Threats By Bani-Sadr For Allies Of America

By The Associated Press Iranian President Abolhasan Bani-Sadr today threatened war on Iraq and battles against Israel and warned America's oilthirsty allies they won't get "so much as snake's poison" from Iran if they back President Carter's sanctions to free the 50 American hostages seized 160 days ago.

Accusing Iraq of "dancing to any music that America played," Bani-Sadr warned "we will go to war" if there is a worsening in the scattered border hostilities with Iran's Moslem neighbor. "If Iraqi forces stepped onto Iranian soil, the Iranian government would not be able to stop the Iranian armed forces from pouring into Iraq," Bani-Sadr said in a speech broadcast by Tehran radio. His address to a huge anti-Iraqi and anti-American rally in Tehran was the sharpest volley yet in the war of words between Iran and Iraq. Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's regime poured truckloads of shouting, fist-waving supporters into

Tehran for the mass demonstration. Bani-Sadr also declared that Iran was prepared to stop making direct deals with Japan, which relies on Iran for 10 percent of its oil needs, and Europe, which gets 5 percent of its petroleum from Iran, because they are under "U.S. domination." Thursday, Tehran Radio said Iranian and Iraqi gunners and helicopters traded fire across the border again, an Iraqi bomb killed one person and wounded 20 in the oil refinery city of Abadan, and Iranian navy ships steamed into the northern Persian Gulf to offset any more Iraqi "aggression."

Iran accuses Iraq of launching the latest round of border attacks against it at the direction of the United States, which has hinted it will blockade Iran's sea routes or mine its ports if President Carter's new sanctions fail to speed the release of the American hostages.

Wednesday the Moslem militants occupying the U.S. Embassy in Tehran since Nov. 4 threatened to kill all 50 of their captives if the United States intervened militarily. On Thursday, one of the militants told NBC News they would kill them all if Iraq or any other U.S. "puppet" invaded.

"If they should kill any of our people, a border spat with Iraq would be the least of their problems," a White House official in Washington commented.

Iraq urged other Arab nations to rally behind it against Iran, and its official news agency declared: "This crazy, racist Khomeini is nothing but a turbaned shah."

Mount St. Helens Continues Rumble

A WING AND A PRAYER - A small plane passes over the 1,700-foot crater atop Mount St. Helens Thursday. The volcano, located 45 miles northeast of Portland in Washington, has been active since March 27. Prior to the plane's flight over the crater the volcano erupted. (AP Laserphoto)

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) - With clouds of ash, two hearty earthquakes and a "weak" pair of harmonic tremors, Mount St. Helens has rumbled into its third week of eruptions. Ash continued to spout from the 9,677-foot volcano Thursday, but eruptions were only visible to scientists and others flying above clouds which obscured the view from the ground, a U.S. Forest Service spokeswoman said.

Both harmonic tremors were reported Thursday morning and described as very weak. Scientists have said harmonic tremors indicated the movement of magma - molten rock - within the volcano.

But Craig Weaver, a U.S. Geological Survey seismologist, said the tremors also could indicate the movement of steam or other gases. "This was such a low amplitude it only showed up on seismograph stations near the mountain," said Weaver. "It didn't show up at regional stations like earlier events."

An earthquake measuring 4.4 on the Richter scale gave the mountain a firmer jolt at 6:19 a.m. Thursday, Weaver said, followed by a 4.2 quake at 1:08 p.m. Such quakes have become almost routine at the volcano.

The southwest Washington volcano began erupting ash March 27. No lava has been seen. Weaver said the mountain appeared to be in a "steady state" with its quakes and tremors.

Meanwhile, the Forest Service held its last regular news conference Thursday and prepared to move its information center from a motel back into government offices in Vancouver, about 50 miles south of the volcano.

"We're getting settled down for a long watch," said Forest Service spokesman Norm Anderson. "The last time it did this (more than 120 years ago) it lasted 25 years."

VEPCO Makes A Reply

Virginia Electric and Power Company officials today took issue with a study conducted by the North Carolina Utilities Commission, saying the study, released yesterday, draws inaccurate conclusions because of faulty estimates of the value of VEPCO's investment in its facilities in North Carolina.

Gov. Jim Hunt yesterday renewed his call for VEPCO to sell its North Carolina power operations, saying a study by the N.C. Utilities commission indicates the sale would mean lower rates for electric customers in Virginia as well as in this state.

The Utilities Commission study, released yesterday, said rates for Virginia customers of VEPCO would drop two to three percent if the firm's N.C. facilities were sold, while North Carolina customers would realize even more savings, Hunt indicated.

R. G. McIver, southern division vice-president for VEPCO said this morning that the study, "draws inaccurate conclusions because it grossly underestimates the cost," of the company's facilities in North Carolina.

"The report is based upon a sale figure of $97 million," McIver said, "while VEPCO has invested well over $200 million."

"Secondly," the spokesman said, "the rates of any electric supplier would have to increase should they attempt to purchase multi-million dollar facilities with today's high interest rates. These costs would have to be passed on to their customers in higher rates as a cost of doing business."

McIver continued, "we contend that the proposed sale does not make economic sense for VEPCO's North Carolina customers," adding that a review of VEPCO's operations by the Utilities Commission in July 1979 concluded that, "VEPCO's retail rates are expected to become comparable in the 1983-1984 time frame to those of Carolina Power and Light Co."

McIver added that, "a milestone in our efforts to stabilize rates was reached late yesterday when VEPCO was granted premission by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to begin operation at North Anna Nuclear Unit number two.

Public Hearings On Ten Items Held By Council

By TOM BAINES Reflector Staff Writer

The City Council conducted public hearings on ten separate items Thursday night, including six requests for rezoning and on an ordinance creating a new zoning classification.

Approval was given to a request by D. G. Nichols to rezone from R-9 to Office and Institutional some four acres on Greenville Boulevard just west of King's Department Store and Winn-Dixie.

City planning director Bobby Roberson said that shopping center uses or neighborhood commercial utilization virtually surround the property and he suggested that the proposed zone would serve as a transitional zone for the area.

Dr. Jim Hix, representing the nearby Brentwood neighborhood organization, said that the property owners had agreed that Office and Institutional zoning would be the most logical zone for the Nichols tract. Hix said however that the Brentwood residents feel that the new O&I-2 zone under consideration is more restrictive and he urged the Council to look at the possibility of rezoning the Nichols tract to the new zone in the future.

Regarding the proposed new zone, Council members voted to amend the Zoning Ordinance by creating the new zoning classification of O&I-2 "to encourage office and institutional uses on outlying areas in and around the city with the primary purpose of buffering existing residential land use."

Roberson explained that the existing Office and Institutional zone permitted multi-family and restaurant development. Both uses are eliminated in the new ordinance, which he said is also more restrictive as to setback requirements. Roberson noted that the new classification stipulates that a six-foot high fence or evergreen shrub will be constructed prior to occupancy of a new facility.

The Council also approved, following a public hearing, an ordinance amending the Downtown Commercial Fringe zoning classification to allow duplexes and single-family dwellings as permitted uses. The amendment eliminates the necessity for duplex and single-family property owners to seek variances in order to, repair or improve their structures.

The Council granted a special use permit to R. C. Robbins in order for him to operate a club/discotheque in the structure located on the southeast corner of N. Greene Street and the Pactolus Highway.

Alton Warren, the city's chief building official, said the facility was formerly utilized as a restaurant. He said that some 100 parking spaces are available and Robbins has an option to lease an adjoining vacant lot for parking if the permit is granted.

Warren testified under questioning by Robbins' attorney, Mickey Herrin, that the lot was of sufficient size to accommodate the proposed use, that no similar activity existed within 500 feet of the facility, that the lot and building had access to a public highway, and that the land is zoned for Highway Commercial use.

Herrin, who assured the Council that there would be no objectionable activities at the facility, noted that the club would not be private but would be open to the public.

Approval was given to a request by Harry A. Hardee to rezone some 11 acres on the west side of NC 43 just north of Bell's Fork from RA-20 to Highway Commercial and R-6.

Roberson said that with the new thoroughfare alignment proposal, the area would be more suited for commercial development. He added that the property just falls within the city's zoning jurisdiction.

In another zoning matter, approval was given to a request by David Evans Sr. to rezone some 5.8 acres from R-6 to Neighborhood Commercial, located in and around the Quail Ridge Townhouse development on 14th Street Extension.

A request by W. A. McAllister and P. W. Ayers to have 16.7 acres on the east

CHILDREN ENTERING BUILDING

I live near the old hospital building on Johnston Street. We're constantly having to shoo children off the roof and the upper floors. They're gaining entrance via the fire escape. Someone's going to get hurt. D. H.

Hotline talked to County Manager Reginald Gray who said the county is proceeding just as fast as is possible to finish negotiations that will eliminate the dilapidated building from the property. Considerable time and effort have been spent on boarding up and otherwise seeking to secure the building. He said the county will look at it again and take whatever further security measures that are possible. The ultimate responsibility, though, he said, must rest with the children themselves and their parents. The building is dangerous and should be entered under no circumstances.

Local rescue spokesmen last night called on the City Council to schedule a public meeting on the continuing fire-rescue controversy and submitted a petition urging the Council to initiate a public referendum to consider rescue as a separate city department.

In an unscheduled agenda item, the Council listened to several spokesmen for the rescue personnel but gave no indication of complying with the requests for a public meeting and referendum.

Mayor Don McGlohn, who has served as spokesman for the Council in public discussions, pointed out that the board is awaiting an "independent study" underway by a local task force of the Chamber of Commerce.

McGlohn asked those concerned with the fire-rescue situation to be patient as the Council awaits the study and he assured the gathering that "we have not one single day been unconcerned."

The mayor said that it is possible the Council will have the Chamber report before the next scheduled meeting of the city governing board in May.

In the meantime, he added, the city will continue to implement cross-training activities for fire and rescue personnel and will also continue to meet with department members and others on the matter.

Brent Stocks, who served as captain of the rescue squad volunteers before the unit disbanded, read a statement from the "Concerned Citizens Committee." The statement noted, "This is to serve as a written request for a public discussion concerning the Greenville Fire/Rescue Department. We feel that the citizen interest expressed over changes made within this department in the last few months is cause for such a meeting."

The statement concluded, "We respectfully implore the City Council of Greenville to call this meeting as soon as possible to allow further examination of a matter vital to our community."

Stocks also submitted petitions that he said contained over 1,700 signatures of concerned citizens calling for the initiation of a public referendum on the matter of rescue squad autonomy.

The petitions identify each signer as "being a registered voter and entitled to vote in city elections held by the city of Greenville do hereby petition the governing authorities of the city...to call for and to initiate a public referendum for the adoption of an ordinance..."

The ordinance, it stated, would provide "that the Greenville Rescue Squad shall be a separate department of the city...with its own department head as an autonomous organization and whose members shall not be responsible for any duties save and except to provide rescue and emergency medical services."

Stocks asked for a roll call of Council members "to see how each member feels." McGlohn said the board does not feel that a formal public hearing would be the best way to resolve all of the problems and concerns relating to the rescue situation. He noted that some Council members have met with former volunteer rescue members and it is hoped that the volunteers will reconstitute themselves as a unit to assist in area rescue functions.

The mayor reiterated his statement made to the press last week that after all fire-rescue department personnel are trained as Emergency Medical Technicians (EMTs) and certified, employees will (Continued on Page 6)

Life As It's Lived

There Are Times When Pregnancy Is A Burden

By GAIL MICHAELS

I never thought I'd see the day that obscenity would penetrate the baby magazine industry, but there it was — an article extolling the virtues of jogging during pregnancy.

This is tantamount to putting "Fear of Flying" on a third grade reading list. Just the thought of jogging under normal circumstances demoralizes me. But the mental picture of a pregnant woman in jogging shorts has such a nightmarish quality that it leaves me wondering what perversions our society will stoop to next.

In fact, I'm beginning to think that "Brave New World," with its concerted effort to stamp out pregnancy, isn't so far-fetched after all. Almost every day expectant mothers are assaulted by headlines like "Hot Baths Cause Brain Damage" and "Coffee Is Out; Prune Juice Is In." No wonder the birth rate is going down.

But this exercise kick is the worst thing yet to happen to motherhood. Even the medical profession is getting into the act with routine prescriptions like 20 leg-lifts, 60 sit-ups, and 2 mile walks each day. Of course, the doctor always adds the warning, "Don't take up any new activities."

Unfortunately, in my case, there is no newer activity than sit-ups. The closest I ever came to one before I got pregnant was when I got out of bed in the morning. On my first ten sit-ups after I got pregnant, I pulled every muscle in my abdomen and had to wear a sling for the next two weeks.

So I switched to walking, an activity only slightly less novel than sit-ups. I had to build up my distance, but I was determined. Within a matter of weeks, I could walk around the block without my legs folding.

As far as I can tell, it hasn't done me a bit of good. It hasn't alleviated any of the discomfort of pregnancy; it has only made my ankles hurt, too. And if I begin to let myself think that it has improved my appearance a little, my daughter is quick to dispel my illusion. "Look at my fat mommy," she eagerly tells any listener. "I bet you can't guess why she's so-o-o-o tremendous."

She even circled around me one day and commented, "Gee, you sure are big back here. Is there a baby here, too?"

