Iran Plot Said Uncovered

By The Associated Press Firing squads have executed a number of Iranian army officers for plotting to overthrow Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's revolutionary regime, the usually reliable Kuwait newspaper Al Rai Al Am reported today.

In another development, Iran's Foreign Ministry denied a report that U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim would be acceptable as a negotiator in the hostage crisis, calling it "an absolute lie," according to Tehran radio in a broadcast monitored in London.

Quoting unidentified diplomatic sources, the Kuwait paper published in the Persian Gulf oil sheikdom said all the officers involved in the coup plot had been arrested and were executed secretly to avoid adverse publicity for the revolutionary regime.

No confirmation of the report was available, and sources in Tehran, the Iranian capital, said they had heard nothing about such a plot.

The report said the plot was discovered accidentally when some of the Iranian regime's revolutionary guards stopped and searched the car of one of the officers at a roadblock.

The paper said the plotters were all medium-ranking army officers who planned to seize control of Tehran, the Iranian capital, and then lay siege to the holy city of Qom, Khomeini's headquarters 100 miles to the south.

The plotters expected other opponents of Khomeini and supporters of the deposed shah to join them after they launched their coup, the report said.

An ABC News report, now denied in Tehran, said that Khomeini was willing to accept Waldheim as an intermediary with the United States even though he refused to receive him in Iran earlier this month.

Quoting U.N. sources in New York, ABC News reported Tuesday night that the Iranian Foreign Ministry sent a message to its U.N. ambassador, Mansour Farhang, stating Waldheim was now acceptable to the 79-year-old religious leader of the Iranian revolutionary regime. Neither Waldheim nor Farhang was immediately available for confirmation of the report. In Washington, a spokesman for the U.S. State Department said: "We are unaware of any such communication."

Discuss Shah

CHICAGO (AP) — The governments of Panama and Iran have entered into direct top-level discussions on the possible return of the deposed shah to Iran, the Chicago Tribune today quoted reliable sources as saying.

The Tribune, in a story filed from Tehran, said the sources reported that Panamanian President Aristides Royo telephoned Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh twice Tuesday to discuss Iran's official request for the shah's arrest.

Iran announced Saturday it would file a formal extradition request with Panama "within 60 days after his arrest."

The U.N. Security Council sent Waldheim to Tehran two weeks ago to try to secure the release of the 50 or so Americans held hostage by militant students in the U.S. Embassy since Nov. 4. He cut short his visit after Khomeini and the students refused to see him but his proposal for a U.N. commission to investigate the allegations of the revolutionary regime against Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi did find favor with Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh.

Ghotbzadeh earlier this week said creation of this commission offered the only prospect for release of the hostages. But he added they would not be freed until the shah was returned to Iran for trial.

Meanwhile, the Iranian government opened a counter-offensive to combat the U.S. government's efforts to get its allies to join in economic reprisals against Iran.

Oil Minister Ali Akbar Moinfar said Iran would stop selling oil to any nation that took economic sanctions against it, and Kyodo, the Japanese news service, said he called in Japanese Ambassador Tsutomu Wada for a special warning. Kyodo said Moinfar also told the ambassador the Japanese should resume construction immediately of a $2.9 billion petrochemical complex on the Persian Gulf that they stopped building because of the hostage-taking.

Moinfar also denied a report from the Tehran correspondent of Platt's Oilgram News that Iranian oil exports have been cut from an estimated 2.3 million barrels daily in late December to between 900,000 and a million currently because of slow spot-market sales.

Abolghassem Sadegh, director of the foreign press section at the National Guidance Ministry, said as a result of the expulsion of the Americans, the students holding the U.S. Embassy and the hostages "might be more relaxed and the hostages might be more relaxed in turn."

New Non-Tobacco Cigarette Appears

By JOHN C. EAGAN Associated Press Writer SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A new non-tobacco cigarette made of puffed wheat, cocoa bean husks, citrus and molasses went on the market this week with the blessings of a medical expert who says it could help curb heart disease.

"There are 50 million smokers in this country, and we can certainly help a lot of them quit or greatly reduce their consumption of cigarettes," said Lee J. Danna, board chairman of the manufacturer, International Brands Inc. of suburban Los Altos.

The new smokes — claimed to be the first mass-marketed, mass-produced non-tobacco cigarettes — do not carry the familiar surgeon general's health warning because they contain no tobacco. Nor are they subject to the heavy tax levied against tobacco products.

Danna discussed the firm's new product, called "Free," at a news conference Tuesday. He was accompanied by Dr. Donald C. Harrison, the chief of cardiology at Stanford University School of Medicine who is a consultant to International Brands.

"I'm against smoking in its fullest extent," said Harrison. "But I have patients that won't quit."

Harrison said that nicotine-laced tobacco causes cardiovascular diseases that kill about 200,000 people a year. He said about 20 million Americans suffer from cardiovascular disease.

"Ninety percent of the smokers want to quit, but only 20 percent do — about the same percentages as for heroin addiction," Harrison said.

The new cigarettes still have about 3 to 4 milligrams of tar, about the same as low-tar tobacco cigarettes, Harrison said. That means that they still pose a cancer hazard.

"Free" cigarettes, which come in regular or menthols, "don't have a great deal of taste," Harrison said. He explained that he doesn't smoke, but that was the opinion of the people he knows who tried them.

"Free" cigarettes are the result of seven years of research costing more than $3 million, Danna said. The product has been test-marketed during the past two years in a number of cities, but this week they are being mass marketed in Northern California and will be distributed "as quickly as possible" across the nation and in perhaps 70 other nations, he said.

The no-nicotine cigarettes will be competitively priced with tobacco cigarettes, about 75 cents a package, Danna said. The company's Los Altos plant is capable of producing about 100 million cigarettes a month, but the early production is expected to be 30 million to 40 million, he said.

Danna said the company has made no scientific study to determine if anything in the new cigarette might have unsuspected harmful effects on humans. But he pointed out that two major ingredients, puffed wheat and cocoa bean hulls, are currently being used in some tobacco cigarettes.

More Than Grain

WASHINGTON (AP) — At the same time the Soviet Union has to make do without American-grown wheat and corn, it also will be going without fresh lemons from Florida, shelled peanuts from Georgia, almonds from California and cattle hides from the Midwest.

And that's not to mention thousands of dollars worth of tomato seeds. The commodities are among dozens caught in President Carter's curtailment of exports to the Soviet Union to protest Soviet military involvement in Afghanistan, administration officials said Tuesday.

Attention has focused on the partial wheat and corn embargo, for which the administration has pledged to indemnify exporters and farmers at a cost estimated to exceed $2 billion. There have, however, been no steps taken to protect farmers and growers for the other agricultural commodities, which last year accounted for more than $500 million of U.S. trade with the Soviets, according to Commerce Department data.

IN SECOND WEEK

DENVER (AP) — The 60,000 members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union began the second week of a nationwide strike with one union official saying it appeared the walkout will be a long one.

Farmville Mayor Plans Lead Opposition Group

Farmville Mayor Linwood Mercer will head a delegation of local officials going to Raleigh tomorrow to protest design proposals for the Farmville Eastern (highway) Loop which conflict with local plans and desires.

Farmville leaders say they will meet with State Transportation Secretary Thomas W. Bradshaw Jr. to challenge preliminary conclusions in an environmental assessment issued by the Dept. of Transportation for a new thoroughfare east of Farmville, a companion project to the U. S. 264 improvements.

Attending with Mayor Mercer will be State Rep. Sam D. Bundy, State ABC Board Chairman Marvin Speight, Pitt Co. Schools Supt. Ott Alford, State Development Commission member R. E. Davenport, Farmville Economic Council Director Anne McGaughey, farmer W. A. Allen Jr. and Farmville Town Administrator Patrick Thomas.

The DOT report expresses a preference for a two-lane road with inadequate right of way for a future median if expanded to four lanes, no control of access, and no grade separation at the Southern Railway intersection. In everything except location, the DOT report recently approved by high-level Transportation officials is in direct conflict with the needs seen by local citizens, Mayor Mercer said.

He said Farmville people feel that the proposed two-lane road with only 100 feet and no railroad grade separation (overpass) will not adequately or safely serve traffic, will undermine local land use planning and will become another congested facility like Greenville Boulevard in Greenville. He said there is concern in Farmville that DOT officials "are planning to pinch pennies on the eastern thoroughfare after selecting one of the most expensive alternatives for the U. S. 264 improvements."

The Farmville Board of Commissioners recently sent the DOT a resolution urging that the wishes of local citizens be abided by. Similar resolutions were adopted by the Farmville Economic Council and the Farmville Area School Advisory Committee.

The elimination of partial control of access was also a surprise to local officials, Mayor Mercer said. He said DOT had earlier indicated a willingness to cooperate with local land use planning by regulating access intervals. Mercer said Farmville leaders believe that NC-DOT is ignoring the regional importance of the thoroughfare, which will serve as an interim link for U. S. 264 for several years. He cited the particularly heavy use of the thoroughfare likely to be made by residents of northern Greene County.

Seek Renal Transplant Center

By CAROL TYER Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Memorial Hospital Trustees heard last night of the application for a Certificate of Need for a renal transplant center here.

If approved, PCMH could become a hospital able to serve every Eastern Carolinian with acute kidney failure fortunate enough to receive a donor kidney.

East Carolina University Medical School Dean William Laupus called the idea "a logical next step" in this medical center's effort to provide the best in care for patients with kidney problems. There is already a sophisticated dialysis center here, he pointed out.

A resolution was passed acknowledging the hospital's continuing obligation to provide free community service when needed in accordance with Hill-Burton guidelines. This has been done in the past, but needed to be documented, Director Jack Richardson said.

A letter from the county manager was read authorizing the use of land on Move Boulevard adjacent to the Greenville Villa Nursing Home for a temporary parking lot for the hospital.

Trustee Jimmy Cheatham reported on by-law changes discussed at the executive board meeting Tuesday afternoon. He said the changes will be presented at a February meeting.

Approval was given for the lease of 3,000 square feet of heated storage area from ABC Moving and Storage at a price of $540 per month. It was discussed that this would be a temporary arrangement until storage space can be constructed on the hospital grounds. A one-year lease with two one-year options to renew was entered into.

It was reported in written form to each trustee that auditors, Lowmire, Warwick and Company of Greenville, say annual hospital financial statements from October, 1978 through September, 1979 "reflect a strong financial position with current assets of $7.5 million or a 2:1 ratio to current liabilities."

It was reported that from Oct. 1, 1978 to Sept. 30, 1979, the hospital operating revenues totaled $25,364,839, or an increase of 33 percent over the previous year. Operating expenses totaled $23,407,118 or 32 percent more than the previous year. Salaries and benefits for employees totaled $12,891,623 or 55 percent of operating costs, a 35 percent increase over the previous year. Excess revenues over expenses were used to increase working capital, including financing increases in accounts receivable of $2,136,200, increases in inventories of $189,689 and purchases of $888,536 worth of equipment.

The hospital was able to sustain rapid expansion and continue to meet its obligations for repayment of the $2 million in revenue bonds created to help finance construction of the facility."

The audit report was accepted by the board.

Trustees gave their approval to the purchase of an intraocular microsurgical system to be used in eye surgery at a price of $23,328 and for two transcutaneous monitors for the neonatal center at a price of $23,500 each.

The Health Systems Agency review of Pitt Memorial's request for the leasing of space at the Holiday Inn for additional bed space will be held Jan. 24 at 7 p. m. it was reported.

Approval was given for the granting of the Greenville Dialysis Unit's request for the paving of a connecting road from the unit to a road on hospital grounds. The improvement will be of no expense to the hospital, it was reported.

Glenn Strickland reported on a trustee education meeting held in Williamston recently. It was pointed out that PCMH had the largest attendance of any hospital in the region at the AHEC-sponsored meeting.

Medical Staff Chief Dr.

William Bost reported on two Region 4 Peer review audits. One showed PCMH does well in quality of care of acute myocardial infarction, he said; the other that it does equally well in use of abdominal hysterectomy treatment.

Dr. Bost also reported on four quality assurance audits conducted within the hospital. All brought about improvements in methods, he indicated. All four were approved by the board.

Dean Laupus commented on vast expansions of care made at this medical center in the past five years. He said steel is "up to the sixth floor" in the new Medical Science Building. "I go out and count every day," he added.

County Commissioners-Hospital Board Liaison Member Charles Gaskins was congratulated by Chairman Harry Leslie for having been named late last week as Greenville's "Outstanding

BOUGHT BY CITY?

I understand the City of Greenville recently purchased some land which includes an area known as White's Pond between Greene Street and Highway 11 in the Meadowbrook area. What does the city intend to do with this property? U. W.

Ben Shiver, Intergovernmental Relations Coordinator with the City of Greenville, who works with the Community Development program in the Meadowbrook area, said some land adjacent to White's Pond was bought by the city to preserve it as a flood plain. He said it will probably be used eventually as a passive park, with nature trails, picnic areas, etc. White's Pond is not included, however, he said.

TOY RESPONSE GOOD

Response was good to the Hotline appeal just before Christmas for the donation of toys to a drive being conducted by the Greenville Jaycees, Hotline has learned. Jaycee Waigty Scales estimated that probably 250 toys in good condition were donated by about 40 households.

Homemaker's Haven By Sue B. May

Pitt Home Agent

During these very cold months you might want to try your hand at giving your home a warmer look. If a lot of your furnishings have smooth surfaces like glass, chrome, wood or plastic, you perhaps have a cool look that is great for summer but not quite so inviting now that the winter wind is blowing.

A few low-cost ideas for warming up those slick, shiny surfaces might be tried. For example you can warm up the appearance of any room just by adding some soft fuzzy textures. An easy and inexpensive way to do this is to add some throw pillows with covers made of a nubby fabric. Or, if you already have pillows, all they might need is a different cover for the winter months.

Another trick is to transform your tables into cozy looking accessories by skirting them with fabric. Any size table can be skirted. Although round tables are easiest to work with, you can skirt a square table, too. Perhaps the easiest way is to make a round wood or heavy cardboard top a bit larger than the square and place it on the tabletop. Then lay a soft fabric over the table and let it drape to the floor. Just adding a table skirt and a few fuzzy pillow covers will give a new look and a warm touch to a room.

If you are in the market for a new carpet remember that some fibers, wool and acrylic especially, are good insulators and make a warmer floor. Nylon fiber does little to insure against cold. As you might expect, a thick dense carpet has greater insulating value than a thin one. Deep shag or pile construction will be warmer than a level loop weave. The carpet pad also helps insulate against cold.

Psychologically, you will feel several degrees warmer in a room carpeted in shades of red, rust, orange, yellow, gold or brown. These "warm colors" are excellent choices for rooms with a northern exposure. So, keep thermal comfort in mind when shopping for a carpet. Don't forget too, that area rugs in the right color can be used effectively to add warmth to your home.

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

If you want to know what farm and ranch women throughout the country are up to in the kitchen, talk to my friend Elise Manning.

I first met Elise when she was assistant to another friend of mine, the late Clementine Paddleford, renowned food editor of the former New York Herald Tribune. Elise has the same warm interest in people Clem had, and you can rely on her up-to-date reports — made with acute observation and affectionate humor — of the cooks she interviews.

Nowadays Elise is food editor of "Farm Journal." When she isn't flying around the country having a good time in someone's farm or ranch kitchen, she's likely to be reading recipes sent to her by her readers.

She has put some of these into the recently published "Farm Journal's Complete Home Baking Book" (Doubleday).

Mom Revokes Meddler's License

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1980 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My name is Adam and I am 11. My father went out of town for a few days and left his big car in our garage. Neil, a kid my age, came over and said he knew how to drive, so I got the keys and told him he could drive forward and backward in our driveway. Well, while Neil was backing up, he saw my Mom drive up behind him in her little car. He panicked and rammed Mom's car, smashing the whole front end, but good. Mom wasn't hurt, but her car was a mess.

I admit it was my fault for letting Neil drive, but he was the one who wrecked Mom's car, and all the blame was placed on me. Mom is making me pay for the damage by taking it out of my allowance. It will take me forever to pay it off. I am also grounded for a month with no TV privileges.

Mom says I can't be trusted and she has lost all confidence in me. Please tell me how I can get my Mom to trust me again. I told her I learned my lesson, but she doesn't believe me.

ADAM IN HIGHLAND PARK

DEAR ADAM: Start to build your mother's confidence in you by being 100 percent truthful and responsible. Repeated good behavior will establish you as a trustworthy person. Words mean nothing. Performance means everything.

DEAR ABBY: Is it ever proper to ask someone why they didn't invite you to their party?

I wouldn't do it to put someone on the spot. I really want to know if maybe I did (or said) something to offend that person. And there is always a chance that my invitation got lost in the mails. Sign me...

DEAR HURT: The word from here is, don't ask.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from MEG IN ST. PAUL concerning baggage lost in airports because it isn't tagged with the name and address of the owner prompts this letter.

