Saudi Arabia Plans Boost Its Oil Price

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) - Oil Minister Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani said today Saudi Arabia will raise oil prices even before next week's OPEC pricing meeting.

Minister Mana Said al Oteiba said the UAE, Saudi Arabia and Qatar would raise the per-barrel price by $6 at the end of the year.

Simonet and other Belgian officials.

The newspaper Al Fajer in Abu Dhabi, one of the emirates in the UAE, had reported that several major OPEC members were planning to raise crude oil prices by $8 a barrel by the end of the week.

of 27.8 percent, and Qatar's would rise to $27.42, an increase of 28 percent.

But a number of the oil countries have already breached the current $23.50 ceiling, and some ministers have been talking about a new base price of $30 a barrel.

Nigeria, for example, reportedly has suggested it may raise its $26.27 price to $30.

Saudi Arabia is now producing 9.5 million barrels of crude oil daily and supplying nearly 20 percent of the United States' imports.

Tehran Newspaper Does A Flipflop On Kennedy

By MAUREEN JOHNSON

Associated Press Writer TEHRAN, Iran (AP) - A leading Tehran newspaper did an about-face and published a condemnation of Sen. Edward Kennedy today after his disavowal of a bogus letter expressing his support for Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

"It would be dangerous for the Iranian nation to think that there is any difference between Kennedy and Carter," the newspaper Islamic Republic said, quoting an unidentified spokesman for the Committee of American Residents in Iran.

The spokesman said if Kennedy criticizes the deposed shah today and expresses support for Khomeini's revolution, "he is only interested in strengthening his position against Carter and as such it is yet another maneuver to benefit himself."

The paper also quoted the spokesman as saying that the 1963 coup which overthrew Premier Mohammed Mossadegh and returned the shah to power was "initiated and planned by Edward Kennedy's group which included John Kennedy," and that the senator was "one of the instigators" of the killing of religious figures by the shah's forces that preceded Khomeini's exile in 1962.

The membership of the Committee of American Residents is not known. But it presumably is the same group that supplied three American women to a government news conference last week at which they expressed support for the students holding 50 Americans hostage in the U.S. Embassy since Nov. 4.

The condemnation of Kennedy contrasted sharply with the praise heaped on the Massachusetts senator locally following his San Francisco speech Dec. 3 in which he blasted the shah's regime as one of the most repressive in history.

The fake letter was first reported by Tehran Radio Wednesday. It was quickly denied by Kennedy's spokesman in Washington, and an Iranian Foreign Ministry spokeswoman then conceded it was a fraud. But Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh later brushed aside both denials and insisted the letter was authentic.

According to Tehran Radio, the Kennedy letter asked Khomeini for permission for the senator and three companions to visit Iran and said: "We support your Islamic republic 100 per cent...I will give my blood for you."

The situation of the American hostages remained unchanged, but in New York CBS News reported that Palestinian guerrillas are providing "technical assistance" to the students holding them in the embassy.

CBS said the Palestinians mined the embassy grounds and have taken a direct hand in the security of the hostages. It said the Palestinians volunteered their help after President Carter left open the possibility of military intervention.

CBS also said U.S. experts reported members of two Iranian guerrilla organizations, the fundamentalist Moslem Mujahidin and the leftist Fedayeen Khalq, have joined the students at the embassy.

There was no immediate comment from the Iranian Foreign Ministry on the State Department's order Wednesday expelling 183 Iranian diplomats from the United States within five days.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Thomas Reston said the expulsion was one of a series of "measured steps" to demonstrate American concern over the holding of the American hostages.

"We want to bring Iran to the point of seeing that releasing them is in their interest," he said.

The Khomeini regime continued to wrestle with Iran's rebellious minorities, and Justice Minister Mohammad Beheshti raised the prospect of a federal system of government.

Pitt Schools Are On 'Suspect' List

WASHINGTON (AP) - Seventeen North Carolina school districts have been listed by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare as possible candidates for investigation of civil rights violations.

A study released by HEW Wednesday ranked schools in three lists as the 100 "worst" districts in the nation according to their apparent degree of segregation, the disproportionate number of minority students who are suspended and the disproportionate number of minority students assigned to special education classes.

HEW compiles the rankings every two years. A department spokesman said the lists are used to help decide which school systems will be investigated for possible violations.

The department emphasized, however, that the rankings do not necessarily mean federal civil rights laws have been violated.

"We don't have any information that any of these school districts have done anything wrong. It is not an indictment or an accusation," said HEW spokesman Lou Mathis.

The Robeson County school system was ranked 71st on the list of 100 schools that HEW said appear to have the most segregated systems.

Three North Carolina systems were cited by HEW as suspending a disproportionate number of minorities: New Hanover County, ranked No. 61; Greensboro, No. 84, and Wake County, No. 99.

The North Carolina districts that HEW said have a disproportionate number of

Toll In Quake Rises

By TOM WELLS

Associated Press Writer BOGOTA, Columbia (AP) - The earthquake toll in southern Colombia rose to 133 dead and as many as 2,000 injured as searchers combed the rubble and wreckage in six coastal towns. Estimates of the missing ranged from 200 to 2,000.

The Red Cross declared the southwest coast near the border with Ecuador a disaster area. President Julio Cesar Turbay ordered the army to join in the rescue and relief work, and the local police called out auxiliary forces to assist in searching the ruins.

Emergency crews worked on power and telephone service.

Seismologists said the quake early Wednesday measured from 7.8 to 8.1 on the Richter scale. It lasted from 2:59 a.m. to 3:04 a.m., sent 10-foot high tidal waves crashing into the coast and was followed by 10 aftershocks during the next hour.

The scientists said the quake's epicenter was about 20 miles off the coast.

Charco, a fishing town of 4,000 people 165 miles north of the border, was hit hardest. Police said at least 62 persons were killed there and more than 350 were injured as their huts, built on stilts alongside a lake, were brought down. Many of the huts fell into the lake.

"Everything is knocked down," said the Rev. Jose Pablo. "The few houses that are left standing are seriously damaged."

Forty more dead were reported in Tumaco, a port 40 miles north of the border. The four-story hotel was one of the buildings brought down.

Some Educators Face N.C. Competency Test

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) - North Carolina's high school competency test will be given to about 700 high school teachers, administrators and private citizens during a study in January aimed at determining cutoff scores on the exams.

The study is one of three requested in August by the State Board of Education. It will be conducted by Dr.

Richard Jaeger, a research specialist and a professor of education at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

"People will be asked to take the test and then determine which of the individual items high school students should be able to answer correctly in order to receive high school diplomas," Jaeger said Wednesday.

"This research will allow some of the people who have an interest in the tests to pass their opinions along on the test items and to advise on what they feel the cutoff scores should be."

The tests will be administered in Haywood County on Jan. 12, in Forsyth County Jan. 19 and in Beaufort County, Jan. 26.

SHABBY SIGN

The "Snoopy" sign pointing the way to the Greenville Animal Shelter, given the city by the Pitt County Humane Society way back when Liz Whalen was president, was nice at the time. But it's been shabby for quite a while now. Can't the city take it down and put up a replacement? It's located at the corner of East Fifth and Cemetery streets. J. M.

Consider it done - or in the process of being done. The headless and tattered Snoopy was removed from public view the same day it was mentioned to a city official. The Inspections Department, which administers the Animal Control Program, gave Public Works the go-ahead to take it down and replace it with a conventional direction sign.

Outgoing City Officials Honored At Luncheon

By STUART SAVAGE Reflector Staff Writer Greenville Mayor Percy Cox, and city council members John Howard, Millie McGrath and Charles Vincent, who will leave office tonight when a new mayor and city council members take the oath of office, were honored at a Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce-sponsored banquet at noon yesterday for their service to the city.

Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green was the principal speaker at the "40 Years Governmental Appreciation Luncheon" at which the outgoing officials were presented plaques in recognition of their service to the city.

Cox, with 15 years service, was first a member of the city council, and has served two terms as Mayor. Howard has been a member of the council for 14 years, while Ms. McGrath has been a council member for nine years. Vincent is ending a two-year term as a councilman.

Green, praising "those of you who took part in planning and initiating this luncheon," said, "I'm sure your appreciation and initiative...will not go unnoticed..."

The speaker continued, "in a way, I suppose you could describe this as a sort of 'retirement' luncheon for these people...they are 'retiring' from public service to the citizens of Greenville after 40 years of combined effort to bring Greenville to this point in time."

"I think it is revealing that most often in Greenville, does this sort of occasion take place. Call it civic duty, civic pride, or whatever. But the fact remains that the citizens of Greenville are appreciative of their public servants and have always been willing to show that appreciation."

News Word: Censorship

Governments and other groups sometimes act to control what people are allowed to write, read, hear, see, or do. This kind of action is called censorship. It can apply to books, newspapers, films, speeches, music, painting and other types of art. In ancient Rome, two public officials, called censors, were appointed to register individual citizens to decide what taxes or other duties each person owed to the community. Censors also had the power to exclude from public functions individuals who behaved improperly. The first amendment of the Constitution and other state and federal laws limit censorship in the United States.

Narrow Interpretation May Curb Executions

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - Although 10 people sit on death row in North Carolina, the state Supreme Court's "narrow interpretation" of the law may prevent many executions from being carried out, says a Forsyth County prosecutor.

Donald K. Tisdale, district attorney in Forsyth County, said the state's 1977 death penalty law is restrictive, and that the state Supreme Court has "gone even further in its narrow interpretation."

"I'm not saying that it's wrong," Tisdale said. "But I am saying that it's a fact. This prospect is something all district attorneys, myself included, are going to have to accept and react accordingly."

Tisdale's comments followed the court's ruling this week that changed the death penalty imposed on Rebecca Case Detter of Kernersville to life imprisonment.

Mrs. Dettler was convicted last year of poisoning her husband with arsenic.

Last month, the court upheld the murder conviction of Norman Dale Johnson, but ordered a new trial to determine whether he should die in the gas chamber or be sentenced to life in prison. An Alexander County Superior Court had recommended the death penalty for Johnson.

Tisdale said the attitude of the state Supreme Court will be reflected by trial judges who, contemplating appellate review of their case, will bend over backward in favor of the defendant.

"They're going to absolutely guarantee that the defendant gets every advantage permitted by law - and perhaps more," Tisdale said.

In the Dettler case, the sentence was changed to life in prison because the court said the death penalty law was not in effect at the time Mrs. Dettler committed the acts for which she was convicted. Although her husband died after the June 1, 1977, effective date of the new law, Mrs. Dettler was believed to have administered the poison during the first three months of the year.

The new law was passed after the U.S. Supreme Court in 1976 struck down an earlier North Carolina death penalty law that made the death sentence mandatory in capital cases.

Under the new law, the same jury that convicts a defendant of a capital crime must deliberate a second time to decide whether the death penalty or life imprisonment should be imposed.

Tisdale, who prosecuted the Dettler case, said he had no doubts that Mrs. Dettler deserved the death penalty. But, he added, "the Supreme Court decided differently. I'm not losing any sleep over it."

A state Correction Department official said nine men and one woman currently face death sentences. The 10th person was added to death row Tuesday when Robert Henry McDowell of Fayetteville was convicted of murder and sentenced to die.

Tree Linked To Ambition

BELVILLE, N.C. (AP) - Like its 14-inch high Christmas tree, the tiny Brunswick County town of Belville hopes to grow bigger and better every year.

Belville - situated nextdoor to the city of Wilmington, which claims to have the world's largest Christmas tree - calls its wee cedar tree the smallest.

"It's small and we're small and we hope to grow together," said Belville mayor John D. Long.

Long said there had been a lot of hoopla about Wilmington's 100-foot-tall live oak that is decorated each year with thousands of lights and lighted during an impressive ceremony.

So last year, Long went to the woods, dug up the tiny cedar and nurtured it all year in his back yard.

A few days ago, Long planted it smack in the middle of town, right across from the temporary ABC store that's to be dedicated Friday.

Belville has a normal-sized town Christmas tree this year and both the big and little trees were dedicated Saturday in a ceremony attended by townspeople and visitors.

After Christmas the little tree will get a permanent berth alongside its big brother where, like the 2-year-old town, it will continue to grow.

Bel Kaufman Novel Explores Divorce

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — If your first novel was the phenomenally successful "Up the Down Staircase," what do you do for an encore?

"When someone has success in any field, people expect the same thing again, but bigger and better," says the author, Bel Kaufman. "I could have written a sequel to 'Staircase.' But I took a risk of something more adult, more complex and on more levels, and I like myself for not doing the easy thing."

Her new book, "Love, etc.," is, indeed, a story on many levels. On one, it is the exchange of letters between Jessica, a middle-aged writer still undergoing the trauma of a long-past divorce, and Nina, also a writer and recently divorced.

On another level, it is the entries in Jessica's diary. And on still another, author's notes and fragments of a book Jessica is writing about a woman faced in middle life with divorce. Through it all runs the thread of Jessica's current passionate love affair.

Obviously, a complex book to write from so many viewpoints. To keep them straight, "I had lists and charts, I had red and blue and green ink and asterisks and arrows," the author recalled with a smile in an interview.

"Each track illuminated and influenced another. The diary was pure emotion, private truth; the letters, light and bantering, the social truth. The novel within the novel was experience transmuted into art. It lets the reader be privy to the creative writing process."

"Love, etc." was published 14 years after "Up the Down Staircase," which was No. 1 in the country for five months, on the best-seller list for 64 weeks, is now in its 45th printing, and was made into a successful movie.

Though she says the latest book took only about a year and a half of concentrated work, Miss Kaufman spent the time between the two "thinking and feeling and looking for a format that would combine the shattering divorce story with a light touch."

The author, whose earlier novel drew on her experiences as a teacher, is herself divorced — "But my divorce was nothing like Jessica's," she is quick to add.

"I've seen many women in their 50s, divorced. She finds herself in a world full of sexual freedoms and opportunities. What does she do? I tried to show you don't really divorce a man or woman by a legal divorce. You have to have an emotional divorce."

Miss Kaufman writes on the typewriter because, even with her three-finger system, it's faster than longhand.

"But I must make all my changes in longhand, and in ink — it's stricter than pencil," she adds. "When I have all the raw material, I start getting the rhythm, the style, the feeling."

"For a long while you have to manipulate the characters," she explains. "When they begin to take over I have to listen to them. They kept changing. The characters first conceived in anger I found myself treating with compassion. I started writing about them satirically and ended up sympathetically. It's as if the characters were leading me."

Miss Kaufman, who lives in Manhattan, has two children, a granddaughter whom she dotes on and "a marvelous man in my life." She is the grand-

His Last Letter Was First Class

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I'm sitting here on the plane reading the letter in your column about the son who didn't want to put his father up temporarily because he felt his father's visit would be an invasion of his privacy.

That item caught my eye because I am on my way to visit my son in Omaha for two weeks — at his insistence. I was reluctant to do so initially because I felt I might be interfering with his personal activities.

I wonder if the son who wrote that letter ever gave a thought to the privacy his father might have forfeited during his son's time at home?

There were times during my children's lives when, given my druthers, I'd have preferred some alternative activity, but now I don't regret one minute of the time I spent with them. I'm only sorry it couldn't have been more. Their time at home seems to have been so brief.

I won't mail this, of course, since I realize you will receive thousands of more articulate letters on the above. This is just my way of

We've been married for seven years and he seems to get more gross every year.

ANGRY IN SAN MATEO

DEAR ANGRY: How you "correct" him is important. Take one offense at a time, explaining that his slovenliness offends you and his rudeness hurts and irritates you. When you attack a man, he'll instinctively either try to defend himself or counter-attack. Anger generates anger. Love generates love. Think about it.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for printing the letter from the 16-year-old girl who had recently undergone a hysterectomy as a result of gonorrhoea. So many people believe gonorrhoea is a minor infection that's easily detected and quickly cured. Like the girl who wrote to you, I wasn't a "sleep-around" type either. I had only one boyfriend, but even though he KNEW he was infected, and had seen his doctor for treatment, he didn't mention it to me. My doctor misdiagnosed my symptoms, and even though I was 24, I was naive and uninformed, which resulted in my having a hysterectomy, too. I'm still single, but I plan some day to adopt because I want a family.

Please keep warning your readers of the consequences (and symptoms) of VD. This letter is sincere, but please forgive me for not signing my name.

A READER

DEAR READER: VD is still a serious epidemic. Anyone reading this (regardless of age) who suspects that he (or she) has it should phone the VD hotline (toll-free) 800-523-1885. All questions will be answered by trained persons, and you'll be told where to get an examination and treatment free!

Public Supports Art Museum

Steadily the future of a new N.C. Museum of Art becomes assured.

The Legislature appropriated $10.75 million for the building, but the cost of an adequate facility is now expected to be around $15 million.

To make up the difference, a broad campaign was launched to raise additional funds.

This week Louis C. Stephens, chairman of the drive, presented a check to Gov. Hunt for $5 million, citing it as "a Christmas gift to the people of North Carolina."

The facility is under construction in Raleigh and it will be used to exhibit the extensive art collection which the state of North Carolina now owns.

North Carolina's efforts to develop an art museum are nationally recognized. Much of the impetus for its development came from citizens of our area, most important, the late Lucy Cherry Crisp and the late Robert Lee Humber.

Now an adequate art museum facility is being constructed, partially with private funds.

It all speaks well for our state.

Expensive Loss In Satellite Mishap

Satellites have revolutionized communications in only a few short years.

Transmission can be made from any part of the world to most other parts, simply by bouncing the signals off a satellite circling the earth in space.

It can be an expensive undertaking as RCA Corp. proved Monday.

Its $20 million one-ton Satcom III was lost in space. The satellite disappeared as it was being maneuvered into permanent orbit.

A high priced loss.

Auto Parts Made In N.C.

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — What's good for the auto industry may indeed be good for North Carolina despite the criticism which a blunt-spoken Detroit mogul once generated by making a similar observation about cars and the nation.

If all the Tar Heel activities in making transportation components were pulled together in one place, Detroit would find a Sunbelt challenger on its hands.

The missing link is final assembly of a finished product, and the experts say American-made cars will continue to be put together in existing plants. But at least one major truck manufacturer, Freightliner, has started rolling finished tractors from its plants in Gaston County and nearby Lincoln County.

North Carolina's increasing importance in the auto industry has happened almost unnoticed, and fairly recently. One reason the phenomenon escaped attention is that the concentration of plants in one place, such as occurred in Detroit, has been avoided here. The industries are scattered from mountainous Cherokee County in the west to Perquimans and New Hanover on the coast. Heaviest concentration is in the Piedmont.

Value

Mike Rakouskas, a research specialist with the state's Department of Commerce says there are now 140 automotive component manufacturers in North Carolina with total employment exceeding 25,000, and estimated capital investment over $2.5 billion.

Many of the firms are relative newcomers to the state, with 50 either located here since 1976, or in the process of doing so. Since July, four auto component manufacturers have announced plans in North Carolina creating 2,000 new jobs and investing more than $60 million in their operations.

"The success we are having in this field is very encouraging," says Larry Cobick, chief of the economic development division at Commerce. "It is a very good industry for the state."

The auto component industry is still in its infancy in North Carolina, but specialists see parallels between the present booming beginnings and the situation many years ago when textiles first began to make their appearance in North Carolina.

Industrial specialists find this prospect encouraging. For one thing, the auto industry is ranked high on the scale of manufacturing wages paid employees. For another, the plants are considered generally environmentally clean. Also, the auto industry requires new and more highly developed skills than some others, opening new opportunities for the state's vocational and technical school graduates, and advancement opportunities for experienced workers.

BILL NOBLITT

Diversity

Mecklenburg county has 23 auto component firms, and Wake has 10. Wilson County, according to size, has benefited most of all with seven firms located there recently, including a huge Firestone Tire and Rubber plant. The various component makers have dispersed across the state with 44 of the state's 100 counties now serving as plant sites.

Rubber tires and other rubber products are made in Oxford, Charlotte, Wilson, Fayetteville, Weldon, Asheboro, Roanoke Rapids and Siler City. Batteries are made in Raleigh, Charlotte, Winston-Salem, and Thomasville. Goldsboro produces mufflers; Aynesville makes fan belts and hoses; Gastonia makes tire cord and fabric; tire valves are produced in Monroe; headlights in Black Mountain; gears in Sanford and Gastonia; wiring in Burlington and Mebane; fuel tanks in Bryson City; upholstery and carpet in Salisbury, Statesville, Wallace, Old Fort, Faith, Mount Holly, Albemarle, Belmont, and Gastonia; water pumps and clutches in King; alternators at Clarkton; axles in Morganton and Mebane; brake shoes and discs at Goldsboro, Murphy, and Morganton; wheel covers at Pineola; filters in Winston-Salem, filters in Gastonia and Fayetteville; and glass coastings in Fayetteville.

