Anderson Will Race As An Independent

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. John B. Anderson of Illinois dropped out of the race for the Republican presidential nomination today and announced he would run as an independent candidate "unfettered by party positions."

"I have chosen this course of action because it is now clear that I cannot attain a majority of the delegates who will be attending the Republican National Convention in July," Anderson said.

While he will remain a Republican, Anderson said he is convinced there is enough voter dissatisfaction with President Carter and the Republican front-runner, Ronald Reagan, to allow him to become the first independent candidate ever to win a presidential election.

His first campaign trip as an independent will begin Saturday with stops in New York City, Washington, Atlanta, West Virginia, Detroit, Lansing, Mich., and Boston.

In a prepared statement, Anderson said he was releasing all convention delegates pledged to support him at the GOP convention in Detroit this summer. In his 10-month campaign as a Republican, Anderson had gained only 57 delegate votes, trailing Reagan and George Bush, and had never won a primary.

But of those Republicans who have backed him so far, he said, "I am inviting their continued support of me and my independent candidacy."

He acknowledged there are serious legal obstacles that could prevent him from getting his name on the ballot in some states for the November general election.

But Anderson said he is confident the obstacles will be overcome and that "I will remain as an independent candidate through Election Day."

Anderson noted that some public opinion polls show he would receive between 18 percent and 21 percent of the vote if the election were held today, with Carter and Reagan splitting the rest.

Anderson said half the American voters know little about him.

"I can reach out and touch those people," he said, "and that is where my campaign will succeed."

Anderson said his campaign will return $307,000 in federal matching funds which have not yet been spent and that henceforth his campaign will be financed with private contributions. As of March 31, according to a report filed recently with the Federal Election Commission, Anderson had raised $5 million and spent $4.47 million on his GOP campaign.

Despite his inability to attract enough Republican votes to become a serious challenger to Reagan, Anderson said the reasons that led him initially to run for the White House "have been reinforced."

In advance of the announcement, one Anderson adviser said the congressman would conduct a "very prudent" campaign that will be "a quiet, reasonable building process" designed so he will not "peak too early."

During almost 20 years in the House as a Republican, Anderson's politics have shifted from conservative to moderate.

Robert Strauss, Carter's national campaign chairman, said Wednesday that he thought an Anderson independent candidacy would hurt the president more than the Republican nominee. He said he didn't think such a candidacy was "a useful exercise."

Reagan and his major GOP challenger, George Bush, played down the impact of an independent race in a debate Wednesday night, with Bush saying he didn't think it would "amount to much."

The first major concern for Anderson's campaign as an independent is getting his name on the ballot in all 50 states.

Hundreds Attend Annual Fellowship Club Session

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

GRIFTON — Gov. Jim Hunt headed the list of several hundred people who attended the 58th annual meeting of the John Pierce Fellowship Club at Camp Contentment, on the banks of Contentment Creek near here yesterday.

Pitt County Manager Reginald Gray, president of the club for the past year, presided over the meeting and introduced the officials and candidates who attended.

Gov. Hunt, in a brief talk, said, "I can't tell you how proud I am to be here. I wouldn't even think of running for governor unless I came to the John B. Pierce Fellowship."

"If I don't win the primary," Hunt said, "I'll be working for Bob Scott as hard as I can," emphasizing that in his opinion, all offices should be held by Democrats.

Meg Scott, daughter of former Gov. Bob Scott, who opposes Hunt for the Democratic nomination for governor in the May primary, said Scott was unable to attend the session because of previous engagements. However, she said she would suggest to her father that if he is elected governor, "the road coming in here," to Camp Contentment should be paved. "It is really dusty," she noted.

Henry Oglesby of Grifton, administrative assistant to the late Congressman Herbert Bonner, gave a brief outline of the history of the club.

According to Oglesby, the first meeting of the group was held at Peel's Beach, on the Pamlico River below Washington. Fifty years ago, he continued, "Raymond Turnage bought this farm," now owned by Harry Stillman. "Since that time, it's been here."

Nick Weaver, representing Sen. Robert Morgan attended the session, as did First District Congressman Walter Jones.

Other office holders and candidates attending the fellowship club meeting included: candidate for Commissioner of Insurance Jim Long, incumbent senators Vernon White and Julian Allbrook as well as hopeful Mark Tipton; House can-

Rule Another Mistrial On Marijuana Charges

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

R Superior Court Judge Robert Rouse Jr. yesterday declared a mistrial in the case of Douglas H. Ross, a suspended Greenville Police Department sergeant charged with possession of marijuana and keeping and maintaining a structure for the storage of a controlled substance.

Ross was arrested after local, state and federal law enforcement agents raided a trailer home owned by Ross and located 100 feet from his house on July 23, 1979 and found four tons of marijuana. Four out-of-state men and Ross' sister-in-law were arrested at the scene. Several other persons, including Ross and his wife Marga, were arrested later.

Ross' case was called for trial in late February. But Judge Elbert S. Peele declared a mistrial after a heavy snowfall interrupted the proceedings for several days.

The case was called again for trial Tuesday, and the selection of a jury completed. Testimony in the case began yesterday.

Rouse allowed a defense motion for a mistrial late yesterday after Isaac Edwards, a special agent with the State Bureau of Investigation testified that when he entered the Ross house to conduct a search, Mrs. Ross produced $1,000 in $100 bills from a desk, as well as a large amount of money from a safe located in a closet, and handed it to him.

Defense attorney Milton C. Williamson objected and Judge Rouse instructed the jury to disregard the testimony about how Mrs. Ross helped locate the money.

Williamson then moved for a mistrial, saying that even though the jury had been instructed to disregard the testimony, it would be difficult for them to put it out of their minds and would prejudice Ross' case.

Rouse, in announcing his decision for a mistrial, told the jury that a wife is not compelled to testify against her husband and that in his opinion, the law also applies to actions taken by a wife, indicating that the testimony put Mrs. Ross in the position of indirectly implicating her husband.

In the first trial, Edwards testified that $1,000 in $100 bills was confiscated from a desk and $4,000 was confiscated from the safe, but did not say that Mrs. Ross handed him the money.

Ross, 48, has been a member of the police department here for 21 years. He was suspended after SBI agents arrested him July 25.

Judge Removes Sheriff

HENDERSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Superior Court Judge John Jolly today ordered Washington County Sheriff Robert Sawyer removed from office.

Jolly, holding court in Hendersonville, based his decision on testimony heard earlier this month during hearings in Plymouth and New Bern.

Sawyer, a 32-year veteran law-enforcement officer, was accused in a petition filed by District Attorney William Griffin of failing to perform the duties of his office.

The removal petition also accused the sheriff of using county-owned equipment such as his patrol car for personal purposes; allowing his wife to drive the patrol car and to serve official court papers for him; releasing prisoners before they had served their terms; and calling deputies off investigations.

He had been suspended earlier pending a decision on that petition.

His lawyer, former Superior Court Judge Perry Martin, maintained that Sawyer never acted in malice, although he may have made good-faith mistakes.

Sources Say Hostage Diplomats Could Be Released On Tuesday

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) —

The 16 diplomats held hostage in the Dominican Republic's embassy for two months may be freed by Tuesday, their 63rd day in captivity, say informed sources who report agreement is near between the guerrillas and the Colombian government.

The last major hurdle to the release of the hostages was cleared Wednesday when the guerrillas dropped their demand that at least seven leaders of their organization, Movement 19, be freed from Colombian jails, the sources said.

There is still no agreement on just how the seven and about 300 other alleged guerrillas will be tried by the government, the informants added. But they said two members of the Inter-American Human Rights Commission who visited the embassy Tuesday promised representatives of their group would attend the trials.

"The intervention by the Inter-American Human Rights Commission has been fundamental in pushing the negotiations forward," said one high-ranking government official.

President Julio Cesar Turbay's office in a statement issued after Wednesday's negotiations between the government and the guerrilla representative said "several points were cleared up" but did not elaborate. There was no comment from the guerrillas.

Another negotiating session was scheduled today, the 58th day of confinement for U.S. Ambassador Diego Asencio and the other 15 diplomats.

The sources said two other items in addition to the trial procedure remain to be settled: the amount of a ransom to be paid and arrangements for safe conduct out of the country for the 20 or more guerrillas who seized the embassy during a reception Feb. 27.

The ransom is not expected to be a problem, the informants said. The guerrillas at first demanded $50 million but have come down to $5 million. Two Colombian businessmen believed to be representing some of the 14 countries with diplomats in the embassy are reported offering $2.2 million. The leader of the guerrillas said last week that the amount was not important because they do not want to appear to be mercenaries.

Confront Loss Of Food Stamps

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — With federal food-stamp money rapidly running out, state officials are making plans to try to see that more than 200,000 families in the state are fed during June.

U.S. Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland has notified North Carolina senators and representatives that he will order states to end the food stamp program during the month of June if Congress does not appropriate additional funds for the program by May 15.

A number of top officials have expressed skepticism that Congress will act in time.

All the federal money for the program will be spent by June 1, federal officials have estimated. The program costs $20 million a month in North Carolina alone, or an average of $1,200 a year for each of the 200,000 recipient families.

The state Department of Human Resources, which administers the program in North Carolina, has begun notifying county commissioners, social service officials and supermarkets in the state's 100 counties that it expects at least a two-week cutoff in the stamps.

June Milby, spokesman for the department, said Wednesday that the state is advising county officials to establish local task forces in their counties "to make certain people do not go hungry."

The state is suggesting that local task forces establish "food banks" or food distribution centers in local supermarkets and grocery stores where people who were using food stamps could get food.

The food would be donated by private citizens, Ms. Milby said. "We are preparing for the worst while hoping for the best," she said.

Favorable Action On Union Carbide Expansion

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Favorable action was taken by the Joint City-County and Greenville Planning and Zoning Commissions last night on two items involving the proposed expansion plans announced recently by Union Carbide Corp. here.

The joint board voted unanimously to recommend that the City Council amend the Thoroughfare Plan to reflect the deletion of Sedgfield Drive from Evans Street westward to the railroad, a segment that would cut across the plant parking lot if developed ac-ording to the corridor plan.

A spokesman for Union Carbide said that if the Sedgfield section was not deleted from the plan, the expansion project designed to more than double the size of the existing facility would be lost.

City planning director Bobby Roberson said that the proposed Sedgfield corridor was viewed as a minor thoroughfare and deletion of the segment would pose no problems.

Ron Sewell, city engineer, explained that Sedgfield Drive is shown as a dead-end thoroughfare and the city still will have two good east-west connectors to serve motoring needs.

The city board members gave unanimous endorsement to a request by Union Carbide to have some 16.5 acres just north of the plant rezoned from Highway Commercial and R-6 (high density residential) to Unoffensive Industry classification.

Sewell said the acreage involves the expansion plans and lies between Sherwood Acres and the existing plant. Only a small elbow of property zoned for residential use is affected with the major portion involving existing Highway Commercial zoning.

The request will be recommended to the City Council for approval.

In other business on the city agenda, board members voted to recommend that the Council approve the request of the city Planning Department to rezone 1.2 acres on Cemetery Road adjacent to the landfill from RA-20 (residential-agricultural) to R-6.

Staff planner Skip Browder reported that the proposed uses conform to the R-6 classification and no opposition was voiced concerning the rezoning action. Four adjoining property owners were notified of the proposal to rezone, he said.

The board also voted to recommend that the Council approve a request by Ferrell Blount Jr. for rezoning 4.2 acres on the west side of Verdant Drive across from Kings Row Apartments from RA-20 to R-6. The property adjoins R-6 zoning to the south, it was pointed out.

Action on a request by E. R. Lewis Construction Co. Inc. to have 45.4 acres west of the Eastern Bypass and north of the Tar River rezoned from RA-20 to Highway Commercial was continued for 30 days by the joint board.

Roberson said that the planning staff had some reservations about rezoning nearly 50 acres to a commercial designation in view of the fact that a substantial amount of undeveloped commercial property already exists. Some of the area should possibly be in the flood plain, he said, and the staff would like to study the flood plain area, as well as ingress and egress to the property.

Clifton Everett Jr., attorney speaking on behalf of the petitioners, said that the company would like to get

CREWEL KIT NOT RECEIVED

I ordered a crewel embroidery kit from Welch Foods Inc., a special order, the day before the offer expired, Jan. 31, 1980. My check, dated Jan. 30, for $4.14 has been cashed, but I have never received the kit. I've written, but my letters come back saying the post office box has been closed. I wrote the Welch's company, but my letter was never answered. I prefer a refund at this point, because I've already bought the same kit. But, if that's not possible, I will just use the kit, if I can get it, for a gift. C. B.

Hotline asked you to obtain the phone number of the Welch Foods Company from Sheppard Library. This you did. We then called and talked to Carolyn Bills in the Customer Service Department, who gave us an address you could use to write and tell the company your problem. She suggested that you enclose a copy of your cancelled check and state whether you want a refund or the kit. She said she isn't sure whether she can get you a kit at this point, since the offer has long since expired, but, if not, she said, you will get a full refund. The address, in case any of our other readers need it, is Carolyn Bills, Welch Foods Inc., Westfield, N. Y. 14787.

DEAR ABBY: I am enclosing a card I came across in my doctor's office. It advertises an organization called MTC (Make Today Count) dedicated to improving the quality of life of those who have been touched by serious illness.

I personally have Hodgkin's disease, but due to the excellent care I have received from my doctor, family and others, I have felt no need for help in coping with it. However, others among your readers may not be as lucky as I, so I am enclosing the 10 pointers entitled "How to Live with Illness." I hope you feel it merits space in your column.

DEAR MR. S.: I do, and here they are:

How to Live with Illness
By Orville Kelly

1. Talk about the illness. If it's cancer, call it cancer. You can't make life normal again by trying to hide what is wrong.
2. Accept death as a part of life. It is!
3. Consider each day as another day of life, a gift

4. Realize that life is never going to be perfect. It wasn't before, and it won't be now.
  5. Pray! It isn't a sign of weakness. It's a sign of strength.
  6. Learn to live with your illness instead of considering yourself dying from it. We are all dying in some manner.
  7. Put your friends and relatives at ease. If you don't want pity, don't ask for it.
  8. Make all practical arrangements for funerals, wills, etc., and make certain your family understands them.
  9. Set new goals; realize your limitations. Sometimes the simple things of life become the most enjoyable.
  10. Discuss your problems with your family as they occur. Include the children if possible. After all, your problem is not an individual one.

Refund Errors Said Remedied

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A programming error that led to the issuance of $325,000 in extra Medicaid refund checks "has been corrected and won't happen again," a spokesman for the state Human Resources Department said.

June Milby, director of public relations for the department, said this week that a programmer who left state government in March was responsible for the mistake. About 800 checks of up to $800 each were involved, she said.

About $200,000 of the money had been returned by the end of last week, she said.

The error occurred when a programmer punched in "197-" instead of updating the entry to 1980, she said. As a result, checks were made out for monthly payments dating back to the early 1970s, when the Medicaid program began in North Carolina.

Ms. Milby said the first checks were sent out March 7 and the error was discovered March 14, when the state received the bill. She said letters requesting the return of the money were sent the health-care insurance program for people aged 65 and over and for the disabled, is divided into parts A and B. Part A includes no cost for those who qualify but provides only essential medical coverage. Part B, for which there is an $8.70 monthly fee, provides additional coverage for medical bills such as physicians fees, x-rays and surgery.

If the checks or an explanation of what happened to the check are not returned by the individuals who received them, Ms. Milby said, the recipients could be subject to an investigation by the attorney general's office.

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A predawn fire at a University of Michigan dormitory forced the evacuation of 800 students and left two residents hospitalized with injuries, authorities said.

The fire, which damaged 16 rooms in the dorm, broke out early Wednesday in a trash receptacle in Prescott House on the East Quadrangle. Michigan's classes ended the day before, with final exams to begin Saturday.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Researchers are finally getting down to some real serious studies on the post-natal depression. Do you know what they've discovered?

You're not supposed to have a good time after the baby is born.

It's something a lot of us suspected, but were never really sure about.

My post-natal depression was longer than most. I went into it seven months before the baby came and it lasted until the kid was 17. Then it began to taper off.