I, too, work for an airline. In the last year I have twice had to search the length of a Denver airport for lost luggage containing a passenger's heart medicine!

Abby, please tell your readers NEVER to pack medication, passports, or anything else of importance (or value) in a piece of luggage to be shipped through. Carry them on your person!

This is especially wise during the winter, when snowstorms may cause flight delays and cancellations that might separate you from your luggage for a while.

Take a tip from an airline employee. Most of us carry a toilet kit, a change of underwear and other necessities in our carry-on luggage in case we get stranded overnight, because we often are.

Hospital Head Gives Talk

Growth and expansion of the hospital were discussed by Jack Richardson, at the meeting of the Arts Department of the Greenville Woman's Club Friday.

Director of Pitt County Memorial Hospital, Richardson showed slides of the new nursing tower and of the proposed tower to be opened in two years, giving the hospital 500 beds in the future. This growth is credited to the East Carolina University School of Medicine, the people and organization of the county, City of Greenville and the interested hospital committeemen who have worked to raise funds to help appropriations provided by the State Legislature.

Mrs. Harry Hastings, vice chairman, introduced the speaker.

Suggestions for future programs were discussed during the business session conducted by Mrs. George Clapp, chairman.

Two musical students will be sponsored by the department in the District Arts Festival March 1 in Windsor.

Minor Adverse Effect

State employment is a large part of the local economy, but fortunately a freeze on hiring ordered by the governor in September has had no great effect so far.

The largest state employer in Pitt County is East Carolina University and officials there say the freeze has caused some hardships in a few cases but generally the institution is able to get along.

Essential positions can still be filled but the freeze has caused some overloading of faculty. The ECU medical school was exempted from the freeze, because it is still building, but officials there indicate they are living by the spirit of the freeze order.

The Department of Transportation division office has some vacancies it hasn't filled, but the pressure is not on right now to hire replacements. The Department of Human Resources said not filling positions could cause strains but the work would be accommodated.

Highway Patrol Troop A has seen little effect so far from the freeze.

It appears that no essential services by state agencies have been adversely affected by the state hiring freeze; nor has inability to fill positions had particularly bad effects on the local economy. Future effects, of course, will depend on how long the freeze lasts.

John Sears' Test In Iowa

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

JANESVILLE, Iowa — The night before the Iowa Poll revealed a catastrophic 24-point drop in Ronald Reagan's strength, the possibility that next Monday's caucuses could devastate his 12-year search for the Republican presidential nomination was raised by a vivid contrast here in east central Iowa.

Principal speaker for a party fund-raiser was George Bush, Sen. Howard Baker's daughter Clissy was present. So were campaign leaflets and posters for Bush, Baker, Connally, Crane and Dole. But there was no sign of Reagan — not a campaign button, not a poster, not a word — in Reagan's rural heartland.

"This is what we've been complaining about for months," a local Reagan loyalist told us. "There is no visible Reagan campaign." That absence, when compared with Bush's painstakingly built organization, suggests Reagan could finish second to Bush at Republican precinct caucuses Jan. 21. Reagan's overwhelming grass roots popularity, counted on to negate Bush's organizational edge, has been undercut by infrequency of visits to Iowa, climaxed by his boycott of the Jan. 4 presidential debate.

Since Reagan's campaign is based on invincibility and inevitability, losing Iowa would not be easily overcome. Thus, the cautious strategy of campaign manager John Sears, undergoes an early critical test. If "Dutch" Reagan loses the state of his young manhood, the Sears strategy will be blamed.

That chorus would be led by Lt. Gov. Terry Branstad, 33-year-old hope of Iowa conservatives and a 1976 Reagan activist. Branstad repeatedly has warned Reagan headquarters of Bush on the march in Iowa. When he spotted Sears in the Fort Des Moines Hotel coffee shop the other morning, Branstad complained Sears had not returned his calls for months (the debonair Sears replied with a smile and his patented chuckle).

Branstad did get five minutes alone with Reagan himself during a rare Iowa stop Dec. 14, and gave him detailed advice: Come to Iowa often, not for one monster rally but to hit several towns; above all, participate in the debate. None of this advice was followed.

Branstad now gives Bush at least an even chance to win.

Senior Reagan strategists privately admit they underestimated Bush. Although they denigrate Bush's establishment backing as "the charity ball set," they admit he has locked up key local leadership. Although Bush at his best cannot match Reagan's charisma on an off-day, he will have spent 27 days in Iowa by caucus time; when Reagan comes to Iowa Saturday, it will be his sixth day.

Reagan's campaign did not reach full gear until December when Kenny Klinge, a skilled professional from Virginia, was dispatched to Des Moines. His phone bank has found over 50,000 Iowa voters "favorable" to Reagan. Klinge feels that Bush's operation is bogged down with the 25,000 Republicans who attended the 1976 caucuses, while Reagan seeks new blood.

Iowans contend Klinge is running a primary election campaign unable to drag ordinary citizens to play politician a couple of hours on a cold winter night. While Klinge hopes for 60,000 to 100,000 at the caucuses, the consensus is a maximum of 40,000 — the fewer the better, from Bush's standpoint.

But Reagan's hope in larger numbers is undermined by his refusal to debate. Steve Fausel, a young manufacturer attending Bush's rally in Burlington, told us he worries about Reagan's age and "electability" but is more familiar and comfortable with Reagan's issue positions than Bush's. Did Reagan's no-show at the debate bother him? "If he had debated," Fausel told us evenly, "I wouldn't be here tonight."

After hearing a Bush speech no less conservative than Reagan in attacking big government and supporting hard-line foreign policy, Fausel seemed inclined to Bush. Although Bush's Iowa backers come mostly from the party's liberal wing, his only real quarrel with Reagan is experience. He told the Janesville dinner that as CIA director, he was approving national intelligence estimates, "not lecturing about it out there on the free enterprise circuit" — the closest he comes to outright criticism of Reagan.

Bush worries the anti-Reagan vote will be diluted by Baker, rising with a lavish (Continued on page 5)

The Honor Is Well-Deserved

Charles P. Gaskins, a Pitt County commissioner, businessman and civic leader, received the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce "Outstanding Citizen of the Year" award Friday night.

As a commissioner Gaskins was ac-

Gaskins has given his time and efforts to Pitt County development. The Chamber honor is deserved.

No Politics For Carter

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — When it comes to money problems in North Carolina's 100 counties, the public schools and public welfare, especially Medicaid, get the blame.

This comes as a surprise to many local taxpayers who envision their dollars being used for police, fire, garbage collection or other "local" services.

It is a popular myth that state and federal dollars bear the burden for welfare and schools. Actually, county officials are increasingly concerned with state and federal "mandates" which require the local governments to conduct programs, hire additional people, and otherwise spend their local tax dollars without any real participation in the decision-making process.

When staff people from the General Assembly's fiscal research office polled county commissioners and administrators recently, one of the subjects on the survey was spending and budgeting local funds.

Problems
To the question of which areas of spending have created the greatest funding problems over the past five years, nearly 60 percent of the local officials responded "public schools." Nearly 30 percent named Medicaid. That leaves little room for concern over a host of other local governmental activities like law enforcement, courts, public health, fire protection, water and sewage, solid waste disposal, etc.

To the question of which areas of county spending have grown most rapidly over the past five years, schools and Medicaid again swept the field.

Actually, four major state or federally mandated programs account for almost all of the budget in North Carolina Counties. About 82 percent of the money goes for education, welfare including Medicaid, public health and mental health.

In five years, local spending for education has jumped from $79 million to $1.5 billion. Spending on social services soared from $36 million to $122 million. Health services rose from $20 million to $68 million, and mental health jumped from $2 million to $81 million.

Two of those areas, in particular, have given local officials cause for concern. The increase in social services can be largely attributed to Medicaid services for the poor, and since the bulk of that money is being spent on long-term care for the elderly in nursing homes, all predictions point toward continued expansion.

The local share of costs in running the schools also continues to shift, with counties now picking up a fourth of the tab.

BILL NOBLITT

Taxes Up
County government experts say these increased outlays are responsible for the steadily increasing local property taxes which are causing citizens and officials alike considerable grief. The property tax is the single most important source of local income, and produces $515 million for county governments statewide. That represents roughly 79 percent of all income which county governments receive.

The escalating costs of mandated programs detailed by the survey account for a trend now obvious for even higher county property taxes. The average county tax rate declined from 1972 through 1978, but started up again in 1979. That signals additional climbing, say the experts.

For fiscal year 1979-80, a total of 51 counties raised their tax rates, compared to only 37 counties which raised rates in fiscal 1978-79. Those increases, coupled with increased property values in the counties carrying out revaluation, clearly point to an upward track for local property taxes in future years.

"Eldridge, this is Jimmy Carter. I am calling you from the White House, which I am unable to leave because of all the worldwide crises that are preventing me from campaigning during this election year."

"Yes, sir, Mr. President.

"Is this Mr. Eldridge Winkler, chairman of the Flatbottom, Iowa, Democratic Party?"

"Yes, it is."

"Just a minute. The President of the United States of America would like to speak to you."

"Eldridge, I am calling you from the White House, which I am unable to leave because of all the worldwide crises that are preventing me from campaigning during this election year."

"Yes, sir, Mr. President.

It's very kind of you to take time out from your busy schedule, which must be consuming every minute of your day. Can I ask what you're calling about?"

"I just finished a meeting with the National Security Council concerning Iran, and I'm going into another meeting with the secretary of state over Afghanistan, and I was wondering how things were going in Iowa."

"You mean politically?"

"Of course not politically. I don't believe the President should get involved in politics at a moment like this. It's beneath him."

"If you say so, Mr. President. But why did you call then?"

"I was just thinking about you and all the loyal supporters in Iowa who did so much for me in 1976 when I first started running for the highest office in this land."

"You mean with all the things you've got to worry about, you've had time to think about Iowa?"

"I always think about Iowa. I can never forget your amber waves of grain and your corn which is as high as an elephant's eye, it reaches right up there into the sky."

"Now that you mention it, Mr. President, the people in Flatbottom would like to ask you about all that grain and corn. Why on earth did you put an embargo on food to the Soviet Union at this time?"

"Can you keep a state secret, Eldridge? If this leaked out, our whole foreign policy could be in jeopardy."

"Of course, Mr. President."

"The Russians can't be trusted."

"When on earth did you find that out?"

"About three weeks ago. They don't know what it is to keep their word. I'm glad I discovered it during my first term as President. It's given me a whole new insight into Soviet-American relations."

"But what do you do with all the grain and corn you told us to raise for the last three years?"

"Eldridge, I'm going to say one word to you now, but I don't want you to tell anyone where you heard it."

"I'm listening, Mr. President."

"Gasohol!"

"Gas-a-what?"

ART BUCHWALD

"Gasohol. I want all the farmers in Iowa to take all their grain and soybeans and corn and make alcohol out of it. Then I want you to take that alcohol and pour it into your fuel tanks. Then I want everyone to get in their cars and drive around with their headlights on and show the Soviets we mean business when they invade Afghanistan."

"Anything you say, Mr. President. Would you like to know how the Iowa caucuses are going?"

"No, Eldridge. I didn't call to talk about caucuses. I know the people of Iowa will do the right thing next week, in spite of the fact I have been too busy to further my own political fortunes in your great state. Goodbye, Eldridge. I'll pray for you."

"Is this Mr. Cameron Doolittle of the Mason City, Iowa, Democratic Party? Just a minute, I have the President of the United States of America on the line."

"Cameron, this is Jimmy Carter and as you know I am unable to leave the White House, but..."

Other Editors Say A Right To Life

(The Wilson Times)

The state of Virginia has given its approval to a project that will allow the first extra-uterine conception clinic in the United States. The revolutionary procedure will be performed in a new clinic being completed at Eastern Virginia Medical School in Norfolk.

But a right-to-life group threatens to nip these plans before they reach the (excuse the pun) embryonic stage. The right-lifers believe the "test tube baby" procedures, as they are popularly called, raise moral and ethical questions. The group plans to oppose the new clinic in court.

If the right-to-lifers have their way, hundreds of couples who are unable to conceive will be denied the right to produce life.

The Virginia Society for Human Life has charged that the extra-uterine conception project would entail "uncontrollable laboratory experimentation with human life." A spokesman indicated the group feared the potential for tampering with the zygote or the destruction of unwanted ova.

The right to life group, it seems to us, is chasing the wrong cause. What is proposed at Eastern Virginia is not genetic experimentation or alteration but infertility therapy. The process involves artificial insemination of a human ovum and its reinsertion into the womb for normal development and birth. No genetic tampering or Frankensteinian experimentation is involved.

Since the first test tube baby was born in England more than a year ago, 2,500 barren women have applied for the Virginia program. Of these, 11 have been accepted as initial candidates. If the therapy is successful, these barren women will be able to experience the unique joy of bearing a child, of feeling its first movements, of nursing it. The baby will be totally her own. The only difference will be that this child, unlike most, will have become genetically whole outside the mother's womb.

And that's a right to life that shouldn't be denied.

TRUE HEROISM

Heroism is much more than a matter of physical action. Moral heroism towers above the celebrated heroism of warfare. As the great evangelist Henry Ward Beecher once remarked, "The world's battlefields have been in the heart chiefly; more heroism has been displayed in the household and in the closet than on the more memorable battlefields of history."

The mother that works diligently so that she may get her children through school and settled in life; the young person who lives by life's finest values and turns away from the allurements of temptation; the writer who writes what he believes rather than seeking public acceptance; the person who loves through the years someone who does not return that love — here are a few of the real heroes.

A medal given by a grateful government is not to be despised, but the noblest decorations are unseen and the hand that confers them comes down out of heaven itself.

Carter An Obstacle To Brown

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jerry Brown has a problem: He wants to debate Jimmy Carter and the president won't do it.

And that, says the governor of California, is making his campaign for the White House far more difficult.

Now it would seem that Carter should make it as difficult as possible for Brown and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy to challenge him for the Democratic presidential nomination. They'd do the same for him.

Brown concedes as much, but says Carter is cynically exploiting the plight of the hostages in Tehran to avoid debating his rivals.

Ever since Carter pulled out of what was to have been a three-man debate in Des Moines on Jan. 7, Brown has been demanding in virtually every campaign speech that the president come and face them.

Kennedy mentions the debate that didn't happen, too, but he hasn't been as vehement as Brown. "The people of Iowa should have an opportunity to hear the president of the United States," he said the other night in Waterloo, Iowa.

Brown was there, too, insisting that one of the real questions of the campaign is how to get Carter out of the White House and into a debate.

that he be in Washington.

That covers his refusal to go to Des Moines, and also his refusal to meet Kennedy and Brown in Washington.

He has been telephoning Democrats in Iowa and other key campaign states, but Vice President Walter F. Mondale says that can be done without distracting him from world trouble spots.

"What's he going to do instead of coming to Iowa?" Brown asked at one point. "Is he going to do something that will get the hostages home? No, he's probably going to be calling the precinct captains."

And that was before the president agreed to a solo, nationally televised appearance on Sunday, the eve of the Iowa Democratic precinct caucuses that will be the first real competition of the campaign.

Carter will be the second president to appear on NBC's "Meet the Press." Gerald R. Ford was the first, on Nov. 9, 1975.

Carter was the first president to agree that he would debate rival candidates in a campaign for renomination. He did so two days after the hostages were taken in Tehran, and before his standing in the public opinion polls vaulted past Kennedy's.

Then he said he couldn't make it. He said that if he were to participate, in a well-publicized event like a debate, Iranian militants might be tempted to create an incident coinciding with his appearance.

To the editor:

I am writing out of concern about the out-of-town transportation facilities of the Greenville City School System. On January 11 and 12, two buses broke down as a result of faulty engines. First, the Rose High J. V. Basketball team bus broke down Friday night outside of Wilson. The Rose Swim Team's bus broke down outside of Wilson on Saturday. These mechanical failures are not new to Greenville, either. Two years ago, a bus carrying the Swim team broke down outside of Zebulon and last year another broke down in Greensboro at the State Swimming Championships. This year in the fall, the Rose High Band had a breakdown and never reached its competition in Virginia.

It has been known for several years that these activity buses do not contain the desirable safety features, and with poor engines as an additional problem, the time, talents, and safety of athletes, musicians, coaches and others are being wasted or put in jeopardy.

discards on spades and one on the king of clubs, he was safe. Therefore, it would not help to put up a spade honor—that would set up at most three discards. So he followed with a low spade from dummy!

East went into a trance before deciding that it was just too risky to play the nine of spades. He went up with the ace of spades, and that was that! Declarer ruffed, drew trumps ending in dummy and then discarded all his heart losers on dummy's black-suit winners. Six diamonds bid and made.

Excursions Into Space Predicted

NEW YORK (UPI) — Within the next 20 years, private excursions to outer space will be frequent and the automobile industry will be able to build a car that starts only at the sound of its master's voice.

