Allies Stand By Boycott

EUROPEAN SUMMIT — British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher (foreground, back to camera) faces the other heads of states and their foreign ministers in the European Council building in Luxembourg Sunday. The council members muted their displeasure over the abortive U.S. rescue attempt and stood by their threat to impose economic sanctions against Iran on May 17 unless "decisive progress" is made toward freeing the American hostages. "There was unanimous solidarity with the position of the United States" to release the hostages without harm, a British source said. (AP Laserphoto)

Iran Now Says American Bodies Will Be Returned

By The Associated Press
The bodies of the U.S. commandos killed in the abortive operation to rescue the American hostages in Iran will be handed over to representatives of Pope John Paul II, the International Red Cross and the Swiss government, Tehran Radio reported today.

The Swiss ambassador, the Red Cross representative in Tehran and the papal representative were not available immediately for comment. Switzerland represents U.S. interests in Iran since Washington broke diplomatic relations.

Four bomb explosions shook central Tehran, meanwhile, killing at least three persons and injuring many more. A spokesman for the revolutionary guards said no motives had been learned. The bombs were at a movie theater, under a car near the ministry of posts and telecommunications, in a bank and at a bazaar.

Meanwhile, some of the hostages were reported transferred from the embassy in Tehran to the former U.S. consulate in the northern city of Tabriz and the holy city of Qom, south of the Iranian capital.

The timing of the turnover was not known. The eight bodies were taken to Tehran's morgue after they were displayed in plastic bags Sunday on the ground at the U.S. Embassy and reporters and TV camera crews were called in to see them and photograph them.

"As there is no guarantee that the U.S. administration will return the bodies of the Americans killed in the abortive operation to their families, we decided to hand them over to representatives of Pope John Paul II, the International Red Cross Organization and the Swedish government," the broadcast said, citing a statement from the office of President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr.

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter today accepted the resignation of Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance in an extraordinary, public clash of views on the failed hostage rescue mission in Iran.

The White House released an exchange of hand-written letters in which Carter told his principal foreign policy adviser: "Because you could not support my decision regarding the rescue operation in Iran, you have made the correct decision to resign."

The president's letter, dated today, went on: "I know this is a matter of principle for you, and I respect the reasons you have expressed to me."

Vance's letter, written on State Department stationery last Monday and signed "Cy," said he had taken the decision "with a heavy heart."

After listing a number of the administration's foreign policy achievements, Vance told Carter: "I know how deeply you have pondered your decision on Iran. I wish I could support you in it. But for the reasons we have discussed I cannot."

Those reasons were not explained in the letters or by spokesman Powell, who said Vance had left in "an honorable difference in principle on this matter."

But privately, a senior administration official said Sunday night that Vance considered the mission too risky. It was called off by Carter last Thursday night

Washington time during an early stage in an Iranian desert after eight would-be American rescuers were killed in the collision of a transport plane and a helicopter.

Powell said Deputy Secretary of State Warren M. Christopher would take over for Vance as acting secretary of state.

"He (Christopher) certainly already has made clear his support of that decision," Powell said regarding the rescue operation.

Powell said Carter "expressed formally his inclination to move ahead" with the rescue attempt at a meeting with key advisers April 11. Vance was away in Florida on a weekend vacation, which he rarely took in 3½ years as secretary of state.

Asked why Vance had not been summoned back, Powell said it would have attracted too much attention in an operation that had to be kept secret.

However, Powell said, Carter and Vance had "extensive conversations" before the mission was actually launched during which Vance registered his differences.

It was understood, meanwhile, that Hodding Carter, who has been Vance's spokesman as assistant secretary of state for public affairs, was also resigning, but officials declined public comment.

One U.S. official, who declined to be identified, said Vance was the only member of the National Security Council who opposed the rescue operation as too risky. "They had a good relationship," the official said of Vance and Carter, "but both concluded it was impossible for him to function as secretary of state."

Earlier, another official, who also declined to be identified, said that while

Vance was troubled recently with the flu and gout, he intended to quit as a result of policy disagreements. "Anything can happen at the last minute, but that's the way it looks now," the official said.

It was not known who would replace Vance, but speculation centered on Warren Christopher, the deputy secretary whose role grew as Vance's declined.

Asencio Not Impressed

By ANNE S. CROWLEY
Associated Press Writer
HOMESTEAD AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Diego Asencio, freed after 61 days as a hostage in Colombia, called his guerrilla captors a "bunch of spaced-out teenyboppers" and said he nearly dissuaded some of them from Marxism.

An exuberant Asencio told a State Department spokesman he could have converted a few of the leftists to capitalism if he'd had more time with them in the Dominican Republic Embassy at Bogota.

"They didn't have the foggiest idea what the real world is like," spokesman David Passage quoted the 48-year-old diplomat as saying.

Asencio, who was freed in Havana on Sunday along with 11 other captive diplomats, arrived here 20 pounds lighter and with a bushy gray beard.

On the 40-minute flight to Homestead, he expressed "no sympathy" for his Marxist captors, but "considerable human understanding," said Passage.

"He said he was making great progress in converting some of them to capitalism," Passage said by telephone

Sunday from the ambassador's suite at the base.

"A number of them were quite surprised at some of the things he said...he thought with a little more time he probably could have converted half a dozen or so of them."

The spokesman said Asencio, the U.S. ambassador to Colombia since 1977, was in excellent health and his mood was "celebratory... like somebody who had just won the 'Fort Lauderdale Open' or something."

Asencio stepped off the chartered plane into the arms of his wife, Nancy, and daughter, Maria. His other daughter and three sons arrived later Sunday for a reunion, Passage said.

The hostages, who were accompanied on a flight from Bogota by 15 leftist guerrillas, were greeted in Havana by Passage, two American doctors and Samuel Eaton, a deputy assistant secretary of state. The papal nuncio, Msgr. Angelo Acerbi, and a Vatican negotiator flew with the Americans to Homestead, then left immediately, Passage said.

Boatlift To Freedom Survived A Storm In The Florida Straits

By DAN SEWELL
Associated Press Writer
KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — The week-old Cuban boatlift that has ferried 3,500 refugees to freedom in defiance of U.S. government warnings survived a furious storm that swept the Florida Straits with hurricane force winds.

"If there was anybody out there, they wouldn't have a chance," a National Weather Service forecaster said Sunday as winds gusted to 90 mph across the 90 miles of churning sea.

But the U.S. Coast Guard, which received 29 rescue calls in one five-minute period alone Sunday, reported no deaths or serious injuries. "The people today should consider themselves very lucky," Cmdr. Samuel J. Dennis said.

Six boats carrying 650 Cubans arrived Sunday morning before the thunderstorm interrupted the influx. Among them was a 6-hour-old boy, born to one of 200 refugees packed aboard a 68-foot shrimp boat.

While the flow of refugees was momentarily halted, the battle over what to do with them intensified. In Miami, the ultimate destination of most refugees, Mayor Maurice Ferre said he would seek to have the city declared a disaster area to obtain more federal aid.

Meanwhile, an Immigration and Naturalization Service official in Key West said there are signs that Castro is beginning to clean out his jails and mental institutions.

"We had some people here today who said they had been in prison and we had a couple who were obviously mentally deranged," INS officer Kent Wheeler said.

Coast Guard cutters towed in nearly 20 disabled boats Sunday, and six exiles were plucked from the sea by a Coast Guard helicopter after their boat sank. One 24-foot boat was found capsized about 30 miles north of Cuba with a life jacket the only remaining sign of its crew.

"I felt like this was it, welcome to Death," said Rafael Sotolongo, rescued after his 21-foot boat overturned. "I commended my soul to God."

Apparently, no boats left the Cuban port of Mariel Sunday, but the morning arrivals swelled the total to more than 3,500 since the mass exodus began a week ago.

The U.S. State Department had earlier said it would accept 3,500 of the more than 10,000 Cubans who sought refuge in the Peruvian Embassy in Havana three weeks ago. Since then, the Cuban government has said it is allowing virtually anyone to get out.

As many as 2,000 boats are jammed into Mariel awaiting their turns to pick up their relatives and embassy refugees, and officials estimate that as many as 250,000 Cubans could be brought back.

The State Department has issued stern warnings that the boatlift is illegal and INS officers have issued citations to returning boat captains, telling them they may be fined $1,000 for each refugee. But the captains and INS officers here have laughed off the citations so far, believing they will not be enforced.

Backlash

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The suburban home of Barbara Timm is under police guard as angry and sometimes threatening telephone callers vent their rage against her apology to Iran for the ill-fated raid to rescue the American hostages in Tehran, including her son.

Mrs. Timm was in London following a trip to Tehran to see her 20-year-old son, Marine Sgt. Kevin Hermening. She was "extremely upset and distraught" by the "inhuman" telephone calls, said her lawyer Carl McAfee.

"I cannot visualize anyone calling Barbara Timm unpatriotic," he said in a telephone interview.

After the flood of hostile calls over the weekend, the telephone was off the hook Sunday. Police in suburban Oak Creek, a town of 15,000, dispatched extra patrol cars and placed the Timms' single-story, ranch-style house under surveillance after a telephoned threat Saturday to burn it down.

"Our house was supposed to be blown up last Monday, but we're still here," her 18-year-old son Kelly Hermening said. "It was supposed to be burned down last night, but we're still here."

Missiles, Too

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The Russians are reported to have brought ballistic missiles into Afghanistan that carry nuclear warheads and have enough range to control entry into the Persian Gulf.

"The Soviets have equipped themselves with medium-range ballistic missiles in Afghanistan. It is believed that these carry nuclear as well as high explosive warheads," reporter H.N. Kaul of the Press Trust of India wrote Sunday.

Kaul returned to New Delhi Friday after spending several weeks in Kabul, the Afghan capital, with Chhotu Karadia of the news magazine India Today.

"The Soviets have brought in intercontinental missiles with nuclear warheads," Karadia wrote in his article. They both quoted informed sources in Kabul.

"The ballistic missiles do not make any military sense in the context of the Afghan situation," Kaul wrote, but he said he had heard two explanations:

—They are meant as a deterrent to low-flying, radar-avoiding U.S. cruise missiles which can be fired from B-52 bombers taking off from their Indian Ocean base at Diego Garcia.

—They can keep the Americans off balance in the Persian Gulf, including the Strait of Hormuz, through which much of the world's oil travels.

Kaul said the missiles have a range of more than 3,000 miles and could be fired from Soviet soil, but that moving them 800 miles further south improved accuracy and helped guard against weather problems.

VOTING MACHINES?

I'd like to know why a progressive county like Pitt does not have voting machines. R. W.

Cliff Everett Jr., chairman of the County Board of Elections, said the board is looking at new computerized vote counters now and that he has had a preliminary discussion with the county manager on the possibility of recommending that the County Commissioners purchase a few of these to be used in the precincts with the largest number of voters.

He said he is glad that Pitt County never bought any of the old levered voting machines. These, he said, were very expensive and finicky about where and how they were stored. They really slowed down voting, too, he said, though the counting was faster. They're not being bought any more by any counties in North Carolina, he said he has been told.

With the new counters, paper ballots are still used, though they're stiffer like computer cards, and marking can be done as it has always been in booths. The cards are fed into the counting machine and the tally is constantly kept so that, at poll-closing time, the totals can be obtained almost instantly.

