Crash Kills U.S. Boxing Team

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — A Polish airliner carrying members of the U.S. amateur boxing team on a flight from New York crashed into a military fort near Warsaw's International Airport today, killing all 87 passengers and crew, authorities said.

It was one of history's worst crashes involving sports personalities.

The Polish Federation of Boxing said the U.S. team, numbering about 24, was aboard the LOT airlines flight, en route to international matches in Warsaw. Most of the remaining passengers were said to be Polish, but one or two other Americans were reported aboard.

The Ilyushin 62 aircraft with 77 passengers and a crew of 10 aboard crashed into the old Czarist-era fort about three miles from the runway, on its second approach in clear, sunny weather, witnesses said.

Among the team members reportedly aboard was Tom "Sarge" Johnson of Indianapolis, coach of the AAU's national team and former trainer of the 1976 American Olympic team, which won five gold medals.

A spokesman for the U.S. Embassy said there were unconfirmed reports that as many as 25 Americans were on the flight. The official Polish news agency, however, said a list of 24 U.S. citizens aboard would be announced this afternoon.

A spokesman at LOT offices in New York said the plane carried 22 members of the team, but a spokesman had said earlier that 23 members were aboard, as well as "one or two other Americans." At least 13 of those on the U.S. team were boxers, he said, and the others were team managers, doctors and other personnel. He said a completely verified passenger manifest was not immediately available but that "the very initial report showed there were one or two other Americans aboard. The rest of the 77 passengers were Polish," he said.

The crash recalled a Feb. 16, 1961 air disaster that wiped out the United States figure skating team. In that crash near Brussels, Belgium, 73 persons were killed, 15 of them team members on the way to Prague, Czechoslovakia for the world championships.

Among the dead were 16-year-old Laurence Owen, who had won the U.S. championship the previous week, her sister, Maribel, a national senior pairs champion, and their mother, Maribel Vinson Owen, a former champion.

A witness to today's crash, Stanislaw Wilczur, 32, told The Associated Press he heard what seemed to be an explosion in one of the engines seconds before the crash.

The crash occurred in a densely populated area south of the Polish capital, but there were no casualties on the ground, oficials said.

According to witnesses, the plane started to dive from the height of about 100 feet and slammed into the earthen wall of a fort built by Russians in 19th century.

MOLINE, Ill. (AP — Bob Surkein, the National AAU boxing chairman, said today the members of the U.S. boxing team that were reportedly aboard a Polish airliner which crashed today included:

David Rodriguez, Los Angeles area.

Lonnie Young, Philadelphia

George Pimenthal, New York

Jerome Stewart, U.S. Navy, Norfolk, Va.

Gary Clayton, Philadelphia

Byron Lindsay, San Diego

Lemuel Steeples, St. Louis

Paul Palomino, Los Angeles

Byron Payton, Dallas-Fort Worth area

Andre McCoy, New Bedford, Mass.

Walter Harris, San Francisco

Elliott Chaves, Fort Bragg, N.C.

Kelvin Anderson, Providence, R.I.

According to Surkein, the other members of the U.S. group also included:

Joe Bland, chief of delegation, High Point, N.C.

Tom Johnson, national coach, Indianapolis

Dr. Wasson, Biloxi, Miss.

John Radison, St. Louis, referee

Bernie Callahan, Carlile, Pa., referee.

Palomino is a brother of Carlos Palomino, former World Boxing Council welterweight champion.

PETITION DRIVE ENDS — The Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce drive to seek 25,000 signatures on its petition of concern over local utilities charges has ended. Charles Schwidde, above, chairman of the Utilities Committee of the Chamber, announced this morning that with 26,113 signatures now on hand, the goal has been reached. He added that he feels other signatures will also be coming in today. Schwidde noted too that the "Operation Overcharge" petition drive will continue through March 31. ### Unanimous Vote

Reject 'Service District'

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

By unanimous vote Thursday evening, the City Council rejected a proposal to establish a municipal service district that would have taxed all property owners within the downtown segment.

The Council action followed a public hearing on the special assessment proposal that saw a procession of downtown property owners voice their objections to paying a tax aimed at funding promotion and development activities in the district.

Gail Meeks, assistant to the city manager, pointed out during the hearing that the Downtown Greenville Association voted last November to request the Council to consider establishing the municipal service district. She said that the subsequent tax would be levied effective July 1 "annually for a period of ten years, which would generate a collectible revenue of approximately $24,000."

Mrs. Meeks added that the basis of the DGA's request "is the reliability of a stable income which will allow the opportunity to have adequate programs and promotional activities."

It was pointed out that if the service district is created, all dues and assessments within the downtown district would be eliminated "and all stores, landlords, and businesses within the district" would be members.

Appearing at the hearing, the executive director of the DGA, David Mosier, explained that when the association was formed some five years ago, objectives were set to "promote the economic growth, provide convenient parking, develop a good public relations program, assure credibility in the eyes of the community, become involved in beautification projects and act as a liaison agent with city and county officials and the Redevelopment Commission."

Mosier observed that the DGA has "always had a

City Closing Part Of Spruce Street

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

In a move that was unpopular with residents living in the Spruce Street area, the City Council voted last night to close a portion of Spruce between Raleigh Avenue and 14th Street.

The Council was not in total agreement on the street closing, however, as the measure passed by a three to two margin.

Ron Sewell, city engineer, explained that with the proposed five-laning of Farmville Boulevard creating a major intersection within a short distance of Spruce Street at 14th Street, the closing would eliminate a potentially hazardous traffic situation.

Sewell noted that a traffic count was conducted on the Spruce Street segment proposed for closing and a "very low residential volume" of traffic or some 100 cars in a 24-hour period was tabulated.

The Council conducted a public hearing on the street closing at the February meeting and continued the hearing until last night. Several citizens who own property in the Spruce Street area appeared again last night to express their opposition to the closing.

Charles Kavanaugh said that closing of Spruce would cut off an important artery and create a traffic bottleneck.

Sidney Skinner said that instead of closing streets in West Greenville, the corridors need to be kept open. He added that closing Spruce Street would overload other streets in the area.

Mike Richardson, who has a business in the area, said he was not opposed to closing Spruce, while Willie Small, a resident of the area, opposed the closing, contending it would deny residents access to 14th Street. Small said the move was a "step backward."

Mickey Herrin, appearing on behalf of A.B. Whitley, said that Whitley does not object to closing the Spruce Street segment. He added that no one would be deprived of ingress or egress to their property.

SPRING HOPE, N.C. (AP) — Thursday began much like any other day for Phyllis Smith Dunn of Spring Hope.

She drove her two young daughters, ages 8 and 10, to school and arrived at her job at the People's Bank and Trust Co. office about 8:30 a.m.

Ninety minutes later, she was dead.

Mrs. Dunn, 28, was the victim of a bank robber who shot her with a long-barrel, .22-caliber pistol after announcing he was holding up the bank.

Authorities said Mrs. Dunn apparently did nothing to provoke the shots from the man.

Spri Hope police, assisted by the State Bureau of Investigation, the FBI, state Highway Patrol and the Nash County Sheriff's office, were continuing to search for a suspect. No arrest had been made late Thursday.

"Nobody ever had a better child in the world," said Mrs. Dunn's father, Cecil Smith. "It just doesn't seem real to me now."

Mrs. Dunn's parents described their daughter as a cheerful person who always tried to help others. Most of all, they said, she loved being with her husband and children.

"She was happy-go-lucky. She always had kind words for everybody," said Smith. "If she had been ill, it would have been different. You always look for something then. This is too fast. It's just not right."

Mrs. Dunn's husband, J.W. Dunn Jr., an employee at Brigadier Industries in Nashville, was in Tennessee on business when he received word of his wife's death. Next Friday would have been the couple's 11th wedding anniversary.

Nash County Sheriff Frank D. Brown said Mrs. Dunn was killed by a black male who entered the bank about 10 a.m. Brown quoted the man as saying, "This is a stick-up, give me the money," before he fired a shot that struck Mrs. Dunn in the right side of her chest.

'Unveiling' Due Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — This is what Americans can expect from the new anti-inflation program President Carter is unveiling today:

—The first balanced budget in 12 years.

—A 10-cent-a-gallon increase in gasoline prices.

—An increased wage standard.

—Pared spending plans, and,

—Higher interest rates, credit controls, and no more Saturday mail deliveries.

Those are the anticipated highlights of the president's newest strategy to contain inflation. He is announcing the program today in a White House speech at 4:30 p.m. EST. He will hold a nationally broadcast news conference at 9 p.m. to answer questions about the program and other topics.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said still were being made after

DOT Urged To Expand Proposal For Farmville

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE — Speakers at a Department of Transportation hearing here last night on the proposed Farmville East Thoroughfare, rather than voice opposition for the project, urged the DOT to expand its proposal.

Bill Garrett, moderator of the hearing for DOT, explained, "we are here to give you some information about what has been developed," and give area residents an opportunity to ask questions and make comments on the proposal.

The Farmville East Thoroughfare, he emphasized, "has not been approved at this time," as presented.

Explaining the scope of the proposed project, Garrett said the roadway will join the existing US 264 East of Farmville, to the Stantonsburg Road (SR 1200), a distance of 3.2 miles, and cost an estimated $3.32 million.

Specifically, the thoroughfare will begin at the Craft aircraft spraying airstrip East of Farmville, interchange with the relocated US 264, and join the Stantonsburg Road at the SR 1221 intersection.

The proposed two-lane, 24-foot wide roadway, would be located on a 100 foot wide right of way, adequate to contain a future four or five lane urban section, with intersections at US 264, US 264A, SR 1200 and at the Southern Railroad, at grade. There would be no control of access, as proposed. "Driveways would be allowed," Garrett noted.

George Harper of Kinston, a member of the Board of Transportation, emphasized, "we want you to give us the input... how you feel."

Some 30 persons, speaking as individuals or representing various groups, did just that.

Pat Thomas, town administrator, who said, "we are calling," the proposed thoroughfare, "the Eastern Parkway," said the Town of Farmville wished to see the project expanded to four lanes on a 120 to 150 foot right of way, include a grade separation at the railroad intersection, and have limited control of access.

"The thoroughfare is needed," he emphasized, but "four lanes, rather than two."

A resolution from the Board of County Commissioners also suggested, "design and construction, that would improve traffic safety and discourage strip development," urging a grade separation at the railroad, and a four-lane roadway with median.

That set the tone for the comments. Like remarks came from the Pitt County Board of Education, the Greene County Board of Commissioners, the Farmville Rotary, Kiwanis and Lions Clubs, the Farmville and Greenville Chambers of Commerce, the Farmville Economic Council, State Rep. Sam Bundy, First District Congressman Walter Jones (in the form of a letter), and other groups and individuals.

Strategy Meeting Held By Opponents Of VEPCO Rates

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Agencies and organizations involved in the battle with Virginia Electric and Power Company over rates being charged the people of Northeastern North Carolina held a strategy session this morning.

The meeting was conducted, beginning at 10:30 a. m. in the House Agriculture Committee Hearing Room on Capitol Hill with J. Larkin Little of Greenville welcoming the group for the host organization, Operation Overcharge.

Representatives of all the group came together for the first time today to chart strategy for what may be a landmark case before the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. Harold Judd, representing Esther Peterson, Pres. Carter's Special Assistant for Consumer Affairs, spoke for the U. S. Office of Consumer Affairs.

Representatives were on hand from Operation Overcharge, the Public Staff of the N. C. Utilities Commission, the N. C. Attorney General's office, Electricities of North Carolina, Power Agency Two, National Spinning Company Inc., Ti-Caro Inc., the U. S. House Subcommittee on Energy and Power, Sen. Robert Morgan's office, Congressman Herbert E. Harris' office, Congressman Walter B. Jones's office, the Consumer Congress of Virginia, the office of the Virginia Attorney General, and the North Carolina EMC's.

Little said the group came out of the meeting "with a great deal of unity and with our roadmap laid out to pursue this effort to a successful conclusion."

Widower Not Tarrying Kind

By Abigail Van Buren

1980 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: A Texas widow complained because her friends never got around to introducing her to any eligible men.

May I say a word from the man's point of view? I was 53 when my wife died. Soon, well-meaning friends started to fix me up with eligible women.

Good ole Bill and his cute wife, Jeanette, had me to dinner. The only other guest was Jeanette's widowed mother—a pleasant, quiet little lady (about 60) whose only claim to fame was her ability to make pumpkin pie. Frankly, she was not my cup of tea, but I felt obligated to ask her for a date anyway.

Then good ole Charlie and his kind-hearted wife, Lucille, fixed me up with a "terrific" woman who had loads of money and was a whiz at bridge. Well, I hate bridge and wasn't looking for a meal ticket, so that didn't work out. I had many such experiences. All flops.

I am no great catch myself, but I know what I want in a woman and none of my friends came up with anything that filled the bill.

Abby, if people really want to help singles meet someone, they should invite them to a casual cocktail party with lots of people. An eyeball-to-eyeball confrontation is not fertile soil in which the fragile seedling of romance can flower.

Fortunately, I found a lovely lady all by myself with no help from anyone.

TERRY IN COLUMBUS

DEAR TERRY: Congratulations. But don't knock the one-to-one date. My mail tells me that there's a lot of loneliness in the world, and although you may prefer the large cocktail party, it is not the happiest hunting ground for all singles.

DEAR ABBY: A few weeks ago I read in your column, CONFIDENTIAL TO "THIRTEEN AND SCARED TO DEATH OF MY STEPDAD." It weighed heavily on my mind because at 13, I, too, was scared to death of my stepfather who had been sexually molesting me since I was barely 11. He was even violent at times. My scars speak for themselves.

When I told my mother, she gave the excuse that he was drunk. (End of subject for her.)

When I got married at 18, my stepfather was still after me. One day he came to my home and tried to overpower me; I pumped seven bullets into his body and killed him on the spot.

I stood trial for second-degree murder. The jury deliberated 10 minutes and ruled it self-defense.

After two years with a psychologist I am finally beginning to feel human. Understanding yourself and your motivations is a wealth beyond measure.

I pray with all my heart that the 13-year-old girl takes your advice and tells the police, the welfare office, a teacher or someone who can help her. The day-to-day fear of being molested is terrible to live with. I know.

Thanks for printing letters like this. You do more good than you realize. Keep up the goodwork.

Committee Reports Given At Service League Meet

The Greenville Service League held its March meeting at the Greenville Parks and Recreation Building Monday. President Mrs. John S. Whichard heard committee reports.

She announced the next meeting will be held March 31.

A Bloodmobile visit to Rose High School resulted in the collection of 196 units with 25 workers given 75 hours. Volunteers also helped at the Tar River Blood Center during the recent show. A two-day visit to ECU, sponsored by the fraternities, is scheduled for March 27-28.

Hospital Activities Chairman Mrs. R. K. Barnhill reported 314 Valentine favors were placed on patients' trays and announced an Easter workshop for April 2. One layette was furnished and one call answered from the Lending Chest.

Mrs. Charles Wilkerson Jr., Charity Ball chairman, expressed her appreciation to members.

Mrs. Charles Stevens announced the sustaining members will have a coffee honoring provisional members March 19 at the home of Mrs. William Hudson. All league members are invited.

Eta Model Meeting Held

A model meeting was held for prospective members by the Eta Delta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Tuesday at the home of Mary Ellen Joyce. Fran Rostar was assisting hostess.

The chairperson of each committee gave a short explanation of committee duties, its members and presented each rushee with a remembrance.

Sue Likosar presented the program on "Mental Attitudes Toward Losing Weight."

More Americans Eating Out

More and more Americans are eating out these days.

Nearly 35 percent of the American food dollar is spent annually in restaurants, fast food outlets and other away-from-home eating places, say specialists with the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service.

Fast food outlets have grown rapidly and now have an annual sales volume of over $19 billion — more than 20 percent of the away-from-home food market.