Pipe dreams? Not according to an article in the January issue of Seventeen magazine. The space travel prediction comes from Dr. Jesco Von Putt-Kamer, NASA's program manager for planning studies. The automotive forecast, from Martin Caserio, a General Motors vice president.

Other experts and their predictions include: Dr. Leo Bores, a Santa Fe, N.M. ophthalmologist, who says: "We probably won't need eyeglasses or contact lenses. We will have perfected the surgery that restores impaired vision."

And Anthony Reichelt, president of Quasar Industries, who expects the next 20 years to find robots being sold through dealerships as cars are now. The robots, he says, would handle a variety of domestic and medical tasks.

MORE HYDRO POWER
KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Tennessee Valley Authority says that heavy rainfalls last year enabled its hydroelectric dams to produce a record 24.9 billion kilowatt hours of power in 1979.

Montreal and Toronto are keen rivals in many respects, as two great cities are wont to be, and that rivalry extends to bridge as well. After a slow start, Montreal picked up steam to defeat Toronto in their intercity challenge match. This hand contributed significantly to their win.

Sitting South for Montreal was Joe Silver. Note that, despite his strong two-suiter, he did not feel obliged to do anything more than rebid two diamonds at his second turn—the odds of that ending the auction were remote. North's rebid of two no trump was enlightening—it showed all-round values, while denying three-card heart support. So Silver bid what he hoped to make, leaving his partner the option of converting to hearts if he so desired.

West got his side off to a good start by cashing the ace of clubs. After any other lead, declarer would have set up the spades with a ruffing finesse to take care of the club loser. Now it seemed that the slam was doomed to fail, for declarer would have to take the heart finesse, and a quick glance at the diagram is enough to show that the king is offside.

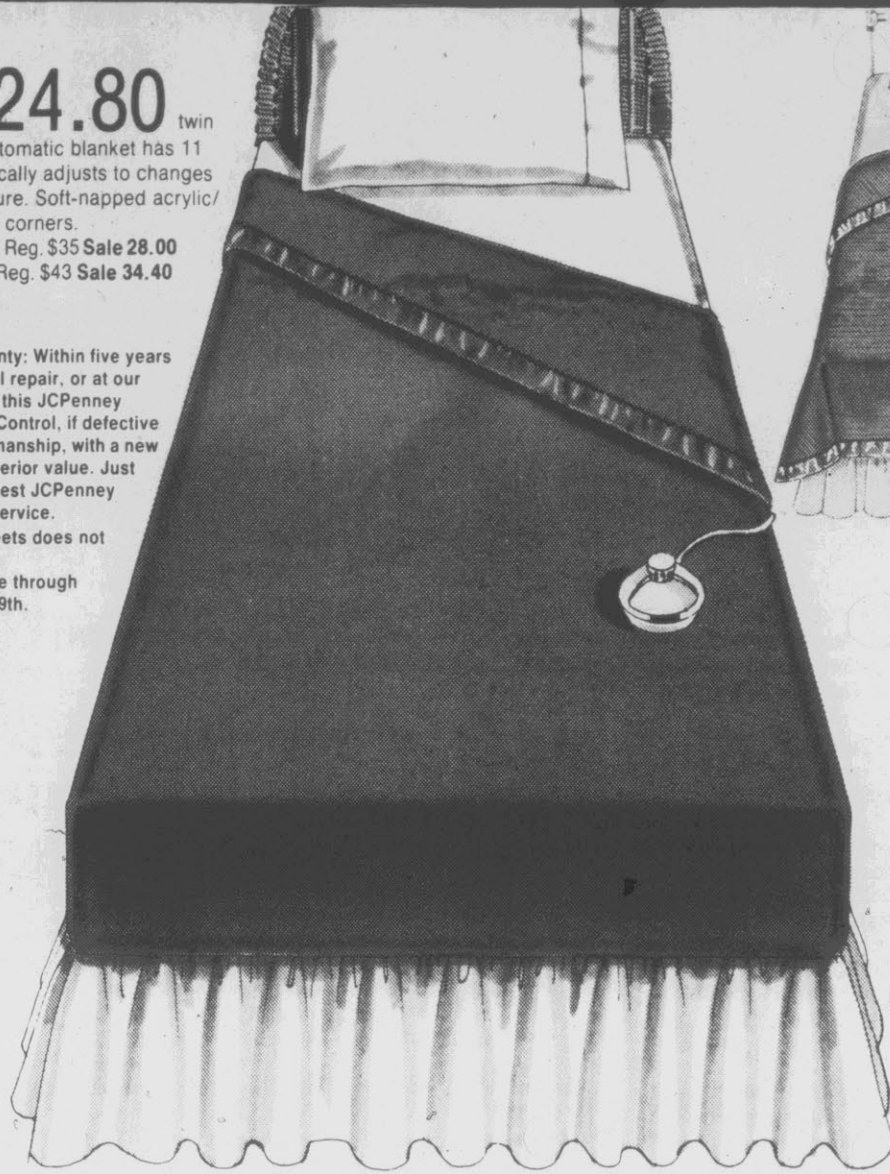

However, West chose to shift to a spade at trick two. Had he selected the ten of spades, all would have been well. Unfortunately for his side, he opted for the trey. Suddenly Silver saw a way to get home without resorting to the heart finesse. If he could get four heart television campaign. But Bush technicians believe Baker's feeble organization cannot bring his supporters to market; they think Baker, even with Bush in the Iowa Poll, could finish fourth or even fifth in the caucuses.

Second place in Iowa by Bush would help make him Reagan's top challenger, but leave him the formidable task of actually beating Reagan somewhere. In contrast, a Bush win here would change the world. "Just in case we lose," one Reaganite told us, "I'm glad John (Sears) will be in Des Moines caucus night to explain why it doesn't mean anything." In that event, he would also be called on to justify his famous strategy.

Reagan Winner Begin Classes In Straw Poll In Accounting

Ronald Reagan was the clear winner in a GOP presidential straw poll held at the Pitt County Republican Party's regular monthly meeting on Monday night.

Paralleling polls taken statewide and nationally, Reagan emerged the top man in the Pitt poll, receiving 35 percent of the votes cast.

George Bush came in second, with a total of 20 percent of votes cast, and Phillip Crane and John Connally tied for third with 15 percent each of the votes.

Howard Baker received ten percent and Gerald Ford, who is not a candidate, received five percent.

It is felt that this poll has particular significance as it was taken among the party regulars and tends to show the candidates' strengths within the Republican Party.

The accounting portion of the Certified Professional Secretary Review Courses will begin tonight at Pitt Community College.

Classes will meet Wednesday nights from seven to 10 o'clock.

This is the fourth in a series of six preparatory courses for the Certified Professional Secretary exam which will be administered in May. The course is open to interested persons.

Officers Named By Pitt YDA

The Young Democrats of Pitt County elected new officers Monday night.

Lee Walton of Greenville is president; Wayne Harris of Ayden, vice president; Nancy Barnhill of Greenville, secretary; Donald Hicks of Greenville, treasurer; Jackie Harris of Ayden, publicity chairman; and Danny McEnally of Greenville, parliamentarian.

The next scheduled meeting of the club is Feb. 11 at 7:30 p. m. at Jason's Restaurant. Interested persons are invited.

NEW PRESIDENT OF THE BOYS' CLUB . . . Cecil Mizelle (center) was installed Tuesday night as the new president of the Boys' Club of Pitt County. With Mizelle are Boys' Club ex-

Boys Club Meet

The Boy of the Year Award was presented to Brown by Virgil Jones, last year's award winner.

Three young boys — Mike Garris, Robert Ransom, and David Gordon, attended as representatives of the membership of the Boys' Club.

Outgoing president Buff Chalk installed the new slate of officers. The president for 1980 is Cecil Mizelle; vice president is Jerry Fulford, succeeding Mizelle in this position; Bill Freelove is treasurer, succeeding Ken Harrell; and Dell Little was named secretary. Mrs. Little succeeds Etsil Mason, who has been secretary for five successive years.

Three new members were named to the Board of Directors — Mrs. Little, Joe Dyer and Les Meekins.

Staff members at the Boys' Club — most of them new since last year, were recognized. These are executive director Chet Emerson; program director Leonard Morets; Gamesroom Director Jay Fields; physical director Mac Sligh; arts and crafts director John Quinn; learning center director Lisa Ellrod; assistant physical director Serloin Daniels; and the custodian, Raymond Swinson.

In a brief resume of achievements during 1979, Chalk remarked "it was a good year for the Boys' Club. We were successful in the completion of the fund raising drive of over $400,000 for our new facility, and Austin Britt is to be commended for being the person instrumental in this effort."

Chalk noted that Matthew Ward, a staff member until during the past year had taken a job with the East Carolina Workshop. "Matthew was a product of the Boys' Club, first as a member, then as an assistant at the club, and after that as a staff member for several years."

Other achievements touched on included an increase of 14 percent in funding from United Way; paying off the note to land on the 264 bypass; and the decision to acquire a new site adjacent to the middle school.

Chalk reported that construction plans for the new facility are now underway, with the firm of Miller and Davis having been awarded the contract to build a facility designed by architect Byron Franklin.

Dr. Thomas Brewer, Chancellor of East Carolina University, was guest speaker for the annual dinner. "My wife told me to be sure to thank the boys of Boys' Club for all their work in the beautification program," Dr. Brewer commented at the beginning of his brief speech.

He mentioned the 120 year history of Boys' Club in America and said "I do not know of any youth organization in this country that has done more to provide an opportunity for leadership potential to young people."

"The foundation of this is voluntary efforts, with hundreds of thousands throughout the country giving their time to help."

Dr. Brewer, recalling that his early years were influenced by the Great Depression, said that he could relate to the concept of concerned people willing to help struggling young people. "I remember people who wanted to help, who wanted me to achieve. I believe deeply there's no such thing as a self-made man."

He added that he feels it is "very important that people grow up with the opportunity to do the work they like to do . . . that learning could and should be fun. I cannot overstate the necessity for education, as skills are a prerequisite for achievement."

In all these things" Dr. Brewer said, the Boys' Club in Greenville is an excellent example of what can be achieved when people want to help others.

Feedstock Diet For An Industry

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (AP) — Cows, chickens and other farm animals have a diet of corn, soy beans, and other grains, called feedstocks. The chemical industry also has a diet. It consists of petrochemicals such as ethylene and propylene, which also are called feedstocks. Petrochemical feedstocks, derived in part from oil and natural gas, are the ingredients for plastic, rubber, pharmaceutical and other products. "Few people realize how important they are and how little a fraction they represent in total costs of finished consumer goods," said Leo H. Johnstone, president of Phillips Chemical. For the polyester fibers in a $17 man's shirt, the petrochemicals cost only 21 cents, he said.

"Slow-Motion Suicide"

As this old photograph indicates, smoking among children and teenagers is nothing new. But recent studies show that while smoking for most age groups in the United States is declining, more young people than ever are lighting up. A government report released last year showed that six million American teenagers and 100,000 children 12 and under smoke. The sharpest increase in recent years has been among teenage girls. Because medical evidence has linked tobacco smoking with cancer, heart disease and other serious health problems, a Cabinet official last year warned that smokers were committing "slow-motion suicide." This is National Education on Smoking and Health Week.

Says Kennedy Driving Faster Than Reported

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A Research Triangle Park scientist says a computer simulation he conducted shows Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's car was traveling faster than he reported when it ran off the Chapquiddick Island bridge in 1969.

Raymond McHenry, a specialist in the analysis of automobile accidents, said Tuesday he performed the simulation last month at the request of Reader's Digest magazine. His study placed the speed of Kennedy's car at between 30 miles per hour and 38 mph. Kennedy testified during an inquest into the death of Mary Jo Kopechne, who drowned in the accident, that he was going about 20 mph.

McHenry said he simulated the path of the car at various speeds, taking into account such factors as the type of car, the angle of inclination of the bridge, the height of the wooden curb, the distance the car traveled and the approximate position in which it came to rest under water.

"Since there is no reason for him to have been watching his speedometer, I can't really comment on whether there was any deliberate attempt to underestimate the speed," Kennedy's campaign manager, Stephen E. Smith, disputed the study Monday, citing political, but I have tried to get Kennedy's testimony, a Massachusetts Motor Vehicle registry inspector's determination that the vehicle speed was 20 mph to 22 mph, acceptance of Kennedy's testimony by the inquest judge and a private study supporting Kennedy's testimony.

College Leadership Meet Held Here

An orientation meeting representing four eastern North Carolina community and technical colleges was held on the campus of Pitt Community College this week.

Wayne Community College, James Sprunt Technical College, Roanoke-Chowan Technical College, and Pitt Community College were the institutions represented. Leading the meeting were Dr. Ken Rollins, Director of the Consortium of PCC; Dr. John Goode of Chapel Hill and Jim Ladd of Raleigh.

Dr. Rollins explained that the comprehensive MIS program will effectively address common data management problems of all four institutions while accommodating the specialized data needs of individual schools in the consortium.

Rollins outlined the first year objectives as ensuring that managers (presidents and deans) in the consortium schools understand the roles, purposes, capacities, operations and limitations of MIS, assessing current planning and organizational practices in the four school association, constructing a set of annual MIS operational objectives for each institution that will contribute to the institution's overall mission, and to develop a master action plan for accomplishing MIS operational objectives, improving management, and implementing MIS in each of the four schools.

Meetings of top managers and working within small groups are the methods planned for accomplishing these objectives, aired concerns over developing clear lines of communication and setting a program tempo that reflects both confidentiality and openness.

Four college presidents, Dr. Clyde Ervin of Wayne Community College; Dr. Carl Price of James Sprunt Technical College; Jack Young of Roanoke-Chowan Technical College and Dr. William E. Fulford of Pitt Community College, were among the 40 persons attending.

University's People-Mover System Now Working

By CHUCK DEBEVEC
MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (UPI) — The Personal Rapid Transit system now carries 18,000 passengers a day, around and between the University of West Virginia's two campuses. The PRT cars look like small driverless vans with large windows and rubber tires. Operated by a computer at a control center, they move automatically along 9 miles of elevated concrete guideway at about 20 miles an hour. The only noise is a loud hum from the cars' electric engines. They shimmy slightly because they are not on a "fixed rail" system.

People do get involved in the operation of Personal Rapid Transit. Technicians monitor the cars by display board on which each car is represented by a light. If a car malfunctions, riders can contact the control center on an intercom. The cars carry eight riders seated and some standing. A sensor in the floor prevents the car from starting and a buzzer sounds if the number of riders exceeds a pre-set weight limit. Doors open and close automatically for boarding and departure. There are five terminals, one in downtown Morgantown with the rest located around the WVU campuses. Since July 1, when the system reopened after an expansion, more than 647,000 miles have been logged by PRT. "We all consider it a viable transportation system," says PRT Director Robert Bates. "We want to get away from the idea it is experimental."

When the $120 million system first started, Bates said, "it got bad publicity and that hurt us. But I feel this is one of the things in this state that is advanced technology. I think it is something people could be proud of. It will probably be the most advanced system for some years. When it was being planned it was thought it would be outdated in two or three years. Still, here we are five or seven years since they started and I think we are still the most advanced system in the world." Bates said the computerized system was more reliable during the fall but "we are still having a few more problems than we would like."

The system averages about 10 breakdowns a week, each about seven minutes. Once in a while there is a 30-40 minute delay. The longest was 90-minutes when the system's computer jammed.

"When you tell someone caught out there for about 40 minutes that you are running 96 percent availability, he'll tell you the hell you are," Bates said. "As far as he is concerned, you are running zero."

The PRT fleet consists of 71 cars, approximately 50 of them in service at any one time, with the remainder undergoing maintenance.

"At first I thought that was high, but I understand that in bus fleets this runs about the same," Bates said.

The PRT is cheap to use — 25 cents a ride or $20 a semester — but not to operate. The budget for 1979 was approximately $2.2 million. That will increase by about $180,000 for next year as schedules are extended.

The PRT was constructed almost entirely by federal funds, except for matching funds from the university in the form of land acquisition and rights-of-way.

However, the operating budget comes about equally from revenue (each WVU student pays a PRT fee), the state and federal sources.

Funding may be harder to come by in fiscal 1980. Both federal and state aid are in question.

Bates said the system makes for better utilization of classrooms on the two WVU campuses by giving the university the capability of shuffling students back and forth conveniently.

That alone could possibly save the university the cost of erecting another classroom building during the life of the system, he said.

Another benefit is the system's use as an academic tool. Although no classes are structured around the PRT, some two dozen graduate students have based their theses on it and classes take tours of it periodically.

Bates said there have been no serious accidents involving moving cars. Only a few riders have been slightly injured by closing doors and falling down steps in the stations. He said it is a much safer mode of transportation than the automobile.

The rising cost of oil also will make the system more economical. While some gas is used to melt snow from the guideways, the PRT's primary fuel source is electricity.

"The cost of operating an automobile a year ago was about 25 cents a mile. Now that figure is closer to 35 cents and it will go up," he said. "That, of course, puts us in a better light."

