Iranian Govm't May Take Over Hostage-Custody

By The Associated Press

The Iranian government may announce new steps in the hostage crisis as early as tonight, perhaps including transfer of the 50 Americans to government custody, a Foreign Ministry spokesman said.

At the same time, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini attacked the United States for what he called threats of military force to free the American hostages. "It was all words," he said of the U.S. stance. "Even now it is all just words. Never be afraid of such words because they are not followed by action," he said in a Tehran Radio broadcast, monitored in London.

He also condemned the Soviet Union's intervention in Afghanistan and predicted the Russians would "eventually be defeated," saying no power can impose its will on the world.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman contacted by a Western journalist in Tehran said the subject of a hostage transfer was taken up by the ruling Revolutionary Council and that President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr would discuss the matter tonight with Khomeini, Iran's revolutionary leader who would have the final word.

The student militants holding the hostages at the U.S. Embassy have rejected previous demands to turn them over to the government.

CBS reported that the council had decided Sunday night, by a vote of 7 to 6 to get the Americans transferred to government custody and presumably use force if the militants balk. But Tehran officials denied any decision was reached.

The Foreign Ministry spokesman today said announcement of a decision on the transfer may be made after tonight's council meeting. Earlier he said Bani-Sadr is expected to make an important statement on the hostage issue and U.S. President Carter's latest messages at Tuesday celebrations of the Iranian republic's first anniversary.

The report of the council's deliberations on the hostage transfer came after a White House spokesman said President Carter sent messages last week to Bani-Sadr but denied a report from Tehran that the White House admitted making mistakes in its policies toward Iran.

Presidential press secretary Jody Powell was forced to make the admission after the Swiss government confirmed that its ambassador in Tehran had delivered two messages from Carter to Bani-Sadr, early last week and on Sunday. But Powell insisted that his denial of the Iranian announcement of the first message was accurate because of the way he phrased it.

Radio Tehran announced Saturday that Carter sent a message to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the leader of the Iranian revolutionary regime, saying the Carter administration "inherited a very sensitive international situation which is the result of other policies and circumstances and made all of us commit mistakes in the past."

Powell on Sunday repeated the denial he made the day before, that "no message such as the one reported from Tehran had been sent by the president or any other American official to any Iranian official."

tremendous job that confronts lifeguards and others who try to maintain safety on the beach. The annual migration of college students during Spring break will go on until Easter, and it's expected that more than a half-million students will crowd the surf this season. (AP Laserphoto)

Dole Endorses Reagan On Eve Of Wisconsin

By LEE BYRD

Associated Press Writer Kansas Sen. Robert Dole, who once exhorted voters to make him president "if you want a younger Ronald Reagan," is now rooting for the elder one in an effort timed to bolster the Republican front-runner in Tuesday's farm-state primaries.

Dole turned up at Reagan's side Sunday night and declared to an audience in Overland Park, Kan., that it is time for the GOP to unite behind the 69-year-old former governor of California. "More than ever," said Dole, "grass-roots Republicans want Ronald Reagan."

He added that Reagan has "a virtual hammer-lock on our party's nomination."

Rep. John B. Anderson, meanwhile, indicated he is closer than ever to offering himself as an independent alternative should Reagan head the GOP ticket and President Carter wins Democratic renomination. The Illinois Republican said on national television that many of his supporters "simply would be unhappy" with a Carter-Reagan choice, and "I am not going to let down the people who have put their faith and trust in me."

Every major candidate of both parties — except the president himself — focused on Wisconsin today. That state will choose 75 delegates to the Democratic national convention and 34 to the GOP convention in Tuesday's balloting. Kansas will pick 37 Democratic delegates and 32 Republicans.

Anderson and former U.N. Ambassador George Bush both took swipes at the burgeoning confusion over U.S. contacts with Iran. Bush declared in Madison, Wis., that "It's time for Jimmy Carter to level ... the American people are getting silence or doubletalk."

Similarly, Anderson said the administration should immediately "come clean on the whole question." He added that if it is true, as reports from Iran insist, that Carter has communicated with the government there in an apologetic tone, then it amounts to the "latest example of ineptitude."

White House press secretary Jody Powell admitted in Madison that Carter sent messages last week to Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, but denied that he admitted mistakes in past U.S. policy.

In Kansas, Reagan repeated his recent declaration that had he been president when the American Embassy and 50 hostages were seized in Tehran, he would have allowed only 48 to 72 hours to explore a diplomatic solution. "There's no need to take any longer than that," Reagan said. If diplomacy had then failed, he said, he would have privately told the Iranian government to release the hostages to a neutral government by a specified deadline "or on that date something very unpleasant is going to happen to your country."

Democratic challenger Edward M. Kennedy, meanwhile, scored the president once more for his handling of inflation and demanded that Carter "come out of the Rose Garden and talk with the people of Wisconsin, on their farms and in their factories."

Campaigning in a state he had virtually conceded to Carter before an upsurge in his fortunes last week, Kennedy also took heated issue with the president's use of the words "demagogue" and "misleading" while referring to the Massachusetts senator's economic strategy.

Carter had said in an interview with the Milwaukee Journal that Kennedy was "not being completely frank with the American people on inflation" and had failed to present counter-proposals in legislative form. "I am not a demagogue — I am a Democrat," Kennedy said.

Dozens Killed, Hundreds Hurt In Funeral Terror

By MARC D. CHARNEY

Associated Press Writer SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Troops cleared the streets of San Salvador to maintain order after dozens of persons were killed and more than 250 injured at the funeral of El Salvador's assassinated archbishop.

Morgues and hospitals reported at least 40 persons killed in the violence in front of San Salvador's Roman Catholic cathedral on Palm Sunday. Church sources confirmed 26 dead, indicating some of the victims may have been counted twice.

The outdoor funeral for Archbishop Oscar Arnulfo Romero, an outspoken critic of military repression and political violence, was brought to a hurried conclusion after an explosion and then gunfire erupted about noon as the throng of mourners filled the square in front of the cathedral.

There were conflicting reports on how the firing started, but armed leftists who had taken up positions in the square began shooting, and the crowd stampeded.

Within minutes, 3,000 to 4,000 people, many of them leftists, rushed into the cathedral for safety as other leftists took up positions around the church and apparently blasted away at anything that moved outside.

Many of the casualties were victims of the panic, not of bullets. There appeared to be at least as many casualties from trampling or suffocation as from gunfire.

The archbishop's coffin was hurried inside and put in a crypt. People huddled together on the floor of the cathedral. Priests urged calm. Nuns prayed. Leftists among the crowd chanted of the struggle that "the people" would win.

After an hour, when the army still remained in its barracks, the atmosphere inside the church calmed. People began walking out and cautiously crossing the square with their hands above their heads.

The troops did not appear until 4½ hours after the trouble was over. Then they stopped minor looting and ordered everyone off the streets for the night.

Reporters near the front of the cathedral when the violence started heard a loud explosion followed by gunshots. A few seconds later there was general gunfire from several directions.

One leftist said the first shots were fired by three armed men in a jeep who drove by and opened fire. Others who were near that point in the square said they saw no such thing.

Russians Stepping Up Warship Construction In Variety, Numbers

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

AP Military Writer WASHINGTON (AP) —

U.S. intelligence analysts say the Soviet Union is stepping up construction of new warships, including a probable 50 percent increase in powerful missile-armed cruisers.

In a recent assessment, analysts said Russia's shipbuilding program for the 1980s seems to place greater emphasis on improving Soviet ability to project naval power into remote areas such as the Persian Gulf.

The Soviet Navy, once a basically defensive force, has been extending its range of operations for more than a decade with a variety of advanced warships, including the beginnings of a carrier force. The Russian navy still is rated deficient in shipping for amphibious warfare and at-sea resupply, but is making inroads on those problems, analysts said.

An accelerating Soviet shipbuilding program suggests to analysts that, by the end of this decade, the Russian navy will be equipped with still newer classes of heavily armed major surface fighting ships supported by large auxiliary vessels so they can steam for long periods far from land bases.

Russian navy planners appear to be focusing on cruisers, with four new classes of bigger, more potent and more sophisticated ships reportedly being built now in Soviet shipyards.

According to the latest available information, intelligence sources said, more than 10 such ships are under construction and it is estimated conservatively that about 25 such ships could join the Soviet fleet by the end of this decade.

Intelligence specialists predict that, on the basis of what they now see, the Russian cruiser fleet will probably increase to 60 ships during the 1980s, compared to fewer than 40 now.

Supreme Court, By 8-1 Vote, Refuses Bar Deportations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, by an 8-1 vote, today refused to block the deportation of Iranian students until it acts on a formal appeal of the Carter administration's action against them.

The refusal came after government lawyers told the justices that no Iranian student will be deported before the high court acts on the pending appeal by a group of Iranian students.

Only Justice William J. Brennan Jr. voted to grant the relief sought by the students.

A constitutional controversy began last Nov. 10 when President Carter ordered a review of the immigration status of all Iranian students in the United States. It was an initial step in efforts to break the siege of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran and free the Americans being held hostage there.

Iranian students were ordered to report to immigration officials for questioning by last Dec. 14. Deportation proceedings were initiated against those students found to be in violation of their visas.

Civil libertarians quickly argued that the president's order and its implementing regulation impermissibly singled out Iranians from all other aliens, violating their right to be treated equally.

A group calling itself the Confederation of Iranian Students challenged the regulation. It won its case before a federal trial judge but last Dec. 27 lost in the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The group's Supreme Court appeal was filed Feb. 13 and is pending. Lawyers for the Iranian students said emergency relief is needed until the appeal is acted on.

The confederation's emergency request was submitted last month to Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, who denied it, Burger said. "No deportations appear to be imminent at this stage."

The request was then routed to Justice William J. Brennan Jr., who referred it to the full court.

