Iran Militants Give Up Control Over Hostages

By The Associated Press
The Moslem militants who have held some 50 Americans hostage at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran for 124 days today asked the ruling Revolutionary Council to take over responsibility for the captives. The dramatic development seemed to signal a major breakthrough toward ending the crisis. But Iranian authorities, who have said a final decision on the hostages will not be made until April or May, had no immediate comment to indicate whether they now might be freed sooner.

Just when and how the Americans will be handed over to the authorities "will be decided tonight or tomorrow," said an embassy militant reached by telephone by The Associated Press from Bonn, West Germany.

A Revolutionary Council meeting was scheduled for tonight to discuss the situation.

The militants' decision to surrender the hostages, first reported by Tehran Radio, appeared to clear the way for a U.N. investigating commission to meet with them as planned.

The commission had been preparing to leave Tehran, but with the news from the embassy they decided to stay on at least until Friday.

Tehran Radio quoted the militants' spokesman as saying:

"We ask the Revolutionary Council to take over the hostages, that is, American spies, from us and deal with them in any way it seems appropriate.... Our responsibility is over for the hostages and we are sure that the Iranian nation will rectify whatever deviation that might arise in the pursuit of (the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's) line."

Khomeini's role in the decision of the militants was not immediately clear. But the 79-year-old religious leader met this morning with President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, who has been trying to assert control over the militants.

The militants' turnabout was confirmed in a telephone interview with The Associated Press in Bonn, West Germany, in which a spokesman for the captors said they had agreed to give up responsibility for the Americans because the government was "pushing" them to do so.

Tehran Radio also quoted the spokesman for the militants as saying the decision was made because of the dispute with government authorities over whether the U.N. investigating commission should be allowed to meet with all of the hostages, seized Nov. 4.

The militants said they disagreed with the government stand approving the visit but that they did not want to be accused of weakening the revolutionary regime.

"As we have announced in our earlier statements, we believe that our dealing with America should be from a position of strength. And since the proposal for a meeting between the U.N. commission and the hostages had come from America, the grand satan, and not from the Iranian people, we rejected it," the militants said.

Surprised

WASHINGTON (AP) - Carter administration officials appeared taken by surprise today by the announcement in Tehran that Moslem militants were turning American hostages over to the Iranian revolutionary council.

They reacted cautiously, mindful of the zig and zag that have marked the 124-day hostage crisis.

"It was not a pre-arranged signal," said one official, who declined to be identified.

In fact, he said, the State Department had expected the United Nations fact-finding commission to leave Iran without the estimated 50 American hostages released to the council.

The announcement could mean that the original idea behind formation of the council - to pave the way for release of the Americans - could finally be paying off.

However, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and other Iranian authorities have said the hostages cannot be released without the approval of a new parliament. That could mean a delay until May.

With the commission members making little apparent headway, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance late Wednesday night was preparing instructions for a public reaction to their leaving Iran, an aide said.

Earlier Wednesday, Assistant Secretary Harold H. Saunders, said in a speech that new U.S. economic sanctions would be considered if the impasse continued.

At the same time, Saunders counseled patience in dealing with Iran and said the United States needs to learn "we do not control other nations and their inner lives."

Vast Search For Missing Vessel

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) - A massive search continued today for a freighter feared sunk off the North Carolina coast.

The 339-foot Panamanian vessel Mount Horizon, with 22 crewmen aboard, was last seen by the Coast Guard cutter Dauntless Saturday off the Florida coast, the Coast Guard said.

Last weekend, a fierce winter storm whipped up 50-foot seas off the North Carolina and Virginia coasts.

Life preservers and an empty lifeboat bearing the name of the freighter were found by another merchant ship Tuesday and a second lifeboat was sighted by aircraft Wednesday.

The Coast Guard's 5th District headquarters here said the second lifeboat, debris and an oil slick were spotted by a search plane about 70 miles southeast of Cape Lookout, N.C.

"Since then, we have been centering an air and surface search in that area, but there has been no word that they have found the ship," Coast Guard Lt. Joe Bridger said.

Other debris, an oil slick and unidentified life preservers had been spotted by a C130 aircraft earlier Wednesday at about the same location.

Participating in the search were the Coast Guard cutter Cherokee, the Navy vessel Manley and Coast Guard, Navy, Marine and Air Force aircraft. The Coast Guard said 6,000 square miles were covered Wednesday.

Bridger said that while the lifeboat, debris and life rings spotted Wednesday had not been identified as from the missing ship, "it's right in the middle of the search area."

The merchant vessel Bow Elm had found an empty lifeboat and a single life ring about 60 miles apart Tuesday off Cape Lookout and reported that both were stenciled with the name "Mount Horizon."

The ship, loaded with a cargo of bulk sugar, had left Cristobal, Panama, last week bound for Philadelphia, where it was to have arrived at 5 a.m. Tuesday.

Neither the Coast Guard nor the freighter's New York agent, Peh Tung Steamship Co., was able to raise the Mount Horizon by radio.

Capt. H. K. Kuo, operations manager for Peh Tung Steamship, said the ship was supposed to send a radio message every day but that none had been received since Feb. 29.

'Mistrial' In Drug Case

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Weather related interruptions this week in the Superior Court trial of suspended Greenville Policeman Douglas H. Ross, together with the absence of a full jury panel today, resulted in the declaration of a mistrial this morning in the Ross case.

Judge Elbert Peele Jr. allowed a motion by defense attorneys for the mistrial, finding that a six-day period existed since evidence was last presented on Friday, Feb. 29, including three days this week when heavy snow prohibited court sessions.

Judge Peele said that the delays were unavoidable but he did not see that the Ross case could now be properly tried, noting that circumstances could result in "substantial or irreparable prejudice to the defendant or state."

The judge said he also took into account the fact that only 11 jurors were available when court convened today, with one regular juror and two alternates absent this morning.

Assistant District Attorney Tom Haigwood indicated the state's agreement with the

Pitt Board Cites Citizens' Efforts

Pitt. Memorial Hospital director Jack Richardson this morning told members of the Board of County Commissioners that operations at the medical facility have returned to normal following the heavy snowfall earlier this week.

Richardson said officials owe "a tribute to the people and volunteers," who made it possible for the hospital to "function real well," under the circumstances.

Commissioner Charles Gaskins commented, "folks don't know what it takes to keep that thing (the hospital) going 24 hours per day." In addition to volunteers transporting employees to and from the hospital, and employees working overtime to maintain services there, Commissioner Bruce Strickland noted that thanks are in order for "farmers in rural areas for what they did," during the snow.

He and Commissioner Burney Tucker said county farmers cleared many roads in the county before Department of Transportation workers were able to reach them, and delivered food and other supplies to families that were unable to travel in the deep snow.

In other business today, commissioners approved submitting a proposed fire prevention code ordinance to the State Building Code Council for approval prior to taking formal action in approving the ordinance. Commissioners also indicated they would take action on a proposed Flood Damage Prevention Ordinance at its meeting in April.

The board appointed

Moses Moye of Farmville to a three-year term on the Pitt Memorial Hospital board of trustees. J. C. Johnson of Route 1, Greenville to the Pitt County Development Commission, Linwood Mercer of Farmville to the Pitt County Board of Health, and Earl Keel of Farmville to the Pitt County Planning Board.

A resolution supporting the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce in its efforts to have the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers conduct a feasibility study of the Tar River and make recommendations for future improvements of the river for recreational development was also approved this morning.

Colombia Gang Frees Austrian

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) - The leftist guerrillas holding the Dominican Embassy freed one of their two dozen hostages today, Austrian Ambassador Edgar Selzer.

The 47-year-old Selzer, one of about 15 ambassadors held by the M-19 guerrillas, was freed because his wife is in very poor health and her husband's captivity was causing her excessive stress. U.S. Ambassador Diego Asencio remained among the captives.

The Austrian ambassador was freed at 7:30 a.m. and taken by the Red Cross to an undisclosed location. Sources here said Selzer will leave Colombia today for Europe with his wife.

The Colombian government has offered safe passage to Algeria, Syria or Libya to the guerrillas, sources close to the government said.

They said offers of other Latin American nations to accept the guerrillas were turned down by the regime because it would leave the guerrillas too close to Colombia.

It was not known how the guerrillas responded to the offer of safe passage to the Mideast, which was made Wednesday during the second round of direct negotiations between the guerrillas and the government.

The talks lasted just over two hours, and the government said more talks would be held but did not say when.

Wednesday's talks were similar in format to the first round, a 90-minute session held Sunday in a beige van parked near the front of the embassy.

A masked female guerrilla represented the militants in talks with deputy foreign ministers Ramiro Zambrano and Camilo Jimenez. Mexican Ambassador Ricardo Galan, who is a hostage, witnessed the talks.

Hotline called the Federal Drug Administration office in Raleigh. We were assured that the FDA is the federal agency responsible for "radiologic health." However, the person in that office referred us to the Atlanta regional office.

George White in Atlanta said that his office has had no complaints from consumers from anywhere in the southeast region. Exposure in a booth seems to be "as safe as the same amount of exposure to the sun."

He said the FDA is furnishing information to manufacturing concerns and potential ones concerning such matters as accuracy of timers, provision of protective eyewear, and protection from electrical shock.

Greenville And County Return To Normalcy After Surprise Holiday

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer
Greenville and Pitt County returned to life as usual today as schools and business reopened, ending the unexpected vacations of workers and school children created by the area's fifth snow of 1980.

Greenville's streets are "all passable but slippery," according to Mayo Allen, director of Public Works.

"We do have some trouble spots," he explained, "but we hope to have them taken care of by the end of today. The streets now are very sloppy due to the snow melting." Said Allen, "Most of the problems we are encountering now are with the catch spaces being filled up. We will be checking these throughout the day and clearing them. There are still several places where big piles of snow are blocking streets and preventing busses and traffic from turning, etc., properly." Allen also reported that the public works department has returned to its regular duties, including the refuse and cemetery employees. "The busses are also running again," he said.

Greenville City schools returned to their normal schedules today also. Superintendent Glenn Cox this morning reported that a decision on Saturday classes was to be made later this afternoon.

Pitt County Schools did not open to students or teachers today. According to Associate Superintendent Thomas Kraft, a decision on school for tomorrow was to be announced later today. "We are still out surveying the conditions of the roads this morning," he explained.

East Carolina University returned to its regular schedule yesterday and continued with it today.

Pitt Community College lost one day due to the snow but held registration today, with classes beginning tomorrow. Said Charlie Russell, assistant to the president, "We will probably make up the day lost at the end of the quarter or during Easter break."

The Department of Transportation reported all paved roads were clear today, and according to Charles Clark, "The dirt roads are being worked on today and should be ready by tonight. They are very muddy and messy because of all the water."

One of the major factors in clearing the snow has been the warm and rainy weather. Greenville Utilities Water plant recorded .06 inches of precipitation yesterday. The high temperature for the day was 53 and the low was 37. According to Kelly Patton, the level of the Tar River at 8 a.m. today was 7.0 feet. "The sunshine we're having today should finish the job with the snow," he commented.

Ramps Deployed?

PARIS (AP) - The Soviet Union has deployed launching ramps for tactical nuclear missiles in Afghanistan and has brought in troops trained in chemical and germ warfare, a French newspaper said today.

The newspaper Quotidien de Paris cited "totally reliable, authorized Western military sources" as saying the Soviets had installed "many mobile, self-propelled launching ramps for nuclear missiles" in the Kabul, Bagram and Kandahar regions.

The newspaper said the installations might be for Frog or Scud missiles with a range of about 90 miles. It did not say whether any of missiles had been deployed.

The newspaper also claimed it had confirmation of the presence in Afghanistan of special Soviet units trained in chemical and bacteriological warfare, and noted that warheads containing chemical or germ warfare canisters could be used on Frog or Scud missiles.

It claimed that some gas was believed to have been used "to secure vast zones crossed by Soviet convoys."

The newspaper said the nuclear and chemical warfare units had been deployed because of basic Soviet military tactics calling for three linked factors: surprise, speed of intervention, and the use of all components of the armed forces.

The French designer Christian Dior, who died in 1957, was an unrivaled innovator. His 1947 "New Look", after the fabric shortages of World War II, dropped hemlines to mid-calf, featured softness with rounded shoulders, tiny waists, and enormous skirts. In various parts of America, women not wishing their wardrobes suddenly so out-of-date, picketed against the "New Look", but Dior went on to create the "sensuous line" which in 1952 began to loosen the waist, his H-line which loosened it more, and his A-line which eliminated it. Today, the house has Marc Bohan as its head designer. Ms. Stegemeyer's book is full of fascinating insights into the men and women who have dressed and still do dress us, or set the trends for others to follow.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I saw an ad for new cars in the paper a couple of weeks ago that said, "The boss left town and am I having fun! I'm giving new cars away. But hurry! I'm dealing like there's no tomorrow." Signed, "Howard."

Well, for the next couple of days I watched the papers for a follow-up ad: "Wanted: Replacement for fun-loving, fast-dealing Howard who has no tomorrow." Signed, "You-know-who."

I even scanned the news stories on homicides and aggravated assault, but none of them were car salesmen who met violence at the hands of their bosses, so I gave up.

It's really hard to say at what age you become suspicious of a sales pitch. Some people want to believe in promises and claims longer than others.

They want to know that somewhere there's a pair of gym shoes that will make them jump higher than a basketball hoop . . . or yogurt that will make them start speaking French, or even an aftershave lotion that will make them a legend in their own time.

Where were you and what were you doing when you stopped believing in sales pitches?

My daughter succumbed to reality the day she bought a shampoo guaranteed to give her fat, bouncy, sensuous hair and have every boy in the school salivating. Not only did no one notice, her best friend asked her if she was going to stay home and wash her hair that night.

My son lost faith when he sent off three boxtops and $3 for an infantry battalion of Confederate soldiers, two divisions of Union forces, four cannons, five forts, a pastoral plantation, and a detailed replica of Atlanta . . . and it arrived in an envelope.

Me? I'm still a believer. Oh, I may waver now and again when I see the babysitter who is into "cavity fighting" and whips out a piece of chalk, dips it in a pot of paint and snaps it in half to show how it protects the enamel. But just because I don't know of anyone personally who walks around with a piece of chalk and a pot of paint in her purse doesn't mean she doesn't exist.

No, I'll go on believing that by a few simple exercises I can bring my T-shirts to a point of stress they've never known before. That by wrapping my body in a silver aluminum jump suit, I can lose 30 pounds in the afternoon as I vacuum the house. And if I play my cards right Howard will find another boss who will be dumb enough to leave him in charge of the car lot while he goes out of town.

Book Lists Top Fashion Designers

By GAY PAULEY
United Press International
"Who's Who in Fashion", by Anne Stegemeyer

If you follow fashions closely, the names of Bill Blass, Oscar de la Renta, Pierre Cardin, Emilio Pucci, Yves St. Laurent, Valentino, Halston, Ralph Lauren, Mary McFadden and Pauline Trigere will ring a bell of familiarity, even if you can't afford to buy their labels. But how many of you remember the names of Worth, Adrian, Mainbocher, McCardell, Poiret, Vionnet, Chanel, even Dior?

Anne Stegemeyer brings them all together in an illustrated "Who's Who in Fashion" (Fairchild Books, New York, $13.50), profiles of 180 of the world's top fashion designers then and now. The book is valuable to anyone interested in the movers and shakers in the world of fashion, so ephemeral on one hand, so nitty-gritty, bottom of the line on the other. One season the designer is a luminary, the next, out of business.

The name of Charles Frederick Worth lives on, although he died in 1895. Worth, a fashion dictator of his time, was perhaps the first designer of what later the French called haute couture.

Worth was court dressmaker to Empress Eugenie of France and Empress Elizabeth of Austria, and dressed women of European courts and society women of Europe and America. The author says Worth was copied widely and was the first couturier to sell models to be copied in England and America. He exploited crinoline, is said to have invented the princess silhouette and the ancestor of the tailor-made suit. The house of Worth now lives in London with a wholesale firm that uses his name and Parfums Worth, run by Roger Worth, his great-grandson.

Gilbert Adrian, a top Hollywood designer in the 1920s and '30s, created costumes for Joan Crawford, Greta Garbo, Katharine Hepburn, Rosalind Russell, Norma Shearer, and other screen heroines. He was married to actress Janet Gaynor. Adrian's trademark was the dramatic shoulder interest — the exaggeratedly wide, padded shoulders tapering to a small waist.

Mainbocher, who made the wedding dress for the Duchess of Windsor, is said to have introduced the strapless evening gown in 1929. Known for his elegant evening clothes, Mainbocher also did a lot with pastel ginghams, beaded evening sweaters, and his signature accessories were pearl chokers and short white kid gloves.

Claire McCardell designed for the active American woman, at work or at play. She is credited with the "American look", forerunner of today's casual, travel-oriented clothes. She picked up details from men's clothing and work clothes — large pockets, blue jeans stitching, trouser pleats, rivets and gripper fasteners. Her best-selling "popover" was the straight, skip-on shift still around today in hundreds of lines.

Paul Poiret, who was born, lived and died in Paris, contributed much to the modern silhouette away from corsets and petticoats. He called his modern, straight-line dresses the "Directoire" line.

Madeline Vionnet, who died in Paris in 1975, was a "towering figure" of 20th century couture, says author Stegemeyer. She invented the modern use of the bias cut, slip-on dresses that eliminated the need for plackets, hooks and eyes, or other fastenings. She eliminated high, boned collars from dresses and blouses, and along with Poiret, abolished corsets.

Gabrielle (Coco) Chanel, who died in Paris in 1971, started as a milliner and ultimately became boss of an empire that encompassed a costume jewelry workshop, a textile house, cosmetics, clothes and, of course, perfumes including Chanel No. 5. Her trademarks were the little boy look, wool

Learn To Take Tension-Break

1980 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: There is a lovely Negro spiritual by the name of "Slow Me Down, Lord."
I heard that you once published a prayer by that title several years ago. Could that prayer have been stolen from the spiritual of the same name?
Will you please print the prayer and tell us who the author was and when it was published?

JESSE IN W. VA.

DEAR JESS: The essay, "Slow Me Down, Lord," was written by Wilferd A. Peterson in 1952.

Peterson said that the inspiration for his essay had come from an old Negro spiritual, but not a word of the spiritual was used.

According to the author, the essay was written especially for modern business executives working under tension as a suggestion to slow down and relax.

I think it's one of the loveliest things I have ever read; its message is as relevant today as it was 28 years ago. I shall print it again with pleasure:

"Slow me down, Lord! Ease the pounding of my heart by the quieting of my mind. Steady my hurried pace with a vision of the eternal reach of time. Give me, amidst the confusion of my day, the calmness of the everlasting hills. Break the tensions of my nerves and muscles with the soothing music of the singing streams that live in my memory. Help me to know the magic restoring power of sleep. Teach me the art of making Minute Vacations . . . of slowing down to look at a flower, to chat with a friend, to pat a dog, to read a few lines from a good book. Remind me each day of the fable of the hare and the tortoise that I may know that the race is not always to the swift; that there is more to life than increasing its speed. Let me look upward into the branches of the towering oak and know that it grew great and strong because it grew slowly and well. Slow me down, Lord, and inspire me to send my roots deep into the soil of life's enduring values that I may grow toward the stars of my greater destiny. Amen."

