The 1980 Census Begins Officially On April 1

According to the constitution, "a complete count must be taken of the American people and where they live every ten years. This count is called the census, and 1980 is the year for it."

"The government has spent a lot more this year making sure things are done right," according to Bill Hodges, manager of the U.S. Census District Office in Greenville. The twentieth decennial census of population and housing will begin officially on April 1. The district office on Memorial Drive is responsible for gathering information in 21 counties in the northeast part of North Carolina.

"In the next few weeks, the workers in Greenville will be editing the forms as they come in to make sure all questions are answered. After that, we will begin what is called Follow Up I."

Hodges explains Follow Up I, saying "Each house is plotted in an ED - enumerator district - and persons assigned as district enumerators will be visiting each location that has not returned a form. Follow Up I will begin around 15 days after the forms are due back."

According to the manager, Follow Up I is aimed at getting the questions answered. "A response to the forms is our major objective here," said Hodges. "After this is completed, then Follow Up II will begin."

Follow Up II will deal with questionnaires answered incorrectly. "Where forms have been filled out improperly, and mistakes of this nature exist, we will be trying to get them corrected with this second follow up," explained Hodges.

"Next week we will begin census-taking in what are termed 'special places.' In other words, motels, college dormitories, military places, hospitals, and prisons. Some of these are handled by a different group of people, for example, the military," stated Hodges. "The military does it for us - we supply the forms and they are responsible for

"We are responsible, however for motels, etc. This will begin next week."

The district office employs around 125 people to get these jobs done. According to Hodges, "The strength of the Greenville Office will be around 125. We have no sub-offices, but we have three supervisory personnel. We also have crew leaders, including five in Pitt County. Each crew leader has an average of 13 enumerators." He added, "Two of these crew leaders are in Greenville."

"In twenty-one counties we are employing over 800 people," explained Hodges. He emphasized that in some outlying areas the office is still in need of people to work.

The office will be open in Greenville until August. "We are scheduled to be completely finished by the eighth of August," said the manager. The information has to be delivered to the government by January 1, 1981, and by April 1, 1981, the great process of redistricting comes about."

According to the Bureau of Census, North Carolina's population is expected to increase ten to 15 percent since the 1970 census.

There are 409 census districts in the United States and nine in North Carolina. According to Hodges, the Greenville District Office is one of five in the nation doing experimental work. "We are hand-carrying the census to households, and this is scheduled to finish up on March 27."

"We are doing this for several reasons," he explained. "To see if we do a better job this way, primarily. As of yesterday we are 78 percent through."

"We also have 11 lines for a toll-free number that assists people having difficulties filling out their forms. This is much more economical than sending people out to assist."

Hodges emphasized that this number (1-800-682-6561) is manned six days a week from 8:30 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Body Recovered From Tar River Identified As Long Missing Man

JOYCE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

The body of a man, reportedly missing since February 12, was found in the Tar River about 5 p.m., Saturday according to Fred Hall of the Greenville Police Dept.

Hall identified the man as David Eugene Howard, Rt. 1, Bethel.

A canoeist, John Amenma, sighted the body floating on the river and reported it. Greenville Fire-Rescue personnel, with the assistance of B.R. Hardy and Amenma, recovered the body. According to Hall, the body was floating face up about eight or ten feet from the north bank of the river. The body was removed from the scene to Pitt Memorial Hospital where the victim was identified by personal papers.

According to Hall, an autopsy will be performed to determine the cause of death.

On February 12, a young black male was reported having jumped from the Greene Street bridge into the Tar River. Members of the Fire-Rescue department and Grifton and Farmville Squad volunteers searched the river continually for four days. For an additional ten days, they periodically patrolled the river in search of the missing body.

The body removed from the river Saturday fits the description of the missing victim. He was approximately 5 feet 10 inches tall, weighed about 160 pounds, and was 27 years old.

More Than 80 Killed

ANKARA, Turkey (UPI) — A landslide and two days of heavy rain have killed more than 80 people throughout Turkey, officials said Saturday.

In the village of Ayvazhaci, the death toll from Thursday's landslide rose to 64 as more bodies were recovered from the debris, according to Babur Unsul, governor of Kayseri province in central Turkey.

Officials said 23 people were reported drowned in other sections of the country.

Torrential rains continued through Saturday in southern Turkey. Many homes in Adana were flooded and houses there and in the southern Anatolian provinces were evacuated. Railways and roads in the area were closed, officials said.

Rally Against Settlements

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Israelis opposed to the policy of settling Jews on the occupied West Bank fanned out along major highways Saturday to demand the resignation of Prime Minister Menachem Begin's government.

The demonstrators — estimated by police at 1,000 and by their leaders at several thousand — jammed intersections and stood several hundred feet apart along sections of the speedways linking Jerusalem with the coastal cities of Tel Aviv and Haifa.

They carried placards urging Begin to "Submit your resignation to the president" and saying, "This government will not fall by itself; it must be pushed."

Organized by the dovish "Peace Now" movement, the protest marked the first the first massive public display of opposition to government policy since the signing of the year-old Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty.

London Subways Closed

LONDON (UPI) — Aghast at the thought that things could get as bad as they are on New York's subways, the employees of London's underground went on strike Saturday to demand better police protection.

The result was as things may be in New York April 1 if there is a transit strike: chaos.

All 249 stations on the city's 10 subway lines were closed as conductors, engineers, ticket sellers and ticket collectors stayed home in response to a call by rail unions to halt service on the "Underground" for one day.

About 900,000 people normally use the subway on Saturdays. Many jammed buses, which still were running, walked, or ran races to catch prized taxis.

Calls For Tax Incentive

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The head of the North Carolina Savings and Loan League Friday called on the state to match federal legislation providing tax incentives for small savers.

W. D. Lee, chairman of the S&L league, proposed an exemption of the first $200 in interest or dividend income from state income taxes to stop the flow of money out of the state's savings and loan associations into higher interest-bearing investments.

Search Called Off For 83 Missing Men

Death Toll 123 In Oil Rig Disaster

By DAN COWELL

STAVANGER, Norway (UPI) — Officials called off the search Saturday for 83 men still missing from the worst oil rig disaster in history, saying there was no chance of anyone else surviving the collapse of the 10,000-ton Alexander Kielland

"floating hotel" in the icy North Sea.

The death toll from Thursday's disaster stood at 123. And officials said the decision to end the massive air and sea search at dusk Saturday virtually assured that the toll would be permanent.

There were 89 survivors.

Forty bodies had been recovered and the rest were believed to be entombed in the Alexander Kielland, a four-story living platform for oil workers drilling in the North Sea 175 miles off Stavanger, Norway's principal support base for its offshore oil operations.

Officials said there was no way anyone could still be alive 48 hours after the giant platform — longer and wider than a football field — broke a support leg and capsized during a gale.

"It is not a question of them living in air pockets," said rescue official Per Vasseboth. "(It is) the cold — both in the water and the air.

They could have died in minutes."

Coast Guard officials agreed, saying that an hour or two was the longest even a strong and very fit person could have survived in the 41-degree waters.

Norwegian officials set up a temporary morgue in a green hangar at an airport in Sola, Norway, but by nightfall Saturday only a handful of the 40 bodies recovered had been identified.

Meanwhile, a dispute was brewing between Norwegian authorities and the Phillips Petroleum Company, operators of the Alexander Kielland, over the way Phillips kept track of the people it had aboard the platform.

Norwegian police earlier this year criticized Phillips for not keeping a proper account of the men aboard the platform at any given time.

When the accident occurred, officials said 208 men were aboard the platform. Then the figure was revised to 228. On Saturday Phillips changed the figure two more times, settling on 212.

"The accident occurred during a shift change. That is the reason for the confusion," a Phillips spokesman said.

Most of those still missing were believed trapped in their rooms, in dining halls or in a theater where many of them were sitting down to watch a movie when, in the words of one survivor, they heard "an almighty crack." Moments later, men and furniture were sliding along walls and crashing on the ceiling as the platform turned turtle and plunged into the sea.

All that remained to mark the spot were four of the platform's five floatation pods still bobbing on the surface of the cold and choppy sea. The fifth leg, the one that broke and caused the disaster, was floating about a half mile away.

Phillips said the severed leg would be towed 175 miles to Stavanger for inspection today.

There had been speculation the Alexander Kielland also would be towed to port but officials said they were worried about bodies floating out of the platform if it were moved. Phillips spokesman Per Eric Bjorklund said the company had not yet decided what to do with the wreck.

U.S. Nears Decision On Iran

By JIM ANDERSON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — State Department officials expect the White House to decide next week what steps it will take on the Iran problem and they say

Airport Grant

Congressman Walter B. Jones has announced the approval by the Department of Transportation of an airport development grant in the amount of $284,200 to Pitt-Greenville Airport.

These funds will be used to acquire land for clear zone approach and approaching clearing for runways 1-19 and 7-25 and to install obstruction lights.

military force is not a likely possibility.

The 50 American hostages have been held at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran almost five months now and there are no signs they will be released anytime soon.

While the White House has not announced its plans, U.S. officials have said privately in recent weeks that America's options might include:

—Imposing an embargo on all trade with Iran except food and medicine. This idea was shelved when there were renewed hopes the crisis might be resolved, but is once again under consideration. Diplomatic observers said the embargo would have little impact, however, since most U.S. trade with Iran has already been stopped.

—Reducing the number of Iranian diplomats in the United States. There were over 200 in America when the crisis began, and most were ordered to leave earlier, but substantial numbers remain.

—Asking western allies to take economic measures against Iran and reduce the size of their diplomatic missions in Tehran. But diplomatic analysts said America's allies are so dependent on Iran's oil they are unlikely to adopt significant sanctions.

U.S. policy, officials said this week, is aimed at making Iran pay more and more for holding the hostages — economically and politically. Officials said there appears to be a growing realization in Iran that the Khomeini revolution is beginning to crumble because of Iran's isolation and the hostage crisis.

The senior American official said evidence indicates the hostages are physically well but will be "psychologically scarred" by their ordeal.

He said that any harm to the hostages — including psychological damage — "would require a different level of response" from the United States.

White House Calls Letter To Khomeini 'A Hoax'

By United Press International
Tehran Radio said Saturday that President Carter had sent an apologetic letter to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, calling past U.S. policy mistaken and expressing understanding for the embassy militants. The White House said the report was a hoax.

The report by Iran's state-controlled radio came as the Carter administration was reported on the verge of adopting a tougher policy of economic sanctions against Iran for refusing to free the 50 American held for 147 days by Moslem militants at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

Tehran Radio, monitored by the BBC in London, said Carter had sent a letter in which he told Khomeini, "My government inherited a very sensitive international situation, which is the result of other policies and circumstances and made all us to commit (sic) mistakes in the past."

The supposed letter said, "We are ready to accept the new realities which are consequence (sic) of the Iranian revolution."

On the subject the embassy takeover, the radio quoted Carter as saying, "I can quite understand that the occupation of our embassy could have been an acceptable reaction for Iranian youths."

The letter said the United States was "quite innocent" in the shah's move last Monday to Egypt.

At the White House, press secretary Jody Powell said "the president has sent no such message to Khomeini or anyone else."

White House officials said no administration official has drafted any letter to Khomeini or other officials.

"There's no truth to it, at any level" one said.

The question of whether the United States will confess mistakes in supporting the deposed regime of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi has come up in diplomatic efforts to free the 50 American hostages, held since Nov. 4.

Iranians have said, as a condition for release, the United States must acknowledge wrongdoing in Iran. Carter, thus far, has sidestepped the question

The reports from Tehran also raised the possibility of an American agreement to have an international tribunal look into alleged abuses under the shah, once control of the hostages was turned over to the Iranian government, rather than the militants now serving as captors.

In other developments Saturday, a Tehran newspaper said a man who killed his five-month pregnant sister to save his family's "honor" claimed her unborn child had been fathered by an unnamed hostage.

The report in the newspaper Kayhan said authorities wanted to conduct blood tests on the hostage to check the unidentified man's claim. The man, who demanded the hostage's "execution," told police his 23-year-old sister originally said a taxi driver had raped her but then changed her story, saying she had had sexual relations "one of the spies now in the embassy."

STRANGLER'S SISTER — Man identified as Abdulnasser A., center, is escorted by police after he turned himself in for killing his sister by strangulation on Thursday, the Tehran newspaper Kayhan reported Saturday. According to Kayhan, the female Iranian student was hanged by her brother because she became pregnant by one of the Americans being held hostage at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. (AP Laserphoto)

Vehicles driven by Tommy Wade Gardner, 200 Edgewood Ave. and Donald Edward Lee, Lot 35, Riverview Est. collided at Riverview Ests. near Greenville Boulevard about 2:35 p.m. Friday. Damages were estimated at $150 to Gardner's vehicle and $300 to Lee's vehicle.

About 2 a.m. Saturday, a vehicle driven by Naomi Best Parker, 303 Church St. collided with a guard rail on the N. Memorial Drive bridge. Police set damages to the Parker vehicle at $600 and $10 to the guard rail.

About 12:45 p.m. Saturday, a vehicle driven by George Edward Jones, Rt. 6, Box 350, Goldsboro collided in the Red Oak Plaza Parking Lot with a vehicle driven by William Elwood McKinney, 103 Holliday Ct. Damages were estimated at $100 to the Jones vehicle and $400 to McKinney's.

About 1:30 p.m., a vehicle driven by Denise Jean Umphlett, 503 Pine St., collided with a parked vehicle on W. 12th Street. Damages were estimated at $75 to the parked vehicle

Files Pro-Laetrile Suit

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A pro-Laetrile group has filed suit in federal court accusing the National Cancer Institute and the Mayo Clinic of conspiring to "ensure failure" of tests of Laetrile.

The suit filed Friday asked U.S. District Judge William Ingram to temporarily restrain human testing with "degraded" Laetrile at the Rochester, Minn., clinic until the suit is resolved.

The suit claims the clinic and Dr. Charles G. Moertel, head of its Comprehensive Cancer Center, "have conspired with the NCI ... to ensure failure of the tests" by refusing pure amygdaline (Laetrile) offered by pro-Laetrile forces at no charge.

The suit also says cancer institute officials "have engaged in a course of conduct designed to predetermine negative results of human testing

Canoe Capsizes

Two East Carolina University students escaped injuries when their canoe capsized while riding on the Tar River early Saturday afternoon.

The students were identified as John Overton and Roger Delaney. Their canoe hit a stump and capsized, according to Paul Nethercutt, asst. fire chief. One of them swam ashore and Fire-Rescue personnel were already on the scene searching for the missing body reportedly found, he said.

Three Killed In Landslide

NATCHEZ, Miss. (UPI) — A mudslide caused by torrential rains sent dirt and debris crashing onto a popular river-front tavern and sandwich shop Saturday, killing three people and injuring seven others.

Police said one or two more victims might be buried under the mud and rubble of the shattered buildings. "We hope we've got everybody but we are going to keep searching until we are sure," said Capt. Tom Delaney.

A hospital administrator said three peoples were killed in the mudslide and seven were injured. Five of the injured were treated and released and the two who remained in the hospital were in satisfactory condition.

"This is a tragedy. It makes you sick, physically sick," Mayor Tony Bryne said.

The mudslide occurred about 3:30 p.m. CST following heavy thundershowers that swept through Mississippi and caused flash floods in several parts of the state.

Authorities said about 25 persons had been in the lounge, the Natchez Under The Hill Club, at the time of the mishap. The two-story brick building is located beneath a 217-foot bluff and overlooks the Mississippi River.

Byrne estimated several tons of mud and debris toppled down onto the lounge and a nearby sandwich shop called the Bowie Knife, which had been open only one day. A large tree slammed through the club.

"It leveled the building. It caved the whole thing in," he said.

Authorities said some people in the buildings got out on their own and others were helped from the area by rescue workers.

New York Transit Strike Seems Likely

By DAVID WYSOKI
NEW YORK (UPI) — The city's commuting millions, threatened by a possible mass transit strike April Fool's Day, worked Saturday on alternate ways of getting to their jobs Tuesday — by bicycle, on foot, car pooling or hitch hiking.

Although three days of round-the-clock bargaining remained, many of the nearly 5 million commuters who were caught unprepared by a 12-day transit strike in 1966 already were taking no chances this time.

Companies that absorbed lost millions of dollars in lost productivity in the walkout 14 years ago, rented hotel rooms for their key employees as early as February.

Motorists facing the prospect of monumental traffic jams were ordered by the city to share rides with their neighbors in the event of a strike.

A simultaneous strike is threatened against the Long Island Rail Road, whose 180,000 daily riders were forced to take buses into the city during an eight-day strike last December. And those buses and four of 10 private bus lines in the boroughs of Queens and Brooklyn also may be shut down.

As early as January union leaders for the transit employees who are demanding a 30 percent wage hike were met with a solid chorus of denunciations from Mayor Edward Koch and Metropolitan Transportation Authority Chairman Richard Ravitch.

As of Saturday, the demand was the same, and the response was growing more and more angry.

Koch drew up plans two weeks ago in the event the 35,000 bus and subway workers struck on April Fool's Day.

The plans will put police, firefighters and emergency services personnel on 12-hour shifts. All have been told they are expected to brave the logjams, and get to work — on time. "No alibis, zip, none," said a Fire Department spokesman.

Blueprint For Disaster

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Republican senatorial hopeful John P. East charged Saturday that President Carter's military policy is a "blueprint for disaster."

East, a political science professor at East Carolina University, spoke at the spring convention of the North Carolina Federation of College Republicans.

He characterized Carter's draft registration proposal as a "product of the politics of cosmetics and deceit."

"Our strategic capability has been seriously eroded. To try to pick up the slack through a draft would be criminally foolish," East said.

YOUNG SCIENTISTS — Minges Coliseum was filled with sounds of whirring and bells ringing in various science projects as students from eastern North Carolina schools participated in the annual Eastern Regional Science Fair on Friday. According to officials, there were about 300 exhibits from about 75 schools. The entrants at the fair were winners in their school or county. The categories were broken down into four groups — biology, physical, earth, and technological. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Seeking New Trial

RICHMOND (AP) — Still seeking exoneration nearly 10 years after racial unrest that led to their convictions on arson and conspiracy charges, the Wilmington 10 are asking for a new trial.

The nine black men and one white woman were arrested in Wilmington, N.C., after a white-owned grocery store was fire-bombed in 1971.

Lawyers for the 10 filed opening written arguments with the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, alleging their clients' trial "was so filled with gross errors, irregularities and improprieties that any semblance of fairness is totally lacking."

Garwood Trial Recessed

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — The court-martial of Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood moved a step closer to testimony Friday when a military judge denied a flurry of defense motions.

Garwood, 33, is accused of deserting and collaborating with the enemy during nearly 14 years that he spent in Vietnam. If convicted, the Indiana native could get a maximum sentence of life in prison.

After denying the spate of defense motions Friday, Col. Robert E. Switzer, the presiding judge, called a recess until April 15.

Expects Decision Monday

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A decision is expected to be handed down Monday on a flurry of defense motions for 14 men charged in connection with the Nov. 3 slaying of five members of the Communist Workers Party at an anti-Ku Klux Klan demonstration in Greensboro.

The most significant ruling among those to be made by Superior Court Judge James M. Long will be the defendants' motions to dismiss murder and felony-rioting charges because of allegations that the state has "selectively prosecuted" the 14 defendants, all of whom claimed some alliance with either the KKK or the Nazi Party.

If the motion is granted, the 14 — 11 of whom are charged with five counts of murder — would be freed.

Asks Help In Finding Jobs

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Officials at the University of North Carolina have called on the state to help find money for 143 UNC employees whose jobs will be terminated Monday as the result of a cutoff of federal funds.

But, despite the joint effort, it is unlikely a solution will be found by Monday.

"We're still working with the state budget officer on some sort of a solution, but we won't have a firm plan before Monday," Donald Stedman, UNC vice president for research and public service, said Friday.

Stedman said the UNC general administration office was working in behalf of 11 of the system's campuses which have contracts for training persons to work with the poor and the handicapped. The cutoff of federal funds will affect 143 persons who were working under those contracts.

Anti-Nuke Protest

By SCOTT MACLEOD
HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — More than 5,000 people led by veteran anti-nuclear protesters staged an orderly demonstration against Three Mile Island Saturday at the Pennsylvania Capitol.

Rock singer Linda Ronstadt drew cheers when she called nuclear power a "dangerous technology" and sang "Home on the Range" to signify the importance of human values over technology.

Folk singer Pete Seeger sang "A Hard Rain's Gonna Fall," a 1960's protest song by Bob Dylan and Woody Guthrie's, "This Land is Your Land."

"They are extremely well behaved," said Hampton Knight, director of the Capitol Police, who said the crowd swelled to more than 5,000 by midafternoon.

Organizers claimed at least 7,000 attended.

The peaceful demonstration was in marked contrast to anti-nuclear activities elsewhere in the country, where protesters were arrested in commemorating the March 28, 1979 Three Mile Island accident, the worst of its kind in U.S. history.

"We remember Three Mile Island, and when we do, even heaven cries," said a Lancaster County farmer, Norman Aamodt, referring to the rain that apparently kept the crowd smaller than the 10,000 expected by police.

Uncertain 'Til Votes Counted

If there is one thing certain about American politics, it is that nothing is certain until the final votes are counted.

President Carter seemed on the road to crushing Sen. Edward Kennedy — until the votes were counted in the New York and Connecticut primaries.

Despite polls showing Carter ahead, the final results were far different. Sen. Kennedy defeated President Carter in New York 59 percent to 41 percent. In Connecticut it was Kennedy 47 percent and Carter 41 percent.

It would be easy to write off the Kennedy victories. The reasons abound. There was a heavy Jewish vote, upset by the UN fiasco, in New York.

Increases Cover Less Than The Costs

We are reluctant, as we are sure the ECU trustees are, to see fees students must pay increased by 7.6 percent.

Yet it is obvious that the fee increases will cover less than the cost of inflation. Thus the university will not be able to do anything more than maintain present services, even with the fee increase.

It can be said that New York Democrats are frequently out-of-step with the rest of the nation. We can observe that, even though he lost, Carter still got 118 delegate votes in New York compared to Kennedy's 164. Couple that with the fact that Carter is still far ahead in delegate count.

With all that, however, it must be recalled that political history is full of events which suddenly turned campaigns around. Already there are reports that the Kennedy victories have turned loose new financial contributions for him. It has obviously pumped new life into his campaign.

The outlook would still be that President Carter will win the Democratic nomination, but now the president can't take it for granted. He will have to run to win.

It is an uncomfortable situation that everyone faces in these times.

A consolation for those who pay the ECU fees is that they are still among the lowest fee and housing costs in the university system.

Unions' Downward Trend

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Latest figures from the national Bureau of Labor Statistics show North Carolina the lowest in the country in level of unionization.

Only 6.5 percent of the non-farm workers in the state were labor union members during 1977-78. That number is down slightly from 6.8 percent the previous year. Union membership in North Carolina has declined regularly over the past 10 years, and the state's industry hunters in the Department of Commerce like to promote that condition in their efforts to woo prospects.

At this time, North Carolina has the lowest rate of unionization in the nation: the lowest rate ever in the state since the Bureau of Labor Statistics started keeping figures in 1964, and the lowest unionization rate ever recorded by any state in the nation.

The picture is expected to remain virtually unchanged when 1979 figures are compiled, based upon election returns for that year.

There were 68 union elections in manufacturing firms during 1979, with 26 wins and 42 losses; and 34 elections in nonmanufacturing fields with 13 wins and 21 losses.

Revenue Sharing

The loss of state revenue sharing funds amounting to some $39 million as a result of President Carter's budget cutting will not hurt North Carolina, says Gov. Jim Hunt.

The budget for next fiscal year was drawn up without dependance on those funds in anticipation of the cuts. Many states which are protesting the cuts did not plan on the eventual loss of the money which they made an integral part of their budgets.

Hunt says the dollar loss is only one area in which the government and private citizens are going to feel the impact of federal government cutbacks. "We must rally around. All of us will likely be hurt some; but it is better to take this bitter medicine now than to have the nation severely hurt as it will be if this inflation continues."

Local governments have mounted the most effective fight against loss of federal revenue sharing money, and the governor endorses that approach. The greatest need is that the money go to our counties and cities, and I support continuation to local governments," said Hunt.

Sunday Morning Notes

Last week we wrote about the machine that used to set type in metal lines for newspapers.

We spelled it Line-o-type.

Dave Mosier dropped by and corrected us. Mosier, who goes way back in the newspaper business, recalled that the name is spelled thusly: Linotype.

How quickly we forget.

Mosier, who is now director of the Downtown Greenville Association, in calling the proper spelling to our attention, wondered if anyone cares now. Linotypes are relegated to the museums these days and type is almost universally set by computers on photographic paper.

But those who have been around the newspaper business for a long time remember when small city dailies were printed on eight-page Goss and Duplex presses fed from a single roll of newsprint.

The presses at top speed might turn out 2,400 copies an hour.

Our off-set press will now print up to 40 pages, and runs at a speed of 20,000 an hour. By cutting the press capacity to 20 pages and "twin" plating that can be increased to 40,000 per hour. It prints from up to five rolls of newsprint at once.

So much of the days of Linotypes Intertypes, Ludlows, Elrods, "stones" (where the pages of type were assembled), metal saws and all the other devices of the hot metal era.

A revolution has taken place in newspaper production methods, and as Dave

As long as we are on a nostalgia kick, we might note that one of older staff members mentioned the "old hospital" to a new staff member, recently.

"Where's that?" asked the newer member.

To most of us, of course, the old hospital is now the facility at the end of W. Sixth Street, facing Fifth. It's being converted into county offices and temporary medical school facilities.

The old, old hospital is the one on Johnson Street, now boarded up, which was until recently the home of Social Services.

But then if you want to go back even further — we might call it the old, old, old hospital — it would be the area above H. L. Hodges on E. Fifth Street.

It's all a matter of perspective.

THE INSIDE REPORT

'Jarvis II' Has Votes

By ROWLANDE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

LOS ANGELES — Opening shots in the campaign over the newest tax-cut referendum show that not only is the tax revolt alive and well in California but that the real stake is redistribution of income.

Contrary to a view widely held among politicians that the revolt subsided even here at home after tax crusader Howard Jarvis' deep property tax cut (Prop. 13) was adopted by California's voters in 1978, an even more radical cut in state income taxes proposed by Jarvis (Prop. 9) is overwhelmingly favored to pass June 3. The consensus is that it is leading, 2-1, statewide.

Mickey Kantor, a skilled Democratic politician who heads the anti-tax cut campaign, was well aware of prevailing sentiment as he approached his first televised confrontation with Jarvis recently. Instead of predicting ruin for state government services (the anti-Jarvis weapon used in 1978), Kantor that night took a different tack: Prop. 9 — called Jarvis II, or "Jaws II" by its foes — is biased toward the rich.

While cutting state income tax rates in half, the relief would be unevenly distributed: 5 percent of all taxpayers would get 33 percent of the relief; 80 percent would get only 40 percent. For that reason, Kantor told us, "I would be opposing this even if it meant no reduction in government services."

With that, he uncovered the secret of what lies behind the passion of tax-cut foes. It is less a question of undermining government programs because of reduced revenue; it is, rather, the threat to undermine redistribution of income through progressive taxation by narrowing the gap between top and bottom rates. Under Jarvis II, California's top-bracket rate of 11 percent (put that high, ironically, by Gov. Ronald Reagan's budget-balancing efforts) would come down to 5.5 percent. That is the real bite of "Jaws II."

There persists scare talk of greatly-diminished government service in the wake of the new cut, even though no such crisis followed the 1978 property tax reduction. Conservative economist Milton Friedman, who supported Jarvis I, opposes Jarvis II out of fear the lost revenue will be picked up through new taxes on business (which, in fact, would require an unobtainable two-thirds vote of the legislature).

Friedman rejects the theories of a younger conservative economist, Arthur Laffer, who has argued that lower tax rates invariably generate more revenue as they did here after Jarvis I. Jarvis himself is a confirmed Lafferite. How much revenue loss would result from his proposition? "I don't really think it would be any," Jarvis told us. Even opponent Kantor concedes the revenue loss would be limited "if the economy keeps booming" (of which he personally is skeptical).

Booming economy or not, Kantor is a good enough politician to know that gloom-and-doom prophecies lost their credibility when rising prosperity followed Jarvis I. But in switching the argument to distribution of the tax burden, Kantor runs up against the classic political problem for liberals: Taxpayers care more about how much they pay than about how little their rich cousin pays.

Preliminary surveys show substantial support for Jarvis II — far more than for Jarvis I — in the brown and black communities. That is one reason why even many Democratic politicians are reluctant to do battle now as they did then.

Jarvis actually thought that Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., a dedicated foe of Jarvis I before he saw it would win, would endorse Jarvis II. On a recent visit to California away from the presidential campaign trail, Brown maintained his liberal credentials by announcing opposition to

To the editor:

In an editorial that appeared in this paper Mar. 26, you stated that it was not in the U. S.'s best interest for Israel to continue settling the West Bank of the Jordan River. In jumping on this currently popular bandwagon, I think you may have overlooked a few items.

The U. N. vote that has caused such a stir in the U. S. among Israel's supporters was instigated by that country's decision to authorize the construction of two schools (not settlements) in the town of Hebron. The construction is to take place on the uninhabited ruins of the old Jewish quarter that until 1929 existed in that town for over 3,000 years. In a bloody riot that year the Arab population drove the Jewish residents from the area. Imagine how we would feel if the U. N. voted that all U. S. citizens were forbidden to build new cities in the United States because it was formerly Indian land.

The U. S.'s current show of displeasure evidenced by their recent U. N. vote may actually work to prolong the tension in the Middle East. If Israel's enemies sense that our support for Israel is wavering, it only encourages them to wait for additional erosion of support, rather than make peace now. Sometimes we are so anxious to force Israel to accept a Palestinian state on its borders that we forget that the Arab country of Jordan had possession of the West Bank for 19 years and was afraid to allow the formation of such a state. Otherwise, a Palestinian state would already exist on this land.

Small Investors' Opportunity

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Small investors are again being presented with one of those trying, tempting situations that call for more risk than they can afford to take. But in this case there is a solution.

The temptation arises from what many see as the low, low prices of many blue chip stocks. The risk is that the low, low prices could go lower still, because the future out there seems to be a minefield.

Most small investors still believe they must test that field with an all or nothing commitment — that their choice is simply to buy or not to buy, and that they then must live or die with the consequences.

But the choice needn't be that final if the investor uses the dividend reinvestment plans now offered by large companies. Under the plans, an investor can buy even fractions of shares.

The procedure followed by many investors is to buy from their broker a few shares of the company in which they are interested, paying the regular commission and having the shares registered in their name.

Shortly thereafter the company advises the buyer that he or she is entitled to join the investment plan, in which dividends are automatically reinvested in additional shares or fractions of shares.

All plans also offer the shareholder an opportunity to invest in added shares directly through the company, simply by writing a check for $5 or perhaps $500 or more. Most plans accept payments quarterly.

The advantages of such direct investment are numerous. For one, after the initial investment the investor escapes the brokerage commission, or most of it. Some companies absorb the entire cost of the paperwork, others a part. And some companies even offer shares at a discount.

In today's uncertain atmosphere, the plans also offer small investors an opportunity to reduce risk. It is one thing, for example, to commit $5,000 to a stock at any one time, another to invest $50 at a time.

The plans allow investors to assess and reassess the economic weather and to adjust their investment plans accordingly. Should they choose to sell their accumulated shares they can obtain them from the com-

Strength For Today

VITAL OR WEAK?

On Friday, mention was made in this column of the vitality of apostolic Christian faith and the imperative need in the church today of our return to it. The conclusion was that the modern church can have this apostolic zeal and power if it will.

But how? In exactly the same way that the early church had it, namely, by getting close to Christ, learning from him and being guided and inspired by his presence.

Unless the whole Christian revelation is incorrect, we can be sure that Christ is in the world today no less than in the world during his lifetime.

But then the encasement of his spirit in a human body meant that he was limited by time and space. He is to all men what he was to a few, 2,000 years ago. The humblest being can bring his problems to Jesus Christ today and have the privilege of personal understanding and guidance.

Booby Trap In Shirts

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — If we can put a man on the moon, I was telling myself only the other day, why can't our computerized technology come up with a formal dress shirt that doesn't put the wearer in danger of a fractured skull?

Why hasn't the Surgeon General required these ruffled booby traps to carry a government health warning?

I don't ordinarily talk to myself at such length about such profound issues, but it is hard to find an audience when you are down on your knees in a hotel bathroom searching for a shirt stud. Besides, the sort of language I used to make my point after striking my head on the sink upon rising was not suitable outside the privacy of our local family cinema.

Unlike Fred Astaire or Mr. Hudson, I am not to the manner born where white tie and tails are the uniform of the day.

Now the Gridiron Club of Washington, that exquisite cutglass vase that enshrines in its glitter the flower of American journalism, had summoned me to sit at the same table — No. 4 — as Chrysler chairman Lee Iacocca, Associated Press chairman Jack Tarver and, there at the head table, in the jug-jawed shadow of Dr. Zbigniew Brzezinski, within the gracious arc of Jody Powell's sly smile.

The cocktail party in advance of the dinner and show was scheduled for 6 p.m. I permitted myself one hour to vest. This was the first mistake. It took 20 minutes to figure out how to put on the vest, which had neither back nor sides.

Soviet May Be Tempted

By FRED HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet invasion of Afghanistan has ushered in a decade that many U.S. analysts fear may become the most dangerous since World War II.

The United States and Russia have edged near war on several occasions, most notably the 1962 Cuban missile crisis. But overwhelming U.S. nuclear superiority made the Russians back off.

That superiority has vanished. The most U.S. officials now claim is "essential equivalence" in the American-Russian nuclear arms balance.

Meanwhile, the momentum of Soviet military growth has some American strategists worried that the Kremlin may be tempted to take chances.

U.S. military professionals and civilian officials are concerned that Soviet leaders might become emboldened to take action in such regions of vital U.S. interest as the oil-producing Persian Gulf.

Many U.S. strategists have forecast that 1982-1983 would be a period of maximum danger because the Russians are likely to be at their strongest then. After that, new U.S. strategic weapons will be coming on line in increasing numbers, and the danger would be expected to recede.

Now, they think an era of rising danger may already have arrived — that the Russians are showing increased self-confidence and willingness to take risks.

That is why the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan late last year jolted President Carter, Defense Secretary Harold Brown and other administration security leaders.

Zbigniew Brzezinski, Carter's national security adviser, Brown and Gen. David Jones, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, all indicated uneasiness about the direction that Soviet policy might take under new leadership.

Carter's new defense programs, projecting a steady 4 percent "real growth" in U.S. arms spending in each of the next five years, began taking shape before the Soviet thrust into Afghanistan.

The buildup plan was propelled in part by the loss of Iran as a key U.S. ally after the overthrow of the shah, and by spreading instability elsewhere in the Persian Gulf region.

It includes about $10 billion in programs, including purchase of 80 to 200 big CX transport planes and 14 special depot ships, to remedy a deficiency in U.S. ability quickly to send major Army and Marine forces and their heavy equipment to remote parts of the world.

Brown is disturbed by what he calls "heavy emphasis in Soviet military doctrine on the acquisition of war-winning capabilities," rather than on deterring war and protecting the motherland.

"The Soviets have now built a war machine far beyond any reasonable requirements for their own defense and security," Brown said.

He estimated that Soviet defense spending has nearly doubled over the past 17 years.

"Because we were very much stronger than they at the outset of that period, we retain an approximate equality of military power," the Pentagon chief said. "But we cannot allow the trend to continue without risking military inferiority."

According to analysts who follow Soviet developments, this is what the Russians have done over the past 15 years.

—Boosted their troop strength by about one million men, for a total of four million.

—Added some 25 divisions, bringing their ground forces to 170 divisions.

—Produced new families of tanks, infantry fighting vehicles, self-propelled artillery, attack helicopters, air defense and battlefield missiles.

—Deployed five new types of intercontinental ballistic missiles, three new submarine-launched missiles and improved the accuracy and ability of their ICBMs.

—Increased the number of nuclear warheads more than tenfold.

—Armed their navy with more missile muscle, advanced nuclear-driven missile-firing and attack submarines, its first aircraft carriers, seven new classes of cruisers and a major amphibious ship.

—Significantly upgraded their medium-range nuclear forces by deploying more than 100 SS20 mobile missiles with triple warheads and enough reach to hit Western Europe from Soviet soil.

—Put into service new transport planes that Brown said give the Russians "at least the beginnings of long distance air mobility."

During that same 15-year span, the United States:

—Reduced its armed forces to slightly more than two million men and women, about 1.5 million below the Vietnam war peak.

—Retained 19 Army and Marine divisions, which are larger than Soviet divisions, while slimming the logistics "tail."

—Saw the Army National Guard and Reserve dwindle in strength and readiness after the draft ended in mid-1973.

—Started providing more sophisticated antitank

the new tax cut, but only in perfunctory fashion.

Some politicians burned by the issue in 1978 have changed sides. Mayor Pete Wilson of San Diego, a highly regarded moderate Republican who self-destructed his 1978 primary campaign for governor by opposing Jarvis I, has endorsed Jarvis II.

"If I could have known then what the actual effect of Prop. 13 would have been," Wilson told us, "I would have supported it." San Diego city police services have increased 27 percent since then, though some belt-tightening elsewhere has been required.

With tax-cut testimonials such as that, foes of Jarvis II have switched to talking about unjust redistribution of the tax burden.

But these foes do have a point when they say diminished state tax payments will mean higher federal taxes because of reduced deductions, somewhat diminishing the Laffer effect here. This state's share of the $60 billion in new taxes put forth by President Carter's new budget (Social Security, windfall profits and others) also files down the sharp edges of "Jaws II." The tax revolt, waged with vigor by California's populist referendum system, is being largely ignored by elected representatives in Washington.

As I Recall It

Executioner Triggered A Death Chair By Hand

By NOEL YANCEY

Suppose you were the executioner at Central Prison. Your intended victim was strapped in his chair in the gas chamber, clad only in shorts with a mask over his face. You pulled the electric switch that was supposed to drop pellets of cyanide into a dish of sulphuric acid, touching off the generation of deadly cyanide gas. And nothing happened. You pushed that switch again and again. Still nothing happened. What would you do?

You can bet your bottom dollar I wouldn't do what Ralph Bridgers did on Nov. 26, 1943 when he was called upon to dispatch John Willie Redfern, a Raleigh black man convicted of murdering Zeb Sturdivant.

Bridgers, who had officiated at many executions, simply opened the door to the execution chamber. He walked to the chair, about eight feet from the door, reached under the seat and triggered the drop mechanism by hand. Then he dashed for the door. Warden Ralph McLean, who was waiting there, slammed the door shut. Redfern was put to death only minutes behind schedule.

Prison officials were at a loss to explain the failure of the electrocution circuit. It was the first time such a thing had happened in the several years the state had been using the gas chamber to put people to death. And the mechanism had been tested earlier that day and the day before.

There was no such tie-up several months earlier when Rosana and Daniel Phillips, a Durham County black couple, were executed. But there was plenty of drama nonetheless. So far as available records show, Rosana was only the second woman ever executed in North Carolina. And accounts of the event say she was confident to the final minutes that Gov. J. Melville Broughton would spare her life. State parole authorities had asked that her husband be executed first. They had hoped he would make some statement that would exculpate the wife and justify a reprieve for her. But his only comment was to tell fellow occupants of Death Row that he was "ready to go" and hoped "to see you in heaven."

The couple blamed voodooism for their crime. They were accused of murdering their landlord, Harry Watkins, 64, on a farm near Durham and of stuffing his body in a well. Each blamed the other for the slaying.

