Iranian Funeral Cortège 'Blames' American Policy

By MAUREEN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — At least 50,000 Iranians mourning an assassinated religious leader marched on the occupied U.S. Embassy today, placed the coffin in front of the mission's iron gates and alternated chanting "Death to America!" with wailing verses from the Koran, the holy book of Islam.

But they made no move to breach the gates and enter the embassy compound, where Moslem militants have been holding 50 Americans hostage for 46 days demanding the U.S. government get Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi to return to Iran.

The funeral cortège of Hojatoleslam Mohammad Mofateh and his two bodyguards began at Tehran University, then wound a mile to the bolted embassy gates, surrounded by a sea of chanting and wailing people. Four mullahs, or priests, waving pistols were drawn on an open carriage behind the cortège.

The heady mixture of religious fervor and militancy climaxed when the priests were passed over the heads of the crowd and mounted the speakers' platform on the embassy wall. Massive portraits of Mofateh were carried by mourners along with Islamic flags in black.

Mofateh's 22-year-old son Sadegh declared: "The CIA kills people who are against the imperialism of America. They killed my father because they want to change the course of the revolution." Many of the women in the crowd, all tightly wrapped in black chadors, wept as Sadegh spoke.

Mofateh, a close associate of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, and two bodyguards were assassinated Tuesday at Tehran University, where Mofateh was head of the Theology Department.

Khomeini's ruling Revolutionary Council blamed the CIA and SAVAK, the ousted shah's secret police, for the assassination. An anonymous caller told Iran's news agency a group called FM Militant was responsible, but the group had not been heard of before and most observers thought the call was a hoax.

Khomeini made a new demand Tuesday for the United States to hand over the shah, calling Panama an American puppet, and one of his close associates said he has ordered his gunmen to murder the former ruler and his wife.

PFC. ROBERT GARWOOD

Testifies On Garwood Ties To Captors

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer
CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood carried a picture of North Vietnamese leader Ho Chi Minh, and he helped Communist troops guard American prisoners of war, according to a former POW.

Garwood, who spent nearly 14 years in Vietnam until his return to the United States last March, is accused of deserting and collaborating with the enemy.

The Marine Corps is holding a hearing this week to see if there is enough evidence to court-martial the lanky 33-year-old Marine.

Former POW Francis Anton, who is now an Army warrant officer stationed at Fort Dix, N.J., took the stand Tuesday, the first in a parade of prosecution witnesses scheduled to testify at the hearing.

Anton, 36, was a prisoner from January 1968 until he was released with other POWs in March 1973.

Facing Garwood across the cramped courtroom, Anton said he encountered Garwood at prison camps near Danang in 1968, and he said he saw Garwood working with the enemy on various occasions.

"I saw Bob Garwood carry a weapon on more than one occasion," Anton declared as Garwood, expressionless, sat with his hands clasped on the table before him.

Anton said he didn't know if there were bullets in Garwood's rifle. But he said Garwood once carried the weapon while he guarded American prisoners who foraged for food outside the prison.

After Anton's testimony, defense lawyers asked but failed to get full transcripts from Anton's de-briefing by the military after his release.

Maj. T.B. Hamilton Jr., presiding officer at the hearing, told Garwood's attorneys that he was not empowered to order prosecutors to produce the lengthy transcripts.

But Dermot Foley, Garwood's civilian lawyer, said the defense would probably push for all statements, whether they concerned Garwood or not, made by any former prisoners who would testify in a courtroom.

"I don't think there can be any understanding of this case other than in the context of the POW experience," Foley said after Tuesday's hearing session.

Garwood contends he was captured in 1965 and held prisoner until his release.

He and his attorneys have indicated they would base a defense on the contention that Garwood did whatever he did to survive. Also, they said they would argue that other prisoners violated military codes of behavior in order to escape punishment or receive special treatment.

Anton testified Tuesday that Garwood lived outside the fenced area and that he could leave the camp area without a guard.

Anton said Garwood sneaked cans of milk, eggs and an occasional chicken to the malnourished Americans. But he said Garwood once brought a chicken and ate both legs, leaving the rest to be divided among 12 to 15 prisoners.

Anton said he knew of six or seven Americans who died of malnutrition in the prison camps, and he said his weight dropped to about 110 pounds from 150 pounds in the months after his capture.

"Bob appeared to me to be not in great physical condition... but I would guess he weighed between 150 and 160 pounds," Anton said.

Garwood's 20-year-old sister, Linda, listened to Anton's testimony and later told a reporter that her brother weighed less than 100 pounds when he returned to the U.S. last March.

Vote To Retain

Pitt County tobacco farmers joined leaf growers in North Carolina and five other flue-cured producing states Tuesday in voting to retain the federal price-support program.

Stacy J. Evans, manager of the Pitt office of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, reported that the area vote was some 99.3 percent in favor of continuing the program for the 1980, 1981 and 1982 crops.

Evans said that Pitt had a "good turnout" with 2,700 voting for continuation and only 19 voting against. He added that a small number of challenge ballots, involving ballots where poll holders could not determine eligibility, were received and they will be considered at the canvass of the referendum results conducted by the county ASCS committee.

The Associated Press reported this morning that almost 98 percent of the more than 111,000 tobacco growers in the six states who voted indicated their approval for the continuation of the federal program.

In North Carolina, 79,923 growers or 98.5 percent of those who voted said yes, while only 1,209 cast a negative vote.

According to Evans, the turnout in Pitt County was about six or seven percent less than the figure recorded three years ago, while the approval percentage was slightly higher this time.

The spokesman said that less people were eligible to vote in the county Tuesday than three years ago, due in part to the smaller number of farmers and the combining of farming operations since the last vote.

Evans said that the high percentage of affirmative votes cast was expected by ASCS officials and he pointed out that if there had been significant dissension regarding the program, it would have surfaced prior to the referendum and offered an indication that a smaller approval percentage might be forthcoming.

He added that the vote indicates that "farmers are satisfied with the program."

The Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended, requires that farmers vote every three years on whether they want to continue production quotas and price supports for tobacco. Congress must still decide each year whether to fund price support for tobacco.

Critics of the price-support program contend the government is subsidizing a product that has been proven dangerous to health.

The tobacco industry claims the program does not involve subsidization because it consists of loans that are repaid with interest. Tobacco officials also dispute the health claim, contending there is no conclusive evidence that smoking constitutes a health hazard.

OPEC Trying To Find Compromise

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Oil ministers from the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries met in secret today seeking to work out a compromise solution on the price split which has persisted through their year-end conference.

Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, Saudi Arabia's oil minister and a leader of OPEC's moderate bloc, held the talks in his hotel suite, a conference source said.

The moderates are trying to keep the official price of oil near the $24 per barrel level while Libya, which already has boosted the price of its oil to $30 a barrel, has said it would like to see the base price elevated to $34.

Today's is the final session of the three-day meeting and officials said it was possible the conference could end without agreement, meaning each member would charge as much as it can get or thinks prudent.

It would not be the first time the 13-nation oil cartel failed to reach agreement.

"We've had these differences for 19 years," said one source. "One time it was Iran which was the biggest producer, and Iran wanted a price different from the others. The price issue, while it seems important now, in a few years will not be so important as the supply issue."

Humberto Calderon Berti, Venezuela's oil minister, admitted that price negotiations had been "very difficult" since the 13 delegations began meeting Monday.

He said OPEC's economic commission had proposed the conference set a base price of $24 to $25 a barrel and that "it would be good for OPEC to reach an agreement."

But the issue of how high members could go over the benchmark price — that for light crude oil from Saudi Arabia — concerned many ministers. Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani of Saudi Arabia called the issue "a very serious matter."

Traditionally, the quality of oil and its distance from markets have determined how much of a premium over the benchmark can be charged. But some OPEC members have tacked on surcharges that have left the old system of price differentials in disarray. Iran, for instance, used to charge 11 cents more than Saudi Arabia for a like grade of oil. At $28.50 a barrel, Iranian oil now carries a $4.50 premium.

How much higher the price goes depends on the financial health of the Western importers, and "we're worried about the effects of higher prices on the international economy," said a source close to the delegation from Saudi Arabia, OPEC's largest producer and leader of the price moderates.

The Saudis raised their prices by 33 percent to $24 a barrel last week, 50 cents above OPEC's last ceiling which already had been breached by a number of other members charging up $30 a barrel on long-term contracts, and much more on the spot market.

Hoping to block even greater hikes, the Saudis said they would maintain their new price for the first quarter of 1980. They were seconded by the United Arab Emirates, which said it would freeze the price through the first half of 1980, Qatar and the conference host, Venezuela.

U.S. Fish And Wildlife Service Proposes Buy Outer Banks 'Barrier'

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service will hold hearings in mid-February on its proposal to pay $100 million for 15,800 acres on the barrier strip between the North Carolina-Virginia line and the Dare County line 23 miles to the south.

The long-awaited plan for the Currituck Outer Banks, unveiled in a 230-page draft environmental impact statement put out Tuesday by the agency's Boston office, proposed no acquisitions in Virginia.

Earlier this year, the Fish and Wildlife Service had proposed buying Virginia's 4,200-acre False Cape State Park at an additional cost of $16.5 million.

Hearings on the draft and environmental impact statement will be held in Virginia Beach and Currituck County. Comments on the environmental statement will be taken through April 1, 1980.

After the comments are digested, the environmental statement will be rewritten and put out for another 30 days of public comment.

A final decision on land purchases will be made by early summer, opening the possibility of a congressional appropriation to buy the land in the 1981 fiscal budget, said David Janes, a wildlife biologist with the Fish and Wildlife Service.

Specifically, the agency proposes to buy the barrier strip from the Atlantic Ocean to Currituck Sound from the state line south to Corolla, a distance of about 12 miles that encompasses Carova Beach.

The village of Corolla would be bracketed by federal purchases, but is not targeted for takeover.

South of Corolla, the Fish and Wildlife Service wants to buy marshlands bordering Currituck Sound, plus a 100-foot buffer zone all the way to the Dare County line 11 miles away.

The entire purchase, to take place over the next five years, would include 11,317 acres of wetlands, 3,097 acres of beaches and dunes, and 1,466 acres of shrub and uplands. The area is thinly populated. Included in the 15,800 acres, however, are 3,212 platted lots, one-third owned by individuals. Large developers own 2,160.

Janes, who coordinated the writing of the impact statement, said the proposal is not final and the agency still is considering three other alternatives, including buying no land at all.

The other alternatives include buying the Swann Island and Monkey Island tracts owned by the Nature Conservancy north of Corolla. Including the land between those two tracts, the acquisition would total 8,400 acres and cost roughly $33.5 million.

Janes said the agency still is considering buying 14,360 acres of marsh and wetlands along Currituck Sound, plus the two nature conservancy tracts for an estimated $57 million.

False Cape was eliminated from consideration because the Fish and Wildlife Service doesn't believe Virginia and North Carolina will be able to agree soon on an access route to the Virginia state park and the northern end of the Currituck Outer Banks, Janes said.

Add A Million Every 5 Days

WASHINGTON (AP) — World population is growing by 1 million people every five days although the rate of growth has decreased from 2 percent in the mid-1960s to about 1.7 percent now, new figures show.

The Population Reference Bureau reported Tuesday that despite an expected further drop in the birth rate to about 1.5 percent, the world's population is likely to grow from the current 4 billion to 6 billion by the year 2000. Population is stable or almost stable in many developed countries.

Pitt Hospital Bd. Told Crowding Continues

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

The hospital continues to be crowded and the certificate of need processing for the leasing of rooms at the Holiday Inn to serve patients in for testing is not moving as fast as would be desired, Pitt County Memorial Hospital Director Jack Richardson told the board last night.

He said a group from the hospital recently visited the Hilton in Durham which serves a similar function for Duke University Medical Center, to learn as much as possible about its workings.

The resignation of board member, Ruth Boyer of Goldsboro was accepted with regret. Mrs. Boyer said the drive home to Goldsboro after board meetings had become to her "an unpleasant challenge."

It was reported that the executive committee is looking for outside warehouse space for the hospital.

The board approved the preparation of a graveled parking lot for 200 cars in a field across Moye Drive from the hospital, contingent on approval from Pitt County, which owns the land. It was directed that not more than $6,000 be spent on the project.

Board Treasurer Norfleet Sugg reported that the hospital is in sound financial position. "We're moving toward a potential cash flow problem," he said, "but it's still all right. Bad debts are running 7.9 percent when 10 percent was budgeted."

Hospital Associate Director Rick Gilstrap reported on the recent sixth annual employee recognition banquet, a recent disaster drill held by the hospital in conjunction with the county rescue squads, and changes in Peer Review diagnostic reporting procedures.

Board members were reminded of a Board of Trustees education program to be held by the N. C. Hospital Association and Eastern Area Health Education Center Jan. 9. Trustees of hospitals from all over Eastern North Carolina are expected. Director Richardson said, and he urged Pitt trustees to have a good

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

They're members in good standing of the free-spirit generation who take to the open road in search of themselves with nothing but a pack on their backs, a T-shirt that makes a statement and a top 10 song on their lips.

I saw one of them last summer in an airport in a remote village in New Guinea. I was sitting on eight pieces of matched luggage at the time. He ambled off the plane in faded bluejeans and sandals, reached into his pack (I've carried larger cosmetic bags), took out a quart of orange juice and drank the entire thing chugalug. His load down a quart, he pushed out the door and into another adventure.

As parents, have you ever wondered how these young people travel so light and so far?

Because somewhere in Toledo, Ohio, a mother is falling over his $800 stereo system, 3,000 records, and six-piece drum set.

Somewhere in Tyler, Tex., a mother is arranging the house around his barbells and his water bed.

Somewhere in Little Rock, Ark., a mother is running to the post office every three hours with his sweaters, books and skis.

Home dropouts are becoming staples on the American scene. Just when you think their good-byes are final, you look down at your feet and there's their dog with a sign around his neck: "Store, feed and love until I return."

My mail reflects what I am saying. One woman in Ocala, Fla., even suggested I come up with a bill of divorcement for parents to present to their adult children who regard their homes as first class storage lockers. Here's a start.

"Whereas . . . when a meaningful relationship between parent and child ends, child will get custody of:

"The car that has no motor, no tires and no future and occupies the only parking space in the garage.

"Three closets full of memorabilia including every blue book from every test ever taken to bubblegum baseball cards to typing trophies to broken tennis rackets.

"Let it be known to all parties that mail unopened after 20 days will be sent back to the sender. Anything that has to be fed, cleaned or started during cold weather will be sold at public auction.

"Traveling young adults must register with their parents at least once a year . . . or lose their family citizenship status and part-time residency.

"Hair dryers, records, books, and clothes left behind longer than 60 days become community property."

If this doesn't work . . . try changing your locks.

English-Style Christmas Treat

By TOM HOGE
AP Wine and Food Writer
Christmas is a time for general rejoicing: before the altar, beneath the Yule tree and around the family table laden with the food and drink that mark this great feast day. The delicacies that decorate the festive board are countless, depending on your taste and appetite. They range from creamy oyster stew to lead off the meal to pungent plum pudding to wind it up. But there should be a centerpiece, a roast around which the banquet is built.

In many American homes, of course, turkey plays the star role year after year. But others vary the menu with plump capons, crisp prime ribs of beef or ham glistening with a fruit glaze.

Roast goose has long been the traditional Yuletide bird in England and to some extent in Austria and Germany. Endowed with a natural richness, this plump bird makes a delicious centerpiece with a tart stuffing and a rich gravy.

Those who like to hunt for their birds should bear in mind that wild geese tend to be tough and have a fishy taste, since they subsist largely on seafood. But domestic geese is something else, with a tenderflesh and mild flavor.

Geese have been bred since antiquity and play an important role in the folklore of many lands, such as Siberia, where the natives worshipped a goose god for many years. The ancient tale of the goose that laid golden eggs until its greedy owner foolishly killed the bird has cropped up all over the world.

Geese were sacred to the Romans who recalled that a flock of cackling geese warned the sleeping senators that their foes, the Gauls, were about to raid the city. The Chinese raised geese some 3,000 years ago, and it was their custom to give a pair as a wedding present to symbolize faithfulness. This probably stemmed from the fact that geese keep the same mate for life.

Here's a recipe for roast goose stuffed with dried fruits and spices to dress up your Christmas meal.

- 1 frozen young goose, about 9 pounds
 - 1 package (11 ounces) mixed dried fruits
 - 1 cup orange juice
 - 10 slices white bread, toasted and diced
 - 1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
 - 1/2 teaspoon ground nutmeg
 - 1/4 teaspoon ground cloves
 - 1 cup orange-flavored brandy
- Thaw goose 2 or 3 days in refrigerator, remove giblets and any large pieces of fat from inside bird. Rinse with cold water and drain. Dice fruit, combine with orange juice in bowl and let stand 30 minutes. Combine bread and spices in bowl, pour fruit mix over and toss till evenly moistened. Stuff about 1 cup dressing in neck cavity and fix skin with skewers. Stuff remaining dressing in body cavity and skewer flaps. Place goose on rack in shallow pan; prick with fork in fatty areas. Roast in 325-degree oven 1 hour, then remove fat from pan. Drain twice more, roasting goose 3 hours. Brush goose with orange-flavored brandy; roast 30 minutes more, brushing with brandy every 10 minutes. Remove to heated platter and serve. Gravy can be made by putting some water and flour in roasting pan and heating, as with turkey or chicken. Serves 6. Good with chilled rose wine.

Homemaker's Haven

By Evelyn L. Spangler

Pitt Home Agent

"Silk has traditionally been a rare and costly fabric. Today, there are many silk items — blouses, dresses, suits, pants, loungewear, ties, scarves," says Mrs. Evelyn L. Spangler, Home Economics Extension Agent. The fabric is luxurious in appearance and feel and it is lustrous and comfortable to wear. Silk is durable and absorbent but does have a tendency to water spot, wrinkle and is affected by perspiration.

There are a wide variety of silk constructions and finishes. Some of the more common are silk linen, chiffon, crepe, taffeta, peau de soie, satin, broadcloth (plain, smooth), brocade (jacquard weave), jersey, shantung (slubbed finish), lame, damask, moire (water marked taffeta on ribbed type silk), and boucle. Others include faille (ribbed, shiny finish), china silk (lightweight, plain weave), tussah (coarse, strong), surah (soft and lustrous), douppioni (slubbed), baratheia (heavy texture, dull finish), bengaline (ribbed with corded effect) and marquisette (woven sheer silk).

Cleaning depends on the construction and finish of the silk item. For example, a lined suit of heavy fabric such as faille or brocade, crepe or silk prints requires dry cleaning. Hangtags should give information on the proper care of a silk garment. Unless silk articles are labeled washable, they should be dry cleaned.

