Bani-Sadr Asserts Shah Still Wanted

By The Associated Press
President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr said Iran will never give up its fight to get back the shah and his wealth although release of the U.S. Embassy hostages is not linked to that issue. But Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh and the embassy captors said the shah must be returned before the hostages are freed.

Meanwhile, the state radio reported thousands of Iranians forced from their homes and at least 25 killed as a result of heavy flooding in the oil-rich Khuzestan province. It said relief operations were under way, and that heavy rains in the region have stopped.

Bani-Sadr told reporters in Tehran Tuesday night that if the approximately 50 American hostages, who began their 102nd day in captivity today, are released it would not mean Iran had given up its demand for the return of ousted Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, now living in Panama.

"We will be after the shah's extradition until Resurrection Day. It does not mean that we will free them (the hostages) and then he can have a good time over there," Bani-Sadr said.

"I repeat this, that the shah's extradition is a strategic question for us. We will try that as much as we can."

The embassy captors have insisted the shah must be returned first, but Bani-Sadr said, "This is not glued together," meaning the issues are not necessarily linked.

However, Ghotbzadeh, who arrived in Athens, Greece, today, on an official visit, claimed Bani-Sadr had denied saying the two issues were no longer linked. "Our demands are legitimate and right and the shah must be extradited," Ghotbzadeh said.

Bani-Sadr on Tuesday again criticized the young militants holding the American hostages and said they are expected to carry out the orders of the ruling Revolutionary Council he now heads, Tehran Radio reported.

The militants rebuffed him and said the hostages were none of his business. Bani-Sadr said Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the leader of the revolutionary regime, appointed the Revolutionary Council "to administer the country" and "when the Revolutionary Council adopts certain decisions, these should be carried out."

Another Tehran broadcast said Bani-Sadr in an interview with the French government radio and TV service also repeated his offer to free the captive Americans if the United States admitted its "crimes" against Iran, recognized Iran's right to extradite the deposed shah and his wealth, admitted past "crimes," and pledged not to interfere in future Iranian affairs.

Peace Corpsman Freed By Ransom

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three years after he was kidnapped by guerrillas in a South American jungle, Peace Corps worker Richard Starr is coming home. He was released after columnist Jack Anderson paid a $250,000 ransom.

Starr, kidnapped on Valentine's Day, 1977, by the left-wing Colombian Armed Revolutionary Forces, was freed over the weekend, the State Department said.

He was to arrive in Washington late today. Bob Sherman, a staff reporter for Anderson, said the ransom had been taken to Colombia last weekend by Jack Mitchell, another Anderson associate. Anderson, who had become involved at the request of former Rep. Lloyd Meeds of Washington state, was unavailable for comment.

Meeds, an attorney, declined to tell the details, except to say: "It's one of those terrible cloak and dagger things. You can't believe the channels and the angles that have been used to get that young man out of there."

Starr, a 33-year-old biologist from Edmonds, Wash., was working at a research station about 80 miles southeast of Bogota when about 50 guerrillas attacked and took him and several others hostage.

Although the State Department said Starr had not been the raiders' specific target, the guerrillas issued a communique five months later calling him a CIA agent.

The U.S. Embassy denied that and said he had been researching ways to improve crop yields. During his captivity, Starr went on long treks with the guerrillas, slept in jungle huts, and ate food of little nutritional value, according to Colombian Army Gen. Luis Enrique Rodriguez.

In a telephone interview, Rodriguez said Starr arrived

Monday by horseback at Vegalarra, a jungle village 200 miles from Bogota. By Tuesday, he had made it to the Panama Canal Zone.

Rodriguez gave few details, but said Starr received medical attention and that it appeared he had suffered during his ordeal.

The U.S. Embassy in Bogota, confirming only that Starr was free, refused comment on who the negotiators were or if ransom was paid. It was known, however, that Mitchell had arrived there Saturday with $250,000 in a suitcase.

Last September, he had met with intermediaries in Mexico City and been told that was the price for Starr's freedom.

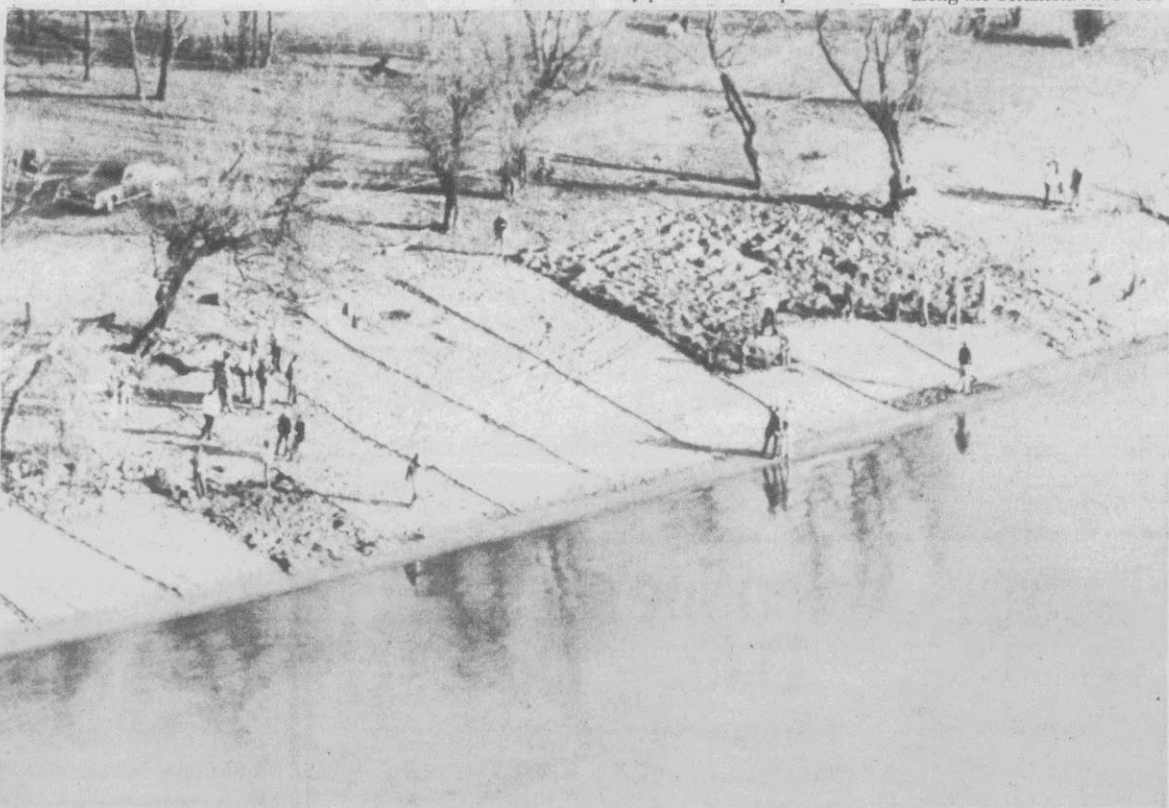

Meeting Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House says President Carter's decision to hold a nationally broadcast news conference tonight was not dictated by any major news event.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said Carter hadn't held a news conference since Nov. 28 and "a look at the political schedule for the next several months" shows any later date would come within seven days of a primary election.

Carter was to meet with reporters in the Old Executive Office Building next to the White House at 8 p.m. EST. Powell said the president might have an opening statement.

Asked if Carter would have anything to announce about the possible release of U.S. hostages in Iran, Powell said, "Nobody's told me."

SEARCH FOR COOPER'S LOOT — FBI agents comb a Columbia River beach near Vancouver, Wash. for additional money or clues in the famed D.B. Cooper skyjacking case. Several thousand dollars were found Sunday on the beach when a boy was scooping out a pit in the sand for a fire. (AP Laserphoto)

the first evidence uncovered since Thanksgiving eve, 1971, when Cooper bailed out of a jet over southwestern Washington with $200,000 tied to his waist.

It was the first case of a hijacking for money.

The FBI on Tuesday identified the cash through serial numbers. Bill Baker, special agent in charge of the Portland FBI office, said the money was so decomposed it was impossible to determine how much was there, but he said it came to "several thousand dollars."

"I think we can only presume at this time that because the money was found clumped together tightly in what we believe was the manner in which it was originally packed, it lends credence to the theory that at least the money did not make it out," he said. "And from there, I would really leave it to conjecture."

Baker said agents would now renew their search. "Of course, we will generate increased interest now in trying to locate D.B. Cooper or any remains that might be in the area," he said.

Late Tuesday afternoon, agents sifted through sand at the spot where the money was found and discovered several more pieces of $20 bills. The area has been sealed off to the public and the search was to resume today.

The money was discovered Sunday by young Brian Ingram beneath a layer of sand as his family picnicked along the Columbia, five miles northwest of Vancouver, Wash.

Harold Ingram of Vancouver, told reporters Tuesday he was preparing a fire when his son "ran up and said 'Wait a minute, Daddy.' He raked a place out in the sand and there it was."

Ingram said he didn't think about the cash being part of the Cooper loot. But he called the FBI because "I figured if anybody knew what to do it would be them."

Baker said he presumed the money washed downstream, possibly from a Columbia River tributary in the rugged southwestern Washington mountains, where Cooper is believed to have bailed out.

FBI agent Ralph Himelbach, due to retire in 17 days after being in charge of the Cooper investigation since the hijacking, said he still believes there is less than a 50-50 chance Cooper survived.

Thad Eure's Rival Here To Promote Campaign

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
Former state Rep. George Breece of Fayetteville hopes the second time around will be lucky for him as he again makes a bid to unseat longtime Secretary of State Thad Eure.

Breece, who gathered over 47 percent of the vote in his first Eure challenge in the 1976 primary, says the incumbent would be 85 years old if he completed another term in Raleigh and it "comes a time when a man should consider what is best for the state" in lieu of a personal situation.

The 34-year-old Democrat said here Tuesday that his main campaign thrust this year will be to open the doors to council of state meetings and to work towards elimination of the long standing custom of the council holding its sessions behind closed doors.

"This has been on the back burner long enough," the candidate said, contending that the "public and press should have access to the meetings." He said there is no reason the council of state should be exempt from the provisions of the open meetings law.

Breece charged that Eure, who has served in his post since 1935, has "camouflaged himself" as being an advocate of the open door policy "while at the same time standing in the doorway." Breece said it is interesting that Eure promotes his post as the "office of the open door."

The office of secretary of state, Breece asserted, is more of a ceremonial post now and the "time has come for an active" official.

For years, he pointed out, the secretary of state has maintained his office in the old capitol building while his staff functioned at the administrative building blocks away. Breece said that the secretary of state should serve with his staff and he

Utilities Vote Accept 2 Grants

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
The Greenville Utilities Commission last night voted to accept two State grants, totaling $121,000, for water and sewer projects here.

One grant, totaling $98,106 from state Clean Water Bond funds, is for 25 percent of the cost of installing a water line along White Road, while the other, a $22,897 bond fund grant, is to increase state participation to 25 percent of the cost of the Patrick Run sewer outfall line project.

Commissioners also approved the application for a Clean Water Bond grant for a $1.38 million project which includes construction of a 750,000 gallon elevated storage tank at the South Side Substation, a deep well at the substation site on Secondary Road 1204, and installation of two parallel 12-inch water mains on Memorial Drive and an 8-inch main on Secondary Road 1417.

The State could grant up to 25 percent of the cost of the project.

Commission approval was also given to a one-time drainage district assessment of $476 for 34 acres of lands owned by GUC west of Pitt-Greenville Airport. Utilities director Charles Horne said the assessment would be a one-time charge because when the city's new sewage plant is constructed on the site, water from the property would be diverted to the Tar River and into a holding pond on the site.

In other business, the commission awarded a bid totaling $29,607 to Hesco, Inc. for a switching tower for the Southside Substation, now under construction. Other bids ranged from $30,036 to $32,151.

DAR Essay Winners Announced Saturday

FARMVILLE — A report on American History Month and essay contest winners were given at the Saturday afternoon meeting of the Major Benjamin May Chapter DAR held at the Colonial Inn.

Essay winners were: Laurie Ann Walker, fifth grade; Susan Dail Carson, sixth grade; Denise Ann Stroud, seventh grade; and Michael Barry Strickland, eighth grade. All are students at Bethel Elementary School.

Chapter pages to the State Conference are Dana Duke Cox, Junior DAR member, and Suzanne Moye, CAR member. Miss Moye has been asked to be page for Senior State President.

Dara Royal at the CAR state meeting in Raleigh in March. Allison Baker and Margaret Gorman will be delegates.

Miss Elizabeth Lang reported on amendments to the chapter by-laws.

Members were reminded of the State DAR meeting in Wilmington March 4-6. Articles for the junior bazaar should be brought to Mrs. R. T. Williams. Proceeds will go to the Helen Pouch fund.

Mrs. Williams gave the President General's message and the national defense report. Notes of thanks were read by Mrs. Charles Carr from Kelly Heizer concerning the organization meeting of the CAR and also from Mrs. John O. Pollard. Bess Patton, a senior at Farmville Central High School, has been recommended for the DAR History Scholarship.

Miss Tabitha DeVisconti arranged window displays and sent articles to newspapers stressing American History Month.

Mrs. Carl Betts reported on fund raising projects for the chapter house. A bridge tournament will be held in April and committee members are Mrs. Betts, Mrs. Fred Sauls, Mrs. Elmer Flake and Mrs. Frank Bradham.

Mrs. Ernest Hardy, Mrs. Edward L. Hill, Mrs. Thomas Hales, Mrs. McCoy Tripp and Mrs. Carl Betts Jr. were meeting hostesses.

Valentine Supper Kids Will Like

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Some years ago, when my nieces were very young, they loved to have parties at my house. I learned then that I could best manage by keeping the number of guests small and the hours of the party short. And it was crucial to have something ready that was fun for the kids to do the moment they arrived. Serving food they really liked was also important.

My present-day friends and neighbors who have preschool or elementary school children tell me these rules still hold. Valentine's Day, Feb. 14, comes on a Thursday this year and one of the young mothers I know is planning a Valentine party for her two children.

The six party-goers will be invited to an early supper in her kitchen-dining room. Table mats, cut from white shelving paper, heart-shape cookie cutters and crayons will be ready. The kids will get busy right away decorating the mats by tracing around the cookie cutters, then coloring the hearts and adding fanciful drawings with the crayons.

For supper there will be homemade tomato soup. With the children still at the table and clean cookie-cutters in clean hands, they'll cut out hearts from slices of bread and spread them with peanut butter to eat with the soup. There will be small heart-shape hamburgers ready to grill and put between plain bread "hearts." With the hamburgers, what else but ketchup or chili sauce on Valentine's Day?

For dessert a choice of vanilla ice cream with strawberries or heart-shape frosted chocolate cupcakes.

VALENTINE SOUP

2 cups cold milk
2 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon minced onion
3 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon white pepper
2 teaspoons sugar
2 cups tomato juice

Valentine Go-alongs, see Note

Pour the cold milk into a 2- or 2 1/2-quart saucepan and set aside; do not heat.

In a 1 1/2-quart saucepan over moderately low heat melt the butter. Add the onion and cook, stirring often, until yellowed; stir in flour, salt, pepper and sugar. Off heat, gradually stir in tomato juice, keeping smooth.

Return to moderately low heat and, stirring constantly, cook until thickened and boiling; boil 1 minute. Gradually whisk the hot tomato mixture into the set-aside cold milk.

Quickly heat, stirring often; do not boil. Serve at once. If the soup is made ahead and refrigerated, it may be reheated, without boiling, and it will remain smooth.

Makes 1 quart — 6 servings.
Note: Valentine Go-alongs — Cut out centers of bread with a heart-shape cookie cutter and spread them with peanut butter. Use remaining crusts in another dish.

Homemaker's Haven

Pitt Home Agent

Let's take a personal look at inflation. How's it affecting you? Everybody is talking about and complaining about inflation. But, its effects vary from person to person depending upon several factors. Among these are the amount of money you earn today (compared to what you earned in the base period for inflation) and what you spend your income for.

Economists seem to agree that the inflation rate for 1979 was around 13 percent. That is, the Consumer Price Index (CPI) increased by 13 percent in 1979. (The CPI is a number which measures the change in the general price level of goods and services that typical consumers buy.) In November 1979 the CPI was 227.5 points. Since the base year of the current CPI in 1967 when the index was 100, the index has gone up 127.5 percent — more than doubled.

But, look at your income — how much has it increased since 1967? Did it double? Data from the U.S. Department of Labor show that the November 1979 gross average weekly earning rate of non-agricultural workers in private industry was $225.07, or the same thing as making $98.89 in 1967. If you were a single worker with no dependents making $181.76 in 1979 weekly spendable income, that was equivalent to $79.86 in 1967. If you were a married worker with 3 dependents earning the average weekly spendable earnings of $198.79 in November 1979, this was the same take-home income as $87.34 in 1967. (These "spendable income" figures show the amount left of your gross earnings after the usual deductions of Social Security and federal income taxes.) The gross average hourly earnings rate in November 1979 was $6.34, which sounds like a lot until you realize that it is only $2.79 in 1967 dollars.

As a rough estimate of your current earning power, check your records to find your earnings for 1967. Multiply that figure by 2.27. If the dollar result is less than your current income, you are ahead of inflation; if the dollar amount is still — to take care of increasing bills for the same old level of living. It pays to know where you stand in the economy before fulfilling an increased level of wants. If your income doesn't measure up to the inflation rate, you have two choices to maintain or improve your level of living. Either you can find ways to increase your income, or you can learn to live at a lower level of consumption.

Falling Hair?? Brush It Off!

By Abigail Van Buren

1980 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: A woman wrote to say that she "was losing her mind" because she was losing her hair. I read that article as I sat beside my father's bed on the cancer floor of our local hospital.

Across the hall a teen-age girl, who was bald, lay in the final stages of leukemia. Another patient, a gentleman in his 40s, obviously wearing a hairpiece, occasionally shuffled past the door in a robe and bedroom slippers.

From the elevator emerged a young father, bringing his little family to visit their ailing mother. They were thrilled to see her. Her thinning hair made no difference to them at all.

Need I say more?

J.M.C.:MIDVALE, UTAH

DEAR J.M.C.: Thank you for giving this writer, and several million readers, a renewed appreciation of good health. Your father will have my prayers.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for 19 years and have two teenage children. Our marriage has been a good one. When the children were little I was full-time wife and mother while my husband built up his business.

Six months ago I found the stubs of two movie tickets in his jacket pocket. His "movie date" was not with me. It was a night that he had to "work late." When I confronted him, he broke down and admitted that he has been having an affair with his secretary for the last three years. He said it began when she started to confide her personal problems to him. She's a divorcee with two small children and he felt sorry for her.

He says he still loves me, but if he dumps her she will sabotage his office. She's very competent (a real "Girl Friday"), and has been very helpful to him in his business. He says he wants their relationship to get to the point where she decides she doesn't want to spend any more time waiting around for a married man. That way no feelings will be hurt. He swears he doesn't love her, but he worries about the business should he let her go.

Abby, I can't believe this is happening to me. I feel blackmailed.

Am I being had?

UPSTATE NEW YORK

DEAR UPSTATE: Not yet. But you will be if you allow your husband to continue in this affair until his secretary decides she's tired of waiting around for a married man.

No one is indispensable. If your husband really loves you and is reluctant to let his Girl Friday go only because he fears she'll "sabotage" his office, he'll just have to take that chance.

I'm betting if he tells her there is absolutely no future in waiting for you to either divorce him or drop dead, she'll leave quietly. Especially if he gives her glowing recommendations.

DEAR ABBY: I have a boyfriend named Johnny who is really a sweet guy. He's a very unexciting person, and a very poor lover, but his family is in the money.

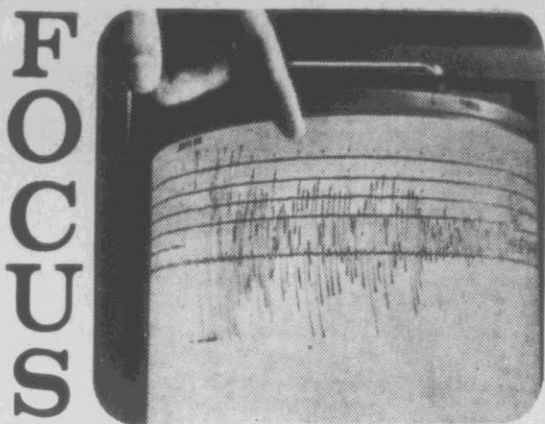

Barry is another guy I go with when Johnny is out of town (as he frequently is). Barry is a great lover, but he has no money and it is very embarrassing to be seen in public with him in his '55 Chevy that has no heat, no seat covers and is painted with a hand brush and house paint.

I'm 28 and time is running out. Which should I choose? Money or sex?

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: It's human nature to want what you don't have. If you choose money, you'll miss the sex. If you choose sex, you'll miss the money. Don't make a choice while you're confused.

DEAR ABBY: From time to time I read complaints from readers insisting that you didn't answer their letter, even

Measuring Earthquakes

News reports about earthquakes in California and elsewhere usually describe the quake's power by using a number on the Richter scale. An American scientist named Charles F. Richter developed the scale in 1935. To calculate an earthquake's strength on the Richter scale, scientists use a device called a seismograph, which measures the quake's ground movement. Each number on the Richter scale represents an earthquake 10 times stronger than the next lower number. An earthquake measuring 7 on the scale is 10 times more powerful than an earthquake measuring 6. Earthquakes measuring 5 or less are considered minor. An earthquake measuring 7 or higher can cause widespread damage.

Everybody Encouraged

If "as Maine goes, so goes the nation" is apt, then the Democrats of the nation will go with President Carter.

That's what the Maine caucuses showed during the weekend.

Carter had approximately 44 percent of the delegates, Sen Ted Kennedy, 40 percent and California Gov. Edmund G. Brown, Jr., 14 percent.

That gave all the candidates something to crow about.

Kennedy saw his stronger-than-expected-showing as encouraging. Brown, even with 14 percent, felt he had done well. Carter left the campaigning and the talking to others while maintaining his stance of a president in the White House grappling ing with world problems.

The Maine caucuses lack a lot of determining who will be the Democratic nominee for president. There are a number of state primaries to be held and probably delegate counting will still be going on when the convention is held.

The final analysis in Maine has to be that President Carter won by a substantial margin. He also won in Iowa over a Sen. Kennedy who many once thought was unbeatable within the Democratic party. World events helped Carter in this startling turn-around. Future events could help him more . . . or hurt his chances.

Too Late To Avoid Crowds

Remember the 15th of February? Its primary meaning to modern day Tar Heels is that it is the deadline for obtaining auto license tags.

It falls on Friday of this week and already the lines are running long at the licensing agencies.

It's probably too late to avoid the crowds, but obtaining the new stickers is essential for motorists who want to drive after Friday.

THIS AFTERNOON

Help Is Complex

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Whenever the state or federal government launches a new welfare program, or expands an existing one, an army of employees equipped with an arsenal of forms is required.

In North Carolina a good-sized town could be populated with the 19,000-plus employees of the Department of Human Resources. Not all of those employees are directly engaged in the battle against poverty, but a sizable majority are.

And on top of those, administrators, supervisors, planners, coordinators, and the weighty array of the management team resides.

All of which goes mostly to satisfy three popular requirements in governmental programs of late:

— Recipients need outreach to be found, input to be brought in, guidance and counseling to be lifted out of ignorance, and follow-up to see if things are going well.

— Programs must be constantly monitored and evaluated as to their effectiveness and efficiency, complete with reams of data and computer printouts, seldom looked at again.

— Emphasis on management and productivity demand massive records keeping, regionalization, planning and policymaking, coordination, communicating, and training.

High Cost

So complex has helping others become under governmental direction that in North Carolina alone the cost of simply running the welfare programs is well over $125 million each year. That is $125 million for the bureaucracy which is administering the $776 million in assistance and services in the welfare programs within the Department of Human Resources. That department has a total budget of $1.3 billion which also operates youth training schools, mental and specialty hospitals, mental retardation centers, programs for the blind and disabled, vocational rehabilitation, and so on.

A committee of the General Assembly is looking at the social services programs in relation to costs and administration and in relation to other state and federal programs has been told by witnesses that there is an enormous amount of overlapping in services both within the welfare portion of the budget, and between the welfare and non-welfare services of the Department of Human Resources.

Most of the duplication arises from a condition which fiscal analysts term "the left toenail syndrome."

A program is established to deal with a rising incidence of left toenail problems among the people. Staff must go out and find all the people they can with this problem to justify existence, and even bend the rules occasionally to make sure the figures look good.

BILL NOBLITT

No Uniformity

Never mind that a lot of people might be suffering even more with right toenail problems, or that getting drunk and stumping the toe is causing the problem to start with. And don't worry that the toenail problem keeps the fellow from working so that momma and the kids are hungry because of that.