What Are Gourmets Up To Now?

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

Two young New York cooking stars, Michele Urvater and David Liederman say, "Americans can cook meals at home comparable to those served in the three-star restaurants in France."

They tell how to do so in their new book, "Cooking the Nouvelle Cuisine in America" (Workman). Urvater is a chef and director of a fine cooking school. Liederman trained at a three-star restaurant in France and is now a restaurateur himself.

What is "nouvelle cuisine?"

It is the latest French cooking style that, according to the authors, should include the following principles:

1. Reject unduly complicated and pretentiously overdone dishes.
2. Reduce cooking times, especially for shellfish, fish, veal, chicken and vegetables. Steam foods.
3. Choose fresh and seasonal ingredients and use them to create light dishes that emphasize their flavor.
4. Limit the number of dishes served at a meal.
5. Use light sauces made with pure reductions of stock, small doses of cream and fresh herbs.
6. Try recipes for simple regional dishes instead of the complicated ones of haute cuisine.
7. Use new and modern equipment, such as non-stick pans that allow you to reduce the amount of butter and oil in a dish.
8. Be inventive. For example, although many Americans limit the use of fresh basil to the Italian sauce, Pesto, nouvelle-cuisine cooks use fresh basil in a variety of other dishes.

To sample "Cooking the Nouvelle Cuisine in America," we tested the book's recipe for baked wild rice because the authors couple this luxurious grain with vegetables — onions, carrots and mushrooms. Also because, as they say, "This side dish goes well with everything."

MICHELE AND DAVID'S BAKED WILD RICE

1 cup wild rice
Coarse salt
4 tablespoons butter
½ pound mushrooms, rinsed and chopped
½ cup minced carrot
¾ cup minced onion
2 tablespoons minced shallots
2 teaspoons fresh thyme, or ½ teaspoon dried
1 large bay leaf
1½ cups beef stock
Salt
Freshly ground pepper

Soak the wild rice in water to cover for 1 hour. Drain, and discard the water.

Bring 1½ quarts of water to a boil with 1 tablespoon coarse salt. Plunge the rice in the water and parboil for 5 minutes after water has returned to a boil. Drain the rice and set aside.

Preheat the oven to 375 degrees.

Melt the butter in a 9-or 10-inch skillet. Add mushrooms and all the vegetables at once and stew, covered, over low heat for about 10 minutes, or until soft.

Mix the rice with the mushrooms and vegetables and continue to cook for another 2 minutes. Add 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, the thyme, bay leaf and stock and stir them into the rice.

Transfer the mixture to a 2-quart oven-proof baking pan. Cover the pan with a piece of aluminum foil and bake for 35 to 40 minutes or until the rice has absorbed the liquid. (This may be reheated in a 350-degree oven for 20 minutes, if the rice has been refrigerated. Reheat for 10 minutes only, if the rice has been kept at room temperature.)

Mrs. Harrington Gives Program

A program on silk flower arrangements was given by Mrs. Linda Harrington at Sunshine Garden Center for the Ladewood Pines Garden Club Tuesday morning.

She demonstrated the use of silk flowers in several arrangements.

The business meeting was held at the home of Mrs. W. A. Woolard. Mrs. J. H. Calder and Mrs. W. A. Wright were assisting hostesses. Mrs. W. E. Roseveare conducted the meeting.

The following slate of officers was presented by Mrs. Joseph M. Laney Jr.: President, Mrs. W. G. Morrison; First Vice President, Mrs. Frank Ramey; Second Vice President, Mrs. Francis A. Jordan; Treasurer, Mrs. Woolard; Recording Secretary, Mrs. N. C. Pierce; and Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Gino Abessinio.

Horticulture hints were given by Mrs. Wright.

Members will be meeting in the lobby of the Rehabilitation Center, Pitt Memorial Hospital, at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday, April 8, for a tour of the gardens.

Linda Carol Hodges Is Bride Of Randy Edwards

BEAR GRASS — The marriage of Linda Carol Hodges, daughter of Mrs. Vader Hodges of Bear Grass, and the late Mr. Thad Hodges, to Randy Murl Edwards of Greenville took place Sunday at 3 p.m. in the Presbyterian Church here.

The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Edwards of Newton Grove.

The church was decorated with brass wedding accessories, cathedral tapers, palms and baskets of white gladioli. The Rev. Charles Streshly officiated at the double ring ceremony. Music was presented by Helen Rogers of Bear Grass, pianist, and Jerry Jackson, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, sang "If," "We've Only Just Begun" and "Wedding Prayer."

The bride, escorted by her brother, Phillip Hodges, and given in marriage by her mother, wore a formal gown of white sheer chiffon over peau de soie embroidered with lace and beaded with pearls on the bodice and front of the skirt. The hemline featured a lace ruffle and the full sleeves were embroidered with lace and had lace cuffs. Her headpiece was a lace covered pillbox with two tiers of white illusion. She carried a cascade of roses and daisies with satin streamers, baby's breath with her grandmother's lace handkerchief. She wore a gift of the bridegroom, a floating heart necklace.

MRS. RANDY MURL EDWARDS

Attending as maid of honor was Ann Rogers of Raleigh with her sisters, Bobbie Jean of Raleigh, Vickie and Sharon of Bear Grass as bridesmaids. Michele Jackson of Smithfield, niece of the bridegroom, was junior bridesmaid. They wore gowns of pink qiana fashioned with split sleeves, blouson bodices and gathered skirts. Their pink pillboxs had short veil and they carried original duchess bouquets of pink carnations, forever young rose petals and pink velvet streamers.

Honorary bridesmaids were Anita Coltrain of Robersonville and Jane Davison of Greenville, who carried long-stemmed pink carnations.

The bridegroom's father was best man and ushers included Billy Gregory, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Johnathan Gregory, nephew of the bridegroom, of Newton Grove, Gwyn Crow of Oxford, cousin of the bridegroom, and Lawrence Watson of Williamston.

The bride's mother was attired in a mauve full length dress of qiana with a draped neckline. Her corsage was a pink orchid. The bridegroom's mother selected a pale green full length dress of qiana with a draped neckline and a green orchid.

Mrs. Lavinia Harrison, grandmother of the bride, and Mrs. Stella Pennenton, grandmother of the bridegroom, were given pink carnation corsages. Mrs. Rebecca Boyd, aunt of the bride, was mistress of ceremonies.

The bride is a senior at ECU and works at Brown-Wood Cadillac. The bridegroom is employed by the Greenville Police Department. He is a graduate of Martin Community College and attended ECU.

The couple traveled to Williamsburg, Va., for a wedding trip.

A reception was held at the Yucca House where Mr. and Mrs. Simon Coltrain greeted guests. Mrs. Evelyn Baily and Mrs. Evie Hodges, aunts of the bride, served wedding cake and Mrs. Gail Jackson, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Gretrude Lewis, aunt of the bridegroom, poured punch. Mr. and Mrs. Humphrey Gillam said goodbyes.

A wedding luncheon was held honoring the bridal couple and wedding party at the Yucca House. Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Javan Rogers, Helen and Ann and Mr. and Mrs. Dan Peele and Jennie.

Tables were covered with white cloths decorated with yellow ribbon, green candles and spring flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Watson held an after-rehearsal party for the wedding party at their home Saturday night. A pre-rehearsal dinner was held at the Yucca House for the wedding party. Hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Edwards, Billy and Linda Gregory and Jerry and Gail Jackson.

Valuables Need Insurance

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

Sales of insurance covering jewelry, antiques, sterling silver, gold articles and similar valuables have tripled in the past six months, says insurance executive Vincent A. Wick.

Understandably. Burglars now bypass such cumbersome items as television and stereo sets in favor of more easily portable — and often more valuable — sterling silver flatware and holloware, jewelry and other gold and silver articles.

"A six-piece place setting of sterling flatware that cost $500 a year ago is now worth more than $1,500," says Charles R. Rinehart, a San Francisco insurance executive.

Both men agree that many Americans today are underinsured.

They recommend personal property floaters because homeowners' and tenants' insurance policies in many states have built-in limits.

Typically, it is $1,000 on theft claims, Rinehart said in a telephone interview.

"A single silver bowl can easily exceed that limit," he added.

Some policies provide even smaller maximums for loss in any one incident, Wick said. For example, $100 on currently circulated coins, currency and rare coin collections, or $500 on theft of jewelry, watches, gems and furs.

Unlike many other policies, floaters carry no deductibles. They pay for all causes of loss, with some specific exclusions such as wear and tear, deliberate damage and mysterious disappearance.

In most states the premium charge per $100 of value is about $1-$2 for jewelry, 22 cents for silverware, 35 cents for furs and $1.50 for cameras, according to the Insurance Information Institute, a New York-based trade group.

Because of the volatile situation, Wick now recommends appraisals for insurance purposes at least once a year instead of every three years, as in the past. Wick is chairman of the Inland Marine Underwriters Association, representing 200 companies nationwide, and vice chairman of Talbot, Bird & Co., of New York City.

If your sterling pattern is a discontinued one, make sure the appraiser takes that into account. Its replacement value may include a die charge on top of the price per item. For example, my Gorham Lily of the Valley pattern now retails for $1,088 per six-piece place setting. To replace all eight settings at today's prices would cost $8,074 — plus a die charge of about $360 ($60 per piece for putting each of six dies back on the production line) and New York City and state sales taxes — at 8 percent, they would total $725.12.

The alternatives to more insurance are few:

You can sell the valuables and bank the money — and pay capital gains taxes on any profit you make over the original purchase price or the value at the time you received the articles as a gift or inheritance.

Rinehart recommends storage in a bank safe-deposit box for any valuables you use infrequently.

Those used more often should be stored in a locked cabinet, he said, or — if possible — in a safe-deposit box hidden in your home or apartment.

If you insist on displaying valuables in curio cabinets or on tables or open shelves, Rinehart said, there's nothing much you can do for protection except "install a security system, if you can afford it, or let the police know when you're going away for a while."

Rinehart said photographs of your entire home or apartment are a good idea, not so much to prove ownership if a loss should occur, but to trigger your memory.

Black-and-white photos are usually adequate, he said, to supplement your written or typed records of valuables. Ideally the list should include the year each item was bought or acquired and its actual or appraised worth at that time.

Keep the inventory and photos in a fireproof cabinet or safe-deposit box or with your insurance agent, Rinehart said, and keep it up to date.

For general care of upholstered furniture, brush or vacuum with a whisk broom or the upholstery nozzle attachment of a vacuum. Clean cushions on both sides, armrests and back crevices. A crevice tool on a vacumm helps reach into corners and along seams. Vacuuming upholstery often helps to keep colors fresh and bright.

Pocahontas District Meeting Announced

Withla Council No. 42, Degree of Pocahontas held its meeting Tuesday evening. The First District meeting was announced by Keeper of Records Betty Nobles.

The meeting will be held in Rocky Mount April 12. The Redman and Pocahontas of the Year will be presented. Qualifications for the selection of Pocahontas of the Year was read in a letter from Great Keeper of Records Allie Mae Wilson of Elizabeth City.

Patricia Love, secretary of the Second District, notified the group of its meeting March 29. Prophetress Marga Ross was elected council deputy and will be presented to the Great Council Session of North Carolina in Nags Head May 18-20.

Beulah Barber, Great Wenonah of N. C. Degree of Pocahontas will make her official visit here Oct. 14.

Doris McKeel read "A Diary of Love" for the group. Sallie Vainright will be in charge of special projects for the next meeting. Margaret Register reminded members of voter registration deadline.

Lillian Bradshaw, chairman for promotional development committee of the Improved Order of Redman-Degree of Pocahontas of N. C., distributed tickets. Theresa Barrett, a new member, received instructions from Pennie Dunn, Frances Breedlove, Mrs. Vainright and Marie Stocks.

Meeting hostesses were Mrs. Bradshaw, Mable Register and Margaret Register.

New Combo Is Introduced

The first full-power microwave/gas combination — a free-standing kitchen range has been introduced by a major appliance manufacturer.

Representing a major breakthrough in cooking technology, the new range combines full-power microwave cooking with a new and advanced gas convection system in the same oven capacity, say specialists with the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service.

The range can cook as fast as the most efficient countertop microwave ovens, says its manufacturer, but it also has all the baking, broiling and browning qualities by using the two cooking methods at the same time.

Connally A 'Survivor'

The United States is noted for its long and cumbersome campaigns which finally lead to the election of a president.

The process is interesting and exciting, however, and it frequently takes unexpected turns.

One such came this week when John Connally concluded that he could not win the Republican nomination and withdrew from the race.

There are few more interesting political figures in American politics than Connally.

A former Democratic governor of Texas, he was riding with John F. Kennedy in Dallas when the president was assassinated and, indeed Connally was injured himself.

Connally made the switch to the Republican party while Nixon was in power and it came at a poor time as Watergate began to threaten the party and the entire country.

Still Connally was a popular figure as he launched his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination. It soon became obvious that he wasn't making any headway. Some $10 million in campaign spending netted him only one convention delegate. Connally was realist enough to know it was time to get out, and he did.

In view of his career, we doubt if anyone would count John Connally out insofar as future involvement in government or politics, however. He is the kind of man who simply won't abandon his goals.

One Of Patrolman's Risks

A highway patrolman, D. G. Twine of Roanoke Rapids, was sitting in his patrol car writing up a wreck report when he saw a big truck bearing down on him near on I-95 Monday.

The resulting crash crushed his car between two trucks.

Twine told a "Daily Reflector" reporter he didn't just consider himself lucky. Referring to the fact that he escaped major injuries, he said, "I was blessed."

Patrolmen face many hazards on the highways. Getting wiped out in one of the wrecks they investigate is one of them.

SORT OF A DIFFICULT SPOT!

Gold, Silver Lose Luster

By FLOYD NORRIS
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Gold and silver, the bright stars of the speculative firmament just seven weeks ago, seem to be losing their luster.

The buying fever that pushed the price of a troy ounce of gold to a peak of $875 in January has broken and the price has shrunk more than $300.

And silver, which skyrocketed from $6 to $50 in about a year, now has dropped below $30 an ounce.

Some economists now say that traders overreacted to international crises following the Iranian seizure of American hostages and the Soviet Union's decision to send troops into Afghanistan.

"The war psychology fever has died down," said Jeffrey Nichols, an economist with Argus Research Corp. "It doesn't look like we're going one-on-one with the Soviet Union."

Inflation, both in the United States and other industrial countries, played a big role in pushing up the prices of gold and silver. With paper money losing value, precious metals looked like a safe haven.

But in recent weeks traders have been painfully reminded that gold pays no dividends and that interest rates have risen to record highs in the United States as the Federal Reserve Board tightens credit to fight inflation.

"When you can take your dollars and make 16 or 17 percent, it's a heavy price to pay to own gold," said Fred Bogart, the head of precious metals trading for Republic National Bank of New York.

"The speculator wasn't seeing a good return on his money," said Guy Cheney, a metals trader with Bache Halsey Stuart Shields in London. "He was seeing a far more advantageous proposition in some of the interest rates, some of the money markets, so he decided to sell. And once the selling came it was rather like a snowball."

The latest darling of the speculators is the previously maligned dollar. Buoyed by high interest rates, it is at its highest level in months against most major currencies and since the beginning of the year has risen almost 10 percent against the once-powerful Swiss franc.

In the current psychology of the gold market, bad inflation news is even being taken as bad news for the price of metals. Traders have paid a lot of attention to speculation that President Carter will impose some form of credit controls and slash federal spending.

"The mind of the market has moved to inflation, and that President Carter will take bold, incisive action against it," said James Sinclair, the head of a New York investment firm bearing his name.

The speculative surge in gold and silver spilled over into other metals, and those have also declined from their highs. Platinum, which reached $1,085 an ounce, has slipped as low as $858. Copper, whose price rose to $1.46 a pound, dipped below a dollar.

