Cluster Basis Policy For City Elementary Schools

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer
Beginning in September 1980, elementary schools in Greenville will be structured on a cluster basis with children in kindergarten through grade three attending four schools, and children in grades four through six attending two schools.

This new organizational structure for the schools, which will replace the current kindergarten through grade six structure in the six elementary schools, is the result of the unanimous adoption by members of the Greenville Board of Education on Monday night of Plan D, one of eight alternative reorganizational plans that have been under consideration in the reorganization of elementary schools in order to achieve a better racial balance.

Under the adopted Plan D, students attending kindergarten through the third grade will be going to Eastern, Elmhurst, Sadie Sautler and Third Street Schools. Those in the fourth through the sixth grades will be attending South Greenville and Wahl-Coates.

Carter Message

Will Pay For Strong U.S.

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says Americans "must pay whatever price is required to remain the strongest nation in the world."

In a written State of the Union message delivered to Congress Monday, the president took a hard line toward the Soviets and placed a U.S. military buildup first among American goals for the 1980s.

"The Soviet Union has built a war machine far beyond any reasonable requirements for their own defense and security," Carter said.

To counter it, he said, defense spending will be boosted 3 percent, after accounting for inflation, and alliances will be strengthened. Plans for an increase of that size had been announced previously. More measures will be outlined by Carter in his State of the Union speech Wednesday night.

In another part of his speech, Carter appeared to be willing to extend an olive branch to Iran if the Americans hostages being held there are freed unharmed.

He said the administration was prepared to develop "a new and mutually beneficial relationship" with the regime of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini if the hostages are released.

"We have no basic quarrel with the nation, the revolution or the people of Iran," the president said. "The threat to them comes not from American policy but from Soviet actions in the region."

At the same time, Carter reaffirmed his abhorrence at the Nov. 4 seizure of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran and insisted that "our patience is not unlimited and our concern for the well-being of our fellow citizens grows every day."

Condemning the Soviets in Cold War terms, the president accused the Kremlin of "ruthless extermination" of the last government in Afghanistan and said they were now within striking distance of the Indian Ocean and the Persian Gulf.

In response, Carter said, the United States is prepared to "confront the threats they may pose to our security."

The president did not directly mention the prospect of going to war, but a senior administration official told reporters at the White House that "when we say we are prepared to use force to

City Council Will Ask Transit Funds

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The City Council, following a public hearing Monday, authorized the filing of an application with the N.C. Department of Transportation for $337,503 in Section 18 transit assistance for fiscal year 1980.

The application, recommended by the Public Transportation Commission, involves $208,204 in non-operating assistance funds for capital and administrative expenses, and an operating assistance project of $129,299 to reimburse the city for one-half its net transit expenses for the Oct. 1, 1979 to Sept. 30, 1980 period.

City Manager Ed Wyatt explained that the non-operating assistance segment would be funded on an 80 percent federal, ten percent state, and ten percent local basis. Under the formula, the Section 18 funds will amount to $166,563, while the state share will be $20,820 and the city portion will amount to $20,821.

The operating assistance application, Wyatt reported, will involve $64,649 in Section 18 funds and $64,650 as the city's share.

Total Section 18 funds involved amount to $231,212. Wyatt said, while the state share is $20,820 and the city portion of the overall project is $85,471.

According to Wyatt, the non-operating assistance includes capital purchases, notably one transit bus, a service vehicle for the division and needed related equipment, as well transit administrative expenses. The city manager noted that the possibility of adding a fourth route to the transit schedule is under consideration and should be looked at carefully.

Council member Judy Greene said that she did not want to see the city become so dependent upon transit grant money in operating the local system that the level of service would be hurt if grant assistance ran out.

Mayor Don McGlohon mentioned that if services are expanded more and more, contingent upon grant assistance, a problem situation could arise if, at some point, the assistance was not available.

Wyatt said that the city officials need to discuss the

Iowa Leans To Bush, Carter

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer
DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — George Bush led Ronald Reagan in returns from the Iowa precinct caucuses and claimed an upset victory that gave a solid boost to his campaign for the 1980 Republican presidential nomination.

Meanwhile, Jimmy Carter renewed his political love affair with Iowa Monday night and thrashed Sen. Edward M. Kennedy in their first official confrontation.

With results from a non-binding straw poll of Republicans showing him leading Reagan, Bush said he would leave today for New Hampshire "and we'll do better there."

The New Hampshire primary on Feb. 26, is the next major test of the campaign.

With 1,985 of the Republican precincts reporting, Bush held a 30,436 to 24,792 lead over Reagan in the straw poll.

Sen. Howard H. Baker was third with 12,908; John B. Connally, 9,024; Rep. Philip Crane, 6,578; Rep. John Anderson, 3,806; Sen. Bob Dole, 2,478.

Both the Democratic and Republican vote counting will be resumed Wednesday.

The Republican caucuses chose delegates to represent their precincts at county conventions but the delegates were not bound to candidates by Monday's outcome.

Results from 2,442 of the 2,531 Democratic precincts gave Carter 59 percent, Kennedy 31 percent, uncommitted 10 percent. The Democratic party in Iowa did not release vote totals, just percentages.

Based on those figures, Iowa's 50 delegates to the Democratic National Convention in August would be divided 29 for Carter, 15 for Kennedy and 5 uncommitted. One is yet to be awarded.

From the earliest Monday night returns, Carter jumped to a two-to-one lead over Kennedy and held it throughout the night.

It was Iowa that gave

Carter his boost out of obscurity in the 1976 race and as soon as his 1980 victory was assured, the president issued a statement at the White House saying, "I deeply appreciate the vote of confidence from Iowa Democrats. Their expression of support is particularly welcome in these difficult times."

Kennedy met with supporters at his campaign headquarters in Washington and vowed to remain in the race.

"The reasons I run for president still remain," said the Massachusetts senator, who once led Carter two to one in public opinion polls, a margin that reversed in recent weeks.

"Tonight, according to my count," Kennedy told supporters, "President Carter needs 1,643 (delegates) more to win the nomination. We need 1,657 and we're going to get it."

Reagan was in California and had no immediate comment on the Iowa results.

SAME NAME

I have the same name as another woman in this county who has written hundreds of dollars worth of bad checks. At least that's what I'm told practically every time I try to cash a check in a store. I even get sidelong glances from clerks in some stores when I'm not even trying to cash a check if they learn my name. The name is the very same, because I don't have a middle name. What can I do? It's very embarrassing.

Hotline talked to your banker, Jerry Powell. He said First State Bank will be glad to give you a disclaimer letter if you wish and the card of one or more persons likely to be in at the bank during working hours who may be called for verification of your having sufficient funds in checking.

He suggested that you might consider adopting a middle name or initial and having your name changed to that degree legally. This is often done, he said, since duplication of names is a very common thing.

We also talked to John Baldwin, operator of the Checkguard service here. He said his firm is careful to publish every address given by anyone listed with Checkguard as being the giver of a worthless check. The providing of your own correct address should be all that is needed, he said he believes. Like Powell, he said that duplication, and even multi-duplication, of names in an area is common and even to be expected. "We've found, though," he said, "that use of addresses almost always eliminates any problem."

Lists of names of persons convicted or having waived charges admitting guilt in presentation of worthless checks are provided to local businesses by Checkguard on a subscriber basis, he said. Names are dropped from the periodically distributed lists after six months, unless they have reappeared on other court rosters, of course.

We asked if he would give you some kind of disclaimer, also, to carry in your purse. He said he did not see this as necessary, since addresses are so conscientiously used by his firm.

He checked his records and found that the person you allege is a habitual giver of bad checks is not, at the present time, on the Checkguard list.

Readers having other suggestions to help solve your problem are invited to relate them to Hotline, 752-1336.

Rountree Will Run For Judge

H. Horton Rountree, a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives from Pitt County for 14 years, said today that he will be a candidate for the District Court Judge seat now held by Judge Charles H. Whedbee, in the May primary election.

Whedbee, chief District Court Judge of the Pitt-Craven-Carteret-Pamlico County district, announced last week that he would not seek re-election to the post.

Greene Street Bridge Closed For Reinforcing

The North Carolina Department of Transportation closed the Greene Street Bridge across the Tar River to traffic yesterday morning to begin work to reinforce the structure.

C. L. Haislip, assistant highway division engineer for maintenance, said, "the cap showed signs of shifting, lessening the support," of the roadway north of the span crossing the river, during a routine inspection on Sunday. "We're now driving additional pilings to reinforce this particular point on the bridge...and are hoping to complete the work by Friday," Haislip explained.

"It's not a case of choosing to do it," the engineer said. "We had to do it."

He said the repair work involves, "cutting holes through the deck (roadway) to drive steel piling." The piling, Haislip continued, will be cut off underneath the deck, and steel girders placed under the roadway for support.

Two pilings, 60 feet long, were driven yesterday, while two or three more are expected to be driven today. A total of six piling will be used.

"Once the work is completed, the bridge will be as strong as it ever was," Haislip emphasized.

Haislip noted that no estimate of the costs involved in making the repairs has been made.

Now, A Book For Men Who Don't Know Everything

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Health Editor

All American men, believe it or not, do not know an overly large amount about birds and bees, contraception, abortion, physical health, fathering, rape, aging and assorted related topics.

And their reputation as great lovers and lovers who triumph over all may even be undeserved.

And many women who see things only from their point of view may be surprised to learn there are male as well as female shrinking violets, male wall flowers, and males who rate a dunce's cap in affairs of the heart.

There also are men who love men and need to know more about men loving men.

Sam Julty, who makes those points, tries to help all men, in general, and some in particular. He takes apart stereotypes and strips away macho sex-role trappings in a book all about men's bodies and, interestingly, "men's selves."

The body is one thing. And the self? That's something else, the way Julty breaks things up between the covers of his "complete guide to the health and well-being of men's bodies, minds, and spirits."

The words "bodies" and "selves" in his title may remind you of the title of "Our Bodies, Ourselves," the women's liberation movement book from the Boston Women's Health Book Collective.

