Iran's Militants Insist If No Shah, No Hostages

By The Associated Press
There will be no clemency for the U.S. Embassy hostages in Tehran until the deposed shah is returned to Iran, the Moslem militants holding the embassy said today.

The hard-line statement came as the U.N. investigative commission on Iran remained stalled.

A co-chairman of the commission unexpectedly left Switzerland for New York today as agreement on a timetable for release of the Tehran hostages reportedly continued to elude negotiators. Iranian leaders denied there was any link between the commission's work and possible release of the approximately 50 hostages.

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr also demanded the return of the shah, but the militants' broadcast statement was the only one directly tying the hostages' freedom to the return of the ousted monarch.

In a Tehran Radio "mobilization week" broadcast monitored in London, the militants said:

"Today is a day of mobilization of the Iranian nation against all aggressive occupationists, particularly America which must deliver up fugitive Mohammad Reza and the assets he has stolen."

"It must realize that the longer it delays the more it exposes its anti-human nature to the world."

"In the event of delay, any expectation of clemency for the hostages would be foolish."

In another development, the Moslem militants, holding the Americans captive at the embassy for the 110th day, declared that one of three U.S. diplomats in custody at the Foreign Ministry should be put on trial for alleged connections with an Iranian terrorist group.

The departure of U.N. commission member Mohamed Bedjaoui from Geneva was not explained. A U.N. spokesman in the Swiss city, Anthony Curnow, said Bedjaoui's business in New York was "apparently not associated with the commission's mandate" but that it was "most possible" he would meet with U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim in New York.

Bedjaoui, Algeria's U.N. ambassador, is a co-chairman of the five-member commission, established by Waldheim as a "fact-finding mission" to hear Iran's charges of mass murder and corruption against the deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and of U.S. interference in Iranian affairs, and American grievances over the hostage-taking.

The commission had been scheduled to fly to Tehran Wednesday but Waldheim delayed its departure until the weekend when last-minute, unspecified problems developed.

In a speech carried on Tehran Radio, Khomeini, Iran's ailing 79-year-old revolutionary leader, told his countrymen Wednesday to "forcefully demand from the U.S.A. and any other government which may have risen in defense of the criminal, Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, that this criminal be returned to us together with the nation's lawful riches, and do not rest until final victory."

Bani-Sadr, in an interview with the Tehran correspondent of a French-Canadian radio program, also repeated his government's determination to retrieve the shah, whom it charges plundered the national treasury and killed thousands of political opponents during his 37-year reign.

The lawyer representing Iran in its bid to extradite the shah from Panama — former Panamanian Supreme Court Justice Juan Materno Vazquez — said in a telephone interview from Panama City he expected to have documents needed for his case in about two weeks.

Under Panamanian law, Iran has until March 22 to present the documents, which include proof of the shah's identity, a warrant for his arrest and the legal charges and probable penalties against him under Iranian law. However, Panamanian officials doubt Iran will be able to meet the deadline.

Nonetheless, Iranian authorities seem determined to press for the shah's extradition. Some observers speculated this may be a long-term goal, unrelated to the hostages, while others believe it may be a strategy to appease the militants holding the Americans.

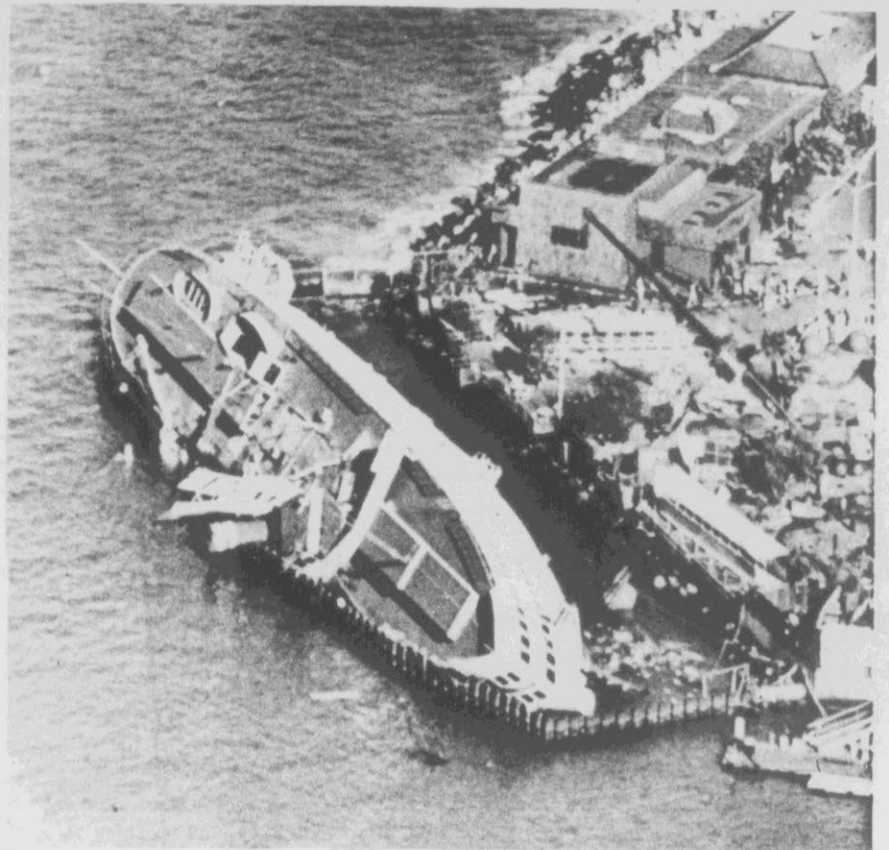

The cloudiness of the situation was underscored in the interview with Bani-Sadr, when the Iranian president said the work of the U.N. commission of inquiry going to Iran would not be directly linked to release of the approximately 53 Americans held hostage in Tehran for 110 days.

He would not say whether the estimated 50 hostages at the U.S. Embassy and three others at the Foreign Ministry in Tehran would be freed either before or after the committee's report.

Neither would U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim. There was "no deadline for the whole procedure" of their release, he said at a news conference at the United Nations in New York. He declined to be specific when asked whether there was an understanding on the timing for their freedom, saying "This is a very delicate matter."

However, a well-placed U.N. diplomat said the panel's departure, originally scheduled from Geneva, Switzerland, on Wednesday, had been delayed specifically because no agreement had been reached on the timing of the Americans' freedom.

HIT BY BIG WAVE — The Lady Alexandra lies on her side after a powerful surge of ocean currents rushed into the channel at Redondo Beach, Calif., and turned her over. The waves were generated by the latest of seven storms to hit the California coast. The ship had been converted into a floating restaurant, disco and backgammon parlor. (AP Laserphoto)

Californians Await 7th Rainstorm Onslaught

By CHARLOTTE PORTER
Associated Press Writer

As millions of dollars' worth of crops rotted in sodden fields, Southern Californians shoveled muck out of their homes and eyed the skies for signs of yet another rainstorm. The unrelenting rains have pushed Idaho and Utah reservoirs to the limit and forced schools in Arizona to close.

At least 30 persons have died in California, Utah, Arizona and Mexico since the storms began last week, and loss estimates now exceed $355 million.

A sixth Pacific weather front in eight days slammed into waterlogged Southern California on Wednesday, ending a few hours of sunshine with an expected 1 1/2 inches of rain before the forecast arrival of a seventh storm tonight — and perhaps more later.

In Northern California's Lassen National Park, rangers pushed through four feet of new snow in search of four missing campers. Meanwhile, one man was presumed drowned Wednesday when floodwaters swept him off his horse as he tried to rescue cattle near Patterson, Calif., and the body of a surfer was recovered near Santa Cruz.

The storms have pelted Southern California with more than a foot of water since Feb. 13, causing flash floods that have destroyed 110 homes and damaged another 1,350. More than 5,000 people were urged to leave their homes as mountain slopes turned into avalanches of mud.

Damage in six counties — Los Angeles, Orange, Ventura, Riverside, San Diego and San Bernardino — hit $267 million and Lt. Gov. Mike Curb urged President Carter to declare them a major disaster area.

Meanwhile, in normally arid Arizona, officials tallied $90 million in damages in counties hit by a record eight days of flooding. Gov. Bruce Babbitt asked businesses to begin staggered working hours as only two of the 10 bridges over the Salt River, which divides Phoenix, escaped the rampaging waters.

Another storm was expected to hit Arizona today and a still-stronger storm was forecast for Saturday.

Pounding surf battered homes along the California coast as a fifth storm in a week moved into the northern part of the state, packing 50 mph winds. Some 40 residents of Novato, north of San Francisco, were forced to leave their homes late Wednesday as farmers in the southern part of the state reckoned crop losses at $26 million.

In Idaho, officials in the tiny community of Malad breathed a sigh of relief as water stopped rising in a saturated earthen dam to the northwest. State Water Resources experts had said a heavy rain could push the 30-year-old structure to the breaking point.

In Phoenix, Ariz., the traffic jams that forced commuters to wait up to six hours to pass the two open bridges had been reduced and waits Wednesday were down to two hours.

Some 1,500 persons forced to seek safety as the Agua Fria and New rivers swelled under the load of 8 inches of rain returned to their homes

Wednesday. Schools closed in Flagstaff when 9 inches of new wet snow fell.

In Utah, where flooding caused more than $1 million damage in northeastern Cache County, waters around the overflowing Enterprise reservoirs began to recede. However, more rain was expected.

HOTLINE

752-1336

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used.

MAIL ORDER ACTION LINE

Because Hotline cannot possibly respond to all the requests it receives for help, we are printing information about a service to which we refer our readers sometimes:

Mail Order Action Line (MOAL) of the Direct Mail/Marketing Association is a help resource provided free of charge to the consumer with a mail order complaint.

The consumer writes to MOAL, carefully describing the nature of his complaint, including dates of transactions if available, and copies (not originals) of any cancelled checks or other pertinent materials such as sales slips, order forms, or credit card invoices. MOAL then contacts the company to discover the cause of the problem.

As soon as the company responds, the consumer receives notification from the Direct Mail/Marketing Association (DMMA) as to the outcome of MOAL's investigation. According to the Federal Trade Commission rules, a mail order company has 30 days from the receipt of an order to fill it. If the complaint is non-receipt of merchandise, the consumer is advised to allow 30 days to pass, after which MOAL will take action.

Because MOAL is a program of the DMMA, which is the oldest and largest trade association representing 3,455 direct marketers, including mail order companies, a complaint action is given prompt attention. MOAL handles complaints brought against both DMMA member and non-member companies. Of the 1,000 complaints handled by MOAL every month, 85 percent are against non-member companies.

If MOAL is unable to handle a complaint, such as in the instance of a criminally fraudulent offer, the consumer is referred to the group or agency authorized to take legal action.

The address is Mail Order Action Line, c/o Direct Mail Marketing Association, 6 E. 43rd St., New York, N. Y. 10017.

Tax Breaks Shaping Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new tax break of up to $400 a year for savers is a step closer to reality today, and across-the-board tax cuts for individuals and corporations could be just around the corner.

Despite opposition from the Carter administration, a Senate-House conference committee working on a "windfall" tax on the oil industry agreed Wednesday:

—On a two-year trial, starting in 1981, for a provision that would exempt from income taxes up to $201 of interest or dividends earned each year from savings accounts, stocks, savings bonds and other investments. A couple filing a joint return could avoid taxes on $400 of such earnings.

—That 60 percent of the revenues from the "windfall" tax should be set aside for income-tax cuts. The tax is estimated to produce $22.3 billion in the 1980s; that would mean $136 billion for tax cuts.

The timing and shape of any tax cut would have to be decided in subsequent legislation. But the agreement opens the door for a tax reduction of around $16 billion as early as Oct. 1.

That same agreement would earmark an additional 25 percent for helping lower-income Americans pay their energy bills. The other $34 billion would finance improvements in the nation's transportation system and encourage home and business energy conservation and development of non-oil fuels.

The conferees' agreement would accommodate major parts of Carter's 10-year energy program. But their insistence on earmarking the lion's share of the money for tax reductions likely will mean other energy projects may have to be financed out of income taxes, rather than from the new "windfall" tax.

With the support of the Carter administration, the conferees voted to extend through 1992 the current four-cent-a-gallon tax exemption allowed gasoline. That and other parts of a gasohol-incentive package would cost the treasury about $2 billion in lost taxes in the 1980s.

Still to be considered by the conferees are several Senate-passed tax credit designed to help businesses make better use of energy. An effort on the House floor to force House conferees to accept the Senate's $25.6 billion package of energy credits for individuals and businesses failed Wednesday on a 207-195 vote.

The conferees had agreed earlier to delete most of the Senate-approved credits for home energy conservation. The effort on the House floor, led by Rep. Norman D'Amours, D-N.H., grew in part from the conferees' rejection of a credit of up to $300 for the purchase of wood-burning stoves.

Urge OPEC

LONDON (AP) — The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries is being urged to adopt a system of regular semiannual oil price increases tied to the industrialized world's inflation and economic growth rates and to fluctuations in the value of the dollar.

Venezuelan Energy Minister Humberto Calderon Berti unveiled the plan in an interview Wednesday in London.

He said it was geared to ending the oil pricing free-for-all of the past year, in which average OPEC prices doubled to around $30 a barrel as consuming nations' battled for oil in a market sharply trimmed by the loss of Iranian supplies because of that nation's revolution.

The 13-nation cartel's price structure fell apart in early December when the OPEC oil ministers failed to agree on a single base oil price at their last price-fixing session in Caracas, Venezuela. Eleven OPEC nations have posted price hikes since Jan. 28.

Calderon said the pricing proposal was drafted by OPEC technicians and would be presented to the cartel's long-term strategy committee, which opens a two-day meeting today in London. The planning group includes representatives from Saudi Arabia, the world's largest oil exporter, as well as Iran, Iraq, Algeria, Kuwait and Venezuela.

Hunt Denies Winberry Role In Rewriting N.C. Car Insurance Rates

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt today denied that former legislative lobbyist Charles Winberry worked for passage of a 1977 measure that rewrote state law regulating automobile insurance rates.

Hunt said Winberry devoted his time during that legislative session to working for passage of Hunt's package of bills.

"I'm absolutely convinced Mr. Winberry did what I told him to. That was, get our legislative package through," Hunt said.

"I had nothing to do with that bill. I was trying to get through the legislature the things I campaigned on."

Hunt's opponent in the May 6 Democratic primary for governor, former Gov. Bob Scott, charged recently that Winberry worked for passage of the legislation and that Winberry's law firm did work for five insurance companies.

Insurance Commissioner John Ingram vigorously opposed the legislation, which reduced his powers to block rate hikes on auto liability insurance.

Hunt, at his regular weekly news conference, also said he would try to arrange a visit to the U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee meeting next week in Washington to support Winberry's troubled nomination to a federal judgeship.

Hunt praised Winberry for his "very high personal integrity" and said that, despite a long delay in Winberry's confirmation, he believed a majority of the Senate committee would support confirmation.

Hunt said he had spoken with five or six senators on the Judiciary panel to support Winberry's nomination but has not spoken to the chairman, Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.

On other topics, Hunt said he found nothing wrong with the state Commerce Department's active support for placing an oil refinery in Brunswick County while his Department of Natural Resources and Community Development maintains a position of neutrality while it investigates the environmental impact.

Hunt said his position on the refinery is that, "if the refinery meets the standards, the environmental standards that have been established, we are for the refinery."

Hunt said he may support reducing taxes as an incentive for the use of gasohol, and said he opposes an N.C. Consumer Council proposal to raise the tax on cigarettes in order to eliminate the sales tax on food.

The governor also responded to questions about recent reports that Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green and House Speaker Carl Stewart made long distance telephone calls of a political nature on state telephones.

Hunt said such calls should have been placed on a campaign credit card, and that he has a campaign telephone in the governor's mansion for making his own political calls.

Record 1979 Earnings For First State Bank

First State Bank, the county's only locally owned bank, measured its 1979 success with "record earnings," it was reported by C. D. Langston, president, at the 74th annual stockholders meeting last night.

Langston informed shareholders of the state's second oldest state chartered bank that "growth in earnings established a new record for the 73 years since the bank began operations as the Bank of Winterville."

He reported "Per share earnings, reflecting a favorable rate spread situation which existed for most of the year, amounted to $6.73. The previous record earnings of $3.51 per share was set in 1978. This 90 percent increase was most significant for your bank," the president told the shareholders.

Total resources as of Dec. 31, he noted, amounted to $33,218,116, an increase of $1,172,747 over the previous year end total of $32,045,369.

"The outlook for continued growth in assets in 1980 is favorable," Langston related. "However, bank earnings will be adversely affected by the continued narrowing of the rate spread and the trend toward growth in interest bearing time deposits."

Langston said that, "Significant contributions have been made to the community in interest paid to depositors, in salaries and employee benefits, and in other expenditures made within the community during 1979 totaling $2,419,483."

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

In the beginning was a bridge club. Two tables of women would gather on the first Thursday of every month to play bridge.

