Local Govm'ts Dread Revenue-Sharing Cutback

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer
Over the past eight years, Federal Revenue Sharing Funds have been a significant factor in town and county budgets. Often, these funds have made the difference in being able to carry out public programs that otherwise would have never materialized.

ed, or at the least been delayed several years. Now, as talk centers on ways that budget experts can trim the national budget, the specter of the possible loss of Federal Revenue Sharing Funds looms darkly over the heads of budget planners in this area and all across the nation.

Town and county managers or their equivalent in Greenville, Pitt County, Williamston, Ayden and Farmville were contacted about their thoughts on such a possibility. All echoed a common concern — that without this source of funds, local budgets are in real trouble. Greenville — City Manager

Ed Wyatt remarked "if it were not for these funds we would have been in bad shape. One of the real benefits of Revenue Sharing Funds is that they can be used in any way, that you can spend them the same as you would any local tax dollar. "This situation," Wyatt said, "has permitted the City of Greenville to spend more wisely, as it allows people who know the needs the authority to spend it how and where they see fit." Information provided by Wyatt shows that since the first receipt of Revenue Sharing Funds in fiscal year 1972-73 to date, more than five and one-half million dollars have been channeled from this source into Greenville's budget. "The Recreation Department, the library, and the Transit system have been the primary areas in which these funds have been used," Wyatt added. A breakdown of Revenue Sharing Funds usage over the eight year period shows that of the more than five million dollars, $1,500,000 has gone to the Recreation Department, including the construction of the swimming pool and bathroom and the joint Recreation-Library center at 2000 Cedar Lane. The city's three libraries have been allocated over

$1,000,000; and equipment and vehicles, including some of those used in the Transit system and ones for other agencies, account for $850,000 of the eight years of funding. Other major projects for which Revenue Sharing Funds were used include the construction of the Fire- (Continued on Page 7)

February Index

Prices Again Up 1.4 Percent

By EILEEN ALT POWELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — In a virtual replay of January's torrid inflation, consumer prices soared another 1.4 percent in February, the government reported today. Last month's increase in the Labor Department's Consumer Price Index matched the 1.4 percent rise in January for a compounded annual rate of some 18 percent. The culprits again were sharply higher gasoline and home heating oil prices and mortgage interest rates, the report showed. An 18 percent rate for the entire year would be the worst inflation since World War II price controls were lifted in 1946 and a considerable jump from last year's 13.3 percent inflation. "It's virtually identical, with the exception of apparel being a little more moderate," Labor Department economist Patrick Jackman said of the February report. "I would look for mortgage interest and energy to continue rising. I don't really foresee any improvement until June or July, not even a blip to below 1 percent." Price increases averaged just over 1 percent each month last year. The Labor Department also reported that inflation continued to take its toll on earnings. Average weekly earnings fell 1.4 percent from January to February as inflation and a drop in the number of hours worked overpowered a modest 0.5 percent rise in hourly earnings. This left inflation-adjusted earnings 6.5 percent below the level of February 1979. Spendable earnings, which is the money a married worker with three dependents has left after Social Security and federal income taxes, also fell 1.4 percent. It was the ninth consecutive monthly decline, leaving earnings 7.3 percent below their level a year ago. It was January's surge in prices that convinced the Carter administration to adopt measures that could bring consumers some relief toward year's end. President Carter has pledged a new, broad-based attack on inflation that includes a cut in federal spending this year and next, credit controls to cool the consumer spending spree and better enforcement of the administration's voluntary wage and price guidelines. But the details still are being worked out. And once in place, the program is not expected to have an immediate effect. February's 1.4 percent increase, like January's, was the largest one-month jump since August 1973. At that time prices shot up 1.8 percent after then-President Richard M. Nixon lifted price controls and beef costs went sky high. Food prices were not the problem last month, as they showed no change in February after rising a scant 0.1 percent in the previous month. Food at grocery stores actually fell 0.4 percent, reflecting sharp declines in the prices for fresh vegetables, pork, poultry and eggs, the report said. But food at restaurants rose 0.7 percent.

Asserts Hostage Case Complicated

By The Associated Press
The shah's escape to Egypt will make resolution of the American hostage issue "extremely difficult," Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh said today as thousands of fist-waving Iranians demonstrated outside the U.S. Embassy. Ghotbzadeh told a news conference in Tehran that the ousted monarch's transfer from Panama has undermined trust in the hostage negotiations and may make the new Parliament less favorable to a settlement. But he said the shah's flight to Egypt was a "moral victory" for Iran because it showed Iran's extradition case against the former monarch was strong. Ghotbzadeh also said Iran will not try to extradite the shah from Egypt because Egyptian President Anwar Sadat is a "puppet of Israel and the United States."

The foreign minister said the reason the ruling Revolutionary Council has not issued an official statement on the shah's transfer to Egypt is because the new circumstances are being debated among council members. Meanwhile, legions of Iranians filled the streets around the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, shaking clenched fists and chanting slogans condemning the United States and Sadat because of the shah's escape to Egypt. Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin also was vilified. Women in traditional long black veils and men marched in separate groups into Ayatollah Taleghani Avenue in front of the embassy, chanting in chorus "The shah must come back. Down with the shah, Carter, Begin and Sadat!" Many were in a holiday mood because it is the middle of Iran's new year celebration. They laughed as a man wearing a Carter mask and a tall red hat wandered through the crowd. Some took off his hat and patted him on the head or pretended to beat him with crutches. The demonstration was called by the revolutionary guards, the militant Moslem clergy and other revolutionary groups to denounce the "treacherous plot" by Sadat and President Carter to help deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, Tehran Radio said. The ailing ex-monarch fled from extradition proceedings in Panama and was hospitalized in Cairo alongside the Nile Monday as the Iranian and U.S. governments swapped new threats and warnings. Ayatollah Sadegh Khalkhali, a leading Iranian revolutionary and former chief judge, said those among the American hostages accused of spying would be put on trial and jailed if found guilty. He said the trials would take place after Iran's new Parliament convenes, which is at least a month off because of slow vote-counting and allegations of fraud, and the other hostages would be freed at that time. State Department spokesman Hodding Carter replied that "the Iranian government is aware of the consequences and condemnation that would take place" if any such trials were held. Other U.S. officials said putting any of the hostages on trial was no longer "a very possible or probable outcome," and the Carter administration did not attach "the same degree of concern" to the threat that it had to similar earlier ones.

Disaster Area

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt announced Monday that 23 eastern North Carolina counties will be eligible for federal disaster assistance to repair damages caused by the heavy snowstorm March 1-3. William Mauk, acting director of the U.S. Small Business Administration, notified Hunt by telegram that he had approved disaster declarations for Beaufort, Dare, Duplin, Lenoir, Onslow, and Sampson counties. Mauk said 17 other counties are eligible for SBA assistance under a rule that provides for all counties adjoining a declared county to be eligible for the same assistance. These counties are Bladen, Carteret, Craven, Cumberland, Currituck, Greene, Harnett, Hyde, Johnston, Jones, Martin, Pamlico, Pitt, Tyrrell, Washington and Wayne. A toll-free telephone service will be installed to receive requests for low-interest loans for uninsured physical damage and economic injury. Residents have until May 23 to apply for physical damage and until December 22 to apply for economic injury loans.

INSURANCE FORMS DILEMMA

I am the manager of a finance company. A man owing my company money was severely injured and has been a client of the Regional Rehabilitation Center of Pitt County Memorial Hospital. My company pays the rehab center $3 per form to fill out insurance forms so the man's payments will be made for him by an insurance company whose policy covered the original loan. Now I'm having trouble with the rehab center's refusing to continue to fill out the forms. I know it's a headache for them, but if they don't do it, the only choice I have is to take the man to court. I am responsible to higher ups in my firm. J. P.

Hotline talked to Dr. Donald Weir, medical director of the Rehab Center, who said that the forms will continue to be filled out, though there may be some delay. He asked if there weren't some way this matter could be handled so that his office wouldn't repeatedly have to fill out virtually the same form. We brought this question back to you and you said you'd draft a letter the same day, explaining to rehab that if a reasonable estimate can be made as to the duration of the man's disability, your company can stop asking for forms and probably will file for the insurance company to pay the loan off in full and be done with it. It's a headache, you say, for your company as well as the rehab center to have to repeatedly go through the filing procedure for each relatively small monthly payment.

Priority Adopted By FBI

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The new head of the FBI in North Carolina said today that solving bank robberies is one of his agency's top priorities in the state. "If you can convince people that (bank robbery) is a losing proposition — they don't get much money and there's a high rate of apprehension — hopefully we can deter it," special agent Robert L. Pence, director of the FBI in North Carolina, said at a news conference. The state had 115 bank robberies last year — a 145 per cent increase over the previous year and giving North Carolina the largest increase in the nation. But the FBI and local police solved 82 per cent of those. "They don't get away with it but they still do it," said Pence, who added that solving white-collar crime and insuring civil rights were also top priorities of the FBI in the state. There have been 25 bank robberies in the state so far this year and the FBI expects more because of easy access for robbers to the nearly 1,800 branch banks in the state and because of hard economic times.

Eye Kennedy In N.Y. Primary

NEW YORK (AP) — New Yorkers voted today in one of the nation's richest presidential primaries, with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy claiming he might finally gain an upset over President Carter — but vowing that defeat would not end his challenge for the Democratic nomination. Ronald Reagan held the Republican lead in New York even before the votes were counted as he competed there and in the Connecticut primary with former U.N. Ambassador George Bush. Bush campaigned hard in Connecticut, where he spent his boyhood, in an effort to cut into Reagan's command of the GOP race. Carter and Kennedy also were matched in Connecticut, but their real battleground was New York, a primary the challenger had described as a referendum on the course of the Democratic Party. New York Democrats were assigning 282 nominating votes, apportioned on the basis of the popular vote shares in each of 39 congressional districts. Only California, with 306 delegates, has more say at the convention, and its primary is more than two months away. A poll Monday in the New York Daily News showed Carter the preferred candidate by a narrow but still hefty margin. "I don't think we're going to win, but I don't think we're going to lose by 20 points, either," said Tom Southwick, spokesman for the Massachusetts senator. That was Carter's margin in the Louis Harris survey. New York Republicans voted on a mystery ballot, which listed delegate candidates but not their nomination preferences. New York will have 123 votes at the GOP convention, 117 elected today and six others chosen by a state convention. Reagan supporters won 34 convention seats without opposition; thirty-four unopposed candidates were uncommitted, and 1 was for Bush. There were 38 known Reagan supporters in contested races and 35 Bush advocates. The others were uncommitted or at least weren't saying. It was Carter against Kennedy in Connecticut, too, with 54 Democratic delegates at stake. California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., and minor candidate Lyndon LaRouche also were on the ballot there. Connecticut Republicans were apportioning 35 nominating votes. They chose among Reagan, Bush, Illinois Reps. John B. Anderson and Philip M. Crane, with Los Angeles businessman Benjamin Fernandez and campaign dropouts Howard H. Baker Jr., Bob Dole and John B. Connally also listed on the ballot.

Would Remove 'Windfalls' In Social Security

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Social Security system is shelling out $840 million a year in windfall benefits to government retirees at the expense of 100 million non-government workers, a federal panel said today. The findings by the Universal Social Security Coverage Study Group could lend impetus to moves to make all civil servants pay Social Security taxes. The group estimated the average windfall for retired federal workers who also get Social Security is $1,050 a year each in benefits and Medicare. (Continued on page 8)

And it said that if the 6 million to 7 million workers now outside Social Security were brought into the system, the 6.13 percent tax now paid by 100 million private American workers and their employers could be lowered by 0.25 percent. For a worker making $25,000 a year, that would mean a savings of $62 a year in Social Security taxes. The study group said a large majority of public employees wind up with Social Security benefits as well as government pensions, either because they have worked part time on the

Tornado Cut Swath On Rich Square Outskirts

RICH SQUARE, N.C. (AP) — A tornado cut a 500-foot-wide path across an area south of this eastern North Carolina town late Monday night, heavily damaging several homes and warehouses. There were no injuries, and authorities estimated damages at more than $500,000. Police Chief Willie W. Conner said the twister extensively damaged nine homes, five warehouses and the gym at an elementary school. It also uprooted trees along its path. Conner said the storm skipped across an area about a half mile south of the business district. "It came in from a westerly direction and was traveling east," Conner said. "It cut a swath 500 feet wide in some places, lifted up and touched down again." "It struck suddenly. I heard it thundering a short time before this and there was some heavy rain. It hit and passed very quickly," Conner said.