It's supposed to, Julty said he's attempted with his book, "Men's Bodies Men's Selves" (Dell, $9.95) to do for males somewhat like what the Collective did for females.

Asked if by using the title he's not ripping off the women's health collective book, Julty replied:

"In no way do I see this as a ripoff. I feel I am adding another dimension, the dimension of men, to this new kind of literature that tells people about their minds, bodies and behavior."

"Thanks must go to the Boston Women's Health Collective, who wrote 'Our Bodies, Ourselves'. I have never met any of them, but I felt their presence while I was at work on this book."

"Up to this decade that type of information — in 'Our Bodies, Ourselves' — was in the hands of doctors and other professionals not eager or happy to share it."

From a mission point of view, Julty said he feels it is time for men to understand what is behind male activity and behavior.

"The whole question of masculinity has not been broached until now," he said.

"We men need to take a good look at ourselves. There are reasons we die 10 years ahead of women. Many of us are not happy in the space that we are in and we do not know why."

Julty, a figure in the national men's movement, previously wrote "MSP" (Male Sexual Performance). He said it, too, contributed knowledge to men who wanted to know more about themselves.

"As men became interested in the women's movement," he said, "they started being very jealous. And they began to transpose in their minds what women were saying about women — their bodies and other things," he said.

"My hope is that this book, at the very least, will make anyone who reads it more aware of the roles men are forced to play, and, at the very most, inspire them to make changes."

"I sense we are at a point in history when more and more men are realizing that our culture has reduced the broad path on which our lives should travel to a catwalk lined with rules and roles of approved masculine behavior."

Julty, who earned a master's in social work at the State University of New York, New Paltz, takes issue with what he described as one of the biggest myths of the women's health movement.

He said the myth is that male doctors treat men patients kinder than women patients.

"That is a myth circulated around by women," he said. "I feel men are just as 'bleeped' over by doctors as women are."

Julty feels men should be aware that responsibility for contraception should not fall on women alone.

"An unwanted pregnancy is disturbing to a man, too," he said. "I do not want any woman to believe that men are not affected by an unwanted pregnancy."

"Men are." Julty hopes his book will make single men especially more aware of their responsibility in contraception.

"The single man with his broad sexual lifestyle always assumes the woman is taking care of this," he said.

"Some changes are called for."

Tears, Diamonds Don't Buy This Girl

By Abigail Van Buren

1980 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Our very pretty and bright 18-year-old daughter (I'll call her Nancy) graduated from high school last May. She decided to stay home and work for a year before going to college. Nancy met a 29-year-old professional man about six months ago and they started dating. (I'll call him Paul.) They never actually went steady, but Paul gave her a big rush.

Well, for Christmas, Paul surprised Nancy with a beautiful one-karat diamond ring. It came as a big shock to Nancy because she wasn't even considering marriage with Paul. In fact, she told me she hated to kiss him because he had a bad case of halitosis!

When Nancy saw the ring, she told Paul she didn't think she should accept it, but he started to cry, so she kept it because she didn't want to hurt his feelings.

Nancy is sure she doesn't want to be engaged, but every time she tries to return the ring, Paul cries, and talks her into keeping it.

Nancy is very tender-hearted and Paul is very persuasive, so do you think it would be alright if Nancy's father returned the ring to Paul?

POST-CHRISTMAS DILEMMA

In exploring "Sex and Consequences," Julty also talks about abortion.

"Visit any abortion clinic and speak to or watch the men accompanying the women," he said. "See how supportive the man is."

Why might a man favor an abortion, rather than being supportive of the woman through a pregnancy and accepting fatherhood?

Julty cited many reasons, including these:

—"He may not be emotionally ready for fatherhood."

—"He may be too young to provide much help in raising the child."

—"He may not be able to take time off from his job to take care of the child."

—"He may not want to disrupt his education by taking a job to support the child."

Julty also has words about men who are against an abortion.

"The reason many men give for feeling they have a right to veto an abortion the woman may want is that 'the baby is 50 percent mine,'" he said.

"There is no question that it takes a man's sperm cell to fertilize a woman's egg cell to make an embryo."

"But while the fertilized egg is 50 percent his, the body in which that fertilized egg will grow is 100 percent hers."

"Pregnancy, labor, and delivery are processes only she will experience."

"Therefore, we will always own just 49 percent of the stock and face the possibility of being outvoted."

In the section on contraception, Julty reminds his male readers that the oral contraceptive pill taken by more than 7 million American women has side effects — and the search continues for a safer one.

He also gets into the search for new approaches to male contraception.

He said these include:

1. Stopping production of sperm cells in the testes with synthetic male hormones. Dr. Alvin Paulsen at the University of Washington School of Medicine was giving male volunteers oral doses of danazol, 600 mg per day, and injecting them with testosterone enanthate once a month. At the end of the six-month study the subjects had their sperm counts reduced from the normal 40 to 60 million per cubic centimeter of seminal fluid to 5 million. It

DEAR DILEMMA: No! Nancy should return the ring to Paul herself, and if he cries, he cries. It's time Paul learned that he can't buy whatever he wants with tears and diamonds. And Nancy needs to learn that people who "give in" in order to avoid hurting someone's feelings, usually end up hurting themselves. (P.S. About Paul's halitosis: Someone should tell him.)

DEAR ABBY: My husband shows a charming, well-mannered personality to others, but not to me.

When we have a social engagement, he always has to be the first one there, so he gets ready early and starts nagging me to hurry up.

If I'm five minutes late, as soon as we get into the car he turns the radio on as loud as he can, then he starts shouting that I had all day to get ready, I'm never on time and he's sick of always being late on account of me, etc. By the time we get to the party, I'm in no mood to have a good time.

It's getting so I hate to go anywhere with him. Is there a solution?

INSTANT HEADACHE

DEAR HEADACHE: The solution is obvious. Get your act together on time and you'll have no problem. And if you can't do that, tell "antsy-pants" to go ahead without you, that you'll take a cab.

DEAR ABBY: I have a 76-year-old aunt to whom I have been very close ever since I was a child. She has a heart condition and is making preparations for her last will and testament.

My problem is that I am not mentioned in her will. She has a lot of property and assets. She came right out and told me that she was leaving everything to her two sons and their children! I know this for a fact because she has discussed it with me.

Abby, since my aunt moved to Florida, I have taken her out to dinner faithfully, once a week. (She is a widow.) I have also taken her shopping every weekend. I handle all her paper work, pay her bills, cash her checks and even look after her home. (I wallpapered her home.) I could not have been more attentive to my own mother.

I am very hurt to think that she is not leaving me a dime. Should I tell her how I feel, or keep quiet? And, by the way, Abby, whom do you think she asked to drive her to the lawyer about her will? You're right — me!

HURT IN ORLANDO

DEAR HURT: Keep quiet. Your disappointment is understandable, but it's her money and she has the right to do whatever she wishes with it.

HE'S ALL HEART, and ready for Valentine's Day with the latest in jewelry with a sentimental touch. Here are all types of hearts, reports the Jewelry Industry Council, including heart pendants ranging from tout and free form to solid; heart pins that have variations, sometimes forming a heart flower with a cluster of six cutout hearts; and rings and earrings that also pick up the romantic motif.

Valentine Hearts Still Popular As Time Goes By

NEW YORK (AP)—They still "I love you" — every February 14 — on that you can't. And you can also rely on the fact that to speak the quaint language of love, "you ita have heart," advises the Jewelry Industry Council.

A gift of a heart locket or pin is always been a Valentine's Day favorite, the council points out. This year, however, there is an abundance of hearts to choose from, ranging from mad mod.

Select your own valentine in heart shapes that could be plain, fluted, cut, filigreed, free form, or embellished with gemstones. The most popular gemstone for Valentine's day is, of course, St. Valentine's own birthstone, the jethyst.

Ever since television star Gene Francis started the heart on a string fad by wearing (and never taking off) a little diamond-studded heart pendant by her husband, heart necklaces have been "in," fashionably speaking, says Kay Culloch, fashion consultant to the council.

One of the most popular heart necklaces today is the little gold heart with tiny seed pearls, which captures all of spring's freshness and all of jewelry, she says. Gold is riding high; so are pearls, and pearls are enjoying a renaissance of popularity.

Of course, the recipient will be usually delighted with a pair of art-shaped earrings, a heart ring, or a solid gold heart ring, says McCulloch notes.

Or why not give her her very own birthstone set in a gold art ring?

When the cornerstone of our civilization is laid, my personal entry for inclusion will be the 1040-A form put out by the Internal Revenue Service.

Not only is it the only piece of mail to be sent third class bulk without a stamp that gets to your home in mint condition — within three hours after it is sent — but it is written in Taxese for an English-speaking population.

Every year someone says they are going to write it in English so that the average person can understand it and make out his own form, but this never happens.

I don't pretend to speak Taxese, but I'll try to translate some of the simpler terms for you.

Spouse: This is a married person, for which you get one exemption, providing your spouse is neither blind nor over 65. If the spouse is either blind or over 65, take two exemptions. However, if the spouse is both blind and 65 or over, then you take three exemptions. This term has made "fooling around" very popular.

Gains: An obscene word you do not use in front of the children.

Gross income: A term borrowed from kids, previously used to describe their allowance.

Abandoned Spouses: Married persons who live apart can file separate returns. "Abandoned" does not include couples separated by NFL, AFL, NBA, ABA, NHL, Olympic Games, or Wide World of Sports.

Death: This is no excuse for not filing a 1040-A form. If it has not been filed, a personal representative or heir must do so. Remember, you don't get a refund unless you file.

"If Line 13 is larger than line 15, the difference will be refunded to you." This is the IRS's attempt at humor... like the old line where someone calls you and asks if the street light is burning and when you go out to check, they say, "Then try to blow it out." Actually, it's a funny line. I personally have never known anyone whose line 13 was larger than line 15.

