

Afghan Refugees Assert Massacre Of Resisters

By The Associated Press
Refugees from Afghanistan report Afghan troops led by Soviet advisers massacred more than 1,000 men last year in a village accused of collaborating with the Moslem guerrillas. But the Kremlin denied the report, calling it "monstrous misinformation."

The refugees' report was relayed by Edward Girardet of the Christian Science Monitor, writing from the Raghnai Pass on the border between Afghanistan and Pakistan. He gave this account in his copyrighted dispatch:
About 200 Afghan soldiers led by 20 Soviet advisers entered the village of Kerala, in eastern Afghanistan about 40 miles from the Pakistani border, last April 20.

"They forced all the men to line up in crouching positions in the field just outside the town and then opened up with their machine guns from behind," said Abdul Latif, a traffic policeman who said he was among the survivors.

The order to fire came from a "dark-blond, green-eyed Russian soldier who wore an Afghan uniform without insignia."
Within minutes a bulldozer was put into action, plowing the bodies under in the field while the wives and children of the men watched and wailed. Some of the victims apparently were still alive and moving.

"Then they spread out through the town gunning down all the remaining men they could find."
Girardet said about 400 families from the village fled to Pakistan, where more than 500,000 Afghans have found refuge since Afghan communists took over the government in Kabul nearly 22 months ago and a Moslem guerrilla rebellion broke out in the countryside.

"Overall corroboration of testimonies by the survivors, many of whom live miles apart, confirms the magnitude of the killings — although the exact number of victims must remain an estimate," Girardet reported.
However, the Soviet news agency Tass today denied the massacre account carried by the "Western news media," declaring:

"It is perfectly evident that the new dirty slander is part and parcel of the malicious propaganda campaign which was launched by Washington and by some of its allies around the events in Afghanistan.
"Behind the yarns told by Western propagandists, there is nothing which would, if only remotely, resemble the truth. These are vile fabrications which imperialist propaganda itself invents for perfectly definite purposes and circulates."

In Washington, meanwhile, State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said U.S. intelligence information indicates some 2,500 Soviet troops have been killed or wounded in Afghanistan since the Russians sent an occupation army estimated at 100,000 men into their southern neighbor last month to install a more compliant government and help put down the Moslem rebellion.
Carter also said the State Department has learned that Soviet domination of the Afghan government is so complete that all important government appointments must be submitted to them for approval.

FOR LAURA WITH LOVE... Flying Ace Snoopy on his doghouse was sculpted from snow and glazed with ice by four East Carolina University students late last week for the pleasure of their three-year-old neighbor, Laura Shannon, kept in the house out of the snow by chickenpox. The sculptors were Tom

Junior High Curriculum Revision Before Board

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer
A recommended revision in the E. B. Aycock Junior High School curriculum that will cut the number of school periods daily from seven to six was considered at the information meeting of the Greenville City Board of Education Monday night and was placed on the agenda for action at the Feb. 18 action meeting.
Supt. Glenn Cox noted that principals, teachers and administrators in general feel "that due to time requirements, it is necessary to move back to a six period day."

Cox also recommended and the board will consider the wording of the curriculum plan that refers to a ninth grader being "promoted" to the tenth grade. Instead of the promotion concept, he recommends a classification system that will make a student eligible to be classified a sophomore after the student earns four credits; to be classified a junior after earning a total of nine credits; and a senior after earning 15 credits.
One of the points emphasized by Aycock principal Paul Rasberry is that "we must keep in mind that the state board of education has mandated a nine-twelve (grade) situation." Under this new state directed plan, state requirements are for a total of 18 units to meet requirements for graduation. Earlier, the Greenville School Board approved a local graduation requirement of 21 units — and at Monday night's meeting the board concurred that it still strongly favors this higher requirement instead of the state directed minimum requirement.

Some of the concerns expressed about the proposed change at Aycock from seven to six periods centered on how this would affect opportunities for electives, and the shortening of the three period bloc of language arts/reading to a two period bloc in which reading is eliminated as a separate class.
Rasberry and Cox both stated that reading is to be a major emphasis in the two-hour language arts bloc as well as in all other courses.
Another concern was the

Pitt's Secondary Road Plans Approved By Commissioners

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
Pitt County Commissioners yesterday afternoon gave their approval to the State's proposed secondary road program for the county for the 1980-1981 fiscal year.
George Harper of Kinston, a member of the North Carolina Board of Transportation, who presented the proposed improvements, told commissioners, "the name of the game is money, and we're short of money."
Harper said the county will receive some $136,439 in secondary road bond funds, as allocated last month by the Board of Transportation. He said Pitt should also receive $317,903 in regular secondary road funds, provided the money is available.
The $454,342 in proposed improvements include:
— Secondary Road 1123 (1.7 miles), grade, drain and stabilize, from N.C. 903 to SR 1114, estimated to cost $98,000.
— Secondary Road 1517 (1.4 miles) widen 16 foot pavement to 20 feet and resurface, from N.C. 903 to SR 1519, estimated to cost $46,800.

— Access drive to Pactolus Fire Station Number 2, on SR 1541, estimated to cost $1,170.
— Secondary Road 1128 (2.3 miles), Widen 16 foot pavement to 20 feet, regrade roadway section, and resurface, from N.C. 11 to SR 1127, estimated to cost $114,800.
— Secondary Road 1910 (.8 mile), resurface 20 foot pavement, from N.C. 118 to SR 1914, estimated to cost $12,000.
— Secondary Road 1440 (1.2 miles), replace bridge number 159, grade, drain and stabilize, from SR 1415 to SR 1417, estimated to cost $74,400.
— Secondary Road 1770 (1.4 miles), add additional base and pave, from SR 1772 to SR 1756, estimated to cost $57,000.
— And Secondary Road 1911 (3.25 miles), improve by mixing three inches of coarse sand with 12 inches of existing soil, estimated to cost $20,000.

The proposal also calls for spot stabilization on 17 other secondary roads, at a cost of $30,172.
In other business yesterday, commissioners approved the final plat of Huntingridge Subdivision on N.C. 43 near Rock Springs, and appointed Dr. Jean Lowry of the East Carolina University faculty as the alternate geologist member of the county's Sedimentation and Control Commission, to act for Dr. Stan Riggs when he is unable to participate.
The board also approved a request by Pitt Internal and Renal Medicine Associates, allowing them pave a drive at the rear of their office, part of which is on county property, West of Pitt Memorial Hospital.
The board also honored three of its own members, and the county attorney, W. W. Speight, at yesterday's session.
The board presented Speight with a resolution of appreciation for his service at county attorney since December 1950, the longest term of service of any county attorney in the State.
Commissioner Alton Gardner was presented a resolution in recognition of his 25 years service as a county commissioner, while Commissioner Bob Martin received a certificate in recognition of his service as chairman of the board last year.

Commissioners also adopted a resolution recognizing Commissioner Charles Gaskins as the recipient of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce's Outstanding Citizen of the Year award last month.

By TOM BAINES

All of the 642 units operated by the Housing Authority in Greenville were occupied during January, according to the Authority's director of tenant affairs.
Sallye Streeter told commissioners Monday night that overall rent average in the six housing developments amounted to $77.72 for January, with individual averages including: NC 22-1 (Meadowbrook), $73.94; NC 22-2 (Kearney Park), $84.38; NC 22-3 (Moyewood), $85.73; NC 22-4 (Moyewood), $73.14; NC 22-5 (Hopkins Park), $58.54; and NC 22-6 (Newtown), $77.51.

Mrs. Streeter indicated in her occupancy report that an updating of the tenant application file has been completed and the files now show 75 applicants for the Authority's mid-rise housing development for the elderly, under construction off E. Third Street.
Assistant director J. C. Lamm, reporting in the absence of executive director Joe Laney, noted that work on the new mid-rise complex is continuing on schedule and the framing contractor is now on the job.

Lamm reported that the structure's fourth floor columns are now up and the contractor is getting ready to pour the fifth and final floor of the building. Sixty units of housing for elderly citizens will be available in the new facility.
Reporting on the status of Section Eight existing housing here, Lamm said that as How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Snow is expected in the forecast period until Wednesday morning, from the Great Lakes to the mid-Atlantic and south to northern Georgia. Showers are forecast for the Northwest and Southwest. Most areas are expected to be cold. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press

Snow was forecast for North Carolina's mountains tonight and across the state by Wednesday.

Forecasters said today the likely accumulation was difficult to predict, but they said one to two inches could be expected in the Piedmont and up to three inches in the mountains.

The precipitation could start as snow in the southeast, but warm air in the higher elevations probably will cause it to change to sleet Wednesday.

In advance of the snow, temperatures dropped rapidly this morning with Raleigh and Asheville reporting record lows of 9 degrees. The reading broke a 33-year-old record in Raleigh. The previous low in Asheville was set in 1965.

Greensboro reported 11 degrees. Other early-morning temperatures ranged from the low teens in the mountains and foothills to the low 20s in the coastal areas.

Readings Monday ranged from the 20s in the mountains to the 30s elsewhere, with some light snow in the morning over the western half of the state.

School Board... PCC Trustees Talk Projects

feasibility of having a student who failed ninth grade English, for example, take other tenth grade courses at Rose and re-take ninth grade English at Aycock or Rose. Cox estimates that this type of cross-over can be handled administratively, and that at most it would involve only about an estimated 18 or 20 students.

On the question of a student taking the minimum credits in the ninth grade that would in turn put the student in a bind to earn 17 or even 18 credits in the last three years of school — thus not allowing leeway for a single failure if the student was to avoid summer school or an additional year in school, member Donovan Phillips commented "Students and parents have got to get serious and take responsibilities and realize that the ninth grade courses are more important than ever. We've got to deal with the fact that if a student goes in at the beginning for a minimum number of courses, that student will have to take the consequences on himself. We're going to have some failures, and we're going to have successes, that's the way it is."

Member Terry Shank's concern was that of the cut to six periods providing even less time for activities such as science, math, French, fishing and chess clubs. Rasberry pointed out that "all along more and more kids are dropping out of these activities. Some who maintain their interest, like the Monogram Club, are holding their meetings after school hours.

These and other concerns will be studied by the board prior to taking action at the Feb. 18 meeting.

Another issue to which considerable discussion was devoted was that of looking into the possibility of school fund support for the athletic program for grades 7-12 in the city schools.

Tommy Little and Andy Warren, both officers of the Athletic Boosters Club, gave a report to board members that projects a deficit of almost $4,400 for the athletic programs for the remainder of the school year. Expenses are projected at $32,566 with Revenues at $28,173.

Little noted that despite the fact that money raised by the Boosters was the highest ever this year, the escalating cost of activities, particularly transportation, had created a situation that will necessitate curtailing some spring programs or seeking assistance from some source other than money raised by the Boosters.

Warren noted that the final payment this year of a van purchased by the Boosters and presented to the athletic program had contributed to the tight situation. Aside from that, the fact has to be faced that funds will be needed to replace helmets, shorts and other equipment that periodically have to be replaced.

Cox said that "historically, the school board has provided salary supplements to coaches at a total of about $18,000 to $19,000 yearly. This is the only activity that is funded from the budget. Programs in music, the newspapers, and similar programs get no supplement in that direction.

"And of course we have provided transportation. What this boils down to basically is that beyond the coaches salary supplements, the athletic program has been a self-sustaining program primarily funded from gate receipts at football games. What we see here now is that these receipts will no longer suffice to meet expenses."

Little added that "funds from football have to be spread over non-revenue sports such as girls' basketball and swimming."

The board asked Cox to get together with athletic personnel in the school, along with officers of the Boosters Club to make an estimate of what the program will cost for the next school year, and also to think in terms of finding funds from this year's budget to close the gap in the projected deficit. This will be presented to the board at the earliest possible date.

The 1980 Personnel Recruiting Program is now underway, with 17 school personnel assigned to five recruiting groups to visit 33 colleges and universities, mostly in North Carolina, with a few in Virginia and Washington, D. C.

The first presentation by a recruiting team was January 31 at East Carolina University, with UNC-Wilmington scheduled for a Monday, Feb. 4 visit.

Schools to be visited in the recruiting schedule are:

(Group I) — ECU, Elizabeth City State University, Old Dominion University, Norfolk State College, Virginia State College, Virginia Union, Howard University, Mary Washington College, and Atlantic Christian College.

(Group II) — Fayetteville State University, Pembroke State University, UNC-Wilmington, and St. Andrews College.

(Group III) — North Carolina A & T, UNC-Greensboro, Guilford, Bennett, Winston-Salem State, N. C. School of the Arts, and Elon College.