She doesn't make the walks themselves easier, either. As an unwilling participant, she drags her feet, hangs on my arm like a limpet, and complains incessantly.

"I'm so tired," she said recently after we had walked at least ten yards. "I think my bones are crumbling."

I was too out of breath to answer. "Why do we have to do this every day?" she continued. "We need our exercise," I huffed.

"Why?"

"It's supposed to keep us from getting too fat."

She gave me a long, critical look. "It doesn't work."

"Well, I think it's supposed to increase our lung power, too."

Immediately she sat down on the sidewalk. "I'm not going any farther," she wailed. "Your lungs are too strong already."

Journalism Society To Induct Members

ECU News Bureau

Fourteen new members will be inducted into the East Carolina University chapter of the Society for Collegiate Journalists Thursday, April 17.

Following the ceremony, Willford Kale Jr. of Williamsburg, Va., Eastern Virginia Bureau chief for the Richmond Times-Dispatch, will address the gathering.

An alumnus of the College of William and Mary, Kale is advisor of the SCJ chapter at William and Mary and has frequently spoken to groups of journalism students at various campuses.

As a reporter he has covered such national events as the arrival of Emperor Hirohito of Japan and the third presidential debate of 1976.

The Society for Collegiate Journalists is the nation's oldest collegiate honorary for mass communications. The ECU chapter was organized in 1969 by Prof. Ira L. Baker and now has 200 active and honorary members.

The Society is the result of a merger between two national honor societies, Alpha Phi Gamma, of which Baker has been national president, and Pi Delta Epsilon.

Current president is Joyce Evans of Greenville. Baker, who will retire at the end of this year, has been faculty advisor.

Scheduled for induction as members in the April 17 ceremony are John Jeter of Wilmington, Glenda Killingsworth of New Bern, Mary Schulken of Whiteville, Joseph Daniels Jr. of Shelby, Linda Allred and Mark Kemp of Asheboro, Edward Williams of Durham, Melanie Smith of Charlottesville, Va., Susan Fernald of Chapel Hill, Deborah Hotaling of Sanford, Lisa Drew of Chatham, N.J., Ellen Schrader of Chester, Pa., James Stone of Wilson and Terry Gray of Elizabeth City.

School Discipline Is Scott Promise

KINSTON, N.C. (AP) — Former Gov. Bob Scott promised Thursday that if he is elected governor, he will improve discipline in the state's public schools and stop the influx of illegal drugs into the state.

Scott, who faces Gov. Jim Hunt in the May 6 Democratic primary, said he would move to halt disruptions in the schools by "returning authority to local school boards."

"In recent years, some of their authority has been taken away by professional educators and politicians in Raleigh who are not sensitive to local problems," Scott said.

He said illegal drugs are "damaging our school children," and criticized the Hunt administration for failing to respond to requests for more drug enforcement agents by the attorney general's office.

"The people in Raleigh are sitting and watching as illegal drugs come into our state by sea and by air," he said. "These drugs make their way into our schools and communities."

Scott said he would encourage programs to counsel students and parents about drugs and would reorganize the state Task Force for Education to work with local school officials.

Scott also said he would use the 50 helicopters assigned to the North Carolina Guard for use in searching for and intercepting illegal drug traffic.

"The present administration says this asset cannot be used. The present administration says it cannot fund more drug enforcement officers," Scott said. "The present administration has never said what can be done. We can dedicate ourselves to this effort."

Find Marijuana In Seed Beds

MAXTON, N.C. (AP) — An estimated 2,000 marijuana plants have been pulled from a seed bed found near Maxton and destroyed, according to Robeson County Sheriff Hubert Stone.

Stone said Thursday the plastic-covered seed bed was found with the help of informants. Stone and several deputies pulled up the plants and burned them Wednesday.

Stone and Detective Garth Locklear said the plants, if allowed to reach maturity and if processed properly, could have produced marijuana with a street value of at least $1 million.

Fuel Needed Friend Says Princess Knew Risks Of Affair

BAYBORO, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina Fisheries Association has launched a campaign to secure government assistance for commercial fishermen faced with skyrocketing fuel costs.

Executive director Ross Boyer described the seafood industry's outlook as grim. "When boats cannot catch enough fish to pay their fuel costs and still have enough to pay the crew, I consider that a problem," Boyer said.

He said local fishermen now pay 95 cents per gallon for diesel fuel and estimated the de-controlled price of diesel fuel may reach $2.75 per gallon. Since 1977, he said, there has been a 600 percent increase in the cost of fuel.

The government could help fishermen by providing subsidies for them or by increasing import tariffs, Boyer said. The tariffs would offset a growing seafood trade by Mexican fishermen, who can sell seafood cheaper than Americans because of cheaper fuel costs.

Research is another area in which the government can help fishermen, he said. Boyer said research should be conducted in ways to update obsolete technology, production of more energy efficient engines and alternative methods of fishing to avoid long fuel-consuming trips. Boyer also cited as high interest rates, prohibitive duties on technological gear and the lack of programs to safeguard the industry against collapse as threats to the commercial fisherman.

LONDON (AP) — Saudi Princess Mishaal "knew the risks she was taking" in the love affair that ended in the execution for adultery of her and her commoner-lover in 1977, says a West German woman who claims she was the princess' closest Western friend.

"I think she thought she could get away with it. But she and her lover were arrested at the airport while trying to leave secretly to enjoy their lives together," Rosemarie Buschow told reporters after a British TV documentary about the executions brought outraged protests from Saudi Arabia's ruling royal family to the British government.

Miss Buschow, who is 39 and now works in London as a receptionist, said she spent 18 months in Saudi Arabia in 1976-77 as governess to Prince Susu, a young grand-nephew of King Khaled. She said 19-year-old Princess "Misha" was the king's niece, the daughter of an elder brother of the king, but she did not know the identity of her lover.

"I knew about the princess' romance ..." said the woman. "Princess Misha was married to her first cousin. He left her. I was told the affair had been going on for about eight months. She found love and happiness with this other man."

The Guardian newspaper said the princess was the granddaughter of Prince Mohammed, the oldest surviving son of Saudi Arabia's founder, King Ibn Saud. The Daily Express said Prince Mohammed and King Khaled decided "because of the gossip about the affair," and since adultery is punishable by death, the princess must die.

The princess was shot and her lover was beheaded. The Saudi government said in 1978 they were executed for "adulterous acts."

The film "Death of a Princess" was shown Wednesday night on a British commercial network despite a reported offer from King Khaled of $11 million to suppress it.

The Saudi government protested to the British government, saying the film was "very offensive." The British government expressed its "profound regret" to the Saudis but said it could not interfere with such a TV program.

The film is to be broadcast on public television in the United States on May 12 and is to be shown in the Netherlands next Thursday.

Movies and Mickey Rooney
42 years ago, Mickey Rooney won an Academy Award for his work in movies as a child actor. On Monday night, Rooney could take home his second Oscar, this time as 1979's best supporting actor. Few of today's motion picture performers have been acting in movies longer than Rooney. He made his first film appearance when he was six years old, in a silent movie released in 1926. By the late 1930s, he was the country's most popular movie star. Rooney has had an up and down career since then, but he has continued to act in films, and is now starring in the hit Broadway show "Sugar Babies."

Dear Abby

Thinks She Should Know

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Last summer my doctor told me I have multiple sclerosis. He says there is no way of knowing how fast this disease will progress, but eventually I will be paralyzed and in a wheelchair.

Sometimes I am fine; at other times I can hardly do for myself.

We have three children. The oldest is 13, and I need her help in caring for the younger ones. She knows that I am not well, but she doesn't know what is wrong with me. My husband says we shouldn't tell her yet because it would be putting too heavy a burden on a 13-year-old.

I think if she knows I have multiple sclerosis she will be more understanding and cooperative.

What do you think, Abby? Perhaps some of your readers have been down this road.

PREPARED FOR THE WORST

DEAR PREPARED: I disagree with your husband. At 13, your daughter could be well able to handle the truth, and I think she should be told.

And please don't accept your doctor's gloomy prognosis so readily. Faith, and more optimistic attitude, could keep you out of a wheelchair for a long time — and maybe forever. I hope so. God bless,

DEAR ABBY: I know they call a person who has had a sex change operation a "transsexual." But what do they call a nun who has had a sex change operation?

CURIOUS IN WINONA

DEAR CURIOUS: A transister?

DEAR ABBY: I am 18 and have this problem with my boyfriend. We've been going together for nearly two years, and when we go to a movie or out to eat, he thinks I should pay my own way. I suppose it's only fair because I'm working too, but this is what bothers me. He asks me for the money in private and then pays for both of us in public so it won't make him look bad. He says it's embarrassing for a guy to be with a girl who lays down her own cash.

Well, it makes me feel bad to see him pretending to be a big shot. But on the other hand, when a girl pays her own way, it makes her look like she couldn't get a guy any other way.

What do you think, Abby? Should a girl pay her own way? And if she does, should she be up-front about it? Or should she slip it to the guy so he won't look cheap?

DIXIE THE SHIXIE

DEAR DIXIE: If the girl wants to pay her own way, and her date has no objections, why not? But if she pays, she should do so openly. And the guy who would accept a girl's money privately and then make a big show of "treating" her is a phony.

CONFIDENTIAL TO R.L. OF PALO ALTO: So you were right. So what? Even when you're right, sometimes it's wise to give in. I quote from the Connecticut State Driver Instruction Booklet of 1939:

"Here lies the body of Jonathan Ray He died defending his right of way; He was right, dead right, as he drove along, But he's just as dead as if he'd been wrong."

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. Please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Television Series Provides Girls With Role Models

NEW YORK (AP) — Vicky Johnson might be called a clothing designer — but her creations are not likely to be found in a department store.

Ms. Johnson, 28, is a project engineer responsible for the life support systems in the space suits worn by America's astronauts. She loves her work. And if hers is not a career most young girls dream about, it may be partly because they don't realize such jobs exist, she believes.

That's why Ms. Johnson and other women like her with unconventional careers in science and technology have agreed to appear on a new television series, to break some old stereotypes and share the excitement of their work with girls who might follow in their footsteps.

"As role models, these women are living proof that scientists are as likely to be wearing hiking boots or space suits as a white laboratory coat — and that nowadays the person wearing the boots or the space suit may well be a woman," says Kathy Mendoza, 35, producer of 3-2-1 CONTACT, the Children's Television Workshop science series for 8- to 12-year-olds.

Ms. Johnson, who chose her field because she was "good at math and science but not interested in chemistry," says the actual work she does as an engineer is not what people might expect.

"It requires basic technical knowledge, of course, but it's an almost totally people-oriented job," she explains. "I take the basic design for a space suit, get the necessary parts and the people to assemble them. I write the test procedures and find people to test the suit. We work together as one big team and we're all together watching when one of the space shots is telecast. It's such a thrill to be involved."

Susan Weber Christensen, 28, is equally enthusiastic about her own unusual assignment. An acoustics research fellow, she is currently engaged in teaching a computer to talk.

Mrs. Christensen accomplishes this by programming the computer with the vocal chord vibration patterns of human speech. Her "co-worker" is talking back quite nicely at the moment, she says, and adds proudly that she must occasionally remind herself that she is conversing with a machine.

Bonnie Robinson, 27, a petroleum geologist, likens her work to being a detective. "I search for clues in rock formations that might indicate there is oil underneath," says Ms. Robinson, whose career was spawned when she started a rock collection in junior high school in Washington, D.C.

"I became more and more interested, used to haunt the city's parks to add to my specimens. I had to take teasing from guys because there were so few female geologists then. We're still a minority, but the field is wide open for women. It's interesting work and provides constant opportunity for travel."

The woman who may prove the most fascinating to young audiences is Kathy Sullivan, 28, who will be wearing one of Vicky Johnson's space suits as one of the nation's first six female astronauts.

How did she get her job? "I answered a want ad," she jokes. Then she adds seriously that NASA advertises periodically for scientists who are interested in the space program and they need people from a wide range of fields. Also a geologist, Dr. Sullivan hopes one day to study rock formations on Mars.

"When my interest in science was first piqued by a college professor who showed me a grain of sand under a microscope, I never dreamed that my interest in the earth would one day send me into outer space," she says.

Among the other women who will be sharing their offbeat careers are Nancy Knight, a cloud-ice physicist; Suzanne Ciani, who composes music for synthesizers; Dr. Joan Girus, an experimental psychologist who studies optical illusions; Peg Preble, a motorcycle mechanic; Liz Russo, a young vet at the Bronx Zoo, and Hannah Mansehill, who teaches deaf children to speak.

"Girls need to know that careers in science are open to them and are not dull, that in fact they can be among the most exciting jobs of all. Meeting these women should give them the message," says Ms. Mendoza, a precedent-setter herself as a woman in TV specializing in science.

Industry Crisis Stage

The housing industry is reaching a crisis stage, and it is affecting everyone from construction people, building suppliers and agents through those who want to buy homes.

There was concern enough so that some 1,000 people connected with the industry held a rally at the state Capitol to emphasize their complaints.

Mark E. Tipton of Greenville, who is president of the N. C. Home Builders Association, said that some 60,000 of the 128,000 in home construction in North Carolina are already unemployed.

