Union Carbide To 'More Than Double' Local Plant

By TOM BAINES

Reflector Staff Writer
Officials at the Union Carbide Corp. Battery Products Division plant here informed employees Monday of plans for a major plant expansion.

Union Carbide said that plans call for an expansion of the Greenville facility to more than double its present size.

Construction of the plant addition is scheduled to begin during the third quarter of 1980 and continue through the fourth quarter of 1981, company officials reported.

Employment levels, it was mentioned, will show a gradual increase during 1980 and 1981 and a significant increase beginning in 1982 as they begin occupying the new building.

Officials noted that the Greenville plant presently produces the general purpose and heavy duty battery lines and with the expansion will phase in production of the new Alkaline "Energizer" line.

Greenville plant officials credited the "loyalty and dedication" of their employees and retirees for making the expansion plans a reality. They also mentioned the company's "long and enjoyable association with the Greenville community."

Union Carbide has been part of Greenville's industrial community since 1944 and has been producing the nationally recognized "Eveready" Battery since 1948.

The plant is located on the 264 Bypass at the Evans Street intersection.

Commenting on Union Carbide's expansion announcement, Mayor Don McGlohon observed, "It's always encouraging when one of our fine corporate citizens indicates its confidence in our community through plant expansion."

McGlohon added, "We have always been very proud of Union Carbide and look forward to their continuing successful operations in Greenville."

The chairman of the Pitt County Development Commission, Bruce Beasley, said that the expansion "reinforces the commitment Union Carbide made to Greenville some 25 years ago." Beasley said the planned addition is a "compliment to the confidence the officials of Union Carbide have in the future of Greenville and Pitt County."

The commission spokesman related, "For the last several years, our main objective has been the attraction of high technology, high wage job opportunities for the area. This important announcement is the first of several which we forecast over the next few months."

Development Commission officials indicated that existing industry plans for over 100,000 additional square feet and a minimum of 100 additional new jobs are possible within the next 60 to 90 days.

Ed Warren, chairman of the Pitt Board of County Commissioners, commented today, "We are elated about it. There is a real need for this type of expansion."

Warren said the industrial action represents a "tremendous boost for us in the area and we are extremely excited about it."

Highlights Of Carter Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are the highlights of the $17.2 billion in spending cuts President Carter proposed Monday to produce a balanced budget for 1981:

TOTAL BUDGET: Revenues estimated at $628 billion and outlays put at $611.5, to produce a $16.5 billion surplus — the largest in U.S. history. Carter's original 1981 budget had called for $600 billion in revenues and $615.8 billion in outlays, to produce a $15.8 billion deficit.

NEW PROGRAMS: Some

$4 billion in spending cuts would result from deferring or reducing new programs. The biggest savings include deleting anti-recession aid to local governments, $1 billion; delaying a welfare reform program, $859 million, and delaying energy alternative and assistance projects, $1.1 billion.

FEDERAL PAY AND RETIREMENT: Cost-of-living adjustments for federal retirees would be reduced to once a year from

Carter Defers New Sanctions On Iran

By GEORGE GEDDA

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said today that Iranian statements concerning the transfer of American hostages to government custody are a "positive development," and he deferred imposing new sanctions against Tehran.

NBC News reported that the militants today had declared that they would hold the hostages at least until the new Iranian Parliament convenes, probably in mid-summer. But there were later reports from Tehran that the militants were denying have made such a statement.

Carter was asked whether the United States would meet the conditions set by Iranian officials for a transfer, but he made no acknowledgment that such conditions had been imposed.

Speaking to a small group of reporters in the Oval Office, the president did not say when he expected the transfer to take place.

"The president of Iran has made a positive step by announcing that control of the hostages and their protection and care will be shifted to the government," Carter said. He said he had no assurances that the transfer actually would be carried out but was taking Iranian President Abolhasan Bani-Sadr at his word for now.

Earlier, at a rally in Tehran, Bani-Sadr set conditions on the transfer. He said the government would take custody of the hostages only after the United States issues an official statement agreeing to initiate no hostilities or propaganda against Iran.

Carter said if Bani-Sadr had not said the control of the hostages would be transferred, "we were considering additional sanctions against Iran." He did not elaborate. He said: "We would like to see this positive development continued and our foremost consideration will be devoted to the earliest possible release of the hostages."

However, Carter refused to answer directly when asked if the United States had agreed to the conditions for the transfer.

Carter said he had decided to impose additional sanctions against Iran about a week ago, and communicated that intent to Iran. He added that the United States "will maintain the present restrictions on trade that have already been put on Iran."

The hostages have been held since Nov. 4 when militants seized the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, demanding that the deposed Shah of Iran be turned over to the government for prosecution.

NBC News reported that the militants today had declared the hostages would be held at least until the new Iranian Parliament convenes, probably in mid-summer, to consider the hostage issue.

Charged

FORT BRAGG, N.C.

(AP) — A Fort Bragg Army private has been charged with murder in the death of an officer who fell to his death last week in a parachute malfunction now believed to be the result of sabotage.

Pfc. Alvin Williams was taken to the Cumberland County Jail about 11:40 p.m. Monday, where he was charged with the murder of Capt. Lawrence D. Hill.

Hill fell to his death last Wednesday when his parachute failed to open while making a routine proficiency jump over the base's Holland Drop Zone.

Meanwhile, The Fayetteville Observer reported today that the 82nd Airborne Division is rechecking more than 40,000 parachutes in its equipment stocks to see if the alleged sabotage is more widespread.

Dr. Ira Hardy Being Honored

Greenville physician Dr. Ira M. Hardy II is being honored tonight in Charlotte with the Outstanding Physician Award for his professional endeavors during the annual banquet of the Governor's Advocacy Council for Persons with Disabilities.

Dr. Hardy was nominated for the award by the North Carolina Medical Society through its Committee on Rehabilitation Medicine. He is in the private practice of neurological surgery and is associate clinical professor of surgery at the ECU School of Medicine.

The purpose of the banquet, which follows a day-long public issues conference, is to focus public attention on the abilities, rather than the disabilities, of our handicapped citizens, said Council Chairperson Marian Grant of Raleigh. Jane Smith Patterson, Acting Secretary of the N. C. Department of Administration, will address the several hundred persons expected to attend. She will present to the award to Dr. Hardy.

Also honored will be Harriet Starmer of Greensboro, Outstanding Handicapped Citizen; Marie Bell of Pleasant Garden, Distinguished Service; Doris Holland of Gastonia; Mark Johnson of Charlotte; Cathy Travis of Hickory; Ronald Earl Taylor of Goldsboro; and Three Mountaineers Inc. of Asheville.

Hollowell Urges New Leadership

By TOM BAINES

Emphasizing a campaign theme of "Action rather than Reaction," Edenton Democrat Joe Hollowell is working hard to unseat a veteran member of the U.S. House of Representatives.

Hollowell is aware that in trying to win the First Congressional District seat now held by Walter Jones of Farmville, he is attempting to accomplish something that previous challengers to Jones' post have been unable to do.

FIRES IN CONTAINERS

I am disturbed that there have been so many fires in the refuse containers the county is now providing throughout the county. These sites are a wonderful help to Pitt County citizens and it's despicable that anyone would intentionally be causing damage to the containers and calling on the volunteer firemen of the county to have to go out and extinguish such blazes. L. T.

Pitt County Manager Reginald Gray agrees with you. He reported in a recent memo that the county will soon increase the number of sites available to citizens from nine to 13.

He said investigation has tended to support your belief that some of the fires have been intentionally set. Others, he said, may have been the result of hot ashes carelessly disposed of in the containers. The fires and also the extinguishing of the fires tend to damage the containers, which are, of course, taxpayer-owned and maintained, he said.

Such fire-fighting is, of course, not the best use of the firefighters' time, effort and equipment. He urged caution as to disposing of combustible and hot material in the containers and also suggested that intentionally set fires be reported to the Sheriff Department or appropriate Police Department.

For further information on the containers' sites and refuse disposal, one may contact the Environmental Health Section of the Pitt County Health Department, 752-4141, Ext. 37.

Lt. Governor Green Campaigns In Greenville

DURING HOSPITAL VISIT ... campaign worker A. B. Whitley, Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green, and Ed Monroe, associate dean for external affairs at the medical school, talk of progress at the medical center.

By STUART SAVAGE

Reflector Staff Writer

Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green, on the campaign trail seeking reelection to the State's second highest post, formally opened his campaign headquarters here yesterday afternoon, visited Pitt Memorial Hospital and the East Carolina University School of Medicine facilities there, then attended a dinner sponsored by the Pitt County Democratic Women, with a number of local and state candidates.

At his campaign headquarters opening Green said he has had, "wonderful response, people couldn't be nicer," in his bid for the Democratic nomination as lieutenant governor in the May primary.

"This is an important county to me," Green emphasized, "with East Carolina University...the medical school..."

He noted that the School of Medicine at ECU is the, "fruit of some hard work from many of us, and it's going to grow...has to grow. It's something the people in the State can be proud of."

"North Carolina is the best state in the nation," Green said, adding that, "Pitt County and its people are some of the best in the State."

Visiting the hospital, Green toured the neo-natal unit, saw the Brody Medical Science Building, and looked at other facilities at the medical complex funded by the state as part of the ECU medical school program.

Green voiced his support for continued state funding of health care programs, especially for the neo-natal center and for services to critically ill expectant mothers.

A long-time supporter of the medical school, Green was a leader in the move to secure the $5.4 million to build an additional bed tower at the hospital, which is now under construction. He also backed the $26 million medical science building going up just North of the hospital.

Green was one of some 30 candidates or their representatives attending the Pitt Democratic Women's supper.

