Hostage Escapes Bogota Embassy With Bedsheets

By JOE FRAZIER
Associated Press Writer

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Uruguayan Ambassador Fernando Gomez, one of more than 30 hostages held by guerrillas in the Dominican Republic Embassy for nearly three weeks, tied bedsheets together and lowered himself from a second-story window of the building early today, scrambled under a parked car and was rescued, authorities said.

Gomez, a 42-year-old career diplomat, escaped about 12:40 a.m. He got behind one of the cars parked in front of the embassy, shouted out his identify to military police, who picked him up in a Mercedes Benz and drove him to a military hospital.

The press office of President Julio Cesar Turbay Ayala said Gomez suffered "a few bruises" when the makeshift rope snapped as the ambassador lowered himself to freedom.

Police earlier said he had a broken collar bone, and a reporter for the newspaper El Tiempo said the envoy appeared to have leg and arm injuries. He said Gomez was "limping, dressed in a green bathrobe, completely unshaven and with one arm in a sling."

Associated Press Photographer Ricardo Tisnes said Gomez apparently injured his left arm in the jump and was taken to a military hospital.

He said a military policeman fired a rifle shot at the fleeing ambassador, apparently believing momentarily that he was a guerrilla, but that no shots were fired by the guerrillas in the embassy.

Gomez escaped about 12:40 a.m., got behind one of the cars parked in front of the embassy, where he shouted out his identify to military police, who picked him up in a Mercede Benz and drove him to the hospital.

Gomez was the first of the hostages to escape from the embassy. The guerrillas have freed 24 captives but are still holding more than 20 others, including the U.S. ambassador. The government has said the next move would be up to the terrorists.

"The government will not take the initiative in looking for the continuation of the talks," a Colombian government spokesman said. The terrorists suspended negotiations last Thursday, and it is up to them to reopen the talks, he asserted.

The guerrillas of the April 19th Movement, or M-19, contend the government must make the next move by meeting their demands for the release of 215 members of their organization held on such charges as rebellion, bank robbery, raiding an army arsenal, kidnapping and killing police and business leaders.

The masked woman guerrilla who represented M-19 in the negotiations shouted to reporters after the last talks on Thursday, "We want the liberation of our comrades who have been tortured and are on trial. Our watchword is 'we will win or die.'"

The government claims that most of those whose freedom is demanded have been convicted of civil crimes, or are awaiting trial for such crimes, and as a democracy with an independent judiciary it cannot violate the constitution by releasing them.

The guerrillas stormed the embassy during an independence day reception on Feb. 27 and have been holding U.S. Ambassador Diego Asencio, 18 other diplomats and five or more persons.

No mention has been made recently of the guerrillas' original demand for a $50 million ransom and there has been speculation this has been greatly reduced or abandoned.

'No Choice' In Inflation War

By JAY PERKINS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American people face some rough months ahead in the Carter administration's battle to restrain inflation, the president's chief inflation fighter told Congress today.

"The American people have no choice but to accept a temporary decline in living standards," Alfred Kahn told the Senate Banking Committee.

Kahn, chairman of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, noted the increasing flow of funds to oil producing countries and the decline in productivity of American business. "Our economy as a whole cannot escape some decline in real income in these circumstances," he said.

President Carter plans to strengthen the monitoring of voluntary wage and price guidelines as part of the fight against inflation, Kahn said.

He said Carter would soon formally propose that "several hundred" persons be added to the pay and price monitoring staff, which now numbers about 100.

In other testimony, Kahn said the president continues to strongly oppose mandatory wage and price controls because such controls "paper over" inflation and hide what is really happening to the economy.

Kahn was the first administration witness to testify on Capitol Hill a congressional panel since the president told the nation some of the steps he will use to combat inflation.

Kahn's appearance was the start of the administration's effort to sell its new program to Congress and the people. The task is likely to be difficult.

Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., gave an indication of the problems ahead when he said over the weekend that special interest groups already were lobbying key Democrats to withstand pressure to cut favored programs.

Appearing earlier today on ABC-TV's "Good Morning, America" show, Kahn said "Congress now has got the message. They're scared. The people in the country are demanding that we bring our government under control and that we'll do whatever is necessary."

Meanwhile, the Senate is taking up a measure that, if not enacted, could spell new trouble for Carter's budget plans.

The oil-industry windfall profits tax, which would bring in $227.7 billion in new taxes, is scheduled to come before the Senate for final action later this week.

That measure, worked out by a House-Senate conference committee, is $50 billion more than the bill the Senate approved earlier. Oil state senators and conservatives have indicated they would fight to defeat the bill.

When combined with existing federal and state taxes, the levy would leave the industry with $221 billion of the $1 trillion that decontrol is expected to cost consumers in the 1980s. While called a "windfall profits" tax, it would apply not directly to profits but to price hikes above 1979 levels.

So far only a handful of senators have shown any interest in blocking the bill, which already has passed the House. But passage could be a tedious process.

Little is known of the congressional action that will be needed to implement the president's budget-balancing plan. Carter has ordered a new fee on imported oil — a proposal that will raise gasoline prices by 10 cents per gallon — but that fee can go into effect without congressional approval.

He also has called for new credit controls, but those will be implemented by the independent Federal Reserve Board.

He has not yet specified what programs he wants cut for the upcoming fiscal year but has said he wants to trim about $13 billion from the budget he sent to Congress earlier this year.

There are strong indications the cuts will include a $1.7 billion reduction in funds going to states as revenue sharing.

There also were indications that cuts could come in several key programs favored by labor organizations, who already have begun serving notice of their resistance.

Hardliners Lead In Iran

By The Associated Press

Prospects for release of the American hostages in Tehran dimmed further today as hardliners led in returns from the Iranian parliamentary election.

Tehran Radio announced that 29 of the 54 seats decided had been won by the fundamentalists of the Islamic Republican Party. Their leaders support the demand of the militants occupying the U.S. Embassy for the return of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and his wealth to Iran before the 50 Americans held at the embassy are freed. Three other Americans are in custody at the Iranian Foreign Ministry.

The broadcast said 20 seats had been won by independents or supporters of President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, who wants to end the hostage crisis; two each by the Kurdish Democratic Party and Adm. Ahmad Madani's National Front and one by former Premier Mehdi Bazargan's Freedom Movement.

In the remaining 216 districts, either no candidate had won the majority required for election or votes were still being counted. In districts where no one gets a majority, the two leading candidates go into a runoff election April 4.

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the leader of the revolutionary regime, has said that the Parliament, or Majlis, will decide the fate of the hostages. Ayatollah Mohammad Beheshti, the secretary-general of the Revolutionary Council who also heads the Islamic Republican Party, has said the issue probably won't be taken up until mid-May.

Defeated leftist, independent and radical Moslem candidates accused Beheshti's party of illegal last-minute campaigning outside polling stations, distributing lists of its candidates inside voting booths and tampering with the ballots of illiterates, who make up about 65 percent of Iran's 16 million-20 million voting population and who were supposed to be helped by non-partisan election officials.

"Obviously, wherever there has been extensive fraud, the elections shall be annulled, as no one can defend improper elections," said Bani-Sadr. "However, I do not believe that such fraudulent acts took place in all regions."

Meanwhile, the ailing shah was examined by a squadron of American and Panamanian doctors in a hospital in Panama City, Panama, and afterward the doctors announced that an operation to remove his spleen had been postponed until he was stronger.

Emergency No. Meeting

A public meeting will be held tonight at 7 p. m. in the District Court Room of the Pitt County Court House to discuss whether Pitt County should undertake a changeover to a 911 Emergency Phone Number to handle all emergency calls in the county.

The 911 universal emergency telephone number stems primarily from a 1967 recommendation of the President's Commission on Law Enforcement and Administration of Justice that "a single number should be established" for reporting emergencies to the police. In 1968 the American Telephone and Telegraph Company announced that it would make the digits 911 available nationwide as an emergency telephone number.

The North Carolina Utilities Commission on July 27, 1979, issued an order setting in motion a procedure under which all regulated telephone companies in North Carolina were directed to make the 911 emergency phone number available to local government agencies as soon as feasibly possible.

A 911 emergency telephone number is intended to speed up response time giving the public direct access to a consolidated communications center which receives emergency assistance requests and dispatches the appropriate sheriff, police, fire, or rescue unit.

The Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company has issued a statement that "The Carolina Group is committed to providing the fastest and easiest way to call for help in emergencies. The company fully pledges its cooperation, assistance and advice to any duly authorized citizens' or governmental organization investigating or planning the establishment of '911' Emergency Service."

The phone service points out that the costs of the service would be borne by the communities involved. "This is not meant to discourage the 911 program, but rather to minimize the economic impact on the rate-paying public.

No county officials directly responsible for the changeover, if wanted by the public and approved by the County Commissioners, could be reached for comment as to the possible cost involved. This information will be brought out in the meeting tonight. Representatives of each of the municipalities in the county are expected to be present and the public is encouraged to attend.

DOT Funding

The N.C. Board of Transportation announced the approval of $329,202 in public transportation funds for Greenville.

The board reported that the allocation involves money for one bus and operating funds.

The Greenville project was one of 15 public transportation projects totaling mroe than $4 million approved by the state board.

The bulk of the funding for the projects, it was reported, will be provided from North Carolina's fiscal year 1980 federal share of Section 18 totaling $3.7 million. The remaining portion will be funded through state and local monies.

Section 18 of the Urban Mass Transportation Administration Act provides capital and operating assistance funds for public transportation in rural and small urban areas.

Gov. Hunt Here On Wednesday

Gov. Jim Hunt will be in Greenville on Wednesday for several activities, his office reported.

The activities will begin with a 9:30 a.m. press conference at the Ramada Inn, followed by a 10:30 a.m. meeting with the Agriculture, Seafood, Forestry Advisory Committee, also at the Ramada Inn.

At 11 a.m., Hunt will speak at a meeting of the State Concerns Committee of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce at the Ramada Inn and he is scheduled to be the guest speaker at the 11:30 a.m. annual luncheon of the Pitt County Agribusiness Association at the American Legion Building.

Hunt will participate in the opening of his Pitt County campaign headquarters, 264 Bypass, at 1:45 p.m.

INTERSECTION NEEDS SIGNAL

Because of the new section of Arlington Boulevard now completed, there is much more traffic at the Arlington-Memorial Drive intersection. And the vision turning on Memorial Drive from Arlington to the left is not very good because of the trees and the hill. Shouldn't there be a stoplight installed there? J. S.

Hotline directed your question to the Greenville City Engineer's office, which in turn sent it on to the State Department of Transportation. Division Engineer Gerald England said a thorough study of the intersection has been done and a preliminary signal design has been submitted to the Department of Transportation in Raleigh for review and final design. Money will be requested when the final design is completed. Funding will be based on availability of funds and the intersection's priority on a statewide basis.

In other words, yes the local DOT feels the intersection needs signalizing, but it may be a long wait before money is allocated.

Cleveland Busing Plan Left 'Intact' By Court

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A divided Supreme Court today left intact a racial desegregation plan for Cleveland public schools that may make necessary the crosstown busing of some 52,000 students.

The justices, by a 6-3 vote, rejected a challenge by the Cleveland Board of Education to the court-ordered plan, a portion of which went into effect last September.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices William H. Rehnquist and Lewis F. Powell Jr. voted to hear the school board's appeal.

"Even if the Constitution required it, and it were possible for federal courts to do it, no equitable decree can fashion an 'Emerald City' where all races, ethnic groups and persons of various income levels live side by side in a large metropolitan area," the dissenters said.

A group of black parents sued Ohio's largest school system in 1973, charging that their children's rights to an equal education were being violated.

U.S. District Judge Frank Battisti ruled on Aug. 31, 1976 that the Cleveland school district had been guilty of intentional racial segregation for years.

His finding was upheld by the 6th U.S. Circuit Court, and on Feb. 6, 1978 Battisti announced a three-phase remedy.

The first phase, affecting some 20,000 students at 33 of the district's 146 schools, took effect the start of school year last September.

Under it, some 8,500 students are being bused crosstown from predominantly one-race neighborhoods for racial balance.

The second phase is to take effect this week, affecting 20,000 more students and making necessary the busing of thousands more students.

When Battisti's total plan is in place next September, every school in the 91,000-student district is to reflect approximately the same racial make-up of the entire district. About two-thirds of Cleveland's public school students are black.

Under the final phase, an estimated 52,000 students will be bused for racial balance.

Afghan Rebels Report Fighting In Provinces

By MOHAMMED AFTAB
Associated Press Writer

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Afghan rebels today claimed to have inflicted considerable losses on Afghan government troops in fighting in three provinces.

A statement by the Afghan National Liberation Front issued in Islamabad, Pakistan, said the government forces and the Soviet troops helping them suffered 50 dead and an undisclosed number of wounded in a rebel attack on a military base at Barri in the eastern province of Paktia on the Pakistan border.

The statement said the base was still under siege and claimed rebel losses in the fighting so far were two killed and nine seriously wounded.

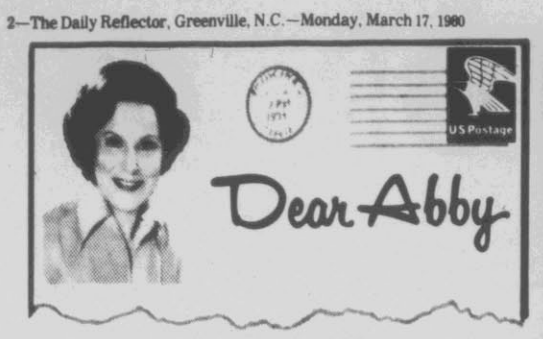

Another squad of National Liberation Front rebels attacked the military base at Kufry in the eastern province of Kunar, also on the Pakistan frontier, the statement said.