Around ten o'clock, Phyllis, the hostess, would set out a few nuts, make a pot of coffee, and plan to meet next month at Marge's house.

Marge loved bridge, but she wasn't into "nuts." They lodged behind her fake tooth and were high in cholesterol. When it was her turn to hostess, she made a small un-iced spice cake which she served from the pan with coffee. They made plans to meet at Phoebe's house.

The spice cake had kept Phoebe awake all night. Besides, as long as you were going to bake something it might as well look festive. While eating the strawberry shortcake, piled high with fresh strawberries and a glob of whipped cream on it, they made plans to meet next month at Bobbie's house.

Bobbie had a dessert recipe she was dying to dazzle a party with. It would make Phoebe's strawberry shortcake look like a stalk of celery. It was a six-layered torte with homemade butterscotch between the layers and slivered almonds on top, and for those watching their weight, she added a light crabmeat salad with

It went on this way for nearly a year. By the time Phyllis was hostess again, she had to get a sub. She just had too much to do to play bridge. There was the silver to polish, the caterer to check on, the fresh flowers to pick up and the table to put leaves in and set. Following the appetizers and the full-course meal, there was the baked Alaska that required split-second timing, followed by pizza to take the sweet taste out of everyone's mouth.

Phyllis broke out a deck of cards and said, "Anyone for bridge?"

Two said, "I'm stuffed." Four said, "I'll take it home and eat it tomorrow." Juanita passed her plate.

Carefully Explain Contact Lenses To Children

By Abigail Van Buren

1980 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 19-year-old girl who wears contact lenses. I recently spent the weekend at a girlfriend's house, and her little sister was fascinated as she watched me put in my contact lenses. She had never seen anything like that before, so I very carefully explained that contact lenses were "little eyeglasses" made especially for me, and she should never put anything into her eye that was not made especially for that purpose!

I made sure she understood me because I once heard of a child who had often watched her mother put in her contact lenses. The child found a small piece of broken glass and, wanting to imitate her mother, stuck the broken glass into her eye and subsequently lost the sight in that eye.

I hope you find this worth passing on, Abby.

LAURIE

DEAR LAURIE: I do. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ABBY: My husband (I'll call him Leo) was having an affair with his secretary, and I found out about it. He broke it off, and we are now getting counseling. Leo says he wants to make our marriage work, and I believe him.

I was and still am devastated by this affair, and want to do everything I can to restore our once-wonderful marriage since we have a beautiful family.

I told Leo that I cannot feel comfortable as long as that woman is his secretary. He tried to get rid of her, but she threatened to sue the company if her job is changed in any way. (Can she do this?)

Abby, I simply cannot tolerate this woman in my husband's office! Is there any way he can get rid of her without causing a nasty law suit? She was working elsewhere in the company when the affair began, and she asked Leo to hire her as his secretary.

Please advise.

NO CITY AND NAMELESS

DEAR NAMELESS: There is nothing to prevent a person from suing. Win or lose, the suit alone in this case could initiate some embarrassing publicity. Consult a lawyer, and let him guide you.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is crazy about my feet! He gets turned on just playing with my toes.

I do have pretty feet, but I never thought my feet would be sexually stimulating. My husband is a kind, gentle and loving man, but this thing he has about my feet puzzles me. I wonder how many other men are turned on by women's feet? Is it normal?

PRETTY FEET

DEAR PRETTY FEET: It's normal for a person with a foot fetish, and your husband has one. According to Freud, the foot is a primitive sex symbol.

There are more foot freaks around than you suspect. Ask any podiatrist.

Hemisphere Pageant Set For March 16

The New East North Carolina regional preliminary to the state Miss Hemisphere pageant will be held March 16 at the Holiday Inn here.

Girls between the ages of three and 27 and boys three to seven years old will be competing. Each contestant selected will receive a participation trophy and a runway lesson prior to the pageant. Winners will be named in all six divisions. Judging is based on poise, personality and good looks. Talent is not required.

The divisions are Pee Wee, girls three-six, Little Miss, girls seven to 10, Pre-Teen, girls 11-13, Teen, girls 14-17, Miss, girls 18-27, and Master, boys three to seven.

The North Carolina State Hemisphere pageant will be held in June in Benson. A portion of the receipts of the pageant will be donated to United Cerebral Palsy of North Carolina.

Elizabeth Stevens of Goldsboro is state director and Jimi Sawyer of Kinston is regional director.

State Dental Assistants To Meet

Kabul Merchants Close In Protest

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH
Associated Press Writer
KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — Nearly all shops and stores in Afghanistan's capital city closed today in the most spectacular protest so far against Soviet military occupation. Exactly two months after Russian troops first crossed the Afghan border in an attempt to put down a Moslem rebellion against Kabul's communist regime, a rebel leaflet urged shopkeepers to show their "unanimous condemnation" of the intervention by paralyzing the commercial life of this city of 1 million. All but a handful of shopkeepers obeyed the call despite frantic efforts by the Soviet-sponsored regime of President Babrak Karmal to force them to stay open. Thursday, the eve of the Moslem Sabbath, is normally the capital's busiest shopping day. In street after street of downtown Kabul, most shop fronts were boarded up or closed by iron shutters.

Despite a steady drizzle, thousands of civilians stood in the streets to observe the success of the protest with evident glee.

"We have won a great victory today," one shopkeeper told a group of Western reporters. "We have shown the Russians what the Afghan people think of them."

State Bank.....

"As we move into the 1980s your management pledges to continue to develop the facilities and services of your bank. Our objective will be to enhance the growth of all segments of our economic community while adhering to sound banking practices."

He reported, "We have obtained and are now installing on line teller terminals. Automatic teller machines, which will be available to serve customers at all hours, are on order and scheduled to be in operation by this summer. The construction of a new bank building in Winterville is also planned for the near future," he said.

First State's original office is in Winterville and three other offices are located in Greenville, on Memorial Drive and Trade Street, Memorial Drive and Farmville Boulevard, and on the downtown mall.

In other business, the bank's stockholders voted to amend the bank's charter to permit First State to exercise trust powers and to act in a fiduciary capacity, pending licensing by the North Carolina Commissioner of Banks and receiving permission of the regulatory authorities.

Elected to the board of directors for 1980 were: Langston, Vernon E. White, W. A. Weathington Sr., John Milton May, John F. Minges, Kenneth K. Dews, William C. Glidewell Jr., W. M. Scales Jr., Syd W. Dunn Jr., Clinton R. Prewett, and Jerry W. Powell.

Officers of the bank elected for 1980 were: Langston, president and chairman of the board; White, vice president; Powell, executive vice president; Glidewell, senior vice president; Pam Kachmer, vice president; Tommy Langston, cashier; Marie Mills, assistant cashier; and Jerry L. Jones, assistant cashier.

The Kremlin rejected the Common Market's proposal to get Soviet troops out of Afghanistan, suggesting it was inspired by the White House. Meanwhile, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance failed to get West German support for a boycott of the Moscow Olympics and headed into talks with the French today.

"The illogicality of such a proposal is obvious," the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia said Wednesday, adding that the Common Market idea was "borrowed from across the (Atlantic) ocean" in the United States.

The proposal, agreed upon Tuesday by the nine members of the Common Market meeting in Rome, was for an international guarantee of Afghanistan's neutrality in exchange for removal of Russian troops from the Central Asian nation.

Vance said during his own visit to Rome on Wednesday he was "in general agreement" with the idea, even as he was trying to get a tougher response from America's European allies to the Afghan crisis.

The secretary met earlier Wednesday with West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt in Bonn. Vance called the talks "extremely useful," but he later acknowledged the West German government was not backing President Carter's call for a boycott of the Summer Olympics in Moscow.

Carter had specified that if by Feb. 20 the Soviets had not pulled the tens of thousands of troops it sent into Afghanistan in December, the U.S. government would boycott the Moscow Games. His hope was that America's allies would follow suit.

But Schmidt said after his meeting with Vance, "We have for a long time said that it is up to the Soviet leadership to create the circumstances that would make possible participation by all. We want to give a few people in the world another chance..."

Vance then flew to Rome for talks with Italian Foreign Minister Attilio Ruffini, and on to Paris for an important fence-mending visit after marked and public Franco-American differences over responses to the Soviet Union.

He was to spend four hours with French Foreign Minister Jean Francois-Poncet, before flying to London to end his tour of major European capitals, aimed at coordinating the Western response to the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

The Russians intervened in Afghanistan in hopes of crushing a 22-month-old Moslem rebellion against the pro-Soviet Afghan regime. But some Western diplomats in the Afghan capital of Kabul believe the Soviets won't be able to put down the insurrection without getting more reinforcements.

Western intelligence reports estimate the Soviet army has suffered at least 3,000 casualties, including between 600 and 800 men killed, since the first of its forces intervened nearly two months ago. The Afghan army is believed to have been cut in half, to 50,000 men, through desertion and guerrilla action.

So far, however, only a handful of national Olympic committees have agreed to stay away from the Moscow Games in protest, and sources close to the International Olympic Committee say most of the 140 national committees are expected to compete.

Starting In Scandinavia

It took thousands of years for skiing to develop from a basic means of transportation into a popular Olympic sport. Skiing began in Scandinavia, where during the Stone Age the earliest skiers moved across the snow on sticks made of bone or wood. The Scandinavians eventually discovered that skiing could be useful in warfare, but skiing did not begin to develop as a sport until the 19th century. At first, Olympic skiing featured only cross-country and jumping events. Downhill races were introduced at the 1936 Olympics. 1936 also marked the first year in which women were allowed to compete in Olympic skiing events.

Pilot Program Response Good

FARMVILLE — Farmville town officials report that early response by the public to the town's pilot program of roll-out garbage collection is extremely favorable.

Residents of the Clairmont area indicated in a survey that 97 percent would like to see the 80-gallon mobile cart collection continued. The carts are furnished by the town and are placed at the curb on collection days by the residents. Trial use is now going on in the Langdale area.

Town Administrator Patrick Thomas said residents said things like — "Among the best ideas the town has ever had"; "The best things since Cadillacs"; and "Please bring back cart ASAP!" Many commented on the usefulness of the cart in yard work.

Both Thomas and Public Works Director Bill Oakley expressed appreciation to the Clairmont residents for their excellent cooperation during the trial run.

A consultants' report has projected that the town may realize more than $700,000 in operational costs in the first 10 years. Town Commissioners Charles Joyner and John T. Walston, members of the board's Public Works Committee, have visited several other communities with roll-out systems and have reported favorable comments, also, from officials and residents in those towns.

Twins Leave The Hospital

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Law Enforcement Assistance Administration says it will begin disbursing grants totaling more than $1 million to coal-producing states to investigate crime in the coalfields.

The LEAA said Wednesday the money will go to six states to finance a 90-member strike force drawn from about 15 state and local police forces, prosecutors' offices and securities commissions.

States involved, all of which had requested LEAA grants, are Alabama, Georgia, Indiana, Kentucky, New York, Pennsylvania and Virginia.

LEAA spokesman Homer F. Broome Jr. said the funds totaling $1,003,822 would be used to fight "organized, white-collar crime" in the Appalachian coalfields.

The multistate strike force, he said, will be capable of penetrating a variety of coalfield schemes that threaten "a vital segment of the nation's and the Appalachian region's economy."

The schemes, Broome said, "are so complex and inter-jurisdictional that they far outstrip the regulatory and investigative resources of any single state."

Rocket-Like Object Eyed

PERTH, Australia (AP) — Authorities are planning an air and land search next month for the rocket-like object that slammed into a remote corner of southwestern Australia near the town of Salmon Gums about two weeks ago.

Phil Arlidge, Western Australia's coordinator of emergency services, said he has gathered reports from about 15 persons who said they saw the object and nearly a dozen others who said they heard it explode on impact.

From the data that has been obtained we believe it was a "stray rocket," Arlidge said, adding, "We would really like to know what it was for sure. Things like that should not be floating around our skies." Arlidge said 30 men would take part in the search of the dense, desert bush country around Salmon Gums, some 340 miles southeast of Perth.

Added Lure For Theft

Soaring prices for gold and silver and other precious metals are creating a financial bonanza for many people.

Ancient class rings, gold jewelry which is no longer worn and grandma's silverware are coming out of their hiding places and taken off to dealers where some extra dollars may be obtained to help out with the inflation-curbed family budget.

It is one way average people can cash in on the great world-wide manipulations which are sending prices for the precious metals to heights never seen before.

That is all well and good, but it is also a time for all of us to beware.

There are many families who don't want to part with their heirlooms, silverware and gold rings regardless of the price. Yet, with ready money available for such items, they represent opportunity for thieves, professional and amateur, to make some extra money.

It is essential that dealers in such merchandise do all they can to make certain that stolen items are not shifted off on them. Law enforcement agencies should redouble their efforts to see that gold, silver and other items are not "leached" in the area.

As always, the most effective means of forestalling the thefts of such items lies with the owners themselves.

Silverware, jewelry and other items left in full view around the house are an invitation to theft. The deed could be done by professional house breakers entering the home when the family is away, or by a juvenile hoping to obtain money for a new bike.

It is a good time to check our homes and make certain that valuable items are securely put away.

Reporting Is 'Varnished'

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — "Highly varnished reporting" from the U.S. Embassy in Moscow is the way one presidential adviser privately describes routine cables from Ambassador Thomas Watson and his top aide, Deputy Chief of Mission Mark Garrison.

With U.S.-Soviet relations in the deep freeze and getting colder, diplomatic reporting by the Watson-Garrison team to Secretary of State Cyrus Vance is cluttered with warnings about the Kremlin feeling itself "surrounded" by a hostile West and "penned in" by President Carter's reaction to the outrageous military takeover of Afghanistan.

It is not surprising for the Soviet foreign office to sell that line to neophyte diplomat Watson, whose knowledge of the Soviets is limited to the personal experience of selling computers made by IBM — the huge corporation Tom Watson used to run. Soviet leaders are notorious for playing the role of bleeding hearts. But Garrison's acceptance of that Soviet line surprises officials here. He is a Class One career foreign service officer presumably experienced enough to tell the difference between a coat of varnish applied by Kremlin propagandists and the truth with the bark on.

Bush's South Rises
More important than the bare statistics of George Bush's good showing in a poll of 1,200 top-ranking Mississippi Republicans last week was this unreported fact: Bush did nothing to "pack" the Jackson fundraising dinner where the poll was taken while Ronald Reagan and John B. Connally "bought, begged or stole" tickets to seat their own supporters.

One week before the dinner, which featured an address by Gerald Ford, Reagan's operatives came up with 80 unexpected tickets — which were at once distributed to Republicans who said they backed Reagan. Connally's men were also doing what they could, but Bush had no Mississippi organization to draw on.

The final tally, with Reagan getting 37 percent, Bush 29 percent and Connally 26 percent, showed so much Bush strength that one senior party leader who is not for him told us Bush had captured the votes of "many" in the straw poll who originally agreed to attend the dinner as Reagan and Connally backers.

Soviet Wrath
Soviet diplomats here are hotly passing the word that President Carter infuriated Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev not just by his strong response to the Afghanistan invasion but because he publicly described details of the "hot line" conversation he had with Brezhnev at the height of the invasion.

"How can you do business with a country that goes public with a private exchange between heads of state," one ranking Soviet diplomat asked here. Carter said that Brezhnev had "lied" to him in denying the clear and visible fact of the Soviet invasion.

Carter's "lying" charge and his use of the "hot line" exchange to support it has helped create the angriest anti-Washington feeling in Moscow since the 1962 Cuban missile crisis. But that is tepid compared to anti-Kremlin anger inside Jimmy Carter, who blames Moscow for destroying three years of Carter efforts on detente, strategic arms limitations (SALT II), East-West trade, reduced defense budgets and other products of detente, as well as raising the spectre of war.

Big John Is Missing
The campaign missing from the final week's rush before the Feb. 26 New Hampshire primary is John B. Connally's.

Every other candidate (including Rep. Philip Crane, the Republican long shot, and Lyndon Larouche, the Democratic nuisance candidate) has television commercials in abundance. Connally has none. Nor does he have a working organization in the state. Connally himself has not set foot there for weeks. As a result, he will be lucky to exceed 4 percent in the primary.

This disaster stems from two Connally miscalculations. First, his managers had neglected New Hampshire on grounds they would get to it once his national poll ratings climbed (which never happened). Second, by refusing federal campaign financing, he deprived himself of the freshest of dollars which permit Crane and Larouche to go on television.

Swallow Bitter Medicine

The nation is swallowing increasingly bitter medicine in the war on inflation.

Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul A. Volcker said the money supply growth will be halted even if it requires "horrendous" interest rates.

Any borrower will be quick to say the rates are already "horrendous." Only time will tell whether that is the proper medicine to stop inflation.

Bond Vote Delay

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Despite enthusiasm by the State Board of Education and the urging of a study commission of the General Assembly, a statewide election on a $600 million school bond issue this year is unlikely.