Candidates, in addition to Green at the session included: First District Congressman Walter Jones, Commissioner of Labor John Brooks, incumbent State Senators Vernon White and Julian Allsbrook, Senatorial candidate Mark Tipton, candidates for Commissioner of

Extended Hours

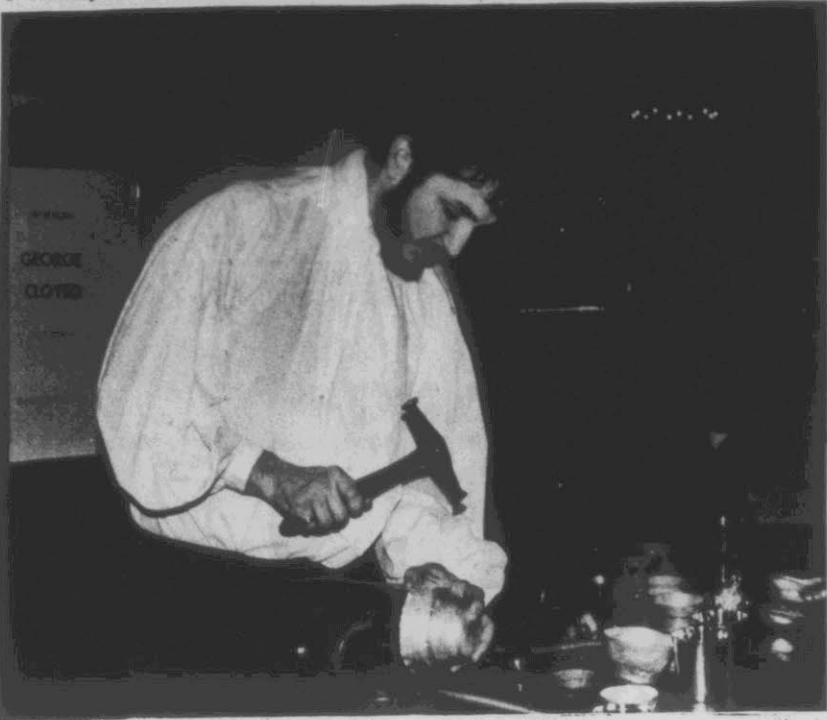

Special extended office hours leading up to the April 8 voter registration deadline have been announced by the Pitt County Board of Elections.

Margaret Register, elections supervisor, said that the 201 E. Second Street office here will be open from 9 a.m. until 7 p.m. on Thursday and Friday, April 3 and 4, and from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m. on Saturday, April 5.

Miss Register mentioned that due to the Easter Monday holiday, the elections office will be closed on that day but will reopen on April 8 for 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. operations.

The 5 p.m. deadline on April 8 applies to new registration, changes in address and precinct changes in order to be eligible to vote in the May 6 primary, she explained.

The elections official added that residents who are currently 17 years old but who will be 18 years old by Nov. 4 can register by the April 8 deadline and vote in the May 6 primary.

APPRENTICE SILVERSMITH. George Cloyed shows proper method of hammering silver.

Apprentice Silversmith Finds Work Fascinating

"The most fascinating thing about what I do is — it's unusual in a sense — it's also fulfilling to be able to take silver, a precious metal, and create something beautiful and yet useful to people," said George Cloyed, apprentice silversmith of Colonial Williamsburg.

Cloyed is talking of and demonstrating his trade in the new Williamsburg Section of Belk Tyler's, Carolina East Mall.

"I enjoy immensely the opportunity to tell people about silversmithing in the 18th century and explaining why it was done that way. The thing I like most is the people I meet."

"A lot of people are surprised silver can and was hammered into shapes such as bowls and teapots rather than cast or poured. A silversmith learns through experience the importance of proper hammering because if silver is hammered too much, it can be broken or fractured which would thus make the time involved wasted. Only a silversmith's time is wasted, the silver is salvageable," Cloyed stated.

Cloyed is working for the Craft Department of Colonial Williamsburg and will celebrate his fifth anniversary in September. An apprenticeship lasts seven to 10 years Cloyed said.

He began making silver jewelry as a hobby while in high school and continued to learn through metalsmithing and jewel making classes in college when he decided to pursue silversmithing as a career.

Prior to becoming an apprentice, he worked almost a year in the Golden Ball Jewelry Shop making silver bracelets and interpreting the role of a silversmith to visitors to Colonial Williamsburg. He is now working at the Geddy Silversmith Shop, making silver holloware in the 18th century manner. There are three silversmiths and two apprentice silversmiths in Colonial Williamsburg now.

Silver for the Geddy Shop is purchased from a refinery in sheet or wire form.

"Even with speculation making silver expensive, we still feel there will be a market for the handmade silver holloware," said Cloyed. — By Rosalie Trotman.

TODAY'S STORY

(Having bought, upon her Mother's advice, a beautifully Wrapped silver salver from Ariane Clark, Lawsy-me goes into the Forest to look for Chesterfield, her Intended, who has disappeared. She encounters an Ogre with long fangs and fire flashing from his eyes.)

"I will eat you alive, Lawsy-me," roared the Ogre, baring his fangs and flashing fire from his eyes.

"You sound just like Chesterfield to me," said Lawsy-me. Whereupon the Ogre opened his mouth wide to devour Lawsy-me. But she thrust the Gift before his eyes and he cried out, "A gift from Ariane Clark! O Class!" And turned back into Chesterfield.

So they went on back out of the Forest, and Lawsy-me left Chesterfield at his house to Tidy up; remembering first to pluck back the Ariane Clark silver salver. And she went on to her mother's house.

After deep thought, Lawsy-me said, "He is my Intended, but he is dull as pitch. He should have stayed an Ogre."

"Lawsy Me, Lawsy-me," said her Mother. "Lawsy Me!"

Dear Abby

'For Children's Sake' Works In Two Ways

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am married to the kind of man who can never be faithful to just one woman. I have left several times because of this, but I always took him back because of the children. Tell me, Abby, is a woman a fool to stay married to a man for the sake of her children?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: A man's faithfulness (or the absence of it) is only part of his total behavior. What kind of man is he otherwise? What kind of husband is he? What kind of father has he been? Has he been discreet? Do your children love and respect him? How much have his extracurricular affairs affected your family life?

Many a woman has stayed married to a man for the sake of her children when she should have left him for the same reason.

DEAR ABBY: I was a secretary to a professional man for several years and enjoyed my work very much; however, he started getting very affectionate and putting his hands all over me, so I quit my job.

I feel that sexual harassment leaves a woman with feelings similar to rape.

What causes a well-thought-of family man to behave this way? I did absolutely nothing to provoke it. So here I am, looking for work and wondering what to put on my applications as to why I left my job. Any suggestions?

SECRETARY

DEAR SECRETARY: I am informed that when applying for a job, you are no longer required to state why you left your last job. Get in touch with your local Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, Council on Economic Status of Women, or a civil rights organization. Also, if there is a National Organization for Women (N.O.W.) chapter in your city, they can help you.

As for why a "well-thought-of family man" would behave that way, he's obviously looking for some carnal fringe benefits from those over whom he has an unfair advantage.

Must Watch Fund-Use

President Carter won a major victory with the passage of a $227.7 billion "windfall" tax on oil.

The tax will be coupled with the deregulation of oil prices which is sending prices we pay for gas and oil ever higher. At the same time it is discouraging use of oil products.

It is anticipated the money will be collected over a period of ten years and 60 percent of it will go for income tax reductions, if further legislation is enacted. Some 25 percent is expected to go for programs to aid the poor in meeting their energy bills, and some 15 percent will go for energy and transportation development.

There are those who argue that the huge tax should not have been enacted in that it defeats the purpose of allowing the oil companies funds for further energy development.

From a political standpoint it is doubtful the administration could have allowed de-regulation without taxing some of that profit.

What we must watch for now is to make certain that the funds are spent wisely, something that is not always done in Washington.

Will the tax cuts go to wage earning Americans who have for so long shouldered so much of the tax load?

Will we, in the distribution of energy aid funds to the poor, have another fiasco like this winter when checks were sent to people who didn't have fuel bills?

Will energy aid funds go to buy gas for autos, as opposed to being used to keep homes warm?

The "windfall" tax is also a political bonanza, and it has been our observation that such bonanzas are frequently poorly spent.

Process Of Being Counted

The 1980 U. S. census officially begins today.

Being counted and probed by the census takers is a prospect that does not excite most Americans.

Yet the process is essential to the nation. Locally getting an accurate count of people living in Pitt County and its municipalities can be meaningful in the amount of funds we receive from state and federal sources.

It is important to all of us that the count be accurate.

Decade Of Growth

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — As North Carolina continues intensified efforts to woo and win economic growth, especially in less urban areas, Department of Commerce officials are pointing to Wilson County as a prime example of what can be accomplished.

More significantly, the Wilson experience demonstrates how successful growth can be won.

Arguments over what is most important in a community in order to attract growth are keen: livability, labor force, transportation, training, taxes....

The "Wall Street Journal" recently surveyed top industrialists on this question, and concluded that the single most important factor is a receptive governmental attitude regarding business.

In Wilson, that factor apparently was present and worked well.

Things started happening at the beginning of the decade of the 70s when city and county governments agreed to launch a concerted effort to attract new industry.

New Life

Wilson banker Charles M. (Bubba) Clayton was hired in 1971 to bring life to a floundering growth effort. Today, Clayton credits solid community support — from city and county governments and the private sector — for the area's success. "We get nothing but 100 percent cooperation from every place we turn," Clayton says in a State Commerce Department report on the Wilson experience.

Ten years ago it was predicted that Wilson County would continue down the path of many other North Carolina areas: Population would drop by 2,500. Census experts based their projections on the best data available. The missing ingredient, though, was that upcoming grassroots effort to get tough in winning growth.

Instead of declining, population has grown by 5,000 to the present level of 62,000. Average industrial wages have soared from $2.46 per hour (the state average in 1970) to $5.99 per hour (20 percent above present state average).