Dr. Sany E.G. Elias, professor in the WVU School of Engineering and Benedum professor of transportation, started working on the PRT in the mid-1960s.

Ground was broken in 1971. After three years of testing, passenger service started in 1975.

Following an expansion completed last year, the system is now complete with the exception of a spur to the WVU Coliseum and engineering department buildings which has been blocked by environmentalists because it would have meant disturbing the University's arboretum.

Surgical Team Organized For Helping Third World Patients

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — Two Boone surgeons and the son of evangelist Billy Graham have teamed up to provide a service far removed from their normal work — surgical care for hospital patients in Third World countries.

In attempting such an effort, they and other surgeons they enlisted around the country encounter hazards ranging from dysentery to bombings.

The doctors have worked in places so primitive that, without electricity, surgery could be done performed between the hours of 6 and 10 a.m. when sunlight came in the window.

The medical missionary work comes about through World Medical Missions Inc., a non-profit organization founded and based in Boone. The organization finds mission hospitals needing surgeons for a short period and recruits doctors to travel there at their own expense.

Two Boone surgeons, Dr. Lowell Furman, 47, and his brother, Dr. Richard Furman, 39, founded the group two years ago. To run it, they hired William Franklin Graham III, 27, an Appalachian State University graduate.

Graham is the spitting image of his father. In fact, to talk to Franklin Graham seems exactly like it was to talk to Billy Graham 35 years ago.

"I think this is the ministry the Lord has given me to do," Franklin Graham says.

He has even traveled the world many times, just as his father. In the four months he spent out of the country last year he estimates he covered more than 100,000 miles. Some of the trips were hairy.

Last April, in Beirut, a bomb exploded in the building next to the one where he slept. He was unhurt. In Jordan, Graham was accused of being a spy for Israel and interrogated for 90 minutes until he satisfied his questioners he was who he said he was.

Probably the greatest hazard he and the doctors encounter, Graham said, "is flying in small planes over uncharted territory and without radio or navigational aids.

"At one landing strip in New Guinea, for instance, you're committed to a landing three miles out. The airport is at the end of a canyon and there's no turning around once you start in.

Graham leaves later this month for a visit to a border camp in Thailand. Staying behind at his home just outside Boone will be his wife, Jane, 29, and sons William Franklin Graham IV, 4, Roy, 2, and Edward, three months.

"Although a lot of doctors have been doing this work on their own," Graham said, "there was no one organization to coordinate the effort. That's what we do."

The Furmans, Dr. Rod Lovett of Boone, and other surgeons not only forfeit their income during the four-to-six weeks they are away, they also absorb the continuing overhead of their local offices and pay all expenses of their travels.

Their hours are long, their food may only be from deprived communities, they may sometimes wind up with dysentery, and occasionally, like many of their patients, they must sleep on grass mats.

But after laying down their scalpels, they pick up their Bibles and preach Christianity to the doctors, nurses and patients they work with.

Why do busy, successful surgeons leave their practice, give up relative luxury and a doctor's income to endure such hardships and dangers?

"The satisfaction in it," says Dr. Furman, "is bringing the Lord's work to these people by doing the surgery and medical work in the Lord's name, and letting the people know that."

So far, World Medical Missions has sent seven American surgeons to India, Nepal, Indonesia, Ecuador and Cambodian refugee camps in Thailand. Soon it will send surgeons to Kenya, Zaire and probably Guyana.

Between them, the Furmans have made five trips. Two other North Carolina surgeons, Lovett of Boone and Dr. John Wilson of Black Mountain, recently returned from Thailand.

Varied Patients In Animal Hospital

By MARLENE AIG Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A patient named Shazzbah is in the intensive care unit of an East Side medical center, her limbs in casts, eyes wide and sad. Even her tail is still.

"She's lucky," says the doctor reading her chart. "She fell from a 10th-floor window. Had she been a dog, she'd probably be dead."

Shazzbah, the cat, is recuperating at the Animal Medical Center in Manhattan from what is known as the "high-rise" syndrome: walking out a high-rise window into thin air.

Her companions in the ward include an epileptic German shepherd, a diabetic cat and a part Great Dane with stomach troubles.

"Almost any ailment a person can get, an animal can get," says Dr. Robert Cohen, a cardiologist at the Animal Center.

And can be treated for it in the same way, a fact most pet owners don't discover until their animal is too ill to be treated by a local vet.

The eight-story facility houses animals suffering from such "human" diseases as cancer, heart ailments, kidney failure, cataracts, skin diseases, broken limbs and trauma suffered in car accidents.

Specialists who care for them include internists, cardiologists, urologists, ophthalmologists, dermatologists, pathologists, orthopedic surgeons, radiologists, neurologists.

They use a special pharmacy and have the latest in modern medical equipment: respirators, electrocardiogram machines, anesthesia devices and blood analysis machines.

"Cats and dogs are so biologically close to people," explains Dr. Howard Kessler, founder of the small, more informal New York Veterinary Hospital. "There's no reason not to treat an animal if the owner is willing to go through with it."

Dogs and cats are the primary beneficiaries of advances in animal medicine, partly because they are used in human research.

New French Grape Has Boosted Eastern Wineries

By GEORGE LOBSENZ
LANCASTER, Pa. (UPI) — The winemakers of the Eastern United States have traditionally fought a long and mostly fruitless battle to win over some of the more cultured tastebuds in the status-conscious world of wine connoisseurs.

While pedigreed European wines have universally been acknowledged as the heavyweights of the industry and California wines have received some acclaim, many still think of Eastern wines as the choice of their kid brother or cheap uncle.

Now, however, Eastern vineyard owners feel they have a good chance of competing with the big boys because of a new genetically improved grape that combines the classic taste of the European grape with a newfound hardness.

The optimism generated by the new grape was very much in evidence at the recent Wineries International Eastern Wine Competition, where 82 vineyards from 22 states and Ontario entered their products for judging.

According to one of the judges, Robert Pool, a professor of viticulture at Cornell University, the vineyards of the East have always been noted for good champagne and fine dessert wines such as port and sherry.

But as for the prestige table wines, he said the domestic Eastern wines have always been regarded as a bit too fruity.

Now however, "More attention is now being paid to reducing that fruitiness, largely through the blending of the new French hybrids," Pool said.

"Domestic winemakers have been trying to grow traditional European varieties since colonial times and failed.

"Now they are having greater success because of the new French hybrid grape, which is apparently tough enough to withstand the extremes in weather here," he said.

"Twenty years from now, they're going to have wineries (in the East) that are as noted for excellence as those in California or Germany."

Pool and others say prize-winning wines are those that most closely approximate the "classic taste" of a particular variety of wine.

"A wine might be very interesting, but if it doesn't measure up to the standards for the particular category it is entered in, it's not going to be a winner," said judge Craig Goldwyn, wine critic for the Chicago Tribune.

"The classic tastes were reached over time because they were the tastes that sold the most wine," Pool said. "The classic taste developed because they resulted in the classic return of dollars to a classic little old French winemaker way back when."

Another judge, William Murray, wine writer for the Buffalo Evening News, said that judges, no matter what their particular background, generally share the same "mental ideal" of what each variety of wine should taste like.

"You get one judge from California, one from Australia and one from Germany and they'll agree on the classic taste for a certain type of wine," said Murray.

"There are these almost mystical standards — almost unbelievable — but discernible on a sensory level."

Although judges usually have much the same standards, they admit that a long day of sampling and sniffing can impair their judgement.

"We do have the problem of saturation," said Goldwyn. "It's like a football defense being on the field for eight years. One judge's tongue was actually black at the end of the day. We're human, not olfactory machines."

As for the contestants, different winemakers attached widely varying degrees of importance to the results of the judging.

"It's very important for us," said bearded Edward Salzberg, assistant winemaker for Canandaigua Wine Co. Inc., of Canandaigua, N.Y.

"Gold-winning wines are going to be much more marketable," he said. "No one is going to say that this is some hooch that only a Bowery bum would go for."

But for Gary Dross, owner of tiny Valley Vineyards in New York's Hudson River Valley, the competition is just an opportunity to get an impartial, informed opinion on his product.

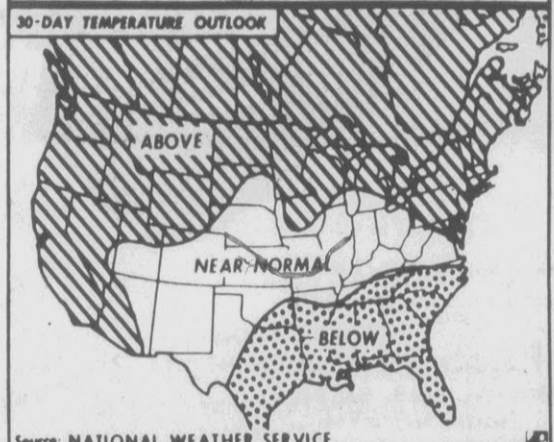

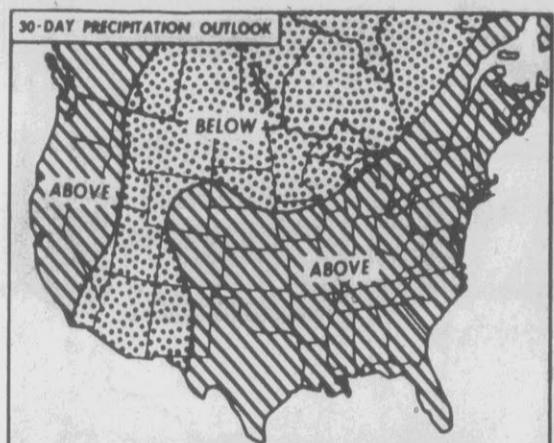

"I just wanted to know if there were any flaws, and apparently there weren't," said Dross, a former physical education teacher who referred to his 1½-year-old vineyard as "a hobby that got out of hand."

"Winning a medal just doesn't mean that much because marketing is not a big thing with me," he said. "I'm a ways away from marketing.

This thing doesn't pay for quite a while."

No Magic Wand At Fuel Plant

NEW YORK (UPI) — It to Charles G. Gullledge, president of Dynallectron Corp., the consortium which built the plant at the confluence of the Ohio and Big Sandy rivers.

The article quotes John E. Searingen, chairman of Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, as estimating it would require an investment of $200 billion over an 8-to-10-year period for the United States to produce enough synthetic fuel from coal to replace the 8 to 10 million barrels of oil imported from OPEC nations daily.

Preparing For Another Three-Mile Island Case

By H. JOSEF HEBERT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — On a Sunday morning in October, radiation leaked from the Fort St. Vrain nuclear plant northeast of Denver. Not until that night did Lt. Gov. Nancy Dick, the ranking official in the state at the time, learn about it — from a reporter.

Although the leak was confined to the plant and apparently posed no public danger, an angry Mrs. Dick said she should have been informed immediately.

She was not the only one left in the dark. It was mid-afternoon before any authorities were notified; plant workers said they tried to call the state health department in the morning but got no answer.

The incident in Colorado — which occurred seven months after a release of radiation at the Three Mile Island plant in Pennsylvania — demonstrates that emergency communications procedures are still far from clear at the nation's 70 commercial nuclear power plants.

Some nuclear critics say if a major reactor accident were to occur today, much of the confusion and chaos that marked the Three Mile Island incident might well be repeated.

For months, a special task force of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission has been working with officials in 40 states and hundreds of communities to develop new rules on emergency planning.

One NRC staff member calls it "a can of worms," with problems that will take time to work out.

State and local governments complain they will have to spend money they do not have. Some federal and state officials disagree on procedures for accident notification. Others argue that a number of proposed requirements, such as an ability to notify the public within 15 minutes, may be impossible.

And the new NRC requirement that a 10-mile area from all plants be ready for quick evacuation has been challenged in cases where there are large concentrations of people, such as the Indian Point reactors near New York City and the Zion units north of Chicago.

Last month, President Carter told the NRC and the Federal Emergency Preparedness Agency to complete a review of all such plans by June.

New NRC rules, expected to go into effect early in 1981, will require federal approval for all emergency plans. One version would require plants to shut down immediately if adequate plans are not approved by the NRC.

Before Three Mile Island, the NRC and the nuclear industry believed reactor design would prevent a major accident and only a "low population zone" of no more than three miles need be covered by an emergency plan.

The president's commission on Three Mile Island said that approach was useless because a serious accident would affect a much larger area. The proposed NRC rules expand emergency planning, including possible evacuation, to 10 miles from a plant, and some precautions would be required as far as 50 miles away.

According to a federal survey, no final plan in line with the proposed NRC rules has yet been submitted to Washington.

"Everybody is short in some respects," said Brian Grimes, head of the NRC task force, which has visited half the country's plant sites to examine plans.

"How do you plow through the morass and all the complexities and the unknown?" asked Hilary Whittaker, a planner with the National Governors' Association. "You don't just develop a plan overnight."

In some cases initial plans have quickly exposed shortcomings.

At an exercise last October at the Trojan nuclear plant near the Oregon-Washington border, about 40 miles northwest of Portland, state and local officials wanted to show coordination between the two states.

"Two hours into the exercise," recalled Grimes, "the governor of Oregon (Victor Atiyeh) had to tell a mock press conference he really didn't know what the state of Washington was doing."

Another problem is money. A federal study estimates that nationwide, states and communities may have to pay $10 million in 1980 to establish the projects, plus another $1.8 million a year in operating costs.

That would break down to about $360,000 per state, but twice that amount in states where plants are near big population areas, the study said.

Ten miles from the Indian Point plant in New York, Ron Goldfarb, the police chief of Ossining — pop. 20,000 — said he needs a new radio system to comply with proposed plans, but the town can't afford one.

Goldfarb said he could not communicate quickly with other towns in the emergency zone during an accident because radio frequencies differ among police departments.

Goldfarb questioned whether any adequate evacuation plan could be applied to Indian Point, where 350,000 people live within 10 miles. "These roads here can't even handle commuter traffic," he said.

Industry officials and federal emergency planners say evacuation is possible if enough time is allowed.

The NRC's proposed rules would provide some exemptions if "alternative" actions are taken, such as installing additional safety devices at the plant. Some plants that do not meet all the requirements may also continue operation if there are "compelling reasons" — such as the need for energy — to do the plans would be tested — "There's a lot of difference between a paper plan and the capability to operate."

John McCormell of the federal preparedness agency insisted

Army General Target Of Recruiting Inquiry

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The Army will conduct a preliminary inquiry into charges that Brig. Gen. F. Cecil Adams, former deputy commander of Army recruiting, condoned fraudulent enlistments.

The Charlotte News reported Tuesday that Sgt. Lillie Clay, assigned to the Charlotte recruiting district, has charged Adams with condoning fraudulent enlistments, dereliction of duty and conduct unbecoming an officer.

commander, who will decide whether the charges against Adams will be dismissed or if he will be court-martialed.

Such a hearing, they said, would be closed to the public.

As a result of the recruiting investigation, more than 300 Army recruiters have been suspended. More than half the 55 recruiters from the Charlotte district, which covers mainly central and western North Carolina, were relieved of duty.

The Army Recruiting Command, headquartered in Chicago, will hold an Article 32 hearing — the equivalent of a civilian grand jury investigation — later this week on the charges against McBride.

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State Insurance Commissioner John Ingram, anticipating the 1980 elections, is preparing to open a campaign headquarters. Now all he needs is an office to run for.

Ingram has not yet revealed his political plans, and his closest aides insist that Ingram has not made up his mind between four options — running for governor, lieutenant governor, the U.S. Senate or re-election.

Ingram has rented a six-room suite of offices at South Hills Shopping Center in Cary near Raleigh for use as a campaign headquarters, but even his landlord says he doesn't know what Ingram is up to.

"I tried to find out what he was running for and he wouldn't tell me," said David Martin, operator of the shopping complex. "We talked about lieutenant governor, governor and Senate. If he's made up his mind, he hasn't told me."

The office space is large, totaling some 1,400 square feet, Martin said, but no one is certain whether that means he intends to run for a larger elective office.

Ingram said Tuesday through a spokesman that he has not narrowed his choices.

"Several things are being kicked around but no firm decision has been made," said Oscar Smith, a deputy commissioner and Ingram aide. "He's weighing a lot of things, and his family weighs very, very heavily in whatever he decides to do."

Whatever he decides, Ingram must act before noon Feb. 4, the deadline for candidates to file with the state Board of Elections in order to qualify for the May 6 primary.

Ingram was an upset winner of the Democratic primary for the U.S. Senate in 1978 but eventually lost the general election to Republican Sen. Jesse Helms.

Since then he has become a major question mark hanging over campaign planning of other candidates and possible candidates in each of those four races.

Smith said Ingram has even discussed the possibility of filing as a candidate for two offices, for insurance commissioner and another statewide office. But Smith said he did not believe Ingram was seriously considering such a move.

If he runs for another office, a number of potential candidates for insurance commissioner are poised to enter that race. Two former Ingram aides, Roy Rabon of Raleigh and James Long of Burlington, and a current deputy commissioner, Kenneth Brown, are among them.