"After heavy fighting, two officers and many soldiers were killed," it said, adding, 75 Afghan soldiers surrendered to the rebels.

At Shoonkrai, also in Kunar, the rebels clashed with government troops, inflicting "heavy casualties on them," the statement said. It did not give the number of government casualties, but said six rebels were killed and three were seriously wounded.

Like most reports of fighting in the 23-month-old Afghan war, these accounts could not be independently confirmed. Nor was their any confirmation of another rebel group's claim Sunday that as many as 40,000 Afghans, including women and children, had been killed and 300,000 forced to fleet their homes because of "Soviet bombing and other atrocities." That claim came from the Harkata Inqilable Islami — the Movement for Islamic Revolution — in a statement issued in Peshawar, Pakistan.

Moslem rebels, as well as Afghan refugees fleeing to camps in Pakistan, have frequently reported heavy casualties and widespread destruction caused by the estimated 80,000 Soviet troops now in Afghanistan, but their accounts have far exceeded Western intelligence reports.

Mother Doesn't Share Her Love

By Abigail Van Buren

1980 by Chicago Tribune-N Y News Synd Inc

DEAR ABBY: Please help me. I have no one else to turn to. If you print my letter in your column my mother is sure to see it as she reads you every day. I am 12 years old.

Dear Mother:

I love you so much and I need your love, too. What is wrong with me that you don't love me as much as you love my little sister? Every time I see you loving her up I hurt for you to love me, too.

Like yesterday, you were sitting between my sister and me and I saw you take her hand and run kisses from her hand up to her elbow, and then you kissed her on the head. I turned to you and put my arms around you and kissed you, but you paid no attention to me. No hug, no kiss or anything. When I went to bed that night I hurt so much I cried.

You tell me I am bad because I am jealous. I can't help how I feel. You say I am turning into a problem child, and you think I should talk to a counselor. Mother, can't you see that what I need is for you to love me?

Please love me, Mother. I love you so much.

NO LOVE IN LUBBOCK, TEX.

DEAR NO LOVE: I'm sure your mother loves you, but I'm printing your letter as a reminder to all mothers that all their children need to feel loved equally.

Please understand that you are not a bad person because you feel jealous. We all feel jealous sometime; it's a normal emotion.

I think it's a good idea to talk to a counselor. Please do, then write again and tell me how you are. I care.

DEAR ABBY: My son and his fiance, Judy (not her real name), have been going together for about 2½ years. They set their wedding date, and all the plans were made for a big wedding. My granddaughter was to be the flower girl, and everyone was looking forward to the big event.

Less than a week before the wedding, Judy and her family decided to call off the wedding.

Now we are getting all these bills for the tuxedos, flower girl's dress, etc.

Who should pay these bills? Also, what about the rings my son bought?

JIM'S MOM

DEAR MOM: Unless the bride (or her family) agreed beforehand to pay for the flower girl's dress, the flower girl's parents (or guardians must pay for it—providing the dress cannot be returned.

Assuming the tuxedos are rented, those who rented the tuxedos must pay for them.

If the jeweler refuses to take back the rings, your son now owns a set of good-as-new rings. Let's hope he has better luck with his next girl.

DEAR ABBY: Although I have been an ardent fan of yours for many years, I never thought I'd be writing to you.

Today I received and read your booklet WHAT EVERY TEENAGER OUGHT TO KNOW. Although I am a registered nurse of 16 years, I ordered the booklet because I find it very difficult to talk to my teenage daughter about sex, etc.

I must say that this booklet is a godsend, and I would highly recommend it to mothers, teenagers, as well as members of my church. Never in my life have I received so much for $2. I regret that this wonderful booklet wasn't around when I was growing up. Thanks a million, God bless you, and keep up the good work, Abby.

I hope you print my letter and if you do, you may use my name.

Airliner In Emergency Landing At Greensboro

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The 114 passengers and five crew members aboard Eastern Airlines flight 339 Sunday knew there were problems as the plane jarred when it took off from Columbus, Ohio, for Tampa.

The DC-9 had blown a tire and what followed was a two-hour mini-drama that ended at Charlotte's Douglas Municipal Airport. The plane landed safely on a foamed runway at 11:33 as dozens of emergency vehicles stood by.

"There were a lot of tight nerves there for a moment," said Charlotte Fire Chief J.E. Atkins. "When I heard the all-clear, that was some nice feeling."

The outer of two tires under the plane's left wing exploded with an audible bang as the plane lifted off from Columbus about 9:40 a.m.

Capt. John Parker immediately radioed the Eastern Airlines dispatcher in Miami and reported the problem. He then summoned head stewardess Susan Steegman, whose crew would comfort passengers during the ordeal.

Parker first planned to complete the flight to Tampa. But a vibration felt in fuselage, later traced to a piece of rubber trailing from the damaged tire, forced Parker to abort the flight.

Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) officials in Atlanta diverted the craft 70 miles east to Douglas because the airport's newest runway is the longest in the area.

In the Douglas control tower, Nick Susco broadcast the emergency on police radio. "We had no question in our minds. We rolled 'em," Susco said of the more than 20 fire trucks and ambulances that eventually lined the east side of the runway.

Air controller Richard Wentworth talked the jet in. He had Parker make a low pass by the tower, tilting the plane to one side so officials could assess the damage.

"It didn't look good," Wentworth said. One tire was blown and shredded, exposing a bare rim that could spark and catch fire on landing, "the most imminent danger."

Parker told the passengers it would be about 45 minutes until landing — time to burn off some of the 13,000 pounds of fuel on board and give ground crews the chance to spread foam on the runway.

Stewardesses told passengers how to sit, where the exits were and how to respond to the emergency.

Parker made a second pass by the tower to check the placement of foam, which stretched 20 feet wide and 1,200 feet down the runway.

The plane touched down in the center of the foam strip, sending up a spray that all but obscured the craft from view. When the plane emerged intact from the foam, Wentworth and Susco sighed.

"He greased it," Susco shouted, grinning. "Super landing. Wouldn't even have made your false teeth vibrate."

Buses took passengers from the plane to the terminal. Through a combination of existing and special flights, all the passengers were home by 7 p.m. Sunday, Eastern spokesman Ed Bennett said.

Fire Damage At Duke U.

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Fire heavily damaged a room at Duke University's Cameron Indoor Stadium early Sunday and smoke poured into the gym and other parts of the building.

No injuries were reported in the blaze which started in a squad room for football players, a fire investigator said. He said no one was supposed to have been in the room at that time.

Firemen said they found the door to the room open when they arrived, but it apparently wouldn't close properly. The investigator said there was no sign that either the door or the windows had been forced open.

"At this point we don't have any indication it was an incendiary fire," the investigator said, adding that nothing has been ruled out yet.

He said the investigation is concentrating on the possibility that electrical wiring caused the fire which started shortly before 2 a.m.

There also was some fire damage to the hallway just outside the room.

Martin Workshop For Industry-Hunt

A series of workshops are being held across the state to help small communities recruit industry and revitalize their downtowns.

The Department of Commerce-sponsored workshop for this area will be held at Martin Community College in Williamston Mar. 20, Apr. 10 and May 1. In the first two sessions, topics will include: how communities can select the type of industrial growth they want; matching up community attributes and goals with industry needs; and "selling" the community to the industry. The final session, conducted by the N.C. Department of Natural Resources and Community Development, will be on ways of revitalizing downtowns. Topics will include financing and attracting investment to downtown.

The workshops are part of the state's Community of Excellence program, which is an economic development program to assist communities of fewer than 15,000 people. The public is invited and business and community leaders, as well as industrial development professionals, are encouraged to attend.

The workshops will begin at 9 a. m. and end at 4 p. m.

Optical Topics

Contact lenses a few short years ago were big, rather bulky and almond shaped, designed to rest on the white of the eye. Also, an artificial solution was required for lubrication purposes. Today, the modern lense is a tissue-thin, optically ground plastic disc. They are so tiny, they cover just a bit more than the pupil of the eye and literally float on the eye's natural tear layer. In fact, no matter how strong a prescription is needed, the lenses are always thin. Indeed, most contact lens wearers soon become obivious to them and many people are able to wear contacts for hours on end without any hint of discomfort.

From contact lenses to plastic and glass conventional lenses, the field of eyewear has changed dramatically over the years. One thing, though, has stayed the same. That is the courteous, professional and concerned attention that each and every individual receives at CLEAR VUE OPTICIANS, 1705 6th St., Physicians Quadrangle Building A, 752-1446. Couple Exchanges Vows On Sunday Afternoon

MARLBORO – The Marlboro Free Will Baptist Church was the scene of the Sunday afternoon wedding ceremony of Anna Frances Mooring and Charles Glenn Letchworth. The three o'clock, double ring ceremony was performed by William Scott Sowers.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Joseph Mooring of Rt. 2, Farmville, the bride was escorted by her father and given in marriage by her parents. Her honor attendant was JoAnn Lang of Farmville and bridesmaids included Robin Cunningham of Rocky Mount, Nancy Craven of Raleigh, and Lenna West of Greenville.

The bridegroom's niece, Kerry Grant of Virginia Beach, Va., was flower girl.

The bridegroom's father was best man. Ushers included Allen Mooring, brother of the bride, of Farmville, Va., Steve Letchworth of Sanford, Fla., brother of the bridegroom, Scott Lang, George Allen and Billy Lovic, all of Farmville.

A program of wedding music was presented by Janie Sowers of Farmville, organist, and Margaret Phoenix of Winston-Salem, who sang "The Wedding Song," "One Hand, One Heart" and "Wedding Prayer."

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Jack Farrior.

The bride wore an ivory formal gown styled with a chapel train of silk chiffon and re-embroidered chantilly lace. The fitted bodice featured a Queen Anne neckline and Camelot sleeves. The full length layered flared chiffon skirt extended into a chapel train. Her ivory mantilla was bordered with re-embroidered chantilly lace. She carried a colonial nosegay of mixed greenery, baby's breath, white button pom poms, miniature carnations and pink sweetheart roses.

Rosette silesta floor length gowns with chiffon jackets were worn by the attendants. The T-strap fitted shirred bodice was complemented by a jacket with a jewel neckline and dolman sleeves. They each carried a nosegay of mixed spring flowers with baby's breath and eucalyptus.

The flower girl was dressed in an ivory dress accented with rose colored flowers. Lace trimmed the hem, neckline, sash and puffed sleeves. She carried a white basket.

MRS. CHARLES GLENN LETCHWORTH

The bride's mother selected a formal gown of mauve silk magic knit designed with an open V-neckline edged in scalloped embroidery. The bridegroom's mother selected a formal gown of blue knit and chiffon with a fitted bodice and high neckline. Both wore corsages of pink talisman roses. Mrs. S. F. Hobgood, aunt of the bride, and the grandmother of the bridegroom, Mrs. J. C. Gardner, were given white carnation corsages.

After a wedding trip to Atlanta, Ga., the couple will live in Farmville.

The bride attended ECU and Pitt Community College. She is a nurse in the neonatal unit, Pitt County Memorial Hospital. She was a member of Alpha Xi Delta sorority. The bridegroom graduated from ECU with a degree in industrial technology.

A reception was held at the First Christian Church, Farmville, given by the bride's parents. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Farrior. Mrs. Allen Mooring, sister-in-law of the bride, presided at the guest register.

Mrs. Walter Stanley served cake and Mrs. Harvey Cobb poured punch. Assisting were Mrs. Bobby Everette, Mrs. Roy Peaden, Mrs. Amos Phillips, Mrs. L. S. Willoughby and Mrs. James Blalock.

Niki Peaden distributed rice bags.

Spring flowers were used in decorating and the bride's portrait was displayed.

The bridegroom's parents and his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Homer T. Grant, entertained at a rehearsal dinner at Carraway's Restaurant.

Tables were decorated with candelabra and spring flowers.

A bridesmaids luncheon was held at the home of Mrs. R. S. Lang with Mrs. R. O. Lang and Mrs. J. E. Sermons as assisting hostesses.

The honoree was given a corsage and a gift of crystal.

Special guests included Mrs. C. J. Mooring, Mrs. S. F. Hobgood, Mrs. C. B. Letchworth and Mrs. J. C. Gardner.

Pat's Pointers

Set the stage for carefree days and fun-filled nights wearing your crocheted, cotton mini vest. Let it be your secret that it was really a snap to make and a budget-pleaser, too.

Make it in a glittery gold or snowy white for evening and copy it in soft or bright colors for daywear. Directions for small (6-8), medium (10-12) and large (14-16) are written completely without abbreviations for ease in following.

To obtain directions for crocheting the mini vest, send your request for Leaflet No. PC-8972 with $1.00 and a long, self-addressed envelope to Pat Trexler, "The Daily Reflector," P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or you may order Kit No. K-8972 from Pat Trexler at the same address. Each kit contains cotton "Knit-Cro-Sheen" yarn in your choice of colors and the instruction leaflet. Send check or money order for $8.00 for small size; $9.00 for medium size; $10.00 for large size. Please specify your choice of cream, white, gold, canary yellow, spice or peach.

DEAR PAT: I have made one pullover sweater from a pattern which I like very much, except that the neck opening is so small that it really messes up my hairdo whenever I put it on or take it off. I would like to make another from the same pattern and put a zipper in the back. Trouble is, I don't know how to put a zipper in a hand-knit. Can you help? – PATTY R., ROCHESTER, N.Y.

DEAR PATTY: Although I believe that there are very few unbreakable rules in knitting and crocheting, I do feel that zippers should always be set in by hand, even if the garment is assembled by machine. If pieces are to be blocked, do it before putting in the zipper.

Work a row of single crochet on both edges of the zipper opening and baste the zipper in place before doing the final stitching. Be sure that the two edges meet over the center of the zipper, completely concealing it.