He said two of the homes hit by the twister were destroyed and the other seven were extensively damaged. Four cotton warehouses and a peanut-fertilizer warehouse received extensive damages and the roof was ripped off the gym at W.S. Creech School, Conner said. Frances Warrington, a secretary at the school, said the storm damaged two classrooms as well as the gym. "It looks like an explosion," Mrs. Warrington said. "It took the roof and it was spread all over the gym and the street." "I would say conservatively there was at least a half million dollars in damages," Conner said. Another storm hit parts of Hertford County about 20 miles east of Rich Square. It damaged several homes and tobacco barns, and demolished a house trailer near Murfreesboro. Two persons in the house trailer received minor injuries.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: MAGGIE IN MANHATTAN, a happily married woman, wrote to say that her husband wants to make love on Sunday morning before mass, but she feels guilty going to mass right after having had sex.

She asked you what was wrong with her, and you said, "Your problem is rooted in the notion that sex is sinful. You grew up believing it, and even though you're married and there is no reason to feel guilty, you're still programmed to equate sex with sin."

To a Catholic, who knows that the marital embrace is blessed by God, your Freudian prejudices appear ludicrous in this connection. MAGGIE'S guilt is obviously associated with the traditional eucharistic fast.

Until Vatican Council II, Catholics who wished to receive communion were required to abstain from eating and drinking from midnight preceding mass, though now it is reduced to one hour.

Although there is nothing immoral about food, we do not partake of it immediately preceding mass and communion. It is thus logical that Maggie feels she should abstain from all other pleasures, including sex.

UNDERSTANDING IN ANN ARBOR

DEAR ABBY: You should have told MAGGIE to ask her husband to control himself for an hour or two on Sunday morning. After all, there are six other days, plus whatever time is left after they get back from church on Sunday.

J. IN MEDINA, OHIO

DEAR J.: MAGGIE knows her husband better than you or I. (P.S. You've got to shoot the ducks while they're flying.)

DEAR ABBY: You erroneously assumed that MAGGIE'S guilt lay in some deep-seated equation of sex with sin. Please reconsider.

The problem is more spiritual than sexual. Recognizing the likelihood of distraction from worship that the thrill of the sex might provide, St. Paul advised:

"Do not refuse these (sexual) rights to each other. The only exception to this rule would be the agreement of both husband and wife to refrain from the rights of marriage for a limited time, so that you can give yourselves more completely to worship" (I Corinthians 7:5, The Living Bible).

The solution for MAGGIE might be to tell her husband that she loves to bask in the afterglow of their lovemaking, but she would be better able to do so when the demands of worship to God would not present a conflict emotionally.

IMPERIAL VALLEY M.D.

DEAR ABBY: With regard to MAGGIE IN MANHATTAN: I went to the Irish priest of our little church some time ago and asked him the same question, "Is it all right to have sex before mass?"

With a twinkle in his eye and a lilt in his slight brogue, he answered, "I suppose it's all right if you're married and don't block the aisle."

Local Sorors At Conference In Va.

The twenty-seventh Mid-Atlantic Regional Conference of the Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc. was held Friday through Sunday with Gamma Upsilon Omega and Gamma Theta chapters of Hampton, Va., in Norfolk, Va. Eight hundred fifty-eight sorors from North Carolina and Virginia gathered for the three-day meet.

The conference theme was "Supreme in Service to All Mankind — A Call To Action." Exhibits and workshops centered around the AKA reading experience, programs, services, and communication.

Iota Kappa Omega Chapter here in Greenville received an award for its 1979 RIF project — the distribution of 20,000 books to students in the Greenville City and Pitt County schools. Soror Jean Carter, RIF chairperson, accepted that award.

Other awards included Who's Who in Mid-Atlantic Region — Soror Ella Harris; outstanding undergraduate soror — Shella Mendoza, ECU; undergraduate achievement award — Theta Alpha Chapter, ECU; local chapter's nominee for man-of-the-year in the region Edward Carter.

Agree Extend Loan Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional conference committee has agreed on a $2 billion extension of an emergency loan program for farmers who can't get credit through normal means.

The compromise, approved Monday, is now headed for action by both the House and the Senate. The bill, supported by the Carter administration, provides loans of up to $400,000 per farmer and would extend the loan program through September 1981. The money would run out by mid-May without the extension.

Attending from the graduate chapter were Shella Bunch, Jean Carter, Sandy Cunningham, Helen Harrell, Ella Harris, Jackie Hawkins, Gloria Hines, and Lilla Holsey.

The 1981 conference will be held with Delta Omega and Alpha Epsilon chapters of Petersburg, Va.

Evidence Presented In 'Death Angel' Hearing

By PATRICK ARNOLD Associated Press Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The lawyer for a woman who testified before a grand jury hearing evidence about an "Angel of Death" at a Las Vegas hospital says a nurse asked his client to sign a release for her husband's body a day before his death.

Jack Pursel said his client, Bertha Fraser, told him that a nurse at the hospital "had her sign a release for the mortuary the day before" her husband died March 3. Pursel said Mrs. Fraser was considering a wrongful death suit against Sunrise Hospital.

A nurse, termed a scapegoat by her attorney, also testified before the grand jury which is investigating allegations that as many as six patients at the hospital died after someone tampered with their life support systems.

Sixteen persons have been questioned by the panel that heard testimony for about eight hours Monday before recessing until April 1 to hear "three or four" additional witnesses, said Deputy District Attorney Mel Harmon.

Among those who appeared before the 17-member Clark County Grand Jury was Jani Adams, the nurse in charge of the 11 p.m.-7 a.m. shift at the hospital's west respiratory unit where the deaths allegedly took place. The 32-year-old nurse, accompanied by her attorney, Melvin Belli of San Francisco, spent about 30 minutes before the grand jury.

She emerged to tell a waiting crowd of reporters that she was sickened by the charges, which she claimed had "absolutely" no substance.

The accusations resulted in the suspension March 13 of Ms. Adams and several other employees in what Sunrise officials would identify only as a "small unit" at the 666-bed hospital, the largest private medical facility in the state.

At least two and possibly six deaths are under investigation. There was no motive known for the alleged activity, but investigators reportedly have found no evidence supporting original claims that other hospital employees made bets on when the patients in question would die.

Demo Precinct Meet Thursday

All registered Democrats of the Greenville Number 6 precinct are urged to attend the precinct meeting at the Fifth Street fire station at 8 p.m. Thursday.

Election of delegates to the spring conventions will be held at the session.

Faces in Stone

Today, Mount Rushmore, with its enormous sculptured heads of George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Theodore Roosevelt and Abraham Lincoln, is one of our country's most famous national landmarks. Yet as recently as 55 years ago, Mount Rushmore was just another rugged granite cliff in the Black Hills. The faces weren't there. An American sculptor named Gutzon Borglum designed the memorial and supervised most of the work on it. Workers used drills and dynamite to carve the faces out of the cliff. Borglum and his crew started the project in 1927. After Borglum died in 1941, his son finished the sculpture. Gutzon Borglum was born on this day in 1871.

Duty-Free Vegetable Imports Are Defended

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — The president's chief inflation fighter calls it a victory for "common sense," but U.S. growers say the decision to admit Mexican produce to the United States duty-free sacrifices farmers to enhance relations with oil-rich Mexico.

The growers, who plan to challenge the decision in court, say that what was hailed as a victory for consumers could someday result in sky-high food prices as American farmers go out of business.

"There is only one loser in this fight, and that is the American consumer, because they are the ones who are going to pay $5 or $10 for a salad," said farmer J. Lewis Rodriguez.

The Commerce Department ruled Monday that fresh vegetables imported from Mexico aren't being sold in the United States at unfairly low prices. Mexican winter produce, including cucumbers, eggplants, peppers, squash and tomatoes, will thus remain duty-free.

The imports last year were valued at about $200 million and represented half the fresh winter produce sold in the United States.

Alfred E. Kahn, Carter's chief inflation adviser, said the ruling is "a victory for common sense and a victory for our national struggle against inflation."

In a separate decision, the administration refused to raise the tariffs on leather wearing-apparel, imported mainly from South Korea, as requested by U.S. companies and unions, mostly located in the New York City area. Imported leather apparel now accounts for about 80 percent of the domestic market. Attorney Howard J. Feldman, who represents South Florida farmers, said he would appeal the ruling in U.S. Customs Court.

Miss Meeks, Mr. Wade Marry Sunday Afternoon

Susan B. Meeks and Zeb A. Wade Jr. were united in a double ring ceremony Sunday at 1:30 p.m. at Hopewell Pentecostal Holiness Church by Dr. Harold W. Deitch.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Miss Cathy Joyner and soloist, Mrs. William Fuller, who sang "I."

The bride is the daughter of Richard M. Meeks of Greenville and the late Carolyn E. Meeks, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Zeb A. Wade of Ormondsville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white organza over white peau de soie designed with a high neckline of scalloped chantilly lace. The empire bodice was enhanced by a sheer yoke of imported English net accented with silk embroidery beaded with pearls. The bodice was overlaid with French chantilly and beaded scalloped lace that also encircled the waistline. The split full bishop sleeves were trimmed in lace with the fitted undersleeve featuring beaded appliques and cuffs of chantilly lace. The A-line skirt and attached chapel length train were accented by a ruffled flounce of imported French chantilly outlined in the scalloped chantilly lace.

She wore a fingertip length illusion veil edged in chantilly lace and held in place by a Juliet cap overlaid in matching lace beaded with pearls. She carried a bouquet of miniature carnations and sweetheart roses accented with daisies.

LeAnna Gail Clark of Greenville was maid of honor. She wore a formal gown of pastel blue with an A-line skirt that featured a cummerbund effect. The long sleeved jacket enhanced the cummerbund effect. She carried an arm bouquet of silk white carnations accented with light blue wildflowers.

Bridesmaid was Sandra Hopkins of Roanoke Rapids. Her gown matched that of the maid of honor. She carried an arm bouquet of silk daisies accented with light blue wild flowers.

The bridegroom's brother, Victor Wade, served as best man and William Frank Fuller was usher.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points the couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of J.H. Rose High School and is employed by Empire Brushes. The bridegroom is a graduate of Greene Central High and is also employed by Empire Brushes.

Ed, who is my cousin Florence's husband, came in the other day from work and plopped his brown paper lunch bag down on the kitchen counter.

"What's that?" asked Florence.

Ed said, "It's your sauerkraut cookies."

"You didn't eat them?" she asked.

He said, "Florence, I didn't eat them today, yesterday, or every day for the last three years you've put them in my lunch. How long are you going to keep recycling those cookies?"

Florence said, "I don't understand it. He always ate sauerkraut when his mother baked it in cookies."

I understand. Does anyone out there really appreciate what it is like to cook 738 meals a year, pack 1,040 lunches, make 2,055 snacks, 30 special banquets for birthdays and holidays and over 110 hospital trays?

It's enough to make Valium a kitchen staple.

On one side we've got nutritionists telling us that we're responsible for the health of our families. On the other side, we've got a family who every time we serve a yellow vegetable, wants a food taster. Children have given an entire ly new glossary of meaning to food.

Peas: Small, green, round things that bounce when they are put on the plate. They roll into all your other food and you have to use your fingers to get them out. Fun to count.

Asparagus: Green, slimy sticks that reproduce and swell when you start to chew them. If you can stand to touch them, you can hide them under your plate.

Onions: Yucky lumps that mothers put in everything. By holding your breath and swallowing them whole, you can get rid of them.

Coconut: It's like having a strand of Grandma's hair in your mouth. It's used to ruin a perfectly good white cake.

Husbands are no better. Mine defines an olive as a dentist's secret weapon . . . "soft and cushy on the outside with a surprise rock on the inside that crumbles your bridgework."

Spinach he describes as a "limp piece of slime that slides around your mouth until it finds your front tooth and clings to it."

Florence handed me one of Ed's cookies and said, "Taste these. They made Ed's mother a legend."

There are times when the State Department considers it necessary to issue Americans two valid U.S. passports. This applies when a traveler is in route to Nigeria. Since Nigeria will not admit anyone whose passport contains a visa for South Africa, a second passport containing a Nigerian visa is necessary to visit that country. Because second passports are restricted by geography and time, applicants must designate which should authorize unlimited travel for five years.

The qualified staff at QUIXOTE TRAVELS INC. are happy to answer your questions regarding passport information. Whether you are traveling to Nigeria or closer to home, our professionals are always ready to help you plan. For a business trip or at vacation time, we'll make all arrangements to suit your taste and budget. Our computers give you prompt confirmations. Gasohol The Best Bet

Is gasohol going to be the way our nation can solve its energy problems? Production of the alcohol-gasoline combination will help but it won't solve all our problems.