The cost of each machine, he said, is expected to be between $3,200 and $3,300.

There are 24 precincts in the county, he said, adding that he hopes eventually to have these counters in every precinct. "That'll take time, though," he said, "because it costs money."

Visitor Seeks Kennedy Votes

CAMPAIGNING FOR KENNEDY — Congressman Walter E. Fauntroy, representing the District of Columbia as a non-voting member of Congress, with Charlie Sherrod, vice-president of the East Carolina University Student Government Association, and Kenneth R. Hammond, program director for Mendenhall Student Center at ECU at Pitt-Greenville airport, this morning. Congressman Fauntroy spoke to students at the student supply store on campus, urging them to vote for Sen. Edward Kennedy in the May 6 primary. Fauntroy, former Mayor of Washington, D.C., said Kennedy is the best choice for the Democratic Party in 1980. He arrived from Raleigh this morning, too late to keep a speaking engagement at the Bachelor Benedict Club. However, club members went to the ECU campus to here Fauntroy. Following his visit here, the congressman traveled to Wilson for another Kennedy campaign session.

Press Award Goes To Local Writer

Greenville free lance writer Patricia Moore has been honored by the North Carolina Press Women with a third-place award in news writing.

Mrs. Moore was recognized during the annual banquet of the Press Women held at the Carolina Inn in Chapel Hill Saturday evening. Her winning entry was an account of her family's evacuation from their home during the Coastal Chemical Fire Feb. 19, 1979. It was written in an evacuation center set up at Rose High School that snowy morning and published in the same day's issue of "The Daily Reflector."

A Raleigh native, Mrs. Moore is a former "Daily Reflector" staff writer. She and her husband, Dr. Charles H. Moore, and their two sons, Charles II and Jeffrey, live in the Lynndale neighborhood here.

Reflector staff writer Carol Tyer was named membership chairman for the eastern Fifth District of N.C. Press Women during the same meeting. Mrs. Tyer and Mrs. Rosalie Trotman, Reflector Woman's editor, attended the weekend gathering of newspaperwomen from throughout the state.

DEAR READERS: APPALLED IN K.C. wrote that she was upset because her married daughter planned to let her 3-year-old son and 19-year-old unmarried sister witness the birth of her second child. My reply: "There is no better way to learn about the miracle of life than to witness childbirth. I see nothing shocking or immodest about it. A 3-year-old should find it a fascinating and educational experience."

Well, after that letter hit print, Ernie, my dear, devoted mailman, was threatened with a double hernia from schlepping those 40-pound sacks of mail into my office!

The letters are running 100 to 1 against my answer. Today, a sampling of the pros. (Tomorrow, the cons.):

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I had our second child naturally. Our daughter, then 2 years 9 months old, witnessed the entire birth, coaching me with, "Push, Mama, push!" It was a truly joyous occasion! If children are informed properly throughout the pregnancy with visual aids (books, films, etc.), they will be accepting and knowledgeable about the event. There is no need to hide the truth from a child. To experience reality now is to be unafraid later.

PATRICIA GONZALES, SANTA MONICA, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: I was in a natural childbirth program at Illinois' Masonic Hospital in Chicago. My husband and Sarah, our 2½-year-old daughter, watched the delivery. (The child was told what to expect.) My parents also watched, and were moved by it. Nobody got "sick." We also filmed the whole procedure, and we treasure those films. We often watch it together to relive a great moment in our lives. Our children will grow up to respect the miracle of pregnancy and childbirth as a sacred gift from God, instead of something to get rid of.

C.M. AND FAMILY, CHICAGO

DEAR ABBY: Three cheers for your open-mindedness regarding making childbirth a family affair! Birth is a normal, natural human function that should be celebrated by the entire family. Siblings who are prepared for what is happening will be more understanding and loving to the new baby they "helped" to bring into the world. There is so much more unity in the family that has "birthed" together. When one considers its beginning, no wonder the American family is disintegrating. Mom is in the recovery room, Dad is pacing the corridor, the baby is in the nursery and the siblings are shuttled off to Grandma's. The family never had a chance; it wasn't even born together.

PATRICE GEDDES, BAKERSFIELD, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: Last December I gave birth to a healthy, beautiful boy. Both my husband and mother-in-law were present during my labor and delivery. My husband and I took childbirth education classes, which prepared us well for the birth. I delivered completely naturally, without drugs or medication. My mother-in-law later said she learned more from witnessing my son's birth than she had from giving birth to four of her own children.

PROUD MOTHER IN TUCSON

DEAR ABBY: Our 4-year-old son attended childbirth classes with us and he also witnessed the birth of his little brother. Because of this experience there has never been any jealousy between the siblings. Childbirth has nothing to do with modesty. It is God's greatest miracle. Since we all came into this world the same way, why should anyone find it disgusting or loathsome? No name, please. My husband is a state senator.

ANONYMOUS

DEAR ABBY: You will probably get a lot of mail telling you you're crazy, but here's one for your side. Parents think nothing of telling their children that kittens come from cats, puppies from dogs and chickens from eggs, so why should they say that babies come from "the hospital," "the doctor's bag" or "a cabbage patch"? Children won't make a big deal out of anything unless their parents do. Honesty is always the best policy.

'Cold Turkey' Hardest, Best

NEW YORK (AP) — Trying to kick the cigarette habit "cold turkey" may be the hardest and most severe method, but it is also the most effective, according to two University of California scientists.

Saul M. Shiffman and Dr. Murray E. Jarvik, of the Neuropsychiatric Institute of the UCLA School of Medicine in Los Angeles, say that smokers who quit suddenly suffer less withdrawal symptoms than those who choose other methods.

The scientists say about 90 percent of the smokers who tried to gradually stop puffing suffer from a "severe craving for tobacco," that lasts about two weeks.

On the other hand, they said withdrawal symptoms seemed to ease during the first few days for those who quit "cold turkey," making it easier to hold out until the craving pains run their course.

Failure Due Fine Dust?

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — An Israeli professor working on a U.S.-financed turbine engine project said today the American rescue attempt in Iran may have failed because fine desert dust clogged the helicopters' turbine engines.

Prof. Benjamin Gal-Or of the Haifa Technion, Israel's Institute of Technology, said he was not surprised that three of the eight Sikorsky RH-53D helicopters in the rescue mission broke down on their way to a refueling stop deep in Iranian territory.

"With the helicopters flying at low altitude, through a dust storm, I am surprised they got as far as they did," Gal-Or said in a telephone interview. "That dust can ruin an engine in 10 minutes."

Gal-Or is working on a new filtering system suitable for Middle East desert conditions. He said the five-year-old project is financed by the U.S. Army and the General Electric Corp.

"So far no technological solution has been found," Gal-Or said.

13-Year-Old In Business

CHELMSFORD, Mass. (AP) — The business card reads: "Independent Microcomputer Software Specialist."

But what's micro is the cardholder — Gregory Hasset, 5-foot-4, 125 pounds, and 13 years old.

The ninth grader at McCarthy Junior High School is president — in fact, the only officer — of Adventure World, designers of computer software, claiming earnings of $5,000 since last summer.

He went into business formally in March by getting cards and letterheads printed. He said he plans to advertise soon in computer field trade magazines, through which he has already sold tapes for computer games he's invented to 15 dealers in Massachusetts, Michigan and California.

He averages four to six hours daily working on game tapes. He has expanded by producing a program to track accounts receivable and to control inventory for a Woburn firm.

His father, Frank, 48, is manager of software development at Digital Equipment Corp., of Maynard, Mass., and stimulated his youngest son's interest in computers three years ago when he brought home a video display terminal.

Gregory hasn't paid income tax yet — he's allowed to earn $3,300 annually tax-free under U.S. law. He figures that once free of school he could build an annual million-dollar-volume business.

But he's got a more immediate pressing problem. With his new earning power, he no longer gets an allowance: "Now I've got to cut the lawn for free."

children. Jones and MacArthur High School principal Solomon Barnes were indicted by the Dade County Grand Jury in February, in what "The Miami Herald" has called the "Gold Plumbing Caper."

The Dade County system is the fifth largest school system in the country, with an annual budget of more than $500 million.

The grand jury accused the men of devising a scheme to use school system money to purchase top-of-the-line fixtures — some of them gold-plated — for a nonexistent plumbing class at Barnes' school.

Both Jones and Barnes are building new homes.

The contractor for Jones' $121,000 weekend retreat at Naples, Fla., told prosecutors that the superintendent, in January, ordered changes in construction to accommodate similar fixtures.

The purchase of the fixtures was cancelled and the incident made public after an employe of the plumbing supply company complained to school officials, and the news media, about the apparent extravagance of the items.

The money to pay for the fixtures allegedly came from the superintendent's $1.25 million Special Needs Fund, charged to, "basketball uniforms and equipment," for Barnes' school.

Among the fixtures that were ordered were a $750 sunken bathtub with gold-plated grab rails and a $536 gold-trimmed bidet. Barnes said the fixtures were for a display for a planned plumbing course and designed to create interest among the students of his high school — a school for pupils with disciplinary or learning problems. He added that the gold trim resulted from a typographical error.

In a disposition, Jones said the downpayment for the weekend home came from money his wife found in an unused fireplace of her uncle's house in Mississippi. He has also said some of the money for the Naples house came from the sale of a nursing home in Winterville, N.C. — the Winterville Rest Home Inc. — in October 1979. His parents, William H. and Lucy D. Jones of 602 Bancroft Ave., owned the rest home (Jones Eastside Rest Home) prior to the sale.

Mitchell Goldman, Jones' attorney, has denied the fixtures were for the new house, located on a five acre tract of land in Collier County, on Florida's West Coast. Jones has also denied any wrongdoing.

The charge of accepting improper payments from a reading program salesman came during the week of April 14, after the salesman admitted paying Jones $70,000, and investigators recorded 14 telephone conversations between the two men, during which the transactions were discussed.

Court records indicate that the payments to Jones were made in cash and negotiable bond coupons, and the money was deposited in an account at First State Bank in Winterville, N.C.

The Dade County school board suspended him in a special session, February 24, the day following his indictment on the grand theft charge.

Jones was elected Dade County superintendent in 1977. His contract was extended last fall and his salary raised to $62,512 per year, with an escalator which would make his salary $79,270 in 1983.

Not only was Jones Dade County's highest ranking black official and first black school superintendent, he has a national reputation and is considered one of the leading educators in the South. In February, he was on a list of prospects under consideration as superintendent of the Chicago public school system, and there had been talk in Miami about the possibility of Jones someday becoming Secretary of the U.S. Department of Education.

Jones, now 46, was born in Greenville in 1933. He won a scholarship to Bethune-Cookman College, where he graduated in 1955. After spending three years in the U.S. Air Force, and teaching for five years at a Central Florida high school, he entered the University of Idaho, and became the first black to receive a doctorate there.

He joined the Dade County school system in 1967 as an assistant principal, was named principal of a school in 1968, and in 1971, after returning from six months of post-doctoral work at Yale University, he was named chief of the system's Northwest District. Jones was named deputy superintendent of the school system two years later.

In addition to his duties as head of the Dade County school system, Jones is a trustee of the University of Miami, and an associate member of the Orange Bowl committee.