Top political leadership in state government, including Gov. Jim Hunt, remain publicly shy about the bond proposal, saying only that the matter is in the hands of the legislative leadership at this time, and judgment on the issue will come later.

Privately, however, it is another story. It is probable that the bond question will quietly be put to sleep for awhile in another committee of the General Assembly.

There are several reasons for the hesitancy to move in 1980. The overriding objection comes from key officials who face opposition in both primary elections in May and the general election next November.

Races
These races include both the governor's office and that of lieutenant governor, several key seats in the General Assembly, and a couple of hotly contested Council of State posts. In addition, there is the Presidential battle. The November ballot will be cluttered enough as it is, and it is a fact of political life in North Carolina that when major races are underway more voters participate, and the more voters who participate the less chance such "iffy" matters as bonds have of passage.

The trend of late has been to put bond elections on special dates separate from any other issues, banking on the evidence that people strongly committed to the proposal will make a special effort to vote, while unorganized opposition will largely ignore the question.

Another aspect of this situation is that candidates simply don't want the bond question getting involved in their races. In short, most would just as soon not have to take a firm public stand one way or the other on this biggest-ever bond question.

Further, it is widely recognized that successful public response to the school bond issue will rest on vigorous endorsement and promotion by the political hierarchy of the state. That hierarchy is wrapped up in their own races at this time with little inclination to put a lot of time, money, or effort into bond promotion.

The next ingredient in the rationale for delay of the vote is the reluctance of a number of public officials both at the state and local levels to accept without question the laundry list of school construction needs which has been put together by State Schools Supt. Craig Phillips and the local school leaders. There is some skepticism of both the $600 million total and of some of the local wish-list items.

Rejection

Finally, given these stumbling blocks, there is the fear that voters will reject the bond proposal. A negative vote will be a major setback for some years, so top state leaders who favor the bond issue — even while harboring doubts about the amount or some aspects of the needs list — want the question to have the strongest chance possible to win approval. November, 1980, is not the time for that action, they insist.

Homestretch In Mecca

INTERVALE, N.H. — For a newsmen, coming to New Hampshire in the years of our quadrennial lunacy is a kind of ritual. Muslims go to Mecca. Catholics go to Rome, political writers tread the frozen steps of Manchester, Concord and Keene. Otherwise credentials do not issue.

This newsmen drove up from Boston the other night, eager to visit old friends in the village of Intervale, about six miles west of the Maine border, halfway up the state. Little flurries of snow swam in the headlights like silver guppies in a fish bowl. Memories swam with them.

New Hampshire, back in 1910, became one of the first states to hold primaries for state offices. In 1916 it held its first presidential primary, but it wasn't until 1952 that New Hampshire began to attain its absurd importance in the nomination of candidates for the White House. That was the year that Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, he of the coon-skin cap, polled 19,800 votes to Harry Truman's 16,000. The humiliation clinched Truman's tentative decision not to run for re-election, but as events turned out, the victory wasn't any great help to Kefauver.

That was an historic primary in 1952. On the Republican side, Bob Taft made a desperate effort to head off Dwight Eisenhower, but the harder Taft worked, the worse he ran. Taft never understood the techniques of one-on-one campaigning. He was cold as a morning in Coos County, stiff-necked, unbending. Ike beat him by 46,600 to 35,800.

The campaign of 1968 was another giant killer. Lyndon Johnson's name wasn't on the ballot, but even so, as president he was the heavy favorite. A Roper poll just before election day predicted a landslide 62 percent for LBJ. But Eugene McCarthy, capitalizing superbly on anti-war sentiment, wound up with 42 percent against Johnson's 49.8 percent. A few weeks later Johnson dropped out, and Bobby Kennedy jumped in.

History repeated itself, more or less, four years later. Edmund Muskie of neighboring Maine was the overwhelming favorite, George McGovern wasn't supposed to come even close. But Muskie took things too much for granted, and McGovern worked the state like a hungry salesman. The voters gave Muskie 41,000, McGovern 33,000, and Lonesome George was on his way. Later he would sweep Massachusetts and the District of Columbia against Nixon in November.

Four years ago it was Jimmy Carter who made the big news. He brought bus loads of beautiful women up from Atlanta and Savannah, girls of 18, motherly types in their 60s — and they took New Hampshire like Sherman took Georgia. On the Republican side, Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan fought almost to a draw; Ford won by a margin of 1.4 percent.

If politics were a rational pastime, no particular importance would attach to New Hampshire. We live in an era of ethnic politics. New Hampshire's population of 871,000 includes only 2,000 blacks and maybe 2,500 of Spanish descent. The state ranks 42nd among the 50. About 44 percent of its people are classified as rural, but the actual farm population is insignificant and gets less significant all the time.

Residents of the Granite State, on the average, are a little better educated than residents of 38 other states. In 1975, only 13,000 of the 220,000 families had incomes below the poverty level, only Connecticut, Wisconsin, Iowa and Alaska had lower percentages of poor. To the dismay of old-timers up here, the state keeps growing, it has gained an estimated 78,000 inhabitants since 1970, and the dismal projection is for a million by 1990. The immigrants come down from Canada and up from Massachusetts seeking low taxes, towns by Norman Rockwell and the New England mix of cordiality coupled with reserve.

What else do I know about New Hampshire? Its flower is the purple lilac, its bird is the purple finch and its motto is Live Free or Die. Back in June of 1788 New Hampshire became the ninth state to ratify the Constitution, thus creating the new and more permanent union. Horace Greeley came from Amherst, Daniel Webster

Other Editors Say Single-Shot Vote

(The Sanford Herald)

In golf, a player awaiting his turn to putt on the green often will watch how his opponents handle their putts on the same surface, checking out which way the terrain dips and which way a putt is likely to "break" as it decreases in speed. In the parlance of the game, that is known as "going to school on" an opponent.

Sponsors and would-be sponsors of bond referendums these days have learned to "go to school," if not necessarily on the opposition, at least on others who are playing the same game over different courses.

Thus it is not surprising that Chatham County commissioners tentatively have set a $2 million water bond issue for several months hence and have chosen August, rather than a few months later when a general election comes up. It has been learned from neighboring Lee County and other places throughout the state that certain special issues, including especially those that call for additional expenditures of public monies, have a better chance of survival when they stand alone than when they are bunched in with a mixed bag of other issues and contests.

The logic behind such reasoning is indisputable. Those who are on fire about a particular issue, whether they be for it or against it, will take the trouble to turn out in a single-issue referendum. The casual voters, faced with something they can get no more than mildly worked up about one way or the other will tend to stay home.

When special referendums are held in conjunction with a full slate of other questions and races, the "casual" voter will be at the polls anyway so he figures he might as well vote. A few years ago, that might have meant an automatic yes. In these parlous economic times, it is more likely to mean if spending money is involved, an automatic no.

Chatham Commissioners, seeking to get approval of the issue, undoubtedly were wise in choosing August as a referendum date. It is a case of, to inject one more metaphor from a sport other than golf, preferring to play the opposition man-for-man rather than trying to "zone" a vast body of undecideds.

In such cases, those few who are most interested are those who decide the fate of an issue; the rest of the electorate tends to default. Whether that is the best way to decide a question is left up to the individual's conscience.

Strength For Today

IMPOSSIBLE — BUT IT HAS HAPPENED

The word "gospel" means good news, and the most important aspect of the gospel of Jesus Christ is that God has forgiven our sins. Of course, some of us may feel, upon hearing this statement, the way a deadbeat might feel upon hearing that he had been forgiven a debt that he had no intention of paying. Many people are not seriously concerned about their sins. They measure themselves by their neighbors and conclude that, on the whole, they are not too bad.

The oppressive weight of sin bothers them but little, but it has bothered God a great deal, if we may use such a word in connection with the Deity. God was so concerned over human sin that He made the ultimate sacrifice — the giving of His own son that sins might be forgiven through the immensity of that love and sacrifice.

The gospel, therefore, is the best news the human race has ever heard proclaimed. Sinners are forgiven. Impossible — but it has actually happened. Elisha Douglass

Could Recession Be Worse?

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — With prices, interest rates, unemployment and taxes rising, and real incomes, savings rates, housing starts and confidence falling, could recession be worse?

In fact, will anyone even recognize that we missed a recession — if we do? Or spot it if it comes?

The questions are provoked by a peculiar situation that has recently developed. It is this: Good news is often bad news, and official economic expansion quite often means personal recession.

While people rejoice in having averted the onset of official recession, their economic lives have deteriorated steadily. Economists and laymen ask what greater damage could a recession do.

The answer lies in the future, but the damage resulting from the so-called economic expansion cannot be denied.

Incomes are rising but buying power is shrinking. Statistics say families are well off, but families feel deprived.

The odd situation is not difficult to understand, but it may be more difficult to explain. The plausible explanation is this:

People are making lots of money but inflation and higher taxes, partly for Social Security, are taking it away. They have material comforts, but they have to borrow and cut into savings to get them.

Rather than going into a shell of depression, families are maintaining economic activity, perhaps because they feel that is the way out of the trap. Money is circulating. Economic activity is fairly strong. And official economic measures reflect this activity.

Many economists warn that families are losing the ability to maintain buying activity. They have tried mightily; they have strained their resources, and still they cannot make much headway.

As they run out of financial and psychic energy, the consumer economy could take a tumble, and there is little evidence that other areas of the economy can step in to fill the gap.

The result, say pessimists, is that things could get even worse, with unemployment rising more sharply while prices remain high — kept there by forces such as oil that do not quickly react to supply and demand — and interest rates rising before falling gradually.

Questions beg to be answered:

Is it logical therefore to talk about the recent expansion as if it were the opposite of recession? Because the statistics say the economy is expanding — and therefore not in recession — should we applaud?

For individuals, the best measure of whether times are good or bad is not the official pronouncement that we do or do not have a recession, but the immediate condition of the pocketbook and the savings account.

And their condition, and that of the credit account as well, are generally in pretty poor shape. Worse, perhaps, than in many an official recession.

Why has a public forum been avoided? Perhaps a gathering of signatures through a petition would unlock the answer!

A report just issued by the Treasurer's Office illustrates both the insistence for a statewide bond issue for school construction, and the feeling among some that voters are going to need a lot of convincing.

Local bond issues in 1979 went down to defeat in record numbers, a sharp reversal of the trend in recent years. Many school bond questions were among those. Of 24 county elections, only 11 won approval in 1979 compared to 15 of 19 in 1978. In municipal elections, voters turned down 40 percent compared to 1978 when 41 of 45 were endorsed.

Afghanistan. With CIA Director Stansfield Turner putting most of his intelligence eggs in the satellite and electronic baskets, at the cost of human intelligence ("humanintel"), the CIA missed what was up last fall.

Soviet troop movements near the Afghan border, the CIA believed, presaged Soviet "counter-insurgency exercises" on behalf of the Kabul government against Moslem dissidents. The government was headed by President Amin, considered by the CIA a stooge of Moscow.

In fact, Amin and his Soviet "protectors" hated each other. Amin may actually have been killed before Soviet tanks rolled in force into Afghanistan. The theory that Moscow went to Kabul to protect Amin looks ridiculous in retrospect one more cost of the pervasive political witch-hunt against the CIA that boiled over in the mid- and late-1970s.

President Carter's campaign in New Hampshire makes no effort to disguise its use of federal bureaucratic machinery, with his campaign storefronts offering jobs as federal census takers.

Little Discord In GOP 'Debate'

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) - In a debate with little discord, George Bush, Ronald Reagan and five rivals for the Republican presidential nomination joined in criticism of President Carter's foreign and defense policies, and in a call for federal thrift to combat inflation.

The one real debater in the seven-way forum Wednesday night was Rep. John B. Anderson of Illinois, who said he kept hearing old platitudes instead of new ideas from the other candidates.

Indeed, there was more argument offstage than on, and the subject was not campaign issues but the question of which candidates will take part in another debate Saturday night. Bush and Reagan, rated the leaders in public opinion polls in advance of New Hampshire's presidential primary election next Tuesday, are due to meet one-on-one in that debate, sponsored by the Nashua Telegraph. Their rivals say it isn't fair for the former California governor and the former United Nations ambassador to have the stage to themselves, three days before the election. Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas and

Sen. Howard H. Baker of Tennessee both have lodged protests with the Federal Election Commission over the issue. Former Texas Gov. John B. Connally said the exclusion of other candidates from the Bush-Reagan meeting was arbitrary, unwise and "out of bounds." "Look," said Bush, "on that debate I was challenged by the Reagan forces. I don't see what's wrong with me doing a one-on-one." And later, in Birmingham, Ala., Reagan said he was invited by the Telegraph, adding, "They can invite anyone they want. They can invite Jimmy Carter. I'd be delighted." Bush said the Republican Party was the real winner in Wednesday night's debate. Rep. Philip M. Crane of Illinois agreed: "The Democratic Party lost because they chickened out in presenting their case to the American voter." But Bush acknowledged that the debate didn't "break any particularly new ground." Nor did it do much to spell out differences between the candidates, save those Anderson voiced.

Defending his proposal for a 50-cent gasoline tax to cut consumption and provide funds to ease Social Security taxes, the Illinois congressman said, "We've got a real problem on our hands. We need some new ideas, and all I keep hearing are the old platitudes." The forum, sponsored by the League of Women Voters, lined up the candidates on the stage of a Manchester high school auditorium. It was broadcast on radio, televised on a delayed basis. The 80-minute debate was, in large measure, a replay of the one that matched six Republican candidates Jan. 5 in Des Moines, Iowa. The major difference was in the roster, since Reagan missed the first debate on grounds it would be divisive. He changed his mind after losing the Jan. 21 Iowa GOP caucus to Bush.

Republicans Consider Expelling Congressman

By JAY PERKINS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - Republicans are deciding whether to expel Rep. Richard Kelly from the House Republican Conference in response to his acknowledged acceptance of $25,000 from FBI agents posing as Arab sheiks. Kelly says he accepted the money only as part of his own investigation into what he thought were shady characters. The conference also was voting in private today on whether to deny Kelly any further funds for a re-election campaign.

Kelly, the only Republican implicated in the FBI's bribery investigation, already has received $4,000 from the House Republican Congressional Committee and is eligible for an additional $6,000.

Expulsion from the conference, which sets policy for House Republicans, would not affect Kelly's committee assignments, his right to vote in the House or his right to campaign for re-election in his Florida district as a Republican.

The decision to vote on whether to punish Kelly was made Wednesday night by House Republican leaders.

Neither Kelly nor the seven other members of Congress mentioned in the FBI's bribery inquiry has been formally charged with any wrongdoing.

Federal grand juries are looking at the evidence and Justice Department officials say a decision on whether to charge any of the eight could come in about three months.

Nearly all the congressmen have publicly denied wrongdoing, most saying they were properly trying to get Arab investments to help their districts.

In addition to Kelly, those named in connection with the investigation are Sen. Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J., and Reps. John M. Murphy, D-N.Y.; Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J.; John W. Jenrette, D-S.C.; John P. Murtha, D-Pa.; Raymond F. Lederer, D-Pa.; and Michael O. Myers, D-Pa.

In a related development Wednesday, the House Judiciary Committee voted 27-0 against a resolution asking the full House to demand that the FBI turn over evidence accumulated during its bribery inquiry.

The Justice Department has publicly opposed turning over any of its evidence.

In another development, the House ethics committee's new special counsel, Barrett Prettyman Jr., reported he is negotiating with the Justice Department for cooperation with that committee's investigation of the bribery allegations.

Admit Steven Ford May Be A Father

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Steve Ford, son of the former president, may have fathered a child out of wedlock, a spokesman for Gerald Ford says.

Asked about reports of Steve Ford's involvement in an Orange County Superior Court suit to establish paternity of a child whose mother was identified as Joy Malken, Ford spokesman Bob Barrett said Wednesday: "President and Mrs. Ford are aware of it."

Barrett, contacted by telephone at Ford's office in Rancho Mirage, Calif., declined to elaborate on details of the suit but read this statement by the former president:

"It is very possible that our son Steve Ford is the father of Lawrence, born Dec. 16, 1979. If fatherhood is determined by tests and proper authorities, Steve is fully and willingly prepared to assume his parental responsibilities.

"Betty and I as grandparents would of course be happy to have him as one of our family."

Steve Ford was unavailable for comment.

Ms. Malken's attorney, Pamela Ashman of Beverly Hills, declined comment.

Court records in Orange County paternity cases are sealed.

Ford, 23, studied agriculture at Utah State University and at California Polytechnic University in Pomona. In 1978 he signed a one-year contract with the Los Angeles Rough Riders, a now-defunct rodeo team.

Ford has recently been pursuing an acting career. In July he was in Durango, Mexico, filming "Cattle Annie and Little Britches" with Burt Lancaster.

Resale Store For Needy Has Opened

The Clothes Line, a resale store for clothing and household items, was opened yesterday in the basement of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church.

Hours will be from 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. each Wednesday and Thursday. Cost of items in the store will range from five cents to $5. Money taken in will go to the Relief Fund of the church, to be used to help people in need referred to the church by Social Services, REAL Crisis Center, and other agencies.

