Control Of Iran's Armed Forces Given Bani-Sadr

By The Associated Press

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini was reported today to have transferred his post as commander in chief of Iran's armed forces to President Abohassan Bani-Sadr. The move stirred speculation Bani-Sadr might move troops to the U.S. Embassy in Tehran to replace the militants who took some 50 Americans hostage 108 days ago.

The increase in Bani-Sadr's authority was reported by Tehran Radio, which quoted the ailing, 79-year-old ayatollah as saying the appointment was aimed at "consolidating power in Iran at this critical moment." This was an apparent reference to the militants who have rejected the latest plan to ease the hostage crisis.

Bani-Sadr's escalation to the chief of Iran's armed forces gave him the muscle not only to end the embassy crisis, but to put down ethnic unrest in Iran, particularly in northwest Kurdistan, where Kurdish rebels have been battling the central government for more autonomy.

The increase in his authority came as a U.N. commission prepared to fly to Tehran to investigate the regime's charges against Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, the monarch ousted by Khomeini's Islamic forces 13 months ago. Both sides have agreed to the members of the commission, whose inquiry presumably will speed the release of the Americans.

The Carter administration has been anxious to resolve the crisis, and the Paris-based station Radio Luxembourg said today that Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh was believed to have met with Carter's chief of staff, Hamilton Jordan, in Paris on Monday. The White House denied it.

The Iranian Embassy also would not give any details of Ghotbzadeh's meetings in Paris saying he was on a "private visit" and would return to Tehran tonight. However, French lawyer Edmond Pettiti is one of the members of the U.N. commission, and there was speculation he was among those Ghotbzadeh conferred with.

A well-informed source at the United Nations said members of the commission will arrive in Tehran Wednesday. The source, who declined to be identified, said hopefully freedom would come for the Americans within a week after the five-member commission's arrival.

The source said two of the commission members, Mohammed Bedjaoui, the U.N. ambassador from Algeria, and Andres Aguilar, Venezuela's former ambassador to Washington, were leaving New York aboard a Concorde supersonic jetliner this afternoon to fly to Paris, where they would be met by Pettiti.

ANTI-NUKE VIOLENCE

PLOGOFF, France (AP) - Anti-nuclear demonstrators hurled several gasoline bombs at police vans during the night in a renewal of violence over a planned nuclear power plant.

Burroughs Wellcome Expansion

Burroughs Wellcome Co. reported that work is nearing completion on the $3.8 million expansion of its manufacturing facility here.

The company said that the expansion will add approximately 50,000 square feet to the warehouse facility and 10,000 square feet to the Chemical Development Laboratories pilot plant.

Order Abortion-Payment

WASHINGTON (AP) - The federal government must begin paying for most abortions for poor women, the Supreme Court said today.

The justices, by a 6-3 vote, refused to block a federal judge's order forcing the government to pay for poor women's medically necessary abortions. The high court, however, did not rule on the merits of the case, but will review it later.

U.S. District Judge John Dooling in New York City last month struck down the so-called Hyde amendment, a congressional restriction on Medicaid spending for abortions.

Dooling said the restriction, which makes money for abortion available only to women whose lives are endangered by their pregnancies and women who are victims of rape or incest, is unconstitutional.

Dooling said Medicaid money for medically necessary abortions must be available to eligible women, as is money for childbirth costs.

His broad definition of "medically necessary" went beyond physical health to include the best interest of a woman's mental and social well-being.

The Carter administration and persons opposed to expanded federal spending for abortions asked Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall to postpone Dooling's Feb. 15 deadline while they mount a formal Supreme Court attempt to salvage the Hyde amendment.

Acting one day before Dooling's deadline, Marshall granted a temporary postponement to allow the full court to consider the matter.

"The application(s) for stay of judgment of the U.S. District Court, presented to Mr. Justice Marshall and by him referred to the court, is denied," the court's brief order said.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices William H. Rehnquist and Lewis F. Powell Jr. dissented.

Junior High Curriculum Plan Adopted By Board

By JERRY RAYNOR Reflector Staff Writer

The basic organizational plan of the curriculum for Aycock students was approved at the February action meeting of the Greenville City School board Monday night.

The plan, disouted at length in the board's informational meeting on February 4, changes from seven to six the number of periods for each school day at Aycock.

Also involved is the elimination of the reading period per se in the language/arts/reading bloc. However, emphasis on reading will be accelerated within each class, regardless of the subject.

The new curriculum also spells out requirements for a ninth grader to meet to satisfactorily complete that grade, which includes successfully passing four units of study for credit. Board member Mrs. Nancy Middleton opted for the specific inclusion of English as one of the four required subjects. Her suggestion was not incorporated into the approved curriculum.

Superintendent Glenn Cox reiterated that in the event a student successfully completed only three units at the ninth grade level, it would be possible for him to attend Rose High School as a tenth grade student, with some subjects scheduled at Rose, others at Aycock. How this would be handled, Cox noted, would depend on the number of students needing to take a particular subject. This approach, Cox added, would circumvent a situation where a student would have to repeat ninth grade subjects.

The curriculum plan recommended by Cox was approved with Mrs. Middleton casting an opposing vote to its passage.

A motion to use two days of the Easter week school holiday - Thursday and Friday, April 10 and 11, as make-up days for the two school days missed due to the recent snows, barely passed on a four in favor of. (Cont'd on Page 2)

Canadians Vote Return Of Trudeau And Party

TORONTO (AP) - Pierre Elliott Trudeau, a political has-been just three months ago, took charge of Canada once again in a stunning election victory he called a rerun of "an old love story" between his party and the voters, and offered himself and his country as peacemakers in the U.S.-Soviet dispute.

Trudeau's Liberal Party routed the Progressive Conservatives of Prime Minister Joe Clark in parliamentary elections Monday, cutting down a government that was one of the few to stick by the United States down the line in its confrontation with Moscow.

In a victory speech early today to an ecstatic crowd of supporters in Ottawa, Trudeau, 60, took a distinctly softer approach, declaring that the United States is "our greatest friend" but adding that preserving peace between the superpowers must be part of Canada's world mission.

In elections last May, the youthful Clark and his Conservatives ended 16 years of Liberal rule, 11 of them with Trudeau as prime minister. The Liberal chief had actually announced his intention to leave politics last November.

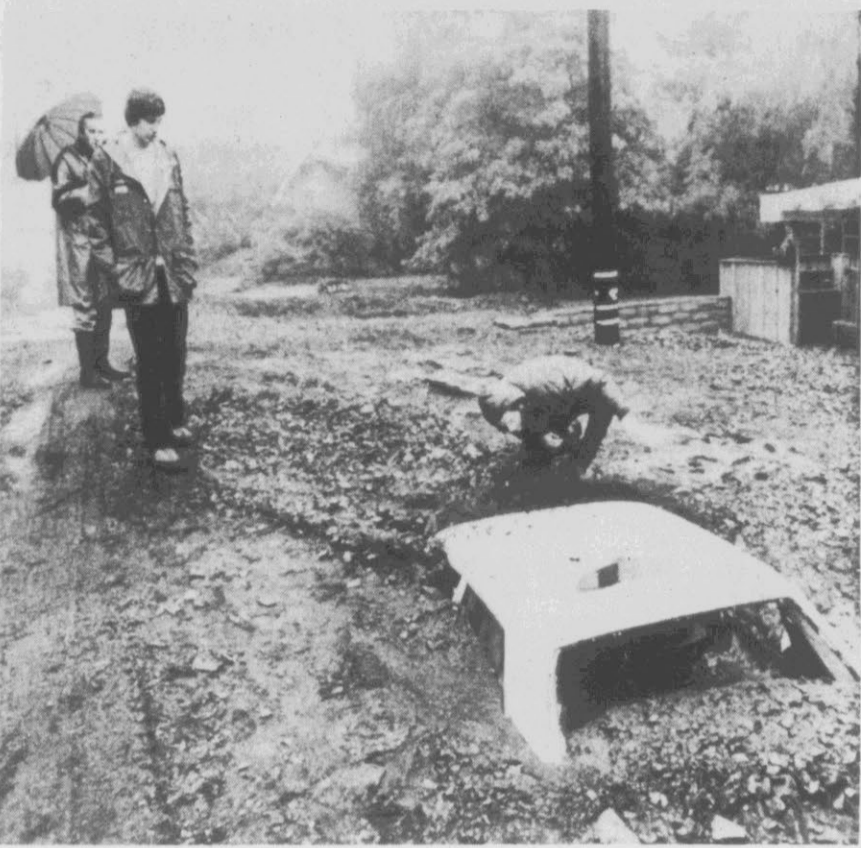

But Clark was undone by a tough budget in which he proposed a highly unpopular 18-cent-a-gallon boost in gasoline taxes.

The Liberals' quick comeback made Clark's nine months in power the briefest tenure of any elected prime minister in Canadian history.

seats in the 282-seat House of Commons, four more than a majority. The Conservatives had 103 seats and the socialist New Democrats 32. The race in one district had been postponed until March because of a candidate's death.

Storms Continue For Southern Cal.

By The Associated Press

Relentless rain drenched Southern California for a seventh straight day, bringing more mudslides and high water that forced thousands of persons from their homes and drove damage estimates into the millions of dollars. Flooding continued in Utah and Arizona.

tourists were urged to avoid the desert Palm Springs area, where 1,000 persons were advised to leave their homes. Amtrak rail travel was interrupted between Los Angeles and San Diego because a bridge had been weakened by the storms.