The execution of Bill Payne and Wash Turner, notorious bank robbers, in the gas chamber on July 1, 1938, was delayed briefly while the state used an electric chair to kill Wiley Brice. The Legislature had decreed that the gas chamber would replace the electric chair for executing capital felons. But under the law they had to use the electric chair for crimes that took place when that was the prescribed punishment. Brice was convicted of a murder that took place in Alamance County in 1926.

Payne and Turner were executed for the slaying of highway patrolman George Penn in Buncombe County. The handsome young trooper had chased the two desperadoes into a dead-end and was gunned down. When the Rev. E.C. Cooper, prison chaplain, asked Turner if he had a final statement, he replied:

"I guess all that needs to be said in that direction can be summed up in a few words: 'Crime does not pay.'"

The drama in the Good Friday executions of Clarence Brady, 24, of Vance County, and Bat Dejournette, 43, of Guilford County, came when Cooper inserted the words "this day" into his prayer for the two black men being executed for murder. That made the chaplain's prayer read:

"Oh Christ, Thou lamb of God that died this day to take away the sins of the world..."

When Brice Hammonds of Robeson County was put to death on July 7, 1939, along with two other men convicted of murders, he became the first Indian ever executed at the prison. News accounts said a throng of persons who gathered at the prison's east included Hammond's father who waited grimly, his hands clenching the bars of the gate, while his son was put to death.

The drama in the June 13, 1941 execution of Noah Cureton, a 51-year-old Mecklenburg County black, came when prison guards had to go to his Death Row cell 10 minutes before he was scheduled to enter the gas chamber to awaken him. They said the husky man was "sleeping soundly and snoring." But lest you get the idea that Cureton was excessively calm about his approaching demise, the accounts say that when he had been strapped into that massive chair in the death chamber, his face broke into a heavy sweat.

AND NOVEMBER IS SO FAR AWAY!

Men Just Can't Stand Motherhood Pressure

No wonder women have all the babies. The men just can't stand the pressure.

The anticipation is what really gets to them. When faced with an event totally beyond their control, they become absolutely irrational. Some of them even revert to primitive superstition. By the time my nephew had missed his due date by ten days my brother-in-law had resorted to extolling the virtue of castor oil and taking his wife for long strolls under the full moon.

Phillip is even worse. He starts anticipating labor the minute the rabbit dies. By the time the third trimester arrives, even the most routine labor and delivery story makes him wince.

Now I'm not saying that labor and delivery stories don't bother me occasionally, too. But the only ones that really upset me are the ones where the woman is in active labor for two weeks before the doctors decide to perform a C-section.

Phillip, on the other hand, gets most panicky about quick deliveries in elevators, parking lots and filling station restrooms. During my first pregnancy his only stated purpose for attending prepared childbirth classes was to learn to tie an umbilical cord.

Still, when I finally went into labor, he didn't feel prepared. From the time I told him that I was experiencing acute indigestion at four minute intervals to the time I finally admitted that this was not anything that could be cured by Pepto-Bismol, all he could bring himself to say was, "Please, please don't make me deliver this baby!"

I thought he would be more relaxed the second time around, but, if anything, he is more anxious. Not long ago we met a neighbor out strolling her newborn, and she told us all about her second labor. It had lasted less than an hour.

"Did you hear that?"

Phillip croaked when we go back to the house. "Her first labor was 11 hours."

"What?"

"So?"

"So yours was 6. We're never going to make it."

"Of course we are. Her experience was very unusual."

"That's what you think," he groaned. "I have to look at it from a statistical point of view, and what I see isn't good. Probability is against us, Gail."

"Believe me, I've never heard of that happening before."

"Have you got an extra toothbrush?"

"What?"

"You heard her. When her husband went to get her toothbrush, she felt the urge to push."

"Phillip..."

"You'd better go ahead and pack your suitcase."

"For heaven's sake! I've got weeks and weeks."

"Yeah, sure. Didn't you have a contraction just this morning?"

"So what? I've had five today already."

His face turned the color of a bleached washrag. "Oh Lord," he moaned, "it's started already."

I hope they have a shot of Demerol ready when I do go into labor. He'll need it.

half of what it would have cost to hire a draft substitute in the Civil War, had not provided an instruction sheet.

After a good deal of deep breathing and sucking in my gut, I managed to affix one of them into the holes midway down the shirtfront, achieving at last a juncture of that severely starched garment.

Unfortunately, the object I had selected to perfect this union was a cufflink, not only that, but the holes I selected were not mutually compatible, one being higher than the other.

My efforts to force the cufflink into a shirtstud hole had disastrously enlarged that aperture — both of them in fact — so that when the proper studs were inserted, they went all the way through and fell to the floor.

One of them rolled under the bed. And that's where I should of stood, to quote the immortal Joe Jacobs, instead of going into the bathroom to take advantage of the better light and the mirror over the sink.

It was in retrieving this second fallen stud that I received the nasty crack at the back of the head, which bled profusely down the back of my wing neck collar.

Public Favors Balanced Budget Requirement

By George Gallup

PRINCETON, N.J. — The American public, by a two-thirds majority, favors a constitutional amendment to require Congress to balance the federal budget each year.

While two out of every three (67 percent) favor this proposal, an even higher percentage of those who can recall having read or heard about it approve a constitutional amendment to require a balanced budget. This "informed group" votes 75 percent to 16 percent in favor of a constitutional amendment with 9 percent undecided.

The weight of opinion among the informed group is that a balanced budget would decrease inflation, the number of federal government employees and would decrease the amount of money and services persons on low incomes or welfare would receive from the government.

At the same time, however, relatively few are convinced that a balanced budget would have a major impact in these respects.

The survey also reveals that informed opinion is closely divided on whether balancing the budget would increase or decrease taxes.

Bipartisan Support Found

A constitutional amendment requiring a balanced budget is one on which both Republican and Democratic voters can agree, with large majorities in each party in favor of the proposal.

This question was asked first: "Have you heard or read about the proposal for a constitutional amendment which would require the federal government to balance the national budget each year?"

The responses:

YES 45%
NO 55%

All persons in the survey (both those informed and those not) were then given basic information about a specific proposal, as follows:

"A proposed amendment to the Constitution would require Congress to approve a balanced federal budget each year. Government spending would have to be limited to no more than expected revenues, unless a three-fifths majority of Congress voted to spend more than expected revenue. Would you favor or oppose this amendment to the Constitution?"

Following is a comparison of "informed" versus total opinion. The informed group, 45 percent of the total sample, is defined as those who have heard or read about proposals for a constitutional amendment to balance the federal budget.

All Adults

Favor 67%
Oppose 13%
No opinion 20%

'Informed' Public

Favor 75%
Oppose 16%
No opinion 9%

Following are the arguments, listed in order of frequency of mention, given by survey respondents for and against a constitutional amendment to balance the budget:

Arguments In Favor Of Constitutional Amendment To Balance Budget

1. Will control/decrease government spending and waste.

2. Will help slow down inflation.

3. It is a good thing for governments, family, people to balance budget.

4. The national debt is too high.

Arguments Against Constitutional Amendment To Balance Budget

1. Impractical, can't be done.

2. Would hurt national security.

3. Would have to cut needed programs.

4. Would cause loss of jobs.

Effects Of Balancing Budget On Inflation

A series of questions in the survey also sought to determine what the informed public perceives to be the possible impact of a balanced budget. The results indicate that those who favor the amendment are far more inclined than are those opposed to believe it would decrease inflation.

On the other hand, relatively little difference is found between proponents and opponents regarding the impact of a balanced budget on the number of government employees, money and services for lower income persons and missiles, longer-range, more mobile artillery, better helicopters, and other modern gear for its ground forces after the Vietnam war, while relying on 1960s vintage tanks, armored troop carriers and other equipment.

—Deployed 10-warhead missiles in submarines, sent the first longer range Trident missiles to sea, also installed three-warhead Minuteman III intercontinental ballistic missiles in underground launch bases. Increased the total number of nuclear warheads, but at a slower rate than the Soviets.

—Began development of Pershing II and ground-launched cruise missiles of medium range to station in Western Europe.

—Slashed the regular fleet to about 450 ships, half the number in 1968. Introduced three new ship classes, including a destroyer, frigate and the huge nuclear-powered Nimitz aircraft carrier type.

—Gave the Air Force, Navy and Marines eight new kinds of jet fighters and fighter bombers. Added one new strategic bomber, the medium range FB111.

—Stripped continental U.S. air defense to a skeleton.

—Built only one new transport plane, the C-5.

But Brown says "we never acquired all the readiness and mobility required" by the "one-and-a-half-war" strategy of handling a major conventional war in Europe and a lesser emergency at the same time elsewhere.

"...we have economized (some would say skimped) on the nuts and bolts needed to sustain a non-nuclear conflict in a particular theater for more than a relatively short time," he said.

Next year's budget for defense calls for record spending of $142.7 billion. Pentagon budget officers foresee that climbing to nearly $225 billion in 1985.

The new MX mobile missile system carries a price tag from $31.5 billion to $33.8 billion. A single Trident submarine, bristling with 24 deep-striking missiles, costs well over $1 billion.

According to the latest intelligence information, the Russians lead the United States by 2,350 to 1,710 in strategic land-based and submarine missile launchers. This is the same as a year ago.

But the United States still is ahead, 9,200 to 6,000, in nuclear warheads, including those carried on long-range bombers in which the United States out-numbers Russia, 348 to 156.

But that lead is shrinking.

In the past two years, the Russians have added 2,000 warheads while the U.S. total has remained virtually unchanged.

Meanwhile, the United States is marking time on new ICBM deployments until the MX is ready, perhaps six years from now. However, the Air Force soon will begin refitting 300 Minutemen with a new Mark12-A warhead packing twice the nuclear punch of current warheads.

Within a year or two, Brown predicted, the Russians will have in place enough big missiles "to put most of our Minuteman and Titan Silos at risk" from surprise attack.

"For planning purposes, therefore, we must assume that the ICBM leg of our triad could be destroyed within a very short time," Brown said.

Even if this happened, Brown said, the Russians could not disarm the U.S. nuclear arsenal because the other two legs of the triad — missile-armed submarines and U.S. bombers — would strike back at the Soviet heartland.

Therefore, he says, "now and for the future, neither the United States nor the Soviet Union could launch a first strike that would prevent the other side from retaliating, with devastating force."

That is the essence of the deterrence theory — provided the Russian leadership recognizes this eventuality even as their missile power grows more formidable.

Help For N.C. Tax Filing

L.N. Harrison, local revenue officer for the North Carolina Department of Revenue, advises that personnel to assist in filing State Income and Intangibles Tax returns will be available on Monday of each week through April 15.

The office is located at the State Employees Credit Union Building, 300 W. First Street and assistance is available on this day between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Harrison requests that taxpayers bring the pre-addressed forms which were mailed to them from Raleigh. Taxpayers filing their own returns should mail those which indicate a refund to the North Carolina Department of Revenue, P.O. Box 25000, Raleigh, N.C. 27640.

Break-In Investigated

A March 26 break-in at the 264 Pitt Stop, located some six miles from Greenville on the Pactolus Highway[®] is being investigated by Pitt County deputies.

According to Sheriff Ralph Tyson, the owner of the business, Wallace Wicker, reported that an assortment of tools, drills, welders, jacks and other items were stolen from the facility. Value of the missing property was estimated at $7,300.

The sheriff said that entrance to the business was apparently gained through a back window.

Another Big Blast By Mount St. Helens

By LARRY ROBERTS
COUGAR, Wash. (UPI) — Rumbling Mount St. Helens let out a loud "bang" Saturday, startling nearby residents who said the sound was similar to the thunderous blast they heard when the dormant volcano first blew its top three days ago.

"It sounds like the first one," said Jimmie Barcus, looking up from his duties as proprietor of the Lone Fir resort, 12 miles from the belching summit.

After a week of earthquake activity, the mountain broke out of a 123-year dormant period Thursday with a big blast followed by a series of steam explosions that tore open a new crater.

The U.S. Forest Service center at Vancouver timed Saturday's big bang at 9:48 a.m. A spotter plane was unable to determine what the erupting volcano had thrown into the air because of dense cloud cover and rain around the 9,671-foot cone.

Mount St. Helens has been hurling rocks the size of beach balls for hundreds of yards over the edge of the summit and belching forth clouds of sulfurous steam spreading a rotten egg smell for miles. One geologist, who flew over the volcano, saw "a three meter volcanic bomb" hurtle out of the smoking, steaming cauldron.

Meanwhile, tough old Harry R. Truman remained holed up in his lodge on the northeastern side of the volcano near Spirit Lake, refusing to retreat to the lowlands despite repeated warnings from geologists and Cowlitz County sheriff's deputies.

Two geologists, retreating off the mountain Friday night, talked briefly with the 83-year-old Truman. They urged him to leave even as rumbling crashing sounds were heard on the darkened mountain.

"No! I ain't moving," the old man yelled and marched back inside his lakeside St. Helens Lodge. When the mountain first started erupting Truman announced that he had two kegs of whiskey and supplies. As long they held out, he said, he wouldn't leave.

"I don't think he'll ever come down," said Deputy Gary Lee. "If he does, it'll be with some lava behind him."

At daybreak, the mountain began a continuous bursting period that lasted nearly 10 minutes, sending ash in a dark black plume 3,000 feet above the summit. The ash ceased for three minutes then a cloud of steam roared skyward, more than 5,000 feet above the mountain top.

Profit Squeeze Seen For '80 Tobacco Crop

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Rising interest rates and higher costs for fertilizer, fuel and chemicals have created the prospect of a tight profit squeeze for tobacco farmers in 1980 — a squeeze that could put some growers out of business.

Adding to the problem is an expected buyers' market, with auction prices projected to run at or just above the support prices administered by the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp.

Economists estimate that production costs have gone up 15 percent this year. Buyers say the increase in auction prices will not keep pace, although the support price is expected to go up by more than 9 percent over 1979 levels.

"There'll definitely be a squeeze on profits in tobacco this year," said Dr. W. K. Collins, extension tobacco specialist at North Carolina State University.

"The people who are going to be all right are the ones who have costs under control. This is going to take some of the marginal growers out of the business."

The number of growers in North Carolina has been declining steadily as production costs go up. Since 1960, the number of tobacco growers in the state has dropped from 90,000 to 52,000.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has estimated a 44 percent increase in the cost of oil, LP gas and electricity used in curing tobacco for the 1980 crop. Fertilizer prices have increased by 35 percent or more. Interest rates, in some cases, have doubled since last year.

Tobacco buyers have indicated they do not expect much of an increase in the 1979 auction price, which averaged about $1.39 a pound.

A.C. Monk Jr. of Farmville, president of the A.C. Monk and Co. buying and exporting firm, said it was "definitely a possibility" that auction prices would not rise far above the support level.

Karl E. Andersen, president of the Tobacco Association of the United States, said simply, "It will be a buyers' market this year."

One factor on the plus side of the cost picture did develop in some sections of North Carolina this year, however. The lease price for quota, giving growers the right to transfer allotments owned by someone else to a farm under their control, went down dramatically.

those on welfare, and on taxes.
Here are the questions and national results, based on the informed group:
"If the budget were balanced, what effect, if any, do you think this would have on the rate of inflation — would inflation probably increase a lot, increase a little, stay the same, decrease a little, or decrease a lot?"

The next question in the series is:
"If the budget were balanced, what effect, if any, do you think this would have on government programs for people with low incomes or people on welfare — would the amount of money and services they received from government probably increase a lot, increase a little, stay the same, decrease a little, or decrease a lot?"

Here are the results:

The results reported today are based on in-person interviews with 1,583 adults, 18 and older, interviewed in more than 300 scientifically-selected localities across the nation during the period March 7-10.

Facing South....

ing their regrets that their people should have given way to such a wild storm of passion resulting in the death of so many brave warriors. There was no war or cause for war between the two Nations and they counseled that all forget the unhappy strife, make peace and be friends as before. This advice was heeded. The pipe of peace was smoked, all shook hands and departed to their homes.
Stonie Hadjo stated that five hundred warriors were killed outright in this fight and that a great many of the wounded afterward died. The Creeks and Choctaws had had several wars with each other, had fought many bloody battles, but no battle was as disastrous as this fight at the ball ground. For many long years the Creeks and Choctaws looked back to this event with emotions of terror and sorrow. For here, their picked men, their ball players who were the flower of the two Nations, almost to a man perished. Scarcely was there a Creek or Choctaw family but had to mourn the death of some kinsman slain. For several years the Creeks made annual pilgrimages to this ball ground to weep over the graves of their dead. The Choctaws kept up this Indian custom much longer. Even down to the time of their emigration in 1832, they had not ceased to make similar lamentations.

After the fight, by tacit consent, the beaver pond was left in the undisputed possession of the Choctaws; but it is said that soon afterwards, the beaver entirely abandoned the pond.

Green To Open Coastal Management Faces Major Challenge

His Greenville Headquarters

Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green will be in the Greenville area Monday and Tuesday for the formal opening of his campaign headquarters. Green is seeking re-election to the office he now holds.

Green will be the guest speaker at the Chamber of Commerce breakfast Tuesday at 8 a.m. for a "Meet the Candidates" session. He will answer several prepared questions concerning important state business legislation and entertain questions from the audience, according to Tim Rosche, chairman of the State Concerns Committee of the chamber.

Members of the State Concerns Committee, Chamber of Commerce members and the public are invited to attend. Persons wishing to attend the meeting should call the chamber office Monday at 752-4101.

Monday at 10:30 a.m., Green will visit the Pitt County Courthouse and Municipal building, Pitt Community College at 11:45 a.m. and Bum's Restaurant in Ayden at 12:20 p.m.

He will be in the downtown Farmville area at 1:30 p.m. and at Pitt County Memorial Hospital at 2:30 p.m.

Green will cut the ribbon for the formal opening of his headquarters between 4 and 5 p.m.

DICK HAYMES

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Dick Haymes, a top band vocalist who rivaled Frank Sinatra during the 1940s swing era until his career was wrecked by alcoholism and financial and marital problems with six wives, died of lung cancer Friday. He was 61.

A spokesman for Cedars-Sinai Hospital said Haymes died at 5:05 p.m. PST. He had been in and out of the hospital several times during the last six months and entered for the last time last Sunday.

Haymes had been married to actresses Rita Hayworth and Joanne Dru, singers Edith Harper, Fran Jeffries, Errol Flynn's ex-wife, Nora Edgington, and finally model Wendy Smith.

The high point of Haymes' career came in the 1940s when he sang with the bands of Bunny Berrigan, Harry James, Benny Goodman and Tommy Dorsey, replacing Sinatra with the last two.

He had a national radio show and made nine gold records, including "It Had to Be You," "Little White Lies" and "It Might as Well Be Spring."

He appeared in 35 movies, including starring roles in "One Touch of Venus" with Ava Gardner, "Diamond Horseshoe" with Betty Grable and "State Fair" with Jeanne Crane.

It was estimated he had earned and spent anywhere from $1 million to $4 million by the 1950s, when he found himself fighting alcoholism, bankruptcy, income tax and alimony claims and an unsuccessful federal attempt to deport him to his native Argentina.

"My swinging days got so involved with my own ego that I blew it," he said in a 1965 interview.

He admitted he had let alcohol "get on top of me" and stopped drinking in the 1960s. He said the problem with drinking was not so much the amount, "but my low tolerance."

He admitted it ruined his career and his reputation, but it didn't damage my liver or my chops.

"I called the shots and I played them the way I saw things at the time."

Monday at the intersection of Evans St. ext. and 264 By-pass across from Union Carbide. The public is invited.

At 5:30 p.m., Green will attend the Pitt County Democratic Women's Fund Raiser Barbecue at the American Legion. Tuesday, Green will appear on WITN Channel 7 at 6 a.m. and at WNCN Channel 9 at 7:40 a.m.

BEAUFORT, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina's coastal area management program faces a major challenge because of two pending decisions on oil refineries along the coast, a federal official said Saturday.

The Coastal Resources Commission, the state's arm of the Coastal Area Management Act, must decide whether to issue permits for refineries in Brunswick and Carteret counties.

"This is where we're watching to see if the state's going to bite the bullet on major projects," said Dallas Miner of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, which oversees CMA.

Miner said the state should try to make objective decisions, not ones based on political considerations.

Miner made the comments at a press seminar on CMA at the Duke University Marine Laboratory.

Dr. Parker Chesson, chairman of the state coastal commission, responded. "We could very well deny permits. But as far as other forces go, that's part of the real world."

"We try to balance the economic values with the ecological and do what is best for the people of that area," he said.

CMA was authorized in 1972 as a way to help protect the nation's coastal resources. The state program started in 1974.

North Carolina is one of 19 of the 35 shoreline states or territories with a local program. The nineteen programs cover 70 percent of the country's shoreline.

Another test of North Carolina's program could center on the state's response to Virginia's rejection of a management program.

"The lower Tidewater area of Virginia is developing at a very rapid rate, and there's no control like you get with a management program," Miner said. "Problems with resources don't just stop at a state boundary."

The state may have to try to invoke federal rules to force Virginia to start management programs.

Hospitality House Today

WASHINGTON — Cancer and cancer research are the featured topics on Kay Currie's "Hospitality House," airing from noon until 12:30 p.m. today over WITN-TV, Channel 7.

Guests are Becky Clement, area vice-chairman of the 16 county area of Area 6; Mary Higgenbotham, Area 6 director; Joyce Cutler, chairman of Beaufort County Cancer Crusade; Dr. Josh Tayloe, gynecologist and obstetrician. All will discuss the latest progress in cancer research and treatment.

Also on today's program, slides will be shown of last year's New Bern spring tour in conjunction with this year's tour to be held April 11-12. Guests for this segment will be Mary Bullock, tour co-chairman, and Dr. Newsome Williams, president of New Bern Historic Foundation.

UNICEF Special

In a two-hour television special to air at 9 p.m. Wednesday, April 2 over WNCT-TV, Hugh Downs will be joined by Danny Kaye, Pearl Bailey, Edward Asner and other celebrities in an appeal to the public for support of the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF). In 20 film segments shown throughout the program, the consequences of malnutrition, chronic disease, illiteracy, and unsafe living conditions are shown. But also shown are scenes depicting the hope and promise of things being accomplished — such as that at a UNICEF assisted school in Honduras and a midwife in an African village caring for children.

Others in the line-up of those making appearances include Eve Arden, Norm Crosby, Ronnie Milsap, former football star Merlin Olsen, Sarah Vaughan, Johnny Mathis, Marueen McGovern, Seals and Crofts, Meredith MacRae, and Patricia Ann Patts.

Two Easter Specials Set

CHAPEL HILL — UNC-TV celebrates Easter Week with two outstanding musical performances.

At 8 p.m. on Wednesday, April 2, Karl Richter leads the Munich Bach Orchestra and Choir in a performance of Johann Sebastian Bach's "Saint John Passion." Soloist is Peter Schrier.

A rare musical event is to be aired at 9 p.m. Saturday, April 5 when the only surviving medieval play is performed by the townspeople of Elche, Spain. "The Mystery of Elche" depicts the Assumption into heaven of the mother of Christ, the Virgin Mary. The play, performed entirely by local townspeople, is presented annually during a two-day religious festival, staged in the massive baroque Basilica of Santa Maria.

Bluegrass Festival

CAMP SPRINGS — An Easter weekend of bluegrass music will take place Friday, Saturday and Sunday, April 4, 5, and 6 at Haney's Bluegrass Music Park at Camp Springs in Caswell County.

Groups scheduled to play include the Country Gentlemen from Washington, D.C., the Pinnacle Boys of Knoxville, Tenn., Shenandoah Cutups, Roanoke Va., Saturday Night Special from Philadelphia, Pa., and many others.

Camping is included in the weekend pass at the park, near Cherry Grove community off N.C. 87, halfway between Reidsville and Burlington.

Applications

ATLANTA — The Southern Arts Federation is now accepting applications for exhibits to tour as elements of the 1981/82 Visual Arts Touring Program.

Applicants with exhibits to provide will be required to submit information on the content of the exhibit, the qualifications of the individual(s) organizing the exhibit, number of objects and other requirements. All applications must be received by the Southern Arts Federation by June 2, 1980.

For more information and forms, write to: Visual Arts Touring Program, 225 Peachtree Street, N.E., Suite 712, Atlanta, Ga., 30303.

Contrasting Shows At Gray Gallery

LUSCIOUS COLORS, MATERIALS... are key elements in fabric constructions by Terri Holzclaw, one of five artists exhibiting in the 1980 MFA Graduate Thesis Show at Gray

Gallery. Another exhibition, of minimal prints, is also being shown. Gallery hours are 10-5 daily and Sundays 1-4.

The two new exhibitions now at Gray Gallery in the Jenkins Fine Arts Center on the East Carolina University campus provide a remarkable contrast in the range of contemporary American art.

The works being shown by five women artists in their 1980 ECU MFA Graduate Thesis Exhibition are richly detailed, filled with brilliant colors, heavily oriented to sensual curved lines—in short, generally feminine in the most complimentary sense of that word.

Nancy Korda's porcelain pieces are glazed in gorgeous shades of turquoise, browns and brown golds, deep blues, persimmon and light earthy grays. Plates, pots, bowls, mugs are among the sizeable number of pieces she is exhibiting.

Terri Holzclaw lets her imagination go riot with materials, and colors in designs that are looped, rolled, stuffed, and scalloped. Velvets, satins, laces, silks, corduroys, cottons—she mixes them all in wall pieces that are stunning, if sometimes over-rich.

Ella Mallenbaum has used Wallace Stevens' symbolic poem, "Thirteen Ways of Looking At A Blackbird" as the basis of 13 paintings to evoke the visual equivalents of the poet's "lucid, inescapable rhythms." For me, she succeeds best in the paler, more abstract paintings with their lovely lavenders, parchment tans, and mossy greens. The seventh of the series, basically representational, seems out of kilter with the dreamier modulations of the others.

Color and geometry are the dominant elements in Kathy textured weavings sandwiched between sheets of clear lucite (or some similar material). These are suspended from the ceiling on small wires and form an enclosure that is both interesting and provide ease of viewing.

Luminous, billowing cloud shapes in rainbow colors surrounded by crisp areas of untouched white space is the forte of Elizabeth Sanford, who shows a number of variations on this motif. In some paintings, she contains the curvature of the shapes with a straight line on one side delineating the area of color.

The second new exhibition, a collection of minimal prints by eight American artists, are basically works that derive their impact and appeal from the "minimal" qualities of simplified designs and the absence of extraneous details. Many are in black and white. Several rely on the subtle differences that play upon a surface given over to white on white, or white on pale cream. Where color is used, it is in flat, defined areas.

Perhaps significantly, five of the eight are male artists—Mel Bochner, Sol Le Witt, Robert Mangold, Bruce Marden, and Robert Rymen. The three female artists are Agnes Martin, Edda Renouf, and Dorothea Rockburne.

This exhibition was organized by the Art Gallery of Ontario, Canada and consists of works done primarily by etching and aquatint. Parasol Press, New York City, is the publisher of prints in this show, and most were printed at Crown Point Press in Oakland, California.

The two shows will remain on view through April 18. Hours at Gray Gallery are from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mondays through Friday, and from 1 to 4 p.m. on Sundays.

Literary Festival Set

GREENSBORO—The United Greensboro Writers Club, in association with Guilford College and the Visiting Artist Program at Guilford Technical Institute. These grants will support a Writing Festival to be held Friday, May 9 in Founders Hall at Guilford College in Greensboro.

The festival will be preceded by three literary contests—one for junior high students, another for senior high students, and a third for adults. A contestant may submit one entry each in one of the following categories: poetry, fiction, and non-fiction.

Entry blanks and additional information are available by writing to: Thomas Heffernan, Visiting Artist Program, Guilford Technical Institute, P.O. Box 309, Jamestown, N. C., 27282.

A special supplement to "The Greensboro Sun" will publish winning entries in each category, and other prizes will also be awarded.

The Festival will have a morning session primarily for high school students from across the state.

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By ANN NOBLE

Some of Sheppard Library's new arrivals may fill the bill for light reading during April's inevitable showers.

CONSPIRACY (F SILENCE) is a novel about medical malpractice. In it, Michael Jordan, M.D. is blacklisted by the medical establishment after testifying against a fellow doctor in a malpractice suit. He and the patient involved, a gifted Hollywood film-maker, become involved in a personal relationship, which gives ammunition to those seeking to discredit him as a physician. It is a story of fame, prominence, misuse of power, and the triumph of two people over all. One of the authors, Mel Silverstein, is a doctor. The other is Karen Silverstein—a film-maker.

Set in late Victorian England, WARWICK'S CHOICE by Rosalind Laker involves a long-standing rivalry between the Warwicks and the Radcliffes, two wealthy and powerful families. A forbidden romance between Tom Warwick and Nicolette Radcliffe shakes the foundations of both families. The tensions culminate during a New Year's Eve Ball, testing three generations of jealousy and ancestral loyalty.

R.T. Stevens' A WOMAN OF TEXAS is the story of Isabella Cordova, a beautiful and wealthy landowner. Her right to the land is challenged by Col. Hendricks, who owns everything except the Cordova estate. A British stranger arrives on the scene, possibly to come to Isabella's aid. Her beauty does not interest him however; he is driven by his past and the completion of a mission known only to himself.

THE LOVE TALKER by Elizabeth Peters takes the reader on a journey of terror through nightmare creations of fable and mythology. Laurie Carlton senses something terribly wrong on the calm Maryland estate, but is unable to muster help from her half brother or the estate handyman. Are they responsible for the attacks, or is there truth to her great aunt's stories about supernatural creatures? Elizabeth Peters also wrote WALKER IN THE SHADOWS and SUMMER OF THE DRAGON.

Children's Art Show Opening Today

A CROSS-SECTION... of one wall in a gallery at the Greenville Art Center gives an idea of the richness of artwork by children in city schools in kindergarten through elementary grades. A reception for the public is being held at the Center from 3-5 today.

After late spring delays due to water damage to a section of the Greenville Art Center, those eagerly awaited annual shows of children art traditionally held in spring months are back again.

Today, from 3 to 5 p.m., a reception will be held to honor the exhibition of children's art by students of the Greenville City Schools in kindergarten and elementary grades.

Again, it is a feast of color and imagination. A field crowded with trucks, cultivators and tractors is no problem—the extra tractor flies in the air above the field. A spiderweb has entrapped an array of unusual web prey, lady bugs, dragonflies and strange creatures that may or may not actually exist.

Children and adults, aircraft that are half-plane, half-dragon, cowboys and vases of flowers, a gorilla—that has a vague resemblance to Mae West behind a fence, gardens and tree houses, comic papier mache masks, paper sculptures, things constructed of string and salvaged material—these are all part of the delights that children offer to viewers.

It's always good to see the children's shows return. It is not only a token of spring's return, it's another chance to enjoy the fruits of children's vivid imagination.

Wins Short Story Prize

Greenville resident June Sylvester has been named third place winner in the national division of the Hackney Literary Awards of the Birmingham, Ala. Festival of Arts.

The winning short story is "Breaking," the story of a girl's difficulty at leaving behind the fun of a joyous tomboy childhood with a beloved brother to step into the more sedate world of womanhood. The prize was $100.

Sylvester is a senior in the Writing Program of the East Carolina University Department of English. She is originally from Elizabeth City and is a transfer from the College of the Albemarle there.

POTTERY EXHIBIT

An exhibition of hand-crafted pottery by Doris Paul, local potter, will be located at Dean's Photography, 203 S. Evans St. beginning at noon April 1 and continuing through April 4. The public is invited.

Authenticity Marks A Powerful Film On The Life Of Jesus

"Jesus," the film now playing at the Buccaneer Theater, is sub-titled "The Public Life of Jesus" and is further identified as being a documentary. On both counts, the claims are justified. The script is based almost entirely on the text of the Gospel of St. Luke, with only brief, (and necessary) connective narratives to tie together the story of the birth, teaching and death of Jesus Christ.

"Jesus" is a totally absorbing, powerful film that perhaps comes as close as any film could ever hope to come in capturing the fundamental simplicity of the life of Jesus. Director John Krish avoids any touch of sentimentality or melodrama that could have weakened the lean, unadorned script written long ago by St. Luke.

The depiction of the miracles wrought by Jesus are handled with believability — no shimmering background music or overawe on the part of those who witnessed them. What we get instead is a creditable sense of human reaction to the divine power of the promised Messiah. On every count, great care has been placed on authenticity. "Jesus" was filmed at sites in the Holy Land, with many scenes shot in Arab villages on the west bank of the Jordan River. Faces of extras are indeed the faces of Jews and Arabs, and the clothes they wear reflect obvious research into typical clothing of nearly 2,000 years ago.

Crowd scenes, whether small ones depicting Jesus and His disciples, or of great multitudes in Jerusalem at the Feast of the Passover, are beautifully assembled and photographed. Perhaps indicative of the striving for authenticity is the scene of the Last Supper. The almost dingy, dun colored room where Jesus and His disciples sit on the floor is a far cry indeed from the sumptuous palatial halls so often depicted in paintings (and in other films).

The role of Christ is portrayed by British actor Brian Deacon. His distinctly British accent may be a detraction for some American viewers, though that is a minor point. Although slight of build, Deacon's portrayal of Jesus as an active, masculine person who was capable of laughter, anger, dismay and tiredness is a welcome relief from the tendency to show Jesus as a cloyingly sweet, sorrowing man.

CALLS FIRM VULGAR

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The film "Nijinsky" presents a "vulgar and gross and totally untrue" version of the life of one of the world's greatest ballet dancers, says his daughter, Kyra Nijinsky.

The movie overemphasizes Vaslav Nijinsky's homosexual relationship with Serge Diaghilev, director of the Ballet Russe from 1909 to 1913 who is credited with discovering the dancer, says the 65-year-old Miss Nijinsky.

Actors and actresses in the roles of the disciples, the women, warriors, Romans, townspeople — all provide message it tells. One feels that this is very much the way that the human days of Jesus on earth must have been like. It is a triumph for everyone involved.

Emory Pleased With Pirates' Effort, Hitting

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

After just four days of spring football practice, new East Carolina coach Ed Emory has found some things to be happy about, and some to be not so happy about.

Just prior to Saturday afternoon's practice, Emory said he had been extremely pleased with the effort and desire of the team "to get the job done we are requesting of them. I've also been impressed with their hitting and aggressiveness."

But, the coach added, there are a few things that have hindered some of the things he wanted to get accomplished. "We're behind schedule in getting a look at our people. Several things have caused this."

"We have two players, Clifton Williams and Nate Wigfall, who are not currently practicing due to academics. They are working hard instead, to get ready to play next fall in their schoolwork. Having Jeffrey Warren out, too, hurts us."

Warren was one of several people arrested in a drug sweep last week, and was "relieved, temporarily, of his obligations to the football team, pending the outcome of this investigation," according to a statement issued at the time by Emory. "Jeff Warren has always been of the highest character and we consider Jeff not guilty until proven otherwise," the statement continued.

Then, following the first couple of days, offensive lineman Tootie Robbins was lost to surgery following a knee injury. "This was a blow to us, since Tootie had been one of our hardest workers in the off-season conditioning and weight programs," Emory said.

If there is a bright spot on the offensive side, the coach said, it has been with the play of the split ends and the offensive backs.

"We have a lot more depth at running back, and we really don't feel that we'll work Anthony Collins, Theodore Sutton and Michael Hawkins that much this spring. Instead, we'll concentrate on Roy Wiley (fullback) and Marvin Cobb and Harold Blue, to build them up. So far they've looked good."

At quarterback, Henry Trevathan currently is the number one man, with Carlton Nelson second. "We're a million miles away here," Emory added. "We've got a long, long way to go."

In the offensive line, there has been some experimentation. "Right now, we're very inexperienced in the offensive line. It's going to take a lot of work." Tight end, too, appears to have experience problems. Norwood Vann has been moved in to join Will Saunders. Vann was a defensive end.

"We were extremely pleased with the play of Tony Hensley (junior college transfer) at center."

Defensively, early progress has been shown by Brian McDaniels and George Crump at one defensive end position, with Mike Davis, Mo Bennett and Rocky Butler battling for the other.

Doug Smith has been moved from nose guard to tackle, and while he has to learn the spot, has been looking good. "We really don't have an experienced tackle at all," Emory said.

With John Hallow, the only other experienced nose guard with the baseball team this spring, Emory is experimenting to some extent, looking for help here.

"Willie Holley is having an outstanding spring so far in the secondary, and Freddie Jones is coming along. Gerald Sykes, moved from split end to cornerback, is fighting with a starting job."

Emory planned a full-scale scrimmage for later in the afternoon, a highlight of the annual East Carolina Coaching Clinic, which winds up today. Over 250 coaches were in attendance at the three-day affair.

"We've been held back in our experimenting to get everyone in the right places, due to the injuries and people missing," Emory said. "For example, George Crump is the kind of guy who could play at any of several positions, but we've been unable to switch him around because we need him where he is now."

The Pirates continue their workouts this week, aiming toward the annual Purple-Gold game on April 26.

Muhammad Retains Crowd As Conteh Falls 5 Times In 4th

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)

— Matthew Saad Muhammad, who retained his World Boxing Council light-heavyweight title Saturday by flooring challenger John Conteh an incredible five times in the fourth round, says his performance came as no surprise.

"I told you once and I'll tell you again, I will never let anyone take the title from me," he said. "I'm not Muhammad Ali. I'm just a new Muhammad on the mountain, seeking my own identity. My goal now is to get the other half of the title."

Muhammad said he'd like to meet the winner of the Marvin Johnson-Eddie Gregory World Boxing Association title fight, which will take place Monday in Knoxville, Tenn., to unite the title.

Muhammad said he realized Conteh was in trouble after a vicious right stunned the Englishman and then a left sent him to the canvas for the first time, 30 seconds into the fourth round.

Muhammad was relentless in his pursuit of Conteh, evidenced by his unmerciful attack against a defenseless challenger.

"I saw his legs going very wobbly after the first knockdown," he said. "I knew I had to pace myself and take my time and I would finally get him."

Muhammad, a former Philadelphia street fighter, was not surprised that Conteh kept getting to his feet. "That makes a good champion. But it proved I was a better champion."

"He gave me a very exciting fight up to when I stopped him. But I was not surprised he kept going down," said Muhammad. "I am a very strong puncher. I was physically and mentally together for this fight."

Conteh, who was floored twice in the 14th round in their first meeting, said he never really recovered after being knocked down the first time.

"I didn't realize how many times I went down, but I knew it was more than once," Conteh said. "I realized I was getting up, but I didn't realize how many times."

Muhammad, sensing Conteh was in serious trouble, went for the knockout. A right hand sent Conteh reeling to the canvas one minute into the round, but the Englishman rose to his feet, looking to his corner for help.

Conteh went down for the third time after Muhammad scored with a left hand, but rose to his feet at the count of eight and Meyran let the fight continue.

With about 45 seconds remaining in the round, a well-timed Muhammad combination sent Conteh down for the fourth time and the referee surprisingly let the fight continue.

Conteh hit the deck for the fifth and final time and Meyran finally stopped the bout at 2:27 of the round.

The fight was a rematch of Muhammad's controversial 15-round unanimous decision over Conteh Aug. 18, also at Resorts International Hotel Casino.

The WBC ordered the rematch after it was found that Muhammad's corner used an illegal adrenalin chloride solution mixed with ground tea leaves to stop the bleeding from a cut above his left eye. He sustained the injury from a Conteh butt in the fifth round.

Muhammad's trainers, Adolph Ritacco and Nick Beliore, subsequently were suspended by the WBC and the New Jersey Athletic Commission.

