Zimbabwe Independence Marred By Killing Blast

By WILLIAM F. NICHOLSON
Associated Press Writer
SALISBURY, Zimbabwe (AP) — Rhodesia became independent Zimbabwe today in celebrations marred by a grenade explosion that killed two persons and injured 27 and a jailbreak by some 60 prisoners from Salisbury's central prison.

The grenade was thrown into a group of black youths in Mufakose Township, six miles west of the city.

"I can't give you any further details about this because we're too busy chasing bloody escaped prisoners," said police spokesman Seamus Power.

The prisoners, some of them considered highly dangerous, broke out shortly after the arrival of independent at midnight Thursday for the second time in 15 years. Some of the prisoners were recaptured quickly, and police scoured the city and suburbs throughout the day while a spotter plane flew overhead.

The official celebration went off smoothly, marked by dancing African tribeswomen, British pomp and a plea for reconciliation.

Prime Minister Robert Mugabe, who led the largest black guerrilla faction in seven years of bloody civil war for majority rule, broadcast an appeal for unity to the white minority, saying: "If yesterday I fought you as an enemy, today you have become a friend and ally with the same national interest, loyalty, rights and duties as myself. If yesterday you hated me, today you cannot avoid the love that binds me to you."

At midnight, a British army sergeant lowered the Union Jack on Britain's last African colony. A wild cheer erupted from the 40,000 spectators, mostly black, crowded into Rufaro soccer stadium to hail the formal end of nine decades of white domination.

Prince Charles, the heir to the British throne, handed over power to President Canaan Banana, who swore in Mugabe as prime minister.

Replacing the British flag, a former guerrilla raised Zimbabwe's five-color banner — black for the nation's 6 million blacks, white for the 250,000 whites, green for the earth, yellow for minerals and red for the 20,000 who died in the civil war.

U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, attending the ceremonies, sent Mugabe a letter anticipating that Zimbabwe would join the world organization and offering U.N. assistance to overcome the ravages of the civil war.

Cuba Okays 10 Flights To Remove Dissidents

By GORDON MOTT
Associated Press Writer
SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — Fidel Castro's government authorized 10 flights from Costa Rica over the next five days but Costa Rica hopes to double the number to speed the evacuation of nearly 10,000 anti-communist refugees from the Peruvian Embassy in Havana, a Foreign Ministry official said.

The official, Carlos Aguilar, said only one plane, a DC-8, left San Jose for Havana Thursday night and that it was likely it would be the only one returning to San Jose today. But he said the Cubans have agreed to two flights daily through Tuesday and he hoped they would raise the number to four.

He said another Costa Rican airliner flew to Lima, Peru, Thursday night carrying 97 refugees, part of the 1,000 Peru agreed to take. The United States has agreed to take 3,500 and Costa Rica 300.

Aguilar said 50 other Cubans left Havana on a scheduled Iberia Airlines flight directly for Spain on Thursday and that it was possible the Spanish government would send a chartered plane to Havana today to pick up 250 more. Brazil also offered Thursday to take an unspecified number of refugees.

The Cubans jammed the 20-acre Peruvian Embassy compound in Havana two weeks ago. Costa Rica agreed to be the staging point for the evacuation, which began Wednesday with a flight of 236 Cubans and continued Thursday with 254 more.

Some of those arriving in San Jose said supporters of Castro, Cuba's revolutionary leader and president, insulted them and took their personal belongings before allowing them to board their "freedom flight" from Havana's Jose Marti Airport.

"They took away all our suitcases. They even took away our wristwatches. This is not just 10,000 people in the Peruvian Embassy, but all the Cuban people angry at

American Oil Man Abducted

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — Four men kidnapped an American executive of the Texaco oil company as he left his hotel Thursday night in the Honduran city of San Pedro Sula, police reported today.

The victim was identified as Arnoldo Quiros, 40, general director in Honduras for Texaco Caribbean. His U.S. hometown could not be learned immediately.

The identities or motive of his kidnappers were not known. "We have not as yet received any demand for ransom for him," Texaco executive Gerald Pendre told a reporter.

Police said Quiros had been residing at the Hotel Sula, in the city 140 miles north of here, since arriving in this Central American nation last December to take up his new position. San Pedro Sula is Honduras' second-largest city.

Authorities launched an extensive manhunt in the northern Honduran coastal region in search of Quiros.

Nat'l Gross Product Down; Inflation Up

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Growth of the nation's economy slowed sharply in the first three months of 1980, apparently setting the stage for the beginning of a new recession, government figures showed today.

The Commerce Department report said the gross national product grew at an annual rate of 1.1 percent from January through March, down from a 2 percent rate of growth in the fourth quarter of 1979.

It also said there was a worsening of inflation to an annual rate of 11.4 percent in the first quarter, up from a 9.4 percent rate in the fourth. This inflation measurement is different than the Consumer Price Index, which has shown an 18 percent rate of increase.

The first quarter GNP report showed the economy was sinking toward recession levels, although it hadn't yet started. But it provided support for recent predictions that a recession may have started in late March or early April.

President Carter said at a news conference Thursday that a recession has probably started, although he predicted it would be short and mild.

The GNP measures the total output of goods and services in the economy and a decline in output for two consecutive quarters is considered a recession. If the recession has started, it wouldn't show up in the GNP statistics until the second quarter report, which will be issued in July.

However, Carter said Americans don't need to wait for statistics to tell them when times are bad. He said, many will face "pain and ... disruptions" during the economic slide.

The nation's economy expanded during all of 1979 by an average of 1 percent, but the administration is predicting a decline of 0.4 percent this year because of the recession.

The Commerce Department attributed the weaker economic growth in the first quarter to a slowdown in the growth of consumer spending and to a decline in the housing industry.

It said total sales in the economy increased only 1.5 percent in the quarter, less than half the gain of 3.6 percent in the final three months of 1979.

The slide in the housing industry is continuing in the current quarter, the result of record high interest rates which are discouraging both homebuying and homebuilding. Housing starts were off more than 22 percent in March.

The Commerce Department measurement of inflation is called the fixed-weighted price index.

Meanwhile, the decline in prime lending rates continued today as Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York, the nation's fifth-largest bank, cut the rate from 20 percent to 19½ percent.

But New York's Citibank, the nation's second-largest bank, cut its rate only to 19¼ percent.

Two days ago, Chase Manhattan Bank, the nation's third-largest bank, cut its rate to 19¼ percent. Chase today matched the cut to 19½ percent as did No. 6 Chemical Bank.

The prime lending rate is charged by banks on loans to their most credit-worthy corporate customers, with most other commercial and industrial borrowers paying more.

Carter Tightens More Screws On Iran, Adds Threat

By The Associated Press
President Carter tightened a few more economic screws on Iran and promised military action if the American hostages aren't freed.

Portugal set an example for the richer and more powerful European allies by cutting off all trade with Iran. And Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini again defied them all.

Carter banned U.S. imports from Iran Thursday, ordered the freeing for U.S. use or sale of impounded military equipment purchased by Iran and said he would seek congressional authority to pay reparations to the hostages and their families out of more than $8 billion in Iranian assets he froze in November. He also barred financial transactions with anyone in Iran, except those involved in journalism, and prohibited Americans other than journalists from traveling to Iran without U.S. government permission.

He told a news conference in Washington he was considering banning shipments of U.S. food and medicine to Iran and blocking its use of Intelsat, the international communications satellite. And he warned that if nonmilitary action did not result in the freeing of the 53 American hostages held in Tehran, "then the only next step available that I can see would be some sort of military action which is the prerogative and the right of the United States under these circumstances."

Aerial mining of Iran's ports at the head of the Persian Gulf appeared to be the most likely military action. U.S. naval warfare specialists said A-6 attack planes like the ones that mined North Vietnam's ports could easily do the job from the two U.S. aircraft carriers now in the Arabian Sea.

The main objective would be to close the oil export terminal at Kharg Island, where tankers load up for Western Europe and Japan.

Portugal supported Carter Thursday by stopping trade with Iran, barring Portuguese ships from taking goods there from nations whose governments have embargoed those items, and halting financial deals and participation of Portuguese firms in Iranian industrial projects.

The Portuguese government, which imported 21 percent of its oil from Iran, said the embargo would remain in effect "until the release of the hostages," held in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran and the Iranian Foreign Office since Nov. 4.

While America's nine allies in the European Common Market continued to delay, their representatives in the European Parliament urged the nine governments to consider breaking diplomatic relations with Iran, as Carter did April 7. A decision on allied action is expected Monday, when the foreign ministers of the nine countries meet in Luxembourg.

But Khomeini, the leader of the Iranian revolutionary regime, and Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh scoffed at Carter and the U.S. allies. They said Iran would counter any sanctions or naval blockade. Khomeini urged the Iranian people to be ready to defend the country if attacked.

"Iran should not be beset by fears because they want to besiege it economically or militarily. We are not afraid of an economic blockade," the Shiite Moslem patriarch told "popular mobilization committees," Radio Tehran reported.

DEMAND DOCUMENTS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Energy Secretary Charles W. Duncan has been directed by a House subcommittee to surrender by next Thursday documents used by President Carter to decide on an oil import fee that will raise gasoline prices 10 cents a gallon.

Israel Refuses Yield In Autonomy Proposals

By FRANK CREPEAU
Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin, just returned from a Washington summit, said today Israel refused to yield on three major issues blocking autonomy talks — Jerusalem, security in the West Bank of the Jordan River and the powers of an autonomy council for 1.2 million Palestinian Arabs.

Begin said he had firmly rejected proposals that would lead to any redivision of Jerusalem or allow Jerusalem Arabs to vote for the autonomy council. He said Israel would remain responsible for security in the occupied territories and that powers of an autonomy council would be limited "so it cannot turn into some kind of parliament" leading to a Palestinian state.

Begin and President Carter agreed on a marathon autonomy talks due to start April 27 in Israel to strive for settlement of key issues on a form of self-government for Arabs under Israeli rule. But Begin's tough stance on three vital issues indicated there would be extreme difficulty in reaching agreement before the May 26 target date.

Begin has insisted that Israel stick to the Camp David accords. In a meeting with Carter prior to Begin's trip to Washington, President Anwar Sadat of Egypt had raised the idea of Arab sovereignty in East Jerusalem, which is predominantly Arab.

Begin said Carter had spoken of Jerusalem Arabs voting for the autonomous council that is to govern Arab affairs in the occupied territories.

Begin rejected both proposals. He said, "We left no shadow of a doubt that there can be a redivision of Jerusalem" and that Israel would not agree "under any circumstances" to allow Jerusalem Arabs to take part in the autonomy plan.

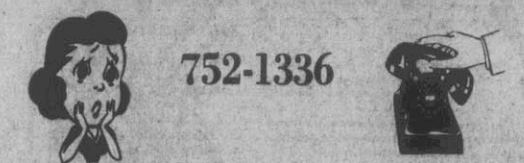

He said Jerusalem was not Egypt's problem. "The problem is ours, a Jewish one. Not yours, an Egyptian one."

On the question of West Bank security, Begin said Israel would only discuss security arrangements on condition that Egypt accept the principle that Israel remains responsible for West Bank security. He said to take security out of Israel's hands would lead to "a bloodbath ... not only people would be killed but peace would be murdered."

On the third issue — the powers of the autonomous council — Begin rejected Egyptian proposals that the council have executive, legal and legislative powers. "That is a Palestinian state in all but name," Begin said. "That's what we told President Carter."

Begin said Israel would insist that the council have limited powers "so it cannot turn into some kind of parliament."

"Good Morning Breakfasts"

Did you ever think about what the word "breakfast" means? It means you've been fasting all night—and it's time to start refueling your body for the big day ahead. Food is the fuel your body needs to keep going. Refueling at breakfast helps many people to perform and feel better in the morning.

You'd be amazed at the breakfasts people eat! Starting at zero are the people who eat nothing. But breakfast is so important, you have to be careful about criticizing anyone's breakfast. So we start by saying—"Eat something"—just juice is better than nothing.

But if you REALLY want to eat a good breakfast...

Everyone knows you need different foods for a balanced diet. So why not start your balancing act with breakfast—choose foods from the following groups: Fruit-Vegetable, Bread-Cereal, Milk-Cheese, and Meat-Poultry-Fish-Beans. Of course you don't need them all for breakfast so long as you get in the servings sometime during the day.

Eat your own breakfast!

With so many good things to eat, there's no reason why you can't eat a breakfast to suit yourself. Each person's food needs and likes are a bit different. Some people just naturally want more food in the morning than others. If you're a construction worker or a nurse, you'll probably need more food in the morning than the person who sits at a desk all day balancing accounts. Usually boys and men need more food than girls and women and teenagers need more than young children.

No time for breakfast? That's what many late risers say. But it isn't necessarily so! Check out these ways you can build a breakfast around foods that are ready to eat or take little preparation time.

Quick-to-fix foods

* Fresh, canned, or frozen fruit and vegetable juices. Fresh and frozen juices can be prepared ahead and stored in the refrigerator.

* Fresh, canned or dried fruits.

* Milk, yogurt cheese, cottage cheese, custard.

* Leftover poultry, fish, and meat; canned fish such as tuna.