Tricky NATO Action

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The North Atlantic Treaty Organization's decision to station new American nuclear missiles in Western Europe is a step toward arms control, officials of the Carter administration claim.

They contend that the best way to get the Russians interested in decreasing military tensions in Europe is for the West to show resolve.

The Soviets have more than 100 SS-20 missiles aimed at Western Europe. Because of the action taken Wednesday at NATO's winter meeting, the United States will deploy 572 Pershing II and Tomahawk cruise missiles in West Germany, Britain and Italy, and possibly in the Netherlands and Belgium, beginning in 1983.

A new round of arms-control negotiations to scrap those missiles and the Russian SS-20s "begins with the publication of this communique," said a U.S. strategist after the announcement of the NATO decision.

It's a tricky, two-track approach the United States is taking with its allies — building up nuclear weapons to convince the other side to join in slowing down the arms race.

To demonstrate the sincerity of its commitment to arms reduction while deploying the missiles, the United States will withdraw 1,000 old nuclear warheads from Western Europe. And, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance said, it is ready to negotiate cutbacks with the Russians right away, even before the Senate votes on the SALT 2 treaty.

The question is how the Soviets will view NATO's decision.

Last week, foreign ministers of the seven Warsaw Pact countries switched from harsh warnings against new Western nuclear arms to an appeal for broad East-West disarmament talks.

Truth On A Sideline

WASHINGTON — The policeman's lot, as everyone knows, is not a happy one. The U.S. Supreme Court has just made it worse.

In its opinion of Nov. 28 in Ybarra vs. Illinois, the high court once again demonstrated the blue-eyed innocence with which it views the enforcement of criminal law. And once again the court gave its benediction to the mischievous "exclusionary rule" on the admissibility of evidence. This is the rule that reduces criminal justice to a game that lawyers play, while truth sits it out on the sidelines.

These were the facts: On March 1, 1976, agents of the Illinois Bureau of Investigation obtained a warrant authorizing them to raid a shabby, one-room bar in Aurora known as the Aurora Tap. An informant had seen packets of heroin behind the bar and on the person of the bartender. On at least 10 occasions he had observed heroin on the premises. The warrant specifically authorized the police to search "for evidence of the offense of possession of a controlled substance, to wit, heroin."

Eight officers made their raid in late afternoon. A dozen patrons were in the bar. Officer Jerome Johnson, leading the party, at once did what any prudent cop would do: He ordered customers patted down for concealed weapons. While frisking Ventura Ybarra, Johnson felt a cigarette pack with objects in it. To no one's great surprise, the packets turned out to contain heroin.

Ybarra was found guilty of possession and sentenced to two years on probation. He appealed. Last month the Supreme Court ruled the evidence inadmissible and reversed the decision, 6-3.

In the majority's view — you may find this hard to believe — "there is no reason to suppose that the authorities had probable cause to believe that any person found on the premises... would be violating the law." Heavens to Betsy! Was Mr. Justice Stewart born yesterday, or was he born the day before? The magistrate had accepted the informant's word that heroin was regularly seen at the Aurora Tap. An ordinary, inescapable inference surely could be drawn that addicts were hanging around to buy it.

Mr. Justice Stewart would draw no such inference. "A person's mere propensity to others independently suspected of criminal activity does not, without more, give rise to probable cause to search that person." The padlock of Ybarra was not supported by a reasonable belief that he might be armed; he gave no indication of possessing a weapon; his hands were empty.

Very well. His hands proved to be empty. But his pockets were not. Mr. Chief Justice Burger, dissenting, argued that the heroin packets were validly seized.

To the editor:

In Woody Peele's 12-7 column, he practically cries, "East Carolina!! Love it or leave it!!"

I cannot be as naive as Woody to believe that internal conflict will magically dissipate if only it's ignored. I don't have as much blind faith in Dr. Brewer, either, as Woody does. If a former U. S. president could lie to the American people, why couldn't a University official? Surely Dr. Brewer is not publicly going to "put down" athletics in "Pirate Football Country," as one sportscares puts it.

Woody recalls that people grumbled during Dye's first season. What he forgot is Coach Dye's statements that people had a right to complain if things didn't suit them. Lack of complaining may be a sign of either complacency or apathy.

Complaining in itself does little good. If a problem exists, why not diagnose it and remedy it? If not, ECU could perpetually be a coaches' steppingstone into the ACC.

To dispel rumors and grumbling and get ECU back on an "even keel," why not publish a nonbiased report about the ECU Athletic program which would emphasize program strengths and weaknesses as seen by the coaches and staff. Naturally, personal interviews would be confidential. A non-threatening investigation could be performed by Plank members of the ECU Pirate Club who I consider worthy investigators due to the hundreds of thousands of dollars they contribute to the University. A final report of CONSTRUCTIVE recommendations could be submitted to Dr. Brewer for his disposition.

In summary, I'm not working "against ECU athletics, but am looking for assurances to financial contributors that they're making wise investment into an energetic and viable athletic program. Like Woody, I'd like to see the dust over Minges Coliseum settle and get on with the best recruiting year ever for all sports. I enjoy all Woody's columns and intend no malice to him or Dr. Brewer.

Press Barriers Imposed

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Discrimination against Western newspapermen by radicals in nominal control of revolutionary Iran is now being used to deny visas, suggesting a renewed and disturbing trend by anti-American regimes toward controlling the flow of news.

Iran was a principal goal in the itinerary of our latest trip to the Persian Gulf area — but we will not be going there because the revolutionary high command has refused us a visa.

No coherent explanation was officially supplied, anymore than by Uganda (under Idi Amin) and Mozambique in 1977 or communist Vietnam in 1978 when those countries denied us visas. The only difference with Iran is that we learned (through an intermediary) the real reason: What we have written in the past has displeased the Revolutionary Council.

That destroys the old rule of thumb that a reporter rates entry to a foreign country if he meets three tests: represents a bona fide publication; adheres to the laws of the land, and agrees to pay his bills. The new test goes to the question: What does he think; or at least, what does he reveal publicly about what he thinks?

The problem is profound. If a reporter is barred from Iran because of what he has written, that implies a test on what is written by reporters who are admitted.

A year ago when demonstrators roamed the streets of Tehran demanding the shah's head, American journalists were prized as an essential conduit for their views. We obtained an Iranian visa last April.

But affection for the U.S. media cooled after Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini took power and reporters wrote of political repression (we reported from Tehran that grave economic and political disintegration had set in and would worsen). In September the Associated Press bureau was shuttered and those AP reporters expelled. Seven other Western newsmen were kicked out. An interview at the embassy in Washington became a prerequisite for a journalist's visa.

After terrorists seized the U.S. Embassy, Khomeini's regime again welcomed American newsmen to tell their story — up to a point. We discovered that point when, after applying for a visa, we were interviewed by Iranian press attache Hussein Ava. Ava cared deeply about what we thought.

"Is not the United States government responsible for the shah's mass murder and torture of the Iranian people?" he asked. We replied that the U.S. a generation ago had put the young shah in power but that we had heard only allegations about "mass murder" or "torture."

"You have been all these years a newspaperman and do not know facts that all the world knows?" Ava asked. Were we censored by the Carter administration or our bosses? No, we replied. "Well," Ava said, "other journalists who have been in here tell me that they have." He lectured at length on alleged distortions of news from Iran by the U.S. media.

Three days later, the Iranian Embassy told us the visa application had been denied. Ava's explanation: too many Western newsmen in Tehran.

The real story emerged when former Sen. James Abourezk of South Dakota, now a Washington lawyer representing Iran's government, returned from Tehran. At our request, Abourezk graciously asked what had happened to our visa application. "They told me," he soon reported back, "that you had written the worst stuff about Iran of anybody and you

Strength For Today

ANXIOUS FOR TOMORROW?

"Be not anxious for tomorrow," said Jesus to his disciples.

He did not mean by this that we are not to plan for the future. Quite the contrary. "Which of you," he asked his hearers on one occasion, "desiring to build a tower, doth not sit down and count the cost?" And again he said, "Or what king, as he goeth to encounter another king in war, will not sit down first and take counsel, whether he is able with ten thousand men to meet him that cometh against him with twenty thousand?" Jesus wanted us to be thoughtful and plan every move we make.

But he constantly emphasized the great truth that the issue of events is not in men's hands. The issues of life are and always have been in God's hands. He may bring events to a climax that appears to us shocking and disappointing; yet, viewed in the perspective of time beyond our understanding, we can be sure that the end result will be full of blessings.

Circulating Dismal Message

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Henry Kaufman and his associates are circulating the most dismal Christmas message that borrowers could expect, a reminder that interest rates are going into still higher orbit.

Lenders will contest this interpretation, and quite logically. For them, high interest rates mean good money. But lenders are growing less common; borrowers are the majority today, and they are devastated.

Devastated because Henry Kaufman, general partner in Salomon Brothers, the securities firm, is considered a seer about interest rates. His accuracy might not be perfect, but his reputation seems almost to be. That reputation compels major market forces to heed his message, even though it directly contradicts the downward trend of rates and the considered analyses of dozens of other interest rate forecasters.

The consensus forecast in the past few weeks has been for a gradual decline through 1980, and many thought the process had already begun. The prime lending rate, 15 3/4 percent in November, is now down to 15 1/4.

Kaufman isn't swayed. He asks that you consider the possibility of 16 percent or 17 percent prime, which in theory and probably in myth is the best rate that big city banks give to their best customers.

A quick file search confirms that Kaufman understands his subject. A year or so ago, for example, he forecast a 13 percent prime, an unprecedented level and, some thought, an unbelievable forecast.

His new forecast has other economists aghast once again. Postwar highs will be established "for almost all interest rates somewhat before mid-year," he and associates, James McKeon and David Foster, announced.

They explained that "the combination of economic contraction and accelerating inflation will not, at least at first, reduce upward pressures on interest rates."

Under such circumstances, they continued, "credit demands do not quickly abate; rather the need to finance inventories, receivables and even consumption rises." Firms such as Salomon Brothers and economis such as Kaufman tend to aim their remarks at big borrowers and lenders, at government officials and corporation chairmen, because they make up its market. But what happens in these markets often is affected by what consumers do.

Kaufman and his associates believe the consumer will be one of the keys to understanding the 1980 economy.

If a predicted rise in unemployment lags behind the economic slowdown, consumption will remain strong well into the year, they say. That suggests consumers will be a big force behind prices and loan rates.

Approve Reorganizing Of College Department

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The State Board of Education has tentatively approved a major reorganization of the Department of Community Colleges in which 50 of the department's 205 employees would lose their jobs.

The board is expected to formally move to accept the plan when it meets in regular session today.

The reorganization is designed to streamline the department, according to Larry J. Blake, president of the Department of Community Colleges.

Blake proposed the reorganization in October, but the committee took no action then because Lt. Gov. James C. Green, a committee member, was in Japan.

Some members of the education board have expressed concerns about the number of employees who would lose their jobs.

"Nobody likes the idea of cutting personnel," board chairman H. David Bruton said Wednesday. "The reorganization has to be viewed in terms of the total things accomplished."

The board has stressed that the decision to reorganize the department hinged not on people but on structure. "It structures the department so that it will be more effective," said community college committee chairman Larry M. Harding.

According to education officials, the plan would:

—Eliminate a level of management, with seven associate vice president positions being cut.

—Cut half of the area coor-ordinator program, eliminating 25 jobs. This program has come under criticism by state legislators.

—Abolish the education resources section, with its six employees, and eliminate the department's campus accreditation program, which has two employees.

—Reduce the public information section, with its function shifted to a new assistant to the president for public affairs.

None of the cuts are expected to take place before June 30, Harding said. He said efforts would be made to place the people in jobs in other state agencies.

At the same time, they cautioned that "the acceptance of a proposal on the production and deployment of new types of American-made missiles in Western Europe and the realization of this proposal would destroy the basis for negotiation."

The Russians may be trying to make the point that they won't give up on negotiation until the weapons are actually deployed three years from now.

The Russians also are trying to demonstrate that they are sincere when they say they want arms reduction. A Soviet military train with 18 tanks strapped down on flatcars left Wittenberg, East Germany, last week eastward bound. It was the start of a unilateral Soviet pullback of 1,000 tanks and 20,000 troops.

The future of arms control in Europe may depend on whether Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev's warning in October is operative.

He told NATO that it faced a last chance to bring the nuclear arms race under control. If that really is the Soviet position, NATO may have booted that chance.

Budget Talk Set Tonight

Citizens and educators from the Pitt County area are invited to attend a public hearing on the budget making process for North Carolina public education tonight, 7 p.m., at the Martin County Auditorium, Williamston.

"The State Board of Education wants to find out from all citizens what they think should be the top budget items as we prepare to make requests for programs and needs of the schools to the 1981 General Assembly," said State Superintendent Craig Phillips.

"This is an excellent opportunity for us to hear from parents, taxpayers, and all those North Carolinians who care about their public schools and their children who attend these 2,000 schools," Phillips continued. "The needs are many and the cost is great. Finding out what citizens honestly feel are the most urgent needs are the things we want to set at top priority."

What were the cops to do? Were they to assume that all the patrons were unarmed and uninvolved? "Given the setting and the reputation of those who trade in narcotics, it does not go too far to suggest that they might pay for such an easy assumption with their lives." After all, Burger added, the Aurora Tap is "something quite different from a ballroom at the Waldorf."

Mr. Justice Rehnquist, dissenting separately, thought the requirements of the warrant were fully met. The Fourth Amendment does not forbid all searches; it forbids only "unreasonable" searches. He found nothing unreasonable in frisking Ybarra.

The Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police asked an excellent question in a brief as friend of the court. "What if a pakedown does not indicate the existence of an object that could be a weapon, but indicates that it might be the type of evidence specified in the warrant? Are the police then powerless to act? This seems manifestly absurd."

Of course it is absurd, but that is the ludicrous point to

Performers Set Benefit Show

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Some of the biggest names in rock'n'roll — including Wings and The Who — will perform in four post-Christmas London concerts to raise money for the Camodian refugees, U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim says.

On Dec. 26, the group Queen will perform, followed by Ian Dury and the Blockheads, Matumbi and a mystery act on Dec. 27. The next day The Specials and The Who are on stage, followed Dec. 29 by Billy Connolly, Elvis Costello and the Attractions, Rockpile and Paul McCartney and Wings.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — REAL CHRISTMAS REINDEER CHARMED THE CHILDREN.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: L equals J

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Oceanographer Will Test A Black Box

By HUGO FAY
MONTREAL (UPI) — Oceanographer Louis Lourmais believes the secret to taming the shark may lie in the super-sensitive skin that makes it such a deadly hunter.

Lourmais will test his theory in some of the world's most shark-infested waters between Miami and Havana. Next year he will enter the waters protected only by a 10-inch black metal box, weighing about two pounds, that radiates an electro-magnetic field.

"I've no death wish about any of this," he said. "I have spent 40 years diving in shark waters so I know how to handle myself but I am, if you like, the fool who has to try all this equipment."

Last year, Lourmais was successful in keeping at bay man-eating sharks during a 50-hour experiment in the Gulf Stream.

Woman Marine Among Guards For Embassy

By RUTH E. GRUBER
BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UPI) — When Julia Jones took up her new overseas job last summer, heads turned for more than one reason.

The petite blonde from Marietta, Ga., is a Marine sergeant and one of the first woman Marines ever to be posted abroad as a U. S. Embassy guard.

Along with eight other Marine guards — including one other woman — she takes her turn on rotating, 8-hour shifts guarding the entrance of the American Embassy in downtown Belgrade and carrying out other security duties.

"Women have been in the Marine Corps for years," said Sgt. Jones, 27, in her soft Georgia drawl. "But until recently they were only used in routine office procedure jobs. It's only in the last few years that it's started opening up in other fields."

She said she is part of the first group of women Marines assigned as embassy guards. Only four other U.S. embassies — in Seoul, Korea; Monrovia, Liberia; Amman, Jordan, and Kingston, Jamaica — have women guards. The choice was partly made, she said, on the availability of living accommodations.

She said her debut as a guard caused quite a stir.

"The Yugoslavs really enjoy kidding me about it because they are not used to women in the service," she said. "They ask a lot of questions — mainly why I am in the job — but most of the time they seem stunned and just look."

Some American personnel at the embassy were surprised, too, the first time they saw her on duty.

Sgt. Jones originally joined the Marines as a reservist, but she liked a spell of temporary active duty in Washington so much that she became a full-fledged member of the corps.

She and the other woman Marine in Belgrade share all the routines with their male colleagues. They all live in a "Marine house" in the embassy compound — women on the second floor and men on the first — and have most of their meals together.

"It's like a home," she said. "The (male Marines) didn't know what to expect before we got here. A lot must have been running through their minds. But we have all become friends — we all do the same jobs."

Despite problems such as a language barrier, she said adjusting to the job "was not much different than trying to adjust to a new job in the States."

Sgt. Jones has not yet decided whether she will make the Marines her career.

"I still have 2½ years (in her present tour) but the thought of getting out and being a civilian again sounds nice, too," she said.

She emphasized that in her present assignment there is no difference in training, treatment or routine between men and women and said that, if ordered, she would go into combat, although she would prefer not to.

But she rejects any labeling of herself as a women's libber.

"I believe in equal pay for equal work, not labels. I'm not a hard core women's libber who isn't going to have kids and wants to almost reverse the roles. I don't believe in that."

Mormons Await Surgery Report

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The 4.3 million members of the Mormon Church are awaiting a medical OK on their prophet Spencer W. Kimball.

The 84-year-old Kimball, leader of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, underwent tests Wednesday at LDS Hospital to determine his rate of recovery from skull surgery last month, according to church spokesman Jerry Cahill. Last month, Kimball was treated for an accumulation of blood between his skull and brain. Doctors predicted a full recovery.

Kimball has been recovering from the surgery at his home since he was released from the hospital Nov. 30.

Tony Permitted To Carry Gun

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL, Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Tough Tony Ulasewicz, the comic hit of the Watergate hearings, is packing a rod again.

Now the government scarcely jumps for joy when convicted felons ask to carry a gun. But it can make an exception. And did for Tony.

After all, he reasons, "I'm not going to assassinate or shoot birds. It's strictly in connection with the business."

Ulasewicz turned private eye after 21 years as a New York City detective. He did a little covert work for Richard Nixon's White House and later became the witness who enlivened the 1973 Senate hearings with how difficult it was to deliver $200,000 to buy the Watergate burglars' silence.

Listen, he had to use so many pay phones he finally bought a busman's coin changer. He had $75,100 in hush money in a brown lunch bag and complained that "trying to get rid of it was becoming a problem."

Ulasewicz' testimony became so hilarious that Sen. Howard Baker asked, "Who thought you up?" Once the laughter subsided, Tony, in his best Brooklynese, said, "I don't know, maybe my parents."

Might as well have been Damon Runyon. Anyway, Tony was convicted three years ago of failing to report on time the $41,000 he was paid to be the White House bagman. He got one year's probation, unsupervised.

Light as the sentence was, Tony lost his right to carry a gun. That's hard on a professional bodyguard who has watched over the likes of Nikita Khrushchev, Rafael Trujillo, Fulgencio Batista and the king and queen of Greece. Not to mention the Shah of Iran.

There is a provision in federal law allowing "relief from disabilities incurred by conviction." That means cons can get permission to pack heat if they prove a legitimate need.

Ulasewicz applied and, after a year, got it. The police returned his guns last month but word of that action didn't surface until it was published Tuesday in the Federal Register.

'Man Will Never Fly' Group Meets Sunday

KILL DEVIL HILLS — The 21st annual meeting of "The Man Will Never Fly Memorial Society," a rationally thinking society dedicated to the proposition that "Man cannot possibly and never will fly" — will meet between the hours and four and seven p.m. on Sunday, Dec. 16 in the Carolinian Hotel.