There is considerable interest in the General Assembly for devising some means of bringing the competing and duplicative bureaucracies into line so that welfare programs look at the "whole person," even the "whole family" through a central intake office where one highly skilled social worker can try to focus the dozen and more programs now scattered about.

But realists concede that entrenched specialists in control of programs and special interest groups which back them, along with fragmented federal funding and eligibility rules make reform unlikely.

Eligibility rules have gotten so complex that simply determining who qualifies for what is now costing nearly $7 million as part of the administrative overload in this state.

Other Editors Say Good Barometer?

(Goldsboro News-Argus)

The agency is small and its experience surely must have been the exception rather than the rule of public agencies.

But the head of the agency commented that 40 percent of his fellow employees had failed — at least by midmorning — to show up for work Thursday because of the snow.

Forty percent!

Curiosity triggered a quick survey of some private business firms to see if they had experienced the same high level of absenteeism as that suffered by the taxpayer-supported agency.

At A P Parts, officials reported only six of its 430 employees were absent. That's 1.4 percent of a work force that comes not only from Wayne County but from such distant places as Clinton, Wilson, Kinston and Princeton.

Dewey Bros., Inc. has 200 employees. Only six of its workers were absent and five of these six lived more than 25 miles from the plant. One of the six was known to have had his car skid into a ditch. Among Dewey employees are people from Duplin, Sampson and Johnston counties.

Kemp Furniture Industries is Wayne's largest private employer with 900 workers. Absenteeism normally averages around 4 percent. President Bill Kemp, Jr., reported that Thursday's absenteeism was up 2 percent, presumably because of the snow. Employees at Kemp Furniture also come from a wide area.

At the Goldsboro News-Argus, which has employees who travel from Lenoir and Johnston counties as well as from all parts of Wayne County, the absentee rate on Thursday was less than 1 percent.

Bad roads can, of course, be a legitimate reason for a person's not being able to get to work. And no one should be encouraged to take excessive risks.

But when industry after industry reports minimum absenteeism while one public agency has almost half its work force absent or hours late, the question arises: was the problem inclement weather or employee attitudes?

Strength For Today

CAESAR AND GOD

"These all do contrary to the decrees of Caesar, saying that there is another king, Jesus."

Such was the accusation brought against the early Christians. It was only partly true. Jesus made it plain that Caesar has a stake in the world, and that we are to render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's. But God has a larger stake, and we are to render unto God the things that are God's.

Always Caesar has been pushing himself impudently into the domain of God.

A City With Jitters

WASHINGTON — Washington has a real case of the jitters this week. With all the publicity concerning the FBI sting operation, you just don't know whom to trust any more.

The people it's been hardest on have been the real Arab sheiks who flit in and out of the capital trying to do legitimate business.

One Sheik Ali Jarim checked into his hotel the other day and ordered a bottle of champagne and a pound of caviar. The waiter who brought it up winked at him as he opened the bottle of champagne. "I guess this is pretty good living for you guys," he said to the sheik. "Of course, it's all taxpayers' money."

Sheik Ali Jarim said, "I do not understand what you are talking about."

The waiter poked the sheik

in the ribs with his elbow. "Don't worry, Mac. Your secret is safe with me. Where did you rent the duds for the scam?"

The sheik angrily told the waiter to leave and called up the manager. "This is Sheik Ali Jarim, and one of your waiters was very rude to me."

ART BUCHWALD

"Sorry about that, Jarim, but the Justice Department didn't tell us you were coming, or I would have attended to you myself. Do you need any extra TV cameras or tape-recording machines?"

"I will tell you what I need when I need it. Your hotel was recommended by my brother, Prince Ardair, as the finest in the city."

"We haven't had any complaints. But we're booked solid, so don't expect a discount just because you're using our place for a sting."

The sheik slammed down the phone in anger. A few minutes later an American oil company executive called up and said he had arranged for the sheik to have dinner with a very charming lady who free-lanced for the refinery division.

A reservation had been made at one of the best Washington restaurants. The woman picked up the sheik at his hotel.

As they got to talking, a man came over and said, "My client's willing to make a deal with you."

"I have no idea what you're talking about."

"He'll blow the whistle on three New Jersey Mafia capos if you erase the videotapes of him stuffing your marked greenbacks into his jogging pants."

The sheik called over the captain, "I don't know what this man wants, but he is bothering me."

The lawyer got up, "Okay, my guy's willing to sing, but we want something in exchange. How about knocking the charges down to 'taking an illegal campaign contribution'?"

The sheik turned to the woman, "I don't understand what has happened in your city since I was here the last time. I'm trying to invest $50 million in this town and no one treats me with any respect."

"I'll bet you G-men tell that to all your girls."

"What is a G-man?" the sheik demanded.

"You're really off the wall, sheik, or whatever your name is. Hey, there's a pal of mine, Sen. Dingledeffer. Poochie, you haven't called me in ages."

"Been campaigning."

"Poochie, this is my good friend Sheik something-or-another."

"Stay away from me!" Sen. Dingledeffer warned the sheik. "You're not going to entrap me. I don't want anything from you, and I hope I'm saying it right into your camera."

"I didn't offer you anything," the sheik said.

"You heard him, everybody," the senator yelled to the whole room. "He didn't offer me anything. And I didn't take anything. You're all witnesses." The senator then ran out of the restaurant.

"I think I better go back to my hotel," the shaken sheik said.

"All right," the girl replied. "But first tell me how you people got Dillinger."

A Calculated Toughness

By ROWLAND EVANS

and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — There was nothing unintentional about those warlike pictures of Zbigniew Brzezinski along the Afghan-Pakistan border last week, despite all the "warmonger" criticism that has been heaped on President Carter's national security adviser.

Brzezinski's purpose: to show that the new mood of the U.S. and Jimmy Carter is confident in what Brzezinski thinks may be an escalating confrontation with the Soviet Union. That means conveying an image of self-assurance to such critical countries as Pakistan.

The pictures, showing Brzezinski squinting down the barrel of a Pakistani border guard's submachine gun, were supplemented with a tough running commentary. At one point, he gestured toward Kabul, capital of Afghanistan, and suggested that a strengthened Pakistan might run the Russian invaders out of their neighboring country.

Brzezinski is exoriated by liberals for talking and acting "provocatively," but intimates say he could care less; talking boldly to convince the world of a changed U.S. is well worth the criticism.

Hard-Nosed Jimmy

The anti-Kennedy radio commercials being used in New Hampshire by the Carter campaign were not cleared by Robert S. Strauss, the president's campaign chairman who would like to start now repairing relations with the hardcore 30 percent of Democrats who support Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

That's not the style of the hard-nosed inner circle who engineered Carter's miraculous 1976 nomination: White House aides Hamilton Jordan and Jody Powell, media expert Gerald Raftery and political operative Tim Kraft, who shares campaign duties with Strauss but actually runs it day to day.

Raftery has heatedly insisted that the radio commercials are not "negative," but in fact they question Kennedy's integrity. That worries Strauss, who is looking past Carter's highly probable renomination to a tough general election campaign when the Kennedyites will be badly needed.

Rebellious Reaganites

Ronald Reagan's rightward movement in recent campaigning, stressing his differences with George Bush on gun control, welfare and abortion, can be traced to a near rebellion by his faithful supporters following defeat in the Iowa caucuses.

One influential conservative whose protests particularly shook the Reagan campaign was Cleveland industrialist Fred Lannon, a major Reagan fund-raiser. Lannon mirrored the protests of other conservatives by contending that Reagan was muting the principles that had built his faithful following. Lannon was so intense — in a private letter to Reagan and a personal chat with Sen. Paul Laxalt of Nevada, Reagan's national campaign chairman — that some Reagan aides thought he was about to drop out.

Lennon and his fellow conservatives have directed heavy fire against Reagan campaign manager John Sears, but Sears will not be purged. "Reagan likes to have Sears around," one anti-Sears Reaganite insider told us, "and this is Reagan's campaign." Nevertheless, Reagan's rightward move represents a repudiation of Sears' carefully wrought strategy.

Carter's Human Rights Folly

Fury among President Carter's Pentagon and national security staffers greeted a front-page New York Times story last week that sharply rebuked for human rights failures two countries Carter is ardently wooing: Pakistan and Argentina.

The newspaper's account was based on the annual human rights report to Capitol Hill, naming many alleged offenders in addition to Pakistan and Argentina. Its timing raised questions about the commitment of some high State Department officials to Carter's tough talk against Moscow since the Afghanistan invasion.

What infuriated Pentagon and national security aides was the failure of Patricia Derian, assistant secretary for human rights, to alert them that the routine report was being sent to Congress. The timing coincided with two major Carter efforts: persuading Pakistan to cooperate with the U.S. against the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan and persuading Argentina not to sell feed grains to the Russians denied them by Carter's grain embargo.

I am one of those persons who protests the movie, "The Life of Brian." But it's because I care for you and all others who may go to see it that I do so.

You are exactly right in that if something offends me, I don't have to partake of it. (There are many other movies showing constantly that fit that category.)

Jesus says in Mark 3:29 that the one unforgivable sin is blasphemy and I believe this film to be blasphemous. I'm not so sure that those who watch it will not be partaking of that sin. I do not want that for you or anyone.

For that reason I will continue to protest the showing of this movie.

Options Of A 'Risk Manager'

By JOHN CUNIFF

Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The risk manager is now established in the executive suite, generally at a minimum level of vice president, and usually considered important enough to report directly to the top guy.

Just 20 or so years ago his counterpart was a reliable clerk with a knowledge of insurance, but insurance then wasn't the major cost factor it is today.

It was, that is to say, before big malpractice suits, doubledigit inflation and prohibitive replacement costs. Economic society today is fraught with risks that could bury a company in an earthquake of bills.

"There are thousand of considerations in a big company today," says John R. Cox, president of Insurance Company of North America. "Just think of all the things that you do in a day where there is a potential loss of property. And then consider how many more a corporation has."

It must cover itself against workers' injuries, fire, patent loss, customer suits, faulty products, theft, failure to perform. It might even have to insure against rain or the possibility it won't rain.

The list of risks may involve the hiring, training and administration of professional engineers or scientists. It might include guards at factories, or making certain that duplicate computer tapes are stored.

One court decision or a regulatory change might make a company liable where it wasn't before, so the risk manager might have to supervise a staff of lawyers as well as other professionals.

Mistakes could mean financial disaster. Replacement costs, perhaps resulting from fire, might be beyond a company's ability to fund. Aside from loss, premiums are costly. The pipeline from Alaska's North Slope to Valdez, for example, involved workmen's compensation premiums of $200 million.

Premiums, according to Cox, now may account for about 3 percent of a product's price, compared with just one-half percent 20 years ago.

Therefore, the risk manager. If it were not for the big salaries that go with the job of executive or senior vice president, one might be inclined to think of him as "the risk manager, poor fellow."

In a broad sense, his job involves several options: Working with an outside insurance broker, self-insuring through a captive insurance company, or no insurance — "going bare," as Cox puts it.

For large companies, the latter really isn't an option; the cost of insurance warrants the purchase. But for a small manufacturer, the insurance sometimes exceeds the ability to buy. Garment manufacturers, for example, sometimes are faced with that decision.

The captive company, which dates to 1792 and of which there are about 1,000, has become especially popular in the past few years as a means of cutting costs. A big advantage is that the parent has the use of its funds for a longer period of time; it doesn't tie up huge amounts in premium payments to others. And there might be tax advantages.

Ten Persons Killed In San Salvadore Attack

By EDUARDO VAZQUEZ BECKER
Associated Press Writer

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Ten persons were killed as police attacked leftist holding a political party headquarters and clashed with radical high school students parading after they ended their occupation of the Education Ministry.

The Spanish government expressed fears the police would also use force to try to end the leftist occupation of its embassy.

Four militants and a policeman were killed when police stormed the Christian Democratic Party headquarters Tuesday to rescue 10 hostages held since Jan. 29 by about 100 members of the Feb. 28 Popular Leagues, or LP-28.

The militants were demanding the resignation of the two Christian Democratic members of the junta headed by two colonels who ousted President

Carlos Humberto Romero Oct. 15.

The police said they decided to break the stalemate after the leftists in the party headquarters shot and killed a policeman in a passing truck. When the police attacked, there was a heavy exchange of fire for several minutes. Then the police brought up three armored cars, and the leftists surrendered.

Five high school students were killed earlier in the day when shooting erupted during a "victory march" after about 100 teen-agers ended their week-long occupation of the Education Ministry and freed 12 hostages.

The students were celebrating because they claimed the junta met their demands for a tuition cut at private colleges, expanded enrollment in the state university and the firing of some officials of the ministry.

The students said police surrounded the march and began firing without provocation. But the police claimed "terrorists" among the marchers attacked a truckload of troops.

In addition to the five dead, at least 12 persons were wounded. Police patrolled the downtown area for several hours afterward looking for snipers.

PTA Council Talks Criteria

The Greenville City Schools Council of Parent Teacher Associations met Monday in the library of the Middle School to discuss criteria for recognizing outstanding educators, staggering PTA dates so parents can participate more actively in schools, and procedures insuring that all parents are involved in the selection of PTA officers.

Superintendent Glenn Cox spoke to the group on the new redistricting organization of the elementary schools and answered questions posed by Council members regarding the move.

The PTA Council, which consists of representatives from all of the local city PTA units, meets to share ideas and projects and to coordinate efforts of local PTA units.

Open Bids For New Facility

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina State-University officials opened bids for construction of a new agricultural and forestry research building Tuesday that totaled $182,833.

The facility is proposed for a site near the Raleigh Beltline. It would provide laboratory space for research on peanuts, soybeans, cotton and forestry not now available in the overcrowded labs on the main campuses.

Plans call for a one-story, pre-engineered metal structure, with approximately 5,000 square feet of space at a cost of $205,010.

Evans-Novak ...

consultant Greg Schneiders to hurry to Maine three days before the Feb. 10 Maine Democratic Party caucuses, he demurred: His regular weekly lecture at a Georgetown University political science class was the next evening.

"That's all right," White House press secretary Jody Powell told him. "I'll teach that class myself." Trapped by Powell's offer, Schneiders accepted his assignment to Maine and flew to Bangor on the first available plane.

The dispatch of Schneiders, a former Carter aide, for last-minute help in the Maine contest between Carter and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy looked to some like a distress call. In fact, Carter's top political aides were plotting something else: using Schneiders and others to promote a big voter turnout at the traditionally skimpy caucuses in hopes of beating Kennedy badly enough to wound him mortally in the Feb. 26 New Hampshire presidential primary.

District Office Of Census Opens

The Greenville District Office of the Census Bureau on 401 South Memorial Drive opened this morning at 10 a.m. with a ceremonial cutting of computer tape.

Congressman Walter B. Jones and Dr. Thomas B. Brewer, chancellor of East Carolina University, were among those attending. Greenville Mayor Don McGlohon and Washington Mayor Richard Tripp were there as well as Chairman of Pitt County Commissioners Ed Warren and Chairman of Beaufort County Commissioners Ledue Buck.

Counties represented by the Greenville District Office are Beaufort, Bertie, Camden, Chowan, Currituck, Dare, Edgecombe, Gates, Halifax, Hertford, Hyde, Martin, Nash, Northampton, Pamlico, Pasquotank, Perquimans, Pitt, Tyrell, Washington, and Wilson.

Code Inspectors' Training Program

Pitt Community College is co-sponsoring with the North Carolina Code Officials Qualification Board an in-service training program for municipal code inspectors throughout eastern North Carolina.

Phil Green from the Institute of Government in Chapel Hill is the in-seminar program leader. The two-day classes are being held at the Willis Building in Greenville. The participants are from the areas of building, electrical, mechanical, plumbing, and energy.

According to a law enacted by the 1979 General Assembly all local governments are required to establish a building inspection program according to a specific timetable, requiring certification of all inspectors who enforce the state building code. The law also created the North Carolina Code Officials Qualification Board which will be responsible for establishing minimum standards for employment, as well as implementing a uniform statewide in-service and pre-service education for the code officials.

This training program is one of eight being held throughout the state this winter and spring with the first meeting to be implemented with an in-service training program for inspectors as required by law.

Future workshops will cover five specific areas and the timetable for these will be announced shortly.

Appointed To Research Group

Philip G. Nelson, M.D., of Greenville was appointed to a six-year term on the Alcoholism Research Authority by Governor Jim Hunt.

Dr. Nelson is Associate Clinical Professor in the Department of Psychiatry at the East Carolina University School of Medicine and Chairman of the North Carolina State Mental Health Advisory Council. He is also chairman of the Mental Health Committee of the North Carolina Medical Society and serves as commissioner of the Public Service Commission, North Carolina Medical Society.

The Research Authority was created in 1973 with the purpose of utilizing facilities in North Carolina's public and private universities for research into the causes of alcoholism.

EXHIBITING WORK

ECU News Bureau Catharine Jones, a senior in the School of Art, East Carolina University, is exhibiting some of her work in Joyner Library this week. Her show includes examples of textiles, cloghnt and stuffed cloth items. The show is open to the public during library hours.

proposes to move the office from the capitol.

The secretary of state, charged with such duties as chartering corporations and regulating the issuance and sale of securities, can be an ambassador by helping to bring good industry to the state, the candidate said, as well as helping to foster growth by working within the realm of his duties.

Breece said that he hoped North Carolina has "bottomed out" as far as its per capita income is concerned and improvement will be forthcoming. He added, "Thank God for Mississippi" or North Carolina would be on the "bottom of the list" in a number of areas.

Breece said he is campaigning with the slogan, "Give a Young Man a Chance." He said that the situation involves "politics of the 30's against politics of the 80's."

A Cumberland County native, Breece received his B.A. degree from Atlantic Christian College and served as a member of the state House of Representatives in 1975 and 1976.

See Decline In 1980 Housing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Housing experts say housing construction should decline this year, despite a slight increase last year, when 1,868,200 new private housing units were completed.

The government reported Tuesday that the 1979 housing figure was just 500 units above 1978. But a decline is predicted because of tightened credit, soaring mortgage rates and a drop in the number of building permit applications.

Moratorium On Snow Declared

DENVER (AP) — Councilman Bob Crider, noting Colorado has already passed the 59-inch average snow-season total with 60.3 inches this season, introduced a resolution declaring a moratorium on snow in Denver.

"Enough is enough," Crider said. His resolution said snowfall in Denver would be "tolerable only for moderate irrigation and otherwise only on Thanksgiving, on Christmas and on Sundays when the Broncos, Nuggets and Rockies (Denver's professional sports teams) are scheduled to play elsewhere."

Councilman Sam Sandos blocked a vote on Monday's resolution, saying he recognized the humorous intent, "but there are a hell of a lot more important things we ought to be doing than this."

Plain Old Aspirin Continues Provide Surprises

By KEVIN MCKEAN
AP Science Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Eighty years after its introduction as a "wonder drug," plain old aspirin remains full of surprises.
The "pain reliever doctors recommend most" appears to help prevent strokes in some people, may give some protection against heart attacks and could even aid in diabetes.
This common fever reducer and anti-inflammatory drug is now known to lessen the redness of sunburn and has become part of therapy for a rare and once-fatal disease.

One study suggests aspirin, in regular doses, may avert migraine headaches. It is even being tested for possible use against cancer, in birth control or in preventing the rejection of transplanted organs.

"Aspirin is a remarkable drug. It has been around for 80 years and it's only within the last two or three years that we've really understood how it works," says Dr. William Fields, chairman of neurology at the University of Texas at Houston and one of the pioneers in using aspirin to prevent stroke.

"With the new understanding, we now are finding new indications for its use.... I think it's a wonder drug, no question about it," he says.

While few of the new uses are established yet, the rebirth of aspirin is being watched closely by U.S. manufacturers, who grind out 25 million pounds of aspirin a year, and by individual Americans, who swallow the equivalent of 100 aspirin tablets each per year.

Aspirin is getting so much good press lately that many people have begun taking half a tablet a day the same way some people take vitamins. This is a development that worries some doctors.

Critics point out that the largest and latest study of aspirin and heart disease — released last week — showed no benefit of aspirin to people who had suffered at least one heart attack.

But others respond that the study may have been flawed, and another large study due for release next week will show more positive results.

Regardless of the outcome, most doctors agree that aspirin or drugs like it will be important weapons in the pharmaceutical arsenal of the 1980s. This probably would have surprised Felix Hofmann, the German research chemist who set out in 1893 to find a remedy for his father's rheumatoid arthritis.

Hofmann dug through pharmacopoeias looking for other salicin relatives until he came on acetylsalicylic acid, synthesized by another German chemist in 1853 but unappreciated at that time. Hofmann found a cheaper and simpler way to make acetylsalicylic acid, and it gave his father the first relief he'd had in 10 years.

Hofmann wanted to call his new drug "a-salicin." But his employers at the pharmaceutical firm Bayer & Co. overruled him, and the drug was christened "Aspirin" when it was launched in 1899.

It remained for John Vane and his colleagues in 1971 to discover how aspirin works.

Vane, of the Royal College of Surgeons in London, showed that aspirin inhibits the production of prostaglandins, ubiquitous hormone-like substances that are involved in body mechanisms ranging from fever to inducing labor. Aspirin does this by blocking an enzyme known as prostaglandin synthetase or cyclo-oxygenase. The body needs this enzyme to make precursors for most of the half-dozen known prostaglandins and a few other key substances as well.

Among the prostaglandins that are blocked are those that make it easier for nerve cells to pass pain signals from one to another; those that raise fever in the body's thermostat in the brain; and those that promote the swelling of inflamed tissue.

But the key to many of aspirin's newest uses is something that was once considered its main drawback — its ability to increase bleeding.

Aspirin does this by inhibiting the blood cells called platelets from making a prostaglandin derivative called thromboxane which allows the platelets to clump together when a blood vessel is injured.

These clumps of platelets lay the foundation for a more substantial blood clot formed of fibrin fibers and red and white blood cells. Thus, platelets initiate blood clotting, but clotting can still proceed when there is serious injury, even if the platelets are stilled.

Since the body continually replaces platelets, repeated doses of aspirin are needed.

Unfortunately, if the dose of aspirin is too high, it will also inhibit another prostaglandin — prostacyclin — made by the blood vessel walls. Prostacyclin has the opposite effect from thromboxane — it dissolves clots, apparently to keep the platelets from clumping dangerously on healthy blood vessel walls.

Now a number of researchers are investigating whether this anti-clotting action can be used against a range of diseases in which blood vessels are damaged — including strokes, heart attacks and diabetes.

Seek Recruits For Conservation Corps

RALEIGH — The North Carolina Employment Security Commission is now recruiting young men and women interested in a summer job with the Youth Conservation Corps, according to Commission Chairman J. B. Archer.

To be eligible, young people must be from 15 through 18 years of age. They are selected at random by a National Computer System and are paid $3.10 per hour for 30 hours of work per week. In addition, they will receive 10 hours environmental instruction each week.

Two types of programs will be offered — residential and non-residential.

Registration ends March 15. The program begins June 1 and last from six to eight weeks. About 1,500 will be accepted for the program.

Those in a residential program will live at a camp near the worksite. Those in a non-residential program will live at home and commute to the work site.

Five residential camps are to be operated in the state this summer under the auspices of the Dept. of Natural Resources and Community Development. These will house 200 residents and will be located at Burlington Parks and Recreation Dept., Burlington; Blowing Rock; Cherokee; Western Carolina University; and Camp Lejeune. Non-residential campsites will include the ones operated by the Greenville and Greene County Parks and Recreation Departments.

Young people interested in employment in this program are to check their local school office for details, or apply through the local Job Service Office.

The Job Service in Greenville is located at 3101 Bismarck Drive. The telephone number is 756-2686.

Charged In 4 Deaths

MAXTON, N.C. (AP) — The mother of one of four children killed Friday when the car she was driving plunged into the Lumber River has been charged with four counts of manslaughter and driving under the influence.

Ann Thomas, driver of the car, was charged by the state Highway Patrol Monday. One of the children who died in the accident, 12-year-old Angela Thomas, was Mrs. Thomas' daughter.

Funeral services were held Tuesday for Tosha Clark, 7, and Tenya Clark, 4, the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Tolbert Ray Clark of Maxton. A funeral service was held Monday for Angela Thomas.

Nine-year-old Tolla Michelle Clark, also the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clark, has not been found by rescuers. A memorial service was held for her Tuesday.

Mrs. Thomas and another daughter, Tabitha, managed to escape from the car before it sank.

Mrs. Thomas was released on $4,300 bond. The case will be heard in Maxton District Court on Feb. 27.

