Carter Grain Plans Awaiting Scrutiny

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration's $2.25 billion program to buy up American grain once destined for the Soviet Union will be closely scrutinized by Congress, perhaps before the program gets off the ground. Some industry experts say the program is the best available option at this point, but express concern about the long-term impact vastly increased government reserves will have on the grain market. The House Agriculture Committee will open hearings on the program Jan. 29, said Rep. Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., the committee chairman. He said his panel will conduct a "full, detailed review" of the program, announced Monday by Vice President Walter F. Mondale to help protect farmers from the severe declines in market prices that could come with having so much grain go unsold. Even with the purchase program and other steps, "my guess is that there will still be a loss of $300 million...

to persons engaged in the business all the way from the export facilities back to the (farm) country," Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said today. President Carter announced Friday that he was suspending the sale of about 14 million metric tons of grain the Soviet Union had contracted to buy. The move is part of the administration's retaliation against the Russians for their military intervention in Afghanistan. Bergland, interviewed on NBC-TV's "Today" show, acknowledged that Carter's action could harm the president's renomination chances in Iowa, a major grain-producing state. "It makes matters more complicated," he said. "But we're going to appeal to the basic decency of the Iowa voter, and I think they're going to see that what the president has done is in the national interest." Mondale said the government's massive purchase program was ordered by the president to help protect farmers from price drops if the grains were suddenly dumped on the market.

'Stability' Keynote For Redistricting Hearing

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer
A desire for "stability," or, as some called it, "continuity," was the keynote word of concern voiced by many of those contributing input at a public hearing Monday night on the subject of the upcoming redistricting of Greenville City Schools. A decision on a redistricting plan for elementary schools to be put into effect for the 1980-81 school year is scheduled to be made by the Greenville Board of Education at its action meeting on Monday, January 21.

subject of extensive concern included suggestions that the school board seriously consider revising the basic racial ratio policy. The current policy calls for maintaining a racial distribution in elementary schools based on a scale of five percent above or below the approximate 55 percent non-white, 45 percent white percentages in total student population. When an imbalance is created that is out of line with these established percentages, the school board is committed by the current policy to take necessary redistricting measures to correct the imbalance. This in turn creates a situation where redistricting is periodically necessary to bring the ratios back into line with the prescribed percentage factor inherent in the policy. Several suggestions were offered that consideration be given to adopting a policy change that would be based on variances of eight to ten percent above or below the 55-45 criteria. On the aspect of economics, several speakers pointed out that because of the high price of gas, consideration must be given to costs involved in changes in transportation patterns, and in the move of equipment and library facilities that would be entailed in some of the seven alternative plans being considered to achieve redistricting. Preference for individual plans (or alternatives) being considered for adoption were offered by most of the spokesmen, who in many instances represented a school or neighborhood, and in other instances were voicing their own personal preference. Plans receiving the highest degree of indication of support were Plan E — basically the kindergarten through grade six structure now in existence; and among the clustering plans, Plans D and G. Plan D calls for kindergarten through grade three at Eastern, Elmhurst, Sadie Sautler and Third Street, with grades four through six at Wahl-Coates and South Greenville. Plan G calls for a structure of kindergarten through grade two at South Greenville and Wahl-Coates, and grades three through six at Eastern, Elmhurst, Sadie Sautler and Third Street. Nearly all those voicing a preference for Plan E qualified their preference with statements that more variations on the kindergarten through grade six structure be offered, with particular emphasis on assurances that students having to be moved to achieve redistricting at one time not be the subject of a second move at a later date to achieve redistricting. Superintendent Glenn Cox and school board members indicated a willingness to consider what was termed "a hybrid plan" of the current K-6 structure that could result from making revisions based on suggestions received from the public. Board members also mentioned the necessity on their part that whatever plan is approved must be one that meets specific criteria established by the board — including maintaining an acceptable racial balance, pro-

Audit Report Favorable, Commissioners Are Told

By STUART SAVAGE

An audit of Pitt County's finances for the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1979, indicated that the county was in good financial shape, the Board of County Commissioners was told yesterday. Cecil Mizelle of Farley, Prescott, Mizelle and Co. told the board that, "most funds were in better shape," than they were at the end of the 1978 fiscal year. However, Mizelle said a study and evaluation of the County's system of internal accounting control, resulted in several recommendations, which he termed, "small things that could be of assistance to the county," and to the auditors. "I don't feel like they are major weaknesses," just things to "call your attention to."

contribution contract for 50 units of Section Eight existing housing was executed and the Housing Authority is currently renting these units.

Included in the list of recommendations was: the suggestion that records that require a signature by a county employee should be manually signed rather than signed with a rubber stamp; that collections should be deposited within 24 hours of receipt unless otherwise authorized by the Board of County Commissioners; that invoices should be dated and initialed at time of receipt of goods and/or services; and that whenever possible, someone other than the employee who participates in the receipt or disbursement of cash should reconcile the bank accounts. Mizelle also recommended that department heads should review and approve information necessary in issuing payroll checks, on a regular basis, before submitting the information to the payroll clerk, in an effort to reduce the number of voided payroll checks. The majority of errors, Mizelle said, appeared to occur when there was a change in the working status of an employee or a change in Where can I get some information about which carat number in gold is better? E. B.

Call your jeweler. Valerie Harris, an employee of Robinson's Jewelers here, told Hotline that 24-carat gold is pure and too soft for general use in jewelry. 18 is also soft, but is often used for rings and watch cases. 14 and 10 are generally the most useful, because in them gold is mixed with hardening metals. 10, 14 and 18 are considered solid gold. 12-carat, which is sometimes shown as 1/20 12-k, is gold-filled, she said.

Senator White Running Again

Senator Vernon E. White of Winterville today announced that he has filed as a candidate for re-election as state senator from the Sixth Senatorial District.

White, a Pitt County farmer and businessman, will seek re-election to one of the two seats allotted to the district, which involves the counties of Pitt, Edgecombe, Halifax and Martin.

In announcing his candidacy, the incumbent senator said he is "grateful to the people of the district" for allowing him to "represent them in the 1969, 1971, 1973-74, 1975-76, 1977-78 and the 1979 General Assemblies."

ECU Med School Priorities Rankle Chapel Hill

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — The battles between the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and East Carolina University over the establishment of a medical school in Greenville may be heating up once again.

The faculty of the UNC-CH School of Medicine are already unhappy over trying to maintain present standards under the state hiring freeze. But the state Budget Office's decision to exempt the ECU School of Medicine from the freeze is threatening to widen the rivalry between the two state-supported medical schools.

James W. Piner, assistant state budget officer, said the East Carolina school is getting preferential treatment because of its relative newness.

"Any reasonable person can distinguish between the needs of a new, developing school and an established one," Piner said. "And I don't know of any position that we've turned down that hurts Chapel Hill."

Edgar Bass, administrative manager of the ECU medical school, said in comparing the two programs, "When you are in a stagnant, no-growth situation, you can afford not to replace some personnel, but when you are in a developmental situation, as we are, the loss of personnel kills the program."

But Stuart Bondurant, dean of the Chapel Hill medical school, said some programs have been compromised because of the freeze, with research areas which depend on laboratory animals being the hardest hit.

Officials in the School of Medicine at UNC say there is a growing sense of frustration by some faculty members over the arbitrary nature of the freeze and the long delays and paperwork involved in gaining permission to fill a vacancy

Dr. William Dean Huffines, an associate dean who oversees the laboratory animal facility, said a blanket exemption is needed in order to perform the tasks properly.

"I understand what the governor is trying to do, but in order to take care of the laboratory animal division properly, you need to fill a vacancy as soon as it occurs or you get into a bind," Huffines said.

School, Work Keep Young Model On The Go

By CAROL DEEGAN
NEW YORK (AP) — Five years ago, Lisanne Falk sent a 99-cent "supermarket special" photo to Ford Models of New York City. Ford signed her on. Lisanne was 9 years old.

When Lisanne was 12, she and another 12-year-old model named Brooke Shields did test shots for Betsy Cameron, a young Ford model who was trying her hand at photography.

One of Betsy's photographs of Lisanne and Brooke was published in October 1978 in the first issue of the revived "Life" magazine. A four-page spread was featured in the first issue of the revived "Look" in February 1979.

Now Betsy, along with writer Diana Lewis Jewell, has published a book, "Lisanne, a Young Model." The book, which follows Lisanne as she goes from home to school to work, includes 150 pictures, 50 of them in color.

Today, Lisanne is an active 14-year-old who rises at 7 a.m. to attend public school in Long Island before catching the commuter train for an afternoon of modeling in New York City.

