Car Dealers Facing Problems

By STUART SAVAGE Reflector Staff Writer

The high cost of gas, concern over interest rates, and tightening of credit, have combined to cause problems for many car dealers in the Greenville area.

Bill Brown Jr., president of the Pitt County Automobile Dealers Association said last week that generally, "sales this year are down approximately 25 percent," in Pitt County, as compared with sales last year.

"Greenville is more fortunate than the people around us," Brown added, pointing out that, "in other places, sales are down 40 percent. The medical school and university have a lot to do with that ... the growth situation here," Brown theorized.

"The best thing to happen to us would be to hear some good news...people start thinking positively again," according to Brown.

"Basically, financing costs," for buyers haven't increased like the prime interest rate, which is now about 20 percent, he said. "North Carolina law regulates the ceiling," which can be charged on loans for car purchases. "If you borrow $4,000 or more," he explained, "the maximum is 14 percent," although higher interest rates can be charged if smaller amounts of money are borrowed.

With the ceiling on auto loans, "it's a losing proposition," for banks, who could receive higher earnings from other loans, so financing institutions are tightening credit.

"The biggest thing," Brown said, is, "floor plan charges...the cost you pay for keeping new cars on the lot, which is now in the neighborhood of 19 to 20 percent.

"You're talking from $160 to $170 per month," for a good immediate-size car, and even more for a luxury car, Brown explained. "That's the biggest problem, paying for our inventory that's in stock. The interest rates on consumer credit are somewhat advantageous, although no one's buying right now."

The high cost of keeping new cars on the lot, the spokesman continued, "really makes a difference on what dealers are willing to have on the lot," suggesting that many dealers "order banks ... cars on order with the factory," are low.

Dealers, Brown said, are having trouble selling large cars.

"Buyers," Brown noted, "have to have very good credit," and, "a substantial downpayment," to get a loan now. "People with marginal credit are just not going to get a loan."

Tom Little, general manager of Tarheel Toyota said that in his opinion, the general public looks at the prime interest rate when considering whether or not to buy a car.

"Nine out of 10 buyers assume," they will have to pay the prime rate for auto loans. "That's not accurate," he emphasized, pointing again to the fact that the maximum rate on a $5,000 loan is 14 percent.

"Financing is not like it was a year ago. The banks appear to be tightening credit. Money is a little scarce...what they are willing to lend at what interest rate they can charge."

The Resurrection Celebrated

JERUSALEM (UPI) — With a bright spring sun setting over the walled Old City of Jerusalem Saturday evening, thousands of Christian pilgrims converged on the Church of the Holy Sepulcher for midnight Easter services celebrating Christ's Resurrection on the site.

The rare convergence of the Easter holiday on the calendars of all Christian denominations has forced the various sects to take turns in conducting services at the church, a hulking, cream-colored structure built on Calvary rock.

The Orthodox ceremony of the holy fire, which culminated in fire issuing forth from Jesus's traditional tomb, was part of daytime services in the basilica Saturday.

The Greek and the Armenian rites were holding midnight services (5 p.m. EST) at the church, which enshrines the site of Jesus Christ's crucifixion, burial and resurrection.

Israeli troops kept a low security profile as throngs snaked through the old walled city's narrow alleyways for the end of solemn Holy Week observances and the start of the joyous Easter celebration.

Easter Sunday celebrations start today with sunrise services, followed by Pontifical High Mass celebrated by Monsignor Giacomo J. Beltritti, Roman Catholic Patriarch of Jerusalem.

Israeli officials say some 90,000 visitors arrived in the Holy Land for the Easter and Jewish Passover holidays, 30 percent more than last year. One-third of the visitors are Christians.

By PHILIP PULLELLA VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John Paul II concluded a precedent-breaking series of Holy Week activities Saturday night with ceremonies culminating in a midnight Easter mass at St. Peter's Basilica.

On Easter Sunday, more than 100,000 pilgrims are expected to jam St. Peter's Square, their eyes fixed on the balcony where the pontiff's delivers his "Urbi et Orbi" blessing for "the city (of Rome) and the world."

During the past week John Paul presided at Holy Week masses and prayer services, sometimes attending as many as three functions in one day. He made Vatican history Friday by disguising himself in a simple cassock and listening to confessions from ordinary people in St. Peter's.

The pope began the day Saturday by receiving several visitors in private audiences, including representatives of the Italian highway police, and was given the first Polish-language edition of the Vatican daily newspaper L'Osservatore Romano.

He rested the remainder of the day in the Vatican, preparing for the Saturday midnight pontifical high mass before 20,000 Roman Catholics that marks the beginning of Easter Week observances.

Before the mass, the pope officiated in rituals blessing incense and water to be used after Easter, representing a spiritual cleansing.

The blessing ceremony preceded a prayer service in which Catholics in St. Peter's basilica will renew the Baptism vows made for them by godparents when they were infants.

The midnight services marked the end of a hectic Holy Week that saw the pope walk through the ruins of Rome in a Way of the Cross procession and stun visitors to St. Peter's by donning a simple priest's black cassock and hearing confessions for an hour and 35 minutes.

It was the first time in history a reigning pope is known to have heard confessions from ordinary people in the world's largest church.

On Friday night the pope carried the symbol of Christianity through the ancient ruins of pagan Rome in a candlelit Good Friday procession attended by more than 50,000 chanting faithful.

Three Clergymen Visiting Hostages

United Press International Openly critical of the United States and its handling of the Iranian crisis, three American clergymen arrived in Tehran Saturday to celebrate Easter with the 50 hostages in the U.S. Embassy.

They were joined by Hilarion Capucci, the Greek Catholic archbishop once imprisoned by Israel for smuggling guns to the PLO. He delivered gifts and letters to the embassy and said he too would celebrate Easter Sunday with the hostages. It will be their 158th day in captivity.

In other developments, Iranian President Abolhassan BaniSadr again denounced the embassy militants for thinking they can "make the United States kneel by keeping the hostages."

But any hope that Bani-Sadr raised was quickly dashed by Iranian ruler Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, who reiterated through a spokesman Saturday that only Iran's new parliament could take any decision concerning the hostages.

That in turn prompted Iran's Revolutionary Council, the embassy militants and the hard-line political party that will command a majority of the new parliament's seats all to issue statements pledging to "follow the imam's (Khomeini's) line."

Capucci, who visited the hostages last February and is on his third visit to Tehran, delivered a bundle of presents and letters to the embassy from Americans who sent them to Iran's embassies abroad for relay. Joining him in celebrating Easter at the embassy were three Midwestern clergymen, the Revs. Darrell Rupiper, a Roman Catholic priest, and Jack Bremer and Nelson Thompson, both Methodists.

A delegation of militants from the embassy drove to Tehran Airport to greet the American prelates arriving from Copenhagen, Denmark, and wish them away in a Chevrolet to spend the night at an undisclosed destination.

They made no arrival statement although two of them, Rupiper and Bremer, said before departing from New York Friday they believed Iran was right to insist that the United States admit its "guilt" in supporting the shah and force him to return to Iran, where he has already been sentenced to death in absentia.

Thompson, pastor of the United Methodist Church in Kansas City, Mo., declined to discuss his sympathies beyond saying they were with the hostages.

Carter Favorite In Mississippi Caucuses

By ANDREW REESE JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — President Carter made a clean sweep Saturday of Mississippi's congressional district caucuses, winning all 22 delegates chosen to attend the Democratic National Convention.

The UPI national convention delegate count before the balloting in Louisiana gave Carter 848, Sen. Edward Kennedy 445.5 and 24.5 uncommitted. A total 1,066 delegates are needed to win the Democratic nomination. Carter made a clean sweep Saturday of Mississippi's congressional district caucuses, winning all 22 national convention delegates. He was also expected to get most or all of the 10 more Mississippi delegates to be chosen later this month.

"It has been shown from the precinct caucuses until today that President Carter has the support of the majority of Mississippi Democrats," said Carter supporter Danny Cupit, a Jackson attorney who also helped coordinate Carter's winning Mississippi campaign in 1976.

At the state convention later this month, there is only a slim chance one or two uncommitted delegates will be named. That depends on whether the party's uncommitted faction can come up with at least 15 percent of those attending.

Seven blacks, including state Rep. Aaron Henry of Clarksdale, co-chairman of the state Democratic Party, were among the 22 national convention delegates named at Saturday's five district meetings. Eight women were chosen. (Continued on page A-3)

King Statue Presented

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Close to 1,000 people, holding hands and singing "We Shall Overcome," gathered in Marshall Park Saturday for the dedication of

The six-foot tall bronze statue, unveiled one day after the 12th anniversary of King's assassination in Memphis, showed him with his arm outstretched.

"We're all in his debt, both black and white," Hunt said. "Because of his life, we have more justice, more freedom and more economic opportunity."

"But the battle is still to be waged," he said. "I am glad to see this statue shows him climbing to the top of the mountains, yet pointing ahead to what we've got to do."

The statue, sculpted by Dr. Selma Burke, was paid for by the Martin Luther King Jr. Memorial Commission, a local group. It cost $68,000.

The elder King said he was gratified by the statue.

"We appreciate this more than words can relate," he said. "The persons who erected this statue and did the painting are certainly to be praised."

Coretta Scott King, the slain leader's widow, declined an invitation to attend the ceremonies, saying it had been family policy not to attend such functions. She said she wanted fund-raising emphasis placed on the activities of the Martin Luther King Jr. center in Atlanta.

Woman Dies On Wedding Day

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A woman died in a wreck following a high-speed chase Saturday, which was to be her wedding day, police said. Her fiancé was injured in the crash.

Authorities identified the victim as Barbara Hooks Dail, 33, of Raleigh.

The driver of the car was identified as Charles Burgio, 29, of Rochester, N.Y., Miss Dail's fiancé.

Burgio was thrown from the car when it crashed into a utility pole, police said, and was being treated at Rex Hospital for multiple injuries. He was listed in good condition Saturday.

Police Sgt. J.H. Privette said an officer starting pursuing the car about 3 a.m. after it went through several stop signs. The officer's name was not immediately available.

The chase continued to about 1 1/2 miles west of the Raleigh city limits, where the car crashed broadside into the utility pole, a state Highway Patrol spokesman said. The car was ripped in half by the impact.

"They were going to be married today," said one relative who was at the hospital Saturday morning. "It's terrible. That's all we will talk about now."

State Trooper D.L. Hawkins, who investigated the accident, said later that Burgio was charged with manslaughter, speeding, attempting to elude an officer and running a stop sign.

Carter, Reagan Lead In Louisiana

By JOANI DUFFY
NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — President Carter and Ronald Reagan, the front-running favorites threatening to make the nominating conventions a walkaway, won Louisiana's first presidential primary Saturday. Carter was defeating Sen. Edward Kennedy by more than 2-1, while Reagan was administering a 3-1 drubbing to George Bush. There were 51 Democratic delegates at stake and 31 on the Republican side, and it appeared both front-runners would pad their already substantial vote leads over their nearest rivals, who basically skipped Louisiana to concentrate on subsequent primaries.

In Washington, Carter said in statement: "I want to thank the people of Louisiana tonight as they made history voting in their first presidential primary, and I want to thank them for their continuing confidence in my administration."

Rep. John Anderson, R-Ill., considering running as a third party candidate in November, skipped Louisiana. California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. was on the Democratic ballot even though he pulled out Tuesday after a crushing defeat in Wisconsin. The vote and percentage for the leaders in Democratic primary as of 9:50 p.m. EST with 30 percent of the 2,902 districts reporting: Carter 48,003 — 54 Kennedy 20,560 — 23 In the Republican race it was: Reagan 7,989 — 54 Bush 2,365 — 21

Carter Wins In Mississippi...

Carter overwhelmed Kennedy in Mississippi's precinct caucuses last March 15 and appeared at that time assured of winning at least 30 of the state's 32 national delegates.

The 10 remaining delegates not chosen at Saturday's congressional district conventions will be picked at the state convention April 19.

Carter, who narrowly carried Mississippi four years ago, was endorsed this year by Gov. William Winter and most other Democratic officials in the state.

Black leaders in the state were split between Carter and Kennedy, with Fayette Mayor Charles Evers backing the Massachusetts Democrat.

Mississippi Republicans hold a presidential primary this year for the first time to choose delegates to the national GOP convention. The primary is set for June 3.

Ingram Reveals Letter He Feels Will Clarify Ken Brown Controversy

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

John Ingram, North Carolina Commissioner of Insurance, told "The Daily Reflector" here Friday that a letter he received from a former Department of Insurance employee, should settle the controversy surrounding the resignation or firing of one of his top aids on the last day of his as a candidate for the Insurance Commissioner's post.

Ingram, seeking re-election to the post he has held for the past seven years, was in Greenville Friday to speak to the Pitt County Safety Council.

Following that session, Ingram told reporters that a letter from Cynthia Ely, dated March 26, should put to rest any question whether former deputy commissioner Ken Brown was fired or resigned his post.

Brown filed as a candidate for the Insurance Commissioner's post on February 4, the same day Ingram filed for re-election. After both men filed, Brown said Ingram fired him, while Ingram said Brown resigned.

Mrs. Ely, Brown's former secretary, said in her letter to Ingram, "Inasmuch as I am no longer an employee of the Department...and since nothing I could now say could be considered as necessary to retaining my job, I would like to share with you something that has disturbed me greatly since the last day of the filing for Insurance Commissioner."

On that morning, Mrs. Ely said, "Brown phoned my home... (and) advised me that he had just finished talking with you...and that he would be filing for Insurance Commissioner as soon as the Election Board opened at 8:30 a.m. He further told me to get to the office as early as possible and from his office in the Consumer Division, notify the press that he would be filing when the Board opened," but did not say what office Ingram would be filing for.

Mrs. Ely continued, "Later that morning, when you reached the office, I was astonished to learn that you had filed for Commissioner and not another office. At that time I was under the impression that you had told Mr. Brown to file and that he had your endorsement."

After members of the press began converging on the office and, "after numerous statements made by Mr. Brown to the press," Mrs. Ely continued, "I learned that the statement he was giving to them was directly contrary to the statement he had made to me earlier...on the telephone. In his statement to the press, he indicated that he had talked with you on a pay phone just outside the Election Board just prior to his filing. But he did indicate to me at approximately 7:05 that morning that he had just finished talking with you on the phone."

"He also indicated to the press that he had been fired. "Inasmuch as my desk was immediately outside Mr. Brown's office," Mrs. Ely said, "I could not help but overhear the conversation you and Mrs. Ingram had with Mr. Brown and Mr. Tatum."

"At that time, Mr. Tatum tendered his resignation and Mr. Brown immediately followed suit, with an offer to work a two weeks' notice."

Saying employees of the department considered Ingram and Brown, "the best of friends...more than just an employee-employer relationship," Mrs. Ely said, "I can not understand why Mr. Brown would intentionally file for Commissioner, knowing that you were going to run for re-election. I can only believe that he knew that you were going to file and decided to go ahead and run anyway."

Two Charged In Murder

WEST COVINA, Calif. (UPI) — Two men have been charged and a woman held for questioning in the death of a young boy whose body was found a week after he was kidnapped from his front yard, police said Saturday.

"I reached under the blanket and felt my grandson's toes," Manfred Tolleson said after he was directed to a garage two doors away from the home of the victim, 10-year-old Ronald Tolleson Jr.

"Then I went to the other side of the blanket and raised it and it was Ronnie's face," he said.

The boy disappeared from his front yard March 28.

Larry Johnson, 23, and Orville Young, 22, were charged with suspicion of murder in the case, and authorities said they were searching for a third suspect, Danny Jerome Young, 21, a California Youth Authority parolee.

Officers said the three suspects were boarders in a house leased by Luwana Patterson, Young's sister. She was being held for questioning.

The garage where the body of Ronald Tolleson Jr. was found is attached to the Patterson house.

Police said Danny Young was last seen Thursday in Claremont, about 20 miles east of West Covina, boarding a Greyhound bus, possibly headed for the Seattle area where his mother lives.

The house and garage where the boy's body was found had been searched three times between his disappearance March 28 and Monday.

It had been under surveillance until police received word last Sunday that Danny Young had been seen in Fontana, about 40 miles east of West Covina.

Manfred Tolleson, told reporters that the contents of the garage had been changed since he had searched it Monday for his grandson.

Tolleson said he was standing in front of the family home when he was beckoned to the garage by Larry Johnson.

Tolleson said Johnson opened the garage door and said there was something under some blankets. After finding his grandson's body, Tolleson said he went immediately back to his house where the boy's father, Ronald Tolleson Sr., was waiting by the telephone hoping for word on his son.

"I said, 'I just found Ronnie, but he's dead,'" Manfred Tolleson said he told the victim's father.

The boy's father later told reporters he believed that the boy was killed at another location.

"I made a plea for them to return his body and apparently they did," he said.

Shortly after the boy disappeared, his father received a telephone call demanding $3,000 in ransom.

Tolleson called police who told him to place $100 at a designated drop site in a park. A jogger picked up the money but police said he was an innocent messenger in the case and was not the kidnapper.

The FBI, believing the boy may have been taken across state lines, entered the case shortly before the boy's body was found.

More than $21,000 in rewards had been offered for the safe return of the boy by businessmen, and friends and neighbors of the Tolleson family.

Winterville Murder

WINTERVILLE — A Winterville man was shot and killed Saturday afternoon at 4:30 p.m. at the home of Ms. Iceleon Daniels, 523 Boyd Street, Winterville.

According to Winterville Police Chief G.I. Jones, Arnie Orthous Cann, 333 N. Railroad Street, was shot in the chest with a small caliber weapon by Joe Cullen Daniels, 203 Woodside Drive, Greenville.

Daniels, who fled the scene of the crime, was later apprehended in Greenville by Trooper H.L. Cox and was charged with murder and driving under the influence.

The investigator said that Cannon was transported to Pitt Memorial Hospital and died shortly thereafter.

Investigation is continuing.

Withdraws Protection

MIAMI (AP) — The Cuban government has withdrawn police protection from the Peruvian Embassy and said Cubans who entered foreign embassies seeking asylum will not be allowed to leave the country, according to Radio Havana.

The government, in a communique monitored in Miami, accused Venezuela and Peru on Friday of protecting "common criminals, bums and anti-social elements" who asked for political asylum.

According to the broadcast, the Peruvian Embassy's police guard was withdrawn because of the death of a police guard last week. Radio Havana did not identify the dead policeman or say how he died.

Aquitted

PLYMOUTH, N.C. (AP) — A Superior Court jury acquitted a former job training center official Friday of charges that he misused the center's funds.

Michael Ervin, 29, of Edenton had been charged with embezzling a total of $3,321 and obtaining $453 worth of property by false pretense and forgery.

The charges concerned Ervin's former work as comptroller of the Eastern North Carolina Opportunities Industrialization Center Inc. in 1978. The center is in Washington County.

Luella Gear NEW YORK (AP) — Stage and screen star Luella Gear, whose sarcastic, wisecracking wit enhanced numerous Broadway plays including the 1932 hit "The Gay Divorce" died Thursday after a long illness. She was 80.

Day Of Hope For Christians

Today is Easter Sunday and for the Christian world, it is a time of renewed hope. The day for Christians signifies the re-birth of the spirit. It is the day when the Savior rose from the dead in victory over death.

As the Christian world comes to Easter in 1980, many of the monumental problems we face involve great non-Christian areas of our earth. For some societies, like the Soviet Union, the governmental stance is atheistic.

Yet the teachings of Christ can lead us to the solutions of many problems we now face. Jesus was first of all a man of peace. His message was love for our fellowman. He taught us to have compassion for the worst among us. And, if we really study carefully his teachings, we will find the basis for tolerance for those who think differently from us.

We can apply the wisdoms of Christ to modern day problems, and the answers will be found. It only takes patience and faith.

Anticipating Their Country's Call

Many an old military man brushed off his uniform and polished up his brass last week.

It was announced that the Army will notify some 200,000 retired officers and enlisted men that they could face further active duty.

It would take a national emergency but the men recalled would be assigned to bases in the U.S. in order to relieve active duty men for overseas assignment.

We could see a glint in the eye of more than one retired military man. Once again there was the possibility that their country might call upon them.

Radar Evidence Arguable

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Enough North Carolinians simply don't believe in the reliability of radar speed detection devices that the beginnings of a "public revolt" are in evidence.

Judge Russell Walker Jr., from Asheboro, says more and more people are fighting speeding tickets as they hear of court cases elsewhere in which radar has been discredited. Several investigative reports in print and on television have generally condemned radar.

In Miami, Fla., a judge ruled radar evidence inadmissible; and a study committee of the North Carolina General Assembly has been told that in many Florida courts, speeding charges based on radar are routinely dismissed if the individual pleads not guilty.

Not so in this state. Walker, who is a member of that study group, says the judges here still trust the word of the detection device and tend to find the defendant guilty.

Study

State Senator Jim Edwards, D-Caldwell, is chairman of the committee which is supposed to come up with legislative answers to the problems of radar reliability and the training of police officers to operate the devices.

Edwards believes that a lot of Tar Heels are fighting the tickets, but the records don't reflect that because most people go ahead and pay the fine and court costs rather than go through the expense and bother of an appeal to higher court.

Experts from law enforcement ranks and from firms which make the speed radars have told legislators that unless operated properly the devices can and do produce faulty results. Echoes from roadside signs, dirt banks, or other nearby vehicles can cause a "target vehicle" to register a speed which is inaccurate.

Bill Goodson, chief radar engineer with a Kansas firm which produces police radar, testified that in his opinion any officer using radar should first have an intensive training course, then spend up to two weeks on the road using the device without writing any tickets because the inclination is at first to trust the equipment completely; but with experience to learn that all is not what it may seem on the speed readout.

The committee also learned that California prohibits police radar, but has the nation's most effective speed enforcement program using traditional observation and pacing techniques.

Savings Crisis
April is developing into a crisis month for savings and loan institutions.

At a time when interest rates have climbed so high that many who might have borrowed to purchase a home are delaying that decision, many with money on deposit are withdrawing it to take advantage of higher interest available through Money Market Certificates or other quick-yield plans. Meanwhile, inflationary pressures cause many to spend their money rather than save at all. W.D. Lee, chairman of the North Carolina Savings and Loan League, says January figures show a national decline of 68 percent from deposit gain (new money deposited and interest earned) reported one year ago.

"The combination of slowing rates of saving and the shift of deposits from lower to higher rate accounts will certainly continue to depress the housing market for months to come," Lee says.

BILL NOBLITT

The association is pushing state and federal income tax breaks on interest earnings to encourage savings. Economists counter that so long as inflation psychology holds strong, people will continue to spend rather than put money in savings accounts paying interest rates lower than the inflation rate.

THE L.A. TIMES SYNDICATE

By ALVIN TAYLOR

Sunday Morning Notes

Bill Taylor of ABC Moving, his wife, and his son Ronald and his wife, attended the biennial meeting of North American Van Lines in Orlando, Fla. recently.

It was like most business conventions with various company officials speaking at the sessions.

The featured speaker, however, was to be a national personality, and Art Linkletter of television fame was chosen.

Taylor first saw the famed entertainer a table away at breakfast. They spoke and that was about it.

At the session in the afternoon, however, there were several empty seats at Taylor's table. Linkletter came in and took one of them while another speaker was talking. The speaker finished and everyone got up to leave for a coffee break.

"My God," Linkletter laughed. "I'm the next speaker. You think they are all going to leave?"

Taylor explained that it was a planned coffee break. "Actually they've all been waiting for your talk."

There was time for conversation and Linkletter told

Taylor that he was on the road about nine months a year making talks and trying to get young people to understand the drug problem. (Linkletter's daughter died apparently as the result of a drug overdose.)

About six weeks a year he spends at a ski resort in Colorado. He was, in fact leaving that weekend to put on a family skiing competition

Campus Life Is Duller

By MATT BOKOR
Associated Press Writer

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Goldfish-swallowing is ancient history. Streaking went out several years ago. And toga parties, last year's campus craze, aren't mentioned these days.

The first spring of the 1980s at universities across the South seems to be quiet indeed.

"What I've seen so far is students seem content to drink beer and party," said University of Georgia student adviser Linda Carmichael. She adds quickly that "they've also gotten to be very dedicated academically."

At various campuses, students and college officials who work with them say the revelry that once prevailed on spring campuses is part of the past. Students no longer pile into telephone booths or small cars. They don't raid for panties. And streaking, which swept campuses across the nation in the mid-70s, is gone too.

"Most people just seem to be low-key these days," observed Jim Crouch, director of student organizations at the 23,000 student University of South Florida in Tampa.

At the University of Florida in Gainesville, students say that the old college spirit is still around, but it just doesn't materialize like it used to.

"People of college-student age, 18 to 22, still have that spirit you might have seen in the 50s, but I think a great awareness is coming on," said UF junior Neil Contess, 20, of Tamarac, Fla.

"We do like to have a good time," he said, "but the bottom line is this: We play hard and we work hard. And if you keep a striking balance between the two, you're in good shape."

"We realize the problems that this country and the world face. We're getting serious about solving them."

That doesn't mean students don't like to have fun anymore.

"Greek life is big so there are a lot of parties going on," said Lisa Maddox, 21, a junior at the University of Tennessee. "They have a lot of 'Fort Lauderdale' parties..."

U.S. STRETCHED THIN

An Imbalance Indicated

By FRED HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — It long has been an article of American military faith that U.S. technological superiority will offset Soviet advantages in numbers of men and machines.

But Soviet advances in conventional ground, air and sea weaponry have raised doubts that the United States can hold an overall lead in quality.

The Russians already have equaled, and possibly surpassed, the United States in some key weapons. For example:

—Army research chiefs reported last year that "we no longer are on safe ground contending that our yet-to-be-deployed XM-1 tank will be superior to future Soviet models."

—The Soviet navy has started deploying a new 40-knot, nuclear-powered ALFA attack submarine that U.S. intelligence sources say is faster and deeper-diving than the most advanced American sub.

—Air Force specialists say the Russians may be ahead of the United States in some aspects of electronic warfare, radar jamming devices which are vital in battles for air superiority.

The numbers tell the story of relative U.S.-Soviet strength in gross terms.

The Russians have about four million men under arms, the United States slightly over two million men and women.

The Soviet army fields 50,000 tanks, the U.S. Army 11,000; 55,000 armored troop carriers to 17,600; 22,000 artillery pieces to 5,600. In helicopters, the U.S. Army leads, 7,800 to 3,500.

The Russians have 8,800 planes of all types, the United States about 6,400.

The Russians have 1,769 ships in their navy, the United States about 450 in its regular fleet.

Recognizing the importance of challenging Russia's technological gains, President Carter's new defense budget provides for a $3 billion leap in funding for research and development, a 22 percent increase over this year's allotment.

"We are on the threshold of the largest peacetime modernization in the Army's history," said Army Secretary Clifford Alexander and Gen. Edward Meyer, the Army's chief of staff.

The 1981 defense budget "is the forward edge of a five-year, $33-billion modernization program which enables us to meet the battlefield challenges created by Warsaw Pact advances," they said.

The Pentagon's plans to buy 3,900 XM-1 tanks, proposes 3,800 armored infantry and cavalry fighting vehicles, 700 helicopters, 1,700 fighting jets, 140 major rocket launchers, nearly 750 battlefield air defense units, and more long-barreled big guns.

"We would fully expect to be outnumbered" in air battles with Soviet fighters, says one command pilot. But he says a revolutionary new weapon called AMRAM could be the equalizer.

The AMRAM (for Advanced Medium Range Missile) system would permit a pilot to lock on to an enemy plane, fire his missile, then go after other foes quickly without having to remain fixed on his original target until his missile struck.

The administration also is proposing to buy from 80 to 200 new transports called CX to lift Army gear. Unlike the C-5, the CX will be able to land on rough airstrips in remote areas.

The CX project is spurred by the administration's growing concern about preserving U.S. interests in the Persian Gulf, and by the possibility of having to send sizable U.S. troop units there. The CX fleet should be available by the mid-1980s.

Another element in the administration's plan calls for purchase of 14 special "Maritime Prepositioning Ships," to be anchored in friendly waters in remote regions with full loads of everything from beans to bullets.

Other Editors Say Shoplifting War

(Washington Daily News)

We have said many times that if we are to fight shoplifting in order to win, it must be at least a three-sided attack.

The law enforcement arm, the merchants, and the courts must work together closely. If any of these three fall down anywhere along the line, then the effort to cut down on shoplifting in our community is jeopardized badly.

In many talks with merchants on the subject, we have every reason to know that they are most anxious to cooperate in every possible way. Merchants come right out and say "we are losing many dollars per year through shoplifting; we are marking up merchandise by four percent in order to protect ourselves against the shoplifters."

When statements such as the above are made, it causes one to stop and think. Good, decent people who are honest and upright are paying a premium for goods simply because dishonest people are preying upon the society as a whole.

When we read that the Washington Police Department is bearing down on shoplifting, that shoplifting has been particularly bad in recent months, and that the courts are beginning to bear down too, the cooperation of the three can and will be most meaningful in the days ahead.

It looks rather cruel at times to punish harshly a 16-year-old girl or boy on the charge of shoplifting. But it actually could be harsher to ignore their crimes and to allow them to go from petty thievery to bigger ponds. Too, it is cruel for merchants to have their goods stolen and for honest customers to have to pay more for goods because of the criminal element.

We realize that law enforcement officers at times feel harassed when some merchant calls when an item or two of merchandise has been lifted with a value of only a few dollars. But the very acts of shoplifting, without regard to the value of the item stolen, ought to be the first priority in this fight against shoplifting. We can stand on the sidelines and bemoan the heavy fine or the road sentence given good old Joe Blow, if that be our wish. But while we stand and bemoan, our pocketbooks are being riddled because of Joe Blow and a hundred others.

They may be shoplifting for a thrill or because of a dare or because they wish to prove a point. Regardless of the reason, it is wrong, and in the courtroom when the plea for mercy is given, excuses of the nature above make such a little impression on the judges, juries, and even spectators.

Taylor knew that Linkletter skied with former President Gerald Ford and he asked about Ford's ability on the slopes. Linkletter said it was difficult to tell, that Ford was good on the intermediate slopes, but that the real test was on the high slopes.

Linkletter, who is in his sixties considers himself an expert skier. He was a good athlete in his youth and still is. The remaining six weeks of his off-duty time is spent scuba diving in Southern California.

In his talk he noted that he was left on the door steps by two teenagers who didn't care and was raised by a Baptist preacher and his wife in Canada.

He said that in his biggest income years, taxes were extremely high in the upper brackets, perhaps 96 percent, so he invested in many things, figuring he could lose only four cents on the dollar. Some lost; others paid off.

Taylor's son took pictures of him and Linkletter together — just to prove it to the folks back home.

Offices Are Going Electronic

By STEPHEN FOX
AP Business Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — And now, the electronic wastebasket.

It's for real, part of a machine billed as "The Office of the Future," which sends and receives mail and memos, processes words, creates its own charts and forms, answers the phone, files files electronically, calculates return on investment and talks to its computer in English instead of gobbledygook.

The Axxa System 90 Electronic Office, which looks like a cross between a typewriter and a television set, was designed to fit easily into existing work routines, says Axxa Corp. President David Willoughby.

"Since its purpose is to improve efficiency, it makes no sense to disrupt people's established work patterns merely for the sake of perpetuating a mystique which says that life with computers must be complicated," says Willoughby.

In addition to a button marked "wstbskt" that discards documents, the System 90 also has a button marked "Oops" that nullifies the last thing the user did and another one marked "Help" that tells you what you're doing wrong.

The machine, originally developed for New York's Citicorp to improve that bank's back office procedures, is now being marketed nationwide by Axxa, which is based in the Los Angeles suburb of Woodland Hills. Willoughby says two of the nation's largest insurance companies, two giant oil companies and the three biggest domestic aircraft manufacturers have already signed up.

American businesses will spend more than $800 billion this year on office operations, according to the management consulting firm of Booz, Allen, and Hamilton Inc., and twice that in 1986. These huge costs make the office a prime target of efforts to improve productivity, says Willoughby, adding that managers and secretaries alike will have to adapt to machines like Axxa's.

"The only way for office productivity to make really significant gains is for everybody in the system to be part of the system," he said. "That's why our equipment is directed toward the manager as well as his secretarial and clerical support."

Willoughby, a 38-year-old Tennessee native who worked for Citicorp before becoming president of Axxa, sees the System 90 as the logical extension of earlier office machines.

"They started out with word processors," he said in an interview. "Then someone else developed electronic mail. Someone else developed a sexy calculator and someone else produced a desktop computer. What we did was put it all together."

The office of the future doesn't come cheap, with an average System 90 installation going for $42,000. But Willoughby sees a great future for Axxa's products and he's happy about something else — his office has no wastebasket.

Strength For Today

INNER HAPPINESS

Most people are searching desperately for happiness. Some hope to find it in organized entertainment, some in gratifying their sensual desires, some in acquiring possessions, some in wielding power.

Standing before all these situations, Jesus Christ talks about another, type of joy, much more intense and gratifying than any of these. It is simply the joy of religion. Jesus spoke of his disciples as members of a wedding party and of himself as the bridegroom. His coming into the world was not only to call men to duty, but also to bring them joy.

But why can this joy be so intense? Because it comes from the inside out, and not from the outside in. Jesus Christ and his spirit enrich the inside of a person's life until the heart becomes a fountain of joy and happiness. Besides this all other earthly sources of happiness are at best mere temporary diversions.

A Shrinking Carter Lead

By George Gallup

PRINCETON, N.J. — President Jimmy Carter has lost considerable ground to Ronald Reagan in recent weeks and now holds only a slim 48-43 percent edge over his principal GOP challenger.

In the previous (Feb. 29-March 3) test election between the two men, Carter held a healthy 58-33 percent lead over Reagan.

In the current survey, Rep. John Anderson of Illinois, tested as an independent candidate in a three-way race against Carter and Reagan, shows surprising strength. Anderson wins the support of 21 percent of registered voters to 39 percent for Carter and 34 percent for Reagan. In this three-way test, Anderson draws as much support from registered Democrats as from registered Republicans. And among registered voters who classify themselves as political independents, Anderson is in second place, with 30 percent of the independent vote, compared to 36 percent for Reagan and 26 percent for Carter.

Anderson's current support among all registered voters is about the same as the 22 percent vote George Wallace received in a May 1972 three-way test election against Richard Nixon and Hubert Humphrey. The Anderson vote in the latest survey and Wallace's standing in 1972 exceed any pre-convention third-party support in the Gallup Poll's 45 years of polling experience.

Here are the questions asked to determine the relative strength of Carter and Reagan:

"Suppose the presidential election were being held TODAY. If Jimmy Carter were the Democratic candidate and Ronald Reagan were the Republican candidate, which would you like to see win?"

Those who named another person or who were undecided were asked: "As of today, do you lean more to Carter, the Democrat, or to Reagan, the Republican?"

Carter's support in these trial heats has declined sharply since December, when he led Reagan 61 to 35 percent, and parallels a downtrend in the president's popularity. In an early-December survey, 61 percent approved of Carter's handling of the presidency while in the survey conducted this past weekend, 39 percent do so.

Here are the national results from the latest trial heat and the recent trend, based on the choices of registered voters:

Carter Vs. Reagan
(Choices of registered voters)
	Carter	Reagan	Other	Undecided
March 28-30	48%	43%	2%	7%
Feb. 29-March 2	58	33	3	6
Feb. 1-4	60	31	3	6
Jan. 4-7	62	33	1	4
Dec. 7-10	61	35	1	3
Nov. 16-19	53	41	1	5
Oct. 12-15	48	42	3	7
Sep. 7-10	47	46	2	5

Strength Of Support Equal
Strongly support him	31%
Moderately support him	67
No opinion	2

To determine the intensity of the trial heat support for Carter and Reagan, this question was asked of those who chose each man:

"Do you strongly support him or do you only moderately support him?"

The responses to this question show that neither man can boast having stronger support than the other. About one-third of both Carter and Reagan backers say they "strongly" support their candidate, while two-thirds indicate only "moderate" support for him:

Carter Supporters		Reagan Supporters
Strongly support him	31%	Strongly support him	32%
Moderately support him	67	Moderately support him	65
No opinion	2	No opinion	3

At the same time, however, Reagan supporters tend to be more strongly opposed to Carter than Carter supporters are to Reagan, in response to the following question:

"Do you strongly oppose (name of other candidate) or do you only moderately oppose him?"

Here are the national findings for supporters of each man:

Carter Supporters		Reagan Supporters
Strongly oppose Carter	32%	Strongly oppose Reagan	42%
Moderately oppose Carter	57	Moderately oppose Reagan	54
No opinion	11	No opinion	4

Personal Qualities Vs. Stand On Issues
Carter supporters put personality factors — "the kind of man he is" — ahead of his position on issues as a reason for voting for him in these test elections. In contrast, Reagan supporters stress their candidate's position on issues.

Here is the question asked to determine the relative impact of personal factors vs. the issues:

"Do you support him mostly because of the kind of man he is or mostly because of the positions he takes on issues?"

And here are the national findings:

Carter Supporters		Reagan Supporters
Chose Carter because of kind of man he is	48%	Chose Reagan because of kind of man he is	23%
Because of his position on issues	37	Because of his position on issues	66
No opinion	15	No opinion	11

This question was asked to determine the relative strength of the three candidates:

"If President Jimmy Carter were the Democratic candidate, running against Ronald Reagan, the Republican candidate, and John Anderson, an independent candidate, which would you like to see win?"

Those who named another person or who were undecided were asked: "As of today, do you lean more to Carter, the Democrat, to Reagan, the Republican, or to Anderson, the independent candidate?"

Following are the results, based on the choices of registered voters.

Carter Vs. Reagan Vs. Anderson
(Choices of registered voters)
Carter	39%
Reagan	34
Anderson	21
Other	1

40 Years Ago Today

April 6, 1940

WASHINGTON — On April 6, 1940, Inventors and Patent Day, the nation was preparing to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the first United States patent laws on April 10th.

Thomas A. Edison headed the list in the number of important inventions from 1790 to 1940. From tallow candle to 1,000-watt lamp, from 10 miles an hour to 250, from horseback messenger to round-the-world telephone and wirephoto, from blood letting to miracles in surgery and conquest of disease, from an average life expectancy of 34 years to 61.

Among those who rate a place on the Inventors of All-Time; All-America are: Robert Fulton, steamboat; Eli Whitney, cotton gin; Samuel F.B. Morse, telegraph; Charles Goodyear, vulcanized rubber; Cyrus H. McCormick, grain reaper; Elias Howe, sewing machine; George Westinghouse, air brake; Alexander Graham Bell, telephone; Ottomar Mergenthaler, Linotype; Charles Martin Hall, process for making cheap aluminum; and Wilbor and Orville Wright for the invention of the air plane.

N.C. 'Delinquency Case' And Its Aftermath

By NOEL YANCEY

They called it the "kissing case." Back in 1959, the Communist press in Europe had a field day with the story about the two small black boys who were sent to reform school for kissing a little white girl. Some of the sensational tabloid newspapers in England and elsewhere said that James Hanover Thompson, 10, and David "Fuzzy" Simpson, 8, had been sentenced to prison for life.

The office of Gov. Luther H. Hodges and U.S. embassies overseas were swamped with letters urging the release of the two Monroe waifs. The Union County Juvenile Court judge had sent the youngsters to the Morrison Training School after they allegedly trapped a small white girl in a culvert and Thompson stole a kiss.

Hodges asserted that the NAACP was using the case for propaganda purposes after it held a news conference in New York City at which it trumpeted its version of the incident. Attorney Conrad Lynn asserted the boys' constitutional rights had been violated and that the NAACP would appeal.

Lynn said that actually the incident occurred while several children, both whites and blacks, were playing a kissing game. He said that although the little girl's parents said Thompson had forced her to kiss him, the black boy denied this. As for Simpson, Lynn said he was present but was busily engaged in catching spiders in a ditch.

Hodges recited the state's position in a telegram he sent to a British prelate, Canon L. John Collins of St. Paul's School in London, who had sent the governor a cable protesting the treatment of the boys and had released a copy to the press before Hodges had time to receive it. For this, Hodges tartly told the Englishman he appeared more interested in publicity than in obtaining the facts.

"These young Negro boys were not sentenced to 'life imprisonment' as seems to have been reported in several newspaper accounts," Hodges said. "They were not 'convicted' at all." He pointed out that under North Carolina law juveniles are not convicted as criminals but that they may be committed to training school for delinquency.

A highlight of the kissing case came a few days later at a habeas corpus hearing held before a standing room only crowd at Wadesboro. On hand to represent the boys was a battery of NAACP lawyers, including Lynn. Holding forth for the state were attorney General Malcolm Seawell and Assistant Attorney General Ralph Moody. Juvenile Court judge J. Hampton Price told Judge Walter Johnston Jr. that he had handled the case no differently than any other. He said he first heard from the little girl and her parents and later the same day from the boys and their parents. He testified that the boys had been brought before him several times previously and that he had put them on probation "eight or nine times." At the conclusion, Johnston ruled that "this court cannot upset the findings" of the Juvenile Court.

Hit A Career Burnout And It's Rock Bottom

By GAIL MICHAELS

"Every mother is a working mother" is the most inspirational saying to be churned out by the slogan industry since "Honk if you love Jesus." It's about time that childbirth is recognized as merely the first stage of labor.

Of course, mothers who hold down another job and mothers who don't face different sets of problems. For instance, the chief disadvantage of the mother who works outside the home is that she has to come home. And waiting to greet her are always at least 3 unwelcome guests — laundry, an empty stove, and dust.

Still, she's not usually prey to Toddler Syndrome, as almost every homemaker is. The chief effect of this disease is a regression to the toddler's level. Symptoms include extensive use of Band-Aids (necessitated by falls over wagons while pursuing naked children down driveway) and a progressively deteriorating vocabulary.

The sufferer is often known to the outside world as an excellent listener who communicates chiefly through body language. Believe me, this is not by choice. It is purely a defense mechanism adopted after the first dinner party at which she excuses herself to "go potty."

In spite of the surface differences between the mother with a career and the career mother, as a woman who has been at both ends of the spectrum I can say with authority that underneath these women are basically the same. They both may watch with interest the seething passions on "Dallas," but the only passion they really have is for a nap.

And as prepared as they think they are for the occasional monotony, the loneliness, the hassle, and the question, "Do you work?," they can never be prepared for the greatest problem of all.

At least I wasn't. When Phillip came home one afternoon last week and found me huddled glassy-eyed in front of a cup of lukewarm Sanka and seven banana peels, I was loathe to admit what was wrong. "I hate to say it," I moaned. "But I think I have career burnout."

"Huh?" "Career burnout. It means I've had it with being a mother. It means I love Meg, but she's driving me crazy."

"So, what's new?"

"Career burnout is nothing to joke about, Phillip. I've hit rock bottom. I can't keep my mind on my work, and I can't keep my mind off it. When Meg's around, I can't seem to give her my full attention, and when she's not around, I worry about not giving her my full attention. I'm irritable with her. I'm depressed ... According to the article I read today, I have all the symptoms."

He picked up a banana peel. "Obviously loss of appetite isn't one of them."

"You don't understand," I wailed. "I can't live like this any more!"

"No one said you had to. There's got to be a solution." "Only one."

"Well, what is it?" "I looked down at the bulge under my shirt and sighed. "Change jobs."

Facing South When Yanks And Rebs Built A Georgia Town

FITZGERALD, Ga. — A farmer's life has never been an easy one, but 1893 was a disaster for midwestern farm families. Weather and economics combined that year to destroy hundreds of farmers in Indiana and neighboring states, hitting those who had recently suffered in the Civil War especially hard.

When word of the farmers' plight filtered to the rest of the nation, help poured in. To the surprise of many, the first state to send aid (in the form of several thousand bushels of corn) was Georgia, an old enemy. This generosity set in motion events which would eventually unite Georgia and Indiana in an endeavor proving once and for all that the war was over.

P.H. Fitzgerald, an Indianapolis newspaper editor — whose weekly, The American Tribune, focused on the post-war veteran's association, the Grand Army of the Republic — followed this story with particular interest. He realized that by purchasing land in Georgia for settlement by Yankee veteran/farmers, he might be able to provide them with a longer growing season and a healthier climate. It seemed worth a try.

To gain the necessary funds, he sold 50,000 shares of stock at $10 each. The land he bought was in the heart of South Georgia, but before he could even have it cleared, his stockholders headed south. He urged them to wait, but by the spring of 1895, a series of wagons, houseboats, long boats, trains, and hack cabs had wandered down to Georgia.

The first settlers lived in tents, wagons, and rough lean-tos; their community was named, appropriately enough, "Shacktown." After a year clearing land, moving logs so thick a man could walk on them, preparing streets, and in general making life possible for later settlers, Swan, Georgia, was born. Within the next year, the population grew from 40 to 3,000.

There were hardships, of course. Many settlers were unused to the intense labor, so different from the work they had done on established farms or in grocery stores in their home states. Men and horses rushed everywhere and construction was booming, so naturally there were accidents. The doctors were competent, however, and when one man was thrown under his horse's feet, breaking three ribs, a Dr. Butcher had him bandaged and at work again in less than forty minutes.

The settlers also had to contend with those trying to cheat them. The Georgia farmers were, for the most part, helpful — in spite of the fact that over a third of the colony was composed of Yankee ex-soldiers. But the railroads were accused of jacking up prices from $20.00 to $50.00 a load. And land speculators tried — unsuccessfully — to cheat new arrivals.

By 1896, the new town's name had been changed to Fitzgerald to honor its founder and a city charter was issued.

Residents did their best to show unity with the area. The two main streets, for example, were named after Lee and Grant. The new hotel, originally named the Grant-Lee, was changed to the Lee-

Grant. Parades were planned for Memorial Day, one for Union soldiers and one for Confederate, but the soldiers refused to cooperate — they marched together. Even the free school, containing 501 students from 40 states and territories, reflected its heritage: the superintendent was a southerner and the eleven teachers were northern colonists. The mixture apparently led to progress: there was no tuition, textbooks were free, and school lasted for nine months. Years would pass before the rest of Georgia moved in these directions. There was even a college in town — Southern University of Georgia — with an enrollment of 150!

P.H. Fitzgerald visited the colony he founded several times before his death in 1929 — and was elated by what he saw. He even tried to duplicate the experiment elsewhere (Geraldine, Texas, was one of the later settlements which failed), but only Fitzgerald has survived as a colony.

Today, the town's early years are remembered in an annual celebration called the Yank-Reb festival. Everyone comes to town to enjoy a historical drama, "Our Friends the Enemy," and the inevitable flea market. The highlight of the weekend, however, is the roll call of the states. As their flags are presented, residents with different origins proudly shout out their presence.

Three-Mile Island Getting Into Perspective?

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — The first anniversary of the accident at Three Mile Island produced a mild rash of anti-nuclear demonstrations. A few prophets of Doomsday sounded off. Ralph Nader wrote a column. But the occasion passed with so little calamity-howling that I am almost encouraged: Perhaps we are beginning to get nuclear power in perspective after all.

Mr. Nader, to be sure, does not agree with that view. He finds that a year after Three Mile Island, "the horrors, expenses and community antagonisms continue to worsen." He is pleased that more people are learning about "the dangers, costs and bungling associated with this high-risk technology," and he predicts that those who come to learn today "will be in the forefront of the civic movement to shut down nuclear power tomorrow."

It is as may be. Other qualified observers have found things pretty calm in the area of Three Mile Island. The hysterical fears of a year ago have evaporated. The costly clean-up job continues methodically. And if more people are learning honestly about the dangers and costs of nuclear power, compared to other forms of generation, so much the better.

In the panicky hours and days after the accident, one fear eclipsed all the others — the fear of cancer. That fear has been found groundless. The President's Commission on Three Mile Island reported that "in spite of serious damage to the plant, most of the radiation was contained, and the actual release will have a negligible effect on the physical health of individuals."

Indeed, said the commission's final report, the amount of radiation received by any one individual outside the plant was "very low," so low that the overall health effects "will be minimal." We know that among the more than two million persons living within 50 miles of Three Mile Island, 325,000 eventually will die of cancer anyhow, for reasons having nothing to do with the power plant. It is entirely possible that not a single extra cancer death will result from the accident, and "it is practically certain that the additional number of cancer deaths will be less than 10."

Other fears in the wake of the accident had to do with what might have been. Were we close to a catastrophic accident in which a large number of persons might have died? First off, said the commission, "the danger was never — and could not have been — that of a nuclear explosion." But suppose one more thing had gone wrong? The commission assigned engineers and scientists to concoct the worst possible scenarios.

The limits of engineering knowledge, having to do with hypothetical interactions of molten fuel with concrete, steel and water, inevitably left some uncertainties. But careful calculations led to the conclusion that "even if a meltdown occurred, there is a high probability" that no large amount of radioactivity would escape.

That conclusion is solidly backed in a technical staff report on "Alternative Event Sequences." Regrettably, this staff report has yet to be published by the Government Printing Office. The report is available in the mimeographed form in which it was released last October, and it is powerfully reassuring.

Neither a steam explosion nor a core meltdown would have ruptured the reactor vessel or the containment building.

The long and short of it is that the phenomenal safety record of nuclear power plants has not been diminished, but rather has been reinforced, by the accident at Three Mile Island. And since then, of course, even more elaborate safety procedures have been put into effect. When Mr. Nader rattles on about the dangers of this "high-risk technology," he ignores the demonstrable evidence that Three Mile Island has provided.

And surely there is no such thing as a risk-free society. The foreseeable alternative to nuclear power is coal-generated power. Does coal involve lesser risks? Tell it to the coal miners! And tell it to those scientists who are deeply concerned at the ecological damage of "acid rain" and the "greenhouse effect." Nuclear power, on the record, is the cleanest and safest form of power now available. Mr. Nader's irrational alarms notwithstanding, we ought to be building more nuclear plants, not shutting some down.

She explained that a lot of students can't hit the sunny beaches as often as they'd like, so they haul beach blankets and beer coolers to campus pools and pretend they're in Fort Lauderdale.

And for the hundreds of Tennessee students who did manage to get to Florida beaches for the spring break, there are tanning contests to enter once they get back to campus.

"Several fraternities get together and judge the best tans," Miss Maddox said.

GAINESVILLE: Maddox said

But that's nothing like the antics of old, said Florida historian Michael Gannon.

"They are very laid back by comparison with the students even of the 50s and late 60s and early 70s, who were quite frisky," he said.

Gannon, an ethics professor and an assistant dean, said students do seem to be worried about the world that awaits them upon graduation.

"It's a much more serious world economically. The 50s and 60s were times of prosperity that our society had never known before.

"Students are now generally concerned with how they are going to survive, how they are going to buy a house... Those things have a devastating effect on the outlooks of some young people."

Other school officials agreed that the highly publicized antics of past campus crowds have been replaced by private smaller parties that attract little outside attention.

"Striking and all that has gone out. A while back we had a lot of toga parties, and that's all gone," said a Tennessee employee who didn't want to be identified.

"We really don't do anything out of the ordinary," said a fraternity advisor at the University of Georgia, who also didn't want her name used. "It's just basically that the fraternity houses have their set weekends year to year. Nothing unusual is going on this year."