There are efforts in government to promote the production of gasohol. In our state a legislative committee has recommended investment tax credits for gasohol production, and reduced gas tax on its sale.

The big advantage of the alcohol production is that it can be produced from almost anything — garbage, wood chips — many of the things that are now going to waste. A disadvantage is that it takes energy to distill the alcohol. Cost of production may still be a factor, although rapidly rising cost of gas is off-setting that.

There could also be a danger in the future of using grain for gasohol production that should go for human consumption.

For now, however, it seems that our nation can't go wrong in proceeding with gasohol production. Not only will its immediate production help ease gas supply problems, but we may also find better and more efficient ways of producing the product.

The Monday Holidays Too?

When it comes to budget cutting time a popular item always seems to be ending of Saturday mail deliveries.

That has been proposed again by the House Budget Committee.

The budget needs balancing and nothing should be sacrosanct, but surely there must be efficiencies that can be realized in the Postal Service which will allow the maintenance of service without deficits.

With all the Monday holidays, the Postal Service currently observes, there will be a lot of three-day periods with no mail delivery, if Saturday service is eliminated.

Quiet Revamping

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Almost everybody these days agrees that the way things are going in the United States, the end of free enterprise may not be far off.

But — shrug — what can you do about that?

At least one North Carolinian has found something to do about it and thinks his fellow industrialists and business leaders would be well advised to devote some of their time and money to join the battle.

W. David Stedman, Asheboro textile executive, has launched a series of one-minute spot announcements on 68 radio stations across North Carolina expressing his concern for the path the nation is following and urging citizens to get involved in changing that direction.

Stedman is paying for the production and broadcasting of those messages himself, a not inconsiderable expense. Last year the Stedman Corporation budgeted four percent of its after-tax profits to fight for free enterprise.

Join In
He is pushing the message that others should join this crusade. "In 1978, the profits of all corporations in this country amounted to some $125 billion. If each of them budgeted four percent, as we do, we would have $5 billion to put into this effort to turn this country around," Stedman told editors of "We the People Association."

"And for each of the five million businesses in this country, there is a chief executive officer, a manager, or an owner — someone who runs the store. If each of them would devote just five percent of his time each week to this cause — two hours each week — we would have something like 520 million manhours each year to put in the effort."

"With that, we could turn this country around," Stedman said.

At a leadership conference of the North Carolina Association of Chamber of Commerce Executives in Pinehurst, Stedman noted that the free enterprise system which built this nation "is in great danger. Our federal debt is so great that the interest alone on it is the third largest item in the Federal budget. The Federal government now prints 10 billion sheets of forms each year for businessmen to fill out. In 1978, more than 60,000 pages in the Federal Register were required just to print the new regulations imposed on business that year. And since 1960, of the eight industrialized nations in the world, the United States' perhour increase in productivity has been at the bottom of the list."

Socialism

He reminded listeners that over 40 percent of an individual's income is spent "not by you, but by civil servants", and that more people now receive government checks than there are workers in private business.

Stedman's concern turned to alarm four years ago when a British friend told him that the world's once-greatest empire was "going down the drain... toward bankruptcy" and that America, instead of learning from England's mistakes, was going down the

Taking Over A Church

WASHINGTON — Some bizarre First Amendment cases get to the U. S. Supreme Court every term, but you might have to go back to the days of Thomas Jefferson to find a case more mind-boggling than the assault of the state of California upon the Worldwide Church of God.

Jefferson's greatest contribution to the concept of individual liberty was his Statute of Religious Freedom. The Sage of Monticello must be spinning in his grave. California's incredible takeover of the Worldwide Church of God makes a travesty of the Jeffersonian doctrine. If ever a case presented a brazen intrusion by the state upon the free exercise of religion, this is it. The facts are not even significantly in dispute. Toward the end of 1978, a schism developed within the Pasadena-based Worldwide Church of God. The patriarchal leader of the church, 86-year-old Herbert W. Armstrong, split with his 48-year-old son Garner Ted Armstrong. Half a dozen dissident members of the church complained to the California attorney general that the senior Armstrong and his close associate, Stanley R. Rader, were overpaid; that they were pilfering church property; that they had conspired to sell church property at less than its fair value; that they had shredded church documents to prevent their disclosure; and that they were living in luxury at the expense of the church's 70,000 members.

The Worldwide Church of God, like many other denominations, owns its property as a non-profit corporation. Under the law of California, all such property is viewed as the property of the general public. The attorney general is charged with examining church records to determine if the public has been defrauded, or if a church has failed to comply with laws regulating charitable trusts. It is apparently immaterial that a church, as in this case, never has solicited funds from the "general public," but relies only upon the contributions of its own members scattered across the nation.

On the morning of Jan. 3, 1979, retired Judge Steven Weisman, accompanied by a platoon of lawyers representing the six dissidents and the attorney general, descended upon the church's headquarters. Weisman had an astonishing announcement: Without one word of notice to the church, he had been appointed its receiver. He came armed with an ex parte court order directing him to take possession and control of the church, including all its assets; to take over the management of the church to the extent that he deemed necessary in his sole discretion; to suspend or terminate any employee, and so on. One of Weisman's first acts was to fire the church's executive secretary Virginia Kineson.

For the next seven weeks, until church leaders were able to get the receivership lifted under a $3.4 million bond, agents of the state roamed at will through nearly 7,000 seized documents. The attorney general demanded that former church officials produce for judicial inspection not only financial records but also confidential papers having to do with matters of ministry and theology — for example, the unpublished page proofs of a manuscript, "The Doctrine of the Worldwide Church of God."

At no point has the church been accused of any injury to the public health or safety; the trial court has stressed that the church "has not been accused of any wrongdoing." The most serious allegations, having to do with the below-value sale of real estate for private gain, have been dismissed as mere hearsay.

It is beyond comprehension — beyond my comprehension, anyhow — how the state of California can assert a power to control what a church employee is paid. That issue lies at the very heart of this case. The basic allegation is that Armstrong and especially Rader were "siphoning off" church funds through their own salaries and perquisites. In Weisman's view, Rader's $200,000 annual salary was "outrageous." Remarkably, Weisman has submitted a bill for his services as receiver amounting to $51,000 for the seven weeks' work, which figures out to an annual rate of $78,000. Attorneys for the six dissidents — who incidentally have withdrawn from the case — are seeking

Sen. Baker Has Assets

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — The hottest prospect to become Ronald Reagan's vice presidential running mate is Sen. Howard Baker — a prospect that tempers the conservative movement's joy over Reagan's runaway campaign for the Republican presidential nomination.

Baker remains anathema to the right, mainly because of his support for the Panama Canal treaties but also because he backed such domestic proposals as the federal Education Department and President Carter's welfare reform bill. However, his moderate image and Southern background are prime assets in the view of many Reagan insiders.

Conservative leaders would much prefer George Bush if Reagan wants a moderate-appearing running mate, but Bush's poor campaign performance the last months has reduced his desirability. Other possibilities acceptable to the right include Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, Sen. Richard Lugar of Indiana and retired Gen. Alexander Haig.

Reagan And Pro-Life
Complicating Sen. Howard Baker's vice presidential prospect is a pledge from Ronald Reagan to name only a "pro-life running mate."

Reagan made the pledge in a Feb. 15 telegram to Father Charles Fiore of Chicago, chairman of the National Pro-Life Political Action Committee — an organization that has endorsed Reagan for president.

In ruling out possible running mates widely regarded as not pro-life — that is, who favor some form of legalized abortion — Reagan may have backballed several vice presidential prospects with powerful backing, including Baker, Gov. James Thompson of Illinois and possibly George Bush.

Reagan himself, although under attack in the past for some of his abortion policies as governor of California, promised the NPLPAC that he is definitely pro-life.

Carter's Teddy Fear
Fear of Teddy Kennedy inside the Carter White House has little to do with his chances to beat Carter for the nomination (regarded as zero), but everything to do with preserving or sweetening Democratic majorities in Congress and avoiding losses in lesser state elections.

The connection between Kennedy's continuing blasts as Carter, despite his impoverished showing in the primaries, and the congressional and state elections is money. As long as Sen. Kennedy battles Carter, already scarce party funds are siphoned away from the critical statewide and local elections. The Republican war chest is now close to $20 million, adding together the Senate and House campaign treasuries and the national committee's. The Democrats claim virtual bankruptcy.

The Republicans, on the short end today of a 59-to-41 Senate lineup, could conceivably win control for the first time since the 1952 election. With Democratic contributors continuing to pour money into the presidential contest the Republican prospect for picking up congressional and other elective offices is enhanced.

Carterites Vs. Strauss
The concealed resentment of longtime Carterites toward the president's campaign manager, Robert Strauss, is reflected by their secret codeword for him: "The Eagle."

"Strauss is like an eagle," explained one campaign operative, "who soars over the country to find a primary state where we're sure to win and then lands there." That reflects feeling by the Carter old guard that Strauss, a relative newcomer to the president's camp and a neutral in 1976, takes undue credit for Carter successes against Sen. Kennedy.

Actually, the charge is unfair. Strauss put together Carter's campaign in New York last fall when the president was a distinct underdog against Kennedy. But the "Eagle" codeword reflects the underlying tension between Strauss and Tim Kraft, Carter's longtime political operative.

Mel Lowers Sights
The resurgence of Ronald Reagan's presidential campaign has led former Gov. Meldrim Thomson of New Hampshire to reconsider his fading, right-wing independent campaign for president in favor of a race for the U.S. Senate — a prospect that generates mixed applause.

Thomson tentatively will dine the first week in April at the Massachusetts estate of the reigning conservative power in New Hampshire: William Loeb, publisher of the Manchester Union-Leader. If Loeb asks him to join the crowded Republican field challenging liberal Democratic Sen. John Durkin, Thomson may well say yes.

On name identification alone, Thomson probably would finish first in the Republican primary. Some New Hampshire conservatives regard him as the strongest prospect against Durkin. But right-wing political operatives in Washington have learned of Thomson's interest with dismay; they consider the former governor to be too controversial, and hence the one Republican surest to lose to Durkin.

Less Than Half

NEW YORK (AP) — For the first time since Americans were taken hostage in Iran, less than half of the public approves of President Carter's handling of the crisis, an Associated Press-NBC News poll says.

whether every step necessary — including military action — should be taken to try to free the hostages.

The result is that Carter's overall rating with the public has plunged to last summer's levels, as public judgment of his handling of foreign affairs has slipped to equal public opinion of his work on the economy.

More Bills Hasten Inflation

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — More than half of 172 bills passed last year by the 96th Congress, which now seeks to slow the pace of government spending, helped worsen inflation, a panel of business economists has concluded.

Most inflationary of all, said the economists, was the $1.5 billion Chrysler Corp. loan guarantee program, which they felt established anti-competitive precedents likely to show up in future prices.

Four other non-appropriations bills were included with the Chrysler guarantees as "significantly" inflationary, while 90 more were deemed "moderately" so. None was rated significantly noninflationary.

"Most of the bills judged to be inflationary weren't by themselves very significant," said George McKinney, chairman of the nine-member legislative panel of the National Association of Business Economists.

But, he said, "taken together, these bills, along with similar measures passed in earlier years, are a principal reason why inflation is now out of hand." Still, McKinney said he saw some hope.

"Even this disappointing record," he said, "represented some improvement over 1978, when a similar study show Congress passed five times as many inflationary as anti-inflationary bills."

McKinney, senior vice president and economist of Irving Trust Co., said committee members assessed each law and voted solely on the basis of its inflationary potential. No consideration was given to other potentially harmful or beneficial effects of legislation.

This is the second year the economists have graded Congress and its members who, McKinney says, may condemn inflation but vote for it.

Along with the Chrysler legislation, PL-185, the economists gave their worst ratings to PL127, continuing dairy product price supports; PL88, creating the Department of Education; PL128, raising disabled veterans' benefits; and PL125, authorizing $3.8 billion of military construction.

The committee also offered opinions on two budget resolutions.

The first resolution, in May 1979, approved fiscal 1980 budget outlays of $32 billion, revenues of $509 billion, and a $23 billion deficit. The second raised outlays $16 billion but revenues by only $9 billion. Congress earned a poor grade on both.

Now that Congress is talking about cost-cutting and budgetbalancing, McKinney feels "there may be reason to hope Congress is beginning to listen to the millions of Americans crying for an end to inflation."

The passage of bills, he and his associates observe, usually leads to the expenditure of money, either directly by the government or in the form of costs to taxpayers, and as such have an inflationary tendency. Fewer bills, he hopes, means less spending.

MEN CONTINUE MORE REMARKABLE
About twenty years ago, F.L. Lucan wrote, "Men remain more remarkable than anything men have made."