Tobacco A Key Factor In Balance Of Payments

BY BILL HUMPHRIES
NCSU Agricultural Information

RALEIGH — Tobacco made a net contribution of $1.69 billion to the U.S. balance of payments last year. This was a slight decline from the 1978 level.

The value of tobacco exports — both raw leaf and manufactured products — increased one percent during 1979 and reached $2.15 billion.

Value of imports rose 8 percent to $463 million.

Statistics on U.S. tobacco trade in 1979 reflect three significant developments:

— Shipments of tobacco leaf fell nearly a fifth, from a record level of 814 million pounds in 1978 to only 664 million pounds (farm sales weight).

— Raw leaf imports (duty-paid) showed a 12 percent rise and amounted to 377 million pounds (dry weight). Scrap and stems accounted for most of the gain.

— Exports of manufactured tobacco products, mostly cigarettes, showed substantial gains again in 1979. This trend has been under way for a decade or longer.

The number of cigarettes shipped abroad averaged less than 47 billion a year in the early 1970s but by 1979 had risen to nearly 80 billion.

Cigarette exports to Middle East countries rose substantially, despite a 75 percent drop in exports to Iran. Exports of manufactured cigarettes to South America and Africa also increased, but shipments to Europe were down.

Shipments of smoking tobacco in bulk showed a remarkable increase — from 982 metric tons in 1978 to more than 10,000 in 1979. Major markets included the Dominican Republic, the Netherlands, Germany, Switzerland and Canary Islands.

In 1979, Japan again became the largest foreign market for U.S. unmanufactured tobacco leaf, although shipments to that country were down. Realignment of European Community currency values adversely afected U.S. leaf exports to the United Kingdom.

N.C. Agricultural Extension Service specialists said the 1978 crop of U.S. flue-cured was unusually good in quality, and foreign buyers made heavy purchases to build up their stocks. As a result, flue-cured exports that year reached an all-time high of 624 million pounds.

Miss Weitz Weds Sunday

Kathleen Ann Weitz and Robert Douglas Swords were united in marriage Sunday at three o'clock in the First Christian Church of Washington. The double ring ceremony was performed by Dr. Glenn Weaver and Donald Littlejohn, uncle of the bride.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Weitz of Washington, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Manus R. Swords of Bennettsville, S.C.

Wedding music was provided by Doug Cutler, organist, and Susan Coiner, soloist. Miss Coiner sang "Evergreen" and "The Wedding Song."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white chiffon over white peau de soie designed with a high neckline encircled with silk floral Venise lace beaded with pearls. The empire bodice was enhanced by a sheer yoke of imported English net outlined in the Venise beaded lace that also extended down and encircled the waistline. The full sheer bishop sleeves featured appliques of the floral lace with the cuffs trimmed in the matching lace. The full chiffon skirt extended to an attached chapel length train. She wore an imported braid bridal garden hat with the crown overlaid in the silk floral Venise lace and the brim accentuated by a double tier of silk organza and veiling illusion, accented by a Dior bow at center back falling to chapel length streamers. She carried a cascading bouquet of baby's breath and bakers fern and red silk roses, given to her by the bridegroom on Valentine's Day.

Jenny Dempsey of Greenville was maid of honor. She wore a formal gown of blue floral print silesta on an ivory background designed with a portrait neckline edged in piping with miniature rolled tie bows at the shoulders. The blouson bodice featured split short sleeves. A tie bow also was featured at the side of the waistline from which fell the full flared skirt. She carried a bouquet of small blue and white pompons with blue and white streamers.

The bridesmaids, Lisa Engelhardt of Washington; Jan Swords of Bennettsville, S.C., sister of the bridegroom; and Kathy Weitz of Washington, sister-in-law of the bride; wore gowns styled identically to the maid of honor's except in a blue floral print of a blue background. They each carried a single white mum tipped with blue and mixed blue and white streamers.

The bride's niece, Susie Weitz of Washington served as flower girl. Her gown was styled in the print to match the maid of honor's. She carried a blue basket with small blue and white mums and baby's breath.

The mother of the bride wore a formal short ensemble of blue silesta and blue Nottingham lace. The gown was complemented by an all lace sleeveless coat with self-covered button closure. She wore a corsage of cymbidium orchids.

Bill Terry of Greenville was best man, and ushers were Joe Gould of Greenville, Jerry Hedgepeth of Roanoke, Va., and Lloyd Weitz, brother of the bride, of Washington.

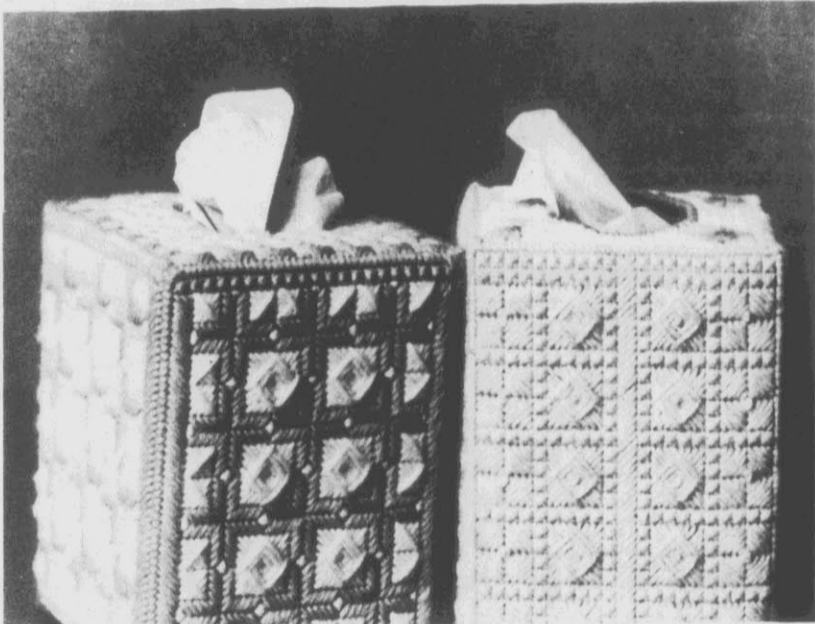

A rehearsal dinner was held Saturday night given by the bride's parents at the home of Lisa Engelhardt at Edgewater Beach in Washington.

A reception was held following the ceremony in the church fellowship hall.

After a wedding trip to Myrtle Beach and Kiawah Island, S.C., the couple plans to reside in Greenville.

Pretty pastel yarns and sculptured needlepoint stitches decorate covers for boutique-size tissue boxes, giving an air of understated elegance to bath or dressing rooms.

You may be a beginning needlepointer now, but with Pat's "Learn-a-Stitch" Leaflet, you'll quickly learn to create charming gift items such as these tissue covers using plastic canvas and knitting yarns.

Directions include diagrams and charts for seven pattern stitches plus construction details for a variety of gift, bazaar and prize items.

To obtain your copy of the Learn-a-Stitch Leaflet, send your request for Leaflet No. LS-745 with $1.00 and a long, self-addressed envelope to Pat Trexler, "The Daily Reflector," P.O. BOX 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or you may order Kit No. K-745 by sending check or money order for $12.00 to Pat Trexler at the same address. Each kit contains the instruction leaflet, three shades of yarn and enough plastic ten-mesh canvas to make as many as four tissue box covers or a larger number of smaller items. Please specify your choice of any three of the following colors: light blue, medium blue, baby pink, shell pink, soft yellow, jade green, light gold, brown, rust, eggshell, off white.

Plastic canvas is a relative newcomer to the needlepoint scene and is becoming more popular with every passing year. It does have its own set of advantages and disadvantages, however.

Chief among the advantages is the ease in working and assembling. It does not pull out of shape so it requires no blocking. In fact, blocking with a steam iron is an absolute no-no as the canvas is likely to melt under the heat of the iron.

For the same reason, don't try to use a fusible fabric for a lining or interlining (the type which is to be ironed on).

It is also not suitable for pillows or other soft items, nor would I recommend it for anything which you expect to be of an heirloom quality. It simply is not as longwearing as canvas made from traditional fibers.

It is particularly well-suited for items which need a certain amount of stiffness, and it is ever-so-simple to finish and assemble your own projects. For most items, you simply trim away any rough edges and join the pieces together with a simple overcasting stitch.

The more experienced needlepointer may prefer to join pieces with the binding stitch, but the overcast or "lacing" method works equally well. To do this, you simply pass your threaded needle through an edge hole on each of the two pieces, repeating the process all along the edges to be joined.

At the present time, this type of canvas is available in a ten-mesh size by the yard and in sheets approximately 12 by 15 in.

PITT COUNTY'S CONFERENCE... on Leadership Development for Women was held Saturday. Pictured are Janice Faulkner, Miriam Dorsey, Nancy Middleton, Juanita Bryant and Jean Darden.

Juanita Bryant Speaks Saturday At Conference

"I want to take this opportunity to tell you how pleased I am that you are present at this county Leadership Conference for Women.

"It makes me feel good to know that we have women all over the state of North Carolina who are interested in moving forward. You've come here because you want to develop your skills and because you want to help other women become the kinds of leaders they want to be. We need more of you. We need strong women leaders in all 100 counties and in every community in the state," said Mrs. Juanita Bryant Saturday.

She was keynote speaker at Pitt County's Leadership Conference on Leadership Development for Women. The workshops and luncheon were held at the Belk Building, ECU campus. Mrs. Bryant is state conference director, Leadership Development for Women.

Continuing she said, "Even without special training for leadership, women have always been leaders in North Carolina; however these women leaders have often been ignored by writers in history books and we are only finding out about many of them today.

"Today, although women's leadership is still comparatively scarce at the very top levels of business and government, women are making outstanding advances and achieving considerable recognition." She cited the work of Dr. Sarah Morrow, secretary of Human Resources for N.C., Sara Hodgkins as secretary of Cultural Resources, Jane Patterson, assistant secretary of the Department of Administration, Miriam Dorsey and Senator Helen Marvin, who lead the Council on the Status of Women.