In an emergency, up to three brigades of Marines would be flown to the Persian Gulf or some other threatened area. There, they would draw the equipment and supplies from the depot ships and presumably be ready to fight.

The regular fleet has been cut over the past 10 years to 450 ships, down about half from the late 1960s. The key aircraft carrier force is down to 12 deployable ships, compared with 24 a decade ago.

To maintain a presence in the Indian Ocean-Arabian Sea area near the Persian Gulf, the Navy has had to draw from the 7th Fleet in the Western Pacific and the 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean.

"The Navy is stretched thinner today than at any time since the late 1940s," says Adm. Thomas Hayward, chief of naval operations.

"We are being asked to meet increasing demands with a fleet which is roughly half the size it was a decade ago.

"Individual unit capabilities have increased... but geography demands numbers as well as capability, and the simple fact is that today we are trying to meet a three-ocean requirement with a one-and-a-half ocean navy."

Over the past several years, the Navy gradually has been receiving new destroyers, frigates, submarines and nuclear-powered aircraft carriers. The new budget increases resources for an advanced class of guided missile cruiser, the CG47, which will serve as a platform for the Navy's prized AEGIS missile system to defend against attacking planes and missiles.

The new budget provides money for three new ship designs. One of these will be a "lower-cost major fleet escort," a destroyer. A second will be a cheaper frigate to be manned by Naval reservists. And the third will be a follow-on to the current SSN-688 nuclear-propelled attack submarine. Adm. Hyman G. Rickover, the Navy's nuclear propulsion and submarine chief, opposes the smaller and cheaper sub. Rickover objects because it would be slower than the SSN-688 class - and would come at a time when the Russians are building the ALFA sub, which is faster than even the SSN-688.

Harold Walsh said the cab, travelling east on Interstate 40, abruptly crossed the median and slammed head-on into the station wagon.

The vehicles exploded into flames, killing all five occupants.

Killed in the wreck were a 46-year-old Spruce Pine man and his three teenaged children - a 13-year-old boy, and two girls, aged 17 and 19.

Walsh said the family was headed to Tennessee for a camping outing.

The names of the victims were being withheld pending notification of the truck driver's wife, Walsh said. He said the truck driver was from Smithfield, N.C.

Walsh said both cars were virtually destroyed when he arrived at the scene.

"It was a complete inferno," he said. "Several fire departments responded to the call, and it took them 30 to 45 minutes to put it out."

He said he was not sure why the truck swerved across the median, but one witness told him the truck may have blown a tire. The destruction caused by the fire made it almost impossible to decipher what happened, he said.

"At this point, we really can't determine whether it was a physical thing with the driver, or a mechanical problem," Walsh said. "There's no way of determining whether or not a blowout. Everything was completely burned out."

Walsh said a team from the National Transportation Safety Board was to investigate the crash Monday.

There was no chance to save any of the crash victims, he said.

"There was one man that tried," he said. The first witness on the scene tried to pull the truck driver out, but the heat just got too intense."

'Delinquency Case' ...

of the Italian Communist Party had similar coverage.

Meanwhile, state officials had sought vainly to explain that the boys' mothers worked and that the youngsters were juvenile delinquents. Hodges had asserted that the training school superintendent could send them home "at any time it is found that their parents are willing and able to give them proper care."

State officials decided that time had come nearly a month later. The NAACP had assisted the two families to move to Charlotte and had set them up in modern apartments there.

Blaine Madison, state commissioner of correction and training, said that, "the home situation in each family has improved, and conditional release to their mothers is justified at this time." He said the boys' behavior, class progress and adjustment at the training school had been good.

Dr. Kelly Alexander of Charlotte, then head of the NAACP in North Carolina, hailed the release of the boys and pointed to the improved conditions in which they would live. "They'll have a good environment now, and they should be on their way to becoming good citizens," Alexander said.

It would be nice to conclude this story with: "and they lived happily ever after," but that was not to be the case.

Only 14 months later, newspapers carried dispatches from Charlotte which said that Thompson had pleaded guilty to "delinquency in connection with rape," that he had been adjudged a delinquent and sent to training school once again. A nine-year-old black girl testified that Thompson and another youth had lured her into the Thompson apartment and took turns raping her.

A recent check of prison records shows that a James Hanover Thompson, now 31, was sentenced in Charlotte in 1970 to serve 15-20 years for robbery with a dangerous weapon, that he fled from the Union County prison unit two years later and is still a fugitive. It also shows that David Ezell Simpson, now 29, was serving terms from Union County for larceny and receiving and escape. Simpson told the superintendent of the Stanly County jail where he is confined that he was, indeed, one of the boys involved in the kissing case.

Solicitations Approved

City Manager Ed Wyatt announced the approval of two requests for solicitation permits in Greenville.

Wyatt said the requests were submitted by: the American Legion Auxiliary for permission to conduct a sidewalk solicitation in order to distribute poppies on May 23 and 24; and by John K. Moore of Greenville for permission to conduct a sidewalk solicitation on April 5 at CJ's Arts and Crafts Store in order to fund a class project.

Garwood's Attorney Excused

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — Military attorneys representing Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood, who is accused of desertion and collaboration with the enemy in Vietnam, have been excused from the case.

Maj. Joseph Schmidt of the Camp Lejeune Public Information Office said Friday that during a closed hearing Thursday called at the request of Garwood, Capt. Dale Miller and Joseph Composto asked to be taken off the case.

Garwood asked Maj. Gen. David Barker, commanding general at Camp Lejeune, to appoint military lawyers to replace the two officers, who had worked on the Garwood case since he returned to the United States from Vietnam in March 1979.

Protesting 1980 Census

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Calling the census snooping by the federal government, a group of conservatives and leftists has joined forces to protest the 10-year head count.

The conservative Charlotte Libertarian Society has taken credit for anti-census ads in two Charlotte newspapers while the leftist People's Panther Party has put up posters around town protesting the census.

The Libertarians' classified ad offered "census resistance information." Those who answered were sent a pamphlet, "Big Brother is Snooping," and a resistance card to mail to the U.S. Census Bureau with their forms and to "Census Resistance '80" in Warminster, Pa.

Nucleus Of Puerto Rican Terrorists Crushed

COUNTERFEIT JEANS — Hialeah, Fla. police department detective Lorenzo Trujillo holds a pair of jeans with a counterfeit "Calvin Klein" label, one of 700 pairs police purchased in a buy-bust deal Friday at a Miami company where the jeans were being manufactured. A representative of the company that manufactures the jeans in New York positively identified the labels on the Miami jeans as counterfeit. Police estimate the illegal operations netted in excess of $4 million. (AP Laserphoto)

By PAM SHERROD EVANSTON, Ill. (UPI) — Authorities have "smashed the nucleus" of a Puerto Rican independence terrorist group linked to more than 100 bombings or attempted bombings since 1974 with the arrest of 11 members of the clan, officials said Saturday.

About 50 people marched outside the suburban police station where the group was being held Saturday to protest the arrests.

They carried signs, flags and chanted "Jimmy Carter lies when he talks of human rights," and, in Spanish, "The struggle will continue."

FBI agent Robert Long said two of the four suspected ringleaders of the FALN — the Fuerzas Armadas de Liberación Nacional or Armed Forces for National Liberation — were among those arrested Friday near Northwestern University.

A cache of weapons, ammunition and blasting caps also was seized.

"We have smashed the nucleus of the FALN," one law enforcement official said.

The FALN is suspected in 100 bombings or attempted bombings in Chicago, New York and Washington since 1974. There are only 125 known members of the group. Their most disastrous attack came in 1975 — a bomb assault on historic Fraunces Tavern in New York City in which four people were killed.

At the police station, Michael Novick, who identified himself as the organizer of the protest, said "these arrests are an attempt by the state to try these men and women for their patriotism ... the United States always labels as terrorists those who struggle for nationalism. We do not see them as terrorists."

He called the bombings, robberies and attacks the FALN has claimed responsibility for "heroic actions of soldiers in a struggle for independence and not the crimes the United States would claim."

Agent Long identified the suspected ringleaders who were among the six men and five women arrested Friday as Carlos Torres, 27, on the FBI's 10 most wanted list, and his wife, Marie, 25.

Authorities said they suspected another fugitive ringleader, William Morales, 27, was still in the Chicago area as his girlfriend, Dylcia Pagan, 33, was among those arrested Friday. Long said Oscar Lopez, another ringleader, also is at large.

Morales, sentenced to up to 89 years in prison on explosives charges, escaped from a New York hospital prison ward in May 1979 despite having lost both hands and part of his face in a July 1978 "bomb factory" blast, FBI officials said.

"He shouldn't be very difficult to identify because he doesn't have any hands," Long said.

Only two others of the 11 arrested were identified by midday Saturday. They were Ida Luz Rodriguez, 29, and Elizabeth Escobar, 31.

Authorities Saturday sought to identify the others. Long said the group was very "uncooperative."

Federal investigators said Ms. Rodriguez and Torres were identified by witnesses as being among suspected FALN members who raided the Carter-Mondale campaign offices in March, tied up workers and ransacked files.

New York City police flew to Chicago Saturday with arrest warrants for Torres and his wife. One warrant accused Torres of taking part in the bombing of Iranian Airlines headquarters in November 1977 and the other accused his wife of participating in the 1977 bombing of the Mobile Oil building in which one person was killed.

Officials from the U.S. attorney's office, New York City police, and the New York, Chicago and Washington FBI were involved in the investigation. Local authorities were expected to file illegal weapons and firearms violations against the 11.

The arrests followed the armed robbery of a car rental office in which two armed bandits tied up employees and stole a truck, Evanston Police Chief William C. McHugh said.

The truck was spotted at a Northwestern University parking lot, McHugh said, and police staked out the lot until a van pulled up. McHugh said the van's driver and passenger were armed but surrendered without incident.

Police were led to the arrests of nine others in part by neighbors who grew suspicious when they saw the group, dressed in jogging suits, making repeated trips to and from a van parked in a residential area.

"All the individuals were armed with handguns," McHugh said. "Plus they had shotguns and rifles with them in the van. It's very lucky no one was hurt."

"We could have had a real battle."

News Briefs

Two Released In Bogota

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Leftist guerrillas, fulfilling a Holy Week pledge, freed two more non-diplomats from the occupied Dominican Republic Embassy on Good Friday, but there was no sign of a quick release for the 19 diplomats, including U.S. Ambassador Diego Asencio, now in their 39th day of captivity.

William Barquero Montiel, a former Nicaraguan ambassador to Colombia, and Manuel Lozano, a Spanish businessman who sold liquor and other supplies to a number of embassies here, walked briskly from the occupied embassy and dodged reporters, blocked behind police lines.

The two men had been held since Feb. 27 when the leftists stormed the embassy during a diplomatic reception.

Sadat Threatens To Quit

KUWAIT (AP) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has told President Carter he will resign if there is no tangible progress in the Palestinian autonomy talks with Israel by May 26, the Kuwait newspaper Al-Qabas reported Saturday.

Himmat Mustafa, a spokeswoman for the Egyptian leader in Cairo, called the report "wishful thinking," and a State Department spokesman in Washington said he knew nothing about a Sadat resignation threat.

The usually well informed newspaper quoted an unidentified "informed American source" in Washington as saying Sadat "now hopes through using the resignation card, the last one available to him, to convince Carter to pressure Israel."

Red Sovine

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music singer Red Sovine, 61, best known for his 1976 hit song "Teddy Bear," about a crippled boy befriended by truck drivers, died Friday after a traffic accident.

His other hits included "Phantom 309," "Little Rosa" and "Giddy-Up Go."

Visiting Hostages ...

(Continued from page A-1) not see the hostages until Easter Sunday and that he had "no idea" whether all of them would be allowed to see all of the hostages.

When the hostages were visited by three other American clergymen last Christmas, they were split into groups so that no one one of the visitors saw all of the captives. That in turn led to speculation that some of the hostages may have been transferred from the embassy.

Prospects for the hostages' release were set back again when Khomeini reiterated that Iran's new parliament would decide their fate and the Islamic Republican Party — which will command a majority of the seats in that parliament — said the hostages should remain with militants until the shah is returned to Iran.

This in turn appeared to deal another blow to the Carter Administration's hopes that Bani-Sadr would persuade the Revolutionary Council to take custody of the hostages, a step that Washington believes could help bring about their eventual release.

Bani-Sadr, who has made the hostage issue a test of his still uncertain authority over the hardline clerics in Iran's nebulous power structure, denounced the militants in an interview Saturday, declaring that "we can never make the United States kneel by keeping the hostages, even if we try them and put them in jail."

But spokesmen for the Revolutionary Council and the embassy militants said in separate statements they would follow "only the imam's (Khomeini's) line" on the question of transferring custody of the hostages.

In an editorial in its party newspaper, the Islamic Republican Party also said the hostages should remain in the militants' custody not merely until the new legislature convenes in about two months, but until the shah is returned to Iran.

Rupier, Bremer and Thompson were sent to Iran by the Kansas-based Committee for American-Iranian Crisis Resolution, a group that has expressed sympathy for Khomeini's Islamic regime.

Rupier of Omaha, Neb., said in New York Friday that Washington should "admit to complicity in the crimes of the shah and should agree not to place any obstacles in the way of his extradition."

Bremer, director of Ecumenical Christian Ministries at the University of Kansas, compared Iran under the shah to Nazi Germany and accused the United States of helping to sustain his "holocaust."

Local Car Dealers Facing Sales Problems ...

"It's a matter of getting the right vehicle for the right person. You can get cars financed. If a man's credit is fine, there's no problem."

Harry Hastings of Hastings Ford and Joe Cullifer of Bill Haddock Chrysler Plymouth Dodge described their sales as "good."

"We're not having any problem getting cars financed," Hastings noted, while Cullifer said financing institutions, "haven't put the clamps on us."

Cullifer added that, "the cost of doing business is greater than it has been," but suggested, "we'll just have to bite the bullet."

Waverly Phelps of Phelps Chevrolet explained, "we're not having that much of a problem," in having cars financed, "if everything is in line." However, he added that, "some are being turned down if they don't have a reasonable downpayment."

According to Phelps, "sales are off," especially new truck sales, which are down about 50 percent from last year, while used car and truck sales are off possibly 25 percent.

Bill Glidewell of First State Bank said many credit suppliers find it, "pretty hard...under present...laws," to finance cars, "with what we're having to pay for money."

"What we're doing," Glidewell explained, "is just lending to good customers and trying to do the best we can...trying to keep the terms as short as we can."

"We're only lending in cases where we're trying to take care of our customers."

Terry Sparrow of Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. acknowledged too, that, "credit is probably tightening up. We've had to upgrade our standards," he said, and, "a little more equity (downpayment) is required. "People can still get loans," he emphasized, "but they are having to pay more. "We are definitely still in the auto financing business," Ann Guerrant at North Carolina National Bank said. But, she added, "we are looking at customers first...account relationship customers," and, "in some cases, requiring more equity."

Toto To Perform On April 17

MOMENT OF TRUTH — David Gwillim, as the wayward Prince Hal, places on his own head the crown which will make him the King of England. The scene is from part two of "Henry IV," scheduled to air from 8 to 11 p.m. Wednesday, April 9 over PBS, Channel 25, Greenville. Jon Finch and Anthony Quayle also star in this chronicle play, one of Shakespeare's that is rarely performed in America. "The Shakespeare Play," will eventually air all 37 of the bard's dramatic works.

Toto, a group of six Los Angeles based musicians, will be in concert at 8 p.m. on Thursday, April 17 at Minges Coliseum. Opening act for Toto will be TBA.

This Toto concert is the only appearance the group is making in the two Carolinas during their extended spring tour through a number of east coast states. The concert is sponsored by the ECU Student Union Major Attractions Committee.

Tickets are priced at $7 and in addition to the Central Ticket office on campus can be purchased at: The Record Bar, Carolina East Mall; Apple Records, East Fifth Street; and the Music Shop, Greenville Square Mall.

The six have been together for a number of years, dating back to the early teens for most of the group. Their "studio relationship" has lasted for an eleven-year span of friendship and working relationship.

Toto performers are:

— David Paich, who plays keyboards and is a co-writer and arranger with Boz Scaggs and for the Doobie Brothers.

— Jeff Porcaro, drummer, who has also played for Boz, Steely Dan and many others.

— David Hungate of Texas, who has recorded with Barbara Streisand, Leo Sayer and the Pointer Sisters.

— Steve Porcaro (brother of Jeff) and a keyboard player who has performed with Gary Wright, Leo Sayer and others.

— Steve Lukather, guitarist, whose credits include recordings with Hall & Oates and Alice Cooper. Steve is also a featured writer and performer on Valeria Carter's latest LP.

— Bobby Kimball, the group's singer, is from Vinton, Louisiana. A veteran of several bands from the New Orleans area, he came to L.A. to sign with the S.S. Fools before becoming a member of Toto.

The group's latest single is

"99" and their latest album is "Hydra," both of which are now on the top 100 charts.

Winners In Recital

The East Carolina University School of Music Young Artists Competition Honors Recital will be presented at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday, April 9 at the A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall. There is no admission charged, and the public is invited to attend.

Each year the competition, sponsored by the School of Music Student Forum, is held for music students in three categories — voice, instrumental, and piano. This year's over-all winner, pianist George Stone, will be presented in recital on April 16. The two students in Wednesday's concert are tenor Douglas Newell and percussionist Stefan Stuber, winners in their respective categories.

For his part of the program, Stuber will perform three Elliott Carter pieces — "March," "Saeta" and "Improvisation;" four compositions by Tchaikovsky — "Sweet Dreams," "Waltz," "The Doll's Burial," and "Nursery Tale;" and William Cahn's "Nara."

Tenor Newell, accompanied by Donna Roman, piano and assisted by Christy Wadzeck, flute, will sing three Strauss songs — "Allerseelen," "All mein Gedanken," and "Heimliche Aufforderung;" also, Vaughan Williams' "From far from eve and morning;" Walter Hartley's allegro con brio from "A Psalm Cycle;" and three songs by Ross Lee Finney, "Here Skugg Lies," "When Mars and Venus," and "Drinking Song."

Wind Chamber Concert

A concert by the Wind Chamber Ensemble will be given at 9 p.m. Thursday, April 10 in the A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall. The program is free and the public is invited to attend.

Faculty coordinator for the group is Brad Foley, who will also perform in the Bozza composition. Faculty member David Hawkins will perform in the Mozart "Serenade." All other performers are students of the School of Music.

Selections to be performed are: Henry Cowell's "Sailor's Hornpipe;" the scherzo from "Quartet, Opus 12" by Rimsky-Korsakov, arranged by Teal; Russell Howland's "Saxophone Quartet No. 2;" and an andante and scherzo by Eugene Bozza. All these will feature the saxophone quartet. The brass choir will perform Thomas Tyra's "Suite for Brass and Timpani" with Ronnie Wooten, student, conducting; and the woodwind ensemble will play Mozart's "Serenade No. 12 in C minor."

ECU Jazz Ensemble Becomes NAJE Chapter

The East Carolina Jazz Ensemble, under the direction of George Broussard, has become a member of the National Association of Jazz Educators (NAJE) 100 Percent Club. As a member the ensemble has been awarded a library of 12 jazz arrangements and will become eligible for NAJE grants and scholarships as well as for the resources of the NAJE's 40 professional consultants.

Student officers of the ECU club are Mickey Eury, president; Rich Holly, vice-president; Richard Levinson, secretary; and Roland Coisen, treasurer. Chapter faculty adviser is George Broussard, who is currently president of the N. C. Unit of NAJE and editor of the Jazz Column in the "North Carolina Educators."

The ECU Chapter and the Jazz Ensemble has assisted Phi Mu

Alpha Sinfonia in receiving sanction of the NAJE for their Spring Jazz Festival at ECU on April 19. At that event, clinician/adjudicators will be James Ketch of UNC-Chapel Hill; William Fritz, former saxophonist with Stan Kenton; and Lou Marini, a nationally recognized jazz educator.

Variety Of Events Scheduled For Halifax Day On April 12

HALIFAX — Bands, battles, bagpipes, ballads, and an old standby, a barbecue, will all be featured in the 1980 celebration of Halifax Day to be held Saturday, April 12.

The events mentioned above will all be highlights of the 204th anniversary of April 12, 1776, when 83 North Carolinians took the first official action by any state to gain independence from the mother country by signing the Halifax Resolves, absolving North Carolina citizens from allegiance to the British Crown.

In recent years, North Carolinians have traditionally remembered the anniversary with all-day activities at Historic Halifax, a State Historic Site.

This year's activities will honor Joseph Montfort, first Grandmaster of the Masonic Order in the United States, and Willie Jones, a colonial leader whose name has been linked to that of naval hero John Paul Jones.

Archaeological excavations are underway at the homes of Montfort and Jones, and exhibits in the Visitor Center will feature artifacts, furniture and photographs of their families.

The celebration begins at 9 a.m. with guided tours of several restored buildings at the Historic Halifax site, including the Sally Billy House, the Owens House, the Constitution-Burgess House and the Clerk's office.

Tours will also be given of two buildings not usually open to the public — St. Mark's Episcopal Church and the Royal White Hart Masonic Lodge No. 2, site of the grave of Joseph Montfort.

At 11 a.m., guest speakers and visitors will gather in the amphitheater for formal commemoration ceremonies. Honorable Joseph Branch, Chief Justice of the N. C. Supreme Court and a native of Halifax County, will be guest speaker. The pay-as-you-go barbecue lunch will follow the formal ceremonies.

Bagpipes played by members of the 71st and 84th Frasers Highlanders will be heard at the market square following lunch. At 3:30 p.m. the Loyalist Highlanders will lay down their bagpipes, take up arms and join the Hessen Jagers in mock combat against the Second and Sixth Regiments of Foot and the East Florida Rangers of St. Augustine.

All day, costumed guides and musicians will provide colonial flavor. At the Halifax County Library, craftsmen will demonstrate spinning, weaving and other colonial arts.

In the amphitheater, performances during the day will include the N. C. Wesleyan College Band at 10:30 a.m. and at 1 p.m. Visiting Artists Kevin Delaney of Wayne Community College and Frank Proffitt from Halifax Community College will perform.

Except for the barbecue luncheon, all other events are free, and are open to the public. Halifax is about 60 miles from Greenville (via Bethel, Oak City, Hobbogood and Scotland Neck).

UNCOVERS REMAINS... an unidentified archaeologist uncovers remains at the foundation of the Joseph Montfort house at Historic Halifax. Montfort, first Grandmaster of the Masonic Order in the United States, and Willie Jones, colonial leader, are being honored this year on Halifax Day, April 12, the 204th anniversary of the signing of the Halifax Resolves.

Round Peak Tribute

MT. AIRY — A "Tribute to the Music of Round Peak" will be held in Mt. Airy's Andy Griffith Playhouse on Sunday, April 13. Some of the oldest and most respected performers of traditional music will be on hand for the program that begins at 3 p.m.

Round Peak, near the Virginia border, is a community long noted for farmers who make music. Among old-timers to perform in the program are Tommy Jarrell with clawhammer banjo and fiddle tunes; Fred Cockerham, fiddle and banjo player; banjo player Kyle Creed; fiddler Ernest East and his Pine Ridge Boys; and the Smokey Valley Boys, featuring guitarist Paul Sutphin and fiddler Benton Flippen.

This will be a rare appearance of these performers on one stage at the same time — the average age of these Round Peak musicians is well over 60 — but in past years they have played together in countless combinations.

The rest of the program will be music by a traveling show that has been playing in Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky and Tennessee, and will soon be playing in New Jersey and Washington, D. C.

This group include Hazel Dickens, singer of Appalachian tunes; coalminer banjo player Don Stover; the guitar-fiddle team of Clint Howard and Fred Price; mandolin player Ron Thomason; bluegrass fiddler John Baker; ballad-singer Lois Short; and 70-year old singer Cas Wallin.

Tickets are priced at $4, $3 for students and senior citizens. For more information and reservations call 786-7998.

Dance Grant

DURHAM — In an unusual move, the William and Flora Hewlett Foundation in Palo Alto, California has awarded the American Dance Festival in Durham a $50,000 matching grant.

The Foundation, which primarily funds organizations in the San Francisco Bay area, extended the financial assistance to the American Dance Festival in recognition of the Festival's national significance. The only other national dance institution to have ever received support from the Hewlett Foundation was the School of the American Ballet in New York City.

The grant is extended over a two-year period. The American Dance Festival will receive $35,000 during the first year, which it must match dollar by dollar from local sources. The second year the Festival will receive $15,000 which it must then match on a two-to-one basis from local contributions. If the total funding goal is achieved, the American Dance Festival will have received a total of $115,000 generated by the $50,000 Hewlett grant.

Blackbeard Auditions

Stuart Aronson, director of "Blackbeard: Knight of the Black Flag," the outdoor drama presented each summer at Historic Bath, has announced auditions for roles in the play.

Auditions will be held between 9 a.m. and noon on Saturday, April 12 at the amphitheater on the East Carolina University campus, adjacent to Reade Street, across from Georgetown Shopping Center.

Persons to fill various roles are being sought, both men and women. Aronson is looking for acting, dancing and singing talents — and for persons who can fill all three requirements.

Also being sought is a boy between the ages of ten and 12 to fill the role of Ned, Jr., son of Blackbeard.

Materials for auditioning will be provided by Aronson.

The outdoor drama opens at Bath on June 26 and plays each Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings through August 16.

In the event of rain on April 12, callbacks for auditioning will be held in Bath on Saturday, April 19.

Writers To Meet Tuesday

The first meeting for the month of April of the Greenville Writers Club will be held at 8 p.m. Tuesday, April 8 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Raynor, 2106 Pendleton Street. All persons interested in any type of creative writing are invited. There is no fee involved.

Four-Day Symposium Features Energized Sculpture Facets

ECHO... a sculpture that requires touch to activate sound, is shown here with school children participating at a showing at Herbert Gallery, in Coventry, England.

A Symposium on Energized Art is being held for a four day period, Wednesday, April 9 through noon Saturday, April 12 in the auditorium of the Leo Jenkins Fine Arts Building on the East Carolina University campus.

The symposium is sponsored by the East Carolina School of Art, and is being coordinated by Norman Keller, faculty sculptor.

Performances, demonstrations and lectures will be conducted by visiting sculptors of national and international acclaim. Also films will be shown and panel discussions will be held.

Visiting sculptors are Ed Jankowski, Al Erdmann, Ken Gray and Bill Fitzgibbons — who will explore and demonstrate art objects of energized origin. "Oozing Neon Neon" and "Echo" are names of just two of the electrosculptures to be presented.

There is no admission charged and all interested persons are invited to attend. Spectator participation is necessary in some of the pieces so that the viewer will experience first hand factors in this form of art.

The schedule for the symposium is:

— Wednesday, April 9 — 8 a.m. to noon, performances; 12 noon to 3 p.m., films; 3 to 5 p.m. lecture by Ed Jankowski; and 7 to 9 p.m., lecture by Bill Fitzgibbons.

— Thursday, April 10 — 8 a.m. to noon, performances; noon to 3 p.m., films; 3 to 5 p.m., lecture by Ken Gray; and 7 to 9 p.m. lecture by Al Erdmann.

— Friday, April 11 — 8 a.m. to noon, performances; noon to 3 p.m., films; and 3 to 5 p.m., demonstrations.

— Saturday, April 12 — 8 a.m. to noon, panel discussions.

Adam And Eve Spoofo April 16

"The Diary of Adam and Eve," a spoof of the war between the sexes, will be presented in Hendrix Theater, Mendenhall Student Center on the East Carolina University campus, for one performance at 8 p.m. on Wednesday, April 16.

Tickets are priced at $4 ($3 per person for groups of 20 or more). Tickets are available in the Central Ticket Office, Mendenhall Student Center.

In this production, the wit of Mark Twain, the music of Jerry Bock and Sheldon Harnick are combined to provide a new perspective on the lives of the first man and the first woman.

"Adam and Eve" was written by Twain shortly after the death of his wife, and is in memory of her.

The production is by the Alpha-Omega Players, formerly of Hollywood but now located on the Texas Gulf Coast in Rockport, Texas. They have performed "Adam and Eve" nearly 2,000 times since 1970 when it was first added to their repertoire.

Alpha-Omega players in the cast coming here are Vicki Hughes as Eve, John Payne as Adam, and Kent Jonson as the Snake.

Chinese Export Extravaganza

By ALINE MOSBY PEKING (UPI) — In a musty warehouse with a faded quotation of Mao Tse-tung hanging over the door, 20,000 items made in China have been collected for a show that trade officials believe will stun Americans.

Chinese foreign trade officials staged a preview Friday for U.S. Ambassador Leonard Woodcock of the first exhibition China is opening in the United States.

The $5 million extravaganza of Chinese goods, from tiny embroidered satin toy animals to jewel-studded golden horses, will open Sept. 13 in San Francisco, Oct. 25 in Chicago and Dec. 6 in New York City.

"The American public will be stunned by this," predicted Gilbert Robinson of New York, promoter of the 1980 trade exhibition of the Peoples Republic of China.

"The effects will be far-reaching. This is the long-awaited exhibit that will signal a real boom in two-way trade. Wholesalers from all over the United States can come to

Senior Shows

Christopher Cheatham of Highland Springs, Va., is showing art work in various media — oil, acrylic, watercolor and mixed media paintings, etchings, lithographs and silkscreen prints, and black and white photographs, at Joyner Library and will be on view through April 10.

At the Baptist Student Center on East Tenth Street, Robert B. Hill, Jr. of Albemarle, will have works going on view April 21 to remain up until May 2. He will exhibit graphics and illustrations relating to different facets of communications arts, and will also show several acrylic paintings.

The public is invited to view these shows. Collograph prints and mixed media prints by Susan Edmunds, a senior in the ECU School of Art, are currently on view at the Kate Lewis Gallery in Whichard Building. The works will be displayed through April 14. The public is invited to view this show during regular hours of operations at the building.

place orders, and Americans who have the image of China that is backward and rural will see that China can make quality products."

In all three cities department stores will set up shop next to the exhibition to sell many of the same items on display in the mammoth show.

"The arts and crafts items will make a great impact on the United States and in dollar sales could replace textiles as the leading product China can export to the United States," Robinson said.

"The Bloomingdale's jewelry buyers are going gaga," he said of some carved jade pendants.

The trade exhibition as previewed for Woodcock is heavy on arts and handicrafts — wicker handbags and garden furniture from Shanghai, lacquer ware, porcelain figures and framed mosaics of shells.

The Chinese carve everything and it's all in the show — ivory, jade, coconuts, wood and seashells.

Another section of the show takes in new China — machine tools, medical equipment, television sets, pocket calculators, bicycles and electric acupuncture sets. Most of these items are made for export only and are unavailable or scarce and rationed in China.

---Coming Events---

Farmville Ceramic Show

FARMVILLE — The Farmville Arts Council is sponsoring its first Ceramics Show on two days, April 10 and 11. The show will be held at the Farmville Community Arts Building on Main Street. Hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Friday, April 11 and from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday, April 12.

Ceramists of all ages are invited to enter items in the show.

Seven competitive divisions have been established — adult hobbyist, children, teens, professionals, senior citizens, handicapped, and novice. Entries are to be brought to the Arts Building on April 8 between 9 and 5 so that they can be judged on April 9. Pick up time of entries is after 12 noon on Saturday.

Ribbons will be awarded to items adjudged to be winners.

Beaufort Arts Festival

WASHINGTON — The five day Beaufort County Arts Council's 1980 Spring Arts Festival open Tuesday, April 8 and continues through Saturday, April 12.

The 16th Annual Arts Show will include art in all media and photography. On April 11 and 12, the Washington Garden Club will hold its Flower Show.

The Washington Community

Band and Choral Society will perform at the Mall Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, respectively, at 7 p.m. Tom Secor conducts on Tuesday, and Louis James Darro will conduct on Wednesday.

Sherry Thurston of Surf City will do pastel and charcoal portraits on April 12.

Lecture Today

RALEIGH — At 3 p.m. today, Harwell Hamilton Harris will give a lecture on his life work in architecture. The talk, "As Built: Photographs and Stories," to be given at the N. C. Museum of Art, is in conjunction with an exhibit of Harris' architectural drawings which will be on view through May 4. Harris achieved a national reputation as a leader in bringing the modern movement in architecture to the Los Angeles area.

Children's Choir Concert

RALEIGH — Nearly 450 children, representing 23 different church children's choirs, will perform in concert at Englewood Baptist Church, Rocky Mount, as the highlight of a Children's Choir Festival on Saturday, April 12. Guest conductor will be James Gill of Columbia, S. C. The event, sponsored by the Church Music Department of the Baptist State Convention of North Carolina, begins at 3 p.m. The public is invited, and the concert is free.

SECCA Show Slated

WINSTON-SALEM — Saturday, April 12 is the opening date at the Southeastern Center for Contemporary Art (SECCA) of a major new exhibition. The exhibition, "Southeast Seven III," will feature the work of seven southeastern artists who were awarded fellowships in a regional competition sponsored by the National Endowment for the Arts and SECCA, with matching funds provided by the CIBA-GEIGY Corporation.

The seven exhibitors are: Susan E. Clellan, Savannah, Ga.

and Michael Vatalaro, Pendleton, S. C., sculpture; James Crabbe, Harrisonburg, Va. and Suzanne Camp Crosby, Tampa, Fla., photography; and three painters, Melody Guichet, Baton Rouge, La., Sharon Lawless, Tallahassee, Fla., and Edward Whiteman, New Orleans, La.

The seven were each awarded $2,000 to use in advancing their careers. They were chosen from a field of over 1,000 applicants for the grants.

Charlotte Guild Plans

CHARLOTTE — The Guild of Charlotte Artists and Spirit Square will sponsor The Charlotte Open Juried Art Exhibition to open Tuesday, April 15 at Spirit Square, 318 North Tryon Square, Charlotte. The exhibition will continue through May 29.

Any artist, 18 years and older, residing in North or South Carolina is invited to submit two works in any mediums excluding sculpture. Hand delivered work will be accepted at the square on Tuesday, April 8 from 10 to 5 and on Wednesday, April 9 from 10 to 6. Entry fee is $8 per artist.

Awards will be given in amounts of $500, $300, and $100. In addition, $2,000 will be given in purchase awards by various businesses, and a $300 award will also be given.

For more information, write: Jo Rankin, 308 Hempstead Place, Charlotte, N. C., 28207.

'FOVR' Show

CHAPEL HILL — "FOVR," an exhibition of new paintings, drawings and ceramics by four faculty members of the School of Art, East Carolina University, will open at Somerhill Gallery in Chapel Hill on Sunday, April 13.

A reception for the four artists — Ray Elmore, Art Haney, Paul Hartley, and Ed Reep — will be held from 2 to 5 p.m. that date. The public is invited to attend the reception and to meet the artists.

Conductor Chosen

RALEIGH — James Ogle, Associate Conductor of the North Carolina Symphony Orchestra, has been named as one of fewer than 20 conductors world wide to study at the Tanglewood Music Festival in Massachusetts this summer.

From late June to late August, Ogle will attend seminars and classes to be taught by some of the world's most noted conductors.

U.S. Olympic Issue May Be Resolved Soon

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI) — The question of whether the United States will be represented at the Summer Olympics in Moscow has been around almost as long as the Iranian hostage crisis. It has been debated from Washington to California, has become part of the year's political campaign, and ceased to be strictly sports page material on the January day President Carter first proposed an American boycott of the Games. But unlike the situation in Iran, the Olympic issue will be resolved one way or another very soon.

Carter — despite the pleas from the U.S. Olympic Committee and the athletes, and an apparent recent shift in public opinion against a boycott — has remained firm in his insistence that the U.S. team not go to Moscow so long as Soviet troops remain in Afghanistan.

Carter gave the Soviet Union until Feb. 20 to pull out, but the deadline came and went with no move by either side. And rather than use the power of his office to order an American boycott, the president has tried to get the USOC, the governing body of American Olympic athletes, to accept his proposal willingly. The USOC has grudgingly voted to ask the International Olympic Committee either to postpone, cancel or move the Games from Moscow this year. When the IOC refused, the USOC's choices became minimal: Go along with President Carter or defy him and send the team.

This week the USOC's House of Delegates will consider the two options, and if the theory that there is strength in numbers holds true, President Carter may have to resort to tougher tactics to ensure a U.S. boycott.

The House of Delegates could continue the impasse by taking no action at all, since the USOC has until May 24 to enter its team. But there are indications that many of the House members are in a mood to force a showdown with Carter.

At a meeting this month with two White House representatives, the leaders of the 21 sports governing bodies overwhelmingly opposed any "Counter Olympics." And since the governing bodies control 1,226 of the total 2,451 votes in the House of Delegates, the boycott proposal obviously could be in trouble. "The great majority of them have become very militant about the situation," says F. Don Miller, executive director of the USOC.

That militancy is fueled by the fear that this country may be the only major power that does not go to the Olympics this summer. Miller met last week with Olympic committee members from 16 countries and says most of them favored going. "The only one that appeared marginal was West Germany," he said.

The countries represented at the Brussels meeting included Great Britain, Canada, West Germany, France, Spain, Italy, Ireland, Sweden, Switzerland and other nations that the Carter administration contends have privately or publicly committed themselves to joining an American-led boycott.

The athletes have held several meetings recently with State Department and other administration officials trying to reach a compromise. The White House last week again rejected a compromise of participating in the Olympic contests but avoiding the accompanying ceremonies, including the presentation of awards.

After that meeting several of the athletes said it was conceivable some U.S. athletes might try to enter the games without the sanction of the government or the USOC, an act which would require approval from the IOC. Even that is possible, since the IOC has indicated a willingness at least to consider a change in its bylaws to allow individual entries in the event of a boycott.

Aware that support for the boycott may be crumbling at home and abroad, the administration has increased its pressure on the USOC to make its decision now and has also begun an intensive pro-boycott campaign.

The White House also is again hitting hard on the "patriotism over participation" theory.

As Defense Secretary Harold Brown put it, "If the U.S. Olympic Committee votes to send a team to Moscow, they will be damaging our security and putting the stamp of approval on the action of the Soviets. The Soviets would exploit that."

Strike Threat Remains Regular Season Set To Start

By HAL BOCK
AP SPORTS WRITER

Major league baseball players will end an eight-day strike and return to action, starting the 1980 regular season on time with traditional ceremonial opening games scheduled for Cincinnati and Seattle Wednesday.

The Atlanta Braves will help the Reds open the season in Cincinnati, sending knuckleballer Phil Niekro against Tom Seaver with a capacity crowd of more than 52,000 fans on hand in Riverfront Stadium.

Niekro, 41, led the League with 44 starts, 23 complete games and 342 innings pitched last year when he finished with a 21-20 record.

Seaver was 16-6 a year ago, winning 11 in a row and 14 of his last 15 decisions after recovering from a lower back strain which cost him a month of the season.

The Reds, baseball's oldest franchise, traditionally play each season's first game. But the jump is only a matter of hours ahead of Seattle where the Mariners will host the Toronto Blue Jays in the American League opener.

Seattle will use Mike Parrott, 14-12, while the Blue Jays, playing their first game under new Manager Bobby Mattick, are expected to pitch Dave Lemanczyk, 8-10 last year.

A crowd of about 2,000 is expected in the Kingdom for that contest Olympic skiers Phil and Steve Mahre expected to throw out the first ball.

There are five American League openers scheduled for Thursday with the defending champion Baltimore Orioles at Chicago and Boston playing at Milwaukee in day games and Minnesota at Oakland, New York at Texas and Detroit at Kansas City for night contests.

In Thursday's National League openers, the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates are at St. Louis and Chicago plays the Mets at New York in day games while Los Angeles plays at Houston and San Francisco visits San Diego for night games.

The final two opening games are scheduled for Friday night with Cleveland at California in the American League and Montreal at Philadelphia in the National League.

Wednesday's games will be the first contests played since April 1 when the players voted to strike the final week of spring training in protest over stalled negotiations on a new contract. The walkout cancelled 92 spring training exhibition games including some which had been scheduled for this week at the same time as the regular season begins.

The players also said they would play only until May 22 and then strike again unless a new agreement is reached with management by then. Negotiations between the union and the owners are scheduled to resume Tuesday in New York with a federal mediator sitting in on the talks.

With the late May deadline threatening to interrupt the season, some players think early season games will be intense affairs. "Those games in April will be like September when the pennant's on the line," said Mike Marshall, relief ace of the Minnesota Twins. "I think the quality of early season games will be the best ever."

There are a half-dozen new managers on the job this season, including Mattick, making his debut as a big-league pilot at age 64.

The other new skipper is Jerry Coleman, who left the broadcast booth in San Diego to take over the Padres, Preston Gomez with the Chicago Cubs, Jim Frey at Kansas City, Billy Martin in Oakland and Dick Howser, who replaced Martin with the New York Yankees.

In addition, Buck Rogers is serving as interim manager at Milwaukee while George Bamberger recovers from heart surgery.

Five others — Dallas Green at Philadelphia, Tony LaRussa with the Chicago White Sox, Dave Bristol in San Francisco, Sparky Anderson at Detroit, and Dave Garcia at Cleveland — begin their first full year on the job. And both New York clubs open the season with new general managers, Gene Michael for the Yankees and Frank Cashen with the Mets.

A number of front-line players have moved to new addresses during the off-season, headlined by flame-throwing Nolan Ryan, who became baseball's first $1 million-a-year man, signing as a free agent with the Houston Astros.

Offense Gets Better During Second Week

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina wound up its second week of spring football practice Thursday night with a hard scrimmage before the players took a few days off for the Easter holidays.

And Coach Ed Emory, looking for some good things, may have finally found a few.

"I thought we had a good workout to end the week," Emory said. "The defense started strong, but as the day went on the offense ended up having its best day of the year."

Emory said that based on the point system used by the coaches in the struggle between the offense and defense, the offense gained a 31-19 victory.

"Roy Wiley (fullback) had an outstanding day, and Harold Blue got away for a 61-yard touchdown run. Anthony Collins also had about a 55-yard run," the coach said.

Both Henry Trevathan and Carlton Nelson worked with the first unit at quarterback, and Emory noted that Nelson "probably had the better day."

Elsewhere on offense, center Tony Hensley has suffered a broken hand, and has been switched to guard since he is unable to snap the ball. Guard Fee Griffin is also sidelined with an ankle injury and will miss about two weeks.

"Mark Erwin is coming along well in his move to right tackle and Gary Gambrell is doing well at left tackle," the coach said. Both are sophomores.

Wayne Inman, according to Emory, is showing another good spring, while Will Saunders is currently the number one tight end, with Norman Vann moved from defensive end to the number two tight end position.

Defensive, the staff has moved George Crump from end to tackle, and Emory noted that both Crump and Doug Smith looked good in the scrimmage.

"But," he added, "this is the first time the number one defense has been scored on this

Kathy Riley Knee Operations Do Not Deter Her

By RICK SCOOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

Kathy Riley had her first knee operation when she was a high school senior. Her third operation came when she was a sophomore at Middle Tennessee State.

When she transferred to East Carolina last year team physician James Bowman took one look at Riley's knees and told her she should retire from athletics—permanently.

Having heard similar prophecies before, Riley was not dissuaded.

Last week in Colorado Springs those oft-injured knees, and a picture-perfect jump shot, carried Riley to the finals of the Olympic Trials for the U.S. Women's Basketball team.

The week began with over 150 women competing for 12 slots and three alternate positions. By week's end, 25 were left. Riley was among them.

But two days later, when the final picks were made, Riley was not chosen.

The GGO Stadler Leads By Two Going Into Final Round

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Craig Stadler, still holding a 2-stroke lead after 54 holes, looked to Sunday's final round of the Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament as another day at the office.

"It's just another day," shrugged the chunky Stadler after posting his hard-won, front-running 71 that was completed in wind and cold Saturday.

"You play about 115 round a year," he said. "You get used to them after a while. It makes no difference to me, there's no more or less pressure one way or the other, if I'm leading or if I'm three or four strokes behind.

"You just go out and play the golf course. If you finish on top, fine. If you don't, well, somebody just played better," Stadler said.

While Stadler took a rather casual approach to it, the final round could provide the salvation of Bill Calfee's golfing life.

Calfee, in second place, said he decided he had to reach some goals this season or leave the tour. And this, he noted "is as close as I've ever been going into the last round."

Stadler, who scored his first pro victory in the Bob Hope Classic that opened the 1980 season, finished 54 holes with a 207 total, nine strokes under par on the 6,984 yard Forest Oaks Country Club course.

Bill Calfee, with a spectacular effort over the back nine, moved into second at 209. Calfee, a 30-year-old who has decided this is his make-or-break season as a touring pro, shot a 68 that included 31 on the back side. He used only eight putts on the last nine holes.

Big Andy Bean, with a 66 that ranked as the best score of the cold, windy day, and 2-time PGA champion Dave Stockton followed at 210. Stockton shot a 70.

Defending champion Ray Floyd headed a group of a half-dozen at 211, leaving 10 men locked within four strokes going into Sunday's final round of the chase for a $45,000 first prize.

Also at 211 were Fuzzy Zoeller, who will defend his Masters title in Augusta, Ga. next week, England's Sandy Lyle, Bill Kratzert, Bob Eastwood and Mike Reid. Reid shot a third round 70. Zoeller and Eastwood had 71's with Lyle, Kratzert and Floyd matching par 72.

South African Gary Player shot a 72 that left him at 214.

Stadler opened the day's play with a 2-stroke lead, was tied by three others at one time or another and finally regained his original advantage on the back nine.

"I didn't play very well over the front side," he said, but managed to make par on the first nine holes.

Then he 3-putted for bogey on the 10th, and Eastwood, Stockton and Kratzert quickly moved into a share of the top spot.

All fell back in the gusty winds that swirled through the tree-lined fairways of the back nine, however.

And the bogey served as a spur to Stadler.

"I guess it got me mad," he said. "At least it woke me up. It got me going."

He regained sole control of the top spot with a 2-putt for birdie-4 on the 13th hole and stretched it to two with an approach shot that nestled within four feet of the wind-whipped flag on the 16th.

Calfee, a native or nearby Virginia who was followed by a huge gallery of family and friends, made his move with that spectacular display on the back.

He was one over par for the day at the turn and had to one-putt to save par on the 10th and 11th. Then it started.

He missed a hole-in-one by a foot on the 12th. He reached a green-side bunker in two and got it up and down for birdie-4 on the next. He held a 15-footer for a third consecutive birdie on the next one. And a sand shot from about 30 feet away found the cup on the 15th hole.

He missed the green, chipped close and saved par on the

Rather than take the weekend off for Easter, Coach Hal Baird of the East Carolina baseball Pirates, after losing some games due to poor weather earlier, set up a Saturday and Sunday match with Southern Vermont.

In their first meeting yesterday the regulars found themselves headed back to the dressing room early, letting the reserves handle most of the chores in a 12-1 win over the Division III Monarchs.

"I really didn't know what to expect from them," Baird said afterwards. "It did give us a chance to see what a lot of our young people could do, however."

The reserves came on following the completion of three innings, when seven of the nine offensive starters were replaced. Only rightfielder Macon Moyer and designated hitter John Hallow stayed in the lineup, for lack of anyone to replace them.

The seven accounted for themselves well, scoring six runs (plus one more by Moyer) and banging out ten hits.

Kelly Robinette and Moyer were the only regulars to get two hits, while subs Robert Wells, Jay Carraway, Mike Sage, and Pete Persico each had a pair.

Bob Patterson, who got his third win in four decisions, started and allowed just two hits, both to Kevin Armistead. Bob Kral came on in relief in the fifth and gave up the lone, unearned, run. Southern Vermont failed to get a hit off him.

Patterson struck out 11 during his stint on the mound and Kral added five more for a total of 16. "After they got the two hits off Bob, we wanted to give Kral a chance since we hadn't seen him work," Baird explained of the switch in hurlers.

Butch Davis gave the Monarchs a taste of what was to come by opening the bottom of the first with a triple to left. He scored on a passed ball. Billy Best reached on a fielder's choice and moved up when Rick Derechailo singled. Moyer reached on an error, allowing Best to score.

In the second, the Pirates added two more. Todd Hendley singled and moved up on an out. Davis was hit by a pitch, and both advanced on a wild pitch. Robinette then singled both across for a 4-0 lead.

With two away in the third, the regulars bowed out with another run. Hallow reached on an error and Hendley walked. Mike Sorrell singled to center, scoring Hallow.

The Pirates got another in the fourth, Robert Wells got a one-out double, and with two away, Mike Sage singled Wells across.

A seventh Pirate run came over in the fifth. John Kral singled and Persico got a hit. With two away, Clarence Hardison singled to center, scoring Kral.

The Bucs got it right back with one in the sixth. Jay Carraway singled and Moyer got a hit. Hallow singled Carraway and then injured his leg trying to stretch his hit into a double, sliding into second.

After going scoreless in the seventh, the Pirates struck back for four more in the eighth. Wells opened with a single to left and Carraway doubled down the left field line, scoring Wells. Carraway moved to third when the ball was thrown away on the relay to third, then scored on another double by Sage.

Moyer rounded out the scoring by cracking his first home run of the season, also scoring Sage.

Overall, the Pirates banded out 19 hits as they raised their record to 15-3. Southern Vermont fell to 0-3.

The Pirates now have six regulars hitting in the .300's, including Best (.388), Hallow (.364), Davis (.348), Derechailo (.345), Styons (.327), and Hendley (.302). Moyer leads the regulars with a .405 average.

East Carolina, as a team, is hitting .318.

The two teams meet again this afternoon at 2 p.m. at Harrington Field.

Just Misses

Truck-less Suns Challenge Kings

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — If the Phoenix Suns advance past the first round of the National Basketball Association playoffs, they will have to do it without Leonard "Truck" Robinson.

One of the league's premier power forwards, Robinson suffered a strained ligament in his left knee during Friday night's 106-96 loss to Kansas City as the Kings tied the best-of-three series at one victory apiece.

"You play all season and something like this happens," Robinson said. "I hate it."

The Kings and Suns meet in the final game Sunday, and Suns team physician Dr. Paul Steingard said Robinson would not be available.

"He'll definitely be out Sunday," Steingard said. "No way he'll be able to play."

And if the Suns win on Sunday?

"Then he'll be on a day-to-day basis," Steingard said.

Sunday's winner advances to the second round against Pacific Division champion Los Angeles, which earned a first-round bye.

Robinson injured the knee in a first-quarter collision, but didn't realize the severity of the injury until halftime.

"At first I thought it was just a bruise," he said. "Somebody hit the inside of the knee. I had the same thing happen to me earlier in the year on the right knee. So I played the rest of the half. I figured I'd just shake it off."

"But when I climbed up the ramp at halftime, I knew something was wrong. I knew I wouldn't be back."

Robinson tried to warm up for the second half, but changed into street clothes during the third quarter and Steingard put a brace on the knee.

Robinson averaged 10 rebounds and 16 points per game during the regular season. The Kings, underdogs going into the series, have to be encouraged by Robinson's absence.

The basketball season was over for Kathy Riley. It was time to return home and don her softball uniform. Already, however, she was looking to next fall and her final college basketball season, anxious to put into practice what she had seen in Colorado Springs.

"It was the greatest single learning experience I've ever had in basketball," Riley said. "Every single player who was out there who was an All-American had worked very hard to get to that point."