Plans for the dedication ceremonies were also discussed. G. Henry Leslie was named as chairman of the committee with Mrs. Kay V. Whichard and Joseph M. Taft as committee members.

The Building Committee was authorized by the board to proceed with plans and commitment of funds for the new PCC sign and several related projects. The committee is to report their actions at the next board meeting.

A.B. Whitley, Jr., chairman of the Building Committee, presented a status report on the completion of the new shop /classroom building and parking area. Whitley and George Shoe, the architect, presented the plans for the new PCC sign. The sign is to be located on the front of the campus next to highway 11.

President William E. Fulford, Jr. reported to the board that the winter quarter enrollment was up 17.3 percent over winter 1978-79 enrollment. Over 50 percent of the increase, explained Fulford, was in technical programs.

President Fulford also reported that he was investigating the feasibility and cost of converting the present heating system from fuel oil to an alternate system which could use either natural gas or fuel oil.

Dr. James Young, PCC's Director of Institutional Development briefed the trustees on several on-going federally funded projects. Young presented information on revitalization of student services, the management information system consortium, and the alcohol fuels training program

Gunmen

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syria's announcement that it is withdrawing its troops from Beirut brought armed guerrillas into the streets of the Lebanese capital today, raising fears of a renewal of the 1975-76 civil war between Christian rightists and Moslem leftists.

Leftist gunmen in checkered battle fatigues slung AK47 Russian-made assault rifles over their shoulders and took up positions in predominantly Moslem West Beirut, ready to take over any spot the Syrians might vacate.

Spokesmen for rightist militias in mostly Christian East Beirut reported their forces were put on "maximum alert." But they said the measure was only a precaution and that they do not intend to rekindle the civil war.

There were no reports of fresh violence in the divided Lebanese capital since midnight. Rival leftist gunmen clashed in three different spots in West Beirut after the first word about the Syrian pullout leaked Monday.

with a bachelor's degree in political science and economics, and is currently working on a master's degree in public administration at East Carolina University. Between 1972 and 1976, he served as a member of the Board of Trustees of ECU.

The candidate has been a member of the Kiwanis Club and the Greenville Exchange Club, and is a member of Immanuel Baptist Church here.

Lee became a Republican in 1964, he reported, has been active in both of Senator Jesse Helms' campaigns, and served as First District chairman of the GOP between 1972 and 1976. He is the current president of the North Carolina Fund for Individual Rights, and is a board member of the North Carolina Conservative Society, the North Carolina Conservative Union, and the Pitt-Beaufort Conservative Union.

In announcing his candidacy, Lee said that his purpose in running is to "streamline state government and its budget, to help state and local government in North Carolina become less reliant on the federal government for financial support," and to "take a long, hard look at the state's trend towards interfering in the private lives of its citizens."

He stressed his opposition to the "so called New Generations Bill, the need to encourage rather than persecute private and Christian educational institutions, and the need to follow-up investigation of corruption in state government, such as the recent high-pressure political surveys of local sheriff's departments by the Hunt administration."

Lee said he supported gubernatorial candidate I. Beverly Lake Jr.'s "practical, sensible approach to government." He added that the theme for his senate campaign will be, "Government need not be so far up in the clouds that the average citizen can not understand it."

Diocesan Funds Drive Is Begun

The Rt. Rev. Hunley Agee Elebash, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of East Carolina, announced the diocese is kicking off a "Venture in East Carolina Project" to raise $800,000.

The capital fund campaign, the first diocesan-wide project in over a quarter of a century, will assist local Episcopal churches, missions, camps and conference centers as well as assist ministries outside the diocese.

Bishop Elebash stated that $600,000 is slated to be spent within the diocese in four areas: new congregations; mission renovation; camps and conference centers; and Diocesan House refurbishing. The $200,000 to be spent outside the diocese is earmarked for Melanesia, the West Indies, Cuttington College in Liberia and Kanuga, where a study will be conducted concerning a ministry to the elderly.

"Venture in East Carolina" will be kicked off by two dinners — one in Wilmington held yesterday for the Fayetteville and Wilmington Conventions and the second Wednesday at the Ramada Inn, Greenville for the Edenton and New Bern Conventions. The Rev. George I. Chassey Jr., canon to the Ordinary for South Carolina, will be the guest speaker in Greenville.

Heading the campaign organization as honorary chairman is the Rt. Rev. Thomas Wright, retired bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of East Carolina. The Rev. L. P. Houston, Greenville, is chairman of the speakers bureau and William Gartman, Greenville, is a member of the Campaign Executive Committee.

The two Democratic winners will face Republican Henry Aldridge in the November general election to see which two candidates will represent Pitt and Greene Counties in the House of Representatives for the next two years.

Optimal Stress Level Called Aid To Career

By CAROL DEEGAN
NEW YORK (AP) — Stress is important if we're to have some enthusiasm and motivation in our lives, says Rosalind Forbes, but there are different levels of stress, so it's important for each person to know his or her optimal stress level.

"The optimal stress level is the one which got you where you are today in terms of your life and your career," Dr. Forbes said. She is the founder of the Forbes Associates Stress Consultants of New York City and the author of two books, "Corporate Stress" and "Life Stress."

"When we do have that optimal stress level, besides being enthusiastic and motivated, stress gives you an energy, it helps you to think more clearly. The mental abilities are heightened because of that slight spurt of adrenalin in the body, and that's where the energy comes from, too," she said.

Dr. Forbes says the optimal stress level for optimal performance is a slightly keyed-up feeling. She says it's the feeling a person may get when he or she goes for a job interview, receives a promotion, or stands up and addresses a group of peers or employees.

She notes that when people are operating at their optimal stress level, they enjoy contacts with people, they tend to get more done in less time, and they seem to be able to make better decisions.

"I'm sure that stress can also be debilitating, but we're finding now that if you want to succeed in your career, if you're upwardly mobile, I would say the real secret to success in the position is how well you can deal with the pressure," she said.

Dr. Forbes said she'd found the very top level executives were the ones who had the innate ability to handle stress productively, to channel it into their work.

In addition to an optimal stress level, Dr. Forbes says, there is also stress underload, in which there is not enough stimulation or challenge in a person's environment, and stress overload, which is when an individual has too much pressure to handle, and thus cannot function well.

She said one indication of stress overload would be a change — either an increase or a decrease — in eating, smoking or drinking habits. Causes of pressure, she said, may be a major job change or relocation; a divorce or the end of a long-term relationship.

"It's a total accumulation of these events that makes it difficult for us to cope and deal with day-to-day pressures," Dr. Forbes added.

And what about stress underload? Dr. Forbes said the signs of too little pressure or stimulation may include the following:

—Feeling that you are over-qualified or have been over-qualified for the jobs you've held.

—Feeling that the jobs you've had in the past did not have the stimulation, challenge or creativity that you need.

—Feeling that you've reached a plateau in a career, maybe going as far as you can, and feeling that there are no more goals, no more slots to move into as far as advancement is concerned.

How does a person recognize stress underload?

ROSALIND FORBES

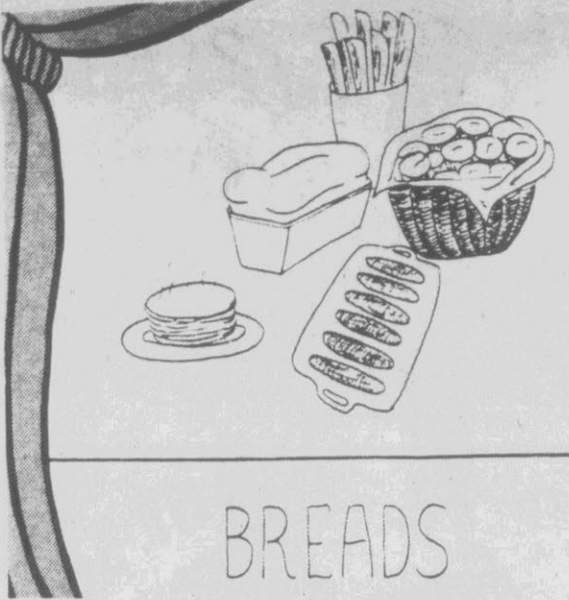

"One of the things we notice is the individual feels tired a lot of the time. So chronic fatigue, which we usually associate with too much pressure or just being drained of our energy, can occur when there's not enough pressure or stimulation," she said.

Dr. Forbes added, "We also know that people with this underload situation complain of insomnia, difficulty sleeping at night, strained relationships at home and at work."

How do people react to this? "In working people we've noticed a higher rate of absenteeism; we've also seen more instances of drinking problems, and also a number of cases of marital infidelity. So apparently the boredom people experience either on the job or in their life they try to compensate for by seeking stimulation in other areas," she said.

For the past seven years, Dr. Forbes has worked with executives from more than 50 corporations, demonstrating how to channel stress into a positive management force. Sally Lunn: The Best You Can Bake

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Sally Lunn, that cross between coffeeecake and batter bread, came to this country from England. But the best Sally Lunn recipe I have ever come across was developed in the United States.

We found it in "Encore," a delightful all-around cookbook compiled and published by the Shreveport Symphony Women's Guild in Louisiana.

On a visit to Shreveport I made last year, Mrs. Lewis R. Prosser came to see me with the cookbook in hand. She and her co-workers had collected the book's recipes from women belonging to the guild and their husbands, members and friends of the Shreveport Symphony Orchestra and guest artists. The guild group had done a great deal of testing and tasting while compiling the cookbook. Tilghman Prosser was eager to share the result of their labor.

It's true, as Mrs. Prosser and her co-chairman, Mrs. Ollie P. Williams, say in their foreword to the cookbook, that it "has its special flavor, mirroring our varied tastes, backgrounds and travel experiences along with the demands of modern day living. Treasured family recipes are side by side with short-cut recipes utilizing convenience foods and time-saving modern appliances."

Mrs. Prosser is indefatigable. She loves to cook and contributed about 75 of her own recipes to the book. The Sally Lunn recipe comes from her Maryland family. Last Christmas, she baked 18 Sally Luns to give as gifts. All I can add is "lucky recipients!"

Of all the yeast breads of this sort that have been baked in my kitchen, hers is the favorite.

TILGHMAN PROSSER'S MOTHER'S SALLY LUNN
¾ cup butter and lard, mixed equally
1 cup milk
1 package dry yeast
¼ cup lukewarm water
1 teaspoon sugar
4 cups flour
1-3rd cup sugar
2 teaspoons salt
4 eggs

Combine butter and lard with milk; warm together till butter melts; let stand till lukewarm. Combine yeast, lukewarm water and 1 teaspoon sugar; set aside. Sift together flour, 1-3rd cup sugar and salt. Beat eggs thoroughly. Add yeast mixture to butter mixture; add to eggs. Beat well. Add to flour. Beat well; set to rise in a warm place. Every 20 minutes beat the dough down. It will rise again and again. Let rise a minimum of 3 hours; can let rise 4 hours. Beat well; pour into a 10-inch greased bundt pan, distributing dough evenly. Let rise 1 hour. Bake at 325 degrees for 45 to 60 minutes. Serve hot with melted butter.

Do not use substitutes for butter and lard. Beating down is the secret of the wonderful texture. Equally good buttered and toasted for breakfast. It

It's hard to remember when my husband and I became "hard to buy for."

One day we were getting underwear and books and the next we were getting cats in tennis shoes, little monkeys that danced themselves off the table, and a kangaroo with string coming out of his navel.

There doesn't seem to be an end to the cleverness. We have fought through tissue only to find a best-selling book printed on toilet paper, an Elvis statue that revolves and plays

"Love Me Tender," and a swizzle stick of a girl who, when submerged in a drink, loses her outer layer of clothes.

The first time one of my children bought me a whale pillow with varying sizes of fish

I assured him I didn't. Then he said, "I wanted to get

Mom Needs Help Due To Rejection

By Abigail Van Buren

1980 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: A recent column regarding the son who didn't want his father to visit him because he considered it an invasion of his privacy, struck home with us. We have a similar situation in that our married son, who lives in another city, doesn't want his mother to visit him for the same reason.

Three years ago my wife wrote to our son saying she would like to visit him and his wife. His response was out of this world! He told her in no uncertain terms that she could visit them only when it was convenient for him. The tone of his letter caused considerable anguish, and my wife was in tears for several days.

My wife has written him several times, asking when it would be convenient for her to visit, but he keeps putting her off with one excuse after another. Surely in three years there should have been one week for her to visit!

