Carter, Reagan Sweep 3 Primaries

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

Solid in the South, President Carter and Ronald Reagan are girding for showdown contests in Illinois, seeking victories that could point their way to rival nominations for the White House.

For Democratic Sen. Edward Kennedy and for Reagan's Republican challengers, the Illinois presidential primary election next Tuesday has become a must. Unless Kennedy can stop Carter there, it will be hard for the Massachusetts senator to stop him at all.

Republicans George Bush and John B. Anderson face the same situation against Reagan.

Both Carter and Reagan enter Illinois bouyed by towering landslides in three southern states.

Reagan won big in Florida, Alabama and Georgia on Tuesday, trouncing Bush. Anderson, who didn't campaign, ran a distant third.

In the Southern primaries, Carter won bigger over Kennedy, who all but wrote off the competition in the president's home territory.

Meanwhile, former President Gerald R. Ford said today he has the best chance of any Republican to beat Carter and that he will decide whether to enter the race after next week's Illinois primary.

"There was a (ABC-Lou Harris) poll less than a week ago that laid it right on the line," Ford said in a CBS-TV interview. "That poll showed I could beat President Carter quite handily and that Gov. Reagan would most likely lose against President Carter. That's what the ball game is all about."

In the Southern primaries, Carter won big over Kennedy, who all but wrote off the competition in the president's home territory.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said today no Democrat can win the presidency without the support of the South.

"History shows us that no Democrat can win the presidency if he writes off a whole section of the country," Powell said in interviews on television news shows.

And Carter swept past Kennedy in Oklahoma's Democratic caucuses, winning by a 3-to-1 margin. Carter and Reagan were the early leaders as both parties caucused in Washington state.

In his own Georgia primary, Carter got 10 votes for every Kennedy ballot. That dwarfed Kennedy's victory margin in his home Massachusetts primary one week earlier.

"We whipped him," Carter told Georgia Gov. George Busbee.

Carter was quick to note that Kennedy had skipped the South. The president told supporters in Birmingham, Ala., by telephone that "it's not feasible to be elected unless you're a national candidate."

Lest anyone miss the message, White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said the Southern bye meant a Kennedy ticket would be doomed to failure because, "History shows us that no Democrat can win the presidency if he writes off a whole section of the country."

Carter won with 88 percent of the vote in Georgia, 82 percent in Alabama and 61 percent in Florida. One surprise there: Nine percent of the voters marked No Preference.

Kennedy came closest in Florida, and he only got 23 percent there, boosted by the support of Jewish voters angry with the Carter administration's admittedly mistaken vote for a U.N. resolution critical of Israel.

Patrick Lucey, deputy chairman of the Kennedy campaign, said the challenger got "about what we expected" in the South.

Lucey predicted that the campaign tide would turn when Carter is held accountable for the nation's economic woes. Kennedy has been saying that regularly. He needs to prove it in Illinois.

Reagan's GOP landslides were almost as hefty as Carter's margins.

He beat Bush 73 percent to 13 percent in Georgia, 69 percent to 26 percent in Alabama, and 57 percent to 30 percent in Florida.

Reagan captured 105 votes for the Republican presidential nomination to 9 for Bush. That gave Reagan a national total of 167 to 45 for Bush. It will take 998 to win the GOP nomination.

Budget Only A Formality

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although President Carter intends to make a balanced 1981 budget the centerpiece of his new anti-inflation strategy, almost no one expects it will do much to bring down the nation's inflation rate.

Then why is he bothering?

For one thing, he has do to something. For another, it's widely believed that government deficit spending is inflationary. And those who accept that premise will be reassured that Carter has done something.

The president may announce his anti-inflation program by Thursday. It's expected to include a balanced budget, selective credit controls and a new initiative to conserve energy.

Rep. Jim Wright, D-Tex., the House majority leader, said Tuesday that congressional leaders and administration officials have tentatively agreed on almost $15 billion in budget cuts for 1981, although there were reports Tuesday the cuts would range from $12 billion to $15 billion. White House officials say revenues also may be increased $5 billion.

Carter originally proposed a 1981 budget with a deficit of $15.8 billion. The government has not operated with a balanced budget since 1969.

One reason a balanced budget won't help much in the short term is that a major share of the nation's inflation is coming from high energy prices and high interest rates, neither of which would be directly affected.

Alice Rivlin, director of the Congressional Budget Office, said the reduction in inflation from a balanced budget could be measured in "tenths of a percent." That's not much from the recent annual rate of 18 percent, although that rate is expected to ease somewhat as the year wears on, even if nothing is done.

Critics of the balanced budget approach, and they are many, say that by balancing the budget, the administration will be trading little gain against inflation for reduced economic output and increased unemployment.

Critics also worry that the emphasis on the balanced budget may mislead inflation-weary Americans into expecting too much, with the result that an already disillusioned public may become even more so.

The chief reason the administration is frantic about dealing with inflation is concern that it could worsen. Financial markets have been in turmoil since the latest inflation reports and the release of Carter's red ink budget for 1981.

Charles L. Schultze, the president's chief economic adviser, said it is vital to keep higher energy prices from becoming locked into the nation's underlying inflation rate.

But there is dissent at high levels of the administration. Labor Secretary Ray Marshall, who is reluctant to speak out publicly, is among those who strongly oppose budget-cutting on grounds it will not significantly reduce inflation but will cause hardship for many Americans.

Pitt School Response Has Basic OCR Acceptance

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

Compliance with Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 was once again the major topic of discussion at the Pitt County Board of Education's monthly meeting on Tuesday afternoon.

The Title VI Compliance plan filed by Pitt County Schools with the Atlanta Office of Civil Rights was basically accepted. The plan, which was tentatively approved by the board at its February 14 meeting, calls for random heterogeneous grouping in kindergarten; two blocks of placement in math and reading in grades 1-3; four blocks of placement in grades 4-8, including math, reading, social studies, and science; and a selection system in high school. All placement is to be done by teacher evaluation and non-discriminatory testing.

Assistant Superintendent of Instruction Katheryn Lewis and Assistant Superintendent of Testing John McKnight presented the plan to the Office of Civil Rights in Atlanta in February. Said McKnight, "We went to OCR in Atlanta to present the plan, to explain it and to defend it. The plan was, on the whole, accepted. They did ask us to make certain changes and clarifications."

OCR asked for a description of how random heterogeneous grouping in kindergarten would be accomplished, and asked that the term "language arts" be changed to "reading."

OCR also mandated that the plan further describe how students who were grouped in low levels this year and may be grouped in higher levels next year will be dealt with. According to McKnight, "They just wanted some kind of plan of remediation — student tutoring student, teacher tutoring student, etc."

The plan called for placement of students based on 50 percent teacher evaluation and 50 percent testing. The teacher judgment weight was considered too heavy, and a placement based on 25 percent teacher grades and 75 percent standardized testing was suggested. Said McKnight, "The OCR believes 100 percent in test data, which is strange because most minority groups are against standardized testing."

According to the OCR, teachers must be rotated between strata on a yearly basis, a standard procedure for placing students who enroll after school has begun must be developed, and the way a student achieves mobility from one level to the next must be clarified. To comply with this, students will be completely reevaluated, retested and reassigned on a yearly basis.

The school system must also provide a detailed description of inservice offerings. "That description is being developed," explained McKnight. "What they want to know is what has been done in the past as far as service — for example, 'how to teach a black child,' or 'how to teach a white child.'"

"The only modification we could not go along with was a request we write in our plan that we would evaluate our program and that after three years, if we could not show evidence of improvement, we would have to go to random heterogeneous grouping," said McKnight. "OCR mandated that the standard of measurement for progress be that the very lowest student make the same progress as the very highest student.

"Mr. Speight feels that in this the OCR is overstepping their bounds. In other words, they have no legal way to make us do that type of evaluation with those types of standards."

"We were also assured of constant monitoring," added Katheryn Lewis.

Superintendent Ott Alford recommended that the board approve the changes with the exception of the latter. He then suggested they ask Research Triangle Institute to compile an evaluation plan. "Since we have a defensible plan in court, I think we should go ahead and make the changes and resubmit it with the exception of the last item," said the superintendent. "Hopefully, RTI can come up with a fair, unbiased evaluation plan."

Board member Robert A. Halstead commented, "We have met HEW head on and come up with a plan that takes a direction that doesn't betray any of our basic tenets. We have tried very hard to work with state and federal governments and we agreed not long ago we were

Boost Rates On Gas

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville Utilities Commission last night increased rates for natural gas, tracking increases in the cost of the product made by North Carolina Natural Gas, the commission's supplier.

The new rate for firm service customers will be 46.20 cents per hundred cubic feet, as compared with the old rate of 42.60 cents per hundred cubic feet. The new rate for interruptible service customers will be 40 cents per hundred cubic feet, up 7.5 cents from the old rate of 32.5 cents. The new rates will be in effect for all billings on or after March 1. The last natural gas rate increase was on September 1, 1979.

In other business last night, commission members discussed an electric cost-of-service study, a requirement of the federal government, and approved moving ahead with the study.

Commission members also heard reports on the sewer system evaluation survey, and were told the estimated completion date for the new sewage treatment plant is mid-September, 1984.

The commission also agreed to schedule a meeting to discuss the goals and objectives which were set by the City Council in January.

"ONE-CARAT EMERALD—$5"

I received a letter today from North American Minerals Ltd. of Hicksville, N. Y. offering me a "genuine one-carat emerald shipped from our vault to your home for $5." This "amazing offer" is supposedly a way to get new customers for the firm. Could it be legitimate? R. N.

It hardly seems likely, says a spokesman for the Fraud Section of the Postal Inspector's office in Washington, D. C. She said that no charges have been brought against the company at this time, but urged that you report your receipt of the mail offer from the company to the Postal Inspector for the Hicksville area. The address, she said, is Postal Inspector, Consumer Protection Section, P. O. Box 555, New York, N. Y. 10001.

She further suggested that any of our readers who receive information about what seem to be fradulent claims contact the Postal Inspector in the area in which the company is located. Addresses may be obtained from the Postal Inspector for one's own area, she said.

Not 'Lucky', But 'Blessed' In I-95 Traffic Pile-Up

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Highway Patrolman D. G. Twine, 29 of Roanoke Rapids said this morning that he was not lucky. "I was blessed," the trooper, who escaped from the twisted wreckage of his patrol car with bruises and abrasions, emphasized.

Twine was involved in a four-vehicle collision early yesterday on I-95 at the N.C. 481 interchange near Enfield, that caused almost $18,000 damage.

Capt. Carl Gilchrist, Highway Patrol Troop A commander said in Greenville this morning that the series of events which led to the collision began about 11:30 p.m. Monday, when a tractor-trailer truck went out of control during a thunderstorm and jackknifed, blocking the Southbound lanes of I-95.

Another tractor-trailer was used to pull the jackknifed rig to the right of the roadway to allow southbound traffic to pass on the inside lane. Twine had his patrol car parked behind the truck with his blue light and emergency flashers operating to warn oncoming drivers.

About 1:35 a.m., a car driven by Robert Fino, 24 of Brentwood, N.Y. approached the wreck site and moved to the inside lane to pass, and was struck in the rear by a tractor-trailer driven by Larry Edwin Guyton, 30 of Bladenboro. After colliding with the car, the Guyton truck swerved into Twine's patrol car, sandwiching Twine's vehicle between the two trucks.

Twine was the only person injured.

"I realized it was going to happen, the trooper said.

He explained, "I just got out of the car to put out some more (red) flares," and returned to the patrol car to continue work on his report of the 11:30 p.m. incident, when he glanced at his rear view mirror.

"I saw the car slowing down," to go around the jack-knifed truck, "and saw a tractor-trailer behind the car. I knew it was going too fast...knew it was going to hit the car."

Twine said he saw the Government Food Book: Will Kids Eat It Up?

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

The 1980 agricultural yearbook is designed to teach 9-to 12-year-olds better eating habits.

"What's to Eat? And Other Questions Kids Ask about Food" is a curious blend of history and information about growing food and getting it from producer to market — plus shopping and eating advice and all the things you find in activity books for children: crafts, games, puzzles, jokes and trivia.

Examples:

"He: Why did George Washington chop down the cherry tree?

"She: He couldn't find an apple tree."

Or:

"A nutritious first fact

"Apricots were the first fruits planted in California."

The first U.S. Department of Agriculture yearbook for children, a paperback with fancy color illustrations, has already been criticized by some members of Congress. They feel the 80th yearbook should hew to the purpose of most previous editions, helping farmers do their work.

Some drawings, including the cover, are unpleasant caricatures, more apt to offend than amuse children who are sensitive about appearances.

The book was researched, edited and written by a committee of USDA communications experts. The articles range from simplistic to straightforward. The television interview with Mr. Soybean and the two-act play about supermarket shopping might well interest younger children but be viewed as babyish by 12-year-olds.

The few recipes are hardly likely to appeal to the average 9-to 12-year-old, who might prefer starvation to eating a sandwich filling that includes raw mushrooms and raw onions, or such mixtures as a chicken salad containing celery, pecans and three varieties of fruit.

At least one grammatical error slipped past the editors:

Fast Facts About Fast Foods starts out: "Americans are eating less breads ..." instead of fewer.

The advice about dieting is commendable — but insufficient. It describes the "special diet quirks" of four superstar athletes, then adds: "But nutrition experts say that athletes don't really need to eat anything special at all." Most kids would be understandably skeptical about those anonymous experts and want to know why their heroes and heroines were wrong.

Another question the book asks, but doesn't answer: "Will spinach make me stronger?"

The book also suggests cutting down on sugar because it has no nutrient value, but neglects to point out that honey and syrups in large amounts should be no-nos for the same reason.

On the credit side: the final section, on home gardening, just might do more to interest children in eating vegetables than all the fact-crammed articles preceding it.

Copies of the 1980 USDA yearbook, "What's to Eat" And Other Questions Kids Ask about Food" are available for $4.50 each from Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Dept. 39-G, Washington, D.C. 20402. Members of Congress have limited numbers of the yearbook for free distribution to their constituents.

Postpone Marriage And Visit Doctor

By Abigail Van Buren

1980 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is engaged to marry a young man she went with all through high school. (She is 21 and he is 22.) He went overseas, but was sent home before his hitch was up because he had been having "blackouts." He spent several months in the hospital under observation, and was then discharged, but he still sees a psychiatrist once a month at the VA hospital here.

My daughter told me he has struck her several times lately. She said last night he slapped her hard across the mouth because she disagreed with him on some small thing. He cried and apologized afterward so she forgave him.

What worries me is that after they are married they will be living in another state and I am afraid of what he may do to her.

How can I get her to postpone her wedding until I am sure he is all right? Or should I just leave well enough alone and hope for the best? She says she loves him, but at times she's afraid of him.

I don't like to interfere, but I can't let my daughter make what could be a serious mistake. Should I contact the boy's doctor and ask him some questions? Please give me some advice.