She hasn't had much trouble juggling school and work. She's an A student, loves sports, going to concerts, and playing the piano and the flute.

"So far I haven't had any problems," Lisanne said. "Now I'm in high school so I guess it's harder, but it's not that much trouble because my teachers give me the work beforehand if I ask for it because I know I'm going to be out some, so it hasn't been any trouble yet."

Lisanne lives with her mother. Her parents are divorced. She has two older sisters who no longer live at home.

"My mom and I are like best friends as well as mother and daughter. What really made us close was when we used to go into the city together for my modeling assignments. Even though she stays home now, I still tell her everything that happens," Lisanne said.

The money Lisanne earns goes into the bank — "unless there's something special I want to buy myself — and my mother approves it," she said.

She's not into heavy dating, yet. She eats pizza — "who says all models diet?" — and has a poster of Farrah Fawcett on the wall of her room.

Lisanne takes a theater class and plans to go to a good drama school in New York City where she'll study speech, voice, movement and acting techniques.

She's been on the cover of "Seventeen" magazine and has appeared in many television commercials, magazine and newspaper advertisements. She "had a chance to do a movie" but decided against it because the part involved doing nude scenes.

One of Lisanne's big concerns at the moment seems to be growing "another inch" so that she can model in Ford's women's division — she has to be at least 5-foot-7.

She'd like to do adult modeling, but she's also interested in acting. She has other plans, too — "definitely finishing high school" — and maybe going to college to study archeology.

Meanwhile, Betsy Cameron, the young Ford model-photographer, is finishing a second book, this one featuring Lisanne and actress Brooke Shields, entitled "One Special Friendship."

Ms. Cameron said she got interested in photography through her modeling work. She still enjoys doing both.

"I didn't realize how much I learned until I picked up a camera and started taking pictures, so after 10 years it all sinks in," she said.

"Modeling is a really wonderful profession," Ms. Cameron said, "as long as you keep your feet on the ground. You can use it as a stepping stone for things, you get to travel and meet people ... you make incredible amounts of money, it's very wonderful if you use it as a business."

("Lisanne, a Young Model" is published by Clarkson N. Potter.)

When planning a trip, there are some vital questions to verify with your travel agent. If you are planning a trip which is part of a package deal, one that includes hotel, transportation, restaurants, etc. be sure to ask whether the price includes all costs of transportation and transfers. Ask whether you will be taking a bus, ship, plane, or train. Ask if the cost entitles you to travel tourist or first class. Ask if assistance will be provided if help is needed with your luggage. It is important to fully understand what you are paying for to preclude being shortchanged and inconvenienced.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Every day I fight the battle of Bombeck vs. Trash.

As soon as I hit the bathroom in the morning, my arms make a wide sweep over the sink, taking with them used nose tissue, clumps of hair, empty boxes and toothpaste caps.

On the way to the kitchen, I walk like an orangutan through a field of bananas, swooping up yesterday's newspapers and stuffing them under my arms with crumpled notebook paper, empty cracker boxes and soft drink cans.

In the kitchen, I dispose of opened mail that is never put away, gym shoes held together by knots, yesterday's lunch bags, empty cereal boxes, assorted paper bags, bottle caps, crumpled telephone messages and pens that don't write anymore.

It's that way in every room of the house. Either no one has the strength to walk the litter to the waste can or there is an unwillingness to let anything go to that big Hefty bag in the sky. Whatever it is, I'm stuck with it.

Now, you are probably asking, "Okay, that shoots the morning, so what do you do with your afternoons and evenings?"

Simple. I spend the rest of the day sifting through the trash and garbage cans looking for what I threw away in the mornings.

I am possibly the only woman in the country who can not only tell you what we had for dinner every night of the week, I can tell you what it looked like three days later.

Women don't know what guilt is until they pick up a house in the morning. My son failed biology because I threw away a magazine catching a leak under the bathroom sink with Euell Gibbons' picture on the cover.

My daughter will never marry because I threw away a phone number written on a piece of register tape belonging to the last tall boy in North America.

I am personally responsible for all of us freezing this winter because I pitched out the paper containing an ad for firewood at a bargain $65 a cord.

Let it be on my conscience that my husband will be on his way to a penal institution and never see his children grow up because I tossed out a SECOND NOTICE traffic ticket that he stuck in a beer can for safekeeping.

Your Wedding Gift Shows Friendship

By Abigail Van Buren

1980 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please settle something, once and for all? Do you have to give a wedding gift if you are invited to the reception but not to the wedding?

And if you have already spent $20 for a shower gift, are you expected to give a wedding gift too?

My mother says it's an unwritten law that you are supposed to give a gift that costs about as much as the hostess has spent to entertain you. For example: If it costs her, say, $6 to feed you at a bridal shower, you should spend that amount for a gift. And if it costs about $25 to entertain you at the reception, you should spend that amount for a wedding present. The shower gift, Mom says, has nothing to do with the wedding gift.

CONFUSED IN R.I.

DEAR CONFUSED: No one has to give a gift. A gift is something one voluntarily gives to show friendship, affection, appreciation, support, etc.

However, if a guest is invited to the wedding but not to the reception, it is not mandatory but it is proper and gracious to send a gift.

If a guest is invited to the reception, I think a gift is certainly in order.

DEAR ABBY: I am an avid reader of your column, and feel that you do much to help our teenagers. However, in a recent column you stated that a girl can become pregnant without "going all the way." You even printed a letter from a girl who claimed she was a virgin when she was married, but she was seven months pregnant! How can this be? A pregnant virgin? You can't be serious.

I am a 55-year-old grandmother, and I have no idea how a girl can be pregnant and still be a virgin.

If your statement baffles me, a fairly sophisticated adult woman who has been through it all, you can imagine how puzzled your teenager readers must be. I think you owe us an explanation.

DEAR S.U.D.: The legal definition of sexual intercourse is penetration of the female organ by the male organ. However, in order for a woman to be impregnated, all that is necessary is for the sperm of the male to meet the ovum of the female. This can be accomplished without actual penetration.

It is rare, but it is a matter of medical record that it has indeed occurred.

ABBY: Regarding the letter signed FEEDING PIGS IN ILLINOIS, I would like to correct a misconception: Pigs do eat frequently, but they never eat more than they need to satisfy their hunger.

A farmer can put out enough food for several days without having to be concerned that the pigs will overeat. They never do.

I know this is true because I was born and brought up on a farm in Illinois.

FARMER

DEAR FARMER: If what you say is true, people who overeat would be better off if they ate like pigs! Today must be the day for defending animals. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: A woman who suffered repeated batterings by her husband wrote to tell how she managed to stop his uncontrollable violence. She describes such violence as "animal behavior." This is NOT animal behavior; it is human sadism.

People should stop attributing to animals the brutal, ugly traits of humans. This misrepresents the true nature of animals.

Animals rarely attack without provocation. Unlike humans, they are not senselessly cruel or violent.

Mizelle told the board that during the audit process, "we noted a great improvement in terms," recommended as a result of the study and evaluation of the internal accounting control system for the year which ended June 30, 1978.

"We appreciate the efforts made by Pitt County employees to strengthen their accounting system," Mizelle noted.

In other business yesterday, commissioners gave approval to a lease agreement with Lonnie Staton for a solid waste container site on secondary road 1415, near Wellcome School; scheduled a joint meeting with the Greenville City Council for February 26; and scheduled the lease of the county farm and tobacco allotment (45,750 pounds), for 12:30 p.m. January 25 in the district courtroom.

Commissioners tabled action on a request by the Town of Fountain for a resolution in closing secondary road 1240 at Fountain, and on a request of the City of Greenville to extend extra-territorial jurisdiction along the Allen Road.

A few of those providing input at the hearing mentioned the factor of merger, and suggested that it be kept in mind that if merger does come, it would have a significant impact on attendance zones and racial ratios.

In other actions, the board approved the election of four teachers; adopted a resolution of support by the board on a proposed forthcoming statewide school bond issue; and heard a report on the results of the fall competency testing.

Housing.....

The report informs the city officials that the Authority now has 642 housing units fully occupied, with 47 percent of the tenants involving the elderly, widows, or handicapped citizens. Another 27 percent, it notes, are full time working families who receive no public assistance.

In other business last night, Laney said that the mid rise project continued on schedule during the holidays and the 60-unit complex is now "within the budget."

The contractor has poured all of the third floor columns, Laney added, and should be ready to pour the fourth floor this week. Framing work should begin next week, he said.