ECU GRADUATE — Martin Thompson, veteran of many Playhouse and Studio Theater roles on campus, will be seen at 8 p.m. tonight in the musical, "The Flight Brothers," being broadcast over UNC-TV, channel 25, Greenville. The musical was produced for UNC-TV by the Carolina Regional Theater.

Cooperative Education Roles Are Honored By PCC Dept.

Two Greenville firms were honored today at a breakfast sponsored by the Cooperative Education Department of Pitt Community College. Pitt Memorial Hospital and Wachovia Operations received framed certificates for "Invaluable participation and significant service" to the PCC Cooperative Education Program.

Dr. Edward Bright, Dean of Instruction, made the presentations to Craig Quick, personnel manager of Pitt Memorial Hospital and to Ray Richard, manager of the Wachovia Operations and Data Processing Center.

Terry Shank, director of the PCC program said, "This is the first time that such a gathering has been scheduled. This breakfast for employers and their co-op students was planned by the Student Committee, which meets every quarter with the co-op staff with input from the Employers Advisory Committee which makes recommendations and suggestions for the strengthening of the co-op program."

She added, "Cooperative education is a unique plan of educational enrichment. It is designed to make a student's educational program more relevant and meaningful by integrating classroom study with planned and supervised practical experience in industrial, business, government or service type work situations."

Grigg Denton, a pre-business student from Greenville was one of the speakers. Relating the experiences of a co-op student he said, "I think co-op is a wonderful program. It allows students to relate their education directly to a job situation. This makes both education and the work situation seem more relevant and necessary because the two go hand in hand."

Speaking for the employers group, H. Edwin Gray, a

Greenville CPA told the gathering, "The co-op program has afforded me with a part time secretary who has been training to become a professional. Since I have just started a new business this co-op student has worked to my advantage. Her performance has been highly satisfactory and I would recommend this situation to any local employer."

Gail Wallace, co-op coordinator, introduced the speakers, and Dr. Charles E. Russell, assistant to the president, welcomed the guests.

City Counts 2 Collisions

An estimated $1,650 property damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from an 8 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Greenville Boulevard, involving cars driven by Rozanna Demary Dickens of 1813B Kennedy Cir. and Charlene Anne Payton of 602 West 14th St.

Police, who charged Ms. Dickens with failing to stop for a red light, set damage at $450 to the Dickens car and $800 to the Payton vehicle.

An estimated $200 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 5:30 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Evans and 12th Streets.

Drivers of the cars were identified as Robert Lee Moore of 1301 South Greene St. and Edward Bruce Tapscoff Jr. of 314 Lindell Dr.

Investigators charged Tapscoff with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident.

Amphibious Combat Unit Slated For Persian Gulf

MILITARY ACCESS — Oman, Kenya and Somalia have tentatively agreed to grant American air and naval forces increased access to their military facilities, U.S. officials say. (AP Laserphoto)

Expect Rise In Price Of Milk

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Consumers who have gotten a breather while the price of milk held steady or dropped over the last few months can expect to see the price begin rising again in April.

If all factors remain the same for the next few weeks, farm prices for milk will go up by 20 cents per 100 pounds April 1, according to a report the state Milk Commission received Tuesday.

Such an increase usually translates into a price increase of 2 cents per gallon on the supermarket shelves.

Farm prices will hold firm for March at $14.53 per 100 pounds. If the expected increase goes through in April, the farm price will rise to $14.73.

In other matters Tuesday the commission approved a resolution directing milk distributors to file a complete schedule of their costs over a six-month period with the commission.

The vote was 5-4, with Noel

Allen of Raleigh abstaining. Grady Cooper, executive secretary of the commission, said his staff needed the information to help it enforce a state law that prohibits the sale of milk below cost.

A similar proposal from Cooper that called for a filing on factors that go into a distributor's price schedule was rejected.

Both proposals were opposed by processors on the commission.

Commissioner William E. Younts of Durham, a director of the North Carolina Dairy Products Association, said any information obtained from distributors would be outdated as soon as it was filed.

Commissioner Russell E. Davenport of Fayetteville warned that, "in order to get ... the information from 100 percent of the milk industry in North Carolina, you're going to be involved in the courts. It would ... be far better not to push for it."

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration, in a new hands-off signal to Russia, is ordering an amphibious warfare unit, including 1,800 U.S. Marines, to sail next month to waters near the Persian Gulf.

Administration officials, who disclosed the impending move Tuesday night, stressed that it is intended as part of President Carter's measured effort to deter any Soviet designs on control of the oil-rich region.

They said it is not related in any way to the continued imprisonment of 50 American hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

This will be the first time, as far as officials can recall, that a Marine combat unit will be sent into the Indian Ocean area.

DEADLINE EXTENDED
RALEIGH — Deadline for registering for the "Arts and the Child" conference to be held March 12-14 at the Raleigh Civic Center has been extended to Friday, Feb. 22. Details are available by calling 733-4867 in Raleigh.

The officials, asking to remain anonymous, said a reinforced battalion from the 3rd Marine Division arrived Tuesday at the U.S. naval base in Subic Bay, the Philippines, aboard a four-ship amphibious force. They brought with them M-60 tanks, 105-mm artillery, anti-tank missiles and 18 troop-carrying helicopters.

Officials said the Marines will carry out exercises in the Philippines for about two weeks and then enter the Indian Ocean for the long sail to the Arabian Sea, joining carrier-led U.S. naval forces that have been covering approaches to the Persian Gulf for several months.

The Marines are expected to remain at sea for an indefinite period, with no indications of any U.S. intentions to land them even in maneuvers.

The Marines boarded the four amphibious ships in Hawaii. The amphibious assault ship Okinawa, the tank-landing ship San Bernardino, the dock-landing ship Alamo and the amphibious cargo ship Mobile left San Diego in January.

The Soviet invasion of Afghanistan in late December has prompted the Carter administration to intensify military moves designed to safeguard American access to Persian Gulf oil. A step-up in the U.S. military presence in the Indian Ocean area was already under way as a result of the overthrow of the pro-American Shah of Iran a year ago, increased instability in the region and finally, the seizure of the U.S. Embassy and the taking of American hostages last November.

PTA Meeting To Be Thursday

The Third Street School PTA meeting will be held Thursday at 8 p.m. in the school's media center.

Gary Hess, aided by several children, will demonstrate and explain physical fitness.

Rise In Job Placements

"Job placements increased by 12.4 per cent during the first quarter of fiscal year 1980, as compared to placements made during the same quarter of fiscal year 1979," James E. Hannan, manager of the Greenville Job Service Office has announced.

A total of 751 individuals were placed on jobs through the Job Service Office from October through December of 1979. This compares with 668 placed during the similar period in 1978.

Also, Hannan reports that during the first quarter new or renewed applications were up 25 per cent over the previous fiscal year first quarter — with 3,232 as compared to 3,153. Individual counseling was given to 304 people, and 316 were tested.

In the veteran services category, the Greenville Office placed 152 veterans in the first three months of the 1980 fiscal year. Kendrick Taylor, the Veterans Representative in the Job Service Office, said "there were 386 veterans filing applications for work during this period."

Finds Laughs In Police Work

By SHARON COHEN
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Phil Centracchio laughed when he met the kid who tried to swipe a pot roast by tucking it under his hat. Then he arrested him. And he chuckled when a police officer confused a can of mace with hairspray and knocked himself out. Then he took the cop to a hospital. Police work and crime, Centracchio says, are often good for a laugh. So when Centracchio leaves his daytime job as a cop and heads to his occasional nighttime job as a comedian, he always has plenty of material.

One day, Centracchio recalls, a guy robbed a couple of gas stations and barricaded himself in an apartment building. "We must have had 200 police around the building," he said.

A lieutenant, using a directory that traces phone numbers through addresses, called the apartment, and said, "This is it. I want you to come out in two minutes with your hands up..."

Sure enough, Centracchio said, a man came out screaming. "I didn't do it. I didn't do it." The lieutenant had the wrong number.

An officer for 22 years, Centracchio — who has spent most of his career in the juvenile division — has a lot of crime stories, including the one about the pot-roast thief who was stopped by a supermarket cashier who thought his head was bleeding. It was the melting roast leaking down his face.

Centracchio has no trouble poking fun at serious situations. "Human nature is funny," he said. "Humor can be found in anything."

Centracchio was born 45 years ago in a gritty area of the city dotted with neighborhood bars and bordered by steel mills, where he says, you get "a stain instead of a tan in the summer."

During college, Centracchio — whose stage name is Phil Rossi — began playing and singing with a band. He started doing comedy a few years ago and has performed in clubs from Hawaii to Florida.

But home still is Chicago, where Centracchio remains loyal to his community, visiting schools as a cop and performing at local fundraisers, often accompanied by his wife, Diane.

He also keeps in touch with some of the roughest kids he met on the job, who are now family men. "They call me up," he said, "and say, 'We've got some rough kids who are throwing rocks at our car.'"

Centracchio says he chides them, saying "The things you did — and now you're calling me."

And after facing drug abusers, thieves and runaways day after day, Centracchio — whose routine includes imitations of Peter Falk as Lt. Columbo — says his comedy appearances are therapy.

"If I wasn't able to take my mind completely off police work," he said, "I think I'd end up in a mental ward."

Guns Blasting Starling Horde

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Hordes of clacking starlings have driven the residents of Meyers Park to such distraction they're ready to go in with guns blazing and blast the feathered noisemakers from the trees.

Both city and county officials met Monday and decided that since scare tactics — mostly phony gunfire — haven't worked to drive away the thousands of birds, it's time to bring out the real thing.

It looks as if off-duty county police will be called to arms.

"If we're going to be using live ammunition," County Manager Glenn Blaisdell said, "I'd rather have law enforcement people doing it."

"We've got guns," said County Police Chief Phil Bartlett. "But they're riot guns and I suspect our people would bring their own guns. Most of our people have shotguns of their own."

"If they're treetop height, I suspect you're going to need a longer barrel. Those short-barrel riot guns are normally for close-up work."

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C. — Wednesday, February 13, 1980 — 11
Birds who fall to the guns of called Wing Haven in her Mecklenburg, says county extension service chairman Phil Haas, will emit a "distress call" that will send the rest fleeing.

Haas assured bird-lovers that "only about 10 percent of the birds" — although no one has determined the total starling population in Meyers Park — will be killed by about 15 gunners.

Will anyone be hurt if they're hit by falling shot?

"Oh, no," Blaisdell said. "It'll be very small shot. I've been sprayed with it and stung with it for years. It's no worse than sleet."

Elizabeth Clarkson, who runs her own private bird sanctuary the warm inner city during the winter, then "spread out in March all over the country."

Haas says he told the county commissioners the birds were migratory, "but people say they aren't willing to put up with this another month."

County officials meet this morning to decide when the shooting starts and what to do with the bodies. So far, no one has suggested that since the birds are going to be gunned down anyway, a couple of dozen would make a tasty pie.

Poets To Read At Gathering

Z. Taylor Koonce, III, carpenter-poet-teacher of Beaufort County and a member of the ECU Poetry Forum, will be one of several North Carolina poets to be reading their work in a program being held at the Planetarium in Chapel Hill.

The event, "Poetry Under the Stars," will take place beginning at 6 p.m. Friday, February 15. Admission is $2.50 and children under 12 will not be admitted to the reading.

Other poets to be reading from their work include Calvin Atwood, Julian Long, Marsha Warren, J. David Andrews, and Virginia Rudder.

Lay Rally Is Set Friday

The Greenville District of the United Methodist Church will have its annual lay rally Friday at Jarvis Memorial Church here.

The Rev. Lea Joyner, pastor of the Southside United Church, Monroe, La., will be speaking to the estimated 600 Methodists attending. She organized the Southside Church in 1952 and its membership now is more than 2,000. She is a member of the United Methodist National Board of Evangelism and serves as chaplain of Alcoholics Anonymous and as honorary chaplain of Pilot International.

Prior to the meeting, a barbecue supper will be served from 5:30-6:45 p.m. followed by a song service. The rally will begin at 7 p.m. Three attendance cups will be presented as well as 37 World Parish Citations to outstanding churches.

Over-The-Hill Gang Comprised Of Senior Skiers

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Senior Editor

They call themselves the "Over the Hill Gang". Their name is a deliberate play on words.

Over the hill implies that age has caught up with a person and from now on it's all downhill. And of course, over the hill digs into the parlance of skiing, which is this group's major recreational interest. (I won't start on double play on downhill).

"When we thought of the name for our group, Dr. Ambler asked, 'Over which hill?'" said Father Bill Magill, 61, an Episcopal minister in Denver who is founder and director of the organization for older skiers.

Dr. John Ambler is the senior member of the "Over the Hill Gang". He is 78, a dermatologist and a lifetime skier, Magill said.

The "Over the Hill Gang" is three years old and grew from the priest's concern with the image of the typical skier.

"If you read the slick magazines," he said in a telephone interview, "you get the idea all skiers are young — nobody beyond 28."

Magill went to Charles D. (Chuck) Lewis, developer and president of Copper Mountain, a Colorado ski resort, with the proposition that, "This mountain needs to do something about people who are older and have been skiing for years. I'd like to put something together. Lewis gave me free rein."

The result was the organization for skiers over 45. Membership, which now is national and international, is limited to 200 because Magill, a certified ski patroller and instructor, said the number is about the maximum "specials", the 12,000 foot mountain can handle among the thousands who ski Copper.

The resort gives the older skiers several advantages (I started to write breaks) such as no waiting in the chow line as lunch is delivered, special permission to ski certain "not open to everyone" areas, discounts on ski lift tickets, and free lessons each season.

Magill said there's a waiting list of 25 or 30. But he made an exception to the 200 rule to invite former President Gerald Ford, who's 66. Ford declined for the time, telling Magill, "This is the wrong year to join — this is an election year."

Ford indicated he would be busy with Republican politicking.

The Fords have a ski home at Vail, Colo., which Magill said is "the other side of the mountain." Copper Mountain, about 75 miles west of Denver, is a year-round resort with 46 trails for all ability levels, ski schools, and other recreational facilities. It got its name from copper mines no longer in operation. The "Over the Hill Gang" is a mix of skills, professions and ages.

There are novices, intermediates and the skilled like Father Magill, Dr. Ambler, Tom Stein and Jerry Mosley. Stein and Mosley, both around 50, are assistant directors of the gang. Range of skiing experience of the members is one year to 51 years. Magill said, "We have not had one accident."

The organization has 50 women members among the stockbrokers, judges, doctors, lawyers, financial and real estate professionals, engineers, management experts, and retired persons.

The average age is 54 but several members are in their 60s. The gang went international with induction of Dr. John Pearce, an ophthalmologist, who regularly flies in from London to ski at Copper.

The organization, not for profit, has its own logo patch and team sweater — a dark navy with bold green, blue and red striping on the arms and legs.

When the ski season ends the gang climbs mountains, plays tennis, hikes, bicycles, golfs, and backpacks.

Magill has not heard of any other similar organization but there's no reason others can't copy.

The minister, a native of Dallas, was a Marine captain and fighter pilot in World War II. His father died during the war, his mother remarried and moved to Denver. Magill resettled in Denver in 1968.

For a time, he was a general contractor in the housing industry but the church called and he was ordained in 1960. His church now is St. Luke's Episcopal in eastern Denver and has about 800 communicants.

The Magills have three children, ages 27, 30 and 33. Mrs. Magill is a skier too but she prefers cross-country.

"I've always been active in sports," said the minister. "Living in Colorado, you do what the natives do, so I took ski lessons." He was 50.

He also plays tournament tennis and three years ago took up jogging-running and paces at least 15 miles a week.

"I began thinking about three years ago about when I had felt best in high school and college. It wasn't when I was playing football but when I was out for track. I used to run to and from school ... I felt sometimes like I could run forever."

"Everyone needs to stay in shape. Don't neglect the mid-years. Exercise outdoors is one of the deterrents to the aging process. I'm more active now than I've ever been and loving every minute. I don't feel any different from when I was 40.

"People who are having trouble with age are spending too much time thinking about it, worrying about it. Get with it, I say, take advantage of each day."

"Older people come to me for counseling. I ask them, 'How old would you be if you didn't know your date of birth?'"

"Good health is, of course, the key."

"But it might give courage to others to know that Tom Stein had triple by-pass heart surgery."

"He's now back on the slopes just as active as ever before."

Bottles Become Works Of Art

By GEORGE W. HACKETT
Associated Press Writer
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A new word — "bottlemania" — slipped into the English language in the late 1960s, and Mike Wayne may have helped to create it.

He's developed and distributed more decanters than anyone else in the industry and isn't afraid to spend money on an idea. He recently paid $1 million for the reproduction rights to the painting on one of his latest decanters.

"I'd guess there are more than half a million collectors in the United States today," Wayne said. "They have a lot to choose from. A current catalog lists more than 2,300 different bottles but over the years I'd bet there have been 4,000 produced to represent approximately 400 brands of liquor."

They come in different shapes and sizes, immortalizing everything from slot machines, horseshoes and the Kentucky Derby to King Tut's death mask. All have one thing in common: they contain one-fifth of bourbon.

Some hobbyists believe the attraction is in the bottle itself and not the whiskey; others claim that the value of the container increases if the federal tax stamp remains unbroken over the cork.

"Prices can range as high as $3,000," said Wayne, recalling that the Hopi Indian Kachina Doll which he marketed started out at $25 and soared to $500 five days later. Television and Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., contributed to the sudden rise in value.

"I asked the senator to break the mold and he flew into Phoenix for the ceremony held in front of his home. The TV cameras recorded the event and, afterwards, everybody wanted to get their hands on the dolls."

Wayne, who started in the whiskey business in 1933, has his headquarters in Bardonia, where the five newest decanters are coming off the assembly line. They look like framed oil paintings.

Four of the bottles carry reproductions of Norman Rock-well's work while the fifth is Everett Kinstler's portrait of the legendary actor John Wayne.

"We're not related but I knew him. My home in Beverly Hills is just four blocks from his office. I put $1 million up front for the rights to the painting."

He said the Kinstler and Rockwell originals were shipped to Germany, where a special process was used to transfer the paintings to ceramics.

The decanters were then fired at 1,400 degrees at the plant in Mayfield, which also added 23-karat gold to the framed portion.

To Wayne a ceramic decanter is more than a liquor bottle.

Manilow Is Learning, And Taking Risks In Music

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP News Features Writer

Barry Manilow sat back in 1979 and asked himself, "What am I going to do next?"

Make another record album? Seven of his have sold enough copies to be gold and "Even Now" is platinum.

Tour again? Make another TV special? Those have drawn huge audiences. Even the one on Home Box Office was watched by enough people to be competitive with network TV shows.

Play Las Vegas? He says, "I could go there two weeks every April and sing 'I Write the Songs.' You can't believe the money they offer you. It's real tempting."

"But I figured if I don't move somewhere I'll move backwards. The way I could move is to find things to learn, take risks."

So Manilow started taking acting lessons in Los Angeles with Nina Foch. He went into analysis, which he says is a lot like acting because you have to get down to basics and be honest with yourself.

Around New Year's he put himself, unadvertised, into rock clubs of 300 seats in Los Angeles, New York and Chicago, to try out new material for a six-month world tour to start next July.

He hadn't been in clubs that small for six years, before the first of his big hit singles, "Mandy."

"I do an entire evening without going back to any of the songs that have been real famous. I still got three standing ovations in New York so now I'll be able to do all the old stuff on the tour without thinking they're just applauding for the old stuff."

"I sneak into a city with no advertising at all. We leak it to the press a day before so that some people will show up. The tickets are $5 each. There's no VIP list, no secretaries of presidents of record companies getting in for nothing, no reviewers. I really want fans to see me work out. In New York at one show I did a second ending on one song; on the other show I went straight through all the way. It's very exciting. I'm having a good time."

After he writes some songs, he may do more "open rehearsal performances" in other cities in the same fashion.

BARRY MANILOW

Also in 1979, Manilow produced and arranged Dionne Warwick's album "Dionne."

"Clive Davis, the president of Arista Records, signed her and called and asked if I'd be interested. I just love that job. I co-produce my records, and I did it for Bette Midler on her first two albums."

"Dionne had two big singles from the album, which I didn't write. I wrote a song for her on it and she fell in love with one I had already recorded and put it on there, too."

Manilow also has had two hit singles from his latest Arista album, "One Voice."

"Ships" was released in the fall and is still in the top 100 best-selling singles and "When I Wanted You," released in December, is climbing. If it's a hit, it'll be his 16th straight, he says.

"Ian Hunter wrote 'Ships,'" Manilow adds. "It's very strange for me to record a rock 'n' roll song. It was a rock ballad before I moved it to death. That's what I do, you know." Manilow gives a wry twist to the initials "middle of the road," the words his detractors use to describe his style.

"I like my arrangement of "Ships." I think the orchestration is exquisite. I think it's one of the best things I've been part of. The arrangement is very emotional. I sing it pretty well. I don't know what Ian Hunter thinks...

"I got the song from Clive Davis. He has given me all the songs I didn't write except 'Tryin' To Get the Feeling Again.' He does have an ear for simple, commercial melody. I don't know what he is connecting with, but he is right on the money."

"Ships" got to No. 5 and not No. 1 on the best-seller lists, which Manilow says is all right because that earns it a lot of radio play time.

Manilow hasn't made an album on which he has written all the songs. "I try to. You can't fault me for trying. I would love to have one I've done totally by myself but it doesn't look good. Clive gives me these wonderful songs to record and I can't resist."

Because of all his new undertakings, Manilow says he feels more confident, more mature. "I feel like my feet are on the ground. Before, there were too many moments when I was just unsure.

"I also find that because of this strength and this new well of stuff that I'm diving into, it is making me as contemporary as I can be. 'Copacabana' became a disco hit but it wasn't because I went after one. It was because the song was so good and happened to fit in a disco market. I'm really proud of having written that one."

"I think I have a touch of romanticism to me that seems to work in the way I sing and arrange and in songs I choose. Some of my strongest records are ballads but 'It's a Miracle,'

'Can't Smile Without You' and 'Daybreak' were pretty nice hits for me and weren't ballads."

As far as the acting lessons go, Manilow is in an advanced class of 22 taught by Nina Foch and also takes private lessons from her.

"One of my friends was taking lessons from her and I had to see what it was all about. Boy, it was like maybe we were married in a former life; I never connected with anybody so fast," he says.

"The acting lessons are one of the highlights of my entire life. It's possibly the scariest thing I've ever done, too. Each of us gets up and does a monologue or a bit of business and she criticizes you in front of the entire class. It's interesting to watch other people. Then I have to push myself out of my chair."

Manilow says, "I may fail as an actor, but I'll fail real big. I'm not accepting any little diddly roles they're offering me. 'Gone with the Wind' or nothing. I intend to win an Oscar. As long as that is my obnoxious attitude, then I better be ready, don't you think?"

A Directory Of Self-Help

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

About 800 local services for victims and witnesses in violent crimes are currently operated in the United States with public and private funds.

More than 100 of them are listed in "The Help Book," a 3 1/4 pound, 2-inch thick directory to more than 5,000 programs on those and other consumer-related subjects.

To locate the other 700 violent crime service programs, author J.L. Barkas suggests looking in your local telephone directory under "Victim" or calling the information office of your local police or probation department, bar association, juvenile court, district attorney's office or criminal courthouse.

The Crime Victims and Witnesses chapter is typical of the 52 categories covered by Ms. Barkas, a Center Coordinator at Marymount Manhattan College Library in New York City. It contains a little how-to information and extensive lists with names and addresses of sources of help.

Her book (Scribner's $19.95 hardcover, $9.95 paper) is basically a sort of Yellow Pages for consumer information and/or assistance on an almost infinite variety of topics. Among them are sources for up-to-date listings of budget motels and hotels nationwide; land conservation; rehabilitation services for the handicapped; animal rights; adoption and foster care; food and nutrition, legal services, mental health, mental retardation and learning disabilities, sex education and therapy, family planning and political action.

It tells the average consumer far more than most ever want — or need — to know, but would make an invaluable source book for public, private and school libraries.

Begin Dentist Visits Early

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — A child's first visit to the dentist should take place when his or her first tooth appears — at about six months of age, says Dr. Thomas O'Toole. He is an associate professor of pedodontics (children's dentistry) at the University of Louisville School of Dentistry. O'Toole says that first visit is mostly for the parents, who would be counseled on proper care for the child's mouth.

Creosote In Wood Stoves

Second of Three Parts
By Sam Uzzell
Assistant County Agricultural Extension Agent

Wood burning stoves are gaining popularity all over the country. High energy costs coupled with a "getting back to nature" attitude have made wood an attractive fuel once again. Wood stove design has been greatly improved in recent years, and wood stoves are much more efficient than fireplaces or old "pot bellied" stoves in converting wood to heat energy.