The 25-year-old Muhammad, 25-3-1, started slowly Saturday. That was in contrast to their first fight, when the Philadelphia boxer tired after going all out in the early rounds. This time, he scored with crisp combinations through the first three rounds, but inflicted no damage on the 28-year-old Conteh, who weighed 175 pounds.

Muhammad, also a 175-pounder, was an easy winner of the early rounds as Conteh was content to assume a defensive posture and pick his spots to throw left jabs.

The fourth-round onslaught started when Muhammad landed punishing blows before Conteh went down for the first time. Conteh, a former champion, was virtually defenseless after the second knockdown and he, too, appeared surprised that the fight was allowed to continue.

Muhammad earned a light-heavyweight record $448,305, compared to Conteh's $366,795. Muhammad's take represented 55 percent of the purse. It is WBC custom that the champion get 75 percent, but because of the controversial nature of the first fight, that practice was abandoned.

By comparison, Marvin Johnson will earn $180,000 for defending his World Boxing Association light-heavyweight title Monday night against Eddie Gregory, who will earn $25,000.

Conteh, 33-4-1, held the WBC crown from 1974-77, defending it three times before he was stripped of the title when he refused to fight Miguel Cuello of Argentina in a dispute over purses.

Baseball Talks Federal Mediator Enters

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — A federal mediator will be on hand today when negotiations between representatives of major league baseball owners and players continue amid the growing possibility of a player strike.

The presence of a Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service representative was requested by the owners.

The Players Association's executive board plans to meet Tuesday in Dallas to determine if and when a strike will be called.

The owners and players cut short a scheduled three-day meeting in Scottsdale, Ariz., last Thursday. The latest talks, aimed at formulating a new four-year basic agreement, broke off on the second day and Friday's session was canceled.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association, called the Arizona meetings a waste of time.

"There was no bargaining Wednesday or today," said Miller on Thursday. Miller met for about two hours with Ray Grebey, chief negotiator for the owners, on Wednesday and said it was Grebey's decision to recess the talks until today.

Grebeby said that along with requesting the mediator to participate in the negotiations, the owners reiterated their contention that the 1980 regular season should open April 9 as scheduled whether or not an agreement has been reached.

Miller said he had no objection to that being reached.

Miller said he had no objection to the mediation service's participation, but questioned the timing of the owners' request.

"I think this may well be a kind of stalling mechanism on the part of the owners," he said.

Miller reasoned that the owners may have asked for the mediator shortly before the players' strike decision is due so that players might delay any action until they can take another look at the situation.

With nearly all Players' Association members polled, only one player had voted against authorizing a strike on or after Tuesday. That player, Kansas City's Jerry Terrell, said his vote was based on religious convictions.

The major issue to be resolved is an owners' proposal to adjust the amount of compensation a team receives after losing a free agent.

The owners propose that a team signing a highly sought free agent be required to give up a player, rather than an amateur draft choice, in return. The free agent's new team could protect only 15 of its players from that selection process.

Other major issues still unresolved include whether players should continue to be entitled to a piece of baseball's television revenues, and whether a player's time in service or his performance should be considered more important when an arbitrator rules on a salary dispute.

About 30 discussions have been held up to now.

Patterson Strikes Out 11

Pirates Whip Fairfield

By WOODY PEELE

Reflector Sports Editor

Bobby Patterson struck out a season high 11 batters and East Carolina gained its eighth straight baseball victory Saturday night, downing Fairfield University, 7-4.

The game was hastily scheduled for Greenville after a doubleheader in Richmond, Va., against Virginia Commonwealth was postponed. East Carolina hopes to make up that date early this week.

Fairfield, in for a single game today, agreed to play an extra game Saturday after the VCU-ECU delay.

The Pirates did have to do some struggling to get the win, twice coming from behind before going ahead for good in the fifth.

Patterson gave up eight hits, walked only two, and was generally effective throughout the evening as he raised his record to 2-1 on the year. For a while, it appeared like he might have a shot at the school record of 14 strikeouts, held by the man who now coaches the Pirates, Hal Baird.

"They (Fairfield) are a good ball club," Baird said afterwards. "They play good defense and they hit the ball well. We were fortunate to get by them."

Fairfield grabbed its first lead in the opening inning when Cedrick Warner slapped a one-out pitch into the pines in left field for a 1-0 margin.

The Pirates came right back with one in the bottom of the first. Butch Davis kept his hitting streak alive, stretching it to 13 games with a freak triple. He hit a line shot right at right fielder Mark Watson. But just as the ball arrived, Watson ducked and by the time the ball was chased down, Davis was on third.

"I thought I had it right in my glove," Watson said later. "But just as it got to me, it went right into the lights, and I lost it completely."

Davis then trotted home on a wild pitch to tie it at 1-1.

East Carolina moved ahead in the second with another single run. Rick Derechailo walked and moved up on a passed ball. John Hallow reached on a single to short left, moving Derechailo to third, and another hit to left, by Todd Hendley, brought Derechailo across for a 2-1 lead.

Fairfield struck back for two in the top of the third. Sean Brophy singled to right center and stole second. He was able to move to third when the ball skipped through at second. Fred Dana walked with one away, and with two outs, Al Zappala tripled to deep center, driving in both runners. That made it 3-2.

East Carolina tied it once more in the bottom of the third. Raymie Styons reached on an infield single with two away, and an error allowed him to take second. He scored when Derechailo singled to right. The Pirates went on to load the bases before a foul fly ended the frame.

In the fifth, the East Carolina pushed ahead for good. Styons provided the first run, a one-out homer, his fourth of the season.

Then, with two away, Macon Moyer doubled to center and Hallow singled to right. Hallow stole second and both scored on a hit by Hendley. The Pirates then led, 6-3.

Then, with two away, Macon Moyer doubled to center and Hallow singled to right. Hallow stole second and both scored on a hit by Hendley. The Pirates then led, 6-3.

The tournament schedule was set back one full day by heavy rains that dumped more than an inch of moisture on the low-lying layout, washed out Friday's play and left the course spotted by pools and puddles of casual water.

Both teams scored once more in the seventh. The Stags got their run when Brophy led off with a double and took third when Warner reached on an error. He scored on a sacrifice fly by Dana.

Derechailo led off the seventh for the Bucs with a walk, and Jeff Warren ran for him. Moyer moved him up with a sacrifice, and Hallow got his fourth hit of the evening to move him to third. Hendley's sacrifice fly to left brought Warren home.

In addition to Hallow's four hits, Best, Styons and Hendley each had two, with Hendley driving in four runs.

Brophy led the Stag hitting with three, while Zappala adding two.

The victory raised the Pirate record to 13-2 on the year, while Fairfield fell to 1-2.

The two clubs meet again today at 2 p.m., and on Wednesday at 3 p.m.

Hitting A Few

Jerry Pate of Pensacola, Fla., hits some golf balls on practice range before play was resumed in the Heritage Golf Classic. At the end of the day Pate was tied for the lead with Doug Tewell at five-under par. Behind Pate is Peter Oosterhuis of England. (AP Laserphoto)

Tewell, Pate Tied For Heritage Lead

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Doug Tewell, one of the last men on the course birdied two of his last three holes to complete a 5-under-par 66 and tie Jerry Pate for the second-round lead Saturday in the rain-delayed $300,000 Heritage Golf Classic.

Tewell and Pate, who had a second-round 69, finished 36 holes with matching totals of 135, 7 shots under par on the water-logged Harbour Town Golf Links.

Tewell, a 30-year-old who has yet to win in five full years of PGA tour activity, got his share of the lead with a 18-20 foot birdie putt on the final hole while the national television cameras had ended their coverage for the day.

"It was a slam-dunk," Tewell said of the putt that put him in a tie for the top. "I'd left one short on the 17th and I wasn't going to do it on the 18th. The ball hit the back of the cup, jumped up in the air and then went in the hole."

The tournament schedule was set back one full day by heavy rains that dumped more than an inch of moisture on the low-lying layout, washed out Friday's play and left the course spotted by pools and puddles of casual water.

A double round of 36 holes is scheduled today — weather permitting. More showers are forecast.

"Any more rain and we'll be in trouble," said Hale Irwin, a two-time winner of this tournament and once again in contention for the title that annually grows in prestige and importance.

"The course is saturated. Some fairways are small lakes. More rain and the course will be under water."

The wet conditions, soft greens that held shots well, and an absence of wind, produced some extremely low scoring. The best was by tour sophomore Scott Simpson, who came within 1 stroke of the course record with a 64.

He was tied at 137 with John Mahaffey and Leonard Thompson, each of whom had a 69.

Masters champion Fuzzy Zoeller shot a 65, with a bogey on the 18th hole. He had one string of four consecutive birdies, and was tied at 138 with Irwin, who had a 67.

"I was just trying to get myself into position for tomorrow," said Irwin, the current U.S. Open champion. "With 36 holes tomorrow, that's a lot of golf to be played and a lot of ground can be made up," Irwin said.

Tewell agreed. "It's nice to have the lead but 36 holes at Harbour Town is a long way to go," said Tewell, who opened his round with a 40-foot birdie putt.

Johnny Miller, who capped his comeback with a recent victory in Inverrary Classic, shot a 68 that could have been much better. He missed at least four putts of six feet or less. "I shot 64, but it turned out to be a 68," Miller said.

Scales Going Hardship

DALLAS (AP) — Louisiana State basketball standout DeWayne Scales said Saturday he has had his troubles and "now is the right time" for him to seek to join the professional ranks.

"I've had my bad times and I don't want to go through them again," said Scales, who announced Saturday he is declaring himself a hardship case in order to qualify for the National Basketball Association draft.

"Maybe if I step up I'll find myself," said the trouble junior who led LSU in scoring last season. "I can mature and not always have someone there telling me what to do."

Scales, who was all-Southeastern Conference two seasons ago, had been expected to make the decision since the end of the 1978-79 season when he let himself be courted by a professional scout.

However, Scales voluntarily enrolled in summer school to keep his eligibility at LSU through last season.

Scales said he bore no ill feelings toward LSU Coach Dale Brown or anyone else at LSU.

"I wish him (Brown) and the team luck next year," said Scales. "I don't regret going to LSU. I was really happy there even with my ups and downs."

The announcement is irrevocable and makes Scales ineligible for any future collegiate play.

Owens In Critical Condition

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Former Olympic great Jesse Owens, fighting a battle against inoperable lung cancer, took "a turn for the worse" and was in critical condition Saturday, his doctors said.

Dr. Stephen Jones, head of the medical team that is treating Owens at the University of Arizona Health Sciences Center, said "Mr. Owens has taken a turn for the worse."

"He is now in critical condition and is quite weak. There's evidence of lung infection. His general condition has deteriorated in the last 24 hours."

Doctors had said Friday night that Owens appeared to be "getting gradually worse," but the hospital had listed him in stable condition until Saturday.

Owens, 65, was transferred to the Tucson hospital a week ago from a hospital in Phoenix. After a radiation treatment Wednesday, Owens resumed chemotherapy treatments Friday. His cancer has been diagnosed as inoperable.

The disease was discovered last December at a hospital in Chicago. Owens then was hospitalized at the university hospital in January, before returning to his home in Paradise Valley, a suburb of Phoenix.

Yarborough Sitting On Pole

BRISTOL, Tenn. (AP) — Veteran Cale Yarborough of Timmonsville, S.C., set a qualifying record Saturday for Bristol International Speedway and won the pole position for Sunday's $126,550 Southeastern 500 Grand National stock car race.

Yarborough hit a fast lap of 111.688 mph in a Chevrolet over the .533-mile high-banked Bristol track, wiping out the old record of 111.668 set last year by Buddy Baker.

Last year's National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing point runner-up, Darrell Waltrip of Franklin, Tenn., won the outside pole in a Chevrolet with a qualifying speed of 111.280 mph.

Chevrolet drivers also took the next three spots with Harry Gant of Taylorsville, N.C., third at 110.875 mph, and this year's NASCAR point leader and last season's rookie of the year, Dale Earnhardt of Kannapolis, N.C., fourth in 110.779 mph.

Rounding out the top five was Benny Parsons of Ellerbe, N.C.

Navratilova Beats King

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — Martina Navratilova turned aside a match point and came back to defeat Billie Jean King 4-6, 7-6, 6-0 in the opening match of a $200,000, four-woman tennis event here Saturday.

The tournament is being held at the Rancho La Costa resort in this coastal San Diego County community.

Tracy Austin and Evonne Goolagong were matched in the second half of the opening day doubleheader. The winners play Sunday for a $100,000 first prize.

The King-Navratilova contest turned on a match point at 5-4 in the second set, which got away from King after Navratilova received a favorable bounce on a ball that hit the top of the net. King reacted in time to lift the ball back, but Navratilova was there to put away the point.

With immediate defeat averted, Navratilova broke King's serve to set the second set at 55, then won a tie-breaker, 7-4.

'Bear' Bryant In Hospital

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Alabama head Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant spent a "restful night" at West Alabama General Hospital Friday night where he was admitted for observation and treatment of pulmonary congestion.

Team physician Dr. Bill deShazo said Saturday that Bryant was responding to medication and improving. He said Bryant probably will be hospitalized through the middle of the week.

Alabama assistant coach Ken Donahue took over spring drills Saturday in the absence of Bryant and wasn't overly impressed with the Crimson Tide's practice.

"I don't think we did very well in our drills," Donahue said following this morning's workout.

With Success, Hawks Respect Brown

ATLANTA (AP) — Hubie Brown, a demanding, dictatorial leader, may not be loved by all his players but the Atlanta Hawks' coach has gained success and their respect en route to the National Basketball Association Central Division crown.

Critics of Brown's no-star, machine-like system who abhor his sometimes rude treatment of players and his regime of calling the entire game are brushed aside by the 46-year-old coach.

"That doesn't bother me. I don't care what other people think," he said in an interview after the Hawks' clinched the division title in his fourth season in Atlanta.

"At no time do we ever lose sight of the fact that we are logical, constructive and fair. The fact that we play 10 guys equally proves that. No other team can say that."

"We give them an opportunity to display their talent. In return they have to give us maximum concentration, intensity and their physical talent. If they do that, they won't hear about it," he said. "If they don't they have to face the consequences. They'll be gone. It's as simple as that. I don't think that is any different than a major corporation or business."

"Our approach is to assume nothing and teach them everything. We give them our offensive and defensive philosophy and tell them we want it done our way. If they can't cut it, they have to go. It's not a slap at a player's individual talents. He may turn out to be a star with another club. What I'm saying is, that's OK but you have to move on. Maybe their physical talents will fit in better somewhere else," said Brown.

The Hawks lead the NBA in defense. In addition, some of Brown's non-stars have turned into All Stars. Guard Eddie Johnson and forward John Drew were first-team All Stars.

Softball Team Wins Tourney

CULLOWHEE — East Carolina's softball team defeated Western Carolina 5-2 in the championship game to win the Western Carolina Invitational Softball Tournament Saturday afternoon.

The Pirates, now 8-1, broke open the title game when Cynthia Sheperd sparked a four-run fourth with a double, driving in two runners.

Earlier in the double elimination tournament ECU defeated Morehead State, 5-0, and NCSU, 2-1, before losing its first game of the season to Western Carolina 1-0.

In the NCSU game, ECU's Mitzi Davis stroked a double to score the winning run. Earlier, Sheperd had knocked in the Pirates' first run with a triple.

In reaching the finals, Western Carolina defeated lost to Campbell, 12-11, before defeating Morehead State, 10-1, Campbell, 3-1, and NCSU, 12-0.

In other scores, NCSU defeated Campbell, 12-5.

on the East Division squad and forward Dan Roundfield also made the honor team.

"I really enjoy it here," said Roundfield, a free agent signed from the Indiana Pacers two seasons ago. "We're an unselfish team. The coach knows his business and keeps us under control. He works as hard as we do."

Johnson is another who respects Brown. "Hubie has gotten the maximum out of the talent I have," he said. "He told me a lot of hard work and I could be a good player in this league. He instilled a lot of confidence in me."

Brown, who led the Kentucky Colonels to the American Basketball Association title in 1974-75, took over a last-place team and in his first season logged a 31-51 record with the Hawks.

That was his only losing season.

The Hawks made the playoffs the next two seasons by improving to 41-41 in 1977-78 and earning Brown NBA Coach of the Year honors, and a year later by posting a 46-36 record.

"When I came here four years ago, we were a well-kept secret, averaging 4,000 people with 600 season-ticket holders. Ted Turner purchased the team halfway through that season and that began a tremendous turnaround," said Brown.

"This year we had 4,500 season-ticket holders and over 11,000 in average attendance. I said three years ago we were going to creep, crawl and walk."

"We were looking for respect, credibility and consistency. The Hawks are now consistent. We now want to be division champions every year and have our names linked in the same sentence with the Boston, the Los Angeles, the Philadelphia, etc. The foundation is now sound."

Brown said the Hawks' success lies in doing the "tough" things. Despite a shooting percentage of 46.9 percent, Atlanta ranks 19th in the league in offense, averaging 105 points a game. However, the Hawks are No.1 in defense, allowing only 105 points.

"How do you win by shooting poorly? Well, you do the tough things," said Brown answering his own question. "You block shots, you create turnovers, be at the top of the league in steals and get offensive rebounds."

Oregon Football Players Being Investigated By Two Agencies

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Allegations of theft, burglary and sexual offenses by University of Oregon football players are being investigated by the Lane County district attorney's office and Eugene police. District Attorney Pat Horton said Friday.

In a further outgrowth of the three-month-old university athletic scandal, Horton confirmed the two agencies were looking into possible misuse of state funds in a previously disclosed secret travel agency fund allegedly set up by one or more football coaches.

The district attorney gave no details of the newly disclosed allegations.

Horton declined to estimate how long the investigation might take. He said that will depend in part upon a review of investigative work already performed by the state attorney general's office and the university's internal investigator, law professor Peter Swan.

Horton acknowledged the existence of the investigation when asked to comment on a report obtained by the Eugene Register-Guard. That report said the Oregon attorney general's office, which earlier conducted a preliminary investigation at the request of university President William Boyd, was referring its findings to Horton's office.

Beamon 2nd, ECU 10th In College Golf

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. — East Carolina's Carl Beamon fired a second-round 70 Saturday to move into second in the Camp Lejeune Intercollegiate Golf Tournament held at the Paradise Point Golf Course.

East Carolina is 10th out of 18 teams with a two-day score of 603. Maryland leads with a 585, while Wake Forest and Virginia are tied for second at 588.

Beamon's two-day total of 143 trails leader Cole King of Virginia by three strokes. King had rounds of 66 and 74.

Other ECU results include Jerry Lee and Mike Moye at 152 and Joey Hines at 154.

The final round is set for today.

Horton said he expects to obtain the material Monday.

A preliminary attorney general's report issued Feb. 15 revealed the existence of a secret account at a local travel agency to which $3,206 worth of airline tickets were charged for football players and boosters.

The report also disclosed an estimated $10,000 worth of long distance telephone calls billed to the university by at least 11 athletes and "other unknown parties."

The controversy began last December with the disclosure that four football players had received bogus academic credits.

The entry of the district attorney's office and the city police department into the controversy reflects a more coordinated effort among law enforcement agencies which had been investigating various aspects of the scandal independently, the Register-Guard said.

At the same time, the scope of investigation has broadened beyond bogus credits and forged transcripts, and now includes allegations of criminal activity on the part of football players, the newspaper said.

Horton said several weeks ago representatives of various agencies investigating the scandal, including the FBI, the Oregon attorney general's office and Eugene police, met to discuss what up to then had been separate investigations. They concluded, Horton said, that it would be beneficial to all parties to share and disseminate the investigatory information.

This included obtaining clearance from the U.S. Department of Justice to share a large file of FBI reports with the local agencies, Horton said.

Horton said the agencies also were seeking the university's internal investigation report prepared by Swan, and he is prepared to issue a grand jury subpoena for that information if necessary.

Information contained in Swan's report prompted Boyd to announce on Feb. 14 that he was reprimanding head football Coach Rich Brooks, four of his assistant coaches and swimming Coach Rich Schleicher. The university president said he was fining them a total of more than $9,000 for misconduct in connection with the academic credit scandal.

Holmes Faces Jones Monday In 6th Title Defense

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Larry Holmes, who said he would be a fighting champion, will make his sixth defense of the World Boxing Council heavyweight championship in 16 months when he meets LeRoy Jones Monday night at Caesars Palace.

The scheduled 15-round bout between the two unbeaten fighters will cap a nationally televised program of four championship bouts that includes John Tate's first World Boxing Association heavyweight title defense against Mike Weaver in Tate's hometown of Knoxville, Tenn.

Also on the show that will be televised by ABC from 8 p.m. to midnight EST, will be Marvin Johnson's WBA title defense against Eddie Gregory at Knoxville and Sugar Ray Leonard's WBC welterweight title defense against Dave "Boy" Green at Landover, Md.

Holmes and Tate could meet in the fall to settle who is the undisputed heavyweight champion but there are several objections to the fight. Promotor Bob Arum is trying to make a Tate-Muhammad Ali fight for June or July and Holmes is talking about fighting Leon Spinks or Scott LeDoux or both within the next four months.

But the biggest obstacles for both champions could be the men they are fighting Monday night. The 6-foot-5, 250-pound-plus Jones has outpointed Weaver over 12 rounds, has never been off his feet and has a 24-0-1 record. Weaver had Holmes in trouble before being stopped in the 12th round last June 22 and looked good in recently outpointing LeDoux.

"Fighting Ali would be a pleasure, but I've always been taught to fight one man at a time," Tate said by telephone from Knoxville.

"I saw Weaver. He's a good counter-puncher. He's got a good left jab. I think he'll be a very hard man for me to defend in my first title defense."

Holmes thinks Weaver's best chance is to get off winging against Tate, who seems to be a slow starter. "If Weaver starts slow, he doesn't have a chance," said Holmes.

As for Holmes-Jones, Tate said, "The records say Holmes will win. I don't think Holmes would take a fight he can lose. But Holmes has trouble with a man who can box."

Despite his size, boxing not power punching is Jones' forte. But 12 of his victories have been by knockouts, although the opponents were not top caliber, and Jones said, "I can always punch hard enough to hurt my opponent and make him respect me."

"I predict the fight won't go five rounds. I feel very confident," said Holmes, who has scored knockouts in his first five defenses. The record for consecutive knockouts in heavyweight title defenses is seven, by Joe Louis.

"If he runs, I'll catch him," said the 30-year-old Holmes. "My plan is to get right at LeRoy and make him fight."

Holmes, who won the title from Ken Norton on a split decision June 9, 1978, has a 33-0 record. He has scored 24 knockouts.

But Jones, also 30, never has been knocked down.

Tate goes into his first WBA title defense with a 20-0 record, with 16 knockouts. He won the title on a unanimous 15-round decision against South African Gerrie Coetzee in Pretoria, South Africa, last Oct. 20. The title had become vacant by Ali's retirement.

Since losing to Holmes, Weaver has scored a four-round knockout over Harry Terrell and a unanimous 12-round decision over LeDoux last Nov. 24. Leonard will be making his first title defense and could end up losing even if he wins. The WBC is talking of stripping him of title recognition if he doesn't sign for a defense against top-ranked Roberto Duran.

Leonard, who is 26-0 with 17 knockouts, won the title when he stopped Wilfred Benitez with six seconds left in the 15th round last Nov. 30. Leonard was ahead on the scorecards of all three judges at the time.

Green will be making his second title bid. The Englishman was knocked out in the 11th round by then WBC champion Carlos Palomino June 14, 1977 in London.

ECC Track Coaches Not Optimistic

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

Farmville Central track coach Gene Brewer believes he knows the key to the Jaguars improving this season on their seventh place finish of a year ago.

Says Brewer: "We're a young team. Most of the people we have are freshman and sophomores this season. How far we go is going to depend on how they mature over the season."

"We don't have a lot of depth and so we'll be relying on them a lot."

The Jaguars return seven starters from last year's squad, forcing Brewer to rely heavily on his as of now inexperienced runners and jumpers.

One returnee Brewer will especially be counting on is Timmie Williams. Williams returns to defend his conference championship in the pole vault, which he won last season with a jump of 12'.

Returning also for the Jaguars this season are Kris Bell (long jump and relays), Johnnie Grimsley (shot and discus), Roger Joyner (pole vault and low hurdles), Chris Starkey (two-mile), Charles Sutton (pole vault), Chris Sutton (hurdles and relays).

Newcomers this year include Wesley Carmon (sprints), Rusty Cottom (pole vault), Robert Deans (shot and discus), Andrew Edwards (high jump, triple jump and hurdles), Greg Henry (relays and triple jump), Renard Joyner (two-mile), Ronnie Locust (shot and discus), David Newton (800), Michael Owens (440 and relays), Sam Sumrell (mile), Morris Wilkes (shot and discus) and Alfred Williams (shot and 440).

"I'm real pleased with what they've done so far," Brewer said of his first-year performers. "I think we've got some good people, but they're just real young and inexperienced."

"We should be all right, though, if they come along throughout the season."

Ayden-Grifton

Ayden-Grifton track coach Leonard Rowe is troubled. Not only does his track team lack depth this season but the Chargers also seem to lack the interest he feels is needed to build a winning program.

"We don't have the depth we need. That kills our sprinters," Rowe said. "But some of the kids don't want to practice this year. I tell them to workout and they feel like they don't have to."

"I just don't think there's a serious attitude at this school for track. Part of the problem is that there's no track. But also there's a losing tradition here."

The Chargers are not, however, without a few promising athletes. Leading the way, according to Rowe, are Vance Barfield, Shelton Cannon and James Worthington, all returning from last year.

Barfield will compete in the long jump and high jump while Cannon will be in the long jump and triple jump. Worthington will run in the 800 and the mile.

Among other returnees are Mark Anderson and Derrick Rogers (shot and discus), Calvin Ellison (100 and 200) and Mark Jones (800 and mile).

Newcomers include Matthew McCotter (shot and 400), Timmy Edwards and Timmy Roberts (100 and 200), Reginald Simmons (400), Perry Ellis (800) and Glen Alphin (two-mile).

Rampant Homers Blast Demons, 16-1

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Kenny Barnes helped his own pitching effort by hitting two home runs, and driving in five runs, while Mike Campbell cracked out a grand-slam homer as the Rose High Rampants pasted Wilson Fike, 16-1, here Friday.

The victory was the second in Division I play for the Rampants, as they climbed to 4-1 overall. Fike fell to 3-4 overall and 1-1 in league play.

Despite a light rain that fell throughout the game, the Rampants played perfect ball in the field, not committing an error. They took advantage of five Fike miscues, however, and added 12 hits to that on the way to the win.

Barnes, who went the first six innings, before allowing Scott Galloway to get in some pitching time in the seventh, scattered six hits, one of them a homer that accounted for the lone Golden Demon run.

"I think we played quite well today," Coach Ronald Vincent said. "We hit the ball extremely well and we played fine defense. I don't have anything to complain about in this one. It was one of those things where everything goes right for you. Even when we put in the substitutes we were able to have a big inning."

It opened as if it would be a close game. Both teams went down in order until the bottom of the second, when Rose finally broke the ice.

That came when Barnes cracked his first home run, a solo shot to left with one away. Rose went on to put two men in scoring position on an error, a walk and two stolen bases.

Fike came right back and tied it up in the top of the third. That, too, came on a homer, as catcher Randy Ward lined one out in left field, knotting it at 1-1. Fike, having shaken Barnes, went on to put two on, before a pop-up, and a man caught stealing ended it.

Fike had a few other scoring opportunities the rest of the way, but was held off the board.

Rose regained the lead with three runs in the bottom of the third. With one down, Mark Douglas singled and moved up when the ball was bobbled in the outfield. With two away, Roger Williams walked. Barnes followed with a single, driving in Douglas for a 2-1 lead. Emmett Walsh singled to left, scoring Williams, and a hit by Campbell brought in courtesy runner Mitchell Brann with the final run of the frame.

The Rampants came right back with four more in the fourth to up their lead to 8-1. With one down, Mark Shank singled and stole second, scoring when Douglas got his second hit of the day. Douglas then stole second, and with two away, nearly got caught on Williams' infield grounder. Douglas then stole third and Williams advanced on a passed ball. Barnes ended the suspense, however, slapping a three-run homer to left for the 8-1 lead.

Walsh followed that up with a bunt right back at the pitcher, ending the inning.

"That was done on my orders," Vincent later said. "It was raining a little harder, and

In the sixth, the Rampants sent 12 men to the plate, six of them non-starters, but still scored eight more runs.

Todd Galloway led off with a walk and Will Barrett singled.

Chris Jones walked, loading the bases for Barnes. But before he got a chance to try for a grand-slam, relief pitcher Jeff Howell dropped the return throw from the catcher and was slow in going after the ball. Galloway used his sluggishness to scamper home.

Barnes was then hit by a pitch, reloading the bases. Brann reached on an infield hit, scoring Barrett. Campbell then stepped in and unloaded a grand-slam homer.

Rose wasn't through, however, scoring twice more. Jeff Wilson reached when his third strike got by the catcher and the throw down was errored. Shank reached on another error. Both moved up on a wild pitch, and a passed ball scored Wilson. Shank came home on a fielder's choice by Barrett.

Barnes led the Rose hitting with three, while Douglas, and Campbell each had two. Ricky Matthews had two hits to lead Fike.

The Rampants travel to Rocky Mount on Tuesday for their first test against the team many pick to win the league title.

Bullets Take 30th Straight

JAMESVILLE — Defending state 1-A champ Jamesville won its 30th straight game over the past two years, downing Pantego, 15-0, Friday.

The five-inning game featured a one-hitter combination by Rex Bell and Greg Sullivan, who worked the final two innings. Bell gave up the lone hit by David McLachorn in the first inning.

Jamesville grabbed the lead in the first when Alan Frazier tripled and scored on Clarence Thomas' home run.

In the second, Jamesville added five more runs. Jeff Perry doubled and scored on a two-bagger by Bell. Frazier reached on an error and Thomas tripled in both runners, and was then thrown out at the plate trying to stretch it into a homer.

Trent Ange tripled and scored off Keith Modlin's triple. Carl Ange then singled in Modlin with the fifth run.

Jamesville added two more in the third and six in the fourth, including a solo homer by Trent Ange.

Frazier, Thomas, both of the Anges, Modlin and Perry each had two hits to lead the Bullets.

Now 5-0 on the year, Jamesville travels to Aurora on Tuesday.

Bullets Win To Keep Playoffs Hopes Alive

By The Associated Press

It's nervous time for Dick Motta.

"Tonight was like the sixth game of the playoffs, when you're trailing 3-2," said Baltimore Coach Dick Motta after a 100-80 victory over the Atlanta Hawks Friday night. "Now it's on to the seventh game — do or die."

Actually, Friday night's victory kept the Bullets' hopes alive for a berth in the National Basketball Association playoffs, which start next week.

"It's all very simple now," said Motta. "A win in New Jersey puts us in the playoffs, a loss puts us out."

If the Bullets beat the Nets Sunday in New Jersey, they will tie New York and earn a playoff berth because of a better record against Eastern Conference opponents.

Meanwhile, Houston nailed down a playoff spot for the fourth time in six years by beating Detroit 128-112 Friday night.

Elsewhere, Boston clinched the Atlantic Division with a 130-122 triumph over Cleveland, Indiana tripped San Antonio 127-122, New Jersey whipped Philadelphia 99-92, Kansas City edged Milwaukee 116-114, Seattle defeated Golden State 108-82, Los Angeles wallopped San Diego 126-88 and Phoenix stopped Portland 114-110.

Elvin Hayes scored 29 points, grabbed 16 rebounds and blocked eight shots to pace Washington's conquest of Atlanta. Kevin Grevey, who scored 24 points, made three three-point baskets in the first quarter to give the Bullets a lead they never lost as they beat the Hawks for the third straight time at the Capital Centre.

Rockets 128, Bullets 112
Moses Malone scored 28 points, Rudy Tomjanovich collected 24 and Calvin Murphy led a game-breaking burst in the fourth period to help Houston beat Detroit. The victory marked a personal triumph for Houston Coach Del Harris, who directed the Rockets into the playoffs in his first year as head coach.

Celtics 130, Cavaliers 122
Larry Bird scored 33 points and Rick Robey added 25 as Boston beat Cleveland. The victory insured the Celtics of the best record in the league (61-20) and gave them a first-round bye in the playoffs. Boston survived a fourth-quarter scare by the Cavs to earn the victory.

Pacers 127, Spurs 122
Billy Knight scored 23 points and Dudley Bradley had 22 to lead Indiana past San Antonio.

The Pacers took command with an eight-point burst in the final quarter to take a 103-94 lead with 9:05 remaining.

Nets 99, 76ers 92
Mike Newlin scored 21 points, including four free throws in the final minute, to lead New Jersey past Philadelphia. Before the game was over, the 76ers learned that they had been eliminated from the Atlantic Division race with Boston's victory.

Kings 116, Bucks 114
Sam Lacey hit two free throws with 42 seconds remaining to snap an 111-111 tie, then added a rebound basket with 10 seconds left to lift Kansas City over Milwaukee.

Rams Slip Past Conley By 3-2

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer
HOLLYWOOD — Greene Central coach Jimbo Fulghum was pleased. Unlikely enough, so too was D.H. Conley coach Walter Claybrook, who had just watched his Vikings drop a 3-2 decision to the league-leading Rams.

"This was a good game for us," Claybrook said. "We're getting to learn we can play with the good guys. Our young guys played well. I think they're finally finding out they can play a team like Greene Central and win."

But not on this day.
Leading 2-1 going into the sixth inning and the rain, which poured down throughout the game, becoming heavier, the Rams were looking for an insurance run. They got it.

With one out Chip Hardy ripped a single into left, moved to second when Jeff Scott walked, and scored on an error by Conley shortstop Mutt Dixon, who misplayed a grounder by Greg Holmes.

"Conley always gives us a tough time," Fulghum said. "And in a game like this we wanted to just go at it one run at a time. We wanted that extra run."

And needed it, because the Vikings made it close with a run in the seventh.

After striking out the side in the sixth, Greene Central's Ken Johnson opened the seventh with his eighth strikeout of the game.

But when Carl Arnold tripled Johnson was gone. Arnold scored on a ground out by Curtis Spencer, but reliever Kevin Korpi ended it getting Dixon Page to ground out.

The win ups the Rams' record to 4-0 in the Eastern Carolina Conference and 6-2 overall. The Vikings fall to 3-2 overall and 3-2 in the league.

"I thought Ken did a real good job today," Fulghum said of his pitcher. "We ran the bases poorly and didn't hit the ball like we have, though.

"But Conley is a much improved ballclub. They played tough and weren't ever out of it. I'm just glad to get away with the win."

For awhile it looked like neither team would score, as Johnson and his Viking counterpart, sophomore Doug McRoy, kept the batters off the bases.

The Rams, who have won the ECC baseball title the past two seasons, finally scored in the fourth thanks to three errors by the Vikings.

Donald Shaw led off the inning with a single. The Vikings then made three straight errors — two by third baseman Jeff Cox and the third by Dixon — but it was a passed ball by Spencer that allowed Shaw to score.

Jeff Scott then sent a single up the middle, scoring Jabo Fulghum, who had gotten on via one of the Vikings errors.

D.H. Conley, hitless against Johnson for the first four innings, narrowed the margin to 2-1 with a run in the fifth.

Spencer led off with a walk and scored two outs later on a single by Dixon Page, making the score 2-1 going into the last two innings.

"Our young guys did all right today," Claybrook said. "The older guys who normally we count on didn't have good games, but they've already proved themselves."

"I think today the young guys proved themselves."

Gymnastics Camp Is Set

East Carolina University will hold its annual summer gymnastics camp from July 6-11. Pirate coach Jon Rose has announced.

The camp, formerly under NGL supervision, will be under full supervision of Rose this year. It is for boys and girls, ages 6-17, although children must be eight and over to stay in dormitories.

Three different plans are available for the youths. The full plan, which includes full room and board and all activities is $120 for the weeklong session. Plan two, which is for day-students but includes lunch is $85. Day-students, without lunch, is $75.

In addition, there will be a lot program, for ages 3-5, for $50.

Full Olympic equipment will be available, with at least two of each apparatus available.

Groups of 10 or more receive a 10 per cent discount, and applications are available from Rose, in care of East Carolina University, Minges Coliseum, Greenville, N.C. 27834. Rose may also be contacted by phone at 757-6583, or 756-0666.

A $25 deposit is required with each registration.

Jay Whalen, a member of the 1976 U.S. Olympic team, and presently the coach at N.C. State, will also be on the camp staff.

Legislators High On Indoor Sports Arena

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Despite skeptical reviews from the athletic directors of three major North Carolina universities, state legislators say they are still enthusiastic about a proposed indoor sports arena.

Athletic directors from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, North Carolina State and Wake Forest told a legislative study commission on the sports arena that the cost of maintaining and operating the proposed facility would be enormous.

"The interest is here," said Frank Weedon, assistant athletic director at N.C. State. "But whether the interest and the support for funding is there, sir, I am doubtful.

"I look at it with a little skepticism," he said. "I don't see how you can support a stadium like that with three or four games a year."

Various proposals for a major area for sporting events have been studied by members of the joint House and Senate study commission since 1975. No final recommendation has yet been made.

Proposals for the sports arena have been complicated by UNC's plans to construct a new 23,000-seat basketball stadium on the Chapel Hill campus.

UNC Athletic Director Bill Cobey, who is a Republican candidate for lieutenant governor, said the school would use a state stadium on a limited basis but that its top priority was to build and use its own coliseum.

Weedon and Wake Forest's Gene Hooks also said they saw no way to build and maintain such a facility without state assistance. And, said Hooks, "I don't see it as a very good way for North Carolina to spend its money right now."

Although the commission has taken no vote, Rep. Allen Barbee, D-Spring Hope, who heads the commission with Sen. Julian Allsbrook, D-Roanoke Rapids, defended the concept of a state arena. He saying it could be financed with self-retiring bonds and be useful for ACC tournaments and major games of ACC schools.

"We probably can't find it feasible if those of you who are here don't want to cooperate."

Girls' Softball Roundup

Edenton 14,
Roanoke 12

ROBERSONVILLE — Edenton High School scored seven runs in the top of the seventh to slip past Roanoke, 14-12, in softball Friday.

Edenton had taken a 4-0 lead in the first inning, helped along by a three-run homer by Norman, but Roanoke struggled back and finally moved ahead, 12-7, in the bottom of the sixth.

Then, in the seventh, Norman again sparked the Lady Aces, hitting a second three-run homer.

Norman gathered in four hits during the afternoon, while Goodwin and Babb each had two.

Roanoke was led by Evelyn Martin and Juliet Barnhill, each with three, while Eilane Biggs had two. All three provided solo homers in the second inning for the Squaws.

The loss dropped Roanoke to 0-2 on the year. They travel to Ahoskie on Tuesday.

Wilson Fike outscored Rose High School, 15-9, in a girls' softball game Friday.

Fike scored first, getting a run in the opening inning, but Rose tied it up in the second.

Fike then went ahead for good in the third with four runs, including a three-run homer by Morris. The Demonettes added six in the fourth, three in the sixth and one in the seventh.

Rose countered with three in the third and five in the sixth, but fell short.

Morris led the Fike hitting with three, while Sheila Robertson had two for Rose.

North Pitt Eases By Ayden-Grifton

By LARRY SULLIVAN
Reflector Sports Writer
LITTLEFIELD — Ayden-Grifton baseball coach Allen Wilson predicted the future of his squad's Eastern Carolina Conference game played against the North Pitt Panthers here Friday afternoon.

Now he wishes it never came true.
"A wild pitch or an error caused by the rainy conditions will win this game," Wilson said from his Chargers' dugout during third inning action.