"They work year round and it paid off for them. I was able to see this."

So, while at the tryouts, Riley practiced hard and observed. "I learned two main things out there," Riley began. "The first was that you have to be a good ballhandler. If you're not — if you can't use your left and right hand — it doesn't matter how quick you are."

"Second, I know I need to strengthen my right leg. I can't jump well off it and can't use my left hand as well because of that."

Of Riley's three operations, two have been on the right knee. In all, she has torn cartilage and ligaments three times each during her athletic career, a career which has been filled with honors from the moment she picked up a basketball, ran around a track or swung a bat.

At Smyrna High School in Nashville, Riley played on an unbeaten county championship volleyball team and ran the 220, 440, 880 and threw the shot for a district championship track team. As a senior she was voted her conference's MVP in basketball.

Playing for a Nashville ASA softball team in 1976, Riley earned all-World honors and this past summer was named all-America. Also in 1976, Riley helped lead Tennessee's AAU basketball team to an undefeated season and a national championship. For her efforts she became AAU all-America.

Kathy Riley is leaning against the chain-link fence that surrounds ECU's softball field. Later Thursday afternoon the Pirates will take a doubleheader from N.C. State. Riley's single in the seventh inning of the second game gives ECU a 4-3 win, the Pirate's 11th in 13 starts.

For now, however, she reflects on her week in Colorado. Arriving there for the tryouts, she was forced to switch from small forward, which she plays at ECU, to point guard.

"They weren't looking for small forwards," Riley said. "They wanted big forwards. The coaches were looking for players who could go up against the Russians. They always seem to have big guards and the coaches wanted guards who could outquick the Russians."

Even with her bad knees, Riley was quick enough to make the final 25. But a lack of international experience, where the basketball is rougher and played under slightly different rules, hurt her chances.

"Many of the girls knew what the coaches wanted, what they were looking for," Riley said. "They had the experience of international competition."

"I think I got as far as I did by being aggressive and having speed. I didn't play my best basketball. I didn't shoot very well. At times I did play well, but not all the way through."

The question makes Kathy Riley pause briefly. "I never thought about quitting until last year, when my knees really began to give me problems."

"You know, I've been told I might have arthritis when I'm older. Who knows? I don't think about it. I can't. All my friends have asked me to quit. Dr. Bowman says if a tear them up again he doesn't know what he'll do to repair them."

Still, she goes on. ECU's softball season ends in late April. It will be the first rest Riley's knees have had since last October, when the basketball season began.

Seven months from now Riley's final college basketball season will begin. She hopes her knees make it.

Masked Man, Doctor Ready For Atlanta

PHILADELPHIA (AP) —

The masked man will suit up and the doctor has pronounced himself fit, so the Philadelphia 76ers will be ready when the Atlanta Hawks swoop in Sunday to open their best-of-seven National Basketball Association Eastern Conference semifinal playoff series.

The Hawks, Central Division champions, got a bye in the first round, while the 76ers, who finished behind second in the Atlantic Division, behind the Boston Celtics, beat the Washington Bullets in two straight games in the best-of-three opening-round playoffs.

The masked man is 7-foot forward Caldwell Jones, who despite wearing a plastic mask to protect a broken nose, grabbed 26 rebounds and scored 18 points as the 76ers posted a 111-96 victory over the Bullets Wednesday night in their first game.

The doctor is Julius Erving, who tallied only 13 points in the playoff opener after finishing the regular season with a 26.9 scoring average and a bad ankle and sore knee.

But in the second game, Friday night at Landover, Md., "Dr. J" broke loose for 31 points, playing 47 minutes, as the 76ers won 112-104.

Hawks ranked first in team defense.

After practice Thursday, Brown said his main concern this season was the inconsistency of All-Star forward John Drew and guard Armond Hill.

Drew, who averaged nearly 20 points per game, looked better in practice, Brown said.

"I didn't disrespect them (the Bullets), but I wasn't worried about them," Erving said. "I wasn't worried about the team, but I was worried about the setup."

Washington finished 20 games behind Philadelphia during the regular season, but Erving was worried about what could happen in a short series.

With their pressure defense and team play demanded by Coach Hubie Brown, Atlanta beat the 76ers in their first four meetings during the regular season. But then the 76ers won the last two regular-season games. Neither Philadelphia triumph was an easy victory.

On March 11 at Atlanta, Erving bounded into the lane to recover an intentionally missed foul shot by Doug Collins with a second left and scored to force the game into overtime, which the 76ers won 102-97.

At Philadelphia 15 days later, Erving scored 20 points in the final period as the 76ers squeezed past the Hawks 84-81.

Atlanta, which finished nine games ahead of Houston with a 50-32 record, ranked 19th of the NBA's 22 teams in offense during the regular season. But the

Ali's Comeback Try Starts With Weaver

NEW YORK (AP) — Muhammad Ali is back in his Deer Lake, Pa. training camp getting ready to fight somebody. That somebody looks like Mike Weaver.

Promoter Bob Arum said Saturday in Houston that he has signed agreements with Ali and Weaver, the new World Boxing Association champion for a fight in South America in the summer.

The Associated Press has learned the the fight would be held in Brazil's 165,000-seat Mercado Stadium in July.

Harold Smith, executive director of the Muhammad Ali Professional Sports Inc., also said Saturday that Ali has agreed to fight Larry Holmes, the World Boxing Council champion.

Informed of Smith's statement, Ali, 38, told the AP by telephone from Deer Lake Saturday night. "No. Harold doesn't speak for me."

The retired three-time champion said he has heard about negotiations for a Holmes fight, but he doesn't know the details because he is just getting ready to fight.

"I want Weaver the Beaver," Ali said. "That's the one I want."

"Holmes don't need me," said Ali, referring to a statement made by Holmes after he beat Leroy Jones Monday night: "I don't need Ali, he needs me."

"When he (Holmes) admits he needs me and gets down on his knees before the press and says he publicly needs me, then he might get a shot," said Ali. "I'm the four-time champ," he said adding that Weaver's and Holmes' performances Monday night "encouraged me that I didn't make a mistake in coming back."

The total purse will be $8-10 million, with Ali receiving the bigger share. Ali's money could surpass the reported $6.2 million he earned for his second fight against Spinks — the largest payday in boxing history.

In a surprise development, little-known promoter Murad Muhammad, from Newark, N.J., made the financial arrangements for the match. Murad Muhammad has been promoting inmate James Scott's light heavyweight fights from Rahway (N.J.) State Prison.

Arum, who said he has signed contracts from Ali and Weaver, normally handles the financial arrangements as well. He and rival promoter Don King took turns staging the lucrative Ali extravaganzas during the 1970s.

Asked how Murad Muhammad had entered the picture, Arum said: "I've been doing a lot of other things lately. He hustled the money. He's entitled to be co-promoter."

Arum said that a down payment had been made to Ali's representatives and he expected Weaver's representatives to get their first payment this week.

"The rest of the money has to be delivered for it to be official," Arum said by telephone from Houston. "I expect it all to be tied up next week. It looks good to me."

'Huskers Gymnastics Champs

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Led by Jim Hartung and Phil Cahoy, Nebraska rolled up a record 563.30 points Saturday to claim its second straight NCAA team gymnastics championship.

Iowa State finished second at 557.65, followed by Oregon with a point total of 553.450.

The individual championships were decided later Saturday night.

Hartung, a Cornhusker sophomore who won the all-around title Friday night, scored a 9.70 in the floor exercise to get Nebraska moving toward its second team title.

Cahoy, a lanky freshman, boosted the Huskers with sparkling 9.85 performances in the pommel horse and high bar. In the vault, Steve Elliott led the Huskers with a score of 9.70.

Ron Gallimore of Iowa State recorded a 9.925 in the vault, the highest individual performance of the three-day meet. Gallimore's vault elicited perfect scores of 10 from two of the four judges.

Scott Wilbanks, an Oregon freshman, recorded a 9.750 in the vault while teammate James Yuhashi recorded a 9.70 in the floor exercise.

Nebraska amassed a record point total with 281.225 in the preliminaries and 282.075 in the finals.

Iowa State had 280.40 in Saturday's finals to go with its preliminary score of 277.25. Oregon, which nipped Oklahoma to claim the third and final spot in the team finals, had 278.45 points Saturday and 275 in the preliminaries.

Hartung, a muscular, blond crowd-pleaser, kept up the pace in the team competition which he set in winning the prestigious all-around title. His 9.65 in the pommel horse was second only to Cahoy's 9.85 for Nebraska.

In addition, Hartung recorded a 9.70 in the rings, 9.625 in the vault, 9.65 in the parallel bars and 9.70 in the high bar.

Pirates' Rhoden Sent Down

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates announced Saturday they had optioned veteran pitcher Rick Rhoden to their Portland farm club.

A team spokesman said Rhoden, who underwent arm surgery during the off-season, was not ready to pitch.

Rhoden pitched in only one game for the Pirates last season. The spokesman said Rhoden's transfer to the Pacific Coast League team would give him more opportunity to pitch. Rhoden gave his permission for the move, the spokesman said.

The Pirates also announced the extension of the contract of outfielder Bill Robinson through the 1982 season.

The club also reduced its roster to 26 by reassigning infielders Craig Cacek and Gary Hargis to its minor league camp.

The Pirates will have to make one more roster cut by opening day next week.

Stars Lead WBL Playoffs

NEW YORK (AP) — Denise Craig scored 22 points and hauled down nine rebounds as the New York Stars defeated the Iowa Cornets 119-99 Saturday to take a 2-0 lead in the best-of-five championship series of the Women's Professional Basketball League.

The Stars can wrap up the title Monday night at Iowa.

Pearl "The Earl" Moore added 19 points for the Stars, while Doris Draving and "Machine Gun" Molly Bolin each had 19 for the Cornets.

Draving, a 6-foot-1 center, grabbed a game-high 22 rebounds while Craig paced the Stars with 9.

New York led 47-44 at the half, and went ahead for good at 49-48 at 1:21 of the third quarter on a jumper by Gail Marquis. A 20-footer by Craig gave the Stars their biggest lead, 84-69, early in the fourth quarter.

Montana St. Penalized

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — The Big Sky Conference has slapped two-year sanctions on Montana State University's basketball program for recruiting violations, the conference office said Saturday.

The Big Sky president's council voted unanimously Saturday to support the recommendations of the conference's violations committee. The sanctions take place immediately, said Conference Commissioner Steve Belko.

The penalties include a written and public reprimand from the conference president's council to Montana State Athletic Director Tom Parac and basketball Coach Bruce Haroldson.

Montana State also will be limited to 10 paid visits by prospective basketball players in 1979-80 and 1980-81.

During the sanctions, Montana State must provide Big Sky Commissioner Belko with a detailed report of all paid and unpaid visitations by prospective basketball players.

The conference further ordered that all unpaid visits in all sports at Montana state should be closely monitored by Montana State's athletic director.

Soviets Have New Brochures

PARIS (AP) — Image-conscious Soviet tourists in France have begun adding brochures about the Olympics, Soviet life and socialism to the sprinkle of friendship pins, dolls and souvenir postcards they usually hand out to bemused Westerners.

Though they stress they are "just tourists," the Russian visitors here are promoting their country with increased vigor, mixing the new pamphlets with smiles and vodka.

France is the Russians' third most popular non-socialist country — with 40,000 Soviet visitors yearly — after Finland and the United States, the Soviet tourist agency Intourist says.

A 27-year-old Moscow architect complained: "Ever since I arrived in France, I have heard nothing but questions about Afghanistan, Sakharov and the Olympics. I don't mind answering their questions, but I don't think people really want to listen. Why can't they ask us about our society or the museums?"

The Masters

Nicklaus Main Character In Different Script

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — There's a slightly different script for the Masters this year.

For well over a decade, for almost one-third of its history, golf's annual spring rite has offered a similar scenario: hopeful hordes of near greats and would-be greats offering their challenge to mighty Jack Nicklaus.

But the 44th Masters, to be played this week on the rolling, flowered hills of the Augusta National Golf Club, has a 40-year-old Nicklaus in the role of hopeful challenger to a cast of younger players now dominating the game Jack once ruled with unquestioned authority.

Much of that rule was established here in the tradition-conscious Masters. He has won it a record five times. He has been second and third five other times. He holds most of the Masters records worth holding.

The tournament has been the site of some of his more important triumphs, victories that have gone so far in his construction of the greatest record that game has known. It serves as an important part of his golfing past.

And this one could serve as a determining factor in his golfing future.

"This is what I've been pointing to all year," Nicklaus said. "This has been working for me."

He has been working — probably harder than ever before — to re-establish himself as a major factor in the game. He has been practicing six hours a day in a comeback attempt that, so far, has been less than completely successful. He hasn't won in 20 months.

The No. 1 position no longer is his. It now is owned by Tom Watson, Player of the Year for the past three seasons, easily the outstanding performer in the game and the probable favorite for the famed green jacket that goes to the winner of this, the year's first major test.

But Nicklaus, exhibiting the single-minded determination that made him the best the ancient game has known, can't be discounted.

"Winning or not winning in some of the others wasn't all that important. Of course I wanted to win, was trying to win. But the important thing was that I get my game in shape, get myself tournament ready. I think I've done that. There are many very positive aspects to what has happened," Nicklaus said.

He has, apparently, successfully brought his game to a peak. He has had a chance to win three times this year. And, while his slump is well known, it isn't quite so severe as it may seem.

"I didn't win last year, and that's bad. But it was very close to being a very good year," he said. A couple of strokes made the difference. He missed the playoff for the 1979 Masters by a single shot and was second — for the seventh time in his career — in the British Open.

He well knows that a victory here could confirm his comeback. But he'll have to beat Watson to do it.

And Watson, who beat Nicklaus in classic confrontations in the 1977 Masters and 1978 British Open, is, at the moment, the best in the game. He has swept Player of the Year, moneywinning and Vardon Trophy honors for an unprecedented three consecutive years. He comes in here with two 1980 titles and the leading money-winning position.

Should another Nicklaus-Watson confrontation fail to materialize, a large number of potential challengers are just off their shoulders.

Ben Crenshaw could be first in line. Like Nicklaus, his recent history has been a tantalizing, frustrating tale of what might have been. He came so very, very close to interrupting Watson's domination last year. He has been second six times in less than 12 months. He tied with Nicklaus in the British Open. He lost the PGA in a playoff. He was second by a shot in the important Tournament Players Championship a few weeks ago.

And with a game ideally suited to this famed course he must rank high among the list of those most likely to succeed.

"I'm very close to playing really well," Crenshaw said and offered his little-boy smile. "I have a strong feeling good things are going to start happening very soon."

Current U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin, Hubert Green, Jerry Pate and Ray Floyd, a former Masters champ who beat Nicklaus in a playoff at Doral, are other major threats in a larger-than-usual Masters field.

The anticipated starting lineup has 81 Americans, including 12 amateurs, and 10 foreigners.

Three of the foreign entries have solid chances of success. There's 44-year-old Gary Player, the only non-American to win this event. The little man in black has done it three times. The 1959 British Open champion is seeking to become the first man to win major titles in four decades.

His recent record indicates he's ready. He finished eighth and third in his last two American starts and won four of six starts in foreign events early in the year.

Then there's Seve Ballesteros, the handsome young Spaniard who owns the current British Open title. His great distance off the tee and deft putting touch are ideally suited to Augusta National.

And David Graham of Australia proved his ability with his victory over Crenshaw last fall in the PGA national championship.

Also on hand are Ed Sneed, who came so close to winning the Masters last year, and Johnny Miller, who broke a long slump earlier this season. "If I was a betting man, I'd think I would be a pretty good bet," Miller said.

Long hitters are supposed to have an advantage in the Masters, and the field contains three of the longest — defending champion Fuzzy Zoeller, Lon Hinkle and Andy Bean.

Lee Trevino, a winner in the spectacular finish at the Tournament Players Championship, has had his problems here. But he has a special incentive. It's the only one of the four major titles that has eluded him.

He wants it badly.

Young In LPGA Lead

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Donna Caponi Young, eyeing the biggest payday of her long and successful career on the women's golf tour, mastered the Mission Hills Country Club course with a 6-under-par 66 Saturday to take a one-stroke lead in the $305,000 Winners Circle.

Young's 204 total through three rounds of the Ladies Professional Golf Association's richest event was 12 strokes under par. Amy Alcott, with a third-round 67 to go with a 65 the previous day, was just a stroke back at 11-under-par 205.

Pat Meyers was alone in third place after 54 holes with a 71 that put her at 209, while Jane Blalock's 73 left her seven strokes off the lead at 211. Young, Alcott, Meyers and Blalock had been tied for the lead after the first two rounds of the 72-hole event.

JoAnne Carner, Sandra Palmer and Sally Little were another stroke behind at 212. Carner, winner of four events this year, carded a third-round 69, while Palmer had an even-par 72 over the 6,242-yard Mission Hills course, and Little shot a 70.

'Bird' Squawks, Sparky Answers

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson took the gloves off in a showdown with Mark "The Bird" Fidrych on Saturday and told the popular right-hander to put up or shut up.

Anderson was angered by published reports in which Fidrych criticized the Detroit manager for demoting him to the minor leagues, then not showing up to watch him pitch in an intrasquad game Friday.

In the published report, Fidrych also complained that the stint in the minor leagues — where he is trying to pitch his way into shape after nearly three years of assorted arm problems — was cutting into his pension benefits.

Fidrych, the American League Rookie of the Year in 1976, implied that he deserved better treatment because he had filled the stands with fans so many times before his injury.

The entire Tigers' organization, from President and General Manager Jim Campbell on down, was chagrined by the public outburst.

"I think all the crutches have got to be knocked out from under the arms," Anderson said, thumping his desk for emphasis. "All the crutches have got to be knocked out and it's got to be, now, production."

Anderson said he felt the Detroit organization had been more than fair in its dealings with Fidrych.

"Evidently he drew big crowds when he pitched and that he feels he made the Tigers money. Correct?" Anderson said. "Then, if that is so, how many big crowds has he drawn in the last 2½ years?"

"Have the Tigers paid him? Well, then, when does the balancing come out? Isn't there an even break somewhere?"

"As an outsider, looking at all the things that they have done and all the doctors they have sent and all the things they have tried to do (for Fidrych) — and they have paid the salary — is there a balancing point?"

"I don't think they have been unfair. I think the public has to know that — whether there has been a fairness, on both sides."

Anderson said he felt the Tigers had, if anything, been giving Fidrych too much attention, sometimes to the detriment of the rest of the team.

"I think this has to be clarified, and I want it clarified from my stance so that Mark knows. Mark Fidrych, at this time, is no different to me than Dan Petry, Bruce Robbins, Mike Chris or any of the others," Anderson said. "The players on this ballclub are going to understand one thing: they're every bit as important as Mark Fidrych. The day is over that they are put second class."

Miller Wins Greenville Road Race

Bill Miller, a runner from the East Carolina University track team, captured the championship of the second annual Greenville Road Race held Saturday.

Miller completed the 10 kilometer run, held in the downtown streets, in 32 minutes 11 seconds. Second place went to Charles Powell, an ECU student from Whiteville in 32:25, while Rick Clear, a Cherry Point Marine, was third in 32:27.

Clear was the defending champion in the event.

William White of Washington finished fourth in 32:34, followed by Kenny Smith of Greenville in 33:40.

The second five included Kirk Maness of Greenville, 34:17; Tony Gutierrez of Greenville, 35:00; Fernando Puente, an ECU medical student, 35:08; Rusty Jenkins, an ECU student, 35:19; and John Goforth, address unknown, 35:57.

Sandy Wozny of Plymouth took the women's championship in 40:42, followed by Ellen Bond of Greenville in 43:51 and Hannah Adams of ECU in 44:22.

Age group winners for males and females were as follows: under 19, Kenny Smith and Hannah Adams; 20-29, Charles Powell and Ellen Bond; 30-39, William White and Nanette Baldauf; 40-49, Bob Morrison, 36:58, and Bobbi Pohl, 53:30; 50-59, Paul Spencer, 39:33 (no women entrants); and 60-69, Melvin Holmes, 57:51 (no women entrants).

New Jersey Course Site Of U.S. Open

SPRINGFIELD, N.J. (AP) — Nancy Jupp remembers 1967 very well. It was the last time the U.S. Open championship, the most prestigious golf tournament in the world, was held at the Baltusrol Golf Club.

"Lee Trevino got started here in 1967. He was just an assistant pro in El Paso, Texas, and came here almost in rags," she recalled. "But he finished fifth and won a few thousand dollars. He thought he was the richest Mexican in the world! He won it the next year."

Nancy Jupp is the tournament director of the U.S. Open, which will be held for a record sixth time June 9-15 at Baltusrol, a demanding par-70, 7,076-yard course in northern New Jersey.

"I would very much like to see Lee Trevino win it here," Ms. Jupp noted. "But Jack Nicklaus is the defending champion here, and there will be a great deal of sympathy for him — everyone would like to see him win."

Ms. Jupp takes up residence in the town of the Open a full year before the tournament is scheduled. A transplanted Scot, she says, "I'm single, don't have a relative in the world, and the nomadic life suits me well." This will be her 13th Open.

In 1967, Nicklaus set an Open record when he shot a 5-under par 275 — Arnold Palmer was the only other golfer to break par — taking advantage of charitable rough that was not nearly as treacherous as it is now. Trevino tied the 275 mark the following year.

Nicklaus, however, almost blew it on the final hole, a 542-yard, par-5, dogleg to the left. With a comfortable lead, and on his way to shooting a stunning 65, Nicklaus decided to play it safe and go with an iron for control. He sliced the ball on his drive, his second shot put him back on the fairway but still 237 yards away from the pin.

The Golden Bear reached for his one iron — the same club he used off the tee — and walloped a 230-yard shot that landed him 22 feet from the pin. He went to his putter and holed out, breaking Ben Hogan's 19-year-old Open record.

Ms. Jupp estimates that nearly 100,000 people will turn out this year to watch the top 156 players compete. Baltusrol has undergone very few changes since it last hosted the Open. The greens are large — averaging 7,500 square feet — and fast; there are two right-hand doglegs, two left-hand doglegs; and there are three challenging pars 4s: the first hole is 465 yards, the sixth and seventh are 470 yards.

"It's a toughie," Ms. Jupp smiled. "It's a very subtle course, much tougher than it looks. In 1967, it was a very dry and cold spring, that's why the rough never became a factor and we had the record 275. This year, the course will be at its very best, I think a 280 will win."

Ms. Jupp says the U.S. golf Association will do away with the standard player boards that are carried around the course, informing the spectators of the scores of the twosome they're watching. Instead, scoreboards are being set up behind each hole, and, as the players approach, their scores will be posted.

Also, 9,800 bleacher seats will be constructed. Baltusrol is also easy on the spectators' legs. There are five key areas where the golf enthusiast hardly needs to move. The third, fourth and 18th greens are extremely close. The same for the fifth and 17th; the sixth and 14th; the 13th and 15th; and the seventh, 10th and 12th.

The U.S. Open will be played on Baltusrol's lower course, conceived almost 60 years ago by A.W. Tillinghast.

If Iceman Cometh, Spurs Goeth North

HOUSTON (AP) — If the Iceman cometh Sunday, the San Antonio Spurs goeth to Boston.

But if Tom Henderson, Moses Malone and Co. can defrost George Gervin, then the Houston Rockets will be getting ready for a playoff battle with the Celtics.

"When the Ice sets his mind to do something, you can bet your house he's going to get it done," says Larry Kenon, Gervin's teammate.

Houston has been bragging lately about holding the National Basketball Association's leading scorer to "only" 63 points in their last three meetings.

But Gervin shredded the Rocket defense for 44 points Friday night, carrying the Spurs to a 106-101 victory and evening the NBA playoff mini-series at a game apiece for the two teams.

"There was no less effort on the part of our defense," said Houston Coach Del Harris after Gervin's dazzling display. "He just made the shots."

"He's capable of doing that to you," Harris continued. "That's how he got to be the leading scorer in the NBA."

As far as today's game in Houston goes, Harris says the Rockets only have to do one thing: "Just play."

"We've gotta go out and play hard," he said. "If we do that on our home court, it should be enough to get us by."

Houston center Moses Malone agreed. "We've got to go out and nail them," he said. "They can take it from right underneath our noses and we've got to stop them from doing that."

The one certain thing about today's game is that it will be an extremely physical one. Faced with Houston's "Too Tall" lineup of Malone, Billy Paultz, Rudy Tomjanovich and Robert Reid, the run-and-gun Spurs have had to do everything short of carrying step-ladders up and down the court just to stay in the game.

"They (the Spurs) must play rugged, unsophisticated basketball," said Houston guard Calvin Murphy, "but only if they want to stay in it. They've got to stand there and slug it out."

Kenon says San Antonio will do just that. "We have the momentum now. We can carry it right into Sunday's game. The pressure is definitely on Houston."

The fact that the two teams have met 11 times this year prior to Sunday's game doesn't mean much, says Murphy. "I've got enough for scrapbooks. We're going now for cash money."

Tigers Defeat Panthers, 7-2

BETHEL — Williamston High School took the lead in the second inning and never trailed, gaining a 7-3 baseball victory over North Pitt Saturday afternoon.

The Panthers were able to close the gap to 3-2, but couldn't catch the Tigers after their initial flurry.

Williamston moved ahead with three in the second. Victor Thomas walked and stole second. He scored when Phil Peaks singled. Greg Johnson reached on an error and a sacrifice fly by Tony Rogers brought Peaks in. Rogers scored on a wild pitch.

North Pitt came back with one in the bottom of the inning. Greg Briley walked and Jimmy Whitehurst singled. Robert Carraway then singled in Briley.

After the Panthers had closed it to 3-2, the Tigers scored one in the fourth and it proved to be the winning run. Kenneth Casper tripled and scored on a hit by Williams, making it 4-2.

Williamston added two in the sixth, while North Pitt scored once in the frame. The Tigers got another run in the seventh.

Peaks and Casper each had two hits to lead Williamston. No one had more than one for North Pitt.

Split Vote Keeps Page Undefeated

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Unbeaten Greg Page of Louisville, forced to go the distance for the first time in his 10-fight professional career, scored a split decision victory Saturday over George Chaplin in a 10-round heavyweight fight.

Page, 21, who weighed in at 226½ pounds, never had gone past the fourth round in winning his previous nine outings by knockouts.

Page's best opportunity for another knockout came in the seventh round of the nationally televised fight, when he pinned the 216 pound Chaplin to the ropes. But Page's famous knockout punch had been diluted by then and Chaplin managed to escape.

Referee Lamar Lott scored the fight 99-94 for Page and Judge Kenny Pastor had it 99-96 in Page's favor. Judge Ticky Schultz called it a draw.

Although the scoring was close, Page's handlers felt their fighter had dominated.

"It wasn't that close," said LeRoy Edmerson, Page's trainer. "Greg led throughout and he threw more punches than the other guy did."

Chaplin, 29, said both sides "thought they won" the fight, which dropped the Baltimore native's record to 17-2-1. But, he added, "in a close fight, you can expect it to go to the hometown boy."

"I don't see how Muhammad Ali can do it," said Page. "It takes dedication and conditioning. I'm in tip-top shape, but it was a new experience, because I was used to going only three or four rounds."

Page, who had employed some of Ali's clowning tactics for earlier fights, danced in the early rounds and managed to land some authoritative punches in the process. He inflicted a cut to Chaplin's head in the second round, but any thought of a quick knockout had disappeared by the fifth round.

Chaplin's strategy throughout was to bob and weave, always snapping his head away from Page's lethal right hand. The scheme worked, especially in the seventh round when Page was unable to land a solid blow that could have settled the issue.

"Once I got past the fifth round, I knew I had to get serious," Page said. "I knew I had to fight him. I had been smarter than anybody I'd ever fought, but tonight I ran up against somebody just as smart as me."

"I could see that his plan was to wear me down," he added. "I tried to hit him with three shots every time he hit me with two."

Austin Bids For No. 1

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Tracy Austin, in the midst of a serious bid for the No.1 ranking in women's tennis, will defend her title in a $150,000 tennis tournament this week.

The 17-year-old Austin, who made her first appearance in a major tournament in the 1977 tournament as a 14-year-old, is coming off two straight victories over Martina Navratilova, currently ranked No.1 in the world. Each of the victories was worth $100,000 to Austin.

Other ranked players competing in the 32-player tournament at Sea Pines Racquet Club include Evonne Goolagong, Virginia Wade, Virginia Ruzici and 14-year-old sensation Andrea Jaeger.

The tournament, the first major outdoor women's event of the season, is sponsored by Family Circle Magazine.

The field is also notable for the players who are absent, including Navratilova and Chris Evert Lloyd, who won the tournament from 1974 to 1978. Also missing will be four-time runner-up Kerry Reid and Australian Wendy Turnbull.

Billy Jean King will compete, but she has indicated she will only play doubles.

Qualifying rounds begin Monday. Singles and doubles semifinal and final rounds are scheduled for Saturday and Sunday.

Sonics Face Trail Blazers

SEATTLE (AP) — The Seattle SuperSonics had their chance to win their first playoff series Friday night, but failed. The defending National Basketball Association champions get another chance today.

The Portland Trail Blazers, who lost the opener of the best-of-three mini-series 120-110 in Seattle, visit the Kingdome again after evening the series with a 105-95 overtime victory. The winner meets Milwaukee in a best-of-seven Western Conference semifinal series.

The star of Friday's game was Billy Ray Bates, who scored 20 points for Portland. He sank an 18-footer with five seconds left to tie the game at 89-89 and force the overtime, then he scored six of the Blazers' 16 overtime points. Ron Brewer also had six points in the extra period.

"We had our chances," said Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkens. "We seemed to rush some shots. We should have been able to capitalize on some matchups advantages better than we did, but give them credit. Their defense tightened up down the stretch."

Sonics' guards Dennis Johnson and Gus Williams teamed up for 44 points and center

Jack Sikma had 20. But he missed a 10-footer at the buzzer in regulation time that would have won the game. Ron Brewer and Calvin Natt of the Trail Blazers had a game-high 27 points apiece.

Washington Bullets' Wes Unseld (41) has a two-point attempt at the basket blocked by Philadelphia 76ers' Julius Erving (6) during the first period of their second game of the Eastern Conference playoff series at the Capital Centre in Landover, Md., Friday. Unseld was fouled on the play and picked up two at the foul line. Philadelphia won, 112-104, to sweep the series, two games to none. (AP Laserphoto)

Greene Central Looks Forward To Loop Meet; Panthers Gritty

By RICK SCOPE
Reflector Sports Writer

North Pitt coach Emery Davis does not hold much hope of his team winning a track meet this season.

Says Davis: "We go to every meet knowing we don't really have a chance to win. To win for us would be like having lightning strike the other team."

The problem is one of lack of numbers. The Panthers have only seven competitors on their team. Before a track meet even begins North Pitt is behind, unable to enter anyone in four events—the mile, two-mile, triple jump and pole vault.

Still, the Panthers go on. "At our first meet we scored 45 points," Davis said. "We had only six there then. The kids did a great job and I think they're beginning to understand the situation."

"I think now they're going out and trying to see how many points they can score per man. There are so many events we can't enter people in that you almost have to look at it as an individual sport."

Those individuals who make up the North Pitt squad this season are Donny Andrews (high and low hurdles), Jerry Redmond (440 and 880), Terry Moore (discus, shot and 100), James Daniels (100, 220 and long jump), Jesse Anderson (440), Melvin Simmons (high jump) and Berniss Jones (shot).

"We just don't have the numbers right now," Davis said. "We can't stretch ourselves any farther. Right now each guy is running in four events, including relays."

"We're trying to push and get more kids out, and I think we might begin to see some more finally come out before the season ends."

Greene Central

Although only midway through the season, Greene Central track coach Stewart Smith is already looking ahead to the Eastern Carolina Conference meet.

For the Rams the regular season is merely a warmup, a stretching of their collective muscles leading up to the conference meet.

"We pinpoint to the conference meet," Smith said. "We care more about that than any of the regular season meets."

"We always come in slow at the beginning and then improve as the season goes along," said Smith, whose Rams are 3-3.

"The reason is that we're always pointing to the conference meet. We try to be consistent and improve as the season goes along."

"So far, we've been able to do that."

Thus far in the season the Rams have yet to lose to an ECC foe. Only Southwest Edgecombe has given Greene Central any trouble.

A major part of the Rams' success in the ECC this season is the result of one performer: Melvin Bynum. Bynum has already accumulated 106 points and appears well on his way of breaking the school record of 205.

Bynum competes in the long jump, the 100 meter dash and the low hurdles. But his best event is the triple jump. Last season he won the league title and went on to place eighth in the state.

"He's the premier triple jumper in this area, probably in the east," Smith said.

Bynum is not, however, alone. The Rams return four three-year starters: Glenn Rowe (shot and discus), Jeff Jones (shot and discus), John Washington (shot) and Thurman Graham (high and low hurdles).

Back for their second year are Willie Hagans (high jump and 440) and Luby Jackson (long jump and 100 meters).

Other Rams include Cecil Streeter (long jump), Chris Daniels (high hurdles and long jump), Ricky Moore (100 meters), Dwayne Sanders (mile and 880), Anthony Gonzales (440), James Holmes (two-mile) and Doug Harrell (two-mile) from Southwest.

76ers Win Series; Others Are Tied After Friday NBA Action

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The San Antonio Spurs got even with the Houston Rockets, by George.

"It was a win for George Gervin," Houston Coach Del Harris after watching the San Antonio superstar wreck his Rockets with a 44-point performance in the National Basketball Association playoffs Friday night.

Gervin's big night helped the Spurs beat the Rockets 106-101 and tie the best-of-three, first-round Eastern Conference series at a game apiece.

The contest was one of four playoff games Friday night. In the other Eastern Conference game, Philadelphia won its miniseries 2-0 with a 112-104 decision over Washington. In the Western Conference, Kansas City defeated Phoenix 106-96 to tie their set at 1-1 and Portland trimmed Seattle 105-95 in overtime to tie at a game apiece.

Gervin scored 13 of his points in the last period and teamed with Kevin Restani to help control the flow of the game at the end. Gervin and Restani, who had nine points in the fourth quarter, led a San Antonio rally that gave the Spurs a 95-86 lead with 4:48 remaining.

76ers 112, Bullets 104
Julius Erving scored 31

as Philadelphia built a commanding lead, then held off a late Washington charge. The victory advanced the 76ers to the second round of the Eastern Conference playoffs against Atlanta. The first game of that best-of-seven series will be played Sunday in Philadelphia.

Atlanta drew a first-round bye for winning the Central Division.

Kings 106, Suns 96

Scott Wedman scored 32 points and Otis Birdsong added 30 as Kansas City survived a third-quarter rally by Phoenix. Birdsong scored 11 of his points in the final period, including six during a string of eight straight, to help the Kings take a 98-87 lead with 2:26 left. The Suns could get no closer than nine points the rest of the way.

Before that, the Suns had wiped out a 21-point Kansas City lead in the third period and even had moved ahead by two before folding.

Aivan Adams led Phoenix with 22 points and Paul Westphal added 18.

Blazers 105, Sonics 95

Ron Brewer and Billy Ray Bates triggered a late Portland rally as the Trail Blazers downed Seattle in overtime. The defending NBA champion Sonics led through most of the first half, their biggest lead coming at 33-23 with 8:49 left before halftime.

The Blazers caught the Sonics in the third quarter and it was close the rest of the way. An 18-foot shot by Bates with five seconds left sent the game into overtime tied at 89-89.

The extra period was all Portland, as Brewer and Bates scored six points apiece.

Brewer and Calvin Natt each scored 27 points to lead Portland. Bates, who had scored only two by halftime, wound up with 20. Dennis Johnson led Seattle with 24.

Viking Rally Stops Tigers

PLYMOUTH — Plymouth High School rallied for nine runs in the bottom of the seventh inning and pulled out an 11-10 Northeastern Conference baseball victory over Williamston Friday.

Williamston grabbed the lead in the first inning with a run. Keith Clark was hit by a pitch and Tim Hines reached on a fielder's choice. Victor Thomas then singled in Clark.

Plymouth came back with one in the second to tie it up. Hart singled and Allgood reached on a fielder's choice. Harris then singled in Hart.

Williamston went back ahead, scoring two in the third, and one each in the fourth and sixth. After Plymouth scored another run in the bottom of the sixth, the Tigers added five more in the seventh for a 10-2 lead.

But then the bottom fell out on the Tigers.

McNair led off with a walk in the bottom of the seventh for the Vikings. Zibberano walked as did Spruill, loading the bases. A walk to Askew scored one and another to Hart brought in a second run. Harris singled in Spruill and Askew and Brabbe walked, reloading the bases.

McNair walked, forcing in Hart, and Downs reached on an error, bringing in Harris and Brabbe. Baker's single then scored McNair and Downs, winning the game for the Vikings.

Williamston fell to 2-4 with the loss.

Clark led the Williamston hitting with three, while Hines and Tony Rogers each had two. Harris had two to lead Plymouth.

Heart Fund Tennis Set

The Greenville area tournament for the N.C. Heart Association Tennis Tournament will be held April 18-20 and 25-27.

The singles events will be held on the first days, with the doubles on the latter.

All matches will be played at the Elm Street courts.

Play will be held in Open Singles, Open Doubles, Mixed Doubles, and over 35, 45, and 55 singles and doubles. "B" singles, doubles, and mixed doubles are also offered.

Entry forms are available from Don Ball at the Elm Street Gym and Tom Sayetta at 1117 Hillside Dr. The deadline for receipt of entries is April 12 for singles and April 19 for doubles. The fees are $10 for singles and $5 per person in doubles, which are contributions to the Heart Fund.

Players must also provide a new can of balls.

Engraved silver plates will be awarded to winners of all events, and certificates will be presented to runners-up. Winners of all events, except "B" classifications, will advance to district playoffs, to be held here, May 24-25. District winners then move on to the state tournament in Chapel Hill, June 20-22.

USTA membership is required in the championships in Chapel Hill. Additional information is available from tournament director Tom Sayetta.

Roanoke Rapids Tops Redskins

ROBERSONVILLE — Roanoke Rapids High School jumped out to a 7-0 lead in the first three innings and recorded a 10-5 victory over Roanoke Friday.

The Yellow Jackets got their first run in the opening frame. Sigmon doubled, moved up on an out and scored on a passed ball.

After scoring again in the second to make it 2-0, Roanoke Rapids added five more in the third to take a 7-0 lead. Phillips opened the third with a single and Haislip walked. Ray reached on a two-base error, scoring Phillips. Butler also reached on an error and Collier doubled, scoring all three runners. He was then thrown out trying to stretch it. Edwards walked and scored on a double by Parker.

The Yellow Jackets added two more in the fourth and one in the seventh.

Roanoke scored twice in the bottom of the third. Jesse Matthews walked as did Anthony Latham. Angelo Spruill reached on a two-base error, scoring Matthews. Another error allowed Latham to score.

The other three scored in the fifth on a solo homer by Joey Ross and a two-run shot by Wiley Keel.

Ross and Glen Cargile each had two hits for Roanoke, while Parker had two for the Jackets.

Roanoke is now 5-2, and will play host to its own tournament, starting Wednesday.

WILLIAMSTON — Plymouth High School scored five runs in the first three innings and went on to take an 11-4 victory over Williamston in a Northeastern Conference game Friday.

The Valkyries pushed over two runs in the first and third innings and scored one in the second for a 5-0 lead before Williamston came up with four in the fourth.

The Tigerettes could score no more, however, and Plymouth added six in the fifth and sixth frames.

Virginia Lucas and Lori Robertson each had two hits for Plymouth, with Lucas hitting a grand-slam homer in the fifth. Regina Rodgerson led the Williamston hitting with two.

Some Doubt Gov't Can Stop Athletes

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The government may not have legal authority to prevent a determined American Olympic team from going to Moscow this summer, some Carter administration officials say.

The official White House position is that the government "has the legal resources available to make it impossible" for a U.S. team to go to Moscow, White House aide Joseph Onk said Friday.

But some State Department officials, who asked not to be identified, disagreed. "If someone is damn well determined to go, they could do it," one said.

One reason for the ambiguity is that it's a whole new situation. Never before has the government wanted to prevent an American team from going to the Olympics. Thus, some issues involved have never been tested in court.

The authority to restrict Americans from going to a particular country is strictly limited by a 1978 law to situations where the secretary of state determines that a war is in progress or that there is a threat to the public health or physical safety of U.S. travelers.

Onk said the administration believes it can take other measures, such as prohibiting the Olympians from taking currency out of the country. He would not list all of the steps that might be taken, but he said they would be sufficient.

Other officials disagreed, saying the Olympic Committee could get the team to Moscow if it really pressed the matter. "In the end, this is an open society, and there are hundreds of ways to get around things," one said.

Nonetheless, the administration has lots of cards to play.

The U.S. Olympic Committee, though private and independent, has been a frequent supplicant for federal funds. A request for $4 million this year is pending before Congress. And the organizers of the Los Angeles Games, scheduled for 1984, already have begun talking with federal officials about assistance.

One of those attending, Burt Shaw, chairman of the U.S. water polo national governing body, said Friday that American athletes were "being held political hostages for political reasons."

In Future NASCAR To Penalize Tire Changes During Yellow Flag

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — Beginning with the Virginia 500 here April 27, Grand National stock car drivers will be penalized two laps if they change one or more tires during a caution flag period in specified races the rest of the year.

The move, aimed at making races more competitive and cutting the cost for the racing teams, was announced Friday by the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing.

Under the new format, a yellow flag with a red cross will be displayed at the entrance to pit road whenever the caution flag is displayed. Any car pitting after the flag is displayed will be subject to a two-lap penalty if tires are changed.

The change also will be in effect for the Music City 420 on May 10 and the Nashville 420 on July 12 at Nashville, Tenn.; the Volunteer 500 on Aug. 23 at Bristol, Tenn.; the Capital City 400 on Sept. 7 at Richmond, Va.; the Holly Farms 500 on Sept. 21 at North Wilkesboro, N.C.; and the Old Dominion 500 here Sept. 28.

Reds, Braves Set To Start

CINCINNATI (AP) — Talk of a possible players' strike next month takes a back seat Wednesday as the Reds and the Atlanta Braves meet for the traditional major league baseball season opener in Cincinnati.

Phil Niekro is scheduled to start for Atlanta while Tom Seaver will go for Cincinnati. A sellout crowd of more than 52,000 is expected. Opening day is tantamount to a holiday in Cincinnati.

Allison Will Field Own Team

DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) — Donnie Allison, who ended his stock car racing partnership with Hoss Ellington two weeks ago, has announced he will field his own racing team for this year's $200,000 Rebel 500.

Allison, a regular campaigner on the NASCAR circuit, lost his ride when Ellington announced that David Pearson of Spartanburg, S.C., would drive his car in the Rebel 500.

SNOW HILL — Greene Central continued to roll along unbeaten in Eastern Carolina Conference play Friday, downing North Pitt, 14-3.

The Rams got things going in the first, scoring twice. Greg Holmes reached on an error and scored on a double by Al Murray. Walt Tyndall then singled in Murray.

Knights Take Goldsboro, 8-3

Greenville Christian Academy won its second straight baseball game Friday, downing Goldsboro Christian, 8-3.

Both teams scored three times in the third inning, but the Knights came back with five in the fifth to win it.

Aycock Romps Over Chargers

PIKEVILLE — Ayden-Grifton used seven different pitchers but could not stop the onslaught by Charles B. Aycock as the Falcons demolished the Chargers, 24-7, Friday afternoon in a high school baseball game.

Ayden-Grifton was led by Art Rouse, who was three for four, Tyrone Gay, who was two for three and had one RBI, and Melvin Artis, who was one for one with a double.

RABIES CONTROL

DOG VACCINATION CLINICS SCHEDULE

The Pitt County Community Health Department is again offering county wide dog vaccination clinics to the citizens of Pitt County as a convenience to them and in its effort to keep Pitt County free of rabies.

All dogs four (4) months old and over are to be vaccinated. Dogs receiving their first vaccination this year will need to be vaccinated again in 1981. For dogs that have been previously vaccinated, the vaccination is good for three (3) years.

The vaccine will be administered by licensed Doctors of Veterinary Medicine, using the latest advancement in vaccine development.

The General Statutes of North Carolina require that all dogs be vaccinated and that they display the vaccination tag at all times. This tag can also be used to identify your dog if lost or strayed. Please take your dog to the clinic nearest your home for this vaccination. Again this year, all of the clinics will be held in the evening as an additional convenience.

WHLers Make Playoffs

By The Associated Press
To paraphrase a song, two out of four ain't bad ... and that's the number of teams from the defunct World Hockey Association that have qualified for the National Hockey League playoffs.

2, made it earlier while Quebec and Winnipeg missed out. Either Vancouver or Washington will be the 16th team in the playoffs.

In another game Friday night, the New York Islanders trounced the Atlanta Flames 7-3.

The Edmonton Oilers, with 19-year-old sensation Wayne Gretzky taking over the NHL scoring lead with a goal and two assists, whipped the Colorado Rockies 6-2 Friday night and became the 15th team to earn a berth in the playoffs. The Hartford Whalers, who routed the Quebec Nordiques 9-or ahead by the end of the first period."

Dave Hunter's goal 40 seconds into the second period put the Oilers ahead, and Blair MacDonald made it 4-2 at 14:14. Gretzky and MacDonald then added third-period goals. It was the 51st for Gretzky, who assisted on MacDonald's 45th and 46th goals.

It was the 18th time this season Gretzky scored three or more points in a game. He also is the youngest player in NHL history to score 100 points and 50 goals in a season. His total of 137 points is two more than Marcel Dionne of Los Angeles, but Dionne has one game remaining while Friday night was the Oilers' regular-season finale.

"We seem to get steamrolling in the second or third period," Edmonton defenseman Pat Price said, "and once we get the momentum going, with our firepower, it's tough to stop us."

Islanders 7, Flames 3
Bob Nystrom and Bryan

Trotter each scored a pair of goals for the Islanders. The loss, Atlanta's sixth in eight games, eliminated the Flames from their battle with the New York Rangers for eighth place and the home ice advantage in next week's playoffs. The Islanders moved into fifth place in the overall standings.

Bob MacMillan scored his second goal late in the second period to pull Atlanta within 4-3. The Islanders, unbeaten in 11 games, got third-period goals from Duane Sutter, Clarke Gilles and Wayne Merrick.

Whalers 9, Nordiques 2
Mike Rogers and Tom Rowe scored two goals each for Hartford, which put the game out of reach with a seven-goal second period, skating around and through a porous Quebec defense that left goalie Goran Hogosta unprotected. Blaine Stoughton got his 54th goal of the season for the Whalers, tying Charlie Simmer of Los Angeles for the league lead.

Bamberger Is Hopeful He'll Return June 6

MILWAUKEE (AP) — George Bamberger concedes he may have to cut back his beer consumption, but June 6 remains his target date to return as manager of the Milwaukee Brewers.

"That's the plan. I intend to be back June 6 unless Dr. (Donald) Schmidt says I can't manage. But I think everybody thinks this will be no problem," Bamberger told a news conference Saturday, nine days after his surgery for five coronary bypasses.

Bamberger, wearing a white sweater and tan slacks and weighing 16 pounds less than before his heart attack March 6, expects to retire from baseball after this season, as he had planned all along. But he said his heart attack has made him more determined than ever to return to managing this season.

"I think this ball club can win the pennant. Really and truly, I do," he said. "I think this ball club will be one of the most exciting that ever played in Milwaukee, maybe that ever played baseball. I want to be a part of it, if I can."

"I want to prove a point now more than ever before after going through this surgery, I honestly feel I will feel as good as I ever have in my life. And I feel an obligation to this ball club because they're paying me."

"I'm not going to change my style," he said. "If someone wants my autograph, I'll give them an autograph. If somebody wants to drink beer and talk, I'll talk."

Bamberger frequently enjoys a few beers with fans at post-game tailgate parties in the County Stadium parking lot, and Dr. Schmidt, head of the cardiovascular program at Mt. Sinai Medical Center, said he probably can continue to do so.

"In moderation," the doctor said. "George and I have been negotiating over how much beer he can have. Yes, he's a tough negotiator."

Bamberger, 54, said he had suspected health problems during the winter because of recurring backaches. He said he experienced "discomfort" at 4:30 a.m. March 6 in Sun City, Ariz., where the Brewers are in spring training, and one of the club's trainers took him to a Phoenix hospital.

"They gave me cardiograms and blood tests, and everything seemed fine," he said. "But right then and there I started getting cold sweats and my heart rate took a drastic drop. They thought there was a 10 percent chance I did not have a heart attack, but they found out later that I had."

Bamberger said doctors talked of inserting a pacemaker and releasing him in a few days, but that Bud Selig, the Brewers' president, insisted that he fly to Milwaukee for examination by Dr. Schmidt.

"I almost said no, but I thought 'Bud's taking this trouble and this expense, so I should go,'" Bamberger said. "Then when I took the tests, they found 100 percent blockage on the left side and the right one about 50 per cent."

"They said there's two choices," he said. "I could go home and be 70 percent of myself and probably not manage. Otherwise I could have the bypass and probably be doing everything the same as before. I would rather feel 100 percent than 70 percent, so I had the bypass. I would do the same thing again."

Bamberger expects to be discharged from Mt. Sinai Tuesday. He and his wife, Wilma, then plan to return to their Florida home, where he will rest and continue an exercise program for two months.

"I will have nothing to do with the club in that time," he said. "Bob Rodgers will run the club. You can't run a ball club 1,000 miles away. We got capable coaches and a good ball club, no doubt about it."

"If I do any fishing it will be with a light test line because right now I can't lift anything more than 10 pounds," he said. "But with the fish I catch, that will be no problem."

"And I guess I will have to cut down on beer," he said, grinning, "... a little bit."

Under Argovitz's contract proposal, Sims would be paid a total of $900,000 for the first three years and the Lions would have the option of paying him another $500,000 a year for the last three years.

Detroit's offer would make Sims the lowest paid No.1 draft choice since 1975, when Atlanta signed quarterback Steve Bartkowski for $600,000.

The Lions earned the NFL's top pick with a 2-14 record last fall, worst in the league. One of the team's chief weaknesses was the lack of a star running back.

"We're so far apart, we're not even in a bargaining position," Argovitz said Friday. "We've got running backs on the Houston Oilers who aren't even playing making more than $100,000."

Argovitz said Sims' signing bonus would be made in deferred payments spread out over "several years" and that the loan would be paid back with interest, although he did not say what percent.

Four runners were cut down trying to take extra bases as everyone had fun in the Yosts' 4-2 victory over the Peskys. Wearing a USC t-shirt, Fred Lynn made a diving attempt to catch Dave Rader's line double to right-center.

Lynn feigned a leg injury as right-fielder Dwight Evans waved to trainer Charlie Moss. Moss jumped up, but didn't take the bait. He realized quickly Lynn was only acting. Lynn got to his feet with a big grin and then laughed when someone shouted: "They shoot horses."

Facing the Yosts, comprised mainly of regulars, right-hander Steve Renko pitched five innings, allowing seven singles and four runs, one unearned.

Tom Burgmeier pitched the first three innings for the Yosts, allowing four hits.