Sallye Streeter, director of tenant affairs, reported that seven temporary vacancies, some due to tenants who are paying the higher rent levels leaving to seek housing on the private market, existed during the month of December.

Rent averages in the various housing areas for the month included: NC 22-1 (Meadowbrook), $72.45; NC 22-2 (Kearney Park), $85.49; NC 22-3 (Moyewood), $87.87; NC 22-4 (Moyewood), $74.93; NC 22-5 (Hopkins Park), $57.81; and NC 22-6 (Newtown), $76.70. Overall rent average was $78.35, Mrs. Streeter reported.

Strickland has also served as a director of Pitt County Farmers Mutual Fire Insurance Association.

The incumbent is in the tobacco warehouse business and owns and operates several farms in the county.

Strickland and his wife, Virginia, are the parents of two children, and attend Disciples of Christ Church in Bell Arthur.

"I appreciate what the people of Pitt County have done for me," Strickland said, "and would certainly be happy to serve them again."

Wood-Use Calls For Planting

It's self-evident (you can see it all around you) that more and more North Carolinians are turning to wood as heating fuel.

And, one can well surmise our people see wood as a long-range heating element in their homes because no one expects to see the kind of ample petroleum or other energy sources to again be cheap.

So we're using more wood this winter; and for as long as we can see, the wood-burning practice is going to grow and grow. That's fine.

There's just one hitch.

We have not read, nor seen, of more tree-planting by property owners to replace the wood that is being consumed and going to be consumed. The supply is not endless; and as those supplies begin to be noticeably eaten into, the price is going to rise accordingly.

Commercial wood-users insure their future supply by planting. It would be a good practice for local land-owners to look ahead and consider not only the needs of today but the market of 10 and 15 years from now.

"Ah, yes... too bad... but it was a very sick bird, anyway."

A Good Thing If Plan Cuts Red Tape

Mrs. Gail Meeks has been named as administrator of a system to route citizen's complaints to the proper city departments.

The Citizens' Concern System was announced by City Manager Ed Wyatt last week.

Normally if a citizen has a complaint about street repair, for instance, he knows to call the Public Works Department. There are cases however, where special handling is needed, and that is where the Citizens' Concern System will come in.

The system can do some good in making city government more responsive to public needs. If it cuts red tape, rather than creating it, it will certainly serve its purpose.

Teacher Training Gains

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Just over two years ago the Board of Governors of the University of North Carolina adopted a bombshell of a report on teacher education in this state, and the aftershock continues to be felt in both academic circles and the public schools.

Among thirteen general and five specific recommendations included in that Teacher Education Review Program were such controversial matters as intensified testing of would-be teachers, improved methods of choosing the faculty at teacher training colleges, abandonment of numerous teacher-training programs which were below par or were producing teachers for subjects no longer high in demand, and a call for close contacts between the colleges and the public schools so that teachers could be provided in needed fields, and major shakeups could be engineered in basic teacher preparation.

Opposition

Such sweeping proposals for reform came at a time when some educators were opposing even the simplest National Teachers Exam as a prerequisite to certification, and that test had been temporarily shelved.

The political strategy in having a teacher preparation reform program developed by the academic community has become obvious in the intervening months. Legislators who proved reluctant to handle such a potentially explosive issue were taken off the hook. Other politicians, including the governor, were relieved of the pressure and were able to watch from a safe distance as the relatively insulated State Board of Education and the University Board of Governors proceeded to implement the recommendations.

Widely regarded as the key person in developing the recommendations and seeing them pushed through to adoption by the policy-making boards was Dr. Donald J. Stedman, acting vice president for research and public service programs at the University of North Carolina general administration office, and currently serving also as chairman of the University Council on Teacher Education. That council was one of the major recommendations in the report.

UNC President William Friday pays tribute to Stedman for the program. "Special commendation must be given Vice President Donald Stedman for his very effective guidance of this effort from its beginning," says Friday.

Effective

Stedman feels that he and the review committee were used effectively to remove the subject of teacher preparation from the political arena and allow the development of controversial reforms to take place in an academic, self-appraisal atmosphere.

And now that many of the reforms have already taken effect, and others are being planned and implemented in coming months, the benefits are becoming apparent and are attracting favorable attention.

"Four years ago, nobody would touch this with a ten-foot pole," Stedman recalls now. "Today, everybody seems supportive."

BILL NOBLITT

Aside from education, Stedman has an abiding interest in children with special problems: the emotionally disturbed, retarded, handicapped youngsters. He has been asked by the General Assembly Committee on Children with Special Needs to head a task force which will come back with recommendations for reform of school and community programs dealing with these conditions.

Meanwhile, how goes reform of the state's Teacher Education Review Program? A report has just been completed on the status of those recommendations. A look at that in tomorrow's column.

Another Nat'l Holiday?

WASHINGTON — When Congress comes back to work this month, an unfinished piece of business in the House will be the pending bill to create a new national holiday honoring Martin Luther King Jr. Unless sponsors of the bill are willing to accept what is known as the Beard amendment, this regrettable piece of business should be left as it is: unfinished.

By way of background: Almost from the time of Dr. King's assassination in April of 1968, his admirers have urged that the birthday of the civil rights leader be observed on Jan. 15 of every year.

Removed from the civil rights struggle, he was a fish out of water. His perceptions of communism ranged from the naive to the sophomoric.

A year before his death, he delivered at Riverside Church in New York an address on foreign affairs so wildly intemperate that even the Washington Post said that "never again" could he be accorded the confidence he once had enjoyed.

Whatever his mis-judgments may have been, and whatever imperfections in his personal life may have seemed out of character for a Baptist minister, Dr. King was a hero to most black Americans and to many white liberals.

For politicians with significant black constituencies, a King's Birthday holiday is an easy cause to support, but it is as unfair to cry "politics" at supporters as it is unfair to ascribe "racism" to opponents.

The original measure, sponsored chiefly by John Conyers Jr. of Detroit and by Robert Garcia of the Bronx, would have fixed an annual holiday on Jan. 15, regardless of the day of the week. Opponents argued that midweek holidays have a disastrous effect on industrial production: Workers tend to slack off the day before and to come late the day after.

The bill came before the House on Dec. 5, when the House was sitting as a committee of the whole. Sponsors beat a retreat. They agreed to an amendment by Robert McClory of Illinois to fix the holiday on the third Monday of every year. That amendment passed 291-106.

Opponents continued to dwell upon the cost — $27 million in premium pay to federal employees who would work on the holiday, $185 million to federal employees who would have the day off. Inevitably, it was argued, state and local governments would have to conform to the federal calendar, and this would cost $579 million more. Labor contracts would be revised. Winter production schedules, already affected

PEKING (AP) — The presence of a large Soviet army in Afghanistan arouses the concern of China's leaders chiefly because of the threat those troops pose to Pakistan, an old friend and ally.

China Has A Stake

The Soviet intervention also is a golden opportunity for the Chinese to remind the United States and pro-Soviet countries of the Third World: "We told you so."

Though China shares 25 miles of its remote western border with Afghanistan, Chinese interests in its primitive, landlocked Moslem neighbor are minimal. Like the United States, it has peddled its wares and sought to implant its influence there but with little success compared to the Soviet Union.

40 Years Ago Today

Tuesday, January 8, 1940
BERLIN — The War has given stimulus in Germany to campaigns against alcohol and tobacco. It is a German's duty to be as healthy and fit as possible, the Reich's health and medical leader, Dr. Leonardo Conti, reminded the population. Moderation in the use of alcohol and tobacco, or better still, total abstinence, is a blow against the enemy, he asserted.

RALEIGH — North Carolina's school teachers are in a special category among state employees when it comes to getting paid for their work, it has been brought out as the result of failure of teachers in many localities to get their December pay before Santa Claus made his rounds.

CAPITOL IDEAS

No Ceiling On Buildings

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

The senator from Iowa predicted that Western water projects would be short-changed after "all these public buildings have been made to tower up to the clouds."

The congressman from Ohio asked, "What makes these estimates fall so far short of completing the work?"

The member from Pennsylvania told his colleagues that if they approved money for the proposed new building, they would be asked for more and "how could they say at what sum they should stop?"

It all has a familiar ring to it, as the sixth office building for members of Congress rises slowly at an estimated cost that has grown from $48 million in 1972 to $137.5 million.

But actually these debates occurred long before the controversial Philip A. Hart Senate Office Building was proposed and even before the first congressional office structure, the Cannon House Office Building, opened in 1908.

They are culled from a documentary history of the Capitol that was published by the House in 1904.

The gentleman from Pennsylvania was Rep. John Swanwick, a Democrat, who took the floor in 1796 to object to expenditures for the construction of the Capitol.

