Clergy Talk Compromise As Khomeini Talks War

By MAUREEN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) —

Three American clergymen today urged compromise in the U.S.-Iranian crisis, and a French archbishop said he expected "clemency" for the American hostages even as Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini raised the possibility of war. The mystery over the number of captives also deepened.

The Revs. William Sloane Coffin, Thomas Gumbleton and William Howard flew home today at the end of a three-day Christmas mission with messages from a number of the captives to their families and a plea for conciliation by both sides in the 54-day-old standoff.

"If one side gets a little more tough it tends to make the other side a little more tough," Coffin told reporters before leaving Tehran. "If one side decides to be a little more gracious, the other side has the freedom to be a little more gracious."

The clergymen, who conducted emotional Christmas Day services for the captives at the occupied U.S. Embassy in Tehran, left on Iran Air flight 775 via Paris and London and were scheduled to arrive in New York at about 9 p.m. EST.

During the Paris stopover, the archbishop of Algiers, who assisted at the Christmas services in Tehran with the Americans, said he found Iranian authorities and public opinion "favorable to an act of clemency."

Though he said he had not received any "exact promises," Cardinal Etienne Duval told reporters at Orly Airport he had reason to hope for the "fastest and broadest possible measure of clemency" for the hostages.

Duval arrived with the three American clergymen, who remained aboard the flight and did not talk to reporters.

The State Department had no immediate comment on Khomeini's latest prediction of war between the United States and Iran.

In a speech Wednesday to an Islamic anti-drug addiction group, the Iranian strongman said: "Now we are at war, a political and economic war. It is likely that the military war will also come along."

"Foreigners can easily make us surrender by just closing their exports to us if our economy is a dependent one. Now they have threatened us with an economic boycott. Many governments have approved this. But the peoples do not approve."

"While in my view these noises have no reality, if we give a very weak probability to this, we should be equipped. You are in a war situation, an economic war which is in itself a struggle between Islam and paganism," he said.

Khomeini referred to America's request that the U.N. Security Council impose economic sanctions against Iran in a bid to force the release of the hostages, who were grabbed Nov. 4 by pro-Khomeini militants demanding President Carter send the ousted Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi back to Iran.

The council is to take up the American request later this week.

Peacekeepers Fanning Out In Rhodesia Today

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Guerrilla commanders mapped plans today to lead their fighters into cease-fire camps after a tumultuous welcome home from seven years of bush war. A British peacekeeping convoy fanned out from Salisbury, its Land-Rovers marked with white crosses to ward off possible attack.

The guerrilla commanders, Mafelu "Lookout" Masuku and Rex Nhongo, met with Britain's military chief, Maj. Gen. John Acland, to discuss the truce arrangements. Going into the meeting, Masuku said, "Given a chance I think it can work." Nhongo agreed, "There's much hope that everything will work."

However, their Patriotic Front political alliance claimed that South African troops in Rhodesian military uniforms were being brought into the country secretly to beef up local government forces, and that "assassination squads" were being formed to eliminate Front leaders.

Patriotic Front co-leader Robert Mugabe, in a broadcast from Mozambique, ordered his men to hold "very fast" to their weapons, be "extremely vigilant towards the enemy and not allow yourselves to be disarmed at any time. Your commanders will give you...instructions on how to move and where to move."

The government, which has told the guerrillas they will be allowed to retain their weapons, had no immediate comment.

Masuku and Nhongo were mobbed by some 20,000 blacks who turned out at Salisbury airport Wednesday, trampled down a security fence and cheered, hugged and kissed the guerrilla chiefs and 85 officers who returned with them from bases in Zambia and Mozambique.

The commanders are to begin leading their men into 16 camps over the next two days and settle in after the ceasefire takes effect at midnight Friday. The guerrilla camps and 43 bases where Rhodesian government forces are to be confined will be monitored by 1,200 British Commonwealth peacekeeping troops.

Mrs. Louise (Lou) F. Folger, a Greenville native, has been named as new director of the Pitt County United Way Fund. She succeeds Joe Tripp, who resigned his post in December.

Mrs. Folger, daughter of Mr. L. F. Ficklen and Mrs. Ercell Webb of Greenville, has been employed for the past six years as Director of the Union County Service Center, United Community Services.

Mrs. Folger received her education at Hollins College, where she received a bachelor's degree, and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, where she earned her master's in social work.

Soviet Afghanistan Buildup Protested

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

The Carter administration is calling on foreign nations to speak out against what it claims is a rapidly escalating Soviet military buildup in Afghanistan.

The Soviets, ignoring American warnings not to interfere in neighboring Afghanistan, have increased their military presence through a two-day airlift which, U.S. officials say, may have doubled the number of Soviet servicemen there to 10,000.

That would make the Soviet military presence in Afghanistan Moscow's largest foreign deployment since troops were dispatched to Czechoslovakia in 1968 to end that country's growing liberalization.

The Soviet troops may take part in what could be the Afghan government's largest offensive against anti-communist Moslem rebels, according to a report reaching New Delhi, India, today.

That report quotes an Afghan military officer as saying the government planned an attack, possibly this weekend, in the northeastern province of Badakhshan, which was overrun by rebels two weeks ago. The report could not be independently confirmed.

Afghanistan has been under Marxist rule since April 1978 but has been under continuing pressure from Moslem rebels who now control much of the countryside. The State Department said Wednesday the position of the Afghan government has steadily deteriorated in recent months.

The State Department has expressed concern several times in recent weeks about the Soviet involvement but Wednesday, for the first time, officials called on other nations to join in protest.

"We believe that members of the international community should condemn such blatant military interference into the internal affairs of an independent sovereign state," State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said.

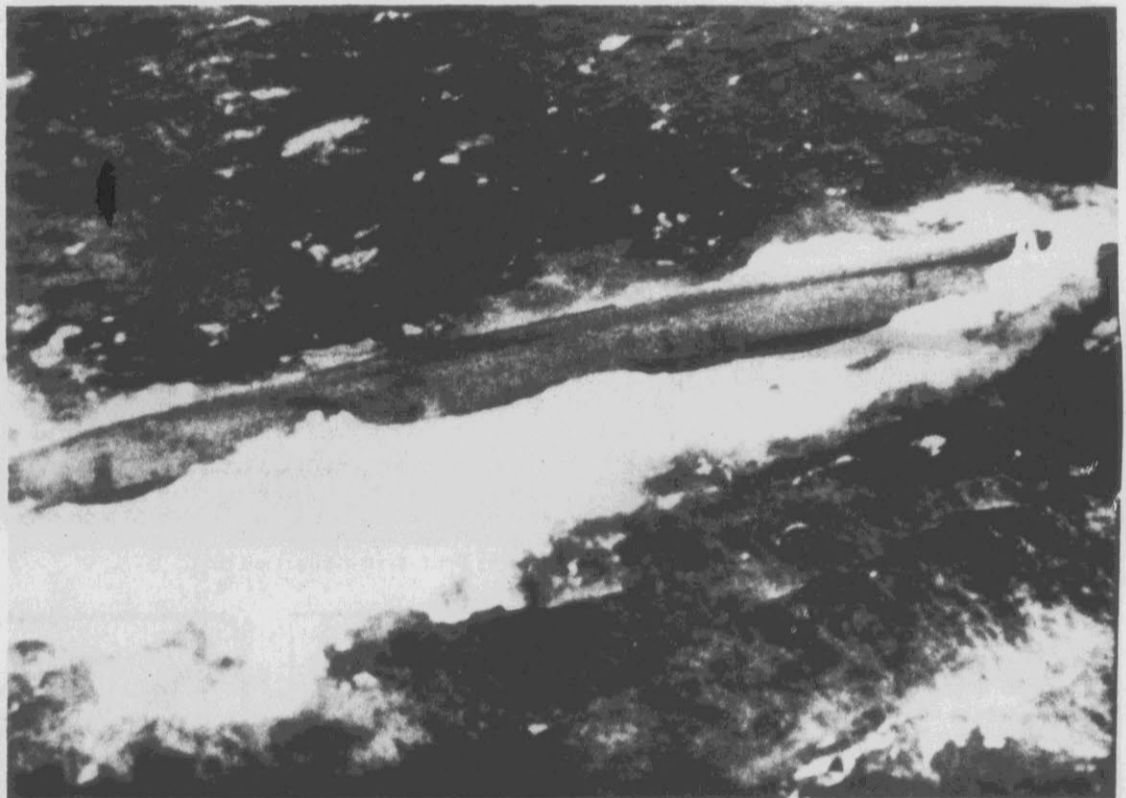

Carter said the Dec. 25-26 troop buildup makes it appear that the Soviets "are crossing a new threshold" in their military support for the Afghan government's struggle against anti-communist Islamic tribesmen.

Afghanistan borders both the Soviet Union and Iran, where Americans have been held captive by militants since Nov. 4.

The United States has publicly criticized Soviet involvement in Afghanistan four times over the last eight days. The administration appears to believe that it can undercut the Soviet position in the Islamic world by calling public attention to Russian backing for a regime engaged in a bitter war with a Moslem resistance movement.

Faint Possibility Men Alive In Capsized Ship

CAPSIZED FREIGHTER — The first U.S. Coast Guard aircraft to reach the 741-foot Lee Wang Zin shot this aerial photo of the Japanese ore carrier, which overturned Tuesday in heavy seas off the northern British Columbia coast. (AP Laserphoto)

By DOUG ESSER
Associated Press Writer
KETCHIKAN, Alaska (AP) —

Battling weather and time, U.S. and Canadian rescuers were dispatching divers today to determine whether any of the 30 Taiwanese crewmen aboard the ore freighter Lee Wang Zin are trapped inside down in the chilly Pacific.

"If we find somebody alive, he's going to be very lucky," Coast Guard Lt. Cmdr. Terry Bills said Wednesday night.

"The Poseidon Adventure" made a good movie, but it's nothing realistic." The film showed a passenger liner that had turned over after being hit by a tidal wave.

The body of one crew member was recovered Wednesday, but the others were missing as the Canadian tugboat Cindy Mozel kept watch over the vessel through the night.

Two inflated life rafts from the vessel were spotted Wednesday by private helicopter pilots, but they reported seeing no bodies or signs of life aboard.

A new storm moving into the area threatened to prevent a 25-member Navy diving team from probing the 741-foot freighter. The National Weather Service in Juneau issued gale warnings for 40-knot winds with 15-foot waves, rain and fog.

A decompression chamber was dispatched Wednesday from San Francisco, and the recently overhauled 180-foot Coast Guard buoy tender Laurel was being prepared for use as a diving platform, said Petty Officer Phillip Franklin.

He said the ship had drifted to the mouth of McLean Arm, a small inlet on Prince of Wales Island more than 25 miles from the point off the northern British Columbia coast where the vessel overturned Tuesday in a storm packing 90 mph winds.

"The vessel overturned very quickly. There is a possibility of the crew being trapped on board," said Lt. Cmdr. Dick Pepper of the Canadian Coast Guard, which is working with U.S. Coast Guard rescue units.

Bills, the operations officer for search and rescue, said the crew's survival chances in 40-degree water and air were "pretty poor," especially if the ship overturned suddenly.

Claim Discovery Of Oil Field

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Occidental Petroleum Corp. says it has discovered a new oil field in Libya with a capacity of from 50 million to 100 million barrels.

The oil company said Wednesday its discovery well in the new Fidda field tested at about 4,000 barrels of oil a day.

I've been out to Sheltered Workshop and have asked around a lot. I can't find anyone who can repair wicker furniture. Didn't you have some names in Hotline a long time ago? H. F.

Yes, we did, but we understand that the person whose name we gave several years ago no longer does wicker repair. We have no references at the present time. Is there is anyone in the area who does wicker repair commercially? If so, please call Hotline at 752-6166.

COOL COMMENT

I don't see why whoever called Hotline last week about cooler temperatures in the school classrooms is worried. She said her child has respiratory problems. Mine does, too, and we've had concern about him ever since he started to school because the classrooms are kept too hot for him to breathe well. We keep our house at 50 degrees at night and he does just fine, then chokes up at school. G. W.

Gold Price Tops $510

LONDON (AP) — Gold soared above $510 an ounce to new peaks in Europe today amid concern over a reported Soviet military buildup in Afghanistan, the continuing U.S. Embassy siege in Tehran, and higher oil prices.

The dollar was lower almost everywhere. Gold was up as much as $36 from pre-holiday prices in Europe, following the metal's surge through the $500 barrier in New York on Wednesday.

In London, gold opened at a record $507.50, moved to an all-time high fixing of $508.75 and by noon was trading at $511. This compared to $485.50 at the close Monday.

Zurich, Europe's biggest bullion mart, also saw the price start at $507.50 and move to $511 by mid-day, up from $475 last Friday, the last trading session in the Swiss financial center before a long Christmas holiday.