Sims' Price: $4.5 Million

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — If the Detroit Lions pick 1978 Heisman Trophy winner Billy Sims first in the April 29 National Football League draft, the running back will ask for a six-year, $4.5 million contract, Sims' agent said Saturday.

Jerry A. Argovitz, the Houston-based business manager for the Oklahoma backfield star, said he's asking for a $1.5 million signing bonus, a $1 million loan and $2 million in salary.

Meanwhile, the Lions are offering Sims $100,000 a year as part of a three-year, $700,000 package, the Detroit Free Press reported. The team offer from General Manager Russ Thomas also includes a $300,000 signing bonus and a $100,000 loan, the newspaper said.

Astros Continue Work Despite Strike

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

There was a hijacking at the Orlando, Fla., airport Friday and Enos Cabell was told to return to Cocoa.

But no laws were broken, the pirates — Joe Morgan and J.R. Richard — got off scot-free and the Houston Astros had a full complement of 25 players to continue their workouts even though the Major League Baseball Players Association has called off the last week of exhibition games.

The players did, however, agree to open the season as scheduled next Wednesday. They set a May 22 strike deadline to work out their differences with the owners, and the Astros hope to make a serious challenge in the National League's West Division after finishing just 1½ games out a year ago.

"They (Morgan and Richard) said we're a team and they wanted me with them," said Cabell, the only member of the club who had left camp. "I had checked out of my condominium and everything. I was gone. This just shows you how close we are on this team."

The Mutt-and-Jeff posse of the 6-foot-8 Richard and the 5-foot-8 Morgan came close to missing Cabell after getting permission from Manager Bill Virdon to go after him. The third baseman was on a 12:40 p.m. flight to visit his family in California and his teammates, still wearing their multicolored Astro uniforms, didn't track him down until 12:35.

"We didn't know which airline, so we had to run around the airport from airline to airline looking for a flight that left at that time for Los Angeles," Morgan said.

"It tripped me out," Cabell said. "When I saw Joe and J-man, I couldn't believe it. Neither could anyone at the airport."

"Me and J.R. are his friends," Morgan explained. "We thought he should stay along with the rest of us. When we got there, we just told him we'd come to get him. I told him if I'd done all that running around the airport, making a spectacle of myself with my uniform on, and found out he wouldn't come back, there was gonna be a fight right there on the spot."

With all exhibitions off, the Cabell chase lived an otherwise dull baseball day as the players held toned-down workouts while the front offices kept paring down rosters toward the 25-man opening-day limit.

Several veterans received the pink slip. The Philadelphia Phillies cut pitchers Doug Bird and Rawly Eastwick, infielder Bud Harrelson and outfielder Mike Anderson and put reliever Warren Brusstar back on the disabled list, where he spent most of last season.

The Kansas City Royals released pitcher Ed Rodriguez, the Los Angeles Dodgers trimmed infielder Teddy Martinez, the Pittsburgh Pirates placed pitcher Don Robinson on the disabled list, the New York Yankees did the same to sore-shouldered Don Gullett, who hasn't pitched since July 1978, and Pat Zachry of the New York Mets also was disabled. The Yankees signed catcher Johnny Oates, recently released by the Dodgers.

Olympic Great Jesse Owens Is Given Final Tributes On Friday

CHICAGO (AP) — The five-ring Olympic flag was draped across the steel-gray coffin of Jesse Owens while strains of "Where the Roads Come Together" played through cavernous Rockefeller Chapel.

Owens carried the banner of black hopes far down the road on lithe shoulders, and Friday, relatives and friends praised the dignity with which he performed that task since stunning the world by winning four gold medals at the 1936 Olympics in Berlin.

Outside the chapel, flags flew at half staff and a light snow fell steadily on bouquets of yellow and white chrysanthemums and red roses in the open backs of two floral cars. Inside, more than 2,000 mourners from all walks of life warmed themselves with memories of Owens as a friend, a hero, a pioneer and father.

"The world will not remember what we say here, but they will never forget what Jesse Owens did," Joe Black, a former major league baseball player and longtime friend, said during remarks at the funeral service.

Owens, son of an Alabama sharecropper and grandson of slaves, died Monday at the age of 66 in a Tucson, Ariz., hospital after a three-month bout with lung cancer.

"Weep not, weep not," Black said, his voice quaking, "he's only resting in the bosom of Jesus."

Dr. Archibald Carey, a longtime friend and circuit court judge who delivered the eulogy, said he will carry forever the picture in his mind of a "small brown boy poised and strained for the opportunity ... who leaped into immortality."

"He was a man who could walk with kings and not lose the common touch," said Carey, minister emeritus of the Quinn Chapel of the African Methodist Episcopal Church.

Activist and comedian Dick Gregory, who also delivered remarks during the service, remembered Owens as the "man who changed my life."

In his mind's eye, the young Gregory could run on fleet feet from his own black neighborhood through the adjoining white ones like Jesse Owens, too fast for either man or trouble to catch him.

"White folks would look out the window and see me running to the streetcar and call me Jesse Owens," Gregory said. "Jesse created an atmosphere that gave a lot of white folks that never thought about calling us black folks anything other than 'nigger' and all those other derogatories. He gave them a word they could handle that was respectful and nice."

Owens was buried in Oakwoods Cemetery on Chicago's Southeast Side after brief, private graveside rites.

The Rockefeller Chapel service began with Owens' own words: "Life has always been a race. It's like St. Paul said in the Bible. You run it as well as you can as long as you can. That's what it's all about."

Remarks lauding Owens and his lifestyle also came from former Ohio State track coach Larry Snyder and Robert Kane, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee.

AC Team Wins Shoney Classic

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Virginia Tech's Wayne Robinson sank 17 points and grabbed 12 rebounds to lead the Atlantic Coast Region basketball all-stars over the Southeastern Region all-stars 102-93 Saturday afternoon.

Robinson, named most valuable player for his team, said he concentrated on rebounding in the Shoney's All-Star Classic at Vanderbilt University "because it has been a question in some pro scouts' minds."

The rebounding ended up 50-48 in favor of the Atlantic Coast team, and Southeastern Coach Don DeVoe of Tennessee said, "The rebounding led to the difference in the contest."

"In the last seven minutes of the first half, we didn't get any second shots," DeVoe said.

The Atlantic Coast team, coached by South Carolina's Bill Foster, was led in scoring by Clemson's Billy Williams with 20 points. Jonathan Moore of Furman had 17 and Bob Bender of Duke put in 10.

Reggie Johnson of Tennessee accounted for 19 points and 13 rebounds and picked up the most valuable player award for the Southeastern team. Behind him in scoring were Turk Tillman of Eastern Kentucky with 17 points, Billy Bryant of Western Kentucky with 13 and Monti Davis of Tennessee State with 11.

NBA Final Stats: A Set Of Intriguing Numbers

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

—Darryl Dawkins not only broke more backboards (2) than any other player during the National Basketball Association's regular season, he also committed more personal fouls (32).

—Earvin "Magic" Johnson may have earned the headlines, but his Los Angeles backcourt partner, Norm Nixon, certainly earned his keep. Nixon played more minutes than anyone else in the league (3,226, just under 40 per game).

—If any player ever lived up to his nickname, it was "Down-town" Freddie Brown. In the NBA's first year with the three-point goal rule, the long-range bomber of the Seattle Super-Sonics led the league in three-point accuracy (39 of 88, a percentage of .443).

Those were among the more intriguing numbers to be found among the 13 pages of final regular-season statistics issued by the NBA this week.

There were the usual figures, like George Gervin of San Antonio winning his third straight scoring crown with a 33.1 average and Rick Barry of Houston winning the free throw shooting title at .935.

But there were also more esoteric stats, and those are usually more intriguing.

While Dawkins, Philadelphia's muscular young center, led the league in personal fouls and shattered glass, it is a measure of his increased ma-urity that he fouled out of only eight games. The leaders in disqualifications were Wayne Rollins of Atlanta and two Indiana players, James Edwards and George McGinnis, with 12 apiece.

Nixon's iron-man status is not surprising since he has missed just one game in his three pro seasons. But he was only one of 55 players who appeared in all 82 of their teams' games this season.

Then there was Billy Paultz, who gets this year's overtime award for having played in 84 games — he was traded from San Antonio to Houston in mid-season and played in two extra games in the transition.

As for the three-point goal, the rule seemed to gain in popularity as the season wore on. More teams began to work plays designed to produce three-point shots into their regular offenses, perhaps picking up on the success enjoyed by the Boston Celtics, whose Chris Ford finished second behind Brown in accuracy with a .427 mark.

On a league-wide basis, 5,003 three-pointers were attempted and 1,403 were made, a .280 percentage. That's an average of 5.55 attempts and 1.56 successful three-pointers per game, well below the averages of 7.85 attempts and 2.31 made per game in the nine-year history of the American Basketball Association, where the overall accuracy mark was .293.

Brian Taylor of San Diego, who had experience with the rule from his ABA days, led the league with 90 successful three-pointers, but ranked fifth in accuracy at .377.

Home teams won 588 of 902 games, a .652 mark, down slightly from last year's .665. Los Angeles tied the league record for most home victories with a 37-4 mark, while Phoenix was 36-5 and Boston 35-6. Boston, Los Angeles, Milwaukee, Philadelphia and Seattle all had winning records on the road, while Detroit was a dismal 3-38 outside the Pontiac Silverdome.

The 10 leaders in assists were all guards, emphasizing how much players at that position dominate the ball. Only two non-guards had more than 400 assists for the season: Kansas City center Sam Lacey with 460 and Seattle forward John Johnson with 424.

Don Buse of Phoenix did not rank among the assists leaders, but he may have been the league's most effective balldrinker with a ratio of more than 3.5 assists for each turnover (320 assists, 91 turnovers).

Michael Ray Richardson of New York led the league with 832 assists, but he was also on top with 359 turnovers for a ratio of 2.3.

Speaking of turnovers, three other players handed the ball over 300 times or more: Reggie Theus of Chicago, 348; Earvin "Magic" Johnson of Los Angeles, 305, and Moses Malone of Houston, 300.

In a turnover of another sort, a total of 20 players competed for the Utah Jazz at one time or another, while 17 played for the Detroit Pistons. It's no coincidence that those teams staggered to 24-58 and 16-66 records, respectively, but you can't accuse their front offices of standing pat.

The defending champion Seattle SuperSonics, on the other hand, used the same 11 players all year. And the Boston Celtics used just 12 players — adding Pete Maravich in mid-season and shuffling others on and off the injured list — in posting the league's best record, 61-21.

And if you thought all the talk about the Celtics' selfishness and dedication to team ball was just smoke from Red Auerbach's cigar, think again. Eight Celtics finished the season with scoring averages in double figures, with Maravich, Rick Robey and M.L. Carr joining starters Ford, Nate Archbald, Larry Bird, Cedric Maxwell and Dave Cowens.

Borg, Vilas Make Finals

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (AP) — Top-seeded Bjorn Borg of Sweden and fifth-seeded Guillermo Vilas of Argentina qualified Saturday for the final of the Monte Carlo Open tennis championships with straight-set victories.

Borg maintained his lifetime tournament grip on American Vilas Gerulaitis, the fourth-seeded player in the tourney, with a 6-0, 6-2 victory in less than an hour. Earlier, Vilas defeated unseeded Czech Tomas Smid 6-0, 7-6 in 95 minutes.

Borg, the defending champion, allowed Gerulaitis only 13 points in the first set. In the second, the American won the first and seventh games but Borg had such control that Gerulaitis was never able to challenge him for long.

Borg reinforced his position as the most solid slow-court player in the world during this championship and in Sunday's final he will attempt to stretch his string of victories over Vilas to 11.

Vilas was undisturbed in the first set against a tentative performance by Smid. The Czech changed his approach in the second set and eventually went ahead 5-4 on the strength of his attacking play.

But Vilas took the next two games to serve for the match at 6-5. Yet he only scored one point. In the tiebreaker, Vilas won 7-5.

ECU's Annual Children's Literature Conference April 11-12

Novelist Sue Ellen Bridgers, a native of Pitt County, is one of three featured speakers to be in Greenville for the fourth annual East Carolina University Children's Literature Conference to be held Friday and Saturday, April 11 and 12.

The conference will be held at the Willis Building, corner of First and Reade Streets.

Dr. Erwin Hester, chairman of the Dept. of English, ECU, will extend the welcome at 9:15 a.m. The calendar for the two-day conference is as follows:

—Friday, April 11
—9:20 a.m. — Marilyn Kaye, University of South Carolina, will speak on "Irony and Point of View in Lynn Hall's 'Sticks and Stones.'"

—9:40 a.m. — "Hard Religious Questions in 'Knee-Knock Rise' and 'Tuck Everything'" is the topic of Joseph Milner, Wake Forest University.

—10 a.m. — Anita Moss, UNC-Charlotte will speak on "The American Character in Contemporary Animal Fantasy: The Trickster, the Individualist, and the Innocent."

—10:20 a.m. — Coffee Break.
—10:55 a.m. — "Abel's Island" and the Pillars that Endure" is the topic to be covered by Malcolm Usrey, Clemson University.

—11:15 a.m. — "Rockets, Robots, and Radiation: Tomorrow's World in Children's Science Fiction" is the topic of Margaret Esmond, Villanova University.

—11:35 a.m. — Discussion period, and 12:00 noon, break for lunch.

—12:15 p.m. — Luncheon at Ramada Inn, with guest speaker Sue Ellen Bridgers, whose topic is "Characters Who Found an Author."

Beginning at 2 p.m., concurrent sessions will be held in two groups. Group 1 will meet in the Main Auditorium at Willis Building. Moderators will be Charles W. Sullivan, III of ECU, and Caroline C. Hunt of the College of Charleston. The subject is "A Helping Hand: Adolescents and Altruism in Junior Novels of the 60's and 70's."

Group 2 will meet in the Willis Conference Room. Moderator is Sarah Smedman of UNC-Charlotte and the topic is "But We Like Her Anyway: Feminine Images in Maude Hart Lovelace's Betsy-Tacy Series."

—2:45 p.m. — Guest speaker E. L. Konigsburg will be heard in the topic, "Aerial, Caliban, and Beasts of Mine Own."

—3:45 p.m. — At this time, an autograph session, an inspection of book displays, and a special session for parents will be held.

Saturday
—9:30 a.m. — Welcome remarks by Dorothy Mills, ECU.
—9:35 a.m. — "A Classic Case of Mistaken Identity" is the topic of Marty Hester of Greenville.

—10:05 a.m. — Discussion period.

—10:15 a.m. — Greenville storyteller Ann Sullivan of Greenville will talk about "The Value of Storytelling."

—10:45 a.m. — Coffee break, and inspection of displays.

—11:15 a.m. — The third featured speaker of the two-day conference, Doris Buchanan Smith, will give her talk on "The Boundaries Are Imaginary."

—12:15 p.m. — Autograph session and inspection of displays. Mrs. Bridgers is the author of two novels for young adults — "Home Before Dark" published in 1976, and "All Together Now," published last year. Both have been named as ALA Best Books for Young Adults, and chosen by the "New York Times" as an Outstanding Book of the Year. The latter received the Honor Book Award in 1979 given by the Boston Globe-Horn Book, and Mrs. Bridgers recently received the Christopher Award for 1979.

Author E. L. Konigsburg has the distinction of having her book "From the Mixed-Up Files of Mrs. Basil E. Frankweiler" and another book, "Jennifer, Hecate, Macbeth, William McKinley, and Me, Elizabeth" receive in the same year the Newbery Award and a Newbery Honor Book for the two volumes, respectively. A book she had published in 1974 was nominated for the National Book Award, and another of her books has been selected as an ALA Notable Book for Young Adults.

Doris Buchanan Smith is the author of well-known books such as "A Taste of Blackberries" and "Dreams and Drummers." Her novels have been published in England, Denmark, Holland, and South Africa. She has received numerous awards.

Dorothy Z. Mills of the Department of English, East Carolina University, is the conference coordinator. Book displays have been arranged by Carol Veitch of the Dept. of Library Science, ECU, and Joe Stines, Children's Librarian, Sheppard Memorial Library.

Another display of books have been arranged by Mrs. Elizabeth Webb of the Dept. of English, ECU.

Mrs. Mills notes that she and others involved in the conference are particularly anxious for parents to make plans to attend the Special Session for Parents being held at 3:45 p.m. Friday.

Parents wishing to register for the entire conference and for the luncheon will pay a fee of $11. Fee without luncheon is $7. The fee for Friday only is $5, and for Saturday only, $2. The fee for Friday with luncheon included is $9.

The conference is sponsored by the Dept. of English and the Div. of Continuing Education, ECU, and is assisted by a grant from the N.C. Humanities Committee, a program of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By MEREDITH S. FOLTZ

The library's new fiction for teenagers includes three historical novels about strong women of royal blood.

SONG FOR A DARK QUEEN, by Rosemary Sutcliffe, is the story of Boudicca (or Boadicea), Britain's national heroine from the first century A.D. As the sacred daughter of her tribe's royal family, Boudicca inherits the throne of the Iceni and marries Prasutagus, the man chosen for her by a tribal council. Although love finally grows between the strong-willed couple, Prasutagus rules as king only by virtue of his marriage to Queen Boudicca. Spoiling the contentment of their marriage, though, are the growing demands of the Roman invaders occupying southern Britain. When Prasutagus dies, the Roman administrators assume that the Iceni royal line has ended and that the kingless tribe can now be absorbed into the Roman system of provincial government. Boudicca, however, is not the weak and humbled widow the Romans expect. To repay personal injuries and to defend her tribe's ancient ways, Boudicca — as mother, queen, and high priestess — plots a bloodthirsty revenge on the haughty Romans.

MAIDEN CROWN, by Meghan Collins, is based on a medieval poem. Princess Sophia, fatherless and virtually motherless, is reared by relatives in twelfth-century Russia. While still a child, she is betrothed to King Valdemar of Denmark in order to secure an alliance between him and Sophie's half-brother. At sixteen, Sophie is called to the Danish court so that the marriage can take place. Escorting her on the long trip is Stig Halvorsen, handsome emissary of King Valdemar. The dazzling happiness of her first weeks as King Valdemar's bride soon gives way to dark months of jealousy and disillusionment when Sophie discovers her husband's long-time mistress. Adding to the new queen's grief and bitterness is an accusation of unfaithfulness between her and Stig Halvorsen. The author of MAIDEN CROWN has sifted through the legends and facts of Danish history to weave a believable tale of the passionate loves and hates of Valdemar the Great and Sophie his queen.

GUUDRUN, by Alma Johanna Koenig, is also set during the Middle Ages. Gudrun is the daughter of the king and queen of the Hegelings who live along the North Sea in northwestern Europe. Like her mother before her, Gudrun is a striking beauty whose fame is widely sung. Royal suitors from far and near seek her hand, but Gudrun's choice is Herwig, King of Zealand. Before they can marry, though, Herwig is embroiled in a war, and Gudrun is kidnapped by Hartmut, crown prince of Normandy and one of Gudrun's many rejected suitors. In captivity, Gudrun suffers years of harsh treatment until she suddenly agrees to marry the lovesick Hartmut. GUUDRUN is a simply-told story of the adventures of medieval Christian knights and ladies in courtly romance and brutal war.

Membership Chairman

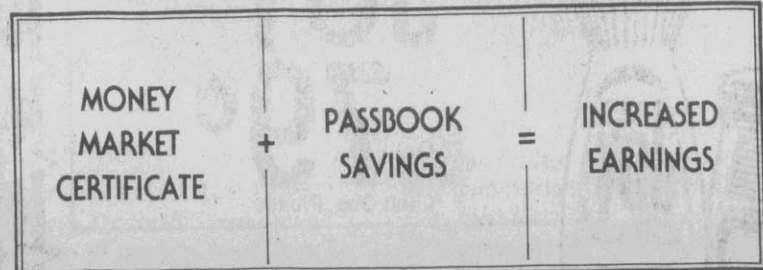

MANTEO — Mrs. Catherine G. Lang of Greenville has been named Pitt County 1980 membership chairman for the Roanoke Island Historical Association, the sponsoring body for the outdoor drama, "The Lost Colony."

Mrs. Lang is a member of the Pitt County Historical Association, the Pitt County Democratic Womens Club and the Service League of Greenville. She also plays violin with the East Carolina Symphony Orchestra.

SUE ELLEN BRIDGERS... award winning novelist and one of three persons to be a featured speaker at the fourth Annual Children's Literature Conference here on April 11-12, will speak at 12:15 p.m. Friday at the luncheon at Ramada Inn.

Archaeologists Fear N.C. Indian Village Ruined By Bulldozers

WAITING FOR SHRIMP SEASON...The "Chris & Gail," a shrimp boat moored at Sneads Ferry, sits at the dock, waiting for the shrimp season to begin. Shrimp fishermen along North Carolina's coast are worried about the shrimp harvest, afraid that many shrimp were killed during this past winter's cold weather. (AP Laserphoto)

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — A minor highway project in Durham County has left a muddy strip scattered with arrowheads, pottery chips and other artifacts along the banks of the Flat River.

Archaeologists say they fear the state's bulldozers have ruined the site of a lost Indian village.

The state Department of Transportation received approval from an archaeologist for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers before going ahead with its project to improve and relocate a one-lane bridge on State Road 1004.

"They have our blessings," said Michael W. Corkran, an archaeologist for the Corps of Engineers, which owns adjacent land as part of the Falls of the Neuse reservoir project.

Corkran said that archaeological surveys of the places where the highway department is bulldozing have "never produced anything of substance."

However, H. Trawick Ward, an archaeologist with the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, disagreed.

"He (Corkran) doesn't know what he's talking about," said Ward. He said UNC anthropology labs have been studying the site since 1940.

"It's a pretty significant blunder that runs the gamut from the state to the corps," Ward said. "Somebody should have done a lot more tests on the site before any of this was allowed."

Local amateur archaeologists also are angry over the construction project, which had disturbed the surface and piled up fill dirt along a state right-of-way corridor on the south side of the current road.

Raleigh prothetist Robert H. Weaver, an amateur archaeologist who has been studying the area for 15 years, gathered about 40 artifacts during an hour's walk at the site Monday.

Arrowheads and bits of pottery found during Weaver's walk are associated with the Woodland period, when area Indians began tilling crops and settling into villages, Weaver and Ward said.

Ward has found clay pipes, bones and other apparent relics of that period, which ranged from 500 B.C. to the 18th century.

Ward said some archaeologists believe the site could be the location of either Adschusheer or Eno Town, two Indian villages that were visited by English traveler John Lawson in 1701.

The area of the bridge location is not slated for flooding by the Falls of the Neuse project, officials said. But because it is within boundaries of the federal project, it has been included in several archaeological-impact surveys.

Plans Set To Re-Crete N.C. Show Boat

CHAPEL HILL — It's been nearly half a century since the calliope aboard the James Adams Floating Palace Theater sounded the call for spectators to gather along southeastern coastal harbors to witness one of America's most colorful entertainment features, "the original show boat."

It all began in 1914 in a Washington, N.C. shipyard where James Adams and Charles Hunter, veteran circus performers, commissioned the building of the James Adams Floating Palace Theater. The James Adams operated for 25 years, working the sounds and rivers from the Chesapeake Bay of Virginia to Savannah, Ga. And, according to Phillip Graham's book "Show Boats," it never played a losing season and was the most successful of all show boat operations in the United States.

Now, the Carolina Regional Theater headquartered in Chapel Hill plans to re-create that show boat so that the call of the calliope can once more be heard in tours along the inter-coastal waterways of the east coast, reliving an appealing and colorful segment of the past.

Perhaps much of the James Adams success story can be compared to the similar success of Edna Ferber's novel "Show Boat," which was based on a one-week visit she made to the James Adams in 1925. Her novel provided the basis for the version of the story which popularized on stage and in the movies this chapter of American theatrical history.

The James Adams continued to enjoy full houses of 700 plus who came from miles around to experience theater on a floating boat palace.

In the late 1930s the original show boat returned to Washington to give a final performance. Junked at the onset of World War II, the James Adams then sank into the shallow waters near the shipyard where it was constructed.

Except for Ferber's nostalgic story and a few memories of older residents, the original show boat has remained forgotten somewhere on the bottom of the intercoastal waterway in eastern North Carolina.

Hopes For A New Boat
But now, after 40 years, hopes are high for a project to re-create the James Adams show boat as a traveling tourist attraction along the waterways of the five southeastern states from Virginia to Florida.

John Blizzard, general manager of the Carolina Regional Theater, has revealed that this spring the non-profit theater is conducting a feasibility study and proposal for the recreation of the show boat. This study is funded by a $3,000 grant from the N.C.

Department of Commerce. Major funding will be sought first from the Coastal Plains Regional Commission this year, with later applications being made to national agencies.

A tentative launching date for the re-created show boat is set for the spring of 1983.

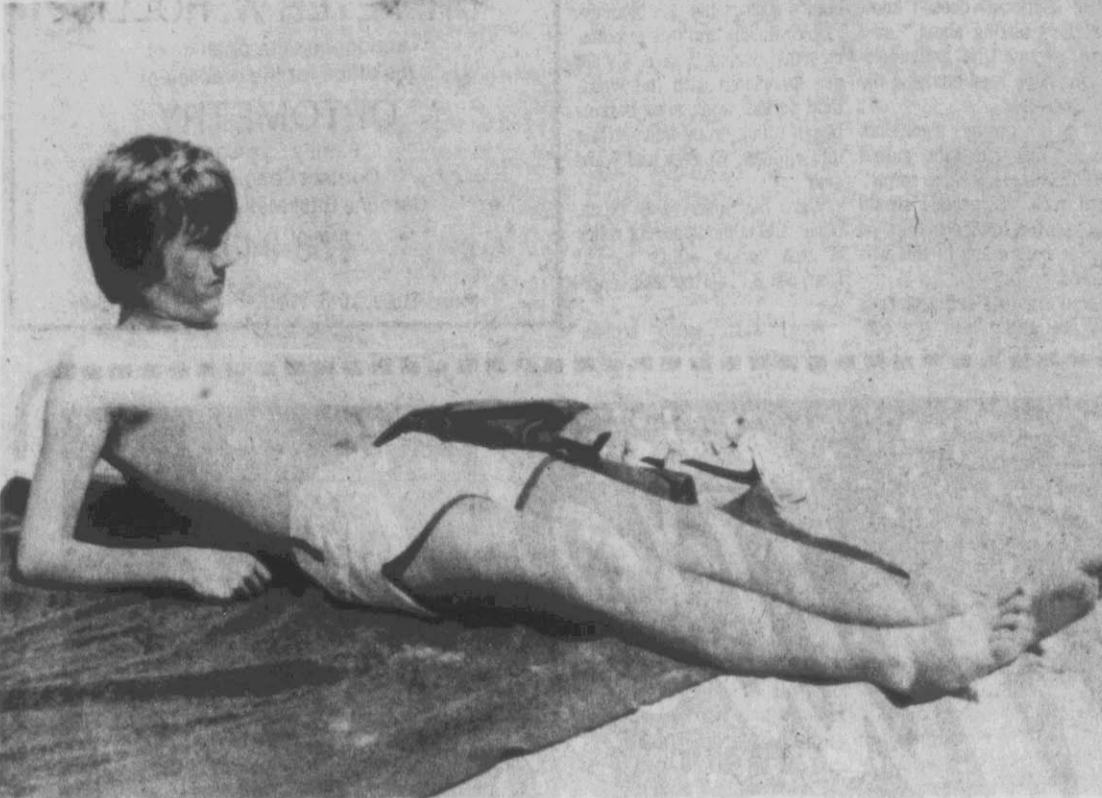

"The Southeast provided an important element of our cultural heritage which is relatively unknown," Blizzard notes. "We want to bring back this kind of exciting family entertainment. And we also want to reflect the history of the coastal plains and the role the waterways played in writing the historic drama of American life in the first part of this century."

Blizzard mentions that plans would be "to operate the facility for a minimum of six months a year as a touring theater, with the possibility of a winter residency along the warmer southern portions of the waterway."

The re-created James Adams would travel the inland waterway route from Virginia to Florida, berthing at cities and towns along the route for engagements ranging from two days to two weeks.

The original James Adams, adapted from a former barge and powered by a tug boat, was 122 feet long and drew only 14 inches of water. The construction cost in 1914 was $3,941.92.

Carolina Regional Theater predicts an initial preparatory cost working out to about 1,000 times that figure — however, a definite budget cannot be determined until research is completed in June.

BASKING IN THE SUN — Chuck Williams of Fort Bragg, decided to try some "early-season" sunbathing recently at West Onslow Beach, hoping to get a summer bronze look before his friends back at Fort Bragg do. Sunbathers this weekend won't have this much space on the sand, as record crowds are expected to show up on the coast for Easter weekend. (AP Laserphoto)

ECU Students Attended Model OAS

WASHINGTON, D.C. — About 200 U.S. college students, trying to learn about the "ins and outs" of politics and policy-making in the Western Hemisphere, participated in a model General Assembly of the Organization of American States.

The group included students from East Carolina University, who represented Chile and the Dominican Republic. The students were under the direction of their faculty advisor, Dr. Waltrand Morales.

The model general assembly was recently held at OAS headquarters in Washington, D.C. It involved hours of briefings by high-level OAS officials, and by representatives of the mission of the 27-member States of the OAS and the permanent observer countries.

Among the issues were: The human rights situation in the Americas, restructuring the inter-American system, regional arms control, the question of reinstatement of Cuba — an OAS member that was suspended from participation in 1962 for alleged intervention in Venezuela, the plight of El Salvador, reeling under unrelenting political violence, and the impact of U.S. economic policies on Latin America and the Caribbean. Border disputes in the region also came under focus.

Conley ROTC Teams Performed

The D.H. Conley Junior ROTC drill teams performed at Lt. Governor Jimmy Green's headquarters last Tuesday and were recently inspected by Battalion Commander Cadet Lt. Col. Michael Daniels and inspectors from Fort Bragg. The evaluation, according to Daniels, went well. The Junior ROTC Department will be notified in May of its standing for the Honor Unit or Honor Unit with Distinction Award.

N.C. Minimum Air Service

WASHINGTON, N.C. (UPI)—Nine North Carolina airports have been promised a minimum amount of service through 1988 by the Civil Aeronautics Board.

In released its findings Friday, the CAB listed what it believes is the minimum amount of service needed in the areas that the airport serves.

Some persons fear that, with deregulation, many small- and medium-sized airports will lose all their service. It is up to the CAB to assure that those airports get at least some service from major airlines.

The report:

— Asheville: two daily round trips to Atlanta and to Washington with a total of 160 seats (80 each way) split evenly on the two routes. Atlanta service is one-stop, while Washington service is two-stop.

— Fayetteville: same as Asheville, except that each route is two-stop.

— Hickory: two roundtrips each weekday and a total of two on weekends to both Atlanta and any other hub in North Carolina or further north. A total of 160 seats (80 each direction) on weekdays and a total of 160 on weekends split evenly on the two routes. Atlanta service is one-stop.

— Jacksonville-Camp Lejeune: two daily round trips to either Charlotte or Atlanta and to either Raleigh-Durham; Norfolk, Va.; Richmond, Va., or Washington. A total of 160 seats (80 each direction). Raleigh-Durham service would be non-stop; Charlotte, Norfolk and Richmond one-stop, and Washington two-stop.

— Kinston-Goldsboro-Greenville: same destinations and seat capacities as Jacksonville-Camp Lejeune. Raleigh-Durham, Norfolk and Richmond service would be nonstop.

Charlotte and Washington one-stop and Atlanta two-stop.

— New Bern-Morehead City: two round trips each weekday and a total of two each weekend to Raleigh-Durham and to either Norfolk, Va.; Richmond, Va., or Washington. Total of 160 seats (80 each direction) on weekdays and a total of 160 seats on weekends. Raleigh-Durham and Norfolk service is non-stop, Richmond one-stop and Washington two-stop.

— Rocky Mount-Wilson: two nonstop round trips each weekday plus two each weekend to Raleigh-Durham. Total of 116 seats (58 each direction) on weekdays and a total of 116 seats on weekends.

— Wilmington: two daily round trips to Atlanta and to either Raleigh-Durham; Norfolk, Va.; Richmond, Va., or Washington. Total of 160 seats (80 each direction). Raleigh-

Durham service is nonstop, Norfolk and Richmond one-stop and Atlanta and Washington two-stop.

— Winston-Salem: two daily round trips to Washington and to either Charlotte or Atlanta. Total of 160 seats (80 each direction). Charlotte service is nonstop, Washington one-stop and Atlanta two-stop.

Another Try

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)—Trans-Atlantic balloonist Maxie Anderson and his 23-year-old son, Kris, hope to become the first to cross the United States in a balloon.

The Andersons plan to begin their flight as early as next Saturday, probably in the San Francisco area. They'll shoot for a landing at Kitty Hawk on the North Carolina coast.

BLACK BIRD SKY...Black birds almost blot out the sky as they're spooked by a horse off Virginia 757 near Stewartsville in Bedford County. The birds and horse alike seemed to be finding food amid the stubble from last year's corn crop. The field was a stopover on their spring migration to the north. (AP Laserphoto)

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Looking back on it, my entire life changed the first holiday I was allowed to eat at Grandma's "big table."
Up until then, I could only speculate on what it was like to be an adult by listening from the kitchen and occasionally getting a glimpse of them as Grandma's swinging door thumped in and out.

Then one Easter, when I was 13, Grandma pointed to a vanity bench brought down from her bedroom that was sandwiched in between my mother and an uncle, and said, "You can sit at the big table."

It was awful. They passed things and took a little bit of everything whether they liked it or not... just to be polite.

They never laughed with food in their mouths even when something was funny and needed laughing at. When they talked, they argued usually about things they couldn't do anything about... the Germans marching into Czechoslovakia and the high cost of living.

They had a real thing about napkins and dabbed the corners of their mouths when there was nothing there. With every bite, they looked depressed and kept saying, "I shouldn't be eating this. My weight, you know."

Everyone was always shooing the dog away from the table and saying, "Go away, I just washed my hands."

Sometimes when the door swung open I could hear the rest of the kids in the kitchen laughing and screaming. I knew my cousin Billy was blacking out his front teeth with black olives and acting crazy. And my cousin Pat was scraping the grease with her spoon for hunks of chicken that stuck to the skillet. When they wanted seconds, they just brought the pots to the table and ate what was left with the big spoons still in them. Someone would belch and they'd laugh until someone choked and had to be hit on the back. Then they'd hit back and someone would start a fight with cold mashed potatoes and Grandma would say, "If you kids don't settle down out there, I'm going to make you all go outside."

Every Easter Sunday I think about the big table. It never changes... only the name of the kitchen, I yearn to shed the yoke of responsibility, decorum, and discipline... and be a child once more.

Cosmetologists Attend Workshops

A 14-hour workshop designed for licensed cosmetologists covering the art of advanced hairstyling has been completed by 28 persons through Pitt Community College.

Instructors included George Campbell of Roanoke Rapids, Tom Lawrence of Boone, Reid Plummer of Charlotte and Kenneth Harris of Lewiston. Donnie Wynne of Greenville was coordinator for the workshop, which was held at a local beauty salon.

Several of the classes featured lectures by the leaders who demonstrated techniques using live models. A personal profile analysis was carried out throughout the sessions. Each participant was shown how to handle complaints and problems of customers and encouraged to get along with fellow workers. Models were used during practice sessions with the accent being on both male and female hairstyling.

The Department of Continuing Education at PCC sponsored the workshop.

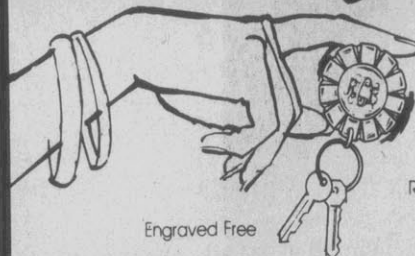

Patient Circle Plans Meet

The Patient Circle of The Kings Daughters and Sons will meet Wednesday, April 9, at 3 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Tom Hannaford.

Ms. Wilson, Mr. Maye Unite In Marriage

Ms. Jeanette Wilson and John Walter Maye Jr. were united in marriage at noon Saturday in Sycamore Hill Baptist Church here.

The double ring ceremony was conducted by the Rev. B. B. Felder and the Rev. Kenneth Hammond. A program of wedding music was presented by Miss Mammie E. Maye of Kansas City, Mo., sister of the bride, organist, Mrs. Betty Robinson sang "Let It Be Me." Frank Norris sang "The Lord's Prayer," and Mrs. Robinson and Norris sang "O Perfect Love."

The church was decorated with three candelabra flanked by palms and baskets of white gladioli mixed with pink, blue and white daisies.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Albritton of Rt. 1, Bethel, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Beatrice Jones Maye of Greenville, and the late Mr. J. W. Maye Sr.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white organza over peau de soie designed with a Queen Anne neckline outlined in scalloped clipped chantilly lace with the empire bodice overlaid in French chantilly lace beaded with pearls. The long fitted sleeves were of lace with scalloped lace cuffs and organza ruffle. The A-line skirt and attached chapel train were accented by a ruffled flounce and the hemline edged in the scalloped lace with a row of rose-point chantilly lace. Appliques of lace were scattered over the skirt and an organza bow was featured at the back waistline.

The bride wore a chapel length mantilla bordered in chantilly lace, held in place by a Camelot cap overlaid in matching lace beaded with pearls. She carried a bouquet of pink, blue and white daisies tied with pink ribbons.

Joann Wilson of Greensboro, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and bridesmaids included Judy Albritton of Hamilton, Helen Bryant of New Bern, Cynthia Cotten of Greensboro, Dianne McGlone of Greenville, and Isabella Powell of Roberstonville. They wore formal gowns of light blue silesta knit designed with an open sweetheart neckline and fitted bodice with an inset band. The full skirt was centered by a pleated panel and the bodice had gathered straps centered with self-fabric bows. They carried bouquets of pink and white daisies.

The flower girl was Tashana Albritton of Hamilton, cousin of the bride, who wore a floor length dress of white eyelet and carried a basket of mixed daisies. The ring bearer was Joseph Norris of Greenville.

The best man was Howard Barnhill of Charlotte and ushers included Steven Blake of Springfield, Va., Robert E. Jones Jr. of Raleigh, cousin of bridegroom, Charles Langley of Bronx, N. Y., Amos T. Mills III of Washington, D. C., Reginald Watkins of Raleigh, James A. Wynn of Newport News, Va., and Kenny Wilson of Bethel, brother of the bride.

Honorary attendants included Mrs. Rosa Bradley, Mrs. Flora Joyner, Mrs. Mildred Lee, Mrs. Thelma Moore and Mrs. Sadie Rooks all of Greenville, and J. J. Brown of Ayden, the bridegroom's godfather.

Both mothers wore corsages of white carnations. The mother of the bride was attired in a formal gown of blue silesta fashioned with a scoop neckline, empire bodice overlaid in blue chiffon and hand-beaded. The bridegroom's mother wore a formal gown of deep rose with a fitted bodice and scalloped skirt.

A reception followed in the ladies parlor. The refreshment table was centered with a centerpiece featuring colors used in the wedding. Cake was served by Mrs. Mammie Yeargin Jones, aunt of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Daisy Albritton, aunt of the bride. Mrs. Margaret D. Jones, aunt of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Elbert Bryant, aunt of the bride, poured punch. Hostesses were Ms. Regina Bryant, Mrs. Hortense Swepson, Ms. Jean Mills and Ms. Deborah Hall.

A graduate of Oak City High School and A & T State University, the bride worked as a nurse at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. The bridegroom graduated from C. M. Eppes High School, A & T State University and received two M.D. from ECU. He is now a guidance counselor at West Montgomery High School, Troy, where the couple will reside after a wedding trip to Savannah, Ga.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Emma Carr and Ms. Addie R. Gore.

The mother of the bridegroom entertained at an after-rehearsal dinner at Planters Bank civic room.

Couple Marries Friday Evening

Ernie Lou McKeel Dildy and Michael Arnold Hooks were united in marriage Friday at 8 p.m. in the Reedy Branch Free Will Baptist Church. The double ring candlelight ceremony was performed by Rev. Willis Wilson.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest J. McKeel of Wilson, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Hooks of Greenville.

Wedding music was provided by Tommy Manning, organist, and Ms. Sandi Williams and Ms. Valerie Seagraves sang "A Love Song" and "The Wedding Song." Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory chiffon floor length gown. The fitted bodice featured a yoke neckline with chiffon caplet sleeves and natural waist. A layered chiffon skirt flowed to floor length. She wore a bowler hat of ivory with an illusion veil with bow in back accented by a silk floral wreath of roses. She carried a wicker basket of silk pastel flowers, white and red roses and baby's breath.

Lynne Williams of Greenville was maid of honor and wore a buttercup yellow A-line gown with V-neck. The gown featured layered caplet sleeves accented by lace appliques on the front. She carried a white wicker basket of pastel silk flowers tied with yellow satin ribbons.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were William Gaston and Bob Oettinger of Greenville.

The couple was honored at an after-rehearsal dinner given by their parents at the King and Queen Restaurant. The wedding was directed by Mrs. Joan Hooks, aunt of the bridegroom.

The bride is a graduate of Elm City High School and attended Chowan College. She is presently employed as a pharmacy assistant by the Eastern Carolina Family Practice Center. The bridegroom is a graduate of J. H. Rose High School and attended Lenoir Community College. He is employed by General Electric Company.

After an unannounced wedding trip, the couple will reside in Winterville.

Summary Needs Reported At League Meeting

A summary of hospital equipment needs was presented for consideration to members of the Greenville Service League Monday.

Gift Shop Chairman Mrs. Eddie Smith told of requests from hospital departments as approved by the Hospital Gifts Committee. The league presents an annual equipment gift to Pitt Memorial Hospital in May of each year.

President Mrs. John Whichard reminded hospital volunteers of Easter holidays April 7-8 and heard committee reports. Hospital Activities Chairman Mrs. Kelly Barnhill announced a workshop to make Easter tray favors for patients. Two layettes were furnished and three calls answered from the Lending Chest.

Three requests were handled through Emergency Charity and one from the Laughinghouse Fund. Bloodmobile activities for the month included work at the Tar River Blood Center March 12 and a two-day visit to ECU March 27-28. The combined totals were 72 workers giving 237 hours for collections of 543 units. Additional volunteers were scheduled for a visit to Procter and Gamble April 4.

Theresa Tripp, Garrett Phipps Marry Friday

Theresa Lynn Tripp and Garrett F. Phipps were united in marriage Friday evening at 7:30 in a double ring candlelight ceremony at Grace Free Will Baptist Church by the Rev. Roger Tripp.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis W. Tripp of Greenville, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Alma L. Phipps and the late Mr. Albert N. Phipps of Greenville.

The church was decorated with all brass wedding accessories. In the center of the background was a semi-circle candelabra flanked by two cross candelabra and areca palms. In the choir loft were twenty tiered candelabra with waterfall arrangements of white daisies, snapdragons, Easter lilies and garlands of springerli ferns. At the altar was a profile kneeling bench decorated with white satin bows and greenery. Pews were marked with white satin bows and greenery. A heart and unity candelabra were used during the ceremony.

Wedding music was provided by Don Waters, organist, of Greenville, Emalynn Colardo and Randall Riggs. Mrs. Colardo sang, "You Light Up My Life," and "One Hand, One Heart," and Riggs sang, "There Is Love and 'We've Only Just Begun.'"

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a gown of white silk organza over white peau de soie designed with a sweetheart neckline trimmed in lace. The empire bodice was also trimmed in lace. The full bishop sleeves were sheer with lace trim at the cuffs. The full flared skirt was bordered at the hemline with scalloped lace. Her acenlon lace fingertip veil was enhanced with seed pearls and silk Venise lace. She carried a cascade formal bouquet of yellow and white daisies, lemon roses and baby's breath with sprays of springerli greenery tied with yellow and white streamers.

Patricia Wilkins of Greenville was matron of honor. She wore a formal gown of yellow silk organza with ruffled front and a back V-neckline with bow trim and capelet sleeves. A fabric flower at the center of the backwaist and attached flowing ruffles down the back enhanced the gown. She carried a white fireside basket overflowing with yellow and white daisies, baby's breath tied with yellow and white satin streamers.

Bridesmaids were Paula J. Cox of Ayden and Mary Baker, cousins of the bride, of Winterville, Deloras Elks and Mrs. Mary S. Page of Greenville. The gowns and flowers of the bridesmaids were identical to those of the matron of honor.

Honorary bridesmaids were Carolyn Cox, cousin of the bride, of Ayden, Hazel Barnett of Winterville, Gail Hamm of Greenville, and Barbara Stoddard of Bell Arthur. They wore formal gowns and wrist corsages of daisies.

The brides' cousin, Lori L. Tripp of Ayden was flower girl. She was dressed similar to the honor attendants and carried a white basket with miniature white and yellow flowers tied with matching ribbons. The ring bearer, Jimmy L. Cox also of Ayden and cousin of the bride carried a heart-shaped pillow with a spray of white and yellow flowers.

The bridegroom's brother, C.B. Landreth of Greenville, was best man. Ushers were Dennis J. Tripp, brother of the bride, Patrick M. Tripp, uncle of the bride, Ron Royster, and Scottie Dixon, all of Greenville.

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of ice blue polyester knit with a capelet of chiffon knit and was remembered with a corsage of yellow roses. Mrs. Phipps, mother of the bridegroom, wore a formal gown of royal blue complemented with a corsage of yellow roses.

Mrs. Daisy Tripp and Mrs. Mary Cox, grandmothers of the bride wore gowns of rose and forest green respectively. They wore corsages of daisies.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Marie Cox, and scrolls were passed out by Jennifer Colardo and Angela Gurganus, cousin of the bride.

A bridesmaids luncheon was held Saturday before the wedding at the Holiday Inn in Greenville. The luncheon was given by Mark and Vickie Tripp of Ayden, aunt and uncle of the bride.

A reception was given by the bride's parents and also by friends of the bride and bridegroom. Mrs. Wanda Hardee cut and served the four-tiered wedding cake. Martha Hudson assisted Regina Hudson in pouring punch. The reception tables were decorated with candles and spring flowers. Mrs. Donald Hudson coordinated the reception. Assisting at the reception were Patsy Arnold and Cynthia Minch, and Lana Peede. Faye Rouse attended the register.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Greenville. The bride is a graduate of J.H. Rose High School and attended Pitt Technical Institute and is now employed by the State of North Carolina as a secretary for Juvenile Court Counselors. The bridegroom graduated from D.H. Conley and also attended Pitt Technical Institute. He is employed by the City of Greenville as a fireman.

Dykhoff-Hodge Vows Solemnized Saturday

Sharon Rachel Hodge and Donald Nelson Dykhoff were united in a single ring ceremony Saturday at 11 a.m. at Oakmont Baptist Church with the Rev. Gordon Conklin officiating.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Joseph Goodwin, organist and Miss Terry Leggett, who sang "The Wedding Song" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. James D. Hodge of Greenville, and the bridegroom's parents are D. Dykhoff of Charleston, S.C. and Mrs. Jilda Dykhoff of Summerville, S.C.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white luster glow over white peau de soie designed with a high neckline encircled with white silk floral Venise lace. The empire bodice was enhanced by a sheer inset yoke of imported English net outlined in silk Venise lace. The long blouson sleeves featured the sheer inset outlined in floral lace extending from the elbows to the cuffs which had button closures. A self-fabric attached belt outlined the bodice at the waistline from which fell the A-line skirt and attached chapel length train. The hemline was edged with silk floral Venise lace.

She wore a fingertip length illusion veil bordered in silk Venise lace to complement her gown. Appliques of Venise lace accentuated each side of the veil, which was held in place with a Juliet cap overlaid in matching lace.

The bride carried a cascade bouquet featuring white cymbidium orchids and yellow roses accented with white baby's breath and foliage.

Marcia Hodge of Greenville, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor and wore a formal gown of rosebud silesta designed with a portrait neckline edged with piping. The blouson bodice featured miniature tie bows at the shoulders and short split sleeves. The skirt was a sunburst of knife pleats. She carried a Victorian cluster of mixed spring flowers featuring tulips, roses, irises and miniature carnations.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Angela Rea of Alliance, Mrs. Sally Swanson of Greensboro and Miss Ruth Yearick of Morehead City. They wore the same attire as the maid of honor.

Tom C. Langley of Greenville served as best man, and ushers were Jim Hodge of Greenville, the bride's brother, David Rea of Alliance, and Gary Swanson of Greensboro.

The reception was held at the church following the ceremony. Assisting at the reception in the fellowship hall were Miss Sylvia Carraway and Miss Elizabeth Smith.

A rehearsal dinner was given by the parents of the bride at the Brook Valley Country Club Friday night for the wedding party and out-of-town guests.

A bridal luncheon was given by Mrs. A. Louis Singleton and Mrs. Sally Singleton Swanson for the bridal attendants and out-of-town guests on Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Singleton.

A bridal shower was given by Miss Sylvia Carraway at the home of Mrs. E. R. Carraway.

After a wedding trip to N. C. mountains, the couple will reside in Lewisville, Tex.

The bride, a graduate of University of N. C. at Chapel Hill, is a teacher in the Lewisville Independent School District. The bridegroom is a computer system engineer with Johnson Controls, Inc. in Carrollton, Tex.

Dear Abby

"Heartbroken" Mom Doesn't Have Much to Break

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My heart is broken. Our wonderful 22-year-old son is going to marry the 20-year-old girl he's gone with for two years. She's a fine girl, but last summer suffered a spinal cord injury in an auto accident. (My son was driving, and miraculously came out of it with no serious injuries.)

Unfortunately, the girl is now paralyzed from the waist down, and will be in a wheelchair for the rest of her life.

Abby, I don't want to be cruel, but we want more for our son than to spend his life caring for an invalid. He says he "loves" her, but I think he feels sorry for her, and feels guilty because he was driving when the accident occurred. (It wasn't his fault. His brakes failed.)

We've tried to talk some sense into the boy, but it did no good. You are our last hope. He respects your judgment. Will you please write to him and try to make him understand what a serious mistake he is making? We would even be willing to have him live with her for a year just to make sure he knows what he's getting into. Thank you.

HEARTBROKEN MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Sorry, but I write only to those who solicit my advice. Instead of trying to dissuade him from marrying the girl, you should be proud of him for his decision. You appear to have a greater problem than your son, Mother. Get counseling and learn how to love and let go.

DEAR ABBY: We are both well over 21. Two years ago my boyfriend and I took out a marriage license, but so far we haven't used it. I have brought up the matter of getting married several times, but he always has an excuse to put it off. I don't think he really wants to get married. Abby, how long is a marriage license good for?

FED UP IN PHILLY

DEAR FED UP: In your case, it's good for nothing.

DEAR ABBY: Do those people who complain about barking dogs ever stop to realize that barking is a dog's way of trying to tell us something?

The barking dog says, "I am lonely, pet me. I am restless, walk me. I am unhappy because I can't leave this spot. Take me with you. I am cold, I am hungry. I am frightened."

Give your dog some attention. Walk him twice daily and show him some affection. Take care of his needs and he will be less likely to bark.