If silks can be hand or machine washed, gentle care is required. Prolonged exposure of fabric to water and the washing product can be a factor in bleeding or fading of sensitive dyes in silk. Follow the label and appliance manufacturer's instructions. For hand washing, follow these general recommendations: Fill a sink with warm water and detergent or soap. Swish to dissolve. Place the silk garment in the suds and gently squeeze the solution through. Do not rub the garment! Rinse thoroughly. Roll in a clean bath towel to remove excess moisture! Hang the article away from the heat or sun until almost dry.

If machine washable, use the delicate cycle with warm water. Add detergent or soap. Do not use chlorine bleach on silk. A fabric softener helps eliminate static cling which often builds up on silk.

Most washable silk items require ironing unless protected by a wrinkle-resistant finish. Iron silk items while still moist. Set

Common Sense Can Outrank Etiquette

By Abigail Van Buren
1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: A reader recently asked if it was considered proper etiquette to turn his wine glass upside down at a dinner party, and you said it wasn't.

Abby, as a non-wine drinker, I have always turned my wine glass upside down to let the waiter know that I do not wish wine. Otherwise he is apt to come along and fill my glass while I'm not looking, which is a foolish waste of wine.

It's just a matter of common sense. You disappointed me.

NO WINE IN CEDAR RAPIDS
DEAR NO WINE: I said it ISN'T considered proper etiquette—because it isn't. But I've often stated that common sense outranks etiquette in my book, and if one must make a choice, go the common sense route—and a pox on etiquette!

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I work for the same company, in the same building, but he is located on the floor above me. I'm a secretary and he has a higher position. I am very busy during the day since I have to type letters and work with numbers. My problem is that my husband (let's call him John), will call me at least five times a day asking me to do things for him. (Make calls for him, run copies, bring him a snack, etc.) John just called to ask me to remind him of an appointment he had this afternoon! If I suggest that he tell his secretary, or make reminder-notes like I do, he gets angry and hangs up on me.

Abby, I have a job to do just like John does. I'm afraid this is going to jeopardize my job. How can I end this dilemma without offending my husband? I am becoming a

SURROGATE SECRETARY

DEAR SURROGATE: As long as you continue to act as a "surrogate secretary" for your husband, you are contributing to the dilemma. If his secretary isn't as efficient as you, tell him to make a change. Let John know that his demands are too burdensome, and I wouldn't be too concerned about "offending" a man who hangs up on me.

DEAR ABBY: Last summer my sister and her two sons (9 and 11) visited me. The boys found a closet full of clothes which I had stored away, so they put on a "fashion show" for their mother and me. It was cleverly done and both boys made beautiful models.

I was recently informed by my sister that her 11-year-old had taken home one of the gowns he had modeled, as well as a pair of my high-heeled shoes! She found them in his guitar case. This same boy used to wear his mother's clothes when he was 4 and 5, but she thought he'd outgrown it. My sister is a strict disciplinarian. "Grounding" is her choice of punishment. What would be your recommendation for correcting such tendencies?

CONCERNED AUNT

DEAR AUNT: Your sister should be counseled by someone who is familiar with transvestism (cross dressing), and learn more about it. She also should keep the channels of communication open with her son so that he will feel free and unashamed to share his feelings and tendencies with her. Grounding him for something about which he may be compulsive is exactly what she SHOULDNT do. The boy needs understanding, not punishment.

DEAR ABBY: I'm over 80, and have a difficult decision to make. About 55 years ago, my youngest brother (then 23) married a pretty girl who said she was expecting his child. At the time there was talk in town that she was romantically involved with a married man—her employer.

Unfortunately, her child turned out to be the living image of her employer! When the boy was 4, his parents divorced, and the mother and son left town. To the day of my brother's death (three years ago), he never mentioned her or his "son." My brother never married again.

Last year, a handsome, well-mannered man knocked on our door and introduced himself as my brother's son. He said his mother had died recently, and he wanted to visit the town of his birth and meet his "father's" family. He was full of questions about his "father," saying his mother refused to talk about him. He asked me why his parents had divorced. (His biological father is also dead.)

My question: Should he be told? He has a lovely family and lives 900 miles away. We have several cousins who know the story, but they say they'll never tell.

If he should be told, I think I should be the one to tell him before I pass on. He'll probably not visit this way after I'm gone. What would you do, Abby?

INDIANA

DEAR INDIANA: I would leave well enough alone, and say nothing. I'll probably hear an uproar from many who believe it's everyone's "right" to know their real roots, but I would not exhume this 55-year-old skeleton.

A Time Of Standing Together

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher made her planned visit to the United States with pledges of support for the U. S. position on Iran. "We are your friends," she told President Carter. "We do support you, and we shall support you. Let there be no mistake about that."

And the president told her, "You have been staunch allies and friends, and I deeply appreciate it."

Great Britain has had its share of difficulties during the centuries when the empire was dominant around the world. No doubt the British have a particular understanding of the U.S. dilemma in Iran.

In the present crisis the British have not increased purchases of oil from Iran and have stopped the shipment of armaments to Iran. England is as staunch an ally as we have in this and other crises. However, even stronger measures may be called for before the Iran situation is settled. It is virtually unanimously recognized around the world that the seizure of the U. S. embassy is a wrongful act. Will our friends go to the wall for us, though? Will other nations impose sanctions against Iran, if the hostages are not freed? Will they even support us in military actions?

The future of democracy may well be involved in the solution to the Iranian matter. The democratic nations must stand together in obtaining a just resolution of the problem.

A Season For Reasonable Precautions

The Pitt County Health Department issued some recommendations for making this a safe Christmas.

The list was published in Monday's edition and included cautions against ingestion of poinsetta leaves, mistletoe and holly berries. There were also suggestions on the use of electrical ornaments and decoration of Christmas trees.

Reasonable caution should be exercised at this time of the year. An accident or fire could turn the joyous season into one of personal tragedy.

THIS AFTERNOON

Wooring State Employees

By BILL NOBLITT
 RALEIGH — Wooring support from state employees and teachers, Bob Scott is making a significant departure from traditional strong opposition by politicians to professional negotiations between governing boards and governmental employees.

Sensing that there is widespread disgruntlement among state employees with Gov. Jim Hunt, the former governor has been meeting with the various employee organizations to talk about his plans should he survive the Democratic Primary next spring.

Professional negotiation has long been a priority item on the agenda of organized state employees, especially the North Carolina Association of Educators.

At its simplest, professional negotiation permission would allow governmental employees to sit down at the bargaining table with their employers to hammer out terms of salaries and fringes' work conditions, etc.

Opposition
 State law currently forbids such bargaining, even though governmental officials, particularly at the local level, often find themselves involved in negotiations with various employee organizations.

There is strong opposition to allowing public employees to negotiate. Opponents say it is tantamount to giving away to the bureaucracy many of the decisions which elected representatives of the taxpayers are responsible for making. It is, in short, a serious move in the direction of allowing government unions, and letting those unions in effect determine tax rates and essentials of service delivery to the public, critics contend.

Scott, as he develops his bid to unseat Hunt, is walking cautiously through that thicket.

Without openly endorsing public employee bargaining rights, Scott says it is inevitable, and is coming sooner than most people realize.

"And it will come much sooner if we don't deal with the concerns being expressed by the employees.

"Professional bargaining is not necessarily bad. I agree with the right to organize and negotiate. Everybody is organized and they're negotiating. Even public employees. They are negotiating right now with the candidates for public office."

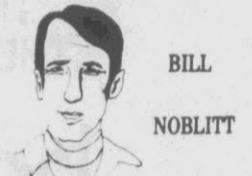

A major problem is that even though bargaining is inevitable, government is doing nothing to train and prepare key officials to deal with that inevitability, Scott says.

Would he, if elected governor, sponsor or endorse the legislation authorizing professional negotiations which is regularly introduced? No, Scott said. "But it is coming anyway and there is no need for me or anybody else to fight it," he added.

Anti-Union
 Industrial anti-union specialists who see North Carolina's traditional anti-labor atmosphere as a major lure to economic expansion have complained that governmental laxity in dealing with employee organizations is an encouragement to the spread of unions in the state. Scott predicts that as the state becomes more heavily industrialized and competitive, unions will grow anyway. He favors the state's right-to-work law which gives individuals the choice of whether to join a union.

Scott says he also sees the need for making government more responsive and productive. There are altogether too many upper level administrators and supervisors in the range of $30,000 and $40,000 per year, while the teachers and state employees doing line duty are not paid well enough, and are not free to do a professional job.

BILL NOBLITT

"I am not now nearly so much a governmental activist as I was. I have learned that when government attempts to solve a problem, it quite often creates another. I am more conservative, and I hope wiser, as I have grown older," he commented.

"Remember the lesson, children: 'Pigs and wolves NEVER fraternize, coexist, engage in detente or otherwise mingle!'"

A 'Ho, Ho, Ho', To You

WASHINGTON — "Hello, where's Santa Claus?"

"He's working on the Iranian crisis. I'm one of his elves. What's your name, little girl?"

"Mayor Jane Byrne of Chicago."

"Have you been a good little girl?"

"Yes, elf, I have."

"And what do you want for Christmas?"

"I want $100 million for urban transportation, $500 million for schools, $250 million for federal housing, and whatever you've got left over for a new sewage system."

"That's quite a list. But everyone here has heard that you don't believe in Santa Claus. They say you only believe in teddy bears. You're a very naughty girl."

"Does that mean Santa's not coming to my house on Christmas Eve?"

"Santa only visits good little children who say their prayers and who want him to live in a nice big White House for another four years. I hope that this teaches you a lesson. And stop crying, it won't help."

"Hi there, elf!"

"Who are you, son?"

"I'm president of the largest employees' union in the government representing over two million members."

"And what do you want from Santa?"

"The day off before Christmas for all my people."

"My goodness. That sounds expensive."

"It could cost $150 million, but Santa would make a lot of little boys and girls in the country very happy."

"Do they all believe in Santa Claus?"

"A lot of them would if he gave them a four-day weekend."

"Well, in that case we shall see that you have it."

"Gee, thanks, elf. You're a peach of a guy."

"Who's next?"

"I am. I'm Congressman Zilch from the 12th District of Idaho."

Ford Is Aloof, Safe

By WALTER R. MEARS
 AP Special Correspondent
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Gerald R. Ford used to tell Republican audiences that the more the voters see of Democratic government, the better the GOP looks.

That's about the only advantage a politician or a party can claim in losing elections. When things go wrong, the winners get the blame and after a while there is nostalgia for the good — or at least better — old days when the other guys were in charge.

Now the former president is hearing a variation of that theme applied to his own brief tenure in the White House. It comes from people who supported him last time and undoubtedly would again if he ran in 1980.

To the editor:

We'd like to add some observations to the fine coverage given by "The Daily Reflector" on the Health Systems Agency approval of a Certificate of Need for the Crist Clinic in Jacksonville.

That evening, the Chairman of the Project Review Committee repeatedly emphasized to Board members that we protestors weren't speaking to the criteria established by HSA. Actually, we did, raising questions about the impact on the environment of the clinic, disposal of the dead babies, possible outlawing of abortion within five years, the clinic drawing on a market rather than meeting a need, the availability of alternatives to abortion, and the cost problem of medical and psychiatric services which could well be required for the women who have these abortions.

We especially spoke to Criterion No. 8: "Does the project have evidence of support from all segments of the service population?" We presented verifiable evidence that the number of N. C. oppose public funding of abortions by a margin of 2 to 1, and in some black areas by a margin of 7 to 1.

Our 13 speakers were varied: a high school teacher, businessman, dentist, social worker, housewife, two ECU students, two lawyers, and ministers of three denominations. The spokesman for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference movingly stated, "The womb has become the gas chamber of modern America."

Pitt, Beaufort, Onslow, Craven and Wayne County citizens protested, as did Methodists, Baptists, Free Will Baptists, Presbyterians, Catholics, and Mormons. Grandmothers, infants, teenagers, blacks and white wore Roses for Life and "Abortion Kills" signs.

Has government "of, by and for the people" become government "of, by and for the bureaucrats and the bureaucrats' supporters"? Only one "segment of the service population" seemed to count that night — Dr. Takey Crist, whose clinic in 1978 was responsible for the deaths of 1,950 preborn Americans.

"And what do you want for Christmas, fella?"

"I'd like a dam and a new air force base, and an extra allotment of fuel oil for the winter."

"Have you been a good boy?"

"Yes, sir. I've told everyone in my district that your man is one of the greatest Santa Clauses in history and he should have a second term."

"In that case, I don't see anything on this list we can't deliver. But we'll be watching you, so you better watch out, better not cry when Santa comes to town. Next?"

"My name is Lee Iacocca."

"Do you want to sit in my lap?"

"That's what I came for. I want a billion dollars in my stocking to bail out the Chrysler Corp. I wrote Santa a letter, but some dummy sent it to the North Pole."

"A billion dollars? That's a lot of money — even for Santa Claus."

WASHINGTON DATELINE

Man Of God Or Kremlin?

By PHILIP C. CLARKE
 A Polish army counterintelligence chief who defected to the West in 1966 swears the Ayatollah Khomeini was an agent for the Soviets in the 1950s. If true, it could explain some of the vicious anti-American actions of Iran's fanatic revolutionary leader — and why the Soviet Union has been treating him with kid gloves.

The former Polish espionage chief, Colonel Michael Goleniewski, is quoted as saying that the Soviet KGB penetrated the Shiite Moslem sect in the early 1950s, recruiting Khomeini as one of five top agents in Iran. He said Khomeini reported to a high Iraqi official who in turn passed information to the Soviet KGB through its agents in Warsaw where Goleniewski had his headquarters.

There has been no comment on Goleniewski's story from the CIA which reportedly debriefed the Polish defector after he was granted asylum in the U.S. The CIA rarely if ever reacts to such reports dealing with the shadowy world of intelligence and counterintelligence. And there is no independent way of determining the truth of Goleniewski's claims, as quoted by a California law firm that is negotiating for publication of his memoirs.

However, there are other indications that the crisis in Iran may very well have been the work of the Soviet intelligence apparatus in furtherance of Moscow's long-sought goal of gaining control over Iran, and ultimately the entire oil-rich Persian Gulf area.

Sadeqh Ghotbzadeh, Iran's acting foreign minister and former chief of the country's radio and television outlets, is said to have been a radical leader of demonstrations in the U.S. while a one-time student at Georgetown University.

Other reports have named one Moussavi Khoimi, a Soviet-trained Iranian Communist, as a chief agitator for the mobs that have demonstrated outside the U.S. Embassy. He is said to have received indoctrination in psychological warfare at a Moslem training center in Tashkent, U.S.S.R.

A U.S. businessman, who served with a large U.S. corporation in both Kabul, Afghanistan and in Tehran, is quoted as saying he personally recognized a number of Afghan Communists posing as Iranians, whipping up the crowds at the American embassy in Iran.

Perhaps the strongest evidence of Soviet complicity is to be found in the volume of inflammatory anti-American propaganda broadcasts that poured from Radio Moscow and a Persian language transmitter at Baku, near the Soviet border with Iran. These virulent broadcasts were toned down only after the damage had been done and tensions between the U.S. and Iran neared the point of war.

No one can say for certain whether any of the reports of Soviet KGB involvement are true or not. But former CIA Director James Schlesinger has predicted that once Iran has collapsed in total chaos and anarchy, the Communist

 NEW YORK — Jan Kiepura, the Polish tenor of the Metropolitan opera company who was demobilized by his government so that he could fulfill concert requirements in this country and in Canada, turned into a haberdashery the other day to shop in a pair of gloves at a shop on Fifth Avenue. The clerk looked the distinguished foreigner over.

"How much?" Kiepura inquired.

"Ten dollars."

"What?" cried Kiepura, aghast. "Why in Switzerland or France for three dollars I could buy a villa?"

"I know" murmured the clerk, "but who'd live there?"

Strength For Today

IT COSTS TO BE RIGHT
 There is an old saying, "The turtle never gets any place until he sticks his neck out."

This is just another way of saying that life as a whole is a calculated risk. If we are never going to take any risks, we are never going to serve our generation with much effectiveness. Many a business organization in the country is ready to subject dissenters to reprisals if they talk out of turn. In government bureaus and offices some people are ready to jeer and criticize anyone who takes a firm stand on any unpopular issue.

But when we are right, circumstances are sometimes dramatically reversed, and our opponents suffer the reverses.

Profits In Housing And OPM

By JOHN CUNNIFF
 AP Business Analyst
 NEW YORK (AP) — Albert J. Lowry moved to the Oakland, Calif. area from Canada in the early 1960s. Raised in an orphanage, poorly educated, he sought a better life for his children.

A butcher by trade, Lowry saw his future in buying low-priced houses, fixing them, renting them and finally selling them. He borrowed inexpensively, kept expenses low and paid his bills.

He too succeeded by investing in income housing, usually with little or even no money down, fixing up, renting out, sometimes selling. He now publishes a magazine and books. His Financial Freedom Institute offers hundreds of seminars each year.

Haroldsen's first book, "How To Wake Up The Financial Genius Inside You," has become a real estate classic, selling by his estimates 600,000 copies, almost all by mail-order. It followed his discovery that real estate leverage and inflation could make him a millionaire.

What makes them noteworthy is not just their millions but their sense of the times; their discovery of the affect of easy money, hard work, leverage and inflation; their translation of it into formulas; their realization that millions of others shared their dreams.

The formula involves using OPM, or other people's money. Why not, when inflation means you repay in cheaper dollars? Why not, when Uncle Sam is your partner, allowing tax deductions on interest paid?

You don't need much OPM either, because housing is a great leverager; use $10,000 wisely and you can control property worth $100,000. You can even put nothing down — Haroldsen has.

You have $100,000 of property producing $15,000 of rents from five apartments. The place looks awful, but that's the reason you got it so inexpensively. The landlord was discouraged, a "motivated seller."

You clean, paint and upgrade it, using your own sweat and maybe that of neighborhood kids. Tenants appreciate it. You raise the rents over time to $18,000. You maintain the place. You sell it for $150,000.

Before that, however, you have paid your bills — mortgage, insurance, heat, taxes, maintenance — from rents. You've gained in four ways: rental income, price appreciation, equity buildup (or loan reduction), and income taxes, the latter mainly through depreciating the building.

Court Raps John Ingram

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State Insurance Commissioner John Ingram is expected to call a news conference later this week to answer charges of ineffectiveness in office leveled by the North Carolina Court of Appeals Tuesday.

The court's criticism came in a 20-page opinion in which it set aside Ingram's rejection of a 19.8 percent increase in workers' compensation rates. It was the fifth time this year the court set aside an order from Ingram, whom it charged has failed to administer insurance laws effectively during his more than seven years as commissioner.