If Ingram ran in the Democratic primary for governor or lieutenant governor he would face at least two other major opponents and the possibility of a runoff primary — Gov. Jim Hunt and former Gov. Bob Scott are in the governor's race, and Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green and House Speaker Carl Stewart are in the lieutenant Clay is facing fraudulent enlistment charges as the result of a recruiting scandal that became public in Charlotte last May. He is part of a group of relieved recruiters from the Southeast who have organized to fight what they claim is an effort by the Army to make them scapegoats of the recruiting probe.

Adams, who is now assigned as a training commander at Fort Bragg, and two other senior recruiting officers are accused by a group of Charlotte district recruiters of allowing and encouraging cheating to meet enlistment quotas.

The two other senior officers charged with condoning the cheating are Col. Thomas E. McBride, who commanded the Army's Southeast Recruiting Region, and Col. Benjamin B. Beasley, who was McBride's deputy.

Sgt. 1st Class Marshall B. Jackson, a Charlotte recruiter who has been acquitted of enlistment fraud charges, filed the charges against McBride and Beasley.

The newspaper reported that Maj. Gen. Lucien E. Bolduc Jr., commander of Fort Jackson, S.C., will conduct the inquiry. Army officials said Bolduc will collect evidence and statements from witnesses, then report his findings to Gen. Donn Starry, Adams' present

Book Explains Tests Doctors Would Make

By HAROLD H. MARTIN PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — If you're feeling low and your doctor casually tells you to come in for a ballistocardiogram or an electronystagmograph, the very sound of those tongue-twisters might make you feel worse.

If your doctor fails or refuses to explain what you face, there is an alternative to chewing your nails or tossing and turning the night before the test. It's a book called "It's Your Body. Know What the Doctor Ordered," written by Dr. Truman G. Schnabel Jr., of the University of Pennsylvania Medical School, and Marion Laffey Fox, a registered nurse and freelance writer.

The authors explain their desire is to enlighten the patient facing tests, and to encourage him to ask questions about the necessity and meaning of them in the patient's own case.

"The impersonality of medicine and the obvious lack of caring by many personnel coupled with overspecialization and overmechanization have left many patients in a muddle," they said.

After a general description of testing and the reasons behind them, the book describes over 150 tests, the reasons for them, their procedures and the risks involved.

They deal with the nervous system; the eye; ear, nose and throat; glandular system; blood; the muscles and bones; the circulatory system; the respiratory system; the digestive system; the urinary system and the male and female reproductive systems.

There are also descriptions of various common parts such as liver, spleen, spinal cord and pancreas.

Take ballistocardiography. Although it sounds like a bullet through the heart, it is a simple test recording motion transmitted to the body by the pumping of the heart.

No preparation is required for the 15 to 30 minute test. The patient lies on a table suspended from the ceiling by wires. The movement of the table is recorded with each heartbeat and an electrocardiogram, the standard heart chart, is taken at the same time. There is no pain and no risk.

Electronystagmography, on the other hand, is a series of tests to check balance and gets the electro part from the three electrodes placed on the forehead to measure involuntary eye movements, called nystagmus.

The tests involve staring at a

There is no risk in the 60 to 90 minutes of testing, but some nausea, disorientation or light-headedness can be experienced with the water test.

Algerians Seeking 'Arabize' Country

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH Associated Press Writer ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — "Our Arab nation is still dominated by the French language, a sequel of the colonial system," said the fading, rain-soaked sign on Rue Didouche Mourad.

Alongside a small group of students huddled together in the cold drizzle, debating what to do next in their two-month-old strike protesting because French is still the favored language in Algeria's industry, government and armed forces.

The strike has been a good-natured movement, with only one reported case of violence. The students say they approve the government's policy of "Arabizing" the administration. But they complain that the policy is not being implemented quickly enough.

The strikers are among the 5 percent of Algeria's college students who take their education in Arabic — either because they want to or because the government orders them to — and then find there are few jobs waiting for them because only French is used in most government departments and nationalized industries. By contrast, most of the majority with a French-language education find jobs as soon as they graduate.

About 4,000 Arabic-language students, most of them working for degrees in law or literature, walked out of their classes in November in an attempt to force the government to speed up Arabization. The French-language students, most of whom are studying for scientific and technical degrees, were not affected.

Australian Camels Are Sold To The Middle East

RACING CAMELS — Noel Fullerton, introduces four-year-old dromedary "Lucy" and her two-month-old offspring, "Uncle Sam". They are members of a new breed of racing camels and will be shipped to their new owner, Gus Scaran of Wilmington, Del. (UPI Photo)

By BRIAN DEWHURST
ALICE SPRINGS, Australia (UPI) — When you consider Britain has sent tom-toms to the Nigeria and bird whistles to the Canary Islands, it is easy to believe that Australia exports camels to the Middle East.

In a land that imported camels helped to open up 160 years ago, they have not only survived but have improved on their species. Australian camels have built up an immunity over the years to most of the diseases that plague their Middle East cousins.

Some cattle ranches still use camels to pull supply wagons to desert camps.

The camels — a domesticated species which now run wild — are on the increase. About 30,000 of them wander Australia's deserts.

The first dromedary or one-humped camel was introduced to Australia from Afghanistan where tribesmen for centuries ran caravans for Persians, Greeks, Mongols, Russians and Indians across mountains and deserts in searing heat or bitter cold.

Without them, early explorers of Australia could not have paved the way for pioneers to settle the often hostile Australian outback.

The graceful "ship of the desert" survived on one bucket of water in 17 days, carrying loads of up to 1,000 pounds and eating nothing but thorny bushes garnished with bark.

The camel was invaluable as transportation when the single overland telephone line was looped over 36,000 telegraph poles in 1875, linking north and south Australia.

For a time, camel dealers had a market in the United States and about 900 Australian camels were exported to America between 1955 and 1970 to appear in Hollywood movies or at zoos. High freight charges put an end to this trade.

But Noel Fullerton, who runs a camel "spread" near Alice Springs hopes a new breed of racing camel he developed will see the Australian beast once again being shipped to the United States.

He already has one order from a U.S. buyer for an 8-foot tall dromedary named "Lucy" and her two-month-old offspring, "Uncle Sam."

Fullerton keeps his permanent herd to about 38 prime specimens but he handles shipments throughout the world from the reservoir of camels that roam wild around his homestead.

"Most of them go to zoos and wildlife parks, but there is a strong and growing interest among the Arab countries for the much healthier Australian camels, particularly the special breed of racing stock which can sustain speeds above 40 miles an hour for remarkable distances," Fullerton said.

"But exporting camels to the Middle East is still fraught with sensitive problems of pride and prejudice."

He said moves are afoot to circumvent that problem through artificial insemination of the Arab breed.

The high regard for Australian camels in the land of their forebears was illustrated in 1975 when the son of the first Afghan Jimmyddar tribesman to go to Australia, Sallay Mahomet, presented the king of Saudi Arabia with four prime racing specimens while on a visit to Mecca.

The camels, a gift from the then Australian Labor government, rated celebrity treatment on arrival.

The Body Can Speak As Convincingly As Words

By DALE SINGER
ST. LOUIS (UPI) — If you want to prove your body can speak just as convincingly as your voice, Ken Cooper has a test for you.

"Just for fun," he says, "go home and approach your wife with a wide smile and your arms outstretched, and scream into her face in an angry voice. 'I love you!'"

Cooper is a specialist in nonverbal communication, the language of the body. He analyzes how people convey their true feelings by the way they pose themselves — or try to cover up their true feelings the same way. Virtually everyone communicates in body language, Cooper said in an interview.

"Even the Ayatollah Khomeini is amazing in the type of things he does," Cooper said. "I call him the Persian Darth Vader, the epitome of all the evil guys who have ever lived."

"On his television interviews, he didn't even acknowledge that the interviewer was there. He had no direct eye contact. He has very sinister-looking eyebrows. He whispers, like Marlon Brando, which is very commanding. If you and I whispered like that, we'd bore everybody to death."

Cooper has written a book titled "Nonverbal Communication for Business Success" in which he applies his techniques to the business world. But body language can be used in any situation.

To help interpret what others are saying, Cooper developed a five-point body survey. It takes into account the position of someone's head, hands, legs, general posture and what Cooper defines as "the center," a point right at the breastbone. Cooper said the concept of the center indicates most vividly how people feel about themselves. A chest thrust out indicates aggression, he says, while a slouch suggests diffidence. A wide-open center, with hands spread apart, is a much more inviting attitude than a more negative, closed-off approach.

But interpreting nonverbal communication isn't as easy as going down a checklist and putting the pieces together. Cooper cautions against making broad generalizations based on one particular trait. He also says body language should be used to make matters more open, not to hide the truth.

"Controlling your body language or changing it to something you are not is almost impossible. I can do it, but I'm a professional. Most of us are not good enough actors to do it.

"My point is not to control your own body language, but to help you read others. When I lecture, I like to call on people before they raise their hands. I'll point to them and say, 'Do you have a question?' They'll be halfway through before they realize they didn't volunteer."

Cooper was trained as an engineer, but he got out of school during what he calls "the great engineering depression of the 1960s" and became a salesman for IBM. He heard a talk on body language, began to study it more fully, then decided to lecture full time.

Nonverbal communication affects all areas of life — business, the dating game, especially politics. Cooper has photographs of the 1976 debates between Jimmy Carter and Gerald Ford, showing a smiling Carter using open hand gestures while a no-nonsense Ford is gripping the podium with white-knuckled hands.

First impressions are important, Cooper said, and the right body language can help.

"If I walk into your office, I'll shake your hand, then step back and break the contact. I'll sit down, put my briefcase on the floor and adjust my suit while you can give me the once-over without my looking."

"Giving you the chance to check the press of my pants or the shine of my shoes at the beginning means I have a better chance of getting you to listen to what I say later on. This is especially important for women going into the office of a man."

Historic Island In East River

NEW YORK (AP) — Ward's Island in the East River originally belonged to the Manhattan Indians, who sold it to the Dutch in 1637. It was later seized by the British before becoming part of New York City following the American Revolution.

The island is named for a family who farmed the land in the late 1700s. It was subsequently used as an immigration center, a sanatorium for tubercular patients, and a prison camp. The city's first hospital to treat the mentally ill was built there after the Civil War.

The island is now the site of the Manhattan Psychiatric Center, which serves adult residents of Manhattan.

Warns Of Soil Depletion In Trying To Feed World

By CHARLES S. TAYLOR
PERRY, Ga. (UPI) — During the Great Depression, Arthur Burnett Kennerly tried to make a living growing beef in Texas and lost all his money. He got a job with the U.S. Department of Agriculture making loans to farmers in hard times made even harder by the coming of the Dust Bowl in 1934-37. Finally, he began writing about agriculture and over a period of 30 years turned out 2,500 articles for the Texas Farm and Ranch Magazine in Dallas and the Agriculture Extension Service at Texas A&M University. Kennerly believes it's a mistake for the United States to try to feed the rest of the world. "My little garden out there tells me it's the wrong thing to do," he said, gesturing toward his garden spot behind his mobile home in this Central Georgia city. "Our future national strength rests in our soils. That's what my garden tells me. I listen to it."

Now retired and living in Perry with his wife, the 75-year-old Kennerly regards his 4,000 square foot garden as a microcosm of the earth. The amount of organic matter in the soil, he said, is extremely important.

He says economic factors — especially the fuel shortage — will force the breaking up of 1,000-acre farms to 100-acre plots. "Our food will have to come from small farm operations. Your neighbors will be eating the surplus from the small gardens of their neighbors."

Down through history, 12 great civilizations have come and gone, Kennerly said and the one common factor in all of those lost cultures was that the soil played out. "My garden has taught me to look on agriculture as a labor of love, equivalent to raising children. And just as we have to replenish our population, we have to replenish our soil."

Kennerly recalled that during the Depression, it cost 9 cents to raise a pound of beef at a time when it was selling for four cents a pound. When he went into the Dust Bowl region that stretched from the south plains of Texas all the way to Nebraska, eggs cost 15 cents a dozen, milk 15 cents a gallon and honey 6 cents a pound.

"We would make loans to people to buy seeds for planting and they would eat them, instead," he said. "We tried to keep a sound loan policy. That meant they had to grow their own food."

At that time, 30 to 40 percent of Americans lived on farms but despite the hard times most people in the rural areas ate pretty well, he said. "I studied as many loan applications as I could and I found that some farmers were raising 83 percent of the food they ate."

"I was in a pretty good position to help those people weather the Depression. They were well fed but half naked. Now it seems that a lot of people are half naked by choice."

"Can we save our civilization and feed the world? No, we can't. But we can avoid catastrophe if we save our soil...maintain an average organic matter of 2 percent, cut down on soil erosion. We have to plow back all the organic matter we possibly can. We must grow cover crops. That means we can't tolerate soil erosion."

"We've also got to maintain our forests and replenish them. We cannot harvest in a year's time more than the annual growth. "This country should learn how to rebuild its soil and teach it to other countries. But first we've got to learn how."

Kennerly says one trend he sees in agriculture is a return to sun and animal power. The number of farm work animals has increased from three million a few years ago to 12 million today, he said, although some of these animals, particularly horses, are being sold to European markets for food.

"There's an old saying that civilizations begin and end with the plow. When the timber is cut, the minerals used up and the soil is worn out, families turn back to the soil for food production on small farms and gardens."

"Civilization in the United States appears to be following that trend when 33 million of its families are now growing their own food in modest to major amounts."

STRENGTH IN THE SOIL — Arthur Burnett Kennerly works in his garden doing some winter pruning. Kennerly, author of 2,500 articles on agriculture and soils, believes it's a mistake for the U.S. to try to feed the rest of the world. (UPI Photo)

International Symphony Brings Music Language

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER
NEW YORK (UPI) — A non-political organization located near the United Nations has set out to make the universal language of music really understandable to people around the world.

The International Symphony for World Peace, Inc., with its library at 3 Park Row in New York, hopes to achieve this goal by attracting musicians and composers from a multitude of nations.

"This is the first time anyone has tried to unify art," said William Zinn, founder and president of ISWP. "We hope to have every symphony orchestra in the world as members."

Zinn, a composer and concert musician, said the organization was created in 1977 to spread culture and help musical artisans by raising funds through concerts in as many countries as possible.

"In every concert, we try to give a variety of musical styles," Zinn said. "I took the music of 14 different countries and arranged it for violin and piano — Russian, Arabic, Chinese. We hope to perform it for heads of state around the world. In that way we can build chapters in each country."

Zinn said that in addition to maintaining its Peace Library, the ISWP manages its own orchestra in New York City and coordinates the work of its affiliate orchestras elsewhere, acts as an international booking agency for its artists and collects money for its previously approved charities and keeps a record of all money received from its benefit concerts throughout the world. Zinn noted that unlike the standard symphony, his musicians will perform more than classical music.

"We may have an African dance group, or a jazz band, or a Chinese orchestra or South American steel drums," he said. "We may have five of six cultures on each program. People like it."

Zinn said the ISWP Peace Library was conceived with the idea of uniting artists in one common cause. "humanitarianism through music."

It also will raise funds for humanitarian causes as well as for the artists; help to discover new writers, composers and performers; give them international exposure; improve international relationships, and try to promote better understanding among peoples by exposing them to music of different cultures.

"The ISWP and the Peace Library is a philanthropic non-profit, tax-exempt organization that is independent of political, religious, governmental, business and social pressures," Zinn said.

Zinn described its functions this way: — "It will store and catalog all music related to friendship, humanity and peace."

— "It will supply the master list annually to every nation in the world via the government missions. The individual countries will translate the master list and distribute copies to libraries in their respective countries.

— "If works cannot be submitted to the Peace Library due to physical limitations or unavailable copies, then the description of the work, the name and address of the composer, a brief biography of the composer and a history of the work as well as the future availability will be catalogued in our master file."

Zinn said membership fees begin at $10 for students. Regular membership is $25 while associate membership is set at $15. Group membership ranges from $50 for non-professionals to $250 for orchestras, ballet companies and other musical organizations. Individual orchestra chair fees are $25,000. All contributions to the ISWP will be tax-deductible and persons wishing to become sponsors or benefactors can obtain the needed information by writing to the ISWP.

Historic Papers Gathering Dust

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Officials at the New Haven Colony Historical Society say documents signed by early U.S. presidents and other historical figures have been found gathering dust.

Researchers hired to sort through material donated over the years found papers signed by Presidents George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Andrew Jackson, John Quincy Adams, and James Madison, patriots Thomas Paine and Benjamin Franklin and traitor Benedict Arnold, society officials said Monday.