This is a good thought to remember, because men and women need to be very conscious of their worth as human beings — and of the dignity and worth of other people as well. The modern world often tries to make us forget our importance. We are poured in and out of factories, crushed into subways, piled hundreds of feet into the air in apartment houses. At fixed intervals we are herded into paying our taxes, registering our cars, and other mass activities.

Nothing restores and maintains human dignity better or more truly than religion. Men are more remarkable than what men have made: men were made by God. It is this fact alone which gives us value and importance. Our divine origin and destiny set us apart from all else, living or inanimate, large or small.

Family Life Conference Will Look 'Behind Closed Doors'

The twentieth annual Family Life Conference will be held on March 26 and 27 at ECU. The topic of the presentation is "Behind Closed Doors: A Look At Family Violence." Three noted speakers will give presentations on child abuse, family violence (nature, causes and intervention) and patterns of family interaction associated with child abuse and neglect.

Robert L. Burgess, professor of human development at The Pennsylvania State University, will speak on patterns of family interaction associated with abuse. He has published several articles in professional journals dealing with such topics as theory construction, delinquency, drug abuse, social cooperation, and communication.

Jane Malpass, director of C.A.R.E. will discuss intervention into family violence. She was employed by the Department of Social Services, Cumberland County, from 1972 to 1978 where she served as social worker, foster home licensing and supervision, and social work supervisor, AFDC protective services, foster home finding, problem pregnancy counseling, and title XX services. In 1978 Mrs. Malpass became director of C.A.R.E., the Cumberland County Domestic Violence Program.

Bettye Lord, the third speaker, is outreach coordinator for the C.A.R.E. program. In that position she serves as coordinator for public information and education, enlistment and training of volunteers as administrative assistant to the C.A.R.E. director.

The schedule for the family life conference will be as follows:

— Wednesday: 2 p.m. to 4 p.m., Nursing Auditorium, Mrs. Jane Malpass and Mrs. Bettye Lord, "Family Violence: Intervention Strategies;" 7:30 p.m. to 9 p.m., Allied Health Auditorium Dr. Burgess, "Domestic Violence: Its Nature and Causes."

— Thursday: 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., Education Auditorium, Dr. Burgess and Mrs. Lord, "Pat-

Planning-Zoning Agenda Readied

The Joint City-County and Greenville Planning and Zoning Commissions will meet Wednesday evening at 8 p.m. in the Council chambers at city hall.

Items on the joint board's agenda include: discussion of the Downtown Commercial Fringe (CDF) zoning district; discussion of the extraterritorial zoning boundary; discussion of rules of procedure; status of the US 264 study area;

Preliminary plat of the Lillian Tyson Dail property, located on the east of State Road 1447 some 150 feet north of the Belvoir Highway; preliminary plat of the Mary A. Smith Mobile Home Park east of State Road 1204 and north of State Road 1202;

Final plat of the Smith Mobile Home Park; and consideration of the sedimentation and erosion control plan for Whichport Subdivision, located south of US 264 Bypass and east of Belvedere Subdivision.

Business scheduled on the city agenda includes: request of C. J. Flanagan for rezoning 1.51 acres off Beech Street just north of Third Street from RA-20 to R-6; revised preliminary plat of Fairlane Farms (Block C) located on Hooker Road between Carolina Telephone property and Fairlane Road;

Preliminary plat of Landmark East Subdivision on Verdant Street across from King's Row Apartments; and final plat of Landmark East Subdivision.

Even Carter's new anti-inflation plan did not budge American opinion of his work, largely because people don't think it will work.

In the AP-NBC News poll taken Thursday and Friday, only 47 percent of those interviewed said they approved of Carter's handling of the Iranian situation. Forty percent disapproved and 11 percent of the 1,597 adults interviewed nationwide by telephone were not sure.

That is quite a drop from the 69-21 edge in approval Carter had in late December. And it is down from the 55-37 positive margin he enjoyed in the late January AP-NBC News survey.

The frustration over the more than 140 days of captivity for the Americans in Tehran is evident, as the public is willing to consider more drastic alternatives.

Forty-five percent of those questioned said that it is time to do whatever is necessary to try to free the hostages, even taking military action. A roughly equal 44 percent opposed such actions, with 11 percent undecided.

With this mounting frustration, Carter's ratings have dropped.

The church's petition for Supreme Court review is supported by friend-of-the-court motions from the National Council of Churches of Christ and from a number of Baptist, Methodist, Presbyterian and Evangelical bodies. The high court was expected to consider the petition at its conference this past Friday March 21. A decision could be announced any day.

Responded To 52 Fire Calls

During February the rural fire departments of Pitt County answered 52 alarms, with 52 fires.

There were 17 house fires; five house trailer fires; six building fires; five motor vehicle fires; four grass or woods fires; one false alarm; and 14 "others."

The Staton House Fire Department had the most fires, with 11.

Can't Keep Up With Requests

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — She has a larger staff than any first lady in the state's history — and an office in the Capitol. But Phyllis George Brown says she just can't keep up with all the requests for appearances and aid.

"People tell me I'm more active than any pregnant lady they've seen," the former Miss America and wife of Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. said recently. She is expecting a baby in July.

"But I am slowing down. I promised John, and my doctor, that I would calm myself down these last months," she said.

CETA Program Lacked Work Projects

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state auditor's office released a report Monday showing that youths who took part in an $11.6 million state jobs program last summer lacked adequate supervision and enough work.

The report also said some youths were paid for work they did not do.

The Summer Youth Employment Program is administered by the state Department of Natural Resources and Community Development and is funded by the federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act.

Thirty-eight non-profit organizations or local government units used $11.6 million to provide jobs for about 12,000 youth who were "economically disadvantaged" and between the ages of 14 and 21.

Jobs provided included building and grounds maintenance workers, secretary-clerical employees, lunchroom assistants, recreation aides, tutors and laborers.

The auditor's office reviewed 21 of the 38 local programs at the request of the U.S. Labor Department.

The report by the auditor's office criticized jobs provided by the program such as mowing grass and sweeping floors.

It said that although such jobs help develop good work habits, "such work was not very useful to a majority of youths" in the sense that it did not provide work experience in activities the youths could reasonably have been expected to be employed as adults.

In addition, the report said 15 percent of the youths did not have meaningful work and about 12 percent did not have enough work to do.

The auditors suggested the NRCDC closely consider the availability of useful jobs before it funds summer youth programs.

The report went on to say that some participants were not directly supervised for extended periods of time and adequate control was not kept over some participants' attendance and time records.

But the auditors said classroom training given to participants appeared to have been beneficial and a low percentage of the participants were found to be ineligible.

Murder Of Archbishop Shock To John-Paul II

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II and Roman Catholic Church officials were shocked and deeply saddened by the assassination of Archbishop Oscar Arnulfo Romero of San Salvador, Vatican sources said today.

There was no immediate official reaction, but the Vatican was studying reports on Romero's murder Monday in El Salvador and was preparing a telegram of condolences, the sources said.

Romero had met with the pope at least twice in the last 14 months, most recently a month ago. At the time, the archbishop told a reporter he was extremely concerned about events in his violence-plagued Central American nation.

The last ranking churchman killed in political violence was the Catholic primate of the Congo, Cardinal Emile Biayenda, who was kidnapped and murdered three years ago. The military government said Biayenda, the archbishop of Brazzaville, was killed by three members of the family of assassinated President Marien Nguabis, although tribal rivalries may have played a role.

Cardinal Biayenda was the second Catholic cardinal assassinated in this century. A Spanish cardinal, Archbishop Juan Soldevilla of Saragoza, was ambushed and shot to death by anarchists on June 4, 1923, during a church-state conflict on religious freedom.

In recent years, a number of Roman Catholic missionaries have died when caught up in violence in Africa and Latin America.

Police List 2 Accidents

Two traffic collisions at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Hooker Road yesterday resulted in an estimated $4,250 property damage, according to Greenville Police Department investigators.

Officers reported cars driven by John Lossie of Jacksonville, and Mitchell Shirley Avery Jr. of 1145 Woodstock Dr., collided at the intersection about 4:11 p.m. causing $3,000 damage to the Lossie car and $500 damage to the Avery vehicle.

At 7:24 p.m., cars driven by Lela Boyles Smith of 612 Elm St. and Donna Elizabeth Brownie of Winston-Salem collided, resulting in $75 damage to the Smith car and $675 damage to the Brownie vehicle, investigators reported.

A third collision yesterday — a 7:35 p.m. mishap on Tenth Street, 500 feet East of the Anderson Street intersection — involved cars operated by Albert Barbee Council III of Oakmont Sq., and William Lane Wilson of Route 1, Grimesland.

Police estimated damage from the collision at $450 to the Council car and $650 to the Wilson auto.

Carter 'Spoof' At Demo HQ

WASHINGTON (AP) — Callers who dialed a certain number at the Democratic National Committee last weekend heard a recorded spoof of President Carter, complete with background banjo music and taped excerpts from Carter speeches.

But it was all a mistake, embarrassed party officials said — a gag tape that was accidentally left on a telephone playback machine.

"I put it on Sunday just for a few minutes, but when I finished my tests, I forgot to take it off," he added. "If I had had any idea that anyone on the outside would hear it, I wouldn't have used anything like that."

When party officials discovered Monday that people had learned of the recording and were dialing the number to listen to it, the tape was quickly taken off.

Bob Hirschfeld, chief of broadcast services for the committee's news department, said the tape was being used in a live test of telephone equipment for a dial-in message service at the Democratic National Convention in New York next August.

On the three-minute tape, heard by reporters before it was removed from the machine, a serious-voiced narrator said Carter obtained "seed money" to start his 1976 presidential campaign by signing on as a donor for the "Atlanta Sperm Bank."

The message also said Carter raised campaign money by selling supporters into slavery. This was followed by Carter's voice describing various Americans by age and income. Taken out of context, it sounded as though Carter was reciting a price list.

Hirschfeld said the tape, made for a 1977 Christmas party, has been erased and "will never be on again."

Judge Rules For Bigger Pay Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge has ruled that he and his colleagues on the federal bench should get a 12.9 percent pay increase this year instead of the 5.5 percent raise given other high-level government employees.

Phi Beta Kappa Rejects NCSU

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina State University has been rejected as the site for a Phi Beta Kappa chapter for the second time in less than two years.

U.S. District Judge John Lewis Smith Jr. ruled Monday that a law to put a 5.5 percent ceiling on the pay raises does not apply to federal judges. Originally, most federal employees were to receive a 12.9 percent cost-of-living adjustment this fiscal year. The suit decided by Smith was filed by the administrative office and individual federal judges. Smith said if Congress had wanted the lower pay level to apply to judges, it should have specifically mentioned them in the law.

The honorary academic society notified the school it would not consider the school for a chapter until 1982.

The school was turned down in August 1978 because of its small library collection devoted to liberal arts, low faculty salaries and inadequate honors programs.

The society told school officials that not enough change has been implemented on campus to merit another full review for a chapter.

Five North Carolina schools have chapters of the society: the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, UNC-Greensboro, Duke University, Wake Forest University and Davidson College.

Revenue-Sharing....

"If these funds are cut out, or cut back drastically," Wyatt said, "the effect in Greenville would be devastating. We have become dependent on these funds for many of our operations."

An indication of the degree of concern shown by the city government is that both Mayor Don McGlohon and Councilwoman Judy Greene attended the League of Municipalities meeting in Washington, D.C. last week, where the issue of Revenue Sharing Funds dominated the thinking of representatives from towns and counties across the nation.

Pitt County — Pitt County Manager Reginald Gray observes that "Pitt County would lose almost one million dollars if Revenue Sharing Funds go by the wayside. This would severely handicap our programs."

Total Revenue Sharing Funds allocated to Pitt County, Gray said, "amounts to about $5.3 million dollars. A sizeable portion of these funds have been used in the construction at Pitt Memorial Hospital."

Other major usage of this source of funds in Pitt County mentioned by Gray are "in the county's solid waste program in land acquisition and building of sites, for the renovation of the old hospital for a county offices building, and as funds for the capital outlay budget for the schools."

Gray added that "some of the funds have also been used in the law enforcement area, as well as a small amount in the general administration area."

Like Wyatt, Gray emphasized the importance of the no-strings attached policy that has made Revenue Sharing Funds such a boon to local governments.

"Of all federal funds, Revenue Sharing is the only one that gives flexibility on how the money can be used. There's not many other grants available anymore, and those that are, the categorical grants, are just about useless. Nobody wants them, because they're tied up in so much needless red tape, forms and paperwork." Gray feels that with many of the grants, the problem is "that everybody is over regulated. One agency after another reviews them, often in the same area. It's a discouraging overlap, a duplication."