Buying the particular brand of stove that is wanted is one thing, but taking proper care of it is another matter altogether. Every stove has its merits and faults, but curiously enough, the more air-tight a stove is, the more likely it is to produce creosote.

Creosote is simply the deposits in a chimney of condensed organic vapors or tar fog that originate from the wood. Initially creosote is a black sticky liquid, but it may dry to form a flakey or solid material. In other words, creosote is the unburned products of combustion that condense on cooler surfaces in stoves or chimneys.

The greatest period of creosote buildup occurs during an overnight, smoldering type fire. There is a good deal of smoke produced since very little air is being introduced into the stove. This smoke travels up the chimney and condenses on cooler surfaces of the flue pipe. But normal stove operation will produce creosote anyway.

If too much creosote is deposited on a chimney flue, then air cannot pass through the stove and up the chimney as easily. The net result is that smoke may pour out of the stove into the room if the door is opened and in general, not draw air as well.

The major hazard to creosote buildup is a chimney fire. Chimney fires occur when a hot blaze ignites the creosote in the chimney and a fire is started that burns the entire length of the flue. At first, crackling can be heard in the flue, then the flue pipe may begin to rumble or shudder. Large volumes of air are drawn into the stove and a flame can be seen flaring straight into the air at the top of the chimney. A house fire can result from such a situation.

The important aspect of creosote is that timely removal can enhance stove performance and lessen the accompanying dangers. Creosote should be removed from flue pipes at least once a year. New stoves should be checked at much more frequent intervals.

There are some creosote inhibitors that may help prevent buildup of these deposits. Also brushes, chains, or burlap socks stuffed with materials to scrub the chimney flue can remove deposits. This is often a messy job, but must be considered an integral part of owning a stove. Ownership is a fifty-fifty arrangement... buying a stove is half of it and maintaining it is the other half.

Information concerning installation of stoves can be obtained from your wood stove dealer or the Agricultural Extension Service in your county. There are certain minimal standards that should be met in order to burn wood safely. Failure to observe these safety standards may result in fire or hazard to the improperly installed dwelling. A few general precautions include:

- Use a spark arresting screen on top of the chimney. The screen should have half inch mesh. Keep the screen clean.

- Install a smoke detector near all wood burning stoves.
- Keep a water hose or hand operated sprayer nearby for safety.

- Check with your insurance company to make sure your policy covers use of wood stoves.

- Inspect and clean stove periodically and regularly.
- Make sure there is no furniture near the stove and store wood a safe distance away.

- Remove ashes with a non-combustible container.
- Never use gasoline or other highly flammable liquids to start a fire.

- Never create carelessness by being complacent. One moment of carelessness could send your home up in smoke.

Safe operation of wood stoves is easy. It is well worth your effort to familiarize yourself with the proper procedures in stove operation. Talk to your dealer about how the stove you desire works best and most safely. With so many people buying wood stoves these days, it is very important that everyone understands there is potential hazard in owning a stove.

Life Of Adventure In Lawman Career

BONHAM, Texas (AP) — It is not known how many men Rufus Van Zandt killed during his 50-year career as a law officer.

"My brother got to figuring it once, and when he reached 15, I told him to quit," says Van Zandt, 84. He has been a Texas Ranger, a prohibition agent for the Justice Department, a soldier and a private security guard.

Today he lives in this quiet East Texas town and walks with a cane. But he remembers well the days when he lived by a simple code:

"I never shot anybody that didn't need shooting."

Van Zandt, born in Tennessee and reared in North Worth, said he left home at age 18 and worked as a cattle guard on a Mexican ranch. He said that's when he killed his first man, a Mexican soldier trying to steal a cow. But he found himself in deep trouble because of it.

"I had two choices then. Join the Mexican army or be arrested and shot," he said. He joined the army, but escaped by stealing a colonel's horse and riding for 32 nights — sleeping days — crossing back into Texas just east of El Paso.

He was wounded in France in World War I and, after recovering, became one of 33 Texas Rangers, earning $90 a month and providing his own horse and guns. Van Zandt's territory stretched from San Antonio to El Paso.

In the late 1920s, Van Zandt joined the Justice Department as a prohibition agent. "I was being shot at every day. If I was not getting shot at, I felt lonesome."

Looking back over his exploits, the retired lawman said, "I came so close to being killed it's not funny. I've been in some very tight places when I wished I'd never been born. I've been very lucky. God has been good to me."

VD Hotline Said Flooded By Callers

By FRANCES D'EMILIO
Associated Press Writer
PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP)

A worried young woman is talking graphically about venereal disease with a stranger — a young man with a pleasant voice.

He stems the caller's embarrassment with humor, introducing gonorrhea, for example, as "one of our best sellers this year."

But the anonymous counselor turns serious when telling the caller that an infection she has described can be passed to her boyfriend.

"One good thing about the phone is you don't see me blush," said the man after a compliment on his direct yet warm approach.

The woman obtained advice, encouragement and, above all, answers, by dialing toll-free, the nation's only "VD hotline," operated by 30 volunteers who work out of their headquarters in this suburb about 25 miles south of San Francisco.

Since the service began last October, daily calls have jumped from 200 to almost 400, according to Bea Mandel, hotline director.

Facing a VD epidemic, the American Social Health Association decided to fight back with a two-pronged attack, said

Samuel Knox, national program director for ASHA, which funds the hotline.

One goal, Knox said, is to cut the time between "when a person gets a glimmer something is wrong and when he comes in for treatment."

"If we do it through the mail, it's a day or two that's lost," Knox said. "The hotline is the only rapid and reasonable way to do that kind of service."

The second target is to provide women with a "resource that's anonymous, confidential and readily available to test their assumptions and get the callers in (for treatment)," Knox said.

Counselors can turn to an index of 6,000 clinics or private doctors and suggest one close to the caller's home, Knox said.

The ASHA uses $114,000 in donations, including a one-year grant from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and contributions from the local United Way and other benefactors, to run the service seven days a week, 14 hours a day.

With that funding, money is not a major problem. But people are. In fact, the hotline faces a "potentially disastrous problem," a shortage of volunteers. At least 30 more are needed if the hotline is to expand to 24 hours a day.

The present corps of volunteers range in age from 14 to 45, Ms. Mandel said. Some are science students from nearby universities, others are graduate counseling candidates and still others, like 14-year-old Cerstin Marine, are high-school students getting credit for the four or more hours each week they answer the hotline.

"Mostly they ask, 'What are the symptoms,'" Cerstin said.

A lot of people are worried whether they'll get sick or even if they'll die."

Most callers are in their 20s or 30s, Ms. Mandel said, some of them divorced people who want to be sexually active, but "don't want to call their stand-by, family physician."

Cerstin says she's fielded half a dozen calls from children, including a 10-year-old boy and a 9-year-old girl.

The hotline also hears from suicidal callers and those with marital problems, Ms. Mandel said. "A VD call can evolve into a very different kind of call," touching on child abuse or incest, Ms. Mandel said.

Indeed, one counselor told a caller, talking about relationships that may be damaged by venereal disease is as vital as dispensing medical facts.

VD "became a health problem, because someone found a cure," the counselor told a caller who sounded troubled. "But you're dealing not just with chemicals and machines. You're dealing with people."

(National toll-free number is (800) 227-8922; California toll-free number is (800) 982-9883.)

Big Concern Is In Health

By PHIL BROWN
Associated Press Writer
PEKING (AP) — The U.S.

Consulate in Peking has little trouble with Americans running afoul of the law in China. American visitors' ill health is the main headache.

In the past five months, the consulate was called about only one crime case, said a U.S. Embassy official who asked not to be named.

But the consulate had to handle five medical evacuations and four deaths, all but one death involving persons over 70, he said. The evacuation cases included two broken hips and two cases of pneumonia.

Americans visiting China "mostly are coming on tours, and they tend to be elderly," the official said.

He said young people generally couldn't afford the tours, and the Chinese wouldn't let them in for the kind of backpacking they could do in some other countries.

"The elderly don't have a perception of what travel in China is like," he added. "It is not as advanced in terms of medical care and so on."

Because visas to visit China are issued in a number of different places, no exact figure of the number of American visitors is available. The usual estimate is about 35,000 in 1979.

The official declined to give details on the crime case, although he said it was a serious crime. The American was interrogated but not formally arrested, and finally was deported. The official said a consular officer was not allowed to sit in on the interrogation but was in the next room.

The official said the consulate tried to keep up as much as possible with developments in Chinese law, but found cases involving foreigners generally ended up being handled by the foreign ministry.

If tourism continues to grow, he added, the Chinese may stop treating foreigners as special cases.

Bird Watcher Saw 698 Species In 1979's Quest

By STEVEN WEINSTEIN
Associated Press Writer
JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — He held the record previously, but last year he beat it by 41 bird-ies.

No, he's not Arnold Palmer, and his game is not golf. He is James Vardaman, and he's a bird watcher.

Vardaman previously held the record for birds seen in North America during one year, but his sighting of 657 species in 1978 wasn't enough.

He saw 698 species in 1979, and he spent only 170 days looking for them.

"I started bird-watching when I was in the Boy Scouts in 1933," said Vardaman, president of a forest management company in Jackson. "I've been fooling around with it ever since. It just sort of caught my interest then, and I just kept at it."

But he said he had never made "a big project out of it" until 1979. His quest last year was to beat his own record and to see 700.

"I picked it out of the air because it was a nice round number," Vardaman said.

But he says there aren't 700 different types of birds native to North America, so he had to rely on seeing some strays from Mexico and the Caribbean if he was to reach his goal.

"It's a terrific challenge," Vardaman says. "I love the race against the calendar. You win something like this by organization and planning."

"I'm not a great birder by any means, but I'm able to do it and can't resist the challenge."

Vardaman says he clocked about 161,000 miles last year.

How did he know where to look? There are two ways, he says.

"The first is to know that birds are very predictable," he said. "If you want to see a pigeon, you go look over by the King Edward Hotel (in Jackson). You just go there and wait. Most birds are the same way."

"The other way is to get all of the birders throughout North America so interested that they'll call you if something shows up. Then you dash for the airport."

As part of his quest, Vardaman made two visits totaling 32 days to the isolated island of Attu, about 500 miles west of Hawaii.

"Assorted birds wander there — some regularly, some just get blown off course," he said.

The island was a World War II battlefield, but now it's just about deserted, Vardaman says. "There's a normal complement of 25 Coast Guardsmen, and that's it."

Vardaman says his most interesting find was also his last.

"I suppose it was the Great Skua," he says.

"I chased it 600 miles over water, 500 in the air. I finally got it on the next to last day of the year after chartering a plane in Boston."

He said he finally found it floating in the Atlantic Ocean.

"The (Great Skua) population in the world is several thousand," Vardaman said. "It breeds in Iceland and Greenland and after breeding it wanders all over the North Atlantic."

Vardaman called his travels over the past year "a grand experience."

"I saw the country in a way I never saw it before."

But big-time birding isn't cheap, the 55-year-old forester says. "Having a company that grossed $3.5 million last year helped."

He hopes to pay for part of his journeys with a book he's writing.

What's next? North America was apparently too small. Next time, his self-imposed boundaries will reach from one end of the globe to the other.

And rather than trying to get 41 more birdies, he'll be playing for bigger stakes.

He'll be looking for 1,000.

Test Your Knowledge On The Lore Of Gold

NEW YORK (AP) — It's one of the hottest headlines in today's news. It's up, it's down. And it has always intrigued and fascinated mankind.

It is gold.

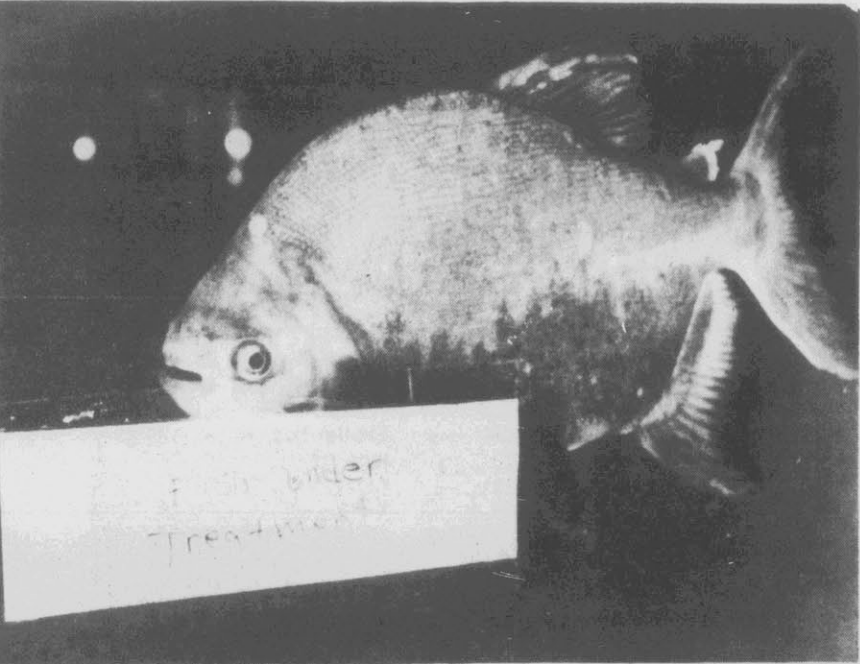

The lure of gold and the luxuries and power it promised helped colonize the New World, enslaved the Aztec nation, and sent frantic '49ers to California to strike it rich, notes the Jewelry Industry Council, pointing out that gold is a mainstay of dentistry, the very heart of jewelry manufacturing and important in exploration of outer space.

But what else do you know about this fabulous yellow metal that is virtually indestructible, yet is the most malleable of all metals? The council offers this quiz:

1. It is believed gold was first discovered: (a) by Aztec tribesmen digging the foundations for the step pyramid that glorified Montezuma; (b) when alchemists of Queen Anri of Egypt were commissioned to find a suitable metal for fashioning personal ornaments; (c) when gold nuggets, glittering in river beds, caught the eye of primitive man, who collected them for their beauty.
2. The earliest known single piece of jewelry, discovered by archeologists in 1922, is: (a) an elaborate neckplate worn by young King Tut in the 14th century B.C.; (b) a gold nugget the size of an egg, pierced at the top where a leather thong passed through it so it could be worn around the neck, found in the grave of an unknown Aztec chieftain in Peru, dated about the 16th century; (c) an arm bracelet set with gemstones, unearthed in the tomb of Queen Shubad, who reigned in 2000 B.C.; (d) a man's gold signet ring, dating back to the rule of Charlemagne.
3. Gold is important to America's space program because: (a) the life cord astronaut Edward White used when he stepped into cosmic space was gold; (b) gold is indestructible and resists chemical decomposition; (c) gold is used in the heat shields worn by space-walking astronauts.
4. One ounce of gold could be hammered so thin it would cover: (a) 10 square feet; (b) 100 square feet; (c) 1,000 square feet.
5. The same ounce of gold could be stretched in a wire long enough to: (a) reach to the top of a regular telephone pole; (b) circle a city block four times; (c) go halfway to Philadelphia from New York.
6. Twenty-four karat gold means: (a) 24 parts of gold to 24 parts of a base metal; (b) pure gold; (c) one 24th of an ounce.
7. Throughout history, alchemists have sought to discover how to make gold. Today, it is possible through nuclear fission, but a bit of gold large enough to fit on a pinhead would cost a fortune to produce. It could be made from: (a) lead; (b) coal; (c) radium.
8. The phrase "rich as Croesus" comes from the Lydian king of the fifth century who was incredibly wealthy. He was also noted because: (a) he constructed a gilded bridge with twin towers of gold on the island of Mikonos; (b) his ship of state, the "Golden Swan," was richly encrusted with gold; (c) he was the first to issue paper money, backed by his gold treasury; (d) he issued the first gold coins ever.
9. If all the gold ever mined was put into one lump, it would: (a) be the exact size of the Cheops pyramid; (b) stack as high as the Empire State Building, with a 10-foot-square base; (c) completely fill to the ceiling every room in the White House; (d) fit within the confines of a baseball diamond, and weigh about 100,000 tons.
10. Early Egyptians used gold signet rings: (a) to denote their rank; (b) to seal important documents so that they could not be opened and read by curious messengers; (c) as one way to carry their wealth in a safe place; (d) as a means of identification when they presented themselves to guards at the royal palace.

ANSWERS: 1.c; 2.c; 3.all are correct; 4.b; 5.c; 6.b; 7.a; 8.d; 9.d; 10.b.

If you had a score of 4 or less, you are off the gold standard; 6 to 8, you made a minor gold strike; 9 or more, give yourself a gold star, says the Council.

WATER TOO COLD — This tropical fish shown at the National Aquarium at the Commerce Dept. in Washington, is receiving special treatment because of government energy saving rules. Craig Phillips, aquarium director, explained that "when the current cold wave hit we weren't able with existing facilities to keep the water warm enough." The situation proved fatal for some of the fish accustomed to warmer water. (AP Laser-photo)

1980 Fishing On Lake Erie To Be 'Good'

By MICHAEL HOFFMAN
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) —
"It's going to be good." And so goes a knowledgeable prediction on the 1980 fishing on Lake Erie.

If 1979 was a bonanza for Lake Erie anglers, this year's fishing is quite likely going to be like striking gold.

Just to bring things up to date, here's a look at what the walleye fishing was like in 1978, the last year for which the state Division of Wildlife has complete figures.

Approximately 500,000 anglers spent 5.7 million hours fishing on Lake Erie during the late spring to early fall season of 1978. Those half million anglers boated 1.6 million walleye.

Preliminary figures for last year indicate that 3.3 million walleyes were taken on the lake.

"People need travel no farther than Lake Erie to experience the finest fishing to be found in the midwest," said division staffer Jim Schoby. "Not only is it here, it's less than a tankful of gas away for most Ohioans."

"We know the walleye are there now," Schoby said. "And I think the secret to finding the walleye is the graph chart (a depth finder with a print out.)"

The inveterate angler has a few tips for finding walleye on the big lake even if you don't have a depth finder on your boat.

To begin, Schoby pointed out that the walleye can usually be located in water depths of about 30 feet, suspended about 15 feet below the surface and generally around the offshore reefs. "Any of the reefs will produce," he said.

But the real key is to find "large bunches of boats and get on the outside edges and drift with them."

"If you can get on the lake you can catch them."

The most common Lake Erie bait for walleye is the artificial weight-forward spinner. It does indeed produce. But Schoby says he's not so sure you need a weight-forward spinner. "Just use a sinker, hook and worm, same as you do for walleye on other bodies of water."

"Or you can troll," Schoby said. "You can use any medium (depth) running baits, ... including minnow types."

The top walleye fishing begins in June on the lake and peaks in mid July and early charter reservations are a must with many of the top skippers already pretty solidly booked through the summer.

One thing: the daily limit for walleye has been dropped to six fish per angler from the 10 of previous years.

A good booklet for anyone interested in fishing the lake is the Lake Erie Fishing Services and Facilities guide, published by the Department of Natural Resources. It can be ordered from the department's publications center. Write to the Publications Center, Fountain Square, Columbus 43224, and ask for publication No. 137.

Prejudiced Over Scars

NEW YORK (UPI) — English psychologist Ray Bull says people with minor disfigurements such as facial scars are victims of prejudice.

In one of Bull's experiments, a researcher riding the London subway in midafternoon found seats around her were occupied 20 percent less when she appeared to have a large red birthmark under one eye. The blemish was the work of a makeup artist.

Bull also repeated an experiment by American researchers who left a completed college education form in a public telephone booth, along with a photograph of the applicant and a stamped envelope addressed to the college. Researchers found more forms were forwarded if the girl were attractive instead of plain.

When Bull substituted a photo of a scarred face, about 80 percent of the forms were forwarded.

The research is reported in the February issue of Psychology Today. Bull told the magazine embarrassment, not hostility, seemed to cause people's reactions to disfigurements in others. "When people are not actually faced with a deformed person, they seem happy to help."

Most Cars Said Poorly Maintained

By JAMES V. HIGGINS
UPI Auto Writer
DETROIT (UPI) — Most cars on the road today need routine maintenance, industry experts say.

Many are so poorly maintained that fuel economy, pollution control equipment and even safety are severely compromised, they add.

While that isn't new, they suspect the situation is caused in part by people using self-serve gas stations to save money.

"We think some of it is just complacency," says David L. Walker, director of automotive technical services for the Champion Spark Plug Co.

"People just assume that the car will run forever without doing anything."

Volkswagen of America recently decided to label gas filler pipes on its new cars to remind motorists to check the engine oil level after pumping fuel.

A VWA spokesman said: "Basically, because of the popularity of self-serve, there may be some instances where people do not check their oil as regularly as they would at regular gas stations."

Another automotive expert, Hal Kassin of General Motors Corp., says it is difficult to document but his "gut feeling" is that self-service tends to foster poor automotive maintenance. Kassin, an assistant director in GM's service section, said of his own stops at self-service stations: "It's a rarity to see anybody open up the hood and check the oil. Maybe the customer does it in his garage before he leaves home. I don't know."

"I've been in the service business all my life," he said. "My personal opinion is that the American public is a throwaway society. They almost feel that with the sophistication designed into the modern product, they don't have to maintain a car."

A recent survey of 2,500 motorists for Champion, which caters basically to the replacement parts market, showed 43 percent always used self-serve pumps; 20 percent used them most of the time, 14 percent, seldom, and 23 percent, never.

Motorists who said they used self-service most of the time, seldom or never were asked how often the attendant at the full-service stations they patronize either checked under the hood or volunteered to do so.

Only 11 percent replied, "always," while 22 percent said the checks were made most of the time, 39 percent responded "seldom" and 28 percent said "never."

Sixty-three percent of the sample used self-service stations most of the time or always, where they were less likely to perform engine, tire, braking system, radiator or drive train maintenance.

Of those who patronized full-service stations, 67 percent seldom or never have any of those checked, the study concluded.

In a Shell Oil Co. check of 100 cars at a self-service station, 56 were one quart low on oil, 34 were low on radiator coolant, 27 batteries were low on water, 29 needed power steering fluid and 33 had at least one tire well below recommended pressure levels.

A 1978 B.F. Goodrich tire inspection program indicated nine out of 10 cars had improperly inflated tires, one of every five cars had at least one tire with too little tread for safe use and one out of every 20 tires was in danger of imminent failure.

Kassin said lubrication is the single most important maintenance item.

When a car runs a quart low on oil, he said, the lubricant sloshes around in the oil pan and, from time to time, the oil pump loses its prime. That starves engine bearings momentarily and causes wear, which over time accumulates into a major problem.

When crankcase oil levels are not kept up, the oil also tends to overheat and break down, Kassin said.

Champion, in a 1975-76 test of 5,666 cars, found almost 79 percent deficient in at least one area affecting fuel economy and emissions. Many cars needed tuneups.

The testmakers concluded: "Assuming the vehicles participating in these tests are typical of those operating in the U.S. and Canada, most cars are not being properly maintained. As a consequence, fuel is being wasted, air quality deteriorates and performance suffers — all needlessly."

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market rose sharply again today, lifting the Dow Jones industrial average above the 900 level for the first time since the fall of 1978.

The widely recognized average of 30 blue chips climbed 6.91 to 905.89 in the first half hour.

Gainers outnumbered losers by more than a 2-1 margin in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts noted that many blue-chip and glamor issues that had been all but ignored in the market's early-1980 rally began to move up strongly in the last hour of trading Tuesday.

That enabled the Dow to reach a 16-month high at the close.

Today, brokers said the rally was feeding on itself, attracting new buyers impressed by the market's strength.

Actively traded NYSE issues included Xerox, up 2¼ at 67½; Boeing, up ¼ at 64½, and Sperry, up 1¼ at 58½.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average climbed 9.39 to 898.98, its highest close since it finished at 901.42 on Oct. 11, 1978.

Advances and declines were evenly balanced on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 48.09 million shares, down from 58.66 million the day before.

The NYSE's composite index rose .40 to 67.51.

Pose Threat To Power Plant

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — Opponents of nuclear power say they have gathered more than enough petition signatures to force a vote on a proposal that would, in effect, shut down Maine's only nuclear plant.

Spokesmen for the Maine Nuclear Referendum Committee on Tuesday submitted 48,489 signatures — well over the required 37,026 — on the proposed "nuclear Fission Control Act" to outlaw the generation of power by nuclear fission.

If the signatures are verified, the proposal will go to the Legislature. It would be submitted to a referendum if lawmakers refused to enact it as written.

Four Public Hearings Thursday Night

Four public hearings and several items relating to planning and zoning highlight the agenda scheduled for consideration by the City Council at Thursday's 8 p.m. session at city hall.