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: Your daughter should postpone her marriage. She should ask to accompany her fiance on his next visit to the doctor, and together they should get a complete report on his condition and the prognosis. No girl should marry a man she is afraid of.

DEAR ABBY: After 27 years with me, my wife, Phyllis, is reasonably able to cope with weirdos of any stripe. She recently had an encounter with a flasher here at our railroad station in Connecticut, and I'd like to pass on her solution to the confrontation as a sort of primer for future victims.

Confronted by our Westport flasher, raincoat agape, my fashion-conscious wife glanced briefly at the man, then whispered to him, "Sorry, Shorty, I can't read the label on the coat," whereupon he angrily buttoned up and slunk off in a snit.

WESTPORT PETE

DEAR ABBY: You recently published a letter from the mother of a Mongoloid child in which she refers to him as "exceptional" and "special." I must thank you for printing such letters, since they always give me a good laugh.

Imagine having the gall to use words describing excellence, superiority and noteworthiness in reference to people with mental and physical deficiencies.

I can hardly wait for a SWAT team to discover that their "special" weapons are slingshots, or to hear of the shock of a teacher who has been refused tenure as a result of his or her "exceptional" work in the field of education.

WILLIAM G. ANDERSON, JR.

DEAR MR. ANDERSON: My Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary defines "exceptional" as "forming an exception: rare." Also, "better than average," and "below average."

And "special" is defined as "that which is distinguished by some unusual quality; being other than usual; unique."

I am always pleased when a reader "gets a good laugh" from something in my column, but the letter I published about the Down's-Syndrome (please, not "Mongoloid") child was not meant to be amusing. Furthermore, what gives you a good laugh strikes me as being funny — meaning "different from the ordinary." And more than a little cruel.

Sales at fast food outlets increased from $4.9 billion in 1963 to $19.7 billion in 1978, an increase of over 305 percent, adjusted for inflation.

Two Rose High Juniors Community Ambassador

COMMUNITY AMBASSADORS 1980 . . . Earlier this week, the Greenville Community Ambassador Committee chose two Rose High juniors as Greenville Community Ambassadors. The two are Veronica Wang and Robert C. Bright Jr. Ms. Wang will visit France and Bright will go to Sri Lanka.

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

For the first time in several years, two Rose High juniors have been named as Greenville Community Ambassadors.

Dorothy Wang and Robert C. Bright, Jr. are the two chosen to represent Greenville in overseas countries for 1980. The two were chosen earlier this week from eight candidates. They were selected by the Greenville Community Ambassador Committee, chaired by Dr. Richard C. Taft.

Ms. Wang is the daughter of Drs. Alfred S. and Veronica C. Wang. Both are professors of English at East Carolina University. Ms. Wang, whose favorite activity is playing the piano, was born in New Orleans, La. and has lived in Greenville most of her life. She likes traveling, and with her parents she recently visited the British Isles a couple of years ago. She is a member of the French, Math and Health Careers Club, is a Teen Demo, page one editor of the Rose High newspaper, and is a member of the First Presbyterian Church. She speaks French and some Chinese. She will be going to France.

Bright, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Bright, Sr., will be traveling as ambassador to Sri Lanka (formerly Ceylon). At Rose, his activities include photographer for the school newspaper, and membership in the French Club and the Teen Demos. His father is a stockbroker in Interstate Securities Corp. and his mother, Connie S. Bright, teaches at North Pitt High School. Bright likes to travel, and has been to Thailand, Hong Kong, Japan and Taiwan. He enjoys reading, especially science fiction, and his foreign language is French.

At a later date, the two will receive information on the families and locations within the countries of their choice that they will be visiting as ambassadors for Greenville.

The Community Ambassador program, inaugurated 16 years ago, has each year sent one or two rising seniors abroad for an experiment in international living.

Financial support for the program comes from funds raised from the public.

FOCUS

Skating Back To Detroit

For 25 years, starting in 1946, Gordie Howe thrilled Detroit sports fans as a hard-hitting, high-scoring, record-breaking hockey player with the Detroit Red Wings. Tonight, those fans get what may be their last chance to watch Howe in action, as Howe's current team, the Hartford Whalers, play the Red Wings in Detroit. Howe, who has played professional hockey in five different decades, turns 52 at the end of this month. Many people expect him to retire at the end of the season, but Howe has not yet announced his plans. Hockey is "more than a job to me," Howe says. "It's a way of life."

DO YOU KNOW — Who is the only other professional hockey player, besides Howe, to score 1,000 goals?

TUESDAY'S ANSWER — A football is sometimes called a "pigskin."

Urges Employing Of Older Worker

March 9-15 has been proclaimed by Mayor Don McGlohon as "Employ the Older Worker Week" in Greenville.

"I urge all employers in Greenville to consider carefully the skills and other qualifications of men and women age 40 and over when they hire new workers," McGlohon said in his proclamation.

"I also ask public officials responsible for job placement and related services to intensify their efforts throughout the year to help older workers find suitable jobs and training," he added.

According to the proclamation, "More than 78 million Americans are age 40 and older, and nearly 40 million are working or seeking work."

The mayor said that while most of the age 40 and over workers are regularly employed, "many who lise their jobs have great trouble finding new ones; and the search becomes more difficult as they grow older."

McGlohon mentioned, "The federal government and state of North Carolina are working to overcome widespread reluctance to hire older job seekers by making employers aware of a well-documented finding; by every common measure of job performance, older workers are at least as effective as younger people."

The president has designated the period as National Employ the Older Worker Week."

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Wayne County Tuesday became the latest to be added to Gov. Hunt's list of counties for which he has requested federal disaster relief in the wake of last week's heavy snowstorm.

Repairs Need Attention

Last week's snow proved one thing on the ECU campus — the Minges Coliseum roof is in terrible shape.

That was pretty well known on campus, since the roof has leaked for years whenever it rained. This time, though, the mountain of snow on the roof melted gradually, and the result was a steady downpour of water inside the building. It was so bad, that plastic covers had to be placed around in the building to protect flooring and equipment as best as possible.

The only answer to the problem is extensive repairs to the roof and James J. Lowry, maintenance and operations supervisor, says some $57,000 is needed for this. While the funds are available and a request for the use of the funds for the roof work has been made, it apparently takes time to get such things approved.

Whatever needs to be done to get the repairs underway should be done. Minges is a major facility and is heavily used on campus, as well as filling an area need for an indoor arena. The building shouldn't be allowed to deteriorate to the point where it could become no longer usable.

Embassy Atrocity Remains

Probably we should not be too surprised that efforts to free the innocent Americans held in Iran have fallen through.

Now the ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini has insulted the entire civilized world by using and rebuffing the United Nations special commission.

Iran's grievances concerning the shah deserve no world consideration so long as the atrocity at the American embassy in Tehran continues.

WAKE UP, AMERICA!

THIS AFTERNOON

Moving Into Peat

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Matters are moving cautiously ahead in North Carolina on the use of peat to fire electric generators.

The state's Electric Membership Cooperatives (EMC) and owners of First Colony Farms in Tyrrell, Hyde, Washington and Dare counties are negotiating the possible use of peat in a proposed generating plant in that area. Indications are that the considerations are positive.

The forest resources division of the state's Department of Natural Resources and Community Development asked for a study of the potential use of peat from the Research Triangle Institute.

A team of analysts at the research institute now reports that peat appears to be a viable energy source.

"Our best estimate for the cost of harvesting peat makes it compare very favorably with other fuels for generating electricity," said Rick Harwood, an economist at Research Triangle Institute.

Water

Peat results when organic matter decomposes under water so that the lack of oxygen causes decaying material to retain its carbon, which is flammable. Peat developed in the bogs of eastern North Carolina after the last ice age, when ridges of land were formed that trapped rainwater in bays. Hardwood forests decayed in the bogs. The depth of peat isn't known, but the peat area covers 1.2 million acres.

The bogs must be drained so that harvesting equipment can grind up the surface which is allowed to dry in the sun. The loose peat is then gathered. The process is repeated to the depth of the peat, which may be as much as six feet. After all the peat is harvested, the land is well suited for farming.

Peat is used for electric generators in Ireland, Finland and Russia, where it is produced at a cost cheaper than coal. Researchers report that harvesting in North Carolina should be possible at a competitive price because the harvesting season is longer (the ground must be unfrozen), and the warm sun will dry the peat for use in a much shorter time. In Europe it takes three to four weeks for the water to dry sufficiently. When harvested, peat is about 90 percent water.

The research team also took a close look at possible use of wood to fire a generating plant, but concluded that such a possibility is unlikely.

A benefit would be use of wood and waste as fuel, but it would cost about as much to haul the trash wood out to the generating site as it would to haul good wood; thus, the price would not be competitive with coal.

Forest

Also, a wood-fired generating plant would have to be extremely small, or else vast acres of forest would have to be used to fire it.

A small generating plant producing only a fourth or less as much power as a coal or nuclear plant would require a commitment of forestland in a 50-mile radius.

In the future, however, new means of harvesting wood and the production of wood pellets which can be readily shipped might make it economical to operate a wood-fired generator, researchers concluded, especially as the prices of other fuels increase.

Weddings On The Rocks

WASHINGTON — I'm not too sure of the statistics, but it seems to me that more and more young people are getting married these days. That's the good news. The bad news is that more and more of them are breaking up.

Ordinarily this would be their own business except for the fact that many of us have thousands of dollars tied up in wedding presents we bought for the couples at the time of the ceremony.

With the price of silver, crystal and china going skyhigh, there has to be some way of protecting the innocent, when a marriage goes awry.

A group of us were discussing this the other evening.

Melissa said, "Did you hear the Warbuck kids have split?"

"There goes 200 bucks worth of Waterford glass," Joe said. "I told Edwina not to go crazy just because the wedding reception was held at the Pierre."

"Well," said Edwina, "the Warbucks gave our kids a six-place setting of Spode last year."

"How are your kids doing?" someone asked.

"My daughter moved out of the apartment three months ago. She decided he wasn't for her."

"But they were only married last June! I know, because we still have the bill for the silver chafing dish we bought them."

Edwina got defensive. "I don't know why you should complain. We gave your son and daughter-in-law a Tiffany lampshade, and I understand she's now living with a rock star."

"If you think that's sad," Dinah said, "we gave the Benedict kids a Cuisinart three months ago and their marriage was just annulled. It didn't last as long as the warranty."

Ted said, "There has to be a better way of dealing with modern marriages. We can't just keep buying wedding presents for young people these days and seeing them go down the drain."

"What do you suggest?" I asked.

"Well, this may sound a little crazy, but why couldn't we give the gift to them on lease? As long as they remained married they could use the present, but if they broke up the gifts would revert back to us."

"It's a wild idea but it does have merit," Joe said. "We sure could use the Swedish steak knives we gave the Talberts."

Melissa said, "There's something tacky about giving a wedding present to a young couple and telling them it really isn't theirs. There should be an incentive for them to stay married. Suppose we told them that if they remained married for five years they would get title to the gift?"

Joe said, "That seems like a good bet. I don't know too many young couples who

40 Years Ago Today

Wednesday, March 12, 1912

Today is the 68th anniversary of Girl Scouting in America. On March 12, 1912, Juliette Low, the founder, began the first troop activities at her home in Savannah, Georgia. At that time, only a very few members participated. Today, the enrollments total 2½ million in America. There are Girl Scouts in 96 countries around the world, making up the World Association of Girl Scouts and Girl Scout Guides.

There had been little effort in this country to organize girls nationally along both recreational and educational lines. There had been an awakening to club life of all kinds, but many efforts had died by a lack of a creative program adapted to changing youth in a changing society. It was a very live idea that took root in Savannah that March day sixty-eight years ago. Older folks helped cultivate it, the youth loved it, until Girl Scouting spread over every state in the union and to its island possessions.

In recognition of the "Birthday of Girl Scouts in America" all 41 troops in Pitt County are scheduling special events throughout the week.

Other Editors Say Sparing The Rod

(Goldsboro News-Argus)

Judge Ben Allen may get static from some sources for sentencing two youths to be spanked for giving officers a hard time while being arrested.

But his honor has received praise from at least one source — a state prison.

Tommy Harris, an inmate at the prison camp in Wagram, wrote Judge Allen:

"As a convicted felon, I commend you for this very unique method of punishment.

"I know too well the early road that leads to more serious crime and hardships. If my parents had used the belt more often I probably wouldn't have fallen victim of my present predicament."

He said the humiliation endured by the guardians and the defendants in the recent cases in Wayne District Court should serve as a "strong deterrent".

"The Deterrent to crime starts in the home and if not administered properly and effectively, the destination is unfortunately prison," he added.

The prisoner's sentiments are pertinent and well expressed. It might be interesting to watch now to see if the spankings administered on orders of the court will, in fact, prove to be the deterrent in these two cases.

The suggestion that sparing the rod might spoil the child is not a new one. But we have the impression that corporal punishment is virtually a thing of the past in most homes.

Could it be that the reluctance of parents to punish their children has contributed to today's crime rate?

We are inclined to agree.

Too often parents can't bring themselves to spank their children because they can't stand the thought of "hurting" them.

But far greater hurt to both parents and children can be invited by leading children to believe that they do not have to suffer for their wrongdoing.

Strength For Today

COST OF ADMIRATION

What kind of grown up folks do young people most admire? Many would say that they particularly admire the good-natured, easy-going, tolerant, broadminded adults who take life easy themselves and want it to be easy for everyone else.

Sometimes people of this type are highly regarded. But more often the people most admired by young and old alike are the people who are demanding — who toe the line themselves and make everyone else do the same. But perhaps the most important characteristing of these people is that they believe something; they have a deep commitment and act upon it.

But the thing everyone requires in exchange for his admiration is that the admired person be sincere and just. No one likes a hypocrite and compromiser. Human beings do not want to be indulged; they want to be treated with dignity and fairness. And they want a sincre appreciation of their personal worth.

Jimmy Eyes Texas Votes

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The burly stranger seated at table No. 1 with President Carter and West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt at the White House state. dinner March 5 is the key to Carter hopes for carrying Texas in November: Peyton McKnight, a state senator and oil wildcatter who is one of the richest, most powerful men in east Texas.

McKnight has been an outspoken critic of Carter administration energy policies and votes the conservative line in the Texas legislature. But since following then Gov. Allan Shivers into support of Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower as a young legislator in 1952, McKnight has been a loyal Democrat.

Accordingly, he shunned pleas from his good friend, Republican presidential hopeful John B. Connally, and instead accepted the invitation of yet another Texan, Carter campaign chairman Robert Strauss (who was responsible for McKnight's seating at the Schmidt dinner). McKnight is raising funds for Carter from fellow oilmen (the amount fast approaching $100,000) and is one reason for optimism by Texas Democrats that the president can carry the state against any Republican except Connally.

Anderson's Third Party?

