Iran Students Rap Foreign Minister

By ALEXANDER G. HIGGINS
Associated Press Writer
TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The students holding 50 Americans hostage in the U.S. Embassy blasted Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh today for talking too much and falsely encouraging the Carter administration, and said "the least" they will do is try the captives for spying unless the shah is returned to Iran.

The declaration followed a new endorsement of the students' actions by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, and the assassination today of a close associate of Khomeini that was sure to inflame the situation. The ruling Revolutionary Council blamed the killing of Ayatollah Mohammad Mofateh and his two guards on the CIA and SAVAK, the ousted shah's secret police.

Ghotbzadeh said after the shah flew from the United States to Panama over the weekend that some of the hostages might be freed before Christmas, but the students said none of the captives would be freed and all would be tried. They repeated their position in a state radio broadcast today.

Khomeini also castigated the U.S. government at a televised news conference Monday night with Arab journalists. But Khomeini said if President Carter "descends from his ivory tower to sit with us on the ground and tries to establish mutual understanding, we will reciprocate, provided he compensates us for the cruelties inflicted so far."

The ayatollah took note of contradictions between the students and his foreign minister, saying that the suggestion by foreigners that the students were directing Iran's foreign policy was a lie. But he gave the students his unqualified endorsement, saying that in occupying the U.S. Embassy in Tehran and declaring that the release or trial of the hostages depended on the return of "our criminal" — Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi — they were acting for the whole nation.

However, the Revolutionary Council, the super-cabinet which governs Iran in accordance with Khomeini's orders, confirmed Ghotbzadeh's announcement that Christian clergymen would visit the hostages on Christmas Day. A council spokesman quoted by Radio Tehran said the clergymen would deliver presents sent by the captives' families and "open letters."

Oil Windfall Tax Passes In Senate

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The "windfall profits" tax passed by the Senate, which would tax the oil industry $99 billion less than a House version, is heading into a congressional negotiating committee with little prospect for a compromise this year.

The task facing the Senate-House conference committee is to hammer out a measure that over the next 11 years will cost the oil industry somewhere between the $178 billion voted by the Senate and the $277 billion passed by the House. The conferees will be under pressure to make sure the oil industry is provided ample incentives to increase production.

By rough estimate, the Senate bill, passed 74-24 Monday night, would capture about 38 percent of the net "windfall" expected to be taken by the oil industry in the 1980s because of President Carter's decision to remove federal price controls from U.S. crude oil.

The House-passed bill would take about 61 percent. The president, who proposed the tax, told reporters at a state dinner Monday night he was glad the bill passed the Senate.

But a statement released by the White House also said the Senate bill "falls considerably short of the House bill."

"We will continue to push for a strong...bill which is fair to producers, consumers and taxpayers," it said.

The American Petroleum Institute's president, Charles J. DiBona, said: "The tragedy of the Senate bill is that it would give oil companies nowhere near enough to generate the level of domestic investment that must be made to decrease our reliance" on the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. The API is a trade group for the oil industry.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., who will head Senate conferees on the measure, called the bill "a lot better than the alternative," meaning Carter's option to reimpose price controls on U.S. crude oil if Congress does not enact a strong tax. The senators and House members who will strive for a compromise will meet for the first time Wednesday. Aides say there appears little chance they can complete their work by Friday night, when they are due to start a holiday recess.

Barring unlikely sessions between Christmas and New Year's Day, final action will thus probably be delayed until early in January. If there is a delay, the new tax would be imposed retroactively to Jan. 1.

Tax In Brief

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here, at a glance, are key provisions of the "windfall-profits" tax passed by the Senate Monday:

PURPOSE: The tax would take away an estimated 38 percent of the "windfall" that will go to the oil industry between now and 1990. That windfall, which will be in the range of $400 billion after existing state and federal taxes are deducted, also would come in part from higher world oil prices voted by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

HOW IT WORKS: The tax would simply capture a portion of each dollar as crude-oil prices rise above current levels. Those levels, which vary according to the type of oil, range from $6 to $20 a barrel. The base prices will be adjusted each year to offset inflation.

For example, oil from fields discovered before 1973 would face a 75 percent tax; the tax would take 75 cents out of each dollar that prices rise above the current $6 level.

USES: The tax is expected to provide most of the government money to finance development of new energy sources, encourage conservation, improve the nation's transit system and help the poor pay rising fuel costs.

POOR: The bill authorizes $7 billion in fuel assistance for low-income Americans in the winters of 1980-81 and 1981-82. The money generally would go to welfare recipients, with each household assured of from $120 to as much as $320 per year.

MIDDLE-INCOME: An income-tax credit (subtracted directly from taxes owed) of $20 to $200 a year (three times) would be allowed families with annual incomes of less than $22,000 ($20,000 in 1979) to help offset higher energy costs. This would cost $4.8 billion.

CONSERVATION: Nearly $8.5 billion in tax credits would be allowed homeowners and landlords to encourage conservation through use of heat pumps and air-tight wood stoves and replacement of inefficient furnaces and boilers.

BUSINESS: Tax credits worth more than $15 billion would be allowed business, utilities and industries to encourage use of non-oil fuels, production of gasoline and production of such unconventional energy sources as shale oil.

SOCIAL SECURITY: The bill sets aside enough money to prevent a scheduled 1981 Social Security tax increase from going into effect. However, subsequent action by Congress would be necessary to actually freeze taxes.

INTEREST: An unrelated amendment would allow a person to avoid federal income taxes on up to $201 of income from interest and dividends each year. A couple would get a $400 exemption.

INHERITANCE TAXES: A major change in inheritance taxes, voted in 1976, would be repealed in the interest of tax simplification. Congress has never allowed the provision to take effect.

Repeal would allow a person who sells inherited property to avoid income taxes on any increase in value from the time the asset was acquired by the deceased until the time of his death. The 1976 law would have imposed taxes on the full increase in value from the time the deceased acquired the property until it was sold by the heir.

School Holiday Schedule Is Set

Christmas time means holiday time for students, faculty and staff members at local educational institutions — public schools in Greenville and Pitt County, East Carolina University, and Pitt Community College.

City school students begin their holiday Thursday while the staff and faculty begin their holiday after work Friday. Employees and students will return to the classroom and to work on January 2.

Pitt County school students will have one more day off than city school students. County students begin their holiday following Wednesday classes, while faculty and staff members begin their holiday Friday.

But just like city school students and workers, the county school holiday will be over on January 2.

Exams at East Carolina University end Thursday, and students begin their holiday at that time, although university faculty and staff members won't begin their holiday until after work Friday.

University staff workers return to their jobs on January 2, while faculty members return to the campus January 7.

Registration for the Spring semester is scheduled for January 9, while classes will begin at the university again on January 11.

At Pitt Community College, students will begin the holiday Thursday, while faculty and staff employees begin their time-off on Friday.

Both students and PCC employees will begin their work again on January 2.

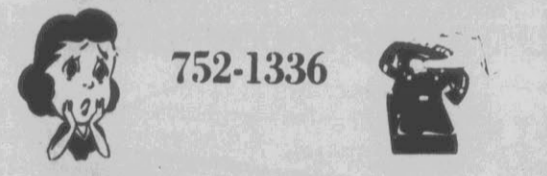

Extra Time To Former GIs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon has announced a 15-month extension of the deadline for former military personnel seeking to upgrade undesirable discharges to honorable ones.

Officials said Monday the deadline is being extended to April 1, 1981, in part because of requests from veterans organizations. Discharge review boards have heard about 3,500 cases and nearly 5,600 more are pending. The upgrading program is open to former service personnel discharged before Jan. 1, 1965.

The ECU chapter of The Society for Collegiate Journalists has asked Hotline to appeal for assistance for Olivia Rosenboro's nursing home expense for her son, Roderick Coley. Roderick, 10 years old, is a patient at Greenville Villa Nursing Home, the result of injuries sustained in an automobile accident in February, 1978. His care per month costs $508, after Medicaid deductions, plus a $14 laundry bill. Ms. Rosenboro now has a balance owed of $1,500. Persons who wish to make contributions may send checks to the Roderick Coley Fund, c/o Greenville Villa Nursing Home, Moye Drive, Greenville. AGE REQUIRED?
Is it law that you have to reveal your age on your tax form? There is a slot on it. Do you have to fill it in? It seems it's a matter of personal freedom not to have to.

According to Pitt County Tax Supervisor Glenn Cutrell, no such law exists. "We ask that everybody fill in this information mainly because of the old age exemption," he said. "It's up to the individual, though. Of course, refusing to give one's age after 65 would keep one from benefitting from the old age exemption."

For the first time in the history of Greenville City Schools, the elementary schools in the system, individually and collectively, have been fully accredited by the Southern Association of Schools and Colleges, headquartered in Atlanta. At the Monday night meeting of the Greenville Board of Education, Director of Instruction Charles Ross presented the overall certificate of accreditation to Board Chairman Ed Carter and reported on the achievement.

"This is a certification that all elementary schools, and all grades, kindergarten through the sixth grade in the Greenville system are now fully accredited for the first time in the history of Greenville City Schools.

"This achievement," Ross commented, "represents dedication, hard work on the part of teachers, school board members, parents and the students in the schools. It's something we can all be proud of."

Ross said that Greenville, of all schools in the South, had "the best representation of teachers at the annual meeting of the association." In addition to Ross and Mrs. Kay Whitehurst, Director of Secondary Education, two teachers from each of the elementary schools attended the 84th annual convention in Atlanta. Board member Mrs. Nancy Middleton, in Atlanta on business at the time of the convention last week, was able to join the schools' representative on two occasions. A related event, Ross said, "was our good fortune in having an opportunity to visit Mr.

Howard Hooker in Marietta, Georgia. Mr. Hooker is a 1915 graduate of the old Greenville High School, and as you know, has for years given a scholarship in his name to a Greenville graduate.

"Mr. Hooker informed us," Ross added, "that he has set up an endowment that will provide for an annual scholarship of at least $1,000 to continue indefinitely.

"It's difficult to say," Ross concluded, "who enjoyed the visit most, us or Mr. Hooker." In other actions at Monday night's meeting, the board:

— Approved the resignation of four teachers, the election of four, and maternity leaves for two. It also authorized Mrs. Mary Rose Stocks to be acting principal at Wahl-Coates in the absence of Dr. Gene Piner, out at this time due to illness.

— Approved two budget amendments — one for an increase of $11,000 in the capital outlay fund. This represents additional funds received in connection with paving at Middle School, and in accordance with a prior commitment, about $9,500 of this amount will be turned over to the city for its work in the paving project. The other amendment, for current expense funds, represents a decrease of $22,761.33 in vocational education funds. This decrease, however, represents a shift in funds necessitated by the state's bookkeeping code and does not represent an actual loss overall in current expense funds of that magnitude.

— Approved the addition of seven names — six female and one male — to the substitute teacher list.

A Fugitive Jesus And Family Wandered In Egypt

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

For the wanderer, the furniture of existence becomes blurred. Nothing is fixed, nothing steady. There are no comforting landmarks, no regular reminders, no settled frame of reference. Without a familiar place, no step is sure.

As refugees from mass slaughter, a displaced Jewish family of old walked that vagrant route in Egypt. It was a foreshadowing lot for the couple, the child and ensuing generations.

"Foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests; but the Son of man has nowhere to lay his head."