"The store is an answer to needs," said Laura Segrave, a church member active in the effort, "the need of individuals and families for clothing at extremely reasonable prices and the need of our church members to be of service to their fellow men."

She stressed that persons who are not Jarvis members, but would like to donate, are welcome to do so. For information, one may call the church office.

Charge Drivers

FRANKLINTON, N.C. (AP) - Two Franklin County school bus drivers have been charged in connection with the collision of their buses Monday.

Twenty-three pupils were injured.

Officers said Anthony Eaton, 20, of Route 1, Louisbury, and Grover Vines Jr., 18, of Route 1, Youngsville, were charged with assault with a deadly weapon, careless and reckless driving and failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident.

Vines also was charged with violating the center line.

Eaton and Vines were freed under $1,000 bonds.

Skate For Heart Fund Saturday

For $1 admission kids of all ages can "skate for heart" Saturday from 10 a. m. to 12:30 p. m. at Sportsworld here.

The skating center is donating all its door receipts for the morning session Saturday to the Pitt County Heart Fund. The Heart Association urges the community to patronize the center on this occasion and enjoy the reduced entrance fee, which includes skate rental.

Doctors Feel Tito's Chances Of Survival Appear Not Good

By STEPHEN H. MILLER Associated Press Writer BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) - Medical sources say President Josip Broz Tito may stand a chance of recovery if he can survive the next two weeks of hospitalization, but that his chances appear slim and there seems to be no prospect he could recover enough to resume all of his official duties.

But if Tito were suffering only from kidney failure, they said, there was a chance he could survive with the aid of a dialysis machine to periodically take over the kidneys' function of cleaning body wastes from his blood.

Such a device could be used even by an 87-year-old patient three to five times a week without major problems, it was said.

The dialysis machine, by removing wastes from the blood, can alleviate or eliminate side effects of kidney failure which include coma and psychological disturbances, the sources said.

extent of the conversation is unknown. Yugoslavs have not seen a photograph of their near-legendary leader since late January, when he was shown in his hospital room with sons Misha and Zarko, robustly recovering from his amputation.

The 87-year-old Yugoslav leaders' medical panel said today Tito's condition was still grave and that "measures of intensive treatment are being continued." This was widely thought to be veiled word that Tito was using an artificial kidney machine.

Study Group Is Being Formed

Tito, leader of Yugoslavia for more than three decades, had been recovering from the amputation of his left leg Jan. 20 when heart and kidney problems developed unexpectedly earlier this month.

A regional Vernon Howard study group is being formed. It will meet at 7:30 p.m. on Monday evenings. The purpose of the group is to study esoteric ideas with the aim of self-transformation, leading to authentic self-command and lasting happiness. Inquiries are welcome. Full details may be obtained by writing to Sherry Strother, 800 Riverhill Drive, Greenville or by calling 758-6598.

He was reliably reported to have spoken with other visitors this past Sunday, although the Medical sources claiming access only to the little information made public about Tito's problems said successful progress through the next two weeks might indicate Tito was not suffering from a combination of kidney and heart failure.

The group will use the books and tapes of author Vernon Howard. Among his best selling books are "The Mystic Path to Cosmic Power," "Inspire yourself," and "There is a Way Out."

HEALTH BD. TO MEET Ed N. Warren, Chairman of the Pitt County Board of Health, has announced there will be a board meeting tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the conference room of the Health Department.

Prison Inmate Is Fatally Stabbed

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - An inmate at Central Prison died of multiple stab wounds Wednesday, a state prison official said.

The victim was identified as Freddie Earl Earnhardt, 33, of Valdese.

Details of the stabbing incident were not released by Stuart Shadboldt, spokesman for the state Correction Department. He said the stabbing occurred about 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, and Earnhardt died at the prison hospital.

He said the State Bureau of Investigation had been asked to assist in the case.

Earnhardt was serving sentences totalling 75 years for murder, armed robbery, kidnapping and two escape attempts. Shadboldt said.

Divided Court Eases State Help To Church Schools

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A deeply divided Supreme Court, citing the need to sacrifice "clarity and predictability for flexibility," has given states more authority to help parochial schools.

By a 5-4 vote Wednesday, the court upheld a New York law that provides up to $10 million a year in direct cash aid to priate schools — most of them church-affiliated. The money is reimbursement for teacher time spent in giving and grading state-required tests.

In 1977, the high court allowed Ohio to provide state money to parochial schools if students, rather than the schools themselves, were the beneficiaries.

But until Wednesday, the court had never approved direct payment to non-public schools without neutral organizations serving as buffers to ensure the constitutionally required separation of church and state.

"None of our (previous) cases requires us to invalidate these reimbursements simply because they involve payments in cash," Justice Byron R.

White wrote for the court Wednesday.

Since 1973, a series of Supreme Court rulings on aid to parochial schools has provided a confusing patch-quilt — some forms of aid are allowed, others are not.

"Our decisions have tended to avoid categorical imperatives and absolutist approaches," White said. "This court sacrifices clarity and predictability for flexibility."

White's opinion was joined by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Potter Stewart, Lewis F. Powell Jr. and William H. Rehnquist.

In a dissenting opinion for himself and Justices William J. Brennan Jr. and Thurgood Marshall, Justice Harry A. Blackmun objected to "direct aid for ostensibly secular purposes." He said any such aid has the primary, impermissible effect of advancing religious-affiliated schools.

In a separate dissent, Justice John Paul Stevens said the court's ruling could encourage bolder state attempts to help parochial schools.

In other decisions Wednesday the justices:

—Ruled 8-1 that charities cannot be barred from door-to-door fundraising just because they do not use a specified percentage of the monies raised for charitable purposes. The court struck down such a village ordinance in Schaumburg, Ill., as an impermissible infringement on free-speech rights.

—Ruled 6-3 that an employment policy used by the California brewing industry — one that requires a worker to be employed 45 weeks of one calendar year before obtaining permanent status in a seniority system — may be immune from civil rights lawsuits even if it hurts black workers' chances for advancement.

Sea Turtle Sanctuary Is Opposed

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP) — A proposal to protect endangered sea turtles is encountering opposition from commercial fishermen, who say the trawling restrictions could hurt shrimping.

A state scientist has recommended that a sea turtle sanctuary be established within a mile of Onslow County beaches during the summer.

The scientist, Dr. Frank Schwartz, said Wednesday the sanctuary would protect the loggerhead turtle, an endangered species that is often accidentally caught in trawler nets and drowned.

He said studies indicate that at least 75 percent of the turtle nesting that takes place in North Carolina occurs during the summer in the proposed area, which includes Onslow Beach, Bear Island and Brown Island.

About half the area is already closed to trawling because it is part of Camp Lejeune and is controlled by the Marine Corps.

Fishermen could still work the remaining area during the spring and fall, Schwartz said, and they could travel farther into the ocean during the summer.

However, commercial fishermen expressed concern that the sanctuary would take away good shrimping areas.

Tim Millis, a seafood dealer in Sneads Ferry, said he opposed the sanctuary because he felt the shrimp were worth more than the turtles.

"I don't think it's going to help the turtles that much, and it's going to hurt the shrimping," he said.

Schwartz is a scientist at the University of North Carolina's Institute of Marine Sciences at Morehead City. The state Marine Fisheries Commission will consider the recommendation at a meeting Tuesday at the New Hanover County Courthouse in Wilmington.

A spokesman for the state Division of Marine Fisheries said agency officials haven't made a recommendation but are concerned about the possible effects on commercial fishing.

The loggerhead is the most common of the five sea turtles found along North Carolina's coast. Schwartz said at least 41 turtles were believed to have drowned last year. Turtles die when they are kept underwater too long by trawler nets.

Prayer Meeting Slated Tonight

A prayer meeting will be held at Eldress Shirley Atkinson's house tonight at 7:30 p.m. There will be a speaker.

Sunday morning at 11 o'clock the Holy Mission Prayer Band will have a service with Eldress Atkinson as the speaker. Eldress Atkinson will also be preaching at Morning Star Holiness Church in Ayden Sunday at 3 p.m. The public is invited.

Initial Fee Is Not Included

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Blue Cross-Blue Shield of Virginia will not cover the estimated $4,000 medical fee for women who participate in the nation's first test-tube baby program at Norfolk.

The insurance carrier said on Wednesday it would honor claims for "all normal services after conception," but not pre-conception "experimental" services.

Seven couples thus far have been accepted for the program at Norfolk General Hospital. The laboratory will use the in vitro process, which involves fertilizing a human egg in a laboratory and then surgically implanting the fertilized egg in the womb.

Famed ESP Researcher Dies

HILLSBOROUGH, N.C. (AP) — Dr. Joseph Banks Rhine, who coined the term extrasensory perception and endured years of skepticism in the scientific world because of his research on parapsychology, died Wednesday.

He was 84. He died in his sleep at his Hillsborough home.

As a result of his work, an associate said, "the way we look at man in the future will be different. He laid his hand on something that was hidden from us for a long time."

Rhine and his wife, Louisa, came to Duke University in 1927 to begin research in parapsychology. In 1965, he established the Institute for Parapsychology, which became famous around the world. The institute is independent of the university.

"The work that everyone around the world is doing is only expanding on the map that he had drawn for us," said Dr. K. Ramakrishna Rao, director of the institute, on Wednesday.

Rao likened Rhine's work to that of Freud and Einstein in revolutionizing man's perception of himself. Rhine was "the first person to be able to naturalize a supernatural phenomenon," Rao said.

mediately attacked by the American Psychological Association, which accused him of faulty research and inconclusive evidence.

"We lived with the criticism," recalled Dorothy H. Pope, an associate of Rhine's for 41 years and editor of the Journal of Parapsychology.

"Dr. Rhine was not impervious to it, but he wasn't bothered by it. He'd say, 'We haven't got time for this stuff. We've got research to do,'" Ms. Pope said.

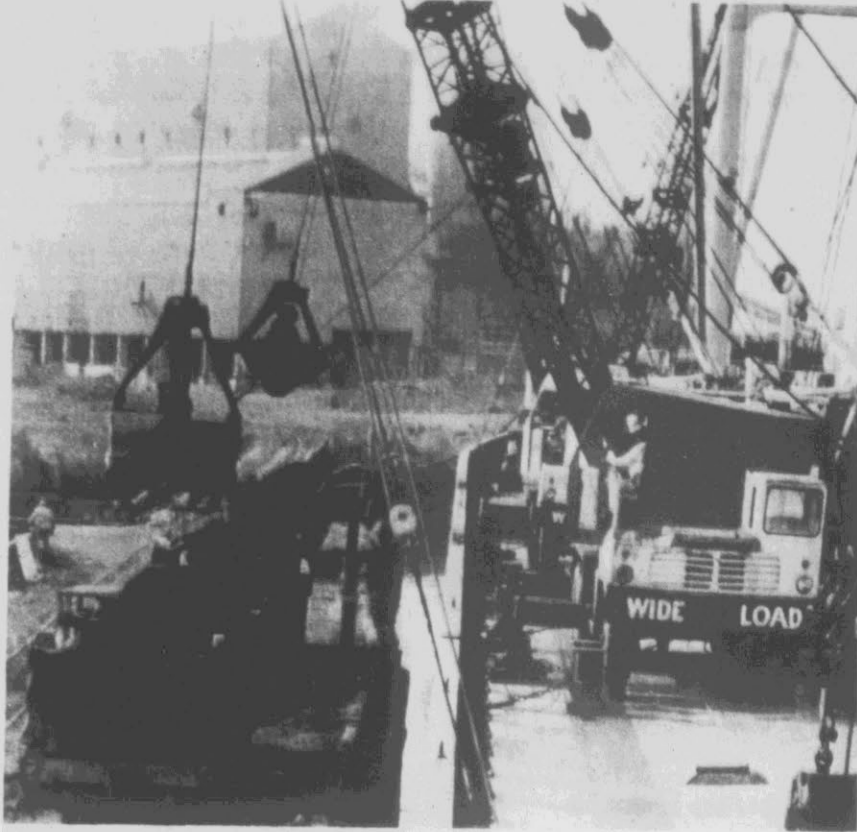

In later years, scientists began to accept more of Rhine's work.

Rhine retired from the institute about 10 years ago but continued his work. The institute studies subjects such as clairvoyance, telepathy, psychokinesis and precognition.

Rhine was a native of Juniata County, Pa. He was educated at Ohio Northern University, the College of Wooster and the University of Chicago.

A memorial service will be held March 22 at the Duke University Chapel.

In addition to Mrs. Rhine, he is survived by a son, three daughters, two brothers, nine grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Lives Saved By Tito Partisans

CONOVER, N.C. (AP) — Conover City Manager J. Ed Robinette has thought of Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito and his nationalist communist partisans as friends since 1944, when his B-24 bomber crash-landed in Yugoslavia.

In July 1944 during World War II, Robinette was the flight officer on a bomber making a strike at Braslau, Germany, about 100 miles south of Berlin, from a base in Foggia, Italy.

Two of the plane's four engines were knocked out by ground fire during the mission.

Since the big bomber couldn't gain sufficient altitude to clear the Alps for its return to Italy, its course was rerouted over Hungary and Yugoslavia in an effort to return to base.

But the plane didn't make it. Out of fuel, it crash-landed in mainland Yugoslavia near the island of Vis, a Titoist stronghold by the Adriatic Sea.

Robinette said German forces still controlled Yugoslavia. "Fortunately, we were picked up by partisans who managed to keep us relatively safe," he said.

"We would be hiding in buildings and at night German special troops would come out of the darkness and throw grenades through doors and windows wherever they thought partisans would be. We had some close calls."

The plane's crew was finally taken to Vis, where they remained under cover for a while.

"We slipped across the Adriatic at night in a fishing boat," he said. "It was touch-and-go, but all of us made it back to Italy."

Robinette eventually flew 57 bombing missions, won two presidential citations and the Distinguished Flying Cross.

But he said he didn't forget the Titoist partisans. "We didn't look on them as communists," he said. "They were allies — our friends. They saved our lives because we would have been fair game for the Germans had it not been for them."

The aged Tito now is near death, Robinette said he would like for the United States to help Yugoslavia if it is threatened by the Soviet Union after Tito dies.

"Yugoslavia could turn into a battleground," he said. "And I feel maybe we owe them something. They saved a lot of American lives in World War II, including mine."

Uncover Illegal Sales In Teenage 'Beerscam'

By BRYNA BRENNAN Associated Press Writer
CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Abscam and Brilab, the FBI's investigations of official corruption, haven't touched West Virginia. But Beerscam — a "half-pint sting" by teenagers — is growing.

Seven underage students on a high school newspaper purchased beer Saturday at 15 stores in the Charleston area and reported that not one turned them away. And earlier, a 16-year-old made purchases at 26 of 30 stores, including five state-operated liquor stores.

Shocked at how easy it was to buy beer, the students are taking their evidence, including pictures by an undercover photographer, to the police and state officials.

In the wake of the so-called Beerscam disclosures, the state senate president says the drinking age should be raised from 18 to 20.

In the first sting, Huntington police chief Otis Adkins used a 16-year-old to see how easy it would be for someone underage to purchase beer or liquor. The operation resulted in misdemeanor warrants against 26 persons, he said.

In the second sting, the high school reporters fanned out to test 15 stores' adherence to the law.

"From conversations I had with some other students, I expected it would be fairly easy to buy beer," said Alan Browning, editor of the X-Ray newspaper at South Charleston High School.

But he didn't know how easy: "I was shocked when all 15 would do it."

Browning, a 17-year-old senior who thought up the scam, now wants some action. "If some student gets hurt as a result of getting beer, the responsibility to a large extent rests with the storekeeper," he said.

Browning said Freeda Bailey, deputy commissioner of the Beer Commission, is meeting with him Friday to review the findings of the investigative reporting team.

The owners of stores that sold beer to the teens could lose their licenses, Ms. Bailey said Wednesday.

"If I can get the names of the stores and I can get concrete proof, then they will be called in for a hearing," she said.

Charge Fraud In Loan Project

CHERRYVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Two men who built an apartment complex using Farmers Home Loan Administration money have been indicted on seven counts of defrauding the government.

Richard H. Wright III and Miller M. Cooper, both of Durham, have been charged with conspiracy in an alleged attempt to defraud the federal government of $300,000 by using false bills and by other means. The men were indicted recently by a federal grand jury in Charlotte.

The Durham builders used a Farmers Home loan project known as the 515 program to build the 48 units, which rent to lower-income persons.

The case is scheduled to be heard in U.S. District Court in Charlotte the week of April 7.

Thailand Prince 'Just A Soldier'

FORT BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — He may be a prince, but in this man's Army, Thai Crown Prince Vajiralongkorn is just a soldier.

The 28-year-old aviator and paratrooper, who holds the rank of major in his army, is at Fort Bragg for two months of training in the Army's AH-1SP Cobra helicopter. He will also be brushing up on other skills, including marksmanship and demolitions.

At a news conference Wednesday, although he replied politely to questions concerning the Thai government, he seemed most at ease when discussing military subjects.