DEAR ABBY: I work with a girl who plans to be married soon. Today she admitted to me that although she really doesn't love the man, she and her mother think this may be her last chance, and she hopes to hook him before he gets out of the marrying mood.

She has four children by three previous marriages. Everyone at work says to keep quiet.

Abby, I don't want to see this man used or hurt, but I don't know him well enough to open my mouth.

I work with the woman, which could cause problems if I were to tip the man off and he repeated my warning.

Please suggest something useful

Five Accidents On Wednesday

An estimated $4,050 property damage resulted from a series of five traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 4:15 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Fifth and Lewis Streets, involving cars driven by Mary Wright Sykes of 311 Lewis St. and Thaddeus Boyd III of Route 1, Pinetown.

Investigators set damage from the collision at $300 to the Sykes car and $1,800 to the Boyd auto.

Cars driven by John Royal Hodges Jr. of 301 South Eastern St., and Elvy Kittrell Forrest Jr. of Route 8, Greenville, collided about 3:45 p.m. at the intersection of Chestnut Street and Manhattan Avenue, causing $900 damage to the Hodges car and $100 damage to the Forrest vehicle.

A city motorgrader operated by Raymond Rufus Whitley of Route 8, Greenville, and a car driven by Helen K. Klein of 1015 East Wright Rd. collided about 5 p.m. on Wright Road, 35 feet South of the Tenth Street intersection, resulting in an estimated $450 damage to the car. No damage resulted to the motorgrader.

A 3:11 p.m. mishap in the 300 block South Library Street involved cars operated by John W. Dowdle III of Route 2, Farmville, and Melvin T. Matthews of Route 1, Murfreesboro.

Damage was set by police at $300 to the Dowdle car and $100 to the Matthews car.

Cars driven by Clinton Eugene Clayton Jr. of 102A South Meade St. and John Joseph Laffiteau of Goldsboro, collided about 4:25 p.m. at the intersection of Third and Harding Streets.

Police estimated damage at $100 to the Clayton car and $300 to the Laffiteau auto.

Shirley To Sing Here

World-famous gospel singer Shirley Caesar will appear in concert Saturday at 7 p.m. at Rose High School here.

Miss Caesar, who is from Durham, was the first black female singer to win a Grammy. Known as "Baby Shirley" during her childhood, she toured churches throughout the South appearing with now-famous singers like Mahalia Jackson and Sam Cook. She later sang with the Caravans, a well-known female gospel group for eight years. Her recent solo album, "First Lady" was number one on Record World's gospel charts for more than three months.

"Holiday Hippodrome" are Danny Carey and his family of acrobats with Danny showing his mastery of hand balancing; The Droguetts with feats of juggling; Chris Oler, a single trapeze act; and the comedy act of Marios Mad Hatters.

Other performers to appear in this family oriented show are Bradbury and Company — with Bradbury magnifying the mysteries of magic, with lovely ladies as assistants; the foot juggling act of Randa Lynn; an animal act featuring Sharon Vidbells' Performing Chimpanzees; and especially for the younger children, Buddy Arden's Balloon Sculpturing Novelty Act, in which the children help out.

Tickets are available from any member of the Lions Club Breakfast Club. Tickets will also be available at the door on Sunday one hour before the 2 p.m. performance time.

Old Savings Bonds Are Still Drawing Interest

The Treasury Department's U.S. Savings Bonds Division reported that it is receiving many letters and telephone calls from people who are uncertain as to whether their older savings bonds are still earning interest.

Reid Hooper of Greenville, local volunteer chairman, said that bonds are still earning interest. He noted, "All savings bonds will continue to earn interest through 1980 — and most bonds will earn interest for years to come."

Hooper explained that the uncertainty arose because Series E Savings Bonds, on continuous sale since May of 1941, will no longer be sold after June 30 of this year. E bonds were the only savings bonds available from commercial banks or through payroll savings plans, he said.

However, the withdrawal of E bonds from sale does not affect anyone already owning E bonds, Hooper stated.

Series E bonds dated between May of 1941 and April of 1952 will earn interest for a total of 40 years, he said, or until May 1981/April 1992.

E bonds dated on or after May of 1952 will earn interest as follows: May 1952-January 1957 issuance, 39 years, eight months bond life; February 1957-May 1959 issuance, 38 years, 11 months bond life; June 1959-November 1965, 37 years, nine months; December 1965-May 1969, 27 years; June 1969-November 1973, 25 years, ten months; December 1973-June 1980, 25 years bond life.

Hooper said that Series E bondholders with savings bonds at least five years old are earning 6.5 percent interest, compounded semi-annually.

getting trucks there to load them hasn't been so easy," he said.

More than a foot of snow fell on Duplin County during the weekend, with some areas reporting as much as 19 inches. Wilson said some of the poultry houses began collapsing Sunday night.

"We have at least 100 houses completely flat down," he said. Another 35 houses collapsed in nearby Wayne County, he said.

Whitley asked President Carter, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, the Small Business Administration and Gov. Jim Hunt for aid.

The disaster-area designation would make poultry and livestock farmers eligible for low-interest loans.

Whitley represents the 3rd District, which is made up of Duplin, Onslow, Sampson, Bladen, Harnett, Pender, Johnston, Wayne and Lee counties.

Ask Govm't Funds For Snow Disaster

KENANSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Rep. Charles Whitley, D-N.C., has asked for federal disaster funds for his district, where the weekend snow storm killed thousands of chickens and turkeys.

Whitley asked for aid Wednesday when he learned that at least 100 poultry houses in Duplin County collapsed from the weight of the snow.

"We talking about a $9 million to $10 million loss down here in houses and birds, at least," said Snodie Wilson, Duplin County agriculture extension agent.

Wilson said 500,000 broilers, 200,000 to 300,000 turkeys and 80,000 layers were affected by the collapses.

Duplin County is the state's leading poultry producer.

Not all the birds died immediately, but Wilson said he expects at least half to die.

"Some can be salvaged, but

'Ham' Club Meet Set

The Brightleaf Amateur Radio Club will meet Tuesday at the Planters Bank basement conference room, Third and Washington Streets in Greenville at 7:45 p.m.

Discussions will be held on various projects including emergency preparedness, and the role of operators using the Greenville two-meter repeater as well as the high frequency bands handling messages in and out of the Greenville area to vicinities where power was out and telephone lines down.

Field Day chairman Jim Campbell has announced plans for the field day in June are shaping up and the possibility of having a club repeater with autopatch facilities will be discussed since this service will soon be discontinued on the Greenville repeater soon.

A novice class and a class for upgrading will be held soon by the club. All radio hams are invited to attend the meeting, as well as anyone interested in becoming an amateur radio operator.

Re-Set Sale For Sunday

FALKLAND — The barbecued chicken sale that was to be given by the Falkland Rescue Squad last Sunday will be held this coming Sunday.

The sale will be held from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Falkland Ruritan Building. A barbecued chicken plate, plus dessert and beverage, will be offered for $3. Meals can be eaten in or taken out.

Falkland and Belvoir area citizens are urged to support this effort to raise money for a payment on the communities' rescue vehicle.

Recover Body In Pamlico River

WASHINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Authorities say the body of a Goldsboro man who died when a boat capsized Saturday was recovered Wednesday.

The man was identified as William C. Horton, 38. Horton and Ramond J. Jones, 19, of Snow Hill, died when their boat became entangled in a net and capsized during a bass-fishing tournament on the Pamlico River, according to authorities.

Jones' body was recovered by the Coast Guard Saturday night.

The Coast Guard brought the boat into harbor Tuesday. The fish the men caught, were still in the boat's hold.

A spokesman for the bass tournament said the men would have had the winning bass.

Kate Smith Is Frail And Thin

NEW YORK (AP) — Though she hasn't sung "God Bless America" or been seen in public since the Bicentennial celebrations in 1976, Kate Smith is alive and well and recovering from several ailments at her ranch outside Raleigh, N.C.

Now 70, frail and thin, the singer told the Daily News, "I'm resting, I feel real good."

Folks from her hometown of Lake Placid, N.Y., were hoping she'd sing the national anthem at the Olympics last month. "Although I sent my prayers and love to the U.S. team and the good people of Lake Placid, I was not feeling strong enough to go myself," she explained.

"Tell everyone I love them and miss them and hope to get well again."

Planting Season Soon

Last week's snow storm might belie it, but it is a fact that spring plowing and planting will soon be underway in our area.

Thus, Pitt County's most important industry will leap to life.

Farm tractors, used this week for snow removal, will be in the fields as soon as the ground is dry enough. They will be preparing for planting of tobacco, corn, soybeans, potatoes, peanuts and all the other crops that our area produces.

Although it depends on the weather, Extension Chairman Leroy James foresees a good year for crops. The wet weather won't have a great deal of effect, other than to delay planting in some instances.

Prices for farm products look favorable at this point, but James urged farmers to do an efficient job. Fertilizer, chemicals and seed prices will be up sharply and fuel prices already are.

Although all the imponderables are there, it can be a good year economically for area farmers.

Allegations To Hang Heavy

The defeat of the Charles B. Winberry, Jr. federal judgeship nomination by the Senate Judiciary Committee has to be a personal tragedy for the Rocky Mount attorney.

Nominated by Sen. Robert B. Morgan, there was not a great deal of reason to believe that Winberry's ratification would be difficult to obtain.

Some unsubstantiated allegations were raised and they eventually led to the rejection of the nomination.

Unproven though they were, the allegation doubts will hang over Winberry, and that is the regrettable part of the nomination process.

The Effort Varies

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Several years back, the General Assembly took action to keep a lot of Tar Heel citizens out of state-run institutions such as mental hospitals, mental retardation centers, and drunk tanks.

The theory pushed by mental health experts was then, and remains, that mental health problems can best be dealt with at home, where the client can work or study, live with family or friends, and come to grips with himself on home turf rather than away at some impersonal asylum.

Community treatment has become the vogue, and a lot of changes in law and procedure have come together to promote that alternative.

But it is now clear that the kind of services and the quality of treatment available in North Carolina communities varies so drastically that another sharp revision in the mental health program is essential.

Unequal

It was widely assumed that a basic minimal level of mental health services would be provided across North Carolina. To push that notion ahead, the General Assembly set up regional mental health areas combining several counties so that resources would be more equal and provided a variety of state funds to help the local communities get their mental health programs into gear.

Some areas had citizens and strong leadership keenly in favor of mental health programs; others did not. Some had aggressive leadership in mental health areas or on boards of County Commissioners scrambling for funds and programs; others lacked that leadership. Some counties had sufficient local tax income to fund a variety of programs; but others were not so fortunate.

Meanwhile, the state funds were parceled out on either a matching basis — which means local funds must be in hand to go with the state dollars — or in categorical grants for specifically defined programs serving special populations. Red tape has proliferated till now there are some 20 state mental health funding sources, and some 40 state categorical grants.

In the area of matching funds, some local communities began to come up with the money to qualify so that the state is short $12 million in the budget.

In the area of categorical grants, so many special interest groups with organized lobbyists in Raleigh have been poundi pounding on legislators that a lot of money is committed to ef-

$11.90 per capita. In Mecklenburg the per capita amount is $8.82; while in Onslow it is only $1.95. The average is around $5.

So, given this wide range of local effort — and the uneven distribution of state funds depending on local interest, effort and aggressiveness — it has become necessary for the General Assembly to seek a better way to fund mental health programs.

A special task force of mental health specialists at the state and local levels has recommended to the Legislative Mental Health Study Commission that the state no longer lock its money into matching programs and categorical programs, but provide block grants to local and area mental health agencies so they can provide a standard level of service state-wide. Then, local funds could be used for special programs above and beyond that minimally equalized effort.

BILL NOBLITT
forts which may or may not be the most needed in the communities.

Range
To illustrate the disparities which exist across North Carolina the counties raise a total of $28 million in local funds for mental health. In Randolph County the local per capita amount is only $1.76; in Alamance and Caswell, it is

NASTY SORT OF GAME THEY PLAY!

The Margin For Error

WASHINGTON — You saw it on television, you read it in the newspapers, and it was reported in the polls. The contest in New Hampshire between George Bush and Ronald Reagan was going to be a "horse race," and "much too close to call."

When over 2,000 newspapermen and pollsters assure you that the New Hampshire Republican primary is a toss-up between two men, you would be a fool to doubt their word. After all, among them they interviewed everyone in the state, not once but three times.

So what really happened? Reagan beat Bush by 2-1.

The days following the results I watched all the newscasts and read all the papers hoping to see someone from the media admit he or she was wrong. It was not to be.

I decided to go down to Washington National Airport and meet the reporters as they got off the plane from Manchester and ask them why they missed the boat so badly.

Most of them were bitter and a few refused to comment, explaining that they "never talk to the press."

The ones who were willing to discuss it at all had various excuses for their bad showing in New Hampshire.

ART BUCHWALD

A nationally respected political pundit said, "The citizens of New Hampshire didn't level with us. This is the most outrageous primary I have ever covered."

"Are you saying people in New Hampshire lie?"

"What other conclusion can you draw? We went into their shops, we stopped them on the streets, we drank coffee in their homes. The least they could have done was tell us the truth."

"Maybe they were telling you the truth at the time. Perhaps they changed their minds after they talked to you."

"That's too simple an explanation. I believe the people who said they were going to vote for Bush were really closet supporters for Reagan. They wanted us to believe it would be a horse race, so we'd all stay around. My next column is going to be an expose on how the citizens of New Hampshire manipulated the press to make us all look like fools."

A TV commentator staggered off the plane and tried to push by my camera. But I stuck a microphone in his face.

"You really blew it in Manchester," I said.

He tried to put his coat over his head.

"I am innocent of any wrongdoing," he replied.

"When all the facts are in, the public will realize that we were given the wrong information by the Bush and Reagan campaign managers.

"Bush's people insisted their man had the momentum to sweep the primary. Reagan's campaign headquarters told me they would be happy to get 25 percent of the vote. I split the difference and that's how I came up with the horse race. I've only been in this business 15 years. Anyone could have made the same mistake."

Unaware Of Real Wrath

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — The failure of a senior White House national security aide to tell West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt how angry President Carter was over the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan led to the dangerous split between Washington and Bonn that still smolders.

David Aaron, deputy director of the National Security Council under Zbigniew Brzezinski, failed to make clear to Schmidt that Carter was not just considering a boycott of the summer Olympics in Moscow but was insisting on it. Schmidt was, therefore, unaware of the depth of Carter's fury at the Soviet military takeover and the anti-Soviet response planned inside the Oval Office. He later reacted with surprise and anger when Carter publicly announced the Olympic boycott, the grain embargo and the cutback in technological trade.

Carter sent Aaron to Western Europe soon after the Afghan invasion to explain exactly how U.S. policy would shape up following Carter's admitted shock at discovering how villainous Soviet policy could be. But Aaron did not get that point across strongly enough when he talked to Schmidt.

Bush's Blunder

George Bush might have escaped his debate debacle three nights before the New Hampshire primary had he closely followed the recommendations of his advisers.

They had urged him to make clear that the rules of the debate were entirely up to its sponsor, the Nashua Telegraph. Instead, in the heat of confrontation with all his rival Republican presidential prospects, Bush neglected to put the responsibility on the newspaper. That made it appear Bush was responsible for limiting the debate to himself and Ronald Regan.

However, Bush insiders do not blame the debate wholly for their man's poor showing in New Hampshire. "Toward the end," one Bush adviser confided to us, "Reagan was getting into pocketbook issues, while our man was still talking about Iran. That made a difference."

Regan's Old Hand

The fall of his longtime arch-enemy, John Sears, as Ronald Reagan's campaign manager does not mean Lynn Nofziger will return to his old place at Reagan's side. Within 24 hours after Sears was sacked, Nofziger was asked back into the Reagan campaign to take the place he was forced to leave last year after losing a power struggle to Sears. Nofziger, a key operative in all of Reagan's earlier campaigns dating back to 1966, pleaded commitments to political clients as foreclosing a return to his old leader.

Sears' fate was sealed when Nancy Reagan turned against him. Ironically, Mrs. Reagan had earlier been his key ally against Nofziger.

Teddy's Flawed Commercials

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's last-minute decision to air televised commercials in New Hampshire depicting him as a "family man" failed to halt the anti-Kennedy drain that has resulted nationwide from voter concern over Chappaquiddick.

The TV spots showed Kennedy being praised for his love of children and the way he helped the families of his two assassinated brothers, acting as surrogate father for the children of John and Robert Kennedy. But that record has nothing to do with public disdain for Kennedy's conduct after the Chappaquiddick affair, as national polls available to President Carter show.

Those polls put Carter ahead of Kennedy as "a good family man" 70 percent to 7 percent. Those last-minute New Hampshire commercials had no apparent impact in reducing that margin.

Jimmy In Vermont

Vermont's primary, March 4, was counted by President Carter's political operatives as a "sleeper" among the early primaries where the president could spring another victory over Teddy Kennedy in the senator's backyard — this one unexpected.

Carter has done much personal telephoning into the rugged Vermont hills, far more than reported. He had a poll showing him beating Kennedy in a state that the Kennedy campaign appeared to have taken for granted.

Do Issues Count?

BY EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential candidates, pollsters and professors love to argue about whether "The Issues" really make a difference in a presidential campaign.

There is really no single answer to the question.

But there is clear evidence that the issues were important to the New Hampshire voters who gave President Carter and Ronald Reagan victories in the first presidential state primary.

It might be going too far to say that voters there knew the candidates' positions on the issues and then voted approval or disapproval of those stands. But they did cast their ballots in line with their feelings on the issues and generally in support of the candidates' positions.

For example, New Hampshire Democrats who favor wage and price controls voted for Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, who supports such measures to control inflation. That group voted for Kennedy by a 48-37 margin over Carter. The Associated Press-NBC News poll of voters last Tuesday showed.

But those who oppose such controls — as Carter does — backed the president by a 59-18 edge.

Or take reimposition of the draft, which Carter says the nation must consider. And of course he has proposed registering young people in preparation for a draft.

Other Editors Say Crime Victims

(The Wilson Times)

For years society was so preoccupied with attempts to rehabilitate criminals or to protect their rights that virtually no attention was devoted to the plight of their victims.

In an effort to correct this situation, at least partly, the 1977 General Assembly passed a law which allows a judge to order convicted criminals to make restitution to their victims as a condition of probation, parole or work release.

The law has worked quite well. At a recent news conference Governor Jim Hunt reported almost $3 million in restitution has been paid to more than 13,800 individuals and businesses since the state began keeping records on the program in June, 1979.

Of the total, slightly more than $2 million was collected through the Division of Probation and Paroles. Prisoners on work release paid their victims over $900,000. As Gov. Hunt pointed out, restitution payments amounted to almost $500,000 per month.

