepan. Remove from heat and, with a damp paper towel, wipe any remaining grains from the sides of the pan above the liquid level. Return to moderate heat. Cover the pan long enough for the mixture to boil, 2 or 3 minutes — no more! Uncover the pan and wipe the sides again to remove any stray sugar grains. Start the syrup boiling again and clip on a candy thermometer.

Cook over low heat, without stirring, until thermometer registers 238 degrees (syrup forms a soft ball in cold water). Pour one-half of the hot syrup in a slow, steady stream onto the beaten egg white, beating constantly with electric mixer while you return the remaining cooked syrup to low heat and cook to 290 degrees (syrup forms a soft crack in cold water). Pour the second half of the hot syrup in a low, steady stream over the egg-white mixture, still beating constantly until it is thick and heavy. At this point take a very small amount on a spoon. If it holds its shape when cool, and it is not sticky to the touch, it has been beaten long enough. Blend in the nuts and vanilla. Pour into lightly greased loaf pan which has been dusted with cornstarch. Let stand overnight in a cool, dry place, but do not refrigerate. Cut into ¾-inch by 1-inch pieces. If the nougat is not to be dipped, pieces should be wrapped in waxed paper or plastic wrap and stored in airtight container in cool, dry place. Yield: 60 pieces.

Auxiliary Has Holiday Party On Thursday

A program of holiday music was presented by members of the Greenville Community Chorus, directed by Ed Glenn. Mrs. Faye Adams introduced the program.

The welcome was given by Mrs. Sarah J. Ashton, who recognized Gold Star members, Mrs. Lois Dail and Mrs. Scarlett Williams. Mrs. Martha Forrest was also recognized. Christmas corsages were given these members.

Mrs. Ashton announced a leadership workshop will be held in Washington with Unit No. 15. The program is scheduled for Jan. 12 with registration at 9:30 a.m. The District Three meeting will be held in Greenville March 2 and will be hosted by the local group.

Memorial donations were made to the Kennedy-Whichard Scholarship Fund in memory of Pattie Mizelle and Margaret Pierce by Mrs. Ashton and Betty A. Levey.

Poppy Chairman Mrs. Levey presented awards to those who worked on Poppy Day.

Attic, Pantry Or Garden Can Provide Gift Ideas

The answer may be no further than your own attic, pantry or garden. Some herbs, a bottle of honey, an old bit of lace or even an orange can be transformed from a household find into a special holiday present, according to the November issue of "House Beautiful." You can take care of your whole shopping list in advance — and also take care of your budget.

Here are a few gift ideas:

— Pomanders — Pick oranges, limes, or other citrus fruits and stud them all over with cloves. Stud the fruits in even rows, or leave spaces for dried flower blossoms, sprigs of herb, seed head, or other decorative touches. Then let the fruits dry. The pomanders can be wrapped with ribbons, lace or netting and given to a friend to scent a wardrobe. They also make perfect room fresheners, party favors, placecard holders or Christmas tree ornaments.

— Colored honeys — The taste of honey takes on an exotic twist when you add your favorite spice. For a holiday party, bring the hostess a sweet remembrance. Choose a pretty jar, fill it with honey, and add crystallized ginger, pieces of lemon, cinnamon sticks, or bay leaves. The gift is lovely to look at, fun to eat.

— Potpourri — Potpourri is reputed to last for as long as 50 years. A mixture of dried flower petals, leaves, crushed citrus peel and spices, sprinkled with a few drops of fragrant oil, potpourri can be used for a variety of gifts. Stuff it inside an embroidered handkerchief or a piece of lacy fabric for easy-to-sew sachets and pincushions; pour it into lacquer boxes or old apothecary jars for room scenters and accents.

Can't Disrupt Our Successes

The world has seen three good harvest years, but the specter of hunger is nevertheless growing around the world. Think what a year of famine can do?

The committee called for doubling of non-military foreign aid, and helping poor nations develop better farming programs and higher living standards. The committee saw that last as potentially harming some U. S. farmers and factory workers. Nevertheless it thinks that risk is necessary to forestall world starvation.

Civilized peoples of the world nearly all agree that starvation anywhere on earth is not acceptable. Certainly the United States with its humane ideals and its great production will play a major role in offsetting hunger.

We aren't too clear how the Presidential Commission on World Hunger sees its proposals as adversely affecting the American farmer. As we see it however, anything that might harm the economic strength of the American farm economy is going to be counterproductive in stopping worldwide hunger.

It is the very strength of U.S. farming that is providing wheat and other foods for so much of the world today. The American farmer can play an even greater role as the breadbasket of the world if he can maintain a strong economic position.

There are no real secrets to our farm productivity. Our methods can be copied by any nation on earth. It involves a peculiar blend of private enterprise, and a willingness of farmer operators to work long hours for an uncertain profit.

We would hope that other nations would adopt our methods, but if they don't, let's not disrupt the only farming system of the world that truly works.

Appropriate To One's Unselfish Life

The Nobel Peace prize went to an obscure Roman Catholic nun, Mother Teresa, who has devoted her life to the poor of India.

She accepted the award in the name of the poor and unwanted and plans to use the $192,000 prize money for the poor.

There can be no more unselfish life than that led by Mother Teresa. The Nobel award is particularly appropriate at this time when human concern is so much focused on the third world.

THIS AFTERNOON

To Some, An Evil Scheme

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — In the best of all worlds, a mother is well educated, has plenty of money, eats right, and sees her doctor regularly.

The baby is healthy, eats right, is seen by specialists for any health, mental or emotional problems, and grows up.

Obviously, that world is not at hand.

The cornerstone of the administration of Gov. Jim Hunt in North Carolina is numerous efforts to catch and treat problems early. Hunt says he is more and more convinced that this is the key to solving old problems and forestalling them in the future.

This North Carolina has going into place prenatal and peri-natal clinics, early childhood screening, an array of New Generation coordinating committees to bring kids who need services and agencies that provide them together, and a laundry list of plans and approaches all aimed at giving today's problem child a boost toward becoming a functioning adult.

Evil Scheme

But to witch-hunting opponents who smell evil and fear plots wherever they turn, all of this is mixed up in Communistic efforts to steal babies away from the family; Fascist plots to impose genetic restrictions and abortion to enforce those restrictions; governmental conspiracies to produce a super race of the future, by eliminating the plain, ordinary people.

State Rep. Mary Pegg, Republican - Forsyth County, was chief spokesperson recently at an event staged to denounce both the New Generation program and the Child Health Plan drawn up as suggested local alternatives by the state's pediatric society and governmental health officials.

Mrs. Pegg's shrill and fanatic approach to criticism zeroed in on perhaps the most innocent concept in the entire package as the most evil of all: a "health care home."

The plan suggests this means of providing, for children who need it, a permanent place at which records are kept, examinations given, and treatment sueprvised — — either by a public welfare agency or a private physician. Some responsible institution (county health department or public school nurse) is suggested as a resource to see to it that the child receives the care.

To opponents, though, the "health care home" has become a state-ooperated institution in which children are placed instead of letting parents raise them at home.

Mrs. Pegg pulled from "A Child Health Plan" many quotes out of context to back her complaints. The most glaring were several which purport to show that the state will force the child and family to accept one principal source of care; that the state will force the child and parents to have examinations, counselling, treatment, etc.; and the state will invade the home to accomplish such.

Misquoted

The legislator was referring to a section of the plan dealing with the health care home in which is described various local alternatives to using public and private resources to provide care for the needy.

Then follows this section, the one which Mrs. Pegg used:

"In addition, there are responsibilities belonging to the child and his family. Such requirements are:

" — The child and his family will accept one principal source of primary care. They will make contact with that source often enough to provide continuity.

" — the child and his parents will arrange for examination, education, counselling, immunization and other well child services rather than only episodic treatment.

BILL NOBLITT

" — information will be furnished the health care home of significant episodes as well as treatments from other sources."

So rather than the plan suggesting the state impose the measures which Mrs. Pegg insists it does, the plan suggests that the family has that responsibility ... and all in an effort to get regular health care instead of just running to the emergency room when something goes wrong.

Perrier For The Pool

WASHINGTON — All the Christmas catalogues are in now. Every year I choose the gift that will make the greatest contribution to Western civilization. This year's award goes to Sakowitz of Houston which advertised a swimming pool built in the shape of Texas and filled (I'm not making this up) with 30,867 gallons of Perrier water. The price tag is $127,174.32.

Little did I realize when I lived in Paris that someday Perrier, an innocuous soda water that comes from France, would become a status symbol in the same class with Dom Perignon Champagne and Chivas Regal Scotch.

Americans are now drinking Perrier by the tank, and it's hard to believe — though I have no evidence to doubt it — that all the Perrier being consumed in the world comes from one underground spring.

While Perrier is a nice, tasteless bubbly drink, I think it would be very dangerous for the United States to become too dependent on it.

It is just like the French to get us hooked on their water and then threaten to pull the plug if we didn't go along with them on everything they asked for in the Common Market.

The threat to this country of a Perrier-less society has not been faced up to. People are guzzling it like there is no tomorrow, and the few scientists who have warned that we could exhaust all the Perrier water in the world by the year 2000 have been ignored.

ART BUCHWALD

In a paper just printed in the prestigious Bottled Water Journal "ZZZZZZZ," Freidrich said if Americans continued consuming Perrier at the present rate, the price of a six-ounce bottle now selling in a bar for $1.50 could rise to $5 for a regular glass and $6 with a piece of lime.

"This means," he wrote, "that the middle and lower income groups could be forced to drink domestic soda waters and, in some hardship cases, even tap water to supply their fluid needs."

Freidrich warns in his article that as more and more supertankers are used to supply Perrier to soda guzzlers in America, there will eventually be an accident off the Atlantic Coast and, as he puts it, "We could see the largest soda water spill in history. No one knows what Perrier can do to a beach or wildlife when it mixes with salt water. A Perrier spill off the coast of a populous area could play havoc with the ecology of fishing grounds, and unless a method is found of bursting the bubbles before they hit the shore, people could be cleaning up their sands for years to come."

Former Name: Persia

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — "Hey," said the barber, "You've been there a couple of times: has anything good ever come out of Iran?"

"Caviar," I told him.

"Hate the stuff," he rasped. From the brisk way he massaged my scalp he didn't have to tell me, but he did, that he had had it up to here with the Ayatollah.

So had the fellow in the men's shop, where I bought a wool ski cap to replace the genuine Persian lamb hat a friend's dog had chomped into.

"Why don't they send all those Iranians back on the Kitty Hawk?" asked the haberdasher. He had a tale of woe about two Iranian students "or Arabs or something" who had stuck him with a hot check for a couple of shirts.

Back home the gloomy international outlook persisted. The TV news film from Iran, with the students flogging themselves with chains and parading before the captive U.S. embassy with chants of "Kill Carter" and "Death to the Hostage Spies," was a real-life remake of Big Brother's "Hate Week" in George Orwell's chilling novel "1984."

Then from out of nowhere in the flickering shadows cast by the TV screen came other voices from other rooms.

"From the East," my wife told her.

The weekly religion class was in session, five 7-year-olds in search of truth along the path to their first Holy Communion. Now with Christmas at hand and the creche figures spread out before them on the family room rug, they were learning the story of the Nativity.

"Far from New Jersey," my wife took the question seriously as she always does with those serious theologians. "Probably from Persia, although we don't know for sure..."

"Where's Persia?" a little boy asked in the same earnest voice he uses to inquire if there are any cookies left.

"They call it Iran now. You

To the editor:

My concern about the fuel program and the guidelines used to disburse these funds is one of frustration directed towards our bureaucrats in Raleigh. I think it is only fair that the public be aware of the pitfalls of this program.

Each recipient of an AFDC grant (welfare check) having one child will receive $100 for fuel bills. Families with two children will receive $200. May I stop at this point to ask, does it takes twice as much fuel to heat a house with two children?

Secondly, there is a question of multi-recipient families. If a mother has four children and she receives an AFDC check for two of those children herself, she would receive $200. Her other two children could possibly be daughters, each with a child of her own and would receive $100 apiece. The total amount going into this house would be $400, plus their monthly check. This one is not an isolated incident; it is very common to have multi-family recipients living in one house.

The third area of concern is that many of the AFDC recipients live in public housing where their fuel costs are included in their rent as a set rate. We taxpayers are already paying their utility bills.

There is still another area that is disturbing. According to the program, each SSI (Supplemental Security Income) recipient will receive $73. The problem comes when there are, for example, seven members in a household who receive SSI. Therefore, the total payment for fuel will be seven times $73 or $511.

Who will see that this money is used for fuel expenses? I assure you no one will. As taxpayers, if you see the situation for what it is — a ridiculous fiasco — you will not need a lot of heat for the winter because you'll probably be as overheated with anger as I am. Before the anger wears off, though, please write Governor Hunt.

WASHINGTON TODAY

The Payoff Is Delegates

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first vote has yet to be cast, but there already has been a boom-and-bust cycle in the campaign of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy for the Democratic presidential nomination.

President Carter, virtually written off by some politicians and analysts even before he declared his candidacy, turns out to be politically alive and well.

He appears more formidable than before, and Kennedy less so.

But comebacks and slumps don't mean much until they start producing nominating delegates, a process that won't begin for five more weeks.

Kennedy has not conquered simply by running. In fairness, he never suggested he would, but said weeks ago that he expected a closely fought contest, with Carter a candidate for the duration.

There was at the time a wave of speculation that Carter would not make it through the early primary season. He was down, and some said he would be out early. Now the fashion has changed, and the focus is on Kennedy's campaign problems.

The only surprising thing about this is that anyone should be surprised. And the only certainty is that there will be more peaks and more valleys for Carter, for Kennedy, and probably for California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. as well.

Carter's performance rating has soared during the Iranian hostage crisis, and the most recent polls show the president and the challenger from Massachusetts in a virtual dead heat heading into the primary election season. That, too, is subject to change.

On the Republican side, then President Gerald R. Ford looked shaky — at best — in 1976 against the challenge of former California Gov. Ronald Reagan. Ford proceeded to defeat Reagan in the early primaries, at which point the challenger seemed all but eliminated. As soon as that had been said, Reagan started defeating Ford, who held on narrowly to win the nomination.

Changes like that are part of the flow of any campaign. They can grow out of an incident, a slip of the tongue or, as is the case now, an international crisis.

The embassy imprisonment of 50 American hostages in Tehran has put Carter in the position that is most advantageous for any president. There is no better campaign pulpit than the White House, and there is no better way to campaign for the job than by doing it.

Any candidate challenging

Strength For Today

WHAT MORE DO WE NEED?

A little girl, reciting the Twenty-third Psalm, made a slight mistake. "The Lord is my shepherd," she said, "what more do I want?"

This rendition is almost as good as the original, and certainly if the little girl grows up with that conviction in the forefront of her mind, she will find much happiness and contentment. The people who are convinced that the Lord is their shepherd are very seldom plagued with worry. Also, in times of temptation, people who recognize the over-arching providence of God feel a protection which shields them and keeps their moral life intact.

If the Lord is our shepherd, what more do we want? If our hope and our security lie beyond the circle of the world's events, then with courage and confidence we can meet whatever assails us. We have something of great value which surpasses everything else by a wide margin.

Concur The Specter Is There

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — To the surprise of economists who had been forecasting a recession, retail sales apparently turned strong again in November.

All year long, they've been talking about the coming recession, and now it appears that it won't appear, that it won't come up in 1979.

Next year, they assure us, but didn't they say that a year ago?

Yes, and nine months ago, six months ago and as recently as last week. Viewing weak second-quarter figures, even the White House had all but conceded last summer that the recession had arrived.

That isn't to say that it didn't have an impact. Fear of it influenced consumers, business, labor, the Federal Reserve, Congress, the White House. People borrowed, bought and spent, but with a guilty feeling.

Consumers' polls show, in fact, that many people believe a recession did occur in 1979, no matter that the official statistics, some of which are still subject to revision and correction, said no.

To them, and to all others who worried constantly about it, recession was a presence in every commercial transaction, even if it was the presence of a ghost. Countless words were devoted to it; it was perhaps the most anticipated economic nonevent of the decade.

A popular forecast, perhaps even a consensus, developed as the year wore on: The longer the recession was delayed the worse inflation would get and the deeper and longer would be the ensuing recession.

Could frustration and anger have been a factor in that forecast? One is inclined to believe that objective, scientific, academically proud economists wouldn't be guilty of such behavior. But they are human.

Now, near the end of the year, nothing much has changed. The forecasts remain as solidly defended as they were a year ago. There will be a recession in 1980; that is the consensus view.

In fact, a Conference Board forum, made up of private sector economists from think tanks, academia, manufacturing and banking, concluded this week that even now the economy was in recession.

One might even read into their report a suggestion of ennui. "It is entirely clear," the forum chairman said, "that the group treats inflation as the overwhelming issue of 1980, outweighing the cyclical potential for recession that lies ahead."

That isn't to say there won't be one. Everyone knows you can't live a whole year with a ghost and not believe in it. The specter is there: recession in 1980. The forum concurs.

It says that unemployment, now at 5.8 percent, will rise to 7.2 percent, and that industrial production, which rose 3.9 percent in 1979, will fall to just 1.8 percent in 1980. That represents a sharp downturn.

Next year at this time we'll know if they were just seeing ghosts.

FOCUS

An Embassy's Role

The recent takeover of the American embassy in Iran has focused new attention on the role embassies play in relations between countries. Nations have exchanged representatives to help settle the problems between them for hundreds of years. The highest ranking of these representatives are called ambassadors. An embassy is an ambassador's headquarters in a foreign country. The job of the ambassador and other embassy workers is to help promote cooperation between the two countries, and to collect information about the country they are in. The United States maintains embassies in more than 100 foreign countries. Seizing another country's embassy is illegal, according to international law.

DO YOU KNOW — In what country did embassies first appear?

an incumbent president finds that fact frustrating. Carter did in 1976, when he complained that Ford was campaigning from the Rose Garden instead of going to the country.

In declaring his candidacy for a second term on Dec. 4, Carter said he had curtailed political activities because of the Iranian crisis.

Now there are complaints from the Kennedy camp that Carter has been campaigning by telephone, and by calling in potential supporters for meetings at the White House.

hear about it on television every evening on the news..."

I wanted to get on the phone and let the barber and the haberdasher know that something good once did come out of Iran, that they even had Wise Men there long ago.

Matthew alone among the four evangelists tells their story in the New Testament. He called them Magi, a name given to the priestly caste among the ancient Medes and Persians before there were mullahs and ayatollahs.

In these dark days of national frustration and humiliation, it is comforting to think that wise men were studying the skies over Iran when they first saw the Christmas star that 2,000 years later still glitters with the promise of peace on earth to men of good will.

Buchwald Col...

there has to be a trade-off if the United States wishes to continue receiving supplies of Perrier from France, Freidrich believes Americans should concentrate on finding their own Perrier. He points out that at present prices it is at last economical to squeeze soda water out of shale rock. "A ton of shale rock," he says, "can now produce one six-pack of Perrier-like water. With the help of the government we could be free of France's stranglehold on us by 1989."

In the meantime, Freidrich advocates odd and even days for the drinking of Perrier and giving tax exemptions to U.S. bottled water companies which are willing to use their profits to drill for a comparable substitute for the French water.

He cited the Sakowitz department store by name as an example of why the country will soon be faced with a Perrier crunch.

"Any company that urges its customers to fill their swimming pools with imported soda water refuses to face reality. If God wanted us to dive into a pool of Perrier, He would have never put it in little green bottles."

Horn Player Is Big Risk-Taker

By ROBERT BARR
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Some daredevils ride barrels over Niagara Falls. Some are motorcycle jumpers. Some scale Mount Everest.

One brave man makes his living as a soloist on the horn — 199 inches of brass, coiled to strike its player with the embarrassment of a prominent, unmistakable flub.

"I like to take a few points into the danger area, to risk it," says Barry Tuckwell, "because what makes a performance exciting is that someone has gone beyond safety.

"Being safe doesn't mean tuppence to me."

With his wavy, silver hair, rakish mustache and tiny goatee, the 48-year-old Australian lacks only a cape and a duelling scar to be the "compleat daredevil."

Tuckwell simply has no competition on the horn, often called the French horn. He makes critics gush. If the hunter played his horn as well, said a critic for the Stuttgarter Nachrichten, "the deer would have died from ecstasy."

He plays some 200 concerts a year, ranging from the great concert halls of London, New York and Vienna to Borneo and Bangkok.

Tuckwell says a horn player must almost be two persons — one cold and calculating, the other wildly romantic. In concert, one sees a stiff, unemotional Tuckwell, betraying no trace of effort; one hears the romantic in the glorious sounds pouring from his gleaming horn.