Had it not been for "As the World Turns" and pacifiers, I'd have slipped into humming and braiding my hair. Every day I'd put a pacifier into whatever part of his face was open, get a plate full of buttered noodles and sit in front of the TV set and watch someone who was worse off than I was.

Every time I went to the pediatrician, I'd try to search the faces of the other mothers for some sign of exhaustion. I only saw one mother "break," and that was when her son, a real hellion, had skated across the carpet "shocking" everyone with his static electricity, rearranged the furniture, licked the drinking fountain, taken a book away from another child, and finally submerged his hand in the aquarium. She just sat there, numb, and finally said softly, "Think piranha."

Another rare moment of honesty that suggested motherhood was less than perfect came one Mother's Day in church when a new priest looked out and said to the mothers, "I know what you're thinking. You're tired. You feel pulled in nine different directions. You think no one understands you and you're saying to yourself, 'Mary and her one kid. Big deal!'"

According to the new theory, ambivalent feelings are perfectly natural. It doesn't mean you love your child any less, it means you're realistic about the demands on your personal life.

A new mother in Colorado wrote recently about her two children, ages two years and three months. She put the toddler on a potty seat so she could bathe the baby. She lathered up the baby when the meter man appeared. The dog suddenly went into heat. The phone rang. The toddler jumped up and overturned the potty on the new shag rug. He then stuck his head in between the washer and the wall to see what the meter reader was doing and got stuck. The baby got cold and began screaming. Strange dogs began running through the house. She moved the washer and her son emerged bleeding. "What would you do?" she asked. "I'd do now what I should have done years ago... cry!"

Homemaker's Haven By Sue B. May Pitt Home Agent

From time to time, most families have some special cleaning problems to arise in the home. The ones discussed below are ones that we receive questions about quite often.

Disguise The Scratches In Your Wood Furniture

The life and beauty of furniture can be lengthened by good treatment. If your wood furniture has been marred with scratches, you can do something about it and keep the furniture looking beautiful. Those scratches that have not penetrated the finish can be repaired in a number of ways. Sometimes a simple application of almost any furniture polish will hide the scar; or an application of paste wax with very fine steel wool (grade 4/0), rubbing gently with the grain and buffing will take care of the situation. If the scratch still remains, try one of the following: coloring crayon or paste shoe polish of a color to blend with the furniture; iodine that has darkened with age to conceal minor scratches on dark woods like brown or cherry mahogany; fresh iodine for use on red finished mahogany; or nut meat from black walnut, pecan or brazil nut. Regardless of the method used for removing the scratch, the wax around the blemished area should be removed first.

Soot Removal From Wood

To thoroughly clean wood surfaces of soot, saturate cloths with odorless mineral spirits. Remember that mineral spirits are flammable. Work in a small area at a time and change cloths frequently during the process. As soot collects change cloths. Use a circular motion in wiping. During the final cleaning wipe with the wood grain. When no soot appears on cleaning cloth, you have done your job.

Cleaning Brick

Brick is popular as both exterior and interior finishes because it requires little attention. An occasional cleaning is necessary at times however. If water, a household detergent, and a stiff brush do not loosen the soil, try a solution of one to two ounces of tri-sodium phosphate (TSP) in a gallon of water. Be sure that the solution is thoroughly rinsed from the brick, or it may leave a white residue. TSP may be found in hardware stores and purchased in pound packages. It is a good idea to use rubber gloves when using any strong cleanser.

Cleaning Fiberglass Tubs

Fiberglass is softer than the old porcelain bathroom fixtures, and it scratches easily. With frequent cleaning, the bathtub ring can be removed with a little dishwashing liquid and water. For more difficult rings, there are two things you might try: 1. Apply a paste of dishwasher detergent (for electric dishwasher) and water and 2. Scrub the tub with liquid water softener.

Removing Animal Stains

Blot up the excess liquid absorbing as much of the moisture as possible with clean white tissue, paper towel or cloth. Pre-test in a hidden area by applying a solution of 1-part white vinegar and 1-part water. Blot with white tissue counting to ten. Check tissue for any color bleeding from carpet. If no bleeding appears, proceed in applying solution to stained area. Follow by applying several applications of clean, lukewarm water. Blot up excess liquid and allow the spot to dry. If the stains remains, apply a detergent solution. Reapply the vinegar solution and allow to remain on the stain for about fifteen minutes. Work from edge toward center when absorbing moisture.

Somehow They'll Cope

Blue mold might not be a dread disease in the usual sense to humans but it strikes fear in the hearts of tobacco farmers.

Now the tobacco plant disease has definitely been spotted in Pitt County.

Pitt Agricultural Extension Chairman Leroy James said the fungus disease has been found on a farm in the Calico community. James said the farmer had been treating for the disease and it is a mild case, but, he reported, conditions have been ideal for blue mold's spread.

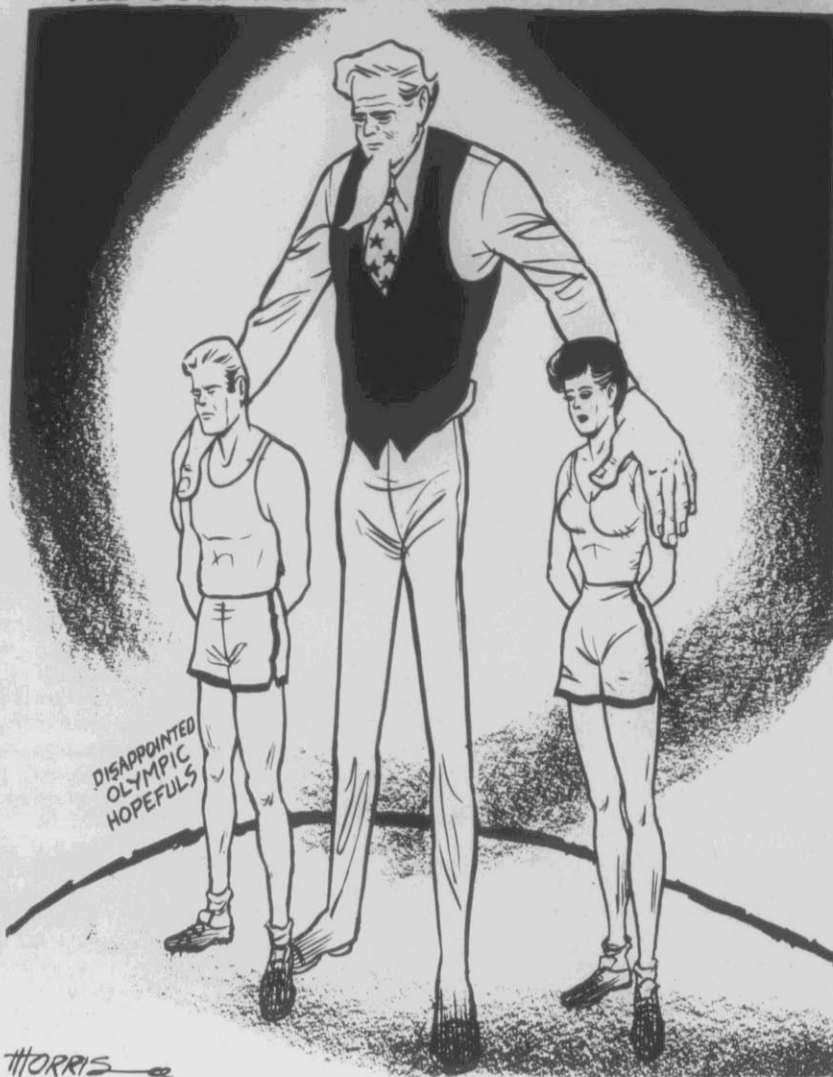

"It can spread up to 200 miles with these cool nights and with this wind," James said. "The wet weather we've experienced will contribute to the spreading problem also."

There are ways to treat for blue mold and James says the disease is not new. "It has been with us a long time," he noted.

Blue mold is just one of the many problems that tobacco farmers face.

Hopefully it won't be bad this year, but somehow they cope.

ALL GOLD MEDAL WINNERS IN OUR HEARTS!

Some Look To Mondale

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — A widening circle of powerful Democratic politicians and financial contributors is talking about rejecting both President Carter and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and instead nominating Vice President Walter F. Mondale for president.

Their plans are based on the still unlikely prospect that a succession of Carter losses to Kennedy in primaries will trigger a stampede of pledged Carter delegates away from the president. That could create a climate at Madison Square Garden in August where there are insufficient delegates to nominate either Carter or Kennedy.

Moreover, there is a desire voiced increasingly among Democrats for an alternative to both Carter and Kennedy, which lately has focused on Mondale as the best bet to heal the party's wounds. In the Northeast, the talk often specifically mentions Gov. Hugh Carey of New York as Mondale's running mate.

Reagan's VP
The rise of Sen. Howard Baker and the fall of Rep. Jack Kemp as vice presidential prospects might be checked by this obscure fact: Ronald Reagan is a regular reader of Human Events, the Washington-based conservative weekly.

Baker is now the overwhelming favorite of Republican politicians, including Reagan's own staffers, to become Reagan's running mate. They write off Kemp as too controversial and not prestigious enough. But Human Events in issue after issue praises Kemp's tax-reduction plans and scourges Baker on a variety of issues (particularly the Panama Canal treaties, creation of the Department of Education and welfare reform).

"Our best hope," one conservative activist told us, "is that we know for an absolute fact that Reagan reads Human Events and reads it carefully." Such activists are more anti-Baker than pro-Kemp. They will find acceptable several other vice presidential prospects being seriously considered — Sen. Richard Lugar of Indiana, ex-Treasury Secretary William Simon and ex-Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld.

Propaganda From Cuba
Anti-U.S. propaganda broadcasts by Cuba and the Soviet Union now blanket Latin America, the Caribbean and southern regions of the U.S., dwarfing Washington's own Voice of America (VOA) broadcasts and raising major worries in the U.S. government.

Carter administration officials are just catching on to the potential political significance of the 18-hour-a-day Cuban and Soviet broadcasts (both using transmitters in Cuba). These officials are considering a major increase in VOA broadcasts as competition. But the Cuban-Soviet propaganda is putting roots deep down, particularly in the leftist Caribbean states of Grenada and Jamaica; both are closely allied with communist Cuba.

VOA now broadcasts to several countries in Latin America a grand total of only 38 hours daily. All is in Spanish, bypassing English-speaking Grenada and Jamaica. Furthermore, the Cuban stations are considerably more powerful than VOA's best, a 50-kilowatt station at Marathon on the Florida Keys.

Reagan's State Department
Despite years of attacks on striped-pants U.S. diplomats, probable Republican presidential nominee Ronald Reagan intends to beef up the State Department as his frontline eyes, ears and hands in foreign policy.

If elected, Reagan tells intimates, he will downgrade the National Security Council (NSC) bureaucracy — which now functions much like a little State Department — and pack the actual State Department with right-thinking Reaganites.

Reagan means to use selected foreign service officers, not political appointees, at working levels up to deputy assistant secretaries — the diplomats who do pick-and-shovel reporting and analyzing for policymakers on the seventh floor. Reagan has backed down from the word "housecleaning" he once used in describing what he would do at the State Department if elected. What he meant, he now says, is there are "many good men and women" in the foreign service who could carry out Reagan's foreign policy if they regained authority from the NSC staff.

Snubbing Strauss
Although Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's political advisors were overjoyed to win endorsement from Philadelphia's Mayor William Green, they were less than happy about the Green organization's rough treatment of Carter campaign manager Robert S. Strauss.

Invitations to the Philadelphia City Democratic Committee's annual Jefferson-Jackson Day Dinner April 16 were turned down by both President Carter (self-exiled to the Rose Garden) and Vice President Walter Mondale (attending a White House state dinner).

Moderation May Be Here

Even as March economic figures showed a major increase in consumer prices, there still was a feeling that tight business conditions were beginning to put the brakes on inflation.

The government index showed an increase of 1.4 percent for consumer prices — nearly an 18 percent annual rate. The figures are behind actual business conditions, however, and high interest rates and worker layoffs tell us that recession is a very real possibility.

A slow down in business may bring about a moderation of inflation, and there is reason to feel that the process is underway.

Tax-Updating Lag

By JAMES J. KILPARTICK

Into Hands Of Judges

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — It would seem clear upon the wall, county governments in North Carolina would be moving with haste to change the currently disruptive property revaluation system.

Every eight years all real estate values are updated for local property tax purposes. Such a long delay in the process, coupled with raging inflation, produces property values double — even triple — what they had been on the books.

And that is producing angry citizens, confrontations, and tax-fighting organizations in numerous areas of the state.

Strangely enough, state law already is on the books not only permitting local governments to update property values more often than every eight years, but requiring that the task be done every four years.

Despite the four-year requirement of the law, not a single one of North Carolina's 100 counties has moved to change present foot-dragging procedures.

Why Delay?
Several specialists in the state's Revenue Department and the General Assembly point to several different considerations.

First, perhaps, is the unavailability of qualified experts to handle revaluation. Private firms usually do this job, and they are booked solid. Using outside contractors serves different purposes: it takes local officials off the hook somewhat since they can point to the "outside experts" as the ones responsible for the valuation increases; and it is cheaper at the outset to hire someone to do the job rather than making the initial investment in hiring and training local employees.

Secondly, there are serious political considerations for local officials mulling a change. Updating property values more regularly will mean that the tax base climbs steadily, producing more income with the same tax rate. Savvy citizens aware of this may prefer that revaluation be delayed because this gives a lower tax payment for some period of time, and then the eight-year increase can be offset by depreciated values on certain property.

Another political problem is that most officials recognize that pressure will be strong for a "truth in taxation" proviso when revaluation schedules are changed. That requirement will mean simply that local governments must inform the public of the exact tax rate needed on the increased property base in order to raise the same amount of money raised the previous year, and any increase in that rate would have to be explained. Local officials who use revaluation to ease the tax take upward without informing the public will resist that measure strongly.

Real Price
Additionally, more frequent updating of property values will require open and honest filing with local deeds' offices the actual price involved in every real estate transaction. Currently, such records usually state the sell for "One Dollar and other considerations..." and the tax stamps attached frequently fall far short of the actual transaction. Only if honest market value data is maintained can property values be upgraded properly.

Finally, there is the matter of training personnel, hiring staff, installing computerized systems, and the dozens of other tasks associated with regular revaluation of property for tax purposes.

This will involve a considerable investment at the start and despite arguments that the cost will eventually be recovered from savings

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Supreme Court heard arguments a few days ago in what could prove to be the most significant case of this term. It presents an unusually sensitive issue for judges to decide — for the case turns upon the power of judges.

On the surface, Harris vs. McRae involves only the question of tax-paid abortions for poor women on Medicaid. The underlying question is far more important: Can a federal judge order tax funds appropriated for a particular purpose, despite the explicit command of Congress that tax funds not be appropriated for that purpose?

I cannot recall a case in which the legislative and judicial branches have been pitted in quite this kind of confrontation. From time to time the high court tells Congress what it may not do. It is a very different matter when the judiciary undertakes to tell Congress what it must do, and that is the case here.

In this regard, the issue of abortion, as such, is almost irrelevant. Back in 1976, after a bitter fight, Congress agreed upon an amendment to the act creating Medicaid. Sponsored by Congressman Henry Hyde of New York, the amendment provided in unmistakable terms that "no funds contained in this act shall be used to perform abortions except where the life of the mother would be endangered if the fetus were carried to term."

The Hyde amendment was modified slightly in 1977 and modified again in October of 1979, but the prohibitory language was not changed: "None of the funds contained in this act shall be appropriated for..."

Cora McRae, a New York woman under Medicaid, brought suit in September 1976 to challenge the Hyde amendment. She was in the first trimester of her pregnancy and she wanted an abortion at public expense. Nearly three-and-a-half years of litigation ensued. She and the co-plaintiffs who joined her raised a dozen constitutional objections, but this was their main contention — that the Hyde limitation violated the principle of equal protection embodied in the due process clause of the Fifth Amendment.

This past January a U.S. district court agreed: The statutory distinction between medically necessary abortions and other medically necessary services bears no rational relationship to any legitimate governmental interest. The court then ordered federal funds released for Medicaid abortions. This week the case reached the Supreme Court.