During the opening session, greetings were extended by Greenville Mayor Don McGlohon, Dr. Thomas Brewer, chancellor of East Carolina, and Ed N. Warren, Pitt County Board of Commissioners chairman. Ms. Dorsey, executive director, N. C. Council on the Status of Women, brought greetings from the state.

Six workshops were held during the day for the 90 women attending. Local co-chairpersons were Mrs. Jean Darden and Mrs. Nancy Middleton.

Proceed With Plans, Don't Feel Guilty

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am a 38-year-old woman, living with my parents. (I am all the family they have.) Last year my mother (64) had a stroke which left her partially paralyzed. She walks with a cane and is confused at times, but she's cheerful and uncomplaining. My father, 67, is a practicing physician, but he is no help at all. Over the years he has paid very little attention to Mother or me. He comes home, eats, reads the newspaper, watches TV and goes to bed. If Mother needs the bedpan he comes looking for me to take care of it. When I go out, he forgets to give Mother her medication. We have a woman come in five days a week to stay with Mother until I get home from work.

I'm engaged to be married this fall. It will be my second marriage and his first. We will be living only 10 minutes from my parents, so it's not as though I'll be deserting them. Although I realize that I do have a life to lead, I can't help feel a little guilty getting married with the situation like this. I'm not young anymore, and want to have a family while I'm still able.

Please advise me.

S.O.S.

DEAR S: Proceed with your marriage plans, and don't feel guilty. You'll live near enough to your mother to look in on her often. And I beg you to ask your father to please show a little more concern and compassion for your mother. I wish you joy. You deserve it.

DEAR ABBY: I have been told that in Hawaii when a girl wears a flower over one of her ears, it means that she is "taken" (has a boyfriend), but if she wears a flower over the other ear, it means that she is "looking," or available. I am going to the islands soon and would like to know which ear is which.

DEAR RAY: A flower over the left ear (same side her heart is on) means, "I'm spoken for." A flower over the right ear means, "I'm unattached." A flower over both ears means, "I'm spoken for, but let's negotiate."

ches for the six or seven mesh size.

As a general rule, it costs approximately $9.00 a yard or $1.50 to $2.00 for the sheets. At first glance, this may seem expensive but just consider that from one half a yard of the ten-mesh canvas you could, for example, make two belts, a tissue box cover and six eyeglass cases.

On the six or seven mesh size, I prefer to use slanting stitches as I do not care for the appearance of straight Gobelin or Bargello stitches. Since there are literally dozens of effective slanting stitches, I do not find this a particular disadvantage, however.

The Bargello type stitches do work well on the ten-mesh size if you work over the ridges of the canvas. It is a bit trickier to make neat joining edges when you use this type of stitch, however, so you might want to try this out on small scrap pieces before launching a major project.

Mrs. Dale Panaro shared the "County 4-H and Youth Programs and Opportunities." Mrs. Ila G. White, area home economics extension agent (EFNEP), Edenton, remarked on the district and state programs.

EFNEP in Pitt County is supervised by Addie R. Gore, home economics extension agent.

The Art of Carpeting & Decor

by Larry C. Whitlow

Every room in the house can use carpeting of one kind or another. The carpeting chosen should fit the decor, traffic and general use of the room. For example, a formal living room generally requires formal carpeting, perhaps wall to wall with a good strong weave and a heavy plush. Alternatively, an oriental or turkish rug could be suited to the room's decorative pattern. A kitchen or bathroom, on the other hand, might call for a rug with a flatter weave, one that would be easy to clean. Most indoor-outdoor carpeting is made to stand up to kitchen wear where there is a lot of traffic and a chance of food or liquid spills.

All types of carpeting and flooring are available from us at LARRY'S CARPETLAND INC., 3010 E. 10th St., 756-2300. We are your exclusive Milliken and Georgian headquarters in Greenville, and we also handle Oriental and area rugs. We're the people to see for all your needs. Hours: 9am-5:30pm Mon. thru Fri., 9am-1pm Sat. Have a nice Easter Holiday.

HELPFUL HINT: Clean carpet spills as soon as possible. Do not allow them to set.

JOIN THE PRESIDENTS' FISCAL FITNESS PROGRAM AND BUILD UP YOUR INTEREST.

If you have $10,000 or more to deposit with Planters, we'll give all your presidents the best workout a bank can give. Just enroll George, Abe and the rest in our Presidents' Fiscal Fitness Program. For six solid months, we'll make the whole gang give you the best run for your money. When you purchase a six-month money market certificate, your interest will be determined by the weekly U.S. treasury bill rate. And the interest is guaranteed for six months after deposit. So even though earning rates vary weekly, you won't. And you won't feel let down if the rates should go down.

Federal regulations prohibit banks from compounding interest on six-month money market certificates. But you can simply give Planters written permission to transfer your earned interest to your savings account. This, of course, gives you a greater yield. (Interest paid monthly, quarterly or at maturity.)

Results To Take Time

Are the policies of the Carter administration to slow down inflation working? Maybe. The problem is that these are such unprecedented times, no one could know for sure until government statistics start showing that results have been obtained.

Interest rates are at historic highs, which is making borrowing very difficult for big business and prospective homeowner alike.

At the same time the world prices of gold and silver have plummeted and the value of the dollar has strengthened. This indicates that international investors are now interested in the high interest returns they can get in the U.S., and also that their faith in our ability to get the economy under control has been restored to some extent.

Stock market prices indicate that investors feel the long predicted recession is indeed, underway. While that is not totally good news, there still is nothing like a recession to bring prices under control.

Finally oil supplies seem to be ample now, probably because high prices have caused Americans to conserve on gasoline and home heating oil.

It will take months before it will be clear if the desired results are coming about. There are signs, though, that things may be running our way in the inflation fight.

Sacrifice May Be In Order

A volcano eruption in the lower 48 states? There hasn't been such a thing since 1914. During the weekend, however, Mount St. Helens spewed steam and ash, its first activity since 1857.

It brought visions of Pompeii, South

Sea Islands, angry gods and human sacrifices to appease them.

In 1980, of course, we know that volcano eruptions are strictly natural phenomena — not the work of irate gods... still maybe tossing in a mannequin wouldn't hurt anything.

DON'T---FAIL TO BE COUNTED! IT'S IMPORTANT!

Carter Race Feels Vise

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — The vice, partially self-constructed, that President Carter suddenly finds squeezing him into political paralysis was recognized in this Wednesday morning-after concern by his advisers: what to do with Rose Garden tactics that no longer work.

Carter is inflexibly bound to his commitment, once so politically beneficial, not to hit the campaign trail until the hostages in Iran are released. "We've just got to find some way to campaign more effectively, without breaking the president's promise," one senior White House aide told us. But how? "You'll be the first to know when we figure it out," was the sarcastic but mirthless reply.

In New York, Carter's organization was infinitely superior to Kennedy's bumbled but contained a telling flaw: telephone banks, there as elsewhere, were manned by paid workers ("Kelly Girl politics"); there were no volunteers. This basic sterility in the Carter campaign was overlooked while he was winning primaries and running away with the polls.

Even after patriotic support for the embattled president began fading a few weeks ago, anti-Kennedy sentiment kept the president on top. That sentiment subsided the last five days before the New York-Connecticut balloting when Kennedy's tenacious campaigning won over voters, at least temporarily.

The president's heaviest political thinkers are not close to "figuring out" that solution or pushing leftward toward traditional Democratic positions following the New York and Connecticut repudiations. There is, then, the specter of successive big-state primary election defeats that would not deprive the president of renomination but could cripple him for the fall campaign.

Accordingly, pro-Carter Democratic politicians around the country insist that the president must show himself to the voters — a switch sure to bring ridicule. While leaving a Tuesday night victory interview in New York, Kennedy heard a television newscaster announce that Carter would, after first declining, attend a Wednesday night congressional dinner in Washington. Kennedy, off-camera, reacted with a mighty horselaugh; there will be more of the same if the president really leaves the Rose Garden.

The rigid system now used to select presidential nominees adds to the inflexibility. It is all but impossible for a new candidate to emerge or for anybody to pry committed delegates away from Carter. The final frozen aspect of a potential Democratic nightmare is that the president and his tough young subalterns surely will never quit the race, no matter how devalued the nomination becomes.

Horselaughs will proliferate if Carter follows widespread advice to soften unpopular positions. Political advisers want him to come out for formal recision of the famous United Nations vote on Israel. Congressional allies want him to dump the balanced budget and embrace liberal Democratic dogma: less defense, more social welfare, aid to cities and pork barrel.

Carter's spectacular political recovery late last year, based on foreign crises and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's pratfalls, did not solve his basic political problems. He remains essentially unloved in the Democratic Party, lacking fervent volunteer support. His chief backers are federal officials, mayors and lobbyists who love the president because he controls the federal money tap.

Is that possible? "If you think so," one senior aide told us, "then you don't know what Jimmy Carter is all about." If he is indeed inflexible, the president will go into the coming big-state primaries with no strategy other than hopes that the Nor-

Up To The People

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — The figures clearly illustrate that all the millions which have been spent, all the reorganizing and planning which has been done, all the hand-wringing which has taken place have not dented North Carolina's soaring crime rate.

Steve Hicks, chief of the North Carolina alcohol and drug abuse program at the Department of Human Resources, put the situation in a nutshell the other day for members of the Governor's Crime Commission:

cohesiveness of family and community is coming apart at the seams, and we have rather an array of uncoordinated, disjointed, turf-fighting bureaucratically hamstrung, self-centered interest groups with no central idea of direction.

How can we involve the

"Obviously, we can't look to Washington or Raleigh for any magic answers."