In his hotel room, with a cold bottle of beer in hand and an empty on the table, the two Tuckwells alternate. He often stops to consider his answers, but he can be a lively raconteur, whether discussing music or discoursing authoritatively on Australian beer.

After 36 years of performing, Tuckwell often says that his schedule is too busy, that he longs to spend more time in London with his wife and three children. Next year, he vows, he will play only 100 concerts. Well, only 120, for sure.

Although his hair is silver, and a bit of a paunch peeks over his belt, Tuckwell says the sheer physical challenge of playing the horn has diminished with age.

"I've thought of a lot of things I could do where I could have a more stable existence," he says, "but then I think, 'That's hanging the horn on the hook.' And I can't do that."

So he carries on his marriage by telephone, and continues the endless practicing of tiny phrases, searching for that intonation that will astonish an audience.

"When you hear someone play something that makes you gasp," he says, "it's because you don't know what they did.

Killer Sentenced To Die December 28

SMITHFIELD, N.C. (AP) — Convicted murderer Robert Henry McDowell of Fayetteville was sentenced Tuesday to die in the state's gas chamber on Dec. 28.

The 28-year-old McDowell displayed no emotion as Superior Court Judge Donald Smith pronounced the sentence moments after a Johnston County jury recommended the death penalty.

McDowell was convicted Monday of first-degree murder in the machette slaying of 4-year-old Carol Ann Hinson of Sanford and assault with intent to kill Miss Hinson's 14-year-old aunt, Patsy Mason.

The girls were attacked in the early morning hours of July 15 at their home in East Sanford.

McDowell becomes the 10th person on North Carolina's death row, according to state Correction Department officials. His execution is automatically stayed by appeal.

Expert testimony during the week-long trial in Johnston County revealed that Miss Hinson suffered nine separate knife cuts on her head, with at least four and possibly six of them fatal.

Miss Mason, who survived the attack, required 300 stitches to close wounds on her head and face. She will undergo plastic surgery to remove the extensive scarring in February.

In arguments by the prosecution for the death penalty, District Attorney John W. Twisdale told the jury that McDowell had "forfeited his right to live."

Twisdale reminded the jury that at the time of his arrest in the Hinson murder, McDowell was on parole in the 1972 second-degree murder conviction of an elderly Fayetteville woman.

Co-defense attorney Jim Hoyle of Sanford, however, argued that McDowell was "a human being who can be rehabilitated. Are we going to take vengeance on him and put him to death?"

The jury deliberated two hours and 10 minutes before returning with its recommendation for death. Jurors deliberated only 71 minutes on Monday before returning their guilty verdict.

By MARTIN WALD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Iranian situation has kept President Carter off the campaign trail, but it has not prevented him from actively using the lure of the White House to bring the campaign to him.

Today, for instance, he arranged an afternoon in Washington for more than three dozen leaders from Manhattan's network of neighborhood Democratic clubs — a level of political workers not accustomed to being briefed by the president's top domestic and foreign policy advisers or having the president himself "drop in" on their meetings.

They are part of a parade of politicians and "community leaders" who have been flattered with invitations or personal telephone calls from Carter in recent weeks.

Although White House staff members say Carter is no more accessible than usual, his activities are provoking criticism and frustration among supporters of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., in much the same way then-President Ford's "Rose Garden strategy" was attacked by Carter during the 1976 campaign. Kennedy is challenging Carter for the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination.

"If he's so busy with Iran, then why has he had time to call all those county (Democratic) chairmen in Iowa?" one Kennedy campaign official complained recently. He asked not to be named.

"He is not devoting 24 hours a day to Iran," responded Carter's press secretary, Jody Powell. "If he can't travel — and in our view he can't — I don't think he should be placed in the position of doing nothing for his re-election efforts."

More than just county chairmen in Iowa, the first state to choose national convention delegates, are reporting calls from the White House.

"He has tremendous discipline. He must be spending two hours a day on the phone," said one political aide whose boss is still uncommitted in the Democratic contest. "City councilmen in Buffalo, (N.Y.,) John Deere factory managers in Iowa, these calls are turning up everywhere," said the aide who also requested anonymity.

The Iranian crisis forced Carter to cancel a long-planned campaign tour last week that would have put him on television stations and front pages across the country. Instead, he has had the cameras in to catch him greeting visitors from out of town in the Cabinet Room or some other White House setting.

Seek Control Of Schools

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Public school officials in North Carolina are joining forces to seek more local control and flexibility on how money is spent in their school systems.

Douglas Magann, superintendent of Guilford County's school system, recently outlined a proposal to the state calling for lump sum payments to the school systems. He acted at the request of eight other large systems.

"It's become a critical issue," Magann said Tuesday. "There's just not enough flexibility for local school boards. They don't have the ability to respond to local needs. The assumption now is the needs are the same in every county and that's not true."

State funds now are allocated to school systems in almost 100 categories, each carrying rigid guidelines on how the money will be used. In most cases, the money can't be transferred from one category to another.

As an example, Magann said his system "can pay for taxi rides and parents to bring handicapped children to school but that money can't be used for mini-buses and drivers for those students."

A proposed revision in the state allocations will be presented to the 1981 General Assembly.

Rhodesia Gets A Caretaker

SALISBURY, Zimbabwe Rhodesia (AP) — Lord Soames was arriving in Salisbury today to restore British rule briefly over its former African colony after 14 years despite warnings from guerrilla leaders that the move was premature.

Although the son-in-law of the late Sir Winston Churchill was coming as a caretaker governor to arrange new elections and manage the transition to legal independence as soon as possible, the Zimbabwe Rhodesian government laid on a full program of pomp and ceremony for his arrival.

The highlight of the airport ceremony was the playing of "God Save the Queen" and the raising of the Union Jack for the first time since former Prime Minister Ian Smith's all-white government unilaterally declared independence from Britain in 1965 to forestall black rule.

In preparation for the governor's arrival, Zimbabwe Rhodesia's first black-majority Parliament met Tuesday and voted to dissolve itself and restore governmental power to Britain.

Although the vote was a formality ratifying agreements reached at the 13-week-old London peace talks, the session stretched late into the night as black and white legislators took advantage of their last opportunity to voice fears and hopes for the future.

The British government decided to dispatch Soames to Salisbury despite a deadlock in the peace talks over organization of a cease-fire in the seven-year war between the Patriotic Front guerrillas and Rhodesian government forces.

The conference agreed in principle on a cease-fire last Wednesday, but guerrilla leaders Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe have objected to the proposed massing of their troops at 15 camps encircled by British peacekeeping forces while government forces remain at their regular bases.

Tim O'Conner Has Free Time

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Tim O'Connor, who plays super scientist Dr. Huer in the new "Buck Rogers" series, is a bridegroom for the third, and he hopes, for the last time.

O'Connor, best remembered perhaps for his newspaperman role in the old "Peyton Place" series, had been divorced for almost five years when he fell in love with his neighbor in Santa Monica canyon, a block from the Pacific.

Last August O'Connor and Sheila Maclurg, who lived only three houses away, marched to the altar. It was the second marriage for the bride. They had known each other a year and a half.

Sheila has three grown sons and O'Connor is the father of 27-year-old Tim, a Hollywood musician.

Once they decided on marriage, Sheila and Tim faced no indecision about whose house they would live in. Definitely, it would be Sheila's larger, more comfortable dwelling.

In order to condense two households' worth of furniture into one home, they held garage sales at both places.

"We spent a lot of time sorting out our furniture and the junk people accumulate over the years," Tim says. "I'd been in my house for six years and Sheila had lived in hers even longer."

On moving day Tim thought it would be a cinch to make the transfer. But he hired a moving van with three men who spent an entire day loading the truck, driving it 100 yards down the street and unloading it.

Tim brought in a contractor to knock down some walls and add some space to the house which has a rustic atmosphere.

Their home is a combination of modern, contemporary pieces. Sheila cultivates flower and vegetable gardens and is trying to interest her bridegroom in her horticultural projects with little success.

Tim much prefers to spend his spare time sailing his 32-foot boat around the Channel Islands off the California coast. Sheila has become an enthusiastic mariner, too. They often spend 10 days at a time sailing the Pacific.

"I'm a good sailor," Tim admits. "The winds are best in the wintertime and I'm an old hand at navigating by the stars."

The O'Connors have plenty of time for recreation. Tim often works only two or three days a week on the NBC series which is filmed at Universal Studios, a traffic-jammed 45-minute drive from home.

Tim owned a motorhome and motorcycle before he met Sheila. He has had better luck converting his wife to the wide open spaces, taking trips and riding dirt bikes, than she has interesting him in gardening.

He jogs and visits a gym daily and plays an occasional game of tennis.

Both O'Connors are accomplished cooks and often prepare meals together. Tim says his years as a single man necessitated his mastery in the kitchen.

"I had enough of being a bachelor," he says. "I was beginning to get accustomed to living alone and that wasn't good. I like being married."

The principal problem facing O'Connor involves his cat, Nikki, who has refused to accept Sheila's house as his new home — probably because Sheila has four cats of her own who resent the intruder.

Study Savings Via Thermostat

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The first part of a study which will later extend to 10 northeastern and midwest states shows that a typical household in New York State can save from $31 to $177 a year on fuel bills by turning down the thermostat 10 degrees at night.

The survey, by the Energy Management Information Center of the Honeywell Corp., said results will depend on the type and efficiency of the heating system, utility rates and the location of the house.

ART WORKS RECOVERED

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Some $15 million worth of art works stolen from Spanish cathedrals and churches in recent months have been recovered, and some of the thieves arrested, police say.

Railroads: Old Idea Whose Time Has Returned

By DONALD PHILLIPS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Railroads appear to be an old idea whose time has come ... again.

The energy crisis alone has propelled the freight train to the forefront of transportation planning into the next century, not only as an energy efficient way to move freight but as the chief hauler of the coal which apparently will play a major role in the U.S. energy future.

Already, freight traffic is beginning to climb, with tonnage up 5.3 percent so far this year over the same period in 1978.

But many in government and railroading are looking ahead longingly for some indication that the industry can somehow find the money to modernize itself to handle the crush of freight that seems to be coming.

The Federal Railroad Administration has estimated that railroads will need $18 billion in new funds over the next decade, and it now appears that they can generate only a fraction of that amount.

The railroad industry as a whole has a poor earnings record. For the 12-month period ending June 30, the net return on investment was only 2.54 percent, hardly the sort of earnings to finance a massive modernization program.

And the word "modernize" is an alien concept to some railroads in the Midwest and East which are struggling merely to survive.

The bankrupt Rock Island, for example, is now being run by the Kansas City Terminal Railroad, actually a consortium of railroads in the area. And there is doubt that the Rock Island will ever run as a separate railroad again.

Contingency plans already are underway to split up the lines of the Rock Island — a web of lines stretching west from Chicago to Colorado, New Mexico and Louisiana — among other railroads in the area.

In the meantime, farmers are complaining loudly that their grain will soon rot if they cannot get it to market faster.

Also in the same area, the failing Milwaukee Road wants to drop more than half its system — hundreds of miles in Iowa and its entire western extension from Miles City, Mont., to Tacoma, Wash. — leaving a core from Louisville, Ky., through Chicago to the Twin Cities and Duluth, and a line from Chicago to Kansas City.

Congress has temporarily halted the Milwaukee shutdown, but it seems certain that many hundreds of miles of rail line eventually will be dropped because of the problems of the Rock Island and the Milwaukee.

The problem is that there is simply too much rail line in an area that produces too little revenue. At the same time, farmers want to get their crops to market.

There are railroading success stories, of course, mainly in the West and the South.

Southern Railway, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Santa Fe, Missouri Pacific and other southern and western roads are relatively prosperous and are reporting increased earnings even as they pour more money into new plant and equipment.

The Burlington Northern — a giant which stretches from Chicago to Seattle, Colorado and Texas — is experiencing a traffic boom that may be unmatched in railroading history, all because it just happens to lie astride some of the country's largest deposits of low sulfur coal.

Already many lines of the BN are choked with coal trains, and the same thing is expected to happen to other railroads in the area.

Until now, the "railroad problem" meant the "eastern railroad problem." For decades, the railroads of the East have been the poor sisters of the industry.

Mergers did nothing to help, and probably hurt. The Penn Central likely was a greater disaster than either of its predecessor companies — the Pennsylvania Railroad and the New York Central system — could have been separately.

But something is happening in the East now that has heads shaking and has produced looks of disbelief from a lots of folks who "knew better."

Conrail — the giant federally planned and financed system built from the Penn Central and other eastern bankrupts — actually may make a go of it. In fact, the company actually turned a modest profit in the April-June quarter of this year.

"The current economic downturn may well delay improvements in Conrail's financial position," said Donald Cole, president of the U.S. Railway Association, which planned and now finances Conrail. "But it is clear the railroad has begun to show encouraging signs of a turnaround."

The government already has authorized an investment of $3.3 billion in Conrail, most of which is supposed to be repaid, and the railroad says it will not need any more if federal regulations of rail rates and abandonments are substantially ended.

Although USRA disagrees, and speculates that perhaps as much as $400 million more may be needed, it is clear that Conrail will not be the disaster that many predicted, and may well be the railroading success story of the next decade.

Conrail's confident predictions of success point up another problem: what to do about the mass of federal regulation which railroads say is forcing them to continue unprofitable operations and preventing them from raising rates enough to break even.

The other side of the coin is the farmer who could lose his low-cost freight service if his branch line was abandoned, or the shipper who might be hit with massive rate increases because his product has been carried at a loss by the railroads for years.

An example of what can happen, even within the current regulatory framework, is the rapid rise in coal freight rates.

The railroads convinced the Interstate Commerce Commission that the tiny profit on coal would not be enough to upgrade their track and buy new locomotives and cars to handle the coming crush of coal, and the ICC has granted a series of rate increases.

Howls of anger have arisen, particularly from electric utilities in the Southwest which found that "cheap" low-sulfur coal from Montana wasn't so cheap after they paid the freight costs. At least one court challenge has been filed.

Meanwhile, the industry rolls toward the future on track that is often substandard, and that also has produced problems.

A freight train wreck is an impressively disastrous sight, but when that wreck contains tank cars filled with explosive or deadly chemicals, a wreck becomes a true disaster.

These disasters often are brought about by poor track, and poor track is almost always brought about by a lack of enough money to perform proper maintenance.

Labor relations are better than they ever have been on the railroads, and unions appear more willing today to see fewer workers do more productive work. The days of "featherbedding" are by no means gone, but work practices no longer are the major problem they once were.

Money — or the lack of it — is the key to the future of freight railroading. Someone must provide the money, and it appears that a pattern is being set: charge the shippers as much as they can take, then make up the difference with federal and state funds.

The government in 1971 removed most of the burden of passenger losses by forming Amtrak to take over most of the country's passenger trains.

And, to save eastern railroads, the government formed Conrail to haul freight.

In the same law that established Conrail, Congress also included loan and grant funds to help failing midwestern railroads. It remains to be seen whether some form of Conrail must be established in the Midwest.

A number of states have bought unprofitable branch lines that might have been abandoned, and are operating them, sometimes at a profit. And there is talk of a permanent program of federal subsidies for money-losing branch lines which cannot be abandoned for social and political reasons.

In any case, it is clear that after decades of indifference and neglect, both government and industry have decided that railroads are useful and must be preserved.

URGES EXPANSION — John C. Kenefick, President of the Union Pacific Railroad, says expansion is needed throughout the nation's grain-handling system to move record crops. (UPI Photo)

TVA Plans Fuel Cell Plant In Multi-Million Dollar Project

By MATT YANCEY
Associated Press Writer

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Comparing it with efforts to develop a breeder reactor for nuclear power, the Tennessee Valley Authority has begun a $24 million project to build the nation's first coal-based fuel cell power plant.

The government utility's three directors on Tuesday approved the construction of a 250-kilowatt phosphoric acid fuel cell pilot plant that will be operated on gas derived from medium quality coal.

The gas will be supplied from a $42 million coal gassification plant that TVA is now building near Muscle Shoals, Ala. TVA plans to have the fuel cell in operation by mid-1983.

Working much like an automobile battery, the fuel cell converts fuel into electrical energy through a chemical process rather than burning it as in conventional power plants.

Fuel cells provided the power for the Gemini and Apollo spacecrafts and they already are in use some places in providing electricity for apartments and commercial buildings.

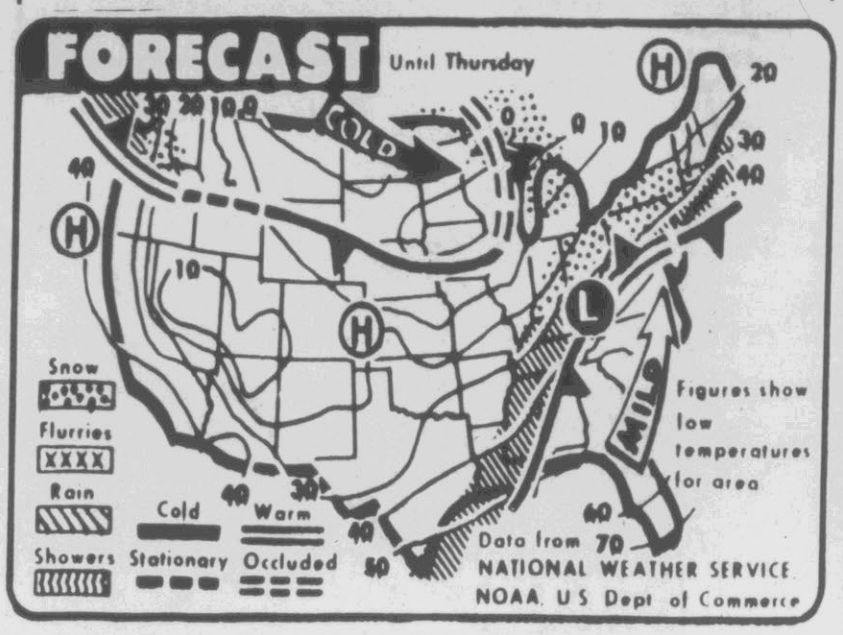
But TVA Energy Research Director Fred Weinhold said TVA's project will be the first large fuel cell power plant utilizing high-sulfur coal that otherwise would create pollution problems if burned.

TVA runs the nation's largest power system, producing electricity for eight million residents in Tennessee, Alabama, North Carolina, Virginia, Kentucky, Mississippi and Georgia. It also is the country's largest user of coal, burning 35 million tons a year to generate that power.

"Over the long term, it looks like the fuel cell might compare favorably in the 1990s with fluidized bed and nuclear power plants," TVA Chairman S. David Freeman said. "TVA now owns 700 million tons of high-sulfur coal sitting in the ground and we have to look at technologies that might make use of it."

Director Bob Clement questioned whether the agency was spreading its research and development dollars too thin.

How's The Weather?



WEATHER FORECAST — Rain is expected in the forecast period until Thursday morning from the western Gulf to the Midwest and changing to snow reaching from the Midwest to New England. Snow is forecast for the Great Lakes and a mixture of snow and rain for the Pacific Northwest. Temperatures will be cold from the northern Rockies to the Great Lakes and mild in the East. Seasonable readings are forecast for most of the Pacific coast and Southwest. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press

A wet weather pattern expected to form over western North Carolina today will bring scattered showers to some of the state by late today and throughout the state Thursday.

Still another low pressure system may form along the front as it slides off the coast. And this could prolong rainy weather into Saturday, at least in the eastern half of the state.

Bright, sunny weather dominated North Carolina Tuesday and, figuring that winter is only 10 days away, you could classify the temperatures as warm. Highs ranged from 61 at cape hatteras to 68 degrees at Wilmington and Black Mountain.

Skies remained fair overnight. Temperatures generally were in the 40s.

Claim Govm't Hinders Nuke Plant Operations

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Officials of two utilities serving North Carolina say federal reaction to the accident at Three Mile Island has prevented them from meeting efficiency targets at their nuclear generating stations.

Officials of Carolina Power and Light Co. and Virginia Electric and Power Co. said Tuesday that they had been unable to operate their nuclear plants at 60 percent of capacity during the past six months.

A spokesman for Duke Power Co., the third major utility in the state, said it met the efficiency goal but still suffered an unusual number of "outages" because of federal reaction to the Three Mile Island accident near Harrisburg, Pa.

Three Mile Island's impact on nuclear productivity was described as officials of the three utilities sought increases effective next month in the fuel costs portion of their consumer electric bills.

The state Utilities Commission last month received requests from Duke Power to increase the fuel costs portion of its electric bills .268 cents per kilowatt hour; from CP&L to increase its fuel cost charges .1484 cents per KWH; and from Vepco to hike its fuel charges .69 cents per KWH.