Ed North, who with Jack Aulis is coordinator of the society, notes that at the 7:30 p.m. dinner "a program of sorts will be held," and adds "some deserving nonentity will receive the Orville Proxmire Award" and "one of our members will be inducted into the Aviation Hall of Infamy."

Half-Fare Plan Ending

NEW YORK (AP) — You won't be able to use a United or American airlines half-fare coupon after Saturday, but airline industry officials and analysts say you probably haven't seen the last of the discount certificates — even though the carriers probably lost money on them.

And the many who went into business bartering the coupons say business is waning as the offer comes to a close. They're trying to get rid of any coupons they have left — often at quite a bargain.

"I'm asking $45, but I'll take $25," said a Little Rock, Ark., woman who was trying to sell two half-fare coupons. "I'm getting kind of desperate to sell them."

"We've heard of a couple of instances where people are willing to give them away just so they get used," said Jack Francois, a spokesman for Los Angeles International Airport. Like many other airports, Los Angeles International was the place of business for dozens of people who set up shop to buy and sell the coupons.

"There used to be people in the terminal trying to sell the tickets," said Francois. "But now it's pretty quiet."

An unknown celebrity will speak on the proper use of the air "for birds to fly and radio waves to wave." The unknown speaker will be Bill Mayhugh of Washington, D. C., a nighttime disc jockey.

For several years "The Man Will Never Fly Memorial Society" has been pleading for federal funds to build an Invisible Interstitial Museum to house an invisible UFO, but without success.

Persons interested in reservations for the meeting and the dinner as well as room reservations are to call 441-7171.

Nuclear Plant Idled By Leaks

TWO RIVERS, Wis. (AP) — A nuclear reactor at the Point Beach nuclear plant that went back on line Dec. 1 after a two-month shutdown is down again due to leaks, Wisconsin Electric Power Co. officials said.

Company spokesman Dennis Kois said Wednesday steam generator tube leaks caused the shutdown. The reactor has 3,260 tubes. So far, 648 of them have been plugged because of leaks. It was not known how long the reactor would be out of service.

The reactor was shut down Oct. 5 for refueling and maintenance. It was then officials found more tube corrosion than expected.

Evangelist, State Of Texas At Odds

by SUSAN STOLER
Associated Press Writer
CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas
(AP) — The girls are back, and fiery evangelist Lester Roloff says it was a mistake ever to send them away. He says it will never happen again. But the State of Texas is just as adamant that Roloff's Rebekah Home for Girls must be licensed, so the Baptist and the bureaucrats seem headed for another collision. Roloff — who built a nationwide following through a radio program — was forced to close his home for wayward girls in June after a three-day standoff during which 300 Bible-waving supporters formed a human wall to separate the girls from state welfare workers.

It was the climax of a six-year battle with officials, but Roloff still refuses to bow to what he calls "unconstitutional, unscriptural and un-American" regulations the state says he must follow to house children younger than 18 at his Rebekeh Home.

"I'll never sacrifice my girls on the altar of an unrighteous decree," vowed the 65-year-old Roloff in an interview at his house.

But on June 22, Roloff had to surrender to a court order that he close the home. Some girls went to Roloff's summer camp in Culloden, Ga. Others returned home to parents or drifted away, he said.

Brother Roloff, as he is popularly known, spent the summer restructuring the home's management, transferring ownership and control from Roloff Evangelistic Enterprises to his Peoples Baptist Church, which is adjacent to the girls' home.

Roloff reopened Rebekeh on Sept. 13. Fifty of the original 180 girls arrived on a bus from Georgia after what one girl said was a "summer of sadness."

Now the home houses more than 100 girls — most of whom Roloff says are "terminal cases" with backgrounds of prostitution or drug and alcohol abuse. Some judges send girls to him rather than sentence them to prison.

As a church-run institution, Roloff claims, the home is protected from state regulation.

Church Choirs Giving Program

The music ministry of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church will present its choirs in "A Festival of Christmas Music" with orchestra under the direction of Dan Holland.

The concert will be held in the sanctuary of the church Sunday at 7:30 p. m. Works to be performed are "For Us A Child Is Born" (Cantata No. 142) by J. S. Bach and "The Many Moods of Christmas" by Robert Shaw, the latter a setting of traditional carols for choirs and orchestra. There is no admission charge; however, an offering will be received to defray expenses.

PROTESTS HEADED

PEKING (AP) — The price of Peking duck, one of the triumphs of Chinese cuisine, has been reduced by about 37 cents in response to public outrage over a recent price hike. The price of the duck, roasted golden over a fire of jujube tree or pear wood, rose from $1.46 for 1.1 pounds to $2.13. The price was reduced to $1.80.

Texas Attorney General Mark White disagrees. He said it doesn't matter who operates the home — it still must be licensed. White has filed a second suit to shut down the facility.

Roloff says that amounts to state meddling in church affairs.

The U.S. Supreme Court has upheld the Texas law that requires all institutions providing 24-hour care to persons under 18 to be licensed and inspected by the state.

A Nueces County grand jury indicted Roloff June 28 on charges of operating a child care home without a license. Hearings have been postponed several times and one is now scheduled for January. The maximum penalty would be a $1,000 fine and six months in jail.

Still closed and up for sale is Roloff's Anchor Home for Boys in Zapata, Texas. That facility closed in June, before the Rebekeh brouhaha. Roloff said he plans to build a new Anchor Home.

A third Roloff home, the Lighthouse for Boys, is located about a mile from the Rebekeh Home. It is not subject to state child care regulations because its residents are 18 or older.

The girls live in a two-story building within a compound just outside city limits. Also included are a farm, a landing strip, staff quarters and the church.

The Rebekeh rooms are carpeted and kept immaculately neat. The girls' education is divided between self-paced instruction and regular classes. Heavy emphasis is placed on Bible memorization, a chapter at a time.

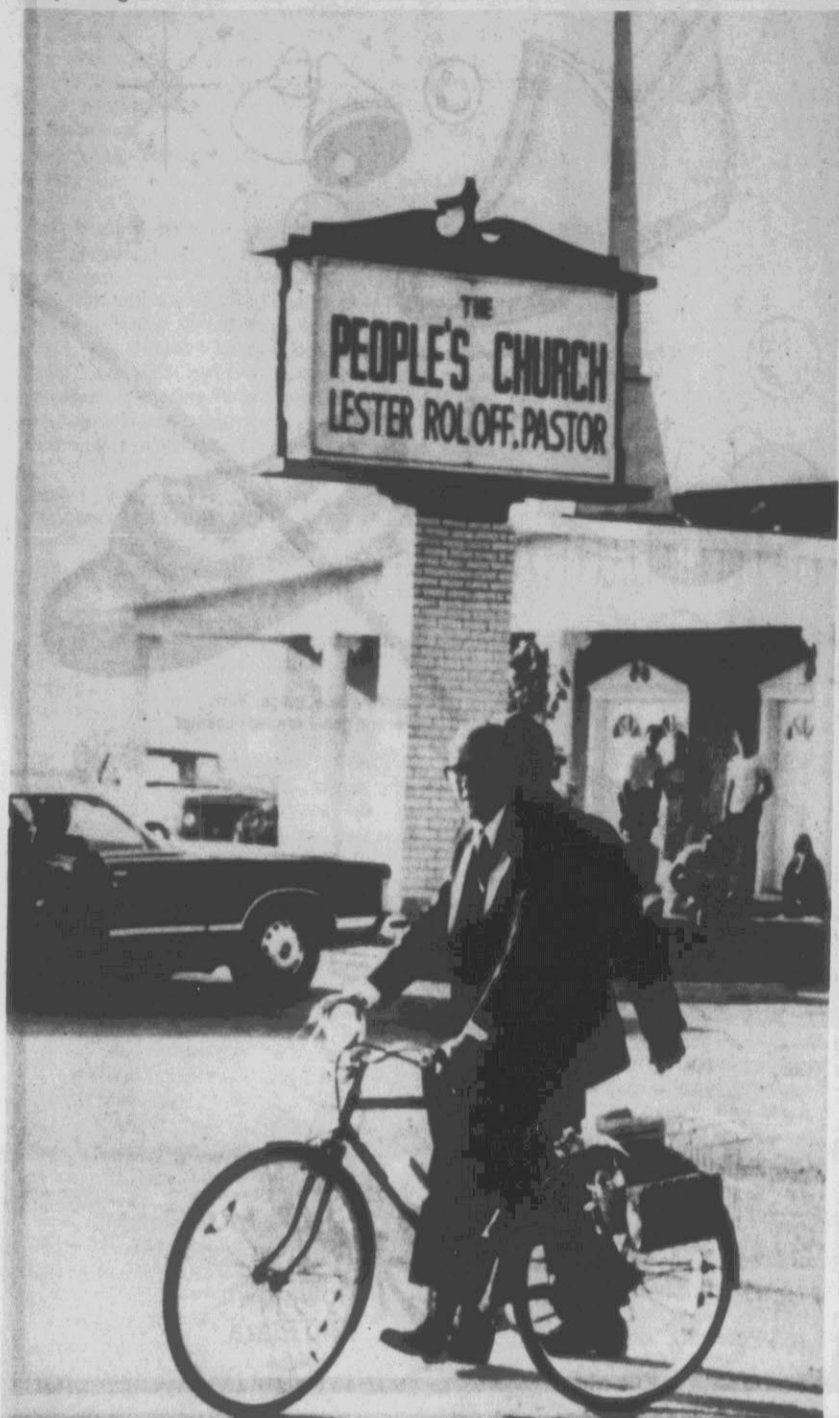

Roloff administers what he calls Bible-based discipline with "licks" and solitary confinement, which the girls call lockup.

A year stay at the home is considered the minimum. Some girls remain longer.

During a tour of the home, 16-year-old resident Judy Burnett of Dallas said she ran away from Roloff and tried to kill herself before "getting saved."

"I was in lockup and Mrs. Cameron (wife of the home superintendent) piped in music," she said. One song inspired her to ask forgiveness for her rebellious behavior and go straight, she said. The girl is now trusted to look after new girls who might try to run away. She chats eagerly about her boyfriend at the Lighthouse.

Roloff said he's still deciding what he will do if the state tries again to shut him down.

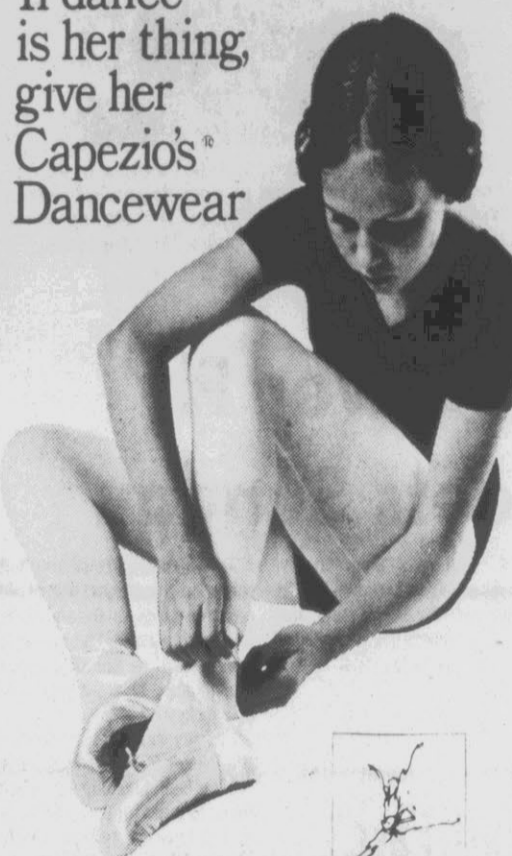

ANOTHER COLLISION? — Controversial evangelist Lester Roloff, who was forced to close his Home For Girls in June, has reopened the disciplinary home but still refuses to bow to State of Texas demands his centers be licensed. (AP Laserphoto)

U.S. Orders Iran Sharply Reduce Embassy Staffs

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration, in its latest turn of the screws against Iran, is telling most of the Iranian diplomats in the United States to get out.

Washington and its consulates in New York, Chicago, Houston and San Francisco, according to the State Department. Undersecretary of State David Newsom called Iran's charge d'affaires, Ali Agah, to the department Wednesday afternoon, and told him of the American demand for staff reductions, department spokesman Thomas Reston said.

Iran must reduce its embassy staff to 15 persons, from the current level of 57. Its consulates, with a combined staff of 161, will be left with only five staff members each, Reston said.

He called the move a "measured step" to show continuing American concern for the plight of the 50 hostages in the embassy in Tehran. "We don't know what will lead to their release. We want to bring the Iranians to the point of realizing it's in their interest to do so," Reston said. Last week, President Carter was described as telling a group of about 100 House members at a White House briefing that he was hoping a policy of economic denial — "tightening the screws a little tighter" every few days — would prompt the Iranians to free the hostages. Iranian embassy officials could not be reached for comment on Wednesday's order. Reston said that as far as the State Department was concerned, the embassy and consulates could stay open.

Normally, governments reach a mutual agreement on the size of the embassy staffs. Telling a government to reduce its embassy is an unusual step, but falls short of breaking relations entirely.

Until Wednesday, the administration had allowed the Iranian diplomats to continue to operate normally.

State Department officials said the embassy staff reduction has been on the administration's list of options for some time. They said they did not know whether the timing of Wednesday's action was related to a federal court decision Tuesday. That decision, now being appealed, held unconstitutional the administration's program for checking the visas of Iranian students and deporting those without valid visas.

Meanwhile, the State Department said it did not know whether the thousands of pieces of Christmas mail Americans are sending to the hostages will get through.

If Elected, No Mansion Life

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — If he is elected governor, Charles J. Carstens plans to close North Carolina's Executive Mansion and operate out of his west Raleigh home.

Carstens figures he can save the state money in energy costs by eliminating trips to the Capitol. Besides that, his wife refuses to move.

Carstens, 67, is running for the Republican nomination for governor, but he acknowledges he is not exactly a leading contender.

But, then, he contends, "if you don't aim high, you don't go high. If you don't make it, at least you tried."

A retired engineer, Carstens could almost pass for Santa Claus with his long white beard, thin white hair and old-fashioned charm.

This will be his second attempt for public office. He made an unsuccessful bid for a legislative seat from Burke County, where he has a summer home, two years ago.

He holds a masters degree in death education and is working on two other masters degrees.

Carstens has worked as a ditch digger, water meter repairman, accountant, bank teller, teacher, water plant operator, chemist, energy engineer, guidance counselor and an occupational health consultant.

He plans a grassroots campaign for governor, with little media advertising. He is presently operating out of his house on a campaign budget he says totals $9.

Republican Party leaders, supporting I. Beverly Lake Jr. for the gubernatorial nomination, have not contacted Carstens since he announced his candidacy.

Coalition Bids To Curb Powers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A coalition of labor, consumer and public interest groups has launched a 10-year campaign to curb the powers of corporate America.

On Wednesday, the coalition outlined the proposed Corporate Democracy Act of 1980, versions of which are expected to be introduced in Congress next year. The measure would give shareholders and the public more control over policies of the nation's largest companies. To call attention to its drive, the coalition is sponsoring Big Business Day on April 17. Organizer Mark Green said, "It is not an anti-business day, but a pro-competition day."

Carter Arms Plan May Help SALT II

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's blueprint for sharply increased defense spending through 1985 appears to come close to meeting some demands of key skeptics of the SALT II treaty.

Carter sent Defense Secretary Harold Brown to the Senate Armed Services Committee today to sketch in details of the program, which emphasizes increasing U.S. ability to rush troops to remote trouble spots such as the Persian Gulf. Previewing Brown's testimony, Carter told a group of businessmen Wednesday that he is proposing annual increases in defense spending authority of more than 4.5 percent for the next five years. That is 4.5 percent above inflation. The fiscal 1981 budget will propose $157 billion in budget authority, an increase of more than 5 percent, he said.

Under normal circumstances, the defense budget would not be announced until January. However, Carter apparently tipped his hand now in hopes of winning Senate votes for the arms limitation treaty with the Soviet Union.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., expected to play a pivotal role in the SALT debate, said Wednesday he had been briefed by Brown on the administration's proposals, but was not ready to say whether he would support the treaty.

Nunn and former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, along with others, have been demanding a 5 percent increase in defense budget authority. Among other demands, Nunn also called for money to compensate for unpredicted increases in inflation. Carter said Wednesday he would do that.

Nunn is not expected to announce his position on SALT II before Christmas, and perhaps not until the start of debate on the treaty next year.

A high administration official, who asked not to be named, said Carter's address to the Business Council "indicates a mutuality of perspective" with Nunn.

"I will not claim that it involves an identical conclusion involving this or that program or the size of it," the official said. "But there is a common recognition of the need to do more."

In his speech, Carter said, "Recent events in Iran have been a vivid reminder of the need for a strong and united America, a nation which is supported by its allies and which need not bluff or posture in the quiet exercise of its strength."

While the Soviet Union increased defense spending in the last 20 years, U.S. outlays declined from 1968 through 1976, after adjusting for inflation, he said.

The president said the Soviet buildup and the Russian intervention in trouble spots around the world "call for a calm, deliberate and sustained American response."

Children Too

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Grown children can be sent to jail if they are able to support their destitute parents and refuse to do so, the state Court of Special Appeals has ruled.

The ruling upheld the conviction in Baltimore County Circuit Court of two children convicted under an old "parent support" law.

But the court reversed the convictions of the two, finding in their particular case the two could not afford to pay support for their 88-year-old mother.

The parent-support law, which requires children who are able to provide destitute parents with "necessary shelter, food, care and clothing" has been on the books in Maryland since 1916. But many social services officials thought the parental support law had been taken off the books long ago.

"I was dumbfounded," Dr. Matthew L. Tayback, head of the state office on aging, said Wednesday. "I thought about 15 years ago we had removed the responsibility of children for their parents."

Tayback said he intended to discuss the implications of this week's ruling with the Commission on Aging today.

Traders Expect U.S. Gold Sale

By MARK POTTS
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Gold traders are speculating that the U.S. Treasury might resume its sales of the nation's gold reserves in an attempt to halt or reverse the spiraling price of gold.

The metal hit a record of $453 an ounce Wednesday in New York before subsiding in late trading amid rumors that oil-producing nations would make big price increases in advance of next week's meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

The dollar slumped in Europe on the reports but gained ground in New York as the oil-price fears evaporated.

The price of an ounce of gold hit $453 on New York's Commodity Exchange at midday, but eased later to close at $449.90, off 60 cents from Tuesday. Republic National Bank said gold closed at $449.50 in New York, down from Tuesday's record price of $451 an ounce.

Gold rose as high as $451 in Zurich, Switzerland, earlier in the day but retreated to close at $446.50 an ounce, up $1.50 from the previous day's close. In London, gold closed at $446.625 an ounce, off 37½ cents from Tuesday, after trading as high as $449.75.

The big increase in gold prices — which has increased the price $50 in the past week — is attributed by analysts to worries about the Iranian crisis, the faltering world economy and the slumping dollar.

Analysts say that one way to check the rise of gold prices would be for the U.S. government to flood the gold market with some of its vast reserves.

Propose Energy Rods For Heating Home

By JAMES J. DOYLE
SAN JACINTO, Calif. (UPI) — A six-foot tall rod made of polyethylene and filled with a salt that melts at 81 degrees Fahrenheit is proposed as a good way to keep your home or office warm at night.

It does nothing but absorb heat during the day and radiate it at night. Certified Energy Systems of California recently introduced the "Energy Rod," called, more accurately, a "phase-change thermal energy storage unit."

The rod, four inches in diameter, captures and stores heat above 81 degrees, such as sun-radiant heat streaming through windows during the daylight hours.

Richard Lindholm, vice president of the company, said each rod stores 2,600 BTUs of latent heat and 16 BTUs of specific heat. A BTU, or British Thermal Unit, is the amount of heat it takes to raise one pound of water by one degree. The idea is to expose a group of energy rods to sunlight or other heat sources, let them absorb heat and then radiate out the BTUs when the temperature falls below 81 degrees.

"The phase change is when it freezes or liquefies," Lindholm said. "It has a freezing temperature of 81 degrees. Above that it liquefies. And it does all its changing at 81 degrees just as water changes to ice at 32 degrees."

"As a liquid it stores heat just as a battery stores power." There are two different types of designs, he said, passive and active.

"As a passive design, set it in sunlight behind a window. When the sun goes down, pull the shades to close off the heat loss and it radiates heat into the room.