Ingram was not immediately available for comment. But W. Byrum Tatum, deputy commissioner and director of technical operations, said the commissioner would hold a news conference later this week.

Tatum said "the opinion ... indicates a lack of understanding of the real issues in this case."

In his opinion the court said, "Over the past seven years marking the tenure of the present commissioner of insurance, the Appellate Division (the Court of Appeals and the Supreme Court) has been beset with the burden of reviewing the commissioner's disapproval of virtually every filing which has proposed an increase in insurance rates," wrote Judge Edward B. Clark.

The court has found Ingram's orders and rulings to be unacceptable in whole or in part, Clark wrote and "the commissioner, with undesirable frequency, over an extended period of time, has failed to effectively administer the insurance rate-making statutes with the conformity of the purposes and standards prescribed by the General Assembly."

The court vacated Ingram's order after concluding he had insufficient grounds for rejecting the rate hike request from the N.C. Rate Bureau.

Under a controversial law enacted in 1977, the industry has been collecting the higher rates, subject to refund, pending the outcome of its appeal.

Tuesday's action by the court meant insurance companies can continue to collect the higher rates.

Ford says he will not be an active candidate for the Republican nomination, but would be available "in the remote possibility" that the party turned to him.

He also has said that he would run "if unforeseen developments take place between now and the convention." Ford isn't saying what that means. "It's unforeseen," he said recently. "You define it, I can't."

Since unforeseen is undefined, Ford could if he chose declare that the unforeseen had happened almost any time during the nomination campaign. He could, for example, assert that the competition was becoming so divisive as to threaten Republican prospects in the fall, and make that the basis for a late-starting campaign.

Or he could stay out, as he said he would on Oct. 19. In what Ford said was a definitive statement, he announced that he had made "a firm decision not to become an active candidate."

Apart from the contest for the 1980 Republican nomination, Ford can be above it.

There is little criticism of Ford nowadays, and more than any of the active candidates, he can speak for the party.

Clarke Col. ...

Tudeh party almost certainly will move in and pick up the pieces. It is, he said, the only truly organized political force remaining in Iran.

Unfortunately, it appears too late for the U.S. to restore the ties it once enjoyed with Iran. Having acquiesced in the downfall of the shah, the U.S. opened the way not to the moderate forces we naively thought would take over, but to mob rule.

And there's an ironic footnote to the decline of America's presence in Iran: When, after the embassy seizure, the White House turned to the CIA for background details on the principle figures in Iran's Revolutionary Council, the CIA could supply little or no information. The reason: the CIA has had its capabilities gutted by American critics in the wake of Watergate.

Our nation's vulnerability has never been more starkly revealed.

"He's my last hope. If he doesn't give it to me people will stop believing in him in the key states of Michigan, Indiana and Ohio."

"We wouldn't want that to happen at Christmas. I think Santa can dig up a billion dollars in his bag somewhere. Now, do you want to buy a table to our 'Salute to Santa' dinner in Detroit?"

"I will when I see the money."

"Ho, Ho, Ho, Ho, Next?"

"I'm the governor of New Hampshire."

"And what do you want for Christmas?"

"You haven't asked me if I've been a good boy."

"It doesn't matter. You name it and you've got it. Santa Claus never forgets New Hampshire during an election year."

Republican cause, if not for his own candidacy.

That role makes the most of Ford's political advantages. In another era, it might have been a promising route toward the nomination to try again for the White House.

But in a campaign of 35 presidential primary elections, the odds are heavily against the inactive candidate.

FOCUS

A German Tradition

Over the years, people in different countries have decorated their Christmas trees with fishnets, flags, cookies, apples, paper ornaments, strings of popcorn, and lighted candles. The first blown-glass ornaments were made in the German town of Lauscha about 130 years ago. At first these ornaments were simple glass balls that the glassblowers made for the trees in their homes. But demand for the ornaments quickly spread to the United States and elsewhere, and by 1939, the glassblowers of Lauscha had created more than 3,000 different designs. Since the division of Germany after World War II, the tradition of making glass-blown ornaments there has declined.

DO YOU KNOW — In what country did the custom of sending Christmas cards begin?

TUESDAY'S ANSWER — John F. Kennedy's image appears on the half dollar coin.

BRUCE FRYE began singing when he was old enough to talk. A songwriter as well as musician, he likes to perform according to the mood of his listeners. (Reflector photo by Leigh Coakley)

Singer Bruce Frye To Be Living On The Road

By LEIGH COAKLEY
Reflector Staff Writer

Twenty-five year old Bruce Frye is a guitarist-singer from Southern Pines. "Bruce Frye" has become a familiar name in the Greenville area. Playing in local bars in town, he has now developed quite a following.

"I began singing when I was old enough to talk," said Bruce in a recent interview after playing at the Tree House. But not until the seventh grade did he actually begin playing and singing in public. He played the drums and sang in a young group for school dances and in talent shows. He was given his first guitar by his parents after graduation from high school and taught himself to play. Bruce indicated that this was the beginning of a lifelong growing and learning process in music. He also has two musically talented brothers, Sammy and Dale.

After high school, he attended Sandhills Community College for a short while, studying Human Resources and Development. "I couldn't get excited about school and I was broke," said Bruce. He then worked as an electrician in Southern Pines until he decided to make music his career.

Bruce played with several small bands, including a group called "Friends" that was composed of his brother, a close friend and himself. The group split up, and Bruce decided to go it on his own. "I like playing with a band because the sound is so much fuller," he said. "But I get along with myself much better. I can play what I want and make my own decisions."

He classified his music as being "progressive country" but is not held to that alone. He plays tunes ranging from those of Waylan Jennings to Barbara Streisand, not excluding his original material. His musical influences are Kenny Loggins, The Beatles, and he idolizes Elvis.

Frye approaches song writing solely by inspiration. He indicated that he had tried to write for the sake of writing, but had difficulty in doing so. Songs are written at his home in Southern Pines, driving to a job, and in hotel rooms. These songs are based on past experience and dreams, according to the guitarist-singer.

In addition to becoming a "One-Man Band," Bruce has also become a businessman. He books all performances with occasional help from family and friends. He performs in small sub shops as well as large night clubs. Recently he opened for Jesse Winchester at the Pier in Raleigh and for Marshall Chapman at the Cellar Door in Washington, D.C.

Bruce records using his own equipment at home and sends tapes to club managers where he wants to play. "Professional recording will come later," he commented. "Right now I'm concerned with letting people know who I am and play in as many places as I can." He is converting his van to a "house-on-wheels" and plans to complete the work this summer. "Then I will live on the road," he said.

representation at the program, which will be held at the Holiday Inn in Williamston.

Dr. William Bost, chief of staff, presented and had approved a list of half of the medical staff, whose credentials and performance have been approved by the medical staff for a two-year period. The board also approved a number of bylaw revision for the medical staff charter.

A letter of congratulations from the N. C. Hospital Association was read. PCMH was praised for its voluntary cost containment.

Richardson reported that work on the new bed tower is on schedule and that much ground clearing and bringing of material on site is already underway.

Billy Phillips of the Board Ambulance Committee reported that the board needs to consider whether the Ambulance Department can operate at its present rates. There are fewer trips, he said, now that there's a CT scanner in the hospital and neonatal trips are more costly. He said the collections hopefully will be improved by the hospital's new policy of allowing payment with VISA and Master Charge.

A reminder was made about the annual Christmas party the medical staff gives for hospital employees. It's to be held Thursday.

The new Office of Communications and Publications was congratulated on the quality of its first issue of the new "Medical Center Report," an in-house newspaper with a format completely different from "The Torch," which it replaced.

Medical School Dean Dr. William Laupus said the steel continues to go up on the Brody Medical Science Building. He considers the progress being made good, he said.

Al Giordano, housekeeping and linens supervisor, conducted an educational program at the beginning of the meeting.

Otto Dykstra provided musical entertainment during dinner prior to the meeting.

A Review

More Than Just About Rachel Maxwell Moore

Rachel Maxwell Moore and Art in Greenville, North Carolina. By Dr. C. Sylvester Green. 1979. Greenville, The East Carolina Art Society. Illustrated, 94 pages, hardcover, $5.95.

Dr. Sylvester Green's title for his newest book, "Rachel Maxwell Moore and Art in Greenville" is apt, but it needs to be added this volume encompasses far more than the exciting story of a "dedicated and dynamic" woman.

With the skill that comes from long years of writing, and with his insight of the truest qualities of people, Dr. Green brings alive the life and life work of the late Rachel Maxwell Moore.

Born (in 1890) into a prosperous Duplin County family, Rachel Maxwell was the lone girl in a family of seven brothers. As so often happens in such cases, she was obviously the pride and joy of the brothers — a relationship that lasted all her life and continues to this day in the generosity of brothers who have contributed significantly to the art foundation in Greenville that bears her name.

Dr. Green traces the main concerns of Mrs. Moore's life — the unstinting giving of herself to the formation of the Greenville Woman's Club, and later, to establishing the foundation for an art center in Greenville. She also devoted efforts to church work in the Christian Church, to the World War II USO in Greenville, and to innumerable other worthwhile causes.

Early in life a school teacher, she was married to a Greenville native, James Henry Benjamin Moore in 1922. Friends of the Moores remember him as a handsome man in his Marine uniform — he played the trumpet in the Marine Corps Band.

All her life a lover of music

Would Delay Court's Ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House and Senate agree they would like to delay for three months the effective date of a court ruling scheduled to ban interest-paying, checking-type accounts in 43 states Jan. 1.

But an unrelated issue involving state usury laws is threatening final action on legislation to delay the effect of the court decision. The Senate approved the three-month delay Tuesday but added wording to waive state usury laws for up to 18 months. The House approved a three-month postponement of the court decision, but rejected a Senate proposal to override state usury laws. The court-delay legislation is being pushed to give more time to work out permanent legislation legalizing interest-bearing checking accounts.

and art. Mrs. Moore was responsible for the first arts festival in Greenville in 1935. From this initial effort, the seeds of a more permanent means of having art in Greenville were planted.

The unfolding of the sequence of events following this first effort is a revelation of what an interested community can do with the fortunate leadership of a woman such as Mrs. Moore. It was not an easy road, and success was not immediate, yet Mrs. Moore was one of those persons endowed with the wisdom to know that Rome was not built in a day.

"Rachel Maxwell Moore and Art in Greenville" is also the story of others who were instrumental in nourishing the growth of art and art awareness among the public in a growing Greenville.

Dr. Robert Lee Humber and Miss Lucy Cherry Crisp are given due recognition for the roles they played — both in Greenville and in the founding of the N. C. Museum of Art in Raleigh. Dr. Green also rightly assigns to Dr. Humber a propensity for older, classical art forms; and to Miss Crisp the championing of young, local (North Carolina) talent.

From the once a year art festivals, the next step diligently supported by Mrs. Moore was getting for Greenville a federal grant for the WPA art projects — one of five given for North Carolina. Later, when WPA dropped art from its national program, Greenville acquired a modest, but significant collection of art. With this as a nucleus, gallery space was acquired on the corner of Fifth and Cotanche Streets. When finances made it impossible to continue at this location, the Sheppard Memorial Library Board agreed to housing the collection at the library.

Eventually, the library had to ask that space allotted to the collection be given up due to the library's own pressing needs. This, in turn, stimulated Mrs. Moore and members of the fledgling East Carolina Art Society (which had been founded in 1956) to accelerate a move to secure a permanent home for an art center. In October, 1959, the society authorized an option on a charming brick home on the corner of South Evans and Eighth Streets. This building today remains the home of the Greenville Art Center.

Another important development — and one given ample treatment in this volume, is the story of the creation of the Rachel Maxwell Moore Foundation. Mrs. Moore was reluctant to have her name associated with it, but was persuaded by Dr. Humber and others that her name would be a prime magnet for attracting donations. Mrs. Moore's will provided that proceeds from the sale of her home be applied to the foundation. She died in 1964. Her husband had died in 1948, and the couple was childless.

The sale netted $24,000 for the foundation. Soon, Dr. Humber went to work, visiting Mrs. Moore's brothers — successful business men, the Maxwell's of Greenville with stores in the two Carolinas and Georgia. The two brothers primarily concerned, Jeff and Grover C. Maxwell, pledged a donation of $50,000 to the foundation on a matching basis. With funds already in the foundation, this meant that Greenville citizens needed to come up with $23,000 to match the Maxwell offer.

Here again, Dr. Green has lucidly outlined the development of the fund that today has total assets in excess of $125,000.

Mrs. Moore very wisely couched the terms of the foundation so that the income would be spent only for works of art for the collection housed at the Art Center.

Today, the constantly growing collection is becoming widely known as a well-rounded one presenting to the public a quality cross-section of paintings, sculpture, prints, drawings and ceramics.

The story of art in Greenville, as Dr. Green makes abundantly clear, does not end with the triumph of a talented champion — Mrs. Moore, nor with the vision and foresight of people like Dr. Humber and Miss Crisp. The pressing need now is for a new building to adequately provide space for showing the public the treasures it owns. It is in this aspect that public minded citizens like Marvin K. Bjount, Sr. have taken the lead in thinking about efforts to meet this next step on the path to creating the ultimate fulfillment of those early dreams for art in Greenville envisioned by Mrs. Moore. This small volume is a fitting tribute to a woman with the courage to fight for her dream, and pays testimony to many who have helped over the years.

Printed in 500 copies, a few more than 400 copies are still available for purchase. Copies will be available at several local bookstores, or (after the holidays) at the Greenville Art Center, 802 South Evans Street. This book is an invaluable one for art lovers in general or for anyone interested in an important phase of the history of Greenville.

Six Persons Arrested In Griffon Break-Ins

GRIFTON — Six persons, including two juveniles, have been arrested in connection with a rash of breaking, entering and larceny incidents in the Griffon area in recent weeks.

Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson reported that officers arrested Howard Moore Jr., 21, of Creekside Drive, Griffon, on three counts of breaking, entering and larceny at area homes and on four charges of possession of stolen property.

Sheriff Tyson said the break-ins were reported at the J. T. Maynard residence, 1107 Dogwood Lane, the Joseph A. Ray home at Rt. 1, Box 636, Ayden, and at the residence of Jimmy Carroll Rouse, Rt. 2, Griffon.

Moore was charged with possession of property stolen from the Maynard residence, from the Dorothy Patrick residence on Waters Street here, from the Ray residence, and from the Earl Gay home at 605 Dawson Road in Griffon.

Sheriff Tyson reported that Michael O'Neal Dawson, 21, of Rt. 1, Box 305, Griffon, was arrested and charged with two breaking, entering and larceny incidents at the Griffon Elementary School and with breaking and entering and larceny at Fred and Lea's Outlet Shop on Gordon Street here. A cassette recorder, radio and $28 in coins from the drink machine were taken in the school incidents, while clothing valued at $179 was reported stolen from the outlet shop.

One of the juveniles was charged in connection with the two school incidents and the outlet shop break-in, the sheriff said, while the second juvenile was charged with one of the school break-ins and with the outlet shop incident.

Sheriff Tyson said that Freddie Sheppard, 19, of Rt. 1, Box 305, Griffon, was charged by authorities with the outlet shop breaking and entering, while Henry Lee West of Rt. 2, Griffon was arrested on a charge of possession of stolen property in connection with the school thefts.

Hearing dates for those arrested were set for Dec. 20 in District Court here, the sheriff reported.

Among the items recovered by authorities in connection with the break-ins were two ten-speed bicycles, a .22 caliber rifle, a .410 gauge shotgun, 40-channel CB radio, cassette recorder, 35 millimeter camera, electric pencil sharpener, a.m.f.m. CB monitor radio, a box of 22 caliber bullets, three cigarette lighters, eight-foot tape measurer, gold pocket watch, cloth bag of pennies, high school ring, five pieces of foreign coins, and some 24 different items of sweaters, shirts and jeans.

Stall Report Seniors Elect New Officers At Meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — A minority on the Senate Armed Services Committee has successfully stalled for at least one day a majority effort to force approval of a report condemning the SALT II treaty.

The panel put off action until today after a private, two-hour squabble Tuesday.

One member, Sen. James Exon, D-Neb., complained that he believes the report may have been written before committee hearings on military aspects of the pact began. He is suggesting the panel compromise by approving the bulk of the report but dropping its conclusions.

Another deadlocked issue is jurisdiction. The minority contends the Senate Foreign Relations Committee has sole jurisdiction over treaties and that no other committee plays a role.

Exon said although he is leaning against SALT II, he is fearful of precedents being set or of "invading the prerogatives of the Foreign Relations Committee," which has voted 9-6 to recommend the Senate approve the treaty.

While a 9-8 majority of the Armed Services Committee is acknowledged to be against the treaty, a formal vote by the panel against the pact would enable treaty opponents to claim military experts cannot support SALT II.

Jackson and other SALT opponents contend since they have the majority they are entitled to a vote. Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said, "The majority of this committee is ready to go on record against a SALT treaty."

Town and Country Senior Citizens Club held its business meeting and Christmas Party last week at St. Paul's Episcopal Church Fellowship Hall.

Rev. Adrian Brown opened the meeting with a Christmas devotion, and Mrs. Sarah J. Ashton welcomed the 100 members and guests.

Gifts of appreciation were presented to Mrs. Ashton from the members by Lonnie Hathaway and Mrs. Nora Hunnings.

Plans are being made for the members to attend the Southern Living Flower Show in Charlotte in February. Anyone interested in attending should contact Mrs. Ashton.

Officers for 1980 were elected and will be installed Jan. 3.

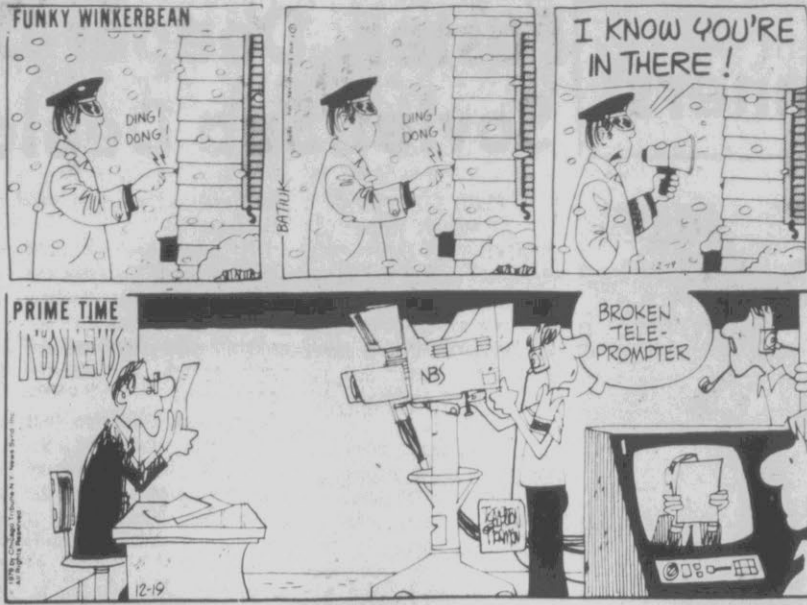

Dallas Braxton, D. H. Conley student, presented a program of Christmas and was accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Annette Braxton.