He described his job in his country as that of an "army officer" and said he was at Fort Bragg to improve his military skills "for my career."

The prince does live a little differently than most soldiers, even officers. He has taken up residence at the plush Pinehurst resort hotel until his training ends April 15.

He has been joined in Pinehurst by his mother, Queen Sirikit; his wife, Princess Soamsawali Kitiyakara; and his daughter, one-year-old Princess Bajara Kitiyakha.

The prince was enthusiastic Wednesday about answering questions on changes that his government is striving to make for its people.

"A lot of our budget and a lot of our time," he said, "is going to community development, to improve the lives of rural people."

Record Garbage By Mardi Gras

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Mardi Gras revelers left a record amount of garbage — more than 3,000 tons — and that means the celebration was a great success, Mayor Ernest Morial says.

From the first Carnival parade Feb. 9 through 6 a.m. Wednesday, cleanup crews swept up more than 2,189 tons of trash.

The mayor estimated the total would reach 3,500 tons. The previous record was 2,106 tons, set in 1977.

'60 Minutes' Producer Ponders Values

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Comic Steve Martin — tongue poked firmly in cheek — suggests that CBS-TV's "60 Minutes" got to be this season's prime-time hit by buying off the television ratings people.

Martin's innuendo, in a recent skit spoofing the journalistic technique of veteran "60 Minutes" correspondent Mike Wallace, does raise an intriguing question.

Why, in its 13th season, is "60 Minutes" — winner of 17 Emmys — the most-watched show on American television?

"I really don't know for sure, and I've thought about it a lot," Don Hewitt, the program's executive producer from its start on Sept. 24, 1968, said in an interview.

"I do think that what's happened is our audience finds Wallace, Rather, Safer and Reasoner being themselves more fascinating than Redford and Hoffman playing Woodward and Bernstein."

Hewitt was quick to give credit to Wallace, Dan Rather, Morley Safer and Harry Reasoner, pointing to their offices adjacent to his and referring to his "Pittsburgh Steelers" bench.

But a good deal of the credit for the extraordinary success of "60 Minutes" belongs to Hewitt himself.

The selection of segments for broadcast each week is, ultimately, Hewitt's. A blackboard across the hall from his office lists the stories each correspondent is working on.

"What three stories do I want for a week? That and that and that. No, that's two features, those two are too much alike. That's the idea," Hewitt explained.

"What we've done has never been done before," he continued. "In television, there's a fine line separating journalism from show business, and we've been able to walk up to that line and not cross it.

"Most shows of this type fall short of the line and are too dull, or cross it and lose their integrity."

There are other reasons for the show's success, of course, like its protected Sunday night time slot, a haven reserved for public affairs and children's programming, as well as a terrific lead-in from professional football during the fall.

The most recent edition of "60 Minutes," broadcast the evening of Feb. 18, was No. 11 in the week's ratings race, its lowest finish in some time. The show had stiff competition from the Winter Olympics on ABC, but still finished first in its time period.

A 30-second commercial on "60 Minutes" sells today for $150,000, top dollar charged for any prime-time news or entertainment program. By comparison, ABC is currently charging $130,000 for an average 60-second commercial during its Olympics coverage.

Competing networks have, in the last few years, sought to milk some of the CBS success — ABC with "20-20" and NBC with the unsuccessful "Weekend" and then "Prime Time Saturday."

Only "20-20" has shown signs of life. But then "60 Minutes" also struggled near the bottom of the ratings in its early days.

In its first season, the show was broadcast alternate Tuesdays at 10 p.m., pulling an average rating of 13. That means that of all TV-equipped homes in the country, 13 percent tuned to the show. When the show was moved to Sundays at 6 p.m. in 1971, the average rating dipped to 12.7.

It was only in late 1975, after "60 Minutes" was given the first hour of prime-time on Sunday, from 7 to 8 p.m., that it became one of CBS' most valuable properties.

In that first year of prime-time, the rating climbed to 17.7. Last year, it was 25.5, a full quarter of the potential audience.

Through the first of February this year, "60 Minutes" was attracting an estimated 22.1 million viewers each week, with an average rating of 29. The runner-up, ABC's "Three's Company," had an audience of 20.7 million.

"The fact is, '60 Minutes' has become a part of American living in the '70s and '80s, like Life magazine was in the '50s and '60s," said Hewitt.

Hewitt took on the "60 Minutes" project after 20 years as a producer-director-executive producer for CBS News.

Wallace and Reasoner were charter members of "60 Minutes," although Reasoner left for ABC News in 1970, to return to CBS eight years later. Safer came aboard in 1970, and Rather, a former CBS White House correspondent, joined up in 1975. Last week, CBS named Rather to succeed Walter Cronkite as "Evening News" anchorman.

Hewitt, meanwhile, said he plans to continue his "60 Minutes" style, the approach that has taken the newsmagazine to the top of the heap.

"I think one of the biggest mistakes my detractors make is using the derogatory phrase 'talking heads.' I happen to believe a good head with something to say is about as good as you can get in television journalism," he said.

"We had George Kennan (former U.S. ambassador to the Soviet Union) the other day with nothing else and got 41 percent of the audience.

"I'm not interested in making pictures," he said. "I am interested in using the camera and mike as a vehicle for Wallace or Rather or Safer or Reasoner to tell a story.

"When (then-Energy Secretary) Jim Schlesinger went to China a while back," Hewitt said, "they asked if we wanted to send a camera crew, no correspondent. I told them that would be like asking (New York Times columnist) Scotty Reston to send his typewriter."

ECU News Bureau
Donna Lyn Roman, a senior music major at East Carolina University, has been awarded a Fulbright-Hays Fellowship to study in Denmark during the 1980-81 school year.

Notification of Miss Roman's award was received by Dr. John B. Ebbs, Professor of English and Campus Representative for National/International Fellowships and Scholarships.

Within the Fulbright-Hays Program, a small number of fellowships which favor graduating seniors are funded by the International Telephone and Telegraph Company. It is an ITT Fellowship that has been awarded to Ms. Roman.

Ms. Roman, an outstanding student of music with majors in music therapy, piano performance, and piano pedagogy, will spend the year studying at Aalborg University in Denmark in the area of music therapy.

Strep Throat, Flu In Schools

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — Several elementary and junior high schools have noted a considerable increase in absences this week, with pediatricians saying they are treating a number of children with strep throat and influenza.

One pediatrician said his office confirmed 21 cases of strep throat Saturday and 30 cases Monday.

Arrangements have been made for her to work with Dr. Claus Bang, an internationally known authority and pioneer in the use of music therapy with children with speech and hearing disabilities.

Ebbs said the award is "further evidence of a state of excellence in the training of students at East Carolina University, providing increased opportunities for post-baccalaureate research and study."

Ms. Roman is the daughter of Donald A. Roman of Utica, N. Y. She attended Mohawk Valley Community College before coming to ECU. Last October Ms. Roman was alternate winner in the piano division of the N. C. Music Teachers Association's Collegiate Competition.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, leveling off after Wednesday's sharp rally. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slipped 2.30 to 884.56 in the first half hour. But gainers took a 4-3 lead over losers in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. Wednesday's upswing was touched off by Mobil Canada's report that it had found "certain zones of interest" in two wells being drilled off the coast of Newfoundland. But analysts said the market also had to contend with the prospect of some unpleasant news Friday when the government makes its monthly report on the consumer price index. The figures on producer prices are already in for January, showing a rise at an annual rate of 19.2 percent. Today's early prices included American Telephone & Telegraph, unchanged at 49 1/2; IU International, up 1/4 at 13 1/2; and Great Western Financial, off 1/4 at 17 1/4.

Citizen Participation Recruiting Is Planned

The Task Force Citizens Participation Committee, appointed recently by Mayor Don McGlohon, met this week to discuss ways of recruiting local citizens who are interested in serving on various boards and commissions appointed by the City Council.

Max R. Joyner, chairman, announced that the 18-member committee has developed a resume form needed in recruitment. He said that all interested citizens who would like to be considered for appointment by the Council should complete the resume form which may be obtained from Lois Worthington, city clerk, or any member of the committee.

The resumes received will be kept on file in the city clerk's office. Joyner said that by having the list of interested citizens, the Council will be able to know the desires of citizens who are willing to give of their time and talent and provide a service to the city.

At the regular March 13 Council meeting, consideration will be given to the appointments to the Firemen's Relief Fund Committee, Greenville Utilities Commission, and a special appointment to the Shepard Memorial Library Board. Appointments to be considered in April are memberships on the Beautification, Clean-Up, & Litter Control Committee, Environmental Advisory Commission and the Parking Authority. Serving on the committee, in addition to Joyner, are E. Andy Warren, Tyson Bilbro, Dr. Charles Coble, Dr. Donald Ensley, Jean Darden, John Shannhouse, Dr. W. S. Bost, Warren Stroud, Ellen Mayer, Ann Whitehurst, Edith Rand, Elizabeth Savage, Mildred Council, James W. Grimes, Janice Faulkner, William E. Jones and Maggie Brown.

Not Subject To N.C. Law

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A federal Labor Department official has ruled that teachers in the Fort Bragg school system aren't subject to a North Carolina law forbidding teachers from negotiating union contracts.

Randolph Mason, a department administrative law judge, ruled the 230 teachers are on the federal payroll. He made the ruling last week in Washington.

School officials had argued that the teachers were not covered under federal union law because they were not Civil Service employees.

The North Carolina Federation of Teachers and the non-union North Carolina Association of Educators both want to represent the school system's teachers in contract negotiations.

"Now it is very clear that these teachers are entitled to collective bargaining," said Virginia Ryan of the judge's ruling. Ms. Ryan is president of the NCFT, a branch of the American Federation of Teachers, the nation's largest teachers' union.

When the union began attempts to unionize the Fort Bragg teachers last year, the NCAE asked to be placed on the union ballot also — the first action of its kind for the NCAE, which has claimed it is not a union.

The teachers will hold an election to determine which group, if either, will represent them. However, the election can't be held until an unfair labor practice charge brought by the NCFT is settled.

It wasn't known when that complaint might be resolved.

Arrest Man In Fire Case

A 30-year old Greenville resident, James Ray Taft, of West Fourth Street, was arrested Wednesday morning and has been charged with arson and burning personal property.

Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson reports that Taft has been placed in jail without bond.

His arrest followed a fire in a mobile home at 203 North Buba Blvd., Colonial Trailer Park. The mobile home was occupied by three people who escaped.

The fire was reported at 2:11 a.m. Wednesday, and Station House Fire Department, No. 14, responded, arriving at the scene at 2:22 a.m.

A probable cause hearing is being held for Taft today. Investigation of the incident is being conducted by members of the Pitt County Fire Marshal's and the Pitt County Sheriff's offices.

Glenn, now a Democratic senator from Ohio, was a 40-year-old Marine lieutenant colonel when he became the first American to orbit the Earth.

He said he thinks more money should go into research. "We can't be a No. 1 nation if we give up our inquiry into the unknown. The space program epitomized that to me."

Rites Today For Jurist

WEAVERVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A funeral service was scheduled today for retired Superior Court Judge William McLean, who earned a reputation during his 24 years on the bench as a tough, but fair, jurist known as "Nighthtrain McLean."

McLean, who died Monday at the age of 80, was given the nickname because of frequent court sessions that ran into the late hours of the night.

Among his credits was a ruling in 1962 that indigent persons charged with felonies in his court had the right to court appointed attorneys paid for by the state. The U.S. Supreme Court, several months later, made the practice a law of the land.

McLean, a native of Buncombe County, served in the military police in World War I, became a teacher, then decided to go to law school. He served again in the military during World War II.

Old Dominion Springs Past Pirates

By WOODY PEELE
 Reflector Sports Editor
 NORFOLK, Va. — Trailing by one point after two and a half minutes of second half play, Old Dominion went on a tear that left East Carolina sputtering in the Monarchs' dust last night, as they roared to as much as a 23-point lead on the way to an 89-75 victory over the Pirates.

From the one point deficit, the Monarchs roared up and down the court, scoring 14 straight unanswered points to take a 13-point lead.

Then, after Michael Gibson had broken the Pirate drought, the Monarchs, now 21-4 on the year, outscored the Pirates 17-8, to put the game out of reach. During the 11 minutes of the total drive, the Monarchs outright the Pirates by a blazing and deadly 35-8 margin.

East Carolina had taken an early ten point lead in the game as the Old Dominion five couldn't find the mark early and committed a number of turnovers.

But the Monarchs struggled back to finally take a 37-36 halftime lead. At that point, ECU coach Dave Odom was not overcome with worry.

"We did exactly what we wanted to in the first half. We controlled the tempo and we had outstanding defense on one end of the court."

"But the reason they caught up was that we were slow in our transition defense. They had eight fast breaks in the first half and scored on five of them.

"A second reason," Odom added, "what that we became disoriented in our offense. Three or four times we got out of our offense and got offensive fouls that hurt us. We rebounded well early, and they rebounded well late."

Odom said that at the half, he and his staff warned the players of a quick spurt by the Monarchs. "They did it to us down in Greenville, so we warned the players about it and they did it anyway. At times in the second half, the game got totally out of control."

Odom seemed proudest of the final group on the floor, none of them starters, which hung in with the Monarchs and finally cut the score down to the final 14-point advantage. That group was composed of Raymond Tyson, Kyle Powers, Frank Hobson, Tom Szymanski and Mark McLaurin.

Szymanski, playing just 11 minutes, pulled down a game-high 10 rebounds for the Pirates.

Throughout the evening, the Pirates had trouble finding the mark. They shot just 43.8 percent for the game, including 40.0 in the second half. Old Dominion was hot in both halves, with a 55.9 percentage for the game. They also dominated the boards with a 45-38 margin.

After a 3-0 initial ODU lead, the Pirates came back to move ahead on a jumper by Kerb Krusen and a three-point play by Tony Byles. The Pirates added eight more points to that string, including six by David Underwood, for a 13-3 lead.

After a time out, Old Dominion began to play better, but for a while could do little more than swap baskets with the Pirates. But they slowly began to clip off points, finally closing to within five at 36-31.

The Pirates then went scoreless for the last two and a half minutes of the half, and ODU used this to regain the lead. Bobby Vaughan hit a jumper and Ronnie Valentine scored on a driving hook. Then, in the closing seconds, Billy Mann got a pass from the outside and put up a 10-foot jumper with one second left to give the Monarchs a 37-36 lead.

After scoring the first basket of the second half, the Monarchs saw the Pirates come back on baskets by Herb Gray and George Maynor to take a 42-41 lead with 18:24 showing.

But that was the end of the Pirate threat.

With 17:56 on the clock, Mann hit another jumper, for a 43-42 lead. With balanced scoring over the next 11 minutes, the Monarchs went on their 35-8 blitz of the Pirates, running the lead out to 76-53 with just over six minutes remaining.

Powers, who scored ten points from there on in, led the Pirates to a comeback that finally cut the lead down to the final 14-point advantage.

Valentine, who was honored as one of two seniors playing his final home game, led the Monarchs with 20 points, while Ronnie McAdoo hit 16 and Mann had 14.

East Carolina had 12 from Maynor and 11 from Powers.

"I'm proud of the players," Odom said. "This was a tough game for us. We put a lot into winning early and trying to have a winning season. We need the time off we've got (before the next game next Wednesday) to get ready for the final two."

Odom was disappointed in the loss. "We definitely didn't play well in these last road games (losing all three), but we have been a good road team most of the season."

"I do feel we can come back and win these last two however. It'll be good to get back into Minges," Odom added.

The Pirates play Campbell next Wednesday at 7:30 p.m., and then close out the season on Saturday at 2 p.m. against Wisconsin-Milwaukee. The latter game time and date have been switched from Friday at 7:30 p.m. to the new time.

What's The Call, Ref?

Old Dominion player Ronnie Valentine looks for the official for a call as the ball spins away. The action came during the first half last night in a game against East Carolina. Valentine led the Monarchs to an 89-75 victory over the Pirates. (AP Laserphoto)

Two Seek Crowns

Eight area wrestlers, including two defending state champions, will be in action Friday and Saturday in the North Carolina State High School Wrestling Tournament, being held at Winston-Salem's Parkland High School.

Gary Harris of D.H. Conley will be going for his third straight title as the senior tries for the 112-pound title this year. Harris won the Eastern Sectionals last week to move into the state finals.

Ron Butler of Rose High School will be seeking a second straight heavyweight title. Butler, who won last week in the regionals, was named the Most Valuable Wrestler in both the Northeast Sectional and the Eastern Regional for the past two seasons.

Joining those two will be six others who's placing in the regionals last week qualified them for the state meet. They include Donald Hardy of Conley at 119; David Newton of Farmville Central at 126; Roger Joyner of Farmville at 138; Mike King of Farmville at 155; Mike Long of Conley at 167; and Ronnie Locust of Farmville at heavyweight.

Bear Grass, Jamesville Advance In Class A District Tournament

PANTEGO — Bear Grass High School moved into the semifinals of the District 1, 1-A Basketball Tournament with a 62-46 victory over Columbia High School last night.