In Paris, where prices are inflated by a four percent government tax, bullion hit a record $523.96 an ounce at the morning fixing. As gold rose, the dollar declined in thin trading, with many businesses remaining shut or thinned down during Christmas week.

Although gold markets in Zurich and London were closed Wednesday, in New York, gold for December delivery rose to $510 an ounce on the Commodity Exchange Inc. before closing at

Simca Shares Gourmet How-To

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
Every once in a while someone says to me, "How can I become a gourmet cook?"

The question is, of course, an innocent one. There's a great deal involved in becoming a true "gourmet" cook. No one would want to hear everything I had to say on the subject — it would take months, maybe years!

So I always shorten my reply. I recommend the latest cookbook I have read written by a true gourmet. Right now that book is the recently published "New Menus from Simca's Cuisine" by Simone Beck (Harcourt Brace Jovanovich). As many of you know, Simca collaborated with Julia Child in writing the famous "Mastering the Art of French Cooking." Now, in collaboration with Michael James — who has done a marvelous job in making Simca's great culinary gifts practical for American kitchens — she has written a love of a book.

Simca's great taste and brilliant innovation is apparent in her menus and recipes. The book is divided into extremely useful sections: Menus with Eggs and Cheese; with Fish and Shellfish; with Poultry; with Meat. And behold! There's a chapter, "An Encore of Desserts" — 10 beautiful sweets that are as "gourmet" as anyone could wish.

Although Simca has visited the United States many times, and given cooking classes here, I didn't have a chance to talk to her until recently. What a delight! As she told me how she works, how she tries a recipe 10 times in order to have it "a point" (just right), I succumbed to her vitality and charm. You don't have to meet Simca in person to experience her intense enjoyment of good food. It's all there in her book.

Women Must Qualify Selves For Executive Jobs

NEW YORK (AP) — Fact: A woman with a college education, working full time, earns less today than a man who is a high-school dropout.

Fact: Women hold only 22 percent of all managerial jobs, and they earn only 59 percent of what their male counterparts are earning.

"Those recent government findings are a dose of reality for those who believe that women managers are faring well in business," says Eleanor Disston, vice president of an executive search firm.

"Many stories have been written about successful women and their achievements. However, it's important to understand how small that percentage of successful women is.

Eleanor Disston

We should take a long, hard look at working women as a whole, and then measure their success," says Ms. Disston, of MSL International Consultants Ltd.

Top corporate executives really are not rejecting women who want to move up, Ms. Disston concedes. The problem is that there just aren't enough women with the required background and training to fill those executive spots, she explains, citing figures from the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the U.S. Department of Labor.

"We can obtain more of those management jobs, and enjoy higher salaries," she says, "if our qualifications are equal to our male counterparts. There's no question in my mind that we've got to be equipped for those high level jobs first.

"Also," she adds, "and this is very important, women must be aware of their management paths. If it's your goal to climb the corporate ladder and become a senior vice president, your management path should assure the appropriate financial and legal grooming required to attain that goal.

"I think we've got to remember that we can't expect to be pushed along — we've got to do the pushing ourselves," says Ms. Disston, who offers some tips to help fill the void of qualified women and to help women succeed in management:

—Obtain an MBA; with more MBAs flooding the job market than ever before, it has become an important asset.

—Be capable of handling people; in management this is crucial.

—Be tough without being hard; working alongside men doesn't mean that you have to lose your femininity.

—Always act and dress in a businesslike fashion; this can never be overemphasized.

—Show a strong desire to succeed; and don't be easily discouraged if it takes longer than you thought.

—Express yourself clearly and concisely; being articulate is important.

—If you believe strongly in something, don't back off; be assertive without being aggressive.

—Accept criticism gracefully; beware of showing that you're hurt.

—Decide where you want to go, then realistically evaluate your chances of getting there. Be sure to let your supervisor know what your aspirations are.

—Join professional organizations that will give you exposure within your industry or field.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Women! You say you hate crowds?

You say you yearn to have time for yourself to get in touch with your feelings?

You say there are always kids underfoot and demanding husbands and you never have the house to yourself?

Have I got a solution for you.

Take down the Christmas tree. You'll never know what isolation is until you stand in the middle of wall-to-wall pine needles and announce, "This tree has to go."

Your husband will return to work two days early. The children will return library books, visit a shut-in, get a paper route, or sign up for a meat-packing plant tour. The dog will go outside and shiver for four hours.

It's the same every year. I stand it as long as I can. Then one day I walk across the floor and realize that a carefree spark from my knees rubbing together could send the entire living room up in flames.

It's amazing how, in just one short week, a Christmas tree can go from a "religious experience" to the "pits."

Those soft green branches that you buried your face in for the pine scent are now Acupuncture City. The needles that turned brown and fell to the carpet went to that big forest in the sky... taking the smoking vacuum cleaner with them.

The bird that chirped when you plugged it in, giving a light-hearted sound to Christmas, was choked to death by a mob during the first eight hours. What is left of it hangs limply from the branches, strangled by its own plug.

The cranberries and the popcorn have dropped collectively into the carpet where they take root and will continue to

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: You frequently recommend psychiatric help, but you don't tell people how to get someone to see a psychiatrist, and that's our problem.

A member of our family (I'll call her Wendy) needs psychiatric help (our family physician told us so), but if we just mention the word "psychiatrist" Wendy blows up and says she's not "crazy."

Do you think we could prevail upon a psychiatrist to come to the house and pretend to be just a "friend" — or a regular doctor? That way he could observe Wendy, and maybe win her confidence, and then later on treat her? If she knew he was a psychiatrist, she wouldn't even talk to him.

Wendy likes and trusts our family physician, but he says he can't do any more for her — that she needs psychotherapy. Please help us.

STUMPED IN CHICAGO

DEAR STUMPED: No reputable psychiatrist would permit himself to be introduced to a patient as a "friend" or even a "regular doctor." When Wendy learns that the psychiatrist was part of a plan to trick her, she will lose all confidence in him and I wouldn't blame her. Ask the family physician, whom Wendy likes and trusts, to try to persuade her to see a psychotherapist. Honesty is still the best policy.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a high school senior. I recently had a party at my home when my parents were away. They approved of it. In fact, it was my mother's idea. All the invited kids showed up, but so did a lot of kids who were not invited, most of whom I didn't even know. These uninvited kids brought beer and liquor, obstructed traffic in front of our house and littered the neighbor's yard with beer cans. One of the neighbors finally called the police to come to quiet the disturbance.

Now my parents blame me for the trouble caused by those unruly kids, and I am now grounded for a month! But worst of all I have lost my parents' trust. What can I do?

GROUNDED IN DENVER

DEAR GROUNDED: If your parents are holding you responsible for the misconduct of uninvited kids who forced their way into your home, then they are being unreasonable. But if you made these hoodlums welcome when they showed up uninvited, you deserved to be grounded. You should have called the police as soon as those crashers showed up and refused to leave.

DEAR ABBY: This is written with a prayer that it will save just one marriage. It's a long story, but I'll make it short:

Many years ago, after 16 years of marriage, I became attracted to a married man. He was a wonderful listener, and I was lonely. My husband was a good man, but he was gone a lot. This other man and I started an innocent flirtation. He asked if he could call me. I said yes. Then we started talking on the telephone, morning, noon and night when we knew the other's spouse was gone.

This soon led to secret meetings. Within two years, we had become so deeply involved that we decided we couldn't live without each other, so we broke up two fine families and were married. My children hated me for what I had done, and his children hated him, so you can imagine what kind of marriage we had.

To all married people who think it might be exciting to have a little innocent side affair, I have one word of advice: DON'T! And if you're ever attracted to someone who asks, "May I call you?" say, "No," and run like the devil is after you. Because he is!

FOCUS

"The Brethren"

A recently published book called "The Brethren" has focused new attention on the nine men who make up the nation's highest court. The president appoints Supreme Court justices, who must then be approved by the Senate. Because the justices are appointed for life, Supreme Court appointments are considered among the most important decisions a president makes. The average age of the current justices is 66. Five of them are over 70. William Brennan, 73, is the oldest justice, and the court's longest-serving current member. President Eisenhower appointed him in 1956. President Ford appointed the court's newest member, John Paul Stevens, in 1976.

DO YOU KNOW — Who are the authors of "The Brethren"?

SIMCA'S MAYONNAISE WITHOUT EGG

- 3 tablespoons strong, creamy Dijon mustard, such as Amora or Maille
- 1 tablespoon good wine vinegar
- 2 tablespoons water
- 1 cup oil — half olive oil and half tasteless salad oil
- 2 tablespoons COLD evaporated milk
- 1 teaspoon capers, well drained
- A good handful of parsley sprigs, washed and thoroughly dried
- A dozen or so large fresh basil leaves or 1 teaspoon dried tarragon
- ½ teaspoon salt
- Freshly ground pepper

Blend the mustard, vinegar, and water together in a food processor fitted with the metal blade, then beat in the oil in a thin stream through the pour-spout, alternating each 4 or 5 tablespoons of the oil with drops of the cold milk. When you have added all of the oil and milk, scrape down the sides of the bowl and add the capers and herbs. Beat the mixture for 8 to 10 seconds more, scraping down the sides as necessary, until all of the capers and herbs are well chopped and incorporated into the sauce. Correct the seasoning. The mayonnaise done in the food processor is virtually foolproof, but if at any point it begins to separate, you can always bring it back by starting again with a little mustard (1 or 2 teaspoons) in a clean bowl of the food processor and gradually beating in the turned mayonnaise alternately with an additional teaspoon or so of cold evaporated milk.

The mayonnaise may be stored for several days or even a week in the refrigerator. To thin it down at any point, stir in a few drops of lemon juice, or water if the mayonnaise is already acid enough; more milk will tend to thicken it. Yields 1½ cups.

Diplomacy A Risky Business

The plight of the Americans held captive in the U. S. Iranian embassy underscores one thing in this modern world — that is, being in the diplomatic service these days is dangerous business.

Diplomats and employees serving in embassies have long enjoyed an immunity from the laws of the host country. If a violation occurred, the worst that could be expected was expulsion from the country.

Now, however, American embassy employees have been captured in Terhan and U. S. embassies have been attacked in Libya and Pakistan. In both countries U. S. employees barely escaped with their lives after host governments were slow to respond to their plight.

It is difficult to find good in such dark situations. If there is any good in this one, however, it may be that the diplomatic corps is now at the forefront in protecting our democracy.

Through the centuries, when a nation felt wronged, it called upon its military to settle matters, often with great loss of lives and property.

In this crisis the diplomats are in the lead position, often at great risks to their lives.

If we come through this without war, the diplomatic corp of the United States may be the strongest in all history.

Tobacco Competition Almost Certain

Will Rhodesian tobacco cut into the market for American grown tobacco?

We can bet that it will be keen competition. Tobacco grown in Rhodesia comes as near to U. S. quality as any in the world, and the Rhodesians can produce it more cheaply.

Economic sanctions have been in effect against Rhodesia since 1965. Some Rhodesian tobacco got out into the world markets during that time, but now we can expect a full campaign to sell Rhodesian leaf.

It is a competitive situation which should keep American growers on their toes.

Green Plans 'Clean Race'

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Lt. Gov. James C. Green is a veteran of numerous political wars of the old-fashioned kind, but by all accounts he is currently engaged in the toughest political fight of his life as he seeks re-election to his post.

Challenged by House Speaker Carl Stewart for the Democratic Party nomination in next spring's primary, the contest between the two draws a fine distinction between the old and the new in political office-seekers and campaigning.

Stewart, on the stump across the state and in a recent interview detailed in this column, is outspoken in his criticism of Green as a political leader depending on a close-knit circle of male, wealthy, middle-aged advisors for his support and decision-making. Stewart has attacked Green for courting Republican financial support, for espousing a conservative philosophy out of tune with modern times, and for engaging in regular altercations with Gov. Jim Hunt rather than trying to work with him.

Falsehoods
Green has responded in similar fashion to Stewart, most recently labeling Stewart's comments "irresponsible", misleading, and "falsehoods."

The developing donnybrook is causing editorial writers and close political observers around the state to worry that a vicious blood-letting is shaping up between the two which will cause tremors in state politics for years to come.

In a private interview the other day, arranged in advance for the purpose of exploring his campaign plans, Green refused to explore in detail the differences which have emerged between him and Stewart.

"I have not made any campaign speeches in which I have said anything about the Speaker", Green insisted. He has made public comments about the Speaker, but those have not been campaign statements since, "I am not now engaged in a campaign". Green says he will formally enter the campaign in January.

Meanwhile, he is only "correcting erroneous statements made by the Speaker ... that is not engaged in mud-slinging. I intend to base my campaign on my record of public service, and the people know what that is."

BILL NOBLITT

Green insisted he will not participate in "gutter politics. If Carl Stewart wants to get into the gutter, he can do so by himself. He will only get himself dirty. We will run a campaign which the voters will be proud of," Green promised.