As an animal welfare worker, I have answered complaints about barking dogs and found animals with no doghouses out in the rain and snow, dogs with chains too short to reach any type of shelter, dogs that had been without food or water for days, dogs that barked incessantly before they accidentally hung themselves with choke collars over a fence, and dogs with collars imbedded in their flesh who were bleeding and in pain.

The barking dog is the unhappy dog. Let us use love instead of muzzles, and concern instead of criticism.

IRENE CUPIDO

DEAR IRENE: If dogs could read, you'd get a lot of fan letters from man's best friend.

DEAR ABBY: I'm desperate and need a quick answer. I was very much in love with a man about a year ago. We had a fight and broke up because we both had a lot of growing up to do.

About two weeks ago I ran into him, and the minute we saw each other we both knew we were still very much in love. We had a long talk, and he told me that he still loves me, but he has a problem. While we were split, he started seeing another girl, and now she's pregnant!

Abby, I feel very sorry for this other girl, but I'm still in love with this guy. I know he still loves me, and I don't want to give him up. I honestly feel that if he marries the girl he got pregnant, it wouldn't solve anything, and the marriage wouldn't last. Yet it seems the only decent thing to do.

My question: What should I do, if anything? The other girl doesn't even know I exist.

NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO: You shouldn't do anything. Even though you still love him, stick to a hands-off policy until he is free of all obligations. It may be a long time. Or forever.

Decent people accept the consequences of their own actions.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are in the wholesale carpet business. When so-called friends show us carpet they just had installed, tell us what they paid for it and then ask if we think they got a good deal, what should we say?

Nine times out of 10 we could have given them a better deal, and that is what I tell them.

Later my husband and I argue about this; he says, "Never knock the competition—regardless."

Abby, these same people never even come into our store to see what we have, or to compare prices. I say why should we consider their feelings when they never consider ours?

THE WIFE

DEAR WIFE: I vote with your husband. Never knock the competition. And that goes for people in the clothing, furniture, jewelry and every other kind of business. If you tell someone they got a bad deal they'll think you're talking from sour grapes.

DEAR ABBY: When I was growing up, my mother drummed it into my head that I had bad breath, so I took to chewing gum because I was always self-conscious about my breath.

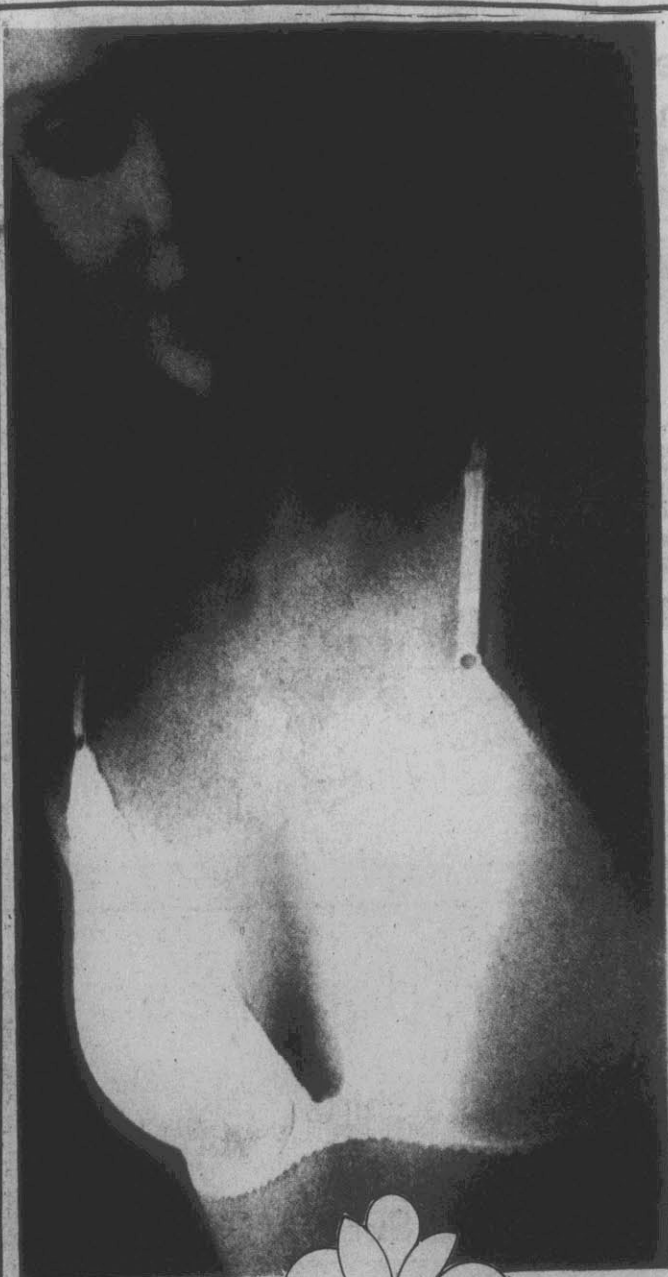

I learned how to chew gum inconspicuously. I could keep it in my mouth for hours without chewing it.

I still chew gum (I'm married now) but my husband hates it. He says it gets on his nerves. I never crack it, and I'm careful not to chew it a lot in company, but he still doesn't like it. He says it's offensive, ill-mannered and childish.

What do you think?

LIKES TO CHEW

DEAR LIKES: I think it's refreshing, good exercise and a bit of a treat if done in private. But if it irritates your husband, your gum-chewing may not be as inconspicuous as you think it is. Chew in private, and don't stretch your luck.

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, APR. 6, 1980

YOUR DAILY
Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Make sure that you do nothing early in the morning that could upset present harmony. The rest of the day and evening are fine for engaging in activities you truly enjoy.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Strengthen your philosophy of life so that the future becomes more satisfying. Make fascinating new plans for the days ahead.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Handle routine duties early in the day so you'll have time for recreation later. Handle communication matters wisely.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Cooperate more with family members and have increased harmony. An intuitive prompting could be wrong at this time.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make sure you live according to your beliefs. Try to be of greater assistance to others and gain their goodwill.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Fine day to plan how to have more abundance in the days ahead. The evening is ideal for entertaining good friends.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Concentrate your energies on home affairs and postpone outside activities for now. Express happiness with loved one.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Study the philosophy which can give you a fuller life. Plan how to stretch your finances so you have more security.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't commit yourself to anything in the morning and concentrate on ideas that could add to present abundance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You may arise in a strange mood but that soon passes. Attend services that can elevate your way of living.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Fine day for planning how to operate more efficiently in your line of endeavor. Discuss the future with family members.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan a sensible course of action for the coming week. Concentrate on how to have added income in the days ahead.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan carefully how to gain your most cherished aims. Show more devotion for loved one and express happiness together.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will have excellent ideas for getting ahead in the world, but teach not to voice them to others until properly prepared. Be sure to give spiritual training early in life. One who will love sports and be very good at them.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, APR. 7, 1980

YOUR DAILY
Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day requiring that you make a special point to handle civic matters in a prompt manner. A time when you can make difficult decisions and get excellent results.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Think carefully about advancing in your line of endeavor and strengthen your fortifications. Take no risks with your reputation.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Your ideas where a new interest is concerned can be good and bad, so weed out the bad ones for best results. Be wise.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Be sure to keep promises you have made to associates. Use more tact with the one you love and avoid trouble.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take steps to obtain important data that can be helpful in career matters. Gain the cooperation of associates.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Begin the week properly by doing your work more painstakingly and get better results. Sidestep a troublemaker.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Engage in favorite recreations during spare time and relieve tensions. Show that you are truly devoted to loved one.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Showing more affection and kindness toward family members is wise now. Don't lose your temper with anyone.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be more precise in your statements and have more accord with associates. Establish more harmony with family members.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make sure your regular routines are working in fine order. Be alert to opportunities coming your way now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You can gain personal aims if you understand the facts connected with them. Enjoy company of congenials tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make definite plans to gain your personal aims. Make a point to encourage those who need a boost at this time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Gaining personal wishes at this time may take longer than you anticipated. Take time to improve your health and appearance.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will understand what is important and what is not, and should have the benefit of a good academic education to make the most of life. Teach to be polite with others. Don't neglect ethical training early in life.

The Purple Martin A Good Friend Of People

By CHARLES S. TAYLOR

ATLANTA (UPI) — On farms across the country and in some cities, spring not only brings showers and flowers, for the lucky ones it signals the return of the purple martin.

The purple martin is a blue-black bird, a swallow slightly larger than a sparrow and a friend of man. It is famed for its ability to eat thousands of mosquitoes and other insects in a single day. Around farms, the martin has a reputation for keeping crows and hawks away from the corn and the chickens.

Because of these attributes, quite aside from its friendly disposition and affinity for people, the Cherokee, Choctaw and Chickasaw Indians put up gourd houses for the purple martin to attract them to their villages.

The white man came to cherish the purple martin also and for hundreds of years has looked forward to their arrival in the late winter and early spring from their winter home in Brazil.

Purple martins spend their summers in virtually every area of the country except northern California, according to Elbridge Freeborn, former president of the Atlanta Audubon Society. He has spent years studying the habits of birds, particularly the martins.

The martins show up in southern states in late February and early March, a few weeks later in more northern areas, Freeborn said. Bird-watchers compete with each other to see who will spot the first purple martin of the spring.

"First, a few males come and check out the place," Freeborn said, "then some more males make a visit to the prospective homesite. If everything appears to be in order, then the remainder of the flock shows up."

Purple martins are gregarious. They like to live together in apartments. Farmers and others who provide homes for them put up multi-compartmented birdhouses on poles about 14 to 20 feet above ground level.

In some places, making martin houses has become an art, but on many southern farms the favorite martin home continues to be the bottle gourd. Plastic gourds, manufactured especially for martins, also are available. Martin houses fashioned out of old plastic milk jugs are not unheard of.

"Way back yonder, the purple martins nested in woodpecker holes or hollow trees," said Freeborn. But the chain saw brought an end of many natural nesting places and the birds learned to accept homes created by man.

"They were able to adjust themselves to civilization. Here's a gentleman that can adjust."

Sparrows and starlings are the enemies of purple martins. Freeborn said they frequently overcome the martins and take Brazil in the fall and don't put them back up until it is time for them to return.

Griggsville, Ill., claims to be the purple martin capital of the world and the city erected homes for them along its main streets. It also put up a sign several years ago asking motorists to drive carefully to "protect our valuable martins. Each martin can consume 250,000 mosquitoes a season."

Regional Wines Making Impact

By NANCY SHULINS
Associated Press Writer
WADESVILLE, Ind. (AP) — A strange thing is happening deep in the beer and bourbon belt: the gulp and the guzzle are giving way to the sip, as the land of the grist becomes the home of the grape.

American Vintners, says since 1970, 13 new states have entered the wine producing business. "And it's happening in places where you wouldn't expect it — in the Carolinas, Minnesota, Iowa and Indiana," he added.

Take Muri Dharmadhikari — "you'd better just call me Muri" — of Golden Rain Tree Winery Inc., headquartered in Wadesville, a tiny strip of land in southern Indiana.

and insects, followed by Prohibition, destroyed most of the heartland's grape industry. But when the wild American grape and the European were grafted, it was the answer to domestic winemakers' woes. The hybrid was hearty enough to withstand insects, yet delicate enough to produce fine wine.

There are nine wineries in Indiana, where a decade ago there were none. Moffett says new wineries are coming on at the rate of two dozen a year. The fledgling industry is being helped along by laws that tax wine made in the state at a substantially lower rate than the imported product.

Richard Figiel, editor of the Eastern Grape Grower and Winery News, says the increase in wine consumption is another major factor in the recent success of Midwest and Eastern wines.

He has high hopes for the future. Figiel agrees: "Just as you might now show off your knowledge of French chateaux, it may one day become prestigious to know the wineries in your own area."

Religion Is Reviving In China

By ALINE MOSBY
HANGZHOU, China (UPI) — The exotic odor of incense floated once again around the crimson pillars of the Buddhist temple of Ling Yin.

"Incense is again manufactured and we can sell it since we have returned to our temple," said the portly, gray-robed monk sitting behind a table displaying incense.

For Buddhists, lighting incense in temples or at home is a sign of faith. Incense sticks vanished from shops throughout China a decade ago when Mao Tse-tung launched his anti-religious "Cultural Revolution."

Its return indicates religion — in and out during China's 4,000-year history — is in again and flourishing under the current regime's tolerance of more individual freedom.

Religious leaders estimate the number of believers of all faiths, including home worshippers, at no more than 115 million, a mere drop in the communist nation's 1 billion population.

All over this vast nation Buddhist temples are being reopened. Buddhism is the majority religion, with a claimed 100 million believers.

The Buddhist association headquarters in Peking has been reformed.

Thousands of Islamic mosques are also open again. Islam is China's second largest religion, with 13 million worshippers. More than 1,900 have been rehabilitated in the Xin Jiang Autonomous region of northwest China alone.

Christian churches, representing a comparatively minor religion in China, again hold services.

The Moslem Koran and Christian Bible are being republished at the new Institute of Religious Research opened last year at the University of Nanjing. The institute also plans republication of the Buddhist scriptures.

The Taoist movement, the only religion that originated in China, is forming an association and trying to open a temple in Peking.

The philosophy of Confucius also is no longer banned.

Sixteen men have made the first pilgrimage of Chinese Moslems to their holy city of Mecca in Saudi Arabia in 20 years.

A Chinese Christian delegation attended a world religious conference last September in New Jersey.

The state is paying for repairs to houses of worship. Most were looted during the Cultural Revolution. Statues were smashed, Buddha heads snapped off, candelabras and urns stolen.

Salaries, including back pay in some cases, have been restored to some religious officials.

Roman Catholics in Peking have elected a new bishop.

More than 20 leaders of the Buddhist, Moslem and Christian groups have been elected members of the national parliament.

At the 4th century Ling Yin temple in Hangzhou, 30 monks again live behind the temple after being barred for more than a decade.

They found the temple in relatively good condition because citizens rushed to the shrine to form a barricade when word got around in 1967 that Mao's youthful "Red Guards" were going to sack it.

"No young monks are in our group," said Wang Li, eyes twinkling beneath his white cap. He wore a gray robe of the old Chinese style.

"Our youngest monk is 53. The future of Buddhism in China — that remains to be seen," he said in frank pessimism, as a crowd gathered to listen in front of the 200-year-old laughing Buddha that rises to the temple ceiling.

"Some people come here to pray. No young people. But some traditions and habits still exist in older people's minds. Now we can practice freedom of religion."

Tourists also are flocking to Putuo Mountain on an island off Hangzhou. Putuo is among four mountains sacred to Chinese Buddhists. All four are dotted with reopened monasteries and temples.

It was on another of the four, Wutai, that two monks from India built a temple in 58 A.D. and started Buddhism in China.

On Hangzhou's Sun Yat Sen Street, the imam or priest of the 1,300-year-old Feng Huang Si Mosque said the house of worship now is allowed to keep solvent, capitalist style, by renting out another building it owns.

Mosque elders live on their old-age pensions and contributions from believers, a financial arrangement that works at many houses of religion visited in several cities.

"In the time of the Cultural Revolution, religion was seriously disoriented," the imam said. "The mosque was closed. We are criticized for spreading superstition and exploiting people. Now 2,300 people a week come to pray."

In Peking, attendance has soared in recent months at the only two Christian churches open.

Nationwide, the Moslems seem to benefit most from the new freedom.

In Peking, 20 aged monks in gray robes welcome only "about 100" worshippers to the newly reopened Buddhist temple, "less than during the 1950's." But the sidewalk in front of the Dongsi Mosque is covered with bicycles on Fridays as about 300 come to kneel on mats.

"Moslem people receive privileges," said the imam. "Surely you have noticed the many Moslem restaurants in Peking."

Minority ethnic groups in China, as opposed to the majority Han, number only 5 percent of the population — but cover 60 percent of the land. Most are Moslems. Without their "unity," the party press says frankly, China cannot modernize. China wants no unrest among its Moslems.

Ziao Sianfu, director of the government religious affairs bureau, indicated the party thinks religion will be around only for a while so the party might as well accept it.

"Religion will die out only when science and technology are highly developed and people's material and cultural lives are improved," he says.

Stomach 'Stapling' Aids Some Morbidly Obese

By LIDIA WASOWICZ
SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — With the punch of a staple gun, surgeons are taking a new approach in helping morbidly obese patients shed excess weight.

operation involves "stapling" the stomach to reduce its size. Doctors report it appears effective in helping overeaters lose more than 100 pounds in 12 months.

Moody, chief of surgery at the University of Utah Medical Center and an expert in the gastroplasty procedure, said morbid obesity — twice the ideal weight — has become a major public health problem in the United States.

"Obesity, like alcoholism, is surrounded by taboos, guilt and mistaken claims that the solution lies in the patient's will power. Obesity is a disease with significant risk of premature death and increased incidence of diabetes, hypertension, cardiopulmonary dysfunction, gallstones and arthritis.

He explained the operation as he cut, stapled and sutured the stomach of his 25-year-old patient.

stomach above the staple line. When it passes through the small opening, stretching it, the patient gets the sensation that his stomach is full," Moody said in an interview.

experienced a subsequent widening or narrowing of the opening, which required further surgery.

"Dieting, pills, shots, exercise all are ineffective. Most patients can't lose more than 50 pounds. They get so discouraged, they usually gain it all back and even more. This operation could be used early to break the cycle."

Where diets and exercise have failed, the new 3-4-hour operating room, Dr. Frank

As his 5-foot-1, 281-pound patient was wheeled into the "Conservative medical programs for weight reduction have not been successful, and the consensus is becoming that only surgery is effective," said Moody, who started performing the procedure in 1978.

The stomach is literally stapled together across the line dividing the upper and lower sections, leaving only a tiny opening 5-10 percent its original size. The diminished opening slows down the passage of food and reduces the amount of intake.

"It may take 5 years to reach the desirable weight. We're not trying to turn these people into Twiggies, but we want them to be functional and healthy."

The long-term effects, however, are as yet undetermined, and we still don't know how the procedure modifies diet and contributes to a gradual return towards ideal weight. That's what we're studying," Moody said.

Most of the patients are female, in their 30s and motivated to undergo the surgery by a fear of death.

Obese surgery had its beginnings in the 1950s when doctors found removal of parts of the large intestine resulted in weight loss. One process, formalized by Dr. Howard Payne of Los Angeles, bypassed up to 20 feet of intestine.

Patients are admitted one week prior to surgery and are readmitted for three-day intervals following the operation to study their eating habits.

Until recently health insurance companies refused to pay for the surgery, claiming it was "cosmetic." But the trend is changing, with more companies realizing the benefits of not waiting until further complications set in, Moody said.

In the mid-1960s, a group of Iowa doctors led by Dr. Edward Mason began experimenting with reducing the size of the stomach to achieve weight loss.

The surgeon hopes the procedure eventually will prevent patients from reaching the morbidly obese state.

"There's still a problem with qualification. If someone is 5-foot-6 and weighs 200 pounds, he's not eligible for payments because he's less than twice the ideal weight and not considered morbidly obese. Yet he suffers the same problems as a person 60 or 80 pounds heavier."

Patients undergoing the jejunioileal bypass usually lost more than 100 pounds in the first 12 months, but in the long term, they suffered such side-effects as diarrhea, renal stones and metabolic problems.

"At birth, the weight is in the normal range, but by the time the child is 5 or 6, he's the fattest kid on the block and in the early teens, there's a very rapid growth. By 18 the person's already considered morbidly obese.

The risks were reduced with the introduction of the stapling device in the mid-1970s and subsequent development of the gastric bypass and gastric partitioning.

At first, only a single line of staples was used, but some patients' eating habits were so persistent, they'd continue partaking of the food until the bulk burst the staple line. Moody now uses a double row of staples.

Among his 60 obese surgery patients — the largest of whom weighed in at 500 pounds — no serious side-effects as yet have resulted and only half a dozen

Deaf Hawkers Have Eyes On Customers

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Daryl Johnson and Tim Rarus are unusual among the hawkers at the University of Arizona's McKale Center.

They are two of the best young salesmen working there, for one thing. But what really sets them apart is the fact that both are deaf.

While most hawkers wait to hear a cry for popcorn or peanuts, these two keep their eyes constantly on the crowd looking for the waving arm that usually accompanies a decision for a snack.

And both are friendly. They like the people they work with and are teaching some of the other hawkers to finger spell — the first step in learning sign language, where words are simply spelled out with finger symbols.

Daryl says using his voice is kind of a bore. It's so much more passive than signing, with its active arm movements. He notices most talkers don't depend much on facial expressions to communicate — much less so than deaf people.

... A brick wall that has been repaired, an ornament from an old cemetery fence, and a keyhole shape cut out in weathered wood are the kind of subjects easily found in any neighborhood.

With spring weather here again, photographers, along with bird-watchers, nature lovers and sun worshipers, are returning to the outdoors.

Because of the high price of gasoline, many people are opting for alternatives to traveling longer distances to the coast, to historic towns, and to other scenic places to pursue their pastimes.

Photographers can compensate having to curtail camera trips by focusing more closely on local subjects. In addition to the usual landscapes and studies of people, photographing isolated everyday details can be rewarding.

The commonplace features shown in photographs on this page were all located within a few minutes walking distances of each other.

U.S. Tax Resisters Say Their Rebellion Growing

By STEVEN W. STRE
United Press International
A growing number of Americans are refusing to file income tax forms or to pay Uncle Sam another penny.

Most of us spend several months a year working for the federal government, but they've told the government "I quit." While millions of Americans struggle through 1040 forms with an eye on the calendar, April 15 is just another spring day for the tax resisters. They say they have legally cut in half the adage about life's two unavoidable obstacles: death and taxes.

It's not known how many tax resisters will choose not to hand over a chunk of their salaries to the federal government this year. But their numbers seem to be increasing — or at least they have become more unabashed.

Non-filers say they are among strong and growing ranks, leading a rebellion that was only in its infancy when California voters approved Proposition 13.

The U.S. Internal Revenue Service says it doesn't take seriously the notion of any burgeoning movement to reject the federal government's right to tax its citizens. An IRS spokesman conceded only that in the last few years "small but very vocal groups have made quite a bit of noise" around the country. It has won some court cases but so have several of the resisters.

Some people and organizations tour the nation with lectures about the government's inability to legally tax incomes, drawing audiences from Anchorage to Miami.

Non-filers take a variety of tactics to argue they have remained on legal footing. Most cite provisions of the U.S. Constitution, claiming tax forms or federal taxation itself violates the law of the land.

Perhaps the most popular course among tax resisters is to plead the Fifth Amendment. Some say that since information on tax forms is handed over to the U.S. Justice Department upon request, filing a 1040 form could provide self-incriminating evidence for prosecutors.

A group calling themselves "tax patriots" drew at least 200 people when they held a meeting March 4 in the Baltimore suburb of Catonsville, Md.

Charles Rielly, a former printer from Mesa, Arizona, who now lectures across the country, told the gathering to write "object-self incrimination" on each line of their 1040s.

He has done exactly that for a decade now. The government didn't like it and brought charges of willful violation to file. But last June 20 he was acquitted in U.S. District Court in Phoenix.

The 16th Amendment is another constitutional foundation for claims the government has no right to tax incomes.

Some groups, like the St. Louis Monetary Realists Society, take the view that a dollar isn't money at all but only a unit of measurement. They say since the dollar has no backing by gold, silver, or any other tangible thing, it is worthless.

The society says it doesn't endorse that idea as a legal basis for anyone to stop paying taxes and wouldn't advocate non-payment at all. But the group's president, Dr. Paul A. Hein Jr., hasn't filed a tax return since 1976 and his bank records were recently seized by federal authorities.

Still other non-filers strive for conventional tax shelters with unconventional methods. Many tax resisters have paid fees to become ordained mail-order ministers, transferring their earnings and possessions before claiming the tax-exempt status of a religious denomination. The IRS in Indiana says many of the 169 cases it has identified as illegal tax protests throughout the state involve the "vow of poverty" strategy he led to mixed results. In Tustin, Calif., an organization called "Tea, An Association of Mountains and American Patriots" says it will become an in the ULC. They did it to take order church and become tax exempt. A $1,250 initial fee is charged. In meetings the group suggests listeners should establish a church of their own with $25 worth of legal documents mailed from the Universal Life Church in Modesto, Calif. And indeed, attorney Peter Stromer waged a successful court battle that won the church tax-exempt status in 1974.

About 230 residents in four New York towns in the Catskill region took the advice and became mail-order "ministers" themselves off property tax rolls in 1977 and 1978, largely to protest the area's hefty number of tax-exempt organizations. But the New York Legislature enacted a law in 1978 permitting the exemptions only if the landowner could prove he was holding the property in trust for a religious group.

All save one of those 230 put their land back on the tax rolls the following year. The IRS, saying it has had the repeated support of courts across the country, firmly labels all these tax resisting methods as worthless. Authorities claim the arguments are either the result of convoluted legal interpretations or just a thin veneer for cheaters. And the government has won a number of cases. The fight against taxes has inflicted its casualties. Some rebels are forced to espouse their cause from behind prison bars and others are awaiting criminal prosecution.

On March 14, Brandeis University professor Paul Monsky was convicted on tax evasion charges in U.S. District Court in Boston.

The 43-year-old math teacher did not pay taxes for six years to protest military spending. It took a jury less than two hours to decide Monsky was guilty of defrauding the government by claiming 42 exemptions, even though he attached explanations on his tax forms.

He faces a possible $500 fine and a one-year prison term when sentenced. Bruce Chrisman, a Mennonite pacifist from Ava, Ill., made the same claim on his 1975 return and received a similar verdict last Dec. 3.

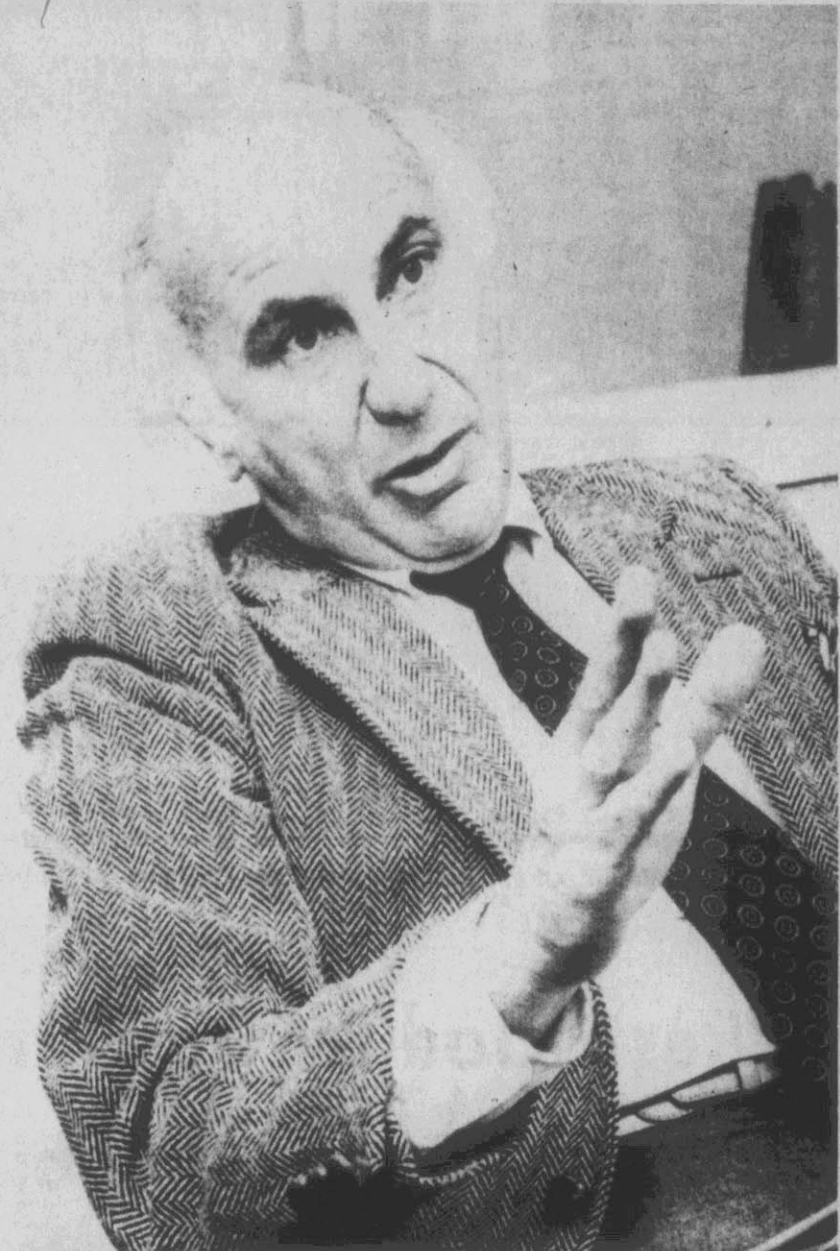

Chrisman, an organic truck farmer who grows alfalfa sprouts, maintained his conscience as a Christian pacifist prohibits him from supporting killing, even indirectly through taxes to finance the military. One man who is awaiting a new criminal trial on tax charges has canvassed the nation to bring attention to his claims anyone can avoid federal taxes.

Irwin Schiff, author, lecturer and talk-show guest, is an insurance agent and publisher by profession. The Hamden, Conn., native hasn't paid taxes since 1973 and will tell anyone who will listen why.

"You're going to jail — do you know that?" Schiff, who calls federal courts "railroad stations" when it comes to cases that could damage the government, says he learned a lot from his first trial and can't wait for a chance to apply the new-found knowledge.

The 52-year-old prophet of total tax rebellion says his combination of arguments can't be beaten on legal grounds. He'll tell you the Fifth Amendment is a logical plea, claiming anyone who signs a tax return has written off rights and allowed the government to sidestep the Privacy Act of 1974.

U.S. Tax Resisters...

Schiff says once a return is signed the taxpayer has become stuck in the position of possibly becoming, in effect, a witness against himself in any criminal action.

IRS spokesman Larry Batdorf says the contention is the most common among tax resisters but "nothing could be further from the truth."

Batdorf says those returns are immediately turned over to IRS enforcement personnel.

"As a minimum they determine the income that should have been reported," he said. "They compute the tax. They allow the taxpayer his appeal rights. If he fails to avail himself of the appeal rights, we assess and collect the tax."

Batdorf says some have appealed and the IRS has come out a winner every time.

The one case at the heart of each side of the Fifth Amendment battle is a U.S. Supreme Court decision that upheld the conviction of a bootlegger named Manly S. Sullivan in 1927.

Sullivan had not filed a tax return, claiming filing would just give prosecutors ammunition to take him to court on charges of violating the National Prohibition Act.

Batdorf notes that in the decision, Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes wrote: "It would be an extreme if not an extravagant application of the Fifth Amendment to say that it authorized a man to refuse to state the amount of his income because it had been made in crime."

Schiff brings the case to light as well, taking the extracted quote one sentence further. Holmes wrote in the next line, "But if the defendant desired to test that or any other point he should have tested it in the return so that it could be passed upon."

Schiff maintains the issue was never decided by the case and Sullivan's only mistake was his failure to send in any form at all.

Then there is the 16th Amendment, allegedly another constitutional bastion for tax resisters who think their rights have been trampled.

The Constitution's First Article says "direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several states which may be included within this Union, according to their respective numbers."

But that statement was seemingly laid aside by an amendment saying "Congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes on incomes, from whatever source derived, without apportionment among the States, and without regard to any census."

Batdorf says a few have claimed the amendment was not properly ratified since Ohio wasn't a state at the time. But enough states had favored it even without Ohio so the argument doesn't hold water, the IRS says.

Schiff attacks the 16th Amendment, but not in the same way. After his first trial, he sent a lengthy petition of redress to the White House and leaders on Capitol Hill.

He wrote that while affirming the Income Tax Act of 1913, "the Supreme Court said that the effect of the 16th Amendment was not to amend the Constitution, but to take an income tax out of the category of a direct tax and place it in the category of an indirect tax."

Direct or indirect taxes. There's the rub.

Schiff says an earlier Supreme Court decision went to great pains to explain that a characteristic of indirect taxes is that they are avoidable — unlike direct taxes.

He contends the notion of giving income taxes an indirect form puts them in the category of business levies, which can be sidestepped.

Schiff also says the "income" mentioned in the 16th Amendment doesn't concern a worker's paycheck. Income refers to a gain or profit, he contends, much like the bottom line of a company's ledger.

He calls wages only an "exchange of labor for another good" which aren't taxable under the amendment.

And Schiff jumps to defend the argument about worthless dollars too, the same one that society in St. Louis spoke of. But when it comes to courtroom tax battles, he says it has been phased out in favor of constitutional claims.

Schiff says a it's true that a federal government all thumbs in handling the country's economy has managed to make the dollar worthless by removing its backing.

He says "we don't use (the idea) anymore, but it's still a good one."

The IRS begs to differ. "This is absolutely absurd," their man Batdorf says. "The Internal Revenue code does not tax money. It taxes income, and income can be in the form of goods and services. Certainly greenbacks do have a value. You can purchase goods and services with them."

"It's ironic," he goes on, "that some of these protesters who sell these kits using this argument collect their fee for the kit in currency."

Schiff says there is a reason for all his clamoring, above and beyond the tax system's alleged injustices.

He says the country is being driven into the ground by its own elected officials and all America's "troubles stem from the simple fact that the cancerous growth of government is simply destroying its power to produce."

Schiff claims a tax revolt is the only way to stem the tide of federal spending. He wrote to warn his congressman, Robert N. Giaimo, D-Conn., the movement is underway. Giaimo is the chairman of the House Budget Committee.

Irwin Schiff has not been put in jail at any time because of the charges still standing against him and it's very possible he never will. But some others in the tax resistance vanguard have run a rougher course.

One case that began about five years ago involved two men who had been touring Iowa and Wisconsin, speaking on the "unconstitutionality of the graduated income tax."

Gordon S. Buttorff and Charles A. Dodge convinced 15 employees of the John Deere Tractor Plant in Debuque, Iowa, they could claim up to 40 exemptions for dependents. All 15 eventually pleaded guilty or were convicted to tax violations.

Buttorff and Dodge were also convicted by a jury of aiding and abetting the filing of false claims. The two appealed, claiming they were just tax reformers engaging in their right of freedom of speech.

But a federal appeals court said they went "beyond mere advocacy of tax reform." Both were sentenced to prison.

Another resister, calling himself "John Law Freeman," criss-crossed the country, telling people to stop paying the government. But the man, whose real name is Alton Moss, was convicted of aiding and abetting five Grand Island, Neb., residents in filing fraudulent withholding statements.

Moss, the former operator of a hot dog stand in Medford, Ore., was ordered to surrender to the U.S. Marshal in Omaha March 17.

Bob "Freeman," believed to be a follower of Moss, was already in jail awaiting trial. He was only charged with conducting a seminar without a business license and obstructing an officer, but still spent some time at the Benton County jail in Richland, Wash.

Supporters offered to cover his bail, but he refused to give his real name and other personal information needed to process his release.

Interviewed from his cell, he said he does not counsel people not to pay taxes.

"But I've said this: If I'm speaking I say don't believe because I say it. Check it out for yourself. Then if you believe it you act on it on your own."

Offer Special Events To Mark Nation's Past

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — From the peaceful hum of a country fair to the thunder of Civil War cannons, Greenfield Village will celebrate America's past with a series of special events this year.

Greenfield Village and adjacent Henry Ford Museum is the nation's largest indoor-outdoor museum complex. The village contains nearly 100 historic buildings moved here from various parts of the United States to show how Americans once lived and worked.

The "Country Fair of Yesterday" May 15-18 will re-create the events and music of an old-fashioned country fair. There will be parades, band concerts, variety shows, animal and craft exhibits and rides that include Model-Ts, a steam train, carriages and the sternwheeler Suwanee.

Hundreds of authentically costumed sharpshooters will participate in muzzle-loading competition at the "Muzzle Loaders Festival" June 21-22. Parades will feature Civil War period marching bands and members of various Muzzleloader clubs dressed in elaborate period uniforms. Civil War cannon demonstrations and craft exhibits will highlight the weekend.

The "Old Time Summer Festival," June 28-Aug. 31, will mark a return to the simple pleasures of band concerts at an old-fashioned bandstand, a turn-of-the-century entertainment center with restored merry-go-round, stage shows and musical presentations in the Town Hall, as well as steamboat rides and other entertainment.

A dozen fife and drum corps will gather for the "Fife and Drum Music Muster" July 4-6 to celebrate Independence Day. There will be daily parades through the village to the activities field, where there will be special formations and drills.

Another sort of muster, July 26-27, "The Antique Fire Apparatus Muster," will feature antique fire engines of every age and description. Fire companies will race to extinguish fires, engage in fire fighting and waterball contests and give hose-pumping demonstrations.

Greenfield Village will hold its first "Bluegrass Festival" Aug. 16-17, with several name Bluegrass groups performing on traditional mountain instruments. Demonstrations will be given on violin and dulcimer making.

The "Old Car Festival" featuring more than 250 vintage cars from 1900 to 1925 and drivers in appropriate motoring attire, will take place Sept. 6-7. Drivers will compete in contests to challenge their motoring skills and the condition of their cars. In addition to parades of the antique vehicles, high-wheel bicycles will be ridden through the village and Dixieland bands will perform.

A traditional end-of-harvest celebration will be re-created during the village's "Autumn Harvest Weekend" Oct. 3-5. Events will include square dancing, antique threshing machines in operation, an old-time tractor pull and engine demonstrations by the Early Engine Club.

The year will close with "Christmas at the Village" Dec. 6-Jan. 4. Candles, holly

Fossils Offer Varied Clues

By BILL GREER
Associated Press Writer
EL PASO, Texas (AP) —

Aroused from their grazing by a pursuing predator, perhaps a saber-tooth tiger, a herd of llamas panicked and rushed headlong across the landscape and over a 50-foot ledge to a quick death on the rocks below.

The bones of the llamas remained undisturbed in the ravine for approximately 15,000 years until recently, when a scientist from the University of Texas at El Paso began exploring the area, which is now southeastern New Mexico.

The scientist, Dr. Arthur H. Harris, believes that by identifying the animals present in the area 10,000-30,000 years ago, through excavation of their bones, it might be possible to roughly determine the weather conditions and ecology of the area.

Applying his work to the future, Harris says, "some believe we are headed into another ice age. What we can find out studying these fossils from the last ice age may tell us what we have to look forward to."

So Harris digs up bones from small birds and studies fossils of giant ground sloths, llamas, camels and horses that used to roam the far southwestern edge of the nation.

The quest led the professor of biological sciences studies to the bones of animals trapped in area caves.

Harris, 48, says, "We've been looking into what plants, animals and climate were like in the past 10,000 to 30,000 years. Most of the material we are working with comes from cave deposits in southern New Mexico and Texas."

"We are working particularly with deposits from Dry Cave, located about 15 miles west of Carlsbad, N.M."

Harris says he and his students have found more than a quarter of a million bones, bone fragments and teeth in area caves.

He explains how so many animals ended up as fossils in Dry Cave: "The way that cave lies, animals approaching from one direction came upon a vertical fall-off before they knew it. At the time these things were deposited there was a 30-to 50-foot sheer drop."

"They may have been paying attention to something that was chasing them, fallen into the fissure and been killed by the fall or trapped and unable to get out."

"A small herd of llamas all fell in at one time," he adds.

He says bones of small animals were left in the caves by predatory birds who regurgitated them.

Direct or indirect taxes. There's the rub.
Schiff says an earlier Supreme Court decision went to great pains to explain that a characteristic of indirect taxes is that they are avoidable — unlike direct taxes.
He contends the notion of giving income taxes an indirect form puts them in the category of business levies, which can be sidestepped.
Schiff also says the "income" mentioned in the 16th Amendment doesn't concern a worker's paycheck. Income refers to a gain or profit, he contends, much like the bottom line of a company's ledger.
He calls wages only an "exchange of labor for another good" which aren't taxable under the amendment.
And Schiff jumps to defend the argument about worthless dollars too, the same one that society in St. Louis spoke of. But when it comes to courtroom tax battles, he says it has been phased out in favor of constitutional claims.
Schiff says a it's true that a federal government all thumbs in handling the country's economy has managed to make the dollar worthless by removing its backing.
He says "we don't use (the idea) anymore, but it's still a good one."

Sunken Living Room Opens To Glassed Porch

By Jerry Bishop

Neat and contemporary in styling, this four bedroom home is dominated by its sunken living room and attached glassed-in porch.

The Torrance, a well-zoned design, also offers a distinctive sleeping wing, where each bedroom is given direct access to a full bath, and an informally geared family room with sliding glass doors to terrace.

Sleek exterior lines combine with an artful use of outdoor living space to create an appealing facade. Besides porch and terrace, the plan specifies a front courtyard that greets family and guests and leads to the foyer. Two closets furnish the foyer, which allows direct access to living and dining rooms.

The living room itself is an outstanding example of a well-planned formal area. Sunken and spacious, the room is heavily glassed at front and rear, with sliding glass doors linking it to an equally large porch.

The glassed-in porch promises a spot for soaking up the winter sun and suggests a showcase for plants as well. Sliding glass doors between porch and dining room increase possibilities for decorating formal living space with flowers and foliage.

Sandwiched between dining room and family room is the U-shaped kitchen, generously provided with cabinets, counter space, and a view of the terrace. The family room adjoins the terrace on one side and a full bath on another.

Set apart for privacy, the bedrooms are grouped around a central hallway. Four sizable bedrooms are allotted large closets, and each bedroom opens directly to a compartmented bath.

Full basement and double garage with storage area are included.

New Doors Are Opened In Remodeling Bathroom

By BARBARA MAYER AP Newsfeatures

According to national remodeling statistics, the bathroom is the second most likely room in the house, after the kitchen, to be remodeled.

But, bathrooms do not garner the same public attention as kitchens. Consequently, a consumer about to redo a bathroom may be ill-informed.

As one designer puts it: "Americans are still puritanical about their bathrooms. Any one who lavishes too much decorating attention on the bathroom is likely to be regarded as a bit of an oddball."

Nevertheless, continues Florence Perchuk, a kitchen and bath specialty designer in New York "bathrooms are at the stage kitchens were at 10 years ago." They are just beginning to interest consumers in a major way.

Specialists credit leisure-time activities for the change in attitude. As more Americans enjoy the benefits of exercise at health clubs, they also gain experience with whirlpool baths, steam rooms, saunas and physical-fitness equipment.

The major manufacturers who were at first slow to capitalize on consumer interest in home versions of health-club bath fixtures are beginning to catch on to the demand. They are introducing a much wider variety of products than used to be the case.

"Kohler, American Standard and Eljer, the three largest American manufacturers, all have whirlpool baths in their lines," said Jonas Weiner, a New York area plumbing wholesaler. Kohler's newest product, for example, is a tub which measures 7 by 9 feet and is 3 feet deep. Kohler's answer to the hot tub, it combines aeration and recirculation and can accommodate up to six persons at a time, said Weiner. The tub sells for about $3,600.

All new equipment incorporates new federal standards for water savings. But design trends are all over the lot, from reproductions of old fashioned, pull-chain toilets to streamlined new designs, he added.

Accessories also are on the rise with a large number of new vanities, medicine cabinets, lighting fixtures, hardware and wall coverings on display in bath-accessories outlets, home centers and plumbing-supply outlets.

Most authorities advise consumers in the market for a new bathroom to consult an expert before proceeding. A good place to go for a preliminary education is to one of the small number of wholesale bath and plumbing supply showrooms that are open to consumers.

One such is Best Plumbing in Westchester County, New York. Weiner, a principal of the firm, noted that consumers visiting the showroom have several options when it comes to installing a new bathroom or upgrading an existing one. A growing number plan to do it themselves. Others use the showroom browsing experience to gather ideas before dealing with a plumbing or remodeling contractor.

An ideal arrangement, said Weiner, is to gather ideas in the showroom and then have the work done by a kitchen and bath specialist.

As such a specialty designer, Florence Perchuk naturally favors this procedure. "It may add to the cost in some cases, but it also adds to the choices. You get more for your money by working with a creative designer and, over the long range, the cost may well come out about the same," she said.

Since the degree of design competence in the relatively new field of bathroom design varies widely, a consumer should be especially careful about choosing a designer. Referrals from friends and professional associations, careful checking of references and honesty about your budget and requirements are factors in choosing wisely, added Ms. Perchuk.

Sherie Wagner, a designer of luxurious bathrooms and a retailer of unusual bath fixtures, suggests that individuals remodeling a bath get a diagram or blueprint of their bath, locating existing plumbing fixtures and giving exact measurements in writing.

"Whether you use a consultant, contractor, designer or plumber, these measurements will be necessary for him to make recommendations. They will save time and money on the actual work," he said.

If you plan to do some or all of your own work, seek expert advice on building codes and installation requirements. It can prevent costly mistakes for the homeowner, added Wagner.

Another source for information on what's new in bathrooms is the manufacturers themselves.

"If I were a homeowner, I would get the names and addresses of the major manufacturers. I would write to each company for information on what is new and where their products can be seen," said Jonas Weiner.

GARDEN CLINIC

N.C. State Univ. Answers Timely Gardening Questions

Q. I can't grow onions larger than a golf ball. Any suggestions? (W.C., Raleigh)

A. Sounds like you have the wrong variety or you are not providing enough sunlight for the plants. Onions "bulb" on a given day length. If your garden is partially shaded, they may never get the light needed for bulbs to form. (George Hughes, extension horticulturist)

Q. When should I start spraying apple trees for insect protection? (M.R., Greensboro)

A. Apple trees should receive an oil spray in the dormant season anytime before green tissue appears. Sprays with malathion at pink bud stage, petal fall and two weeks later should provide relatively worm-free fruit. These sprays will help control mites, aphids and several worm species. Proper pruning and adequate fertilizer and water promote vigorous tree growth and aid in pest control. (K.A. Sorrensen, extension entomologist)

Q. When should strawberries be planted in the Charlotte area? (J.S., Charlotte)

A. Anytime after April 1, which is roughly the date of the latest spring frost. Albritton, Atlas and Apollo are the main varieties for commercial plantings in your area. Earlbelles, an earlier variety, has performed well but must be kept thinned to maintain yield and size. The very large fruited Titan is suggested for home use and U-pick operations. Apollo should be interplanted with other varieties for pollination. (Barclay Poling, extension horticulturist)

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG AP Newsfeatures

Food costs being what they are, vegetable gardens have been getting more attention than at any time since the Victory Gardens of World War II.

As gardens become more numerous, so do greenhouses, which permit the growth of vegetables and fruits at any time of the year regardless of location. One of the most interesting ideas in this connection is a solar-heated greenhouse with a geodesic dome — developed at Fordham University by a research team with a grant from the National Science Foundation.

After two years of operation, the dome has withstood the test of harsh weather and the materials have proven their durability. The structure has served as the prototype of greenhouse domes in Washington and New York.

The director of the research team, John Fontanetta, and the assistant public-relations director of Fordham, Al Heller, have come up with a book that tells, in much detail, how to construct this kind of greenhouse, in this case one that is 11½ feet high and 23 feet in diameter.

They say that no special skills or tools are required and that, with the help of a few friends and several hours of organized effort, the structure can be built for less than $500.

They think the greenhouse should be located as near as possible to your house, that areas with poor drainage and steep slopes should be avoided, that places with wind barriers on the dome's upwind side are preferable, and that the site should have maximum exposure to the rays of the sun, ideally one with a totally unobstructed southern exposure.

Let's Talk Real Estate

by Connally Branch

A mortgage is usually terminated by payment and satisfaction. When the debtor renders payment of the debt, he is entitled to have the mortgage marked "satisfied in full", recorded and the mortgage papers returned. The mortgagee can personally satisfy the mortgage of record or may do so by executing a satisfaction piece and duly recording it to show that the debt has been paid. Where an old mortgage is on record and no payment or demand for payment has been made for more than 20 years, an interested party can petition the court for an order satisfying the mortgage of record.

Link Vision To Stress

FOREST GROVE, Ore. (AP) — Pacific University College of Optometry researchers took glasses away from nearsighted patients and, they report, these people could see better without their glasses, for short periods of time.
 Stress management techniques were used in the effort to improve the patients' vision. This fact is significant for many of the estimated 20 to 50 million nearsighted people in the world today, says Dr. Rocky Kaplan, the Pacific professor in charge of the research.
 "It points up that there is a strong relationship between the body and mind tension," he says. "Stress makes people see less clearly."
 Kaplan's research has used stress management techniques of taped suggestions of general relaxation, hypnosis, yoga techniques, visual feedback and vision training to help nearsighted people see significantly better with weaker eyeglasses.
 Pacific University College of Optometry fourth-year students working with Kaplan are Hal Hage, St. Paul, Minn.; Alan Homestead, Seattle, and Jim Ruch, Britton, S.D.
 Kaplan and the students are continuing their research with some 30 patients. They are investigating whether nearsighted patients can be taught to see more clearly for longer and longer periods while wearing weaker and weaker lens prescriptions.

For the third year in a row, Rose has placed first on the annual High School Mathematics Exam. Rose had the highest combined score of the over 200 high schools in the state which took the test in March.
 The top five scorers from Rose were Fred Parham, Mark Grossnickle, Susan Vick, Alayna Keller and Jack Mann. Parham and Grossnickle scored high enough on the test to qualify for the National Math Test to be administered in May. Nationwide only 100 students qualify to compete at this level.
 The HOSA Club along with the March of Dimes sponsored an Easter egg hunt Saturday at the school. Childred ages one through 13 were invited to participate at a cost of 50 cents each, which was given to the March of Dimes.
 Practice for cheerleading tryouts will begin Thursday, April 10, after school. Students trying out for either the junior varsity or varsity squads will learn two cheers, four chants and a pom-pom routine. Tryouts will be held after two weeks of practice. Eleven cheerleaders and two alternates will be chosen for each squad.
 Senior Susan Vick has received a Carswell Scholarship to study at Wake Forest University.

Conserving Oil At No Cost

WASHINGTON (AP) — Conserving oil — and money — often can be accomplished at no cost to the homeowner.
 Simple measures, such as turning back the thermostat, making sure the windows are tightly shut, and securely closing the chimney flue all can help bring down each month's heating bill, according to the National Oil Jobbers Council.
 The association for the country's heating-oil dealers and distributors says that, for example, lowering the thermostat just 10 degrees over an eight-hour period each day can save a minimum of 8 percent on the fuel bill.

Alzheimer's Disease Aided

By KARREN MILLS
 Associated Press Writer
 MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Dave Byrne worked in a bank. He knew numbers the way most people know words.
 But in early 1977 he began making mistakes when figuring the balance in the family checkbook. A year later he, his wife and their two children, took a trip to Colorado. Byrne remembers nothing of the vacation.
 Byrne, 43, has Alzheimer's disease, an irreversible and progressive degeneration of the brain that impairs the intellect of an estimated 500,000 to 1.5 million adults in the United States. Researchers don't know what causes it.
 Byrne's wife, Madelon, a registered nurse, thought her husband was having a nervous breakdown when he showed symptoms of Alzheimer's disease.
 Doctors diagnosed the problem in late 1978, telling his family to "live with it," Mrs. Byrne says.
 "They didn't tell me what was ahead of me. He would get obsessions. He'd shave nonstop for two or three hours. The house had to be neat and clean but he wouldn't remember to bathe. I had to be a 24-hour policeman."
 "What really threw me was the loss of judgment and reasoning."
 Byrne was admitted to the Veterans Administration hospital in St. Cloud last May, a hard decision for the family.
 "I felt myself losing control. I had to consider the kids and Dave. If I had ended up in the hospital with a nervous breakdown they would have had no one," Mrs. Byrne says.
 Feelings of isolation and frustration plague Alzheimer's disease victims and their families.
 The Alzheimer's and Related Diseases Association, formed to help them, has major offices in Bloomington, Minn., and New York City, and chapters in California, Washington, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts, and in Toronto, Canada.
 Bobbie Glaze, of Edina, Minn., and Hilda Ridgdon, of Bloomington, whose husbands are both afflicted with Alzheimer's disease, helped found the association.