Couple Speaks Vows On Saturday Afternoon

Miss Nancy Eloise Barber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Barber, was married to Daniel James Nelson of San Saba, Tex. at 4 p.m. Saturday at Oakmont Baptist Church here.

The Rev. and Mrs. Alfred E. Nelson of Petoskey, Mich. are parents of the bride-groom.

The double ring ceremony was conducted by the bridegroom's father. Nuptial music was presented by Dr. and Mrs. Charles Bath at piano and violin; Diane Bridger, organist; Mark Harrell, trumpeter and Terry Leggett and Paul Nelson, vocalists.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of white silk organza over peau de soie. The Queen Anne neckline was accentuated by scalloped re-embroidered alencon lace which extended down the fitted bodice and bordered the full circular skirt and chapel length train. Long sheer sleeves ended in a calla point of lace and closed with bridal buttons. Her matching chapel length mantilla of silk illusion and re-embroidered alencon lace was attached to a Camelot headpiece of matching lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of white sweetheart roses and stephanotis, mixed with baby's breath.

He is working as minister of youth and music at the First Baptist Church, San Saba, Tex. The bride will be teaching piano students in San Saba.

Miss Pate Marries On Sunday

PLYMOUTH — The First Christian Church was the scene for the marriage of Robin Ann Pate and Robert Horace Tripp who were united Sunday at 3 p.m.

At Least We Did Try

The United States — and for that matter the entire world — was stunned by the failure of a super secret mission to free the American hostages in Terham.

As is well known by now the mission ended with eight American military men dead, two aircraft burned and wrecked on the ground and helicopters left behind.

Back in our own country no one really knew how to react. The campaigners for the presidential nomination were generally restrained in their comments, preferring to leave the fall out from the aborted mission to scatter where it would. That was to their credit. It was no time for shooting from the hip on the part of any presidential candidate. It was a daring raid and it could have worked. It just didn't.

What went wrong? Just about everything in the mechanical line. Three helicopters failed leaving the group with too little transportation to get everybody out, even if the embassy rescue had been successful. Then two aircraft collided on the ground as the party prepared to evacuate.

As frustrating as the event was it is really not a time for recriminations. Our nation had been searching for some way to resolve the crisis, first through diplomatic channels and then through other means. Those other means included some of the bravest this country has ever produced, who were willing to risk their lives in a hostile country to save their fellow countrymen.

We tried and we failed — but at least we tried, and the world knows that we still intend to do everything we can to see that these innocent people are freed.

The Postal Conspiracy

WASHINGTON — As a child of the Sixties I am willing to buy any conspiracy theory about our government. The latest one going around has to do with how the Post Office is handling the mail, now that it is facing its 1,987th financial crunch.

The theory is being pushed by Herman Talcott, whose book, "Today's Post Office Could Never Find Lincoln's Gettysburg Address," has been on the best-seller list for months.

Talcott told me, "Have you ever wondered why you can get a catalogue from Hammacher Schlemmer the day after it's posted, but it takes two weeks to receive a check mailed to you from the same city?"

I admitted I had. "Well," he told me, "the Post Office has installed new computers that sort out the junk mail from the letters you are really waiting for. The junk mail gets first priority and first-class mail goes out at the house the same day it was sent out. A letter from my agent asking me if I was interested in writing the screen version of 'Casablanca' came in two days later."

"How does the computer distinguish between mail you don't want to get and mail you're waiting for?"

"It has a scanner which reads the addresses. All mail addressed to 'Resident' gets sorted first. Then any letters that have a cellophane window are neatly placed in the same pile. Those that say 'IF YOU OPEN THIS ENVELOPE NOW YOU COULD WIN A MILLION DOLLARS' get special handling. Then the scanner picks out all the electric, gas and oil bills to make sure they're delivered on time."

"And finally it gets around to sorting the first-class mail?" I asked.

"No," he said. "Then it breaks down, and takes a week to be repaired."

"Well, no computer is perfect," I said. "I'm sure the Post Office will get its scanner bugs worked out in the next decade."

"Even if they did," Talcott said, "they have a fail-safe system to make sure your first-class letters don't arrive before your bills and junk mail."

"Are you sure?" "I'm certain of it. The Post Office has developed a new conveyor belt to mutilate any personal letter that slips through the system. Any hand-addressed envelope with a 15 cent stamp will automatically self-destruct once it hits the belt."

I still wasn't about to buy Talcott's conspiracy theory until I got home that evening and found my wife crying. "We've been invited to the White House for a State Dinner."

"Well, why are you crying?" I asked.

"It's being given by the

Annual Meet A Tradition

Last week the John Pierce Fellowship Club met once again on the banks of Contentnea Creek near Grifton.

The club meets annually and its sole purpose is fellowship and, incidentally, to give participants a chance to meet and talk with those who are running for office.

On election years the candidates are there in droves. This year was no exception. They included Gov. Hunt, many other candidates and representatives of others.

The meeting has grown into a real political tradition in Eastern North Carolina — one that we hope will continue for many years in the future.

THIS AFTERNOON

Foulup In Census

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Local officials who had been promised a chance to double check the U.S. Census Bureau's homework in this year's nosecount are victims of another federal government foulup.

A local review program which had been promised to allow county and municipal officials plenty of time to look over preliminary information and spot errors has been canceled.

In North Carolina, where the undercount in the 1970 census is estimated at more than the national average of 2.5 percent, this is an especially troublesome development.

Numerous federal aid programs are based upon census population and housing numbers. Incidents from the past in which large areas were not covered by census takers; even entire sections of municipalities not included within proper governmental borders, appear to be in the works again this time around.

After the slip-ups 10 years ago, local officials protested so strongly that the Census Bureau promised the local review process.

Headstart
Essentially that procedure would have involved giving local governments the boundary maps of governmental subdivisions so that all could be certain they conformed to latest town growth patterns and annexations, and a house count which could be rather quickly and reliably verified by local officials making a "windshield survey" of representative areas.

In March, however, federal officials sent letters to local mayors setting forth certain

"modifications" and "revisions in scope."

The changes, however, eliminated the review of housing counts entirely, and the maps for boundary checks are those showing 1978 lines instead of new ones. Obviously, towns which have grown in the time since then will have no way to check and see if the added population is credited to them for funding purposes. The 1980 maps will not be ready until after the limited local review process is completed.

As for time to thoroughly check the federal process, local officials have been told they will have only 10 working days in June to look at the material provided them — such as it is — and notify the Census Bureau of any errors or discrepancies.

To further complicate the Catch-22 foulup, local officials who think something may be wrong can ask for a special census report which will contain preliminary housing and population counts based on 1980 data. But that information won't be available until after the deadline for claiming errors has passed. And besides, the special form will still have the same preliminary count errors on it as did the

Other Editors Say Yes, Clean Up!

(Greensboro Daily News)

Gov. Jim Hunt's decision to ask Virginia Gov. John Dalton for his state's help in cleaning up the Chowan River is a sound one. Though North Carolina officials are guilty of some foot-dragging — as in "Let's appoint a commission to study this problem" — much of the junk that clogs the Chowan in eastern North Carolina comes downstream from Virginia.

In the report by the latest commission to study the problem, one section notes the points of origin of nitrogen dumped in the tributaries that feed the river. Of the 159 contributing institutions, ranging from schools to laundromats to city water supplies to paper mills, 124 are in Virginia. By far the biggest loads are dumped by the Union Camp company's paper mill and industrial complex at Franklin, Va.

North Carolina has its share of polluters as well, chief among which is the CF Industries fertilizer plant at Tunis. However, CF officials have promised cooperation in clean-up efforts along the Chowan, and the retaining wall they have built at the plant to stop run-off is a good measure of their sincerity.

Ironically, though it takes pride in nagging the fertilizer manufacturer, North Carolina is on the opposite side of the fence when it comes to regulating the manufacturer's product. The 1979 General Assembly removed commercial fertilizers from the list of substances controlled by the state's pollution laws, a bit of mischief that ought to be reversed when next the Legislature meets. Unregulated fertilizer run-off from fields into creeks and rivers does almost as much harm to the water system as industrial dumping, and experience shows that farmers and agribusiness tycoons are no more susceptible to cajoling than their industrial counterparts. Pressure from the state, however, gets results, as that retaining wall at the CF Industries plant proves.

The pressure must continue. And it must begin in earnest in Virginia, because the Union Camp dumping is the key to the whole problem. Until that company is forced to comply with state and federal pollution laws, the Chowan will stay "dead", the designation given any body of free-flowing water when nothing can live in it. Indeed, so badly does Union Camp pollute the Chowan's tributaries that any cleansing efforts downstream are pointless without its cooperation.

Strength For Today

TURN ON THE POWER
The word "power" occurs 250 times in the New Testament. The Greek word for power is "dunamis", from which we get the English words dynamo, dynamic, and dynamite.

The nature of Christianity is set forth in this word power. The final words which Jesus left with his disciples are these: "All power hath been given unto me in heaven and on earth; go ye therefore..." Because he has power, we can have power. As the Master is, so is the disciple. Since the vine has life and vitality, the branch can have the same.

Yet so often people speak of religion in terms of creedal statements and rituals. Belief is important, of course; but the poorest creed put into practice is better than the best creed locked in a showcase to be taken out on Sunday.

Christianity is power. Christ is the source of that power. We can have that power if we repent and acknowledge him as our Lord.

Blue Collar Vote In Pa.

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
CORAOPOLIS, PA. — A well-dressed woman, crowded to the wall at the Coraopolis Elks hall by voters trying for a better look at Ronald Reagan election eve, was the key to his defeat in the Pennsylvania primary the next day — and to his chances to become president.

The woman identified herself as a local Republican leader in this lower-middle-income Pittsburgh suburb and said she supports George Bush for president. She had come to the Reagan rally to "pay my respects." But wasn't she worried by the big turnout? "Oh, no. Almost everybody here is a Democrat," she replied, pointing to the unruly throng with seeming distaste. "These people can't vote in our primary tomorrow. Our people are for Bush."

It was "our people" who kept Bush afloat as a presidential candidate by winning Pennsylvania, where crossover voting is not permitted. The defeat thereby pointed up how much Reagan depends on that Elks hall blue-collar vote in primary states that do permit crossover voting and in November — more than his right-wing supporters dream and perhaps than Reagan himself appreciates.

Reagan certainly understands that his advocacy of Kemp-Roth tax reduction (30 percent cut over three years), though it bothers some of his own advisers, goes over big with working men and women. But he seems to forget how important they are to him when he lapses into reflexive labor-baiting, as he did the day of the Pennsylvania primary.

Bush's Pennsylvania win was based on a 3-to-2 margin in Philadelphia's well-heeled, traditionally Republican suburbs, where blue collars are seldom worn. Outspending the nearly bankrupt Reagan campaign better than 12 to 1, Bush successfully appealed to Republicans with a relentless attack on Reagan's Kemp-Roth support as a violation of the classical economics he learned at Yale. The first innovative Republican economic strategy since the New Deal was thereby rejected by Pennsylvania Republicans Tuesday.

That is why key Reagan backers in this state privately complain about his plugs for Kemp-Roth. But not Rep. Robert Walker, a populist conservative who backed Reagan in 1976 when Reagan's present state leadership was saving the state for Gerald Ford. "The blue-collar workers want a tax cut," Walker told us as Reagan visited his district. "It's the economists who have trouble with it."