Commission member Ed Hipp said the 60 percent nuclear generating target is a factor in the commission's decision on whether a fuel cost hike is justified.

According to testimony, CP&L's nuclear reactors generated 57 percent of capacity during the past six months. Vepco managed only 25.4 percent.

Vepco spokesmen said its reactors were out of service most of this year because of Nuclear Regulatory Commission inspections of pipe stress-handling ability and repair of a steam generator.

Aycock School Events Given

Members of the Aycock Junior High School Chorus sang at the Carolina East Mall at 7 p.m. Tuesday. And today, Phil Moran of the Energy Conservation Dept. of Greenville Utilities Commission, is speaking to science classes in Aycock's library.

Forthcoming events scheduled at Aycock include — Thursday, Dec. 13, field trips by eighth grade science and art classes to tour the Museums of Art, History, and Natural History, and the Governor's mansion. Sponsors are Mrs. Nancy Wynne and Mrs. LaVeta Weatherington — Friday, Dec. 14, Christmas assemblies for the fifth and sixth periods, featuring the chorus.

Also, 189 new library books have recently been added to the collection, and the "Jaguar Journal," the school newspaper, will go on sale December 19.

Junior ROTC Groups Parade

The unit received a first place trophy for its participation in the Greenville Jaycee Christmas parade Saturday.

No Public Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Texas Gov. John B. Connally will not use public money in his bid for the 1980 Republican presidential nomination, thus sidestepping federal campaign spending limits, sources say.

Connally believes he needs that financial leeway to finance a catch-up race against the GOP frontrunner, former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, knowledgeable sources who asked not to be identified said Tuesday.

Candidates accepting federal funds are limited in the amounts they may spend. For example, they can invest only $280,000 in New Hampshire, site of the nation's first primary election.

Connally's decision makes him the first major presidential candidate not to take advantage of the federal matching funds available for presidential races since 1976.

His campaign probably will not be short of cash, however. Connally has been more successful than most candidates in obtaining private contributions, and so far has raised more than $8 million.

Despite his decision to forego matching funds, Connally will continue to be bound by a limit of $1,000 per individual contributor and $5,000 for a qualified political action committee.

Girl Gets Probation In Pleading Lesser Charge

A 17-year-old Rose High School student, charged with murder by Greenville police after a fetus was found in a toilet in her home on September 11, pled guilty to the lesser charge of concealing the birth of a child, yesterday in Pitt County Superior Court.

Judge Henry Stevens, who could have sentenced Patricia Lynn Bynum of 1914B Kennedy Cir. to 10 years in prison, ordered her jailed for three to five years, then suspended the sentence and placed her on probation for three years.

In sentencing Ms. Bynum, described by school officials as a model student, Judge Stevens said he felt the infant would have died regardless of her actions, but emphasized, "it was certainly criminal negligence to some degree," in trying to flush the six-month-old fetus down a toilet.

Police were called when a maintenance worker went to Ms. Bynum's Kennedy Circle home to unstop the toilet and found the fetus.

Pitt County medical examiner Dr. Lawrence Harris testified that an autopsy of the male infant revealed that death was due to drowning, adding that the chances of a child surviving a birth at that age were probably less than 50 percent.

Testifying for the defense, pathologist Dr. R. Lee West said in his view, the incident was a, "spontaneous abortion of the pregnancy," adding that the chances of survival without intensive medical care were, "practically nil."

West told the court, "that baby could not have lived. This is not a murder case."

Recognize Six For Service

Six persons received recognition for outstanding service to the Society for Collegiate Journalists at the annual Christmas dinner Tuesday.

The cafeteria style dinner was to honor pledges for fall semester, and was held at S & S Cafeteria.

Prof. Ira Baker received a plaque for outstanding service as advisor to the SCJ.

The President's awards for most outstanding officer was received by Martha Oakley, secretary; most outstanding member, Chris Cagle; most outstanding pledge, Ramona Mills; second place for outstanding service was received by Denise Kinlaw; and Leigh Coakley received third place award.

The five outstanding persons received gifts or gift certificates. These awards are a new addition to the journalism society in hopes to enhance member participation and interest.

Service awards will be given for fall semester and spring semester. As an added incentive a chapter award will be given by Ira Baker for the person who has contributed the most to the organization during the year. Members of the SCJ will elect this person.

The society announced the name of the child it will sponsor for Christmas. A family with a child who has special needs was selected.

Treasurer Louise Massey will be student teaching Spring semester and Chris Cagle was elected as acting treasurer.

Car And Truck In Collision

A car driven by Ricky Ruffin of Route 3, Kenly, and a truck operated by Charles Theirn Strickland Jr. of Route 2, Ayden, collided about 9:15 a.m. yesterday on Reade Street, 47 feet North of the Fifth Street intersection.

Greenville Police investigators estimated damage from the mishap at $300 to the Ruffin car and $400 to the Strickland vehicle.

Food Service People Partied

The Greenville City Schools Food Service Personnel held its annual Christmas party Tuesday at Greenville Middle School's cafeteria.

Special honors went to Mrs. Louise Tyson of Sadie Saulter School for her 13 years of work with the school food system. Mrs. Tyson will retire this month.

Plan Nativity Pageant Sunday

The Winterville Baptist Church will present its annual outdoor nativity pageant this Sunday, 5:30 p.m., on the church grounds. The dramatization depicts the birth of Christ, accented by authentic costuming, rustic props, and live stable animals.

The drama is interpreted by narration and music provided by the church choir. The public is invited to attend and urged to allow time to park and find a seat prior to 5:30 p.m. The church is located at 145 S. Church St., Winterville.

Sees Millions Visiting Park

By PHILLIP RAWLS
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Only a few coal miners and squirrel hunters roam the stream's banks now. But the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers says soon a million persons per year will marvel at the sandstone bluffs and white water of the Big South Fork River.

The corps is developing the 125,000-acre Big South Fork National River and Recreation Area in the Cumberland Plateau of Tennessee and Kentucky.

Project Manager Mickey Sullivan says that in five years, when it is 80 percent complete, the park's lodges, camping areas, horseback riding, canoeing, and day-use facilities will attract up to 1.1 million people.

The corps had planned to turn the branch of the Cumberland River into a lake until some politicians and canoe enthusiasts started a movement in the 1960s to save the striking bluffs, Sullivan said in an interview.

After a federal interagency study, Congress decided in 1974 the corps should build a rustic recreation area that the National Park Service would manage.

After getting all $20 million the corps requested for the recreation area last year, Sullivan said the park has a favorable image with Congress. "We've not been labeled pork barrel. We're up there with mom and apple pie," he said.

Of the $20 million, $16 million was used in August to buy 55,000 acres along the state line from Stearns Coal and Lumber Co. Sullivan says the remainder of the park land will be bought during three years.

At present, the park has a $128 million price tag, but Sullivan says that "is in today's dollars" and is certain to increase.

To plan for the million tourists and the facilities they will need, officials in the seven counties affected by the park — McCreary, Wayne and Pulaski counties in Kentucky and Fentress, Scott, Morgan and Pickett counties in Tennessee — have formed the Big South Fork Development Association. The group meets bimonthly and has visited Gatlinburg to find out about the problems created by the opening of the Great Smoky Mountains National Park.

As an example of how counties are planning ahead, Fentress County Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Duane Wakefield said his county was working on improving U.S. 127, a main route to the park, and had already developed a landfill that can handle five years of growth.

Fentress County Judge Castro Knetp said the park's effects could already be felt. A restaurant chain has acquired land in Jamestown and motel chains are looking at property.

"We don't foresee this area becoming a Gatlinburg any time soon," Knetp said. "But to get those tax dollars from tourists, we need to have facilities to get them to come to this side of the park."

More Energy Guide Labels

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Within six months, consumers will find yellow and black energy guide labels on seven types of household appliances.

A new federal rule requires such labels to show energy-efficiency ratings of comparable appliances and estimates of annual operating costs.

Labels containing similar information must be displayed for room air-conditioners.

Water Is Gold To The Farmers In California

By SUSAN SWARD

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — In the thirsty acres of California agriculture, water is gold.

There are few things more precious to a farmer than water and what happens to it — how much it costs, how much of it is available and how much government tries to regulate its use.

As the pioneers settled California, people shot at each other over water rights, and fortunes were made and lost over irrigation ditches and where they flowed.

George Ballis of National Land for People, which aims to break up large corporate land holdings, says that to understand California politics one must see gold in irrigation ditches.

That is why what might seem like an innocuous draft state report on underground water supplies is stirring up more than a little flurry in towns like Redding, Hanford and Bakersfield.

The report lists 16 underground basins subject to critical conditions of overdraft — losing more water than is replaced by nature — and it recommends new boundaries for 33 basins. All this might seem like interesting reading for water or geology students except for one thing: California's $10 billion agriculture industry looks on this approach asa step toward state regulation.

"There's no bones about it. They're trying to get their nose in our tent, and we intend to hit them right on the nose," said Joe Summers, a Hanford consulting engineer who represents the Tulare Lake Basin Water Storage District and several other water clients.

Mickey Allen, lobbyist for the Association of California Water Agencies, says his clients' message is simple: "State control of groundwater is unacceptable to us in any form."

"We don't want Big Daddy State coming in and saying, 'You have to cut back' without any regard to the investment" farmers have in their land, Allen said.

Currently, the state has no power over whether a farmer can drill a well. The farmer must merely inform the state he is doing so, and any water-rights disputes are typically fought out in court.

Underground water, stored in vast areas of sandy soil beneath the earth's surface, is free — in contrast to the water a farmer buys from a local, state or federal water project — and a farmer can pump a virtually unlimited amount.

One result of this state of affairs is an annual overdraft of about 1.5 million acre feet of water in the San Jalley alone. The overdraft statewide is close to 2.2 million acre feet a year.

An acre foot of water is what the average family of four uses in one year. It would cover a football field with one foot of water.

There's no dispute that overdraft is a problem. The dispute comes when talk turns to solutions.

A bill, which included recommendations of a Brown administration water commission and required local management of six areas with severe overdraft, stalled this legislative session after several hearings in its first committee.

Agriculture and water industry spokesmen opposed the bill.

Allen says: "There are only two ways to correct overdraft. You bring in additional supplies or you take existing lands out of production. There's no alternative."

Charles Shoemaker, deputy director of the state Department of Water Resources, agrees with agriculture spokesmen that farmers are doing "a very fine job" of efficiently using the water available.

But Shoemaker says the overdraft problem persists and will only worsen as thousands of additional acres are used for farming in the next decades in California.

Gasoline For Riderless

By TOM CRANE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Gov. Hugh L. Carey has released additional gasoline supplies for Long Island residents who have been forced to use their cars because of the Long Island Rail Road strike.

Meanwhile, the first talks between workers and the railroad since the strike began five days ago were scheduled for today, but prospects of face-to-face bargaining were uncertain.

Carey, hoping to avoid a strike-caused gasoline shortage of 1 million gallons, ordered the release Tuesday of up to 5 million gallons from state reserves to offset any shortages resulting from the increased use of automobiles by commuters.

The dispute was also marred by violence Tuesday as seven emergency buses used to haul Long Island commuters were disabled with flat tires and smashed windows in two stations where strikers were picketing.

The 300-mile LIRR is the only rail link to Manhattan available to the 2.75 million persons living on the island, which juts 110 miles eastward to the Atlantic Ocean.

Returning Ft. Sumter's Flag

CHARLESTON (AP) — A slightly tattered 3-by-5 foot flag, symbolic of the South's secession from the Union and of the fall of Fort Sumter, will be officially turned over to the federal government this week.

The flag, first to fly over Fort Sumter in Charleston harbor after Confederate troops captured the stronghold in 1861, will be ceremonially received by the U.S. Park Service on Thursday.

Presenting the flag will be the grandson of John Styles Bird, a member of the Charleston-based Palmetto Guard, which occupied Fort Sumter after it fell in a Confederate bombardment that began the Civil War.

Bird raised the flag soon after Rebel troops captured the fort on April 13, 1861, but a Confederate flag replaced it.

The flag has been on display at Fort Sumter, now a national park, since September while negotiations were under way for its permanent acquisition by the government.

Park historian Robert Bradley said Tuesday the flag was in good condition despite some tatters.

The flag, showing a brown and green palmetto tree on a white background, was made for the Palmetto Shipping Co. before the Civil War. Ship Capt. Edward Mills had a red star added in the upper left corner and flew it from his vessel in New York harbor in the fall of 1860 when secession talk was sweeping the country.

A red star was a symbol of secession, and when Mills returned to Charleston he was a hero. He gave the flag to Bird.

The Palmetto Guard later occupied the U.S. Arsenal, which South Carolina seized when the state left the union Dec. 20-21, 1861.

In the spring the Palmetto Guard was stationed on Morris Island in Charleston harbor, one of the sites Confederate guns used to shell Fort Sumter, and flew the flag there.

When Maj. Robert Anderson surrendered Fort Sumter, the Palmetto Guard occupied it and Bird raised the flag over its northern parapet, facing Charleston. An official Confederate flag replaced it shortly afterward, however.

Later in the war the flag was flown by the Palmetto Guard at the battle of Bull Run in Virginia. It was returned to South Carolina and to the Birds when the unit received an official Confederate battle flag.

Slaughter 14 Untouchables

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Police reported unidentified men killed 14 Hindu Untouchables and wounded eight others in a raid on Jadonpur village, in Uttar Pradesh state 200 miles southeast of New Delhi, the United News of India reported.

The raiders set six houses on fire and shot the occupants as they ran out, the report said. The fire also destroyed livestock and grain.

The Untouchables are the lowest Hindu caste.

No One Jokes About Rats And Cats On Island

AP News Special
By WILLIAM F. NICHOLSON
Associated Press Writer

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — When the South Africans came, the rats came too. So the South Africans imported cats. Then there were too many of them, so the South Africans brought in more.

The ecological misadventure story began in 1947 when South Africa annexed Marion and Prince Edward Islands 1,150 miles to the southeast and put a weather observation station on Marion.

When the weathermen arrived, a number of rats slipped ashore and took up residence. It wasn't long before the meteorologists had lots of unwelcome rats for company.

Somebody thought of cats. In 1948, five common house cats were brought to the island and set free. They quickly ate their way through some of the rat population but also discovered it was easier to catch and eat the sea birds roosting on the island.

When they weren't out foraging, they were reproducing. By 1976, the feline population was estimated at 6,000, devouring 1.2 million birds a year. Petrels, graceful in the air but clumsy on the ground, were the favorite, but zoologists said other species also were endangered.

The cats had been hunted. They had been trapped. Those that could be caught were sterilized. But the population boom continued.

In 1976, 100 more cats were brought to Marion. But these were infected with feline enteritis. They were delivered by helicopter to selected areas of the island.

"The virus does not affect anything else, and that is why we decided to use it," said Rudi van Aarde of Pretoria University's Mammal Research Institute. "The virus has spread successfully through the island and has reduced the mean population by 54 per cent."

Now the zoologists are concerned that the 3,000 remaining cats, or some of their descendants, will produce a generation immune to the virus, and the population explosion will start all over again.

"No one jokes about the nine lives of cats any more," said Professor John Skinner of Pretoria University's Zoology Department.

Fast Mail For Package

There is a fast way to mail Christmas packages that last-minute shoppers may have overlooked, according to Greenville Postmaster H. Lloyd Mills.

Priority Mail affords first class handling for packages weighing over 12 ounces and up to 70 pounds. It's fast and consistent, offering next day delivery up to 150 miles from the originating post office and delivery in three days anywhere in the United States, during the Christmas season.

"It's the ideal service for people who want prompt package delivery yet avoid the higher cost of express mail," said Mills.

Priority Mail can be sent from any post office, station or branch or through rural carriers to any address in the United States and even to foreign countries. The service is available with insurance, return receipts, COD, certificates of mailing and special delivery. Customers interested in Priority Mail should contact the Post Office for details.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices were little changed in early trading today despite signs of growing support for higher prices among oil-producing countries and a declining dollar in currency markets.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up .34 to 834.04 in the first half hour of trading. But losing issues outnumbered gainers by a 5-4 margin in an early tally of trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

On Tuesday, the market faded from a gain of about 5 points in the Dow index after the secretary general of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries said a 30 percent increase in oil prices was possible at next week's OPEC meeting. Today, Nigeria said it was considering an oil price of at least $30 a barrel up from about $26 a barrel now.

The dollar, meanwhile, declined in European currency markets in early trading today but was improved against the yen in Tokyo.

Oil stocks were mixed in the early going. Gulf rose ⅛ to 35⅝; Texaco gained ⅛ to 29⅛; Exxon was unchanged at 56¾; Occidental Petroleum fell ⅛ to 26⅞ and Atlantic Richfield lost ¼ to 80.

Among actively traded issues, National Semiconductor was off ⅛ to 35. The data processing company gained 1⅞ as the most active NYSE issue Tuesday.

On Tuesday, the Dow Jones industrial average declined .17 to 833.70 and losing issues outnumbered gainers by a 4-3 margin on the NYSE. Big Board volume totaled 36.16 million shares, against 32.27 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index lost .11 to 61.55. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 1.60 at 235.11.

DRIVER INJURED — Members of the Greenville Rescue Squad remove the driver of a car this morning after it collided with a truck north of Greenville. According to Trooper S. F. Padgett, a car driven by Elizabeth Hardison Griffin, of Williamston was headed south on N.C. 903, when it pulled into the path of a truck driven by Walter Claxton Gray. Gray, according to Padgett, was headed north on N.C. 11. The truck struck the left side of the car. The auto was listed as a total loss, while damages to the truck were listed as $1000. Mrs. Griffin, according to the investigator, was charged with failure to yield the right of way. Investigation into the wreck is continuing. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Minor Damage In Tuesday Fire

LITTLEFIELD — Firemen were called to Ayden-Grifton High School shortly before noon yesterday when a dust collection system in the industrial arts area caught fire.

According to officials on the scene the fire was contained to the unit which was located outside the building.

Ayden firemen and Grifton members were called to the school.

Damage was confined to the unit and no damage resulted to the school. Only minor smoke resulted inside the building.

Cause of the fire was not determined.

nience and Necessity.

The resolution was adopted for a trust agreement for transfer of land from the City of Greenville to Greenville Art Center, and the council approved it.

A special call meeting is scheduled for Jan. 21 at 5 p.m. on the submission of an application for Section 18 Transit Operating and Capital Assistance Grant Applications.

The council approved authorization to execute a Transit Capital Grant Contract with the N. C. Department of Transportation.

The Community Development Program will be amended to include the paving of Deck Street in the unpaved streets project. An ordinance was approved to amend the 1976-77 Community Development Budget ordinance to appropriate funds for paving of Deck Street.

Contracts were awarded for two projects and one was rejected. Bids were received for lighting fixtures and installation of fixtures at Guy Smith Stadium. Womack Electrics was awarded the contract, for its low bid of $17,226. The installation of fixtures was rejected because three competitive bids were not received. This will be done at a later date.

A $15,000 amount with some addition was approved for the fencing at the Public Works Facility site. Contracts were awarded to Whitehurst & Sons Contractors, for its base bid of $14,309.00.

Five items on the agenda arescheduled for a public hearing on Jan. 10, 1980.

A resolution was adopted stating the intent of the City Council to consider the involuntary annexation of an area encompassing the Louis W. Evans property south of Red Bank Road within the present corporate city limits and west of N. C. 43, north of the Ralph C. Tucker property and east of the David A. Evans property, all in the Oakmont Professional Plaza area. A public hearing on the involuntary annexation has been set for March 13.

Also, the council approved extending extraterritorial zoning and subdivision jurisdiction to an area west of Allen Road, and will send this matter to the County Commissioners for that board's action.

The special call meeting last night was Mayor Cox's final official meeting. Mayor-elect Don McGlohon will be sworn into office on Thursday.

SCROOGE...

Are the Langhams heeding the advice they give?

"Yes, we are," Mrs. Langham said. "Unfortunately, we don't have children. We're confining our giving only to each other and to our parents. We've explained our new feelings about not giving nor accepting Christmas presents to our brothers and sisters and aunts and uncles."

What are they giving each other? "Much-needed winter coats," she answered. "Charles especially needed one, since he's riding his bicycle to work these days."

About 75 acquaintances joined SCROOGE initially, Mrs. Langham said, and more requests for membership and "principle cards" are coming in all the time since an Associated Press article was circulated last week. Membership is $2.50 "for a lifetime." A newsletter is contemplated.