None of the metals is cheap by historical standards, of course. "If you went into the bush six months ago and came out now and I told you gold was selling for $560, you wouldn't believe it," said Bogart. Gold then cost just under $400 an ounce, up from $225 at the beginning of 1979.

Growth Of Towns

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — What is the fastest growing town in North Carolina?

The answer is Foxfire Village, a resort community in Moore County's sandhills where population has soared 1,233 percent in the last eight years. Never mind that the population now stands at only 120, Foxfire Village leads the booming growth in North Carolina's small towns in the latest census update by the state's Office of State Budget and Management.

The figures compiled by state experts gives a preview of what the 1980 Census now getting underway will show.

As of mid-1978, total population had topped 5.5 million for an increase of 9.7 percent since the 1970 Census. Small towns, a few cities, and a sprawling rural population characterize the state.

Resort and retirement communities are growing fastest, percentagewise, if not in absolute numbers. Besides Foxfire Village, municipalities on the coast and in the mountains led the field. Pine Knoll Shores, Emerald Isle, Southern Shores, Boiling Spring Lakes, Walnut Creek, Minnesott Beach, Ocean Isle Beach, Maggie Valley and Caswell Beach all logged more than 150 percent growth.

Suburbs

Big changes occurred in suburban towns near large cities as well. Cary, a Raleigh bedroom community, soared from 7,696 pqople in 1970 to 20,150 — up 162.2 percent. Nearby Garner likewise jumped from 4,923 to 10,170, an increase of 106.6 percent.

The state's big cities grew, too. Durham joined the list of those with more than 100,000 population, bringing the total to five; Charlotte, Greensboro, Raleigh, Winston-Salem and Durham, in that order. The state's largest city reached 350,000 people.

Dispersed population patterns continue the rule, however, with small towns dominating. Of 446 municipalities in the state, 249 have fewer than 1,000 people. Another 116 towns fall in the 1,000 to 2,500 range.

BILL NOBLITT

Continuing the list of larger cities, High Point is sixth with 66,490 population; followed by Fayetteville, Asheville, Wilmington, Gastonia, Rocky Mount, Burlington, Goldsboro, Chapel Hill, Wilson, Greenville, Kinston, Salisbury, Jacksonville, Statesville, Hickory, Cary Lumberton, Concord and Lexington.

Francine J. Ewing, state demographer for the Office of State Budget and Management, predicts that several major trends are underway or about to happen in North Carolina, but cautions that such trends often are gearing down or ended by the time census figures point them up.

For one thing, population changes about the state are not taking place so much from economic necessity as from people simply wanting to live in a particular place. If energy problems persist, though, people might begin moving back closer to work and convenience centers.

Older

Tar Heels are growing older. The median age 10 years ago was 26.4; and will be about 29.4 this year. By 1990 it will likely be between 32 and 32.5 years, and over half the state's population will be over 30.

Numbers of elderly (65 and up) will increase almost 85 percent between 1970 and 1990, and the trend toward younger retirement will continue.

Women already outnumber men by four percent, and by 1990 will outnumber them by eight percent. Little change is expected in racial composition, with nonwhites representing about 24 percent of the population in the coming decade.

The family has changed, too. Only seven percent of families with both husband and wife at home have a working father, a stay-at-home mother and two children.

The state has a very high female work force, with 67 percent of all mothers of school-age children working outside the home. This is 10 percent more than the national figure.

The Census will show

Oil Prices Unlimited

WASHINGTON — A lot of people are starting to get suspicious that the price of gasoline and oil in this country bears no relation to what is really going on in the OPEC countries.

This, of course, is not true. The oil companies have a very scientific method of computing fuel costs and are extremely careful in justifying every price increase in their fuel.

This is how one oil company does it, and I'm certain the others follow similar guidelines.

Every morning at exactly 9 a.m. the "Executive Committee for Price Raises" meets in the private dining room for breakfast.

A typical session goes like this:

There are 12 men in the room laughing and joking.

Halberstam walks in and Middlecoff says, "You're late."

"Sorry about that," Halberstam says. "I just had a new grandchild."

"Congratulations. This calls for a celebration. What do you say, gentlemen, in honor of Halberstam's new grandchild, we raise the price of regular gasoline by 1 cent?" "Since it's his first grandchild, I say we should raise it 2 cents."

"No objections. So, done."

"That's damn decent of you. Wait until I tell Ella, she'll be thrilled. Where's Walker?"

"Walker's in the hospital with a kidney stone. We're praying he passes it."

"Maybe we should send him flowers."

"We thought we'd raise the price of heating oil 3 cents. That would do more for his morale than flowers."

"Great idea. Where's Burnside?"

(The Durham Sun)

Reports that several of the state's universities may slap minimum academic requirements back on fraternities and sororities is another welcome sign that common sense is regaining its niche in the academic world.

Those requirements and many other social and academic regulations were relaxed during the anything-goes era of the 1960s and '70s.

Now many of the very schools that so quickly embraced change and tossed tradition out the window are reversing field.

They are, in a burst of revelation, finding that required courses and stricter rules aren't so repulsive after all. In fact, they can be downright helpful.

University administrators and student organizations, for example, hope minimum academic requirements will force some of the less-motivated fraternities and sororities to return to academic respectability.

It seems that by doing poorly in the classroom, these social clubs are embarrassing the universities and other student organizations. These sentiments were unthinkable just 10 years ago. Now that they're acceptable again, we hope they hold sway much longer than that.

BASEL, SWITZERLAND — Switzerland's first group of women soldiers, 350 strong, called up to drive trucks in the army medical services, began their first month of training at Basal recently with an order on the first day starting, "You're in the army now."

"Leave lipsticks and powder boxes at home," said the order. "Bring scrub brushes instead."

BUFFALO, N.Y. — Robert Wilson, 19, of Buffalo, N.Y., was arrested in Hollywood in connection with an alleged kidnap plot against Judy Garland, young film star.

Police Captain Grover Armstrong said Wilson told him he and a friend planned to kidnap Judy but he became panicky and called the police instead to warn them of the plot.

Meanwhile, the unperturbed Judy served refreshments to detectives.

To the editor:

I do not suggest that anyone smoke marijuana, but our young people have to go to the back alleys to buy it from criminal-type people, and it sometimes has other drugs mixed with it.

This is why I think marijuana should be legalized, so that our young people will not have to buy it from criminals and be subjected to hard dangerous drugs as well.

This would put the sellers of marijuana out of business and release our law enforcement officers, so they could go after the hard drug pushers in a stronger, more effective way.

By legalizing marijuana and perhaps selling it in the liquor stores, then the state could get the tax revenue from it. Then it could benefit everyone in our state.

Strength For Today

DON'T THROW HAPPINESS AWAY

Some people throw happiness away with both hands. They have love, opportunity, good health — the makings of a happy life. But because they lack self-control, or have a jealous spirit, or nurse a grudge, or love money too much, they cast all chances of happiness away in exchange for some bauble, some tinseled toy not worth the having.

It very often happens that married couples, because they greatly dislike some little failing in each other, destroy the possibility of abiding happiness. People who have been friends for years disagree over some petty matter and henceforth are strangers to each other. Jealousy has shoved many persons off the road to happy, purposeful living. Judas Iscariot sold out a man who loved him for thirty pieces of silver, and many are those who have scoffed at love and have trampled it underfoot so that they might gain riches.

Ingenuity Being Rechannelled

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — A good deal of ingenuity that ordinarily goes into producing new goods and services is now being rechanneled in other directions by inflation.

Tax-cutting probably heads the list. Stock speculation and real estate rank high. Money market and similar funds, some paying more than 17 percent for deposits of as little as $1,000, are popular.

So is spending, the idea being that value is maintained better with goods than dollars, although spending simply for a good time — "let's spend today, because we'll be broke tomorrow" — can be observed.

Tax-avoidance techniques are popular, with books and seminars helping to provide the know-how. Some do it with real estate, some with oil-drilling investment plans, some through cattle-feeding operations.

A popular seminar advises attendees on how to reduce their taxes to zero. In fact, to illustrate the technique, the speaker begins a test tax return by writing in a big zero, and works the return in reverse.

In real estate, oil-drilling and cattle-feeding the tax deductions or deferrals are generous, at least in comparison with the yields. But there is risk as well; the benefits do not necessarily mean success.

It is different with the socalled underground economy, in which transactions are in cash, leaving little or no record for agents of the Internal Revenue Service to examine.

Peter Gutmann, economics and finance professor at City University of New York, estimated last year that $220 billion, or 10 percent of Gross National Product, was conducted in such unrecorded deals.

He maintains the underground economy is growing with every increase in taxes. And, of course, taxes are rising, not through new legislation but because families are moving into higher tax brackets.

Gutmann lists three common types of untaxed transactions, the first of which is the skimming of cash receipts by an owner or operator, a practice he claims is particularly significant in small business.

Next, he lists the practice of paying cash to an employee working "off the books." The employee gets undeclared income and evades income and social security taxes; the business saves social security taxes, jobless insurance taxes, bookkeeping and reporting expenses, payroll taxes, medical insurance and pension costs.

Gutmann's third category is made up of businesses that pay suppliers in cash, completely or in part. It is done, he says, to make the business seem smaller and to keep purchases consistent with the low gross and few employees that the business reports to the IRS.

Whatever methods are used, the goal is the same — to preserve assets, not just from inflation but from Uncle Sam's tax collectors too. And the impact is the same too: ingenuity is being misdirected

PCC Ranked Well In State Commission's Survey

The facilities inventory and utilization study released by the N.C. State Commission on Higher Education shows Pitt Community College ranking high in most categories.

According to William H. Howell, Dean of Fiscal Affairs, "The purpose of this study is to provide data which would be helpful to the educational community in assessing facility requirements and to institutional administrators in making managerial decisions."

PCC ranked third highest among the state's community colleges and technical institutes in terms of numbers of hours of weekly instruction per classroom. According to the study, 30 hours per week is considered the optimum use of classroom time; yet PCC is using classrooms 30.9 hours per week. The average hours of instruction per week per classroom for the community college system was 22.2 hours.

PCC was in the top 20 percent in the efficient use of educational facilities.

Efficiency of use was determined by dividing the assignable square footage of instructional and library space by the total hours of instruction. The community college system averaged 3.15 square feet per hour of instruction; PCC averaged 2.73 square feet.

PCC was in the top 20 percent of the community colleges and technical institutes for average hours of instruction (weekly) in class laboratories. While the average hours of instruction in the system was 21.7 hours, PCC had 26.5 hours per week in class laboratories. Twenty hours per week is considered optimum use.

The PCC's use of facilities reflected most favorably in the report. The U.S. office of Education recommends 150 square feet of floor space per full time student. PCC has only 65 square feet of floor space per full time student available. For the community college system as a whole, 52 of the 57 institutions have more square feet of floor space available per full time student than has PCC.

For the category of accessibility of facilities to mobility impaired persons, PCC ranked in the upper 50 percent. Around 91 percent of PCC's facilities are accessible to mobility impaired persons. The average for the system was 87.5 percent.

In summary, Dr. E.B. Bright, Dean of Instruction, commented: "This report indicates Pitt Community College is very crowded and has used its space very effectively and has provided well for access to buildings, shops, and classrooms for mobility impaired persons."

He added, "It is obvious, from the report, that additional space is urgently needed to provide adequate instructional space both to present and future programs and students.

Life As It's Lived

Concentration Is Lost Talent During Snow-In

By GAIL MICHAELS

I don't care how many books and television programs come out on the subject, "incredible" feats like cooking the world's biggest pot of lentil soup or scaling the side of the Empire State Building with a plumber's helper just do not excite me. What does impress me though are the powers of concentration recently exhibited by a friend of mine. While seven preschoolers played cowboys and Indians in her living room on a snow day, this woman actually sat there and read a book.

I can't read a television schedule when a fly is in the room, much less do anything constructive when any larger pests are around. And that's what any child becomes when the only thing besides Big Bird that a parent hears in eight hours is the steady whine of "Play with me!"

So on Thursday, Feb. 29, when I was already three days behind in my writing schedule, I was rather alarmed at a call from Meg's preschool teacher reporting that Meg was reenacting a scene from "Coma". And to add drama to the plot, Phillip was leaving town the next day.

I must admit that the first thing that ran through my mind after I discovered that her temperature would not cause brain damage was the hope that she felt rotten enough to sleep through the afternoon.

She didn't. After half an hour and two aspirin she was bouncing around like a pinball. I pulled the cover over my typewriter and promised Heaven that if this was a 12-hour virus, I would dedicate my middle years to Miss Lillian and join the Peace Corps. But on Friday morning Meg was still slightly feverish.

So was I. By 11 a.m. I had wrapped myself around Phillip's leg and had told him that if he would just stay home long enough to let me finish a column, I would iron his socks for the next five years. I even promised to stop serving tuna noodle surprise. He was tempted, but he left anyway.

For sanity's sake I have blocked Saturday out, although I vaguely remember gnawing through a pencil eraser. But on Sunday I parked Meg in front of Oral Roberts and told her I would give her a dime for each hymn she would memorize. I then rushed for my typewriter. Unfortunately, after three days of conversing with a sub-adult, the only words I could remember were "yukko", "icky", and "no way." It's entirely possible that my attitude also had something to do with 11 inches of snow.

So I gave up. On Monday and Tuesday, both snow days, I just sat on the sofa. I was doctored on, babied on, tumbled on, and shipwrecked with a drawn and quartered teddy bear as a lifesaver. My only positive contribution was the failure to commit child abuse.

In fact, I would have sworn I was dead if it had not been for the telephone. When it rang Tuesday night I set an unofficial world record for the three yard dash. The anticipation of talking to another adult was almost overwhelming. I just hoped that after six days, I could think of something intelligent to say.

I shouldn't have worried. Phillip was the caller, and his first question was directed toward the one phrase I had practiced during my confinement. "How are things going?" he asked. "Did you finish your column?"

"No way."

Certificates Presented 23

In the eleventh graduation since the first one held in February 1979, a total of 23 inmates from a 26-county area of northeastern North Carolina received certificates of achievement for completing the Pre-Release and Aftercare Center course.

The graduation ceremony was held at noon on Wednesday in the Oakmont Baptist Church. Representative Sam Bundy addressed the class, focusing on the theme of each person having a purpose in life and the need to set goals and work to fulfill such goals.

Ann Maxwell and Matt Brewington, Pre-Release Training Coordinators at the Center on Dexter Street in Greenville, presented each graduate a certificate for completing the course.

Several of the graduates made brief speeches, emphasizing their appreciation for the program and the new outlook it gives them for their future.

Oakmont hosted the luncheon for the graduates, family members and members of the Pre- Release Training staff. Also in attendance were community volunteers who have devoted time, support and talent to the program. Gordon Conklin, pastor of Oakmont, gave the invocation and welcomed graduates and guests.

Inmates involved in taking the Pre-Release and Aftercare program are housed in Williamston and attend the classes in Greenville.

Traders say Arab investors, who were big buyers two months ago, aren't investing as much in gold these days. "They are putting money into certificates of deposit at the banks," says Joel Goodman, the head of precious metals trading for Deak-Perera, a large New York firm. Those certificates now pay 17 percent or more.

Part of the rush of Arab money into gold was prompted by the United States freeze of Iranian assets. That was seen as a warning that "any investments you have in the United States, you may not be able to get," said Bogart. Those fears have eased as the U.S. emphasized the extreme nature of the Iranian provocation.

This week, after the price went below $600 an ounce, sales of gold to individuals in the United States picked up dramatically. "We've sold a tremendous amount of gold across the country the last two days," Goodman said late Tuesday.

"People look at this as a buying opportunity," added Goodman, who has a doctorate in psychology.