This was the chancy, insecure environment in which Jesus entered, and experienced, the world — starting as a ragged toddler in the arms of a nomadic family in flight from despotism and carnage.

The months, probably more than a year, in Egypt make up a nebulous interlude, a veiled segment of his upbringing.

It was a restless, groping ordeal, its impressions like those of all homeless people in search of sanctuary — the dim, alien landscape, always shifting, a sort of revolving haze, remote and monotonous, yet constantly in motion.

That is the kind of indistinct, unstable trail left by the fugitive family of Jesus in North Africa, continually moving, from one uncertain spot to another, with strangeness all about and no roof or ground to call their own.

Although Scripture tells hardly anything about that episode, other accounts going far back into antiquity indicate some of its features. Over the road they followed, it is about 250 miles from Bethlehem to the Nile valley, going through Hebron and the pagan port of Gaza, teeming with sailors, scent-sellers and slave traders, and thence on across the desert of the Sinai peninsula.

They had a donkey and took turns riding it, holding the infant. At one point, legend says, the girl broke, dropping riders into the dust.

A broiling sun beat on them by day, a piercing chill at night. They nibbled from a sack of corn and dried bread, rationing the contents of their waterskin from oasis to oasis. Tradition cites stops they made on the way — in a cave, beside a spring, beneath some palm trees which yielded dates for a meal. Leopards and wolves prowled their campsites.

Along one midnight stretch of road, they are said to have passed through a sleeping gang of bandits. A lookout, named Titus, urged his partner, "Let those persons go quietly that our company may not perceive anything of them." But the other, Dumachus, wanted to rob them. Titus, taking coins from his girdle, bribed him to let them go on.

They went through Goshen, and came eventually to the delta, that river-silted "black land" of Egypt, hemmed in by the red rolling sands of desert, a region of inundation and drought, of fertility and famine.

Heliopolis, center of pantheistic cults and the lavish temple of the sun-god, Re, apparently became the main locale for the footsore migrants. Situated just northeast of modern Cairo, it is now called Mataria, and is dotted with shrines marking the passage of Joseph and his family — the sycamore tree where they rested, a spring where Mary bathed her child and washed their clothing.

As a woodworker, Joseph had trouble finding work, since in that almost treeless, rainless land, firm wood is scarce. Besides that particular handicap, there were everywhere more workers than work — the numberless fellahen.

But it is said he eventually got employment for a time building coffins for a burying ground at Deir el Muharrak.

According to stories circulated in that ancient land for nearly 2,000 years, the family moved about a great deal, to various towns, living sometimes alone, sometimes with others, in hovels and mansions, once with a wealthy widow, once with a wealthy benefactor named Eleazar.

The scene about them was the once powerful kingdom of the Pharaohs, which by then had become a vassal province of Rome, following Cleopatra's loss of her throne and suicide about 27 years earlier on Marc Antony's defeat at Actium. The atmosphere, however, remained Egyptian — the animal idols, the elaborate processions for "sacred bulls," the incantations, clattering chariots, magicians, oracles, the corps of perfumed temple women.

A man could buy a waxen image to protect himself from bites of snakes and scorpions, or to put a hex on an enemy.

But also it was a time of intellectual richness at Alexandria, the Greek and Roman-built coastal city, where the great Jewish philosopher, Philo, was developing his teachings about the "logos" — the divine intermediary among men, revealing God.

That concept later would be applied to the then ignored, unknown child-in-exile, Jesus. Writes St. John: "And the Word (logos) became flesh and dwelt among us."

In some of the Egyptian towns, there were Jewish communities, the diaspora of banishments and commerce. Heliopolis had a synagogue where Joseph and Mary are said to have worshipped.

Not far to the south of there loomed the Sphinx and a row of vast pyramids, laden tombs of mummies and gold.

In those environs, Jesus grew active, his wobbly legs gaining strength and balance. An ancient Coptic tale offers this description of him and his mother:

"She used to take hold of his hand and lead him along the roads, saying, 'My sweet son, walk a little ways' ... He stopped from time to time, hanging on the skirts of Mary, his mother ... He would lift up his eyes to her face, and she would catch him up to herself and lift him up in her arms, and walk along with him."

Other ancient stories picture him fishing in an oasis, laughing at some quarrelling sparrows, his mother walking through the city marketplace, the family sailing the Nile in a tall-masted boat, a felucca.

Once it is said, Mary stopped to calm a madwoman who stood along a road, naked and hurling stones at passersby.

Some of the legends are embroidered with fantasy and miracles, such as one about 365 idols falling when Jesus entered a temple. In many respects, however, the traditions are generally plausible. Some of them suggest that Joseph, a widower with four sons and two daughters before he wed Mary, had a younger son and daughter with him, whom Mary cared for along with Jesus.

They dwelt amid conditions that must have disturbed them and affected later family influences — in a land where the chief virtue was "ma'at" — conformity and obedience to the king-god, rather than righteousness. It was a subservient, resigned environment, of toiling serfs, where temple priesthoods owned much of the land and a large proportion of the slaves.

Accounts vary on how long the family stayed there — a year, three years, five years — but there are scenes of summer and winter, of tranquility and darkening dust storms. Some stories say Jesus was 7 before leaving Egypt, but the prevailing evidence is that he was past 3.

In any case, Joseph learned that Herod the Great, the tyrant who sought to destroy the boy, was dead. Joseph took his family and started back toward Israel, again crossing that wilderness where Moses, leading the exodus from Egyptian bondage, had passed through darkness, cloud and fog on Mount Sinai to meet God and his commandments.

Through similar obscuring mists came his further revelation, as told in prophecy: "Out of Egypt have I called my son."

Urge Farmville Views On DOT

FARMVILLE — The Farmville Town Commissioners adopted yesterday afternoon a resolution urging higher design of the Farmville Eastern Loop by the North Carolina Department of Transportation.

The Commissioners said they understand that the DOT is considering design and construction alternatives which "would lower the design and service level of the temporary segment of U. S. 264 south and east of Farmville."

The Board urged the DOT to design and construct the Eastern Loop to include "construction of a separate grade separation at the Southern Railway crossing, inclusion of a median design to maximize traffic safety and reinforce the community Land Use Plan, and construction of all four lanes to prevent traffic congestion and provide an adequate level of service."

The Board urged interested citizens, organizations and governments in the Farmville area and the region to express their views on the matter to the DOT prior to and during the upcoming public hearings.

During the same call meeting, the board issued a protest to ElectriCities about its decision to hold the 1980 ElectriCities Conference in Myrtle Beach, S. C. The members said they believe the conference should be held in North Carolina and that Farmville might not be represented if it is not held in "Variety Vacation Land."

He Deserves Small Hello

By Abigail Van Buren
1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: When I telephone a business executive, I expect HIM to answer the telephone. I don't want to waste my time telling some $700-a-month, coffee-break secretary who I am, and why I'm calling.

An executive who can't pick up the phone and say "Hello" shouldn't be an executive.

I once called someone and his secretary asked, "Who's calling?"

"I said, 'This is Kelly's Bar, and he has about $100 worth of tabs here, and I want to know when he's coming in to cover them.' (How did I know his secretary was his wife? It cost him a mink stole.)

So, all you big-shot executives out there, when someone calls you, pick up the phone and say "Hello." No more "Who's calling?"

BILL IN LONG BEACH

DEAR BILL: You rattled the wrong cage, mister. If I didn't have a secretary screening my calls, I'd never be able to answer my mail or write this column. And please don't begrudge a secretary her coffee break. She needs it after trying to deal with people like you!

DEAR ABBY: I'm engaged to a terrific gal, but Suzie and I don't see eye to eye on one small matter.

Last Saturday we had a date for a formal dinner dance at a private club. I rented a tuxedo, and Suzie said she was surprised with a neat new outfit she bought especially for the occasion.

When she came to the door, I was surprised, all right! Abby, she was wearing a TUXEDO—exactly like mine! I was speechless. I knew she was hurt, but I had to tell her the truth. I had bought her a corsage but it would have looked ridiculous on a tuxedo, so she left it home. I knew she wanted to wear the tux, so I didn't ask her to change into a dress.

Well, we went to the dance looking like a brother and sister act; she was the only female there in a tuxedo. I was uncomfortable all evening, but she thought she looked great. Anyway, I felt funny dancing with someone who was dressed like me.

Am I old-fashioned? I wonder how many other men feel as I do.

ONE TUX IS ENOUGH

DEAR ONE TUX: Some women look great in tuxedos, and it's fashionable, but I'll wager that most men prefer a more feminine look for a formal affair.

DEAR ABBY: The 31-year-old divorcee who has one child and wants another said she had no husband or boyfriend, but considered asking some guy to "do her a favor" and father her child. I'm glad you told her to scrap the idea. She's a fool. But any guy who'd consent to granting her the "favor" would be a bigger fool.

When her baby is born, it will cost money. As the child grows, the costs increase. When she needs money, she will ask for it. When her request is refused, she will apply for welfare. When she goes on welfare, the state will file a paternity suit. When paternity is declared, the father's wages will be garnished. When his paycheck doesn't come, his wife will discover the whole affair.

I'm not just guessing. I know, because it happened to me. That one "favor" has cost me $10,000 so far, and I'll be paying for it for another 15 years!

Vienna Ball Set For Early Summer

Miss Nathalie Elizabeth Pate Johnson of Greenville has been invited to make her debut at the Ball des Rosenkavaliers.

The invitation was issued by the American and European Committees. The ball is set for June 26, 1980, in the Palais Schwarzenberg, Vienna, Austria.

The ball presents American debutants to European society. Approximately 25 American girls will bow at the social event.

Mrs. Robert Stith Williams Jr. of New York, general chairperson of the ball, is also chairperson of the New York Debutante Assembly and the New Year's Ball held at the Plaza Hotel each Jan. 1. Prince Willy von Thurn und Taxis of Vienna is secretary general of the European Committee.

Miss Johnson will be presented by her father, Dr. F. Milam Johnson. She was presented this year by her father at the New York Debutante Assembly and New Year's Ball.

Miss Johnson is a senior at St. Mary's College, Raleigh. Her parents reside in Greenville and Raleigh.

Another Resource For State

North Carolina is a great forestry state, with its products going to the building and pulp industries and other areas.

There may be another use for this vast and renewable natural resource. The state produces enough wood to meet industrial and commercial energy needs.

It was predicted by Larry McGee of the Forest Resources Division of the N. C. Department of Natural Resources and Community Development that use of forest products by industry would allow 30 million barrels of oil each year to be diverted to other uses.

McGee spoke to a legislative commission studying gasohol.

The wood products could be converted to alcohol which when mixed with ten percent gasoline can be used as a fuel. It is possible, too, that wood waste can be burned to produce heat for boilers and other applications.

The technology has yet to be worked out, but it is clear there are great possibilities for forestry products to help with our energy problems.

North Carolina stands ready to be a leader in this area.

Panama's Role Should Be Considered

The Shah is gone.

In the strange ways of the diplomatic world the deposed Shah of Iran wound up in Panama, after being refused permission to return from the United States to Mexico.

Interestingly, U.S. and Panamanian relations have not always been of the best, but there has been a marked improvement since the canal treat-ty was negotiated.

It remains to be seen whether the shah's departure will help in efforts to free the U.S. hostages being held in Iran. Regardless of the outcome in Iran, Panama's assistance in this complicated international matter should be appreciated in our country.