The rapid drop in construction of new homes is blamed on the sky high interest rates which currently prevail, in that they make it almost impossible for most young couples to qualify for housing loans.

That the matter is one of concern is underscored by the fact that a number of politicians appeared for the rally. They included Gov. Hunt, Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green, lieutenant governor candidate Carl Stewart, Sen. Robert Morgan and others.

There is no doubt that this is a matter of great concern. Construction of new housing is plummeting just at a time when demand will be at its greatest. Even when interest drops the construction of new housing can't be resumed overnight, since it takes time to plan and get construction underway. The housing industry is carrying more than its share of the inflation fight, and we may pay for it with a housing shortage in the future.

Blockades Are Serious

The United States is talking tough to its allies in regards to the Iranian situation.

Many of them depend to considerable extent on Iranian oil and they are reluctant to take punitive action which might imperil those oil supplies.

The Carter administration is warning that it can cut off the Iranian oil supplies, presumably by way of a naval blockade.

Blockades are serious business and they can lead to tense and dangerous situations. Still all countries of the world should be made aware that we are prepared to take stern measures.

THIS AFTERNOON Inflation Thinking

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — The psychology of inflation is a powerful element, even though little understood. The experts are only beginning to flirt with this ingredient of the nation's dismal economic condition.

Economists tell us that the ravages of inflation are easily enough defined: there is more money than goods to go around so people pay more and more for less and less. The time-tested law of supply and demand.

That law applies as well to the supply of money. Clamp down on the amount in circulation, and put the lid on borrowing, and people won't have as much to spend, so inflation cools.

But the people have fooled the experts. Psychology took over. Expecting prices to be even higher next month, next year, the consumer has not only kept up a steady demand for borrowed money even at interest rates which would once have landed the bankers in jail for usury, but they have made a run on savings accounts for cash to buy, buy, buy.

Drained
Add one other factor — removing money from low-interest savings accounts to make higher interest investments in money market certificates — and it is plain why the nation's savings institutions are moaning.

This week's happenings in California in which required disclosures have revealed a sea of red ink underlying savings and loan operations, and another uncertain economic explosion has been fused.

Enter reverse psychology of inflation. And that is what the North Carolina Savings and Loan League and Gov. Jim Hunt are trying to stir up with that highly publicized proposal to exempt up to $200 of interest income from state taxes.

The federal government has already taken that step. The most you can save in taxes is $48 on the federal return next year.

If the state follows suit, the maximum savings would be

BILL NOBLITT

$14 per taxpayer. That makes $28 on a joint return for husband and wife; hardly enough to get excited about. Surely not enough to help the homebuilding industry recover from certain recession.

Besides, the present tight-money actions by the Federal Reserve are deliberately designed to produce the symptoms of recession: cut the money supply to force business to cool down so that inflation will be reduced. That is a long, tough process.

Isn't it self-defeating for the federal and state governments to dash about attempting to heal the wounds on the economy which are being deliberately imposed in an effort to conquer inflation?

"There is some merit to that conclusion, and I would be hardpressed to defend this proposal (to cut the tax on savings income) if it were not for its psychological effect...to influence people to save," says Gov. Hunt.

Symbolic

The tax cut proposal is "symbolic to a certain extent...and will show that we are encouraging savings instead of just spending and consumption. The long range health and productivity of our economy requires that we save...." Hunt says. "If we are to revive our economy we must go back in the other direction."

The immediate problem is that the time periods overlap; pressures to cool the economy coincide with steps to bolster certain segments of the economy. "I would not have the enthusiasm for this which I have if it were not a long-range thing," Hunt says of the psychological maneuver.

Other Editors Say Worthy Gamble

(Winston-Salem Sentinel)

Sometimes it is necessary to take a gamble to create a more humane situation. Often, public institutions hesitate to take that kind of chance. The Forsyth County mental health department took a risk, and so far it has proven worth the gamble.

Before this year, teenagers and children over age 10 who entered the inpatient psychiatric unit at Reynolds Health Center were locked in the same ward with adults, some of whom had serious or chronic problems. The staff feared that the children's therapy was often offset by the influence of adult patients and the atmosphere of confinement.

There is a shortage of beds in state hospitals available for Forsyth County children whose families can't afford private psychiatric hospitals, so the staff decided it would have to provide better treatment for troubled youths at the county level.

"At first we had visions of kids running off all the time," said Linda Bowman, inpatient coordinator for the child and youth staff, especially since elevators to the main floor open onto the children's ward. But of the 30 children treated in the ward since December, only one has made a run for it, she said.

Two-thirds of the patients under 21 start out in the open ward. More hard-to-manage patients, such as those with suicidal tendencies, still begin in the locked ward. In either ward, patients are given a set of rules to follow and are granted more privileges, such as supervised trips outside the ward, and later, visits home, as they make progress in treatment.

The success of the new ward can be measured by the fact that only one patient has tried to take advantage of the more open atmosphere. The unit staff took the risk that the young patients would respond positively to a less prison-like ward. It is the kind of risk that more public institutions should be willing to take, and the experience of the county psychiatric unit shows that the gamble can pay off.

Strength For Today

SIN AND SINS

Jesus Christ came into the world to save men from sin—not just from sins.

This is not a distinction without a difference. Sins are certain acts which we commit; sin is that "corruption of the inner nature which causes us to disobey God or come short of what He would have us be or do." The word "sin" indicates what we are; the word "sins" describes what we do. Sins are the outgrowth of sin.

Seduction: Soviet Style

By GEORGE KEEGAN, Jr.

The Soviet's bloody invasion of Afghanistan has opened the eyes of some American politicians. We must hope that those eyes never again blink shut to the reality of Soviet goals and their manipulation of "detente".

Historical records show that for 63 years the basic premise of the Soviet Government was, and still is, that International Socialism (the acronym for Communism) will be extended throughout the entire world.

The Soviets from the outset and continuing today have used diplomacy as a weapon for the extension of their conflict purposes. There is no conceivable way in which you can understand SALT, and Detente, and Co-existence, and Arms Control and Soviet Disarmament Activities unless you understand from the outset — that what the Soviets are doing and have been doing is exploiting the fundamental decency of the industrial democracies, exploiting that deep sincere yearning for peace.

Let's take the subject of Detente, established in 1972. The United States was then opened up to unrestricted access by as many as one thousand Soviet scientists and Engineers visiting every day. Right after Detente was signed, seven of the foremost aeronautical scientists in the Soviet Union, six of their top engineers and a number of other officials appeared at the Boeing Corporation offices. They had a letter from the State Department giving them "carte-blanc" access to Boeing production know-how and technology as it related to the Boeing 747.

Boeing, as well as the rest of the aerospace structure in the United States, was in great difficulty; and the head of the Soviet delegation offered a proposal to buy ten Boeing 747 wide-bodied jet transports.

In the next ten days everything at Boeing was carefully scrutinized by the Soviets. They took thousands of photographs and tens of thousands of documents. Thus, the most advanced technology in the world for the production of wide-bodied jet aircraft was acquired free and legally by the Soviets.

Also, in that visit the Soviets proposed to Boeing management that they would like to have a proposal from Boeing to build seven of the world's largest aircraft plants in the Soviet Union in order to produce wide-bodied jets for commercial application. They wanted Boeing to plan, design, equip and instrument one of the seven plants as a giant instrumentation research center, using American technology and equipment.

The Soviets said that they had 240,000 workers assigned to build a complete new city around the seven aircraft factories. They were prepared to put in 5 billion dollars as an initial investment and indicated that the ultimate expenditure would be four-to-five times that amount of money.

Boeing was in absolute ecstasy.

At the end of three years of negotiations the vice president in charge of foreign sales for Boeing arrived in Moscow to keep an appointment with the head of the Soviet Civil Aviation Ministry, and waited at the airport for four hours. There was no one there to meet him. He finally found his way into town and reported to the Ministry of Aviation Industry. There he was told: "Sorry, we failed to make clear; we are going to build our own wide-bodied jet transport and we no longer have any need for negotiations with you."

The process of this seduction was one of the most profitable legalized espionage operations of its kind in modern history.

Talking About Money

By ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — Almost every week the topic of conversation in this country changes. Just a month ago, everyone you ran into was talking about how much their houses were worth on the open market.

Now it seems, no matter where you go, they're talking about money. The trouble with talking about money is that it can become pretty boring after a while.

In case you're one of those people who doesn't like to talk about it, here are a few put-downs to cut off the conversation.

"Guess how much interest I had to pay on the new house I just bought?"

"I never talk mortgages at a party. Call me at the office if you'd like to discuss it."

"Do you know how much cash I have to come up with to pay my taxes on April 15th?"

"I don't. But I'm sure someone in the IRS does."

"I went to the supermarket today and bought eight items. They hardly filled a small brown bag. What do you think it cost me?"

"I'm terribly sorry. I heard the joke before."

"So I went into the showroom and there's this little car no bigger than that table, and I said to the salesman, 'How much is it without any options?' Guess what he said?"

"If you have to ask the price, you can't afford it."

"How much do you think it is costing me to send my kid through college?"

"I wouldn't know. My son is on an athletic scholarship."

"I figure this is no time to be in the stock market. So do you know where we're putting our savings?"

"Is it bigger than a bread box?"

"Four of us went to a simple French restaurant in New York. We had one round of drinks, a bottle of Beaujolais, soup, a main course, and no one had dessert. Do you know what the check came to?"

"Deux mille quarante francs?"

"I never think about money, but the other night I took the kids to see 'Breaking Away.' Do you know what the evening cost me including the parking, and what I had to pay the baby sitter?"

"Yes, I do."

"I figure that the way things are going, you might as well live it up while you can. Why save money when it won't be worth anything in 10 years? So guess where Becky and I are going this summer?"

"Pittsburgh."

"What are you doing with your money these days?"

"We're putting every nickel into the 'March of Dimes.'"

"How much was your heating bill this winter?"

"We didn't have one. The gas company cut us off in October."

"I think the country's in an economic mess and Carter doesn't know what the hell he's doing."

"I disagree. If he didn't know what he was doing, he'd be unqualified to be President."

"When's the last time you bought a good suit at a reasonable price?"

"Friday."

"I went into the hospital for three days. How much do you think my bill was, excluding doctors' fees?"

"What difference does it make? Blue Shield paid for most of it."

"If I knew then what I know now about what the dollar would be worth, do you know what I would have bought with my insurance money?"

"Rockefeller Center."

"We'll never lick inflation until the government stops spending more money than it takes in."

"I'd rather have a deficit than tennis elbow."

"How do you manage to keep up your standard of living when the dollar is worth less every day?"

"My children don't know our unlisted telephone number."

Odds On Reagan

By WALTER R. MEARS

AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) —

With 22 Republican presidential primaries to go, the odds favoring Ronald Reagan's nomination for the White House are getting better every day.

Four years ago, he won more than he lost in the states that are yet to be contested this time.

The competition was tougher then. And Reagan didn't even run in Pennsylvania, conceding to then-President Gerald R. Ford the state that could virtually clinch the nomination in 1980.

This year's Pennsylvania primary is coming up on April 22 after what amounts to a mid-season break in the primary competition.

Given the lead he has now, and the shape of states to come, it would take an incredible political blunder to render the former California governor vulnerable to his GOP challengers.

To review the bidding, it will take 998 delegate votes to win the Republican nomination. Reagan has 372. George Bush is in second place — 300 delegates behind.

"It has been a very fickle political year," Bush told the American Society of Newspaper Editors the other day. "Things have changed."

"This is no exercise in futility...."

But Bush has yet to prove otherwise, and Pennsylvania is his last real chance to do it. After that one, the pace intensifies and the competition moves south and west — to Reagan country.

Bush said his task is to make himself known; to have his views registered with the voters. That sounds logical — but Bush scored his biggest victory of the season when he was least known.

It was his upset over Reagan in the Jan. 21 Iowa caucuses that first focused attention on his candidacy.

Rep. John B. Anderson of Illinois isn't entered in Pennsylvania, and the primaries that follow are even less inviting for him

Disaster Loan Impact Queried

By STEPHEN FOX

AP Business Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Most victims of disasters such as the recent Southern California floods never recover financially despite receiving low-cost loans and other government aid, says an economist who has studied similar problems elsewhere.

Families who lose their homes and belongings wind up deeper in debt after obtaining loans and other assistance than they were immediately after the disaster struck, says Dr. Joseph Vinso, associate professor of finance and business economics at the University of Southern California.

"The major assets in most people's balance sheet is their property — land plus their house — and that is usually financed by some kind of mortgage," Vinso said in an interview. "When a disaster strikes, you lose part of your assets, but you don't lose any of your debts, so it all comes out of your net worth."

Homeowners who get low-cost loans may rebuild their homes, Vinso says, but their overall financial picture worsens.

"Government programs have essentially been aimed at the replacement of assets," he said, "but returning victims back to where they were involves liabilities as well as assets. They lose equity and unless they can get a banker to forgive a loan, which I've never heard of, they need to replace their equity."

"Now what happens is that the government comes in and offers them loans — low-interest loans — but loans nevertheless," he said. "So what you have is that you have replaced equity with debt and the people are worse off after recovery than they were right after the disaster."

Vinso bases his conclusions on seven years of study that began with an examination of families in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., who were affected by tropical storm Agnes in 1972. Most of them wound up with three times the debt they had before Agnes hit, he said, and had less to spend on everyday expenses.