By late Monday, at least 24 persons had died because of the weather, including 18 in California, three in Arizona and three American tourists in Tijuana, Mexico, authorities said.

With a fifth storm predicted for waterlogged California today and a sixth expected late tonight or early Wednesday, thousands of persons were evacuated from areas ravaged by floodwaters and cascading mudslides.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. was to tour the rain-devastated areas today and sign disaster proclamations for Los Angeles, Orange and Riverside counties. Further requests for government assistance were expected from Ventura, Santa Barbara and San Luis Obispo counties.

A state of emergency declared by Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley over the weekend was still in effect. Police remained on 12-hour shifts after all leaves were canceled.

Winds clocked at 43 mph today at the San Francisco International Airport felled trees and power lines in the San Francisco Bay Area, knocking out electricity for about 20,000 Pacific Gas & Electric customers, said PG&E spokesman Tony Ledwell.

Elsewhere, mudslides and flooding were reported.

By early today, 2.49 inches of rain had fallen on the Los Angeles Civic Center from the latest storm, bringing the season total to 19.40 inches - 9.9 inches above normal for this time of year.

While the latest storm was expected to cross the coast south of the earlier storms, the National Weather Service still advised Southern Californians to expect increasingly heavy rain and issued a flash flood watch through today in mountain, desert and coastal areas.

In Gache County in northern Utah, Flood Control Director Ned Gines said flood damage from Monday's rain would probably total about $2 million.

In Phoenix, Ariz., officials of the Salt River Project, which manages the flow of water in the Salt River and its lakes, said approaching storms are not as severe as anticipated and flooding would not be as bad as expected.

"WAYFARING STRANGER"?

My aunt, 92, is in the hospital now and we're not sure whether she's going to make it. She has requested that the song, "Wayfaring Stranger," that she remembers being sung by Red Foley, be sung at her funeral. I have someone who can learn it if I can just get the words and music. I've checked some music stores and the public library with no success. Can anyone help? Mrs. D. R.

Anyone who can help Mrs. R. is asked to call her at 758-3982 after 5:30 p. m. or at 757-6650 between 8 a. m. and 5 p. m.

FEEDBACK

ALSO BUYING ALUMINUM

In response to the recent Hotline item about the buying of aluminum by the Reynolds Aluminum truck which visits Pitt Plaza each Friday afternoon, Chuck Clodfelter of the East Carolina Vocational Center reports that the center is now buying aluminum for recycling, also.

The center is paying 26 cents a pound, with payment made immediately - while you wait. Hours are from 8 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. weekdays and from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m. Saturdays.

Only all-aluminum cans (usually those without a seam down the side) will be accepted. It takes from 23 to 24 cans to make a pound, he indicated.

Anyone wishing to donate aluminum to the workshop, which exists to hire mentally and physically handicapped people, may leave them in any of the recycling houses around town. Clodfelter asked that cans be bagged to keep them separate from the newspapers usually left in the houses, which are located at several area parking lots around Greenville and Ayden.

Burroughs Wellcome Expansion Near Complete

Burroughs Wellcome Co. reported that work is nearing completion on the $3.8 million expansion of its manufacturing facility here.

The company said that the expansion will add approximately 50,000 square feet to the warehouse facility and 10,000 square feet to the Chemical Development Laboratories pilot plant.

Dr. Gabriel Cipau, vice president of production and engineering for the company in Greenville, said that the expansion is expected to be completed in March.

According to Cipau, part of the warehouse addition will be used for storage of incoming material which is stored separately before quality assurance testing. A new quality assurance laboratory, through which all incoming materials will pass, is being added to the warehouse, he said.

The warehouse addition, the spokesman related, will also provide additional space for work-in-process and packaging components inventory and for material currently housed off-site in rented storage.

As part of the project, Cipau reported, the loading docks are being enclosed in order to make the warehouse more energy efficient since it is both heated and air conditioned.

A new toxic facility area, support laboratories and administrative offices will be included in the pilot plant expansion, he reported.

Cipau explained that the new toxic facility will expand the company's capabilities in the area of new drug development. The facility, constructed in keeping with Environmental Protection Agency guidelines, will be operated partially by computer control. Employees will be able to manipulate the process from another room by instructing the computer, he said.

Manual operations will be limited to periodic charging of the reactor and samplings, the official added.

Few Deported

ATLANTA (AP) — More than half of the deportation hearings for Iranian students with illegal visas in the Southeastern District have been completed, the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service said Monday.

In the Southeastern district, including North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Alabama, more than 1,200 students have been interviewed and 155 hearings have been held, District Director Tyrus Minnix said. Another 148 hearings are scheduled.

Minnix said no Iranian students in the Southeast have been ordered deported, but an undisclosed number have been allowed to leave the country voluntarily. Nationwide, 43 Iranians have been ordered deported, said Verne Jervis, a spokesman for the immigration service in Washington.

The hearings were ordered by President Carter last fall after militants stormed the U.S. embassy in Iran and took 50 American hostages.

Issues Discussed By Common Cause Group

Donna Jones, executive secretary of the N. C. Common Cause, met Saturday with some Pitt County leaders.

A citizens' lobby which focuses on making government responsive to the general interest, Common Cause has about 60 members in Pitt County.

The following accepted special responsibilities: Kay Sutton, issue information; Lois Ito, membership; Elaine Schaal, telephone tree; and Edith Webber, publicity distribution. Anthony Holland of Fountain will continue as coordinator for the First District, pending an election later in the spring.

Joe Hollowell, candidate for Congress for the First District, joined the group in considering issues. Incumbent Congressman Walter B. Jones did not attend nor send a representative.

Ms. Jones pointed out that present election-financing practices permit special interests to come uncomfortably close to buying Congress. Common Cause is supporting legislation to limit the amount of money political action committees can contribute to a candidate's campaign and instead provide partial public financing.

Ms. Jones and Hollowell explained trucking regulation as an example of how special interests are able to profit at the public expense. Present ICC regulations strictly limit the type of cargo any trucking company can carry. A big truck often returns empty, while another truck retraces its route to bring cargo that the first truck might have carried. The result is profit for the trucking industry and the Teamsters' Union, but cost to the consumer.

Another regulation that provides profit for the trucking industry and cost for the consumer is the requirement that an independent trucker get permission from established trucking lines before he is allowed to deliver in their areas.

Ms. Jones urged all taxpayers to check the $1 box on both state and federal income tax forms. She emphasized that the check-off does not increase the taxpayer's bill. It does help a candidate get into office without obligating himself or herself to special interests, she said.

School Board...

three against vote, with Dr. Jon Tingelstad abstaining. Comments were made against scheduling student holidays for this purpose based on statements that many parents had already made vacation plans for that week. Cox explained that there is only one Saturday in the remaining part of the school year that could be used for make-up as state law does not permit a teacher to work six days a week, so that the consideration of Saturday could only be entertained during a week there was a holiday. A preference for using two teacher work days instead of the Easter days was put forth; however, Cox said this would impose problems for teachers who depended on these work days planned at or near grading periods.

Three budget amendments were adopted — all for increases. The first was Amendment No. 2 to the State Public School fund for an increase of $5,976 representing funds for an additional month of driver education and including $3,400 in additional contractual transportation. The second was Amendment No. 4 to the local current expense portion of the budget. These are funds from East Carolina University to pay stipends to Wahl-Coates and to student teachers for the recently completed semester. A third was Amendment No. 4 for the ESEA IV-B budget covering additional funds for guidance supplies, library books and other purposes. This is in the amount of $29,260.

Two field trips, one traditional, one new, were approved by the board. The long-standing one is a ninth grade History Department trip to Charleston, S.C. Students going on this trip will leave May 1 and return May 3. About 150 students are planning to go, with parents and teachers going as chaperons.

The new trip is one requested for nine food service students for a two day trip to Charlotte and Winston-Salem to attend a state food show in Charlotte and then tour Old Salem.

Cox presented a request to modify the proposed salary schedule for cafeteria managers that was adopted at the January action meeting. The requested schedule change, he explained, is one that takes into consideration a close approximation to the state schedule of salaries and is based on years of experience and the size of the cafeteria managed. The school board approved the modified schedule, which Cox explained will mean an added budget cost of about $1,100 to the school food budget. Board chairman Ed Carter noted that the new schedule had been seen by Greenville Human Relations director Jess Harris and that Harris is pleased with the suggested change and called it logical.

Authority was given Cox to declare as surplus an old mobile unit so that it can be put up for public sale, and the 1978-79 budget audit, presented at an earlier meeting by Mike Joyner, was approved.

Also approved was a change of dates for the two school board meetings in April — from the first and third Mondays, April 7 and 21, to the second and fourth Mondays, April 14 and 28.

Based on a request made by Douglas Caldwell, the board asked that Cox write a letter to the State Department of Public Transportation stating that the board supported a recommendation that a traffic light be installed at the intersection of the U.S. 264 by-pass and Golden Road. In a parallel move, the board asked that Cox review all the bus routes for possible traffic hazards.

On planning for the athletic program, Cox reported that he had been in contact with the director of athletics in the State Department of Public Instruction and with the executive secretary of the N. C. High School Association. Both these persons, Cox said, would be able to provide suggestions and recommendations about an inclusive athletic program for the city school system and budget considerations that would be applicable.

Approval was given to the resignation of two school personnel and for the election of two others. Also, one maternity leave was approved.

Annual Meet For Alumni

The East Carolina University Alumni Association held its annual meeting here recently and elected officers to serve for 1980.

Elected to the board of directors were Ott Alford, Joseph Clark, Vera Congleton, Cameron Cox, Jim Nichols, and Robert White.