The senator from Iowa, Democrat Augustus Caesar Dodge, and the representative from Ohio, a Whig named Edward Ball, were denouncing the cost of a Capitol expansion completed in 1865.

Debate over the cost of the public buildings has been a part of the republic almost since its inception.

In 1793, the commissioners appointed by George Washington to oversee construction in the new federal city wrote to the president, "In our idea the Capitol ought in point of propriety to be on a grand scale, and that a Republic especially ought not to be sparing of expenses on an Edifice for such purposes."

They added, however, "under the uncertain state of our funds, we cannot but feel a degree of anxiety for the Event of Expensive undertakings."

By the time the Capitol had been built, burned down by the British in the War of 1812, rebuilt, expanded and supplied with elaborate terraces, it had cost $14.45 million, according to the compilers of the documentary history.

The extension to which Dodge and Ball objected had cost $4.3 million by 1859.

The original request in 1852 had been for $500,000. Even that was too much for Dodge, who said appropriations for Western water projects would be crippled.

By 1865, Ball was charging that a change in the design of windows for the Capitol had ballooned their cost from $28,000 to $140,000.

There had been, said Ball, "a loose, lavish, if not reckless expenditure of money in the construction of all these public buildings."

"When bad men combine, the good must associate." — Edmund Burke.

Strength For Today

OUR FELLOWMEN
Many of us feel virtuous because we are in the habit of trusting other people. In most cases, this means that we trust people who are trustworthy. Yet the teachings of the Bible, and particularly the teachings of Jesus, make plain that we are never really trusting our fellow men until we trust the untrustworthy.

To trust the worthy is merely prudence and good policy, a tactic whereby we may gain trust for ourselves from other people. But to trust the unworthy is to put spiritual principles into operation.

Of course, we must protect ourselves against impostors and frauds. But many of these may be victims of circumstances. Perhaps they have been defrauded themselves; perhaps they have never known trustworthy people. In cases like this we have to use a combination of insight, judgment, and charity. And we should never forget that God's trust of us is trust for the unworthy.

Wisdom Of Experience Lost?

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) —

While many economists firmly believe the recession that is forecast for this year will be milder than the severe downturn of 1974 and 1975, James Griffin is less certain. Griffin, 36, looks at society and wonders if we know what we're doing. He asks if we've forgotten the wisdom our parents learned through hard experience. He sometimes wonders if we are robbing our kids.

Economists, he feels, often focus too narrowly on what they deem the proper ingredients of economic analysis, thus missing the major social, cultural and behavioral changes that a wider sweep would encompass.

A self-described "eclectic, pragmatic" economist,

Griffin believes that social, cultural and behavioral changes offer many clues to the economy of the 1980s. The behavior bothers him; so does the outlook.

"We swing from one to the other extreme of reasonableness," he said. "What our fathers or grandfathers learned from doing is considered dated. We throw out the knowledge with the wash."

Borrowing bothers him, and not simply because of his association with the insurance industry, which has had to deal with a rise in policy loans. While he is corporate economist for Aetna Life & Casualty Co., his studies deal mainly with the economy rather than with insurance.

"If all of us decide to use someone else's money and pay back in depreciated dollars everyone ends up on the same side of the boat. It tips." This, he says, "is a reasonable possibility to worry about."

Households cannot emulate business in borrowing, he warns, because a household cannot produce cash as a business can. "If you travel on borrowed money you aren't generating any cash to pay off the note," he reminds borrowers. "This can go on only so far."

Lenders of $r little restraint on the buildup of household debt. "I'm not sure the credit work (checking) they do is all that good," he said. "Banking used to be very conservative. You were trained to say no. But now they try to get the outstandings up." Debt, even bankruptcy, no longer carries a stigma, he observes. Just 30 ago it wasn't prudent to say you owed money, he said. Now it's considered acceptable. In fact, he added, "it's a badge of honor."

Griffin believes political attitudes play a part in destabilization. "People are the cause of inflation. They elect officials who promise what they suspect isn't deliverable." The result is inflation. "And people behave in their own lives that way too."

What we are attempting to do now is to raise living standards, maintain a military posture, clean up the environment, provide pensions ... "and we're not paying attention to paying for them."

If we continue in this direction, "instead of making a realistic accommodation to our ability to produce goods and services," we could run some very serious risks, says Griffin.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market opened higher today as traders continued to shake off worries about the economic impact of President Carter's restrictions on grain sales and other trade with the Soviet Union in the aftermath of Russia's invasion of Afghanistan.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose .85 to 832.85 after climbing 3.16 points Monday. Gainers outnumbered losers by a 3-2 margin on the New York Stock Exchange, the same spread that prevailed at the close a day before.

Archer Daniels Midland, a major producer of the grain alcohol used for gasoline, was up 3/4 at 33. Carter plans to use much of the American grain formerly destined for the Soviet Union for gasoline.

Chemical producer Celanese was off 1/4 at 46 after estimating a 22 percent drop in fourth-quarter earnings.

American Telephone & Telegraph was up 1/4 at 52, even though it and other utilities may face continued high credit costs as a result of new government borrowing to finance purchases of U.S. grain.

Monday's Big Board volume totaled 44.50 million shares, against 39.13 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index rose .23 to 61.40; the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 2.83 at 246.38.

Five Sentenced In Pot Seizure

JACKSONVILLE — Five of six out-of-state men, who pled guilty to charges stemming from the confiscation of 8,500 pounds of marijuana near Greenville in July, were sentenced in Onslow County Superior Court here yesterday.

Judge Henry L. Stevens, who accepted the guilty pleas in Pitt County Superior Court on October 18, ordered the $60,000 bond for the sixth defendant, Manuel A. Garcia, 29 of Miami, forfeited after he failed to appear at the sentencing.

Garcia had pled guilty to conspiracy charges in connection with the case.

Those sentenced yesterday, included:

- Eddie Perez, 38, West Miami conspiracy to possess marijuana, two years jail and $10,000 fine, work release recommended.
- James Robert Bohanon, 42, Campbellsville, Ky., possession of marijuana, five years jail, four months active, remainder suspended on payment of $5,000 and costs, probation for four years and eight months.
- Armond Modesto Abreu, 35, Miami, conspiracy to possess marijuana, two years jail and $10,000 fine, work release recommended.
- Daniel Lee Guinand, Homestead, Fla., conspiracy to possess marijuana, five years jail, three months active, remainder suspended on payment of $5,000 and costs, probation for four years and nine months.
- Ernesto Ryeze Jr. 35, Las Vegas, conspiracy to possess marijuana, one year jail and $10,000 fine, work release recommended.

Sen. White....

rare privilege to serve this district these past 12 years."

White recalled that he helped East Carolina University expand its programs and secure funds for a four-year medical school. He noted that he served on the appropriations, higher education committees, and the Medical Manpower Commission that recommended establishing a degree granting medical school at ECU.

The senator has served as chairman of the Senate Agricultural Committee and as vice chairman of the Appropriations Committee. Other committee memberships have included highway safety, mental health, education, public health and human resources, transportation and law enforcement and crime control.

White is now serving on the study commissions on public school facility needs and foreign investments in farm land that will make reports and recommendations to the 1981 General Assembly.

The incumbent senator pointed out that he is a member and chairman of the North Carolina State Farms Operation Commission which formulates policy for the operation of about 10,000 acres of farm land and management of some 12,000 acres of forest land by the state.

Mentioning that he is "vitaly interested in programs for the mentally ill and physically handicapped," White said "there is a great need on the part of North Carolina to increase its support of the sheltered workshops."

He added, "It is also my belief that we must continue to provide educational opportunities for our people to improve their skills or develop new ones for new jobs and job vacancies. This kind of opportunity is provided by our technical institutes and community colleges. It is my desire to support and work for continued progress in these institutions."

White noted that he sponsored legislation in the 1973 session that limited class size in public schools and he added that he successfully sponsored legislation in the Senate to establish a School of Veterinary Medicine at N.C. State University. He also sponsored successful legislation to tax farm land on its use value for agricultural purposes and not to be taxed at market value for development or other uses so long as the land is used for agricultural purposes.

A Wake Forest graduate, White was a principal and teacher from 1929 to 1940, and county supervisor for the Farmers' Home Administration from 1941 to 1943.

The World War II veteran has been former chairman of both the Pitt County Board of Commissioners and Pitt County Planning Board. He is a former member and treasurer of the Pitt County Development Commission.