Reagan has been 1980's only Republican presidential hopeful who consistently attacks the Carter administration's high taxes and calls for lower taxes across the board. On his last pre-election Pennsylvania tour, he triggered stormy applause from Republican audiences at Springfield in the Philadelphia suburbs and at Scranton airport. But his tax-cut pitch seemed to confuse them; it brought only silence.

Not at the Elks hall here. The Democratic-infested audience (many without Republican ties and jackets) cheered Reagan's tax-cut promises before rushing to the fried fish and keg beer. After that rally, Reagan commented to us that one-third of all "working Americans" have entered the 30 percent tax bracket and predicted the number soon "will probably be up to half."

Yet, the next morning at St. Mary's College in South Bend, Ind., Reagan seemed to ignore his need to woo those overtaxed "working Americans" when a young questioner asked whether antitrust laws should be applied to organized labor.

That was an echo of 20 years ago when right-wing businessmen sought to checkmate labor by outlawing national bargaining.

While tax reduction would surely be high on President Reagan's agenda, antitrust restrictions on labor would not even be discussed. Yet, Reagan could not say "no" to this old bromide. He started cautiously, saying "we should look very closely" at the idea but later in a press conference endorsed it outright.

"This hurts," one aide confided to us. Reagan had handed labor leaders a weapon to convince union members that Reagan threatens their paycheck. "I'm sure all the reporters will lead their stories with this," the aide mused. He was wrong; Reagan's defeat in Pennsylvania smoothed out the blunder.

No More Squeeze

BY EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — At last, George Bush was not the man in the middle.

In primary after primary, Bush found himself caught in the squeeze between Ronald Reagan and John Anderson. Reagan drew heavily from his solid base of support from conservative Republicans while Anderson built his campaign with a foundation of liberals.

This left Bush in the middle, without a defined constituency and usually in second — or even third — place in the GOP primary battles.

But in Pennsylvania's presidential primary, Bush wasn't in the middle. It was one-on-one with Reagan and Bush came out on top.

Of course, Bush campaigned hard in Pennsylvania, while Reagan, his campaign straining against the federal spending limits, campaigned much less.

But Republicans in the Keystone State who didn't want Reagan as their party's nominee only had two choices — vote for Bush or don't vote. There could be no splintering of the anti-Reagan vote, for Anderson had failed to qualify for the ballot.

And this was made clear with the issue of Reagan's age.

Widely Back Hostage Rescue

By EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Americans overwhelmingly approve of the military effort to free the hostages in Iran, and they say President Carter waited too long to use military force to try to end the months-long crisis, an Associated Press-NBC News poll says.

The public also thinks another military effort to free the more than 50 Americans should be considered, although that now seems unlikely with the militants' decision to scatter the hostages to various cities outside Tehran.

However, even with the strong support for the aborted rescue effort, Americans' rating of Carter's handling of the Iranian crisis has slipped another notch. Americans awoke Friday morning to the news that U.S. military men had tried and failed in an attempt to spirit the hostages away from their militant captors. Equipment failures and tragic mistakes in the desert south of Tehran aborted the mission hundreds of miles short of its goal, Carter told the nation in a early morning statement.

The AP-NBC News poll was conducted on Friday and Saturday, after the failure of the mission was announced, and is based on telephone interviews with 1,603 adults nationwide.

By better than a two-to-one margin, Americans supported the military effort to free the hostages.

Sixty-six percent said they approved of the attempt. Twenty-four percent said they disapproved. Three percent rejected the effort because it failed, and 7 percent were not sure.

Despite this support, the public judgment is that Carter waited too long after the hostages were seized last Nov. 4 to use military force.

Two-thirds — 66 percent — said that the military strike came too late in the crisis, while only 13 percent said Carter should have waited even longer to take military action. Twelve percent said the action's timing was proper and 9 percent were not sure.

The AP-NBC News poll taken over the weekend found 46 percent of the public disapproving of Carter's handling of the Iranian crisis, while 42 percent approved.

That was down slightly from the finding of the March AP-NBC News poll, which found Americans approving of the president's handling of the crisis by a 47-40 edge, and far below the 69-21 approval margin he had in late November. Ten percent were not sure and 2 percent had not heard of the crisis this month.

Even though the military strike failed to free the hostages, the public would like to see another effort considered.

Fifty-four percent of those questioned in the AP-NBC News poll said the U.S. government should consider a second effort, while 34 percent opposed another try. Twelve percent were not sure.

As with all sample surveys, the results of the AP-NBC News poll can vary from the opinions of all Americans because of chance variations in the sample.

Thunderstorm Damage Light

Greenville and Pitt County survived Sunday's heavy thunderstorms with no serious damage and many residents, especially farmers, breathed a sigh of relief at the much-needed rain.

Only minor power outages were reported by Greenville Utilities during the storm. "We didn't have any main outages," reported Assistant Director Malcolm Green, "just a few fuses blowing." Green reported that these blowouts were scattered, and did not affect any major areas. "The computers inside the stations did record 20 or 30 direct lightning strikes," he added. "It was surprisingly quiet last night, though." Other utility commissions around the county reported conditions were similar in their areas.

According to Sam Uzzell, Pitt County agricultural extension agent, the storm and the hail it brought did not pose any serious problems for farmers. "The rain evidently did more good than it did harm," he commented. "I haven't received any calls this morning about damage. All that rain and the fact that the creeks haven't risen sharply indicates to me that a lot of it soaked in."

According to the Greenville Utilities Water Plant, as of 8 a.m. today, the area received 1.21 inches of rain in the past 24 hours. The Tar River stood at 4.8 feet this morning and temperatures ranged from a low of 58 degrees to a high of 82 degrees

That defeat compels Reagan to stay on the campaign trail against Bush, whose one hope for the nomination is that Reagan will make a colossal blunder under merciless questioning. Yet, with only half a million dollars (to Bush's $3.5 million) left for primary campaigns, he needs to meet the press for all the free television he can get. Those chance encounters invite disasters.

Reagan's advisers want to whisk him off the campaign trail, away from dangerous questions from newsmen bored with his basic speech, and out to his Santa Barbara ranch for private discussions about general election strategy. That strategy will refine his pitch for blue-collar voters. Ironically, inability of those voters to cross over for him in Pennsylvania prolongs his liability to self-inflicted wounds that could be much more severe than the damage at St. Mary's College.

VANCE 'NOT WELL' WASHINGTON (AP) — Cyrus R. Vance, who resigned today as Secretary of State, has been using a cane because of an attack of gout. He also suffers from a chronic back problem and recently got over an attack of flu.

Witt Col...

About one-quarter of the GOP voters in Pennsylvania said the fact that Reagan is 69 years old makes him less able to handle the presidency. This was about the same percentage as had been found in Associated Press/NBC News polls of Republican voters in seven previous primaries.

And previously, that group splintered among Reagan's opponents. But in Pennsylvania, Bush got 84 percent of that group's votes, the AP-NBC News poll found.

Or take the group that's always in the middle — the moderates. Bush got 63 percent of their votes in Pennsylvania, leaving Reagan 30 percent.

It was not so much that Reagan did more poorly among the moderates in Pennsylvania than he did, for example, in Wisconsin, where he got 33 percent of their votes. It was that Bush was able to add the Anderson vote to his own. In Wisconsin, Bush took 33 percent of the moderate vote and Anderson 30 percent.

This was also clear among the liberals, the core of Anderson's support in previous primaries. In Pennsylvania, Bush got 53 percent of their votes to only 37 percent for Reagan.

One of the most surprising aspects of Bush's victory was that he defeated Reagan among conservatives by a 53-42 margin. That was the first time the former California governor had lost that key group of the GOP primary voters.

And from now on, it will be just Reagan and Bush as the major Republican contenders. Anderson is out of the GOP race, preferring to run as an independent in November.

Mischief

Opportunity for mischief in this year's census data appears to be greater than in the past due to the mailing system used. Already there are many reports of entire areas which did not receive the forms. Errors will affect funding programs, and will show up in national and statewide rankings of cities, having an intangible effect upon local civic pride for the next 10 years.

The cutback in local review has been labeled "disgraceful" by National League of Cities director Alan Beals. The N.C. League of Municipalities is helping local governments make the best use possible of the limited time and material available.

What went wrong in the process? Some officials say preliminary information has turned out to be so far off base that to give it out would cause alarm and confusion locally. There are signs that mass organizational turmoil and mismanagement in the census procedure is to blame.

State Plans New Facility

RALEIGH N.C. (AP) — The state department of Human Resources plans to make a further commitment to the state's emotionally disturbed youth by opening a second facility at C.A. Dillon.

Human Resources Secretary Sarah Morrow's office revealed today that the new unit will serve aggressive emotionally disturbed children and will be established at Dillon in addition to the 16-bed unit announced last week.

Sources in the department say the decision comes after talks with staff members at Dillon last Friday. The proposed 16-bed unit would base its treatment plan on the Wright School in Durham, but staff members at Dillon say the Wright model does not adequately address the needs of the aggressive emotionally disturbed child.

For that reason sources said Morrow has decided to set up a second facility, which she says will be in a separate cottage.

They said the recent scramble to provide the services results from a lawsuit filed by Judge George Bason of Raleigh and others. Morrow denies the allegation and says the state has just now gotten a grasp on the problem and the number of youths involved.

Morrow said the state's facilities must be addressed to the needs of these children, not make the children adjust to the state's facilities.

There are a number of commercial room dividers available. These range from simple, free standing shelves in different shapes and sizes to elaborate structures that incorporate shelves and cupboards, desk units, and stereo storage. They are much like ordinary wall storage units except that they are free-standing. There are also various types of screens being developed every day. Ordinary wooden garden lattice is inexpensive and can look effective fixed at floor and ceiling. A hinged screen can be effective in a bedroom, a kitchen-dining room or a one-room apartment. A well-designed fabric can be stapled to battens to make a fine screen.

Effective home decorating can be achieved with the help of our staff at LARRY'S CARPETLAND INC., 3010 E. 10th St., 756-2300. Sandra Thomas and Ginnie Anderson, our interior designers, can assist you with all your needs. Their services are free when you make a purchase from us. Hours: 9am-5:30pm Mon. thru Fri., 9am-1pm Sat.

DECORATING TIP: Vertical blinds make good room dividers. Left half open, they provide a vista into the next area.

Audrey Hepburn Has Acting Son

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Audrey Hepburn finished shooting her scene in the movie, then bundled herself in a blanket and watched a young actor rehearse his role.

Professional interest? No, motherly love. The young man with a small role in 20th Century-Fox's "They all Laughed" is Sean Ferrer, her 19-year-old son.

His father is actor Mel Ferrer, who divorced Miss Hepburn in 1968 after 13 years of marriage. Miss Hepburn is 51.

Young Ferrer also is working as an assistant to the production staff of the film. He recently worked as assistant director while filming "Inchon," which stars Laurence Olivier as Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Pork Oversupply

By The Associated Press

North Carolina pork producers say they are running into hard times because profits are running well below costs.

For the past year hog prices have been declining steadily. This month farmers collected about 29 cents per pound for hogs at market while production costs were running about 40 cents per pound.

"Some farmers are hurting very badly," said D.G. Spruill, specialist in charge of extension swine husbandry at North Carolina State University. "Nobody can survive a year of prices the way they are."