Where does the answer lie? At home, says Hicks flatly. It seems most of the crime commission members agree. That group of law enforcement, court, school and rehab agency people are spending many long hours of late brainstorming and debating together the width and breadth of crime. The purpose is to come up with two distinct programs — one for immediate implementation, and another long-range approach.

available resources in fighting crime, Hicks wondered. If family, church, school, police, courts, a myriad of service agencies could all pull together, there would be hope.

Jack McCall, retired psychologist with the North Carolina Department of Correction and still active in teaching and working with crime problems, shed more light on the dilemma:

"The problem isn't that any part of the system is bad. It is just that we don't have a system — working together and coordinated. The parts need to talk to each other instead of battling over turf and ego and budgets."

At Home

Defining the problem is but one of the perplexities facing the commission. Indeed, the commission appears pointed in the direction of concluding that the family and community is the problem, and the solution, therefore, will prove that much more elusive. Several expert witnesses have repeated the theme followed by Hicks at a recent session.

The drug and alcohol specialist who for 10 years headed Greensboro's drug abuse effort summed up: the family is where we learn behavior as a youngster, and the community is where that learned behavior is reinforced.

Today, in urban and rural setting alike, that old-time

Pressure

Bob Philbeck who runs the state's vocational rehabilitation program agrees that the place to attack crime is in the community. But he disagrees that finding the answer is all that difficult.

"We know what needs to be done, but what is lacking in all of us is guts. We are yielding to political pressures and racial pressures and traditions which have long since lost their validity.

"We need to deal with people as individuals and not as groups."

There is general agreement on the commission that many things now called crimes ought to be decriminalized so that individuals who engage in them answer to themselves (gambling, simple drug possession, motor vehicle violations for example) through an administrative process rather than the courts.

Then, there must be jobs, punishment which fits the

The Olympic Solution

ingful. If the system works as well as it did at Lake Placid, no one will be able to get to the events and the people who came from all over the world will be furious at the Soviets for ruining their fun. If the Lake Placid transportation plans for busing are used in Moscow, there will be thousands of empty seats at every event, and television audiences all over the world will believe President Moscow — the Summer Olympics." No mention would be made of Idaho.

I'm not suggesting outright duplicity, but there is no reason why American athletes could not wear East German, Russian and Hungarian track suits, as well as U.S. ones, so the viewing audience would have a rooting interest in the results.

ART BUCHWALD

If the idea doesn't appeal to NBC, they could use a split screen and at the same moment they're running a relay race in Moscow, U.S.S.R., our men and women would be running it in Moscow, Idaho. If we beat their time, we would declare our team the winners.

The only thing Americans had to look forward to this summer were the political conventions and the Moscow Olympics.

As time goes on, more and more people say the President made a mistake. He should have urged a boycott of the political conventions and allowed Americans to participate in the games.

Carter's boycott was a smashing success.

We could even go so far as to tell the Russians that they could keep the buses after the games are over.

As for the other items for the Olympics, it seems unfair for the manufacturers, who have been working on them all winter, to take a financial bath. What do you do with the souvenirs and other products with the Moscow Olympic logo on them?

Not too many people know about it, but there is a place in the United States called Moscow, Idaho. What would be wrong with having a summer olympics in Moscow, Idaho — not so much to let our athletes compete as to give American entrepreneurs an opportunity to unload all their stock?

It could also give NBC an opportunity to get off the hook. They could televise the games, starting each program with the announcer saying, "And now — live from

Other Editors Say Wasted Efforts

Goldsboro News-Argus)

How do these things get started? Every now and then — and over the years — well-meaning individuals and organizations are caught in drives to collect cigarette packages or chewing gum wrappers or product labels for a good cause.

The causes in the past have ranged from purchases of iron lungs to provision of seeing-eye dogs.

The latest collection has been of computer price code labels. And the cause has been to "buy" time on dialysis machines — artificial kidneys.

A local club, admirably motivated and well-intentioned, notified the Kidney Foundation of North Carolina in Chapel Hill recently to say it had collected 30,000 computer price code labels for that purpose. As in the seeing-eye dog and iron lung efforts, such collections are of no value to victims of eye problems, lung diseases or kidney failure.

As for those needing services of artificial kidney machines, the Kidney Foundation explains:

In 1972 with passage of Public Law 92-603, Medicare pays for 80 percent of the patient's dialysis or transplantation costs. North Carolina is fortunate to have a Kidney Program which helps with the 20 percent balance. Also, in many instances private insurance will cover some costs. Kidney disease patients, of course, still have financial burdens because of transportation to treatments, medication, and inability to work regularly in many cases. However, the collection of price code labels will not help in any of the areas."

Through various foundations and programs, many services also are available to victims of other diseases. Before an individual or organization invests its time and effort into label or package collections to help these people it would be advisable to first check with the appropriate organization. That's a way to avoid needless ventures.

But all of us still are left pondering: How do such rumors and campaigns get started?

Absolutely no one could possibly benefit from them. They don't even qualify as good pranks.

But once underway, they are virtually impossible to exterminate. So consumed are some well-intentioned people with the desire to help, they refuse to accept the fact that they have been wasting their time.

Strength For Today

A BOOK TO BE DEVoured

The prophet Ezekiel had a vision in which an angel extended him a scroll — the ancient format of books — and commanded him to eat the scroll. The scroll was the book of the law of God. Ezekiel ate the scroll, and to his amazement it became sweet as honey in his mouth.

There is an interesting symbolism in this vision. The book, which we call the Bible today, is being extended to us as it was to Ezekiel. Our duty is not just to read it; we are to make it a part of us. We are to devour its teachings until they have been assimilated as food into our natures.

At first it seems like bitter food — law, denial, commandments that we put ourselves aside for the glory of God and the welfare of others. Later, when we make it a part of us, it becomes sweet as honey in our mouths — in our minds, in our daily work and conversation, in our thoughts and aspirations.

To the editor:

Under ERA when each person is treated equally, regardless of sex, women will be the clear losers. Most wives outlive their husbands, and anything that degrades the right of the wife to be provided for by her husband from his earnings is most hurtful at a time of life when she is most vulnerable.

If ERA is ever ratified, there will be court cases. Paul Freund of the Harvard Law School testified before the Judiciary Committee: "If anything about this proposed amendment is clear, it is that it would transform every provision of law concerning women into a constitutional issue to be ultimately resolved by the Supreme Court of the United States."

Who knows what the Supreme Court will do? More and more, we are finding that the attitude of the courts is: "Lady, you asked for equality; now we'll give it to you."

Senator Sam Ervin Jr. said he believed that the Supreme Court would reach the conclusion that the ERA annuls every existing federal and state law making any distinction between men and women, however reasonable such distinction might be in particular cases, and rob the Congress and legislatures of the 50 states of the constitutional power to enact any such laws at any time in the future.

Why take a chance on losing your Social Security benefits? By the time ERA gets to the U.S. Supreme Court it will be too late to do anything. Ask your candidates before the primary how they stand on ERA. After the election may be too late.

Underline Risk To Investors

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — What happened in commodities and securities markets last week shows why small investors should be as wary of speculating as they would be about pitching a tent on Mount St. Helens.

rumor is equivalent to shouting "fire." Wild price swings are to be expected. Speculating, such as by the Hunt brothers in silver, becomes more common than generally is recognized.

Which is to say that speculating over the short term isn't advisable for small investors any more than it would be smart for a penny ante poker player to nose his way into a big stakes tournament of sharks.

Markets are rumbling with the nervous, even desperate maneuvering of wealthy individuals, investment institutions and businesses seeking to preserve their hides or exploit opportunities.

These are big fellows; they can deal in millions of dollars at a time, and they often magnify those big investments by trading on margin. They are alert, informed and quick to act. They give fulltime to their jobs.

The long-term might be another matter; at least in the view of some of the more credible advisory services. Over a period of years, they say, the current low prices of blue chip stocks might provide good gains.

They are harassed by inflation, troubled by deep-down fears about the country's future, worried by what they see as a failure of government to deal with the issues. They are living, fighting for the moment.

While it is hard to prove that they act on "inside" information, a statement the Securities and Exchange Commission will attest to, their information is more direct, more immediate, more accurate than yours.

Their network is swift. Information that you read about in the next day's newspaper is half-a day old to

Only nervous professionals with news instantly available to them (in this instance, the news that the Hunt brothers had failed to meet margin calls on their silver holdings) could have sold so quickly.

And only steel-nerved, well-financed professionals could have jumped into such a maelstrom and expected to stay afloat. But they did; they bought when it buy seemed to be most imprudent gamble imaginable.

Farm Scene

By Michael E. Regans
Associate Agricultural

Swine operations can be divided into several kinds of production systems. These are: (1) Feeder pig production; (2) buy feeder pigs and feed them to market weight; (3) farrow-to-finish; and (4) breeding stock production. Regardless of the type of production system, swine producers should periodically check their managerial ability as reflected in the performance of their swine operation. A prospective buyer must match available resources and management to one of these systems. A producer with an existing swine operation must decide whether to expand, remain at current production level, or discontinue production.

Managerial ability may be evaluated by checking several swine production standards. When calculating a standard of performance for an operation, the producer should use an average figure for the past several years, not from one group of pigs. Accurate records are most important when evaluating performances.

Conception rate is an important consideration because if females do not conceive, there will be no pigs at farrowing time. Feed costs will be greater for the swine operation maintaining un-bred females. Facilities and buildings are used less efficiently and returns to management are reduced. Conception rate is defined as the percentage of sows exposed to the boar on the first service that actually farrow. A conception rate of above 85 percent is excellent, 75-85 percent is average, and under 70 percent is below average.

The total number of pigs farrowed alive and healthy is an important production standard. Usually the greater the average size litter, the less the overhead cost per pig and thus greater profits. Research indicates the heavy pigs at birth have the greatest chance for survival. An excellent standard of performance for number of pigs farrowed alive is 9.5 live pigs / litter. An average number is 7.5 to 9.5, and under 7.5 pigs is below average. An average birth weight for a pig is 2.5 to 3.0 pounds.