Williamston — In adjacent Martin County, Donnie Pittman, Finance Officer for the county, in general voiced agreement of viewpoints expressed by Wyatt and Gray.

"We have received about half a million dollars in Revenue Sharing Funds for the current fiscal year," Pittman said. "This is also about the amount we've gotten each year over the period of years the funds have been available."

In predominantly rural Martin County, these funds have been used "basically to provide assistance to the health department, to the county home, and for law enforcement."

"Some of the money has been used for land fills, which, from what I understand, is one of the major usages of Revenue Sharing Funds in many communities in the state."

Ayden — Ayden's Town Manager Don Russell said that a cut in Revenue Sharing Funds would necessitate "our drastically reducing our town services or else consider a sharp increase in the tax rate. And I don't think people are in the mood for tax increases."

Russell noted that in the past eight years, "the town of Ayden has received a little over half a million dollars, or about $67,000 each year."

"With these funds we have purchased two sanitation packers, police cars, a fire truck and spent something like $150,000 over the years in street improvements."

One of the fears expressed by Russell is the quality of service in maintaining the town's equipment will be lowered. "A Revenue Sharing Funds cut would certainly hit us hard. We've grown accustomed to having them, and have tied many of our programs in with these federal funds."

Farmville — The town of Farmville, according to Town Administrator Patrick (Pat) Thomas, has to date received a total of $573,150 in Federal Revenue Sharing Funds. "I expect that with two more quarterly payments of about $15,000

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — A 21-year-old drifter has been charged with attempted capital murder and aggravated kidnapping in the abduction of an 8-year-old girl who survived a 13-hour burial under a pile of rocks.

Justice of the Peace Phil Hoseney set bond Monday at $100,000 for Jeffery Stephen Goldberg.

The girl's name has been withheld. But police reports said she disappeared Wednesday after going to play on the beach, and was found 13 hours later buried alive under a pile of rocks. Some of the rocks weighed as much as 40 pounds, authorities said.

The girl was sent home Sunday after treatment at John Sealy Hospital for bruises and exposure.

Officer Rick Singleton and Ronald Larmondin, a tourist from Ontario, Canada, said they discovered the child after hearing a whimpering sound coming from the rocks.

Police arrested Goldberg, also known as Steve Cummings, after beach visitors reported seeing the girl walking with a man carrying a backpack.

each," Thomas added, "the total will run over $600,000."

In Farmville, the types of projects enumerated by Thomas as those for which these funds have primarily been used "include public works projects such as parks and landfills."

"We've also used some for improvements on the water system, and for purchase of capital fund equipment such as an electric line truck, a bulldozer, a back hoe, and sanitation vehicles and police cars," Thomas said.

The specter of having to raise local taxes or else cut services or even do without some services was a concern mentioned by Thomas. "Whatever happens, if the funds are not available from one source or another," he said, "there will have to be a decline in productivity."

Retail Sales Increased In '79

Greenville recorded $329,814,576 in retail sales for 1979, an increase of some 16.59 percent over 1978 figures, according to statistics compiled by the Research Department of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce.

The Chamber report reflected sales of $282,863,099 for 1978, up some 13.32 percent over the 1977 retail sales total of $249,599,318.

The percentage increases for 1978 and 1979 ranked Greenville at or near the top of the group of eastern North Carolina cities included in the Chamber statistics.

Pitt County, according to the report, recorded $453,354,797 in retail sales in 1979, up 12.81 percent over 1978. The 1978 total of $401,866,176 reflected an increase of 11.31 percent over 1977 retail sales of $361,019,083.

Comparative totals in the eastern section for the three-year period included: New Bern, $180,081,859 (1977), $195,955,958 (1978, up 8.81 percent), $222,644,117 (1979, up 13.61 percent);

Avers Morgan Is A 'Spender'

Republican John East, a candidate for the U.S. Senate has charged that Democratic incumbent Robert Morgan, "during his five years in Washington...has too often voted with the big spenders who have brought us 18 percent inflation, a trillion dollar national debt, and 18 percent interest rates."

East, an East Carolina University faculty member, said Morgan's absence from a Banking Committee session March 17 at which presidential advisor Alfred Kahn explained the Carter administration's latest anti-inflation plan, "shows a lack of compassion for the people suffering from inflation."

The Republican charged that Morgan has attempted to mislead the public with the impression that he has supported limits on federal spending.

However, according to East, Morgan's record, "shows that he has opposed limits on government spending. For example, Morgan voted against the kind of real spending and tax reduction that leads to a balanced budget and less inflation."

"Morgan's inability to handle economic issues is reflected in his failure to support Sen. Helms' attempt to stop funding Soul City. Over the years, the federal government has poured $29 million into Soul City with limited results," East noted.

"When Sen. Helms pushed an amendment through the Senate to cut off further funding, Morgan failed to support him in a House-Senate Conference Committee. As a result," East continued, "the Soul City controversy continued and now must be settled through extensive court proceedings."

East said too, that Morgan has supported, "the wasteful CETA program," and has voted for $31 billion in foreign aid.

"He wasted taxpayers' money on expensive junkets to Panama, the Soviet Union, England, Korea, and Taiwan," according to East, who noted, "with inflation and the prime interest rate approaching 20 percent, it's past time that Congress took strong action to restore economic stability."

Arrest Pitt Countian On Extortion Charge

A Rt. 1, Winterville man has been charged with extortion following an investigation by Pitt County deputies into a recent demand for money and life threat received through the mail by a rural couple.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson reported that authorities arrested Wiley Bertie Jones, 67, at his home in connection with the extortion investigation.

Sheriff Tyson said that Raymond Harris, also of Rt. 1, Winterville, told officers that he and his wife received a letter on March 20 demanding $40,000 in cash and threatening the couple if the money demands were not met.

According to the sheriff, Harris reported that the hand written letter instructed him to place the $40,000 at Rose Hill Church at Haddock's Crossroads where it would be picked up. The letter also warned Harris not to use marked bills.

Although some money was delivered to the site, the cash was not picked up.

Sheriff Tyson noted that the letter, which was addressed to Harris and his wife, was dated March 18.

Bond for Jones on the extortion charge was set at $1,000, according to the sheriff, and a first appearance hearing was scheduled for today in District Court here.

Pitt deputies were assisted in the investigation by Jim Wilson, agent with the State Bureau of Investigation, Sheriff Tyson said.

Investigation is continuing, he added.

Although some money was delivered to the site, the cash was not picked up.

Sheriff Tyson noted that the letter, which was addressed to Harris and his wife, was dated March 18.

Businesses Can Still Be Served

Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon, who said last week that the department did not have the facilities or manpower to allow burglar alarms in homes to be hooked up to monitors at the police station, said today that business firms will still be served as in the past.

He said burglar alarms may be purchased from any licensed dealer for installation in commercial buildings. However, the chief emphasized that before an alarm is connected to monitors at the Police Department, they must be approved by him.

Information regarding alarm installation may be had by contacting the chief's office he noted.

Name Winners In Science Fair

Winners in the Ayden Middle School Science Fair that was held March 17-20 have been announced. First, second and third place winners were chosen from each science class. A panel of four judges from the school faculty judged the projects Tuesday afternoon.

Ribbons were presented and the following students were first place winners: Christy Rouse, Angela Reeves, Steve Cochran, Melvin Green, Matthew Pritchett, Roger Bowen, William Coley, Wendy Rouse, Malcolm Carmichael, Jackie Conway, Tommy Butler, Leo Venters and Melvin Mills.

Some of the projects will be displayed at Carolina East Mall in April.

Fireman Is Arrested

MONROE, N.C. (AP) — Union County sheriff's deputies have arrested a Mecklenburg County teen-age volunteer fireman and charged him with making false reports of a damaged aircraft and a false fire alarm.

Bryan Harold Beam, 18, was arrested Friday and charged with making a false report to a law enforcement radio station and making a false fire report last Tuesday. Both are misdemeanors.

The calls allegedly made by Beam, a member of the Providence Volunteer Fire Department, sent about 60 emergency personnel to Goose Creek airport, a small private airstrip in northwest Union County.

A sheriff's spokesman said the caller said there was a single engine plane that intended to make an emergency landing at the airport and the plane had only 15 minutes flight time left.

Authorities said two other calls reported an explosion and fire about 10 miles southwest of the airport.

The sheriff said several members of the Providence department who listened to tapes of the telephone calls to the volunteer fire departments identified the voice as Beam's.

Wilson County Jail For Sale

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — Bargain hunters in Wilson County are flocking to a jail sale. The county is selling the jail, lock stock and steel commodes.

The county got the idea when its new jail was completed a month ago. Bids for removing the old jail fixtures ranged from $40,000 to $50,000 and county officials said that was too much.

The result is that they decided to put the 56-year-old courthouse up for grabs. Harold J. Blizzard, an assistant to the county manager, said Monday there would be no charge for items taken from the jail.

"People can get anything in there that's steel and can be removed," he said. "They can bring torches, hacksaws or a crane, (but) hopefully not dynamite."

Ask For N.C. Rate Increase

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina State Bureau has asked the state Department of Insurance for a 6 percent rate increase in dwelling fire and extended coverage insurance.

The insurance is held mainly by owners of residential rental properties and also is purchased by occupants of apartments or other residential properties to cover the cost of replacing personal property.

Paul L. Mize, general manager of the bureau, said the figure is calculated by an increase of 10.6 percent for fire coverage and a decrease of 6.5 percent for the extended coverage. The increase would take effect Aug. 15.

Strike Affects Handicapped

ST. LOUIS (AP) — More than 4,000 of the city's 15,000 handicapped students were sent home when special education teachers here staged a one-day strike over wage demands.

About 750 of the 1,200 teachers voted last week to stage the walkout, contending a proposed 12 percent salary increase included welfare and benefit items.

Special School District Superintendent Thomas E. Smith said about a third of the physically and mentally handicapped students were sent home Monday because there were not enough teachers to run all classes.

Reactor Is Back On Line

SOUTHPORT, N.C. (AP) — Carolina Power and Light Co.'s No. 1 reactor at the Brunswick nuclear power station was back in operation this morning following its automatic shutdown early Sunday morning.

A spokesman for CP&L said today that the unit was operating at about 50 percent capacity. The utility said the unit apparently shut down when a water-level instrument registered an incorrect reading.

That reading allowed the water level to rise too high, trip the turbine and shut the reactor down. As a result the entire Brunswick facility was out of commission because the No. 2 reactor was down for refueling and routine maintenance. The No. 2 unit will remain out of service until May 11.

Meanwhile, an emergency planning review team from the Nuclear Regulatory Commission arrived in Southport today for a routine inspection. Its visit is not linked to the shutdown.

Indicted In Gun Death

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — A grand jury today indicted Jean Harris, the former headmistress of a posh girls' school, on a charge of second-degree murder in the shooting death of Dr. Herman Tarnower, developer of the Scarsdale diet.

The grand jury charged the 57-year-old Mrs. Harris, Tarnower's long-time companion, intended to kill him at his Purchase, N.Y., home by firing four shots from her .32-caliber gun.

The 69-year-old physician died March 10 shortly after the shooting. Mrs. Harris, then headmistress of the Madeira School in Virginia, was intercepted at the home by police as she backed a car of the driveway.

In indicting Mrs. Harris, the grand jury rejected the possibility that she acted under an "extreme emotional disturbance."

Westchester District Attorney Carl Vergari said the issue of Mrs. Harris's emotional condition at the time of the killing will be decided at her trial.

Mrs. Harris, who is free on $40,000 bail, remains in a Westchester County hospital for psychiatric and medical treatment.

Griffith Leads Louisville To Title

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer
INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Darrell Griffith raced to the basket, soared high in the air as the buzzer sounded and pounded the backboard repeatedly with both fists, finishing off his finest moment with typical American guard whose 23 points and poise down the stretch helped Louisville beat

"This makes it all worthwhile," said Griffith, the All-UCLA 59-54 Monday night for the school's first national basketball championship.

"This is the one I wanted," he added. "Four years ago, when I came to Louisville, I said that before I leave we would have a championship. Now I feel I've upheld that commitment."

It was a commitment he shared with Denny Crum, who took over as coach of the Cardinals nine years ago. Although his teams won more than 24 games per season and were always highly ranked, they never won the national title.

Justly or not, Crum had earned a reputation as being unable to win the big one — a reputation that was finally laid to rest Monday night.

"This is the greatest," said the dapper, 43-year-old Crum, who served as an assistant at UCLA before coming to Louisville. "This is the proudest I've ever been. This team has been very special to me because they worked harder than any other. At the end of the game, when the going got tough, they hung in there and did what they had to do to win."