What about the victims of prisoners ineligible for probation, parole or work release? They have had to absorb their losses, but Gov. Hunt would change this. He plans to include in his 1981 budget proposal a program of compensation for victims unable to obtain restitution from the responsible criminal.

Legislation is pending in Congress to establish a national compensation program and Gov. Hunt expressed hope that a state program would be on a cost-sharing basis with the federal government. Even if Congress fails to act, Gov. Hunt said he would push for a state compensation plan. He declined to estimate the cost, but said he would announce specifics later.

Compensation for crime victims is long overdue. The state restitution law was a forward step, but does not go far enough. Although Federal participation would be desirable, the General Assembly should not wait to approve a crime compensation program. If federal funds are made available later, the money could be used to defray costs.

Strength For Today

NECKTIE OR ARTERY

A great religious leader some years ago declared that for some people religion is a necktie, depending upon taste and fancy for acceptance or rejection, whereas in reality religion is the chief artery of the neck, supplying life blood without which one would die in less than a minute.

Religion is not something we can put on and take off like a necktie. It certainly does make a difference whether we go to church or not. The difference between a praying person and a non-praying person, between a household in which people are true to their religion and one in which they are not, is plain for all to see.

Whatever our religion is, we should stick to it and show ourselves in some measure worthy of its basic principles.

As an artery, religion is as necessary for our happiness as blood circulation is for the continuation of our lives.

Out Of Sight Campaign Costs

By SAM ROTHBERG

AP Political Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — By the time the votes were counted in the New Hampshire primary, Ronald Reagan had done $12 million worth of campaigning for the 1980 Republican presidential nomination.

The figure raised the possibility that the Reagan campaign would run up against the $18 million federal spending limit before the last primary June 3.

But it also might prompt a re-examination of federal election laws as well as some thinking about the length of presidential campaigns and the proliferation of tests of dubious significance.

Reagan argues that the major problem is that campaigns have become another victim of government regulation, that they are overburdened by paperwork and federal rules.

He contends that the spending limits were set when there were far fewer primaries.

The limits only apply to candidates who accept federal matching funds for their primary campaigns. Former Texas Gov. John B. Connally chose in order to ignore the limit for such states as South Carolina, where he hoped a massive campaign blitz, including heavy spending for advertising, would enable him to upset Reagan.

Connally may now be regretting that decision. He has found it difficult to raise enough money, without the federal match, to keep his faltering campaign going. Instead of moving ahead with his plans to spend more than $500,000 in South Carolina, Connally has cut his budget for the state to a maximum of $350,000, which is about $100,000 below the federal limit.

Connally's experience seems to support Reagan's contention that the campaign laws force candidates to accept federal money because they can't collect enough under federal limits on contributions to keep from falling deeply in debt.

Reagan has a point. But he may not find much support for returning to the pre-Watergate free-for-all.

Perhaps Reagan and the other presidential candidates might apply the former California governor's argument about federal spending to their campaigns.

Holding down government spending, says Reagan, "is like protecting your virtue. You have to learn to say no."

Obviously, there weren't enough people saying no in the Reagan organization to buying big chunks of television time and to building a large, wellpaid staff.

But the length of presidential campaigns, plus the number of beauty contests in which the candidates compete for the fleeting glory of winning a straw poll at a party dinner, also plays a big role in putting campaigning high on the list of inflationary items.

Local Plant Is Chosen To Make New Product

Robert Griffin, manager of Procter & Gamble's Paper Products plant here, announced that the facility has been selected to manufacture the company's new disposable product, Attends.

Griffin said that Attends is a fully disposable incontinent brief that "provides superior protection from leakage and odor; and dry comfortable skin for incontinent individuals of all ages."

According to Griffin, the product "features a patented inner liner next to the skin which helps draw moisture away from the skin and into the brief; a special layered absorbent core which helps channel the moisture deep inside the core and helps trap it there; a body-shaped brief design and flexible leg gathers."

He noted, "Attends is a comfortable undergarment that provides a custom fit for adults and young people."

The plant manager said the new product comes in small, medium, and large sizes and is available in limited areas of the country.

Griffin stated that the production of Attends will occur in the plant expansion announced last January. This second expansion, he explained, brought the plant size to approximately 26 acres under roof.

"While a substantial number of employees have been hired to staff the new operation," he reported, "we anticipate some additional hiring during the next year. Plant enrollment is expected to exceed 700 upon completion of the addition."

Wilmington Mains Leak

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — The Wilmington City Council, faced with a drop in reserve water supplies because of a major water-main leak, Wednesday declared a state of emergency.

City workers have been hampered by widespread flooding from melting snow in their search for the leak. They have asked for public help in locating the source.

The leak is believed to have started Monday, said Robert Coleman of the city's public works department. City officials estimate that 2 million gallons a day are being lost.

City officials estimate they have a week's supply of water left in storage.

Mayor Ben Halterman said the state of emergency would remain in effect as long as it takes to locate and repair the leak.

The emergency measures prohibit car washing and serving water at restaurants, except by specific request. Violators face a $25 fine.

The measures also call for a voluntary ban on the use of dishwashers, fewer toilet flushings and only one bath per person a day.

Witt Col. ...

Those Democrats who favor resuming conscription voted for Carter by a 61-27 margin over Kennedy, the poll found.

But anti-draft Democrats cast their ballots against Carter. Kennedy got 46 percent of their votes and California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. got 23 percent. Carter drew the support of 23 percent.

Both Kennedy and Brown oppose a peacetime draft.

With the splintered field of candidates on the Republican side, the picture is more complex.

New Hampshire Republicans did say they gave Reagan his overwhelming victory because of the former California governor's stands on the issues.

One of Reagan's favorite themes is the need to cut federal spending and trim the federal bureaucracy.

Of course, all the GOP candidates talk about cutting federal spending, but Reagan seems to have made the issue his own.

New Hampshire Republicans who favor a substantial cut in federal spending favored Reagan about 2-1 over George Bush, the poll found. But those who oppose such cuts split their vote, giving Reagan 32 percent and Bush 27 percent. Sen. Howard Baker got the support of 18 percent and Rep. John Anderson 19 percent.

Of course, for each of these poll questions, the remainder of those polled were not sure or said they voted for other candidates.

Compromise On Bank Interest

By GLENN RITT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Small savers could get some relief from inflation and the Federal Reserve Board would obtain added powers to battle the economic disease under a compromise forged by House and Senate conferees.

The panel took action Wednesday that would remove, over a period of six years, the current 5.5 percent ceiling on passbook interest rates.

In the meantime, bank regulators would be encouraged to increase passbook rates "as rapidly as possible" — at least 2.25 percentage points during the six-year period.

However, the conferees fell short of requiring the increases, leaving it up to a board of five federal regulators to vote on any boost in the passbook ceiling during the next six years. After that, there would be no ceiling at all.

This compromise would appear to disappoint many small saver groups seeking faster and stronger relief. People able to invest a minimum of $10,000 can earn interest rates approaching 15 percent in these inflationary times.

However, the conferees also were trying to meet the concerns of thrift institutions, who say their earnings will severely erode if forced to pay such high interest rates to passbook savers without first expanding their profit-making ventures.

To this end, the conferees agreed to allow savings and loan association to increase their volume of consumer loans, which command higher interest rates than mortgage loans.

The conferees also agreed to authorize NOW accounts nationwide as of Dec 31. These are interest bearing savings accounts that offer check writing privileges. Currently, they are legal only in New England, New York and New Jersey.

Fernand St Germain, D-R.I., a major architect of the compromise, called the finished product "well balanced" and voiced optimism it would survive House and Senate votes relatively intact.

In a long, harried day of negotiations, the conferees agreed to proposals that would:

—Permanently override state-imposed ceilings on mortgage rates, while removing, for three years, interest limits on agricultural and business loans above $25,000. States would have three years to re-establish interest rate ceilings.

—Increase the limits on all federal deposit insurance from $40,000 to $100,000.

—Allow credit unions to charge 15 percent or more on consumer loans. Currently, they can charge only 12 percent.

Among the most significant steps taken by the conferees was a proposal requiring all banks and most thrift institutions to set aside a fixed percentage of money in reserves established by the Federal Reserve Board.

This could limit the amount of credit available to consumers because banks may have less money to lend.

Abandons Fight For Winberry

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Sen. Robert B. Morgan, D-N.C., will not fight a Senate committee's rejection of Charles B. Winberry Jr. for a federal judgeship, a Morgan aide said Wednesday.

Morgan declined to comment on the issue, but his press secretary, Gibson Prather, said, "The White House will have to withdraw the nomination, and Sen. Morgan will have to recommend someone else. Just how long that takes, I have no idea."

Winberry, undergoing weight-loss treatment at Duke Medical Center, was unavailable for comment.

The Senate Judiciary Committee Tuesday voted 8-6 against confirming Winberry, 38, a Rocky Mount attorney. He was Morgan's 1974 campaign manager and a former legislative liaison for Gov. Jim Hunt.

Hunt, at his weekly news conference in Raleigh Wednesday, said he had talked with Winberry by telephone.

"It's clear that this has been something that has disappointed him very, very deeply, and he's personally very, very hurt," Hunt said.

Hunt, who lobbied for Winberry, said he considered the issue closed. "I did what I thought was right. I believed in the man, I said why I believed in him and why I thought he would make a good judge. That's over with now," he said.

On Tuesday, Sen. Howard O. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, Winberry's key supporter on the Senate Judiciary Committee, proposed that Morgan ask that the nomination be sent to the full Senate with an unfavorable recommendation.

But Prather said Wednesday, "At the present, he (Morgan) has no intention of following Sen. Metzenbaum's suggestion of trying to take this thing to the full Senate."

Guilty Plea To Medicaid Fraud

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A Greensboro pharmacist pleaded guilty Wednesday to charges that he falsely billed the state Medicaid program for drugs he did not dispense.

In a plea bargaining agreement, Judge D.B. Herring Jr. sentenced the pharmacist, James E. Barnes, to serve four months in the Guilford County jail and make restitution of $16,000 to the Medicaid program.

Barnes also was placed on probation for four years and eight months, to begin at the end of his jail term, and was assessed a $1,000 fine and court costs.

The attorney general's office said Barnes was the first person convicted and sentenced to an active jail term since the Department of Justice opened a state fraud-control unit last year.

Understandable Terms Advised

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — DuPont President E.G. Jefferson urged toxicologists Wednesday to explain their work to the public in more easily understood terms to help ease growing suspicion of research.

"The public must be provided with an understandable presentation of the facts if it is to make a balanced assessment of risks," Jefferson said, noting that society now "is bombarded with reports of potential risks, some real and some with little or no foundation."

Jefferson made the remarks in a speech presented to the annual meeting of the Chemical Industry Institute of Toxicology.

He said political efforts to ban all carcinogens, regardless of levels of concentration, "stretches credulity."

Dengue Fever Alert Is Sounded

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Public health officers from North Carolina to Texas have been alerted to watch for a mosquito-borne, flu-like illness that has been detected in Mexico.

The disease, called dengue or "breakbone" fever, can cause "a lot of muscle and joint aching," according to Dr. John N. MacCormack, chief of the communicable disease control branch of the state Division of Health Services.

MacCormack said the disease has a much greater chance of showing up in the Southwest and may never be found in this state.

Recognition

Pitt County Memorial Hospital has been presented with the American Hospital Association's Certificate of Recognition acknowledging its efforts to improve effectiveness of costs monitoring and productivity.

The hospital participates in a management information program sponsored by the AHA which compares costs and productivity, both internally and with comparable hospitals. According to General Director Jack W. Richardson, the program helps the hospital judge its effectiveness in controlling costs and provides a basis upon which future decisions can be made. In a cost containment project held during 1979, hospital employees identified more than $100,000 worth of ways to save money.

'Surprised' At Her 77 Years

TOKYO (AP) — Empress Nagako, who celebrates her 77th birthday today, says she is surprised she has reached that age.

The wife of Emperor Hirohito became the first Japanese empress to reach the nationally venerated age while her husband was on the throne. The emperor celebrated the "kiju," or age of joy, last year.

"When told I would soon be 77, I was surprised I had reached such an age," a spokesman for the Imperial household quoted the empress as saying.

The empress has limited her public appearances since suffering a back injury several years ago. She was quoted by aides as saying recently, "I paint to spend my time. But just simple works such as sketches."

Anita's Foes Demonstrate

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Anita Bryant campaigned against them, but now gay rights activists Bob Kunst and Alan Rockway are "supporting" her, after a fashion.

They paraded in front of the Florida Department of Citrus on Wednesday to urge the Florida Citrus Commission not to terminate Miss Bryant's contract, because she has a right to her "bigoted point of view," a spokesman said.

Miss Bryant, singer and national spokeswoman for Florida citrus, was the leader of a campaign to defeat a 1978 "full equality ordinance" in Dade County that would have prohibited job discrimination against homosexuals in a number of fields.

Bob Green, Miss Bryant's husband and manager, said in Miami, "this particular cast of characters is out for publicity purposes — it is this group who started the blacklisting and boycotting of Anita's career in 1977."

Citrus industry officials recently indicated Miss Bryant's contract may not be renewed when it expires in August because some industry leaders say Miss Bryant has become too controversial.

Farmville Board Adopts Changes For Zoning Map

By CAROL TYLER
Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE — Farmville Commissioners adopted Tuesday night changes to the town's zoning map and extended extraterritorial jurisdiction westward to approximately the site of the town's water tower on Highway 264 West.

Rezoning included the following properties:

- a portion of Highland Mobile Home Park from Highway Business to Residential-Agricultural;
- T & S Grocery at corner of S. Main and Acton Place from residential to neighborhood business;
- the old Washington Heights area on Pine Street from residential to light industrial;
- and the property at the S. George-Wallace Street intersection, except Day's Grocery, from neighborhood business to R-5 residential.

Mayor Linwood Mercer asked that unscheduled citizen presentations be allowed in future meetings, with the fact accepted that no action would be taken during the same meeting as the presentation.

The mayor commended the street department and a number of private citizens for their clearing of the streets as well as possible and for their voluntary aid to their fellow citizens during the snow early this week.

Following a public hearing, an ordinance was adopted requiring that all annexation proposals be referred to the Planning Board for a recommendation before action is taken by the board. The Planning Board is to be allowed up to 60 days to make its report, unless a shorter period is stipulated by the board.

A request made by Randy Walters, president of the Farmville Arts Council on behalf of the Arts Council, for a local government matching grant of $1,000 from the town was referred to the Recreation and Human Services Committee.

Action was taken to allow the mayor, board members and appointive committee chairmen to consult directly with consulting resources like the town attorney and the town engineer on a reasonable limited basis with the expense paid by the town.

Street improvement priorities were set as follows, with inclusion of projects to depend on funds available once bids are received:

E. Moore Street from S. Main to Contentnea, estimated cost, $12,000; Mandarin Drive from W. Church St. to Pine, $13,000—both to be paved.

S. Walnut from W. Church to Southern Railway, $12,000; S. George from Wallace to Hines, $3,000; repairs to the Lee-Wilson street intersection, $2,500; and Moye Street (307 feet) $2,500 — all resurfacing jobs.

A resolution was adopted supporting reenactment of General Revenue Sharing by Congress.

During a discussion of transportation improvement priorities the four- and five-laning of the existing U. S. 264 to connect with the proposed Eastern Parkway and the proposed 264 Freeway was seen as the major priority between now and 1985.

The board agreed to contact the Department of Transportation concerning a re-examination of the needs of the Church-Turnage streets intersection. Some 13 accidents at this intersection were cited since January, 1977.

A public hearing was set for Apr. 1 for consideration of a dog control program for the town. Included would be a licensing fee of $3 for each dog ($10 for each unspayed female) and provision of a part-time animal control officer and a modest sheltering facility for dogs picked up.

A policy was adopted for the installation of speed bumps at residential areas' requests when warranted and when paid for by the petitioners.

The board honored the Fire Department's request that the rural fire truck be transferred to the Rural Fire Association for private sale at nominal price.

A resolution was adopted consenting to membership of Ayden and Benson in Municipal Power Agency No. Three.

A low bid was awarded to R. W. Moore Equipment Company for provision of a backhoe loader to the town for $18,633.89. This is a budgeted item for the Public Works Department.

Consideration of a possible study of the community's economic position was referred to the Farmville Economic Council.

Carter Officials Ponder Price Rollback Measure

By EILEEN ALT POWELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Carter administration officials are debating whether to ask Congress for the authority to order companies to roll back price increases that exceed the voluntary anti-inflation guidelines, government sources say. Another proposal would require U.S. companies to give advance notice of price increases, thus putting the government in a position to block, at least temporarily, those that are excessive. It could not immediately be learned if similar options were being considered to strengthen enforcement of wage guidelines. Adoption of either price proposal would strengthen the Council on Wage and Price Stability, which oversees the program. The council now learns of price increases after they have occurred and relies on adverse publicity to penalize "violators." Although government contracts can be denied to offenders, the Carter administration has never used this penalty. One congressional official warned that the changes "might be unpopular up here ... Pre-notification (of price increases) wouldn't be so bad. But rollbacks sound like price controls." President Carter has opposed mandatory wage and price controls. However, a number of economists, including Barry Bosworth, who formerly headed the wage-price council, have urged controls as part of a comprehensive strategy to break the inflation cycle. So has Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, Carter's chief challenger for the Democratic presidential nomination. Administration officials, all of whom asked not to be identified, cautioned that the study of the proposals was in the very early stages. "This is still very, very tentative," one official said. "But it is being talked about."

The review of the wage and price guidelines is part of the administration's crash effort to draft a new anti-inflation game plan in the wake of the recent announcement that consumer prices rose in January at an annual rate in excess of 18 percent.

Prices last year went up 13.3 percent, the largest jump in more than three decades.

The January inflation surge has been blamed, in part, on corporate price increases in anticipation of mandatory wage-price controls.

Alfred E. Kahn, the council's chairman, and Treasury Secretary G. William Miller sent telegrams to the nation's 500 largest corporations last weekend urging compliance with the voluntary anti-inflation standards and stating that "the president is determined that he will not impose ... controls."

Other options being considered by the administration in the all-out inflation battle are spending cuts of $20 billion this year and next to decrease the federal budget deficit; some form of credit controls, though not on home and auto loans; and limits on Social Security increases.

President Carter is expected to announce his anti-inflation proposals in a speech sometime next week, according to published reports.

Health Product Boom Predicted

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — A 30 percent increase in world health care product sales is forecast by 1983. The prediction by Arthur D. Little, Inc., a Cambridge market research organization, expects worldwide sales by manufacturers of pharmaceuticals, equipment, supplies and diagnostics will grow from $79 billion in 1978 to $106 billion (in constant 1978 dollars) in 1983. The study indicates the United States, Western Europe and Japan (in that order) will maintain their positions as the three largest markets, accounting for almost three-fourths of the world total.