Issues

Will that campaign be based on personalities or upon issues? Stewart says the voters do not recognize major issues which actually can be affected by the lieutenant governor, and so the campaign will turn essentially upon personality and style differences.

"There are many issues important to this campaign, and the voters will study them carefully," Green believes. What are they? "I have been too busy to think about that," Green said as he consulted his calendar and prepared to terminate the interview so he could rush off to Greensboro for another of his numerous meetings.

"I have always been a gentleman", Green concluded.

Seize The Phone Booth

WASHINGTON — Karl Hess, the gentlest anarchist of them all, came down from the West Virginia mountains the other day. He was dressed, as usual, as if he were hunting for bear, but he joined some old friends in a posh street restaurant with the serenity of a man who has his values and his humor intact. He had been struck with a Great Idea.

Hess is well up in the running for the title of Most Unforgettable Character I have encountered on the campaign trail. We first met in 1964, when he was chief speechwriter for Barry Goldwater. He was then a conservative's conservative, somewhere to the right of old Bill McKinley, a gray-flanneled, clean-shaven, fire-eating apostle of free enterprise, balanced budgets and a 25 percent annual return on investment.

day morning he had caught a 6:50 train to Washington, walked a mile to the Jean-Pierre, and was early for a board meeting of the Fund for Investigative Journalism. He ordered a no-vodka Bloody Mary and exuded good cheer. During the two-hour train ride he had perceived how the Iranian crisis might have been prevented; he saw how similar crises might be averted in the future. His Great Idea: Diplomacy by 800 numbers.

The details would have to be worked out, but the impressive cost savings are at once apparent. Instead of embassies, in the Hess proposal, we would have telephone booths instead. In every capital city, the State Department would arrange a bank of attractive sidewalk kiosks. The aggrieved Iranian, or Libyan, or Panamanian would insert a refundable coin, dial 800-632-9606, or whatever, and behold!

"State Department here." "I am an aggrieved Iranian."

"Yes, of course, and what aggravates you today?" "Send us the shah, or I'll pull out this telephone by its roots!"

"By all means, sir, feel free to do so, and the best of the season to you."

Such colloquies, said my friend, waxing eloquent as the possibilities expanded, would save us all the expense of ambassadors' striped pants, tea parties and smashed windows. Hostages could not be seized, only phone booths. Deprived of embassies to arrange their nightclub visits, congressmen would tend to stay home instead of junketing abroad. As for the gathering of the intelligence, at modest expense we could subscribe to the Tehran Daily Bugle and the Tripoli Times. A corps of sweet-talking Kelly Girls could man a special State Department switchboard. Diplomacy would never be the same again.

Wood Stove Don'ts

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The increased popularity of wood-burning stoves as a source of winter heat has brought increased concern about fire safety.

Experts say the stoves themselves generally are not dangerous, but improper installation and carelessness are causing problems.

"Wood heaters require much more human attention and humans always have and always will make mistakes," writes Jay W. Shelton, author of "Wood Heat Safety," a recently published book. "If you expect wood heating to be as simple and safe as an occasional adjustment of a thermostat, then stick to electricity, gas or oil."

If you are willing to take a few precautions, Shelton says, "heating with wood probably involves no more risk than do many other accepted choices and activities in life, such as living in a region with polluted air..."

Sales of wood-burning stoves have soared along with prices of conventional fuels. From 1972 — the year before the Arab oil embargo — to 1979, sales increased almost tenfold.

There are no national figures on the number of fires relating to wood-burning stoves. But the Insurance Information Institute, a trade association, says local statistics show the problem is growing.

The insurance institute has put together a fact sheet on wood safety. It is available, at no charge, from the institute's New York office, 110 William St., New York, N.Y. 10038. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

Before you buy and install any wood-burning stove, check local building and fire codes to make sure you will be in compliance with the law.

Select a stove made of a sturdy material like cast iron or steel. Look for stoves listed by Underwriters' Laboratories or other recognized testing services. If you are buying a used stove, check for cracks or other defects.

Think carefully about where you want to install the stove. Avoid putting it too close to a stairwell; you could wind up losing most of the heat to the floor above.

Leave plenty of space between the stove and any combustible wall or ceiling surface. Put a fireproof pad under the stove and make sure it extends at least 18 inches beyond the door through which ashes are removed. Carpets and upholstered furniture should be at least 36 inches from the stove.

Among other do's and don'ts:

DO have a competent mason inspect the chimney; burn only dry, well-seasoned wood; dispose of ashes in a closed, metal container, outside the house; clean the stove pipe frequently; and watch the damper to make sure it does not close accidentally.

DON'T start a stove fire with flammable liquids, let a wood fire burn unattended or overnight, burn trash in a stove or connect a wood-burning stove to a fireplace without sealing off the fireplace to prevent toxic gases from backing up in the room.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Re-Studying Shah's Iran

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee, at the express command of Chairman Frank Church, will do a "complete investigation" of U.S. policy toward Iran as soon as the crisis centered on the American hostages is resolved.

Intimates of Church, the embattled Idaho Democrat now running for his fifth Senate term, say the senator is really more interested in future than past U.S. policy toward the oil-rich former kingdom now in the throes of post-revolution chaos. Rather than Monday-morning quarterbacking, Church tells intimates he wants his committee to help chart a future U.S.-Iranian relationship that will restore to the U.S. the full amount of oil it used to get from Iran and will safeguard

Iran from Soviet intrigue.

That is a very large order. What makes Church's objective interesting is that it shows he learned a lesson from the recent U.S.-Soviet crisis over the combat brigade in Cuba. In that case, Church shot from the hip in hopes of building his reelection chances in hawkish Idaho. Now he is trying to play the role of statesman. But the temptation to look good raking over the Iranian coals, whatever the cost to President Carter, may prove irresistible.

Moscow's Afghan Caper
Foreign intelligence operatives here are aghast at the apparent lack of U.S. attention to rising Soviet involvement in Afghanistan, the strategic nation that lies between the Soviet Union and the Arabian Sea.

Pressured by the crisis in Iran, the Carter administration has failed in our allies' view to react strongly enough to the introduction of regular Soviet units that for the first time since World War II have now been sent into a country that is not a member of the Warsaw Pact. The intelligence specialists, in some cases joined by diplomats with their more prosaic viewpoints, are quietly pressing the U.S. to make far harsher complaints to Moscow than any made thus far.

The question needing an answer is this: Are the Soviet troops, now possibly close to 10,000, intended for use against eastern Iran if and when it breaks up into its component nationalities? Or are they for use simply to protect the pro-Moscow regime that now rules Afghanistan? Western and Israeli intelligence services insist that the U.S. must get the answer. For centuries, Russia has tried to find a route to a warm-water port. Now that Iran is threatened with breaking up, Moscow may be plotting to use its army units in Afghanistan for that purpose.

Reagan's Veto Sticks
Republican presidential front-runner Ronald Reagan has no intention of joining his less fortunate brothers in the debate organized by the Des Moines Register-Tribune as a key exhibit before the Jan. 21 caucuses, but Reagan's backers are reacting somewhere between anxious and angry.

John Sears, Reagan's campaign manager, has pursued with success all during 1979 this Sears doctrine for front-runners: Don't debate and don't attend "cattle shows" (at which all candidates do their stuff at the same time). So Sears has ruled out the Des Moines debate, which would pit Reagan against every other major Republican presidential contender.

Iowa Republicans not in Reagan's camp say they are glad he is staying out. First, they think that his relaxed, cool style might bring him in first in the debate; second, they say the "restiveness" now apparent among his followers is bound to hurt him in the caucuses.

Other Editors Say Boosts Northeast

(Elizabeth City Daily Advance)

The move by officials at Elizabeth City State University to initiate a graduate program in the fall of 1980 re-emphasizes the importance of such an educational facility to the future growth of Elizabeth City and the Albemarle region.

Beginning the 1980-81 year, ECSU will offer a masters degree in education through the cooperation of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. A similar program in vocational education is being finalized with North Carolina State University. Eventually, ECSU will develop its own graduate center and offer graduate degrees from these cooperative programs.

The accessibility of a post-graduate education should have a profound effect on the quality of education, and the quality of life, in Northeastern North Carolina.

It is more than mere happenstance that this area has pitifully few teachers in the public school system holding advanced degrees.

The Chowan-Edenton school system is the most scholarly in the area, but ranks 98th in the state with only 15 percent of its teachers having post-graduate degrees. Surrounding counties fare even worse. Perquimans ranks 100th in the state with 14.7 percent; Pasquotank, 112th with 13.7 percent; Camden, 136th with 11 percent; Gates, 122nd with 12.7 percent; Currituck, 119th with 11 percent; Dare County ranks 140th with only 9 percent of the system's teachers holding a masters degree or above.

The proximity of ECSU should encourage many of the teachers in the surrounding counties to pursue their masters degree part-time, while they continue teaching. And nothing but good can come from that.

The future of any society rests in the quality education of the upcoming generation. A graduate program at ECSU should have a favorable impact on the future of education in the Albemarle region.

'Receiving End' Of Inflation

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Inflation isn't so bad when you're on the receiving end, which is to say when you can take in dollars faster than they lose their value.

When that happens you can enjoy it, and a good many Americans enjoyed inflation for several years. Pay raises exceeded the dilution of buying power, home equity soared, borrowers paid back in cheaper dollars.

It might come to an end in the 1980s. In a limited way it already has.

Spensible earnings in November were 5.1 percent lower than a year earlier, and that has a dual impact: It makes people less willing and it makes them less able to buy. People are losing out to inflation.

So long as double-digit inflation reigned, interest rates of the same rate had little impact on borrowers. Now that the Federal Reserve has pushed borrowing costs beyond the rate of inflation it's getting costly.

This dose of reality, say the economists, is the best medicine we can apply to the malady. The fact that the medicine tastes awful, they say, is the greatest assurance we have of overcoming inflation.

Well, maybe. Maybe in the long run. What went up swiftly, it seems, must come down slowly if we are to avoid a bump that might jar the senses as well as knock the acquisitive instincts out of the economy.

The short-run forecast, which in this instance is about a year, is less encouraging.

"I think there's a good deal of consensus we can't look for any marked improvement in inflation next year," says Courtenay Slater, Commerce Department chief economist. Workers aren't the only ones seeking, as they rationalize it, to keep pace.

General Motors' 1980 editions will average about $500 higher than a year ago. Could this be a cause? Certainly not, says General Motors. We are an effect. We are merely trying to maintain our profit margins.

Could it be farmers? No way, they say. We had record production in 1979 but our profits were eroded by rising costs.

The middleman? He's always singled out but seldom specifically, if that isn't a contradiction. "He" is a collective. No matter who he is, you can be sure he complains of getting squeezed.

Nobody admits to being a cause, only an effect. They take their cue from Uncle Sam.

"Who, me?" asks Sam in disbelief. Sam, who'll be spending more than he earns, borrowing more than he should, will disclaim responsibility and pose as the chief inflation fighter.

But don't expect him to get along with less money, because the old fellow just can't lower his lifestyle.

Uncle Sam, you see, is on the receiving end, and that's the end of inflation that's easy to take.

WHICH COMMISSION?

The story of Paul's conversion to Christianity at the gates of Damascus is well known to every Bible reader. Paul carried with him a commission from the high priest of Jerusalem to arrest and bring to punishment all Christians found in Damascus. But on the road he had a vision in which Jesus said to him, "Arise ... for to this end have I appeared to thee to appoint thee a minister and witness both of the things wherein thou has seen me and of the things wherein I will appear to thee."

Paul started out with a commission from an earthly official to destroy; en route he received a commission from high heaven to go forth and serve. After that, the persecutor became the apostle.

We all carry two commissions in our hearts — one from Satan to do evil and the other from God to do good. The glory of Paul was that he was not disobedient to the heavenly vision. He gave up the lower commission to accept the higher. May all of us do the same.

Operation Santa Drive Said Again A Success

Dr. and Mrs. William Laupus have announced that the 1979 Operation Santa Claus campaigned equalled the 1978 campaign, which won an award for being best in the state. Monetary contributions are still being received and this year's campaign may exceed that of 1978, the husband and wife honorary co-chairmen said.

Operation Santa Claus is an annual project of the Mental Health Association in Pitt County to see that patients in Cherry Hospital, Goldsboro, and Caswell Center, Kinston, are remembered at Christmas and that patients without families have spending money through the year.

Individuals, clubs, fraternities, sororities, churches and businesses contributed to Forgotten Patient (Cherry) and Sponsor-a-Client (Caswell) funds.

This year, after the needs of Caswell and Cherry were met, staff from Jones ARC, the Eastern Carolina Vocational Center, the Mental Health Center, the Pitt Co. Memorial Hospital Psychiatric Ward, Greenville Villa, University Nursing Home, EARTH, ADAP, the Flynn Christian Home and the Women's Correction Home selected gifts for individual clients.