What they did was score the last nine points of the game, force mistakes with pressure defense and hold UCLA scoreless for the final 4:32 to overcome a 54-50 deficit.

"We missed shots and turned the ball over at crucial times," said Larry Brown, the first-year coach who brought UCLA back from an 8-6 start to within one game of its 11th national title. "They converted when they had to and we got a little out of synch. With a young team, that happens."

"Losing hurts, and when you think you can do more as a coach, it hurts more. But I'm so proud of this team and of being a part of the UCLA tradition."

That tradition — 10 NCAA crowns within 12 years under Coach John Wooden, the last in 1975 — was never far below the surface in this tournament. It was on Crum's mind, even at the moment of his greatest victory.

"But you can't live in the past," Crum reminded. "I felt we should have won in 1975, when we had the best team, but UCLA beat us (in the semifinals). This was our time."

And a tough time it was. The game was a tense, hard-fought struggle in which both teams shot poorly, at least partially because of tenacious defense. Neither club led by more than four points in the first half, which ended with UCLA on top 28-26.

"Both teams were tight," said Crum. "Both had a lot of young players, and the fact that the game meant so much put a lot of pressure on them."

Since Louisville has been a team known for its looseness all year long, Crum decided to shake things up at halftime.

"He told us we were choking," said guard Jerry Eaves. "He was mad and he had a right to be."

The Cardinals, who made just 11 of 31 shots in the first half, responded by hitting 13 of 22 after Crum's comments. And they continued to play the sticky man-to-man defense that had kept them close throughout the first half.

After eight lead changes, UCLA was clinging to a 54-50

Two-Thirds Said Favor Boycott

NEW YORK (AP) — Although they would rather see the Summer Olympics moved to another country, about two-thirds of the respondents in an Associated Press-NBC News poll say the United States should boycott the Moscow Games.

Sixty-five percent of the 1,597 adults questioned in telephone interviews around the country said they favor a boycott, while 26 percent opposed a withdrawal and 9 percent were undecided.

Asked whether the Games should be moved, 74 percent of the respondents said yes, 18 percent said no and 8 percent were not sure.

President Carter called for the boycott because of Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan. The International Olympic Committee has refused to consider moving the Games out of Moscow.

An AP-NBC News poll in late January showed that those who had heard of the Afghanistan crisis backed a boycott by a 73-19 edge.

In the January poll, those who knew of the Soviet actions in Afghanistan backed moving the Games by an 82-13 edge.

A Roper Poll conducted in early March for the U.S. Olympic Committee said Americans favored a boycott under the present circumstances by a 58-28 margin.

In the interviews conducted Thursday and Friday, the respondents first were asked: "Do you think that the 1980 Summer Olympics, now scheduled to be held in Moscow, should be moved to another country because of Soviet actions in Afghanistan or don't you think so?"

The respondents then were asked: "If the 1980 Summer Olympics are not moved out of Moscow, do you think that the United States should withdraw from them or don't you think so?"

Riley In Final 60

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col. — East Carolina's Kathy Riley survived the first cut during the Olympic Basketball team trials, being held here this week.

A total of 60 people survived that first cut, which pared down the unit from 205 people. Three sessions of tryouts were to be held today, during which final cuts down to around 15 were to be made.

Among other in-state people surviving the first cuts were Sam Jones of Louisburg, Trudi Lacey of N.C. State, and Theresa Brown of Sanderson High School in Raleigh.

Cardinal Fans Go Wild

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A pep rally for the national champion Louisville basketball team had to be called off early today because thousands of fans wouldn't let the team off the bus.

Shortly after defeating UCLA 59-54 Monday night at Indianapolis, the Cardinals boarded the team bus for the two-hour drive south to Louisville.

When they arrived at the campus, the streets were littered with thousands of bottles and cans, the street lights were covered with red banners and a bon fire was keeping the crowd warm.

The fans had gone wild. They danced downtown on Muhammed Ali Boulevard and the blare of car horns barely could be heard above the roar of cheering crowds of students who celebrated on campus.

Numerous intersections were filled with people. At one location, on the city's west side, overly exuberant celebrants tossed rocks and bottles at police briefly, but a police spokesman said order was quickly restored. There were no injuries reported.

When the team bus arrived on campus, the fans crawled all over it and began banging on the doors for the Cardinals to come out.

"It's hard to estimate the size of the crowd," said Sgt. Joe Dittman of the Louisville police. "My guess is about 5,000." All-America guard Darrell Griffith and forward Wiley Brown were able to sneak out of the back of the bus and were quickly driven away in a police car.

Later, Griffith and Brown returned to Crawford Gym in hopes that the rally would still be possible. It wasn't.

Little League Registration

The Greenville Little Leagues will hold registration for new players coming into the league on Thursday and Friday.

Registration will be held at Elm Street Center at Elm Street Park from 4 to 6 p.m. on the two days.

To be eligible, a prospect must live within the Greenville city limits or within the Greenville City Schools boundaries. They must have been born between August 1, 1970 and July 31, 1971, to qualify as age 9 players; August 1, 1969 and July 31, 1970, for age 10; August 1, 1968 and July 31, 1969, age 11; and August 1, 1967 and July 31, 1968, age 12.

A birth certificate must be presented and at least one parent or guardian must accompany the prospect.

Accepted candidates will report to the tryouts, which will begin on Monday, April 14 at 4 p.m. at Elm Street Little League Field. They must provide their own shoes and gloves. Candidates must attend at least 50 per cent of the tryouts to be eligible for the draft.

All returning players now on a Little League team are now required to re-register on Thursday, April 10 and Friday, April 11 at 4 to 6 p.m. at Elm Street Center. Player must bring a certified birth certificate and be accompanied by at least one parent or guardian.

The Jaguars play host to Eastern Wayne Thursday.

Carroll Leads Purdue To Win In NCAA Consolation Over Iowa

By CHUCK SCHOFFNER
AP Sports Writer
INDIANAPOLIS (AP) —

After an eventful basketball season that ended with his team in the NCAA Final Four, Purdue's Joe Barry Carroll can go back to being a student again.

The 7-foot-1 Carroll concluded a sterling career by pouring in 35 points and grabbing 12 rebounds to spark Purdue past Iowa 75-58 in an all-Big Ten NCAA consolation game Monday night.

Carroll, a first-team All-American, frustrated Iowa at both ends of the court, sinking 14 of 17 from the field goal attempts and blocking four shots. He's a certain first-round pick in the NBA draft, but he says his thoughts right now are on school work.

"I'll get up in the morning and go to class," Carroll said when asked about his future. "I'll become a full-time student again. I'm in line to graduate on time at this point and that's the next thing in line for me."

Carroll's 35 points, which included 20 in the first half, gave him a record 158 points for six NCAA tournament games. The previous mark was 142 set by last year by Tony Price of Penn.

In Purdue's last game with Iowa, Carroll was limited to seven points and hit only one of 13 shots.

"We did not do a very good job of keeping the ball away from him," Iowa Coach Lute Olson said. "When Carroll is playing hard, I don't think there is anybody in the country better than he is."

Carroll scored eight straight points late in the first half to erase a 25-22 Iowa lead and help Purdue to a 32-27 advantage at halftime. Iowa got get no closer than three points in the second half and Carroll capped the victory with a slam dunk in the final minute.

"I'm very happy to win the game," Purdue Coach Lee Rose said. "There's been a great deal of talk and discussion about the value of a third-place game. I think when you lose, it doesn't give you much of a platform to speak to the issue."

"But this is a most difficult game to play. Whatever can be done about modifying or adjusting it, we'll make some recommendations to the NCAA committee."

When Carroll left the game to a standing ovation from the Purdue fans, he tried to shake hands with Olson, but Olson turned away and went back to his seat.

"It has been customary for me whether we win or lose to go over and shake hands with the opposing coach," Carroll said. "I gestured toward Coach Olson, but he declined. I have nothing but praise for Coach Olson and his team."

Olson's only comment was, "I have great respect for the Purdue team. I really don't care to comment on it."

Both teams finished the year 22-10. Kenny Arnold led Iowa with 19 points.

Games Are Postponed

Rains in the area forced the postponement of several area athletic events yesterday.

East Carolina University's baseball game with Ohio was washed out after an inning and a half, with the Pirates trailing 4-2. Raymie Styons had cracked a home run to account for the two ECU runs. The game will not be rescheduled.

A softball game between Jamesville and Belhaven was reset for today.

No new dates have been set for the play of the following: East Carolina at Campbell tennis; Farmville at Washington girls track; Rose at Washington softball; Rocky Mount at Rose girls track; Greene Central at Tarboro track; and Beddingfield, Washington at Farmville Central track.

Darrell Unhappy About One Thing

By HANK LOWENKRON
AP Sports Writer
INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Darrell Griffith, deprived of an honor he believes he deserved, captured one he says he'll cherish as long as he lives.

"I was disappointed," he said about not being selected as college basketball's player of the year. "I was the only senior on a team with three sophomores and one freshman. I think that speaks for itself."

Griffith scored a game-high 23 points Monday night, leading Louisville to the National Collegiate Athletic Association basketball championship with a 59-54 victory over UCLA. The spectacular senior also was selected as the outstanding player in the tournament.

"This wasn't the Darrell Griffith show, this was a team effort," Griffith said. "But winning the national championship is something that will always be with me and I wouldn't trade it for any honor."

"They used three people," said Louisville Coach Denny Crum about UCLA's defense against Griffith. "Any time you use three guys to try to guard someone is an indication of how difficult it is to stop him."

The victory gave Louisville a 33-3 record, the second winningest NCAA champion ever behind 1948 Kentucky, which was 36-3.

"This team's been special to me," said Crum after achieving his first championship following two previous Final Four losses to UCLA in the semifinals. "It's worked harder than any team I've had...It's the best conditioned team I've had."

"I don't think they ever lost a close game. They didn't quit at all, they have great character and earned everything."

Griffith's 18-footer put the Cardinals ahead to stay 56-54 with 2:21 remaining, breaking the game's 11th tie.

"I knew the other guys could do it, and I didn't want to force anything," Griffith said. "But I felt it was my responsibility."

The Cardinals overcame a 28-26 halftime deficit after an irate Crum yelled at them during the intermission. But the game was still up for grabs until the Cardinals scored the game's final nine points.

"He said we were rushing our shots and he told us we were choking in the national championship game," said guard Jerry Eaves, who started Louisville's streak of nine consecutive points with a pair of field goals that tied the game with 2:54 remaining. "He was mad and he had a right to be."

"I felt we had to do something to wake them up," said Crum, referring to his halftime talk. "I told them if we got beat, fine, but make them earn it."

to a long-time friend from Louisville who is stricken with cancer. "We dedicated this championship to Jerry. I just hope it uplifts him a little."

It was the lowest scoring NCAA title game in 23 years, since North Carolina beat Kansas 54-53 in triple overtime. And it was Louisville's first victory over the Bruins in four meetings, all in NCAA tournaments.

Louisville, which was ranked second behind DePaul in the final Associated Press poll, drew a first-round bye, posted overtime victories over Kansas State and Texas A&M and then beat Louisiana State and Iowa en route to the final. The Cardinals finished with a 33-3 record, the second-winningest NCAA champion ever behind 1948 Kentucky, which was 36-3.

UCLA, which was unranked and finished 22-10, had beaten Old Dominion, DePaul, Ohio State, Clemson and Purdue in its Cinderella drive which fell one game short.

Purdue, getting 35 points from Carroll, beat Iowa 75-58 in the consolation game for third place.

About one-half hour after Louisville had won the title, Crum was called out of a news conference by a state patrolman who told him President Carter was on the phone. But when the Cardinals' Coach got on the line, he was cut off.

It was the only thing that went wrong for Denny Crum Monday night.

"He's a great, great player — the kind you need to have to be a winner," praised UCLA Coach Brown.

"We never gave up," said Griffith, who was named the outstanding player in the tournament and joined Vandeweghe, Foster, McCray and Joe Barry Carroll of Purdue on the all-tournament team. "When we got down, we kept our poise and came back."

"I'm real happy for Jerry Stringer," he added, referring

Bruins: We're A Winner

By STEVE HERMAN
AP Sports Writer
INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Rod Foster, UCLA's streaking freshman guard, feels deep-down the Bruins are winners, and he accepts defeat with a maturity that reaches far beyond his 19 years.

The 6-foot-1 bolt of lightning repeatedly driving through Louisville's defense to the basket, was the catalyst that carried the Bruins to the threshold of another NCAA basketball championship, falling five points short in the closing minutes.