Approximately 100 alumni were on hand to hear guest speaker, Dr. Thomas Brewer, Chancellor of ECU. Brewer spoke on various issues and discussed the future of education and plans for ECU.

The session was held at the American Legion Building.

CARTHAGE, Mo. (AP) — Machine shop operator Dan Simmons gobbled down a cherry pie in 70 seconds to win the Carthage Washington's Birthday Pie-Eating Contest.

Earlier, Simmons finished off a pie in 105 seconds during the first round of the contest, but he blamed his poor time on a cherry pit that got in the way. The second pie "seemed to fall down the right way," Simmons said Monday.

Diet facts & fallacies

These nutritional tips brought to you by DIET CENTER

My friend just told me it isn't good to drink water with a meal. Not true! It is important to drink a beverage with your meal for several reasons. The beverage will help to soften the food, assist in peristalsis (the movement of food down the digestive system). You will be able to taste each different piece of food more distinctly if the flavor of one food is removed from the mouth before tasting a different food. Diet Center recommends water be drunk with each meal. You should drink eight glasses of water daily, you can easily accomplish this by having some with meals. Water is important to us because it contains minerals such as fluorine which helps protect our teeth. It is also necessary to remove waste products from the kidneys. Don't be fooled by what you read. Beverages, especially water, play an important role in the digestive process.

DEAR PAT: It never fails! Every time I make a sweater for an adult, my teenager wants one — but the pattern is usually too large. Could I use smaller needles instead of cutting down on the number of stitches? Math always did elude me! — PUZZLED IN OMAHA.

DEAR PUZZLED: My answer will have to be a qualified yes. Also, you will have to use just a little math anyway, unless you are a real gambler.

It's not as tricky as it may seem, though, if you have an understanding of gauge. The importance of gauge can readily be seen when you know that the width of any piece of knitting is determined by the number of stitches equal to one inch. For example, if you are working with a gauge of five stitches per inch on 200 stitches, the finished width would measure 40 inches (your number of stitches divided by gauge).

With the same number of stitches, if you change to smaller needles and achieve a gauge of five and a half stitches per inch, the finished width would be 36 1/2 inches. A six-stitch-per-inch gauge would result in only 33 1/3 inches with the same 200 stitches.

So you need to determine first how wide her sweaters should be across back or front. I would suggest measuring one which fits her well.

Then check your directions to see how many stitches you were working with on the body of the sweater made for a larger person. By doing this, you should be able to determine what gauge will be necessary for the smaller sweater.

If it will only be necessary to change your gauge by one half stitch per inch, then you can usually use the same weight yarn. If you need to change by more than that, you may have to switch to a lighter weight yarn.

Your sample swatch should tell you if this is necessary. A

CABLED PULLOVER... is easy to knit.

Direct Complaints To Offending Party

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law wonders why she and her husband aren't invited to our home more often. We would love to have them for two hours, but when they come, they stay from four to six hours!

And as if that weren't enough, they hardly ever come alone; they usually have from two to 10 "surprise guests" whom "Mom" has invited. She greets me with her famous one-liner, "Don't worry about cooking, we brought the food."

Well, Abby, there is more to serving a decent meal than putting a casserole and a pie on the table. When my husband and I want dinner guests, we invite whom we want and we serve our own menu. We don't appreciate being told whom and when we will entertain and what we will serve.

The next time Mom pulls this stunt, she may be serving her guests on the sidewalk.

STEAMED IN PENN.

DEAR STEAMED: Wouldn't it simplify matters, and avert an ugly confrontation, if you and your husband were to direct your complaints to the offending party? Your irritation is justified, but your proposed "cure" would be worse than the disease.

DEAR ABBY: You said, "Parents who smoke pot in front of their small children are guilty of child abuse."

Well, how about parents who smoke cigarettes in front of children?

Every time an adult lights up in the presence of a child, the child is forced to breathe whatever the adult is smoking. The smaller the body weight of the child, the greater the threat — especially to the lungs. While the child's body is in the process of developing, his lungs are especially vulnerable.

We now know that there is twice as much respiratory disease among children whose parents smoke cigarettes in the home.

The decision to smoke anything is no longer only the business of the smoker since his smoking does damage to those who must breathe second-hand smoke.

CAROLE IN MAINE

DEAR CAROLE: Right on! That message is told clearly and in greater detail in a booklet, "Second-Hand Smoke." It's available (without charge) through your local Lung Association.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "NEEDS TO KNOW IN COLORADO SPRINGS": If a man has gonorrhea, the chance of his partner contracting it is about 50 percent. If the woman is on the Pill, the chance of her contracting the disease is 100 percent.

Arts Festival Winner Gives Program

The GFWC Junior Woman's Club of Greenville held its meeting at the Woman's Club Wednesday. The program was presented by the Arts Department.

The local arts festival was held. Mrs. Lynne Olmstead, arts department chairman, introduced Mark Ward as special guest. He was winner of the club's public speaking contest. ## At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Women have known for years that they are financial giants of this country.

They regulate the economy, control the purchasing power, and establish guidelines for spending.

You want to know how we know it? Because someone told us.

If I seem underwhelmed about the distinction, it's because I just broke my own record for cashing the smallest check ever recorded in the Guinness Book of Records... seven cents.

This marvel occurred at one of those self-service gas stations. In trying to force a leaded nozzle into an unleaded gas tank, I inadvertently spilled a little gasoline on my shoe.

Realizing my error, I quickly changed to the unleaded nozzle and got exactly what I had cash for... $6.32. When I went to pay the girl behind the glass she said, "You owe seven cents on pump No. 34."

I said, "I didn't put that gas in my car."

She looked up tiredly and asked, "What did you do with it?"

"I poured it on my foot."

"Why would you do that?"

"I meant to pour the unleaded."

"On your foot?"

"In the car."

"That'll be seven cents."

I whipped out my charge card.

"You want to charge seven cents?"

"Of course not," I snapped. "I also want to get a windshield wiper, a whoopee cushion for the front seat, and a traffic light dog that lights up for my rear view window when I hit the brakes."

"We only sell gas. Besides, we don't take credit cards. That'll be seven cents cash."

"I have tons of money at home," I said.

She looked at me and I realized I was not exactly dressed for success. "Then I'll write you a check," I said.

Seconds later, I ripped it out of the checkbook, gave it to her (with two I.D.s) and she said, "Aren't you going to record it?"

My cheeks burned with humiliation as I jotted it down and said, "Did you know that women control 85 percent of the nation's wealth and that if we ever quit buying, this nation would come to its knees by noon?"

She snapped her gum. "It must be lonely at the top."

Birthday Held By BPW Club On Thursday

The Answer To HEW

The Pitt Board of Education last week approved a plan which it hopes will solve its problems with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

HEW has charged discriminatory grouping practices in the county school system.

The plan, presented by John McKnight, assistant superintendent for research and testing, allows two blocks of placement based on math and language arts in the grades one through three. For grades four through eight there will be math, social sciences, science and language arts strata. For high school there would be a system involving rewriting course descriptions and abolishing the levels system.

"This selection system means simply that a student will have a freedom of choice about what to take," McKnight said.

Supt. Ott Alford said the system is not very different from the present one. "Students have always had a choice. The major difference will be the wording."

The plan will go to HEW which may reply by a specified date. It could be implemented next fall, although school officials said even that would be difficult.

School officials and the board have put considerable work into developing this plan. We hope that it will end the Pitt school system's troubles with HEW.

To the editor:

The old Wilkerson Funeral Home is a well located, attractive building in Greenville. It is a building that sits firmly in the heart of the city, adjacent to the University, near to the Evans Mall, close to the river and Town Common.

It would make a perfect location for the Chamber of Commerce. It is large enough to house additional agencies vital to our city.

Because of its location, I believe it would be wiser to spend money on renovating this building and making it attractive, than to build a new and costly building at the Charles and Red Banks Road site.

As a resident and interested citizen, I recommend this idea to the Chamber of Commerce, and ask other local citizens to express their views.

Nancy O'Brien

To the editor:

The implication that Greenville city officials have some magnificent secret plan to benefit the city which necessitates the removal of the Greenville Rescue Squad is hogwash. The statement that there was a need to do this in order to save money is also absurd. The service, which this group has provided for the community has been invaluable and cheap at any price. We depended on their prompt and efficient response to our needs, were proud of their achievements and grateful for their help. We want them back.

The decision which City Council has made seems not to be in the best interest of the people they serve, or in accord with their wishes. I would hope that they would reconsider what appears to be an error in judgment. Failure to do so might indicate that we have erred in choosing them to govern.

Mrs. E. D. Roberts

To the editor:

As a Greenville citizen, I'm terribly ashamed of Mayor McGlohon, Councilmen Clark, "Rev." Hadden, "Rev." Gray, Green, McKee and Taft. Let's not forget the king, City Manager Wyatt, and yes, the king's right hand man, Fire Chief Allen. These officials have destroyed "our" Greenville Rescue Squad! Yes, fellow citizens, we are not intelligent enough to decide whether we wish to have or keep the outstanding service provided by our paid and volunteer rescue personnel. They have destroyed a rescue system that's worked like a well-oiled machine for years. Our rescue system is being replaced by a system doomed to failure, because it is not practical.