* Leftover main-dish casseroles such as macaroni and cheese.

* Breads, muffins, rolls, and the like.

* Quick-cooking and instant hot cereals.

* Ready-to-eat cold cereals. Buying unsweetened cereals allows you to control the amount of sugar—if any—added to cereals. A few presweetened kinds contain more than 50 percent sugar. The sugar content of some ready-to-eat cereals is listed on the label.

* Frozen pancakes, waffles, and French toast, homemade or bought.

* Quick breakfast drinks. Make drinks or shakes in a blender from milk and fruits, or spices such as cinnamon or nutmeg.

For those occasions when family members are late for work or school, foods which can be eaten along the way may mean the difference between breakfast—or no breakfast. Add one or two extras to your lunch bag which can be nibbled on the way to school or work or soon after you arrive.

Here are some foods you can snack on the go for breakfast.

* Fresh fruits such as apples, bananas, oranges, strawberries or tangerines.

* Celery stuffed with peanut butter or a meat or cheese spread.

* Cherry tomatoes, strips of carrots, celery, and green pepper, raw cauliflower or broccoli.

* Canned fruit or vegetable juices, fruits, and puddings.

* Hard-cooked or deviled eggs. Highly perishable foods such as deviled eggs, chicken, meats, and meat spreads need to be kept refrigerator-cold if held for more than 2 or 3 hours before eating.

* Cheese and crackers.

* Cold sliced meat loaf.

* Leftover chicken or turkey.

* Milk.

* Sandwiches. Some sandwich fillings can be prepared ahead of time. Try these combinations: Cottage cheese, shredded carrot, minced green pepper and tomato.

* Tuna, sliced green olives, and salad dressing.

SODA BREAD

My friend Denise Morocco successfully makes one of my favorite recipes in a food processor.

1 cup bleached all-purpose white flour
1 cup whole wheat flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
1¼ teaspoons salt
1½ teaspoons sugar

Several pinches ground cardamom

¾ cup (about) buttermilk

In a food processor, with metal blade, whirl together flours, leavenings, salt, sugar and cardamom. With machine on, through feed tube, pour buttermilk in a steady stream; as soon as ball of dough forms, turn off machine. If dough is too dry to form ball, add 1 tablespoon or more buttermilk.

Turn out onto a greased cookie sheet; if necessary, shape dough into an even ball; flatten to a 7-inch-wide round. With a sharp knife carve an X about ¼-inch deep across the top and to the edges. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven until browned — 50 minutes.

Dear Abby

Trinket Box Given To Charity Sale

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: When my mother-in-law handed me my Christmas gift last year she said, "You don't seem like the type who would like this, so if you don't want it, please give it back to me because I love it!"

Abby, I was in a no-win situation. As I unwrapped it, I was hurt to think that she would give me a gift she knew I wouldn't like. Well, she was right. It was a gaudily decorated trinket box, in terrible taste and about as useless as anything could be. It was obvious that she wanted me to give it back to her. Well, I'm not in the habit of telling people I don't like their gifts, so I told her I thought it was "interesting" and kept it. She seemed surprised and disappointed.

As time went by, every time I looked at that ugly, useless box I became angry, so I donated it to a charity for a white elephant sale just to get it out of my sight.

What should I say if one day my mother-in-law asks to see that box?

GAVE UP ON FORGIVING

DEAR GAVE UP: Tell her the truth. She had it coming. (The truth, not the box.)

DEAR ABBY: This is for VIRGO, who couldn't decide whether to marry the "mature, responsible, hard-working man" because he didn't have a college degree (she did).

Someone should tell this snob that college definitely does not make the person. My husband makes a very good living, but he didn't even finish high school. I am certainly not against higher education; however, a degree doesn't automatically ensure that a person is mature and well-rounded. I know some college graduates who don't have sense enough to come in out of the rain.

This country was founded by people who were not afraid of hard, honest work, and not ashamed to get their hands dirty in the process.

I can only hope that this man who is "mature, responsible, hard-working and earns $35,000 a year at only a job—not a profession" finds himself a woman more deserving of him.

Life As It's Lived

Might No Longer Fit In Maternity Clothes

By GAIL MICHAELS

All I've heard since I got pregnant is how wonderful spring babies are. Well, I disagree. With a baby due in May I've already had to eat my way through four holidays. I could qualify for the "Guinness Book of Records" as the first woman in the world to outgrow her maternity clothes.

Easter was the worst holiday yet. I've never had much use for the Easter Bunny anyway. Even as a small child the idea of a rabbit who laid candy eggs never fired my imagination. And Meg has been only slightly more credulous, commenting on the last giant rabbit she saw walking through a mall. "Look, that Easter Bunny has bosoms!"

But this year my pregnant appetite has made the Easter Bunny harder to endure than ever. I had to replenish Meg's basket twice before Easter from the marshmallow chickens right down to the sugarless gum. Every time Meg dropped out of sight for a few minutes, I found myself sneaking a jellybean fix. I had all the willpower of a field mouse in a grain silo.

At least I could console myself that by Easter afternoon Meg would have consumed all temptation. Unfortunately, Meg's grandmother had a different idea. She, too, contributed an Easter basket. When Meg awoke on Easter morning, there was enough candy in the house to make me number one on Ralph Nader's hit list.

I do have to hand it to Meg. She tried to eat it all in one day. She had chocolate smeared over the upper half of her body from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m. We kept waiting for her to reach a satiation point, but she never did; she did, however, moan in her sleep the entire night.

And we still had half a bag of jellybeans, a package of marshmallow rabbits, ten chocolate eggs, seven candy eggs, and three Tootsie Rolls left over. Fearing permanent metabolic imbalance, I decreed with considerable reluctance that the rest of the candy should be doled out in small quantities.

Meg didn't mind so much. She likes to drag out a holiday as long as possible. She got so much mileage out of lugging around that basket filled with plastic grass that the house began to take on the feel of the Astrodome.

But I was like a recently reformed drug addict who had been entrusted with a key to the neighborhood pharmacy. I couldn't go into the kitchen without drooling over the goodies jar. And yesterday I finally gave in. I waited until Meg wasn't looking and I filched a jellybean. I would have yielded sooner except for Meg's incredibly accurate accounting system.

"One of my jellybeans is missing," she said as soon as she saw the jar. "A green one. I bet you ate it."

"I'm sorry. I couldn't help myself."

"But the Easter Bunny brought them to me, not to you."

"You're right. But I can't stand all this candy in the house any longer. You eat what you can right now, and I'm going to throw the rest away."

She looked stricken. "I'll share."

"That's not the point. All this candy isn't good for either one of us. You eat what you can now, and you'll get some more at Halloween."

"But that's a long, long time," she howled.

I know, but at least I won't be pregnant.

Media Bar Is Rejected

NEW YORK (AP) — President Carter reportedly was concerned for the safety of American reporters in Iran, but U.S. news organizations took a dim view of his request that they severely curtail news gathering efforts in Iran.

"I think he has far exceeded his authority," Arthur Ochs Sulzberger, chairman and president of The New York Times, said of the president's request.

"Our obligation is to report the news as fully and objectively as possible; that obligation remains," said NBC News President William Small.

At a news conference Thursday, Carter said reporters would be exempt from his new ban on business transactions and travel to Iran. But he urged "all American journalists and news-gathering organizations to minimize as severely as possible their presence and other activities in Iran."

A White House official said later that Carter was concerned that highly visible journalists might also be taken hostage.

Replies from news organizations were polite but blunt.

"We take a dim view on restrictions on our ability to cover the news that is taking place anywhere in this world," said Stanton R. Cook, president and chief executive officer of The Chicago Tribune.

Good News and Bad News About Pot

According to the federal government, more young Americans than ever before are smoking marijuana. And the pot they are smoking is stronger than it was a few years ago. Those findings have helped focus new attention on the possible good and bad effects of the drug. Researchers have suggested that regular marijuana use can lead to lung damage similar to that caused by cigarette smoking. Other studies point to the drug's possible negative effect on learning, memory, and coordination. On the positive side, cancer patients have found that marijuana helps prevent the nausea chemotherapy causes. Pot has also been used as a treatment for glaucoma, an eye disease.

DO YOU KNOW — What chemical in marijuana causes users to get high?

Solutions Are Certain

It is our belief that the energy problems will be solved before the end of the century.

It is likely, however, that the answers won't come in a sudden burst of revelation, nor will one startling development bring us out of the woods.

We expect that many things will be done which will cause us to be more energy efficient. Thus, while we will be paying far more for energy we will learn how to make use of it more effectively.

The Tennessee Valley Authority is currently discussing with industrial customers cogeneration. As we understand it, that means generating electricity from heat or energy used for other things.

Industries which use steam in their processes could channel the same steam to generators for producing electricity.

At ECU, for instance, steam is produced in a central plant and piped to buildings on the campus for heat in the winter. Could the same steam turn generators on its way to the buildings?

It would take considerable engineering and economic studies to find out, but our society might be looking at such possibilities in the near future.

It is possible that entire cities might be heated by piped steam which is first used to turn generators.

In the meantime we will surely be building far more efficient automobiles to reduce gas usage; we will depend more and more on insulation in our homes and buildings and we will turn to natural heat sources such as the sun.

Our society will be exploring many avenues to make better use of the energy available — and, considering how we have wasted energy — the savings should be monumental.

Housing Industry's Slump

It is hardly to anyone's surprise that construction starts on homes plummeted during the month of March.

The Commerce Department reported that new home starts dropped by 22 percent during last month. It was the worst period for housing construction since 1974-75, another recession year.

What is seen as the start of a recession by the economists is viewed as a disaster by the housing industry.

There may be some relief in the near future, however. Interest rates are showing their first signs of beginning to drop — and that seems to be the key to improvement in housing construction.

THIS AFTERNOON

Innovators On Job

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — There has been the idea for some time that sooner or later solutions will be found to our energy crunch, and that in the time-tested tradition of Yankee enterprise it may well come from some backyard piddler.

There is a lot of experimenting going on in North Carolina:

—A builder near Charlotte is working with pipes buried deep beneath his lawn where air can be cooled or heated, depending on the season, by the constant temperature beneath the earth. A fan pulls the treated air into the home.

—Solar-heated greenhouses which grow food and double as a family retreat for informal dining and relaxation are blooming across the landscape.

—The state government is installing an oil recycling plant near Raleigh to distill used motor oil back into usable condition.

—An experimental windmill with rotors the size of airplane wings is whirling (and sometimes thumping) away on Howard's Knob at Boone to iron out the kinks in wind-generated electricity.

—Rural electrification experts and owners of First Colony Farms in the coastal area are working out last-minute hangups preparatory to harvesting peat to be burned in generating plants.

—A lot of attention is being paid to the state's falling water regions and their potential for hydropower generation, especially dams already in place and only awaiting the turbines.

—And, Gov. Jim Hunt is talking with federal officials about making North Carolina a demonstration project to use non-peakhour electricity to recharge batteries for electric automobiles if the state can guarantee a minimum purchase of such cars and the federal government, based on that guarantee, can convince an automaker he should produce electric cars.

All of which leads the governor to declare his optimism "about our energy future It is tough, and it's gonna be tougher for some time. But I don't believe the future has to be cold and dark. I don't believe it has to bring sacrifice and suffering."

The key instrument which this state has put in place, and was enough to bring John Sawhill, deputy secretary of the federal Energy Department to North Carolina, is the new Alternative Energy Commission.

Financed from public utility company funds and dominated by public members rather than those with vested interests in the present system, this new mechanism could be the solution to keeping tabs on what is going on, checking out the various projects, and making successful solutions widely known and available.

Other Editors Say Marriage Tax

(Richmond News Leader)

The House Ways and Means Committee has been holding hearings on a topic of enormous interest to 38 million Americans at this time of year: the marriage tax. This is the tax imposed on 19 million working couples, and it nets the treasury $8.3 billion a year.

The penalty has been in effect for 11 years. In 1969, Congress responded to complaints of single workers who were paying as much as 42 percent more in taxes than married couples.

In correcting this inequity, Congress imposed a higher tax on working couples, who no longer could choose to file as individuals.

The first dollar of the couple's second income then became taxable at the highest rate imposed on the last dollar of the first income.

Several witnesses who have appeared before the House committee have divorced and now live together to save thousands of dollars in taxes from the marriage penalty.

In view of this tax discrimination against working couples, it is no surprise that the number of couples who choose to live together without a trip to the altar has increased by more than 150 percent in the past decade.

Over the years, the outraged protests of working couples who prefer to stay married have led to the introduction of several bills in Congress. These bills take two tacks: one approach would permit working couples to file as single individuals and pay lower rates; another would permit a deduction of a percentage of the second income.

The bills have died. Congress excuses its rejection of corrective legislation by saying that the treasury cannot afford to lose the billions it now receives by discriminating against working couples.

That is not the point. To be successful, any tax system must be perceived by taxpayers to be fair and equitable. At last count, there were more than 20 instances in which tax laws discriminate against married working couples.

Today, some 60 percent of wives have jobs outside the home, and that percentage is expected to rise to 70 percent by decade's end. This is a large proportion of the population on which to impose unfair and inequitable taxation.