Then, check to see that the zipper lies flat without buckling. When you are satisfied with the appearance, with matching sewing thread, take tiny stitches through the knit or crochet fabric and the zipper.

If you will make these stitches small enough, they will just disappear into the knit or crochet and will be quite invisible.

To make the opening for the zipper, you have a couple of choices. When you come to the point where you are about five inches from the back neck edge, you can divide the back section into two separate sections.

The Surprise By Ford

Everything pointed to former President Gerald Ford being in the race for the Republican presidential nomination.

That was before this weekend. On Saturday Ford, announced that he would not seek the nomination.

It is believed that the former president wanted to make a run, felt that Carter should be replaced as president, and felt that he could win in a race against Carter.

But Ford wanted a clear mandate from his own party before taking on the Democratic president who defeated him four years ago.

That meant some committments from party leaders — offers of clear support for his nomination at the upcoming convention. The committments apparently were not there and Ronald Reagan was rapidly gaining strength through the state primaries.

It is likely that Ford waited too late to develop his own campaign for the nomination. At this stage there would have been a bruising fight that may have left the party splintered, a fight which Ford may have still lost.

So he did what he felt was best for the Republican party. He chose not to make a race for the presidential nomination.

The Chance Is Always There

Virtually every major sports team lives with the possibility that its members could be wiped out in a plane crash.

Teams travel together and if such a disaster falls, they all go.

We still have painful memories of the Marshall University team leaving the area by plane after an East Carolina football game. In a short time, they were all dead, victim of a crash at the Huntington, W. Va. airport.

Friday the U. S. amateur boxing team all met death in a flaming crash at Warsaw, Poland. It is a tragedy for which no one who loves sports is ever prepared.

Adroitness Of Anderson

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

PEORIA, Ill. — As word arrived that newspaper polls had made him the Republican favorite in the Illinois presidential primary, Rep. John Anderson won cheers from Bradley University students by seeming to abandon 15 years of staunch support for nuclear power.

Having just promised to answer questions "just as frankly and as honestly as I can," Anderson was greeted by the first questioner here inquiring about his position on nuclear power. Congressional colleagues had been predicting Anderson's pro-nuke position ultimately would erode his feverish campus constituency. They did not reckon with Anderson's adroitness on the campaign stump.

He accused the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) of failing to meet safety recommendations, adding that until it did, the government should "not grant new operating licenses." Cheers and applause. Criticizing President Carter's proposals for nuclear waste treatment, he declared: "I don't think that's good enough. If you can't do (better), then I don't think we should expand nuclear power." More cheers and applause. Nobody present would have doubted his anti-nuke credentials.

That is part of the pattern that moved Anderson from pathetic obscurity to darling of the national news media and now into contention as leading alternative to Ronald Reagan. Although depicted by admiring news accounts as the only candidate of principle, he tells audiences (mostly on college campuses) only what they want to hear and seeks confrontation only with his enemies. That is not quite St. John.

While deftly fogging his little-known nuclear past, Anderson plays to his collegiate audiences by attacking what he calls Carter's intention to "ultimately" draft men to "protect an (oil) interest that is vital" and pushing the 50-cents-a-gallon gasoline tax that is remarkably popular on campus ("I love it, just love it," enthused an Anderson student booster at the College of Lake County).

In fact, his celebrated clashes with foes sketch less a profile in courage than a profile in political shrewdness, featured by his face-down of the gun lobby in New Hampshire. There has been more of the same in Illinois. He boosted the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) in Alton, home of anti-ERA crusader Phyllis Shlafly. When right-to-life pickets showed up outside Wheaton College, he opened his speech by proclaiming that "I square it (support of abortion rights) with my own Christian conscience." The audiences loved him.

This technique moved New England liberal voters out of Democratic primaries to support Republican Anderson. The difference in Illinois is that in addition, bona fide Republicans are turning to Anderson as the alternative to Reagan.

The process was explained to us by one state legislator, running as an uncommitted national convention delegate who attended one Anderson speech. "All this business about ERA and abortion is hurting John," he said. "But when he gives conservative speeches like today about the balanced budget, he makes it easier for moderates to support him."

Whatever the impression given, however, Anderson is farther from the Republican main line on economic issues than on social questions. Even more abruptly than his softening on nuclear power, he has now totally abandoned his previous highly vocal support of broad-based tax reduction — the principle economic strategy of his party.

Anderson's ravaging of Republican principles while sounding conservative is typified by his proposed budget revision, described in newspaper accounts as an example of Anderson the economic conservative. Actually, its proposed spending cuts of $11.3 billion are relatively insignificant and do not greatly disturb social welfare programs.

Anderson's adjustments on the revenue side are startling: $10.7 billion in revenue increases over and above the Carter budget's $49 billion in new taxes (which Anderson never mentions). Anderson's program even includes a one-year 5 percent surcharge on corporate profits.

Anderson would also slightly reduce the Carter defense budget that other Republican presidential contenders consider deficient. After disposing of the anti-abortion hecklers at Wheaton, he told the audience he would feel more comfortable with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy as president than with Ronald Reagan, and denounced Reagan's "total dependence on arms."

A candidate who comes over as high-taxation, anti-military, anti-nuclear and pro-abortion is understandably congenial to normal Democratic voters who see him as more liberal than Jimmy Carter and more moral than Teddy Kennedy. That genuine Illinois Republicans have now made him the front-runner in their own party primary suggests that either they don't know what John Anderson stands for or in fact really stand for nothing themselves.

THIS AFTERNOON

Money Is Power

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — If all those seeking election to high state offices or the General Assembly in this election year would level with the voters, they would admit that after all is said and done, spending money is about the only important thing left for major policy makers to do.

Laws are passed and programs implemented only with the power of money behind them to make them work. Even the best and most desirable governmental action can be embraced publicly and implemented into law. Without money it is worthless. That happens, on occasion.

And after the program is in place, and even with the money provided to run it, the chief elected officials are out of the picture. Time after time, legislators and even the governor learn that what they had thought was going to be done has been twisted and turned by the personalities of the people running the program and the intricacies of the bureaucracy.

Too Complex

Even the money decisions have gotten so complex and big that chief elected officials have little idea what is really being done. The agency people have full-time staffs of experts to do nothing but figure out how to get and spend the money.

As the cynics like to say: a million here and a million there, and the next thing you know, you're talking about real money.

Novice members of the General Assembly come to town overly impressed with their political importance and intent upon capturing plums for their home districts. What are the chances? Extremely slim. Important decisions about how many dollars and how they will be spent have already been locked in by the system well before the legislators get a look at the budget.

Governmental departments right now are working up their schemes. Lower level bureaucrats are hustling to get their expansions and new ideas into the machinery while upper level bureaucrats are nodding approval here and rejecting proposals there. Then the department heads get into the process, further trimming and rejecting.

Few people ever know what has been proposed but rejected; and the numerous real reasons behind what has been approved. The state's annual $5 billion budget represents about half of the total which agencies seek.

What is left in terms of dollar proposals are fed into the computers so that reams of printouts can be put before Gov. Jim Hunt and his Advisory Budget Commission. More cutting takes place to eliminate another billion or so.

Leaders

Key legislative leaders also sit on the Advisory Budget Commission. Back at the Legislative Building, those officials run the major committees. Any plums which are going to be spread around the state will have been plucked before the proposed budget hits the desks of members of the General Assembly.

That budget will carry the imprint: "Submitted by the Governor and the Advisory Budget Commission." Those who submit the budget, then, will chair the appropriations committee and many of its subdivisions where scrutiny and decisions are to be made. Having already made those decisions as members of the Advisory Budget Commission, the leaders will take the budget where they want it to go and the average legislator has little influence at this point.

Understanding the budget,

Taxes Will Kill You

WASHINGTON — In an inflationary period such as we're going through, homeowners keep saying to each other, "Well, at least the price of our house has kept up."

They shouldn't say this because when the price of your house goes up, so do your residential taxes, and now some of them are higher than the original cost of the home.

Out in our neighborhood almost everyone I know received a new, increased tax estimate on his property of at least 23 percent. The computer that sent the estimate out claimed that the fellow's land across the street had increased 12 percent. Our land, which looks exactly like his land, had gone up 34 percent.

I decided to protest the discrimination.

"How come," I asked the man behind the glass window, "Elderberry's land went up 12 percent and mine went up 34 percent when we both produce the exact same yield of crabgrass?"

"I wouldn't know," the man said.

"Why not?"

"I'm on coffee break."

"Who would know?"

"The lady at the next window might tell you. She's off her coffee break."

I went through the same routine at the next window.

The woman studied the tax estimate I put in front of her, and said, "It seems to be within the guidelines of the formula we use to assess property values."

"What formula is that?" I wanted to know.

"Gerard's. He can come up with any formula."

"Where's Gerard?"

"I don't know. I never met him. But he's a whiz with figures. He can close his eyes and come up with any percentage the city asks him to."

"Does he ever go out and LOOK at the property?"

"I don't think so. He just calls up the real estate offices and tells them he's looking for a house in a certain neighborhood and wants to know how much it will cost. Then he averages out every house in the neighborhood and he gets his formula."

"But real estate agents always lie. They never get the asking price for any house they're selling. Doesn't Gerard at least haggle with them?"

"Gerard's a gentleman. He never haggles with anyone."

"I still don't understand why Elderberry's land only went up 12 percent and mine went up 34 percent when we're practically sitting on the same plot."

ART BUCHWALD

"Maybe Gerald got bored," the lady suggested. "You work with percentages all day long and it gets to you after a while. The only way the city's going to keep a man like Gerard is to let him mix up his figures once in a while."

"Can I make an appointment with Gerard and get an explanation from him?"

"Gerard isn't allowed to see anyone. If someone got to talk to him they might be able to break his formula."

"I'd like to break more than his formula. I know the city's broke and needs money, but there has to be a

To the editor:

Many say that America is still a very powerful nation and still has the military superiority to defeat Russia or any other country, but is that really true?

When Americans were taken hostage by the Iranians, America ordered Iran to free them. That was more than 100 days ago and still there is no change.

The images of America's leaders have changed. At America's military height, the leaders were people with rough, tough, strong images — men like Eisenhower, Patton, MacArthur. Now look who we have — Jimmy Carter, with a smile on his face.

I believe America's decline started with Vietnam. We spent years over there fighting a war many believed we had no right to be in in the first place. That wouldn't have been so bad, except that we were supposed to be much more powerful than them, yet we were fighting a losing battle. The deaths of our troops were tremendous. Still seeing this, we didn't use the Atomic Bomb. Why "Look at Hiroshima," Americans said. Hey, they were our enemies. We weren't supposed to be nice to them.

America overdoes its freedoms, mainly freedom of the press. There are practically no restrictions on what can be said. If Carter were planning a secret mission to rescue the hostages and a journalist found out about it, they would probably put it on nationally televised news. It seems that all they care about is a scoop. A prime example of this was when some fool got hold of the plans for the Atomic Bomb and published them, not thinking of the consequences.

And, in conclusion, I would like to say that I believe that America has become a paper tiger. We depend on small countries for oil, without which we will crumble. We have no authority, nor are we feared any longer. Until we can stand on our own feet, we will never be top dog again.

Strength For Today

CAN HAPPINESS BE BOUGHT?

"Money never brings happiness, does it?" asked the youngster of his father. "No", replied the parent with considerable irony, "it's not the money but the interest on the money."

The parent probably realized that although money enables us to avoid many unpleasant circumstances in life, it can never bring happiness. Anyone who acquires a considerable sum of money after living in pinched financial circumstances is aware of the exhileration and relief that the money brings. Now many more options and avenues of experience are opened up. But lasting happiness does not follow. Indeed, the final result may be disillusionment.

Happiness is the sense of peace and power which grows up in one's life as a result of right actions, right thoughts, and above all, service for others. Happiness is a spiritual matter, and not a financial condition. Therefore it cannot be seized or bought.

Prudent, Responsible Actions?

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The question that concerns Washington today is whether this anti-inflation program, the third or fourth of the Carter years, will be considered prudent and responsible.

Or will it, as many fear, be dismissed as more of the same that failed in the past, or as expedient politics and superficial economics, or mere window dressing for a bankrupt fiscal policy?

Credibility is the issue.

It is difficult to reclaim that credibility for an administration that in the past has promised repeatedly to slay the beast and then, perhaps beause of contradictory policies, observed the beast growing stronger.

Americans undoubtedly will exercise their right to second-guess. They will ask how higher gasoline costs, higher wage standards and higher interest rates can do anything but add to inflation in the short run.

The truth is that a tax on imported crude oil can't restrain inflation if oil companies fail to diminish their use of foreign energy and if American drivers continue to use their cars as before.

If it fails in those goals, it is in fact inflationary, just as higher interest rates are inflationary if they fail to slow, borrowing, and higher wages are inflationary if they do not lead to more productivity.

And what should we make of controls on credit card spending?

That the aim is mainly psychological. What else, when it is aimed at people who borrow a few hundred dollars at a time, and comes just a couple of months after Shell Oil borrowed $3.65 billion for a merger?

Another aspect of the Carter plan, to balance the 1981 budget, has been criticized repeatedly as of little value in restraining inflation, but how that myth began is mysterious and maybe dangerous.

It is true: Many concur in the belief it will have little impact this year — primarily because it is next year's budget. But tight budgets, if maintained for years, are almost certainly anti-inflationary.

Moreover, in this instance also, the psychological effect cannot be discounted. It could be signficant.

Throughout the Carter years, for example, there has been an emphasis on spending and a concurrent worsening of budget deficits, inflation and interest rates. People haven't failed to observe the relationship.

If consistency and responsibility is shown by the federal government the public is likely to become aware of it, and to demonstrate that awareness in greater confidence in the future.