More than a dozen major companies have built manufacturing facilities valued at more than $141 million. Existing industries expanded to the tune of $79 million. The tax base has almost tripled from $337 million to $955 million, with much of that gain directly due to industrial growth, and the remainder largely due to accompanying service, housing and retail growth.

The community responded with services — but without going into debt for them. Two new high schools costing $12 million were built in 1978; paid for in cash. New roads crisscross the city and county. Bonded debt is only about one million, though up to $70 million is authorized.

Working

Clayton says workers who want to work are important in attracting industry. Officials at the major Firestone plant contend that the Wilson plant is the most productive of all their worldwide facilities. "The productivity of our workers not only at Firestone but also at Kerr Glass and Jay Manufacturing is important both for getting new industry and keeping existing industry happy," Clayton says.

He says industrial training programs at Wilson County Technical Institute are also decisive to many growth situations.

With growth and diversification stabilized in what was a mostly rural, farming area and is still best known for tobacco farms and warehouses, Wilson is becoming selective.

Clayton puts it this way: "We can afford to solicit only those industries that will

Other Editors Say Changes Needed

(Chapel Hill Newspaper)

When The Chapel Hill Newspaper spends a good deal of its time trying to report the differences between HEW and the University and still doesn't fully understand the problem, it is no wonder that the average citizen of North Carolina can't put all the pieces of the puzzle together.

The differences have reached the stage of being settled in the courts. Many feel that HEW has singled out North Carolina to take to court because, in reality, this state has done the best job of any southern state in trying to educate minorities. If HEW can win in North Carolina, the rest of the states will fall in line and most of the differences will be resolved. To North Carolinians that is a mighty high price to pay for leadership.

While North Carolina is being taken to court by HEW, President Friday is serving on the Sloan Commission on Government and Higher Education. A recently released report from that commission recommends that one agency within the federal government be created to enforce civil rights laws at colleges and universities. That report has the full support of Dr. Friday. The commission feels that the government increasingly asks "questions about faculty appointments and promotions through agents who simply do not know enough about higher education. As a result, the government is becoming more a policeman than a patrol of the academic world."

Dr. Friday believes that such an agency would have better understood the recent differences between HEW and the 16-campus system of education in North Carolina, and that the matter could have been resolved without expensive court litigation.

As much as this newspaper is against federal bureaucracy, we support the commission's point of view for setting up a special agency. One has to understand a problem before he can find a solution to it, and HEW has not shown the right kind of educational leadership that one has a right to expect from a federal agency.

The very appearance of the landscape will change, as it did in the case of young Dwight L. Moody, who after the finger of God had touched his heart, walked out into the Boston Common and found to his amazement that it had taken on a glorified appearance.

Activism vs. Restraint

WASHINGTON — William James Rummel, on the record, had demonstrated what might be termed a casual view of other people's property. In 1964, he fraudulently used a credit card to steal $80 worth of goods. In 1969, he forged a check for $28.36. In 1973, he took $120.75 to repair an air conditioner and never repaired it.

Under Texas law, three felony strikes are out. Seven years ago next month, a Texas jury gave Rummel a mandatory sentence of life imprisonment. Two weeks ago the Supreme Court affirmed, 5-4. The sentence, said the majority, was not cruel and unusual punishment in violation of the Eighth Amendment.

You could read the Supreme Court reports all night and fail to find a case that more vividly presents the conflict between judicial activism on the one hand, and judicial restraint on the other. Or if you please, the conflict between a government of men and a government of law. Was the life sentence imposed upon Rummel a just sentence? Most of us, I expect, would say no. Was the sentence a lawful sentence? I would have to say yes. What is the duty of a Supreme Court justice — to follow his conscience, or to follow the law?

The Rummel case brought the two finest minds on the high court in head-to-head confrontation: Mr. Justice Rehnquist, defending the law, and Mr. Justice Powell, defending the more elusive cause of justice. As it turned out, Mr. Justice Rehnquist won. He got the votes of Chief Justice Burger and Justices Stewart, White and Blackmun. Mr. Justice Powell, in dissent, had to settle for the votes of Justices Brennan, Marshall and Stevens.

I would go with Rehnquist. His position, in sum, is that if we believe in the principle of federalism — and surely the principle of federalism lies at the bedrock of the Constitution — then we had better stand by that principle even in hard cases such as this one. Beyond question, the Texas legislature has the power to provide mandatory sentences in felony cases. Subject only to limitations fixed by the Constitution itself, every state has the power to enact its own criminal laws.

The only issue in Rummel was whether the punishment was "grossly disproportionate" to the crimes the defendant had committed. At bottom, this has to be a largely subjective determination. Powell did his best — and his best is very good — to marshal empirical data for his side. Only 12 states, he noted, ever have enacted habitual offender statutes carrying mandatory life sentences for multiple non-violent convictions, and only three of the 12 — Texas, Washington, and West Virginia — still maintain such laws today. In Powell's view, this should demonstrate a consensus that mandatory life sentences, in these circumstances, are so excessive as to constitute cruel and unusual punishment.

But in the end, Powell had to fall back on the familiar rationalization that historically is used by Supreme Court justices when their consciences are shocked. "We are construing a living Constitution," said Powell. And he quoted from the Weems case in 1910: "Time works changes, brings into existence new conditions and purposes." Punishments that might not have been cruel and unusual 50, or 100, or 200 years ago, would be so regarded today. In his view, the punishment imposed upon Rummel was "grossly unjust."

Maybe so. It seems so to me. But the duty of the Supreme Court, if I am not mistaken, is not to correct every passing instance of injustice, or even of gross injustice. Other bodies play a part. Governors have powers of clemency; parole boards can act. (Under Texas law, Rummel himself becomes eligible for parole in another five years.) If the doctrine of judicial restraint means anything, it means that, without the most compelling reasons, judges ought not to substitute their own predilections for the "grossness" or "disproportion" for the judgment of legislatures. Otherwise a judicial oligarchy reigns supreme.

The Rummel case was not an easy one. As Powell said, it is difficult to imagine felonies that pose less danger

To the editor:

You would think, in trying times as these, that Greenville public officials would be courteous and informative to tv and newspaper coverage. It is very obvious to everyone that the city officials are involved in a large cover-up concerning the disbandment of our beloved rescue squad. These officials have verbally refused to talk to tv newsmen about the situation which is so vital to the community.

Even worse than that, city officials have absolutely refused to listen to the large majority of the community who are supporting the efforts made by the rescue squad. I've been told the mayor has commented, "I will not react." Why not? Isn't he supposed to be responsible to the people's needs and wishes for their community? How about City Council members? Comments have been made, "We will not become involved in administrative matters." Let me say right now, this has gone far beyond any administrative matter. This directly concerns life and death situations for the families of Greenville. If this doesn't concern Council members, then they have certainly failed the vast majority of the people of Greenville.

I honestly believe these officials have grossly misjudged the wishes and needs of this community concerning the rescue squad. But it's not too late for these officials to admit and correct what's happened. It's far better to face up to a bad situation and do something about it, rather than have harm brought to the community. I'm sure our rescue squad can be reorganized and the whole rescue situation be corrected if only city officials will face up to their responsibilities. It certainly seems an open public meeting is in order. How about it, Mayor McGlohon?

To the editor:

I have carefully analyzed both the New Generation bill and the Child Health Plan from both viewpoints — that of the family and that of the state. I have read Gov. Hunt's explanation, have talked with pediatricians and others concerned with the plan and can say without the least hesitation that both represent the most pernicious piece of legislation that has ever been proposed in the United States. The New Generation Bill is a vaguely worded document which gives broad but arbitrary powers to the Governor, the Human Resources department and the County Commissioners. Experience should have taught us that documents giving arbitrary powers are infinitely more dangerous than those which describe specific limits.

Much has been said by the defenders of these programs to assure the public that the Child Health Plan is not legislation, but merely an idea — i. e. a plan. I know of no legislation that did not begin as a plan. Anyone who has read and analyzed the BILL and the PLAN knows that the two are directly connected.

The Child Health Plan outlines how the state intends to replace the family as a functioning unit. It provides more than what most of us would consider "health": such things as providing abortions, birth control devices to minors without their parents' permissions, educational services which teach our children "contemporary" values such as homosexuality as an alternate lifestyle, and worst of all, promises to keep a dossier on our children and our private lives. It contains words which give tremendous arbitrary power to the state.

When asked why he supported tax funding of abortions, even though two-thirds of the people of the state did not, Gov. Hunt replied, "We must concentrate on a new generation of children who aren't stunted or handicapped in some way." My question — "How? By killing innocent babies?"

Parents must become involved in this battle and support candidates who support the traditional family unit.

To the editor:

Mrs. Savage commented in this newspaper forum, "Why can't the fire chief (Allen) do as former fire chiefs have and be helpful and supportive of the rescue squad?" Indeed, why not? According to rescue personnel, he will not meet with them. He did not try to get any input from them concerning the integration of the squad into the Fire Department. He threatened to take out the squad's telephone that's used for squad business (The squad pays the telephone bill, not the city.) All this is hard to believe, but true. And, furthermore, the city manager backs him to the hilt. During a meeting he had with paid fire and rescue people, he started to walk out on them. This can be checked out with firemen and rescuers who were present. It appears the city would need a fire chief who can handle an emergency with a cool head, respond courteously to the news media and be concerned about the community's health needs. Obviously the fire chief has failed. The whole fire and rescue situation is completely in shambles and the morale of all the men is very low. This fire chief has over 30 years of service and should be retired. He should be put out to pasture and the city manager should be put in the back of the pasture for allowing himself to be misled. I believe our rescue squad can be saved. I know it broke the hearts of these rescue people to turn in their uniforms on Feb. 7. What a tragedy to this city! The Greenville Rescue Squad had backbone and courage to stand up to city hall for you and me. We failed, not the Greenville Rescue Squad.

Eateries Can Mislead Public

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

At least one out of every four dollars Americans spent on food last year went for meals away from home, according to government figures, but consumers may not always be getting what they think they are paying for.