Republican leaders have their fingers crossed that Rep. John Anderson really meant it on NBC's "Today" program that he is considering a third-party independent race for president following his certain rejection for the Republican nomination.

It is much too late for Anderson to get on the ballot in many states as an independent candidate, but even a few will drain critical votes away from probable Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter. That's because Anderson's support in Republican primaries has come not from Republicans but from Democratic voters crossing over to back him as a bonafide liberal without Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's perceived character flaws.

A footnote: Middle-road Republican congressmen who had backed Anderson for House party leadership are furious with his statement that he could not support any Republican presidential candidate who opposes the SALT II treaty. That covers every Republican hopeful but Anderson.

Byrd Tops Environmentalists

The fact that President Carter on March 5, after weeks of indecision, decided against the environmentalist lobby on coal conversion regulations can be attributed in large part to one of the most powerful figures in Washington: Sen. Robert Byrd of West Virginia, majority leader of the Senate.

As Carter vacillated and agonized over what to do, Byrd was on the telephone nagging for the president to decide. The senator, representing a major coal-producing state, made clear how much he wanted that decision to favor an Energy Department scheme and oppose a rival plan by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

The EPA version would have made the present Clean Air Act provisions even more stringent in converting utilities from oil to coal. EPA Administrator Douglas Costle pressed hard on this theme in sometimes heated meetings, playing on Carter's environmental concerns. But whatever the president's philosophical inclination, he ultimately heeded Byrd's counsel in an election year.

Jesse's Back With Ron

One positive result for Ronald Reagan's presidential campaign from his sacking of John Sears as campaign chairman was movement toward ending Reagan's nearly four-year estrangement from Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina.

Helms and his astute political adviser, Tom Ellis, were mainly responsible for Reagan's North Carolina primary upset win in 1976 that brought him back from certain defeat by Gerald Ford. But Ellis and Helms clashed so heatedly with Sears at the Kansas City convention that Reagan and

Potential Inflation Sources

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — If you wonder where inflation comes from you might refer to a study of 1978 Congressional activity by an authoritative panel of the National Association of Business Economists.

It focuses on one of the potential sources.

After reviewing the 387 nonappropriations bills passed in the second session of that Congress, the 95th, the economists found 140 were moderately or significantly inflationary and only 28 deflationary.

The only bill seen as "significantly deflationary" was the Airline Deregulation Act, which began the phaseout of federal controls in that industry over a seven-year period.

Twenty three apropriations bills also were evaluated. Twenty-two were judged inflationary, the lone exception being the recission of $463 million appropriated in 1977 to build two B-1 bombers.

"Most of the bills were not by themselves very significant," said George McKinney, panel chairman. "But taken together, their impact will be felt in the pocketbook of every American consumer."

These are the eight bill considered significantly inflationary:

—The Emergency Farm Bill, PL95-279, which raised permissible target prices paid farmers for diverting land from production.

—PL95-334, which expanded federal credit assistance to farmers and other rural residents.

—A $4 billion military construction bill, PL-95-356.

—PL95-483, which sharply limited comptition from vessels owned or controlled by the Soviet government in shipping between the U.S. and other nations.

—The Humphrey-Hawkins Full Employment Act, PL95523, which set a national goal of 4 percent unemployment by 1983.

—PL95-588, bill that increased veterans' pensions.

—PL95-599, which authorized $54 billion in federal aid for highways and mass transit during the next four years.

—The tax reduction bill, PL95-600, that lowered taxes last year by $19 billion.

Reviewing the list, many Americans are likely to be torn between what they see as worthwhile goals and the high price of those goals. Some will find themselve at war with themselves. To spend? Or not to spend?

Encouraged by the response to their survey of 1978 bills, McKinney and his panel decided to analyze Congress' activitty ibn 1979. And, said McKinney yesterday, Congress may be changing.

Speaking for himself rather than the panel's other economists or for the association, McKinney, senior vice president of Irving Trust Co., said he perceived a shift away from the inflationary attitudes of 1978.

"The guys were confused," he said of last year's Congress. "They were trying to back away from spending." Whether the other panel members arrive at the same conclusion will be known on March 25.

On that date the economists will release a full analysis of the inflationary or deflationary impact of Congress in 1979.

Rose High Quiz Bowl Team Going Into Finals

Rose High School and Currituck County Schools will have their Quiz Bowl '80 teams going to the state final competition on Saturday, April 19. Currituck County's team captured top place in the Greenville Regional Compeition held Saturday, March 8, and Rose High was runner up. Seven teams from the eight county area took part in the regional event held at the Library-Recreation Complex at 2 p.m. last Saturday.

Eight teams, two each from four regional contests statewide, will compete in the April state finals.

In the first rounds of competition last Saturday, Currituck County and Tarboro High Schools were paired, with Currituck scoring 240 and Tarboro 150.

Northeastern High School and Albemarle Academy, both of Elizabeth City, were paired, with Northeastern scoring 100 and Albemarle Academy marking up a 140 score.

In the playoff between Currituck and Albemarle Academy, Currituck's score was 170, and Albemarle's 140.

The initial pairing phase also had J. H. Rose High School competing against Manteo High School. Rose outpaced Manteo by 190 to 180, and then competed against J. A. Wilkinson High School of Belhaven with that round giving Rose a score of 190, and Wilkinson 130.

This left Currituck and Rose as the top two of the seven teams, and in the play-off between them, Currituck scored 220 to become the champion Quiz Bowl '80 team, with Rose taking the runner-up place with 190 points.

Team members of the champion Currituck team are Mitchell Morris, Celeste Gore, Timothy Owens, and Tracy Simple. Alternates are Kevin Fairley and Willard Doxey.

Rose team members are Mark Grossnickle, Fred Parham, Susan Vick, and Dorothy Wang. Alternates are Greg Whitener, Meg Cain, Kevin Clark, and Elizabeth Ito.

Police List 2 Accidents

An estimated $3,150 property damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated here yesterday by Greenville Police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 5:15 Boulevard, 175 feet East of the Emerson Road intersection, involving cars driven by James Lind McMahan of Route 1, Winterville, and Patricia Dixon Beddard of Route 3, Washington.

Damage from the collision was set at $1,000 to the McMahan car and $1,500 to the Beddard auto by investigators who charged McMahan with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident.

A 9:56 a.m. collision on Greenville Boulevard at the Pitt Plaza - Greenville Square entrance intersection, involved cars driven by Gail Lynn Porter of 106 Sarah Ln. and Mary Little Fleming of 1304 Colonial Ave.

Damage was estimated at $500 to the Porter car and $150 to the Fleming auto.

Smuggling?

EDENTON, N.C. (AP) — A joint investigation by federal, state and local law enforcement officers will be conducted in the Chowan County town of Edenton in the wake of reports that drugs are being smuggled into the area.

Chowan County Sheriff Troy Topin said Tuesday the reports indicated that drugs are being smuggled into the Edenton area by water and air.

Topin said he will share information he has received about drug trafficking with agents of the U.S. Customs Service and the State Bureau of Investigation.

Chowan County commissioners discussed the matter Monday night. Chairman C.A. Phillips said he suspected planes and boats of bringing marijuana into the area.

Topin, who was not present at the meeting, said he had been aware of the reports since last summer.

have stayed together that long."

I also liked the notion but I said, "How do we do it legally?"

Eddie, the lawyer in the group, said, "We can draw up a lease contract which they can sign on their wedding day. We'll hold the parents responsible if they refuse to give the gift back. If the idea catches on we could get sheriff's deputies to actually pick the stuff up. They do it with automobiles; they can certainly do it for wedding presents."

"What I like about the idea," said Edwina, "is that it will impress on the young people that marriage is a very serious business, and if two young people don't work at it, they have a good chance of losing their Corningware."

the North Carolinians have been at arm's length ever since.

Sears' departure changes everything. Helms, who once seemed moving toward John B. Connally, may soon meet Reagan for the first time in years. Ellis, who once toyed with support for Rep. Philip Crane, is now organizing a committee that will raise funds for Reagan and support him independently of his regular campaign.

Reagan's Thin Staff

An unsuccessful effort was made to reinforce the Reagan political staff, badly depleted by the purge of campaign manager John Sears and his associates, with famed Republican operative F. Clifton White.

White, principal architect of Barry Goldwater's 1964 campaign, opposed Ronald Reagan in 1976 but is a close friend of Sears' replacement, William Casey. However, White begged off any active role in the Reagan campaign on doctor's orders.

The Reagan campaign also failed to enlist Charles Black, one of Sears' lieutenants who fell in the purge, as a paid consultant. Black said he would give advice when asked, but without pay and not on a regular basis; in other words, thanks but no thanks. That leaves the campaign shy of experienced party professionals.

Israeli Release Six Arab Prisoners

By ARTHUR MAX
Associated Press Writer

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel freed six Arabs from prison as a good-will gesture to Egypt but defied the U.N. Security Council and the United States by seizing 1,100 acres in the Arab sector of Jerusalem for Jewish housing.

Finance Minister Yigal Hurvitz signed an order expropriating the land for a housing development connecting two Jewish neighborhoods in northern Jerusalem.

The seizure came nine days after the U.N. Security Council condemned Israeli settlements on Arab territory occupied after the 1967 war, including East Jerusalem, which Jordan seized in the 1948 war.

The United States voted for the resolution, but President Carter said later the vote was a mistake and the United States should have abstained unless all references to Jerusalem were removed from the resolution. His disavowal failed to appease the outraged Israeli government and parliament, which rejected the resolution and reaffirmed their policy that Jerusalem would remain united forever under Jewish sovereignty.

Government spokesman David Bar-Haim said he believed the 1,100-acre bloc was the largest tract seized since the 1967 war. Since then 10 Jewish neighborhoods housing 55,000 people have been built in East Jerusalem, and housing for 23,000 more are under construction.

Bar-Haim said 30 percent of the 1,100 acres belonged to Jews and the rest to Arabs or the government. He said most of the land was uninhabited, on mountain slopes overlooking the Judean desert east of the Jerusalem-Ramallah highway.

The housing complex will link the Jewish neighborhoods of Neve Yaacov, which has 6,000 residents, and French Hill, which has 10,000, and stretch east of the Arab neighborhoods of Beit Hanina and Shuafat. Neve Yaacov residents have complained they were isolated from other Jewish neighborhoods.

Bar-Haim said property owners will be compensated according to the value set by the government assessor. He said owners can appeal the assessment to the courts. He did not say when or how the compensation would be paid.

The expropriation order angered Jerusalem Mayor Teddy Kollek, who was sponsoring a plan to expropriate less than half the acreage and build both Jewish and Arab housing on it. Kollek said the government's action tarnished Israel's image abroad.

Meanwhile, the government freed four Egyptians and two Palestinians convicted of anti-Israeli activity. The Egyptians were released near Al Arish, in the northern Sinai Desert, which Israel returned to Egypt last May, but the Palestinians remained in Israeli-occupied Arab territory.

Complains Maltreated

MONROE, La. (AP) — An attorney for 44 jailed Iranian students says they are not getting the care or sustenance they need during their hunger strike, now in its sixth day.

And Marion White says that is why three others — two of whom apparently told authorities their names for the first time Tuesday — left jail on bonds of $100 to $600.

"Some people get so ill they can't withstand it any longer, and the others remain," he said. "They're not getting proper care and attention, and they're not getting the proper water."

He said hot sugared water is the best thing to drink while fasting, but the students often get it cold because the jail runs out of hot water.

Police Chief Willie Buffington said the students, who have refused all food since they were arrested during the disruption of a speech by a former Iranian diplomat, were checked regularly to make sure they were well.

Bond was set at $100 each for 10 students arrested on trespass charges after a demonstration broke up a speech Thursday by Ferydoun Hoveyda, ambassador to the United Nations under the deposed shah.

Another 35 who refused to give their names were booked on an additional charge of resisting a police officer and held on $600 bond.

Socialist Workers Party Sues To Get On Ballot

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A federal lawsuit has been filed by the Socialist Workers Party, which is seeking to get on the North Carolina general elections ballot.

The suit, filed Tuesday in U.S. Middle District Court, calls for a temporary injunction against state and county officials who have rejected the party's petition to get on the ballot.

The party is challenging a requirement that it pay a fee of 5 cents for each signataure it has obtained on petitions for a place on the ballot.

Named as defendants in the suit are James W. Armentrout, chairman of the Forsyth County Board of Elections; Sarah W. Harbin, chairman of the Guilford County Boards of Elections; the state Board of Elections and its director, Alex Brock.

The Guilford County Board of Elections on Friday rejected the group's petition to get on the ballot because the party had not paid the 5-cents fee for each name on the petition. The fee is required by state law for verification.

The Forsyth County Board of Elections took similar action earlier last week when the socialist group tried to file a petition bearing 6,528 names.

Party spokesman Douglas Cooper said the suit contends the actions of the election boards, in refusing the petitions, "violated our Constitutional rights" and party members' rights "under the Bill of Rights, such as right of association and also right to run for office, regardless of whether we can afford it."

Cooper said the temporary injunction would allow the names on his party's petitions to be processed without the group having to pay the fees.

He identified the plaintiffs in the suit as Rebecca Finch of Winston-Salem, who plans to run against Democratic incumbent U.S. Senator Robert Morgan; and Jeffrey Miller of Winston-Salem, who has said he will run against incumbent Democratic Rep. Stephen Neal of the Fifth District.

Cooper said his group could not afford to pay the estimated $1,000 to have the petition's signatures verified.

"We're unable to pay that fee. We have already spent a large amount of money going around the state, getting the petitions printed and signed," Cooper said, explaining that the party collected 18,246 signatures in 99 counties.

The party needed only 10,000 names on a petition to get on the ballot, but his party got nearly twice the number it had to have "so there would be no doubt," said Cooper, who has said he plans to run for governor.

The socialist group will be represented in the lawsuit by Ervin Joyner, a Raleigh lawyer. Cooper said the party has received the support of the North Carolina Civil Liberties Union and others, who will be identified later.

City Council Agenda Set

A public hearing to consider the adoption of a resolution defining a downtown municipal service district for downtown revitalization purposes highlights the agenda for Thursday's City Council meeting.

In addition to the service district consideration, the Council will hold public hearings on: the annexation of the area of Arlington Boulevard, Red Banks Road, and NC 43; and an amendment to the Thoroughfare Plan to reflect the location of Arlington Boulevard from US 264 Business and US 13 to the Stantonsburg Road.