Women More Money-Aware

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI) — Women are becoming more sophisticated about their personal finances, says Elizabeth Hartnett, an attorney who teaches at Syracuse University's continuing education division, University College. Miss Hartnett says young single women, widows and divorcees want to know how to handle an investment portfolio for better return on their money. She says they want to make the best use of their financial assets, reduce their taxes, provide for their retirement and their estates.

Baker Is Out, Ford 'Itching', Campaign Goes On

Scott Claims Hunt Did See Political Memos

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Former Gov. Bob Scott today said he had information that Gov. Jim Hunt received and had knowledge of administrative memos that detailed political leanings of sheriffs.

And Scott said the memo episode "very well could contain the seeds for impeachment."

Scott called a news conference to make the charge and also said the memos should be investigated by the General Assembly or by the attorney general.

Scott mentioned the word impeachment several times in a prepared statement and in answering questions from reporters, but he shied away from an outright call for Hunt's impeachment or resignation because of the memos.

"I know that the truth has not been told, and I don't believe we in North Carolina deserve to go through an impeachment or a resignation of a governor, which is what could happen if the truth is not told and admitted to now," Scott said.

Scott acknowledged that he had no documentation that Hunt actually received the memos and said he could not prove his charge.

The memos were written last year by state alcohol law enforcement agent Mather Slaughter, who was serving as a liaison for the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety to county sheriffs.

Copies of the memos were made public early this year and Slaughter was transferred to another job after Hunt called the memos improper.

Scott said he had been told by a state employee whom he refused to name that at least one of the memos went to Hunt.

"I'm convinced that he does know about them," Scott said. "Information reaching me indicates the whole truth has not been told."

Scott said his informant was in a position to know where the memos went and that the employee told Scott "the governor did have knowledge."

Scott also charged that the memo episode has "parallels to what happened in the Water-gate case."

Scott questioned why Hunt has not fired Slaughter and suggested Slaughter's transfer was designed to prevent him from talking about the memos or other similar activities by the administration.

"There must be a reason why they can't fire him," Scott said. "Certainly the governor has a responsibility to remove from state government anyone who has been caught doing this."

Scott was pressed by reporters on how the memos could result in Hunt's impeachment. Scott answered by saying, "If he testified under oath and said he had no knowledge, and facts showed otherwise, he ought to be impeached."

Aycock School Activities Cited

A number of activities were carried out at Aycock Junior High during the latter days of February.

David Andrews, Drug and Alcohol Counselor, visited Gerald Jenkins's science classes, and classes in PE of Nat Grady, Charlotte Smith, and Wilson McDowell.

Student teachers for the second semester have been enrolled, and Mrs. Beatrice C. Maye, librarian, was luncheon speaker recently for Gamma Sigma Sigma Sorority's Founder's Day.

Two school clubs held their initial meeting, the Photography Club and the Sign Language Club.

Personalities in the news at Aycock are Leanne Wiseman, a ninth grade student, Cheerleader-of-the-Month and the students-of-the-month, Douglas Howard, eighth grade and Delano Williams, ninth grade.

On Tuesday, March 18, Dudley Flood, Assistant Superintendent of the State Department of Public Instruction, is scheduled to speak to students between 9 and 9:45 a.m.

Clown Lore Is Explained Club

The Library-Media Club of North Pitt High School was visited by Toddles, a member of Greenville's Clown Alley.

Toddles applied grease paint to North Pitt senior Karen Sharpe, explaining the steps in making up a clown as she went along.

Toddles gave an explanation and a demonstration of the art of juggling. Information about Clown Alley was also given.

Rosa Murchison, co-president of the club, introduced Toddles. The club is under the direction of Media Specialist Gladys M. Avery.

Boating Safety Course Slated

The Kinston Power Squadron, a squadron of the USPS, is offering a basic boating course in Greenville at Prep Shirt Manufacturing Company beginning March 10 at 7:30 p.m.

The course will cover all aspects of basic boating including compass familiarization, chart reading, rules and regulations, and all phases of boating safety.

The course chairman is Sam Sanford of Greenville. It is open to everyone over twelve years of age. There will be no charge for instruction but a $5 workbook fee is required.

There were 61,000 boats registered with the North Carolina Wildlife Commission in this area last year. This course is the first of its type to be taught in Greenville.

Arrest Man On Break-In Count

Greenville police yesterday arrested Ronnie Clinton Ebron, 20 of 1220 Farmville Blvd. on charges of breaking and entering, following investigation of a 2:30 a.m. incident at the Union Bus Station on West Fifth St.

Chief Glenn Cannon said officers heard glass breaking at the station, and when they went to investigate, saw a man running from the scene.

The chief said several pieces of luggage inside the station had been opened and searched, and noted a duffle bag and several boxes had been placed outside of the building.

Ebron was taken into custody a short time later and jailed under a $1,000 bond pending hearing of the case in court.

RESCHEDULED

The Regional Crime Prevention Training Program scheduled for March 8 in Williamston has been canceled due to the weather and will be rescheduled at a later date.

By LEE BYRD
Associated Press Writer
Howard H. Baker Jr., an also-ran in every Republican primary and at least $500,000 in debt, has settled for his job as Senate minority leader while former president Gerald R. Ford feels an ever-greater itch to try the perils of the White House course once again.

After finishing fourth in both the Vermont and Massachusetts primaries, Baker, of Tennessee, pulled out of the GOP race Wednesday, saying in Washington, "It's pretty clear the campaign isn't going anywhere."

Another Republican, Rep. Philip Crane of Illinois, all but folded up his tent the same day, canceling television advertising in three key states and trimming his paid staff. "We're more or less winding things down," said Crane's campaign manager, Jerry Harkins.

In New York, Democratic challenger Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., accused President Carter of turning the U.S. foreign policy into "the laughing-stock of nations throughout the world" as a consequence of the wrong-way vote on a United Nations resolution opposing Israeli settlements.

Kennedy, who has hammered time and again upon Carter's economic policy, said the president's handling of foreign affairs is "prone to constant fits and starts...We must demand more than a president who is surprised not only by the Soviets, but even by his own State Department."

Kennedy also privately courted Jewish leaders in Manhattan before returning to Washington.

Rep. John Anderson of Illinois, meanwhile, said he was "nothing short of astonished," at his strong second-place showings in New England Tuesday and talked of stepping up his own efforts.

Anderson, euphoric but wearied by all his newfound media attention, said in Connecticut that Baker's withdrawal encouraged him to enter the Tennessee primary and consider active campaigning in several other border and southern states, even though he had planned previously on a "Midwest strategy" starting with the March 18 balloting in his home state.

Anderson said Baker's pull-out "tends to benefit my campaign, because he represents a more moderate position than Ronald Reagan or George Bush."

Not surprisingly, there wasn't much agreement about that. Bush, campaigning in Florida, called Baker to bid for his support but was told that neither he nor anyone else would get it for now. Still, the former CIA director said Baker's departure was "a plus for me."

Former Texas Gov. John Connally, also campaigning in Florida, said Bush might "get a few" of Baker's votes. "I'll get more of them," he added. Meanwhile, Connally also courted Baker's endorsement.

Connally, whose first big test comes Saturday in the South Carolina primary, said he regretted Baker's move, saying "he had much to contribute to the discussion and debate in this campaign."

A late entry by Ford, said Connally, might also benefit his own chances. "I think the last thing the American people want is a Ford-Reagan rerun of '76," he said.

Reagan, formerly the governor of California, was not immediately available for comment.

But Ford, himself in the Sunshine State for a golf tournament, clearly was thinking of re-running Ford if no one else.

Woman's Club Bd. To Meet

The board meeting of the Greenville Woman's Club has been scheduled at 2 p.m. Friday prior to the 2:30 general meeting of the group.

The announcement was made by Mrs. J. Lindsay Savage, club president.

She also announced persons entering this year's Creative Writing Contest are asked to send entries to her at P. O. Box 178, Greenville, 27834. Winners in the writing contest will be announced at the annual Author's Luncheon to be held in May.

don't think there is any man who is more happy to have him" return to the Senate, Stevens said.

But Stevens suggested Baker won't keep his eyes off the White House forever. "I think we shall see him back seeking that position again," he said.

"It's a wide open ballgame," he declared.

Baker's decision "has some impact but we haven't yet had an opportunity to assess exactly what the benefit or otherwise might be," Ford said. Nonetheless, there's now a "50-50" chance he will run, he said.

In his post-mortem, Baker said he came to this realization: "I'm doing everything I know how to do, I'm doing it well and it's still producing third and sometimes fourth-place finishes."

Baker, once regarded by the Carter campaign as perhaps the toughest Republican to beat in a general election, lamented that perhaps the only way to win a nomination these days is to spend two or three years in pursuit of it, a la Bush and Reagan. Baker did not announce his candidacy until last Nov. 2.

Sen. Ted Stevens of Alaska, the man who has filled in for Baker as acting Republican leader, welcomed the Tennessee back from the hustings. "I

Reagan, formerly the governor of California, was not immediately available for comment.

But Ford, himself in the Sunshine State for a golf tournament, clearly was thinking of re-running Ford if no one else.

Anderson, euphoric but wearied by all his newfound media attention, said in Connecticut that Baker's withdrawal encouraged him to enter the Tennessee primary and consider active campaigning in several other border and southern states, even though he had planned previously on a "Midwest strategy" starting with the March 18 balloting in his home state.

Anderson said Baker's pull-out "tends to benefit my campaign, because he represents a more moderate position than Ronald Reagan or George Bush."

Not surprisingly, there wasn't much agreement about that. Bush, campaigning in Florida, called Baker to bid for his support but was told that neither he nor anyone else would get it for now. Still, the former CIA director said Baker's departure was "a plus for me."

Former Texas Gov. John Connally, also campaigning in Florida, said Bush might "get a few" of Baker's votes. "I'll get more of them," he added. Meanwhile, Connally also courted Baker's endorsement.

Connally, whose first big test comes Saturday in the South Carolina primary, said he regretted Baker's move, saying "he had much to contribute to the discussion and debate in this campaign."

A late entry by Ford, said Connally, might also benefit his own chances. "I think the last thing the American people want is a Ford-Reagan rerun of '76," he said.

Chairman Started In Mail Room

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent
BEVERLY HILLS, Calif.
(AP) — William E. Walkup is retiring as chairman of the board. The kids in the mail room have a special reason to sing "Auld Lang Syne."

Walkup is one of those Americans who writers of boys' novels years ago liked to picture as typical but who actually were a rare species, and in today's business world, are even rarer.

The mail room was where he started; the board room, where he finished. Even Horatio Alger would be impressed.

"I never set out to become chairman of the board," he said. "In fact, I never set out to go to work for this company. A job was open and I took it. I had intended to become a writer."

That was 1939, the tag end of the Depression, when a 21-year-old man with a wife and baby and two years of college took what work he could find. The pay was $75 a month, lowest on the company scale. The work was 10 hours a day.

The company he joined, Signal Oil & Gas, had been founded 16 years earlier by a man named Sam Mosher with $4,000 in borrowed money and a truckload of scrounged pipe.

Those were swinging times in California. Oil seemed to flow endlessly from a coastal knoll called Signal Hill. Big deals were concluded with a handshake, big money made overnight. When Walkup hired on, the company was struggling up the back slope of the Depression to regain that lost buoy.

For nine years, Walkup sorted mail, clerked, worked the switchboard, loaded cement sacks. Then, out of the blue, Mosher summoned him to try out as his administrative assistant.

Largely through his efforts and ideas, the company became The Signal Companies Inc. — companies, plural, a conglomerate no longer in the oil business but with a raft of other subsidiaries.

Nowhere along the way had the young Bill Walkup rescued the boss's wife, or found any other dime-novel shortcut to the top, but, looking back on 41 years, he does have some thoughts for today's boys in the mail room.

"Many times I took on jobs that I was ostensibly not equipped to do simply because I felt I could nonetheless get them done. I believe it was Shakespeare who said, 'If you don't have a virtue assume one.' In a sense, that's what I have done," he said.

"We have all heard of instances of people performing incredible feats of physical strength in an emergency.

"Cerebrally, maybe a similar condition prevails. Under the stress of the emergency, use of our brain capacity expands, since under normal conditions we supposedly use only a fraction of our potential. So don't be afraid to jump in over your head."

Considering that Bill Walkup abandoned his dream of becoming a writer, has he really been successful, been true to himself?

"I am working on a novel," he said. "I have been working on it for several years."

Geo. Bush Committee Is Organized In N.C.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A large number of officials who served in the administration of former Republican Gov. Jim Holshouser are working in the North Carolina campaign of GOP presidential candidate George Bush.

According to the North Carolina Bush for President Steering Committee, which was announced Wednesday, William H. Dougherty Jr. of Charlotte, president of NCB Corp., will serve as chairman of the committee.

Those serving as vice chairmen all have ties to Holshouser, who left office in 1977. They include former Secretary of Commerce W.S. Scott Harvey of Arden; former Superior Court Judge William T. Graham of Winston-Salem; former Secretary of Natural and Economic Resources George W.

Little of Southern Pines; and George Rountree III, Holshouser's legislative lobbyist.

Charlotte attorney Laurence Cobb, a former state representative and close friend of Holshouser, is serving as Bush's state campaign coordinator.

James Moyer of Wilson is serving as a state field representative. The "Holshouser Wing" of the Republican Party is considered more moderate than that of Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C. Neither Holshouser nor Helms has endorsed a presidential candidate in North Carolina's May 6 primary.

Included among the 54 members of the steering committee are Thomas Bennett of Morehead City, who was Holshouser's chosen state GOP chairman during the administration; and James Carson Jr., a Charlotte attorney who served as state attorney general during the Holshouser administration.

Others include Worth Coltrane of Asheboro, former gubernatorial campaign manager for David Flaherty and Jim Gardner; Tenney Deane of Charlotte, former commerce secretary and state Utilities Commission member; Larnie Horton of Raleigh, Holshouser's former special assistant for minority affairs; Grace Rohrer of Chapel Hill, past chairman of the state GOP and secretary of Cultural Resources under Holshouser; and John Walker of North Wilkesboro, 1972 Republican candidate for lieutenant governor.

Propose 'Pitt County Flower'

The board of directors of the Keep Pitt County Clean and Beautiful Committee, at its recent meeting, proposed that a flower be adopted as "The Pitt County Flower."

The committee said that to assure a flower which would be suitable to the climate and environment, the membership is enlisting the suggestions and ideas of Pitt County citizens.

Persons having suggestions as to a likely candidate for consideration as "The Pitt County Flower" were urged to send suggestions to Pitt County Flower, P.O. Box 7124, Greenville.

Suggestions should be submitted by March 14 and a special task force will review all suggestions and make a final determination, based on hardiness, beauty, ease of maintenance and suitability for wildlife.

Board Says No To Bond Issue

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state Board of Education has rejected a proposal for a $150 million statewide bond issue to finance construction in the community-college system.

Larry J. Blake, president of the community-college system, proposed the bond issue Wednesday at the board meeting. He told the board that the system is seriously overcrowded.

Board members said the bond issue had not been shown to be necessary, was too costly and came at a bad time.

The board already has asked the Legislature to consider putting a $600 million bond issue for public-school construction on the ballot.

"North Carolina is not a pork barrel," said Harlan E. Boyles, state treasurer and a board member. "This stuff has to be paid back."

Blake made the proposal in his budget for the 1981-83 biennium.

The proposal would raise the operating budget from $136 million to $177 million in 1981-82 and to $178.5 million in 1982-83.

He said he based the proposal on recommendations by the Community College System Advisory Committee and a group representing campus presidents and trustees.

Several community-college officials appeared before the board to speak in favor of the bond issue.

Blake said after the meeting that he was not disappointed in the board's rejection of his plan.

"We received the guidance," he said. "They still admitted to the need for facilities. They recommended, as I heard it, annual capital appropriations, rather than a bond issue."

In addition to his request for an increase in the operating budget, Blake asked for a large increase in the amount of money for training equipment.

Some Economical Energy-Saving Tips For A Home

By TOM UHLENBROCK
ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Homeowners can make their houses more fuel efficient even if they lack the resources to convert to solar systems or add wood-burning stoves.

A recent energy exposition here featured the more elaborate energy savers such as underground "earth powered homes". But there also was a wide range of gadgetry and services costing less than $100.

Tim and Kathy Buck of Alton, Ill., say the best way to cut a home's heat loss is to identify — and then plug — the air leaks.

For $65 the Bucks will bring an infrared camera into a one-story home and show exactly where cold air enters. The camera scans the inside of the home with black areas indicating cold spots.

"Water spouts, light sockets, corners of buildings and, of course, windows are where most cold seeps through," Mrs. Buck said. "What we do is make an energy audit of a home in which we draw a picture and shade in the exact areas of the cold spots."

"It's cheap for consumers and this way they don't have to use Polaroid pictures which a lot of them don't understand. If they want, they can look through the camera and see the leaks for themselves."

"You can make a double-pane window almost like a wall," said Buz Kaido, owner of

Custom Solar Living of Hillsboro, Mo., which markets insulated window shades. "On infrared pictures taken from the outside you can no longer find the windows on a house."

The quilted shades come only in off-white and cost about $4 a square foot. Two decorative outer layers of a dacron-polyester blend conceal a quarter inch of batting which surrounds a reflective foil vapor barrier. The shades are on a tension roller and fit on tracks on all four sides.

"There's absolutely no air penetration," Kaido said. "You can cut heat loss up to 79 percent in the winter and in the summer they keep the air conditioning inside."

"It's attractive, not bulky, not space age. In reality, you can cut a heating bill in half and pay back the cost of the shades in a year."

Luther Bell of Portland, Ore., has bought an invention based on the simple fact that heat rises.

Called the "Thermocycler," the product, which sells for $59.95, is a long plastic extension tube with a small motor to suck up the hot air which rises to the ceiling of a room and blow it gently out the bottom. It eliminates cold floors and hot ceilings through "induced convection circulation."

"It's perfect for rooms with space heaters, wood-burning stoves or base heating," said Bell. "It's not as effective in central heating when the furnace runs constantly to keep the air circulating."

Bell says the Department of Housing and Urban Development has approved the device and agrees it can result in a fuel savings of 19.1 percent in areas up to 500 square feet. Bell says the device uses from 15 to 35 cents worth of electricity a month.

Barb Carman of Columbia, Mo., has founded a business called Saveco which specializes in small energy-saving gadgets.

"Everybody's interested in solar heating and wood-burning stoves but many can't afford such things," she said. "We sell much smaller items that the buyer can take home, install and see immediate results."

For $8.50 she sells "toilet dams" which are placed inside the tank and cut the amount of water used in flushing.

"The average family of four uses 35,000 gallons of water a year flushing the toilet," she said. "The traditional toilet uses 5 to 7 gallons a flush. This cuts the amount of water by 50 percent."

A Nova showerhead ($19) uses about 2 gallons of water per minute, compared to 5 to 7 gallons for the conventional showerhead. Draft sealers ($2.95) are rubber plugs which fit into electrical outlets. "Cold travels along a home's wiring," she said. "These simple plugs can cut as much as 20 percent of your home's air loss."