"We're trying to provide the family support that is so necessary. The problems go on for the family after the person is in an institution," Mrs. Glaze says. "None of us can do a thing for that spouse that is affected. But we can do things for each other."

Grandson Led Class

The grandson of a Greenville resident was recently named Valedictorian at the Baylor School at Chattanooga, Tenn.
 George Hadley Callaway, grandson of Mrs. Emily Moye Hadley and great-grandson of Mrs. G. B. W. Hadley of Greenville, received the highest academic honors in the 1980 class. He is completing three years at the eighty-seven year old college preparatory school and will deliver the valedictory during the commencement program at the school on May 31.
 Callaway has been president of the Round Table, the oldest and most prestigious organization at the school, a member of the Honor Council, editor of the "Notes," the student paper, member of Sigma Mu, and a dormitory proctor. He spent spring vacation in mid-March in the Virgin Islands with a special marine biological program.
 Callaway plans to attend the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, where he will be a Morehead Scholar, a distinction he won late February.

Mormon Church Marking Its 150th Anniversary

By PETER GILLINS
SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — During its first 150 years, the Mormon Church survived attacks by angry mobs, the U.S. Army, the Congress, civil rights leaders and liberated women. The Mormons did more than survive. Their numbers grew from six members on April 6, 1830, to 4.3 million members at the church's sesquicentennial celebration this year. Once located mostly in Utah and surrounding states, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints now has 12,000 congregations in 81 countries. It has a force of 30,000 missionaries in the field seeking new members. They converted 200,000 people in 1979. "Our mission is to teach the gospel to every nation, kindred, tongue and people," said Gordon B. Hinckley, a member of the church's Quorum of 12 Apostles. Hinckley believes the church has a universal appeal because of its strong emphasis on family life and because its basic doctrines "challenge people to rise above their circumstances and improve themselves." "Innate in all men and women is a feeling of wanting to be close — father and mother, husband and wife, parents and children — to have ties, associations, anchors to which they can cling in times of stress and trouble," he said. The church has a highly structured social organization, in which members call each other "brother" and "sister."

The faith promotes a healthy lifestyle. Members are advised not to drink alcohol, coffee, tea or other drinks with caffeine. They are told not to smoke and to eat meat sparingly. As a result, Mormons have a cancer rate that is lower than the national average. Athletics are encouraged. Most Mormon chapels and stake centers have gymnasiums attached to them. The religion also demands financial sacrifice. Members are asked to pay 10 percent of their gross income in tithing. Hinckley is in charge of organizing a Mormon 150th birthday celebration to continue for six months from April 6, the date in 1830 that the church was founded by Joseph Smith, a charismatic New York farm boy who claimed to have had visions from God, Jesus Christ, John the Baptist and other Biblical figures. In a symbolic demonstration of the church's progress, the celebration was to open with a live satellite broadcast, featuring Mormon President Spencer W. Kimball, from a restored log farmhouse in Fayette, N.Y., where Smith and five followers formally incorporated the religion.

Smith attracted thousands of converts with his new religion, which he said was the restored "true gospel." The gospel was based in part on the Book of Mormon, a history of early America which Smith said he translated from a set of gold plates given to him by an angel. The book claims Indians are descendants of a tribe of Israelites who sailed to North America before the birth of Christ. The clannish Mormons of the 1800s had some powerful enemies. Smith was tarred and feathered in Ohio and a Mormon settlement of 17 people was massacred in Missouri. Smith was ultimately shot to death by an Illinois mob. His followers, under the leadership of Brigham Young, fled west from the Mormon city of Nauvoo, Ill., on the banks of the Mississippi River. Young chose to settle in a desert wilderness which later became Utah — an area passed over by other western pioneers. But the religious community found no peace. The U.S. government sent troops to police the Mormons who insisted on practicing polygamy in their new home. Congress passed the Edmunds-Tucker Act to confiscate their property and jail their leaders until the plural marriage practice was abandoned in 1890. The church entered the 20th Century nearly broke. But it slowly began to rebuild and to place more emphasis on foreign missionary work. In 1930, the church's centennial year, Mormons numbered 672,000. Twenty years later, it reached 1 million members. But the 1950s brought new problems. Civil rights leaders and other religions condemned the church for excluding blacks from its all-male, non-professional priesthood, which was given to all other men in good standing. Also, as the religion expanded into third world nations, the church discovered that many new converts, had mixed racial backgrounds, which technically disqualified them from church leadership positions and banned them from taking the church's most sacred endowments. The color ban ended in 1978 when Kimball announced a revelation from God opening the priesthood, and full church participation, to all "worthy males." But Kimball, 85, roused the ire of women's rights advocates by condemning the Equal Rights Amendment as a threat to morality and traditional family life. Mormon groups, following his counsel as church prophet, have waged political campaigns to defeat it in several state legislatures. The issue brought the church a lot of unfavorable publicity last year when local Mormon leaders in Virginia excommunicated Sonia Johnson, a Mormon ERA supporter who severely criticized the church's male patriarchy. Hinckley has been closely tied to church's anti-ERA campaign. He is one of four Mormon general authorities who make up the church's special affairs committee — a group which he said "tries to study and keep abreast" of political issues that could affect the religion. Pro-ERA groups have accused the committee of coordinating the church's attack on the amendment. Hinckley disagreed with that characterization. "We have done very little in telling local groups what to do or how to do it. We work on the principle taught by Joseph Smith — teach correct principles and let the people govern themselves." The Apostle doesn't believe the recent ERA flap will hinder the church's growth. "When you look at the things this church has been through in the past, it isn't going to be slowed down substantially or stopped by anything of that kind," he said. "The church will continue to grow and cover a much broader geographic spectrum." In addition to missionary work, the Mormons operate an educational system that includes 21,000-student Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah, and three smaller colleges, and dozens of local seminaries and religion institutes. They have a worldwide welfare system that requires people to work for the assistance they receive, if possible. The church operates welfare farms, canning factories and the Deseret Industries — a company which recycles clothing, furniture and other castaway items. They own a multi-million private business empire that includes a chain of radio and television stations, a newspaper, insurance and banking institutions, farms and ranches, office buildings and vast land holdings. Church income is a closely guarded secret. However, the Mormons paid cash when they recently built the $65 million ZCMI shopping mall in downtown Salt Lake City. N. Eldon Tanner, first counselor to Kimball and the church's chief financial officer, said the church dislikes paying interest. Broadcasting is an important part of the Mormons' effort to spread their religion. But unlike some evangelical groups which offer Sunday morning television sermons and which raise funds over the airwaves, the Mormons use a low-key approach. They broadcast world conference sessions twice a year, and every Sunday a religious program featuring the Mormon Tabernacle Choir is carried nationwide. Recently, the church has also produced in Hollywood a series of public affairs commercials for television and radio which stress the need to develop strong family ties. Two-thirds of the world's Mormons live in the U.S. and one-fourth of them — 1.06 million — live in Utah, a state which is 70 percent LDS. California has the next largest number of Latter-day Saints — 513,000, followed by Idaho 304,000, Arizona 173,000, and Washington 125,000. Vermont is the state with the smallest Mormon population, 1,400. After the United States, Mexico has the largest Mormon population, 247,000. Regular meeting attendance is about 42 percent churchwide, according to Don Lefevre, associate director of press relations for the church. Attendance among teen-agers and younger children is somewhat higher.

Twelve-Year War On Litterbugging Goes On

By KENNETH L. WHITING
SINGAPORE (AP) — A 12 year war against littering has turned Singapore into a municipal Mr. Clean, but there seem to be more litterbugs caught than ever. This paradox was reflected in record 1979 penalties imposed by local courts. About 10,000 people were fined almost $223,256 for littering last year. In 1978 more than 8,700 litterbugs were prosecuted, compared with 5,727 in the year before. Officials had no explanation for the apparent increase in littering. One said it could be due in part to increased enforcement in parks and other recreational areas where some 1,000 people were caught in the act last year. A crackdown on mobile litterbugs nabbed about 800 for tossing things from moving vehicles. First offenders may be fined as much as $233. A second offense maximum fine lightens the pocketbook by $466. The Keep-Singapore-Clean drive that got under way in 1968 has produced sparkling results. What was once one of the filthiest cities in Asia has been scrubbed, trimmed, painted, landscaped, decorated, beautified and made almost litter-free. The change seems dramatic to visitors who remember the old sights and smells. Generations of Singaporeans got rid of their rubbish by dumping it into streets, the harbor or vacant lots. The growing population — it's now 2.3 million — produced ever-larger piles of garbage and junk. Indiscriminate trash disposal and industrial pollution added to the mess and a tropical climate provided ideal conditions for the breeding of disease-carrying insects and bacteria. Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew's government gave top priority to the sprucing-up of this Chicago-size island republic. A carrot-and-stick campaign supervised by the health ministry was launched in 1968. Competitions were organized to select the cleanest factory. Cash prizes and commendations were awarded the most beautiful filling stations. Schools held poster contests. Newspapers gave prominent play to clean-up stories, educational films were screened on TV and spot radio announcements broadcast regularly. Bumper stickers and billboards, placards and posters pushed the message. Officials described the opening broadside as successful, but not enough to break the unclean habits of generations. The carrots were supplemented with sticks in the form of new legislation such as the environmental health bill, a quarantine law and the fines. The 228-square-mile country was divided into districts and smaller sectors for closer supervision by the environmental health department. The fleet of refuse trucks and mechanical streetsweepers was expanded. Trash is now collected from each household seven days a week. Main streets, traffic circles and parks are virtually spotless. The 5,500 litterbaskets seem to be everywhere. So do signs in four languages warning of the fine. When the government felt it was winning the fight against germs, garbage and pollution, officials said, attention was switched to beautification. Parks and public gardens were expanded and municipal grounds landscaped. Individual citizens were urged to grow decorative plants while the edges of streets, road dividers and traffic circles were turned into flower beds. "It may be too much to ask the Singaporean to emulate the little old Japanese lady in the well-worn traveler's tale whose civic pride prompted her to pick up a cigarette butt thrown by a tourist on a clean city sidewalk," the Straits Times said in a recent editorial. "But a greater regard for the environment is something that we will need increasingly more of ... The sooner good social habits become the norm, the better."

College Host To Juniors

Four high school juniors became Peace College students recently during the college's annual Visitation Weekend. Attending the program from this area were Kim Harrell of 1403 Evergreen Dr., Rose Jackson of 1310 Sonata St., and Elizabeth Ann Wainright of Courtney Square Apts., all of Greenville and Susan Rose Carson of Rives St., Bethel. The visitors toured the junior college campus and lived in the residence hall for 24 hours. They mingled with students, attended a class, and enjoyed recreational activities including tennis, basketball, and swimming. They attended a vespers service led by Chaplain George A. Thomas in historic Dinwiddie Chapel and were later entertained by the Peace College Porpoise Club directed by Mrs. Nancy Adamczyk. The visiting juniors were officially welcomed to campus by Abbie Young of Hamlet, president of the Peace Honor Court; Catherine Curtis, Carolyn Cogdell, and Meg Revelle, Admissions staff and Dr. S. David Frazier, Peace president.

Jamboree

The 1981 Boy Scout National Jamboree will be held at Camp A.P. Hill Army Base in Northern Virginia in July, 1981. According to Pitt District Chairman George S. Attmore, there are only nine positions allocated for Pitt County Scouts. A Scout must be less than 18 and more than 12 years of age at the time of the Jamboree to qualify. Other requirements and financial needs can be learned by calling Attmore at Planters Bank, 752-7173, during working hours or at 756-4769 evenings.

SUING PRESIDENT
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is being sued by the citizen lobbying group Common Cause, which charges he has failed to set up energy-saving programs required by law.

Power Lines Turn Into A Real Issue

By ROBERT L. SHAFFER

Associated Press Writer MIDDLEFIELD, Ohio (AP)

—Crist Miller unhitched his bay horse from his black buggy, put the horse in the barn and gazed out across a long slope of farmland to the creek winding through the valley.

"It's going to take away the look of the farm and the way we do things," he said softly.

Miller was searching for words to explain the impact a proposed high-power transmission line would have on him and his Amish neighbors — people who still live much the way their ancestors did when they settled in this corner of northeastern Ohio a century ago.

The proposed 52-mile transmission line is to carry electricity from a nuclear power plant being built at North Perry on Lake Erie to an Ohio Edison Co. station in Rootstown, a few miles east of Akron.

The line has become a high-voltage issue among residents of three counties, and one sociologist has testified it could erode the Amish way of life.

The opponents have been supported by the three county governments.

State officials have scheduled further hearings before finalizing the path of the power line.

"I've never seen the Amish people with their hackles raised as they have over this," said Uri Byler, superintendent of the Amish community's 22 schools.

"Usually they take something like this in an indifferent manner."

The bearded Byler, 65, wearing blue work clothes and a black wide-brimmed hat, came out of the one-story frame schoolhouse tucked behind his home to talk to a reporter.

He said the tall power line towers would intrude on an Amish community already pressured by industrial expansion from Cleveland suburbs to the west.

"There is no more land available for farming. It's become very expensive," said Byler.

"In the past 10 years about 100 families have moved away."

Despite the exodus, the Amish community of about 6,400 is holding its own, Byler said.

"Fortunately, the young people are getting married faster than they move away. They're very prolific."

However, rising taxes and living expenses have forced many Amish to leave their farms for jobs in shops and factories, he said.

"They have no choice but to take the lunch bucket and go to the shop."

"Forty-five years ago, when I was starting, 95 percent were farmers," he said. "Now it's a lot less."

He said he doesn't like to see the young people going into the factories "because of the atmosphere." For the same reason, the Amish maintain their own schools.

"We don't think they (public schools) fit our way of life," he said. "We try to stay on the farm. What we want our children to be is not what the public schools want them to be."

The Amish community raised about $6,000 through a bake sale and auction last fall to help support the organization fighting the transmission line.

Prime mover of the Committee to Preserve Our Community is Middlefield tire dealer Charles White, who owns a scenic parcel of land near the proposed route of the line "with those 15-story erector-set towers."

White, 38, says the group is not "against electricity" but believes the existing four transmission lines in the region are adequate. After studying information from electrical engineers, "We just say they don't need a fifth transmission line. And if they did need one, they could put it in one of the existing corridors," he said.

The Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co. and Ohio Edison say the fifth line is needed as a backup in case of power failures and that the existing corridors aren't wide enough to accommodate the added capacity. The proposed 346,000-volt line would require at least a 150-foot-wide corridor.

No telephone or electric lines are connected to Amish homes such as Miller's, where he was born 51 years ago and where he and his wife raised seven sons and a daughter.

Pointing with his hand, Miller showed where the proposed high-power line would run through a neighboring "sugar bush" (where maple syrup is made), past a pond he dug a few years ago, down across one of his fields and across a marshy area where he says hundreds of wild geese feed every summer.

Fonda Stars As Oldest Graduate

"The Oldest Living Graduate" will be telecast live by NBC Monday, April 7 (9 to 11 p.m.), from The Meadows School of the Arts at Southern Methodist University in Dallas, Texas. The widely acclaimed stage play was written by the late Preston Jones.

This is the first in a series of presentations of important contemporary plays developed at regional theaters around the country.

Henry Fonda headlines a stellar cast as the oldest — and saltiest — living graduate of a Texas military academy. He's outlived his many friends, but not his cherished memories.

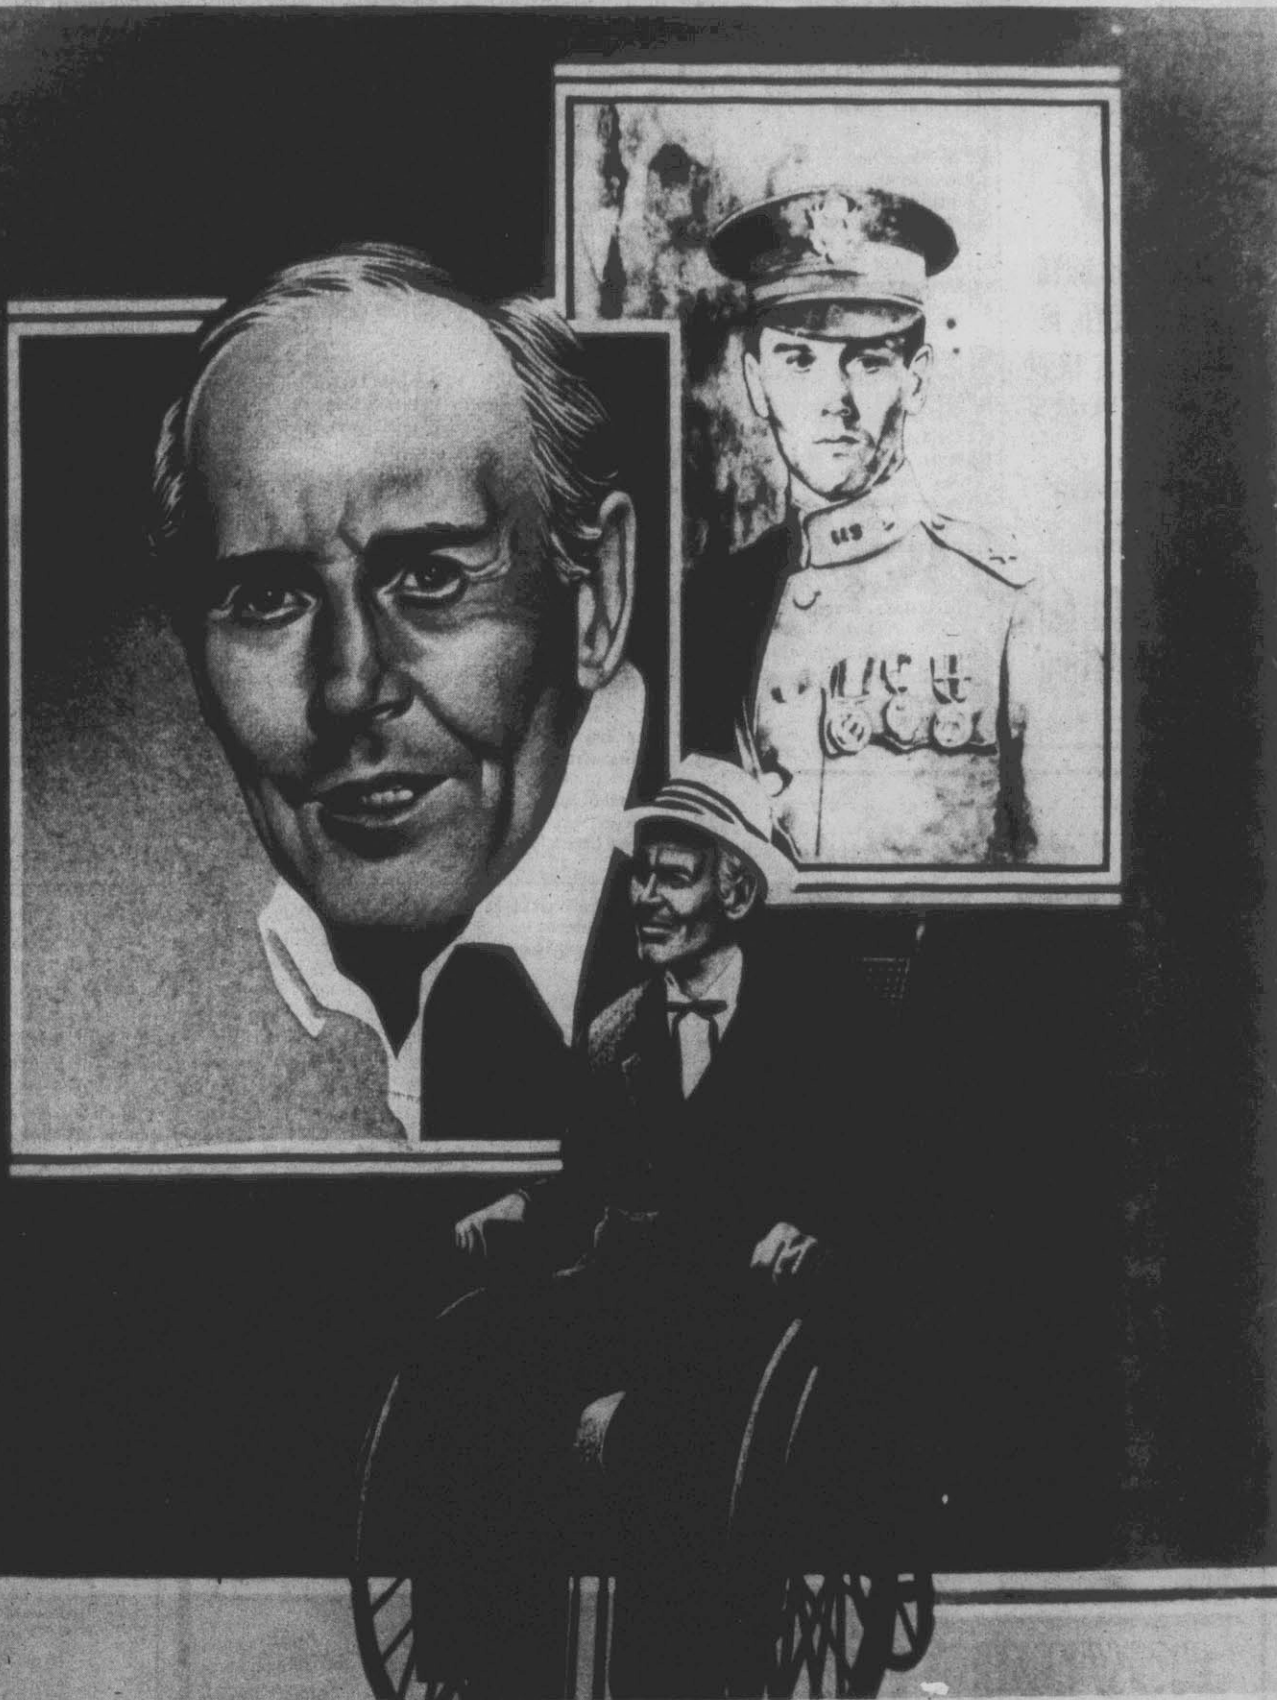

1962 in Bradleyville, a small, dead West Texas town in the middle of a big, dead West Texas prairie between Abilene and San Angelo. The new highway has bypassed it, and now the world is trying to.

Col. J.C. Kinkaid, a 73-year-old World War I veteran who is confined to a wheelchair, lives on a ranch with his son, Floyd, and daughter-in-law, Maureen. Often cantankerous, but blessed with a gentle soul, the Colonel is the oldest living graduate of the Mirabeau B. Lamar Military Academy in Galveston.

Floyd, who's already wealthy, and Clarence Sickenger, one of the richest men in town, have concocted a scheme to build a summer resort on property still controlled by the Colonel. When Floyd learns the military academy wants to come to Bradleyville to honor his father as 'the oldest living graduate,' he sees the event as an opportunity to promote his land-development deal. The Colonel, however, will have nothing to do with it, and refuses to hand over his land to Floyd. In the end, the clash between father and son becomes a poignant struggle between Floyd's commercial vision and the Colonel's cherished memories.

Preston Jones, who died last fall, once said the initial idea for "The Oldest Living Graduate" came while watching the evening news on television.

"The story was about how a long-established private school in Dallas was moving from its original campus dating back from the 1800s. The local newscaster introduced the oldest living graduate of the school. I said to my wife, 'My gosh, that's kind of sad — the oldest living graduate. I mean, there was nobody else around.'"

FONDA AS A PROUD TEXAN — Henry Fonda stars as the oldest, and saltiest, graduate of a Texas military academy, in "The Oldest Living Graduate," which will be presented live on NBC-TV from Dallas, Texas, April 7 (9-11 p.m.).

A Special On Soccer

For many Americans bred on football and basketball, the sport of soccer remains a mysterious foreign game. But it's not nearly as foreign now, however, and its popularity has grown to the point that there is now a league in this country. ABC Sports will televise a special that takes a look at the players, personalities and game action that have helped make soccer the fastest growing team sport in the United States Sunday, April 6 (2-3 p.m.).

The funny thing about football, basketball and soccer is that all three sports have a great deal in common, and soccer is intrinsically a much easier game to comprehend. The basic rules are easy to understand: 1 - The ball may not be touched with the hands; 2 - it must be kicked or headed; 3 - A ball kicked or headed into the goal results in a score.

More confusing is the role of the 22 soccer players on the field (11 from each team) who may appear to those unfamiliar with the sport as though they are scurrying around the field without rhyme or reason. Like basketball and football players, each soccer player has a definitive role to play. It is not by luck or divine right that a goal is scored, just as it is not by chance that a basket is made or a football is taken into the end zone. Teamwork is the name of the game for all three of these sports.

While the positions of soccer players, such as striker, midfielder, center fullback, sweeper, etc., may be uncommon terms to the American sports fan, the functions and duties of these players are quite similar to positions played in basketball and football.

A key position is a "striker". Position. A "striker" fills the middle of the front line and the offense revolves around him.

Another position is an "attacking midfielder" which is comparable to the scoring forward in basketball.

The job of the "center midfielder" is to distribute the ball to the "striker" and "forwards," and a "center fullback" anchors the middle on defense and goes head-to-head with the opposition's "striker."

The "center fullback" must be physical and able to dish out punishment, and the "sweeper" is the last line of defense, much like a free safety in football.

The similarities are there, and if one understands basketball and football, soccer becomes easy.

Pluto Gets Into Trouble

A day in the life of Mickey's sidekick, Pluto, is traced in a hour-long cartoon special on "Disney's Wonderful World" (Sunday, April 6, 7 p.m., on NBC).

Pluto runs into such unlikely characters as an ill-tempered bulldog, a slaphappy seal and a flock of baby chicks. Using all the cunning he can muster, Pluto proceeds to thwart these terrible foes.

In one scene Pluto, portraying Mickey Mouse's butler, is given 10 cents to buy a Sunday newspaper. En route, Pluto runs into several problems when he first loses the dime down a street grating, but manages to recover it with the use of a piece of bubble gum. Then he lands in a mud puddle.

When Pluto tries to steal an oversize bone from a sleeping bulldog, the two cause chaos at a carnival. But Pluto emerges victorious with the bone.

Returning with his bone, Pluto is amazed to find a score of eggs hatching in his kennel. Deciding that Pluto must be their real mother, the chicks follow him around, much to Mom's dismay. Pluto is attacked by the rooster, loses the battle, but wins the continued affection of the chicks who lovingly follow him into his kennel.

Pluto joins Mickey down at the beach for an afternoon of relaxation but finds many unwanted distractions. First a clam devours Pluto's weiner sandwich. Then, while trying to play ball, a baby seal comes by. In an effort to get rid of the pest who's ruining his fun, he chases the seal into the water. There he meets up with a little octopus, who takes a liking to Pluto and decides to wrap his arms around him and keep him under water as company. Much to Pluto's relief, the seal comes to his aid and helps get him back on shore.

When Mickey has trouble with a greedy seagull who steals the fish he plans on using for bait, Pluto gallantly comes to Mickey's defense. But the gull has a few friends of his own and they proceed to try to get rid of Mickey and Pluto.

As the show ends, Mickey and Pluto disappear into the distance, still enjoying the sunny side of life.

"The Ten Commandments," Cecil B. DeMille's massive film spectacle, returns as The ABC Sunday Night Movie, April 6 (7 to 11:30 p.m.). The story of Moses and the exodus from Egypt is one of the most popular box office movies of all time and is still among the highest rated movies on television.

Charlton Heston stars as Moses. Yul Brynner is cast as Pharaoh, Anne Baxter is Queen Nefretiri, Edward G. Robinson is overseer of the slaves, and Yvonne DeCarlo portrays Moses' wife.

Others in the cast of more than 25,000 are Debra Paget, John Derek, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Nina Foch, Martha Scott, Judith Anderson and Vincent Price.

The screenplay, more voluminous than many major novels, was edited by the Chief Rabbi of the British Empire. It is based on the study of the King James and Douay versions of the Holy Scriptures, and the "Pentateuch and Haftorahs." The Koran, the Mishnah and the works of Philo, Josephus and Eusebius were searched to fill in the 30-year period of Moses' life that is omitted in the book of Exodus.

Filed against natural backgrounds on location in Egypt, the film traces the story of Moses, from the time his mother set him afloat on the Nile. It continues through his years as a young general in the Pharaoh's army, to his betrayal and exile. Finally, his deliverance of the Israelites and his receiving of God's Commandments is depicted.

The dramatization of Moses' life presents such spectacular sequences as the plagues, the building of an Egyptian treasure city, the parting of the Red Sea, the Burning Bush and the reception of the Ten Commandments on Mount Sinai.

It took three years and more than $1,000,000 of the film's mammoth budget to execute the extraordinary Red Sea sequence. The fearsome spectacle of the army engulfed by towering walls of raging water was made possible by the technical virtuosity of Academy Award-winner John F. Fulton, one of Hollywood's most gifted special effects geniuses.

"THE TEN COMMANDMENTS," featuring Charlton Heston's monumental portrayal of Moses, returns to television when ABC-TV presents a repeat telecast on Sunday, April 6 (7-11:30 p.m.).

Location shooting began on Oct. 14, 1954, in Egypt. It followed the path of Moses across the Red Sea, the Wilderness of Shur and the Wilderness of Sin, to the top of the Mount of Moses in the Sinai ranges where Moses received God's laws. Production work in Hollywood extended well into 1956.

After its original showings the following year, the Biblical epic was released to theaters again in 1966, several years after the death of DeMille. It first aired on television in 1973.

One Of The Stars

Monte Markham will be one of the stars of Walt Disney's "The Ghosts of Buxley Hall." The two-hour comedy will be presented on NBC's "Disney's Wonderful World."

'Playhouse' Airs Miniseries

Honny Cox stars in "One Last Ride," a five-part miniseries to be broadcast this week (April 7-11, 4 to 4:30 p.m. each day) on "The CBS Afternoon Playhouse." He's portraying a former All-Around rodeo champion who is suddenly confronted with the necessity of raising the 10-year-old son he once deserted.

Co-starring are David Hollander and Andrew Duggan. When Tracy Gibbs receives word that the wife he deserted soon after they were married has died, he must claim and take care of the young son he's never met. But Tracy is a hard-drinking itinerant rodeo clown and hardly prepared for this responsibility. Once a rodeo 'great,' he's now a 'has been' and the last thing he wants — or needs — is a youngster as a sidekick. Similarly, the last thing his son, Ben (Hollander), wants is to live with a father he doesn't know, especially one who left him and his mother.

When the two meet, Ben's blatant hostility triggers feelings of guilt in Tracy. And these are compounded by the fact that Tracy doesn't even know the boy's name.

Reluctantly, Ben joins his father on the rodeo circuit. Then, through a mutual need for love and understanding, the two slowly establish a rapport. But Ben's real respect for his father doesn't develop until a wealthy rancher, Big Ed Morgan (Duggan), offers Tracy a job that helps him revive his self-respect.

Three years ago, 10-year-old David Hollander played Ronny Cox's son in another television production, "Tales of the Unexpected," so the pair were old chums before production on "One Last Ride" began.

David's a friendly, happy-go-lucky fellow, and when he's not before the cameras, he attends the Saticoy Elementary School in North Hollywood, Calif. Since his IQ is 149, he's enrolled in the Highly Gifted Program. The young boy is also a member of Fellows of the Ellis B. Leakey Foundation — which promotes research in anthropology, which, of course, is the reason he's a member of the Fellowship.

Castle Was 'Centrally' Located

The cast of ABC-TV's "Ryan's Hope" went on location in frigid weather to tape sequences taking place in an old turreted castle overlooking craggy rocks and a shimmering lake.

No trip to faraway, remote places was required, however. The popular daytime series has a contemporary plot set in New York City. And producer Ellen Barrett chose Belvedere Castle in Central Park, which was built in 1869 as a lookout and shelter. Almost from the time of its construction, however, the tower has served as a weather station. While the building has fallen into disrepair and efforts are being made to restore it, sensitive equipment in the tower is still being used to measure such factors as the temperature and wind velocity.

The scenes filmed involved the escape of Prince Albert, a gorilla, during daylight hours and in the evening. "Our hardest battle was the cold," explained Barrett. "Another challenge was moving television equipment to Belvedere Castle along a single, narrow access road."

Behind The Scenes

A few years ago, Randi Oakes was living in New York, enjoying the luxuries of a successful modeling career.

But one day she realized that she no longer wanted to live in Gotham or continue her modeling career. So she just quit and decided to pursue a career as an actress.

Now she's co-starring, with Erik Estrada and Larry Wilcox as Officer Bonnie Clark on NBC-TV's "CHIPS."

"From a very young age I wanted to be a model," Randi says, in the privacy of her mobile dressing room just outside the sound stage of the series at MGM Studios.

"I wanted to go into modeling because it seemed the easiest thing for me to do, and it was the most available to me. Eventually, I went to New York where I worked for five years:

"Then one day I quit modeling and said to myself, 'It's time that I did something fun,' and I moved to California the next day.

"I'd studied modeling for about seven years and things were going very well for me in New York," she explained, "but I couldn't see myself doing it forever. Finally, I had to make a decision on what I was going to do with my life.

"Well, obviously, I'm not one to make slow decisions," she says, with a delightful laugh. "I mean, you're just taking up your time if you can't come to a definite decision."

In making hers, Randi relocated to Los Angeles and while she did accept some modeling assignments to support herself, she concentrated on her acting career. The decision and the hard work led to her current role.

Olivia Cole Stars

"There are stories you always dream will be dramatized," said Olivia Cole, "but I never really had much hope that 'The Sky Is Gray' would be." Much to her delight, Cole was proven wrong. And she portrays the lead character in the PBS adaptation of Ernest Gaines' tale, presented as part of The American Short Story series, Monday, April 7 (9:00 p.m.).

"I've loved that story for a long time," Cole continued. "My husband and I first came across it in an anthology of 'Negro Short Stories' edited by Langston Hughes."

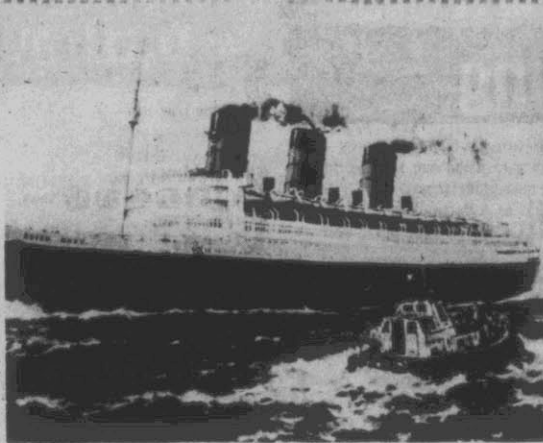

What made it memorable? "The central character, Octavia — because of circumstances, she's forced to become both mother and father to her young son," Cole continued. "That means she must be strong enough to on occasion override her feminine sensibilities, to do what she doesn't want to do, in order to teach him to grow."

Although the story's theme is as contemporary as an urban ghetto, Gaines, who also wrote "The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman," set in the 1940s in rural Louisiana. Octavia is a struggling sharecropper. One day her son James (James Bond III) develops a severe toothache. Octavia takes him to town, but fails to make an appointment with the dentist. As the two endure an interminable wait on the windswept streets and in the dentist's office, James is exposed to a microcosm of black and white society. Through these encounters, and under Olivia's stern tutelage, he absorbs invaluable lessons on pride, charity and dignity.

Gaines was on hand for part of the filming of his story, which gave Cole a rare opportunity to discuss her character with its creator. "I had long chats with him about Octavia, during which he corroborated things that the director and I had seen in the character. Although she has to fulfill two roles, Octavia is above everything a woman. Not a man, a woman. And it costs her."

Talks with the author aside, was it difficult for a native New Yorker like Cole to prepare for the role of a Deep South woman of the soil?

'Superliners' Is Nostalgic Voyage

Sleek. Majestic. The size of four Waldorf Astorias side by side. Floating palaces for the elite, troop carriers for the armed forces and crowded quarters for millions of immigrants. These were the great transatlantic liners, phenomenal human feats of engineering. Now, the future of the last of these great ships, the Queen Elizabeth 2, is threatened by rapidly rising fuel and maintenance costs. Sadly, the ambiance and elegance of a wondrous era will exist only in memory.

National Geographic cameras go abroad the Queen Elizabeth 2 and create a memorable voyage of romance and glory, and sometimes tragedy, in "The Superliners: Twilight of an Era." (Monday, April 7 at 8:00 p.m. on PBS).

From sail to steam, the great ships evolved from steady advances in technology and design. Competition intensified among rival nations, especially Britain, Germany, France, and Italy. Size was one measure of supremacy, the other was speed.

The Cunard Line's Mauretania reflected an electric elegance; the French Line's France boasted sweeping staircases, marble fountains and extensive gilded paneling. Usually, the maiden voyages of the great ships were speed runs with national prestige and commercial fortune staked on the outcome.

The era of the 'Queen' began in 1934 with the launching of the Queen Mary, which the British hoped would provide keen competition against France's Normandie, launched in 1932. Then came the Queen Elizabeth, christened in 1938, larger than the Queen Mary and outweighing the Normandie. But, when war broke out in 1939, the mighty Queen Elizabeth lay still unfinished. At Winston Churchill's urging, she was rushed to completion and sent to the United States to join her royal sister. For a few weeks the three greatest ships in the world lay side by side in New York Harbor. The film retells one of the greatest disasters of marine history when the Normandie burned and capsized at her Hudson River wharf in 1942.

Soon the Queens were brought into the war and served as troopships. The Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth transported some million-and-a-half troops to and from combat zones around the world. On many voyages more than 15,000 personnel were jammed aboard. Other times the Queens carried the wounded, war brides and babies.

The postwar years were boom times for shipping. Cruises sold out six months in advance. Two new superliners, the France and the United States, were launched.

Michele Will Tell

Q: Who was the actress who played Sara on "The Edge of Night"? She wound up as Mike Karr's first wife. VIRGINIA, IN WILMINGTON, N.C.

A: Gosh! That's going 'way, 'way back — to the very beginning of 'Edge.' Teal Ames was the actress who played Sara Lane when the series premiered in 1956. Teal left the show in 1961, moved to Chico, Calif., and joined a group devoted to the cause of peace and organic foods (!). A couple of years later, she married Chico businessman William Nichols.

Q: Several years ago I read that Ron Ely had drowned. But now I read that he's taking Burt Parks' place as host of the Miss America Pageant. What's going on? B. LEE, WILMINGTON, N.C.

A: About five years ago, a rumor circulated that Ron Ely had drowned in a swimming pool while filming a movie in Europe. Obviously, it was wrong! Ron's alive, well, and looking forward to traveling to New Jersey for the pageant this August. Q: Is Dennis Weaver married? If so, please tell me his wife's name? Also, how can I write to him? C. ARRINGTON, ENFIELD, N.C.

A: Dennis married his college sweetheart, Gerry Stowell, in 1945, and this is one of Hollywood's happiest marriages. The couple has three sons, all of whom are grown. Write to Weaver c/o Hansen & Schwam, 9229 Sunset Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. Q: When did a series called "Barbary Coast" come on television? Will it return? B. BLANTON, LELAND, N.C.

A: "Barbary Coast" premiered on ABC-TV in September, 1975, and was canceled four months later. In view of this short tenure, it's doubtful that it will return. The series starred Doug McClure, William Shatner, Richard Kiel and Dave Turner.

Q: I am writing a term paper on Psychic Phenomenon, and I need the address of a television program called "In Search Of." H. FORD, PARKTON, N.C.

A: The show is syndicated, and I suggest that you contact the TV station that's airing it in your area. I'm sure they'll be glad to give you the address.

Q: Is Bert Lahr, who played the lion on "The Wizard of Oz," still living? A STUDENT FROM RUTHERFORD COLLEGE.

A: The beloved actor died in 1967 at the age of 72. Although Bert was a great Broadway comedian, he could never shake the moviegoer's image of him as the cowardly lion in 'Wizard.' After his death, his son John wrote a book about his father's life (apparently not a happy one). It was appropriately titled "Notes on a Cowardly Lion."

CLINT EASTWOOD is the mysterious stranger who rides in to straighten out a twisted town in "High Plains Drifter" on "The ABC Monday Night Movie," April 7 (9-11 p.m.).

Eastwood To Star

Clint Eastwood stars as a quietly menacing stranger who defends the terrified citizens of a small western town in "High Plains Drifter." It's the ABC Monday Night Movie, airing April 7 (9 to 11 p.m.).

Eastwood, who plays the same sort of nameless wanderer responsible for turning all of his westerns into box-office bonanzas, also directed the film. The script was written by Ernest Tidyman, an Academy Award-winner for "The French Connection."

Our hero once again dons "The Stranger's" flat-crowned black hat, tilts it forward and rides tall and silent into a Southwestern town filled with people trembling in fear.

They are all burdened with an excess of corruption and a dearth of courage. And they're awaiting the return of three gunmen who were sent to jail on phony charges trumped up by the local mining company.

The stranger agrees to stay and face the desperadoes — but only on his terms. And these 'terms' include painting the entire town a

One of America's brightest entertainment stars makes his drama debut in "Kenny Rogers as The Gambler," to be broadcast on The CBS Tuesday Night Movies, April 8 (9 to 11 p.m.).

Others in the film are Christine Belford, Bruce Boxleitner, Harold Gould, Clu Gulager, Lance LeGault, Lee Purcell and Ronnie Scribner.

The western adventure is set in the Southwest during the 1800's, and the script uses the lyrics from Rogers' hit single of the same title as a narrative springboard.

Rogers portrays Brady Hawkes, a cool, steely-eyed professional gambler who plays by the rules and knows the power of a good bluff. Brady sets out by train from El Paso to Yuma, responding to a plea from a son (Scribner) he never knew he had. But it proves to be the most dangerous move Brady's ever made. The boy's stepfather, Rufe Bennett (Gulager), harbors an abiding hatred of him and plans to ambush him.

Along the way, Brady falls in with two other travelers. One is Billy Montana (Boxleitner), an impetuous young gambler, and the other's a 'society lady' with a shady past named Jennie Reed (Purcell). The three become embroiled in two separate encounters, and Brady must defend them. One is with the arrogant owner of the railroad in his private car, and the other concerns a gang of cutthroats in a wayside town. Then comes KENNY ROGERS stars as a professional gambler who knows the power of a good bluff, in "Kenny Rogers as The Gambler," a new motion picture-for-television to be broadcast Tuesday, April 8 (9-11 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

Brady's own private showdown with Bennett.

Location filming of 'The Gambler' took place in the famous movie town of Old Tucson (Arizona). And the better part of one day and night was devoted to shooting a knock-down-and-drag-out fight in a bar between Rogers and the bad guy (Gulager).

No stunt doubles were used in the fight sequences, but stunt coordinator Dave Cass coached Rogers and Gulager on the verisimilitude of movie brawls. Then the two went through the sequences over and over as they were filmed from every angle.

"Sure it was hard, sweaty work," says Rogers, "but it paid off. And I could see it coming together, bit by bit. I'm not a total stranger to that side of the camera, but I consider myself fortunate to have been surrounded by so many talented people who'd done it all so many times before."

Rickles, Lawrence Hosts

Television's 'Mr. Warmth' — the irrepressible Don Rickles — and Steve Lawrence co-host the edition of NBC-TV's "The Big Show" that's airing Tuesday, April 8 (9 to 10:30 p.m.). And they'll be welcoming guests Shields and Yarnell, Betty White, singer Nell Carter, French dancer Sylvie Vertan, Canadian ice skater Toller Cranston, flamenco dancer Jose Molina and puppeteer Bruce Schwartz.

Also appearing are the show's regulars — ice skaters, dancers, water ballet corps and comedians — including Joe Baker, Graham Chapman, Paul Grimm, Charlie Hill, Mimi Kennedy, Edie McClurg, Pamela Myers, Shabba-Doo and Owen Sullivan.

Flattered By Identification

"People still tend to remember me most for 'Jesus of Nazareth' and I'm quite flattered. I'd be very disappointed if they didn't remember," said the British actor Robert Powell, who stars in the title role of the eight-hour Biblical epic. The final episode will be telecast Easter Sunday, April 6 (8-10 p.m.).

Since he completed work on "Jesus of Nazareth," Powell says he's been busy with a variety of acting assignments (mostly for theatrical motion pictures). One film, an updated version of a classic, "The 39 Steps," will be released soon.

"My identification with 'Jesus of Nazareth' hasn't hindered my career insofar as the scope of roles offered to me is concerned;

it's helped, actually," Powell said. Within the past year, he has portrayed a 'good guy' and a 'villain.'

"I did a picture in 1979 called 'Harlequin,' which was filmed in Australia. It's an updated version of the Rasputin legend and I play Rasputin. But this is a modern-day Rasputin who turns out to be a hero. David Hemmings and Broderick Crawford are in it with me."

The other movie, which was produced in New York City, is called "Jane Austen in Manhattan," and Anne Baxter stars with Powell. "It's about a very avant-garde theater company which attempts to put on a newly discovered Jane Austen play," he explained. "Part of this is true. It is based on the fact that a Jane Austen manuscript was discovered. I play the director—the heavy of the piece."

After he completed filming last month, the actor left for Australia. "David Hemmings and I got together after 'Harlequin' and we decided, since we had so much fun, to do another one," he says. "We made a small pact. I said, 'I'll do it if you direct it.' And David said, 'I'll direct it if you star in it.' I'll play an airline pilot—it's a ghost story called 'The Survivor.' Very frightening."

The decision to film in Australia was due to the success of the last film made there. "People there were so pleased with us the last time that they gave us money to film again," Powell said.

Ritter Stars In Drama

As television stars become more and more popular, some begin to lose contact with their closest friends. An exception is John Ritter, whose closest friend continues to be one he had in high school. Their longtime friendship resulted in a television film that is highly personal to them both.

Ritter stars in "The Comeback Kid," about a washed-up ball player who finds a new meaning in life when he gets a job working with a gang of rambunctious street kids, airing as The ABC Friday Night Movie, April 11 (9 p.m.).

The film's screenplay was written by Joe Landon, who has been Ritter's best friend since high school. The story evolved from a personal experience. "A few years ago, I was scrounging around for a job and got work teaching a Sunday School class of youngsters," Landon recalled recently. "One day in class we somehow got on the subject of death, and I was just overwhelmed emotionally by the depths of the feelings these kids had. Their honesty was incredible. And it left me very moved and shaken."

JOHN RITTER, whose dream of becoming a pitching star is dashed when he is cut by his minor league baseball team, finds new meaning to his life as a playground supervisor to a group of street kids in "The Comeback Kid," airing Friday, April 11 (9-11 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

Finds New Mountains

For Michael Learned, a trip from Walton's Mountain to a large hospital was just what the doctor ordered.

In a crisp white nursing uniform and cap, the strikingly lovely blonde bears little resemblance to the sturdy matron of the Walton clan. Instead, she looks every inch of the dedicated professional she portrays in "Nurse," airing Wednesday, April 9 (9 to 11 p.m.), on CBS-TV. The drama focuses on the life of a metropolitan hospital's head nurse, Robert Reed co-stars as Kenneth Rose, a staff surgeon.

Michael stars as Mary Benjamin, a devoted suburban wife and mother who's forced to make a new life for herself when her husband dies. She resumes her career as head nurse in an urban hospital and tentatively sets out to supervise her staff and patients.

"Mary starts to make it capably on her own, despite her fears and anxieties," Michael points out. "She often feels as though she's floundering and is not even aware of the change that's come over her. But she does know she's doing something positive, and that the quickest way to get over pain is to do something for others."

Michael had no difficulty when it came to empathizing with her character's situation. "This was no problem, even though my only nursing experience comes from being a mother," she continued. "I'm great with mercurochrome and band-aids, but that's about it."

Nor did she have problems identifying with Olivia in "The Waltons." "We were alike in many ways," she says. "We were both mothers, loved the children, MICHAEL LEARNED and Robert Reed star in the General Foods Television Theatre Presentation "Nurse" based on the current best selling book of the same name by Peggy Anderson. This special airs Wednesday, April 9 (9-11 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

our homes and families. But after seven seasons, I knew it was time to move on. The series was a joyful experience, and my decision to leave was a very difficult one."

Michael returns to New York in a few weeks. But this time she'll be headed for Broadway to star in Corinne Jacker's "After the Season." "My early training was in the theater, and I love the stage," she continued. "It's kind of a luxury for me. There's something magical about the interaction between the actor and a live audience, and there's always an immediate reward."

It seems Michael Learned's career has come full circle — and Broadway is about as far from Walton's Mountain as you can get.

Carson's Done It

Beverly Sills feels that most Americans have regarded opera singers with a kind of wary respect. She also believes they generally have considered the whole business of opera too formidable to be comfortable with.

But thanks to Johnny Carson, that's all gone! Sills, a frequent guest on "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson" (weeknights, 11:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. on NBC-TV), explains:

"I ask you, could anyone who happened to see a sketch I did with Johnny years ago ever again think an opera star forbidding? Johnny was a Royal Canadian Mountie and I, an apron covering my dress, sang a duet with him in a shack in the wilds of Canada. And both of us were helplessly breaking up with laughter!"

Sills says Johnny's done a lot to 'humanize' opera singers by inviting them to guest on his show. "He's eradicated yesterday's stereotype of a well-upholstered lady sporting a horned helmet, screeching out high notes in a strange language while telling the secrets of the plot at the top of her voice," she explained.

"People who have heard us sing on 'Tonight' and then listened to our cozy little chats with Johnny afterward, know that we're as well put together as performers in other areas of show business."

Over the years, Carson has welcomed such classical luminaries as Luciano Pavarotti, Marilyn Horne, Judith Blegen, William Walker, Placido Domingo, Martina Arroyo, Itzhak Perlman, James Galway, Carol Neblett, and Sills, to name a few.

"Everyone talks about today's operatic boom," Beverly continues. "But there are still untold millions who've never been in an opera house or heard an opera — and are content to leave it that way."

Hit Records

Neil Sedaka, the talented musician who's turned out numerous hit records, has been signed to star in a one-hour musical special for TV. "The Neil Sedaka Touch."

A piano prodigy at the age of eight, Sedaka studied at the Juilliard School of Music. In 1956, his teacher, Arthur Rubinstein, selected him as New York's best classical pianist.

Neil headed in another direction, however — toward rock 'n' roll. And between 1959 and 1963, he sold more than 25 million records.

When the Beatles' popularity surged in the mid 1960s, Neil retired from performing and began writing for other artists. Then he made a successful comeback as a performer in the late 1970s.