The key constitutional provision is as clear as spring water: "No money shall be drawn from the Treasury but in consequence of appropriations made by law." More than 200 members of the House and 15 members of the Senate have intervened in an effort to preserve their power of the purse. They are contending strenuously that only the Congress, and not the judiciary, can direct that money be drawn from the Treasury for a particular purpose. To condone such a judicial power "must inevitably substitute judges for legislators."

The intervenors offer a persuasive analogy. The act appropriating funds for the State Department in 1978 contained language identical to that in the Hyde amendment: "None of the funds appropriated in this title shall be used...for the promotion, direct or indirect, of the principle or doctrine of one world government." It scarcely could be seriously contended that a U.S. judge, in an appropriate proceeding, could hold the prohibition in violation of free speech and direct that money be drawn from the Treasury to promote world government instead.

At state and local levels, judges often have effectively compelled appropriations of public funds. Court-ordered busing of school children for purposes of racial balance provides an example. In other instances, courts have ordered public funds spent for better jails or for better courtroom facilities. But never, so far as I know, has a federal court ordered a forbidden appropriation converted into a commanded appropriation. This is a new level of judicial usurpation, and it ought to be halted now.

To the editor:

Reporter John Fialka of the "Washington Star" tells us about the real combat uniforms. Just as the Navy's totally inadequate budget has to be spent to accommodate women at sea, the Army, which lacks so much as a 30-day supply of fuel and ammunition, must squander its budget on the design of unisex flak jackets and flameproof suits, so that women can enjoy President Carter's equal opportunity to be shot and burned.

The Army has to redesign its field packs so that neither the men's nor the women's shoulder straps would cross the breast area. At present, in President Carter's unisex Army, women are expected to leap with full packs from a truck which results in 200 pounds pressure on the breast. Other Armies don't afflict themselves with this problem, but the United States Army is going to solve it by making sure that the men don't injure their breasts either. Even Dutch soldiers with their long golden locks are going to laugh, during NATO maneuvers, at American men whose pack straps won't hurt their bosoms, and whose unisex flak jackets are proportioned to accommodate Brunhilde!

The more you go into it, the more totally ludicrous it becomes. And yet, it is a matter of life and death for young Americans, male and female — and for the nation which our Armed Forces are supposed to protect.

To the editor:

In view of the controversial meetings of Mar. 20 and Apr. 17 of the Pitt County Board of Health concerning sex education, I am responding as a concerned constituent of Pitt County and as a health care provider. The focal point of the controversy seems resultant of conflicting moral and religious values with opponents feeling that sex education provided through the school stimulates increased sexual activity. There is no factual basis for this misconception. However, teenage pregnancy rates have risen in the past decade, indicating that education more directed toward the teenager's needs is needed.

Unfortunately, the complex needs of the adolescent seem lost in this controversy. This is a time of identity searching, coping with body image changes, adapting to an excessive physical energy level, and attempting to accept the responsibilities of impending young adulthood. Because sexual development is a key factor inherent in the teen years, the sex education issue is a vitally important one. However, to focus more acutely on the total needs of the adolescent, I feel that a more accurate concept is family life education and planning which incorporates development from birth throughout the life span. Certainly, sex education is an integral part of this concept, just as sex is an integral part of human relationships.

I am not suggesting that parents be excluded from the education of their children; rather, that parents become active participants in family life education through increased self-learning. As expressed by teenagers age 12 to 18 at the Teenage Sexuality Forum sponsored by the Triangle Chapter of NACOG in fall, 1979, lectures on sexual physiology and contraception, while important, are not sufficient. Equal attention must be given to the psychosocial aspects of teenage sexuality, which seems optimally facilitated by sensitive listening and open communication. With the family recognized as a vital institution in our society, should not we promote the same forward growth in family life education that we do in other educational concepts?

Strength For Today

SPIRIT OF THE LORD

We have all occasionally seen the type of person who always appears to be adequate for every situation. While other people are excited, confused, and resentful, he proposes the solution to grave problems which finally results in their being solved in a calm and reasonable manner.

The secret of people of this kind is that they have power in reserve greater than they ever need or use. Such people are calm because they know exactly where they stand on the issues. They are brave because they know that although fools may malign the truth, they can never do real violence to it. Such people have within their hearts a "peace which passeth all understanding."

What is the great power which these people have? We have a variety of answers to this query, but God has one which is all-inclusive: "Not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit, saith the Lord." Elisha Douglass

The 'Anatomy Of Leadership'

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — President Jimmy Carter has a splendid, rational mind — analytical, logical and observational. But he has a defect too, and it undermines his ability as a leader. So says a student of leadership.

"It is a defect that is seldom offset by experience," said Prof. Eugene Jennings, author of "Anatomy of Leadership," a 1960 study of leadership from the days of the ancient Romans to modern times.

The professor, who spends much of his time counseling top executives of major corporations, calls the weakness "maze dullness," a term he draws from laboratory observations of rats in an experimental maze.

It is characterized, he says, by a low level of intuition, in which lab animals show little ability to sense the route to the cheese and instead race down dead ends where, time after time, they are shocked. They fail to learn from experience.

"Jimmy Carter can analyze and break problems into parts, and his conclusions follow logically from premises," said Jennings. "But he lacks the ability to synthesize the parts into a creative solution. He can take apart, but he cannot put together in a new orientation."

Intuition is the missing ingredient, says the professor, who besides advising executives and teaching graduate-level courses at Michigan State has written many books on executive mobility and leadership.

Jennings maintains that "In the best business or government leaders the rational mind is challenged by the intuitive mind, enabling them to reach conclusions even with insufficient facts."

"The intuitive and rational minds constantly work against each other in a harmonious set of checks and balances," he states. "It is seen time after time in successful corporate executives."

Those who have it, he says, can sense their way toward solutions and feel confident about their course. And their confidence is contagious. But those lacking intuition, he has observed, create among others a feeling that they are not masters of events. And for good reason, says Jennings. They are lost in a maze; their followers expect shocks.

Intuition is untaught. It is the ability to trust senses, hunches, feelings, says Jennings. It is the basis of vision and creativity. It is vital to art, he says, and more important to power than is logic.

Candidates Asked Views At Coffee Hour Session

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
The New Generation Bill, ERA and nuclear power were the three issues on which Chamber of Commerce coffee hour participants wanted candidates for the North Carolina Senate and House to tell their views this morning.

On New Generation, Mark Tipton, Democratic candidate for Senate, said he believes the intent of the bill was good, but "there is some awfully strong language that needs to be deleted."

Sen. Vernon White, 12 years an incumbent in the Senate, said there are certain portions that need to be amended.

Ed Warren, candidate for the House, said he believes the bill represents a major problem in the state now—the state and federal government's usurping of local power. "They mandate programs for counties to administer and then don't always give us any money to run them," Warren, now a Pitt County Commissioner, commented.

Democratic House candidate, David Bosley, 10 years mayor of Grifton, said New Generation is a good example of the state's trying to do things for people. "Government has got to stop trying to do things and just create the atmosphere for people to do things for themselves," he said.

"I oppose it strongly," Dr. Henry Aldridge, Republican candidate for the House, said.

"We've got to repeal it and start all over," Republican senatorial candidate Herb Lee said.

Sen. Julian Allsbrook, incumbent in the Senate since 1935, told how the bill was kept in his Judicial I committee for six weeks. He then talked about how children in Russia are reared by the state till they are seven years old supposedly so the women can be freed to work in fields and factories, but actually, in his opinion, so the government can control the children's minds.

Incumbents White and Allsbrook both said they are against ERA and have voted against it during previous sessions of the General Assembly. "I was head of the committee that rewrote the North Carolina constitution. It provides for equality for all, so we don't need it. With it...we'll have the federal government trying to tend to more of our business in this state," Allsbrook said.

Tipton said he is "for it, but open-minded."

Warren said he is "against it, but open-minded."

Mark Owens, candidate for the House said he is "undecided, but if I had to vote right now, I'd have to vote against it."

Aldridge said he is "for equal rights, but against the amendment."

The twin Grayiel brothers, George and Joseph, both of Tarboro and both running for Senate, said they are in favor of the ERA. "The U. S. Constitution provided for equality," George said, "but we still had slaves up until 1865."

Incumbent Rep. Sam D. Bundy was not present. His regrets in a letter giving his opinions on some of the issues was read by Coffee Hour Task Force Chairman Maxine Brown. He said in the letter that he is opposed to ERA. He did not comment on the other two issues questioned.

All the candidates who responded said they are in favor of the use of nuclear power—If the safety needs of waste disposal are worked out. Tipton said he has traveled around the area this week talking to power company officials and others about nuclear power. Bosley commented that two states—Michigan and Louisiana—have already passed legislation prohibiting nuclear waste disposal within their boundaries. "Obviously, if it's to be used, all the states cannot do this. The safeguards have got to be worked out."

Joseph Grayiel, Tipton, Allsbrook, and Owens all commented on the need to further develop and encourage solar energy use.

David Bosley, Sam Bundy, Mark Owens and Ed Warren are seeking Democratic nomination for the two House seats. Henry Aldridge will oppose the two nominees in the November election. Mark Tipton, Vernon White and Julian Allsbrook are opposing one another for the two Senate seats representing Pitt, Martin, Edgecombe and Halifax counties in the May Democratic Primary. George Grayiel, Joseph Grayiel, and Herb Lee are the opponents for the same two seats in the Republican Primary.

held by the Chamber of Commerce this morning. Duffus introduced the candidates to the audience and Brown welcomed the group. (Photo by Susan Quinn) ner that night). When Strauss volunteered as a stand-in, City Democratic Chairman David Glancey said nobody lower than the vice president would do. The decision to bar Strauss was viewed as coming from Mayor Green, Glancey's mentor.

That made the head table at the dinner the exclusive

Rank-and-file Carter supporters present grumbled over the absence of a presidential representative and the rough treatment of Strauss, a former Democratic national chairman and Cabinet member. Privately, some of Kennedy's campaign team considered the snub unnecessary and potentially damaging.

over the present system, many local officials resist the move.

All of which actually comes close to providing the answer to why the counties aren't moving aggressively to change the system; it is as much bureaucratic inertia as anything else.

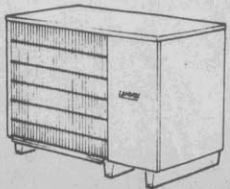

As one insider puts it bluntly: "Taxpayers have much greater respect for the property tax in counties in which they deal with trained professionals who have accurate records and use up-to-date procedures."

Some of those complaints about revaluation may be unwitting criticism of the local government and its tax procedures.

CAR OVERTURNED DURING ACCIDENT — One person was reported injured last night in a three vehicle accident about six miles west of Greenville on U.S. 264. According to Trooper John Brinkley, a car driven by James Clemmons of 200 Courtney Place, Greenville, was headed east and collided nearly head-on with a truck driven by Charles C. Harper, of Walstonburg. The Clemmons vehicle then traveled on to collide with another vehicle registered to Lee & Morgan Roofing Co., of Benson. Brinkley said Clemmons received injuries in the accident and was transported to Pitt Memorial Hospital by members of the Winterville Rescue squad. Brinkley also said both the Clemmons vehicle and the Harper truck were reported a total loss. Investigation into the 7:50 p.m. accident is continuing. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Two Collisions Are Reported

An estimated $1,750 property damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 2:12 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Memorial and Village Drives, involving cars driven by John Jones of Greenville, and William Jones of Greenville.

Damage to the John Jones car was set at $400 while damage to the William Jones auto was placed at $450.

Charlene Haddock of Route 2, Ayden, collided about 4:30 p.m. at the intersection of Tenth and Evans Street.

Cars driven by Eleanor Waters Oneal of 521 Greenville Blvd. and Tina Investigators estimated damage at $300 to the Oneal car and $450 to the Haddock car.

Art Show Plans Set Saturday

The roster of entertainers to be on hand for the annual Sidewalk Art Show on Saturday has been announced.

The annual outdoor show of art opens at 10 a.m. and will end at 4 p.m. It will be held on the sidewalk, yard space and street area adjacent to the Art Center — and in case of rain, in the old Wilkerson Funeral Home building across the street. The schedule of entertainment is:

— 10 a. m. — A puppet show and storytelling time featuring Joe Stines, Children's Librarian at Sheppard Memorial Library.

— 11 a.m. — A performance by the Suzuki Players of Greenville under the direction of Mrs. JoAnn Bath.

— 11:30 a.m. — A performance by "The Curtain Players," a mime troupe from Ayden-Grifton High School, under the direction of Doug Mitchell.

— 12 noon — Old fashioned music by the Greenville

Barbershop Quartet and Chorus.

— 12:30 p.m. — Music by Greenville musicians guitarists and singers Billy and Sandra Stinson, who will be singing songs from their new album, "Merchant's Ship."

— 1 p.m. — A performance by the Greenville Boys' Choir, directed by Tom Hawley.

Throughout the show time, demonstrations will take place in textile art, weaving and framing — and a caricature artist will be on hand to sketch persons wanting a portrait.

A special Children's Studio and Gallery will offer entertainment and an opportunity for children to experiment with various art media.

There is no admission charge for attending the Sidewalk Art Show and the events of entertainment.

Church Introduces Hiring Quotes To End Racism

By
GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
INDIANAPOLIS (AP) —

The predominantly white United Methodist Church, declaring "we have sinned against our sisters and brothers of other races," is introducing hiring quotas for its clergy and lay ministries as part of a drive to wipe out racism in America.

Saying the nation's second largest Protestant denomination has shared in the "racist system in the United States," the church governing conference approved the quota system Wednesday as part of an eight-point program.

The 9.6 million member church is one of the first denominations to follow the example of the National Council of Churches in adopting measures to assure minority representation.

The drive is aimed at wiping out discrimination against American Indians, blacks, Asians, Hispanics and Pacific islanders.

The church governing conference ruled that hiring of non-whites must be done, in proportion to their representation in society, at all levels of clerical and lay work "until...our voluntary performance makes that practice unnecessary."

It also called for national and local church programs to "increase the appreciation of other heritages" among its members and to work for equality in housing, education and medical care for non-whites.

The United Methodist Church, second in size to the 13 million member Southern Baptist Convention, is 95 percent white.

Its quadrennial conference also approved a new confession. It says: "We have sinned against our sisters and brothers of other races in thought, in word and in deed."

Delegates to the meeting, which ends Friday, declared that while racial discrimination has been officially outlawed in the United States, "social, economic and political institutions still discriminate.

"The racist system in the United States today perpetuates the power and control of those of European ancestry," they said.

The church said it has shared in that system, even while believing that "racism is a rejection of the teaching of Jesus Christ" and that all people are "equally valuable in the sight of God."

Coincidentally, a black minister scheduled to speak at a three-day convocation of a United Methodist Church congregation in Laurel, Del., last weekend said he was asked not to attend after the congregation had learned of his race.

The Rev. Randolph Jones, pastor of the Southside Church Center in Philadelphia, said the action "stunned" him. "I know all kinds of racism, but I thought that overt thing was about over."

Jones said the pastor of the rural congregation told him he could not participate because some of the church members "would be upset at having a black in the program."

The 125-member congregation comprises three rural Delaware churches.

Meanwhile, in Indianapolis, delegates awaited a report today from an eight-member group which traveled to Washington to urge President Carter to exercise "patience and restraint" in the Iran crisis.

Camps For Diabetics

The N. C. affiliate of the American Diabetes Association has announced its plans for the 1980 summer sessions.

This year the association will sponsor two two-week sessions—June 15-28 and Aug. 10-23. One hundred campers ranging in age from seven to 15 and coming from several southeastern states will attend each session.

The camp has a medical staff of physicians, nurses, dietitians and medical students from Duke University, Emory University and the University of Miami. "The camp gives the medical community a rare opportunity to learn about children with diabetes," George J. Ellis III, M. D. of Duke University Medical Center said.

Since enrollment is limited to the first 200 campers, applications are taken on a first-come first-served basis, so early application is important. For applications and information write American Diabetes Association, N. C. Affiliate, 4801 E. Independence Blvd., Suite 801-B, Charlotte, N. C. 28212. From within North Carolina only, one may call toll-free 1-800-432-7750.