Saveco also offers, for $9.25, a "Heat Saver" which is connected to the outlet ducts on clothes dryers.

"Homeowners can salvage 20,000 BTUs per hour when the dryer is on," she said. "A furnace probably doesn't do much better than that. It's not good for a home with condensation problems, though."

Recorded Votes

Roll Call Report Service

WASHINGTON — Here's how area House members were recorded on major roll call votes February 21 through February 27. There were no Senate votes.

GASOHOL — The House voted, 294 for and 118 against, to keep gasohol exempt from the federal gasoline tax.

Gasohol's exemption from the four-cents-per-gallon tax thus would be extended through 1992 under the windfall profits tax bill (HR 3919) now awaiting final approval in both houses.

Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., a supporter, said that without a tax advantage to make gasohol prices competitive with gasoline, "there is no way we could proceed with gasohol."

Rep. Harold Johnson, D-Calif., an opponent, said continuing the gasohol exemption would have a "devastating impact on the major revenue source for our nation's highway program."

Members voting "yea" favor no federal tax on gasohol.

Reps. Walter Jones, D-1, L.H. Fountain, D-2, Charles Whitley, D-3, Stephen Neal, D-5, Richardson Preyer, D-6, Charles Rose, D-7, James Brodyhill, R-10, and Lamar Gudger, D-11, voted "yea."

Reps. Ike Andrews, D-4, W.C. Heifer, D-8, and James Martin, R-9, voted "nay."

NICARAGUA — By a vote of 191 for and 212 against, the House refused to require the revolutionary, post-Somoza Nicaraguan government to hold free national elections as a condition of getting U.S. economic aid. The vote came during debate on a foreign aid bill (HR 6081) later passed and sent to the Senate.

Rep. Robert Bauman, R-Md., a supporter, said: "The hard line Marxists (in the Nicaraguan government) have made it very clear that they do not want an election now. They will not permit an election now."

Rep. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, said the U.S. did not have national elections until eight years after the American Revolution, and added that today the U.S. requires none of the 70 countries receiving its foreign aid to hold elections.

Members voting "yea" favor a "no elections, no aid" policy toward Nicaragua.

Jones, Rose, Brodyhill and Gudger voted "yea." Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Heifer and Martin voted "nay."

SECRET SESSION — The House voted, 290 for and 74 against, to go into secret session to hear classified intelligence reports of communist influence in the Nicaraguan government (see preceding vote). A secret session lasting 96 minutes was then held, marking the second time in 150 years the House had locked out the public and press.

Rep. Samuel Stratton, D-N.Y., a supporter, noted that the Senate has had innumerable closed sessions. And he said "that I was wrong to suggest 'that I want to protect our secret: we are somehow aping the Soviet Union (Politburo)';" as one critic had suggested.

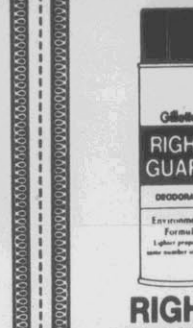

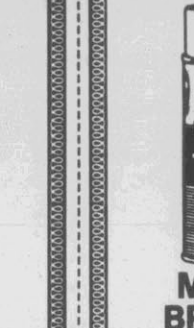

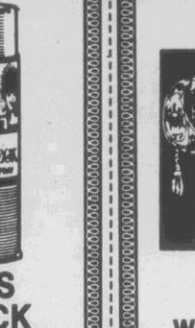

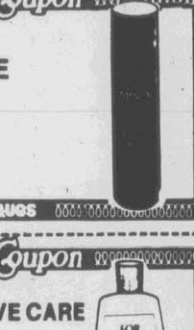

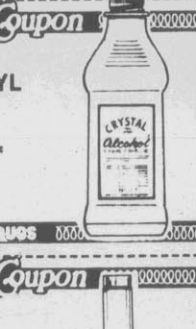

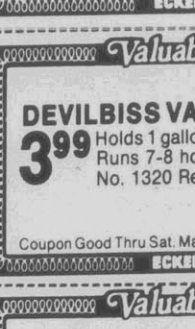

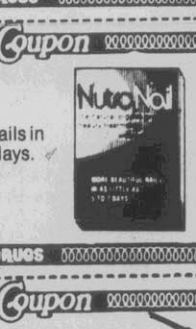

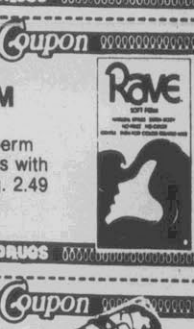

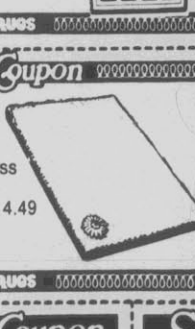

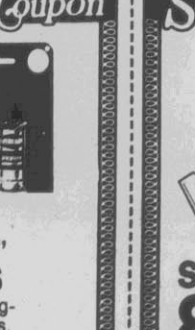

Rep. Peter Peysers, D-N.Y., who drew the Politburo parallel, said "the greatest blow we strike at democracy in this country today and the clearest indication to the rest of the world that the democratic process does not work" is for the House to meet secretly.

Members voting "yea" favored the secret session.

Jones, Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Heifer, Martin, Brodyhill and Gudger voted "yea."

Rose did not vote.

Lost Jewish Community Still Existing In China

By ALINE MOSBY
KAIFENG, China (UPI) — Ai Fen Ming, a retired carpenter in this 2,000-year-old central China city, remembers when Japanese soldiers burst into his home during World II on orders from their allies, the German Nazis.

"They came to all the houses in our neighborhood to ask who was Jewish," Ai said. "We were very afraid. They had knives and guns."

"We did not say that, yes, we were Jews."

Ai and several dozen other members of seven family clans are all that remain of a community of about 100 Chinese Jews that flourished in Kaifeng beginning around 960 A.D. They were immigrants, apparently from India, Central Asia or even Palestine. They intermarried with Chinese and blended through the generations.

They practiced their religion in the Chinese language until their synagogue fell into disrepair. It was leveled in 1860.

Today Ai and other descendants say they no longer practice the religion or Jewish customs but some still regard themselves as ethnic Jews.

"When I was four years old, I remember being with Father and Mother near the old Christian church that we went to and my parents told me we were Jews," said Ai, now a grizzled and portly 73.

He sat stiffly in the tiny main room of his dark mud brick hut near the site of the former synagogue. His almond-shaped eyes and high cheekbones made him look more Tibetan than the Han, the majority people in China.

"When I was young, my grandfather wore a black cap on his head and we did not eat pork," Ai said, "but now the Jews are so few here that we dress and eat the same as the Hans."

"Some people used to be afraid to say they were Jews because minority groups were oppressed before the revolution. But not now."

Another Kaifeng Jew, Shih Shiao Yu, 63, is a prosperous building contractor. "My parents told me we were Jews and that we could not smoke, drink alcohol or eat pork," Shih said. The parents apparently confused Moslem and Jewish restrictions.

"Now we eat pork but I don't drink or smoke," Shih said.

The Shih live with their son, daughter-in-law and grandson in a new apartment.

"I have five sisters and brothers and we all graduated from university and the government gave us all jobs," the son said, "so this means equal treatment for Jews and Hans."

The father keeps his head shaved to disguise his non-Chinese trait — curly hair that is evidence of Middle Eastern ancestry.

Neither Ai nor Shih was familiar with the menorah, the seven-branched candlestick of the Jewish faith, or the six-pointed Star of David. They said they did not practice circumcision and did not know anyone who did.

They did know Jews lived in other countries and that the state of Israel existed.

Research by the Jewish Publication Society of America indicates Jews probably entered China from India and Central Asia in the 8th Century.

Other accounts say Chinese Jews were among the "10 lost tribes" or were driven from Israel in 732 B.C. by the conquering king of Assyria. The Kaifeng synagogue, built in 1163, was damaged by flooding, rebuilt in 1279 and again in 1512.

By 1860, the Kaifeng Jews, most of them poor, were unable to keep up the synagogue, so it was destroyed.

All that remains today are two stone tablets in the dusty warehouse of the Kaifeng museum, which is closed.

"When we build a new museum, the two stones will be displayed," said former museum director Wang Yi Sha. Both stones are inscribed in Chinese. One dated 1679 is mostly illegible. The second stone, dated 1521, tells how "the patriarch Adam (a-Tan) handed the scriptures to Noah (Nu-Wo) and Noah handed them to Abraham (A-Wu-Lu-Han)..."

In the 18th and 19th centuries, American and European Jewish and Christian delegations traveled to Kaifeng in mule carts and by camel to investigate the Chinese Jewish colony.

A joke in New York a half-century ago tells of a Brooklyn Jew who travels to Kaifeng and knocks on the door of a Jew.

"You can't be Jewish. You don't look Jewish," the Chinese Jew told the Brooklyn man and refused to let him in.

The 19th century travelers managed to buy remaining relics from the synagogue. Its books now belong to the British Museum in London and libraries at Oxford and Cambridge Universities. Southern Methodist University in Dallas, Texas, owns two Torah scrolls. Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati, Ohio, owns some small books.

Good Time To Review Portfolios

Interstate Securities Corp. With the economy apparently about to slip into recession, now is a good time to look at individual stocks in a portfolio to determine if conditions warrant holding them. Some companies are affected by recession more severely than others and a more defensive posture may be in order.

There are a number of factors to be considered in evaluating a stock's worth. The best opportunity for making money in the stock market could be in owning stocks that can report better-than-average earnings gains in the economic environment ahead, and which are selling at prices which do not reflect this growth potential.

No company can consistently grow at an above-average rate forever. All companies will have periods of slower growth, no growth and even declines, as well as periods of above average gains. The long term growth trend can still be intact. It is the interruption of the long term trend which presents risk and opportunity in a stock.

When earnings growth slows, stagnates or declines, the price/earnings multiple will be downgraded relative to the average stock. When earnings growth resumes the multiple can rise. The mistake usually made is to continue holding the stock, through thick and thin, while all these adjustments are being made. This strategy does not always work.

The growth stock experienced in the late 1960's and early 1970's provides a good example. Their earnings were growing during this period at a rate much faster than average and their price/earnings multiples rose to high levels. Even while the growth stocks were maintaining this high rate of growth, basic industry stocks improved their earnings growth. Thus the relative earnings performance of the growth stocks was reduced. The multiples of the growth stocks were, over a long period of time, reduced to a level closer to that of the average market multiple.

Growth stock prices came tumbling down even while earnings continued to grow. Investors must consider absolute growth rates, but they must also consider those rates relative to the market overall.

Once general stock groups are considered, the intrinsic value of individual stocks should be compared to the price at which the stock is selling. Earnings and dividend growth, the relationship of stock price to book value, and a company's own internal growth rate should be considered. If a stock continues to provide what you purchased it for, it can be held provided it is not overvalued relative to other opportunities.

It is not possible to predict what stock prices will do. But you can select stocks which offer a good value relative to the overall market.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market opened lower today amid fears interest rates would continue to spiral and amid reports overseas oil producers' output would be cut. At 10:30 a.m., the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 1.62 at 843.26. Declines outnumbered advances by nearly 3:1 on the New York stock Exchange.

In early trading, American

Telephone & Telegraph was off 1/4 at 46 3/4, while Sears Roebuck was unchanged at 15 3/4. Sears reported February's sales were up 4.3 percent from a year earlier.

Gulf Oil, whose Canadian subsidiary is a partner in the much-talked-about "Hibernia" oil find off the coast of Newfoundland, fell 3/4 to 50 3/4.

On Wednesday, the Dow average dropped 11.60 to 844.88, with NYSE losers outnumbering gainers by better than 4-1, on rumors the Federal Reserve would announce a sharp increase in its key discount rate.

The rate is the Fed's charge on loans to member banks and stands at a record 13 percent. But interest rates today stood at more than 16 percent for large 30-day certificates of deposit. The dollar soared on currency markets on the interest rate-hike rumors.

Big Board volume totaled 49.24 million shares Wednesday, up from 44.31 million in the previous session. The NYSE composite index fell 98 to 63.38; the American Stock Exchange market value index dropped 3.79 to 296.37.

Store Break-In Charged 2 Men

FARMVILLE — Two Farmville men have been charged with breaking and entering and larceny from Revco Drug Store here early Monday morning. Charged, according to Farmville Police Chief Ron Cooper, are Kyle Bullock, 20, and Kenneth Vickers, 21, both of Farmville. Cooper said about 500 doses of two kinds of medication were taken. Apprehension was made within a short time after the burglary alarm at the store sounded at 3:20 a. m. by Sgt. Joe Phillips and Patrolman David Davis, Chief Cooper said. Each man has been released from jail under $5,000 bond, with hearings set for Mar. 20 in Farmville District Court. Also reported Monday morning was a break-in at Heath's Grocery on South Main Street here. Taken was a .32-caliber pistol, some coins and some stamps. Merchandise in the store was ruined, with damages

Day Of Prayer

World Day of Prayer is being observed in Pitt County Friday with both a morning and an evening worship service. The morning service will be held at Holy Trinity United Methodist Church, Red Banks Road, Greenville, at 11 a. m. with Dr. David Stevens as the speaker. The evening service will be led by the Rev. David Hammond at Philippi Missionary Baptist Church in Simpson at 7:30. Area residents are urged to attend one or both services.

Rev. Williams Resuming Duties

The Rev. E. B. Williams, pastor of the Philippi Church of Christ on Farmville Boulevard will resume pastoral duties Sunday morning at 11 o'clock by delivering the morning sermon. The Rev. Williams has been out on sick leave after surgery and a recovery period of six weeks.

Mistrial...

defense motion for mistrial based on the delay and jury circumstances. The state had rested its case Friday afternoon against Ross, who was charged with drug law violations after about four tons of marijuana were confiscated by local, state and federal law enforcement officers at a mobile home near his house last July. Ross was charged by authorities with possession of marijuana and maintaining and keeping a structure for the storage of a controlled substance.

Trio Charged In Car Theft Case

Three men were arrested by Greenville police early yesterday morning on charges of possession of stolen property in connection with a break-in of a car at 212 Crestline Blvd. about 12:12 a. m. Chief Glenn Cannon identified the three charged in connection with the case as Glenn Tracy Minton, 22 of 111 Phillips Rd., Robert Lee Smith, 19 of Kinston, and William Lloyd Rogers, 23, of Route 1, Greenville. Cannon said stereo speakers, tapes and other items were allegedly taken from the parked car. Bond for the three was set at $2,000 each.

Long Line To Adopt A Baby

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Nearly 100 people kept a vigil outside the Catholic Social Services of Allegheny County, some for more than 24 hours, to file applications to adopt a baby. The agency hasn't taken any applications for the last three years because of the shortage of white, healthy infants put up for adoption.

Defer Opening Of Art Show

The opening of the annual Pitt County Schools Art Show at the Greenville Art Center, originally scheduled for Sunday, March 9, has been postponed. Mrs. Edith Walker, director of the Art Center, said that an announcement of the rescheduled opening date would be made soon. Surviving him are a son, J. Bryant Hudson of Rt. 1, Grimesland; three daughters, Mrs. Lee Williams and Mrs. Edward Ray Edwards, both of Washington, and Mrs. Harvey Elks of Rt. 1, Chocowiny; five grandchildren and seven great grandchildren. The family will receive friends at the funeral home Friday from 7 to 9 p. m.

Quarterly Meet This Weekend

Quarterly meeting will be held at Cedar Grove Missionary Baptist Church this weekend. Quarterly conference will be held Friday at 7:30 p. m. The 11 a. m. worship Sunday will be led by the Rev. Jasper Suggs, with Holy Communion at 12:30 p. m. Dinner will be served at 2 p. m. and the Rev. Hue Walston and his congregation from Sycamore Chapel Missionary Baptist Church will render the 3 p. m. service. The public is invited.

Virginia Captures Opening NIT Win

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
The National Invitation Tournament?
How about the "Big Ten Invitational" instead? Last year, Big Ten teams clearly dominated the NIT when three of its teams advanced to the Final Four and Indiana won the title in New York's Madison Square Garden by beating Purdue. Wednesday night, Big Ten teams again made their presence known with victories in first-round NIT games, as Minnesota stopped Bowling Green 64-50 and Illinois routed Loyola of Chicago 105-87.

"They did what they had to do," said Bowling Green Coach John Weinert of Minnesota. "So did we, but they did it from a little higher up."

Weinert's Mid-American team was dwarfed by a pro-size Minnesota front line with players such as 6-foot-11 Kevin McHale, 6-10 Gary Holmes, 7-2 Randy Brewer and 6-6 Andy Thompson.

Darryl Mitchell scored 19 points for the Gophers, a team that finished in a fourth-place tie in the rugged Big Ten this season.

Illinois, which finished tied for fifth in the league, won even more overwhelmingly over Loyola, the regular-season champions of the Midwestern City Conference, as Mark Smith scored 24 points and Derek Holcomb dominated the boards.

"The crowd got us excited," said Holcomb after the game at Champaign. "We played really well but they're an explosive team. We'd be up by eight and then I'd look up and we'd be up by two. We had a lot of good inside play, though. We were really working the ball good inside."

In other NIT action Wednesday night, Texas defeated St. Joseph's (Pa.) 70-61; Alabama trimmed Penn State 53-49; St. Peter's (N.J.) whipped Connecticut 71-56; Murray State turned back Jacksonville 53-49; Virginia beat Lafayette 67-56 and Illinois State stopped West Texas State 80-63.

In tonight's games, it'll be Boston University at Boston College; Texas-El Paso at Wichita State; Alabama-Birmingham at Southwestern Louisiana; Nebraska at Michigan; Grambling at Mississippi and Duquesne vs. Pittsburgh at the Pittsburgh Civic Center.

First-round action in the 32-team field will conclude Friday night with Washington visiting Nevada-Las Vegas. Eight second-round games will be played at sites to be determined on March 10 and four third-round games will be held March 13 before the semifinals and finals at the Garden on March 17 and March 19.

John Danks, held to a single field goal in the first half, broke loose for 17 points in the second to lead Texas of the Southwest Conference past St. Joseph's of the East Coast Conference.

"It's been a terrible week (in practice), and it started that way tonight," said Texas Coach Abe Lemons, whose team was losing 20-18 at the start. "We were just listless, standing around out there. But we got straightened out."

Eddie Phillips scored 17 points and Alabama outscored Penn State from the free throw line 21-3 as the Southeastern Conference team beat the Nittany Lions, an independent.

"They got the loose balls when we should have been getting them," said Penn State Coach Dick Harter. "Alabama played the game the way it ought to be played."

Kevin Rogers and Jim Brandon combined for 37 points to lead independent St. Peter's past Connecticut of the Big East. Rogers scored 13 points and Brandon 12 in the second half as the nation's leading defensive team came from behind to lead by as many as 19 points in the closing minutes.