The Christmas luncheon was served and the meeting was closed.

Guests present were Miss Novella Exum, Mrs. Mary B. Jenkins, Mr. Walter Weillman.

The luncheon committee was Mrs. Repsy Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Roper, Mr. and Mrs. James Ward, Mrs. Francis Dixon, Mrs. Eula Andrews, Mrs. Lillian McDaniels, Mrs. Alma Letchworth, Mrs. Ruth Harris, and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Fornes.

Faster, Deeper-Diving Soviet Sub Deployed

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. intelligence sources say the Soviet Union has started deploying a new nuclear-powered attack submarine that is faster and can dive deeper than the most advanced American subs.

The Alfa-class submarine may pose a major problem for the U.S. Navy in the future if it is built in large numbers, analysts say. Attack submarines are used to fight other submarines and to hunt and sink naval and merchant surface ships. U.S. intelligence has been aware for some time that the Russians were testing the new Alfa submarine, but its first operational deployment into the North Atlantic was detected only recently.

There were indications that the Alfa sub accompanied a Soviet missile-firing submarine from the northern part of the Soviet Union, using the noise of the Alfa's machinery to throw off U.S. acoustic devices seeking to track the missile submarine to its patrol area.

The Alfa sub has since headed back toward its home base in the Arctic region of the Soviet Union, said the sources who asked not to be named.

Very little has been disclosed publicly by defense officials in congressional testimony about the Alfa submarine.

Adm. Hyman G. Rickover, the Navy's nuclear propulsion expert, told Congress in late October that the Russians have a "new, deep-running, very fast nuclear attack submarine." He did not elaborate.

A Navy source estimated the Alfa-class sub can travel submerged at speeds over 40 knots. That would be faster than the U.S. Los Angeles-class submarines, which are believed to generate speeds over 30 knots.

Naval experts said the new Soviet submarine can operate at depths of 2,000 feet and possibly deeper. That would take the Alfa below the maximum depth of U.S. subs.

A key to the reported high-speed and deep-diving abilities of the Alfa is said to be the use of titanium rather than steel in construction of hulls.

Titanium is considered to be much stronger than steel and able to take the enormous pressures experienced in ocean depths. Titanium is lighter in weight than steel.

The Soviets customarily pay less attention to making their submarines quieter, and thus less vulnerable to anti-submarine attacks, than do American designers. Navy experts say the Russians apparently are willing to sacrifice the security of quieter engines in favor of higher speeds generated by noisier power plants.

Faced with the oncoming problem of dealing with the Alfa-class subs, the Navy in August moved into advanced development of a new lightweight torpedo to counter the Alfas.

Two Out Of Five Fear Can't Pay Fuel Bills

By EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Nearly two out of five Americans are worried they won't be able to pay their home heating bills this winter, an Associated Press-NBC News poll says.

Almost half of those who use fuel oil for heating are afraid they can't afford to keep warm, while slightly more than one-third of those who heat with natural gas or electricity are similarly concerned.

Americans are still concerned that not enough heating oil and other fuels will be available this winter, but that fear has apparently been overshadowed by worries about being able to pay for the fuel.

Thirty-eight percent of those questioned Dec. 11 and 12 said they are worried about being able to pay for the fuel to heat their homes this winter. Sixty-two percent were not worried.

That 38 percent broke down into 17 percent who were very worried about being able to meet their heating bills and 20 percent who were only somewhat worried. One percent of the 1,595 adults interviewed nationwide by telephone were not sure.

Those most worried about paying their bills use heating oil.

Forty-eight percent of those polled who use heating oil are worried about paying their bills, versus 52 percent who aren't worried. Twenty-three percent are very worried and 24 percent somewhat worried about the bills. One percent was not sure.

Thirty-six percent of those who heat with natural gas and 34 percent of those who use electricity were worried about the bills. For each group, roughly half were very worried about paying their bills with the other half somewhat worried.

Fewer Americans now are worried about being able to get enough fuel for heating this winter. Earlier in the year, there were concerns of heating oil shortages this winter. But, under prodding from the government, oil companies stockpiled large quantities of the fuel and consumers are apparently making a major effort to conserve.

Seventy-two percent of those questioned said they are not worried about getting enough fuel this winter, while 28 percent are worried.

Ten percent are still very worried about availability, and 17 percent are somewhat worried. One percent was not sure.

As with every sample survey, the results of the AP-NBC News poll can vary from the opinions of all those with telephones across the country because of chance variations in the sample.

For polls of about 1,600 interviews, the results should vary no more than 3 percentage points either way simply because of sample error. That is, if one could talk to all adults in the country, there is only one chance out of 20 that the results would vary from the findings of this poll by more than 3 percentage points.

Of course, the results could also vary because of differences in question wording, timing of the interviews and the methods of interviewing.

Tail Cone Lost Due Latch Flaw

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration says a cracked spring latch caused a Republic Airlines DC-9 to lose its tail cone for the second time in just over a week.

"There is no apparent problem with the design of the DC-9," FAA spokesman Jack Barker said Tuesday in Atlanta. "The problem is with this particular aircraft."

No injuries were reported when the jet, carrying 36 passengers and four crew members, lost the 10-foot-long tail cone while landing Monday night at Memphis International Airport.

NEW YORK (AP) - Stock prices gave ground today as the price of gold soared to another record high in world markets.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 4.69 to 833.96 in the first half hour.

Losers outnumbered gainers by a 5-2 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The gold price shot up to $494 an ounce at the morning fixing in London. It dropped back to $488.50 at the afternoon fixing, but that was still $11 above where it had stood 24 hours before.

Gold is considered a good indicator of the level of concern and uncertainty around the world over such problems as inflation, pressure on the dollar in foreign exchange, and oil prices.

Delegates to an Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries meeting in Caracas were still trying today to reach an agreement on pricing plans.

Today's early prices included Chrysler, unchanged at 6 1/2; American Telephone & Telegraph, off 1/8 at 52 1/2; and Clark Equipment, off 1/8 at 37 1/2.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 5.97 to 838.65.

Declines outnumbered advances by more than a 2-1 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 43.31 million shares, against 43.83 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index lost .55 to 62.06.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off 1.97 at 242.18.

ODU Comeback Stops Pirates

Looking For A Teammate

East Carolina's Herb Gray (20) holds the ball over his head as he looks for a teammate to pass to during action last night in Minges Coliseum. Old

Dominion's Ronnie Valentine (42) keeps on eye on Gray. The Monarchs, unbeaten in five outings, rallied from behind to nip the Pirates, 70-65, in the game. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Old Dominion's Monarchs, with their unbeaten string on the line, came back out in the second half red hot, and before they could be cooled off, they had erased a seven-point East Carolina lead and established enough of their own to hold on for a 70-65 victory over the Pirates.

East Carolina led throughout most of the first half, building up as much as a 13-point lead at one time. But the Old Dominion team, which came in with a 4-0 record, fought back to trail by seven at the half.

They came back out and hit nine of their first 11 shots from the floor, while the Pirates were missing their first six, and it established them with a 55-51 lead over the Pirates.

East Carolina managed to cut the lead back down to one with 3:48 left, but turned the ball over several key trips up the floor after that, and it allowed the Monarchs to hold onto the lead, then stretch it to as much as five again before the horn.

"It was a tremendously disappointing second half after a near perfect first half," Pirate coach Dave Odom said. "I've got to say that the better team won tonight. They have tremendous talent to be so young, and they are more poised than their age would indicate. It's a credit to them and no discredit to us."

Odom said he felt that free throws and turnover were key factors in deciding the game, and it turned out to be that way. The Monarchs hit on 16 of 23 tries at the line, including nine of eleven after they had established their four-point lead. East Carolina, meanwhile hit just 13 of 20, and made just four of five tries in the final ten minutes.

Overall, East Carolina ended up with 19 turnovers as compared to three less for the Monarchs.

Rebounding in the second half was also a big factor. The Monarchs held a 22-12 edge in that department, and it was fatal.

"We quit playing smart after the first half. We started forcing it," Odom said. "The game became a half-court game instead of a full-court game, and that's ironical, since I thought that we'd be better off in a half-court game. As it turned out, we did better with the full-court game. I thought that their guards were too quick for us in the full-court game."

Odom also called the foul situation critical. "Herb Gray got his fourth early and had to come out. He was unable to do his thing on (Ronnie) Valentine and he took advantage of it."

Odom also claimed he made a coaching error in not calling time out when Old Dominion was running off its string in the opening minutes of the second half. That turned the game from a 41-34 deficit into a 42-41 lead before Gray was credited with a goal on a goal-tending call.

"We should have called a time out to switch the defensive tempo, to give them something else to look at. Instead I sat in my seat and didn't do anything."

Odom also felt that the Pirates may have gotten a little anxious in the closing minutes of the half and lost some momentum. They had the chance to up their lead by several points, but hurried when they got down court and made several turnovers that Old Dominion capitalized on.

After spotting the Monarchs the opening basket, the Pirates, behind the early hot shooting of George Maynor, charged ahead, moving out to a 16-6 lead in the first seven minutes of play. They upped that to 18-6 before Old Dominion hit again, and later led by 13 at 25-12 after a Frank Hobson free throw.

But the Monarchs began to hit a better percentage in the late stages, and, helped along by some late turnovers, came within six several times before settling for the 41-34 halftime margin.

"We told 'em we played bad in the first half," ODU coach Paul Webb said of his half-time talk. "We said we just had to get our game together. We were getting down in a hurry and not really recognizing what defense East Carolina was in. They switched defenses a lot and it bothered us. In the second half, we slowed it down enough to recognize the defense and work our game around it."

Most of the early second half baskets came on long bombs as the Monarchs displayed a hot hand as the second half started. They took the lead for good at 51-49 on a jumper by Tommy Bunch, who added a jumper from the lane with 13:02 left for a 53-49 lead, ending the string of nine of 11 shots hit.

While the Pirates fell back by five, they rallied to within one at 64-63, but Grant Robinson, one of two freshman in the game at key times, hit from the circle with 3:31 left and East Carolina turned it over. Still, after ODU missed at the line, Michael Gibson tapped in a rebound with 1:38 left to trim it to 66-65, but the Pirates were forced to foul after that, and ODU knocked in four straight, two each by Robinson and Bunch, ending the ECU hopes.

"East Carolina has a fine team," Webb said. "They're the best we've played so far. Odom has done an excellent job in a short period of time with this bunch."

Old Dominion, with a cold first half, shot just 41.5 percent for the game. The Pirates, who blazed through the first half at 53.3 shot only 38.5 in the second half for a 46.4 overall mark.

The Pirates were outrebounded, 42-37, with Valentine snatching off a game-high 16. He also led the ODU scoring with 19, while Bobby Vaughn had 13. Branch and Robinson each had 12 and Ronnie McAdoo had ten, all in the second half.

East Carolina was paced by Maynor with 22, while Herb Krusen had 12.

East Carolina, now 7-3, travels to Reno, Nev., for the Wolf Pack Classic, which begins Friday. They face Northern Arizona in the first round, while Kent State takes on hosting Nevada-Reno.

Rampants Hold Off Pam Pack

By RICK SCOPE
Reflector Sports Writer

WASHINGTON — The two white-on-black banners hanging on the wall in the Washington High School gym testify of better days, of 1978 and 1979 when the Pam Pack won back-to-back 3-A basketball titles.

Those days are gone, but the memories linger. Last night Greenville Rose made more than one Washington fan wish for those past days of glory as the blue-clad visitors handed the Pam Pack their fifth loss of the season, 42-40. Earlier, The Lady Pack took a 61-39 win over the Rampettes.

The Rampants, now 4-1, led the entire first half, but saw their lead evaporate in the third period. Early in the final quarter Washington moved to a five-point bulge before Rose came back in the final minutes to win, thanks to clutch baskets by Donald House and Tyrone Tucker.

Trailing 38-36 with 1:26 left, Rose's House, who moments earlier had brought the small but vocal Rose following to its feet on a dunk, which tied the score at 36-36, took a pass on the fast break for a layup and was fouled.

House, who, along with Wallace Brown, led Rose with 12 points, missed the free throw but the lanky Tucker grabbed the rebound and put it in, giving Rose a 40-38 lead with 68 seconds remaining.

Seconds later, James Boston, who led the Pam Pack with 14 points, hit both ends of a 1-1 to pull Washington even.

The Rampants then went into a semi-stall, looking for the last shot. Rose had gone in the stall earlier, in the third period, and had lost its lead. This time, however, the stall worked to near-perfection.

With the clock clicking down, Rose guard Calvin Whichard drove down the middle and hit Tucker breaking for the basket on the right. Tucker layed the ball up and Rose led, 42-40, with eight seconds left.

After a time out, Washington hurriedly moved the ball up court, against a mild Rose press, but missed a long jumper from the right corner as time ran out.

"That was a designed play," said Rose coach Jim Brewington of Whichard's pass to Tucker.

"We wanted to get the last shot and it was a great play. We didn't expect to get a lay up, but we'll take it."

"I told them to make the move and they did," he said. "It was just a great play."

"This is a great win for the kids," said Brewington who recorded his first victory ever over Washington. "The kids just came through for us."

In the first minutes neither team played as if it wanted to win. Rose missed its first six shots of the night while Washington made only one of four and turned the ball over three times.

Still, the Rampants managed to take an 11-9 first period lead, mainly on the inside play of House, who hit for five points in the opening quarter.

Rose extended its lead to 18-11 midway through the second period on an inside move by Tucker, a three-point play by House and a jumper by Whichard.

Washington crept back, however, and at the half Rose led, 24-20.

Following the break, Rose us-

Women Face Stanford In Carolina Classic

East Carolina's women's basketball team challenges strong Stanford University Thursday in the first round of the Carolina Christmas Classic in Chapel Hill.

The Pirates face the Cardinals in a 4 p.m. game, the second of the first round of the tournament. Clemson and Indiana collude in the first game at 2 p.m., followed by Mercer and 20th-ranked Pittsburgh at 7 p.m. and Northern Kentucky against hosting North Carolina at 9 p.m.

Friday, the afternoon losers meet at 2 p.m., with the evening losers at 4 p.m. The afternoon winners meet at 7 p.m., and the night winners at 9 p.m.

Saturday, the teams with two losses are eliminated, and the consolation finals will be at 10 a.m. The fight for third place will be at 12 noon, and the championship game at 2 p.m.

In its bracket, the Lady Pirates, at 7-1, bring in the best record, but Coach Cathy Andrzi doesn't feel that this makes them the favorites. Clemson is 7-2, while Stanford is 4-3 and Indiana, 5-5.

"Stanford has a very good team. They have two true all-America players in Juane Ruark and Angie Paccione.

They are well coached and I think we're going to have our hands full."

The Cardinals will field a taller starting lineup than will the Pirates. Ruark and the other forward, Anne Miller, are both 6-0, and center Louise Smith is 6-1. Debbie Core, at 5-6, is the shortest starter, while Paccione is 5-8. All five starters are sophomores.

Ruark leads the Cardinal scoring with an 18.4 average, and is also the leading rebounder at 7.7. Smith has a 14.1 scoring mark, while Paccione averaged 10.4. East Carolina counters with

Pardee Named Coach Of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Pardee, who guided the aging, draft-poor Washington Redskins to within a whisker of a division championship, was named today the National Football League Coach of the Year by The Associated Press.

Pardee received 30 of the 84 votes cast by a nationwide panel of sports writers and sports broadcasters, three in each league city. Dick Vermeil, of the Philadelphia Eagles was a close second with 23 votes.

Other coaches receiving more than one vote were Don Coryell of the San Diego Chargers, 10; John McKay of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, 7; Sam Rutigliano of the Cleveland Browns, 6; and Bum Phillips of the Houston Oilers, 4.

The Redskins, 8-8 last year and picked by many to fall below .500 this season, rose instead to 10-6 and came within 40 seconds of beating Dallas for the National Conference East title before losing to the Cowboys 35-34.

"It's a great honor to have been selected," Pardee said. "Certainly I would have rather had a couple of more points last Sunday. I'd trade the individual honor for team honors anytime. But considering the other coaches I was up against it really is an honor to be chosen and I accept the award on behalf of the entire team."

In 1978, after one year as head coach of the World Football League's Florida Blazers and three seasons as head coach of the NFL's Chicago Bears, Pardee took over the Redskins' reins. He inherited a veteran-packed team whose future had been mortgaged by George Allen's "the future is now" philosophy. Allen, seeking instant success (he achieved it to a moderate degree in the early and mid-1970s), dealt away most of Washington's draft choices for older players.

Jaguars Nip Aycock In Overtime

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central's Mike Horne knocked through the first of two free throws with 21 seconds left to give the Jaguars a three-point lead, and they hung on to take a 61-60 overtime win over C.B. Aycock last night.

The Jaguar girls also won their game, winning 41-35. Farmville's boys rolled up an 18-12 lead in the first period, but couldn't sustain their momentum. Aycock came back to reverse the first period score and knot it at 30-30 at halftime.

Aycock then took the advantage, 16-8, in the third period, building a 46-38 lead. But the Jaguars rallied, regaining the lead, but David Thomas hit with 41 seconds left to tie it and a Jaguar shot at the horn missed.

In the overtime, Horne and Ronald Dixon both hit for Farmville for a 60-56 lead, but Jeff Best hit for Aycock. Horne then hit his free throw for a 61-58 lead with 21 seconds left. Best pulled it to within one with nine seconds left, and after Farmville missed a one-and-one with seven showing, failed to hit a hasty shot at the horn.

Dennis Pitt led Farmville with 25, while Horne added 12. Thomas paced Aycock with 20, while Best had 17 and Barry Uzzell had 13. Johnny Howell added ten.

In the girls' game, Farmville inched ahead, 13-11 after one period and held that for a 22-20 halftime lead. Aycock inched ahead in the third frame, 28-27, but Farmville outthit the Falconettes, 14-7, to the wire, giving the Jags the victory.

Etta Gorham led Farmville with 14, while Diana Gordon added 13. No one had double figures for Aycock.

Farmville's teams, now both 5-3 overall and 3-2 in the Eastern Carolina Conference, play at Roanoke tonight.

Conley Nips Cougars, Takes Over First

PINETOPS — D.H. Conley's boys slipped past Southwest Edgecombe, 59-52, last night, and thanks to an upset victory by Farmville Central over Charles B. Aycock, also slipped into sole possession of first place in the Eastern Carolina Conference.