The camp fee is $300. Contributions will provide camperships to more than half of the children. The gift is tax-deductible.

In addition to the two-week summer camps, many of the 41 local chapters of the Diabetes Association conduct day camps which usually run three to four days. Information about the nearest day camp may be obtained by calling the association.

Finish Checkups On Jetliners

WASHINGTON (AP) — Work has been completed on replacement of some Boeing jetliner hydraulic systems ordered checked as a result of an investigation of faulty valves, the Federal Aviation Administration says.

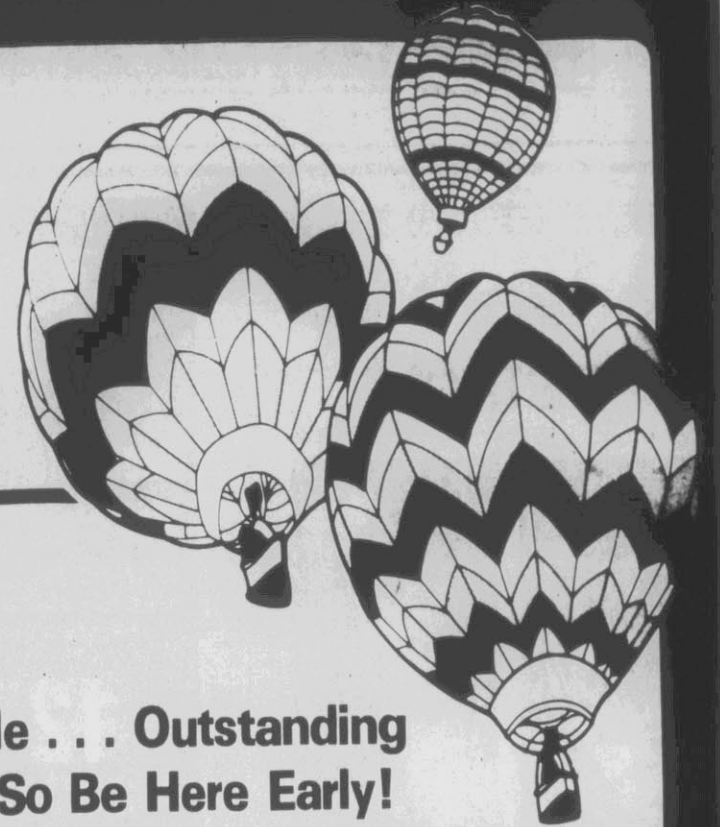

The FAA ordered the checks a month ago after it was determined that primary hydraulic control systems on some Boeing jets were faulty after the aircraft were overhauled by Fornter Engineering and Manufacturing Co. of Glendale, Calif. The FAA said the problems were discovered in ground tests and caused no in-flight problems. There was no estimate of how many aircraft were involved.

'Black Tuna' Drug Gang Members Get Sentences

MIAMI (AP) — Black Tuna gang leader Robert Meinster, who said he prayed he would someday be "a contributing member of society," has been sentenced to 54 years in prison for drug smuggling and ordered to pay a $270,000 fine.

Wednesday, defense attorney Dennis Cogan pictured Meinster as a gentle family man who may have dabbled in marijuana but never harmed anyone.

Prosecutor Dana Biehl shot back that Meinster not only dealt in marijuana but planned to import 600 kilograms of cocaine and 2 million Quaalude pills for U.S. marketing.

"Some family man," Biehl snapped. "Ask some father of some 14-year-old girl in this city what kind of family man he thinks that is." He urged a life term.

Described by the government as the charter member of a gang that once supplied 8 percent of the nation's marijuana, Meinster stood quietly at sentencing.

The 38-year-old was convicted of 10 federal crimes and could have received life for just one count — participating in a "continuing criminal enterprise."

However, prosecutors said the 31 years imposed by U.S. District Judge James Lawrence King under that count amounted to nearly a life sentence since no parole is possible until that portion has been served.

Fellow defendant Randall

Eugene Fisher, 32, drew a 9-year term and a $15,000 fine after FBI agents testified he had cooperated in the investigation of an alleged plot to disrupt the lengthy trial.

Richard Elliott Grant Jr. was sentenced to 13 years in prison with no fine.

Four other defendants, two of them fugitives, are yet to be sentenced.

Meinster was one of eight men convicted in February after a tumultuous, 4½-month trial that included discovery of what the FBI termed a plot to disrupt the trial, assassinate the judge and bribe a juror.

Two defendants skipped town during the trial. And the gang's namesake, Colombian businessman Raul Davila-Jimeno, has never been caught. Davila was said to use "Black Tuna" as a radio code signal. Gang members sported Black Tuna medallions minted from gold.

Investigators said Meinster and Robert Elliot Platshorn, both from Philadelphia and Miami Beach, began building the high-rolling Black Tuna operation in 1974. The partners used fleets of ships and planes and their own "army" to bring in more than $300 million worth of Colombian marijuana, prosecutors charged.

Judge King said his sentencing wasn't influenced by the obstruction allegations involving Meinster. But he said it was clear that Meinster and others dealt in "vast amounts of marijuana" and that "Only severe penalties will make it (trafficking) too dangerous to be attractive."

Meinster, Platshorn and four others still face trial next month on the obstruction charge.

Exercise Is Fluids-User

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Drinking only to satisfy your thirst does not provide adequate amounts of fluids to maintain body fluid balance if you exercise in warm weather, says physiologist Kennon T. Francis.

The University of Alabama physiologist says an 8-ounce glass of water before tennis, swimming or running is probably adequate for the weekend exerciser.

"But if you exercise every day, water alone won't replace electrolytes, sodium and potassium lost through perspiration. The best sources of potassium are orange juice and bananas," Francis says.

He says forced drinking in the heat may be the best replacement for daily joggers and swimmers as well as school football teams that practice twice daily in the heat of late summer and early fall. He recommends drinking a glass of orange juice 20-30 minutes before practice and several times during practice "whether you're thirsty or not. But don't drink more than a half hour before exercising because the benefits will be wasted," he added.

Francis's advice was reported in an insurance industry newsletter published by the Health Insurance Institute, Washington, D.C.

Gasoline Price Pressure Rises

WASHINGTON (AP) — The pressure is increasing on President Carter to withdraw his plan to raise gasoline prices 10 cents a gallon by imposing a fee on imported oil.

Consumer organizations, gasoline marketers and labor and rural groups charged Wednesday that the fee is really a disguised and perhaps unconstitutional tax. They were joined at a news conference by Reps. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., and James Shannon, D-Mass. Moffett said opposition "is incredibly widespread in the Congress," where Shannon has introduced a resolution opposing imposition of the fee. Carter signed a proclamation last month immediately imposing a fee of $4.62 per barrel on imported oil. By restricting the resultant price increases to gasoline, Carter said he hoped to increase energy conservation and reduce the nation's reliance on foreign oil.

See It 'Less For Spectators'

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A survey in the Lutheran Church in America shows that nine of every 10 congregations have lay assistants taking part in worship services.

Many of those responding to the survey said they felt lay participation in worship services — as readers, communion assistants and liturgists — made worship less of a "spectator sport" and increased the sense of the "priesthood of all believers."

'God Or The Devil' Made Them Do It

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — One of three sisters, naked and smeared with mustard when they were arrested in a stolen truck says she isn't sure whether the devil or God made them do it.

"Maybe (it) was a little of both trying to outdo the other," said Doshaline McCuin, 30, in a telephone interview from her Ingham County Jail cell.

Mrs. McCuin said she and her sisters "were reading the Bible and got filled with the Holy Spirit" when the episode began.

Mrs. McCuin, and her sisters, Charlene Roper, 27, and Sandra Lewis, 25, have been jailed since their arrest last Thursday, unable to post $1,000 bond each on charges of joyriding and indecent exposure.

Police were summoned to a Lansing Township home on a report that three naked women were running around outside in the sunshine. The officers said they found the three in a delivery truck being chased by a uniformed truck driver.

Police said all three women, who share a house, were smeared with supermarket-variety mustard.

Mrs. McCuin said mustard is in Chapter 13 of the Bible's Book of Matthew, which states:

"The kingdom of heaven is like to a grain of mustard seed ... which indeed is the least of all seeds. But when it is grown, it is the greatest among the herbs and becometh a tree."

She added, "We went out naked because the Bible said we had to get back to the Garden of Eden."

And the truck?

"It was just a spur-of-the-moment thing," she said. "It was just sitting there with the keys in it."

"We just don't understand why we took the truck," she added.

Although the sisters entered pleas of innocent at their court arraignments, they are now admitting their guilt, Mrs. McCuin said.

"We broke the laws of God and man and now must suffer the consequences," she said.

"We acknowledge what we did was wrong and throw ourselves on the mercy of the court, this being our first offense."

In jail, the sisters continue to read the Bible while awaiting a preliminary hearing.

"We are certainly not members of a cult," Mrs. McCuin said. "We caused a lot of commotion. But we were brought up with the Bible and this is God's way to get us back.

"We were lost and had to find our way back to the garden," she concluded. "With God sustaining us, we are on the right track."

Nuke Routes Are Cleared

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission has reversed an earlier policy, apparently clearing the way for proposed shipments of highly radioactive nuclear waste along I-85 and I-77 through Charlotte.

Certain safeguards are provided, however, in the new rules adopted by the NRC in Washington Wednesday that will allow utilities to ship used nuclear fuel on interstates through heavily populated areas.

The ruling apparently affects Duke Power Co. which wants to transport shipments of nuclear waste from its Oconee, S. C., plant to its McGuire Nuclear Plant under construction on Lake Norman.

Under the new ruling, Duke Power would not have to follow secondary and rural roads through South Carolina and through North Carolina's Cleveland, Gaston and Lincoln counties to reach the McGuire facility 17 miles northwest of Charlotte, as the NRC proposed last summer.

Before any shipments are made, Duke Power, which serves the Piedmont area of North Carolina and South Carolina, must get permission from an NRC licensing board.

Public hearings on the matter will resume in Charlotte on Monday.

Soon An End To Boiling Water

MUNCIE, Ind. (AP) — Residents of Muncie may not have to boil drinking water after Saturday if tests continue to show no trace of a bacteria that invaded their water supply two weeks ago.

"We're tremendously optimistic" that the health hazard, has passed, said K. Brock Earnhardt, manager of the Muncie Water Works Co., after recent water samples showed no evidence of the coliform bacteria.

Officials ordered residents to boil their drinking water and have been pumping high doses of chlorine into the water supply since the bacteria was found.

Kennedy Campaign In N.C. All But Non-existent

By DICK BRINSTER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — To say Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's North Carolina campaign is disorganized would perhaps be an overstatement. The Kennedy campaign push for this state is all but non-existent.

"Southern Bell is a great company, but there is no way to fight the bureaucracy," said state campaign director Jonathan M. Orloff in explaining Wednesday why state headquarters had no phones. "We're getting them in today."
But lack of telephones in the rented storefront office was in keeping with the rest of the room. Chairs and tables for use during a hastily called press conference were being set up as reporters arrived to hear Orloff say Kennedy is making progress in his bid to wrest the Democratic nomination from President Carter.

There are no desks and no equipment, and the only identifiable marking is a Kennedy sign in the front window. A volunteer was seen pasting bumper stickers on the wall around a picture of the Massachusetts Democrat to give television cameras a view other than a darkened archway that leads to another empty room.

"I'm negotiating that," Orloff said when asked how much the Kennedy campaign would spend in the Tar Heel state, where polls show the Carter lead to be as great as 7 to 1. Later he said less than $100,000 would be spent. How much less he did not say.

Orloff will not argue with those who insist North Carolina is a Carter state. But he says he believes a late thrust by the Kennedy forces could close the gap to a respectable margin by the May 6 primary.

But that thrust in all probability will not include a visit from Kennedy, perhaps in keeping with the political philosophy that a candidate should never lend his time to a lost cause.
"If Jimmy Carter will come to North Carolina to debate the issues I'll have Senator Kennedy here in 24 hours," said Orloff.

That statement is an accurate barometer of the possibility that Kennedy will campaign in the state.
Orloff himself is indicative of the problems Kennedy is facing in the Tar Heel State. As director of the campaign, he is the campaign's only paid employee.

"I'm on vacation," he said emphatically. "I've been here about a week."
He is vacationing from his usual job, that of an aide in Kennedy's Washington office. He is not from North Carolina, but insists that will have little effect on the outcome here.
"That way you can't cut across state rivalries; you do not alienate people," he said in explaining how a Maryland native can effectively run a campaign in North Carolina.
"It's an intelligent way to run a campaign," he said.

Paid To Exercise

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — The city's firemen will be getting paid to play — but it's all for their own good.

The entire Durham Fire Department, including Chief J.A. Letzing, are embarking on an exercise program designed to prevent heart attacks by reducing obesity and strengthening the heart.

The program is being conducted in conjunction with Duke University's Preventive Approach to Cardiology. The city has contracted with Duke to administer the program.

"The key to the program is the individual motivation of the men," said Paul Koisch Jr., administrative director of the program. "What we do is provide the medical expertise to ensure it's safe."

Fire officials in Durham have long recognized the need for a good exercise program that would keep the city's 90 firefighters fit without forcing older firemen to compete with younger ones, said Battalion Fire Chief Norman Leathers.

The Duke program is tailored to each participant's age and physical condition, he said.

Following a physical, each person is given a tailored "exercise prescription" designed to reduce weight and strengthen the heart. Participants either walk, run, bicycle or swim.

Most of the exercising will probably be done at a city athletic field, with a fire truck standing by so the men can respond immediately to a fire call, Leathers said.

Leathers said city officials hope the program will result in a marked improvement in firefighters' health and endurance and reduce sick-leave time.

Chrysler Loan Decision Soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — A decision could come next week to clear the way for Chrysler Corp. to begin drawing on $1.5 billion in federally guaranteed loans in time to stave off an expected cash crunch in early May.

A Treasury Department official, who asked not to be identified, said Tuesday a meeting of the federal board that oversees the loan-guarantee program will be called early next week, possibly Monday, to rule on Chrysler's long-term financing plan. If the plan is approved, the loan-guarantee money may be released. "The board is trying to move expeditiously in recognition of the financial needs in the immediate period ahead to prepare for introduction of the company's new K-body cars," the official said.

Church Gift To Literacy Drive

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. National Conference of Catholic Bishops has sent $10,000 to the president of the bishops' conference of Nicaragua to assist the literacy campaign being conducted in that Central American country. Bishop Thomas Kelly, general secretary of the U.S. conference, said the donation was "intended to be a sign of even more substantial bonds of solidarity" which the unite the church in the U.S. with that in Nicaragua.

Jethro Sumner, Historic Warren County Figure

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — On April 23, 1783, Brig. Gen. Jethro Sumner returned to his home in Warren County, ending a sporadic military career stretching over a quarter of a century. During that period, he had fought the Indians, French, British and some fellow Americans called Tories. He seemed always to be on the winning side, but now, at the middle age of 50, he had but two years to live. Jethro Sumner was the son of a Virginian and was born in 1733 near what is now Suffolk, Va. He grew up on a farm with little formal education. That his family was prominent in Virginia was attested by Jethro's appointment as a lieutenant in the Virginia militia during the French and Indian War. His colonel was William Byrd.

Promoted to captain, Sumner participated in action against the French and Indians along the frontier and in 1760 was in command at Fort Bedford. Twice he was sent to confront the Indians on the Holston River. At the end of the war he returned to Nansemond County and was granted 3,000 acres of land for his service.

In or before 1764, Jethro Sumner married Mary Hurst and purchased land in Granville County, N.C. Shortly after, Granville was divided and the Legislature directed that the courthouse for the new Bute County be built at Buffalo Race Path on land owned by Sumner.

This undoubtedly enhanced the value of the property. He built a tavern that he leased for 36 pounds per year. He was an active Mason. His prestige rising with the increasing activity of a county seat, Sumner was serving as sheriff of Bute County when the Revolution began. He was elected to the Provincial Congress which met in Hillsborough in August 1775. There his fellow delegates selected him as a major to organize minutemen in the Halifax district.