Scott Seeking Attention

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Bob Scott bristles at the notion that his biting criticism of Gov. Jim Hunt is either knee-jerk reaction or prompted by personal animosity.

It is deliberate strategy orchestrated carefully to get the public's attention. Or, as the former governor who likes to remind listeners of his farm heritage, it's like the two-by-four you use on a mule: first, you got to get his attention.

Scott also takes brisk exception with those who say his tactics will split the Democratic Party asunder and lead to such bitter bloodletting that the survivor will have a more difficult time come the November general elections.

"Will the campaign be disruptive? History shows that the Democratic candidate does better in the fall elections when we have had a good primary. The battle builds interest and excitement, and most importantly it defines the issues.

"There wouldn't be any issues in the primary next year without a strong challenge," Scott says.

Issues

What are the issues likely to be? It is still too early to come down strongly on specifics, Scott feels, but as the campaign develops he expects widespread taxpayer concern over local property tax rates and the mandatory revaluation procedure to come to the fore.

In the public schools, he foresees much concern over the way classroom teachers are overburdened with supervisors and forms and rules and regulations to the detriment of teaching youngsters.

On the state's highways, he sees the matter becoming an effort to resolve whether people want to pay more taxes to build more roads, or to just maintain what we have. "It's a matter of money," Scott says.

But those and other issues will develop only as the campaign intensifies in coming months. Meanwhile, Scott thinks his most important task right now is to establish in the public mind the idea that Jim Hunt can be beaten.

"The potential is out there. It remains to be seen if I have the skill to put it together. I am now in the process of destroying the myth that Jim Hunt can't be beat.

"Up till now he has been the only one on the field. So the polls show him extremely popular and far ahead. Now, there are two of us on the field. He's got no way to go but down; I've got no way to go but up," Scott thinks.

BILL NOBLITT

A key element, he is convinced, will be a difference in style. Hunt's popularity stems from not offending, but that means not taking a firm stand; making politically popular decisions, Scott says.

Bluntly

"I tend to answer questions — to say what I think. And that gets me in political troubles sometimes.

"But I accept the blame if things go wrong, and credit if it goes well. I don't try to shift the blame to somebody else."

Hunt won't act unless it is politically expedient to do so, while Scott makes decisions and moves, the former governor argues. A case in point: The Greensboro shootout between Klansmen and Nazis and the Communist Party Workers. Hunt was on a trip to Japan and China, and upon returning stopped off to make speeches before arriving in Raleigh.

"I would have taken the first plane home. Taking the trip is all right ... you can't foresee emergencies. But with both the governor and lieutenant governor out of the country — well, I would have come straight home", Scott complains.

OH, MR. PRESIDENT--HOW ABOUT RESCUING US!

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Lingering Consequences

WASHINGTON — Abraham Lincoln told the story of the Eastern monarch who asked his wise men to provide him with one sentence that would be true and appropriate in all times and situations. This was their sentence: "And this, too, shall pass away."

The incredible events of the past six weeks in Iran in time will pass away, but they will be a long time passing and it is vital that we learn something from this wretched experience. Let me venture a few reflections both general and particular.

The United States, as a great power, should not aspire to be loved by mankind; we should aspire only to be respected. Toward that end, we ought constantly to re-examine those aspects of power that are likely to win respect. The lords of Scotland understood this long ago. They emblazoned their shields with a warning too clear ever to be misunderstood: Nemo me impune lacessit. No one assails me with impunity.

The time for the United States to have taken a measured, punitive response against Iran was not in November, when the hostages were seized. It was in February, when our embassy first was violated by a mob. The ensuing months were months of conciliation — we would send food, we would even send heating oil — and the efforts were seen as signs of weakness, not of strength.

We must learn from this recent history, or we are doomed to repeat it. No matter what fate ultimately befalls the hostages, we must not flinch from the imposition of what Mr. Carter several times has described as "grave consequences." It is almost immaterial, in this regard, whether some or all of the hostages are expelled, imprisoned or executed. The Republic of Iran has engaged in willful acts of war against the United States; our territory has been invaded, our nationals have been imprisoned and degraded; our property has been destroyed. At the appropriate time, if our country is to regain some measure of the respect that has been lost, these willful and outrageous acts must be punished. No ransoms can be paid; no deals can be struck. Whatever form our retaliation may take, whether military or economic, there must be no mistaking its purpose. Our purpose is the Scottish purpose, to fix an example, and to make it stick.

I am not suggesting that we undertake to wipe out the oil fields of Iran with nuclear weapons, or that we bomb this contemptible enemy back to the Stone Age. The cannily mad ayatollah might not find that prospect too alarming. Response must be measured; it must be appropriate; but it cannot be a mere token response. We assume the indefinite severing of diplomatic relations, the expulsion of all Iranian diplomats from the United States, the cessation of every commercial relationship — such gestures are taken for granted. There must be more.

If our allies will join us in the imposition of grave consequences, so much the better. If not, we must go it alone. And in the process, having learned something of our enemies, perhaps we will also learn something of our friends.

Avoid 'Lead' Image

By JAMES GERSTENZANG

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — In the convoluted world of pre-primary politics, it seems better to be down than up. With a little luck, the self-proclaimed underdog can say, once the votes are counted, that he did better than expected.

So, President Carter's campaign chiefs are going through a period of what one called "building perceptions" in the contest for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Perception-building, as played every four years in Washington, involves creating impressions about how your candidate and his opponents will do in the political tests each faces.

At the heart of perception-building are predictions that your campaign will not do as well as the opponent's in a primary election, or contentions that a victory isn't important.

The campaign of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, Carter's leading challenger for the nomination, has done some perception-building of its own. In a recent interview, Kennedy said that Carter was "clearly" the front-runner in the nomination race. In other words, he, Kennedy, was the underdog.

And last week, the Massachusetts senator said he was not surprised that public opinion polls show a dramatic rise in approval of Carter's job performance since the start of the Iranian crisis.

Robert Strauss and Timothy Kraft, the chiefs of the Carter-Mondale Presidential Committee, spent an hour Monday with a group of Washington columnists and reporters, offering as little as possible that might come back to haunt them in the next few months of primary elections.

Strauss, who has taken part in this exercise for several campaign seasons, led the journalists down the paths of finances, strategy and campaign themes. He encountered no dead ends.

After one series of questions, Strauss, exasperated, said: "I don't know where the hell we'll be next March. You'll make me eat my words."

On finances, Strauss said Carter was doing well — $6 million in contributions, $4 mil-

INSIDE REPORT

The Anxious Oil Kingdom

By ROWLAND EVANS

and ROBERT NOVAK
RIYADH, Saudi Arabia — Behind genuine sympathy for the U.S. in its Iranian agony and public endorsement of President Carter's tactics, there is this consensus among Saudi leaders: What has happened in Tehran is further evidence that Uncle Sam is on the run, retreating throughout the world.

They view this not with maliciousness but with alarm. This underpopulated, fabulously rich kingdom of incalculable strategic importance is in an anxious mood. While all Saudis from taxi drivers to princes were stunned when the Grand Mosque in Mecca was attacked by religious fanatics, leaders here also were shaken when their supposedly client state of North Yemen made an arms deal with Moscow.

Those two unwelcome surprises intensify a long-term sense of peril. Outflanked by radical Arab governments now that the shah of Iran is no longer there as a well-armed balancing force, Saudi Arabia approaches a decade when the Soviet Union will become a net energy importer and will be casting eyes on Saudi oil.

The strength and will of Washington, therefore, are vital to Riyadh. That in turn leads to ambivalence here over Carter's management of the Iranian crisis.

Except for dismay over freezing Iran's assets, there is no criticism of specific U.S. decisions. Rather, Saudis are relieved that precipitous military action did not inflame all of Islam against their American friends.

The ambivalence is expressed quietly in apprehension over what the Iranian crisis suggests the president might do if this nation's fate were at stake. We all watch developments in Tehran, one member of the Saudi government's inner circle confided to us. And we wonder whether he (Carter) will act firmly when the time requires it.

The doubt stems from dissatisfaction here with Carter's foreign policy. All Saudi officials begin with the grievance that the president has reneged on his commitment to a Palestinian homeland. But less publicly, there is a laundry list of complaints (particularly among the Saudi military) about U.S. policies not related to Israel: Angola, Taiwan, the Horn (Cape of Africa) — and, of course, Iran.

Whatever Saudi troubles were with the shah, he is yearned for in comparison with Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini (described privately by one Saudi prince as fanatical, vindictive, senile). The overriding question: Are Khomeini's preachments finding fertile soil in Saudi Arabia?

There is no doubt of the mullahs' impact in the oil-producing Eastern Province, heavy with Shi'ite Moslems attracted to Khomeini's claimed international leadership of the sect. Recent unpublicized demonstrations there by Shi'ites (some carrying machine pistols) drew a quick response from the National Guard, the Bedouin light infantry brought in to replace the police. The guardsmen opened fire, and some 15 demonstrators died.

This had no direct connection with the attack in Mecca by extremists belonging to the country's Sunni Moslem majority, except for reflecting the magnetism throughout the region of Islamic fundamentalism, particularly among youth. That the world's most conservative social system is attacked by militants seeking a return to the 14th century is viewed by the regime as an aberration not likely to be repeated.

Yet, there are two disturbing elements. First, some National Guardsmen, including a few officers, belonged to the Mecca terrorist band. Second, if the Mecca onslaught took Saudi intelligence by surprise, how can anybody be

40 Years Ago Today

Tuesday, December 18, 1939

The Ice Follies of 1940 are perhaps the most spectacular sport shows developed in recent years. Combining beauty and grace with daring and borrowing attraction features from the ballet, burlesque, vaudeville, acrobatics and the musical comedy, the producers build shows that ring the bell at every stop on their nation-wide winter tours.

It has come to our attention that the State Highway Commission is giving consideration to either widening the present Greenville-Farmville Highway or hardsurfacing an alternate route by the way of the old Stantonburg Road. It seems to us that of the two proposals, the new highway would be preferable because it would make better roads available to persons not now living on the hardsurface road and would greatly diminish the traffic on the present highway.

Strength For Today

KNOWING THE SHEPHERD

Many years ago at a banquet given in London to honor a well-known actor, the suggestion was made that the actor recite for the guests. The actor agreed to recite the Twenty-third Psalm in company with an aged minister who was present. The actor would recite the first part of each couplet, and the minister would then finish the couplet. They would thereby dramatize the Hebrew poetic style.

When the two finished there was tremendous applause. Waving this aside, the actor pointed to the minister and said, "I know the Twenty-third Psalm; this man knows the shepherd."

In similar relationship to these two men, some people know the facts of religion, while other people have religion itself. The ideal, of course, is to be found in the person who both understands the theological background of religion and has the spirit which religion infuses into the hearts of believers.

House Also Inflation-Hedge

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The house in the 1970s wasn't just a man's castle. It also was his hedge against inflation, his savings, his tax break, his investment, the hope for his children's education and his retirement.

Single-family homeowners now have an equity of more than $1.5 trillion in more than 55 million units, or $28,000 per unit, compared with 1970 figures of $65 billion on 46.8 million units, or $14,000 per unit.

Prices changed. The median sale price of existing single-family homes in 1970 was $23,000. The National Association of Realtors found a median of $56,000, 143.5 percent higher, in 1979.

New home prices rose even faster. Commerce Department figures show the typical single-family home sold for $23,400 in the first year of the decade, and about $64,200 in the last, a difference of 174 percent.