Driver Ran Off Street In Crash

A 4:10 a.m. collision today on Tenth Street, 50 feet East of the Maple Street intersection resulted in an estimated $12,000 damage, Police Department investigators reported.

Officers said a car driven by Marsha Elizabeth Gentry of Raeford, ran off the road, collided with a brick fence, trees, shrubs, and a house at 625 Maple Street.

Damage was set at $10,000 to the house, fence and yard, while damage to the car was set at $2,000.

Pitt's Fuel Program Set

The Fuel Program in Pitt County will begin Monday.

Heads of households who are 60 years of age or older and/or handicapped should go to the Senior Citizens Building located behind the old Pitt Co. Memorial Hospital off the Falkland Highway.

Heads of households who are under 60 years of age should go to the Pitt County Dept. of Social Services to make application.

All applicants must have their Social Security number, verification of income of every household member, and a copy of any unpaid fuel or energy-related bills.

Applications will be taken at both the Senior Citizens Building and the Social Services Department Dec. 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 27, 28, and 31.

Appointments By Grifton Bd.

GRIFTON — The Grifton Town Board of Commissioners made appointments to the Grifton Planning Board and Board of Adjustments during its Tuesday meeting.

Charlie Hardee, Gene Hayward, Ed Reeves, Troy Jackson and Irene Smith were selected to represent the intown Grifton residents for Pitt County, with Edna Butler, Sam McLawhorn and Alan Rountree as county representatives.

Obituaries

Ebron

Mr. Lorenza Ebron died Tuesday in Pitt Memorial Hospital. He was the husband of Mrs. Arlene Bynum Ebron, 409 S. Village Dr., Greenville. Funeral arrangements are incomplete at Flangan Funeral Home.

Howerin

Mr. Jesse R. "Bob" Howerin, 97, died Tuesday in Craven County Hospital, New Bern.

The funeral service will be held Thursday at 1 p. m. in the First Pentecostal Holiness Church, Greenville, by the Rev. Frank Gentry, the pastor, and the Rev. Raymond Potter of Goldsboro. Burial will be in South Creek Baptist Church Cemetery near Aurora. The body will be taken from the Wilkerson Funeral Home to the church one hour prior to the service.

Mr. Howerin, a Pitt County native, had lived most of his life in South Creek and Washington, N. C. He was a tugboat captain until his retirement in 1950. He was a charter member of Swan Quarter Pentecostal Holiness Church.

Surviving him are three sons, William O. and James S. Howerin, both of Virginia Beach, Va. and Jesse R. Howerin of Filton, Del.; three daughters, Mrs. Lola Sanderson of Greenville and Mrs. Marjorie Spencer and Mrs. Esther Bors, both of Albany, N. Y.; 16 grandchildren; 36 great grandchildren; and two great great grandchildren.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home tonight from 7 to 9 o'clock.

Church Giving Music Program

BETHEL — There will be a music program at Mayo Chapel Baptist Church Saturday at 7 p. m.

On the program will be the Gospel Seekers, the Voice of Heaven Gospel Singers, and the Royal Harmonettes, all of Tarboro, plus the Golden Keys of Robersonville.

The public is invited, the pastor says.

Bloodmobile Gets 104 Pints Tuesday

Tuesday's Bloodmobile visit at the Union Carbide plant here resulted in a collection of 104 pints of blood.

Mrs. Ruth Taylor, executive secretary of the Pitt County Red Cross, reported that in addition to the 104 donors, eight persons were deferred for various health reasons.

Mrs. Taylor said that the plant visit was open to the general public and a number of area citizens turned out to donate blood.

Appreciation was offered to Union Carbide for having the blood drive and to Mary Alvan, plant nurse, for her work in coordinating the visit. The Bloodmobile makes two visits per fiscal year at the plant.

Mrs. Taylor also thanked the volunteer nurses who assisted and the women of the Greenville Service League for their help.

The next Bloodmobile visit in the area will be on Jan. 7 at Pitt Community College. Mrs. Taylor said that the drive will mark the first visit at PCC.

Guests At PCC Meet

Dr. Leonard Lilley, coordinator of adult education at East Carolina University, and Ed Mills, director of the adult education program at Lenoir Community College, were guests at a recent meeting of the Pitt Community College adult basic education program.

The meeting included discussion concerning community basing for adult education classes. Other business included a report by ABE coordinator Mary Outterbridge on the PCC program, and the acceptance of Patrick Thomas' resignation as chairperson of the ABE Advisory Committee. Argie Cannon was elected to serve as chairperson for the remainder of the year, with Richard Johnson as co-chairperson.

The PCC ABE participatory planning committee will meet again Feb. 21. Anyone who is interested in serving as an ABE volunteer is asked to contact Mary Outterbridge, 756-3130, extension 266.

BE AN ELF!

Help us bring Christmas to the needy

This Christmas, First Federal Savings & Loan is going to be Santa Claus for many of the needy families in the area. And you can help us by being elves.

Just bring simple gifts—toys, non-perishable foods, money or whatever you would like to give—and put them under the special tree in the lobby of your nearest First Federal office.

We'll work with the Greenville Boys' Clubs and the JayCee's to distribute the gifts before Christmas.

Christmas is a time for giving, and this has been an especially hard year for many of our less fortunate friends and neighbors. Your gifts will help First Federal bring a warm and happy Christmas to the folks who need it most. So help us be Santa. Be an elf, and bring by whatever you can.

Merry Christmas Everyone.

Irish Go Down

Freshman Helps Irish Past Bruins, 77-74

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Last year at this time, John Paxson was playing basketball for Bishop Alter High School in Kettering, Ohio, with his college future still up in the air.

Tuesday night, he was the center of attention in a red-hot Notre Dame-UCLA game with the outcome hinging on his free throw shooting.

"I never thought I'd be in there at the end of a close game," said the wide-eyed freshman.

He never thought he'd be delivering the winning points in the last five seconds, either, as the fourth-ranked Fighting Irish defeated the seventh-ranked Bruins 77-74 at South Bend.

"I don't even remember what I was thinking about," said Paxson, whose older brother, Jim, starred for the University of Dayton last season. "I just went up there with the idea of making them. When I released the shots, they felt good."

With UCLA leading 74-73, the 6-foot-2 Paxson was fouled as he took a desperation shot with five seconds remaining.

"Somebody had to," Paxson said of his shot. "I was just fortunate to get fouled."

Paxson sank the go-ahead free throws, then stole a UCLA pass and was fouled intentionally. He hit the clinching foul shots with two seconds to go as Notre Dame defeated UCLA for the sixth time in the last eight meetings of this great series.

The other Top Ten teams in the state of Indiana didn't do too badly, either, as top-ranked Indiana defeated No. 16 Georgetown 76-69 and No. 9 Purdue stopped Nebraska 78-56.

Senior Mike Woodson scored 23 points and freshman Isiah Thomas added 19 to highlight Indiana's victory. Thomas, a 6-foot-3 guard, scored 10 of his points in the final five minutes, including six key free throws in bonus situations.

The victory was Indiana's fourth in as many starts. Georgetown, led by Craig Shelton's 23 points, suffered its first loss after three victories.

"Thomas adds a new dimension (to Indiana) with a quick guard," said Georgetown Coach John Thompson. "I think they (the Hoyas) worked very hard, and they haven't done that in the past."

Guard Keith Edmonson and center Joe Barry Carroll made key baskets at the start of the second half to trigger Purdue over previously unbeaten Nebraska.

Purdue, now 5-0, led only 3331 at halftime before going on a 14-2 tear for a 47-33 advantage that sent the Cornhuskers down to their first defeat in five games. Edmonson scored six points and Carroll four in the Boilermaker spurt.

Moe Iba, Nebraska's interim coach while Coach Joe Cipriano is recuperating from surgery, said Purdue is "15 points better than they were a year ago. They have more weapons this year. Edmonson is good at posting a small defensive guard near the basket. When we sagged the defense to stop Carroll, they were able to take advantage of it this year."

Elsewhere, second-ranked Duke whipped Penn 70-57 as Mike Gminski scored 27 points. The contest was the nightcap of a doubleheader at Philadelphia's Palestra. In the opener, LaSalle overwhelmed Rider 102-59 behind Michael Brooks' 33 points.

Bernard Rencher led five players in double figures with 19 points as 15th-ranked St. John's hammered Columbia 91-75. Ronnie Lester had 23 points and Kevin Boyle added 20 to lead 17th-ranked Iowa to an 8162 victory over Wichita State.

Danny Ainge poured in 22 points and Alan Taylor had 16 points and 15 rebounds to lead 18th-ranked Brigham Young to an 80-64 victory over Cal StateFullerton.

BYU Coach Frank Arnold said Cal State-Fullerton appeared tired, pointing out that it was their third road game in five days.

"When you go out on the road as long as they've been, you can't help but get tired," he said.

"We used the press on them and dropped back to the zone. They don't have good outside shooters," he said.

Kenneth Green grabbed 18 rebounds to lead Pan American past Lamar 70-65; Keith Parham scored 21 points to lead Temple over Lehigh 81-64; Baylor whipped McMurry 83-69 as Terry Teagle and Mike Battle combined for 54 points; Mike Evelti's 23 points triggered Vermont past Dartmouth 89-68; Colgate edged Cornell 70-68 as Mike Ferrara scored 47 points; Corny Thompson scored 14 points and grabbed 12 rebounds to pace Connecticut over Fairfield 66-57; Kelvin Troy's 19 points led Rutgers past Massachusetts 84-68; Texas-El Paso held off New Mexico State 68-59 as Terry White scored 16 points and San Francisco stopped Iona 76-66 behind Guy Williams' 20 points.

Also, embattled New Mexico defeated Grand Canyon College 78-68 as Kenny Page and Everette Jefferson combined for 50 points. It was the first victory this season for the Lobos, who lost most of their players in a recent recruiting scandal that has rocked the school.

Panthers Rip Rampants, 70-62

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

BETHEL — North Pitt's Panthers gained revenge for their only loss of the young season last night, handing Rose High School a 70-62 licking.

The Rampettes, however, revenged an earlier loss to North Pitt, gaining a 33-27 win.

The Rampants, with two of their starting five just off the football team, found trouble getting off their gridiron legs and onto their cage ones. That caused the team to play without much cohesion throughout most of the game. They were helter-skelter, both offensively and defensively, and the Panthers took full advantage of it.

While Rose shot poorly from the floor, it was at the foul line that the difference was created. North Pitt shot 12 more free throws, hitting of eight more than did the Rampants as Rose players grabbed more, having trouble getting away from football. They also had some trouble getting position for rebounding, and that led to a number of fouls.

North Pitt was able to get the ball inside to Melvin Simmons for a number of shots, while Reginald Knight pounded away from both inside and outside.

"We looked good in spots," Rose coach Jim Brewington said. "But it turned out about like I figured it would.

"We had to get things together, however, since we open conference play on Friday. We were a little ragged most of the way, and they (North Pitt) were awfully fired up to beat us this time."

Brewington added that there were some things he saw that disturbed him. "Our poor shooting just killed us, but we've only had one day of practice with some of these guys, and I think that will come around.

"We were too much out of control. Maybe I could have waited, but we've got to jell early," he added.

Meanwhile, North Pitt coach Cobby Deans felt Rose was, indeed, handicapped by having to work like they did. "They were still rusty from football. But we did play good defense, probably the best we've played so far this year. We got carried away on offense a few times, but most of the time we did okay.

"We took good shots, and I think our percentage will show that. If you run good patterns, you get good shots and the chance of rebounds if you do miss."

Deans said that the Panthers pressured the ball more than it did in the first game with the two teams. "But last time, they shot the eyes out of the basket. We didn't stop (Donald) House this time, but I don't think many people will."

Rose cashed in on just 28 of 73 shots, a poor 38.4 percentage. North Pitt made 28 of 58, 48.3, but entered the final period with a fine 55.3 percentage.

Rose controlled the boards, 45-41, and had one more turnover. However, going into the final period, Rose was five down in turnovers.

Without the play of House, the Rampants might have found the going hard indeed. House poured in 30 points, almost half of the Rose total. He was the lone Rampant in double figures.

North Pitt took the early lead, moving out to a 6-2 margin before Rose came back to move ahead as House scored all of the Rampant first period points. He put them ahead, 8-6, but two baskets by Simmons returned North Pitt to the lead, 10-8, and they were never headed again. The Panthers padded their lead to 16-10 by the end of the period, and moved out by 12 early in the second period at 26-14. Rose cut it back to as little as six, 28-22, but trailed, 36-27 at halftime.

North Pitt upped the lead to 14 in the third period, 54-40, and held a 60-48 lead as the final quarter got underway. Four free throws by Knight at the start of the quarter upped the lead to 64-48, a 16-point bulge before the Rampants managed to cut it back to as little as six in the late stages.

In the girls' game, Rose used a pressure defense to rattle North Pitt and lead most of the way. After taking a 6-4 lead early, the Rampettes lost it at 7-6 at the end of the period. But Sharon Williams hit to open the second quarter for an 8-7 lead and the Rampettes led the rest of the night.

North Pitt rallied to come within two, but Rose held them off until Connie Dupree tied it at 21-all with 28 seconds left. Kim Waller's jumper, however, returned Rose to the lead, 23-21 at the end of the quarter. The Pant-HERS tied it once more, 23-23, but Williams hit a basket and four straight free throws followed by another backet to stake Rose to a 31-24 lead and they held on from there.

"Our defense did the trick for us tonight," Coach Dennis Gibson said. "We worked on its for the last two weeks, and those two weeks also got the stiffness out of our offense. We still didn't shoot well, and this worries me with our first conference game on Friday."

Gail Stanfield, the Pant-HERS coach agreed that defense was the difference. "We just can't handle the press. We didn't play well and had too many turnovers."

The Rampants play host to Northern Nash on Friday, their first Division I game, while North Pitt travels to Conley for an Eastern Carolina contest.

AP Scrooge And More To Alabama Faithful

NEW YORK (AP) — What happened to the good old days when the postman only rang twice? He rings a whole lot more than that when Alabama fans drag out the stationery to write in support of their beloved Crimson Tide.

And they had plenty to write about last week when Ohio State supplanted Alabama as the No.1 team in The Associated Press final regular-season college football poll.

The nicer letters began "Dear Scrooge" and "To What Big Dummy It May Concern" and ended "Hatefully." And they all — all but one, that is — said the same thing...Alabama should be No.1. Most were of the "How could you?" variety; very few recognized the fact that The AP merely counts the votes and that no AP employee has a vote. And most saw it as a cheap, political trick to boom the Ohio State-Southern Cal Rose Bowl.

Have some excerpts:

—"I do not think that you are a very nice person...You should not even be allowed to sit on the AP Pole (sic)...Even Santa Claus should be mad at you...I hope on Christmas Eve that you have nightmares and all you can see is Roll Tide."

—"For eight voters to omit Alabama from their top three choices is absolutely a horrendous act...It is obvious that you overlooked it altogether because you are probably a part of the campaign to draft USC for national champions."

—"Well, you've done it again, haven't you? I think it's a shame that the money-grubbing bowl politicians are able to control who gets No.1 at the end of each year."

—"How can a team that has been voted No.1 for seven straight weeks fall in the rankings when they win their final game, then take a team that is idle and ranked No.2 and replace the top team? It sounds like a set-up by the sports writers to have the Rose Bowl for the national championship."

—"I know that you can't tell the people how to vote, but you damn sure can see that more responsible people are appointed as voters next time."

—"Alabama proved their championship qualities in coming from behind in the fourth quarter, driving 82 yards to beat an 8-3 Auburn team; however, Ohio State had to block a punt to beat an 8-3 Michigan team. I sincerely hope this will be under serious consideration after the bowl games are completed."

—"How can eight voters leave them out of the top three and still look at themselves in the mirror? It's pure, simple politics, as usual."

—"It is my opinion that people are against the South and I disagree on how Alabama has dropped from No.1 and don't understand and I would like a return letter if you could enlighten me on the subject because this is football country and if you could have been one of the 80,000 people to attend the Alabama-Auburn game you would agree completely."

—"My husband and I think that it is stupid and sad that The AP poll doesn't know its job well enough to know that Alabama is and always will be No.1."

—"You people say Alabama

Brewington Named To Senior Bowl

East Carolina linebacker Mike Brewington has become the second member of this year's team to be selected to play in a post-season all-star game.

Brewington, who is a graduate of Rose High School here, has been named to the South squad to appear in the Senior Bowl. The game will be played on January 12 in Mobile, Ala.

Brewington, a 6-4, 230-pound linebacker, joins fellow senior Mitchell Johnston, selected earlier to play in the Blue-Gray game, also to be held in Mobile.

NEW PROGRAM FOR HAIR LOSS

Mr. Fryer and Mrs. Trautvetter show how they regrew hair. They did not have male pattern baldness.

Mr. J.M. JONES WILL EXPLAIN HAIR PROBLEMS AT THE HOLIDAY INN, US 13 MEMORIAL DR., GREENVILLE, N.C., FRIDAY, DECEMBER 14, 1979.

Mr. J.M. Jones will be back in Greenville, N.C., again, Friday, December 14, 1979.
Now is the time to act on this great opportunity. Every man and woman now losing hair should take advantage of this FREE CONSULTATION.

GUARANTEED
You will be given a written guarantee on a pro-rated basis from the beginning to the end.
Naturally we could not give you such a guarantee if it didn't work.

CAN'T HELP
Male pattern baldness is the cause of a great majority of cases of baldness and excessive hair loss, for which no method is effective. Ebb Hair Specialists cannot help those who are slick bald after years of gradual hair loss.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness seems to "run in the family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of your hair loss.

Many conditions can cause hair loss. No matter which one is causing your hair loss, if you wait until you are slick Bald and your hair roots are dead you are beyond help. So, if you still have hair on top of your head, and would like to stop hair loss and grow more hair...now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

FREE CONSULTATION
Just take a few minutes of your time on Friday, December 14, 1979, and go to the Holiday Inn, US 13 Memorial Dr. in Greenville, N.C. between 1 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. and ask the Desk Clerk for J.M. Jones' room number.

There is no charge or obligation...all consultations are private, and you will not be embarrassed in any way.

Vikings Down Chargers, 64-49

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

LITTLEFIELD — Using a strong inside game and a 2-3 zone which forced numerous Ayden-Grifton turnovers, the D.H. Conley Vikings crushed the Chargers, 64-49, Tuesday night.

The Vikings outscored the Chargers 19-9 in the third quarter to break open a tight game en route to their fourth win of the season against one defeat. The Vikings are 2-1 in the ECC.

Earlier, in the girls' game, Ayden-Grifton extended its unbeaten streak to five with a 64-52 win over the Valkyries.

Leading the Viking men were forward Sammy Tucker with 19 points and center David Brock with 16. Guard Curtis Spencer chipped in 12 for the winners.

The Chargers, now 0-5 overall and 0-3 in the conference, were led by center Clarene Baker's 12 points and guard Timmy Edwards' 11.

Throughout most of the game the Vikings stifled Ayden-Grifton's movement inside with a tight 2-3 zone, which forced the Chargers to either try risky passes inside or to shoot from the outside, where they could not find the range most of the night.

"We overplayed them to the shooting side," Conley coach Shelley Marsh said. "What I did was try to cut'em off in the middle. And we seemed to do a pretty good job. I think this is the first time in a number of years that Murphrey hasn't got many shots in the middle on us.

"He likes the middle, but we cut it off tonight pretty effectively."

"Our team defense tonight was weak," Murphrey said. "We weren't helping out. One player would be playing defense and the other four would be doing nothing."

Despite the lack of team defense, the Chargers managed to stay close until the third period.

In the second period, the Chargers effectively shut off Brock's movement inside, but the Vikings still managed to add to their advantage, leading at the half, 26-18.

The decisive period, however, was the third. During the first two quarters, the Chargers stayed close mainly by limiting their own turnovers and forcing Conley into a number of errors. But in the third quarter, Ayden-Grifton made a rash of mistakes and the Vikings capitalized.

Conley outscored Ayden-Grifton 10-4 during one stretch, for a 35-24 lead, and then took advantage of three straight Ayden-Grifton turnovers to build a 41-24 lead late in the period and all but seal the victory.

The win was especially pleasing for Conley's Marsh because of his team's dominance on the boards.

"We did a pretty good job on the boards tonight," Marsh said. "In the last few games we haven't been able to rebound as well as I like, but if we start blocking out and rebounding better, we're going to be tough."

Meanwhile, Murphrey indicated one of the keys to the game was his squad's inability to settle down.

"We were impatient tonight and we're not playing well as a unit," Murphrey said. "We're not confident out there.

"I played nine guys tonight, like I've been doing all year. I searching for a combination. One night I think we have it and then the next night I don't.