However, Southwest's girls, unbeaten so far this year, kept it up with a 63-36 win over the Valkyries.

Conley and the Cougars both pushed through 12 points in the first period of the game, but Conley came back with a 20-16 margin in the second quarter, pushing out to a 32-28 halftime lead.

The Cougars came back in the third period with a three-point advantage to hang close, trailing only 42-41 as the final quarter opened. But Conley outscored them down the stretch, 17-11, claiming the victory.

Mitchell Moore led Conley with 18, while O'Hara Parker had 10. James Daniels paced Southwest with 17, while Charles Odum has 12 and Danny Roberson had 10.

Southwest's girls rolled out to a 17-6 lead in the first period and were never pressed. They extended their lead to 35-12 by halftime and to 51-20 by the end of the third period. The Cougarettes allowed a 16-12 comeback in the final quarter.

Alphelia Jenkins led Southwest with 29 points, while Britt Jenkins added 10. Glenda Green had 12 to pace Conley.

The Vikes are now 6-1 overall and 4-1 in the league, while the girls are 4-3 and 2-3, respectively. They entertain Washington on Thursday.

Emory Says Recruiting Key

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Ed Emory, the new head football coach at East Carolina University, told the Greenville Sports Club yesterday that recruiting was the key to future successes at the school.

Emory said that his first duties as the new coach were to get started on putting together a staff that could recruit and coach. "We've got four good people now, three full time and one part time," he said, "and all of them are out recruiting now."

Emory took the occasion to announce that Frank Orgel, a member of the former staff, would remain as defensive coordinator, but that Dick Kupec, while offered a position on the new staff, decided to go elsewhere.

"We hope to finish off our staff shortly," Emory said.

Through Tuesday noon, the coach said that six players had been signed to pacts, although they will not be binding until the national letters of intent are signed next spring. The six included two offensive linemen, two linebackers, a kicker and a nose guard. One of the linebackers was tagged by Emory as the best of his position in the state of Georgia.

"Our number one need is for offensive linemen. Junior college people are great if you can bring them in in the spring, but we don't want to build our program on junior college people," he said. He did indicate that several junior college players probably would be recruited.

Emory listed his second priority at defensive end, followed by the defensive line and quarterbacks.

that type of schedule. We are going to have to broaden our recruiting base. We can get skill people out of eastern North Carolina, but we're going to have to recruit all of North Carolina, Virginia and parts of South Carolina and Georgia and maybe further north to find the big linemen we need."

Emory pointed out that the Pirates are handicapped by a low recruiting budget. "Richmond has more than we do. This needs upgrading, and I have promises that it will be upgraded," he said.

Emory said that having good recruiters was the first step to a good program, followed by having the budget to work with in that phase of the game. "We need to improve our facilities and the weight room is the first thing that we need. I have someone coming in to look over what we have and tell us where to go from there. We also need a strength coach."

Emory listed having a strong schedule as also an important factor in recruiting.

"I know you lost a great coach in Pat Dye. But I'll pledge to do all in my power. I'm a builder. I'll push for details in the program more than anyone. I'll work for the best I can work for."

The Sports Club will have only one January meeting, on the 15th, when Wake Forest football coach John Mackovic will be the speaker.

Through Tuesday noon, the coach said that six players had

"We have the toughest schedule that East Carolina has ever had next year, and we've got to have the linemen to play

Rocky Mount won seven of the 13 weights, and managed a draw in another. Each team won one match on a forfeit, and Rose three by pins, while Rocky Mount had two pins.

The loss left Rose with a 2-4 mark on the year. The Rampants travel to Wilson to take on Fike on Thursday.

Gibson did say he was encouraged by one thing: "We seem to have found the team leader, Sharon Williams. The girls are looking for her."

Williams led the Rampants in scoring with 18 points. Donna Cullipher chipped in 13.

Washington was led by Kim Guilford with 17. Lynn Hodges and Brenda Minns added 16 for the winners.

the scoring and rebounding of Rosie Thompson, hitting 22.1 per game from the floor, and pulling off 11.6 rebounds. Kathy Riley is averaging 15.8 points, while Lydia Rountree is averaging 13.5 points per game.

The Pirates, too, may be without point guard Laurie Sikes, who injured her knee against Campbell on Saturday. "She'll probably be able to play sparingly," Andruzzi said. "We'll probably start Lillion Barnes in her place, but she is a different type player. She is more offensive minded, while Laurie is a better defensive player. She's capable of doing the job for us, however."

Andruzzi said she was uncertain what type of defense she would employ against the Cardinals. "I just want our girls to do the best they can. This is a tournament with a lot of prestige to it and it will help us to do well." The coach feels that while Pittsburgh, with its ranking, would be the natural favorite, that Clemson and Stanford both can be strong contenders for the title.

Following the tournament, the Lady Pirates are idle until January 3 when they travel to Marshall University.

Washington outscored the Rampants 9-4 in the period to take a 29-28 lead into the final quarter.

The Pam Pack moved their advantage to 33-28 early in the final period but Rose quickly countered with two baskets by Brown.

Washington upped its lead to 36-32 from there, but a long jumper by Brown from the right brought the Rampants to within two and set the stage for the late fireworks by Rose.

"I think the key to the game was that we never let them get too far ahead," said Brewington as he shook his players' hands as they filled past him on the way to the team bus. "They'd get a little lead and we'd come right back."

"We got the kind of team that can do that. We never let them get too far ahead" he said. "But I was still worried all night. We came through though."

In the girls' game, Rose trailed from the outset, as the Pam Pack moved ahead, 6-0, early and then extended their lead to 18-8 at the end of the first period.

Ahead by nine at the half, 31-20, Washington outscored the Rampants, 12-6, and 19-12 in the final two periods to notch their fifth win of the season against two losses. Rose is 1-4.

"We came out extremely cold," Rose coach Dennis Gibson said. "I don't know if it was the atmosphere or what, but we left our offense back in Greenville."

"The shots we normally make weren't falling and our defense, which is usually good, wasn't very good tonight," he said.

"After we got behind early, I think the girls panicked a little," Gibson said. "They (Washington) came out in a half-court press, the same thing we were going to run at them, and I think the girls didn't know how to react."

"We've worked on it in practice, but we hadn't run up against it in a game."

"Overall, we just didn't have a good night."

Boaters See Oregon Rolls A Tax Dodge

COOS BAY, Ore. (UPI) — Oregon ports are being exploited as a million-dollar tax dodge by pleasure boat owners from other states.

Boats that would cost their owners thousands of dollars in fees or taxes if registered in states like California or Florida are instead put on the rolls in Oregon, where fees and assessments are minimal, state and local officials say.

The practice contravenes federal law, and many tax-jumpers are being hunted down in a cooperative program between Oregon and California.

For example, some 45 boats are carried on Coos County, Ore., tax rolls that officials believe seldom — if ever — see their nominal home port of Coos Bay, says Allen Swenson of the Coos County assessor's office.

The boats are registered to Oregon corporations, "set up," he says, "merely for the tax advantage."

"In Oregon, documented boats are taxed at 4 percent of their assessed value. In other words, they have a 96 percent exemption on their value. In California, any pleasure boat is taxed at full value."

"If they license through Oregon, the fee is $88, as opposed to $13,000 in taxes on some of them in California."

A number of boats registered in Coos Bay are owned by Oregon corporations with a post office box or street address which is that of a Bay Area law firm, according to a list compiled by the assessor's office.

Others on the list show Washington, California, Texas, Florida, and even Mexican addresses.

"You can bet they've never been here," Swenson claims. "Most of the time when we send out tax returns on something like that, we never get anything back — just a statement saying it's not an Oregon boat, that it's never been in Oregon. If I can't find them in any port, there's a good chance they're from another state and just using an Oregon address."

Local tax officials don't do much about such tax-jumpers because "at 4 percent of value, we can't afford to spend much time on a boat."

"Maybe we'll only get $5,000 when one piece of logging equipment is going to bring 10 times that amount, and you know there it is all the time," according to Swenson.

"We don't keep track of them unless they apply for moorage here," adds Dick Scott, manager of the Port of Coos Bay's crowded Charleston Small Boat Basin, where some 400 commercial fishing boats and about 200 pleasure vessels dock legitimately. "There are plenty that we never see — and ports closer to California, such as Brookings, probably have quite a few documented out of there, too."

The Coast Guard documentation office in Coos Bay says proof of ownership and a fee of a dollar or two are all that's required to register a vessel. As of August, a total of 1,152 boats of all types were registered out of Coos Bay.

Gardening Expected To Increase

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor
Thirty-three million American households planted food gardens this year, a two million increase over 1978.

That's only the beginning, says Jack Robinson. Robinson predicts a dramatic increase in 1980 because the same economic conditions exist that occurred in 1975, when home gardening hit an all-time high. Forty-nine percent of all households had vegetable gardens that year.

Robinson's figures are from the 1979 National Gardening Survey, an annual study by the Gallup Organization for Gardens for All, the Burlington-based, non-profit membership group Robinson heads. Gardens for All helps organize community gardens and publishes gardening materials.

Forty-one percent of the nation's 78 million households had food gardens this year, the Gallup survey showed. Findings are based on more than 3,000 personal interviews projectable to the nation as a whole.

Robinson thinks the recently released 1979 survey may mark the end of a gradual decline in food gardening that began in 1976.

He anticipates a big increase because of rising prices for both food and fuel for transportation. Because people are staying home more, they have more time for gardening and other leisure activities.

Even so, food gardening was only number eight on a list of 30 activities showing how Americans used their free time this year. Forty-two percent of 68-million households planted food gardens.

But if you combine the outdoor food gardens with indoor houseplant growing and other outdoor gardening (flowers, fruit, yard care), the activity moves into second place, only 9 percentage points behind number one, watching television.

Other high-ranking activities were:

- Listening to music - 76 percent
- Cooking and baking as a hobby - 70 percent
- Reading books - 65 percent
- Making pleasure trips by car - 59 percent
- Watching professional sports on TV - 50 percent
- Sewing and needlepoint - 46 percent

Despite the high visibility of joggers, roller skaters, bicyclists and other active sports-people, general exercise and physical fitness came in ninth, one percentage point below food gardening.

About one third of the gardeners in the 1979 survey have been tilling the soil for less than 10 years.

The study showed four million new gardeners picked up spade and hoe this year, but half dropped out because of poor health, loss of gardening space or disappointment with their efforts.

Those who stuck with it harvested produce worth $13 billion. Their average cost per garden - $19. Average dollar yield - $386. Total net saving - $367.

On the food garden front, two things never change. Tomatoes remained the most popular vegetable and economics, the major reason. Reasons two and three were fun and better tasting food.

Car Found, Now Owner Missing

ROCKY HILL, Conn. (AP) - Nine years ago, police could not find the car Dwight Rogers swore he lost in the Connecticut River.

But this week, divers recovered the old blue 1966 Chevrolet from the river, full of mud, eels and fish. At first, police were at a loss to explain the car, but dispatcher Winnie Zimzewicz remembered Rogers.

Zimzewicz said Rogers told police he had fallen asleep in his car and awoke to find it slipping into the river. The dispatcher said Rogers told them he managed to swim to safety.

At the time, police could not find the car, leading them to discount Rogers' claim. Now they say they have another mystery to solve.

They can't find Rogers.

Jesus Reared In A Loving Atmosphere

EDITOR'S NOTE — While Jesus was raised tenderly by his mother, the influence of Joseph was all-encompassing. This third installment in a five-part Christmas series, "The Secret Years," describes family life during the boyhood of Jesus.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

A warm hearth ... a big outdoors ... the scampers ... the tumbles ... the duties ... school, the budding questions ... a dependable father and a tender mother. These are the bulwarks of a boy, as they were to Jesus.

He always cherished the perspective of childhood. "... to such belongs the kingdom of God," he later described it.

His family, after being harried hither and yon for at least the first three years of his life, finally gravitated back to tribal territory, the rustic village of Nazareth in the northern uplands of Galilee.

This wasn't what Joseph had intended, considering the past tension he had faced there over his marriage. On returning from exile in Egypt, he had planned to take his family back to Bethlehem, but when he learned that Archelaus, a rapacious son of Herod, was Rome's newly named ruler in southern Israel, "he was afraid to go there," as Scripture notes.

Turmoil raged in that region, with heathen occupation legions executing rebellious Jewish throngs en masse, including three thousand at a riot in the courts of the Temple in Jerusalem. Resistance also smoldered in Galilee, but it was more remote from reprisals.

This was particularly so of Nazareth, a bucolic little town of plowmen, shopkeepers, field hirelings and sheep raisers, situated on a curving mountain-side overlooking the plain of Esdraelon to the south.

There, as related in primitive Christian writings not accepted in the church's later compilation of the gospels, the boy Jesus roamed the hills and wooded draws, gathered firewood, drew water, squatted by a brook and molded toys of wet clay, romped in the pastures.

"Come, my playfellows," he is quoted as he skipped among a herd of goats. "Let us play together."

He took falls, once from a thatched roof; he helped a man who sliced his foot with an ax, frankly mixed colors in a dyer's vats, scuffled with other children and got hit by a stone hurled by one of them, the accounts say. He knew the whirling precision of a slingshot himself.

Joseph at times reprimanded him, once for talking back to a cranky woman who objected to his wading on the Sabbath.

"For thy sake," Jesus assertedly responded to Joseph, "I will hold my peace." The boy had spunk but, as Scripture observes, he remained obedient to his elders.

His native tongue was Aramaic, a common Hebrew dialect, and as he grew older, he may have acquired some Greek and Latin from the foreign influx. Whenever orange-caped soldiers of "Edom" rode by, his schoolmates spat on the ground. The times were revolutionary, and continued so throughout his life on earth.

He was part of a big clan of relatives there in Nazareth. Scripture mentions sisters and four brothers, terms often meaning cousins. Non-canonical literature also lists four brothers and two sisters, describing them as older children of Joseph by a previous marriage, most of them grown up.

It is said that the youngest of them, James, was brought up by Mary, along with Jesus, and that the two boys worked together with Joseph, their muscles toughening as they wielded the ax, adze and chisel.

Other kinspeople also lived nearby, including the more prosperous Zebedees, who had a fishing fleet on the Lake of Galilee 15 miles away. Their two high-strung sons, James and John, eventually became apostles of their cousin, Jesus.

The house in Nazareth was lean in possessions, but abundant in devotion.

It was dug into the limestone mountainside, with niches in the walls for oil lamps and utensils, chests for clothing, a grilled fire pit, and floor mattresses of rushes. Fixed to the doorpost was a mezuzah, symbol of divine guardianship over all Jewish homes. It contained a folded parchment bearing the great Shema:

"Here, O Israel: The Lord our God is one Lord ..."

Judging by their known religious habits, they ate kosher food — mostly barley bread, cheese, spiced vegetables, fruit, fish and poultry and, on festival days, mutton. Like most women, Mary usually did the grain grinding and cooking in an outdoor courtyard.

In devout Jewish households, every meal and every action, no matter how ordinary, evoked praise to God and thanksgiving, beginning with the cock's crow in the morning. "Praise be thou, O Lord our God, ruler of the universe, who hast given the cock intelligence to distinguish night and day."

Faith permeated living. The rabbinical sages set about a hundred benedictions to accompany every sort of pleasure, work and activity, as commonplace as tying on a belt, for the earth and all its functions were considered sacred, natural and supernatural combined. "The earth is the Lord's, and the fullness thereof."

Not a single sparrow falls, nor hair grows, without God's active concern, Jesus would later emphasize. And he gleaned his parables — teaching lessons — from his boyhood surroundings, from sowers, sprouting seeds, shepherds and workmen.

His exemplar as a "father," the sturdy old Joseph, of calloused hands and dauntless heart, gave the boy a new, vivid term for expressing the intimacy of the divine relationship, "Our Father ..."

As a woodworker and joiner, Joseph would have earned about a drachma (20 cents) or two a day. Jesus must have gone with him regularly to fell timber and drag it back to the shop to be shaped into yokes and plows.

"It is just as necessary," the rabbis taught, "to teach one's son a manual trade as to feed him."

Advocate Of Chicago's Homosexuals For 50 Years

By JAMES LITKE
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — The magazines in his solemn, wainscoted law office range from the most recent editions of the corporate guidebook, Fortune, to those of Christopher Street, a slick journal for homosexuals.

been battling on behalf of Chicago's gay community for half a century.

The 73-year-old Goldman smoothes a tuft of gray hair as he sits in his office across from City Hall and talks about the homosexual world, a world through which he moves freely, albeit not as "an intimate at their cocktail parties."

"The entire thing was happenstance. I was involved defending some 150 people after a Chicago bathhouse was raided (in 1929), and the exposure was substantial," said Goldman.

"People labeled me 'the fairy lawyer.' It was a common expression, and they would call my cases 'pansies or fruits.'"

Goldman said he has "argued cases on behalf of homosexuals in almost every state in the country" and has spoken on gay legal issues at seminars "from the East Coast to the West."

er had known one, at least to my knowledge. My roommate's death had a terrific impact on me because I truly loved the boy.

"His family came, and we took him home and buried him ... I reflected on the plight of this group and this person whom I had loved so deeply. Since I was a poor boy without any family connections in the law business, I decided that human civil rights — and particularly those of the homosexual — were as attractive a field as any I could pursue."

Goldman worked briefly for several Chicago law firms but soon opened his own practice. Clients came from the ranks of bar and bathhouse operators whose establishments, catering to homosexuals, were the frequent targets of police raids.

"In the early days, such places and their patrons were the subjects of constant harassment," Goldman said. "It seemed the police at that time were notorious in their conduct. 'Homosexuals were not unified, and there was nobody willing to stand up for their rights and seek redress. And the attitudes of the court were reflective of the attitudes of the general public.'"

Goldman became the legal champion of the Chicago homosexual community. As word of his practice spread, his nucleus of gay clients grew.

In the late 1950s, he was a consultant to the Wolfenden Committee, appointed by the Church of England (Episcopal) to examine the state of homosexuals in Britain. The committee recommended, and eventually saw enacted, the lifting of legal penalties for sexual acts performed by consenting adults.

"After my roommate's death and the load of cases in my own practice, it seemed like a natural progression." Goldman said of his move into public advocacy. "I was at that time becoming rather prominent in what was a sparse field anyway. The committee looked like a good way to further some of the goals I was already working towards."

Goldman also directed efforts against Illinois' anti-sodomy law, which mandated penalties of one to 10 years in prison.

"It was a crime without a victim, but because of that provision, homosexual couples lived in the pale of the penitentiary," Goldman said. "Our desire to change the law was not prompted by the instance of prosecution, but its psychological threat."

In 1961, Illinois became the first state to repeal its anti-sodomy law. Forty states still have such laws.