In the sixth frame, with the score knotted at 4-4, Charger third baseman Joe Kennedy lost the handle of a wet baseball on a routine grounder, allowing North Pitt to score what turned out to be the winning run. The Panthers added a second run in the sixth on a passed ball, giving the visitors a soggy, 6-4 diamond win.

"I knew it would happen," Wilson said after the loss. "I'm just sorry it wasn't us that got the break. But like I said, we're a young team this year, and we're going to make mistakes. We played good ball today, and (Tyrone) Gay's pitching kept us in the game," he added.

Playing on the same field where just three days earlier the Chargers had been humiliated by D.H. Conley, 21-3, Ayden-Grifton was determined to get off to a good start. North Pitt disagreed. The Panthers struck for two first frame runs off Charger ace Gay, both scores coming after two outs. William Beachum gathered a walk, stole second base and moved to third on a throwing error. Designated hitter Ronnie House then rolled a single by Ayden-Grifton's first and second basemen, allowing Beachum to score. House swiped second and Bob Hemmingsway brought him home with a single.

Both teams went down in order in the second frame and Gay checked the Panthers in the top of the third before the Chargers broke loose for four third inning tallies.

Chris Strickland began the frame by reaching on an error. Art Rouse and Bernard Ricciarelli followed with back-to-back bunt singles, loading the bases for clean-up batter Clayton McLawhorn. The power centerfielder responded with a two-run single, plating both Strickland and Rouse. Gay then bunted, putting men on first and second, before Billy Holland stroked a run-producing single, bringing home Ricciarelli. Gay was caught trying to swipe second and Holland was tagged out at third, before Brandt Allen's grounder was errored, scoring McLawhorn.

North Pitt retaliated by tying the score in the top of the fourth with a pair of scores. House led off with his second hit of the game, went to second on Hem-mingsway's walk and moved to third on a passed ball. After on out, Gregory Briley singled to right field, bringing home both House and Hemmingsway.

With the help of the ever-present rain, the teams remained deadlocked until the sixth. Hemmingsway led off the Panther sixth with a single and moved to second on a sacrifice bunt. He was advanced to third on Briley's fielder's choice. With two outs, Robert Bunn stepped to the plate. His two-bouncer to third was fielded cleanly by freshman Kennedy, but the throw was off target, allowing Hemmingsway to sprint home with the game-winner. Bunn went to second on the error and took third on a passed ball before scoring on Gay's wild pitch for the game's final run. Southpaw Melvin Howard grabbed the mound victory, going the distance while allowing four earned runs on nine Charger hits. He walked three and fanned two in the seven inings. Gay suffered his first defeat of the young baseball campaign, falling to 2-1 while giving up the six runs on seven singles, walking three and striking out eight.

A-G's Rouse led all batters in the contest with three safeties while teammate Holland garnered two singles in three at-bats. House and Hemmingsway each pounded out a couple of Panther shots to pace the winners.

Greene Central Takes Dual Loop Track Win

DEEP RUN — Greene Central of the Eastern Carolina Conference captured the championship in the annual Dual Conference Track Meet, between teams from the ECC and the East Central Conference.

The Rams finished the ten-team meet with 109 points, while Clinton and Pender tied with 76 for second place. South Lenoir finished fourth with 61, followed by North Lenoir, 47; James Kenan, 43; Conley, 38; Wallace-Rose Hill, 36; East Duplin, 28; and Lakewood, 14.

Clinton's Stanley King was the top winner in the event, taking three events, the 100, the 220 and the 180-yard low hurdles. Greene Central's Melvin Bynum won both the long and triple jumps to be the meet's only other multiple winner.

Greene Central also won the 120-yard high hurdles, with C.

Daniels taking first, and the two-mile, where J. Holmes took first.

Conley won two events, with Jeff Gould taking the pole vault and Stoney Speller winning the mile.

COMPARE THE QUALITY AND PERFORMANCE FEATURES OF A SNAPPER MOWS. BAGS. VACUUMS. MULCHES. SHREDS.

A SNAPPER is worth more because it does more and its price is competitive with other quality mowers. With a rear catcher and two inexpensive attachments, the Mulcherizer and Snapperizer you can perform all these functions and still have the choice of 1) Six forward speeds on rear-wheel drive, self-propelled models 2) 19" or 21" cutting widths, and 3) 3.7, 4 or 5 HP engines.

North Carolina's midwinter results are in and the duck population is down, way down in some cases.

The heaviest drops this season were among Scaups, Ruddies and Mallards.

Last year there were 105,900 Scaup counted. This year there were only 18,700. Last year there were 36,100 Mallards counted. This year there were 10,700. Also last year, among Ruddies the drop was from 95,900 to 61,900.

One man who has a theory about what happened to North Carolina's birds this season is Steve Fricks, Refuge Manager at Lake Mattamuskeet.

Says Fricks: "We got our normal amount of early birds. They came. But when they left, the late birds didn't come down. The winters in New England and the mid-Atlantic states wasn't that bad, so the birds stayed up there."

Meanwhile, the early birds left, leaving North Carolina hunters nearly empty-handed.

"I'd guess — and this is purely a guess — that the kill was down some 30 to 60 percent," Fricks said.

Even with the later cold weather Fricks said the late birds would not migrate south.

"Once they're up there, particularly when they pair off, they won't come down. They're thinking of going back north for the summer," Fricks said.

The numbers for other bird populations include: Black Duck (-54% from 18,800 to 8,500), Pintail (-34%, from 33,200 to 21,800) and Snow Geese (-53%, from 34,900 to 16,300).

Among those with increased populations were Wigeon (75%, from 4,900 to 9,600) and Canvasback (20%, from 50,700 to 61,000).

Rose Takes Net Match

Rose High School's tennis team remained unbeaten on the season Friday, gaining a 5-1 victory over Wilson Fike.
 The Rampants and Golden Demons were unable to play the doubles matches, but Rose had already clinched the victory before the rains washed out the rest of the match.
 Details were not made available to "The Daily Reflector."

Allegorical Story About A Little Seed

The Little Seed. By David Maryland Webb. Wilson, N.C., Webb-Newcomb Company, Inc. Illustrated, $4.95.

In a book for children as well as for people of all ages who want "to grow to be something really beautiful and wonderful," Dr. David Webb has written a profound, allegorical story in "The Little Seed," a book filled with beauty, tenderness, humor and tragedy.

As in real life, the protagonist of the story, the little seed, shares many joys — yet, he also experiences day-by-day problems, challenges, and defeats as he prepares himself for growth to try "to be something really beautiful and wonderful."

Beginning with complications and rising action on the first page, Dr. Webb's story is set in a faraway country where once there lived, in a green garden, a very little seed. As years pass and the personified seed grows older and finds that he is not growing and maturing as he should, he questions the real meaning of life and wonders whether life has "passed him by."

Throughout the book, the author maintains anticipation, suspense, sentiment, and foreshadowing, as the least-among-all-the seeds in the garden searches for growth.

The concluding pages reveal the climax of the implicit theme of the story.

In "The Little Seed," Dr. Webb has met the requirements of good literature for children:

the need to love and be loved, the need to belong, to change, to achieve, to know, to appreciate beauty and order, and to experience a sense of physical and emotional well-being. Children who read the book, or have the book read to them, will realize joys as well as receive inspiration in meeting modern-day problems.

Dr. Webb's style is simple, yet dramatic, filled with imagery, allusion, and symbols. His tone indicates sensitivity not only for his theme but also for the young reader.

"The Little Seed" is soft-bound. Black and white illustrations are by Mrs. Janet Barnes Harris of Tuscaloosa, Alabama, formerly of Wilson. These complement the story and provide an affinity with the little seed.

A native of eastern North Carolina, Dr. Webb resides in Wilson. He is chairman of the Dept. of Education, Atlantic Christian College, where he has taught for the past six years. Presently, he hosts a weekly education television show for children. "Dr. Webb's Story-Time."

Copies, autographed upon request, may be obtained from Webb-Newcomb Co., Inc., 308 N.E. Vance Street, Wilson, N.C., 27893. The price is $4.95 plus 85 cents postage and handling.

Book Award

DURHAM — For the first time ever North Carolina will be the site for presentation of a prestigious national literary award. On Wednesday, April 2, which is "International Children's Book Day," E. P. Dutton & Co. of New York will receive the Mildred L. Batchelder Award in ceremonies to be held at the newly completed Durham County Library Building. Mimi Kayden, marketing director of children's books, will receive the award on behalf of E. P. Dutton.

Marilyn Miller, professor at UN-CH School of Library Science, and president of the Association for Library Service to Children (ALSC) of the American Library Association, will present the award.

The public is encouraged to attend the presentation and the reception to be held afterwards. Admission is free.

Photo Awards

SALISBURY — The presentation of photography awards for photographs appearing in Focus II, a juried exhibition, will be made during a reception being held from 2 to 5 p.m. today at Rowan Art Gallery, 310 West Kerr St., Salisbury.

Also today, an exhibit of drawings by Pauline Dove are going on view. Hours for the gallery are 10-5 Mondays through Fridays, and 2 to 5 on Sundays.

New York's Crystal Palace was destroyed by fire in 1858.

Show Of Cones' Gifts

GREENSBORO — A special exhibition of art works, which have been given to Weatherspoon Art Gallery by Benjamin and Anne W. Cone of Greensboro, goes on view today and will be up through April 20.

The exhibition features 20 works of sculpture and paintings given to the gallery by the Cones for the past 15 years. It also features a new painting, "Beach Scene" by Edward Lanning, donated to the gallery in honor of Cone's 80th birthday.

Among artists represented in the show are American painters Arthur B. Davies, John D. Graham, Raphael Soyer, Joseph Stella, and Edward Hopper. Sculptors include Gabriel Kohn, Paulanship, Elie Nadelman and Saul Baizerman.

Gallery hours are 10 to 5 Tuesdays through Fridays and 2 to 6 on weekends.

1980-81 ECU Artists Series Set

East Carolina University Student Union and Mendenhall Student Center announce entertainments scheduled for the 1980-81 Artists Series.

The season begins on September 18 and concludes on April 2, 1981, with five attractions scheduled.

---Dance Season---

RALEIGH — The Triangle Dance Guild, Inc. of Raleigh, Durham and Chapel Hill has announced performances scheduled for its 1980-81 season. All performances are slated for weekend evenings and all are to take place in Stewart Theater on the campus of N. C. State University. The dance evenings scheduled are:

— Friday, September 19 — The North Carolina Dance Theater, performing as part of the N. C. Arts Council Touring Program, will present their latest works.

— Saturday, November 1, 7:30 p.m. — The Murray Louis Dance Company, celebrating its 25th year of modern dance, will perform.

— Friday, January 30, 8 p.m. — The Jerry Ames Tap Dance Company will bring a program of tap dance as the first event of 1981.

— Friday, February 27, 8 p.m. — The Phyllis Lambuth Dance Company will have a performance as part of its week-long residency in area studios and schools.

— Friday, March 27, 7:30 p.m. — The Ohio Ballet is presenting a repertoire of works by Robert Joffrey, Gerald Arpino and artistic director Heinz Poll.

Tickets for the five evenings of tions scheduled. Dates and events are:

— September 18 — Empire Brass Quintet, a brass quintet which features Rolf Smedvig, trumpet; Charles A. Lewis, Jr., trumpet; David Ohanian, French horn; Normal Bolter, trombone; and Samuel Palafian, tuba. Winner of the 1976 Naumburg Chamber Music Award, the five are currently Artists-in-Residence at Boston University.

— October 16 — The voice and piano duo of Charles Bressler and Menahem Pressler is the attraction for the second of the performances in the Artists Series.

— November 12 — This is the first appearance of flamenco guitarist Carlos Montoya in the Artists Series. Montoya, however, was here in the 1978 Mendenhall Series.

— January 2, 1981. — The renowned Juilliard String Quartet of the Juilliard School of Music will perform in the first 1981 date in the series. This acclaimed group has played over 3,000 sold-out concerts.

— April 2, 1981 — Pianist Charles Rosen will appear in the final performance of the season. He performs old masters and the romantic composers, as well as contemporary music.

Season tickets for all five performances are priced at $20. These tickets represent a savings of one-third over the regular individual ticket prices.

All performances will be at 8 p.m. on the dates indicated, and will be held in Hendrix Theater.

Interested persons are advised to purchase season tickets at an early date, as the number of seats in Hendrix are limited. For more information and reservations, call the Central Ticket Office, 757-6611.

Pilot Club Met

The March meeting of the Pilot Club of Greenville, Inc. was held last Monday night at the Ramada Inn.

New officers for the Pilot year 1980-81 were elected and will be installed at the May meeting. Lib LeConte and Mary Cochran will serve as delegates to the Spring Conference on April 25-27 in Charlotte, along with president-elect Elizabeth Dupree, who will be the Club's official delegate.

Elizabeth Dupree was recognized as the "Spoke of the Month."

Pilots will support the Greenville Recreation Department in the spring opening of Physical Fitness Week on April 19.

Rhonda Stanley was special guest and Irene Prewett presided over the meeting and presented a program on the role of Pilots on the international level.

Carolina Today

Two candidates for lieutenant governor and several guests to appear in connection with Belk's celebration of Williamsburg week will be on "Carolina Today," the early morning show aired over WNCN-TV, Channel 9 between 6 and 8 a.m. weekly, Monday through Friday.

The coming week's roster of guests is:

— Monday, March 31 — 6:40 a.m., Jim Taylor, District Director, Federal Crop Insurance; 7:15 a.m., Mrs. Callas, member of the original Hostess Corps, Williamsburg, Va.; 7:40 a.m., Bill Hodges, District Manager, Census Bureau and Barbara Carney, Superintendent of Special Places.

— Tuesday, April 1 — 6:40 a.m., Healthbreak; 7:15 a.m., a Williamsburg silversmith in costume; 7:35 a.m., Eddie Harrington, plant doctor; and 7:40 a.m., Jimmy Green, Lt. Governor of North Carolina and candidate for re-election.

Doctor's Day Today

Today is Doctor's Day, and Mar. 30 has been designated each year to honor the doctors of Pitt County.

This year, the ladies Medical Auxiliary of Pitt County will provide a public service to help the patient in the doctor's honor. Mrs. Thomas E. Burkart, chairman of Doctor's Day, learned that the Pitt County Rehabilitation Center at Pitt Memorial Hospital needed a hair dryer and other hair supplies.

The organization has donated a pressing comb and a standing hair dryer to the center for use in "Help patients with the hygiene care."

City Council Call Meeting

The City Council has scheduled a special call meeting for Monday, March 31 at 5 p.m. in the first floor conference room at city hall.

The Council will discuss goals and objectives for the city and then hold an executive session to discuss appointments to various boards and commissions.

Considering a new fireplace or wood burning heater?

Then consider the revolutionary new all masonry BRICK-O-LATOR fireplace designed and developed by Triangle Brick Company.

The BRICK-O-LATOR uses outside air for efficient combustion rather than already warmed expensive inside air.

Two blower fans draw in room air and force it around a series of brick baffles located in heat chambers behind the firebox walls. This heated air is then discharged into your family room, or it can be ducted a short distance to an adjoining living area.

Two of the major differences between the all masonry BRICK-O-LATOR fireplace design and metal inserts and wood stoves are that the BRICK-O-LATOR will give more even heat distribution when in use and will retain heat for hours after the fire has gone out, while metal inserts and wood stoves heat quickly but also cool quickly.

There is nothing like a real all brick fireplace for warmth, comfort and beauty. So if you are designing a new home or an addition to your existing home, write or call Triangle Brick today for more complete information on the BRICK-O-LATOR units and design plans.

Students Recognized

CHAPEL HILL — Ninety-two students at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill were recognized for outstanding academic achievement recently by the UNC-CH Chapter of the Pre-Professional Health Society.

Three area students were honored — Hattie F. Hardy and Carol Y. Lee, freshmen from Greenville and Stephanie Crawford, senior from Snow Hill.

The society, an undergraduate organization for students pursuing degrees in health-related fields, honored black and American Indian undergraduate students who have maintained a "B" average or better.

Gives $2,500 To Boys' Club

A check totaling $2,500 was presented this week to the Boys' Club of Pitt County by the Optimist Club of Greenville. Max Stephenson, president of the club, presented the check to Chet Emerson, executive director of the club. $2,000 will be applied toward the Optimist Club pledge of $25,000 to help construct the new Boys' Club facility; and $500 is to be used for operating expenses.

"The Optimist Club of Greenville has been instrumental in helping the Boys' Club since its beginning here," Emerson commented. "Several of the original members of the Board of Directors were Optimist Club members and they faithfully support us each year. Our community is fortunate to have such a dedicated group of men as the Optimists."

The Optimist Club of Greenville has as its primary objective the promotion of youth programs throughout the community. The club sponsors several fund raising programs annually to support these programs. The Optimist Club meets each Monday at 6:30 p.m. at Tom's Restaurant.

The Initial Phase Of City Budget Preparation Underway

Proposals designed to maintain efficient and economical delivery of existing services at current levels will be the main thrust of Greenville's 1980-81 budget preparation, according to Ed Wyatt, city manager.

Wyatt said that the initial phase of the 1980-81 budget development process has begun. He explained, "Budget preparation forms have been given to all city departments and agencies with instructions to return them by April 14. In view of inflation and possible revenue reductions, I feel that consideration for establishing new services will be extremely limited."

Wyatt said that one of the problems facing all municipalities is the possibility of General Revenue Sharing funds being eliminated. "There is an exceptionally strong movement in Congress to do away with General Revenue Sharing in order to appease critics of the program," he added.

The city manager reported that the state and national League of Municipalities has a well-organized campaign to promote re-enactment of revenue sharing for city, county and state governments. Wyatt said he anticipates this effort will be successful.

"We are proceeding with our budget process on the basis that General Revenue Sharing will again fund approximately seven percent of the budget," he stated.

According to Wyatt, the city's new budget, excluding Utilities, is expected to total somewhere between $9 to $10 million.

"Surprisingly, city taxes will account for about 25 percent of the city's revenues," he said, noting that despite the fact that Greenville has had unprecedented residential, public, and commercial growth, much of the new development in the area is non-taxable.

In addition, he said, property values which reflect re-evaluation performed on an eight-year schedule ending next year, are still pegged to 1973 building costs.

"Therefore, the new homes built in the city in the past three or four years are listed at considerably less than today's inflationary housing costs," Wyatt said.

"Greenville's exploding growth is not fully reflected in our tax valuation and subsequent ad valorem tax revenues," he continued. "The cost and the extent of the job associated with the delivery of city services has expanded greatly while the tax revenue has evidenced considerably less relative growth."

The city administrator declared, "In essence, this could be the simplest way I know to explain the magnitude of the budget process for the coming year."

Wyatt reported that labor costs and benefit costs represent more than half of the city's budget and he predicted very little change in this ratio.

"The city's greatest single cost is personnel," he observed, "and we have to make adequate provision in our budget to provide for these people who are so vital to the well-being of us all. The city intends to comply with the mandate of the presidential guidelines in looking at increases in wages, and I foresee very little in the way of new additional benefits."

"In the majority of the departments, we do not anticipate the addition of any new positions," Wyatt said. "For example, our cross-training programs in fire/rescue will eliminate the need for additional manpower while improving our ability to maintain the level of service from this department."

The city manager observed, "However, there is no question that we have a need to expand our Police Department and Public Works Department's ability to cover our newly developing areas. Of course, any positions we establish will have to be properly justified and in keeping with our ability to absorb new personnel cost."

Reporting that vehicle operational cost is accelerating to a major extent, Wyatt noted that the city operates some 400 pieces of motorized equipment. He said that in spite of efficiency efforts, the rising price of fuel has continued to override any gains made in this area.

"Despite the challenges I've outlined, the city will continue a dedicated effort to follow the trend of continuing to provide the same, or better, level of services at a reasonable cost to the public," he said.

More Census Takers Are Needed

More applicants for paid, temporary work as census takers during the 1980 census are urgently needed, according to Bill Hodges, manager of the Greenville District Office. Census takers will be assigned to their own neighborhoods whenever possible, the manager said. Paid training will begin very soon, followed by several weeks of full-time work visiting homes and interviewing the residents.

Census takers should be U.S. citizens age 18 or older. However, they may be hired at age 16 or 17 if they are high school graduates or have equivalent work experience. Also, the citizenship requirements may be waived, especially for persons fluent in a foreign language as well as English.

A census taker must be able to follow printed instructions, do simple arithmetic, and read maps, all of which he will be tested for before interviewing for hiring. Pay will average $4 an hour or more.

Applicants should have a home telephone and a car, but neither is absolutely necessary. Mileage will be paid when a personal car is used for census work.

The Census Bureau is an equal opportunity employer. Call 1-800-682-6561 for information.

Investigates Ayden Theft

AYDEN — An investigation is underway by the Pitt County Sheriff's Department into the theft of $3,800 worth of tires and wheels from new cars parked on the lot of M & W Chevrolet near here.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that the automobile dealership reported that 24 tires and wheels were taken from the new vehicles on March 26.

Damage to the new cars as a result of the incident was estimated at $1,000, the sheriff said.

The dealership is located on NC 11.

GOLD MEDAL WINNER

AAction Moving & Storage of Greenville has been named a Gold Medal Winner by United Van Lines for professional achievement in handling shipments and providing service. United announced.

The award, according to Robert J. Baer, United's vice president and general manager, is presented to agents who have an outstanding record of household goods moving service while maintaining a low ratio of claims cost to transportation revenues.

The Greenville firm also received the Outstanding Sales Achievement Recognition Award recently for exceeding a 25 percent increase in business for 1979.

Skipper Johnston is vice president and general manager of AAction Moving, which has offices on Industrial Boulevard.

BRANCH EXPANSIONS

James B. Powers, chairman and president of Planters National Bank, told shareholders at their annual meeting that in anticipation of the projection that eastern North Carolina will be the prime population growth area within the state, PNB has planned branch expansion over the next five years well in excess of that experienced in the past five years.

Powers said that emphasis will be in the Raleigh/Durham area, the coastal areas of the state, consisting of Dare and New Hanover Counties, Pitt County and home office areas of Nash, Edgecombe and Halifax Counties.

The bank official said that Planters' earnings for 1979 were better than one percent on average assets and over 15 percent on average equity, while reaching a year-end deposit level in excess of $300 million.

SERVICE SCHOOLS

Rick McFarland and Kenneth Letchworth of Hendrix-Barnhill Co. Inc. in Greenville recently completed a bulk curing school conducted by Powell Manufacturing Co. in Bennettville, S.C. for dealers and their service personnel.

Pete Coward of Hendrix-Barnhill completed a combine service school conducted by Powell in Dunn.

Schools are held for several weeks each spring with dealers and service personnel from the four leading flue-cured tobacco states attending.

NAMED TO NEWS STAFF

Joe Palmer and Larry Blue have joined the expanded news staff of WITN-TV in Washington, according to W.R. Robertson Jr., chairman of North Carolina Television Inc. (WITN-TV).

Robertson said that Palmer will assist in the production of, as well as anchor, the 11 p.m. week night edition of Television Seven news. He taught broadcast journalism at the University of Maine and joins WITN-TV from Presque Isle, Maine, where he served as news director and anchor for WAGM-TV.

Blue, the spokesman said, will have the duties of a week day staff reporter and weekend sports anchor. He joins the staff from Greensboro, where he served as news director of WRQK and WPET radio stations.

JOINED STAFF

Lewis M. Dibble, P.E. of Dibble & Associates, consulting engineers of Washington, announced that George Culpepper has joined the firm's staff.

Dibble said that Culpepper, a mechanical engineer, is a graduate of the University of North Carolina at Charlotte and has worked with Du Pont in Kinston and Wilmington, with Tex-til in New Bern and with Catalytic Inc. in Charlotte.

DEALER COUNCIL MEETING

Joe Vernelson of Greenville Marine & Sport Center Inc. of Greenville recently returned from the 1980 Mercury Marine Dealer Advisory Council meeting held in Placida, Fla.

Mercury said that 23 dealers, representing each of the company's branch and distributor areas throughout the United States and Canada, participated in the four-day meeting.

Dog Vaccination Clinic

Dog vaccination clinics will be held throughout the county by the Pitt County Community Health Department Monday through Friday of this week and Monday through Friday of next week.

Dogs four months old or older are required by law to be vaccinated and to display vaccination tags. Dogs receiving their first vaccinations this year will need to be vaccinated again next year. Dogs that have been vacinated before will not need another rabies inoculation for three years. The vaccine will be administered by licensed doctors of veterinary medicine.

Dates and hours that the vaccinations teams will be in each of 20 communities in the county may be obtained from an ad placed elsewhere in the paper or from posters placed throughout the county. The fee is $4 per dog.

For more information, call the Health Department, 752-4141.

Panic Making Coincidence

PORT ALBERNI, British Columbia (AP) — A realistic radio documentary about a 1964 tidal wave combined with a power outage to frighten many residents of this Vancouver Island town, officials said.

"One man left work to get to his family," after hearing the Friday evening broadcast, said Wayne Moore, an announcer for radio station CJAV. "One man tried to charter a plane."

The station was broadcasting a documentary on a tidal wave that hit 16 years ago. The program began with a simulated news report on the approach of a wall of water, and at that instant a failure at a local power substation blacked out the Alberni Valley.

Power was restored five minutes later, but by that time a lot of people were jittery.

CONTROL YOUR DEBTS

If your present bills, because of economic pressures, cannot be met by your income, legal relief may be available to you under the provisions of Chapter 13 of the Bankruptcy Reform Act of 1978, which permits individuals to petition the Court for an arrangement allowing a thirty-six month period to discharge indebtedness, without property repossession or creditor harassment. Attorney's fees, which may be paid in monthly installments, are determined by the Court. There is no fee for an initial conference to discuss your eligibility for a "Wage Earner Plan".

Kenny Rogers Appears In Greensboro

POPULAR RECORDING STAR . . . Kenny Rogers performed in Greensboro last Saturday afternoon and evening. Prior to the concert, which also featured Dottie West and Dave and Sugar, Rogers was available for questions during a press conference.

Text And Photos By Rosalie Trotman

GREENSBORO — Wearing a soft red V-neck sweater and jeans, Kenny Rogers immediately started joking about the way he was dressed while reading a note placed on the table with a question written for Dottie West.

He was warmly received at his press conference which included Dottie West and Dave and Sugar. Ms. West was unable to attend because her bus was snarled in traffic heading for the Greensboro Coliseum, where the group was to perform last Saturday afternoon and again that evening.

One of the first questions directed to Rogers was about the gold chain he was wearing. "My chain has a lion, my birthday symbol, and the other piece 'love,' was given to me by my wife, Marianne."

In telling how he started singing with Dottie, Rogers said, "We had both unknowingly rented the same recording studio with an hour overlap. When I arrived, Dottie told me she still had a hour to go and I thought the time was mine. I just went out and started singing with her."

Rogers thinks his movie, "The Gambler," is a good story and "I'm not embarrassed. I would now like to do a feature film."

"I'm not hyperactive and I'm not nervous; however, I hate wasted time." With a twinkle in his eyes, Rogers said, "I love to eat — while I'm eating one meal, I'm planning the next. It's flattering to be famous, but it's tough. It's almost to the point now of having to leave the country to have any rest time. My private times are when I'm eating and while I'm in my room."

"My business investments are my real strength. When this (referring to singing popularity) is over, I will find something else, something creative, something to occupy my mind," Rogers concluded.

"I still leave the stage and move out into the audience at some point during a show. If there's a problem, I get right back to the stage," said Dave Rowland of Dave and Sugar. "I no longer travel with Charlie Pride. I was with him two times last year. Yes, I worked with Elvis Presley about a year and a half."

"Yes, we have trouble finding good songs. The good or great songs end up on albums. I don't write songs; however Jerry Bradley and I produce our songs and we go over all our material," Rowland continued.

Rowland plays tennis during any free time. Both Rogers and Rowland enjoy the game and they had a running joke about their tennis matches.

Dave and Sugar (Melissa Dean and Sue Powell) spent 214 days on the road last year. "Tear Time" is Sue's favorite song and Melissa's is "Don't Throw It All Away." Rowland said, "It's hard for me to pick a favorite — I like all our singles."

"Being on stage with Elvis was probably the biggest thing in my life. Being with Kenny has filled a void," Rowland concluded.

Playing in the round, many admirers rushed to all sides of the stage trying and reaching for a handshake from Rogers. In explaining why he would not shake hands he said, "First of all it isn't fair to do one and not all and second, the crowd would get so big that all the others could see would be heads."

Performing before a filled coliseum, Rogers encouraged audience participation while singing "Lucille," which ended in standing ovation. Each of his hit songs was received with mounting enthusiasm and during his last song "Ruby," he did shake many, many hands.

Rogers, who was dressed in a dark green suit with a matching shirt open at the collar, received numerous flowers, notes and western hats during his performance.

Two aspects of the show loved by the audience was Rogers tossing tambourines and Frisbees into the audience. During the entire show, flash bulbs were continuously going off around the coliseum.

'Dear Abby': Ask And You Shall Receive

By MARCIA SMITH,
Dallas Times Herald
Staff Writer

DALLAS — Abigail Van Buren or "Dear Abby" to the millions who read her advice column, was sitting in her Fairmont Hotel suite when the phone rang. Surprised that someone would call her in Dallas one hour before she was to leave, Abby picked up the phone.

The mysterious caller, whose voice could be heard across the room, said "Hello, Po-Po" (Abby's childhood nickname) and burst into song. "Oklahoma, where the wind comes sweeping down the plain," he sang, sounding very much like Gordon MacRae.

At first perplexed, and looking as though she thought it was a crank call, Abby's face suddenly brightened. "Gordon MacRae!" she cried. "Is it you? Come on up and say hello."

It was indeed Gordon MacRae and he did come up, giving his old friend ("He and Sheila used to vacation in Palm Springs with us," Abby confides before he arrives) a big hug and then asking her, "Has Mort (Abby's husband, Morton Phillips) remarried?"

"Well, I hope not, since he's still married to me," she cracked, realizing that MacRae had confused her with her twin sister Ann Landers, who was divorced from her husband five years ago.

"I get asked that all the time," she admitted. "A lot of people think I'm the divorced one. That's no crime. Getting divorced is just recognizing a mistake and then doing something about it," she added, sounding very Dear Abby-ish.

This tiny (5-feet-nothing, she says), 61-year-old Jewish grandmother, whose compassionate responses to the 15,000 letters she receives each week have endeared her to some 65 million readers, has been married to the same man for 40 years. She started writing her advice column 24 years ago, when she decided she could do better than the columnist she read in the San Francisco Chronicle, and applied for her job.

The New York Mirror picked up her column, and after Edward R. Murrow did a "Person to Person" show with her in 1958, newspaper editors clamored to run her column. She now appears in 1,000 newspapers throughout the world.

Looking feminine in her leopard-spotted dress and black platform shoes, her hair perfectly coiffed, her long nails painted red, Abby sat on the sofa in her Fairmont suite and laughed when asked how someone as busy as she is keeps herself so well-groomed. "It's all done with mirrors," she joked.

Actually, she stays slim by belly-dancing and takes her hairdresser of 20 years with her everywhere she can. "I have a lot of self-respect. I like to look well. I feel I owe it to my public to pull myself together when I leave my home," she said.

"In Dallas to speak to the Lawyer's Wives Club at a Tuesday luncheon, Abby took time to talk about how the letters she receives and the answers she gives have changed over the years.

"People have the same problems now," she begins, "but we're more vocal about them than we were 20 years ago. People weren't talking about sexual dysfunction then, or homosexuality, or the problems of the elderly."

Too, incest has been brought out in the open and more people are writing to her about that than ever before. "Of course, I was on to incest 20 years ago. People would write Dear Abby about things they would never tell anyone else. A great deal of it was going on, but it was hushed up. Now, we're letting kids know they don't have to live with it. They can talk about it."

As for how her answers have changed, she said, "I haven't changed to be 'with it' or to be popular with young people. But I have changed. I'm less rigid now. That's because my children are grown and I'm not scared to death. They survived a difficult era. And today, kids of 19 are mature adults. They have jobs and support themselves. Who am I to say living together is immoral? (when a young adult is old enough to support himself). I wouldn't want a child of mine to live with someone without marriage, but I wouldn't say, 'Never darken my door again.' Then again, I wouldn't support (financially) that child either."

DARIEN, Conn. — Jeannette Gardner is currently appearing in the Darien Dinner Theatre's production of "Company" here.

Miss Gardner made her New York debut as Heather in the Off-Broadway musical revue "I'll Die If I Can't Live Forever." Later she appeared in Equity Library Theatre's revival of "Carnival."

She has performed in concert, stock and dinner theatres throughout the country in roles ranging from Joan in "Dames at Sea" and Ado Annie in "Oklahoma!" to Kitty in "Where's Charley?" and Mary in "Little Mary Sunshine." During the past four years, she has been one of five soloists with "Musical America," which has performed with symphony orchestras throughout the United States and Canada and is planning engagements in the Far East and Europe.

Holder of an FCC Third Class Operator's License, Miss Gardner was host of her own radio show on WYFM and copywriter for WBT and WBTW, Charlotte; she wrote jingles and was seen and heard in local and regional commercials.

Born in North Carolina, she holds a B.M. in voice from Greensboro College and her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Alton Gardner of Gardenville. Last May she married director/choreographer/actor Randy Hugill. They are remodeling their own co-op on the Upper Side of Manhattan, New York City.

SNACKTIME FARE

Wheat Nut Loaf Beverage
WHEAT NUT LOAF

One of the best of its nutritious kind.

1 cup fork-stirred unbleached flour
1 cup fork-stirred wholewheat flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
3/4 cup wheat germ
2 large eggs
1 cup milk

1-3rd cup butter or margarine, melted
1 cup coarsely chopped walnuts

Stir together flours, baking powder, salt and spices; stir in sugar and wheat germ. Beat together eggs and milk until blended; add flour mixture, butter and nuts; stir only until dry ingredients are moistened. Turn into a buttered 9 by 5 by 3-inch loaf pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean — 50 to 55 minutes. Loosen edges and turn out on a wire rack; turn right side up and cool completely.

RUTH YVONNE MATHEWS... is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Mathews of Bethel, who announce her engagement to Alton Dale Hardy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fredrick A. Hardy of Tarboro. The wedding will take place June 7.

At Wit's End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

For years, a group of us who exercise three times a week have been considering staging a telethon for muscular legs.

We contend we are the most misunderstood minority group in the country and are given no thought whatsoever by designers of slacks, boot manufacturers, pantyhose makers or the wrap-around skirt people. The general public, in their ignorance and naivete, seem to feel you can make your legs smaller through diet and exercise.

Be still, my fast-beating heart! I believe we have a solution.

It came to me as I watched the winter Olympics last month. We were all watching in silent admiration as Eric Heiden skated around the track, his body doubled over like a collapsible tray table. Then I heard, "Hey, Mom, he's got legs like yours." I was numb at first. Then I began to smile.

A couple of weeks after that when someone said, "Isn't that skirt a little tight around the thighs?" I said, "Of course. I'm a speed skater in training for the U.S. Olympic speed skating team. I hope in four years to increase my thighs by at least another four to six inches... the strength, you know."

My would-be critics not only smiled in approval, they were so impressed I almost felt guilty.

That's the way things are in this country. Athletes are royalty. Could a non-athletic civilian climb into a yellow elastic suit that makes your legs look like a nuclear power station and bend over? Absolutely not, but a speed skater can get away with it.

Could a regular person wear a short T-shirt over upper arms the size of a basketball? Of course not, but Pete Rose can.

Sports is an equalizer for every physical flaw you can think of. Imagine someone kicking sand in the face of gymnast Nadia Comaneci and yelling, "Yeah, Skinny!" Or playing it cute with towering Bill Russell and saying, "Tell me when it rains up there."

For all of you who have ever had to live with a less-than-perfect body, my idea is worth a shot. You have a few teeth missing? Tell the idle curious you play hockey for a living. They'll love you for it.

I saw the first bathing suit of the year on display the other day at a local department store and tried it on. As the salesperson peeked into the room I said, "I'm on a weightlifting scholarship at the gym."

She said, "I already figured that out."

artichoke hearts

1 envelope unflavored gelatin

2 cups tomato juice

2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce

Garnish: lettuce and sliced hard-cooked egg

Drain artichokes and thinly slice crosswise; reserve mari-nade. In a 1-quart measure sprinkle gelatin over 1 cup of the tomato juice and let soften — about 5 minutes. In a small saucepan heat the remaining tomato juice until it begins to boil; pour over gelatin mixture, add Worcestershire sauce and stir until gelatin dissolves. Stir in sliced artichokes. Ladle into four 6-ounce custard cups. Chill to set. At serving time, unmold and garnish with the lettuce and egg; drizzle with the reserved marinade. Makes 4

'Dear Abby'... Students Visit Remote Group

fields and on her own good sense. Abby sifts through hundreds of letters each week to determine which ones will appear in her column. Her staff in Beverly Hills screens the letters for repetitions. "Otherwise, I'd have to read hundreds of letters from ear-piercers, leg shavers and girls wanting to know how to get a boy to notice them," she said.

Abby, whose real name is Pauline Esther Friedman Phillips, rises at 6 a.m. in the Beverly Hills home she shares with her millionaire industrialist husband. She first scans six daily newspapers and is at her desk by 7. "I can't work if my staff is around. I have to be alone at my desk," she said.

She reads the letters her staff has selected for her — and some days she reads every letter just to make sure she stays in touch — and composes her answers. She stops at about 5:30 or 6 p.m. unless her husband is out of town. Then she stays at her desk all evening.

"I work because I enjoy it," she said. "If someone were to give me an hour and tell me to do whatever I want, I would go for my letters. I love to read my mail."

After 24 years of reading the most intimate details of people's lives, can she be shocked?

"No way. I've seen everything," she said. "Because I've said some generous things about transsexuals and homosexuals, they write and send pictures to me. I'll get a picture of a gorgeous woman and then when I read the letter, I discover the picture is of a man in transition," she said.

At times, she receives letters she knows are fakes, letters composed by giggling pranksters who want to see their work in print. "I can usually spot those," she said. "They use all the cliches, go into great detail and use the most flowery language." Sometimes she lets those writers have it in her column, and has even received apologies from the pranksters.

So who does Dear Abby go to when she has a problem? Luckily, she has had no big problems in her life, she said. "Everyone has little problems. I talk them over with my husband, who is the most objective, unemotional person in a crisis. He thinks calmly and coolly. He keeps me sane and happy."

And when twin sister, Ann Landers, was going through her divorce, did she turn to Dear Abby for help? "I was very supportive of her, but she has her head together. She didn't need anyone to help her," she said.

Rumors to the contrary, Abby and Ann get along just fine, says Abby. She admits there was some friction in the early days when both were getting their advice columns off the ground. "We were professionally competitive," she said. "Now we're very good friends. I stay with her when I'm in Chicago and she stays with me when she's in Beverly Hills."

Family is the most important thing in her life, Abby says. "My husband and I raised two neat kids. I was 37 when I became Dear Abby; my kids weren't neglected because mom decided to have a career. The most important thing a parent can do for the world is to give it a child who will contribute to it," she said.

Of the millions of letters that have been sent to her over the years, Abby can pinpoint immediately the one that affected her the most. "This letter came in my regular Dear Abby mail. It started off, 'Dear Abby, You're a real pro. One of my students is the most considerate, responsible, caring person I know. You should be proud. She's your daughter.'"

"I was high on that for a while," she said.

ECU News Bureau

MONTEVERDE, Costa Rica — High in a cloud forest here in Central America, a group of East Carolina University students sit in silent meditation at Quaker worship and later dine on Pennsylvania Dutch cooking that includes cheese, fresh creamery butter and warm, homemade bread.

It is part of the course in field studies of ECU's Costa Rica program that recently took 15 students on a three-day trip to this remote Quaker settlement high in the Tileran mountains.