The Bears will now face Beaufort-Hyde-Martin champion Pantego in a game tonight at Plymouth for the right to move into the finals. The tournament winner will represent the district in the State 1-A Playoffs the first week in March.

Bear Grass jumped out to an early lead, building up an 11-6 margin in the first period. They extended that with a 16-10 margin in the second quarter, taking a 27-16 lead into intermission.

The Bears tacked two more to the margin during the third period, running the score to 40-27. They polished off Columbia, 22-19, in the final quarter.

Watson Rogers led Bear Grass with 21 points, while Jesse Bullock hit 15. Warton Hill led Columbia with 16.

High School's Bullets downed Manteo, 47-40, and gained a berth in the semifinals of the District 1, 1-A Basketball Tournament last night.

The Bullets will face Chowan, the Tidewater champ, in the semifinals, to be held at 8:30 p.m. Friday at Plymouth. The tournament winner moves on to the State 1-A playoffs the first week in March.

Manteo jumped off to an early lead, building up a 16-10 margin by the horn. Jamesville came back and sliced most of that away by the end of the half, when the Bullets trailed, 26-24.

Jamesville then pushed ahead during the third period,

Lefty Laughing At The Critics

By DICK BRINSTER
Associated Press Writer

The book on Lefty Driesell has always been one of a master recruiter coercing the finest basketball talent available into Maryland uniforms and then somehow managing not to win the Atlantic Coast Conference title.

For the better part of his 10 seasons at the helm of the Terps, Driesell's coaching strategy has been open to criticism from all quarters. It has been pointed out that no Driesell-coached team ever has won the ACC Tournament and that none has managed to finish on top during the regular season since 1975.

While it's true that the ACC Tournament remains to be contested, Driesell and Co., at least for the time being, can laugh at the critics. Ninth-ranked Maryland's 83-77 victory over Wake Forest Wednesday night made the Terps the regular-season champs and enhanced their chances for an NCAA playoff berth regardless of the outcome of the tournament.

"We're probably the Cinderella team in the country," said Driesell. "We were picked to finish sixth in our own league. Any time you're picked to finish sixth and finish first, you have to be elated."

The victory gave the Terps a 10-3 mark in the ACC. Coupled with North Carolina's 63-50 loss to North Carolina State, it gave Maryland the crown with one league game remaining.

In other games Wednesday night, Duke avenged an earlier overtime loss at Clemson by beating the Tigers by the identical count of 87-82 in an extra period, and Virginia took non-conference foe William & Mary, 63-55.

Forward Albert King led the Maryland attack with 32 points. He hit on 14 of 20 shots from

RED OAK — Greenville
Rose needed every second it could get Wednesday night in its Division 1 4-A semi-final battle against Northern Nash.

The Rampants season looked over with five seconds left when Wallace Brown, who ripped the Knights for 25 points, missed a hurried jumper from the top of the key.

Donald House, however, gave Rose a reprieve. Following a brief scramble for the rebound, House hit a 10-foot jump shot from the right baseline as the buzzer sounded to give the Rampants a hard-fought 56-55 win over top-seeded Northern Nash.

The win puts the Rampants, now 18-6, into Friday's championship battle (8:45 p.m. at Northern Nash) against the winner of tonight's Beddingfield-Wilson Fike match.

Northern Nash, which, along with Rose, Fike and Beddingfield, tied for the conference regular season crown, ends the year at 14-9.

"I don't have to tell you anything about the game," said a smiling Rose coach Jim Brewington. "It was just a super game. Wallace Brown just had a super night and House, all his points were big ones for us."

Indeed. Even with Brown's outside shooting touch, the Rampants were hard-pressed to win. Had Rose had to do without his heroics, and those of House, who finished with 13 points, the Rampants' season would have ended with the buzzer Wednesday evening.

But it didn't. Trailing 42-41 at the end of the third period and then again 47-44 with three minutes gone in the final period, the Rampants began their come back.

Two jumpers by Brown pulled Rose within two, 50-48. Moments later guard Calvin Whichard tied the score when he drove the right baseline, stopped and lofted a short jumper over the outstretched hands of two Knights.

After Northern Nash regained the lead, 52-50, less than a minute later, Brown hit again to tie it and then Anthony Gorham hit two free throws, his only points of the night, to put Rose ahead, 54-52, with 1:14 left.

The Knights, however, were not through. Northern Nash turned two consecutive turnovers by Rose into two free throws by Alvin Battle to tie the score once more. Battle had 13 for the Knights — eight of those in the first period — despite missing most of the second quarter and all of the third period with three fouls.

Seconds later, Battle stole a pass out front and was fouled by Calvin Whichard as he drove in for a layup. Battle missed the first free throw but hit the second, giving the Knights a 55-54 lead with 11 seconds left.

Rose worked the ball up court quickly against a mild Knight press and with five seconds left Brown pushed up a 20-footer that bounced to the right where House gathered it in and shot it through the net as the buzzer went off.

"We'll take 'em anyway we can get 'em," Brewington said of his team's second one-point win of the season over Northern Nash. Rose won all three meetings with the Knights this year. "You've got to be lucky when you win by one point, though."

It wasn't all luck, however.

The Rampants, trailing 18-15 at the end of the first period, grabbed the lead, 23-20, midway through the second quarter on two buckets by House.

Northern Nash, relying on the playmaking of Thomas Mabry, who tallied 10 points and added a number of assists on drives inside the Rose defense, tied the score a minute later, 25-25. Rose led at the half, 30-29 thanks in part to two buckets in the last minute and a half by Brown, who had 12 points in the first half, and also thanks to three fouls on Battle who went out with 6:30 left in the period and did not play again until the fourth period.

"(Battle's) a tough ballplayer," Brewington said.

"That helped us and hurt them when he went out."

Despite Battle's absence, Northern Nash took the lead in the third period, 34-32, and led at the end of the quarter, 42-41, on a bucket by Tony Bothwell, who led the Knights with 15 points.

Northern Nash increased its lead to three early in the final quarter, 47-44, before Rose's rally ended the Knight's season and extended Rose's at least one more game.

Williamston In Squeezer

HOLLYWOOD — Williamston High School rallied in the second half and gained a close 55-54 victory over Charles B. Aycock last night to move into the semifinals of the District 1, 3-A Basketball Tournament.

In the girls' game, played earlier in the evening, Washington downed C.B. Aycock's girls, 49-43, to move ahead.

Washington will now face Southwest Edgecombe on Monday at 6 p.m., while Williamston takes on Farmville Central at 7:30 p.m. Monday.

Williamston inched out into a 16-13 lead over the Falcons in the first quarter of the game. But the Tigers were limited to only four second period points as Aycock stormed back to score 16 and take a 29-20 halftime lead.

Williamston regained control in the third period, outshooting the Falcons, 15-6, to cut the lead to a tie, 35-35.

The final quarter turned into a two-man show between Aycock's Barry Uzzell, who scored 14 of his team's 19, and James Woolard of Williamston, who hit 14 of the Tigers' 20.

But it took a rebound by Edward Williams with three seconds left to win it. He pulled off a missed Tiger shot and put it back in just before the horn to give the Tigers a 55-54 win.

Woolard scored 30 points to lead Williamston while Williams had 11. Uzzell canned 28, while Alex Speight had 14 and Jeff Best had 11 for the Falcons.

Grid Clinic Is Scheduled

East Carolina football coach Ed Emory has announced the school's annual spring football clinic for coaches will be held on the campus, March 28-30.

Joining Emory and the new East Carolina coaching staff will be Galen Hall and Rex Norris of Oklahoma and Boyd Epley of Nebraska.

Hall, a former star quarterback under Rip Engle at Penn State, is the offensive coordinator for the Sooners, Orange Bowl Champions and number two in the chase for the NCAA rushing title at 351.6 yards per game, just behind ECU's 368.5 mean.

Norris is the defensive coordinator for the Sooners, annually a tough defensive outfit. Epley became the first strength and conditioning coach in the Big Eight Conference and continues his work there.

The clinic, set for Mendenhall Student Center on campus, is for football coaches at all levels and other interested parties. Advance registration will cost $15, while registration at the clinic will be $17.50.

The cost of the program includes all lectures, question and answer periods, spring practice sessions by the East Carolina team, dinners on Friday and Saturday nights as well as social hours. Registration begins at 5 p.m. Friday, March 28 at Mendenhall.

For further information about the clinic, contact Jim Gudger, Football Office, Scales Fieldhouse, East Carolina University, Greenville, N.C. 27834, or call 919-757-6330.

Martin Is Ousted

MERRY HILL — Lawrence Academy roared to a 51-24 victory over Martin Academy last night, ousting the Lady Pioneers from the conference tournament.

The lost left Martin with a 5-14 record and closed out the year for them.

Lawrence made just about all it needed in the first half, streaking out to a 24-5 lead. They added to that in the second frame to take an overwhelming 43-11 halftime lead.

The action slowed in the third period as Lawrence upped the lead to 51-13. Martin outhit Lawrence, 11-0, in the final frame, but was too far behind for an effective rally.

Jeannie Clyde led Lawrence with 25 points. Amy Perry was high for Martin with nine.

Beth Heiden Finally Wins A Medal

Rick
A copke

Had Bobby Bowden not become a football coach he says he was headed for a career in the military.

"I like the disciplined life of the military," says the former Little All-American quarterback from Samford College. "But when I was in college if I joined the service I couldn't play football, so I didn't join. I wanted to play football."

For which Florida State is forever thankful. The years known as B.B. — Before Bowden — at Florida State were full of losses. Then came Bowden.

Since his arrival on the Tallahassee campus, Bowden has won 34 and lost 12, six of which came in his first season. This past year the Seminoles were 11-0 during the regular season before losing to Oklahoma, 24-7, in the Orange Bowl.

One of the keys to his success at Florida State is recruiting, admits Borden. But there are times he's gone too far.

"I was recruiting one kid and was trying to tell him how character was important to me in a football player," Bowden recalled during a speech before the Pirate Club Saturday. "I was selling him on Florida State's ability to build character. I sold him so well he decided to go to Wake Forest and become a minister."

More seriously, however, Bowden, who is active in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, says: "We do try to build character with our football team. We want them to learn, to play winning football and we want them to behave. We don't want them to be like other students. We want them to try to set an example. You don't always get it, but you try."

Bowden, however, also realizes it takes "thoroughbreds" to win football games.

"You've got to recruit the best players you can find. Let's face it, whoever has the fastest horse in the race should win. He might not always win but most of the time he will. A mule isn't going to win the Kentucky Derby, you need a thoroughbred."

"That's not always the case, though," Bowden adds. "What's that Coach (Bear) Bryant says? He can take his'n and beat your'n and take your'n and beat his'n. But that's not normal."

Then again, neither was Bowden's quick success at Florida State. After losing six of their first eight games in Bowden's first season, the Seminoles won their last three, all in the final minute of play.

The next year Florida State was 10-2, ranked 11th in the nation by the AP and won a trip to the Tangerine Bowl, where the Seminoles whipped Texas Tech, 40-17.

And then there was this year, Bowden's most successful. But this is a new year. "That's the great lesson in athletics: What have you done for me lately? We haven't won any games this year. And we don't have a five-year contract on the Orange Bowl. We tried but they wouldn't give us one."

Among the teams Florida State will try to beat this year is East Carolina, which Bowden implied already has an edge, having hired his son, Tommy, earlier this year.

"I don't know what I'm doing here," Bowden told the Pirate Club. "I've got to beat you next year to keep my job. What do you want, my plays? You've got my son. But he's so dumb he can't remember them."

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer
LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — Young Beth Heiden finally has her Olympic medal — just in time — and the fired-up, undefeated United States hockey team is in position to claim one of its own as the 1980 Winter Games head into the home stretch.

Heiden, overshadowed until now by her superstar brother, Eric, finished third in the 3,000-meter speed skating, her final Olympic race. Wednesday and then emotionally revealed ever so briefly just how much the pressure of these Olympics have affected her.

"I got in the way of our family," said Beth, tears welling in her eyes. "That's what really got me mad."

Eric Heiden, who already has captured three golds, went after No. 4 today in the 1,500-meter race. Still ahead for him is the 10,000 Saturday. For Beth, however, the 3,000 was her last chance at a medal after finishing seventh, seventh and fifth in her earlier events. And she made it count.

Norway's Bjoerg Eva Jensen won the 3,000, timed in the Olympic record 4 minutes, 32.12 seconds. East Germany's Sabine Becker took the silver medal in 4:32.79 with Heiden getting the bronze in 4:33.77.

The exciting American hockey team, which has captured the imagination of fans here, swept into the medal round of the competition, defeating West Germany 4-2 and completing its preliminary round with four victories and a tie. A sellout crowd jammed the Olympic field house and the fans waved American flags and banners madly to salute each U.S. goal.

It was not an easy victory. The Americans roared from behind with four consecutive goals, two of them by Rob McClanahan, to erase a 2-0 deficit.

Also advancing in the hockey tournament were the Soviet Union, Sweden and Finland. Sweden eliminated Czechoslovakia 4-2, the Russians beat Canada 6-4, and Finland routed Holland 10-3. In other first round hockey, Norway tied Romania 3-3 and Poland downed Japan 5-1.

The defending champion Soviets were forced to come from behind for the second time in the hockey tournament and scored four goals in the final period, two each by Boris Mikhailov and Aleksandr Golikov, to beat Canada.

Trailing 3-1 with 13 seconds left in the second period, they rallied. Aleksei Kasatonov's goal made it 3-2 before the end of that period and then Mikhailov and Golikov scored 12 seconds apart early in the third for a 4-3 Russian lead. Dan D'Alvise tied it for Canada but then Mikhailov and Golikov scored again to give the Soviets their victory.

The United States will face Russia and Sweden when the hockey medal round begins Friday.

Besides speed skating, Wednesday's only other medal event was the men's 4 x 10 kilometer cross country relay race won by the Soviet Union. Anchored by 30-kilometer gold medalist Nikolai Zimjatov, the Russians were timed in an Olympic record 1 hour, 57 minutes, 34.46 seconds. Norway took the silver and the bronze went to defending champion Finland.

In other action, Liechtenstein's Heidi Wenzel grabbed the lead in the first heat of the women's giant slalom, timed in 1 minute, 14.33 seconds through the 50 gates of the 1,170-meter Whiteface Mountain course. Two West Germans, Irene Epple and Christa Kinshofer, were 2-3 with respective times of 1:14.75 and 1:15.19.

Wenzel, who won the silver medal in the women's downhill earlier this week, was pleased with her first outing on the giant slalom course. "I noticed some little mistakes," she said, "but in general, it was a good run."

Epple recovered quickly after nearly losing a ski at the top of the course. "Without that mistake, I could have been closer," she said. "I don't know how much it cost me, but I know that I really wanted to attack after that."

Annemarie Moser-Proell, winner of the downhill, was seventh after the first run of the GS and appeared out of the medals phase.

American Linda Fratianne was third following the compulsory portion of the women's figure skating, trailing Annet Potzch of East Germany and Dagmar Lurz of West Germany. The compulsories count for 30 percent of the competition and Fratianne will need outstanding freestyle performances in today's short program and Saturday's long program to overtake the Germans.

"She'll have to do a super job now," said Linda's coach, Frank Carroll. "She'll have to not miss anything in the short program and skate the best in the long program. If she makes any mistakes, she's out."

With four days of competition remaining, the Soviet Union and East Germany were tied in the medal count with 17 each, although the Russians lead in golds 8-6. Three countries, Austria, Finland and the United States, have six medals each. All of America's have come from speed skating and four of them belong to the Heidens. Without them, the United States would be tied for seventh instead of third in the medal standings.

Yet, for Beth, the Games have been something of a disappointment. More had been expected from the petite 20-year-old, partly because of her brother's achievements and partly because of her own accomplishments which included the world championship last year.

nine from the floor in the first 20 minutes as the Wolfpack canned 80 percent of its shots over that span and 73.5 percent on the night.

"What can I say about Hawk-eye?" Wolfpack coach Norm Sloan asked a group of writers. "I've said it all before. He's Mr. Consistency."

The victory enabled N.C. State to tie the eighth-ranked Tar Heels for second place in the ACC. They share identical 8-5 league marks and overall 19-6 records.

Mike O'Koren, John Virgil and Al Wood all scored 13 points for the Tar Heels.

Center Mike Gminski scored 29 points, pulled down 19 rebounds and became only the second athlete in the history of Duke University to have his uniform retired. Not bad for a guy who admits his slump has paralleled the recent descent of the former top-ranked team to 17th position.

"I felt pretty good breaking out of whatever slump I've been in," he said. "I felt in the flow of the offense."

Forward Gene Banks added 24 points for Duke, which improved its ACC mark to 7-6 and its overall record to 19-7. Clemson, ranked 12th, got 27 points from guard Billy Williams and from 15 center Larry Nance, but slipped to 8-6 in the conference and 18-7 overall.