Other business on the agenda includes: consideration of two applications for renewal of mobile home permits; consideration of two amendments to the 1979-80 budget; consideration of a resolution closing a portion of Spruce Street, between Raleigh Avenue and 14th Street;

Consideration of a street resurfacing priority list; consideration of a resolution establishing street and highway priorities to be presented to the State Department of Transportation for the seven-year highway improvement program;

Consideration of recommended changes in transit bus routes one and two; consideration of a contract for architectural-engineering services for the transit garage addition to the Public Works facility;

Consideration of a Traffic Commission recommendation; scheduling of eight items for public hearings; request for a privilege license waiver; application for an off-premise beer and wine privilege license; consideration of bids; release of 1979 taxes; consideration of a revised Personnel Policies Ordinance;

Consideration of a recommendation by the Recreation and Parks Commission for a closing time of 11 p.m. for recreation facilities; consideration of an ordinance rescinding a resolution and re-establishing the Greenville Energy Commission;

Consideration of an ordinance amending Chapter 31 of the City Code relative to towing motor vehicles; and adoption of a resolution amending the resolution approved in January regarding statements of philosophy and goals for the city, by revising the statements and adding a new goal relative to fair housing.

N.C. Connally Backers Expect Reagan To Benefit

By The Associated Press

North Carolina leaders of John Connally's presidential campaign, with their candidate now out of the picture, say Ronald Reagan stands heir to a majority of the former Texas governor's support in the state.

"I'm still crying," Eric Little of Chapel Hill, who spent months putting together a 150-member Connally steering committee in the state Tuesday.

"I don't know that I'll do a great deal of anything now," he added. "I think most of our people will support Reagan."

Others active in the Connally campaign expressed similar sentiments following his withdrawal from the race, but some were awaiting further primary results before deciding whether to back Reagan, George Bush or another candidate.

But most agreed Reagan, already the acknowledged leader for North Carolina's 40 GOP delegates, was strengthened by Connally's decision.

"I'll back Reagan. I'll work for him," said Allie Ray McCullen of Clinton, one of 10 North Carolina Republicans who was on Connally's national steering committee. "I think the vast majority of us will go for Reagan.

"Senator (Jesse) Helms' endorsement (of Reagan) will be a big factor. I'd say today, Reagan would come out a big winner," he added.

Former Congressman Wilmer "Vinegar Bend" Mizell, chairman of the Connally campaign in North Carolina, is closing the state headquarters at Winston-Salem and said he is undecided on which candidate to back now. But even Mizell, who backed Gerald Ford against Reagan in 1976, acknowledged Reagan would be the major heir to the Connally support.

Art Jackson, head of the Reagan campaign in North Carolina, said he has not contacted backers of Connally or the other major GOP candidate to withdraw, Tennessee Sen. Howard Baker. "Certainly we welcome any of these folks with us," he said. "They made a determination to do that on their own."

Supporters of George Bush were not conceding the support, however.

"We're getting some support. We should do well among the Baker people," said Larry Cobb of Charlotte, head of the Bush campaign.

Herb Luntz of Fayetteville, state chairman of the Baker campaign, said he would seek election as an uncommitted delegate to the Republican National Convention, and that other Baker loyalists would do the same.

Despite former President Ford's indications he may become a candidate, little support has been generated for him in North Carolina.

Former Gov. Jim Holshouser, Ford's southern campaign coordinator in 1976, said he did not expect a push for Ford in the state since he cannot get on the primary ballot.

Seek Probe Of Deficit

PRINCEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Princeville town officials say they will ask the State Bureau of Investigation to look into a $75,000 deficit in the town budget that apparently led to the firing of the town manager.

Mayor Pro Tem Jesse Baker said Tuesday he would request an SBI investigation by the end of the week.

The decision to seek SBI assistance comes on the heels of a 7-0 vote Monday night to fire town manager Joe Goodson. Council members say the firing was largely because of the deficit.

Baker called the deficit the worst in the history of the Edgecombe County town.

"We're going to stop some of this rampant spending," he said.

After an audit at the end of the 1978-79 fiscal year showed the town to have a $54,000 deficit, the council asked that a financial statement for the town be prepared at the end of the first six months of the current fiscal year.

That report showed the deficit was increasing, according to board member James Bridgers.

Bridgers, who called the special meeting, said he thought the deficit was a case of mismanagement. Five members of the 12-member board did not attend the meeting.

Police Find Warm Body

NEW YORK (AP) — After a still-warm, headless human torso was found in a shopping cart near a busy intersection, police followed a trail of blood three blocks through midtown Manhattan to a nearby apartment building.

Police said the torso was discovered Tuesday at the intersection of 48th Street and Ninth Avenue. They followed the bloody trail through the Theater District to the Radio City Apartments off Seventh Avenue.

A doorman at the building, Isidore Soto, said he had seen a woman tenant carry a bag out the front door about 8 p.m. Police said they had searched an apartment where a man and woman lived.

The remaining body parts, the head, arms and legs, were found about six hours later, stuffed in two plastic garbage bags in trash containers in the neighborhood, said detective Sgt. Patrick Biggins.

"Hopefully, now we'll be able to identify the victim," he said.

"God forbid I've got the head and torso from two different bodies."

The torso and other parts were removed to the Manhattan Medical Examiner's Office. Biggins said the forensic doctors would be the "only ones to that can tell us more about this guy."

The apartment building's front lobby, decorated with chandeliers and mirrors, was marred by what looked like bloodstains on the floor.

Soto, the doorman, would not identify the woman but said she returned a while after leaving with the bag and was smiling.

"She looked happy," he said.

Police would not identify the woman or say if she was a suspect in the case.

"We're still sifting through everything," Biggins said. "We'll know more once we know who the victim is."

Garwood Lawyers Eye Desertion Count Dismissal

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — Lawyers for Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood hope to use a collection of anti-American statements and tapes made by American prisoners in Vietnam to defend Garwood against charges of desertion and collaboration with the enemy in Vietnam.

A court-martial for the 33-year-old Indiana native is scheduled to resume at 8:30 a.m. today. It opened Tuesday with an administrative session where his lawyers announced the basics of their defense.

"The Vietnam War was specifically different from other wars," Capt. Dale Miller said, referring to the prisoner of war situation during the Vietnam War.

Garwood's lawyers said they plan to seek dismissal of the charges against Garwood on grounds of selective prosection because no other former POW has ever been tried on charges stemming from Vietnam.

The defense is seeking tapes and statements used as propaganda by the Vietnamese communists in hopes of showing that Garwood was merely one of many prisoners who cooperated out of fear.

"The defense's position is that in order to determine exactly what the definition of collaboration is ... we feel it's relevant that the defense should have in front of it other examples of conduct by POWs," Miller said.

Col. Robert E. Switzer, the military judge presiding at the Garwood court-martial, made no decision Tuesday on the defense request for those tapes and statements.

But Switzer set March 26 as the date for hearing several motions which defense lawyers said Tuesday they would file.

Included in the motions are three that seek dismissal of the charges on grounds of selective prosecution, lack of jurisdiction, and the military allegedly interfering with Garwood's ability to defend himself by withholding nearly $147,000 in back pay.

Garwood's lawyers said they also planned to file motions seeking a change of venue and requesting a trip to Vietnam to gather evidence.

The first session of the court-martial, which continued today, dealt only with administrative matters and legal motions. A recess is likely until the March 26 hearing date and it will probably be sometime in April before prosecutors present their first witness against Garwood.

Garwood, a 19-year-old jeep driver when he disappeared near Danang in 1965, returned to the United States last March and declared he had been held prisoner for nearly 14 years. But former prisoners of war are prepared to testify that Garwood helped the communists by guarding other Americans and acting as an endoctrinator.

Can't Resist A Real Deal

HOLYOKE, Mass. (AP) — Offer someone "a deal" and they'll beat a path to your door.

On Friday, postal clerk Paul Cassidy stuck a sign up next to his window that read: "Susan B. Anthony dollars — limit two per customer."

People immediately began lining up to swap their paper bills. "One man even asked, 'If I get back in line, can I get two more?'" Cassidy told the Holyoke Transcript-Telegram. "I told him I would give him two more right then."

The public has been slow to accept the new coins because they are about the size of a quarter and are often confused in change-making.

The Treasury Department recently paid a New York advertising company to get the coins circulating to no avail. So the Treasury and the Postal Service decided to get the coins moving by giving them out as change at the nation's post offices. Then came the order that clerks could give them out only if people asked for them.

Hardly anyone did.

Cassidy, however, put about $50 worth of the coins into circulation in one afternoon.

tired of it. We would like for Mr. Alford to present the details to Congressman Jones so he may use it and be aware of it. I thank Katheryn Lewis and John McKnight for some splendid work in trying days."

The board unanimously approved the changes with the exception of the evaluation procedure and standards.

In other business, the board also voted its support for state funds being appropriated to the school systems to sustain athletic programs. "I think we should support this $2.5 million dollars to help support extracurricular activities. The athletic programs are really draining the schools since gas to games is so expensive. The amount will be around $5 per child," said the superintendent.

A resolution dealing with the proposed four laning of U.S. 11 and 13, mentioned at the last meeting, was read and approved. The resolution stated that the median on the road should be kept to 20 feet, four laning at North Pitt High School should be done entirely on the east side of the present roadway, and the four laning should be interchanged from east to west to cause as little disruption to homeowners as possible.

The board passed a resolution supporting a state bond issue of $600 million.

Calender procedures for next year were outlined and March 18-26 were designated for testing. The exact dates of tests were left up to the individual schools. "I would urge you not to approve a plan that involves the kids being tested all day," said Superintendent Alford.

The board also discussed the new nine week grading period and considered changing back to the six week grading period. Board members reported that kindergarten teachers prefer the nine week periods, but that teachers in grades 7-12 prefer the six week periods.

Said Board Member James Black, "Parents feel the same way in many cases. I think the parents are concerned about missing reports." The board resolved to conduct a survey examining the wishes of persons in the school system.

The board also voted to ask the state for one day of non made-up snow time and to use April 3, originally scheduled as a teachers' workday, for a school day. The teachers' workday will come at the end of the year.

A plaque of appreciation and recognition was presented to J.B. Congleton. "This is an honor," he responded. "I've enjoyed the time I've served on this board. "A plaque recognizing Ott Alford's work with the library/media system was presented to the superintendent.

Katheryn Lewis reported on the accelerated math programs in grades 6-8, the plans for project PROMISE, and the work of the Administrative Placement Committee in placing exceptional students.

Dan Thomas, finance officer, reported on an amended budget resolution and presented the 1978-79 audit report.

truck collide with approaching car, then swerve.

Twine continued, "I saw the tractor-trailer hit the car...saw it jack-knife," enter the right (outside) lane, and, "angle toward me.

"I saw it the whole time...hit me from the rear," pushing the patrol car into the tractor-trailer in front of it.

"I was hoping it would stop before it reached the drivers seat," Twine, who said he tried to lay down in the seat, explained.

Following the collision, Twine said he climbed out of his car through the right side window.

The patrol car, valued at more than $6,000, was listed as a total loss, while damage to the Guyton truck was set at $6,000. Damage to the Fino car was estimated at $800, while damage to the first tractor-trailer, driven by Dennis Arthur League of Haleyville, Ala., was set at $5,000.

Twine was admitted to Halifax Memorial Hospital at Roanoke Rapids for observation, after being treated for bruises and abrasions at Nash General Hospital in Rocky Mount.

Arrest Man On Drug Charges

Pitt County deputies arrested a 27-year-old Rt. 3, Washington man and charged him on two marijuana possession counts.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that deputies arrested Perry James Morgan on Highway 43 and 11 on charges of felonious possession of marijuana and felonious possession with intent to deliver.

According to the sheriff, deputies confiscated approximately five pounds of marijuana, with an estimated street value of $1,000 to $1,500, as well as a jeep operated by Morgan.

Bond for Morgan was set at $5,000, Sheriff Tyson said, and a hearing will be scheduled in District Court here.

How Tar Heel Representatives, Senators Voted

Roll Call
Report Service

WASHINGTON— Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Feb. 28-Mar. 5.

HOUSE

FEDERAL SPENDING — By a vote of 220 for and 176 against, the House approved a $257,449 increase in one part of the House Rules Committee budget for 1980. This is a 72 per cent increase over 1979 for this section of the committee budget. Overall, the Rules Committee expects to spend more than $1.2 million in 1980.

The vote, on H. Res. 552, was one of a series that raised budgets of 21 House committees by $5.3 million over 1979 levels.

Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y., a supporter of the increases, said: "If we do not have the manpower and technical resources to keep an eye on the bureaucracy, then we are simply not doing the job."

Rep. William Dannemeyer, R-Calif., an opponent, said the House must "set an example for the American people to demonstrate that we really are concerned and sincere about reducing the cost to the taxpayers in government any place we can find."

Members voting "yea" favor a 72 per cent hike in one part of the 1980 Rules Committee budget.

Reps. Ike Andrews, D-4, Richardson Preyer, D-6, Charles Rose, D-7, and Lamar Gudger, D-11, voted "yea."

Reps. Charles Whitley, D-3, Stephen Neal, D-5, W.C. Hefner, D-8, James Martin, R-9, and James Broyhill, R-10, voted "nay."

Reps. Walter Jones, D-1, and L.H. Fountain, D-2, did not vote.

ELECTION FRAUD — The House voted, 241 for and 153 against, to dismiss a complaint that Rep. Claude Leach, D-La., won his seat in 1973 because his supporters bought votes. The vote, on H. Res. 575, was virtually along party lines, with Democrats voting for and Republicans against.

Leach's Republican opponent, Jimmy Wilson, says the congressman's 266-vote victory should be ruled invalid because of charges that $5 payments were made to more than 400 voters. Leach was acquitted of vote-buying charges in federal court; 22 other defendants have entered guilty pleas.

Rep. John Burton, D-Calif., who supported dismissing the complaint, said there is no proof that enough votes were bought to affect the outcome of the election.

Rep. Samuel Devine, R-Ohio, an opponent, called rejection of the election challenge "another example of the majority party sweeping allegations of wrongdoing under the rug."

Members voting "yea" favor upholding Leach's election.

Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Preyer, Rose, Hefner and Gudger voted "yea."

Martin and Broyhill voted "nay."

Jones and Neal did not vote.

REFUGEES — By a vote of 207 for and 192 against, the House approved the conference report on a bill (S 643) raising from 17,500 to 50,000 the minimum number of refugees allowed into the U.S. The impetus for the bill is the surge of people fleeing Indochina.

Under the bill, which was sent to the White House, a president can permit more than 50,000 refugees into the country after consultation with Congress. The conference report omitted House-approved language permitting a "legislative veto" of any presidential effort to go above 50,000, and this omission caused many members to oppose the legislation.

Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., a supporter, called the bill "one of the most important pieces of humanitarian legislation ever enacted by a U.S. Congress."

Rep. Caldwell Butler, R-Va., an opponent, said the legislative veto should have been kept in the bill because "it would restore to the Congress ... control of the number of refugees, and that is where the Constitution places it."

Members voting "yea" want more refugees allowed into the U.S.

Neal and Preyer voted "yea."

Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Rose, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and Gudger voted "yea."

Jones did not vote.