The following year he was made colonel of the 3rd North Carolina Regiment of the Continental Army and participated in military operations as far north as Valley Forge.

Promoted to brigadier general early in 1779, Sumner participated in the battle at Stono Ferry in South Carolina. There he contracted malaria and returned to his home for recovery. He then recruited men for militia service, and in 1780 he operated against British Gen. Cornwallis in South Carolina. His activities at Eutaw Springs were noteworthy.

When Cornwallis invaded North Carolina the following year, Sumner's forces aided Gen. Greene in a strategic retreat to Guilford Courthouse.

Afterward, he was given charge of the militia of the state.

The name of the Earl of Bute, for whom Sumner's county had been named in 1764, became so unpopular during the war that the Legislature in 1779 abolished the county, creating instead Franklin and Warren.

The courthouse at Sumner's plantation was abandoned by the time he removed his uniform in 1783. For his service in the Revolution, he was granted 12,000 acres beyond the mountains.

He held an additional 8,000 acres, not counting town lots in Smithfield, Va., and Halifax and Louisburg, N.C.

An inventory of his estate showed he owned 35 slaves, 17 horses, 240 hogs, 20 sheep and 86 head of cattle.

Financially, therefore, Sumner was well off. Socially, too, he rated highly. When the officers who had served under Washington formed the Sons of Cincinnati, Sumner was elected first president of the North Carolina division and presided over its meeting at Hillsborough in 1784.

J.F.D. Smyth, a British traveler who visited Sumner, called him a "rather handsome" person of "manly bearing." But he also classified the general as a "facetious man" with "violent principles."

His health broken by years of warfare and the premature death of his wife, Sumner died March 18, 1785, leaving three young children. The boys, Thomas Edward and McMinnie Hurst, died without issue. The girl, Jacky Sullivan Sumner, married Thomas Blount, who served several terms in Congress.

Sumner was buried on his plantation, but over a century later his remains were moved to Guilford Battleground where a marker commemorates "Jethro Sumner, one of the Heroes of 1776."

Two years after his death, the Legislature honored his memory by creating Sumner County, which in 1796 became a part of the new state of Tennessee.

Urban Sprawl Menaces Farm

By ELDON BARRETT PALMER, Alaska (UPI) — Only 15,000 of Alaska's 374.6 million acres are under cultivation — about 0.00004 percent.

Yet, like much rural land in North America, these precious plots of productivity are being urbanized at a rapid rate.

In Alaska, this is occurring primarily in the Matanuska, a lush valley tucked in between the Talkeetna and Chugach ranges less than an hour's drive northeast of Anchorage.

The Matanuska was turned into a Shangri-la a little less than a half century ago by 202 Dust Bowl refugees sponsored by Uncle Sam. Even the transplanted midwesterners, used to corn as high as an elephant's eye, were amazed at what they could produce in this 10-by-60 mile valley during a 108-day growing season. Not the least of these achievements were cabbages weighing up to 72 pounds.

Ten years ago, 13,500 acres were being farmed in the Matanuska and the bottomland along the lower reaches of the Susitna River just 30 miles or so over the hills west of Palmer. At that time, the "Mat-Su," as the borough embracing these two belts of fertility is called, provided 90 percent of Alaska's locally produced milk, 78 percent of its livestock and 70 percent of its crops.

Six years later farmland in this area had dwindled to 11,500 acres. And the drop continues as Anchorage grows and its residents seek less crowded conditions or home sites.

Officials of the Matanuska-Susitna Borough say that at the current rate of urbanization, most of the commercial farms in the area may be gone within 15 years.

During each of the last four years, approximately 4,000 acres in the Mat-Su have been subdivided and offered for sale, mostly in lots of one-half acre or an acre. Although tight money has caused a slowdown in real estate and house building, officials say this area is in immediate danger of becoming a "bedroom community" without a tax base to support itself.

There are about 40,000 parcels of land in the borough. More than 70 percent are owned by people who do not reside on these parcels.

One reason farmers have been selling their land, other than the fact that they can get a good price for it, is that the cost of farming is so high they can't compete in the market with imported products. Imports are coming into the state in higher volume. In many cases, imported food is cheaper on the grocery shelves than local products in season.

The U.S. Soil Conservation Service has identified approximately 20 million acres in Alaska as having agricultural potential. But its development for large scale agribusiness appears unlikely without a substantial increase in population or, perhaps, guaranteed markets in the Orient.

 the section of the property that is usable rezoned to Highway Commercial.
 Sewell said that from the standpoint of the Corps of Engineers, the property is located in the flood hazard area or within the 100-year flood designation.
 Commissioners voted to recommend to the Council that .73 acres at the corner of Highway 33 and Port Terminal Road be rezoned from RA-20 to Neighborhood Commercial. Baxter A. Richardson had requested that the property be rezoned to Highway Commercial but the planning staff suggested that Neighborhood Commercial would be a more suitable designation.
 Staff planner Wade Pitt explained that the property includes Cliff's Oyster Bar, a grocery outlet and an automobile service facility. The facilities are non-conforming uses under the present zone. Pitt said that a strip of Highway Commercial zoning is located across the road.
 Roberson said the staff feels that if the door is opened to Highway Commercial zoning, a substantial amount of strip commercial zoning will follow. He said that CN zoning might tend to discourage strip commercial zoning.
 Attorney Charles Vincent, representing Richardson, said that his client feels that the requested zoning would serve the needs of the motoring public in the area better than CN. He said the property owner had indicated his preference for CH zoning over CN.
 The board referred a request by the Board of Adjustments to include mining operations in the RA-20 and Flood Plain zoning districts to the Environmental Advisory Commission for examination at the regular May 20 meeting. Opposition to the inclusion of mining operations in the two zones was expressed by two property owners.
 A request by Bill Barbre, agent for Naegele Outdoor Advertising, for rezoning 720 square feet on the south side of Highway 43 from R-6 to Highway Commercial in order to locate an outdoor advertising sign was withdrawn, as was an annexation petition by Johnnie Porter.

 Consideration of the preliminary plat of the Lillian Tyson Dail property on the east side of State Road 1447 just north of the Belvoir Highway was continued until the May meeting.
 It was pointed out that a workshop session will be held on April 30 to inform the public about the concept of zoning, particularly involving the extraterritorial area and the US 264 section. The public is invited to attend the workshop.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Now Johnny Carson has some place to go on his frequent absences from his "Tonight Show." He and hotel executive Ed Nigro bought the Aladdin Hotel and its casino for $103 million.

 Liggett Sale Forest Fires In N.C.

MONTVALE, N. J. (AP) — Grand Metropolitan Ltd. of Great Britain announced Wednesday that it had instructed its attorneys to take all available steps to block the sale of the Liggett Group's liquor subsidiary to a French beverage firm.

The Liggett Group, target of a takeover attempt by Grand Met, announced Tuesday that it has agreed to sell Austin, Nichols & Co. to Pernod Ricard for $97.5 million.
 Grand Met, which owns 9.5 percent of Liggett's stock, has offered to purchase the rest of the stock, but Liggett is opposing the takeover attempt.

In a statement Wednesday, Grand Met said it had notified its shareholders of an extraordinary general meeting on May 12 in connection with its proposed acquisition of Liggett.

Referring to the proposed sale to Ricard, Grand Met's statement said, "Details of the contract have not yet been disclosed by Liggett Group and Grand Met has instructed counsel to pursue all available remedies to seek to prevent the sale taking place."

If state gaming officials approve the deal, it will be "Johnny Carson's Aladdin." State officials said they didn't foresee any problems.

 Hot, dry weather fanned more than 70 forest fires across North Carolina Wednesday.

Burning permits were cancelled Tuesday throughout the state, but at least 2,100 acres were destroyed Wednesday.

"Today is the worst fire-danger day we've had this year," said Tom Hegele, a spokesman for the state VENTURA, Calif. (AP) — Barbarella and Wonder Women took on the California Highway Patrol and lost.

Patrolman Newton Tobin bagged movie star Jane Fonda, who starred in a motion picture as science fiction superheroine Barbarella and has since gone on to better roles, while Miss Fonda was allegedly doing 75 mph on U.S. 101 in Ventura County on Sunday.

Even if Tobin wasn't impressed with his prey, he might have noticed Miss Fonda's passenger, television's Wonder Woman, Lynda Carter.
 Miss Fonda faces a maximum $50 fine for breaking the 55 mph limit.

forest service, of the weather Wednesday.

"The weather is much worse," said Tom Roten of the forest service. "The humidity is lower, the wind higher."

And more of the same kind of weather is forecast for today, although temperatures should be cooler. Rain is not predicted until Friday.

One fire blacked 500 acres about 20 miles south of Wilmington, Hegele said.

A large fire was reported in Jackson County near Cashiers, Hegele said. That fire had destroyed more than 400 acres Tuesday afternoon. He said firefighters were having difficulty fighting the blaze in the mountain terrain.

The Jackson County fire burned both private land and federal forest land, Hegele said, and the U.S. Forest Service sent crews to fight the fire.

Firefighters also were battling blazes in Columbus County near Green Swamp, Randolph County in the Uwharrie mountains and Sampson County near Roseboro.

Hegele said the cooler temperatures forecast for today may help prevent some fires.

"The ban on burning has been very helpful," he said.

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market was little changed today, continuing the inconclusive pattern of Wednesday's session.
 The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials eased .17 to 789.08 in the first half hour.
 Gainers outnumbered losers by a 6-5 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

New York's Chase Manhattan Bank lowered its prime lending rate Thursday from 19 1/2 to 19 percent.
 Few other major banks moved to match that reduction by mid-morning today, although the recent decline in the basic charge on blue-chip loans was expected to continue.

Analysts said the market also was held back by continuing concern over the developing recession.

Today's early prices included Sony, unchanged at 8 1/4; Exxon, off 1/8 at 59 1/4, and American Telephone & Telegraph, down 3/4 at 51 1/2.

On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average slipped .60 to 789.25.

Advances outnumbered declines by 2-1 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 42.62 million shares, against 47.92 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index rose .21 to 58.95.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 1.55 at 246.58.

Dean Howell Elected Officer

Dean of Fiscal Affairs at Pitt Community College William H. Howell was elected president of the N.C. Association of Community Colleges Business Officials during their annual meeting held recently in Southern Pines.

Connie Harrell, Comptroller at PCC, was elected secretary of the same meeting. Both Harrell and Howell will serve for the 1980-81 term.

During an acceptance speech Howell commented, "Most projections for the higher education sector for the 80's characterize the decade as one of enrollment decline and fiscal instability with institutions playing, yet losing, the game of inflationary catch up while at the same time encountering a continuous erosion of the funding base."

"This will require greater emphasis on planning for the use of finances, with management decisions characterized by a lesser degree of consensus and the development of win or lose situations greatly affected by strategies of self preservation."

New Option On '80 Corn

Corn farmers who did not participate in the 1979 feed grain program will be permitted to place a limited amount of corn in the farmer-owned grain reserve, according to Stacy J. Evans, county executive director of Pitt County ASCS Office. Evans explained that Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland took this action to help farmers isolate additional corn stocks from the market and strengthen market prices.

Evans advised that the new option for previously ineligible corn producers will be offered on a first-come, first-serve basis. The option will continue until approximately 295 million bushels of the previously ineligible corn has been placed in the reserve, or May 15, whichever occurs first.

Styons, Moye Homer In Pirate Sweep

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina University got strong pitching performances from Mickey Britt and Bob Patterson and swept a doubleheader from N.C. Wesleyan last night at Harrington Field.

Helped along by homers by Macon Moye and Raymie Styons, the Pirates took wins of 7-1 and 3-1 in the twin-bill. The victories ran the Pirate record out to 24-5 on the season.

Britt, pitching his first complete game since March 22, chalked up his fourth victory of the season. He scattered six hits, walked one and struck out three in going the distance.

Patterson, who upped his individual mark to 5-2, gave up only three hits—all of them doubles—while walking none and striking out ten. He fanned the last three in a row.

The Pirates got 11 hits in the opener, but Moye's solo shot was the only one for extra bases. In the second game, East Carolina got seven hits, again with only one for extra bases, that being Styons' homer. That blast was his ninth of the season, leaving him only two behind seasonal leader and record holder Butch Davis.

The Pirates pushed over their first runs of the opening game in the second inning, scoring three times. Styons opened up with a single to left, and Moye singled. Both were sacrificed up, and with two away, Todd Hendley walked. Mike Sorrell followed with a single to left, scoring both Styons and Moye. Davis then singled to left, scoring Sorrell.

Moye's homer provided the only run of the third, as he sent the ball out in left for a 4-0 lead.

The final Pirate runs came in the sixth. Moye got his third hit of the night to open the frame and Rick Derechallo reached on an infield hit, both runners moving up a base when the late throw to first was overthrown. Hendley singled to score Moye, and a hit by Sorrell brought in Derechallo. Davis singled, driving in Hendley with the final Pirate run.

Wesleyan had threats in the first two innings, but got its only run in the fifth.

Earl Roberson opened the fifth with a walk and with one down, Joe Fontenot singled to left. Tom Haverkamp reached on an infield hit, and Greg Clark's grounder up the middle hit second base, bouncing high into the air for another hit. That scored Roberson. A double play prevented further damage to the Pirate lead.

Wesleyan then left runners in scoring position in the sixth and seventh, as their hopes of a second game. Robinette opened with a single, and with two away, Styons cracked the ball out of the park in left, a two-run shot.

The Pirates scored again in the second. Derechallo walked and moved up on a passed ball. He took third on an out and scored on Sorrell's single to center.

The Pirates had two other threats in the game. One of those came in the third when Billy Best singled, then stole second.

The theft was Best's 50th career stolen base, and he is the career record holder in that category.

Wesleyan had only two threats and made one of them pay off. Cary Griffin got a ground-ruled double in the first, but died at second.

In the fifth, Roberson opened with a double to right, then scored on Haverkamp's two-out double to right.

Patterson then retired the next seven batters in order to end the game.

The loss dropped Wesleyan, coached by former ECU aide Tony Guzzo, to 19-16 on the season.

East Carolina's first game hitting was led by Moye with three, while Davis and Sorrell each had two. In the second game, Best had two hits for ECU. Wesleyan got two from Clark in the first game, while no one had more than one in the second.

East Carolina returns to Harrington Friday night, entertaining UNC-Charlotte. Game time is 7:30 p.m. The Bucs then close out their road schedule, traveling to UNC-Wilmington for a 2 p.m. Saturday game. They host Atlantic Christian on Sunday at 6 p.m. in a doubleheader, and wind up the season Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. hosting Campbell.

Legends Tournament Gives 'Old' New Life

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Professional golf's millionaires find an invitation to the suddenly prestigious Legends of Golf tournament eases the pain of turning 50.

Fred Raphael, the originator of the tournament, said that next year Gene "The Machine" Littler and "Mr. X," Miller Barber, will be invited to play.

Palmer is already in the swing of things over the tight but treacherous Onion Creek club course.

Asked what he thought about being a legend, Palmer said, "I think it is fine. I'm just happy to be here. I think the potential for this type of golf is tremendous. I think the future of a tournament like this is unlimited."

Littler, along with Sam Snead, is thought to have one of the finest swings in golf. He parlayed that swing into 29 tournament victories and a whopping $1.5 million in career winnings.

Barber, known as "Mr. X" because of his mysterious look while wearing sunglasses while playing, has collected 11 tournament victories and $1.4 million since he joined the tour in 1959.

Palmer stole half the gallery Wednesday and his appearance prompted Raphael to predict this as the year the tournament makes money.

"Our tournament was an artistic success before we got Palmer but there's no secret he will boost our galleries," said Raphael.

"I'm convinced the Legends of Golf is here to stay. There is no doubt NBC feels that way, and I'm convinced the players feel that way. I think the finest compliment we got was Arnold joining us," said Raphael.

The tournament features a unique format. The 38 pros and two amateurs play a best ball. The best score of the twosome stands as their total for that particular hole.

Julius Boros and Roberto De Vicenzo were paired together to win in 1979 when it took six extra holes to nip Art Wall and Tommy Bolt.