The MHA in Pitt County held parties for patients from Pitt County at Cherry Hospital and for clients at the Caswell Center who are from Pitt County.

Hosting the Cherry party were the Rev. and Mrs. Bill Hadden, Terry Shank, Dr. and Mrs. Ken Taylor, Gregg Denton, Alton

Warren and Virgie Easterling, ECU students Pam Lane, Kay Chrissman, Phyllis White, Anne Massengill, Laurie Haskins, Ardis Harrar and Dave Merriam presented programs.

Over 4,000 gifts and over $4,300 in money were raised during the campaign.

Hair Saved By Ice Pack

BOSTON (AP) — Wearing a turban-like ice pack on the top of the head will prevent hair loss in cancer patients who receive chemotherapy, researchers have found.

Temporary baldness is a common side effect of cancer drugs, but doctors say it is so disturbing to some patients that they occasionally refuse treatment.

So far, the Arizona research team has successfully tested the ice packs on people who are taking the kind of cancer medicine that most often causes baldness. They say they think it also will stop hair loss resulting from some other common forms of chemotherapy.

They made ice packs out of plastic bags and strapped them onto the patients' heads with turbans fashioned from Ace bandages. To keep the patients' ears from getting chilly, they made earmuffs from heels of disposable slippers.

A doctor and two nurses used the ice packs on 33 cancer patients who received doxorubicin, an antibiotic used to treat many malignancies, including cancer of the breast, lung, ovary, connective tissue, lymph glands and blood.

They found that 20 of the patients had good protection against hair loss, and all were helped at least partially.

No Santa

LINCOLN, N.C. (AP) — Charles Callaway returned home at 12:15 Christmas morning to find a man asleep on his couch.

When he saw his automatic shotgun and a butcher knife lying across the man's chest, Callaway knew it wasn't Santa Claus.

Instead, Lincoln County Deputy L.C. Underwood said it was William Guilliam, 25, of Charlotte. Guilliam, serving two years in the Lincoln prison unit for misdemeanor larceny, had escaped from prison Monday afternoon.

Guilliam had turned all the lights off and curled up on the couch in Callaway's hunting jacket.

Underwood said Callaway jerked the shotgun from the sleepy man and held him until he called the sheriff's department.

"I don't know why he broke into that house," Underwood said. "He may have thought he was Santa Claus or something."

Guilliam has been charged with prison escape and second-degree burglary.

Job Corpsman Here Jan. 11, 25

Job Corps Counselor Edward Bagley will be interviewing at the Pitt County Department of Social Services Jan. 11 and 25 in the afternoons.

The morning of Jan. 9 he will be at the Greene Lamp S. O. S. Center in Snow Hill.

SPECIAL SERVICES

The Temple Church announces four special services with the Rev. Bob Trimble of Detroit, Michigan Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. Services on Friday and Saturday will be at 7:30 p.m. and services on Sunday will be at 11 a.m. and 6:00 p.m.

Whiz Kid To Give Paper

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Seventeen-year-old Michael Witt will be going to San Francisco next week, but not just to see the sights.

The Broughton High School science student will present a paper on his work to improve cleaning agents to the National Association for the Advancement of Science.

For the last year, Witt has assisted Michael H. Theil, a North Carolina State University textile chemistry professor, in research that could lead to a better way of taking the dirt out of drapes or cleaning doubleknit and polyester fabrics.

Witt won the expense-paid trip for his paper, titled "A Study of Polymer Complexes." The paper describes Witt's research with Theil at N.C. State, and it was judged best in a competition sponsored by the North Carolina Junior Academy of Science.

The experiments dealt with ways to mix polymers used by the textile industry, Witt said.

A polymer is a natural or synthetic chemical compound consisting of repeating structural units, such as plastic, polyester and protein.

Theil said it is hoped the research will show how polymers can co-exist with each other and how to make a blend of polymers.

One of the applications of the research may be a material that can wash oil and dirt from polyester and draperies, he said.

Broughton chemistry teacher Archie T. Clark introduced Witt and Theil last fall.

"Mike's the best chemistry student I've ever had," Clark said. "By saying that, I'm putting him in some tall company, because one of my former students attended Yale and became a successful surgeon."

Witt and Theil work each afternoon in Theil's lab at N.C. State. The whiz kid says he plans to study engineering at N.C. State, Duke University or Yale University.

the country, has all but decided that instead of trying to get a four-year lease on the White House he will accept a major corporate job.

Teddy Bags Lewis

John Lewis, the Carter-appointed deputy head of ACTION, has rejected the president's personal request not to quit his job and go to work for Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's presidential campaign.

Lewis, who reached fame in the civil rights battles of the 1960s, did agree to stay in the Carter administration until the end of 1979. Early next year, he will move to Atlanta under plans now being readied by the Kennedy campaign. From that base, he will run Kennedy's Southern primary operations, concentrating on the black vote.

Kennedy's capture of Lewis reveals a basic weakness of Jimmy Carter in his supposed fortress of black voter support. Also eager to jump to Kennedy is the black leader made internationally famous by the president, former United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young. But Young is unlikely to desert Carter. Although unhappy at what he regards as cavalier treatment from the administration when he was fired, Young retains a strong sense of loyalty to the president.

Prime Minister Resigns Post Seek Publisher Of Khomeini Ad

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Maria de Lourdes Pintassilgo, Portugal's first woman prime minister, formally resigned today, opening the way for a new center-right government to take over before the end of the year.

Ms. Pintassilgo handed in her resignation to President Antonio Ramalho Eanes 149 days after he named her to the post and 25 days after Francisco sa Carneiro's coalition of Social Democrats, Conservatives and Monarchists won a majority in Parliament.

Sa Carneiro was due back from a Christmas vacation Friday and aides said he was expected to pick a new Cabinet on New Year's Eve. It will be Portugal's 12th government since the 1974 revolution ended a half century of dictatorship.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Iranian Embassy is looking for newspapers willing to publish an advertisement that presents Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's "Christmas Message to the Christian World."

The Iranians tried to run the half-page advertisement in the Christmas editions of The Washington Post. The newspaper rejected the message because it referred to American hostages in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran as "spies and traitors."

Christopher Little, vice president and counsel for the Post, said the advertisement was potentially libelous. He added, "We simply do not accept serious charges against people that are not substantiated. It is a matter of policy."

considering, this would be but one plank in a platform devoted not to expansion, but to contraction. His whole purpose would be to disband the federal government, but to disband it "gracefully." One by one, beginning with the regulatory agencies, executive departments would simply vanish. After six months, he believes, "no one would miss them but the bureaucrats who used to work there." The Constitution, alas, would continue to require a Congress, but with the Kelly Girls in charge of foreign affairs and no executive agencies to bother about, the Congress would have little to do. The liberties of the people, in sum, might be secure.

In his second month in the White House, Hess would wipe out federal aid to the states, the cities and the public schools. This would effectively wipe out public education, a prospect he finds enchanting. He would end highway maintenance, which in time would end driving, which in time would solve the gasoline problem and also revitalize the legs of the American people. This would help the horse industry also. Down with government and up with anarchy! The platform, I am bound to say, has a certain splendid appeal.

British Cemetery On Ocracoke

By SHARON BOND
Associated Press Writer
OCRACOKE ISLAND, N. C. (AP) — Thirty seven years ago today, a young school teacher from Ocracoke stood with other islanders and servicemen stationed there while a memorial service was said for four British seamen, casualties of World War II who were buried on foreign soil.

Fannie Pearl Fulcher didn't know Lt. Thomas Cunningham or the other three who were buried on the Outer Banks island where she was born.

But she thought Cunningham's widow might like to know about the service. So after it was over, she went home and wrote Barbara Cunningham a letter.

Her act of kindness struck up a close, lasting friendship between the two. Miss Fulcher is now retired and lives the winters in Raleigh and the summers on Ocracoke. Mrs. Cunningham, a retired welfare worker, still lives in Blackpool, England.

"I wrote her and we began corresponding," Miss Fulcher said in a recent interview in Raleigh. "Ten years later I went to England and paid her a visit. I really feel very close to her. I hear from her often."

The four sailors were killed while on patrol along the Outer Banks coastline. They were among a contingent on loan to the U.S. Navy, which had asked the British government for help in combating attacks by German U-boats, according to information in "In Some Foreign Field," by L. Vanloan Naisawald.

Since two of the sailors never were identified, it is not certain whether all were on the same patrol boat.

Today Cunningham and the other three British seamen rest inside a white picket fence surrounded by trees and shrubs on island land that has been ceded to the British government. A Union Jack waves gently over them in the island breeze, and a sign tells visitors the small plot is an official British cemetery.

The four were buried there in May of 1942 when their bodies washed ashore at Ocracoke. Cunningham and the only other of the four who was identified, Stanley Craig, a telegraphist in the Royal Navy, were aboard the H.M.S. Bedfordshire when it was torpedoed and sunk while on patrol, according to Naisawald.

Miss Fulcher's father, a lay minister, conducted the original service in May since neither a priest nor minister was available at the time.

During the fall of 1942, Mrs. Cunningham wrote British naval authorities in America asking if a priest had conducted the burial service since her husband was a devout Catholic.

The request finally made its way to local authorities who planned the memorial service held 37 years ago today.

The two women wrote to each other for 10 years before Miss Fulcher visited England for the first time. Because of the letters, the two were hardly strangers when they finally met in 1952, she said.

"We knew each other from our pictures," Miss Fulcher said. "But without them, I would have known her anyway. She writes such beautiful letters."

Miss Fulcher said Mrs. Cunningham has no plans to come to America.

"She has been quoted as saying that if she came, she would have to go to Ocracoke, and if she went to Ocracoke, it would open old wounds," Miss Fulcher said.

"I've sent her many clip-pings, and she is always interested. The family really does feel a kinship for America because of it" (what was done on Ocracoke for Cunningham).

Mrs. Cunningham was pregnant when her husband left for America, and in October 1942, their son was born. Miss Fulcher also corresponds with Tom Jr. and his family.

She said the family has never considered moving Cunningham's body home, nor have any of them ever visited the grave. Mrs. Cunningham could not be reached in England for comment.

Miss Fulcher serves as kind of a local historian for tourists since the British cemetery is quite an attraction on the island. British officials visit it periodically, and it is maintained by the U.S. Coast Guard, according to a spokesman.

Miss Fulcher says no one knows who attached this Rupert Brook quotation to the picket fence:

"If I should die think only this of me:
That there's some corner
Of a foreign field that is forever England."

Grass-Roots Politics In Iowa's Precinct 20

By MARGY MCCAY
Associated Press Writer
CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa (AP) — When Vern Numedahl gets home from work, he sits down at his telephone and begins dialing numbers listed on a computer print-out.

"I just tell them I'm with the Carter-Mondale steering committee and ask them if the election were held today, who they'd support," said Numedahl, who is "Carter's man" in Cedar Rapids' Precinct 20.

"I put a C, a K, a B or a U — for undecided — by their name. Then I talk to them about the caucuses and send them more information if they need it."

Numedahl, 59, is what grass-roots politics is all about. He is an unpaid precinct captain trying to persuade his neighbors to attend the Jan. 21 Democratic caucus at Cleveland School.

There, Numedahl hopes, they will vote for county convention delegates who support President Carter over Sen. Edward M. Kennedy or California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.

In 1976, those 2,531 neighborhood meetings across Iowa helped give Carter the recognition he needed to become a serious candidate for the Democratic nomination. His campaign staff is using the same caucus recruiting method — person-to-person contact — again this year.

Precinct 20 is a middle-class, mostly white neighborhood in west-central Cedar Rapids, a heavily unionized city of about 109,000. The precinct has 1,969 registered voters, 32 percent of whom are registered Democrats. Some 21 percent are Republicans, and 47 percent list no affiliation.

"I've only had one person hang up on me," Numedahl said. "The rest seem pretty interested. We've got a list of about 90 names (of registered Democrats who voted in the last two years), and I suppose 35 or 40 were for Carter."

"Maybe seven or eight said they're for Kennedy and there was one for Brown," he said. "The rest are undecided."

Numedahl, who works as an engineer at a center for profoundly handicapped citizens, and two other volunteers have phoned each name on their lists at least once.

"I think I'll go through it (again) before the caucus maybe just to remind them how important the caucuses really are," he said.

Bill Taylor, a Kennedy staffer in Cedar Rapids, refused to discuss details of his efforts to enlist caucus-goers, but said "door-knocking is the major part of the campaign."

Traer Sunley, Brown's state coordinator, said there is no formal organization operating in Cedar Rapids, but officials hope to name an organizer by the end of the week.

Monica McFadden, Carter's area campaign coordinator, said person-to-person contact — especially telephoning — is the best way to gather support.

Europe's Car Of The Year

DETROIT (AP) — Fiat's Lancia Delta is Europe's car of the year, according to an international jury of automotive experts.