Jeff Lamp tossed in 19 points and Ralph Sampson added 13 for Virginia, which improved its overall mark to 19-8.

with a 9-5 advantage, giving the Bullets a 33-31 lead. The Bullets then outthit the Indians, 14-9, to wrap it up.

Trent Ange led Jamesville with 20 points, while Keith Modlin and Gerald Keys each had ten. Modlin's points all came in the first half. He sat out the second with a foot injury sustained when he fell into the stands chasing a loose ball. His status for Friday is questionable.

Manteo was led by Troy Simmons and Sammy Midgett, each with ten points.

March 15 Deadline For Safety Award Entries

March 15 is the deadline for entries in the North Carolina Safety Council annual home and community safety awards program.

Each year the North Carolina Safety Council, through its award program, recognizes community groups and individuals who, during the preceding year, made an outstanding contribution to safety. The awards, consisting of plaques and certificates, are presented at the organization's annual meeting, to be held this year on April 25 in Raleigh.

There are contest categories for youth under 13, youth 13 and older, and adults. Any organized group may enter. Groups usually represented in the contest include civic clubs, youth and church groups, law enforcement agencies, fire departments, rescue squads and emergency medical service units.

Awards are being presented to news media and to business and industry groups for the first time this year.

Persons wishing to enter the awards program can secure entry forms from their local county extension office or by writing to Safety Awards, P.O. Box 5157, Raleigh, N.C. 27650.

The North Carolina Safety Council was created in 1960 as the North Carolina Rural Safety Council. Its mission is to promote safety education, assist in promoting a safety awareness, and to stimulate people to practice safety. A current council-sponsored project is Operation Lifesaver, aimed at reducing railroad crossing accidents.

PWP Plans Discussion

The Greenville Area Chapter of Parents Without Partners invites all single parents, whether divorced, widowed, or separated to attend a coffee can discussion Friday night at 7:30 at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church. Parents do not have to have custody of their children in order to attend.

The subject of the discussion will be relationships, and the moderator will be Jim Howard, counselor at the Tidewater Mental Health Center.

Parents Without Partners is a nonprofit organization dedicated to the betterment of life for single parents.

COUNCIL TO MEET

The Greenville City Community Schools Advisory Council will have its next meeting at Sadie Sauter School on Monday, February 25 at 7 p.m. in the school Media Center.

to be skewered by her wit or to be ignored by her."

Mrs. Longworth, who died Wednesday, would have liked the description. She acknowledged a few years ago that "I must admit a sense of mischief does get hold of me from time to time."

For many of her 96 years, "Princess Alice" titillated and sometimes shocked the nation's capital, its presidents and statesmen.

She was the daughter of President Theodore Roosevelt, cousin of President Franklin D. Roosevelt and widow of a powerful Speaker of the House of Representatives.

She knew every president since Benjamin Harrison, inaugurated in 1889, and she was eulogized by Jimmy Carter, who arrived here 88 years later.

"As the teenage daughter of a president, she burst upon the scene with the dawning of the new century and throughout her long, full life she seemed to personify the freshness and irreverence of modern times," the president said.

"She had style, she had grace and she had a sense of humor that kept generations of political newcomers to Washington wondering which was worse — to be skewered by her wit or to be ignored by her," said Carter.

Mrs. Longworth's reign was characterized by her sharp and wry observations.

"I'm probably bad about people who have noble, fine and marvelous thoughts," she once said. "That's so depressing. I never could stand the little pious family things that my sanctimonious cousins used to do."

And, perhaps her most widely quoted remark: "If you haven't got anything nice to say about anybody, come, sit next to me."

Over the years, she sat next to almost every major American political figure, starting in 1901, when President William McKinley was assassinated and her father became president. She was 17 years old. Five years later she was married to Nicholas Longworth, a Cincinnati congressman who became Speaker of the House.

Longworth died in 1936 and his widow never remarried, living in a musty, vine-covered mansion filled with frayed rugs and upholstery and even some tattered animal skins taken by her father.

She was a lifelong Republican who said what she thought about prominent members of both parties. Of New York Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, the GOP's 1948 standard-bearer, she asked, "How do you vote for a man who looks like a bride-to-be on a wedding cake?" FDR and wife Eleanor were at best "those other Roosevelts."

Commenting on Watergate and her friendship with President Richard Nixon, she recalled the Harding administration's Teapot Dome scandal: "All things pass. A lot of it is dislike on one side or the other. Intemperance of feeling, I should say. It's fascinating to watch, however. Very interesting...I've seen a good many things over 70, 80, 90 years. Oh dear, I've seen a lot."

Some controversies plainly bored her, including the issue of whether to return the Panama Canal Zone to Panama. Her father once said he "took the Panama Canal Zone." His daughter said in 1973 that "it's there and I don't give a damn...."

In 1974, when she was 90, she threw herself a birthday party, overriding her own complaints about "all this silly hubbub about my goddamn birthday." But her guests included Nixon and his family, diplomat Averell Harriman, Henry Kissinger, Joan Kennedy, the Sargent Shriver, columnist Art Buchwald and others.

She was asked at the time how she viewed life at the start of her ninth decade.

"What do you mean, 'View life?'" she asked. "Do you mean how do I look at life today? Why, the same as I did yesterday, of course."

Mrs. Longworth died at her mansion of cardiac arrest and bronchial pneumonia. At her side was her granddaughter, Joanna Sturm. Her only child, Pauline, was widowed at 26 and died at 31.

Believe Bandit Is 'Very Cool'

ASHEBORO, N.C. (AP) — Randolph county officers don't know who he is. But Detective Ron Andrews says he thinks he knows what the man is like.

"He's cool ... very cool," said Andrews of one of three men who robbed a Randolph County man in January.

"He just walks in with no mask or anything and does this. Very sure of himself," Andrews said.

On Jan. 29, three armed men forced their way into the home of Amos Newsome, a 64-year-old treasure hunter and coin collector.

Two of the men wore ski masks. The men used duct tape to bind and blindfold Newsome, his wife and a neighbor and stole a large amount of silver coins and certificate.

To try to solve the case, the Sheriff's Department has been compiling information about similar robberies on the East Coast. And they have a composite drawing of the one robber who wasn't masked.

"We no longer believe the job was pulled by a local man," Andrews said. "It may be the lead man in this came to town and hired two local men to help, but we believe he was from somewhere else."

Andrews and other detectives are trying to systematically narrow down the possibilities. One wall in the detective's room is covered with charts, graphs and scribbles. Hanging from hooks are reels of computer printouts.

"Any time one of the officers has an idea about the case, we ask him to write it on the board. Names of potential suspects, theories, thoughts about the case ... all are up there. Then other officers can look at that and things stay coordinated," Andrews said.

The sheriff's department has learned of several other cases where the same procedures were used in robberies, from as far away as Delaware and New Jersey and as close as Montgomery County. "All we are saying about them is that they are similar. We're not ruling anything out," Andrews said.

At Study Of Alcohol Fuel

Director of Energy Technology Marcus King and Director of the Veterans Farm Co-op Program at Pitt Community College Robert May attended an alcohol fuel production workshop at Colby Community College in Colby, Ka.

The conference lasted for five days and included topics such as plant layout and design, economics overview, marketing, food and energy, microbiology techniques, plant energy requirements, feedstocks and by-products, history and regulations, solution chemistry, distillation, engine conversion, process controls and yields and mixtures.

"We brought back information with emphasis on the fermentation and distillation of fuel alcohol as well as plans for the building and design of alcohol plants. Our study emphasized the production of fuel alcohol on a medium to large scale basis," explained King.

"We also had the opportunity to visit a large alcohol plant located in Colby, Ka., enabling us to observe techniques and operation of the unit," he added.

The Energy Department at PCC is now drafting plans to offer courses in alcohol production sometime this spring.

Law Firm Will Represent N.C. In VEPCO Case

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A Washington law firm has been retained by North Carolina to represent the state against Virginia Electric and Power Co. in a case before the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

The firm of Kadison, Pfalzner, Woodard, Quinn and Rossi will assist the public staff of the state Utilities Commission with the case, Gov. Jim Hunt said Wednesday.

The state has joined the case filed with the panel by Operation Overcharge, which represents Veeco customers in northeastern North Carolina.

The panel has been asked to limit wholesale utility rate charges by Veeco on the grounds that the company has been mismanaged.

The Utilities Commission, citing poor management, last year ordered a reduction in rates charged by Veeco to its North Carolina customers.

Share Work Experience

North Carolina WIN Program Again Cited

By SANDY COLTON
AP Newsfeatures
Fred Spira of Spiratone is an avid collector of photographic. While I am away on assignment I've asked him to tell you through this column how to get into this fascinating and frequently rewarding hobby. His first report follows:

COLLECTABLES: Still easy to find and relatively inexpensive are the various types of folding or box cameras.

Many would-be collectors have asked me whether it is still possible to get into collecting photographic now that prices have gone up so much. We read about a single camera selling for $30,000 or more, about photo albums selling for $20,000 or more and even single pictures selling for thousands of dollars at auctions. Should this discourage you from collecting?

The answer is a resounding "no." There are still many items available at extremely low cost and, while these are not the choice items about which we read, they are items of interest, beauty, and historical value.

Let's start with cameras: say you like wooden ones. You can still find small studio cameras from around the turn of the century selling for anywhere from $50 to $150. Some amateur models, partially covered with black leather, can be bought for from $15 to $50.

If you're not looking for wood, the selection gets much bigger. Black leather-covered bellows cameras, made from the early part of the century into the 1930s are plentiful with prices ranging from $10 up, depending on age, condition, whether or not the shutter works, relative rarity, and so on.

Then there are the "boxes," made from the late 1880s until about World War I. Some of these have ingenious falling-plate mechanisms, clever focusing systems, or unusual shutter mechanisms. These range from $25 to $100.

Starting with the early 1900s, Kodak and similar amateur folding cameras are plentiful. Some of these have patent dates as early as 1898 engraved (usually on the inside of the removable lid) yet can still be bought for under $25. Some are prettier than others. The colored Kodaks cost a little more than the plain black ones, as do those with art deco designs.

Very large studio cameras, if you have room for them, are surprisingly inexpensive because so many collectors shy away from them. You can get real beauties for under $100 and they make fabulous display pieces.

American 35mm cameras are another category of collectible cameras which are affordable. Even the earliest Argus models can be bought for under $25 and many other 35mm cameras made just shortly before or after World War II cost less than $50, even in good working condition.

There are many other categories of cameras which are interesting to collect, relatively easy to locate and which readily fall into a beginner's budget. "First" model or unusual design instant cameras (Polaroid's very first, the model 95, is a genuine collector's item and available for under $25).

Subminiature cameras (cameras using film sizes smaller than 35mm and made before the introduction of 110-format cameras) and twin-lens reflex cameras made from the 30s on can be bought for $10 to $50.

Once you start looking for old cameras, you'll find they are plentiful. Don't buy everything in sight. Try to choose one or two categories. Read up on these, build up a collection around a theme. It's not too difficult, lots of fun, and really quite affordable.

ECU News Bureau
Eighteen East Carolina University students in the East Carolina University School of Home Economics are involved in work experience this semester with businesses and industries in the Greenville area.

The students, all seniors in the ECU Department of Housing and Management, have been assigned work with department stores, decorating firms, construction companies and realtors.

The work experience enables the students to apply principles and theories learned in previous course work at ECU.

Names, hometowns and work assignments of the 18 students follow:

PITT COUNTY, Ayden — Jamie Steed, Belk Tyler, Interior Design Department; Greenville — Donna Goodson, Tommie Willis Interiors; Ann Goforth, Fixture House; and Christine Kondracki, Greenville Public Housing Authority.

North Carolina's Work Incentive Program (WIN) has won the distinction of being the most cost-effective program in the nation for the third consecutive year, according to Employment Security Commission Chairman J. B. Archer.

WIN is a federal program which assists persons receiving aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) to gain employment and is jointly administered by ESC and the state Division of Social Services.

Based on the most recent information from the U. S. Department of Labor (DOL), North Carolina's ESC spends only $469 in federal funds per WIN participant who is placed in an unsubsidized job expected to last 30 days or more, Archer said.

In comparison with the six other states with ESC costs below $700, the DOL shows Iowa spending $494 per client; Nebraska, $571; South Carolina, $580; Maine, $635; Virginia, $678; and Connecticut, $698.

Social Services Bd. Will Meet

The Pitt County Board of Social Services will meet Monday at 12 noon at the Three Steers Restaurant on Memorial Drive, for their regular meeting.

The Social Services board normally meets at the Department of Social Services.

saved by the state through the WIN program during 1979, according to Archer.

Pitt County had 114 WIN clients to enter unsubsidized jobs, and in North Carolina a total of 5,763 clients entered unsubsidized jobs expected to last 30 days or more during the past year.

Because these people were put to work, the state realized savings in medicare and food stamps and the WIN participants once again became tax payers, according to Archer.

The additional $638,965 in federal funds which was recently received will make it possible to operate the WIN program for the rest of the fiscal year without serious adjustments, he said. But limited amounts will be available for day care for the WIN participants.

CONTROL YOUR DEBTS

If your present bills, because of economic pressures, cannot be met by your income, legal relief may be available to you under the provisions of Chapter 13 of the Bankruptcy Reform Act of 1978, which permits individuals to petition the Court for an arrangement allowing a thirty-six month period to discharge indebtedness, without property repossession or creditor harassment. Attorney's fees, which may be paid in monthly installments, are determined by the Court. There is no fee for an initial conference to discuss your eligibility for a "Wage Earner Plan".

Discussed Advantages Of The Older Teacher

ECU News Bureau
"Growing older makes a teacher wiser and more efficient," says East Carolina University's painter Artist-In-Residence, Edward Reep.

Reep, who is 61, addressed ECU's annual Phi Kappa Phi Symposium on "Age and Teaching Effectiveness in the Professional Schools," assessing the impact of increasing age and experience upon a teacher's success in the classroom.

Reep said that the age of the instructor seems of small importance with respect to a solid classroom performance. Any age seems to work in favor of the teacher, as experience, judgement and ability replace youthful enthusiasm and the senior instructor learns to use energy to keep students working, enthusiastic and stimulated.

Reep warned that old notes must be updated continually and the teacher must recognize that young people are different, think differently and act quite differently from the senior teacher's generation. This difference should not be seen as threatening but should be accepted as natural.

"Communication is the most important thing," Reep said "give private instruction that works, see the student as you may have been, recognize personality conflicts and physical impairments, try to know what makes the individual student tick; these are what make teaching valid and both student and teacher deeply involved.

Reep closed by saying that the art of teaching effectiveness is inexorably bound up in the teacher's sensitivity to the needs of his students. The master teacher sees all students as precious commodities mirrored by his own student years. He brings individuals together as a group wherein one helps the other while sharing the excitement of discovery; and in the end makes certain that all students are aware of the importance of their own role as tomorrow's society.

Energy Data Is Published

ECU News Bureau
A recent solar energy report by an East Carolina University graduate student in physics has been published by the ECU Department of Physics for distribution to interested persons.

The research report, "Solar Thermal Storage in Cylindrical Earth Insulated Containers," was written by Aubrey Thompson of Graham, who received the master's degree from ECU last year. Thompson now teaches at Cape Fear Technical Institute, Wilmington.

The Thompson report is the first of a series of the department will make available to the public. Other research reports on aspects of alternative energy sources, particularly solar energy, will be forthcoming.

Anyone interested in the Thompson report may send a request by mail to the Department of Physics, ECU, Greenville, N.C. 27834, specifying report number E-1.80 and enclosing a check for $5, payable to the East Carolina University.

Phone Calls Will Be By Satellite

WASHINGTON (AP) — About one-fourth of all long-distance telephone calls may be via satellite by the year 2000, new studies forecast.

The studies, conducted for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, support new research in the growing communications field. The studies conclude that "by the early 1990s, growing demand for long-distance telecommunications services will have saturated the nation's existing domestic satellite capacity."

Army Acquiring New Vehicles

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army has taken the first step toward buying some 3,800 infantry and cavalry fighting vehicles to carry troops into battle.

The Army gave the go-ahead Tuesday for the first 100 vehicles, which will be armed with a 25-millimeter cannon and anti-tank missiles which will carry up to nine soldiers. The first vehicles are due off the assembly line in about 15 months. Eventually, the Army hopes to have 3,800 vehicles at a total cost of $6.5 billion.

At Age 6, Thalidomide Child Considered Suicide

By MALCOLM N. CARTER
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Long before most youngsters even consider the meaning of death, Terry Wiles considered taking his own life.

Terry, now 18, was born — as he once put it — a Frankenstein monster, without arms, without his left eye, without anything more than flipper-like appendages for legs. His mother abandoned him.

He is among the tragic victims of thalidomide, a tranquilizer given to pregnant women until scientists finally grasped its connection to gross birth deformities.

"I made a decision to go on," he said during a pause while shopping for horror books in a midtown bookstore here. "It didn't happen suddenly."