"The question of accurate representation of food purchased in restaurants, fast-food establishments, cafeterias or carry-outs is of growing concern to consumer groups, the food service industry and regulators," said an article in a recent issue of the National Food Review, published by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The USDA reports that Census Bureau figures show Americans spent an estimated $266 billion on food in 1979. Of that amount, $66 billion was spent on food away from home.

"Consumers are no doubt being misled in some eating establishments and are paying for things they do not get," the National Food review article said.

The problem is that the language on the menu may not always match the food that comes out of the kitchen. Several cities, including Los Angeles, Chicago and Washington, D.C., have set up guidelines for accurate menu descriptions and the USDA says there are indications that the rules are working — at least in the nation's capital.

The department says that District of Columbia officials surveyed eating places in 1977 and found consumers were being served commercially processed and frozen products instead of fresh ones; the quality of meat served was often lower than the quality listed on the menu; and domestic items were frequently described as imported.

Another survey was conducted in January 1979, about six months after the introduction of strict regulations on menu accuracy. The result, according to the USDA: "There was a significant decrease in menu disparities and it was concluded that the Accuracy in Menu Program in the District of Columbia is effective."

In many cases, the restaurant is not deliberately trying to mislead the customer; the use of a particular phrase may simply be a matter of habit. Here are some areas to check:

QUALITY: Federal and state laws set quality standards for many products. If a restaurant uses the same terminology that the government does, the product should meet the standards. "Choice chopped sirloin," for example should come from meat that is graded choice. (One exception is "prime rib," which describes a cut of meat rather than a standard of quality, according to the USDA.)

QUANTITY: Customers should realize that the weight indicated on the menu is the weight before cooking; don't expect a 10-ounce steak to weigh 10 ounces when it arrives on your plate. Other quantity descriptions involve common sense. A bowl of soup should hold more than a cup. A double drink should be twice the size of a regular one.

MERCHANDISING TERMS: Many phrases used to enhance the appeal of a particular food are not accurate. Very few "homemade" items, for example, are made in someone's home. The description "homestyle" is preferable. Geography is important too. Maine potatoes, for example, should not be served if the menu lists Idahoes.

Counting On You

The Census Bureau is counting on Americans to help count themselves, as the 1980 census officially begins today. The census is expected to cost $1 billion. It provides temporary jobs for 275,000 workers. Five thousand tons of paper and 85 tons of ink went into printing the census forms. The completed forms will contain more than 3 billion pieces of information, which will be recorded on 5,000 miles of microfilm. The information the Census Bureau collects helps decide how many representatives each state has in Congress, and where federal aid to states and local communities gets spent. The bureau hopes to collect most of its information by mail.

Book Store Ruling Upset

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court Monday overturned a ruling by the North Carolina Supreme Court that closed an adult movie house in Jacksonville, N.C., as a public nuisance.

The court ordered that the North Carolina case be restituted.

Citing its own March 18 ruling in a Texas case, the court said theaters cannot be barred for extended periods of time for showing movies just because they showed obscene films in the past.

In the Texas ruling, the court said allegedly obscene material must be found to be obscene by some court before it can be barred under public-nuisance statutes.

The Chateau X Theater and Bookstore was blocked from future sales of "obscene materials" after a state trial judge ruled that magazines and films seized from it were obscene.

The state Supreme Court later ruled that the state law that allowed such an injunction did not violate the Chateau X owners' free-speech rights.

Super Champ Event Held

The Pitt County Community Schools Program held its second annual county wide super champ competition this past Saturday at D.H. Conley High School. The event was co-sponsored by McDonald's and area recreation departments.

Approximately 125 students representing local programs held across Pitt County were competing in this test of individual skills in basketball.

First, second and third places were awarded in each division and the divisions were set up on the basis of age and sex. The first place winners were: ages 8-9 girls, Melissa Bryan-Griffin; ages 8-9 boys, Randy House-Bethel; ages 10-11 girls, Jean Sheppard A.G. Cox; ages 10-11 boys, Chad Cannon-Ayden; ages 12-13 girls, Anita Lloyd-Chicod; 12-13 boys, Andre Hambey-Ayden.

Ott Alford, superintendent of Pitt County Schools, and Judy Warren, community schools advisory council member, presented the prizes. Winners came out on top of a group of over 575 competitors across the county.

years, easily winning reelection bids after each tenure in office.

Hollowell, campaigning in Greenville on Monday, said that he is not running a "negative Jones campaign" but instead is saying that "Jones has done a good job but it is time for a change...new ideas...new leadership."

The challenger, a former state president of the North Carolina Jaycees, acknowledged the seniority that Jones has accrued during his tenure but Hollowell contended that having an "effective voice on committees more important than seniority."

The Edenton resident, noting that he is campaigning in all 21 counties and speaking at a variety of events, observed, "I've got to meet people and let them know who Joe Hollowell is."

Hollowell said that while the Greenville area is an exception, the region encompassing the First District is "economically depressed." He cited a significant need for "positive, energetic leadership" and he pointed to "status quo leadership" in areas of the district.

Mentioning, among other problems, a 17 percent unemployment rate in Tyrrell County, Hollowell said that "we've got to overcome these things."

The candidate expressed concern with the cost-profit squeeze that threatens the tobacco farmer in the district and agriculture in general.

Hollowell said that he will vote for a balanced federal budget, advocating the taking of a "fair share" from all funding segments. He noted that twice a year, saving $1.1 billion. A freeze would be placed on government hiring to reduce civilian employment by 20,000 by Sept. 30. Executive salaries would be frozen.

FOOD AND NUTRITION: Cost-of-living increases in food aid programs, including food stamps, would be reduced from twice a year to once a year, saving $378 million.

DEFENSE: Operating efficiencies would save almost $1 billion, but this would be more than offset by increased outlays for military operations in the Indian Ocean plus increases in fuel for military purposes, with the result that total outlays would be $147 billion, a net increase of $4.3 billion.

EDUCATION: Federal aid for higher education and elementary and secondary schools would be reduced by $578 million.

ENERGY: A savings of $850 million would result from delaying the purchase of oil for the nation's strategic petroleum reserve.

HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES: Reductions would be made in health service assistance and with-revenue sharing will be reduced and state and local government need to be aware of the situation and not become too dependent on federal funding.

"We have to recognize that our great standard of living is the best in the world and we have to protect it," Hollowell continued. He said that a cut in federal spending, balancing of the budget, and controlling the amount of money placed in circulation is essential.

Hollowell said that inflation involves a devaluation of money through an oversupply and he suggested that programs can be designed to "recirculate these dollars." He mentioned lower interest rates and a stimulation of productivity as keys.

The farmer and real estate agent mentioned Jones' membership on the House Agriculture Committee and said that he would be "responsive to the needs of agriculture" if he is successful in his bid to unseat Jones.

"The people of the district will be my special interest group," Hollowell contended. He said that while he met a lot of people through his work with the Jaycees, he is not running a Jaycee campaign.

Hollowell said he is "not looking for glory. I'm looking for the opportunity to serve." He added that he realizes he has a lot to overcome, pointing to Jones' incumbency record.

Hollowell said that he is offering himself as a "man of action."

— Martin County Sheriff Raymond Rawls pleaded innocent today to a charge of fraudulently obtaining the drug Demerol.

Rawls, who has been sheriff of the eastern North Carolina county since 1954, was released without bond after an appearance before Superior Court Judge Napoleon Barefoot.

An indictment returned by a Martin County grand jury this morning accused Rawls of fraudulently obtaining the drug from Drs. Charles Harris and Walter Ward and unnamed others by giving false symptoms. It said he failed to reveal that he was getting the drug from another doctor during a period from April 7, 1978, to Jan. 4, 1980.

The indictment was returned after the State Bureau of Investigation conducted an investigation at the request of District Attorney William Griffin.

He was represented during today's first-appearance hearing by Williamston Mayor Robert Cowan, a former U.S. attorney, and Williamston lawyer Edgar J. Gurganus.

The Elite Repeat

Linda Tripp hopes the name of her resale shop on Highway 33 east of Greenville conveys the quality and the nature of the merchandise she stocks.

She calls the shop, located in a neat beige gray-trimmed farmhouse about two and one-half miles east of Rivergate Shopping Center, "The Elite Repeat."

"Most things here are previously owned and sold on consignment," she said, "but we turn down everything that doesn't meet our standards. And, as we grow, we're going to be more and more selective."

The resale shop is owned by Linda and her husband, Randolph Tripp, and is managed by Randy's mother, Mrs. Ethel Smith Tripp. Hours are from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturdays.

Linda said she conceived the name for the shop several years ago while browsing in resale shops in other cities. "I'd like to have a place like this," she mused, "but mine would be neater and it wouldn't smell musty. And I'd try to think of a name that would connote quality at low prices." Soon the name appeared in her mind—"The Elite Repeat." She kept it there for several years till her dream became reality.

"We expect everything brought to our shop to be clean and fresh smelling," she said. "We want it to be undamaged. Names brands are nice."

"We want this to be a place where people who have bought quality items can get some profit out of them when they get tired of them or when their circumstances change. When you change your decor or your dress size, we hope it'll be nice to know we're here."

"Everything is sold on consignment. We encourage our consignors to keep their prices low and we take only 25 percent commission. We pay consignors at the end of each month."

"Things that don't sell in a reasonable time are returned to the owners."

"Our customers can come here expecting to pay less than brand-new prices, yet more than they'd pay at a yard sale. Here they have the benefit of a fitting room and are encouraged to return to us anything that doesn't make them happy, regardless of the reason. This, we believe, is something that not even some of the best retail stores offer."

"The Elite Repeat" is located in a house that the Tripps repaired and repainted and renovated themselves. It's divided into areas designated by clever names of Linda's own coining—The Wee Boutique, the Gift Gallery, Yesterday's World, The Clothes Closet, and The Kitchen Cupboard.