"In an active design, you would build a storage box and duct work with fans, or you could vent a clothes dryer — which throws off a lot of heat — and then close it up and duct the heat into the room later."

A collection of 36 energy rods takes up two square feet of floor space, he said, and a single rod, weighing 34 pounds, equals the heat storage capacity of 14,577 pounds of rock or 2,624 pounds of water.

The materials used in the rods include a high molecular weight, high density polyethylene for the container, and Salt Hexahydrate for the phase-change material inside.

Certified Energy Systems came into being about two and one-half years ago, Lindholm said, after Lindholm, his brother, Marvin, who is president of the company, and other partners had experimented with various methods of solar heating.

They began working with a product made by a Nebraska firm for energy rods but said the firm had problems with the casings.

"In the process of trying to find suitable storage systems, we came across the Dow Chemical Co. material, the salt we now use, and discussed marketing and manufacturing."

How much would it save on energy cost for the average homeowner?

Lindholm said that depending on the size of the home and its construction, savings on fuel cost could be as high as 60 to 80 percent.

The rods require no maintenance, just proper storage, carry a 10-year guarantee and wholesale at a price of about $30.

"The idea is," Lindholm said, "the rods can use heat from exhaust air from furnaces, machinery, drying operations, or cooking — heat we can no longer afford to waste."

'Yule Tree' Idea Killed

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Office workers in Brigham Young University's security office didn't have a Christmas tree, because, they said, Chief Robert Kelsaw was too cheap to buy one.

So they took a 3-foot marijuana plant officers had seized as evidence in a drug raid and decorated it with lights and tinsel.

Nobody thought much about it until the student newspaper, the Daily Universe, ran a front-page photo of the "tree" Wednesday.

Then BYU public relations officials refused to allow Salt Lake television station KSL to film the tree. Radio station KRSP was told it could not interview Kelsaw or security office workers. Even the managing editor of the Daily Universe refused comment.

The university is owned and operated by the Mormon Church, which also owns KSL. The church and its university take a dim view of drug use.

One university public relations officer who did not want to be identified said the "tree" would be gone soon.

Avers CIA Architect Of Iran Secret Police

By ALEXANDER G. HIGGINS
Associated Press Writer
TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The CIA was the architect of SAVAK, the shah's secret police, trained its agents in the United States and gave them guidelines on "physical and psychological" methods of interrogation, a former official of the organization says.

Former SAVAK adviser Hasan Sana made the allegations during a day-long tour Wednesday by foreign reporters of the police agency's former prisons. The Ministry of National Guidance conducted the tour to publicize the revolutionary regime's charges that the United States was a partner in the torture and murder of thousands of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's opponents.

May Still Give To Santa Cause

The Mental Health Association in Pitt County is continuing to accept monetary contributions to Operation Santa Claus, an annual drive to provide gifts for Pitt County patients at state mental hospitals and mental retardation facilities.

Inquiries may be made by calling 752-7448. Tax-deductible contributions may be mailed to MHA in Pitt County, Box 167, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

"It wasn't just cooperation with the CIA and Mossad (the Israeli secret service), it was joint activities," said Sana, who told reporters he had advised the SAVAK commander on security and economic affairs for 11 years. "The CIA devised our entire system."

He said the Americans did not give SAVAK agents direct training in torture methods. But he said they provided general guidelines on interrogation techniques, such as attaching electrodes to sensitive parts of the body, and taught agents how to carry out surveillance of dissidents.

SAVAK also worked to a lesser degree with the intelligence services of Britain, West Germany, France, Pakistan, Iraq and Egypt, Sana said. He said Britain and West Germany provided information on Iranian students abroad. In exchange, he said, the British received information about various Arab countries and the West Germans got information about the West German Baader-Meinhof terrorist group.

The tour included emotional accounts by people who said they had survived SAVAK torture and statements by former officials of the shah's regime who denounced the exiled monarch and said they welcomed the revolution.

"I think he has committed many, many crimes," said former Health Minister Sheikholsam Zadeh, now serving a life sentence. "I will be very happy in any court to say whatever I (can) against him."

Former prisoners of SAVAK said conditions in the prisons improved markedly in 1977 after President Carter began pressuring the shah to end violations of human rights.

Zadeh said he initiated a study of torture practices in 1977 and torture was halted "within a month" after he presented the findings to the shah's prime minister. Zadeh said he was the only member of the shah's regime tried by a revolutionary court and allowed to live.

Evacuated In Hospital Fire

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — An eighth-floor fire apparently started by a patient smoking in bed forced the evacuation of 77 patients from Charlotte Memorial Hospital early today.

Hospital spokesman John Lotich said three patients received minor burns.

The flames gutted one room in the hospital's psychiatric wing and caused smoke and water damage to adjoining areas. A fire department dispatcher estimated the property damage at $20,000.

The fire was discovered by Mary Bailey, assistant head nurse for the psychiatric wing.

"I was standing at the desk and I looked down the hall and saw some black smoke billowing up toward the ceiling," she said. The nurse said she then ran down to the room and saw the bed sheets on fire with the patient still in the bed.

"He was awake and he was not overcome by the fire," she said. Ms. Bailey then pulled the patient out of the bed, and called out to the rest of the staff.

Some hospital workers turned fire extinguishers on the room while others evacuated patients on the wing.

"We had all but three of them out by the time the firemen got there," the nurse said. "There was no panic among the patients. The staff was yelling at each other, but there was no panic."

The patient in the burned room later told Ms. Bailey that he "was lighting a cigarette and the match flew out of his hand and landed on the sheets." Assistant Fire Chief R.L. Blackwelder said 48 firefighters and department officials responded to the two-alarm fire.

Avers CIA Architect Of Iran Secret Police

By ALEXANDER G. HIGGINS
Associated Press Writer
TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The CIA was the architect of SAVAK, the shah's secret police, trained its agents in the United States and gave them guidelines on "physical and psychological" methods of interrogation, a former official of the organization says.

Former SAVAK adviser Hassan Sana made the allegations during a day-long tour Wednesday by foreign reporters of the police agency's former prisons. The Ministry of National Guidance conducted the tour to publicize the revolutionary regime's charges that the United States was a partner in the torture and murder of thousands of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's opponents.

"It wasn't just cooperation with the CIA and Mossad (the Israeli secret service), it was joint activities," said Sana, who told reporters he had advised the SAVAK commander on security and economic affairs for 11 years. "The CIA devised our entire system."

He said the Americans did not give SAVAK agents direct training in torture methods. But he said they provided general guidelines on interrogation techniques, such as attaching electrodes to sensitive parts of the body, and taught agents how to carry out surveillance of dissidents.

SAVAK also worked to a lesser degree with the intelligence services of Britain, West Germany, France, Pakistan, Iraq and Egypt, Sana said. He said Britain and West Germany provided information on Iranian students abroad. In exchange, he said, the British received information about various Arab countries and the West Germans got information about the West German Baader-Meinhof terrorist group.

The tour included emotional accounts by people who said they had survived SAVAK torture and statements by former officials of the shah's regime who denounced the exiled monarch and said they welcomed the revolution.

"I think he has committed many, many crimes," said former Health Minister Sheikholesam Zadeh, now serving a life sentence. "I will be very happy in any court to say whatever I (can) against him."

Former prisoners of SAVAK said conditions in the prisons improved markedly in 1977 after President Carter began pressuring the shah to end violations of human rights.

Zadeh said he initiated a study of torture practices in 1977 and torture was halted "within a month" after he presented the findings to the shah's prime minister. Zadeh said he was the only member of the shah's regime tried by a revolutionary court and allowed to live.

Evacuated In Hospital Fire

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — An eighth-floor fire apparently started by a patient smoking in bed forced the evacuation of 77 patients from Charlotte Memorial Hospital early today. Hospital spokesman John Lotich said three patients received minor burns. The flames gutted one room in the hospital's psychiatric wing and caused smoke and water damage to adjoining areas. A fire department dispatcher estimated the property damage at $20,000.

The fire was discovered by Mary Bailey, assistant head nurse for the psychiatric wing. "I was standing at the desk and I looked down the hall and saw some black smoke billowing up toward the ceiling," she said. The nurse said she then ran down to the room and saw the bed sheets on fire with the patient still in the bed. "He was awake and he was not overcome by the fire," she said. Ms. Bailey then pulled the patient out of the bed, and called out to the rest of the staff.

Some hospital workers turned fire extinguishers on the room while others evacuated patients on the wing. "We had all but three of them out by the time the firemen got there," the nurse said. "There was no panic among the patients. The staff was yelling at each other, but there was no panic."

The patient in the burned room later told Ms. Bailey that he "was lighting a cigarette and the match flew out of his hand and landed on the sheets." Assistant Fire Chief R.L. Blackwelder said 48 firefighters and department officials responded to the two-alarm fire.

Rookie Pilots Fly Simulator

CAPT. CONNIE ENGEL

WILLIAMS AIR FORCE BASE, Ariz. (AP) — It's off to the "Wild Blue Yonder" for Air Force pilot trainees, but sometimes the flight is only by simulator.

And sometimes the instructor is a woman.

Capt. Connie Engel, 30, one of the instructor pilots in the supersonic T-38 Talon jet trainer, spends 60 "flight" hours with her students in the simulator and an additional 170 hours of actually flying the T-38.

Capt. Engel, one of the first women Air Force pilots, graduated from flight school here in 1977. Her husband, Maj. Rich Engel, is also a flight instructor here.

"First, we'll start the engines," she tells a student pilot who is in the flight simulator, a tiny box which soars only a few inches on concrete-embedded hydraulic struts.

"That gives us a nice sound of engines," she says as the engine dials begin to flicker. "It's just what you'd hear in a real T-38."

"Now, may we have the field?" she asks nearby controllers of the simulator. A computer projects an image of an airport runway on the screen.

The simulator is vibrating just enough to tell the rookie pilot the engines are running.

Capt. Engel moves the throttles forward and the plane begins to roll, or at least the image moving on the screen gives that feeling.

Runway lights flash by as the plane apparently gathers speed, then the lights drop away. There is a slight thump as the landing gear retracts.

The captain handles the plane as smoothly as most people handle a knife and fork. The dials spin as she swings through loops, lazy-eights, stalls and snap rolls.

"You take it for the landing," she tells the new pilot, adding: "Just aim for the runway."

"Hold it steady, you'll miss the end of the runway, but you're doing fine," she says. Runway lights slip past the canopy, the left wing dips and there's a heavy jolt onto the runway.

"Not bad," she tells the fledgling pilot. "You managed a safe landing. I've seen other pilots do a lot worse."

The engines are shut off, the screen falls blank and the aircraft noises die.

The pilot has returned to the world of the simulator, a little cabin on hydraulic stilts.

But it can leave even the best pilots with sweaty palms, wobbly knees and a shortage of breath.

CARTER NOMINEE

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter announced yesterday he will nominate Albert P. Smith, a Russellville, Ky., newspaper publisher, to be federal co-chairman of the Appalachian Regional Commission, replacing Robert W. Scott of N.C., who has resigned.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina f.o.b. dock broiler market was weak. Supply adequate. Demand moderate. Weights desirable. The North Carolina dock weighted average price this week is 42.18 cents per pound for small batches of plant-grade broilers picked up at processing plants. Estimated slaughter today was 1,239,000.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices declined in early trading today in cautious trading tied in part to concern over rising oil prices.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks fell 2.56 to 833.11 in the first half hour of trading.

Losing issues outnumbered gainers by a 3-2 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts say that uncertainty about how high oil prices will be set at next week's meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries has been weighing on the market all week.

Today Saudi Arabia — OPEC's largest producer and a moderate member — said it would raise its prices in advance of the meeting. But Saudi Arabia's oil minister did not say by how much.

Among actively traded issues in the early going, Arlen Realty gained 1/8 to 3 1/2; International Telephone & Telegraph slipped 1/8 to 26 1/4; IBM was off 1/4 to 65 1/4 and Texaco gained 1/8 to 29 1/4.

On Wednesday, the Dow Jones industrial average, up by about 4 points in early afternoon, finished with a gain of 1.97 at 835.67. But there were a few more losing issues than gainers.

The American Stock Exchange market value index rose 2.21 to 237.32, a record high. The NYSE composite was up .03 at 61.58.

Big Board volume was 34.63 million shares down from 36.16 million in the previous session.

Agency Approves Clinic 'Certificate Of Need'

The governing body of the Eastern Carolina Health Systems Agency last night approved a project review committee recommendation that a certificate of need be granted for the Crist Clinic for Women in Jacksonville to build a new clinic.

A number of persons attended the project review session prior to the governing body meeting, to protest the approval of the certificate of need, and some 50 to 60 individuals who oppose the project, attended the governing body session.

The basis for the opposition was the fact that the Crist Clinic for Women, established in the early 1970's, is advertised as an abortion clinic.

Although neither the project review meeting, nor the governing body session were scheduled as a public hearing on the certificate of need application, opponents were granted time to voice their objections at each of the sessions.

The Rev. Van Dale Hudson, pastor of Trinity Free Will Baptist Church in Greenville, one of six opponents to speak at the and vision," Green said, "this city has marched forward and I've enjoyed watching the procession — and progression."

Green noted that he enjoys coming to Greenville, "and observing good government, good citizenship, and good corporate responsibility working hand in hand."

But the type of "individual civic responsibility and individual public service that we are honoring today is not easy," Green emphasized.

"These honorees really deserve congratulations for the job they have done, for the physical and mental stress, the responsibilities that they have accepted at the local level of government. When you serve your community at the local level," Green said, "you are on the frontlines of government. Living and working, day in and day out, with the people you serve is a tough order. Believe me, the kitchen is hot."

According to Green, "To be honest, this gathering should be a rather sad and somber occasion. Losing such diligence, such excellence, and such interest as these four people have displayed over the years is a great loss for our community."

"To lose their expertise and their energy could be devastating," Green suggested.

"But I suspect not. I suspect that they have laid a strong foundation for those who take their place to build upon. I further suspect that they will be more than willing to share their expertise."

"To tell you the truth," Green noted, "they sure never hesitated to tell me how to do my job."

Saying that Greenville learned years ago, "that our community problems, our local difficulties, can best be solved in the community... locally," rather than in Raleigh or Washington, Green suggested that, "only through cooperative efforts and involvements by local officials" and people like you, through individual initiatives, can our community problems be completely and permanently solved."

Problems solved by government, the lieutenant governor emphasized, "at best, certainly breed new costs."

"Your community knows well the golden rule of 'individual initiative,'" Green suggested.

"Today's honorees have served that rule well. I congratulate them and your city, and those of you who've made Greenville great."

Mayor Cox told the gathering, "it is a sad occasion... a hard thing for me to accept for a while."

Describing himself as, "a servant of the people... working for the people," Cox emphasized that people, "working together," have made Greenville the, "great and prosperous city," it is today.

"Thank each and everyone of you."

Ms. McGrath, the first woman to serve on the City Council, said, "I'm feeling really honored at this meeting," adding that she, "thoroughly enjoyed," her service as a member of the council.

"It's really been a pleasure in my life," Howard commented.

Vincent, in expressing his appreciation, emphasized, "you don't have to be a member of the city council to be productive."

He cited, "Mrs. Elizabeth Savage," as an example, saying, "her dedication," and service in community ac-ivities has possibly, "meant more to this community... than the council or mayor."

(Mrs. Savage, 80, was an unsuccessful candidate for mayor in the October election. She retired as a public school teacher and principal in 1964 after 46 years with the Greenville system, then worked on a volunteer basis with the city's school for mentally retarded students, and the Greenville Boys Club for six years before teaching in private schools from 1970 to 1974. She is still active in the Greenville Womens Club, the Pitt County Council on Aging, the Pitt County Humane Society, and the Pitt County Senior Citizens.)

GACC board chairman Jerry Powell presided at the luncheon, while Bob Griffin, vice-chairman of Public and Governmental Affairs for the chamber, presented the plaques to the outgoing officials.

Conn. Law Is In Limbo

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — A Superior Court judge has ruled that a key part of Connecticut's death penalty law is unconstitutional, throwing the whole law in limbo.

Judge David Shea ruled Wednesday that the requirement for a special hearing before sentencing in a death penalty case is unconstitutional because it limits the mitigating circumstances a defendant can claim.

The requirement violates a 1978 U.S. Supreme Court ruling that trial courts should be able to consider any circumstances a defendant wants to bring up, he said.

Shea's ruling came during pre-trial arguments in the case of Gerard "Gary" Castonguay, accused in the slaying of Plainville policeman Robert Holcomb in 1977.

Castonguay's lawyers had argued that no prospective jurors should be questioned about their sentiments on the death penalty because the law is unconstitutional. His trial is due to start next month.

Robert Meyers, the assistant state's attorney prosecuting the Castonguay case, said Wednesday no appeal can be made until the trial ends.

DePaul's Ray Meyer Claims His 600th Career Win; Wants Title

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Not many coaches in the history of college basketball have won more games than Ray

Meyer. It's possible, though, that he would trade them all for one big one, in the NCAA finals.

After gaining his 600th career victory Wednesday night with a 57-55 overtime decision over Northern Illinois, the distinguished Meyer is of course aware of the historic plateau, but seemingly more concerned with winning his first national title, not an unlikelihood this year.

"In a way the 600 victories mean something, I guess," says Meyer. "But actually, any victory is important that gets me nearer the NCAA playoffs. We'll need 20 this year, probably, and that's the main number I'm concerned with."

Meyer started his 38th season this year at DePaul with 597 victories, a euphoric figure that ranked him first among active major college coaches. Only five other Division I coaches have won more games: Adolph Rupp (874), Phog Allen (771), Hank Iba (767), Edgar Diddle (759) and John Wooden (667).

Part of Meyer's mountainous victory total was built with the fine George Mikan clubs of the 1940s and his most recent powerhouses of the 1970s, including last year's Final Four team.

After losing to Indiana State in the NCAA semifinals last year, Meyer's goal was well established for this year. "I made it to the Final Four," he said at the time, "and now I'd like to make it to the Final Two."

This year's DePaul edition is on the opposite end of the court, artistically speaking, from last year's team.

"Last year we were very quick but we had no rebounding," says Meyer. "We were a relatively small team. A lot of our offense was created by the defense with steals. This year, we're bigger and slower. But we can shoot well from the outside. You won't see many zones played against us this year."

The Demons lost two starters from last year's team, but Meyer recruited two fine frontcourt players from the Chicago area to replace them — 6-9 Terry Cummings and 6-8 Teddy Grubbs. Those freshman are starting this year, along with one of the nation's "Top Ten players" in Mark Aguirre.

Aguirre, a power forward last year who can shoot like a guard, will see more than occasional backcourt duty this year.

"No guard can guard Aguirre underneath," says Meyer, "and he can shoot from the outside."

Like most coaches, Meyer does not like to compare players and teams, but he will admit that Mikan "was my sentimental favorite" and last year's DePaul squad "was my sentimental team."

As Old Pros Hang Up Their Shoes, Young Ones Pluck Them Off Wall

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Southern California's Charles White picked up his 24-pound Heisman Trophy Wednesday night in New York, while out in San Francisco the legendary O.J. Simpson prepared for his football adieu.

So the wheels keep turning. The band plays on. The assembly line continues grinding out fine ball-carriers. A great runner hangs up his cleats. Another plucks them off the wall.

"I would like to break loose on one more good run," said the 32-year-old Simpson poignantly, referring to his career finale against the Falcons in Atlanta. "It would be nice to finish on a high note."

It had been Simpson's aim when he came out of Southern California in 1968, himself a Heisman winner as college football's best player, to crack Jim Brown's rushing record in the National Football League.

He might have done so had not 11 years of battering and a succession of injuries dulled his skills ahead of schedule. He finishes 1,000 yards short, the equivalent of one good season. The powerful, nimble-footed Brown rushed for 12,312 yards, a record that stands.

It is not, however, a mark that is comfortably safe. This is the age of running backs in both the college and pro games, despite a sharp increase in aerial activity, and White only becomes another addition to the irrepressible young racehorse backs challenging Brown's record.

Pundits now say teams throw the pass to keep the defense honest for the running game — a reversal of an age-old axiom.

The NFL is loaded with devastating 1,000-to-1,500-yard ball-carrying specialists, while there's been a significant scarcity of quarterbacks lately of the Johnny Unitas, Joe Namath, Roger Staubach and Terry Bradshaw mold.