Claudio Ferrari, president of Fiat Motors of North America, announced the award Wednesday at the company's Montvale, N.J. headquarters. The announcement was also released in Detroit.

Other cars placing behind the Delta, in their order of finish, were the Opel Kadett, Peugeot 505, Citroen Visa, Mitsubishi Colt and Mazda RX-7.

The Delta, a front-wheel-drive, five-door sedan, is the first totally new Lancia model in several years and the first to be designed for Fiat by Giorgio Giugiaro's Italdesign Studio.

Ferrari said the car is not currently scheduled for sale in the U.S.

The Delta received the award after balloting by 52 journalists from 16 European countries.

Illinois Governor Tries Resolve Schools Crisis

CHICAGO (AP) — Gov. James R. Thompson says he is dispatching aides for meetings with representatives of the city, school board, teachers' union and banks to try to resolve the Chicago school system's financial crisis.

The school board, which has about $9 million on hand, missed a $41.5 million payroll for 48,600 employees last Friday and faces another payroll next week.

Thompson said the meetings today and Friday are intended to see if any of the parties have changed their positions and to find out what it would take for them to enter a "financial partnership" with the state to meet "the short-term needs of the city."

The governor stood firm on his position of refusing to bail out the schools unless the city and banks share the risks.

"I won't go for any plan that just includes the state in terms of investing the state's money," Thompson said in a telephone interview. "It's my view that the Legislature will not be receptive to any kind of plan to help restructure the Chicago schools financially until it's been demonstrated that the Chicago community is willing to help itself."

"These people in the Legislature come from places that have had school problems and have all pitched in and helped themselves," he said.

Mayor Jane Byrne sidestepped questions on whether money will be found to pay the teachers next Wednesday when they are scheduled to return to school.

Thompson was assailed by Mrs. Byrne and others for refusing to allow the state to loan the schools $50 million now and $50 million next month. Thompson turned down that plan Friday and said he would be willing to help only if the city and local banks also would commit funds to help the schools. The mayor and the banks refused.

Cars Collide Wednesday

Cars driven by Janet Lynn Fleming of 202 Mumford Rd. and Randy Hyman Garris of 353 Mumford Rd. collided about 3:30 p.m. yesterday on Mumford Road, 300 feet East of the Greene Street intersection.

Police department investigators reported an estimated $500 resulted to each of the two cars.

Mrs. Byrne said bankers will not join any effort to bail out the school system until the Legislature formally gives an oversight committee the power to monitor school board finances. She said the city does not have the money to rescue the schools.

The school board is behind in payments to milk suppliers, bus companies and other vendors; owes the federal government about $16 million withheld from employees' checks; and has an operating deficit of $94 million.

The Ayatollah Is Rated No. 10

LONDON (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini was rated No. 10 in a British poll to determine the 1979 Personality of the Year.

Britain's Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher easily won the award Wednesday given by two British Broadcasting Corp. radio programs whose listeners name the year's leading figure.

Pope John Paul II was voted No. 2, and Britain's foreign secretary, Lord Carrington, was No. 3.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined slightly today as gold prices reached new highs again.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials eased .26 to 87.88 in the first half hour.

Losers took a 54 lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The price of gold broke $500 an ounce for the first time in New York on Wednesday.

Today in the London market, which had been closed since Monday for holidays, it climbed to the $510-$512 range.

Faced with that kind of competition, the stock market showed little life.

Aetna Life & Casualty topped the active list in early trading, off 1/8 at 33. A 100,000-share block traded at that price.

On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average slipped 1.02 to 878.14.

Advances outnumbered declines by a slight margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 24.96 million shares, against 19.15 million, in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index rose .08 to 61.82.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .53 at 243.15.

Toll Abetted By Weather

By The Associated Press
 Heavy rains, snow and fog across the country contributed heavily to a record 713 traffic deaths reported during the four-day Christmas weekend, the National Safety Council says.

The previous record for a four-day Christmas holiday was 706 deaths in 1956. The record for any Christmas holiday is 720, set during the three-day weekend of 1965.

"The heavy rains, the ice, the fog that prevailed had an adverse effect on the count," Barbara Carraro, the council's supervisor of motor vehicle statistics, said Wednesday. "There are no indications that travel was any greater than we had anticipated. Unfortunately, we'll never find out just how many miles were traveled" during the period.

Before this year's Christmas holiday period, the council had estimated 450 to 550 persons might be killed on streets and highways between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Tuesday.

Council statisticians say that during a non-holiday, four-day period at this time of year, 510 traffic deaths could be expected.

During the three-day Christmas weekend last year, 454 traffic deaths were counted.

Claims Khadafy 'Bought' Billy

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Palestine Liberation Organization chief Yasser Arafat says Billy Carter, brother of the U.S. president, has been bought by Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy, Beirut newspapers reported today.

Arafat fired the latest salvo in the PLO's three-week-old war of words with Khadafy's radical regime in a Wednesday night opening a nursery set up by the Palestinian Red Crescent, the PLO's equivalent of the Red Cross. Excerpts from the speech were reported today in the Beirut press.

Without mentioning Khadafy by name, Arafat was quoted as describing the Libyan leader as a political midget who "may be able to buy beer merchants or Billy Carter."

CT&T Merger Today

TARBORO, N.C. (AP) — In a move that has been in the works for 16 months, the North Carolina portion of Norfolk Carolina Telephone Company will merge today with Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company of Tarboro.

The merger means that the seven counties previously served by Norfolk Carolina will now be included in the CT&T service area.

As a result of the merger, CT&T will operate through 146 telephone exchanges in a total of 50 North Carolina counties.

Both CT&T and Norfolk Carolina are members of the United Telephone System, whose parent company, United Telecommunications Inc., is located in Kansas City, Mo.

With the acquisition of Norfolk Carolina, Carolina Telephone will be serving an additional 32,000 customers and 50,000 telephones.

The Virginia portion of Norfolk Carolina's telephone service will be sold to United Intermountain Telephone Company, subject to Federal Communications Commission approval.

In preparation for the takeover, CT&T loaned personnel to Norfolk Carolina to assist in a service improvement program. The Tarheel-based company also budgeted more than $13 million — twice the amount spent in 1978 — for service improvements. The company plans to spend in excess of $11 million in 1980 for additional improvements, CT&T officials said.

Following the transition, a CT&T spokesman said, the company will employ 5,600 employees, with an estimated annual payroll of $80.6 million.

Berrigan Case Is Dismissed

NEW YORK (AP) — A Manhattan Criminal Court judge has granted a prosecution request and dismissed charges against the Rev. Daniel Berrigan and 14 others who took part in a protest at a nuclear research facility last month.

Berrigan, an activist Roman Catholic priest, and the others were charged with disorderly conduct and trespass after chaining themselves to a fence at Riverside Research Institute.

Judge Rose McBrien dismissed the charges Wednesday after Assistant District Attorney Michael Cherkasky said there were no injuries or damage during the protest.

"We want to prevent these defendants from using the Criminal Court as a forum for their views," he added.

Berrigan told reporters later, "They are so determined to keep that stuff (the research) classified they would rather dismiss the charges than have a public trial."

No Pauper If Renting TV Set

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A federal judge has ruled that a woman who has no job, no car and supports herself and two children on a $151-a-month welfare check is not a pauper because she spends more than a third of her monthly income to rent a color television.

Donna Dodson had sued the rental company claiming it failed to adequately inform her of the terms of the rental contract and asked that the $60 filing fee be waived.

U.S. District Judge Richard B. Kellam ruled that "a person who can afford to pay $1,242 for rental of a color TV set for 23 months is able to pay the cost of filing a suit."

Kansas City Firemen's Slowdown Escalating

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Vacations for all city employees were canceled and police manned a third of Kansas City's fire stations as union firefighters escalated their seven-day work slowdown by calling in sick.

About 114 of the city's 900 firefighters reported sick during the day Wednesday and another 114 called in sick for the 11 p.m. shift change, officials said.

Police who had staffed six of the city's 33 fire stations since Monday, were told to take over seven more stations to help provide adequate fire protection. However, at least four fire trucks were expected to be out of service.

About 200 police officers have received some fire training, and some 180 already have been assigned to fire stations and are working 12-hour shifts.

There have been no major fires since firefighters began refusing to work non-emergency overtime when their contract expired Friday. The contract dispute over pay escalated Wednesday when firemen refused to do inspections and attend training classes.

Nineteen firefighters were dismissed Wednesday and 52 were suspended, bringing the total dismissals to 31 and suspensions to 160.

The three-day suspensions were to be served later upon orders from the city. A dismissal is issued if a suspended firefighter reports for work and is cited a second time for refusing overtime duty.

"They're willing to go to jail or get fired," said John Germann, president of Local 42 of the International Association of Firefighters. "It's apparent to me that the City Council doesn't care about fire safety."

Germann said the union did not authorize the sick-in, but he lent support to firefighters who cited illness for staying away from work.

"A lot of firefighters are sick of this whole mess," he said.

No Bond In Death Case

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — Judge Ray Braswell has denied bond for a Boone man charged with first-degree murder in the slaying of a state Democratic Party official.

William Jackson Wilson, 29, was charged in the shooting death of John Archie Cashion of Boone. Cashion's partially-clothed body was discovered Monday in a ditch near Grandfather Mountain in Avery County. He had been shot in the head and chest, authorities said.

Members of the Linville Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad reportedly discovered the body. A rescue worker said it appeared Cashion had been dead for at least four hours when his body was discovered, and it appeared he was brought to the site and dumped.

Wilson was arrested late Tuesday in Watauga County according to authorities. He was taken to Avery County where he is being held in the county jail.

A probable-cause hearing for Wilson is scheduled for Jan. 8. Cashion, 68, was owner and operator of an auto rustproofing shop in Boone. Last May, he was appointed to a two-year term on the executive committee of the state Democratic Party. He also was a member of the Watauga County Democratic Party.

Cashion's car was parked outside his mobile home, according to authorities who said groceries were found in the car, and the trailer apparently had been ransacked.

Officials said Wilson apparently worked for Cashion at the rustproofing company but was fired Oct. 27 following a dispute.

The State Bureau of Investigation is assisting county authorities in the investigation.

Wolverine Tailbacks Worry Crum

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — North Carolina Coach Dick Crum isn't concerned that Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler won't tell him who the Wolverines will start at quarterback in Friday night's Gator Bowl game. But Crum is plenty worried that the Wolverines are starting two big, fast tailbacks in the same backfield.

Schembechler has been experimenting with Butch Woolfolk and Stanley Edwards in the same backfield and the Michigan coach said Wednesday he liked the results.

"Practices have been very good," Schembechler said. "Stanley has looked better at fullback than I thought he would. And he's so quick getting to the hole. He kind of reminds me of Rob Lytle."

Edwards, a 6-foot-1, 205-pound junior from Detroit, started the season at tailback for Michigan and gained 618 yards before injuring an ankle against Minnesota in the sixth game. Woolfolk, a 6-1, 207-pound sophomore from Westfield, N.J., stepped in and finished the season with 927 yards.

"I think it will add another dimension with Woolfolk and Edwards in the same backfield," Crum said. "I really don't know what to expect, but I'm sure it will alter their sequence. That could throw us off."

Schembechler indicated he would use both B.J. Dickey and John Wampler at quarterback, but refused to say which one would start.

Rockets Fire, 143-110

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer
The owner of the Houston Rockets wants to see his team take off — soon. It might already have done so if it had kept Mike Newlin.

The Rockets, 16-19 and tied for fourth in the National Basketball Association's Central Division, broke a six-game losing streak by pelting cross-state rival San Antonio 143-110 Wednesday night. The victory came on the heels of team owner George Maloof's indictment of his club for its "negative approach."

Had the Rockets management seen fit to hold onto Newlin rather than deal him to New Jersey early in the season, they might be challenging Atlanta for the top spot in the division. Newlin has been on an unreal scoring streak that saw him net 52 points 10 days ago in his last home game, and hit for 37 Wednesday as the Nets took Washington 116-104.

Calvin Murphy, who along with Tom Henderson made Newlin expendable from the Rockets backcourt — or so the club's front office believed — led Houston with 29 points. Moses Malone added 27 and Rick Barry had 21 as the Rockets reacted to Maloof's blast with a flurry of points.

"I can't say that Mr. Maloof's statements had any effect on the way we played," said Houston Coach Del Harris. "I can't ask my players to play any harder. They are doing all they can and I'm coaching the best way I know how. We don't go out and try to lose games."

Maloof had accused the Rockets of feeling "it's predetermined that you can only win a few selected games on the road. We gotta get off that kick."

Elsewhere, Kansas City was better than Los Angeles by 118-111; Indiana edged Detroit 98-97; Milwaukee beat Chicago 110-101; Denver stopped Golden State 99-94; Phoenix bombed Portland 119-99, and Seattle coasted past San Diego 124-104.

Nets 116, Bullets 104
Newlin's performance equalled Elvin Hayes' 37-point output for the Bullets. Winford Boynes scored all 14 of his points down the stretch to help the Nets break a three-game losing streak.