'Sin' Now Filming

Principal photography has begun in New York City on "The First Deadly Sin," a motion picture version of the best-seller.

Frank Sinatra and Faye Dunaway are starring. David Dukes also has a key role.

Sheehan Goes Network

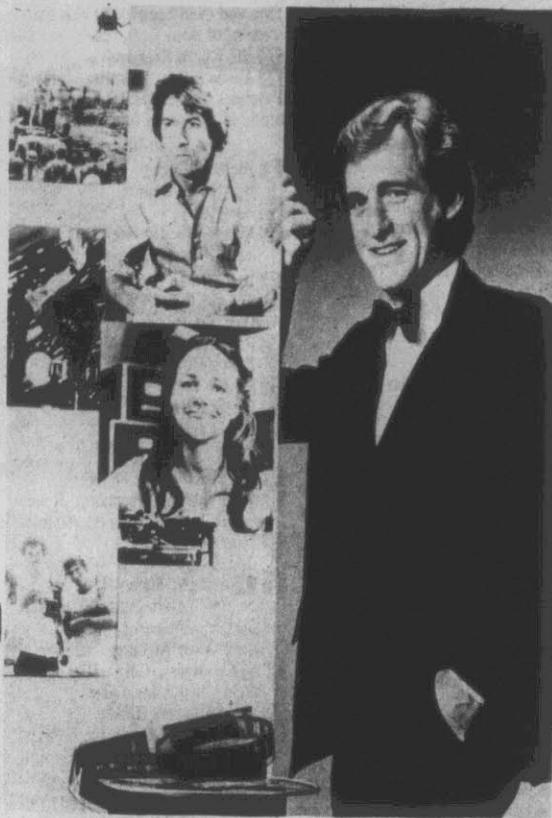

Media critic David Sheehan already has a number of "firsts" to his credit. And he'll add another one when he hosts his first Sheehan interviewing some of the top Oscar contenders. He's being joined by five major syndicated columnists-critics, and and the picture meant personally.

Sheehan, who's been a novelist, ad salesman, seminarian and therapist, has a special understanding of actors. That's because he was one himself — briefly. He was managing director of two theaters — one in Los Angeles, the other in San Francisco — and was responsible for producing and directing more than 14 critically acclaimed productions. He appeared in Edward Albee's "The Zoo Story," and received excellent notices.

"Sheehan's Jerry becomes the universal communitant...Absolutely hypnotic!" said the Los Angeles Times.

SNEAK PREVIEW — Media critic David Sheehan will interview many of the top nominees and offer his predictions when the NBC-TV network presents "A Sneak Preview...The Oscar Race," Thursday, April 10 (10-11 p.m.). network pre-Oscar special.

The show is actually an expansion of another one of his "firsts" — the first nationally syndicated pre-Oscar TV special in the history of the Oscars which Sheehan put together in 1971.

The show, presented annually, was 30 minutes long. Now it's being extended to an hour, and will be presented on NBC-TV Thursday, April 10 (10 p.m.).

Titled "A Sneak Preview...The Oscar Race," the special features

"When I first thought of this idea in 1971, it occurred to me that only the winners tend to get attention," Sheehan said. "Yet each of the nominees is deserving of some attention and has an interesting story to tell. Each one has very personal feelings about the performance and the picture. I wanted to delve into this and find out what their performance

Robert Urich, star of "Vega$," is portraying Pittsburgh Steelers running back Rocky Bleier in "Fighting Back," a TV movie now in production.

Urich is no stranger to the gridiron. He attended Florida State University on a football scholarship and played in the 1967 Gator Bowl against Penn State.

"Fighting Back" recounts Bleier's courageous story. Selected on the next-to-last round of the 1968 National Football League draft, Rocky overcame long odds just earning a spot on the Steelers' roster. Then he was drafted into the Army before the end of his rookie season.

While in Vietnam, Bleier's right foot was shattered by a grenade explosion, and he was told by doctors that he'd never play football again. Once again he defied odds and went on to stardom with the Super Bowl Champion Steelers.

SPOTLIGHT

GIL GERARD

Several years ago, Gil Gerard, who's now starring in "Buck Rogers in the 25th Century," was an industrial chemist in Little Rock, Ark., and also an advisor to the governor of the state. He had everything he wanted — a car, home, country club membership and a good golf game. But he wasn't happy, and the lyrics of the song, "Is That All There Is?," made him stop and reflect on his life-style.

"I remembered the feelings I had while doing plays in high school and college," he recalls. "They were pretty successful and I enjoyed them immensely. I realized then that I liked doing them more than what I was doing."

So Gerard resigned his advisory job with the state of Arkansas and headed for New York City to try his hand at acting. While studying at the American Musical and Dramatic Academy, Gil worked part-time as a cab driver. One of his fares — he steadfastly refuses to give his name — got him a job as an extra in "Love Story," being filmed at the time.

"This mysterious man even told me what to do to attract attention on the set — and he was right," Gil remembers. "Unfortunately, the scenes I was in fiction series have lacked," Gil says. "Buck came from our world and makes enough references to familiar places and things to keep his perspective — and viewers' — on recognizable ground."

He believes that "Battlestar Galactica" depended too heavily on "hardware" and not enough on writing. "We've made a real effort to have quality in our scripts; something good and not totally predictable from the first page."

With his good looks, charm and wit, Gil has given Buck Rogers a lot of character, and this is a vital element in the show's success. "There's a good bit of humility in Buck," Gil says. "He's not really a super hero — he's just a man who does heroic things."

'Life's A Lesson,' Says Rae

"I knew when I was nine years old that I wanted to act and sing," says Charlotte Rae, who's starring in NBC-TV's "The Facts of Life" (Fridays, 8:30 to 9 p.m.).

"When I was nine, however, I felt inferior and wanted to perform so I could be equal to others. Then I learned a lesson about life — to like myself for what I was and to accept my strengths and let them work for me. That changed my whole life and I've never stopped learning about myself and others."

From this, it might be said that Rae, who's playing an affectionate and wise housemother to a group of young girls, is a natural for the role. "The young and mature all learn about the facts of life at the Eastlake School," she says.

"I teach the kids to be kind and loving and care about one another. I tell them not to care about the ones that can't because they probably don't like themselves anyway."

Charlotte says she acts because she truly enjoys it. "And it really fills me up. I guess I'm truly dedicated to my work." But it wasn't easy, because she struggled for many years with lesser parts on Broadway as well as in TV and films. "You gotta have drive and push yourself. You can't give up easily...you must continue to grow and change and look for new adventures."

THE MAJOR LEAGUES baseball season is upon us once again and several teams have strengthened themselves considerably during the off-season. Four of them will be competing Saturday, April 12, when the New York Yankees meet the Texas Rangers and the Los Angeles Dodgers challenge the Houston Astros (4:15 p.m. on NBC-TV.)

Let's Play Ball!

Another major league baseball season is set to get under way. But once again, labor problems have caused some question as to when the season will actually start and when it will conclude. However, most of the parties involved claim the majority of the serious problems have been resolved and the season will begin without a hitch. On Saturday, April 12, (4:15 p.m.), NBC will premiere it's Saturday afternoon Major League coverage with one of two games: New York at Texas and Los Angeles at Houston.

All four teams have hopes of capturing their respective divisions with the addition of new players. The Yankees, after winning three straight American League East pennants, will try to unseat the Baltimore Orioles with a new first baseman and a couple of other valuable additions.

The Yanks grabbed Bob Watson from the Boston Red Sox in the free agent market. They also added relief hurler Tom Underwood and excellent outfielder Eric Soderholm to their ranks, making them a strong possibility once again to compete for the pennant. The Rangers have been strengthened by a revamped pitching staff that could make them tough to beat in the American League West. The starters will probably include Dod Medich, Ferguson Jenkins, John Matlack, Gaylord Perry and Steve Comer. All are veterans with glittering past records. Coupled with Sparky Lyle from the bullpen, the team will be strong in the throwing department.

The Dodgers fell on hard times during the 1979 season. And there are those who would write them off in perhaps the most competitive division in baseball — the National League West. But all those stars who carried them to the pennant two years in a row are back. With the addition of several youngsters the Dodgers are thinking pennant again.

Then, there are those wonderful Astros, who almost pulled the shocker of the year in '79 when they nearly took the West title in the National League. Led by fastballer supreme, J. Rodney Richard, wily veteran Joe Niekro and Ken Forsch as the strength on the mound, the Astros are powerful.

Pike's Peek

CHARLIE PIKE

HOLLYWOOD — CHARLENE TILTON of "DALLAS" travels to South Africa next month as the guest of that country's Fair Lady Magazine, which is comparable to America's Cosmopolitan. Her series is rated number-one in that country, and — as part of her visit — the 20-year-old actress will visit Johannesburg, Durban, Port Elizabeth, Capetown and Zulu Land.

ABC's daytime series, "General Hospital," is joining the ranks of "soaps" going on location outside the show's immediate homebase. ANTHONY GEARY is heading a contingent of the cast that will spend two days filming in Las Vegas sometime later this month.

Scuttlebutt has it that production of "ChiPs" came to an end with a hint of friction existing between LARRY WILCOX AND ERIK ESTRADA, after Larry had spent a lot of time behind the camera serving as the show's director. Erik apparently wasn't particularly fond of his co-star telling him what to do in a given scene.

Suddenly gossip's floating around that possibly "ONE DAY AT A TIME" has seen its last season. In the aftermath of MacKENZIE PHILLIPS departing the show comes scuttlebutt that, with BONNIE FRANKLIN'S marriage, the show might be put on the TV history shelf.

On the heels of personnel shakeups on NBC's daytimer, "DAYS OF OUR LIVES," comes word that more than just a couple of the show's principal characters are weighing their future plans. It's understood that DIEDRE HALL (Marlena) and JED ALLEN (Don) are taking a "wait-and-see" attitude while keeping their eyes open for future career endeavors.

While no one's previously named names, JOHN SCHNEIDER's manager public relations representative, DARON THOMAS, is doing the "DUKES OF HAZZARD" star more harm than good. Whereas John's strength lies with his popularity among the teen and pre-teens, no less than two magazines catering to those readers have been turned-off by Thomas' rude and abrasive manner of doing business. Specifically, it seems that John's not available for interviews unless he's guaranteed a cover photo.

Isn't it true that LEE MAJORS is doing everything he can think of to try and persuade estranged wife FARRAH FAWCETT to come back into his life? So far, though, Farrah hasn't responded favorably to Lee's suggestion that they reconcile.

Call your own time-out.

Some of the best moments in any sport take place right where you're sitting. Because where you're sitting can be a great place to cool the action.

Just grab a hold of a sizzling hot dog, spread the mustard thick, and drown your thirst with ice-cold Pepsi. Nothing makes food taste better and good times last longer than Pepsi-Cola. And Pepsi is just as close to where you're sitting as the refreshment stand.

Go ahead. Right now is a great time to call your own time-out... and call for plenty of great-tasting Pepsi-Cola.

One With Lemon

When Meadowlark Lemon was asked to explain the difference between his old Harlem Globetrotter squad and the new Bucketeers team he's assembled, he said: "The big difference is the Bucketeers have Meadowlark Lemon."

Turned Things Around

Atlanta is one of the most beautiful and progressive cities in the United States. It also sports an old-fashioned Southern pride that helps draw its citizens close together.

Unfortunately, when it comes to sports in the Georgia capital city, there's never been much to crow about. Georgia Tech used to have some of the best football teams in the country. Lately even the professional sports are lagging back in the pack as proverbial also-rans.

But this scene changed when a Yankee from the urban Northeast came to town and turned things around for the Atlanta Hawks basketball team.

Coach Hubie Brown has lifted the Hawks to the division crown. And with players like John Drew, it's no wonder that he's been able to create a new excitement in the once-boring Atlanta winter season.

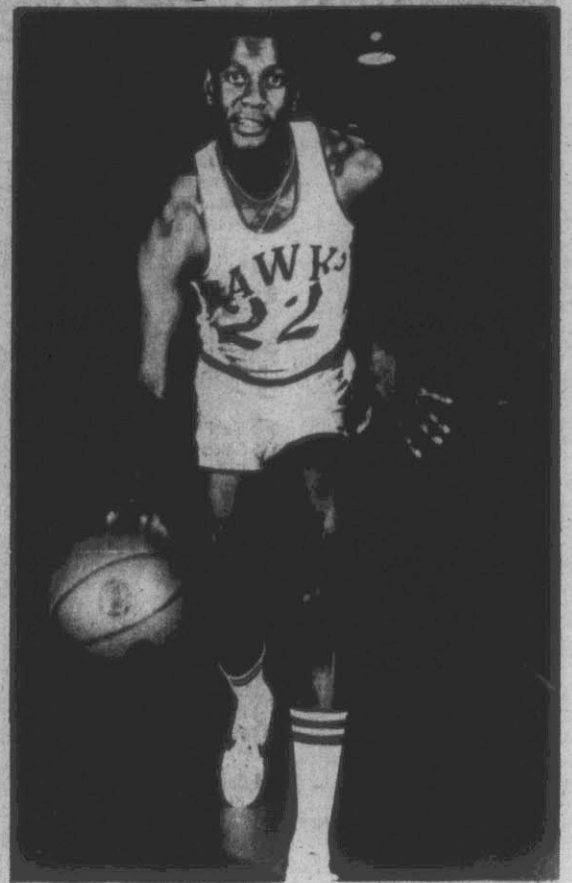

The Hawks will join several other teams in the NBA playoffs, and CBS will televise one of these games, Friday, April 11 (11:40 p.m.).

A couple of weeks ago, the Hawks clinched the NBA Central Division, and it was Drew who's paced the rebuilt Hawks for the past two years. He's also one of the game's most explosive scorers.

In fact, based on playing time, only George Gervin scored more points per minute this season. But there is one problem that keeps Drew off most lists for all-NBA — his defense.

Although he led the team in steals, he probably also led the team in getting beaten back downcourt by the opposition. Yet the big forward thinks the tag of "no-defense" is mostly hearsay.

"When I arrived in this league, I scored right away and immediately got the reputation of being a scorer," he says. "people have to say something against you, so it followed that I didn't play any defense."

JOHN DREW, a true power forward in every sense of the word, is one of the reasons the Atlanta Hawks captured the Central Division championship. They'll try to extend their season when they compete in the NBA playoffs. CBS will show a playoff game on Friday, April 11 starting at 11:40 p.m.

"It's nothing new," he continued. "They always say that scoring average. He also grabbed almost 450 rebounds and amassed as much playing time as anybody on the squad."

But there's not much else wrong with Drew's game. In fact, he led the Hawks with a 19.8 scoring average. He also grabbed almost 450 rebounds and amassed as much playing time as anybody on the squad.

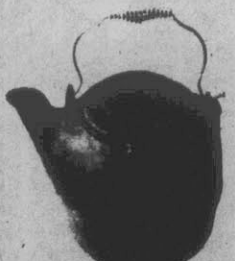

'Sportsman' Airs

Windsurfing across the Bering Strait, kayaking on the Arun River of Nepal and fishing in Florida's Everglades will be featured on ABC Sports' "Americian Sportsman," Saturday, April 5 (2:30 to 3:30 p.m.).

Baron Arnaud de Rosnay, a wealthy member of the French aristocracy, has a special affinity for windsurfing, an avocation that has taken him around the world. The most dangerous and unusual adventure he has ever undertaken was windsurfing from Wales, Alaska, across the Bering Strait and on to Russian shores — a 65 mile sail from west to east. De Rosnay first spent two months training in Hawaii, then two weeks in Wales before setting off on his seemingly impossible journey.

"Polly, Put The Kettle On!"

Preston No. 8 Cast-Iron Tea Kettle

The design dates back to the 1850's, perhaps even earlier. One can readily picture it back in early days, swinging on an iron crane in an open hearth, or atop one of the old time Crawford or Glenwood cookstoves.

The perfect addition to your CRAFT woodstove. An ever-present supply of hot water and an attractive humidifier.

Every team needs a clutch performer, the kind of athlete who laughs in the face of adversity and pressure and thrives in the so-called big games.

The Phoenix Suns have that kind of player in Paul Westphal, who just may be the most consistent guard in the NBA. You'll get a lot of skeptical looks when you tell most people that. But those in the know around the league will tell you that the Southern Cal grad is as consistent as any at his position.

The Suns, finishing in the middle of the Pacific Division, will compete in the NBA playoffs, and CBS will broadcast a special playoff doubleheader on Sunday, April 6 (1 p.m.).

Westphal wasn't even a starting guard until he was traded to the Suns from the Boston Celtics. Then he emerged and lifted the Suns into the NBA finals in his second season with the club.

"He is definitely one of the top guards in basketball today," notes Sun coach John McLeod. "Offensively, he is a complete player. Also shoots from the outside, runs the break well, can play down low with his back to the basket, is an excellent passer and a heckuva free-throw shooter," he continued.

"Also, he has the ability to run the club and is really valuable in the late stages of close games because he can not only go to the hoop well, but he also has great range on his jumper. Beyond that, he's a quality person."

Westphal is currently leading the Suns with a 22.2 per-game average and if he finishes the season on top, this will be the third consecutive season he has been the top scorer for the Suns.

One of the amazing things the 6-4 veteran can do is get to the hoop quickly, something which most people shake their head at because he is not exceptionally quick, but "Westy" has his own explanation:

"First of all," he said, "I've always felt I was pretty quick. And I have a very long pivot step. The only thing that matters on the drive is getting the step, or even half a step, on your man. Once you do that, it doesn't matter if a guy can run the 100 in eight flat, he still won't catch you because your body's in his way."

Westphal has gotten in the way of a lot of opponents and has scored a lot of points over a stunned opposition. But the fact remains that he is underpublicized.

Freshman Squad Is Named

Five outstanding college freshmen have been selected for the first team of NBC Sports' 1979-80 season All-Freshman squad. Included are three whose performances helped their respective schools to conference championship berths.

The first team selections are Ralph Sampson, University of Virginia; Isiah Thomas, Indiana University; Steve Stipanovich, University of Missouri; Sam Bowie, University of Kentucky; and Clark Kellogg, Ohio State University.

Of all the highly talented freshmen, no player got more attention than Virginia's 7-4 center Ralph Sampson. He was surrounded every game by two — and often three — defenders who were determined to keep him from getting the ball. But he managed to close out his freshman campaign with a better than 15 points per game scoring average. The 19-year-old from Harrisonburg, Va., found a way to overcome any defense.

Power To The Woman

One of the most unusual events in sports — but also one of the fastest growing — will be featured when NBC's Sportsworld airs on Sunday, April 6 (2:30 p.m.).

The U.S. Women's Powerlifting Championships will be featured on the sports anthology program. Also included in the two-hour program will be Men's World Cup Surfing from Honolulu and "World of Outlaws" Spring Car Racing from Dallas.

Jan Todd, one of the women who will be competing in the weightlifting event, holds three of the four heavyweight records for women in powerlifting with championship marks in the squat (480 pounds), in the deadlift (463) and for total (1,127).

Jan lives in Auburn, Ala., with her husband Terry, who is also a powerlifter. And they both work out daily with some of the greatest lifters in the world.

Terry also teaches promising lifters the finer techniques of the sport of strength and he first met Jan at one of the lifting camps.

"We both push each other and that has helped us overcome the loneliness and pain of lifting," Jan says. "Sometimes he's a little rough with me but it's usually because I'm not working hard enough."

Several months ago, the Todds went to Scotland to compete in the Highland Games, which features lifting some legendary stones and tossing them a certain distance.

The bald facts about bald pates.

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR PHILIP KINGSLEY, hair specialist and author of The Complete Hair Book

Is there any hope for solving hereditary baldness? —R.E., Parkersburg, W.Va.

● This problem was discussed at great length in Germany, at the Hamburg International Congress of Hair Research. Our conclusions are that, at present, there is no effectively safe way of reversing hereditary (male pattern) baldness. However, it is thought that during this decade there will be a means of at least arresting it by the use of topically applied "anti-androgens." An important point, though, is that there are so often other factors that add to genetic hair loss: unhealthy scalp conditions and hair conditions, nutritional disturbances, endocrine imbalances, wrong hair products, maltreatment and stress. Therefore, by taking as much care as possible of all the other aspects, the degree of hair loss can be considerably diminished.

FOR THE "ASK" EDITOR

Do people really eat weeds — and find them tasty and nutritional? —Pete Slevin, Hollywood, Fla.

● Some people really do. To answer your question, we checked with Exie White, botanist of Colorado Women's College, Denver, and she told us she eats a wide range of wild leafy plants, seeds and fruits: "I use curly dock leaf midribs as rhubarb for pies, the stripped leaf surface as spinach and the seeds for flour. I roast the entire chicory plant and grind it to use for coffee. I regularly use dandelion leaves, alfalfa leaves and flowers, clover flowers and wild mustard seeds in a green salad." White told us that she has been eating wild plants for about 10 years and says they have variable taste and succulence. "I am blessed with good health, so I can't really say that they have made me healthy, but they constantly present me with surprises."

Weed-eating for taste and succulence.

FOR HODDING CARTER III, Assistant Secretary for Public Affairs and State Department spokesman

What has become of the Stars & Stripes lowered at Panama City in the transition ceremonies? —Neta K. Ayres, Smith Center, Kan.

● The American flag was lowered from the flagpole in front of the Panama Canal administration building on the evening of Sept. 30, 1979, and was presented to General Harold Parfitt, outgoing and last governor of the Canal Zone and president of the Panama Canal Company.

FOR NATALIE WOOD, co-star of The Last Married Couple in America

Do you regret the years you spent in psychotherapy? —W.N., Whittier, Calif.

● No, I don't. Therapy helped me a lot. I now know that because I had worked so much as a child, there was so much make-believe in my life when I was growing up that I did not have a clearly defined picture of where fantasy stopped and reality began. I questioned whether I really wanted to work. Therapy provided an answer.

FOR GINA HECHT of ABC-TV's Mork & Mindy

On a recent episode, I noticed a romantic involvement between you and Robin Williams. Does this mean that Pam Dawber's relationship with Robin on the show will change? —Jean Sheldon, Flint, Mich.

● Absolutely not. The purpose of the episode to which you're referring was to develop the character I portray a bit more. At some point, Jeannie (the character I play) finds out that she was misreading Mork's affection for her. Mork's intention was to make her feel less lonely.

FOR GIANCARLO GIANNINI, star of The Immortal Bachelor

Since you act with American actresses as well as Italian stars, would you like to make a comparison? —R.C., Council Bluffs, Iowa

● As far as how they are different, I think it's mostly a matter of temperament. When she's happy, an Italian woman is quick to laugh; when she's mad or upset, she'll scream or cry. But an American woman, she's maybe more "reserved" about her feelings. She controls her emotions more.

FOR TEDDY PENDERGRASS, recording star

Are you as macho in real life as you are on-stage? —L.S., Tyler, Texas

● No. When I leave the stage, I'm very low key. Real men are the kind who aren't intimidated by career women. Too many men are so busy trying to compete with them that they lose their ability to be tender. They strive so hard to be super-macho. When women react to this, the men say, "Oh, she's so uptight about everything." I try to develop a climate of understanding and communication.

FOR ELINOR KLEIN, co-author of Dazzle

How can two persons write one novel? —B.N., Anderson, S.C.

● Dora Landey, my friend of 25 years, and I decided to do something "together." We knew a book would result in fights, but it would also — we hoped — leave our mark on the world. We both invented and developed our own characters, presenting them to the other for approval. Then we went our separate ways, each writing alone. Finally, we worked on the links between characters and plot.

PRO Senator Howell T. Hefflin, (D.-Ala.) Chairman, Senate Select Committee on Ethics

The Constitution dictates that Congress is to judge the conduct of its members and to punish those guilty of unethical behavior and, with a two-thirds concurrence, expel a member. The Constitution is clear that it is the responsibility of the Senate to judge the conduct of its members, and the Senate Ethics Committee is charged with carrying out this Constitutionally mandated task. Of course, if any Senator is guilty of a crime, he or she should be prosecuted fully. While a court can convict and send a Senator to jail, the expulsion of a Senator from the Senate is the responsibility of the Senate.

PRO AND CON

Should Congress Be the Last Word in Judging the Ethical Conduct of Its Members?

CON Senator Lowell Weicker Jr. (R.-Conn.), member, Senate Appropriations Committee

No. What is unethical is a matter for definition by the constituency. What is illegal should be determined by a special prosecutor. At present, the voters don't care, as witness their 35-percent turnout in the 1978 elections. Equally bad, Congress doesn't learn, as witness no special prosecutor seven years after the Watergate hearings. If representative democracy is to work honestly and well, the representatives had best be the choice of an involved majority. If Congress is to be believed, then the law had best be applied to it as independently as Congress professes to apply the law for the nation.

WILLIE STARGELL

He's "Pops" (and Tops) To His Teammates And His Kids

By Mark Goodman

When Willie Stargell was a boy growing up in Oakland, Calif., he recalled recently, "I'd walk along hitting rocks with a stick, and people would come up and ask me why I was doing it. I'd say that someday I was going to be hitting a ball with a bat in a big stadium somewhere. They'd laugh and say, 'Man, you're in the projects. Forget it.'"

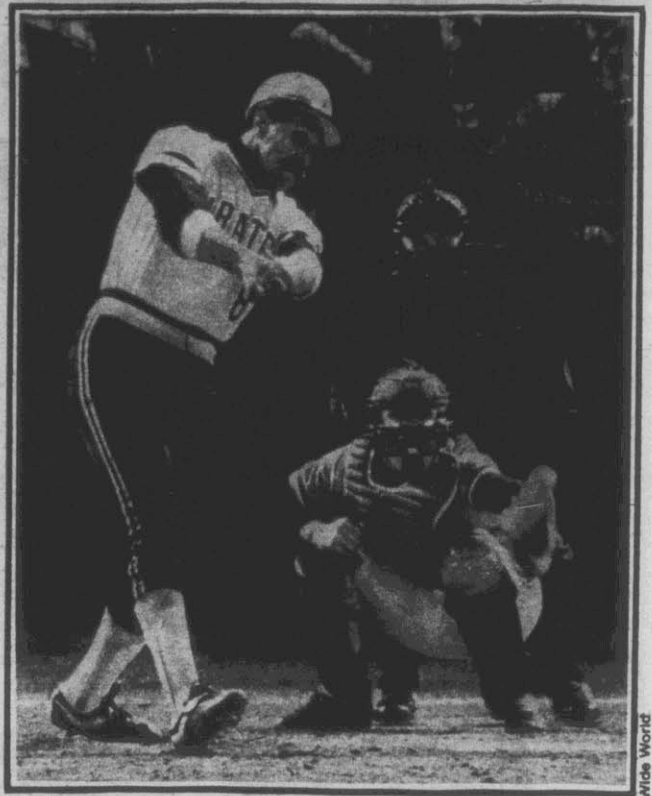

Wilver Dornell Stargell — or Lefty Milkshake, as he was known in those days — never did forget, even after a fractured pelvic bone in 1958 prompted doctors to advise him to give up baseball forever. Stargell, the philosopher-sluggier of the World Champion Pittsburgh Pirates, thought about that after his team's triumph in the 1979 World Series. "That year I signed with the Pirates," he remembered. "You know, I haven't thought about that injury in years. Wouldn't it be something, wouldn't it be a story if I had to quit after all these years over something that happened 20 years ago?"

As all of America knows by now, neither the projects nor the first of a long series of injuries stopped Willie Stargell — Associated Press Athlete of the Year, Sports Illustrated Man of the Year, Most Valuable Player of the fabulous '79 Series against the Baltimore Orioles, co-winner of the National League MVP award (along with Keith Hernandez of the St. Louis Cardinals), co-holder of Sports Illustrated's Man of the Year Award (with fellow Pittsburgher Terry Bradshaw) and a quietly vital personality named in a recent nationwide poll as one of the 10 most popular men in America today.

It is the last nomination that pleases Stargell the most. He readily concedes that, over the long winter on the hectic, rubber roast beef/grapes/peas/patented speech circuit, he got his biggest kick out of simply getting to meet so many people. "Those awards are nice," he says, "but they aren't all that important. People are important. That's why I like Pittsburgh. The folks there are good, honest, God-fearing people. That's why I'm raising my children there. I want them to learn these important things."

Going...going...gone! Stargell had four hits in the seventh game of the 1979 World Series, including this series-winning home run.

Stargell-himself has felt the need to keep in touch with the verities during the past few months, when he became caught in the riptide of instant celebrity. Instant? It may seem like a strange word to apply to a 39-year-old graybeard who has been in organized baseball for 21 years. But there is a fine line in sports between prominence and preeminence, between merely being an established player in the athletic community and a full-blown national celebrity. O.J. Simpson, Julius Erving, Tom Seaver and Reggie Jackson are among the few modern stars who have crossed that line. Willie Stargell joined them that cool, memorable night in Baltimore when his

In most ways, it's been a rewarding off-season for Stargell. His fame has plainly helped fill his pockets — he's hawked everything these days from Wise Potato Chips to Remington's Black Man Shaver. He got to cover his pals, the Pittsburgh Steelers, as an official Sports Illustrated photographer in Super Bowl XIV. But Stargell always manages to keep his head about him, even if all around him are losing theirs. "People have to realize that I haven't been playing baseball all these years for the sake of all this. That's not where my priorities in life lie. I'm still a big old country boy, but not so big that my mother wouldn't still take a switch to me if she thought I was getting fancy." So, in the midst of all the hoopla, Stargell has, for example, made sure that he continues to devote as much time as possible to the Foundation for Sickle Cell Anemia, the often fatal, hereditary disease found primarily among blacks, from which a close friend died three years ago.

Also, devoted as he is to his wife, Dolores, his son and his three lovely daughters (Willie, daughter Kelli, Dolores and son, Willie Jr., are pictured together on the cover), Stargell has tried to spend what little spare time he's had with them during the winter. But he admits it hasn't been easy. Asked if Dolores was enjoying all the notoriety, Stargell flatly answers, "Nope." Then he says, "I just hope they understood all along that it was going to be a tough winter. The kids have all been doing well in school, but my wife — well, it's been tough on her."

Indeed, injuries and illnesses have given the Stargells some bad moments over the years. Two of Willie's daughters have the sickle-cell trait, though not the disease. Willie has long played with pain — the pelvic bone, a severe inner-ear ailment, a pinched nerve in his left elbow

Part of the Pirate family mobs Willie after his three-run homer beat Cincinnati in the National League playoffs.

(suffered, in fact, while exercising his traditional role as peacemaker by breaking up a fight on the diamond). But it was Dolores who suffered the most frightening trauma. Four years ago she collapsed at home with a blinding pain in her head, and Willie rushed her to the hospital. It turned out to be a blood clot and an aneurysm, which required immediate surgery. "If the team had been on the road," said Willie, "she'd be dead."

It must be clear that Stargell's family ties are strong. This is true both privately and professionally. It is by now part of modern sports folklore that the Pittsburgh Pirates consider themselves to be "family-lee." Who will not remember those locker room and dugout scenes during the National League playoffs and the World Series, when the nation's television sets reverberated to the Pirate theme song, Sister Sledge's "We Are Family." As the team-chosen father of this rather fearful household, Willie is known, inevitably, as Pops. It was Stargell, as much as Manager Chuck Tanner, who kept that talented, unruly mob in hand during the long, hot summer of the pennant race and brought them back when they were down three games to one to the Orioles in the Series. And when the final game was won and Stargell was the focus of the nation's attention, he stood grinning and crying in the locker room with one hand clutching a bottle of good wine and the other arm around his half-sister Sandrus.

In that cluttered, confused moment last October, Stargell expounded his simple philosophy for the whirring cameras. "We go out to have fun," he said. "You have only a few years to play this game, and you can't go out and do it when you're tied up. You come into the game without ulcers, and you should go out without ulcers. When I'm not willing to go to war every day, I'll step aside and let some youngster take over. Right now I'm one very proud individual." "Right on," said sister Sandrus. "He gives a lot of himself to other people and thinks very little of himself," she later remarked. "I'd be just as proud of him if he were a steelworker."

But Stargell is by no means ready to hang up his spikes yet. He currently holds Pirate records for most career home runs (461) and runs-batted-in (1,476), and there are still plenty of hits left in that bat — the one he swings with the menacing double hitch that has become his trademark at the plate ("I can't tell you how I started doing that," he says. "It just keeps me loose up there").

When it came time to report to spring training camp, Stargell put all the banquet-circuit business behind him and settled down, for the 22nd season, to the game he dearly loves. "I still get that little itch when spring training rolls around," he says. "That's when I don't ask people to let me alone; I insist. I'm meticulous in the way I prepare for baseball. It requires total concentration, and I can't let anybody get in the way."

Stargell pauses for a moment. You know," he says, "if you respect this game and do what you're supposed to do, it's very rewarding. But if you take it for granted, it will embarrass you. I don't know how many swings or throws I have left in me, but I'll know when the time comes; I can rely on my own judgment.

"But when it does," he adds, "no one can take away the memories." FW

How to Poisonproof Your Home By Paul Tharp

This year an estimated 5 million to 10 million children will be involved in some type of poison accident in their homes; about 1,000 of these children will die. The problem, according to one of the nation's foremost experts on child poisoning, is that adults underestimate those seemingly innocent surroundings of the household — plants, vitamins, soaps, etc.

In fact, as surprising as it seems, nibbling certain houseplants is the number-one cause of poisoning of children under 5 — a figure that has doubled in the past few years along with the rising popularity of houseplants.

Another common cause of poisoning is household products. "Seventy-five percent of accidents involving these products occur when the products are in use," reports Dr. Anthony Temple, president-elect of the American Association of Poison Control Centers. Drugs, including vitamins and iron pills, are also a potential danger for children. Children try to copy their parents' behavior.

Here are ways to protect your child.

- Store household products and medicines separately, out of sight and out of reach of children; lock them up when possible.

- When taking medicines or drugs, do it out of the sight of children.

- If you do buy medicines that come in safety packaging, be sure to take advantage of them. The hard-to-open caps have helped in reducing aspirin poisoning by nearly 200 percent, but many adults get lazy about returning the cap properly.

- If you are using a product when called to the door or phone, take it with you, or return to safe storage.

- Keep houseplants out of a child's reach.

- Write the telephone number of your physician or poison control center or hospital and attach it to your telephone; educate older children and baby sitters how to use the number.

Though prevention is essential, you should also be aware of the early signs of poisoning. These include nausea, vomiting, rapid breathing, more irritability or sleepiness than usual and burns on the lips or tongue.

"If a poison accident does occur, becoming hysterical is the worst thing an adult can do," says Temple. "Calm lets you move faster." Take these steps first, before calling anyone:

Eyes, if exposed to the substance, should be washed gently with plenty of water (or milk) for 10 to 15 minutes with eyelids held open. Do not allow victim to rub eyes.

Skin exposed should be washed with large amounts of water, and then washed again with soap if possible.

Mouth should be inspected inside and the harmful substance removed. Examine for any burns, cuts or unusual colorings. Then wipe out the mouth with a cloth and wash thoroughly with water. If caustic poison has been swallowed, immediately give victim one or two glassfuls of milk (or water).

Breathing, if stopped, should be resumed immediately by artificial respiration; do not stop until breathing resumes.

After these crucial steps are taken, then telephone for help to either your local poison control center, hospital emergency room or family physician. They may recommend that you induce vomiting, and if so, you should do it only with syrup of ipecac — the most important item to have in your home (available without a prescription at any pharmacy).

Other methods of causing vomiting — such as putting a finger down the patient's throat or using salt water — are not as effective and could be dangerous. Never induce vomiting if the patient is unconscious or has swallowed drain cleaners or other strong caustics. Dr. Temple warns that vomiting should never be induced unless instructed to do so by medical personnel. And when you go to the hospital, take the poison container or poisonous plant with you to assist hospital personnel in selecting treatment.

If your child is a poor reader

—see how phonics can help him

Try it at our risk—for two weeks!

See how your child can learn to read better and spell better in just a few weeks with records that teach him by phonics, at home! Mail Free Trial Coupon below.

Would you like to see your child gain as much as a full year's grade in reading in as little as six weeks' time? These are results parents have seen again and again with this simple home-tutoring course in reading.

Mrs. J. J. Webb, Napa, Cal. writes: "After sending my 10 year old son to Special Reading School at $12.50 per hour, spending $700 on this tutoring, I saw your ad and sent for The Sound Way to Easy Reading. In only 8 weeks he learned more from your course than from his Special Reading School. I am thrilled to see how well he reads."

Mrs. J. J. Webb is only one of over 750,000 parents who have turned to The Sound Way of Easy Reading for help in the frustrating problem of a child who can't read. And more than 60,000 schools use it.

Teaches with records

Don't think it's all your child's fault if he hasn't learned to read. Many of our brightest children are not able to grasp the "look-and-say" method taught in most schools today. Yet, many educators insist that at least 40% of our children must have formal training in phonics—that they will never master reading without it!

That is why so many poor readers show remarkable progress with The Sound Way to Easy Reading. It teaches reading by the phonics method (the method by which most parents learned to read years ago). Its phonograph records and charts show your child exactly what to do, so he can teach himself without any help from you.

The records drill him in the sounds of the 26 letters in the alphabet and their blends. Once he learns the 123 basic phonics sounds in this course he can read up to 85% of the words in the English language. It works for children of all ages—in the earliest grades, and even in high school.

Tested and proved

In a pilot study by university psychologists, children gained up to a full year's grade in oral reading skill after only 30 lessons with The Sound Way to Easy Reading.

A semester-long study involving 214 pupils in 4 Chicago schools proved that the classes given The Sound Way to Easy Reading showed marked improvement in reading and spelling over the control groups.

Help your child now

By starting your child on The Sound Way to Easy Reading now, you can change his entire attitude toward school—turn his sense of failure into the joy of success. Try it free for two weeks. You send no money—just mail this coupon now!

USED BY 750,000 PARENTS who send many letters like these:

Advanced two years—"Your course has made my son want to read. No more frustration with words he doesn't know, he just concentrates and sounds them out. In 7 months, Steve's reading level advanced two years."
Mrs. R. Collins, Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

Better report cards—"If I had known about your course before, Gregory would not have had to repeat 3rd grade. In only 7 weeks, he reads and spells much better, and is bringing home better report cards."
Mrs. R. Quinn, Cheektowaga, N.Y.

IN 60,000 SCHOOLS

teachers are highly enthusiastic

Second grade—"Your course is the best teaching aid a teacher could have. I have been using it for the past 2 years for my basic second grade reading course. My class looks forward to the record quizzes. Their improvement in reading and spelling has been outstanding."
Mrs. Diane Williamson, Chicasaw, Ala.

Remarkable improvement—"I have seen my remedial groups advance 1½ to 2½ levels in reading in 6 months and show 85% to 90% improvement in spelling. A low achievement 6th grade group showed remarkable improvement. I have convinced many teachers in our school to use your course."

John Cheever's Daughter, Susan, Succeeds in Her Own Write

By Emily Newhall

Cloistered in the little yellow guest bedroom at the bottom of the house, pounding away at the typewriter she had worked with for more than three months, Susan Cheever knew that she was nearing the end of her first novel. It was like the finish of a marathon.

Just minutes after the last sentence was written, a telegram came from a friend 4,000 miles away in New York, agreeing to try to sell the manuscript.

"I was happy — just ecstatic," beams the 36-year-old Cheever, the oldest child of novelist John Cheever. "The whole thing of setting out to write a novel — and doing it — was a fabulous high. I was happier at that moment than I've been ever since."

Now, almost two years later, Cheever seems far away from the village of Fayence, where she lived that summer while writing her novel, Looking for Work. Published by Simon & Schuster three months ago, the book is the semiautobiographical story of a young woman's growing self-realization.

Nancy Crampton

Cheever's plans had gotten off the ground when Calvin Tomkins, the man she was romantically involved with, persuaded her in 1978 to leave her writing job at Newsweek magazine and head for the South of France. Cheever figured that she could just afford six months there if she sold her car, took her vacation pay, a tax refund — and stretched.

What happened for her was a love affair with the typewriter. "I couldn't sleep, eat or talk about anything else," she says with a laugh. "The book just exploded out — very rough and raw. Its strength is its energy." The book (which received mixed reviews) was sold quickly for $20,000 and then the movie rights garnered another $25,000.

The woman who describes her life in Looking for Work makes frequent changes of city and heart and eventually acquires a long-sought-after job as a writer at Newsweek. Named Salley Gardens (because Cheever thought it a "good name for someone who's sort of stupid about love"), the protagonist is the daughter of a steely and generally mysterious college professor. Cheever says this character is not based on her own father. The book follows Salley through a bad marriage (Cheever's own marriage to Robert Cowley, son of writer/editor Malcolm Cowley broke up after seven years) and eventually, as Salley starts to make positive steps to affirm her existence — including a more sincere effort at "looking for work" — the marriage splits apart.

Cheever admits that much of the novel comes out of her own experience, but she says she holds little resemblance to Salley: "Or maybe part of me is like that or was for a while once. I hope I'm better at making sense of my life than she is. I know I'm less passive."

Emily Newhall is a researcher/reporter for Newsweek magazine.

Cheever goes on to describe herself as "a person who's always angry, always indignant. I'm the kind of person who, when my father used to take me for a walk on Sunday, couldn't bear it that the stores were shut and would hurl myself against the windows."

Cheever's dimpled smile and direct, wryly humorous manner belie the anger she sees in herself. She describes a very different childhood from the one she set out for Salley in the book. There were no famous writers and "intellectuals" visiting the Cheever home. The family didn't live on New York's ritzy Sutton Place, and there was no extra money.

Instead, Cheever grew up modestly in a remodeled town shed on a big estate in Scarborough, a suburb outside New York City. She read incessantly. "I was totally unpopular and never went out of doors. I was this fat, white slug of a child, and that upset my parents." Cheever claims that her father's name hasn't opened any doors. Her friend Peter Matson, who handled her book and who is now her agent, says, "It doesn't hurt to have a last name like Cheever or Rockefeller. But it's not true that the book wouldn't have been published without it."

John Cheever didn't see the manuscript of his daughter's book until it was in the hands of her agent. "My parents' literary standards are incredibly high," Susan says. "What I didn't realize was that they don't apply those same standards to me because they love me. They liked the book. Maybe they would've even if it wasn't mine."

Cheever had resisted writing fiction — her father's genre — until she was 35. But the germ was there. She'd also learned by just being around her father, mainly that "being a writer of fiction is not a mysterious thing."

In her relationship with her father, Cheever sees no special literary comradeship: "He has behaved toward me in a way that he would've even if he was a banker." John Cheever has supported his daughter emotionally: "He knows that writing is a very lonely little business. He makes me feel O.K. to be alone and in pain all the time."

Cheever is currently at work on her second novel. And what she wants more than anything is "to be in my own little place with my typewriter and write my little heart out."

We asked women what they wanted in a handbag. Here's what they said!

We've been designing handbags for 20 years. This time we decided to do it differently. Before we began, we got 31 women of all ages together in a room and spent 6 solid hours letting them tell us what they wanted in a handbag — and what they definitely did not want. Then, with their ideas in mind, we went to work. The result is a bag with so many of our 31 ladies' ideas in it, its name just had to be "Ladies' Choice." Read on! See how many of their ideas match yours!

They said, "Give us a bag with lots of room!"

All of our ladies agreed: nothing's worse than a little bitty bag that looks pretty in a store, but won't hold the things they need to carry. So we designed our new bag with one huge compartment, 9 inches deep... 11 inches long... 4 inches wide. Almost 400 cubic inches of interior space! It doesn't look like a "big bag" — but there's plenty of room inside for everything you need with you... every time you go out!

"I want to get to my keys fast!"

Being able to find keys in a hurry was a problem for all our ladies. That's why we've put TWO "Insta-Find" Key Chains in every Ladies' Choice Bag. Slip house keys on one... car keys on the other. Snap them both into your bag. Need your keys fast? just reach in, and... SNAP! You've got them!

That's when we showed them a new kind of bag material we had developed — our exclusive Ambahyde™ Expanded Vinyl. Soft as a kitten!

Supple as glovetanned leather. Take a damp cloth to it, and dirt and fingerprints wipe clean away. Our ladies loved it. You will, too!

Quality craftsmanship everywhere you look!

All our ladies expected their bags to be "well made." This one gives you fine handbag craftsmanship in every detail. Neat, even stitching. Carefully turned edges. Sewn seams. Quality fittings. Even a stunning "Prestige-Pattern" bag lining! This is an inexpensive bag. But it is not a "cheap" one!

Take your choice of FIVE fashion colors!

Great style... most-wanted features... superb quality. Our Ladies' Choice Bag gives you all three. Plus your choice of 5 glowing colors. Order today! Use your bag for 30 days. If not delighted, return it for full refund — guaranteed!

"Can't you give us a slim, practical wallet?"

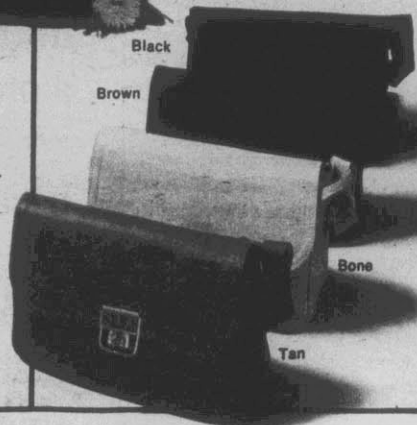

None of our ladies liked fat, bulgy wallets. So we designed a brand new kind of wallet just for our Ladies' Choice. Very simple. Totally practical. A long, roomy money compartment. See-thru pockets for credit cards and ID cards. A basic checkbook holder. Everything you need when you go shopping — all in one slim-trim handful. Then, so you'll never have to fumble for it, we put a special pocket inside the bag to keep the wallet handy!

"Please — make this bag SOFT!"

All 31 ladies said they liked handbags that were soft... hated bags that were "as stiff as cardboard."

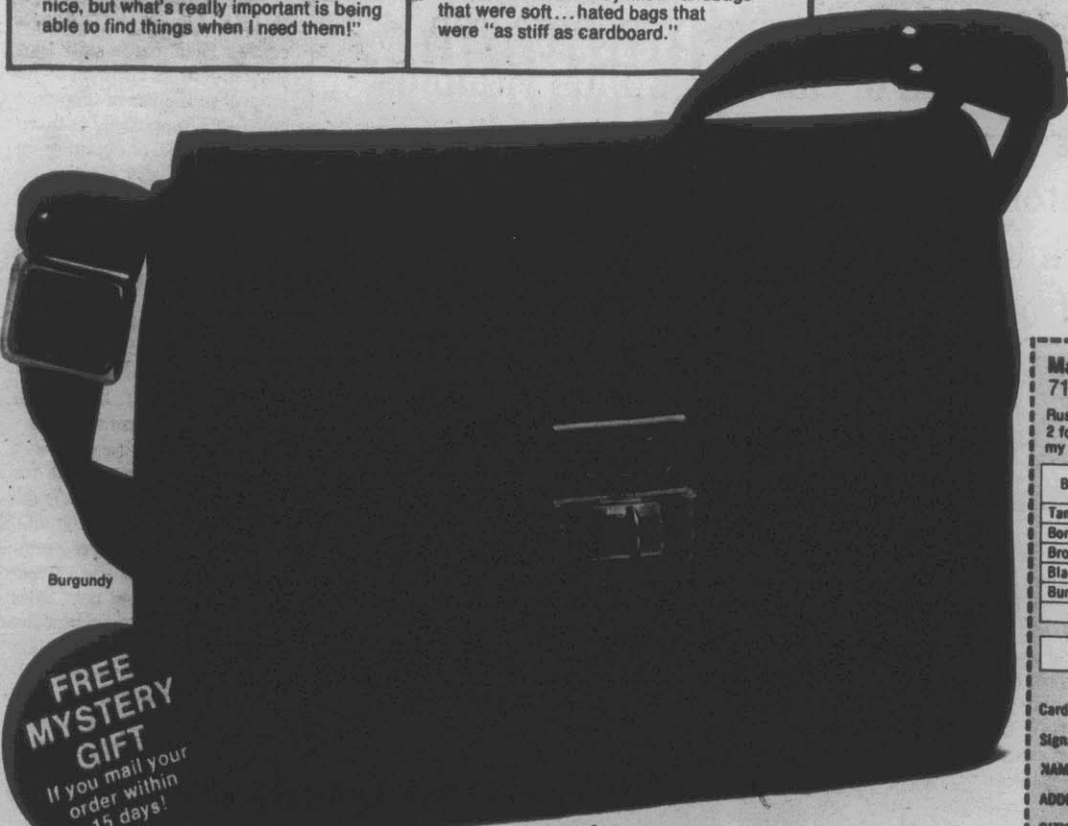

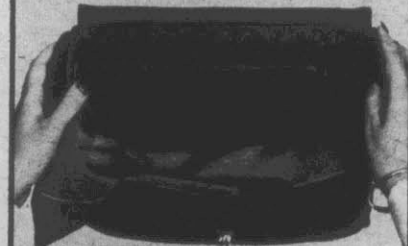

Love initials on bags? Hate the idea? This bag gives you a choice!

Half our ladies liked the idea of initials on their handbags. The other half didn't. So we designed our Ladies' Choice to please both. It comes with your 3 Gold-Tone initials. And there's a framed "box" for them just above the turn-buckle clasp. You can use the initials, or not. As the photo shows, the bag looks great either way!

"I need to get to things quickly and easily!"

So we designed this new bag to open a full 8 inches W-I-D-E. You can see everything... get to anything... instantly! As one smart lady said, "A roomy bag is nice, but what's really important is being able to find things when I need them!"

Facts & Fallacies

By Dr. Frederick J. Stare and
Dr. Elizabeth M. Whelan

How much weight is too much? This is a personal decision that must be determined by an individual and his or her physician. Fat is the result of eating too many calories and burning off too few. To lose weight, you reverse the process by cutting down on what you consume and getting more exercise. And cutting down on calories can best be done with a sensible, nutritious diet, rather than one of the current fad diets, which provide only temporary results and lack the nutrition you need. Here are some facts and fallacies about dieting.

Fallacy: Fasting Is a Good Way to Lose Weight

FACT: Fasting is an excellent way to simply lose weight — but it is neither safe nor ultimately effective. The idea of weight control is learning to live with food, not without it.

Today, a popular approach to fasting is the "modified fasting" diet, which includes a protein supplement and additional vitamins and minerals. The addition of protein theoretically lessens some of the more drastic side effects of fasting, specifically by preventing the body from raiding the protein in its own muscles and vital organs and thereby utilizing mainly its stores of fat. But many protein supplements are of such poor quality that they are useless.

With or without the addition of protein, any prolonged fasting-type diet is likely to be accompanied by such side effects as hair loss, muscle weakness, dizziness, nausea, headaches, constipation and even nervous disorders. Because of the resulting change in body chemistry, even greater potential danger exists for dieters who may be predisposed — often with no prior knowledge — to liver, kidney, heart or gastrointestinal tract problems.

At best, fasting gives only temporary results. At worst, it can be disastrous.