The officials said the materials will be made available to qualified students of history to determine the documents' importance.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market gained more ground today, still riding the crest of a surge in gold and other natural-resources stocks. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 3.75 to 872.35 in the first half hour. Gainers outnumbered losers by a 3-2 margin in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. The price of gold continued its runaway rise today, reaching $765 an ounce at the morning fixing in London, up $81 from Tuesday's morning fixing. Other precious metals also have soared in price lately, in buying attributed to fears of political and currency instability growing out of the tension in Iran and Afghanistan. Those same concerns have prompted a rush to buy stocks of companies with commodity assets — gold or other metals, timber, and others. Among today's early volume leaders, Sunshine Mining was up 1/4 at 39 3/4; Phelps Dodge added 1/4 to 37, and Revere Copper & Brass gained 1/2 to 19. On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average climbed 5.03 to 868.60. Advances slightly outnumbered declines on the NYSE. Big Board volume totaled 52.32 million shares, against 52.93 million in the previous session. The NYSE's composite index rose .37 to 63.95. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 1.50 to 260.19.

Carolina Telephone Pays City And County $454,540 In Taxes

Carolina Telephone's 1979 tax payment to the city of Greenville and Pitt County amounted to $454,540.22, according to R. I. Flye, the company's district commercial and marketing manager here.

Floyd Little, Greenville tax collector, reported that Carolina Telephone's check for $137,642.79 makes it the largest taxpayer in the city.

The check for $316,897.43 paid to Pitt County makes the company the second largest tax payer in the county, according to W. R. Smith, Pitt tax collector. Smith noted that Burroughs Wellcome Co. paid the largest county check, totaling $526,343.29.

Flye pointed out that Carolina Telephone's total tax bill paid within Pitt County, including all city taxes, amounted to $479,419.29.

County and municipal 1979 taxes paid by the company in its 50-county operating area totaled more than $7.2 million, he added.

Flye said that the 1979 total is "more than we paid the previous year. The increase reflects the growth of the area and Carolina Telephone's continuing investment in buildings and equipment to help meet the high demand for telecommunication services."

Carolina Telephone's total operating bill for 1979, including all state and federal taxes, ac-ording to Flye, is expected to amount to nearly $45 million.

The total operating figure, he explained, does not include almost $5.9 million in three percent federal excise tax payments which were billed to telephone users by the company. The excise taxes are remitted to the federal government upon collection. Flye noted, mentioning that the excise tax drops by one percent each year until it is eliminated on Jan. 1, 1982.

City Police Captain On Probation, Suspended

Capt. A. G. Whitaker, in charge of the Greenville Police Department's uniformed division, has been suspended for conduct unbecoming an officer, and placed on probation, as captain, for six months, in connection with a December 10 incident, Chief Glenn Cannon said yesterday.

Cannon said two other members of the department have received written reprimands in connection with the case, which, the chief explained, came to his attention on January 11.

The chief explained that officer J. M. Nobles stopped a car driven by Whitaker on Hooker Road, about 5:30 p.m. December 10, after the vehicle allegedly failed to come to a complete stop before making a right turn off of Dickinson Avenue, on a red light.

After stopping the car and determining that Whitaker had allegedly been drinking, Nobles then called his supervisor, Lt. E. E. Laughinghouse, to the scene, Cannon said, and the captain was then driven home.

No charges were filed in connection with the incident and no report was made on the occurrence, the chief emphasized, adding that Whitaker was on vacation at the time, driving his personal car.

Cannon said Whitaker was suspended and placed on probation, effective Tuesday, following an investigation into the incident.

He said that Laughinghouse and Nobles were reprimanded for failing to follow departmental regulations by not properly reporting the occurrence.

Whitaker, with 19 years service with the department, was named captain in charge of uniformed personnel, in October 1978.

Laughinghouse joined the department in 1964, and was promoted to the rank of lieutenant in March 1976, while Nobles has been a police officer in Greenville since January 1972.

'Contaminated' Wells Are Idled

AZUSA, Calif. (AP) — State health officials say the 19 water wells shut down because of contamination by a suspected cancer-causing chemical may be "just the tip of the iceberg."

More wells serving 10 cities were ordered shut down Tuesday. The source of the contamination by the chemical trichloroethylene, an industrial cleaning solvent known as TCE, was not known.

"I'm afraid we're just seeing the tip of the iceberg," said Frank Baumann, an official of the state Department of Health Service in Sacramento. He said more than 100 wells in the San Gabriel Valley had been tested and another 100 were being checked.

Two Collisions Here Yesterday

An estimated $3,600 property damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated here yesterday by Greenville Police.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 6:06 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Hooker Road involving cars driven by Erlene Smith Pollard of Route 6, Greenville, and Timothy Atlas Outlaw of Route 1, Beaufort.

Damage was set at $2,000 to the Pollard car and $500 to the Outlaw vehicle by police, who charged Ms. Pollard with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety.

Cars driven by Raymond Earl Warren and Lester Ray Stocks collided about 11:05 p.m. at the intersection of Greene Street and Mumford Road.

Investigators, who listed no address for the drivers, set damage at $700 to the Warren car and $400 to the Stocks auto.

By the end of this century, the world's population — now 4.3 billion — is expected to increase by 2 billion, Salas said, adding there will be problems providing jobs and food.

Early Blitz Helps Rose Past Hunt

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Rose High School's Rampants streaked away to a big early lead, then had to hang on through the third and fourth periods as their play got a little slipshod. But the Rampants finally pulled away again at the end and gained a 74-57 victory over Wilson's James Hunt High School.

Hunt's girls hung on for a 56-54 win over the Rampettes in the preliminary, winning on a shot at the buzzer.

Hunt found the going tough in the first half, as Rose built up as much as an 11-point lead, taking advantage of an icy first 7:59 for the Warriors. Their only field goal of the first period came with one second left on the clock after they had made three free throws.

Rose, led by Donald House's ten points in the first quarter, rode out to a 14-5 lead during that first period, leading 14-3 before that final second basket.

While Hunt got the first basket of the second period, they were unable to put anything together, and Rose, after swapping several baskets, then put through nine in a row to run their lead out to 29-13 midway through the period. After a free throw by Hunt, the Rampants got another basket by House to take a 31-14 lead, a 17-point spread.

A late splurge by Hunt cut the margin to 12, but Rose took a 41-27 lead into intermission.

Rose built the lead despite some early turnovers, as Hunt had even more trouble handling the ball. The Warriors committed 15 turnovers in the first half, as compared to eight for the Rampants.

Hunt's first period shooting also got them in the hole, but they pulled out of it with an 8-12 second quarter.

Neither team was able to make any headway through the third frame, which again saw Hunt score first, but come no closer than 12. Rose ended the period with a 53-39 lead, the same spread it started with. That came despite nine turnovers during the period, thanks to 5 of 8 shooting by the Rampants and 5 of 20 shooting by the Warriors.

Both teams were troubled by turnovers in the final quarter, nine each way, but again Rose had the better shooting eye and was able to hold off the Warriors. Hunt twice cut the lead to nine points, 59-50, and again at 63-54, with 1:47 left. But after that, they began to push too hard, and Rose rode seven free throws and a couple of baskets out to the final 17-point margin. Overall, the Rampants hit on 30 of 53 shots, a fine 56.6 per cent. Hunt canned just 18 of 52, a chilly 34.6. The Warriors did hold a rebound edge, 44-37.

"Those big leads!" Rose coach Jim Brewington said afterwards. "Sometimes I just hate to get them. They're good to have, of course, but we get a little careless sometime. I think we handled ourselves when we got down into the clutch, however."

Brewington felt that the Rampants did a good job in getting the ball inside to the big men. "House had one of his better games. We needed this win. We've got a little momentum now and a win Friday (over Northeastern) will put us in real good shape."

The coach opined that the play of Tyrone Tucker, who has become a starter of late, has been a big factor in the recent winning streak of the Rampants. "He's going to score some and he's done a fine job with the rebounds, too. That's taken some of the pressure off House. I'm just tickled with the way he's playing."

Hunt kept the game close at the foul line, hitting 21 of 34 shots, whereas Rose made just 14 of 20.

"The type pressure defense we play, and going man-to-man is going to make us foul more, I know," Brewington said. "But we play best this way. Hunt has some good outside shooters and not playing a zone helped against them."

House finished the game with a season-high 31 points, and was the lone Rampant in double figures. Hunt's Willie Harris had 13 and Will Webb had 10.

In the girls' game, Rose jumped out to a 4-0 lead, but fell behind 6-4 before tying it up three straight times, as the first quarter ended in a 10-10 tie.

And, much to the continuing sorrow of coach Dennis Gibson, Warrior basket with five seconds left.

quarter, this one in the second frame, as Hunt romped out to a 12-point lead, 23-11 during the first five minutes of the period. Rose began to hit then, and cut the lead back to eight, 26-18 at intermission.

During the third period, Rose closed to within three at 33-30, but fell back by nine before trailing 43-37 at the end of the period.

The Rampettes scored the first seven points of the final quarter, taking a 44-43 lead, but they lost it, then got it back at 48-47 on a jumper by Sharon Williams with 4:38 left. Hunt regained the lead on two free throws, one each by Lisa Langley and Cynthia Tyson, and Williams fouled out at the 3:01 mark. Donna Cullipher closed the gap to one, then tied it up with a pair of free throws, 52-52 with 59 seconds left, but Theresa Taylor drove the baseline unguarded with 41 seconds left to return Hunt to the lead, 54-52. Cullipher again tied it up, 54-54, with 22 seconds to go, but lost a rebound out of bounds under the Taylor got the in-bounds play and shot, the ball spinning around the rim, out on the rim, then back down and through the nets as the horn sounded, giving the Warriors the win.

"That hurt," Gibson said. "We just had too many turnovers. We played fairly well, and I'm proud of the comeback, but we had the chance to win it and lost it."

Gibson added that Williams' fouling out made a big difference in the ball-handling ability of the Rampettes.

"Donna had another outstanding game for us," he added. "She played real well offensively, but had to lay back in the fourth period on defense after getting her fourth foul. She's starting to score now and that's helped us get more confidence in ourselves."

"Coming this close to the conference leader should help us too. We just should have won it."

Cullipher led the Rampettes with 26 points, while Williams had 16. Tyson had 23 while Taylor added 13 for Hunt.

Hunt's girls are now 5-1 in league play, while Rose is 1-5.

The Rose boys are 4-2, while Hunt's boys drop to 1-5.

Rose travels to Elizabeth City on Friday to face Northeastern.

Farmville's Reid Brothers Ink Grants-In-Aid With Pirates

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

FARMVILLE — Donald and Ronald Reid, star linebackers for Farmville Central the past three years, will wear the Purple and Gold of East Carolina University this fall.

The Reids, All-East the last two seasons, were signed to grants-in-aid Tuesday morning by ECU, thus filling one of three gaps ECU coach Ed Emory feels the Pirates must shore up.

"Our number one priority for 1980 is inside and outside linebackers and offensive and defensive linemen," Emory said. "Signing the Reids will help us in our four-man linebacker scheme because they can play either inside or outside linebacker."

Emory expects the Reids, who helped lead Farmville Central to an undefeated regular season this year, to make an immediate contribution to the Pirate program.

"They've got to," he said. "As active as they are, it would be impossible for them not to. They have a tremendous desire to get to the football."

"You can't be sure how fast they'll progress, but you know one-third of football is specialty teams and God knows they'll be good there.

"But the thing that impresses me most about them is that when they get to the ball carrier they try to put something on him that water won't wash off."

The Reids, for their part, do not expect to start in their first season, but, according to Donald, "I think we'll play a lot."

This past season Donald, the larger of the two at 6'0", 200 pounds, led the Eastern Carolina Conference in rushing and scoring. He rushed for 1,079 yards in 190 carries and scored 17 touchdowns and one point after.

Ronald, 5'11", 200 pounds, was the mainstay in the middle of the Farmville defense, leading the team in tackles, while also doubling as an offensive lineman.

ECU was not alone in its interest in the brothers. N.C. State, Elizabeth City State and Lenoir-Rhyne have also tried to recruit them.

But, as Donald said, ECU's persistence paid off.

"(East) Carolina kept talking to us all through the season. State waited until during the season and started talking to us later."

Jaguars Survive Pitt Rally

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer
FARMVILLE — Farmville Central coach Mike Terrell knew it was coming. After watching his squad build a 59-49 lead over North Pitt late in the final period, Terrell sensed the Panthers were readying for a run at his Jaguars.

Terrell was right. North Pitt outscored Farmville 10-1 in the last three minutes but free throws — one missed by Reginald Knight and one made by Farmville's Ronald Dixon — proved to be the difference as the Jaguars pulled out a pulsating 60-59 win Tuesday night.

"They made a tremendous come back, which I knew they would," Terrell said. "Usually, when you have a good team down it'll come back. I'd like to think that if we had been behind like that we would have responded the same way."

"I felt we helped them come back some, without play, but I'll take the win. I'll take a win by half a point, they all count the same in the standings."

The victory left Farmville 11-5 overall and 7-3 in the Eastern Carolina Conference. North Pitt is 8-7 overall and 5-4 in the league.

Ahead by 10 with three minutes to go, it appeared Farmville had the game wrapped up. That was before the Jaguars went to their stall. Over the next three minutes the Panthers allowed Farmville but one point — Dixon's free throw — while scoring 10.

Three free throws and a jumper by Knight, who finished with 13 for North Pitt, closed the gap to five, 59-54. Following a Farmville timeout, Ronnie House hit, pulling the Panthers even closer, at 59-56, with 50 seconds left.

Moments later, Farmville's Mike Baker missed a one-and-one opportunity, but Donald Reid, who led the Jaguars with 18 points, including 10-11 from the free throw line, grabbed the rebound.

Both teams traded turnovers before, with 30 seconds left, North Pitt committed a five-second violation. Trying to get the ball up court without any time running off, the Panthers allowed the ball to roll almost to halfcourt before picking it up. Before they did, the allotted five seconds had expired.

Still, Farmville could not ice the game. Knight hit again following a charging foul by Dennis Pitt, narrowing the deficit to 59-58 with 15 seconds left.

After another timeout by Terrell, Dixon made the front end of his one-and-one to give Farmville a two point lead, at 60-58.

Knight was fouled by Dixon on the ensuing trip down court, but could can but one of two free throws. On the second, the Panthers got the rebound but could get only a desperation shot off as the buzzer sounded.

"We did a super job as far as trying to get back into the game," Panther coach Cobbie Deans said. "I think in the last three or four minutes we had only one or two turnovers. It was just a tremendous comeback."

"We played smart defense against their stall. We played them close but didn't allow them to get by us."

For a while, it looked as if Farmville would be the team trying to make the comeback at the end.

The Panthers grabbed the early lead, behind the hot shooting of Melvin Simmons, who led North Pitt with 17 points, and the play of Milton Hardy, who chipped in 14. Paul Tucker added 10 points, mostly on long outside jumpers.

North Pitt, which hit 9-14 free throws compared to Farmville's 20-25, led, 12-10, at the end of the first quarter and 29-27 at the half, after watching Farmville rattle off the last six points of the period, thanks to two free throws by Dixon, two by Reid, the result of a technical foul on Deans, and a hook by Jeff Tyson.

"That was one of the keys to the game," Terrell said. "We had a six-point swing right there and were able to go in at the half down by only two."

Farmville, which had seen Simmons rip inside and out for 12 points, adjusted its defense at the break and held the Panther center to just five points in the second half. As a result, the Jaguars grabbed the lead early in the third quarter, a lead which they did not relinquish.

Ahead 44-33 with three minutes to go in the third period, Farmville saw its lead whittled to six, 49-43, going into the final quarter.

Coming out in the fourth period, Farmville hit six quick points to take a 55-45 lead. Moments later, the Jaguar moved up, 59-49, before going into its stall and watching as North Pitt's comeback down the stretch fell just short.

In the girls' game, Farmville's Dana Streeter scored 14 points and Pam Moye added 12 to lead the Jaguars to their eleventh win of the season in 15 starts 51-44. Farmville is 7-3 in the conference.

The Jaguars led at the end of the first quarter, 14-13, but saw the Pant-HERS, now 3-8 in the ECC, rally to take a 25-22 halftime bulge.

Farmville narrowed the gap to two, 36-34, going into the final quarter before grabbing the lead early in the period. North Pitt fought back, however, and was behind by only two midway through the quarter.

After graduating, he coached at Miami of Ohio, the U.S. Military Academy, San Jose State, Arizona and Purdue, before coming to Wake Forest two seasons ago.

Along the way, he learned a lot, such as how to pass the buck. "I'll leave any discussion of why Wake isn't playing ECU in football to (Deacon Athletic Director) Gene Hooks," Machovic told the sports club. Hooks will be in Greenville February 5th to speak at the club's luncheon.

Also along the way, Machovic learned how to coach. Coming off a 1-10 season his first year at Wake, the Deacons, under Machovic's guidance, surprised all of college football by going 8-3, a record which included wins over highly-regarded Georgia and Auburn.

"I think the Georgia game propelled us into the national spotlight as much or more than any of our other games," Machovic said. "I didn't know if we could stop them. But we did."