Two years later, Goldman won an agreement from Chicago's newspapers to cease printing the names of defendants arrested at raids on businesses frequented by homosexuals. "I remember the trauma these people all experienced seeing their names printed in the papers," he said. "That agreement was something of a local milestone."

Goldman, slowed considerably in recent years by failing vision and illness, is preparing to turn his practice over to his son. With the growth of gay activism, the bulk of his homosexual clientele now seeks advice on more routine matters — mortgages, divorces, wills.

Goldman sees homosexual marriages as the next gay legal issue.

"Marriage should be legalized because homosexuals, like the rest of us, need some solemnization of their commitment," he said. "When Jim and Joe live together for 25 years...there should be some responsibilities."

No Changes In Peanut Acres

The peanut acreage allotment for North Carolina is unchanged at 167,870 acres, according to C. P. Stewart, state executive director, North Carolina ASCS office. Under the current program, farms are assigned an acreage allotment and a poundage quota and only peanuts which are produced on allotted acreage are eligible for price support.

duced 24,500 pounds of peanuts on the ten acres, the additional 5,900 pounds would be eligible for price support at the lower level.

Stewart said that loan rates for both quota and additional peanuts will be announced by Feb. 15, 1980. The 1979 crop rates are $420 and $300 per short ton, respectively. All farmers with peanut history will be mailed notices of peanut acreage and poundage quota in the near future.

Growers have until Jan. 11, 1980, to make comments on price support levels and other provisions of the 1980-crop peanut program. Stewart explained that recommendations are being sought on the national support level for quota peanuts and additional peanuts, as well as policy for additional peanuts acquired by the government under the 1980 program and sold for export edible use.

He said that legislation requires price support of at least $420 per ton on 1980-crop peanuts which are grown within a farm's poundage quota. He said the Secretary of Agriculture will consider current demands for peanut oil and meal as well as foreign market demand in setting the price support level for additional peanuts.

The state executive director added that the January 11 comment date will permit earlier announcements of peanut program details for 1980. Comments should be sent to Director, Price Support and Loan Division, USDA-ASCS, Room 3741 South Building, P. O. Box 2415, Washington, D. C. 20013, by Jan. 11, 1980.

But his motivation to join legal battle was the result of more than happenstance. He believes the 1926 suicide of his roommate while in law school at the University of Illinois gave him the courage and compassion to chart an unpopular course.

His roommate swallowed poison. Goldman found the note which told of the roommate's heretofore hidden homosexuality. Goldman was heartbroken.

"I knew nothing about homosexuals, except what I had read in toilets," he recalled. "I never had known one, at least to my knowledge. My roommate's death had a terrific impact on me because I truly loved the boy.

"His family came, and we took him home and buried him ... I reflected on the plight of this group and this person whom I had loved so deeply. Since I was a poor boy without any family connections in the law business, I decided that human civil rights — and particularly those of the homosexual — were as attractive a field as any I could pursue."

Goldman worked briefly for several Chicago law firms but soon opened his own practice. Clients came from the ranks of bar and bathhouse operators whose establishments, catering to homosexuals, were the frequent targets of police raids.

Stewart explained the two levels of price support with this example: A farmer who has a ten acre peanut allotment could have an 18,600 pound quota eligible for price support at the high level. If the farmer actually pro-

But the prime parental responsibility was to impart God's truths.

"You shall teach them diligently to your children, and shall talk of them when you sit in your house, and when you walk by the way, and when you lie down, and when you rise."

There also was the more formal study, and Jesus' probing questions.

"And the child grew and became strong, filled with wisdom, and the favor of God was upon him," Scripture says. It also notes that there was a common saying about his scraggly hometown:

"Can anything good come out of Nazareth?"

Not normally, evidently.

Opening lead: Eight of ♣.

A great memory is not a prerequisite for good bridge. By that we don't mean that the absent-minded professor has an edge; we just don't believe that it is necessary to remember 52 cards. Orderly thinking and proper planning is the key to winning bridge, and if you have done that, it is seldom necessary to remember more than a few cards. Many players err by trying to think back to reconstruct the play. A simple and more effective technique is to make mental notes of the material facts as you go along.

In today's hand, watching the spots very carefully permitted South the rare pleasure of finessing a four on the third round of a suit. The bidding was a classic example of how to conduct a cue-bidding sequence. After South discovered that his partner had good hearts, the ace of clubs and the king of diamonds, he felt fully justified in contracting for six hearts. This was an excellent contract, but it might have foundered had West opened a club.

West led his top spade, however, covered by the nine and jack, and won by the king. Declarer drew trumps in two rounds, ending in dummy, then led the ten of spades. East covered with the queen, declarer won the ace and was delighted to see West drop the seven. Now declarer's six of spades was high and West surely held no more spades.

Declarer crossed to dummy with the king of diamonds and led the deuce of spades. East produced the three and declarer won the trick with the four. Declarer discarded dummy's queen of clubs on the six of spades and thus emerged with an overtrick.

To prevent an avalanche of mail, let us advise you that we are aware that the contract can be made even if West leads a club initially. Declarer can spurn the finesse and ruff out East's queen of diamonds, establishing dummy's jack as a parking spot for his losing club. Or he can take the finesse, then lead the ten and nine of spades off the table, pinning West's 8-7. Neither play, however, is likely to be found at the table.

Tonight, A Sort Of Ode To Mid-Life Crisis

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's sort of an ode to the masculine mid-life crisis — Edward Asner, married, balding and round, has an affair with Meredith Baxter-Birney, single, fetching and unround, and gets away with it.

Really, that's pretty much the story of "The Family Man," airing tonight on CBS. As interesting as the story here is Asner's casting in a romantic lead.

Asner, who rides helm over the city desk on CBS' "Lou Grant," plays a happily married, financially secure family man. He's just become a grandfather, an event that seems to suit him fine, and his other child is about to move out into the world, leaving Asner and his loving wife (Anne Jackson) alone for the first time in 25 years.

Stepping uninvited into this sweet family portrait is Miss Baxter-Birney, a high-born and well-bred Julliard student who is struggling to make it on her own. She's just broken up with an abuser, and is attracted to Asner's kindness and caring; he, on the other hand, is attracted to her, period.

See, he has been feeling restless lately, taking long walks alone and pining for the sea and...well, never mind, suffice it to say he asks her to the opera and she accepts. One thing leads to another and Edward Asner strikes a triumphant chord for fellows balding and round.

His wife, meanwhile, is nervous about growing old and about being alone with her husband. Plus, she has an intuitive feeling that something is awry (as required in all such dramas). There is resolution, though, by which time Edward Asner has made roundness and thinning hair absolute virtues.

"The Family Man" has something to say about marriage, family, love and growing older, and its voice is subtle and adult; much of its "message" is not uttered at all, just understood.

The ladies in this are just fine, but Asner, Asner is something to see. He lends a very valuable regular-guy quality to the role, without turning the thing into "Lou Gets Lucky."

In his dressing room out at CBS Studio Center, he shrugs it off.

"It's just another scalp," he says of the role. "I've got all the acting tools for a role like this."

"People are shocked that I'm there (in a romantic lead opposite Meredith Baxter-Birney), people who didn't see me as a sexual object before. Well, we're all sexual objects. I think of myself as a sexual object. When we were shooting the love scenes, I just tried to think, 'Keep a stiff upper lip, and show the SOBs how many tricks you've got.'"

He has a few, it turns out, and employs them all to answer once and forever a question that has plagued me ever since I got into this dodge: Do city editors have romantic encounters?

HEW Once Again Charging UNC Obstructionism

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare has filed another appeal charging University of North Carolina officials with intimidating employees to keep them from cooperating with the federal government in its desegregation case against UNC.

The agency is trying to cut off some of UNC's funding for failure to file an acceptable plan for furthering desegregation of the 16-campus system.

HEW renewed its claim of intimidation in an appeal filed late Monday. The argument appeals an administrative law judge's refusal to let HEW argue that federal funding to UNC should be cut off because intimidation is a violation of civil rights laws.

Judge Lewis F. Parker has refused to hear HEW's argument twice. The last time was

Nov. 19. UNC officials have denied the charges.

However, HEW in its appeal described what it calls new cases of intimidation, and the agency complained that two HEW lawyers seeking documents at UNC campuses recently were "treated by certain university employees in a most discourteous and objectionable manner."

Librarians and university officials provided documents to HEW lawyers and then asked them to surrender the papers, the appeal says.

"The materials sought by the government lawyers are generally available to other persons, but not to HEW personnel," the appeal said.

HEW said it wants to join the intimidation charge to its earlier complaint that UNC has failed to properly desegregate its 16 campuses. In the appeal,

HEW said that if it is refused the right to join the two complaints it may issue a second administrative proceeding based on that issue.

A hearing on the desegregation complaint has been scheduled for March 10.

Neglected File Income Taxes

NEW YORK (AP) — Anthony L. Conrad, former president of RCA Corp., has pleaded guilty to a charge of obstructing governmental administration for failing to file New York state tax returns.

Manhattan Criminal Court Judge Milton Samoridin fined Conrad $1,000 on the misdemeanor charge Tuesday.

Conrad, 59, resigned from RCA in September 1976, after acknowledging he failed to file personal federal, state and local income tax returns from 1971 to 1975. State charges were brought in 1977 accusing him of willfully failing to file between 1973 and 1975. The statute of limitations had run out on previous years.

Two 'Instant' Millionaires

NEW YORK (AP) — Two Nassau County employees who earn $13,000 a year are each $1 million richer after winning the New York state Olympic Lottery drawing.

George Muhlbauer, 49, a widower from Valley Stream, said he plans windfalls for his four children, and Charles Walters, 33, of Massapequa Park said he plans "to party for a year."

Muhlbauer's name was pulled as the $2 million lottery winner during a drawing Tuesday. He said he and Walters together bought ten of the $10 lottery tickets.

How Tar Heel Representatives, Senators Voted

Roll Call Report Service
 WASHINGTON—Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Dec. 6 through Dec. 12.

HOUSE

PARENTAL CONSENT — The House refused, 163 for and 225 against, to require the consent of the parent or guardian before a minor can receive birth-control devices and family-planning information under the federal-state Medicaid program. The vote came during consideration of a bill (HR 4962) providing upgraded Medicaid services for poor children and pregnant women.

Rep. William Dannemeyer, R-Calif., a supporter, said this question is at stake: "Do parents control the education their children will receive in the area of sex education and family planning, or is that activity, like so many others in our culture, to be taken over" by government?

Rep. Tim Lee Carter, R-Ky., an opponent, said: "Actually, of the youngsters in our country who are 15-years-old and younger, about one-fifth of them are sexually active. To prevent them from getting needed contraceptives beggars the imagination. Defeat of this amendment would save these children from unwanted pregnancies. It would save the country from unnecessary abortions which might occur as well."

Members voting "yea" wanted Medicaid birth-control material distributed to minors only on the consent of parents or guardians.

Reps. Walter Jones, D-1. L.H. Fountain, D-2, Charles Whitley, D-3, Ike Andrews, D-4, Stephen Neal, D-5, Richardson Preyer, D-6, Charles Rose, D-7, W.G. Hefner, D-8, James Martin, R-9, and Lamar Gudger, D-11 voted "yea."

Rep. James Brodyhill, R-10, voted "nay."

SETTLING DISPUTES — The House passed, 207 for and 195 against, a bill to create agencies on the local level for resolving comparatively minor disputes, such as those between buyers and sellers and landlords and tenants. The settlement centers, under either governmental or private control, would be alternatives to the court system. The bill (S 423) was sent to conference with the Senate. It provides seed money to encourage localities to establish settlement centers, and it opens a unit in the Department of Justice to oversee the venture.

Rep. Robert Kastenmeier, D-Wisc., a supporter, said: "The traditional courts, with their formal procedures, high costs and overloaded dockets, are not necessarily the best forum for resolving disputes."

Rep. Thomas Kindness, R-Ohio, an opponent, said the bill injects the federal government into "matters traditionally left to the states," and added that it has "the potential of developing a kangaroo court in every neighborhood" in the country.

Members voting "yea" favored the bill.

Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner, Brodyhill and Gudger voted "yea."

Jones, Fountain, Whitley and Martin voted "nay."

DOMESTIC VIOLENCE — By a vote of 292 for and 106 against, the House passed a bill (HR 2977) to fund a variety of state and local programs to help victims of domestic violence. Costing $65 million over three years, the legislation, in part, would fund shelters for battered spouses and children and counseling programs to curb violence in the home. It was stated in debate that annually in the U.S. 1.8 million women and 250,000 men are beaten by their spouses.

Rep. Barbara Mikulski, D-Md., a supporter, said that "as a former child-abuse worker, I have witnessed examples of terrible cruelty within the American family... Violence in the American home is a quiet epidemic and it is getting worse as our economy worsens."

Rep. Ken Kramer, R-Colo., an opponent, said that all but two states already have domestic violence programs. "The question really before us today," he added, "is not whether or not there is a problem but whether or not the federal government ought to be involved in the solution to that problem, at least on the scale" of this bill.

Members voting "yea" favored the bill.

Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner and Gudger voted "yea."

Jones, Fountain and Martin voted "nay."

Brodyhill did not vote.

SENATE

WINDFALL TAX — The Senate voted, 44 for and 53 against, to preserve an amendment broadening the proposed tax on oil company profits resulting from price decontrol. The amendment would put a 20 per cent tax on newly discovered oil and on two other categories of oil the Senate Finance Committee had proposed to exempt from the so-called "windfall tax." The vote came during debate on a still-pending bill (HR 3919).

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kans., who favored killing the amendment, said it "would cause billions of barrels of U.S. oil to be left in the ground and result in greater dependence on uncertain foreign sources."

Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., who wanted to preserve the amendment, said a stiffer tax "would leave the oil companies more than enough income for investment in new exploration and development and a great deal more."

Senators voting "nay" favored a tougher windfall tax.

Sens. Robert Morgan, D, and Jesse Helms, R, voted "yea."

FILIBUSTER — By a vote of 53 for and 46 against, the Senate failed to muster the three-fifths majority needed to cut off debate on the windfall-profits tax bill (see preceding vote). The vote, which launched a filibuster, was a victory for those favoring a more lenient tax. It prevented a final vote on an amendment extending the levy to additional categories of oil.

Most senators voting "yea" favored a stiffer windfall-profits tax on oil company revenues.

Morgan voted "yea."

Helms voted "nay."

GAS TAX — By a vote of 39 for and 40 against, the Senate rejected an amendment to restore a federal income tax deduction which motorists formerly were permitted to take for their payments of state and local gasoline taxes. The deduction was repealed by Congress last year to encourage energy conservation.

The amendment was offered to the windfall oil profits tax bill (see previous votes). Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., sponsor of the amendment, said deletion of the deduction "creates an unfair tax burden" for taxpayers who must drive to work.

Sen. Russell Long, D-La., an opponent, said: "There is no reason to have a special tax advantage to encourage people to use more energy."

Senators voting "yea" favored the deduction. Morgan and Helms voted "yea."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bess Myerson is off and running for the U.S. Senate.

The former Miss America and TV game show panelist has registered with the Federal Election Commission a committee to raise funds for a U.S. Senate race from New York, her campaign manager said Monday.

Republican Sen. Jacob Javits, 75, who now holds the seat, says he has not decided whether to seek a fifth term.

Eaton said the committee registration had been mailed from New York, but probably would not arrive at the FEC offices here for several days.

More Than A Reminiscence Of Growing Up In Martin County

By Dr. H.G. JONES
For The Associated Press
 CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Among Pattie Frances Ridley Jones' first memories were stories of slavery.

Slavery had been abolished only two decades when Pattie was born in 1884 in Bertie County, the daughter of Martha Ann and Robert Franklin Ridley. She was but a baby when her family moved to the tiny community of Parmele in Martin County.

Now, 95 years later, Pattie's story has been told in a book that might — but should not — go unnoticed in North Carolina. "Childtimes: A Three-Generation Memoir" is much more than the reminiscence of one woman; it is something of a history of a small town told through the words of a grandmother (Pattie), a mother (Lessie Jones Little) and a daughter (Eloise Greenfield).

As an account of a black family in a largely black community, "Childtimes," a small book, helps fill a large void in Tar Heel literature. So little has been written by blacks about blacks.

It was a Northern-financed camp around the Parmele-Eccleston Lumber Co. that drew many families to the junction of two branches of the Atlantic Coastline Railroad in the 1880s. The new town was named for one of the New York owners of the company. It was pronounced locally as "Pommal-lee."

Among the settlers was the family of Robert Franklin Ridley. He took a job feeding horses at 75 cents per day, but he was soon promoted to cook and janitor in the clubhouse where the company officers lived.

During the day he lived amidst luxury, for there was steam heat and running water, even a bath tub. At night he returned to a simple little house that he built on Sugar Hill, the segregated area for Negroes.

In 1903 Pattie Ridley married William Jones, and three years later a daughter, Lessie Blanche, was born. To help provide for the family, Pattie worked as a cook and waitress at Stokes' Cafe where the whites ate. Blacks went across the tracks to Powell's Restaurant.

Parmele was a lumbering and railroad town with, at its peak, more than 300 inhabitants, many of them black. Lessie recalled that the segregated waiting room of the train station was the social gathering place for blacks.

Lessie's earliest memory was of a little coffin sitting on two chairs in the bedroom just before being placed in an open wagon. And, she wrote, "we took the coffin somewhere and we didn't bring it back. We didn't bring Sis Clara back home. And Mama cried a lot."

Another recollection was of the burning of a cross by the Ku Klux Klan on Sugar Hill: "All I could see was those yellow, quivering flames in the shape of a cross, and I ran. I ran in the house to find my Mama. I wanted to crawl up on her lap, under her apron ... I felt safe close to Mama."

Then there was the night when Booker T. Washington came to Parmele in his private car hooked onto the train. Black townspeople had set out chairs near the tracks, and they planted 15-foot poles with tar-soaked rag torches at their tops to provide light.

Oversold His Pulpit Parable

LAWTON, Okla. (AP) — Police and the news media were flooded with phone calls asking about a mysterious death.

The alleged incident involved a man whose body was supposedly found under the package wrapping counter in a large department store here.

The man had reportedly been shoved aside in the hustle and bustle of Christmas shoppers and had died, possibly of neglect.

An investigation determined that all the callers had first heard about the mystery death in a Sunday sermon by the Rev. Forrest Siler, pastor of the First Baptist Church.

Many who heard the sermon apparently took little notice of an odd thing about the dead man: He had strange scars on his palm.

"It was just a parable of Christ being crowded out of the pulpit by commercialism," Siler said. "I evidently oversold the parable."

When Weston Little moved to Parmele, he promptly threw a tobacco worm on Lessie and laughed vigorously. She screamed, got mad, told him off and married him. One of their five children was named Eloise, born 1929, helped along by the local midwife, Rovenia Mayo, who had already delivered more than 100 babies around Parmele.