Paid Preparer: This is someone who helps you prepare your return. Some of them will go with you to your IRS agent when you are summoned. None of them will remember who you are.

Privacy Act: This is a comforting act passed in 1974, assuring you that your return will be kept secret and shared only by the U.S. Treasury, the Dept. of Justice, all federal agencies, all states including the District of Columbia, the U.S. commonwealths and possessions and all foreign governments who have tax treaties with the U.S. Have fun filing.

Early Projects Are Discussed

The Lake Ellsworth Garden Club held its first meeting of the year at the club house. Projects for the coming year were discussed.

Members will be conducting a membership drive in February with a reception for prospective new members to be held at the February meeting.

Mrs. Shirley Smith, program committee representative, announced the program for the next meeting will be on physical fitness.

Mrs. Sharon Shallow, president, conducted the business session and the officers served refreshments.

Travel Along with Janet Stoughton

Everybody loves a bargain and a charter can be such a bargain. It costs less than practically any other form of air transportation. But the traveler gets the same amount of comfort and attention as if on any other category of flight. People on the charter simply pay less per seat because the seats are bought all in one block. Then, too, charter flights conform to the law of supply and demand. When enough people want to go somewhere, a charter flight can be born. Scheduled flights on the other hand, have to leave on schedule regardless of how many or how few people are booked. Ask about our June 15 Oberammergau holiday tour.

Whether you are looking for a bargain charter or want airline tickets quickly for a business trip, DUQUOITE TRAVELS INC. is happy to assist you. Sincere In His Beliefs Former Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas died last weekend.

There has been perhaps no more controversial figure in American law. Douglas served for almost four decades, longer than any other member of the Supreme Court. He was an individualist and a liberal who was often out-of-step with other Supreme Court members.

His personal life caused raised eyebrows with four marriages and mates who were progressively younger than he as the years passed.

Attempts were made to impeach Justice Douglas, but he stayed on the court until a stroke and ill health finally forced his resignation.

We frequently did not agree with Justice Douglas in his Supreme Court opinions and his public commentaries. And yet we can recognize that his influence in defending individual rights was important during his era of service as a justice.

Ultimately both liberals and conservatives share a strong belief in individual freedoms and rights in our society. There are differences only in the approach to obtaining these high goals. Nobody could accuse William O. Douglas of not being sincere in his beliefs.

The Letters Are Believable

New letters from American hostages being held in Terhan which got through last week paint a dark picture.

The letters tell of inhumane conditions, hands being tied, bright lights or semi-darkened rooms and constant noise making sleep impossible.

The letters may have been forced for propaganda purposes, but they are believable. That is the usual pattern followed by those who suppress the rights of others. We would think the hostages would welcome almost any type of reaction by their government.

Police Hands Tied

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Local police sometimes get the feeling that they are out-numbered, out-equipped, and even out-smarted by the criminals they are trying to fight.

To turn that situation around will require some major innovations in the way police work, and major changes in state laws which in some cases are tying the hands of investigating officers.

echelon member of the organization can often be forced to give information which leads to higherups when the threat of indictment for refusal to answer or perjury can be made before a grand jury.

Getting information is another handicap, Heineman said. Police can watch a criminal go into a telephone booth and know full well he is engaged in crime... but can't touch him or get information because North Carolina law bans wiretapping. "We have no power to find out what they are talking about. They make deals over the telephone, and we have no power. When I know large scale crimes are being planned and committed, I would like to have the capability to investigate," Heineman said in proposing legal wiretaps in the state when authorized by the courts on the basis of evidence.

Additionally, Heineman suggested the need for a top level intelligence organization through which local police swap information and brief one another on problems, and on successful operations.

A trio of police chiefs met with the Governor's Crime Commission the other day to talk about what is wrong, and what they and their staff feel needs to be done. At no time were the chiefs defensive nor apologetic. And they scrupulously avoided the trite proposals of the past that manpower and salaries be increased as the simplistic solution to a rapidly growing crime rate in North Carolina.

What they did talk about were things such as clogged courtrooms, maltreated crime victims, jurisdictional lines which thwart investigations, lack of adequate police training, and restrictive laws.

Big cities are a center of crime just as they attract other activities. Criminals operating in cities often locate just outside the one-mile boundary around the city in which local police have jurisdiction. "It takes a crime entrepreneur only a short time to learn that he can operate by telephone two miles outside the city and we can't investigate," said Heineman in proposing that all police departments in larger cities be given countywide — even statewide — jurisdiction to pursue their work.

Raleigh Police Chief Frederick Heineman, a former Bronx officer, led off, and expressed his biggest concern is how to "work our way up from the small fish to the people in charge... the money men."

It's easy enough to catch the street criminals in various enterprises of crime, but it takes accountants and lawyers to understand records and books leading to conviction of the crime chiefs, and especially those engaged in "white-collar" crime, Heineman feels.

An investigative grand jury, either regionalized or statewide, could hold one answer, Heineman said. In gambling, drugs, and white-collar crime there are usually conspiracies. That means people are involved across city lines, county lines, and even state lines. A lower

Return Of Battleship?

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — The Navy has asked reluctant Defense Department civilians to bring the battleship New Jersey out of mothballs and put it into the Mediterranean as a symbolic show of U.S. resolve in the face of Soviet expansion.

Adm. Thomas B. Hayward, chief of naval operations, has made the secret request to Defense Secretary Harold Brown. The New Jersey was commissioned on Dec. 7, 1942, and fought in World War II, the Korean War and, for one year, in the Vietnam War. It has been in mothballs at Bremerton, Wash., since its last decommissioning Dec. 17, 1979. It is suited for arming with new sea-launched cruise missiles.

The New Jersey would free scarce aircraft carriers far from the Mediterranean for duty in the troubled Indian Ocean, but its main function would be to show the flag in the dramatic fashion only a battleship can achieve. Although Brown and other Pentagon civilians regard battleships as provocative and want to keep them in mothballs, events in Afghanistan may have softened their opposition. What's more, the Soviet Union is about to launch a huge new nuclear-powered battleship the size of the old U.S.S. Missouri.

A footnote: The National Committee for an Effective Congress (NCEC) is as appalled at Church's Mikva vote as the ADA but will support him anyway. It considers his conservative Republican foe, Rep. Steven Symms, as infinitely worse. NCEC lists Church as the most vulnerable of the Senate candidates it supports.

No China Card, Yet
President Carter flatly told congressional leaders in a hush-hush briefing on the Soviet crisis recently that "I am not going to play the China card" at this time.

Carter and State Department diplomats have been publicly downplaying the U.S.-China connection for fear of further angering Moscow, but this was the first time Carter flatly has gone on record before the congressional leaders. He did not elaborate and there were no hard questions, but the "no China card, yet" statement ruled out all possibility of U.S. military supplies for this country's big, new friend in Asia.

Carter apparently reasons that the U.S.-China future is too uncertain to risk building up that potential superpower with U.S. military technology and weapons. If the threat from Moscow expands, Carter and the U.S. may have no choice but to accept that risk against the nearer risk of the Soviet power grab.

Return Into The Cold

WASHINGTON — A strong possibility is growing on Capitol Hill that this year will see a favorable turn in the melancholy fortunes of the Central Intelligence Agency. We may — and that word "may" has to be emphasized — we may soon begin to see a revitalization of an agency that for five years has suffered a fate it never deserved.

If this prospect materializes, something good, at least, will have emerged from the mess in the Middle East. Under wise safeguards, not fatuous ones, the CIA may be able to resume covert operations clearly in the national interest. Writing in the Washington Star, Jeremiah O'Leary finds a growing sentiment both on Capitol Hill and in the White House that the time has come to repeal the Hughes-Ryan amendment of 1974. This alone would not breathe life back into the demoralized CIA, but it would surely help.

By way of background: During the last couple of years of the Nixon administration, the CIA became the target of pacifists and idealists who saw the agency as an unrestrained monster. I do not question the sincerity or the good intentions of Sen. Frank Church of Idaho, who came to symbolize the campaign against the CIA. I do emphatically question his judgment. He was convinced that the agency had to come in from the cold; he wanted its covert operations severely restricted if not halted altogether. Though he sought conscientiously to prevent disclosure of the CIA's names and sources, he cherished the naive notion that it would be better — more democratic, you know — to let it all hang out.

Thus began the systematic, senseless dismantling of an intelligence agency that had been the best in the world. In December of 1974, as an amendment to the Foreign Aid Act, Congress approved a provision sponsored by Harold Hughes of Iowa in the Senate and by Leo Ryan of California in the House. This is what it said:

"No funds appropriated under the authority of this or any other act may be expended by or on behalf of the CIA for operations in foreign countries, other than activities intended solely for obtaining necessary intelligence, unless and until the President finds that each such operation is important to the national security and reports, in a timely fashion, a description and scope of such operation to the appropriate committees of the Congress."

There turned out to be eight such "appropriate" committees on the Hill. Each of the committees has a large staff. Faced with the virtual certainty of massive leaks, President Ford threw in the towel. President Carter, who suffered until quite recently from qualms and delusions, followed in the paths of innocence that Frank Church had established. Mr. Carter's choice to head the CIA, Admiral Stansfield Turner, fired 800 CIA officers and pushed another 2,000 into retirement. Nothing very good has happened to the CIA since then.

That the CIA made some gross mistakes in the period before Hughes-Ryan, no one denies, though some of us will continue to believe that the CIA's role in Chile between 1964 and 1973 was not as diabolical as The New York Times would have us believe. The CIA polked quite effectively on behalf of the Christian Democrat Eduardo Frei in 1964 and almost succeeded in preventing the Marxist Salvador Allende from winning his one-point plurality in 1970. Through its own covert operations, the Soviet Union was doing precisely the same kind of thing the CIA was doing. No apologies are called for. The

Pakistan: Next Target
Secret intelligence reports reaching Washington have pinpointed a Soviet invasion of Pakistan's border regions east of Afghanistan "within the next few weeks," raising the spectre of renewed Russian aggression and the question of how the United States will react.