SENATE

'FEDS' V. STATES — The Senate passed, 55 for and 36 against, a bill giving the federal attorney general authority to file suits in behalf of persons allegedly mistreated in state mental hospitals, prisons and other institutions. Federal intervention would be justified on grounds that an individual's constitutional rights had been violated. The bill (HR 10) was sent to conference with the House.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., a supporter, said the bill would benefit "those people who do not have anybody to bring a suit for them," such as "children tied to their beds ... choked to death ... adults wrapped up in restraints, strait jackets, for months at a time."

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., an opponent, said "the federal government had better clean up its own institutions before they go calling upon the states and trying to control the institutions in the states."

Senators voting "yea" want the Justice Department to be able to initiate suits in behalf of persons in state institutions.

Sens. Robert Morgan, D, and Jesse Helms, R, voted "nay."

UNEMPLOYMENT BENEFITS — The Senate rejected, 23 for and 69 against, an amendment to allow a person to receive unemployment compensation at the same time he or she gets a pension based on work for the former employer. Left standing by this vote is a new prohibition against simultaneous receipt of full jobless and pension benefits stemming from service with the same employer. The prohibition, due to take effect Mar. 30, does not affect pension benefits from jobs unrelated to the unemployment claims.

The vote came during debate on a bill (HR 4612) dealing with federal benefits for disabled children and the unemployed. The bill was sent to conference with the House.

Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., a supporter of the amendment, said it was "the height of inequity to deprive (individuals) of unemployment compensation to which they are rightfully entitled..."

Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., an opponent, said "it is not right for that person, who just retired, to go down and then draw unemployment compensation."

Senators voting "nay" favor the prohibition due to take effect Mar. 30.

Helms and Morgan voted "nay."

Granny Has The Muscle

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Beware of Alene Motz. At 5-foot-2 and a mere 38 years old, she's anything but your kindly gray-haired granny — especially if somebody wants to arm wrestle.

Sometimes, she says, "one of those big football player types from the University (of Cincinnati)" will challenge her.

"I always warn them that I am in training. But they still think they can take me. Well, when I slam them, they get slightly embarrassed, especially if there's a girl around."

If those guys had seen Mrs. Motz' trophy case, they would know better than to challenge her.

She won top honors in 16 states and was runnerup in the women's division of the world arm wrestling championship.

Mrs. Motz trains several days a week at a tavern in nearby Cincinnati because "I can't find a woman with enough strength to give me any good competitions."

Mrs. Motz, who became a grandmother last December, said she doesn't think there's anything unladylike about the sport.

"Heck, arm wrestling isn't any more unladylike than throwing a black ball down an alley, or slapping a little ball around with a stick," she said. "You can be involved in a physical sport like this, and still keep your femininity."

Kinston's TRW Plant Schedules Phase-Out

KINSTON — TRW Inc. announced plans for a phase out of its electronic component manufacturing plant here by July.

The Cleveland, Ohio based firm said portions of the Kinston business will be transferred to other facilities. Some 200 persons are employed at the plant, located at 317 N. McLewean Street.

TRW began operations in Kinston in 1975. The plant manufactures coils, inductors and transformers.

"The decision to close the Kinston plant was not an easy one to reach," commented William Barnhart, operations manager. "Despite significant investment, a dropoff in sales due to major program cancellations, coupled with the weak economy, made it impractical to continue operations here," he said.

Barnhart said the company will use all available resources to help find new jobs for displaced employees and to minimize any hardships caused by the closing.

"We will assist our people in preparing resumes and improving interviewing skills," the plant spokesman said. "We have been and will be in touch with possible employers in the area and throughout the region, including other divisions of TRW, in full consideration of each individual's circumstances."

TRW maintains operations or offices in Boone, Charlotte, Durham, Newland and Statesville. In addition, TRW will dedicate on March 23 a new 100,000 square foot facility in Greenville for the production of rack and pinion steering systems for small cars.

Held Gathering Of Consistory

WILLIAMSTON — Roanoke Consistory No. 248 of Williamston was host to the Coastal Plains Regional Consistory and Assembly Plateau meeting and banquet held last Saturday.

The Consistory is comprised of 32d degree Masonic bodies located in Wilmington, Jacksonville, New Bern, Kinston, Elizabeth City, Ahoskie and Williamston.

The joint session opened at 5 p.m. at Williams Chapel Church. Melvin Saunders, president of the Williamston chapter, conducted the business meeting, assisted by Reatha Saunders, State Grand Organizer and Overseer. Peer Lawrence King, State Grand Coordinator, spoke briefly.

The E. J. Hayes School gym was the site of the annual Coastal Plains Banquet held at 7:30 p.m. Peer William Honeyblue was presiding officer. Keynote speaker was Rev. Kenneth Hammond, pastor of Mt. Shiloh Baptist Church in Williamston. Music was provided by the Alexander Assembly Chorus of Kinston.

Saunders presented awards. The host consistory, Roanoke No. 248, received the highest award as Consistory of the Year.

About 250 princes and loyal ladies attended this annual event.

Will Construct Gasohol Plant

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A Greensboro gasohol-manufacturing firm says it will build a $35 million-plus distillery near Lexington.

Gasohol of Greensboro Inc. unveiled its plans for the new plant Tuesday and said it also was considering construction of a plant in South Carolina.

The Lexington plant is expected to be in production by the sprng of 1981.

Company spokesman Fred Lewis said response to the plans had been good. He did not disclose the site for the proposed South Carolina plant. But, he said, negotiations for a distillery there are under way.

Gasohol of Greensboro is under investigation by the North Carolina Secretary of State's office for a possible violation of state securities' law.

John Corne, deputy secretary of state for securities, said the possible violation could be resolved administratively.

Lewis said the corporation had sold stock without authorization. He said the money was refunded.

"We're talking about millions of dollars, not a piddling 100 dollars from an individual. We're not trying to cheat anybody," Lewis said.

"We're doing this because the country needs it. We'll make a buck, too, but there's nothing wrong with that," Lewis said.

Gasohol combines one part alcohol with nine parts gasoline to produce a fuel for internal combustion engines.

Arrest 2 For Drug Violations

Greenville Police yesterday arrested two Wilson residents on drug law violation charges, Chief Glenn Cannon reported this morning.

Cannon said officers stopped a car driven by Raymond Cox Jr. 30 of Wilson about 11:40 a.m. at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Dickinson Avenue and charged him with speeding and driving without a license.

Police then found a quantity of heroin in the vehicle and arrested Cox and a passenger in the auto, Betty Ann Batts, 24 of Wilson, on possession of heroin charges.

Banker Back In Rio For Urchin Party

By PENNY ROGERS

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — Steve Murphy, American bank executive, sat in the middle of a mattress-carpeted room, batting a balloon around with a group of giggling street urchins.

Nearby stood tubs of iced soda and a table laden with fried chicken, hard-boiled eggs, cakes and sweets. Outside, one of the banker's friends pulled up with another carload of scruffy kids picked up off the streets. In all, 174 crammed into the apartment that afternoon to play and eat.

It was Steve Murphy's fourth annual party for poor and abandoned children of Rio.

"In Brazil there is a lack of communications between the classes," the Seattle, Wash., native said. "For this reason, I give the parties... a day in a life casts a memory. An individual can do something to make a difference."

A tall, lanky young man, Murphy is 35 but looks 25 and with Irish-blue eyes and curly light brown hair, is a casting director's dream. He told how he came to live for seven months in one of Rio's hillside slums called favelas.

"I spent a summer in Brazil on a student exchange program working for the First National Bank of Boston," Murphy recalled. "In 1972 I was hired to stay on. For a while in Rio, I stayed with friends and then I lived with a family on the lower edge of a favela called Salgeiro."

"I went to visit some friends who lived in an area called Tijuca. They were not home but I heard music coming from above so I followed the steep street looking for a samba club of that area. I met a man who told me that it was dangerous there at night but if I wanted to come back the following weekend and meet at a house he indicated, then I could hear samba. The house belonged to the De Andrade family who lived on the lowest end of the favela."

Murphy did return. In fact he kept going back to visit the De Andrades and, curious about that side of Rio life, eventually moved in.

"Well, their house was better than most," Murphy said. "A permanent construction with running water. We slept four to a room plus kids. Maybe 10 or 12 people in a two-bedroom house. The favela itself had maybe 2,000 houses, a total of some 20,000 people...

"I found the living itself heartwarming, it was the real thing... I found strong emphasis on family, samba, a spontaneous way of accepting people."

Now an assistant vice president of his bank's multinational lending division, Murphy was transferred last year to Boston. But he visited Rio recently to give his latest party and at the same time paid a call on his old favela.

Everywhere, he was greeted with "Stevie, it's been a long time." He gave out chewing gum to the kids who crowded around and danced an impromptu samba.

He told how he came up with the idea for the annual party.

"I was sitting at an outdoor cafe and a six-year-old named Beto was shining my shoes and talking about how terrible life was. He told me he had no family, just lived here and there. Beto told me he had never known a mother's love, his own mother to kiss him. I was speechless. I left him some money and the rest of my pizza. I had lost my appetite. I decided then to do something for these kids without homes."

Now Murphy wants to do more; to settle again in Brazil and start a halfway house for adolescents without family. "This is my home, my essence somehow," he said.

Left Imprint On Dog's Memory

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Who says a dog isn't a little human sometimes?

Apparently plagued by bad memories, Buttons, rescued from a house fire last year, refuses to live in her owner's house again.

The owners, Donald and Gerri Durfee, have since rebuilt their house and moved back, but Buttons, part Yorkshire terrior and part poodle, lives in a trailer nearby with Mrs. Durfee's parents.

"There's no way she wants to come back here," Mrs. Durfee says. "She comes to visit, but as soon as my mother gets up to go, she's right there to leave. She gets nervous after a while."

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market pushed ahead today, getting a little more mileage out of Tuesday's technical rally.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks edged up .09 to 826.54 in the first half hour.

Gainers outnumbered losers by more than a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said the market's recent declines had driven down stock prices to the point where they attracted some buying support.

But they said traders still were waiting uncertainly for the outcome of President Carter's efforts to come up with some antidote to inflation.

American Telephone & Telegraph led the active list, off ⅛ at 47⅜. A 100,000-share block traded at 47¼.

Among other early volume leaders, Gulf was unchanged at 48½; Brunswick rose ⅛ to 13¾, and Boeing was up ½ at 58⅞.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average rose 7.34 to 826.28.

Advances outnumbered declines by more than a 2-1 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 41.35 million shares, against 43.75 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index rose .74 to 61.33.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 6.53 at 271.93.

NOW Presents Demonstration

The Greenville chapter of the National Organization for Women recently held a demonstration consciousness-raising group, the topic — "Women and Feminism."

The demonstration was offered to introduce local women to the concept of consciousness raising and to determine interest in the formation of continuing groups, according to Inez Fridley, CR Committee chairperson for NOW here. She said the program was well received and that two groups will begin in early April. Those who expressed interest will be contacted by NOW.

Another demonstration group will be announced later this year, she said, so that additional groups may be formed.

work with personnel running various departments. The lieutenant governor is a member of the executive branch of government and serves on many committees. "I draw my concept of the office from talking to people and most people seem to feel the position should be a strong one."

Stewart also commented on the shortage of highway funds in North Carolina and proposed several solutions he considered feasible. "One of these solutions could be a percentage type gas tax increase," explained Stewart. "Another could be a time transfer of funds from the general fund to the highway fund." According to the candidate, collections in the general fund have increased because this fund directly benefits from inflation.

"The third possible solution is to take items which are associated with the purchase of vehicles, take the sales tax assessed on those and put it into the highway fund. This would amount to around $4 million per year." Stewart said he was in favor of at least one of these options.

"Im not sure at this point which is the most fair and judicious," he added. "There are some things we are committed to first, such as the funding of salary increases for our teachers. Our highway problem is acute, however. North Carolina has one tenth of all the state maintained roads in the country.

"A blue ribbon committee is at work now examining these problems. My guess is that the committee will come to the assembly without definite answers, but with a series of solutions similar to these," commented the candidate. According to Stewart, North Carolina will fall short in highway revenues about $25 million this year due to the decline in use of roads.

Stewart termed Governor Hunt's educational programs "...for the most part good. He has placed very high priority on elementary education and on competency testing. This testing is the wave of the future both in elementary and secondary education. Education is stronger because of the moves he did make."

The candidate discussed North Carolina's income tax system, saying he did not think that the tax system would be changed drastically. "Talk about revamping income tax is just that. "I don't believe the income tax system is going to be tampered with, he asserted.

Stewart expressed support of the North Carolina tobacco program. "I have been a strong proponent of the federal price supports, a strong extension system and adequate agricultural stations," he said.

When questioned about nuclear power and waste disposal in North Carolina, Stewart commented "I believe that however much the urge comes to us from time to time to obliterate nuclear reactors and the danger associated with them, nuclear energy is important. I do not see that over the next thirty years we are going to be able to abandon nuclear energy."

"Safeguards are, however, a necessity," he added.

According to Stewart, the state should set an example in energy conservation matters. "I no longer see lights on at night in state buildings and this exemplifies exactly what I mean. The state should cut down and conserve and set an example for the citizens."

The candidate reported that a committee had recently been established to deal with small business concerns. "This committee will try to give some attention to problems affecting small business persons," he explained.

Stewart has served for seven years in the North Carolina House of Representatives and is presently Speaker of the House. He is a graduate of Duke University and is an attorney.

Tim Rosche, chairman of the state concerns committee of the Chamber of Commerce, introduced Stewart.

Judge Assures Bus Shortage

CLEVELAND (AP) — School officials may be 45 buses short at the start of junior high school desegregation next week.

U.S. District Judge Frank Battisti denied a request Tuesday that he waive certain laws and safety standards to permit the use of leased buses that have hydraulic brakes instead of air brakes. The district has leased 125 buses to supplement the existing fleet of 147.

Cleveland will begin desegregation of 22,000 junior high students, including 11,300 who will ride buses, on March 18. Officials said they would seek further help on the bus problem from the state.

Big 10 Also-Rans Advance In NIT

By The Associated Press

The Big Ten Conference, which dominated the National Invitation Tournament last year when there was a two-team limit on entries from each conference in the national championship playoffs, is doing it again this year despite a decided second-division look.

Four Big Ten teams — Indiana, Ohio State, Purdue and Iowa — were invited to the NCAA tournament, but that didn't stop the NIT selectors from picking Illinois, Minnesota and Michigan. And they haven't disappointed so far, with all three advancing through the first two rounds.

In Monday night's second-round games Minnesota, 19-10, nipped Mississippi 58-56; Michigan, only 17-12, nevertheless battered Texas-El Paso 74-65 and Illinois, 20-12, whipped Illinois State 75-65. Other games saw Virginia edge Boston College 57-55, Murray State stun Alabama 70-62, Nevada-Las Vegas beat Long Beach State 90-81, Southwest Louisiana upset Texas 77-76 and St. Peter's outlast Duquesne 34-33.