"Our game is to take our turn and set up each other's shots," said St. Peter's Bill Brown, who scored eight points in the Peacocks' second-half rally. "We just take our time. We play basic, fundamental basketball."

Gerry Green scored 15 points and Glenn Smith added 10 as Murray State of the Ohio Valley Conference defeated Jacksonville of the Sunbelt. Virginia, an Atlantic Coast Conference team, whipped Lafayette of the ECC with the help of 19 points apiece from Ralph Sampson and Jeff Lamp. Ron Jones scored 22 points to lead independent Illinois State past West Texas State of the Missouri Valley Conference.

Carner Has Fast Start

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If her success so far this year is any indication, 1980 is going to be a banner year for JoAnne Carner. But then again, 1979 started great for her and, after a dirt bike spill, wound up poorly.

Carner, one of the favorites in the $125,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament that was scheduled to begin today at Rancho Park Golf Course, has won two of the five tour events played this year.

After skipping the LPGA's most recent stop, in Sun City, Ariz., Carner will be trying to increase her 1980 bankroll of $31,636 when she competes in the 72-hole tournament at Rancho Park.

Last year Carner got off to her fastest start ever on the LPGA trail, winning three of her first 10 outings and finishing in the top 10 in six other events. But, while she and husband Don were at their retreat in the Tennessee mountains, Carner jammed both wrists when she went flying over the handlebars of a dirt bike.

As a result of the accident, she had to miss 18 tour events.

The 40-year-old Carner served quick notice that her game was back in the groove this year, however, as she won events in Miami and Sarasota, Fla.

Despite her injury last year, Carner won $98,218, good for ninth on the annual money-winnings list. With nearly $700,000 in career earnings, she has won 25 LPGA titles during her 10 years on the tour.

In the 72-hole event at the par-72, 6,250-yard Rancho Park course this week, Carner faces a field that includes Nancy Lopez Melton, who has won the event both years it has been played. Carner, who finished 16th in the tournament in its inaugural two years ago, passed up the event in 1979.

Melton will be going for her first victory of the year after winning nine times in 1978 and eight more last year.

Also in the field were Amy Alcott, Donna Caponi Young, Penny Pulz, Dot Germain, Jerilyn Britz, M.J. Smith and Pat Bradley. Among those passing up the event were Jan Stephenson, last Sunday's winner in Arizona; Sandra Post, Sandra Palmer, Jane Blalock, Hollis Stacy and Judy Rankin.

The LPGA Sunstar Classic winner will earn $18,750.

Lesser Known Names Vie In East Openers

By DICK BRINSTER
Associated Press Writer
GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — By the time the first round of the NCAA East regional playoffs is completed, the spotlight almost certainly will have focused on Maryland's All-America forward Albert King.

And North Carolina State's Hawkeye Whitney, an honorable mention, also should be in for his fair share of attention.

But the stars of the eighth-ranked Maryland Terrapins and the Wolfpack will be no where in sight when the playoffs begin tonight.

Instead, Jonathan Moore of Furman and Reggie Johnson of Tennessee are bound to be noticed when they lock horns at 7 p.m.

Monte Knight of Virginia Commonwealth and Ronnie Lester of Iowa could be the main topic of conversation at the completion of their 9:30 game.

The Tennessee-Furman winner will meet Maryland Saturday while the VCU-Iowa survivor takes on N.C. State, the other team given a bye in the action at the Greensboro Coliseum.

Because their teams are first-round opponents, either Danny Kottak of VCU or Iowa's Steve Krafcsin won't have another chance to extend their feelings of elation beyond tonight.

Kottak is thrilled that VCU was chosen in the first place. "We won 23 games and then 20 last year and we didn't get anything," said Kottak, whose team was 15-11 prior to sweeping three games in the Sun Belt Conference Tournament. "Now, we go 15-11 during the regular season and we're in the NCAA."

Krafcsin also is overwhelmed — for another reason. As a transfer from North Carolina, he will be playing at "home" for the first time this season.

"I'm very excited; thrilled to death," said Krafcsin, Iowa's second-leading scorer at 13 points per game.

He scored his first collegiate points in a 1976 game at the coliseum as a member of the North Carolina team.

Kottak, who became a starter when Tenny Elliott was dismissed from the team by VCU coach J.D. Barnett, was the leading scorer in the Sun Belt tournament with 55 points in three games.

Knight averages 16 points and Edmund Sherod, the most valuable player in the Sun Belt tournament, averages 14 for the Rams.

Coach Don DeVoe, whose team competed with third-ranked LSU and fourth-ranked Kentucky in the Southeastern Conference.

"I've always said that our schedule was as good as anybody's in the country," said DeVoe.

Johnson leads Tennessee in scoring with a 19-point average, but the lack of scoring on the part of the other Vol starters doesn't give Holbrook any peace of mind.

"They are a great defensive team with good size," he said.

CHOOSE WATSON
PONTE VEDRA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Tom Watson, the money-winnings champion of golf the past three years, is the choice of a jury of his peers to do it again this season.

The PGA polled 106 pro golfers on their choice for the top man in nine categories in the new Official Statistics program being used for the first time in 1980.

Watson was named the likely No. 1 man in money earned on 96 ballots. He also finished on top in three other categories, scoring average, birdies, and par breakers — the percentage of holes played in sub-par figures. Watson also ranked second in two other areas, putting and eagles.

Getting Ronnie Lester back will give us some height and much needed flexibility," said Iowa coach Lute Olson of his Hawkeyes, who finished 19-10 and fourth to three ranked teams in the Big 10.

Lester, who averages 15 points per game, Mel Daniel, who averages 15, and Ronnie White at 12 are expected to lead Furman.

Tennessee may have been limited to a 17-10 record, but that is of no concern to Vol

Pirates Announce 1980 Grid Signees

East Carolina University's new football staff has virtually completed its recruiting work for the coming year, having signed 26 student-athletes to grants-in-aid. All have signed national letters of intent with East Carolina.

"We feel we have an excellent group of young people coming in," new coach Ed Emory said. "We are still looking at several others and we may sign a few more. We have one other player who signed a grant earlier who still hasn't returned his letter of intent, but we expect to have him signed shortly."

The incoming group features height and bulk. Of the 26, only six weigh less than 200 pounds, and only four are under six feet tall.

"It's still not as big and tall as we want," Emory said, "but it will help."

The incoming players are from five different states, with the emphasis, as expected on North Carolina. Five are from Georgia, one each from Virginia, New York and Pennsylvania.

The group is also heavy on linemen. Six are listed as offensive linemen, two as nose guards, two defensive tackles, four defensive ends, three linebackers, and one tight end. The remaining eight include three quarterbacks, four running backs and one kicking specialist.

The complete list, giving name, height, weight, school, and home state, by position:

Quarterbacks: Larry Brobst, 64, 180, Savannah, Ga.; Chuck Bishop, 59, 175, Richmond County, N.C.; Byron Horton, 64, 188, Siler City, N.C.
Running backs: Ernest Byner, 6-1, 208, Baldwin County, Ga.; Arthur Colson, 5-11, 195, Jacksonville, N.C.; James Martin, 5-11, 201, West Columbus, N.C.; Randy Green, 6-1, 200, Randleman, N.C.
Tight end: Steve Hamilton, 6-4, 227, Fork Union (Va.), New York.
Kicker: Ted King, 5-10, 190, Rose, N.C.
Offensive linemen: Jeff Hurst, 6-4, 225, Jackson, Ga.; Tony Hensley, 6-1, 225, Ferrum Jr. College, Va.; John Anderson, 6-3, 240, North East, Pa.; Sheldon Mebane, 6-5, 245, Walter Williams, N.C.; Robert Couick, 6-4, 255, Parkwood, N.C.; Norman Quick, 6-2, 230, Scotland County, N.C.
Nose guards: Tony Smith, 6-2, 252, Scotland County, N.C.; Gary Cunningham, 6-1, 220, South Cobb, Ga.
Defensive tackles: Lawrence Brooks, 6-3, 240, Northeastern, N.C.; Doug Ford, 6-3, 230, Wilkes Central, N.C.
Linebackers: Tim Emory, 6-2, 205, North Buncombe, N.C.; Donald Reid, 6-1, 210, Farmville Central, N.C.; Ronald Reid, 6-1, 210, Farmville Central, N.C.
Defensive ends: Jeff Peguese, 6-2, 190, Scotland County, N.C.; J.C. Platt, 6-6, 210, Concord, N.C.; Jeff Autry, 6-3, 225, Newland, Ga.; Alvin Sparks, 6-3, 225, Santa Anita Junior College, N.C.

Runners Vie For Titles

While everyone else may be searching for a conference hope, East Carolina University's track team will be involved in its own conference meet on Saturday in Pittsburgh.

The Pirate runners are members of the Coaches Conference, an offshoot of the Eastern Eight. Members, along with East Carolina, are Pittsburgh, Penn State, Cleveland State, Massachusetts, Rutgers and West Virginia.

Coach Bill Carson plans to enter athletes in seven events. Otis Melvin, Carlton Bell and Tim Cephas will compete in the quarter mile, while Stan Curry, Shawn Laney and Danny Scott will take part in the 600-yard run. Bill Miller will run in both the half-mile and mile.

Rounding out the running events, Bell, Laney, Melvin and Laney will take part in the mile relay event.

Herman McIntyre and Daryl McCoy will work in the triple and long jumps, while Russell Parker will compete in the high jump.

Melvin has the top time in the quarter mile, going into the meet, while the mile relay quartet is also ranked first, along with McIntyre in the triple jump. Curry is ranked second in the 600.

"All of the running events will be in seeded heats and final placing will be done by times," Carson said. "There will be no trials at all."

The Pirates wind up the indoor season next weekend, taking part in the NCAA Indoor Nationals in Detroit's new Joe Louis Arena.

Further Delays

The opening of the East Carolina University baseball season has again been delayed because of field condition brought on by last weekend's heavy snows.

A pair of games with the University of Richmond, set for Friday and Saturday, have been postponed. Coach Hal Baird said that no new dates have been immediately set, but it was hoped that the two could be made up later in the year.

A series with the University of Connecticut, scheduled to begin on Saturday is still scheduled, according to Baird, pending later developments in the field condition.

Largest NCAA Field Kicks Off Play

AP Sports Writer
The largest field in NCAA playoff history, including a record five teams from the Atlantic Coast Conference and four from the Big Ten, begins shooting tonight for the coveted — and lucrative — basketball title.

At the end of the rainbow in Indianapolis on March 22 and 24 will be a pot of gold worth $320,000 to each of the Final Four teams.

That's roughly $50,000 more than last year's figure and a far cry from the first tournament played in 1939, when $2-531 was lost by the National Association of Basketball Coaches, which ran the first event.

There will be no repeat champion this year, with Michigan State sitting on the sidelines after last year's title. Last season's runnerup, Indiana State, is out of the picture as well.

Ten-time champion UCLA is among the field of 48 teams, but hardly the most conspicuous this time.
The perennial evergreens of the Pacific-10 Conference didn't blossom as well as they have in past seasons, failing to win the league title for the first time in 14 years. The Bruins will play as an at-large entry in Friday night's West Regionals at Tempe, Ariz., against Old Dominion, winner of the East Coast Athletic Conference's South Division. UCLA's Pac-10 colleague Arizona State will play Loyola (Calif.) of the West Coast Athletic Conference in the second game of a doubleheader.

In the Midwest Regional at Lincoln, Neb., Big Eight champion Kansas State plays Arkansas of the Southwest Conference and Missouri, another Big Eight team, will meet San Jose
State of the PCAA.
Providence, R.I., will be the site of an East Regional doubleheader on Friday night. There, Holy Cross will play Iona in a battle of ECAC champions, as well as Villanova of the Eastern Eight against midwestern independent Marquette.

Florida State of the Metro Conference plays Toledo of the Mid-American Conference and Metro colleague Virginia Tech takes on Western Kentucky of the Ohio Valley Conference in Friday night's Midwest Regionals at Bowling Green, Ky.
In the Midwest Regionals at Denton, Tex., it's Alcorn State of the Southwestern Athletic Conference vs. South Alabama of the Sunbelt and Southwest Conference champion Texas
A&M against Bradley of the Missouri Valley Conference.
The seeded teams will get into action Saturday and Sunday.

On Saturday, North Carolina State and Maryland, two ACC teams, will play in Greensboro against the winners of Thursday night's first-round games.
Duke, another ACC team, and St. John's of the Big East, will play in second-round Midwest games at West Lafayette.
Louisville of the Metro Conference and independent Notre Dame will join the Midwest action on Lincoln, and Pac-10 champion Oregon State and Brigham Young of the Western Athletic Conference will play in second-round games at Ogden.

On Sunday, Georgetown and Syracuse of the Big East joins the East field at Providence.
Kentucky of the Southeastern Conference and Indiana of the Big Ten will play in the Midwest at Bowling Green.
Louisiana State of the SEC and the ACC's North Carolina will get into action in Sunday's Midwest Regionals at Denton, and DePaul, an independent, will join the West Regional field at Tempe along with the Big Ten's Ohio State.

The regional championships will be decided at various locations from March 13 through March 16, before the championship finals in Indianapolis.

Lady Vols, USC Win

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) —
Tennessee's third-ranked Lady Vols find out Friday night if their regular-season defeat by South Carolina's Lady Gamecocks was a fluke.
Tennessee, 29-3, and South Carolina, 25-4, gained berths in the semifinals of the AIAW Region II women's college basketball tournament in Columbia, S.C., because of Tennessee's 95-79 victory Wednesday night over Clemson in Knoxville and South Carolina's 68-62 defeat of Tennessee Tech in Columbia.

In a regular season game in Columbia, Tennessee lost by four points after blowing a 12-point halftime lead and going 12 minutes without a basket.
Tennessee Coach Pat Head said even though her team won Wednesday night, the players were thinking too much about a South Carolina rematch.
"There were times when we were simply fantastic. Then we would get into a stretch where we seemed to be just awful."
"They wanted to play South Carolina, and their minds were in Columbia instead of on the floor here."

Tennessee and Clemson, 23-10, were tied 20-20 with 8:42 left in the first half when the Vols sank 12 unanswered points.
Tennessee went on to lead by as many as 22 points before Clemson narrowed the score to
Clemson Coach Annie Tribble said Tennessee's scoring streak came when she pulled Shelia Cobb from the game for eight minutes because of foul trouble.
"I thought Tennessee really won the game when we got ourselves in trouble late in the first half and let them get ahead by a wide margin. Cobb was on the bench when that happened."
"I thought our team did a good job of coming back in the second half. We didn't panic and we really went after them with a full-court press."

Cindy Noble, a junior, led Tennessee with 26 points and received double-figure scoring help from two seniors, Jill Rankin with 19 and Holly War-lick with 13.
Sophomore Barbara Kennedy led the losing effort with 28 points, while Cobb, a freshman, added 22 and junior Bobbie Mims put in 12.
Looking at Friday's game, Tribble, whose team lost two of three contests with South Carolina this season, said, "Carolina has a girl, Shelia Foster, who is comparable to Kennedy, and they will go to her all night. I don't think Foster is as good a shooter as Kennedy, however."

Foster contributed nine points and 12 rebounds to South Carolina's victory Wednesday night over Tennessee Tech, while
fessional basketball player Earvin "Magic" Johnson, poured in 19 points.
Carmen Dowdell led the Golden Eagles with 18 points and Pam Chambers put in 17.
Tech finished the year 23-11.

State In 71-63 Win

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina State's women's basketball team, led by by Genia Beasley with 16 points, came from behind Wednesday night to take a 71-63 win over Kentucky in the first round of the AIAW Region 2 tournament.

No. 11 Kentucky led 32-25 at the half, but the Lady Kats were held scoreless for six minutes as the No. 8 Lady Wolfpack took a 50-39 lead.

The closest Kentucky came was within three, 60-57, with 1:42 remaining.

Beasley also pulled down a season-high 18 rebounds in the win.

Trudi Lacey and Beth Fielden added 15 each, and Angie Armstrong put in 13 points.

Valeroe Still of Kentucky led all scorers with 23 points and also had 18 rebounds. Liz Luk-schu scored 11 points before fouling out.

N.C. State advanced to the Region 2 semifinals in Columbia, S.C., to play defending national champion Old Dominion.
N.C. State's record increased to 27-5, while Kentucky went to 24-4.

Ali, Tate Sign For Big Money

By NEIL McLAUGHLIN
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — "I want (John) Tate first, then (Larry) Holmes, because I want to be a quintuple champion," says the champ.
Who else but The Champ?
Muhammad Ali, 38 years old, three-time former heavyweight champion, at a real heavy weight now, is unretiring again.

His manager, Jabir (formerly Herbert) Muhammad, and Bob Arum, president of Top Rank, said so anyway, signing an agreement Wednesday calling for Ali to fight Tate, the World

Boxing Association champion, for what they called a record purse.
The date and location of the fight haven't been decided yet.
But the matter could be made academic if Tate loses in a previous commitment.
Holmes holds the heavyweight title recognized by the World Boxing Council, and he and Tate have a television commitment to fight to unify the title in August or September if each wins his title fight March 31. Tate is scheduled to defend his title against Mike Weaver while Holmes fights Leroy Jones.

Should Weaver beat Tate on March 31, it is assumed Weaver would fight Ali in late June, the winner facing the Holmes-Jones victor.
Arum and Muhammad said
the pact was signed Wednesday in Muhammad's offices. A formal contract will be signed later, said Muhammad.

Seve Looking Forward To New Rule Passage

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer
LAUDERHILL, Fla. (AP) —
A new rule being put into effect could open the door for Seve Ballesteros to play an expanded schedule on the American Professional Golfers Association tour.

Palmer, Ballesteros has made a strong commitment to continue to compete in Europe and indicated he will concentrate his efforts — at least for this season — in that area.
"Europe needs me more than they need me here," he said.
"The language, the food, the travel, I feel more comfortable in Europe. I owe a lot to golf in Europe."

last week at the Bay Hill Classic.
Much of the attention will be centered on the continuing comeback try of Jack Nicklaus, a three-time winner of this title. Nicklaus, now 40 and attempting to rebound from the worst season of his unmatched career, is opening a stretch of three consecutive tournament appearances.
Tom Watson, a two-time winner this season and winner of three consecutive Player of the Year titles, is not competing.
CBS will provide national television coverage of portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Arum and Muhammad said
the location and date of the bout should be chosen in approximately a week.
Muhammad said locations discussed have included Taiwan, New Orleans and Houston.