"I still think that once we get some seasoning we have a chance to beat teams like them. It's a gradual process, though."

While Ayden-Grifton's boys were losing their fifth of the season, the Charger girls, behind Marie Lewis' 22 points, won their fifth straight without a loss.

The Chargers, now 3-0 in the conference, opened up a nine-point first-period lead, and built that to 35-23 at the half, but not before the Valkyries got to within one midway through the quarter.

"We let them get on the boards after we closed the lead down," Conley coach Norma Respess said. "But the key to the game, and to their team, is those two twins. They make the difference."

"Those two twins" are Marie and Irene Lewis, both of whom helped the Chargers dominate the boards against a smaller Conley team.

Conley, now 3-2 overall and 1-2 in the conference, was led by Glenda Green's 14 points and Tilda Garris' 12.

"We've beaten both Conley and Greene Central now, and we play North Lenior Friday night," Charger coach Kathy Purvis said. "I'm happy with that. It feels wonderful to be 5-0 right now.

"In the 'News and Obsever' they had us, Conley, Greene Central and North Lenior battling for second behind Southwest Edgecombe, and now we've beaten two of those teams.

"I'd have to say this was the best game they've played up to now," Purvis continued. "They're finally playing up to their potential. Before, they played in spurts, and then they'd slack off, but not tonight."

Roanoke Rips Edenton

ROBERSONVILLE — Roanoke High School swept a pair of Northeastern Conference basketball games from Edenton last night. The Redskins took a 58-36 romp in the boys' game, and a 57-34 margin in winning the girls' game.

In the opener, Roanoke eased out into a 13-10 lead after one period. Edenton then went ice-cold, getting only four second quarter points, while the Squaws ran the lead out to 31-14 at intermission. Roanoke continued to pull away, building its lead to 49-24 in the third period, and allowed a 10-8 comeback by the Lady Aces in the final period.

The boys' game saw Edenton take an 8-4 lead after one period, but the Redskins got moving in the second, pulling ahead at the half, 20-19. In the third period, Roanoke got it all together, outscoring the Aces, 20-5, to power their way to a 40-24 lead. They polished off Edenton, 18-12, in the final quarter.

Maurice Chance led Roanoke with 15 points and ten rebounds. Grady Smith added ten points. Chris Simons had ten for Edenton.

Roanoke travels to Tarboro on Friday.

Bears Win Two

BEAR GRASS — Watson Rogers poured in 26 points and Jesse Bullock added 10 to lead Bear Grass past Mattamuskeet, 53-47, Tuesday night.

Earlier, in the girls game, the Bears won, 44-42, to Mattamuskeet.

Rogers, who hit on 10 field goals and six of nine at the free throw line, helped the Bears record their sixth win of the season against two losses.

The Bears jumped out to a 12-7 first period lead and moved that to 23-17 at the half. Bear Grass then spurted to a 39-27 third period lead before holding off Mattamuskeet down the stretch for a six-point victory.

In the girls' game, Joette Rogers blistered the nets for 29 points, as the Bears won, upping their record to 4-4 overall.

The Lakers took a 8-7 first period lead but the Bears tied the score at 22-22 at the half. The score remained tied after the third period, 28-28, but Mattamuskeet squeaked by in the final period for a two-point victory.

Dye Takes 2 Coaches With Him

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) — New Wyoming football coach Pat Dye has tapped two former assistant coaches at East Carolina University as his first staff appointments at Wyoming.

Wayne Hall was named defensive line coach, and Neil Callaway was named offensive line coach Tuesday by Dye, the former East Carolina coach who assumed the top Cowboy job last week.

Both Hall and Callaway starred at Alabama, where Dye was an assistant for nine years before moving to East Carolina, and both played in three bowl games.

Hall, 28, a Jacksonville, Fla., native, was a linebacker at Alabama and later a graduate assistant there before becoming at assistant at Virginia Tech and then East Carolina, where he coached the defensive line.

Callaway, 24, a Macon, Ga., native, was a part-time assistant at East Carolina under Dye and played five different positions at Alabama.

Dye can appoint eight full-time and two part-time assistants at Wyoming. He previously indicated he would like to lure some of his assistants from the Greenville, N.C., school where he compiled a 48-18-1 record in six seasons.

Dye was named to replace Bill Lewis, who took Wyoming to a second-place Western Athletic Conference finish a year ago but failed to give fans a winning season in three years.

STARR ON QB'S

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Coach Bart Starr of the Green Bay Packers is recognized as having been one of the great quarterbacks in the history of the NFL and is considered an authority on that position. He does not buy the theory that a quarterback takes a certain number of years to develop and there is no deviation from that.

"I have always maintained it's an individual accomplishment," Starr said. "Youngsters mature at different ages and so do quarterbacks. Some, like Fran Tarkenton, are instant successes."

Pitt C.C. Meets N.C. Wesleyan

Pitt Community College has added several games to its basketball schedule, the first of which will be played Thursday night at Wellcome School gym.

The Paladins will face the N.C. Wesleyan junior varsity in a game set for 7:30 p.m. Thursday evening.

In addition, the two will hold a return match in Rocky Mount on January 11. Pitt will also take part in the Craven Community College Classic, December 27-28. Pitt will face Craven at 9 p.m. on the first day of the event, then play Lenoir Community College on the second day in a 7 p.m. game.

Williamston Rolls By Roanoke Rapids

WILLIAMSTON — Williamston High School's Tigers remained unbeaten after four games, taking a 59-36 romp over Roanoke Rapids last night.

In the boys' game, Williamston rolled out to a 12-4 lead in the first period and were never in trouble after that. They padded that lead to 23-9 at halftime, and extended it to 43-24 as the last quarter opened. Williamston outhit the Yellow Jackets, 16-12, down the stretch.

In the girls' contest, Williamston also put the game on ice early, scooting out to a 22-2 lead after one period. They coasted on out to a 36-17 lead by the end of the half. In the third quarter, Williamston ran its lead out to 56-28, then allowed the bench to be cleared as Roanoke Rapids rallied, 18-2, but far less than enough.

Jan Rogerson led Williamston with 25 points, while Cathy Everett and Myra Martin each had 12. Pam Andrews led Roanoke Rapids with 17.

Lynch Says Buildup Bigger Than Super Bowl

Notre Dame's Tie With Spartans A Grudge Match

EDITORS NOTE: It was the game of the year and possibly the game of the decade. Neither team won it, but the 10-10 Notre Dame-Michigan State game of 1966 was a gruelling battle. Part three of a five-part series on those Notre Dame players today looks at The Game.

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

It wasn't enough that two undefeated teams, top-ranked Notre Dame and No. 2 Michigan State, were meeting near the end of the 1966 season. The media buildup for this game, which began early in the season, was enormous. What's more, the teams didn't like each other.

"It was a real grudge game," guard Dick Swatland recalls 13 years later. "They had been national champions the year before when they beat us 12-3 in our stadium. They were a bunch of animals that day. They did a lot of cursing. Some of their players taunted Ara (Parseghian). They intimidated our offense 'cause we didn't have a passing attack.

"Before the '66 game, Ara brought all that up. He reminded us how they had tried to intimidate us with their language. It had become a lot more than a game," says Swatland, now a lawyer.

It wasn't just another game for the rest of the campus, either.

"There were pep rallies every night," says guard Tom Regner, now a restaurant owner. "The students came to the dorms and hollered until you came out and gave a little speech. The State students came down and painted our football statue blue, and we painted theirs green."

"It was almost impossible to get any studying done," says placekicker Joe Azzaro, now an executive with an investment firm in Pittsburgh. "I recall having a test in criminology that week. The next week, our professor apologized for giving the test when he did because everybody did so poorly."

There was media everywhere. "I tried to get away from it all by hiding in the chapel," says defensive tackle Pete Duranko.

"The buildup before the Super Bowl was not as intense," says team captain Jim Lynch, who played for the Kansas City Chiefs and appeared in the 1970 Super Bowl.

In the beginning of the week, the team was briefed about State's personnel. It was awesome, with such stars as defensive lineman Bubba Smith, linebacker George Webster and halfback Clint Jones.

"After the Monday briefing, I was full of butterflies, which I never experienced before or after," says center George Goeddeke. "I could hardly stand it. I was bumping into walls all week."

In fact, the coaches felt the team was too high and devised a plan to relax the players. Tom Pagna, offensive coordinator, made a tape and told the team it was the Michigan State radio show.

"It was supposed to be a joke, but nobody laughed," says defensive end Tom Rhoads. "The room got deathly silent. It sounded legit to me. The State players all said they were going to whip our butts. It only made us madder. It wasn't 'til after the season that Pagna told me he had done all the voices."

"Pagna's sensational," said linebacker Dave Martin when recently informed of the deception. "He could put (impersonator) Frank Gorshin to shame."

The Notre Dame sidelines were as packed as the stands. "There was no room anywhere on our side," says linebacker Dave Martin. "People came out of the stands to sit on our bench. I came off the field once and sat down next to a guy smoking a cigar and drinking a pint."

After a scoreless first period, State scored on a 4-yard run by Regis Cavender, then got a 17-yard field goal from Bob Kenney, the barefoot kicker from Hawaii who wore an electric sock on the sidelines.

The Irish rallied, with backup quarterback Coley O'Brien hitting backup halfback Bob Gladieux with a 34-yard TD pass. After the play, O'Brien told a teammate that he thought he overthrew his halfback by 25 yards.

Notre Dame missed a chance for a big play in the third quarter when a tackle eligible pass to offensive lineman Paul Seiler misfired.

"Coley threw a pass right on the money," says Seiler. "I was all taped up, and the ball hit me right in the hands and bounced out. We might have gone on to score if I had held it."

Azzaro kicked a 28-yard field goal, tying the score 10-10 early in the fourth quarter, but O'Brien was getting weaker and weaker. "The coaches wanted to pull Coley out of the game, but he said 'No way. This is my chance,'" remembers Eddy. "He was very woozy."

Meanwhile, the Irish defense made a halftime adjustment to quarterback Jimmy Ray's option play and shut down the Spartans' offense. The Spartans' farthest advance in the second half was to the Notre Dame 45-yard line.

"It was the hardest-hitting game I ever played in," says Duranko, later a pro with the Denver Broncos.

Azzaro narrowly missed a 41-yard field goal midway through the fourth quarter. "I'd like to have another crack at it," he says today.

With less than two minutes left, the Spartans punted from their 36. The Irish took the ball on their 30 and O'Brien tried a run before handing off to Rocky Bleier, now with the Pittsburgh Steelers, on a halfback draw and Larry Conjar on a fullback draw. On fourth and one, O'Brien carried for a first down.

Attempting to get into field goal range against a prevent defense, O'Brien tried an option play but was nailed for a 7-yard loss by Smith.O'Brien then ran out the clock.

Six plays and no passes, this strategy still is being second-guessed 13 years later.

"It bothers me that people overlook the fact that we came back to tie on their field," says O'Brien. "We just missed the winning field goal. To say Notre Dame plays for the tie is unfair. You don't throw the game away when there's little chance for success."

Safety Tom Schoen sums it up for the Irish: "All things being equal, if we had our entire team, we would have won easily."

Ridgecroft Rips Martin Academy

AHOSKIE — Ridgecroft Academy romped past Martin Academy in a pair of games last night. The boys took a 66-29 win, while the girls rolled up a 44-21 victory.

In the girls' game, Ridgecroft built up a 15-4 lead in the first period and was never in trouble. They built that to 26-9 at the half, and rolled up a 39-11 third period score. Martin outhit the subs, 10-5, in the final period.

Hope Dixon and Emily Revelle each had 11 points for Ridgecroft, while Beth Perry led Martin with nine.

In the boys' game, Ridgecroft again had no trouble. They held a 19-4 lead after one period, and upped that to 33-14 by the end of the half. Martin trailed, 47-20, after three periods, and was outscored 19-9, in the last frame.

Allen Warren led Martin with 13 points, while Abernathy had 24, Smithson had 21 and Gregory had 13 for Ridgecroft.

Hassett Pacers' Three-Point Specialist

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Joey Hassett has become basketball's latest specialist — he's the Indiana Pacers' designated three-point goal shooter.

Hassett, nicknamed "Sonar" because of his long-range shooting talent, struck again Tuesday night. After sitting on the bench the entire second half, he entered the game with the New York Knicks leading 113-110 and two seconds showing on the clock.

Hassett raced free behind a screen, took an inbounds pass from Phil Chenier and lofted a three-pointer from the left side that went through at the buzzer, sending the game into overtime.

The Pacers squandered a seven-point lead in the five-minute extra period but came back to win 124-122 on Alex English's 13-foot jumper with 46 seconds left.

"It's no secret Hassett is the guy we go to in that situation," said Pacers Coach Bobby Leonard, one of the three-point goal's chief advocates. "We ran a decoy play and a pick to get him free and he had the shot we wanted. But with that little time, you've got to have a lot of luck, too."

Having Hassett around to shoot three-pointers helps as well. The third-year pro from Providence was signed by the Pacers with that purpose in mind after being cut by Seattle, and he has connected on 17 long-range baskets. Earlier this season he tied a game against Utah with a three-pointer and won a game against Houston with three bombs in overtime.

"The three-pointer has certainly been good to me," Hassett said. "I used to shoot from there in college and we only got two points for it. Now that we get three, it's nice. My future is brighter now."

Nuggets 127, Spurs 121

George McGinnis scored 11 of his 35 points in the fourth quarter as Denver held off a San Antonio rally that cut a 34-point deficit to two in the closing minutes.

Suns 123, Bullets 99

Paul Westphal scored 18 of his 27 points in the first half as Phoenix shot 59 percent from the field in building a 65-45 lead. The Suns led by as many as 27 points in dealing the Bullets their fifth loss in the last seven home games.

Westphal shot 13-for-21, handed out seven assists, made three steals and blocked three shots in 30 minutes.

Bulls 104, Blazers 93

Reggie Theus scored 23 points and Mark Landsberger added 20 as Chicago won its third in a row and dealt the Blazers their ninth straight loss.

Sonics 103, Bucks 99

Guards Gus Williams and Dennis Johnson combined for 58 points as Seattle beat Milwaukee. The Bucks were without all-star forward Marques Johnson, who has shoulder and back injuries.

CONTROL YOUR DEBTS

If your present bills, because of economic pressures, cannot be met by your income, legal relief may be available to you under the provisions of Chapter 13 of the Bankruptcy Reform Act of 1978, which permits individuals to petition the Court for an arrangement allowing a thirty-six month period to discharge indebtednesses, without property repossession or creditor harrassment. Attorney's fees, which may be paid in monthly installments, are determined by the Court. There is no fee for an initial conference to discuss your eligibility for a "Wage Earner Plan".

AP Scrooge And More

played a weak schedule. Yeah, they might have, but they beat every-damn-body they played, you silly damn Yankee."

—"What do you mean placing the Great Tide No.2?"

—"I think your point of voting is about as sicking (sic) as Komenie (sic sic)."

—"Alabama WILL be the No.1 team in the nation regardless of your eight idiots."

—"My suggestion to you is for you to get a few more competent people to do your voting and hopefully they will also possess enough fortitude to place football teams in an order that won't show such obvious partiality toward Southern football." How's that again?

—"After seeing and hearing the results of The AP poll I am completely disgusted, although I expected as much. What does AP really stand for? Always Prejudice? And to think that the majority of Americans think that the South discriminates."

They have long memories in Alabama when it concerns 1966, a team Bear Bryant considers his best ever but which was relegated to No.3 in the final rankings behind Notre Dame and Michigan State — they both finished 9-0-1 after playing that famous (infamous?) 10-10 tie — despite an 11-0 record.

But they have very short memories about 1978, a year The AP awarded the national championship to Alabama over Southern Cal despite a not-as-close-as-it-sounds 24-14 loss to the Trojans. Here are a couple from the "How Quickly They Forget Dept.":

—"Well, it looks like our Crimson Tide has been shot down for the third year in a row."

—"You must have some kind of odd reporters. You did it to Alabama last year."

And finally comes a letter from Hoover, Ala., which starts out like all the rest — namely, "Once again The AP has goofed." But this one is different. It goes on:

"I fail to understand how Baylor, 7-4, can be ranked in the Top Twenty and other quality 7-4 teams such as Tennessee and Notre Dame unranked."

Not even so much as a "Roll Tide!"

Notice of Public Hearing

VILLAGE OF SIMPSON

Concerning
Housing and Community Development Needs
In Accordance with the Housing and Community Development Act of 1977

On Monday, December 17, 1979 at 8 p.m., the Village Council of Simpson, N.C. will conduct a public hearing at the meeting room of the Simpson Volunteer Fire Department.

The purpose of the public hearing is to provide the citizens with a chance to express their views concerning the housing and community development needs of Simpson.

Also to be discussed is the possibility of seeking a Single Purpose Grant under the Small Cities Program of the Community Development Block Grant. Eligible activities under this grant program include (1) housing improvements, (2) public facilities improvements, and (3) economic development activities. Grant limits are $500,000 per community, with $7,531,000 available to non-metropolitan communities in North Carolina.

All citizens are encouraged to attend this public hearing and to voice their opinions on Simpson's housing and community development needs.

Note: The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban development will receive more grant requests than can be funded.

Eating Well On About $150 Per Year

By TOM UHLENBROCK

DUPO, Ill. (UPI) — Irene Prall says she spent more money this year for food. But then her food bill for 1978 averaged only 35 cents a day.

"A lot of people don't believe that, but it's all here in this book," said the 73-year-old widow, waving a battered brown notebook she retrieved from her purse.

"I've kept a record of everything I spent for food since 1975. I spent $127.29 in 1978 and this year it'll be about $25 more. But I've had a good bit of company this year and I haven't watched it as closely as I usually do. And I've also got some things that I bought still frozen in the icebox."

Mrs. Prall lives on her Social Security benefits, her savings and income from renting out a section of her modest, one-story home. She doesn't really need to pinch pennies, but believes most people spend far too much on food.

"I have seen so many people claim that they cannot live on Social Security, that they starve. I have proved to myself that it can be, but then I've always been economical," she said in an interview.

Mrs. Prall said she avoids such specialty cuts as rib eye and pork chops in favor of beef roasts and turkey.

She favors chicken and other meats that sell for around a $1 a pound. She said one chicken can last her several meals, and a roast will last more than a week.

"Tonight I'm having the last of a big pot of Irish stew I made with a roast and vegetables from my garden," she said. "I made it weeks ago, then froze individual portions.

"Last night I had a breast of chicken and some doughnuts my neighbor gave me. She was going to throw them out. I sliced them in half, put a little butter in the bottom of my skillet, and warmed them up. They were delicious."

She also never buys soda, alcoholic beverages, cookies and other bakery goods, prepared foods such as pizzas or paper products except bathroom tissue.

"I don't drink milk but I use canned evaporated milk on my cereal in the morning and for cooking," she said. "I never buy packaged things except for cake mixes. If I have company, I make my own rolls. I don't buy any fruits because I have my own canned."

Mrs. Prall grows most of her food in a 40-square-foot backyard garden. This year, she grew peas, corn, cabbage, black-eyed peas, lima beans, onions, tomatoes, beets, carrots, spinach, sweet potatoes, white potatoes, butter beans, turnips and garlic.

She cans or freezes anything she doesn't use fresh — using empty foil margarine cartons and the plastic wrapper from her newspaper as freezer cartons — and still has vegetables to give to her neighbors.

(Unless the newspaper wrappers are food grade plastic, she's taking a chance. Some plastics can leach toxic materials into food.)

"I go to a horse barn down the street for my fertilizer," she said. "The owner's glad to get his stables cleaned out, and I can get six tubs of fertilizer in my car."

She said her 1974 Gremlin gets 25 miles per gallon, but she often rides the bus to visit her daughter in the St. Louis suburb of Glendale. The 44-mile round trip costs only 20 cents with her senior citizen's pass.

A retired tailor, Mrs. Prall makes her own clothes. She proudly displayed a blue suit, white blouse and pair of slacks she made from $7.65 worth of sale-priced fabric.

When she bought her present house 10 years ago, Mrs. Prall said, it was in disrepair. She tore out the walls down to the studs, put up new plasterboard, rewired the whole building, laid new carpeting and built most of the kitchen cabinets.

"I just had siding put on the outside," she added. "I watched them do it and now I know how."

Mrs. Prall said some neighbors tease her about tight budgeting. Some say it could not be done if illness struck.

"I've been in the hospital 10 times since my husband died in 1937," she said. "But somehow or another I get out of bed and start over. Three years ago I had to have an appendectomy. I had my surgery on the 18th of February and I got out and planted my potatoes on the 15th of March.