The depression hit, and practically no work was available for blacks in Martin County. So Weston Little went off to Washington, D.C., took odd jobs, and summoned the remainder of the family to the nation's capital.

Pattie Ridley Jones died at 87 in 1972, leaving her childhood memories on paper. Her daughter, Lessie Jones Little, and granddaughter, Eloise Little Greenfield, added their own stories, along with family photographs, to provide an unusual account of a black family.

It is a story of picking cotton, pulling tobacco, feeding chickens, digging potatoes, sewing and washing clothes, making beds, going to church and funerals, dancing behind closed windows, raising children and struggling to make a living — all told in simple but charming terms exemplified by Eloise's matter-of-fact statement of the meaning of home for Southerners: "Every summer we took a trip down home. Down home was Parmele."

The Three R's With No Devilry In Rural School

By ANDREW ANGELO
Associated Press Writer
SHILOH, Mich. (AP) — "I just think they learn more."
That's the opinion of a parent who has sent five children to a one-room wooden schoolhouse painted fire engine red.
This year, 26 families are sending 29 children to the 100-year-old Shiloh School, where teacher Linda Hausserman handles kindergarten through sixth grade.
"It's just our way, and we'll be here until the state forces us to close," says June Leland, treasurer of the three-member school board for Shiloh, 30 miles east of Grand Rapids. Barbara Beamon, the mother whose five children have attended Shiloh, is school board president.

But closing is unlikely for Shiloh School. While other such schools have fallen prey to district annexations and consolidations, Shiloh keeps going strong. It is one of 35 one-room schoolhouses left in Michigan, seven of which are here in Ionia County.
The school provides an education the parents consider worth holding onto, and that is how the school survives. The parents supply the more than $30,000 a year needed to run the school.

Because there is only one teacher at Shiloh, involvement among parents, children and teacher is greater than at a larger school.
"I have parents coming in all the time," said Ms. Hausserman. "Before school, after school — they want to know how their child's doing. They even bring in Kleenex for the school."

The job of teacher at a one-room school today is much as it was 50 or 100 years ago, says Linda Emelander, who teaches at the one-room Piper School two miles north of Shiloh School. More than 110 years old, Piper has only 14 students.
"You have to be very loyal and ready to put forth many more hours," said Ms. Emelander. "You have to have a willingness to do everything, from being a janitor to a nurse. We mend clothes, the whole bit."

Ms. Emelander acknowledges that one-room schoolhouses cannot offer modern science equipment and other perks readily available at larger schools. But she believes country schools excel at giving children the opportunity to be independent and to feel secure with basic math, reading and writing.
"They know they aren't going to be led by the hand through things," she said. "It's coming back to the basics. Kids must have them. And you find the basics stressed very much at the country school."

The approach can pay dividends. In 1978-79, the six Shiloh children taking the state assessment tests scored above average. All six scored within the 75 percent to 100 percent range in math while five of six scored within the same range in reading.
State averages for fourth graders show only six of 10 students scoring within the 75 to 100 range in reading and four of five in the same range in math.
"What we are emphasizing in all schools is individualized attention, and that's one thing the old one-room schoolhouse gives," says Teresa Staten, acting supervisor of the state Department of Education's curriculum division.

But country schools have disappeared by the dozens in the last 15 years because of school district reorganization and dwindling pupil populations. The future of the one-room schoolhouse in Michigan is uncertain.
"I can see us in the future all gone," said Ms. Emelander,

"unless some fighting goes on." One likely fighter is 80-year-old Elsie Haynor, whose family has educated five generations at Shiloh School. Mrs. Haynor studied and taught there and her 6-year-old granddaughter, Marcey Face, is a Shiloh first-grader.
"They have too many things going on at those town schools that aren't as important as the three R's," said Mrs. Haynor.
"Maybe those town schools have more gadding about and more athletics," and maybe there aren't as many frills at a country school. But at the bigger schools, all they learn is more devilry."

Giving Cars To Goodwill

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — It may be the energy crunch, the tight market for gas-guzzling cars or even the tax incentive, but whatever the reason, people are giving their used cars to Goodwill Industries in unprecedented numbers.

Patsy Posey, of Goodwill in Greensboro, says the agency has received 20 cars since September. She says only six are left but the donors keep coming.

J. Dempsey Leathers, director for Goodwill in the Raleigh-Durham-Chapel Hill area, says seven cars have been donated to the organization so far this year, most of those in the last three months.

"I've been here for nine years and we normally get at least one each year," Leathers said. "But this year there's been a boom."

Like the traditional worn clothing and cast-off furniture received by Goodwill, the cars are sold to provide income for the organization's handicapped employees.

Goodwill does not repair the cars and most are big, bad on gas and sometimes have mechanical problems. But Goodwill representatives say they're having no difficulty getting rid of the cars which are selling for $50 to $800 each.

The donation of cars has increased nationally in the last four months, says Joe Pouliot, vice president of Goodwill Industries of America.

"It's due to the changing fuel situation and publicity," he said. "Then the word spread that Goodwill would accept these automobiles and that the owner's tax credit could be just a bit better than trading it in."

Last Recourse For Tax Men

LONDON (AP) — British taxmen are making a last-ditch effort to win a long legal battle with television star David Frost and collect on $377,000 of his U.S. earnings.

So far, Frost has won every legal battle.

But on Monday the Inland Revenue appealed to the House of Lords, which will hold a two-day hearing on the matter. It is considered a last recourse after tax commissioners, a High Court judge and the Court of Appeal have all ruled in Frost's favor.

At issue is the money Frost earned from U.S. screenings of the "David Frost Show" between 1969 and 1972.

Wants Students Finance Movie

BOSTON (AP) — Director Franco Zeffirelli has come up with a novel idea for financing a Shakespearean movie he wants to make: Ask college students to back the venture.

He wants to ask college students to contribute $5 each toward the filming of Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing." Each backer would get two tickets to the film, which would be distributed to theaters about two years later.

"It would be historic," Zeffirelli said at a news luncheon Monday. "I think it should be something that young students should promote."

'WAR CRIMES' CHARGED
MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The former operations chief of Nicaragua's air force appears before a tribunal today on charges of responsibility for the deaths of hundreds of Nicaraguans killed in the bombing of Masaya and Esteli during the revolt against deposed dictator Anastasio Somoza.

Dallas Panel Screens Movie Ratings

By ALAN SAYRE
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS (AP) — The city of Dallas has a unique movie rating system that local critics say is getting "Big D" panned in Tinsel Town.

Some say the 26 citizen reviewers on the one-of-a-kind Dallas Motion Picture Classification Board are unqualified to judge films and are practicing modern-day censorship.

The board is "a very archaic system of classifying films," said one Dallas distributor for a major film company.

"Dallas is fast becoming one of the top three movie markets," said the distributor, who asked not to be identified. "To have a big city with progressive attitudes and a board with 1930s censorship attitudes, it's got to hurt."

But the board members — and many other residents — believe their work is essential.

Board chairman Tom East criticizes the familiar industry-sponsored ratings system of the Motion Picture Association of America.

"You now see former R-rated (no one admitted under 17 without a parent or guardian) becoming PGs (parental guidance suggested)," he said. "Unless a parent or guardian has an inclination to prescreen a movie, our board is about the only way they can determine its suitability."

The board's power to brand a film "not suitable" rests with the community standards doctrine — a 1968 U.S. Supreme Court ruling upholding the constitutional authority of cities and states to limit youths' exposure to books and films that cannot be denied adults.

But what fuels most of the criticism — and sometimes outright ridicule — of the board is its power to restrict attendance at films which are not restricted by the MPAA.

TOM EAST

"We have a rating system in Hollywood," said Chick Lafield, Dallas sales manager for 20th Century Fox. "That's all that's needed."

Decisions by the unsalaried board members — appointed to two-year terms by the City Council — carry the force of law.

The board has the authority to expand the "suitable" classification with symbols warning of sex, violence and objectionable language, and to declare a movie "not suitable" for persons under the age of 16.

Classifications must be displayed on all Dallas newspaper advertisements and at all theaters. Violations of the ordinance, such as permitting unaccompanied youths to attend "not suitable" movies, carry fines of up to $200 per day.

The distributor who didn't want his name used said the industry "most definitely" has a financial interest in the board's ratings.

"Some PG films, such as Paramount's 'Prophecy' and United Artists' 'Invasion of the Body Snatchers' were rated unsuitable (in Dallas)," he said. "Theater managers were going crazy having to turn away the young horror-sect viewers that came."

Although board member Honu Frankel said the city should not be able to restrict youthful moviegoers, she defended the board's expansion of the PG-rating.

"We're not qualified to rate movies," she said. "We're qualified to tell what we would like our children to see."

East described the board as "a cross-section of the community" that "is trying the best it can do to apply the ordinance to what members feel are community standards."

Ms. Frankel disagreed: "We don't have a cross-section. There are only five men out of a possible 26, and we have only one black member."

East doesn't believe the board practices censorship. "As far as I'm concerned we don't keep any children from going to a movie with their parents or keep any movie from being shown," he said, adding that the "not suitable" tag is applied to only 12 percent of the movies screened by the board.

But Bill Jones, chairman of the film arts department at Southern Methodist University, said that restricting attendance is a form of censorship. "It's disenfranchising a certain group of people that can see the movie," he said.

Jones also questioned the board's qualifications to judge a film.

"Most of the people are not qualified to sit in judgment," he said. "They are not experienced in child maturation, psychology or the film art itself."

Philip Wunch, film critic for The Dallas Morning News and a lifelong Dallas resident, said the board creates image problems for the city in other parts of the country.

"The film board is not representative of Dallas," he said. "It gives the idea that Dallas is the way it was back in the 50s — a staunch, conservative community. It has changed since then."

They Market A Bagel Mix

GLASSBORO, N.J. (AP) — What's hot this semester at Glassboro State College? Uncle Bruce's Bagels, the latest project of Professor Bruce Bradway's marketing classes.

Bradway says his class is designed to teach students all the planning, marketing research, financing, purchasing, manufacturing, selling, packaging and advertising that would be required for a product.

And each semester, the students come up with something different to market. This group decided against canning mineral water.

"It's a bagel mix — and there's nothing like it in the store," said Bruce Kaercher, a senior and one of Bradway's 28 students. "It's just like a pancake or cake mix. Total preparation time is about one hour."

In the past, Bradway's classes have come up with instant coffee cubes, compact traveling kits with toothbrushes and toothpaste and soft pretzels with mustard stuffing.

Next will be sugarless, vitamin chewing gum. Students of another Bradway class were busy in the college's home economics kitchens Friday, whipping up the first batch.

"It's going to be a spearmint gum," said Richard Feldman of Bernardsville. "It's a new idea that hasn't been tried. We want to have more of a health attitude about gum, but we want to go more for a gum market than a medicine market."

As for the bagels, it took four months to come up with the final product: Uncle Bruce's Hot Bagel Mix in onion, garlic, salt and poppy seed flavors.

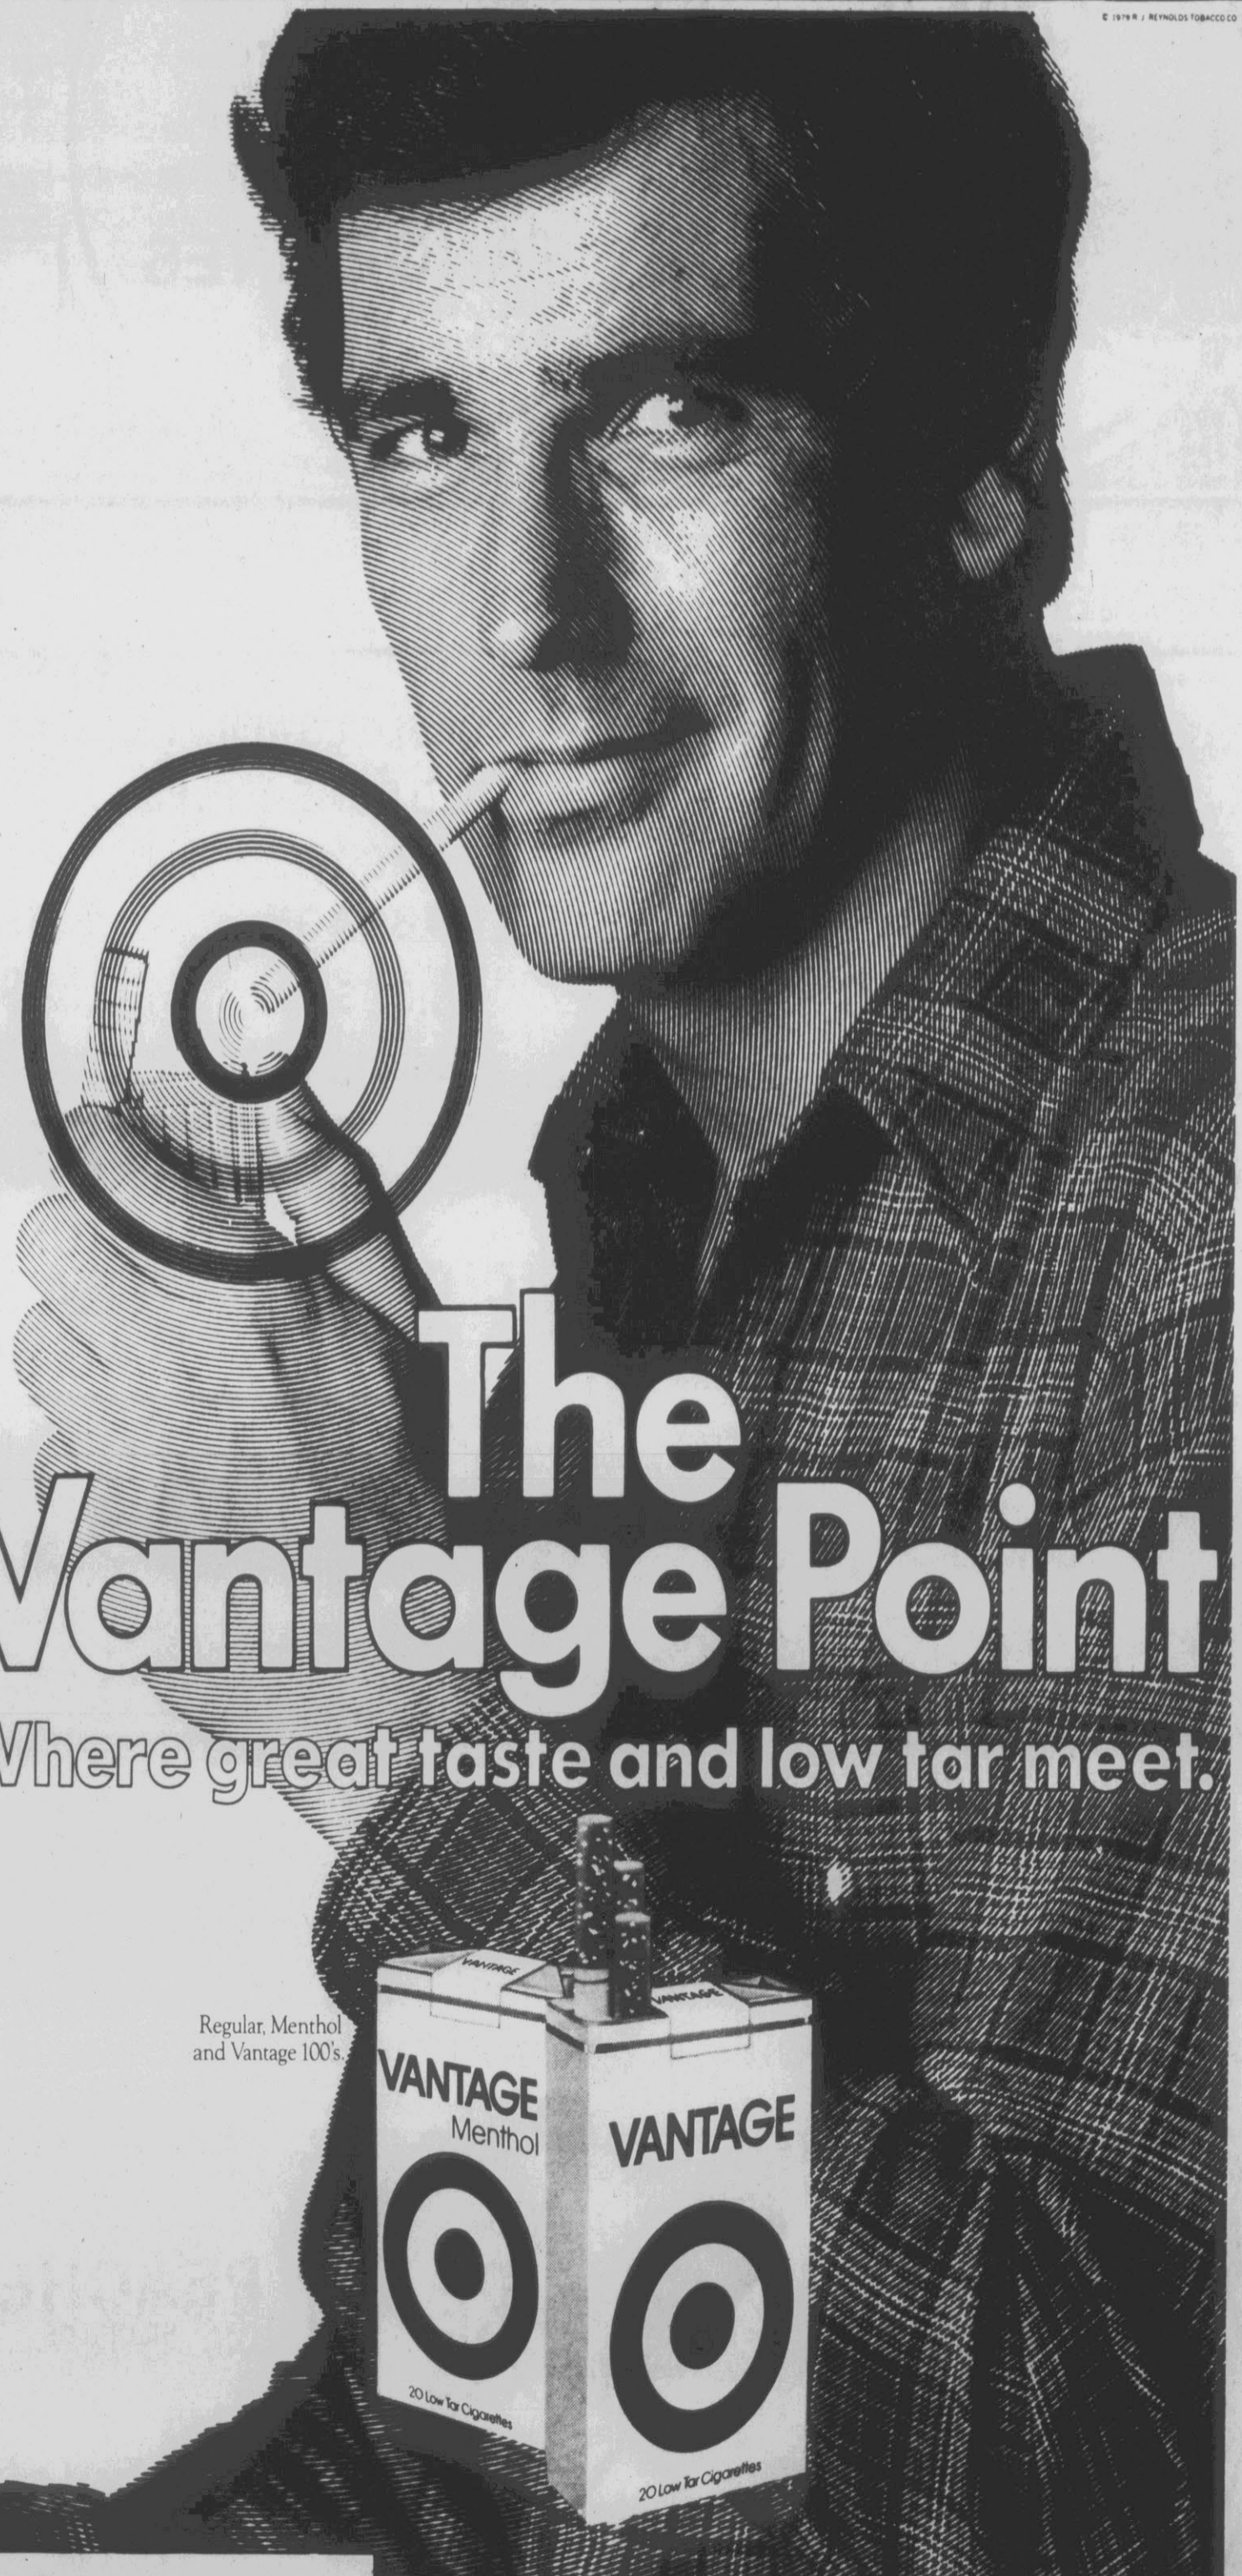

And the public — mostly students — said they liked them after a special four-hour "marketing test" Thursday.