The drop in prices has dampened the rush to sell rings, tea sets, loving cups and other things made of gold and silver. "Business is dead," moaned the head of one New York firm that buys such items for their metal content.

The immediate future of the metals prices may depend on President Carter. Sinclair said that he expects the price of gold to climb above $700 an ounce, but adds that before that happens the price could fall below $500 if Carter's new anti-inflation program is viewed as effective.

Nichols thinks lower prices are likely, especially with a good Carter program, but then says "a lot of bad news could send the price to new record highs."

Placed Second In Roller Event

Kristan Michel of Greenville placed second in the Elementary Girls Division in roller speed skating at the Hi-View Rollerdrome in Louisville, Ky. during the Derby City Classic Speed Skating meet held March 8 and 9.

A total of 485 skaters entered the meeting, representing 31 speed skating clubs from 13 states.

Ms. Michel will attend the Easter Invitational Speed Meet to be held in Kinston on April 4, 5 and 6. About 600 skaters are expected to attend, among which will be a number of national champions in this sport.

Church Group To Sponsor Supper

The Youth Ministry Group of Our Redeemer Lutheran Church will be sponsoring a spaghetti supper Sunday from 5:30-8 p.m.

A menu of spaghetti with meat sauce, salad, Italian bread and a light dessert will be prepared. Tickets for the meal are $2.00 in advance and $2.25 at the door.

Chairman for the event is Kenneth Lang.

The church is located at 1800 S. Elm St. and the public is invited.

"Hey, let's surprise Burnside when he comes back by adding 2 cents a gallon to diesel fuel. We'll call it the Burnside Raise."

"It's done."

"I have a joke. If you guys laugh, you have to promise to up motor oil 5 cents a can."

"Okay, Kelly. But if anyone has heard it, you only get a 2-cent raise."

"It's a deal. Guy goes into a doctor and the doctor says, 'You're very sick. I'm going to have to operate.' The guy says, 'I want a second opinion.' So the doctor says, 'Okay, you're ugly too.'"

Everyone slaps their thighs and Kelly gets the 5-cent increase.

"Say, did we put up the price of airline fuel when the U.S. Olympic hockey team beat the Soviets?"

"Ye, I think we did by 20 cents a gallon ...."

"Well, I don't know about you guys, but I think those kids played one helluva game, and I believe we should add another 5 cents to show those Russians what this country is really all about."

"You won't get any resistance from us."

"We're moving right along."

"I wish we could figure out one more reason to boost the price at the gas pumps this morning. Don't forget Monday is a holiday and we won't be meeting until Tuesday."

"Hey, look out the window, everybody. There's a red robin — the first one I've seen this year."

"That's good luck. What do you say we add 3 cents on unleaded super premium in honor of Jeremy seeing his first red robin?"

"All in favor say aye. Opposed? The ayes have it. Well, it looks like we've had a good morning."

"Hey, we forgot the natural gas division."

"Didn't we give them a 5 percent increase last Friday?"

"Yeh, but that was just to tie them over the weekend."

Afghan Guerrillas Sell Soviet Guns

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH
Associated Press Writer

DARRA, Pakistan (AP) — The guerrillas in Afghanistan are capturing so many Soviet weapons that the price of a Kalashnikov submachine gun in this frontier arms center has dropped 25 percent since January.

Virtually every family in this village of 3,000 inhabitants manufactures, buys, sells or transports firearms, from hand grenades and revolvers to bazookas, mortars and anti-aircraft guns.

The main street of the village 20 miles south of Peshawar is lined with gun shops on both sides. In the side and back streets, hundreds of artisans work 10 hours a day in the cottage arms manufacturing industry.

The Afghan border is 40 miles away over the barren mountains that dominate the village. Since long before the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan, anti-communist Afghan guerrillas have been Darra's main customers. The village is enjoying unprecedented prosperity, according to Malek Abdul Ghaffar, the village chief who owns an eight-room arms factory just off the main street.

Ghaffar proudly displays a beautifully polished Kalashnikov with the serial number 797,785, produced in a Soviet factory in 1976. He says he bought it recently from a guerrilla for 15,000 rupees ($1,500).

"The Mujahiddin (Afghan rebels) have taken so many of them from the Russians lately that the price is way down," he said. "Six weeks ago, it would have fetched 20,000 rupees ($2,000)."

However, he said he wouldn't take less than 25,000 rupees ($2,500) for it.

Asked why the Mujahiddin sell their captured Kalashnikovs instead of using them against the Russians, Ghaffar replied: "Because for the price of one submachinegun they can buy 10 rifles and provide 10 of their companions with their own weapons. They are great marksmen and probably can do more damage with a rifle, anyway."

Unlicensed ownership of firearms is a serious crime in Pakistan. But Darra is in a designated "tribal area" where Pakistani law does not apply and the Pakistani police are not allowed to operate. Only the law of the Pathan Afridi Tribe — whose territory spills over into Afghanistan — is valid in Darra.

Yet there is no law-and-order problem in the village. The authority of the tribal chiefs is unquestioned. Shooting of firearms is forbidden from sunset to sunrise. Villagers occasionally kill each other in blood feuds, but armed robbery is "something our village has never experienced," Ghaffar said.

City Council ....

good member mix — about 55 percent merchants and 45 percent business firms."

According to the spokesman, the association "did well despite the fact that we have never enjoyed a reliable income on which to operate. We do not have...power to assess as they do at Carolina East Mall and Pitt Plaza," he said. "In those places when you sign your lease it includes a specific sum for promotional purposes."

Mosier said that the city was approached about the establishment of the service district since "volunteer funding is no longer adequate enough to enable us to continue to promote the economic growth of the area, to put up Christmas decorations or anything else necessary to maintain the good health of the downtown district."

According to Mosier, over 300 persons, firms, partnerships or corporations would share in the downtown funding.

Reid Hooper, appearing on behalf of Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. here, said the bank has a $1.2 million investment in downtown Greenville and supports the DGA. Hooper said Wachovia supports the concept of raising money to promote the downtown section but it does not endorse the idea of raising promotional money "by raising taxes." The bank spokesman said Wachovia prefers to make its own decision regarding financial support.

Hooper, saying that Wachovia would be assessed some $2,000 under the proposed levy, added that he believed property owners should voluntarily support the DGA in order for it to function and if it is not supported, the ultimate decay of the area would be deserved. Hooper said the bank would pay the additional funds but it preferred to pay it voluntarily and not through a tax levy.

Jim Lanier, who said that his wife owns property at 219 Cotanche Street, said that the Laniers feel "this proposition is a scheme to subsidize downtown retail merchants." Lanier said that "we don't feel we should subsidize," adding that, "no one subsidizes us."

Jack Edwards, who said he is a merchant and property owner, said that "all of us know that a few support things and a few get a free ride." He said the assessment represents a levy that will let everyone in the district share in supporting the section. Edwards, who said that he will have to pay more tax than dues as a result of the special levy, added however, "I'm for it."

T. I. Wagner suggested that establishing the service district on a ten year basis is "rather long" and he said that he felt the assessment should be on an experimental basis and limited to three years rather than obligating property owners for ten years.

David Leech, an attorney with Sam Underwood, stated their opposition to the proposal, saying it was "philosophically unsound." He contended that it was not sound for the Council to promote one area over another.

Leech cited the proposal as counter-productive, noting that property owners would have to make up for the increased taxes. The attorney added that he felt the boundaries of the proposed district were over inclusive, particularly the area from Third Street north where mostly office and institutional firms are located.

George Shoe, a First Street property owner, also registered his opposition to the proposal, asserting that it was improper to use tax funds "taken from one to subsidize others." Shoe said that he was willing to make a contribution but he opposed an assessment system.

Connally Branch, appearing on behalf of Mrs. Thorburne Minges, who owns property in the district, said Mrs. Minges was "adamantly opposed" to the tax. He suggested that a per-front foot tax be levied against retail merchants and office and institutional, as well as professional people, be left out of the assessment.

F. P. Cade, who said that he probably owned the smallest section of property in the district, reported that he now pays $500 to $600 in taxes. "I can't stand much more," he said.

Gene Taylor of North Carolina National Bank said that NCNB is the largest property owner in the district and would pay the special tax if the Council established the district. Taylor said, however, that he feels the city does not need a tax situation that puts it in the position of being the assessor and the collector.

Taylor said that a precedent would be set and he did not feel the levy represented a proper use of tax dollars.

John Shannonhouse, general manager of White Stores, said the firm was willing to pay the tax. He cited the number of vacant stores in another eastern North Carolina town as an example of what can happen in a downtown district.

Another downtown merchant, Morris Brody, also voiced support for the assessment, saying that "if you don't allow the central district to support itself, we will lose it."

David Duffus, an attorney and downtown property owner, called the proposal inflationary, pointing to taxes that are already paid to the city, county and Greenville Utilities Commission. Duffus said that a number of the businesses in the district are service oriented and do not need promotional activities.

Collice Moore, who said that he owns several pieces of business related property in the Shore Drive area, said that the tax would only benefit half of the downtown property owners and he expressed his opposition to the measure.

Jack Whichard, also a property owner in the downtown district, said the special assessment would be more of a detriment to the district than a help. He explained that if a property owner is taxed, that property owner will pass the tax costs on to the person who leases his building and rents will be raised.

Whichard contended that if a new business has a choice of where to locate here, it would locate outside the downtown district if faced with the assessment. He said that support of the district should be through voluntary participation and he suggested that mandatory membership in the association would be divisive.

Bud Wheless said that he was opposed to the special assessment, adding that he felt the tax would deter new people from coming into the district.

Councilman Clarence Gray, saying that he was in favor of the idea of downtown revitalization continuing, noted that the intent of the service district was good but he was not sure he could live with the principle.

Spruce Street ..

Others offering statements in opposition to the city proposal were William Norflett, a resident of Spruce Street, Mrs. Gretchen Skinner, and Rufus Huggins, who said that the majority of comments in support of closing the street were made by people who did not live in the neighborhood. Huggins said tbat the residents of the area felt that closing the street would take away an asset of the neighborhood.

Councilman Clarence Gray said that he could see the concern of people who had access to the street and he said that serious thought would have to be given to the matter before closing the street.

Mrs. Judy Greene, a Council member, said that the biggest hardship she saw was that residents would have to drive one block further if Spruce was closed.

Voting in favor of the closing were Mrs. Greene, William Haddem and Louis Clark, while Gray and Councilman Richard McKee opposed the matter.

In other business last night, the Council, following a public hearing, agreed to vote on the annexation of the area of Arlington Boulevard, Red Banks Road and NC 43 at an upcoming special meeting. A wait of at least seven days following the public hearing is required, it was pointed out.

City Manager Ed Wyatt said that it was recommended that when the annexation vote is taken, an effective date of June 30 be set for the area to become a part of the city.

Planning Director Bobby Roberson said some 87 acres are involved in the annexation.

The Council, after conducting a public hearing, adopted an amendment to the Thoroughfare Plan reflecting the location of Arlington Boulevard from US 264 Business and US 13 to the Stantonsburg Road. Sewell said that the alignment of the road is already established and the amendment will place the city in a much better position to acquire right-of-way.

By a four to two vote, the Council voted to table action on a recommendation by the Recreation and Parks Commission to set a closing time of 11 p.m. for local recreation facilities.

Commission chairman Rufus Huggins said that the board made its recommendation after careful study. He noted that at present, different operation hours are observed at various recreation sites and by setting a 11 p.m. closing hour, energy would be conserved.

Several E. Wright Road residents objected to the 11 p.m. curfew, pointing out that Jaycee Park curfew is now 10:30 p.m. and residents deserve to have peace and quiet.

Boyd Lee, executive director of the Recreation and Parks Department, cited scheduling problems at the various parks as a result of the staggered curfews. When a proposal was offered to close Jaycee Park at 10:30 p.m. and other parks at 11 p.m., Lee said that rather than do that he would prefer that the current operating hours be left as they are, with some of the parks having a 12 p.m. curfew.

Clark, McKee, Hadden and Gray voted in favor of tabling the matter, while Taft and Mrs. Greene opposed the tabling vote. Taft earlier offered a motion to accept the Recreation and Parks recommendation.

Other business last night included:

— Approval of a one-year renewal for Holt Oldsmobile Inc. for the mobile home located at 101 Hooker Road;

— Approval of a one-year renewal of a mobile home permit for Coastal Chemical Corp. for a mobile structure located on Evans Street Extension;

— Adoption of a street resurfacing priority list;

— Adoption of a resolution establishing street and highway priorities to be presented to the NC Department of Transportation for the Seven-Year Highway Improvement Program;

— Approval of an easement along 16th Street for Greenville Utilities Commission;

— Adoption of minor changes in bus routes two and three, as recommended by the Public Transportation Commission;

— Adoption of recommendation by the Traffic Commission to prohibit parking on Treemont Drive from 1 a.m. until 8 a.m., Monday through Friday;

— Scheduling of seven items for public hearings at the April 10 regular meeting, including the creation of a new zoning classification, an amendment to the Downtown Commercial Fringe zoning classification, and five rezoning requests;

— Approval of requests by Delta Zeta Sorority for a waiver of the privilege license requirements for the sale of concessions at Green Springs Park on March 26 as part of ECU Greek Week, and by Stop-N-Go No. 778, Airport Road, for an off-premise beer and wine privilege license;

— Adoption of a revised Personnel Policies Ordinance;

— Adoption of an ordinance rescinding Resolution No. 439 and re-establishing the Greenville Energy Commission; and

— Adoption of a resolution amending the resolution approved on Jan. 28, adopting statements of philosophy and goals for the city, by revising the statements and adding a new goal relative to fair housing.

Cars Collided At Intersection

Cars driven by Kermit Allen Lyle Jr. of Route 1, Ahoskie and Chiayu Li of 103 Stratford Rd. collided about 4 p.m. yesterday at the intersection of Elm and Fourth Streets.

Greenville police, who investigated the collision, estimated damage at $300 to the Lyle car and $100 to the Li auto.

FUND SERVICE

The Rev. Robert Phillips and his choir and congregation from Browns Chapel FWB Church in Wilson will be at Waterside Free FWB Church in Farmville on Sunday. His appearance will support the fund raising services sponsored by the building fund. The public is invited to attend.

Five Scholarships

ECU News Bureau

Five students in the East Carolina University Air Force ROTC detachment have been awarded Air Force scholarships.

They are Cadets Diana Snodgrass of Ocala, Fla., and Mary Keller of Buies Creek, both nursing majors; John Hemminger of Fayetteville, a computer science major; Gregory Lee of Goldsboro, a management major; and David Hewett of Shallotte, a business administration major.

The ECU Air Force scholarship recipients are among a selected number of U.S. students awarded the scholarships on the basis of academic achievement, leadership ability and major field of study.

Through its scholarship program, the Air Force encourages students enrolled in fields in which the Air Force projects personnel needs. Twelve other ECU students currently hold Air Force scholarships, and two-thirds of the ECU nursing students enrolled in AFROTC have been awarded scholarships.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Snow flurries are expected in the period Friday until Saturday morning, in the Northeast. Scattered snow flurries are also forecast from the upper Great Lakes into the northern Plains. Temperatures will be warmer for south-central and southeastern areas. Other regions will be cold. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press

Today's weather in North Carolina was expected to be filled with some welcome sunshine in the wake of Thursday's rain and freezing rain. Fair weather is forecast through the weekend.

Temperatures also will be moderating with highs today reaching the upper 30s in the northwest mountains and ranging to around 60 along the coast.

After another cold night tonight with lows in the 20s and 30s, high readings Saturday will range in the 40s and 50s west and reach the 60s on the coast. Sunday should be fair and a little warmer.

A wide range of temperatures occurred around the state during Thursday's rain and freezing rain. Highs ranged from 73 at Cherry Point to a cold 37 at the Raleigh-Durham Airport. New Bern reported a high of 71.