Our son has no use for me, so I stay out of his way, however, I feel very sorry for my wife.

Personally, I don't care if I never see the selfish guy again, but his mother is hurting.

What should I do?

CONCERNED IN CALIF.

DEAR CONCERNED: Encourage your wife to get some professional counseling. She needs to learn how to handle the obvious rejection she is getting from her son. I suspect that there is another side to this sad story.

DEAR ABBY: Re: Throwing birdseed instead of rice. Experience shows that the birds will eat the rice as wholeheartedly.

You "mustard seed" this one coming!

Most railroads abroad have complex schedules of special fares, day/night and "sleeper" rates. In general, plan on paying more for fairly luxurious sleeping accommodations than for a plain "couchette," which is really little more than a lightly padded bench where one can stretch out. Light blankets and pillows are provided. However, never dispose of the ticket after the conductor has punched or marked it. It may be necessary to show the ticket again in order to leave the station platform at destination. Consider buying railroad passes through a travel agency before leaving home.

Can U.S. Back It Up?

The United States is talking tough to the Soviets concerning their military move into Afghanistan. The question is, can we back it up?

Defense Secretary Harold Brown said, "We can't assure you we could win a war there, but to cast doubt on our ability to deter or fight effectively is damaging, and unnecessarily damaging to U.S. security."

Gen. David C. Jones, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff said, "We can take military action in the region. It carries risks and uncertainties for both sides. Neither could be confident of the outcome."

It is not particularly a bright picture militarily if the Russians make further moves in the Middle East, and yet the whole western world may crumble if the Soviets take over that area.

It becomes clear that the United States will not be able to go it alone in any direct military confrontation with the Soviet Union. Our friends and allies have as much stake in freedom as we, and all of us will have to stand together if the Russian bear is to be backed down.

If strong military commitments are quickly made by countries outside the Soviet bloc Russian expansionism may be halted without a war. Russian leaders only respect force.

A Real Service For Jurors

A telephone answering service through which jurors can be told when they should report to court has been installed.

The service will give instructions to jurors as to when they should report for duty and inform them if a case has been extended so that they need not report the next morning.

One of the great frustrations of jury duty is the time lost waiting to serve. The phone service gives promise of eliminating that lost time. It sounds like a good idea to us.

New Tax Options

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — With North Carolinians ever more resentful for local property tax increases, the North Carolina Consumers Council is pushing the notion that a local option tax on cigarettes and alcoholic beverages could be a popular way out.

Pressure is building in the General Assembly from local government officials seeking some relief from the so-called taxpayers' revolt. A survey of county commissioners by the Legislature's fiscal research staff shows that local officials are feeling considerable heat from their constituents about property taxes.

Actually, the figures show that North Carolina communities have property taxes which compare favorably with other states in the South, and far lower than those in California where the taxpayers' revolt was born in Proposition 13.

But home is where the property tax hits hardest, and home is where the ears of city and county officials are most readily available. Few can journey to Raleigh or Washington to protest taxation, even though state and federal taxes have soared at a much sharper rate than local property taxes.

Options

Several different study committees of the General Assembly are presently looking at the dilemma with an eye to recommendations for action either in the 1980 short-session, or in 1981.

There appear to be three major options:

1. That the state assume more of the cost of the two big-ticket items now draining local budgets — public schools and welfare, including Medicaid.
2. That the state get into the general revenue sharing business, simply doling out chunks of money to local governments to use as they see fit within certain boundaries.
3. That the state give local governments some additional options in collecting more local revenue; such means as a local payroll tax, a hotel-motel tax, increased local sales tax.

Local officials present a strong case for change in the system. State income is based on income taxes and sales taxes, primarily. Revenues are climbing right along, with increases running 12 to 13 percent annually, doubling the money available every six or seven years. Federal and state officials have been cutting taxes rather than raising them, while income continues to soar.

County and city income is static with property tax collections based upon valuations which are upgraded every eight years. Between revaluations, local officials are forced to up the rates to get more money.

The net effect is that taxpayers think they are getting a cut from the state and federal tax collectors, while their own local officials are turning the screws on them harder and harder.

Some state tax experts have talked with lawmakers about a couple of other options — neither would actually reduce taxes, but would make it appear that they are being reduced, or at least held in line.

BILL NOBLITT

Disguise
One suggestion is that revaluation be computerized so it can be done annually.

THE L. A. TIMES SYNDICATE

"Miss Piggy here is really a skinny-minnie. Inflation just makes her look a bit chubby."

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

The Real Ted Kennedy

WASHINGTON — When Sen. Edward M. Kennedy announced his presidential candidacy last November, some of us in the pundit business predicted he would make a perceptible turn to the right. After all, we reasoned, no man with a 17-year record of knee-jerk liberalism can hope to be nominated and elected in a time of increasing conservatism.

The reasoning was fine; the prediction has turned out to be lousy. After a few weeks of unconvincing conservative murmurs, Mr. Kennedy last Monday reverted to form. At George Washington University the real Ted Kennedy stood up. He once again embraced every cause of the liberal left, running alphabetically from greater appeasement of the Soviets to larger welfare for the poor.

I am certain he feels much better now. We can all feel better now. Mr. Kennedy has performed a most useful service in defining issues both at home and abroad. If he stays the course — and Democrats of every persuasion must pray that he stays the course, lest five months of political headlines be yielded to the opposition — we can expect a full-scale debate instead of an afternoon nap.

Where stands the senator? We see him as president of the United States a year hence: "This is your commander in chief speaking. I will not move toward the brink of sending another generation of the young to die for the failures of the old in foreign policy!" Hooray for the commander in chief.

Oh, he is a bold one, this Kennedy. He condemns the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan. He finds it "abhorrent." He thinks it must be met with an "appropriate response." He spells out his appropriate response: He would 1) seek the views of other nations, 2) be thankful for the condemnation of the Soviets by the international community, 3) strengthen our naval and air forces in the area, 4) provide economic assistance and political support to oil-producing nations, 5) demand in return the assurance of more certain oil supplies, and finally, 6) "we must not overreact." We must rather "convince the Russians that there is reason for fear, but also reason for hope, in their relations with the United States."

By George, that will scare the wits out of the Soviets! Even the possibility of so resolute a fellow in the White House must have Mr. Brezhnev trembling in his boots. After all, that possibility has me trembling in my boots.

That is the substance of the gentleman's intrepidity abroad. He is rather more positive here at home. In his Monday address, Mr. Kennedy returned like the prodigal son to the house of his fathers. To his credit he did not pussyfoot around.

Mr. Kennedy first demanded that President Carter "impose an immediate six-month freeze on inflation." It is the trick of the week. This freeze should be followed by "mandatory controls, as long as necessary, across the board, not only on prices and wages, but also on profits, dividends, interest rates and rent."

That is vintage Kennedy. It is the real juice, not to be diluted by his assertion, four paragraphs down the text, that he wants to be the president under whom "free enterprise will be free in fact." His whole cast of mind tilts toward the notion of mandatory controls administered by a vast and all-powerful bureaucracy. Consistently with this approach, he demands gasoline rationing. He plugs anew for his comprehensive scheme of national health insurance — a scheme guaranteed to tie every hospital in the land into knots of red tape.

It was a fascinating speech. I loved every word of it. But will it be loved in New Hampshire? Will it motivate Maine? Will it knock 'em dead in Florida, Arkansas and Illinois? Don't hold your breath until a tide of delegates rolls in.

Pricing Feud?

By WILLIAM GLASGALL
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Saudi Arabia, producer of nearly one-third of OPEC's oil, reportedly may cut prices or increase its output to slow a price spiral it started with a $2-a-barrel increase last week.

The report in the Middle East Economic Survey came Monday as Nigeria, Algeria and Indonesia, suppliers of 11 percent of U.S. oil needs, raised crude oil prices by up to $4.21 per 42-gallon barrel.

The moves brought to nine the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries members following last week's Saudi increase, which was billed as a move to stabilize conditions in the 13-nation cartel.

A barrel of Algerian crude oil, now OPEC's most expensive grade, went to $37.21 from $33 in early January and $26.27 in November. Nigerian oil rose from $30 to $34.21 a barrel, and Indonesian oil climbed $2 to $29.50.

Other nations' oil rose by $2 to $25.50 a barrel, to $28 to $31.

The economic survey said in Nicosia, Cyprus, that Saudi Arabia was "extremely disturbed and disappointed" by the increases, which when added to the Saudis' action could add 2.5 to 3 cents a gallon to U.S. retail gasoline and heating oil prices.

The influential newsletter, quoting an unidentified Saudi source, said some OPEC members "have shown that their only target is to push the price of oil upwards regardless of any harmful consequences."

The source also was quoted as saying, "Saudi Arabia might either reduce its price," which at $26 a barrel, is the lowest in the cartel, "or considerably increase the level of production over and above the current level" of 9.5 million barrels a day.

"Politics would dictate (the Saudis) not starving the

IMPRACTICAL LOVE
There is a beautiful story in the New Testament about the woman who broke an alabaster cruse of ointment and anointed Jesus with the precious substance a few days before his crucifixion. This ointment cost about five hundred dollars, and probably represented the woman's savings.

The apostles objected to what seemed to them to be foolish waste. This ointment might have been sold and the money given to the poor. But Jesus brushed remonstrances aside and declared that the woman had done a beautiful thing which would cause her to be remembered throughout the ages.

Many people have failed to see the beauty of certain impractical, or sentimental, convictions to which Jesus tenaciously held. He believed in beauty. Whenever he saw love manifesting itself with abandon, as in the case of this woman, he was pleased. Love such as this is rare and beautiful.

Credibility Is Undercut

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — An oral directive to proceed at a new "slow pace" on negotiations with the Soviet Union to ban all nuclear tests has been converted into full speed ahead by administration arms controllers, raising new questions about the president's post-Afghanistan sincerity and confusing U.S. allies.

The decision to move along as usual with the Geneva-based comprehensive test ban talks, recessed Dec. 5 before the Soviet takeover of Afghanistan, is the result of strong pressure from the State Department and Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA). That pressure first diluted, then destroyed the cautious approach advocated by National Security and Pentagon advisers.

The new Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT II) has been placed on a Senate shelf. The export of American grain and technology has been sharply limited. The U.S. is thumbing its nose at the summer Olympics in Moscow. So presidential advisers saw no reason to make a business-as-usual exception for the comprehensive nuclear test-ban talks. Hence the "slow pace" verbal order from a National Security Council staffer to the bureaucrats running the test-ban talks.

But that directive did not survive long in the State Department and ACDA. Bureaucrats there have watched in agony as their favorite projects ("their bread and butter," one official said) have been singled by Carter's reaction to Soviet conduct.

So on Jan. 6 the State Department cabled to its foreign embassies: "We will pursue (the total nuclear test ban treaty) despite the deterioration in U.S.-Soviet relations." That means full speed ahead, with the U.S. negotiating team now ready to leave for Geneva in time to reconvene the talks Feb. 10, the day that had been set at the time of the Christmas recess.

Doubt about Carter's true purpose is compounded when his left hand quietly signals business as usual while his right hand is making punishing gestures out in public against the Kremlin. It is precisely this appearance of contradiction that makes it almost impossible for U.S. allies in Europe and Japan to divine whether the post-Afghanistan Carter is truly a new Carter or just the same old Jimmy wearing election-year hawk's clothing.

Some of the problems with the decision to move ahead with the comprehensive test ban are admittedly endemic. The Joint Chiefs of Staff, for example, have never wanted a complete ban on all testing. They succeeded in reducing the administration's original plan to a three-year treaty, not the five years Carter wanted or, as Moscow wants, a treaty with no time limit.

But the treaty poses other dilemmas for the U.S. growing directly out of the undisputed Soviet drive to build, flex and use its military muscles. For one conspicuous example, the U.S. has persuaded its NATO allies to proceed with a major new weapons program designed to modernize the

To the editor:

Last Friday the State of North Carolina, the City of Greensboro, the Board of Trustees and the administration of North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University and F. W. Woolworth recognized four young men who changed history when they initiated the first sit-in demonstration on Feb. 1, 1960. These gallant young freshmen refused to leave the stools on which they sat in Woolworth's until they were served at the same counter from which their white counterparts were being fed.

For this occasion, breakfasts were served these men, speeches and addresses were delivered by these men and others, songs of praise and adoration were bellowed and noteworthy media coverages were constant.

Amid this joyous song of Black achievement, a chilling elegy was declared. While these four men were alive to explain their story last Friday, one individual also acclaimed was dead. Killed in the spring of 1969, Willie Grimes' sacrifice had almost been forgotten.