It is remarkable that Congress, apparently with an untroubled conscience, can let such a situation stand uncorrected.

Strength For Today

HE WOULDN'T BUDGE

A man who had reached his one hundredth birthday was being interviewed by a newspaper reporter. "You've seen a lot of changes take place in these years, I suppose," said the reporter. "Yep," said the old man, "I have, and I'm opposed to all of them."

In a day in which innovation is so much in fashion, we can have a bit of sympathy for the old fellow who plants himself in the pathway of change and refuses to budge.

RUMBLINGS—LIKE A BIG ERUPTION!

The Washington Novel

WASHINGTON — The newspaper editors were in town last week, and one of the more interesting panels dealt with the "Washington Novel." The members of the panel were William Safire, who wrote "Full Disclosure," Marilyn Sharp, who authored a mystery entitled "Sunflower," Les Whitten of "Conflict of Interest," and Barbara Howar, who wrote "Making Ends Meet."

Their conclusion was that the Washington novel is alive and well, mainly because all the ingredients for the novel are here — power, suspense and sex.

I've been trying to write a Washington novel for some time, but have not been successful, mainly because every time I think I've got a good fiction plot, someone else has already done it.

Here are some of the false starts I've had, which never got off the ground.

President Coburn sat in the Oval Office. Stretched out on the couch was the beautiful, raven-haired, bux-om Olga. She said to him bitterly, "Why do we have to keep sneaking around like this all the time? Are you ashamed to take me to the Gridiron Club?"

"Darling, you know I have to take my wife to the Gridiron Club."

"You always say that. But I know the real reason."

The President in an exasperated voice said, "What's the real reason?"

"I'm the Russian ambassador."

Congressman Blevens Bombast got into his new Toyota, which was parked in front of his modest Georgetown home. He looked forward to the drive up to Capitol Hill, as it gave him time to think about how he was going to balance the budget. Just as he was going to put his key into the ignition, Blevens noticed a large, unmarked manila envelope on the front seat. He opened it, and found 600 fresh $100 bills. He looked around, fearfully, and then got out of his car and placed the envelope in the trunk.

Wiping the perspiration from his face, he got back into the car and started the most fateful journey of his life. He could go straight down Pennsylvania Avenue to FBI headquarters, or turn left for the Beltway and keep driving until he hit Las Vegas. He thought of the trust the people in his district had in him. Then he thought of his wife and five children. There was no question about what he would do. He made the left turn and was surprised at that hour to find so few cars on the Beltway.

Secretary of State Clem Hapsted picked up the phone, and a man with a heavy foreign accent said, "This is Fotopick calling. We have the pictures you ordered."

"Oh, my God," said Hapsted. "How did you get them?"

"With a telephoto lens opening of f8 at 200th of a second."

"What will it cost me to get the negatives?"

"Jerusalem."

"Jerusalem."

The man in the slouch hat and dirty raincoat pretended to be studying a portrait of Mary Washington in the National Gallery when the uniformed guard took out his .45 pistol and fired three shots at him. The man fell to the floor with a thud. People rushed from all over as the guard hurried away to a phone booth. He dialed a number and then hung up. Ten seconds later, his phone rang. All the guard said was, "The deed is done." The voice on the other end of the line said, "Good. Now for your next clue, go to the Air and Space Museum and follow the instructions hidden in John Glenn's space capsule."

"You sure I'm going to win a prize?"

"Of course. Everyone wins a prize in the Reader's Digest Sweepstakes."

Elite Emerge In Cambodia

By DENIS D. GRAY
Associated Press Writer
PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — An elite class of government officials and bureaucrats is emerging again in communist Cambodia, enjoying a privileged existence in sharp contrast to the wretched poverty of the rural majority.

The 15-month-old administration of President Heng Samrin is still a weak patchwork of grizzled veterans of revolution and surviving members of the pre-1975 intelligentsia. One of its top priorities is to forge an effective, unified regime of communists with a pro-Vietnamese, pro-Soviet bent. The new regime argues that to rebuild the shattered country, it must first build a strong government.

Propaganda and political re-education are being employed to make believers out of the uncertain and the unwilling. They are also being wooed with privileges.

Government employees, especially those in the central government in Phnom Penh, the capital, receive substantial rations of rice and other foodstuffs and occasional food bonuses. Although not lavish, their diet is of four-star quality compared with the hand-to-mouth existence of most Cambodians.

Special hospitals or wards are reserved for government employees in most provinces. The Calmette Hospital in Phnom Penh, for employees of the government ministries only, is by far the city's cleanest, best staffed and best equipped.

Even junior officials have been assigned villas in the capital, which was a ghost town when the invading Vietnamese army drove Premier Pol Pot and his Khmer Rouge government out and installed Hanoi's Cambodian communist proteges.

There are frequent parties and receptions. "Public" concerts are held, with the tickets distributed among government employees. Government vehicles can be used at times for personal matters.

The substantial international aid sent to Cambodia for the general population passes through Phnom Penh, and a considerable amount apparently stays here.

One foreign aid official recently found sewing machines that had been sent for orphanages and health institutions in a government ministry turning out clothes for members of its staff.

Much or all of the output of a pig and poultry farm subsidized by one international organization ends up on the tables of government staff members.

"We are very worried about the difference in living standards between Phnom Penh and the countryside," said one foreign official who asked not to be quoted by name. "There is a growing urban elitism which is showing no particular concern for the rural poor."

But Phnom Penh, like capitals the world over, traditionally enjoyed the best Cambodia had to offer. The Khmer Rouge changed that from 1975 to 1979. Now the city is getting back to normal.

To the editor:

In reference to the Apr. 7 "Public Forum," I have to say that I agree with Ms. Bailey. Not only would a civic center entertain the citizens of Eastern North Carolina, but it would add a new dimension to the lives of many who previously had no place to display their talents in this half of the state. It was once said that people are our greatest resource, and I fully agree. Talent should not be wasted.

I have lived in Greenville all my life. I've seen this town grow into the hub of Eastern North Carolina. We have almost every characteristic of a major metropolis: a mall, numerous plants and factories, and a string of fast-food restaurants. I must admit that I like 32 flavors of ice cream in Greenville as much as the next guy, but I feel that we are ready for something bigger — yes, even bigger than a 33rd flavor.

The hunger for the arts in this area becomes apparent when one notices the large turnouts for such programs as the ECU theater productions and our own "Sunday in the Park." We cannot, however, depend on ECU to fill the cultural needs of this area forever, nor can we expect to see the New York Philharmonic or Mikhail Baryshnikov vying with frisbees and lawn chairs for attention at the bottom of a grassy slope. Greenville no longer consists of just a few farmers and businessmen, but has become a melting pot with newcomers from the university, the Med School and the many surrounding industries.

The "hollering" and collard-eating contests have their place and time in this great state, but man cannot live by collards alone!

Listing Of Growth Companies

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — While many large companies struggle to maintain their market positions and the prices of their stocks, the nation's largest stock broker has compiled a list of "emerging growth companies."

Inherent in the list is the suggestion that not all companies are baffled by high prices, high borrowing costs, reluctant buyers, a shortage of capital and other afflictions of the jonalike economy.

Merrill Lynch's list is made up of 64 companies with earnings of $2 million to $20 million a year, amounts that might seem large to many people but which really are rather small in an age of giants.

The emerging companies have growth rates at least twice that of the average American corporation, and their returns on equity average about 20 percent, compared with an overall corporate average of under 15.

Besides solid growth rates and returns on equity, Merrill Lynch says the 64 it chose also share these other characteristics:

1. Dominant position in an emerging industry, or a significant and growing share in a fragmented industry, along with a strong current balance sheet.

2. Established management and control structures. The combination, the analysts say, makes them believe the companies "have the capacity to make the transition from an entrepreneurial to a classic style."

3. Relatively small institutional holdings. Presumably, when mutual and pension funds and other institutions discover the shares of these companies they will add upward pressure to market prices.

About 75 percent of the recommendations are of companies that have managed to perform well in industries that might not be growing at all, and where few companies have obtained a dominant position.

Well, what are the companies?

The best way to find out is to write to or drop in at one of the Big Bull's offices and ask for the complete report. In that way you assure yourself the protection of your own common sense. The law of averages dictates that there are future losers in the list, as well as winners.

Meanwhile, perhaps this bare mention of 12 companies might provide you with a bit of the flavor without encouraging indulgence to the point of financial indigestion.

This system — every fifth company on the list — is absolutely without any scientific or financial justification, so please don't use it as a guide. The unscientific selected 12 are: Commercial Alliance Corp., Doyle Dane Bernbach, Grand Central, International Alum. Corp., Kelly Services, Manitowoc, Mission Insurance, Overhead Door, RLC Corp., Servicemaster, Swank and Vecco.

And remember, these and the 52 others carry no guarantees of any sort. Have you ever heard of a broker who offers guarantees?

Israeli Raid Guerrilla Base On Lebanon Coast

By FRANK CREPEAU
Associated Press Writer
TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) —
Seaborne Israeli forces raided a guerrilla base on Lebanon's southern coast early today and killed six Palestinians, the military command announced.

The attack, first of its kind in eight months, was in retaliation for the Palestinian raid April 7 on the Misgav Am border kibbutz in which the five raiders and three Israelis were killed.

The Israelis moved at dark, apparently surprising the Palestinians at Ras El-Sheikh, a base 12 miles north of the Lebanese port of Tyre and about 25 miles north of the Israeli border.

Two Israeli soldiers were wounded, the command said, and the raiders blew up two buildings before pulling out. Ras El-Sheikh, near the town of Sarafand, reportedly serves as a base for three groups in the Palestine Liberation Organization, including PLO leader Yasser Arafat's Al Fatah faction.

"We consider this a very successful operation," said an Israeli officer.

The command claimed the base was used as a supply center and staging base for terrorist raids against Israel.

After the attack on Misgav

Am, Israel sent some 300 troops into southeast Lebanon and said their mission was to block infiltration routes used by the Palestinians. But the government announced their withdrawal several days later.

The retaliatory raid apparently was delayed until Prime Minister Menachem Begin completed three days of talks with President Carter on the deadlocked Egyptian-Israeli negotiations to work out an autonomy plan for the 1.2 million Palestinian Arabs living on the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip, occupied by Israel in the 1967 Arab-Israeli War.

Begin came home today. He, Carter and President Anwar Sadat of Egypt agreed to step up the frequency of the negotiations, but there was little or no expectation that they would reach agreement by May 26, the target date set by the Camp David accords.

Begin returned to a domestic political crisis caused by Defense Minister Ezer Weizman's call during his absence for early elections "to reach a new public and ideological framework and to pull the country out of a certain quagmire into which it has sunk."

Weizman's challenge to Begin's leadership brought demands from several other Cabinet members for his resignation. The defense minister on Wednesday hinted he would accept a post in any government formed by the Labor Party, which Begin's Likud coalition defeated in 1976. The Likud has been losing ground recently.

Mayor Defends Aide's Pay Hike

DETROIT (AP) — "Malicious gossip" is how Mayor Coleman Young labels the attention given his proposal to give a female aide an 18 percent raise amid many layoffs.

Young's 1980-81 budget calls for a $7,300 raise to $47,400 for Joyce Garrett, the city's director of public relations. Ms. Garrett is often seen socially with Young.

"I think it's outrageous that on a budget of a billion and a half dollars, one item ... would be worth the ink and the time that you're devoting to it," the mayor said Thursday. Young has proposed eliminating 703 police jobs in the same budget.

Appreciation Day Planned

The auxiliaries and membership of Cornerstone Missionary Baptist Church will sponsor an Appreciation Day for the Rev. Farney M. Moore, Jr. on April 20 at 3 p.m. The Rev. David Hammond, pastor of Phillips Missionary Baptist Church in Simpson, will deliver the sermon, accompanied by his choir and congregation.

The Rev. Moore, a member of Cornerstone, has served in several roles at the church including 11 years as a church clerk, ninety-ninth church anniversary chairman, president of the senior choir, vice-president of W.B. Moore Men Chorus, Men's Day chairman, Bible study class leader, Baptist Training Union instructor, adult Sunday school teacher, and assistant minister.

A graduate of Elizabeth City State University and East Carolina University, the Rev. Moore is a past president of Pitt County Chapter of the North Carolina Association of Educators, and served as assistant principal of North Pitt High School for seven years. He is presently Precinct Judge of Pitt County Voters' Precinct Number Four, and serves as Youth Pastor at Macedonia Missionary Baptist Church, Farmville. The Rev. Moore was recently appointed assistant secretary to the Black Pastors' Conference of Greenville.

He is married to Sudie Monk Moore and they have several children. The public is invited to attend the appreciation day.

PREACHING SUNDAY

Elder Willie Joyner will preach at Rock Spring Church Sunday at 7:30 p.m. Sponsors will be the W.L. Phillips Traveling Choir. The Reserved Ushers will also be on hand. The pastor invites the public to attend.

tions concerning provision of sex information, contraceptives and help with abortions to teenagers by the Health Department.