The senator now serves on the board of trustees of Pitt Community College and is also a member of the Chowan College board of trustees. He is also serving on the board of trustees of the North Carolina Tobacco Foundation Inc. and the board of directors of the North Carolina Veterinarian Medical Foundation Inc.

White is vice president of First State Bank of Winterville and is a member of the bank's board of directors. He is a member of the Ruritans, Kiwanis, and Loyal Order of the Moose.

The candidate is married to the former Louise Ange of Winterville and they have one son. The family attends Winterville Missionary Baptist Church where White has served on the Board of Deacons for 22 years, its chairman for four years, and Sunday School superintendent or director for 25 years.

More than anything else, China sees the Soviet move as a threat to Pakistan on one side and the Persian Gulf trade routes on the other.

"By occupying Afghanistan the Russians can take advantage of the situation in Iran at any time to direct the momentum of their push toward the gulf area, while posing an immediate threat to Pakistan," said the Peking People's Daily, the organ of the Communist Party.

Even if the U.S.-Iranian crisis subsides and a temporary calm descends on the Indian subcontinent, it continued, "the large Soviet military presence in Afghanistan can still serve as a powerful mainspring of subversive activities in these areas and a tormenting threat to the sea lane which brings oil to the West."

It added that the Soviet charge that China, Egypt, Pakistan and the United States were conspiring with the Moslem rebels in Afghanistan was shameful and not worth denying.

Both the United States and China have a stake in Pakistan. They have long been its allies and supported it in the December 1971 Bangladesh war with India, which they considered pro-Soviet. Following the ouster of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi in 1977, China made cautious overtures to her successors, but Pakistan remains a highly regarded ally.

Duke, Heels, Cavs Survive Early Scares

By TOM FOREMAN Jr. Associated Press Writer

For the number one-ranked Duke Blue Devils, as well as the rest of the Atlantic Coast Conference teams in action Monday night, it might as well have been Halloween night since most of them got a good scare from their opponents.

Tech coach Dwayne Morrison was a bit more philosophical. "To beat a champion, you have to knock him out. We're not going to get a split decision. This loss could make us a better team," Morrison said.

At Macon, Ga., senior O'Koren added 12 rebounds to his game-high point production. But it took a 26-2 spurt by the Tar Heels over Mercer to gain a commanding 42-23 halftime lead. Then, after Mercer cut the lead to 10 to start the second half, North Carolina broke away with a 10-1 volley to ice its sixth win in nine games.

Elsewhere in games involving conference teams, Mike O'Koren paced North Carolina to an 81-63 win over Mercer in a game which saw the Bears chalk up an early 12-5 lead before the sixth-ranked Tar Heels took command.

In Charlottesville, Va., 13th-ranked Virginia blasted Delaware after falling behind in the early going for an 82-55 win. The Cavaliers also trailed in that game by four points in the first half.

Forward Kenny Dennard broke a 38-38 tie with 11:30 remaining in the game with two layups. Duke then went on to outscore the Yellow Jackets 17-4 down the stretch for its 12th win without a loss and its first conference victory.

Georgia Tech dropped its sixth league game without a win, and is now 3-8 overall.

"I thought then that we could inch away," coach Bill Foster said of his team, which led by a 30-20 halftime margin. "But we gave it right back and made a heck of a ball game out of it."

TULSA, Okla. — East Carolina University overcame the Oral Roberts' pressing defense last night, but then succumbed to its own mistakes as the Titans rallied from 11 points down to take an 83-82 win over the Pirates.

The heartbreaking loss came at the foul line—both foul lines. ORU's Antonio Martin dropped through two free throws with two seconds left to provide the Titans with the victory after they had struggled back from a 66-55 deficit near the midway mark in the half.

East Carolina, on its own, missed eight straight free throws in the second half, including three one-and-ones that could have meant a total of 11 points.

"This was the biggest giveaway since the Louisiana Purchase," a disgusted ECU coach Dave Odom said afterwards. "All we had to do were things a team is supposed to do to be able to win games. The game was ours to win. A blind man can shoot free throws."

The Pirates, however, hit on only ten of 21 attempts, a miserable 47.6 per cent. In comparison, they canned an outstanding 66.6 per cent from the floor.

Oral Roberts made good on just 45.3 per cent from the floor, making two less field goals on 21 more chances. At the line they had the same number of chances, 21, and made 15. The Titans also held a 40-32 rebounding margin.

"Oral Roberts did what it had to do to win, and that is to their credit," Odom said. "We'd worked hard to get ready for this game and it meant a lot to us. It will take some maturity to recover from this one."

Still, Odom said he was proud of the overall effort the Pirates put into the game. "We did everything that we needed to do except handle the ball and shoot free throws."

He singled out the play of Herb Gray, who scored 18 points and pulled off eight rebounds, and was especially noteworthy on defense. "He worked against (Calvin) Garrett, and most of the points he (Garrett) got were when we were in a zone rather than a man-to-man defense."

"(Herb) Krusen shot well (with a team high 23 points), and (Michael) Gibson did a good job rebounding (10)," Odom added. "We rebounded well in the early and middle parts of the game, but when we had to have them, there at the end, we couldn't get them."

Oral Roberts grabbed the initial lead, but the Pirates came back to take a 6-4 margin after three and a half minutes.

The Titans went back out on a drive by Garrett after about five minutes, and slowly pulled away from the Pirates. They built their lead out to eight at 16-8 before the Bucs rallied to cut it to five at 18-13 on a three-point play by Frank Hobson.

Baskets by Steve Bontrager and Robert Griffin ran it out to 11, however, at 30-19, with about eight minutes to go.

The Pirates again rallied, cutting it down to five at 30-25, and then to two at 34-32 with 4:45 left. ORU pulled back out by eight at 46-38, but again the Pirates rallied, cutting it to 48-46 when Gray tossed back his own missed just with just under a minute showing. Seconds later, George Maynor drove in to hit a lay-up for the potential tying basket, but he was called for charging before the shot and the Pirates settled for a two-point deficit at the end of the period.

East Carolina ran off the first ten points of the second half to spur out to an eight-point lead.

Maynor hit two free throws—the only free throws of the half for the Pirates—to get things going, and Gray hit off a fast break. Maynor hit two baskets around a missed free throw, and Krusen finished off the string.

ORU cut it back to three, 58-55, before another Pirate streak of four baskets by four players, raised it to 66-55 with just under 13 minutes to go.

But the Titans slowly chopped away at the lead, taking command of the boards and forcing a few key turnovers to get back in the game.

With about 6:30 left, Tony Byles drove in to a 78-70 Pirate lead, but the Bucs didn't score again until after ORU had forged ahead. Garrett hit a three-point play and Martin scored from underneath. Garrett hit again near the three and a half minute mark, and again with two minutes to go, putting the Titans ahead, 79-78.

Krusen hit to return the Pirates to the lead, 80-79, but with 1:07 left, Maynor missed a free throw that could have given the Pirates vital breathing room—the eighth straight miss at the line in the half.

Bontrager took it in on the baseline for an 81-80 ORU lead with 35 seconds to go, but Gibson hit from underneath with 20 seconds to go, returning the lead to the Pirates, 82-81.

The Titans moved the ball around until five seconds remained, then got off a shot that missed everything, but Maynor was called for his fifth foul on the rebound, and Martin, after taking the pressure of an ECU time out, popped in both shots with two seconds left, giving ORU the victory, 83-82.

In addition to Gray and Krusen's scoring, Maynor added 14 and Byles had ten for the Pirates. Martin added 16, Lance Williams, 14, and Griffin, 13, for Oral Roberts.

The victory upped the ORU record to 4-6, while the Pirates dropped to 6-7. East Carolina travels to Charleston, S.C., on Thursday to face Baptist College. They return home Saturday to entertain Atlantic Christian.

Duke Holds To First; DePaul Up To Second

By TOM CANAVAN Associated Press Writer

Unbeaten Duke held the top spot in The Associated Press college basketball poll for the fourth consecutive week Tuesday as up-and-coming DePaul took over the No.2 position and preseason favorite Indiana fell to No.19.

The Blue Devils, 12-0, were tabbed No.1 on 48 of the 54 ballots cast by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters and received 1,073 of a possible 1,080 points. Duke, which posted a 73-44 victory over Colgate last Saturday and whipped Georgia Tech 55-42 last night, was ranked no lower than third in the voting.

DePaul, ranked 11th just four weeks ago, continued its climb by receiving five first-place votes and 1,011 points and replaced Kentucky in No.2 spot. The Blue Demons, 11-0, knocked Missouri last week and also posted victories over Loyola of Chicago and Ball State. Indiana, meanwhile, continued its slide. The injury-plagued Hoosiers dropped their fourth game of the season last week, losing a 59-58 decision to Ohio State — this week's No.3 team.