Merchandise varies from new items of brass, pewter, rattan and glassware at reduced rates to used small appliances, toys, furniture, household accessories, and clothing of all types and sizes—men's, women's and children's.

We expect to be constantly improving our shop and upgrading our merchandise. And we hope to add new customers and consignors all the time.

Duffus New Chairman Of Energy Commission

David Duffus, a local attorney, was elected chairman of the Greenville Energy Commission at the GEC's recent election of new officers.

Sam Arnett, instructor at Pitt Community College, was elected to serve as vice chairman during the second year, reorganization meeting of the energy board.

In addition to Duffus and Arnett, other reappointed members of the commission are: Dr. Rosino Lao, Louis Cherry, Thomas Shea, and Dr. William Collins. Newly appointed members are Nancy Meyer, Lee Goetz, and Charles Whitener.

Ex-officio members serving on the board are: Councilman

Arrest Man On Assault Count

Greenville Police last night arrested Albert Tyson Jr. 33 of 504 East Gum Rd. on charges of assault by pointing a gun, and possession of marijuana.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Tyson allegedly pointed a gun at his wife, Christine Tyson, following an argument. When officers went to the Tyson home, about 9:30 p.m. to investigate the alleged assault, they found a quantity of marijuana in the dwelling.

Richard McKee, Charles Horne, director of Greenville Utilities; Alton Warren, chief building official; Bobby Roberson, director of planning; and Reese Helms, executive secretary of the commission.

Winners Named In Kite Contest

Approximately 45 children took part in the Greenville Recreation and Parks Dept. annual Kite Flying contest held last Saturday.

In the five-seven year old age group Steven Huntsberry won first place, Frankie Harshberger second, and Sara Stasavich, third.

Ken Person won first in the eight-nine year old group, Dawn Spivey second, and Roy Tripp third.

The 10-11 year old winners were Eddie Harshberger, first, Mike Means, second, and Beth Dix, third.

Top honors in the 12-14 year old group went to Tonya Leggett, Tony Little, and Doug Frelke.

Winner in the homemade division were Steven Huntsberry, Nancy Johnson, Marty Brannon, and Doug Frelke.

Duffus indicated at the meeting that he is interested in receiving ideas for improving energy conservation and in turn developing appropriate plans. The chairman said that a program for an overall energy plan, which will be provided to the City Council, is being developed by the commission.

The commission is charged with six specific functions related to energy auditing and analysis, conservation, and planning for future energy needs, according to Helms, manager of the office of Energy Conservation and Management of GUCO.

Overseeing the city's Comprehensive Community Energy Management Program (CCEMP) is the main thrust of the commission's current activities, Helms said.

The manager pointed out that Greenville is one of only 17 municipalities in the nation selected for U.S. Department of Energy funding to establish a CCEMP model.

He said that in addition, as the smallest of the 17 cities, Greenville's experience with the program should be especially valuable to other eastern North Carolina communities wrestling with energy conservation and planning problems.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market headed higher today, continuing its recovery from last week's silver debacle.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials edged up .17 to 785.92 in the first half hour.

Gainers outnumbered losers by more than a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The market has risen steadily in the past two sessions since hitting a five-year low late last Thursday afternoon in a crisis atmosphere caused by forced selling of the Hunt family's silver holdings.

The recovery of stock prices has been aided by a stabilization of the silver market. The price of silver for April delivery reached $15.50 an ounce today, against $10.80 last Thursday.

Analysts say some buying has been encouraged by hopes for an approaching peak in interest rates.

The stock markets planned to operate on normal schedules today despite a transit strike in New York.

Today's early prices included Gulf Oil, unchanged at 39; Asarco, up 1 at 34, and General Telephone & Electronics, up 1/4 at 25 1/4.

On Monday the Dow Jones industrial average rose 8.10 to 785.75.

Williamsburg Section Opened

A formal ribbon cutting Sunday afternoon officially opened the Williamsburg Section in Belk Tyler Store, Carolina East Mall. "The opening was because the store was designated by Colonial Williamsburg as an official Williamsburg shop. It is one of 17 Williamsburg shops in the United States," said Greenville Banks, general manager of Belk Tyler's here.

The ribbon was cut by Greenville Mayor Don McGlohon, Banks, Mrs. Elizabeth Callis, William Murphy and Charles Driscoll, all of Colonial Williamsburg. "The decor of the area is authentic Williamsburg in color and decorations. The furniture is by Kittinger and is the same that is found in Craft House in Williamsburg."

"On our shelves one can find a tremendous collection of Williamsburg accessory pieces in brass, silver, glass and pottery. Also available are wallpapers, drapery treatments, and pictures indigenous to the 18th century," said Banks.

Three interior designers are available at the store to aid Belk customers.

Future special events are being planned in conjunction with Colonial Williamsburg including Claude Jones, who will demonstrate flower decorating.

SBA Disaster Aid Discussed

Larry Cherry, Charlotte District Director for the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA), announced Friday details of the SBA physical and economic injury disaster loan program available to homeowners, farmers and businesses in Beaufort, Dare, Duplin, Lenoir, Onslow, Sampson and all adjacent counties for a total of 23 counties.

Any farmer, homeowner or business suffering damage from wind, heavy sleet and snow storms of March 1-3 is eligible to apply for low-interest loans to repair or replace the property damaged or destroyed.

Cherry also said that interest rates are 8 1/4 percent for applicants who can obtain financial assistance from other sources and 5 percent for those who (in the judgment of the SBA) cannot. Repayment terms are based on the ability to repay.

In addition to loans for physical damage, loans may be made to small businesses that suffered economic losses to help them meet obligations that could have been met had the disaster not occurred.

Applicants must file for property damage loans before May 22, and for economic injury loans before Dec. 22.

SBA has installed special toll-free telephone lines for applicants to make inquiry and to apply for loans. The free number is 1-800-532-0368 and will be open from 8:15 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. The mailing address for SBA is 230 S. Tryon St., Charlotte, N.C. 28202.

Weaver Stuns Tate In Heavy Fight

Head Shot

World Boxing Association heavyweight champion John Tate, right, lands a right to the head of challenger Mike Weaver in the first round of their title fight in Knoxville, Tenn., Monday. Tate, ahead on points, was knocked out in the 15th round by Weaver, who became the new champion. (AP Laserphoto)

By ED SCHUYLER JR.

AP Sports Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The heavyweight championship picture developed on this April Fool's Day as Larry Holmes, Mike Weaver and Muhammad Ali, with a touch of Scott LeDoux.

When the action ended at Caesars Palace here and at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville, Holmes still was the World Boxing Council champion, Mike Weaver was the new World Boxing Association champion and Ali was making large noises about coming out of retirement to try to become a four-time champion.

Holmes looked every bit the 12-1 favorite he was by battering 6-foot-5, 254½-pound Leroy Jones into submission in the eighth round here. Weaver spent most of the fight at Knoxville looking like a loser headed for oblivion when he knocked out previously unbeaten John Tate at 2:15 of the 15th round with a thunderous left hook. It was the only chance Weaver had for victory.

It was the kind of punch a fighter dreams of landing. "I felt the weight of that punch all the way down to his toes," said Weaver. "I knew he wasn't going to get up."

Weaver, who had Tate in trouble in the 12th round but still was too far behind after 14 to win a decision, crashed the hook against the jaw of Tate.

As a partisan crowd in Tate's home town was stunned into disbelief, Big John stiffened and pitched forward as Weaver threw a meaningless, chopping right. Tate landed face down and never moved as he was counted out.

Weaver was too high on his suddenly-found glory to talk about his future, one that includes possible fights with Ali and-or Holmes.

Tate wasn't talking. He was removed to a hospital for observation.

But Holmes was talking after his sixth knockout in seven title defenses. The great Joe Louis holds the record of seven consecutive knockouts in heavyweight title defenses.

"I don't need Ali," said the 39-year-old, unbeaten WBC champion. "Ali needs me. Ali ducked me for years."

"If I fight him, I don't want to be criticized for beating up an old man. It's not my fault if he wants to come back."

If the 39-year-old Ali does come back, he could well find a fight against Holmes more economically and artistically satisfying — if he should win — than a bout with Weaver.

Don King, who has promoted all of Holmes' title fights, said he has the money needed to stage a Holmes-Ali fight. But King also said LeDoux is No. 1 in line as Holmes' next opponent. An Ali agreement to fight Holmes could change that quickly.

Meanwhile in Knoxville, Bill Curl — a spokesman for Hyatt Management Corp., the operator of the New Orleans Superdome — said, "We're still alive. In brief discussions we had with (promoter) Bob Arum, he was prepared to go to Weaver if he won and negotiate — the same as he would have gone to Tate."

"It's entirely possible we're looking at an Ali-Weaver fight."

The two heavyweight fights were part of a four-championship-bout series televised live by ABC.

At Landover, Md., Sugar Ray Leonard, 147, ran his record to 27-0 by knocking out Englishman Dave "Boy" Green, also 147, at 2:27 of the fourth round.

The WBC has said Leonard now must sign by May to defend against No. 1-ranked Roberto Duran. But Leonard and his people are talking about a fight with WBA champion Pino Cuevas.

Leonard's victory was marred when his manager, Angelo Dundee, was knocked unconscious by a fall after the fight and reportedly suffered a concussion.

The TV program opened at Knoxville with Eddie Gregory providing a hint of what was to come.

Gregory, who had failed in a bid for the WBA light heavyweight championship in 1977, knocked down Marvin Johnson with a left hook to the body and a right to the head in the third round and then stopped him with a series of head punches that had him helpless in the 11th round. The time was 2:43.

Gregory, of New York, won for the 36th time against four losses and a draw. It was the fourth loss for Johnson, of Indianapolis. Two of those losses have been in first defenses. Johnson also was beaten by current WBA champ Matthew Saad Muhammad in his first defense of that title in 1979.