Dr. O. R. Pierce was named chairman, with Dr. Sam White, Dr. Ron Thiele, Mrs. Hattie Thompson and Sammy Carson, all Health Board members, serving. Warren said all material submitted during last night's meeting and in meetings in February and March will be reviewed and that a decision will be promptly made. He said the health department has many letters on file concerning this subject and that the public is invited to see the Health Department director and view them. He expressed hope that last night's meeting would be the final one with sex education as its major topic for a while.

The Rev. William Shumaker presented a "Proposed Sex Education Plan for the Pitt County Health Department."

In it are listed the following assumptions: 1. We need quality sex education for adolescents in our county. 2. Parents, regardless of racial background, religion preference, level of education, or socio-economic status, are the natural providers of sex education for their children. 3. No sex education should be carried out without parental knowledge, input or control. 4. Many parents may lack skills or confidence to provide sex education for their children.

The goal of the plan is stated as "to have sex education accomplished in Pitt County by parents."

Two strategies were given: 1. Create a Parents Advisory Board (PAB) to review all sex education materials, programs, abortion counseling materials, and exceptional cases, members to be composed of a cross-section of parents of Pitt County. In order to avoid a conflict of interest, this PAB should not include any local, state or federal employees who are directly related to the policy making and delivery of services of the Pitt County Health Department. 2. A. Remove from the Pitt County Health Department and schools all current sex education materials except those deemed acceptable by the PAB. B. Provide groups, for parents to use with their children, and that all materials for sex education (1) for health personnel to use with parent groups; (2) for parents to use with their children (3) all materials to be reviewed by PAB. C. Provide materials for pregnancy counseling (1) For Health Department personnel to use with teenage mothers and/or fathers of unborn children; (2) to be approved by the PAB. D. Establish sex education programs for parents (1) to develop general communication skills with adolescents; (2) to develop communication skills concerning sex education specifically; (3) to help parents be able to approach their children, not wait for children to approach them; (4) to provide parents with resources if desired; and (5) all programs to be reviewed by PAB. New N. C. Flight Path Proposed By Air Force

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The U.S. Air Force says a proposed new military flight path over eastern North Carolina would be wider than seven existing routes but less confusing to civilian pilots.

Capt. Paul Alman, air-space manager for the 363rd Tactical Reconnaissance Wing at Shaw Air Force Base in Sumter, S.C., said the controversial flight route would not be as bad as opponents have contended.

The proposed route has drawn fire from the N.C. Department of Transportation, Triangle J Council of Governments and Raleigh City Council.

The Triangle J Council of Governments said the proposal could increase the danger of midair collisions around Raleigh-Durham Airport and subject more urban areas to low-level overflights.

Alman acknowledged that the proposed path comes within about 10 miles of the airport, closer than existing routes.

He said the minimum altitude in the area would be 300 feet. Also, Alman said the route was a single route with a "spur" not several routes as suggested by Bruce E. Matthews of the state Transportation Department.

The proposed route varies from 10 to 40 miles wide and averages 20 miles wide, Alman said. Existing routes are 10 miles wide.

Pilots now fly about 500 feet above the ground during low-level training, but experienced pilots could fly as low as 100 feet in some sparsely populated areas, Alman said.

The center line of the route passes over Clinton and Benson turns just east of Spring Hope, brushes Henderson and goes into Virginia. A southward return route passes over Hillsborough and just west of Pinehurst.

The corridor encompasses Dunn, Smithfield, the eastern tip of Wake County, Henderson, Louisburg, Oxford, Carrboro and Chapel Hill.

Raleigh would not be affected.

Alman said the main reason for the route would be to provide more varied routes and necessary low-level flying experience.

Industry Is Unaffected

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State auto-industry officials say layoffs by major automakers will not stall the growing automotive industry in North Carolina.

Spokesman for four companies that produce automotive parts and equipment said Thursday that the announced layoffs of 27,000 workers at Ford Motor Co. and General Motors this week would have no immediate impact on their plants in this state.

Ford decided to continue building light trucks at its Norfolk, Va., assembly plant and 460 North Carolinians who earn $9,568,000 a year in base pay are not expected to be affected by the cutbacks.

Wes Howell, manager of employee relations at Carter-Weber Corp. in Sanford, said the plant, which does most of its business with Ford, would not be affected by the layoffs.

"We manufacture carburetors for economy cars and the Ford layoffs dealt primarily with production of vans, trucks and larger cars," Howell said. "Obviously, if the downward trend continues in the auto industry, it could hurt our business. But for now I'd say it's not having any detrimental effect on us."

An official at Firestone Tire Co.'s national headquarters in Akron, Ohio, said the layoffs has had a major impact on the tire industry in general, but only a minimal effect on the 1,600 people who work at Firestone's plant in Wilson.

"About the only thing we've done is cut back one of the overtime shifts," said Jim Strandberg, Firestone's public relations manager. "We haven't had any layoffs in Wilson, and I don't expect any."

He said four out of five tires manufactured at the Wilson plant are aimed at the "replacement market" and not for new cars.

At Kelly-Springfield Tire Co. in Fayetteville, spokesman Julian Spears said there was no panic because the plant does very little business with the major automakers.

"We basically manufacture for the customer," Spears said. "We sell most of our tires to stores like Montgomery Ward and J.C. Penny, not to Detroit."

Manilow Suing Over Van Work

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Barry Manilow is suing a Syracuse, N.Y., company for $15,000 over customizing work done on the singer's van.

The vehicle, refurbished last year by Nilo Auto & Van Interiors, apparently didn't satisfy associates of the singer when the job was completed.

Company owner Nick Cua described the van as having "everything under the sun on it, only it's got too much on it for a van."

The trial is to start May 5 in state Supreme Court.

down by about 42 percent from last year, traditionally are linked with furniture sales because consumers tend to buy new furniture when they move.

The economy in the immediate future does not look very promising in the housing area and thus in the furniture industry," Hunt said. But he promised to work at the state level to ease the burden of inflation which has brought the country to the brink of recession.

Industry officials said while decreasing housing starts would have an effect on furniture manufacturing, there were ways to offset the losses. "New-home furnishings are not the majority of the market. The majority is refurbished or replacement furniture in the home," said W.E. Stevens Jr., executive vice president of Le-noir-based Broyhill Industries.

"Thus the furniture industry is more sensitive to the level of disposable income (which consumers spend on replacement furniture) than on housing starts," Stevens said.

Stevens was one of four industrial officials who offered their assessments of the industry at a news conference Thursday.

The consensus was that while lean times are ahead, the 1980s will generally be good for the industry because the number of furniture buying families will reach its post-World War II peak.

Still, 1980 does not shape up to be an outstanding year for the industry.

The speakers said the trend is toward traditional, reasonably priced items — no flashy, expensive material.

"It's not a market to encourage (stylistic) breakthroughs," said Don A. Hunziker, president of the furniture division of High Point based Sperry and Hutchinson Co.

The experts pointed out one bit of irony — the energy crunch may actually prove to be good for the furniture industry.

"As people become less mobile because of energy problems, perhaps they will place greater emphasis on the home and its furnishings," said J. Clyde Hooker, president of Hooker Furniture Corp. of Martinsville, Va.

Church Plans Observe Its 65th Anniversary

The 65th anniversary of Immanuel Baptist Church will be celebrated Sunday during the 11 a.m. service.

R. H. Evans Sr. and Tyson Bilbro, members of the history committee, will speak on "Immanuel Baptist Church: Its Past." Dr. Gene Adams, minister, will speak on "Immanuel Baptist Church: Its Future."

Special recognition will be given three former ministers: the Rev. Clarence H. Patrick, minister from 1937-41; the Rev. Irby Jackson, minister from 1956-77; and the Rev. Hartwell Campbell, 1941-46, who will participate during the service.

Dr. Adams will recognize Miss Leila Higgs, who has been a member the longest period of time. Her parents were charter members.

Organized in 1915 with 37 members, the present membership is 536 resident members and 227 non-resident members. The first services were held in a building on Eighth Street and Dickinson Avenue. Two church buildings have since been built and paid for; one located on Eighth Street and the present church on Elm Street. Plans for future growth are being made now by a Renovation/Expansion Committee. The church has had 11 ministers during the past 65 years.

Facts about the history of the church have been compiled into a booklet "Did You Know," prepared by the History Committee. The booklet, in memory of Dr. Grover W. Everett, is being given by his family. Dr. Everett was a member of the church for 24 years. The booklet will be made available to each church family and visitor.

Bulletin boards of pictures of the early church organization will be in the narthex of the church and were prepared by Mrs. G. DeRoche Vincent, a member of the History Committee. She was assisted by Kathy Harris and Melissa Pruden.

The public is invited to attend the services.

Preacher Declares Hunt Lied On Issues

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP) — A fundamentalist preacher says Gov. Jim Hunt has lied about his stand on issues such as abortion, the death penalty and liberalization of divorce, drug and liquor laws.

The Rev. Kent Kelly of Southern Pines, a leader of The Churches for Life and Liberty, said Thursday, "We know that what the governor says to newspaper reporters does not necessarily represent his position. We know that what he says to us does not necessarily represent his position."

Hunt was not immediately available for comment. Asked in an interview if he was saying that Hunt has lied about his position on issues, Kelly said, "Yes, as a matter of fact we are."

On Wednesday, Hunt condemned as "scurrilous" and "inaccurate" the issues rating sheet that has been distributed statewide by the newly formed Churches for Life and Liberty organization, a fundamentalist religious group with close ties to Republican U. S. Sen. Jesse Helms's N. C. Congressional Club.

In a rating of candidates for governor and lieutenant governor on 11 issues, the group said Hunt opposed the death penalty and favored liberalization of drug, liquor and divorce laws.

Hunt was given a rating of 10 percent on the issues while Republican gubernatorial candidate Beverly Lake Jr. scored 80 percent, according to the group's rating sheet.

Hunt's Democratic opponent, former Gov. Bob Scott, scored 60 percent.

The group rated Hunt opposite to his publicly announced position on a number of issues. Hunt has long supported the death penalty and stated his opposition to liquor by the drink in public statements, but the religious group claims he has not supported the death penalty and has supported liquor by the drink.

ONE INCH, ONE LIFE, ONE PLAN

Our instructions read 36 inches. But one of the sides of our "do-it-yourself" bookcase measured only 35 inches.

"Why not just shorten the other side by an inch?" suggested my son, John. We did and ended up having to cut an inch off the back. It would have been better had we corrected rather than simply revised the plans.

Like the bookcase, our lives have a plan drafted by God. We often fall short, and rather than correct ourselves, we downgrade our other dimensions — our standards and aspirations. Thus, we fool ourselves into believing that we still measure up. The result is a life half-lived, filled with doubt, worry and often, regret.

Read of God's plan for you in the Bible; consult with him in His Church.

You have everything to gain.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Colder weather is expected in the period until Saturday morning for central states, but most of the nation is predicted to be warm. Showers are forecast for Georgia and Florida. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
A high pressure center was settled off the North Carolina coast today and its effect will be to allow some warming over the state for the next several days.

After temperatures that dipped to the 30s over much of the state Thursday morning, readings were a little more moderate this morning as lows generally were in the 40s. High readings today were expected to reach the 60s and low 70s.

Temperatures Thursday were some warmer over the western part of the state than they were over the east. While high readings ranged in the 50s over the east portion, Hot Springs in the mountains recorded a high of 70 degrees and Murphy in the far west had a high of 69.

Saturday will be fair and a little warmer with temperatures mostly in the low to mid 70s. Temperatures will be about the same Sunday but there also will be a chance of rain.

'Best Year' Public Invited To By Piedmont Fire-Rescue Tours

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Piedmont Aviation Inc. had total revenues of $361 million in 1979, the best year ever for the company, stockholders were told Thursday.

Piedmont President T.H. Davis told the annual stockholders meeting that revenues were up 36.9 percent over those of 1978. Total revenues for 1978 were $264 million.

Net income of $11.1 million in 1979 was up 99.7 percent over the previous year, Davis said. He told stockholders that 11 new 737 airplanes are on order from the Boeing Co. for delivery during 1980-82. The new planes are expected to cost between $115 and $120 million.

Piedmont also will begin construction this year to replace an existing company-owned general aviation complex at the Norfolk, Va., airport. Cost and size of the new unit have yet to be determined, but company officials said they expect Piedmont to lease 900,000 square feet of land for the construction.

Davis said primary earnings per share in 1979 were $3.43, compared with $2.04 in 1978. But cash dividends paid to the corporation's 7,500 stockholders did not go up in 1979. They remained at 24 cents a share, the same as in 1978.

"It is the judgment of your board of directors that in order to keep borrowing down in a period of high interest rates, we should be overly liberal in increasing cash dividends," Davis said.

"Every dollar that a company declares a cash dividend is not tax-deductible for the business or the shareholder. We feel it is in the best interest of the company to remain where we are."

Piedmont flew 20 percent more revenue miles in 1979 than it did in 1978. It also added routes to Tampa, Dallas-Fort Worth and Houston.

The largest gain in revenues were attributed to a 35 percent increase in the number of passenger miles flown. A 10 percent fare increase produced $25 million in additional revenues.

Gov. Jim Hunt has proclaimed April 20-26 as "North Carolina Emergency Medical Services Week," citing the organizations that provide emergency medical services to their communities.