Greene County hog producer L.L. Murphey is one farmer who is suffering. He counted losses of $28,000 last week. "I couldn't stand it for six more months," said Murphey, who sells about 60,000 hogs for slaughter each year.

Agriculture specialists say a steady increase in production during the past seven years has created an oversupply of pork and prompted declining prices.

In 1979, North Carolina hog producers received about $391 million for their swine, said John Hanson, NCSU extension economist for livestock marketing.

Mount Drive For Human Organs

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State officials are mounting a drive to secure donated human organs to fill growing demands for transplants.

Fred Shackelford of the N.C. Division of Health Services, said the campaign will focus on getting people to sign Uniform Donor Cards. The wallet-sized cards are carried by potential donors. They satisfy legal permission requirements for organ removal at the time of death.

Donors now may be identified by a space included on their drivers' licenses.

The need for donors has been rising. North Carolina hospitals have a waiting list of between 300 and 500 persons for donated kidneys for transplant operations.

There were 118 kidney transplants performed last year at the four transplant centers — Duke Medical Center, North Carolina Memorial Hospital, Baptist Hospital and Charlotte Memorial Hospital.

About 200 more persons are waiting for cornea transplants, and a skin bank at North Carolina Memorial Hospital needs donors for an anticipated increase in demand when the hospital's burn center opens next fall.

Shackelford said the campaign also will focus on the medical community.

Meanwhile, the low prices are making consumers happy. A marketbasket survey last month in Raleigh showed the price of bacon at $1.42 a pound, down 33 cents from a year ago.

Speaking of Your Health...

Aftermath of Convulsive Seizure
Our 4-year-old daughter had a convulsion when her temperature rose to 105 degrees. We were terrified and rushed her to the hospital. She was kept there for two days and then discharged. Tests did not show anything. Now our great worry is, will she be left with epilepsy or brain damage as she gets older. — Mrs. C.L.A., Tenn. Dear Mrs. A.:

Though the exact cause of endometriosis is unknown, a great deal of information about it has been accruing in the past 20 years. As the knowledge of the female and male sex hormones has expanded, so has the treatment and control of endometriosis. It should be immediately stated that this unusual condition is not cancerous.

Treatment often involves the use of female hormones. These are given singly or in conjunction with others by the gynecologist who is in constant control of the endometriosis.

How your condition will affect the possibility of pregnancy depends upon the extent of your problem and the persistence of treatment.

This is a terrifying experience. No matter how stable and secure people are, a convulsive seizure can be overwhelmingly frightening. Such a seizure associated with a very high fever is not unusual. As a matter of fact, the seizure can be said to be nature's protective mechanism. It almost acts as a fuse to prevent further trouble. These fever-induced convulsions can be controlled by sponge baths and medication. The fact that tests showed no underlying disease should be reassuring to you. All children who have had such an experience should have a complete neurological study to be sure that some basic problem is not overlooked. Brainwave studies and other technical electronic procedures should be done for two reasons. First, to rule out any underlying problem. Second, to alleviate your fears and set to rest any suspicion of permanent damage to the brain or the possibility of epilepsy.

I have been married for two years. I just learned that I have endometriosis of my womb. I not only worry about the condition itself but my greatest concern is that it will keep me from having a family. I would like to get as much information as I can about this. — Mrs. R.V., Maine. Dear Mrs. V.:

I am certain that the information you seek only relates to you and your own problem. That information, of course, should be coming from your own doctor who should be the source of your greatest security. Reading medical books may only frighten or confuse you.

The endometrium is the delicate lining of the uterus, or womb. Endometriosis is a disorder in which the cells that line the inner surface of the uterus are displaced. These endometrial cells may then be found outside of the uterus, in the ovaries, the Fallopian tubes, and even in the abdominal cavity.

TOBACCO GROWERS TALK ABOUT VIKING SHIP® CALCIUM NITRATE

"In three years of growing under stress conditions, Calcium Nitrate has made the difference between crop failure and a successful year."

Ennis and Jerry Byrd
Orum, North Carolina

The Byrd family farms 40 acres of tobacco and 260 acres of corn and beans. They started with Calcium Nitrate in 1970 and have stayed with it ever since. Mr. Byrd tells why. "We liked Calcium Nitrate's fast action right from the start. You could see the crop feeding right away, and could also tell that Calcium Nitrate does its job and then is through. It won't hold tobacco green in the field over an extended period of time which was a problem with our former fertilizer. The last three years we've used Calcium Nitrate in liquid solution when the crop was too big to cultivate; it really works out well. I figure that during 3 years of growing under bad, stress conditions, Calcium Nitrate increased my profit 50 percent!"

Hunt Campaigners Confident In The Waning Days

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) —

Gov. Jim Hunt's re-election campaign could hardly be more confident one week from the Democratic Primary, and its leaders are looking ahead to the fall when they expect the real race to be.

Though not wanting to say anything to discourage campaign workers before primary day, there is an apparently justified feeling among the Hunt campaign that former Gov. Bob Scott was never seriously in the race.

Scott, it is widely believed, may be in for a defeat of embarrassing proportions — Hunt could easily get 60 percent or more of the Democratic vote. For Scott to defeat Hunt on May 6 would be a dramatic upset.

Hunt's handlers are directing a fairly sophisticated get-out-the-vote telephone operation now, and their goal is not just to win but to do so with a margin large enough to lend the appearance of momentum that will be difficult for Republican I. Beverly Lake Jr. to stop.

Hunt campaign manager Joseph Grimsley and other strategists believe they're in for a combative and perhaps bitter campaign this fall against Lake, who is running with the support of GOP Sen. Jesse Helms and his well-heeled organization.

The first of it has already been seen, they believe, in efforts by fundamentalist Christian leaders to undermine Hunt's primary campaign and boost Lake. Another example is the hard-hitting television commercial being run by Lake attacking Hunt's handling of federal job training money, commercials Hunt said this week "may well be libelous."

"That's just the tip of it. That's the kind of campaign we're in for," one senior campaign official said. "We've got to respond to that in a very delicate way."

Evidence of the poor shape Scott's campaign is in came last week when he brought out his long awaited television commercials. They were a disappointingly unsophisticated trio of ads, one of which it was decided was too negative to run.

Though Scott is well known as a former governor, a sizable amount of TV advertising is needed by any candidate for governor, and his campaign plans to spend only a few thousand dollars, if that much, running the spots. Hunt is in the midst of a $130,000 TV blitz.

But Scott's problems in this campaign run deeper than that. While he has complained that the press hasn't given him the attention he deserves, Scott has failed to raise issues that have touched a responsive chord with people.

Hunt of course has not invited a serious debate of issues as he campaigns, delivering the same Pollyanna speech across the state — "We're making progress and we can do better." But the burden is on the challenger to take the campaign to Hunt, and Scott has not put together enough of a program so far to draw Hunt into a discussion.

Scott has kept a stiff upper lip in recent weeks in the face of the growing feeling of doom for his campaign, insisting he is "neck and neck" with Hunt and saying the vote will be decided by a large group of still undecided voters.

Hunt campaign manager Grimsley, who has been running extensive polls during the campaign, puts the undecided vote at no more than 15 percent, however, and says most of that can go to Scott without changing the outcome.

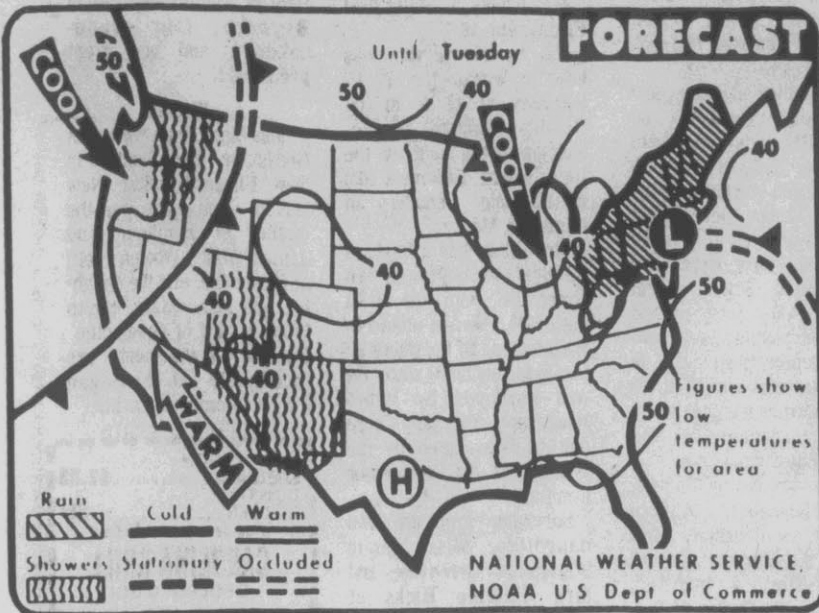

"If anyone's undecided now, they're not Jim Hunt supporters," he said Friday. "If they don't know him by now, they're not going to...I bet you can't change 2 percent of the vote now.

Perhaps sensing that, Scott's wife Jessie Rae appeared to reflect a bit of resignation while campaigning recently. Mrs. Scott, a skilled and experienced campaigner in her own right, urged her husband not to enter the race last year. "Over the years we've won some and lost some. I've become conditioned to that," she said earlier this month. "But whether he wins or loses, I believe he's doing the people a service by challenging the current administration. The people need that choice and so does the Democratic Party."

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain is expected in the forecast period until Tuesday morning for the Northeast. Showers are forecast for the Southwest and northern Rockies. Cool weather is due in the Northwest and Northeast but most of the country will be warm. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Heavy rain, high wind and hail battered much of eastern North Carolina Sunday night and early today as a series of thunderstorms rumbled across the area.

A tornado watch was posted for parts of the state Sunday night and early today, but there were no confirmed reports of twisters touching down.

One-inch hail was reported in the Wake County town of Fuquay-Varina. Large hail also pelted Goldsboro and Mount Olive.

Wind gusts of 40 mph to 50 mph were reported in coastal areas as the storm system moved to the east Sunday afternoon and evening.

A funnel cloud was reported near Pleasant Hill in Jones County early Sunday afternoon. There also were unconfirmed reports of a tornado near Kinston.

Meanwhile trees and power lines were reported down in several southeastern counties, including Jones, Brunswick, Duplin and New Hanover.

"It was a real strong wind. I don't know if it was a tornado or what," said a spokesman for the Jones County Sheriff's Department.

Winds estimated at 50 mph struck Brunswick County shortly before 1 p.m., damaging three planes at the Ocean Isle Beach Airport.

The thunderstorms dumped two inches of rain on Cape Hatteras while Goldsboro had more than 1 1/4 inch.

The storm system accompanied a low-pressure area that moved through the state. Most of the rain and violent conditions had moved out of North Carolina by early today, but there was still some shower activity along the northeast coast.

Cooler weather and cloudiness were expected over much of the state today, with highs ranging from the 50s over the mountains to the 70s along the coast.

File Suit On Nursing Bd.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Duke University has filed suit against the state Board of Nursing, claiming the board lacks the right to decide what jobs may be done by unlicensed nursing-school graduates.

Some unlicensed graduates are allowed to perform such routine tasks as administering medicines under the supervision of a doctor or nurse. However most hospitals require that graduate nurses obtain their licenses within a certain time period.