In Thursday's third round, the last before the final four move on to New York for the semifinals and finals, Michigan will play at Virginia, Illinois will play host to Murray State, Minnesota will entertain Southwestern Louisiana and St. Peter's will visit Nevada-Las Vegas.

Although none of the NIT teams are in The Associated Press' Top Twenty, there are still some individual stars in the tournament — such as All-Americans Andrew Toney of Southwestern Louisiana and stalwart freshman Sidney Green of Nevada-Las Vegas and centers Ralph Sampson of Virginia and Kevin McHale of Minnesota, all honorable mention All-Americans.

McHale, a starter on the United States' Pan American Games gold medal team, and Darryl Mitchell each scored 15 points as Minnesota stopped Mississippi Monday night.

Suffering A String Of Snake Eyes

Detroit Tigers' pitcher Mark "The Bird" Fidrych pats down the mound in 1976 when he was a rookie pitcher and when it looked like lady luck was rolling the dice his way. But torn cartilage and tendinitis turned his career to a string of snake eyes. (AP Laserphoto)

"The Bird" Back Again

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — If life, as some say, is just a roll of the dice, then Mark "The Bird" Fidrych must wonder why his life turned from early 7's and 11's to a string of snake eyes.

"Sure, I was disillusioned at first — I wondered if the world was against me," said the colorful, crowd-pleasing young right-hander of the Detroit Tigers. "Now I have rationalized. I have no bitterness at all.

"I am happy to be playing baseball. If it's ordained that I don't make it, I can always become a carpenter or pump gas. Anybody can get a job."

It was in a nationally televised Monday night game against the New York Yankees on June 28, 1976 that he mesmerized his audience of millions.

A gawky-looking kid with a shock of curly blond hair, he wasn't content with merely blowing down opposing batters. He talked to the ball. He made a point of going around and congratulating his teammates as each inning ended. In long loping strides, he raced between the dugout and the mound.

After he had beaten the Yankees 5-1, the crowd gave him a standing, thundering ovation. In the vernacular of the theatre, he got a dozen curtain calls.

Fidrych went on to a 19-9 record, completing 24 of his 29 appearances, starting the All-Star Game and finally winning Rookie of the Year honors. As the game's premier drawing card, he played his act before 901,239 spectators, averaging 31,077.

Emerging simultaneously with the advent of free agency, "The Bird" loomed as a certain multimillion dollar property. If an aging "Catfish" Hunter could demand $3.5 million from

Duke, Clemson Battle 'Cats, Lamar Tomorrow

By The Associated Press

Rebounding — from a mid-season slump and on the offensive boards — is what has gotten Ohio State this far. And it's what the 10th-ranked Buckeyes are hoping to use Thursday night to beat UCLA in the third round of the NCAA basketball tournament.

Clemson, 22-8, plays Lamar, 22-10 before UCLA, 19-9 and Ohio State, 21-7, go at it in the West Regionals. Also on Thursday night it's Purdue, 20-9, vs. Indiana, 21-7, and Duke, 23-8, vs. Kentucky, 29-5, in the Mideast Regionals.

In Friday night's regionals it's Iowa, 21-8, vs. Syracuse, 26-3, and Maryland, 24-6, vs. Georgetown, 25-5 in the East and Louisville, 29-3, vs. Texas A&M, 26-7, and Missouri, 25-5, vs. Louisiana State, 25-5 in the Midwest.

"We're getting more offensive rebounds now," says Herb Williams, Ohio State's 6-foot-10 center who scored 25 points and grabbed nine rebounds to help the Buckeyes rip apart Arizona State 89-75. "All of our guys are following their shots and putting the ball back in."

"We're attacking the boards, which I'm not sure we were doing a few weeks ago," Jim Ellinghausen, a reserve forward for OSU, said, looking back to a spell in which the Buckeyes lost three straight games and four of five against other teams from the Big Ten.

"Lately we've been getting a lot more second shots, and that will win you a lot of games. I think we're concentrating on blocking out more. We've stopped being hesitant under the basket," said Ellinghausen.

Larry Brown, UCLA's coach, is concerned about Williams' presence under the boards for OSU, particularly if the officiating is loose.

"If they let it go, it'll be tough on us because Ohio State plays power offense and loves to get the ball inside to Williams," Brown said. "If we win, it'll have to be with defense and quickness.

"I've seen Ohio State play a few times and I haven't seen a better team this season. Playing them is like playing a pro team, they're so physical. They're bigger than us at every position, they're well coached, and I'm a little frightened."

If the Bruins win the tournament it'll be the surprise of the

Revils, Joyner In Nationals

East Carolina will send two wrestlers into the NCAA Nationals at Oregon State University starting Thursday.

Butch Revils qualified for the Nationals in the 177-pound class while D.T. Joyner qualified in the heavyweight division. Both won NCAA East Coast Independent Regional titles.

Revils enters the nationals with a 37-3 record on the year. He lost early, then was beaten twice in meets held late in the season at Annapolis, Md. "Revils was sick at both of those meets, and it hurt him," ECU Coach Ed Steers said.

"He's still hampered by a twisted ankle he suffered before the regionals. We are hopeful that he'll be able to overcome this. He definitely has the ability to place in the nationals."

Joyner, 34-2 on the year, losing both matches early in the season. "I'd feel more positive about his chances if he hadn't come down with a virus right after the regionals," Steers said. "But he's in a good weight class and also is a definite threat to place."

Steers is hopeful that both could end up placing in the tournament. "That could land us in the Top Twenty as a team, and that would be a real good thing for us," Steers said.

The former William & Mary coach is finishing his first year as head coach for the Pirates, seeking to return the program to the heights it once enjoyed.

Rodgers Sues Tech

ATLANTA (AP) — Charging that Georgia Tech has only been giving "lip service" to his contract, former Tech football Coach Pepper Rodgers has filed suit against the university's athletic association in excess of $300,000.

Rodgers' attorney, John Dunlap, mailed the suit on Monday to Fulton County State Court. The suit claims the Georgia Tech Athletic Association breached Rodgers' contract when he was fired on Dec. 18, 1979, and that since the firing, Rodgers has been deprived of certain benefits he received as coach.

"I'm just trying to recover what Georgia Tech owes me," Rodgers said Tuesday night. "In the contract discussions, they've been giving only lip service to my contract. They said they would honor my contract, but they're not doing that.

"This is not a personal vendetta against Georgia Tech," Rodgers said. "It's not a suit of that type. I'm just asking for what I feel they owe me."

Rodgers was fired unexpectedly 11 months after he had signed his second successive three-year contract. The contract extends until Dec. 31, 1981.

Tech's athletic association has continued to pay Rodgers' annual salary of $42,500, his insurance benefits and pension benefits since the firing, but Dunlap has been negotiating with the association on Rodgers' behalf concerning further benefits since January.

Rodgers and Dunlap declined to discuss the specific benefits in question. "I don't feel it would be fair to try this case in the newspapers," said Dunlap.

But sources said one point known to be in contention was the personal use of an automobile. The athletic association demanded the return of the car Rodgers was driving shortly after the firing.

Rodgers' team was 4-6-1 in 1979. In six seasons at Tech, his teams were 34-30-2.

A Tech quarterback in the early 1950s, Rodgers returned to his alma mater in December 1973 after coaching at the University of Kansas and UCLA.

Rodgers coached the 1974 season under a verbal agreement, but he became the first Tech football coach to be given a written contract the following season.

When his contract was extended for another three years it was seen as a "vote of confidence," but he was fired less than a year later.

Should the case be tried before a jury, it would not likely be scheduled before June.

Davis, Rozelle Still Battlin'

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — The feud between National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle and Al Davis continued to hold centerstage at the NFL meetings here, but two new officials added for next year's playoff games won't be assigned to arbitrate their differences.

The NFL Competition Committee on Tuesday assigned the two officials to work in playoff games henceforth, but without authority to call penalties. They will merely be there to help the other seven officials assigned to the games and discuss controversial plays.

The additional two would be members of regular crews used on NFL games during the season.

"We will have instant replay with live personnel," said Tex Schramm of the Dallas Cowboys, referring to the demands by many that television replay be used to decide controversial plays.

"I suggested it, I'll take the blame," said Schramm, the committee chairman.

Most of the other rules changes simply represent different interpretations of previous rules.

Schramm said that sticking, clubbing or swinging at the head had previously been penalties only if the head was struck. Now, if the blow hits the body and glances to the head, the offender may be penalized.

Chop blocks, which were illegal for backs last season, now will include tight ends.

Also, the quarterback will get a quick whistle when hit by a defensive player anywhere behind the line of scrimmage. Previously, the rule only applied when the quarterback was in the pocket.

Meantime, Rozelle said Jack Tatum's book, "They Call Me Assassin," will be studied by the league office to determine if any action should be taken. Tatum wrote that he often took pleasure in meting out punishment to opponents.

Tatum is a defensive back for the Oakland Raiders.

Davis, general managing partner of the Raiders, was still steaming Tuesday over the vote 24 hours earlier by NFL owners of 22-0 with five absentions against allowing him to move his team to Los Angeles. Davis announced such an intention last month.

Meanwhile, Monday's vote was felt in Los Angeles where the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors balked at signing a joint powers agreement that would conditionally commit the board to putting up a $5 million loan to help finance the Raiders' move to the L.A. Coliseum.

Supervisors Yvonne Brathwaite Burke and Ed Edelman said they wanted the two other agencies involved in financially backing the Raiders' move, the Los Angeles City Council and the L.A. Olympic Organizing Committee, to "share the risk" in advancing money for that move.

A board vote on the matter was delayed until next week.

The concern stems from an agreement reached between the Coliseum Commission and the Raiders stipulating that if the move collapses, the football team will receive "the amount necessary to compensate it for actual damages, expenses and costs."

Trio Ready For Doral

MIAMI (AP) — A group of fishing buddies from Texas — Ben Crenshaw, Bruce Lietzke and Bill Rogers — could be the men to watch this week in the $250,000 Doral Open Golf Tournament. They're credentials are all in order.

Lietzke and Rogers both played extremely well last week in the Jackie Gleason-Inverrary Classic. Crenshaw, of course, is one of the game's leading lights and must be considered a title threat in any tournament he enters.

All three finished among the top 10 money-winners last season, each won a tournament (Rogers in a pretigious event in England) and they had a combined total of 10 second-place finishes.

The three, frequent fishing companions during the offseason, appear to be reaching a peak and could get an extra boost from the warm, sunny south Florida weather.

"I was just waiting for the weather to turn warm," Rogers, from Texarkana, said after a strong, fourth-place finish last week in Inverrary. "I feel like I've been playing pretty good, but I never do much of anything until we get some warm weather."

"Warm weather always helps for me," said Crenshaw, from Austin.

"I'm a notoriously bad player in bad weather," said Lietzke, a native of Beaumont. He tied for second last week. "I'd only had one decent tournament this year before Inverrary. "I really feel my game is coming around now. I'm very encouraged, very enthusiastic about playing this week.

"Bill and I both played pretty well last week, and good play often tends to carry over from week to week."

While the three Texans are among the favorites in the 72-hole test that begins Thursday on the 7,065 yard, par 72 Blue Monster course at the Doral Country Club, the opposition is formidable.

Heading the list, of course, is Jack Nicklaus, continuing his comeback attempt on the south Florida courses that have provided him with so many of his victories.

"I'm not at all disappointed," Nicklaus said of a 290 total in last week's Inverrary event. "Of course, I wish I had scored a little better. But my play around the greens was pretty good and my putting wasn't bad.

"The changes I'm trying to make aren't all that easy. It's going to take time. But I'll get there. I'll get it back."

"The Bird"....

the Yankees, what would a younger, dynamite Fidrych be worth in the open market — $7 million? Maybe $10 million?

But the dice didn't roll that way.

In spring training 1977, Fidrych tore a cartilage in his left knee, requiring an operation. In July, tendinitis developed in his right shoulder. He pitched in only 11 games.

His miseries continued unabated through 1978 and 1979 when he pitched in a total of only seven games. He began a desperate round of leading doctors.

He didn't get his millions. He signed a one-year contract for $130,000.

Fidrych made his 1980 debut Monday in an exhibition game against Kansas City. In 11-3 innings, he threw 48 pitches, gave up four hits and four runs (three unearned), walked two and struck out one.

Not the Fidrych of old, but the pain was gone.

The Bird went about his business in a cold, deliberate way — no groundskeeping, no talking to the ball. Fans missed it.

"It's different when you're 25 than when you're 19," a somber Fidrych said.

76ers Beat Hawks In OT

Collins Does Job: Misses FT

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Doug Collins did exactly what he was supposed to do — he missed a free throw.

Collins' miss, with two seconds to play at Atlanta Tuesday night, gave Philadelphia teammate Julius Erving a chance to grab the rebound and sink the tying basket as the buzzer sounded ending regulation play, and the 76ers went on to beat the Hawks in overtime 102-97.

"It was a dogfight, but we managed to pull it out with a miraculous play," said Collins, who almost became the goat when he missed the first of two foul shots with two seconds to play and the Sixers trailing 88-86, but made up for it when he missed the second try.

Had he made that shot, Philadelphia would still have trailed by one point. But by missing, he gave his teammates a shot at the rebound and tying basket.

"What you have to do on a play like that is make sure you box the guys out," said Atlanta forward Dan Roundfield. But Erving refused to be kept away from the rebound and converted it for the tying basket.

Forward Bobby Jones then took command in overtime, scoring six points as the Sixers pulled away.

In other NBA games Tuesday night, the Indiana Pacers beat the Boston Celtics 114-108, the New York Knicks trounced the Houston Rockets 129-109, the San Antonio Spurs defeated the Washington Bullets 111-104, the Chicago Bulls edged the Kansas City Kings 100-98, the Cleveland Cavaliers trimmed the New Jersey Nets 122-119, the Denver Nuggets topped the Golden State Warriors 96-87 and the Los Angeles Lakers beat the San Diego Clippers 123-106.

Philadelphia's victory, combined with Boston's loss, moved the Sixers within one game of first-place Boston in the Atlantic Division race.

Atlanta led by as many as 11 points in the third period before Philadelphia rallied. Jones led the Sixers with 21 points and Erving had 18, while Roundfield had 28 for Atlanta.

Pacers 114, Celtics 108

Reserve guard Joe Hassett, Indiana's outside shooting specialist, scored 13 points in a 17-4 fourth-quarter burst that carried the Pacers past Boston, snapping Indiana's eight-game losing string.

Hassett hit three three-point goals and a pair of two-pointers as the Pacers turned back a Boston rally that had closed the gap from 16 points to five. Boston trailed just 89-84 before Hassett's long-range shooting put the game away.

Knicks 129, Rockets 109

Knicks guard Ray Williams, playing what he called "my best all-around game of the season," scored 35 points, handed out eight assists and grabbed six steals as New York beat Houston.

"We played badly, our worst game all year," said Rockets Coach Del Harris. "Our defense was gone. Our tempo was gone. It looked like it was the first time we had met all year."