Fallacy: "Low-Carbohydrate" Diets Help You Get Thin Fast

FACT: It's true that a drastic limitation of carbohydrate intake can lead to temporary weight loss. But consider the effect that such a regimen has on your body: First, a diet low in carbohydrates promotes temporary salt loss, which leads to dehy-

IF YOU NEED TO BUILD UP YOUR BLOOD DON'T COUNT ON VITAMINS

Iron poor blood is the most widespread nutritional ailment in America today. In fact, it's a problem that millions of American women face. And all the vitamins in the world can't help, because vitamins don't contain iron.

Take Geritol, America's #1 iron and vitamin supplement. Geritol is so rich in iron, just one tablet each day gives you more iron than even a pound of calf's liver. Plus vitamins important to your health.

Geritol will actually build iron poor blood back to normal. That's what makes it different from just plain vitamins—and so important to you.

dration. Loss of water means loss of weight, but this is not loss of fat! Second, such a diet soon becomes uninteresting, and the dieter will inevitably eat less of the foods included. This may sound like a good path to weight control, but it isn't. The problem here is that the dieter isn't getting nutritionally balanced meals and before long, having tired of a boring menu, he will generally return to his old eating habits. The weight initially "lost" quickly returns.

We need food with all types of nutrients — including carbohydrates — to keep our bodies in top operating condition. If you want to lose weight safely and permanently, there is only one way — eat less of a varied diet and exercise regularly.

Fallacy: A High-Fiber Diet Will Save Your Life

FACT: Although claims have been made that additional fiber in the diet will offer protection from heart disease, cancer of the colon and other maladies, neither research with animals nor studies of Americans on high-fiber diets support this theory.

A few years ago, a British research group observed that the incidence of several disorders was much lower in certain developing countries of Africa than in Western countries. The difference seemed to be that these Africans consume extremely fibrous diets while Americans tend toward an excess of processed, low-fiber foods. But the fact still remains that, on the average, Americans live much longer than members of the African groups. Thus, great numbers of these Africans simply don't live long enough to develop the types of disease that generally appear in middle or old age.

Bran, fibrous vegetables and related foods are good-tasting, nutritious contributions to any diet. If you have a problem with constipation, increased fiber will probably bring relief. But it does not constitute the "save-your-life" diet. Indeed, too much fiber can bind with other nutrients in the intestines and interfere with proper absorption of vital elements needed by the body.

Fallacy: The Grapefruit Diet Performs Miracles

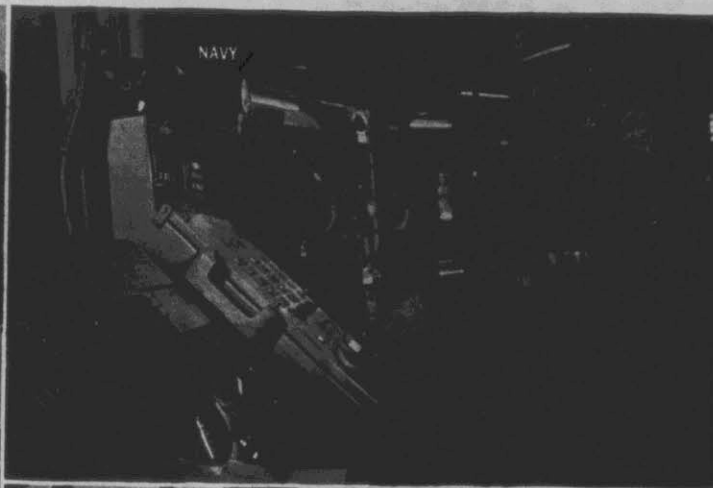

FACT: The original "grapefruit diet" was one of the handles applied to the so-called "Mayo Diet," which has never been in any way connected with the Mayo Clinic, although many dieters over the years have been led to believe otherwise.

The first grapefruit diet included only grapefruit and black coffee. Then bacon and eggs were added. As the myth of the magical properties of grapefruit grew — it supposedly had enzymes capable of "burning fat away" — the diet became increasingly less restrictive, until eventually, one was allowed to eat almost anything as long as every meal led off with half a grapefruit.

Grapefruit is a fine food, low in calories, contributing a substantial amount of vitamin C. But it is only that. It does not possess any magical enzymes.

Most recent in the grapefruit hoax are the new claims for "grapefruit tablets," which invite you to "watch pounds roll off." These tablets, however, warn that the dieter must also eat two balanced meals per day. Does this version of the grapefruit diet work? Of course it does. If you eat two regular-portioned, balanced meals per day instead of three, you will be consuming fewer calories; hence you will lose weight.

Helpful Recipes Using Easter Sunday Leftovers

Start the week with a smile and try these easy recipes planned to dress-up your remaining holiday fare.

By Marlyn Hansen

PINEAPPLE UPSIDE DOWN HAM LOAF

- ¼ cup packed brown sugar
- ¼ cup vinegar
- 2 teaspoons dry mustard
- 1 can (8¼ oz.) sliced pineapple
- 2 cups ground cooked ham
- 1 lb. bulk sausage meat
- 1 cup fine dry bread crumbs
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- ¼ cup finely chopped onion
- 1 cup milk
- 2 eggs, lightly beaten
- 1½ teaspoons dry mustard
- Dash Tabasco

1. Combine brown sugar, vinegar, 2 teaspoons dry mustard and 2 tablespoons pineapple liquid. Spread mixture in bottom of 9 x 5 x 3-inch loaf pan.
2. Arrange drained pineapple slices over brown sugar mixture.
3. In large bowl, combine ham, sausage meat, bread crumbs, Worcestershire sauce, onion, milk, eggs, mustard and Tabasco. Mix lightly, but thoroughly.
4. Spoon ham mixture into loaf pan, being careful not to disturb pineapple.
5. Bake in preheated 350°F. oven for 1½ hours. Pour off excess liquid from pan; let loaf settle about 10 minutes, then invert onto serving platter.
6. Garnish with parsley sprigs or leafy celery tops. Good served with baked sweet potatoes. Makes 6 to 8 servings

LAMB AND NOODLE CASSEROLE

- 1 cup diced cooked lamb
- ¼ cup sliced celery
- ¼ cup sliced onion
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 can (10½ oz.) condensed golden mushroom soup
- ¼ cup water
- ¼ cup white wine or apple juice
- ½ cup cooked sliced carrots
- 1 teaspoon grated orange rind
- 1 teaspoon ground coriander, ground cumin or curry powder
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- Dash pepper
- 2 cups cooked medium noodles
- 3 tablespoons buttered bread crumbs or crushed potato chips

1. In heavy saucepan, cook lamb, celery and onion in butter until onion is translucent.
2. Stir in soup, water, wine, carrots, orange rind, coriander, salt and pepper.
3. Spoon 1 cup noodles into 1½-quart casserole; add half of soup mixture. Repeat. Top with crumbs. Bake at 375°F. for 20 minutes.

Makes 2 to 4 servings

EGG-AND-CHEESE NOODLE CASSEROLE

- 1 pkg. (8 oz.) spinach or egg noodles, ¼ inch wide
- ¾ qt. boiling water
- 1 tablespoon salt
- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- ¼ cup all-purpose flour
- 2 cups milk
- 1 teaspoon seasoned salt
- ¼ teaspoon Italian seasoning or blended herbs
- Four twists freshly ground black pepper
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
- 1 cup ricotta or cottage cheese
- 2 cups (8 oz.) shredded mozzarella or Muenster cheese
- 5 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
- 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan or Romano cheese

1. Preheat oven to 350°F. Grease a 2-quart casserole.
2. Cook noodles in 3 quarts boiling water, to which 1 tablespoon of salt has been added, for 6 minutes, or until just tender. Drain, rinse with cold water; drain.
3. Make sauce: In medium saucepan, heat butter until melted. Stir in flour smoothly. Add milk all at once. Bring to boiling, stirring with wire whisk until bubbly. Season with seasoned salt, Italian seasoning, pepper and onion.
4. Layer ingredients in prepared casserole: ½ of noodles, ½ of ricotta, ½ of eggs.
5. Repeat with remaining ingredients, topping casserole with sprinkling of grated Parmesan cheese.
6. Bake for 45 to 50 minutes, or until casserole is bubbly throughout.

Makes 6 servings

CURRY CHEESE EGG DIP

- 1 package (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened
- 3 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
- ¼ cup toasted coconut
- 2 tablespoons currants or finely chopped raisins
- ¼-½ teaspoon curry powder
- Water, optional

1. Beat cream cheese until light; stir in eggs, coconut, currants and curry. Cover; refrigerate to blend flavors.
2. If needed, stir in water, 1 tablespoon at a time, until of good dipping consistency.
3. Serve with fruits such as apple or pear wedges, banana chunks or assorted vegetable dippers. Makes approx. 2 cups dip

CHINESE FRIED RICE

- 1½ cups rice
- ¾ cup water or chicken broth
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- 3 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 2 eggs, beaten
- ½ cup sliced green onions, with tops
- ½ cup cooked pork, chicken, beef or lamb cut in short julienne strips
- ¼ cup cooked ham cut in short julienne strips
- 2 tablespoons soy sauce
- 2 tablespoons dry sherry or white wine
- ¼ teaspoon sugar
- ¼ teaspoon salt

1. Cook rice with water and 1½ teaspoons salt according to package directions; chill thoroughly.
2. Heat ½ of the oil in a large skillet. Add eggs. Cook 1 minute, stirring slightly. Remove from pan. Spread on a flat plate in a thin layer and cool. Cut into thin strips.

3. Add remaining oil to skillet and heat. Add onions and meat. Cook and stir just until heated.

4. Add cold rice; stir well to coat rice with oil. Stir in eggs and remaining ingredients; heat thoroughly. Makes 8 servings

MIDDLE EASTERN PILAF

- ½ cup chopped onion
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 1 cup rice
- ½ cup sliced almonds
- 2 cups diced cooked lamb
- 2½ cups chicken or beef broth
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
- ½ cup golden raisins
- 2 tablespoons fresh chopped parsley
- 1½ teaspoons fresh chopped mint leaves (or ½ teaspoon dried mint leaves)

1. Sauté onion in butter and oil in medium saucepan until tender, about 5 minutes. Add rice and almonds. Cook over low heat, stirring until golden.

2. Add lamb, chicken broth, salt and pepper. Heat to boiling; reduce heat. Cover tightly and simmer 20 minutes.

3. Remove from heat and stir in remaining ingredients. Let stand, covered, until all liquid is absorbed. Makes 6 servings

HAM-OLIVE MOUSSE

- 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
- 2 cups chicken broth
- 1½ teaspoons curry powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 2¼ cups ground cooked ham or chicken
- 1 cup pitted ripe olives, cut in wedges
- ½ cup thinly sliced celery
- ¼ cup chopped pimiento
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
- ½ cup heavy cream, whipped
- ¼ cup mayonnaise or mayonnaise-type salad dressing
- Crisp lettuce leaves, ripe olives and cherry tomatoes for garnish

1. Soften gelatin in ½ cup of the chicken broth. Heat remaining broth with curry powder and salt. Add gelatin; stir to dissolve. Add lemon juice; cool until slightly thickened.

2. Add chicken, olives, celery, pimiento and mayonnaise into gelatin mixture. Rinse a 6-cup ring mold with cold water. Fill mold with gelatin mixture. Chill for several hours or overnight.

3. Unmold onto attractive serving plate and garnish with crisp lettuce leaves, ripe olives and cherry tomatoes.

Makes 6 servings

An Amazing New Diet Idea!

HOW TO BURN OFF BODY FAT, HOUR-BY-HOUR!

MEDICAL DOCTOR'S NEW DISCOVERY
BURNS AWAY MORE FAT AND FLUID THAN IF YOU RAN 98 MILES PER WEEK!

Dear Friend,

My name is Don Schwerdtfeger. I am an M.D. and have been practicing medicine here in San Diego for 14 years.

I am reproducing my business card at the bottom of this page and I am writing to ask the people of America a personal favor.

If any of you will do this favor for me you will be helping me with my research and I will gladly pay you for your help.

Here is what it is all about: I am a psychiatrist and in addition to my other patients I have been helping people with alcohol and drug addictions. So far, I have treated more than 2500 various types of drug addicts.

But strangely enough, over the years, my practice has taught me that over eating is even more difficult to deal with than many hard-core drug addictions.

Some time ago I began to realize that any person who is overweight needs much more than just a diet. I now know that every overweight person needs an anti-fat weapon that is both safe and very powerful!

Finally, after years of research, I feel I have developed just such a weapon. What it consists of is a new diet product and a system that actually burns off body fat, hour-by-hour!

Believe it or not, my new diet system burns away more fat and fluid than if you ran 98 miles per week.

Many of the people who have tested my program have lost as much as 2 pounds of fat and fluid every day for the first week. Actually, many people have reported a 6 pound weight loss in just the first 48 hours! After the first week, many people continue to lose as much as 9 pounds every two weeks thereafter. Some people (who were very obese) have used my method to lose 50, 60 and even 100 pounds and more.

When you begin to use this program, you can expect to be able to measure the difference in your waistline in just 24 to 48 hours. You will probably lose more inches each week than even if you faithfully did hundreds of situps every day. You may very well lose as much as 3 to 5 inches off your waistline in the first month. If you are a woman you can lose as much as a full dress size in only 7 days.

Apparently, what happens is that my diet system allows your body to break down your excess body fat and flush it out of your system quite rapidly.

The amazing thing, of course, is the speed at which this system works. It is rather remarkable to throw off as much as 6 pounds of fat and fluid in the very first weekend. Just imagine how it must feel to drop up to 2 pounds a day and shrink your waistline up to 3 inches the first week.

My first concern when I developed this program was safety. Therefore, my anti-fat formula contains absolutely no drugs. It is made up entirely of 100% natural ingredients. I first tested it on myself and I now use it religiously every day. I have found that my program can even help people who have been hopelessly overweight all their lives, including those who need to lose 20 to 30 or 70 pounds or more.

My diet product does not necessarily produce a specific spot reduction, but if you are considerably overweight a significant overall loss of excess pounds could easily mean that you could lose:

- 6 inches off waistline
- 4 inches off stomach
- 4 inches off buttocks
- 3 inches off thighs
- 5 inches off hips

Remember — you don't have to wait weeks for results with my system. It starts instantly! You can actually see the results in just a few days.

The way you use this formula is simple. All you do is mix it with a glass of your favorite beverage and drink it every day the first thing in the morning.

Then, during the rest of the day, you eat a wide selection of tasty foods which are scientifically programmed to maintain a high level of fat burn-off.

That's all there is to it. This may be the most effective fat-burning method ever developed. It is not a drug. It is not a gimmick. It is a formula that I was only able to develop after years of research and, as I said before, I use it myself.

It works. And now I want to spread the word to other doctors so they can use my diet system to help all of their overweight patients. To make a long story short, what I want to do is write an article and have it published in the various medical journals as I sincerely felt this is the best way to convince other doctors of the value of my system.

But I need a lot of proof in order to get my article published and this is where you can help me. And, as I said before, I will be more than happy to repay you for your help.

So therefore, here is what I would like for you to do: if you or any member of your family is overweight I would like for you to go ahead and order a supply of my crash-loss system and test it yourself. It is sold by Millburn Products, Incorporated. As soon as you receive this fantastic diet system — start the program and see if it works for you. Frankly, this or any other diet program will not work for everyone because a very small percentage of people have unusual problems. (By the way, naturally you should check with your doctor before you use this or any other diet plan.) However, Millburn Products is so positive about this diet system that they are making the following guarantee:

IF YOU HAVE NOT LOST UP TO 6 POUNDS IN THE FIRST 48 HOURS AND UP TO 12 POUNDS IN THE FIRST WEEK, OR IF FOR ANY REASON YOU ARE NOT 100% SATISFIED — THEN SEND BACK THE EMPTY PRODUCT CONTAINER AND THE COMPANY WILL

“...The amazing thing, of course, is the speed at which this program works. It is rather remarkable to throw off as much as 6 pounds of fluid and fat in the very first weekend...”

Anyway, if I am right I want you to write me a letter. Don't send the letter to Millburn Products. Send it to me at the address on my business card. In the letter tell me how much weight you have lost and how you feel about my product, and how much of it you originally ordered.

In return for this favor (as soon as I get your letter) I will immediately send you another supply of my new diet product and I will send it to you absolutely free.

The amount that I will send you will be the same amount that you order now from Millburn Products. This will be my way of thanking you for helping me with my research. Also, in the long run, I honestly feel that with your help and the help of other nice people like yourself that I can do a lot to help people who have been struggling for years with a weight problem.

Sincerely,

Don Schwerdtfeger, M.D.

Male Infertility: It Can Be Treated

By Paula Dranov

The waiting room of doctors Richard Amelar and Lawrence Dubin's New York City office is decorated with birth announcements and baby pictures, proof positive of the work they do. Drs. Amelar and Dubin, both urologists, are among the country's leading specialists in male infertility.

Though there has been a great deal of focus on female infertility, male infertility is a much more widespread problem than is generally recognized. Men alone are responsible for 30 percent of all infertility and play significant roles in another 20 percent — that is, in those cases where male and female problems overlap. Happily, many of these male disorders can be treated successfully with drugs or surgery. "Sixty percent of the men can be helped," reports Amelar.

Just what are these treatable cases of male infertility? And how quickly can they be diagnosed and treated?

fect fertility, stress must be of extreme proportions — not just the daily pressures of life and work.

But, by far, the most common cause of infertility is varicocele, a condition in which blood flows backward down a vein toward, rather than away from, the left testicle. Based on their own studies, Amelar and Dubin attribute 39 percent of all male infertility to this condition. A diagnosis can be made on the basis of a physical examination, and varicocele can be corrected by a simple operation that requires only an overnight stay in the hospital. After surgery, 70 percent of patients show improvement in semen quality and more than 50 percent of them are able to father a child. (Between 15 and 20 percent of all men have a varicocele, but in some cases, semen quality is unaffected, and so an operation is not necessary.)

Another 20 percent of all male infertility is due to a variety of hormonal disorders. Often these abnormalities — and

In up to half of all childless couples, it's the man who isn't fertile — but there's help available.

When a woman who has been trying for an extended time to get pregnant has no success, she will most likely visit a doctor to find out what's wrong. It's usually her gynecologist who recommends that the husband be seen by a urologist. For the man, the first step is a semen analysis, a laboratory procedure that can tell doctors whether or not further testing and research are necessary. It includes a sperm count, an assessment of how active the sperm are and how normal they are in size and shape. These tests are done routinely at labs throughout the country.

Ideally, at least 60 percent of a man's sperm should be speeding forward in a straight line. If they are not moving at all, are moving only slightly or are making only slow progress forward, something is wrong. Normal shape is also important.

Poor semen quality indicates only that there's something wrong. At this point, the patient gets a complete examination, which includes a medical and sexual history. The actual cause of male infertility can be traced to any number of physical ailments — illnesses such as mumps, tuberculosis, gonorrhea; disorders such as diabetes; exposure to radiation or certain medicines; allergic reactions; abnormalities in genital development. Even body heat and climate can affect fertility. Stress, anxiety and emotional tension are also factors to be considered, although, in order to affect fertility, stress must be of extreme proportions — not just the daily pressures of life and work. But these are the trickiest problems to treat — even identifying underlying hormonal imbalances can be a long-term and expensive proposition.

Still another common cause of infertility is a too high or too low volume of semen. In these cases, some couples have been helped to achieve pregnancies by following a doctor's instruction as to sexual technique.

Sexual problems account for about 10 percent of all cases of male infertility. The most widespread of these is impotence, the inability to either initiate or complete sexual relations. Many of these cases are psychological, not physical, in origin, and the solution to the problem can sometimes be as simple as some reassurance and instruction from a doctor. New research on impotence indicates, however, that more cases than previously realized reflect certain hormonal abnormalities. In many instances, these can be corrected.

For those couples medical science simply can't help to have their own children, there are the options of adoption and for those whose views permit it, artificial insemination.

Considering the emotional aspect of male infertility and the unhappiness it can cause, Amelar and Dubin stress the importance of discussing and explaining symptoms and treatment with both husband and wife. States Amelar: "You can't lose sight of the fact that in dealing with these problems, you're dealing not just with the man, but with a couple." FW

QUIPS & QUOTES

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY

I LIKE CATS

I like cats. I like their fur,
So soft and fine. I like their purr.
I like the way they curl around,
Can be a ball, then come unwound,

Can sleep and then be wide awake;
It seems to take but half a shake.
I wish I could relax as easily
And then rise up so fresh and breezily.

I'd like, like them, to pad around
On padded paws without a sound
And have my food set out to eat
And pay by brushing legs and feet.

I'd also like, within those paws,
Their quick-extended, hawkish claws.
No more than cats would I abuse
them,
But there are times when I could use them.

THROUGH A CHILD'S EYES

While I was baby-sitting my two grandchildren, Emile, 2, and Zach, 5, I went into the kitchen to tend to chores. Suddenly the 2-year-old came running to me, crying bitterly. I asked what the matter was, and she replied tearfully, "Zachary is hurting myself."

PEOPLE QUIZ/By John E. Gibson

How Movies Affect Your Behavior

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Movies have a direct effect on the attitude, outlook and behavior of a great many people.
2. Hero worship of a movie star or other celebrity tells a lot about a person.
3. Movies provide a valuable release from nervous tension.
4. There are some movies that certain people should never see.

ANSWERS

1. True. Studies at the University of North Carolina have demonstrated that movies frequently motivate a viewer to perform acts "related to those he has seen on the screen." Furthermore, it is noted that the movie may increase for him the importance of the freedom to do so. Thus, seeing an actor behave in a certain way will increase the viewer's motivation to do likewise and increase the importance of being able to do so.

2. True. Studies of such hero worship, conducted at the University of Virginia, show that "when we choose or create heroes... we tell one another how we see the world and what we take to be the most important things in our lives. Through our heroes we announce to one another who and what we really are." The findings show that when a personage is singled out for hero worship, he or she is usually the embodiment of what the individual strives to be but manages to approximate only on rare occasions. Ordinarily, hero worship does not indicate any mental or emotional aberration, for it is noted that "it is possible for one to make a considerable emotional investment in a hero (or heroine), and even to endow him with qualities more fantasized than real, without making any pathological break with reality." It is observed, however, that hero worship does become pathological when the distinction between the self and the hero breaks down.

3. True. Many movies serve to transport the viewer from his personal worries and anxieties, enabling him to relax and return to his own problems with a better perspective. University of Toronto studies show, however, that this is not true of all movies: films depicting aggressive themes do not have this effect.

4. True. Studies at Cincinnati's General Hospital psychiatric clinic have shown that emotionally susceptible people run a risk of contracting what specialists term cinema neurosis by attending films which deal threateningly with areas of the macabre and occult. Reactions may include "classic symptoms of insomnia, excitability, hyperactivity, irritability, decreased appetite and paranoia."

My Feet Were Killing Me ...Until I Discovered the Miracle in Germany!

It was the European trip I had always dreamed about. I had the time and money to go where I wanted—see what I wanted. But I soon learned that money and time don't mean much when your feet hurt too much to walk. After a few days of sight-seeing my feet were killing me.

Oh, I tried to keep going. In Paris I limped through Notre Dame and along the Champs-Élysées. And I went up in the Eiffel Tower although I can't honestly say I remember the view. My feet were so tired and sore my whole body ached. While everybody else was having a great time, I was in my hotel room. I didn't even feel like sitting in a sidewalk cafe.

The whole trip was like that until I got to Hamburg, Germany. There, by accident, I happened to hear about an exciting breakthrough for anyone who suffers from sore, aching feet and legs.

This wonderful invention was a custom-made foot support called Flexible Featherspring. When I got a pair and slipped them into my shoes my pain disappeared almost instantly. The flexible shock absorbing support they gave my feet was like cradling them on a cushion of air. I could walk, stand, even run. The relief was truly a miracle.

And just one pair was all I needed. I learned that women also can wear them—even with sandals and open backed shoes. They're completely invisible.

Imagine how dumbfounded I was to discover that these miraculous devices were sold only in Europe. Right then I determined that I would share the miracle I discovered in Germany with my own countrymen.

Today thousands of Americans including those who have retired—many with foot problems far more severe than mine—have experienced this blessed relief for themselves.

Here's why Feathersprings work for them and why they can work for you. These supports are like nothing you've ever seen before. They are custom fitted and made for your feet alone! Unlike conventional devices, they actually imitate the youthful elastic support that Nature originally intended your feet to have.

Whatever your problem—corns, calluses, pain in the balls of your feet, burning nerve ends, painful ankles, old injuries, backaches or just generally sore, aching feet. Flexible Feathersprings will bring you relief with every step you take.

Don't suffer pain and discomfort needlessly. If your feet hurt, the miracle of Germany can help you. Write for more detailed information. There is no obligation whatsoever and no salesman will call.

WHAT PEOPLE SAY ABOUT THE MIRACLE:

Received my wife's Feathersprings two days ago. They are super—neither of us can believe the results. She has had terrible feet for years; already no pain. Incidentally, her sore knee is much better... As a retired physician, this result is amazing.
Dr. C.O.C. Tucson, Arizona.

"I have checked your corporation with (A Consumer Protection Agency), and received an excellent report."
H.S.H. Louisville, Kentucky

"My husband felt a great relief and no more pain. They are truly an answer to our prayers. Only wish that he had heard of them twenty years ago."
Mrs. F.S. Metairie, Louisiana

"I feel that these arches are the best money I ever spent on my feet or rather the best buy I ever made."
Mrs. E.E. Theresa, Wisconsin

Amazoy is the Trade Mark Registered U.S. Patent Office for our Meyer Z-52 Zoysia Grass

FREE PLUGS
with every order

Amazoy withstands active kids and cook-outs. Gives you time to relax, since it needs little water and cuts mowing two-thirds

GRASS SEED WILL NEVER GROW A LAWN LIKE THIS—DROUGHT & WEAR RESISTANT!
Amazoy lawns stay green right thru scorching heat and drought!

Lady Plugs In Zoysia Grass Saves Time, Work & Money

FREE! UP TO 200 AMAZOY PLUGS DURING SPECIAL INTRODUCTORY OFFER

By Jack T. Johnson, Agronomist

Every year I see people pour more and more money into their lawns. They dig, fertilize and lime. They rake it all in. They scatter their seed and roll and water it. Birds love it! Seeds which aren't washed away by rain give them a feast. But some seed grows, and soon it's time to weed, water and mow, mow...until summer comes to burn the lawn into hay, or crabgrass and diseases infest it.

That's what happens to ordinary grass, but not to Amazoy Zoysia.

"MOWED IT 2 TIMES," WRITES WOMAN
For example, Mrs. M. R. Mitter writes me how her lawn "...is the envy of all who see it. When everybody's lawns around here are brown from drought ours just stays as green as ever. I've never watered it, only when I put the plugs in...Last summer we had it mowed (2) times. Another thing, we never have to pull any weeds—it's just wonderful!"

And from Iowa came word that the state's largest Men's Garden Club picked a Zoysia lawn as the "top lawn—nearly perfect" in its area. Yet this lawn had been watered only once all summer up to August!

CHOKES OUT CRABGRASS

Thick, rich, luxurious, established Amazoy grows into a carpet of grass that chokes out crabgrass and weeds all summer long.

For Slopes, Play Areas, Bare Spots
End erosion of slopes with Amazoy. Perfect answer for hard-to-cover spots, play-worn areas.

NO NEED TO RIP OUT PRESENT GRASS—PLUG AMAZOY INTO OLD LAWN, NEW GROUND OR NURSERY AREA

Just set Amazoy plugs into holes in ground like a cork in a bottle. Plant 1 foot apart, checkerboard style.

When planted in existing lawn areas plugs will spread to drive out old, unwanted growth, including weeds—from part shade to full sun. Goes off its green color after killing frosts. Begins regaining its green color at the time when the temperature in the spring is consistently warm. This, of course, varies with climate. Easy planting instructions with order.

Your Own Supply of Plug Transplants

Established Amazoy gives you Zoysia plugs to plant in other areas as desired!

DON'T BE MISLED!
THERE IS ONLY ONE AMAZOY

Amazoy plugs are taken from genuine Z-52 Meyer Zoysia... guaranteed winter-hardened for 3 full years under the supervision of trained agronomists. Over a HALF-BILLION plugs sold! So don't take chances with inferior plugs. Accept No Substitute for Amazoy Zoysia! If it isn't Amazoy, you're not getting the plugs that made Zoysia famous.

FREE WITH ORDERS OF 600 PLUGS OR MORE

Amazoy exclusive! No one else can offer you this patented 2-way plugger. Saves bending, time, work. Light, rugged, invaluable for transplanting. Cuts away competing growth as it digs plug holes.

Cuts Your Work, Saves You Money

Your deep-rooted, established Amazoy lawn saves you time and money in many ways. It never needs replacement...ends re-seeding forever. Fertilizing and watering (water costs money, too) are rarely if ever needed. It ends the need for crabgrass killers permanently. It cuts pushing a noisy mower in the blistering sun by 1/2.

NO SEED, NO SOD!

There's no seed that produces winter-hardy Meyer Zoysia. Sod of ordinary grass brings with it the problems of seed: like weeds, diseases, burning out, other ills. Save time, work, money. Plug in Amazoy.

Meyer Z-52 Zoysia Grass was perfected by U.S. Govt., released in cooperation with U.S. Golf Assoc. as a superior grass.

Order guaranteed Amazoy now, get your lawn plugs FREE. Your order will be delivered at earliest correct time for planting in your area.

Every Plug Guaranteed to Grow In Your Area - In Your Soil

- AMAZOY WON'T WINTER KILL—has survived temperatures 30° below zero!
- AMAZOY WON'T HEAT KILL—when other grasses burn out, Amazoy remains green and lovely!

Plug Amazoy into an entire lawn or problem areas. Plug it into poor soil, "builders soil", clay or even salty, sandy beach areas. I guarantee every plug, regardless. Any plug failing to grow in 45 days replaced FREE. Since we're hardly in business for the fun of it, you know we're 100% sure of our product!

Barbie (Sigh!)

Turns 21

By Susan Lapinski

Vikki Carpentier is 9 years old and wants to look just like Barbie when she grows up. "Barbie has blond hair, long fingernails, she's tall and has long eyelashes," Vikki says enthusiastically. "She's p-r-e-t-y."

Like many other fans of the 11½-inch, vinyl-plastic fashion doll, Vikki owns more than just Barbie. She also has Barbie's little sister, Skipper, Barbie's boyfriend, Ken, and enough fashionable clothes to outfit the whole family for days. Thanks to millions of small enthusiasts like Vikki — and an estimated 2,000 grown-up collectors as well — Barbie is one of America's most enduringly popular dolls. In the more than two decades since she was first introduced to the toy trade, approximately 116 million Barbie family dolls have been sold. And despite shifting social trends and sporadic attacks from her critics, things are looking better than ever for the leggy little clotheshorse in her 21st birthday year.

No one, not even Barbie's creators, thought she would wear so well. "I can't believe anyone in his wildest dreams could have predicted she'd be around this long," says Jack Fox, spokesman for Mattel, Inc., the company that first launched Barbie at the New York Toy Fair in March, 1959. Large, life-size dolls were popular that year, and professional toy buyers were not very enthusiastic about the diminutive doll displayed in a one-piece striped swimsuit. But Barbie took off in the stores, and once her potential became known, Mattel didn't just play around with its hot property. Researchers talked to child psychologists, interviewed parents and observed children in play situations. As a result of their studies, Mattel continued to make changes in Barbie year after year: lengthening her hair for easier styling; giving her bendable joints for better posing; and providing her with some of the most tempting clothes and accessories that little girls — and their mothers — had ever seen. "It was love at first sight when I saw my first Barbie," recalls Ruth Cronk of the Bronx. "I thought, This is really cute. Imagine the clothes this doll could wear." Ruth's daughter played with six Barbies before her interests turned to other things. Then Ruth took over the collection. She now owns around 300 Barbie family dolls and publishes The International Barbie Doll Collectors Gazette, a monthly newsletter with more than 500 subscribers. (Mailing address: P.O. Box 79, Dept. FW, Bronx, N.Y. 10464).

...and then: Blondes, apparently do have more fun.

What is it about Barbie that keeps both young and old owners mesmerized? Barbie partisans say it is her glamour and charm, while critics point to her overt sexuality and rampant materialism. Barbara Sprung of the Women's Action Alliance, a group that promotes nonsexist education, calls Barbie "a poor role model" and "a symbol of materialistic American values." And a woman psychologist has suggested that the emphasis on Barbie's exciting teen-age life might deprive little girls of the nurturing feelings they experience while playing with baby dolls, since it pushes them prematurely towards maturity.

But such criticisms fail to disturb Barbie's followers. "Barbie's a toy, a fun thing," declares Sibyl DeWein, a Clarksville, Tenn., grandmother. "Do you think I'd give her to my precious granddaughters if she were dangerous?"

Sibyl, who is the co-author with Joan Ashabranner of The Encyclopedia of Barbie Dolls and Collectibles (Collector Books-Crown Publishers), points, instead, to Barbie's obvious assets: "She's a miniature doll with perfect proportions and exquisite clothes." As for the potentially high cost of keeping Barbie in fashion, Sibyl suggests restraint. "A parent teaches false values by giving a child everything. Buy a few basic dolls, a few outfits, then make furniture and other clothes yourself."

Back at Mattel, meanwhile, there are all kinds of plans to keep Barbie as irresistible to her public as ever. While last year's Barbie tilted her head, puckered up and made a kissing noise, this year's Barbie will have a roller disco outfit and her own pet Afghan hound. And perhaps to prove that she's come a long way in 21 years, in 1980 Barbie is appearing for the first time in two new ethnic versions, black and Hispanic.

For the birthday girl, it looks like it's going to be another good year.

AMAZING DOCTOR-TESTED MEDICAL FORMULA - ALLOWS YOU TO BURN AWAY THE FAT DRAIN AWAY THE FLUIDS

THIS INCREDIBLE MEDICAL BREAKTHROUGH THAT ATTACKS OVERWEIGHT TWO WAYS IS THE KEY TO TOTAL WEIGHT LOSS.

This DOCOTR-TESTED, medically proven formula is based on published reports from professors at leading medical schools. THIS TWO-WAY PUNCH IS THE MOST ADVANCED WEIGHT LOSS METHOD KNOWN TO MEDICAL SCIENCE. No other weight loss program is designed to give you a two-way knockout punch that attacks both EXCESS FAT and EXCESS FLUIDS held in the body. You can see the results everyday in your mirror — RIGHT BEFORE YOUR VERY EYES.

LEARN HOW TO ATTACK BOTH FAT AND FLUIDS

LEARN HOW TO LOSE • 2-5 LBS. THE VERY FIRST DAY
6-7 LBS. IN ONLY TWO DAYS • 10-12 LBS. IN JUST SEVEN DAYS

—WITH THIS DOCTOR TESTED FORMULA YOU CAN LOSE EVEN MORE - LIKE 20, 30 EVEN 50 LBS., til you reach your ideal weight level.

What is most important is that this is a NATURAL program. Nothing artificial. IT WORKS SO FAST THE 1ST WEEK ALONE YOU LOSE 1-½ TO 2 LBS. OF BOTH FLUID AND FAT EACH DAY. Your body's inner furnace is TURNED ON SO HIGH IT LITERALLY MELTS THE FAT OFF YOUR BODY - LIKE A BLOW TORCH WOULD MELT BUTTER. In a matter of hours the program helps your body to burn off ugly fat. Fat cells are shrunk as well, as this multi-prong attack against fat goes to work.

IN 7 DAYS YOU'LL REFUSE TO BELIEVE YOUR BATHROOM SCALE.

This medically sound approach to weight loss has been laboratory tested and medically proven. In fact it contains the MOST POWERFUL REDUCING AID EVER APPROVED FOR PUBLIC RELEASE BY THE U.S. GOVERNMENT. The key ingredient, hailed as "the weight loss breakthrough of the century," has been tested at leading universities and weight loss clinics throughout the country and found to be most effective. Many doctors specializing in weight loss who charge $50, $100 and even $200 for the first visit use this proven method.

URNS YOU ON WHILE IT TURNS OFF YOUR APPETITE.

THE CONTINUOUS ROUND THE CLOCK ACTION ATTACKS THE BASIC CAUSE OF FAT. YOUR BODY IS LITERALLY FORCED TO DRAIN AWAY EXCESS FLUIDS THAT BLOAT TISSUES AND DRAG YOU DOWN.

LOSE UP TO 4 TO 6 INCHES OFF YOUR REAR.

LOSE UP TO 3 TO 5 INCHES OFF YOUR THIGHS.

LOSE UP TO 3 TO 6 INCHES OFF YOUR WAISTLINE.

LOSE UP TO 2 TO 5 INCHES OFF YOUR HIPS.

LOSE UP TO 5 INCHES OFF YOUR STOMACH.

Before starting on any weight loss program we advise you to consult your doctor to make sure you are in normal health and your only problem is being overweight.

Did you know that over 90% of your total body weight is fluids? A normal woman's body contains from 90 to 150 lbs. of water. A man's body even more. That's a true fact.

It is the total combination of all aspects of the Total Diet Program that turns the food you eat to ENERGY not fat. Medical science has provided the means for you to become slim and attractive without undergoing tortuous exercise. Famous personalities of Stage, Screen and TV are no different from you when it comes to putting on excess weight. In fact, they have even a greater problem as they often have to attend various parties and functions where rich and tempting foods are always pushed at them. Let medical science go to work for you as it has for them. YOU CAN GET A FRESH START IN LIFE WITH THIS THRILLING WAY TO SLASH AWAY POUNDS AND INCHES. LIFE CAN BE BEAUTIFUL WHEN YOU'RE IN SHAPE. Everyone wants to have a slim youthful figure and be admired. Now you can make your dreams come true. You can take the first step forward toward fulfilling your goal. When you see how good you look and how good you feel without those draggy extra pounds, you'll be thrilled.

MEDICAL TESTS HAVE PROVED THE FUNDAMENTAL CONCEPT OF THIS ONE-TWO PUNCH AS THE WEIGHT LOSS BREAKTHROUGH OF THE CENTURY. REMEMBER, YOU CAN DO IT, TOO!

You must lose:

Up to 5 lbs. the first day. Up to 7 lbs. the first 2 days. Up to 12 lbs. the first 7 days. Or it costs you nothing! Return within 10 days and your money will be refunded. Take advantage of this no risk offer.

WHAT ^{IN} THE WORLD

World Hunger

John Denver is best known for his singing voice, but he's currently putting his famous vocal chords to work for the Presidential Commission on World Hunger as well. "Hunger is a crisis that's already upon us," asserts Denver, "and we can't afford to treat it like we did the energy crisis: by ignoring it until it's too late."

According to the Commission's preliminary report, malnutrition, not famine itself, is the main problem throughout the world. "And in order to eradicate hunger, people must recognize that it's a problem that doesn't just happen in other countries; people are malnourished in the U.S.," says Denver. "Because of the Cambodian situation, people are realizing that hunger exists, but eradicating hunger depends on our ability to transcend politics, economics, religion and all those factors that prevent us from existing in the world as 'the family of man.'"

Successful Traveling

The idea of taking a vacation in a faraway place has an adventurous and romantic aura about it, but actually making a trip a successful one can be a real job. Packing, registering in a busy hotel, figuring out where to eat without blowing your budget and battling the crowds around the local landmarks can leave a tourist feeling wrinkled and worn by the

Once the whale is on shore, the blubber is carved from its body.

Animal Welfare

Ancient man hunted animals for food and used their furs for warmth; since hunting was dangerous, killing for sport or simply to collect one part of an animal was unheard of. Now, however, many species are hunted exclusively for their tusks or their skins or their oil, while others are being forced from their natural habitats as man moves in.

Protecting animals has been the concern of the International Fund for Animal Welfare (IFAW) since it was founded in 1969. "We recently took part in moving a herd of Peruvian vicuna, a small animal that resembles a llama, to a protected area," says Brian Davies, the organization's founder. "We're also doing an aircraft survey of the migratory patterns of whales in the Indian Ocean. And we're very involved in trying to stop the slaughter of baby harp seals that goes on every spring in Canada; if that cruel hunt continues, those herds will be depleted." For more information about IFAW, write to IFAW, P.O. Box 193, Yarmouth Port, Mass. 02675.

end of the week. "One of the biggest problems people have on vacations is not taking enough time to recuperate from the rigors of travel," says author Dena Kaye. "Most people on a holiday go at twice the pace they do in normal life."

Kaye, whose book, The Traveling Woman (Doubleday), is a compendium of information for about-to-be tourists of both sexes, also suggests that travelers have a sense of the area they'll be visiting before they get there. "Study a map so that you won't be disoriented when you arrive," she advises. "But above all, tailor your vacation to fit your needs; that way you'll be sure to come home with great memories." Bon voyage!

The Odyssey Of Humanity

Who were the first people to tread the American continent, and how did they get here? What was life like on a 16th-century warship in the Spanish Armada? How did the discovery of the Rosetta stone lead to an understanding of the ancient Egyptian way of writing? These are just some of the questions that are discussed in Odyssey, a 12-part anthropology series that will begin airing over PBS stations on April 6 (check local listings).

Odyssey takes a look at people — past and present — and their ways of life. "There's nothing more compelling than the story of people," points out Michael Ambrosino, who conceived of the series. "Anthropologists seek out that story — they examine the way people live and think from country to country and century to century." So, tune in and take a trip into your own past.

Lifestyles

Transportation. The average American motorist wastes $87 a year because of poor roads, estimates The Road Information Program (TRIP), a Washington-based organization. The group cites studies by transportation engineers which found that an intermediate-size sedan traveling at 40 miles per hour used 16 to 32 percent more fuel when it had to slow down or stop twice in a mile than when stopping wasn't necessary.

Longevity. The life expectancy of a typical 65-year-old man has increased by about 10 months during the last five years, and he may now expect to live until age 80, reports a study by Buck Consultants, Inc., an employee benefits consulting firm. During the same five-year period, female life expectancy at age 65 improved by about eight months. A typical woman can now expect to live past age 84.

Media. Americans can't seem to get along without the media. A nationwide survey by Foote, Cone & Belding, a New York advertising firm, found that, in the course of a day, 76 percent of all Americans read a newspaper; 72 percent watch TV; 66 percent use a car radio and 60 percent a home radio; 40 percent read magazines; 28 percent read a book, 17 percent play records and 6 percent go to a movie.

New Wave Of Smoker Research Just In:
MERIT smokers report they didn't give up taste in switch from high tar brands.

"No Taste Sacrifice."

MERIT: Proven Long Term Alternative To High Tar Brands.

New national smoker study results prove it.

Proof: The overwhelming majority of MERIT smokers polled feel they didn't sacrifice taste in switching from high tar cigarettes.

Proof: 96% of MERIT smokers don't miss former high tar brands.

Proof: 9 out of 10 enjoy smoking as much since switching to MERIT, are glad they switched, and report MERIT is the best tasting low tar they've ever tried.

Smokers Prefer MERIT 3 To 1!

New taste tests with thousands of smokers prove it.

Proof: A significant majority of smokers rate MERIT taste as good as—or better than—leading high tar brands.

Even cigarettes having twice the tar!

Proof: Of the 95% stating a preference,
3 out of 4 smokers chose the MERIT low tar/good taste combination over high tar leaders when tar levels were revealed.

You've read the results. The conclusion is clearer than ever: MERIT delivers a winning combination of taste and low tar.

A combination that's attracting more and more smokers every day and—more importantly—satisfying them long term.

HANGING STRAWBERRY BASKET—$2.98

Produces numerous clusters of firm, juicy berries, indoors or out! The lustrous rich green foliage and the delicate white blossoms, contrasted against the colorful light red berries, make this the most attractive of all hanging planters. Display on porch or patio, move indoors for winter. You get three hardy, ever-bearing trailing strawberry plants (Fragaria chiloensis, Kobe #1), complete with hanging basket. It's all-in-one . . . foliage, flowers and fruit!

MOUND ASTERS
10 for only $1.98

When autumn leaves begin to fall . . . that's when the ever dependable Mound Aster comes through with a burst of colorful flower magic that lasts for weeks! These hardy Michigan nursery grown perennials bloom, and keep on blooming! When planted in rows, borders, or to line walks or driveways, they're a breathtaking sight. Red, white, pink, purple . . . mixed colors as available, to draw compliments from friends and strangers alike. Mail coupon today.

Ground Hugging Foliage, Mixed Colors! CREEPING PHLOX—6 for $1.50

Michigan nursery grown perennial, (Phlox subulata), features dense evergreen foliage drenched with masses of gay, sparkling blooms in mixed colors. Flowers freely every spring. Transforms drab, troublesome areas or rock gardens into a rolling sea of color that enhances your entire landscape. Hardy 1-year plants, each plant spreads to 12 inches at maturity. Chokes out and suffocates pesky weeds. Transforms "eyesore" area into "eye appeal" area! Clip coupon and mail today!

Bloom Year After Year Without Replanting!

50 PERENNIALS only $4.98

Our Story: ARN HAS ENLISTED SALAM FULDA TO HELP FREE VAL FROM THE CLUTCHES OF SLAVERS. ANXIOUSLY THEY QUESTION THE NEWLY FREED GALLEY SLAVES.

"AYE, I HAVE SEEN SUCH A MAN AS YOU SEEK," PIPES UP A GRISTLY OLD MAN WHO KNEELS BEFORE ARN, HIS VOICE THICK WITH EMOTION.

"I AM FULK OF ST. GALL. SEVENTEEN YEARS AGO I SET OUT FOR MARKET, BUT I HAD GONE NO MORE THAN A LEAGUE WHEN I WAS SET UPON BY MAGYAR THUGS.

"SOON I FOUND MYSELF A GALLEY SLAVE. AFTER MANY YEARS I WAS PUT UP ON THE BLOCK FOR AUCTION, BUT WHAT USE COULD ANYONE HAVE FOR ME? AGAIN I WAS SHACKLED TO MY OARS.

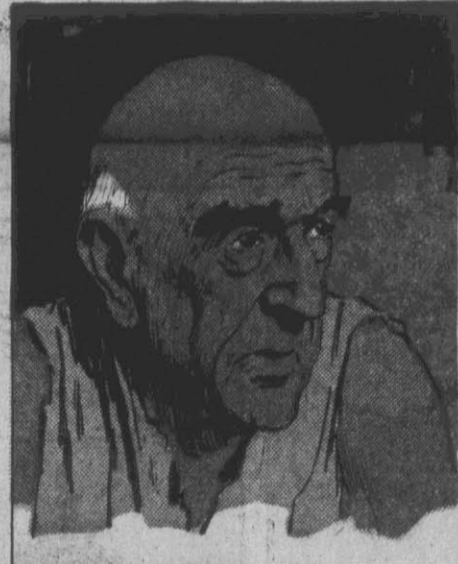

"THREE WEEKS AGO SOME NEWLY TAKEN SLAVES WERE BROUGHT ABOARD. I FOUND MYSELF WITH A KNIGHT, HIS HAIR CROPPED FOR A HELMET, HIS FRAYED TUNIC WOVEN OF FINE CLOTH.

"THAT NIGHT I FELL ILL, DESPITE THE TONIC OF THE LASH. 'PUT YOUR ARMS ON THE OARS AND SLEEP,' WHISPERED THE STRANGER KNIGHT. FOR THREE DAYS HE ROWED ALONE.

"ON THE BLOCK IN CORSICA, HE FETCHED 100 DINARS -- A FLATTERING SUM. THAT DAY HE WAS CHAINED TO THE OARS ON A SHIP BOUND FOR AFRICA."

'BYE, WALLY!

SO LONG, KAREN

HE'S A CUTE GUY!

YEAH! ISN'T HE DARLING?!

I'VE HAD MY EYES ON HIM ALL SEMESTER!

WELL, JUST TAKE THEM OFF!!

KEEP YOUR HANDS OFF HIM TOO!

HE'S MY BOYFRIEND!

AND I'M YOUR BEST FRIEND, RIGHT?!

WELL...

WITH GOOD FRIENDS IT'S SHARE AND SHARE ALIKE!

WHY ARE YOU DRESSED FOR WORK? TODAY'S SUNDAY!

BECAUSE TODAY'S THE DAY I PLANNED TO CHANGE MY WEEKDAY ROUTINE

I'M GOING TO DO EVERYTHING IN REVERSE

INSTEAD OF RACING OUT OF THE HOUSE I'M RACING INTO THE HOUSE

NOW FOR SOME BREAKFAST

BETTER STEP BACK, HONEY—I'M GOING TO RUN UPSTAIRS

IT'S HEALTHY TO GET OUT OF YOUR WORKDAY RUT

WHAT'S WRONG WITH BRUSHING YOUR TEETH AFTER BREAKFAST FOR A CHANGE?

NOW INTO MY PAJAMAS

AND INTO BED FOR A GOOD MORNING'S SLEEP

LEIGHTON OLSON, CONVOY AND PRINCE AZIM ARE AT THE BASE OF THE LOADING STAIRS WHEN TWO ARMED PERSONS BREAK SECURITY AND RUN TOWARD THEM FROM OPPOSITE AREAS

THE CAPTAIN OF THE AIRCRAFT SIZES UP THE CRISIS AT ONCE

MIKE! LOCK THE BRAKES

FULL POWER! ALL ENGINES!

(ALMOST) INSTANT REPLAY

THE HOT BLAST OF FOUR JET ENGINES WILL FLIP A LIGHT AIRPLANE!... THE EXHAUST HITS CONVOY AND THE BLACK-CLAD ATTACKER

...BUT THE OTHER ASSASSIN PLUNGES ON TOWARD PRINCE AZIM

LEIGHTON OLSON THROWS A BODY BLOCK INTO THE ADVANCING GUNMAN

CRACK!

CRACK!

WH-WHY-NOTHING HAPPENED!

BLANK CARTRIDGES?

A JOKE?

TO MAKE IT LOOK AS IF AN AMERICAN G.I. HAD ATTACKED AN ARAB PRINCE! NOT FUNNY!

BUT WHY?

I THINK I KNOW THE REASON—BUT WHERE IS CONVOY?

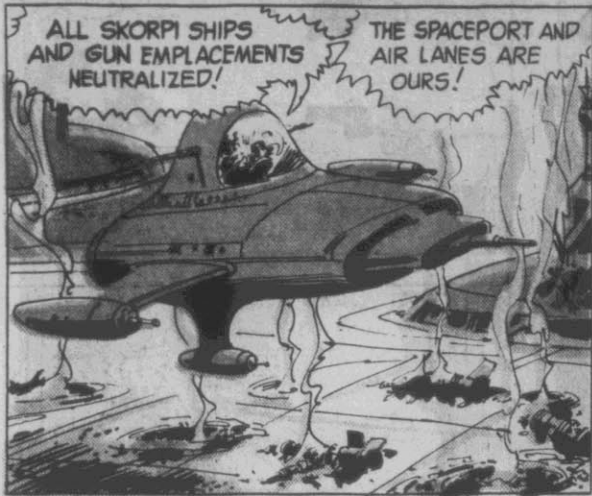

DO NOT STRUGGLE, HONORED SISTER!

WE SHALL HAVE YOU BACK IN IRAN IN NO TIME—WHERE YOU MAY AGAIN COMMAND THE BLACK WIDOWS—AND NOT NEED TO FEAR BEING CARRIED AWAY BY THE YANKEE PIED PIPER!