Most high readings around the state were in the 40s. The reason for much warmer temperatures along the coast was that the low pressure system moved over the coastal waters and warmer air from the Atlantic Ocean circulated over the area.

Small craft advisories remained in effect for coastal waters today for brisk northwesterly winds that were also expected elsewhere around the state. Winds will become more southwesterly over the state Saturday and will bring the warmer temperatures.

Rabon Calls For Office Dignity

Roy Rabon, candidate for the Democratic nomination for the office of insurance commissioner, called for bringing dignity back to the office in a Greenville visit Thursday.

"This job demands someone who is tough, fair and responsible," he said. "The commissioner must listen to the people and work with the General Assembly.

ROY RABON

"In my years with the Insurance Department, I demonstrated these qualities. I worked to abolish the assigned risk and eliminate age and sex discrimination in insurance rates.

Citing insurance as vital, he said, "The rates we pay must be controlled and I intend to return that control to the commissioner's office."

Rabon is a former chief deputy commissioner of insurance and is running against his former boss, John Ingram.

Wishing For Spring

The good thing about the seasons is that all we have to do is wait. We may not like the weather we have now, but something different will come soon. We experience a great variety of weather in a dozen months.

It's a great consolation to have this mighty spectacle of spring and autumn, sun and rain, day and night continually unfold around us.

It's the dependable rhythm of nature, the ebb and flow of seasons, the beauty of earth and sky, which gives our lives a firm ground tone.

But Christianity is not a nature religion. It finds the revelation of God not in nature alone but even more in human personality — our own, as the children of God, and supremely in Jesus as the Son of God.

That is why it is necessary for us to become an important part of His Church.

We can get in the mood to understand the presence of God when we experience the quietness of the woodlands or hear waves breaking against the cliffs, or look heavenward at the billowing clouds. But it is not enough to get in a mood. We must join in the communion and fellowship of other believers in order to obtain our purpose and faith.

Come, let us go into the House of the Lord . . .

Flu Is Above Epidemic Levels For 7th Week

ATLANTA (AP) — For the seventh consecutive week, influenza and pneumonia-related deaths have occurred at an epidemic rate, the national Center for Disease Control said today.

In its Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report, the CDC reported 4,450 deaths for the seven-week period ending March 8, or about 1,000 more than normally would be expected.

Most of the flu outbreaks have been attributed to Influenza B.

For the week ending March 8, there were 650 flu-related deaths in the 117 major U.S. cities monitored by the CDC, or about 150 more than expected.

States that have reported widespread flu outbreaks are Maine, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Minnesota, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota and Oregon.

The CDC uses the term "widespread" when flu outbreaks occur in counties where the majority of the state's population resides.

Regional outbreaks — or outbreaks in counties with less than 50 percent of a state's population — have been reported in Connecticut, Rhode Island, Virginia and California.

Twenty-nine states are reporting sporadic influenza, the CDC said.

In a related report, the CDC said it has received reports from state health officials of 335 cases this year of Reye's syndrome, a sometimes fatal affliction that is associated with influenza and some other viruses.

The 335 cases include 40 deaths. The figures compare with 325 cases and about 70 deaths reported last year.

CDC officials attribute the declining death rate to earlier prognosis and earlier treatment of the mystery disease, which most often strikes children in the 5 to 15 year age range.

"Earlier hospitalization means a better chance of survival for the children," said Dr. Cornelia Davis, a medical epidemiologist.

The cause of Reyes syndrome is not known, but it most often occurs on the heels of influenza and is deceiving because its early symptoms are like that of a bad cold. Persistent vomiting is a major clue.

The syndrome attacks tissue in the brain and other major organs.

More than 100 of the cases reported have occurred in Ohio, where a federally funded Reyes syndrome research program is under way. The disease, which is not believed to be contagious, is not on the list of 20 communicable diseases which physicians are required by law to report.

Applaud Gacy Death Sentence

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — The victims' relatives and friends cheered and applauded as John W. Gacy Jr. was sentenced to die in the electric chair for the sex slayings of 12 young men and boys. But it was only the beginning of another legal battle for the 37-year-old contractor.

"We talked to Gacy afterwards about round one," said one of Gacy's two attorneys, Robert Motta. The other, Sam Amirante, added: "We are now getting ready for round two — appeals."

Circuit Court Judge Louis B. Garippo on Thursday set June 2 for the execution of Gacy, convicted of murdering 33 young men and boys. An appeal to the Illinois Supreme Court is automatic with imposition of the death sentence.

The same jurors who debated 1 hour and 50 minutes to find Gacy guilty deliberated 2 hours and 15 minutes before choosing the death penalty. Garippo denied a defense request for a new jury to sentence Gacy.

When the court clerk read the verdict, there was a burst of applause and cheers from the spectators. It was quickly subdued by guards.

"No one enjoys it," said juror Dean Johnson as he left the courtroom. "We had to do it. The facts were there."

Garippo's voice cracked as he thanked the jurors who had been sequestered throughout the five-week trial.

"I don't know what this trial cost," he told them. "Whatever the cost, it was a small price. My voice is cracking because I really feel it's a small price to pay for our freedom. What we do for the John Gacys of this world we will do for everyone."

Gacy, a former remodeling contractor, sat without expression as the jury's vote was read. After the sentencing, Gacy congratulated chief prosecutor William Kunkle Jr. and said he held no hard feelings.

Prosecutors argued during the hearing that Gacy was an "anti-social personality" who would continue to kill." Arimante asked Gacy to face the jury and urged jurors to look at him, saying he "will always be a human being."

Gacy was eligible for the death penalty because 12 of the murders, which took place from 1972 to 1978, came after the state's death penalty law took effect in 1977. He also qualified by having committed a murder while taking indecent liberties with a minor and deviate sexual assault, both against the Piest boy.

Twenty-six of Gacy's victims were found buried under his house northwest of Chicago and three others elsewhere on his property. Four bodies were recovered from nearby rivers.

Gacy joins 20 men in Illinois awaiting execution. The last execution in the state was in 1962.

Amirante said he was relieved the case was over but added, "Now we go to the Illinois Supreme Court and I have the weight of it on my shoulders again."

The defense argued during the five-week trial that Gacy was innocent by reason of insanity.

Employee Insurance Rate Hike Sought

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Blue Cross-Blue Shield says it will seek a 25.98 percent rate hike for hospital and medical-care benefits for state employees and teachers that would cost the state an additional $11.5 million.

The increase would range from 48 cents to $18.32 a month, depending on how state employees are rated, said state Treasurer Harlan Boyles. It would add $20.4 million to the total insurance package for government workers.

The state now pays an amount equal to the rate for individual coverage for all active and retired teachers and state employees. Family coverage is paid by the individual worker.

Boyles said the proposed rate increase would cost the state an additional $11.5 million and employees $8.9 million, raising the total cost for fiscal 1980-81 to about $140 million.

About 450,000 persons, including dependents, are covered by the program.

Blue Cross-Blue Shield said the increase was necessary because of actual and projected hikes in the cost of medical care in general, according to Boyles. No changes in the benefits provided were included, he said.

Boyles said the proposed rate package will not be presented to the state retirement system's board of trustees until it has been studied by his staff.

Dr. Lee Will Be Speaking

Dr. Allan W. Lee will be the featured speaker at Red Oak Christian Church at 11 a.m. Sunday.

He is general secretary of The World Convention of The Christian Churches, Churches of Christ and Disciples. At 7 p.m., he will show pictures of the work of the churches around the world.

DR. ALLAN W. LEE

A graduate of Phillips University, Peabody College, Brite Divinity School and Texas Christian University, Dr. Lee has pastored in New York, Texas and Washington. He has been serving in his present position since 1971. He has listed in "Who's Who in America" in 1978, 1979 and 1980. He is the author of nine books.

He will be speaking about the golden anniversary convention to be held in Honolulu, Hawaii, July 15-20.

Petty Acts As Lobbyist

ASHEBORO, N.C. (AP) — Stock car driver Richard Petty may be better known on the NASCAR racing circuit than he is on the floor of Congress in Washington. But, Petty says he plans to change all that.

Petty has agreed to represent Randolph County in a lobbying bid to get Congress to restore funding for development of Randleman Lake.

President Carter deleted the Randleman Lake project from his budget proposal.

Petty was asked to go to Washington to seek support for the project by the Piedmont Triad Council of Governments.

Several goverment groups in Guilford County, High Point, Greensboro and other areas in State Planning Region "G" stand to benefit from the lake project.

The project was designed to overcome projected water shortages by supplying the area with up to 48 million gallons of water per day.

The lake would be developed on the Deep River just north of Randleman.

Randolph County's commissioners adopted a resolution earlier this week calling "upon the present administration and the U.S. Congress to provide necessary funding" and to authorize immediate construction of the lake.

"Delays in the development of this project will be extremely costly due to many factors, including the current high rate of inflation," the resolution said.

Similar resolutions have been adopted or are under consideration by other governmental bodies in the area.

Alcoholism Consultant

ECU News Bureau

Dr. Dixie Koldjeski, professor and assistant dean for graduate studies in the East Carolina University School of Nursing has been asked to serve as consultant with National Health Service Corps professionals on aspects of alcoholism.

The request originated from the U.S. Alcohol, Drug Abuse and Mental Health Administration, an agency of HEW.

DIXIE KOLDJESKI

Recently, Dr. Koldjeski led a health team to Ponce, Puerto Rico, to provide on-site consultation for nurse practitioners, physicians and dentists. The focus of her consultation was on identification and management of alcoholism and its related problem of family violence.

The team discussed interviewing and clinical decision-making about alcoholism problems in rural outreach settings.

Well-known as a clinician in mental health, Dr. Koldjeski is a fellow of the American Academy of Nursing and serves on the National Review Board for Training Programs in the National Institute of Alcohol and Alcohol Abuse.

Look who's giving a tax break on retirement savings.

IRA is the government approved pension plan that not only can provide you with a retirement income, but can provide you with a tax shelter as well.

By opening your Individual Retirement Account at East Federal before April 15, 1980, you can deduct your deposit from your 1979 income tax. In fact, you will never pay taxes on your IRA savings until you begin drawing them as retirement income. By then, you'll likely be in a much lower tax bracket.

You may contribute up to 15% of your annual wages, or $1500 per year,whichever is less. If your spouse is unemployed, you may increase your deposit up to $1750 a year.

If you're not currently covered by a company pension plan, then contact one of East Federal's IRA Specialists. And find out how you can start your own retirement plan, and receive a tax break at the same time.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined broadly again today as the soaring bank prime lending rate reached a new high of 18½ percent.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 5.12 to 804.44 in the first half hour.

Losers outnumbered gainers by more than a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts expected a nervous day in the markets as traders awaited President Carter's message on inflation after the close.

As trading opened, New York's Citibank raised its prime lending rate from 17¾ to 18½ percent, topping an increase to 18¼ posted Thursday by Chase Manhattan of New York.

Several large banks immediately followed Citibank's lead, raising their basic rates on blue-chip loans to the record 18½ level.

Gold prices continued their recent slide, falling to $502.75 an ounce at the morning fixing in London. That was down $53.75 from Thursday's morning fixing.

Today's early prices included Gulf Oil, down 1 at 43½; General Motors, up ¼ at 48¼, and Duke Power, down ⅛ at 14¾.

On Thursday the Dow Jones industrial average fell 9.98 to 809.56, its lowest close since it stood at 807.42 last Nov. 21.

Declines outnumbered advances by close to a 2-1 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 33.07 million shares, against 37.99 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index lost .66 to 60.20.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off 5.31 at 266.11.

Voter Registration In Pitt Closes On April 8

The voter registration deadline for the May 6 primaries and elections in Pitt County is Tuesday, April 8 at 5 p.m., according to Margaret Register, supervisor, Pitt County Board of Elections.

Miss Register said the April 8 deadline also applies to changes in precincts and party affiliations and other matters pertaining to eligibility for the May 6 balloting.

Applications for absentee ballots will be accepted until 5 p.m. on April 30, the supervisor reported. Applications may be made by near relatives as well as the voter, it was noted, directly with the Pitt Board of Elections office.

According to Miss Register, absentee ballots must be received no later than May 5 at 5 p.m.

In addition to the elections office at 210 E. Second Street here, a person may also register to vote or make needed changes in voting status through the county as follows: at town halls in Ayden, Falkland, Fountain, Grifton, Grimesland and Winterville, during office hours;

At the police station in Bethel; in Stokes with Mrs. Sally Glisson; at the fire inspector's office, 121 N. Main Street in Farmville; at the Sheppard Memorial, Carver, East Branch and mobile unit libraries when the registrar is on duty;

At Rose High, North Pitt, Farmville Central, D. H. Conley, and Ayden-Grifton High Schools; in Belvoir with Steve Little, by appointment; and with special registration commissioners who have been appointed to register voters, when called upon.

Miss Register reminded area citizens that under present elections law a voter is only registered once. She mentioned that county registration records are the official records and if a person is listed on the county registration books he or she is eligible to vote in all elections, from local to national.

The elections official noted however that if a voter has moved to another precinct since the last election, a change in precinct designation must be made no later than the registration deadline.

the last round of consultations with congressional leaders Thursday evening, culminating a two-week process in which Carter's aides met with hundreds of people.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said final decisions still were being made after the last round of consultations with congressional leaders Thursday evening, culminating a two-week process in which Carter's aides met with hundreds of people.

Asked whether the president had made up his mind, Powell said: "If he has, he didn't give any indication of it" in the Thursday meeting with Democratic congressional leaders.

Carter conferred briefly with Treasury Secretary G. William Miller after the Democratic meeting broke up at 9 p.m., Powell said.

According to Republican congressional leaders, who met with Carter several hours before the Democrats, and according to other sources, the president wants to reduce planned spending in fiscal 1981 by $12 billion to $15 billion.

To bring income and expenses into balance in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, he will impose fees on imported oil that will raise approximately $10 billion, and increase the cost of a gallon of gasoline by 10 cents, the sources said. But Powell refused to state whether the fees were in Carter's plans.

Keeping one clearly inflationary factor away from the president's announcement, the administration formally increased on Thursday its 1980 voluntary wage guideline to a rate of 7.5 percent to 9.5 percent.

Carter's original $616 billion 1981 budget, submitted six weeks ago, showed a deficit of $15.8 billion. With the proposed spending cuts and the increase in revenues, there would be a slight budget surplus. The last balanced budget was in 1969.

Although increased interest rates and gasoline prices could worsen inflation in the shortrun, the administration believes they will help in the long run by cutting demand.

While a balanced budget is not expected to have a large impact on inflation, it is seen as offering a psychological boost, showing an inflation-worried nation that the government is trying to put its own economic house in order.

The announcement of the new program was timed to take place after the financial markets close for the weekend.

College Group In Sunday Program

The New Creations from Mount Olive College will present a program of song and testimony at Bethany Free Will Baptist Church near Winterville on Sunday evening at 7 p.m.

The pastor, the Rev. C. L. Patrick, invited the public to attend the service.

Alcohol Workshop Is Held At PCC

A workshop covering the manufacture and use of ethanol alcohol was held on the campus of Pitt Community College yesterday.

The topics covered in the eight hour session included introduction to fuel alcohol, basic processes equipment and operation, planning and economics, still by-products, engine conversion and uses, and permits and regulations.

One of the highlights of the event was the firing and inspection of the colleges new ethanol still. The course covered the building and operation of small stills for home use.

Similar ethanol workshops were announced by PCC officials. Two-hour night classes will be held March 17, 19, 24 and 26, starting a 7 o'clock. Another day, eight-hour workshop has been set for March 20. Only pre-registered students will be accepted for these classes and those interested may contact Billy Stokes at the college at 756-3130, ext. 238 or 266.

These workshops are being conducted by Marcus King and Robert May of the PCC faculty.