It is fitting and proper that Willie Grimes was memorialized. His contributions to A & T University and to his community rests with those of us left with the challenge for productive human life.

I am proud that Willie Grimes' memory was honored. He was my Robinson schoolmate and my Aggie brother. He was a native of Winterville.

John W. Mays Jr.

To the editor:

The Carter administration would have us believe that we have no other recourse in response to current "world crises" than to sacrifice our daughters and sons once again on foreign soil. Have we such short memories that 500 dead youths per week (as in S. E. Asia) seems an acceptable price for oil? Is a life worth less than the inconvenience of a line at the pumps? We are a decent people, and should stand for higher principles than that!

The solution is simple. Nationalize the oil companies, so alternate forms of energy can get an equal footing with gasoline. Conserve energy until the transition can be made. And most importantly, say NO to the draft and a recurrence of the cold war.

Fears Becloud Tax Decisions

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Inflation may or may not come, but the fear of it has shadowed ordinary Americans for at least a year, so beclouding the issues that taxes have been increased right before their eyes.

Meanwhile, the ostensible economic issue is whether Washington should let taxes remain as they are or cut them. Those, seemingly, are the two options.

A tax increase is not even talked about — but it has passed. And it has enabled government spending to increase while labor and business are encouraged to practice austerity as an anti-inflation remedy.

Increases in Social Security taxes are estimated to add $15 billion to federal revenues for both the 1980 and 1981 fiscal years. Both the base wage and the tax rate will be especially higher in fiscal 1981.

Inflation is being taxed. As incomes rise, not in real terms but in relation to the falling buying power of the dollar, so do taxes. Estimates vary, but Uncle Sam is expected to gain by about $15 billion.

Close to $19 billion can be expected in fiscal 1981 from the so-called windfall profits tax, a misnomer to describe what is really a tax on oil company revenues rather than profits.

The increased revenues, amounting to $49 billion, have enabled the administration to propose a fiscal 1981 budget deficit of "only" $16 billion, down what looks like a $40 billion deficit in fiscal 1980.

This year, taxpayers will have the added burdens of even higher prices and higher Social Security taxes. And, who knows, perhaps a recession too.

Some time during the year the burden might become too much to bear, and demands for tax cuts will be heard. This being a political year, the chances seem good that some type of cut will be passed.

Will this make it any easier for the ordinary American? Maybe not. In cutting taxes, Washington might earn credits for doing something for the wage-earner, but the wage-earner probably will left with the bill.

It goes like this: Unless followed by an increase in private-sector activity, tax cuts leave the federal government with less money to spend. The federal government doesn't like to cut spending; it won't cut spending.

Consequently, the dollar's buying power has to fall. The ordinary American must use that weaker dollar for his purchases. And since that dollar won't buy as much, American families bears the burden.

Those are the likely consequences of what, by euphemistic chicanery, has come to be known in Washington as the new austerity. It applies to you.

Ingram Insists Chief Deputy Resigned After Filing

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State Insurance Commissioner John Ingram insisted today his chief deputy commissioner, Kenneth Brown, resigned and was not fired Monday after both men filed as Democratic candidates for insurance commissioner.

Ingram said he did not understand why Brown filed as a candidate or why Brown remained a candidate after Ingram qualified to run for re-election. Ingram filed with the state Elections Board on Monday morning about an hour after Brown had filed.

Brown said Monday that he was surprised to learn that Ingram had decided to seek re-election rather than run for another office. He said he had thought he would run for insurance commissioner with Ingram's support but that Ingram fired him shortly after going to the Elections Board.

"He knew the strong feelings of my family wanting me to run for re-election because he was at my home discussing that with my wife and my son ... last week," Ingram told reporters after delivering a speech in Raleigh today.

Ingram said Brown could have withdrawn from the race after Ingram became a candidate on Monday.

"He resigned. That was clear from what was said in the office yesterday," Ingram said. "Sometimes friends do things you don't understand."

Ingram declined to say if he would allow Brown to have his job back in the department but he said he was willing to discuss it with Brown. Ingram also refused to comment on reports that a second deputy commissioner of insurance, Byron Tatum, had also left the department as a result of Monday's events.

Ingram's decision to run for re-election — made just over two hours before the legal deadline for candidates to file — ended long speculation that he would run for a higher office, such as governor, lieutenant governor or U.S. Senator.

But no one was surprised more by Ingram's move than his chief deputy. Just an hour before Ingram entered the race, Brown had paid his $414 filing fee at the elections board to become a candidate, and said he had thought Ingram was going to enter the lieutenant governor's race.

"I'm surprised and disappointed that he's filed for re-election," said Brown, who had long been considered Ingram's choice for a successor if he sought another job.

"I talked to him Saturday and he told me to be here with my checkbook," Brown added. "I'm just going to have to assume he couldn't make up his mind ... The indecision certainly has been a painful one for me."

Ingram's decision to run for re-election came as others got in just under the wire and became candidates. U.S. Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C., escaped without a primary, while self-avowed Nazi Harold Covington of Raleigh entered the May 6 Republican primary for attorney general.

The bizarre turn of events in the Insurance Department was complicated further when Ingram, in a news conference, denied he had fired Brown but said he was accepting a voluntary resignation.

Then, in a heated conversation witnessed by reporters, Ingram, his wife Ginny and Brown discussed Brown's departure.

"That's a misunderstanding. You tendered your resignation and I said that's up to you," Ingram said.

"I am resigning at your request," Brown said. "I'm not going to do you the disservice of arguing with you."

The actions left a five-way race in the Democratic primary for the commissioner. Besides Ingram and Brown, also running are former Ingram chief deputies Roy Rabon of Burlington, and state Sen. Carolyn Mathis, D-Charlotte.

Mrs. Mathis, who is chairwoman of the Senate Insurance Committee, also filed as a candidate for re-election to her state Senate seat.

Insurance and real estate salesman Edwin Tenney Jr., a past unsuccessful candidate for commissioner, filed as the GOP candidate.

Record Usage For CP&L

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The current cold snap resulted in a record winter demand for electricity by Carolina Power & Light Co. customers, according to utility officials.

Usage peaked Friday a 5,664,000 kilowatts between 8 a.m. and 9 a.m., according to Jerry W. Kirk, manager of system operations and maintenance for CP&L. He said that surpassed the previous winter peak demand of 5,605,000 kilowatts on Feb. 7, 1978.

Kirk said the new winter peak demand is less than the all-time high on the CP&L system of 5,907,000 kilowatts on Aug. 9, 1979.

Shuttle Pilots Dismiss Risks

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Problems ranging from engine breakdowns to defective tiles have delayed the space shuttle program by nearly two years. But two astronauts being trained to fly the Columbia dismiss ideas of danger.

Veteran astronaut John Young and Navy Cmdr. Robert Crippen concede that they will be taking a risk when the reusable spacecraft is launched — possibly by the end of this year.

"Yes, there is a personal risk," Crippen said. "But driving on a freeway is worse."

"That's what we get paid for," said Young, adding, "The safety factor is far better than an airliner."

Covington's candidacy was disavowed by state Republican leaders, who put up their own candidate, former U.S. Attorney Keith S. Snyder of Asheville. The winner of the GOP primary will face Democratic incumbent Rufus Edmisten.

"We will have nothing to do with Mr. Covington," said state GOP chairman Jackson Lee.

Among the statewide offices, primary races will be required for governor, lieutenant governor, auditor, superintendent of public instruction and secretary of state.

In Congressional races, Democratic Reps. Walter Jones in the 1st District; Charles Whitley, 3rd; Ike Andrews, 4th; Richardson Preyer, 6th; Charles Rose, 7th; and W.G. Hefner in the 8th all have primary opposition. Jones is the only congressman who will not face a candidate from the opposing party.

The Republicans will have a primary for the attorney general's race.

world at a time when Russian tanks are threatening the Middle East oilfields," said Theodore R. Eck, chief economist of Standard Oil Co. (Indiana).

"If Saudi Arabia continues above 9 million barrels a day, my guess is that it will be very difficult for OPEC to effect additional increases," Eck said.

The Saudis have been priceincrease "doves" at OPEC meetings, trying to hold the line to prevent severe economic shocks that could plunge the industrialized world into a deep recession. Much of the Saudi's oil wealth has been reinvested in U.S. and Western European industry, real estate and securities.

No other candidate filed for the Senate, leaving Morgan and the only Republican candidate, John P. East of Greenville, to meet in the Nov. 4 general election.

There were no other candidates filing for governor, meaning incumbent Jim Hunt will face former Gov. Bob Scott and political newcomer Harry Welsh of Raleigh in the Democratic primary. State Sen. I. Beverly Lake Jr. of Raleigh will face Charles J. Carstens of Spruce Pine in the GOP primary for governor.

There are only two major candidates running in the Democratic primaries for governor and lieutenant governor, meaning there is a likely prospect that no runoff primary will be required for the three top offices up this year — governor, lieutenant governor and U.S. Senate.

The deadline passed without Democratic or Republican candidates filing to oppose re-election bids by Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham, Labor Commissioner John Brooks, Treasurer Harlan Boyles, Supreme Court Chief Justice Joseph Branch and Court of Appeals judges Cecil J. Hill and Hugh Wells.

There were no new candidates for lieutenant governor, leaving the Democratic race among Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green, House Speaker Carl Stewart and Clyde Pulley of Goldsboro. The only GOP candidate is William Cobey, athletic director at the University of North Carolina. State Supreme Court Associate Justice J. Phil Carlton received opposition in the Democratic primary when Ottway Burton of Asheboro filed to oppose him. No Republican is running, and no other candidates filed to oppose Branch or Appeals Court judges Cecil Hill and Hugh Wells.

NATO nuclear force. The total nuclear test ban treaty being negotiated at Geneva would create a nightmare for U.S. scientists and nuclear engineers if weapons testing becomes illegal. The new nuclear warheads to be placed in Western Europe could not be tested.

By the same token, the president's decision to go ahead with the MX missile, a mobile system calculated to preserve America's land-based intercontinental missiles from Soviet destruction, also will require extensive testing of warheads. Lacking that, warheads will have to be drawn from existing stockpiles.

Indeed, an Alice-in-Wonderland mentality pervades the decision to go back to the test-ban table with the Russians at this particular time. If agreement were reached by a sudden twist in Soviet policy that permitted the U.S. to place seismic verification stations on Soviet soil — to enforce compliance — the U.S. would find itself sealed in to an agreement that would deny any way to assure the reliability of new nuclear weapons. Nor would the U.S. know for sure, even with on-site inspection, that the Soviets were not cheating.

That became disconcertingly clear when American nuclear scientists were unable positively to identify the source of a strange, nuclear-like explosion that lit the skies in the South Atlantic Ocean on Sept. 22. Some nuclear experts are certain the brilliant flash was an atmospheric test explosion; others are not certain. Such uncertainty casts a new cloud over the validity of all test bans — atmospheric or underground — and counsels new negotiating caution.

The more compelling need for caution is to prove that Carter's new enlightened look at the Russians is real, not political. On that score the return to Geneva is a low mark for credibility.

The senator's demagogic liberalism, with its appeals in the name of justice, monopoly and the profits of Exxon, may galvanize his disheartened constituency, but that constituency is relatively small. What Mr. Kennedy has done is to enliven the campaign and further to reassure Mr. Carter's renomination. Considering the alternatives, I am bound to voice thanks.

There is nothing ignominious about going down one trick at a small slam. At least the victim can take a certain pride in the boldness that led to the loss. But to be set one trick at a contract of five in a major suit which you reached under your own power is as devastating to the morale as it is to the exchequer. He who climbs to five hearts or spades when there is no one in pursuit in a most unenviable position—he finds no hope of glory; no pride in having dared.

Which brings us to the sad case of Mr. North in today's hand. More properly our condolences should be extended to Mr. South, who had no voice at all in shaping his destiny, rough-hewn by his overenthusiastic partner. North got himself into trouble with his first rebid. Under the impression that he was making an absolute force, he jumped to three spades. No one could even quibble with South's raise to game. North, slam conscious all the while, suddenly decided that he had not yet done enough. He launched into Blackwood and settled in five spades when he discovered that two aces were missing. But the damage had already been done. There was no way to avoid the loss of a heart, a diamond and a club.

If North wishes to investigate slam possibilities, he should have done so at a level that was within his means. He could not afford to experiment at the five level, for such a contract ran unnecessary risks. Even if South showed up with an ace, there was no guarantee that he had trumps sufficiently well controlled to merit a slam.

