City Advises VEPCO Will End Contract

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
In a long-awaited move, the Greenville Utilities Commission today formally notified Virginia Electric and Power Co. (Vepco), that beginning May 1, 1981, Greenville will no longer purchase all its wholesale power from the Richmond-based utility.

The action followed a meeting last night at which the Commission approved a letter of application to Carolina Power and Light Co. for service, and CP&L's com-mittment to serve Greenville as a wholesale customer in a letter delivered to GUC officials early this morning.

The City Council, which attended the utilities meeting, met briefly to vote their concurrence in the actions.
The city received assurance last night that if the application for service was approved, a letter committing CP&L to serve Greenville would be forthcoming. In light of that assurance, the utilities commission approved the letter giving notice to Vepco, to be delivered when the CP&L response was received.

The GUC's letter of application to CP&L said that, "substantial progress has been made in the negotiations," between CP&L and North Carolina Power

Agencies Numbers 2 and 3, toward an agreement for the purchase by the Power Agencies of ownership in various CP&L generating units. (The Power Agencies are groups of municipally-owned electric systems.)
The application letter continued, "The Commission intends to support the Power Agency efforts to complete the proposed... (agency) purchase... with CP&L and, subject to demonstrations of (economic) feasibility, will seek to obtain sufficient participation by other member cities and to take such other actions as are necessary to complete the contemplated transactions."

However, the letter of commitment from CP&L will enable Greenville to drop Vepco as its all-requirements power supplier even if the CP&L-Power Agency agreement is not concluded satisfactorily.

Director of Utilities Charles Horne reported studies show that for the 10-year period from 1970 through 1979, Greenville paid Vepco 25.2 percent more for electric energy, based on average costs per kilowatt-hour, than it would have paid CP&L during the same period. Studies by outside consulting engineers predict that for the five-year period 1981-1985, a switch from Vepco to CP&L wholesale power service would save Greenville approximately $32.8 million, less transmission expenses.

The consultants added that even in the worst case, if Greenville were to build its own transmission line to connect it directly to the CP&L system, and if all the related costs, normally financed over a 20-year period, were written off during that five-year period, Greenville would still save some $18.3 million by switching from Vepco to CP&L.

Vepco has said that its rates will become equal to CP&L's by the mid-1980's. However, studies conducted for Greenville are similar to projections by the Public Staff of the North Carolina Utilities Commission, consultants reported.

They said in an April 15, memorandum to Gov. Jim Hunt, Public Staff officials reported that an in-depth analysis and price forecast indicated that, "under no conditions would Vepco's rates ever equal those of Carolina Power & Light."

The Public Staff study calculated three "cases": A "worst case" based on Vepco's 1979 operating conditions, a "very favorable case", and a "middle case" that split the difference between the two extremes.

In the "middle case", Vepco's rates ranged between 21 percent and 30 percent higher than CP&L through 1988, while under the "favorable case", the range was 8 to 16 percent higher. The study predicted that under the "worst case", the range could be 30 to 44 percent higher.

Last night's action does not contemplate the building of a new transmission line to connect Greenville to CP&L's system. The notice of termination to Vepco requests Vepco to deliver the CP&L power Greenville will purchase over existing Vepco lines.

Muskie Constant In Supporting Of Carter Positions

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — From the Panama Canal to Iran, Edmund S. Muskie's Senate voting record shows few deviations from White House foreign policy positions.

Indeed, the man President Carter has picked to be secretary of state says it is important for the administration to project an image of stability around the world.

And in Muskie, a 22-year senator from Maine who first came to national prominence as the Democratic vice presidential candidate in 1968, Carter also chose a man more of political than diplomatic breeding.

Although Muskie, 66, has concentrated on domestic affairs in the Senate and acknowledged that "I am not a foreign policy technician," Carter praised him during Tuesday night's nationally televised news conference as "extremely well qualified" because of his broad experience, bipartisan esteem and "international reputation."

He said Muskie's political experience, including an unsuccessful run for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination, made him familiar with the entire nation and its aspirations.

The president said Muskie and Warren Christopher, who will remain as deputy secretary of state after being bypassed for the top job, "will provide continuity for our foreign policy."

Muskie supported Carter's decision to try to rescue the American hostages in Iran, the bold but unsuccessful move that prompted Cyrus R. Vance to resign in protest Monday.

"We do not regret the attempt (to free the hostages). After all, it was a response to kidnapping and blackmail," Muskie said. "We do not rule out the use of any appropriate means which

A big step in a dream coming true took place as five people symbolically shoveled spadefuls of earth in the groundbreaking ceremony Tuesday morning for the new Pitt County-Greenville Boys' Club facility on Arlington Boulevard.

The site for the future home of the club is a 5.5 acre one adjacent to the Greenville Middle School. When completed, the facility will contain 15,000 square feet and will provide space to adequately serve about 2,500 youngsters between the ages of seven and 17. The new building will include areas for a gameroom, arts and crafts, a woodshop, a learning center, gymnasium, showers, exercise room, club

MEDICAL INFORMATION

My father has been diagnosed within the last week as having cancer of the colon. I think his doctors are doing a terrific job, but I still want to read on my own and learn all I possibly can about his condition and its latest treatments. Where can I get the information I want and feel I need? J. J.