The number of pigs weaned per litter and the percentage of pigs weaned of those farrowed may indicate management problems between farrowing and weaning. On the average, producers lose more than 25 percent of the live pigs farrowed before they are weaned. Good management can reduce these deaths and result in weaning two or more additional pigs per sow per year. An average number of pigs weaned of those farrowed is 80 to 90 percent.

The average standard of performance for rate of weight gain is 1.00 to 1.25 pounds per day from birth to market. High rates of gain will result in feed cost savings and maximum use of facilities. The average number of days for a pig to reach a market weight of 220 pounds is from 174 to 217. The fastest gaining pigs are usually the most efficient converters of feed to pork. As feed costs are 65 percent to 80 percent of the total costs of swine production, a slight improvement in feed efficiency can have a big effect on profits.

Feed efficiency can be calculated for a pen of pigs or the total swine operation. For a pen of pigs from weaning to market, an average standard of performance is between 3.4 and 3.8 pounds of feed per pound of gain. For the total swine operation, the ratio of pounds of feed fed on the farm to the pounds of pork sold from the farm is between 4.00 and 4.25 pounds of feed per pound of pork for an average performance. When hogs are sold, 70 to 80 percent should grade U.S. No. One for an average standard of performance.

The above information emphasizes the necessity of a good record system for swine producers. Without accurate and complete records problems may be difficult to pinpoint and more difficult to solve.

theast's apparent approval of Teddy Kennedy's character will not travel westward. "I'm afraid we're in for a long spring," one Carter adviser snapped when he learned of Kennedy's big win in New York. With not only Jewish voters defecting but blue-collar workers also going over to Kennedy, polls in other states showing landslide Carter leads could be as meaningless as were New York's.

Unless they figure a way out of his vise, Carter's operatives concede possible loss of Pennsylvania, Michigan, Ohio and California — while still winning the nomination. That could mean a Democratic nominee politically mangled even worse than Hubert Humphrey in 1968.

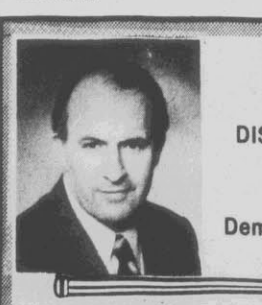

Carter's amazing resurgence last year shows the advantages of incumbency. But a second resurrection will require some initiative by the president, not merely another call to the colors in the face of national humiliation. For the moment, neither he nor his advisers know how to get out of the Rose Garden or how to leave there the policies which have estranged his party's traditional constituency.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — A patch of rain is forecast for Monday into early Tuesday on the northern Atlantic coast. Snow and rain are due over the central Plains, northern Texas and New Mexico. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
After a foggy morning, North Carolina got a sunny break from rainy weather today, and more sunshine is expected on Tuesday.

Highs were expected to reach the 60s today, with some 70s expected along the coast. Highs on Tuesday will again reach the 60s. The weather system responsible for the weekend's clouds and rain has moved to the coast and drier air moved into the state from the southwest.

Rain spread over the state Sunday but ended in the mountains during the afternoon and over the Piedmont and Coastal Plain during the evening. Some light rain and drizzle continued over the northeast until early this morning.

Temperatures Sunday ranged up to the 50s and 60s with Wilmington reaching a high of 66 degrees. Low readings this morning generally were in the 50s.

Ten Persons Are Killed On Streets, Highways

By The Associated Press
Ten persons were killed on North Carolina streets and highways this weekend, according to the state Highway Patrol.

The fatalities boosted the state's highway death toll for the year to 280, compared with 338 during the same period last year.

A head-on collision on U.S. 1 near Apex Sunday night claimed the life of at least one man. Two other persons were injured in the accident, one critically, the patrol reported. The name of the victim was not released, pending notification of his family, and details of the crash were not available.

The patrol said 14-year-old Lisa King of Lexington was killed Saturday when the motorcycle on which she was a passenger sideswiped a car. Miss King was thrown from the motorcycle and died on impact, the patrol said.

The patrol reported that Larry J. Jones, 18, of Lumberton, died Friday night when he walked into the path of a Robeson County deputy's car that was responding to a call. The accident happened in Lumberton.

Saturday night in Rowan County, 10-year-old Dwayne A. Houston of Mooresville died when the car he was riding in ran off a road, throwing Houston from the car, the patrol said. The accident occurred on N.C. 150 about eight miles west of Salisbury.

In another Rowan County accident, Nicholas M. Herbig, 24, of Mocksville, died Sunday morning when the car he was in struck a utility pole and two brick columns on U.S. 601, the patrol reported.

The patrol reported that Cleveland Hunt, 36, of Charlotte died Friday night when he stepped into the path of a car in Charlotte.

Barbara Fitzgerald, 34, of Roxboro, was killed Friday night in a two-car collision.

Two men were killed in a two-car accident Saturday morning in Columbus County. They were Kenneth W. Coleman, 42, and William Henry Pickett, 56, both of Wilmington. Dale Lee Hammer, 27, of Taylorsville was killed Saturday morning when his car ran off a rural road and struck a utility pole.

Taking Advantage Of Preservation Benefits

By The Associated Press
Smart investors in North Carolina are taking advantage of federal tax benefits that make historic preservation a paying proposition.

Those benefits are in the form of tax shelters for persons restoring historic homes, hotels, train stations or mills and converting them to commercial use.

Under the Tax Reform Act of 1976, the rehabilitation of a certified historic structure used for trade or business purposes can be written off more rapidly than the Internal Revenue Service usually permits.

For Greensboro businesswoman Carol Schiltz, the tax write-off will help her get back the money she is spending to convert a 120-year-old house into an antique shop.

Another Greensboro project that will be enhanced by the tax write-off is Wafco Mills, a planned restaurant-townhouse complex in a neighborhood near the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

Only part of the venture, conversion of the 87-year-old mill into a restaurant, is eligible for a fast tax write-off.

Similar commercial plans in the state include Durham Hosiere Mill in Durham, Arista Mills in Winston-Salem and the Cotton Exchange in Wilmington.

"In every case, the tax situation has made the difference between moving forward with the project and not doing it," said Larry Tise, chief preservation officer with the state Cultural Resources Department. "It's that close."

The tax write-off was adopted by Congress and aimed at giving wealthy investors an incentive to finance the restoration of old but historically significant buildings.

To qualify as tax shelters, historic properties must be certified by the U.S. Department of the Interior and be listed in the National Register of Historic Places. And, rehabilitation work on a building must be consistent with the historic character of the project itself.

An investor who takes advantage of provisions in the Tax Reform Act can enjoy an accelerated five-year depreciation off his taxes. This means that someone who invests $100,000 in a historic restoration for commercial purposes can write off the amount against his taxes over five years.

High Insurance Rates For N.C.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Homeowners' insurance rates in North Carolina are among the highest in 10 Eastern states, according to a report published Sunday.

And, the reason for those high rates could very well be the lack of competition.

Auto and homeowners' insurance rates in North Carolina, unlike other Eastern states, are determined by a rate bureau, an agency set up by state law and approved by the state insurance commissioner.

The N.C. rate bureau bases the rates on the loss experience of all companies doing business in the state.

In most other states surveyed by The Raleigh News and Observer, insurance companies propose their own rates based either on a company's loss experience or the loss experience data gathered by an industry organization from several companies.

The rates are subject to approval by state regulatory agencies or commissioners.

The result is that rates vary dramatically from company to company and competition thrives, industry officials say.

Insurance experts say a number of factors go into determining rates, but they say they believe the higher rates in North Carolina are partly the result of a lack of competition.

Of the 10 states surveyed, only North Carolina uses the bureau system to set rates. Experts said only two other states — Texas and Louisiana — use such a system.

The companies checked were Nationwide, Allstate and Lumbermens Mutual.

Under the most common policy, the three companies charge between $145 and $161 to cover a $40,000 home in Raleigh.

In Charleston, W.Va., that same policy costs $67 at Allstate, $76 at Nationwide and $127 at Lumbermens.

Sen. Carolyn Mathis, D-Charlotte, who chaired a legislative insurance committee, introduced a bill in the 1979 Legislature to do away with the rate bureau.

"It was the consensus of the committee that having a rating bureau protected the inefficient companies and that it would be in the best interests of the consumer to have open competition," she said.

She said she expects legislation to be introduced again in 1981 to do away with the bureau.

And, state Insurance Commissioner John Ingram said he plans to hold a news conference within a few weeks to clarify his approach "to the rate bureau problem."

Paul Mize, manager of the insurance company on the question do you or do you not want the bureau, you'd get back 'We do not want a bureau.'"

The reason, he said, was because the companies want the freedom to compete."

American Telephone & Telegraph was unchanged at 48 1/2, while Bally Manufacturing was ahead by 1 1/4 at 22 1/4. Stock prices began a comeback late Thursday after a collapse linked to a plunge in silver prices.

Tobacco....

dropped 18 percent in 1979, totaling 505 million pounds. That was about the same as export volume in 1976 and was somewhat below the level of shipments in 1975.

Last year's flue-cured crop in this country was one-fourth smaller than the previous year's because of unfavorable growing conditions, which resulted in lower quality leaf, and a 15 percent reduction in acreage. These factors plus large flue-cured stocks in major consuming countries reduced export demand.

Burley tobacco exports fell from 127 million pounds in 1978 to 116 million last year. Last year's raw leaf imports accounted for one-fifth of is likely this year.

Foreign-grown tobacco classified by the U. S. Customs Service as "scrap" is being imported into the United States at a relatively low duty rate of only 16.1 cents a pound. Farm leaders in North Carolina and other states contend that much of this tobacco is not really scrap and should be subject to the regular duty of 45 cents a pound.