If the past is a criterion, that confidence is likely to be shown in a willingness to save, to forego price and wage increases, and to commit funds far into the future for product development and innovations.

As things stand, many individuals and corporations are looking no farther ahead than next year. To look beyond is to look into darkness. Lenders don't want to lend; investors don't want to invest.

Greater productivity, however, requires long-term commitments. The construction of a mighty, modern, high-technology plant that will lead to lower per-unit costs doesn't take place via short-term borrowing.

It doesn't take place, in fact, unless a company has a fair idea of what to expect from government, workers, lenders, consumers and buyers, and right now nobody can say very much about any of those groups.

If the Carter program is believable and acceptable, even if it has the deadly defect of possibly forcing up inflation over the short term, it can help establish a productive, anti-inflationary environment.

And if it fails? Who can say what even the short-range future holds in such an explosive atmosphere?

One of the possibilities, however, is that the nation might be caught in a catastrophic credit crunch, quickly followed by deep recession.

But whatever happens, and when and to what extent, is likely to be associated with the credibility of government.

Parades For Patrick

Parades in New York and other large cities are just one way in which people traditionally celebrate St. Patrick's Day. Although Patrick has been honored for centuries as the patron saint of Ireland, he was actually born in Britain during the last part of the 4th century. At 16, he was captured by pirates, who took him to Ireland and sold him as a slave. He escaped after six years there, but eventually returned, determined to bring Christianity to the Irish. Many legends grew up about Patrick, including a story that told how he drove all the snakes out of Ireland by charming them into the sea.

Puerto Rico Statehood Said 'Winner'

By LEW WHEATON
Associated Press Writer

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — President Carter narrowly defeated Sen. Edward M. Kennedy in a Democratic presidential primary touted as a vote of confidence for Puerto Rican statehood.

But charges of stuffed ballot boxes and the margin of only 5 percent between the candidates, raised doubts that there was a clear winner.

With almost all the vote counted in the Sunday primary, Carter had a 52 percent to 48 percent edge over the Massachusetts senator in the vote for delegate slates and also in the separate "beauty contest" — a non-binding popular vote.

That gave Carter 21 delegates to Kennedy's 20 and a 304-165 overall lead in the national delegate count. The 152 delegates at stake on Tuesday in Illinois is the most in any single primary so far. It takes 1,666 to win the Democratic nomination.

Kennedy, campaigning in Chicago, attempted to discount another loss calling the slim Puerto Rico defeat "very encouraging," adding "I think our campaign is on the move and we wait for the returns from Illinois."

Former Puerto Rican Gov. Rafael Hernandez Colon, who campaigned hard for Kennedy, said the Carter campaign had been guilty of voting fraud that would eliminate that final margin of about 35,000 votes.

Hernandez Colon pledged to contest the outcome, charging that the Carter campaign had stuffed ballot boxes, gave voters already completed ballots and denied Kennedy poll-watchers access to voting places.

"If there is justice in the processes of the national Democratic party, I have not the slightest doubt that we shall prevail," the former governor said.

But Gov. Carlos Romero Barcelo, who stumped the island from end to end for Carter and urged Puerto Ricans to vote as a first step toward gaining statehood, applauded the outcome.

Although their proxies made statehood an issue, neither Kennedy nor Carter has taken a stand on Puerto Rico's future status.

The turnout of more than 830,000 voters on the island commonwealth was "a loud and clear voice saying we want to participate in the electoral process of the nation...a loud and clear voice for statehood," Romero said.

Less than half the island's 1.9 million registered voters took part compared with 86 percent participation in the last island-wide voting in 1976.

In the voting for slates of delegates which translate to convention delegates, with 98 percent reporting, Carter had 439,374 or 52 percent and Kennedy 403,888 or 48 percent.

In the non-binding or "beauty contest" popular vote, with 99 percent of the precincts counted, Carter had 445,656 or 52 percent; Kennedy 416,103 or 48 percent.

On Saturday, terrorist advocates of independence raided the Chicago campaign offices of Carter and the New York office of Republican candidate George Bush, who won the Feb. 17 Republican primary here. They tied up campaign workers at gunpoint and scrawled independence slogans on walls.

Offer Program On Day Care

The League of Women Voters will present a program on day care Tuesday at 8 p. m. at the First Presbyterian Church, corner of Elm and Fourteenth streets.

For the past several months, a committee under the chairmanship of Edith Rand, has been studying the status of day care in Pitt County as part of a statewide League study. This presentation will mark the culmination of this research.

A panel of citizens will offer views on the subject: Lester W. Anderson, owner of a local day care center; Rachel Fesmire, chief of the Day Care Section of the Dept. of Human Resources; John Lail, director of the Office of Day Care Licensing; John Niblock, executive director of the Governor's Advocacy Council on Children and Youth, and Mrs. Debra Jones, a concerned citizen.

Questions to be answered include: Does North Carolina need a higher standard for licensing? Should educational program be provided? Should the involvement of federal or state government be increased or de-emphasized? Should industries be encouraged to provide day care services?

The public is invited.

No Charges Yet In Death By Cutting

Greenville police are continuing their investigation into a Saturday cutting incident that resulted in the death of a Hopkins Park resident.

Police Chief Glenn Cannon reported that Roosevelt Hardy of 1608-A, Hopkins Park, died at Pitt Memorial Hospital following the incident.

Cannon said that Hardy received knife wounds to the stomach in the cutting affray, which involved William Thomas Tucker, also of the same Hopkins Park address. Tucker was treated at Pitt Memorial for cuts received in the incident, the chief added.

According to the police spokesman, an autopsy was ordered to determine the exact cause of Hardy's death.

Cannon reported that no charges have been filed pending further investigation of the case. He said the police department received a call regarding the incident at 12:20 p.m. Saturday.

Starting at one armhole edge, knit or crochet across half of the stitches. Then, attach another ball of yarn and work across the other half of the stitches with this new ball of yarn. This neatly divides your work in the center back. Continue to work the balance of the back, working each side with its own ball of yarn. Working in this manner allows you to follow the directions as given for the back section, while giving you an opening for the zipper.

I have also seen zippers set into the shoulder seam of a sweater. If you want to do this, sew one shoulder seam and then work the neck ribbing or border all around the neck edge.

Determine the length of opening you need for the zipper and crochet your border that length, including the neckband. After you set in the zipper finish the balance of your seaming as usual.

While on the subject of seaming, here's a little tip I find useful. When a garment has set-in sleeves, I join only the shoulder seams before setting in the sleeve. After the sleeves are stitched into the armhole, the side seams of the body and the underarm seams of the sleeves are sewed.

Farmer Insurance Needs Vary

By BILL HUMPHRIES

RALEIGH — How much insurance do farmers carry? How much — and what types — do they need?

"The insurance of farmers and their families varies greatly because their situations vary, and there are few economic rules of thumb that will be helpful in making such decisions," said Stephen R. Sutter, farm business records specialist with the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service.

But it may be helpful, Sutter said, for the farmer to compare the cost of his insurance program with average expenditures by farm operators with businesses of similar size.

For a group of 50 selected farmers enrolled in the N. C. Extension Farm Business Records Program in 1979, average expenditures for various types of insurance were: life, $746; health, $464; business, $1,522.

Life insurance expenditures ranged from $469 for operators with gross farming receipts of less than $75,000, to $1,237 for those with receipts of more than $175,000.

Expenditures for health insurance averaged $243 for the lowest income group and $466 for those in the highest group. In between, however, were two groups whose health insurance costs averaged $619 and $634.

The cost of business insurance averaged $575 for the lowest income group, $1,231 for the second lowest, $726 for the third group, and $4,406 for those with gross receipts of more than $175,000.

Sutter said most farmers carry some life insurance, and perhaps about half choose also to insure other family members. Life insurance premiums for farm families may exceed the amount paid for such business insurance as fire, liability and other casualty lines.

In the United States in 1978 life insurance per family averaged $35,100 — about double the average disposable income per family that year.

The amount of life insurance in force in North Carolina averaged $32,800 per family in 1978. Premiums paid (excluding credit life on short and intermediate term loans) averaged 3.65 percent of disposable personal income.

"When it comes to personal insurance, it is important for the farm operator to 'know the product,'" Sutter said. "Premium cost can become a large proportion of after-tax farm cash income."

The specialist explained that ordinary life insurance policies basically are of four types: term, straight life, limited-pay life and endowment.

Term insurance is strictly protection, with no investment component attached.

The policy may be for any number of years, and the face amount of the policy is payable on death of the insured — should that occur during the term of the policy.

No cash values accrue under a term policy. For that reason, the cost of term insurance is much lower than for other types.

Straight life insurance is permanent insurance that covers the policyholder's entire lifetime as long as premium payments are met. The contract includes a savings element earning a conservative interest income in addition to the pure protection element.

A limited-pay life policyowner pays premiums for a limited number of years, most commonly for 20, 30 or the number of years to the insured's age 65. Premiums per $1,000 insurance are higher, and cash values build more rapidly than those of straight life policies. Upon payment of the final premium, the policy remains in force at the full face amount.

An endowment policy has a proportionately higher savings element than does the limited-pay contract. Premiums are paid for a specified number of years, after which the policy is said to "mature." The cash value then equals the face value.

Policies that are combinations of the four basic types are frequently sold. One of these is the "family policy," generally a package of straight life on the father and certain amounts of term insurance on the wife and each child.

"The farmer should plan his insurance program carefully so that he will have the types of policies best suited to the needs of himself and his family, and at the lowest practical cost," Sutter said.

Further information on insurance planning for farmers is available from county offices of the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service.

See Boom Town In New Smelter

CLARENDON, N.C. (AP) — The $400 million aluminum smelter Coastal Aluminum Co. plans to build in Big Bay promises to change the small southwest Columbus County community into a boom town.

"Lovers' lanes and whiskey stills, that's most of the tales that have come out of there," said Bernice Stephens, whose husband Paul runs a dry-goods store in nearby Clarendon, population 40. "We've never lived in a boom town. But I guess we're going to find out what it's like, maybe even like in the Old West."

Construction of the plant is expected to get under way by fall. Besides the 1,000 workers at the plant, 2,000 more persons will be needed at the peak of construction during the next two years, said a spokesman for the company's Washington headquarters.

The impact carries over into other sectors. The state Department of Commerce estimates that an equal number of jobs will open in the non-manufacturing sector and in smaller industries that supplement the larger plant.

And Columbus County residents say they can use the jobs because the area's jobless rate was 7.6 percent at the end of January, compared with a statewide rate of 5.9 percent.

"We feel like this is what we've been needing," said Henrie Jordan, executive secretary of the Tabor City Chamber of Commerce. "We've been looking for and wanting industry."

Other Department of Commerce statistics show that industries employing 1,000 workers can be expected to stimulate average increases of $31 million in retail sales and $3.4 million bank deposits within two years of their opening.

Coastal Aluminum has announced it expects to pay a wage average of $5 to $7.50 an hour. The state average for similar jobs is $5.

"We're kind of wondering what this is going to do to our little community," Paul Stephens said. "But everybody I've talked to is glad of it. We might even have to incorporate Clarendon. Even have a mayor."

The Art of Carpeting & Decor
by Larry C. Whitlow

Careful selection of furniture and accessories is essential to any home decor. Regardless of how generous or stingy the space is, certain basic storage and serving units will permit life and even extensive entertaining to be quite comfortable. Try to have at least one chest with lots of drawers and shelves for items such as napkins, stemware, china, flatware and candles; this is essential to any dining room. Among the key serving units should be some kind of food caddy (perhaps a cart on wheels) plus a hot plate that can be plugged into a nearby wall socket. Chairs and tables should be comfortable as well.
You'll find a complete selection of carpeting, and other types of flooring, when you come to us at LARRY'S CARPETLAND INC., 3010 E. 10th St., 758-2300. Couristan and Calloway area rugs, oriental rugs and wall to wall carpeting by Milliken, Lee and Georgian are available. We also handle Armstrong, Congoleum and Mannington vinyl. Hours: Mon. thru Fri. 9 am-5:30 pm, Sat. 9 am-1 pm.
DECORATING TIP:
Lap trays are now quite fashionable as individual totes at buffet dinners.

Farm Scene

Few people want to sell, but many want to buy. That statement sums up the situation in the farm real estate market.

To a large degree, it explains why the price of farmland has nearly tripled in North Carolina in the past dozen years, and has more than tripled on a national basis.

Just during the 12 months that ended in February 1979, land prices rose 18 percent in the state and 14 percent nationally. The average value of North Carolina farmland February 1, 1979 was $819 per acre. The national average was $559. These figures are estimates compiled from semi-annual surveys by the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture.

Value per acre ranged from $100 in New Mexico to $2,222 in New Jersey. Among major farming acres, the highest per-acres values were in the corn belt states — $1,458 in Illinois, $1,516 in Ohio, $1,498 in Indiana and $1,458 in Iowa. In Pennsylvania, Delaware, and Maryland values also were high, ranging from $1,245 to $1,799 per acre.

During the current year, USDA said the value of farmland is expected to rise at about last year's 14 percent rate. The forecast in part reflects further improvement in farm income and a higher general inflation rate.

Farm enlargement accounted for 63 percent of all farmland purchased during the past year. Many farm owners who purchase highway expensive machinery and equipment find it necessary to expand operations in order to hold down their cost per unit of production.

The Bureau of Census now defines a farm as a place with annual agricultural product sales of $1,000 or more. Under this definition, since 1975 the United States has lost 161,180 farms and now has a total of just over 2.3 million operating units.

Nationally, farms now average nearly 400 acres in size. In North Carolina, the number of farms as currently defined has dropped 105,000 in 1975 to 99,000 this year. Land in farms now totals 12.4 million acres — down 100,000 acres from the total four years ago.