More than 100 Quakers (Society of Friends) left the United States nearly 30 years ago in an anti-war protest. In founding their settlement here, they endured hardships and privation but succeeded in developing a thriving dairy industry. The settlement is famous for Monteverde cheese, made from local milk, distributed widely throughout Costa Rica.

The students stayed at the rustic Pension Quetzal, operated by Susie Newswanger and Bob Law, both Pennsylvanians. Meals were included in the students' lodgings.

The settlement of Monteverde is located near a large virgin cloud forest which is administered jointly by the Monteverde community and the Costa Rica Tropical Science Center.

Annual rainfall in the cloud forest is between 100 and 150 inches and results in dense, varied and unique vegetation. The ECU students went on a four mile hike through the forest with a biological guide.

In addition to the field trips, ECU students in the Costa Rica program attend classes in their field of study during the week. Field trips on weekends take them to all parts of the country accompanied by study guides. The trips include historical sites, unique biological areas, beaches and centers of specialized economic activities.

The annual spring semester in Costa Rica is ECU's only overseas program at present. It is directed in the field by Dr. R.E. Cramer, professor of geography who has been administrator since the program was established in 1973. The ECU affiliation in Costa Rica is with the Universidad Nacional, Heredia.

Couple Weds Saturday In Double Ring Ceremony

WILSON — The First Free Will Baptist Church here was the scene of the Saturday afternoon wedding ceremony of Anita Rose Kirkman of Raleigh and Shelton Ray Stuckey of Rt. 2, Princeton. The double ring ceremony was performed at two o'clock by Clyde Cox.

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Nita Adams Kirkman of Wilson, and the late W. T. Kirkman, and Mr. and Mrs. Billy Harold Stuckey of Rt. 2, Princeton.

Given in marriage by her brother, W. T. Kirkman Jr., the bride wore a formal gown of ivory silk and organza, Italian lace over peau de soie styled with an open neckline, fitted bodice with raised waist and sheer full bishop sleeves with cuffs. Lace trimmed the neckline, bodice, sleeves and bottom of the circular skirt and chapel train. Her matching bridal hat featured tiers of imported silk. She carried a colonial bouquet of silk white sweetheart roses, baby's breath and blue eucalyptus.

Vivian Forehand of Wilson

was honor attendant and wore a long gown of dusty rose silesta knit styled with a sleeveless fitted bodice with a waist length cape, braided belt with streamers. She carried a silk bouquet of mauve colored roses, white baby's breath and spring fern.

Bridesmaids, Jamie Langston and Susie Smith of Micro, were dressed like the honor attendant. The bridegroom's sister, Sharon Stuckey of Princeton, was junior bridesmaid and wore a dress of pale pink and carried identical flowers. Dana Kirkman of Wilson, niece of the bride, was flower girl and wore a long dress of printed crepe with shades of pink and dusty rose fashioned similar to the other attendants. She carried a natural wicker basket of matching silk flowers.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man while ushers included Tom Stuckey of Princeton, brother of the bridegroom, the bride's brother, Steve Kirkman of Wilson, Bill Clarke, Billy Sutton and Charles Watson, all of Pine Level.

A program of wedding music was presented by Gloria Little, pianist, and vocalist, Jean Chuc-ci, both of Raleigh.

The couple will be living at Rt. 2, Selma.

The bride is a graduate of Fike High School and Wilson County Technical Institute. She is employed by the Wake County Medical Center. The bridegroom graduated from North Johnson High School and Wayne Community College. He is engaged in farming.

A reception was held after the ceremony.

The refreshment table was centered with a silver wine cooler filled with pink snapdragons, white daisies, pink tulips and baby's breath.

MRS. SHELTON RAY STUCKEY

BLINDNESS PREVENTION CENTER AT HOPKINS

BALTIMORE (AP) — A Center of Ophthalmic Public Health is being launched at the Johns Hopkins Medical Institutions to combat causes of blindness worldwide as part of an effort by the World Health Organization's Blindness Prevention Program to eliminate "preventable" blindness by the year 2000.

A joint effort of the Wilmer Eye Institute and the School of Hygiene and Public Health, the center will bring together specialists in the causes of sight-destroying eye diseases, forming the most comprehensive program of blindness prevention in the world.

Engagement Announced

WANDA KAY WILLIAMS, . . is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Linwood Williams of Rt. 1, Grifton, who announce her engagement to Tony Ray Stone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wooten of Rt. 2, Grifton. A June 7 wedding is planned.

Miss Smith Entertained

Miss Vonzella Smith, bride-elect of Donald Barnes, was entertained at a miscellaneous shower Saturday evening at the home of Mrs. Ray Rogers. Approximately 23 guests attended and were greeted by Mrs. Louise Cohens, co-hostess.

The buffet refreshment table was covered with a white lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of yellow and rust dried flowers. Gifts were placed under an umbrella decorated with yellow bows and streamers. Miss Smith was presented a corsage of yellow daisies and baby's breath.

Special guests included Mrs. Corrine Smith, mother of the bride-to-be, and Mrs. Annie Barnes, mother of the bridegroom-to-be.

Good-byes were said by Eve Rogers.

DEAR ABBY: I've been going with this man for the past year and I am very fond of him. I met him in church. He is thoughtful, kind, spiritual, generous and very honest. He also has a beautiful garden.

Last Christmas I gave him a statue of St. Francis of Assisi in a small grotto, and I had our finest nursery plant ivy and holly in it. They also added a plastic leaf of poinsettia. The entire gift was about 30 inches tall. My friend had just returned from a church retreat, and I thought because of his spiritual interest my gift would be appropriate for his garden.

When I gave it to him, he said, "Well, in the first place, I don't like religious statues, and in the second place, I hate fake flowers. I can't believe you actually would spend money to get that tacky thing planted. How much did you pay for it?"

Abby, I was shocked. All I could think of to say was, "I love St. Francis of Assisi, so if you don't want it, I'll keep it, and you can go pick out a birdbath for your garden." He seemed to like the idea.

Now I am having second thoughts. Should I keep the statue for myself and let him pick out a birdbath? Or should I tell him this is his gift — he can take it or leave it.

J.D.

DEAR J.D.: You may have second thoughts, but you've already offered to keep St. Francis and let your rude and ungrateful friend pick out a birdbath, so I think you're stuck for the birdbath.

DEAR ABBY: I've read that Vitamin E is supposed to work wonders in boosting a person's sexual performance. Is there any truth in that?

On a scale of 1 to 10, I'd say I'm about a 2.

NEEDS HELP IN LA JOLLA

DEAR NEEDS HELP: If you believe Vitamin E will "work wonders" — it could.

DEAR ABBY: I am planning my wedding and have a very important decision to make. I am 28, and this is my first and (I hope) only wedding, and I want it to be perfect. I am having six bridesmaids, a maid of honor and a matron of honor.

All the girls in my wedding party are either a size 8 or 10 — with the exception of the girl who should be my matron of honor, who is at least a size 20. I was her maid of honor when she was married four years ago. She has always been a little on the plump side, but since her marriage she has gained about 40 pounds.

I hate to exclude her from my wedding party, because we grew up together and she has been my closest and dearest friend, but I don't want to embarrass her or myself on what should be the most beautiful day of my life.

What do you think?

UNDECIDED BRIDE

DEAR BRIDE: Ask your closest and dearest friend to be your matron of honor and don't give it another thought. True beauty comes in all sizes.

DEAR ABBY: If a baby is born on February 29, when should we celebrate his first birthday? On February 28 or March 1?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: The day following February 28, which would be March 1 — unless it's a leap year.

Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How To Write Letters for all Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Souvenir Of Railroading

PRINCETON, W.Va. (AP) — Clayton Jones took a piece of his profession and put it in his back yard.

The 61-year-old retired railroad man has built an old-fashioned train station, complete with spittoon, benches, plastic people and even a checker-board game in the stationmaster's office.

"What I've got here, money wouldn't buy it," says Jones, who worked 35 years for Norfolk & Western before retiring eight years ago.

"Right here, this old safety sign — this come off an old Virginia Railroad station. And here, this old wagon, we'd use it for milk, or corpses, or other freight," Jones said.

Jones started working for the railroad when he was 18. "I hung around the station and learned telegraphing from an old trainmaster when I was a kid."

His back-yard station contains a telegraph operator's desk. "All the old telegraph operators, they've all passed away practically. I'm the only one left," Jones said.

Pointing to an antique radio next to a picture of singer Roy Acuff, Jones said, "I've got this old radio hooked up so that when I push this switch, Acuff's voice comes out singing 'The Wabash Cannonball.'"

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, MAR. 30, 1980

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to study how you can best enhance your various duties so that later in the week you will be able to get the results you want. Also, make long-range plans for the future.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Handle practical affairs in the home and make this a most productive day. Be sure to show more cooperation with family members.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Take needed treatments to improve your health. Contact good friends and bring more happiness into their lives.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Study the tenets that will bring you more inspiration and success in the future. Try to be of greater service to others now.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take care of any personal affairs in a most precise manner. Relax tonight and plan for the new week ahead.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Being more objective in your thinking is wise now. You can easily clear up a condition at home now by taking quick action.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Attend to those services that give you peace of mind. See what you can do about pleasing your true friends.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Find the right way to gain personal aims during daytime. Your mate could be in a bad mood now, but be patient and this will pass.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get busy in obtaining the information that will be helpful to you in the future. Be objective and get excellent results.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Take time to show appreciation to those who have been loyal to you in the past. Be sure to improve your appearance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Sidestep pleasures that are too costly for your pocketbook. Strive to have increased harmony with family members.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Find the right ethical philosophy by which to regulate your life. This is not the right time to pursue a new project.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Using your intuition more than usual can bring excellent results now. Express happiness with the one you love.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have a particular charm that will attract others and will be very popular with all groups. Give as fine an education as you can in preparation for a most successful life. Religious training should not be neglected.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, MAR. 31, 1980

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today's aspects finds it important for you to build up a better feeling with others by acts of courtesy and consideration. Don't speak abruptly to regular associates.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Listen to the viewpoints of associates today and find out where you stand with them. Use your reasoning powers wisely.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Add finishing touches to special work and gain the right benefits from it. Come to a better understanding with a co-worker.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Be more precise in your work today and gain the benefits. Make plans for having increased harmony at home.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Start the new work week on the right note by being more cooperative with others. Strive to be more successful.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Try to please your friends more and gain their goodwill. Find better ways of enjoying yourself during spare time.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Concentrating on important matters early in the day is wise. Talk over a business matter with an financial expert.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Go after personal aims now and forget the practical for the time being. Be more concerned with the welfare of family members.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Handle those behind-the-scenes duties early and then prepare for greater activity in the future. Show that you are practical.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Go after your most cherished aims in a positive way and gain them. Be sure to complete whatever you have started.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Civic affairs break open now, giving you a chance to show your ability. Maintain poise at all times today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Listen to new ideas and viewpoints of associates and you can profit from them. Be more optimistic about the future.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Add an artistic touch to any work you are doing now and get more benefits from it. Show increased loyalty to family members.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will understand how to improve whatever is current and can commercialize on such and make life better for the public in general. There could be fame in this chart. Ethical and religious training is a must here.

Might Restrain Ivory Imports

NEW YORK (UPI) — Legislation is pending in Congress that would allow the importation of ivory only from those nations that, in the opinion of the U.S. government, manage their elephant populations properly, according to the New York Zoological Society.

An article in the Society's publication "Animal Kingdom" for March examines the pro and cons of the legislation, called the Elephant Protection Act, which passed the House of Representatives by voice vote, Dec. 19, 1979, and is pending in the Senate. The magazine reports the trade in ivory — raw and worked, wholesale and retail — is reported to turn over $222 million yearly and is a vast resource to many African nations.

The price of ivory has risen with inflation to about $74 a kilogram (2.2 pounds). The African elephant is classified as "threatened" by the U.S. government.

License Plate Cost $70,000

HONG KONG (UPI) — Waves of "oohs" and "aahs" from the well-heeled bidders rippled through the city hall action.
The merchandise was so valuable it was kept under wraps. Each piece's number, written on a blackboard, had the audience squirming in dark business suits and fur jackets.
At stake was a $2 black and white Hong Kong license plate.
Chinese who believe "lucky" numbers add years to their lives and produce fat bank accounts eagerly dole out tens of thousands of dollars for the right license digits.
Compared with the over-the-counter $2 charge, it's a hefty price.
To facilitate demand, the government conducts auctions of prized license plates. Anyone can reserve a number and bid on it at one of the auctions held every five to six weeks.
"The sense of luck brought by the license plate only is imagined by bidders," insists John K.C. Chan, transport department official in charge of the auctions. His department is careful not to advertise them as lucky license number sales, but auctioneers show no such constraint.
Proceeds from the auctions go to charity and $11 million has rolled in since the special sales began in 1973.
"I've been assured that this is a very lucky number. It means an easy life for someone," said an auctioneer, pointing at CC 323 written on a blackboard.
The Chinese audience chuckled and the number was quickly disposed of for $3,367.
CA 88 (double prosperity) brought much more — $12,449.
CCI, however, proved that being No. 1 is even better. After an opening offer of $10,200, bidding proceeded to end in minutes at $32,653.
The record price for a lucky license number is $70,000, reportedly paid by Hong Kong movie mogul Sir Run Run Shaw for a lone 6. The digit connotes longevity, but Chan said the purchase also had personal sentiment.
To avoid profiteering, obvious lucky number plates are placed on a non-transferrable list and may not be resold to other car owners. If a purchaser moves or gives up his vehicle, the license plates must be returned to the government.
Numbers not on the non-transferrable list may be sold to car owners who seek digits with personal meaning such as birthdates.
"A person holding an ordinary license number could hold out and receive thousands of dollars from a willing buyer, earning enough interest on his $2 plate purchase to shame a gold dealer," Chan said.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — TWO MARTINIS MADE SAD MAN WORSEN.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: Y equals D
The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

GARDEN CLINIC

Q. Yellow bellied sapsuckers are making holes in our trees — mostly maples and pines. Will the trees die and what can we do? (H.E., Ayden)

A. No, your trees will not die, and there is nothing you can do about the sapsuckers. Sapsuckers peck the bark of healthy trees to make them bleed sweet sap. They will later eat both the sap and the sap-eating insects which accumulate in the peck marks. Some of the most prolific bleeders are pines, maples, walnuts, hickories, pecans and dogwoods. This is why you will notice more sapsuckers associated with these trees in late winter and early spring than with other species. Sapsuckers are no threat to a healthy tree, and unhealthy trees don't have enough sap flow to attract their attention. After all, a dead tree is no good to a sapsucker. (Jim McGraw, extension forestry specialist)

Q. Kudzu is all over my yard. How can I get rid of it? (H.A., Cherryville)

A. Kudzu can be killed by close, continuous mowing — one to two inches. Also, 2,4-D amine sprayed on young kudzu leaves is effective in killing both the tops and roots. (Carl Blake, extension agronomist)

Ancient Vikings More Than Pillagers

By GREGORY JENSEN
LONDON (UPI) — Top museums in London and New York have decided the time is ripe to give those poor put-upon Vikings a bright new image.

"The Vikings have had a bad press," says David M. Wilson, director of the British Museum, about a spectacular exhibition which Queen Elizabeth opened in London recently and which moves to New York in September.

"Their activities are equated with rape and pillage and their reputation is seen only to that of the Huns and the Goths," Wilson says.

But an explosion of archaeological discovery in the last 15 years has uncovered the peaceful side of those blood-thirsty hordes which swept out of the north 1,000 years ago to terrorize most of the known world.

"The Vikings were administrators as well as pirates, merchants as well as robbers," says Viking specialist Wilson.

To prove it, his British Museum and New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art — working together for the first time — are staging a never-to-be-repeated display of 543 objects which show what else besides "rape and pillage" the Vikings achieved.

Just inside the entrance is a complete Viking house, a loom for weaving near its open fire. Beyond the house are Viking games and woodworking tools, a glittering treasury of gold and silver jewelry, even evidence of Viking fashions.

Like the show of Tutankhamen's treasure, "The Vikings" has loosed a flood of information, including a 10-part BBC television series and some two dozen books. Wilson's own "The Viking Achievement" is one, and there are lavish productions like James Graham-Campbell's "The Viking World."

None of them denies that the Vikings were savage and bloody. For generations English churchmen prayed, "From the fury of the Northmen, deliver us O Lord." And they had good reason.

"In a brutal age the Vikings were brutal," Wilson says. "But their brutality was no worse than that of their contemporaries. It is not without significance that the English word 'law' has a Scandinavian root."

Norse raiders first erupted during the 8th century and terrorized civilizations for 300 years, but the popular image of horn-helmeted warriors is fiction. One of only two known Viking helmets is in the show. It has no sign of horns.

And those fearless fighters often ran instead of giving battle.

"Whenever there was a way out of a stern fight, the Vikings found it," Graham-Campbell says. "They were more concerned with profit than empty glory."

One of the new discoveries — five ships sunk to block a Danish channel — has added much knowledge of the Viking secret weapon, their sleek "serpents of the sea." These swift ships were a technological breakthrough, capable of landing on any harborless shore with supernatural suddenness.

Ships are prominent in the show — a two-thirds scale replica of a longship is beached on the British Museum lawn. Swords and spears also fill cases. But these weapons of war are encrusted with silver and gold until they become objects of beauty.

The Vikings adored display, and the exhibition overflows with jewelry worn by women and men, sophisticated brooches and cloak-pins often thick with writhing, interlaced animals.

The plow was as much a Viking weapon as the sword, and merchant's scales were more common than either.

"They traveled further than Europeans had ever done before," Graham-Campbell says. "They settled as farmers in the barren western lands of Greenland and discovered America; they served as mercenaries at the court of Byzantium."

Vikings founded Dublin, settled in Newfoundland, penetrated to Baghdad and had a trading colony at Kiev. Normans who conquered England and Sicily were descended from Vikings, and Russia may be named from one label for the Norsemen, "Rus." London was once a Viking city and a Viking king briefly ruled all Britain.

These Scandinavian voyagers had a genius for blending into the more advanced civilizations they encountered. They adopted Christianity eventually. Several beautiful crucifixes and other Christian relics are in the exhibition.

Journalist Soc. Plans Giving A Scholarship

The Society for Collegiate Journalists will award a $50 scholarship to a sophomore, junior, or senior (not graduating) journalism minor.

Interested persons should submit the following materials to Ira Baker, Austin 334 on or before April 15 — a statement of professional goals including why he has chosen journalism, the name of a personal reference, two samples of work, and a grade summary.

Candidates will be screened according to professional intent, background and initiative, and recommendation. SCJ members who are in good standing are eligible to participate, also.

The winner will be announced at the Annual Reception of the Dept. of English on May 9 in Mingos Coliseum.

Plans Shape Up For Bike-a-thon

David Hooks of Winterville has been appointed chairperson for the annual "Wheel For Life" bike-a-thon in Winterville. Scheduled for April 17, the event will benefit St. Jude Children's Research Hospital in Atlanta.

St. Jude Children's Hospital is the largest childhood cancer research center in the world. It is non-sectarian, interracial and free of charge to patients whose disease is under study and who are referred by a physician.

Diseases researched include leukemia, Hodgkins disease and other forms of cancer.

Belfast Busman Keeps Them Running

EDITOR'S NOTE — It's tough enough to run a bus company at a profit in a nice, quiet American city. Werner Heubeck runs Ulsterbus in embattled Belfast, regularly sees his buses bombed, hijacked, or burned — but still keeps public transport rolling, and in the black.

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer
BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Werner Heubeck, a veteran of Erwin Rommel's Afrika Korps, is a strange man to find in Northern Ireland's sectarian conflict.
But the Desert Fox's wartime explosives officer, now manager of the province's terrorist-ravaged Ulsterbus system, is right in the thick of it and leading a charmed life.
When Irish Republican Army guerrillas bombed Ulsterbus' big Rathfriland depot in south Belfast a while ago, Heubeck drove 12 buses out to safety, past blazing vehicles ripped apart by bombs, despite warnings that other bombs had not exploded.

Altogether, he and some of his drivers saved 51 of the 62 buses there.
The mainly Roman Catholic IRA is fighting to end British rule in Protestant-dominated Northern Ireland and reunite it with the Irish Republic, which is overwhelmingly Catholic.
"It was a reasonable risk," the 56-year-old Heubeck says. "My people told me eight terrorists planted the bombs so I deduced there were probably only eight bombs."
"That's usually the pattern, one terrorist, one bomb."
Heubeck arguably has the toughest transportation job in the world. His drivers are sitting ducks. A few have been killed. Many have been hijacked, robbed or beaten.
Since "The Troubles" started in August 1969, he's lost about half his bus fleet — 750 vehicles worth an estimated $23 million destroyed by guerrillas and rioters. That works out to one every five days.

Buses are prime targets in Belfast's frontline ghettos. They make effective roadblocks during riots and burn beautifully.
When vandals repeatedly attacked his buses in East Belfast, Heubeck went to see chieftains of the Ulster Defense Association (UDA), biggest of the province's Protestant street armies, and said if it didn't stop, he'd pull all his buses out of the district.
Within hours, 500 UDA men were patrolling the streets of the Protestant section, and the attacks stopped.
"We've learned how to cope with 'The Troubles,'" Heubeck says. "If my buses or passengers are attacked, I take off the service in the area."
Despite the daily disruptions and losses, he has pulled the once-rundown Ulsterbus system out of the red and into one of Europe's few profitable public transport operations.

He runs old buses on high-risk routes, using government compensation for terrorist-caused losses to buy second-hand London double-deckers.
The Nuremberg-born Heubeck fought for two years in North Africa before he was captured by Montgomery's 8th Army in Tunisia during Rommel's retreat in 1943.
As a prisoner of war, he worked in Louisiana cutting sugar cane until 1945 when he was returned home to serve as an interpreter's aide at the Nuremberg war crimes trials.

He married an English girl attached to the legal staff and moved to Wales, in 1948, "a war bride in reverse." He worked at a variety of jobs, and by 1965 was running a paper plant in Aberdeen, Scotland.
He took over the financially ailing Ulsterbus group in November 1965, after answering an ad for a new managing director.

Queen Elizabeth II made Heubeck, a naturalized Briton since 1955, an officer of the Order of the British Empire (OBE) in June 1977, for his services to Northern Ireland in keeping Ulsterbus on the road.
"Her Majesty said that I must have an interesting job," he says. "I told her sometimes it got too damn interesting."

Blind Since Childhood, Still An Active Worker

Text And Photograph By Joyce Evans

Death of a loved one is a traumatic experience, especially when one is five years old and is losing her eyesight.

"Mother died just before my sixth birthday. That was a frightening experience along with my eyes giving me trouble," said Esther Rich, Pitt County Memorial Hospital medical records transcriber.

Miss Rich had whooping cough when she was four and measles at five years old. After that, she began having problems with her vision and the doctors couldn't stop the deterioration. Her parents knew she couldn't attend public school and planned to send her to the School for the Blind in Raleigh.

"But after Mother died, father decided it would be too much stress along with having to go away to school," said Miss Rich.

"My daddy hated to keep her home; for he knew she needed schooling," said her sister, Lucille Rich whom Miss Rich lives with.

Esther Rich gradually lost her sight, but was probably about seven or eight when total blindness occurred. By then, Miss Rich was attending the School for the Blind. There, she learned to read in braille, to crochet, knit, play the piano and sew.

Being blind didn't hinder Miss Rich from accomplishing certain goals. "I find that you can do things if you try hard enough and if you have the patience to try," she said. One should know his limitations, but should attempt to accomplish the task before he says, "I can't," according to Miss Rich.

"She made a dress with her hands when she was at the school for the blind," said Lucille Rich. "You just learn what to do and you just go on and do it," said Esther Rich. "I don't sew now, but I can hem a dress if I have to," she said.

Gail Smith, Medical Records Administrator, is extremely pleased with Miss Rich as a transcriber. "She's very dependable, and she's helped us out through thick and thin. Rain, sleet, or snow, Miss Rich will be here," said Mrs. Smith.

"She's real helpful to others and willing to take constructive criticism."

"She's so cheerful. She makes you realize how lucky you are." According to Mrs. Smith, Miss Rich doesn't expect any special treatment or wish any adaptations on her transcriber. "She makes the adjustments."

"She makes notes to herself in braille to make sure she keeps up with what's going on," said Mrs. Smith. "I'd trade two sighted persons for one Miss Rich."

The two sisters have a good relationship, and Miss Rich is transported to and from work by her sister Lucille. And I don't know what I would do without her," said her sister. "I don't know what I would do without her either," said Esther Rich.

The family was a small one, and they had only one brother who died two years ago. "Our father passed during my junior year in high school, and we moved to Greenville that year," said Lucille Rich.

After she completed her schooling at the School for the Blind, Miss Rich entered Shaw University. A partial scholarship from the school paid expenses, and her brother paid the balance. She majored in English and French, minored in history and was Valedictorian of her class.

Miss Rich received a scholarship to Howard University and completed graduate work in history. "I was fortunate, for we were a close group of students taking courses in history. They read very well, but on the thesis, we couldn't work together." She was lucky to have a devoted sister who spent the last quarter reading for Miss Rich.

After receiving another scholarship for post-graduate work at the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, she studied history for another year. "My sister came up to Michigan and read for me also."

"I enjoyed going to school. It was a good experience. I was never worried about making good grades as long as I could get the information communicated to me." Talking books, disc records, and cassettes were all valuable study aids. "They have excellent readers to do the talking books," she said. One disadvantage exists, however. With today's wealth of reading materials, putting them in braille or taped would be too expensive, she said.

She began working with transcribing equipment while she was at Howard University. Miss Rich later worked full-time at Charlotte Community Hospital as a Medical Records Transcriber and changed to Craven County Hospital until her retirement in 1974.

In 1974, Miss Rich began working three days a week at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. There she transcribes the patient's history from a Edisette tape recorder. A discharge summary is typed for each patient. Every patient who comes into the hospital has to have a record, according to Miss Rich. If a patient undergoes surgery, he must have an operational card typed. Medical Records must be accurate, for they aid doctors and hospital personnel when and if a patient comes back into the hospital.

Miss Rich types on an IBM Selectric typewriter and it has a back space, correction button, and a foot pedal to stop the machine if necessary. "Sometimes, I'm not sure that I have erased the error completely. I ask one of the other workers to check for me."

How does she type on an ordinary typewriter? "Typing is supposed to be by touch. If you could see, you'd probably look at what you're typing occasionally."

"Without sight, you learn to keep the hands in the right position. This makes you concentrate more."

"Patients come and go, and more records have to be typed," she said.

If she had not been blind, what might she have done? "My training wasn't in this field. I trained as a teacher. I don't think anyone should waste his life." But she enjoys the work and strives hard to do well.

Miss Rich was a substitute teacher at the Greenville Industrial School (later named Eppes High School) for many years. She never received a permanent job at the school. "I believe they felt that my blindness might cause a discipline problem," she said. But the children were very helpful to her, and she never had any problems with them, according to her sister who taught at the South Greenville Elementary School. She is now retired, also.

"Anything I've been able to achieve in life is because a very large number of people have been helpful to me — both white and black — away from home and at home."

"It hasn't been easy at all. But when a problem comes up, you have to make an adjustment," she continued. She attributes being a Christian as the major factor in how she solves her problems. "I pray about it, and it always works out."

Miss Rich attends church and Sunday School every Sunday. She is a member of several organizations. She plays the piano, "but it's out of tune now," she said.

"Life is just a series of adjustments, and you have to do what you have to do."

IT HAS NOT BEEN EASY . . . Miss Esther Rich says of coping with blindness since childhood. But with perseverance, she has had a productive life. Miss Rich is now a transcriber of medical records at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

The Carolina Charter Of 1663

Text By Peggy Howe, N.C. Dept. Of Cultural Resources

North Carolina: From sea to shining sea? Dallas-Fort Worth, North Carolina? San Diego, North Carolina?

Hardly! However, three centuries ago that could have been the case.

Three hundred and seventeen years ago this month the king of England offered a section of the new world to eight of his friends — an area roughly extending from the middle of present-day Albemarle Sound to the Georgia/Florida line — and across the continent to the Pacific!

On March 20, 1663, King Charles II granted the "Carolana" (Land of Charles) Charter for the huge territory described as "Virginia southward to Spanish Florida and westward to the south seas of the Pacific Ocean."

The original hand-written charter naming the Lords Proprietors is among the most treasured possessions of the N. C. Museum of History in Raleigh.

Vastly Reduced
Obviously, North Carolina's territory has been vastly reduced in the intervening three centuries, but the Carolina Charter remains one of the most important documents in the history of the state. And North Carolina is one of only six states to possess its original charter.

Though the 1663 charter was probably the most important, it was not the first charter, but the fifth, granted for the new world territory which included all or part of North Carolina. The first was dated 1578 when Queen Elizabeth I granted land to Sir Humphrey Gilbert, and later another charter to his half brother Sir Walter Raleigh for colonization.

The third was the charter of Virginia granted in 1606 to the Virginia Company of London and voided in 1624. The fourth, and the first to mention the area Carolina by name, was granted to Sir Robert Heath in 1629 and was voided soon after 1660.

In 1665, two years after the charter of 1663, the Lords Proprietors were granted still another charter which further extended the boundaries of the region one half degree to the north and two degrees to the south.

About 75 years later in 1729, disillusioned when Carolina did not produce the wealth they had envisioned, all the proprietors except Earl Granville sold their holdings to the crown.

Charter Reappears
After that, the charter was invalid of course, and disappeared for more than two centuries, only to reappear unexpectedly for sale in an English antique shop in 1947.

Questions arose immediately. Of primary importance, was this the authentic charter? And, since there were eight Lords Proprietors, were there eight charters, or only one issued? And, of course, where had the document been for more than 200 years? Finally, did the person offering it for sale have legal title?

These questions and more surfaced as the precious charter was offered to North Carolinians.

The question of authenticity was settled with extensive tests and inquiries by scholars and experts on both sides of the Atlantic. Through extensive examination these experts determined that the ink and parchment and handwriting were of the proper style and date; that the signature and seal of Charles II were authentic.

Barriers To Purchase
And then more hurdles appeared. The asking price was 2,500 pounds or approximately $10,000. Since the legislature was not in session, an appropriation was impossible. The attorney general proposed to use a part of contingency and emergency funds but was advised this was illegal. Many other avenues were explored as to how North Carolina might buy this priceless part of her heritage.

Finally, Governor Melville Broughton wrote personal letters to a few public spirited citizens explaining the importance to the state of the charter of 1663, and requested donations for its purchase.

Odyssey To North Carolina

The charter then began the last leg of its odyssey to North Carolina. It left England late in November, 1947. First word of its arrival in the state came from the Deputy Collector, U.S. Customs Service, Beaufort, who reported that the package was being sent to the Deputy Collector in Durham.

The properly protected and displayed charter is now a feature attraction in the first floor galleries of the Museum of History — an attraction viewed by hundreds of thousands of North Carolina schoolchildren and visitors every year.

The charter can be seen at the museum daily Tuesdays through Saturdays from 9 to 5, and on Sundays from 1 to 6 — there is no admission fee charged for visiting the museum.

Also, a copy of the charter of 1663 is available from the Publications Section, Department of Cultural Resources, 109 E. Jones Street, Raleigh, N.C. 27611, for fifty cents. A packet of 13 documents important to North Carolina history between 1584 and 1868, including the 1663 charter: the Halifax Resolves; Constitution of 1776; and the Charter of the University of North Carolina is available for $2 at the same address.

SNOW COVERED BRANCHES . . . of pine trees in Greenville, photographed early in March, is a relatively rare sight here. In the northernmost state of Alaska, however, such scenes are common for long months each year, as related in reminiscences by Mrs. LaRona Murray in the article below. Memories Of Alaskan Winters Triggered By Recent Snows

Text By LaRona Murray

Editor's Note: Mrs. LaRona Murray of Rt. 8, Greenville, notes that the recent winter snows, especially the big one at the beginning of this month, recalled for her vivid memories of earlier winters spent with her family in Alaska. This is her account of those times.

It was in the spring of 1945 that my parents, Webb and Lew Denton, decided to leave Nash County and head for America's last frontier, Alaska. Two of my brothers, Ivan and Pedro went with them, and a little later on I joined them.

Dad, handicapped with an artificial leg, nevertheless constructed a small house trailer that he towed by a Model A Ford. It was in the early autumn of that year that they packed their belongings and said goodbye to friends and Carolina sunshine.

For days the little Ford with its heavy load chugged over serene countryside and steep mountains of the West. After a few delaying incidents, they reached Seattle, Washington. There, they sold the old car and the house trailer for a few dollars and boarded the S.S. Aleutian headed for Alaska. Arrival in Alaska was at Seward, a picturesque little town nestled at the foot of lofty snow-covered mountains. In Seward, they filed claim papers for a homestead and with their possessions tucked under their arms they began walking to Mile 20, site of their newly acquired land.

They arrived at their new home sooner than they'd expected because someone passing stopped and gave them a ride. Their first home on the site was a tent. Right away, they started work on building a log cabin. The day they finished their 16 by 16 foot cabin home, it began to snow. The snow reached a depth of six feet and stayed that deep until the spring thaw.

Soon the nights grew longer and colder, and days grew shorter until daylight was a matter of a few minutes of twilight.

There was no electricity, no phones, only a battery operated radio. Outside the family members, the only living things around were a few caribou and moose that ventured to the timberline to nibble at foliage.

The mail came once a week. Sometimes, one of the boys would catch a ride back to town with the mail carrier to get supplies for the family.

Pedro and Ivan, bundled in parkas and wearing snowshoes, often went hunting. They bagged rabbits and ptarmigan (a type of grouse). Once, they killed a bear.

When temperatures zoomed to 60 below zero, there was nothing to break the cold stillness of the long winter nights — no four wheelers, no snow ploughs and no television.

Shut up together in the snowbound cabin, the Dentons learned to appreciate and love each other more. They laughed, they disagreed, sometimes they cried, but mom kept her composure through it all. By time spring came they had knitted a bond of love and respect deeper than ever before.

That first summer, the summer of 1946, they swam in a nearby lake. It was a busy summer, with the family preserving berries that grew in wild profusion. They grew enormous cabbage in the lush soil of Matanuska Valley, improved their property and made friends with animals. Some days they went to town where ships from the lower 48 were anchored at bay. Here they enjoyed seeing whales at a distance spout and loll in the water.

One of the problems involved the vicious behavior of moose at mating time. At that time, they were known to stop cars and even trains on the track. One day one of them chased Pedro up a tree where he was forced to stay longer than he cared to admit.

That first summer soon drifted into autumn and shortened days. All too soon snow clouds hovered over the skies and again it began to snow. The Dentons faced a second Alaska winter with the same intensity and depth of snow as before.

Again, the Denton family experienced being closed in together, and to witness the awesome beauty of creation. There were wonderful sights of snow that clung to and crippled spruce trees, that barricaded their cabin door, and the colorful sight of the spectacular aurora borealis.

Life, even in winter, was not all indoors living. There was ice fishing, skating on the lake, and always the task of digging snow away from the cabin door.

The second spring for the Dentons arrived. In that second summer, in 1947, they moved to Seward. Later, they returned to North Carolina with intentions to stay put — but after a few months the call of the North beckoned and they returned to Alaska.

More than once they returned to North Carolina, but somehow for may years they could never resist the urge to go back to Alaska.

In a small way, the big snow we had a few weeks ago was much like the winter snows we knew in Alaska, only it didn't last long.

Mrs. Murray relates that now, almost 35 years after the first venture to Alaska by the Denton family, that her mother and father are no longer alive. One of the two brothers, Pedro, is an engineer for the Department of Mines in Anchorage, Alaska. He also owns a fishing boat which he operates in season. The second brother, Ivan, is a sculptor who lives in the village of Mountainburg, Arkansas. His wood sculpture was featured in the July 1975 edition of "The National Geographic."

SOON TO BE TRANSFORMED — This roadside tree appears to still be winter-bare. A close-quarters inspection of the twigs and branches, however, would reveal thousands of tiny swellings, soon to be bursting into leaf to transform the near lyre-shaped tree into another year's miracle of spring green. The Gastonne

French Provincial Spotlights Family Room

By Jerry Bishop

Traditional elegance marks the exterior of the Gastonne, a three bedroom design, while the floor plan revolves around family living. Besides the centrally-placed family room, the plan also calls for an 18-ft. gameroom, patio and family dining nook.

With the U-shape and hip roof, the design is true to its French Provincial motif. Tall, small-paned windows and ornate entry door add interest to the appealing facade. Inside, the arrangement takes into account family needs.

Entry is into a small foyer with direct access to the family room. Visible from the foyer, the family room's wood-burning fireplace issues a warm welcome.

To the left of the family room, the large gameroom boasts such extras as attached powder room, storage closet, and access to the patio.

Clustered in the kitchen area are the work and dining centers of the home. A dining nook extends from the kitchen itself, and a more formal dining room adjoins that area. For canned goods storage, the walk-in pantry off the kitchen is a plus.

Between the kitchen and the double garage there is a utility room that is multi-function. A logical location for laundry equipment, the utility room can also serve as mud room.

Bedrooms in this design are separated. The master bedroom is set apart from the others and given a lavish private bath and access to a semi-enclosed patio. Bedrooms two and three are steps from another full bath with double sinks.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
 AP Newsfeatures

Q. — I read an article a couple of weeks ago about "following the sun" when painting the outside of your house. What does this mean?

A. — It means painting the area of the house where the sun has just been. A day or two before you paint, observe how the sun's rays hit the house. Mark down, if necessary, where the sun strikes a certain part of the house at such-and-such a time and which way it travels. When you get ready to paint, start on the side of the house that is shaded. As the sun moves along, paint in the area which has already been visited by the rays. This prevents the sun from drying the paint too rapidly and causing it to crackle later. Such a procedure has two benefits: the one just mentioned and the advantage of not painting while standing directly in the path of the sun and thus getting hot and uncomfortable.

Q. — We just had our house reeroofed with black asphalt shingles. The siding on the house is an ivory color, while the trim is white. We want to redo the doors and shutters. What color do you recommend?

A. — Black.

Q. — I have to admit that I use a lot of paint brushes because I sometimes forget or neglect to clean them properly after they are used. Wouldn't it be better for somebody like me to buy cheap brushes and then, when I don't clean them, just throw them away?

A. — Cheap brushes have their place, but when you are doing a job where performance is important, a good brush is worth the extra cost. It picks up more paint, which means less dipping, less effort and faster results. Also, the paint goes on smoothly without excessive dripping and splattering; and the bristles are set securely into the ferrule and do not shed easily. A good brush gives good results all the time. A poor brush never gives good results, not even when it is new. But no brush, good or bad, will last too long if you don't take care of it. And taking care of it means always cleaning it right after it has been used. The mistake is in putting it down and making a mental note to clean it in a little while, which can stretch into hours, days and months.

JUST DON'T KNOW
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Thomas Williamson Jr., deputy inspector general of the Energy Department, says the government doesn't know whether $260 million worth of refunds for overcharges on oil prices have been actually paid.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
 AP Newsfeatures

Most of us know the rising prices of gold, silver, artwork and such things have touched off a rash of burglaries in suburban homes. But how many also know that a factor in the increasing burglaries is the large number of households where both the husband and wife work?

Once it's called to your attention, you see the obvious — that empty houses invite burglaries. Elliott Kaplan, president of Security Communications Inc., brought up an interesting point when asked whether a professional burglar couldn't disarm a security system.

"In some cases, they could," he said, "but remember that the purpose of a security alarm system is to stop the crime before it occurs. The professional looks for an alarm system — a sticker on the door or window, the presence of bells, tape on the window and other signs that tip him off. These warnings are part of the overall protection philosophy. The presence of an alarm system acts as an important psychological deterrent."