Tobacco classed as scrap now accounts for 42 percent of total leaf imports. Most of it is low-grade filler used in cigarettes. Leading suppliers of scrap in 1979 were Brazil, Korea, Italy, Philippines, Turkey and Mexico.

Much larger U. S. crops of both flue-cured and burley are in prospect for 1980. However, imports are expected to continue to increase this year, particularly since ample supplies of low-cost oriental leaf and scrap filler are available in the world market.

Fewer Kilowatts For Winterville

The town of Winterville used fewer kilowatts this month than last month, according to Elwood Nobles, town clerk. Citizens burned 1,541,280 kwh in February but for March the figure dropped to 1,356,133 kwh.

Nobles attributed this drop to conservation and the weather. The rates, he reported, including the fuel charge, remained the same.

"The town of Winterville is cooperating with GUC in order to get off VEPCO and switch to CP & L," he stated. "We are trying hard."

Strabismus, seeing everything twice in side-by-side, tilted or superimposed double images, affects an estimated four million Americans today. Abraham Lincoln was even bothered by this. Glasses with a proper prescription are very helpful for this affliction. Some people try to adjust their sight by head-tilting, squinting or suppression of one eye's vision. These maneuvers can influence character development when strabismus occurs in childhood. Most youngsters adjust fairly well to life with the aid of corrective glasses.

From child to adult, CLEAR VUE OPTICIANS, 1705 8th, Physicians Quadrangle Building A, offers professional attention to your corrective lens needs. Come in today where, within the confines of our own lab, we will prepare your lenses in accordance with your doctor's prescription, pay careful attention to the final fit as well as concern ourselves with the selection of a frame that is fashionable as well as functional. # ON SOUTHERN RAILWAY, THIS TRACTOR LOADER TRAVELS 61 MILES ON ONE GALLON OF FUEL.

"Guess how far it could travel on a truck."

L. Stanley Crane, Chairman
 Southern Railway System, Washington, D.C. 20013

The railroad is the most efficient user of fuel in the transportation industry. Bar none.

And the Southern Railway is one of the most efficient railroads in the country.

For instance, on the Southern this 7,354-lb. tractor loader travels 61 miles on one gallon of fuel. How far could a truck carry it on the same amount of fuel? Well, the railroad is, on average, about four times more fuel-efficient than trucks and 60 times more efficient than planes. So it's easy to see that trucks can't carry freight anywhere near as far as railroads can per gallon of fuel.

What does this mean for the future? Well, it means that trucks will be used less and less for long hauls.

More and more products will ride on the Southern, and trucks will be used for distribution at the other end of the line. Because, in the coming years, only the railroad will have the energy-efficiency for long hauls.

We have the energy for the long haul.

Jesse Owens Dead At 66

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Jesse Owens, the black 1936 Olympic track star whose four gold medal victories embarrassed Adolf Hitler's theories of Aryan superiority, died today at a Tucson hospital, authorities said.

Owens, who had been suffering from a lung infection and inoperable lung cancer, died at 3:40 MST at the University of Arizona Health Sciences Center, said hospital spokesman Hal Marshall.

His wife Ruth was at his side, another spokesman Pat Benchik said.

Owens first was hospitalized Dec. 12 in Chicago where his illness was diagnosed as adenocarcinoma, a cancer doctors said usually is associated with heavy cigarette smoking. Doctors said Owens had smoked about a pack of cigarettes a day for 35 years.

In January, Owens began undergoing treatment in Tucson. Early in March he returned to the Phoenix area, where he has operated a public relations firm, but a week ago he was transferred to Tucson for further treatment.

Owens was 22 when his record-setting performance in Berlin shattered German leader Adolf Hitler's hopes for Aryan supremacy at the Games.

Owens had recently opposed President Carter's call for boycotting the Moscow Olympics, saying politics have no place in the Games.

Such was the magnitude of Owens' Olympic feat in the 1936 Berlin Games that it became a standard, a yardstick by which other accomplishments were measured.

When swimmer Mark Spitz won an extraordinary seven gold medals in the 1976 Summer Games in Munich, it was compared to Owens' record. And when Eric Heiden swept five gold medals in speed skating events at the 1980 Winter Games in Lake Placid, N.Y., again it was Owens' name that surfaced for comparison.

Perhaps the best indication of his greatness, though, was that it took four decades before the last of his 11 world records in track and field vanished from the record books.

"I looked upon them as a part of history," he said in 1975, shortly after his name disappeared from the list of record-holders. "I was proud to be involved in that history-making process, but I have nothing but admiration for the kids coming along today."

Owens was not able to use his Olympic victory for a movie or sports career because of the racial situations at the time. However, ultimately, he became a successful businessman, a national spokesman for the American Olympic movement and the State Department's "Ambassador to Sports."

And 40 years after President Franklin D. Roosevelt failed to invite him to the White House, President Gerald R. Ford honored Owens by presenting him with the Presidential Medal of Freedom at the White House on Aug. 5, 1976.

He was born James Cleveland Owens on Sept. 12, 1913, in the cotton-growing community of Oakville, Ala., one of seven children, a grandson of slaves. He picked up the name Jesse from his initials, when a teacher ran them together, calling him "J.C."

His family moved to Cleveland when he was 9, and he began running. "We had nothing to do but run," he said. "We couldn't afford any kind of equipment, so we ran and ran and ran."

Six years later, he began earning records while attending Cleveland East Technical High School.

His prowess brought a scholarship to Ohio State University, where he earned the nickname, "The Buckeye Bullet." During a meet at Ann Arbor, Mich., on May 25, 1935, Owens had what is acknowledged to be the greatest single day by any track and field performer.

In a scant 45 minutes he broke five world records and tied one. And a year later, his victories embarrassed Hitler's theory of a master race.

Baseball Talks Players Seem Ready For Strike

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Strike two or play ball?

That question will almost certainly be answered in Dallas Tuesday, but a bet on at least the setting of a strike date by major league baseball players is as safe as a wager on Spectacular Bid.

Representatives of the Players Association and team owners met for more than nine hours Sunday with Ken Moffett, deputy director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service. And, in the word of the union's executive director, Marvin Miller, "nothing happened."

The Players Association's executive board will meet in Dallas Tuesday to determine when and if a strike will be called. The "if" no longer seems to apply.

"This was a complete waste of time," Miller said of Sunday's meeting with the owners. "There isn't the slightest basis for their calling the mediation service with no intention of negotiating or listening to our viewpoint."

"This entire day was spent on the owners' demands, nothing on the players' proposal."

Miller was asked if he anticipated a long strike.

"I certainly don't anticipate a short one, not if they have the strike insurance I keep hearing about," he said. "I think they (the owners) are doing everything possible to provoke a strike. It's as clear as can be. They're acting like 4-year-olds."

Miller said there was no doubt in his mind that the owners were trying to break the union. He said there could be no other reason that they would be willing to take such financial losses.

"I think they're successful in terms of provoking a strike," he said. "Willie Stargell would give them a star."

Moffett said there would be another meeting but he wasn't sure when.

"I'll be in touch with both sides after Tuesday," he said. "I would have to say the meeting today was basically one where we explored the compensation issue, which seems to be the most important issue on both sides. It's the only issue we really went into."

"We made no progress as far as coming to an agreement on this issue is concerned. A lot of suggestions were made in both private caucuses and in joint meetings. Neither side made any concessions. It's going to take a while; there's about a hundred issues and we only talked about one."

Moffett referred to a proposal by the owners to adjust the amount of compensation a team receives after losing a free agent. The owners proposed that a team signing a "highly sought" free agent be required to give up a player, rather than an amateur draft choice, in return. The free agent's new team could protect only 15 of its players in that selection process.

The only other strike in major league history occurred in 1972. It lasted 13 days, including the first nine days of what became a shortened season. The current difficulties seem much more extreme.

Four dates have been mentioned as possible strike days — immediately, on April 9, the scheduled opening day of the 1980 season; Memorial Day weekend and July 10, immediately after the All-Star game.

Miller met with the California

Angels prior to Sunday's meeting with the owners and mediator. It was the 26th and final team he had discussed the situation with, and the Angels voted 30-0 for authorizing a strike on or after Tuesday.

That made the total vote 967-1.

The lone dissenter was reportedly Jerry Terrell of the Kansas City Royals.

"I don't intend to make any recommendations, it's up to the players," said Miller, referring to when a strike should be called. "The executive board will make that decision."

It has been speculated that the players wouldn't strike immediately so that they could collect a few paychecks before going out. Players don't collect their regular salary during spring training. They're only given expense money.

Representatives of the owners at Sunday's meeting were Ray Grebey, the chief negotiator; Chub Feeney, president of the National League, and Lee MacPhail, the American League president. As has been their custom throughout the talks, none would discuss the situation with reporters.

Miller has said repeatedly that the owners haven't negotiated. He was asked if this surprised him.

"No, not really," he said. "They telegraphed this a long time ago. About five months ago, a high baseball official who shall remain unnamed told me that he thought the negotiations would be easy. He told me the owners have to have a victory.

"I don't know how you deal with that kind of thinking. We want to deal with the real problem. There's no victory in collective bargaining."

Perhaps coincidentally, the players' pension agreement with major league baseball, which was the basis for the 1972 strike, expires tonight. Donald M. Fehr, attorney for the union, was asked if that had any effect on a possible strike or the date which players might set as a strike deadline.

"The answer is yes, but it's not that simple," he said. "It just so happens that the pension plan expires at the approximate end of spring training. If the pension agreement was still under effect, we would still have the same situation that exists now."

Miller said that even if the executive board picks a later date on which to strike, the players may decide not to play exhibition games from April 4 on.

Bullets Win, Face 76ers In NBA Mini-Series

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

The Washington Bullets did what they had to do to make the playoffs for the 12th consecutive season, but guard Kevin Grevey wasn't pouring any champagne.