At Duke's medical center unlicensed nursing-school graduates are allowed to administer some medicines under supervision and to perform other tasks.

But the nursing board ruled in December that such practices violate state law requiring medicines to be administered by physicians, registered nurses or licensed practical nurses.

The board added that nursing schools sending students to hospitals allowing the practice would be in danger of losing accreditation.

Patricia Wagner, associate university counsel, said the practice has gone on for many years at most hospitals in the state.

"They've assured us privately they aren't worried about Duke," Mrs. Wagner said. "They're worried about other hospitals with lesser reputations, but we felt that wasn't a legitimate reason."

Duke's suit was filed last week in Wake County Superior Court.

NEW YORK (AP) — Gold mining stocks fell sharply today as the broader market held fairly steady in moderate trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 2.22 to 805.80 at midday. It fluctuated in a narrow range earlier in the session, climbing by 3 points, then falling to a fractional loss before gaining again.

Overall, gaining issues outnumbered losers by 2-to-1 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Big Board volume came to 12.52 million shares by noon, slower than Friday's pace at midday of 14.48 million shares.

The market got an early lift from news that Morgan Guaranty, the nation's fifth biggest bank, lowered its prime business lending rate a full percentage point to 18½ percent. That move was followed by some smaller banks but was not immediately adopted by the biggest banks which generally are charging 19½ percent.

Gold mining issues, which jumped sharply Friday on worries over the Iranian situation, fell back today as the price of gold on metals markets fell by $25 an ounce or more on European markets.

Dome Mines lost 2½ to 60½; ASA fell ¼ to 42½; Helcia Mining lost ½ to 27½; and Homestake declined 1½ to 46½. Asarco, with silver and copper interests, dropped 1½ to 36½.

One Defendant Is Found Guilty

ATLANTA (AP) — A federal court jury today returned verdicts on bank fraud charges against one of four defendants in the trial of former U.S. budget director Bert Lance.

U.S. District Judge Charles A. Moye Jr. sealed the verdicts and there was no indication which defendant's case was settled.

Earlier, Moye had met briefly with prosecutors and defense attorneys to discuss the situation but then ordered the six men and six women jurors to resume their work on the case.

Lance's attorney, Nikolas Chilivis, commented, "I guess it's back to gin rummy and bridge."

Lance, and his associates Thomas Mitchell, Jack Mullins and Richard Carr,

Inlet Contract Award In 1981

OREGON INLET, N.C. (AP) — Commercial fishermen who thronged to Oregon Inlet over the weekend heard an Army Engineer spokesman say that a contract will be awarded next January for the project to deepen, widen and stabilize the inlet.

Bill Dennis, project engineer for the $73 million job, told the crowd of more than 1,000 the work, scheduled for completion by 1981, calls for deepening the waterway to six feet, widening it to 2,500 feet and for construction of jetties to halt the southward drift of the inlet.

Dan McDonald, project engineer for the Wanchese Harbor Industrial Seafood Park, said stabilization of Oregon Inlet is vital to the development of Wanchese harbor.

He said that when fully operational, the industrial park will process 89 million pounds of seafood a year, will provide $6 million in income for fishermen and yield $15 million in regional economic benefits.

The Inlet Days program was sponsored by the N.C. Fisheries Association to head off proposed federal budget cutting that could curtail the Oregon Inlet project for which Congress has appropriated nearly $18 million. However, President Carter has recommended a $4.6 million cut as part of his budget-balancing program.

The Sunday program included a tour of fishing vessels at Wanchese Harbor, a procession of boats through Oregon Inlet and a memorial service for commercial fishermen lost at sea.

Power Grows In Indian Ocean
WASHINGTON (AP) — The arrival of the aircraft carrier Constellation and six escort ships has pushed U.S. naval strength in the Indian Ocean area to a record level.

There now are 34 American naval ships operating in the vast Indian Ocean-Arabian Sea-Persian Gulf area, three more than the previous high last month. The Defense Department also said the nuclear-powered aircraft carrier Eisenhower and two nuclear-propelled cruisers are due to enter the Indian Ocean on Tuesday. The Constellation battle group and the Eisenhower force are due to relieve two aircraft carriers, the nuclear-powered Nimitz and the Coral Sea, which have been on station in the Arabian Sea-Gulf of Oman for months. Until the Constellation and Eisenhower reach their stations, the United States will have four of its 13 aircraft carriers in the area. At last report, the Russians had 27 ships in those same general waters.

CARD OF THANKS

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all my friends and family for your support and prayers during my illness with cancer. I, in no way, can begin to answer the cards, say thanks for the flowers, express my gratitude for the telephone calls and the deep concern shown over my condition. I have simply been overwhelmed by the number of people that really care. The employees of Pitt County Memorial Hospital were very concerned and did everything in their power to help. The doctors are doing everything in their power to help in my recovery and I appreciate it all. Words will not say what I think. The only thing I can say is God bless you and thanks for everything.

CHURCH OF GOD IN CHRIST FINDS ACCUSATION AGAINST LOCAL ELDER FALSE

An investigation into the matter of an accusation against Rev. C. D. McNeill, local pastor and administrative assistant to the Bishop, L. B. Davenport, has been proven false. The presiding Bishop of the Diocese of Greater North Carolina Church of God in Christ met with a special session of the Elder's Council on Monday, April 21, 1980 and their findings were as follows:

The character of Rev. C. D. McNeill as a Christian gentleman, an upstanding citizen in the Kinston community and in the General Church of God in Christ proves all accusations false. Such rumors are detrimental to one's reputation and name for the Bible hath said "A GOOD NAME IS RATHER TO BE CHOSEN THAN GREAT RICHES".

We, the Elder's Council conclude therefore that this entire incident be treated as completely false and Rev. C. D. McNeill be cleared of any and all accusations. Respectfully submitted,

Bucs Win NCAIAW Title

GRAHAM — East Carolina, behind home runs by Cynthia Shepard and Kathy Riley and a three-run seventh, defeated Western Carolina, 6-3, Sunday to win the North Carolina AIAW Division I Championship.

The win, the Pirates' 28th in 32 games, moves the ECU into next weekend's battle for the state title in Graham. That tournament, to be held Saturday, will consist of the top two schools from Division I, II and III.

ECU, on the strength of its NCAIAW victory, will receive a first-round bye in the double-elimination affair. The Pirates will face the winner of the Pembroke State-Methodist game at 11:15 Saturday.

In the other bracket, Pfeiffer, which has a bye as the No.1 Division II school, will face the winner of the N.C. Wesleyan-Western Carolina game. Wesleyan is the No. 1 Division III school.

The top two teams from the state tournament will go on to compete in the Regional Tournament in Graham, along with North Carolina, which because it is the host team has already received a bid.

In Saturday's NCAIAW final, ECU wasted little time in taking the lead. With two on Shepard unleashed her home run. However, Miztie Davis did not touch third base and was thus out on the play. Nonetheless, ECU led, 2-0.

Western Carolina closed to within one with a single run in the second but Kathy Riley's home run over the left centerfield fence in the fourth gave ECU a 3-1 lead.

The Pirates, with Mary Bryan Carlyle pitching shutout ball for four innings en route to her 20th win in 24 decisions, added three runs to their lead in the top of the seventh.

Mary Powell and Shirley Brown reached on errors to lead off the inning. They were replaced for pinch runners Lillian Barnes and Angie Humphrey. Ginger Rothermel then singled home Barnes and Cindy Meekins followed with a sacrifice fly which brought home Humphrey. Rothermel later scored on an error.

Western cut the Pirate margin to three with two runs in the bottom half of the inning. Bess Crist singled and went to third on an outfield error before Curtley Schulties singled her home.

Ducey Thompson then hit what looked like a sure single to left. But Riley turned the hit into a fielder's choice when she threw Schulties out at second.

Kit Rea then sent a shot off Shepard which allowed Thompson to score. Moments later, however, the threat ended on a fly out.

ECU placed five women on the All-Tournament team: Riley, Shepard, Carlyle, Davis and Shirley Brown.

ECU Blanks ACC Twice

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Rick Ramey and Bob Patterson both threw shutout gems at Atlantic Christian College last night as the East Carolina Pirates ran their winning streak out to eleven in a row and upped their record to 28-5 on the year.

Ramey spun a neat one-hitter at the Bulldogs in the opening game of the doubleheader, as the Pirates claimed a 6-0 victory. Patterson, not to be outdone, came back with a two-hitter in the second game, as East Carolina won that one, 4-0.

The shutouts were the second and third in a row for the Pirates, who sat down UNC-Wilmington on Saturday afternoon, 4-0. They have not allowed a run in 27 straight innings now.

For both pitchers, the shutouts were their first of the year, while the Pirates staff as a whole ran their total out to seven.

Ramey struck out five and walked just two, facing just two more batters than regulation in the seven inning contest. He gave up one walk in the second, and was tagged for a single to right by Frank Carmichael, leading off the fourth inning. Carmichael was then erased in a double play. A walk and a fielder's choice led to the other Bulldog baserunners, both in the seventh inning.

Patterson also gave up a second inning walk, one of three he allowed in the game, as he recorded nine strikeouts in his seven inning stint. The first of the two hits off him came just two batters after that first walk, a single by Keith Zimmerman, moving a runner to second.

The other hit was a two-out double in the fourth by Mike Burgess. No other runners reached second base during the evening.

"We had two super jobs out on the mound tonight," Coach Hal Baird said. "Our pitchers seem to be finishing strong. Both of them did a good job and threw hard. We had trouble with them (AC) the other night (when the Pirates swept another doubleheader in Wilson by close scores), but they bore down tonight and never gave them a chance."

While the Pirate pitchers were mowing down the Bulldogs, the Pirates batters were providing just enough to do the job. East Carolina got only 12 hits during the evening, six in each game, but they were timely and did the trick.

Butch Davis provided all East Carolina was to need in the opener, when he led off the bottom of the first with his 12th home run of the season.

Two outs later, Raymie Styons walked and Macon Moye singled. John Hallow followed with a single, scoring Styons' courtesy runner, Robert Wells, for a 2-0 lead.

The other four runs came in the third. Kelly Robinette led off, reaching on an error. Billy Best walked and so did Moye. Hallow followed with a double to left center, scoring both Robinette and Best. Todd Hendley followed with a two-out single, scoring both Moye and Hallow.

East Carolina had a scoring opportunity in the fifth, but left the bases loaded.

Hallow led the Pirate hitting in the game, going three-for-three. No one else had more than one.

In the second game, Hallow also provided the big stick—although he got only one hit.

It came in the first inning, when three of the four ECU runs scored. With one down, Hendley singled and scored on a double by Best to center. Then, with two away, Hallow cracked out his first home run as a Pirate, over the fence in right, scoring Best ahead of himself.

After threats went by in the second and fourth, the Pirates got their other run in the fifth. Best opened up with a walk and stole second. The throw down to get him was way off target and sailed into center, allowing

Watson 'Just Hangs On' To Win Second Straight

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Tom Watson, for the second week in a row, is a winner.

It didn't come easily, but it came with the authority that has made Watson the outstanding player in golf.

"I was just hanging on," he insisted after a front-running, two-shot triumph Sunday in the New Orleans Open.