Ohio State collected the other first-place vote and 954 points in jumping from fifth to third in this week's poll. Besides nipping Indiana, the Buckeyes also beat Purdue — ranked eighth at the time — 67-58.

Kentucky, upset by Tennessee 49-47 last Saturday and a two-point winner over Auburn last week, slipped to No.4 with 814 points.

Syracuse, another of the surging teams in the poll, jumped from ninth to fifth with 814 points. The Orangemen, 11-0, posted triumphs over Canisius and Seton Hall last week and edged West Virginia 72-69 Monday night.

Louisiana State, upset by Vanderbilt last week and a one-point loser to Alabama Monday night, was sixth with 736 points. Notre Dame retained the No.7 position with 713 points, three more than No.8 Virginia, which moved up five notches after upsetting North Carolina last week.

Oregon State, 14th last week, moved into the No.9 position with 666 points while Purdue slipped two notches to 10th with 541 points.

Louisville, 15th last week, headed the Second Ten. Iowa, knocked from the unbeaten ranks by Michigan on Saturday, was 12th, followed by Missouri; St. John's, N.Y.; North Carolina; UCLA; Brigham Young; Clemson; Indiana and Georgetown, D.C.

Last week's Second Ten was Indiana, Missouri, Virginia, Oregon State, Louisville, UCLA, St. John's, Georgetown, Brigham Young and Illinois.

Rozelle Backs Official's Call

NEW YORK (AP) — Side judge Donald Orr apparently made a correct call by denying a Houston touchdown in the Oilers' 27-13 loss to the Pittsburgh Steelers Sunday, according to National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

After viewing films of the National Football Conference title game, Rozelle said Monday that Houston's Mike Renfro appeared to be juggling the ball as he stepped out of the end zone after catching a pass from Dan Pastorini. The play occurred late in the third quarter with Pittsburgh leading 17-10 and the Oilers eventually had to settle for a field goal.

"A thorough check of NFL films, showing different angles than those available to television, indicates that there was a definite question of possession," Rozelle said. "Our rules state possession is as necessary to having both feet in bounds."

Renfro came down with both feet in bounds, as required, but Orr, after hesitating for a few seconds, called it an incomplete pass. The call was upheld after all seven officials consulted.

Not only did Renfro argue the decision, but Dick Enberg and Merlin Olsen, the NBC-TV commentators, insisted the officials blew the call.

"No question about it, it was a touchdown," Enberg said. "I don't think he saw the play," Olsen added.

The NFL film, in a front view, showed Renfro catching the ball over his shoulder and holding it in the crook of his right arm. As he stepped out of bounds, he tried to shift the ball to his other arm to secure it.

"From the vantage point of this film, it is reasonable to see how Orr made the call," Rozelle said. "He didn't appear to have possession until he was out of bounds."

The TV replay showed only back and partial side views of the catch.

"The TV broadcasters are so positive," Rozelle said. "They make an arbitrary judgment. Then the print media picks it up and you have a big rhubarb. I wish they would be more moderate until there is a chance to view all the films."

"We don't say our officials don't occasionally make a mistake, but their percentage of being right is very high. We have found that TV cameras are not all-seeing. Quite often, the location of the camera can produce an erroneous effect, or not show the play at all. Cameras, like human beings, are not infallible."

Petty Unsure Of The Future

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP) — Richard Petty, named Driver of the Year by the National Motorsport Press Association, says he's not sure how long he'll stay on the NASCAR Grand National circuit.

"As long as I enjoy it and as long as I can make a living at it, I'll keep on. It may be anywhere from one race to 15 years," he said.

The Randleman, N.C., native accepted the award at the association's annual banquet here Monday night.

"Winning the award is very gratifying, naturally, because we had such a bad year in 1978," said Petty, the first stock car driver to receive the award three times.

"And it's not that we had such a bad year in 1978 when we didn't win a race — it's just that we didn't have the right breaks to get the job done," he said.

But Petty made up for 1978's bad breaks last year, with money winnings of $531,292, five first-place finishes and the NASCAR Winston Cup championship for an unprecedented seventh time.

His 1978 victories were the Daytona 500, the Virginia 500, Champion Spark Plug 400, CRC Chemicals 500 and American 500. He also placed in the top five in 23 of the 31 races he entered.

In all, Petty has 190 career victories to his credit.

"Petty changed from an Oldsmobile early in the season and won most of his late-season races in a Chevrolet.

"I think that from a crew standpoint, it was a gratifying season because we only blew one engine and we changed cars," he said.

Badger Returns As Cincy Coach; Claims Win And Hero's Welcome

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

On Saturday, Ed Badger resigned as basketball coach of the University of Cincinnati. On Sunday, he reconsidered. On Monday, he returned to the job and celebrated with a victory.

Badger received a hero's welcome from a screaming crowd of 7,357 who watched the Bearcats beat Memphis State 74-64 Monday night in a Metro Conference game.

"Next to coaching the United States team to a victory over Russia in 1973 in Moscow, the crowd tonight was my greatest thrill," said Badger, who quit as coach of the Chicago Bulls of the National Basketball Association in 1978 to come to Cincinnati.

Badger resigned Saturday "for personal reasons" but returned following a lengthy meeting Sunday with Dr. Henry Winkler, president of the university. Meanwhile, Dr. Lawrence Hawkins, a university vice president, said he had begun a major assessment of the performance of Athletic Director William Jenike.

Six nationally ranked teams were in action Monday night, and five of them were winners. The lone upset victim was No. 6 Louisiana State, which dropped a 57-56 squeaker to Alabama.

No. 1 Duke beat Georgia Tech 55-42, No. 2 DePaul coasted past Ball State 96-79, No. 5 Syracuse edged West Virginia 72-69, No. 8 Virginia eased past Delaware 82-55 and No. 15 North Carolina defeated Mercer 81-63.

Eddie Lee scored 23 points to lead Cincinnati, 84, to its spirited victory.

"Emotionally, it was a super game," said Lee. "He's a bona fide coach and he makes us pull together. I feel completely tired and completely drained."

Cincinnati substitute Jeff Bentley came off the bench to score six points and Lee added two as the Bearcats broke a 52-52 tie with 11:35 remaining and then led to the finish.

"We caught them when they were sky high," said Memphis State Coach Dana Kirk. "We were planning to control the ball and pull them out of their zone, but we had a lull and they played inspired ball. I believe that's the best Eddie Lee can play basketball."

Robert Scott's layup with 12 seconds to play gave Alabama its upset over defending Southeastern Conference champion Louisiana State.

Neither team ever led by more than seven points. The Tigers had gone in front 56-55 with 2:19 remaining on a 22-foot jump shot by Jordy Hultberg before Alabama held the ball for the final shot. After two timeouts, Scott took a pass at the top of the key and drove in for a basket.

A 25-foot desperation heave by Hultberg at the buzzer bounced off the rim.

"Alabama did the two key things — control the tempo and control the boards," said LSU Coach Dale Brown. "We were just too patient on offense, and what's even more disappointing is that we didn't take advantage of our home court. It was a terribly disappointing loss."

"How well we respond to this loss could determine how well we do down the road."

Eddie Phillips and Ken Johnson led Alabama, 7-6, with 18 points each while Rudy Macklin scored 22 for LSU, 9-2.

Duke limited Georgia Tech to four points in the final 11½ minutes, pulling away from a 38-38 tie to win going away and raise its record to 12-0. Center Mike Gminski scored 21 points for the Blue Devils, who led 30-20 at halftime.

"I thought then that we could inch away," said Duke Coach Bill Foster, "but we gave it right back and they made a heck of a game of it."

Sophomore Mark Aguirre scored 28 points as DePaul raised its record to 11-0 by beating Ball State. It was the Blue Demons' 32nd straight home-court triumph.

Unbeaten Syracuse had to fight back from a nine-point deficit in the second half to edge West Virginia for its 11th victory. The Orangemen finally put the game away on two free throws by Roosevelt Bouie, the 6-10 center who led Syracuse with 22 points.

NCAA To Vote On New Staff Limits, Division I Criteria

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Delegates to the annual NCAA convention were set today to

McKay Has New Pact

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — From the start, Coach John McKay has insisted on building the Tampa Bay Buccaneers his way. Now he'll get five more years to do it.

Owner Hugh Culverhouse obviously likes the McKay way. He announced Monday a five-year extension of McKay's contract as head coach and vice president of the National Football League club.