Also, Yvette Barrett, Tymeshia Joyner, Alicia Pascasio, Tina Edwards, Valerie Poust, Steven Horne, Beth Dix, Jonathan Fischer, Skipper Pascasio, Willie Moore, and Michele Hunt.

Services Begin Monday Night

The Rev. F. C. Mitchell has been rescheduled to preach at Sweet Hope FWB Church in a week of services which will begin Monday night at 7:30.

Different choirs will sing each night: Monday — Burney's Chapel Traveling Choir; Tuesday — Sycamore Chapel Traveling Choir; Wednesday — Mayo Chapel Choir; Thursday — Rev. W. J. Best Traveling Choir; and Friday — Union Grove Choir.

The Rev. W. J. Best invites the public.

Plan Saturday, Sunday Services

Service for St. Paul FWB Church in Greene County will be held Saturday at 7:30 p.m., and the guest will be the Rev. W. H. Joyner and Patrick Chapel.

Sunday at 5:30 p.m., the pastor, Bishop W. L. Phillips, choir, and ushers will render service. At 7:30 p.m., the Rev. Charlie Parker and Cherry Lane will be the guests.

Fellowship supper will be served after service. The pastor invites the public to attend.

Circle Met On Wednesday

The Patient Circle of the King's Daughters had its March meeting Wednesday in the ladies' parlor of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church with Mrs. R.E. Corbett, Jr. presiding.

Mrs. Corbett introduced Dr. Gene Lanier, professor of library science at ECU, who spoke on Lent.

Campbell Soup labels, cancelled postage stamps, old jewelry and unused eyeglasses were collected and an appeal was made to members to continue saving these items and bring them to the next meeting.

Mrs. Polly Dail and Mrs. Mildred Manning served refreshments.

Duke, Clemson, Purdue, UCLA In Wins

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Kentucky's season has come to an abrupt end the same way it began, with a loss to Duke, but the final chapter remains to be written by UCLA's remarkable young Bruins.

Gene Banks' free throw with 22 seconds to play was the difference as 14th-ranked Duke knocked No. 4 Kentucky out of the NCAA basketball championships 55-54 Thursday night in the Mideast Regional at Lexington, Ky. In the other game of the doubleheader, No. 20 Purdue surprised No. 7 Indiana 76-67.

"It wasn't picture-perfect, but I'll take it," said Duke Coach Bill Foster, whose club blew a 14-point lead before pulling it out. "We have played a lot better, but I'm sure they've played a lot better, too."

In the West Regional at Tucson, Ariz., unranked UCLA continued its stunning success story by beating No. 10 Ohio State 72-68 behind 19 points apiece by freshman Rod Foster and sophomore Mike Sanders. In the first game, Clemson defeated Lamar 74-66.

"These kids keep surprising me — this has been a year to remember," said Larry Brown, who stepped into the prestigious, but pressure-laden, UCLA coaching job last summer and rebuilt the squad in midseason around talented youngsters like Foster and Sanders.

"We played as well tonight as we have anytime this year," added Brown.

Duke will play Purdue and UCLA will meet Clemson on Saturday for berths in the Final Four at Indianapolis March 22 and 24.

The East and Midwest Regionals resume tonight in Philadelphia and Houston.

In the East, unranked Iowa, 21-8, takes on No. 6 Syracuse, 26-3, and No. 8 Maryland, 24-6, faces No. 11 Georgetown 25-5. In the Midwest, No. 2 Louisville goes against unranked Texas A&M, 26-7, and No. 16 Missouri, 25-5, opposes No. 3 Louisiana State, 25-5.

Mike Gminski scored 17 points for Duke, which reeled off the first seven points on Kentucky's home floor and led by as many as 14 before the Wildcats came back behind Fred Cowan, who scored Kentucky's last 15 points and had 26 overall. Cowan's hook shot over Duke's Mike Gminski knotted the game 54-54 with 37 seconds to go, but Banks hit one of two free throws 17 seconds later.

Kentucky then had two chances to go in front but failed to convert. All-American guard Kyle Macy, who was hampered by the flu and scored just six points, missed a 17-foot jumper under heavy pressure with five seconds to play. The rebound was batted out deep by Duke's Mike Gminski and Kentucky guard Dirk Minnifield heaved a long shot that fell short at the buzzer.

"Thank the Lord," said Duke Coach Bill Foster, heaving a huge sigh of relief. "We were just hanging on. We were playing for a Cowan shot inside or a Macy shot outside, and our guys did a good job of disturbing people."

Kentucky Coach Joe Hall, whose team's 29-6 season began with a loss to Duke, 20-8, in the Hall of Fame Game in Springfield, Mass., said the Wildcats "got off to a very bad start. Their press bothered us badly. We had a chance with a last-second shot, but we just waited too long."

The same was true for Indiana, 21-8, which fell behind by 19 points and came back too late against its intra-state Big Ten rival Purdue, 21-9. The Boilermakers' All-American center, Joe Barry Carroll, got in early foul trouble and scored just 11 points. Freshman Isiah Tomas had 30 for the Hoosiers.

"They took the game away from us in the first half," said Indiana Coach Bobby Knight. "They had better intensity than we had."

Purdue Coach Lee Rose agreed, saying, his team "played with a lot of commitment and a lot of heart."

Clemson trailed Lamar 47-37 with 16:11 left before rallying and dominating play the rest of the way. A basket by Chris Dodds with eight minutes to play put the Tigers in front 59-57 and they pulled away.

Larry Nance had 16 points and John Campbell 15 for Clemson, 23-8, while Mike Olliver topped Lamar, 22-11, with 20 points.

Despite the victory, Clemson Coach Bill Foster was not happy.

"I don't think either team played as well as they are capable," he said. "I hope before we leave the west, we'll play a good game."

UCLA, 20-9, led 35-31 at halftime and expanded its lead to 42-33 early in the second half before guard Kelvin Ransey scored 13 of Ohio State's next 15 points as the Buckeyes, 21-8, drew even with 13:41 to play. The game stayed close until UCLA pulled away with five free throws in the final 37 seconds — three by Foster and two by senior James Wilkes.

UCLA outscored Ohio State 28-6 from the foul line overall.

Wilkes, the Bruins' 6-7 senior, limited 6-10 Herb Williams of Ohio State to 10 points, eight below his average.

"They played a tremendous game," Ohio State Coach Eldon Miller said of UCLA. "They hurt us on the boards, they played better defensively and they rebounded the ball better than we did. Defensively we never challenged them."

Wilkes was a hero earlier in the day as well. While relaxing near the pool at the UCLA team's hotel, he noticed a young boy in the water who was choking. Wilkes jumped into the pool fully clothed — he was even wearing his game shoes — and pulled the boy out to safety.

Lady Pirates Open Net Season Saturday

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

The East Carolina women's tennis team takes to the court for the first time Saturday, playing host to Guilford College in a 1:30 p.m. match.

Coach Barbara Olschner's team returns four players from last year, along with three freshmen scheduled to start this year.

Hannah Adams, Clare Baker, Karen Jeffreys and Karen Leggette are returning from last year's team and all four will be seeing action this spring.

Jeffreys will be battling for the number one spot along with freshman Lynn Grosvenor, one of two girls on scholarship. The other grant freshman, Debbie Christine, will handle the number three seed, with the third freshman Laura Redford at number four.

Baker will probably hold down the number five position, with Adams and Leggett battling for the sixth spot.

"I look for a strong season for us. We've joined Division II this year, so the competition won't be quite as tough as in the past. Our three competitors in the Division are Guilford, Davidson and High Point. Davidson is the defending champion," Olschner said.

"We beat High Point two of three matches last year, so I feel like we can do well this year in the division, maybe even win the state title. I don't know how well the rest will be, but I don't think we will be outclassed."

Redford and Christine are set to work as the number one doubles team, with Jeffreys and Grosvenor at number two and Baker and Adams at number three.

Two others likely to see some action during the year are junior Charlie Harris and freshman Bryn Johnston.

"Mostly, we'll be counting on the top seven," the coach said.

The complete schedule for the women:

March 15 Guilford; 18 at Pfeiffer; 20 at Atlantic Christian; 25 N.C. State; 28 at Davidson.

April 1 UNC-Wilmington; 4 at High Point, 9 at Old Dominion; 11 at UNC-Charlotte; 17-19 at State AIAW Tournament at Western Carolina.

Games Are Postponed

Rains forced the postponment or cancellation of all area sports activity scheduled for yesterday.

Among the games washed out was East Carolina's baseball meeting with Davidson College. No new date has been set for its play.

Among activities rescheduled are: Jamesville at Plymouth baseball, Saturday; Roanoke, Williamston at Roanoke Rapids boys and girls track, Monday; Rose at Northeastern track, tentatively reset for April 14; East Carteret at Greene Central tennis, today; and Rose at Kinston golf, today.

No new dates have been set for Farmville Central at Beddingfield tennis; Williamston at Tarboro tennis; Washington at Conley softball; and Williamston at Jamesville softball.

A baseball game between Conley and Washington was cancelled.

Swimmers Take Three Places

CLARION, Pa. — East Carolina University's women's swimming team placed in three events yesterday in the AIAW Division II Swimming and Diving Championships being held at Clarion State College in Clarion.

Two relay teams finished high and one individual gathered honors to place East Carolina in the top twenty following the first day of three days of competition.

Carol Schlacklett, Tami Putman, Cindy Sailer and Lauren Grimes swam home to seventh place in the 200-yard medley relay, finishing in 1:54.97, a new varsity record.

The 800-yard freestyle relay team of Karen Davidson, Julie Malcolm, Susan Hanks and Putnam completed the event in 8:06.42, good enough for ninth place.

Putnam also finished tenth in the 200-yard individual medley in 2:15.63.

The placing earned all seven girls All-America honors, awarded to all top 12 finishers in the competition.

Team scores were unavailable after the first day's competition, but coach Ray Scharf said the ECU lassies were in the top 20.

Virginia Dumps Michigan In NIT Play

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

There's no more home sweet home court advantage for the four National Invitation Tournament survivors...but how sweet it was while it lasted.

Illinois, Minnesota, Nevada-Las Vegas and Virginia won their way to the semifinals in New York's Madison Square Garden Thursday night and each posted its third consecutive home court triumph.

After out-of-town tryouts from coast to coast, the NIT now moves to Broadway for its final two performances. In the first 28 games, played on or near the campuses, the home team won 22 times.

In third-round action, Illinois edged Murray State 65-63, Minnesota thrashed Southwestern Louisiana 94-73, Nevada-Las Vegas held off St. Peter's 67-62 and Virginia whipped Michigan 79-68.

Monday night, Illinois meets Minnesota while Nevada-Las Vegas faces Virginia.

Minnesota was the most decisive winner Thursday night and the Gophers even impressed Coach Jim Dutcher.

"We're playing good enough to win it all," he said excitedly if somewhat ungrammatically after sophomore Trent Tucker and freshman Randy Breuer each scored 18 points against Southwestern Louisiana. The Gophers took a 43-36 halftime lead and then scored the first 10 points of the second half.

Tucker hit mostly from long range while the 7-foot-2 Breuer came off the bench and hit 7 of 8 shots in just under 20 minutes of action.

"We got control early in the second half and from then on it was easy," Dutcher said. "It was one of our better offensive games."

If Minnesota had it fairly easy, Illinois had it very, very tough. The Illini got 16 points apiece from Perry Range and Reno Gray and led by as many as 10 points but couldn't breathe easily until Murray State's Jerry Smith missed two shots in the final seconds.

"We were scared, but we wanted to go to New York real bad," said forward Eddie Johnson.

Illinois used an explosive fast break to take an early 10-1 lead but made only 35 percent of its free throws and got into foul trouble in the second half.

"If we had gotten ahead by a basket or two, we could have won the game," said Murray State Coach Ron Greene. "We got down too far too early. They took the game from us in the first two minutes."

Ralph Sampson, Virginia's 7-4 freshman, scored 26 points to lead the Cavaliers past Michigan. Virginia penetrated Michigan's man-to-man defense, getting the ball inside to Sampson and shooting a torrid 66 percent from the floor.

"It's a very simple answer — we played a great basketball game," said Coach Terry Holland. "I was a little concerned when we shot 76 percent in the first half and were only up by eight points. But I think this was one of the finest games we've played offensively all year. In the second half, when they made a run, our kids kept their poise and kept after them."

Michigan pulled to within three points three times early in the second half but the Cavaliers began pulling away, leading by as many as 18 late in the contest.

"We couldn't stop the big guy," Michigan Coach Johnny Orr said of Sampson, who also blocked five shots and grabbed 12 reounds. He had a great game. Virginia played extremely well. They were very good and the big guy was superb. That guy is a tremendous player. He puts a lot of pressure on the other spots when he is in the game."

Michael Burns came off the bench to score 18 points and fellow sophomore Michael Johnson added 15 to lead Nevada-Las Vegas past St. Peter's. The Rebels slowly pulled away from a 31-29 halftime edge, leading by as much as 11 with 9½ minutes left.

St. Peter's, whose slow-down style gave the Rebels fits through much of the first half, was led by Kevin Rogers with 18 points.

"I told my guys the odds — no pun intended — were stacked against us," said St. Peter's Coach Bob Dukiet. "People could tell during warmups which team had the advantage. But we played valiently and it was no shame to lose to Las Vegas.

Grimsley Nips Bruins; Goldsboro Is Ousted

By The Associated Press

Greensboro Grimsley and Charlotte Harding, with wins in Thursday night's first round of the boys 4-A basketball tournament, will meet tonight for the semifinal game.

Grimsley squeaked by Wilson-Beddingfield, 55-53, on an eight-foot jumper by Cedric Cokeley at the buzzer.

Cokely had 22 points for Grimsley, now 19-7. Beddingfield, 22-5, was led by Randy Loftin with 15 points.

Elliott Avery led Charlotte Harding to its 62-58 win over Goldsboro with 14 points. For Goldsboro, which ended its season at 22-5, Anthony Teachey had a game-high 28 points.

Harding goes into tonight's semifinal round with 22-5 record.

In boys 3-A play, Irvin Williamson scored 29 points and Greg Purcell added 25 as Reidsville beat Northwest Cabarrus 79-64 in first-round action.

Reidsville, now 29-1, will meet West Craven, 21-1, in tonight's semifinal round of 3-A play.

West Craven defeated Hendersonville, 58-56, to advance to the semifinals behind the shooting of James Green and Kenny Wesley. The two combined for 25 points. Hendersonville was led by David Wright's 14 points. It was Hendersonville's first looss of the season in 26 games.

In 2-A boys action, Sylva-Webster and Monroe advanced to semifinal play.

Sylva-Webster beat Richlands, 78-70 and Monroe defeated Gates, 72-63.

And, in boys 1-A, Pantego overcame a 32-point performance by Rowland's Michael Watson to take a 67-57 decision in the opening round. Pantego goes on to meet the winner of tonight's Cullowhee-South Park game in the championship match, to be played Saturday.

The horrible weather conditions we've had for the past few weeks have played havoc with the spring sports schedule so far.

Even those teams who haven't been scheduled to open as yet have had problems just practicing.

Hopefully, spring is on the way, and the sports picture will begin to clear up shortly. What will hurt, however, is that many teams will not be able to play their non-conference games but will have to rush right into their league schedule.

For those teams who have been fortunate enough to get in a few games, this could prove a great advantage.

East Carolina's baseball team has gotten off to a fine start under new coach Hal Baird. The Pirates have won their first five games, four at home and one on the road.

But here too, the weather has taken its toll. The Pirates lost two road games already this week, a second game Wednesday with UNC-Charlotte, and a single game Thursday with Davidson. They are scheduled to play strong South Carolina today, and a victory in that game could propel the Pirates a long way.

They return home to face Virginia on Sunday at 2 p.m., hopefully still undefeated.