Based on these USDA statistics, the average size of Tar Heel farms is now 125 acres — nearly double the average farm size in the state in the early 1950's.

With the sharp and continuing rise in land prices and the steady expansion in farm size, the average value of farm real estate per operating unit has skyrocketed.

Hike Target Farm Prices

The Senate and House have both approved a bill which will raise target prices for 1980 crop wheat and corn to 7 percent above the 1979 level.

A limit of $100,000 was placed on disaster aid payments and farmers will be required to plant within normal crop acreage to achieve program benefits. The 1979 target price for wheat was $3.40 and the bill raises that to $3.63. The 1979 target for corn was $2.20 and it was raised to $2.35. The secretary of agriculture was given authority to raise 1981 crop targets another 7 percent.

Master of N.C. state Grange Lloyd M. Massey said this action is a move in the right direction, but he questions the percentage when inflation is running at about 15 percent annually.

The Senate passed S-2269 increasing from $4 billion to $6 billion the lending authority for economic emergency loans to farmers and extended the Emergency Agricultural Credit Adjustment Act to Sept. 30, 1981.

Senate and House Conferees have reached an agreement on a synthetic fuels corporation. The corporation will have the authority to spend $20 billion in federal loans in loan guarantees for synthetic fuel purchases, to stimulate production of synthetic fuels to replace imported oil.

Tailored To Fit Farmers' Needs

Farmers who need more insurance protection for their crops than has been available in the past are getting good news from USDA's Federal Crop Insurance Corporation.

"But here's also good news for the farmer who needs only enough insurance for specific purposes, said Betty Lou Jones, FCIC office representative.

New insurance policies being written for 1980 crops have been designed to enable each policyholder to tailor his protection to his financial needs, according to Miss Jones. A farmer can now choose, from a range of alternatives, what yield level he wants to be guaranteed and how much he wants to be paid for any losses.

The upper limits of coverage permit 20 percent more protection for corn and 40 percent more protection for soybeans than was available a year ago, the FCIC representative said. By selecting and paying less than the maximum coverage, a farmer can now purchase insurance to cover specific financial obligations.

"For example, a policyholder may want to carry only enough insurance to guarantee the repayment of his current production loans plus interest. Or he may want insurance to cover all his debt payment obligations for the year. Or if he is cash renting land, he may want insurance equal to his rent payments. The point is that the policies this year give him the flexibility to buy the level of insurance protection that he decides he wants," Miss Jones said.

She urges all Pitt County farmers to take the time to find out what protection is available to them on their 1980 crops and what it would cost. "With production costs and interest rates now at the highest levels in history, an uninsured crop disaster could have a devastating financial impact for most farmers."

Crop insurance information can be obtained without obligation by contacting the Pitt County Federal Crop Insurance office which is located in Room 103 of the Federal Building, Greenville.

Fire Heavily Damages Raleigh Newspaper Plant

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Machinists at the News and Observer of Raleigh say they took a variety of precautions while welding on the press Sunday, but their efforts were not enough to prevent a fire in the pressroom.

A spark from a welding torch touched off the fire and sent clouds of black smoke billowing through the building. About 24 reporters, editors and telephone operators were sent coughing from the building, typewriters and news stories in hand.

One employee was injured and one fireman was treated for smoke inhalation in the blaze, which started about 1 p.m. About 45 firemen from the Raleigh Fire Department extinguished the blaze by about 5 p.m.

John W. Holder Jr., a machinist, said he and three other employees were working to install an ink de-mister on the 12-unit press when the fire broke out.

He said the men had put paper on the floor, wrapped parts of the press with cardboard and soaked the paper and cardboard with water as was customary.

"We took the damndest precautions you have ever seen," Holder said. "One spark caught on the press web — a 58-inch-wide sheet of paper that feeds into the press — and began to spread. In no time at all, they scattered and sparks were all over the building."

Employees tried to fight the fire with a garden hose and fire extinguishers, but were unsuccessful. Fire Chief Rufus Clifton said the presses were so hot that new, smaller fires continued to break out.

The fire heavily damaged eight units of the 12-unit, three-level press. Publisher Frank Daniels Jr. said that if all 12 units of the press had to be replaced, it would cost between $12 and $14 million.

He said the newspaper's computer also was damaged by the fire.

"It's too early to try to give any kind of accurate estimate of damage," he said after examining the pressroom by flashlight after the power in the building was cut off.

While firemen fought the blaze, employees of the newspaper scrambled to put together today's paper in makeshift offices nearby. Writers used telephones and typewriters in the Raleigh Police Department offices across the street and The Associated Press office, located next door to the News and Observer building.

Stories were sent by computer from the Associated Press to The Durham Herald and The Durham Sun facilities, where other News and Observer employees put together the paper.

The Durham newspaper printed today's eight-page edition, which contains no advertisements.

Daniels said late Sunday that he expected The Raleigh Times to print its Monday afternoon edition at the Durham facilities while The News and Observer would print its Tuesday morning edition at the Fayetteville Publishing Company in Fayetteville.

He said the staff would try to use The News and Observer offices. Daniels said he and company officials would evaluate the situation in detail today.

Injured in the Sunday blaze was Walter "Scrubby" Eason, a composing-room employee. Eason suffered smoke-inhalation innjuries when he was trapped on top of the building after climbing to the top of an exterior, closed-in fire escape.

Eason knocked out part of a window and called for help. Firemen pulled the unconscious man onto the roof of an adjoining building. Eason was taken to Rex Hospital, but a spokesman for the News and Observer said Eason was not seriously hurt.

Fireman Michael Frinks also was admitted to Rex Hospital for treatment of smoke inhalation.

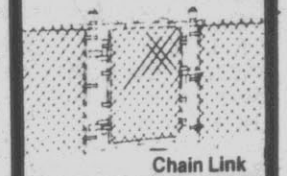

Harold King, a technician in the computer room, strapped on an oxygen tank and returned to the burning building to retrieve some computer programs critical to putting out the paper.

His oxygen gave out and he lost consciousness shortly after he crawled out a second-story window onto a parking deck. King was not taken to the hospital.

Sports writer Chip Alexander said he heard a fire alarm go off on the third floor about 1 p.m.

"I was talking on the phone when I heard the buzzer," Alexander said. "I hung up and I heard people yelling in the stairwell. I walked down to the next landing and saw smoke billowing up. At that point, I checked to see if there was anyone else in the newsroom, then I got out."

Daniels said a fire in the early part of the century burned the News and Observer to the ground.

Legislature Has Many Insurance Men

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — With state regulation of automobile insurance rates still a pressing political issue in North Carolina, an interesting fact has recently been supplied by the insurance industry.

North Carolina's Legislature, which has been a battleground for the insurance rate fights, has a larger percentage of members who earn their living through insurance than any state legislature in the country.

That is the finding of the Insurance Information Institute, a New York-based group supported by the insurance industry.

Its two-year survey of the membership of state legislatures found that 11 percent of North Carolina's 170-member 1979 General Assembly were employed in the insurance business — either as agents, brokers or company employees.

That figure compares, the institute said in a recently published booklet, with a national average of 5 percent for insurance-related persons in state legislatures. By contrast, neighboring Virginia was among the three states with the fewest insurance representatives — making up only 1 percent of its legislature.

The number of insurance representatives was up during the last session by 2 percent over the number in the 1977 session.

That was the year that Insurance Commissioner John Ingram lost his first major battle with the Legislature, when it enacted a bill removing most of the commissioner's power to block requests for rate hikes involving automobile policies.

Last year's session turned back an appeal by Ingram to return that power and left the entire rate-making dispute to simmer — and to become a potential political issue in the 1980 elections for governor and insurance commissioner.

Ingram and his allies protested during both sessions that insurance lobbyists and insurance agents in the General Assembly — who supported the bill reducing his powers — had too much influence over the rest of the Legislature.

The insurance industry group also compared the number of legislators who are in other occupations, and found North Carolina's Legislature has greater representation by lawyers and by women than the national average.

Lawyers, it found, make up 21 percent of North Carolina's General Assembly and 20 percent of the state legislatures nationally, while the 10 women in the state House and Senate make up 12 percent. Nationally the figure for women is 10 percent.

Nationally and in North Carolina the number of lawyers in legislatures is decreasing, a point that was of concern at a conference of N.C. Bar Association leaders in Raleigh last week. In North Carolina's General Assembly, the percentage of lawyers has fallen by one-third in four years.

"The number of lawyer-legislators has been dwindling away," said John Jr. Haworth, president of the association.

Real Norma Rae Still Struggling

CRYSTAL LEE SUTTON gathers her thoughts during an interview in Los Angeles. (AP Laserphoto)

By ROGER GILLOTT
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The movie "Norma Rae" has a happy ending. After a bitter struggle, the union wins the right to represent workers in a powerful Southern textile mill.

But for Crystal Lee Sutton, on whose life the movie was patterned, the struggle is far from over.

She says seven years after she was fired as a union agitator and six years after the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union won a representation election at J.P. Stevens' mill in Roanoke Rapids, N.C., the workers still have no contract.

She hasn't received a penny from the book based on her life or the film adapted from it. Negotiations are under way on a proposal by 20th Century Fox to give her $25,000 for a movie that has earned four Academy Award nominations and $12.5 million in box office receipts.

Undaunted, the soft-spoken mother of three is on a six-month nationwide campaign against the nation's second largest textile maker.

"I consider myself a weapon," she says. "Never before has the union had such a powerful weapon to focus public attention on the J.P. Stevens boycott."

The message she delivers at rallies and meetings and lectures is: "The union is the only hope the workers in the mills have."

At a benefit Sunday in Hollywood sponsored by the Screen Actors Guild, more than 1,000 people, including many film celebrities, honored Mrs. Sutton, who for the first time met Sally Fields, who played her in the movie.

The group was temporarily evacuated after a telephoned bomb threat.

Since 1963, Stevens has been involved in 1,000 labor law violations involving more than 2,000 workers. In August 1977, the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals branded the company "the most notorious recidivist in the field of labor law." And the National Labor Relations Board is seeking a rarely used temporary injunction to force Stevens to bargain in good faith.

But the union has made little headway.

Mrs. Sutton hopes the battle in Roanoke Rapids will be settled this year. "If it isn't, we'll just have to find the strength to keep on fighting. It's the only hope those in the mills have."

Mrs. Sutton is working on a sequel to "Norma Rae" with Barbara Kopple, the documentary specialist whose biggest success has been the Oscar-winning "Harlan County, U.S.A." about coal-mine workers.

This time she has control over the script, which she says will make the new movie truer to the spirit of the union's struggle.

Take Payment In Tax Refunds

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Some taxpayers who owe money to various state agencies won't have to worry about paying those debts. State revenue officials may have solved that problem.

The officials, using a little-known and never-before-used program, are taking money from tax refunds and applying it to outstanding debts. The state revenue officials expect to collect nearly $375,000 in outstanding debts.

The "Debt Setoff Program," initiated by the 1979 General Assembly, authorizes the state Department of Revenue to serve as a clearinghouse in collecting delinquent accounts.

The largest list of debtors comes from the Department of Human Resources' child-support program, the 16 state-supported colleges, a student-loan program and state hospitals.

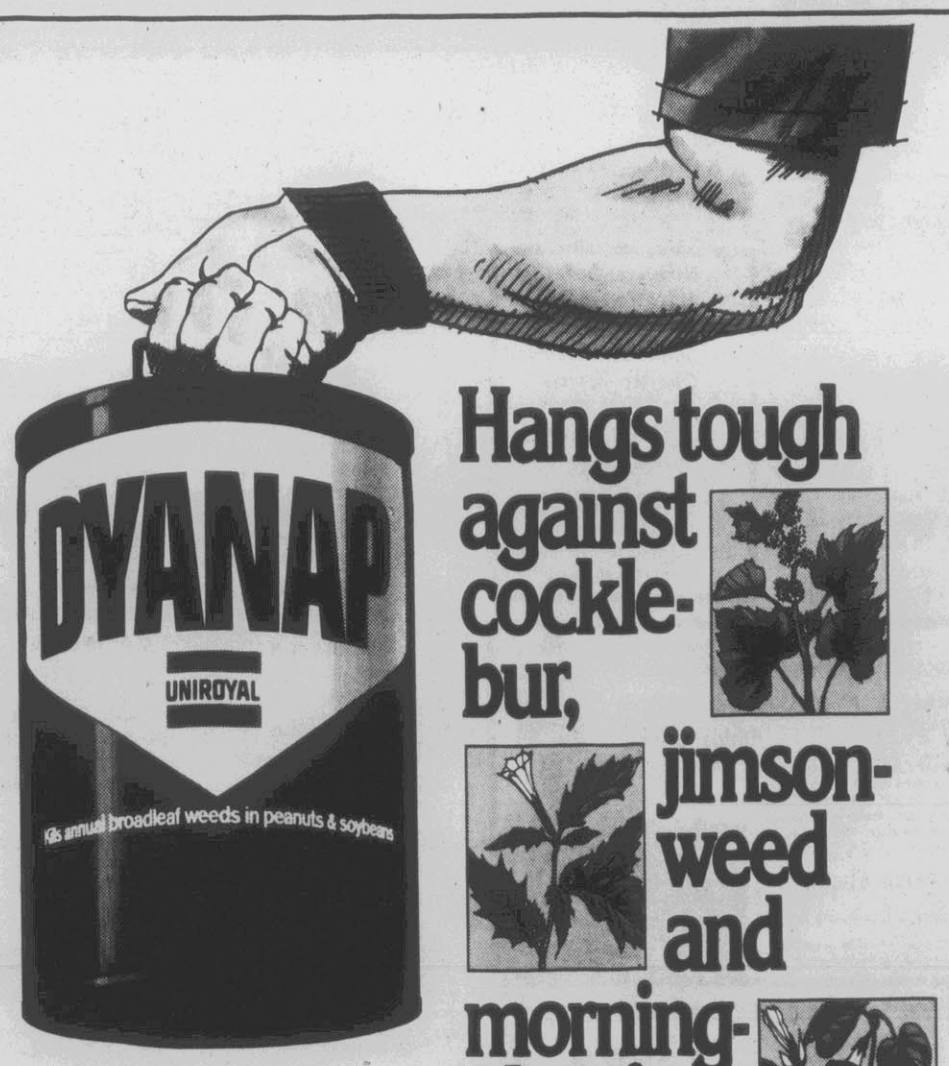

Keith Goodson, an assistant revenue secretary, says agencies have filed about 20,000 claims this year.