Locally, Fire/Rescue Chief Jenness Allen reported that the Greenville Fire/Rescue Department will celebrate the E.M.S. week by "holding open house at all city fire/rescue facilities in order that the public may see first hand the personnel and facilities which continuously provide Emergency Rescue Service to our citizens."

Allen explained that "the entire department will participate in various related activities" during the week and will climax the activities with a "high rise rescue mission" at the Skinner

Street drill tower on Saturday, April 26 from 2-4 p.m.

The chief added, "We sincerely hope that all citizens will participate in these activities. Our personnel are certainly looking forward to a large turnout of folks to visit all our stations and talk with our personnel."

According to Allen, all city fire/rescue facilities will be open to the public for tours from Sunday, April 20 through Saturday, April 26. Hours suggested by the department for tours are 10-11 a.m., 1-4 p.m. and 7-9 p.m., he said.

"We urge everyone to come by one or all of your fire/rescue facilities and take part in recognizing the people who provide such a valuable community service," Allen mentioned.

American Tourism To Russia Plunges

MOSCOW (AP) — American tourism to Russia has plunged nearly a third since the massive Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan last December, Western and Soviet travel officials said today.

They said the 30 percent decline in the number of U.S. tourists here and a smaller slowdown in Western flights to and from Moscow is apparently tied to growing international tension and doubts by tourists and businessmen about whether they should come to Moscow. A smaller part of the drop, they said, may be natural slack before the Summer Olympics open here in July.

Valentin F. Lebedev, chairman of the Soviet travel monopoly Intourist, told a news conference today that about 3,500 American tourists visited the Soviet Union in the first three months of this year, compared to 5,000 in the same off-season period last year.

He blamed the drop on "measures taken in the United States," apparently a reference to President Carter's criticism of the Afghan intervention. Carter successfully asked U.S. Olympic officials not to send American athletes to the Moscow games and has urged other countries to join the boycott.

He said that because of the U.S. Olympic boycott the number of American tourists at the Moscow games could be down from a previously estimated 15,000 to 20,000 to about 3,000 to 4,000.

Despite cancellation of a contract between Intourist and an American firm specializing in Olympic tourism, Lebedev said a number of U.S. tourist agencies were seeking to book visitors to Moscow for the games.

President Carter and Ronald Reagan scored more victories in party skirmishes in the West, but as politics goes, it also was a day with something for everyone. Well, almost.

Carter came out on top Thursday in the Idaho Democratic caucuses, and Reagan won at North Dakota's state Republican convention. That added to their large delegate leads over party rivals.

But Reagan's chief GOP rival, George Bush, also picked up some delegates in Arkansas.

And John Anderson's supporters got the go-ahead to put him on the ballot in Massachusetts as an independent, with the Illinois congressman clearly leaning more and more toward making a run outside the two-party system.

And Edward M. Kennedy? Well, "President Carter's chief opponent got to hear the famous fable of how the tortoise, by dint of perseverance, finally passed by the rabbit who, perhaps grinning, took an early lead in the race but then pooped out."

Kennedy grinned himself as he sat cramped in a tiny desk listening to the moral of the story in a Philadelphia elementary school classroom. He later told an interviewer: "I didn't get into the race to lose."

Lose he did, however, in Idaho's district caucuses. Carter gained 48 percent of the vote to Kennedy's 30, with 22 percent uncommitted. That would give Carter eight of Idaho's 17 delegates to the Democratic National Convention, and Kennedy five. Four would go as uncommitted delegates.

Reagan picked up 12 delegates at the North Dakota state Republican convention, with one going to Bush and four uncommitted.

At the same time, Bush gained the support of six Arkansas delegates to the Republican National Convention who previously had been uncommitted or pledged to candidates no longer in the race. Their switch gave the former

Meet Monday

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners will meet Monday at 10 a.m. at the Pitt County Court House.

Included on the agenda is the consideration of a release of Rosewood Subdivision so lots may be sold; a request by the Greenville Jaycees for permission for a fireworks display on the fourth of July; a report on equipment at the county landfill and tentative solid waste site work schedule; and a report on the new county office building.

Also on the agenda is the consideration of a resolution on improvements to NC 43 and consideration of recommendations by the board's computer committee.

Fellowship Club Meeting Slated

The John Pierce Fellowship Club will hold its 58th annual meeting Wednesday, at Camp Contentment on the banks of Contentnea Creek, between Ayden and Grifton.

Registration will begin at 10:30 a.m., with dinner at 1 p.m. Reginald Gray, president of the club, a number of state and local government officials and candidates will attend the meeting.

Carter, Reagan Scored Again

U.N. ambassador eight of that state's 19 delegates. Reagan has nine, and two still are uncommitted.

Another Republican hopeful, Rep. Philip Crane of Illinois, dropped out of the race Thursday, which will likely benefit fellow conservative Reagan. Crane said he would campaign for the former California governor as a "mainstream conservative candidate."

Both Reagan and Carter were far ahead in the races for their party's nomination's even before the delegate skirmishes.

Reagan had 372 of the 988 needed for nomination, to 72 for Bush and 57 for Anderson. Rep. Anderson told reporters, meanwhile, that while he hadn't made a final decision to drop out of the Republican race, he was "leaning strongly" toward an independent run for th presidency.

Carter had 925 of the 1,666 required to nominate a Democrat, and Kennedy 470. While Carter's numbers sound impressive, Kennedy delegate hunter Richard Stearns began talking Thursday about the possibility of a rules change at the convention that would free all delegates from commitments to any candidate.

See House Approval For Male Draft Registration

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional leaders predict the House will approve draft registration of men, but a White House poll shows the outcome is not yet certain and that opponents have a slim chance of stopping the program.

The House Appropriations Committee voted 26-23 Thursday to approve spending $13.3 million to begin registering young men this summer.

That cleared the way for the matter to be debated in the full House next week, probably Tuesday.

"I would be surprised if it were defeated," said House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass.

O'Neill revealed that a White House poll of House members found 206 representatives supporting registration, 86 opposed and the remainder of the 435 members undecided.

If that count is accurate, opponents would have to pick up almost all the undecided votes to prevail in the House.

In the view of many critics of registration, the best chance of killing it is in the Senate, where Republican Mark Hatfield of Oregon has vowed to wage a filibuster.

The vote by the full House committee overturned the decision of an Appropriations subcommittee seven weeks ago to approve funds only for a stand-by system in which registration would not start until the president ordered mobilization in an emergency.

Twice during its deliberations, the full committee shouted down proposals to register women along with men, as suggested by President Carter at one point.

But the committee's vote approving money for registration of men was a key victory for Carter, who has called his program a signal to the Soviet Union of U.S. strength and resolve to protect American interests.

On the other side of Capitol Hill, meanwhile, the Senate Armed Services manpower subcommittee voted in a closed-door session against authorizing registration of women.

Sources said the panel, for the second year in a row, also authorized registration of men, even though Carter already has legal authority to carry out a male-only registration program and only needs money from Congress to begin it.

In rejecting registration of women, the subcommittee approved a set of findings to justify their exclusion on grounds there is no military need to draft women and that women do not belong in combat.

Upgrade Their On-Job Skills

Two Pitt Community College faculty members are presently upgrading their skills by working directly with two Pitt County firms.

Shirley Moore of the business education department and Gene Hemby of the machine shop are taking advantage of staff development leave in order to acquaint themselves with modern business practices associated with Pitt County industry and institutions.

Hemby has just completed serving with the TRW Corporation and Ms. Moore is in the midst of ten weeks assignment to the records section of Pitt Memorial Hospital.

The purpose of the staff development program is to update faculty members and staff on modern practices now going on in industry and business. After this exposure they come back to the classroom with better ideas of the needs of these firms and with an explanation to the student as to how to comply in the working world.

Hemby explained, "When you stay in the classroom for a long period of time, an instructor tends to get behind with the technology of what is going on in the modern world of today. When a person works hand in hand with operators and engineers he will gain up-to-the-minute practices and knowledge of how to do the job efficiently."

Shirley Moore commented, "The job of a medical records technician is precise and exacting and I believe my experiences during this apprenticeship will give me experiences to take back to the classroom. I will be better equipped to show my classes how to use reference manuals and understand medical terms which are to be transcribed. This staff development program is a fantastic way to upgrade one's skills and I am proud to be a part of it."

Joe Downing, assistant Dean of Instructional Curriculum Programs, explained, "This staff development opportunity gives the faculty member a chance to associate with industry and business at their home bases and in doing so they learn new techniques and procedures to incorporate with learning situations. This is just the beginning for this type of project and we hope to work with other Pitt County industries and business firms in the future."

Congressman Praises Vets

First District Rep.
Walter Jones addressed the monthly meeting of the local V.F.W. Chapter on Thursday night.

The Veterans Administration, organized to help American service veterans, celebrates its 50th anniversary this year, having been founded in 1930.

Jones, in his remarks to chapter members, praised those who have given of their time to serve this nation overseas.

The congressman said that it is estimated that the number of veterans living today totals over 30 million. That current figure, he said, includes some two-thirds of all American men and women to ever serve in uniform in wartime.

Jones informed the gathering that 40 of every 100 American males living are veterans, while there are some 647,000 female veterans. The largest single group of veterans, 12,674,000, are survivors of World War II and have an average age of 59, he said. There are 594,000 living veterans of World War I and average 84 years of age.

The Farmville Democrat noted that three out of every ten veterans are Vietnam returnees and average 31 years of age.

Approximately 622,000 veterans were living in North Carolina as of January of this year, he continued. Some 2,264,000 veterans nationwide received service-connected disability compensation.

In the First District served by Jones, total estimated expenditures on veterans is $31,489,292, he reported, while the figure in Pitt County totals nearly $5 million. Statewide, the total is $523,492,965.

Jones concluded his remarks by saying that the goal of the Veterans Administration has been and continues to be to answer in a meaningful way Abraham Lincoln in his second inaugural address, "to care for him who shall have borne to battle and for his widow and his orphan."

Jones is seeking his eighth term as a member of the U.S. House of Representatives.

Russell Represents PCC At Gathering

Pitt Community College was represented by Dr. Charles E. Russell, assistant to the president of Pitt Community College, at a recent meeting of the North Carolina Association of Community College Public Information Officers (ACCPPIO) in Wrightsville Beach, N.C.

Russell reported that the central theme of the conference was related to the role of the institution and its PIO communicating with the news media, citizens being served or who could be served by institutions, business and industry, and legislators.

The keynote speaker for the conference was Jack Claiborne, associate editor of the Charlotte Observer. Claiborne emphasized the role of these institutions in providing educational opportunities for people who want to go back to school for personal or professional development.

According to Russell, the meeting was well attended by public information officers from community colleges and technical institutes throughout North Carolina.

Old Escapee Is Paroled

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — James Lee Walton, who was paroled from prison Thursday, says he doesn't ever intend to land back in prison again.

Walton won his parole three months after voluntarily ending 13 years of freedom in which he says he worked in Washington for the federal government and chauffeured celebrities such as Ronald Reagan and Frank Sinatra.

The 57-year-old Walton surrendered to Wake County authorities in January, 13 years after he escaped from prison while serving a 25-to-30-year sentence for second-degree murder.

His parole was approved earlier this week by the state Parole Commission. Commission Chairman James C. Woodard said the panel thought Walton "handled himself satisfactorily while in and away from prison."

As for Walton, he plans to keep it that way. "I don't ever intend to come back here," he said. "I feel like a big burden is off me, but it's too early to tell what it's like in the free world."

He said he will live with relatives in nearby Garner. He said he hopes to find a clerical job, possibly with the state Department of Corrections.

Walton said he escaped in 1966 after his request for parole had been denied twice. As an honor-granted prisoner with few restrictions, he simply walked away from his prison work-release job with the state printing office in downtown Raleigh.

Navy Plane Hits Hotel

PAGO PAGO, American Samoa (AP) — Six U.S. Navy airmen and three civilians were killed when a U.S. Navy plane taking part in a Flag Day celebration crashed and burned the old wing of the Rainmaker Hotel, where Somerset Maugham stayed before writing his famous story about the preacher and the prostitute, Miss Sadie Thompson.

The names of the airmen killed in the crash Thursday morning were withheld pending notification of relatives, and the nationalities of the civilians were not immediately available. Another civilian, a Japanese tourist, was critically burned in the accident and flown to Tripler Air Force Base in Honolulu, along with the dead.

Gov. Peter Coleman of American Samoa, a U.S. territory in the South Pacific, declared three days of mourning beginning today with an assembly in Pago Pago's main square of all high school students, members of the legislature and the territory's high chiefs.

Witnesses said the Navy plane dropped six members of a U.S. Army parachute team over the main square shortly after 10 a.m. Thursday, that three of the jumpers were blown off target, that the plane turned to follow their descent but snagged on a cable of the tramway that crosses Pago Pago's bay.

They said the plane, a four-engine P-3 Orion turbo-prop, narrowly missed the square, jammed with an estimated 30,000 natives and tourists, and crashed on the Pago Pago waterfront just outside the practically empty hotel. Its exploding fuel tanks set fire to the old wing of the building.

Cey Finds Range, Dodgers Explode

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Just when the Los Angeles Dodgers needed a hit man, Ron Cey began to gun down National League pitchers.