North had placed his partner in a position where he could not come out whole. If South passed the three spade bid, he would miss a game. If he proceeded to game, his partner was intent on getting him overboard.

North's wiser rebid after his partner's one spade response would have been a leap to four spades. We are well aware of the cry that will greet this statement: "But that would be a shutout!" Fiddlesticks. After having opened the bidding with one heart, could North jump to four spades to deny a good hand? A player who has opened the bidding cannot thereafter make a shutout bid—he can only show a minimum. Bidding three spades ran the risk that South, with a dead minimum response, might pass!

Paramount TV Offers Too-Familiar Sitcom

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — "When you're in trouble," my mother always told us, "just call home." It still works. ABC doesn't have a mother. It has to call Paramount TV.

It isn't unreasonable that ABC would turn to Paramount now that things aren't going entirely smoothly. It was largely Paramount sitcoms that helped ABC to the top spot in the ratings competition, with "Happy Days," and then "Laverne and Shirley," "Angie," "Taxi" and "Mork and Mindy."

Now that CBS has caught and passed ABC in the season's ratings race, ABC has dipped into the Paramount sitcom well.

once again. What it got was something called "Goodtime Girls," which, for the life of me, looks an awful lot like "Laverne and Shirley Visit the '40s."

It's a weird sensation, watching something on television that you know you've never seen before, yet, you know you have. Weird, and boring.

"Goodtime Girls" is cute and charming in its way; unfortunately, it's also the way of most of ABC's other sitcoms. And those, it's been demonstrated, are losing their edge.

The new Tuesday night sitcom (which has the benefit of a "Happy Days" lead-in, a boon not as potent as it once was, but still valuable), follows the ABC comedy philosophy that nostalgia will never die. It's situated in the '40s, when, to quote the theme song, "The job wasn't easy, but the burden was shared, back in the '40s, when everyone cared."

Zzzzz... Oh! Sorry. The show is about four young ladies (Georgia Engel, Annie Potts, Lorna Patterson and Francine Tacker — talented and lovely ladies, all) who do pretty much the same things Laverne and Shirley do in the '50s, except the Goodtime Girls have better taste in clothes.

But not, apparently in men. There's no Lenny or Squiggy, but there is a greaser-type named Frankie, who kind of stands around and yuks it up and does the things that greaser types always do in ABC's Paramount-made sitcoms.

The jokes also came from the ABC sitcom factory. An example:

(The phone rings)
Miss Patterson: "Oh, that was my fiancé on the phone."
Miss Tacker: "Well, that narrows it down to an unruly mob."
See, Betty (Miss Tacker) just can't say no to soldiers on leave. Remember, this is back in the '40s, when everyone care.

The good thing about "Goodtime Girls" is that if you miss an episode, you can just tune in (Georgia Engel, Annie Potts, Lorna Patterson and Francine care.

Gasoline Price Gouger Given A Month In Jail

BOSTON (AP) — As other dealers cheered, a service station operator — the first in the nation to be prosecuted for price gouging — said it was "logical, rational and absolutely ethical" to charge $1.57 a gallon during last summer's gasoline shortage.

Glenn Heller, operator of Beacon Hill Gulf, was sentenced Monday in U.S. District Court to one month behind bars. In an impassioned speech to the judge, Heller said small-time operators are being squeezed out of business by federal regulators and greedy oil companies.

While about 50 fellow service station operators cheered, Heller decried "the existence of draconian dealer price controls allied with a Byzantine Department of Energy walking arm in arm with the seven largest industrial corporations that this earth has ever seen."

Heller, convicted last month on 27 counts of overcharging, was ordered by Judge Rya Zobel to pay a $9,450 fine and spend 30 days in prison followed by an 11-month suspended sentence. He was released on bail pending appeal.

The judge said Heller, 30, was the first service station operator to be prosecuted for price gouging. Heller was indicted Aug. 1, 1979, for charging in June up to $1.57 for a gallon of unleaded gas — 66 cents above the nationwide average.

Heller argued he needed to charge more than the legal maximum to pay his $1,200-a-month rent on his one-island service station. He said he raised prices to dampen demand so he could keep his station open around the clock.

"Using price as a valve to control flow of product during times of panic buying is a logical, rational and absolutely ethical response to the unchangeable laws of economics," Heller said.

Federal officials had no immediate comment.

Last July, the Energy Department changed its formula for computing prices and allowed dealers to make a maximum profit of 16.1 cents a gallon.

"The retail gasoline dealer, the little guy at the corner filling station, is surprisingly the only businessman in the United States today who has a federally regulated margin of profit that is destined to put him into bankruptcy," Heller said.

He maintained that big oil companies are squeezing out operators of company-owned stations by increasing their rents as much as 500 percent. The purpose, he said, is to replace them with a few big, profitable stations operated by the companies.

"In 10 years, you look to see how many of your friendly neighborhood service stations are left," he said. "You won't see any. They will have all been replaced by big company-operated pumps."

Set Wildfire Post Criteria

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Members of a nine-member committee say they have agreed on the criteria they will use in seeking a new executive director for the state Wildlife Resources Commission.

"The committee is looking for someone with experience in preparing a budget, public relations, fisheries management and the ability to work with state legislators and officials," said Sidney Baines, commission spokesman.

Baynes said the commission members met for three hours Friday and outlined a profile of the type of person they want to replace Robert C. Hazel. Hazel resigned last month at the request of J. Robert Gordon, chairman of the commission.

The next meeting of the committee is scheduled for March 8 in Raleigh and will be open to the public.

Nixon Moves State Must Hire Eight On Saturday For Care Of One Child

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon moves from California Saturday to make his home again in New York, where he launched his successful 1968 bid for the presidency. He will leave La Casa Pacifica, the seaside villa in San Clemente that served as the Western White House during his presidential years and the place of his near-exile ever since.

A source who requested anonymity said Nixon will visit his friend Bebe Rebozo in Miami before moving into the four-story townhouse in Manhattan Nixon bought Feb. 13.

Nixon, who resigned in 1974, sold his estate in San Clemente, Calif., to a two-man partnership that plans to turn the 20-plus acres into 16 homesites. The price was not announced. Nixon bought LaCasa Pacifica in 1969.

The Nixons' new home is on the south side of 65th Street between Lexington and Third avenues, on one of Manhattan's most exclusive residential blocks. Among their neighbors will be David Rockefeller, chairman of the Chase Manhattan Bank and Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr., the historian who was one of President John F. Kennedy's top aides.

While Nixon is with Rebozo, the friend said, Mrs. Nixon will visit her daughter and son-in-law, Julie and David Eisenhower, who moved recently from California to Paoli, Pa.

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Eight additional staff members will be hired at a center for mentally retarded children to care for a 12-year-old autistic child who is severely retarded.

Guilford County commissioners approved the hiring Monday night. The hiring of extra personnel to care for Danny Hunt was the result of a compromise among state and county officials and Danny's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hunt.

The commissioners delayed action last week on a request by the Hunts to hire the extra personnel to care for the boy, who is self-destructive and needs around-the-clock care. They were waiting for a promise from the state that it would not abandon Danny after June 30, when his emergency commitment to Kendall Center is scheduled to end.

The Hunts contend the state is required to provide education for the boy under the Federal Education for All Handicapped Children's Act.

The salaries of the eight, some of whom will be part-time employees, will cost the county $16,000 through June 30. The total cost of his care is expected to be about $23,000 through that period.

The state has promised to reimburse the county for the money it spends on Danny's emergency care. Area Mental Health Board Director Dayton Greene said he was told the promissory letter pledges to continue to pay for Danny's care after June 30, if funds are available.

The case already has cost the Hunts thousands of dollars and has exhausted a privately funded trust fund.

The state's decision to provide emergency care for the boy was the result of an agreement between Frank Johns, an attorney representing the child's parents, and state agencies. The agreement put off a lawsuit which Johns had planned to file on behalf of Danny and his parents.

"It is not our intention to place this burden on this community," Johns said. But if the state does not make some kind of arrangements for Danny's care after June 30, "you may well have to fund the needs of Danny Hunt."

Johns left no doubt that if some arrangements are not made for care after June 30, he will go ahead with the court case, which County Attorney Bill Trevorrow described as a "landmark case."

Advertises, Finds Bride

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — Herbert Morrow of Bessemer City says his advertisement for a bride was so successful he'd do it again if need be.

"I'm glad I did it," he said. "I knew I'd pick up plenty that way and get the woman for me out of the bunch."

The woman for the 72-year-old Morrow turned out to be 64-year-old Cora Wilson of Morganton, who saw an Associated Press story about his search.

The couple exchanged wedding vows Sunday in a brief ceremony in South Carolina. Said the new Mrs. Morrow, "Don't ask me why, but I'm glad I wrote."

"I just really thought she had something nice when I read her letter," Morrow said. "Seemed like she was real nice and I liked her looks when I saw her."

In his advertisement in a local newspaper, Morrow said he wanted a future wife between 40 and 65 years of age, shorter than 6 feet 3 inches, and who weighed less than 250 pounds but more than 165.

He also said he wanted a Christian woman who was a good cook, cleaned well and had a sense of humor. Morrow's first wife died in 1973.

As word spread of his search for a bride, Morrow was besieged with letters and telephone calls from across the nation. He was still receiving offers the night before his wedding day.

But it was Mrs. Wilson's letter that impressed him enough for him to ask her out on a date.

Disappointed By Senate Setback

ATLANTA (AP) — The post was mostly honorary, but when defeated in a bid to become the Georgia Senate majority whip, State Sen. Julian Bond of Atlanta seemed disappointed.

"I feel like the former governor, Marvin Griffin, who said once, 'A lot of people who ate my barbecue didn't vote for me,'" said Bond on Monday.

The veteran black legislator and civil rights activist lost 27-21 to Sen. Loyce Turner of Valdosta in voting by the senate's Democratic Caucus. On Bond's motion, the vote was declared unanimous.

Seek History In Chowan River

EDENTON, N.C. (AP) — A group of historians and archeologists plan to search beneath the waters of the Chowan River this spring, seeking material from the earliest periods of European settlement in North Carolina.

Investigators, who plan to conduct a five-week underwater archeological field trip beginning May 19, say Edenton's 275-year-old harbor may have shipwrecks and vessel remains containing historical and cultural material beneath its mud.

"Preliminary investigations have shown that the sediments of Edenton harbor will have offered excellent protection for whatever submerged material they may contain," said Dr. William N. Still Jr., maritime historian at East Carolina University.

Rigid Gasoline Conservation

CARTHAGE, N.C. (AP) — Moore County commissioners adopted a rigid gasoline-conservation plan Monday that restricts all county-owned vehicles to specified fuel consumption levels.

Martin Chriscoe, assistant county administrator, said the plan would restrict gasoline consumption monthly to 7,500 gallons — a decrease of about 1,000 gallons. The county has a fleet of 58 vehicles.

Chriscoe said any department that depleted its allocation before the end of the month will not be allowed the use of county vehicles until the first of the next month.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market headed lower today, continuing the decline that set in Monday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 2.31 to 872.78 in the first half hour.

Losers outnumbered gainers by a 3-2 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said there was no special news development that touched off the selling.

They noted that the market behaved sluggishly in early trading Monday, apparently convincing traders that the rally of the past four weeks had at least temporarily run out of steam.

Selling was particularly evident in many of the stocks that enjoyed the best gains in January, such as oil and defense issues.

Today's early prices included Boeing off ¼ at 65¼; Occidental Petroleum, down ¼ at 28½, and Getty Oil, down ½ at 91.

On Monday the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 6.39 to 875.09.

Declines outnumbered advances by a 5-4 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 43.07 million shares, against 46.61 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index lost .39 to 65.89.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .93 at 276.64.

I assured him I wouldn't. He took that as a sign of enthusiasm and ever since then I have received nothing from him that has not lived in the sea.

There are octopus finger puppets, ashtrays made of shells (we don't smoke), coral toothbrush holders, and a shark's mouth with a hook in it that holds your car keys.

A walk through our house is like a trip to the zoo. Animals tend to drift in and out of public favor. We've gone from adorable alligators (who crack nuts) to cute bears, to performing monkeys, to winsome unicorns, to regal reindeer, to lovable mice, to grinning cats. This year it was pigs.

We have wooden pig cutting boards, ceramic pigs that hold salt and pepper, pigs in groups that play instruments, glass pigs shaped like pencils, pigs that hold cookies and grow plants, and corn husk pigs that have a Christmas wreath around their necks — not to mention painted pigs that hold hands around the shower curtain.