Professional golfer Sten Messing will hold a clinic at 1 p.m. Sunday in conjunction with the tournament.

must survive qualifying heats. The heat pairing for the 4x400 has Carson knowing it will take a fine time to make the finals. Included in the heat is defending NCAA champion Louisiana State (with all four runners back). All teams in ECU's heat have clocked 3:11 or better this spring.

Carson hopes his quartet in the 4x400 can make the five-team final race. The other relay teams could surprise, especially the 4x200 team.

McIntyre, who has leaped 53-3/4 this season, is rated second in the triple jump field.

Citation and Count Fleet, each of whom paid $2.80 to win, are the shortest-priced Kentucky Derby winners since pari-mutuel betting was introduced at Churchill Downs.

Vincent said that the athletic awards to the top high school and college athletes would still be presented at a later time.

ECU Hosting Soccer Tourney

East Carolina's soccer club will be out to claim the regional championship of the North Carolina Soccer League this weekend on the East Carolina varsity soccer field.

The Pirate club, 8-0-1 in play this spring, will host the eight-team tournament Saturday and Sunday. Teams from the league's Mid-East, Southern, East, and Northern divisions will be represented. East Carolina and the Atlantic Christian Alumni team will represent the Mid-East.

ECU, which has outscored its opponents, 30-4, is led by twin brothers Brian and Brad Winchell. Brian has allowed just four goals and has not been scored upon in the second period while recording five shutouts. Brad leads the Pirates with nine goals and three assists.

Games begin Saturday at 11 a.m. Four games will be played Saturday to decide semi-final pairings. Winners will play at 10 a.m. Sunday. The championship game will be at 3 p.m.

Goltz Pays Dividends For Dodgers

Don McGlohon
INSURANCE
Hines Agency, Inc.
758-1177

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

Dave Goltz, one of baseball's wealthy free agents, has finally begun to pay dividends for the Los Angeles Dodgers, and he admits it was an ingot-sized weight off his mind.

Goltz, acquired by the Dodgers this fall after he fled the Minnesota Twins, scattered six hits and shut out the San Francisco Giants 4-0 Wednesday night. He yielded only one extra-base hit, a double by Renie Stennett.

It was his first victory after losing 4-2 and 7-4 to Houston in his first two outings while being shelled for 19 hits in 132-3 innings.

"It's a very good feeling," said Goltz, who will earn $500,

000 a year for the next six seasons. "Naturally I was unhappy with my first two starts giving up all those hits, but tonight I had good control of all my pitches. I was relaxed; I had good velocity."

Goltz, a 30-year-old right-hander, walked four and struck out four. He had to pitch out of a couple of jams, in the second and sixth.

In the second inning, the Giants put runners on first and second with two out, but Goltz got losing pitcher Ed Whitson to bounce out. In the sixth, Goltz faced the same kind of jam, but Stennett hit into a force. In each inning, Goltz walked one man.

The win was Los Angeles' fourth in a row and the Dodgers' second straight shutout against the Giants. Don Sutton stopped San Francisco on four hits Tuesday night.

In other National League games, Cincinnati edged Houston 3-2 in 12 innings, Atlanta got by San Diego 2-1, the New York Mets clipped Philadelphia 3-2, St. Louis defeated the Chicago Cubs 3-1 and Montreal downed Pittsburgh 3-2.

Reggie Smith gave Goltz all the support he needed in the first inning when he brought Derrel Thomas home with a sacrifice fly. Steve Garvey singled in a run in the third and the Dodgers scored two unearned runs in the fourth after an error by Giants first baseman Mike Ivie. Rookies Mike Scioscia and Rudy Law got the RBI.

Reds 3, Astros 2
Dave Concepcion slapped a single to right field, scoring Harry Spilman from third base, to boost the Reds over Houston in their 12-inning game. Spilman, a pinch hitter, led off the inning with a double off Astros reliever Joaquin Andujar and went to third on a grounder by second baseman Junior Kennedy.

Tom Hume got his second win without a loss with three innings of scoreless relief. He got out of jams in both the ninth and 11th innings when the Astros loaded the bases with two outs but each time failed to score when Craig Reynolds grounded into fielder's choices.

Braves 2, Padres 1
The Braves came up with their second straight victory after a 1-9 start with Chris Chambliss providing the fire-power with a sixth-inning homer.

Chambliss connected on his third homer of the season off lefty Randy Jones, 1-2, and gave the Braves a 2-0 lead.

Rick Matula, 2-1, went 6-1-3 innings for Atlanta, yielding four hits and one run in the seventh on an RBI single by Jerry Turner.

Mets 3, Phils 2
Joel Youngblood drove in two runs, including the game-winner in the eighth inning, and Mets rookie right-hander Mark Bombardier picked up his first major league victory.

Bombardier went seven innings, scattering eight hits. Reliever Jeff Reardon got the save when he struck out pinch-hitter Randy Lerch with the bases loaded in the ninth. Phils Manager Dallas Green was forced to send Lerch to the plate when he ran out of pinch hitters.

Green said he had both Lerch and another lefty pitcher, Steve Carlton, warming up their swings to bat against the right-handed Reardon. "and I went with Randy because he has a better possibility of beating one out."

Cards 3, Cubs 1
Silvio Martinez tossed a three-hitter and St. Louis scored three unearned runs in the eighth inning to defeat Chicago.

Tony Scott opened the eighth with a single. On the next play, Martinez bunted and Scott was safe at second on a throwing error by Bill Buckner. Gary Templeton singled to score Scott. Ken Oberkfell then bunted and was safe when Mike Mount had 51, Hunt had 46 and Bertie, 8.

Lakers Knot Western Series

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's homecourt advantage, sort of, to the SuperSonics as their National Basketball Association playoff series with the Los Angeles Lakers shifts to Seattle.

The Sonics may wander around looking slightly lost when they take their "home floor" for Friday night's third game of the best-of-seven playoffs, tied 1-1 following the Lakers' 108-99 victory Wednesday in Los Angeles.

Down to their third choice of an arena after being preempted from the Kingdome by the Seattle Mariners and from the Seattle Coliseum by an ice show, the defending NBA champion Sonics will host Game Three in the University of Washington's Hec Edmundson Pavilion.

"We haven't played in Edmundson in 10 years," said Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkens.

Sunday's fourth game of the Western Conference finals will also be held in Edmundson, which, with a capacity of around 8,000, seats some 32,000 less than might be expected in the Kingdome.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar was the big man for the Lakers as they squared the series, scoring 31 points and collecting 16 rebounds. Guards Norm Nixon and Earvin "Magic" Johnson added 19 points each, and Jamaal Wilkes had 16.

Gus Williams led Seattle with 24 points, Dennis Johnson had 20 and Lonnie Shelton 15. Fred Brown, who scored 34 points in the opening game, had 14.

While both coaches and most of the players generally play down the "homecourt advantage," Wilkens, whose Sonics won 108-107 Tuesday night, admitted after Game Two that he was happy to depart Los Angeles with the series even.

"I feel good with a split, although we certainly would like to have won two here," he said. "The Lakers played well."

Laker Coach Paul Westhead, crediting "contagious energy" for the Lakers' victory, said of the upcoming two games: "If we're going to be champions, then we must win on the road. Really, we've reached a level now that the homecourt doesn't mean a lot either way. It's pure math to say that we're going to have to win in Seattle."

The math is simply that if the Lakers lose the third, fourth and sixth games in Seattle, it's the Sonics 4-3.

Aycock's depth proved the big thing in the meet, as they took the first four places in the mile and the first three in the 800.

Summary of winners:
Long Jump, Pittman (K) 21-2; shot put, Barnes (K) 32-7½; pole vault, Carraway (A) 9-0; triple jump, Jarrell (A) 41-7; high jump, Cannon (K) 5-9; hurdles, Dupree (A) 15-08; discus, Davenport (W) 132-0; 100, Pittman (K) 9.9; mile, Orman (A) 4:59; 880 relay, Washington 1:38; 440, Sheffield (K) 4:55; 220, Pittman (K) 22.9; 440 relay, Aycock (King, Frazier, Dupree, Clark) 47.0.

"A no-hitter would have been nice, but if you've got to lose one, that's the way to lose it," Kison said of a one-out, ninth-inning double into the left field corner by Minnesota's Ken Landreaux.

"It was the only bad pitch he threw all afternoon," said Angels catcher Tom Donahue. "His sinker was awesome."

Last year, Kison missed a no-hitter against the San Diego Padres on a controversial call. The hit, by the Padres' Barry Evans, also came with one out in the ninth inning.

"This situation was a lot easier to handle (than last year's) because it was a clean base hit," said Kison, now 1-2. "Both one-hitters were similar. I stayed ahead of the hitters and got them to hit a lot of ground balls."

It also didn't hurt that Kison had a 17-0 lead.
Al Cowens and Fred Patek had three hits each to pace the Angels' 17-hit barrage off five Minnesota pitchers. California was aided by four Twins errors.

Tigers 5, Rangers 4
A two-run double by Jason Thompson capped a three-run first inning and the Detroit infield pulled off double plays to kill two Texas rallies as the Tigers downed the Rangers.

Detroit starter Jack Morris, 3-1, hit Al Oliver in the foot in the third inning and both benches cleared when Texas pitcher Steve Comer, 0-2, hit Champ Summers in the shoulder on his first pitch of the fourth inning.

Indians 7, Brewers 3
Rookie Joe Carbonero slammed a three-run homer and Toby Harrah singled home two runs to pace Cleveland's victory over Milwaukee.

Don Money homered with a man on for the Brewers.

Yankees 6, Orioles 5
A mammoth two-run homer by Reggie Jackson in the fifth inning snapped a tie and lifted the Yankees to their victory over Baltimore. It was only the second home run of Jackson's career off Orioles starter Jim Palmer, 2-1.

Oscar Gamble and Jim Spencer also homered for the Yankees while Ed Murray belted a pair of solo homers for Baltimore. The two teams also combined for three triples and three doubles.

Jackson's smash, the 372nd home run of his career and third of this season, landed in a rarely reached area more than halfway up the right-center field bleachers.

Baltimore tied a major league record by not leaving a single runner on base.

Royals 7, Blue Jays 4
George Brett's bases-loaded triple with two out in the eighth inning boosted Kansas City over Toronto. Brett, hitting just .205 when the night began, also singled and doubled while driving in four runs.

Rick Bosetti had a three-run homer in the top of the eighth to give the Blue Jays a temporary 4-3 lead.

A's 5, Mariners 2
Mario Guerrero had four hits and drove in two runs to pace Oakland's victory over Seattle. Guerrero delivered a run-scoring single in the ninth inning as the A's exploded for three runs to snap a 2-2 tie.

Dr. J Sparks Celtics To Victory Over Philadelphia In East Series

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Someone once said that television instant replay was invented for Julius Erving.

Erving does something that you see and don't believe. Then you see it on instant replay and still don't believe it.

That's what happened Wednesday night as "Dr. J" scored 28 points, 22 in the second half, to trigger the 76ers' 99-97 victory over the Boston Celtics in a National Basketball Association semifinal game.

The next game will be played here Friday night, with the Sixers leading the playoff series 2-1.

Erving had a subpar first half, scoring just six points. He spent some time on the bench as the Celtics took a 47-45 half-time lead.

The Bears scored nine runs in the first inning, including a grand-slam homer by Mary Rawls, and added two more runs in the second for an 11-0 lead.

But Mattamuskeet rallied to within 12-5, then scored seven runs in the top of the seventh to tie it up at 12-12. The Bears pushed over the game winner in the bottom of the frame.

Terri Howell led Bear Grass with four hits, including a triple. Joette Rogers (double) and Rawls each had two. Mattamuskeet was led by Whitaker (both doubles), Weston and Harris, each with two.

The Bears, now 7-6, entertain Aurora on Monday.

In the dressing room during intermission Erving gave himself a silent pep talk.

"I'm going out there and give it my best shot," Erving said he told himself. "I'm going to play with reckless abandon. I'm going stronger to the basket."

True to himself, Erving took over. The 76ers trailed 60-59 with 5:19 to play in the third period, and went on to outscore the team with the best record in the NBA 19-8 for a 78-66 three-quarter lead.

Erving scored 12 in the period as the 76ers shot 64 percent in the quarter. During the spurt Erving contributed eight points and Bobby Jones four. It wasn't just the points Erving scored, but the way he scored them. He hit jumpers, slam dunks, lay-ups, drove between defenders as if they were invisible.

When the final statistics were calculated, Erving had his 28 points, 11 rebounds, seven assists and five steals. He had the sellout crowd of 18,276 in his-terics.

The 76ers increased their lead to 14 at 88-74 when Erving scored on a driving scoop over M.L. Carr with 6:35 to play. It looked like a rout.

But the 76ers forgot about the clock. The Celtics' fabulous rookie, Bird, who scored 22 points, also grabbed 21 rebounds and had four assists. He hit three of four three-point field goal attempts.

Boston kept pecking away. For Boston, Cedric Maxwell had 17, but only two in the second half. Cowens scored 18.

the Sixers' lead to a shaky two points. The Celtics had one final chance to tie or win. The ball was inbounded to Dave Cowens, who lost the handle. Philadelphia's Maurice Cheeks stole the ball and dribbled out the clock.

Lionel Hollins scored 16 and Cheeks and Darryl Dawkins had 14 apiece for Philadelphia. Caldwell Jones collected 11 rebounds.

For Boston, Cedric Maxwell had 17, but only two in the second half. Cowens scored 18.

Claim 'Paralysis' Creeping Over Iran

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Failure to resolve the hostage crisis is pushing Iran toward "paralysis" and disintegration and increasing the prospect that the Soviet Union may try to seize control of the northern part of the country, a senior Carter administration official says.

The official, a key administration strategist who asked not to be identified, told reporters that if Iran collapses, the United States might move to protect southern Iranian oil fields that once were a principal Western supply source. But he said the prospect of U.S. intervention still is "farfetched" and remote.

The warning of Iran's instability and vulnerability to the Soviets came against a background of continued fighting involving Islamic fundamentalists and leftists. Six deaths were reported on Iranian university campuses Wednesday, one day after Tehran newspapers said 18 students died in campus violence.

There also were indications Wednesday of closer economic and industrial ties between the Soviets and Iran.

The Carter administration strategist said Iran's best hope is that "rational" people will take charge of the Tehran government and conclude that its gravest threat comes not from the United States, but from the Soviet Union, which shares much of Iran's northern border.

That realization, the official said, could prevent partition of Iran by the Soviets in the north and Iraq along the Persian Gulf in the west and could lead to release of the 53 American hostages in Tehran.

"Maybe enough of them will conclude it is time to deal with the problem," he said.

This hope was coupled with a frank admission that the U.S. strategy of appealing to moderate elements in Tehran has failed.

Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr said in a broadcast interview Wednesday that despite the new commercial agreement with the Soviet Union on Tuesday, Iran will not allow the Soviets to attain as much influence as the United States had under the deposed shah.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd demanded on Wednesday that Congress be fully consulted, and permitted to give its advice, if use of force is contemplated.

The Carter administration strategist confirmed a published report that senior White House staff members expressed strong apprehensions at a closed-door meeting Tuesday that the United States is moving toward a naval blockade or mining Iranian oil ports.

Carter said last week that if U.S. and allied economic pressures against Iran fail, "the only next step available that I can see would be some form of military action."

Uncertainties On Recession

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The national economy has slid into recession but it's too early to tell how deep the recession will be or how long it will last, according to a North Carolina banker.

"The recession is here. It has begun," Bud Carrier, senior vice president at First Union National Bank, told reporters Wednesday at his quarterly economic briefing.

"The fact is we are probably not deep enough into the recession yet to predict how deep it will be and how long it will be before we come out of it," said Carrier.

The recession, he said, probably began in earnest last month or early in April, long after economists began predicting the downturn and businessmen began bracing for it.

"If you keep predicting the same things long enough, sure enough, it will eventually come true," Carrier quipped.

Employment is down across the country, retail sales are down, housing starts are down and the amount of money people are saving is down, Carrier said.

He predicted a milder recession than the 1974-75 economic drop that cut jobs and production across the country, but he said there is no way to tell how long it will last.