The public hearings are scheduled on: rezoning changes, as proposed by the Planning Department in the report entitled, "Land Use-Zoning Study Area, Belvoir Highway Area"; request by J. T. Manning Jr. for rezoning 1.23 acres on the north side of the Belvoir Highway just west of the prison camp from Unoffensive Industry to Neighborhood Commercial; Request by BCF-JKMW for rezoning, from Flood Plain to R-6, of approximately 34 acres located north of NC 43 across from the East Carolina University Medical School; an order closing a portion of Spruce Street, between Raleigh Avenue and 14th Street; and

An application by Burroughs Wellcome for a permit to place a mobile home at the plant site for use as office space.

Other items on the agenda include: application by Claudie E. Roache and Ralph Swain Sr. for a special use permit to operate a private club in the structure located on Pactolus Highway behind the Department of Transportation; on the extension of the one-mile extraterritorial area just beyond Red Oak and Oakdale; Presentation of a report on the drainage areas around Club Pines Drive and Hooker Road; authorization for the Tax Department to advertise delinquent 1979 real estate taxes; consideration of five applications for beer and wine privilege licenses;

Consideration of bids on CD paving, on police spring-summer uniforms, and on storm drainage pipe for the Southside CD project; presentation of a request by residents of Greenfield Terrace for resurfacing streets in the subdivision;

Consideration of the 1980 CD grantee performance report; consideration of a contract with Ford Motor Co. for lease of two tractors for the Recreation and Parks Department; consideration of a contract with the NC Department of Commerce for the performance of emergency energy inspections of public buildings; and a presentation by Bill Wright of the Human Relations Council of the "New Horizon" fair housing program.

Bridgers

Mrs. Essie Whichard Bridgers, 86, died Tuesday in the Greenville Villa Nursing & Convalescent Home.

The funeral service will be conducted at 11 a.m. Thursday in the Wilkerson Funeral Home Chapel by Rev. Percy B. Upchurch, retired Baptist minister of Williamston, and Rev. David Goerhing, associate minister of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church. Burial will be in Cherry Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Bridgers was a lifelong resident of Greenville and was a member of the Memorial Baptist Church.

She is survived by her husband, Samuel L. Bridgers; a son, Dr. John D. Bridgers of High Point; a daughter, Mrs. Norman W. Wilkerson of Greenville; a brother, David J. Whichard Sr. of Greenville; ten grandchildren; and four great grandchildren.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home from 7-9 p.m. Wednesday.

The family requests that flowers be omitted.

Gaskins

AYDEN — Mrs. May Hardy Gaskins, 81, died in Pitt Memorial Hospital Wednesday. Mrs. Gaskins was a native of Beaufort but had lived in Ayden since 1934. She was the wife of the late R.L. Gaskins and was a member of Liberty FWB Church.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 3 p.m. at Farmer Funeral Chapel by the Rev. Raymond Gaskins. Burial will be in the Ayden Cemetery.

She is survived by a son, the Rev. Raymond Gaskins of Ayden; a daughter, Mrs. Thurla G. Harriman of Denver Co.; two brothers: George Hardy of Palm Harbor, Fla., Albert Hardy of Raleigh; two sisters: Mrs. Bertha H. Pulley of Chapel Hill, Mrs. Vera Smithwick of Aurora; eight grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Worthington

Mrs. Pearl Hester Worthington, 86, widow of J. B. Worthington Sr., died Tuesday at her home near Winterville.

The funeral service will be conducted at 2 p.m. Thursday in the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by the Rev. Willis Wilson, her pastor. Burial will be in Pinewood Memorial Park.

A Wayne County native, Mrs. Worthington lived most her life in the Worthington's Cross Roads community of Pitt County. She was a member of Reedy Branch Free Will Baptist Church.

Surviving are five daughters, Mrs. Frances W. Hall of Morehead City, Mrs. Thomas H. Langston and Mrs. William D. Fryar, both of Winterville, Mrs. Blanie A. Moye of Greenville, and Mrs. James H. Coale of Havelock; three sons J. A. and Tull H. Worthington, both of Winterville, and J. B. Worthington of Greenville; 16 grandchildren and ten great grandchildren.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home from 7-9 p.m. tonight and at other times at the home near Worthington's Cross Roads.

Tag Deadline

Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon this morning cautioned Greenville area residents that the deadline for displaying 1980 State and city vehicle registration plates is midnight Friday.

The police official said, "based on what the State expects to do, there will be no extension of the February 15 deadline," for displaying 1980 registration plates and stickers.

Cannon emphasized that the purchase of a 1980 registration plate or sticker does not comply with the law. The new registration must be displayed on the vehicle.

The chief said Greenville officers will begin enforcing the law immediately after the midnight Friday deadline.

SERVED AS PAGES

Heather O'Neal and Kevin O'Neal of Greenville served as pages in Governor Jim Hunt's offices in Raleigh the week of Feb. 4-8. The two are students at J.H. Rose High School and are the daughter and son of Ms. Willene E. O'Neal, 240 Churchill Drive.

The number for the East Carolina Reading Clinic that was in Sunday's paper has been disconnected. The new number to call is 757-6271.

DENTAL HEALTH WEEK

The students at G.R. Whitfield School observed National Children's Dental Health Week by making posters and booklets, working crossword puzzles, story writing, studying how good nutrition affects the teeth, giving puppet shows and plays and practicing good brushing and flossing habits. The third graders will have a brush-in in the lunchroom to emphasize good brushing and flossing habits.

Drinking Age Bill Awaits Signing

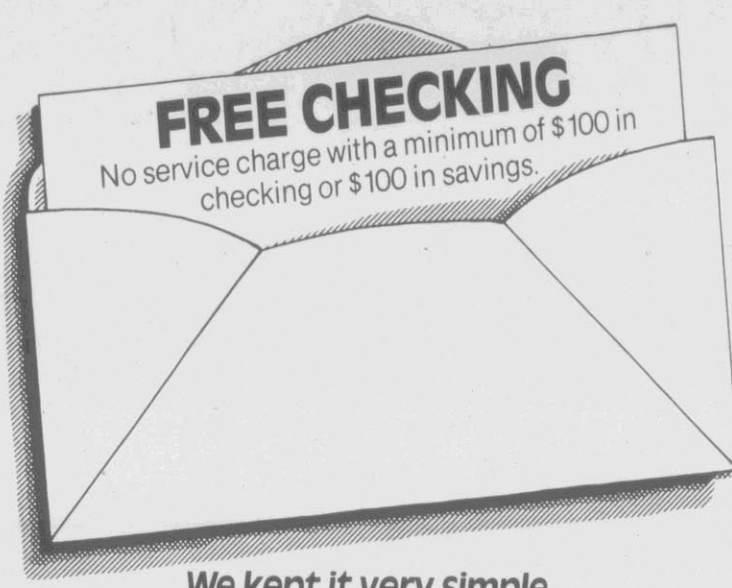

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — A bill raising Nebraska's legal drinking age from 19 to 20 is awaiting action by Gov. Charles Thone.

The Legislature approved the proposal, altered three times during its stormy passage, 31-13 on Tuesday. Aides to Thone said the governor would sign the bill if it was passed with the 20-year limitation in place.

Questions Gun Ownership Rule

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — County School Board Member Norman Berger said he may seek a state attorney general's opinion following a decision by the board to furnish pistols to two members for their protection.

Board president David Alexander said he was given an pistol after receiving threats on his life and after break-ins at his office. Member Hiram Bosage also said he had been getting telephone threats.

Pant-HERS Shock North Lenoir, 50-44

North Pitt, D.H. Conley Advance In Tournament

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

PINETOPS—An illness invaded D.H. Conley's basketball team the last few weeks of the regular season.

After winning 12 of their first 14 games, the Vikings finished the year losing seven of their last eight, including five-of-seven conference battles.

Tuesday night Conley began on its road to recovery as the Vikings, behind freshman Keith Gatlin's 22 points, held off a determined Southern Nash rally to whip the Firebirds, 76-71, in the first-round of the Eastern Carolina Conference Tournament.

The win moves the fifth-seeded Vikings, now 14-9, into Thursday's semi-final battle against top-seeded Farmville Central. The Vikings, who will be without starters Curtis Spencer and Mitchell Moore, must win to get into the district playoffs.

In other tournament games Tuesday night, North Pitt's boys whipped North Lenoir, 38-30, while the Pant-HERS stunned second-seeded North Lenoir, 50-44.

Ahead 66-58 with four minutes to go, Conley saw its lead nearly evaporate before a furious onslaught by Southern Nash. The Firebirds closed the gap to one, 68-67. Moments later, the Firebirds tied the score 69-69 and appeared on the verge of taking control of the game.

Enter gunnin' Gatlin. The freshman hit two jumpers from the left of the lane in the next half minute and after a free throw by O'Hara Parker, who had 15 points for the Vikings, Gatlin sealed the triumph hitting both ends of a one-and-one.

"My freshman played well tonight," Conley coach Shelley Marsh said. "There at the end we wanted him to have the ball and shot. A good ballplayer wants the ball in that kind of situation and he was looking for it."

After falling behind early, 11-8, D.H. Conley went up, 16-15, at the end of the first quarter on a last-second layup by Gatlin.

The Vikings took command in the second period, moving ahead 29-21, spurred on by two quick buckets by center Sammy Tyson. Conley maintained that advantage the remainder of the half and led at intermission, 37-26.

Coming out in the second half, the Vikings pushed ahead, 45-33, on two buckets by Parker and a jumper by Anthony Burney, who had 12 for the Vikings. The Firebirds, in a foreshadowing of things to come, rallied to cut the deficit to eight, 53-45, at the end of the third period.

The Firebirds cut it to four, 58-54, early in the final period but the Vikings countered on four free throws, two each by Parker and Carnell Burney to go up, 66-58.

The Vikings could not get a shot off in their next four possessions and the Firebirds took advantage of the breaks and some hot shooting by McCullen Wiggins from the outside to tie the score with a minute and a half to go before the Vikings, behind Gatlin, held off the Firebird's late charge.

"We got outrebounded again," Marsh said. "They killed us on the boards. But I think the difference was we got some calls and were able to connect on some free throws at the end."

After having watched his team lose seven of its last eight games of the regular season, Marsh was pleased with the way his squad fought off the Firebirds.

"In general, when we got into tough situations like this in the last few ballgames, we would just fold," Marsh said. "They tried hard, we played good basketball, but we just couldn't win. Tonight we battled back and were very fortunate to win. It feels good."

Lady Bucs Meet State

East Carolina's women, 17-7 on the season, travel to N.C. State Thursday, seeking one more time to pull off an upset over the nationally-ranked Wolfpack. Tipoff is set for 7:30 p.m. in Reynolds Coliseum.

"It's going to be tough to beat them up there," Coach Cathy Andruzzi said. "They showed a lot of determination against Maryland (in the ACC tournament finals), and they have a good, solid bench to spark them when they need it."

Currently 22-4, the Wolfpack has seen Trudi Lacey return to action following a recovery from injury. She's averaging 16.7 points per game.

The Wolfpack is also led by their other forward, Ronnie Laughlin, hitting 12.0, and 6-2 center Genia Beasley, averaging 16.0 points per outing.

"Height is going to be our biggest problem. We have to hold Beasley down, along with Laughlin and (June) Doby (6-5 backup to Beasley). And with Lacey back, they are even stronger than they were when we played them earlier. They are a very well balanced team, the type of team that can do anything well. They can go inside on you, or bang away from the outside."

To win, Andruzzi feels that the Pirates will have to play outstanding defense, get rebounds and move their fast break. "We've also got to get

ECU Men Face Terps

East Carolina's Pirates, after clinching their first winning season in five years Monday night, attempt to pull off their biggest upset ever tonight, traveling to College Park, Md., to face the University of Maryland.

The eighth-ranked Terps, come into the contest with an 18-4 mark, having topped Boston College Monday night. East Carolina downed Delaware State, 89-79, Monday, for its 14th victory in 22 contests.

Albert King leads the Terps with a 21.2 average, while Ernest Graham is hitting 17.5, Greg Manning is scoring 15.3, and Rocky Mount native Buck Williams has a 14.3 average.

The Pirates have never beaten Maryland in four previous outings. East Carolina goes into the game with a three-game winning streak, their longest of the season.

Following the contest, the Pirates remain on the road, traveling to Wilmington on Saturday to face the UNC-Wilmington Seahawks.

ed by the 27-for-31 foul shooting of host Wilson Hunt here last night, giving the Warriors a 71-61 conference victory.

In the opener of the doubleheader, the visiting Rampettes watched a nine-point halftime lead evaporate into a 17-point deficit as the flashy Lady Warriors put together back to back 20-plus quarters to whip Coach Dennis Gibson's troops, 65-48.

"They went to the foul line and we didn't," Brewington said, referring to his unit's six charity stripe attempts. "We needed to win tonight, but they are tough to beat at home. I'm proud of our guys, even if they did get beat. It was just one of those games," he added.

The Rampants jumped out to a 10-4 lead early in the first period, with Calvin Whichard and Wallace Brown each throwing in a couple of baskets. The Warriors fought back, however, and on the strength of six-of-six from the free throw line, tied the score at 14 as the initial frame came to a close.

As in the first stanza, the visitors again shot to a 10-4 spurt in the second period, going up by six at 24-18 in the quarter. Brown led the way, connecting on four-of-five 20-footers, as the Rampants blistered the nets in the period, sinking nine of 11 field goals in taking a 33-27 halftime lead. William Frizzell ended the frame in style for Rose, slamming home a two-pointer after stealing a Warrior pass.

Using the foul line as a destroyer, the Warriors fought back in the third period, closing the gap to a single point, at 41-40, before Rose's Anthony Gorham swished a jumper to make it 43-40 with 2:31 left. Two quick Hunt baskets gave the host team the lead with just over a minute to play in the period but Donald House put the locals back out front with an inside move before Warrior Tracy Miles followed a Hunt miss to give the home team a one-point 46-45 cushion heading into the final frame.

Hunt scored the first bucket of the fourth stanza and steadily built a comfortable lead, going ahead by eight at 57-49 with 5:11 remaining to be played. House cut the margin to four with a pair of two-pointers before Hunt began coolly sinking pressure free throws late in the game. Coach James Kent's army marched in 14-of-14 in the frame to take the 10-point, 71-61 win.

Hunt's Jerry Strayhorn led all warrior scorers in the contest with 19 points, including 9-of-11 free throws. Willie Harris followed him with 18 while Frankie Wilson chipped in 13 and Will Webb contributed 10.

House paced the game with a score of points while teammates Brown and Whichard, with 14 and 12 respectively, also finished in double figures.

"We went back to a three quarter ball game," Rampette mentor Gibson said after he watched his squad knock in eight points in the final period while the Lady Warriors were pouring in 26. "They kept our defense guessing with their

Rockets Escape 3-Point Flurry

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

The Houston Rockets, who have been shooting down opponents recently with the three-point field goal, learned what it's like to be on the receiving end — but managed to escape unscathed.

The Rockets survived a barrage of five consecutive three-pointers in the final 54 seconds Tuesday night to edge the San Antonio Spurs 120-118.

Houston held an apparently insurmountable 112-103 lead with 1:11 remaining before the Spurs began bombing away.

"We knew the three-pointers were coming. We were ready, but what can you do?" Houston Coach Del Harris said. "We weren't giving them the shots. They made one, then two. There's no way you could have believed the next one was going in, but they hit three more."

With 54 seconds remaining, George Gervin threw in a three-pointer. Kevin Restani hit one and Mike Evans added two more to cut Houston's lead to 116-115 with 24 seconds left. Two free throws by Moses Malone and a steal and two more foul shots by Allen Leavell made it 120-115 with four seconds to play, but still the game wasn't over.

Larry Kenon hit another three-pointer to close the gap to two, and Houston needed a clutch inbound pass from Robert Reid to Rudy Tomjanovich with a second remaining to preserve the Rockets' fourth straight victory.

Hawks 95, Blazers 89
John Drew scored 24 points and grabbed 12 rebounds as the Hawks won their seventh in a row and stretched their Central Division lead to five games.

Bullets 128, Nuggets 111
Washington, which lost the first three games of its seven-game road trip, finally got untracked at Denver as guard Kevin Grevey scored a season-high 32 points and forwards Elvin Hayes and Greg Ballard added 27 apiece.

Bulls 100, Warriors 94
David Greenwood's slam dunk shot with 2:15 remaining broke a 92-92 tie and put Chicago ahead to stay.

North Pitt, Conley Win...

North Pitt's decided advantage in height and numbers.

In the end, it was to no avail, as the Panthers shook free of North Lenoir's stalling tactics to whip the Hawks, 38-30, Tuesday night.

The win puts the second-seeded Panthers, now 15-7, into the semi-finals Thursday night (9 p.m.) against the winner of tonight's C.B. Aycock-Southwest Edgecombe battle. North Lenoir ends the year at 7-16.

"I had to suspend those players (reportedly for drinking) just before school was out today," Walton said. "So, I had to think up a strategy on the bus coming here — you might call it 'bus strategy.'"

Actually, what the Hawks did was hold the ball for the better part of the game. North Pitt led at the end of the first period, 4-2, and, using a patient, passing offensive strategy, pulled ahead, 14-10, at intermission.

Coming out in the second half, the Hawks continued their slowdown and were able to tie the score at 14-14 on two buckets by Mike White, who led North Lenoir with 10. The Panthers quickly countered, hitting eight straight points, four by Ronnie House, who led North Pitt with 11 points, while shutting out North Lenoir.

After falling behind 22-14 at the end of the third period, the Hawks were forced to eschew their stall. North Lenoir closed to within six, 28-22, but could get no closer, as five points by House in the last two minutes sealed the victory for the Panthers.

"They did a good job," Panther coach Cobby Deans said. "After he told me he had to discipline (three) kids I suspected he'd do something like that (stall), but still we weren't prepared to face it. They executed it well and he should be proud of his kids."

"But I'm proud of mine as well. We hadn't worked against it in practice and had not looked for it. We had one lapse but that was it," Deans said. "We beat them at their own game, you could say."

"We had had two days of practice and we had worked for an entirely different team than the one we played tonight," Deans said. "It's like practicing for the next team on your schedule and finding out you read the schedule wrong. You still have to go out and play them."

After four ECC tournament games an upset had yet to be registered. An upset was bound to happen soon, and for North Pitt's girls it was none too soon, as the Pant-HERS, behind a hustling defense, shocked second-seeded North Lenoir, 50-44, Tuesday night.

The win moves the Pant-HERS, now 8-12, into Thursday's semi-final game (7:15 p.m.) against the winner of tonight's C.B. Aycock-D.H. Conley battle. North Lenoir, which had won 11-of-15 conference games during the regular season to finish second behind Southwest Edgecombe, ends the season at 15-8.

"They beat us twice earlier in the season," said North Pitt

WILLIAMSTON — Williamston's Jan Rogerson paced five players in double figures with 20 points here Tuesday night as the Lady Tigers whipped Roanoke Rapids, 71-55, in Northeastern Conference Tournament action.

The win put Williamston in the semi-finals Thursday night.

Rogerson was joined in double digits by teammates Regina Rodgerson, who gathered 13, Teresa Duffy, with 12, and Cathy Everett and Ginger Edwards, each of whom connected for 11.

Williamston jumped out to a five-point 19-14 first-period lead, and both teams duplicated that performance in the following quarter, enabling the Lady Tigers to take a 38-28 advantage at intermission.

Roanoke Rapids fought back in the third stanza to outscore the home team, 16-13, cutting the lead to seven, before Williamston put together a 20-point fourth period while Roanoke Rapids strung up 11.

Pam Andrews led the Roanoke Rapids attack with 16 points, followed by Susan McCleny and Audrey Hockday, both with 10.

ROANOKE—Thirteen Roanoke players scratched here last night as the Lady Redskins scalped the visiting Tarboro Vikings, 59-39, in Northeastern Conference tourney action.

Roanoke took advantage of a poor shooting first quarter by the guests to record a 13-4 lead at the close of the frame. Action heated in the second stanza, as Tarboro dumped in 10 points while Roanoke found 11 in the quarter, taking a 24-14 lead into the locker room.

The Redskins came out busting in the third frame, pouring in 23 points, while Tarboro slipped further behind by knocking in 11. The Vikings finally won a quarter battle in the final frame, out-distancing the leaders 14-12, but remained behind in the war by 20, 59-39.

Viking Linda Jerome led all scorers in the contest with 17, the only visitor to reach the double figure plateau. Two of the thirteen scorers for Roanoke finished in double digits with Sylvia Parker pacing the pair with 13 while Carolyn Jones added 12.

The win allows Roanoke advance into the semi-finals Thursday night.

JAMESVILLE—Connecting on 2 of 27 field goal attempts in the first half, Jamesville's Lady Bullets fell behind 33-7 at the half and never threatened powerful Chocowinity in a Beaufort-Hyde-Martin Conference tournament game here last night, falling 60-35.

Jamesville shot just seven percent in that dismal first half that saw the tournament host team pick up a single point in the first period. Chocowinity swished through 19 initial frame points and added 14 in the second while Jamesville sank six.

Coach Jerry Godley's girls fired in 13 third quarter points, outscoring Chocowinity by four, but were out-distanced in the final frame, 18-15, giving the visitors the 25-point win.

Tammy Williams was the only Lady Bullet to finish in double figures as she fired in a dozen for the game. Vivian Myers of Chocowinity grabbed game high honors with 17 points, followed in double digits by teammate Jefferson who contributed 11.

Chowan Academy placed five players in double figures Tuesday night as the visitors hammered the final nail in Martin Academy's winless season, defeating the host unit, 78-52.

It was the last game of the season for Martin, giving them an 0-17 overall slate. Edwin Johnson paced the losers with 20 points and was joined in double figures by teammates Allen Warren, who knocked home 12, and Jerry Brannon, who added 10.

In the girls game, host Martin Academy overcame a scoreless first period to take Chohan, 23-19, in a game that saw neither team tally more than nine points in a single period.

Gloria Wynne paced the winners with nine points as the Martin girls finished their season 2-8 in the loop and 4-13 overall.

various offenses. We wanted to keep them from running, but we got into early foul trouble and had to leave my game plan," he explained.

The first quarter started off the way Gibson wanted it to with the score a low 6-4 in favor of Hunt at the midway point in the stanza. The Lady Warriors then dumped in six straight points before Rose ended the period with a four point flurry of its own, behind by only a pair at the break, 12-10.

Paced by three quick steals and successive layups by Rose's Sharon Williams, the guests pulled in front by four, at 18-14, with 4:00 left in the half. Hunt gathered in only five points in the frame, connecting on 1-of-12 from the field, as they entered the dressing room behind by nine, 26-17.

Warrior Teresa Taylor, shut out the entire first half, popped in ten points as did her backcourt mate Cynthia Tyson, as the Lady Warriors found 22 points in the third period. Rose, down 39-34 late in the quarter, put together six straight to take a 40-39 advantage into the final period.

Hitting on a mere 25 percent of their field goals in the fourth quarter (4 of 16 shots), Rose watched as the Lady Warriors hit the first seven points of the frame, enabling them to gain a 46-40 lead. Candy Wellington spurred the host unit, making three steals enroute to a 10-point individual period. Hunt built a 13-point lead halfway through the frame and, with 30 ticks remaining, knocked in a bucket to take the final 17-point margin.

Tyson grabbed game high honors with 20 points while Taylor turned in 18. Wellington pumped in 14 and Rhonda Bynum added 10 for the Warriors. Rampette Williams led Rose's attack with 14 points and was joined in double digits by teammate Donna Cullipher, who collected 10.

them, into early foul trouble," she added.

"It's a big game for us, and the girls are looking forward to another shot at them."

It probably won't be the last meeting of the two either. The Pirates and Wolfpack will be bracketed in the same group in the NCAIAW Tournament, although State will receive a bye, and the Pirates will have to beat their first round opponent to get to the Pack again.

State won the earlier meeting between the two, 81-76, in Minges Coliseum in Greenville, with Beasley scoring 25 points and pulling down 11 rebounds.

The Lady Pirates have two more games left after this. They include a home game against Western Carolina and a road trip to William & Mary.

Syracuse Loses Finale At Manley Field House

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Just because all good things must come to an end doesn't mean all things must come to a good end.

The second-ranked Syracuse Orangemen took the nation's longest home-court winning streak — 57 games — onto the court for their final game ever at Manley Field House Tuesday night.

Next season, they will begin play in the new Carrier Dome with a one-game home losing streak thanks to a 52-50 setback at the hands of Georgetown.

"If it hadn't been the last game we wouldn't have played so tightly down the stretch," said Coach Jim Boeheim, whose team missed five of seven free throws in the last two minutes while blowing the remains of a 30-16 halftime lead. "I think we all wanted to win this one a little too much."

It was the first loss in Manley for any of the Syracuse players AND for Boeheim since he became coach.