"No, I wasn't really surprised we made it this far," whispered Foster, sitting quietly in the subdued UCLA dressing room after Monday night's 59-54 loss to Louisville's Cardinals.

"We knew we had a better team than our record showed. We knew from the beginning that later on in the season, through experience, we'd be a better team."

The 10-time NCAA champion Bruins suffered a dismal 8-6 start under first-year coach Larry Brown. They fell to a fourth place in the Pac-10 Conference, an unthinkable position in years gone by, and barely made the post-season tournament they dominated for so long under Johnny Wooden.

But a funny thing happened along the way. The freshmen grew up, and the upperclassmen started playing like...well, like UCLA.

"Everybody realizes the adverse circumstances we had to overcome to get here," said Kiki Vandeweghe, one of just two senior starters for the Bruins, who closed the season at 22-10. "I'm very proud of our team. We don't have anything to be ashamed of."

"We weren't as all-around physically gifted as a lot of teams we played, but we didn't give up when a lot of teams could have," said Vandeweghe, who backed Foster's team-high 16 points with 14 points and seven rebounds.

"When we got here, everybody was saying UCLA is back. I don't know if they'll be back next year, but I know they'll be in contention," Vandeweghe said.

Brown was obviously disappointed, but he too found a cheering note in the Bruins' defeat.

"In terms of what we accomplished this year, it was a super season," he said. "This is a class bunch of kids. I don't know how many could have bounced back the way they did after the way we started. They can be as proud as any (of the 10) national championship teams at UCLA."

The Bruins seemed to get control of the see-saw game late in the second half. A basket by Vandeweghe gave UCLA a 54-50 lead with 4:32 to go, then Vandeweghe stole the ball and missed a driving layup. That's when the entire complexion of the game changed, Brown said.

"We thought if we got up by six and maintained our lead, we could make them play defense and their own shots wouldn't come easily," Brown said. "But Kiki got out of synch on his drive, we rushed a couple shots and then threw the ball away a couple times."

"Louisville played great. They hit the shots when they had to. That was the difference. That's why they're the national champions now," Brown said.

A-G, Williamston, Roanoke Are Hopeful

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer
Despite returning 11 players from last year's 9-7 ballclub, Ayden-Grifton softball coach Kathy Purvis is not predicting a conference crown — yet.

"We're going to have a lot more depth this year with those girls back and we've got some power hitters this year, but I still think D.H. Conley will have the top team," Purvis said.

The Chargers, however, can be expected to make a fight of it, especially after defeating Conley 11-8 Monday in their season opener. But her squad has fooled Purvis before.

"I thought we had a good chance of winning it (the conference) last year, but they fooled me," she said.

Among the 11 returnees are three seniors: shortstop Marie Lewis, left fielder Irene Lewis and center fielder Danielle Elks. Another senior, Aretha Cannon, out for her first season, will battle Sarah Cannon for the right field slot.

Other returnees are first baseman Ann Strong, second baseman Edna Braxton, catcher Sandy Fulford, pitcher Evelyn Artis, and left fielder Joan Abritton.

Reserves include Lisa Wood, Angela Griffin, Freida Cox, Debbie Ellis and Cathy Sarber.

"Defensively, I have a lot of confidence in them. Last year they didn't make that many mistakes, they were making the right throws," Purvis said. "But right now we're just ready to play. With all the rain we've been having — our girls have been practicing for three weeks — the girls are just ready to play."

Williamston
Williamston opens the softball season today against Roanoke but Tiger coach Peggy Taylor believes it may be midseason before her girls are ready.

Starting freshmen at shortstop and second base this season, Taylor is hopeful the early season will give her young players needed experience.

"We're going to be young inside, at shortstop and second base, and it's going to take them some time," said Taylor, who will have Lynn Mills at short and Vernistine Laughinghouse at second. "The team should be settled down by midseason, if they're going to be. By the middle of the season we should be making our move, if we're going to."

The Tigers return seven players off last year's 10-3 squad, led by pitcher Sherrie Singleton, left fielder Betty Davis and center fielder Carolina Hudgins.

Also back are catcher Ginger Edwards, first baseman Jan Rogerson, third baseman Regina Rogerson and right fielder Lori Gurkins.

Sophomore Theresa Duffy will play short field.

Reserves include juniors Marsha Griffin and Mary Gwen Hardison and sophomores Ann Davis, Deborah Leggett, Celestine Perkins, Gail Smith and Beverly O'Mary.

Freshman Teresa Raynor and Harriet Lilley round out the Tiger squad.

"I'm going to have a young bench," Taylor said. "There's a lot of raw talent there, but they need to mature. And we're not going to be a strong hitting squad. We'll have to rely on our defense and pitching. I'm just hoping they'll all come around."

Roanoke
With only two players returning from last year's 6-8 club, Roanoke softball coach Phil Griffin realizes it may be a long season.

"We'll probably have a back seat in the league race this year," Griffin said. "Just look at it: out of 17 players 13 are sophomores and freshman. We've just got a really young team."

"I don't know what to expect from them this year," said Griffin, whose Redskins open the season today against Williamston. "I do know that Williamston is going to be real tough. I'd rather play someone else."

Back this season for Roanoke are second baseman Louis Lee and first baseman Sylvia Parker. Starting for the first time are juniors Juliet Barnhill (pitcher/outfield), Cynthia Burnette (outfield), Darlene Coefficient (third).

Also expected to start this season are sophomores Brenda Coston (pitcher/outfield) and Eilane Biggs (shortfield), while Deneen Lawrence is expected to see action at third.

Freshman starting this season are catcher Loretta Knight, shortstop Mary Bland and outfielder Mary Ann Morning.

Reserves include Sherilyn Barnhill, Penny Haislip, Jeanee Roberson, Christy Taylor, Cynthia Parker and Alice Dew.

"What I've seen so far is that we're going to have a better hitting team, up and down our lineup, than we did last year," Griffin said. "But our defense is going to suffer, mainly because of our inexperience."

"We've got a lot of work to do, but if the girls are willing to do it I think we can improve and maybe get over .500."

Let's Do It This Way

Carter Says No To Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the second time in two months, a proposal by American athletes to attend the Summer Olympics but protest the Soviet military action in Afghanistan apparently has been turned down by the White House.

Members of the Athletes Advisory Council to the U.S. Olympic Committee met over the weekend to word a proposal by which athletes would compete at Moscow but boycott all formal ceremonies. The athletes also would arrive just before their competition, stay in the Olympic Village or training facilities throughout, not accept any medals, and leave immediately after competing.

They also would not go sight-seeing or engage in any tourist activity.

A White House aide, who requested anonymity, said a similar proposal had been considered — and rejected — two months ago. The aide said he had not studied the more recent offer, but added, "It's obviously unacceptable. The President has made his decision."

The decision, as he told the athletes over the weekend, was: "I can't say at this moment what other nations will not go to the Summer Olympics in Moscow. Ours will not go. I say that not with any equivocation. The decision has been made."

In a formal statement, the Council said: "We feel, consistent with President Carter's position, that a visible, peaceful demonstration is the most effective means by which the world and the world's athletes can present this message to the people of the Soviet Union."

The action of boycotting the Games must be made by the U.S. Olympic Committee. That organization's House of Delegates is to meet in Colorado Springs, Colo., to make the formal decision.

Lady Bears Down Lakers

SWAN QUARTER — Bear Grass High School rolled to a 15-11 softball victory over hosting Mattamuskeet yesterday.

The Bears had to rally in the late innings to pull it out, however. After taking a 4-0 lead in the first inning and a half, the Bears fell behind, 10-5 after four frames.

But they came up with three fifth inning runs, and added seven in the sixth, including a grand slam homer by Mary Rawls, to get the win. Mattamuskeet picked up one more in its half of the sixth.

Bear Grass was led by Angie Mizelle with three hits, including a double and a triple; while Linda Whitehurst, Joette Rogers and Rawls each had two. Redden had three, including two triples to pace the Lakers, while Gibbs had two.

The Bears, now 3-1, travel to Aurora on Wednesday.

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — It's only coincidental, one baseball executive insisted, but major league club owners meet here today, one day before negotiators resume talks aimed at arriving at a new basic agreement amid a strike threat by the players.

Ray Grebey, chief negotiator for the club owners, and Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association, will be meeting for the first time in Arizona after earlier sessions in New York and at the Florida training sites.

The timing of today's meeting is coincidental, Gabe Paul, president of the Cleveland Indians said, though he agreed the negotiations will likely be the major topic of the day.

Grebey issued a news release Monday stating that "the process of collective bargaining is working."

The statement revealed no new or anticipated moves by the owners, but briefly reviewed what Grebey regarded as progress made at the most recent session last week. It also appealed to players to open the baseball season on time whether or not an agreement has been reached.

"Baseball played in 1976 while still negotiating a new basic agreement," Grebey said. "Basketball has done the same thing this season and football once went three years before a new agreement is signed. The fans have a right to expect...our season to open on time."

'Razor Close' To Perfect In TV Deal

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

"A man can travel far and wide, all the way to shame and glory and back again, but he ain't never going to find nothing in this old world that's dead solid perfect." From the novel, "Dead Solid Perfect," by Dan Jenkins.

It is taxing, scrutinizing the deal that writer David Rintels has with NBC and trying to detect a flaw. If this isn't dead solid perfect, it's as close to it as television comes. Razor close.

NBC has asked Rintels to go out into America and produce plays for the network's new theater series. Find plays you like, they said. Spend what you must. Get the best actors available. You want to rehearse them for four weeks, as if you were on Broadway? Okay.

"They didn't even blink," Rintels says. "And they know the quality of actors we're going to be using."

Yes, such as Henry Fonda, Penelope Milford, Cloris Leachman, David Ogden Stiers, Tim Hutton and George Gizzard. And that's just the cast of the first production, "The Oldest Living Graduate," part of the late Preston Jones' "Texas Trilogy."

Kite Contest

A kite flying contest is being held at 9:30 a.m. Saturday, March 29 at Jaycee Park on Cedar Lane. The event is being sponsored by the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department with registration to begin promptly at 9:30 a.m. All kites are to be registered and ready to be flown by 10 a.m.

Two categories are being staged — homemade kites, and all other types.

Competition will be within age groups 5-7, 8-9, 10-11 and 12-14. Prizes will be given in different categories. All kites must actually be flown to be eligible. No fishing poles or reels will be allowed.

Raindate for the event is Tuesday, April 8 at 2 p.m.

The play will be aired live from the Dallas Theater Center ("It's where Jones lived and wrote," Rintels says) on April 7. There will be another production later this year, and at least four next year.

"I told NBC that I wanted to do plays from the regions, not just New York and Los Angeles, plays from writers that spoke with a different voice than the one we usually hear."

The extraordinary NBC project was born of a meeting Rintels had six years ago with some IBM executives after IBM bought Rintels' play "Clarence Darrow" for television. There, he met Jane Cahill Pfeiffer, who eventually became NBC's chairman of the board.

"Jane and I talked about it, and it never occurred to me to say no. It was a chance that anybody in television would be thrilled to have, to be able to pick good plays and do them live and do them the right way."

He says NBC has not even hinted at commercial factors, such as ratings. Can this be?

"We can do anything, we have set no rules. I could do a play on Broadway, if I wanted, or Puerto Rico. Or Texas."

"After the two this year, and the four next year, we'll sit down and discuss it. I want to see if people like it, if it's for people, if it's good for NBC. We'll see."

There is one problem. Rintels has been working on a World War II play for five years, a play he's aiming toward Broadway. "In my priorities, writing is more important than producing. I want to see if this (the NBC theater project) will give me any time to write. So far, it hasn't."

So it's not dead solid perfect. But close.

An Egg Hunt For Seniors

Senior citizens of the greater Greenville area will be treated to an Easter egg hunt Friday afternoon on the Downtown Mall, according to a spokesman for the Downtown Greenville Association, sponsors of the event.

They will be further entertained at a reception given by First Federal Saving in their Mall Office lobby. Additional entertainment will be provided by a continuous strolling men's and women's fashion show. The egg hunt will start at 1 p. m. and the reception at 2 o'clock. All of the more than 200 "eggs" will contain prizes furnished by the downtown merchants. Easter Bunny models will act as hostesses during the afternoon.

Coordinating the activities will be Jim Herring, chief rabbit, and his assistants, Cheryl Lynn McArthur, in charge of the fashion show and Sherrill Duncan and Herb Wilkerson, in charge of the egg hunt.

Asks Money For Suicide Report

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The author of the best seller "I'm OK — You're OK" says he is definitely OK — and he wants $19.5 million in damages after a report that he had committed suicide.