The Pirates have been able to do this without the services of Macon Moye, who has been sidelined, recovering from scarlet fever. Moye was the leading returning hitter from last year.

Butch Davis, meanwhile, is on a home run tear. The senior has pounded out five in the first five games, including four in the last two games.

---

Two Pitt County coaches have been chosen to participate in the annual East-West games in Greensboro this summer.

Rose High School's Dave Bumgarner has been chosen as the head coach for the East football team, while Conley's Shelly Marsh has been selected to coach the East basketball team.

The area can justly be proud of these coaches.

---

While East Carolina's football schedule has not been released, it appears to be pretty solidly set as now. It is believed that one contract remains to be signed to make the verbal commitment official before it becomes "public."

However, it appears that road games will be played with Duke (the opening game), Florida State, North Carolina, Richmond, Miami (the Florida one, with a return game in Greenville next year), and N.C. State. Home games include Southwest Louisiana, William & Mary, Western Carolina, Southern Mississippi and Eastern Kentucky.

The latter team is the defending national champion in Division I-AA ranks.

Southwest In 29th Victory

By The Associated Press

Scotland and Raleigh Sanderson high schools will square off tonight in the semifinal round of the girls 4-A basketball tournament.

Scotland defeated McDowell, 60-55, to advance toward the state championship. Scotland's Shelia Patterson scored a game-high 26 points to lead her team to the victory.

Paige Kearson and Cynthia Jackson each had 14 points for McDowell, which ended its season at 22-3. Scotland is now 21-4.

Sanderson, which was led by Teresa Brown's 18 points, beat East Mecklenburg, 44-39.

Angie Benfield scored 15 points for E. Mecklenburg, 23-2.

In 3-A girls play, Southwest Edgecombe bettered its record to 29-0 Thursday night with a 55-32 victory over Davie County. Edgecomb will meet Clyde Erwin in tonight's semifinials.

Clyde Erwin, took East Bladen, 71-47. East Bladen finished the season with a 21-7 record, while Erwin goes into the semifinal game with a record of 27-2.

Beverly Greenard scored 22 points to lead Bandys to a 68-65 win over Northhampton in girl's 2-A basketball tournament action. Bandys, now 22-5, will take on West Montgomery, a 58-50 winner over Louisburg.

For Northampton, Clara Faison also had 22 points. Northampton finished the season at 22-4.

Wrestlers Bow

CORVALES, Ore. — East Carolina University's two wrestlers in the NCAA nationals both suffered losses yesterday and were eliminated for the competition.

Butch Revils, wrestling at 177, lost in his first match, 11-10 to Ben Hill of Tennessee, who later reached the quarterfinals. That qualified Revils for the wrestle-backs, but he suffered a torn rib cartilage in the final period of his match with Hill and was forced to withdraw from further competition.

D.T. Joyner, eighth seeded in the heavyweight division, defeated Kent State's Don Wagner, 6-3, in his first match, but suffered a last-second takedown at the hands of LSU's Mike Evans, and lost 4-3, in the second round. Evans then lost in the third round, closing out Joyner's hopes of gaining the wrestle-backs.

"I hate to make excuses," ECU Coach Ed Steers said, "but both of these kids have been battling handicaps for several weeks now. Joyner has had a bad virus infection and Revils a sprained ankle. And both had very tough losses."

Fergus, Valentine Lead First Round

MIAMI (AP) — A pair of non-winners, Keith Fergus and Tommy Valentine, had the lead but a rebounding veteran was poised to make a move in the $250,000 Doral Open Golf tournament.

"Maybe that's what I needed. Maybe that's what it's gonna take to turn everything around," Dave Hill said after a scrambing 69 left him one shot off the 4-under-par pace set by Fergus and Valentine in Thursday's first round.

Hill, 42, winner of 13 tournaments in 22 years on the pro tour, wasn't talking about his score so much as the unlikely fashion that score was put together. He didn't make a bogey in his effort on the wind-swept, 7,065 yard Blue Monster course at the Doral Country Club, but he had every good opportunity to do so. He had to one-putt for par on his first seven holes, made a couple of 35-footers for two of his birdies and chipped in for the other. In all, he one-putted 11 times and had one no-putt.

"I've hit the ball super all year — best I've hit it in three years — and I keep coming up empty.

"This was the poorest ball-striking round I've had in I don't know how long. And I shoot 69. It could have been 79. But maybe that's what I need."

Hill, once noted as golf's controversial, oft-fined bad boy, is attempting a comeback from three lean seasons.

His game isn't up to the standards that enabled him to win the coveted Vardon Trophy in 1969, but there's been an improvement. He's already won more money this year than he did in the past two seasons combined.

Hill shared third place with Leonard Thompson, Wayne Levi, Kermit Zarley, Dave Eger and Rex Caldwell.

The big group at 70 included Lou Graham, a three-time winner last year, Bruce Lietzke and Jerry Pate.

Jack Nicklaus, on a comeback of his own, matched par 72 with birdies on a couple of par-5 holes and two bogeys.

Defending champion Mark McCumber had a 75. Lee Trevino shot 73 and British Open champ Seve Ballesteros of Spain had a 74.

ODU's Paul Webb Is Interviewed By Duke

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Paul Webb, head coach at Old Dominion, has become the second candidate to be screened for the Duke Blue Devil basketball coach's job.

Webb met earlier this week with Athletic Director Tom Butters, Associate Athletic Director Steve Vacendak and Vice Chancellor Charles Huestis.

Tom Davis of Boston College met with Duke officials last week.

The university is seeking a replacement for Coach Bill Foster, who is stepping down to become head coach at South Carolina.

There have been reports that Bob Weltlich, head coach at Mississippi, will be interviewed by Blue Devil officials. Published reports have mentioned Arkansas coach Eddie Sutton and Duke assistant Bob Wenzel as other candidates for the position.

Webb's Old Dominion team had a 25-5 record this season and lost to UCLA in the first round of the NCAA West Regional playoff. Webb's teams have compiled a record of 103-43 during his five years at the Virginia school.

"I don't know of any timetable Duke is using," Webb said. "They are interviewing several people. I don't know where I stand right now, but I do have a definite and sincere interest in the job."

Boone Laments Half-Hour Show

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Richard Boone, who pioneered TV acting in the pre-coaxial cable days of live New York shows, laments the passing of a lost television art — the half-hour dramatic show.

There are situation comedies aplenty in 30-minute form but not a single drama on the tube these days or, for that matter, in recent memory.

Boone is a veteran of the half-hour form going back to 1953 pre-color days of "Medic" in which he starred as Dr. Konrad Steiner.

It was a compact, dynamic show that made Boone one of the first non-detective dramatic heroes on TV.

After 60 episodes as Dr. Steiner, Boone switched to starring as Paladin, a free-lance gunslinger stalking the west in pursuit of malefactors in "Have Gun, Will Travel," another 30-minute drama.

In those days television was awash with half-hour dramas, among them Steve McQueen's "Wanted: Dead Or Alive," "Gunsmoke," "Richard Diamond" and many others, all of which were in black and white.

"They haven't done dramatic half-hours in years," Boone said the other day. "And it's a damned shame. They were the TV equivalent of short stories. You can tell a super story in the 24-minute time frame.

"I say 24 minutes, because with six minutes off for commercials, that's all they really amounted to. Nowadays you can tell a good story in 90 minutes, too. But the hour-long shows are a bastard form.

"There isn't enough time to levelop characters and still have a good payoff like you can with 90 minutes. And there's not as much concise action and dialogue as in the 30-minute form.

"In the half-hour format you had fewer complications to resolve and fewer characters than in the hour show. It was much better entertainment.

"Jim Moser knew it and wrote 108 segments of 'Dragnet' and all 60 'Medic' episodes. John Meston who had written 218 half-hour 'Gunsmoke!' scripts for radio, converted them beautifully to television."

In lamenting the passing of half-hour dramas, Boone speculated that economics — specifically commercials — not a dearth of talented short-story writers, put an end to the 30-minute shows.

"The networks can make more money on hour shows, to begin with," he said, "and there is a bigger and richer market for reruns.

"Sitcoms are another economic matter because they have standing sets and limited casts and the costs are much lower than they are for dramatic shows. The three-camera, live audience half-hour comedies are much cheaper to do.

"But even so, costs have soared so tremendously that filmed dramatic half-hour shows may be unfeasible.

"Hell, I remember when I was in New York in 1948 we made a pilot for $3,780 starring myself, Lee Tracy, Marlon Brando and Audrey Christie from the Actors Studio — and they had options on all our services.

"But the producers decided not to go ahead with the series because it was too expensive! Can you imagine how those guys must feel now, letting all that talent go down the drain for a few bucks?

GOP Unity Faded In Chicago 'Debate'

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Any pretense of party unity disappeared from the Republican presidential campaign in an acerbic debate that saw four candidates feuding over a wide range of issues and questioning whether they could support each other in the fall.

Rep. John Anderson, the liberal darkhorse in the GOP presidential race, was the principal target in Thursday night's debate. The other three candidates — Ronald Reagan, George Bush and Philip Crane — questioned his party loyalty and whether his campaign didn't sound more like that of a Democrat than a Republican.

After the debate, Anderson declared himself the winner. Did he think the others had ganged up on him? "Really, I should be flattered," said the Illinois congressman. "It seems to legitimize the fact that, really, I have a candidacy that could conceivably go somewhere."

Bush said the latest debate gave him a chance to show where he differs from the other candidates. "I am tired of being the nice guy getting his positions distorted," he told reporters. "We heard about the Anderson difference; tonight, we saw the Bush difference."

After the 90-minute session, Crane continued his criticism of Anderson, telling reporters, "It was indignation over the fact that I've served in that Congress for better than a decade and I am overwhelmed by the idea of any Republican seeking in any way to guarantee that any Democrat be contained in that Congress."

When the candidates were asked during the debate if they would support any of the others were he the nominee, only Bush, who first raised the party loyalty issue against Anderson, said flatly, "I would have no difficulty saying I would support the Republican nominee."

"I cannot support you, John," Rep. Crane said to Anderson.

Reagan looked at Anderson and asked, "John, you really would find Teddy Kennedy preferable to me?"

Anderson has said he would have difficulty supporting any candidate who opposes the SALT II treaty, a position that would place him in opposition to all the other Republican candidates.

Recent published polls show Anderson, after his surprising second-place finishes in the Massachusetts and Vermont primaries 10 days ago, leading the field in his native Illinois, which holds its key primary next Tuesday.

Anderson's leap from lonely crusader to front-runner in the state with the third-largest delegation at the Republican National Convention made him an inviting target in the nationally broadcast debate.

But while Anderson took a lot of heat, no jibes were aimed at Reagan, who has jumped into a wide lead in the GOP race after his sweep of primaries in four southern states in the past seven days.

Held at the Continental Plaza Hotel before an audience of 1,000, the debate was different from the four earlier forums. Moderator Howard K. Smith was the only questioner and the candidates were allowed to interrupt each other.

Winter Storm Lashes Cities Of Northeast

By The Associated Press

Snow and freezing rain posed a problem for motoring commuters in the cities of the Northeast early today as high winds ripped Maryland's Eastern Shore and rain-swollen creeks surged against their banks in Florida.

At least two persons were reported dead as the storm spread from the Ohio Valley to New England.

More snow was forecast today from Montana to Oregon and from the Great Lakes to New York, while rain was expected from western Washington across central California.

Three to 8 inches of snow were reported in parts of New York, Pennsylvania, Connecticut and Maryland as a late winter storm spread over the area Thursday and headed toward the Atlantic.

While schools in parts of western Maryland closed early, police reported a truck driver was killed when his rig plunged down a 50-foot embankment near Hagerstown.

Tornadoes were reported in the area around Ocean City, Md., and one motel owner said winds ripped the roof off his facility, damaging 12 to 20 rooms at a cost of some $200,000.

Coast Guard officials reported a fishing vessel with nine persons aboard was grounded on Assateague Island, about three miles south of Ocean City inlet. Officials said those on board were in no immediate danger but rescue efforts were hampered by rough seas.

In Pennsylvania, police blamed slippery roads for the death of a woman whose car plunged down an embankment in Lycoming County.

Nineteen school children were treated for minor cuts when their bus collided with a car in Chester County, Pa. Meanwhile, hundreds of motorists were caught in a traffic jam when a crane was called to West Goshen Township to pull back a truck that skidded off the road and hung dangling over a guard rail.

Some 3,500 persons in Philadelphia were without power for an hour as the storm hit.

Domit Leaving Museum Of Art

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Moussa M. Domit, controversial director of the state Museum of Art, has resigned the position, effective June 30.

Domit, who has been criticized by some members of the art community for his administration of the museum, said Thursday he and his critics could not settle their differences.

The resignation was accepted by Cultural Resources Secretary Sara Hodgkins, who praised Domit's work with the museum.

"Moussa Domit has dedicated eight years of loyal service to the museum. Under his administration, he has sponsored major exhibitions, greatly expanded and improved its permanent collection and begun construction on its fine new museum building," she said.

Mrs. Hodgkins said Gay Hertzman, curator of art at the museum, will serve as acting director, beginning July 1.

Gordon Hanes of Winston-Salem, a leading art patron, will head a search for a new director. Domit will remain with the Department of Cultural Resources until Dec. 31.

Domit's critics has said he lacks the diplomacy to deal with public and private forces involved in the museum. His supporters maintained that Domit was a professional who was trying to bring excellence to the museum.

Domit said in an interview Thursday that he was opposed by politically powerful people who do not care about the professional interests of the museum.

In an address to the N.C. Art Commission before the announcement of his resignation, Domit urged the art community to unite and accept professional direction.

The museum will move later this year from downtown Raleigh to a new building on the outskirts of the city. Domit said the move is a "monstrous" job that cannot be done in the present atmosphere of controversy.

Opening lead: Seven of ♠.

The prize for the best played hand at the recent Caransa Philip Morris International team tournament was won by a young Dutch star, Henk Wagenvoord, for this fine effort.

If South's double of two clubs seems strange to you, we are also mystified by it. All that seems certain is that it wasn't for penalties; otherwise North had an easy pass. When North could do no more than rebid his suit, South jumped in hearts. North introduced his ratty spade suit, but South, not surprisingly, persisted with hearts.

West made the normal lead of the top of his partner's suit. Declarer won the ace, cashed dummy's two high hearts, and then exited with a club. East won the club, cashed the queen of hearts and another club, then persisted with a club. Declarer ruffed and played a trump, bringing the hand to this position:

When declarer led his last trump, West had to part with a diamond — he had to hold three spades to protect against dummy's third spade. Reading the position perfectly, declarer discarded a spade from dummy, crossed to the ace of spades and led the queen of diamonds from the table. That pinned West's remaining diamond honor and allowed declarer to score two diamond tricks without losing a trick in the suit.

Pinto Suit Underlines Sharing Of Responsibility

By LISA LEVITT
Associated Press Writer

WINAMAC, Ind. (AP) — Ford Motor Co.'s vindication in a landmark criminal trial over the safety of its popular subcompact Pinto shows that the public and industry share responsibility for product safety, both Ford and the prosecutor in the reckless homicide trial agree.

"There must be a responsibility on the part of the people who use products as well as people who design them," said new Ford Chairman Philip Caldwell after jurors Thursday acquitted the automaker in the first criminal trial of a manufacturer in a product liability case.

The company was indicted in the August 1978 deaths of three teen-age girls who perished when their 1973 Pinto burst into flames on a northern Indiana highway when struck from behind by a van.

Ford, which had faced a total maximum fine of $30,000 if convicted, spent a reported $1 million to defend its Pinto, which Caldwell described as "the best-selling small car" of the '70s. More than 2.1 million have been sold since the model was introduced in 1970.

The jury of seven men and five women deliberated for four days after the 10 week trial and reached its verdict at 25 ballots. Some jurors expressed concern about the car's safety, even after the verdict.