"It's a fluke for us to be in the playoffs," conceded Grevey, who scored 23 points to lead the Bullets to a 93-87 victory over the New Jersey Nets Sunday, the final day of the National Basketball Association's regular season.

"We shouldn't be here, not the way we played this season," added Grevey. "This certainly salvaged a disappointing season."

Beating the Nets gave the Bullets a 39-43 record, the same as the New York Knicks. But Washington got the final Eastern Conference playoff berth by virtue of a better record against conference foes.

"There's no relief over winning this game," said Bullets forward Elvin Hayes. "We're not as strong as we'd like to be, but we'll strike some fear in a few hearts."

The playoffs begin Wednesday night with the opening games of four best-of-three first-round mini-series. Washington is at Philadelphia and San Antonio at Houston in the Eastern Conference and Portland at Seattle and Kansas City at Phoenix in the West.

Rockets 121, Pacers 106
Billy Paultz scored 28 points for Houston, which led by just 55-54 at halftime but pulled away after intermission to gain the home-court advantage against San Antonio, their cross-state rival. Both teams finished with 41-41 records and they were 3-3 head-to-head, but Houston had the better intra-conference record.

Sonics 135, Blazers 104
Gus Williams scored 23 points and all 10 Seattle players hit double figures as the defending champion Sonics beat Portland in their playoff preview. The 31-point margin was Seattle's largest of the season and the win was the Sonics' fifth in six games against their Pacific Northwest rival.

Spurs 144, Pistons 124
Larry Kenon poured in a career-high 51 points and George

Gervin wrapped up his third straight scoring title as San Antonio finished its season at the .500 mark. Detroit's road record dropped to 3-38 and its overall mark to 16-66, both NBA lows, but the Pistons don't even benefit from that because they sent their top draft choice to Boston as part of the M.L. Carr free agent move.

Lakers 95, Warriors 93
Jim Chones took a pass from Earvin Johnson and stuffed in the shot with two seconds remaining to give Los Angeles a one-point lead. He was also fouled on the play and sank the free throw for the final margin as the Lakers won their fifth in a row.

Golden State finished at 24-58, tied with Utah for the worst mark in the Western Conference. A blind draw was to be held today at NBA headquarters to determine which team will go up against Boston in Tuesday's coin flip for the first pick overall in the draft.

76ers 116, Celtics 110
Seldom-used rookie Jim Sparnkel had 19 points, 10 assists and five rebounds, all pro highs, to lead Philadelphia to victory. The 76ers were without starters Julius Erving and Maurice Cheeks and Boston did not play Dave Cowens and Cedric Maxwell, although all are expected to be ready for the playoffs.

Bucks 107, Jazz 91
Junior Bridgeman scored 20 points and rookie Pat Cumings added 17, all but one in the second half, as the Bucks beat Utah to raise their record to 20-6 since they obtained center Bob Lanier in midseason.

Cavs 111, Hawks 102
Dave Robisch scored 31 points and grabbed 16 rebounds for Cleveland, which closed its season with victories in 10 of its last 12 games.

Suns 122, Clippers 104
Walter Davis scored 23 points, including 10 in a row midway through the final period as Phoenix beat San Diego to complete its most successful season with a 55-27 record. San Diego lost its last seven games to finish at 35-47.

Kings 114, Bulls 110
Otis Birdsong scored 28 points, including a key layup with 17 seconds to play, as Kansas City beat Chicago.

The horrible weather conditions that have been prevalent during the month of March played havoc with spring sports practice and schedules both on the high school and collegiate level.

East Carolina baseball coach Hal Baird purposely cut back on his team's schedule this year, reducing the number of games played with non-Division I teams, hoping to improve the team's standing in the eye of those who pick teams for the various NCAA regionals.

But since the start of the year, the Pirates have lost more games to the weather than they have to opposing teams.

After Sunday's rain-out with Fairfield, the Pirates stand 13-2, having lost only to South Carolina and Virginia. Despite switching some games around, the Pirates had expected to have played 22 games. So they've lost seven so far, although the two lost to Virginia Commonwealth on Saturday may still be made up. There is also a possibility of a doubleheader with Fairfield on Wednesday, but that will depend on that team's luck with the weather in their three games between now and then. A doubleheader is likely only if the Stags lose a game to the weather between now and Wednesday.

The Pirates have also added a pair of games with Southern Vermont over next weekend. If they do get these six in, and don't lose any more to the weather, that could pull them almost back to even.

And if the Pirates continue to play the type of winning ball they're playing now, it would be difficult for the NCAA to overlook them.

Already Pirate pitchers have flirted with a no-hitter, and threatened the single game strikeout record, held by Baird, of 14.

And this year's group of seniors is going to just about re-write the entire record book.

Already, Billy Best holds the record for most at-bats in a career; most career runs; most career hits; most career triples; most career runs batted in; most career stolen bases and is likely to be the man who fanned the least in his career.

Raymie Styons is right behind Best in career at bats, currently fourth in hits, fifth in doubles; second in home runs; fourth in runs batted in.

Butch Davis is fourth in career runs; fifth in hits; fourth in doubles; third in triples; first in home runs; and second in runs batted in.

Macon Moye is second in career doubles and Best is tied for fifth. Rick Derechailo is tied for fifth in home runs.

Among pitchers, Mickey Britt is tops in career appearances; tops in innings pitched; first in career wins; second in career losses; first in strikeouts; first in walks, first in runs allowed; first in earned runs allowed; and first in hits allowed.

Rick Ramey, a junior, is fifth in hits allowed, third in runs allowed, fourth in walks allowed; and fourth in losses. He stands to move up in other categories before he's through.

Davis, by the way, is just two home runs short of tying the single season record of ten, held by Derechailo, and currently has a 13-game hitting streak going, thanks to a freak triple Saturday night when an outfielder lost his hit ball in the lights.

Another month of the season still lies ahead. If April is a successful as March, Baird and his charges may be playing on into May.

Final Round Today Three Tied For Lead At Heritage Classic

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — With four players locked within a single shot of each other going into today's rain-delayed final round of the $300,000 Heritage Golf Classic, a variety of possibilities exist.

One that does not exist, however, is that John Mahaffey will be wearing a live television microphone.

"That will not happen," Mahaffey said Sunday after a double bogey by Jerry Pate put Mahaffey and Doug Tewell in a tie for the lead in the weather-plagued, twice-delayed event. Pate and Johnny Miller were a single shot back.

"I say too many things under my breath for me to be wearing a mike," Mahaffey said.

Tom Kite, Bruce Lietzke and Lanny Wadkins were wearing live mikes Saturday when they said some things on national television which, Kite admitted, would better be left unsaid.

The remarks — with Kite, Lietzke and Wadkins criticizing John Schroeder as a slow player — stirred up a controversy among the four touring pros.

"Obviously I'm very upset," Schroeder said when given an opportunity to rebut the remarks on national television Sunday. "It really shocked me. It shows no class, the poorest kind of judgment."

Kite said he knew he "was wired for sound" but did not expect the remarks to be relayed on national television. "We were standing around waiting to hit. You don't expect to be on camera when you're just standing around," he said.

A rainout of Friday's play had set up a double round of 36 holes for Sunday. But steady rains Saturday night again flooded the Harbour Town Golf Links and made morning play impossible. The final round was reset for Monday.

The round was played in gusty, tricky winds which sent score soaring and played a part in the most critical shot of the day, a tee shot that set up Pate's double bogey on the par-31st hole. It happened well after the national television cameras had ended their coverage.

"I just got my body in front of it," Pate said. "With the wind, it went well to the right." He flubbed his chip from wet rough, got on in three and 2-putted. He went from one ahead to one behind.

Mahaffey, who beat Pate in a playoff for the 1978 PGA title, shot a 70, and was tied with Tewell at 207, six under par. Tewell, seeking his first victory in five years of tour activity,

Holmes-Jones Bout Heads Fight Show

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Larry Holmes defends his world heavyweight championship for the sixth time tonight, still fighting in the shadow of Muhammad Ali.

Holmes defends the World Boxing Council-title against Leroy Jones at Caesars Palace as part of a four championship-fight television show which also includes John Tate's World Boxing Association heavyweight title defense against Mike Weaver in Knoxville, Tenn.

But most of the talk among the fight crowds here and in Knoxville seems to concern Ali's comeback.

Promoter Bob Arum claims the winner of the Tate-Weaver fight will defend against Ali in a $10 million bout at the New Orleans Superdome in late June.

Calling Holmes the real heavyweight champion and Tate "a figment of Bob Arum's imagination," promoter Don King contended Sunday that no Ali fight was set and that if the retired three-time champion does come back, it should be against Holmes.

King and Arum both have said they have a commitment to ABC for a fight to unify the heavyweight championship in the fall. Holmes doesn't intend to sit around and wait for the fall. He wants to fight again in May or June and a likely opponent could be Scott LeDoux or Leon Spinks.

But the matter of the moment for the 6-foot-3, 211-pound Holmes is the 6-5, 254½-pound Jones.

The smart money guys don't think Holmes should have any trouble despite Jones' size and his 24-0-1 record. Holmes is a prohibitive favorite.

It's not who he fights, but when he fights that has Holmes upset.

The four-fight show from Knoxville, Landover, Md., and here is scheduled to be televised by ABC from 8 p.m. to midnight EST. Holmes has been told that he could go on as early as 10 p.m. or as late as 11:50 p.m., meaning the champion could sit in a dressing room, taped up and ready to fight for almost two hours.

From 1935 through 1979, 12 quarterbacks were Heisman Award winners.

After Win, Earnhardt Eyes Title

BRISTOL, Tenn. (AP) — Dale Earnhardt of Kannapolis, N.C., continued his bid for the Grand National stock car point title Sunday by winning his second race in a row, capturing the Southeastern 500 at Bristol International Raceway.