"When my husband died, I was left with two children, 4 and 6 years old, and nothing else — no home, no job, no Social Security benefits. My husband couldn't get any insurance because he had illness before. But I was determined. I just knew there was a way and I made that way."

Through ingenuity and hard work, Mrs. Prall reared both children and now even has money for such splurges as an annual trip to Florida and a European vacation she took last year with her daughter.

"I don't think I spent more than $2 for any meal while I was in Europe, and we had good food — good as I have here at home and sometimes better," she said. "It's just like here. You've got to use your head a little bit."

Fulltime Job Blowing Glass

By JAMES E. WALTERS
Associated Press Writer

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — For almost five years now Mike Wheeler has been Arizona State University's full-time glassblower.

"I only make things they can't buy," he says.

His current major project is a monster, 11-foot-long, 3-foot-high diffusion pump apparatus with approximately 300 separate seals and tubes. Some parts look like a half-size tuba. Others are only a quarter-inch round and a couple of inches long. He expects it to take a week and a half and estimates the cost in materials alone at $5,000.

As he worked on it in his sunny 25-foot-by-30-foot lab, Gerard Spinnier, a graduate student in chemistry, came in holding two small glass tubes. He looked despondent.

"Could they be put together?" he asked. "I need them badly for an experiment and somebody broke them apart when I wasn't around."

Wheeler laughed, sympathetically, and said sure.

"How long?" Spinnier asked. "Five minutes," was the reply.

Wheeler lit up a combination gas-oxygen torch on his work bench, turned the glass into molten putty, spun it deftly and so fast the eye could barely follow and, almost that fast, the two pieces were back together.

Wheeler says that's the way his days go. From major projects to projects that are major only to the requester, he likes to do anything that comes along.

His office is in the chemistry department, and he figures most of his work is for it. But anyone in the university can ask him for help.

Wheeler got into glassblowing at the University of Wisconsin, where he served a four-year apprenticeship and then worked four years before coming here. His father, William, also is a glassblower.

"I can't think of anything I'd rather do," says the son. "There's always the challenge of something new. Just about every job is a different challenge. I have my own shop at home, too, and my wife sometimes gets upset at how much time I spend there."

Wheeler never studied chemistry in college, but his knowledge of it is exceptional.

That's because most of the sketches he works from are not exact scale. To make certain the glassware does what's needed, he asks the originator to explain what the project is supposed to do.

"By now, I understand all the basic techniques in chemistry," he says.

Wheeler says that a custom-glassblower usually has a lot of leeway since most dimensions need not be precise. As a rough rule of thumb, once the technique is mastered, the most complicated-appearing work may be the easiest.

To demonstrate, he took a piece of one-inch glass tubing, heated it, blew into it while twirling it, and quickly had a graceful swan.

"You can't hesitate while blowing or twirling, or it will sag somewhere," he explained.

KENNEDY LETTER CLAIMED — A close-up from the front-page headlined article that appeared in Wednesday edition of Tehran newspaper Bamdad, claiming Ayatollah Khomeini has received a letter from U.S. presidential candidate Sen. Edward Kennedy. The article quotes from the letter, saying: "You and Iran's 35 million people have stood up to the U.S.A. and its population of 225 million." The newspaper editor said he got the letter from Khomeini's son, but the Foreign Ministry said today the letter was a fake. (AP Laserphoto)

Killer Moved To Death House

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Joseph Carl Shaw was moved to what may be his final abode, as his lawyers fought to keep him from being electrocuted on Friday for the slayings of two Columbia teen-agers.

The former military policeman, who confessed to the murders of 17-year-old Thomas Taylor and 14-year-old Carlotta Hartness, on Tuesday was taken to the death house at the Central Correctional Institution.

Kermit King, head of Shaw's court-appointed defense team, on Tuesday afternoon filed a petition asking the U.S. District Court to hear his arguments for a stay of execution.

A hearing is scheduled for 4 p.m. today before Judge Robert W. Hemphill on the petition, which says the delay should be granted because the South Carolina Supreme Court turned down King's motion that Shaw be given a new attorney.

A group associated with the American Civil Liberties Union was expected to file for a stay in state court. Lawyers for Shaw also could ask Gov. Dick Riley or a U.S. Supreme Court justice to delay the execution.

If appeals through those avenues fail, at 5 a.m. Friday Shaw will become the first South Carolinian to be executed since April 1962, when two Greenville men were electrocuted for separate crimes. His execution would be the third in the nation this year.

A lawyer for the American Civil Liberties Union, Pat Toatley, said her group will enter the fight for Shaw's life. Ms. Toatley said Richard Burr of Nashville, Tenn., an attorney with the Southern Prisoners Defense Committee, would probably seek a stay in a state court.

King said he would pursue his appeals in federal court, leaving the state courts to the ACLU and Burr. He said his options were limited by "geography and time."

If it appears he must go to the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va., or to the U.S. Supreme Court, King said, he may instead seek a stay from Riley.

A spokesman for the governor said Tuesday afternoon that a stay had not been requested from Riley and that none was being considered "at this time."

He said Riley had completed at least part of the review he intends to do of the court record on Shaw's case. Riley and his aides have said repeatedly that, barring some unforeseen circumstance, the governor will "honor the sentence of the court."

Shaw had a lengthy visit with members of his family Tuesday morning. Attorney Bill Gambrell, who also visited Shaw, said the condemned man was "reserved. He didn't have much to say."

At 2 p.m., Shaw and his belongings were moved to the death house, a three-cell brick building that was renovated about two weeks ago. State Corrections Department regulations require the transfer of a condemned man to the death house three days before execution.

Shaw was sentenced on Dec. 16, 1977, after pleading guilty to fatally shooting Taylor and Miss Hartness and mutilating the girl's body. Another man, James T. Roach, also pleaded guilty and got the death penalty, but his appeals are still pending.

Suspended In Gun Slaying

SANFORD, N.C. (AP) — A Sanford police officer has been relieved of duty pending a State Bureau of Investigation probe into the shotgun slaying last week of a Sanford resident.

Lawrence Poindexter, a patrol officer with the Sanford Police Department, was relieved of active duty Tuesday after an autopsy report revealed that a blast from the officer's shotgun killed 23-year-old Peter Everett Roberson last Thursday.

Roberson was discovered near the city's railroad depot about 4:30 a.m., walking in circles and holding a gun.

The man refused to surrender his gun and would not give himself up to police, even after officers fired tear gas at him.

When Roberson dropped to one knee in what appeared to be a classic shooting position and fired one shot, three officers returned fire.

Roberson's weapon was later found to be a pellet gun.

No Fears For Turks In Iran

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Turkey went to war in Cyprus where there were 120,000 Turkish Cypriots, but for decades it has shown no concern for the millions of ethnic Turks in neighboring northwest Iran, the Azaris, who are rebelling against Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's dictatorial rule.

"There is little cause to worry about the Turks of Iran. They are capable of taking care of themselves," said one Turkish official.

The Turkish government's traditional hands-off policy is as legacy from Kemal Ataturk, the founder and first president of the Turkish Republic after the destruction of the Ottoman Empire at the end of World War I.

Ataturk assumed special responsibility for the Turks of Western Thrace, in Greece, and this was later extended to the Turkish Cypriots because of the island's strategic location off the south coast. But he discouraged the "adventurism" of the pan-Turanists, who wanted to unite under one flag all Turkic peoples from the Balkans to Western China.

Turkey now has a population of 45 million, while an estimated 70 million ethnic Turks live in Iran, the Soviet Union, Chinese Turkestan and other countries. The pan-Turanists of the anti-communist Nationalist Movement Party in their publications express sorrow for their brothers living under Soviet or Chinese rule. But an overwhelming majority of the mainland Turks show little interst in pan-Turanism and less in the Azaris of Iran. Government policy follows Ataturk's guidelines unwaveringly.

Continuing Search For One Missing Satellite

McAFEE, N.J. (AP) — As an RCA Corp. cable television satellite hurtles somewhere through space, hundreds of technicians continue the search for the wayward one-ton craft.

Satcom III is being tracked through radar and telemetry, which involves monitoring small communications signals from the satellite's antenna and relaying them to a computer at RCA's Vernon Valley Earth Station here, a company official said.

"We will exhaust every means possible. There is no timetable for us to call off the search," said Robert Shortal, director of news and information for RCA Corp.

He would not speculate on where the satellite was or what caused it to disappear from tracking screens just 15 seconds after the kick motor was switched on Monday.

"It could be on the right orbit, but it's just not relaying signals. Or it may be a temporary loss of power. All we know is we lost contact," he said. "It's normal to lose contact when you fire a motor, but the loss only lasts for a few minutes."

The North American Air Defense Command in Colorado Springs also is searching for the satellite, which measures about 5 feet by 4 feet by 4 feet.

Satcom III was launched from Cape Canaveral, Fla., last Thursday by NASA under a contract with RCA, and went into a temporary looping orbit.

The kick motor was to have sent it into a permanent orbit 22,300 miles above the Pacific, midway between Hawaii and California, said John Williamson, a spokesman for Americom, an RCA subsidiary. He said if the satellite fell to earth, it would burn up before reaching the ground.

The total cost of the mission was $50 million, including the space craft itself, insurance and launching costs, he said.

Rural Conscience Of An Urban Church

By TAMARA COOKE

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — On breezy mornings, the American flag in front of the modest red-shingled house seems to applaud, a sound the National Catholic Rural Life Conference seldom hears.

The conference was formed to help rural Americans with their problems, to be the "conscience" of the U.S. Roman Catholic Church in farm country and to find ways to correct injustices. The chore, officials admit, oftentimes is thankless because of its controversial nature.

Although the conference has worked behind the scenes for 56 years, officials only recently received recognition as the organization co-sponsoring a visit to Des Moines by Pope John Paul II. Little is known about its other works.

"We almost have to be a prophet to call people's attention to injustices in rural America," said executive director William J. Schaefer. "Education and prophesy are our main functions. And, we're not very popular, like prophets were not liked.

"We are not active in the sense that we might picket — although many rural life directors are involved in that," he said. "But, basically we try to be the conscience in the system and in the church, the rural conscience."

Concerns of the conference run the gamut. Officials helped draft a U.S. Catholic Conference policy statement on the family farm, were instrumental in getting bishops active in problems of strip mining and poverty in Appalachia, and acted as a major resource agency for 44 Midwestern bishops in a joint statement on land use.

It also encourages rural life directors in more than 100 dioceses to lobby for legislation. And, priests and nuns are educated about the problems of rural people while serving in small parishes.

"The U.S. Catholic Church is mainly an urban Catholic church," said Schaefer, 40, a Minot, N.D., native who recently became the rural conference's first lay director. "In outlook and history, it's been an urban church with less than 10 percent rural churches.

"There's a real ministry that needs to be done for people who are the cause of injustice in rural America, who cause people to suffer. You can't ignore those people or just condemn them. There's a ministry."

With a staff of only four professionals — an executive director, two editors and four secretaries — the conference works mainly through periodicals and workshops targeted for church members and Catholic officials. Publications include the Catholic Rural Life, a Washington newsletter and the Rural Parish Service.

Staff members research testimony before various legislative, congressional and governmental hearings, as well as make speaking appearances before church and non-church groups.

"If you look at the 2,100 family farms going out of business a week, I guess you could say we're not all that successful. If you look at the number of black farmers (losing their property) or (problems) in Appalachia, then we haven't been very successful.

"But, if you look at the consciousness raising in the U.S. ... then I think we have more success there. Everybody is looking at (rural America) right now. City people want a place in the country, the government sold grain to Russia in 1973, food exports. The importance of rural America is building.

"It's time agriculture moved out of just political, economical and practical decisions. Farmers should look at the moral and ethical questions."

In the past, Schaefer said, farmers considered only the economics and the practicality of expanding farm operations or buying larger equipment. The NCRLC encourages them to look at how their decisions may hurt adjoining farmers or infringe on others' rights.

"The affect could be that one more family is forced to move to Des Moines or Chicago to look for work, one more family going on welfare. You can't take away from somebody when you already have enough."

He said farmers also should consider how their operations affect small communities whose businesses, schools, churches and local government thrive on a number of farms.

Schaefer said his two main goals are to "educate people" on the need for the church to be involved in controversial issues and to "deepen our awareness of the land as the basis of all our life."

Security System Sales To Rise

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UPI) — Americans' demand for security systems is expected to triple in the 1980s, to a total retail value of $23 billion.

Crimes against people and property have nearly tripled in the past 15 years, and expected to grow more than fourfold by 1990.

William Jenkins, project analyst for the Cleveland-based business information and market research firm, attributes the growth to more stringent fire regulations and insurance incentives — combined with greater use of electronics in security products.

Jenkins says using electronics sends prices up but also encourages the replacement of older, less efficient equipment.

NO MIRACLE RESULTED — Seven years after it opened, the Bay Area Rapid Transit system runs only part of the time, is mired in labor problems and clearly failed to live up to its advance billing. BART has operated at the peak of its modest abilities for only six months this year. (UPI Photo)

When It Runs, San Francisco Rapid Transit Is Not 'Rapid'

By BARNEY LERTEN

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Engineers and architects labored over drawing boards during the 1950s and '60s to design sleek, plush, wide-windowed trains that would whisk commuters into San Francisco at speeds up to 80 mph.

If you missed a train, not to worry — another would be along in about 90 seconds.

— Trains were to run a 90-second intervals but officials now say that's impossible.

R.S. Radford of the Contra Costa Taxpayers Association has called BART "a billion-dollar white elephant."

When voters in San Francisco and two neighboring counties approved a $792 million bond issue to build the system in 1962, no one imagined it would take 10 years and twice the original cost to complete the 75-mile system, including a two-way transit tube beneath San Francisco Bay.

Equipment snafus kept BART strung up in strict safety regulations that limited service and infuriated taxpayers.

Residents of outlying areas have long complained about having to pay a half-cent sales tax for a transit system that doesn't come within miles of where they live.

On the San Francisco side of the bay, the BART line ends far short of San Francisco International Airport, its logical terminus.

Marin County, to the north, also wanted no part of BART.

The state closed the tube for two months while safety procedures were improved.

A three-year contract with union employees expired July 1. BART directors said a cost-of-living adjustment that was in the old pact had to be dropped.

BART unions fought for the cost-of-living clause. Talks dragged on until management closed the system Aug. 31, blaming maintenance workers for slowing down on the job and sabotaging trains. Union officials denied the charges.

A month later, supervisors were running trains 10 to 20 minutes apart on a limited basis, serving only about one-fourth of BART's 160,000 regular users. Traffic jams on bridges and freeways only worsened.

"All we're going to get in 1982 is junk," a BART worker complained.

Even before the new pact, wages for BART workers already were among the highest of any transit system in the nation, according to the American Public Transit Association.

BART mechanics were paid $11.60 an hour, topping all cities except Anchorage, Alaska. The $10.53 an hour paid to BART train operators was the highest wage on any U.S. rail transit system except Chicago.

Sloan Sponsor Of 'Shootout'

Norm Sloan, head coach of the N. C. State Wolfpack basketball team, will sponsor the second annual "Basketball Shoot-Out for Easter Seals" all across North Carolina.

Participants obtain sponsors who pledge a given amount for each basket scored in a three-minute period. The statewide winner, along with his or her coach, can win a trip to Raleigh to sit on the Wolfpack bench in the N. C. State vs. UNC-Chapel Hill game on Feb. 20, 1980.

The top prize of sitting on the bench with the ECU Pirates in their games against Illinois State University will be awarded to the winner of each local "shoot-out" in Beaufort, Bertie, Camden, Carteret, Chowan, Craven, Currituck, Dare, Gates, Greene, Hertford, Hyde, Lenoir, Martin, Pamlico, Pasquotank, Perquimans, Pitt, Tyrell, Washington and Wilson counties. Trophies and certificates will be presented to winners of local shoot-outs.

For more information, one may contact the Northeast Regional Office of the Easter Seal Society in Greenville, 758-3230.

Santa Survives For Very Young

NEW YORK (AP)—Santa Claus is still for real, at least for most children up to 7 years old.

An informal poll here of youngsters from 2 to 12 (some via their parents) by a Christmas card manufacturer showed that the cut-off age for belief St. Nick starts at about 7. Over 90 percent of the 6-and-under group clung to their faith in the existence of Santa, but the belief slipped to less than 50 percent among the 7 and 8s.

From 9 up, a Hallmark survey showed, the doubts grew stronger, with only about 10 percent of the 10 to 12-year-olds still getting a tingle out of Kris Kringle.

Jeweler Reminds Bargain Diamonds Don't Exist

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

"Ask the jeweler a lot of questions. If he can't answer them, I'd go to somebody else.

"Ask, 'How was this manufactured — is it handmade, cast or die-struck? Any retailer should know the methods of his supplier."

Die-struck jewelry is rolled, forged and stamped, she said.

"It's malleable and very dense. A cast ring of the same measurement is never as heavy. You actually get more gold."

Mrs. Herman is a jewelry manufacturing executive and a member of the board of the New York chapter of the American Gem Society. The society is a non-profit professional association of retail jewelers, educators and scholars whose aims include consumer protection and ethical business standards and practices.

"The consumer who doesn't want to get cheated no matter what he's buying should be cautious," Mrs. Herman said in an interview.

"Anybody who buys with the thought that they're going to resell (jewelry) for more is insane.

This is the big season for jewelry purchases. Forty-five to 50 percent of all retail sales are made during the last quarter of the year, says George Kramer, assistant executive director of the AGS.

No matter when you shop, Mrs. Herman advises picking a jeweler as carefully as you choose a physician, banker or lawyer. Find out how long he's been in business and what type of jewelry he carries.

If you are new in town, she suggested striking up conversations in supermarket checkout lines with other shoppers who are wearing nice jewelry.

Understandably, Mrs. Herman recommends buying from AGS members. They must meet certain membership standards, she said. They must have a diamondscope for examining stones for flaws. They must have a separate, clean, neat area for gem selling, with good lighting. AGS members also have to pass a tough correspondence course in gemology.

"They learn to grade diamonds, identify inclusions — marks on the surface that don't belong there. They must learn to recognize an ideal cut and how to recut gems to ideal proportions."

"'Blue-white' doesn't mean anything in connection with diamonds," she said. Color is not as important in a diamond weighing less than ¼ to ½ carat, she said.

Turn jewelry upside down, she said. "It should be as beautifully finished as it is on top. Rub it against your clothes. If it picks up fuzz, it probably is not set too smoothly.

"It should be comfortable to wear, smooth on the finger if it is a ring.

"If I were spending more than $100, I would go from place to place to look for things."

Mrs. Herman's 65-year-old family firm in a New Jersey suburb of New York City manufactures settings and works mostly with diamonds. For advice about colored gems, she suggested talking with Lewis Kuhn, an importer and cutter.

Darker gems are not necessarily more valuable, he said. "Color is very much a matter of taste.

Flawlessness — complete freedom from blemishes — is important in diamonds, but not in colored stones, Kuhn said.

"You should buy primarily for color," he said, adding that it is impossible to get some colored gems without irregularities.

Kuhn is chairman of the colored stone committee for the Jewelers Vigilante Committee, a non-profit group that helps police the jewelry industry for fair trade practices.

His committee has proposed a new definition of gemstones for the Federal Trade Commission's 1979 rules revision. Among other things, it would eliminate the term, semi-precious, in describing certain colored stones.

County Had Four Fires

There were four fires reported in Pitt County Monday, according to the Fire Marshal's Office.

Staton House Fire Department received a 7:59 a. m. call to a car on fire in the Emerywood Subdivision on N. C. 11 north. The car which was reportedly owned by Johnny Hooker Jr. sustained moderate damage.

Staton House and the Stokes Fire Department attended to a grass fire near the Edna Cox residence off Highway 903. Two tobacco barns were ignited and one was a total loss, Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner said.

The J. J. Jones home on State Road 1713 was a total loss, Joyner said. The Winterville Fire Department fought the 5:11 p. m. blaze.

The Grimesland Fire Department was called to a chimney fire at the home of Lillie Jefferson at 7:58 a. m. Damage was reported minor.

Eatery Uses A Solar Collector

COLONIE, N.Y. (UPI) — Use of a 20-by-50-foot solar collector in the parking lot of a fast-food eatery is saving fuel at the rate of 3,650 gallons of heating oil a year, an official of the chain operating the restaurant estimates.

In addition to gathering energy from the sun, the collector also recovers heat being "lost" from the building — heat generated by the restaurant's regular cooking, heating, and air conditioning apparatus. Jon Dunbar, manager of energy services for the chain, Sambo's, said approximately 30 to 40 percent of the lost heat is being reutilized.