The Health Science Library of East Carolina University, located in the Belk Building (Allied Health and Social Professions) on Charles Street is run by Joanne Bell and her capable staff. It's used mostly by the academic and medical community of Eastern North Carolina, but it belongs to all the people. Visit the library and explain exactly what you're interested in. A search will be made for you of not only in-house material, but of whatever's been published anywhere in numerous journals and other publications via computer.

Mrs. Bell pointed out that most of the reading material is highly technical and is not always meaningful to a person without a technical background. She stressed, however, that the library is there to serve everyone and encouraged you to visit. Hours when a reference librarian is on duty are 8 a. m. to 10 p. m. Monday through Thursday; 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. Fridays; 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Saturdays; and Sundays noon to 10 p. m.

Historic Study Application Is OK'd By City

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
The City Council approved the submission of an application to the Division of Archives and History yesterday for an historic preservation survey and planning grant.

The grant, it was pointed out at the special afternoon call session, would fund a comprehensive review of the city to locate and identify any structure or site having historic or architectural significance.

Total project cost is estimated at just under $36,000 with funding involving a 50-50 arrangement between the city and the Division of Archives and History. Ben Shivar, who coordinates the city's Community Development activities, said that CD program funds are available to cover the city's share. The Department of Housing and Urban Development will be asked to approve a CD amendment in order for the funds to be used.

Shivar explained that the city will provide secretarial and administrative services under what is considered by the Division of Archives and History an in-kind match. The total cash and in-kind participation by the city is $17,990, Shivar added.

Under the program, nominations will also be prepared to the National Register as qualifying structures are identified. The project, which will last 12 months, will not begin until January or February of 1981.

Council members approved a contract with Friend Design Associates of Greenville for architectural/engineering services involving the design and construction of a transit addition to the new Public Works facility.

The total cost of the transit garage is some $223,500, it was explained, with the city participating on a ten percent arrangement, the state providing ten percent, and the Urban Mass Transit Administration providing 80 percent.

An amendment to the 1979-80 city budget, involving the line item of salaries and travel for the mayor and council, was approved. City Manager Ed Wyatt said the amendment represents some $3,200 from contingency and was necessary due to more members traveling for various out-of-town workshops and meetings and also the end of year transition from the old council to the new board.

Declare Criminals Are Among Cuban Refugees

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — Security at docks and refugee processing centers has been tightened amid disclosures that dozens of Cubans from the "Freedom Flotilla" have admitted criminal pasts ranging from petty theft to murder.

Dade County Sheriff Bobby Jones said Tuesday that more than half the 200 "high risk" refugees interviewed by his department — single men under 40 without relatives in this country — had acknowledged criminal records.

The findings "confirm what we had been getting through our intelligence that (Cuban President Fidel) Castro had been loading up the boats with some people of questionable backgrounds," said county manager Merrett Stierheim.

Meanwhile, Gov. Bob Graham warned that seizing the seafit boats could lead to tragedy and the Coast Guard, putting human life ahead of official policy, offered to cooperate with Cuba in assuring safe passage for refugees.

"The Coast Guard does not want to encourage the illegal and highly dangerous boatlift," Cmdr. Samuel J. Dennis said Tuesday. "Our primary mission is to minimize the loss of life."

After a two-day hiatus caused by bad weather, refugee-laden boats are arriving here again from the Cuban port of Mariel. Ten boats carrying more than 300 Cubans docked Tuesday and the total number of refugees in the 10-day exodus was expected to top 4,000 today.

Meanwhile, a beefed-up force of immigration officers, FBI agents and National Guardsmen tightened security at docks and processing centers amid reports that criminals, mental patients and possibly Cuban intelligence agents were being planted among the refugees.

A National Guardsman said troopers have been ordered to stop any refugees attempting to escape — "or we're in big trouble."

Cleared Of 9

ATLANTA (AP) — Former U.S. budget director Bert Lance was acquitted today on nine counts of bank fraud after a 16-week trial. A mistrial was declared on another three counts because the jury was deadlocked.

Lance's attorneys asked U.S. District Judge Charles A. Moyer Jr. to declare directed verdicts of acquittal on the three remaining counts. Moyer said he was not ready to decide immediately, but called attorneys for both sides into his chambers.

"We're delighted about the not guilty verdicts," Lance said. "It's what we thought all along it would be. We're terribly delighted and pleased."

The jury also acquitted or failed to come to a decision on charges against Lance's three co-defendants, Thomas Mitchell, Richard Carr, and Jack Mullins. Mitchell was the only defendant found innocent on all charges.

Lance was found innocent on nine charges of misusing the funds of two Georgia banks he headed to make loans to his wife, son and three friends.