My husband and I have discussed this. We don't know when we appeared to our children to have everything in this world — except something to dust. One theory is they figured we're too old to be anything but spectators. Another is in the few precious years left, we should lose our practicality and play it for laughs.

My birthday is in two weeks. I need a black evening handbag. It'll be shaped like a pig.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY CARRIES THIS MANY BLANKETS 896 MILES ON A GALLON OF FUEL.

"Guess how far a truck could carry it."

For instance, on the Southern, this 500-lb. stack of blankets can travel 896 miles on one gallon of fuel. How far could a truck carry it on the same amount of fuel? Well, the railroad is, on average, about four times more fuel-efficient than trucks and 60 times more efficient than planes. So it's easy to see that trucks can't carry freight anywhere near as far as railroads can per gallon of fuel.

What does this mean for the future? Well, it means that trucks will be used less and less for long hauls.

More and more products will ride on the Southern, and trucks will be used for distribution at the other end of the line. Because, in the coming years, only the railroad will have the energy-efficiency for long hauls.

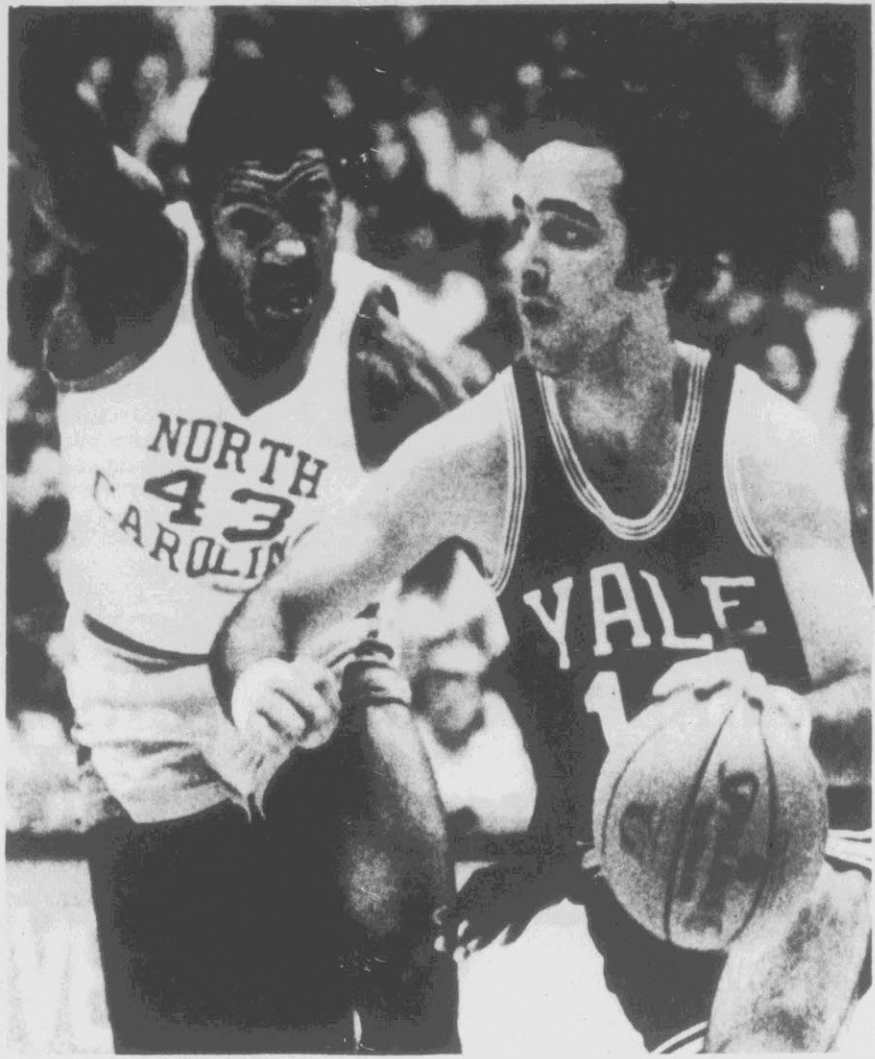

We have the energy for the long haul.

By TOM CANAVAN Associated Press Writer DePaul Coach Ray Meyer waited over 37 years to reach the No.1 spot in The Associated Press basketball poll, and now that he's there, it appears he may be planning to stay for a while. Meyer's unbeaten Blue Demons were tabbed No.1 on all 59 ballots and collected a perfect score of 1,180 points from a national committee of sport writers and broadcasters Monday in easily outdistancing runner-up Syracuse. The vote also marked the third consecutive week DePaul, 19-0, has been the unanimous selection of the board and fourth week overall they have been ranked No.1. "There's no monkey on our back anymore," Meyer said last week after victories over Creighton and North Texas

State. But the monkey played havoc on a number of the teams in the Top 20 last week with only two teams managing to remain in the same position the held a week ago. Syracuse, ranked fourth last week when they posted triumphs over Temple and Providence, replaced Oregon State in the No.2 position with 1,066 points. Louisville, ranked No.7 for the past three weeks, leaped into the No.3 spot with this week with 1,001 points. It's the highest ranking the Cardinals have held this season and comes just one day after their thrilling 76-71 victory over

St. John's on national television. Oregon State, upset by UCLA last week, fell to fourth with 946 points. Kentucky, No.3 last week, slipped to fifth with 865 points — five more than No.6 Louisiana State, which was ranked 10th last week when it upset the Wildcats 65-60 at Lexington. Up-and-coming Maryland, No.12 a week ago, skyrocketed into the No.7 spot with 844 points. The Terps, the surprising leaders of the tough Atlantic Coast Conference — five ACC teams are in the Top 20 — posted victories over Virginia and Duke in action last week. St. John's and Notre Dame switched positions this week with the Redmen taking over the No.8 spot with 697 points. The Irish, knocked off by LaSalle last week, were ninth with 660 points — two more than No.10 Duke, which dropped five notches after being thrashed by Maryland 101-82 last Saturday.

Bruised Heels Topple Yale

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina Coach Dean Smith gave his Tar Heels mixed reviews after they rallied in the second half to trounce Yale, 85-74, in a college basketball win Monday night.

"I thought we played good defense in the first half," Smith said. "In the second half, we kept coming down and missing open 15-footers and they would get the rebound and go down and score."

Smith said John Virgil had a bruised back and Dave Colescott fell on a right knee he had already injured in the first half. But Smith said both are likely to play in Thursday's Atlantic Coast Conference game against Maryland. "We face a big challenge there," Smith said. "We haven't been to a nationally ranked team's home court without James Worthy," Smith said the Tar Heels would rest today, then practice for an hour or an hour and a half Wednesday.

Mike O'Koren led the Tar Heels with 20 points while Al Wood added 16. Frank Maturo led Yale with 22.

Despite his team's loss, Yale Coach Ral Carazo said, "If we play this way the rest of the year, I don't know of too many teams that will beat us."

North Carolina was the only ACC team in action Monday night. There is no ACC play tonight. On Wednesday, Duke will face Virginia, Wake Forest will travel to Clemson and Georgia Tech will meet North Carolina State.

Rams Hand Vikings Third Straight Loss

SNOW HILL — Roderick Lane pumped in 19 points and Cecil Streeter added 15 to lead Greene Central to a stunning 65-53 upset of D.H. Conley Monday night in an Eastern Carolina Conference basketball game.

Earlier, in the girls' game, the Valkyries, behind Glenda Green's 19 points, whipped Greene Central, 48-39.

The win left Greene Central's boys' record at 5-9 in the ECC and 7-13 overall while Conley, which has lost three straight conference matches, is 8-6 in the league and 13-7 overall.

"This was a great win for us," Greene Central coach Lewis Godwin said. "I thought we played good defense throughout the game and we had some good shots during the second and fourth quarter."

After falling behind 15-12 at the end of the first period, the Rams outscored the Vikings 19-10, with Streeter leading the way with 11 points. Greene Central led at the half, 31-25.

Going into the fourth quarter, the Rams' lead was still at six, 44-38, but Lane connected on 10 of his game-high 19 points to lead the Rams to the victory.

Jerome Artis added 12 points for the winners while Mitchell Moore, Sammy Tucker and Keith Gatlin all had 10 points for the Vikings.

In the girls' game, Conley, now 6-8 in the ECC and 10-8 overall, spurred to a 13-6 first-period lead and led at the break, 25-17. The Valkyries saw their lead cut to three, 34-31, going into the final period but held off the Rams, outscoring them 14-8 in the final quarter, to win. Greene Central, now 3-11 and 6-14, was led by Letha Taylor's game-high 23 points.

Greene Central travels tonight to conference-leading Farmville Central, which has a chance to clinch a tie for the ECC boys' title with a win. Conley travels to C.B. Aycock tonight.

Tar Heels Swim Past East Carolina Teams

East Carolina University's swimmers went down to defeat for the third straight time to an Atlantic Coast Conference team last night, as the University of North Carolina gained a pair of wins.

The Tar Heels topped the ECU men, 69-44, and took an 89-51 win over the women.

Last week, the Pirates bowed to N.C. State and Duke to start their loss string, which dropped the men's mark to 4-3, while the women are now 2-5.

"You have to meet tough teams to get better," ECU Coach Ray Scharf said. "The last seven days have been a very emotional period for us. If he had had these times Saturday at Duke we would have won that one. But that was a valley between two emotional peaks."

In the water, the score was close, but once again, the Pirates lost heavily in the diving. "We just lost to a better team, but we had a great effort. We just ran out of ammunition," Scharf said.

East Carolina hosts the annual Atlantic Seaboard Interscholastic Championships this Saturday.

Four Top 20 Teams Capture Victories

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Writer

When they played last year, the Syracuse basketball team buried Siena by 52 points. It wasn't as bad this time. The Orangemen "only" won by 35.

"It was a good opportunity to give everyone a shot to play," said Syracuse Coach Jim Boehm after Monday night's 99-64 rout. "It gave us a chance to work on our defense and positioning, and I thought we did a good job on our defense."

"Roosevelt (Boie) makes such a difference against a team like Siena. Roosevelt dominates so much, they just give up. They can't handle him."

Last year's 144-92 Syracuse romp which set several all-time school scoring records, by the way, prompted a tongue-in-cheek "Beat Siena Week" on the Syracuse campus. The promotion brought banners, chants and a sea of "Beat Siena" T-shirts to Monday's game.

"Our only regret was that they were making a zoo out of the game," said Siena guard Rod Owens. "We took it very seriously. I think all the yelling and T-shirts got us psyched up a little more."

The victory by the nation's second-ranked team was one of four by Top Twenty clubs Monday night. In other action, No. 3 Louisville whipped Memphis State 88-60; No. 9 Notre Dame trimmed Navy 67-53 and No. 11 North Carolina stopped Yale 85-74.

Darrell Griffith scored 31 points to lead Louisville's conquest of Metro Conference foe Memphis State. Eight of Griffith's points came in a 22-2 Louisville spurt midway through the second half that put the game out of the Tigers' reach.

Orlando Woolridge scored 18 points to lead Notre Dame over Navy. The Fighting Irish outscored Navy 29-7 at the foul line in the second half en route to their 15th victory in 18 games.

The Irish played once again without forward Kelly Trippuca, who sat out his fourth straight game with a strained back. He was joined on the bench by Gilbert Salinas, who sprained an ankle Saturday night in Notre Dame's 105-71 victory over Davidson.

Mike O'Koren's 20 points paced North Carolina over Yale. The Tar Heels played for the most part without the services of three of their top players — Rich Yonakor, Dave Collescott and John Virgil, all suffering injuries. "I thought we played good defense in the first half," said North Carolina Coach Dean Smith, but added, "In the second half, we kept coming down and missing open 15-footers and they would get the rebound and go down and score."

Elsewhere, Michael Brooks scored a game-high 30 points to lead LaSalle over Lehigh 90-79; Randy Smithson and Mike

Jones teamed for 25 points to lead Wichita State over New Mexico State 80-78; Bill Fields scored 23 points as Providence defeated Canisius 88-72; Terry Adolph scored 27 points and dished out 14 assists to pace West Texas State past Tulsa 92-80 and Rosie Barnes hit a jump shot with 20 seconds to go in overtime, lifting Bowling Green to a 79-78 decision over Ball State.