It was the third Grand National victory of his career for Earnhardt, the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing rookie of the year in 1979, who won his first race here last year in the Southeastern 500.

Earnhardt, who won the Atlanta 500 two weeks ago, averaged 96.977 mph in a Chevrolet over the 533-mile, high-banked Bristol track in a race in which there were three caution flags for 14 laps.

Last year's NASCAR point runner-up, Darrell Waltrip of Franklin, Tenn., was second in a Chevrolet after starting on the outside pole and Bobby Allison of Hueytown, Ala., was third in a Ford.

Benny Parsons of Ellerbe, N.C., finished fourth in a Chevrolet and pole-winner Cale Yarborough of Timmonsville, S.C., was fifth in a Chevrolet after running ahead in the early stages of the race.

Six drivers exchanged the lead 15 times.

"They know I like to come up here and run on this track," Earnhardt said of his pit crew. "I ran good all day. The guys did a good job. It was just a good day."

East Carolina's baseball game with Fairleigh University, scheduled for Sunday afternoon at Harrington Field, was washed out because of rain.

Coach Hal Baird said that it was uncertain whether the game would be made up. The two teams meet again Wednesday at Harrington in a 3 p.m. game. There is a possibility that a doubleheader will be played, but it will not be finalized until Tuesday night or Wednesday morning.

Baird said efforts are also underway to reschedule the Saturday doubleheader with Virginia Commonwealth for later in the year.

Staubach Set To Retire From Football

DALLAS (AP) — Quarterback Roger Staubach was expected to announce today the end of his spectacular career with the Dallas Cowboys in which he earned every honor except All-Pro.

Staubach, 38, the highest rated passer in National Football League history, called his own news conference at Texas Stadium for high noon to give his decision.

Waiting in the wings to battle for Staubach's job were Danny White and young Glenn Carano, understudies to one of the NFL's all-time stars.

As a collegian at the Naval Academy and an 11-year pro with the Cowboys, Staubach won two coveted awards: the Heisman Trophy at Navy and Super Bowl VI Most Valuable Player.

He was a 10th-round draft choice by the Cowboys in 1964 and served four years in the Navy before he joined the NFL team.

Staubach, who guided Dallas to two Super Bowl victories, won his fourth league passing title in 1979 when he almost personally carried the Cowboys to an 11-5 record and the Eastern Division championship of the National Football Conference.

Staubach brought Dallas from behind five times to victory as the Cowboys' defense crumbled.

"We could have lost five more games if it hadn't been for Roger," Coach Tom Landry said. "He had a great year."

Staubach also was knocked out five times, a statistic that concerned wife Marianne and the Cowboys' brass. He went to doctors in New York City and Dallas for extensive examinations. Staubach has had no lingering problems although in one game he lost feeling in his legs for about 10 minutes.

Staubach, who was making some $200,000 a year, has extensive business interests here, including real estate. Also, he has numerous endorsements and is being heavily courted by the television networks as a commentator.

The 6-foot-3, 202-pound Staubach often joked about not making All-Pro although he was in numerous Pro Bowls.

Staubach was always hurt in the voting because he did not get to call his own plays under Landry's messenger system.

"Sure, I would like to call my own plays, but you can't argue with Coach Landry's success," Staubach said often.

Staubach has a career completion percentage of more than 56 percent and gained an average of more than 5 yards every time he rambled downfield on one of his famed scrambles. He gained an average of almost 8 yards with every pass and threw for almost 150 touchdowns.

Staubach tried to live down his "good guy" family man reputation with practical jokes that included walking the ledge in front of a window to give General Manager and President Tex Schramm "a jolt."

Correction

In Sunday's "Reflector" Curtis Spencer was identified as the Eastern Carolina Conference 100-yard dash champ from last year. The ECC title holder is Curtis Joyner, not Spencer.

Mantovani Died In His Sleep Saturday

TUNBRIDGE WELLS, England (AP) — Mantovani, the orchestra leader whose silky, string-filled renditions brought easy-listening light classics to an audience of millions, has died. He was 74.

He died in his sleep Saturday night after being taken ill at his son's home in this resort town southeast of London. The cause of death was not disclosed but a family spokesman said he had been in "delicate health" for some time.

Born Annunzio Paolo Mantovani in Venice, Italy on Nov. 15, 1905, he was known to his listeners simply as Mantovani.

He was the first person to sell a million stereophonic records in the United States. Through the 50s and 60s his long-playing albums earned about a dozen gold records, as did his hit single, "Charmaine," which became synonymous with Mantovani's name.

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦AK6 ♥A105 ♦AKJ7 ♦KQJ

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 3 NT Pass 4 NT Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—First of all, if you thought that North was asking for aces, it's time you hauled out the book and refreshed your memory. North's raise in no trump is quantitative! Since the minimum laid down for an opening three no trump bid is 25 points, and that's exactly what you have, you should politely refuse the invitation. Pass.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦AJ2 ♥K109853 ♦7 ♦KQ5

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1 ♥ Pass 2 ♥ Pass 2 ♥ Pass 3 ♦ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—North is suggesting a sub-minimum two-over-one response with a long diamond suit. The hand reeks of a misfit, and you have a minimum opening bid that is not improved by your singleton in partner's suit. It's time to get out of the auction before the opponents start doubling. Pass—don't even think about bidding that ratty heart suit another time.

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1 ♥ Pass 2 ♥ Pass 4 ♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?

The bidding has proceeded: West North East South 1 ♦ 2 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—By making a vulnerable overall, partner has promised a hand that should produce six tricks with hearts as trumps. Your hand has three sure tricks and several chances for a fourth. Don't put pressure on partner with a pusillanimous raise to three hearts. Contract for game with a firm four hearts.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦7 ♥8742 ♦AK9 ♦KJ854

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1 ♥ 1 ♦ 2 ♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Partner's bid should not thrill you unduly. Since most of your strength is in diamonds and partner is probably short in the suit for his cue-bid, your diamond values are wasted. Don't show your anemic heart suit now—you might not be able to keep the subsequent auction under control. We think it is wisest to warn partner of the possible duplication by bidding two no trump.

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1 ♥ Pass 2 ♥ Pass 3 ♥ Pass 4 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—It looks as if big things are in store. However, you are not in a position to judge how high the final contract should be. It is incumbent upon you now to cue-bid the ace of spades to tell partner you are definitely slam-bound and have first-round spade control.

Sometimes the best part of a game is hearing the announcers trying to explain what went wrong with the losers. This game is no different.

Sports fans were probably sensing a disappointing spectacle. As Super Bowls past have demonstrated, a dull game is a dull game, even if it is for all the marbles. And there is no dull game like a laugher.

But one lonely television voice in Illinois reminded fans that, as Yogi Berra once said, "It's not over till it's over."

"This is only the month of March," NBC's John Chancellor said, "we've had 10 primaries, but there are still 28 more to go. The best advice we can give you is, don't make any big bets."

Well, he was right. One week later, to the astonishment of our television messengers, Kennedy cleaned up in New York and Connecticut. Suddenly, television realized it was only the bottom of the fourth inning, and Kennedy was still at bat.

Politics aside, this was fun. You could hear the fans heading back to their seats as network correspondents struggled to explain the surprising turn.

At that moment, Cronkite's question was being asked of Reagan himself by Barbara Walters of ABC. "I'm not going to claim a final victory for the convention at this early stage," Reagan said.

But his caution was not infectious. The TV correspondents knew that this game was a laugher. It was Reagan and Carter in the fall.

An NBC correspondent reckoned that George Bush, who finished third in Illinois behind Reagan and home-stater Anderson, "may be starting to think in other ways about his political future, maybe the No. 2 spot."

CBS' Bruce Morton said of Kennedy's defeat: "It was a stunning repudiation for a politician who six months ago seemed to own almost all he surveyed. He now seems to own almost nothing."

Morton Dean of CBS pronounced the Kennedy and Bush campaigns "in the political emergency room."

Relations Said Told In Diaries

By The Associated Press
 Tehran authorities say they have found diaries detailing an Iranian revolutionary guardswoman's alleged sexual relations with a Marine who is now among the 50 American hostages at the U.S. Embassy.
 Ali Akbar Parvaneh, a Justice Ministry investigator, said he will probably question the Marine about his relations with the 23-year-old woman who was reported hanged by her brother Thursday after he discovered she was pregnant.
 A spokesman for the militants occupying the embassy said they are prepared to hand over the Marine, identified as Staff Sgt. Michael Moeller of Loup City, Neb., for questioning.

bassy, told them she was raped by the American.
 The girl's brother, who turned himself in to police after the hanging, said that "I only killed my sister in order to save the honor of my family," the Tehran newspaper Kayhan reported Saturday.
 The newspaper also quoted him as saying "the spy must be executed."
 No charges have been made by the revolutionary regime against Moeller.
 In Iran, it is a crime for a man to have sexual relations with a woman who is not his wife. Conviction can lead to a sentence of up to 10 years imprisonment, depending on the case.

Investigators say they have found three of the dead woman's notebooks discussing her alleged sexual relations with Moeller, which were supposed to have taken place two months before the embassy takeover Nov. 4.

Parvaneh also said some witnesses state the woman, one of the guards assigned to the em-

The Champions

Professional boxing's two world heavyweight champions are scheduled to fight tonight, but they won't be fighting each other. Larry Holmes, right, meets Leroy Jones for the World Boxing Council's version of the title. World Boxing Association champion John Tate battles challenger Mike Weaver. Tate won the WBA title in an elimination tournament after Muhammad Ali retired last year. Tonight's fight is his first title defense. Holmes won the WBC title by defeating Ken Norton in 1978. Since then, he has knocked out all five opponents who have tried to take the title away from him. A fight between the two champions to unify the title has not yet been set.

DO YOU KNOW — How many rounds are most professional title bouts scheduled to last?

FRIDAY'S ANSWER — A serious accident occurred last year at the Three Mile Island nuclear plant.