"People say, 'I don't know why they're complaining, they're getting 3 percent loans,'" he said. "But it takes away disposable income and they now have a liability they didn't have before, and their primary asset — their home — is now being claimed by the government."

"The person now has an extra payment of $100 or $150 which they didn't have before, and, if their income doesn't change, some expenditures must be sacrificed," he said. "They're less likely to buy a new car and more likely to repair the old one. Instead of getting new clothes, they may use last year's longer."

Decreased spending by disaster victims also can hurt local merchants, Vinso notes, a "ripple" effect that weakens the overall economy of the area. Local governments usually come out the winners.

"Public facilities such as sewer systems, schools, hospitals and city halls are upgraded at little or no cost to localities because the federal government pays for the replacement."

be placed in job assignments according to interest, aptitude and ability of those persons, and with regard for the manpower needs of the department.

Dr. Herbert Hadley, who served as chairman of a 12-member committee of concerned citizens that earlier recommended autonomous administration for the rescue squad, contended that a lot has been written into the previous Council's motion that cross-training be implemented. Hadley said the motion did not say anything about cross-utilization of personnel.

Conference Will Be On Saturday

The format of the 4th Annual Children's Literature Conference this year has been expanded to provide features of special interests to parents.

The conference, being held today and tomorrow at the Willis Building at the corner of First and Reade Streets, opens Saturday at 9:30 a.m. and continues through 12:15 p.m.

Discussions, lectures, displays of books, and other activities are of particular value to parents, who are encouraged to attend these activities at the Willis Building.

Mrs. Elizabeth Savage said she has lived here for over 60 years and she has never seen citizens "as concerned as they are now" regarding the disbandment of the volunteer rescue unit.

Mitchel Jones told the Council that the department has "heard nothing from you. We don't know where you stand." Jones said it is "time to get it on the table" in a public forum.

Michael Cable, president of the local union of the International Association of Firefighters, observed that firemen here went along with the cross-training motion and have "been quiet on this."

Cable said that the city still has a rescue squad and the squad is working well. He charged that the "media has presented many problems."

Bill Bond said that the city is not getting input from the people who are doing the work and he asserted that citizens should have the opportunity to publicly express their wishes concerning the matter.

OPEC Session Nixon Book Declares World War III Begun

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Oil minister of the 13-member Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries will hold a special session on May 7 in Taif, Saudi Arabia, a spokesman for the oil cartel announced today.

It was not clear whether the meeting would lead to a new round of price increases from the nation's who supply the bulk of the industrialized world's crude oil supplies.

LONDON (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon, in a book excerpt published here today, said World War III has already begun and the Soviets are on the "verge of decisive supremacy over the West."

"In the 1980s, America will confront two cold realities for the first time in modern history. The first is that, if war were to come, we might lose. The second is that we might be defeated without war," Nixon wrote in an excerpt from his forthcoming book, "The Real War," published in the British weekly newsmagazine "NOW."

The excerpt deals primarily with superpower rivalry but touches on Iran, the Middle East, Africa, NATO and South America.

Nixon wrote that since he resigned the presidency in 1975, "The military position of the United States relative to that of the Soviet Union has seriously worsened and the peril to the West has greatly increased."

He said the Carter Administration's 1977 decision to cancel production of the B-1 bomber, designed to counteract the Soviet Union's Backfire bomber, "may have been one of the greatest strategic blunders this nation has ever made."

Nixon, whose book will be published later this month, wrote that World War III began with Soviet leader Joseph Stalin's blueprint for a divided post-war world, and that since 1945, Soviet expansionism has been relentless and largely successful against the West.

"It has threatened, blustered, connived, conspired, subverted, bribed, intimidated, terrorized, lied, cheated, stolen, tortured, spied, blackmailed, murdered — all as a matter of deliberate national policy."

Annual Walk Is Planned Sunday

The Ninth Annual Walk for Humanity will be held Sunday, beginning at noon.

Up to 200 walkers are expected to leave Green Springs Park after hearing a kickoff address by Joe Hollowell, candidate for U. S. House of Representatives from the First Congressional District.

The walk is a 20-kilometer loop. Each walker has secured pledges from various individuals and businesses. So each kilometer walked provides a donation for the Emergency Kitchen Fund of the local campus ministers and for Oxfam America for world hunger relief. The proceeds are to be split half-and-half between the two causes.

Further pledges may be made by calling Patrick O'Neill, 758-1504.

Optician George Q. Branch of the Caro-lens Optical Company of Laurinburg, formerly employed by Greenville Opticians, was honored by being named a Fellow of the National Academy of Opticianry. He was issued the Academy's certificate in recognition of the eyecare service he has provided the public.

Branch earned his eligibility to join the National Academy of Opticianry by becoming certified with the American Board of Opticianry. The National Academy of Opticianry is located in Washington, D.C. and is dedicated to the furtherance of education for all opticians.

than for Bush.

Next up, on May 3, is Texas, where Anderson wouldn't stand a chance even if he tried. He isn't. Bush is from Houston. But Reagan won Texas overwhelmingly in 1976, capturing the entire delegation over Ford.

Pennsylvania is vital to Bush — and any other Republican who would like to see Reagan stalled. But there, in a state where he got scant delegate support and only 5 percent of the popular vote on write-ins in the 1976 primary, Reagan appears strong this time.

There still are 1,411 GOP delegates to be chosen. And Reagan won't talk about running mates or any of the other decisions that await a nominee, saying he doesn't want to jinx himself.

But the numbers are all his way, and the competition ahead is largely in his territory.

THIS IS A CHILD

A child is innocence meeting the world
With a trusting, outstretched hand,
Curiosity discovering the world
Unhurriedly, unplanned, Honesty laying bare the world's
True joys and hidden flaws,
Excitement never allowing the world
To stop, but briefly pause.
A child is Laughter conquering the world
With an open, smiling face.
A child is Love uplifting the world
To a happier, higher place.

Increasingly Skeptical Over Warfare

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — In a time of political pressure for more U.S. arms buildup, Christianity has become increasingly skeptical about whether modern warfare can ever be morally justified, especially if it involves use of nuclear weapons. The shift in religious thought about it has been registered in various interdenominational Protestant-Eastern Orthodox statements, and was spelled out recently by a representative of U.S. Roman Catholicism.

"In the moral doctrine of the church today, the use of force receives only marginal justification — as a last resort, for a narrowly defined set of reasons and within stringent limits on the kinds of means to be employed," he says.

That church's chief expert on the issue, the Rev. J. Bryan Hehir, says the "change in Catholic teaching" about it has come about because of the "emergence of nuclear weapons on the world scene."

This "has provoked an increasing moral skepticism about the legitimacy of the use of force to resolve political problems," he testified before the U.S. House Committee on Armed Services.

Historically, mainline Christianity — both Catholicism and Protestantism — has condemned war as intrinsically wrong, but because of the fallibility of secular societies, developed a theory of "just war" under certain specific conditions.

Also, he says, "Catholic pacifism" has become a newly recognized option in the church, a "position resembling that of the historic peace churches" among Protestants, such as that held by Quakers, the Brethren and Mennonites and by some in other denominations.

These new Catholic options do not replace the church's long-time "just war doctrine," but have assumed a recognized place beside it, he adds. However, the "just war" theory itself has come under greater questioning because of the nuclear possibilities.

It held that war could be morally justified if used to defend against aggression, providing diplomatic and other means had been tried and failed to prevent attack, and then that war was justified only if its potential good surpassed its potential harm.

But the question among church thinkers now is how the devastation of nuclear war in any conceivable circumstance could result in proportionately greater good. The "existence of forces having the capacity to devastate our planet not once or twice, but many times, is absurd," providing defensive security to no one and danger to all, says the National Council of Churches, including most major Protestant and Orthodox churches.

Rev. Burden Will Speak

Revival services begin at Parkers Chapel F.W.B. Church on Sunday evening, April 13 and will continue through Friday, April 18, with services at 7:30 nightly.

Guest speaker will be Rev. Dale Burden, pastor of the Gateway F.W.B. Church, Virginia Beach, Va. Rev. Burden, a leading F.W.B. preacher, much in demand in Bible Conferences and revivals, is presently leading his church in a relocation and expansion program. The church is also launching a television ministry to cover the Norfolk area.

Religious Pluralism Spreads In Sunbelt

CINCINNATI (AP) — Religious "pluralism" — the variety of different religious groups living in a region — is most pronounced in the Northeastern United States, but there is increasing "pluralism" in Sunbelt states, a new study reports.

Called "Patterns in Pluralism," the study by two University of Connecticut professors, sociologist William M. Newman and geographer Peter L. Halvorson, was issued by the Glenmary Research Center. It depicts four major religious regions in the country, namely:

— A so-called "triple melting pot" in the Northeastern states, with different religious and ethnic traditions existing side by side, Roman Catholics, Jews and Protestant groups of colonial-period origins.

— The American South, characterized by "Anglo-Calvinist Protestants," especially Southern Baptists, Southern Presbyterians, Methodists and Churches of God.

— The Midwestern and Northwestern states dominated by Protestant denominations of continental European origins, largely Germanic and Lutheran.

The Sunbelt states of the Southwest and West Coast where the most prevalent denominations are native Protestant, including Seventh-day Adventists and Church of the Nazarene, but with growing variety.

Revival Will Begin Monday

The Rev. Curtis Jones is the brother of the Rev. Harold Jones, a former pastor of the Winterville church. The congregation, and the Rev. Bobby Futrell, invite the public to attend all services. There will be special singing each night in addition to the services.

ARE YOU ALIVE?

There is an "oughtness" about life that troubles the honest man. He senses he ought to be happier than he is, better than he is, wiser, more alive. He ought to be thinner, nicer, more peaceful, more controlled. And he even has occasional, late-at-night presentiments that he ought to consider his definable limits. It has been said that death stalks everything living and catches it, eventually.

Last week we cut a branch off a dogwood tree. It was a beautiful sight, seeing the carpet of freshly exploded blossoms lying on the grass. But when I walked by the branch two days later, the blossoms were ugly and brown-edged. They were dead — a vivid reminder why so many people today are the walking dead.

How can a man, created in the image of God, be truly alive when he is cut off from his Creator? Attend the church of your choice, and learn about God, who will not only put life into today and tomorrow, but forever.

Carter Reminds Europe Importance Of Alliance

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, whose efforts to win Western allied support for his moves against Iran were rebuffed, reminded Europe today about the "extreme importance to us of a very close alliance and a very close understanding."

On Thursday, the foreign ministers of the nine European Common Market nations refused to go along with Carter's call for joint action, rejecting economic sanctions against Iran and deciding not to scale down their embassies in Tehran.

As Carter was speaking Thursday, foreign ministers of the nine European Common Market nations said their governments would "demand" that the hostages be freed. But they did not say whether any sanctions would be imposed if the demand goes unheeded.

Administration officials, speaking privately, said Thursday they felt the Europeans would take a variety of steps, some recalling ambassadors and others imposing different kinds of restraint on trade with Iran.

But they said they expected none would go as far as the United States, which this week completely broke relations and barred all trade except in food and medicine to protest the continued captivity of the Americans.

The administration has said its sanctions will be much more effective if other nations join them, increasing Iran's sense of isolation and economic hardship.

On Thursday, Norway, which is not in the EEC, recalled its ambassador to Tehran in response to Carter's appeal and the U.S. State Department said West Germany was withdrawing its ambassador from Tehran.

Carter's speech was a wide-ranging outline of his recent foreign policy moves. In it, he warned Iran anew that the United States "will pursue every — and I repeat — every legitimate use of power to bring our people home."

Adding another element of uncertainty over Iran at the ASNE meeting was CIA Director Stansfield Turner's response when asked whether he thought sanctions would compel the Iranians to release the hostages. "It's very difficult to find any reason that (the Ayatollah Ruhollah) Khomeini will accede to pressure," Turner said. "The man has a history of not compromising. And yet, patience and negotiation have not succeeded. We have to try other measures."

Fear Violence If Troopers Go

By STEELE HOLMAN
Associated Press Writer

WRIGHTSVILLE, Ga. (AP) — Quiet returned to this rural Georgia town after three days of demonstrations and racial unrest, but the local sheriff warned peace could end when state troopers leave because people are "so provoked it's not real."

"If they (blacks) march on the sheriff's office after dark after the state patrol leaves, I am afraid we will have a lot more violence than we have before," the Johnson County sheriff said in an interview Thursday night.

"There are some real provoked people here," the sheriff said. "They won't tell you, but there are some folks who are so provoked, it's not real. There are a lot of people who don't understand the situation, but look here, I know them."

Attaway — a target of the black demonstrators, who contend he "runs the county" — said the troopers will remain in Wrightsville "as long as the situation warrants them being here. That may be four days. That might be two weeks, I just don't know."

"I just hope when the state troopers leave," he said, "they (blacks) don't march at night anymore. I just pray they won't come at night."

Meanwhile, black leaders said they would marshal their forces today in the six-county region surrounding Wrightsville in eastern Georgia for a "national march" here at noon Saturday against what they said is economic injustice against blacks.

Sheriff Roland Attaway said the presence of 30 state troopers "definitely" averted a renewal of the violence that erupted Tuesday night when 100 whites attacked 75 blacks demonstrating at the county courthouse. At least nine persons were injured, none seriously.