"Eventually, by June, we will have sent out some 8,000 or 9,000 letters," Goodson said. "We'll probably have that many people on the list who would be due refunds."

Goodson said the department uses computers to compare lists of debtors with lists of taxpayers due refunds.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined today in the first trading since President Carter's announcement of his new anti-inflation plans.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 7.42 at 804.27 in the first half hour.

Losers outnumbered gainers by a 5-3 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Gold prices dropped and the dollar rose sharply in world markets following Carter's speech late Friday, in which he called for a variety of budget-balancing and credit-restraining measures, as well as a new import fee on gasoline.

But the stock market's initial reaction was negative.

Analysts said Carter's plans heightened expectations of a recession and "credit crunch" in the months ahead. Those concerns have been building since mid-February, and stock prices have declined in each of the last five weeks.

Oil stocks were mostly lower. Gulf Oil lost ⅞ to 42¼; Conoco ¼ to 46⅝, and Standard Oil of California 1 to 72½.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average edged up 2.13 to 811.69.

But declines outnumbered advances by a 4-3 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 35.18 million shares, against 33.07 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index lost .13 to 60.07.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off 4.08 at 262.03.

Brinkley said the bicyclists who were riding on the right side of the road were approached from behind by a southbound car which was attempting to pass the youngsters. The investigator said Kilpatrick pulled into the path of the passing car and was knocked from the bicycle.

The driver of the car was identified by the trooper as Brenda Hines, of Rt. 1, Winterville.

No charges were made in the 3:10 p.m. accident.

Members of the Winterville Rescue squad responded to the call.

The Penobscots voted 234-to-118 Saturday in favor of the settlement, which would be paid for by the federal government, an Indian spokesman said. Strike Idles Work At CP&L Nuclear Plant

SOUTHPORT, N.C. (AP) — A strike that has idled most of the 800 Yeargin Construction Co. employees working at Carolina Power & Light Co.'s Brunswick Nuclear Plant continued today.

Citing what they claimed were unsafe working conditions, inadequate pay and lack of benefits, most of the Yeargin workers went on strike Saturday, said Ron DeHart, one of six representatives chosen by the workers Saturday. He said all but about 50 workers and Yeargin's supervisory personnel at the plant are honoring the workers' picket lines

The strikers are asking for a $2 per hour cost-of-living pay boost plus $1 per hour extra for all employees working in hazardous areas of the plant.

"There are places where 6 to 10 inches of water is standing in places where we're working," said DeHart. "They're exposing us to this and expect us to work in it 10 to 12 hours a day with no compensation.

"If they have to pay an additional $1, they will be forced to clean up some of that mess," he added.

Mac Harris, a CP&L spokesman, said as far as he could determine, it's unlikely anyone has been working in contaminated areas.

"There is water in the plant, in certain areas, not standing day after day, but there may be water spilled from time to time. I can't say whether anyone has or has not worked in any water," he said.

"But the company and the industry have very strict regulations about working men in hazardous areas. If there is an area where there's a potential radiation hazard, a health physicist would have to check the area before anyone would be allowed to go there," Harris said.

Harris said the Yeargin firm is making some low-priority modifications ordered by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission at the plant. He said that one of the plant's two units is down for regular maintenance and refueling while the other unit remains in operation and has not been affected by the strike.

Four Youths Hurt In Traffic Wreck

FARMVILLE — Four Farmville youths were injured in a wreck here Sunday at 12:45 a.m.

The accident occurred at the intersection of East Wilson and Pitt streets and involved vehicles driven by Paul Howard LaGant, 21, of 305 Grimmersburg Street, Farmville and Richard Earl Carney, 23, of Bell Arthur. LaGant was charged with failure to yield right of way at a stop sign and careless and reckless driving, Farmville Police said.

Carney and his two passengers were not injured, but LaGant and all three of his passengers were injured. Passengers Betty Gray Creekmur, 16, of 505 E. Horne Avenue, and Cheryl Ann Catlette, 17, of 106 Allen Acres, Farmville, are patients in the critical care unit of Pitt County Memorial Hospital, the police said it is understood. Passenger Marvin Lee Wilkerson, 20, of 506 E. Wilson Street, Farmville, is also a Pitt Memorial patient. Police said they understand LaGant was treated at the hospital, but is no longer a patient there.

Patrolman Byron M. Highland III investigated the accident and patients were transported to the hospital by the Farmville Rescue Squad.

Debris In The Making

Earnhardt Takes Atlanta 500

HAMPTON, Ga. (AP) — Young men grow up quickly in the pressure-packed world of stock car racing.

It was the young lions who took the spoils Sunday in the Atlanta 500 Grand National stock car race, with Dale Earnhardt beating Rusty Wallace across the finish line to win the $36,200 top prize.

It was an unlikely daily double.

Earnhart, 28, was the 1979 NASCAR Rookie of the Year, while the 23-year-old Wallace, in his first Grand National race, was the top rookie last year on the U.S. Auto Club stock car circuit.

And Earnhardt, suffering from a shortage of horsepower in his Chevrolet Monte Carlo due to a compression problem, started 31st in the 41-car field. He took a chance, though, and came up with his second Grand National victory.

Driving smoothly on the Atlanta International Raceway oval, and taking full advantage of seven caution flags and some quick pit stops, Earnhardt quickly moved into contention.

But it was veterans Cale Yarborough and Bobby Allison who appeared in control most of the way. Yarborough led 183 of the 328 laps, while Allison roared to a seven-second lead with 50 laps to go.

At that point, Earnhardt began using Yarborough's draft to his advantage and the two sliced into Allison's lead.

The younger driver finally zoomed past both of them with 28 laps to go and went on to finish a distant 9.8 seconds ahead of Wallace.

"Cale had some kind of problem and suddenly lost power and Bobby's engine was missing. I just went by them.

"Then Jake (crew chief Jake Elder) told me the tire engineers were saying we wouldn't make it the rest of the way on the tires we were using," Earnhardt said.

"He asked me if I wanted to take the chance. I asked him if we had enough fuel, he said we did and I said, 'Let's do it.'"

Elder added, "If you want to be a superstar, sometimes you have to take chances. They were down to the fabric, but I figure those tires had another 10 laps in 'em."

"We knew we were under a handicap because of the horsepower problem and being back so far at the start," Earnhardt chimed in. "So I just drove it as smooth and hard as I could run it."

Allison slipped to third, followed by Dave Marcis and Dick Brooks. Yarborough fell all the way to eighth.

Wallace, who is driving for car owner Roger Penske, who does not campaign the NASCAR circuit fulltime, said, "I knew I had the equipment to do it, but I never thought in my entire life we'd take a new car and a new driver in our first Grand National race and finish up near the top.

"I hope to be back in NASCAR real soon, but Roger has been talking about only running five races this year. Maybe this will change things some."

Cavs Hold Off Pirates

By WOODY PEELE

The University of Virginia used a potent hitting attack to stake itself to a big lead, then managed to snuff out an East Carolina rally just in time Sunday, gaining an 11-9 victory.

"It's a shame," East Carolina Coach Hal Baird said. "You're supposed to win when you score nine runs.

"But they hit just about everything we threw up there, and they hit them in the holes. We only made one error all day long, they just hit so well."

Overall, Virginia managed 18 hits, only two of them for extra bases. The Pirates got only nine hits, but seven of them were extra-base hits, including four home runs.

The Pirates never gave up, however, struggling back to score four runs and have the tieing run at the plate when the game ended

Virginia was helped along by outstanding fielding, including three double plays.

The Cavaliers showed what kind of a day it was going to be early. Steve Heon greeting starting hurler Mickey Britt with a first-pitch triple to left center. Heon later scored when Jay West grounded out to second.

East Carolina tied it up in the bottom of the second with their first home run of the game. That came when lead-off batter Raymie Styons collected his third boomer of the season, a towering shot that cleared the pines in left.

The Pirates charged ahead for the only time in the game in the third, scoring twice. Butch Davis led off with a bloop double to center. The ball fell in between the centerfielder and the two infield middlemen, and no one covered second as the alert Davis kept going. Kelly Robinette walked and Billy Best followed with a double to right center, scoring both runners. That gave the Pirates a 3-1 lead.

It proved short-lived.

Virginia came right back with two in the top of the fourth, knotting it at 3-3. Jeff Musser opened with a single to center and George Priftis walked. Bill Cropper singled through the middle, scoring Musser and moving Priftis to third. He scored from there on a sacrifice fly by Chuck Mangum.

The Cavs pushed over two more in the fifth to take the lead for good. Heon opened the frame with a single off Rick Ramey, who had come in a relief of Britt in the third. After a sacrifice, West got new life when his foul fly was dropped by Rick Derechailo. He then followed that up with a run-scoring single to center and stole second. With two away, Priftis singled to score West, giving the Wahoos a 5-3 lead.

In the sixth, the Cavs tacked two more runs to their lead, upping it to 7-3. Mel Barbee reached on a slow roller to third and was sacrificed up. Heon singled to right and Mark Meleski walked, loading the bases. West grounded to the infield, getting Meleski, but scoring Barbee. Musser then singled in Heon with the seventh Virginia run.

East Carolina finally got back on the board in the bottom of the sixth, scoring once. That came on a home run by Derechailo—unfortunatly just after a double play had cleared the bases.

The Pirates went on to load the bases and chase starter West Lescanec before finally being retired in the frame.

The eighth inning proved to be the decisive one for the Cavs, as they added four more runs, taking an 11-4 lead.

With two away, West singled as did Musser. Priftis added a third straight hit, scoring West. Reliever Mike Williams opened with a walk to Cropper, loading the bases, and Mangum doubled in all three runners with a blast to left center. He was cut down, however, trying to stretch it into a triple.

The Pirates lopped one off that lead in the bottom of the eighth to trail 11-5. Styons opened with a walk and Derechailo doubled. John Hallow grounded out, but the play allowed Styons to score from third.

Finally, in the ninth, the Pirates came to life with a big inning, but it didn't prove quite big enough. Davis reached when Priftis' throw from third on his grounder was off target. With one away, Best then cracked a home run to right, trimming it to 11-7.

Styons walked and Robert Wells came on to run for him, scoring when Derechailo cracked out his second home run of the game, also to right. That closed it to 11-9.

Macon Moye, playing for the first time since his recovery from scarlet fever, drew a walk with two away, but Doug Erbaugh came on to fan Mike Sage and end the rally still two runs short.

It was a hitters' day all around. Musser had four to pace the Wahoos, while Heon, Priftis and Cropper each had three and West had two.

For the Pirates, Best and Derechailo each banged out three.

The loss left the Pirates at 5-2, giving them their second straight loss. Virginia climbed to 4-1-1 on the year.

East Carolina was to face the University of Richmond in a single game at 1 p.m. today. They hit the road again after that, traveling to William & Mary on Wednesday, Virginia on Friday and Richmond on Saturday. They return home next Sunday against Ohio University.

NCAA Final Four

Louisville Survives, Three Others Surprise

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Question: Does "Final Four" mean the final four survivors or the last four teams admitted to the crowded 48-team NCAA basketball tournament?

Answer: Thanks to the presence of second-ranked Louisville it's the former, but the latter wouldn't be too bad a guess.

Joining the Cardinals of Louisville in the NCAA semifinals at Indianapolis next weekend are — surprise! — Purdue, No.20 in The Associated Press' final regular-season rankings but only third in the Big Ten standings; unranked Iowa, the Big Ten's fourth-place quintet, and unranked UCLA, once college basketball's greatest dynasty but only the fourth best team in the Pacific-10 Conference this season.

"We've been crossed off the list many, many times," Iowa Coach Lute Olson said after his 23-8 Hawkeyes erased a 14-point second-half deficit and nipped 11th-ranked Georgetown 81-80 for the championship of the East Regional at Philadelphia.

The Hawkeyes opponent next Saturday will be Louisville, 31-3, which shrugged off the loss of All-American guard Darrell Griffith for half the game with foul trouble and stomped third-ranked Louisiana State 86-66 with a blistering second-half assault to capture the Midwest Regional at Houston. The winners only led 31-29 at the intermission.

The other semifinal will match Purdue, 22-9, and UCLA, 21-9, which posted impressive triumphs on Saturday. Purdue won the Mideast Regional at Lexington, Ky., bumping 14th-ranked Duke 68-60, while UCLA ousted Clemson 85-74 in the West Regional at Tucson, Ariz.

Next Saturday's winner will meet for the NCAA championship on Monday night, March 24. And just in case you're wondering, the most losses ever for an NCAA champion was Marquette's seven in 1977.

Iowa trailed Georgetown 42-32 at halftime and only Vince Brookins' 16 points kept the Hawkeyes that close. It became 46-32 early in the second half before Iowa rallied behind 6-foot-10 reserve Steve Waite.

He came off the bench with the score 64-54 and scored 13 of his 15 points in the last 11 minutes, including a tiebreaking three-point play — a basket from underneath and a free throw after Georgetown called two timeouts — with five seconds to play that gave Iowa an 81-78 lead.