In all during 1979, the Deacons set or tied 31 school records and 10 ACC marks, a result, according to Machovic, of hard work and confidence.

"Last year — 365 days ago — they (Wake Forest's football team) weren't good enough football players to win like we did," Machovic said. "But instead of worrying about that they kept working and lifting weights. And it paid off."

"As we arrived, a radio reporter stuck a microphone under my nose and asked me how it felt to be one of the worst football teams in the country."

"Well, I answered him. I told him I didn't think we were one of the worst teams in the nation."

Not long after, THE story came out in a local newspaper. In part, the story said, "Dooley's Dogs were going to beat Machovic's Meatballs."

"I can take a lot of things, but one of them is not allowing someone to call my team a bunch of meatballs," Machovic said.

The rest, of course, is history, as Wake Forest thrust itself into the limelight with a stunning victory.

One week later, Wake nipped ECU before following that with a loss to N.C. State in the rain and then a win over Virginia Tech. Then came Auburn, a team noted for its offensive power.

Throughout the week the game was billed as an offensive extravaganza, and it was, but most of the offense in the first half belonged to Auburn, as the Tigers ran to a 38-20 lead at intermission.

The Deacons, however, did not give up, and came away with a 42-38 triumph.

"At halftime, I'm sure some people were thinking that the score might be in the 60s, and to tell the truth so did I," Machovic said. "I didn't know if we could stop them. But we did."

The Jaguars won seven of the 13 weights and added a draw in another. Of the Vike victories, three came on forfeits, two on pins, and one on a major decision. Southern added one forfeit, two superior and one major decision.

Gary Harris (121) and Earl Paige (169) continue unbeaten on the year, with 15-0 and 13-0 records, respectively.

Conley travels to Cary on Saturday. The Vikes are 10-1.

Southern Nash Gets Upset Win Over Vikes

STANHOPE — Dexter High poured in 16 points and Anthony Crumel added 15 to lead Southern Nash to an easy 55-43 win over D.H. Conley Tuesday night in an Eastern Carolina Conference basketball game.

158 and 167 before the Pirates came back to set it up by winning the final three weights.

The Pirates are idle until Saturday, January 26, when they travel to Boone to face hosting Appalachian State and Clemson University.

Plymouth jumped out to a 16-10 lead in the boys' game, but Roanoke came back to slice the lead to just two points at halftime, 33-31. The 'Skins then outthit Plymouth, 20-11, in the third period, charging out to a 51-42 lead. They outthit the Vikings, 16-5, in the final quarter, winning handily.

DePaul Just Holds On

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

It took Ray Meyer 37 years to get to the top...and one day to find out how tough it may be to stay there.

Never before ranked No.1 in the country until this week, Meyer's DePaul basketball team played its first game in that capacity Tuesday night and certainly didn't look like the top-ranked team.

Even Meyer said so. "We don't deserve to be No.1 in the country," said Meyer after a close-call 61-59 victory over Lamar. "The only good thing that happened was the score. All I told the players at the end of the game was 'congratulations. We did nothing.'"

"They don't take anybody seriously. Not Lamar, not me, not anybody. We need a defeat so badly. This close game will not wake us up. I thought we were starting to come around until this game. This club is trying to kill me. They're driving me nuts. We knew Lamar could play ball. They gave Kentucky a struggle and we didn't deserve to beat them. We should have lost this game."

The Blue Demons won for the 13th time this season, but just barely, with the help of Skip Dillard's 17-foot jump shot with three seconds left. Dillard's shot came after Lamar, with the help of a DePaul stall, had erased a nine-point Blue Demon lead in the final nine minutes.

"They just do what they feel like doing," said Meyer of his team. "We weren't supposed to go into a total stall. They were supposed to work the four-corner (offense) for an open shot. But instead they stood around and threw the ball away. We had one guy with three left feet trying to dribble to the basket, and then turn the ball over. Then they have a breakaway — and we told our guys not to foul, let them have the basket — but we give them the three-point play, anyhow. That's not smart basketball."

Eighth-ranked Notre Dame, the only other Top Twenty team in action Tuesday night, also had a tough time, edging Villanova 70-69 on Tracy Jackson's 25-foot shot at the buzzer.

Jackson wound up with 15 and nine rebounds and added two assists, two blocked shots and two steals in an all-around game.

Alternate Olympics Surprise

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — Olympic Committee session said he could "hardly believe" reports of a U.S. move to substitute an alternate site to the Moscow Summer Olympics.

"As far as I know, until now the United States government has not had any authority over the IOC," said Yuri Kartsev, a New York-based representative of Moscow's Olympic Organizing Committee.

"The Games don't belong to any country," Kartsev said. "It's an international event. Calls for a change of summer venues and a boycott of Moscow's Games to protest the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan go against the meaning of the 'unique international gathering' he told The Associated Press.

"The problems on which this idea of boycott is based are highly artificial, to my understanding — highly artificial," said Kartsev. "If you try to introduce the issue (of Afghanistan) to it, you will kill the Olympics as the only result."

Kartsev said he had been too busy to follow any of the United Nations debate that proceeded Monday's overwhelming vote against the Soviet invasion, but he defended his country's actions by citing its treaties with Afghanistan.

"The very same situation was in Vietnam," he said, referring to U.S. speeches at the U.N. defending this country's Southeast Asian policies.

Moscow is "95 to 97 percent" ready to stage the Summer Games and they imagine that such plans exist people from the countries of the old bloc com-

Dennard Missing

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Duke University basketball player Kenny Dennard has been admitted to Duke Medical Center for treatment of complications involving a bruised thigh.

The injury means Dennard will not play in Duke's Atlantic Coast Conference game tonight with Wake Forest.

Dennard, of King, N.C., was admitted Sunday night for treatment of the injury he received in practice on Jan. 4.

School officials said Tuesday that it's doubtful Dennard will play in the ACC game Saturday afternoon against North Carolina State.

Sonics Are Not Dead

By The Associated Press
"I've become real greedy," says Seattle's Dennis Johnson. "That (championship) ring looks real good on my finger."
Johnson, who helped the SuperSonics to the National Basketball Association title last season, wants a ring for the other hand.

"If we can win again this year, maybe people will have to appreciate our team more," he said after Seattle's 120-100 rout of the Washington Bullets. "We don't have a flamboyant anything. No big stars. What we try to do is be a team that goes out every night and works ... then the rewards will come at the end."

Johnson's work was rewarded Tuesday night. He scored 34 points while adding 10 assists, seven rebounds, two steals and two blocked shots for the Pacific Division leaders.

"I get turned on, whoever I'm playing," said Johnson, who recalled the Bullets' 139-134 double overtime victory over the Sonics Jan. 2. "I guess we had a vendetta against them for beating us in Seattle."

The Sonics got at least some revenge Tuesday night, outscoring the Bullets 12-2 to snap a 29-all tie, and never looked back. Gus Williams added 19 points for Seattle while Larry Wright had 20 points and Bob Dandridge 16 for the Bullets.

In the other NBA games, Cleveland downed New York 129-110, Kansas City bested Chicago 111-109, San Antonio nipped New Jersey 123-119, Phoenix recorded a 107-99 triumph over Denver, and Los Angeles beat Utah 112-99.

Cavaliers 129, Knicks 110
Cleveland got 35 points from Mike Mitchell and snapped a seven-game losing streak by handing New York its fifth consecutive loss.

Kenny Carr added 26 points, 16 of them in the second quarter, while Toby Knight had 28 points to lead the Knicks.

Bulls 111, Kings 109
David Greenwood sank a pair of free throws with 1:17 remaining to break a 105-105 tie and lead the Bulls to their second win in 12 tries over Midwest Division foes.

Otis Birdsong, of the Kings, led all scorers with 36 points. The Kings had trailed by as many as 15 points in the first half but pulled even at 86-86 after three quarters.

Ricky Sobers had 23 points for Chicago including the final margin of victory, two free throws.

Spurs 123, Nets 119
San Antonio got 37 points from George Gervin and Kevin Restani added 10 fourth-quarter points to trim the Nets. New Jersey got 30 points from Mike Newlin and 26 from Calvin Natt, but lost for the 18th time in 22 road games this season.

Suns 107, Nuggets 99
Walter Davis, held to seven points through three quarters, erupted for nine points including a game-clinching three-point play in the final minute, to help Phoenix hand Denver its sixth consecutive loss.

The Nuggets got 31 points from Dan Issel.

Lakers 112, Jazz 99
Though Earvin "Magic" Johnson was out with a groin injury, center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar collected 24 points as Los Angeles built lead as large as 26 points and blasted Utah. Terry Furlow had 24 for the Jazz.

USC Tops NCSW Women

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — South Carolina's women's basketball team placed four players in double figures on their way to a 78-67 win over seventh-ranked North Carolina State Tuesday night.

Eveyn Johnson and Cheryl Autry led the Lady Gamecocks with 16 points each. Sheila Foster added 14 and Suzanne Woolston pumped in 10.

Trudi Lacey led N.C. State with 18 points, while June Doby added 14 and Connie Rogers 12. South Carolina shot 39 percent for the game, but the Lady Wolfpack committed 31 turnovers, 20 in the first half when the Lady Gamecocks took a 34-30 lead.

"I'm so pleased with my bench I can hardly stand it," South Carolina Coach Pam Parsons said. "In some parts they played better than the starting five."

Charles Jewtraw won the first Winter Olympic gold medal for the United States, taking the 500-meter speed-skating event in 1924.

Unknown Quantity May Be Dangerous

LOS ANGELES (AP) — But for one toss of the ball, they might be facing Roger Staubach. Instead, they're preparing for Vince Ferragamo — almost an unknown quantity. And sometimes that kind of player can be the most dangerous.

"Preparing for him, definitely is a handicap for us because we don't really know him," Dennis Winston, the Pittsburgh Steelers' left linebacker, said Tuesday as the Steelers and the Los Angeles Rams began practicing for Sunday's Super Bowl game. "You can't know all you need to know about someone just from watching game films. You can't get a really good idea about who he is and what he can do," Winston said. "It's an advantage for us on the defense when we play against people like the Houston Oilers or Cleveland Browns. In games like that we have very few surprises."

Joe Greene, the Steelers' defensive tackle on the left side, agreed that films don't necessarily tell the whole story.

"You may see a team's tendencies and you may get an idea of their plan, of their strengths and weaknesses, but there's a lot more to it than that," Greene said.

"A lot of times the players have little idiosyncrasies that can be a telling factor, and sometimes the only way you can pick those up is face to face."

In that respect, the Steelers have seen precious little of the 25-year-old Ferragamo, who took over for injured Pat Haden midway in the 1979 season and guided the Rams to the National Conference West title and into the Super Bowl with playoff victories over Dallas and Tampa Bay.

In fact, they've seen him in person for only one play, an 8-yard pass as a momentary replacement for banged-up Haden in Los Angeles' 10-7 victory during the 1978 season.

"They've only seen me in eight games on film — not that much — and they don't really know me from past experiences, so in that regard maybe they do have some questions as to what I can and can't do or will or won't do in a game," Ferragamo said. "So, sure, that could be a benefit to me and our ballclub.

"But, then again, I haven't played against them, either. Just that little flat pass when Pat got shook up and came out and I went in and one play later I was out again."

Not everyone on the Steelers, of course, is concerned about the lack of first-hand knowledge about Ferragamo.

"He's been in there for the last six games and I'm studying those films so much I'll know him inside and out," said John Banaszak, the right defensive end. "We'll be ready for him. We've seen enough of him that we know what he likes to do."

"I don't care who's out there, we're gonna get him," right defensive tackle Steve Furness said with just the hint of a smile. "We like guys who stay in the pocket and he's one of those guys, he's not that much of a threat to run the ball."

And Winston added: "He may not be much of a runner, but I think he's going to be running around a lot on Sunday. I think he's going to be doing some scrambling."

Almost since the moment the Rams upset Dallas on the road to the Super Bowl, they've been assailed as National Football League second-raters who somehow made it to the NFC championship, then blanked Tampa Bay to get to this contest. It has even been suggested that a Pittsburgh victory over the Rams — a foregone conclusion, according to some observers — would be less prestigious than one over the Cowboys.

"Dallas has a better history, a better track record. They're supposedly a more glamorous ballclub," Greene admitted. But with a voice rising slightly in emotion, he continued: "The Cowboys ain't the best team in the NFC this year. So we don't want to play them. We want to play the best. And the best is ain't they?"

the LA Rams. "I'm tired of answering that damned question," he snapped with an air of finality. "The Rams are the best team in the NFC, you hear? They're here, ain't they?"

ALL ABOUT CAMPBELL

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oiler Coach Bum Phillips is a great favorite with fans of the team and frequently has off-field discussions with them — usually about star running back Earl Campbell.

"I think basically they agree with the way I've used Earl in our running game," Phillips said.

Phillips said he was pleased with Campbell's performance in the Super Bowl. "He's been in there for the last six games and I'm studying those films so much I'll know him inside and out," Phillips said.

Geothermal Power-Use Is Growing

By CY RYAN
 RENO, Nev. (UPI) — Weldon Upton and some of his neighbors aren't worried about the rising prices of heating fuel. It is costing Upton less than $5 a month to keep his 2,000 square foot home at a constant, comfortable 72 degrees this winter. And his family can use all the hot water it wants. Upton's house sits atop a geothermal field. He has spent $5,000 since 1973 to install a system to tap the underground hot water for heating and domestic needs. Upton's house is one example of the potential use of geothermal energy in the West, where most of the underground steam and hot water are located.

Millions of dollars are being spent for drilling across the West these days and geothermal energy is already being used to raise catfish in Idaho, grow seedling pine trees in Oregon and dehydrate vegetables in Nevada.

The Department of Energy is being asked for money for a demonstration project in Nevada in which geothermal energy would be used for making alcohol from beets or potato waste. The eventual product would be gasohol.

The Geysers Power Plant in Sonoma and Lake counties in California is the world's largest facility using underground steam to spin its turbine generators. It produces enough electricity to nearly fill the needs of a city the size of San Francisco, 90 miles to the south.

Other geothermal power plants are on the drawing boards. Sierra Pacific Power Co. of Reno and four other western utilities are planning a 50 megawatt plant in Nevada.

"Before it was more economical to buy oil," says David Anderson, executive director to the non-profit Geothermal Resources Council based in Davis, Calif. "Now geothermal is easily competitive with coal. But in some respects coal looks better to utilities because there are specific reservoirs. And utilities can write contracts for a constant supply."

He estimates utilities could use geothermal energy to supply 20 million homes across the West by the year 2,000.

The future for geothermal resources appears brightest, not for power plants, but in heating homes and businesses.

Upton's home in southwest Reno employs a relatively simple system. Water from the municipal system flows down copper tubing 265 feet under the ground where it is heated to 185 degrees and then pumped back to the home by a small car-type generator. The temperature drops by 20 degrees by the time it reaches the home and flows through the heating system.

One benefit is that Upton uses clear municipal water rather than highly mineralized underground water which tends to corrode pipes in the home heating system.

And he uses all the municipal water he wants for a flat $19 a month.

"I can have all the showers and sinks on and not run out of hot water," he says. Upton, a certified public accountant for the state, estimates he has recovered his costs within five years. At present, he says, it would cost more than $100 a month to oil heat his home.

There are worries, however, about such things as earthquakes or fast development in Reno which is drawing down the water table. A severe earthquake could change the underground formation which could affect his system. And if the water line drops, Upton says he will just have to drill deeper.

Among other geothermal projects:

—A $15 million plan in Boise, Idaho, to heat public and private buildings, provide drinking water and warm water to grow crops and fish.

—Klamath Falls, Ore., heats schools, hospitals and businesses with geothermal.

—Geothermal Food Processors Inc., dehydrates onions at Brady Hot Springs in western Nevada cheaper than can be done where the crop is grown in the central valleys of California.

WHEN YOU SNEEZE
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — Medical research shows that when a person sneezes between 2,000 and 5,000 atomized droplets are expelled at a speed of more than 100 feet a second, traveling as far as six feet.

According to beef cattle specialists in nine southern states, less than 30 percent of beef cattle females are on a controlled seasonal breeding program.

These specialists further state that summer-born calves can be expected to be around 70 pounds lighter at weaning than those born at other times. Some studies have shown that nearly 40 percent of the calves from herds on a year-round calving system are born in the summer. These figures are an indication of economic loss resulting from summer-born calves.

There are several reasons for following a controlled, seasonal calving program. Culling and selection of replacements based on production records can be better accomplished.

To make meaningful comparisons among brood cows, calves must be born within a 90 to 120 day period. Accurate comparisons between cows cannot be made if calving season is too extended. Acceptable performance implies not only weaning weight but also that a cow produce a calf each 12 months.

Better care can be given cows at calving time. Percent calf crop is the major economic factor in a cow-calf operation and care at calving time affects percent calf crop. It is very difficult to properly check cows which are on a year-round calving season.