But hang on he did. And he did it in a fashion that served as the ultimate discouragement to any would-be challengers.

The leader all the way, Watson made one mistake in the final round. He hit into the water on the eighth hole. It cost him a double bogey. Coupled with Lee Trevino's birdie, that meant the little pond on the Lakewood Country Club course had just swallowed three shots of his four-stroke lead.

"That brought me right back to the fountain," Watson said. "The game was on."

It's the sort of thing that can, and has, destroyed a less accomplished, less experienced, less confident, less courageous player.

Watson responded by holing a 40-foot birdie putt on the next hole.

No one ever caught him.

He finished with a 1-over-par 73 that put him at 273, 15 shots under par, and he was a wire-to-wire winner for the second consecutive week. Trevino was second with a 69-275. Mike Reid, never really in title contention, shot 71-276. Defending champion Hubert Green, who took himself out of it with a bogey-double bogey-bogey lapse, and Larry Nelson were next at 277. Green had a closing 74 and Nelson a 72 that included a double bogey on the last hole.

The victory only served to confirm Watson's stature as the game's outstanding performer, added to his already-impressive statistics and put him in position to write some new records into the books.

At the moment, he's completely dominating the game.

No one has ever won Player of the Year four times in a row.

Watson has won it the last three years. With four victories, twice the number of anyone else in the game this year, he's far in front again.

No one has ever led the money-winning list four years in a row.

Watson has led it the past three seasons. He collected $45,000 from the total purse of $250,000 in this one and pushed his earnings to $246,525 with the season less than half gone. It's almost twice as much as anyone else and puts him in line to break his own one-year record.

No one has ever won the Vardon Trophy, that coveted award that goes to the man with the low stroke average on the tour, four years in a row.

Watson won it the past three years. With 18 birdies and an eagle for his week's work in New Orleans, he reduced his stroke average for this season to 69.9, lower than any winning figure in 16 years.

For this season, he has won four times in 10 starts and has been 10th or better in three others.

And he's far from satisfied.

"I didn't hit the ball nearly as well as I'd like to," he said Sunday. "I've got a lot of hard practice to put in next week."

Hall To Induct 'Big O,' West

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) - The "dream backcourt" of Oscar Robertson and Jerry West and frontcourt ace Jerry Lucas were to be inducted into the Basketball Hall of Fame today, but the kids on the playgrounds didn't need the formality to know who was "the best."
 The three first played together on the 1960 U.S. Olympic team that brought home the gold medal from the Rome Games. It was a collection of college superstars that some say was the best Olympic team ever fielded.
 But even before that, they were all members of the 1955-56 High School All-American Team and college All-Americans - West at West Virginia, Lucas at Ohio State and Robertson at the University of Cincinnati - in 1950-51.
 Later, they were fixtures in the National Basketball Association through the 1960s with Robertson bringing home Most Valuable Player honors in 1961, 1964 and 1969, West in 1972 and Lucas in 1965.

Fitch: 76ers Will Win Title

BOSTON (AP) - Julius Erving wants to play a team with an injured center. Lionel Hollins wants to play Seattle so the Philadelphia 76ers will have the home-court advantage.
 But Bill Fitch doesn't think it matters a whole lot.
 "They'll go all the way," the Boston Celtics coach said after the 76ers disposed of the team with the best regular-season record in the National Basketball Association.
 "If they stay right where they're at now and maintain it - that's the challenge to them right now - they'll be tough," Fitch said.
 The 76ers were awesome in sending the Celtics to the sidelines by winning the best-of-seven Eastern Conference final playoff series in five games. The clincher came Sunday as Philadelphia never trailed after Darryl Dawkins' free throw tied the score 18-18 with 4:11 to go in the first period. The 76ers rolled to a 105-94 triumph.
 Hollins led all scorers with 24 points and handed out seven assists, while Erving scored 14 points and took only 10 shots. Both were asked whether they would prefer to play Los Angeles or Seattle in the championship series. Los Angeles leads the Western Conference final series 3-1.
 "It really doesn't matter," Hollins said. "Probably Seattle because we would have the home court advantage."
 "Whichever team's center breaks his leg is the team we want to play," Erving said with a laugh.
 The 76ers played so well against the Celtics that they needed no such advantage.
 The bread and butter of the Boston offense, penetration and moving the ball quickly to the open man, crumbled in the face of the 76ers' team defense.
 "Taking the ball inside to Philadelphia is playing to their strengths because they have a big front line," said veteran Celtics center Dave Cowens, who scored 22 points and grabbed 10 rebounds. "They were on top of us all the way up the court. They disrupted our offense quite a bit. We couldn't adjust."
 Philadelphia has had a reputation as a team with a potent offense, but its defensive performance throughout the Boston series proved it is a well-rounded club.

Saturday afternoon's Purple-Gold game showed that the Pirates might just have found a quarterback after all, maybe even more than one.

Carlton Nelson did an outstanding job of directing the Purple team, and late in the game, Greg Stewart came on to do an admirable job with the Gold team in its comeback bid.

Both threw the ball well, and both ran well, although Nelson seemed to have the advantage in the latter.

The big question still remains in the offensive line. The defense that the Pirates had to go up against certainly will not be as strong as that the Pirates will field in the fall. Two potential starters were sidelined, spending their time on the books, and it appears that it may be well spent, too. Two others didn't participate because of varied reasons: John Hallow was with the baseball team, and Jeffrey Warren is awaiting trial from charges arising from a drug bust in the dorms earlier this spring.

However, it is still not known whether Hallow will rejoin the team. There have been reports that Hallow is thinking of sticking with baseball only. Coach Ed Emory is hoping that he will be back in the fall.

The offensive line still will need some beef before it will be able to take on the likes of Duke, State, Carolina, Florida State, Miami and Southern Mississippi, as the Pirates face their toughest season ever. Emory and his staff will be taking a good look at the incoming freshmen, along with the veterans, this fall. The vets do have one advantage, that of what experience they do have, plus the availability of the new weight program offered the players now.

Certainly, things are not quite as dark as they were at the start of spring. Not that they are all sunshine now. A lot of work remains ahead.

It becomes hard now not to think about the monster home run hit by Raymie Styons of East Carolina University last week in Wilson's Fleming Stadium when the topic of the ECU baseball team comes up.

That blast will go down in history as one of the all-time events in Pirate lore.

But according to information reaching us from E. Raye Dennis, there was a little more to it than just stepping in and hitting away.

Styons, like many athletes, wears contact lenses. Tuesday afternoon, just prior to his leaving for Wilson, Styons was in the bathroom, and one of his lenses slipped down the drain of the sink. With little time left, a frantic search got underway for a plumber or anyone with a pipe wrench, to reclaim the lost lens. Finally one friend rushed to the Auto Center at Penny's, where an adjustable wrench was quickly loaned for the job.

The lens recovered, the wrench was returned with the gratitude of Styons and the Pirates.

Tuesday night, the Pirates wind up their regular season schedule against Campbell and the seven seniors on the team will be honored.

These seven have provided outstanding service to the team, and among them they hold just about every school record.

They are now the winningest team in Pirate history, with their 28-5 record. They surpassed the 1978 team, which went 27-18, with their second win over Atlantic Christian in the Sunday night doubleheader.

We would urge baseball fans to attend Tuesday night's game and honor this team.

We would also like to extend out congratulations to the Lady Pirate softball team, which captured the Division I NCAAIAW title this past weekend in Graham. The Pirates will compete in the full state tournament this coming weekend, and there are hopes that it will be held here. The top two teams from Division I, II and III will compete and the two winners move on to Chapel Hill next weekend for the regionals, the final step in this year's AIAW softball program.

Mistake Helps Waltrip Win Va. 500

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — Darrell Waltrip made a mistake, but, ironically, it helped him win the Virginia 500 Grand National stock car race.

Waltrip was the first victim Sunday of a new NASCAR rule for short tracks which penalizes a car two laps for changing tires during a caution period.

The rule is intended to cut down the cost of tire use and give the less wealthy teams a better shot at competing on tracks shorter than one mile, where the top teams have been known to change tires under every yellow flag.

The 33-year-old driver from Franklin, Tenn., has been vociferous in his dislike of the new rule, but admitted after winning his third race of the season that it probably was the deciding factor.

"There was some confusion when I pitted (after leading the first 185 laps). The green flag came out as we were coming out of the fourth turn and I just ducked right into the pits," Waltrip explained. "I knew that you had to go past the (flag) stand on the track after the green came out, but I just made a mistake.

"Then my crew made a mistake. We didn't have to change tires. I could have just taken on gas and stopped later for tires, but everybody got confused momentarily. It took us a few laps to get our composure back."

That pit stop cost Waltrip a total of four laps, which is what he trailed Buddy Baker by after coming out again.

"But we were the only car that made a four-tire change at that point in time. And we knew if we didn't have any more trouble that, theoretically, we could go the rest of the way and everybody else would have to make some pit stops."

That's exactly what happened as everyone struggled to come up with a winning strategy for the new rule. Waltrip regained the lead for good on lap 393 from second-place finisher Benny Parsons. That came only moments after Richard Petty lost a full lap edge over both Parsons and Waltrip by pitting for four new tires.

Baker, who also had mechanical problems, was hit with a penalty when his car came up with a flat tire during a yellow, and both Bobby Allison and Dick Brooks blew worn tires late in the race. Others were forced to slow down by tire wear, and Waltrip himself wasn't sure his tires would last.

"I never looked at 'em (after the race)," Waltrip said. "I'd be scared to look. I'm sure they were worn out."

Petty finished third, followed by Cale Yarborough and Joe Millikan. Waltrip's victory moved him into second place in the NASCAR point standings, 61 points behind Dale Earnhardt, who finished 13th.

Earnhardt triggered a nine-car crash in the first lap of the weather-plagued race when he

Sonics' Reign Crumbling As L.A. Takes 3-1 Lead

SEATTLE (AP) — The Seattle SuperSonics' reign as National Basketball Association champions is tottering.

"The Sonics say they like to play with their backs to the wall," said Kareem Abdul-Jabbar. "At this point, they're about to go over the wall."

Abdul-Jabbar's statement was uncharacteristically strong but the 7-foot-2 veteran had every reason for sounding confident.

After Los Angeles overcame a 21-point deficit midway in the second half to beat the Sonics 98-93 Sunday, the Lakers hold a 3-1 lead in the Western Conference finals. The Lakers could finish off the Sonics at Los Angeles Wednesday night and earn a spot in the NBA finals against Philadelphia, which won the Eastern Conference title with a 4-1 romp over Boston.

"Anything is possible," veteran forward John Johnson replied when asked if the Sonics could take three straight from Los Angeles.

"It's do or die for us," added Seattle forward Lonnie Shelton, "but it's possible."

"They're the world champions until we beat them four times," reminded Lakers guard Norm Nixon, who had 19 points Sunday.

Abdul-Jabbar scored 25 points and Jamaal Wilkes added 24, 12 in the last quarter, as the Lakers made it three straight over the Sonics and two in a row at University of Washington's Hec Edmundson Pavilion.

A capacity crowd of 8,524 watched the Sonics build a 57-39 halftime lead and a 69-48 advantage with 6:39 left in the third quarter.

Los Angeles took the lead at 72-71 with a 24-2 blitz but Seattle led 86-80 with 6:11 remaining in the game. The Lakers then went on a 15-2 tear for a 95-88 lead with 21 seconds to go.