"It is my hope John will continue as head coach for many years to come. He's my coach of the year," said Culverhouse, a Jacksonville attorney who has fully supported McKay through the struggling start of the four-year-old franchise.

The announcement came just after McKay guided the young Bucs to a National Football Conference title game. They were stopped short of the Super Bowl Sunday in a 9-0 shutout by the Los Angeles Rams.

McKay, 55, is in the last year of his initial five-year contract, reportedly worth about $1.5 million. He came to Tampa as head coach in the 1976 season from the University of Southern California, where he closed out a 16-year career with a 127-40-8 record.

begin voting on issues touching upon virtually every aspect of collegiate athletics — ranging from the future of several traditional basketball powers to the opportunities for careers in football coaching.

Monday, in the opening business session of the three-day meeting, two Washington-based attorneys attempted to explain the "highly complicated and ambiguous" Title IX regulations mandating equal opportunity in athletics for women.

One of the most hotly debated proposals ever brought before an NCAA convention was expected to come to a vote today. If passed, it would require all Division I basketball schools without football programs sponsor at least eight sports. The rule would take effect in 1983 and could pose trouble for such successful basketball powers as Oral Roberts, DePaul and Marquette.

Delegates, both those opposed and in favor of the proposal, seemed unsure of its chances of passage. However, it has the support of the policy-making NCAA Council, which historically gets its way on the convention floor.

"I just hope enough voters realize the economic hardship this would cause institutions that are not state-supported," said one delegate. "The cost to us would be tremendous. The schools that would be most drastically affected are some of the most prestigious basketball programs in the country, programs they have spent many years building."

Another controversial proposal, expected to pass, would raise the number of fulltime football coaches from eight to nine and eliminate three part-time coaches.

The Pac-10 Conference has been in the forefront of opposition.

"The only way a young guy can get into coaching is to be a parttime coach," said Dee Andros, athletic director at Oregon State. "Take that away from him, and how is he going to get started in this business?"

Mike Scott and Bill Kramer, two Washington-based attorneys retained by the NCAA, spent more than an hour trying to explain to the delegates the "complicated and ambiguous" federal guidelines regarding Title IX, federal regulations mandating equal opportunity in athletics for women.

Women's athletics also will be dealt with when Divisions I and III, the smaller schools, vote on whether to sponsor championships in women's sports. The Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (AIAW) has told the NCAA, in effect, to stay out of women's championships. But in a non-binding straw vote Monday, the proposals passed in both divisions.

The department of Health, Education and Welfare issued Title IX policy guidelines Dec. 11 which require basically that educational institutions provide equal funding for men's and women's athletic scholarships.

HEW's power for enforcing Title IX is the withholding of federal money and virtually all educational institutions, public and private, receive some form of federal funding.

Today's Cryptiquip clue: L equals D
The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Opening lead: Jack of ♠.
The name Jacoby is almost synonymous with contract bridge. Papa Oswald was a member of the Four Aces team that defeated France in what is considered to be the first official world championship in 1935. Son James was a member of the Dallas Aces when they won the championship in 1970. They were on opposing teams in a match at the recent Fall North American Championships, and by a coincidence, both declared this hand in the same contract—three no trump. And the play at the two tables was identical!
The auctions were relatively straightforward, although some purists might object to South's 15-point no trump opening. Since West couldn't lead his partner's suit even if he had wanted to, the jack of spades was the opening lead at both tables. Both Jacobys ducked, and spades were continued. East won the second spade and cleared the suit.
Both declarers led a diamond to the king and ace, and East shifted to a club, won with the ace. Since East was known to hold the diamond jack, the declarers could count five—and only five—tricks outside the heart suit. Thus, hearts would have to produce four tricks for the contract to succeed.
To lead to the ace and finesse the jack on the way back would be the best way to tackle hearts in terms of percentages, but it would be futile here. Even if the queen were inside tripleton, there would be no entry back to dummy to cash the long heart, nor to finesse against East's jack of diamonds.

PBS 'Restructuring' Effect Awaited

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Public Broadcasting Service is about to implement the vast restructuring plan voted by its membership last June, which is to say:

One network, which really wasn't a network at all, will become three networks, working with (or possibly, against) four regional public TV networks and approximately 280 public TV stations.

Having just completed a matchbook-cover correspondence course in Chinese arithmetic, I will endeavor to explain.

PBS, which has passed in the minds of many for a network these past few years, has really been since 1972 a sort of TV dispatcher, moving programs through the public TV system but not creating them. The programs came from sundry sources, primarily the member stations and a few independent producers. PBS sends them out over the network (sometimes helping raise production money) and offers promotion services.

Also, PBS has another duty, which is to serve as the national representative of the public TV stations — to act as a sort of a lobbying body. One of the principal reasons for the restructuring of PBS, as recommended by a Carnegie Commission report on public television, was to shed PBS of its lobbying duties.

This will be done by the creation of something called the Association for Public Broadcasting, an organization that will deal with the FCC, Congress and such, freeing PBS to deal solely with programming.

In that regard, PBS hopes to utilize its satellite capability by dividing into three networks — PTV1, PTV2 and PTV3. Essentially, this means PBS will be doing what it has been doing, dispatching programs, but it will be grouping the programs according to their style and feeding programs from all three networks at once, leaving the individual stations to decide which to air.

There are other matters to consider, including the fact that PBS will still be competing with public TV stations that have grouped into regional networks and syndication services. If a public TV station in Boston, for example, wants to distribute a show it has produced, it can sell the show to the Eastern Educational Network instead of PBS. The EEN then feeds the show to its subscribers, other public TV stations.

PBS wanted regional networks such as EEN to become part of the PTV2 network, but the regionals refused the offer.

What all this really means is that PBS will continue to be PBS, except it doesn't have to do the Washington busywork anymore. And the three-network idea really is just a nifty way of packaging a public TV product already on the market.

So, public TV, in its wisdom, has gone from one organization that performs two functions to the Association for Public Broadcasting, which will pick up the lobbying duties shed by (the three new networks and PBS).

License Bid By Sinatra

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Frank Sinatra, who once surrendered his Nevada gaming license for acting as host to a reputed mobster at a casino he owned in the 1960s, has applied for a new license as a key employee at Caesars Palace, according to a hotel official.

Sinatra, a regular performer at the Strip resort, would be involved in promotion, serve as an entertainment adviser and handle other duties, Harry Wald, the hotel's executive vice president and chief operating officer, said Monday.

Entertainers had been allowed to appear at Nevada resorts without licensing, but last year the state Legislature repealed the law after executives at several Las Vegas clubs tried to use the statute to avoid being licensed.

Wald said Sinatra would be "expanding his role" at Caesars and that "in order to stay within the parameters of licensing, we feel that we would want to have him licensed."

Sinatra surrendered his gaming license in 1963 after state gaming officials said he played host to the late Sam "Momo" Giancana, who was listed in Nevada's "Black Book" of persons not allowed into the state's casinos. At the time, Sinatra owned the CalNeva lodge at Lake Tahoe, but he later sold the club.

Cast Helps Keep Show Open

NEW YORK (AP) — The cast of the Broadway revival "Watch on the Rhine" took a cut in pay and helped raise nearly $30,000 to help make the show go on.

The cast and crew of the revival of the 1941 Lillian Hellman play learned Friday night that Sunday's matinee performance was scheduled to be the last. They immediately began calling friends and by Sunday had raised almost $30,000, enough to keep the show open another week.

The play, which opened Thursday, is set in Washington in the 1940s and depicts the awakening of an American family to fascism.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, JAN. 9, 1980
YOUR DAILY Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Taking care of annoying problems where others are concerned can be the order of the day. Be exact and precise in whatever you say or do to prevent tension and strain.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You want to revise a contract with a partner but this is not the right day to do so. Be sure to carry through with agreements with others.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Some amusement you had looked forward to may not materialize, or there is delay. Take time for improving health and enjoy life more.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get rid of whatever keeps you from doing good work, and improve relations with fellow workers. A special thought for mate is appreciated.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Do not permit some condition at home to get you off balance and then it resolves itself satisfactorily. Silence is golden today.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Show more concern for allies and neighbors. Don't be frustrated if some social plans do not work out as you anticipated.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Handle an important financial matter well or you could lose out where it counts the most. Concentrate on adding to present income.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Situations do not work out as you had planned, but don't let this frustrate you — it is for the best. Don't argue with others and avoid trouble.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Take time to clear up some matters that have kept you miserable for some time. Do not get into an altercation with a close tie.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you go out socially, don't expect too much of others. Try to be more independent. Adopt a more conciliatory attitude.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Showing you are a conscientious citizen will make this a satisfactory day. Be sure to handle credit affairs wisely.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You can make progress via new directions now but iron out any wrinkles in plans. Don't commit yourself with a new contact now.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Handle every detail of any promises you have made to others, although you are thinking of making changes. A loved one needs help.