"My first thought was to pass the ball back to a shooter," Waite said of his game-winning play. Fortunately for Iowa, he thought better of it.

"I don't believe in setting up a play for one person at the conclusion of a game," Olson explained. "If the other team goes into a zone, we go into our regular zone attack. If they go man-to-man, we attack that. I just wanted a shot in the last five seconds."

Brookins finished with 22 points while Eric Floyd had 31 for Georgetown, which saw the nation's longest winning streak snapped at 15 games.

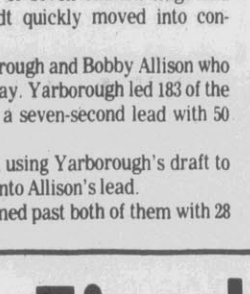

"Any time a team comes out of its region and plays like Iowa, they deserve all the credit," said Georgetown Coach John Thompson.

Louiville's Griffith, who picked up his first personal just two seconds into the game against LSU, sat out 14 minutes of the first half, scoring only four points. But he ignited the Cardinals' second-half surge

Former East Carolina assistant basketball coach Terry Kunze's Minnesota Fillies of the Women's Basketball League were recently featured in "Sports Illustrated."

The Fillies, while fighting the lack of support at the box office, have been molded into a winner by Kunze during the season so far. They have consistantly been right at the top of their division, and at lastest report were on top.

According to the article, the big problem has been the lack of support by the St. Paul-Minneapolis fans.

"Through all this," the article continues, "the Fillies have continued to play basketball, better this season than last and better most weeks than the week before. Kunze's coaching has been a large part of the difference."

The owners of the team are hopeful that the team will begin to catch on more. At any rate, Kunze appears to be doing the job for them.

East Carolina University's Stan Curry, Carlton Bell, Otis Melvin and Shawn Laney deserve a strong pat on the back and a standing ovation for their third place finish in the NCAA indoor mile relay finish.

Nothing in East Carolina history matches that performance, giving the school its highest finish even in Division I competition. They went against the best—and for the most part it wasn't just the country's but the world's best—and did the job.

The university and the community should be justly proud of these fine young men and their coach, Bill Carson.

The community can also be proud of the Lady Pirate swimming team, which placed 13th nationally in the AIAW Division II meet which wound up Saturday night.

The Pirates carried 11 women to the nationals, and eight of them placed high enough in their individual and relay events to earn All-American honors.

A fine windup for two good seasons for the track men and "swimmin' wimmin."

Cinderella is going to the ball.

But when she gets there, she's going to think she's seeing double—make that triple.

With the victories by UCLA, Purdue and Iowa in the Regional finals, only Louisville can be said to be an "expected" team in the final four for the NCAA tournament.

Now—for today's trivia question. What player and what coach have been there before—but for different teams?

Floyd Beats Nicklaus At Doral In Playoff

MIAMI (AP) — Jack Nicklaus admitted he was disappointed in his playoff loss to Ray Floyd in the Doral Open Golf Tournament, but found a few bright spots.

"Obviously, I'm disappointed," said Nicklaus, who came so very close to ending his 20-month non-winning string Sunday but had to settle for what might have been.

"But the important thing is that I played a whole good tournament. From a mental standpoint, this is going to help me as the year goes on. It's pretty encouraging."

After twice holding the lead in the final round, he was a loser again when Floyd capped a dramatic shootout by chipping in for a birdie on the second hole of a sudden death playoff.

"I'm flabbergasted," said the delighted Floyd, who acquired $45,000 and the 12th title of his career.

Nicklaus was looking at a birdie putt of his own — which Floyd was convinced he would make — when Raymond stroked the delicate little shot from the short rough on the 16th hole on the Blue Monster course at the Doral Country Club.

Nicklaus missed and one of the more dramatic finishes in recent years was complete.

Nicklaus appeared on the verge of winning in the dramatic run down the windswept stretch. Both he and Floyd executed some remarkable saves, and some equally remarkable birdies, in one of golf's most exciting finishes in recent years.

Both made scrambling pars, Floyd with an eye-opening high hook over trees from deep trouble and Nicklaus from within 18 inches of a bank that dropped off into a pond, on the 72nd hole.

That finished off a 69 for Nicklaus and a 66 — the best round of the tournament — for Floyd. They finished regulation play at 279, nine shots under par.

Texasn Keith Fergus once had the lead alone. That was after his chip-in eagle-3 on the 10th hole. He finished with a 70 and missed the playoff by a single shot at 280.

It was three more strokes back to Wayne Levi at 72-283. Ed Fiori played the last 18 in 70 and tied Ben Crenshaw at 284. Crenshaw had a 71.

Cavaliers Face Runnin' Rebels

NEW YORK (AP) — Nevada-Las Vegas owns a 23-7 record, the best of any of the four teams in the semifinals of the 43rd annual National Invitation Tournament tonight at Madison Square Garden, but Jerry Tarkanian, coach of the Running Rebels, is puzzled.

"I'm wondering about the caliber of competition we've faced and whether we've been up against as tough as schedule as other teams," said Tarkanian, whose squad opposes Virginia, 22-10, in the windup of the double-header.

A pair of Big Ten conferences rivals, Minneosta, 20-10, and Illinois, 21-12, battle in the opener. The consolation and title contests are set for Wednesday.

"My team is very young," continued Tarkanian, "and it's only been the last six weeks that we started to put things together.

"Right now we're playing well, but I'm not sure how good we are becasue of the competition we've faced. Natutrally, I'm pleased to be in the NIT and also have the opportunity to play a team from the Atlantic Coast Conference."

That team from the ACC kept the NIT from being a Big Ten postseason tournament.

Virginia beat Michigan 79-68 in the quarterfinals behind 7-foot, 4-inch freshman sensation Ralph Sampson who scored 26 points, pulled down 12 rebounds and blocked five shots for the Cavaliers, the only ACC team of six still alive in tournament competition.

The Running Rebels, ignored by the NCAA becasue they just came off a one-year probation, are led by New York-born freshman Sidney Green, the team's top scorer, 16 points per game, and rebounder, 11 per contest.

In last week's 67-62 semifinal victory over St. Peter's, Green was hampered by foul trouble and only saw 15 minutes of action in which he tallied just four points. Michael Burns, scored 18 points and grabbed 11 rebounds against the Peacocks to bring Vegas to Madison Square Garden.

Minnesota has excellent height in 6-11 Kevin McHale, a senior with a 18.4 average, and 7-2 freshman Randy Breuer, who registered 18 points in the 94-73 rout of Southwestern Louisiana in the quarterfinals.

ECU Tennis Team Opens With UNC-W

By WOODY PEELE

East Carolina University's men's tennis team will open the 1980 spring season on Tuesday, travling to UNC-Wilmington.

The match will be the first of a four-day, four-match opening that includes meetings with N.C. State and Atlantic Christian sandwiched around the road opener with the Seahawks and another road match at N.C. Wesleyan.

Overall, there will be nine matches during the first 13 days of the schedule, and 11 over a 16-day string in April.

Several veterans return from last year's team, and Coach Jon Rose, in his first year as the men's coach, is hopeful of a winning season.

"We're not loading the schedule up with so many of the very strong teams, so we hope that we will be able to improve on the record."

For Rose, it will be his first effort as tennis coach. He also coaches the women's gymnastic team at ECU.

"We have some good talent. We had a good fall season and a good winter training period, and we are raring to go."

Kenny Love, who will serve as captain of the team this year, is ranked number one on the team, followed by Keith Zengel, Henry Hostetler, freshman Ted Lepper, Curtis Tedesco and Mark Byrd in the top six. "These could change, however, since we have several others who could break in," Rose said.

Those include Barry Parker, a junior out for the first time; Steve Peterson, Norman Bryant and Rob Edmundson.

"As far as our doubles are concerned, that may be changing too. They are not quite set as yet, and of course, will be subject to change during the year," the coach said.

The complete schedule for the Pirates:

March 18 at UNC-Wilmington; 19 N.C. State; 20 Atlantic Christian; 21 at N.C. Wesleyan; 23 Greensboro; 24 at Campbell; 26 St. Augustine's; 28 at N.C. Central; 30 Slippery Rock.

April 3 at Atlantic Christian; 4 West Liberty; 5 at Guilford; 6 at North Carolina A&T; 9 at St. Augustine's; 11 N.C. Wesleyan; 12 at North Carolina; 13 UNC-Charlotte; 14 N.C. Central; 16 Campbell; 18 Old Dominion; 25 UNC Wilmington.

Carner Wins Again

RANCHO BERNARDO, Calif. (AP) — JoAnne Carner, on a dream streak at age 40, traces her searing start to a "humiliating" appearance last December.

Literally by accident, she is off to one of the hottest starts in the 30-year history of the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour.

Still recovering from a motorbike mishap that badly injured both wrists, she was paired with Lee Trevino in the mixed team event at Largo, Fla.

"I played so poorly it was humiliating," she said. "I couldn't get an eight-iron on the green from the middle of the fairway. More than anything else, that sent me to practice tee."

Carner won her fourth tournament in six weeks Sunday with a three-stroke triumph in the $150,000 LPGA event at Rancho Bernardo Inn.

The victory, her third straight, gave her an incredible $72,886 in earnings this year — and a lead of almost $60,000 over Nancy Lopez Melton, the tour's leading money winner the last two years.

Dear Consumer:

This is the most important time of your life. We the Public are confused about what to buy in an automobile and with interest rates going up and up, we just don't want to spend any money.

Well let me give you some good basic reasons you should buy an American made car:

1. Many consumers are not aware how much it costs to repair Imports; two to three times more to replace a part than on an American car. (that is a lot of gas you can buy)

2. It usually takes several weeks longer to get a part which means time and money.

3. The mileage standards have no justification whatever. They are part of Washington's hair-brained and destructive attempts to ration energy by any means except price. And, at this moment, they are doing the most serious damage to the United States auto industry. They are the biggest favor to the Japanese since the Navy conveniently parked its Pacific fleet at Pearl Habor in 1941.

4. Its just good business to buy an American made car. You are keeping the money working for the American people and keep them working so that we don't have a Depression.

We at Smith-Waldrop Motors realize that you are caught between inflation and rising interest rates. We have one of the best investments in the automobile for you. American Motors has the all new Spirit; Concord 2-door, 4-door, and Station Wagon at very economical prices and good gas mileage, too. They offer a 36 months/36,000 mile warranty on all new cars.

I, Cliff Frelke, would like you to know we take Pride in selling you a new or used car or truck of your choice.

We have a very good service department because each man is a factory trained technician who cares about our customers and their bill.

Our body shop is dedicated to getting your car finished and giving you quality for what you are paying for.

We have been here 32 years at the same location. We need your business and want to earn your friendship. Before you buy a new car or truck, please come by and see me or one of my salesmen. For an appointment call 756-4267.

Sincerely,
Cliff Frelke

Bucks Whip Kings, Back Atop Midwest

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

The Milwaukee Bucks are back on top in the Midwest Division race, and Coach Don Nelson intends to keep them there.

"We've been keying on this since training camp," said Nelson after the Bucks beat Kansas City 128-121 to take a one-half game lead over the Kings in the division battle. "We set goals for ourselves, and our goal was winning the division."

With the division title goes a bye through the dangerous best-of-three first round of the National Basketball Association playoffs.

Kansas City Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons, whose team held the lead since Dec. 29, isn't ready to throw in the towel.

"This thing isn't over yet," Fitzsimmons said. "Last year, the division race ended at 3:10 p.m. Eastern time on the last day of the season."

Among the five teams vying for the final three Eastern Conference playoff berths — Boston, Philadelphia and Atlanta have clinched — New York leads with a 37-38 record, one-half game ahead of San Antonio, 36-38, with Houston holding the last spot at 36-39. Washington, 34-39, is one game out of the final spot and Indiana, 34-41, is two games out.

In the West, five teams have clinched — Los Angeles, Seattle, Phoenix, Milwaukee and Kansas City. San Diego, 35-41, has a one-game lead over Portland, 33-41, in the fight for the last spot.

The Bucks beat Kansas City at the foul line, scoring 12 of their first 14 points in the final period on free throws as they moved from a 96-96 tie to an eight-point advantage.

Knicks 133, Bullets 124

Ray Williams scored 38 points and his runningmate at guard, Michael Ray Richardson, added 24 points and 17 assists as the Knicks won at Washington. New York turned the game around in the third period, hitting 72 percent of its shots and outscoring the Bullets 38-16 to turn a 71-59 halftime deficit into a 10-point lead going into the fourth quarter.

Rockets 102, Pistons 99

Moses Malone scored 25 points, including three free throws down the stretch, to lead Houston to victory. Houston scored only 15 points in the final period, but won by limiting Detroit to just 12.

Spurs 120, Nets 107

Guards James Silas and George Gervin scored 33 and 27 points, respectively, as San Antonio beat New Jersey for its third victory in four starts since snapping an eight-game losing streak.

Cavs 123, 76ers 109

Philadelphia fell two games behind Boston in the Atlantic Division race despite a 41-point effort by Julius Erving. The Cavs hit 62 percent of their field goal attempts in winning their fifth in a row, leading all the way. Randy Smith scored 26 and Mike Mitchell 24.

Lakers 128, Suns 106

The Lakers, getting 30 points and 11 rebounds from Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, hit 56 percent of their shots in routing Phoenix and increasing their lead over Seattle to 2½ games in the Pacific Division. After 75 games, Los Angeles is shooting at a .532 clip and is well on its way to breaking the NBA field goal mark of .517 which they set last year.

Hawks 95, Pacers 90

Atlanta, which has already clinched the Central Division crown, posted its 46th victory, equaling the number the Hawks won last year. The Pacers trailed by one point with 2½ minutes to play, but baskets by Dan Roundfield and Armond Hill and two free throws by Eddie Johnson iced the victory.