"It is interesting. It could allow me to play more. We'll see," Ballesteros said before teeing off today in the first round of the $300,000 Jackie Gleason-Inverrary Classic.
The rule, which needs approval of the Tour Board, would raise from three to 10
the number of events in which non-tour members, such as Bal-lesteros, can compete.
Ballesteros, the handsome young Spaniard who currently owns the British Open title and is undisputedly the finest player in Europe, is opening a three-event swing through Florida. He said he will come back to play in the Masters (which does not count toward his limit of three events) and make a later decision on whether to play future tournaments in the United States.
"I haven't really made a decision," Ballesteros said in his improving English. "The new rule could let me play maybe as much as I want to."
One of the most exciting, dynamic young players in golf, often likened to the young Arnold

"Just testing," he said.
"I shot 69 in the pro-am."
"Anything under par is good."
Although he hasn't played this year, his unquestioned talent, great length off the tee and uncanny ability to come out of trouble make him one of the prime candidates for the $54,000 first prize in the 72-hole event on the 7,127 yard, par 72 Inverrary Golf Club course.
In the impressive array of talent opposing him are the holders of the other three major titles, Hale Irwin (U.S. Open), David Graham of Australia (PGA) and Fuzzy Zoeller (Masters), defending champion Larry Nelson, Lee Trevino, Johnny Miller,
Jerry Pate, Hubert Green, Andy Bean and Dave Eichelberger, a winner

who would rather go out being five-time champion than three-time champion."
Terming Tate "big and slow," he said, "I wouldn't take the risk if I didn't have a chance."
Neither Arum nor Muhammad would confirm reports that the fighters would split $14 million, but Arum said, "All I will say is that the compensation to both fighters is a world record for any boxing match in history. Muhammad would only remark, "I did it again."
His attorney, Charles Lomax, who was contacted just before the signing, said the $14 million was "approximately correct."
Arum and Muhammad said
the location and date of the bout should be chosen in approximately a week.
Muhammad said locations discussed have included Tai-

St. Augustine's Tops Crusaders

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C.
(AP) — St. Augustine's, led by Anthony Boggan's 21 points, took a 79-71 win over Belmont
Abbey Wednesday in the NAA District 26 basketball championship.

The lead changed hands seven times and the score was tied 13 times.
Belmont Abbey had won 11 in a row coming into the game and was top-seeded. St. Augustine's held the No. 2 seed.

With the score tied at 67 with 3:15 remaining, Boggan had crucial steal. He missed the layup, but William Cooper tipped the shot in. The Falcons then held onto the lead for the rest of the game.
Cooper finished with 18 points. Warren Brown added 12 for the Falcons.

Although smaller, the Falcons had a 42-29 rebounding advantage over the Crusaders.
St. Augustine's advances to the NAA national tournament in Kansas City, Mo., with the win. The tournament starts March 10.

Belmont Abbey got a 20-point performance from Dempsey Cohen, all scored in the second half. Also scoring in double figures for the Crusaders were David Kershaw with 17 and Willy Holmgaard with 15.

Contenders All Fall In NBA's East

By The Associated Press
It seems as though everyone makes the National Basketball Association playoffs but no one really wants to.

Three of the five teams battling for the final three Eastern Conference playoff berths were in action Wednesday night — the Houston Rockets, New York Knicks and Indiana Pacers — and all of them lost.

Houston fell to the Boston Celtics 103-99 in overtime. New York stumbled to the lowly Detroit Pistons 120-113 and Indiana bowed to the Philadelphia 76ers by the same 120-113 count.

In other games, the Los Angeles Lakers trounced the Kansas City Kings 117-101, the Phoenix Suns trimmed the Seattle SuperSonics 127-111, the Denver Nuggets edged the Milwaukee Bucks 112-109 and the Chicago Bulls nipped the Golden State Warriors 106-105.

Nate Archibald and Gerald Henderson scored in the last 35

Pistons 120, Knicks 113
John Long scored 34 points, Terry Tyler and Eric Monéy 23 each and Greg Kelsey 21 for the injury-riddled Pistons. Detroit played without many regulars. Nonetheless, they pulled away after the Knicks chopped a 21-point deficit down to 101-99, with Long contributing five baskets and a free throw down the stretch.

76ers 120, Pacers 113
Julius Erving led the way with 36 points as Philadelphia posted its sixth straight victory while handing Indiana its sixth loss in a row. The Pacers led 105-104 with 3:52 remaining but the 76ers scored 10 straight points — two each by Steve Mix, Bobby Jones, Darryl Dawkins, Doug Collins and Erving.

Lakers 117, Kings 101
Magic Johnson, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Jamaal Wilkes combined for 72 points as Los Angeles won in Kansas City for the first time in three seasons. Johnson scored 28 points while Abdul-Jabbar and Wilkes contributed 22 apiece as the Lakers moved past Seattle into first place in the Pacific Division by one-half game.

Suns 127, SuperSonics 111
Walter Davis scored 30 points and Paul Westphal added 26 for Phoenix. The game was close in the final quarter before the Suns pulled away as Davis connected on a tie-breaking three-pointer with 3:38 to go.

Nuggets 112, Bucks 109
Dan Issel led a balanced Denver attack with 28 points but the Nuggets took a 105-101 lead on key baskets by Kim Hughes and George Johnson. Alex English added 22 points, Johnson 19 and John Roche 18 for the winners. Milwaukee's Bob Lanier had 32.

Bulls 106, Warriors 105
Ricky Sobers' three-point basket at the buzzer capped a last-minute Chicago rally. The Bulls trailed 105-98 with 54 seconds remaining but cut the deficit to 105-103 on a basket by Artis Gilmore and Ollie Johnson's three-point goal with 14 seconds remaining. Chicago got the ball back when Reggie Theus stole it from Wayne Cooper and Sobers bombed in his winning 28-footer as time ran out.

Weaver Dislikes Days, Nights On The Road

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
MIAMI (AP) — "Oh, those bases on balls."

That's been the traditional lament of baseball managers since the days of mutton-chops and stovepot hats, but Baltimore's Earl Weaver, the most successful of the modern crop, has rewritten the sad refrain.

"Oh, the travel and the loneliness," means the only skipper the Orioles have known for 12 years. "The airports, the queues, the hotel lobbies...missing the wife and kids."

"We would have to have spring training all over again while playing league games. We have to support the board or everything we've gained goes out the window. We might as well forget the union."

Pete Rose, one of baseball's highest paid superstars, described the meeting with Miller as "good and bad. Rose said it was good in the respect that the player found out what negotiations were all about, and bad because the situation was more serious than people think."

"We have to put our faith in what Marvin Miller has done in the last 14 years," Rose said. "There is no question that what the owners are negotiating for will help the younger players and hurt guys making a lot of money. But we have to stick together."

Rose noted that the players janded together in the baseball player disputes of 1972 and 1976, one producing an eight-game strike and the other a spring camp lockout. He said the players stuck together and won.

"This is the reason I have the contract I do," said Rose, who earns a reported $800,000 a year playing first base in Philadelphia.

In the negotiating session Wednesday afternoon, Grebey said progress was being made, but Miller indicated it was meaningless.

Grebey said the owners' benefit program was excellent, but refused to elaborate, saying he would not bargain through the media.

March rolls around and I'm ready to go. But I have to reassess my priorities.

"I honestly don't want to go on when my present contract ends in three years. I will be 53 then. I will have been in this game 35 years.

"Remember there are 80 days a year I am away from my family — 80 days I wake up early, eat breakfast alone, read every line in the newspaper and then go to the ball park at 2 p.m. for a night game.

"This is an unending routine seven days a week, eight months of the year. Sometimes I get a hollow feeling in my stomach. I want a chance to play golf and visit my kids."

Weaver has a son, Michael, a successful businessman in Atlanta; a daughter, Rhonda Lee, in Houston, and another daughter, Teresa Ann, in St. Louis, Earl's birthplace. A step-daughter, Kim, attends college and lives at home in Baltimore.

The Weavers also have a winter place in Miami, where Earl plays golf almost daily with a group of cronies. He plays to a seven handicap.

Weaver's strategy is basic, uncluttered by sophistication or technicalities. He reduces baseball to the simplest denominator, contending it is a game of runs and outs. They call him a "big inning man", some criticizing him because he dislikes the bunt and rarely sacrifices or hits and runs.

They say he doesn't manage by the book.

"What's a book?" Weaver asks. "I play by my book."

Frank Robinson, his former All-Star outfielder and first baseman, says he is a "let-the-players-play" type of manager.

Robinson says Weaver is "open, honest, and fair", never holding grudges, disdaining petulance and feuds. Outwardly calm, he seethes inside, often smoking two packs of cigarettes a game. He refuses to make excuses.

Speaking of the seven-game loss to the Pittsburgh Pirates in the 1979 World Series, Weaver says:

"We started the Series 2-8 and finished it 0-3 (after leading the World Series 3-1). In between, we were the best team in baseball."

BOXING

CHICAGO (AP) — Representatives of Muhammad Ali and Top Rank Inc. signed an agreement for the former heavyweight champion to fight World Boxing Association champ John Tate for what was described as a record sum in a bout that probably will be held in late June.

Bob Arum, president of Top Rank, and Jabir Muhammad, Ali's manager, said the pact was signed in Muhammad's downtown offices. Muhammad said a formal contract would be signed later. Neither Arum nor Muhammad would confirm reports that the fighters would split $14 million.

TENNIS

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Jimmy Connors and Vitas Gerulaitis defeated Sweden's Bjorn Borg and Adriano Panatta of Italy 6-2, 6-4 in the decisive doubles match for the $120,000 Copenhagen Cup, billed as a Europe vs. United States duel.

Earlier in the day, which started with the series tied 1-1, Connors defeated Panatta 6-4, 6-1, before Borg evened the score with a 7-5, 6-4 win over Gerulaitis.

Baseball Talks: No Progress

AP Sports Writer
TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Major league baseball and its players still were poles apart today in their negotiations for a new labor contract as the owners went to bat under the leadership of Ray Grebey, their chief negotiator.

Grebey met with the owners'

Player Relations Committee and American League President Lee McPhail Wednesday to answer Tuesday's strike threat by the Executive Board of the Players Association.

Before a 2½-hour negotiating session in Clearwater, Fla., Wednesday, Grebey said he would comment today on the players' strike threat.

"We're evaluating that," Grebey said. "We'll have some comment after my meeting with the owners."

Grebey said he first would meet with club general managers, and then with the owners. He said his statement probably would be late this afternoon.

Earlier Wednesday, Marvin

Miller, the executive director of the Players Association, made his first stop on a tour to obtain players' ratification of the executive board's strike threat. He obtained a 40-0 approval from the Philadelphia Phillies.

The executive board has threatened to strike on or after April 1 if a collective bargaining agreement with the owners has not been concluded.

Shortstop Larry Bowa, Phillies' player representative, acknowledged that there was a definite possibility of a strike that would delay the April 9 opening of the baseball season.

Bowa, however, said he couldn't believe the owners would be "foolish enough to let us go through spring training and then strike. It would be like biting off their nose to spite their face."

"We would have to have spring training all over again while playing league games. We have to support the board or everything we've gained goes out the window. We might as well forget the union."

Pete Rose, one of baseball's highest paid superstars, described the meeting with Miller as "good and bad. Rose said it was good in the respect that the player found out what negotiations were all about, and bad because the situation was more serious than people think."

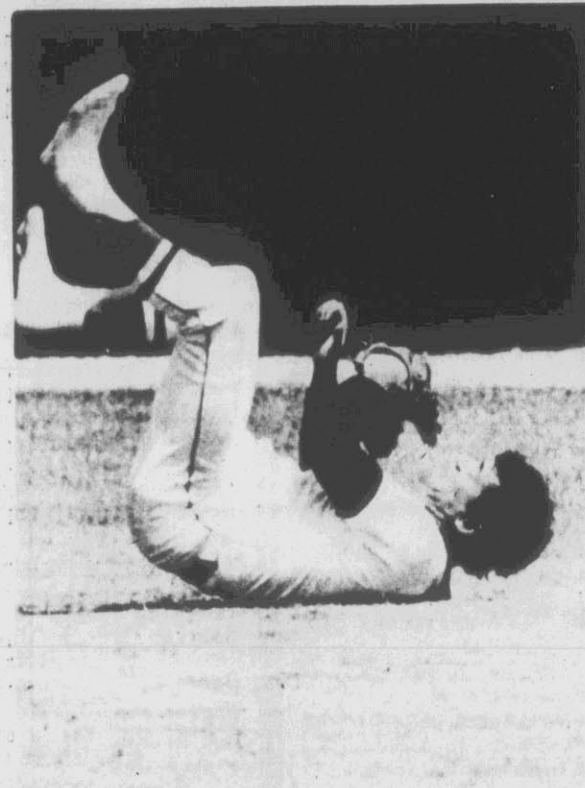

"We have to put our faith in what Marvin Miller has done in the last 14 years," Rose said. "There is no question that what the owners are negotiating for will help the younger players and hurt guys making a lot of money. But we have to stick together."

Rose noted that the players janded together in the baseball player disputes of 1972 and 1976, one producing an eight-game strike and the other a spring camp lockout. He said the players stuck together and won.

"This is the reason I have the contract I do," said Rose, who earns a reported $800,000 a year playing first base in Philadelphia.

In the negotiating session Wednesday afternoon, Grebey said progress was being made, but Miller indicated it was meaningless.

American Car Dealers In A Real Fight To Survive

By DENNIS O. BROWN
United Press International
American car dealers are fighting for survival.

Stunned by inflation they are scrambling to scratch out profits and hoping an economic rebound will put the nation's stumbling automotive industry back on the right track.

Double-digit inflation has crippled the nation's automobile dealers making it more expensive to run a showroom at a time when the economic squeeze is forcing many people out of the new car market.

"The industry's major problem's got to be inflation, the increased cost of just doing business. Inflation affects us just like everyone else," said Jerry Dahlinger, general sales manager of Swinson Chevrolet in Tulsa, Okla.

Actually, dealers say inflation has hit retail car sales much harder than other businesses. Jumping interest rates in the last year have doubled the cost of maintaining an inventory of gleaming cars — known in the trade as floor plan costs. At the same time consumers faced with higher and higher bills at home have become wary of going deep into hock at high interest rates to buy a new car.

"Let me put it this way. In 1974, our total floor plan expense for the year was $14,300. Last month it was $16,010," said Kevin Coffey, vice president and general manager of Marty R's in Garland Texas, a Dallas suburb.

Automobile sales and housing starts, two industries highly dependent on accessible interest rates, will be the main sources of employment losses in the nation during the oncoming recession. Econometric Forecasting, associated with the Wharton School of Business in Philadelphia, has predicted.

National Automobile Dealers Association President William C. Doenges said dealers are burdened as never before by high interest rates on huge stocks of expensive cars which are not selling, and it may boil down to a matter of survival of the fittest.

"It takes the very best of every dealer just to make ends meet," he said. "The dealers that are on their toes will adjust to this situation."

Even foreign car dealers said they were being hurt. One reason: the inability to deliver the cars ordered because of heightened small car demand. Another: lost sales when car owners ran into the lack of demand and low prices for large used cars on trade-in.

Several dealers said they were forced to lay off people, but others said they were doing everything possible to avoid layoffs and echoed Dahlinger's feeling that "the truth is we're riding it out. We're not going to cut back any more than we have to."

"Those shiny new cars you see in so many dealer's lots are bought with borrowed money from a bank at interest rates which have gone in a year's time from 8 percent to, in some instances, 16.5 percent," said Thomas McKean, executive vice president of the New Hampshire Auto Dealers Association.

Clyde Brewster who has been selling Fords in Herrin, Ill. for 40 years agreed the high floor plan costs were "the very biggest negative factor we face. It is one of our biggest costs and when you double that cost you are hitting a guy in the belly."

Most dealers contacted around the nation admitted the high interest rates combined with the higher prices of cars had forced them to reduce their stock.

"We're keeping our inventory lower than we'd like. It's a classic rock and a hard spot situation," Dahlinger said of his Tulsa operation. "If you cut down on inventory and choice, you run the chance of losing a sale because of a lack of selection. But what do you do when you can't afford to maintain a large selection?"

The high interest rates have had a devastating effect even in areas with a strong economy where the national downturn has not affected consumer sales.

"Our sales have continued to be the same at this dealership, but our costs of keeping inventory and operating costs have just gone skyrocket high," said Richard Rocher, general sales manager at Gene Messer Ford in Lubbock, Texas. "Prices of floor plan interests are just outrageous. It's tripled since 1977."

The high interest rates and inflation which have hurt car dealers and undercut consumers' buying power and confidence also make it harder for people to find money to borrow once they decide to take the plunge and buy a new car.

"The tight money market is causing the banks to want larger down payments. So people need stronger credit," Coffey said of the Dallas market. "It really penalizes the young person or the young family with little or no credit. Banks are less willing to take chances."

"We estimate we're actually losing 10 percent to 15 percent of our sales because of financing problems," he said.

New car sales have also been dampened by the effect of inflation coupled with the plummeting value of large used cars because of the energy crisis.

W.P. Garrison said "a real problem" at Hock's Buick in Cincinnati, Ohio, where he is general sales manager, was that "big, used cars aren't moving. I think people are scared to death on this gas situation, where the price of gas is going to go."

"Everybody's looking for smaller cars, and, with the poor market on big, used cars, that means we pay a lower price for the used cars we take in on new car sales," he said. "So that, in effect, raises the price of a new car. That also makes payments higher, and therefore, payments are harder to finance."

A salesman at Apollo Volkswagen in Moon Township, Pa., a Pittsburgh suburb, said people have shown a great deal of interest in high mileage small cars, but fewer sales are being made than last year.

"That's mostly because of the trouble in trading in large cars," he said. "The adjustment in price is the problem. You take someone who owes $5,000 on a big car and finds the vehicle is only worth $3,000 on a trade-in, it's hard for him to buy."

Inflation alone, however, is not totally responsible for keeping people out of new car showrooms. The tense international situation seems to have also had a profound impact on the buying public, and in turn, the car dealers.

"The slow-down in new car sales is probably because of what's going on in the country right now," said Wayne Atchley of Atchley Ford Inc. in Omaha, Neb. "I suppose part of it's the oil thing."

"People worrying about the country having enough oil, Russia and Afghanistan, the hostages in Iran and the economy as a whole; there seems to be a lot of unrest and people are thinking about it," the former president of the Nebraska New Car Dealers' Association said.

Thomas Hetzel, owner of Memorial AMC-Jeep in Houston, Texas, said the mood of the public was a key ingredient in a successful car sales operation.

He said the last recession had little impact on Houston, but the current downturn was being felt.

"In '74, Houston didn't even miss a beat. We are missing a few beats in this one. We've got conservatives from up north who are worried," Hetzel said. "But our economy is so strong and vibrant and so many people are moving in that it has to continue to go on as opposed to the industrialized northern city where there are layoffs and everybody gets scared."

"Milwaukee is my original hometown. It's dead up there. They're not selling anything. It's not the weather up there, it's the people," he said, predicting his lot would double its Jeep sales in 1980.

"People are not getting interested in cars like they used to," said John J. Brown, a car salesman of three decades recently laid off from a Ford dealer in Bay City, Mich. "There's too much uncertainty in the world. It shows up in the news media and it scares people."

"I blame it on the big three (Ford, General Motors and Chrysler). In 1973 they should have known the market was changing and retooled to get away from the gas hogs," he said. "Now nobody wants the gas hogs. Dealers are stuck with cars on the ground with big engines they can't sell and are going broke keeping them. Across the country dealers can't afford their floor plan so they're just going under like flies."