The stumbling Dodgers dropped five of their first six games as Cey got off to a dismal 2-for-23 start. But the stocky third baseman unloaded two singles and a double and drove in two runs in a 10-4 triumph over the San Diego Padres Wednesday night and ran his streak to seven hits in a row Thursday with a two-run homer and a pair of singles, including a tie-breaking two-run hit in the eighth inning that gave Los Angeles a 6-4 decision over the Houston Astros in the Dodgers' home opener.

"I've played long enough and I've been through these things before, so I wasn't worried," Cey said. "I wasn't swinging the bat for the most part like I was capable. We opened against the Astros and they got me out with good pitching. My timing was off, I was being over-anxious and not being as selective as I wanted. I wanted to get out of a rut."

It's a good thing he did because the Dodgers already are five games off the pace in the NL West as the unbeaten Cincinnati Reds made it eight in a row with a 4-1 victory over the winless Atlanta Braves. Elsewhere, the San Francisco Giants stopped San Diego 7-3, the St. Louis Cardinals outslugged the Pittsburgh Pirates 12-9 and the Chicago Cubs downed the New York Mets 4-1. Montreal and Philadelphia were not scheduled.

Cey, who homered in the third inning to cap a four-run burst against Nolan Ryan, delivered his game-winning single off rookie Dave Smith.

Reds 4, Braves 1
Frank Pastore fired a five-hitter while Dan Driessen and Ray Knight belted two-run homers off Phil Niekro in the fourth inning. The triumph moved the Reds within two of the major league record for victories at the start of a season.

Giants 7, Padres 3
Willie McCovey, a 42-year-old survivor from the San Francisco lineup in Candlestick Park's first game 20 years ago, drove in the first three runs to help the Giants and Vida Blue win their 1980 home opener after opening the season with a 1-6 record on the road. Blue, who is 7-0 against San Diego, lost his shutout in the ninth on Gene Tenace's three-run homer.

Cardinals 12, Pirates 9
George Hendrick drove in six runs with three singles and a homer as St. Louis pounded out 17 hits. They battered John Candelaria for nine hits and eight runs in the first two innings. Garry Templeton also contributed four hits while Bobby Bonds drove in three runs with a single and double. Hendrick homered in the eighth off Rod Scurry, the fifth of six Pittsburgh pitchers.

Cubs 4, Mets 1
Rookie Carlos Lezcano's first major league hit — a two-run homer in the fifth inning — and a solo shot by Mike Tyson in the seventh powered Dennis Lamp to his second victory in the Cubs' home opener. Lamp scattered seven hits over eight innings and Bruce Sutter worked the ninth.

Lady Pirates Sweep Two From Campbell; Close In On Top Seed

BULES CREEK — East Carolina University took a step closer to the top seeding for the state AIAW Softball Tournament yesterday with a sweep of Campbell University.

The Lady Pirates gained an 11-3 win in the opener, then rallied to take an 8-1 win in the second.

The twin victories raised the Pirate record to 21-4.

In the opener, the Pirates took the lead with three runs in the first, then added one in the third, enough to win.

Jan McVea and Kathy Riley each banged out three hits in the game, with Riley adding a double. Mitzi Davis, Cynthia Sheperd, Yvonne Williams and Ginger Rothermel each had two hits.

Davis homered in the seventh with none on, while Sheperd picked up a triple and a double. Williams had a three-run homer in the fifth and a one-run triple in the seventh.

King led the Campbell hitting with three, while Mullins had two.

In the second game, Campbell pushed over a run in the first for the lead, but never scored again. East Carolina pushed ahead with three in the fifth, and went on from there to add five more in the next two frames.

Fran Hooks, Davis, Riley, Judy Ausherman, and Rothermel each had two hits, while Sheperd homered in the sixth with two on and Robin Faggart tripled in the fifth with two on.

Mueller led Campbell with three, while King and Rayner had two each.

The Lady Pirates play host to UNC-Wilmington in a twin-bill Sunday at 2 p.m.

Fisk's Homer Gives Red Sox 5-4 Extra Inning Win Over Detroit

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

In the sixth game of the 1975 World Series, Carlton Fisk hit the shot heard 'round the baseball world.

It ruined Sparky Anderson's day.

On Thursday, Fisk hit a similar game-winning blast in extra innings.

And guess who was managing for the other team? That's right — Sparky Anderson.

"There's really no comparison because that World Series homer meant so much, a once-in-a-lifetime shot," said Fisk after his 11th-inning homer gave the Boston Red Sox a 5-4 victory over Anderson's Detroit Tigers. "However, it's a big thrill everytime you hit a game-winning homer."

Anderson, of course, was manager of the Cincinnati Reds when Fisk hit his 12th-inning homer in Fenway Park five years ago. In retrospect, Anderson has little to regret about that shot, since his Reds went on to win the Series.

Fisk knew he had really nailed the pitch from Aurelio Lopez Thursday. However, because of the wind, blowing left to right, he didn't know if the ball would stay fair.

"I actually stayed around the plate longer than I should have," he said. "I would have looked awfully foolish just standing there if it had been off the wall. But, no, I didn't try to pray it fair, or give it any body English. It didn't stay up there long enough."

In other American League games, the Baltimore Orioles defeated the Kansas City Royals 5-2, the Chicago White Sox whipped the New York Yankees

8-6, the Toronto Blue Jays edged the Milwaukee Brewers 1-0 and the Seattle Mariners beat the Minnesota Twins 4-3.

Orioles 5, Royals 2
Eddie Murray and Al Bumbry socked home runs and reliever Tim Lincecum choked off a Kansas City rally in the eighth inning, giving Baltimore its triumph over the Royals.

Murray hit a two-run homer off Rich Gale in the first inning and Bumbry a solo shot in the sixth, helping the Orioles mount a 5-0 lead.

White Sox 8, Yankees 6
Rookie left-hander Britt Burns pitched five perfect innings enroute to his first major league triumph and Mike Squires and Chet Lemon drove in two runs apiece to lead Chicago over New York.

The 20-year-old Burns, who dropped his other two big league starts in 1978, retired the first 15 New York batters before Dennis Werth slapped the first pitch of the sixth inning for a single.

Blue Jays 1, Brewers 0
Rick Bosetti's home run in the bottom of the ninth, only the fourth hit off Milwaukee pitcher Lary Sorensen, gave Toronto a tight victory over the Brewers.

Mariners 4, Twins 3
Pinch-runner Larry Milbourne scored from first base in the ninth on Bruce Bochte's double and an error by Minnesota right fielder Bombo Rivera, leading Seattle over the Twins.

Milwaukee Tries To End Playoff Series

By The Associated Press

The Boston Celtics and Philadelphia 76ers open one playoff series while the Milwaukee Bucks hope to end theirs against the Seattle SuperSonics when National Basketball Association action resumes tonight.

The Celtics, who finished just two games ahead of the 76ers in the Atlantic Division during the regular season, meet Philadelphia at Boston Garden to open the best-of-seven Eastern Conference final.

Celtics Coach Bill Fitch, for one, feels the pressure of the 76ers' regular-season chase produced more pressure than the playoff meeting.

"We felt pressure ... coming down to the wire, trying to win the pennant," he said of his Celtics, who jumped from a 29-53 record in 1978-79 to a league-leading 61-21 in 1979-80.

"No team I ever coached in 27 years had the same regular-season pressure we had," said Fitch. "If we won by 40 points, every time we'd look at the paper, Philly won by 50."

The teams split their regular season series, each winning three times at home. The Celtics went on to sweep Houston in four games in their conference semifinal while Philadelphia ousted Atlanta in five.

Sixers Coach Bill Cunningham says the ease of Boston's early-round triumph may work to Philadelphia's benefit.

"They may have been lulled in Houston and think they're in a cake walk," he said. Celtics rookie Larry Bird said he wasn't so sure.

"All games to me are the same. There's just as much pressure in the regular season as in the playoffs," he said.

The pressure in the Milwaukee-Seattle series is on the defending champion SuperSonics, who are one game away from elimination.

Milwaukee's 108-98 victory in Seattle Tuesday night gave the Bucks the home-court edge for Game Six of the Western Conference semifinal, and that's just fine with Coach Don Nelson.

"We don't want to go back there (to Seattle)," said Nelson. "You don't have a chance too often like we have — to do it right here."

If they don't do it in Milwaukee, a deciding game would be played in Seattle next Tuesday. The winner would meet the Los Angeles Lakers, who ousted the Phoenix Suns to advance to the Western Conference final.

The Bucks likely will have to do without Junior Bridgeman, the NBA's highest-scoring reserve. Bridgeman landed hard on his lower back after a collision with Seattle's Jack Sikma Tuesday night and was hospitalized.

Milwaukee forward David Meyers also was injured, suffering a bruised and hyperextended knee during a third-quarter collision Tuesday, but may be available for duty.

Watson's 65 Leading Champs Tourney

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer
CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) —

pleted what he called "the finest round I've played all year." He's shot a 7-under-par 65. He'd missed the course record by a single stroke.

And he's looking for improvement.

"Hopefully," he said with a mischievous grin, "I'll do better tomorrow."

Actually, the 65 that set the first round pace Thursday in the $300,000 Tournament of Champions could have been a little better.

"What I did was turn a 62 or 63 into a 65," Watson said. "I feel it could have been a very, very good round."

He one-putted 10 times and missed four other birdie opportunities from 6-8 feet.

It's all the result of a tiny correction he made in his swing, Watson said. "It's a matter of weight distribution," he said. "I was hitting too much off my right side, moving my weight too much to the right on the backswing."

The swing problem, which Watson said he'd "been fighting for a month or so," had produced a less than successful Masters for the man who has been the outstanding performer in the game for the past three years.

The correction, he said, had his game back where he wants it.

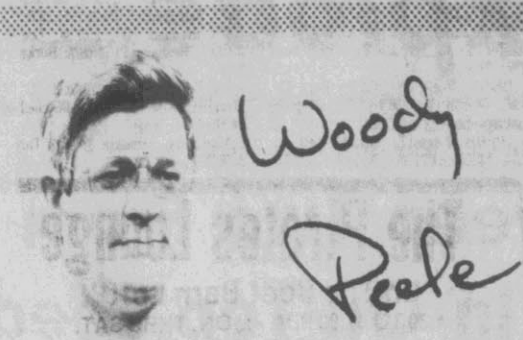

"I hit the ball very well," he said.

"The missing confidence is back. It's nice to have."

As the first man off the tee in the exclusive event that brings together only the winners of pro golf tour titles from the past 12 months, Watson got his score on the board first and forced the rest of the 30-man field into a catch-up position.

It produced some exceptionally low scoring on the tough, 6,889 yard La Costa Country Club course.

It begins to look like the four Pitt County high schools will no longer be in the same conference after the 1980-81 school year.

The Coastal Conference, which is composed of only five teams is losing East Carteret, moving up to the 4-A ranks, and the only thing that the North Carolina High School Athletic Association can do is to split up the ECC to help fill out the Coastal.

Current members of the Coastal, who will be staying on, are Havelock, West Carteret, West Craven and White Oak (Jacksonville).

According to Charles Adams, assistant director of the NCHSAA, the grouping is the only possible move that can be made. It may not prove the most popular move, but one that has to be made.

What Adams and the NCHSAA is hoping is that Washington will, upon request, withdraw from the Northeastern Conference and join the ECC. Currently, there are eight members in the Northeastern, but Bertie, currently in Division I 4-A, is dropping back to 3-A, and will enter that conference.

What the NCHSAA hopes to bring out of it all is two seven-team conferences. One would contain the four surviving members of the Coastal, along with North Lenoir, Greene Central and D.H. Conley. The remaining ECC members, along with Washington, would remain as the new ECC.

While we are not pleased at the prospect of seeing one of our county high schools moved off into another conference, there seems to be no solution otherwise. Breaking up schools from the same county into different conferences is not good, but even Ott Alford, the county superintendent, says that there is an obligation to help neighbors.

The only other 3-A conference in the vicinity of the Coastal is the East Central, and that whole conference is to drop back to 2-A status after this coming year.

There were a lot of questions involving a situation at the Beddingfield-Rose baseball game earlier this week.

What happened was this: Beddingfield's shortstop injured his back batting in the first inning. The coach then inserted the designated hitter into the lineup, and announced that the pitcher, for who the HD was being used, would bat in the shortstop's position in the batting order from then on.

That was questioned, but allowed to stand.

Then, when it came time for the pitcher to bat, a pinch-hitter was sent up and the pitcher returned to the field at the end of the inning, with the coach claiming that the rule permitting a starter to return allowed this.

Rose protested that he was not the original batter and was therefore ineligible to return.

"The actual rule is this: The player who is being batted for is locked into the lineup in the same position as the DH. He must bat in that position if he becomes a batter. In this instance, when it became time for the shortstop to bat, a new player must have been inserted. The DH still could have batted, but either he or the pitcher must leave the game when they take the field. If the pitcher bats, he is considered the second batter in that position, and a pinch-hitter for him rules him out from further play.