Dallas' Staubach, a 37-year-old, 11-year veteran, and Pittsburgh's Bradshaw, a 31-year-old warhorse with 10 years under his belt, remain the cream of the league's quarterbacks. There are some promising kids, notably Jim Zorn of the Seattle Seahawks and Phil Simms of the New York Giants, but the pass-throwing crop in recent years has not been nearly as rich as in the infantry category.

This is reflected in the run-down of Heisman Trophy winners. White, who led the nation in running with 1,803 yards, becomes the seventh straight ball-carrier to be named to college football's highest honor.

Staubach won the Heisman in 1963, Simpson in 1968. Brown, Unitas, Namath and Bradshaw were among the football greats who had to admire the bronze statue from a distance.

Olympic Hockey Gets Spotlight

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — Hockey, which hasn't been successful on network television, will have a major role in the success of ABC's coverage of the Winter Olympics from Lake Placid next February.

Two-thirds of ABC's 51 hours of Olympic coverage will come in prime time, and hockey and figure skating are the only nighttime events. They are scheduled throughout the Games on alternate evenings.

The United States is expected to have a good shot at three gold medals in figure skating, the glamor event of the Winter Olympics and an excellent vehicle for ABC's personality profiles and star gazing.

But hockey may be something else.

"The U.S. hockey team is particularly important to us," said Jim Spence, senior vice-president of ABC Sports. "It's essential to have exciting telecasts up front."

"Clearly if the United States lives up to its hockey potential we will have more hockey," said Boone Arledge, president of ABC News and Sports. "People watch things in the Olympics that normally have nothing to do with their normal interest in sports."

Arledge is the force behind ABC winning the broadcast rights to the last four Olympics. He will be on the scene producing the coverage here, something he hasn't done with a sports event since he added news to his responsibilities two years ago.

Jim McKay, as much as part of the Olympic experience as the torch and the rings, will also be here — at his old stand, the anchor booth. He began playing the Olympic Walter Cronkite in 1960 in Rome for CBS before turning it into an art form for ABC.

"My job is to give an overview and find a personality for the Olympics," McKay said this week during an ABC press tour of the Lake Placid facilities. "For me, Lake Placid is really to some extent Grover's Corners, an Our Town situation."

But there is nothing small scale about ABC's presentation plans for February.

ABC will have 109 cameras covering the nine Winter Olympic disciplines. With temperatures that can reach 40 to 50 below, ABC had to solve some serious logistical problems.

"All the equipment had to be winterized," said Joe De Bonis, general manager of ABC's studio and field operations. "That meant we had to put insulated blankets on the cameras and collapsible tents over the camera platforms. We built heaters into the lenses, otherwise they'd freeze."

For better or worse, Howard Cosell will be sitting this Olympics out.

Six Rampants All-Conference

Rose High School and Rocky Mount, co-champions of the Division I Conference, each landed six members of their teams on the All-Conference team this season.

Third place Bertie had five choices, while Northeastern had three. Fike and Northern Nash, two, and Hunt and Beddingfield, one each.

Making the team from Rose were interior lineman Wallace Brown; running back Mark Shank; placement specialist Ted King; defensive lineman Curtis Spell; linebacker Ron Butler and defensive back Will Barrett.

From Rocky Mount, those chosen included offensive linemen Linwood Weeks and Stuart Phillips; back Vic Thorne; defensive lineman Cliff Powell; linebacker Jeff Arrington, and defensive back Pete Weaver.

Named to the team from Bertie were offensive lineman Ricky Askew, quarterback Stanley Pugh; running back Isiah Hill, linebacker Frankie Bazemore and defensive back Willie Harris.

Northeastern placed offensive end Aubrey Johnson, offensive lineman Hunter Williams and defensive lineman Lawrence Brooks on the team. Wilson Fike landed offensive end Robert Bland and punter Jeff Williams, Northern Nash saw defensive lineman Olanda Battle and linebacker James Jones chosen.

Picked from Beddingfield was offensive end Joey Pender while Hunt landed offensive lineman Brian Horton.

Rocky Mount's Phillips, Northeastern's Williams, and Rose's Spell were the only underclassmen named to the list. All three are juniors.

Rocky Mount's Walt Wiggins was chosen as Coach of the Year in the conference.

Jackets Take Home Opener

By The Associated Press

Georgia Tech, where basketball has become the hottest thing in town, did a lively two-step Wednesday night to win its home opener against Presbyterian College, 68-53.

The Jackets waltzed to a quick 8-0 lead and the Blue Hose never caught up. The Tech scoring was led by forward Brooke Stepe, with a game high of 22 points, and assisted by forward Lenny Horton, who added 15 points and eight rebounds to cinch the win.

The victory gave the Yellow Jackets a 1-1 record, while Presbyterian dropped to 6-4.

The Yellow Jackets, who haven't had a sellout since 1971, are now members of the Atlantic Coast Conference, where home basketball games are sold out in pre-season and where basketball season tickets are passed from one generation to the next like heirlooms.

The move has given rise to optimism in Georgia Tech's athletic corners. "I think we'll sell the place out after one year of ACC competition," said assistant athletic director Jack Thompson.

"I hope I'm not being too optimistic, but I think this year will be the last year people will be able to buy seats in the coliseum. I think the place will soon be owned by season ticket holders."

That would probably be the most welcome news yet at a school where officials say the basketball program has lost an average of $100,000 per year for the last decade.

Three Ranked Teams In Wins

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The first 600 victories would seem to be the hardest for Ray Meyer. Especially No. 600.

The DePaul coach, who admits that losing basketball games "used to tear me up," reached that exalted plateau Wednesday night with a victory over Northern Illinois.

But it wasn't easy, coming in a heart-stopping 57-55 overtime thriller.

"I'm just happy to get this over with," said Meyer. "At least we don't have to go through this 600 stuff anymore."

It put Meyer up there with some good company. Only five other coaches in major college basketball history have won 600 games or more — Adolph Rupp (874), Phog Allen (771), Hank Iba (767), Ed Diddle (759) and John Wooden (667).

And the 65-year-old Meyer conceivably could pass Wooden's total if he sticks around a couple of more years, which he plans to.

"I'll stay as long as my enthusiasm and health hold up," Meyer said. "I figure perhaps two or three more years."

DePaul's victory was sealed by Mark Aguirre's two free throws with no time left in overtime. There were ceremonies for the DePaul coach to go along with this historic triumph.

"The only thing I remember about my 400th and 500th victories was that they came against Marshall and Niagara," said Meyer. "We just had cake after the 500th. It was in the locker room when I came in after the victory. I guess they were pretty sure we were going to win that night."

The 11th-ranked Blue Demons were one of only three ranked teams in action Wednesday night, as No. 5 Kentucky defeated Kansas 57-56 and No. 19 Missouri stopped Butler 64-60.

Sam Bowie scored 17 points and veteran Kyle Macy added 10 to lead Kentucky's victory over Kansas in a battle between the two winningest teams in college basketball history. The Wildcats twice appeared ready to pull away and led early in the second half by 10 points, 41-31.

But Kansas, led by Darnell Valentine and Ricky Ross, chipped away at the lead and tied at 47 with 5:53 left on a basket by Chester Giles. Bowie, a 7-foot-1 center, got the Wildcats back on top with a stuff shot, but a jumper by Ross with 3:37 left made it 51-51.

Another Bowie dunk and two Bowie free throws helped put the Wildcats ahead 57-52, before a Valentine jumper and a layup by Giles with 19 seconds left trimmed the margin to one. Kentucky managed to run out the clock for its 11th victory in 12 games against the Jayhawks.

"When we got seven points ahead, we went down and had four straight turnovers," said Kentucky Coach Joe Hall, obviously upset with his young team. "We played with no confidence, no emotion. After we led 14-7, we folded on our tents and didn't play the rest of the night. Had they shot better, they would have handled us with ease."

Steve Stipanovich scored 12 points, including four free throws in the final two minutes, to lead Missouri over Butler. A three-point play by Lynn Mitchem gave Butler a 58-55 lead, but Missouri tied it and then held the ball until Stipanovich was fouled with 1:49 remaining.

"Butler did an extremely fine job tonight," said Missouri Coach Norm Stewart. "Their game plan was excellent. But I don't know if we were quite ready to play. This was our fourth game in six nights and the fifth day was a travel day."

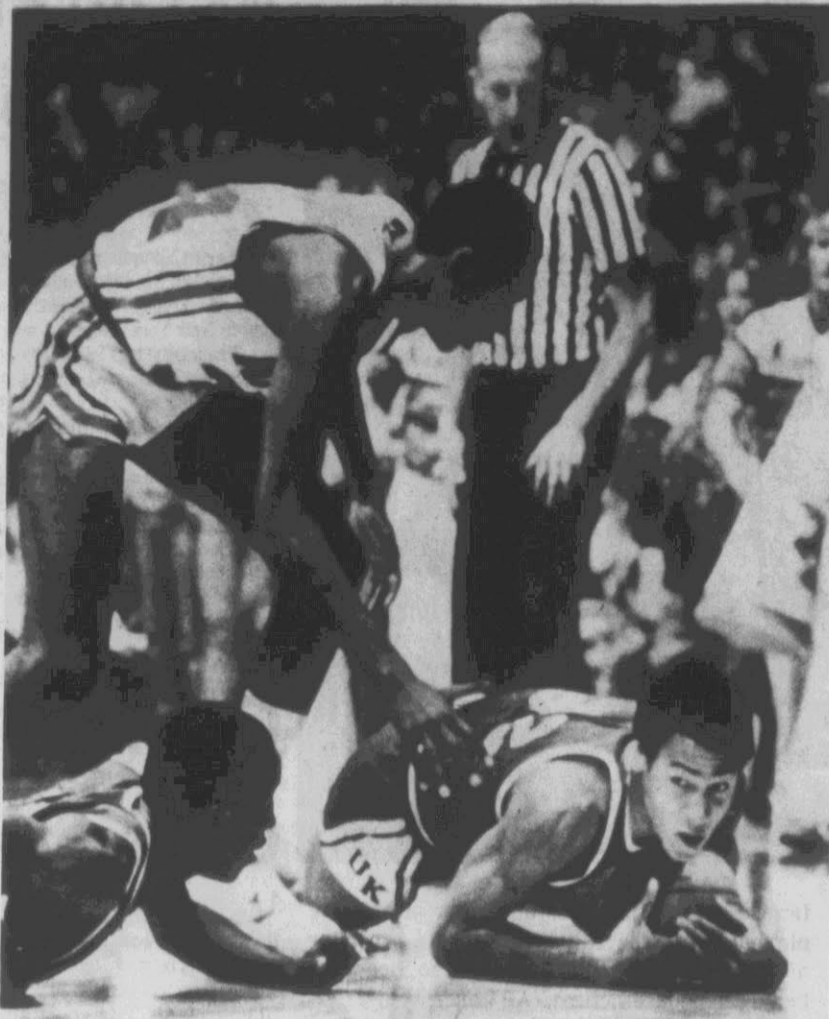

Elsewhere, Mike McGee scored 36 points to lead Michigan to an 85-72 victory over Detroit in the inaugural game at the new Joe Louis Arena in Detroit; Keith McCord and Larry Spicer scored 28 and 23 points, respectively, to lead Alabama-Birmingham to an 86-67 victory over Washington State; David Burns scored 22 points to pace St. Louis University to a 67-48 triumph over Southern Illinois and Dominique Wilkins' last-second dunk shot powered Georgia over Mississippi 64-62.

Also, Rich Simkus and Craig Robinson teamed up for 23 points as Princeton defeated Fordham 53-43 for the Tigers' first victory of the season; Ed Nealy had 19 points and 14 rebounds to pace Kansas State over Arizona State 63-50; Villanova hammered the University of Baltimore 91-70 as John Pi-none scored 19 points; Bobbie Austin's 15 points helped Cincinnati defeat Miami (Ohio) 75-

73; Reggie Johnson's shot at the buzzer insured a 61-58 victory for Tennessee over Auburn and Rynn Wright's 18 points triggered Texas A&M over East Texas State 85-42.

Wake Aide Working New Mountie Coach

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — Wake Forest assistant coach Mike Working was named as head football coach at Appalachian State University Wednesday, replacing Jim Brakefield, who resigned after the last game of this season.

Working, who will be 32 on Sunday, has been offensive coordinator at Wake Forest University for the past two years. He was chosen for the head job at Appalachian from a field of 70 candidates, school officials said.

"Mike Working is an articulate young man who fits the mold of the young aggressive coaches currently serving at Appalachian," said ASU athletic director James F. Jones.

"Mike has worked under some of the finest football coaches in America and comes to us highly recommended by these coaches," Jones said.

Working has served in various football coaching capacities at Army, Tennessee and West Virginia. He graduated from the University of North Carolina, where he played football under former coach Bill Dooley. He also served as a graduate assistant with Dooley.

Working has been at Wake Forest under Coach John Mackovic since 1978. The Deacons, previously 1-10, posted an 8-3 record this year and earned a birth in the Tangerine Bowl. Appalachian officials said Wednesday Working will be allowed to accompany the Deacons to Orlando for the Dec. 22 contest against Louisiana State University. During his 10 years of association with five college programs, five teams of which he has part have gone to post-season bowl games.

Dispute Settled

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Wake Forest University officials announced Wednesday that a contract dispute between the school and former head football coach Chuck Mills has been settled.

In a prepared statement, Wake Forest Athletic Director Dr. Gene Hooks said the university regretted any misunderstandings that arose over Mills' contract.

"We are delighted that the matter has been settled and everyone at Wake Forest wishes Coach Mills every success and happiness in the future," Hooks said.

Mills also said he regretted that "problems concerning interpretation of my contract developed after my departure. I congratulate Wake Forest on their success this season and they have my best wishes in the Tangerine Bowl."

Miss is currently executive director of annual Blue-Gray game in Montgomery, Ala. He was at Wake Forest five years.

Notes

North Carolina's Al Wood is the early-season scoring leader in the Atlantic Coast Conference, averaging 24.3 points a game.

The UNC junior, who also has the season's best individual performance, a 34-point effort against South Florida, is barely ahead of Maryland's Albert King and Duke's Mike Gmski.

King is averaging 23.3 a game while Gmski is averaging 22.2 a contest.

Virginia's Ralph Sampson leads all ACC rookies in scoring with a 14-point average, good enough for ninth overall in the league.

Wake Forest's Mike Helms lead the ACC in shooting percentage, hitting an incredible 71 percent of his shots.

Wood is second, making 63 percent of his attempts.

Lee Raker leads the conference in free throw percentage, having made 18 of 18 so far, while Gmski is the top rebounder in the league, hauling down nearly 12 a contest. Wake's Guy Morgan is second with just under 11 a game while Sampson is third with 10.

Although the season is still young, the ACC is an amazing 20-1 against nonconference foes. The lone loss by an ACC team was by Maryland, 83-71, to Georgetown.

Closer to home, East Carolina's George Maynor leads the Pirates in scoring, averaging 14.5 a game. Herb Krusen is the only other Pirate averaging in double figures, with 10 a game.

Herb Gray, ECU's top rebounder, is at 9.8.

All-America candidate Rosie Thompson leads the Pirate women in scoring with a 21.1 average. Kathy Riley is second with a 16.1 average followed by Lydia Rountree with 12.7 points a game.

Times Have Changed For Irish Linemen

EDITORS NOTE: Thirteen years have passed since the 1966 Notre Dame football team won the national championship. Part four of a five-part series examines what has happened over the years to the men who formed the Irish's offensive.

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

One big, strong offensive lineman drank too hard before Christianity changed his life. He now runs a religious retreat. A fellow lineman beat cancer. And the halfback they both blocked for overcame severe war wounds to star in professional football.

Notre Dame's 1966 offensive unit scored 362 points over a 10-game season that ended with the national championship. With the coaches sending in the plays from the sidelines, it's evident that the players took direction well. But what happens to star athletes when the coaches stop calling the signals?

End Jim Seymour — Owns an insurance agency in Chicago.

He was the 10th player drafted by the pros in 1969. He didn't make it with the Los Angeles Rams. As George Goeddeke, center for the 1966 Notre Dame team, says of Seymour: "He never liked to block much."

Seymour also played one year with Chicago in the World Football League. "My pro career was not very glamorous," he says. "The pros were strictly business."

Tackle Paul Seiler — Real estate broker who also runs a religious retreat in Old Station, Calif.

Seiler was drafted by the New York Jets in the first round and played with them and the Oakland Raiders. He also had stints in the WFL and San Francisco.

Seiler is a born-again Christian. He says he wants to make money so he can maintain a fulltime retreat called "Sabbath Ranch." "It's a good-sized house with five acres for people to go hunting, fishing and walking along trails," he says.

Seiler says he turned to Christianity three years ago when he saw what it did for his wife and because "I was a walking alcoholic. In college, if you ask guys about drinking, they'll tell you I was the first one there and the last one to leave."

Guard Tom Regner — Owns an Italian restaurant in Houston. Drafted by Houston and played seven years in the NFL. Center George Goeddeke — Sells investment appraisals in the Detroit area after having played pro ball with Denver.

He was the team cut-up in college, and says they were the best years of his life.

Guard Dick Swatland — Real estate lawyer in Connecticut.

After a short NFL career, he went to the Canadian Football League for a week before becoming disenchanted. "On my way home I stopped at Niagara Falls and threw my football spikes over the falls," he said. "I had enough."

The toughest battle of his life was against cancer several years ago. He beat it.

Tackle Bob Kuechenberg — Cut by Philadelphia and Atlanta, he signed with Miami in 1970 and still is with the Dolphins.

He played in three straight Super Bowls, including Miami's 17-0 championship season in 1973. Goeddeke and Swatland are trying to get rings for the players on Notre Dame's 1966 championship team. Kuechenberg says his 1973 Super Bowl ring is his most meaningful.

"Every year someone wins the national championship and the Super Bowl, but I don't think any (pro) team will go undefeated again."

Tackle George Kunz — Pro football commentator for NBC.

The No.1 draft pick by Atlanta in 1969, Kunz had a stand-out career with the Falcons and Baltimore, making the Pro Bowl six times.

He was hurt in the second game of the 1966 season and replaced at right tackle by Kuechenberg. "Although I didn't play again that season, I never was made to feel like an outsider."

Parseghian calls Kunz and 1966 captain Jim Lynch the best players he's ever coached because of their motivation and attitude.

End Don Gmitter — Has own architecture and construction firm in the Pittsburgh area. Gmitter and Tom O'Leary were the only fulltime starters from the 1966 team who weren't drafted by the NFL.

Quarterback Terry Hanratty — Stockbroker in Denver. Also does some regional college TV work for ABC and an occasional beer commercial.

He played six years with the Pittsburgh Steelers, mostly as a backup to Terry Bradshaw.

Halfback Nick Eddy — Owns business that sells and distributes tungsten carbide and diamond products in Stockton, Calif.

Drafted in the first round, as a medical hardship, by Detroit in 1966, Eddy played that year for Notre Dame. He then played five years for the Lions. He and his wife, Jean, lived off-campus in 1966 and their home was a team haunt.

Halfback Rocky Bleier — Plays for the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Bleier was drafted on the 16th round by the Steelers in 1968 and he made the team. But he also was drafted by the Army and sent to Vietnam. On Aug. 20, 1969, he was wounded in the left leg. He crawled 200 yards, but a grenade shattered some bones in his foot.

Ten years later, Bleier is one of the three players from the 1966 team still in the pros.

Fullback Larry Conjar —

Partner in a real estate investing firm in Evanston, Ill., with a college roommate who didn't play football.

Kicker Joe Azzaro — Marketing director for a firm specializing in tax shelter investments in Pittsburgh.

Azzaro wasn't drafted but he had a short tryout with the San Francisco 49ers. "My pro career was so brief that I was able to make the home opener in South Bend the same year."

Florida A&M Guard McGriff Is Third Time Little A-A Selection

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Offensive guard Tyrone McGriff, a 265-pound demon blocker from Florida A&M, was named to The Associated Press College Division All-America football team today for the third year in a row.

Joining McGriff as the only other repeater from the 1978 squad on the so-called Little All-America team was running back Frank Hawkins of the University of Nevada at Reno.

It was Nevada-Reno's first season in the Big Sky Conference and Hawkins established league records of 1,683 rushing yards and an average of 153 per game. He led the NCAA's Division I-AA in both categories.