Sanctioned Foosball Tournney April 13

Players from five states are expected to congregate at The Attic in Greenville on Sunday, April 13 for the annual "North Carolina Championship Foosball Tournament." This tournament has been sanctioned by Rene Pierre as the state's official tournament.

Registration opens at The Attic, 103 East 4th Street, at 1 p.m. and continues until 2:30 p.m. The tournament play begins at 3 p.m.

Player's entry fees are $10 per person for doubles play, and $5 per person for singles play. Minimum age for players is 15-years old, and neat dress will be required for players.

Cash prizes to be awarded are: Doubles Tournament—first place $500, second place $200, third, $75, and fourth, $40. Singles Tournament — first place $200, second place $100, third place $50, and fourth $20. In addition, trophies will be given to first and second place winners in each tournament division.

Foosball, unlike many other arcade games, is a high skill game requiring speed, accuracy, control, endurance and intense concentration.

Janet Gains, publicity coordinator for the tournament, notes that a number of local players are some of the most accomplished foosball players in the nation. The Attic was the first place to introduce foosball to eastern North Carolina — in 1973.

Program By Young Pupils

First grade classes at W.H. Robinson School in Winterville conducted an assembly program on Friday in honor of the Week of the Young Child. The program was called "Let's Make a Word" and was presented by the first graders of Mrs. Anna Thomas, Mrs. Rosalie Jones, and Mrs. Ruth Gregory. Approximately 90 students participated in the program.

First grader Hollis Gunn served as master of ceremonies. The children portrayed such characters as Handsome Hulk, Groovy Granny, and Shabby Shameface. The program was concluded by all the children singing "It's a Book World."

Following the program, the children gathered on the front lawn of the school to release over 700 helium balloons. Each child released one balloon with a card telling about a favorite book read by the child. On the opposite side of the card was the child's name, grade, school and a note to the finder asking him to contact the child by either calling or writing.

Stewart Eyes Drug Action

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Plans were announced Thursday by House Speaker Carl Stewart, D-Gastonia, to form a committee that would prepare legislative initiatives for dealing with the state's drug problem.

Members of the Select Committee on Drug Revision will be announced in the coming week. Stewart said the committee will solicit comments from parents, educators, law enforcement officials, judges, prosecutors, corrections officials and attorneys. The group then will report tentative recommendations before the 1981 session of the General Assembly.

He said the committee will discuss stiff prison sentences for drug pushers, drug education for some offenders and additional funding for undercover operations and law-enforcement officers.

Stewart said the group will be funded by the 1980 General Assembly.

Club Host To Scouts

The Winterville Ruritan Club held its monthly meeting April 8 with the Winterville Boy Scouts as special guests.

A steak supper was served to the guests. The Scout of the Year Award was presented to Carl Dunn for his accomplishments during the 1979-80 scout program. Last year's Scout of the Year award winner, Michael Joyner, has received an appointment to West Point Academy.

Mark Owens, chairman of the Pitt County Board of Education, was also recognized as a special guest of the Winterville Ruritan Club.

Mrs. Roberta Churchill, who has provided meals for the Ruritan Club over the past several years, was presented a plaque for her service by President Elwood Nobles.

Woodrow Worthington, a charter member of the Ruritan Club was reinstated and presented a new Ruritan pin. The next regular meeting will be held May 13.

Rescuers Complete EMT-IV Studies

WINTERVILLE — Members of the Winterville Rescue Squad have completed a 112-hour EMT IV training course.

The Winterville volunteer squad is the first squad to finish the program under the direction of the East Carolina University School of Medicine.

The program, which was coordinated by Dr. Charles Rob and Mrs. Sandy Landis, R. N., Advanced Life Support Coordinator, was completed by 13 members of the squad. It included EMT recertification and IV training.

Involving in-depth studies into the human body, the new advanced program will allow members of the squad to administer certain intravenous fluids in the field. This advanced patient care will be under the direct supervision of emergency room physicians of Pitt Co. Memorial Hospital, Squad Capt. Ashley Dail said.

In addition to the IV program, the rescue personnel were trained in the use of advanced supportive equipment and spent 26 hours in hands-on training in the hospital operating room and emergency room.

Other squads in the county are planning similar programs.

Pitt Jailers Share In Training Session

Cecil E. Corbett and Deborah C. Godwin represented Pitt County jailers at a two-day training session in Raleigh sponsored by the North Carolina Medical Society.

The session was on "Receiving, Screening and Health Education for Jailers." It was held Tuesday and Wednesday at the Medical Society Building in Raleigh, with about 50 persons attending. One of the components of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) funded AMA Jail Health Project, it was designed to enable jailers to better fulfill their roles in health care in jails. Individual sessions focused on subjects such as recognizing signs of ill health and emergencies, medication administration, receiving screening, mental illness, following medical orders, alcoholism, drug abuse and legal aspects of medical care in jails.

Health Care Guides OK'd

The Eastern Carolina Health Systems Agency governing body, Wednesday night, approved two documents to be used as guides by which Eastern North Carolina's health care system will be shaped.

The documents include the 1980-1981 Annual Implementation Plan, describing what needs to be done this year to move toward accomplishment of the five-year goals of the Health System Plan, and the Procedures and Criteria Manual for Project Review — an aid in making decisions as to where future health facilities, manpower and services will be located in order to best achieve the goals and objectives of the health plans.

The annual implementation plan, which serves as a "work program", identifies as high priority problems: (in order of priority) immunizations for preschoolers, dental health screening, recruitment of physicians, dentists, home health services, nursing home bed-need methodology, water fluoridation, prenatal education, and other items.

Awards Won By ECU Honor Soc.

ECU News Bureau

Sixteen members of East Carolina University's N.C. Epsilon chapter of Alpha Epsilon Delta honor society in pre-medical/pre-dental studies attended the recent 23rd national AED convention in Lexington, Va.

ECU's chapter tied for first place with Xavier University of New Orleans, La. for the activities award, given to the chapter with best overall program for the past two years.

ECU won the attendance award, for having the highest percentage of local members attending the convention, as well as two other of the seven awards given.

Among the chapter's recent activities have been establishment of two honors programs: the Paul Wayne Ayers Scholarship, in honor of its faculty advisor, a member of the ECU chemistry faculty, and the James S. McDaniel Award, in memory of the late chairperson of the ECU Department of Biology.

Michael Bell of Morehead City, newly-elected chapter president, received the Ayers scholarship, and Clyde Johnson Jr. of Statesville received the McDaniel Award. Bell was recognized as the chapter's most outstanding rising senior, and Johnson, as the chapter's outstanding initiate.

Other chapter officers for the 1980-81 year are Mary Canning of Cary, vice president; Dawn McDonald of Clarkton, secretary; Michele Parish of New Bern, treasurer; Odile Rubel of Cape Coral, Florida, historian; and Duncan Fagnus of Pitman, N.J., reporter.

Alpha Epsilon Delta promotes excellence in academic achievement and communication between medical and pre-medical students and educators. Its membership currently numbers more than 65,000 nationwide, with 132 chapters.

ECU's chapter sponsors a Physician Observation Program for its members, a statewide symposium for pre-medical students, and a counseling program for students preparing to enter medical or dental studies.

Dr. Wayne Ayers, chapter advisor in the ECU Department of Chemistry, Greenville, attended the convention.

To Address Sierra Club

James S. Stevens, Jr., Director of Parks and Recreation for the State of North Carolina, will be the speaker at the monthly meeting of the Joseph LeConte Chapter of the Sierra Club to be held at 8 p.m. Monday, April 14 in the basement of First Presbyterian Church, corner of 14th and Elm Streets.

Stevens, former member of Trustees and Executive Committee of the National Recreation and Parks Association will discuss planning, maintenance and protection of state parks in a slide-illustrated talk.

He will focus on the current threat to Medoc Mountain State Park — which the governor can remove from public access at any time and release to a private industry. There is concern that such action may develop with the park being replaced with a molybdenum mine.

By KEVIN MCKEAN
AP Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A new technique for inserting a substitute gene into a living animal may foreshadow direct genetic treatment for sickle cell anemia and other inherited blood disorders, scientists say.

Scientists at the University of California at Los Angeles said Thursday they inserted a new gene into cells from the bone marrow of mice and then proved the gene could function when the cells were reintroduced into living animals.

"This is the first demonstration that one can put new genes into the cells of living animals," said Dr. Martin J. Cline of the UCLA School of Medicine, who headed the experiments.

"The genes that one could put in might have a variety of uses. They could be useful in treating genetic disease, or they may improve the treatment of cancer where the bone marrow is a target of (anti-cancer) drugs," he said.

"If I had to guess I would say clinical (human) trials could begin in three years" if all goes well, he said.

Cline, Winston Salsler, Karen Mercola, Howard Stang and co-workers reported their work in the British scientific magazine Nature.

The UCLA scientists used a recombinant DNA technique developed by Richard Axel of New York's Columbia University to insert into mouse cells a gene for resistance to the anti-cancer drug methotrexate.

Like most anti-cancer drugs, methotrexate has the bad side effect of attacking vital bone marrow cells that renew the blood.

Only a few of the mouse cells picked up the drug-resistance gene. But when these cells were put back in living mice, they multiplied to fill 70 percent or more of the bone marrow as long as the mice were kept on small regular doses of methotrexate.

This happened because the new cells, which could withstand the drug, had a competitive advantage over the normal bone marrow cells, which were more susceptible to the drug, Cline said.

He said the technique might be used eventually to help cancer patients tolerate higher doses of drugs.

But potentially more important, Cline said, was its possible use to treat sickle cell anemia, thalassemia and other diseases where a gene defect prevents the bone marrow from making normal blood cells.

To do this, doctors would take cells from the patient's own bone marrow and insert two new genes — one to correct the defect and the other for resistance to some drug. The cells would then be put back and the patient would take small regular doses of the drug.

Over many months, the new cells with the healthy gene would gradually replace the patient's own genetically defective cells because of the competitive advantage of drug resistance.

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market gained more ground today, aided by hopes for an impending peak in interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 3.33 to 794.80 in the first hour.

Gainers outnumbered losers by about a 2-1 margin in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

As the market opened, New York's Citibank announced that it was keeping its prime lending rate at 20 percent.

But analysts said hopes persisted that the basic rate on blue chip loans might soon start to descend from that level.

4,500-Mile Walk Organized

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - It will take a year to walk the 4,500 miles from this city to Washington, D.C., but organizers of the "HikaNation" say they have 80 people willing to go the distance.

The trek is to begin here Saturday. Organizer Mike McReynolds said some people have quit their jobs and sold their possessions to "bring to the American public the fact that hiking is a healthy outdoor activity" and to promote walking trails.

Ten Hearings...

W. M. Smith and W. J. Simmons, both residents of E. Wright Road behind the Jaycee Park facility, objected to the schedule change since Jaycee Park has operated on a 10:30 p.m. curfew in the past. Boyd Lee, executive director of the Recreation and Parks Commission, said that the extended time for Jaycee Park was not recommended in order to allow teams to play later but in order to complete games that previously ran into the curfew.

Lee noted that other park and tennis court facilities in town previously closed at 12 midnight or 11 p.m. and it is felt that the overall 11 p.m. curfew for all facilities would be an energy saving measure for the city. He assured the Council that the closing time would be enforced.

Other business last night included:
 - Granting on a one-year basis applications by James Russell Whichard and Ms. Geneva Harrison for renewal of mobile home permits;
 - Approval (with Mrs. Judy Greene voting no) of an application by L & L Pawnbrokers for a privilege license to operate a pawnshop at 112 E. Fifth Street;
 - Approval of an application by the Rathskellar on Fifth Street for an on-premise beer and wine privilege license, with the application necessitated by a change in ownership;

- Approval of an application by Blount Beverages Inc. at 14th and Charles Street for an off-premise beer privilege license;
 - Approval of the annual list of beer and wine privilege licenses renewals;

- Approval of audit contracts with the certified public accounting firm of Farley, Prescott, Mizelle & Co. Inc. for audit contracts for fiscal year 1979-80 for the city and the Parking Authority;

- Adoption of a resolution requesting that the state designate Greenville and its extraterritorial planning jurisdiction a regional growth center under the Governor's Balanced Growth Policy and authorizing the submission of an application for growth center designation;

- Approval of a petition for curb and gutter and a five-foot strip of paving on Beaumont Road and a portion of Evergreen Drive from N. Overlook to Evergreen, adoption of a resolution stating the Council's intent to undertake the project, and scheduling a public hearing for May 8 on the preliminary assessment resolution;

- Approval of Cunningham Associates Inc. of Charlotte as the successful bidder ($2,797.93) on a large piece of playground equipment for the Higgs neighborhood; and

- Adoption of a resolution finding that it is in the best interest of the city to become a member of the North Carolina Municipal Power Agency No. Three, applying for approval of local membership, and appointing a commissioner and an alternate commissioner of the agency.

City Manager Ed Wyatt said the city is presently a member of Agency No. Two, which essentially involves municipalities located in the Virginia Electric and Power Co. service area. Agency No. Three involves cities generally in the Carolina Power and Light Co. service area.

It was noted that the action marks the first official indication of Greenville Utilities move towards CP&L service.