Postwar babies, the population surge that began after World War II and which earlier had changed education, art and politics, had a lot to do with it.

"These were new buyers," explained a real estate analyst. "They didn't sell one home to buy another. They were brand new demand." They demanded singles, duplexes, apartments, mobiles, coops, condos.

In the decade of the 1970s the housing stock of the country grew by 15 million units, from 67.7 million to 82.8 million, despite the loss of roughly a half-million old units a year, mostly in inner cities.

Inflation spurred the boom, among other things forcing renters to seek a piece of the action, to buy their own home rather than continue to pay ever-higher rents. Even the swinging singles joined in. Owning a home, people found, was indeed a hedge, with median prices year after year rising more than inflation in general, often as much as 25 percent or 30 percent more.

In mid-1979, the consumer price index was growing at a 13.2 percent annual rate, but existing single-family homes had risen 17.2 percent in the preceding 12 months. All gain, said owners.

The picture is changed as the decade ends. The prices and financing bear little resemblance to those of the 1970s. Some talk fearfully of a coming price deflation, others of more inflation.

AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — It was not politics as usual in 1979 — a year in which a woman became prime minister of England and others of her sex were challenging the "For Men Only" tradition in government leadership all over the globe.

When Margaret Thatcher and the Conservative Party swept to victory in Britain's general election, she became the first woman to be prime minister in any European country. The new resident at No. 10 Downing Street in London is a 53-year-old Oxford-educated chemist and lawyer.

In the United States, another political first was scored when Jane M. Byrne was elected first woman mayor of Chicago. Mrs. Byrne, 44-year-old Democrat, took over the running of the nation's second largest city after winning a landslide victory.

Maria de Lourdes Pintasilgo joined Mrs. Thatcher as a European government head when she was named first woman prime minister of Portugal. The 49-year-old chemical engineer and diplomat is a longtime feminist.

Bolivia got its first woman chief of state in 154 years of independence when Lidia Gueiler, 51, was selected by the country's congress to serve as interim president until an election next May.

Simone Veil of France was elected president of the 410-member European Parliament. The 52-year-old champion of liberal abortion laws and women's rights served as health minister of France for five years before being elected to the parliament of the nine-nation European Common Market.

And in this country, President Carter nominated 54-year-old Judge Shirley Mount Hufstедler, of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 9th Circuit, as Secretary of the new Department of Education.

Janet L. Norwood, 55, a former economics professor named commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, became the first woman to hold the top post in the agency's 95-year history.

A Denver lawyer and former deputy attorney general, Jean Eberhart Dubofsky, 37, was appointed the first woman Supreme Court justice in the 103-year history of Colorado.

Not only in government, but in other fields, women were still breaking barriers.

For the first time in its 300-year existence, the French Academy of Sciences elected a woman as a full-fledged member. Physicist Yvonne Choquet-Bruhat, 55, was honored by the prestigious academy for her studies of Einstein's theory of relativity, the dynamics of fluids and the links between gravitational and electro-magnetic fields.

Betsy Ancker-Johnson, former assistant secretary of commerce for science and technology, was elected the first female vice president of General Motors Corp. Dr. Ancker-Johnson, 51, is in charge of the company's environmental activities staff.

Joining her a few months later as a GM executive was Marina von Neumann Whitman, named chief economist of that company and also a vice president. Dr. Whitman, 44, is a former White House economic adviser.

At American Motors Corp., Dr. Patricia Shontz Longe, professor of business administration at the University of Michigan Graduate School of Business Administration, became the first woman to be elected to that company's board of directors.

Beverly Sills, 50, former prima donna of the Metropolitan Opera, took over as new director of the New York City Opera.

When she was named eadet regimental commander at the U.S. Coast Guard Academy, Cadet 1st Class Linda Johansen, 21-year-old senior, became the first woman to command an entire cadet corps at any of the nation's four service academies. There are 83 women among the total student body of 817 at the Academy in New London, Conn.

Lt. j.g. Beverly Kelley at 26 became the first woman in history to command a U.S. military vessel. She assumed duties as commanding officer of a Coast Guard cutter, the 95-foot Cape Newagen, which has a 14-member, all-male crew.

Just two months later, a second woman — 25-year-old Lt. j.g. Susan Ingalls — took over as skipper of another U.S. Coast Guard cutter, the Cape Current, with a 13-member, all-male crew.

On another waterfront, women were adding a new word to the vocabulary of labor: longshorewoman. The first ever allowed to work as dock hands on New York City's piers proved they could handle a forklift as deftly as a fork.

Ten years after women were first admitted to Yale University, and for the first time in the 101 years the Yale Daily News has been published, a woman took over the editorship. The editor-in-chief is Anne Gardner Perkins, a 20-year-old junior from Baltimore, a history major.

Cathleen Black, appointed publisher of New York magazine, at 35 became the nation's first woman publisher of a major weekly magazine.

Jean Otto, editor of the oped page of the Milwaukee Journal, became the first woman president of the Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi, which started admitting women only a decade ago.

And Beth Slocum, a reporter for the Journal, was elected president of the Milwaukee Press Club, the first woman in that post in the 94-year history of the club, which first accepted women members in 1971.

Being one of the few women ordained as rabbis is a novelty in itself, but Rabbi Linda Joy Holzman is also the first woman in the nation to be the presiding rabbi of a temple. The spiritual leader of the Beth Israel congregation in Coatesville, Pa., is a 1979 graduate of the Reconstructionist Rabbinc-

Tax Break?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has approved a federal income tax break that would allow couples to exempt up to $402 a year in income from interest on savings accounts and stock dividends.

Meanwhile Monday, the House approved a bill that would allow interest-paying checking-type accounts to continue nationwide for at least three more months.

The tax break — $201 a year for single persons — was approved as an amendment to the Senate version of the "windfall-profits" tax bill, which is headed for a House-Senate conference committee.

The amendment has broad support in the House, and likely will become law despite opposition from the Carter administration.

Theologian Is Discredited

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican removed Professor Hans Kung, one of Western Europe's leading liberal theologians, from his teaching post in West Germany today and declared he can no longer be considered a Roman Catholic theologian.

In a statement approved by Pope John Paul II, the Vatican's Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, the former Holy Office, said Kung has fallen short in his writings "of the integrity of the truth of the Catholic faith and therefore he can no longer be considered a Catholic theologian nor exercise his teaching task."

Kung, a 51-year-old native of Switzerland, had been professor of dogmatic and ecumenical theology and Director of the Institute for Ecumenical Research at the University of Tuebingen since 1963.

He was one of three liberal European theologians under investigation by the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, investigations which aroused concern in liberal quarters of the church that the pope was throwing his influence behind ultra-conservative factions in the Vatican Curia, the central administration of the church.

However, the announcement today claimed that the cases of Kung and the other two, Edward Schillebeeckx and Jacques Tohier, were independent of each other.

Schillebeeckx underwent two days of questioning by a commission from the Congregation last week on his views, which some conservative churchmen charge lean toward heresy.

Early this month, the Vatican Radio said the views of Kung, Belgian-born Schillebeeckx and Dutch-born Edward Schoonenberg were almost heretical. It said that the three theologians questioned the main pillar of Roman Catholic doctrine, that Jesus is man and God at the same time.

The criticism came in an interview with a leading Jesuit theologian, Jean Galot, who compared the teachings of the three men to Arianism, the heresy started by Arius, a priest in the 4th century, which spread throughout the Christian world of the time.

Vatican sources said then that Pope John Paul had examined the case of the three theologians with a top official of the Vatican-based International Theological Commission.

Given A Week To Resume Jobs

PIKETON, Ohio (AP) — Officials at the nation's only enriched uranium plant say workers will be given a week to return to their jobs now that a seven-week strike has ended.

The walkout by 1,500 members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers union Local 3-689 at the Goodyear Atomic Corp. plant did not halt operations because the facility is automated, officials said. The plant produces enriched uranium for use in nuclear weapons.

The workers began returning to work Monday, after approving on Sunday a new contract which calls for pay raises of 21 percent over three years.

Enthusiasm Is To Be Shared

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP) — Enthusiasm for sports was meant to be shared, says Felix "Buttys" Tavern, who for 66 of his 78 years has been leading cheers for almost any crowd he can find.

Tavern doesn't limit his cheering to athletic events. During a lecture appearance in 1978 at Lake Superior State College, Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., was startled when Tavern jumped onto the speaker's platform and called for the crowd to give him 15 "rahs."

Tavern has become a fixture at basketball and football games in the Sault Ste. Marie area of Michigan's Upper Peninsula, where he roams the sidelines, urging the crowds on for the home teams.

"The louder you holler, the better the teams play," Tavern explains. "I get them all going real good."

His cheerleading talents have attracted so much attention in Sault Ste. Marie that last spring the city commission designated him the "official and professional cheerleader of the ancient and honorable city of Sault Ste. Marie."

lion in expenditures — and suggested that the Kennedy campaign was not as well off as the senator's team asserted.

Kennedy reportedly just cornered $2.5 million in a week of fund-raisers, but Strauss, asserting there might be a gap between what was claimed and what actually was raised, said: "I'd like to have the difference to live on."

Kilpatrick Col. ...

Am I saying, "No more Mr. Nice Guy"? That is exactly what I am saying. There is, of course, a place in foreign affairs for compassion, for aid to the poor and destitute, for the giving and receiving of courtesies that are traditional among civilized nations. Great powers must behave greatly. But great powers will cease to be great powers, and must inevitably decline, if they forsake the iron fist that a velvet glove conceals.

I do not mean to rattle sabers; I mean to use them. It is no act of wisdom — it is an act of pure and dangerous folly — to present an image of power without will. To threaten grave consequences, and then to draw back from imposing them, is the surest guarantee one could ask that provocations will recur.

Mr. Carter merits praise for his handling of the Iranian affair — that is to say, for his handling of the affair thus far. He has displayed patience, coolness, steadfastness. He has not panicked. Given the appalling circumstances and the limited options available to him, he has performed admirably. He has concentrated on the problem of the hostages. That, too, will pass. After it has passed, we must ask the president, what then?

sure this will not be repeated?

On top of this comes North Yemen's arms deal with Moscow, after earlier this year receiving U.S. arms (at Saudi urging) to cope with aggression by Marxist South Yemen. Saudi officials made clear to us they cannot tolerate the entire Yemen unified under communist control, whether by conquest or alliance.

Western military observers believe Saudi troops, particularly National Guard units modernized under U.S. Army guidance, would make short work of the Yemeni. But a country of only 4.5 to 5 million Saudis (out of a total population of 8 million) has restricted military options. There is not even a contingency for coping with leftist Iraq's huge army.

Prudent use of the Saudi treasury for community development can mollify the Shi'ite minority and certainly prevent a Saudi revolutionary climate on the Iranian model. But failure of subsidies to develop a steadfast ally in North Yemen points to the limits of even unmeasured wealth. Nor can money satisfy the Russian bear's oil lust in the 1980s. Only the U.S. alliance can ultimately protect Saudi oil, and that is why Jimmy Carter's performance on Iran is watched with anxiety from Riyadh.