Singers In Auditions Bootlegging Loss Declines

NEW YORK (AP) — Twenty American opera hopefuls sang before 10 opera company officials and five managers here on Thursday. They were winners, from 318 who auditioned in four cities, in the annual American Opera Auditions.

AOA Inc., founded in Cincinnati 24 years ago, reports six hirings soon after last year's similar final auditions.

Singers appearing were sopranos Sally Wolf, 28, Ravenna, Ohio; Sheryl Woods, 29, Rochester, Minn.; Jo Ann Pickens, 29, Chicago; Shannon Williams, 24, Queens, N.Y.; Cecilia Angell, 26, Peru; Denise Goeck, 26, Cleveland; Audrey Melikian, 26, Barbara De Deo, 27, Patricia Schraden, 32, Elaine Olbrycht, 27, Cynthia Karnstadt, 29, all of New York, and Linda Fargione, 28, Kunkletown, Pa.

Mezzo-sopranos Martha Senn, 30, from Bogota, Colombia, now of Harrison, N.Y., and Denise Woods, 26, Chicago; tenors Giuseppe Garofalo, 27, Bedford Hills, N.Y.; Phillip Eugene Taylor, 27, Alamogordo, N.M., and Michele Farruggia, 26, born in Torino, Italy, now of Elizabeth, N.J..

Baritone John Cimino, 30, Troy, N.Y.; bass-baritone Nicholas Scarpinati, 35, Old Bridge, N.J., and bass Bruce Kramer, 31, St. Paul.

Opera company officials were present from Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Dallas, Raleigh, New York, Wolf Trap Farm Park near Washington, Washington, Charleston, Hartford and St. Petersburg.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tax losses from cigarette bootlegging have declined about $60 million since a new federal law against the illegal trafficking went into effect, a Senate subcommittee was told Thursday.

However, a Florida senator chairing the panel said he was concerned that a recent study by the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms indicated a continuing increase in losses in Florida and Massachusetts.

Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., chairing a Senate Appropriations subcommittee holding hearings on ATF budget requests, said he was puzzled by the ATF estimate that bootlegging was on the rise in his state. John Shannon, assistant director of the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations, said special circumstances affecting the Florida cigarette trade, plus the lack of any real statistics on illegal cigarette sales, could mean the ATF estimates were wrong.

He said the method used by the advisory commission to estimate cigarette tax losses is to compare per capita tax-paid cigarette sales from state.

Since per capita cigarette consumption should be generally equal between states, lower-than-average tax-paid cigarettes in a state with high cigarette taxes — such as Florida with its 24-cents-a-pack tax — indicated its citizens are using illegal cigarettes.

By the same token, higher-than-average cigarette sales in a low-tax state — such as North Carolina, where the tax is two cents a pack — indicates such a state is supplying bootleggers, Shannon said.

The new federal law dealing with cigarette bootlegging makes it a crime punishable by five years in prison or a $100,000 fine or both to ship more than 300 cartons of cigarettes without proof that tax has been paid on them in the state where they are inspected or seized.

Arrest Man On Break-In Count

Greenville Police, early last night, arrested Steve Gary Blanton, 29 of Kingsport, Tenn., on breaking, entering and larceny charges after finding him inside the Salvation Army building on Dickinson Avenue.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Blanton, who told investigators that he was hungry, allegedly broke out a rear window to gain entrance to the building.

Officers found him in the sanctuary eating ice cream. The incident was reported about 7 p.m.

Nazi-Sponsored Rally Saturday

By NAOMI KAUFMAN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Authorities anticipate little trouble Saturday when Nazis, Klansmen and other right-wing radicals rally in rural Johnston County. The Nazi-sponsored rally was called in support of the 14 men charged in connection with the shooting deaths of five demonstrators at last November's "Death to the Klan" rally in Greensboro.

It was to have been preceded by a motorcade through Raleigh, but those plans were canceled after Nazi leader Harold Covington said the group expected members of the Communist Workers Party, sponsors of the November rally, to cause trouble.

CWP members denied they had made threats and have said they have no plans to attend Saturday's rally.

Covington calls the 14 "Christian soldiers (who) fired the first shots of the second American revolution."

Johnston County Sheriff George Johnson said he had met with Covington and county Nazi leader Glenn Miller last week and was told the group anticipated no problems.

"The only thing we're going to do is we're going to have a normal work day," Johnson said. "We've had cross burnings before and no problems."

Burley Mitchell, state secretary of crime control and public safety, said "We believe it will come off with a minimum of problems."

Mitchell said extra Highway Patrol units would be standing by in case of trouble. Local authorities have also been in contact with the State Bureau of Investigation and federal agents, Johnson said.

Covington said he expected several of the Greensboro defendants to attend the rally and possibly to speak.

"I want this thing to go completely smoothly," Covington said. "I'm anticipating a very successful rally."

However, Covington and Miller said they would ban any blacks, Jews and other "non-whites," including reporters who are not "white Christians," from attending.

The rally, scheduled to begin at 3 p.m., will be held in a field owned by Miller in Johnston County's sparsely populated farmland about 28 miles south of Raleigh. Covington said armed Nazi stormtroopers and Klansmen would provide security.

The film "Triumph of the Will," a 1934 documentary on a huge Nazi rally at Nuremberg, will be shown, followed by a barbecue dinner and speeches from Nazi, Klan and National States Rights representatives "preaching the doctrine of white unity, white pride and white power," according to a taped message on the Nazi's "White Power" telephone line.

Country and "white power Nazi music" will be played and a cross will be burned at sunset, the taped message said.

"All white people who love their race and believe as we do are invited," Miller said in the message.

Hunt Plans Two-Day Western N.C. Tour

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt, who will take a two-day campaign tour of the western part of the state next week, plans to meet Monday with Billy Graham at the evangelist's home in Montreat.

A spokesman in Graham's office in Minneapolis, Minn., said Thursday that the evangelist has not endorsed Hunt's reelection bid but was meeting with the governor because the two are friends.

"It's a friendly visit. It has no political overtones at all," said Don Bailey, Graham's spokesman. "Mr. Graham has had many governors, senators and political leaders from his home state of North Carolina at his home."

Hunt campaigned in High Point Thursday and said state spending increased far less during his term than during the administration of former Gov. Bob Scott, Hunt's opponent for renomination in the May 6 Democratic primary.

Meanwhile, Scott campaigned in Iredell County and kept up his attack on Hunt, saying the governor "is not telling the truth" about his role in the passage of utilities legislation.

Hunt campaign press secretary Stephanie Bass said Hunt would go to Graham's home near Asheville for tea Monday afternoon. "We certainly are happy he wants to meet with the governor in such a public way," she said.

Bailey said Graham invited Hunt for a visit after Hunt's election in 1976, but the two were unable to arrange a convenient time. He said Graham and Hunt first met when Hunt was a teen-ager attending a Graham crusade in Greensboro in 1951.

Ms. Bass said the visit was arranged after Hunt called Graham on Tuesday.

Although his spokesman disclaimed any political motive for the visit, the visit with Hunt is not the first time Graham has associated himself with a North Carolina politician during his re-election campaign.

During the final days of his successful 1978 campaign for re-election, Republican Sen. Jesse Helms met publicly with Graham and attended church with him.

Bailey said Graham is a registered Democrat and will vote in the state's primary by absentee ballot.

Speaking in Iredell County, Scott said in a prepared statement that Hunt "quietly made a deal" to gain legislative approval of his proposal to establish a staff of public advocates on the state Utilities Commission.

Scott said Hunt went along with electric and telephone company officials by not fighting another bill that now permits the companies to recover construction costs from consumers before the new plants are completed.

He said that law has cost consumers $50 million since it took effect late last year.

Light Damage To 'N.C. Crops

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Despite frost warnings issued across much of North Carolina several nights this week, agriculture officials report no serious damage to crops.

But tobacco growers are still concerned about weather conditions described as ideal for outbreaks of blue mold.

Some damage was reported to apple orchards in some mountain sections on Wednesday night, but the damage apparently wasn't widespread.

Joe Galleghue, public relations official of the N.C. Department of Agriculture, said Sandhills counties reported no damage to peach tree blossoms.

Frost warnings were issued again for Thursday night, but temperatures failed to drop to freezing levels in most areas.

John Cyrus, chief of tobacco affairs of the NCDA, said that while conditions have been ideal for blue mold, there have been no significant problems so far.

"They're having a real problem trying to keep out the blue mold, but most farmers are treating plant beds with fungicides and other chemicals to prevent it," Cyrus said.

And he said that if the weather moderates and becomes more seasonal, this growing season could be a good one for flue-cured tobacco.

Instances of blue mold, which caused more than $40 million in losses to tobacco farmers in the state last year, have cropped up in two plant beds Columbus County this spring.

A warming trend was expected today and this weekend. That would be good news for tobacco growers, who have been able to move relatively few plants from beds to fields.

Police Count 2 Accidents

An estimated $1,050 property damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated here yesterday by Greenville Police.

Officers said an estimated $300 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 7:45 a.m. collision at the intersection of 14th Street and Farmville Boulevards.

Police, who identified the drivers as Judy Fout Jackson of Route 1, Grimesland, and Ricky Earl Clemmons of 204B West 14th St., charged Clemmons with illegal passing.

Cars driven by Nevada Cox Barrett of Ayden and Luther Daniel Moore of 1007 East Rocksprings Rd. collided about 4:15 p.m. on Memorial Drive, 130 feet North of the Trade Street intersection.

Damage was estimated at $200 to the Moore car and $250 to the Barrett auto.

Human Test Of Interferon Set To Begin At N.C. Cancer Center

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — A doctor at the University of North Carolina's Cancer Research Center says the state's first human tests of interferon will begin at the school this summer.

Dr. John Whisnant, chief of the division of pediatric immunology and oncology in UNC's Medical School, said in a recent interview that the clinical trials in Chapel Hill, and elsewhere are a major step in a nationwide effort to learn how interferon acts on human cancers, as well as how future tests of its therapeutic value should be designed.

"What we intend to do is learn more about how to use this material by carefully studying its biological effects in a group of patients we believe will benefit from it," Whisnant said.

He said 15 to 20 carefully selected patients, probably with recently diagnosed lung cancer, will receive injections of interferon during a six-week period. Whisnant added that the injections will not preclude the use of other established and proven methods, such as surgery, radiation and drug therapy.

has been tested at Duke University. A research team worked with a technique called gene splicing, or recombinant DNA engineering, to trick bacteria into producing interferon.

Research so far has shown that interferon, which is produced in the body in very small quantities, is effective in preventing or curing certain virus infections. Released by cells that have been attacked by a virus, interferon stimulates neighboring cells to produce anti-virus proteins needed to fight infection.

Tests with laboratory animals and a few preliminary human trials show interferon also affects the growth of malignant cells that are not infected by viruses, thus slowing or stopping the spread of some cancers.

Whisnant is a member of a National Cancer Institute committee that recommends how the severely limited amount of available interferon is used and how much is allocated to various research efforts. He stressed that only a fraction of the interferon used at UNC will be earmarked for human trials.

Much of it will continue to be used in laboratory studies to learn more about its chemical makeup and how it mobilizes cells to defend themselves.

Public Meeting Slated April 21 With Governor's Advocacy Council

A public meeting has been scheduled for April 21 to allow Greene County citizens and representatives of the Governor's Advocacy Council for Persons with Disabilities an opportunity to review the policies and practices involving disabled students in the Greene County School System.

The meeting will be held at 7 p.m. in the Greene County Courthouse courtroom on the third floor in Snow Hill.

Council Chairperson Marian G. Grant of Raleigh said, "We have been asked by several interested parents to look into the situation of disabled students in the local school system."

The purpose of the meeting, according to Mrs. Grant, is to inform citizens of educational rights of disabled students and to outline the council's plans to review the special education program in the local school system.

Mining Iran Oil Ports Seen Simple Role For Navy Planes

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. naval warfare specialists say American carrier-based planes could easily and quickly lay enough mines to block Iran's oil ports to all shipping if President Carter gives the order.

"It would be a piece of cake," said one senior expert who has discussed possible blockade strategy with other Pentagon officials.

Aerial mining of Iran's ports at the head of the Persian Gulf appears to be the most likely military option, if non-military sanctions finally prove fruitless in obtaining the release of the American hostages.

For the first time, Carter indicated Thursday that his patience is running low and that military action may be in the offing. The president set no timetable, but some of his aides have said he will make a decision after mid-May on whether to resort to military means.

"Interruption of commerce to Iran is the kind of step that would be available," Carter told a news conference.

But neither Carter nor any of his questioners mentioned the possible consequences to the American hostages, who have been held since Nov. 4.

The possibility that the militants might retaliate by injuring or killing some or all of the hostages has loomed large in the concerns of Pentagon officials. Defense Secretary Harold Brown mentioned that possibility recently as "a real drawback" to military action.

The naval warfare specialists indicated they believed an attempt to block the Strait of Hormuz, the narrow entrance to the Persian Gulf, would be a less desirable way of blockading Iran than by an aerial mining operation.

Specialists, who asked to remain anonymous, sounded confident that A-6 attack planes could carry out such an operation with little or no loss by striking swiftly and without warning. Such planes would be launched from either or both of the U.S. aircraft carriers now in the Arabian Sea.