The Council, which tabled action at the March meeting on a recommendation by the Recreation and Parks Commission that a closing time of 11 p.m. be established for city recreation facilities, voted last night to adopt the new time schedule.

Cage Awards

East Carolina University's basketball team honored its superlatives at a banquet last night. Among the winners are, left to right: Herb Gray,

Three Tied At Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Jeff Mitchell, a self-taught player who got his start on a 9-hole course with a $10 set of used clubs, was cast in the unlikely role of America's standard-bearer Thursday.

The long-hitting Texan became the only U.S. player to break a foreign stranglehold in the opening round of the 44th Masters golf tournament when he claimed a share of the lead with a 6-under par 66.

It came at the end of a day dominated by tricky, swirling winds that apparently had been conquered by only two players — Australian David Graham, the PGA champion, and Spain's Seve Ballesteros, the British Open winner — who had fashioned their 66s much earlier in the day.

Mitchell, a strapping 25-year-old, gained his share of the lead over the 7,040-yard Augusta National Golf Club course with the best putting of his career and the advice of his veteran caddy, Robert "Cigarette" Jones.

"It's almost like a dream come true," said Mitchell, who was a fourth-year Monday morning qualifying "rabbit" until he won a Masters invitation with his first tour victory in the Phoenix Open earlier this season.

"This has to be one of the best putting rounds I've ever had," added Mitchell, who had an impressive nine 3s on his scorecard. "If I keep putting like I putted today, I'd say I have a real good chance."

He called Jones, his tour caddy, "the best caddy in Augusta. He's been here a long time. I think he's the honorary caddy master around here. He told me all about this course. He's been helping me read the greens a lot."

Mitchell foresaw an outstanding putting round when he salvaged a par with a 20-footer on the second hole. He had birdie putts of 18, 12 and 30 feet on the frontside and came back with a pair in the 1-5-foot range before knocking in a 25-footer on the final hole in the final playing group of the day.

The leaders enjoyed a 2-shot advantage over Jack Newton, another Australian, and former U.S. Open champion Hubert Green.

There were two other Americans deadlocked in sixth place at 69, Tom Kite and Larry Nelson, but the biggest story had been the collapse of some of the game's top names.

Jack Nicklaus, on the comeback trail at age 40 trying to regain his form as golf's top performer, hit one shot in the water and used 37 putts in his round of 74.

"I don't enjoy shooting 74.

ECU's Maynor Wins Top Honor

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

George Maynor, who led the East Carolina University Pirates in scoring this past basketball season, was honored as the team's Most Valuable Player last night at a banquet honoring the team.

Three other awards were also presented based on votes taken by the team members. Tony Byles, a junior college transfer, was named as the Outstanding Newcomer; Kyle Powers was winner of the Most Improved Award; and Herb Krusen collected the hardware as the Outstanding Defensive Player.

Two other awards were presented, based on statistics for the season. Gray was again a winner, as the Outstanding Rebounder, while Herb Krusen was the winner of the Outstanding Free Throw Award.

Clemson University Coach Bill Foster served as the featured speaker for the event, telling the players and fans gathered for the occasion that "Success is a key word in building anything."

Foster, who illustrated his talk with various stories, added that he got most of his stories from former football coach and athletic director Frank Howard, known for his wit on the banquet circuit. "Clemson," he recalled, "is not the end of the world, but you can see it from there."

He said that having a banquet was also fairly new to the basketball program at Clemson. "Except, we had ours at the start of the season. We didn't think anyone would come at the end."

"Success," Foster said, "cannot always be measured in w's (wins) and l's (losses). You can't always control those, but you can control success."

"Success is doing all you can do, and doing it together."

He pointed out that if his players come in after a game and can be proud of the way they played, then it doesn't matter if they've won or lost by 20.

"You have to surround yourself with good people to be successful. It makes the job a lot easier. For this reason, you try to recruit a total person, one who has his head screwed on straight and who has a good self-image of himself."

The coach added that success is a journey and not a destination. "A couple of years ago, we went out and beat Duke, Wake and Maryland on the road, and two of them were ranked in the top five at the time. Then, we came home and Virginia, which particularly when there are some good scores," said Nicklaus, a five-time Masters champion. "But the first year I won here, I started with a 74."

Then there was Tom Watson. Player of the Year in each of the last three seasons, who had a had a 73 and declared. "There were no highlights. I didn't play well at all."

But, Watson wasn't giving up. "Your feel comes and goes from day-to-day," he said. "I can get back on track."

And, Tom Weiskopf, a four-time Masters runnerup, set an unwanted Masters record when he plunked five shots into Rae's Creek along the par 3 12th green, taking a 13 on the hole a finishing with a fat 85 for the day.

"It is extremely embarrassing," he said. "But I'll be there to tee off tomorrow."

Graham, an international star with victories on five continents, also fired his 66 without a bogey, knocking in three birdie putts of six feet or less, two more at 12 feet and finally a 15-footer on the par 5 15th.

Tar Heels Bop Pirates

CHAPEL HILL — The University of North Carolina pushed over four runs in the bottom of the eighth inning and gained revenge for an earlier 10-3 defeat by stopping the East Carolina Pirates, 12-8, last night.

The loss was only the fourth in 21 games for the Pirates, who jumped off to an early lead, but were unable to hold it. The Tar Heels, who had an 11-game winning streak halted by East Carolina last Thursday night, upped their record to 28-12.

The slugfest saw the two teams bang out 28 hits during the course of the evening. The Heels collected 15, while East Carolina had 12. Six of the hits were doubles, two were triples, and one, by Butch Davis, was a home run.

Both teams had to dip into their pitching staffs to get through the contest. East Carolina used four, with the second man, Bob Patterson, suffering the loss, his second in five decisions. Carolina used three, with reliever David Cook getting the win, his sixth in six decisions.

For a while, it looked like the Pirates were going to make a repeat of their earlier win, jumping off to a 3-0 lead in the top of the first.

Davis got things started with his tenth home run of the year, on the first pitch, for a 1-0 lead. The roundtripper tied Rick Derechallo's 1979 school record of ten in a season.

Kelly Robinette followed with a walk and Billy Best, attempting to sacrifice, reached on an error, moving up with Robinette, when Raymie Styons sacrificed. A sacrifice fly by Derechallo then scored Robinette, and Macon Moye doubled in Best.

Moye's double established a new school record for two-bagers in a career. Moye had been tied with Ron Staggs for the old mark with 20 each.

East Carolina added two more in the fifth for a 5-0 margin. Davis reached on an infield hit, as did Robinette. Best was safe on an error, allowing Davis to score. Styons then hit a fly to center, scoring Robinette after the catch.

The Tar Heels bounced back in the bottom of the first with their first run. Pete Kumiega led off with a double and scored on a two-out single by Greg Schuler.

Then, in the third, the Heels chased starter Rick Ramey and scored four times to tie it up. Chris Pittaro opened up with a single to center and Scott Bradley singled him around and moved on to third on an error on the play. Lloyd Brewer walked and Kumiega doubled, scoring both runners. Dwight Lowery singled in Kumiega to knot it at 5-5.

East Carolina pushed back ahead with two in the fourth. Davis singled, but was thrown out trying to stretch it into a double. Robinette followed with an infield hit, and scored when Best tripled. After Styons walked, and a single by Derechallo plated Best.

North Carolina crept back with one in the fourth. Chris Shumock singled and stole second, scoring with two away on a hit by Bradley.

The Heels tied it again, 7-7, with one in the fifth. After two outs, P.J. Gay walked and scored on Schuler's double.

North Carolina then moved ahead in the sixth for the first time—and for good. Shumock reached on a fielder's choice and advanced on an error on the play. Brewer doubled, scoring Shumock for an 8-7 lead.

In the eighth, the Heels broke it open with four. Pittaro walked and was sacrificed up. Bradley singled, scoring Pittaro. Brewer then walked and Kumiega reached on a fielder's choice that got Bradley at third.

But Lowery followed with a triple, driving in two runs, and Gay singled in the 12th run, giving the Heels a five-run cushion.

East Carolina tried to come back, scoring once in the top of the ninth. John Hallow walked and with two away, scored when Davis reached on an error.

Vikings, Jaguars, Panthers Fall In Tourney

Williamston, Washington and New Bern advanced in the first round of the Pitt Easter Tournament yesterday, while Rose had to wait until today to see if it had a berth in the winners' bracket.

Williamston downed Farmville, 5-1; Washington nipped North Pitt, 3-2, and New Bern dumped Conley, 14-8, in games completed.

Rose, held up by a transformer blowout that blacked out the field, was ahead, 5-1, over Kinston. That game was to be completed this morning before the second round opened.

In today's games, North Pitt was to face the loser of the Rose-Kinston game at noon, followed by Conley against Farmville Central at 2:30 p.m. New Bern and Williamston clash at 5 p.m., with Washington taking on the Rose-Kinston winner at 7:30 p.m.

It was a hitter's game. D.H. Conley hit the ball hard, hard enough to win. But New Bern hit it harder, and the Bears did win.

Bouyed by a 16-hit attack and a six-run fifth inning, New Bern came from behind to defeat the Vikings, 14-8, Thursday, in the first game of the Pitt Easter Tournament at Guy Smith Stadium.

New Bern, 7-2, plays Williamston today at 5 p.m.

Conley, 3-4, faces Farmville Central at 2:30.

"They just wore it out," D.H. Conley coach Walter Claybrook said. "We had enough hits to normally win a game, but they just were hitting the ball real well.

"We couldn't get the ball across the plate much today, but when we did they were smacking it. They weren't hitting bloopers, they were hitting some line shots."

The Bears wasted little time in unveiling their arsenal. New Bern led 1-0 in the first after Harvey Cass singled, stole second, and then scored on a single by Ken Jones.

A solo home run by Tommy Best in the second gave the Bears a 2-0 advantage, but it was a lead short-lived as the Vikings tallied four runs in the bottom of the second.

With two outs and Dixon Page at first on an error, Arnell Credle and Jeff Cox who was three for three, ripped back-to-back doubles to drive in two runs. Sammy Tucker then lofted a two-run homer over the rightcenterfield fence to give the Vikings a 4-2 lead.

A bases-empty home run by Ken Jones, who banged out four hits and had four RBIs, pulled the Bears within one, 4-3, but the Vikes countered with a run of their own in the bottom of the inning.

Page singled, moved to second on a balk, and then scored on Cox's single. Robbie McClanahan's second balk of the inning moved Cox to second and brought New Bern coach Larry Moser out swiftly to challenge the call.

Moments later Moser was ejected. "The umpire said he (McClanahan) was stepping toward an unoccupied base (third)," Moser said afterward. "I've gotten in trouble before talking about umpires, so I'm not going to say anymore.

"But it was a close call." For New Bern, close. For Conley, disastrous. The Bears, spurred on by Moser's dismissal, erupted for six runs in the fifth to take a lead they never relinquished.

"That seemed to get the guys mad," Moser said. "They came out steaming and that next inning they scored all those runs."

After one was out New Bern's Wendy McCoy singled and then scored on a double by Joye Harrison. Cass walked and consecutive singles by Mark Williams, Ken Jones and McClanahan brought home three more runs.

Moments later Best lined a double into center to score McClanahan and Greg Stillely, who reached on an error, and the Bears led, 9-5.

New Bern wasn't through. The Bears scored four in the sixth, on a walk and two errors, and a two-run homer by McClanahan, to go up, 13-5.

The Vikings narrowed the gap to 13-7 with two in the bottom of the inning. Two walks and a single by Emory Vines brought in one run and Arnell Credle's sacrifice fly scored the other.

Both squads added single runs in the seventh in a game that saw 22 runs scored, 27 hits punched out, including four home runs and six doubles, and seven pitchers used.

D.H. Conley used four pitchers in trying to stop the New Bern attack, something that disturbed Claybrook.

"Right now my pitchers don't have much confidence in themselves," Claybrook said. "Our pitchers are struggling. I think our youth is beginning to show.

"The whole team seems to be waiting for something to happen. They're not going after it; they're just going through the motions.

"But the good thing about a tournament like this is that I can talk to them about something and they can go out the next day and it might come up.

"Of course we might still blow it, but the guys just have got to suck it up now and begin to believe in themselves."

Tony Rogers led off the inning reaching on an error but was out on Billy Williams' fielder's choice. Leslie Beacham then drove a double into center, scoring Williams. Beacham scored moments later on Clark's sacrifice fly.

With two outs, Farmville's Alan Corbett misplayed Greg Johnson's fly ball to center. Johnson wound up on second. He scored on a single by Randy Ellis.

Williamston added to its lead in the fifth, scoring twice. Again, Williamston took advantage of Jaguar mistakes.

Clark reached on an error and moved to third on Randy Ellis' double. Tim Hines, walked to load the bases before Victor Thomas doubled to bring home two runs.

That was all the Tigers needed.

Farmville's lone run came in the sixth. Tony Eason led off with a single, moved to second on Bobby Avery's single, before going to third on a passed ball and scoring on a wild pitch.

"We just didn't play very well," Woodard said. "We can play a lot better."

Walls, 3-1, held Coach Pat Smith's unit scoreless through four innings before surrendering his first of two home runs in the fifth. He went the distance in the win, giving up five hits while fanning five and walking but one.