CONTROL YOUR DEBTS

If your present bills, because of economic pressures, cannot be met by your income, legal relief may be available to you under the provisions of Chapter 13 of the Bankruptcy Reform Act of 1978, which permits individuals to petition the Court for an arrangement allowing a thirty-six month period to discharge indebtedness, without property repossession or creditor harassment. Attorney's fees, which may be paid in monthly installments, are determined by the Court. There is no fee for an initial conference to discuss your eligibility for a "Wage Earner Plan".

And, In Sports, Women Athletes Setting Records

In sports, too, 1979 was a year of triumphs and firsts, with women setting records and starting to attract the kind of national interest and media attention formerly reserved for male athletes.

Joan Benoit, 21, topped the women's division of the Boston Marathon, setting a record for women there of 2 hours, 35 minutes, 15 seconds. It was the second marathon the Brunswick, Maine, Bowdoin College senior had ever run.

In a 10,000-meter (6.2-mile) run in New York's Central Park, Grete Waitz set a women's world record for the distance of 31 minutes 15.4 seconds in the L'eggs Mini Marathon. The 25-year-old Mrs. Waitz is a schoolteacher in Oslo, Norway.

Later on in the year, she became the first woman to run a marathon in under 2 hours, 30 minutes, when she finished the New York City Marathon in 2:27:33, breaking her own world record from the previous year of 2:32:30.

Still another record was set by a 16-year-old during the Amateur Athletic Union national indoor track and field championships in New York's Madison Square Garden. Canzetta Young of Beaver Falls, Pa., set a world indoor record in the women's 60-yard high hurdles in 7.50 seconds.

In the same meet, Chris Shea recorded an indoor record of 6 minutes 58.9 seconds in the women's one-mile walk, the first time a woman had walked the mile under 7 minutes. And Evelyn Ashford registered a world indoor best in the 60-yard dash with 6.71 seconds.

Nancy Lieberman, 20-year-old Queens, N.Y., junior at Old Dominion University, who led her school to the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women championship, received the second annual Lily Margaret Wade trophy as best woman collegiate basketball player in the nation.

At Wimbledon, Martina Navratilova won her second consecutive title in the women's singles. The 22-year-old Czechoslovakian tennis star, who defeated the United States four years ago, defeated 24-year-old Chris Evert Lloyd, the 1974 and 1976 titleholder.

Billie Jean King and Navratilova captured the women's doubles crown, a win that brought the 35-year-old Mrs. King a record 20th Wimbledon championship. Her victory followed by less than 24 hours the death of 87-year-old Elizabeth Ryan, with whom she had shared the record of 19 wins since 1973.

Later in the year Tracy Austin returned to classes at Rolling Hills, Calif., High School after beating Lloyd, to become the youngest singles champion in U.S. Open history. "I don't think about being the youngest, just about the champion part," said the 16-year-old tennis whiz.

Defying powerful currents, jellyfish and sharks, Diana Nyad became the first person to swim from the Bahamas to Florida. The 30-year-old marathon swimmer from New York completed the endurance test in 27 hours, 38 minutes, covering more than the 60-mile straight

Race Relations Hearing Planned In Greensboro

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Saying race relations have suffered a setback in Greensboro, the North Carolina Advisory Committee to the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights has scheduled a public hearing for Feb. 26 on civil rights and race relations in the city.

The committee Monday described race relations as being in a tailspin in the city since the Nov. 3 shooting deaths of five Communist Workers Party members.

The five died after gunfire erupted at an anti-Klu Klux Klan rally in one of the city's predominantly black neighborhoods. Fourteen men are scheduled to go on trial next month

Nuclear Plant Site Abandoned

WESTBORO, Mass. (AP) — New England Power Co. says it has dropped its plans to build a nuclear power plant at an abandoned naval auxiliary landing field in Charlestown, R.I., although it still believes the "property is the best remaining site ... in southern New England and should have been kept available for future development."

The company said Monday it had decided not to continue legal action to acquire the landing field. The General Services Administration ruled the site could not be used due to environmental and legal considerations, and the company's appeal of that decision was dismissed by a federal court earlier this month.

WINNING WAYS—Grete Waitz, Oslo, Norway, schoolteacher, set new records in the L'eggs Mini Marathon in New York's Central Park and in the New York City Marathon.

distance because of the fast-flowing Gulf Stream.

Two women sports stars took time out from winning tournaments to star in wedding ceremonies: Tennis player Chris Evert, 24, married British tennis player John Lloyd, also 24; and supergolfer Nancy Lopez, 22, exchanged vows with television sportscaster Tim Melton, 29.

Susan Ford, 21, daughter of former president Gerald Ford, exchanged marriage vows with Charles Vance, 37, a Secret Service agent she fell in love with when he guarded the Ford family.

in the case. Eleven are charged with murder and rioting while three are charged with rioting only.

Many of those charged in the killings are self-proclaimed Nazis and Klansmen.

The committee scheduled the hearing after questioning Jim Wright, director of the Greensboro Human Rights Commission, and George Simpkins, president of the Greensboro chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Wright told the committee that race relations in Greensboro are "questionable" and received "a setback" from the shootings. Simpkins said the deaths "didn't make race relations any worse" and could, in fact, help improve them.

"Obviously race relations in Greensboro have taken a tailspin," said Bobby Doctor, the Atlanta-based regional director for the commission. "If the situation is as bad as some people would have us believe, the President and Congress need to know."

Doctor said the federal commission will begin a nationwide investigation of the Klan and Nazis, and the advisory committee will begin to "monitor" the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Justice Department in connection with the shootings.

A second anti-Klan demonstration is scheduled to be held in Greensboro on Feb. 2. Doctor predicted it will be "very large." Organizations from across the nation — including civil rights, labor, legal, religious groups as well as others who have supported civil rights demonstrations in the past — will be invited to march, he said.

Another bride who wed her bodyguard was Patty Hearst, 25, who married 33-year-old Bernard Shaw. He was one of her personal bodyguards when she was free on bail during the years following her kidnapping and subsequent imprisonment for taking part in the armed robbery of a California bank.

Though she would have been eligible for parole in July, President Carter commuted her sentence early in the year. She had served 22 months of a seven-year term.

The bride and groom were not famous, but their wedding got a good deal of press coverage. Vittoria Ianni, 22, and Mario Maltese, 24, were married in the Vatican's Pauline Chapel by Pope John Paul II. The Pope was keeping a promise he made to the sales clerk in a Rome souvenir shop that he would officiate at her wedding.

So much for the good news of 1979.

On the other hand, the number of states ratifying the Equal Rights Amendment remained at 35, three short of the number needed.

With Congress last year having extended the deadline for passage to June 1982, the National Organization for Women served notice at its 12th annual conference that it would push harder to influence legislators in states that have refused to ratify, and to help elect those who support it.

For the first time in the nation's history, more women have jobs than do not have, according to the U.S. Department of Labor. But, on the average, women earn 59 cents for every dollar earned by a man.

Among findings of studies sponsored by the Carnegie Corp.: median weekly income of women full-time workers was 73 percent of men's pay in professional and technical jobs and 45 percent in sales jobs. Median income for women college graduates was $10,861 while male counterparts earned $17,891.

Women are 2.3 percent of executives earning $25,000 or more annually, 6.4 percent of construction workers, 2.1 percent of locomotive engineers, 3.4 percent of surgeons and 5 percent of the managers, proprietors and officials earning more than $10,000 annually.

According to the report, "The rate of occupational segregation by sex is exactly as great today as it was at the turn of the century, if not greater."

Deaths during the year included:

Mamie Eisenhower, 82, widow of Dwight D. Eisenhower, 34th president of the United States. She was buried beside him in a small chapel on the grounds of the Eisenhower Library in Abilene, Kan.

Marjorie Lawrence, 71, Wagnerian soprano who made a comeback after being paralyzed by polio in 1941; Elizabeth Hadley Mowrer, 89, first wife of Ernest Hemingway; Jean Stafford, 63, Pulitzer Prize-winning short-story writer and novelist; Dolores Costello, 73, third wife of John Barrymore and one-time stage and film star.

Marvella Bayh, 46, wife of Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., of cancer, a subject on which she spoke extensively as a special representative for the American Cancer Society; Minerva Pious, 75, who played "Mrs. Nussbaum" on the Fred Allen radio show in the 1930s and 1940s; Barbara Hutten, 66, Woolworth heiress.

Mary Pickford, 86, who reigned as America's Sweetheart during the early days of movies; Helen Van Slyke, 59, businesswoman who turned author of best selling romantic fiction at the age of 50; Cornelia Otis Skinner, 78, actress and playwright; Kathryn O'Hay Granahan, 83, former U.S. Treasurer; Corinne Griffith, 73, silent films star and author of several books.

Vivian Vance, 66, actress best known for her role in the "I Love Lucy" television series; Sally Rand, 75, who made headlines at the 1933 Chicago World's Fair with her fan dance; Gracie Fields, 81, British singer and actress; Marilyn J. McCusker, 35, a coal miner who was the first woman to be killed while working in a U.S. mine; Merle Oberon, 68, star of more than 30 movies.

A Change of Color?

Since the Susan B. Anthony dollar first appeared last July, about 300 million of the coins have gone into circulation. But because the dollar is only a little larger than a quarter, banks have had trouble getting people to use the new coin. To solve that problem, the U.S. Bureau of the Mint is looking into ways to change the dollar's color, to make it more distinguishable from other coins. Any new metal alloy used to change the Anthony coin's color must be durable. It must also tarnish in ways that will not seriously disfigure the coin. Tests on possible new alloys will continue into early next year.

Hens
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) (NCDA) — The North Carolina hen market was lower on heavy top hens. Supply adequate. Demand light. The price paid per pound for hens over seven pounds, at farm, Monday and Tuesday slaughter, 14 to 17 cents, mostly 16 to 17 cents.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed in active trading today, running into some resistance after a month-long rally.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which closed Monday more than 40 points above its early-November lows, edged up another .26 to 844.88 in the first half hour today.

But losers took a slight lead over gainers in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The OPEC membership was reported split between moderates, led by Saudi Arabia, calling for no further price increases beyond those posted in the past week, and militants pressing for higher levels.

Analysts also noted some pickup in selling by traders after the market's steady advance in recent weeks.

Continental Corp. led the active list in early trading, unchanged at 28 1/4. A 134,100-share block changed hands at that price.

On Monday the Dow Jones industrial average gained 1.87 to 844.82.

Advances outnumbered declines by a 5-4 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 43.83 million shares, against 41.80 million in the previous session. The NYSE's composite index rose .26 to 62.61.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 3.54 at 244.15, hitting a record high for the fourth straight session.

Rev. Houston Guest Speaker For Program

The Rev. Lawrence P. Houston was guest speaker at the Christmas Adult Basic Education Program held at St. Gabriel's Catholic Church Thursday.

Rev. Houston, acknowledging the program theme, "Ring the Bells for ABE," said one should ring the bells, not only for ABE, but for everything that is worthwhile. He said people should use their talents to do better things in life for themselves and their families. Christmas meditations and musical selections were given by several class members and others were asked to express themselves. In an effort to use every possible approach to publicize the January 7 public hearing, the school board approved a motion that each student take home a mimeographed copy of the seven study plans with information added about the date, place and time of the public hearing.

Also, interested persons will be provided packets of the detailed correlating information which has been prepared on each plan. This gets into the actual black-white percentages of students (based on this year's school figures) applicable to each class, each grade, and each school and runs into dozens of pages.