That last comment is pertinent, since Kaplan has a college degree in psychology. When a professional sees that a house has an alarm system, doesn't that offer a challenge?

"No. The professional burglar is almost always more likely to go after a residence that is not protected. However, most home burglaries are not committed by professionals, but non-professionals, who are more dangerous when cornered or confronted, so a security alarm system protects lives as well as property."

Doesn't an attached garage provide a point of entry even when the house itself is protected?

"Not really. First, the entry into the house from the garage can be protected. Secondly, garage doors themselves are difficult to force open. They can be broken, but usually not forced. I have personally never seen a case in which the garage door was forced open."

What about protecting the perimeter of the property?

"Outdoor residential security is the most expensive. Up to now, perimeter security has been used primarily for commercial purposes. However, equipment utilizing micro-waves and photo-electric beams is available. Not only is this equipment expensive, but in a residential setting, it creates a problem with false alarms. Perimeter security can be installed, but we are working on improvements. One example is a system that activates strobe lights, rather than calling the police. The light should discourage most burglaries, since it alerts the intruder to the fact that the house has a security system. By the way, the lights are timed to shut off and rearm within a specific period of time."

How is insurance affected by the presence of an alarm system? Kaplan replied:

"In the case of commercial establishments, an alarm system is often necessary to obtain insurance. In a residential situation, the policy of a home owner might be reduced from 5 percent to 25 percent, depending on the individual insurance company and certain circumstances."

Shearing Dismisses 'Automatic Pilot'

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer
George Shearing is blooming again.

The first time he flowered was after he came to the United States from his native England, sounding a bit like a couple of other jazz pianists, with promoters trying to mold him like a third person, and found his own niche and identity.

Now he has stepped out of that niche — a George Shearing Quintet existed for 29 years — and is playing jazz piano with just a bassist.

He has a new record out, "Blues Alley Jazz," on the Concord Jazz label. "I'm one of those fortunate people who are contracted," Shearing says. "Most jazz people do individual albums. They prepare an album, take it to a company and try to sell it. I'm scheduled for two a year for a couple of years."

"Brian Torff and I cut this album live last October in Blues Alley in Washington. We probably cut enough for two albums. I don't think they'll follow this with the same kind of thing unless they want to have a volume two. I would think the next will be a studio album." He ended the quintet's 1949-1978 existence, Shearing says, "because I felt it was time. The last three or four years of the quintet's life were kind of on automatic pilot. How many times can you go into a room with the same sound and same instrumentation and absolutely revel in playing 'Roses of Picardy'?"

"The quintet paid the rent for a number of years. But it was time to address myself to the responsibility of being more of a pianist and less of a band leader, especially one who rests on his laurels for so many years."

"I dismissed any part of me that was on automatic pilot."

and reads out the answer in musical notes. The other speaks.

The only records of his that he'd listen to, besides the new one, Shearing says, is one with Gary Burton, quintet and woodwind quartet, called "Out of the Woods," and an album with Nat "King" Cole, "George Shearing Plays, Nat Cole Sings," both on Capitol.

He once had his own record company but gave that to ex-wife Trixie in their 1972 divorce settlement, and he doesn't follow its fortunes. "I think when it's time to sever a cord," he says, "every strand must be severed at the same time."

Shearing married his present wife in 1975. She is a mezzo-soprano who will be heard as one of the New York singers on Frank Sinatra's upcoming trilogy album. He has started coaching jazz players but has taken only three pupils because he's on the road so much.

When he plays his famous composition "Lullaby of Birdland" now, Shearing says, "I treat it as if written by Bach, and include a little quotation from the 'Magnificat.'

"If you can't have a little musical fun and relax and stay home a little more by the time you've reached 60 years of age, you're doing something wrong. Hopefully I'm not doing anything wrong."

GEORGE SHEARING

Asked whether his new role is as rewarding as he expected it to be, the pianist says yes. "It's a marvelous feeling," he explains. "I enjoy going to work. I stay awake longer. You can go to sleep playing 'East of the Sun.' Now I can play tunes out of the air. Brian watches my left hand and comes in — he's 25 going on 50 — or I'll do it as a solo."

However, Shearing says his listeners still want to hear a medley of hits by the quintet, so he plays one. "I almost duplicate the piano part I did with the quintet. If I decide to get a different arrangement of a tune I'll play a chorus the old way first, because that's the way people remember it."

To a surprised comment the old piano part plus bass surely wouldn't seem "full" enough to a listener who knows the quintet version of a song, Shearing says:

"Anybody who has that sound in his mind, even though it is only bass and me, will hear it as full. I hear the quintet in my mind and, from my mind to my fingers, chances are to someone else's ears."

This year, for the fourth straight year, Shearing has played at the Cafe Carlyle in New York during Bobby Short's winter vacation. This year it was most of the first three months of the year. Shearing says, "My conscience says if a room is going to give me that amount of time, then they deserve a club exclusive."

At first Shearing played there with bassist Victor Gaskin, who has since joined Billy Taylor; for the past year he has teamed with Torff, whom he met through Marian McPartland.

Shearing and his wife Ellie moved to New York from San Francisco in 1978. "It's a wonderful place, but there is nothing to do in San Francisco," he says. "Jazz clubs close as fast as they open."

"Now I get home more in six months than I did in 18 months in San Francisco. When I do things like Wolf Trap near Washington, I just bop down and do it and come back."

When he first came to the United States, Shearing says, "they wanted to make another Alec Templeton out of me. He'd scored a raving success in this country. You've got to let every individual success stand for itself. Because one blind guy made it one way is no reason to think the next blind guy is going to make it under the same banner."

"I came over here with some ability to play like Fats Waller and Art Tatum. It wasn't until I got some identity of my own that I was able to convince bookers."

He's convincing them even more strongly now, since it's more economical to tour as a duo than as pianist, bassist, vibraphonist, guitarist and drummer with all their instruments except the piano. Shearing obviously is interested in business matters as well as music. He has two calculators with which he checks his accountant's figures, which come to him in Braille. One of the computers plays a different note for each number punched

ORIGINAL COOL

Hunter original olde tyme ceiling fan, the standard since 1886.

This is the original ceiling fan, the one exported to India and Africa around the turn of the century. This is the way to cool more economically than air conditioning and with classic good taste. Complete with pull chain switch, real wood blades. Choice of brass finish, chrome finish (larger size only), chestnut brown, black, white, black with brass or white with brass hardware. 36 or 52-inch sizes. Mounts flush on any ceiling, gives seven feet clearance from blade bottom to floor even in 8' ceiling homes. Light adaptor and globe optional. Even disperses smoke and blows away odors. On patios and porches, it repels insects. Why settle for less than the real thing?

'Queen Mum' Beloved By Britishers

By ROBERT MUSEL
LONDON (UPI) — Her title is Queen Mother Elizabeth, but her affectionate nickname from one end of this island kingdom to the other is "Queen Mum." She is the most loved woman in Britain.

Cyril Smith, the biggest (in girth) man in Parliament, suggested recently, in her presence in the House of Commons, that her 80th birthday August 4 ought to be a national holiday.

The idea ignited an instant response: though Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher cooled it slightly with the sympathetic suggestion that perhaps it would be more in keeping with the way the nation thinks of the queen mother to have local celebrations instead.

One thing seems certain — it will be the most warmly observed royal occasion of the year.

The British have a natural reverence for age, but it isn't because the queen mother will be 80 years old that her people will honor her birthday. The more they have learned of her, the more her former subjects have come to realize what a bargain the throne got when the shy, stammering Duke of York persuaded her to marry him in 1923.

She was the last but one of the 10 children of the Earl of Strathmore (reputed to have eaten plum pudding every day of his life). A Scottish girl who loved the freedom of life as Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, she had no desire to exchange it for the formality of marriage to the son of King George V. But ancient families — she lived in Glamis Castle as a descendant of one of the figures in Shakespeare's Macbeth — accept certain responsibilities.

A biographer quoted her as saying:

"It was my duty to marry Bertie. I fell in love with him afterwards."

A lucky thing for everyone. When King Edward VIII abdicated in 1936 for love of an American divorcee, and his terrified brother realized he would have to ascend the throne, there she was at his side, solid as the granite of her native hills. She coaxed him to take therapy for his stammer, helped carry the load of royal obligations, and sadly prepared her daughter, Elizabeth, to be a queen.

She also developed a resentment against the Duchess of Windsor because she saw the abdication as a dereliction of duty that had forced her husband and family into a situation of great stress. George VI's death in 1952 confirmed that belief.

It was her implacable opposition that denied the duchess the rank of royal highness without which the Duke of Windsor said he would never live in Britain. He died in self-exile in France where his duchess is in failing health.

The queen mother, however, is energetic, enthusiastic, carries out more than 100 public engagements a year, almost always wearing a large hat, pearls and long gloves. What someone once called "her lovely awful clothes" she wears as props of what she calls the family firm. When crowds pressed too close on one occasion, she said pleasantly but firmly: "Please don't touch the exhibits."

After her husband's death she bought an isolated Scottish castle where she could spend her time salmon fishing. But Sir Winston Churchill pleaded, "The people need you."

She returned to London but she did not always listen to the great statesman. During the war he suggested she take her two daughters to Canada to escape the bombings.

"We will stay here together as a family," she said, ending the discussion.

After Buckingham Palace was bombed she said, "At last I can look the people of the (working class) east end in the eye."

Besides fishing and gardening, the queen mother has a stable of steeplechase horses. Her favorite reading is Sporting Life. She goes to the races frequently and trainers recognize her knowledge of the sport.

When her horse Devon Loch, unbeatably ahead in the Grand National, fell a few yards from the finish, the nation — barring bookmakers — mourned what would have been a most popular win.

"Well," she said, "that's racing for you."

Remembrances Sought On World War I End

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP)—At 11 a.m. on the 11th day of the 11th month of 1918, World War I ended.

The whereabouts at that precise time of some famous figures are well known.

Cpl. Adolf Hitler, temporarily blinded by gas, wept in his hospital bed. Lt. Col. George Patton wrote a poem in the sudden, eerie silence on the front lines. Col. George Marshall was nearly killed when a shell landed just outside the building where he was working.

But a Pennsylvania State University professor wants to know what ordinary people were doing and what they felt at the end of the world's first global conflict.

To find out, Stanley Weintraub published queries in several major newspapers in the United States and Europe a few months ago. So far, he has received nearly 1,000 responses from all over the world.

About 600 of those letters came from England, with others from South America, Europe and Australia, and more and more coming from the United States.

"Apparently there's tremendous interest on the part of those who survived, or remember it, or had family involved in it," he said. "The exhilaration at the very end was much greater than at the end of World War II."

One response, Weintraub said, was a tape recording from an 86-year-old man in England, "who describes, in very moving fashion, his experiences at the end of the war in a German prison camp."

"He found his brother, whom he had feared dead, in the same camp," Weintraub said.

A Scottish soldier sent a diary entry for that day. Wives sent copies of their husbands' letters and descriptions of the hometown celebrations that took place all over the United States and Europe.

Among other war memorabilia, Weintraub has received picture postcards, photographs and even medals. One man sent the induction notice that had ordered his uncle to appear on Nov. 11, 1918. The uncle reported and was sent home.

Big celebrations took place in the cities, but on the front there were few wild outbursts. Weintraub said, "Most soldiers say they were just relieved when the noise stopped."

Weintraub, a research professor of English who is working on a book about the armistice, said several themes about the end of the war had begun to emerge from the responses he'd received.

One is that Armistice Day wasn't a happy occasion for everyone, even among the victors.

"Some people wanted the war to go on. It was the most exciting thing that ever happened for some," he said, adding that others wanted to march on to Berlin to end the war on German soil.

One misconception that still exists is that the war ended all at once in one place. Fighting in some remote areas went on for a day or two after the armistice, the professor said.

The war's last casualty may have been an American pilot from Punxsutawney, Pa. As part of Detroit's armistice celebration, a massive American flag was erected atop one of the city's highest buildings.

The young flier, swooping over the city, entangled his plane with the flag and was killed, Weintraub said.

Grinding Teeth Sign Of Times

By B.J. McFARLAND
PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI)—The nation may be in the throes of an epidemic of bruxism — the grinding, gritting or clenching of teeth.

Once it was thought to plague schoolteachers, mainly. Now, it is showing up everywhere.

Bruxism is caused, say University of Oregon Health Science medics and dentists, by stress, the same thing that can frazzle your nerves, erode your fingernails and cramp up your intestines.

"I've treated people who were suicidal" because of severe pathological effects, says Dr. William Howard, chairman of the School of Dentistry's department of fixed prosthodontics.

"In dental school in the 1940s we were taught that bruxism was common to schoolteachers. But goodness, nowadays in our society the stresses of our jobs and personal relationships and so forth all contribute to it."

Almost everybody is a victim of bruxism, he says, and it is an unconscious habit.

"I tell patients frequently that our muscles tighten as we become tense, and this includes our chewing muscles which bring our teeth together. Then we start to brace on our teeth or rub them or clench them. This can be the beginning of some very serious problems."

By literally grinding away parts of teeth, Howard says bruxism can cause malocclusion — imperfect alignment of teeth when the jaw is closed — which in turn can contribute to worse problems, such as:

Morning fatigue in the jaw; sensitivity to cold in the teeth; pain in the teeth; breaking and loosening of teeth; pain in the jawbone; clicking of the chewing joint; sensitivity in the gum area to toothbrushing; muscle spasms by the ear and along the side of the head; headaches, and sore muscles in the neck and upper back.

Many dentists believe that bruxism contributes to problems in the gums and bones supporting the teeth.

Howard says the syndrome is so closely tied to stress, some patients may need to seek help from a psychiatrist's couch as well as a dentist's chair.

Dr. Mario DeStefanis, a Milwaukee dentist who teaches at the university's health science center, says there are three major dental techniques for treating bruxism.

County School Lunch Menu

Lunchroom menus for the coming week at the Pitt County schools have been announced as follows:

Monday — hot dog on bun, Tator Tots, coleslaw, pear half, milk.

Tuesday — Country-fried steak with gravy, rice, glazed carrots, harvard beets, rolls, milk.

On The Young Side
By Elizabeth Ito

A group of math students from Rose captured first place overall in a high school math contest held at UNC-Wilmington March 20. This contest is one of 11 regional competitions held statewide which culminate in the second annual State High School Math Contest to be administered May 22 in Raleigh.

Of the students representing Rose in Wilmington, four received honorable mentions including Teresa Little, Brad Griffin, David Johnson and Chris Brown. Other members on the winning team were Dorothy Wang and Karen Brame.

The largest regional contest was held Tuesday, March 25, at ECU. Again Rose won first place overall along with winning first place in the algebra two and comprehensive divisions. Several Rose students also won individual awards in their respective divisions. In algebra two, Alison Keel won first place, Jonathan McGee, second, Jeff Prescott, fourth, and Catrina Logan and Alayna Keller tied for fifth place. Fred Parham took first place, Frank Hollander, second, and Eric Downes, fifth in the comprehensive area which tests knowledge of algebra three, advanced math and calculus.

The students scoring in the top 50 percent on the comprehensive test from each region are selected to compete in the state contest in May. Six students from Rose received this status at the ECU competition including, Parham, Holland, Downes, Sarah Hester, Mike Tucker and Bert Singleton.

Eight members of the varsity cheerleaders participated in a competition at Carowinds Saturday, March 22. Cheerleading squads from seven states were invited to compete in the annual event. Members of the Rose team were Jennifer Davis, Carla Tadlock, Coleen Lemmah, Marjorie Crane, Debbie Cannon, Rhonda Holland, Sheila Collier and Kerri Warner.

"Insights," the school's literary magazine went on sale this past week for $1.75. The magazine, which is put out each year by the advanced composition classes, contained poems, short stories, artwork and photography by students.

Margaret Cain, Mark Grossnickle, Susan Vick and Fred Parham have advanced to become National Merit Scholarship finalists. They scored well on the PSAT/NMSQT and the SAT as one of the prerequisites for becoming semifinalists and then finalists. Nationwide, approximately 30 percent of the 14,000 finalists will receive Merit Scholarships. The winners will be announced later this spring.

The public is invited to attend a concert in the gym Wednesday night, April 2, featuring the Rose High School Stage Band.

Plan Two-Day Easter Program

The annual Easter program will be presented at the Faith Pentecostal Holiness Church Saturday and Sunday, April 5 and 6, at 7:30 p.m.

The program is entitled "His Last Days."

The church is located on 14th Street Extension at the entrance to Cherry Oaks Subdivision. The public is invited.

TOYOTA

PONTIAC TAKES ON THE IMPORTS AND WINS!

BONNEVILLE vs. AUDI 5000

Before you look for fuel-efficient luxury in a European sedan, look to Pontiac. BONNEVILLE OFFERS BETTER ESTIMATED MPG. According to the fuel economy sticker the government requires on every new car sold in America, the six-passenger Bonneville's EPA estimated mpg of 18 with automatic transmission is better than the five-passenger Audi 5000 with automatic.

BONNEVILLE HAS LOWER ANNUAL FUEL COSTS. According to that same government sticker, Bonneville saves you an estimated $53 in gas each year over an Audi 5000.

BONNEVILLE GETS BETTER RANGE. With its larger 25 gallon fuel tank capacity, Bonneville will travel an estimated 450 miles between fill-ups. The Audi's just 337 miles.

BONNEVILLE IS PRICED $3701 LESS. According to the government required price sticker, the $9711 Bonneville with automatic transmission is priced $3701 less than the $10,675 Audi 5000 with automatic.

Add up what you save on one year's fuel and the big difference in price. Bonneville beats Audi 5000 by $3754!

GRAND PRIX vs. TOYOTA CELICA GT LIFTBACK

Looking for a practical approach to the art of "grand touring"? Look to Pontiac. GRAND PRIX OFFERS THE SAME ESTIMATED MPG. According to the government-required fuel economy sticker, a Grand Prix with automatic transmission delivers an EPA estimated mpg of 20, exactly the same as the Toyota Celica GT Liftback automatic. That's especially remarkable as Grand Prix has room for six adults. The Celica only has room for four.

GRAND PRIX OFFERS BETTER RANGE. With its larger 18 1/2 gallon fuel tank capacity, Grand Prix will take you an estimated 367 miles per tankful. That's an estimated 40 miles further than the Celica.

GRAND PRIX IS PRICED $471 LESS. According to the government required price sticker, a new Grand Prix with automatic transmission is priced at $6448. That's $471 less than the Celica with automatic.

Look at the mileage. Look at the range. Then look at the price. Compared to the Celica, Pontiac's new Grand Prix is the clear winner.

GRAND PRIX WINS BY $471!

FIREBIRD vs. MAZDA RX-7 "S"

If you've been thinking only Japan could bring you economical sports machines, Pontiac is about to burst the bubble. FIREBIRD OFFERS BETTER ESTIMATED MPG. According to the mandatory government fuel economy sticker, a new Firebird with automatic rides an EPA estimated mpg of 20. That's 4 mpg better than the Mazda with automatic.

FIREBIRD HAS LOWER ANNUAL FUEL COSTS. According to that government sticker, Firebird saves you approximately $206 a year in gas over the Mazda.

FIREBIRD OFFERS BETTER RANGE. With its larger 21 gallon fuel tank capacity, Firebird can go an estimated 420 miles per tankful. 188 miles more than the Mazda.

FIREBIRD IS PRICED $1748 LESS. According to the government required price sticker, Firebird with automatic transmission is priced at $6132. The Mazda with automatic is $7880, a difference of $1748.

Add up the price difference and the cost of one year's fuel. The difference between Firebird and the Mazda is $1954. You'll go a lot farther in a new Pontiac Firebird.

FIREBIRD WINS BY $1954!

SUNBIRD vs. VW RABBIT

Not all great little economy cars come from overseas. One of the best comes from Pontiac. SUNBIRD OFFERS BETTER ESTIMATED MPG. That's right, the government-required fuel economy sticker says a Sunbird with automatic transmission offers an EPA estimated mpg of 24. The automatic gasoline-powered Rabbit's just an estimated 23 mpg.

SUNBIRD HAS LOWER ANNUAL FUEL COSTS. According to that same government sticker, you'll save $30 a year in gas if you drive a Sunbird instead of the Rabbit. Every little bit helps.

SUNBIRD OFFERS BETTER RANGE. Sunbird's larger 18 1/2 gallon fuel tank capacity will help take you an estimated 444 miles on a tank of gas. It's estimated the Rabbit runs out of gas at 344 miles.

SUNBIRD IS PRICED $1202 LESS. The government required price sticker says a Sunbird with automatic transmission is just $4848. The Rabbit at $6050, is priced $1202 more.

Add up the difference in price and the cost of gas for one year. You'll do $1232 better in a Sunbird.

'Belle Starr' Airs On CBS

Historians are in agreement that the notorious Belle Starr lacked many physical charms. Even without them, Belle cut a romantic swathe across the Old West which could favorably be compared with the lawlessness of which she was equally capable.

Elizabeth Montgomery, who's a far prettier 'Starr' than the real Belle, portrays the legendary bandit queen in "Belle Starr," to be broadcast on "The CBS Wednesday Night Movies," April 2 (9 to 11 p.m.).

Also starring in the drama are Cliff Potts and Michael Cavanaugh. Others in the cast are Fred Ward, Jesse Vint, Alan Vint and Geoffrey Lewis.

Of all the legends of the Old West, that of Belle Starr, Bandit Queen, was one of the most romanticized by the dime novelists of the day. To them, she was a daring and noble woman who fulfilled the role of a female Robin Hood.

Her real name? Myra Belle Shirley. She was born in a log cabin near Carthage, Mo., in 1848 then her family moved to Texas a few years later. While still in her teens, Belle began hobnobbing with the infamous Jesse James gang and bore one of its members, Cole Younger, a daughter. She then married a horse thief named Jim Reed and bore him a son.

When Reed was killed, Belle took up with another gang and moved into Indian Territory, where she met and married a handsome Cherokee bandit named Sam Starr. From their hideout on the Canadian River, Belle acted as organizer, planner and fence for rustlers, horse thieves and the bootleggers who sold illegal whiskey to the Indians. When her friends were captured by the authorities, she spent her money generously to buy their freedom. If bribery failed, she would employ her powers of seduction.

Belle was particularly exasperating to the famous 'Hanging Judge' Parker, to whom she was female, flamboyant and frustrating. The press, however, was delighted with her. Inconvenient facts were disregarded and many fictional exploits were invented, thereby making her everybody's favorite criminal.

After Starr was killed in a shootout, Belle continued her amorous pursuits. To the sorrow of romantic readers from coast to coast, she was shot in ambush in 1889.

ELIZABETH MONTGOMERY stars as the legendary bandit queen in the title role of "Belle Starr," a new motion-picture-for-television airing Wednesday, April 2 (9-11 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

CBS WILL COVER the final round of the 12th annual Heritage Classic, Sunday, March 30 (3-5 p.m.). One of the forerunners in the event last year was Mike Morley, who's among the golfing greats competing again.

Morley's Hoping For Better Days

No one said life on the PGA tour was an easy way to make a living. And at one point, Mike Morley was wondering if it was really worth it.

After all, he'd been on the tour eight years before he captured his first tournament victory and he's still looking for victory number two. Yet, the 34-year-old native of Minot, North Dakota, pocketed $45,435 last season and has a distinct goal for 1980 — to win at least $100,000.

Morley is playing in the prestigious Heritage Classic with a host of other top pros, including reigning title-holder Tom Watson. CBS will televise the final round on Sunday, March 30 (3 p.m.).

The telecast is originating live from the Harbour Town Golf Links on Hilton Head Island off the coast of South Carolina. Jack Whitaker, Pat Summerall, Ben Wright, Frank Glier and Ken Venturi are the commentators for the $300,000 PGA Tour event.

Morley joined the tour in 1970, fresh from Arizona State, where he was twice All-America. He finished eighth in the U.S.

Amateur after his sophomore season.

But the golf season in North Dakota can be measured in weeks. And it wasn't until he moved to California that Morley played golf for more than a few months a year. In fact, he shakes his head when he thinks about the difference when he entered the tour and how some of the youngsters play now.

"There are kids now on the tour who played competitive golf year-round since they were 12, and who are so good they can make $50,000 at 22 or 23 without blinking an eye," he said.

After struggling for several years, Morley felt he'd finally found his touch in 1976 as he earned over $88,000, or good for 29th on the money list. Then in 1977, he captured the Ed McMahon Quad Cities Open and he appeared to be on his way.

But a mini-slump the past couple of seasons has forced him to take a serious look at his swing. He has changed his grip, holds the club looser now, and is getting more play with his swing.

"I can do more things with my irons now, and my variety of shots has increased," Morley explains. "Maybe if I keep stroking the ball well, I might get my touch back and avoid those Monday-morning qualifying rounds."

A psychotic killer of women terrifies a city, and an ambitious columnist capitalizes on the panic in "City of Fear," airing as The ABC Sunday Night Movie, March 30 (9 to 11 p.m.). The writer, under orders from his circulation-hungry publisher, turns the murderer into a page-one celebrity, and the results are disastrous.

David Janssen, in his last television role, portrays once-famous columnist Vince Perrino, and Robert Vaughn stars as the ambitious publisher, Harrison Crawford III.

Crawford, an Easterner, takes over the flagging Los Angeles Sun with one thought — to build circulation. To do this, he brings in Perrino, a one-time successful columnist who's failed to make it as a novelist.

Then, when a young blonde Malibu co-ed is shot to death for no apparent reason, Perrino writes the "inside" story. Crawford, a real sensation-seeker, is so delighted that he decides to hype Perrino's coverage to the hilt.

His actions anger Armstrong and Zavala, young police detectives, however. They're investigating the murder and see potential danger in such an action.

Another young blonde woman is shot, and Crawford headlines the next edition, "Dream Girl Killer Strikes Again." As would be expected, circulation zooms.

David Janssen (l) starred with the Emmy-winner Robert Vaughn in "City in Fear," airing as a special presentation on "The ABC Sunday Night Movie," March 3 (9-11:50 p.m.).

The entire community is consumed with fear, and Crawford finds increasing opposition to his sensational journalism. Those complaining loudest are Freeman Stribling, the Sun's managing editor, Crawford's wife, and the city's mayor. There's even a stern warning from the publisher's father. But these are no deterrents to Crawford.

Just as Perrino's columns are bogging down, there's another murder, and the writer finds new fuel for the fires he continues to ignite. When he is paid an unexpected visit by the killer, he sees a chance to capitalize on his contact by getting a commitment for a book.

Chef Offers Kid New Friendship

An elderly chef, who's an ardent fan of the Brooklyn Dodgers, helps a young boy find meaning in life in "Home Run for Love," an ABC Afterschool Specials presentation airing Wednesday, Apr. 2 (4:30 to 5:30 p.m.).

A portable radio is Sammy's (Ronnie Scribner) sole friend until he becomes friends with Davy Henderson (Charles Lampkin) the new cook at Esther Greene's (Anne Gee Byrd) roadside inn. Through his friendship with Davy, Sammy begins to overcome his extreme shyness.

When Davy finds out that Sammy is also a Dodger fan, he takes the boy to Ebbets Field to see his first baseball game.

Then Davy becomes gravely ill, and Sammy journeys to Brooklyn from his home in New Jersey to get Jackie Robinson, his friend's favorite player, along with the rest of the team to autograph a game ball for his ailing friend. Later, at the hospital, Sammy uses his wits to sneak into Davy's room and present him with his priceless treasure.

Viewers of "Home Run for Love" will be transported back to 1947, the era when Jackie Robinson reigned supreme. Newsreel footage from 30 years ago showing the great sportsman playing his heart out intermingles with the current film. Although the film was shot in color, it was decided that the entire program be shown in black and white in keeping with the story and the time period.

Producer Martin Thase's film crew searched throughout Southern California to find locations that would duplicate certain parts of New Jersey and surrounding areas. The historic 92-year-old Vosburg Hotel in San Jacinto served as the Inn where much of the story takes place. For 85 years this historic building was the oldest continuously operated one-family hotel in Riverside County.

Brooklyn's famed Ebbets Field was found to have a near twin in Blair Field, located in Long Beach.

'Papa And Me' Returns To NBC

Joseph Mascolo and 9-year-old Matthew Laborteaux star in the title roles of "Papa and Me," NBC-TV's "Special Treat" to be rebroadcast April 1 (4 to 5 p.m.).

The irrepressible Joey is matched in sense of humor and mischievous pranks by his beloved grandfather, Papa D'Amico. Of all the children in the family, Joey comes closest in personality to Papa, and the news that his grandfather is dying frightens the boy.

In a series of flashbacks, the special friendship the old man and the boy have shared is shown, including the time during World War II when Joey observed how Papa handled grief when he lost one of his sons in the service. The knowledge that death is a part of life and not a source of fear is taught to the boy with grace.

Also starring in the children's special are Renata Vanni as Joey's grandmother, and Paul Picerni as Dominick, his father.

Matthew Laborteaux is a bright, talented child who didn't walk until he was 3 and never spoke until the age of 4. His condition was correctly diagnosed as autistic.

Matthew was what is called an "unadoptable" child since it was thought that he was mentally retarded. Since the Laborteauxs had already adopted another such child — Patrick, who had been diagnosed as psychotic — and had excellent results with him, they did not hesitate to take Matthew.

The first three years were terrible, and visits to doctors and psychiatrists were constant. Mrs. Laborteaux, however, felt they would solve the enigma. Because she is hypoglycemic and cannot eat sugar or carbohydrates, she became very interested in nutrition. As an experiment, with the approval of her doctors, she tried the same diet on Matthew and the change in his personality was startling. Though his previous attitude toward people was of a violent nature, he became calmer.

From this point, Matthew's progress was steadily on the upswing, and he was cast in his first dramatic role at 5-and-a-half years old in the movie, "Woman Under the Influence." He's since appeared on TV in "Turning Point," "Villa Alegre" (a bilingual program), "The Rookies" and "Phyllis," and is now a regular on "Little House on the Prairie."

'Jesus Of Nazareth'

The majesty of Jesus — from His birth to the agony of His Crucifixion and the spiritual power of the Resurrection — is recalled in "Jesus of Nazareth," to be presented during Holy Week on NBC-TV. The highly acclaimed Biblical epic will begin Palm Sunday, March 30, then continue Monday, March 31, Tuesday, April 1, and Easter Sunday, April 6 (9 to 11 p.m. each night).

The film features a large, international cast. British actor Robert Powell portrays Jesus; Olivia Hussey appears as Mary.

The first telecast begins in Nazareth with the wedding of Mary and Joseph, then tells the story of the Christ Child's birth in Bethlehem, the flight of the family into Egypt, and their return to Nazareth.

Bo, Farrah, Cheryl, Bette — they're the glitter goddesses of our day, perched atop the Mount Olympus of Hollywood.

Fascinating revelations of these superstars — Bo Derek, Farrah Fawcett, Cheryl Ladd and Bette Midler — emerge when they're interviewed on "The Barbara Walters Special," Tuesday, April 1 (10 to 11 p.m.), on ABC-TV.

Barbara elicits different views of marriage, relationships and happiness as they exist in the high-powered world of show business through her talks with the women, each at a different plateau of success.

Bo and husband John Derek, 30 years her senior, talk with Barbara about the national press depiction of John as Svengali and Bo as the totally dominated creation of "10" fame. Admittedly, John cuts Bo's hair, chooses her clothes and corrects her posture. But he says he's no Svengali and directing her career is "a pain in the butt." Bo talks about her gratitude for John's guidance, her initial insecurity about his former wives and the strength of their three-year marriage as they face the future. On the last subject, John says "I've explained how she must beef up the muscles to push the wheelchair." And Bo says she doesn't look at young men and isn't a flirt.

Farrah Fawcett lives in an enormous house high in the hills of Los Angeles. It's there that Barbara finds her, unlike Bo, without the constant support of a husband. Her separation from Lee Majors she says candidly, was effected by her career climb.

"With my success, I had to become stronger...make decisions...back myself up and feel strong about them. I can't go home and have decisions made for me...I wasn't the girl that her married. But I think I'm better." She goes on to discuss her desire

Film Planned

Plans are underway for a major motion picture dramatizing the life and career of Frank Sinatra. The time covered begins with the entertainer's youth in Hoboken, N.J., and continues through his acceptance of an Academy Award in 1952 for his performance in "From Here to Eternity."

An international search is now underway for a 'look-alike' actor to portray Sinatra as a 25-year-old teenage idol in the film.

Sinatra says he will cooperate fully with the production, and original recordings will be used in early sequences. Later scenes will include standard songs of the period which the singer will record for the movie's soundtrack.

BARBARA WALTERS (r) talks with Hollywood's number-one 10 and a man who definitely knows what counts when she is joined by Bo and John Derek on "The Barbara Walters Special" on ABC Tuesday April 1 (10-11 p.m.). to have a baby ("I'm obsessed by this"); her relationship with Ryan O'Neal ("magical"), and her personality changes ("I'm a little more impatient...I'm not as sweet as I used to be").

In an intimate profile, Cheryl Ladd tells Barbara that she believes marriage and career can coexist (despite the fact she's separated). She expresses her inner fears ("Sometimes I get seven years old and I get real afraid that I'm not doing the right thing...sometimes I feel very alone"), and voices her satisfactions ("My life is a '10'...I am really happy").

Barbara sweeps away the gold dust from the Grammy-winning, Oscar-nominated ("The Rose") Bette Midler to find the real person behind the bawdy humor and outrageous actions. "I don't think I have kept from falling apart," she says. "I think I'm very close to falling apart."

Series Wrapped

Jack Jones has taped the last segment of his one-hour variety series, "The Palace."

"Palace" is now being seen via syndication in major cities, including New York and Chicago. A substantial number of other cities are expected to be airing it by September.

Late-Night News

ABC News is now presenting a late-night news program Monday through Thursday (from 11:30 to 11:50 p.m.). This marks the first major expansion of weekday network news programming since the evening news broadcasts were lengthened from 15 to 30 minutes in the mid-60s.

"For some time, we have wanted to introduce regularly scheduled news programming outside the news time period," says ABC's Boone Arledge. "Response to our special programs and extended coverage of the Iranian crisis has strengthened our conviction that viewers want more informational programming."

Ted Koppel is anchoring the newscast, which includes a capsule of the day's news. But the main emphasis is on the development and provocative treatment of the major story, or stories, of the day.

"We anticipate that the program will develop and expand to encompass the stories breaking after the dinner hour," Arledge continued, "as well as an innovative look at the day's compelling story. As we saw with the Iran reports, the live presentation of newsmakers is uniquely suited to the late-night setting."

Koppel was ABC's Diplomatic Correspondent for several years. During this time, his main assignment was coverage of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, a tour of duty that took him more than a quarter of a million miles.

Chill-Seekers Rejoice!

"The Island of Dr. Moreau," a horror-fantasy for chill-seekers of all ages, is coming to the small screen as ABC's Friday Night Movie, April 4 (9 to 11 p.m.). Burt Lancaster stars as the injection-happy scientist. Barbara Carrera and Michael York co-star.

Dr. Moreau's island isn't the best bit of land to wash up on, as a ship-wrecked seaman (York) soon discovers. The scenery may be beautiful, but it happens to be the base of operations for a madman who's been conducting genetic experiments on animals. These poor creatures are turned into half-baked humans.

The island's newest inhabitant is in for several hair-raising adventures. Not only are some of the doctor's experimental rejects out to get him, so is the doctor — with a hypodermic!

The only bright spot on the island is Maria (Carrera), an ex-high fashion model whose existence is shrouded in mystery.

Barbara Carrera first gained international attention in her starring role in this movie. It marked her third leading role in a major film after she abandoned a highly successful career as a high fashion model. Prior to opting for a drama career, she had appeared on the covers of several top-selling magazines — including Vogue, Cosmopolitan and Bazaar.

Barbara's first film was "The Master Gunfighter," produced by Tom Laughlin. And it was his wife who spotted Barbara's picture in a magazine in Paris. She immediately contacted the model because she and Tom were looking for a leading lady with "those looks."

In short order, Barbara was flown to Hollywood for a screen test. "They didn't look any further because they decided to cast me," she recalls.

Her second outing as a leading lady was opposite Rock Hudson in "Embryo," a demanding role in which she had to age scores of years.

Then, as Clay Basket in "Centennial," she once again went from a young girl to an older woman.

Programming To Be Announced

John Wayne Stars In Film

John Wayne stars in "Big Jake," an action-packed western drama coming back to the small screen as The CBS Tuesday Night Movie, April 1 (9 to 11 p.m.). Others in the cast are Richard Boone and Maureen O'Hara.

The action's focus is on a cowboy who tracks down the gang responsible for kidnapping his grandson.

John Fain (Boone) leads a group of desperados in a raid on the ranch of Jacob 'Big Jake' McCandles. The ruffians kill the family servants, wound one of Jake's sons and kidnap his young grandchild (played by John Ethan Wayne).

Jake had left the ranch and his wife, Martha (O'Hara), some years earlier, and has never seen his young grandson. Realizing that it will take a hard and ruthless man to rescue the young child, Martha sends for her estranged husband.

Jake heeds the family's call for help. And he joins forces with two of his sons (Patrick Wayne and Christopher Mitchum) and an old Indian guide (Bruce Cabot) to find Fain and his gang.

JOHN WAYNE stars as a rancher who pursues the men who have kidnapped his grandson (John Ethan Wayne) in "Big Jake," being rebroadcast on "The CBS Tuesday Night Movies," April 1 (9-11 p.m.).

Stanwyck Returns To TV

It took a lot of coaxing to get actress Barbara Stanwyck to come out of retirement, but producer Aaron Spelling has succeeded. The legendary actress will be the special guest star on ABC-TV's "Charlie's Angels," Wednesday, April 2 (9-10 p.m.).

Starring as Antonia Blake in the episode "Toni's Boys," Miss Stanwyck runs her own detective agency staffed by three very handsome and accomplished men: (guests), Bob Seagren, Stephen Shortridge and Bruce Bauer.

Charlie calls on Toni and her boys to protect his Angels from the deadly attacks of a wealthy man who is determined to kill them.

Stanwyck has been the favorite of moviegoers for decades. White-haired and in her 70s, she last appeared on the movie screen in a 1964 feature film, "The Night Walker."

She was coaxed out of retirement back in the 1960s to star in another television series that went down in the medium's history as one of the most outstanding shows of its time — "The Big Valley." Her portrayal of Victoria Barkley displayed the enthusiasm and hard-core professionalism that had long been Stanwyck's hallmarks. Her efforts were not in vain — she received two Emmys.

Barbara Stanwyck made her entry into show business as a chorine in New York cabarets when she was only 15. She graduated to a small part in Willard Mack's play, "The Noose." Then, when the play opened to weak notices in Philadelphia, Mack rewrote the drama and cast

BARBARA STANWYCK stars as Antonia "Toni" Blake and l-r: Bob Seagren, Stephen Shortridge and Bruce Bauer as her three private detectives when Charlie must hire bodyguards to protect the Angels from a mobster who threatens to kill the Angels in "Toni's Boys" an episode of ABC's "Charlie's Angels," airing Wednesday April 2 (9-10 p.m.).

Barbara in the lead. The result was a hit production that ran almost a year on Broadway.

Her film career began in New York, with a role opposite Rod LaRouche in "The Locked Door." Then she took off for Hollywood for a part in "Ladies of Leisure." That picture made her a star.

Barbara's roles in over 80 films have ranged from light comedy to tragedy, from appealing ingenues to emotion-ridden neurotics. She won Oscar nominations for her performances in four pictures — "Sorry, Wrong Number," "Double Indemnity," "Ball of Fire" and "Stella Dallas."