Spurs 111, Bullets 104

San Antonio snapped an eight-game losing streak by beating Washington at Landover, Md., and moving one-half game ahead of the Bullets in their race for the final Eastern Conference playoff spot. NBA scoring leader George Gervin led San Antonio with 41 points and backcourtmate James Silas added 26, including 12 in the final six minutes.

Bulls 100, Kings 98

Kansas City's lead over Milwaukee in the Midwest Division was trimmed to 1½ games as the Kings lost to Chicago. A dunk by Artis Gilmore with 1:04 to go was the winning margin for the Bulls. Scott Wedman missed a shot at a tie for Kansas City.

Cavs 122, Nets 119

Mike Mitchell's 31 points led Cleveland over New Jersey. Three-point plays by Mitchell and Dave Robisch in the final two minutes clinched the victory for Cleveland.

Nuggets 96, Warriors 87

Dan Issel scored 31 points for Denver, including a pair of free throws with 1:13 remaining that helped ice the victory over Golden State, which got 29 points from Robert Parish.

Lakers 123, Clippers 106

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's 28 points and 12 rebounds helped Los Angeles beat San Diego and take a one-game lead over Seattle in the Pacific Division. The Lakers outscored the Clippers 37-21 in the fourth quarter to pull away and drop San Diego one game behind Portland in their battle for the final Western Conference playoff spot.

'Skins Blast Chargers

LITTLEFIELD — Roanoke High School exploded for nine second inning runs and romped to a 20-7 victory over Ayden-Grifton yesterday. It was the season opener for both teams.

Ayden-Grifton grabbed off an early lead, scoring two in the first. Art Rouse walked and Clayton McLawhorn doubled. Tyrone Gay reached on an error that allowed both runners to score.

Roanoke then came back with nine big second inning runs. Glenn Cargile led off with a single and Wesley Keel walked. Tony Whitfield's single loaded the bases. Ricky Simpson reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Cargile. Wesley Johnson then singled in Keel and Whitfield. Joey Ross reached on an error and Anthony Latham singled, reloading the bases. Steve Wallace singled in two runs, and Cargile got a hit to score the sixth run. A wild pitch let Wallace score, and Keel delivered a two-run homer to cap the inning.

Roanoke added five in the fifth and six in the sixth, while Ayden-Grifton got two each in the fourth and sixth and one in the third.

Wallace, Cargile and Johnson each had two hits for the Redskins, while Gay had three and McLawhorn had two for the Chargers.

Ayden-Grifton travels to Southwest Edgecombe on Friday for its conference opener, while Roanoke plays at North Pitt on Saturday.

Farmville 17, Rose 5

Farmville Central opened the 1980 softball season with a 17-2 romp over Rose High School's Rampettes yesterday.

Farmville got only five hits but took advantage of a number of errors by the Rampettes to gain the victory. Rose also gained five hits. No one on either team got more than one.

Angie O'Brien was the winning pitcher for Farmville.

The Jaguars scored two in the first inning, then went on to add one in the third, four in the fourth and four more in the fifth. They finished it up with three in the sixth and three more in the seventh. Rose got both of its runs in the fourth.

Farmville is now 1-0 and Rose is 0-1. Farmville travels to C.B. Aycock on Friday, while Rose hosts Washington on Tuesday.

SNOW HILL — Greene Central opened the 1980 softball season with a 10-6 victory over Wilson Beddingfield yesterday.

The Lady Rams jumped off to a 9-0 lead in the first inning, sparked by a three-run homer by Melody Ham. Ham was the only Ram hitter with more than one.

Greene Central added its tenth run in the fifth. Beddingfield got one in the third and the other five in the sixth. They had the bases loaded with none out in the seventh but failed to score.

The two are scheduled for a return match at Beddingfield on Saturday.

Bruins Flatten Greene Central

SNOW HILL — Wilson Beddingfield pushed over four second inning runs and went on to take a 7-2 victory over defending Eastern Carolina Conference champ Greene Central yesterday. It was the opening game for both teams.

Beddingfield and Greene Central each scored a run in the first. Doug Godwin walked for the Bruins and moved up on a pickoff error and an out. He scored when Mac Smith grounded out.

The Rams tied it up in their half of the first when Greg Holmes singled, stole second, took third on a balk and scored on a wild pitch.

In the second, however, Beddingfield put it away with four. Wade Farmer walked as did Al Hardison. Joel Patterson singled, scoring Farmer. Walt Whitley walked, loading the bases. Greg Dail singled, and an error on the play allowed three runs to score.

The Bruins added two in the third, while Greene Central got its other run in the seventh.

No one had more than one hit for either team.

The Rams loaded the bases in the second, with none out, and failed to score and also left the bases loaded in the fifth and seventh.

Greene Central travels to Greenville Rose on Friday.

year — and that in itself must sound strange to fans who remember when the NCAA tournament was known only half-jokingly as the UCLA Invitational.

The Bruins, who won 10 championships in 13 years, entered this year's tournament unranked — but they put to rest the suggestion they didn't deserve to be in the 48-team field by shocking top-ranked DePaul 77-71 in last Sunday's second-round game.

UCLA's victory wasn't the only upset of this tournament. Equally shocking was Lamar's 81-77 triumph over fifth-ranked Oregon State. It was, Lamar Coach Billy Tubbs said, "the best we played all year," and he said the Cardinals would have to play at least as well to beat Clemson in a meeting of unranked squads.

The natural rivalry of seventh-ranked Indiana against No. 20 Purdue comes into play in the Mideast.

"We played twice last year and got to go to New York and play them again in the National Invitation Tournament," said Purdue Coach Lee Rose, "and lo and behold we end up against them this year in the NCAA.

"Both teams play with commitment and emotion, yet it comes down to which team executes best. As far as the rivalry, it's just amazing. This is one of the most unique rivalries in athletics."

CHI CHI'S ERROR

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Chi Chi Rodriguez, the jockey-sized pro golfer from Puerto Rico, is seldom at a loss for words — but he was after the Phoenix Open.

Chi Chi was disqualified after his final round. It seems he had been guilty of a technical violation involving two different types of balls he used in the tourney.

The thing that hurt was that Chi Chi called the violation on himself after reaching his hotel room. Nobody else knew about it.

Dear Consumer:

This is the most important time of your life. We the Public are confused about what to buy in an automobile and with interest rates going up and up, we just don't want to spend any money.

Well let me give you some good basic reasons you should buy an American made car:

1. Many consumers are not aware how much it costs to repair Imports; two to three times more to replace a part than on an American car. (that is a lot of gas you can buy)

2. It usually takes several weeks longer to get a part which means time and money.

3. The mileage standards have no justification whatever. They are part of Washington's hair-brained and destructive attempts to ration energy by any means except price. And, at this moment, they are doing the most serious damage to the United States auto industry. They are the biggest favor to the Japanese since the Navy conveniently parked its Pacific fleet at Pearl Habor in 1941.

4. Its just good business to buy an American made car. You are keeping the money working for the American people and keep them working so that we don't have a Depression.

We at Smith-Waldrop Motors realize that you are caught between inflation and rising interest rates. We have one of the best investments in the automobile for you. American Motors has the all new Spirit; Concord 2-door, 4-door, and Station Wagon at very economical prices and good gas mileage, too. They offer a 36 months/36,000 mile warranty on all new cars.

I, Cliff Frelke, would like you to know we take Pride in selling you a new or used car or truck of your choice.

We have a very good service department because each man is a factory trained technician who cares about our customers and their bill.

Our body shop is dedicated to getting your car finished and giving you quality for what you are paying for.

Rose, Williamston, Roanoke Near Track Season

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

Greenville Rose' track team will be tested early this season and coach Bud Phillips likes that.

The Rampants, who won 10 straight meets last year after losing their first three, challenge perennial Division I power Bertie along with Northeastern Thursday.

"That's going to let us know real quick how good we're going to be," Phillips said. "Bertie is still the team to beat. I don't think they've lost a conference meet since they joined six or seven years ago.

"They're tough. But it'll be good for us. It'll let us know where we have to go and what we have to work on."

One thing the Rampants won't have to worry about is the shot and discus, both of which are in the hands of Ron Butler, who set a conference record in the discus a year ago.

Also returning for the Rampants this season are Ted King (pole Vault, high hurdles), Bill Cobb (low hurdles), Alonza Taylor and Ervin Turnage (100 and 220), Don Johnson and Jonny Greene (440) and Ted Gartman, Blair Smith and Robert Stancill (880).

Newcomers to the Rampant camp include Chris McLawhorn (long jump and 440), David Sherrod (low hurdles), Erskin Evans (100 and 220), Kenny Smith (mile and 880), Harry Williams (mile and two-mile), Dan Mayo and Vincent Murphy (two-mile) and Abner Clark (triple jump).

"We're young," Phillips said. "But I think we have some good quality athletes. I would say we'll be stronger this year. Last year we had a lot of depth and that helped us do good in dual meets, but this year I think we have potentially first place finishers."

Williamston

This could be the year Williamston's track team wins the Northeastern Conference, at least if Tiger coach William Matthews has his way.

"I feel like we have a chance to win the conference, or at least come in second," Matthews said. "I feel like we have the athletes this year. And not having to start the season out against someone like Ahoskie will help build the boy's confidence."

The Tigers first test of the season comes Thursday against Roanoke and Roanoke Rapids.

"Starting out the way we are, I think it'll help the fellows who haven't been out for track before. We have quite a few seniors who are out for track for the first time," Matthews said.

Leading the Redskins this year are four-year starters Vincent Peele and Chris Peele and junior Clint Scott. Vincent throws the shot and discus. Matthews looks for Vincent to throw the shot 50 to 55 feet. He has already thrown the discus 150 feet. Vincent also runs the 100 (9.8) and the 220.

Scott returns in the high jump where a year ago he hit 6'0". Matthews hopes Scott can reach 6'5" this season.

Chris Peele is back for his fourth season in the high and low hurdles and, according to Matthews, should be in the top three in the conference.

Also back this season are Carl Goodard (three-year starter) and John Corey (two-year starter). Both will run the mile and the two-mile.

Newcomers this year include high jumper Edward Williams, who has already hit 6'0" during practice, Vincent Washington and Jonathan Reddick (440).

Roanoke

With the likes of Ahoskie, Tarboro and Williamston in the Northeastern Conference, Roanoke track coach Clarence Atkinson does not ooze confidence about his team's chances of battling for the top spot.

A year ago the Redskins finished fourth in the league and Thomas said a similar finish this season is likely.

"Overall, we'll probably finish somewhere in the middle of the pack," Atkinson said. "If we get some breaks we might get above fourth, but right now I see Williamston and Washington battling for third.

"The horses, though, are Ahoskie and Tarboro. They'll be up there at the top."

Despite the outlook, Roanoke does return a number of good athletes, led by Anthony Latham and Tony Whitfield, whom Atkinson said are the best two athletes on the team.

"Latham may be the best returning long jumper in the conference," Atkinson said. Latham also has also run a 10.1 100-yard dash. Whitfield has been timed at 10.2 in the 100.

Others Atkinson expects to have a good year are hurdler Michael Purvis and quarter-miler Roy Moore.

The top newcomer is Ricky Highsmith, who will triple jump and run the 880.

Completing the Roanoke roster are Donald Weathersbee (5'10" in high jump), Steve Matthewson, Russell Coburn and Donny Wallace (shot and discus), Wayne Green (pole vault) and Tim Brown (high and low hurdles).

Most N.C. Ski Slopes Report So-So Season

By NAOMI KAUFMAN
Associated Press Writer

North Carolina ski-resort operators say the energy crunch has meant more skiers are traveling in groups and an increase in weekday business on the slopes.

Although most resorts reported only so-so seasons because of bad weather, they said that rising gasoline prices didn't stop many skiers.

But rather than driving to the slopes alone, the resort operators say skiers came in buses and fully loaded cars.

"That trend, that business, continues to grow. That's a popular thing for churches and clubs like scout troops, fraternities and sororities," said Grady Moretz of Appalachian, in Watauga County.

"We had most of the big clubs from the big cities here all year long. But we also had church groups and social groups," said Kenneth Hazard of Ski Beech.

"Naturally we depend upon gasoline and automobiles," Hazard said of getting skiers to the resorts, which are mainly located in the northwest mountains. But with group travel to the slopes, "the same number of skiers can come with less energy used," he said.

The operators also said the group business helped fill their resorts during the week, not only on weekends.

Ski Beech, in Watauga and Avery counties, is the largest of the resorts. About 140,000 skiers visited the resort this season, Hazard said. "We've had a year that was slightly better than last as far as the number of skiers go," Hazard said.

Almost all of the nine resorts in the state closed their slopes for the season over the weekend.

For most, if the season wasn't the best of times, it wasn't the worst, either.

Although snow fell early, allowing resorts to open at the beginning of December, unseasonably warm temperatures around Christmas decreased holiday business. Little snow was reported in the mountains during much of the season.

"I think we had a very good season considering the weather," said Meg Brown of Seven Devils in Watauga and Avery counties. "We didn't have too much snow and not enough cold nights (for producing man-made snow)."

Sally Bryenton of Sapphire Valley said attendance at the Jackson County resort was down somewhat.

"It stayed so warm, it was just a crazy winter," she said.

April Asthma Program Set

An asthma family education program for children ages five to 15, sponsored by The American Lung Association of North Carolina, Eastern Region, will be held for a five week session beginning Wednesday, April 2 and concluding on Wednesday, April 30.

Enrollment is limited to 20 families. If possible, both parents should attend all sessions with their children. A $10 fee is charged to cover materials and refreshments. All staff time is donated to the program without charge. (A limited number of scholarships will be available for families who meet eligibility requirements for a reduced fee.)

The weekly sessions will include breathing exercises, basic asthma education, mechanism of asthma, evaluation , signs and symptoms of allergies, and other related topics.

The eight members of the program staff are: Jarrett Barnhill, M.D., Sudesh Kataria, M.D., Yash Kataria, M.D., James Nickelsen, M.D., and Rhonda Stanley, B.S.S., all of the School of Medicine; Connie Landen, Regional Director, American Lung Association, Eastern Region; Shelton Dixon , Assistant Director of Special Services, and Bill Young, Director of Special Services, both of Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Police Hit Dead-End In Flynt Case

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga. (AP) — The $1 million reward for information has never been claimed and a team of detectives still is assigned to the case. But two years later, police admit they don't have much hope of catching the mysterious assailant who gunned down sex magazine owner Larry Flynt.

It happened in broad daylight, during a lunch break in his trial on charges of distributing obscene materials.

The Hustler magazine owner and his attorney Gene Reeves were strolling back to the courthouse on March 6, 1978, in this small Georgia town some 25 miles northeast of Atlanta when a gunman opened fire.