Although the Soviet move will be explained in Moscow as a brief incursion to clean out "nests" of "imperialist saboteurs" operating in Afghanistan from Pakistan border bases, it actually will be another invasion across the boundary of a sovereign state. If the U.S. does not retaliate it risks new identification as a paper tiger.

A footnote: Short of military action from U.S. carriers in the Indian Ocean, President Carter might reinstate the military draft. Administration officials say, however, that the mood of the country is still very anti-draft, even though there has been a large increase in sentiment for much higher military spending.

ADA Vs. Church
The liberal Americans for Democratic Action (ADA) has made an informal and unannounced decision not to support the difficult fight for re-election of one of its habitual favorites: Sen. Frank Church of Idaho, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

"We just think he has been acting too much like a conservative," ADA National Executive Director Leon Shull told us. The last straw was Church's vote against Senate confirmation of Abner Mikva, the highly respected Democratic congressman from Illinois, as a judge on the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington. Church has made no bones in private that his vote was intended to placate the gun lobby, a powerful political force in Idaho that opposed gun-controller Mikva's confirmation.

Vengeance By Ford
The implacable animosity still felt by Gerald R. Ford toward Ronald Reagan over their 1976 struggle was demonstrated when the former president impromptu personal friends to make contributions to an anti-Reagan ballot initiative.

The money was used to collect signatures for a proposed voter referendum on ending California's winner-take-all Republican primary, which Reagan has counted on for the biggest state's entire delegation. Proportional representation would cut into Reagan's home state delegates — and prestige.

One visitor to Ford's home in Rancho Mirage, Calif., who was solicited for funds was California industrialist Leonard Firestone. A former Reagan backer who later broke with him, Firestone not only contributed to the fund but sought contributions from his friends.

To the editor:

I see by the paper that friends overwhelmed Friend Henry Aldridge to the point where he felt he had to give in and announce his candidacy for the North Carolina House of Representatives.

"I will offer eastern North Carolina a conservative voice representing them in Raleigh," says Friend Henry. Well, what kind of voice does he think we've got up there right now? When the rain falls here in Tobaccoland, it wets very few folks who are more conservative than Friend Rountree and Friend Bundy.

This being the case, I wonder whether the badge of conservatism might usher Friend Henry very far along the political path.

But I'll say one thing. If a plaque crisis happened to erupt in North Carolina, I sure would want Friend Henry up there on the Floor, representing me like crazy. Friend Henry can talk to you about plaque till the sun goes down, the cows come home, and the gates are closed.

Unfortunately, from the time of the convening of our first General Assembly in New Bern on April 7, 1777, right down to the present day in our legislative halls in Raleigh, there hasn't been much of a stir on the subject of plaque.

What we need to do is hold Friend Henry here in reserve against the day when the populace begins to have deep apprehensions that a plaque pox is imminent. Then, we must post Friend Henry up to Raleigh instanter. And let him do his stuff.

A library for the colored citizens of Greenville will be opened in about two weeks, climaxing a move undertaken by members of both races and one which won the support of city officials and various civic organizations.

WASHINGTON — Powerful bi-partisan support developed today behind a Senate Appropriations committee proposal to cut nearly $13,000,000 from the House bill for emergency defense and neutrality expenses.

Strength For Today

RECEIVING THE BIBLE
One of the great English publishing houses has been printing Bibles since the King James Version first appeared in 1611. It is said that among the type setters there are persons who are the descendants of three or more generations of persons who have spent their lives setting type for different editions of the Bible. These men have come to know the Bible so well that they can repeat long sections of it by heart.

Does it make them any better men? Apparently this knowledge of the Bible has had no effect on the successive generations one way or the other.

All this is illustrative of the fact that mere knowledge of the Bible is not enough to insure soundness of moral character. Although the Bible is the Word of God, it never becomes God's Word to us until we open our ears to listen and our hearts to receive. The Bible changes our lives only when its truths are interpreted to us under the power of the Holy Spirit.

Real Estate Industry Changes

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The real estate industry is changing: The commission structure is being reshaped, franchising is becoming popular, national firms are competing with local outlets, housing concepts are evolving.

But one change that Ralph W. Pritchard doesn't foresee is a very sharp deflation in singlefamily home prices. "No way in the world," he said the other day. "Too much of a demand, too much of a shortage."

Pritchard is this year's president of the National Association of Realtors, which claims 750,000 members and describes itself as the country's largest professional trade organization.

What does worry him is what he sees as an insidious growth, one that has the potential of being cancerous a decade from now. It is the erosion of property rights, hidden by seemingly praiseworthy devices.

Among them he lists zoning devices, overly restrictive building codes, rent control and unrealistic environmental laws.

"Government bodies at all levels have been slipping regulations into the market bit by bit," he observes. "The effect has been a gradual smothering of privileges upon which our democratic system is based."

It may sound preposterous now, he states, but in 1990 a family might have to apply to a government agency for a license to sell its property. He even has a name for it: the Property Selling Bureau.

It does sound preposterous, a listener commented.

Pritchard, who heads a 31-office, metropolitan Chicago concern, Thorsen Realtors, part of the Coldwell Banker chain, was equal to the challenge. Realtor presidents generally are well prepared.

In Washington, D.C., said Pritchard, a seller must first offer his building to the tenants. The tenants have 30 days in which to form an association and another 90 days in which to buy. During this four-month period, the owner may not sell to any other party.

A new bill would add to the limitations, he continued. It would, he said, restrain the owner from selling to the tenants for more than 10 percent above appraised value, regardless of other, higher offers.

"The City Weatherization Program in Portland, Ore., is another example," he said. "Bills recently were passed which give single-family homeowners five years to weatherize their homes. If they don't meet requirements, they will not be allowed to sell."

In Columbus, Ohio, he continued, a bill would permit the city to declare any property "historic," and from then on the property could not be altered by the owner without a special permit.

While these might be isolated examples, Pritchard sees them as dangers to be dealt with. Isolated examples, he fears, have a tendency to become the generality. He cites "infringements" that have become so.

Soviet Tightening Afghanistan Grip

By The Associated Press
The Soviet Union is reported tightening its grip on Afghanistan, with thousands of administrators taking over the government and troops transferred from Eastern Europe replacing Afghan army deserters.

The Sunday Times of London reported from Kabul that almost 5,000 Soviet bureaucrats have been flown to the Afghan capital to clean up the mess resulting from three communist coups in 20 months.

The Times correspondent said a senior Afghan official told him the Russians ordered him "not to show my face in the office unless it is to collect my pay."

The correspondent for the Indian Statesman wrote Monday after arriving in New Delhi from Kabul that the Soviet hold on the Afghan government is "complete and irreversible."

He said Afghan sources told him each minister in the cabinet has two Russian advisers. "No decision at any level of government...is taken without approval of the Russian advisers," the sources said.

Sources in Islamabad, Pakistan, said Soviet troops being flown to Afghanistan from Eastern Europe were replacing deserting Afghans and not Soviet reservists as Pentagon sources in Washington reported last week.

One Western diplomat in the Pakistani capital said his embassy was receiving a large number of reliable reports that "the Afghan army is just evanescent — disappearing like so many soda bubbles."

"What's happening is that the Afghan army is suffering such rapid desertions that the Soviets are reaching the point where there will be no indigenous forces to rely on," he said.

The Afghan army at one time numbered about 100,000 men, but intelligence sources estimate the strength nearer to 50,000 now as a result of defections and casualties in the 21-month-old war with the Moslem rebels. The Soviet occupation army is estimated now at 76,000 to 80,000.

U.S. intelligence sources in Washington estimate as many as 2,000 Soviets have been killed, wounded or captured since the Russians poured into Afghanistan last month to crush the rebellion and replace President Hafizullah Amin with Babrak Karmal.

Meanwhile, President Carter in his State of the Union message to Congress called for greater defense spending and increased aid for Pakistan because of the Soviet army in Afghanistan, on Pakistan's north-west border. But he postponed his request to Congress for $400 million in military and economic aid because agreement on the amount had not been reached with the Pakistani government.

In other reaction to the Soviet action in Afghanistan:

The United States sent B-52 bombers to monitor the movements of the 24 Soviet warships deployed in the Gulf of Aden, the Arabian Sea and the Indian Ocean. Twenty-five U.S. warships are cruising in the same waters.

New Zealand put off a visit to Moscow by Deputy Prime Minister Brian Talboys and Fisheries Minister Duncan Macintyre and curtailed other official contacts.

Chinese Foreign Minister Huang Hua, winding up a visit to Pakistan, promised to step up aid to the estimated 500,000 Afghans who have fled into Pakistan since the first communist coup in April 1978.

Japan announced it was sending $4.2 million in aid to the refugees.

Arab diplomats in Beirut said Saudi Arabia reported to the United States and Britain that hundreds of Cuban reinforcements and dozens of Russian advisers were flown recently from Ethiopia to communist-controlled South Yemen, at the southwest corner of the Arabian Peninsula.

The diplomats said the Saudis believe the Kremlin is trying to encircle the Persian Gulf oil fields and the shipping lanes out of the gulf. They said the Saudis are so alarmed they may put their 44,500-man army on the alert.

Desertion Charges Set

FORT BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — Maj. Richard H. Pearce, who fled to Cuba nearly 13 years ago, will be tried by general court-martial on charges of desertion, according to a spokesman for Fort Bragg's 18th Airborne Corps.

Lt. Gen. Thomas H. Tackaberry issued the decision early Monday afternoon after receiving the recommendation of Col. Robert Deshler, the convening authority for a hearing which was held last month to determine if there was sufficient evidence to proceed with a court-martial.

Public information officer Maj. Tom Woods said Monday that no date has been set for the trial, which will be held at Fort Bragg.

Pearce, 49, allegedly forced a pilot to fly from Key West, Fla., to Cuba in May 1967. He was accompanied by his 5-year-old son, Richard Jr.