The only other member of The Associated Press Top Twenty in action was 13th-ranked Brigham Young, which nipped Utah State 84-83 as Fred Roberts scored 26 points, including a driving layup with 36 seconds remaining for the winning basket.

Syracuse, seeking its fourth consecutive unbeaten season at home, came a cropper with five seconds left when Georgetown's Eric Floyd made a pair of free throws. The visiting Hoyas won the game at the foul line, where they were 10-of-14 to the Orangemen's 4-of-10.

With John Duren and Craig Shelton leading the way, Georgetown chipped away at the Syracuse lead and outscored the Orangemen 8-1 in the final 2:10 to overtake them. After Roosevelt Bouie's free throw gave Syracuse a 49-44 lead, Georgetown's Ed Spriggs made a layup and Shelton, the game's high scorer with 17 points, added two free throws.

A free throw by Syracuse's Marty Headd, the only Orangeman in double figures with 15 points, interrupted the rally momentarily but a goaltending call against Bouie on Spriggs' hook shot enabled the Hoyas to tie the score. Headd then fouled Floyd after the losers' Eddie Moss missed a free throw.

"We were getting good shots in the first half, but we weren't making them," said Georgetown Coach John Thompson, whose club is 18-5 overall and 5-1 in the Big East Conference to 18-2, 3-1 for Syracuse. "I told the kids at halftime if they could get the same shots, they could win the ballgame."

"There was a lot of excitement because they were closing the field house and that might have worked against them. There were a lot of distractions for them tonight."

"I'm certainly glad that streak's over," said Headd, a local boy who was in the stands as a high school senior when Syracuse lost its last home game to Virginia Tech on Feb. 28, 1976. "Streaks are for the writers to write about. In college basketball, any team can get knocked off. I do think, however, the loss will help us and show us how much we have to work."

Meanwhile, Brigham Young nailed down its 19th victory in 23 games when Devin Durrant blocked a jump shot by Utah State's Brian Jackson with three seconds left. The Cougars trailed 42-37 at halftime but outscored the Aggies 14-4 midway through the second half to take what appeared to be a comfortable 77-66 lead before Jackson and Dean Hunger led a Utah State counter-rally.

"I thought it was a great second half," said BYU Coach Frank Arnold. "Both teams played well, but one has to lose."

Even Rod Tueller, the losing coach, wasn't too unhappy. "I'm tickled pink with the whole game," he said. "That's the kind of game you can come away from with your head up."

Elsewhere: —Arkansas tied Texas A&M for the Southwest Conference lead by edging the Aggies 45-44 as U.S. Reed hit a free throw with four seconds remaining to tie the score and another after time had expired to win it. Reed drew a charging foul on A&M's Dave Goff as the Aggie player missed a long-range heave at the buzzer.

—In other SWC games, Texas held onto third place by thrashing Baylor 99-61 behind Ron Baxter's 30 points, Houston got 20 points from Kenneth "Juice" Williams and whipped Texas Christian 87-59 to earn a fourth-place tie with idle Texas Tech while freshman Dave Piehler's three-point play with nine seconds left in overtime gave Southern Methodist an 82-81 triumph over Rice.

—Marquette, down by eight points early in the second half, overtook Xavier of Ohio 82-70 — its 23rd consecutive victory over the Musketeers — behind Oliver Lee's 27 points.

—Sophomore Ronnie McAdoo connected on 15 of 22 shots and scored a career-high 33 points as Old Dominion routed George Mason 104-73 for its 13th straight triumph.

—Memphis State ended a six-game skid with an 82-79 Metro Conference decision over Tulane.

—Yale won for the 10th time in 11 games and clinched its first 500 season in 12 years (13-6) by defeating Brown 84-74.

—New Hampshire ended the nation's longest losing streak at 12 games by nipping Dartmouth 55-54 as Dana Chapman hit a jump shot and two free throws in the final 45 seconds. Dartmouth, which has dropped 10 in a row, inherited the nation's new high — or low — for futility.

Olympic Games Begin, Overshadow Turmoil

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — With all of the pomp and pageantry that is so much a part of the Olympic tradition, the opening ceremonies of the XIII Winter Games were held today, overshadowing at least for the moment the political turmoil which threatens the very foundation of the Games.

Nearly 1,300 athletes who have gathered for this ice and snow festival celebrated the opening of the Games, parading through horse show grounds in a meadow on the outskirts of this sleepy town which will hold center stage in the sports world for the next 12 days.

Following the opening ceremonies, the first sled runs in the treacherous luge competition were scheduled for tonight with speed skating and skiing set to begin on Thursday.

Hockey got an early start on the other sports with six games Monday, including an emotional 2-2 tie for the young United States team against Sweden.

Cheered on by their fans who screamed support and waved banners and flags, the Americans rallied for the deadlock on a goal by defenseman Bill Baker with only 27 seconds left to play after they had pulled their goalie for an extra attacker.

In the other hockey openers, the powerful Soviet team, gold medal favorites, walloped Japan 16-0. Canada, returning to the Olympic hockey tournament for the first time in 12 years, battered Holland 10-1. Romania surprised West Germany 6-4, powerful Czechoslovakia routed Norway 11-0 and Poland upset Finland 5-4.

International Olympic Committee officials presided over today's opening ceremonies less than 24 hours after announcing rejection of an American request that the Summer Games at Moscow be moved, canceled or postponed because of Russian intervention in Afghanistan.

"The IOC is fully aware of, and sensitive to, the world conditions which have created the most serious challenge to confront the Olympic Games," Lord Killanin, president of the IOC, said.

The competition got off to an exciting start for the United States, which could make a record medal haul at these Winter Games. Twice the Americans scored late goals to salvage the opening-game hockey tie with Sweden.

Trailing 1-0 when Sweden's Sture Andersson scored early, the U.S. got even for the first time on a goal by David Silk with just 28 seconds left in the second period. Then, Sweden regained the lead on a goal by Thomas Eriksson with more than 15 minutes left in the game.

The Americans kept buzzing goalie Pelle Lindbergh, a draft choice of the National Hockey League Philadelphia Flyers, but the 20-year-old held them off.

Finally in a desperate last-minute thrust, the U.S. lifted goalie Jim Craig for an extra skater. The strategy paid off when Baker launched a 55-foot blast that whistled past Lindbergh for the tying goal, setting off an emotional celebration by the team and the crowd.

"Hey, we're happy," said Coach Herb Brooks. "The manner in which we got the point — our goalie off the ice, the final minute of play — we were lucky."

"It was all right for the teams to tie," said Swedish Coach Bengt Ohlson. "But the way the game was tied was not very nice for us."

Alexander Golikov led Russia's romp with three goals as the Soviets outshot Japan 67-17.

IOC: Olympics As Scheduled

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — The Olympic Games in Moscow next summer are officially on, but President Carter is urging the U.S. Olympic Committee to pull out.

Within an hour of a statement from the International Olympic Committee (IOC) Tuesday night, rejecting Carter's call for moving the Games because of the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan, the White House turned the pressure on American Olympic officials.

Jody Powell, White House press secretary, issued this statement:

"We regret the decision of the IOC to conduct the 1980 Summer Olympic Games in Moscow and to reject the proposal of the U.S. Olympic Committee to transfer, postpone or cancel the Games. Under the circumstances, neither the President, the Congress, nor the American people can support the sending of the United States team to Moscow this summer."

"The President urges the U.S. Olympic Committee to reach a prompt decision against sending teams to the Games."

Carter's move was a blow to the Olympic movement, which was trying to keep the Games intact in the face of growing political pressure to call them off. Only 24 hours before, U.S. Olympic Committee president Robert Kane had said the U.S. government had presented no ultimatum to the USOC, which had until May 24 — the date when entries have to be submitted to Moscow — to decide whether to go.

Lord Killanin, president of the IOC, read a 700 word statement to a news conference, after a two-day debate by the ruling body of the Games, and announced that the Moscow Games were on. The statement said the IOC had an agreement with Moscow and an obligation to the young athletes of the world.

It added that National Olympic Committees had to make a decision on whether to go to Moscow, and hoped that as many as possible would be there.

The USOC now has to decide whether to bow to the government or play for time and keep its options open until May. Robert Kane, the president, has said he is opposed to any kind of boycott of the Games. The IOC urged all national Olympic committees to compete.

Kane appeared before the IOC this week and presented Carter's case for moving the Games. He argued that by its military intervention in Afghanistan the Soviet Union had made Moscow an unsuitable place for holding a sports festival designed to promote peace and international friendship.

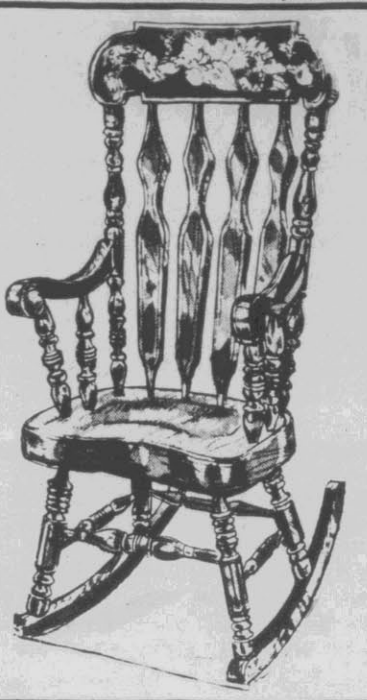

Killanin said the IOC had considered the USOC presentation but decided unanimously that the Games, due to start next July 19, must go on in Moscow. He said the 73 members present all supported the decision, including the two members in the United States, Douglas F. Roby and Julian K. Roosevelt.

Bear Grass Girls Fall To Bulldogs

JAMESVILLE — Joette Myers poured in 20 points, but got only eight points worth of help from her teammates as Bear Grass fell to Belhaven, 59-28, in Martin Conference tournament action here Tuesday night.

Bear Grass suffered through an eight-point first half, garnering four points in both first half periods, while Belhaven tallied 14 and 12 points in the same span, taking a lopsided 26-8 intermission advantage.

The Lady Bears woke up in the third frame to score 13 as Belhaven chipped in 12, but went back into hibernation in the final frame, scoring only seven while the winners were swishing 21, giving them the final 31-point spread.

Belhaven's Selena Freeman was the game's leading scorer with 21 points, followed by teammates Pam McCloud, with 12, and Jackie Burris, with 10. Rogers' 20, of course, paced the Bear attack.

National Lampoon Empire Built On The Outrageous

By DOUGLAS DOWIE
LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Matty Simmons is not a funny guy. But he knows what makes people laugh. He has parlayed that into a multi-million dollar entertainment empire.

Simmons, a former press agent who helped start the Diners Club, built his comedy empire on the infamous reputation and the financial success of an outrageously irreverent, always topical, and sometimes downright sick magazine—National Lampoon.

The first edition of National Lampoon appeared on newsstands in April 1970. The Vietnam War was raging. Richard Nixon lived in the White House. The wild-eyed Charlie Manson was about to stand trial for the Tate-La Bianca murders.

The country needed a good laugh. National Lampoon helped America laugh at itself.

A decade later, National Lampoon is the top adult humor magazine in the country, especially on college campuses. The staff has just published the National Lampoon 10th Anniversary Anthology.

National Lampoon alumni have produced, written, or starred in at least seven books, nine record albums, four stage shows, two radio programs, two television shows, and one of the most profitable movies in cinema history—National Lampoon's Animal House.

"Saturday Night Live" network television's successful experiment with hard-core satire was written to a large extent by former Lampoon staffers. Its cast was studied with young comics who had starred in Lampoon stage productions.

"Saturday Night Live" players John Belushi, Chevy Chase and Bill Murray are National Lampoon graduates. They have since starred in major motion pictures, including some produced by Simmons.

"For the first six or seven months it was wildly unsuccessful," Simmons said. "Then suddenly things picked up. 'I was sort of the padrone of this whole thing. I was always saying, 'We got to watch it, folks, we can get sued real easily.' Then the issue that really took off was a cover parody of Minnie Mouse. It was my idea and it attracted our first lawsuit."

Simmons said two factors contributed to Lampoon's success. The political climate was ripe. The United States was then probably one of the few countries in the world without an adult humor magazine.

"When you have a president like Nixon and a vice president like Agnew," he said, "a satire magazine has tools. People liked to laugh at them."

"We were also one of the first magazines to come out against the Vietnam War with a cover calling Nixon a liar. War and Watergate gave the magazine a lot to work with."

"Our worst period was when (Gerald) Ford was president. He was one of the dullest presidents ever and everytime we tried to do something on Ford we fell flat on our face."

National Lampoon has had its share of critics and lawsuits. It has never lost a suit, but its detractors label many of the articles unfair, bigoted and disgusting.

Simmons says there were some guidelines he enforced. "Everybody had to get it," Simmons said. "I told the staff to pick on everybody."

"There was a natural inclination in those days to zing it to people on the right. Now, as a matter of fact, we have a number of editors who are very conservative, but in those days the editors were liberals. I insisted we had to give it to everybody."

As far as taste was concerned, Simmons said the only guideline was that the piece had to be "redeemably funny" and he made the final decision.

One of the magazine's most famous issues contained a parody of a Volkswagen ad that suggested that if Sen. Edward Kennedy had been driving one of the watertight German automobiles when the Chappaquiddick accident occurred, he would have been elected president.

That piece does not appear in the anthology, says Simmons, because the magazine eventually agreed to a demand from Volkswagen that it never be reprinted.

Instead, the anthology contains another piece satirizing Kennedy, "The Delegate from Chappaquiddick."

Offering Booklet On Letter-Writing

As part of its nationwide National Letter Writing Week observance (Feb. 24-March 1) the U.S. Postal Service, in cooperation with the National Council of Teachers of English, is offering a booklet on letter writing for school youngsters, according to Greenville Postmaster H. Lloyd Mills.

"All About Letters" is a 64-page publication designed for students in grades six through 12. The NCTE, an organization of some 100,000 teachers of English, has been licensed by the Postal Service to print, accept orders for and distribute copies to public, private, and parochial schools and the general public.

The booklet's three sections offer guidance and instruction for all types of letters.

Other portions of the booklet list addresses for organizations offering publications by mail on hundreds of subjects of interest to students, from archeological digs to zoo populations.

A third section instructs students on proper ways to address their mail, why ZIP codes are important and provides a list of various postal services available to the public.

Postmaster Mills said teachers' parents, and students can obtain copies of the booklet by writing to the National Council of Teachers of English, Department A, 1111 Kenyon Rd., Urbana, Ill., 61801 and enclosing a check or money order for $1.50 for a single copy or 75 cents per copy when ordered in classroom sets of 20 or more copies.

"All About Letters" cannot be purchased from the Postal Service.

Civil Defense Is Missouri Congressman's Cause

By RICHARD H. GROWALD
UPI National Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ike Skelton is in his second term as a congressman and one of the unsolved Washington mysteries to him is exactly what happens at 11 a.m. the first Wednesday of each month.

"A siren goes off on Capitol Hill and it is supposed to be for civil defense. The missiles are coming, or some such thing," he said.

He took a drink from his glass of iced tea in the Democratic Club.

"I wish someone would explain what the siren means," the man from Missouri said. Skelton has a Missourian's show-me attitude, of course.

But he also is a member of the post-Watergate class of congressmen who are not overly obedient to party discipline, who startle and sometimes sadden party leaders, and who regard the fellow titled a "whip" as something out of political S & M.

He is six-foot-four and, even seated in a Democratic Club chair, he has height over his luncheon companions. Skelton smiles; not for nothing is he kin to comedian Red Skelton.

"There are definite plans on what to do with the President and the cabinet and the higher reaches of the Pentagon if the missiles come flying," he said. "But, as far as I can find out, there's no plan on what to do with congressmen if Doomsday threatens."

"Oh, I understand the Capitol hallways are marked as fallout shelters and there are the tunnels under the House and Senate. They don't seem to be blast shelters, though."

He finished the iced tea and began working on the glass of water.

"Sure, I know about that monthly siren. But what does it mean? What should one do when one hears it? Ah, the mysteries of Washington."

His wife Susie — she is a coffee drinker — sets down her cup. "Maybe it just means you're expendable," she said.

Skelton smiles again. "Maybe," he said. "But what really worries me is what happens back home in Missouri."

He noticed something among his district's 16 counties — a bit of Kansas City and Independence (Harry Truman's town, of course) and 15 farm counties to the east — when winning his first Congressional election four years ago. "I kept noticing these fenced-in gravel yards out in the middle of fields. I found that near Knob Noster, near Whiteman Air Force Base, there were 150 of the little gravel plots."

"In the middle of each was a cement cover. Each of the 150 was a launching site for America's intercontinental ballistic missiles. When I got here, I asked the Pentagon if this meant that my district would be a target for some enemy attacking the United States."

"Well, yes, they told me. In fact, the Fourth District of Missouri ranks 39 out of the Pentagon's list of America's 40 most likely targets.

"So I began to try to find out what would happen to my constituents if worst came to missile worst. The answer was: not very much in the way of safety. Now, I don't want you to think my folks are unpatriotic. The opposite is true."

"I have never heard anyone complain about us housing the missile silos. But a little real civil defense might be nice."

Skelton found $24 million was being spent last year just to make the Knob Noster silos thicker and thus safer from enemy missiles. "And only $101 million was being spent to provide Civil Defense for all the American people."

A waiter brought more iced

tea. Back in the old days, say before former Rep. Wilbur Mills met his political Waterloo in a Washington fountain with Fannie Fox, the Democratic Club was more noted for more spirited drinks and its night service.

These days lunch is the profitmaker and wives are in attendance.

"Americans need better Civil Defense. A better warning system. Better emergency communications. Better training, so folks know what to do in case."

"Americans need plans for evacuation, so the folks back home what to do in case the cry comes 'Get out of Sedalia.' What happens if Three Mile Islands happen all over America?" Skelton spends most time tending to the doings of western Missouri in the House, using one-on-one dickering with fellow lawmakers rather than much oratory on the floor and spending 10 days a month back home, as befits a congressman who two years ago won reelection with 73 percent of the vote.

Agriculture and Small Business are his committee assignments. And he tries to support his Democratic president: "Haven't heard a good word for Sen. (Edward) Kennedy back home in six months"; besides, Truman was a mighty party loyalist and the late president is Skelton's home hero and Truman's widow his beloved constituent. Skelton has made Civil Defense for all Americans a cause. And he is unhappy about a lack of civil defense support from President Carter. This is not against the grain of the unbridled young congressmen. They made exert a new fashioned independence. But their speech has much of the Fourth of July spirit as in olden days of Congress. Skelton is fortunate in that in him it sounds natural.

Susie and their three sons know that a rare Sunday afternoon off means a trip to the Air and Space Museum or the National Archives or some deeper depth of the Smithsonian to drink deeper of America the Beautiful. During a Manila stopover on a mission to Vietnam last year, he alone of the delegation braved a darkness-at-noon tropical storm to helicopter to Corregidor to see the site of one of America's more tragic but glorious moments of World War II.

In the service of his cause, Skelton helped get the House last session to vote 189 to 149 to make civil defense meaningful. The measure died in the senate. Skelton is hopeful of passage this session.

"Sure hope so. I'm from the Show Me State. And our national state of civil defense has shown me; and what is shown frightens me."

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — David "JoJo" Douglas, 13, who spends most of his free time at the fire station next door to his home, has been honored for containing a serious fire there.

The youngster heard the alarm sound and, as was his habit, went to the station to keep an eye on things while the crew was out. There he found a kitchen fire, started when the firemen, rushing to the emergency first-aid call, left the heat on under a pan of cooking oil.

JoJo sounded an alarm, grabbed a fire extinguisher and fought the flames despite the smoke, managing to contain the blaze until help arrived.

For preventing serious damage to the fire station, the youth was presented with a $50 check and plaque by Fireman's Fund, which insures all city-owned property, and was honored at a luncheon attended by the principal of his junior high school, his pastor and all of his firefighter pals.

Fire Chief Dallas Green says that JoJo first began hanging around the station some eight years ago when his family moved next door. The firemen made him their mascot, gave him his nickname, helped him learn to read and write, got him his own uniform and taught him some of the tricks of the trade, such as how to roll hoses and to use a fire extinguisher, a skill that came in handy.

Oil Pollution Program Begun

LONDON (AP) — With assistance from the U.N. Inter-Governmental Maritime Organization, China is embarking on a program to protect its seas from oil pollution.

Pollution around the coasts of China has been a matter of concern to the government for some time and although various measures have been taken to ensure adequate precautions while tankers are discharging oil, they have not been completely successful. The government has decided to take further steps before the problem becomes more serious.

Textile Council Sets Lectures

NEW YORK (AP) — A program to update textile students and faculty on developments in manmade cellulosic fibers and applications for new rayon-acetate products has been announced by the Rayon-Acetate Council Inc.

The 1980 campus Guest Lecturer Program will feature presentations by industry and academic leaders on more than a dozen timely topics, according to Dr. Robert Barker, Clemson University textile professor and chairman of the council.

Old Monte Carlo Hotel Operating In A New Way

By PAUL CHUTKOW
Associated Press Writer

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (AP) — It was an unkind enough cut when the proud Monte Carlo Casino abandoned the black tie. But now, Old World values be hanged, the Hotel de Paris has computerized its wine cellar and is sending out for croissants.

"It is not funny," sniffed one resident chef of the celebrated hotel, for more than a century the standard of excellence for Monaco's vacationing rich and titled. "The croissants of a bread baker are not the croissants of a pastry chef."

Nor has computerizing the wine stocks delighted Orlando Zampi, cellar captain of some 140,000 bottles of champagne and chateau-bottled wines from Bordeaux and Burgundy. Presented with the morning print-out, Zampi waved it off with the same disdain he might show for an upstart wine from California.

At any other hotel these changes, along with the fresh remodeling and computerized telephone system, might be hailed as great steps of economy and efficiency in the triumphant March of Progress.

But at the 115-year-old Hotel de Paris, glistening gold in the rarified sunshine of this Mediterranean fairland of Prince Rainier and Princess Grace, this kind of "progress" often leaves an uncertain aftertaste.

"We stopped home-baking croissants as an economy measure," said an official of the Societe des Bains de Mer, which manages the Hotel de Paris, the casino and other Monaco institutions. "I'm not sure it was a good idea."

In the early 1960s when the adjacent Monte Carlo Casino abandoned its black-tie requirement, there were dire predictions here of the imminent fall of the West.

To cushion its own reluctant passage into the thoroughly modern, the hotel's old masters — from the doorman, to the cellar captain, to the chef — have taken enormous care to groom their successors in the hotel's standards and folklore.

Take Etienne Brigasco, for example. For 48 years, this little Italian with the twinkling eyes and rosy cheeks prided himself as the hotel's "cavist," captain of the wine cellar.

Before retiring recently to his own little vineyards, he spent decades teaching his fellow countryman Zampi about tasting, ordering and maintaining wines, how to make the special house cognac, and how not to be influenced by voguish trends in foreign wines.

And he passed on the lore about how, when World War II erupted, he had spent three days and three nights hiding the hotel's finest wines and liquors deep inside a cellar chamber, blocking the entrance with row after row of empty bottles.

Brigasco also passed on stories about Winston Churchill, and he loves to embellish them these days when he returns to the chill cellar for some warm camaraderie with his protegee Zampi.

The British prime minister was on hand for the reopening of the wine cellar right after the war and the first bottle Brigasco brought out was from Churchill's special stock of whisky.

Model Ship Store Allures Craftsmen

By CHRISTOPHER CORBETT
Associated Press Writer

NORWALK, Conn. (AP) — For three-quarters of a century, a small waterfront shop has figuratively been luring grown men to run away to sea.

"It's the romance of seafaring," said Arthur Montgomery, owner of the firm, known widely as a maker of fine model ships.

"It's mostly history, and it's colorful history — wooden ships and iron men. Herman Melville and Sir Francis Drake," Montgomery said in an interview at Bluejacket Ship Crafters, located in a 19th-century ship's warehouse in Norwalk.

Established in 1905 by H.E. Boucher, a respected naval architect and head of the Navy's model shops in Washington, the company has served several generations of craftsmen who labor long and lovingly over small ships.

This is not a toy store for children. Its scale models are of the finest detail, requiring a surgical precision and hundreds of hours to assemble.

And they are not inexpensive. The kit for "The Flying Cloud," a famous American clipper ship, with blueprints, costs nearly $125.

"There is hardly a marine museum in the country that doesn't have ship models that this company built," said Montgomery, who took over the firm in 1971. Model ships made here are in the Smithsonian Institution.

Fittings for the small vessels are made of brass and Britannia alloy, and the hulls are of basswood, which has virtually no grain and is soft.

Doctors Evaluating Rutherfordton Siamese Twins

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Doctors at Memorial Mission Hospital are evaluating Siamese twin girls joined just below the ribs who were born over the weekend to a Rutherford County couple.