The actress is an avid reader, and frequently averages a book a day. Her record collection — from Bach to rock 'n' roll is innately constant use. Direct, out-spoken and sincere, she's among Hollywood's best-liked stars.

Bandit Queen Liked Music

"Picture Belle Star playing the piano at local dances — with a gun strapped to her side. This gives you an idea of how rough country life must have been in the West in those days," says Elizabeth Montgomery, who's starring in the title role of "Belle Starr" (Wednesday, April 2, 9 p.m. on CBS-TV).

In an early scene of the film, Belle is seen encouraging her young daughter to practice the piano. This is not the contrivance of a screenwriter. Research shows that the notorious Belle was an accomplished musician.

"She apparently loved music of all types," Elizabeth says. "And she'd learned to play the piano at the age of 8. Belle was actually quite a genteel young lady until the Civil War caused her to strap on a gun and change her life, with a little help from her outlaw lover, Cole Younger," she added.

"But she never gave up her love of music. She displayed her talent at every opportunity, even at church for weddings and funerals."

An Eye Is On Sara

Shelley Smith's packed a 'heap of living' in her lifetime, so far. She joined the Peace Corps "to teach in Africa," literally "fell" into a modeling job in Paris, and delayed her acting classes "until I was financially okay."

Now she's appearing in the role of Sara James in ABC-TV's "The Associates," seen Thursdays (9:30 to 10 p.m.).

Shelley's life began to veer toward the opposite side of normal when she was only 16 and working part-time in a New York department store. Vogue's then editor-in-chief Diana Vreeland saw her doing some in-store modeling, and offered her a high-fashion job. Thrilled, Shelley accepted for about a month, then quit.

"I was too young, and scared to death of the high-powered people around me," she recalls. "Nor was I really ready for the amount of travel involved."

Shelley concentrated on her education instead, and graduated with a degree in art history from Connecticut College. She acted in and directed several school plays, and even seriously thought about acting professionally. "But I didn't know how to go about it," she says.

'Contenders' Now Premieres

Marc Singer and Moses Gunn are the stars of "The Contender," CBS-TV's new series that's premiering Thursday, April 3, with a special 90-minute episode (beginning at 10 p.m.).

Beifus first sees Johnny when the young man is engaged in a grudge match in a small-town police gym. He immediately thinks that this strong 'white hope' could be a sure meal ticket.

Meanwhile, his younger brother, Brian, innocently strikes a deal with two local hoodlums that results in Johnny's first major fight. But neither he nor Beifus realize what strings are attached. Johnny's concern is that the match is with a boxer who's helped him. Furthermore, his feisty teen-age sister, Missy, has become a good friend of the would-be opponent.

Both Singer and Gunn are familiar to television viewers. Singer's starred in several specials — "Something for Joey," "Sgt. Marlovich vs. the U.S. Air Force," "The Two Worlds of Jennie Logan" and "79 Park Avenue."

MARC SINGER (l) and Moses Gunn star in "The Contender," a new dramatic series premiering with a special 90-minute episode, Thursday, April 3 (10-11:30 p.m.) on CBS (Thereafter "The Contender" will be seen Thursdays, 10-11 p.m.).

Singer portrays Johnny Captor, a restless young blue-collar worker who takes up boxing. And Gunn is cast as ex-prizefighter George Beifus. Others in the cast are Katherine Cannon, Louise Latham and Alan Stock. Guesting in the first segment are Tina Andrews, Don Gordon, Art Lund, Gregory Walcott, William Watson and Clifton James.

Beifus offers to train as well as manage him, and Johnny, eager to head in a new direction, seizes the opportunity.

The first four amateur bouts Beifus lines up are easy wins for Johnny. But he begins to find himself in conflict with old values in the seamy world of rabid crowds and small-time hustlers who populate boxing arenas.

SPOTLIGHT

Audiences Want Talent

"I think audiences have had it with celebrities," says John Barbour. "And I think they're tired of people who've made it with a nice smile or an attractive body, but not necessarily with talent."

This, Barbour believes is a key factor behind the success of his show, "Real People," seen weekly on NBC-TV.

"Another reason I think 'People' have been successful is that we are showing viewers that you can get recognition just by being yourself. That's all it takes," he continued.

"Also, we are making the best use of the television medium. We entertain and inform. The source of material is inexhaustible."

Indeed, the material is 'inexhaustible.' The show averages about 25,000 letters a month. "Six people might work three to eight hours a day just sorting mail," John says. "We divide all mail into such categories as cast mail, straight mail, miscellaneous, photo bloopers, negative mail, consumer ideas, X-rated signs or posters, names, pet peeves and children's jokes."

John's bag seems to be social

commentary with a twist of satire, and he's calculating. When he talks with someone who's being spotlighted on "Real People," these talents come through. He stops, just short of making fun of the person. You know it, the person being interviewed knows it, but it really doesn't matter.

This unique ability probably stems from his years spent as a stand-up comic. And he's worked with the best — Dionne Warwick, Robert Goulet and Frank Gorshin, to name a few.

Barbour's a Canadian by birth, and grew up in Toronto. But most of his professional appearances have been in America. He's performed in several clubs in Lake Tahoe, Las Vegas, Chicago, New York and Puerto Rico. He's also hosted four television shows in the Los Angeles area.

He's guested on all the major talk shows, as well as a number of variety specials, and even wrote for two series, "Gomer Pyle, USMC" and "My Mother, the Car."

John bristles at the mere mention of adverse criticism regarding his or any other show. "The main reason so much criticism is negative is because it's badly done," he explains. "If it's done well, it is positive. Too many critics don't write for the public, they are writing for their sources. Performers, producers, directors know in their gut whether what they've done is good or bad. And they appreciate honesty."

John and his wife, Sarita, a diminutive brunette, are the parents of a son, Christopher, who's 10. They make their home in Toluka Lake, Calif.

Just Look Again!

If you're a fan of "The Facts of Life," you'll probably be seeing a familiar face in your favorite department store during the upcoming months.

That face belongs to 17-year-old Julie Piekarski, one of the stars of the new series seen Fridays, (8:30 p.m., on NBC-TV). The cute teen-ager was the model for a mannikin that's now being sold to department stores all over the world.

Last summer, Julie's agent sent her and several other teens to be interviewed for the mannikin model job.

"At first they were going to do my face only," she recalls. "Then they decided to do my whole body."

Julie never knew that mannikins' bodies are sculpted to copy live people. "It was very interesting modeling for the sculptors," she said. "It took 12 days to copy me. I tried different poses and the sculptor built the bodies to match the poses."

 25 As We See It

'I Never Dreamed...'

"When I was growing up, I never dreamed of being a singer," Loretta Lynn tells Tom Cottle on "Hot Hero Sandwich," airing Saturday, April 5 (noon to 1 p.m. on NBC-TV). "I always liked to sing, but I never dreamed... 'cause that dream was just too big," she continued.

Loretta shares the interview spotlight with Richard Pryor and Leonard Nimoy in this segment of the show. At one point, she describes how her mother discovered that she was sneaking smokes in the barnyard as a youngster. Pryor and Nimoy tell about their early awareness of sex and dating, and Pryor recalls the anguish of witnessing fights between his parents.

"Hot Hero's" special musical guest, Joe Jackson, sings "Is She Really Going Out With Him?" And comedy sketches are performed by the show's repertory company. Included in its ranks are L. Michael Craig, Vicky Dawson, Ms. Denny Dillon, Matt McCoy, Paul O'Keefe, Nan-Lynn Nelson, Jarett SmithWrick, Andy Breckman, Andrew Duncan, Frankie Faison, Sandra McClain and Adam Ross.

Post's A Good 'Mudder'

Sandra Post proved a good "mudder" last year as she ran away with the Colgate Dinah Shore Women's Golf Tourney after the Brookfield West Golf and Country Club in California was turned into a quagmire on the final day.

She fired a final-round 69, including a 33 on the front side on the final day to take the $15,000 first prize. That happened to be the second year in a row that she's captured the top billing at the Dinah Shore.

This weekend, Post will try to make it three in a row, but she'll face one of the toughest fields ever assembled for the Colgate Dinah Shore Women's Circle Golf Tournament. NBC will televise the semi-final round of play on Saturday, April 5 (5 p.m.).

This is the 31-year-old's 12th year of competition on the LPGA Tour and she feels it could be her best. Despite lacking the strength of some of the bigger girls, Sandra is extremely adept with her irons and putting, she does best on courses which demand positioning.

"I've learned to play courses like Brookfield and I know that it requires delicately played irons," she relates. "That's where my strength lies and that's probably why I play well there."

Last year, Post ignored the rainstorm and sank birdie putts on holes 10, 12 and 13, giving her a three-stroke lead she never relinquished. The $15,000 first prize temporarily vaulted her into the lead on the money list.

CHARLIE PIKE

HOLLYWOOD — Congratulations are in order for Virginia native SUZANNE ROGERS, who, outside her homestate is perhaps better known as Maggie on NBC's daytime serial "DAYS OF OUR LIVES." After a lengthy courtship, pretty red-haired Suzanne and boyfriend SAM GROOM have become husband and wife.

It should come as no surprise, but insiders say that SUZANNE SOMERS and husband ALAN HAMEL are more than full-fledged millionaires headed for even more. Suzanne, of course, has capitalized on her "THREE'S COMPANY" success to earn a life-sustaining fortune. However, hubby Alan isn't at home living off his wife's income. Alan is spokesman for a Southern California market chain and has his own production company.

US Magazine has been purchased by the publishing company that publishes Photoplay Magazine. And predictably, it seems that once the new editorial staff takes control of US, the magazine will have a new focus on film, TV and music celebrities. Indeed, scuttlebutt has it that as much as 80 percent of the editorial content will feature the famous tinseltown.

It's no longer a secret shared simply by members of "DAYS OF OUR LIVES" cast that QUINN REDEKER (Alex Marshall) and DIEDRE HALL (Marlene Craig) are very much together as one these days. There's even some speculation about wedding bells.

Meanwhile, over at "THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS" and "GENERAL HOSPITAL," DOUG DAVIDSON, who plays Paul on the former, and GENIE FRANCIS, who's Laura on the latter, are spending a lot of time together socially.

What ABC personality has received far and away the most fan mail since the first of the year? None other than RICHARD SIMMONS, who appears as himself on "GENERAL HOSPITAL," advising on weight control. He's received 47,000 pieces of mail since Jan. 1.

SARAH JEANETTE RICHARDSON, born February 27th to SUSAN RICHARDSON of "EIGHT IS ENOUGH" and husband MICHAEL VIRDEN, has taken her mother's surname, an agreement the couple made prior to the child's birth. Had the couple had a son, he would have taken the last name of his father. Ironically, a scanning test had predicted that Susan would have a boy.

Will Not Be Used

The Nevada State Athletic Commission has denied former pro football player Ed 'Too Tall' Jones permission to box in a nationally televised bout. According to Commissioner Sid Rogich, his match against Jesus Meneses would be "a mockery to the sport and create a carnival-like atmosphere." He further stated that "It's a phony fight and a farce. And we certainly don't want the state of Nevada to be used."

Great Boxers Compete

ABC Sports will feature four world title fights in a prime time boxing special, Monday, March 31 (8 p.m. to 12-midnight). Included is an event unprecedented in boxing annals — two heavyweight champions, Larry Holmes (WBC) and John Tate (WBA), defending their titles on the same telecast.

Holmes faces 6-foot 5-inch LeRoy Jones, the unbeaten No. 3 rated WBC heavyweight contender. And Tate defends his crown against herculean Mike Weaver, rated No. 1 by the WBA.

Holmes, a skilled champion from Easton, Penn., has already defended his WBC World Heavyweight Championship four times since he won the title from Ken Norton in June, 1978. Now 30 years old, Holmes has a perfect record of 32-0, with 23 knockouts.

Holmes' opponent, LeRoy Jones, turned pro after winning the New York Golden Gloves Championship in 1971. He is unbeaten with a record of 24-0-1. Jones' most important win came on June 19, 1978, when he outpointed Mike Weaver in a close 12-round bout. In his last test (June, 1979), he stopped James Beattie in four rounds.

Tate, the 6 foot 4 inch, 240-lbs. WBA World Heavyweight Champion, earned the crown vacated by Muhammad Ali by defeating Gerrie Coetzee in South Africa, Oct. 10, 1979. The 24-year-old champion, a former bronze medal winner at the 1976 Olympic Games, has a record of 20 victories without a defeat, 15 by knockouts. This will be his first defense of the title.

Mike Weaver, 27, a muscular 200-pounder, achieved national prominence last June, when he waged a great battle against Larry Holmes before being stopped in the 12th round. Weaver scored a 12-round victory over Scott Le Doux in his most recent bout.

LARRY HOLMES faces LeRoy Jones in one of four title fights to be presented by ABC Sports, Monday, March 31 (8-12 p.m.).

The winners of the two Heavyweight Championship fights have agreed to meet for the unified WBA-WBC Heavyweight Championship title later this year.

A third title fight features Sugar Ray Leonard, one of the most charismatic personalities in the ring today. This is his first title defense of the World Boxing Council (WBC) Welterweight crown since he stopped Wilfred Benitez with a dramatic 15th round attack to become champion last November. Leonard takes on David Green of England, former European Welterweight Champion.

The fourth fight sends southpaw Marvin Johnson into the ring in his first defense of his newly acquired World Boxing Association Light-Heavyweight title against Eddie Gregory, No. 1 contender in the WBA rankings.

All-Star Classic

Darrell Griffith, Michael Brooks and Kiki Vandeweghe are all expected to be playing in the 1980 East-West College All-Star Basketball Classic, to be broadcast live on "CBS Sports Spectacular," Saturday March 29 (4 to 6 p.m.).

The first eight spots on each team are awarded according to a vote by fans in a nationally sponsored promotion. The final two places on each squad — only seniors are eligible — are selected by the Association of American Basketball Coaches.

Frank Konigsberg's television miniseries, "The Mad Messiah" — a biography of People's Temple leader Jim Jones — is causing considerable controversy before it even comes to the small screen. The drama covers Jones' life from his early youth to the Guyana Massacre and should be released in May.

"There is no reason for the remaining members of the People's Temple to take offense at the series," says Konigsberg. "I've dealt basically with Jones' early life and later development from a personality profile angle. The focus is on Jones and not the religious group."

"Messiah," based primarily on a book written by Washington Post reporter Charles Krause, was filmed in Georgia and Puerto Rico at a cost of about $5 million.

The series is broken into two parts and opens with a Guyana scene before it goes into retrospect of Jones' life.

FOR COMMISSIONER JOSEPH M. HENDRIE, Nuclear Regulatory Commission

Should another accident occur at one of our nuke plants, such as the one at Three Mile Island, how long would it take to evacuate the surrounding area? —F.N., Yuma, Ariz.

● Evacuation times would vary from two hours or less up to eight to 12 hours, depending on the particular site and how many people live close to the plant. Those times should be reduced by the better emergency-planning now required for all nuclear sites. Canadian authorities recently evacuated a quarter-million people in six hours when a train carrying dangerous chemicals was wrecked. Sheltering — having people stay indoors — which would be an adequate protective measure for many accidents and for people farther away from a plant can be done fairly quickly. Improved emergency plans are now being required for each site.

FOR CINDY ADAMS, author of Lee Strasberg: The Imperfect Genius of the Actors Studio

Why ever did you write about Lee Strasberg, since he's hardly a big, household name? —J.C., Bangor, Maine

● Because focusing on the life of this architect of the American theater reveals a fascinating study. He spoke no English when he emigrated from Poland. He never graduated high school. His social know-how is limited. He never shook hands because "I didn't know which hand to put out first." His life story is interesting and complex.

FOR SEAN CONNERY, star of Cuba

Were you exaggerating when you said you polished coffins for a living before you became an actor? —E.B., Colorado Springs, Colo.

● I wasn't exaggerating. Coffins are not a subject to joke about. Seriously, there is a right and wrong way to polish a casket. To do so, one must have the know-how to get the correct sheen from the grain in the wood, and the new metal must be rubbed with a special technique to bring out a patina. Very few people know of this; it's really an art.

FOR BOB CAIN, NBC radio newscaster

How many times do you have run-throughs of your broadcast before you go on the air and, if you take too long, do you speed up your delivery or make deletions? —T.N., Terre Haute, Ind.

● I write all the stories I use and am usually working right up to the deadline, minutes before air space time, so there's seldom a chance for a run through. If I find I'm not able to get in all the material I had planned, the choice is invariably to delete a secondary item or two rather than speed up my delivery.

FOR EDITH HEAD, designer

What happens to all the beautiful clothes actresses wear, after their movies are finished? —T.P., Wenatchee, Wash.

● In the "good old days," the clothes were given to the stars who wore them. Things are different now. Since income tax would have to be paid on them, the wardrobes are usually kept by the studios. They're altered in minor ways, so that they won't be recognized, and used for other films. They are never sold.

FOR PHYLLIS DILLER, comedienne

Why haven't you written your autobiography, along with the trend to bare all? —G.D., Kent, Lansing, Mich.

● Twenty years ago, Alex Haley wrote my biography for Prentice-Hall. They accepted it, a chapter at a time, as he wrote it. When it was finished, they asked him for a rewrite, which he supplied. They then rejected it and asked for their advance money back. In the meantime, Alex made history with Malcolm X and Roots. Doubleday is interested in my story, and we are currently negotiating.

FOR MILBOURNE CHRISTOPHER, magician and author of Search for the Soul

What has been your most difficult feat? —G.B., Pomona, Calif.

● Making a live elephant disappear. What I found hard to take was the fact that although the elephant vanished, his breath did not. I had trouble continuing with my act because of the foul odor. The elephant's lunch, before he came on stage, was a mixture of rye and onions (said to be nutritious). Need I say more?

PRO Carol C. Parr, Executive Director, Women's Equity Action League Fund

Throughout our history, American women have served shoulder-to-shoulder with men in combat zones. In today's era of nuclear weapons, which require brains more than brawn, Americans should be assigned to combat and other essential military duties on the basis of their skills and abilities to meet relevant physical, mental and psychological standards. Assigning only men to combat sets up a double standard that places higher value on the lives of women than men. The result is a large-scale protection racket, with all men required to be "protectors" and all women paying a high price for the dubious privilege of being "protected."

PRO AND CON

Should Women Be Given Combat Duty?

CON Martin Blinkin, Senior Fellow, Brookings Institution

Social arguments aside, current restrictions on females in ground combat should not be lifted. For both cultural and biological reasons, the majority of women possess neither the physical attributes nor the aptitude for ground combat duty. Moreover, the success of a combat unit depends on its individual members and on its group spirit and discipline. No one knows what would happen to military effectiveness if women — even small numbers of them — were introduced into organizations whose fighting ability still depends on machismo. To put women into combat units before this question is answered could court undue risks to U.S. national security interests.

The voice on the other end of the telephone purrs with confidence and presumption.

"Hello, I'm calling about Bo Derek. Can you help me?"

"Well, that depends."

"I represent a hair care and cosmetic firm, and we're sending out a series of press releases about corn-rowed hair and how to care for it, and we'd like to come to some kind of agreement with you regarding use of pictures of Bo Derek."

"No way. Bo doesn't do endorsements of any kind," says Stanford Blum, 39, emphatically as he shuts off his squawk box, makes the thumbs-down sign toward his phone and mutters with a combination of delight and boredom, "All day long, that phone never stops; everyone wants to cash in on Bo Derek."

But Blum, a promotion and poster king who has handled the super sell for Rocky and Star Wars, is the only man, outside of Derek's husband, John, to get in on the latest phenomenon — the rise of Bo Derek from obscure California dreamer to million-dollar baby and the country's latest sex symbol.

Many sex symbols are carefully manufactured and prepackaged before

BO DEREK

The Selling of a Sex Symbol their exposure to the public. Not so Bo. When someone suggested that she try out for the role of a perfect "10" (if beauty is judged on a scale of one to 10) in the movie thus named, her husband was reluctant about her doing so. And Bo herself admits that life was perfectly happy before her sex-symbol days.

"We're not doing this for the money," she says. "I don't even need to work. I grew up in California, and I'm much more comfortable in the water and on the beach. I always was a tomboy and thought driving around on motorcycles was the greatest thrill. Sometimes I feel awkward in fancy situations."

Yet, once Bo had secured the part in "10," Derek jumped in with all his skill to make Bo the best "10" ever. It was his idea to have her wear her hair in corn-rows. He bought the beads and even designated where the hair should be braided. "I thought if Bo played the part with long blond hair, she'd be like any other pretty girl on the beach. I've always liked her hair wet, and I wanted something sort of sea goddessy."

Now that public demand is hot, Derek — and Blum — are being extremely careful about what they will and won't let Bo do. They don't want her to be another Farrah Fawcett. "A car manufacturer called the other day," smiles Blum, his blue eyes sparkling with the thrill of conquest, "they wanted two hours of Bo's time — she's supposed to go to Reno and unveil some new car. That's it — no endorsement, no speech, no commercials. Two hours of her time for $100,000. We're at least considering this one."

The deals that Blum and the Dereks won't begin to consider include offers for Bo Derek dolls, pinball machines, cosmetics, television commercials, spokeswoman gigs of any kind and the usual frisbees and T-shirts that are offered to a pretty face that demonstrates some selling ability in the American marketplace. "Bo won't just sell out her name," says Blum.

So far, the only commitment Derek has made, outside of her poster deal, is for a line of blue jeans to be named Bo Jeans, which will be designed by Bo and John. "She has certain specific ideas about fit and styling that are very important to her," says Blum; "she's going to be involved 100 percent."

She's also going to collect a large percentage. Derek has insisted on a partnership in her merchandising ventures, and so, unlike the average poster pin-up queen who gets two or three cents on each poster sold, Bo will be splitting the profits with Blum 50-50 and expects to sions for the different tastes of the marketplace.

Two of the posters show Bo in a rather similar situation: wearing a wet man-size T-shirt. One is a little more revealing than the other and gets the "X"-rating. A picture with the now-famous corn-rowed hairstyle is the "PG" version. The "R" version has already sold more than one million copies; the other two combined have sold more half a million. Blum expects Bo to outsell Farrah, who moved five million of her posters before dying poster death after she left Charlie's Angels.

The whole experience has been amazing for the 23-year-old Bo, who grew up as simply Mary Cathleen Collins, a girl who dreamed of being a movie star but couldn't even get into modeling because she was shy and overweight. At 16, she was discovered by Derek, who cast her in the never-released film And Once Upon a Time. John soon became smitten with the young girl and left his wife, actress Linda Evans (he had been married previously to French starlet Patti Behrs, and to Ursula Andress), to live with Bo in Europe — where she took the stage name Bo Shane. They were married in 1977. There are those who claim that Derek runs her life, that she's just a puppet under his control.

"John doesn't pull strings," Bo protests. "I don't do anything I don't want to. We're in this together. We're in love."

Both Dereks are critical of the notion that there is such a thing as a perfect "10." "Playing a 10 is ridiculous," explains John. "I mean, there is just no such thing. It was a very difficult situation to be in." And Bo adds, "John and I seem to be the only ones who know there's no such thing as a real 10."

The couple just finished shooting Bo's second movie, A Change of Season with Shirley MacLaine and Anthony Hopkins in Vermont (Bo's per-picture rate has escalated from $35,000 to one million dollars), and have returned to their beach-side California apartment. There, they will sort through the various offers in both merchandise and films and try to decide which projects will help Bo make the transition from today's hot sex symbol to tomorrow's respected actress.

And if a year from now you can't quite remember just who Bo Derek was? Well, not to worry. She'll just hop on her motorcycle and laugh all the way to the bank. FW take home "somewhere in six figures."

The photos of Bo for the posters were taken by John — in fact, he's the only one allowed to take professional photographs of her (he shot the 12-page photo portfolio of Bo in the March Playboy).

After all the pictures were in, Blum and Derek picked what they thought would appeal to a wide variety of buyers — the three selections were made not because they were three oh-so-gorgeous pictures of Bo, but, because this way, they could put out "X," "R," and "PG"-rated ver-

Sum of the people. Time for America's biggest peacetime adventure, one that enlists everybody—the 1980 census. This billion-dollar tally is expected to total some 222 million Americans as of Tuesday, the official “Census Day” (that’s up a guesstimated 9 percent from 1970). Incredible amounts of data will flesh out America’s self-portrait—details on our families, homes, earnings, energy use, and more. One thing not being inventoried by the census is energy supplies, a pity since people need to be alerted that presently proven U.S. oil and gas reserves won’t last much past the next census 10 years hence at the rate we’re using them up today. America needs to do something about that...fast!

Fueling all the people. How can we head off gas lines... layoffs... soaring inflation... the energy pains we felt in the '70s? Conservation will help, stretching supplies while we find more oil and gas in the U.S. and develop more of our coal and nuclear potential. Solar may be ready for the big jobs, like generating electricity, after the turn of the century, and fusion...well, maybe one day. But let's not neglect conventional energy resources until we know these newcomers can work effectively.

Buy the numbers. Liquid synthetic fuels, too, will have their place, especially to supplement conventional petroleum in transportation and fueling boilers. It's expensive, but fortunately synfuels can be made from hydrocarbons we have plenty of. Like coal, of which the U.S. has about a third of the world's supply—the equivalent of about one trillion barrels of oil. Or like oil shale, rocky deposits with more energy potential than our oil and gas reserves put together. More good news for North America—Canada's huge deposits of goeey tar sands may contain as much oil as in the reserves of the entire free world.

Coming up short? “You can’t wave a wand and, a decade later, have a massive new industry,” says Rep. David A. Stockman. To replace just a small fraction of America’s oil-consumption will mean building dozens of billion-dollar-plus synfuel plants—providing the environmental permits are forthcoming. And while progress needs to be made, be wary of crash programs that get us locked into untested technologies—tomorrow’s “white elephants,” as the Federation of American Scientists puts it.

It figures. Without government arm-twisting, oil companies have already spent hundreds of millions of dollars in competitive synfuel research. Mobil is in the forefront in expertise—with award-winning coal researchers, adaptable petroleum technologies, and a unique process to turn coal-derived methanol into high-octane gasoline. And in resources—land rich in coal, oil shale, and tar sands. Count on us to make the most of them.

It's a fact: Mobil has been selected by the New Zealand government to build the world's first commercial-scale, modern-technology plant to make high-octane gasoline from natural gas.

The Sweet Success of Sugar Ray Leonard

By Barry Wilner

Leonard (left) clowns with Muhammad Ali. Can Sugar fill the void?

The Greatest is gone. Since Muhammad Ali retired as heavyweight champ last year (and it seems he may really mean it this time, folks) boxing has retreated into a state of chaos: Leon Spinks, Ken Norton, John Tate, Larry Holmes; the crown has changed hands more frequently than the government of a Latin American country. The prophet of pugilism has departed. Boxing needs a new Ali.

Enter Sugar Ray Leonard.

He's only a welterweight, and maybe he can't write poetry or fill a reporter's notebook with nonstop anecdote and wit, but, man, can he fight. In fact, Leonard, 23, boxes like a young Ali. Pop. Snap. Glide. Snap. Pop. Pop. Boom Boom Boom. The sudden flurry of combinations comes so quickly that even the slow-motion replay can miss it.

But most importantly for the sport, Leonard has kept all the fans that Muhammad Ali and Rocky Balboa have brought to boxing—and added plenty more.

“People like him and root for him and want to see him,” says promoter Bob Arum. “Ray’s the hottest commodity in boxing right now.”

Believe it. Sugar Ray has almost singlehandedly established the lighter weight divisions as moneymakers. When Leonard took the WBC welterweight title last Nov. 30, stopping former champ Wilfred Benitez six seconds from the final bell, he pocketed $1.5 million—the biggest purse ever for a fighter who weighs less than a heavyweight. Benitez took home $1 million—the second-biggest ever. (And Ray should earn a few more dollars from his first title defense, Monday, March 31, against Dave Green.)

There have always been great fighters in the lower weight classes, but, until recently, television didn't seem to notice. All that is changing, though, partly because Ali took most of the glamour from the heavyweight division, but mainly because many of the top boxers—such as former lightweight champion Roberto Duran of Panama, now a welterweight and often rated the best fighter in the world, regardless of weight—are in other divisions.

The leader, of course, is Leonard, the 1976 Olympic gold medalist whom America instantly fell in love with back in Montreal. He wore red-white-and-blue tassels and his girlfriend's picture taped to his shoe. He bobbed, he weaved, he danced—and he made his opponents look like helpless chumps.

“Ray projects that ingredient of charisma that only special fighters seem to have,” says Angelo Dundee, Leonard's trainer, who knows all about special fighters, having trained Ali as well. “He doesn't have it to the point of Muhammad, but he lights up the ring with electricity.”

Wherever Sugar goes, people follow, hoping to be touched by the electricity, the magic he generates. Record fight crowds in Baltimore, Hartford, Washington D.C., Portland, Maine—19,743 showed up to see him fight in Landover, Md. “All the extra pressure was put on me,” Leonard says in retrospect. “I really was pleased I had been accepted by the public, but it was still up to me to execute, to make things happen.”

But if Sugar Ray has been good to boxing, boxing has been more than kind in return. It's estimated he's already made more than $4 million in the ring—after only 26 pro bouts and slightly more than three years as a professional. “The only reason I fight is because it's big bucks,” he has said. “What I'm getting paid is frightening.”

Ray first got into boxing when he was 13, in his hometown—Palmer Park, Md. In 1973 he won the National Golden Gloves 132-pound crown. The next year, Ray became the national AAU champ and, in 1975, he won a gold medal in the Pan American Games. The next step was, naturally, the Olympics.

“The gold medal was the ultimate goal,” says Leonard. “There was a great sense of accomplishment, for myself and for my country.”

New Hope, a New Chance For Leukemia Victims

The word leukemia used to be synonymous with dying. But at hospitals like California's City of Hope, bone marrow transplants are giving some leukemia victims new cause for optimism.

By Isobel Silden

Last year, roughly one in 10,000 Americans learned that he or she had leukemia, a disease of the body's cell-making system. Most forms of this disease are characterized by abnormally high white-blood cell counts, and patients do not generally recover. But there's more and more hope for leukemia victims. A certain number of leukemia patients are now able to be helped with bone marrow transplantations (white blood cells are produced in the bone marrow as well as lymph glands), which involve the replacement of diseased bone marrow with healthy marrow.

Before this procedure can be done, however, doctors must find the right donor. In almost all successful cases the bone-marrow donor is a brother or sister of the patient. (In rare cases, a transplant from a nonsibling donor has been successful.) A series of tests is done to determine if the patient will be able to accept the transplants.

City of Hope National Medical Center in Duarte, Calif., 30 miles northeast of Los Angeles, is one of seven facilities successfully conducting bone marrow transplants. During the three years the program has been in operation there, 22 people — two children now 13 and 15, and 20 men and women, ranging in age from 17 to 41, have been treated successfully. Dr. Karl-Georg Blume, Director of Hematology and Bone Marrow Transplantation at City of Hope, prefers to say that they are now "disease-free, in remission" rather than cured. Dr. Blume, who was born and educated in Germany, joined the staff of City of Hope in 1975.

Bone marrow transplants are also being done at the University of California at Los Angeles; the University of Washington in Seattle; Johns Hopkins Medical Center in Baltimore; the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis; Memorial-Sloan Kettering, New York City, and Children's Hospital, Boston. They are being done successfully as well at hospitals in Australia, England, Switzerland, France and The Netherlands.

The pioneer in the field of bone marrow transplantations is Dr. Donnell Thomas, an oncologist (a cancer specialist) at the University of Washington. He and a group of researchers did the first successful transplant more than 10 years ago in Seattle. Cancer researchers generally work independently but frequently rely on each other for information.

Adults are most susceptible to the type of leukemia that involves the blood cells manufactured by the bone marrow — this is referred to as myelogenous leukemia. (Children are more susceptible to acute lymphoblastic leukemia, which involves cells produced by the lymph glands.) The early symptoms for both include fatigue, lethargy, a sense of "not feeling well," a cold that won't go away, susceptibility to infection, anemia, weakness and bleeding of the gums or nose.

If a leukemia patient is deemed a good candidate for bone marrow transplantation, treatment begins on the day of admission, with the patient getting massive doses of chemotherapy — a combination of various drugs. At the same time, he is given radiation — heavy X-ray treatments — to destroy all the leukemic bone marrow.

At the end of one week of this preparation, the bone marrow transplant takes place. The marrow is obtained from the donor, using a large needle that draws off the marrow from the back of the pelvic bone area. It takes two to three hours, with the donor given either a spinal or general anesthesia. There is no pain involved during the actual removal of the marrow. The patient then receives the marrow through the veins, just like a blood transfusion. The donor's system replaces its own bone marrow in one to two weeks, and there is a four-day hospital stay involved. The leukemia patient's total stay is about six weeks. Blood cell counts indicate if the procedure has been successful.

Other support systems during the hospital stay include a low-bacteria diet, which prohibits soil-grown foods like fresh salads. Medication is given to prevent infection, as are additions of healthy white blood cells donated by family members or anyone else with a compatible blood type. The patient stays in "protective isolation" to avoid infection but visitors are permitted. They must first wash their hands carefully and then put on a cap and gown.

Although the leukemia patient's hair does fall out during the week of massive radiation and chemotherapy, it will grow back in several weeks. Patients have a small weight loss during the first six months after their transplants but then return to normal. They suffer no "hang-over" from all the medication they are given during their hospital stay, and it takes about six months to resume normal life. But tragically, the patients will become permanently sterile from the radiation treatment.

Bone marrow transplantations are not for everyone, nor are they a cure-all. All transplants are not successful because the patient, despite the highly specialized medical and nursing care, may sustain infections or suffer a recurrence of leukemia. Poor-risk patients include those who have infections, bleeding and organ involvement with leukemia. "But for those who survive the first two years, there is an excellent chance for long-term survival," reports Dr. Blume.

The cost involved in bone marrow transplantations is staggering. A transplant costs at least $50,000 or more. But at City of Hope the patient receives treatment at no cost. All money comes from donations.

During 1979 Dr. Blume and his staff did transplants on 25 patients, and this year funds have been allocated for a total of 30 patients. At City of Hope, as with the other facilities doing this procedure, all patients must be referred by their own physicians.

A crashing drop back to reality followed his rise to Olympian heights. Sugar Ray wasn't interested in turning pro. He had hurt his hands en route to the gold medal and "was ready to try something different. People thought I was kidding, but I was sincere about no more fighting."

But then both of Ray's parents became sick and had to quit their jobs. And if that wasn't enough, he also had to worry about his fiancée, Juanita, and his young son, Ray Charles Jr. (Ray and Juanita eventually married early this year.) "I had to do something," he says. "I had made a name for myself and felt I should use it." He decided the best way to help them was to get back in the ring, where he could quickly earn big money.

Luckily, when it came to commercial appeal, Sugar Ray was the man, right from the start. CBS televised Leonard's pro debut, a six-round decision over Luis Vega from which Leonard made $40,000. (In their first fights, most guys would settle for $100 and maybe someone to wash and press their trunks.) ABC then grabbed Leonard away with two deals, worth a combined $1.4 million.

Leonard's professional career has been carefully orchestrated by his handlers: Mike Trainer, the attorney who decided to incorporate Leonard; Dundee, perhaps the premier handler of fighters today; and Dave Jacobs, the man who found Leonard when he was a scrawny little teen-ager and taught him how to box. These guys know their boxing and Leonard listened to them.

Instead of a quick shot at the title, for which he wasn't ready, Leonard progressed through the ranks, fighting opponents hand-picked by Dundee, opponents who would make sure

Leonard improved. As Jacobs says, "One of the great things about Ray is he always improves. He learns from every fight, from every workout."

Finally, after handling everything thrown at him, the chance for the title came — against Benitez.

The Benitez fight followed the pattern of Leonard's professional career. He started off quickly and dominated the fight early on. Then Benitez came on and frustrated Sugar Ray, before Leonard found his confidence and the way through his opponent's defenses.

"The Benitez fight was my toughest," says Leonard. "This guy was a champion at 17, and he hit me with some dynamite shots." But as Sugar Ray once noted, "When a guy tags me with a shot that could put a scar on my face, I get angry. Then — boom! A change happens inside me that I can't explain. I want to make his head go flying off his shoulders. Between rounds I may lose that hate. But it can come back at any time. And when it does, only the bell can save him."

The next opponent (providing he successfully defends his title Monday night, and he should) could be Duran. The momentum has been steadily building to a Leonard-Duran match up, which would be one of the biggest financial fights of all time — Ali bouts included. But whether Leonard is truly ready for the hard-hitting Duran is another question.

"You have to keep your perspective and sometimes that's hard," Leonard says. "At times I've found my view getting distorted. But I've always believed in myself. If I don't, who will? That's a slogan that has carried me to majestic heights. I never doubt myself."

Says Dundee: "Don't use good to describe this kid. Use great." FW

Triumph for Tar Watchers!

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined

Triumph rocks yesterday's "low tars"— offers great taste at 3 mg.

Yesterday's "low tars" are sadly out-of-date. Not just by a little. A lot.

The reason is simple.

Today's low tar, Triumph, offers remarkable taste at only 3mg tar. And no matter how you figure it, that's a lot less tar than Merit at 8—Salem Lights at 12—or Marlboro Lights at 12.

And it's a lot more taste than Carlton at 1
(which doesn't even claim to have taste).

GETTING THE DROP

We hear about the dropout,
Whom we would discipline,
But, really, is the dropout
As bad as the drop-in?

The drop-in is the sudden
And uninvited guest
Who presses on the doorbell
When you would try to rest,
Who gets the sudden notion
And then is on the way,
No matter if you're busy,
At any time of day.

You answer not the doorbell
Or try some other dodge.
The drop-in knows you're there, though—

Do Your Dreams Change Your Life?

Many people have fascinating dreams, and they are frustrated when their dreams are fragmented upon awakening. But there's a way to remember them.

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Some people hate to get up in the morning, even though they've had plenty of sleep, and it's a beautiful day.
2. Some of our dreams may be thoughts sent by someone else.
3. Many people who have a fascinating dream life — involving a wide variety of intriguing situations and experiences — feel frustrated because they have difficulty remembering a dream and can recall but a few tantalizing fragments upon awakening.
4. Dreams can have a strong influence on an individual's life situation and general outlook on the world.
5. People who talk in their sleep don't remember their dreams.
6. Nightmares rank among the most fearsome experiences that terrify human beings — engendering a feeling of helplessness and vulnerability in the face of impending doom. Nevertheless, nightmares can be beneficial and may sometimes serve a useful purpose.

ANSWERS

1. True. In many cases, it's because the life the person leads while asleep and dreaming is much more intriguing than the life he leads while he's awake. Studies at the Institute of Psychology, University of Oslo, have shown that not infrequently a person will experience far more excitement, romance and adventure when sleep raises the curtain of dreams than ever occurs after he awakens. Also, it is pointed out that dreams can provide instant fulfillment of wishes and desires — whereas in the world of reality this usually requires hard work and perseverance.
2. True. A study conducted by a team of University of California researchers demonstrated that this phenomenon can occur when one person unconsciously broadcasts his thoughts and emotions, and they are received through mental telepathy in the form of dreams by sleeping persons. Tests are also cited showing weather conditions — such as the atmospheric ions occurring during a storm — "can enhance telepathic performance in subjects already having telepathic ability." The psychodynamics of the "telepathic dream" also have been demonstrated by laboratory tests in other studies. These findings suggest a tailor-made alibi for the husband who may feel a twinge of guilt for recurring dreams involving other women. Could it be that they emanate from the secret admirer who lives down the block?

3. True. And there is something they can do about it, as shown by dream studies conducted by the Association for Research and Enlightenment (Va.), which recorded the dream recall of 400 subjects for 28 consecutive days. Results: "It was found that when a subject had meditated the day before, there was significantly greater dream recall on the following morning." And similar studies by a team of investigators at the University of Cape Town showed that there was a much higher recall rate and a greater amount of detailed content in the dreams of those who meditated.