Warriors 115, Jazz 103

Phil Smith scored 15 of his 20 points in the second half as Golden State beat Utah.

Nuggets 127, Clippers 107

Dan Issel's 22 points helped Denver beat San Diego. The Clippers still lead Portland by one game in their battle for the final playoff berth in the Western Conference.

Auntuofermo Falls

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — It was "unbelievable," said Britain's Alan Minter when he was declared the winner and new uncontested middleweight champion.

It sure was, agreed the defeated Vito Antuofermo.

The British judge, Roland Dakin, scored the fight 149-137 for Minter. Judge Charles Minker of Las Vegas scored it 144-141 for Minter, while judge Ladaslad Sanchez of Venezuela scored it 145-143 for Antuofermo. The AP also had it 145-143 for Antuofermo.

Final Four . .

and wound up with 17 points.

A 16-point LSU run lifted the Tigers into a 29-21 lead before Louisville reeled off the last 10 points of the first half. Wiley Brown scored 12 of his 16 points in the first 20 minutes for the winners. LSU's big guns, forwards DeWayne Scales and Durand Macklin, were held to 12 and nine points, respectively, for the game.

"Darrell wanted to jump on them (LSU) from the start. I think he got too overanxious," said Coach Denny Crum. "But our team is not a one-man show. We just stayed in our regular offense and worked harder. The other guys picked up for him."

LSU Coach Dale Brown called Louisville "the best team we've played. I don't think anyone can beat them. They just have so many dimensions and that's why I pick them. Their press beat us and they rebounded well and got a lot of second shots."

"There's something about this team that I can't put my finger on," said Crum. "I guess they just don't quit and adversity doesn't bother them."

On Saturday, Joe Barry Carroll, Purdue's 7-1 All-American center, scored 26 points to lead the Boilermakers over Duke while sophomore Michael Sanders and senior Kiki Vandeweghe had 22 apiece in UCLA's victory over Clemson.

"We had to do a lot of shifting about, especially after Carroll got into foul trouble (he picked up his fourth with 8:55 remaining)," said Coach Lee Rose. "We told them to control the ball late in the game. We weren't looking for a shot unless it was a cripple.

"When we got a five-point lead, we ran three or four minutes off the clock without a turnover. This helped us turn the game around."

UCLA won 10 national championships in 12 years from 1964-75, including seven in a row (1967-73). But the Bruins' tallest starter is the 6-8 Vandeweghe.

"We don't really need a center," said 6-7 James Wilkes, UCLA's top defender. "We just put our three best guys on the floor. Then you block out and get position."

And the Bruins' current position is in the Final Four for a record 14th time.

Saturday's Cryptoquip — COMPASSIONATE SURGEON SUGGESTS OUR PATIENT'S COMPLAINT IS ALL GALL.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: L equals U

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Fred Silverman Enjoys Life In The Big Time

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The advertisement was in the "Situations Wanted" column of the show business trade paper, The Hollywood Reporter. It read:

"Fred Silverman seeks position in Entertainment-Public Relations: Experienced in journalism, writing, graphics, arts-music. Organizational abilities. ....."

Oh my. This could be Scoop. It's well known that Silverman is always looking for new challenges, that he can't stay in one place for very long. He went from a Chicago independent station to a New York independent, then to CBS, then to ABC, and finally, came to rest as President of the whole NBC network.

It's been nearly two years since the NBC deal, and he could be weary of it.

Hasn't Silverman run out of networks? I don't think he would get on very well at PBS. Yes, this could be scoop.

I dialed the number at the bottom of the ad.

"Hello, this is Fred Silverman." It was a recorded message. "I'm not home right now, but when you hear the beep, just leave your name and number and I will call you back as soon as I can. Thanks."

I left a message, and called NBC.

"Is Fred Silverman ... um, considering any career changes?"

"Absolutely not!" was the reply. I'd expected that, though. Ever since the Johnny Carson brouhaha, NBC has been cautious in its dealing with the press on employment matters.

The phone rang. It was him.

"Hello, this is Fred Silverman."

"Are you the President of NBC?" No point in beating around the bush. I waited. He laughed.

"No, I'm not. But I am Fred Silverman. That's a dirty trick. No, it's really my name."

This Fred Silverman, he of the journalism and graphics experience and organizational abilities, is an out-of-work musician who once did PR work for a local YMCA.

"Because I'm in the phone book, I get a lot of strange letters and phone calls. I got a telegram from a dying lady in Iowa who said her last wish was an autographed picture of Dean Martin.

"A while back, a lady in Pittsburgh kept calling me at all hours, convinced that we — that is, NBC — were sending out secret messages through the soap operas. A psychic had told her that and she wanted confirmation.

"Then there was the time I came back from a trip late at night, exhausted. I checked my answering service for messages. There was a guy on the recording screaming and cursing at me. It shocked me. It took him three messages to finish.

"He was mad at me for putting on the wrong football game."

That's life in the big-time, Fred.

BEST YET — Mel Torme, who has recorded 43 record albums, says the only one "Torme, A New Album", "is the best I've ever done." The 54-year-old contemporary vocalist and composer spoke before an appearance with the Spokane Jazz Festival in Washington. (AP Laserphoto)

GOREN BRIDGE

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠KQJ ♡AQJ104 ◇Q95 ♣Q7
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♡	2 ♣
3 ♠	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	?

What do you bid now?
A.—We can construct hands where slam would be cold or on no more than a finesse, but there are many more with no play for twelve tricks, and even an eleven-trick contract might be in jeopardy. For all his strong bidding, bear in mind that partner is a passed hand, so settle for a certain game.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J95 ♡1092 ◇AKQJ8 ♣95
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 ◇	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	?

What do you bid now?
A.—Even though you have made a two-over-one response, don't be content with a bid of only four spades. If partner has control of the unbid suits and the type of spade suit he should have, you should be laydown for slam. Jump to five spades. That denies any side control and asks partner to go on only if he has no two quick losers.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AQ10 ♡AKQ9 ◇KQJ7 ♣A8
The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	?

What do you bid now?
A.—You have the choice of three actions—a takeout double, a bid of three no trump or an immediate cue-bid. Our preference is for the latter. That sets up a game-forcing situation and will allow you to investigate alternative contracts before settling in three no trump if you cannot find a fit.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠7 ♡A98752 ◇83 ♣KJ76
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♡	Pass
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♡	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	?

What action do you take?
A.—Partner has shown a hand with six diamonds and five spades. If you bid no trump, go to the bottom of the class—you have no source of tricks. On the surface, it might seem that you should take a preference to three diamonds, but a bid of three clubs will prove more flexible. If partner's remaining two cards are hearts, he can take a preference to three hearts and that might prove to be a more playable contract.

Q.5—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AJ75 ♡Q82 ◇87 ♣K1052
Partner opens the bidding with one spade. What do you respond?
A.—You are in the in-between zone—your hand is distinctly too good for a raise to two spades, but not strong enough for a jump to three. The only solution is to make a temporizing response of two clubs now, then raise spades at your next turn.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠72 ♡AJ63 ◇93 ♣K10762
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
2 NT	Pass	?

What do you bid now?
A.—Your first responsibility to partner is to describe your hand. It is unbalanced, a minimum, and you have excellent support for the suit partner bid first. Any bid other than three hearts cannot even be considered.

N.C. Manuals Running Late

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The 1979 North Carolina Manuals, containing information on state goverment, may be ready for distribution Monday — 3½ months later than they have ever been and not too long before they will be out of date.

"The 1979 manuals have very little value in April 1980, when the new ones will be out in a year or so," said John Cheney Jr., director of publications for the secretary of state. "This is way late."

The manuals, which contain information about elected officials and important documents, are issued every two years, usually in July or August of the first year of a legislative session.

Cheney said the Legislature budgeted $42,000 to print 4,000 hardbound and 500 paperback copies of the 1979 manual.

But Cheney said the edition was plagued by delays from the start.

He said several changes made by the 1979 General Assembly meant the final manuscript wasn't delivered to the printers until June 1, 1979, about two months late.

Even so, Cheney said several shortcuts were taken that should have allowed the printers, Contemporary Lithographers Inc. of Raleigh, to make up time so the manuals could be distributed no later than Dec. 1.

Instead, the first paperback copies were not delivered until about two months ago. Those were not sent out because Secretary of State Thad Eure has a policy that legislators and top officials who get hardbound copies with the names on them must receive theirs first.

A.W. Kelly, president of Contemporary Lithographers, said the personalized copies still aren't ready and probably won't be until Monday.

Cheney said he doesn't know what caused the printing delay. Kelly, on the other hand, said he thought the printing was on schedule.

Cheney said he doesn't believe any state manual has ever been issued this late.

"It won't ever come out this late again. I can tell you that," he said.

Lead Field In YDC Poll

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — President Jimmy Carter, Gov. Jim Hunt and House Speaker Carl Stewart are the political favorites among North Carolina Young Democrats, a straw vote revealed Saturday.

The vote, taken at the Democrats' meeting in Greensboro, showed that 88 percent of the group preferred President Carter while 8 percent favored Massachusetts Sen. Edward Kennedy for president.

Hunt outpolled Democratic opponent Bob Scott by 89 percent to 10 percent.

Stewart was a big favorite too. Eighty-seven percent of the Young Democrats favored Stewart for lieutenant governor while 7 percent said they preferred Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green.

In a closer vote, James Long of Burlington polled 35 percent, Roy H. Rabon of Raleigh polled 33 percent, Insurance Commissioner John Ingram took 11 percent and W. Kenneth Brown took 2 percent of the vote for insurance commissioner.

The vote was taken by the 315 Democrats attending the group's annual banquet Saturday.

Sue Corporation For Pollution

TRIANA, Ala. (AP) — Some 500 residents of this tiny north Alabama town have sued the Olin Corp. for polluting tributaries of the Tennessee River with the pesticide DDT.

The $500 million class action suit was filed Friday in federal court at Huntsville. It says Olin contaminated Huntsville Spring Branch and Indian Creek with the pesticide, manufactured for some 30 years at a site on the nearby Redstone Arsenal Army reservation.

Hopeful News in Medicine

The early diagnosis of diabetes is one of the ultimate aims of modern medicine. For it is well-known that when diabetes is diagnosed early and treated vigorously, the disorder can be kept in control and complications prevented.

A group of research workers under the direction of Dr. Benjamin W. Zweifach, working at the University of California School of Medicine in San Diego, have developed a promising test for the early detection of diabetes. This test combines the use of photography and computerized analysis by studying changes in the small blood vessels of the eye.

The preliminary success of this new technique has been met with great enthusiasm. It is particularly valuable in the detection of diabetes before symptoms have begun to appear.

The study is actively progressing in this one center at the present time. It is expected that soon it will be available in hospitals and universities all over the country. It is hoped that the value of the test may be extended to encompass the progression of diabetes as well as its detection. The success of diabetic treatment may eventually be followed by this same technique.

It is well-known that after a person suffers a heart attack it sometimes takes 36 to 48 hours for changes to appear on an electrocardiogram.

For the early diagnosis, certain enzyme tests are used. These tests are often positive even before the electrocardiogram verifies the diagnosis. It has taken at least one and a half of two hours to identify this enzyme.

Now, a highly sensitive test of the blood can reveal in just 10 minutes the presence of the enzyme. This method, devised at the St. Luke's Hospital in Milwaukee, by a medical technologist, Ms. Mary Sass, is a fine contribution to speeding up the earlier diagnosis of heart attacks.

The test is already available in some institutions in the United States. It is expected that soon it will be available everywhere.

New drugs are constantly being sought to reduce the cholesterol and triglycerides in the blood stream. For it is well established that a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet, used over a long period of time, may reduce the risk of heart disease.

A number of cholesterol-reducing drugs are already on the market. Recently, a new one, gemfibrozil, seems to be able to reduce the cholesterol and triglyceride levels in the blood even better than those that were previously available.

Among the 3000 people in the United States who have been taking the drug in a trial study, no adverse effects have been reported. It is expected that the FDA (Federal Drug Administration) will soon approve it for general use.

Predicts Slower Gas Price Rise

CLEVELAND (AP) — Gasoline prices will not rise as fast in the future as they have in the past year and won't hit $2 gallon by December, Alton W. Whitehouse, chairman of the Standard Oil Co. (Ohio) says.

"I don't really have a good feel for what gasoline prices will do. But I don't think we will see gasoline costing $2 a gallon by the end of the year," he said in an interview published Sunday in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

But he did say prices are going to continue to rise, despite a recent three-cent-a-gallon cut by Sohio.

The undersigned SECRETARY (OR A DEPUTY) OF THE DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE of the State of North Carolina (the "Secretary"), pursuant to G.S. 159C-7 and the regulations prescribed by the Secretary thereunder, DOES HEREBY CERTIFY, FIND AND DETERMINE as follows:

(a) The Pitt County Industrial Facilities and Pollution Control Financing Authority (the "Authority"), a political subdivision and body corporate and politic of the State of North Carolina created by resolution adopted by the Board of Commissioners for the County of Pitt, in accordance with Chapter 159C of the General Statutes of North Carolina (the "Act"), has filed with the Secretary pursuant to G.S. 159C-7 of the Act and the regulations prescribed by the Secretary thereunder an application for approval of its proposed industrial project, which is to be financed by not in excess of $1,000,000 aggregate principal amount of its bonds to be issued pursuant to the Act.

(b) The industrial project is to be located in the Town of Farmville, Pitt County, North Carolina and will consist of forty knitting machines (the "Facility") to be installed in the existing plant of Collins & Aikman Corporation for the manufacture of warp knitted fabrics and will be financed from the proceeds of the bonds of the Authority.