It is going to cost the taxpayers more money, the firemen are upset, the rescuemen are upset, the volunteer rescuemen have been demoralized, and it just doesn't make good "horse sense." It doesn't make practical sense to me why we as citizens have to be continually kicked in the teeth by a group of politicians who begged us to vote for them at election time. Why do we allow this group of politicians (backed by a small group of powerful businessmen) to ruin a fine rescue service in Greenville? What's happened to our appreciation and loyalty for a job well done by our rescue men. We have let our Rescue Squad down. We are as guilty as the ones who stuck the knife in the back of our Rescue Squad. Yes, I'm mad — mad! Why don't the rest of you out there in Greenville voice your opinion: WRITE TO THIS FORUM.

I personally demand the following: the fire chief be fired, the "King" city manager be fired, the mayor and councilmen resign. It's time this city was run by decent people for a change.

Do you care?
Jason Dixon

The Supreme Court has gone a long way toward protecting such individual rights. There is an analogy here with Stanley vs. Georgia, the 1969 case in which the court upheld the right of a citizen to view pornographic films in the privacy of his home. To deny such a right, said Mr. Justice Marshall for the court, amounts to a "drastic invasion of personal liberties." If the First Amendment means anything, he continued, "it means that a State has no business telling a man, sitting alone in his own house, what books he may read or what films he may watch. Our whole constitutional heritage rebels at the thought of giving government the power to control men's minds."

Ironically, it was the same Mr. Justice Marshall who wrote the court's opinion last June in U.S. vs. Rutherford, upholding the power of government to control what treatment a victim of rectal cancer could take. Freedom, it appears, embraces a right to read worthless books, but not a right to take worthless drugs.

A Moving Finger

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
BOSTON AP) — It was that time in the evening when, invariably, the social order breaks down.

The men, one by one, had wandered off to the kitchen to discuss grave issues around the ice bucket. The women remained in the livingroom trading diets, tax assessment shocks and political preferences in the coming presidential primaries with the hostess, who avoided the kitchen like a sink full of dishes.

Normally X-rated jokes on one side and good clean vicious gossip on the other distinguish the two camps at this separation stage in any cocktail party, but these, as Tom Paine once noted, are times that try persons' souls.

Issues, preferably gut issues, were the order of the day — or the night, getting on to morning, as the digital kitchen clock indicated.

"If Jimmy Carter wants to register women for the draft," the round, ruddy-faced insurance salesman opened the seminar, "My approach is basically the Hennie Youngman approach: Take my wife, please ... anybody."

Leaning against the French doors leading to the living room, his wife, small, mousey, her hair drawn tight like Lydia Pinkham's, could be heard saying in a high fluty voice: "Our Cynthia would love to be drafted. She's boy crazy now, and maybe the Army would make her clean up her room."

Back around the kitchen table, where the spirits bottles were lined up in parade ground formation, the auto parts dealer poured himself four meaty fingers of sour mash and waxed nostalgic.

"Drafting my first wife would probably be against the Geneva convention. She could lead a whole sapper squad of Andy Capp women and drive the Soviets out of Afghanistan in a week. She had a tongue like a flame thrower and her mother was worse. I feel sorry for any prisoners that fell into their hands. Our war has been over

Boycott Pressure Growing

Pressure for a boycott of the Moscow Olympics is building. It is almost certain that the Americans won't be there, and last week the European Parliament called for a boycott of the Olympics, as well as an embargo on surplus commodities sales to the Soviet Union.

It would be almost miraculous if the building world pressure got the Soviets out of Afghanistan, but it could happen.

Waste In Building

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Government building projects in North Carolina are costing millions of dollars more than comparable private buildings.

The excessive costs run an astounding 10 to 20 percent on any given project, according to knowledgeable people both in government and the building trades.

This means that with nearly $200 million budgeted this fiscal year and next for capital improvements by state government, at least $20 million in taxpayer money is being wasted. The total could be as much as $40 million thrown away.

Add in a variety of local projects such as schools, hospitals, city or county office buildings and such which operate under the same general state laws and procedures, the drain on citizens' pocketbooks is phenomenal.

expensive supplies and equipment, and numerous specifications which not only cost more to meet, but rule out equally workable alternatives which would cost much less.

But above that factor is the mere cost of doing business with government, builders complain. Nobody will make a decision for fear cent," one statewide builder confided.

Alternatives

Contractors have suggested to members of the study group several ways in which they believe the law and procedure could be changed to save considerable money. A report from the group, chaired by State Rep. James M. Clarke of Asheville, will be placed before the General Assembly next year.

Among proposals under study is a mandatory arbitration procedure to settle arguments over performance and payment. So many government projects wind up in court suits that they refuse to even bid on them, some builders told legislators.

BILL NOBLITT

Looked at another way, this situation means that from a $300 million road bond issue, $30 million is wasted with nothing on the ground to show for that part of the investment. The same factors would mean that a $600 million school bond issue will be so devastated by waste that only between $480 million and $540 million will actually be used for school buildings.

Reasons

A legislative study commission probing the situation has heard a parade of witnesses offering numerous reasons for the cost overruns.

The culprit seems to be state government itself; the multitude of rules and regulations, red tape and bureaucratic thumb-twiddling, delay and decision-by-committee which characterizes the system.

There is a "lot of gold-plating" in public buildings" contractors have told the study group ... detailing elaborate designs, extra-it will be wrong. Any change — even one which could save time and money — must "go through three agencies and four committees before an answer comes down next month", one contractor stated.

Builder after builder told the lawmakers that they deliberately jack up their cost estimates when submitting bids on a government job. From the lowest subcontractor on up to the primes, this jacking-up escalates the cost of the project.

Contractors skirted answering directly questions from the study commission members about how much all this is costing the taxpayers. Privately, however, they provide what they cautiously term "ballpark figures".

"It is at least — and always — 10 percent. That's for any project you want to mention. More often than not, it's as much as 20 per-

Other Editors Say Informers' Prison

(Greensboro Daily News)

Tattling can get you a bloody nose on the school playground. In prison it can get you killed. Yet, prisoners do "rat" on each other, and people charged with crimes continue to turn state's evidence in exchange for a reduction of their sentences. That, in turn, creates a problem for the state: how to protect informers from their fellow inmates.

Concerning those people who become informers once behind prison walls, the answer is fairly simple: Don't encourage them. Above all, don't reward them. That, at least, is William Leeke's opinion. Leeke, a veteran penologist, is the head of the South Carolina state prison system. He leaves room for exceptions: "If it can save someone from being hurt or if we can charge someone with a major offense." Handled otherwise, the informant system can produce a situation like the one in the New Mexico prison where many of those maimed or killed were thought to be informers.

For those who turn state's evidence before going to jail, the dilemma is more complicated. The state saves a lot of money and wins more of its cases when criminals agree to trade information for smaller sentences. However, anyone known to have done this might as well kiss his life goodbye when he checks into a prison.

Since the state is obviously not going to abandon the plea bargain system, it has two alternatives regarding informers. It can let them go free, or it can send them to prisons where only informers are kept. The first option is a travesty of fair sentencing, since it is quite possible to see one criminal, the informer, go free, while another does 20 years for the same offense.

North Carolina authorities rightly favor the second option. Officials in the Hunt administration are seeking funds for a new prison built to house only informers. Given the crowded conditions in the existing system, which make it all but impossible successfully to isolate informers from those who would kill them given the slightest opportunity, this will be money well spent. But the money may be hard to find; and officials are thinking of using an existing state building for their purposes. Even then it will be 1981 before the plan can be put to work. That should not deter officials from pushing hard to get this idea into practice.

Issue: Human Liberty

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

One of the witnesses at the trial of Dr. James Privitera was a senior citizen with cancer of the prostate. The patient was fully informed on the state-approved treatment for him: prostate removal and castration; female hormone treatment for the rest of his life. The patient balked. He refused to accept the treatment. He wanted to try amygdalin (laetrile) instead.

And for prescribing, this non-addictive, non-toxic natural substance for him, Dr. Privitera is now in prison.

In a fairly long life as a reporter, editor and columnist, I cannot recall a case that is more violative of fundamental principles of a free society than the case of Dr. Privitera. I have not the slightest personal interest in amygdalin. So far as I know, the stuff is no more effective in treating cancer than so many gumdrops. It strikes me as a useful project for the National Cancer Institute to undertake the forthcoming clinical tests, but I am indifferent to the outcome. If the investigation finds that laetrile is worthless on the cancer patients tested, who cares? It might yet work on someone else.

Let me back up a moment. Dr. Privitera is a licensed medical doctor in Covina, Calif., specializing in allergy and nutrition. On the basis of his professional experience, he concluded some years ago that laetrile, in combination with other nutritive elements, may tend to relieve the fearful pain and wasting away in some cancer victims. That conclusion has cost him dearly. He is serving six months as a common criminal for the heinous offense under California law of prescribing a drug the state has not approved. He is lucky in one sense. Under the law he could have pulled five years in prison.

The case brings into sharp and brilliant focus certain basic issues that are more important, because they are more enduring, than the hostages in Iran, the Soviets in Afghanistan or the pending presidential primaries. If we do not think soberly upon these questions, we are going to miss the whole meaning of a free society. In her dissent in the Privitera case, California's Chief Justice Rose Elizabeth Bird summed it up in a single telling sentence: "The issue here is human liberty."

What is the proper role of the state in governing the most personal lives of the people? How far should government go in protecting the people from what the government declares to be folly? Once a doctor has been found qualified to practice medicine, what restraints may the state validly put upon him?

The case throws into sharp contrast the conflicting philosophies of liberalism and conservatism. The California statute is distilled liberalism, pure and antiseptic: It proclaims the absolute power of the state to regulate the judgment of doctors and the lives of patients. The law is indifferent to the fate of the individual; it cares not a fig for innovation, experiment, diversity. It prescribes state-sanctioned treatment. No other treatment may be administered. Conservatism is fundamentally opposed to such inhuman arrogance. Conservatism believes absolutely in the right of the elderly cancer victim to make his own decision on his own body.