Carrier spoke only about the national economy, saying he had not studied the local or state economy.

The nation can expect "violent, unexpected swings in the marketplace" in the weeks and months ahead, Carrier predicted.

"For the past three weeks, interest rates (which climbed to 20 percent in some cases) have turned around and begun to drop as fast as they went up," Carrier said.

He also said the economy will be affected by politics in this election year and he said the Carter administration may work to cut the recession at the risk of heightening inflation.

"If you were an incumbent, you wouldn't like to see rising unemployment and deepening recession as the election approached," he said.

Attorneys Think N.C. Justices Perform Well

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state's attorneys think the state Supreme Court justices generally perform well, according to a study released Wednesday.

Three members were rated generally outstanding, two as good and two as average, according to the North Carolina Center for Public Policy Research.

The report was based on surveys answered by 1,382 attorneys, or more than 21 percent of the state's attorneys who were sent questionnaires last year.

The attorneys also graded the justices' impartiality, or bias toward either plaintiffs or defendants.

Chief Justice Joseph Branch, whose performance was rated as outstanding, was rated neutral by 71.5 percent of the lawyers responding to questions on him — the highest of any Supreme Court justice.

The lowest neutrality rating, 39 percent, went to Justice J. Phil Carlton, whose performance was rated as average.

Carlton said he considered the survey a "popularity contest among lawyers." He said he is the only justice to have served as a district court judge, where he had to act as both "judge and jury."

Carlton is the only justice facing a Democratic primary challenge, by Ott Burton of Asheboro.

Appeals Court Judge Richard Ervin, who has been recommended for a federal judgeship, received a 63 percent objectivity rating and was rated good or outstanding by 60 percent of the respondents.

'Wrong People' Killed In Liberian Executions

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH
Associated Press Writer
MONROVIA, Liberia (AP) — Ignoring Western appeals for clemency, the army enlisted men who seized power in Liberia two weeks ago ordered the executions of 13 members of the deposed government although an officers' tribunal sentenced seven of them to life imprisonment and acquitted two of them.

The president of the military court, Col. Frank P. Senkpeni, told reporters his tribunal was overruled by the 17-man People's Redemption Council headed by President Samuel K. Doe.

Doe, a 28-year-old master sergeant, led the April 12 military coup that overthrew President William R. Tolbert's government.

Tolbert died in the coup, reportedly slain by Doe.

The dead president's elder brother, Edward, chairman of the Senate, was among the 13 men executed Tuesday on a Monrovia beach while thousands cheered. He also was one of the four sentenced to death.

All 13 were accused of treason, "rampant corruption," abuse of public office and violation of human rights. But Senkpeni said only Tolbert, House Speaker Richard Henries, Chief Justice James A. Pierre and E. Reginald Townsend, chairman of Tolbert's True Whig Party, were given death sentences.

He said seven others were acquitted on some of the charges and sentenced to life imprisonment, while two others were acquitted.

All were descendants of the freed American slaves who founded Liberia in 1847, a minority that had ruled the country ever since.

A 14th defendant, former Information Minister Johnny McClain, also was acquitted and was not executed. McClain, who assumed to be still in custody, was of tribal origin, like Doe and the other members of the Redemption Council.

The United States and other Western governments had appealed to the new government not to kill any more former officials. The State Department said it "deeply deplored" the executions, and U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim urged a halt to "summary executions without due process of law."

WINDMILL
DALLAS (AP) — A 130-foot-tall windmill has been topped off on the campus of Brookhaven Community College.

Two sets of four blades, each spinning in opposite directions, will generate 45 kilowatts of power for use by the college.

Officials could not estimate the entire cost of the project but said materials cost $60,000. The windmill is thought to be one of the largest in Texas.

Durham, 26.1 percent; Ronald Howell of Marshall, 27.6 percent; Thomas Seay Jr. of Spencer, 28.8 percent; and J. Herbert Small of Elizabeth City, 28.5 percent.

Center director Fred Harwell said the purpose of the report was "to provide information to the general public as well as lawyers."

He said the ratings weren't set up to be competitive. "What they do is give one a sense of a judge's professional performance based on the view" of lawyers.

Other Supreme Court justices and their ratings were:

- James E. Exum, outstanding overall performance, impartial by 71 percent.
- David M. Britt, good overall performance, impartial by 64 percent.
- Walter E. Brock, good overall performance, impartial by 53 percent.
- J. William Copeland, average overall performance, impartial by 46 percent.
- J. Frank Huskins, good to outstanding overall performance, impartial by 61 percent.

The attorneys were asked to grade only those justices and judges before whom they had practiced, so the ratings were based on different numbers of responses.

The survey also rated state Appeals Court and Superior Court judges.

Appeals Court Judge Richard Ervin, who has been recommended for a federal judgeship, received a 63 percent objectivity rating and was rated good or outstanding by 60 percent of the respondents.

Among the 58 Superior Court judges, five received objectivity ratings of less than 30 percent. They were: James H. Pou Bailey of Raleigh, 22.4 percent; Anthony M. Brannon of

Survival Test In Amazon Jungle For U.S. Troops

By DIGBY A. SOLOMON
MANAUS, Brazil (UPI) — For a final exam, the Army's jungle trainees get salt and rifles — and a week to survive without help in the heart of the Amazon.

The steamy Amazon basin, whose expanse commands more than 1.3 million square miles across 41 percent of Brazil, can provide food and shelter if one knows how to approach it.

There are trees whose flammable sap will light cooking fires in any downpour, others that provide potable water, fruits that produce beer and numerous animals to eat.

But there are also constant, wearying heat and humidity and such unpleasant jungle denizens as panthers and the surucucu snake, whose bite attacks the nervous system and stops blood coagulation.

Soldiers who have trained in the Amazon say the snake's victims bleed from their eyes and pores before finally dying.

To learn to cope with a jungle nearly the size of Western Europe, Brazil's Army sends select officers to its Center for Jungle Warfare Instruction outside Manaus, capital of the Amazon.

Nearly a dozen of Brazil's allies, including the United States, France and Venezuela, also have sent trainees.

CIGS, as the center is known by its Portuguese acronym, has turned out more than 850 jungle warfare specialists since it was formed in 1964.

Maj. Souto Maior, second in command, says jungle warfare experts are necessary for Brazil, which shares thousands of miles of jungle frontier with eight of its 10 South American neighbors.

"You can't use conventional weapons or tactics in the Amazon," says Sgt. Ney de Souza, a CIGS instructor.

"You're restricted to light rifles. Communications are difficult. Canons and mortars are useless in heavy jungle and machine guns are too heavy to carry in the heat."

CIGS gives officers eight weeks of nonstop training at five bases outside Manaus. It is such a strenuous course that barely 50 percent of the Army officers who take it pass. Maior says. Yet only one fatality has occurred — resulting from a fall on an obstacle course common to any boot camp.

CIGS developed many of its Amazon survival techniques, but it got others from contacts with Indian tribes it has encountered in the region.

Friendly Indians taught CIGS instructors how to spear fish from streams and displayed their wide variety of plant remedies.

These range from the mildly stimulating "Xexua" plant to the mind-blowing hallucinogenic "Tibo," also used to paralyze small game.

Jungle warfare students begin by learning survival techniques. They are taught how to make shelters from logs using wild vines as rope, how to cook in the jungle, how to determine which fruits are safe to eat (bitter fruits and those shunned by monkeys are avoided).

The course then moves on to warfare techniques, ranging from how to set up makeshift communications antennae to building traps for the enemy.

When the eight weeks are over, the trainees are left in the jungle alone for a week as a final exam.

By far the toughest obstacle to overcome is the climate, Sgt. de Souza says. Temperatures average 95 to 104 F, and humidity never falls below 90 percent. One breaks into sweat just standing in the shade. "Many of our trainees just faint the first few times out here," de Souza says, barely concealing a grin. "Some never adapt."

Breece Likes To Recall Eure's Slogan

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
 Associated Press Writer
 RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — George W. Breece likes to remind folks of Thad Eure's campaign slogan 44 years ago.

"Give a young man a chance" he said then, and while Eure may have changed his mind about that after 43 years as secretary of state, Breece wishes voters would heed it again.

Breece, 34, is waging his second attempt to wrest the Democratic nomination for secretary of state away from Eure in the May 6 primary, and it is Eure's age that is again the issue of the campaign.

"I think the time has come for him to face the realities of life," said Breece. "He's served long enough and it's time for him to enjoy life and retire."

But at 80, Eure, who describes himself as "the oldest rat in the Democratic barn," still wants a 12th term.

"He saw how that slogan benefitted me, and he's a copy cat," Eure responded. "I am still a young man."

Wearing his customary bow tie, Eure has long been a fixture in Raleigh. A native of Gates County in the northeast, Eure has kept the same office in the Capitol — even the same desk, chair and clock — since he was sworn into office in 1937.

He's been highly visible, greeting generations of school children as they tour the Capitol, sporting a new straw bowler every spring and, with his gravelly voice, presiding over Democratic Party events across the state.

Eure has been politically resilient through the years, but ran into his toughest fight in 1976 when Breece spent more than $160,000 on a television campaign against Eure. He came close, winning nearly 48 percent of the vote.

Breece is an insurance and real estate broker whose family has run a Fayetteville funeral parlor for 82 years. Like Eure, he served a single term in the state House.

This time Breece isn't waging the expensive campaign he did four years ago, perhaps because he was left after that one with $90,000 in personal debts — now paid off, he said.

Instead, he hopes to do a modest amount of television advertising and spend no more of his own money than the $41,000 annual salary the job carries.

He is also relying on the blue and black wooden placards he has nailed onto trees from one of the his state to the other, and on the pluck he's displayed in campaigning.

Since he first began running in early 1976, Breece has plodded the barbecue and chicken circuit with dogged determination.

He cites several reasons, besides age, for replacing Eure. While Eure has been colorful, he has also reduced the office to largely ceremonial functions and has been unable to produce official state publications in a timely or accurate way, Breece charges.

For example, he says, the 1979 state manuals, published by the secretary of state's office, weren't ready until this spring and were riddled with errors — such as listing one legislator as married to another's wife and listing the wrong Senate president pro tem.

"That's grabbing any issue you can, I know," Breece says. "But it's an error, an inefficiency that's taking place, and he can't deny it. It may not have been his fault.

but he's responsible for it."

Breece also says as secretary of state, he would favor open meetings of the elected Council of State.

Eure, he notes, appeared before a state Senate committee last year to plead for — and win — a blanket exemption in the state's new open meetings law.

Eure says he will not respond to those charges, but defends secret meetings as necessary. Errors in the 500-page manual were made, he acknowledges, but the major ones were corrected before generally distributed.

And Eure says he has carried out the constitutional duty of processing incorporations for businesses with speed and without great expense to the state.

"I'm running for reelection on my record, my record of a lifetime as an individual, my family record, my demeanor and the manner in which I discharge this office," he said. "If I have not established a record worthy of the renomination, it's too late to start building a record now."

Eure also scoffs at any suggestion he retire, and makes no promises about this being his last race.

"When I get to the point I cannot properly discharge the duties of this office in the same manner as when I first took this office, I will be the first to know it," he said. "When I get to that point, I'll send in my resignation."

Coalition Eyes Cambodia Aid

NEW YORK (UPI) — A coalition of six voluntary groups, including Lutheran World Relief, the National Council of Churches' Church World Service and the YMCA, has announced plans to shift into a new phase of its relief program for Cambodia — rehabilitation and reconstruction of the nation's decimated agricultural system.

The coalition said that while direct shipments of rice will continue, the coalition will focus on efforts to rebuild the war-shattered country's food production system, including such elements as the irrigation system, livestock sector and transport system.

Famous Einstein Equation Is Given A New Twist At School

By CHARLIE LEHMAN
The Wilson Daily Times
WILSON, N.C. (AP) — E=MC<sup>2</sup>, the famous way Einstein explained energy, is an equation most people have heard of even if they do not know what it means.

The principal at Lee Woodard Elementary School in Wilson County has given that equation a new twist, one that is not yet famous but one that even his first-graders can understand and one that all Americans must grasp, he believes, if the nation's spirit and security are not to go up in smoke.

Ronald M. Felton's equation is, "Energy equals Me plus Conscious Conservation." His lesson is, "The children are growing up in a world where the energy shortage is only going to get more severe." His goal is, "To help the students be prepared to live in a world of critical energy shortages."

Felton's effort has a huge supporting cast — the Wilson County schools — and Superintendent W.O. Fields Jr. said the system's conscious conservation is beginning to show dividends.

Fields said buses and maintenance vehicles are using 15 percent less gasoline this year than they did last year.

Felton alone managed to cut gasoline consumption for the four buses serving his school by modifying their routes. Felton said he had trimmed 10 miles each day off each bus' route for a 40 miles-per-day reduction.

If the cost to operate a bus is 67 cents per mile, the going rate, Felton's modification last fall will save some $5,000 this school year.

William Tillett, director of transportation for the state Department of Public Instruction, said there is an opportunity for enormous savings. The yellow fleet of 12,279 school buses in the state traveled 101 million miles and burned 20 million gallons of gasoline during the 1978-79 school year, he said.

Tillett said the state Board of Education, recognizing the savings potential, mandated last summer that the state's 144 school systems do everything possible, without severely reducing services, to reduce gasoline consumption.

According to Fields, if other systems are doing as well as Wilson County, the state board will be pleased when the figures are tabulated this summer.

Leroy High, director of transportation for the Wilson County Schools, is confident consumption figures for this year will be lower. The main reason, he said, is because administrators have tried to follow the state board's conservation guidelines.

High added that he expected more children to begin riding buses to school as parents try to cut back on their own gas bills.

Felton's conscious conservation has not only saved gasoline, but Lee Woodard is also using less electricity and fuel oil, he said. As proof he compared fuel-oil consumption during two months of 1978 and 1979.

In July 1978, the school burned 5,977 gallons. During July 1979, the school used only 1,332 gallons. The school consumed 6,744 gallons in November 1978; a year later, 4,985 gallons. Those examples are the rule, not the exception, he said.

That is good news for Fields, who has to contend with a total utility bill that averages about $47,000 a month.

Carsie Denning, an energy coordinator with the instruction department, said Wilson County is a bellwether system when it comes to energy conservation.

"Wilson County has some features and programs that would excel when compared to any county," Denning said. "I would put it very near the top. They've got good leadership."

Three of those leaders are Fields; Dr. J.D. Corbett, assistant superintendent for business and operations and Colleen Snell, director of building maintenance.

They all agree that the fuel chart in Snell's office is one of their greatest successes. The chart, a 4-by-8 sheet of Plexiglass where the system's 22 schools are listed with a detailed outline of energy-related data.

Snell said the chart is changed weekly. "If it's in sight, you're constantly reminded. And that's what I want to be — reminded and conscious," he said.

"We're reducing our fuel consumption," he said, pointing to the chart and its comparative data.

Corbett said the system recently received an energy grant of $43,000 from the federal government, funds that must be matched locally. The money will be used to make two elementary schools more energy-efficient by caulking windows and lowering and insulating ceilings.

Other conservation measures include installing timers to turn boilers on and off, installing outside thermostats that will automatically cut off the boilers when the outside temperature reaches 65.

Nuke Test Has Weather Delay

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Rain, snow and high winds have forced a 24-hour delay in an underground nuclear weapons test at the Nevada Test Site.

The test has been rescheduled for 7 a.m. Friday, Department of Energy spokesman David Miller said Thursday. He said the test, with a yield equivalent to between 20,000 and 150,000 tons of high explosive TNT, would be powerful enough to be felt in Las Vegas 110 miles to the southeast.

For the embryo bridge player, life must be full of contradictions. One day we tell him not to draw trumps until his losers have been ruffed in dummy. The next day we advise him to refrain from ruffing his losers in order to draw trumps and set up his side suits for discards.

Then we tell him that missing five cards headed by the queen, the percentage play is to take the finesse and not to play for the drop. Next, we produce a hand where it's right to bang out the two top trumps and then proceed with the business at hand.