Canada Expells Russian Trio For Espionage Role

OTTAWA (AP) — The Canadian Government has ordered the Soviet Embassy's military attache, his deputy and a chauffeur out of the country for spying on the United States.

Foreign Secretary Flora McDonald said Monday the Soviets met secretly with an American in the Ottawa area for 16 months and paid him more than $100,000 for information.

She said the American was not in the U.S. government or military service but was "in the kind of establishment that would have been used by government."

She said the Royal Canadian Mounted Police completed its investigation last week in cooperation with the U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation, and that the FBI had been helped by the Russians' American informant.

The American was not identified.

Nor was it clear whether he had acted as a double agent from the beginning of his contacts with the Russians or changed sides when the espionage was discovered.

Soviet Embassy spokesman Victor Mikheev denied the three Russians were spies and charged that their expulsion was in retaliation for the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

Miss McDonald said there was no connection.

The foreign secretary said although the Russians used Canada "as a base from which to conduct espionage operations against one of our allies," the Soviet government could send three replacements and keep the embassy staff at 64 persons.

The three officials were navy Capt. Igor A. Bardeev, the embassy's military attache; his assistant, Col. Eduard Aleksjan, and chauffeur V. I. Sokolov.

They were the first alleged Soviet spies expelled in two years, since 13 were ordered out in February 1978 for trying to recruit a Mounted Police official as a spy.

Meanwhile, a telephone caller Monday night threatened "dramatic action up to and including assassinating certain diplomatic people and the ambassador of the Soviet Union within 45 hours" unless the Soviet government closes its embassy.

The man, on a tape recording played over the phone, said he represented Canadian Freedom Rights, a previously unknown group. He said his group was threatening action because of the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

A Mounted Police officer said several newspapers and broadcasting stations got the same message. He said the police were taking the threat "mildly seriously," and protection for the embassy would be increased.

The officer said the force receives many threats against various embassies and officials. But he said assassination threats are unusual and this was the first time a tape recording was used.

Grenades Cancel A Marcos Trip

DAVAO CITY, Philippines (AP) — President and Mrs. Ferdinand Marcos canceled a planned political visit to Davao City after grenade blasts killed eight persons here in four days, authorities said.

Tiny flags already had been passed out to school children for the welcome ceremony when the cancellation was announced today.

Marcos and his wife, Imelda, were to have campaigned here for candidates of their New Society Movement who are running in local elections to be held Jan. 30.

Earn Awards In Corn Growing

The Corn Growers Association of North Carolina has presented statewide awards to Dr. Rodney Edmondson of Kinston and William V. Griffin of Pollocksville. The two men were recognized for their contributions to the association and to the corn growers of North Carolina.

Edmondson, a native of Martin County, was presented the non-producer award for his work with the association. Edmondson served as correspondence secretary, kept minutes of all the meetings, maintained the membership files, and arranged for speakers before the association had an administrative secretary.

Edmondson earned his bachelor and master's degrees from North Carolina State University. In 1973 he earned his Ph.D. from Virginia Polytechnic Institute. He is employed as a corn breeder with Funk Seeds International.

Griffin, a corn grower in Jones County and first president of the Corn Growers Association was presented the producer award for his many contributions since its beginning and for his leadership in promoting corn production in North Carolina.

Griffin serves as an officer in several agri-business organizations and he is a member of numerous farm groups. He is presently serving on the board of directors of the U.S. Feed Grains Council.

In October of 1979, Governor Jim Hunt selected Griffin to accompany him on his trade mission to the Peoples Republic of China.

Griffin earned his bachelor's degree in forestry management at North Carolina State University. After serving in the U.S. Navy in World War II, he began his farming career in 1953. Griffin farms 1450 acres of corn, soybeans, and row crops in Jones County.

Soviets put their man in power and brought chaos on the country. The anti-Allende coup of 1973 would have developed if the CIA had spent its time on tea and crumpets.

Few observers would give the president — any president — unrestrained power to conduct covert paramilitary operations through the CIA. But in the kind of world we live in, a world increasingly imperiled by aggressive Soviet expansion, it makes no sense to fight fire with water pistols. We ought to repeal Hughes-Ryan and limit presidential confidences to the two intelligence committees only. Such a move would provide a useful first step on a long road back.

Iran Votes

Voters in Iran are scheduled to go to the polls later this week, to elect the country's first president since the Islamic revolution there last year. Under Iran's constitution, the new president will have little actual power. The country's religious leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, will keep the power to appoint top-ranking military leaders, declare wars, and veto almost all government decisions. Still, about 100 candidates have been campaigning for the president's job. The major candidates include Finance Minister Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, Foreign Minister Sadeq Ghotbzadeh, and Islamic scholar Jelaalodin Farsi. All the candidates have pledged strong, continued support for Khomeini's rule.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 5 p.m. collision at the intersection of Fourth and Biltmore Streets involving cars driven by Deborah Susan Cleek of 805 Johnson St. and Howard Evans Johnson of 113 Holly St.

Police, who charged Ms. Cleek with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety, set damage at $300 to the Cleek car and $200 to the Johnson vehicle.

Cars driven by Lorraine Reason of Route 1, Jamesville, and Jackie Cooper McCandless of Ayden, collided about 10:15 a.m. at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Belvoir Road, causing $200 damage to the Reason car and $150 damage to the auto driven by McCandless.

Air Taxi Service

East Executive Air Taxi Inc., a new air charter service, has begun operations here, according to Elmer S. Payne, president.

Payne said that the new service, located at the Pitt-Greenville Airport, will offer executive air charter and limited cargo services to the continental United States, excluding Alaska.

The spokesman pointed out that the firm, approved as an air taxi operator, will utilize a Kingair 90 twin engine turbo prop aircraft, with a capability of seven passengers.

Payne is a veteran of 26 years flying service with the Marine Corps and has been involved in flying corporate aircraft in the Greenville area for the past five years. Payne, who will serve as pilot for East Executive Air Taxi Inc., spent some 19 years at Cherry Point.

He is married to the former Edna Wrenn of Pitt County and they have a son, Elmer Payne Jr., and a daughter, Mrs. Deborah Thomas.

Gold Drops

LONDON (AP) — Gold dropped more than $70 an ounce in Europe today in a bout of profit-taking. The dollar firmed, and dealers attributed the strengthening to President Carter's stand against the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

London silver, which has been climbing roughly in line with gold, also dropped today. It was quoted at $41.50 an ounce, down from $48 Monday.

Gold, which closed Monday at $850 in Zurich and $838.50 in London, opened in both centers at $835 today.

Gun Down 4 Children

SANTEE, S.C. (AP) — Four children playing in a field were cut down by rapid-fire shotgun blasts. Two were killed and two were wounded.

Orangeburg County authorities said a 13-year-old boy was arrested following the shootings and charged with two counts of murder and two of assault and battery with intent to kill.

Three of his relatives also were arrested and charged with being accessories after the fact.

Orangeburg County Sheriff Vance L. Boone said the four children were in a field about a mile outside the Santee town limits Monday afternoon when they were felled by three blasts from a 12-gauge shotgun.

Killed were Verneeta Summers, 8, and Kevin Gadsen, 10. The boy was hit in the head and the girl was shot in the side.

Ronald Shingler, 14, was taken to Orangeburg Regional Hospital with wounds in the chest and arms, and was listed in stable condition.

Tanya Carver, 6, was treated for a wound in the thigh and released from the hospital.

Detective Chief C. R. Smith and the 13-year-old boy was arrested later, along with three of his relatives.

The relatives were identified as John W. Wyatt, 39, the boy's stepfather; Patrick Sanders, 23, his uncle; and Jewel Sanders, 56, the boy's grandmother.

Smith said no explanation for the shooting was immediately learned and the investigation was continuing.

The bodies of the two dead children were to be sent to the Medical University of South Carolina in Charleston for autopsies.

Rountree...

 "When Judge Whedbee made his announcement that he would not seek re-election, many of my colleagues in and out of the Bar encouraged me to seek this position."
 "Almost every attorney has visions of being a judge and projecting his experience in the courtroom. I have practiced law for over 30 years...seven of these years were in Farmville, five in the Attorney General's office in Raleigh, and 18 in Greenville. In my practice as an attorney, I have appeared on every level of the Courts of this State, as well as the Federal Court."

Rountree continued, "Having served in the General Assembly for 14 years, and being away from my family for six months and more every other year, I think it's time to come home and spend more time with my family."

For many years, according to Rountree, "I've been interested in the judiciary. I worked in the General Assembly setting up the uniform court system that implemented the fair sentencing and speedy trial bills, which are a real concern of mine. I'd like to help in any way I can to implement it."

According to Rountree, "I want to thank the people of Pitt and Greene Counties for their vote and support in allowing me to represent them for seven terms in the General Assembly. During my tenure, we have witnessed the greatest expansion and growth of East Carolina University and the two counties I represent."

"In our area, where prior to 1970, health care was at a minimum, we now have our medical school, Eastern Area Health Education Center, rural health centers, family practice center, and along with all of these, some of the most sophisticated equipment and medical technology to be found in the State."

During his tenure in the House, Rountree has served as a member of every major legislative committee as well as the N.C. Judicial Council, the N.C. State Courts Commission, the Governor's Advisory Committee on Law and Order, and the Governor's Commission on Sentencing, Criminal Punishment and Rehabilitation.

In addition to his service in the General Assembly, Rountree has served as a solicitor of Pitt County Recorder's Court, commissioner of the Town of Farmville, and as an assistant attorney general of North Carolina.

A Farmville native, Rountree graduated from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and from the UNC Law School. He has been Past Master of the Farmville Masonic Lodge, past Commander of the Farmville American Legion Post, post adjutant of Post 9081 Veterans of Foreign Wars, past governor of the Greenville Moose Lodge, and past Exalted Ruler of the Greenville Elks Lodge.

He is a member of New Bern Consistory No. 3, Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Free-masonry and Sudan Temple A.A.O.N.M.S. of New Bern, and has also been a member of the East Carolina University Board of Trustees as well as a member of the Salvation Army Advisory Board.