Also, Mike Doyle triggered a second-half rally and Jim Strickland scored a career-high 25 points to lead South Carolina over Rhode Island 84-75; Edmund Sherod and Tim Harris sparked a 16-4 run to help Virginia Commonwealth beat New Orleans 72-64; a 26-point performance by Ricky Pierce led Rice over Wright State 84-78; South Alabama defeated Jacksonville 65-58 as Ed Rains scored 15 points; David Little, Kent Williams and Ralph Brewster each scored 12 points as Texas Tech beat Texas A&M 63-53 and LaSalle Thompson led Texas to a 54-point first half and the Longhorns went on to an 84-82 victory over Houston.

Sammy Ellis scored 25 points and Carlton Neverson hit two key free throws with 12 seconds left to lead Pitt over Eastern Kentucky 80-78; Jon Hanley's 18 points paced Xavier over Cincinnati 77-69; Rodney Arnold hit four foul shots in the final 18 seconds to lead Florida State past Auburn 73-69; Brad Branson's 19 points paced SMU over Baylor 73-69; Delmar Harrod's 27 points helped St. Bonaventure beat Detroit 88-86; Lewis Lloyd's 30 points paced Drake over Indiana State 85-80; Scott Hastings and U.S. Reed teamed for 27 points as Arkansas beat TCU 77-47; Richard Wright's two free throws with four seconds left clinched Oregon's 82-81 victory over Southern Cal and Andrew Toney's 26 points paced Southwestern Louisiana over Lamar 75-64.

Butterfly-Bee Ali Continues His Tour

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Floating like the proverbial butterfly and stinging like a bee with his remarks, Muhammad Ali continued his suddenly controversial tour of Africa today.

U.S. State Department officials say, in fact, that Ali's recent acerbic statements "are giving us a little heartburn."

The well-known boxer, on a five-nation tour of Africa theoretically to drum up support for President Carter's stand against the Moscow Olympics this summer, was anything but diplomatic Monday in Nairobi, Kenya, when he called the United States and Russia "the baddest two white men in history."

The presidential envoy also turned against Carter when he told a news conference that the President had put him on the spot by asking him to defend the U.S. record in Africa.

"I'm not here to take America's whipping," Ali said on the second stop of his tour. "I am totally against South Africa."

Ali appeared to be startled when reporters asked him why the Soviet Union, and not the United States, traditionally has supported African liberation groups fighting against the remaining white colonial regimes.

Ali said he would tell President Carter in Washington next week, "if you make a move against South Africa...then these people will be glad to aid you."

Ali said Africans also resented being asked to stay away from the Moscow Games to protest the Soviets' military intervention in Afghanistan, although the United States refused to join an African boycott of the 1976 Olympics in Montreal to protest western sports links with Africa.

"African people have all the right to say to us: 'If you didn't support us, why should we support you?'"

Ali was scheduled to meet religious and sports leaders today before leaving Wednesday for West Africa.

Rampants Gain 13th On AP Prep Cage Poll

By The Associated Press

Greensboro Page and Raleigh Sanderson remained unbeaten last week and retained their top spots in this week's Associated Press poll of North Carolina high school basketball teams.

Page, defending boys 4A playoff champion, improved its record to 16-0 and topped the boys 4A voting by a statewide panel of sportswriters. Second is Raleigh Enloe, which totaled 136 points — seven less than Page. Goldsboro is third. The top three places are the same as last week.

Sanderson, 18-0, is leading the girls 4A voting and is the first team this season to get all first-place votes in any week. Goldsboro, 16-0, was second in the voting, and East Mecklenburg was third. Those top three schools also are the same as last week.

There was one new leader this week. Currituck, 18-0, took the 2A-1A boys lead, replacing Wake Forest-Rolesville, 15-3. Wake Forest, defending state playoff champion, slipped to second. South Granville advanced two notches to third.

The other leaders this week are Durham Jordan (boys 3A), Graham (girls 3A) and Jordan-Matthews (girls 2A-1A). Jordan-Matthews, 19-2, had the closest finish, outpointing Clarkton, 19-0, by one point. Princeton moved up four spots, taking third place.

Jordan, 20-0, received 14 of 15 first-place votes and was far ahead of runner-up Salisbury, 20-1. R-S Central, 21-0, took third place. In the girls 3A voting, Graham, 15-0, edged Southwest Edgecombe, 19-0, for the top spot. South Iredell, 20-0, was a close third.

IOC To Meet In Lake Placid To Ponder Fate Of Summer Games

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — The harassed International Olympic Committee (IOC) takes up residence in this small mountain ski resort this week to try to save the tottering Olympic Games.

The XIII Winter Olympics, for which this village of 2,700 people has been preparing for six years, opens in eight days and no major problems are expected. But next weekend the IOC will meet in a quaint, rambling timber-built country hotel to ponder over the fate of the threatened Summer Olympics in Moscow next July, and over ways to save them.

As the Russians pour more and more troops into Afghanistan, and President Jimmy Carter presses on with his call for a boycott of Moscow, it appears likely the 1980 Olympics will be dramatically reduced in size or perhaps collapse altogether.

The governments of some 30 countries have supported Carter's call for the Games to be moved or canceled or boycotted if Soviet troops are not pulled out of Afghanistan. National Olympic committees are the bodies to decide ultimately whether to send athletes, but many are expected to fall in behind their governments or be pressured by public opinion.

What can the IOC do in the next week to stem the tide that threatens to engulf the Games?

Not much. It is bound by the Olympic

Charter and dedicated to the ideals of bringing the youth of the world together in sport every four years, irrespective of politics.

It is a purely international body with a curious and unique constitution of its own which gives it complete autonomy and makes it answerable to no one — governments, national sports authorities or anyone else. And it belongs as much to the Russians, who were admitted to the Olympic movement 30 years ago, as to the West.

The IOC is under contract to Moscow, which has been preparing since 1974 to stage the 21 sports and house some 10,000 athletes, coaches and sports officials and 7,000 members of the media.

They cannot be postponed, Olympic leader, Irish Lord Killanin, insists. They cannot be canceled.

Thus far the vast Olympic family — 140 national Olympic committees and 25 international sports federations — have remained largely faithful to the Olympic ideal and refused to commit themselves to a boycott. But many of them know they will have to bow to public opinion unless the unexpected happens and the Russians pull out of Afghanistan.

Julian K. Roosevelt, one of the IOC's two members in the United States, reached Lake Placid Monday — the first of the 89 members to arrive. He has campaigned strongly for the USOC to defy Carter and the public opinion polls and send a team to the Olympics as usual.

Tonight Howe makes a record appearance to go along with his record for All-Star goals (10), assists (8), total points, and penalty minutes (25). He'll play with Minnesota left wing Steve Payne and Boston center Jean Ratelle, at 39 the only other Wales star who has been born when Howe made his first All-Star showing in 1948.

The crowd is expected to surpass the alleged world record attendance of 20,009 who showed up in St. Louis for a 1973 Blues game. The people of Gordie Howe's city will pay him homage...even if as Howe put it, his appearance was "a gift."

Meanwhile, the players and owners were to meet again to discuss the issue of free agency, but the athletes spent so much of their meeting Monday on the tenure of executive director Alan Eagleson, they spent about "two minutes" on compensation.

Eagleson, however, received a unanimous vote of confidence through the 1982 season, and a search committee was named to find his successor.

Gordie Howe Again Is On NHL's All-Stars

DETROIT (AP) — They asked for "just one more autograph," and Gordie Howe obliged. They asked "just one more picture, Gordie, please," and he offered yet another wooden smile, perhaps his two hundredth of the National Hockey League All-Star Banquet.

For a moment, the crowd around him abated, and Vaclav Nedomansky of the Detroit Red Wings walked up to the hockey legend. The Czech-born center introduced his wife and said, "I've always enjoyed your city. It's our home now."

Howe doesn't play here anymore, but he did for 25 indescribable years. At 51, a Hartford Whaler now, he returns but not to "his" city as a member of the Prince of Wales Conference All-Stars — his 23rd appearance in a game that has been played only nine times without him.

And, practiced now in this annual speech, he says it still is a thrill. He stood at the microphone before the adoring audience at the banquet and said he'd like to thank "a young man named Scotty Bowman," a fellow five years Howe's junior and coach of the Wales squad that seeks its fifth consecutive victory tonight over the Clarence Campbell stars.

TRACK AND FIELD
SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Kenya's Henry Rono, holder of four world records, scored an impressive victory in the 5,000-meters and former world record holder John Walker of New Zealand won the mile in an international track and field meet.

Rono broke away from the field in the closing laps and took the race in 13 minutes, 35 seconds, while Walker clocked a 3:56.9 victory in the mile.

Alan Wells of Scotland, who uses a standing start, scored a sprint double in the 100- and 200-meters. Wells took the 100 in 10.3 seconds and the 200 in 20.8. Mary Decker of the United States, the world record holder in the women's mile, won the 800 in 2:01.1, and James Maina of Kenya took the men's 800 in 1:49.8.

HOCKEY
DETROIT (AP) — The National Hockey League Players

Association voted unanimously to retain Alan Eagleson as its executive director through the 1982 season. The decision was announced by Phil Esposito, president of the NHLPA.

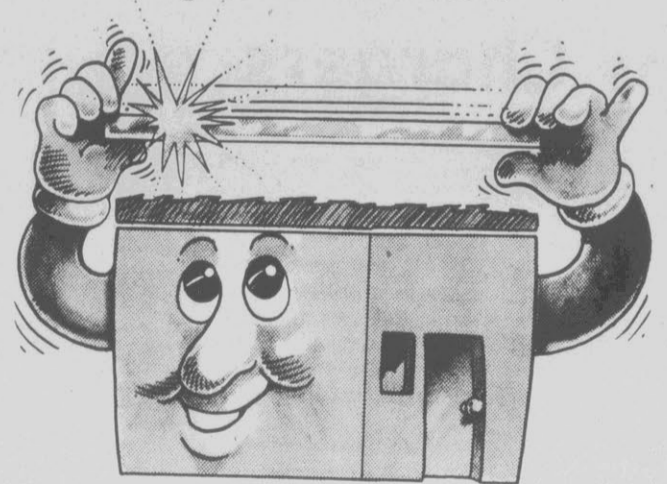

The association also voted to name a seven-man-search committee to find an assistant executive director who would learn the NHLPA operation under Eagleson and, ostensibly, replace the association head when he resigns in 1982.

The secret beneath today's finest roofing system is your old roof.

Patching a failing roof is not the answer. It's an ineffective way to buy a very short period of time.

Building a totally new roof is not the answer. It shuts down your operations for literally hundreds of man-hours.

The most cost-efficient solution, by several standards of measurement, is simply to put a new roof right over your existing one. But that new roof had better be a good one. One that has been developed to combat sky-rocketing energy and maintenance costs.

We have it. Today's finest roof is the MR-24 system. No matter how thick your present roof may be, the MR-24 roof can cover it quickly, with no interruption of your operation. And at a very realistic price.

The MR-24 standing seam roof system is a continuous, single-skin metal covering consisting of panels that are joined by a unique, patented seaming process for maximum weathertightness.

As you would expect, the MR-24 roof is installed with up to six inches of fiberglass blanket insulation, with special thermal blocks added to those points where insulation might tend to compress. Add this to your existing roof insulation and the result is a remarkably effective thermal barrier.

The MR-24 roof is recognized as "today's finest roof system." And to put some teeth into what would be taken as just one more advertising superlative, we offer an extended life material warranty for up to 20 years on aluminum and aluminum-zinc coated MR-24 roof panels.

Put both your energy and roof integrity concerns to rest for years to come by reroofing with our MR-24 roof system.

Jesse Owens Facing Toughest Fight Ever

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

While the country wrestles with the dilemma of boycotting the Moscow Olympics, all of us should pause a moment and give a thought to perhaps the greatest Olympian of them all, Jesse Owens.

Jesse, now 66, has had to fight most of his life. Son of an Alabama sharecropper, he has had to overcome bias in this country and slurs of being "of an inferior race" when he invaded Berlin for the 1936 Nazi Olympics.

The swift, coordinated black athlete shamed Adolf Hitler by winning four gold medals and overcame numerous obstacles to emerge as a successful businessman. America's Olympic "elder statesman" and most fluent spokesman.

Now he is facing his toughest battle — lung cancer.

A telephone call to his Phoenix, Ariz., home brought good news. He is reacting favorably to drugs and gaining strength after treatment at the University of Arizona Health Sciences Center.

"He is up and about," said his wife, Ruth, "and we are encouraged, but he isn't up to a lot of conversation."

Asked if Jesse had expressed himself on the present Olympic situation, Mrs. Owens said: "Oh, no. He's not ready to bite that bullet yet. You know, he gets very emotional."