"We just felt the state never presented enough evidence to convince us that Ford was guilty," said jury foreman Arthur Selmer.

Selmer said he wouldn't buy a Pinto himself, but would drive one if it was given to him. "I wouldn't feel safe," he said, "but I'd drive it."

The state argued Ford knew of dangerous defects in the Pinto's fuel system, making it likely to explode in rear-end accidents, but put profit ahead of human life and sold the cars anyway.

"I felt the Ford (Pinto) was a reckless automobile," said juror James Yurgilas, "but we couldn't actually prove they didn't do everything in their power to recall it."

Three months before the fatal accident, Ford recalled 1.5 million 1971-76 Pintos and Mercury Bobcats when government tests indicated the cars could leak fuel in rear-end collisions, posing a risk of fire. But the mother of two victims testified her family did not receive a recall notice until six months after the crash.

Defense attorney James F. Neal said the acquittal showed even a giant corporation can win the day if it has "a fair and reasonable story." He called the 10-week trial the most difficult he had ever faced.

Prosecutor Michael Cosentino said the verdict had vindicated Ford. "It means to me that manufacturers can make any kind of car they want to," he said, "and it's up to the public to decide if they want to buy it or not."

A key and deciding issue, Selmer said, was how fast the two cars were traveling at the time of the collision. Eyewitnesses testified for the prosecution that the Pinto was traveling at 15-20 mph and the van at about 55 mph.

Ford argued the force of the impact, rather than any defect, caused the gasoline tank to explode and produced evidence that the Pinto was stopped while the van's speed was about 50 mph.

"We felt the crash hit was at a higher rate than the state proved," said Selmer. "No Pinto, even with the recall package, could have withstood the impact."

Meanwhile, Cosentino said he might seek further legal clarification of some of Judge Harold Staffeldt's rulings in the case, but it was not clear what affect an appellate decision could have on the case.

The judge allowed Ford to show film of crash test it had conducted using several different car models, but refused to admit the Pinto crash test that the state sought to enter as evidence.

The Ford tests bolstered the automaker's claim that its Pinto was comparable to other small cars, and the state had hoped its tests would proved the company was aware of the Pinto's flaws.

In Washington, at Ralph Nader's Center for Auto Safety, officials said they felt the verdict was "pre-ordained" as a result of the evidence rulings.

"However, in the next case, with a better judge or with a different striking vehicle, I feel sure Ford or any other manufacturer would be convicted," said center spokesman Clarence Ditlow.

The safety center was instrumental in pressing for the original recall.

Word of the verdict was greeted with elation in Detroit, where Ford directors were meeting. Henry Ford II, who stepped down Thursday as chairman of the No. 2 automaker, said he would have retired sooner except for "a lot of things facing the company."

Asked for examples, he replied with a chuckle, "Such as lawsuits."

Earl Ulrich of Osceola, whose daughters Judy, 18, and Lyn, 16, died in the crash along with their cousin, Donna, 18, said he was disappointed, however.

"I feel like the prosecution didn't get all their story in," he said. "They were very limited in their evidence. I think they did all they could under the circumstances."

Divers Set New Depth Record At Duke Univ.

By ELISSA McCRARY
Associated Press Writer

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Three divers locked in a pressurized chamber at Duke University Medical Center set a world depth record Thursday when they hit 2,003 feet below sea level.

The old record, the equivalent of 2,001 feet below sea level, was set by a French team in 1972.

The new mark was reached at about 6:30 p.m.

The men have been locked in the small hyperbaric charmber, eight feet in diameter, since last Thursday.

The divers include Delmar "Bud" Shelton of Durham, a physician's assistant at Duke; William Bell of New Bern, a Duke medical student; and Stephen Porter of Cortez, Colo., a commercial diver employed by Oceaneering International of Houston, Tex.

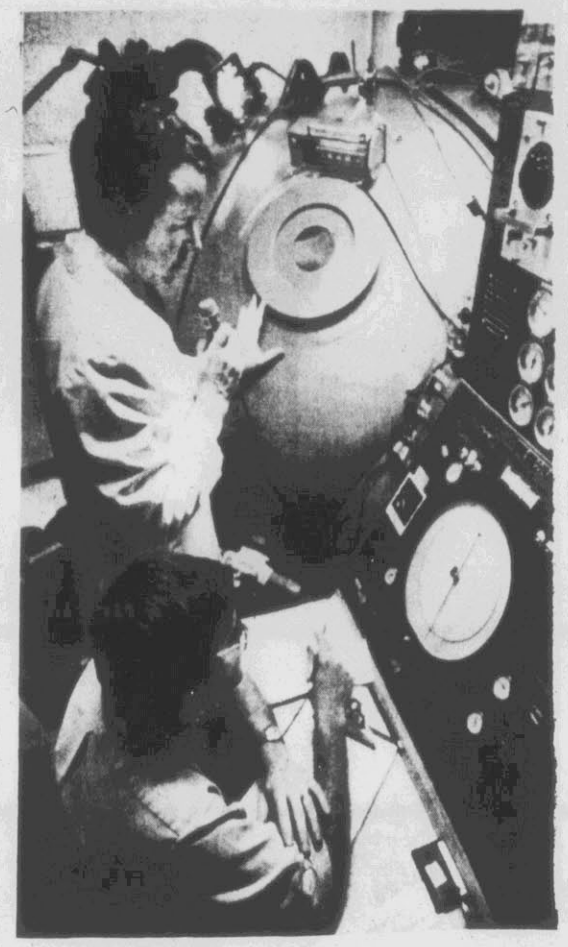
Dr. Peter Bennett, director of Duke's Hall Laboratory of Environmental Research, said a mixture of 10 percent nitrogen with other gases in the chamber allowed the divers to reach record depths.

"This is a real breakthrough in deep diving," Bennett said, watching the divers on a television monitor outside the chamber. "This is the first time divers have gone anywhere near such depths without suffering from high-pressure nervous syndrome."

He said symptoms of the syndrome include nausea, vomiting, cramps, drowsiness and loss of appetite leading to severe weight loss.

He said the worst problem for the three divers has been slight irritability with each other at times.

"You take three men, confine them in a place as small as the chamber and there's going to be a little irritability," he said. "But so far, even that has been at a minimum."



NEARING THE RECORD — Dr. Peter Bennett, top, watches a bank of gauges and talks to the three divers inside the pressure chamber in the background as they neared a new world record for similated depth Thursday afternoon at Duke Univ. Medical Center. (AP Laserphoto)

He said the divers eat a normal diet, which is passed into the chamber through an airlock opening. They read and listen to music to pass the time.

"It's really amazing," Bennett said. "They (the divers) look so relaxed, so normal, just like they're in a normal situation.

"This experiment has opened up deep diving," he said. "The barrier is gone from deep diving, as far as the nervous syndrome is concerned. There's just no limit now."

The divers are scheduled to begin decompression Friday at 9 p.m. after reaching a simulated depth of 2,132 feet below sea level.

Decompression will take about 12 days, Bennett said. After about six days, the divers will move into a larger chamber, which is connected to the unit they have been in since the experiment began.

Quarterly Meet Begins Today

AYDEN — Quarterly meeting will be observed at Zion Chapel Church Friday through Sunday.

The following services will be held: Friday, 7:30 p.m., quarterly conference; Saturday, 7:30 p.m., communion; Sunday, 9:30 a.m., Sunday School followed by morning worship at 11 o'clock; at 3 p.m., Bishop J. H. Vines, congregation, choir and ushers of Saint Peter's Church, Snow Hill, will be in charge. Bishop Stephen Jones invites the public to attend.

A Week Of Prayer Services Planned

Special prayer services in preparation for revival will be held by Oakmont Baptist Church next week.

Tuesday services will be held at 8 p. m. at the homes of Don and Helen Parrott, 303 Glasgow Lane, and Don and Billie Lennon, 2502 E. Fourth Street. Glenn Fisher will speak at the Parrotts'; Jerry Tester at the Lennons.'

Wednesday at 8 p. m. a church-wide prayer service and hymn sing will be held at the church.

Six People Demonstrating Support Of Hostages

By MARIANNE McGOWAN
Associated Press Writer

BERWICK, Pa. (AP) — For their honeymoon, Jim and Debbie Bigler donned white helmets proclaiming "Free the Hostages" and set out on a 300-mile walk across Pennsylvania.

The Biglers and four companions have been turning heads and hearing a lot of horn honking on the hilly route from Hermitage, Pa., to Scranton.

That's fine with them. Attention is what they want.

The tiny caravan — carrying the flags of the United States and Canada — is on its way to Scranton to visit the family of Michael Metrinko, one of the 50 American hostages in Iran.

"We came to like this family very much," said Bigler, 31. "We wanted to do something to show there are a lot of people who support them, who want the exact same thing they do and who are praying for them."

Bigler is grounds superintendent of Hillcrest Cemetery in Hermitage. That is where the marchers met the Metrinkos, who attended a Feb. 11 ceremony in which 100 American flags were raised, one for each of the 100 days the hostages had been held then.

Harry Metrinko also lit a memorial flame for his son that will burn until he comes home. A new flag has raised each additional day the hostages have been held.

"They're extraordinary people....They have no anger for the Iranian people," said Tom Flynn, 41, who owns the cemetery and who organized the cross-state march.

Joe and Janice Baker are also making the trek, which started in 3-degree weather March 1.

"Every couple of cars blow their horns," Baker said during a recent roadside interview. "We find that the further we go, the more people know about us."

By Wednesday, the 130th day of captivity for the hostages, the walkers had reached Berwick in Columbia County, with a little more than 40 miles to go.

Jim Bigler's 20-year-old brother, George, says he doesn't expect the march to affect the fate of the hostages, but he hopes it will focus peoples' feelings.

"I think that's the problem with the American people. They don't know the families and they don't know how to show their feelings. This way, someone can just beep his horn and feel he's giving us support," Bigler said.

Baker said he hopes the walk will impress Iranian diplomats in the United States. "We have to do something to make them see we are united," he said.

The six take turns walking in pairs while the others ride in a car and a van ahead of them. Motels along the way give them free room and board and they usually eat lunch as guests of local officials in the small towns they pass through.

Among the people who have taken them in are the parents of baseball pitcher Sparkie Lyle, a former New York Yankee now with the Texas Rangers. They live in Reynoldsville.

People constantly ask questions or invite them into their homes and wish them luck. Occasionally, some join the march.

"I hope you get a lot of publicity," said the driver of an empty school bus that pulled up alongside the Bakers.

"God bless you," a woman called from her front yard.

"It's been beautiful all along the way," said Baker, 54, a Mercer County labor official. "We haven't had a negative remark yet."

The group expects to reach Scranton on Saturday to join a St. Patrick's Day parade and then continue on to the Metrinko home in suburban Olyphant.

The Metrinkos haven't heard from their son, a 33-year-old State Department official, since he telephoned on the couple's anniversary last Oct. 19.

"We're quite delighted," Metrinko said of the march. The Metrinkos talk every night with Flynn, who calls them with a daily progress report. When the walk is over, they'll receive a lantern that was lit at the memorial flame in Hermitage.

"I'm amazed that no one else is doing anything," said Flynn. "Here we are — just six people on the side of the road."

Mental Health Radio Speaker

Sandra Harrison, Director of WAG (Winterville-Ayden-Grifton-Greenville) Child Development Center, will be guest Sunday at 1:06 p. m. on "Mental Health Matters" on WNCT radio.

She will talk about services available at the center for children with special needs. According to Harrison, Sunday is "Sabbath Sunday" and March is Mental Retardation Month, when special efforts are being made to make the public more aware of services and concerns of the mentally retarded. The WAG Center, located in Grifton, is a component of the mental retardation services area of the Pitt County Mental Health Center's work.

FELLOWSHIP SERVICE

The deacons and trustees of Macedonia Missionary Baptist Church will observe the annual fellowship service Sunday at 11 a.m. Will Moore, deacon, and Nathan Cobb, trustee, are co-chairmen of the day. The pastor, Rev. F. R. Peterson, invites the public to attend.

Great Service Still Provided On French Rails

By JEFFREY ULBRICH
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — From the moment the first train pulled out of Paris, bearing Queen Marie-Amelie on the 13-mile trip to St. Germain on Aug. 27, 1837, the French knew they were on to something.

The intervening 142 years have done little to change that view, and France now possesses one of the finest rail systems in the world.

"The railroad is, and must remain, an essential factor in our system of transportation," says Transport Minister Joel le Theule. "The government, for its part, believes in the future of the railroad and shows it by its enormous subsidies."

The state-run railroad, the Societe Nationale des Chemins de Fer Francais, commonly known as the SNCF, had total operating expenses in 1978 of $8.35 billion.

The government picked up the tab for some fare reductions and to continue service on some unprofitable lines. It also pays for the railroad's huge retirement program. That comes to an additional $3.75 billion in subsidies.

In fact, France spends as much on the railroads as it does on building and maintaining its highways.

"When a Frenchman thinks of going somewhere, particularly if it is more than 300 kilometers, it is sure he will think of the train," said Jean Albertini, an SNCF official. "In each town there is a station, and the railroad is something that is always there, with precise schedules."

Apart from a reputation for serving the worst food to be had in this land of gastronomes, French trains are comfortable and nearly always on time and offer a wide range of services and fare reductions.

The trains have a computerized ticket and reservation system hooked into most major travel agencies, facilities to rent a hotel room, a car or even a bicycle. Some lines can carry cars. The SNCF will pick up baggage at home and deliver it to a destination. It offers special help to the handicapped and even provides companions for children traveling alone.

The list of special fares is almost endless, some reductions ranging up to 75 percent and including price cuts for soldiers, retirees, veterans, large families, families traveling together, even couples in some cases.

There are special weekly and monthly rates for people who travel often, once-a-year reductions for vacationers and low income people and special prices for very long trips.

The trains even welcome dogs and cats — if owners are willing to buy their pets second-class tickets at half price.

Most major European nations have some sort of fare reduction plan. In West Germany and Sweden, almost everyone qualifies in some way or another for special fares. In Britain, where fares were raised by 20 percent last month, pensioners and families still get price breaks.

Contrary to the United States, where the railroad was a part of the conquest of the West, rail transport in France developed to connect established towns inside existing borders. It thus became an integral part of French life early on. By 1900, the 21,875-mile system was essentially complete.

Emphasis now is on speed. The SNCF is laying 1,000 yards of track a day for what will be the country's "train of the future," a 165-mph run between Paris and Lyon, France's second-largest city. The new line will cut traveling time almost in half, from three hours and 45 minutes to about two hours.

"We are reaching a point where we don't think in distance any more, we think in time," said Albertini.

The move toward high-speed trains in Europe is not unique to France. British rail has 32 high-speed passenger trains, with top speeds of 125 mph, most of them linking London with other major cities.

In West Germany, where some lines already permit speeds of 125 mph, two routes are being built to carry trains at speeds of 155 mph.

After 10 years of steady increase, the number of riders on French trains was stagnant in 1979 in spite of another oil crunch, according to Pierre Gentil, SNCF director-general.

That contrasts with Britain, West Germany and Sweden, all of which report ridership increases. Officials of the West German federal railway estimate that 10 percent of their ridership increase was due to people leaving their cars at home in favor of taking the train.

Railroads throughout Europe can haul more passengers than they do now, particularly in non-peak hours and during the week. These are the periods officials are trying to fill by using fare reduction schemes.

In spite of the fare increases, British rail has launched a huge advertising campaign, urging people to "Let the Train Take the Strain."

SNCF officials say oil problems so far have played a relatively small role in the growth of passenger service. With 17 million cars on French roads, there's still no evidence the crunch has reached crisis proportions.

"People are still attached to their cars," said Albertini. "The cost of gasoline (now $3.10 per gallon for premium) is still not dissuasive."