The Supreme Court has gone a long way toward protecting such individual rights. There is an analogy here with Stanley vs. Georgia, the 1969 case in which the court upheld the right of a citizen to view pornographic films in the privacy of his home. To deny such a right, said Mr. Justice Marshall for the court, amounts to a "drastic invasion of personal liberties." If the First Amendment means anything, he continued, "it means that a State has no business telling a man, sitting alone in his own house, what books he may read or what films he may watch. Our whole constitutional heritage rebels at the thought of giving government the power to control men's minds."

Looking To Christmas Future

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

While most Americans are just recovering from Christmas past, the country's toymakers already are in the middle of Christmas future.

The manufacturers have gathered in New York City to show their 1980 lines, offering thousands of old and new items which they hope will wind up under the tree some 10 months from now.

The Toy Manufacturers of America, Inc., an industry association, estimates that 1979 sales reached $5.8 billion at the retail level, an increase of about 13 percent from the year before. Prices last year were 15 percent higher, on the average, than they were in 1978 and the trade group predicts they will go up another 15 percent this year.

The fourth-quarter of the year is still the biggest selling season for toys, but the manufacturers say the introduction and popularity of electronic games has widened the market. People buy the games all year long and they seem willing to pay higher and higher prices.

The manufacturers estimated that 3,600 new items were on display at the annual toy fair this year, but some of the so-called "new" products are simply variations on existing lines.

Mattel Toys of Hawthorne, Calif., the biggest toymaker in the world, listed 241 products as new. Among them were new accessories for the "Barbie" doll, now in its 21st year. The "Barbie Dream Furniture" collection now includes bathroom items. "The commode can be filled with water and has realistic flushing action," says the company. The doll-size bathtub also "can be filled with water and drained realistically — the water going into a storage tank in the bottom half of the tub to be drained later."

Going from beauty to the beast, Mattel offers "Gregory," the vampire bat. "Press Gre-Gory bat's back," explains Mattel. "Blood" surges into his see-through belly." In case you're worried, the company is quick to point out that the "belly" is tightly sealed.

Kenner Products of Cincinnati, a division of General Mills, Inc., described 85 of its offerings as new. Like Mattel, however, Kenner, is sticking with success and that means "Star Wars." Sales of "Star Wars" toys, introduced in 1978, increased by 30 percent last year alone. Included in the 1980 line are 23 toys linked to the upcoming movie, "Star Wars: The Empire Strikes Back."

Tom Clark, Kenner's "Star Wars" product manager, indicates there is little relief in sight for parents who tired of the Force being with them. "There are 12 written scripts for movies, offering endless possibilities for new toys," he said.

Abd, from the Milton Bradley Co., the people who brought you "Simon," there is "Milton." Describing the new electronic game, which involves completing phrases correctly by pushing buttons, the company says: "Milton" not only talks, he talks back."

Strength For Today

ONE WAY TO BUILD

"Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it; except the Lord keep the city, the watchman waketh in vain" (Psalm 127:1).

History is littered with the debris of civilizations which believed that they could build on a foundation of power and wealth. Moreover, many a person has planned a life on the basis of selfishness and greed, only to find poverty and wretchedness at the end of it.

Everything, both in the individual life and in the life of a nation, must finally meet the moral requirements of the spiritual world. Evil may seem to triumph for a while, but this temporary triumph is the prelude to defeat. In the end, evil systems fall like a house of cards; or — to use a figure employed by our Lord — like a house built upon sand. Except that the Lord build, except the Lord keep, life is without purpose and the work of men's hands is without lasting stability.

"Hey, and don't forget," cut in the used car dealer, who had a reputation as a cutup in such affairs as this, "Miss Piggy is the first mate or whatever on the flight deck there in Swine Trek."

What about Joan of Arc? Boadicea? Molly Pitcher? Cleopatra? Helen of Troy? Carry Nation? The great women warriors of history were mobilized to confront his vision of impending decadence down at the draft board.

Skating and Sonja Henie

America's Linda Fratianne, East Germany's Annett Poetzsch and Japan's Emi Watanabe are among the young women competing for medals in figure skating at this year's Winter Olympics. Many observers feel that the greatest Olympic figure skater of all was Sonja Henie. Early figure skaters concentrated mostly on tracing precise patterns on the ice. Henie introduced an important change, when she combined skating with ballet dancing at the Olympics in 1928. She won the gold medal that year, and in the Olympics of 1932 and 1936. Henie later became the world's wealthiest athlete, producing and starring in her own ice shows, and making movies.

Police Probing Robbery Report

A Greenville man reported to police that he was robbed early today by a man who entered his home and struck him with a lamp.

Sylvester Dixon, according to Police Chief Glenn Cannon, reported that a man knocked on his door, entered his home at 702 W. Fifth Street and asked Dixon to lend him money. Dixon said that when he refused, the intruder struck him with a lamp, took some $35 from Dixon's wallet and also keys to his car and house.

Cannon said that Dixon received a gash over his mouth in the attack, which was reported at 2:25 a.m.

The chief said that investigation of the robbery is continuing by local police.

Congressman Hopes To Speak In Abscam Case

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — U.S. Rep. Richard Kelly wants to testify before a grand jury in a federal bribery probe but may fight a subpoena for documents in the case, his lawyer says.

Anthony S. Battaglia, Kelly's chief defense lawyer, told the St. Petersburg Times he would attempt today to arrange an appearance for the Central Florida Republican before a grand jury to be empaneled in Washington on Friday.

Meanwhile, the New York Times reported today that the FBI was trying to determine whether an informant in the case used inside information from the so-called Abscam investigation to work private swindles for his own financial gain.

Several California businessmen have accused the informer, who they identified as Joseph B. Meltzer, of swindling them out of at least $150,000 by portraying himself as the representative of wealthy Arab sheik, Kambir Abdul Rahman, who was willing to lend them money.

"At the time of Meltzer's alleged West Coast activities, he had no association with the FBI," said Homer Boynton, executive assistant director of the FBI in Washington.

Boynton added that the alleged frauds occurred after Meltzer's association with the FBI.

"The FBI became aware of the allegations and has been working closely with the United States attorney to resolve them," Boynton said.

The Times quoted court records in Florida as saying Meltzer is soon to begin a 30-month prison sentence for interstate transportation and sale of stolen securities.

Meanwhile, Kelly has admitted taking $25,000 in the FBI's Abscam — for Arab scam — probe but claims he did so to launch his own investigation. He is one of eight members of Congress implicated in an undercover operation in which federal agents posed as representatives of wealthy Arabs seeking lawmakers' favors.

Kelly said he kept the money in the glove compartment of his car, spent a small amount on miscellaneous items and returned the remainder to the FBI when the investigation came to light.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average fell 8.79 to 884.98, bringing its loss for the week to 10.75 points.

Declines outnumbered advances by a 3-1 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 46.68 million shares, against 50.54 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index lost 68 to 66.14.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .03 at 281.35.

NEW YORK (AP) — Several of the nation's largest banks boosted their prime lending rate by a half-point to 15½ percent on Tuesday, returning the rate charged on loans to top-ranked business borrowers to the record level set last fall.

The move was kicked off by Chase Manhattan Bank, the nation's third-largest, after the Federal Reserve last Friday increased its discount rate by a full percentage point to 13 percent in a bid to control inflation.

Sixth-ranked Chemical Bank and 20th-ranked Bank of New York also boosted their prime rates to 15½ percent. The rate last was at 15¼ percent in mid-November, shortly after a sharp credit-tightening by the Fed was announced.

The prime rate is not directly linked to consumer loan rates or mortgage rates, but its movements may signal the general direction of borrowing costs.

Since November, the prime had fallen at some major banks to as low as 15 percent before resuming the upward climb.

Last week's increase in the discount rate, the charge the Fed makes on loans to member commercial banks, had been followed immediately by only one major institution, 11th-ranked Wells Fargo Bank of San Francisco, which Friday raised its prime by a quarterpoint to 15½ percent.

The Fed's move came after the government reported a 1.6 percent jump in wholesale prices in January. Monetary tightening is aimed at slowing inflation and economic growth by curbing the amount of money available for borrowing.

Lady Pirates Whip Indians

By Jimmy DuPree
Special Correspondent
WILLIAMSBURG, Va.—The Lady Pirates of East Carolina closed out their 1979-80 campaign with a 79-59 romp over William and Mary Monday night.

ECU, ending the regular season at 19-9, which equals the most wins by a Pirate squad, fell behind 10-4 less than four minutes into the game, but retaliated with 13 unanswered points as the Indians' offensive momentum collapsed.

Senior Rosie Thompson provided 19 first-half points as the Lady Bucs cruised to a 39-25 halftime lead. Thompson led all scorers and claimed rebounding honors with 11.

Forward Kathy Riley had 16 points and freshman Mary Denker added 12. Each grabbed eight rebounds as the Pirates dominated the boards, 46-38.

Nancy Scott led the Indians with 14 points while teammate

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
Rose High School, deadlocked at 45-45 in the early seconds of the final period against Rocky Mount, canned 11 unanswered points over the next four minutes and went on to take a 65-56 victory in the first round of the Division I Tournament last night.