"They're good. Extremely good," commented Karen Gallagher, a freshman from Long Beach Island.

"They're soft and moist," said her friend, freshman Andrea Yellens of Edison.

But out of 300 bagels, there was one complaint.

"Some guy said they stink. He said they were terrible," one of Bradway's students explained.

HOT WELL — Folks in Monroe (Utah) are excited about the prospect of this geothermal well freeing them from shoveling coal. When their dream becomes reality next winter, Monroe will be the first city in the country to own and operate its own geothermal heating system. (AP Laserphoto)

Utah Community Looking To Future As Geothermal Town

By JIM BOARDMAN
Associated Press Writer
MONROE, Utah (AP) — Before the hole, there wasn't much to be excited about in Monroe. Mostly, it was just known as the third-largest town in Sevier County.
But the hole is about to steam up the residents. It's the core of the first city-run geothermal heating system in the nation and it lies smack in the middle of central Utah's coal fields.
The geothermal well on a hillside east of town will enable many of Monroe's 2,000 residents to stop shoveling coal next winter and enjoy the benefits of the city-owned-and-operated project.
"It's something to be excited about. It's exhilarating. The potential is mindboggling," said Mayor Duane Nay.
University of Utah geologists studied Monroe's geothermal potential in 1976 and tipped off Terra Tek Inc., a Salt Lake City-based energy consulting firm.

The federal Department of Energy has sunk $900,000 into the geothermal well, and Nay said the town will need more to lay the pipe. Bob Chappell, with the DOE in Idaho Falls, Idaho, says Monroe will get the money.
"We went into it with the knowledge there was a good possibility of overruns," Chappell said. So far, says Nay, increased costs of drilling, well pipe and wages have meant an overrun of more than $17,000.
But the process behind the project is simple, the mayor says: "We're just pulling it (hot water) out of the ground, stealing the heat from it and poking it back in the ground."
"The environmentalists raised the dickens at first," Nay said. But opposition dropped when plans called for the water to be injected back into the ground after going through a heat exchanger. "The water from this well will never hit the atmosphere," Nay said.

Roger Harrison, a New Zealander imported by Terra Tek to direct the project, said the system was to have been in operation this winter, but it will be next November at the earliest before it is on line.
Once the water 1,500 feet beneath the town starts flowing at a rate of about 600 gallons a minute, three schools, the city hall, two churches, a fire house and all the businesses and residences on Main Street will be able to hook into the system.
Later, a second well will be dug and the system expanded to include the whole town.

Mark Chatti said he expects to cut his heating bill by 75 percent after an initial investment of $200 to $600 to convert from coal to geothermal heat. "It'll be a great thing. There's virtually no maintenance," he said.
Loses Appeal On Tax Evasion
NEW YORK (AP) — Allen Klein, former manager of the Beatles and the Rolling Stones, lost his appeal of a tax evasion conviction that resulted in a two-month jail sentence and a $5,000 fine.
Klein, 48, of New York, sought to upset the conviction on numerous claims of trial error. But the 2nd U.S. Court of Appeals unanimously found "no merit" to the claims.

Everything Has Become Up-To-Date

By RICHARD H. GROWALD
UPI National Reporter
CUT AND SHOOT, Texas (UPI) — The fourth time the war bride from England's Shakespeare country did in Cut and Shoot was cry.

"The first three things I did was learn that, if I stepped off the front porch of the old cabin, the bad brahma bull, the mosquitoes, or the copperhead snakes would get me," Mrs. Johnnie Vick said. "I did a lot of the fourth thing, crying," the brunette from the River Avon said. "But it was to be, it was never not to be." She changed. Cut and Shoot changed. Texas changed.

Mrs. Vick's husband Johnnie used to hitch up two horses and clatter over the Caney Creek wooden bridge to ride to Conroe, the Montgomery County seat, and spend five dollars for a wagonload of groceries for his father, mother, and 10 sisters and brothers. Now Conroe, 38 miles north of Houston, and Cut and Shoot itself are becoming bedroom and industrial areas of the oil city.

Everything is so up to date in Cut and Shoot now that the Rev. Cohelia Jones of the Bethlehem Baptist Church and his wife, Clara, have opened the township's first antique shop.

Like Coach Bum Phillips of the Houston Oilers, Texans may prefer to adorn themselves with cowboy boots and multi-quart hats. But behind the Wild West curtain, Texas has made a transition to the civilization of computers, stock options, food stamps, symphony orchestras, presidents and presidential candidates more in keeping with the narrow-brimmed hats and tasseled loafers of such as Dallas Cowboy coach Tom Landry.

A generation ago Cut and Shoot seemed such a delightfully named American boondock that Roy Harris, heavyweight boxer of Conroe, listed it as his hometown in a career remembered mostly for his 12th round knockout by Floyd Patterson in a 1958 world championship fight in Los Angeles. No pug, loser Harris used his fighting money to develop Cut and Shoot real estate and now sits as county clerk.

Industrial buildings now rise above the pine, sweetgum, sycamore, walnut, magnolia, cedar and huckleberry trees of Cut and Shoot. The town boasts of some four miles of state highway 105 and now there even are streets running off the highway, some named for Johnnie Vick's kin, which is right and proper. Vick's father named the township.

Mrs. Susan Mizell, Johnnie's older sister, lives at the end of Mizell Road. "That's my street. Me and my late husband and my kids, we chopped the trees and built that road.

"So it's named for us. Like Daddy named the town. It was 1912 and the farmers, we were hardly ranchers, had all chipped in and built a schoolhouse and used it Sunday for the Baptist church.

"Some folks had become 'postilics', as we called 'em. Apostolics. Church of Christ, they're called now, I think. Anyway, the postilics wanted to use the meeting house for their services and the Baptists said no," Mrs. Mizell said, sitting on her porch, watching her dog, Ricky, toy with a bull in the yard.

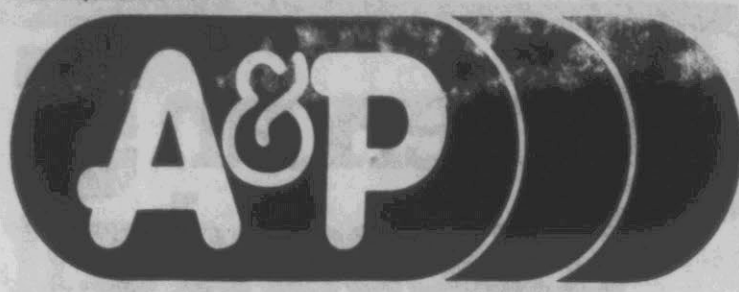

"The postilics did holly-rolling. The Baptists feared the rollin' would scar up the new school desks, so they said no. Well, there was a big confrontation and Baptists and postilics went home for guns and knives.

"That brought in the law from Conroe. Nobody got hurt. But Daddy had a sense of humor and, what with all the guns and knives, he said we should call this place Cut and Shoot, since the atmosphere seemed to call for cutting around the corner and shooting down the road."

The grayhaired woman laughed. "The Baptists won out. I remember. In those days my sister and I had to ride our mule, Kate, over to the revival meetings. We tied up Kate some ways away because everybody else came in wagons and we weren't too proud of having to ride old Kate."

It was still something of Kate country when, in 1946, Johnnie Vick came home from World War II with his English war bride. Mrs. Vick said, "It was so bad, that between crying, I wrote home and my father sent me the fare back to England. Just having the fare made it better.

"I knew I could leave if I wanted."

Urges Retraining Of Workers For Better Jobs

RETRAINING WORKERS — Publicly-funded retraining of workers to enable them to move into better jobs as they grow older, is a problem already being faced by some European countries. Here Swedish adults learn a new skill. (UPI Photo)

By LeROY POPE
UPI Business Writer
NEW YORK (UPI) — Periodic and systematic publicly-funded retraining of workers to enable them to move into better jobs as they grow older could be a major problem for industry and government in the next decade.

Some European countries already have faced up to the problem. The Scandinavian countries instituted government-funded retraining for older workers more than 100 years ago. West Germany did it in 1964, France in 1971 and Britain five years ago.

In Russia and other communist countries all worker training is publicly financed and, since the communists regard unemployment as a tremendous waste, they routinely retrain all workers idled by technological or market changes and put them back to work as soon as they can.

Dean Herbert E. Striner of the business school of American University in Washington, D.C., says the United States is going to have to adopt such a program on a national scale within a short time.

He warned against a hastily conceived program. "We need to establish a much better information base dealing with current and projected job opportunities," he said.

Otherwise the program could turn out to be like so much prison vocational training, preparing persons for occupations that already are obsolete or obsolescent.

Dean Striner also said it is obvious that the present attitude of the Internal Revenue Service, which treats any tuition or other retraining benefits a worker gets as taxable income, must be changed.

Striner is concerned primarily about older workers, but the problem is a lot bigger. A number of industrial psychologists have been saying for several years that one big cause of declining productivity in American industry is workers' frustration over the lack of opportunity for advancement and lack of satisfaction in their jobs.

Ted Mills, who heads a research group called American Center for the Quality of Work, was quoted recently by the Chicago Tribune as saying "100 million Americans do repetitive, boring work with too little freedom and too much supervision, for companies that pay them well but often forget they are human."

This helps explain the relatively large number of persons who "drop out" of conventional society.

Whether or not it is true that poor utilization of the work force and individual dissatisfaction in work are prime causes of falling productivity, it is statistically provable that the productivity growth of American industry currently lags behind that of Japan, West Germany and several other countries.

The Chicago Tribune study found that, despite all the money it spends on training programs, American industry has done little to come to grips with the real problem: that industry has not really tried to enrich jobs or make work more interesting or satisfying.

In an age when the average factory worker is likely to have had a year in college and to be moderately well read and well traveled, as well as constantly worried over job security, such a failure by industry can have widespread ramifications.

Some industrial psychologists have been saying the seeds of this problem were laid early in the century by pioneers in scientific management and such pioneers in assembly line manufacturing as the elder Henry Ford. The assembly line and scientific management enthusiasts speeded productivity by getting away from all skilled work requiring thinking on the job and breaking manufacturing operations into the simplest and most repetitive steps possible.

Now that this high-speed assembly line system, which did so well for the U.S. economy for 60 years, no longer seems able to bring productivity gains and keep America competitive either at home or abroad, worker discontent is likely to grow and industry will be forced to look for new operating techniques.

Although Dean Striner's concern is with the growing number of displaced older workers, he said in a paper prepared for a policy study by Work in America, a non-profit research group based in Scarsdale, N.Y., that legislation to provide retraining of older workers "should ideally be extended to include younger workers at a later date."

Striner said such legislation ultimately should provide "as a sufficiently long period of full- or part-time education to equip each one for a decent job" and that "it also should include an income stipend geared to realistic needs."

In other words, like citizens of the communist countries, Americans should be able to look to their government to give the free training and a living while they are learning to get another suitable job if they are displaced. The question of how well the communist system succeeds in doing this is something else.

Striner said such a system is not entirely alien to American tradition. It was used, he said, to retrain veterans discharged after World War II and was called the G.I. Bill of Rights. Unwittingly, Striner said, in passing the G.I. Bill of Rights, Congress took the position that the labor force is a form of capital and that "our economy requires a continuous process of reinvesting in this form of capital."

Farmers Turn Scientists In Alternate Fuel Field

By NORMAN D. SANDLER GRIMES, Iowa (UPI) — They brave cold, mud, rain and snow to visit Dennis Day these days, literally beating a path over dirt roads to his central Iowa farm.

Jane Fonda and her activist husband, Tom Hayden, stopped by one week. Ten days later, Energy Secretary Charles Duncan paid Day a visit, accompanied by a documentary film crew.

On the advice of Fonda and Hayden, California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. brought his presidential campaign to the farm. Then came engineers from John Deere, scientists from Iowa State University.

All came for the same thing. Their pilgrimages to what is known only part in jest as the Mecca of the alternate fuels movement are for insight into Day's technique for efficiently producing alcohol from corn.

Three specially designed tanks hold corn mash, the "fuel" for fermentation, which when treated with enzymes and heated can produce alcohol ranging in purity from 140 proof to 190 proof.

"I've got to be honest with you. It's really premature for you to be here," Day said as he showed the contraption to Brown, his aides and reporters. "Sometimes it works and sometimes it doesn't. It's still premature, but it seems like everyone wants to see it."

The fascination with Day's work is that it is geared toward efficiency. If successful, it could radically alter the age-old chemical process for making alcohol.

Although his still is experimental, it is regarded a bright star on the country's energy horizon.

"This is the kind of pioneering spirit we like to see," Duncan said after inspecting the unit Day hopes to use to make his farm self-reliant for fuel its vehicles.

As energy prices have soared and the search for alternate fuels has intensified, alcohol has caught the attention of entrepreneurs and policy-makers. The potential role of alcohol — used either alone or in combination with unleaded gasoline to make gasohol — has been widely debated.

For one thing, alcohol production is energy-intensive, requiring more energy than it produces.

Also, its present cost makes alcohol uneconomical without government subsidies. As the use of gasohol has increased, those government subsidies have risen, leading critics to suggest the money could be more wisely spent elsewhere.

Despite this, alcohol won greater acceptance from the Energy Department during Duncan's first two months in office than it did under his predecessor, James Schlesinger.

One high-level DOE official attributed the change to Duncan's commitment to public input to policy-making and a redirected emphasis toward smaller scale energy projects.

Schlesinger was a devotee of so-called "hard technologies."

"Schlesinger was brilliant, but his people only wanted to deal with billion-dollar fusion research projects and huge undertakings like coal gasification or other esoteric things," the source said.

alternative fuels movement. But he is not alone.

Enterprising farmers throughout the Midwest are producing their own alcohol, building windmills to turn generators, burning methane gas from animal waste and integrating their far-flung endeavors into on-the-farm energy units.

Near LeMars, Westmar College physics professor Robert Franklin built a windmill with a 24-foot blade that powers a refrigeration system. It ultimately could be used to generate electricity.

Not far from the Dennis Day farm, 70-year-old John Lorenzen uses a system of 85-year-old batteries juiced by wind-powered generators to store a week's worth of electricity.

Lorenzen, an amateur inventor, has never had his farm hooked up to outside power supplies.

In his solar-heated machine shop, Lorenzen is building a system using hydrogen gas produced from water to power a six-cylinder engine and a 500-amp generator.

"If this energy war is going to be won, it's going to be won by the people — the small inventors and tinkers — on battlefields like these farms," said a DOE official.

Dr. Clayton Yeutner, Chicago Mercantile Exchange President, will keynote the 13th annual membership meeting of the North Carolina Soybean Producers Association in Raleigh, Jan. 18, according to president Thurman Burleson of Albemarle.

The business meeting of the association will begin at 9:45 a.m. at Raleigh's Royal Villa Motor Inn, followed by Yeutner's address at 10:45 a.m.

Other speakers will include Jerry Bumgardner, vice president and director of grain operations for Ralston Purina Company, St. Louis, Mo.; and Allan Aves of Kirkland, Ill., president of the American Soybean Association.

After lunch, a special interest presentation about life on Soviet farms will be made by David McAuley of Statesville, who spent three months in Russia as a member of the 1978 International Farm Youth Exchange team.

The annual banquet and awards program will complete the day's activities.

"We ignored these people for too long. But we realize that and are committed to doing whatever he can to encourage this kind of inventiveness."

Duncan listened intently during a private meeting in which Day launched into a passionate sermon on energy self-sufficiency and the benefits that could be reaped from a proliferation of self-contained farm energy systems in the years to come.

Like other inventive farmers, Day is critical of the way the DOE snubbed alcohol fuels until recently. He also is miffed at the lack of technical assistance the government has provided.

DOE Regional Administrator Mary O'Halloran said a series of grants establishing training programs at community colleges should help forge a partnership between the government and small-scale inventors.

Pentagon Plans Sale To Japan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon has told Congress it plans to sell anti-ship missiles and air defense guns to Japan for a total of $45.8 million.

Officials said Monday the proposed sale involves 24 Harpoon ship-to-ship missiles to be installed on three Japanese destroyers now under construction, and six rapid-firing Phalanx guns to provide those destroyers with defense against air attack.

To Keynote N.C. Meet

Dr. Clayton Yeutner, Chicago Mercantile Exchange President, will keynote the 13th annual membership meeting of the North Carolina Soybean Producers Association in Raleigh, Jan. 18, according to president Thurman Burleson of Albemarle.