He was a recipient of the Farmville Jaycee's distinguished service award, and in 1972 received the Greenville Citizen of the Year Award.

He is married to the former Helen Elizabeth Lotz and they have four children.

Nobel Prize Winner In Russia Said Arrested

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government today stripped dissident leader and Nobel Peace Prize winner Andrei Sakharov of a series of state awards. Dissidents said Sakharov had been arrested.

The Tass news agency said Sakharov had been deprived of the awards and titles because of years of "subversive work against the Soviet state."

Shortly before the Tass announcement, an anonymous caller telephoned The Associated Press to say Sakharov had been arrested.

The caller said Sakharov's wife, activist Yelena Bonner, soon would be taken into custody as well.

Reporters reaching the Sakharov apartment building reported finding two uniformed Soviet policemen at his door. The police escorted the reporters back to the elevator and said "everything will be explained."

The reported arrest of Sakharov, a physicist once known as the father of the Soviet H-bomb, could not be independently confirmed, but shortly after the first call a second caller identifying himself as Irina Kaplan said Sakharov was arrested on a Moscow street.

Reporters said many plainclothes policemen were milling about in the street near the Sakharov building on the southeast edge of downtown Moscow.

Sakharov, 58, won the Peace Prize in 1975, but was not allowed to go to Oslo to collect it. His wife, then an eye patient in Italy, went and received the prize for him.

Sakharov has two children, Alyosha, 23, and Tatyana, 29, who live in Boston, Mass.

His first link with the Soviet dissident movement came in 1966 when he joined a group opposing the political rehabilitation of Joseph Stalin's memory.

He then came to the attention of Soviet police after the 1968 publication of his manifesto, "Progress, Coexistence and Intellectual Freedom," which catapulted him to the forefront of Moscow's dissident community.

Since then, Sakharov has used his public appeals to the Western world in a human rights campaign against the Kremlin.

Amnesty International, the London-based human rights organization which won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1976, said recently it had counted more than 40 Soviet dissidents arrested by Kremlin officials since last September.

Some observers here believe the roundup may be an effort to quell dissidents in the months before the Olympics this summer. Some dissidents have suggested that it was also to keep them from speaking out against the Soviet intervention in late December in Afghanistan.

Sakharov has said he and his wife have often been subjected to anonymous threats, house searches, obscene and cruel mail campaigns and other harassment.

Peace Prize Winner Is Found Dead In Home

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Anne Maguire, the mother of the three children whose deaths sparked formation of the Nobel Prize-winning Peace People Movement, was found in her home with her throat and wrists slashed. Police sources said they believe she killed herself.

Neighbors said Mrs. Maguire had tried to kill herself once before after the deaths of her children, who were run down nearly four years ago as she was taking them home from school. She was seriously injured in the accident.

The 34-year-old woman was discovered Monday by one of her two surviving children, 9-year-old Mark. The whereabouts of her husband, Jack, 35, and her surviving daughter were not immediately known.

The dead woman's three other children — Andrew, six weeks old; John, 2, and Joanna, 8 — were crushed to death on Aug. 10, 1976 when they were struck by a getaway car carrying Irish Republican Army guerrillas. The car crashed after British troops shot the driver.

After the children's funeral, thousands of outraged citizens marched through city streets prompting Mrs. Maguire's sister, Mairead Corrigan, and Betty Williams to launch the peace movement designed to end sectarian fighting between the Roman Catholic minority and the Protestant majority.

The fighting, which has resulted in 2,000 deaths in the past decade, is continuing. The peace movement, divided by internal bickering, has begun to disintegrate.

Mrs. Williams, who was one of the first to arrive at the Maguire home Monday, said, weeping, "It was horrible. My wee Anne is dead. We tried so hard to help her. How can a woman lose one child, let alone three, and not suffer terribly?"

After the death of their three children, Mrs. Maguire and her

Collision Fatal For Parachutist

YUMA, Ariz. (AP) — Two parachutists collided in a practice jump at the Yuma Proving Ground, and one of the jumpers was killed and the other seriously injured, Army officials said.

The two — who were among a group of five or six men who jumped from a plane at 6,700 feet — collided while free falling, knocking one unconscious, officials said Monday. The unconscious man hit the ground without opening his parachute, but the other man was able to open his, officials said.

Names of the two men were withheld until relatives could be told.

Royalty Losing Expense Funds

LONDON (AP) — Britain's royal family may have to cut back on housekeeping expenses. Cabinet Minister John Biffen, chief secretary to the Treasury, told the House of Commons on Monday that the royal family headed by Queen Elizabeth II won't escape Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's drive to cut government spending.

One Tory lawmaker protested that to reduce the royal allowance for official expenses would "devalue a major British institution." But a Laborite argued: "No one should be protected against inflation — the royal family has plenty of fat to live on."

Back-To-Work Order Obeyed

SAN ONOFRE, Calif. (AP) — Construction workers at the San Onofre nuclear plant's $2.5 billion expansion project are back on the job after a wildcat strike sparked by the firing of 13 pipefitters.

Members of the Plumbing, Pipefitting and Refrigeration union obeyed a back-to-work court order Monday. A union spokesman said grievance talks were scheduled with Bechtel Power Corp., the major contractor on the work expanding the plant from one to three nuclear units.

Pirates Romp Past Baptist By 90-67

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

"We start earning our pay as coaches and scholarships as players now." Coach Dave Odom said following last night's 90-67 victory by East Carolina over Baptist College of Charleston.

"We don't have anyone on the schedule from here on out that we can look at and say we've got a sure victory," the coach said. "It's going to be tough from here on in."

The Pirate coach, whose team had just added its tenth victory in 17 starts, added that he didn't mean that Baptist was a push-over. "But it's one game that, on paper, we should win."

Not only on paper, but on the court as well. The Pirates, despite a hot shooting night by the Buccaneers, had little trouble with Baptist—when the Pirates really wanted it.

"I've really got to say that Coach Odom is a class guy," Baptist coach David Reese said afterwards. "He played everybody but the cheerleaders. He realizes the situation we're in. They played defense at times so well that they didn't want us to get the ball, we just didn't get it."

Baptist is in the midst of a 27-game losing streak, extending back through 14 games of last season. Reese finds it tough to live with, but he's willing to talk about it.

"It's amazing that our kids don't give up," he said. "They're not that good, but they give it all they've got and don't say anything. I really don't understand how they go out there night after night. I think they play hard to keep from being embarrassed. And it's terrible to have to play like that."

Reese is in the second year of a two year contract, and from his remarks doesn't plan to worry about returning. He joined his alma mater following a successful high school career in which he lost only 19 games out of nearly 150. "But where do I go from here?" he asked. "I'd like to stay in the college ranks, but who'd want me with a record like this?"

Baptist has only recently jumped into Division I play, and Reese thinks it is a mistake. "How can a school like ours hope to compete with people like Clemson, South Carolina, East Carolina and the like? We can't do it. We're not nearly ready."

"I tell you it's tough. My son comes home from school almost every day having had a fight. The teachers tell me it's because the kids tease him about our record. Two years of this is enough!"

East Carolina's Odom was quite pleased with his team's play. The Pirates blazed through 57.9 per cent of their shots in the game, and dominated the backboards, 38-24.

"Our object for tonight's game was to play well offensively and defensively for 40 minutes, regardless of who was in the game. I think we accomplished this. We only pressed twice, and that was just for practice."

"I think this was as well as we've played for 40 minutes, despite the opposition. But I have seen us play poorly against weaker teams too."

Odom felt that free throws kept Baptist in the game in the first half, when the Buccaneers went to the line 16 times, hitting 12, and the Pirates made no appearances there. "It's hard to hold back and try not to take the ball away," Odom said of the foul difference in the game.

Odom also praised the play of George Maynor, whose 24 points in the game set a new team high for the season. "Maynor had his best night on defense, which allowed him to have a great offensive night. And I'm glad to see him play like that."

"Tony Byles means a lot to us as a ballhandler. He let's Maynor operate at the big guard the way he needs to. I think we all played unselfishly on both offense and defense tonight. We have a great attitude now."

But Odom chose to look ahead. "This is when we begin to earn our salaries and scholarships," he said. "There are no guarantees from here on out."

Except for the first basket in the game, scored by Baptist's Glenn Duncan, the Pirates were in control all the way. They followed the Baptist hoop with four of their own, two by Maynor and one each by Herb Krusen and Herb Gray for an 8-2 lead. The Pirates continued to pull away, not allowing more than two points at a time by Baptist until the score reached 28-9 with 8:37 left in the half. Baptist began to rally after that, finally closing to within ten points late in the half at 44-34, before a jumper at the horn by Greg Batson made it 46-34.

The Pirates pushed quickly back out to 18 early in the second half, then allowed another Baptist rally, this time to within seven at 58-51 with 13:42 left.

But the ECU five then hit the next nine points before Baptist scored again, making it 67-51. The margin reached 20 at 75-55 with 8:09 left, and finished off by scoring the final five points of the game for the 90-67 final margin.

In addition to Maynor's 24, the Pirates got 14 from Krusen, 12 from Bryant Wiggins and 10 from Gray. Baptist was led by Eric Tenille with 19, while Eddie Talley had 14, Larry Nesmith had 12 and Duncan had 11.

Gray led the Pirate rebounding with eight, while Duncan had as many for the Buccaneers. The Pirates play host to UNC-Wilmington on Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in Minges Coliseum.

Lakers Explode To Top Knicks

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The New York Knicks had a first-hand opportunity to learn about the explosive tendencies of the Los Angeles Lakers. It wasn't a lesson they appreciated.

Los Angeles trailed New York 79-69 midway in the third quarter of Monday night's only scheduled National Basketball Association game, but the Lakers then went crazy, out-scoring the Knicks 43-18 over a 13:07 span en route to a 132-114 victory.

The Knicks had scored 18 of the first 22 points in the second half to take their 10-point lead in the first game between the teams this season, but then the roof fell in on New York.