Joining Hawkins in the offensive backfield are quarterback Joe Aliotti of Boise State and running backs Chris "Poke" Cobb of Eastern Illinois and Mal Najarian of Boston University.

All players at four-year NCAA and NAIA colleges are eligible for the College Division All-America team except those at NCAA Division I-A schools.

Aliotti, the Big Sky's Offensive Player of the Year after transferring from Los Medanos Junior College, topped Division I-AA in passing efficiency. He threw for 19 touchdowns and set a Big Sky record by completing 65.8 percent of his passes — 144 of 219 for 1,870 yards, with only seven interceptions.

Cobb broke the all-time NCAA Division II career rushing record, piling up 5,042 yards and becoming only the fifth College Division player to hit the 5,000-yard mark. For the season, he gained 1,609 yards and averaged 5.5 per carry.

Najarian was voted New England Player of the Year — including Division I-A teams — by rushing for 1,137 yards, including a 244-yard effort against Northeastern, the top single-game performance in Division I-AA.

Aliotti, Hawkins, Catan, Judie and Love are the only juniors on the first team. The others all are seniors.

76ers Are Rolling; Bucks Are Reeling

By The Associated Press
The Philadelphia 76ers are rolling ... the Milwaukee Bucks are reeling.
"There's no doubt in my mind that we're in the midst of a major slump, and we can't seem to come out of it," said Milwaukee Coach Don Nelson after his Bucks dropped their fifth straight decision Wednesday night, 112-91 to Philadelphia.

"We're just not playing well," added Nelson, whose team holds a slim 1-2 game lead over Kansas City in the National Basketball Association's Midwest Division.
"We've had a couple of guys out with injuries and (Marques) Johnson having a pulled thigh muscle tonight certainly didn't help us."
Johnson, one of the Bucks' leaders, pulled the muscle after scoring seven points and was unable to play in the second half.

The 76ers, meanwhile, continued their hot hands. Wednesday night's victory was the ninth straight at home for the 76ers, who are tied with Boston for the Atlantic Division lead with a 22-7 record.
The Celtics kept pace with the 76ers by beating New Jersey 116-102. In other NBA games, Atlanta defeated New York 114-102; Kansas City crushed Portland 124-85; Seattle turned back Indiana 112-107; Detroit whipped Golden State 114-96 and Houston tripped San Diego 118-107.

Julius Erving scored 24 points to lead the Philadelphia offense.
Celtics 116, Nets 102
Dave Cowens scored 24 points and Larry Bird added 21 for Boston, which leading 79-73, broke open the game in the final 90 seconds of the third quarter. Chris Ford hit two straight three-pointers from the corner and Bird connected on a layup and a foul shot to give Boston an 88-75 lead heading into the final quarter.
Hawks 114, Knicks 102
Eddie Johnson hit a third-period basket to put Atlanta ahead for good and scored 21 points. After a close first period, during which the lead changed hands seven times, Atlanta outscored the Knicks 12-1 in the middle of the second stanza and held a 48-46 lead at the half.

Johnson's basket put Atlanta ahead 70-69 with 3:21 left in the third period and the Hawks, who lead the NBA's Central Division with a 19-13 mark, slowly built their lead to the final margin.
Kings 124, Blazers 85
Otis Birdsong and Scott Wedman combined for 68 points to spark Kansas City over Portland. Birdsong tossed in a season-high 38 points, despite sitting out the final six minutes. The Kansas City guard hit 14 of 18 shots from the field and 10 of 11 free throws.

Wedman got 18 of his 30 points in the first half and did not play during the game's final nine minutes.
Sonics 112, Pacers 107
Gus Williams scored 27 points as Seattle held off an Indiana rally in the closing minutes. The Pacers battled back from 11 points down at the start of the third quarter and pulled within one on a basket by James Edwards with 2:30 remaining.
Paul Silas scored on a layup for Seattle and Indiana's Alex English countered with a basket before Lonnie Shelton's two free throws gave Seattle some breathing room with 45 seconds remaining.
Pistons 114, Warriors 96
John Long, Bob Lanier and Terry Tyler each scored more than 20 points, leading Detroit over Golden State. The Pistons broke a 13-game road losing streak, winning away from home for the first time since their season opener at San Antonio.
Long finished with 30 points, Lanier 29 and Tyler 21. The Warriors' top scorer was forward Purvis Short with 28 points.
Rockets 118, Clippers 107
Moses Malone scored 28 points and blocked four shots and Calvin Murphy added 24 points to lead Houston over San Diego.

Tower Of Power

Steelers Lead Bowl Selections

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK (AP)—Franco Harris, Pittsburgh's perennial 1,000-yard rusher, was among 10 Steelers named today to the American Conference All-Star team for this season's National Football League Pro Bowl.
The Steelers' total represents exactly one-fourth of the 40-man AFC squad that will play the National Conference All-Stars Jan. 27 in Honolulu, Hawaii.
The defending Super Bowl champions, playoff participants for a record-tying eighth straight time this season, will be represented by two other starters on offense—wide receiver John Stallworth and center Mike Webster.
Also, five Steelers will start on defense: end L.C. Greenwood, tackle Joe Greene, outside linebacker Jack Ham, middle linebacker Jack Lambert and safety Donnie Shell.
Harris, who has gone over the 1,000-yard mark this season for the sixth straight time and seventh of his eight years in the NFL, will play in his eighth straight Pro Bowl. He is the only AFC player to be picked every year during that period.
San Diego quarterback Dan Fouts, the AFC's No. 1 passer, is one of six Chargers on the AFC team. Fouts will start along with wide receiver John Jefferson and tackle Russ Washington.

The Houston Oilers also had six players picked, including two starters on offense, AFC rushing leader Earl Campbell and tackle Leon Gray. Campbell and Pittsburgh's Webster were the AFC's only unanimous choices.
Oakland tight end Dave Casper, Buffalo guard Joe DeLamiellure and New England guard John Hannah round out the offensive unit.
The five Steelers starting on defense will be joined by two members of the Houston defense, outside linebacker Robert Brazile and safety Mike Reinfieldt, New England cornerback Mike Haynes, Denver cornerback Louis Wright and a pair of Pro Bowl newcomers, Miami tackle Bob Baumhower and San Diego end Fred Dean.
Kansas City's Bob Grupp is the punter, Houston's Toni Fritsch the kicker and Denver's Rick Upchurch the kick returner.

The AFC squad was chosen in balloting among the 14 head coaches and NFL Players Association members on each team, with none permitted to vote for a player on his own team.
The NFC won last season's Pro Bowl 13-7 in Los Angeles to take a 5-4 edge in the series.

Joan Baez Continuing As A Crusader

By YARDENA ARAR
Associated Press Writer
WOODSIDE, Calif. (AP) — She lives in a rustic but obviously expensive home, wears chic clothes, dotes on her 9-year-old son. She's a lively conversationalist who takes voice and martial arts lessons and leaves the cleaning to a British housekeeper.

Joan Baez has changed in many ways since the 1960s when her clear, sweet soprano first electrified millions — and her outspoken political views shocked millions more.

But while she's long since shed her blue jeans and long hair for the trappings of well-heeled suburbia and motherhood, the basics of her life — music and humanitarian causes — have never changed.

At 38, Miss Baez — still pencil slim, but her black hair now shot with gray and worn frizzy — is back in the news as a crusader for the first time since the war in Vietnam ended. These days she's trying to get aid for the starving and homeless refugees of Cambodia as well as the Vietnamese "boat people."

But basically, she says, her current mission is an extension of the same nonviolent philosophy that motivated her opposition to the Vietnam conflict.

"What are you going to call war?" she says. "I mean, it's not an open, declared war when you let people die at sea, but it certainly is a form of violence; it's equal. So it's the same kind of moral obligation, I feel, as I felt in the 1960s when B-52s were dropping bombs on people.

"I don't think there are any separate backyards anymore, I think there's just one. Which is one reason why I'm able to speak out about atrocities in Vietnam and Cambodia. I don't have panic about, as an American I should speak only for this country or that country, as a left-winger I should only support this or that.

"I've never felt pro-American, I've never felt left-wing or right-wing, I've just been pro-people."

On these grounds, Miss Baez has parted ways with some former antiwar colleagues.

She expresses equal disdain for the post-1960s disillusionment with nonviolence and political activism that has afflicted many onetime New Left enthusiasts this decade.

"I don't think I've had disillusionments because I wasn't illusioned in the first place. I was never starry-eyed about the outcome of anything because I'm not an optimist. I think if you look around the world with any kind of intelligent eye, there's no cause for optimism. There's cause for hope, and that hope lies with people.

"I think the reason for the terrible disillusionment, and people saying 'I tried nonviolence and it didn't work,' generally means they went on three marches, made a couple of signs, stayed up all night and the war didn't end. And so they got ticked off and went home."

A lot of people might have thought she did the same, because her political activities weren't highly publicized after the war. Miss Baez admits the post-Vietnam era wasn't a particularly active time for her.

But she did travel to Russia and Ireland, all the while maintaining her support for such organizations as Amnesty International and the Institute for Nonviolence, which she helped found 14 years ago. "For the press to know you're around, you have to do some flashy thing," she says. "And I'm not interested in doing that. I'm going to do whatever work seems right. If that work is raising my child, I want to do that well. And if it's making an album, then I want to do that well."

In the album department, Miss Baez has been releasing records steadily — a total of 27 — since she first held a Newport Folk Festival audience spellbound in 1960.

At first, her repertoire was limited mainly to traditional British and American folk ballads. But in recent years she's branched out to include contemporary songs by other songwriters, including herself.

Sales of her current album, "Honest Lullaby," are not up to par, something she blames on the recent amalgamation of her record label, Portrait, with another CBS label, Epic. But record sales aside, Miss Baez remains as big a concert draw as ever. Although she says she's started to take voice lessons because some of the high notes don't come as easily as they used to, her fans certainly haven't noticed.

And in recent years, she seems even more at home on stage, interspersing songs with easygoing patter that often pokes fun at her own stereotyped image.

"Now people expect me to be funny, even when I'm not in a good mood," she chuckles. "I just like people to know I'm human."

More Than 100 Raleigh Charges

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — More than 100 persons have been charged in an undercover operation in which police officers used a swap shop and a taxi service to buy nearly half a million dollars in drugs and stolen property. Raleigh police reported Wednesday.

By late Wednesday, police had arrested about 65 people and were seeking 45 more in the setup, known as Operation Wheels and Deals, that had been under way since June 20.

During the undercover operation, officers, including two Greensboro police detectives, operated a swap shop called The Country Store in downtown Raleigh and a taxi service called Capital City Cab.

In a press conference Wednesday, Police Chief Frederick Heineman said four different auto theft rings were broken as the result of the operation, with 14 vehicles recovered.

More than 300 crimes were cleared in the operation and information obtained in the sting was responsible for clearing several unrelated robberies and additional break-ins, Heineman said.

He said officers made 108 drug-related purchases with a street value of $236,000 and made 115 property-related purchases with a street value of $226,000.

The two Greensboro officers, D. G. Bingman and D. P. Valavanis, did the undercover work because they were not known in the Raleigh area.

The operation was conducted at a cost of $46,000 and was financed mainly by grants from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration and the state Department of Crime Control and Public Safety. Raleigh police paid about $1,900 of that amount, Heineman said.

Purchases were recorded by hidden cameras and tape recorders until burglars broke into the swap shop.

The investigation was one of three such sting operations conducted by the Raleigh police in the last three years.

AARP Chapter Has Installation

The American Association of Retired Persons, Greenville Chapter 2016, held its regular meeting and Christmas party on Dec. 10 with installation of the 1980 officers. The installation was conducted by Assistant State Director of southeastern N.C. Richard Micky.

The new officers are Peter Anderson (President), Bob Knapp (Vice President), Clara Seago (Secretary) and Ruth Harris (Treasurer). It was learned at the meeting that Anderson (of Farmville) is now the Assistant State Director of northeastern N.C.

Rhodesia Governor Walks A Fine Line

By JOHN EDLIN
Associated Press Writer
SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP)—Rhodesia's first British governor in 14 years has started "settling in and meeting people." Look to the future rather than the past, Lord Soames told black and white Rhodesians.

The new governor said he understood he had to walk a fine line. "I'm just settling in and meeting people. I don't want to rush in where angels fear to tread," he said.

He made the comments to reporters Wednesday night after his first TV address to the nation. "This will not be an easy period for any of us," Soames said in the broadcast.

The black nationalist guerrillas of the Patriotic Front, which has waged a war against the Salisbury government since 1972, has insisted Soames was wrong to come to Salisbury before a cease-fire took place.

But Soames said he hoped the British-sponsored peace talks between the guerrillas and the outgoing government of Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa, now in its fourth month in London, will bring a cease-fire soon.

He urged Rhodesia's 6.8 million blacks and 230,000 whites to support him.

"In emerging from a long and bitter war there will be many difficulties. But together we must overcome them, looking to the future rather than the past," he said.

Soames said his task was "to hold the government of the country in trust while the political leaders put their case to you and seek your votes." After elections and legal independence, he said, "My task will then be complete and I shall return to London." A son-in-law of the late Sir Winston Churchill, Soames is a caretaker governor charged with ending the guerrilla war and organizing new elections leading to black-majority rule. Soames will meet today with local politicians, businessmen and other key black and white figures. His security chiefs will meet with their local counterparts to discuss implementation of a cease-fire and supervision of new elections. A 1,200-strong Commonwealth military force will be on hand to monitor the cease-fire and voting.

The governor's arrival Wednesday and the hoisting of the British Union Jack over the colonial mansion that will serve as his headquarters officially ended 14 years of rebellion against Britain.

Absent from the welcoming ceremony of brass band and guard of honor at Salisbury Airport was former Prime Minister Ian Smith, whose all-white government unilaterally declared its independence in 1965 in a move to head off black rule.

The British House of Commons late Wednesday approved the blueprint for Rhodesian independence, incorporating constitutional changes that will create an independent, black-ruled Zimbabwe early next year.

Coors Leans To Virginia

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP) — It's closer to being "Coors time" in Rockingham County, Va., which now heads the list of possible sites for the Adolph Coors Co.'s first brewery outside of Colorado.

The site along the South Fork of the Shenandoah River near Elkton is the primary site under consideration, Coors announced Wednesday. But spokesman Bob Keyser said a site in Monroe County, Tenn., also is being considered.

The decision delighted Rockingham County Board of Supervisors Chairman Cecil Armentrout, who will leave office in January because brewery foes helped defeat him in the Nov. 6 elections.

"I've been a supporter of theirs from the beginning," Armentrout said. "I've always contended it would be a good industry for the state of Virginia and for Rockingham County."

The supervisors overrode Planning Commission recommendations when they rezoned the proposed site so the brewery could be built.

An anti-brewery group is appealing to the state Supreme Court a county Circuit Court's ruling upholding the board's decision.

In that case, they argued the supervisors held illegal secret meetings on the zoning decision. In general, brewery opponents object to the removal of farm land from production and cite moral and religious qualms about manufacturing alcohol.

Speaker For Club Program

Mike Ernest and Kathy Beachum presented a program Monday at the weekly meeting of the Optimist Club on the Interpreters for the Deaf Program at East Carolina University.

Ms. Beachum is the ECU student the Optimist Club sponsored to take interpreters' training in Tennessee last year.

Ernest talked first and Kathy interpreted by hand sign language and mouthing the words. He discussed the ECU program and said that in 1977 there were six deaf students; in 1978, 15; and this year, 24. Some 35 are expected next year.

Since Miss Beachum has been back from Tennessee, she has worked a full schedule at ECU and has worked out in the community with deaf people assisting them in applying for jobs and other needs.

ROK General Under Arrest

By EDITH M. LEDERER
Associated Press Writer
SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — A squad of army officers arrested South Korea's martial law commander after a shoot-out with his bodyguards and rounded up several other top generals, accusing them of complicity in the assassination of President Park Chung-hee, authorities said today.

Observers said the surprise move Wednesday night by one group of generals against another did not appear aimed at the civilian government of Park's successor, President Choi Kyu-hah, but there was speculation Choi had not been told of it in advance.

In Washington, a State Department spokesman warned the South Korean military that any move to disrupt the nation's shift toward democracy would have a "severe adverse impact" on U.S.-South Korean relations. The spokesman also cautioned communist North Korea not to exploit the situation in the South.

Martial law commander Gen. Chung Seung-hwa was seized at his house in Seoul after a 40-minute gunbattle, informed sources said. The government called it "a minor clash." Four of the bodyguards were wounded, authorities said.

Defense Minister Ro Jae-hyun issued a statement today saying new facts had been uncovered implicating Chung and an unspecified number of other military men in the Oct. 26 assassination of Park. He said the information had come from Park's confessed assassin, former Korean Central Intelligence Agency chief Kim Jae-kyu.

However, informed sources said they believed the incident stemmed from a military power struggle between moderates, led by Chung, and hardliners, headed by Gen. Chon Doo-hwan, the defense security commander who ordered Chung's arrest. They said the moderates favor gradual political liberalization, while the hardliners want Park's authoritarian system continued.

Choi, who was elected president last week, issued a carefully-worded statement on the arrests, saying only that he had accepted Chung's resignation and named Gen. Lee Hee-sung, 55, to replace him as martial law chief.

Mailing Of Christmas Seals Underway In Pitt

Lorey White Jr., director of the American Lung Association of North Carolina, Eastern Region, reminds area residents that the annual mailing of Christmas Seals is now underway.

Contributions received from the public, White notes "support yearly programs such as the TB workshops, smoking withdrawal clinics, public education on respiratory diseases, and educational programs given in schools.

"Research constitutes a significant part of the use of funds received from Christmas Seals," White added.

"But the largest share, 70 percent of funds collected, are for programs administered locally within the 22 county area served by the Eastern Region," White commented.

Primary respiratory diseases that affect the public are TB, emphysema, chronic bronchitis, and asthma.

Better Kisses By Non-Smoker

LONDON (AP) — Great Britain's most famous bachelor apparently believes in advertising if you've got a good thing — such as his non-addiction to tobacco.

Prince Charles said Wednesday that girls who kiss him may find they enjoy it more because he doesn't smoke. The prince said he was kissed by three girls during a two-day visit to Nottingham in northern England. He recalled one of the three hugged him "particularly aggressively, which gave me enormous pleasure."

"It's just as well, I suspect, that I don't smoke. Otherwise, her reaction might have been quite different," he said.

Overcame All The Obstacles

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Robert Simmons doesn't give up.

In 1968, he found a 1963 Central High School ring with the initials "RWP" engraved inside at the bottom of a swimming pool.

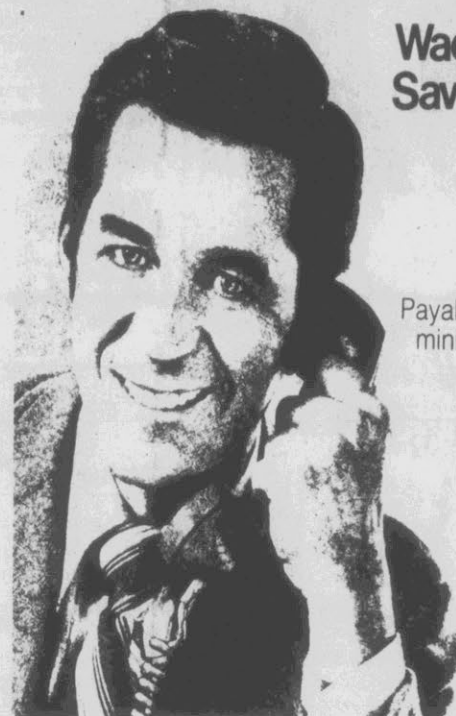

Since then, he has tried repeatedly to persuade school officials to tell him who in that graduating class had those initials.

Each time he was told the information was confidential.

But last week Simmons found a counselor who gave him the name of Robert W. Pepper.

After clearing one last hurdle in the 11-year crusade — Pepper had an unlisted telephone and had to be located through his parents — Simmons returned the ring.

Pepper said he lost the ring two days after he got it in 1962.

Couple Would Launch Sculptures For Space

By DAVID JONES
TORONTO (UPI) — Moon-struck lovers and other stargazers could find themselves observing a new sight in the heavens within a few years — a slender stroke of light outshining Venus as it passes rapidly across the night sky.