The Rampants, playing lackluster ball throughout the first three quarters, suddenly caught fire and blew the Gryphons away during those final seven and a half minutes. Rocky Mount, pressed by the Rampants during the final frame, was only able to score one free throw between the 7:50 mark and the 1:20 timing while Rose was throwing in 17 points to take a 16-point lead with 1:27 left to play.

"This is what happens when you have to play on Monday and you don't get to practice on Sunday," Coach Jim Brewington said. "We just couldn't get started."

Brewington said he wasn't pleased with what he saw during the first three quarters of the game. "We finally found out what was going on out there and went to work. We really played well in the fourth quarter."

The Rampant coach said that the Rose five went to a 1-3-1 zone trap during the period and it befuddled the Gryphons forcing them into a number of turnovers. Rocky Mount, with 23 in the game, turned the ball over eight times during the final seven and a half minutes of play. The Rampant defense also foiled their shooting, as they hit just six of 18 final quarter shots.

At the same time, Rose was pouring in seven of ten from the floor and adding six of eight free throws.

Throughout the first three periods of the game, the contest was tight. Rocky Mount never led by more than two and Rose built up only a five-point lead during the three frames. Rocky Mount got the initial lead, but Rose took it at 4:30 and held it until a trio of free throws returned the Gryphons to the lead, 10-8. Rose regained the lead on two free throws by Donald Johnson and a jumper by Wallace Brown, 12-10, and held a 14-10 lead at the horn.

In the early minutes of the second period, Rose used a jumper by Donald House and a free throw by William Frizzell to up its lead to five, 17-12. Rocky Mount, however, pulled back and finally tied it up at 25-all, as Mitch Braswell scored on a jumper and Johnny Brown hit two free throws. Rose moved out again, was tied at 27-all, and regained a 29-27 lead on a Brown jumper with three seconds left in the half.

Rocky Mount got baskets from Donald Mabry and Ray Green to open the third period, giving the Gryphons a 31-29 lead. Rose tied it three times, 31-31, 33-33 and 35-35 before Calvin Whichard hit for a 37-35 Rose lead. Rocky Mount tied it up again twice more, at 41 and 43 before Frizzell hit with 20 seconds left for a 45-43 lead.

Braswell opened the final period with a game-tying basket, 45-45, but it was the last time.

Tyrone Tucker hit a free throw and Whichard added a jumper. Brown hit and Whichard scored again. House then hit from underneath and slammed through a dunk with 3:41 left for a 56-45 lead.

House was charged with a technical on his dunk for hanging on the rim, and Rocky Mount spoiled the streak by the Rampants as George McClain hit the charity shot.

But Rose came back with another basket by House, and four free throws, two each by Johnson and Brown, to run the lead out to 62-46 with 1:27 left.

After that, Rose toyed with the Gryphons until the final

East Carolina Closes Out Road Season Against Old Dominion

East Carolina University's men hit the road for the final time this season Wednesday night, traveling to Norfolk, Va., to meet Old Dominion University.

The Pirates will try to continue a two-game win streak they hold over the Monarchs in the Norfolk Scope. Ironically, the Pirates haven't won at home to the Monarchs over the same period.

Earlier this year, Old Dominion gained a 70-65 win over the Pirates in Minges Coliseum.

The Monarchs have already assured themselves of a 20-game victory season, having clinched that with a win over George Mason last week.

But, at the same time, they had a 13-game win streak stopped Saturday night by St. Bonaventure, 84-72. It was only the fourth loss in 24 games for the Old Dominion squad.

East Carolina, meanwhile, goes into the game with a two-game losing streak, having fallen to Maryland and UNC-Wilmington over the past week.

"I'm hopeful that we will see two hungry teams Wednesday night," ECU coach Dave Odom said. "Both of us are coming off disappointing losses. They're coming into the game after having their 13-game win streak snapped, and we're coming in off a night when we needed to play well and didn't."

Odom feels that the two teams will match up well on the court. It proved true in the early game. In that, East Carolina led by over ten points during the first half, but lost their momentum later on as the Monarchs rallied to win it.

"We need to show renewed spirit after being somewhat blasé at Wilmington," Odom said. "I think the character of our players has progressed to the point where we will come back and I look for a return to team basketball, intensity on defense and determination on the boards."

While Odom feels that the Pirates are a better team now than they were when they first faced Old Dominion, he also feels that the Monarchs have improved during the period too.

In recent days, Bobby Vaughan has been missing from the Old Dominion lineup, and Odom isn't sure whether he'll see action against the Pirates.

"He's been out with an ankle injury. I'm sure they'll want to get him back as soon as possible if they can. He didn't play Saturday night. I can't say whether it's to our benefit or not if he doesn't play. He's an excellent defender and gave us a lot of trouble in the first game."

In that game, Odom recalled, the Monarchs pressed a great deal, not forcing that many turnovers, but "wearing us down."

Ronnie Valentine comes into the game as the leading scorer for the Monarchs with an 18.9 average. Ronnie McAdoo is next with a 12.5 mark, while Vaughan was the only other double digit scorer with 10.0.

"I wouldn't call this a 'must' win for us," Odom said. "But it is a must game in terms of having good solid performances. We don't want to regress."

"It would be a great win to end our road season with, however," he added.

The Pirates return home after the 7:30 p.m. contest to host Campbell on next Wednesday.

Wrestling Is Reset Thursday

East Carolina University's wrestling match with N.C. State, scheduled for tonight in Minges Coliseum, has been postponed.

The match will be held on Thursday at 4 p.m. in Minges instead of tonight.

A problem in scheduling conflicts forced the postponement.

Martin In Girls Win

MERRY HILL — Martin Academy, led by Allison Perry's 13 points and Amy Perry's 11, whipped Albermarle, 47-32, Monday night in the first round of its conference tournament.

The win moves the Pioneer girls into the semi-finals Wednesday at 7 p.m. against Lawrence. The boys play Ridgecroft tonight at 8:30 p.m.

Martin Academy moved ahead 11-6 at the end of the first period before going in at half ahead, 19-15.

The Pioneers added to their lead in the third quarter, leading 32-25 at that point before coasting home with a 15-point victory.

Roanoke Girls Oust Farmville Central

By LARRY SULLIVAN
Reflector Sports Writer
HOLLYWOOD—Two out of three isn't bad, except when the third game is in the do-or-die District 13-A Tournament.

Just ask Farmville Central's Lady Jaguars. The first two times the Jaguars battled Roanoke's Lady Redskins, the FC unit prevailed. But last night, a Northeastern Conference title later, Roanoke made that third game Farmville's last of the cage campaign, whipping Coach Hilda Worthington's troops, 53-42, in a not-as-close-as-it-should tourney game here at D.H. Conley High School gym. In the boys' division, Plymouth gained a 72-70 victory over Southern Nash in a first-round contest.

"We play better when we run and press," a delighted Lady Redskin mentor Phil Griffin stated. "We had a good press in the second period and extended it in the third before our sloppy fourth quarter. We were able to push the ball up-court on offense and keep them from getting inside on defense. I'm just proud of my team," he added.

In that second period Griffin's red-and-white clad lassies tickled the nets for 14 points while limiting the visiting Jaguars to only three, nursing a 13-point advantage.

Worthington pointed out that second frame as her squad's undoing. "We just didn't play them until the fourth quarter," she said, "and then it was too late. We had a very poor first half and our shooting all night was just terrible. We just didn't play them," she said again.

Tiny Country Can Make News

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP)—The medals race has turned into a two-nation tug of war between East Germany and the Soviet Union, but tiny Liechtenstein, a dot on the world globe, had a chance to write some Winter Olympic history of its own today.

When Andreas Wenzel, leader after the first heat of the men's giant slalom, went after his medal today, it gave Liechtenstein, a Western European country with a population of 20,000, a shot at its second medal of these Games. The first, a silver in the women's downhill, belongs to Andreas' older sister, Hanni.

Never before in Olympic history have a brother and sister both taken Alpine medals home.

Barbara Petzold's victory in Monday's only medal event, the women's 10-kilometer cross-country ski race, gave East Germany its 12th medal of these Games, one more than the Soviet Union. The Russians lead in gold 6-3, Austria, the United States and Finland are next in the medal standings with four each.

Aycock In Mat Win

WASHINGTON — E. B. Aycock took the last four weight classes — three by pins — en route to a 43-33 win over Washington in a junior high wrestling match Monday.

Washington captured six of the first 10 matches, four forfeits, before the Jaguars used wins by James Richardson, John Maye, Frank Corey and Frank Norris to win their fourth match of the year in six outings.

E. B. Aycock ends the season Wednesday when it plays host to Beddingfield at 4 p.m.

88: Maurice Blunt (W) won by forfeit.
95: Lee Ferguson (W) won by forfeit.
101: Russell Vines (A) decided Dwayne Saitterwhite, 11-7.

107: Ronnie Godley (W) won by forfeit.
113: Bobby Langley (A) pinned Tyrone Gorham, 1-33.
119: Chris Paggett (W) decided Amos Edwards, 7-6.

125: Delano Williams (A) won by forfeit.
131: David Steffensen (A) pinned Andrew Collins, 55.
137: Calvin Moore (W) pinned John Ormond, 2-47.

143: Mike Worley (W) won by forfeit.
151: James Richardson (A) pinned Jeff Brady, 32.
158: John Maye (A) pinned Patrick Olson, 1-18.
168: Frank Corey (A) decided George Couch, 12-1.
HWT: Frank Norris (A) pinned Steve Pitt, 1-55.

late for Farmville Central as the cold-shooting club warmed up for 22 points in the eight minutes while Roanoke pushed in 11. Seven FC players scratched in the period, the last of the season for the cage unit, as they fell short by the 53-42 score.