"The Knicks played excellent offensive basketball but it was only a matter of time until we got our running game going," said Los Angeles Coach Paul Westhead, whose team has now won six straight games and 10 in a row at home. "Good defense helps our running game, which helps our team because we played much harder when we're running."

"Our guys are having more fun giving the ball up than scoring."

The loss was the seventh straight for the Knicks, who dropped to 22-28. The Lakers, meanwhile, are 22-3 at home this season and 35-15 overall.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar led Los Angeles with 25 points and 14 rebounds. He had plenty of help as five other Lakers scored in double figures.

"Although we're playing better, they're too strong and we couldn't defend against their run," said New York Coach Red Holzman. "Kareem is playing his best basketball ever. We tried to double-team him but he has too many other good shooters playing with him."

The Lakers made 53 of their 87 field goal attempts, a 60.9 percent performance. Abdul-Jabbar led the way by hitting 11 of his 15 shots.

Los Angeles got excellent guard play as Michael Cooper made eight of his 11 field goal attempts in scoring 18 points and also had eight rebounds and eight assists; Norm Nixon had 19 points and nine assists and Earvin "Magic" Johnson had 16 points, six rebounds and seven assists.

Johnson didn't start and played only 25 minutes. The Lakers' rookie is still hampered by a groin injury that caused him to miss two games last week.

Another rookie, Bill Cartwright, led the Knicks with 21 points and seven rebounds. A key to the game was the Lakers' 44-29 rebounding advantage over New York. Michael Ray Richardson also had 21 points for the losers.

The first half was close all the way, with neither team leading by more than six points. Los Angeles led at halftime 65-61.

The Lakers were in the middle of their big run as the third quarter ended — they held a 96-88 advantage entering the final period. Shortly later, it was 112-97.

Old Dominion Rolls To 112-77 Victory

NORFOLK, Va. — The height of Old Dominion proved to be the big difference last night as the Lady Monarchs, currently ranked number two in the country, rolled to a 112-77 victory over East Carolina.

For ECU Coach Cathy Andruzzi, however, it was the equivalent of a moral victory.

"We played one of our best games," she said afterwards. "It was really something. Even though we don't have anyone who can compete with their big people, we were able to do a lot of things well against them."

"We ran against them, and were successful. We played good man-to-man defense. It was just their height that made the difference. They played their big girls nearly all the way, and always had at least one of them in there."

The big girls, 6-8 Anne Donovan and 6-5 Inga Nissen proved to be the big difference for sure. Donovan pulled off 26 rebounds, one more than the total picked up by the individual Pirates as a whole. She finished the evening with 21 points.

Nissen, meanwhile, pulled off ten more rebounds, and dumped through 37 points. The total of 58 between the two giants was more than half of the Monarch total.

Old Dominion ran off the first 16 points of the game, and led by as many as 20-odd points during the first half. But the Pirates fought with them and cut the lead back to 16 at the half, 50-34. In the second half, the running game, coupled with the bomb-away shooting of Lydia Rountree (23 points) and Laurie Sikes (22 points) helped the Pirates cut the lead down to as little as ten points before the dominance of the Monarchs proved too much.

"They got a lot of their points by simply lobbing the ball over us to the big girls," Andruzzi said. "That's quite evident by the fact that they had 37 assists."

Still, Andruzzi was pleased with her girls' performance. "I think we kind of shocked the people at Old Dominion. They didn't think we were that good coming in. But in talking with their coaches and the media up there, they now feel that we're the best team they've played so far. We scored more points than any team has scored against them all season."

In addition to Nissen's and Donovan's scoring, Old Dominion's Nancy Lieberman added 14 and Rhonda Rompolo hit 21. East Carolina had two others in double figures in addition to Sikes and Rountree, as Rosie Thompson had 13 and Kathy Riley had 11.

The Lady Pirates return home on Thursday to host Florida State in Minges Coliseum at 7:30 p.m.

DePaul Unanimous At Top Of AP Cage Poll

By DENNIS D'AGOSTINO
Associated Press Writer

One week after taking the top spot in the nation for the first time in Ray Meyer's 38-year coaching career, DePaul became the season's first unanimous No.1 choice in The Associated Press college basketball poll announced Tuesday.

Undeclared at 15-0, DePaul received all 57 first place votes and a maximum 1,140 points in the nationwide poll of sports writers and broadcasters. The Blue Demons posted victories last week over Lamar, Maine, and Louisiana State.

Oregon State, 17-1, moved from No.4 to the runnerup spot, grabbing 1,049 points. The Beavers defeated Washington St. and Washington in action last week. Duke, 15-2 with victories last week over Wake Forest and North Carolina State, garnered 959 points and moved from fifth place to third. They beat Georgia Tech 56-49 on Monday.

Ohio State, with 929 points, slipped from second place to fourth. Both of the Buckeyes' games last week went into overtime, as they defeated Minnesota 75-70, but lost to arch-rival Michigan 75-74. Kentucky moved up a notch into the fifth spot, by virtue of 835 points and victories last week over Florida and Vanderbilt.

Syracuse dropped from third place to sixth, with 821 points. After winning their first 14 games, the Orangemen suffered their first defeat last week, losing 68-67 to Old Dominion. Their record went to 15-1 with a victory Monday over Detroit. Thirty-eight points farther back was seventh-ranked Louisville, which beat Tulane in its only action last week.

Notre Dame, which scored victories over Villanova and UCLA last week, held on to the No.8 spot with 773 points, 37 more than St. John's of New York, which moved up from tenth place into ninth. With 494 points, Missouri vaulted from 15th to tenth to round out the Top Ten.

Despite the loss to DePaul, Louisiana State collected 455 points and moved from 14th place into 11th to head the Second Ten. Clemson moved up five notches into 12th place, followed by North Carolina, Purdue, Maryland, Indiana, Virginia, Weber State, Tennessee, and Brigham Young.

This week's Top Twenty newcomers were 15th-ranked Maryland, 13-2, and 18th-ranked Weber State, 17-1. Iowa, ranked 13th last week, and North Carolina State, ranked 16th, dropped from this week's Top Twenty.

Varied Views On Boycott

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

A 12-member Amateur Athletic Union boxing team was to leave for Moscow today to begin a three-city exhibition tour — though a State Department spokesperson said such trips "should be discouraged."

"We tried to make it clear to the kids that if they had any reservations, don't go," said Col. Don Hull, boxing liaison officer for the AAU, who disclosed heavyweight Jimmy Clark of Philadelphia had exercised that option.

"Jimmy told me this afternoon he thought he'd sit this one out," Hull said Monday by telephone from Arlington, Va.

"It was a personal choice. I didn't pressure him or make a big deal out of it."

Attempts to reach Clark for comment were unsuccessful.

The four slates matches in the Soviet cities of Moscow on Jan. 26, Tbilisi on Jan. 30 and Vilnius on Feb. 2, and Hull said. "The latest information we had was there was no (governmental) objection" to the team completing the trip that has been scheduled since January, 1979.

However, President Carter called Sunday for the movement, postponement or cancellation of the Summer Games if Soviet troops are not removed from Afghanistan within a month. And State Department spokesperson Susan Pittman said Monday: "The boxing competition in the Soviet Union is the type of bilateral activity which we believe should be discouraged."

Meanwhile, worldwide reaction from athletes and government spokesmen alike remained uniform only in its admittance. Virtually all respondents — whether for or against a prospective American Olympic boycott — were clear in their stance.

"There's no way I want to be part of a boycott of the Moscow Olympics," said Irish miler Eamonn Coghlan. "I keep my political opinions completely separate from my athletic aspirations.

"There's no way they can move the Games," said Coghlan, who set a world indoor record of 3:52.6 for the mile last February. "The International Olympic Committee has had a binding agreement with Moscow since 1974 and there's no way they can break the contract. Millions and millions of dollars would be lost if they did."

That, essentially, has been the position of the IOC all along — a sentiment that was underscored Monday by two IOC officials.

"It is the USOC (United States Olympic Committee) that has to decide whether American athletes will take part in the Games, not the U.S. government," said IOC President Lord Killanin, who labeled "a hasty decision" the policy Carter announced Sunday.

"I am not foolish enough to say politics don't exist in sport. What I do say is that sport should not be used for political ends," continued Killanin.

IOC Director Monique Berlioux, a former French swimming star, said an American boycott could lead to a rethinking about Los Angeles as the site of the 1984 Summer Games.

Other reaction was a rainbow of emotion.

An Associated Press-NBC News poll indicated Americans favored not sending a team to Moscow 49 percent to 41 with 10 percent undecided.

Of the 1,995 adults interviewed, 66 percent favored moving the Games from Moscow, 26 percent opposed and eight percent were undecided.

Vladimir Popov, first deputy chairman of the Moscow Olympics Organizing Committee, said, "We are calm people, but we think that all the anxiety that people from the outside are injecting into the Olympics is hardly helping the Games."

"If one is to use sports terminology," Popov continued, "one can say that the Olympic annuals will recall Carter as a man who erected, rather than cleared away, hurdles and that Carter's decision will, in the long run, doubtless prove a goal he scored into his own net."

Further developments may be expected after the USOC meets at Colorado Springs, Colo., this weekend to map strategy. The National Olympic Committees meet in Mexico City on Feb. 4, and the IOC meets at Lake Placid, N.Y. — site of the Winter Games — Feb. 8-10.

Meanwhile, the Australian government was expected to announce its opposition to sending an Olympic team to Moscow, and that continent's two greatest milers expressed support for the stance.

"If I was an Olympic athlete today and had been training for the past four years, aiming at a goal, I would be shattered if the Games were boycotted," said Herb Elliot, a former Olympic 1,500-meter champion. "But, as a member of the public, I have to look at the seriousness of the Russian aggression...a boycott is necessary."

"You can't separate sport from politics in a situation like this," added John Landy, "but if the boycott is going to be successful, then it would have to involve a boycott by the whole of the Western world. At present, only a few countries are advocating this sanction: the Games, on that basis, would still go ahead."