These packets will be available at the Central Office or from the principal of each elementary school. The public is reminded that if individuals want these before the holidays, it will be necessary to get them before 4 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 20 at the schools and before 5 p.m. Thursday at the Central Office. The central office and schools will reopen on the morning of January 2 January 2.

Church Wreaths Are Returned

Two Christmas wreaths, apparently stolen from the doors of the First Christian Church here last Thursday, have reappeared as mysteriously as they disappeared.

The church pastor, the Rev. Will Wallace, said the wreaths, missing five days, were carefully placed beside the front doors some time during last night or the early morning hours of today. "We're very happy our wreath-snatcher has had second thoughts," Rev. Wallace said. "We'd like to say to him or her, all is forgiven. Go and sin no more."

To Host Session

The Pitt County Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People will host the 1981 state-wide meeting of the NAACP.

The announcement was made this morning by D. D. Garrett, president, following a final decision by the executive committee of the Pitt County Branch last night.

Garrett said the branch has received letters from the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce, the Pitt County Board of Commissioners, and the City of Greenville expressing support for the convention plans.

Carolyn Gorham and Willie Mae Carney were appointed co-chairpersons of a committee responsible for planning the convention.

Express Mail Can Help Late Shopper

Express Mail can get gifts to their destination by Christmas Day for the last-minute shopper. A package mailed by 3:30 p.m. one day will reach the addressee by 3 p.m. the next day, according to Postmaster H. Lloyd Mills.

"Customers also have the option of having their Express Mail package available for pick-up at the destination post office by 10 a.m. If the package is late, the Postal Service will refund the postage to the sender," he said.

Express mail offers delivery on weekends and on Christmas Day at no extra charge and is available in more than 1,000 cities. From this city, Express Mail can reach over 400 cities, and persons should contact their local post office for a list of these cities.

Items weighing up to 70 pounds can be sent by Express Mail and fees including merchandise insurance coverage up to $500 also at no extra charge.

Shipments that are picked up at the post office cost $2.10 less.

Also as part of the planning process, the school board staff working on redistricting plans has plotted detailed areas of the Greenville School District into 34 individual zones.

Information on these areas are available to interested persons, and are included in the packets of information mentioned at the end of this article.

Responding to questions posed by school board members and by interested persons in the audience, Cox said that in consultations with personnel of two divisions of the State Department of Public Instruction, that their attitude is the more a school can keep away from fragmentation and adhere to a wide time span (i.e., structuring schools in blocs of K-6 or K-3 and 4-6), the better the chances are for stability.

Asked what he felt was the better of the seven plans, Cox said "I am not ready at this time to express my preference, as I believe this would prejudice the thinking on the eventual selection."

Cox said, however, his feeling is that two factors are of utmost importance in any selection — maintaining a good instructional program, and providing children with the best degree of stability that can be achieved.

School board members expressed concern that all parents would be aware of the impending decision. In an effort to use every possible approach to publicize the January 7 public hearing, the school board approved a motion that each student take home a mimeographed copy of the seven study plans with information added about the date, place and time of the public hearing.

Also, interested persons will be provided packets of the detailed correlating information which has been prepared on each plan. This gets into the actual black-white percentages of students (based on this year's school figures) applicable to each class, each grade, and each school and runs into dozens of pages.

Call Huddle On Highway

FALKLAND — Falkland area residents and other users of Highway 43 North are urged to attend a discussion of the need to widen Highway 43 between Bruce and the Edgcombe County line.

The meeting will be held tomorrow at 10:30 a.m. in the Fellowship Hall of Falkland Presbyterian Church. Sam McLawhorn, Pitt County manager of the campaign to reelect Gov. Jim Hunt, will meet with interested citizens.

The pavement in these several miles, excepting Falkland which has widened its portion with Powell Bill funds, is the same as when it was constructed in 1934, Falkland Commissioner W. W. Wooten said. He said this is a bottleneck that has been discussed, but not changed, for many years. "We don't care about wider rights of way," he said. All we want is a wider black surface to ride on with greater safety."

Police Hunt Stolen Tricycle

Greenville police are looking for a heavy-duty silver-colored tricycle reported stolen from a playground at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church yesterday.

Chief Glenn Cannon said the 1979 model tricycle, valued at $130, was last seen on the playground about 10:15 a.m. The theft was reported to police at 11:50 a.m.

San Diego KOs Denver

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Like a proud old prize fighter, San Diego wide receiver Charlie Joiner kept coming off the mat. And in the end, he delivered the knockout punch. "Charlie took such a beating," said Chargers' Coach Don Coryell, "but he kept coming back and playing."

Joiner, 32, capped his finest National Football League season with a 32-year touchdown reception from Dan Fouts that put the Chargers permanently in Monday night's 17-7 victory over the Denver Broncos.

"A championship is special. You don't know how hard we worked for this," said the 11-year veteran, who, ironically, was drafted by Houston 10 years ago as a defensive back. With John Jefferson, San Diego's most dangerous receiver, sidelined with a rib injury, Joiner became a marked man — the key in the Chargers' aerial circus.

His third quarter touchdown, which broke a 7-7 tie, came after he was knocked out of the game with the hip injury. Shortly after the touchdown he was kayoed again, suffering a cut over the eye, but returned after a second trip for medical care. "They weren't cheap shots," said Joiner. "I was just the victim of circumstances. I got a splittin' headache...but I love it."

"If there's a better competitor than Joiner, I've never seen him," said Chargers' owner Gene Klein, who threw a bear-hug on the veteran receiver as the game ended. Joiner's touchdown catch helped Fouts make history. The completion propelled Fouts past Joe Namath, who set the all-time NFL single season record in 1967 with 4,007 yards.

Some Of The Other Awards For The NFL

By BRUCE LOWITT AP Sports Writer

The Associated Press' National Football League All-Pro teams, Most Valuable Player, Coach of the Year and the like will be dispensed later this week — but before all those big names hog the headlines, a few other awards are in order.

After all, winning isn't necessarily everything, or the only thing...or, in some cases, anything. Consider, if you will:

sonville (thus lowering real estate values in both cities).

The John Barrymore Award: to Thomas "Hollywood" Henderson, who mugged for the camera and got mugged by Dallas' front office.

The Lamont Cranston "I Am The Shadow" Award: To Matt Robinson, quarterback of the New York Jets...for a few minutes, anyway.

The Roone Arledge Instant Replay Award: To Willie Spencer, who ruined a virtually perfect officiating season by pulling a handkerchief out of his pocket in Houston.

The Bud Collyer "Beat The Clock" Award: To Roger Staubach, for pulling the Cowboys out of the fire in Dallas.

The High-Rent District Award: To the Cleveland Browns, who — if they lived in any other division — would probably be in the playoffs.

The Low-Rent District Award: To the Tampa Bay

Buccaneers, who — if they lived in any other division, would probably be out of the playoffs.

The Spike Jones Award: To Drew Pearson, who blew his own horn once too often.

The Primo Carnera Award: To Raymond Clayborn, who found that going man-to-man in the locker room can be tougher than playing a zone on the field.

The Teddy Roosevelt "Speak Softly And Carry A Big Stick" Award: To Will McDonough, who knows that the pen is mightier than the sword but a good right cross is nice, too.

WILLIAMSTON — Williamston High School swept a pair of games from Jamesville last night. The boys rolled to a 71-50 win, while the girls rolled up a 59-39 victory.

They added ten to that lead in the third frame, as it climbed to 50-30. Williamston outscored the Bulets, 21-20, down the stretch.

North Pitt began to chip away at the lead, however, getting to within two, 18-16, at the end of third period. The Pant-HERS then outscored the Chargers 13-4 in the final quarter to win.

The Pant-HERS are now 3-6 overall and 1-5 in the ECC. JV — North Pitt 57 Ayden-Grifton 46.

Williamston travels to Ayden-Grifton, while Jamesville visits Plymouth on Wednesday. JV — Jamesville 71, Williamston 68.

North Pitt began to chip away at the lead, however, getting to within two, 18-16, at the end of third period. The Pant-HERS then outscored the Chargers 13-4 in the final quarter to win.

Wildcats Stop Streak

Reaching Out
Georgia Bulldogs' Lavon Mercer (33) reaches out for two points over Kentucky Wildcats' LaVon Williams (52) during the first half of the Georgia-Kentucky game at the Omni in Atlanta Monday. Kentucky's Fred Cowan (40) follows Mercer in the air as Kyle Macy (4) looks on. (AP Laserphoto)

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer
The University of Louisville's basketball squad billed themselves as the "Doctors of Dunk" last season. But Kentucky's Kyle Macy is a specialist, according to University of Georgia Coach Hugh Durham.
"Macy's like a surgeon out there," Durham said after Macy scored 28 points and directed the third-ranked Kentucky Wildcats to a 95-69 Southeastern Conference victory over previously undefeated Georgia. "He comes down the floor and does open heart surgery on you and then moves to the other side and does something over there."
Even Kentucky Coach Joe B. Hall agrees.

"In my book, Macy is the best basketball player in America," Hall said. "I wouldn't trade him for anybody."
The Wildcats had more than Macy going for them as they posted their eighth consecutive victory after a season-opening loss to top-ranked Duke. Dwight Anderson added 20 points and Kentucky's defense allowed Georgia only five shots during the final six minutes of the first half.
"I was concerned that we had reached a mental and emotional peak (in the victory over Indiana), but it didn't seem to affect us," Hall said. "I underestimated the value of our depth."
"We are coming off the bench and playing well. Our depth and fresh players blew it out."
Kentucky outscored Georgia 16-0 in the six-minute span that saw the Wildcats go from a 29-28 lead to a 45-28 halftime advantage.

over Davidson in a Southern Conference game. The old record of 24 consecutive free throws was set by Duke against Davidson in 1978.
Sophomore Robert Price scored 22 points, hitting 10 of 11 field goal attempts. James Campbell had 22 and Greg White 20 for Davidson.
Missouri, ranked No. 16, ran its record to 8-0 with an 84-73 victory over Oral Roberts. Curtis Berry led the Tigers with 19 points and 11 rebounds.
Ray Blume's 25 points paced 19th-ranked Oregon State past Montana State 105-80 and reserve Mike Young tallied 19 points to lead No. 20 Arkansas to an 86-68 victory over Oklahoma City University.
In other games Monday, guard John Smith sank four free throws in the final 10 seconds to give Arizona a 65-61 victory over Fresno State; 10 shots by Toney Ellis and Joe Addison pulled Colorado to 63-60 overtime win over U.S. International; Mike Miday's 2-foot jumper with two seconds go lifted Bowling Green past Valparaiso 60-59; Baylor crushed Trinity 84-48 after rallying out to a 40-15 halftime lead; and David Williams hit 10 points to lead Southeastern Louisiana over Baker 80-60.