Jim Clemons, one of four Bullets who tried to guard Newlin, was impressed by the Nets' sharpshooter.

Kings 118, Lakers 111
Sam Lacey dominated the boards with 21 rebounds and scored 18 points as he outplayed Kareem Abdul-Jabbar. The Kings rallied from a 15-point deficit in the third quarter.

Otis Birdsong had 25 points for the Kings while Jamaal Wilkes and Earvin "Magic" Johnson each had 24 for Los Angeles.

Pacers 98, Pistons 97
Detroit lost its eighth consecutive game as Mickey Johnson hit a pair of free throws for the decisive points. Detroit's John Long missed a shot at the buzzer that could have won the game.

Alex English led the Pacers with 21 points while Bob Lanier had 24 for the Pistons.

Bucks 110, Bulls 101
Junior Bridgeman scored 12 of his 23 points in the final quarter and Marques Johnson also had 23 for the Bucks.

"Bridgeman is a very smart player and he uses their offense to get himself open," Bulls' Coach Jerry Sloan said. "He's like another guard out there. They run him around a lot and he works hard to get open. When he gets the ball he can either pull up or go to the hoop."

Reggie Theus had 21 points for Chicago.

Nuggets 99, Warriors 94
Dan Issel more than made up for the absence of suspended George McGinnis and injured David Thompson from the Denver lineup by pouring in 39 points. Issel had 37 points Tuesday night.

McGinnis began a six-day, three-game suspension for knocking down referee Jess Kersey in a game at Seattle Dec. 16.

Suns 119, Trail Blazers 99
Phoenix won its 12th straight game, riding balanced scoring that saw Len Robinson hit for 21 points, Paul Westphal for 20, Walter Davis for 19 and Mike Bratz for 14.

"There are a lot of factors when you lose one like this and none are good," noticed Jack Ramsay, coach of the Blazers. "We've got some sick people but that doesn't excuse the entire squad."

SuperSonics 124, Clippers 104
A 14-point spree by Dennis Johnson in the third quarter paced Seattle. The Sonics outscored San Diego 31-8 in a 7½-minute span of that period.

San Diego's Brian Taylor had 28 points, including four three-point field goals.

The Playoffs

Texas Eyeing Houston, Dallas

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer
The eyes of Texas are upon the Houston Oilers training room and Roger Staubach's future.

Three regular patrons with the Oilers' doctors make up most of the team's offense: All-Pro running back Earl Campbell, quarterback Dan Pastorini and wide receiver Ken Burrough. They all are listed as doubtful with groin injuries for Houston's American Football Conference playoff game at San Diego Saturday. They were hurt in Houston's 13-7 playoff triumph over Denver last Sunday.

If all three are sidelined, the AFC West champion Chargers will be heavy favorites over the wild-card Oilers.

The Cowboys might need to be concerned with something far more permanent — Staubach's retirement although the ace signal-caller has said he won't decide until next spring whether to return for the 1980 season.

"If we are fortunate to go to the Super Bowl," said Cowboys Coach Tom Landry, whose National Conference East champions are preparing for a Sunday contest against NFC West titlist Los Angeles, "he might quit this year. Roger has pride and he'll never let himself get over the hill. He'll play as long as he feels he can do the job."

Staubach did such a good job this season that he led the NFL's passing efficiency ratings. But Landry acknowledges that his quarterback has reached the age where all the skills can disappear ...and it happens all at once.

"But I think he should play another year. He is having one of his best years and he really put us into the division championship."

The Cowboys manhandled the Rams 30-6 Oct. 14 at Texas Stadium, where Sunday's game will be played. Staubach had one of his best games ever in the 1975 NFC championship against the Rams, completing 16 of 26 passes for 220 yards and four touchdowns in a 37-7 victory.

Dallas may have to carry the hopes of the Lone Star state for a Super Bowl contender if Campbell, Pastorini and Burrough are unable to play against the Chargers, who — along with Pittsburgh — had a 12-4 record, tops in the NFL.

Oilers Coach Bum Phillips isn't giving up on his star trio, although he has faith in their substitutes. Of backup QB Gifford Nielsen, Phillips said:

"He's showed me every time he's been in a game that he's capable of starting in this league."

Rob Carpenter would replace Campbell and Rich Caster and Guido Merkens probably would take over for Burrough.

The other Saturday game pits wild-card Philadelphia, which beat Chicago 27-17 last Sunday, at Tampa Bay. On Sunday, defending Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh entertains Miami.

The Steelers will be hurt by All-Pro linebacker Jack Ham's absence with an ankle injury but that doesn't change Dolphins Coach Don Shula's outlook. "You go down the roster both ways and they're deep," said Shula. "They've got experienced players backing up every position."

B.C. Upsets Georgetown, To Meet St. Johns

NEW YORK (AP) — For a few seconds there, Tom Davis felt as if his Boston College Eagles had been grounded. "I tried not to look disappointed," said the Boston College basketball coach. "I knew my guys were, and I didn't want to show them that I was, too."

This sensitive moment occurred in the final 10 seconds of overtime of Boston College's game with 17th-ranked Georgetown in the opener of the Holiday Festival Tournament at Madison Square Garden Wednesday night.

The Eagles had just dropped behind 74-73 on a jumper by Georgetown's John Duren, and things looked grim. But not hopeless, it turned out.

Given one last shot, the Eagles made it at the buzzer, a 12-footer by Vin Caraher, to upset the Hoyas 75-74. The victory earned the Eagles a spot in Friday night's finals against 15th-ranked St. John's, a 68-58 winner over Lafayette in the night's second game.

"The way we came back was a tribute to our guys," said Davis. "I thought we executed very well. The game was won by both clubs three, four times down the stretch."

It appeared that Georgetown had won it finally on Duren's 15-footer off the steal of an inbounds pass. But the Eagles' Jim Sweeney dribbled the length of the court, moving through the porous Georgetown defense like a shot, and passed off to Caraher after finding no room in the middle.

The 6-foot-6 forward banked it off the glass as the buzzer sounded.

"The play was not designed to go to Caraher," said Davis. "Sweeney was supposed to penetrate, and if not swing out and throw to one of the guards."

"I felt the shot was going in when I took it," said Caraher, adding: "It was a dream come true for me. I always dreamed of playing in Madison Square Garden."

"TV was brand new for both of us. It was all black and white and, of course there was no videotape," remembered Nelson. "Red and I were working together for the first time, so we chatted about the things that could go wrong."

"Red asked me if I had ever seen anybody come off the bench to make a tackle. I hadn't. He told me that if it did happen, the referee could award a touchdown."

The next day, Rice was giving Alabama a pasting and driving toward another touchdown.

"Dickie Moegle was running down the sidelines and I was trying to decide in my own mind whether anybody could catch him," recalled Nelson. "All of a sudden he went down. There was total consternation. I hadn't seen anyone capable of making the tackle, but I did see this guy with no helmet on scampering back to the Alabama bench. It was Tommy Lewis."

"Up in the booth, Red had the biggest smile on his face. He just turned to me and motioned for an explanation. I said on the air that in a case like this, the referee is empowered to award a touchdown, which he did. Nobody knew Red and I had discussed the very same possibility the night before."

Caraher wound up with 15 points, while John Bagley led the winners with 17, 13 of them in the second half to help the Eagles rally from an 11-point deficit to tie at the end of regulation at 66-66.

The second game was tame by comparison, even though it was close most of the way. St. John's broke it open with an eight-point run in the last seven minutes.

The burst gave the Redmen a 59-50 lead with 5:10 remaining and they coasted home from there. Wayne McKay led the Redmen with 18 points, including two of them to trigger that game-breaking 8-0 spurt.

"They had a tough zone to crack," said St. John's Coach Lou Carnesecca. "In the second half, we got more patient and played better defense. That was really the key to the game."

Another "key" was the Redmen's aggressiveness at the end, something they didn't show at the beginning, said Carnesecca: "We didn't want to put the ball on ice too soon, because sometimes the ice melts."

The Holiday Festival Tournament was one of a handful of Christmas tournaments that opened Wednesday night.

Elsewhere, 18th-ranked Oregon State and 20th-ranked Brigham Young won their openers in the Far West Classic in Portland, Ore.

Jeff Stout and Mark Radford combined for 38 points and ignited a second-half burst that led Oregon State to a 100-59 romp over Idaho. The Oregon State trio of Stout, Radford and Ray Blume sank 14 of their first 15 shots in the second half, helping the Beavers to a runaway 59-35 lead with 14:57 left.

Blume had a tournament record of 11 assists, breaking the old mark of 10 set last year by Michigan State's Earvin "Magic" Johnson and Oregon State's Dwayne Allen.

Oregon State Coach Ralph Miller admitted that he left Blume in the lineup late in the second half so he could get the record.

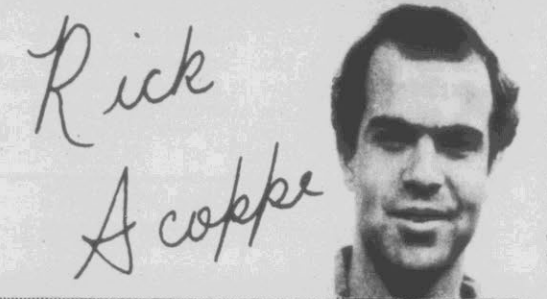

"Anytime a player of mine has a chance for an assist record, he's going to play," Miller said.

He added: "We didn't let Idaho off for any air. As a team effort, it was very good."

Devin Durant's three-point play triggered a late Brigham Young rally as the Cougars struggled to victory over Penn State.

Scenes from Reno:

The East Carolina basketball team traveled to this western Nevada city in hopes of bringing home a tournament trophy. Instead, the Pirates dropped two games — losing to Northern Arizona, 64-60, and Kent State, 73-72 — on successive nights.

In both games, the Pirates, now 5-5, fell behind early only to rally. Each time, however, their rallies ended without giving ECU a win.

Although the Pirates went west to play basketball, there are many other things to do in this city, including just a bit of gambling.

So, what follows are a scattering of the many unusual things this town offers.

•First, of all the Pirates guard Brian Wiggins fared best in gambling, winning over $100. Reportedly — reportedly because neither would own up to his losses — Kyle Powers and Tom Szymanski were the big losers.

•Slot machines are virtually everywhere in this city. In the airport terminal there are rows of these one-armed banof shows that can be seen — for $15 to $30 per person.

•Seen along the streets of Reno: Quick marriage chapels. This advertisement was seen in the motel room: "Getting Married? Pioneer Inn offer you 3 (not one, but three!) chapels here in hotel; Assitance for marriage license; Most reasonable rates in Reno; Special gift couples of the hotel; Flowers available for the occasion; Call Ext. 254."

Pirate notes: Herb Gray hit 10 of 19 shots, scored 27 points and 19 rebounds in the two games...Herb Krusen, who before the two-game tournament was hitting under 50 percent of his field goals, brought his average for the season above the 50 percent mark, hitting 8 of 11 the first night and 4-6 the second night...Krusen hit for 24 points in the two games...As a team ECU hit 26 of 36 free throws, for over 72 percent...No Pirates were on the All-Tournament team...ECU, in the midst of a three-game losing streak, takes on N.C. State January 2...The Wolfpack beat Nevada-Reno, the winner of the Wolf Pack Classic, earlier in December, 82-66...The Pirates return home January 5 to host UNC-Asheville.

'Cat Guard Quits Team

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Starting guard Dwight Anderson has quit the second-ranked University of Kentucky basketball team, and the future of two other players is in doubt.

Head basketball Coach Joe B. Hall said Wednesday that Anderson, a 6-3 sophomore and the team's third leading scorer, had decided to leave the university for "personal reasons."

But he refused to confirm or deny reports by Lexington radio station WVLC that freshmen Sam Bowie and Dirk Minniefield will be suspended for one game.

According to the broadcast, the 7-foot-1 Bowie and Minniefield, 6-3, will be suspended for the Notre Dame game Saturday in Louisville but will be reinstated afterwards.

Asked about the suspensions during an impromptu post-practice interview, Hall said, "I don't know anything about that."

In a copyrighted story in today's editions of the Louisville Courier-Journal, Hall is quoted as saying, "I have not suspended them."

But he said he didn't know if the two players would play against Notre Dame.

Lindsey Nelson Nears 20th Cotton Telecast

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

On Jan. 1, 1954, the Cotton Bowl was on television for the first time. The night before, Lindsey Nelson met with his color man, Red Grange, to discuss working a game on the new-fangled medium.

"TV was brand new for both of us. It was all black and white and, of course there was no videotape," remembered Nelson. "Red and I were working together for the first time, so we chatted about the things that could go wrong."

"Red asked me if I had ever seen anybody come off the bench to make a tackle. I hadn't. He told me that if it did happen, the referee could award a touchdown."