Bruce Battler, a 27-year-old philosophy graduate from the University of Toronto, and his artist wife, Julia Grant, have been planning just such a world-dazzling space sculpture for the past two years.

The couple has incorporated the project as Resolute Works, invested more than $3,000 in it and applied for copyrights which could be sold to help finance the scheme.

The original plan called for a chain of nine highly polished spheres, each as wide as a football field is long, with a surface area of six and a half acres.

The globes were to be extremely thin balloons inflated automatically in space, each with a spray coating of aluminum a few atoms thick. Even so, the total weight of the sculpture was to be nearly four tons and the launch costs, at current NASA freight rates, a staggering $3 million.

The astro-artists have since reduced the weight of their sculpture to a mere 85 pounds by redesigning it as a single cylinder about one-fifth of a mile long.

"It won't look like anything you've ever seen in the sky before," Battler says. "You'll see a long straight line that is shining, which will make its way across the sky in about five minutes.

"It's the sense of motion that gives it a certain drama, and also the fact that it's utterly silent when it's going by. There's no exhaust, no noise. It just very mysteriously goes along. And of course it may be tumbling, which would give it a strange effect."

The couple hopes to launch the space sculpture on the NASA space shuttle — NASA has announced plans to sell leftover space on the shuttle under a program called the "getaway special" for a top price of $10,000.

The program was to have begun late in 1982 but has been indefinitely postponed because of problems with the shuttle. Early approaches by Battler and Grant were rebuffed, but the space agency has told them their project will be considered if they can provide a scientific rationale.

The technology involved is simple by space age standards, Battler contends. The sculpture, which would outshine everything except the sun and moon, is very similar to the Echo satellites which were among the first American space projects.

Battler has prepared a highly-minded aesthetic justification of the project for submission to various funding agencies, but for both him and his wife there is a mischievous delight in what they are trying to do.

"Some people won't know what it is," Battler says. "To them it's going to seem like some horrible UFO. Part of the project is calculated to have precisely that effect — to tease them partly, but people do like to see things in the sky, even if they're not really there."

Now Offer To Sell TV Time

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two television networks — ABC and NBC — now are offering to sell President Carter's re-election committee 30 minutes of time next month for a campaign special.

The re-election committee had sought the time this month to coincide with the president's Dec. 4 re-election announcement, but was turned down by all three major commercial networks. The networks said December was too early to start selling large blocks of TV time for campaign material. The Federal Communications Commission ruled that the networks had acted unreasonably, but the networks won a temporary stay from the U.S. Court of Appeals. The court case is still pending.

Survived A Year Of Polluted Water And Sickness

By ELLEN L. SLOTT
LAKEWOOD, N.J. (UPI) — Sue and Jim McCarthy will never forget the day a Health Department clerk delivered a letter, informing them their drinking water was contaminated.

The water, polluted with highly toxic and some cancer-causing chemicals, may have produced a fatal form of kidney cancer in their infant daughter, caused McCarthy to inexplicably lose a kidney and thrust 600 neighborhood residents into a bureaucratic maze.

On Nov. 8, 1978, the Health Department in Jackson Township told its Legler section residents the municipal landfill had polluted their wells.

Now, after more than a year of red tape, fights with township officials, lawsuits and countersuits, the water is still polluted with benzene, acetone, freon and other chemicals. Relief is at least months away.

"Things are no better today than they were a year ago," said Mrs. McCarthy, 32.

And the problem, as Ron Buchanan, chief of the state Bureau of Hazardous Wastes, pointed out, is not unique to New Jersey.

"The whole question of hazardous waste disposal is probably going to be one of the single most important environmental problems of the 80s. It is national. There are undoubtedly numbers of landfills that in the past accepted chemical wastes that for some reason have not shown up yet. But the potential is there."

Jackson Township is just "the tip of the iceberg," added Russ Corbey, an aide to the state senator whose district covers it.

When the township landfill opened in 1972 some 315 residents, including the McCarthys, protested. They said they feared their exceptionally shallow wells would become polluted.

But the township moved ahead and accepted solid wastes, sewage — at one point up to 300,000 gallons a day — and apparently unknowingly, some chemicals mixed in.

WATER TRUCKED IN — Jim McCarthy draws water from containers stored in garage as wife Sue, sees that children brush their teeth. The McCarthys live in Jackson Township where the wells are polluted and potable water is trucked in. (UPI Photo)

The state utilities regulatory agency limited the sewage quota to 20,000 gallons daily in 1976 but some officials and residents believe this encouraged illegal dumping.

"If I drive down here from northern Jersey with a truckload of wastes and they tell me the landfill reached its quota for the day, I'm not going to drive back home," McCarthy said. "I'm going to the woods to dump the stuff."

Robert Gogats, the township health officer, suspecting pollution, prodded the state Department of Environmental Protection to take water samples in 1978.

Test results determined the wells in a two-square mile area — which has since spread to four-square miles — were polluted.

The township then began trucking in potable water which, initially, was delivered door-to-door in metal drums until the residents complained they were unsanitary.

It wasn't long before the residents began questioning unusual medical problems and their connection to the water pollution.

The McCarthys' infant daughter died Oct. 5, 1975, of a kidney cancer doctors said they had never seen before in a child.

"At the time, we thought it was one of those things that just happen," said Mrs. McCarthy who 10 years ago moved from New York City to their home, located one mile from the landfill.

"The more involved we got, I talked to other people. This one and that one had a miscarriage," she said.

Then two years later McCarthy's kidney atrophied.

On their street, a 13-year-old girl had her kidney removed, a woman had kidney problems, her dog and cat died of kidney disease and another woman has been waiting for a kidney transplant.

Girls, 6, 7 and 8 years old, have gotten vaginal infections.

People break out in rashes nearly every time they wash their faces or take showers and have begun using the bath facilities of a nearby high school and of friends who live outside the affected area.

In a Nov. 28, 1978, letter to the Board of Public Utilities, Gogats noted the ailments. He wrote: "Five area residents living on the same road have had kidney problems, the significance of which is presently under study."

That study by health officials is still underway.

The residents feel the state and township have done very little to alleviate the problems.

In October, Gov. Brendan T. Byrne signed a bill allowing the township to borrow $1.2 million to build a new municipal water system, but the township residents are not satisfied with that.

They fear they'll be forced to pay the entire bill and relinquish their free, private water systems. They would rather split the cost with the township's other 25,000 residents. The township meantime has been trying to obtain federal monies but so far has had no luck.

"There's no way to make people, who have gone through the hardship they have, happy," said John Paul Doyle, a state legislator who represents the township. "That's the best we can do."

Gogats and the residents also want DEP to return to the township and take additional water samples from outside the affected area where there have been new complaints of skin rashes.

But Haig Kasabach, of the DEP's Bureau of Potable Water, said he has only four geologists to handle 88 ground water pollution cases in the state.

"I cannot put my whole staff in Jackson Township. It's now time to go somewhere else."

"I told these people they can't drink the water," Kasabach said. "They're building a new water system. What more can we do?"

But the new water system proposed by Township Mayor Arlene Polito, who lost reelection largely to the efforts of the Legler group, is nowhere near ready to be built. The township is still haggling over terms of a contract with an engineer.

was banned at the landfill last December. A guard was hired to check all the people coming into it to make certain they were township residents or had permission to dump there. A reporter with Pennsylvania license plates drove into the landfill without being approached by anyone.

"I imagine they were goofing off," said Mrs. Polito. The assistant township attorney, Ronald Lueddeke, said the DEP is considering closing the landfill but so far has taken no action.

In the meantime, the McCarthys carry up large pots of water from their now plastic containers and bathe their young son and daughter in the scarce potable supply.

They believe what has happened to them is just a hint of what is to come.

Revitalize Area By Renovation

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The renaissance effort currently under way in this mid-American city's downtown district provides hope for other decaying central-city areas that the past may still be alive.

Heavily-trafficked Hennepin Avenue, long regarded as Minneapolis' red-light district, has become the nucleus of much of this urban renewal activity. The major face-lifting project so far has been the restoration and transformation of the historic 89-year-old Masonic Temple into a complete arts center.

Designated the Hennepin Center for the Arts, the building was renovated and remodeled in order to provide performing, teaching and studio facilities for many of the city's non-profit arts organizations.

According to Bower Hawthorne, the center's president, "The primary objective of the Hennepin Center is to serve as a catalyst for rejuvenating the street as the entertainment center of Minneapolis. We are hopeful that other groups in Minneapolis and around the country will follow our lead."

When it was completed in 1890, the eight-story Romanesque structure, which was constructed of pale Ohio sandstone, housed 11 Masonic groups. Designed by the prestigious architectural firm of Longs and Keys, it features five lodge halls, 50 ante-rooms, committee-and reception-rooms, and elegant offices on the ground floor, complete with gas and electric lights.

The building, in fact, has been recognized as an outstanding example of 19th-century design and stonemasonry by the national Registry for Historic Preservation.

In 1977, a group of business, civic and arts leaders formed an alliance to spearhead a $4.5 million drive to purchase and renovate the temple, which was chosen for its historic value and suitability for multipurpose use.

Today, just two years later, the building is home for two major tenants, the Cricket Theater and the Minnesota Dance Theater, as well as for such organizations and groups as the Illusion Theater, Metropolitan State University.

Court Affirms Right To Jury

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A federal appeals court has ruled that the right to a jury in a civil case can't be denied because of the complexity of the case.

In its ruling Tuesday, the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reversed and sent back to federal court in San Diego a complicated case involving 20 separate suits against U.S. Financial, a real estate company which collapsed in 1973.

"We do not believe any case is so overwhelmingly complex that it is beyond the abilities of a jury," the appeals court ruled.

Another Appeal To Avoid His Execution Friday

By AL LANIER
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Less than 24 hours from Joseph C. Shaw's date with South Carolina's electric chair, his attorneys go before a federal appeals court judge in North Carolina seeking a stay of execution.

After tough legal lectures to the defense team Wednesday — and with Shaw sitting stoically in the courtroom at Columbia — chief U.S. District Judge Robert W. Hemphill refused to order a delay.

That left today's appeal in Durham to Judge J. Dickson Phillips of the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals one of the last hopes for the 24-year-old Kentuckian.

He is scheduled to die in the electric chair at 5 a.m. Friday, the third person to be executed in the United States this year and the first in South Carolina since 1962.

A former military policeman at Fort Jackson, the tall, dark-haired Shaw, manacled and dressed in prison-issue dungarees, open-necked blue shirt and tennis shoes, sat alert but showed no emotion during the 1½-hour hearing. The execution in the death house at the Central Correctional Institution in Columbia would come almost two years to the day after Shaw pleaded guilty to the October 1977 slaying of two Columbia teen-agers, Tommy Taylor, 17, and Carlotta Hartness, 14, members of prominent Columbia families.

Both were shot, the girl was first raped by Shaw and two other men and Shaw admitted returning the next day and molesting the girl's body. Shaw said he was under the influence of drugs and alcohol.

The application for a stay heard Wednesday by Judge Hemphill was based on the new contention that Shaw was inadequately represented by his court-appointed attorneys when he pleaded guilty two years ago and in the long appeals process, including one rejection by the U.S. Supreme Court and two by the South Carolina Supreme Court.

Kermit King of Columbia, who headed Shaw's three-member defense team, said they were in an "untenable position" to make a last-ditch effort for the condemned man "because one of the positions for doing so is our own ineffectiveness."

He said a petition for a rehearing has been filed with the U.S. Supreme Court and new attorneys should be appointed to process it. The Supreme Court, in recess until Jan. 4, has not officially received the petition.

Before handing down his order refusing to delay the execution, Hemphill offered both King and Richard Burr, an attorney for Southern Prisoners Defense Committee, "road maps" to Richmond, Va., and to Washington, D.C., in the event they did not know the locations of the appeals court and the Supreme Court.

The judge said the petition alleging incompetent counsel, not filed until Dec. 4 in state Circuit Court, could be used by any defense attorney on the day before his client's execution in a last-ditch effort for a delay.

Asked directly by Hemphill if he felt Shaw received competent legal advice, King replied: "Subjectively, I can tell you he did, but objectively I cannot."

"Shaw has failed to meet this test. Of course, hindsight is not vulnerable because one has the privilege of time and contemplation."

"Any review of trial procedures can criticize after the conviction. It occurs that the criminal element never accords professional expertise once the accused is convicted."

"There is no showing that the advice offered by King and other attorneys was not within the range of competence demanded of attorneys in criminal cases."

Shaw's mother, Mrs. Robert Crum of Crestwood, Ky., is staying in Columbia at the home of two Roman Catholic nuns. She has declined to make statements to newsmen.

Mrs. Crum and her husband, Shaw's stepfather, made an appeal at the South Carolina State House Tuesday for Gov. Dick Riley to delay the execution. Riley has declined to meet with those asking for his intercession; they have talked with his legal adviser, Dorothy Manigault.

Mrs. Crum learned of Judge Hemphill's order at the home of the nuns and a spokesman for the family, John Brown of the South Carolina Coalition Against the Death Penalty, gave the family's reaction.

"They're terribly upset," said Brown. "They've been pouring their hearts out to the governor. They feel just like you would feel if you had a son about to be electrocuted."

Among those meeting with Ms. Manigault Wednesday was Bishop Ernest F. Unterkoefler of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Charleston, which includes all of South Carolina.

He said he based his appeal for a stay or execution on the basis that to do so "12 or 13 days before Christmas would be considered a great act of mercy in the Christian perspective."

The bishop said that Shaw, a Catholic, confessed and received communion from the Rev. Gregory Faye, a priest of the Dominican order, earlier this week before being transferred to death row and will do so again if he goes into "the death block" where the electric chair awaits.

James T. Roach and Ronald E. Mahaffey also pleaded guilty to slaying the teenagers. Roach's death penalty is still being appealed through state courts and no execution date has been set. Mahaffey, a juvenile at the time, received a life sentence.

Seek, But Find No More Boat People

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Have the boat people of Vietnam stopped coming?

"The planes keep looking every day, but there just are no boats," said a spokesman for the U.S. 7th Fleet in the Philippines.

The fleet's planes and ships have searched the South China Sea since July to assist Vietnamese fleeing their country aboard frail, leaky boats. No new sightings has been reported since early November, and a U.S. Embassy spokesman said the Navy is "mystified."

But George F.F. Reynolds, the Canadian embassy's immigration officer, said in a recent interview: "The Vietnamese promised at the Geneva refugee conference last July to reduce the numbers. Since there are fewer arrivals now, I guess we must attribute it to that. I can't think of any other reason, except for the recent typhoon season."

A Vietnamese social worker, who asked not to be identified, said refugees who escape tell of greater difficulty now in leaving Vietnam.

"It was always hard for the Vietnamese, unlike the Chinese," said the worker, a Roman Catholic nun. "But those I spoke with among the more recent arrivals said the beaches were watched more closely than before."

The number of boat people arriving in Thailand is reported increasing after trailing off in October. But other Southeast Asian countries and Hong Kong report a steady decline in the number of arrivals.

Record Year For Airline

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Piedmont Airlines is soaring toward the best performance in its 39-year history as a result of airline deregulation and expanded routes between medium-sized cities.

Profits for the North Carolina-based airline totaled $10.3 million for the first three quarters of this year, up 129 percent over the same period last year.

The company also sold $20 million in debentures last week, with the money to be used in an acquisition program to refurbish Piedmont's fleet of aircraft. The airline now owns or leases 51 planes, most of them Boeing 737s and the larger Boeing 727s.

According to senior vice president William Howard, Piedmont began its surge of growth in early 1978, shortly before the Civil Aeronautics deregulated passenger air service.

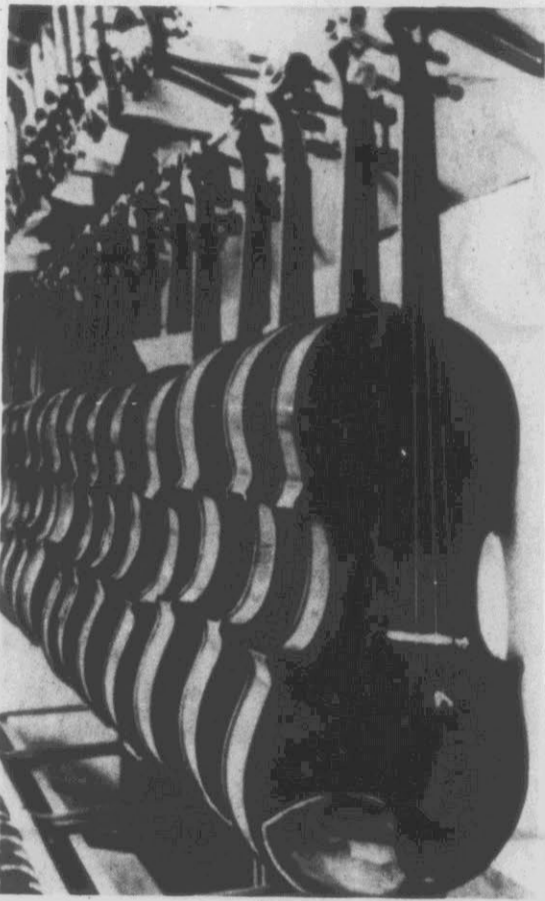

Piedmont decided to take advantage of the situation, Howard said, but it determined to avoid the most highly competitive routes.

Piedmont's management has relied on what it calls a bypass strategy, offering direct service that often bypasses traditional air hubs like Atlanta and Chicago.

The company has been finding good markets in smaller cities, such as Charleston, W.Va.; Akron, Ohio; and Chattanooga, Tenn.

At the same time, however, Piedmont has dropped some of the short routes it developed as a regional carrier.

A Florida commuter airline, Air Florida, purchased 5 percent of Piedmont stock last month, but Howard said there were no efforts under way to buy-out Piedmont.

Critics Of Seat Belts Criticized

WASHINGTON (AP) — The seat belt industry is criticizing a consumer group that says manufacturers fail to make sure the belts work.

President Charles Pulley of the American Safety Belt Council said Wednesday a recent study by the Center for Auto Safety "is full of misleading and inaccurate statements." The center's study said seat belts frequently fail, allowing hundreds of deaths and injuries each year. Pulley said while there is "no way to guarantee that each and every belt will function perfectly 100 percent of the time ... malfunctions are the exception, not the rule."

 Opening lead: King of ♣.

Bridge is a curious game. Usually, it pays to be aggressive in the auction but cautious in the play. Consider this hand.

No one can claim that North was reticent. With the announced double fit, South wisely elected to bid one more rather than defend. The result of the hand might have been different, however, had East jumped to four spades at his first turn, which would have been our choice.

West led the king of spades, ruffed on the table. If you are one of those players who believe that everything is going to break well, you probably started to draw trumps, hoping that you would score five heart tricks, a ruff and six diamond tricks, making an overtrick. But when East shows out on the second heart, you will end up going several down. Fortunately, South was one of those declarers who always wears a belt and suspenders. He realized that only a bad trump break could endanger his contract. However, he soon spotted a simple way to overcome a 4-1 trump division regardless of which defender held the long trumps.

At trick two declarer led a trump from dummy and finessed the ten! Had this won, declarer would simply have drawn trumps and claimed 12 tricks. But even though the finesse lost, the contract was safe.