"We seemed to lose the enthusiasm we had early in the game," lamented Sonics Coach Lenny Wilkens.

"We knew our offense would come around in the second half," analyzed Lakers Coach Paul Westhead. "Once you get a few baskets, you feel like digging in and playing defense, too."

"I can never remember a comeback like this in a big game like this," added Abdul-Jabbar.

Gus Williams led the Sonics' attack with 25 points but long-shooting veteran Fred Brown, who scored 34 points in Seattle's victory at Los Angeles last Tuesday night, was 0-for-11 from the field Sunday. Brown mistimed on a three-point field goal shot with 11 seconds left in an attempt to tie the score at 96.

Marshall Tucker Band Basist Dies

SPARTANBURG, S.C. (AP) — The bass player for the Marshall Tucker Band, Tommy Caldwell, died early today at Spartanburg General Hospital.
A hospital spokesman said Caldwell died about 4 a.m. The 30-year-old musician had been listed in stable but critical condition since last Tuesday when he suffered extensive head injuries in an automobile accident.
Authorities said Caldwell's jeep flipped over after it hit a stalled car on a downtown Spartanburg street.
Earlier, a spokesman for the Southern rock band said the group had canceled its spring tour of several Midwestern cities scheduled to begin Wednesday.
The band will not appear in concert for "maybe 90 days, maybe six months," the spokesman said. He indicated the tour would be rescheduled, but could not say when.
"Everything's at a standstill right now," he said. "It's going to take us a period of time to adjust. The band won't do anything that we don't feel is right."
Recently, the band has been touring 200 nights a year. The group's latest album, "Tenth" was released by Warner Brothers earlier this year.
The group first attracted national attention in 1972, and was invited to play at several parties following President Carter's 1977 inauguration.

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦Q9642 ♥K73 ♦Q83 ♦J7
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♦ Dble. Pass 1 ♦
Pass 1 NT Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—There is a misconception that partner's rebid of one no trump describes a minimum takeout double with no spade fit. Nothing could be further from the truth. Partner is showing a hand that was too strong to overcall one no trump—i.e., 19-20 points. You have 8 points and a five-card suit, so to bid less than three no trump would be a gross insult to partner.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦KQ1063 ♥Q5 ♦KQJ7 ♦92
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
Pass Pass 5 ♦ Dble. Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—Why South did not open one spade is a mystery, but we present this problem as it was given to us. Now we must guess. To double at this level, partner must have a fine hand. Unfortunately, there is no way you can find out exactly what he holds. We would try six spades. Even if we are off two fast tricks, one of the opponents might even decide to sacrifice at seven clubs and bail us out.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦A10762 ♥K9853 ♦A7 ♦6
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♦ 2 ♥ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—This looks like a good time to throw science to the winds. Partner must have a pretty good hand to make a vulnerable two-level overcall, so we would just gamble out six hearts. The one thing we would not do is cue-bid spades. We really do not want to discourage the enemy from leading a spade. Since partner quite likely has a singleton spade, a diamond lead poses a greater threat to the contract.

A.4—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦A72 ♥8 ♦K976 ♦AK952
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♦ 2 ♦ ?
What action do you take?
A.—If the vulnerability were reversed, you would have a problem: Would bidding a game (either three no trump, four spades, or five clubs) yield more than a double? But at this vulnerability there can be no question—double! The penalty could very easily run into four figures, which will be satisfactory compensation even if you have a slam!

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦Q5 ♥K98 ♦AJ10852 ♦74
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
2 NT Pass 3 ♦ Pass
3 NT Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—This is an excellent hand opposite a partner who jumped to two no trump, even though he has sounded less than enthusiastic about your diamond suit. You should make one move toward slam, and the obvious one is a raise to four no trump. Note that this is quantitative, not ace-asking.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦J54 ♥J7 ♦Q98 ♦109542
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ Pass Pass 1 ♦
Dble. Pass 2 ♦ Pass
4 ♦ Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—Admittedly, you have a miserable collection, but consider your assets. Partner has told you that he expects you to make ten tricks in clubs even though you might have a complete yarrowborough. In fact, you hold honors in both red suits and a fifth club, and those values are just enough to induce you to try to complete the rubber. Bid five clubs.

Winning The Ratings Race Will Not Mean That Much To CBS

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Now that CBS has emerged as the upset winner in the TV ratings contest, perhaps the closest ever, it might be asked what CBS gets for this hard-won victory.
Apparently, nothing much more than it would have earned had ABC won.
Ordinarily, the network the clear winner of the season-long ratings race raises its basic advertising the next season, using past performance as justification. But this year's struggle between ABC and CBS ended with such a narrow margin between first and second place (CBS finished with a 19.6 Nielsen average, ABC 19.5 — each point representing about 763,000 homes), it's not likely that the CBS victory will directly result in a substantial advantage.
"The winning of a race over this period of time by one-tenth of a point is really terribly unimportant," says Buck Buchanan, U.S. media director for the J. Walter Thompson ad agency, which buys large hunks of network time for its clients.
"It's like an Olympics race where one runner beats another runner by one-tenth of a second. Somebody gets the gold medal and somebody gets the silver medal, but who's the better runner? The next time, it may be the other way around. Anyway, we don't buy networks, we buy programs."
Buchanan admits that some clients may want to buy CBS time "because they want to be on No. 1, it has a nice feeling, a warmth to it...but from a professional buyers' standpoint, it means virtually nothing."
What does impress Buchanan, though, is CBS' momentum, a factor that will prove much more lucrative to CBS than its No. 1 standing.
"CBS did do a spectacular job in coming from its position at the beginning of the season, that's the remarkable thing."
Last season, ABC's fourth at the top, ABC beat runner-up CBS by 2.2 ratings points, a gap 22 times as large as the margin CBS won by this year. The CBS surge seems remarkable indeed.
Thus, when CBS gets down to setting rates for next fall, Buchanan predicts, "They're going to come in and say, 'Hey, we've got the momentum.' That's very important."
"They've established new series, like 'Dukes of Hazzard,' 'Dallas' and 'Trapper John,' shows that are young and fresh and more likely to be a good bet than shows (at ABC) which may be on the decline, say, 'Mork

Next Month Cruel To Kennedy Effort

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — May promises to be a cruel month for Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's dream of convincing the Democratic Party that he has a better chance to win in November than President Carter.

Kennedy scored narrow victories this month in Pennsylvania and Michigan that underlined his contention that Carter is vulnerable in the northern industrial states, often the key to Democratic presidential victories.

But in May the battleground is shifting to states that are likely to push Carter's delegate total close to the 1,666 he needs for nomination to a second term.

The first test will be on Saturday in Texas, hostile territory for Kennedy outside the Mexican-American community. Carter seems certain to capture a clear majority of the state's 152 delegates.

Kennedy was on a trip to Mexico today for a meeting with President Jose Lopez Portillo, a visit likely to enhance his standing with the Mexican-Americans in Texas.

But that journey was upstaged by the President's flight to Texas, his first major trip outside the White House since the Iranian hostage crisis began, to visit with the men who were wounded in last week's aborted rescue attempt.

Tuesday, May 6, promises to be another big day for the Carter-Mondale ticket with primaries in Indiana, North Carolina, Tennessee and the District of Columbia. Only in the nation's capital is Kennedy likely to emerge a winner.

And coming up later in the month, states like Arkansas, Idaho, Kentucky, Nebraska and Nevada seem far more friendly to Carter than to Kennedy. Only in Maryland and Oregon would the senator seem to have a chance to emerge on top.

ECU Hosts Nat'l Meet

ECU News Bureau
Students from 27 eastern U.S. campuses, from New York to Mississippi, were at the recent national business conference of Chi Beta Phi scientific fraternity, hosted by East Carolina University.

Dr. James Joyce of ECU's physics faculty spoke on the Three Mile Island reactor accident at the society's awards banquet.

Elected "most outstanding" society members were Thomas Leech of Greenville, a biochemistry major at ECU and president of ECU's Chi Beta Phi chapter, and Eileen Eschbach of Davis and Elkins College, Elkins, West Va. Dr. Thomas Sayetta, also of the ECU physics faculty and advisor to ECU's Chi Beta Phi chapter, was elected to a fourth two-year term as national treasurer.

Chi Beta Phi includes educators and students in the sciences. Its purpose is to promote interest in science and to recognize scholarly achievement in scientific fields.

Winner Malory Scholarship

ECU News Bureau
Keith Taylor of Lumberton, a sophomore at East Carolina University, is the recipient of the James B. Mallory Scholarship Award given by the ECU Men's Residence Council.

The award of $250 is given twice annually by the MRC to men students based on their scholastic achievement and their contributions to residence hall life. The MRC is the governing body for the men's dormitories.

The award was initiated last spring in honor of Mallory, an ECU associate dean.

A business major, Taylor is a resident of Aycock Dormitory and serves as publicity chairman for the MRC. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Ewing Taylor of Lumberton.

NATIONAL CONGRESS PEKING (AP) — China's Communist Party will hold a national congress late this year or early next, about a year ahead of schedule, the official Xinhua news agency indicated today.

Scott Paroles Also Queried

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Former Gov. Bob Scott recently has criticized Gov. Jim Hunt's record on granting parole, but that criticism also has raised questions about Scott's own record on prison releases.

Hunt commuted the sentence of former New Bern businessman Robert Davis from 10 years to 110 days. Scott, Hunt's challenger in the May 6 Democratic gubernatorial primary, said that action "implied that if you've got the money to hire lawyers that have the right political connections to get into the governor's office, you get special treatment."

What Scott didn't discuss was his own record, which includes granting parole to a man who left $500 in the mailbox of the staff director of the N.C. Democratic Party.

During his term as governor from 1969 to 1973, Scott made several other controversial paroles.

One of those was Billy Keith Fowler, who served less than five years of his 80-plus-year sentence on more than 40 felonies.

The case, which came to light after Scott left office, prompted the sudden resignation of the chairman of the paroles board.

Another case was that of Mortimer Raymond Eisen, a Norfolk, Va., man with strong Democratic ties. Eisen served 10 days of his one-year sentence for running a blackjack game at his Kitty Hawk tavern. Scott granted him a "temporary parole" to Virginia.

John Meredith Jones Jr. was paroled to Virginia by Scott after serving nine days of a two-year term. Jones had been convicted in 1971 of breaking and entering and larceny. When he went to Virginia, Jones violated parole, but when he was shipped back to North Carolina, he was paroled again, this time to Florida.

Jones was represented by Ralph Strayhorn of Durham, a prominent attorney and former president of the N.C. Bar Association.

A prisoner normally is not considered for parole until he serves one-fourth of his sentence.

Female Guards File Big Suit

DETROIT (AP) — Two female prison guards who say they were denied promotions because they weren't allowed to work in men's cellblocks have filed a $225 million lawsuit.

But the state says it only wants to protect the convicts' privacy.

Jennie Griffin, who works at Southern Michigan Prison at Jackson, and Constance M. Anderson, who works at the Michigan Reformatory at Ionia, contend male prison employees who put in two years in the cellblocks are automatically boosted to a civil service level higher than women can receive.

The suit, filed April 15, asks $750,000 in damages for each of the approximately 300 women employees in the state prison system.