Tate, 232, who had a 20-0 record, also failed in his first title defense. He built a solid lead over the first 11 rounds, shaking Weaver, 207½ of Los Angeles, on several occasions with short punches to the head.

Then Weaver hurt Tate badly with left hooks on three occasions in the 12. But still it looked as if Tate would make through to a successful defense. Then the anvil in the form of that smashing hook fell...and so did Big John.

It was a sensational triumph for Weaver, who went into the fight with a 20-9 record. He had been outpointed by Jones in 12 rounds in 1978 and has been stopped in the 12th round by Holmes last June 23. He earned another title shot with two victories, one of them a 12-round decision over LeDoux, and this time he grabbed the brass ring.

Holmes, 6-3, 211, dominated Jones. He peppered him with jabs in the early rounds, hurt him with three rights and a left hook to the head in the sixth.

Jones was in trouble again in the seventh. He did get in a good right to the head after Holmes lost his temper briefly when butted early in the round, but he was reeling from a series of head shots from Holmes at the bell.

Jones came out for the eighth with both eyes puffed like bubbles and Holmes was all over him. After about 20 punches — most of them to the head — had Jones helpless in his corner, the fight was stopped at 2:56 of the round.

Jones, losing for the first time after 24 wins and a draw, claimed Holmes was dirty fighter and that he had bronchitis and had to be talked by King into going through with the fight. But it appeared to be a case of just too much hand speed and skill by the defending champion, who ran his record to 34-0.

In another title fight, this one not on television, Marvin Camel, 185½, of Missoula Mont., scored a unanimous decision over Mate Parlov, 189, and won the new WBC cruiserweight title (190-pound limit) at Caesars Palace.

Camel was comfortably ahead on all three official cards as he ran his record to 36-2-2. Parlov.

Estes Is Pres. Pick

CLINTON, S.C. — George "Butch" Estes, a former assistant basketball coach at East Carolina University, has been named as the new head coach at Presbyterian College here.

Estes was named to the position yesterday, his first head job.

A graduate of the University of North Carolina, Estes served as an aide at The Citadel while earning his masters' degree there. He went on, following two years at The Citadel, to serve four years at East Carolina, one under Tom Quinn and three under Dave Patton. He was one of the top candidates to replace Patton when he resigned.

For the past three years, he has been an assistant at Rice University in Texas.

ECU Aide's Wife Hurt In Wreck

Ginger Parker, wife of East Carolina assistant football coach Norm Parker, was seriously injured in a single vehicle accident near Toledo, Ohio, this weekend.

Parker, who serves as defensive coordinator for the new Emory staff, rushed to Toledo to be with his wife.

According to reports reaching Greenville, Mrs. Parker was listed in serious condition at Toledo Hospital after surgery Monday. She suffered a spinal injury when the mobile camper she, her three children and her parents were traveling in hit a guard rail near Toledo. No one else was injured.

The group was on its way from Champaign, Ill., to Greenville when the accident occurred.

Parker is in Toledo and will be returning to Champaign with his children. His family was waiting until the school year was over to make the move to Greenville.

It is not known when Parker will return to Greenville, according to Emory. His temporary loss has complicated the spring practice coaching situation, but Emory feels Parker's priorities are with his family.

"We feel that his first priority is with his family. I've taken over some of his position work responsibility," Emory said. "Our hearts are with him."

Bears Bow To Bath

BEAR GRASS — Bath High School romped to a 20-9 softball victory over Bear Grass yesterday.

The Bath girls pushed in one in the first, then added five in the second and seven in the third. The third inning was helped along by a two-run homer by K. Waters.

Bear Grass was held scoreless until the fifth inning and its rally came far too late.

Boseman, Hopkins, Waters and Taylor led the Bath hitting with two each. Boseman had a double and a triple, while Hopkins had two doubles.

Wanda Leggett led Bear Grass with three, including a triple, while Debra Gurganus and Sherri Williams each had two hits.

The Bears, now 3-3, play host to Belhaven on Thursday.

Tewel Glad He Didn't Quit After Victory

By BOB GREEN

AP Golf Writer

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — A year ago, Doug Tewel was considering quitting the pro golf tour when he came to this resort island.

He left today as a brand new winner, and his most serious problems were rearranging his playing schedule to accommodate a trip to the Masters at Augusta, Ga., and the Tournament of Champions the following week at Carlsbad, Calif.

Both trips were set up with his sudden-death playoff victory — the first of his five-year tour career — over Jerry Pate for the title and a $54,000 first place check in the Heritage Classic.

"I was considering chucking it when we came here last year," the 30-year-old Tewel said Monday after Pate's bogey from the water on No. 15 set up Doug's winning par on the first playoff hole.

"I didn't have the nerves. I had the swing and the temperament and the talent. But I just wasn't making any money. I didn't have the nerves."

"I'd get myself in position and then, bang, along would come a 79. The same thing happened here last year. I played pretty good, then shot 78 in the last round."

"I just kept fighting it. And then those putts that used to lip out started falling in."

He proved his nerves are beyond question with a minor miracle of a bogey on the 17th hole of regulation play on the rain-soaked, wind-scoured Harbour Town Golf Links.

Tewel was leading Pate, a U.S. Open champion, by one stroke when he stepped to tee on the par-3 17th. He hooked it into the water and was facing double bogey.

"Everyone said, 'Well, he's hit it in water. He's through. He's dead.' But they didn't consult me."

He reloaded, punched a 7-iron to the green and made a 15-foot putt for the 4 he had to have to stay alive. Both he and Pate made scrambling pars on the 18th, which has the looming tower of a red-and-white striped lighthouse behind it and marshes of Calibogue Sound on the left.

That finished off a round of 72 for Pate and 73 for Tewel and gave them matching 72.

Phillies Picked To Win Eastern War

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Chuck Tanner, manager of the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates, knows that "other clubs are going to be gunning for us," but insists his Beat-'em-Bucs Fam-a-lee "will rise to the challenge."

The Pirates know all about challenges. They stormed from a 3-1 World Series deficit to win three games in a row and capture the world championship last year. Still, they only finished two games in front of the Montreal Expos and a stand-pat lineup may not be enough to withstand the loss of pitcher Bruce Kison to free agency and repeat in the National League East.

Dave Parker is a superstar in right field and so is wondrous Willie Stargell, the miracle man of 1979, at first base. But the Pirates call him "Pops" because he is 39 years old, not for the home runs he pops.

Elsewhere, the faces are familiar. Ed Ott and Steve Nicosia will share the catching. Second baseman Phil Garner and shortstop Tim Lincecum form a solid double play combination, and third baseman Bill Madlock and center fielder Omar Moreno are outstanding. John Milner and Bill Robinson again will split left field.

The pitching staff will get a boost if Rick Rhoden and Don Robinson can bounce back from shoulder surgery to join starters John Candelaria, Bert Blyleven and Jim Bibby, backed by a strong bullpen of Kent Tekulve, Grant Jackson and Enrique Romo.

"Some may think that just because we won it all in 1979 we'll rest on our laurels," Tanner says. "Anybody who thinks that doesn't know me — and, more importantly, doesn't know my ballplayers."

Montreal, which had the third-best record in baseball last year, lost first baseman Tony Perez and pitcher Rudy May to free agency and traded pitcher Dan Schatzeder to Detroit for outfielder Ron LeFlore. LeFlore will take over in left field, and Warren Cromartie apparently will take over first base, since veteran Rusty Staub was traded to the American League Texas Rangers Monday.

The rest of the Expos' slick outfield remains the same —

at the top of the batting order. However, there seems to be too many question marks on the mound — despite the league's best overall earned run average — where Steve Rogers was only 13-12, Ross Grimsley 10-9 and Scott Sanderson 9-8. There is no assurance that Bill Lee can repeat last year's 16-10 record and Woodie Fryman is a key man in the bullpen along with Elias Sosa, will be 40 years old next week. "Going through the race we went through last year has to make us that much stronger."

Staubach Leaves Door Open For A Return

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Quarterback Roger Staubach left just a tiny sliver of daylight open in his retirement announcement Monday and Coach Tom Landry ran to it like he was Tony Dorsett.

Asked if he would return to the Dallas Cowboys if something happened to Danny White and Glenn Carano, Staubach said, "That would be a real problem. I'm not adverse to helping. It would depend on the circumstances. That's all speculation and I don't want to get into that now."

Landry said he felt Staubach could be called in an emergency.

"If we called him back and the team needed him, he would play," said Landry.

Staubach ended 11 years with the Cowboys Monday, turning his fulltime attention to his family and a blossoming real estate career. Also, Staubach opened the door to television.

"There is a possibility I could get into television some as a sport commentator. That might help with the withdrawal pains," he said.

"Today everything is sort of blank for me," said Staubach. "This retirement thing is tough. My 5-year-old son, Jeff, doesn't even understand. He came up to me and said: 'Dad, does this mean we're not going to work out anymore?'"

Staubach said deciding to retire had made him a "nervous wreck." It finally got the best of him at his press conference that was televised live by three stations and broadcast in a telephone hookup to Washington and St. Louis.

"I wasn't going to do this," said Staubach, dabbing at big tears.

The 38-year-old Staubach, rated the No. 1 career passer in National Football League history, said he did not retire because of five concussions he had received last year.

"I've never worried about injuries and the examinations I underwent showed no brain damage," said Staubach. "One doctor was concerned that the concussions might be an accumulative thing."

Staubach then twitched his head twice, breaking up his audience.

Wife Marianne later told The Associated Press that Staubach's head injuries "did worry me. After the third one last year I asked him to see a neurologist and he did so about mid-season. I was concerned. I just wanted him to see somebody."

Staubach said he retired because "It was a gut feeling....I wanted to spend more time with my family...of course, my concussions were sort of historical...I've had more than my share."