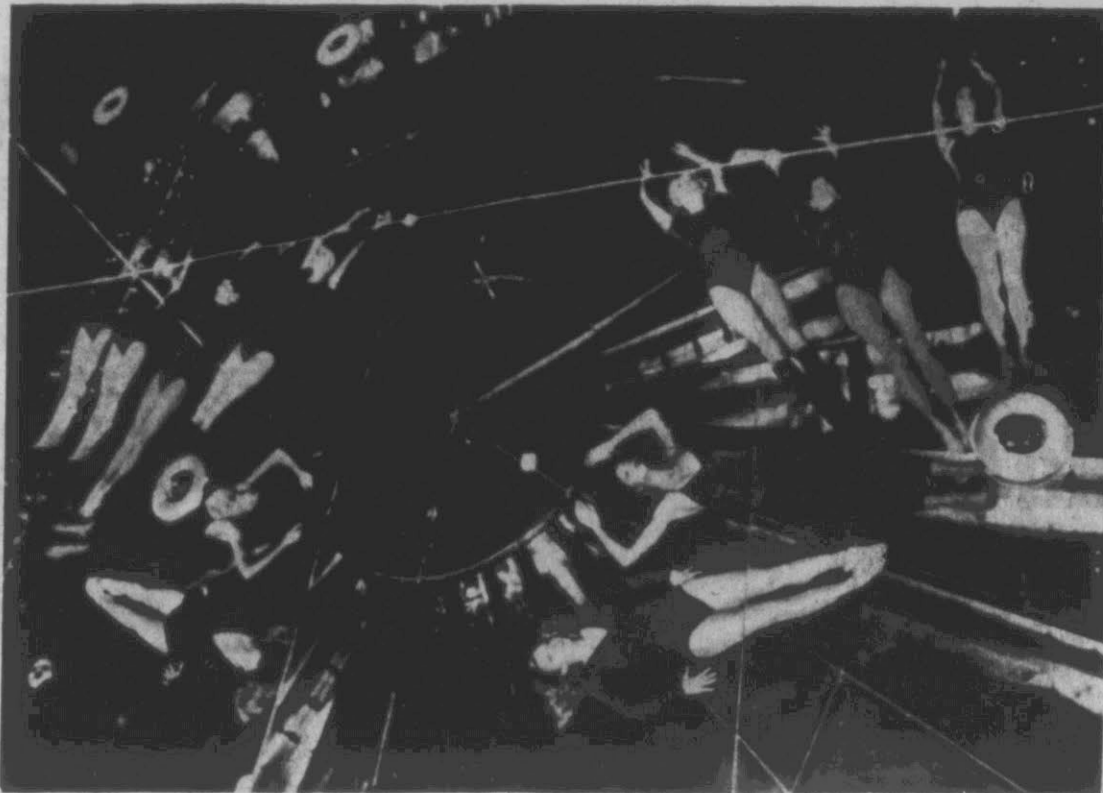

There was still a trump in dummy to control the spade suit, and since West was straddled with the lead, the king of clubs was safe from attack. No matter what the defenders returned, declarer would be able to win, enter his hand with a diamond, if necessary, and draw trumps, thus insuring 11 tricks.

For those readers who might argue that the trump finesse could lose the contract if diamonds were 4-0, consider the mathematics. A 4-1 division occurs more than 28 percent of the time, while a 4-0 division is less than a 10 percent possibility. Wouldn't you rather place your money on an almost 3-1 favorite?

WILMETTE, Ill. (AP) — Christmas carols have, many times, been the products of deadline pressures, streaks of luck, or unforeseen events. They owe their origins as much to broken pipe organs and mail-order catalogs as to divine inspiration, according to the American Music Conference here.

For instance, the AMC points out, the beloved Christmas carol, "Silent Night," grew out of a mice-infested, inoperable old church organ.

Before Christmas in 1818, in the tiny Austrian village of Oberndorf, Father Joseph Mohr discovered that his church's ancient pipe organ had finally wheezed its last, the group's historians relate.

The organ was in shocking shape, with church mice nibbling away inside it. All that could be done was to wait for spring, when the mountain roads were cleared of snow and the organ-repair craftsman could make his annual visit. But how could the church hold Christmas service, with no pipe organ to guide the singing?

On Christmas Eve, Father Mohr was called to a remote mountain hamlet to baptize a new-born infant. On his return, as he traveled the snowy, still mountain passes, he composed "Stille Nacht," or "Silent Night." The carol was first heard on Christmas Day, 1818 — to the simple accompaniment of a guitar.

Christmas carols have been sparked by all kinds of deadlines, according to AMC researchers. A child's request for a new Christmas carol by the very next morning led to the 1749 composition of "Christians Awake" by John Byrom. Byrom had already formulated England's system of shorthand, so he probably knew how to work fast.

Another child, the son of Martin Luther, heard his father extemporaneously compose "From Heaven Above" on Christmas Eve, 1534, to the accompaniment of a lute.

A church organist, faced with the deadline of Christmas morning to have his pastor's poem set to music, was saved by a last-minute inspiration.

In 1868, Lewis Redner was asked by his pastor, Phillips Brooks, to put a Christmas poem he had written to music. Redner struggled for days, but couldn't come up with anything, and finally went to bed Christmas Eve, convinced that he faced failure in the morning.

In the middle of the night, Redner awoke, a full-fledged melody ringing in his ears. The next morning, the children sang the newly harmonized poem, "O Little Town of Bethlehem."

Redner always claimed he did not write the music for this famous Christmas carol. Instead, he insisted, it was a "gift from heaven."

The tune for another popular

Christmas song, "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," came from a highly unlikely source. After Charles Wesley wrote the words in 1739, he was hard pressed for suitable music. Wesley finally hit upon setting it to Mendelssohn's "Festgesang," music which originally commemorated the 400th anniversary of the invention of the printing press.

The accidental union of the high-flown sentiments of "Hark the Herald Angels Sing" with music honoring movable type has produced one of the world's most lively, joyous carols.

A Montgomery Ward's catalog provided the inspiration for an incredibly successful 20th-century Christmas carol, "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer." In 1949, songwriter Johnny Marks was thumbing through a mail-order catalog, happened to read a children's story about a shiny-nosed reindeer, and was struck with the idea for Santa's spunky helper.

Carson Again Oscar Emcee

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Johnny Carson will once again be the sole master of ceremonies for the motion picture Academy Awards to be presented April 14, 1980, at the Los Angeles Music Center.

The 52nd annual Oscar show will mark the second consecutive year that Carson has hosted the awards.

Oscar show producer Howard Koch said, "Johnny Carson is one of our national treasures. He was selected as this year's host because his wit and verve made him an outstanding master of ceremonies during last year's Oscar show."

Honor Sinatra's Anniversary

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A star-studded crowd showed up to honor Frank Sinatra on his 40th anniversary in show business and his 64th birthday.

Old Blue Eyes was the center of attention at a three-hour gala Wednesday at Caesars Palace, where he has been appearing for a number of years.

Sinatra was presented with the first "Pied-Piper Award," given by the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers.

The show was taped by NBC television and is scheduled to be aired Jan. 3.

Spoletto To Be Expanded

CHARLESTON, S.C. (UPI) — More than 100 musical and performing arts events will be crowded into the 17-day, fourth annual Spoletto Festival U.S.A. which will take over Charleston and its environs next May 23-June 8.

Events will include grand, comic and contemporary opera, a concert by the Philadelphia Orchestra, jazz and country music, a world premiere drama at the historic Dock Street Theater, three dance companies, Japanese theater, chamber music, choral concerts, an Orson Welles film tribute, and the premiere of a short opera, for children by Gian Carlo Menotti. Menotti founded the festival in 1977 as the American wing of his Festival of the Two Worlds in Spoletto, Italy.

In addition to the formal events, Charleston sponsors a round of outdoor events for children and adults during the festival, including craft fairs, sidewalk art shows, puppets, and poetry readings. Many 18th and early 19th century homes are open to the public, popular music events are held on Seabrook Island, and the festival concludes with a fireworks concert in Middleton Plantation's gardens.

Hundreds of rooms in hotels, motels and private homes have been added this year to accommodations available to festival visitors. A new hotel, Indigo Inn, has been opened in the city. Further information may be obtained by writing to Spoletto Festival, P.O. Box 704, Charleston, S.C. 29401.

CAMERA Angles

By SANDY COLTON
AP Newsfeatures

Among professional photographers who have worked the New York circuit, the name Marty Forscher stands out as the guru of equipment.

Not just for camera repair, which he and his associates handle admirably at their Manhattan shop, Professional Camera Repair, but for the innovative solving of photographic problems through building special equipment.

He's adapted lenses to cameras that weren't special to be adaptable, built special backs for existing cameras and even fabricated special cameras. And he's been doing it since World War II when he served in the Navy with the famed Steichen unit.

But today it's not just these things for which Marty has such a devoted following. It's his sincere concern for the plight of the professional photographer and the battle he has been waging on their behalf with equipment manufacturers.

Marty is quick to point out that he is not against the technological developments which have opened the doors to photography for thousands who earlier were intimidated by the photographic process.

PROFESSIONAL'S ADVOCATE—Marty Forscher, guru of camera repairs in New York, and advocate for the professional photographer in search of more reliable equipment, in his shop in New York.

He does object to what he calls "planned obsolescence" and the current emphasis on manufacturing the most sophisticated cameras at the lowest possible price, "a practice that can only lead to compromise in the manufacturing process."

"The industry should be commended," Marty says, "for making available to the general public more versatile and feature-laden equipment, while at the same time holding costs down."

"But what is good for the general public does not necessarily satisfy the needs of the professional photographer whose livelihood, reputation and sometimes very life is on the line when he picks up a camera."

"The professional puts several hundred times more film through his camera than the amateur in the course of a year, and the quality that will take that abuse no longer prevails."

Marty likes to talk about the ideal camera for professional use. One, he says, that the kids can use as a hockey puck on weekends and Pop can use in his work the rest of the week.

It's an oversimplification, perhaps, but an argument wholeheartedly backed by such people as Jack Fletcher, photo equipment manager for the National Geographic, myself, and a host of others who are either assigned or must deal with photographers assigned to wars, riots or the far corners of the earth where, if a breakdown occurs, you might as well toss the camera away.

Unless you are in a major metropolitan area you can't get it repaired. It's too complicated to do yourself. And, frequently, you don't even know that the camera is malfunctioning until it's too late — not until the film has been processed, and that could be days or weeks and hundreds of more lost pictures.

As recently as the Korean War, many professionals carried a stripped-down Speed Graphic. It hardly ever broke down and, if it did, the photographer usually could repair it with a piece of tape, chewing gum or rubber band.

Then came the smaller cameras — Rolleiflexes, Leicas, Contax and early Nikons, all comparatively reliable. Even then, one or two cameras were usually sufficient. Today, photographers must carry two, three or more spare cameras as backups.

We now have a mass race on by the industry to capture the amateur market. Professionals, it is said, make up less than 8 percent of the total market. Ask a manufacturer to consider building a camera for the professional today and the answer is usually "no market."

Today we are bombarded by advertising where the manufacturers claim to be the "Official Camera" of this or that, "a title open to the highest bidder which bears little relationship to performance," says Marty. If manufacturers would like to compete for the title "Official Camera of the Professional Photographer," let them listen to Marty and the thousands who work for magazines, picture agencies, wire services and newspapers, to say nothing of the commercial, industrial and independent photographers plus the serious amateurs who follow the professional's lead.

Found Defects In Trucks, Buses

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Transportation Department says 40 percent of the trucks and buses inspected by federal agents during the 12 months ending Sept. 30 were ordered off the road because of serious mechanical defects.

Tuesday's report by Federal Highway Administrator Karl S. Bowers said 26,121 commercial trucks and buses involved in interstate commerce were inspected. Of these, 10,779 vehicles, mostly trucks, were ordered out of service because of serious safety defects such as faulty tires or brakes.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

What a Wheeze Can Mean

Every once in a while I get a wheeze in my chest when I take a deep breath. My wife is sure that it is the beginning of asthma because I smoke too many cigars. Is this possible? — Mr. V.K., Tenn.

Dear Mr. V.:
One of the things a doctor listens for when he applies a stethoscope to the chest is wheezing. When it is present for a long period of time, doctors devote their energy to finding the underlying cause for these sounds.

Not all wheezing is asthma nor early evidence of a dangerous bronchial or lung condition. Nevertheless, it is a sign that is not casually accepted without further investigation.

Allergy, infection, chronic bronchitis, emphysema, irritation by tobacco smoke, fumes, pollution and smog are only some of the reasons to account for wheezing. Even some forms of heart disease can be responsible.

Pulmonary function studies and spirometry can assess the health status of the lungs. X-rays of the chest and special dye studies can often pinpoint the reason for wheezing.

In children, a wheeze may be the first indication of the fact that the child has inhaled a foreign body.

With so many possibilities, you would be wise to actively pursue tracking down the underlying reason for your occasional wheezing. Your cigar smoking may very well be an important factor, but I would not be inclined to accept that as the only explanation.

I have heard that it is possible to prevent a heart attack by taking one or two tablets of aspirin a day. Since it isn't a dangerous drug, is there any disadvantage in trying it? — Mr. L.S.I., Maine.

Dear Mr. L.:
There has been a flurry of excitement in medical circles about the advantage of using small doses of aspirin at regular intervals. It has long been known that aspirin has a tendency to "thin the blood." In a complex way, it interferes with the normal coagulation mechanism of the blood.

Even though aspirin is considered a remarkably safe drug, it still must be used as a preventive of heart attacks only with the specific recommendation of a doctor. For it is well known that aspirin, taken even in moderate quantities, can adversely affect people who have a tendency to stomach and duodenal ulcer.

The reports are still coming in about the relationship between the use of aspirin and the prevention of heart attacks and stroke. Ongoing studies are particularly interested in this approach for patients who have previously suffered a heart attack.

R-9-P Prize For Greene

Greene County was awarded second place in Category IV of the 1979 R-9-P (Reduce Nine Pests) annual county participation program recently.

A cash award and plaque were presented to Robin Watson, agricultural extension agent in Greene County, during activities in Raleigh. The money can be used for any project to further the county's agricultural interest.

Among counties with 9,000 to 13,000 acres of flue-cured tobacco, Greene County won the award for completing the highest average of each of the four steps of the R-9-P program within the allotted time.

The goal of the program is to reduce carryover of nine major tobacco pests including root-knot, mosaic, vein banding and brown spot diseases; plus hornworms, budworms, flea beetles and damaging weed and grass pests.

The awards are sponsored by TUCO, division of The Upjohn Co., in cooperation with North Carolina State Extension Service.

Sees Energy Farmer's Opportunity

By SEAN O'BRIEN
Rocky Mount Telegram
AP Member Feature

Exchange
WHITAKERS, N.C. (AP) — Milton Lewis has been spending a lot of his time recently trying to convince people the small farmer in America is having serious financial problems.

Lewis should know; he is $200,000 in debt and facing foreclosure of his farm.

He says rising costs and federal regulations that maintain a relatively cheap food supply to the consumer is pricing the small farmer out of the market.

"I know some people who are in it so deep, the people they owe money to won't let them stop (farming), on the chance they might work some of the debt off," Lewis said.

Lewis, 54, has been working a farm in Whitakers most of his life. Several years ago he says he decided to concentrate on hog farming because, at that time, the market was good.

He says his farming methods are good and that he has always made money farming, at least until 1970 when he had a bad year. Since then, lawsuits brought by people trying to buy his farm for a low-rent housing development and a slump in the hog business have kept him in debt, he says.

He also says he is not about to sit still and lose his farm. He says he has worked out a plan by which every small farm in the country can become energy sufficient.

"I view the energy crunch as a golden opportunity for the small farmer," he said.

Lewis's plan involves six steps, any three of which he claims can increase a farmer's income. He also says the farmer is the natural person to come up with a solution to rising energy costs.

"To begin with," he said, "all energy is solar energy, either direct or indirect. Nature uses the green leaves of vegetative foliage in the process of photosynthesis to manufacture the energy and stores it, usually in the form of some type of seed or grain.

"Therefore, anything a farmer produces contains energy. It is a matter of getting the energy out of a farmer's product in a form which is usable to us in our society."

The first step in his program is the basic procedure all farmers follow, the production of a crop. Lewis uses corn. The second step involves using the crop to produce alcohol.

"A farmer can do this simply by setting up a distillation unit, taking the grain which he has grown and extracting the alcohol," he said. "Basically, this leaves, on a practical basis, about 50 percent of the former volume of grain."

After the alcohol has been removed from the grain, the remaining fiber can be used for animal feed. In Lewis's case, he will use it to feed his hogs.

"The corn contains about 9 percent protein to begin with, so when you only have about 50 percent of the raw material left after the distillation process, you have a product with 18-to-20 percent protein in it which can be used for the production of livestock."

He says he plans to restore the remaining fiber to its former volume by adding the unused portions of the corn stalk in a way that produces feed containing protein content digestible by the hogs.

In addition to the stalks, Lewis says he can use cover crops planted during off-growing seasons and the winter to actually increase the volume of alcohol that can be expected from a bushel of corn. This way, he says, he will be able to harvest three crops a year instead of just one.

The farmer "then takes this reconstituted material, produces his food stuff and renders his livestock program to its completion," Lewis said.

Selling off the livestock is the third step in Lewis's program.

The fourth step in the program involves making use of the waste produced by the livestock. Lewis figures it takes four pounds of feed to produce one pound of meat.

"That leaves three-fourths of the total value of corn on the farm," he said. "This is left here in the form of waste from the livestock operation."

"However, the material that has been put into this lagoon is a complete waste so far as the farm is concerned. In other words, previously he has wasted three-fourths of a bushel of corn."

Lewis has developed a digester to produce methane gas from the waste. He said it is a low-cost alternative to the normally expensive process normally employed in the process.

Methane can meet many energy needs on the farm, he says, including using it to produce electricity.

The fifth step of Lewis's program makes use of the solid sludge remaining after the methane is produced. The sludge is pumped out of the digester and put in long, shallow earthen trenches. Earthworms live off the sludge, yielding a mixture approximately 50 percent humus and 50 percent earthworms, Lewis said.

The earthworms and humus are separated and dehydrated. "This dehydrated worm is 70 percent of the most usable protein known to man," Lewis said.

The protein from the worms can then be used in the livestock for feed.

In a final step, Lewis takes the humus and uses it for fertilizer for his corn crop. Lewis is hoping his project will be chosen as one of 12 energy conservation projects set up by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. He estimates the pilot will cost $1 million.

Some Basis To A Bull Market

INTERSTATE SECURITIES CORP

Many people believe we are on the verge of a new bull market and some projections call for a more than doubling of the Dow Jones Industrial Average in the next two years. A closer look at some of the underlying assumptions is interesting.

Three basic factors always affect the market. First, market direction feeds on itself. If stock prices are rising, they will continue rising until they are significantly overvalued. If they are falling, they will continue falling until they are considerably undervalued. Psychological pressures are a compelling force, no matter what direction prices are taking.

Over the short term, inflation causes investors to ignore value and focus on yield. Interest rates move higher during inflationary periods and current yields on fixed income instrument can be twice as high as on common stocks. Thus, money leaves stocks and goes to debt markets. Interest rates also affect the cost of buying stocks on margin. When stock prices decline as investors move to debt markets, it triggers margin calls, which increase selling, which moves stock prices even lower. Common stocks become increasingly cheap.

Finally, the stock market may be slow to recognize value, but it always responds sooner or later.

Over the next six to nine months, a number of additional factors will be facing the market. First, interest rates are likely to moderate from current levels and that is positive for stock prices. Too, election years are typically good ones for stock prices, and the national mood usually improves as the election approaches.

Money which has been invested in other assets (gold, silver, art, antiques) could come back to stocks, since these alternative investments have advanced sharply in price in the last couple of years.

There is an enormous amount of money on the sidelines waiting to be invested. Institutions are not fully invested and money market funds are bursting at the seams with cash seeking high yields. As interest rates begin to decline, stocks will become more attractive investments.

In the following 18-24 months, as interest rates continue to decline, stocks should increase in attraction and prices will react favorably to supply and demand. At some point, the new issue market will come back to life, and the market will have forward momentum in its favor.

No one really knows where the Dow average will be in two years, but arguments for a higher level are convincing. Declining interest rates are favorable for stocks and there is considerable buying power waiting in the wings.

Allowed Use Access Road

WASHINGTON (AP) —

Permanent residents along the Outer Banks of Currituck County can continue use of a federal access road to Back Bay Wildlife Refuge under new regulations released by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

The residents had faced loss of access to the road on Dec. 31 when the current regulations expire.

The new regulations reduce the number of vehicles allowed to drive along the federally-controlled road. And, they allow only permanent coastal residents, commercial fishermen and emergency vehicles to use the road.

About 125 permits held by non-permanent residents will expire at the end of the year. Meanwhile, the House this week extended until September 1983 the U.S. Interior Department's deadline for buying additional land in nearby Dismal Swamp to establish a wildlife refuge.

The Fish and Wildlife Service owns 49,000 acres of land around the swamp, which George Washington once tried to drain, and it wants to buy another 21,000 acres to establish the second refuge.

Under the new rules, each family would be issued one permit to traverse the road, with travel limited to two round trips per day along the 4.5 mile refuge beach.

The public will have 30 days to respond to the changes before the rules are designated as permanent. Service said the new rules allow swimming, surfing and surf-fishing along the refuge's entire beach.