The independent Hong Kong Standard, in an editorial, said in part a "boycott will irreparably damage the Olympic movement and U.S. interests. It will certainly not help less Afghanistan."

The Asahi Shimbun, an independent, mass circulation Japanese newspaper, said in an editorial: "The Games are the people's festival. The Games are held in Moscow but the sponsor is the IOC and not the Soviet government or the Communist Party. The request by President Carter is an unpleasant intervention in the IOC and it was only natural Lord Killanin reacted against it."

But the United Daily News, a Taiwan newspaper, supported Carter in an editorial.

Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said in Phoenix, while he doesn't disagree with the president's stand, it "is not an adequate answer."

"There are no gimmicks, no withdrawals from the Olympic Games, no individual measures that are going to solve the problem," he said.

Tech Fails To Hold Composure Vs. Duke

By The Associated Press

The Duke Blue Devils romped over Georgia Tech, 56-49, Monday night in an Atlantic Coast Conference match-up that was never in question.

And, East Carolina rolled to an easy 90-67 victory over Baptist College, while James Madison chalked up a 16-point win over N.Carolina at Wilmington in independent play.

Tech Coach Dwane Morrison says his troubled team was unable to maintain its composure, even on its home court.

"We took the lead and then lost our composure for two or three minutes," Morrison said. But Duke coach Bill Foster had praise for the determined Yellowjackets.

"They play their game and don't make mistakes," Foster said. "They are a tough team and they are going to. They're coming so close, knocking on the door. One of these days, the door is going to open."

Mike Gminski poured in 24 points, including five during an 11-2 spurt that broke the game open, as the fifth-ranked Blue Devils went for the win.

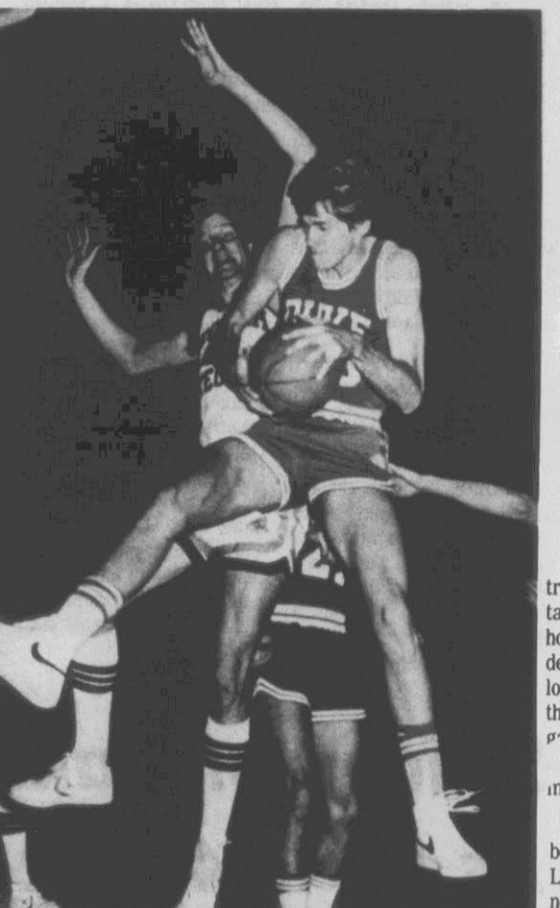

Tech led three times — the last, at 35-33, coming on John Mann's layup with just over 11 minutes remaining. But, in the last 10 minutes, Gminski took charge, spurting Duke to its insurmountable lead.

It was the 15th victory against two defeats for Duke, which raised its conference record to 3-2. Tech, losing its eight straight ACC game without a victory, fell to 4-11 overall.

East Carolina's George Maynor scored 24 points and Herb Krusen added 12 to lead the Pirates to the win over Baptist at a game played in Greenville. The Pirates are now 10-7 for the year, while Baptist has lost 13 in a row this year and 27 over the past two seasons. Playing in Harrisonburg, Va., James Madison's Steve Steilper scored 22 points to lead the Dukes to the win.

Most Like Bradshaw: Tired Of Football

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The trucks have hauled off mountains of empty beer cups and hot dog wrappers from Pasadena's Rose Bowl, the talk in local bars returned to Iran and the Russians and the price of gas, and the last diehard reveler has finally shaken off the morning after.

Super Bowl XIV, one of the best of the National Football League championship games, is now left to the sports historians and brooding armchair quarterbacks.

NFL fans and television watchers who feel overdosed after four preseason games, 16 regular-season games, a minimum of two playoff games and one Super Bowl may feel the way Pittsburgh quarterback Terry Bradshaw does.

"Right now I'm just tired of football," said Bradshaw, Super Bowl XIV's Most Valuable Player whose two long touchdown passes led the Steelers to a 31-19 victory over the Los Angeles Rams last Sunday.

Following the game, an exhausted Bradshaw said he wanted to think about "football and what it means to me," and gave other indications he was pondering retirement. But in an MVP press conference Monday, he said he had no more thoughts of quitting.

"I know I talked about reiring after the game," said Bradshaw, 31. "But later on I had a meeting with Jack Lambert and Joe Greene, and," he continued, smiling, "considering how important my health is to me, I am definitely going to play for the Pittsburgh Steelers next year and have officially ended all thoughts of retiring."

Although perhaps anti-climatic, there is one NFL game left in the "1979 season," next Sunday's Pro Bowl in Honolulu, with Bradshaw one of the competing all-stars.

In Monday's separate press conferences for Coach Chuck Noll, whose Steelers have collected four Super Bowl rings in the past six years, and two-time Super Bowl MVP Bradshaw, each was asked if he considered the Steelers a dynasty.

"Dynasty? Isn't that something you eat?" Noll joked. Then he added, "The facts speak for themselves."

Bradshaw tiptoed around the question too, pointing out that there are too many good teams in the NFL and mentioning Dallas, Los Angeles, Houston and New England.

But asked his definition of a dynasty, he smiled and replied: "Winning the Super Bowl four times in six years."

The Rams, moving to a new location — Anaheim Stadium — next season, are already thinking about Super Bowl XV in New Orleans.

"We didn't get it this time, but we'll get another shot at it," said Rams Coach Ray Malavasi.

"Pittsburgh was one or two plays better," said Los Angeles offensive tackle Doug France. "But we proved we can play football with anybody, and we know we can beat anybody. We'll be back."

Young Rams quarterback Vince Ferragamo, who completed 15 of 25 passes with one interception in a poised Super Bowl performance, said, "We'll get another chance...and it would be nice to get another chance at Pittsburgh."

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating the words. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

 Opening lead: Queen of ♠.

A bad trump break turned what should have been a simple contract into a touch-and-go proposition. A shortage of entries to dummy necessitated a virtuoso performance by declarer to salvage the game.

After a normal one diamond opening bid by South, West took advantage of the vulnerability to put maximum pressure on the opponents with a bold preempt. North had too much to pass and too many diamonds to relish the prospect of defending four spades doubled. His decision to bid five diamonds was a reasonable compromise.

West led the queen of spades, won in the closed hand. As a preliminary measure, declarer led a heart to the ace at trick two, then ruffed a heart. This precaution was vital, as we shall soon see.

Declarer cashed the ace of diamonds, and learned the sad news that he had a sure trump loser. It seemed as though declarer would have to rely on finding the ace of clubs with West, but he was not prepared to settle for that.

Declarer entered dummy with the king of trumps and ruffed another heart. Next, he cashed the king of spades to strip his hand of major suit cards. Then declarer exited with a trump, giving East his trump trick.

As it turned out, declarer's stripping process had also removed all of East's safe exit cards. Down to nothing but clubs, East was forced to play ace of clubs and another, giving dummy not only a trick with the king of clubs, but also a vital entry. Declarer ruffed a heart to set up the long card in the suit, then got back to the table with a club ruff to cash the heart for his eleventh trick.

Belgium Pays Beer Reparation

MONTREAL (AP) — Rather than violate its traditional neutrality by going to war with Canada's Rhinoceros Party, Belgium has agreed to pay reparations for what was termed an act of provocation against the party's symbol.

An official of the Belgian embassy in Ottawa said Monday that, as demanded, the country will send a case of its best beer and a case of its best mussels to the Rhinos' headquarters here.

The Rhinos, an official political party created to spoof elections, declared war on Belgium last week after reading the adventure of a Belgian cartoon character, Tintin. In one episode, the big game hunter blew up a rhinoceros.

Williams Leads 'Pops' Tonight

BOSTON (AP) — Slipping gradually away from the legend of the late white-haired Arthur Fiedler, the Boston Pops steps out tonight under the lead of a red-bearded devotee of movie music.

John Williams, winner of three Oscars for scores for "Star Wars," "Jaws," and "Fiddler on the Roof," is conducting the Pops in concert for the first time as its director.

Williams says he plans to play more movie music with the Pops.

'Once Upon A Family' Arriving On Scene At Unfortunate Time

By PETER J. BOYER
 AP Television Writer
 LOS ANGELES (AP) — In a sense, it's lamentable that "Once Upon a Family," a CBS movie airing this evening, came into being just now. Its themes — child custody and a father's forced awakening to parenting — are shared by "Kramer vs. Kramer," the theatrical movie that has critics and moviegoers frothing in ecstasy.

Upon a Family" stands quite on its own as a superior film, made-for-TV or otherwise. My, what a wonderful movie this is.

Barry Bostwick plays Henry Demerjian, a suburban martyr regretful over having abandoned college and dreams of becoming an architect to marry his pregnant girlfriend and raise a family.

consummate trapped housewife, "drowning in the life we're living, drowning in the house we're living in, drowning in the people we live it with. . . I'm drowning in my own children."

She leaves him and the children, which sets this fine drama on its course. Demerjian is forced by circumstances to become a parent instead of a distant figure in pants who sits at the head of the table.

The metamorphosis is a remarkable thing to see, and leads to a most satisfactory conclusion.