4. True. In a University of Toronto study of the influence of dreams, in-depth interviews of 40 adults reported personal changes in themselves, or their life situation, as having been definitely related to, or influenced by, their use of dreams. Findings: "87 percent of the subjects perceived the essence of their dream-change as transforming their interior world of values and attitudes and improving psychological functioning. Forty percent regarded changes in their spiritual outlook as preeminent. One of the various observations made regarding the sources of help utilized by the dream changers is that most of them (85 percent) shared their dream experience with at least one other person before instituting their personal change." A further observation: The presence of "stress" or "strong desire for insight" preceded the change — catalyzing dream experience for 50 percent of the subjects.

5. False. Findings of Columbia University dream studies investigating the activity of the speech apparatus during sleep, showed that sleep talkers have a definite edge when it comes to dream recall.

6. True. Findings of studies strongly suggest that nightmares often serve as a valuable escape valve for the release of nervous tensions resulting from pent-up anxieties, which have been bottled up and denied expression on a conscious level. In his definitive treatise on Nightmares and Human Conflict, Harvard Medical School psychiatrist John E. Mack defines the nightmare "as a type of severe anxiety dream in which the level of anxiety reaches overwhelming proportions." And he further concludes that it is possible, were it not for the nightmare, the individual might be even more burdened with anxiety during the daytime, perhaps even unable to function effectively.

The Surprising New Apple Diet.

Actress Barbara Rush, who has been an apple fan as long as she can remember, says when she needs to lose a few pounds fast, she just gets a good supply of apples and starts from there.

And you couldn't find a more beautiful example of the value of this sensible approach to keeping trim and fit.

"Apples can make a diet fun," Barbara says. "Most diets bore you to death after the first couple of days. But apples stay interesting. And they make marvelous between-meal snacks! They're sweet, crunchy, something you can sink your teeth into."

Three Apples a Day

Actually, there are many delicious ways to build your diet around apples, and doctors approve. Here's one suggestion that's simplicity itself:

Drink a glass of water and eat an apple before lunch and dinner. Then eat only half-portions of a nutritionally well-balanced meal. The before-meal apple makes you feel less hungry, so eating less is no problem. And have another apple each day as a snack.

In fact, nutritionists praise apples as snacks because they're comparatively low in calories (about 80 per average apple),

Washington Apple Diet
BREAKFAST	LUNCH	DINNER	SNACK
4 oz. orange juice or 1/2 grapefruit	Select one:	4 oz. poultry, fish or beef	Select one:
Select one:	2 oz. fish or poultry	Vegetable or potato	Fresh apple
1 egg, any style	2 oz. cheese	8 oz. skim milk	Applesauce
1 oz. cereal with skim milk	2 eggs, any style	Fresh apple	Baked apple with sugar substitute
1 cup lowfat yogurt	Dark green leafy or orange vegetable
1 slice whole-wheat toast, pat margarine	8 oz. skim milk
Coffee or tea	Fresh apple
			(1200 calories/day)

they're filling, and they're well endowed with vitamins and minerals.

And apples are among the most convenient convenience foods you can find: easy to pick up and pleasant to hold in your hand.

It Works and It's Easy

An apple diet is not only easy to take and effective. Barbara Rush points out another plus:

It gives the creative cook plenty of leeway.

"I keep finding new things you can do with apples, from appetizers to dessert," she says.

As with any diet, of course, you should first consult your doctor, and get plenty of exercise.

"Don't neglect exercise," advises Barbara. "You need it during the diet to keep muscles from getting flabby, and afterwards too, to maintain weight loss."

"Don't think you should avoid exercise because it will make you hungrier! It will simply make you enjoy your apples more!"

Here in Washington State, where the most enjoyable apples in the world are grown, we say amen. So we're especially pleased to bring you this delicious, nutritious new Apple Diet.

Not only that, we've put together a folder of recipe ideas so you can join Barbara in creative apple cookery.

Fresh Apples Any Time

Start your Washington Apple Diet right now and you'll be eating apples with all their tangy right-off-the-tree freshness. That's because of a special storage system that preserves autumn's flavor and crispness all through the year.

Diet Pointers

To get you started, here are a couple of pointers:

- ☐ Try adding a thin-sliced unpeeled Red Delicious apple to a green salad with a lemon-juice dressing.
- ☐ Make a quick-to-fix applesauce to go with meat or as dessert: grated Washington State Golden Delicious apples, a little lemon juice, cinnamon or nutmeg.

Remember, the best apples are from Washington State. Red Delicious or Golden Delicious, crisp, juicy and full of natural sweetness and tangy flavor.

CRAFTS

Felt Fantastics

Make a clown for a young one with a myriad of colorful felt circles stacked and strung.

By Rosalyn Abrevaya

Felt is fabulous! It's easy to work with, it comes in wonderful colors, and it can be glued, stapled or stitched with ease. Felt can be purchased in pieces as small as 9 by 12 inches or by the yard in 72-inch widths.

With felt and scissors you can make a cuddly clown, a basketful of flowers to hang on the wall or curtains that need no sewing. Party-time noisemakers are made with felt covered baby-jar lids. So are summer sandals that have no soles.

By using a piece of freezer wrap paper with the felt, it is possible to cut it into flowers, intricate designs and even tiny letters without the necessity of drawing on the fabric. The felt cutouts can be used to decorate clothing, to individualize stationery or to create attractive hangings.

To make a soft and floppy clown for a small child, many colorful felt circles are stacked and strung together. The head is a nylon-covered foam ball. For a softer version, a sock stuffed with cut-up panty hose is used. The clown's hands, feet and features are all made of felt scraps.

In an afternoon, lengths of felt by the yard can be turned into unusual draperies or curtains. A pair of scissors is the only tool you'll need. Circles, diamonds or ovals are cut from the felt to give it a light and airy look. Slits cut near the top edge allow for the curtain rod. No hemming or edge stitching is needed.

A basketful of brilliantly colored flowers to brighten any corner is made entirely of felt cutouts. The woven basket, cut from two pieces of construction paper, is curved slightly outward to give it further dimension and realism. The flowers, too, are given dimension by layering, and there's not a stitch of sewing involved. The entire bouquet, secured to a fabric background, can be made in an evening.

For a cool summer underfoot this year, make a pair of bottomless sandals. A strip of grosgrain ribbon and a length of elastic form the toppers, and with snap-on felt cutouts they can be changed in a moment from plain to fanciful.

There's a lot that can be done with felt, and FAMILY WEEKLY's booklet, "Felt Fantastics," shows you how. Complete instructions along with full-sized patterns are included, as well as photographs and drawings of the projects mentioned.

Now the gentleness of Rave® Soft Perm comes in Extra Curly, too

Something new has happened to softness. A choice. Now Rave®, the original soft perm, comes in Extra Curly, too. A perm with all the gentleness Rave is known for. And the soft, soft curls you have hoped for.

Which Rave will give me the soft look I want?

Regular Rave is for waves, curls, and body. New Extra Curly Rave® is for the curlier kind of curls you see here. Either way, you'll have just the soft look you want. At long last.

Still no ammonia, no odor, and no frizz?

Of course. That is the Rave patented formula. And that is what makes Regular Rave and new Extra Curly—the gentle soft perms.

Is Rave gentle enough for color-treated hair, too?

Traditional Home Perm

Rave Soft Perm

Yes. We tested Rave Soft Perm against a traditional home perm on bleached hair. Look at the difference. Rave left the hair softer, silkier, bouncier. (Of course, excessively damaged hair should not be permed.)

Now you can have the soft look you want, because now you have the choice of soft perms you want. With the gentle soft perms. Called Rave®.

Amazony is the Trade Mark Registered U.S. Patent Office for our Meyer Z-52 Zoysia Grass

GRASS SEED WILL NEVER GROW A LAWN LIKE THIS—DROUGHT & WEAR RESISTANT! Amazony lawns stay green right thru scorching heat and drought!

FREE PLUGS
with every order

Amazony withstands active kids and cook-outs. Gives you time to relax, since it needs little water and cuts mowing two-thirds.

Lady Plugs In Zoysia Grass Saves Time, Work & Money

FREE! UP TO 200 AMAZOY PLUGS DURING SPECIAL INTRODUCTORY OFFER

By Jack T. Johnson, Agronomist

Every year I see people pour more and more money into their lawns. They dig, fertilize and lime. They rake it all in. They scatter their seed and roll and water it.

Birds love it! Seeds which aren't washed away by rain give them a feast. But some seed grows, and soon it's time to weed, water and mow, mow...until summer comes to burn the lawn into hay, or crabgrass and diseases infest it.

That's what happens to ordinary grass, but not to Amazony Zoysia.

"MOWED IT 2 TIMES," WRITES WOMAN

For example, Mrs. M. R. Mitter writes me how her lawn "...is the envy of all who see it. When everybody's lawns around here are brown from drought ours just stays as green as ever. I've never watered it, only when I put the plugs in...Last summer we had it mowed (2) times. Another thing, we never have to pull any weeds—it's just wonderful!"

And from Iowa came word that the state's largest Men's Garden Club picked a Zoysia lawn as the "top lawn—nearly perfect" in its area. Yet this lawn had been watered only once all summer up to August!

CHOKES OUT CRABGRASS

Thick, rich, luxurious, established Amazony grows into a carpet of grass that chokes out crabgrass and weeds all summer long.

For Slopes, Play Areas, Bare Spots
End erosion of slopes with Amazony. Perfect answer for hard-to-cover spots, play-worn areas.

NO NEED TO RIP OUT PRESENT GRASS—PLUG AMAZOY INTO OLD LAWN, NEW GROUND OR NURSERY AREA

Just set Amazony plugs into holes in ground like a cork in a bottle. Plant 1 foot apart, checkerboard style.

When planted in existing lawn areas plugs will spread to drive out old, unwanted growth, including weeds—from part shade to full sun. Goes off its green color after killing frosts. Begins regaining its green color at the time when the temperature in the spring is consistently warm. This, of course, varies with climate. Easy planting instructions with order.

Your Own Supply of Plug Transplants

Established Amazony gives you Zoysia plugs to plant in other areas as desired!

DON'T BE MISLED!
THERE IS ONLY ONE AMAZOY

Amazony plugs are taken from genuine Z-52 Meyer Zoysia... guaranteed winter-hardened for 3 full years under the supervision of trained agronomists. Over a HALF-BILLION plugs sold! So don't take chances with inferior plugs. Accept No Substitute for Amazony Zoysia! If it isn't Amazony, you're not getting the plugs that made Zoysia famous.

PATENTED STEP-ON PLUGGER IS...

FREE WITH ORDERS OF 600 PLUGS OR MORE
Amazony exclusive! No one else can offer you this patented 2-way plugger. Saves bending, time, work. Light, rugged, invaluable for transplanting. Cuts away competing growth as it digs plug holes.

Cuts Your Work, Saves You Money
Your deep-rooted, established Amazony lawn saves you time and money in many ways. It never needs replacement...ends re-seeding forever. Fertilizing and watering (water costs money, too) are rarely if ever needed. It ends the need for crabgrass killers permanently. It cuts pushing a noisy mower in the blistering sun by 1/3.

NO SEED, NO SOD!

There's no seed that produces winter-hardy Meyer Zoysia. Sod of ordinary grass brings with it the problems of seed: like weeds, diseases, burning out, other ills. Save time, work, money. Plug in Amazony.

Meyer Z-52 Zoysia Grass was perfected by U.S. Govt., released in cooperation with U.S. Golf Assoc. as a superior grass.

Order guaranteed Amazony now, get your bonus plugs FREE. Your order will be delivered at earliest correct time for planting in your area.

We ship all orders the same day grass is taken from the soil, shipping/handling charge collect via most economical means.

Every Plug Guaranteed to Grow In Your Area • In Your Soil

- AMAZOY WON'T WINTER KILL—has survived temperatures 30° below zero!
- AMAZOY WON'T HEAT KILL—when other grasses burn out, Amazony remains green and lovely!

Plug Amazony into an entire lawn or problem areas. Plug it into poor soil, "builders soil", clay or even salty, sandy beach areas. I guarantee every plug, regardless. Any plug failing to grow in 45 days replaced FREE. Since we're hardly in business for the fun of it, you know we're 100% sure of our product!

Fever: Should You Sweat It Out?

By Sue Berkman

The early Greeks had a way to deal with fever: They tied one end of a long thread to the patient and the other end to a stone pillar in their private place of worship. The fever, they believed, would be transferred to the pillar.

Today, of course, we respond to fever differently. We know that our natural heat control system — located in the hypothalamus, a tiny section at the base of the brain — is normally set at 98.6 degrees Fahrenheit, give or take a degree or two. This thermostat can sometimes go awry, resulting in a rise in body temperature, or what is commonly called fever.

A fever may be only a short occurrence, the result of strenuous exercise or a bad sunburn. Most often, however, it is caused by an infectious bacteria or virus. The white blood cells are triggered to attack the invaders, releasing a protein called pyrogen, and when pyrogen reaches the brain, the hypothalamus makes the body respond as if it were cold: Blood vessels near the skin close off to prevent the escape of body heat, and muscles flex to warm the body, causing shivers. This kind of fever can last for several days or more.

Yet, for all our knowledge about how a fever happens, the why of fever still remains a mystery. The prevailing medical thought is that fever is a harmful by-product of infection and that a person's body temperature should be brought back to normal as speedily as possible.

Since fever occurs when the hypothalamus is out of adjustment, the key is artificially lowering the body temperature. This is readily done with drugs called antipyretics — mainly aspirin and acetaminophen — which act directly on the hypothalamus. (Doctors aren't sure why this works, but it does.) Without such drugs, surface-cooling measures, such as sponging with tepid water and fanning, will only work in the short run; once they are stopped, the temperature will go up again.

If a temperature of 101 degrees persists for more than a day, if a fever of 104 degrees or more lasts for more than four hours, or if the fever patient is a child less than 4 months old, a doctor should be consulted. The cause of the fever can then be determined and treated.

Recently, however, it has been suggested that fever may actually do the body some good. Doctors Matthew Kluger and Barbara Rothenburg, physiologists from the University of Michigan Medical School, have demonstrated in tests with rabbits that the growth of invading bacteria is greatly inhibited by fever temperatures. The reason, they claim, is that with elevated temperatures, the supply of iron in the blood falls. The disease-causing bacteria need iron to multiply, and in an iron-poor medium, they simply fail to grow.

Their findings, though, remain controversial. Dr. Pascal James Imperato, chairman of the Department of Preventive Medicine and Community Health at Downstate Medical Center in Brooklyn, maintains that the invading microorganisms may eventually adapt to the fever mechanism. "These microorganisms," he states, "may indeed 'learn' to survive and multiply just as easily at a higher temperature." What's more, reports Imperato, "A prolonged fever can cause a person to become weak and emaciated and even more vulnerable to super-infection."

In children, the disadvantages of letting a fever run its course may be even greater. Dr. Sumner J. Yaffe, professor of pediatrics and pharmacology at the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine, points out that, "In very young children, the temperature center is not yet fully developed. Temperatures can shoot up into the dangerous range and, in so doing, cause convulsions."

The new line of research does provide a tantalizing hint that our bodies are more capable of self-healing than medical researchers have realized. Perhaps one day it will come to pass that the rabbit research in Michigan is applicable to man, that indeed fever brings hard times to viruses and bacteria, that it is a body's best defense. Perhaps. Meanwhile, it is still an open question. FW

A Little Treasury Of Easter Breads

By Marilyn Hansen

This year, why not start a tradition at your house or renew an old one by baking a beautiful Easter bread for your family. We have a selection from many different countries for you to choose from. One of them might be the very special touch you can add to an Easter dinner or breakfast hour.

GREEK TRINITY EASTER BREAD

- 1 cup milk
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 pkg. active dry yeast
- 1/4 cup warm water, 105°-115°F.
- 2 eggs, at room temperature
- 2 teaspoons grated lemon peel
- 2 1/2 to 3 1/4 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- 1/2 cup chopped almonds
- 1/4 cup raisins

1. Scald milk by heating in a small saucepan until a fine rim of bubbles forms around edge. Stir in sugar, salt and butter. Cool to lukewarm.
2. Dissolve yeast in warm water in large, warm bowl. Add lukewarm milk mixture, eggs, lemon peel and about 1 1/2 cups flour; beat hard until smooth.
3. Stir in enough additional flour to make a stiff dough. On a lightly floured board, knead until smooth and elastic, about 10 minutes.
4. Place in a greased bowl; turn to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.
5. Punch down dough. Knead in almonds and raisins.
6. Divide dough into 4 equal pieces. Shape 3 pieces into 3 round loaves. Arrange in greased baking sheet in the shape of a four-leaf clover.
7. Divide remaining dough into 4 pieces. Roll each out into a long rope. Twist together in pairs; pinch ends.
8. Arrange to form cross on top of clover-leaf arrangement. Cover; let rise until doubled, about 1 hour.
9. Bake at 375°F. for 25 to 30 minutes or until done. Remove from baking sheet and cool on wire rack. Makes 1 loaf

Editor's Note: This beautiful loaf is the traditional Greek bread baked for Easter, which gets its name from its shape; three loaves joined together, crowned with a cross representing the Trinity. Greek tradition is that the bread is not to be cut until the family is seated at the Easter dining table and that each person present should get one thin slice from each of the three loaves.

HOT CROSS BUNS

- 1 cup milk
- 1/4 cup butter or margarine
- 1/4 cup plus one teaspoon sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 pkg. active dry yeast
- 1/4 cup very warm (110°-115°F.) water
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 2 teaspoons grated orange rind
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 3 or 4 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- 1/2 cup raisins or currants
- 1 egg, lightly beaten
- 1/4 cup confectioners' sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 tablespoon milk

1. Heat milk until bubbles form on edge of pan. Add butter, 1/4 cup sugar and salt. Let cool to lukewarm.
2. Dissolve yeast and one teaspoon sugar in water. Stir in lukewarm milk mixture. Then add cinnamon, orange rind and 2 eggs.
3. Add 3 cups of the flour, a cup at a time, mixing well. Mix in raisins. Add enough flour to make a soft dough.
4. Place dough on a floured board and knead until satiny and elastic, about 8 minutes. Keep dough soft.
5. Place dough in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover and set aside to rise until doubled. This will take 1 to 2 hours.
6. Punch dough down and knead lightly.

- Pat dough to 3/4-inch thickness. Cut with 2 1/2-inch round biscuit cutter into 21 to 24 rounds. Place rounds in greased baking pans, about 1/2-inch apart. Let rise until double — 45 minutes to one hour — and buns are touching.
7. Just before rising time is up, preheat oven to 350°F. Bake buns 12 to 15 minutes until the tops start to brown. Brush quickly with slightly beaten egg and bake another 10 to 15 minutes. If tops brown too quickly, cover with foil.
 8. Make decorating frosting: mix confectioners' sugar, vanilla and enough milk to make a thick decorating icing. Decorate tops of cool buns with cross.

Makes 21 to 24 buns

Editor's Note: Although hot cross buns are associated with Christianity, they are filled with pagan symbolism. The cross represented the four quarters of the moon. It was the English who adopted hot cross buns for Good Friday in the early days of the Christian Church.

ITALIAN EASTER BREAD

- 2 1/4 to 3 1/4 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 pkg. active dry yeast
- 3/4 cup milk
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 eggs (at room temperature)
- 1/2 cup mixed candied fruits
- 1/4 cup chopped blanched almonds
- 1/2 teaspoon anise seed
- Confectioners' sugar frosting
- Mixed candied fruits and colored sprinkles

1. In a large bowl, thoroughly mix 1 cup flour, sugar, salt and undissolved active dry yeast.

lightly floured board. Knead in fruit mixture.

7. Divide dough in half. Roll each piece of dough into a 24-inch rope. Twist ropes together loosely and form into a ring on a greased baking sheet. Brush with melted margarine. Place 5 colored raw eggs into spaces in the twist.

8. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour. Bake at 350°F. about 30 to 35 minutes, or until done. Remove from baking sheet and cool on wire rack.

9. Frost with confectioners' sugar frosting. Decorate with candied fruits or sprinkles. Makes 1 ring

- 4 1/4 to 4 3/4 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1 1/2 teaspoons grated lemon peel
- 2 pkgs. active dry yeast
- 3/4 cup milk
- 1/2 cup water
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 eggs (at room temperature)
- 1/2 cup chopped almonds
- 1/2 cup seedless raisins
- Confectioners' sugar frosting
- Colored sprinkles

1. In large bowl, mix 3/4 cup flour, sugar, salt, lemon peel and undissolved yeast.
2. Heat milk, water and margarine until very warm (120°F.-130°F.). Margarine does not need to melt.
3. Gradually add to dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add eggs and 1/2 cup flour; beat at high speed 2 minutes.
4. Stir in enough additional flour to make soft dough. On lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, 8 to 10 minutes.
5. Place in greased bowl; turn to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled, about 1 hour.
6. Punch dough down. On lightly floured board, knead in almonds and raisins. Divide dough into 3 equal pieces.
7. Shape each into a ball; press into 3 greased 1-pound coffee cans. Cover; let rise until doubled, about 1 hour.
8. Bake in preheated 350°F. oven 35 to 40 minutes or until done. Remove from cans and cool on wire racks. Frost tops with confectioners' sugar frosting and decorate with sprinkles. Makes 3 cakes

Editor's Note: Czarist Russia celebrated Orthodox Easter Sunday with a great feast including the renowned bread, Kulich. The letters XU — initials meaning "Christ is Risen" — were shaped in the top of the cake.

CONFECTIONERS' SUGAR FROSTING

- 2 cups confectioners' sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 2 or 3 tablespoons milk

1. In medium bowl, blend all ingredients smoothly until of a thick but pourable consistency.
2. Use frosting to glaze tops of coffee cakes and fancy yeast breads and buns. Makes about 1 1/2 cups

Easy-Does-It Gardening in a Small Space

By Thalassa Cruso

Most moderate-sized, single-family houses are set on a small plot of land with a little front lawn, a driveway, a path to the front door and perhaps a flowering tree and a few flowers. The rest of the land lies behind the house. Here are some ideas on how best to utilize this backyard area.

• If your home has a backyard, it would be nice to add a patio — a special area for cook-outs, sunbathing and playing. There are some patios that can be easily home laid. If the patio is laid 16 inches away from the house walls, this leaves room for a small flower bed. Flowers close to the house catch the eye and are easy to care for. Annuals can be used, or if the site is sunny, made more interesting with espaliered trees. Patio blocks or bricks must be level with the soil surface. If they rise above it, they can injure toes or equipment. If they lie below the soil, they will hold water and ice. Children's play equipment should be painted a dark color and set up about 12 feet away from the east or north end of the patio. Grass gets worn around these areas. It is best to excavate the site — again two inches will do — and fill in with firbark. This will look much better and take less care. Splash pools and sandboxes, which ruin grass, should always be set on the end of the patio.

• Outdoor living demands privacy. The quick route is to have 12-foot lengths of fencing set up at right angles to each end of the terrace. If this is too expensive, use quick-growing privet. Dig a trench at each end, mix the excavated soil with an equal amount of peat moss and spread 5.10.5 fertilizer, one pound to every 25 feet, on the bare bottom of the trench. Then fill it with this enriched soil mix. Set in the privet bushes two-feet apart. Water thoroughly, feed the plants each spring, and you will get tall privacy fast.

A deciduous tree can be set out 12 feet from the western or southern end of the terrace, or retain an existing tree near this spot. Any tree in this position will throw welcome shade over the patio and house in hot weather. If the land is full of trees, which ones to save may be a hard decision to make. If you need space for flowers or vegetables or just for children to play, some should come down in the center. Leave trees along the boundary line, particularly where the line fronts on a street. If there are no trees, a spring-flowering, wide-growing tree such as a dogwood, can be planted off center 12 feet from the east or north edge of the back boundary. With the same planting technique used for the privet, it will grow fast and provide depth for a vista.

In a treeless open lot, dwarf and semi-dwarf trees could be used along the boundary lines. These grow around 10 feet tall, bear a few years after planting and give fine spring bloom. There are varieties for every climate. Apart from such trees, the side boundaries can slowly be thickened with evergreens and flowering shrubs that can be hand-pruned to any size you want. To get advice and some idea of the long-term cost of this project, consult a nurseryman in your area who advertises landscape help. Go to him on a weekday — weekends are busy times — and take along a paper plan of your lot with trees and other features marked in.

• If you want to grow vegetables and your plot gets at least six hours of full sunlight, it is simple to start a garden. But it takes daily hard work to keep the plot productive all summer. If you live in a densely populated area, some enclosure against dogs is a must. Use wire and train cucumbers or climbing beans up it. If you are near a heavily traveled road, all grass must be washed thoroughly. There is evidence that leafy greens absorb lead from car exhausts.

What grows well in a small plot? Start with the new Sugar Snap snow peas — those you eat, pod and all. These will need nylon netting, for they grow eight-feet tall. They can be planted early and will crop long and profusely. For the rest, grow loosehead lettuce, carrots, beets, Swiss chard, green beans, spring and fall turnips, tomatoes, peppers, eggplant and bush zucchini. Beware of spinach: this is not an easy crop to grow. For herbs: Parsley, basil, dill and thyme are the best. A small plot will not allow room for corn, potatoes or the spreading squashes. Other than the fence, the other necessity is a water spigot very close by. A vegetable plot should have a path through the center wide enough to take a wheelbarrow. This can be of cement blocks or asphalt roofing paper. Plenty of stakes will also be needed. A well-kept vegetable plot can be a decorative feature in a yard. It will look better and need less work if the open ground between the rows is kept mulched (covered with some organic material to keep down weeds). Grass clippings are excellent for this use, as is half-made compost. Thus, there are many options for a small back plot. With careful planning you can find a good way to make use of yours.

Bartering: Swapping to Beat Inflation

By Aaron James

Woody Allen once remarked, "In my family, the greatest sin is paying retail." If you, too, hate to buy anything unless it's a bargain, you may be interested in trying what eight million other Americans are already doing: bartering.

Bartering is exchanging one commodity for another — with no actual money involved. Needless to say, it's not a new idea. It is, in fact, the oldest form of trade and was often the way business was done when this country first began. With inflation continually rising and costs of necessities — to say nothing of luxuries — spiraling accordingly, it is becoming the newest way to stay ahead of the system.

How does bartering work in this day and age? Well, when Diana Ross and Lillian Hellman were photographed for mink coat advertisements for Blackgama, they traded their services for the product. Director Francis Ford Coppola bartered a copy of his film Godfather II for the chance to meet Fidel Castro. And business people all across the country are bartering every day to help make ends meet.

For instance, the manufacturer of a well-known line of plastic goods began his company when he was a starving unknown with a great product. To tide him over until he became a millionaire — which he did a few years later — he arranged a barter deal with a grocery and kitchenware shop in his neighborhood, swapping his plastic kitchen goods for a credit line at the food counter.

"Surprisingly enough," says Dyanne Simon, author of The Barter Book (E.P. Dutton), "very few people have complained of being cheated in their barter transactions." Here are some of the styles of bartering.

● Barter for equal time and services. This is the most common form of barter, revolving around the basic principle that all work is equal. That is to say that one hour of a lawyer's time is as valuable as one hour of an artist's time — it takes the artist the same amount of effort to paint the portrait as it takes the lawyer to settle the divorce. An artist who wanted a divorce case settled could ask the lawyer to accept a painting instead of cash.

● Barter for services against a retail or wholesale price scale. Our artist and lawyer may figure their time differently. Let's say the lawyer is paid $50 an hour, and the artist charges $500 for a completed painting that takes about a week to paint. If they decide to barter on a price scale, and the divorce settlement takes the lawyer more than 10 hours of his time, then the artist would owe a certain extra amount in dollars.

● Unequal barter based on need alone. This is one of the most essential forms of barter. Perhaps the lawyer knows that his time is worth more than some of the services he desires, but he cannot get a painting. He might then barter with someone who could provide a painting — or other services — and it would be considered a fair exchange.

● Barter for credit. The man with the plastic kitchenware is the best example.

Now, here are Dyanne Simon's "Rules for Barter."

1) If you want to swap for something, be direct. Ask!

2) Look in your neighborhood or on your company bulletin board for advertisements for barter, or you can post your own ads.

3) Be explicit about stating your expectations.

4) Arrive at a mutual understanding of what and why you are swapping. Have a mutual appreciation for the value of each other's goods and/or services.

Whom do you barter with? Well, just about everyone. Bartering works best, since it's such a personal relationship, on a one-to-one basis — doctors, lawyers, plumbers and craftspeople are perfect sources for barter.

NEW MINTING

A Miniature of The United States of America's $50 Gold Piece

SOLID 22 KT GOLD—ONLY $50

Actual Size

An Official Gold Issue of The Columbia Mint, Washington DC
in Solid 22 KT Gold

You have a rare opportunity to possess the world's finest miniature $50 Gold Piece in solid 22 KT Gold. This piece is minted in the same manner and contains the same fineness of pure gold (.900 fine) as the original $50 Gold Piece struck by the U.S. Mint in 1915. Each Miniature $50 Gold Piece in pure .900 fine gold will be minted from hand engraved dies capturing even the most delicate detail of the original. Each Miniature is individually minted to capture the full 3-dimensional relief of the only $50 coin ever issued by The United States. It is unique among all U.S. coins as it was octagonal in shape and was the largest and highest denomination coin ever issued by the United States. Each brilliant miniature $50 gold piece is presented in a specially designed collector's case accompanied by a serially numbered certificate of authenticity and an historical account of gold coinage through the ages.

AVAILABLE FOR A LIMITED TIME

This exquisitely minted solid 22 KT gold (.900 fine) miniature gold piece is available exclusively through The Columbia Mint — one of America's private mints — Washington, DC. The current price for this gold piece is $50. Due to the fluctuations in the world market price of gold this price can be guaranteed only until April 20, 1980. Therefore, you are urged to order yours today while the opportunity is before you.

What to Do When Your Spouse Is Seriously Ill

By Linda Gordon
and John A. Downey M.D.

One of Carolyn's biggest problems when her husband, Phil, had a heart attack was that no one even realized that she had any problems. It was Phil who was sick, after all, and everyone's attention was on him. Yet from the time she arranged for the ambulance, found someone to care for the children and then rushed to the hospital, there was never any doubt that this illness would create problems and demand changes in her life, as well as his.

What are the feelings, fears and frustrations when a spouse is seriously ill or hurt, and how can a partner cope?

At first there is the shock of the illness and all the details that must be taken care of. The most important is to arrange good medical care. Next, set priorities and ask for help: Of course, only you can reassure the children and provide continuity in their lives, but friends and relatives can help by picking up groceries, fixing meals and running errands. A lawyer or personnel office can check insurance coverage. If you and your spouse have always had clear-cut responsibilities, it may be tough now taking over tasks you're not familiar with. (For instance, a husband with a sick doctor? You'll feel more comfortable — and better able to cope — knowing the answers.

Once you are clear about what to expect and what to do, you can concentrate on what is really relevant for your spouse and yourself. Ask family, friends and children to help with routine chores and to visit. Hire extra help if possible. You are a husband or a wife; you are not a doctor, a nurse, a parent or a baby sitter.

Friends can be especially valuable now, a link to your lives before the illness. Too often couples lose contact with friends because they can't participate in their usual social activities, but it's important to fit them in your lives as your spouse's health allows. For example, if a large party is too strenuous at first, let friends know that you would be happy to come for dinner.

This is the time to try to "normalize" your lives. Studies have shown that a spouse's illness is one of the greatest stresses in a person's life, and the emotional toll of the illness may be harder to recognize and even more difficult to cope with than the physical burdens of caring for someone. It can also affect your relationship.

Feelings often lie buried for the first critical months, only to surface later in wife may suddenly find himself running the household — and feeling overwhelmed.) Don't be afraid to speak up to friends and family and let them know you need help.

Once you've taken these steps, it's time to think of yourself. You feel numb and exhausted. You may not be able to eat or sleep well, and you are probably juggling a job, hospital visits and taking care of the family. Don't be afraid to admit that you're human and hurting and that you need care, too. Strange as it may seem to be thinking of your needs while your spouse is so sick, you are a most important ingredient in the patient's ultimate recovery, and you can help only if you are rested and calm.

Many people find that they have even more problems once their spouse returns home. When Phil was in the hospital, Carolyn was exhausted; now she felt overwhelmed. Where once a hospitalful of people and machines had been responsible for his care, now she was. To make things as easy as possible, be sure you go over details with the doctor. What should you watch for? What about medication, diet, exercise, visitors? Under what circumstances should you call the unexpected ways. It's not unusual at some point for a spouse to wonder, what about me? or what's going to happen to my life? Anger, guilt and frustrations, so resolutely not expressed in those first few months, may pour out with appalling intensity.

What can you do? First, realize that it's normal to be upset. Talk to an understanding listener if necessary, perhaps someone else whose spouse has been ill. But most importantly, talk to your spouse. All along, you may have been reassuring each other that you were all right, to the point where you stopped expressing what you were really feeling. And the physical separation of the hospitalization — followed by feelings of withdrawal and vulnerability that most patients experience after a serious illness — may have created an emotional separation, too.

Now that you are both stronger, it is time to share your feelings honestly. Only when a couple have talked and listened can they truly begin to rebuild a new life for themselves. As difficult as an illness may be, many couples find strength in having survived such an experience.

As Carolyn recalled: "I can look back and know that we came through this awful time together and that it has taken its place in our lives without destroying us. That's given us a new kind of bond."

Dr. John A. Downey is chairman of the department of physical medicine and rehabilitation, Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons.

WHAT IN THE WORLD

Tickling Your Funny Bone

April Fools' Day pranks may not be your cup of tea, but without a daily chuckle, life would be pretty drab. "A sense of humor, appreciating humor and being able to laugh at yourself are all signs of mental health," asserts Dr. Charles Gruner, a speech communication professor at the University of Georgia.

Gruner, who first began investigating "the why behind the chuckle" in 1955, says that laughter is many things. "Humor is a means of communication. Since humor means that someone is being ridiculed, we laugh to signal triumph and, if the joke is on us, to relieve tension and nervousness. We also couch certain points in the guise of humor; satire has as its goal the changing of people's habits."

The professor also feels that humor is an attention-getting device that he can use to perk up his students. "If you can use a humorous example to highlight a piece of information, people tend to remember that fact," Gruner notes. Perhaps, but could calculus ever be funny?

Sizing Up Your Personality

H. Armstrong Roberts

Running for relaxation.

Does a person's shape and size have anything to do with his personality? Dr. A.H. Ismail, a physical-education professor at Purdue University, has found evidence that the physiological and biochemical changes that take place when a person starts a fitness program can affect his personality.

"Over a four-month period, the men who enrolled in a regular fitness program that met three times a week for one and a half hours each session had definite changes take place in their personalities," notes Ismail. "Many reported feeling more emotionally secure and more relaxed. Most also admitted to not caring as much

The 1st of April is probably the one day of the year when kids are grudgingly allowed to get away with any number of practical jokes. For generations, parents have gritted their teeth and put up with salt in the sugar bowl and loose tops on the pepper shaker. Although its origins are fairly obscure, April Fools' Day, or All Fools' Day as it is sometimes called, has long been the traditional time for jesting pranks.

In India, the last day of the feast of Holi falls on March 31, and the chief amusement is tricking people into running foolish errands. In Great Britain, the event is probably connected with the celebration of New Year's Day and the vernal equinox, which, according to the old calendar, took place on March 25; the festivities surrounding those occasions lasted until April 1. But it wasn't until the 18th century that playing April Fools' Day jokes became a common custom and, eventually, a tradition in countries throughout the world.

In addition, Dr. Ismail has found that those people who exercise regularly have fewer insurance claims than their nonactive counterparts. "And that only goes to show that exercise is both a natural and preventive medicine," he says. The only additive is what you put into it.

Keeping Track Of History

Cataloguing all the objects in a museum is a monumental task, particularly if the museum is the Smithsonian, the world's largest museum complex, which houses 78 million specimens. But Congress has mandated that all the collections be catalogued on the institution's computer system by June 1983, so that the records concerning such historic objects as Bell's telephone, moon rocks and Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis" will be on permanent record.

"Depending on the exhibit, we describe each object and then match that description with the one already in our files," reports James Crockett, deputy director of the Office of Computer Services. "Each museum sets its own standards, however. George Washington's razor is catalogued differently than a spider or a painting by Whistler."

Although most of the museum's possessions will be reviewed, Crockett admits that there are a few that will be passed over. "In some cases, there's no point to cataloguing. I mean, if you have a whole box of unidentified beetles..." We get the point.

Lifestyles

Food. In 1978 the average wage earner in Washington, D.C., had to work for one hour and 27 minutes to earn enough to buy one pound of each of the following: white bread, sliced bacon, sirloin steak, pork chops, tomatoes, chicken and butter, plus one dozen oranges and 12 eggs. The total of that grocery bill was $12.23. However, the U.S. Department of Agriculture, which gathered the figures, also pointed out that in Japan, a wage earner would have had to work seven and a quarter hours to earn enough to buy those items.

Drinking. Usually, liver damage is the major problem associated with alcoholism, but a recent report in Lancet cited a study done in Denmark that suggests that intellectual impairment may be a more serious problem for the younger alcoholic. Measurement of the intellectual functions and liver damage in 37 alcoholic men under age 35 indicated that 19 percent had cirrhosis while 59 percent had problems with standard memory, concentration and comprehension tests.

Blindness. Recent figures released by the World Health Organization estimate the world's blind population to be over 42 million children and adults. Nutritional blindness is the leading cause of children's loss of sight.

Good boy!

Could you hold the light for me, Slim?

Sure!

by Dick Moores

Could you get the pump, Slim? I'm tied up!

Okay, Hack!

KIT FOUND HER..ON LAFITTE'S PIRATE FLAGSHIP...

KIT..THIS IS MADNESS..GO AWAY AT ONCE...

JEANETTE..I HAD TO SEE YOU ONCE MORE...

TALE OF THE 13TH PHANTOM-TO-BE: 1812.

KIT..IF THEY SEE YOU...

I HAVE TO GO AWAY..BUT I'LL COME BACK. WAIT FOR ME, DARLING JEANETTE.

by Lee Falk

HE WAS KISSING HER!

FOOL..TO COME BACK. I SPARED YOU ONCE..

JEAN LAFITTE..KING OF THE PIRATES..

I WISH TO MARRY YOUR SISTER, LAFITTE.

SHE IS INTENDED FOR A CROWNED HEAD..A KING OR PRINCE..NOT A NOBODY LIKE YOU.

BUT I ADMIRE YOUR BRAVERY..YOU ARE A BOLD, YOUNG MAN.. TAKE THIS...

SURVIVE IF YOU CAN... AMONG THE ALLIGATORS OF BARATARIA!

NOBODY WANTS TO BUST UP THIS ART HEIST RING ANY MORE THAN I DO—

CASE #A 305

BUT IT APPEARS ANY HEIST DEKKO IS PLANNING REGARDING THE PICASSO LIZZ HAS REQUESTED IS WEEKS AWAY—

by GOULD/Fletcher/COLLINS

CHIEF, THIS PARTY HE'S INVITED LIZZ TO, TO SHOW OFF "JEWEL ONALLIT" TO HIS SOCIETY PALS, COULD BE A COVER—

DON'T THINK SO. I'M AFRAID, OUR BUDGET BEING WHAT IT IS, YOU'LL HAVE TO HOLD OFF STEPPING UP MUSEUM SECURITY A GOOD WEEK.

EVERYONE'S ACCEPTED OUR INVITATION, ART—

...Ms. JEWEL ONALLIT...