The next day, Rice was giving Alabama a pasting and driving toward another touchdown.

"Dickie Moegle was running down the sidelines and I was trying to decide in my own mind whether anybody could catch him," recalled Nelson. "All of a sudden he went down. There was total consternation. I hadn't seen anyone capable of making the tackle, but I did see this guy with no helmet on scampering back to the Alabama bench. It was Tommy Lewis."

"Up in the booth, Red had the biggest smile on his face. He just turned to me and motioned for an explanation. I said on the air that in a case like this, the referee is empowered to award a touchdown, which he did. Nobody knew Red and I had discussed the very same possibility the night before."

When Lindsey Nelson opens CBS' broadcast next Tuesday, it will be his 20th Cotton Bowl game. A quarter of a century after spotting Lewis jump Moegle, Nelson is still accumulating memories. And they're as colorful as those gosh-awful, loud sports jackets he wears.

Nelson longs for those days of yesteryear when radio was an announcer's medium. Even TV in its infancy was better for a broadcaster plying his trade.

"For that first game on TV we had four cameras. They were big and immobile. They looked like tanks. But it was easier for me and a lot more fun. Now my job is promos and cues for the commercials."

For this year's Nebraska-Houston game, Nelson will work in the booth with Paul Hornung, the former Notre Dame star. Nelson credits Notre Dame's coming out of a 45-year bowl hibernation in 1970 with revitalizing the Cotton Bowl.

Last year's 35-34 Notre Dame victory over Houston, however, didn't do much for CBS, whose cameras didn't pick up Joe Montana's last-second TD pass to Kris Haines. Although the winning score wasn't seen, it was heard.

For the 20th time, Nelson will be spending New Year's Eve in Dallas. He says he doesn't mind, except when the Arkansas fans are in town yelling pig-sooey all night, interrupting his sleep.

He says he hasn't picked out one of those ugly sports jackets yet, but he might find something special in Dallas.

Chargers Fall, Rams Advance

KINSTON — Greene Central and South Lenoir advanced to the finals of the Tri-County Classic with wins here Wednesday night.

The Rams nipped North Lenoir, 64-58, while South Lenoir ripped Ayden-Grifton, 65-51. The two squads will meet Friday at 8:30 p.m. for the championship.

The consolation game — featuring Ayden-Grifton and North Lenoir — will be held tonight at 8:30.

In the girls' division, Greene Central nipped Ayden-Grifton, 45-44, while South Lenoir defeated North Lenoir, 52-49. The two teams will meet Friday at 7 p.m. for the championship.

The consolation match will be tonight at 7 p.m.

The tournament is being held at Lenoir Community College.

Wolverine Tailbacks...

Carolina's job of defending us a little tougher when they don't know who will start." Schembechler said.

Dickey, who gained 242 yards rushing, is considered the better runner, while Wangler, who completed 72 of 122 pass attempts, is easily the better passer.

Senior Matt Kupec, a 6-1, 193-pounder from Snyosset, N.Y., will handle the quarterbacking for the Tar Heels. Kupec now holds virtually every North Carolina passing record, but is generally considered a poor runner.

On the ground, North Carolina relies mainly upon Amos Lawrence, a 5-10, 180-pounder from Norfolk, Va., who is known as "famous Amos" around Chapel Hill.

"We're not really a power team," Crum said. "I think we're more of a finesse team. That's dictated by our tailback, Amos."

"He's a glider. He depends on fluid moves. I think stopping Amos will be a big part of their game plan. But Doug Paschal has had some good games for us at fullback, and we might turn to him if they stop Amos."

Crum said the Tar Heels also would attack Michigan's best defenders — end Curtis Greer and All-America linebacker Ron Simpkins — rather than try to run away from the pair.

O'Brien Eases Suspension

NEW YORK (AP) — National Basketball Association Commissioner Larry O'Brien reduced to six days a 10-day suspension he had imposed on Denver Nuggets forward George McGinnis for running into referee Jess Kersey.

O'Brien said McGinnis had withdrawn his request for a hearing on the matter and "acknowledged his failure to exercise sufficient care to avoid the collision."

Roll Call Report Service
WASHINGTON: Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes in the days before the Christmas break.

HOUSE
CHRYSLER AID — The House passed, by a vote of 271 for and 136 against, a financial aid package for Chrysler Corp. The company says it will collapse without massive federal aid.

The bill (HR 5860) sent to the Senate would provide $1.5 billion in loan guarantees over the next three years if the company raises $1.9 billion on its own. The loan guarantees mean that Chrysler will borrow from the private sector but the U.S. Treasury will have to pay back the $1.5 billion if the company is unable to.

Rep. Thomas Evans, R-Del., a supporter of the plan, called the risk to tax-payers "pale in comparison to the costs to federal, state and local governments if Chrysler were to go under."

Rep. Richard Ichord, D-Mo., an opponent, asked: "Why should the government subsidize the production of goods that the public has already rejected?"

Members voting "yea" favored the Chrysler bail-out.

Reps. Walter Jones, D-1, Charles Whitley, D-3, Ike Andrews, D-4, Richardson Preyer, D-6, and Lamar Gudger, D-11, voted "yea."

Reps. L. H. Fountain, D-2, Stephen Neal, D-5, Charles Rose, D-7, W. C. Hefner, D-8, James

Martin, R-9, and James Broyhill, R-10, voted "nay."

CHRYSLER WORKERS — By a vote of 107 for and 296 against, the House rejected an effort to make Chrysler Corp. workers provide a larger share of the financial aid package for their employer.

The amendment, proposed to the $3.4 billion Chrysler aid bill (see previous vote) would have required union workers to give up $697 million of the $1.3 billion in wage and benefit increases they are scheduled to receive over the next three years. Non-union workers would have foregone $243 million in increases.

The bill later passed by the House required union workers to give up $197 million and non-union workers $100 million.

Rep. Dan Quayle, R-Ind., a sponsor of the amendment, said it is only fair for Chrysler employees to "show some sacrifice if the government is going to come to their assistance."

Rep. James Blanchard, D-Mich., an opponent, said the amendment asked too much of the workers and would "gut the opportunity to help Chrysler and its tens of thousands of employees."

Members voting "yea" wanted Chrysler employees to pay more in return for having their jobs saved.

Broyhill voted "yea." Jones, Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner, Martin and Gudger voted "nay."

AID FOR CITIES — By a vote of 184 for and 153 against, the House lowered from $250 million to $150 million the amount of economic aid to be allocated to the nation's most depressed communities under a special "targeted" economic recovery program. Large cities with chronically high unemployment will benefit most. The aid is to be released next spring in the form of one-shot-only grants. The vote came during debate on HR 5980, an anti-recession bill that the House will take up again in 1980.

Rep. Clarence Brown, R-Ohio, a supporter of the $100 million cut, noted that the targeted aid will be released "during the thick of the presidential primary season, and added that "Harry Hopkins (of the FDR Administration) once said that the key to success in politics is to 'tax and tax, spend and spend, and elect and elect.'"

Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y., an opponent of the cut, said the nation's "most distressed cities, counties and rural areas" need the targeted aid, and that the full $250 million is needed to "help local communities prevent layoffs and cuts in essential police, fire and sanitation services."

Members voting "yea" favored reducing the outlay from $250 million to $150 million. Fountain, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and Gudger voted "yea."

Jones and Whitley did not vote.

SENATE
CHRYSLER BAIL-OUT — The Senate passed, by a vote of 53 for and 44 against, legislation rescuing Chrysler Corp. from its predicted bankruptcy. The bill (see House votes above) was headed for conference with the House and President Carter's signature.

The Senate's $3.6 billion Chrysler aid plan includes federal guarantees for $1.5 billion in private loans. The company would have to raise $2.1 billion on its own, with $525 million coming from wage and benefit concessions by unionized employees and another $150 million from non-union workers.

Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W. Va., a supporter of the bill, said "The costs of letting the company fail far outweigh the benefits of strict adherence to an economic principle."

Sen. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., an opponent, said: "If Chrysler is bailed out, there will be no end to corporations lining up outside our doors demanding similar treatment."

Senators voting "yea" favored the bail-out.

Sens. Robert Morgan, D, and Jesse Helms, R, voted "nay."

UAW CONCESSIONS — By a vote of 69 for and 28 against, the Senate required unionized Chrysler employees to contribute $325 million to the government rescue package for their company (see previous votes).

This amendment was a compromise between those who wanted union workers to forego at least $800 million of the $1.3 billion in wage increases they are due to receive over the next three years, and those who wanted to limit the union sacrifice to $400 million. The amendment also increased the value of federal loan guarantees for Chrysler, reduced the contribution required of non-union workers, and decreased the amount of stock the company would give its employees.

Sen. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., a supporter, said the amendment "provides the sacrifice necessary by the UAW and by management" to deter other companies from seeking Chrysler-style bail-outs.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., an opponent, said allowing employees to receive wage increases "shifts the responsibility from the people (workers) who should provide credit" to the taxpayers.

Most senators voting "nay" favored a greater union sacrifice.

Morgan voted "yea." Helms voted "nay."

WINDFALL PROFITS — The Senate passed, 74 for and 24 against, a bill (HR 3919) to tax a large chunk of the profits U.S. oil companies will reap as a result of the ongoing removal of federal controls from the price of domestic crude oil. The bill would raise about $178 billion in taxes over the next 10 years — about one-third of the windfall profits oil companies are expected to get (after subtraction of other taxes) as a result of decontrol. The tougher House version of HR 3919 would raise about $277 billion over 10 years — about one-half of the oil companies' anticipated windfall profits. The bill is now in a House-Senate conference.

Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W. Va., a supporter, said the Senate has passed "the largest single tax bill ever approved by the Congress. It is a bill which will produce energy. It is a bill which, above all, is fair and equitable to the American people."

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., an opponent, called the legislation confiscatory and anti-production and said "this tax will be a windfall for the big spenders in Congress and in the federal bureaucracy."

Senators voting "yea" favored the windfall profits bill. Morgan voted "yea." Helms voted "nay."

Indians To Be Defined

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — After more than 200 years of dealing with them, the federal government is planning a study to define Indians.

The U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare will conduct public hearings next year "to explore options for changes in the definition of the term Indian," HEW officials said.

The agency is trying to standardize the definition, said Edward J. Baca, HEW's regional education commissioner in Dallas.

"Different groups have different definitions of Indian," Baca said. "The education people have one definition, the Internal Revenue people have another, the census people have even another."

The Indian Education Act defines an Indian as, "Any individual who is a member of a tribe, band or other organized group of Indians, including those tribes, bands or groups terminated since 1940 and those recognized by the state in which they reside."

CONFIRM REPLACEMENT BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The ousted Cambodian government confirmed today that Pol Pot has stepped down as premier. Sources said he will become chairman of a military group trying to drive Vietnamese forces from the country.

Long Wait To Get Fish

SEATTLE (AP) — Rick Hoff went fishing for his doctorate and took more than a year to catch a fish, but he wasn't using a standard hook and line.

Hoff, a graduate student at Washington State University, used his own home-made replicas of the gear used 2,000 years ago by Indians who lived near the mouth of the Hoko River, just west of Sekiu.

He made hooks from Indian plum wood with bone barbs and line from kelp. He used squid for bait.

No luck. He asked Harold Ides, an 80-year-old Makah Indian, to help him locate the halibut grounds where Ides fished as a youth.

Finally, Hoff got permission to fish at the Seattle Aquarium. There he watched fish go after the bait and spit out the hook. He realized the barb was too short, so he adjusted his gear, hooked two fish and returned them unharmed to the tank.

Hoff returned to the Hoko, and, after a long wait, he got a bite.

"I wouldn't let myself believe I really had a fish until I actually saw it," he said of his catch, a foot-long Pacific sole.

Dr. Dale Croes, director of WSU's Hoko River project, said fish bones found with leaders, weights, spreaders and evidence of processing and storage facilities proved that "these Indians of the Hoko River had developed a sophisticated technology for deepwater fishing thousands of years before they encountered the white man."

Jupiter's Moon Best Bet For Form Of Life

WASHINGTON (AP) — Europa, a moon of the planet Jupiter, may be the most likely place in the solar system to search for some form of life, says a scientist who has studied data from the Voyager 2 spacecraft.

Richard C. Hoagland, a consultant to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, says the Voyager data indicates that beneath the surface of Europa is an ocean of water. "the prime prerequisite for life as we know it."

Hoagland, writing in the January issue of "Star & Sky" magazine, bases his theories on information gathered by Voyager during its July fly-bys of Jupiter and its four moons.

"Only three other objects in the solar system have ever been seriously suggested as abodes of life — Mars, Jupiter and Saturn's moon Titan," he said. "Spacecraft investigations of all three of these bodies in recent years have cast doubt on life existing on any of them."

"The Voyager 2 findings leave little doubt that Europa is covered with a crust of ice perhaps five miles thick that envelops a global ocean possibly 60 miles deep," he wrote.