The solar collector stores the lost heat and the solar heat in two 3,000-gallon water tanks and the heated water is then used for cooking and dishwashing, as well as for heating and cooling. If used in the nation's 400,000 restaurants, such a system could save $1.6 billion annually, Dunbar estimates.

Sausage Said A Disease Source

ATLANTA (AP) — Christmas sausage, a traditional gift among European immigrants, is a major cause of trichinosis, a disease attributed to improperly cooked meat, the national Center for Disease Control says.

"These ethnic groups buy large amounts of sausage, which usually is cold smoked, and they give it to family members and friends at Christmas," Dr. Peter Schantz of the CDC's division of parasitic diseases, said last week.

He said the problem is most serious in the Northeast, where there are large German, Italian and Portuguese settlements. With adequate treatment, patients usually recover, but the disease can be fatal.

Big Log Cabin For Exposition

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The largest log cabin ever built was a featured exhibit at the 1905 Lewis and Clark Exposition in Portland, Ore., according to the National Geographic Society. The cabin, built of 500-year-old firs, was 206 feet long, 72 feet, and enclosed 21,000 square feet.

Parmesan Tickles Both Palates And Pocketbooks

By DENNIS REDMONT
Associated Press Writer

PARMA, Italy (AP) — It's been a rough season for Parmesan cheese makers. Competitors are marketing a successful imitation, consumers are rebelling because of rising prices and the "Cheese Gang" steals regularly from the cavernous cheese storerooms.

Scarcely a week goes by without a nighttime raid by trucks driven out of the fog-shrouded plains surrounding Parma, police say.

Because of the insatiable appetite of most Italians for grated cheese on their spaghetti, Parmesan — fetching as much as $8 a pound — has developed into a billion-dollar business in Italy.

Banking on that appetite, speculators buy up stocks of the cheese while it's still maturing. Then, after the mandatory maturation period of 18-24 months, the speculators cash in for huge profits.

Trying to beat the middlemen, imitators outside the circumscribed production area of Parma, Modena, Reggio Emilia and Mantua have created an inexpensive look-alike cheese called Grana Padana. It matures faster than Parmesan by using chemicals rather than the enzymes from the linings of calves' stomachs.

In the past two years, converted cheese factories in 27 provinces up and down the Italian boot have been churning out the new Grana.

But thieves are also after a piece of the curd, hijacking trailer trucks or rolling the wheels of cheese out of the depositories with the complicity of "insiders," police say.

One typical night raid occurred last month, at the end of the April-November Parmesan production season, when thieves stole a big milk rig as driver Bruno Grassi ducked into a roadside men's room.

They dumped the load of milk cartons, drove the truck past electronic surveillance into the Consorzio Agrario storeroom and loaded more than 300 wheels of Parmesan, each weighing 77 pounds, in a couple of hours.

"The next day it probably was already on the grocery shelves, retailing at high prices," lamented Lorenzo Cattabiani, secretary of the Parmigiano Reggiano Association. "The product is as good as gold, and thieves always find fences for their loot."

More damaging than the weekly robberies has been a recent consumer rebellion against escalating Parmesan prices. Since 1974, retail prices have tripled from about $2.40 a pound to almost $8.

Many Italians switched from Parmesan to Grana, and as a result 45 percent of the 1978 production — maturing for retail in 1980 — lies unsold in the storerooms. Parmesan thus earned the distinction of being one of the only food staples to drop in price.

Producers have started an advertising campaign urging new ways to eat the cheese, such as with pre-dinner drinks or for dessert rather than always grating it over spaghetti. They have also stepped up security at cheese depositories and are trying to eliminate the expensive middlemen by selling directly to large supermarket chains.

The production method for Parmesan is precise and lengthy. Once the cheeses — made of milk from cows fed on special forage — are in the storerooms, the "maturers" and financiers take over.

Throughout its maturation, each cheese is tasted, and tested with a needle to gauge its acidity and a hammer to measure hollowness. Every two weeks the huge cheeses are turned over.

Finally, the Parmigiano Reggiano Association stamps the cheese with its seal of approval, and the wheels are shouldered to waiting trucks.

"Sure our product is anachronistic," concedes Giampaolo Mora, president of the Parmesan association, "and it has its problems.

"Workers develop a sort of tennis elbow from turning the cheeses while they mature. Their wives complain of the cheese smell when they come home. We get ripped off by thieves and speculators.

"Still," he said, "it gives work to a quarter million people. And the packed protein it contains makes millions of others happy."

Employment Data 'Good'

The local employment picture continues to look good, with total employment in Pitt County as of October 1 estimated at 43,170 — a growth of an estimated 680 over the total employment statistic of mid-July.

In a report released by Greenville office of the Employment Security Commission of North Carolina — prepared in cooperation with the Bureau of Labor Statistics and the Employment and Training Administration, U.S. Dept. of Labor, the general trend depicted is one of a continuing overall increase in local employment.

A substantial increase in non-agricultural wage and salary employment — a figure of 2,770 — more than offset the seasonal decine in agricultural employment — a loss of 2,160 jobs. Total unemployment declined by an estimated 650 persons primarily due to many seasonal workers obtaining employment in the tobacco processing industry.

An estimate of unemployed in Pitt County, as of the middle of September, shows a figure of 1,990 — or 4.4 percent of the labor force. This represents a decline of 650 in the jobless total from the July estimate of 2,640. The 4.4 percentage estimate for Pitt County compares to a statewide estimated rate of 4.6 percent, and the national (unadjusted) rate of 5.6 percent at that reporting time.

Most Cyclists Prefer Helmet

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI) — Although a Maryland state law requiring motorcyclists to wear helmets was recently repealed, more than 68 percent of cyclists in the state still wear the headgear, according to a survey by the Motorcycle Safety Foundation published by the National Highway and Traffic Safety Administration.

The Foundation said the national average of motorcyclists who wear helmets is only 50 percent. It said the Maryland survey was taken at 12 sites in areas heavily frequented by young people.

Will Probably Appeal Ban On Deportation Efforts

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration probably will appeal a federal judge's ruling that it cannot deport Iranian students illegally living in this country, a Justice Department official says.

U.S. District Judge Joyce Hens Green ruled Tuesday that the administration's program, launched after the seizure of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, violates the equal protection clause of the Constitution by singling out Iranians for deportation.

Within two hours, the Justice Department filed a notice of appeal with the U.S. Court of Appeals. That filing, said department spokesman Robert Stevenson, keeps the administration's options open while it considers the next move.

Stevenson said attorneys working on the case had indicated "they would recommend an appeal."

On Nov. 10, President Carter ordered the Immigration and Naturalization Service to begin checking the student visas of more than 50,500 Iranians allegedly studying in the United States.

So far, 50,437 have appeared for interviews with federal officials, who have determined that 6,042 are subject to deportation. At least 41,254 are complying with their visas, say officials, who have asked for additional information from more than 3,000 others.

The officials said 405 requests for asylum have been forwarded to the Justice Department. Of those subject to deportation, 778 have agreed to leave the country voluntarily and 47 have already left. Nine have been deported.

But any further deportations were blocked by Mrs. Green, who also relieved any other Iranian students from reporting. The administration had set a Thursday reporting deadline.

While the reporting requirement was an "understandable effort" to respond to the embassy seizure, Mrs. Green said, the presidential directive cannot "excuse the wholesale nullification of the rights of the students."

She said constitutional protections cannot be overturned by the government's concern for the safety of the 50 Americans taken hostage Nov. 4. Government lawyers had said violence against Iranian student demonstrators in this country could lead to retaliation against the American captives.

An attorney for Iranian students who sued the government said Americans should not be upset by the ruling.

"It's a decision by a court of the United States saying the Constitution prevails for the president, for the attorney general, even in a time of crisis," said David Carliner, the attorney.

"The court has said that in the conduct of foreign policy, and in the conduct of any policy, the president of the United States has to act within the limits of the United States Constitution. It's a victory for the American people, not a defeat."

Gold Rush Spurred On By Ordinary Americans

By MARK POTTS
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The price of gold is surging again, and analysts say the metal's traditional buyers, such as Arab oil sheiks and European investors, are being joined by ordinary Americans seeking protection against an eroding dollar.

"People speculate that it is an Arab purchase, or that the Russians do something, or that the South Africans do something, and these are all contributing factors, but the real buying is coming from Americans," said Nicholas Deak, chairman and president of Deak-Perera, a New York gold-trading firm. "With inflation continuing, more and more Americans are going to be turning from paper money into precious metals," he said.

The price of an ounce of gold on Tuesday broke through its old record of $444 in all three major gold-trading centers, hitting its best level in New York, where it closed at $451 an ounce, up $18.50 from Monday's level. It closed in London at $447 an ounce, up $15.25 from Monday, and in Zurich, it rose to $445.50, a $14.50 gain.

The dollar's fall and gold's rise were traced by analysts to a number of factors.

"There are a lot of things raising what we might call the co-efficient of anxiety, and you can think of the gold price as an index of that anxiety," said Jeffrey Nichols at Argus Research Corp.

"What we're seeing is a market recognition of the broader political movement underlying the problem in Iran," said James Sinclair, chairman of James Sinclair & Co., a New York financial advisory firm specializing in gold. He said the Iranian situation might be the first of many anti-American actions in the Mideast.

"International political developments are not such that it would create faith in our immediate future," said Deak. He added that gold is also attractive because "Americans are upset because of the loss of the dollar's purchasing power."

There were also worries that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries might vote a huge oil-price increase next week, hurting nations like the United States that import large amounts of oil, while providing more income for OPEC members to invest in the gold market.

Many investors worried about their holdings elsewhere often turn to gold as a more stable alternative. Gold's value all over the world makes it attractive when other investments are taking a beating.

The price of gold has now almost doubled from its $226.37-an-ounce price at the beginning of this year, and is almost 13 times as expensive as it was in 1970, when an ounce of gold cost about $35. The price was then largely controlled, however, by now-defunct international agreements.

"Obviously, the 1970s have been a golden decade with a vengeance," said David Fitzpatrick, a London-based gold-market analyst for the Wall Street firm Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith.

Jesse Harris Is Named To Fill NAACP Post

The Pitt County branch of the NAACP elected Jesse Harris chairman of the Committee on Education Sunday during a meeting at Macedonia Baptist Church, Farmville.

The chapter voted to support Julius Wright in his request for "justice against the brutality of the Pitt County Sheriff Department."

Pres. D. D. Garrett assigned each regional president a working team and directed all members of each team to becoming card-carrying members who support the programs of the branch.

The next meeting will be held Jan. 14 at Reddick's Chapel, Bethel.

Despite starting the final of the Bermuda Bowl, symbolic of the world team championship, with a deficit of 36 International Match Points carried over from the qualifying rounds, the United States quickly grabbed the lead from Italy and then hung on to win by 5 IMPs. But the best play of the final was this spectacular defense by Italy's Benito Garozzo, regarded by many as the world's best player.

In both rooms the contract was three no trump, and in both the opening lead was a low club. Declarer could see eight tricks—five diamonds, the ace of spades and two clubs. For Italy, declarer won the first trick in dummy and immediately led the jack of hearts. He misguessed by letting it ride to the queen and a low club was returned. Now declarer had no way to set up a ninth trick without surrendering the lead, which allowed the defenders to cash three club tricks for a one-trick set.

The play was being followed on Vu-Graph, and the commentators suggested that a better way to look for a ninth trick was to set up a second spade trick. Indeed, that was the line chosen by Mike Passell for the United States, but they reckoned without the genius of Garozzo.

After winning the first club in dummy, Passell led a spade to the ace, crossed to the queen of diamonds and led the queen of spades from the table. Garozzo won the king and returned a diamond!

That wrought havoc with declarer's communications. If he won the trick in dummy and cashed the jack of spades, he would set up two spade tricks for East while that defender still had the ace of hearts as an entry and West had the ace of clubs as the setting trick. And if declarer won in his hand and tried to establish his second club trick, he would be unable to get back to his hand before the defenders had five tricks in the bank in the form of three clubs, king of spades and the ace of hearts!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Arranging a schedule for the future can improve your position considerably. Find a better way for gaining more affection from loved one.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Try to meet the expectations of good friends and gain their devotion, goodwill. Budget money better.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Take your rightful place in public and career world and have more prestige. A bigwig can assist you if you contact this person early.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be off to new sites and make new acquaintances. Listen carefully to what they say. Follow hunches and you know how to get ahead.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Be more thoughtful of your closest ties. Confer with a money expert so that you can enjoy more security in the future.

Holiday Season One Of Ecstasy For The Hollywood Publicists

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The holiday season is cheering time for most folks, but it is absolute ecstasy for Hollywood publicists, who are busier this time of year than during any other.

Publicists (or press agents, as the sentimental among the breed prefer) are in the business of getting publicity for the famous people who hire them. Any famous person who is trying can find a guest spot on a Christmas special, thereby giving his press agent something to pitch about.

Consider the number of famous people who are earning a paycheck from TV Christmas specials this week:

The Boone Family (Pat, Shirley, Cherry, Laury, Lindy and Debby), Audra Lindley, Norman Fell, the Hudson Brothers, Rosemary Clooney, Jackie Vernon, Joel Grey, Tammy Grimes, Shirley Booth, Charles Shulz, Chuck Jones, Barbi Benton, Roy Clark, George Gobel, Loretta Lynn, Lynne Marta, The Oak Ridge Boys, Minnie Pearl, David Soul, Jose Ferrar, Buddy Hackett, Robert Morse, Larry Storch, Dave Garroway, Bob Hope, Angie Dickinson, Adam Rich (in two different specials).

There are 45 more, but you get the drift. And this is just this week, not including the famous people who found work on last week's specials, or those who have jobs on specials yet to come. That's a lot of hype, from a lot of publicists.

Yes, the holiday TV special is the publicist's friend. In fact, I heard of one press agent, Elton Pitchitt, who discovered last week that every one of his clients had found work on Christmas specials. Heady, he went to a network boss and asked for one more Christmas special.

"But why?" the network man asked, "We already have 35 holiday specials. Besides, there aren't enough famous people left to put together a show. Everybody's done one already."

"What?"

"Listen, it'd be great. You get Steve to play Christmas carols on his guitar, and sing songs with his guests."

"What guests?"

"Well, it was tough, but I've come up with a list of people who haven't done a Christmas special this year: George Allen, Howdy Doody, Nguyen Cao Ky, Bert Lance, Carol Doda..."

"Look, Elton," said the network boss, "why don't you just stick to publicity, and leave programming to us, all right? Thank you, Elton, and goodbye."

Inflation Is Reflected In Yule Cards

By FREDERICK M. WINSHIP

NEW YORK (UPI) — The price of Christmas cards is up about 20 percent over last year but only a Scrooge would object.

The average Christmas card, one which would appeal to a discriminating sender, is running around 60 cents, about a dime more than last year, according to industry sources. About the cheapest Christmas card around, bought by the box, is 30 cents, with classy cards bearing engraving, jacquard silk scenes, tapestry and fine reproductions of Old Master madonnas can run up to $3.

"Inflation means nothing when it comes to Christmas cards," said George Clark, manager of the Curzart shop in midtown Manhattan which specializes in cards from small companies with reputations for tasteful, artistic Christmas greetings.

"People don't want to think of themselves as Scrooge. They don't stop buying cards just because the cost is up, but maybe the more expensive cards are taking the place of small gifts. You'd be surprised at the kind of people who seem to think nothing of plunking down $3 for a card. Office secretaries, for instance."

Increased costs of paper and printing are the reason for the inflationary hike in Christmas card prices. Some 38 billion cards will be bought — about the same number as last year — but the sales total will be around $1.2 billion instead of 1978's $1 billion, according to a spokesman for the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers.

Although there are no revolutionary changes in card design, the U.N.'s Year of the Child obviously inspired a great many designs involving children. Household pets run a close second, and the religious theme has been "born again" in a big way accompanied by quotes from the Bible and messages about sharing and loving. The official Christmas stamp bears Gerard David's madonna and child from the National Gallery in Washington.

The elegance of metallic foils, satiny finishes, luminous pearly effects, and restrained glitter is the mark of the 1979 card. The card awarded the Printing Industries of America's annual award for excellence of design bears a Christmas tree formed out of shiny gold, green and red letters spelling "A Very Merry Christmas."

Hallmark, which accounts for some 50 percent of Christmas card sales in America, says the trend is inspired by younger buyers "who want to send cards that reflect their attitudes and lifestyles."

"The disco-inspired shiny, satiny look is perhaps the most noticeable design trend this year," said George Parker, vice president and creative director of Hallmark. "There is a definite trend toward an uptown kind of elegance, but there's nothing subtle about it. We also think silkscreen prints appeal to younger buyers."

Hallmark doesn't stint on cards for the traditional buyer, however. It has introduced a new Christmas Heritage line featuring fine quality color photographs of holiday settings in Colonial Williamsburg, Va., houses accompanied by sentimental messages.

Also traditional are the cards of an unusual new line designed and published by a 150-person cooperative community at Turners Falls, Mass., to raise funds for a solar-heated village. It features beautifully designed, old-fashioned representations of Santa and his reindeers, instead of the jogging, golfing, tennis playing, bibulous Santas portrayed in some sportier card lines.

The Year of the Child concept can be aided directly by purchasing cards from UNICEF, which offers a wide range of designs by artists around the world for as low as 30 cents. CARE, Inc., will send a holiday card to friends, relatives or business associates saying a contribution (minimum $2) has been made in their name to help destitute people, mostly children overseas.

AMIN IN LIBYA

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Idi Amin, the ousted Ugandan dictator, is living under virtual house arrest in Libya, Civil Affairs Minister Paul Muwanga says. "I wouldn't say he was living a comfortable life", said Muwanga.

A BREAKTHROUGH — It was a breakthrough for Sterling Bemis, a sailor and ex-marine, who will be caretaker for a Coast Guard lighthouse near Chicago's Navy Pier on Lake Michigan. After many court battles Bemis argued his presence in the now-automated 1920-era lighthouse would prevent vandalism and deterioration. (AP Laserphoto)

A Modern Don Quixote Wins Right To Live In Lighthouse

CHICAGO (AP) — For years, Stirling Bemis was in love with a lighthouse off a breakwater near Navy Pier.

A year and a half ago, Bemis, a salesman for Good Housekeeping Magazine, learned the lighthouse was being automated and the four coast guardsmen assigned there were pulling out.

So he hired a lawyer, and started negotiations that lasted more than nine months. At first, the Coast Guard's attitude was, "Go away kid," Bemis, 37, recalled.

Then, Bemis's lawyer quit, saying there was nothing more he could do and that he would be wasting his money.

"But I continued," Bemis said.

The breakthrough came when he argued that his presence would prevent both deterioration and vandalism at the lighthouse. Two weeks ago he signed a lease with the Coast Guard, but he declined to disclose the terms.

The lighthouse, standing since 1920 and accessible only by boat, rests on a concrete base 28 feet above water level. Inside, a spiral staircase winds its way to the top where a beacon flashes a red light every five seconds and is visible for 23 miles. There are several living areas, a new kitchen, storage rooms and an office.

"During the winter, weather permitting, I'll be going out there and getting the south room ready for insulating," said Bemis. "This is where I'll live at first. There are nine levels from the water level to the lantern deck on top.

"I'll have to do some insulating for noise, too, from the foghorn," he said. "It's 113 decibels and that could be harmful to my hearing. Any improvements I make become Coast Guard property. I'll work my way up from the south room as time and money permit."

Bemis will have no responsibility for, or access to, the foghorn, the light and a radio transmitter. That section will be maintained by the Coast Guard and kept locked.

While he negotiated for the lighthouse, his friends thought of him as a Chicagoan Don Quixote, chasing a waterbound windmill.

"Half of my friends thought it was the best idea they ever heard of. The other half thought I should be fitted for a straitjacket," Bemis said.

Why live in the cold, military gray atmosphere of an aging, isolated building that bleats loudly to sailors in foul weather?

"From there (the lighthouse) I'll get one of the most beautiful views of the city. And I'm a view freak. Besides, I just love that lake," he said.

Neuse Lake Is On Schedule

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The Army Corps of Engineers said Monday it is maintaining its schedule for impounding the Falls of the Neuse Lake by the middle of 1981.

David Hewitt, public information officer for the engineers' district office in Wilmington, said the impoundment is dependent upon full funding for the $119 million project during the next two fiscal years.

Falls Lake will flood 12,400 acres in Durham, Wake and Granville counties.

A Silent Victory In Fla. Horse Show

PORT ORANGE, Fla. (AP) — The crowd at the Silver Sands Bridle Club horse show went wild when first place was awarded to a young woman on a big Appaloosa. But the winner wasn't listening.