Surveys by the trade journal Automotive News showed 468 domestic car dealers went under in 1979, a dramatic increase from the 96 which closed their doors in 1978 which approached the record level of 527 which bit the dust in 1975 in the wake of the Arab oil embargo.

In response to the plight of its dealers, General Motors Corp. in early February kicked off a program to push sales of 75,000 full-size 1979 cars scattered at dealers around the nation by offering customers who buy before March 10 their choice of a $500 price cut or a $500 rebate.

Most foreign car dealers reported healthier sales and seemed to be faring better than those selling American products, but they too faced ravaging inflation and some unique problems of their own.

"We lost between 35 percent to 40 percent of our business in 1979 because Toyota couldn't deliver on the orders in a reasonable time," Bill Moffit, sales manager of Toyota of Great Neck, N.Y., said. "We have no trouble getting the people to come here, we have no trouble selling them a car; our biggest headache is after the sale is made — delivering."

"It doesn't matter if they come in with cash on the barrel, if they offer our salesmen a bonus, nothing, absolutely nothing, will get them that car any quicker," the salesman who advertises as the "wizard of wheels" said.

Not all the nation's car dealers are looking at a year of hardship. Just as the rich escape the wounds of inflation, auto dealers who cater to their tastes also fare well.

"The people who buy cars from us have money, so they're going to buy no matter what," said Harry McCandless. He sells Mercedes-Benz and Rolls Royce for Markl Motors Inc. in Overland Park, Kan.

"In fact, the slumping economy probably helped us some, since the American cars are depreciating faster and Mercedes are going higher. Our sales are usually to professional people, maybe 85 percent of the time, to doctors and lawyers." McCandless said high interest rates had not affected his business because 85 to 90 percent of his customers — whose most frequent purchase is the $25,000 Mercedes 300D — pay cash.

Despite their troubles, the hard hit dealers of lower priced cars remain, as several put it,

"undaunted." They predicted the industry will rebound by the end of the year, retail sales shoot up, they will make up lost ground. Added one, "but then I'm an eternal optimist."

Reporter Dennis O. Brown's father is a car dealer, his brother managed a Michigan dealership, his wife is a bookkeeper for a Maine dealer and the first job Brown himself had was to pull the keys out of used cars on his father's lot at the end of the day when he was 8 years old.

Urges Exercise By The Elderly

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Larry Frankel is a self-styled guru of the old, a leader in the geriatric revolution.

At age 75, he teaches and preaches simple exercises for the elderly, designed to keep them active and make them feel better about themselves.

"I design physical fitness programs," he says. "I act as a missionary. I speak. I motivate."

His followers include amputees, alcoholics, convicts, the blind, the lame, the arthritic, the asthmatic, the lonely and the forgotten.

They exercise in senior centers, nutrition centers, nursing homes, churches, psychiatric hospitals and prisons across West Virginia. They work out to the waltzes of Johann Strauss, the champagne music of Lawrence Welk, and the Alley Cat routine, from chairs, couches, carpeted floors, wheelchairs and beds — wherever is most comfortable.

"I can wear a football player out from a chair," brags Frankel, who is 5-foot-10 and weighs 205 pounds. "I'm vain. I'm in better than average shape. I try to preach what I practice."

The exercises range from rotating the arms, fingers and neck to doing sit-ups. There are also posture drills designed to improve the stereotyped image of the old person as stooped and shuffling.

More than 2,000 West Virginians are participating in Frankel's "Preventicare" program.

Frankel teaches the people who take care of the elderly how to lead the exercises. He operates with a five-person staff from an old, three-story red brick building in downtown Charleston that houses the Lawrence Frankel Foundation.

His program is federally funded and administered through the West Virginia State Department of Welfare with an annual budget of $75,000.

Frankel showed up one day recently at the Union Mission's Hill Top Home for the Elderly during their exercises.

"Hello, girls and boys. Hello, young lady. Hello, young fellow," he greeted some 40 men and women on sofas and chairs. Eight of them were 90 years and older.

Frankel kibitzed, prodded and badgered during the 45 minutes of exercises and joined in for the Alley Cat routine.

"They all have a good time," said Frankel. "Of particular benefit is the camaraderie among the group. In many institutions, staffs are indifferent."

"I really enjoy it," said Margaret Thompson, at 97 the oldest member of the group at the Hill Top home. "You need exercise. That's part of life." "It limbers us up, helps our arthritis and heart condition," said Frances Swats, 86 years young.

Hopeful News in Medicine

There was a scientific furor that captured the imagination of the laity all over the world when the first test tube baby was born in England. At first there was extreme skepticism about its value to infertile women. Now, hospitals all over the world are trying to duplicate the exact technique that was first established in England by Dr. Patrick C. Steptoe and Dr. Robert G. Edwards.

A group of specialists at the Eastern Virginia Medical School have set up a program that will try this implantation technique in women who have not been able to conceive.

The procedure involves the fertilization of the female egg by the male sperm in a test tube. When kept in a special embryonic culture solution, the fertilized egg grows to viability. Then, it is implanted directly into the uterus, with the hope that it will "take" and that pregnancy will be established.

Under the supervision of Dr. Mason C. Andrews, it is expected that about 50 carefully selected infertile women will be treated during the first year, at the Eastern Virginia Medical School.

Very careful guidelines have been established in this well-controlled study. It is anticipated that many more such programs will be instituted all over America if this initial program is successful.

Many thousands of women who have not been able to conceive normally may be the beneficiaries of this exciting and imaginative technique.

Patients who have been discharged from the hospital after having recovered from a heart attack can now be monitored for any recurrence.

Dr. Izzac Balzar, of Haifa, Israel, has created a device that can be worn by the recently discharged patient. Should the patient develop any unusual symptoms, the device quickly picks it up on its built-in electrocardiograph. This message is then immediately transmitted to a hospital computer that alerts doctors to the possibility of any impending new heart attack.

The electronic device is not yet available on the general market. It is expected that it will soon be completely refined, and ready for general use as an excellent safety measure.

Dr. Virginia L. Weimar, at the University of Oregon Eye Department, has discovered an important substance for the healing of eye wounds. The work in experimental animals will soon be translated to humans. The purified protein will be extremely helpful in the healing following cataract surgery, corneal transplants and eye injuries.

Former Abortion Crusader Turned Into Opponent

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Health Editor

Dr. Bernard N. Nathanson, once the most militant doctor in the nation crusading for abortion on demand, now is against abortion on demand.

Nathanson's turnaround is one of the more unusual developments in the continuing controversy over the subject. And, says he, it never would have happened without the rapid advance of technology in prenatal medicine in the last few years.

The technology changes include using sonar to make pictures of the fetus inside the womb, amniocentesis to check fetal health, fiberoptics to directly view the fetus from head to toe, being able now to treat the fetus weeks and months before the "due" date.

"I became acutely aware," he said, "that this is a patient. This, the fetus, is a person. It is not a lump of meat."

"Life begins not at conception but when the fertilized egg implants itself in the uterus. And a blood test nine days after fertilization will show that."

"That is before a woman has missed a period."

"With our instrumentation, the abdominal wall and uterus are transparent. The public hasn't seen what we can see now. The Supreme Court justices do not see what we see now. "What we see is us. It is not a tadpole swimming around. It is a part of our community. It listens, it hears, it behaves like us."

The middle-aged obstetrician-gynecologist with flecks of grey in his black hair is assistant clinical professor at Cornell Medical College, a senior-attending obstetrician-gynecologist at St. Luke's, and an associate attending doctor at New York Hospital.

He is a fellow of the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists and the American College of Surgeons.

Nathanson speaks softly as he explains his reasoning. His office on the first floor of an east-side apartment building in mid-Manhattan is a little dog-eared, the way a comfortable living room is.

The reading rack holds copies of "Highlights," the brain-stretching magazine for young children. Many of Nathanson's pregnant patients already have a child or two who go to the doctor's office when their mothers do.

Nathanson, occasionally stroking the starched sleeves of his doctor's white coat or arranged paper on his desk, was interviewed in that office recently about his change of position. He also talked about a book which recounts history and charged that the book isn't easy to find — although it is a relatively new, coming out in October.

The book is titled "Aborting America" (Doubleday, $10). The co-author, Richard N. Ostling, an associate editor of "Time" magazine, is a Phi Beta Kappa from the University of Michigan.

Nathanson couldn't find it in Dallas or Fort Worth and other places where he's been on business — and in town to talk on a radio or television show.

"I can't find the book in New York," he said. "I was on the Phil Donahue show and I couldn't find a book in Chicago. I got reams of mail from people all over the country, people saying they could not find the book."

"I told them to call or write to Doubleday. Some said they did and were told they had to order 10 copies at a time. "I am no pussycat. I want to know why I can't find this book around."

Nathanson was one of the sung heroes of the pro-abortion forces when the National Association for Repeal of Abortion Laws claimed victory in 1973 — the instant the Supreme Court of the United States declared anti-abortion laws unconstitutional.

He was not only on the executive committee of the NARAL — now the National Abortion Rights Action League — he was its co-founder.

His name isn't sung these days in those circles, of course. He resigned under pressure in 1975. Nathanson's fallout with the NARAL began in 1974 when the "New England Journal of Medicine" in its Nov. 28 issue ran his article "Deeper into Abortion."

"Our sense of values," he wrote, "has always placed the greatest importance upon the value of life itself. With a completely permissive legal climate for abortion (and I believe that we must have such a climate — that abortion must be unregulated by law) there is a danger that society will lose a certain moral tension that has been a vital part of its fabric.

"In pursuing a course of unlimited and uncontrolled abortion over future years, we must not permit ourselves to sink to a debased level of utilitarian semiconsciousness."

"We have had enough screaming placards and mindless marches. The issue is human life, and it deserves the reverent stillness and ineffably grave thought appropriate to it."

"We must work together to create a moral climate rich enough to provide for abortion but sensitive enough to life to accommodate a profound sense of loss."

What made Nathanson switch from his militant position on abortion, first taken in 1967? He says it was what he saw when as head of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology at St. Luke's hospital.

Most stunning, he said, was what he saw from 1973 to 1977 in perinatology — looking after health of the fetus.

"Seeing that fetus on sonography, taking blood from its scalp when it was 16 weeks old, I saw the larger picture. There is life far before quickening in the womb. The fetus was a patient and so treated."

"But society's perception of the fetus is much like its perception of blacks in the 19th century. As its perception of blacks changed, society saw, of course, that blacks are part of its community."

"As perception of the fetus changes we will see this is another part of our community. He pleaded for a more ethical stance from doctors."

"But I am a realist," he said. "Abortion is an easy, convenient, relatively safe procedure. Unfortunately, the bottom line is that it is unethical — in light of what we have come to know."

What kind of cooperation does Nathanson expect from the medical profession?

"Abortion is big business in medicine now," he said.

Changing abortion policy in America, in Nathanson's opinion, can only come as a result of action by the Supreme Court.

"If the justices could stand by me for a couple of days and see what is going on in perinatology, it would give them great pause. It would not be unprecedented for the court to change its mind."

"It has done that about 100 times through the decades."

Why is Nathanson so anxious to go on record about the depth of scientific and ethical considerations in his 180-degree turn?

"I've got a strong sense of public duty," he said. "I think we all made a tremendous error in the '60s and one of us must recant publicly."

Nathanson said neither religion, pressure from "Right-to-Life" groups nor scowls from Catholic bishops influenced him.

"I am an atheist," he said. "I

BECAME ACUTELY AWARE — Dr. Bernard N. Nathanson, once the most militant doctor in the nation crusading for abortion on demand, now is fighting abortion. "I became acutely aware that this is a patient. This, the fetus, is a person," he said. (UPI Photo) cannot make a blind leap into faith.

As for for Right-to-lifers, he said: "I told them Right-to-Life politics is not enlightened. I suggested they form a coalition with some groups such as pro school prayer, anti ERA, anti busing — to get more clout."

"Just roses and flowers and babies is antiquated politics. The day of single issue politics is over."

As for Catholic bishops and their anti-abortion stance, he said:

"The beneficiaries of anti-abortion laws are not Roman Catholics or their bishops, but fetuses, the majority of which would be born and grow up to be non-Catholic," he said.

"Abortion has not been a 'Catholic issue,' not even an exclusively Jewish or Christian issue."

"The Hippocratic Oath, the standard for Western medical ethics, is an expression of what might be called high paganism.

"The oath denies abortifacient relief to pregnant women. So do Judaism's traditional rulings, and authorities in Islam, except for strict medical reasons."

"The Declaration of Geneva from the World Medical Association states, 'I will maintain the utmost respect for life from the time of conception until death.'"

"The U.S. statutes against abortion have a non-sectarian history. They were put on the books when Catholics were a politically insignificant minority."

Nathanson said abortion is not "the killing of the fetus."

"Abortion," he said, "is separating the fetus from the womb. The day is approaching when we can perform abortion without killing the fetus."

"We need an instrument capable of removing the fetus without injuring it. And then we need sophisticated life support systems in which we could put the fetus or even an artificial womb.

"Such systems are coming up."

Nathanson said there are 75,000 abortions in his past medical career. Since he became aware of the facts of fetal life he has refused to do all but abortions medically indicated.

He has ended up performing several non-medical ones when he could not avoid them.

NORTH CAROLINA DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION

NOTICE OF A PUBLIC HEARING ON THE FARMVILLE EAST THOROUGHFARE FROM US 264 TO STANTONSBURG ROAD (SR 1200)

Project 6.221003 R-526A Pitt County

The North Carolina Department of Transportation, Division of Highways, will hold the above public hearing on March 13, 1980, at 7:30 p.m. in the Auditorium of the Farmville Central High School located on US 264 Business in Farmville, NC. The hearing will consist of an explanation of the proposed project, right of way requirements and procedures, relocation advisory assistance and State - Federal relationship. The hearing will be open to those present for any statements, question, comments and/or submittal of material pertaining to the proposed project. Additional material may be submitted for a period of ten days from the date of the hearing to Mr. George E. Wells, P. E., Manager of Highway Design, NC Department of Transportation, Division of Highways, P. O. Box 25201, Raleigh, NC 27611.

The proposed project is for a new thoroughfare from the existing US 264 to SR 1200 (Stantonsburg Road), on the east side of Farmville in Pitt County. The proposed project involves construction of a new two lane 24' highway on a 100 foot right of way width.

A map setting forth the proposed location and design and a copy of the Environmental Assessment is available for public review in the office of the Farmville Town Manager, Mr. Patrick Thomas, Farmville Town Hall, 124 N. Main Street, Farmville, NC.

If additional information is needed concerning the public hearing contact W. A. Garrett, Jr., P. E., Public Hearing Officer, NC Department of Transportation, Division of Highways, P. O. Box 25201, Raleigh, NC 27611 or telephone 919-733-3244.

Carson Seeks A 4-Hour Week

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Great Carsoni (a.k.a. Johnny Carson) is near perfecting the greatest act of prestidigitatation television has ever witnessed:

While the world's attention is focused on the illusion that he wants off of "The Tonight Show," the Great Carsoni will reach behind Fred Silverman's ear and, Presto! He'll pull out a shortened, 60-minute live version of "Tonight."

It will be billed, "The Great Carsoni and His Four-Hour Work Week."

Of course, a volunteer is needed for the act, and it is not yet known whether NBC President Silverman will come forward. Understandably, Mr. Silverman is concerned about the "Tonight Show" half-hour that the Great Carsoni intends to make disappear. It is filled with $25,000 commercials.

The Great Carsoni's assistant of many years, barker Ed McMahon, offers a proposal:

"If he (Carson) goes to an hour, which is his plan, what I'd like to see is a 'Best of Carson' (repeats) on Monday nights, then the four hours live (Tuesday through Friday). Then, if they want to try somebody else, give Dave Letterman or Richard Dawson (proposed Carson replacements) Tuesday and Wednesday at 12:30. "I mean, do a summer camp for hosts. Let them take a half-hour to show the world what they can do. That way, every night there'd be Carson, including the repeats on Monday. Once Carson's got 'em, that could lead into Dawson or Letterman at 12:30. It would work."

Perhaps, but that would be a trick requiring four more volunteers — would-be "Tonight" hosts such as Letterman and Dawson, who might not hunger for Carson's 12:30 a.m. leftovers.

In the end, McMahon figures,

With Johnny Carson" will not be there on Monday, April 7.

McMahon also insisted on another proviso in his unsigned pact with NBC.

"I've structured my contract predicated on him (Carson), on what he does. If he stays two years, I stay two years. When he goes, I go."

So, McMahon and the world await the Great Carsoni's greatest trick, the great "Four Hour Work Week." In the meantime, says McMahon, "We're proceeding as if it's going on. The attitude of the staff is, 'We're going on.'"

Actor Jay Silverheels Mourned; Dead At 62

By HALL DAILY
Associated Press Writer
WOODLAND HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Jay Silverheels, the full-blooded Mohawk known to millions of television viewers as the Lone Ranger's faithful Indian companion Tonto, has died at the age of 62.

A Canadian-born athlete and actor, Silverheels died Wednesday at the Motion Picture and Television Country House of complications from a bout with pneumonia. He had been hospitalized there since Jan. 25, suffering from the effects of a stroke he suffered 5½ years ago.

"I am deeply saddened," said Clayton Moore, who starred as the masked Lone Ranger in the long-running television series.

"He was a great man. He was a perfect gentleman and a true fighter for the Indian cause. I'm going to miss him very much. Jay had a great sense of humor and, believe me, I know all the world will miss Jay Silverheels as Tonto," Moore said.

Born Harold J. Smith on the Six Nations Indian Reservation in Ontario, Canada, he was given the name Silverheels by a Mohawk tribal elder. He used it as his stage name, legally changing his name to Silverheels nine years ago.

Arriving in Hollywood in 1933 as a professional lacrosse player and semi-professional hockey player, Silverheels by 1938 had turned to films as an extra at the urging of sports-minded actor Joe E. Brown.

A tireless supporter of Indian causes, Silverheels' first big screen role was as an Indian prince in "The Captain from Castille." He starred as the Indian chief Geronimo in three movies: "Broken Arrow," "Battle at Apache Pass" and "Walk the Proud Land." He played Tonto in all 221 televised episodes of the "Lone Ranger" and two Lone Ranger movies, riding through hundreds of death-defying adventures with his "kemo sabe" — Iroquois for faithful friend.

The ABC-TV series, a spin-off from Fran Striker's 1930s radio program, ran from 1949 to 1957. Rerun on CBS and NBC through 1961, it is still widely syndicated.

Among his other movie credits were "Key Largo," "True Grit," "The Man Who Loved Cat Dancing," and "The Will Rogers Story."

Last August, Silverheels became the first American Indian to have his star set in Hollywood's Walk of Fame.

Silverheels is survived by his wife, Mari DiRoma, and four children: Marilyn, Pamela, Karen and Jay Anthony. Funeral arrangements were pending.