There are few more emotional or dynamic men than Jesse Owens, who is reminiscent of the late Dr. Martin Luther King when he takes the podium in defense of Olympic ideals and pride of country.

"The Olympics have become the whipping post of politics," he once said, "but, thank God, they are still run by man. Man has a way of over-riding such influences."

There is no indication how Jesse would view President Carter's call for a Moscow boycott. He undoubtedly would be torn between patriotism and a strong belief in the sanctity of the Olympic code.

While the press sensationally played up the theme that Hitler, surrounded by storm troopers, snubbed the black man who shattered the Fuehrer's theory of Aryan supremacy, Owens himself always has downplayed the incident.

"I don't know," Jesse said. "I never looked toward the box where Hitler and his entourage sat. I was too busy worrying about fulfilling my childhood dream."

"I was conditioned to discrimination when I went to Berlin. I was not politically oriented. None of us was. We were too busy working on our personal goals."

Patriot, preacher, ambassador, inspiration for the young, Owens refused to become embittered by early hardships and emerged as an unwavering booster of the American way of life.

Owens has refused to be disillusioned by the national rivalries and politics that have plagued the Games for years.

"You've got to be there to appreciate it," Jesse said recently. "Break bread together, sing together, train together and, at the end, see athletes looking around for an old friend from another country to trade a tie, a jacket or a tunic."

"That's the way I see the Olympic Games."

Southern Has No Front Runner

By The Associated Press

Seven teams took to the boards in the Southern Conference Monday night, but despite the heavy league action, none has emerged as a clear front-runner for the conference title.

Appalachian State upset Marshall University 47-41, taking a 6-4 lead early in the first half and never dropping behind. Marshall threatened once with 5:55 left in the first half, when the Thundering Herd rolled off six unanswered points.

But John Fitch hit a jumper with three seconds left in the period to give the Mountaineers a 28-24 halftime lead.

Appalachian is now 3-10 in the conference and 7-14 overall. Marshall drops to 7-5 in the conference, 12-10 overall.

East Tennessee State took another early lead and kept it for an 89-78 Southern Conference basketball victory over Virginia Military.

"We came out in the first half and did exactly what we wanted to do. We played good defense and controlled the boards," said East Tennessee Coach Jim Hallihan of his Buccaneers, who at one time led by 22 points.

VMI Coach Charlie Schmaus said, "We dug ourselves in a hole in both games (against East Tennessee) that we just couldn't get out of."

East Tennessee is now 6-6 in the conference and 12-10 overall, while VMI dropped to 5-6 in the conference and 10-10 overall.

The University of Tennessee-Chattanooga overcame a first-half deficit for a 90-75 Southern Conference victory over Davidson.

Chattanooga took a 32-30 halftime lead and never gave it up. Randy Harris scored 26 points and James Jones added 18 for the win.

Rich DiBenedetto led Davidson with 29 points while Todd Haynes chipped in 18.

Chattanooga is now 11-9 overall and 6-5 in the conference, while Davidson is 7-14 overall and 4-9 in the conference.

The Citadel snapped a six-game losing streak in Monday night's 90-70 non-conference win over Coastal Carolina.

Freshman Geer Huguley pumped in 18 points for the Citadel, while Tom Slawson added 14.

Thomas Is Sullivan Winner

By STEVE HERMAN
AP Sports Writer
INDIANAPOLIS (AP) —

Anything Kurt Thomas does, he does to win. Finishing second, he says, is like finishing last.

"Winning is best," said the 23-year-old gymnast, who last year became the first American to win an all-around medal in international competition. He added another first to his list of accomplishments Monday night as recipient of the Amateur Athletic Union's annual Sullivan Award as the nation's top amateur athlete.

"This means a few things to me," the former NCAA champion from Indiana State University said. "First, it's important to me because it is given in Indiana, and this is where my gymnastics really began. Another thing is that this is the most prestigious award given."

Thomas, now an assistant coach at Arizona State University, beat out Renaldo Nehemiah, the world record holder in the high hurdles, and 15-year-old Cynthia Woodhead, who set two world and nine American swimming records in 1979, in the voting for the 50th annual Sullivan Award.

In addition to his own personal achievements, Thomas said he sees the emergence of American gymnasts as serious contenders in international competition as a source of "a lot of satisfaction."

"It's definitely improved overall," he said. "We competed (in the world championships at Fort Worth, Texas, in December) very well as a team, winning the bronze medal. And this is the first time we've had much depth."

Thomas, an intense perfectionist, finished fourth in the World Cup meet in Tokyo in June, then was runnerup in the all-around to Russia's Aleksandr Ditiatin in the world championships. It was the highest finish ever for an American gymnast in the world championships.

Thomas earned a gold medal in the horizontal bar, tied for another gold in the floor exercise, won a silver medal in the pommel horse and shared another silver in the parallel bars.

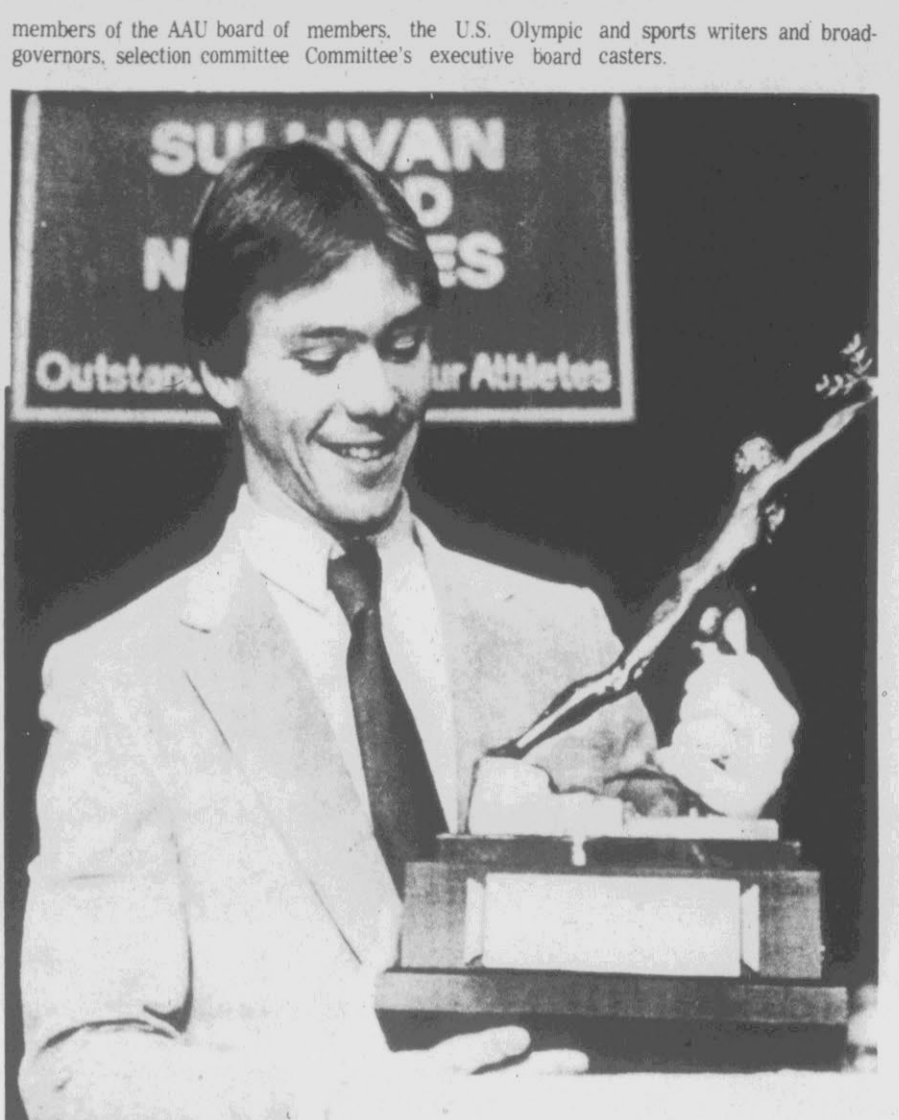

Never satisfied with second place, Thomas said he nonetheless felt "really pleased with my competition. I hit 22 of 22 routines without a major break."

It was the second year in a row Thomas had been nominated for the Sullivan Award. He finished third a year ago, behind swimmer Tracy Caulkins, the winner, and marathon runner Bill Rodgers.

"I didn't feel last year I had even a chance to win this award," Thomas said, "but I said if I was nominated again I'll come back and try again, and if I didn't win it this year, I'd try again next year."

Nehemiah, 20, of the University of Maryland, is ranked No. 1 in the world in the high hurdles. He won the AAU, NCAA and Pan American Games championships. Woodhead, of Riverside, Calif., earned five gold medals in the Pan American Games in July.

The Sullivan Award has been presented by the AAU since 1930 when the first award went to golfer Bobby Jones. It is based on tabulation of some 2,500 ballots from past winners.

SOME CALL IT A GLOBAL ACCOMPLISHMENT.

BOOGER SCALES CALLS IT "TENDING TO BUSINESS"

Out of approximately 574,500 full-time life underwriters in the world in 1979, only the top 3 per cent — 17,205 — made the Million Dollar Round Table.

BOOGER SCALES WAS ONE OF THEM.

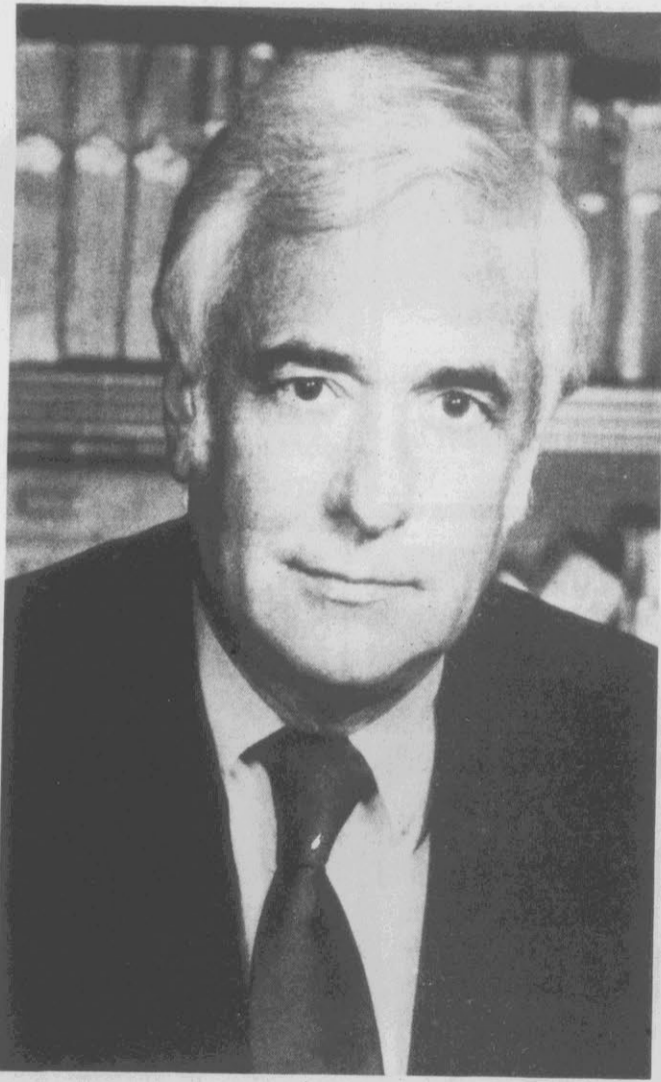

The Million Dollar Round Table represents the best in the business every year. The highest-producing, hardest-working and best-servicing agents in the world.

BOOGER SCALES WAS ONE OF THEM.

Of the 17,205 MDRT members last year, only 83 qualified for their 25th consecutive year or more.

BOOGER SCALES WAS ONE OF THEM.

Only 83 in the world had 25 consecutive years or more of top-notch service and consistently superior sales. Agents who

W. M. Scales Jr., Integon's all-time leading agent continuously dedicated their time, effort and knowledge.

BOOGER SCALES WAS ONE OF THEM.

Last year, Booger's paid-for business totalled $8,316,043. That equals $22,783 of family and business financial protection each day.

We want the people of Greenville to know this, because we want them to know they have Booger Scales to count on. He can give you the kind of service only 82 other life underwriters in the world can deliver. Day after day. Month after month. For 25 years in a row.

To us, it's a global accomplishment.

To Booger Scales, it's the kind of every-day service his customers have come to expect.

So, don't you believe it makes sense to have Booger Scales tending to your insurance business?