Flynt, 36, remains paralyzed below the waist. Confined to a wheelchair, he suffers chronic, excruciating pain, his associates say. Rarely seen in public, he recently completed therapy in a Los Angeles hospital to kick his addiction to painkilling drugs.

Reeves recovered from his wounds.

"There are no new developments," said Gwinnett County Police Sgt. Terry Johnson.

Even with a squad of homicide detectives still on the case, the investigation has slowed. "Nobody had been picked up. All leads have virtually been exhausted," he said.

"As far as I know, in conversations I've had or overheard Larry having, the authorities have pretty much wound down the investigation," said Jan Rogers, the director of Flynt's public relations organization.

"Who knows why? Perhaps if Larry wasn't who he is they would have expended more energy," she said.

Flynt's own security force, established to probe the shooting, is continuing its investigation, she said. "But I don't know if they have any new leads. We're doing it pretty much on our own now."

Reeves, meanwhile, says he's glad to be out of the limelight and "back into the mainstream of life."

A mistrial was declared in the Lawrenceville obscenity trial shortly after the shooting, and prosecutors decided not to pursue the case.

Although Flynt has retreated from the public eye, court cases continue in Georgia and in Ohio, where Hustler once was headquartered.

In the most recent action, the Georgia Supreme Court last Tuesday refused to review Flynt's conviction last year of distributing obscene materials in nearby Fulton County. The court let stand an Appeals court decision upholding the conviction on 11 misdemeanor charges in March 1979. Flynt was fined $27,500, with a 12-month jail sentence suspended on payment of the fine. Flynt has indicated he will appeal.

Solar System Conditions Air

NEW YORK (AP) — A new system of solar air conditioning will be tested in Arizona under a joint $1.4 million research project sponsored jointly by Saudi Arabia and the United States, says an industry publication.

According to Energy User News, the system will be tested in a Phoenix office building because climatic conditions in the area are similar to those in Saudi Arabia.

Officials believe the system could lead to a breakthrough in solar cooling and help reduce high-peak demand levels created by air-conditioning use, the journal said.

It added that the system will generate electricity that can either drive an air-conditioning unit or be fed directly into an electric transmission system when cooling is not needed.

Upper Body Key For Swimmers

NEWTOWN SQUARE, Pa. (AP) — Upper body strength — muscles in the arms and chest — provide 70 to 80 percent of a swimmer's thrust for propulsion through the water, according to George Haines, six-time coach of the U.S. Olympic swim team. The legs provide a minor percentage of propulsion, acting mainly to stabilize the body, he says.

Be Ready For More Inflation

INTERSTATE SECURITIES CORP.

The Consumer Price Index continues to register big increases monthly, with annual rates of change in double digits. It appears likely that a high rate of inflation will continue, and an investment strategy should take this prognosis into consideration.

Investors have in recent years concentrated on stocks with above average yields and only moderate growth potential in an attempt to obtain a total return which exceeded the rate of inflation. With relatively low levels of inflation, this type of investment policy had a good chance of succeeding.

Even more recently, investment funds have gravitated toward short term, fixed-income instruments to take advantage of record interest rate levels. This strategy will work in the near term, but when the general level of interest rates declines, a different strategy must be pursued.

The higher rates of inflation we are currently experiencing will, we believe, focus investment strategies on growth stocks. In addition to rapid growth in earnings, which would be expected to lead to capital appreciation, dividends are growing to the degree that some growth stocks provide yields in excess of 5 percent.

What is a growth stock? There are several factors which characterize these companies. They are growing faster than the overall economy and can usually sustain this growth, although at a somewhat slower rate, even during recessionary periods.

This superior rate of growth stems from the proprietary nature of their business, whether it is a product, a service or a skill. They spend large sums on research and development, which enables them to develop new products or new markets.

They have good pricing flexibility and relatively low capital and labor costs, so profit margins can be considerably high. Perhaps the major characteristic of a growth company is that growth is usually financed internally. This means that the dividend payout ratios are relatively low since earnings are retained to reinvest in the business.

The retention of earnings for reinvestment traditionally has meant that dividend yields were low. While this is true to some extent today, some of the traditional growth stocks sport yields in excess of 5 percent.

We believe the most important point to remember when formulating investment strategy is that it will probably not be sufficient in the future to have high yield. The dividend from a common stock must increase in the years ahead in order for your investment to beat the inflation rate. Dividends from growth stocks will probably grow at a rate in line with earnings growth in the future. The current yield may be low relative to alternative investments, but growth in the dividend may be superior.

The bidding:

4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Two of ◇.

It requires great restraint to refuse to give partner an immediate ruff when he has led a card that is obviously a singleton. But to be a successful defender, you have to take the broad view of the hand as a whole. If it is obvious that the ruff alone will not defeat the contract, you must try to formulate a plan that will net your side the required number of defensive tricks.

Four spades was reached after a normal auction, and West elected to lead his singleton diamond, even though that suit had been bid at his left. It was obvious to all at the table that the lead had to be a singleton, and a careless defender in the East seat would win the ace of diamonds and return the suit, giving his partner a ruff. That would hand the contract to declarer.

South would win any return by West and drive out the ace of spades. West would be unable to ruff the third round of diamonds, and that suit would provide declarer with all the discards he needed.

Since South was marked with exactly five trumps on the bidding (he would have bid three no trump, not four spades, had he started with a four-card suit, or rebid a six-card suit at his second turn), East realized that giving his partner an immediate ruff wasn't urgent. The defenders had to find a fourth trick, and that could only come from the ace of clubs or hearts, or the king of hearts. If West held an ace, the defense would always be able to take four tricks. But if West held the king of hearts, it was vital to attack that suit before declarer could draw trumps.

East shifted to a heart at trick two, and declarer's goose was cooked. The defenders had to get a heart trick, and when East regained the lead with the ace of spades, he gave his partner a ruff to complete a well-planned defense.

COULDN'T FILL RANKS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., says the Army would be unable to fill about half of its infantry jobs and about 25 percent of its artillery positions within 90 days after the outbreak of an emergency.

Bert Parks Became An Unlikely Hero

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Somewhere in this land, at this very moment, a child might be asking his father, "Daddy, what makes a hero?"

And the father could respond, "Well, a hero becomes a hero by getting fired by a beauty pageant."

The unlikely emergence of Bert Parks as a lion of our times may well be this decade's answer to the Tiny Tim phenomenon of the 1970s — one of those little quirks that ought to keep future social historians on their toes when trying to reconstruct our national psyche.

That's not to detract from Mr. Parks' real accomplishments (he does sing a mean, "There She Is..."), it's just that before he was axed by the Miss America Pageant, well...let's just say he was one of our minor heroes.

But the Parks firing happened to catch America in a foul mood. Apparently there was nothing to be done about the Ayatollah Khomeini or the Russians in Afghanistan, but this, America reckoned, this was an outrage we could do something about. Even our national jester, Johnny Carson, turned serious for a moment, urging us to "Save Bert Parks!"

The exclamation cried out from bumper stickers and lapel buttons; letters of protest — 35,000 of them — piled up at Miss America headquarters in Atlantic City.

Alas, the national effort fell short. The pageant stood fast by its decision not to rehire Parks for this year's contest, and yet another outrage stood unvanquished (although Parks himself, suddenly faced with more guest spots on TV sitcoms and specials than he can handle, called the whole thing "Just Great!").

The question of the hour then became, Who will (dare) replace Bert? It was not the most sought-after job in show business.

Enter Ron Ely, former TV Tarzan, an actor who could afford the risk. After "Tarzan," Ely found something of a lull in his career. He went to Europe, made a few movies in Germany, and failed in a comeback try here with something called, "Doc Savage."

"I'd began looking at some things, some opportunities, that were there all along, but I was just not taking advantage of them," he said.

The controversy over Parks' firing, Ely says, is the result of misdirected passions.

"The fact is, I've been assured, that Bert wasn't fired — he just wasn't rehired."

Oh.

"But I recognize that the job will be tougher because of the furor. I'm sure I'll be subject to excessive criticism. But that's fine, they're entitled; and there's absolutely nothing I can do about it.

"It's like at a corporation. If the president of a corporation goes out making noise, then the next president gets added pressure from the stockholders. But I can guarantee you that because of that, I won't just be walking through this."

We'll see next August how Ely fares in the hero-replacing business. But if he doesn't make it, that's okay, too. America could always use another hero.

King Cotton Has Moved Out West

By FRANK THORSBERG

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) – King Cotton has moved out West.

The fluffy white bolls inspired songs and made millionaires in the South but Southern states' production has gone down in recent years as heavy increases were recorded in California and Arizona.

Only about 25 percent of the U.S. cotton crop was grown east of the Mississippi River in 1979.

California has jumped to 1.65 million acres in cotton in 1979 — up more than a half million acres from 1.13 million acres three years ago.

Arizona planted 341,000 acres in cotton in 1976 and last year had 610,000 acres. New Mexico, which had 68,000 acres in 1976, is also on the rise with 153,000 acres in 1979.

"It's been moving west for the last 20 years," said Donald W. Bratton, head of the Market News Section of the Cotton Division of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. "The yield is higher out west. In California they can get about two bales to the acre while in Tennessee we get about one bale an acre."

In 1976, Alabama planted 400,000 acres in cotton. In 1979, it was 325,000 acres and 1980 projections are for 315,000 acres. Arkansas production dropped nearly half from 1976-1979 to 630,000.

Mississippi, where cotton was king in legend and reality for decades, has cut production from 1.5 million acres in 1976 to one million acres in 1979.

Texas has gone from 420,000 acres in 1976 to 250,000 last year.

Many farmers in the Delta region have turned from cotton to one of the more cash competitive crops such as soybeans, Bratton said. With the grain embargo to Russia, however, that trend may be reversed.

Continuance of the embargo could mean more cotton acreage with decreases possible in soybeans and grain crops. Some experts believe the embargo may have helped the cotton export market and influenced a sharp price rise in January.

"The embargo means that some grain ships can now be used for cotton as the export demand increases," said Kendell Keith, an agricultural economist with the National Cotton Council of America based in Memphis.

Ben Franklin, Bratton's assistant who is in charge of putting out the Cotton Market Report, a weekly review of the cotton industry prepared in Memphis, did not share that opinion.

"I don't know if the embargo will affect cotton that much," he said. "We may ship more, but I don't know if it'll help exports."

One of the biggest problems with the 1980 crop will be increases in production costs. Predictions are that costs for fertilizers, under pressure from recent natural gas hikes, will rise 15 percent. More dramatic increases will be felt in fuel costs, with energy costs soaring an estimated 30 percent.

Those factors add up to an overall rise of 10-12 percent in production cost per acre, Keith noted.

American cotton crops and the prices paid for them are up. Predictions are that current prices of more than 80 cents a pound for high-grade cotton will rise with continued foreign demand, mostly from the Far East.

"I'm optimistic about cotton," said Keith. "The export market is really booming and there's not that much competition.

"We've had increasing exports since 1974. In 1977, it was 5.4 million bales; in 1978 it was 6.1 million and in 1979 it was more than 8 million.

"Forty or 50 years ago 75 percent of the export crop went to Western Europe," Keith said. "Now it goes to the Far East — Japan, Taiwan, Korea, Hong Kong and China."

Outside the United States, cotton's next largest home is in Russia and China.

In 1979 China harvested about 10 million 480-pound bales of cotton while Russia produced about 13 million bales.

China grows a lot of cotton, but it uses more of the white stuff than it can produce and must seek out additional supplies in the world marketplace. Russia, on the other hand, consumes most of its crop and does not export a great deal of cotton.

"We'll ship eight million bales or over half of the 14.9 million bale total crop," he said.

Militants Are Still Mystery

By ALEXANDER HIGGINS
Associated Press Writer

BONN, West Germany (AP) — The young militants occupying the U.S. Embassy in Tehran are still a mysterious band after four months in the international spotlight. But many Iranians believe they are what they say they are — devout Moslem students and followers of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

There is little evidence to the contrary, and Khomeini's continued support for the militants, believed to number 400 to 500 in all, indicates the leader of the Iranian revolution is convinced they are authentic.

The militants appear to be between 20 and 30 years old. Iranians say they speak Farsi as an educated person would, giving credence to their insistence they are students. About 30 percent are believed to be women.

Iranians who say they either know some of the militants well or have friends acquainted with them report they are devout, intelligent students of Islam. They are often seen praying in the embassy compound.

The militants are a separate group from the Revolutionary Guards on duty outside the embassy gates. The guards, who often are photographed by Western newspaper and TV cameramen, are part of the paramilitary corps that protects official institutions all over Iran. Many are much older than the militants and lack higher education.

After the embassy was seized Nov. 4, there was speculation the militants were theological students from the holy city of Qom, Khomeini's headquarters before he suffered a mild heart attack in January. He now lives in Tehran.

But Iranians appear to accept the militants' assertion that most of them were enrolled at four Tehran universities. The official line is that they have given up their studies for the time being, but some of them say they slip out of the embassy to attend classes.

While declining to discuss personal matters, they talk freely with reporters, either through the embassy gates or by telephone. Many speak English, and they are usually polite.

Iranians and Western diplomats in Tehran say they believe the militants' political views range from anarchism to crusading Moslem fundamentalism.

The militants are divided into groups to work three eight-hour shifts, with different units to handle the hostages, security, running the embassy buildings, public relations and evaluating captured embassy documents.

They have organized a hierarchy, headed by a panel of students and Khomeini's representative, Ayatollah Mohammad Khoeini, who joined the militants after the takeover.

Their expenses are underwritten by Khomeini's office, which meets all requests for cash and equipment. Food is brought in daily from the outside. The hostages are fed by a Pakistani cook who worked for the embassy and volunteered to remain.

PAY FOR NO-WORK

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge has ordered a California company to continue paying a woman while the sexual harassment charges she filed against her former boss are being considered. The woman — who was fired after filing the complaint— doesn't have to return to work.

R IGXUKVXUI-ZCOVY ZC PRKVO OGP-HGCPYUY GCF HGPY YGOKGF

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — VIVID PLANETARIUM DISPLAY REVEALED MANY MINUTE PLANETS.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: K equals T

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Lowe's Pricing Policy

Many items in this tabloid carry a reference retail price. This reference is intended to provide a guide to the range of retail selling prices in our selling area and may be useful in identifying different units of the same manufacturer. An item's reference retail price is either the manufacturer's suggested retail price or our determination of its full retail price based on prices at which it or similar merchandise is offered by principal retailers (department stores, specialty shops and other non-discount sellers) in our selling area. While we believe our reference retails do not appreciably exceed the highest retail prices at which sales are made in our selling area, we cannot assure you that our reference retail prices, as described above, represent the prices in every community on any given day. Some items in this advertisement are listed at "regular" selling price. The merchandise is offered at this price except during a special sale. The purpose of showing a reference retail price (or a regular price) is to assist you, our customer, in making a knowledgeable and better informed buying decision. We suggest that you also do comparative shopping and compare our prices.