He also suggests that at one time, conditions on the Jovian moon were such that the ocean was free of ice.

"Jupiter was once a miniature sun according to our current concepts of solar system formation," he said.

"It only lasted a short time — a few million years at most — but for that brief period Europa probably basked in energy as rich as any streaming toward Earth today from the sun."

That was long enough, Hoagland said, "for molecules that are suspected life-process precursors to be created as they have been in thousands of earthly laboratory simulations...The life precursor molecules produced during Europa's first few million years could have continued to evolve under a canopy of ice, sustained by internal heat sources."

Europa looks like a giant cracked eggshell in pictures relayed back to Earth from Voyager 2. Crisscrossing its yellow surface are hundreds of dark cracks, some of which seem to be as wide as 30 miles and as long as 2,000 miles.

The next chance scientists will have to get a further look at Europa is in the mid-1980s when NASA launches its Galileo satellite into orbit around Jupiter. The satellite is to pass repeatedly within a few hundred miles of Europa.

"The real excitement will arrive with the first human expedition to Europa," Hoagland said. "Only by landing there will we discover if Europa is another Earth which somehow died before it had a chance."

Will Coordinate New Bond Sales Support Ruling On Deportation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says Defense Secretary Harold Brown will coordinate sales of new Series EE U.S. Savings Bonds to federal employees.

Carter said Wednesday the new "Energy Savings Bonds" will carry a 7 percent interest rate when held for their full 11-year maturity. Bonds now sold carry a 6.5 percent rate.

The new bond sales will be free from a boycott of U.S. Savings Bonds by the American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO.

The Greenville-Pitt County chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union has voiced its support of a federal court ruling barring the deportation of Iranian students.

Carroll Webber, local ACLU president, said, "we support the U.S. Government's position that Americans are being held hostage illegally," in Iran.

"While Iran is clearly breaking the law, we would be stooping to that same level by breaking our own laws, if we discriminate against Iranian students in this country."

'Knots Landing' Is A Spinoff

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The CBS publicity sheet on its new show, "Knots Landing," describes the series as "a dramatic and realistic exploration of modern marriage..."

Truth may have been better served, though, had CBS mentioned the show's lineage. "Knots Landing" is a spinoff of CBS' "Dallas," where marriage and family are fashioned in the tradition of Caligula's court.

"Dallas" has become one of television's biggest hits by weekly wallowing in muck and mire of one Family Ewing, an oil-rich Texas clan whose lives have more complications than a tax form. To get an idea of what "Knots Landing" is going to be like, a certain understanding of the Ewings is required.

Jock Ewing is the head of the clan, an aggressive, tough-minded independent sort. He's married to sweet Miss Ellie, having won her from a fellow named Digger Barnes in their youth, leaving Ewing and Barnes lifelong enemies.

With Miss Ellie, Jock won her family's massive ranch, Southfork. They had three boys, J.R., Bobby and Gary.

J.R. is a congenial liar and cheat, in marriage and business.

J.R.'s wife, Sue Ellen, is a feminine version of J.R. She recently delivered a child, but unfortunately doesn't know if the child is J.R.'s or Cliff Barnes'. Cliff Barnes is Digger's boy. Cliff's sister, Pamela, is married to J.R.'s brother, Bobby.

Pamela is the former girlfriend of Ray, the Ewings' ranch hand, who had an affair with Lucy, the teenaged daughter of the Ewings' third son, Gary. This is the umbilical connection between "Knots Landing" and "Dallas."

See, Gary was kind of a sensitive type, a loner, who married young and left Southfork because his daddy insisted he stay in the family business. He became a drunk and a gambler (of the losing sort), and divorced his wife. That's why Lucy lives at Southfork. Anyway, Miss Ellie gets to longing for Gary, and asks Gary's ex-wife, Val, to contact him.

One thing leads to another and Val and Gary get back together. Miss Ellie sets them up in an expensive Southern California housing development called "Knots Landing."

Since there is no large family here, the suds and trauma are drawn from the four neighbors in Knots Landing. Judging from tonight's first episode, the show's writers will have plenty to draw from.

The first episode primarily concerns Annie, who is discovered in bed with a stranger by her father before the show is ten minutes old.

"Knots Landing" does lack the one element that makes "Dallas" work: The Ewings are a rich and powerful family, and their curious deeds are done against the backdrop of an insular society. It almost makes sense that everyone's so crazy.

"Knots Landing" has just a few upper-middle-class Southern Californians to work with. On second thought, that might be enough.

Wrapping Paper Is Not Edible

WASHINGTON (AP) — Christmas wrapping paper can present a potential hazard to young children who eat bits of the gaily colored wrapping, a government study says.

A study by the Consumer Product Safety Commission found that children who eat bits of wrapping paper may be exposing themselves to potentially dangerous amounts of lead. "It would appear that certain gift wrapping papers present a risk of injury from exposure to soluble lead pigments to certain young children with pica," said the study. Pica refers to the tendency of small children to eat non-food items. The study, the results of which were released earlier in the week, did not give any brand names. Lead poisoning can lead to weakness, convulsions, brain damage, coma and death.

There have been several books where murder and espionage mingled with bridge. Perhaps the most successful were Don Von Elsnor's series featuring bridge pro Jake Winkman, which provided high-level bridge and lots of action.

Now we have Terry Quinn's "The Great Bridge Conspiracy" (St. Martin's Press, 196 pages, hard cover, $9.95), "in which the card-playing and espionage feats of Captain Digger Piper are fully and faithfully recorded." The writing at times is almost Victorian and we have seen most of the hands before. This hand is from a team match featured in the book. It is stated that the first seven bids were the same at the two tables—apparently both Norths believed that jacks were the second-highest cards in the pack, for there is no other explanation for the way they bid the hand. Fortunately, South compensated for North's dramatic overbidding by continuing to do no more than show a minimum opening bid—we would have contracted for 17 or 18 tricks had we held that South hand in the face of North's bidding.

West led the king of clubs, declarer played the ace from dummy and East ruffed. East shifted to a spade, and West's queen forced the ace. Declarer drew trumps and, in an effort to get rid of his spade loser, he took the diamond finesse. Had that succeeded, dummy's two spades would have gone on the ace-king of diamonds and the slam would have been made. Unfortunately, East had the jack of diamonds, and he briskly cashed the king of spades for down two.

As one of the protagonists points out, the slam is cold—declarer should simply follow with a low club from dummy to the first trick. West can do no better than continue with clubs. Declarer ruffs in his hand, draws trumps, and he can get rid of his spade loser on the ace of clubs he husbanded so carefully at the first trick. South thus loses only a club trick.

Last Block To Loretta Dooley's Departure From Turkey Cleared

By ISMAIL KOVACI
Associated Press Writer
ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — Five months after she was jailed on drug smuggling charges, Turkish authorities today cleared the way for Loretta Dooley to return to her Tracy, Calif., home on bail.

"We have removed the last procedural barrier to her freedom," said a lawyer for the 18-year-old Miss Dooley, who is accused of "attempting to smuggle" nine grams of hashish to the United States. She was released Wednesday on $1,500 bail from Sagmalcilar Prison. But officials in the police passport section held up her departure from the country, demanding that the court handling her case issue an explicit statement that she could leave the country while on bail.

"It's all now completed and she can go anywhere in the world," said Ismail Karanfil, chief of the passport section of the Istanbul police, after the court issued the travel clearance today.

One passport official said the additional ruling was demanded in an attempt to avert "future complications in view of past experience." He did not elaborate, but it was assumed he referred to the possibility that Miss Dooley might not return for trial. Miss Dooley had waited at the Istanbul police headquarters for the clearance. After it came, she left with two U.S. consular officials, probably to spend her remaining hours in Turkey at the U.S. Consulate.

The U.S. officials refused to disclose her travel plans, but she was expected to leave the country as soon as possible.

Judge Sakir Caldag, the chief justice on a three-judge panel hearing the Dooley case, agreed Wednesday to a defense request that she be freed on bail pending a trial set for Feb. 5. He acted after the prosecutor reported a lack of concrete evidence that she actually tried to export the hashish.

The $1,500 bail was paid from money deposited by Miss Dooley's father, Vernon, to cover attorneys' fees and court costs.

"It's fantastic to be free," Miss Dooley told reporters as she was escorted from Sagmalcilar Prison by two guards armed with sub-machine guns.

In a brief interview she said she had "learned a lot" during her five months in prison. "I feel so sorry for the people I left behind," she added. Miss Dooley went to Turkey as part of the American Field Service student exchange program and was staying with a Turkish family when she was seized by a narcotics police.

In pre-trial testimony she claimed she bought the hashish — about one-third of an ounce — from an anonymous peddler in Istanbul's "hippe district." She alleged that the daughter of the host family "must have tipped the police" about her attempt to send the drugs to her home address in California.

New Tests for Allergies

We are a highly allergic family. Both my husband and I have a terrible time in the early spring and in the fall. Now, our 11-year-old son is beginning to show the same tendency. We hate to put him through the skin testing that was so bothersome to us. Is there some other way we can help him? — Mrs. F.F., Mass. Dear Mrs. F.:

The science of immunology is expanding at a swift pace. Important contributions are being made about serious illnesses that have not previously responded to conventional methods of study. The field of allergy has broadened considerably since these radio-immune studies have been applied to it. It has been found that patients with severe allergic reaction have what is called "high IgE levels," which can now be tested without subjecting the patient to the endless and annoying series of skin tests and patch tests. These immunological levels are tested in a special way that side-tracks the need for skin testing in a great many instances.

The tests are known as the RAST and the PRIST methods of study. These letters represent "radioactive immunosorbent IgE substances." A simple blood sample is taken from the patient and put through a very complicated machine. With the help of computers, it is now possible to determine some of the offending substances that are responsible for persistent running nose, asthmatic attacks, hives, exzema and other allergic manifestations.

Once the offending substances are found, the process of de-sensitization can be done more accurately.

The outlook today is that before long these, and other, immunological studies may, in many instances, replace the patch tests, the scratch tests and the intradermal, or skin, tests.

I know that great advances have been made in replacing hips in people with severe arthritis. My problem is not in the hip, but in the hand. I have now gotten to the stage with my arthritis that I can barely manage to do my ordinary household chores. I am 64 and would undergo anything to have the full use of my hands again. — Mrs. H.M., Wisc. Dear Mrs. M.:

The spectacular advances made by the use of artificial hips have enabled thousands of people to function again after long periods of incapacitation.

The experience gathered by such remarkable surgery has been translated to many other joints of the body. It is now possible to replace joints in the hands, feet, elbows, knees and shoulders.

Certainly, you should not stand by and accept your incapacitation as inevitable. Consultation with an orthopedic surgeon, through your own doctor, will quickly determine whether you are a candidate for one of the newer methods.

Concert Safety Ordinances Set

CINCINNATI (AP) — Two ordinances designed to ensure crowd safety at large gatherings in Cincinnati were up before City Council today, with easy approval expected by Mayor J. Kenneth Blackwell.

Council's law and public safety committee on Wednesday approved two draft ordinances, inspired by the deaths of 11 persons at a Dec. 3 stampede at Riverfront Coliseum before an appearance by the British rock group The Who.

The first ordinance would require reserved seat tickets and ban general admission, or "festival seating," except for religious gatherings, school athletic events and other events which receive specific permission from Safety Director Richard Castellini.

The second ordinance would give city police direct authority over all crowds, including those on private property.

Police complained after the Dec. 3 tragedy that they did not have authority to act sooner when a crowd of about 9,000 people surged to enter the coliseum for the concert by The Who.

Concertgoers, in hearings before a special task force investigating committee, contended that the crush resulted because coliseum management opened only two or three doors, and that those were opened later than advertised.

Vice Mayor David Mann prepared 43 questions to be answered by coliseum management and the promoter, Electric Factory Concerts Inc. of Philadelphia, in the investigation of the Dec. 3 incident.

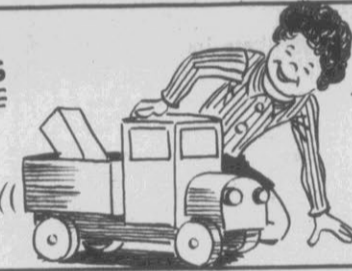

Thomas M. Gould, lawyer for the promoter, wrote a letter to Blackwell accusing the city of moving too slowly in developing crowd safety measures.

Gould said the rock group ZZ Top would play the coliseum Jan. 25, in the first such event since the Dec. 3 concert, and said ticket sales would suffer unless the city acts faster.

Blackwell said he will arrange a meeting with city and coliseum officials and the promoters for early January. But he said he wants the coliseum to be required to open a minimum of 24 doors and open them more than an hour before concerts begin.

"Hopefully, they (promoters and coliseum officials) will be as consistent in their willingness to cooperate when they get our list of questions, because the answers to these questions will go a long way toward helping the public understand what took place on Dec. 3."