Psychiatrist Thomas Harris and his collaborator and wife, Amy, filed suit in state and federal courts charging a Maryland-based evangelist, a Sacramento radio station and others with slander.

Harris contends Larry Tomczak told a conference last June that "the author of that book committed suicide about two years ago and yet people are still practicing some of his philosophies." He said radio station KFIA played a tape of the speech.

"I'm OK — You're OK" helped popularize transactional analysis, which is based on the theory that everyone has "parent, adult and child" traits that should be brought into balance. Its authors say the 1969 book sold 10 million copies.

Cast Announced For Li'l Abner

The cast for "Li'l Abner" is as follows: Abner-Paul Tucker; Daisy Mae-Susan Carson; Mamma Yokum-Jane Burrus; Pappy Yokum-Roger Nelson; Marryin' Sam-Jerry Simpson. Other cast members include Lynn Allen, Eddie Ballard, Marty Barber, Debbie Briley, Terry Briley, Kim Carraway, Lisa Carraway, Carlton Davis, Katrina Gray, Cindy Heller, Amanda Holliman, Andy Holliman, Lori House, Denise Joyner, Lou Ann Keel, Jackie Lee, Tammy Lee, Trellis Moore, Vince Parker, Terry Pritchard, Jerry Redmond, Barry Warren, Donna Warren, Tammy Whitehurst, John Wilson and Scarlett Wright.

Dick Schapp To Be Joining ABC

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC sportscaster Dick Schapp will be joining ABC News in late April, the network has announced.

Schapp has covered major sporting events for NBC's "Today" program for the last two years. Recently, he covered the Winter Olympics for the show.

An ABC spokesman on Sunday would not disclose Schapp's salary or the length of his contract.

Crowd Chased Film Publicist

NEW YORK (AP) — Sixty angry teen-agers who said they had been promised cash and movie roles for showing their support for a new film called "Fort Apache" had to be held back by police as they chased the film's publicist out of a Manhattan courthouse.

The incident came Monday as residents of the South Bronx went to court to stop filming of the movie, which stars Paul Newman as a police officer in the crime-ridden neighborhood. The residents contend the film portrays blacks and Hispanics as "savages and degenerates."

The film's producers denied they offered teen-agers movie roles and $15 each to demonstrate in favor of the film.

Stuntman, Not Stallone Filmed

NEW YORK (AP) — Teen-age fans and old folks alike gathered to gape and gasp at what they thought was actor Sylvester Stallone dangling above the East River. But it was a stuntman there.

Stallone, who starred in the hit movie "Rocky," is a fitness buff but too valuable a property to risk dangerous scenes. So it was stuntman Tony Maffatone — a dead ringer for the star — who climbed a cable to the Roosevelt Island aerial tram from a tugboat on the river below.

Shooting of the film "Hawks" got underway Monday despite the protests of island residents angered at having their shortest link with Manhattan taken away for use as a movie set. The filming was further delayed by legal action and weather.

Burt And Sally Said Splitting

NEW YORK (AP) — Burt Reynolds and Sally Field, one of Hollywood's most celebrated couples, are splitting up. The New York Daily News reports.

The paper said in today's editions that the couple, who met during the filming of "Smokey and the Bandit" is ending the relationship with completion of the filming of a sequel in Jupiter, Fla., in about a week.

No reason was given for the breakup, the paper said.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, MAR. 26, 1980

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day and evening when some peculiar conditions exist so be sure not to commit yourself to any new course of action that could lead you in the wrong direction. Be alert.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Don't be taken in by some situation that looks good but may be deceptive and could cause you a great loss. Be wise.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) The situation at home could be deceiving, but say little now and plan how to handle problem wisely. You can profit from this.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Concentrate on how to economize more instead of spending money like there's no tomorrow. Don't let others impose on you.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You have to use much care in handling money at this time if you wish to avoid possible heavy losses.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You may think you can do more than you actually can, so be more practical and logical. Use your fine intuitive faculties now.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A private matter is not just what it seems to be, so check and double-check all facts and figures before making a decision.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Accept only the best of invitations for later in the day, and show others that you have wisdom. Strive for increased happiness.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Make sure you don't take any risks in career affairs or you could regret it later. Strive for more harmony at home.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You are able to engage in new outlets that could produce added income in the future. State your aims clearly to associates.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study both assets and disbursements well so that you know exactly where you stand. Sidestep a troublemaker.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Obtain the data you need from the right sources. Then look into new avenues of expression that can add to your income.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get busy and remove whatever is not suitable in your environment. Handle all that work ahead of you in a positive fashion.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will enjoy doing detailed work and could become most successful at whatever is tackled because of the ability to concentrate. Don't neglect ethical training which will keep the consciousness on a high level.

Memorial Gifts A Custom For Many

The practice of making tax-deductible contributions to charities in honor of deceased relatives and friends has become a habit with many people in North Carolina, according to Dr. John Yeager, Public Information Chairman of the Pitt County Heart Association.

"During the last 30 years, memorial gifts have become an important source of funds for our life-saving programs," he said, "and we are grateful for this support. In addition, we find that more and more people are choosing the same method of honoring the living on birthdays, wedding anniversaries, Mother's Day, Father's Day and similar occasions."

There are three ways to make memorial gifts to the Heart Fund, Dr. Yeager pointed out. Checks, made payable to the Heart Fund, may be sent to the N. C. Heart Association, One Heart Circle, Chapel Hill, N. C. 27814, or they may be sent to the Pitt County Heart Association treasurer, Mrs. Nancy Warren, c/o NCBN, Greenville, N. C. 27834. If time is pressing, gifts may be made by phone and payment sent later. The Chapel Hill telephone 919-942-8781, is reserved for memorial gifts and is answered between 8 a. m. and 5 p. m. daily, except Sunday, when it is answered between 1 and 5 p. m. Master Charge may be used when calling the state office. The number is listed in the white pages of the telephone books throughout the state under "Heart Fund Memorial Gifts and Information," Dr. Yeager said.

Hearing Continues On Washington County Sheriff

PLYMOUTH, N.C. (AP) — Testimony was scheduled to resume this morning before a Superior Court judge concerning a petition to remove Washington County Sheriff Robert S. Sawyer for failing to carry out the duties of his office.

Judge John Russell Jolly Jr. refused Monday to dismiss charges against Sawyer, 62, a law-enforcement officer in the area for 30 years and who is beginning a second term as sheriff.

Sawyer has denied any wrongdoing and has charged the removal attempt was prompted by malice. District Attorney William C. Griffin filed the petition.

Jolly denied the motion by defense attorney Perry Martin to dismiss the action. Martin contended the statute under which it was filed is vague and it would be unconstitutional for the case to be heard without a jury.

Judge Napoleon Barefoot ordered Sawyer suspended after a preliminary hearing Feb. 28. He directed Chief Deputy Walter Peal to serve as an interim sheriff.

As testimony began Monday, F.M. Proctor, an Edenton policeman, testified that he recovered some stolen tools several weeks ago and gave them to Sawyer to be returned to their owner. Proctor said the tools were still in the trunk of a Sheriff's Department automobile Monday.

Charles D. Coppage, a Plymouth attorney, testified Monday that Sawyer has not served papers issued Oct. 15 in an ejection proceeding.

A witness for the state, Ashby Furlough of Goldsboro, testified that he was made a trusty while in jail for drunken driving in 1978. He said Sawyer left him alone in the sheriff's office for periods of up to one hour. Furlough said he sometimes answered the telephone or talked on the sheriff's radio and on occasion had access to keys to the jail.

Grant Tew, a former Highway Patrol trooper who was stationed in Washington County, testified that Sawyer interfered with the arrest of a man on drunken driving and other charges in December 1975.

Martin contended Sawyer asked to have the defendant taken to a doctor because his wrists were bleeding. Martin added that Sawyer is the top law-enforcement officer in the county and said the trooper could have been considered to be interfering with Sawyer.

Griffin, in the original removal petition and an amendment filed March 13, charged that Sawyer:

—Refused to investigate when a man called the sheriff's department and reported he had "committed a homicide."

—Allowed his wife to serve a criminal summons and that she had served it on the wife of the defendant.

—Allowed his wife to operate his official car and to illegally transport members of their family in the car.

—Allowed inmates of the county jail to operate the radio and telephone in the sheriff's office to such an extent that they had acted as dispatchers for the sheriff's department.

—Failed to report to the district attorney a confession that the sheriff knew would tend to clear a defendant charged with crime.

—Refused to allow Chief Magistrate Billy Blackburn to enter the sheriff's department.

—Illegally released Blaze Styons, a prison inmate being held for trial, in the custody of the man's mother.

Registration Days Planned

Mayor Don McGlohn proclaimed March 28 and 29 as "Voter Registration Days" in Greenville.

McGlohn said that many civic organizations, businesses and churches are joining the city in encouraging people who are eligible to register before registration books close on April 8 for the May 6 primary.

The mayor issued the proclamation, it was noted, in support of one of the goals recently set by the City Council: to encourage voluntary citizen participation in government.

He noted, "Voting is a fundamental act of personal participation in government, and registration is the prerequisite to exercising the right to vote."

Special registration commissioners will be at shopping and neighborhood locations on March 28 and 29 to take registration, he reported.

On Friday, March 28 from 2-8 p.m., registration will be taken at Carolina East Mall, Pitt Plaza, Piggly Wiggly on Dickinson Avenue, and at Harris Supermarket on Memorial Boulevard.

On Saturday, March 29 from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m., registration will be taken at the Moyewood Housing office, South Greenville Recreation Center, First Federal Savings & Loan, Elm Street Gym, Peoples Baptist Temple, and Meadowbrook Day Care Center.

Registrations can be made between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. any weekday at the Pitt Board of Elections office on E. Second Street. Registrars are also located at the city libraries and at Rose High School.

McGlohn said that anyone having a question about the special voter registration drive, or anyone needing a ride to register on March 28 and 29 can call 752-4137 from 8 a.m. until 8 p.m. on March 28 and 9:30 a.m. until 2 p.m. on March 29.

Outings Discussed By Senior Citizens

Town and Country Senior Citizens Club held its business meeting Thursday at the St. Paul's Episcopal Church Fellowship Hall.

Linda Chamberlain showed an eleven minute preview film on the movie "Jesus" which will be in Greenville March 28-April 3. Advance tickets may be obtained by contacting Sarah J. Ashton.

Members were also reminded that articles and baked goods for the March 29 sale to be held at Carolina East Mall should be taken to the mall by 8:30 a.m. that day.

Plans for future trips to Nag's Head to see "The Lost Colony," to Pembroke to see "Ride the Wind," and to Bath to see "Bluebeard" were discussed. Plans for a trip to Carowinds were also made. Members interested in going should contact Mrs. Ashton.

The club and several members were given certificates of appreciation from the March of Dimes. The 1980 yearbooks were distributed and it was announced that members are now selling the club's cookbook.

Ms. Magalene Taylor and J.B. Harrell of Tarboro entertained the group with piano and guitar selections and songs. Devotions were given by the Rev. Adrian Brown.

Refreshments were served by Mabel Tripp, Christine Nicholas, Geneva Webb, Mildred Sutton, Mellie Dail, Hortense Edwards, Lillie McLawhorn, Lena McLawhorn, Ruth Gurganus, Thelma Cherry, and Elnor Jones. The Rev. Henry Lofquist closed the meeting with prayer. Around 90 members attended.

Warehouse Course Set

The Industrial Extension Service of North Carolina State University's School of Engineering will conduct a short course on "Planning and Managing Warehouse Operations" at the Holiday Inn in Greenville April 22-23.

The course will center around a how-to-do-it approach to warehouse management.

The instructor will be Dr. James Tompkins, president of the consulting firm of Tompkins Associates and an adjunct member of the NCSU faculty. He is an authority in material handling, facilities design, and warehousing.

This course is designed for managers and engineers concerned with the planning and management of warehouse operations, inventory managers, warehouse managers, distribution managers, materials handling engineers and industrial engineers.

Additional information and registration forms for the course can be obtained from Charles S. Cooper, Engineering Extension Coordinator, Box 5506, Raleigh, N.C. 27650.

Crew Leaders

Crew leaders who will supervise much of the local effort in the upcoming 1980 Census of Population and Housing were appointed recently by Bill Hodges, manager of the census district office in Greenville, N.C.

The manager said each crew leader will supervise from nine to 13 enumerators or census takers in the national count that begins April 1.

In their training sessions, crew leaders are learning how to recruit, train, and supervise enumerators who will be hired for this area in the near future.

Crew leaders recently appointed include James A. Ross, Audrey B. Taylor, Reginald Savage, Ernest Theil, Gail Stevens, and Nell Gardner, all in Pitt County.