Jamesville Still Looking For The Right Floor Combination

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer
JAMESVILLE — Before last Friday night's game against Pantego, Jamesville coach Ron Davenport said he would shuffle his lineup around in hopes of adding some quickness and scoring punch to the pivot.
By game's end, however, patience, not quickness and scoring punch, was what the Bullets needed, and that was what they got as the Bullets used a stall to stun Pantego, 8-6.
"We're playing a tough schedule before Christmas," Davenport said before the Pantego game. "We've got Pantego, and Williamston (twice) and Plymouth, both 3-A teams."
"But I think these guys like to play tough schedule," he continued. "I think it benefits us more by playing 3-A teams."
"Once we get back from Christmas break, and have some more practices under our belts and get the football out of our football players, we'll be ready to play," he said.
The Bullets, 3-5 on the season after losing to Williamston last night, 71-50, have beaten both Bath and Manteo and were ahead of Williamston in their first meeting by five points going into the fourth period, despite shooting only 23 percent for the game.
"We didn't shoot well in that game, or in the Plymouth game," Davenport said. "But you can do a lot of things with defense and hustle." Both kept them ahead for the better part of the game. "We've got some good shooters, they just haven't found their shooting touch yet."
Jamesville returns four starters off last year's squad. Only guard Gerald Keys (5'9") did not start last season. Back for the Bullets are Ange, Frankie Hardison (6'3") at center, and Keith Modlin (6'2") and Alan Frazier (6'0") at the guards.
The rest of the team includes James Armond (Davenport's sixth man), Danny DiNardo, Ricky Bell, Dan Cross, Clarence Thomas, Keith Waters and Kerwin Cross.
"In this group we have nine returning varsity players, so I would say one of our strengths is experience," Davenport said. "And, like I said, they're pretty good shooters."
"I think our ball handling is a question mark and we're weak at the center position. Also, our pressing defense has holes in it, but we're working on all of this."

Girls' Basketball
After meeting with his girls' basketball team for the first time early in the season, Jamesville coach Jerry Godley realized his Bullets were lacking in the basics of basketball.
"When I first took the basketball team and meet with them I learned they knew very little about the fundamentals," said Godley, who is in his first year as girls' basketball coach at the school.
"People told me it was going to be tough, but I knew that," he added. "But we've worked hard every day on the fundamentals and the girls have come a long way. They've learned quickly and have progressed better than any team I've seen at Jamesville in a number of years," said Godley, who also coaches Jamesville's football team.
Godley is not alone in believing his girls have come a long way in a short time.
"After we lost to Bath (40-39), which was picked to be either one of two in our conference — Jamesville was way down the list — (Bath coach) Walt (Davis) came over and told me he couldn't believe how far my girls had come."
The rest of the Bullets lineup includes junior Penny Modley, sophomore Dani Job, and Kim Floyd, Lorie Hardison, Crystal Perry and Sheila Rodgers, all freshmen.
Without a senior on the squad, Godley has had to rely on mostly young and inexperienced players. So far, the results have been predictable: a 1-4 start. However, what was not predictable is the way the Bullets have made nearly every opponent struggle to win.

For instance, at the end of the third period against Chocowinity, the team picked to win the Beaufort-Hyde-Martin Conference crown, the Bullets trailed by a mere four points, 33-29. But nine straight turn overs gave the Indians the win, by a deceiving 52-37 count.
"That was an example of our inexperience," Godley said. "What I'm trying to do now is work them hard on the fundamentals — passing and dribbling — because we are making a lot of mistakes."
"This is a rebuilding year for us," he added. "We're just trying to make our women's basketball team respected again. And I feel we can do that with these young people."

Banks Not Happy With Duke's Top Ranking

By TOM CANAVAN
Associated Press Writer
Duke may be No. 1 in the Associated Press college basketball poll, but there is one person on the team who would rather not see it there — Gene Banks, the Blue Devils' starting junior forward.
"Being No. 1 is like a war. It's like a battle where the sergeant gets killed and somebody has to take over. There's going to be battle and we hope to emerge victorious."
Duke, which is unbeaten in six games this season including wins over Top Ten rivals Kentucky and North Carolina, added another Monday when it took over the top spot in the AP poll from Indiana.
The Blue Devils collected 34 of 58 first-place votes and 1,126 points out of a possible 1,160 points in the balloting of a nationwide committee of sports writers and broadcasters. They easily outdistanced this week's runnerup Ohio State while pre-season favorite Indiana knuckled to fifth after being knocked from the unbeaten ranks last Saturday by third-ranked Kentucky.

Banks said Duke's new role has its drawbacks, the biggest being the pressure it places on the team. But he added: "It's a role we'll take and do the best we can with it."
The Buckeyes collected 15 first place votes and 1,078 points while the Wildcats, who were ranked fifth last week when they surprised Indiana 69-58, garnered five first-place votes and 1,030 points.
Notre Dame remained in the fourth position with three first-place votes and 886 points, while Indiana, now #4, garnered 886 points and one No. 1 ballot.
DePaul made one of the biggest moves in the poll, jumping from 11th to sixth following a nationally televised win over UCLA and a hard-fought triumph over Texas. The Blue Demons, who also presented Coach Ray Meyer with his 600th career victory in beating Northern Illinois on Wednesday, had 819 points — two more than Louisiana State, which slipped a notch to seventh.
The rest of the Top 10 was unchanged. North Carolina was eighth with 727 points, followed by Purdue with 688 and Syracuse with 600.
Louisville, No. 12 last week, headed the Second Ten followed by Virginia and Iowa and UCLA, which was seventh last week but suffered losses to both Notre Dame and DePaul.
Rounding out the Top 20 were St. John's, Missouri, Georgetown, D.C., Brigham Young, Oregon State and Arkansas.

The top 20 had no new members this week's.

Talking to UTC Coach

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Tennessee-Chattanooga football Coach Joe Morrison says University of New Mexico officials have talked with him. But he declines to comment on reports he is being considered for the Lobo coaching job.
Morrison, coach of Chattanooga's Moccasins for seven seasons, told a reporter Monday, "I'd just rather not say anything until I know something. I'll let you know if anything happens. I promise."
The University of Tennessee-Chattanooga announced Oct. 26 it was extending Morrison's contract by three years through February 1985. Morrison, 42, who is paid about $35,000 a year, had two years remaining on his contract before the extension.
The coach, who started at running back and other positions during a 14-year professional career with the New York Giants, directed Tennessee-Chattanooga to the Southern Conference championship this season with a 5-1 conference record, 9-2 overall. The Mocs had tied for the title in their two previous seasons in the conference.
Morrison was selected as the Southern Conference's coach of the year.

Ellenberger Is Fired

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Norm Ellenberger's reign over the University of New Mexico basketball program apparently has come to an end, although the flamboyant coach still has one last hope.

Ellenberger, known as "Stormin' Norman" during the days when his free-wheeling basketball teams were chalking up victories and attracting large crowds, was fired Monday by university President William E. Davis.

But Davis said Ellenberger can appeal the decision to the university's board of regents.

Neither Ellenberger nor his attorney, David Norvell, were available for comment on whether they would appeal. But Norvell left the door open for such an action by saying in a letter to Davis that he did not believe "due process had been afforded his client."

Davis said Norvell told him in the letter that Ellenberger had not been able to speak for himself while his status at the university was being considered because of a grand jury investigation. The grand jury is looking into possible mail fraud and bribery involving the junior college transcripts of a player on the UNM basketball squad.

Davis said at a news conference Monday that he received the letter from Norvell earlier in the day. He said it was in response to a letter of dismissal for Ellenberger that he had delivered to the attorney Sunday.

In announcing the firing of Ellenberger, Davis read the letter of dismissal.

He said he had reached the same conclusion as the university's Athletic Council, which decided after a hearing Friday that Ellenberger had violated regulations of the university, the Western Athletic Conference and the NCAA.

And he said because "these actions further constitute willful and grossly incompetent conduct injurious to the University of New Mexico basketball program" he had decided that he "must dismiss" Ellenberger.

Ellenberger, 47, was in the final year of a three-year contract that paid him an estimated $38,000 a year. He had been the Lobos' head coach since 1972 and his teams had compiled a 134-62 record.

New Mexico won the WAC title in two of those seven years and the Lobos' home attendance at their arena, called "The Pit," was among the highest in the nation.

John Bridgers, UNM's new athletic director, also appeared at the news conference and said the search for a new coach would begin immediately.

Charlie Harrison, an Ellenberger assistant, has been running the club since Ellenberger was suspended by Davis late last month. Bridgers said he would not consider Harrison for the head job, but would recommend that the new coach retain Harrison as an assistant.

Bridgers said he had no evidence that Harrison, who joined the UNM staff this year, was involved in any of the alleged doctoring of transcripts. He said, however, since Harrison had been a member of Ellenberger's staff that he believed it was important for the image of the university that Harrison not be given the head coaching position.

Time Seems To Stand Still For Staubach

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

The clock ticks off its seconds, one by one, ignoring the action on the field.

And on the field, Roger Staubach clicks off his plays, one by one, ignoring the action of the clock.

Time marches on for the rest of us, but it seems to stand still for Staubach and the Cowboys.

Some coaches tell their clubs that to succeed, they must own the last quarter. Staubach and the Cowboys have taken that football theorem a step farther. They believe, and indeed often prove, that the last two minutes belong to Dallas.

They did it again Sunday, pulling out another victory with as brilliant a two-minute drill as you could ever hope to see. This one was right off the dressing room blackboard. It was textbook football, performed to perfection by Prof. Staubach.

He has done it before. of course. Fourteen times in his career, Staubach has taken Cowboy teams that were behind in the final two minutes and marched them to the winning points. That is a frightening, almost awesome ability to ignore the pressure of the clock and perform small-sized miracles.

One last-gasp touchdown is tough enough but on Sunday, Staubach needed two of them to catch Washington in the waning minutes. With 3:49 to play and the Redskins leading 34-21, Randy White recovered a fumble, giving Dallas the opening it needed.

Staubach needed just 89 seconds for the first touchdown, moving the Cowboys 59 yards on three passes. zip...zip...zip, dissecting the Redskins' defense like a surgeon working with a scalpel.

Now, with 2:20 left, Dallas was still six points short. Other teams might have tried an on-side kick at that point, concerned that they might otherwise never see the football again. But the Cowboys have confidence in their defense and on third-and-two Larry Cole stopped John Riggins cold, forcing the punt.

With 1:46 left, Staubach was at his 25 yard line. This time, the TD drive took 67 seconds and when Rafael Septien kicked the extra point, the Cowboys had the victory and another NFC East title.

And there were still 39 seconds of those precious last two minutes to spare.

Staubach threw 10 passes in the two scoring drives, each one of them from the shotgun formation, where he has an extra second or two to make each play work.

Now he has the club back in the playoffs and don't be surprised if Dallas is the NFC club in Pasadena on Jan. 20 for Super Bowl XIV. It would be a fitting climax to what has been a bizarre year for the Cowboys.

Clemson, State, Tech Win

By The Associated Press
Atlantic Coast Conference basketball teams crushed non-conference opponents in basketball action Monday night with Clemson leading those in action by a 113-74 romp of Georgia Southern.

North Carolina State cruised to an 82-66 victory over Nevada-Reno while Georgia Tech easily defeated Wofford, 84-64.

The 39-point Clemson victory at Clemson, engineered by center John "Moose" Campbell, gives the Tigers a season average winning margin of better than 28 points per game.

Campbell scored 19 points, all in the second half, and grabbed 13 rebounds to lead the Tigers to the win and their highest point total of the season.

He was one of five players hitting double figures for Clemson, which improved its record to 6-0 for the season with the victory. Georgia Southern fell to 1-6.

Coach Dwane Morrison emptied the Georgia Tech bench with 3:15 remaining as the Yellow Jackets rolled over Wofford in basketball action in Atlanta.

Lenny Horton's 16 first-half points paved the way for the bench as Georgia Tech took the lead for good with a 12-10 advantage at 13:51 in the first half.