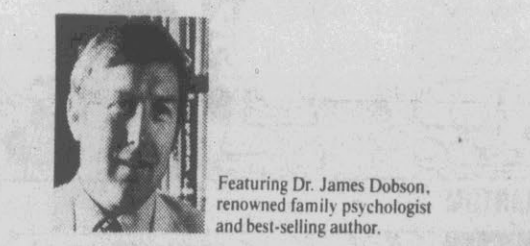

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will see the errors in any enterprises and know how best to eradicate them. This is also true in human equations, philosophies of life. Provide a harmonious atmosphere at home.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Surveying Primary Concerns Of N.C. Households

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST - Milder weather is expected in the forecast period until Wednesday morning for the Southwest. Showers are due for the Pacific coast and snow in the northern Plains. Rain is forecast for the Southeast, changing to snow in higher elevations of the mid-Atlantic region. Most areas will be colder. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
North Carolina can expect overcast skies and the occasional threat of rain during the next couple of days.
A cold front pushed into North Carolina Monday but, as it crossed the mountains, it lost much of its impact. As a result, colder air that had been expected remained well to the north and west of North Carolina.
The cold front is expected to linger through Wednesday. As small low pressure areas develop and move along this front, they will trigger cloudiness, light rain and drizzle, with the greatest threat over southeastern counties.

High temperatures Monday ranged from about 35 at Boone to 62 degrees at Wilmington. Rainfall amounted to less than a tenth of an inch at reporting stations.
Highs Wednesday should range from the 30s in the northwest to the upper 50s in southeastern sections. Lows tonight should be mostly in the 30s inland and 40s along the coast.

The outlook is for slowly improving conditions on Thursday.

RALEIGH - During January, North Carolina citizens can voice opinions about the concerns of their families and at the same time nominate themselves to a national conference on families.
The opportunity to voice opinions and nominations will be in the form of a newspaper survey being used by the North Carolina Families Task Force to compile a report to the White House Conference on Families, according to Task Force leaders.
The survey form is being distributed to all newspapers in the state with the request that they provide the space for its printing as a public service.

Task Force Co-chairperson, Mrs. Kate B. Garner of Winston-Salem, explained that citizen involvement in filling out the survey will be vital to the success of the task force.
"Every effort has been made to give rank-and-file North Carolinians an opportunity to participate in the survey process and delegate selection. They will play the leading role in deciding what issues the Task Force will face in March," says Mrs. Garner.

W. Perry Crouch of Charlotte, Co-chairperson with Garner, emphasized, "we believe thousands of citizens will express their opinion on family, demonstrating that the democratic process is the best way of improving things."
"The newspaper survey, which is expected to appear Jan. 9-12, 1980, will be supported by a telephone survey during January," outlined Charles V. Petty, the State Coordinator for the White House Conference and Executive Director of the Governor's Office of Citizen Affairs.

The data gathered from both the surveys will be tabulated by the Center for Urban Affairs and Community Services at North Carolina State University. The Center assisted with the design of both surveys and will conduct the interviewing for the telephone surveys.
The 160-member Task Force is scheduled to complete its report by March 30; and the delegates will go to the White House Conference in Baltimore, Md., during June.

cooperation with the University of North Carolina Television Network, will produce a television program explaining the results of the surveys and the work of the Task Force. The program will be shown on all UNC-TV stations in mid-March.

Property Tax War Gears Up

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) - The movement for lower property taxes has geared up again in North Carolina, and groups in 10 of the state's western counties have formed an organization to wage its tax battles in the legislature.
The United Taxpayers of America have organized to fight for a constitutional amendment that would allow citizens to initiate legislation similar to California's Proposition 13.
The California measure slashed property taxes by more than half in 1978.
Proponents of the lower tax are asking for a public initiative amendment to the state constitution. Such an amendment would allow the state's citizens to call for a vote on an issue by petitioning for a referendum.

ual groups in Gaston, Forsyth, Cumberland, Surry and Orange counties, Mrs. Sales said.
She said there has been no push to form such a group in populous Mecklenburg County because local sentiment does not seem to indicate displeasure with property taxes.
In Burke County, the outcry to lower taxes was so vehement at a public meeting last summer that several county commissioners had to lock themselves inside a room to escape the crowds, said Louise Morgan, head of the Burke County Property Owners and Taxpayers Association.
She said another commissioner lost half of his necktie to a citizen's knife.

City Counts 2 Collisions

An estimated $4,800 property damage resulted from a two traffic collisions investigated yesterday by Greenville Police.
Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 3:50 p.m. collision at the intersection of First and Greene Streets involving cars driven by Shirley Hutchin Farmer of Route 1, Stokes, David Proctor of 102B South Summit St., and Helen Lotz Rountree of 1209 Drexel La.
Police, who charged Ms. Farmer with failing to stop for a red light, estimated damage at $1,500 to the Farmer car, $1,000 to the Proctor auto and $500 to the Rountree vehicle.
Cars driven by Betty Monk Prayer of Bell Arthur and James Alfred Petz of Cleveland, Ohio, collided about 11:07 p.m. at the intersection of the Stantonsburg Road and Farm Drive.
Investigators estimated damage from the collision at $1,000 to the Prayer car and $800 to the Petz vehicle.

Transportation Bd. Meeting On Friday

WILLIAMSTON - The Board of Transportation will meet at Martin Community College here Friday at 11 a.m.

budgeted state highway funds for secondary road system improvements.
Additional monies are expected to be allocated for secondary road improvements on July 1.
The bond funds are distributed on a county-by-county basis, according to a prescribed formula.
The State's secondary road system is composed of 59,000 miles of state maintained highways. More than 39,000 miles are paved and 20,000 miles are unpaved, all-weather type roads.

Jean Sales of Asheville, president of United Taxpayers, said the organization's No. 1 goal is to get a voter initiative and referendum, adding that if the group wins the initiative issue, it will then work for a tax cut referendum.
"Our major aim is to cut out waste in government," she said.

The United Taxpayers group, associated with the National Taxpayers Union in Washington, D.C., organized in 1978. It has affiliated groups in Avery, Buncombe, Burke, Cherokee, Haywood, Henderson, McDowell, Mitchell, Transylvania and Yancey counties. There are about 5,500 members, according to Mrs. Sales.
There are also active individ-

Chemical Soc. Meets Thursday

The January dinner meeting of the Eastern North Carolina American Chemical Society will be held Thursday at King's Resturant in Kinston.

The social hour will be at 6:00 p.m., the dinner at 7:00 p.m. and the meeting at 8:00 p.m. The speakers will be Dr. David Lunney and Dr. Robert Morrison of East Carolina University. They will describe their recent work on the development of micro-computer systems for the blind.
There will also be a discussion on the 1980 budget proposed by the Executive Committee. All members and interested persons are encouraged to attend. Contact the chemistry department at ECU at 757-6711 by Jan. 9 for dinner reservations.

$15,000 Grant

WASHINGTON, D. C. - Congressman Walter B. Jones has announced the approval by the Environmental Protection Agency of a grant of $15,000 to the town of Grimesland, under the Wastewater Treatment Construction Works Program.
These funds are to be used in the first step of a project to design a facility to serve the 420 residents of Grimesland.

There are also active individ-

Symposium At Kinston

Venous thrombosis and pulmonary embolism will be the topics of a symposium to be held for area health professionals in the AHEC Auditorium of Lenoir Memorial Hospital, Kinston, Thursday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.
Faculty will be physicians from Duke University Medical Center - Robert H. Jones, M. D., associate professor of surgery; Steven R. Mills, M. D., assistant professor of radiology; Philip C. Pratt, M. D., professor of pathology; David C. Sabiston Jr., M. D., chairman of the Department of Surgery; Peter M. Scholz, M. D., senior assistant resident in the Department of Surgery; and Walter G. Would You Like To Be A Delegate?

The White House Conference on Families will be in Baltimore, Maryland, June 5-7, 1980. Twelve of the 40 delegates from North Carolina will be randomly selected from those who express an interest in attending. You may nominate only yourself by completing the form to the right. To be a delegate, you must be at least 16 years old and agree to (1) attend the conference sessions, (2) carefully study the materials prepared by the Task Force, and (3) work with the other delegates in presenting the materials from the people of North Carolina. Expenses can be paid by the White House Conference.

THANK YOU!