"He was a great two-minute quarterback, sort of like Bobby Layne," said Landry, who has been in the NFL 30 years as a coach and player.

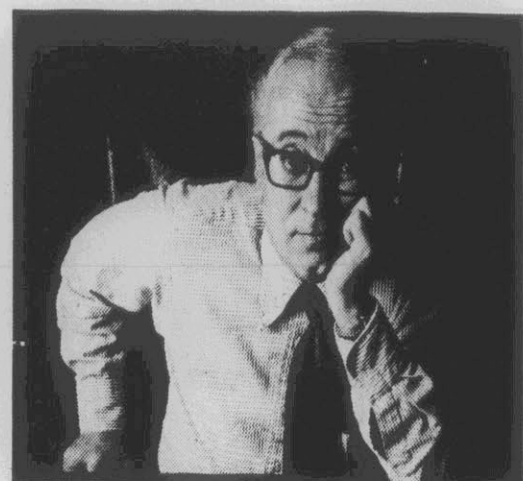

Staubach accounted for 23 fourth-quarter comeback victories in the regular season and playoffs, including 14 in the final two minutes.

White said, "I don't expect to go in and in one year accomplish the things Roger has....You don't become an outstanding pro quarterback in one year. There'll be some bumpy times...some adjustments to make."

Boys' Track Roundup

Beddingfield 76,
Greene C. 66

STANTONSBURG — Melvin Bynum won four events for Greene Central and set two new school records, but it wasn't enough as hosting Wilson Beddingfield inched past the Rams, 76-66 in boys' track yesterday.

Bynum captured first place in the 100-meter, the 165-meter low hurdles, the long jump and the triple jump, setting school records in the last two. He soared 22 feet, 5 1/4 inches in the long jump and flew to 47 feet, 7 1/4 inches in the triple, the longest jump in the east so far this year, according to coach Stuart Smith.

Beddingfield, however, swept all three relays, and that propelled the Bruins to the victory. Dew was their only double winner, taking the 1600 and 3200 runs.

Washington 104,
Conley 19

WASHINGTON — Washington High School romped to a 104-19 victory over Conley in boys' track yesterday. The Vikings were unable to post a single victory in the meet against the strong Pam Pack.

Results of the long and triple jumps were unavailable.

Summary:

Rampants, Jaguars Eye League Net Titles

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Rose High School's tennis team is looking for a Division I conference championship this year and has jumped away to a fast start in its quest for it.

The Rampants have run out to a 4-0 beginning on the season, and among their victims count the team felt by most to be the one to beat.

In fact, Rose has dominated play in the four matches losing only two individual matches so far while winning 30. (One match had the doubles rained out.)

The Rampants return nine people off last year's team, although only four of them were singles starters.

"The key so far is that we have serious tennis players who work year around," Coach Tim Ricks said. "They don't play other sports and they concentrate their efforts on tennis. Most of them have had lots of experience in summer programs, camps and the like."

Ricks credits this to the nationwide boom in tennis over the past few years, along with the added emphasis by the local tennis clubs and the recreation programs.

"I think we have an excellent shot at the conference title," Ricks added. "Although I haven't seen everyone, I was told that Hunt would be the team to beat, and maybe Rocky Mount. We beat Hunt 9-0 and we play Rocky Mount (today)."

On the current ladder, Jeff Quinn occupies the number one slot, having moved up from number two last year. Scott Bailey is up from four to number two, and Larry Talbert is third, up from sharing four and five. Paul Farley, a sophomore, has taken over the number four spot, with Bert Singleton at five and Danny Elmer at six. Neither played singles last year.

The doubles units are composed of Quinn and Talbert at number one, Bailey and Farley at number two, and Elmer and Scott Taylor at number three. Occasionally, Ricks will go with Bobby Gantt and Jonathan McGee at one doubles unit with Bill Lee and Todd Lynch at another. "We also will use some other combinations from time to time, including our other team member, Tom Messick."

A victory for the Rampants today would give them a good start toward the title, according to Ricks.

Farmville Central Farmville Central's tennis squad has gotten off to a slow start, mainly due to the bad weather so far this spring. But, the defending Eastern Carolina Conference champs are hopeful of a repeat from last year.

"We've played Wayne Country Day and lost to them twice, but they are a very strong team," Coach Mike Terrill said. "I think they'll be stronger than anyone we play in the conference."

In league play so far, the Jaguars are 0-1, however, having dropped a road match with Charles B. Aycock, 5-4.

"Aycock should be one of the top teams in the league so I think we're improving."

Four return from last year's team. They include David Dunn, now number one, up from two or three last year; Lonnie Pierce, number two, who played one or two last year; Bobby Patterson, number three, up from four; and Steve Morgan, number four, up from five.

Playing at five is Stuart Gordon while Steve Natale is six. Gordon was on the squad last year, but was not a regular, while Natale is a junior transfer student.

"Eddie Wooten, a senior, could also move up into the top six, and plays on the doubles. Shane Nanney and Mike Worthington also have seen some doubles action," Terrill added.

The coach feels the Jaguars will have a good chance to win the title again. "We'll get better as the season goes along. We just haven't been able to play as much as we'd like to."

He sees Aycock and Farmville battling it out for the title. "We play each other three times, so whoever wins will be the true champion," Terrill added.

Strike Specter Greet Board

DALLAS (AP) — The specter of what could be a long, costly strike greeted the executive board of the Major League Players Association as they gathered here today.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the union, believes management has sought a strike from the beginning of negotiations and cited a multimillion dollar fund assembled from last season's gate receipts and an insurance policy that would pay struck owners $1 million a day as evidence.

"The owners taxed themselves 2 percent of last year's gate for a strike fund," Miller said. "That's about $3.5 million plus interest. We also know they have an insurance policy that pays the 26 clubs $1 million a day after the first two weeks of a strike. There's an override on top of that by Lloyds of London for $40 million."

For those reasons, Miller said, management has engaged in strictly surface negotiations. "Their intent has been to provoke a strike," Miller said. "They see this as a time to take the players on, to dismantle the players association."

The players have voted overwhelmingly to authorize the strike action with a final count of 967-1. The lone dissenting ballot was cast by Jerry Terrell, player representative of the Kansas City Royals, who cited religious reasons for his position.

The only question that remains seems to be the timing of strike action.

"The principle subject of conversation (today) will be a date," Miller said. "I've counseled the players on the pros and cons of different dates. I didn't make any recommendation because they didn't ask."

And if they do? Miller smiled. "I'll sleep on that," he said at first but later he amended his position, saying, "The players have to ask themselves when it would have the maximum impact economically. I think that time would be near the end of May. If you look at April, school is still in session, there's bad weather, there are a lot of open dates, television coverage is not as heavy as it is later on."

"But there are other factors. The players are angry."

What has angered them most is the management demand for compensation in the free agent clause of the basic agreement. Players fear that would restrict the market and result in the same limited kind of free agency that faces professional football players.

Miller said most of the negotiating time has been spent dealing with the demands of the owners, not the players.

"I'd say 95 to 98 percent of the time has been spent talking about what they want, not what we want," he said. On Sunday, when a federal mediator, summoned by management, entered the talks, Miller said more than nine hours of meetings had accomplished nothing.

"The owner representative talks was to provoke a strike from the start," said Miller. "And by God, I think he's done it."

Phillies.....

says Manager Dick Williams.

After three consecutive division titles, the Philadelphia Phillies were ravaged by injuries in 1979 and slipped to fourth place. It cost low-key Manager Danny Ozark his job late in the season and tough-guy Dallas Green took over.

If healthy, Green's starting eight can play with any team in the league, but they started as a unit only 74 times in 1979. Bob Boone is a talented catcher. The infield boasts strong bats — Pete Rose (1B) and Mike Schmidt (3B) — and good gloves — Manny Trillo (2B) and Larry Bowa (SS). The outfield of Greg Luzinski, Garry Maddox — who may be traded — and Bake McBride is backed by a capable bench, including heralded young Lonnie Smith. Luzinski has shed more than 20 pounds in an effort to erase memories of last year, when he slumped to .252 and 18 homers.

Steve Carlton and Nino Espinosa were the only starting pitchers who escaped the injury siege, but Espinosa came up with a sore shoulder this spring. Green is counting on healthy comebacks by starters Larry Christenson, Dick Ruthven and Randy Lerch. The bullpen, once rich in talent, is getting along in years.

The St. Louis Cardinals also have a star-studded lineup — Ted Simmons behind the plate; NL batting champ and co-MVP Keith Hernandez (.344), Ken Oberkfell, Garry Templeton (first player ever to get 100 hits from each side of the plate) and Ken Reitz around the infield; newcomer Bobby Bonds joining Tony Scott and George Hendrick in an outfield that has no room for minor league sensation Leon Durham. Bonds replaces retired stolen base king Lou Brock in left.

The pitching staff, however, is a series of question marks behind starters Bob Forsch, Pete Vuckovich, Silvio Martinez and John Fulgham (all right-handed, none a household name) and reliever Mark Littell.

The Chicago Cubs have a new manager in Preston Gomez but most of last year's same players who won only nine games in September and skidded to fifth place. The big names are major league home run champ Dave Kingman (46) in left field and Cy Young Award winner Bruce Sutter (37 saves) in the bullpen.

Bill Buckner, newcomer Mike Tyson, Ivan DeJesus and Steve Ontiveros form a capable infield but Jerry Martin is an unhappy (money) center fielder and catcher Barry Foote and Rick Reuschel, the top starting pitcher, have been ailing.

The new owners of the New York Mets shelled out $21.1 million for a club that has finished last three years in a row. Then they spent hundreds of thousands to sign pitcher Craig Swan (40-45 for his career) and outfielder Joel Youngblood, who never has had a regular job.