In a statement released Tuesday afternoon, doctors said each girl has a "reasonably normal chest, upper extremities and head."

One baby, Fonda Michelle Beaver, has a heart murmur, according to the statement. Fonda and her sister, Shannon Elaine, share a bladder, colon and rectum. Each child has her own spinal cord, but the spinal cords meet at the pelvis. Each child has, and controls, one leg.

"I'd never heard of such a thing as Siamese twins," said Estelle Fisher, grandmother of the twins' mother, 14-year-old Kim Beaver. "It just shocked me something terrible ... and had me wondering if there was anything I could've done."

Mrs. Fisher has taken care of Kim since she was a child while Kim's parents worked in Forest City textile mills. Kim and her husband, Alvin, share a home in Forest City with Mrs. Fisher, Kim's parents, Ray and Jackie Fisher, and Kim's brother, Chris.

The Beavers were married last summer, shortly after both dropped out of Rutherford County schools. School officials say Kim left Cool Springs Elementary School after completing eighth grade. Her husband, 20, dropped out of East High School last year in the middle of his junior year and worked briefly at the Cinema Theater and Farmer's Hardware in Forest City.

Dr. Frederick E. Rector Jr., the pediatric surgeon in charge of the twins, said their birth was "a terrible tragedy" adding, "this has had a catastrophic effect on the family."

Because the twins are eating well and are in generally good condition, there is no need to rush treatment, Rector said.

Doctors in North Carolina with experience treating Siamese twins expressed concern over the amount of body shared by the Beaver girls.

Dr. J.C. Parke Jr., associate chairman of pediatrics at Charlotte Memorial, questioned whether they could be separated.

But other doctors said the girls' separate hearts mean they probably could be separated. Dr. Colin Thomas Jr., professor and chairman of the department of surgery at the University of North Carolina medical school, said a lot would depend on "the anatomy and blood supply," which still have to be worked out.

Carolyn Helms, administrative assistant at Memorial Mission, said the rest of the gastrointestinal evaluation is incomplete and will not be complete for four days.

No plans have been made for separating the twins, she said, and doctors will not discuss that possibility with the parents until studies of X-rays are completed.

Mrs. Beaver was listed in satisfactory condition Tuesday at Rutherford Hospital, where the girls were delivered by Caesarean section Saturday.

They weighed 12 pounds and were immediately transferred to the Asheville hospital, which is the regional referral center for babies with serious problems.

Dr. Joe Godfrey of Forest City, one of the doctors caring for Mrs. Beaver, said doctors didn't suspect until late Friday night that she was carrying Siamese twins. He said the pregnancy had been normal but on Friday doctors "became highly suspicious that this was what it was going to be."

The Rutherford County twins are the second set of Siamese twin girls born in the state in the past year and a half.

Siamese twins were born to a Wake County couple in Raleigh on Oct. 3, 1978. The babies died after they were separated.

The Wake twins, who were born to David A. and Geraldine Bain of Fuquay-Varina, were transferred to Duke Medical Center for surgery to separate their hearts.

They were joined for about six inches from the breastbone to the navel and the surgery involved separating their hearts.

Sonya Denise Bain, the younger of the twins, died on Oct. 14, two days after the surgery. Tonya Bernice Bain died the next morning.

Can U.S. Find Missing Skull Of Peking Man?

By ALINE MOSBY
PEKING (UPI) — On a cold December day 50 years ago in the nearby village of Zhoukoudian, a 26-year-old anthropologist plucked a skull from under his shovel in a cave where local peasants had reported finding "dragon bones."

Professor Pei Wenzhong made one of greatest scientific discoveries of all time.

The skull of "Peking Man," a human with overhanging brow and massive jaws who lived from 200,000 to 600,000 years ago, was the first solid evidence that modern man evolved from apes. The skull also proved man had used fire centuries earlier than had been believed.

But the famous skull, and four out of five others found in the same cave, disappeared during World War II on their way to the United States.

The international mystery has never been solved. China's Peking Man specialist, Wu Rukang, a colleague of Pei, hopes the United States can find the relics.

"The only specimens we have of our Peking Man are these five teeth, a lower jawbone and a skull in two pieces," Wu said in gentle dismay.

He held out a brown wooden drawer from an ordinary filing cabinet at the Institute of Vertebrate Paleontology. Inside were molars much like those dentists work on today, except larger. In another drawer lay the skull and jawbone, like dusty rocks, covered with cotton.

Wu said the precious skulls were kept at Peking University Medical College until the United States entered the war in the Pacific in 1941. Two American scientists working at the college, Henry S. Houghton and a man recalled only as T. Bowen, took the skulls by train to Tianjin port (Tientsin) to be shipped to the United States on an American freighter for safekeeping.

"We do not know what happened to the men," Wu said. "Some people think the train was captured by the Japanese, others say the ship was sunk by a Japanese torpedo."

"A professor at the New York Museum of Natural History thought the boxes were seized in Tianjin. We investigated but could not find them there.

"When I went to a conference in Toledo, Ohio, last spring, many American anthropologists said they wanted to help us find the skulls. We have not given up hope, but so far there is no trace of them in China, Japan or the United States."

On a small hill near Zhoukoudian, excavations continued in the 1950s in several caves. During Mao Tse-tung's 1966-76 anti-intellectual "Cultural Revolution," the anthropologists were "writing revolutionary poster and attending ideology meetings," Wu said.

In late 1978, anthropologists and local workmen resumed digging in a new cave near the original one.

A dozen workmen, weather-hardened faces peering from beneath fur caps, haul wheelbarrows full of fist-sized rocks from the cave.

Over the hill, visitors poke around the cave — 40 yards high and 40 yards wide — where the six Peking Man skulls were found. High on the cave wall a white sign says, "Peking Man skull was picked up here in 1929."

Foreigners now can visit the caves but need special visas because Zhoukoudian is outside the 25-mile radius of Peking in which foreigners can circulate. A soldier guards the 25-mile limit post, the Marco Polo Bridge, where the Italian explorer crossed into Peking and where the Sino-Japanese War began in 1937.

A four-room museum next to the cave has just been reopened. It displays remains that show the life of Peking men and women, members of the species "Homo Erectus" which emerged 1 million years ago, long before "Homo Sapiens" or modern man.

Between 30 and 50 people resided at about the same time in the cave.

The anthropologists found thousands of rocks cut into tools with which the cave people cut their meat. And they cooked it.

In the 13 layers of refuse of centuries dug from the cave, two are of ashes; some are as thick as six yards. The museum scientists said the Peking Man cave dwellers kept their fire burning all the time for fear it never could be re-started, and it probably burned for centuries.

from those of mice and birds to saber-toothed tigers and rhinoceros. Some of the animal fossils date back 10 million years.

under 14 years of age, three between 15 and 30 years, three between 40 and 50 years and only one lived to between 50 and 60 years. Some skulls are battered, indicating Peking men and women killed each other.

Research by 120 scientists in 17 institutions and colleges in China since 1977 fixed the date of the oldest human bones at 600,000 years, 100,000 years more than was thought when the first skull was discovered in 1929.

January Barometer Is Marked By 'Up' Trend

INTERSTATE SECURITIES CORP.

"As January goes, so goes the year," Wall Street uses a lot of indicators to help determine the future direction of its markets. The January Barometer, one of the less scientific methods, holds that market direction for the entire year is set by what happens in January.

Judging from January's action, 1980 should be a good year. The Dow Jones Industrial Average rose 6 percent to 876 by month's end. The New York Stock Exchange composite index, a measure of 1500 NYSE-listed stocks, rose 6 percent, as did the S&P 500. The Carolinas Index, composed of selected North and South Carolina companies, rose about 1 percent.

The volume of trading activity was the big surprise, as a new record was set. January volume rose to 1.2 billion shares, easily exceeding the previous record of 865 million shares set in August 1978. American Stock Exchange volume also set a record with a January total of 206 million shares.

After apathetic attitudes of the 1970's, this kind of activity is explained by the near crisis atmosphere now existing. There is a growing conviction that the country is about to do something about all its problems.

As has been the case in the past several years, selective groups of stocks were involved in the upward move. Defense issues, in particular, were strong following the President's State of the Union message. Boeing rose 29 percent and General Dynamics 12 percent; smaller subcontractors also had good stock performances.

Those companies with natural resource assets— coal, timber, and copper — were also strong performers. Oil companies' stocks rose sharply as earnings for the year were announced. Of local interest, Nucor, a steel products manufacturer, was up 20 percent, and PCA International rose 54 percent.

Many investors, however, continue to place their cash in money-market funds, which invest the money in short term securities and currently yield more than 12 percent. Assets of money market funds have risen fourfold in the last year, to approximately $45 billion.

The buying rush has apparently been fueled by institutional investors such as banks and pension funds. Many of the large capitalization stocks they favor now provide relatively high yields and good future growth prospects. They believe stocks are the best investment, on a relative value basis, for the long term.

If small investors come around to this viewpoint, the markets could soar. Considering inflated prices of metals, real estate, antiques, and other collectibles, common stocks are about the only investment medium left within the reach of the small investor.

The January Barometer is not infallible. A number of events could interrupt the upward trend in stock prices, among them wage and price controls and higher interest rates. Despite those possibilities, Wall Streeters believe 1980 and the decade of the Eighties will be good ones for investors.

Potential Heat In A Woodpile

BRATTLEBORO, VT. (UPI) — One cord of hard wood burned in an airtight stove has the same heat potential as 190-250 gallons of fuel oil, depending on the kind of wood used, according to a recent issue of Country Journal magazine.

The magazine also reports that a properly placed woodstove can heat an entire house but it advises asking a dealer specializing in woodstoves for advice in selecting the proper stove for a particular house. Reprints of a guide to kinds of wood recommended for burning as well as instructions for felling trees and stacking wood may be obtained for $1 each from Country Journal, 205 Main St., Brattleboro, Vt. 05301.

SAVE $40 on Your Summer Electric Bills

By Joining BEAT THE PEAK

BEAT THE PEAK is a program designed to help reduce the high "peak" periods of demand for electric energy which typically occur on hot summer days when all electricity users combined are using the most electricity—at the same time. These "peaks" are very expensive and they cost you, the electric consumer, extra money.

If you are a residential customer of Greenville Utilities and you have either an electric water heater or central air conditioning, then you can help BEAT THE PEAK. As a BEAT THE PEAK Volunteer, you receive a direct credit reduction of either $5.00 or $10.00 on each of your June, July, August, and September electric bills. That can add up to a $40 savings.

It costs you nothing to join BEAT THE PEAK, but it can save you a lot. It also helps save precious, expensive oil that must be used to generate the electric energy needed during peak periods.

To apply for BEAT THE PEAK, or for more information, call the Energy Conservation Office of Greenville Utilities at 752-7166. Only several hundred applications remain for 1980, so call Today so you can start saving money this summer.

WE CARE ABOUT VALUES

Value in quantity, quality and price. Often a large package at the same price as a smaller one leaves out the value of quality. We try to balance all three values in our store before the item is placed on sale. However, we offer a wide variety of merchandise so that YOU can choose the value YOU desire. At the same time we constantly strive to keep the price down by buying in quantity, keeping administrative cost low, retaining employees who have proven their effectiveness, taking advantage of manufacturers specials, and by pricing fairly. We care!

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — LONE TOBOGGANIST DETESTS BAD SLIDE.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: I equals E

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, FEB. 14, 1980

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Carry through with a course of action that has proved satisfactory in the past and resist the urge to change present arrangements by which you have had success and happiness.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Try to gain your aims by using more modern methods and get fine results. A direct course is the best to follow now.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Private endeavors are fine to follow now, but be sure to carry through with what associates expect of you without deviating.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You have excellent plans for getting ahead, but don't be too hasty in putting them in operation. Make good arrangements first.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Plan how to be more successful in business dealings and be more productive. Be more reassuring to mate.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Listening with interest to what allies have to say helps them to cooperate more with you, and you with them. Be wise.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Making needed changes where your work is concerned will bring more worthwhile results. The evening can be a most happy one.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have had a new interest in mind for some time, so delve into it now and get excellent results. Take no risks in motion.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) There are conditions at home you want to clear up, but you could lose out on an important business matter, so postpone for now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Obtain important data you need from the right sources, then go ahead with plans you have made. Smile and be happy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Assets from different sources could come your way at this time. The daytime may be taxing, but the evening can be delightful.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't permit anyone to force you into some situation that you know is not right for you. Be poised at all times today.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Express your fine ability when called upon to do so today and please higher-ups. Come to a fine understanding with co-workers.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be one who can easily get along well with others, so be sure to give the best education you can afford and future success is assured. Give ethical training early in life. Sports are a must in this chart.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Events in Afghanistan seem to suggest that the Hitlerian theory of "the big lie" is not dead—the Nazis believed that the bigger the lie, the greater chance there was of it being accepted as the truth. In bridge, however, where logic is paramount, that principle does not apply. A blatant falsehood is often less likely to succeed than a bold statement of truth. This bit of philosophy was occasioned by the following hand from a recent pairs tournament.

The auction was routine. South had a maximum no trump opening bid and North judged that his 9 points and good five-card suit merited bidding game even if his partner had a minimum.

West led his fourth-best heart. Declarer played low from dummy. East followed with the eight, and declarer won the ace. His purpose was to try to convince the enemy that he held only one more stopper in that suit. He hoped that if he lost the lead, the opponents would continue with hearts rather than search for more fertile fields. In doing this he vaguely reminded us of the village idiot who, chancing on a gravestone with the inscription: "Here I lie, not dead but asleep," calmly observed: "He ain't foolin' nobody but hisself!"

When East won the club finesse, he realized that declarer simply had to have another heart higher than the eight in his hand—if West had started with a heart suit headed by Q-J-9, he would have led the queen originally. Therefore, he decided to shift to a spade, and that held declarer to nine tricks. That was an excellent matchpoint score for East-West, since most declarers made eleven tricks on the hand.

Declarer had only himself to blame for this debacle. Had he properly won the first trick with the queen of hearts, he would have created a seed of doubt in East's mind. After winning the king of clubs, East would have to consider whether his partner might have started with a heart suit headed by the ace-jack, in which case it might be correct to return a heart to establish partner's suit. If he did so, declarer would have had time to establish his diamond suit, which would have produced two overtricks.

New Convention Center Opened

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI) — This city's new convention center, part of a $212 million construction and renovation program, officially opened this month with an exhibit of the Michigan Grain and Agricultural Dealers.

The new facility, which has 116,000 sq. ft. of display space, is the second largest in Michigan. Located on the Grand River, where much of the city's redevelopment is taking place, it is part of the city's $25.5 million Grand Center, which includes a new Performing Arts Center scheduled to open next October.

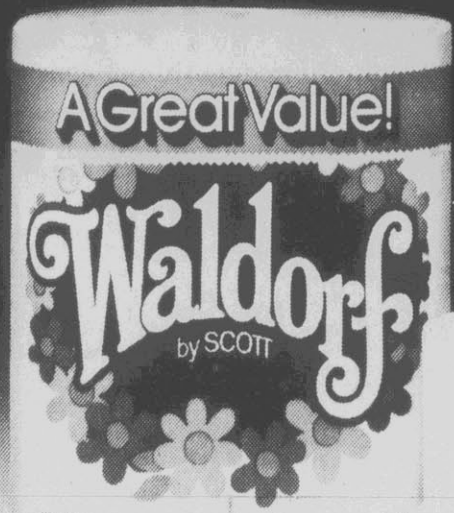

The Gerald R. Ford Presidential Museum, which is under construction, is within walking distance of the convention center.

'Incredible Sunday' Joining Other TV Magazines

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — ABC-TV will soon join the other networks with a weekly "magazine show." Titled "Incredible Sunday," it appears to be a combination of CBS' "60 Minutes" and NBC's "Real People."

While "60 Minutes" purports to be a news show and "Real People" is mostly a comic look at idiosyncratic Americans, "Incredible Sunday" hopes to fall somewhere in between.

The networks have finally concluded that there should be more to television than sitcoms, dramas and sports. The multiple-host feature shows are finding an audience and good ratings. "60 Minutes" was ranked No. 3 and "Real People" No. 18 in a recent Nielsen weekly survey.

Much of the success of both shows lies in the combination of personalities involved on screen. The team of Mike Wallace, Morley Safer and Dan Rather, which seems bent on making news rather than reporting it, have kept "60 Minutes" among the top series of the past couple of years.

Sarah Purcell and John

Barbour are the prime movers of "Real People," assisted by a staff of young personalities.

Because human chemistry is all important to a TV magazine format, ABC was at pains to bring together an attractive, TV-wise trio to lure viewers to "Incredible Sunday" which makes its debut March 2.

Stars of the new team are singer John Davidson, frequent Johnny Carson "guest host" (the most stultified grammatical invention in TV parlance); Fran Tarkenton, former quarterback great of the Minnesota Vikings; and actress Cathy Lee Crosby, who was TV's original "Wonder Woman" four years ago.

Cathy Lee is a tall blonde whose physical appearance brings to mind a young Katharine Hepburn. She is slender and athletic. She has high cheekbones, a square jaw, deep-set eyes, a short, straight nose and freckles.

She is not a newcomer to TV hosting, having played emcee with Vin Scully on "Challenge of the Sexes." She also hosted last year's "The All American Girl" two-hour special.

Her movie credits include "The Dark," "Coach" and "The Laughing Policeman."

"Our show has to be informative as well as entertaining because we're in prime time access — 7 to 8 p.m. — just like '60 Minutes,'" Cathy Lee said.

She says "Incredible Sunday" will not be as investigative as "60 Minutes" nor as comedically oriented as "Real People."

"Our show is about people, demonstrating what they do, how they survive or why they are involved in a variety of situations," she explained. "But we don't degrade them or what they're doing."

"The material is real human interest which can't be described as news and certainly not comedy."

"Some of the subjects we're dealing with are education, ESP, medical advances, inventions, superhuman feats — all verified — and assorted human predicaments and their solutions, experiences which aren't ordinarily reported."

which inhabits New York City's labyrinthine underground utility tunnels, sewers and subways.

Another involves a man who has survived seven separate strikes by lightning.

Cathy Lee was reluctant to reveal other segments of the show for fear of spoiling the surprise element.

Almost all of the interviews on the show will be filmed in the field, as with the other magazine shows. "Incredible Sunday," however, will not isolate its interviews into separate host-oriented segments as does "60 Minutes."

"I wouldn't try to compare our show with the others," Cathy Lee said. Then she got cute, adding, "Maybe it's fair to describe our series as 60 minutes of real people."

Before becoming an actress, Cathy Lee, who says one of her grandfathers was a full-blooded Chickasaw Indian, was a hot-shot tennis player at Southern California and became a member of the U.S. Overseas Touring Team.

Her acting career began when she was 4, making appearances on her parents' local family television show, "The Crosbys Calling." Her mother is actress Linda Hayes. Cathy Lee is also a veteran of episodic TV.

Thus far, stardom in the United States has eluded the lithe blonde. But both "Coach" and "The Dark" — which was screened at the Cannes Film Festival last May — were big hits in Europe, Asia and the Middle East, Cathy Lee said.

"I've been to Europe four times in the past year posing for all the magazine covers and helping publicize the movies," she said. "Coach" and "The Dark" have been released here but they haven't done as well. I don't know why."

Cathy Lee hopes "Incredible Sunday" will propel her from the ranks of relative obscurity on the tube to major stardom. If not, she has signed to star in two movies abroad: "The Archangel" in France and "Tell Us of Pain" in Lebanon.

"I've also signed to play the life of Frances Farmer in a movie biography," Cathy Lee concluded. "And that could be the most exciting project of all."

'Rating' Points Worth Millions

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The ABC public relations man anticipated the question. "We have an answer to that," he said, and offered an expletive.

"The other answer, the one you can print is, 'No one is going anywhere.'"

The question: Is Anthony D. Thomopoulos, the man who puts programs on ABC's television network, about to be run upstairs? The rumor took life at about the time CBS briefly passed ABC for the lead in the season's ratings competition three weeks ago.

Thomopoulos squandered ABC's power advantage at the beginning of the season by taking unnecessary programming risks, the talk went, and he would soon be "rewarded" by being moved up from his powerful and highly visible programming position to the administrative echelons.

Standard gossip, ABC replied. No one is going anywhere.

Indeed, Thomopoulos does not present the image of a man besieged. Handsome and fit, the 41-year-old executive seems more a model for a clothing advertisement than a veteran of television's ratings wars, where fractions of a ratings point carry loads of anxiety.

Sounds like an ad, too. Of his job, and concomitant pressures, the president of ABC Entertainment says:

"I enjoy the competition. Of course, there are moments of elation and moments when you're annihilated. But there's not a more exciting, challenging job to have and I'm glad of the opportunity."

Providing the excitement has been an intensely competitive ratings race, one which ABC, for the first time in four years, isn't certain to win. Of this Thomopoulos comments:

"You see, one of the problems that confronted us this year was that I said at the beginning of the year it was going to be a very even race. Everybody else said it wasn't, but I said it was."

"Even then, when you look at it in totality, we are only down in our performance by 5 or 6 percent."

It is true that ABC hasn't exactly collapsed this year, but in television, 5 percent or 6 percent translates into big bucks. ABC is nearly two ratings points below its performance to date last year, and it has been estimated that each point is worth about $30 million in year-end profits.

"THE FLIGHT BROTHERS"

Men with dreams. From their boyhood into manhood, they planned and dreamed of flying. On Dec. 17, 1903 in Kitty Hawk, North Carolina their dream came true. Orville and Wilbur Wright flew into history. THE FLIGHT BROTHERS, a musical drama, celebrates their lives and their triumph. Written by North Carolinian Bill Ries, THE FLIGHT BROTHERS, was produced for UNC-TV by the Carolina Regional Theatre.

'Black Tuna' Might Like Visit U.S.

By RICK SPRATLING
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI (AP) — He has his own army, a seaside penthouse, a silver-plated revolver and a taste for big American cars. He likes parties and fast motorcycles.

In bits and pieces from federal files, a portrait of Raul Davila-Jimeno — mastermind of the Black Tuna ring — begins to emerge.

Davila-Jimeno, who uses the shortened last name Davila in his native Colombia, was the missing man as eight members of the Black Tuna drug smuggling organization were convicted in a Miami federal court last week. He was described by authorities as chief supply agent for a gang that once provided one of every 12 pounds of marijuana smuggled into the United States — an estimated one million pounds in a single 16-month period.

Even before that, federal agents say, Davila was believed to be supplying drugs to dealers along most of the East Coast. The Miami indictment was his fourth in this country. He has not been caught or tried.

The Black Tuna ring took its name from the monicker adopted by Davila for use in clandestine radio contacts. Gang members even wore gold Black Tuna medallions.

Informants told the government that ring members in airplanes would circle Colombia's remote Lake Cienega Grande, calling for "Black Tuna" on 123.45 megacycles. When they received an answer they would spot another plane and be led down to a jungle airstrip.

When the Black Tuna case broke in late spring 1979 and 13 other persons were indicted and arrested, Davila remained free, presumably resting comfortably in his penthouse suite atop a beachfront highrise in the little town of Santa Marta.

Federal agents know much about him, yet don't know him at all.

Dark-eyed and handsome, Davila, who will be 33 on March 4, is listed as a sugar and petroleum exporter.

"Everyone, to a man, says he's a real gentleman, a real nice guy," said Brent Eaton, the DEA agent who helped break the Black Tuna case. "Whatever rules he's decided to live by, he sticks to them. He's known to be a criminal, but they respect that down there."

Eaton has issued international alerts through Interpol and has asked Colombia to expel Davila. There has been no response. He said a new treaty has been negotiated providing for extradition of Colombian citizens to the United States, but it has not been approved by the U.S. Senate or the two-house Colombian legislature.

In Santa Marta with its dirt streets, Davila's Jeep Renegade, white Cadillac Seville and Yamaha motorcycle must look out of place. The luxury car and motorcycle were supplied by the Black Tuna gang through its front business, the South Florida Auto Auction, trial testimony showed.

Word filtered north about a month ago that Davila is upset by publicity on the Miami trial. "He's afraid that some of his confederates may want to do away with him because of all the publicity," Eaton said. "They may feel he's a weak link."

Those who know the Black Tuna say he never moves without his local militiamen or his silver-plated .357-caliber Magnum beneath an expensive leisure suit.

The FBI believes Black Tuna would like to visit the United States again, perhaps using phony travel papers. Some of the world's finest document forgers are said to operate in Colombia.

"After the dust settles," said FBI agent Dick Moehle, "and the rest of us are still around with long memories, maybe he'll take that chance. I hope so."

How Tar Heel Senators, Representatives Voted

Roll Call Report Service
WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes January 31 through February 6.