"This was a great effort," Morrison said. "We did a lot of things well. But this was our first chance to run the man-to-man defense and it shows. Wofford is a quick team but the boys keep working and they keep improving."

Georgia Tech improved to 2-2 with the win while Wofford dropped to 2-10 for the season.

Forward Charles Whitney with 23 points was the leading man for the Wolfpack's victory over Nevada Reno in Reno. N.C. State led throughout the game except for a 2-2 tie in the first few minutes.

N.C. State, which led by as much as 22 points at times during the second half, improved its record to 4-1 with the win, while Nevada-Reno fell to 0-6 for the season.

Tulane Gets In Bowl

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Tulane gets a chance to flex its newly discovered muscles Saturday in the Liberty Bowl against Penn State, a perennial powerhouse of the East eager to prove it has not atrophied.

Watching will be a capacity crowd of more than 51,000 persons, plus a national television audience. The 21st Liberty Bowl begins at 1:30 p.m. CST.

Usually, an invitation to the Liberty Bowl would be an insult to Penn State, which posted 11-1 records in 1977 and 1978, but not so in 1979.

The path has been downhill for the Lions since New Year's Day, when Alabama knocked them off in the Sugar Bowl. For only the second time since Joe Paterno took over as coach in 1966, the team lost four games in one year, ending the season at 7-4 with a humiliating loss to Pittsburgh. Other losses came at the hands of Texas A&M, Nebraska and Miami of Florida.

Marshall Sets Mark In Win Over Wilddcats

By The Associated Press
Marshall University Coach Bob Zufelato was worried when his Thundering Herd got off to a slow start Monday night. He was afraid the bad feelings he had about the contest with Davidson before the game were proving right.

But he needn't have worried at all.

Powered by sophomore Robert Price, who came off the bench to score 22 points, the Thundering Herd set a national free-throw shooting record in its 115-97 victory over the Wildcats.

In other Southern Conference action, Furman defeated Western Carolina 96-90. East Tennessee State squeaked by Campbell 72-70 in the only other game involving a Southern Conference team.

A school-record 71 points was scored by Marshall during the second half against Davidson in the game at Huntington, W. Va., and all 31 free-throw attempts were good. Twenty five came in the second half.

That 31 broke the record of 24 free throws in a row set by Duke against Davidson in a 1978 game. Price hit 10 of 11 field goal attempts and both of his free-throw attempts for Marshall, which shot a blistering 63.6 percent.

George Washington, who scored 15 points, made all nine of his free throws and Greg White, who hit for 20, made all eight of his free throws.

"Tonight we didn't get off to a fast start, but I think that shows a lot of character," Zufelato said. "We've shown we can come from behind and win. We played real aggressive and I like that."

Marshall, now 6-1, trailed for much of the first half before outscoring the Wilddcats 16-5 during a six-minute span late in the period.

The Herd jumped to a 20-point lead, 79-59, with 11 minutes left in the game, but Davidson staged a rally and managed to get within six, 89-83, before the Herd broke away again.

Rich DiBenedetto scored a game-high 34 points for Davidson and Todd Haynes added 24 in the matchup that left the Wilddcats 3-4 overall.

In the other league contest in Greenville, S.C., Jonathan Moore helped Furman withstand a late Western Carolina surge with his 21 points, 13 rebounds and nine assists, two blocked shots and two steals.

Four other Furman players scored in double figures, and the win put the Paladins at 5-1 overall.

Western Carolina's Gregg Dennis led all scorers with 30 points, hitting 12 of 19 field-goal attempts and passing off for six assists. The loss left Western Carolina 5-2 overall.

Troy Mikell scored 22 points to lead all scorers and East Tennessee State to the narrow victory over Campbell in Raleigh, N.C.

The Buccaneers trailed by a 39-35 margin at halftime, despite shooting 50 percent from the floor and hitting all but one of their eight free throws.

They finished the contest with 26 of 48 field goals for a 54 percent mark while the Camels shot 42 percent from the floor and connected on one more field goal than the Bucs.

Darrell Mauldin paced Campbell with 21 points.

Scramble After Satellite Loss

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Outer space musical chairs, orbital squatter's rights and RCA goes satellite shopping — some of the interesting developments resulting from the apparent loss of RCA's Satcom III last week.

As the communications satellite became a missing blip on tracking screens, the folks who had planned to use the thing were convening in nearby Anaheim to speak the joys of satellite telecommunications.

The cable TV executives, whose business has burgeoned in recent years because of satellites such as RCA's lost-in-space creation, greeted news of its apparent demise with varying emotions.

"Disastrous," said Ted Turner, the Atlanta broadcaster who'd planned to start a news network via the satellite. "No sweat," said most of the others, who were safe for the following reasons:

The majority of Satcom III's 24 transponders, or channels, were booked by the cable systems already operating via RCA's Satcom I. They were to have transferred to the new satellite in an effort to concentrate TV satellite users in one spot, and to create new channels on the old satellite for first-time satellite broadcasters.

So, when word came that Satcom III was missing, people scrambled to reclaim their spots on Satcom I. Most secured their positions, thereby assuring that all current cable programming via satellite will not be interrupted.

But there was some confusion in the scramble. There was some question, for example, as to whether "superstation" WOR in New York would vacate the transponder it was subletting from Showtime, the cable TV programmer, should Showtime reclaim it.

Showtime president Jeffrey Reiss says Showtime hasn't yet asked for the transponder, but added, "We have the right to it, and if we did ask for it, they'd have to relinquish it."

May be an interesting squatter's rights case. There were more problems caused by the apparent loss of Satcom III. Besides Turner's all-news network, at least three other new networks were to have begun operation had Satcom III been successfully placed in geosynchronous orbit. Time-Life Television planned to use the new satellite to start a new network featuring BBC programs; a religious network, a sports network and a network aimed at over-50 viewers were also counting on Satcom III.

Time-Life was saved by the fact that it owns Home Box Office, which had an extra transponder on Satcom I, that will be used for its BBC network. But the others faced the prospect of being left out in the cold.

This is what prompted RCA to go satellite shopping. The company is searching for open channels on other company's communications satellites, to be used by those new customers shut out by the loss of Satcom III.

Elvis' Doctor Faces Hearing

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The state Board of Medical Examiners has scheduled a January hearing for the late Elvis Presley's doctor on charges he overprescribed drugs for himself, Presley and other patients.

Dr. George Nichopoulos, the physician, has had no comment on the charges since they were first made Sept. 24.

The board has the power to suspend or revoke Nichopoulos' medical license if the complaint is sustained, subject to appeal through the state court system.

The cause of Presley's death is not at issue in the proceeding.

The state filed an amended, 59-page complaint against Nichopoulos on Monday. It provides further details about the accusations against the doctor.

He is accused of prescribing uppers, downers, tranquilizers and narcotics over several months for Presley, including some on the day the singer died, Aug. 16, 1977. Other patients listed are rock 'n roll singer Jerry Lee Lewis and Arthur Baldwin, an FBI informer and owner of some topless Memphis nightclubs. Neither Lewis nor Baldwin were available for comment Monday.

The original complaint was based on a routine audit of the records of Memphis pharmacies by Health Department inspectors.

Meanwhile, the board denied a request by Nichopoulos' lawyers that portions of the Jan. 14 hearing in Memphis be closed to the public to protect the privacy of some of the physicians' patients.

Acting on the advice of the state attorney general's office, the board said the hearing was covered by the state Open Meetings Act that requires any such proceeding to be public. Anne Stringham, spokeswoman for the Health Department, said the hearing is scheduled in the Memphis City Council chambers at 9 a.m.

Opening lead: Three of ♠.

If you must lose a trick, it is usually sound tactics to do so early in the play. Unfortunately, most players feel compelled to postpone the evil moment as long as possible, often with dire results.

With such a plethora of prime cards, we would have opened the South hand one diamond instead of one no trump—the hand is more oriented toward suit play than no trump. However, no one did anything wrong thereafter, and a normal, though inferior, contract was reached.

Since the opponents had made no attempt to locate a major suit fit, West decided to attack with his fourth-best heart, rather than a diamond, and declarer captured East's queen with the king. There was obviously no way to make nine tricks without bringing in the clubs, so at trick two declarer led a low club. West played the nine and declarer called for dummy's king. The monarch won the trick, but lost the contract. Declarer could set up the clubs but, in the process, he would have to spend dummy's ace of diamonds and then there would be no entry back to the table to cash the long clubs.

Declarer's play was shortsighted. Two club tricks had to be lost no matter how the cards were distributed, and the idea should have been to lose them both while retaining the ace of diamonds in dummy as an entry. If West has the ace of clubs, he will have it a minute or two later, so there is no hurry in grabbing a quick club trick.

Warns Tar Heels Not Rely On Federal Sums

WASHINGTON (AP) — North Carolina Congressman L.H. Fountain of Tarboro has issued a warning to local governments: don't depend on federal anti-recession programs to fill out budgets.

Fountain was successful last week in getting the House to trim $100 million from a proposed anti-recession program. That trimming prompted the bill's sponsors to remove the proposal from the floor of the House for further consideration.

Fountain says none of the programs "ought to be looked upon by local governments as permanent fixtures upon which they can rely."

"We're going to all have to tighten our belts and not look to Washington for so much money," he said.

Fountain, a Democrat, fought against an anti-recession bill that would have targeted $250 million for aid to depressed urban areas. His opposition, he said, was due to the fact that the money was based on unemployment statistics, which he considers unreliable.

Fountain's offered an amendment, which passed 184-153, trimming the money to $150 million. Then the bill was withdrawn.

If approved, it would have funneled $683,610 of the nearly $2.9 billion targeted for North Carolina to Fountain's 2nd District.

"The targeted assistance was based primarily upon unemployment figures. All the labor experts told us that there was no reliable way to determine unemployment. For a rural area with a population less than 50,000, the unemployment figures could almost be randomly picked out of the air," Fountain explained.

"Unemployment is and has been for years an unreliable formula for the distribution of funds — which means that sometimes the rich get richer and the poor get poorer."

Urban areas in the Northeast, the Midwest and California would have gotten the largest share of the $250 million, and Fountain said he felt the funds were not allocated fairly.

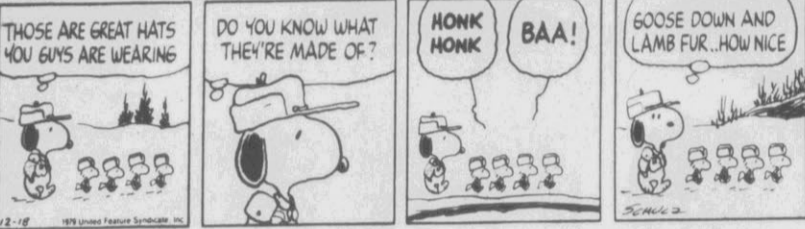

"My amendment was not designed to penalize big cities but to open the door of opportunity to the rural areas of America on an equal footing," Fountain said.

Urge Public To Show Support

In keeping with Unity Day efforts today, the National Education Association has asked its members and other Americans to write letters indicating support for the U. S. government and for the release of the U. S. hostages in Tehran.

The NEA asked that these letters be sent to the Iranian Mission to the United Nations, 622 Third Avenue, 34th Floor, New York, N. Y. 10017. It was suggested that copies of the letters be sent to the White House, so the President and his representatives know of our support and commitment.

Pitt County NEA is supporting this effort, according to Annette McRae, local president.