Redskin guard Carolyn Jones led all scorers in the contest with 18 points while teammate Sylvia Parker joined her in double figures with 12. Farmville Central's Pam Moye was the only Jaguar to hit double digits, collecting 10 points in her season finale.

With the win, Roanoke, now 19-7, moves into the District semi-finals.

Tonight, Southwest Edgecombe's girls face Edenton, while Farmville Central's boys take on Tarboro as first round play continues.

NBC Entertainment Chief Sets Aggressive Steps To Be No. 1

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) —

Brandon Tartikoff, president of NBC Entertainment, took to the tube last week to explain to NBC's affiliates the heavy reworking of the NBC schedule. The last such closed-circuit broadcast was done by Tartikoff's predecessor, Mike Weinblatt, last summer.

Weinblatt's message had been stability. That's why NBC had only six new series in the fall schedule, he said.

Of course, you can't talk about schedule stability when your lineup undergoes the sort of changes NBC's is about to undergo — eight new series, two series dropped ("Skag" and "Shirley"), a movie dropped (on Fridays) and four series shifted to new times. So, the message from Tartikoff (network president Fred Silverman's new man) was: To be No. 1, you have to be aggressive.

And, to be No. 1, Tartikoff said, "you've got to make an impact on Sunday nights, you've got to take down CBS on Sunday night."

Tartikoff refers to the Sunday night monopoly CBS has built this season, a night of intimidating programming power that has helped propel CBS to even terms with ABC in the ratings. CBS has throttled all comers on Sunday, scoring with "60 Minutes," "Archie Bunker's Place," "One Day at a Time," "Alice," "The Jeffersons" and "Trapper John, M.D."

"To take down CBS on Sunday," as Tartikoff put it, NBC is taking a risk with the strongest show it has, "CHiPs," the friendly cop show, is being yanked from its comfortable Saturday night spot, where it has performed consistently well, and dropped in on Sunday.

"CHiPs" new competition is the formidable "Archie" and "One Day at a Time" tandem on CBS and the acclaimed "Tenspeed and Brown Shoe" on ABC. The Silverman-Tartikoff reasoning:

"Tenspeed and Brown Shoe" is very weak with the teen-age audience, and that's "CHiPs" forte... As to the show's chances against "Archie," well, therein lies the gamble. The risk seems greater when you consider that on Saturday, "CHiPs" led off the night. On Sunday, it will follow an ever-weakening "Disney" lead-in.

NBC is finally putting "From Here to Eternity" on the air after delaying it since last fall. Tartikoff told affiliates that the time is right for the wartime serial because "Eternity" is in synch with the mood of the country.

Tartikoff outlined the network's new comedies — "Sanford," "Boomer," "The Facts of Life," "Me and Maxx" and "United States," and predicted that "BJ and the Bear" will respond favorably to its new Saturday night slot, "CHiPs" old home.

But effort is one thing, performance quite another. While NBC appears to be making gains in the ratings competition — roughly two points behind ABC and CBS — the network is in fact in the precise ratings position it was in a year ago.

That is, NBC hasn't improved, ABC has worsened. Whether the Silverman-Tartikoff "aggressive" schedule works may well depend on the degree of decline or recovery at ABC.

Mardi Gras In Its Final Hours

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Mardi Gras revelers are flocking to the fabled French Quarter today to celebrate the last day before the Christian Lenten season with a street party as indulgent as its name implies — Fat Tuesday.

Authorities designed the day's celebration to accommodate an estimated 1 million persons.

For the last two weeks, it has been Carnival in this old river town, as the "krewes" — bastions of both High Society haughtiness and nouveau riche presumption — have geared up for the big night.

The matrons and patrons of New Orleans society have been clambering aboard parade floats to toss Hong Kong plastic beads and aluminum doubloons to the hoi polloi. Fresh-faced debutantes have been presented at fancy dress balls.

Ten krewes train their elaborate parades today, including Rex, the King of Carnival, and Zulu, the chieftain of the blacks. They are strutting their stuff down the streets before shrieking children scrambling for trinkets and by grinning parents swigging from paper cups.

From midnight Monday, Misrule reigns in the ancient streets, and the roar of Fat Tuesday crowds continues through the night, into morning and into night again.

Mardi Gras officially ends at midnight, when Catholic church bells toll the advent of the Lenten fast.

This year's Carnival celebration was marred by the destruction of an elaborate float. The $20,000 dinosaur was stalled on a bridge when it was set afire, police said.

It had just finished carrying a dozen members of the Bacchus "krewes" Sunday night and was empty at the time. Alan Sparkman, director of bridge police, said Stephen Harris, 23, of New Orleans was arrested a short time later and booked with arson.

Jill Clayburgh says at age 35 she is too old to be spoiled by her success in "An Unmarried Woman" and "Starting Over."

"People talk about fame destroying your sense of proportion, but I'm too old for that," she said in an interview published in the March issue of McCall's. "I didn't get this acclaim for no reason or for something that's going to disappear tomorrow."

She said she learned a lot about dealing with the problems of fame by living with Al Pacino for five years. "He had his ups and downs with fame at first. I learned a lot from it all."

She is now married to playwright David Rabe and plans to have a baby. "I've decided I'm going to just go ahead and have a baby and not think about it any more. We're so awfully good at finding reasons not to have children today."

STRAUSS DIES
GARMISCH-PARTEN-KIRCHEN, West Germany (AP) — Franz Strauss, only son of composer Richard Strauss, died after a lengthy illness, a relative confirmed today. Strauss, who died Friday, was 83.

Miss Hussey, 27, flew in from Toronto, where she is filming a movie, "Virus," for Monday's wedding to the Japanese singer.

The bride wore a red sari of silk and gold, pearls and a pendant of gold and gems in the center of her forehead.

Miss Hussey has been a student of Muktananda since 1974.

"I don't like rubber bridge. I much prefer duplicate, where the luck is removed and everybody plays the same cards," is a frequent lament. Horsefeathers! Luck is one of the main factors in the continuing success of duplicate tournaments. As it should be! If luck were removed and tournaments became purely a test of skill, they would hold little attraction for the public at large, for only a handful of experts would have the necessary equipment to win. Some may favor such a state of affairs, but that would eliminate a unique vitality inherent in tournament bridge.

Remove luck from duplicate tournaments and they would become similar to chess tournaments, or golf. The neighborhood duffer would never get a chance to match strokes with the top-flight pros, and what sheer futility if he did. Yet the same tyro at the bridge table could find himself face-to-face with some of the game's leading exponents, and occasionally come away with a scalp or two—the memory of which will sustain him for many a day.

This hand was reported to us by one of the country's great players, who sat East.

500 Seeking Sci-Math Teaching Assignments

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Teaching and administrative appointments to the new North Carolina High School of Science and Mathematics are going to be very competitive.

The new school has 13 openings. But after recruiting packets were distributed around the state earlier this month, the school found it had 500 applicants for the jobs.

Most of the 500 are from North Carolina. The residential school for the state's gifted and talented students is scheduled to open in September with about 150 students.

"We need to have the faculty here by March 22, because a tentative workshop has been scheduled for that date," said Bonna Robbins, administrative assistant at the Durham school.

The positions were originally scheduled to be filled by late this month. However, Ms. Robbins said the appointments will be postponed until late March.

"We haven't had as many minority applicants as we had hoped for," she said. "We do have a lot of women applicants, so we won't have any trouble with that."

She said the school is still actively recruiting minority applicants for teaching and administrative jobs.

"We will keep accepting applications until we fill all the positions," she said. "If we get an application a day before the interviews for that job, we'll review it and see if that person qualifies for an interview. We don't want to miss any good ones."

But the school is still accepting applications for the posts, she said.

Some Improvement, But Tito Condition 'Grave'

By STEPHEN H. MILLER
Associated Press Writer
BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Doctors said today they had been able to reduce the kidney problems of President Josip Broz Tito but his condition remained grave.

They said that intensive treatment for the 87-year-old leader was continuing.

"The general state of health of President Josip Broz Tito continues to be grave," the presidential medical panel said in its midday bulletin.

"With application of active therapy, kidney insufficiency problems are less marked," they said. "Other necessary measures of intensive treatment are also being applied."

Yugoslav officials have been careful throughout Tito's illness not to encourage hopes of recovery. The latest bulletin appeared to dampen a round of rumors that there had been a significant change in Tito's condition.

The day before, doctors had continued to report no change and no improvement in Tito's health.

His report then of "indispensable measures of intensive treatment" on Tito's faltering kidneys appeared to confirm widespread theories

Two Killed In Plane Crash

HOG HILL, N.C. (AP) — Two men died Monday evening in the crash of a single-engine airplane in a Lincoln County pasture, authorities said.

Highway Patrol Sgt. H.M. Overcash identified the victims as Donald James Brunt, 47, the pilot and Cecil P. Boyette, 27, the passenger. Both are from Hickory.

The crash occurred shortly after 6 p.m. about 17 miles south of Hickory and 12 miles west of Lincolnton.

The plane, a Cessna 152, was owned by Cannon Aviation Co. of Hickory, authorities said. Both men were employees of Cannon, said Johnny Terrell of the company.

Roger Hilton said he was standing on his back porch when he saw the plane skim treetops near the pasture, start to climb, then nose over backwards and crash.

"It looked like it was trying to pull up when it stalled," he said.

Hilton said that he thought at first the plane was just "acting fool." There is a private airfield in the area, he said, and small planes often fly low over the area doing stunts.

Hilton said he sprinted to the crash site and checked the victims' pulses. He found none.