Despite a critical lack of power (no one hit more than 16 homers), first baseman Lee Mazzilli (last year's center fielder) and left fielder Steve Henderson are good hitters and Frank Taveras (SS) and Doug Flynn (2B) form a fine double play combination. A great deal depends on whether catcher John Stearns can hit more than last year's .243 and if pitcher Pat Zachry can shake off elbow surgery.

Prediction: Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Montreal, St. Louis, Chicago, New York.

Award To Griffith

SALISBURY, N.C. (AP) — The 4th annual John Wooden Award has gone to All-American Darrell Griffith, who led Louisville to the NCAA basketball title, as the nation's collegiate basketball player of the year.

Griffith's selection was announced Monday night by Tom Hebert, vice president of the Los Angeles Athletic Club, which sponsors the award in honor of the former UCLA basketball coach, at the National Sportscasters and Sportswriters Association's meeting Monday night.

Griffith sparked Louisville to a 59-54 win over UCLA in the NCAA finals.

Wooden, now retired, presented the award to Griffith, who outdistanced DePaul's Mark Aguirre and Purdue's Joe Barry Carroll in the voting of 1,000 sports reporters across the country.

"This is a big thrill for me," said Griffith, a 6-4 senior, in an interview before receiving the award. "Anytime you are presented something with Wooden's name on it, it's a great honor."

Griffith was selected most outstanding player in every tournament in which he participated during the past season, including the NCAA.

Many players seem to believe that it is acceptable practice to rescue partner by bidding no trump when they hold a singleton in his suit.

You would think that, by now, experience would have taught them the folly of their ways. If you have a singleton in partner's suit and no long, solid suit of your own, where do you expect to make tricks at no trump? At least at a suit contract, long cards can be used for ruffing purposes.

We wondered about the advisability of publishing the auction shown, for few would believe it. But we can vouch for its authenticity. When the smoke cleared, South had made exactly three tricks.

and the penalty was 1,700 points. A kibitzer asked North why he had not taken out to four spades—that would have been 600 points cheaper. North replied that he could not face the prospect of his partner bidding four no trump!

There are those who might feel that the cause of the tragedy was North's decision to respond to his partner's opening bid. We could not disagree more. It cannot be right to suppress a reasonable six-card major suit when partner has opened one of a minor. After all, reverse South's major-suit holdings and game would not be impossible.

Also, we are in agreement with South's decision to rebid one no trump despite his singleton spade. He did not have the strength to rebid two diamonds, which would have been a reverse, and rebidding his weakish five-card club suit was not appealing. North passed in the hope that his side could get out of the auction.

East, whose initial pass had been good strategy, now emerged from the woodwork with a double that his partner was happy to pass. North, not surprisingly, was unwilling to play one no trump doubled, so he took out to two spades—a contract that would have produced at least six tricks. South should have resigned himself to his fate then and there. His rescue to two no trump bordered on the absurd, and there are no words to describe his decision to bid again over three spades.

Barbara Walters Very Happy With Interviews

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Something seems amiss in the rather remarkable ascendancy of ABC News: Where is Barbara Walters' place in this basement-to-penthouse story?

Miss Walters' hiring from NBC in 1976, you may recall, was ABC's splashy first step toward polishing its then-shabby news image. The network's second move was to hand over the News Division to sports chief Roone Arledge, who promptly erased the first step.

The more Arledge's way became ABC's way, the less America saw of Barbara Walters. Arledge viewed the million-dollar-a-year Walters hiring as a typical pre-Arledge ABC News blunder — throw money at a problem and hope it will go away.

Arledge professed respect for Miss Walters, but her role at ABC quickly diminished and blurred under his command. She went from Harry Reasoner's co-anchor to nightly features reporter to occasional features reporter.

Arledge has had amazing success with ABC News, and now that it's cruising down Main Street in a fast taxi, Miss Walters gets most of her exposure from celebrity interview specials. What happened?

"When I came in (to ABC News), it was the worst year of my professional and personal life," she says. "Not just because of all the salary talk or the troubles between Harry and me, but it was just a bad news department. They were glad to get off the air every night."

"I felt I was drowning there. I felt that even if Harry and I made it, it was simply bad. I wanted Roone to come in, whatever happened because of it."

You don't send a million-dollar-a-year journalist home to collect checks, so Arledge tried nightly Barbara Walters feature segments.

"But after the first few months, I went to him and I said I didn't want to be on every night for just a few minutes. I wanted fewer nights, but more time to do in-depth interviews, interviews with juice in them. I think of what we've had, interviews with the shah's princess sister, for example, and I'm very happy with it. We've consistently made news with these interviews."

Which leads us to the patented Walters-celebrity interviews, one of which, featuring Bo and John Derek, airs tonight.

"I like doing them," she says. "I like it very much because I have what I don't have on the news — time. And ABC's doing it because that's 50 percent of our contract."

Miss Walters played a large part in the broadcast journalism revolution that made stars of TV news reporters and brought the news into the ratings fray. Her much-discussed contract with ABC has a year-and-a-half left.

"Then, obviously, we'll sit down and negotiate. You have to. But what I'd want, perhaps, is less, but more ... My daughter, who's 11, will be leaving home in five or six years, and I feel strongly about wanting to be at home more..."

"I suppose what I'd probably like is longer pieces, but fewer programs."

77-Year-Old Shoots 3 For Alleged Mugging

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — One day after he was mugged in the neighborhood where he had lived for 66 years, Theodore Jodoin confronted three men outside a liquor store. Then, screaming, "Do you recognize me?" the 77-year-old man opened fire, police say.

Stephen F. Harris, 30, was killed and two men were wounded, one critically, in the shooting Monday that police say apparently was prompted by a desire for revenge.

Police declined to say whether they believed Jodoin's claim that he had been mugged or that the shooting victims were somehow involved.

Jodoin was charged with one count of murder and two counts of assault and held overnight without bond in Franklin County Jail. He was to be arraigned today in Springfield District Court.

Police Capt. Francis Reilly described Jodoin as "an angry old man."

"He alleged that he was mugged and he went out looking for the parties responsible," Reilly said.

According to police, the shooting occurred in a liquor store parking lot as Harris stood talking to two men in a car.

Harris, recently released from Walpole state prison and a brother-in-law of Springfield state Rep. Ray Jordan, was shot in face with a .38-caliber handgun.

Clifford Curtis, 55, was in critical condition after a bullet passed through his neck and grazed his spine. Willie Hardy, 46, was in good condition with shoulder wounds.

Police said Jodoin told them he recognized Harris as the man who had mugged him the day before. Jodoin said he had not filed a report on the $35 robbery.

The suspect screamed, "Do you recognize me?" before the shooting, police say, then went inside the liquor store and shouted racial epithets at a clerk. Jodoin was arrested as he left the store.

Jodoin, who is white, had lived in the predominantly black neighborhood for 66 years, friends said. The three victims were black.

Police said Harris was released recently from Walpole on a ruling that he had ineffective counsel. He had been sentenced to 10 to 15 years for the 1977 shooting of a clerk in a package store, authorities said. He was to be retried May 12 in Hampden County Superior Court.

Duckling Is For Renting

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — The nearing Easter holiday means it's Rent-A-Duck time again at the Dayton Museum of Natural History.

Each Easter since 1976, the museum and the Goose Fever Hunt Club have rented out day-old mallard ducklings for six-week stays at hundreds of area homes. The renters are provided with precise instructions on the care and feeding of the ducklings.

They agree to bring their charges back after six weeks and the club put the ducks in carefully selected natural habitats.

There have been 1,500 to 2,000 Rent-A-Ducks raised and released each spring. E.J. Koestner, museum director, does not doubt that many of the program's alumni can be found right now swimming up and down the Great Miami River.

The fee for one duck is $4, but two or more cost only $3 because the museum wants to encourage group rentals. "Ducks that get lonely will drive you crazy with peeping," said curator Robert Sexton.

Points Out Many Cancers Curable

Dr. Walter J. Pories, chairman of the Department of Surgery of the East Carolina University was the speaker at the monthly meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars Thursday evening.

Pres. Alice Moseley turned the meeting over to Cancer Chairman Rosalee Williams, who introduced Dr. Pories. He is a retired colonel in the U. S. Army Reserve. He works at the VA hospital two days a month as a volunteer. He stated that medical care in the VA Hospital is not what it should be. His special interest is in cancer surgery and he has founded two national cancer centers. He is also Chief of Surgery at Pitt Co. Memorial Hospital. He stressed that many types of cancer can be cured. Some 50 percent of Hodgkins disease and leukemia patients are being cured, he said. New equipment is now available in cancer diagnosis and treatment, making it easier on the patient. Surgery, x-ray, drugs and chemotherapy are being used in treatment. Dr. Pories thanked Mrs. Belle Boyles, past state president of the V.F.W. for the $5,000 gift to cancer research at the ECU Medical School.

A short business meeting was held. District President Jewel Ryder presented a Citation of Merit for 100 percent membership to the local auxiliary.

Americanism Chairwoman Margaret Brown stated she was still placing pledge of allegiance and flag etiquette booklets in the county schools. She also said the American Flag was being defaced in some protest groups and it should not be allowed.

Mrs. Myrtle Meeks, rehabilitation chairwoman, reported that gowns have been taken to a patient in the local nursing home.

Co-chairwoman Margaret Hudson presented $69.55 that was raised for cancer aid and research.

Following the closing ceremonies refreshments were served by hostesses Genes Boyd, Helen Liles and Louise Bell.

Protect Moose In New York

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — In a state known worldwide for its towering Manhattan skyline and bustling city streets, it'll cost you as much as $2,000 and a year in prison if you gun down a moose.

But first you have to find one — no easy task even in the wilds of the Adirondacks since the last native New York moose went to its reward about 120 years ago, according to wildlife experts.

Gov. Hugh Carey signed a law Monday raising the maximum penalty from a $250 fine or 15 days in jail, or both.

The major reason for the law is that moose will occasionally wander into New York from Canada and New England.