Walls also displayed some power at the plate, smashing a solo home run in the top of the sixth to give his club a one run lead. Washington tallied a second run in the sixth when shortstop Doug Payne connected for a triple and scored on Ted Eubanks single.

"It was a good ball game," Smith said after the loss. "We had a few chances early, but we didn't hit well. We got two big hits," he said, referring to the team's two homers, "but we didn't have anybody on base. We didn't get up, though," he added, "and I'm proud of them. It was a good ball game."

North Pitt's Ronnie House collected the game's first hit, a one-out single in the bottom of the first, but was left stranded on second.

Neither team mounted a threat in the second frame and Washington put two men on base with two outs in the third before a grounder to Pitt hurler Melvin Howard thwarted the threat.

The Pam Pack scored the game's initial run in the top of the fourth. After two outs, Payne singled and stole second. He was brought in on Mike Hooks' single.

Walls protected the one-run spread in the bottom of the fourth and two thirds of the way through the fifth. With two gone in the fifth, Panther firstbaseman Ken Whitehurst slapped a high Walls fastball over the right field fence to tie the score.

Not to be outdone, Walls answered Whitehurst's calling with a shot over the left field fence in the top of the sixth. Payne followed with his triple and came home on Eubanks' bingle to score what proved to be the winning run.

After a scoreless sixth, North Pitt, down by a pair, put together a seventh inning rally. After one out, centerfielder Victor Evans walloped a Walls pitch over the 340 signs in center to bring the Panthers within one. Marty Barber

It was a nightmare nearly revisited by Williamston coach Mike Parrell.

Already this season his Tigers have lost two one-run games after leading going into the seventh. Earlier this season Plymouth scored eight runs in the seventh to nip the Tigers by one.

And here was Farmville in the first round of the Pitt Easter Tournament leading the bases in both the fifth and sixth with only one out.

Parrell's nightmare quickly vanished, however, as the Tigers squirmed out of both jams with Farmville scoring but once and then going on to defeat the Jaguars, 5-1.

"It's been somewhat of an up-and-down year for us," Parrell said. "But this was a pretty good ball game for us.

"When Clark's having a good game we usually play well. We start only two seniors and a lot of the younger guys get confidence from Clark when he's humming it in there."

Clark was indeed humming it in there Thursday afternoon. The Williamston senior held Farmville to six singles while striking out eight and walking three. Clark did not allow a Jaguar to get past second until the fifth.

Farmville pitcher Tony Eason allowed seven hits, but only one of the Tigers' five runs were earned. Eason struck out three and walked three.

"They just got the hits with men on base," Farmville Central coach Linwood Woodard said. "We didn't and they did."

Both Clark and Eason dominated the first two innings, neither allowing a hit. But the Tigers finally broke through in the third with three runs.

Atlanta (AP) — Tiny Charlie Criss, Atlanta's inspirational mighty mite, combined with two of his towering teammates Thursday night to lift the Hawks back into contention in their National Basketball Association playoff with the Philadelphia 76ers.

Atlanta Sunday. The 76ers swept the first two games in Philadelphia.

Criss really gave them life," said Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham. "The guy's got a heart as big as anyone I've ever seen. That's why he's in this league. We're going to have to make a slight adjustment for him."

Wayne "Tree" Rollins, the biggest Hawk at 7 feet 1, and his backup at center Steve Hawes, also were devastating. "Those three all played an outstanding game. Hawes and Rollins had 38 points between them and 30 rebounds. Another big key was they had no turnovers and 16 offensive rebounds between the two of them," said Cunningham.

Hawes was Atlanta's leading scorer with 20 points and added 13 rebounds and six assists, while Rollins had 18 points, 17 rebounds and six blocked shots. Criss also had six assists. Julius Erving led Philadelphia with 26 points and Lionel Hollins added 22 points.

followed with a single and moved to third on Greg Briley's base on balls. But Whitehurst flied out and pinch-hitter Robert Bunn struck out, thus killing the late inning scare.

"I'm getting adjusted to close games," Pam Pack mentor Addison Bass nodded after the game. The win gave his Northeastern Conference squad a 5-1 slate on the year. North Pitt, 3-3 in the Eastern Carolina conference, fell to 5-4 overall.

Southpaw Howard took the mound loss, going the distance while surrendering the three runs on seven hits while walking three and fanning one.

Payne was the only player in the game to pair hits, as he slapped a double and a triple in three at-bats while scoring a pair of Pam Pack runs.

Urge Israel Withdraw From Lebanon

By MICHAEL PRECKER
Associated Press Writer
TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The United States is reportedly urging Israel to withdraw its troops from southeastern Lebanon, and Defense Minister Ezer Weizman says they won't stay permanently.

Weizman met here Thursday with William Brown, the U.S. charge d'affaires, who an announcement said requested "clarification" of Israel's intentions in southern Lebanon. No details of the meeting were released, but U.N. sources said the United States was urging the Israelis to pull back.

"There is some indication of a beginning of a withdrawal of the Israeli forces," a spokesman for Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim said in New York. But no such indications were reported from the border area.

Israeli military sources said the army crossed the border to block more Palestinian guerrilla raids like the one on an Israeli settlement last Monday in which three Israelis and the five guerrillas were killed. The sources indicated the troops might stay until after Prime Minister Menachem Begin's visit to Washington next week.

"We don't intend to stay in Lebanon permanently," Weizman said in an army radio interview. "I wish we could leave Lebanon. I wish we could reach a situation in Lebanon like we have with Egypt."

Explaining Israel's military thrust across its northern frontier, Weizman said, "First of all (it was done) to make it easier on the settlements ... This battle has gone on for 10 or 12 years and it's not a simple thing."

Israel's string of collective farms lining the rugged Galilee border with Lebanon have been frequent targets of attacks by Palestinian guerrillas from Lebanon. But the attack Monday on the Misgav Am kibbutz coincided with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's meeting in Washington with President Carter, and there was speculation that another raid would be staged while Begin was meeting with Carter.

U.N. sources said the Israelis have deployed about 360 soldiers and 23 armored personnel carriers anchored in five emplacements along an 11-mile-long arc some three miles inside Lebanese territory.

Lebanon accused Israel of an "insolent violation" of U.N. resolutions and demanded a Security Council session on the "explosive situation." The council was to meet in closed session this afternoon to discuss the situation and what to do about it.

Israeli military sources who declined to be identified said the troops in Lebanon had not run into any guerrillas so far. Nor did they encounter any of the U.N. peacekeeping troops based in southern Lebanon since April 1978, the sources said in Metulla, Israel's northernmost frontier town.

Israel claims the U.N. troops bear part of the blame for the Misgav Am attack because the Palestinians crossed their zone to reach the frontier. A military investigation also found fault with Israel's electronic surveillance system which is supposed to guard against such incursions.

Blooming For Azalea Festival

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Spring came to North Carolina Thursday as the 33rd annual Azalea Festival got under way amid a burst of color from hundreds of azaleas, dogwoods, camellias and wisteria in full bloom.

"Everything seems to be blooming at the same time," said Robert Horn, a nurseryman.

The bright colors of the city's 40-odd varieties of azaleas provide the backdrop for the annual event that will run through Sunday.

The festival draws thousands of tourists, from across the country each year. Hotel and motel rooms have been booked for months, city officials say.

Appearing at the event will be festival queen Lacey Neuhaus, who plays on the television series "From Here to Eternity." Ms. Neuhaus arrived Thursday by boat at a downtown dock on the Cape Fear River and was greeted by fireworks, spewing water hoses and a flag salute by the U.S. Coastguard icebreaker Point Martin.

Ms. Neuhaus will be crowned at a concert given Saturday by Dixieland clarinetist Pete Fountain. Also appearing in the festival are Dionne Warwick, who sang Thursday night, and actor Mills Watson, who plays in the TV series "The Misadventures of Sheriff Lobo." Watson will be marshal of the festival parade Saturday morning.

Fees are charged for the concerts and for entrance to some of the gardens. Other events, such as the sidewalk art shows, a coin show, a horse show, band concerts and sailboat regatta are free.

Bill Cobey Waited For A Shot At Being Elected

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — William Cobey is still getting his feet wet in his first political campaign, but he's already heard one question more times than he cares to remember.

BILL COBEY, athletic director at the University of North Carolina Chapel Hill, discusses his reasons for resigning to enter the state's political scene. (AP Laserphoto)

Why in the world would a 40-year-old man give up a comfortable, $40,000-a-year job as athletic director of the University of North Carolina to make a longshot Republican bid for public office?

"Oh yeah. The logic of the world doesn't apply to it," Cobey acknowledges. "Power, prestige, position and possessions are the things people seek after. And my job has a lot of those ingredients."

The reason, though, is that Cobey has been waiting for years — through a lifetime of athletics and business — to make a stab at getting elected. And this year he's getting the chance, with much help from conservative GOP Sen. Jesse Helms' well-financed Congressional Club organization.

"My personality is one of said. "Also, he could represent the state when the governor's not there, and speak out effectively on issues."

Cobey's answer reveals, however, a bit of his political naivete.

The only power North Carolina's constitution gives lieutenant governors is that of presiding over the state Senate and succeeding the governor in the event of death, resignation or removal.

North Carolina's lieutenant governors do traditionally appoint Senate committees and chairmen, but that's a power voted by the Senate members that can be taken away at any time.

With Democrats holding a 44-to-6 majority, it's safe to assume that should Cobey win, he'd find those powers stripped from him. And the times are rare when North Carolina governors have sought advice from the independently elected lieutenant governor.

But if Cobey's lack of exposure to the political scene is apparent, many of his backers think voters may find that refreshing.

"A lot of people say Bill isn't going to be a good candidate because he's so low key," says Tom Ellis, who heads Helms' organization and who talked Cobey into running for lieutenant governor when he was more interested in challenging Democratic Congressman L.H. Fountain.

"But I think that's what people want. People want someone who isn't a gladhander or stemwinder, and isn't thinking about politics all the time."

Some Republicans have expressed a private concern, however, about how he will fare when the campaign turns combative this fall. And some have questioned how firm the Congressional Club's commitment to Cobey will remain if incumbent Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green is the Democratic nominee.

The conservative Green discussed with Ellis last year the possibility of switching to the GOP and running for governor with the Helms' group's backing. Ellis acknowledges that conversation, but says Cobey's philosophy is in tune with Helms and the Congressional Club and will have their financial and campaign support.

Although Cobey says he doesn't care whether Green or House Speaker Carl Stewart wins the Democratic primary for lieutenant governor, other Republicans see Stewart as a more favorable opponent. Stewart, 43, is perceived as more liberal than Green and would be easier for Cobey to draw contrasts with.

Cobey is softspoken but intense, and audiences seem to find him sincere. He speaks with conviction about his conservative beliefs, such as his firm opposition to the Equal Rights Amendment, support for a constitutional amendment to ban most abortions and a limit on government spending.

But the issue he speaks most passionately about, and the one he says pushed him into politics, is that of government regulations — particularly federal initiatives forcing colleges to put more money and emphasis into women's sports. It is an issue a lieutenant governor can't do much about, but one Cobey intends to talk about during the campaign.

"We've got a syndrome in this country. We've moved from 'In God We Trust' to 'In Government We Trust,'" he said.

"I believe in equality. But what HEW and Congress did was jump on a cultural bandwagon," he added. "In athletics we've literally got HEW telling us what to do. And we don't receive one dime of support... We have government without trust for the people right now."

Fellowships Are Offered

The East Carolina University Department of Library Science is accepting applications for teaching fellowships for the 1980-81 academic year.

Each fellow will work toward the Master of Library Science degree or the Master of Arts in Education degree with a concentration in library science/media while serving as a junior instructor or research assistant.

A minimum honorarium of $2600 will be offered with each fellowship.

Further information is available from Dr. Gene Lanier, Department of Library Science, East Carolina University, Greenville, N.C. 27834 before June 15, 1980.

wanting challenges. I think they call people like me stress seekers," Cobey said, discussing his upcoming campaign in a recent interview at his home. "I want to make politics a lifetime commitment."

Cobey will be leaving his job at the end of this month to begin campaigning full-time toward the November election. After spending 12 years at UNC, the last five as athletic director, he had to give up the state job to make the race.

Cobey came to UNC as an academic counselor for football players after brief jobs as banker and salesman for Dow Chemical Co. He grew up in College Park, Md., where his father was athletic director at the University of Maryland.

An uncle dabbled in Republican politics and served as commissioner of the Internal Revenue Service during the Nixon administration. But Cobey said it was former UNC athletic director and pro football coach Homer Rice who consistently encouraged him to run for office.

Unopposed in North Carolina's May 6 primary, Cobey is now confining most of his campaigning to weekends while others work on raising money and building an organization for the fall.

But if he doesn't mind giving up his athletic director's position, Bill Cobey is also frequently asked, why is he running for lieutenant governor — a job with few constitutional duties and one that's never been won in 100 years by a Republican?

"I think the appointment of committees and the presiding over the Senate are important constitutional duties, and hopefully the lieutenant governor could do all sorts of things in administration. But Cobey said

Triad Theme Park Vision Is Unfolded

Bain said the commission is looking for a 3,000-to-5,000-acre site for the park and he said suitable locations would be 10 miles from Greensboro in any direction.