The reason for all these conflicting bits of advice is that no card combination is an island unto itself. The overall consideration of the hand dictates the course of action more often than does any single holding in a suit. There is no formula that can serve as a panacea for all bridge ills. General principles can be postulated, but there is no substitute for clear thinking.

South became declarer at four hearts after a normal auction. West led the queen of spades, won in dummy. Declarer tried the trump finesse, which lost to West's queen. It required no deep thinking on West's part to shift to the queen of diamonds. Declarer won in dummy, cashed the ace of spades and ruffed a spade. After drawing trumps, he then tried the club finesse.

East won and cashed two diamond tricks for a one-trick set.

The pivotal point of the hand is not the location of the queen of trumps, nor the king of clubs for that matter. Declarer should be quite willing to lose a trick to both of those cards. The greatest danger to the contract is the diamond suit—declarer must try to avoid losing two tricks in the suit. And it requires no sleuth to realize that, once declarer gives up a trick, the defenders will attack his weakness.

Declarer should win the first trick in hand and immediately run the ten of clubs. Suppose East takes the king and shifts to a diamond? Declarer wins in dummy, cashes the ace-king of hearts, and when the queen doesn't drop, he starts to run clubs. On this distribution, that nets him an overtrick. If trumps are 3-2, however, it also guarantees the contract on most other lies of the cards.

Use Nina Blanchard's Expertise

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — When a movie studio is looking for a beautiful young woman, a new face who can act even a little bit, they call Nina Blanchard.

The studios are seeking Nina's expertise, not her services as an actress.

She is president of the Nina Blanchard Agency, managing 150 top Hollywood models and TV commercial actresses. Her clients include Cheryl Tiegs, Cristina Ferrare, Susan Coelho, Anna Bjorn, Karen Graham and Barbara Minty.

These beauties are lineal descendants of such earlier star models as Suzy Parker, Jean Shrimpton and Twiggy who became magazine cover celebrities.

Nina, once an aspiring actress herself, says 80 percent of successful models want to become actresses. Fewer than 5 percent ever make the grade.

Despite frequent calls from studios and producers, Nina rarely is able to provide moviemakers with young beauties who are able to act.

"They phone me whenever their TV or movie scripts call for gorgeous girls because they know I have them," she said.

"But being beautiful simply isn't enough — not even enough to be a successful model.

"Aside from Bo Derek — who has one of the most beautiful faces I've seen — there are no beautiful young actresses between the ages of 16 and 25. The studios are desperate for them.

"Producers look for models because girls dream of becoming models these days instead of actresses. They think it doesn't take training and they can make a million dollars. They're wrong on all counts.

"No model earns more than $300,000 a year, no matter what you hear — and girls in that bracket are very, very rare. And it takes years of training."

Nina, a handsome, amusing woman in her middle years, knows about rejection. She failed as an actress in her youth and dislikes discouraging young hopefuls.

But her agency receives more than 100 letters and 300 telephone calls a day from would-be models. Twice a week interviews are held for 50 prospects who are culled by five of her agents with Nina looking on, searching for a future star.

Sometimes months go by before a single young woman passes muster. Then again, four or five promising prospects may be discovered in a single session.

Nina knows precisely what she is looking for in a model.

"First of all, I won't interview anyone over the age of 21 unless she is already established," she said. "It takes two years to train a girl. By the time she's 27, in most cases, her career is over.

"So, economically it doesn't make sense for me to invest all that time and effort in a girl who won't be around that long."

Nina makes it clear she doesn't set the standards for beauty. She merely supplies the demand.

"A girl must be photogenic as a matter of course," she said. "No one can define photogenic but it's a quality that registers with the camera."

"Bone structure is enormously important. It's all in the genes. Women who aren't photogenically beautiful should realize that doesn't mean they are unattractive. Not at all. It simply means they weren't meant to model."

"A girl should have a total 'look.' I don't use specialists with just beautiful faces, hair, hands or figure. It all goes together."

"My models must be between 5-foot-7 and 5-foot-9½ with a maximum bust measurement of 35 inches — no C cup brassiers — 25-inch waist and 35-inch hips."

"She must have long legs, broad shoulders and a flat abdomen. Most important of all is a long neck and a regal carriage."

"Some models enjoy success into their 30s, but the career span for most of them is pitifully short. At most 10 or 12 years unless you're a Cheryl Tiegs."

"You'd be astonished at how many women in their 30s and 40s, and even older, write or call about becoming models. They see 'ordinary' people in TV commercials and believe they can do the job, too."

"The trend to ordinary looking actresses in commercials became fashionable about 1967. I call them the 'beige people.' Colorless. They almost put me out of business for a while. Advertisers didn't want outstanding beauties.

"That trend is over. I don't think they ever sold hair or cosmetic products with plain looking actresses. If someone is going to sell me cosmetics, I don't want to see a woman who looks like me. The same for swimsuits."

Nina and Eileen Ford, who heads the largest and most successful American model agency in New York, often work together. Like Ford, Nina helps young models by putting them up in her six-bedroom Hollywood hills home until they get started.

"A typical beginner is 18," she said. "We test photograph her, work on her hair and makeup and, when she has a decent portfolio, we send her to New York or Europe for three or four months. That's where the magazines are.

"It's not the glamorous life most girls are led to believe. There's a lot of travel and hours and hours of preparation."

"No matter what, a model must look gorgeous — as beautiful as possible — every working moment. A girl had better be a natural beauty to start with or there's no way on earth she'll ever make the grade."

Holding On To Get Car

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — A pregnant Fort Myers woman says she is determined to win a car that a dealership is giving away — so determined that even going into labor won't get in her way.

"I'm prepared to have my baby here (in the showroom) if that's what it takes," said 22-year-old Cassandra Sapp. Ms. Sapp, who is two months pregnant, is one of two persons clinging to a new 1979 Plymouth Arrow car dealer Ken Lee of Fort Myers says he will give to the person who holds onto it longest.

Lee's rules are that contestants must hold onto the auto and that during the hourly 10-minute break each contestant is allowed, someone must act as stand-in.

It started April 1. One by one, the 15 other original contestants dropped out. On Wednesday, Ms. Sapp and Michael Noll, a former restaurant employee undaunted by a bad cold over the weekend, clung to the exterior of the blue compact.

"If I can make it through the flu, I can hang on to the end," Noll said.

Noll hangs onto one end of the car. Ms. Sapp the other. They sleep on the floor, their wrists taped to the auto.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

My father was taken to the hospital with a mild heart attack. One of the tests that he had done was an echo test. Can you tell me what this is? Few people have ever heard of it. — Mrs. G.N.L., N.J.

Dear Mrs. L.: The echocardiograph is a relatively new and brilliantly devised method for studying the heart. Previously most of the information that could be gathered about the heart in health and disease was through the electrocardiograph. In addition there are blood enzyme studies which offer a great deal of information about the heart during an attack.

The new two-dimensional echocardiograph uses ultrasound. The test enables the doctor to get a picture of the patient's heart on a wide screen. The actual beating of the heart can be studied and every segment of the heart can yield vital information.

The expansion and contraction of the heart as seen by echocardiography can play a tremendous role in the early diagnosis and active treatment of patients with a heart problem.

The echocardiograph does not use X-rays. Consequently patients are not exposed to any radiation. The total procedure takes about 10 or 15 minutes and the informational yield by this new method is enormously important. More and more hospitals will be using echocardiography routinely for the earlier diagnosis of heart trouble.

Twice in the last few months I suddenly was unable to close my mouth. Once it happened while I was eating. The second time it happened when I was laughing heartily. After a few minutes I was able to close my mouth, but the pain lasted several hours. — Mr. P.D., Wash.

Dear Mr. D.: Your description graphically indicates the possibility that you may have had a dislocation of the jaw. Many people who have had a bad bite may have done damage to the bone and cartilage in the jaw joint. The constant irritation may have eroded a portion of it. When the mouth is opened wide during eating, laughing or yawning, the jaw can be displaced.

X-rays of the jaw can readily show if any bony changes have occurred. Since there are so many variations of jaw joint disturbances, there is no one way of treating it. In some instances a readjustment of the bite may be necessary. Occasionally injections of drugs and cortisone may be necessary. In advanced cases there are a number of simple surgical procedures which may be required.

The jaw joint has created much interest in recent years for when the bite of the teeth is improperly aligned, the jaw joint is the first area to give symptoms. Very often pain from the jaw joint area can be referred deep down in the ear, to the back of the ear in the mastoid area, and even to the neck, head, and shoulders.

Senate Approves NLRB Choice

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a week-long filibuster, William A. Lubbers has won Senate approval for a four-year term as general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board.

President Carter's appointment of Lubbers, 55, a 27-year employee of the NLRB, was confirmed on a 57-39 Senate vote Wednesday. Prior to his nomination for the $57,750-a-year job, Lubbers was executive secretary of the NLRB, a top aide to chairman John Fanning. Business groups opposed Lubbers' appointment on grounds that he was too pro-labor. They said the general counsel should be a more impartial person because he decides which complaints of federal labor law violations should be pursued by the five-member board.

By SANDY COLTON
AP Newsfeatures
Neal Ulevich, The Associated Press Asia photo editor based in Tokyo, has already become something of an old China hand by way of frequent visits there over the past few years. Here is his account on the status of photography in that country today.

CAMERAMAN IN CHINA: A heavily-padded Neal Ulevich, at right with camera, pauses with Chinese workers on the Yellow River levee at Tsinan, capital of Shandong province.

One Peking winter midnight two Chinese shivered at Democracy Wall and talked about their photos, mounted and tied to a line, like wash. Their "guerrilla" photo show attracted thousands during a three-day run in early 1979, even a few score at that hour.

"There is lots of talent and creativity among photographers working for the cultural departments of the government, but it is channeled into arid forms," complained one, a bespectacled accountant from Shandong. He was a member of a very modest photo club in his province. Total membership: three.

The glow, luminous under the pines of arc lamps at Peking's busy Xidan corner, carried such titles as "Forbidden Books," "Cold Winter," "Autumn Pool," "Candle Light," and "Angry But Silent."

"If we had been open about what we were doing we would have had official difficulties," he said. The photographs bordered on avant garde. Under the winds of change arose recently, China took a dim view of any art that deviated from officially endorsed forms.

He explained that the photo had ignored the cautionary advice of friends and two had brought photos to the capital, traveling on the pretext of visiting relatives. The third member of the photo club, a soldier, stayed home.

"If officials didn't like the pictures they would 'grab our pitgalls,'" the accountant had short hair, but the Ching dynasty slang expression was clear enough. He said he had never seen a western photo magazine or book. His enlarger was made at home (not unusual: China is a do-it-yourself country). Their camera is shared in common, a Chinese-made Seagull 35mm rangefinder. In China, chemicals are mixed by formula and paper is often hard to find.

But the difficulties didn't matter. In China, amateur photographers who must number in the millions, share a passion for images western photographers might easily understand, and seeking to make the most of China's own dated but serviceable gear. The media are experimenting, and a part of that is interchange with the foreign press. There is curiosity on both sides, and the shyness is wearing off.

"You take pictures everywhere, of everything," commented one older Xinhua cadre to a visiting American photographer. "Do you have a quota?"

Some Chinese photographers confessed relief and a certain rage at the outgoing practice of blatant staging, and of course blamed it all on the ousted "Gang of Four."

"This is ironic, in a way. Chiang Jing, Chairman Mao's widow and a member of the disgraced gang, was an ardent amateur. She preferred the Hasselblad.

Clean Emmissions. Great Performance. Fuel Efficiency.

All Volvo models for 1980 are equipped with the unique Lambda Sond emission system, a Volvo innovation which revolutionized the industry when first introduced three years ago.

The Lambda Sond system uses an exhaust gas sensor to monitor and control fuel mixture, as well as a 3-way catalytic converter. This combination provides low emission, excellent fuel economy and—best of all—terrific drivability.

Here at Bob Barbour Honda-Volvo, we're fortunate to be able to offer you one of the finest selections of new Volvos you'll find anywhere. # In Much Of U.S., Public Payrolls Are Shrinking

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The country's public payroll is getting smaller. More and more cities and states are laying off workers or not filling vacancies as they try to balance budgets squeezed by rising costs and a drop in federal aid.

Large-scale firings are still the exception rather than the rule; most areas report they are managing to cut employment by attrition instead. But government and union spokesmen say the situation will get worse as the economy weakens and as July 1 - the start of the fiscal year in many places - approaches.

Federal statistics from the Census Bureau show that state and local employment grew at an annual rate of 4 percent in the years from 1967 to 1974. The rate of growth slowed to 2 percent and then, in 1977 and 1978, to 1 percent. After 1978, public employment started to drop. "It's not new," said Don Wasserman, director of research for the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

Virginia is typical. State employment had been growing by 5 percent a year until 1979 when Gov. John Dalton put a freeze on hiring. Dalton said job vacancies could be filled only if the agency involved could justify its action to him. About 115 jobs - roughly two-tenths of a percent of the state payroll

- have been eliminated so far.

Gov. Hugh Gallen of New Hampshire has proposed a similar plan; vacant jobs could not be filled unless he and a fiscal committee from the Legislature agree. Gallen also wants to freeze upgrading of state employees from one pay level to the next.

Virginia and New Hampshire have avoided outright firings. Detroit hasn't. Almost 400 police already have been laid off. Mayor Coleman Young, facing a potential budget deficit of $56 million, wants to lay off an additional 703 members of the 4,600-member force - 670 off on Sept. 5 and the rest on Jan. 1, 1981.

Officials in New York City say no layoffs are planned, but the city payroll has been reduced by attrition. Kansas City, Mo., is laying off 76 of its 5,110 employees, ranging from professional engineers to laborers. An additional 100 jobs will be left vacant. "We're trying to minimize layoffs and maximize transfers," said Tom Lewinsohn, the city's personnel director.

A major problem for many cities is the potential loss of federal revenue sharing funds. President Carter has proposed eliminating the $2.3 billion program under which the states got block grants, then passed about 44 percent of the money on to local governments.

Unemployment in the private sector also is putting pressure on public workers. Tax revenues - from individuals and companies - are going down at the same time demand for services is going up. "We anticipate that we'll see some (layoffs), particularly in local government as the tax bases start to shrink with the shutdown of certain companies," said Thomas E. Schneider, executive director of the Montana Public Employees Association.

Gene Denton, the city manager of Wichita, Kan., blamed a combination of inflation, federal cutbacks and salary increases for a hiring freeze instituted on April 1. Cleveland is cutting about 650 from its work force of 10,000; 150 people will have to go when federal funds for public service jobs run out.

Wasserman is critical of federal lawmakers. "The administration has planned and wants a recession," he said. "They have talked of a recession with glee. It's quite obvious that we fault the administration and many in Congress who have tried to outdo the administration in cutbacks."

Local spending lids as well as federal ones have caused the loss of jobs. In New Jersey, for example, municipal budgets cannot increase by more than 5 percent a year without specific voter approval. Jack Trafford, executive director of the New Jersey League of Municipalities, said the limit was reasonable when it was enacted in 1976. "But with the inflation rate the way it is today, that's not very much...Every year you cut and cut and cut, and now many municipalities are cut to the wire."

Newark, N.J., cut its work force by 12 percent, including 258 police officers; Paterson laid off 188 administrative employees in 1979 and city officials are talking about firing 48 firefighters and 47 policemen this year. Orange eliminated 80 workers. "The present belt tightening will get worse," said Trafford.

Out in Wyoming, Robert Cantine, executive director of that state's Association of Municipalities, was equally pessimistic. He said mass layoffs have been avoided so far - "More of what we have is doing it through attrition. It's less painful that way." But he also said that local governments got only a tenth of what they asked for from the state this year. "It's going to be extremely difficult next year," said Cantine. "I think it's going to get much worse."

Robert Mosher, the state comptroller in Iowa, said that a recently announced freeze on hiring will last "at least a year." Meanwhile, Mosher said, "We will not fill a position unless it has been deemed absolutely necessary to do so."

William Boys, the director of the Illinois Department of Personnel, said the state has not been forced to freeze hiring or lay off workers so far. But he said that unemployment in private industry is having its effect on the state all the same. "I have noticed a considerable increase in the number of people applying for state jobs," Boys said.