With his adoptive parents and sister, Terry is visiting New York, Washington and California from his home in Huntington, England, to call attention to a Public Broadcasting Service "docu-drama" titled "On Giant's Shoulders," Underwritten by Exxon, the program will be broadcast the second week of March.

Originally shown on BBC-TV, the 90-minute program, in which Terry plays himself, won a 1979 international Emmy Award and has the endorsement of the National Education Association.

The London Daily Telegraph called it "a play which will stick in the memory long after most of today's television drama has been forgotten."

Terry — now a freshman at Huntington Technical College and contemplating a career as a fiction writer — said death was an all-too-familiar denizen of the children's hospital where he spent his early years. Other grotesquely handicapped children there had constant surgery and pain, emotional as well as physical, he recalled.

So Terry considers it natural that by the time he was 6, he was contemplating suicide.

But how a boy who couldn't dress himself, couldn't wash himself, couldn't push up his eyeglasses when they slid down his nose, how such a boy would find a way to kill himself was a question Terry Wiles never had to answer.

By then, the truck driver who would adopt Terry, give him a new name and free him from the torturous artificial limbs of his childhood had entered Terry's life.

Leonard Wiles, 69, and his wife, Hazel, 49, adopted Terry in 1971.

"Without his car, he's like a little frog hopping around," said Wiles, who invented the combination fork-lift truck and carnival bumper cart in which Terry now gets himself around, and up and down.

"Frog!" Terry exclaimed good-naturedly. "Don't say that — it doesn't sound nice. It's demeaning."

Wiles, who endured sleepless, heatless nights and hungry days to save the money to develop a succession of such "supercars," went on anyway: "With it, he's a prince."

Less a prince, maybe, than a showman.

Whatever he lacks physically, Terry makes up for in personality. Astride his latest self-propelled supercar, he easily disarmed the legions who stopped to gawk and stare in New York.

A tow-headed tyke playing at elevator operator turned toward him with round eyes and asked in wonderment, "Are you alone?"

"No," Terry replied, deliberately "misunderstanding" the implication of helplessness. "My mother and father are upstairs."

Terry and the boy exchanged names, then Terry whirred away as if he were the most normal young man in the world.

A woman stopped Terry in the street. "Your television appearance was wonderful," she said of an NBC "Tomorrow Show" interview this week. "You're great — I'm glad I stayed up 'til 2. Remarkable."

Terry thanked her and wished her a nice day. Far from disdaining the attention, he said he loves it.

Of the film, the book on which it is based and all the attendant publicity, he said: "It's for other people, not me, shedding light on other handicapped people. People just don't realize that a handicapped person in a wheelchair is at a permanent height. My doing this I think will help."

If the attention bothered him, Terry said, he simply wouldn't go out. But it's obvious that his parents — who can support him now with the help of a multi-million-dollar trust fund set up by the drug companies for all the thalidomide babies — never allowed it to bother him.

Yes, he said, he likes being a celebrity. Likes the idea of starring at a luncheon of the President's Committee on Unemployment of the Handicapped. Likes being invited on a VIP tour of the White House.

But none of that can make up for his disabilities.

If only, Terry said, if only he could play soccer like the other boys his age, if only he could run like them.

"Handicapped is not an advantage, is it?" Terry Wiles asked rhetorically. "Crippled is not an advantage."

Says Commissioner's Office Is Out Of Hand

ASHEBORO, N.C. (AP) — The insurance commissioner's office "has gotten completely out of hand," and consumers may suffer if John Ingram isn't defeated as commissioner, one of Ingram's challengers said Wednesday.

Roy Rabon, a Democratic candidate and a former chief deputy commissioner under Ingram, said the state Legislature may completely dismantle the commissioner's office if Ingram is re-elected.

"The hand-writing is already on the wall for Ingram if he's re-elected," Rabon said while campaigning in Ingram's hometown Tuesday. "There is already talk in Raleigh of setting up a rating commission to replace the insurance commissioner's office.

"If he's elected again, they will totally dismantle that office and throw things wide open to the insurance companies. If Ingram gets back in, it's going to be disasterous for the people of this state. He is the issue in this campaign," he said.

Rabon, one of three former chief deputies seeking the commissioner's post, said he believed the General Assembly did not completely strip the commissioner's office of its powers because many believed Ingram would not seek another term.

Ingram's arrogance turned the Legislature against him, causing legislators to severely limit his rate-making powers during the 1977 session, Rabon maintained. Last year, the Legislature declined to reinstate his powers.

Rabon said he believed Ingram had been damaged by the departures of top-level aides from the Insurance Department.

Ask Look At Allegations

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The State Bureau of Investigation has been asked to look into allegations that House Speaker Carl J. Stewart and Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green made long-distance telephone calls at state expense for political purposes.

The Wake County district attorney, J. Randolph Riley, said, "I am treating the allegations exactly as I would any other allegations against state employees."

Andrew A. Vanore Jr., senior deputy attorney general, said Wednesday that the investigation could begin Thursday or Friday.

"We will conduct the investigation and turn over the results to Riley," Vanore said.

The investigation follows copyright reports this week by Raleigh television station WRAL that as many as 60 telephone calls were made from Stewart's office in the Legislative Building to campaign aides and supporters.

Stewart, D-Gaston, is opposing Green for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor.

Nixon Helipad Finally Sold

MIAMI (AP) — The helicopter pad where former President Richard Nixon used to land in front of his old Key Biscayne winter White House has been sold for $87,510.

Alison L. McIntosh, whose offer beat 38 others, wouldn't say what she plans to do with the 20,000 square feet of cement jutting into Biscayne Bay.

But an unsuccessful bidder, Miami marine contractor Jack Polstein, said Ms. McIntosh talked about building a house there.

Taxpayers paid $450,000 to build the pad where Nixon landed the helicopter he took from nearby Homestead Air Force Base.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

The Straight Dope About Pot

"Real World" is an excellent educational magazine that is devoted to the entertainment and enlightenment of young people of high school age. It encompasses every aspect of their scholastic, social, personal and family structure. Besides helpful advice relating to scholastic advancement, it also devotes itself to the practical aspects of job-hunting and attainment in various fields of activity.

As the medical columnist of this magazine, I receive a great many letters from young people who express their confusion and emotional turbulence about a wide range of problems. Recently, I received this one:

Dear Dr. Coleman: You seem to say it like it is. That's why I'm writing to you. You know the problems kids my age (I'm 16) are having with their parents about smoking grass. They don't understand that it's all around us and that there isn't any party we go to that grass doesn't break out. I'm willing to listen to you because you have no axe to grind. Is marijuana really dangerous? Lay it on us straight. — Ryan J.

I am going to extract from my answer to Ryan some statements that I think may be interesting to other adolescents who read these columns.

Dear Ryan: Thanks for your faith in me. You know by now that I am not "in cahoots" with parents. When I feel that parents are too rigid I openly say so. Adolescence is a turbulent time of life. In an effort to break away from the restrictions of parents and teachers, to show their newfound independence of thought many teen-agers refuse to acknowledge the validity of their parents' admonitions.

Marijuana is one of the major sources of conflict. I want to examine with you some of the hazards of marijuana and see if we can't come to a mutual conclusion.

You are wrong when you say that I don't have an axe to grind. I definitely do. I'm firmly convinced that marijuana is a dangerous drug and one that must be socially eliminated if we are to spare today's youth the penalty that they will ultimately pay for its use and abuse.

Cannabis (marijuana, hashish) may appear to be harmless. It is not. Besides the physical damage to the brain and to other organs of the body, the psychological consequences of the abuse of marijuana are similar to the toxic effects of many other dangerous drugs. It is well-known that marijuana smokers tend to antisocial acts, irresponsibility, poor concentration, reduced motivation at school and work, poor reflexes and reckless driving that have made mortality statistics out of lives that were once headed for potential accomplishment and happiness.

Social involvement with one illegal drug tempts experimentation with another. The market for marijuana too closely overlaps the market for cocaine, amphetamines, downers, alcohol, LSD, heroin and the groups of hypnotic drugs. Many young people (and adults) who are on a grass high are more easily tempted to get a higher high with something new. Soon the susceptible ones "graduate" to dangerous drug addiction.

More and more hazards of marijuana will undoubtedly be uncovered as scientific studies progress. Think how long it took us to learn the grim facts about tobacco!

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF
1980 by Chicago Tribune

Q.1 - As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠Q94 ♠K107 ♠AQ6 ♠AQ42
Partner opens the bidding with one spade. What do you respond?

A. - When you have a bid that shows both the strength and the shape of your hand exactly, use it. Jump to three no trump. That describes a hand of 16-18 points in high cards and, specifically, a 4-3-3-3 pattern.

Q.2 - Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠6 ♠AJ752 ♠109 ♠AKQJ7
The bidding has proceeded: South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?
A. - Don't be fooled into making the "cheap" heart rebid "to see what partner will do." You must complete the description of your hand. Bid four clubs. By inference, that promises at least a five-card heart suit - with five clubs and only four hearts, you would have opened one club, not one heart.

Q.3 - Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J76 ♠Q962 ♠Q8 ♠KJ93
The bidding has proceeded: West North East South
1 ♠ Dble. Pass 2 ♠
2 ♠ Pass Pass ?
What action do you take?
A. - With a better than expected hand opposite a partner who has made a vulnerable takeout double in the immediate seat, you should not permit the opponents to buy the hand at the two-level. Bid three clubs, and allow partner to take the preference to one of your suits.

Q.4 - As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠8752 ♠63 ♠AKJ6 ♠AK10
The bidding has proceeded: West North East South
1 ♠ 2 ♠ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A. - Partner cannot have much outside the heart suit, so he must have, at least, six good hearts to overall vulnerable at the two-level.

Since partner has promised six tricks with hearts as trumps and you are delivering four more, don't worry about your trump support - just bid four hearts. We would make this bid even if we had only a singleton heart.

Q.5 - As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠KJ63 ♠A982 ♠AKQ5 ♠6
Partner opens the bidding with one spade. What do you respond?

A. - Certainly you intend to play this hand in either a small or grand slam, and you should advise partner of the prospects immediately. Make a jump shift to three diamonds. Take a large demerit if you jumped to three spades - the hand is far too strong for that action. And a response of only two diamonds will result in your torturing partner for the rest of the auction.

Q.6 - Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KJ98 ♠Q9 ♠732 ♠Q743
The bidding has proceeded: North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 ♠ Pass ?
What action do you take?

A. - This is close; you have a reasonable responding hand, with good cards in partner's suits, but we don't think you should raise to three clubs and look for an eleven-trick contract. Our choice would be to take a false preference to two hearts. On this auction, partner almost surely has five hearts, so if he can't bid again, this should be a playable contract.

Saturday's Cryptquip - DISHPAN HANDS ARE APT TO DISTRESS HOSTESS.

Today's Cryptquip clue: C equals L

The Cryptquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Cuteness Remains A Commodity That Television Can Wear Thin

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) -

There is something to be said for cuteness, especially as manifested in children and dogs. Cute was inserted into this life, I think, to balance baseness, with which we are bountifully supplied.

But cuteness is a fragile force of nature, not easily subverted to man's will. Captured, it dies, like a lightning bug or a soap bubble.

Consider little Gary Coleman, NBC's entire inventory of cute. He came to NBC a year ago, fat of cheeks and vocabulary, possessed of a winning way with adults.

Grownups everywhere loved him, loved him enough, in fact, to endure a clumsy cluck of a sitcom called "Diff'rent Strokes" to catch a ray of the kid's charm. But no one loved him quite as much as NBC President Fred Silverman did.

Mr. Silverman, charged with righting the Good Ship NBC, saw in young Coleman an exploitable commodity. Directly, NBC was in the cuteness-packaging business.

You might have noticed the little fellow roams quite a bit, all over the NBC schedule, in fact. NBC has two big stars: Carson and Coleman. Carson tells the network what to do. But Coleman, little, pudgy, cute Gary Coleman - 11-year-old Gary Coleman - the network can direct his path, and does.

When NBC wanted to push its new series, "Diff'rent Strokes," last year, there was little Gary Coleman, announcing the Rose Parade for NBC, pushing his kid's wonder aside, trying to give 'em what they want - pre-packaged precocity.

When NBC needed something big to battle ABC's coverage of the World Series last year, it came up with a highly hype-able baseball fantasy called "The Kid From Left Field."

The kid, of course, was Gary Coleman. Last spring, when NBC needed to pump up a big affiliates' bash, Gary Coleman was summoned.

Tom Snyder plays Barbara Walters in a celebrity interview special, Gary Coleman is a probee. NBC has subsidized a Lucille Ball special, a couple of "Buck Rogers" episodes, a "Hello Larry" or two with Coleman's cuteness, and the network has consigned the kid's presence to the premiere of a new variety epic, "The Big Show."

Isn't this a bit much? "Yes," says his mother, "it is." "Last year, he was promoting 'Strokes' and we thought it was necessary to do a few things to promote the show and himself. But now it has gotten to the point where we've refused a lot of things. He doesn't need to do it. He's tired."

I don't mean to suggest that Gary Coleman is burned out or is risking his health or growing up wrong. I don't know about that. I do know the kid has something special - a commodity, if you will - of limited supply. And there is no wastrel like television.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, FEB. 22, 1980

YOUR DAILY
Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Take care of routine chores early in the day. Afternoon and evening finds you rather confused about how best to perform tasks awaiting your attention. Think out the best way in which to gain logical aims in the future.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be precise in handling your routine chores and then think out how to have a greater abundance in the future. Forget the social tonight.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Morning is fine for gaining unexpected benefits, but don't take any risks with money later in the day. Listen to a financial expert.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan activities early so that you can accomplish a good deal later. Try to look at all sides of any situations, projects.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You have personal plans that need the assistance of a good friend. Get it. Try not to be forceful with anyone. Be conscientious.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Morning is fine for handling outside duties, routines, but later you can look into the new. Don't discard whatever is valuable.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You start the day in a practical fashion but later could drift off to daydreaming, if you are not careful. Keep your mind on your work.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get all the information you need if you are planning a trip soon. Listen to what an expert has to suggest that piques your interest.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You reach a fine new agreement with a partner early in the day, but be sure to carry through with your end of it later. Relax tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Plan time to meet with bigwigs and get their ideas. Some confusing situation arises, but you soon clear it up.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Morning is best time to make new arrangements and then you can get at the work connected with it. Avoid a cranky co-worker.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Give attention to home affairs early and then you can work on creative matters later. Be willing to forgive kin for unintentional mistakes.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Cooperate with kin in any plans, although they may seem strange to you at this time. Avoid entertaining. Concentrate on the practical.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be concerned with whatever is practical, but later will pay more attention to the theoretical and the tenets behind every kind of enterprise. Add courses in the field of selling and buying during early school days in order to become an expert in later life when most needed.

'COOPER' ON FILM
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - John Frankheimer has been signed by Casablanca Record and Filmworks to direct "Pursuit", a $10 million film based on the story of D.B. Cooper who parachuted from a commercial airliner with a fortune in ransom.

Telecast Bogie On March 4

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - "Bogie," a two-hour TV movie starring Kevin O'Connor in the role of Humphrey Bogart and Kathryn Harrold playing Lauren Bacall, will be telecast March 4 via CBS.

The story, based on the biography "Bogie" by Joe Hyams, focuses on Bogart's dilemma of trying to balance his popular on-screen image as a tough guy against his sentimental, off-screen personality.

The television drama, unlike the unreleased movie, "The Man With Bogart's Face," makes no attempt to make a Bogart lookalike of actor O'Connor.

York 'Mystery Plays' Readied

YORK, England (UPI) - This is the year for the York Mystery Plays, an ancient series of popular dramas telling the Bible story from the Garden of Eden to the Last Judgment.

Once "mystery" plays were performed by trade guilds on carts which rolled on a regular route through this history-packed walled city. Now they're performed every three or four years - the last time was in 1976 - outdoors in the beautiful medieval ruin of St. Mary's Abbey at the city's heart.

Smokers Affirm Merit Choice!

---

MERIT smokers report "no taste sacrifice" in switch from high tar brands.

---

MERIT: Proven Long Term Alternative To High Tar Brands.

New national smoker study results prove it.

Proof: The overwhelming majority of MERIT smokers polled feel they didn't sacrifice taste in switching from high tar cigarettes.

Proof: 96% of MERIT smokers don't miss former high tar brands.

Proof: 9 out of 10 enjoy smoking as much since switching to MERIT, are glad they switched, and report MERIT is the best tasting low tar they've ever tried.

Smokers Prefer MERIT 3 To 1!

New taste tests with thousands of smokers prove it.

Proof: A significant majority of smokers rate MERIT taste as good as—or better than—leading high tar brands. Even cigarettes having twice the tar!

Proof: Of the 95% stating a preference, 3 out of 4 smokers chose the MERIT low tar/good taste combination over high tar leaders when tar levels were revealed.

You've read the results. The conclusion is clearer than ever: MERIT delivers a winning combination of taste and low tar.

A combination that's attracting more and more smokers every day and—more importantly—satisfying them long term.