HOUSE
WATER PROJECTS — The House passed, 283 for and 127 against, a bill authorizing $4 billion for some 175 flood-control, bridge-construction and navigation projects benefiting about 70 per cent of the congressional districts. The bill (HR 4788) was sent to the Senate.

Rep. Dan Glickman, D-Kans., a supporter, said that while some criticize the bill "as an example of pork-barreling, I think ... that this is a bill designed to deal with human problems."

Rep. Robert Edgar, D-Pa., an opponent, said the House "ought not support a bill that enables the construction of projects that are inefficient and wasteful, or whose communities do not even want the project constructed."

Members voting "yea" favor the public works bill.

Reps. Walter Jones, D-1, Charles Whitley, D-3, Ike Andrews, D-4, Richardson Preyer, D-6, Charles Rose, D-7, W.G. Heffner, D-8, and James Broyhill, R-10, voted "yea."

Reps. L.H. Fountain, D-2, Stephen Neal, D-5, James Martin, R-9, and Lamar Gudger, D-11, voted "nay."

NOISE NEAR AIRPORTS — The House approved, 285 for and 122 against, legislation relaxing Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) rules to tone down noisy aircraft. The vote adopted a conference report later approved by the Senate and sent to the White House.

The bill (HR 2440) extends compliance deadlines for most two-engine and three-engine jets, while essentially retaining FAA deadlines for four-engine craft. It is a compromise between airlines which said retrofitting to muffle noise is too expensive and spokesmen for the six million U.S. residents who live close to airports.

Rep. Glenn Anderson, D-Calif., said the bill "will make a strong contribution to our efforts to reduce aviation noise and improve aviation safety."

Rep. Marjorie Holt, R-Md., an opponent, said it is "intolerable" for the bill "to allow noise pollution by most two-engine planes serving metropolitan airports to continue until 1988."

Members voting "nay" favor tougher FAA noise-control standards.

Jones, Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Heffner, Martin, Broyhill and Gudger voted "yea."

CORPS OF ENGINEERS — By a vote of 133 for and 273 against, the House rejected an attempt to prevent construction of a monument to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers on federal land in D.C. Private sources will pay for construction; public money would be spent for regular maintenance. The monument is authorized in the water projects bill (see first vote, above).

Rep. Robert Edgar, D-Pa., said the House should "use this particular amendment as our symbolic opportunity to speak out on what we find is a very objectionable bill."

Rep. William Harsha, R-Ohio, an opponent, said: "Let us put aside this small-minded amendment, whose only apparent purpose is to punish the Corps of Engineers for what Congress tells it to do."

Members voting "nay" favor construction of the Corps of Engineers monument.

Fountain, Martin, Broyhill and Gudger voted "yea."

Jones, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose and Heffner voted "nay."

SENATE
FTC RULES — The Senate rejected, 44 for and 53 against, a proposed "one-house veto" over regulations proposed by the Federal Trade Commission. Under the proposal, either the Senate or House could prevent the FTC from putting into effect one of its rules. The vote came during debate on an FTC bill (S 991) headed for final passage.

Sen. Harrison Schmitt, R-N.M., a supporter, said the one-house veto would "insure responsible FTC rulemaking, without hamstringing their basic purpose to referee the marketplace."

Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Me., an opponent, said "the Constitution does not give the Congress the right to review and veto each and every regulation which the executive branch puts forward to implement a law."

Senators voting "yea" want either house to be able to kill a proposed FTC rule.

Sens. Robert Morgan, D, and Jesse Helms, R, voted "yea."

AIRPORT MONEY — The Senate rejected, 31 for and 58 against, an amendment to keep the nation's 72 largest airports eligible for federal grants from the Aviation Trust Fund. In fiscal 1979, the 72 received about $260 million from the fund, primarily for capital investments. Left standing by this vote was a provision to exclude the largest airports from the fund and, at the same time, lower the ticket tax that feeds the fund from eight per cent to two per cent. The vote came during debate on S 1648, later passed and sent to the House.

Sen. Jim Sasser, D-Tenn., the sponsor, said the 72 airports need the federal payments because "our airports are not profit-making enterprises, and were never intended to be."

Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev., an opponent, said "federal aid should be restricted to those who are not capable of helping themselves."

Senators voting "nay" want to deny the nation's largest airports money from the Aviation Trust Fund.

Morgan voted "yea."

Helms voted "nay."

MILITARY PAY — By a vote of 41 for and 46 against, the Senate refused to table the so-called Nunn/Warner plan for raising military pay and related benefits. The plan has ingredients such as selective pay hikes and enlistment bonuses for critical skills. Most senators voting to table favored a 10.4 per cent across-the-board pay hike for military personnel. This vote left Nunn/Warner as part of HR 5168, later passed and sent to conference with the House.

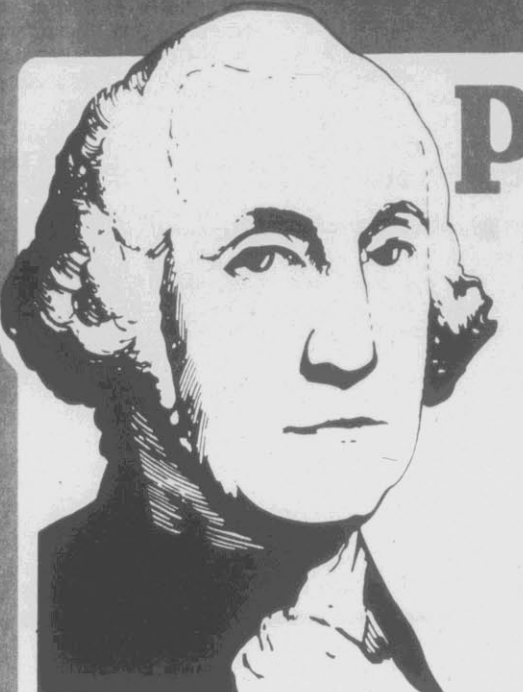

Sen. Spark Matsunaga, D-

Hawaii, a supporter of tabling, said the 10.4 per cent hike is the increase the President's Council on Federal Pay determined "necessary to help offset inflation and achieve greater comparability with the private sector."

Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., said Nunn/Warner "would keep the military pay raise within the president's inflation guidelines."

Senators voting "nay" prefer the Nunn/Warner plan to a 10.4 per cent across-the-board hike.

Helms voted "yea." Morgan voted "nay."

Consumers In 'Fix-It' Mood

NEW YORK (UPI) — A consumer survey by a group of business publications sounds like World War II all over again, when patriotic Americans were urged to:

"Use it up.
"Wear it out.
"Make it do.
"Fix it up.
"Or do without."

The consumer buying trends forecast by American Business Press, Inc. members for 1980 indicates sales of new home air conditioners will drop — but business for contractors and repairmen will pick up as people fix up their existing heating, air conditioning, refrigeration and ventilation equipment.

"Consumers turn practical during economic downturns," says one member magazine. "The energy crisis alone will make most consumers home oriented, and home improvements are expected to be the natural result of this trend."

Gasoline shortages that keep people home are also expected to create more demand for rental equipment by homeowners who will have more time for do-it-yourself home improvements — insulating walls and ceilings, fixing plumbing, adding a room or two.

Lawn and garden improvements are also expected to benefit from the stay-at-home and DIY trends.

Consumer purchases of small-ticket household appliances such as electric blankets, irons and broilers are expected to increase. But major appliance sales will suffer, one magazine forecasts — except for microwave ovens, which have earned a reputation as energy and time savers.

"Appliance" magazine expects a sales growth of about 330,000 units of microwave ovens next year — a 12 percent increase over the projected unit sales this year of 2.75 million.

Another member magazine expects the drycleaning business to improve a little, for two reasons. With about 60 percent of American wives in the work force, they have less time for washing clothes at home or using do-it-yourself drycleaning facilities. In addition, more people are wearing woolen clothing to offset lower indoor temperatures, and many woolen garments require drycleaning.

More time at home is also expected to help sales of electronic products such as color television sets, home computers, video tape recorders and video games and toys, the survey indicated.

Appliance Manufacturer magazine also predicts an overall better year than might be expected from the pattern of past economic downturns and housing slumps for several reasons: strong replacement buying by consumers of their old appliances; more families being established; more multi-income families; and availability of high-efficiency models that can help save money.

Shift Over Seed Choice

BURLINGTON, Vt. (UPI) — Subtle shifts are occurring in priorities among home gardeners when they select seeds.

"Gardeners are reacting to high food prices and planting vegetables that cost a lot to buy but require small amounts of garden space," says Jack Robinson, president of Gardens for All, the non-profit National Association for Gardening.

In the group's annual gardening survey by the Gallup Organization, gardeners were asked which of 23 vegetables they grew. Only six were found in more than half of last year's gardens: Tomatoes were in 93 percent, onions in 64 percent, beans in 61 percent, cucumbers in 58 percent, peppers in 57 percent and lettuce in 54 percent. Others in the top 10 were radishes, carrots, peas and corn.

Homegrown corn was off by 13 percent. "Corn is still readily available at roadside stands and it's relatively inexpensive," one New England gardener told the polltakers. "I can use the space I used to devote to corn ... better for crops that are sky high in the supermarket — tomatoes, lettuce and onions."

New Drive For Immunizations

GENEVA (AP) — About 5 million children in the developing countries of the world die each year because of six diseases that can be prevented by proper immunizations: diphtheria, measles, whooping cough, poliomyelitis, tetanus, and tuberculosis.

The U.N. World Health Organization has embarked on an expanded program of immunization aimed at providing effective routine immunizations for all children of the world before 1990.

Propagandists Often Exploit History

By Dr. H.G. JONES
For The Associated Press
CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — The exploitation of history for propagandistic purposes is not new, but the practice has become less subtle and more brazen in recent years.

Pressure groups and politicians of varying stripes have turned the distortion of history into an art, and even some historians have yielded to the temptation to hide evidence that challenges their prejudices.

For the propagandist, objectivity is a feared enemy. Consequently, in most revolutions — rightist or leftist — a first action of the victors is an attempt to obliterate vestiges of the past or to exhibit bits of it as evidence of the degeneracy of the previous regime.

Latin America, for instance, is noted for the short-lived statues of its dictators, each revolution toppling the old ones and erecting new ones.

There seems to be some strange belief that the distortion of the past actually changes it, and that the application of today's morals and standards to yesterday's society in some way inflicts upon the past a harsh penance that releases us from its consequences.

Although the United States has not been completely immune from this attempt to hide reality (for instance, some states sought to prohibit the exposure of their young people to Darwin's theory of evolution and some textbooks have indeed excluded darker aspects of our nation's past), at no previous time has there been such a concerted effort to manipulate history for ulterior motives.

The result is a cruel deception in which history is held hostage.

Columnist Richard Cohen calls it the work of "The Great Eraser," this mania for blotting out vestiges of the past that may not measure up to the prevailing political, social and economic sentiments of 1980.

Marylanders, for instance, are going through a heated debate over whether to ditch "Maryland, My Maryland" as their state song. The argument is that the lyrics are a reminder of the predominant pro-Confederate sentiment during the Civil War.

Those who oppose the state song presumably think that through an act of the legislature the attitudes of their ancestors over a century ago can be changed and that future generations will be spared the truth about a bygone era.

Now comes a news report from Fayetteville that the city named for General Lafayette has been pressured into erasing the famed Market House as its historic symbol. It is whispered that slaves once were sold there in antebellum days.

And, presumably, in dropping the symbol, the city will "clean up" its history. It's sort of like a genealogist shearing off an embarrassing limb from a family tree. Or denying that human bondage was a legally accepted practice in early America.

Strangely, we have heard of no proposal that the United States Capitol, in which slavery was stoutly defended for decades, or the famous buildings of the North in which slaves were once traded, be discontinued as national symbols.

Fayetteville's Market House, located in the intersection of Green, Gillespie, Person and Hay streets, is the city's most distinctive structure.

Furthermore, it stands on the site of Convention Hall, the building in which North Carolina ratified the federal constitution in 1789, and in which the General Assembly met for several sessions before the selection of Raleigh as the capital.

Since 1838, the handsome three-bay brick building, with its imposing clock tower, has been the uncontested heart of the city. Originally the second floor served as the town hall and farmers sold their produce in the first floor arcade.

Undoubtedly some slaves were sold or traded there — just as they were in the local saloons, hotels and before and after church services.

So distinctive are the history and architecture of the Market House that in 1974 the building was designated a National Historic Landmark to proclaim its national significance. Thousands of tourists detour through the city to see the unique structure.

But now, if the politicizers of history have their way, the Market House may become a victim of "The Great Eraser." Truth has a resilience that will survive efforts to politicize it.

N.C. Abortion Rate Is Rising

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Recent statistics show the number of North Carolina women who end unwanted pregnancies by abortion has more than doubled since the U.S. Supreme Court legalized abortion in 1973.

After analyzing records of abortions performed in 1978, the Department of Human Resources reported that about one of every four pregnant women in the state that year chose to have an abortion.

The department also reported that the number of women in the state who get abortions has steadily increased since 1973, increasing by more than 128 percent to more than 27,000 a year.

Sixty-seven percent of the abortions are performed on women between the ages of 15 and 24, and 66 percent on unmarried women, according to the figures.

The increase in abortions disturbs some family planning specialists who feel that too many women are turning to abortion as a method of birth control.

Dorothy Lonon of the Department of Human Resources said, "We feel that all this (the statistics) indicates a need for people to learn about their bodies. Why are people going through this if the pregnancies could have been prevented?"

The number of women who have had more than one abortion has increased, the report shows. Nineteen of the women undergoing abortions in North Carolina in 1978 had had an abortion before.

having abortions was 22.7 years. About 33 percent of the abortions performed in North Carolina in 1978 were requested by girls between 15 and 19 years old.

Women between 20 and 24 are another age group that accounts for a high percentage of abortions. They requested about 34 percent of the abortions performed in North Carolina in 1978.

In the older age groups, the percentage of women having abortions begins to drop. Women 25-29 accounted for 16.6 percent of the abortions in 1978; those 30-34 for 7.9 percent; and those over 35 for 5.3 percent.

Anniversary Of Mormon Church

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The 150th anniversary of the founding of the Mormon Church will be celebrated in a year-long series of events throughout 1980.

Musical dramas, pageants, concerts, grand balls, dedication of a replica of the building in which organization of the church took place, and special worship services will commemorate the anniversary.

Activities will take place at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints' headquarters in Salt Lake City and in wards and branches (congregations) of the church in more than 60 countries around the globe.

Organized on April 6, 1830, in Fayette, N.Y., with six members, the Mormon Church now has more than 4.2 million members worldwide.

Valentines Get A Fresh Look

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Traditional valentine cards with red hearts and white lace are giving way to romantic mood photography, simple floral designs and bold, modern graphics, according to design specialists at Hallmark Cards, who say the dramatic departure from the past also includes new background colors such as shiny black, cranberry and burgundy.

Indian Shops In New Directory

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new directory of Indian owned-and-operated arts and crafts businesses has been issued by the General Services Administration for distribution through the government's Consumer Information Center.

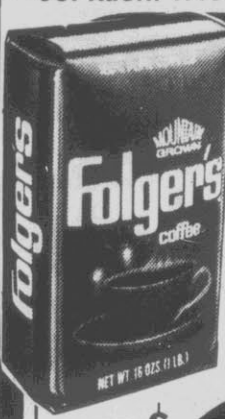

It lists more than 150 places in 34 states and the District of Columbia where you can buy authentic Indian arts and crafts. Some also sell by mail.

Among the listings are the Indian Craft Shop, in room 1023, in the main building of the U.S. Department of the Interior, in Washington, D.C.; Blackbear's Ltd. in Wichita, Kansas, whose president, Blackbear Bosin, is a Comanche-Kiowa artist; and Naranjo's American Indian Arts in Houston, Texas.

For a free copy of Indian Arts and Crafts Source directory, write the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 633H, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Trappers Say Income Not All That Good For Effort

By BILL GREER
Associated Press Writer
OROGRADE, N.M. (AP) — Paul Brunson's arms were red to the elbows with blood. He is a coyote trapper, and the animal he was skinning was perhaps the only one he would trap that day.

Brunson, 54, straightened and paused for a moment to talk about the economics of trapping.

"I'm going to go in the hole if I can't get any more than they're paying right now," he said.

Brunson and his brother, Perry, say the trapping business isn't good even though coyotes are considered pests and coats made of their skins are selling for up to $8,000.

Perry said he traps to supplement his income from a gas station. "More people stop to use the restroom than to fill up their tanks," he said.

But it apparently isn't much of a supplement. "During the past few years it's been very profitable," Perry said. "But coyote skins that last year we were getting $65 to $80 for, this year we're getting $5 to $15.

It's not a profitable occupation anymore to trap these coyotes."

The crafty prairie hunters are the curse of ranchers who make their living raising cattle, sheep and goats on the windswept Texas ranges. Last year, the loss to the livestock industry from coyotes was estimated at $21 million in Texas alone. Coyotes also were blamed for 24 percent of all sheep and goats killed.

Government scientists, environmentalists and representatives of the livestock industry met in Austin, Texas, in mid-January for a "summit conference" on the coyote problem.

Secretary of the Interior Cecil Andrus told the conference his department wanted to phase out lethal control methods to avoid environmental damage and the deaths of other animals who eat poisoned bait by accident.

The only lethal pesticide now authorized by the Environmental Protection Agency for use against coyotes is sodium cyanide, contained in M-44 devices. When a coyote bites the bait in a trap, the device shoots a capsule of cyanide into its mouth.

Bill Sims, director of the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers Association, asked at the conference that farmers and ranchers be allowed to use such methods as the "toxic collar."

The collar is worn by a lamb or kid and would kill a coyote if it attacked the animal.

Sims said he would like to see coyotes classed as an endangered species — "That would mean there would be so few of them we would not have to worry about them."

The Brunsons represent at best a partial solution to the problem. The brothers said they needed only a $5.25 trapper's license and a bunch of traps to go into business.

Every day, Paul checks a line of 110 traps spread along an 80-mile dirt road in this desert area in southern New Mexico, not far from El Paso, Texas. "I get up at 5 o'clock in the morning and a lot of times it's dark when I get through running the traps," he said.

In a battered pickup, Paul drives the dirt and rock roads of this desolate region, which borders an isolated Army missile range, and finds each trap by a landmark or by checking the miles on his speedometer.

"Nearly every one you catch out there has gunshot wounds," said Paul. "Lots of people hunt them with shotguns and shoot them at a distance that's just too far. The pellets penetrate the skin but the animal is not killed."

Paul said it costs him about $8 a day for gas to check the traps. On top of that, they said they lose money regularly when the $15 traps are stolen.

"We lose quite a few traps to theft," said Paul. "Those traps belong to me just as much as the shoes on my feet. Ninety-nine out of 100 people who see a trap will steal it — and the coyote, too."

The traps, which Paul boils in a greasewood concoction to prevent rust, have a 5½-inch jaw. The brothers average one coyote a day.

"These are some of the smartest animals you ever messed with. You don't just set a trap and catch them. You have to hide it," said Perry. "Lots of them will dig up the traps. Often they'll come along and detect that trap, scratch it up (and) dig it out of the ground. They get smart and they get to knowing you have a trap set there."

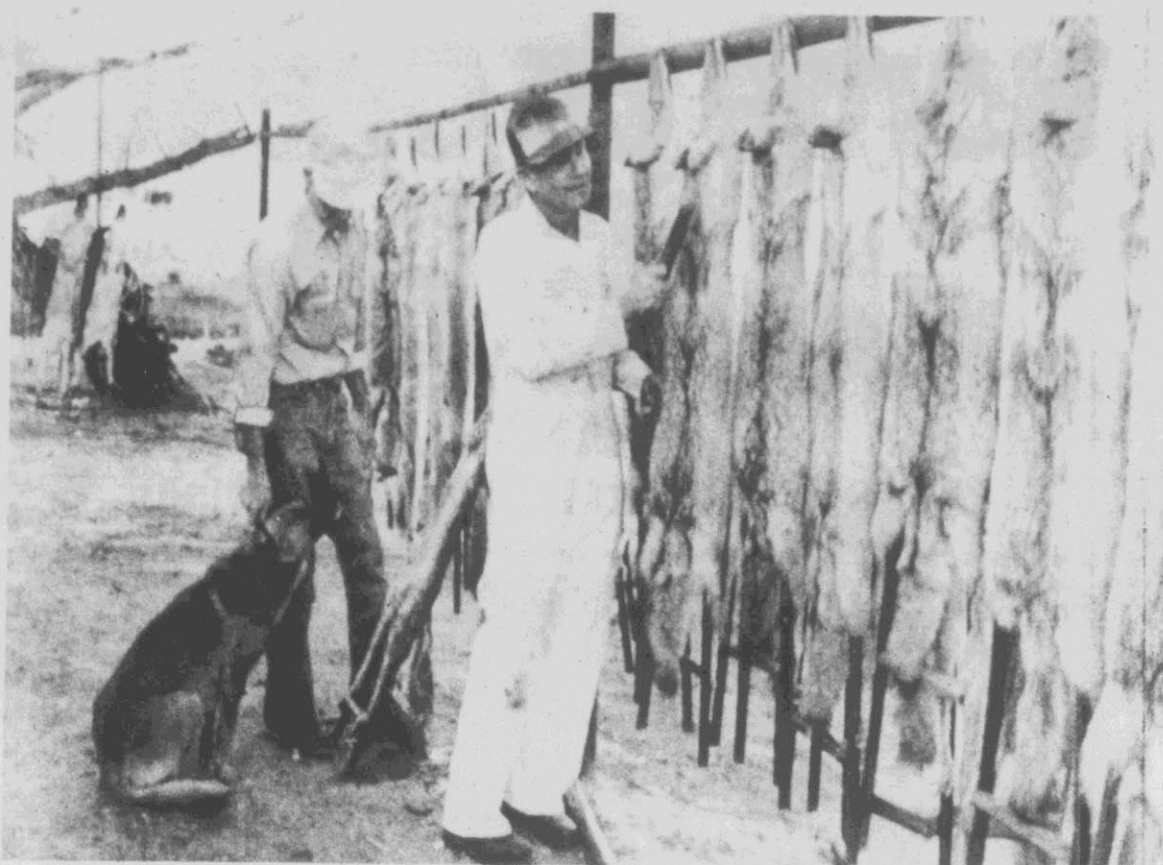

Coyotes in the Orogrande area normally feed on rabbits and rats, "but they can wipe out a whole flock of sheep," said Perry.

"They're not much of a problem if you keep them down," added Paul, "but if they get overpopulated and there is not enough food they will start getting things they're not supposed to."

"If there weren't people like us out here trapping them, the state would have to hire more people to go out and kill them," he said.

The skinning was done, and the new pelt joined about 50 stretched out on backyard racks. What do the Brunsons do with the coyote carcasses? Pile them in the desert, was the reply.

"Vultures won't even eat them," said Paul.

COYOTE TRAPPERS — Perry Brunson brushes a coyote pelt while his brother Paul pets the dog that runs the traps with him daily in a desolate southern New Mexico area. The brothers say it is hard to make a living trapping coyotes. Dallas furriers, however, say full length coyote coats sell for up to $8,000. (AP Laserphoto)

Rough Roads Called A Waste Of Energy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Motorists: concentrate on the car, but keep your eye on the road.

That's the advice from a national highway research and information agency here, which believes fuel efficiency and energy saving should begin from the ground up.

Americans waste about 12 billion gallons of gasoline each year because of bad roads, claims The Road Information Program — TRIP. That's enough fuel to power every licensed driver in New England and New York state for one year, it says.

At an average price of $1 per gallon for all grades of gasoline, that is $12 billion, or about $90 annually for every licensed driver in the country.

A car in perfect condition that must deal with potholes, rutted and broken pavement, sharp turns and steep rises does not perform efficiently, says TRIP. There are 765,000 miles of paved roads in America that fit those descriptions, which represents almost half of the paved mileage, it points out.

Avoiding bad roads will save auto owners between 10 and 30 percent of their fuel costs, according to H. W. Reece, TRIP's chairman. That's because potholes and other road-surface problems force drivers to slow down or stop, thus reducing their miles per gallon, he explains.

The bulk of those deficient roads — 603,000 miles — can be upgraded by resurfacing, while the other 162,000 miles require complete reconstruction, Reece says. The cost of fixing up those roads is $70 billion, but the benefits in fuel savings would last for 16 years, the average life of a renewed road, he adds.

"At a time when fuel saving occupies the thoughts of everyone, the nation faces a highway maintenance backlog that threatens to undercut strong progress toward energy independence," says Reece. "People rely on roads more than any other transportation mode, so any serious fuel conservation strategy must include this vital element."