Baseball Opening Is A Healing Balm By TV

By PETER J. BOYER
 AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two days ago, television technology and a bit of good luck worked to produce something lovely and near magical, a healing balm that soothed a spirit beaten down by talk of baseball troubles.

Opening Day in Cincinnati, the Reds vs. the Atlanta Braves.

I'd never seen the very first pitch of a baseball season because tradition has forever banished Opening Day to Cincinnati. It's a nice enough town, but hard to get to in the middle of the week without people noticing you're gone.

But this year, somehow, the happy event made its way to my TV set. As luck would have it, Cincinnati's Opening Day opponent this year was Atlanta, whose owner, Ted Turner, is of the benevolent philosophy that as many games as possible should be televised.

Benevolence, in Turner's case, is aided by the fact that Turner also owns WTBS, the Atlanta station that carries the Braves' games. WTBS, you may know, is the "superstation" whose signal is sent out by satellite to cable companies around the country, one of them being the one to which I subscribe.

So, there it was: Genuine, official, regulation, every game from here on counts, major league baseball. Even the awful shadow of the black subject of this spring, the players' strike, couldn't darken the reality of this happy scene.

On the mound for Cincinnati: Don Pastore, substituting for flu-bitten Tom Seaver. Behind the mike: Ernie Johnson, the voice of the Braves, who noted that Seaver's illness was "the first break for the Braves of this season." Sorry, Ernie. Pastore rose to the occasion and held the Braves to three hits, while Cincinnati's famed stickmen pelted 41-year-old Atlanta knuckleballer Phil Niekro and an ensuing parade of Atlanta pitchers for nine runs.

It wasn't pretty baseball, perhaps, but it was momentous. Foremost was the undeniable fact that baseball had come, after all. And the shutout was the first Opening Day shutout in Cincinnati since Johnny Vander Meer blanked the Cardinals in 1943.

Yes, this is what America needed. Not ugly, frightening talk about Basic Agreements and free agency and player compensation and million-dollar salaries, but this:

Ernie Johnson sending his best wishes "to all the shut-ins out there across the country whose only way of following baseball is to see the games on TV." Cincinnati outfielder George Foster hitting a Niekro pitch into the thickly populated left field stands. Johnny Bench striking out, and cussing himself.

Collapsed, But Show Goes On

LONDON (AP) — The show went on, doctors or no.

Merrill Osmond, third eldest member of the pop singing Osmond family, defied medical advice and went on stage here Thursday after collapsing at his London hotel earlier in the day.

Osmond, 27, has had heart trouble for three years and is worried about his son, Shane, who was hospitalized here this week with suspected meningitis, said the group's publicist, Tony Brainsby.

Shane is expected to be released soon.

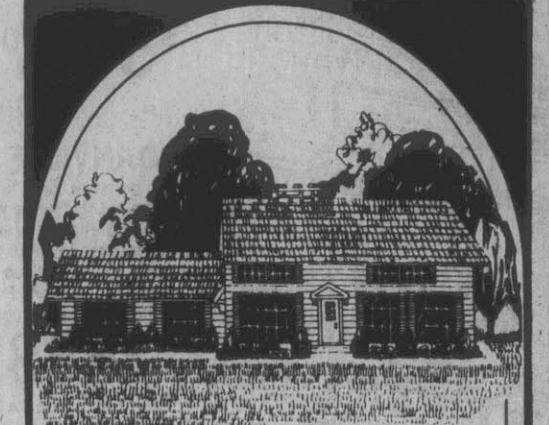

"It is the strain of that coupled with the tour that has made Merrill ill," Brainsby said.

The singer was driven to the theater in an ambulance and a nurse and an oxygen cylinder were on standby in the wings.

The Osmonds are in Britain for a tour of London and provincial cities. British newspapers today reported the six brothers and sister Marie are saying it will be their last tour before they split up.

The bidding:
South West North East
1♦ Pass 1♦ Pass
1NT Pass 2NT Pass
3NT Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Six of ♣.

When defending, always consider what declarer does or does not do. For example, if declarer does not take a finesse, it may be because he lacks the necessary finessing cards. Applying this, West came up with a spectacular defense to force declarer to bow the knee.

North-South bid aggressively to reach the three no trump contract. We like North's decision to raise to two no trump in view of his six-card suit and good intermediates. South's decision to go on to game is a bit more questionable, but the vulnerability swayed him to take the optimistic course. South's rebid of one no trump, however, is inexcusable—one heart is the correct action.

In these days of prepared club openings, West saw no reason to lead anything but fourth-best from his longest and strongest suit, even though it had been bid to his right. Dummy's ten won, and declarer led a diamond to the ace. West paused to take stock.

If declarer had started with four clubs, the contract looked unbeatable. But if declarer had only three clubs, it was vital to find an entry to the East hand for a club return through declarer's marked king.

Declarer's play of a diamond to the ace provided the critical clue. If he held the ace-jack of diamonds, he might have tried to finesse in an effort to pick up East's king. Therefore, it seemed probable that East held the jack of diamonds. In addition, it was a virtual certainty that the jack was twice guarded; otherwise declarer would have played the hand differently to keep the danger hand—East—off lead. So West jettisoned the king of diamonds under the ace!

Declarer had no way of coming to nine tricks without the diamond suit. But he could not set up the diamonds without allowing East to gain the lead. When he did so, East returned a club, and West cashed five tricks in the suit to defeat the contract two tricks.

Hunt Drug Plane Crew

SOUTHPORT, N.C. (AP) — Brunswick County authorities searched Thursday for the crew of a twin-engine plane that landed at the county airport with more than a ton of marijuana and a large quantity of Quaaludes on board.

U.S. Customs official Gil Payette said the crew of the Lockheed Loadstar aircraft had fled by the time authorities reached the plane shortly after 3:30 p.m.

He said there were several suspects but no arrests had been made. The plane was registered in California.

When police arrived, the unoccupied aircraft was idling, with one engine running.

Payette said there were 3,310 pounds of marijuana valued at $1,324,000 and 867 pounds of Quaaludes, or about 1,190,000 tablets, valued at $4,760,000 aboard the plane. Quaalude is a drug used as a sedative and hypnotic.

Payette said such cargos usually come from Colombia. The cargo was taken to a Customs office in Wilmington to be stored. The plane was to be flown to the Customs office in Wilmington.

On the front of the plane was an insignia saying "REO Speedwagon," the name of a rock-music group. Payette said the plane may have belonged to the group at one time, but they are not suspected in the incident.

He also said the haul was one of few large loads of Quaaludes ever confiscated in North Carolina.

Bert Parks Might Be Back In Atlantic City

By PETER MATTIACE
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Put out to pasture by the Miss America Pageant, Bert Parks may be going up the Boardwalk again — to work for a new casino hotel.

The 65-year-old Parks confirmed Thursday he is close to an agreement to promote the 500-room Brighton Hotel & Casino. The $65 million Brighton is scheduled to open as Atlantic City's fourth casino around May 31.

"Aren't you proud of Daddy?" Parks said in a telephone interview from his winter home Hollywood, Fla. "I'm coming home to Atlantic City. But, hey, I never left those lovely people. You just don't throw away 25 years just like that."

Parks said his contract, which has not been signed, calls for him to make guest appearances, radio and television commercials for the Brighton. "I fervently hope the deal goes through," Parks said. "But until you write your name down, it doesn't mean a thing." Brighton officials could not be reached for comment. Parks, who sang "There She

Is" to tearful Miss Americas since 1955, has made several television appearances and commercials since pageant officials confirmed Jan. 2 that they would not renew his one-year contract.

Pageant officials announced that Ron Ely, television's first Tarzan and now a Los Angeles game show host, would replace Parks.

Albert A. Marks Jr., executive officer of the pageant, and Campbell's Soup spokesman Scott Rumbaugh confirmed Thursday that the company would end its sponsorship. Marks said Nestle Co. would join Gillette, a 22-year sponsor, and Kellogg's, a 12-year sponsor.

Planning Conference

CHAPEL HILL — Some 150-200 planners and other government officials involved in planning are here today and Saturday for the 23rd annual N.C. Planning Conference at the Institute of Government.

Wes Hankins of Greenville, president of the North Carolina chapter of the American Planning Association, pointed out that the "conference will focus on the changes that planners may anticipate in the tools they use to guide land use and development."

Hankins, who is director of the urban and regional planning program at East Carolina University, said that six sessions on issues in planning will be held, covering the shift in planning responsibility from the local to the regional and state level, the future of federal involvement in housing and development, new developments in land-use regulation, the effects and future of the environmental movement and other topics.

The conference is sponsored by the Institute of Government and the state chapter of the APA.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I really suffer during plane descents. My ears not only clog up, but the pain is unbearable. Since I travel a lot I would appreciate any suggestion you may have for either preventing or treating this situation. — Mr. T.R., Ohio.

Dear Mr. R.:
In addition to the routine suggestions of chewing, swallowing and yawning, there are a few other techniques that can help people like you to ease the excruciating pain you suffer during the descent of planes. A few drops of a decongestant nose solution (there are many of these) used in the nose on ascent and just before descent can be helpful.

When pain is particularly severe, the stewardess can supply a "hot cup" which can be placed over the ear or ears. This hot cup consists of a teacup with a small napkin inside. Boiling water is poured over the napkin, then squeezed out. This leaves the warm cup which, when applied to the ear, brings welcome relief. Of course, one must be sure that the heat transmitted from the cup does not burn the surrounding skin.

It must be emphasized, of course, that people with allergies should use their antihistamine or anti-allergy drugs before flying. Flying with a cold, or with an acute attack of sinusitis, increases the possibility of discomfort.

I spent almost $150 for hormone creams for my baldness. Not a single hair has come back. I know I was a sucker, but why do they allow such advertising that promises a new head of hair? — Mr. T.T., Ga.
Dear Mr. T.:
If spending $150 by falling into a tempting trap of fraudulent advertising makes you a "sucker," then I must agree with you.

I would speculate that the cream or lotion that you bought probably did not contain any of the male sex hormone (testosterone). For there are many legal statutes that do not allow the use of hormones in over-the-counter cosmetics.

A great many scientific studies were made seeking the value of hormones for the regrowth of hair. The original enthusiasm raised the hope, but not the hair, of bald men. "Miracle" cures of all kinds are at best, exploitative. If there were any proven value to the extravagant claims that are so openly advertised, you can be sure doctors would have known about them. No worthwhile scientific conclusion is kept a secret from doctors everywhere.

Unfortunately, despite your story and my reaction to it, thousands more will, in all likelihood, join the sucker list and contribute to the coffers of those who prey upon the desperation of the public.

Commissioners Ban Best Seller

WHITEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A former bestselling book, "Wifey," has been ordered banned from the shelves of the Columbus County library because of its explicit sexual material. The action was taken by the Columbus County Board of Commissioners, which earlier this year reaffirmed its policy that it was the parents' right and responsibility to exercise individual control over materials read by their minor children.

But library trustees disagreed and refused to ban the book. The campaign to get the book removed was joined by other residents, who threatened to make it an issue during the upcoming county elections. When commissioners asked the library board to reconsider its position, the trustees rejected the request. Library board chairman Howard Straughan said he will reconvene his board next week to discuss the validity of the commissioners' action. Deputy Attorney General James L. Bullock said he did not know whether the action was legal. Bullock said the issue would have to be researched before he could make a ruling.

The order comes on the heels of a refusal by the county library board to remove the book. "Wifey" was written by Judy Blume, a noted author of children's books, many of which carry a religious theme. Her "Are You There God? It's Me, Margaret" was selected as the outstanding children's book in the nation in 1970. With "Wifey," however, Ms. Blume branched out into adult literature. The cover of the book's paperback version describes "Wifey" as "the national bestseller of a very nice housewife with a very dirty mind."

The controversy began brewing in Columbus County in February when the mother of a 12-year-old girl who had checked out the book complained that children should not be exposed to a book with such explicit material.

Tri-County Ass'n Met

The Tri-County Association for the Education of Young Children held its second meeting of the year recently at the Three Steers Restaurant with Dr. Marshall Brooks of Rocky Mount as guest speaker. Dr. Brooks is president of the N.C. Association for the Education of Young Children and spoke on the "Active AEYC in North Carolina." He discussed several activities other units in the state have conducted during the Week of the Young Child. The Tri-County unit voted at the meeting to donate two record players and several children's albums to the pediatric unit of Pitt Memorial Hospital in honor of the Week of the Young Child, April 6-11. The Tri-County Association for the Education of Young Children is an organization for K-3 educators and other interested persons who work with young children. It focuses on the needs of the young child and attempts to improve the quality of opportunity for all children. The Week of the Young Child is an annual tribute to all children throughout the state of N.C.

Eye Pricing In Liters, Gallons

WASHINGTON (AP) — The price of gasoline at service stations pumps would be posted both in liters and in gallons under an industry plan for converting to the metric system.

The voluntary plan, drawn with the participation of the petroleum industry and unveiled by the American National Metric Council, would allow the nation's gasoline dealers to complete the switch to the metric system within three years.

There are 3.785 liters in a gallon, so gasoline that sold for $1.35 a gallon would cost 36 cents a liter. About 4,500 of the 173,000 stations across the country already have switched from gallon sales to liter sales, according to the U.S. Metric Board.