Brood cow nutrition can be improved. Winter feeding of the brood cow is the most expensive phase of cow-calf production. If some of the cows are dry and some are nursing calves during the winter, the herd cannot be fed in the most efficient manner.

Since cows nursing calves require at least 50 percent more protein than dry cows, neither group can be properly fed if they are running together.

Herd health programs and other management practices such as weaning, dehorning, castration, vaccination worming, and identification are more likely to be done with less labor if all these jobs can be done at one time.

Calves are approximately the same age and size and brood cows are in the same stage of the reproductive cycle with a controlled calving season.

Pregnancy testing and culling open cows can greatly influence percent calf crop and herd profits. A controlled calving season can make pregnancy testing a feasible management practice.

Marketing or stocker-finisher operations are improved. A calf crop which is uniform in size and age can be marketed to a better advantage. Large uniform groups of calves will usually bring several cents per pound more than those sold individually. Also they fit into on-the-farm stocker or finisher program.

A short breeding season and therefore a short calving season of 90 or less days is recommended. The calving period which is most desirable for a specific operation will be influenced by feed supply, labor, marketing or use of calves and weather. A cattleman should consider these factors and any others which may relate to his operation in deciding on his calving season.

Accidents Due Overconfidence

CHICAGO (UPI) — Overconfidence is a major factor in winter driving accidents, says an executive of the Safe Winter Driving League.

Ross G. Wilcox says most motorists, for example, drive far too fast on snow-packed and icy roads for the traction that actually is available. Wilcox says tests by the National Safety Council's Committee on Winter Driving Habits have shown braking distance at a speed of only 20 mph can be as much as 260 feet, or about 15 car lengths. "... under normal, dry pavement conditions, a car can stop in about 150 feet from a speed of 55 mph," he adds.

Wilcox suggests drivers test road conditions for slipperiness by trying the brakes or gunning the engine momentarily to see if the wheels skid or spin. If the car tends to skid or fishtail, "it's time to slow way down and do all maneuvering — steering, braking and accelerating — with a delicate touch."

WE ARE NOT AMUSED BASINGSTOKE, England (AP) — Teen-ager David Low's tap dance had a crowd cheering, but the impromptu act didn't impress the two policemen who joined the show.

He was dancing on the roof of their police car.

Not Yet Cured, But Surviving His Schizophrenia

By RICK SMITH
Hickory Daily-Record
HICKORY, N.C. (AP) — When the voices spoke, David listened.

The messages came often. A secret code flashed into his brain by television and radio, by license plate numbers and seemingly innocent small talk. Only David knew their significance.

The code told David he was a holy man who could save the world; that his family and friends plotted against him; that he must die and the only choice was between the razor or the shotgun.

First, there was depression, now an off-again, on-again mental roller coaster ride between soaring exhilaration, mind-numbing despair and paranoid delusions masquerading as revelations.

Then, in 1974, David stole a glance at his medical records at Catawba Memorial Hospital. Diagnosis: chronic undifferentiated schizophrenia.

It's been nearly a decade since the depression struck, while David was a student at Chapel Hill. The messages and delusions began two years later.

David hasn't conquered schizophrenia, but he has survived and regained his sanity.

The same tortuous ordeal awaits many others.

David is not this man's real name. He asked that it not be used, noting that, "for a lot of people, there's still a real stigma attached to mental illness."

As a teen-ager, David's future was promising. A native of Alexander County, he graduated from high school in the late 1960s with an A average. He was accepted at UNC-Chapel Hill, but began having academic problems and dropped out as a sophomore.

He returned to his home and got a job. Depression hit, but he thought it was related to his problems at college. Eventually, he was struck by paranoia, feeling that his family and his friends at work in Hickory were all against him.

church and be a nice guy," David said.

The paranoia was followed by the delusions. His mental pendulum swung from euphoria to despair without warning.

"One day I'd feel I was the next best thing to Jesus. The next day... I was the lowest thing there was," he said.

He became worse, finally fleeing from his "enemies" — his family, friends, acquaintances. He found general labor jobs in Charlotte, Missouri, Maine and Florida.

But "I couldn't work and I'd go back home. Sometimes I'd work for several months. Since I was living at home, my parents would feed me and send me to the doctor," David recalled.

The delusions, paranoia and depression finally overwhelmed him.

"I thought about considering suicide. I always hoped I'd get better, but it seemed like it would never end," he said.

Finally, his doctors decided to try electroshock treatments, 10 of them in three weeks. For the first time in four years, his condition improved.

"They put me under and I woke up with a headache afterwards. The depression sort of lifted, but as far as the delusions went, they didn't help that," he said.

The messages continued until 1976, when he was treated by an orthomolecular psychiatrist at a Long Island hospital. While the causes of schizophrenia are hotly debated, this psychiatrist believed the disease is primarily a biochemical malfunction of the body.

"The tests found out I have a high histamine level. I started taking antihistamines and vitamins B3, B6, E and C. I also started taking Stellazine, a tranquilizer. It helps with the delusions."

"Also, I met a patient from Alaska who had the same problems I did, the messages on the license plates and all. That helped," he said.

The messages stopped.

David knows he may never be cured. However, his delusions and paranoia have not reappeared.

"They say as long as I take my medicine and vitamins, I shouldn't have them anymore," David said.

David is still living at home. He hopes his battle with madness is over.

Have Timber Price Data

Decisions about selling timber could be easier for Pitt County citizens in the future because of a new source of price information.

Pitt County Agricultural Extension Agent Sam Uzzell said that timber price information has been added to the Extension Teletip. Teletip is the statewide, tollfree telephone answering system of the N.C. Agricultural Extension Service.

"Until now, the average person had no way of keeping up with timber prices," Uzzell said. "People can get price information on cattle, cotton, corn, and most other farm commodities, but not timber. As a result, the average, small landowner has no way of knowing what timber prices are doing or if he or she is being offered a fair price."

According to Uzzell, getting the timber price information is simple. Call 1-800-662-7301 and tell the Teletip operator the type of timber prices needed. Nine recorded messages are available, three for each region of the state.

The messages for the mountains are as follows: 2680, pine prices; 2681, poplar and soft hardwood prices; 2682, oak and mixed hardwood prices.

The messages for the Piedmont are as follows: 2683, pine prices; 2684, poplar and soft hardwood prices; 2685, oak and mixed hardwood prices.

The messages for the Coastal Plain are as follows: 2686, pine prices; 2687, poplar and soft hardwood prices; 2688, oak and mixed hardwood prices.

All prices quoted are for standing timber. Each message gives a price range and an average price for the type timber quoted. It also gives price trend and indicates the strength of the market.

The messages are updated the tenth of every month.

COST-OF-LIVING

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — When an executive turns down a transfer one of the major reasons is the high cost of living in the new area, according to a recent survey sponsored by Merrill Lynch Relocation Management Inc.

The executive relocation service firm says 43 percent of 603 firms surveyed reported employees turned down transfer opportunities because of high living costs.

American Arts Center In Paris Changes Image

By DENISE CLOSE
PARIS (AP) — After nearly 50 years giving tea parties for wealthy children whose parents wanted them kept out of Parisian cafes, the American Center for Students and Artists is challenging its students with an avant-garde, multidisciplinary program, according to Board chairman Judith Pizar.

With the aid of a Rockefeller Foundation grant of $375,000, the center is developing a fledgling artist-in-residence program for painters, sculptors, and performers in dance and choreography, drama and music.

courses in American English to its arts program. The artistic courses will remain basically at the same level but improve in quality, according to Brigitte Delattre, the center's spokesman. Courses can be taken to earn credits at other institutions, but the center does not offer its own diplomas. Mrs. Pizar said more than 75 visiting artists — in painting, sculpture, dance and choreography, drama and music — were scheduled for long or short-term stays during the coming year. They include Henry Smith and the Solaris Dance Company, musician Tom Johnson, artist Sheila Hicks and dance-drama performers Greg Light and Leslie Gifford.

In addition to the new programs, extensive improvements are being made to the center, built in 1931 and now partly obsolete, for its new activities. Architects Hugh Hardy, an American, and Jean-Pierre Jouve of France are enlarging the already-spacious halls and sun-washed wooden dance floors, and plan new, underground, ultramodern theaters and studios.

Mrs. Pizar, the driving force behind these improvements, was director of music at the Brooklyn Academy in New York until she came to the center in 1977. She is also raising funds for the projects.

She and executive director Henry Pillsbury, with their 12 other staff members, are enthusiastic about the avant-garde emphasis in the cultural renaissance of the center.

ing which students watch themselves, or professional actors emit agonized screams or hysterical laughter or show other emotions, to evaluate performance quality.

"We want something that's alive today, something that will help the Franco-American future," said Mrs. Pizar. In addition to exhibitions, shows, workshops and classes by mainly American artists and performers, "we also hope to see interchange with French-speaking students and artists from the Third World, for whom Paris is a principal place of study and work."

The groundwork for her ideas wasn't set until after 1960. Until then, the center continued social activities for well-to-do French and English-speaking students in Paris, with a brief interruption during World War II when armies occupied the building. Entertainment included piano recitals, dances and tea parties.

In 1960, however, the cultural and educational emphasis began to shift. After the French student uprisings of May 1968, a more sophisticated artistic focus developed. Studios were added, an indoor swimming pool was covered by a dance floor and higher caliber artists were sought.

Mobile Home Maker Is Sued

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The attorney general's office filed a consumer protection suit Tuesday against a Texas mobile home manufacturer.

The suit asks for a court-ordered freeze on the assets of Centurion Homes Corp. Inc. of Shelby and its parent company, Centurion International Inc. of Waco, Texas, until it honors warranties on its products.

Attorney General Rufus Edmisten accused the firms of leaving buyers and dealers with unresolved claims following the closing of their Cleveland County plant last spring.

He said a number of North Carolinians have complained that mobile homes sold through the firms had leaking roofs, warped windows, sagging floors and sinks that would not drain.

"We believe Paris in the '80s the American Center for Students and Artists will be THE place for art, and new artistic activities will be the ties," Ms. Delattre said.

Prices Jump

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Drivers in the Carolinas are seeing the largest jump in gasoline prices this month than in any other month on record, according to the Carolina Motor Club.

The Charlotte-based club said Tuesday that prices have gone up an average of 7 cents in January, surpassing the 5.3 cent increase which set a record in July 1978.

The club said this month's increase can be traced to wholesale price increases announced last month by most major refineries.

After surveying 192 service stations in North Carolina and South Carolina, the motor club listed these average prices for a gallon of gas at full-service stations:

North Carolina: $1.13 for premium, $1.11 for unleaded and $1.08 for regular.

South Carolina: $1.14 for premium, $1.12 for unleaded and $1.08 for regular.

Full-service prices averaged about 3 cents a gallon more than self service prices in the survey.

The single highest price for gas found in the survey was $1.22 for a gallon of full-service premium unleaded at a station in Durham.

The survey did not detect significant shortages of gas, but the motor club reported a slight reduction in Saturday operating hours for some stations.

Plan Evaluate Refinery Impact

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state will hire experts to evaluate the design of plans for a Brunswick County oil refinery and to study the possible impart of oil transportation and storage, the state Marine Science Council learned Tuesday. The Brunswick Energy Corp. has proposed building a 150,000-barrel-a-day refinery on the Brunswick River. Before it can start construction, the company must obtain a number of permits.

Anne Taylor of the state Natural and Community Resources Department told the council, "A major concern to us is that North Carolina is not expert in oil refineries nor should we be expected to be."

But, she said the state has a large stake in the company's plans and because it must make permit decisions, the state will solicit the opinion of outside experts.

Mrs. Taylor, director of NCR's Office of Regulatory Relations, said the consultants will conduct a year-long study of both environmental and economic conditions.

Money for the consultants will come from grants made by the Coastal Plains Resources Commission and the Coastal Energy Impact Program. Each grant is for $30,000.

Mrs. Taylor also told the council she expects the state will get more involved with plans by Carolina Refining and Distributing Co. to build a 30,000-barrel-a-day refinery in Carteret County.

In other business, J.C. Jones, director of the state Office of Marine Affairs, said the state expects word this week about a $35 million grant from the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration. The grant would fund a manned underwater research project to be based at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington.

Complaint Is Familiar To Kremlin

By ROBERT PARRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's complaints that Soviet military actions in Afghanistan are an "extremely serious threat to the peace" must have a familiar ring at the Kremlin.

Over the past two decades, Soviet leaders have used almost the same words to condemn the United States.

From the Bay of Pigs invasion to the U.S. incursion into Cambodia, Soviet leaders have chastised, castigated and condemned the United States for military moves contrary to Soviet interests.

But those occasionally harsh words were little more than ripples in the overall calming of U.S.-Soviet relations during the years that saw the Cold War give way to "peaceful co-existence" and then to detente.

In 1961, then-Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev accused the United States of backing an invasion of Cuba by Cuban exiles and vowed to give Fidel Castro's new government "all necessary assistance."

Commenting on the Bay of Pigs invasion, Khrushchev said the Soviets were "sincerely interested in a relaxation of international tensions, but if others aggravate it, we shall reply in full measure."

In 1965, the Soviets lashed out at the United States for two actions: the sending of U.S. troops into the Dominican Republic to prevent a feared communist takeover and the massive U.S. military buildup in Vietnam.

Soviet President Anastas I. Mikoyan said the U.S. intervention in the Dominican Republic was intended to "frighten the peoples of Latin America who are seeking a road toward an independent development."

The Soviets also denounced the U.S. move into the Caribbean nation as a violation of the United Nations charter, a charge similar to Carter's complaint against the Soviets for their intervention in Afghanistan.

However, the escalation of the Vietnam war in 1965 brought even sterner Soviet condemnations and threats.

Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin warned that "every new aggressive act in Vietnam undertaken by the Americans...will be followed by an appropriate rebuff from the communist camp."

When President Richard M. Nixon sent U.S. troops into Cambodia in 1970, the Soviets termed the action "a direct aggression against a member of the United Nations."

The verbal exchanges, however, never led to direct U.S.-Soviet conflict as the ensuing period saw the relaxing of tensions between the two countries.

Despite their differences, Washington and Moscow signed nuclear test ban treaties, agreed to the first strategic arms limitation treaty and increased cultural and economic ties.

The latest round of threats and denunciations, however, has led some observers to believe that the United States and the Soviet Union may be forsaking detente and reverting to the deep-seated antagonisms of a new Cold War.

Attorney Fees Are $183,089

WOODLAND, Calif. (AP) — The University of California has been ordered to pay $183,089 in fees to four attorneys who represented Allan Bakke in a landmark reverse discrimination suit.

After the U.S. Supreme Court's 5-4 decision in 1978 in favor of Bakke, the university agreed to pay Bakke's attorney fees, but had contested the amount. Superior Court Judge James Roche set the amount Monday.

Bakke, a white man who claimed UC excluded him because a designated number of medical school spots were reserved for minorities, was admitted in September 1978.

'Live From Studio 8H' Adds To Network's Love Toward Quality

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Prime time, one week ago tonight, PBS and NBC checked in with the evening's choice of ferings: a made-for-TV science fiction movie and a concert by the New York Philharmonic. Routine enough, except that PBS had the sci-fi movie and the classical music came from NBC. Conductor Zubin Mehta's lead-in was "Diff'rent Strokes."

— that is to say, back in the days before TV and TV ratings. There is no scheduled second edition of "Studio 8H," but NBC's Mike Weinblatt promised that more are forthcoming and that the network would feature at least one evening of quality programs aimed at a smaller audience every two weeks.

Others falling in that category will come in a planned series of contemporary plays, to be televised live when possible, from regional theaters around the country beginning in April. NBC also announced last week that it planned a daily nighttime news program, to be called "Today at Midday"

(which will start in August) and a series of prime time children's programs to begin next year.

Presumably, Weinblatt's removal on Monday as NBC's chief programmer (he was named head of a new NBC division) won't change plans for NBC's drive toward quality. At least part of the reason for the good stuff is a desire by the network to enhance its image. It is also possible that Silverman himself is in the shiny-image market. He's been wearing the Lord of Schlock mantle long enough to be weary of it.

It was a rather remarkable turn in the course of network events. NBC President Fred Silverman has been talking about bringing substance and quality to the network, about balancing the Lobos and B.J.s and all the other stuff that comprises prime time. Trouble was, substance and quality existed largely in the realm of talk; "Hello, Larry" and the like, that's what made it to the tube.

Now, as evidenced by last Wednesday's "Live From Studio 8H," Fred Silverman is ready to make his network the industry leader in a sense that has nothing to do with ratings points. Indeed, the "Live From Studio 8H" series isn't likely to pay off in Nielsen numbers.

Which is precisely the point. "Studio 8H" concerts aren't for everybody, probably not even for most people. But when a commercial network sets aside, for even one evening a month, the lowest-common-denominator theory of programming, that is an act to be lauded.

The first "Studio 8H" program was a tribute to Arturo Toscanini, who used to conduct the NBC Orchestra back in the days when classical concerts were a regular feature on NBC