Jeannette Gilbert said she saw the plane fall to the ground about 75 yards from her house. It made a light thud when it hit, she said, and a little smoke flew up.

"Nobody can imagine the feeling I had when I saw that plane fall," Mrs. Gilbert said.

Fuel Aid Is 'Muddled'

STATESVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Emergency distribution of fuel to the poor is on schedule in Iredell County, but administrators say dealers who provide the heating oil are having to wait for weeks to get payment.

Paul Wilson, executive director of I-Care Inc., blames the problem on bureaucracy. I-Care is a community action agency administering the $123,000 fuel program in Iredell County.

"The intent was to head off the energy crisis. But the bureaucracy is so muddled, you need to start now to do it for next year," Wilson said.

I-Care workers spend up to three weeks confirming applicants' income data. If they're eligible, fuel is delivered. Then applications are forwarded to the State Economic Opportunity Office in Raleigh for further processing that might take three more weeks before any checks are mailed to dealers.

"The fact that you have to go through this process — send it to Raleigh, put it through computers, then get the (payment) to the fuel dealers — is what takes the effectiveness away from the program," Wilson said.

But, unlike some other government-aid programs, Wilson noted that officials know the money is going for its intended use — for fuel.

National Pig Day Mar. 1

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Mary Lynne Rave thinks so much of the lowly porker that she and her sister have started the Association for the Advancement of National Pig Day.

"Pigs aren't really fat," opines Mrs. Rave. "They're Rubenesque."

The purpose of National Pig Day, March 1, is "to accord to the pig its rightful, though generally unrecognized, place as one of man's most intellectual and domesticated animals."

This year's celebration will be held in Lubbock, Texas, home of Mrs. Rave's sister, Ellen Stanley. The first celebration was held in 1972.

At pig parties, pink pig punch is served, as are other pork delicacies. Pink ribbon pigtales are tied around trees in the pigs' honor.

Mrs. Rave says other commitments may keep her from attending the Lubbock celebration. But never fear: "If we don't go, I'll bake pig cupcakes and pig cookies. We'll both go off our diets and pig out," she said.

Lighting Design Specialist Here

Raymond Grenald, one of two dozen architectural design specialists in the nation, will present a lecture to students and designer members of the American Society of Interior Designers, North Carolina State Chapter, at East Carolina University on Feb. 23.

His presentation on the role of the lighting specialist in interior and architectural design is being made during ADID's annual state convention being held on the campus.

Grenald, whose philosophy is "to use light to enrich architectural design to heighten the visual experience of the user," is a graduate of Washington State University and a registered member of AIA and the IALD.

The Rev. John R. Price, Vicar and Associate Rector of St. Paul's Parish, has entered the winter term of the Center for Continuing Education program at Virginia Theological Seminary in growing awareness and need for clergy continuing education.

Sidestep Controversy In Water Management

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A legislative study commission on water management has sidestepped a controversial proposal to create a water authority in favor of a general, long-range study on water needs in North Carolina.

A draft report from the Legislative Commission on Alternatives of Water Management, headed by House Speaker Carl Stewart, recommends a study to examine the supply, spatial distribution and limitations on available water in North Carolina.

It does not call for any type of state or regional water agency, although the report does list possible benefits resulting from a regional or river basin approach to water management. The commission does, however, repeat an earlier statement that it does not recommend transferring water from one river basin to another as a means of solving general water management problems.

Stewart and the study committee touched off a wave of controversy at the start of the year over proposals that included creation of a state water authority and inter-basin transfers of water.

In its draft report, the commission recommends that the legislature allow it or a similar group to continue working to receive and evaluate the results of additional studies recommended in the report.

The commission also recommends:

- That the long-range study include gathering physical data on how water resources affect growth.
- That the study evaluate which areas of the state want more water to encourage growth, and which areas do not.
- That the legislature consider the need for "coordinating, consolidating and augmenting" state services to local governments that want assistance with water problems.
- That the legislature consider bills during the 1981 session to amend the procedural aspects of two existing laws that affect water use.

The 12 members of the commission reviewed contents of the draft report at the unit's final scheduled meeting Monday. A final report is to be filed with the legislature by March 1.

Cancer Risk Is An Old Story

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Although it may seem that cancer-causing substances are everywhere, it's not as if cancer never existed before the industrial age, says a University of North Carolina researcher.

The risk has always been there, but the amount of contaminants has grown, said Avram Gold of the university's School of Public Health.

"When cavemen roasted meat over a fire, they were involved with... a pollutant that has been linked with cancer in test animals," Gold said. "We guess that some of the cavemen got stomach cancer, too."

"In today's society, the risk is multiplied. Some of it is necessary."

"For example, we have to use something to keep our crops from being destroyed by pests," he said.

But Gold said that doesn't mean society must accept all pollutants.

"For instance, why do we have to paint our oranges or orange to make them more attractive?" he asked. "I'm sure that after a while people would accept green oranges or oranges that are less colorful to escape the risks from dyes."

Gold's research is on the trail of two missing links in the process that leads to cancer. First, he wants to know what specific chemical compounds are added to cellular DNA, which carries genetic information. Then he wants to know how they cause mutations that give rise to cancers.

Gold, who recently came to UNC from Harvard, praised the Research Triangle area for its work in cancer research.

"This is a major area for studying chemical carcinogenesis," he said. "The Triangle area is probably the fastest-growing cancer center in the country with the greatest concentration of up-and-coming cancer researchers."

Plan Survey Of Temperatures

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A delayed program to check temperatures in North Carolina's commercial buildings will begin this week, state energy spokesmen said Monday.

Officials of the North Carolina Department of Energy, conducting a workshop for Charlotte area building owners and managers, said inspectors would begin checking nonresidential buildings across the state Thursday to determine if they are in compliance with federal guidelines.

Department spokesman Roger Hall said punitive action, which includes fines of up to $10,000, would be taken only as a last resort against building owners.

"We hope that won't be necessary in North Carolina. We're getting excellent response from building owners and managers," Hall said.

Hall said approximately 100 local governments have agreed to provide inspectors for the program, which will be funded by a $158,000 federal grant.

The program was to have begun last August, but the grant was not received until Jan. 21.

Seeks Reduce Gasoline-Use

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt, saying that state gas supplies may reach the critical stage, ordered his cabinet Monday to take measures to conserve gasoline in state government departments.

"The measures include limiting travel to out-of-town conferences and workshops by state employees to four each and limiting board and commission meetings."

Heart Sunday

Each year on the last Sunday in February, doorbells ring all over the nation as more than two million volunteers visit their neighbors to leave educational materials and ask for contributions to the Heart Fund.

Heart Sunday in Pitt County is Sunday, Feb. 24, according to Camilla Davis, Heart Sunday chairman for the Pitt Co. Heart Association.

"The Heart Association has been fighting for 30 years to stem the tide of cardiovascular disease, and it is only in the last two years that we have seen the tide begin to turn," Mrs. Davis said. "Although it still kills more people than all other causes combined, the death rate from heart and blood vessel disease began declining in 1978 and continued down in 1979. Many medical scientists have expressed their opinions that the drop is due in large part to the research, professional and public education, and medical and community programs supported by the Heart Fund. We want to give everyone a chance to contribute to this life-saving work."

Opposes Hunt For Longevity

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Ralph Amen is 51 — well into middle age.

But he still thinks the world belongs to the young.

"I would call a moratorium on all research that has to do with the intent of increasing human longevity," said Amen, a biologist and professor at Wake Forest University.

Young people, he says, are imaginative, goal-oriented, visionary and ambitious. Old people generally are not.

"They have lost their zeal, their vision and either have achieved their goals or had them stripped away by the adversities of life," he said.

The country's population now includes about 18 million persons over the age of 65. If longevity were extended by 10 years, the over-65 population would more than double, having a potentially disastrous effect on American society.

"You would increase the number of people who aren't visionaries anymore and thereby dilute the number of people who are," he said. "The first thing that might go is the notion of progress."

He said a small, but growing, number of scientists share his concerns, but most of the warnings about the dangers of longevity research come not from scientists but from philosophers.

Scientists, he said, tend to take the narrow view, not seeing the issues outside their fields of expertise.

He maintained that non-scientists should have more control over the kind of research they do and over what is done with the knowledge gained from the research.

Scientists are usually not prepared, either by training or temperament, to make such decisions.

Amen also teaches a course in the philosophy of science.

Advices Higher Leaf Supports

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland proposed Monday that federal price supports for flue-cured tobacco be increased by 9.4 percent this year.

That would bring the price supports to an average of $1.415 a pound.

Bergland also proposed that eight grades of "downstalk" tobacco be ineligible for price supports this year because of an oversupply of such low-quality leaf.

North Carolina tobacco officials said Monday that they were pleased with the price proposal, believed to represent the highest annual increase in the history of the program.

However, farmers are expected to have mixed reactions about the downstalk proposal.

Tobacco officials hope the lack of price supports on the low grades will encourage farmers not to harvest large amounts of tobacco for which demand is low.

Rates for the eight grades ranged from 75 cents to 89 cents in 1979.

Under Bergland's proposal — his final decision is expected next month — the average support price per pound would be 12.2 cents more than the 1979 rate.

The proposed rates range from 88 cents to $1.83 per pound, depending on quality.

Price supports are guaranteed prices that farmers are paid if they are unable to sell their leaf at auction.

John H. Cyrus, chief of the tobacco section for the state Agriculture Department, said the lack of price supports on some grades might make U.S. downstalk more competitive with inexpensive imported leaf.