A-6 and A-7 attack planes were used nearly eight years ago to mine Haiphong and six other North Vietnamese ports, keeping out Russian and other supply ships until American helicopters removed the explodes the following year.

It is known that there is a supply of mines aboard the carriers and other ships of the U.S. squadron now in the Arabian Sea, but additional supplies might have to be flown to those ships to support a major blockading effort.

The main objective of any U.S. aerial mining probably would be Kharg Island, off the Iranian coast. Kharg Island is a main terminus for Iranian oil pipelines and tankers load up there before heading for Western Europe and Japan.

Strategists indicated mines also might be dropped to plug access to two other ports that lie on relatively narrow waterways, Bandar Shahpur and Bandar Mashur.

Aid Offered By Realtors

The Greenville-Pitt County Board of Realtors announced a project to demonstrate how homeowners can make their homes more energy efficient.

Project chairman Janet Hignite said the Make America Better Committee of the board will select a home which local Realtors will "weatherize" through the use of insulation, weatherstripping, caulking, and other measures.

She explained that a home will be chosen on the basis of its adaptability and the owner's need. Realtors then will provide their labor to make the home more energy efficient.

"The goal is to qualify the pilot home for one of the awards in the Greenville Utilities Energy Check and Awards program," she pointed out.

According to the spokesman, the committee, which has as its theme, "Make America Better—Conserve Energy," hopes to secure materials needed for the project through donations.

She said that persons who wish information about the project or who wish to donate materials should contact her at 756-1306 or 756-5569.

The doctrine: "Always return your partner's suit," was propounded, if not for blind players, then at least for those whose vision is slightly impaired. Anyone who can see and has the ability to reason logically, is free to depart from all forms of canned advice. Indeed, many times a shift will be indicated simply by the play of, or the failure to play, a certain card to a trick. East used his head to find the killing defense on this deal.

North-South bid aggressively to a reasonable game. When North rebid his suit rather than take a preference in one of South's suits, it became a virtual certainty that he had a six-card suit, so South felt his hand rated one move toward game. North naturally cooperated.

Liz Taylor Is Recovering

NEW YORK (AP) — Elizabeth Taylor Warner, hospitalized in Washington, D.C., for three weeks for treatment of a salivary gland infection on the left side of her face, is about to leave the hospital.

The actress came down with a cold when she helped her husband, Sen. John Warner, R-Va., launch the U.S.S. Vinson in Newport News, Va., on March 15, the Daily News said in today's editions.

She has had problems with her salivary gland for some time and the cold aggravated the condition, the paper said. She was hospitalized March 26, and her condition was complicated by a reaction to antibiotics.

A spokesman for the movie queen said Mrs. Warner should be released from the Washington Hospital Center over the weekend. She is to fly to London on May 6 to do her next film, Agatha Christie's "The Mirror Crack'd."

Actress Wants Help Audience

BOSTON (AP) — Actress Elizabeth Ashley, who says audiences are the only reason she has a career, wants to do something for them if her new play, "Hide And Seek," is a hit in New York.

The play is to open on Broadway April 28 after two weeks at the Wilbur Theater here. Miss Ashley said if it is a hit, she wants to charge more for some tickets on some nights so other tickets can be sold for $5 apiece.

"The only reason I have a career at all is the audiences. The people in the business don't like me, directors, producers..." the outspoken actress and author said at a news conference this week. "I think the only obligation I have in the theater is to the audience."

Making Film At Biltmore House

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — An Atlanta-based motion-picture company will begin making a movie at the Biltmore House in Asheville on May 27.

William V. Arnold Jr., special assistant to the state secretary of commerce for motion pictures and television, said TriStar Pictures Inc. will film a movie titled "The Private Detective," starring Don Knotts and Tim Conway.

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — There is something liberating in admitting that you watch "Dallas," the Texas soap opera on CBS. To confess that you like it, that you actually admire its sinuous lines and vulgar rhythms, is positively cathartic.

So, when a friend planned a "final Dallas" episode of the season party" a few weeks ago, my wife and I quickly accepted the invitation. It was as much a group therapy session as a party.

Surrounded by homemade "Dallas" memorabilia, including a replica of Dusty's neckerchief (Dusty, non-fans, is the late lover of Sue Ellen Ewing, a "Dallas" principal ... not to be confused with Pammy, played by Victoria Principal), the "Dallas" devotees took turns sharing "Dallas" stories.

After some ribs and ranch-style beans, the moment arrived. If you watch "Dallas," you know that events of the entire past season — the pregnancies, paternity suits, the illicit affairs and shady deals of J.R. Ewing — all anticipated this season-ending episode.

J.R. was shot. It was the perfect act of vengeance; at least, the most justifiable attempted murder in television history. Every character who had ever appeared in "Dallas" had reason to take a shot at J.R. The question is, who did?

Was it Jock, the Ewing patriarch, finally tired of the grief caused by his son? Or Mama Ewing, with the same motive? Or one of J.R.'s swindled business partners? Or his off-defeated arch-rival, Cliff Barnes? Or his driven-to-distraction wife, Sue Ellen?

The producers of the show cleverly left that tiny matter to the imagination for the summer, offering as clues only the sound of high-heels walking through the darkened corridors of the Ewing Building and the sound of a pistol delivering its message.

The solutions came fast and easy, and were just as quickly shot down. "It's Mama Ewing," said Ira. "She's not needed in the story, anyway, and it explains the high-heels."

No, it was generally decided, Mama's gentle influence (provided by Barbara Bel Geddes) was needed on the show, and besides, dress cowboy boots make that same clicking sound. The suspect could be a man. I have my own theory: There was no single shot fired at all, but two rounds, fired simultaneously by the two men who were the most abused of J.R.'s victims ... Fred Silverman, President of NBC, and Tony Thomopoulos, President of ABC Entertainment.

GASOLINE REPORT — Charles DiBona, president of the American Petroleum Institute said at a news conference in New York Thursday that the consumption of gasoline in the U.S. has taken a real dip. Gasoline inventories climbed to a record 280.6 million barrels — nearly 1.2 billion gallons — last week as fuel use remained well below last year's levels according to the institute. (AP Laserphoto)

Convention For Clowns

DENVER (AP) — Al Moessinger of Baltimore would be a hit at any convention. Who could resist a battery-operated police siren being sounded every few minutes?

But "Allo," as he's known, was just one of the boys this week when the Clowns of America gathered here for their annual convention.

More than 500 clowns from 50 states and Puerto Rico paid $36 each for this year's four-day meeting. The first thing they had to do was learn each other's clown names. When you get to be a clown, you also get a new ID.

And from the looks of things, you also have to buy lots of "Let's Clown Around" patches for your clothes.

The conventioners included "Rags" from Amarillo, Texas, "Bunkie" from Bethesda, Md., "Giggles" from Topeka, Kan., "Tutu," "Bimbo" and "Bubbles" from California.

For some, clowning is a way to make a living. "Big Toot" of Grand Rapids, Mich., said he grossed about $65,000 in 1979, spending six months on the road at fairs and exhibitions from Canada to Mexico.

Toot's specialty is balloons, and his "Tigger" — of twisted orange balloons striped with a felt pen — had to be demonstrated over and over. His personal favorite, he said, is Snoopy on a motorcycle.

Protect Parade At Duke Power

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — About 30 sign-carrying picketers paraded across the street from Duke Power Co. Thursday, calling the utility "one of the country's 10 most socially bankrupt corporations."

The protest was part of a nationwide demonstration for "Big Business Day," a day set aside by a broad coalition of labor, consumer, religious and environmental groups, and aimed at curbing what the groups called the corporate abuse of power.

Big Business Day also was planned to make the public more aware of "the corporate crime epidemic that is sweeping the country," according to consumer advocate Ralph Nader.

More than 200 groups will be promoting Big Business Day nationwide. In Durham, several groups have designed the week of April 14-19 as Big Business Week and plan a series of activities pointing up corporate abuse.

Virus Closes Onslow School

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — An outbreak of what authorities believe is a gastrointestinal virus forced the closing of an Onslow County school Thursday to prevent further spread of the illness.

Assistant School Superintendent Andy Canady said 175 teachers and students at Tabernacle School were affected by the illness Thursday.

Canady closed the school about mid-morning and said it would not reopen today.

He said he hoped the layoff would allow time for students and teachers to recover. He said the school would return to regular operating hours Monday.

REALTORS ANNOUNCE HOME ENERGY CONSERVATION PROJECT

The GREENVILLE-PITT COUNTY BOARD OF REALTORS announces a pilot project to demonstrate how homeowners may make their homes more energy efficient, and qualify for the Greenville Utilities Commission Energy Check and Awards Program.

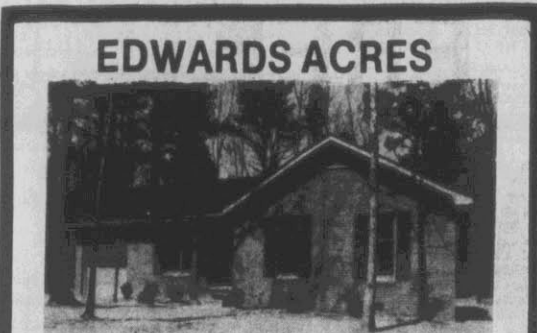

The MAKE AMERICA BETTER COMMITTEE will soon select a home which local REALTORS will "weatherize" with insulation, weatherstripping and caulking. The home will be selected because of its suitability for the project and the owner's need.

REALTORS ask that anyone interested in further information about the project, or anyone wishing to donate materials for the project, call Janet Hignite at 756-1306 or 756-5569.

Winners Announced For Special Olympics Games

The 1980 Greenville Special Olympics Spring Games sponsored by the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department and East Carolina University were held Wednesday at East Carolina's Bunting Field.

Four hundred and fifty young people from Greenville and Pitt County participated in the various events that make up the spring games.

Opening ceremonies began with a parade of athletes led by the D. J. Conley JROTC Color Guard. After the playing of the national anthem, Joseph Gillman lit the Special Olympics Torch.

Greenville Councilwoman Mrs. Judy Greene welcomed the athletes to the event, and the invocation was given by Rev. Van Dale Hudson of Trinity Free Will Baptist Church.

Following a drill team exercise by the D. H. Conley JROTC, Ms. Alice Keene of the Pitt County Community School officially opened the games and led the athletes in the Special Olympics oath.

Competition categories included events in the tennis and softball throw, running long jump, standing broad jump, the 50 meter dash, 200 meter run, 400 meter run and relay, frisbee events, plastic pin bowling, toss, crawl and the triathlon.

Competition continued through the day with a break for lunch provided by the St. Peter's Women Club, Trinity F.W.B. Church and McDonald's.

Special Olympics is the world's largest program of athletic competition, sports training and recreational activities for the mentally handicapped.

The Greenville Special Olympics is now in its seventh year and is supported solely by contributions from Greenville and Pitt County organizations — these sponsors include McDonald's, Pitt County Association for Retarded Citizens, H. Asks Help For Chowan

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Saying that North Carolina has carried the brunt of the battle to clean up and preserve the Chowan River, Gov. Jim Hunt Thursday asked the State of Virginia and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency for their help on the project.

Hunt sent a letter to Virginia Gov. John Dalton asking for his help in clean-up efforts on the river.

Hunt said in a letter to EPA Administrator Douglas Costle that 75 percent of the river basin lies in Virginia.

"We have no way, other than negotiations between the two states, tried to influence Virginia discharges," Hunt said in the letter.

"A positive attack on the pollution problem will not result from a business-as-usual approach. We need to do more to clean up the Chowan. We need to have an approach to restoring this river that all of us can point to with pride. We need your help."

Hunt asked Costle:

—To appoint an audit team to review North Carolina's plans for the river.

—To evaluate Virginia's programs for reducing nutrient inflow into North Carolina.

—To do whatever is possible to help in the clean-up project, including technical assistance, grants and enforcement.

Because of pollution in the river, Hunt said, the fishing industry is down by as much as 80 percent.

Aycock Pupils On Field Trip

Students in Ms. Faye Creegan's and Mrs. Pat Shepard's Social Studies/Language Arts Classes at Aycock are away on their annual field trip to Washington, D. C., April 17 and 18.

The annual ninth grade Social Studies Class field trip to Charleston, S. C., is scheduled for May 1-3.

Earth Day, when the Earth Science classes have special project displays, will be held on Tuesday, April 22 in their classrooms.

National Library Week was celebrated at the Aycock library/media center through posters and displays this week, April 13-19.

Another field trip, that of Ms. Lib Elks' classes to the Outer Banks, will take place May 2.

Cleveland Firm Building In N.C.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Euclid Inc. of Cleveland, Ohio, will build a new processing and distribution center in Monroe for industrial and manufactured products, Gov. Jim Hunt said Thursday.

Euclid, a leading manufacturer of off-road haulers, is a subsidiary of Daimler-Benz AG, which produces Mercedes Benz cars.

R.E. Kiedel, a vice president of Euclid, said the facility will serve the East and South. He said the site was picked because it is close to ocean shipping and wide-bodied jet service.

Company officials did not disclose how much property they will buy, the cost of construction or number of persons to be employed.