Josie Meyer has been deaf since birth.

For Miss Meyer, 21, it was the end of a long climb.

A 1976 graduate of the Florida School for the Deaf and Blind in St. Augustine, Miss Meyer began competing in horse shows in the Daytona Beach area two years ago. She and her mother, Billie, moved to nearby Ormond Beach from Miami five years earlier.

Josie began devoting all her spare time to her two horses. Her mother laughingly suggested that it would be simpler if Josie just moved out of the house and into the barn.

She toiled through six months of equestrian training under the eye of Julie McKean, a well-known instructor in the Daytona Beach area. Miss McKean learned sign language to help communicate with Josie.

"Sometimes we didn't understand each other," said Miss McKean, "but we both love horses. She works hard at it because she knows she has to."

Father And Son Played Major Roles In Early Carolina Story

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — What North Carolina father and son were both members of the state legislature and the U.S. Congress, governors of the state, delegates to constitutional conventions and trustees of the University of North Carolina?

Who was the first native born governor? Who was the governor when the capitol moved to Raleigh? What former governor was killed in a duel? Who was the last governor to be elected to office by the General Assembly?

The answers to all of these questions will be found in the careers of Richard Dobbs Spaight and his son, Richard Dobbs Spaight Jr.

The first Richard Dobbs Spaight was born near New Bern on March 25, 1758. He was the son of a distinguished Irishman, Richard Spaight, who came to North Carolina in 1754 and served on the Crown Council.

Writers in the past have failed to agree on the identity of his mother. A number have claimed that she was Margaret Dobbs, sister of Gov. Arthur Dobbs. Recent research indicates, however, that Margaret married the future governor's grandfather, George Spaight, whose son Richard, in turn, married Elizabeth Wilson, daughter of Col. William Wilson and Mary Vail Jones Wilson. Richard Dobbs Spaight was their only son.

Richard Dobbs Spaight was educated in the British Isles, but he returned to North Carolina in 1778 and joined the Colonists in their fight for independence. He served periodically in the House of Commons and in 1785 was its speaker. In 1783-1785 he was a delegate to the Continental Congress, and in 1787 he was a delegate to the Philadelphia convention which adopted the federal constitution. He also served in the state convention which declined to ratify the constitution.

In 1789 Spaight began a 13-year service on the UNC board of trustees. He returned to the House of Commons in 1792 and two years later attended the first session of the General Assembly held in the new statehouse in Raleigh. A decade later he went to the state Senate.

Spaight served in Congress from 1798 to 1801. Due to ill health, he relinquished his seat to John Stanly, a political enemy.

Formerly a Federalist, Spaight had become an Anti-Federalist or Republican. Stanly remained an ardent Federalist.

Their enmity grew with bitter charges and countercharges. Stanly challenged Spaight to a duel, and on Dec. 5, 1802, the two met behind the Masonic Lodge on Hancock and Johnson streets in New Bern. On the fourth salvo Spaight was mortally wounded and on the next day he died. Upon petition by Stanly, Gov. Benjamin Williams granted him a pardon.

The younger Spaight graduated from UNC, became a lawyer of considerable wealth, and served in the legislature (1819-1822 and 1825-1826), in the U.S. Congress (1823-1825), and was elected governor by the General Assembly of 1835, the last governor to be so elected.

Like his father, he was a delegate to a state constitutional convention — the one held in 1835. One of the adopted amendments provided for gubernatorial election by popular vote. Ironically, in the election of 1836, Spaight was defeated for a second term by Edward B. Dudley in the first popular election for governor.

He then retired from politics and settled down in New Bern to practice law and to attend to his extensive business interests. Also like his father, he was a trustee of the university, serving from 1821 until 1850. He died Nov. 2, 1850.

Records of their estates reveal that both father and son were wealthy. Both were great land owners and farmers and both had many business interests. The father owned 89 slaves at his death and the son owned 170. Interestingly enough, the inventory of the younger Spaight lists titles of the books in his extensive library.

Their sister, Margaret Elizabeth, married John Robert Donnell, wealthy lawyer and judge, and many of their descendants have achieved fame and prominence in national life.

Fifty Years Of Writing Is Big Pile

By PHIL THOMAS
AP Books Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — Howard Fast published his first novel when he was 18. Now, he's 65 and has so many books to his credit that he isn't quite sure how many.

"I don't know," Fast says softly, after drawing reflectively on his pipe. "About 57 or 58, I guess, if you include the detective stories I wrote under the name of E.V. Cunningham."

Fast, whose latest novel is "The Establishment," a best-seller and third in a projected four-book series about the Lavette family, says his first published book, "Two Valleys," actually was his 12th.

"I'd written 11 other novels before I did that one and it was published in 1932," he recalls with a smile. "Those first 11 I threw away but they weren't a waste. By writing them, I learned how to write."

In addition to novels, Fast was writing short stories. "My first story sale was to a science-fiction magazine," he says. "I was 16 then. I got $35 for it, which was a lot of money in those days when you consider I was getting $12 a week to work eight hours a day in a factory."

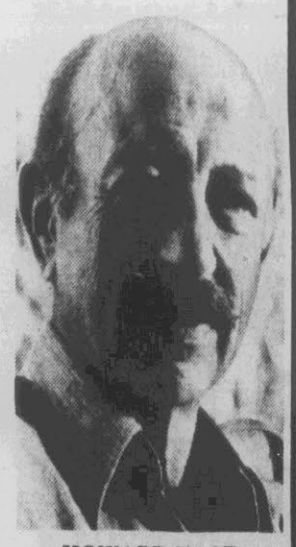
Between working days and going to school at night, Fast was only able to write between 6 and 9 in the morning, but he kept at it and "by the time I was 22 I was supporting myself with my writing and I no longer had to work at other jobs."

Over the years, in addition to novels, he has written plays, screenplays, a television play, non-fiction books and "a great many short stories — a book containing 31 of them is scheduled to come out next year."

But his favorite literary form remains the novel. "The novel," says Fast, "gives you the widest latitude, it gives you the room to go where you want and to write what you want."

For the past six months, he's been working on what he says will be the fourth and final novel in the Lavette family saga. "I hope to finish it sometime in 1980. It will be the largest and last of the series. There will be no fifth, absolutely not. Nor do I have any intention of going back and picking characters out of the books and writing other books about them."

Fast says he originally intended to tell the Lavette story in one book. "I wanted to tell the story of a woman — Barbara Lavette — in fullness, in great detail. I wanted to tell about her origins, her family, their friends, the influences exerted on them. I thought how nice it would be to follow this woman through her life, a woman I loved and admired as a character.



HOWARD FAST

"I had never done that before. I felt it was something I had to try."

But what had been intended to be one book couldn't be because "it simply was too long," Fast says. "When I finished the portion that became 'The Immigrants' I was told the rest of the story couldn't be contained in the same book because such a book would cost too much.

"So, I continued my story with 'Second Generation,' then "The Establishment.' You must realize that these books are not sequels, rather they are a solution to the problem of trying to to tell a very long story within the economics of today."

In addition to telling the story of a woman, Fast says the books are an attempt "to do a panoramic story of our times. The first book opens before the turn of the century and the fourth will end in 1978 or 1979, I'm not sure yet. Which is another reason there won't be a fifth, I'll have used up all the time."

Fast, who lives in Los Angeles, says he has no writing plans beyond finishing his saga. "I do know, however, that I will continue to swim, that I will continue to exercise, that I will continue these attempts at self-preservation."

Americans Excavating On Old Isle

By MORAD ASI

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Hampered by Cyprus' neighbors, American archaeologists are coming here in increasing numbers to unearth the cultural heritage left on the island by a succession of ancient conquerors.

This year, eight American archaeology teams have conducted digs in several locations. Some of these teams have been at work in Cyprus for many years.

"American archaeologists come here simply because it is becoming harder to get excavation permits from other countries in this area," said Anita Walker, a British-born archaeology professor from the University of Connecticut.

The professor, a Fulbright scholar who has been involved in Cyprus excavations since 1971, explained, "The awareness of American schools and encouragement of the Cyprus government are two major reasons for this influx of students and professors."

Like most Middle-Eastern countries, Cyprus has been greatly affected by the major historical events in this part of ancient civilization. Lying at the crossroad between Europe and the Middle East, Cyprus has attracted many great powers throughout history.

The island's rich copper mines and forests for timber were two natural attractions for making weapons, ships and other tools.

But even before these resources were exhausted around the 12th century A.D., Cyprus was strategically important to powers seeking to dominate the East Mediterranean basin, powers such as the Phoenicians, Egyptians, Persians, Romans, Crusaders and Ottoman Turks.

"They all had to cross through the island," says Michael Louloupis, archaeology officer at the Cyprus Department of Antiquities.

Americans are exacavating in Jordan, Israel, Egypt, Turkey and other Middle-Eastern countries, but there are proportionately fewer teams there than Cyprus.

Politics and local susceptibilities make it difficult for these young archaeologists to get into neighboring countries with rich cultural heritages.

Larissa Hordynsky, a graduate student at Brandeis University, observed that even in Greece "they discourage and restrict foreigners from excavating there."

The Iraqi government at the moment does not allow many Westerners into the country, let alone give permission to excavate," said Ian Todd, an archaeology professor at Brandeis, who led an excavation team in Cyprus.

The presence of so many Americans excavating here prompted the American School for Oriental Research (ASOR) to help establish the Cyprus American Archaeological Research Institute, headed by Anita Walker, who has just completed a two-year sabbatical leave from the University of Connecticut.

She said the institute, a nonprofit establishment, served as a summer home for many archaeology students, providing advice, room and board, and tools. ASOR has established similar institutions in Jordan, Tunisia and Israel.

She says American students join the excavation teams for various reasons. Some are after the experience, others collect data and others are archaeology or anthropology teachers, here to enrich their academic background.

Funds for most Americans come form the National Science Foundation for Prehistoric Excavations, and the National Science Foundation for Classical Excavations. Students are selected on the basis of experience, "but character and adaptation are also important," Todd said.

Todd's team excavated in Tenta, a neolithic site near the modern village of Kalvassos, 45 miles southeast of Nicosia. It has found many stone and clay items and unearthed rooms and what look like "foxholes." But the most exciting discovery this year was a "red painting of human activity," Todd said.

Miss Walker and Dr. Larry Stager of the University of Chicago excavated at Dhali Village, once the seat of a Roman satrapy. They have discovered part of an ancient fortification and another "public building."

Free Guides To Vintage Wines

NEW YORK (UPI) — A wallet-sized, updated vintage guide to Italian wines is being distributed free by the Italian Wine Promotion Center. It covers the 1961 to 1977 vintages of 28 varieties, lists wines by types and indicates which wines would benefit from aging and which are at their best drinking stage now. To obtain a copy of the guide, write: Italian Wine Promotion Center, One World Trade Center, Suite 2057, New York, N.Y. 10048

How Tar Heel Representatives, Senators Voted

Roll Call Report Service

HOUSE

NUCLEAR POWER— By a vote of 135 for and 254 against, the House rejected a proposed six-month freeze on Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) construction permits for nuclear power plants. The amendment was offered to a bill (HR 2608) that was headed for final passage and conference with the Senate. The vote was only symbolic since the NRC said earlier it would issue no nuclear plant construction permits or operating licenses for at least six months.

Rep. Edward Markey, D-Mass., sponsor of the amendment, said it would "send a message to the industry and the NRC that Congress will no longer tolerate any corner-cutting in the area of nuclear safety."

Rep. Matthew Rinaldo, R-N.J., an opponent, said defeat of the amendment would "signal to our foreign oil suppliers that we are resolved to move forward to become more energy self-sufficient."

Reps. Walter Jones, D-1, L.H. Fountain, D-2, Charles Whitley, D-3, Ike Andrews, D-4, Stephen Neal, D-5, Richardson Preyer, D-6, Charles Rose, D-7, W.C. Hefner, D-8, James Martin, R-9, James Broyhill, R-10, and Lamar Gudger, D-11, voted "nay."

TOO OLD TO FLY? — The House voted, 240 for and 165 against, to retain 60 years as the top age for the nation's commercial pilots, who are regulated by the Federal Aviation Administration. The vote also authorized a one-year study by the National Institutes of Health (NIH) to determine if the age should be raised. It thus blocked an attempt to immediately hike the age to sixty-one-and-one-half and then proceed with the NIH study. The vote came during debate on HR 3948, passed and sent to the Senate.

Airline Flight Experience Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sixty-five percent of all Americans over 18 years of age have flown on a commercial airliner, according to a survey done for the Air Transport Association.

The 65 percent figure represents 101 million people, a 7 percent increase over 1977 when the last survey was made.

The survey also found that while men account for the great majority of business trips — 82 percent — women account for the majority of personal-pleasure trips — 58 percent.

Rep. James Howard, D-N.J., a supporter, said: "Let us change or not change the conditions of our airline pilots based on solid medical evidence, not emotion."

Rep. Glenn Anderson, D-Calif., an opponent, called the 60-year limit "discriminatory" and said that "statistics clearly show that the more experienced, older pilots are involved in many fewer accidents than the least-experienced, younger ones."

Members voting "yea" wanted to keep 60 years as the top age for commercial pilots, at least until the NIH study is completed.

Jones and Gudger voted "nay."

VISTA — By a vote of 214 for and 152 against, the House extended the life of VISTA (the so-called domestic Peace Corps) and certain other programs of the Action agency for another two years. The vote adopted the House-Senate conference report on S 239, thus readying the measure for President Carter's signature.

Opposition centered on the fact that the House-Senate conference committee had removed most of the restrictions the House had earlier voted to put on VISTA operations. Stripped away at the Senate's insistence, for example, were provisions enabling Congress to veto VISTA regulations and local officials to keep VISTA projects out of their areas.

Rep. Paul Simon, R-Ill., a supporter, said the compromise version worked out by House and Senate conferees "really improves the bill."

Rep. Ken Kramer, R-Colo., an opponent, said the conference report "guts" most of the tough House language and fails "to insure the integrity of the programs designed to assist the least advantaged among our citizenry."

Jones, Martin and Broyhill voted "nay."

Rose and Hefner did not vote.

SENATE

WINDFALL TAX — The Senate voted, 58 for and 35 against, to increase the proposed tax rate on windfall oil company profits resulting from removal of price controls on already-discovered oil. The amendment, offered to an oil tax bill (HR 3919) headed for approval and conference with the House, would raise the rate from 60 to 75 per cent on U.S. oil discovered since 1973.

Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., a supporter, said a higher tax would not discourage oil production. Higher profits, he said, "cannot provide an incentive to find something that has already been found."

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kans., an opponent, said that with the nation dependent on foreign oil "it seems the height of folly to cripple the incentive to increase production."

Senators voting "yea" favored a higher windfall-profits tax rate on oil discovered since 1973.

Sen. Robert Morgan, D, voted "yea."

Sen. Jesse Helms, R, voted "nay."

HUGE TAX CUT — By a vote of 49 for and 44 against, the Senate turned away a Republican amendment to impose a massive tax cut by means of putting a cap on federal revenues. By limiting revenue to a percentage of the Gross National Product (20.5 per cent of GNP in 1981), the Republican proposal would have cut federal tax collections by $39 billion in 1981 and more in following yeras. The amendment was offered to the windfall-profits tax bill (see previous vote).

Sen. Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., a supporter of shelving the tax-cut proposal, said it would produce a permanent budget deficit because it would not cut federal spending at the same time it cut federal revenue-raising. He noted that its backers were also advocates of "sustained increases in military spending..."

Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., an opponent for shelving the GOP amendment, said that the government's "insatiable desire" for taxes will "destroy the very system that produces the benefits and fruits of growth of earnings, of vitality that is the American people's present entitlement and the dream for generations to come."

Senators voting "yea" opposed the GOP amendment.

Helms voted "nay."

Plymouth became the first British town to be incorporated by an act of Parliament in 1439.

Americans Spent Decades In Chinese Commune

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

It sounds like a movie scenario — but the people and the story are real:

She was a nuclear physicist who dropped out "during the McCarthy period". He was a dairy farmer and her brother's college roommate.

He went to China in 1946 as a dairy specialist with the United Nations Rehabilitation and Relief Organization. He became fascinated with the country and the people and stayed on after civil war broke out.

She arrived two years later as an English teacher for the Chinese Welfare Fund. They were married the following year in Yenan.

He and she are Erwin "Sid" Engst, whose farm was in the Syracuse, N.Y., area, and Joan Hinton, who worked with Enrico Fermi at the Institute of Nuclear Studies in Chicago and later, at Los Alamos.

They have lived in China ever since, mostly as workers on state farms where they help make and maintain equipment.

"We never decided to settle down (in China)," Engst said during a recent visit to New York City. "It's always been so interesting we never got around to coming back."

Both he and Miss Hinton are currently engineers at the Red Star Commune near Peking. Mainly they handle dairy equipment, making and installing milking machines, for example. They are paid like their fellow workers.

In an exclusive interview, the couple talked about their three decades as Americans in China.

His first job involved working with dairy cows. Because milk has never figured in Chinese cookery, its dairy industry is almost unknown to the average westerner. But as a beverage it is very important, Engst said:

He said most of China's per capita milk consumption of about 1 kilogram (2.2 pounds) per year is consumed by infants, because bottle feeding liberates nursing mothers to hold jobs.

He later worked in a tiny farm implements factory, trying to improve the products. She joined him there.

Their three children, now grown, were born and reared in China.

The Engsts' visit to New York wound up a a six-week tour of the United States as members of the Peking Study Mission of Dairy Mechanization. They acted as advisors to and interpreters for the 14-member mission led by Liu Ming, director of the Red Star Commune.

Both speak the language fluently, although with an American accent. They learned "by osmosis," Engst said, adding, "Our children say we never did learn."

As a working mother, Miss Hinton never needed to cook. "We always ate in the cafeterias on state farms," she said. She was happy to be freed from kitchen chores.

"We lived as a family together, we had our own rooms," she added, and a Chinese grandmother to look after the two sons and a daughter when they were small.

"Every family in China has to have a grandmother," Miss Hinton said, because there aren't enough day care centers.

"If I hadn't had help, I wouldn't have been able to work."

As a result of the grandmother system, none of the Engst children learned English until they were 21. The family spoke Chinese at home because English would have shut out the grandmother, Miss Hinton said.

Sons Fred and Bill, who currently live in Philadelphia, speak English with a Chinese accent.

Fred, an electrician at an auto chassis plant, is currently leading a 9-week tour of Americans to China. He had planned to take time off for the trip when the plant closed down recently, Miss Hinton said. Bill is a student at the Community College of Philadelphia.

The interview with Miss Hinton and Engst took place at the New York City apartment of Jim and Ruth Nesi, both members of the U.S.-China People's Friendship Association. The Nesis housed five members of the 14-member mission during its New York stay. The others were scattered about the city with other American families.

The Chinese farmers visited everything from agribusiness size spreads in the Los Angeles area to dairy farms near Madison, Wis., and Amish farms near Fleetwood, Pa. During two weeks at a dairy farm owned by Engst relatives near Aurora, N.Y., they milked cows, bailed hay and did other farm chores.

For herself, she has found returning to the U.S. "very pleasant, very warm, no hostility at all," in contrast to the climate she says existed when she left for China more than three decades ago.

She says she had been opposed to the U.S. decision to drop the atomic bomb on Hiroshima and Nagasaki and calls that time "the beginning of the McCarthy period."

"We had supported the side that said we should support the Communists in China," she said.

She said she was also among the scientists who had fought for civilian control of nuclear energy. She was 27 years old at the time.

"I was going to work on my PhD, but things were very tense. It was just before the Rosenbergs were executed," she said. "I felt it impossible to do any work at that time in nuclear physics."

So she went to China instead.

She said her interest in China stemmed partly from her her brother, William, a writer, who had gone there with the U.S. Office of War Information during World War II. Hinton subsequently wrote books about his experiences, two of which are still in print.

"We'd read a lot," Miss Hinton said, including Edgar Snow's "Red Star Over China," "and I wanted to go see it. I hadn't any intention of staying all that long."

Engst had remained in China when the UNRRA team returned home.

"I was going to stay two years," he said. "I became interested in what was going on in China during the anti-Japanese war. I was interested in how these people, who had nothing and who lived way off in the mountains, could fight off the Japanese attacks. They had no U.S. arms and no factories to make arms)."

Chinese homes also had nothing, no electricity, just tiny lamps — none of the amenities westerners took for granted even in 30 years ago.

"Yet, they had everything," Miss Hinton said, "tremendous relationships among people," for example.

Later they lived in adobe houses in Inner Mongolia before moving to the Peking area and communes about 13 years ago.