Embassy Seized

LONDON (AP) — Iranian Arab gunmen invaded Iran's London embassy today and seized a British police guard and embassy staff members as hostages, Scotland Yard reported. Shots were heard inside the building when the two or three raiders forced their way in, but no injuries were reported immediately.

Dissident Arabs of Iran's restive southwest are seeking autonomy for their region, but police did not immediately make the gunmen's demands public.

The top Iranian diplomat here, Charge d'Affaires Gholam-Ali Afrouz, was believed to be among the hostages, said the British news agency Press Association. But the total number of captives was not immediately determined.

The mission has a staff of about 25 diplomats, as well as a number of non-diplomatic personnel. Witnesses said they saw a small number of men and women fleeing the building, in the Kensington district opposite Hyde Park, shortly before police arrived.

Julia Troutman Weds Samuel Parks Wagers

GRIFTON-In a private ceremony Saturday at 4 p.m., Julia Elise Troutman and Samuel Parks Wagers III were united in marriage in a double ring ceremony performed by the Rev. Robert F. Moore.

Parents of the couple are Dr. and Mrs. Belk Connor Troutman of Grifton, and Mr. Samuel Parks Wagers Jr. and Mrs. Loriena Wagers of Lexington, Ky.

Tony Carraway presented wedding music. The vows were spoken in the garden of the home. A miniature chapel was created with benches, a background of natural plants, ivy, azaleas and magnolia.

The bride, given and escorted in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of ivory silesta and chantilly lace fashioned with a scooped neckline and attached waist length cape edged in a lace ruffle. The skirt fell from the empire waist and flowed into a brush train edged in lace over a self-ruffle. She wore an ivory sheer rippled brim hat trimmed with silk flowers, satin ribbon and illusion which extended down the back. She carried a colonial bouquet of white daisies, roses and baby's breath tied with bridal ribbons.

Her sister, Anne Fortune Troutman, was honor atendant and wore a formal gown of blue chiffon styled similar to the bride's gown and carried a nosegay of pastel flowers.

The father of the bridegroom was best man.

The bride's mother and the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Patrick Bieschke, were remembered with wristlets of white daisies.

After the ceremony, a buffet reception was given by the bride's parents. The house was decorated with arrangements of spring flowers.

The refreshment table was covered with a white damask cloth and centered with an arrangement of mixed flowers in pastel shades. After the bridal couple cut the traditional first slice of cake, it was served by the sister of the bridegroom.

The bride attended Lenoir Community College and Kentucky Equine Education Program, Lexington, Ky. The bridegroom is a graduate of the University of Kentucky and is employed by his father in Lexington, Ky.

The couple will live in Richmond, Ky.

The bridal couple was entertained at a pig pickin' Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Reeves. Out-of-town guests were also honored.

Assisting hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. William F. Cox, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Schutte, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph House and Mr. and Mrs. James Her- ring.

Conley High School student at awards day.

Chaplain Mrs. Donald McLane Jr. presented each member a yellow ribbon with encouragement to wear it daily and offered a special prayer for the hostages in Iran.

Dear Abby

Abby Receives 'Legitimo Info'

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Concerning what name the children will carry if the mother retains her maiden name after marriage: In Spanish-speaking countries, the child takes both his mother's surname as well as his father's. Example: Senor Lopez marries Senorita Gomez. Their son will be Carlos Gomez Lopez. If they want to use the names of even more forebears, they can go back as far as they choose.

A proud, well-born Spaniard of my acquaintance carried his families' names on both sides for seven generations and ended up with 14 names!

Using the surnames of both mother and father was considered a mark of honor. To use only the mother's name suggested that the mother was not married. It was important to be born legitimately because all children born out of wedlock were disenfranchised.

I don't know if the practice still exists, but when I lived in Cartagena, Colombia, the births were announced daily in the newspapers under two headings, "Legitimos" and "Ilegitimos." And incidentally, between 65 and 70 percent of all the births were "ilegitimos."

FORMER COLOMBIAN

DEAR FORMER: Thanks for some interesting (and "legitimo") information.

DEAR ABBY: I've been reading about a California businessman named Graham who has made a hobby of collecting sperm from Nobel Prize winners to be used to impregnate super-high IQ women whose husbands can't father children.

Nowhere has it been proven that kids inherit their intelligence from their parents. (How many Nobel Prize winners are children of Nobel Prize winners?)

However, it's a known fact that kids do inherit their looks from their parents. How about collecting sperm from Burt Reynolds, Paul Newman, Robert Redford and some other good-looking men in order to breed some beautiful offspring?

JUST ASKING

DEAR JUST: Wonderful idea. But instead of giving it away, they should auction it off and give the proceeds to Planned Parenthood.

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column, you stated that if a woman had sexual intercourse with a man who had gonorrhea, her chance of contracting the disease was 50 percent, or if she was on the Pill, 100 percent.

Since you do not customarily dispense irresponsible medical information, perhaps it was a typographical error on the part of the newspaper, but that statement is incorrect.

The most recent studies indicate that among sexually active women, oral contraceptives reduce the relative risk of spreading gonorrhea infection to the tubes and ovaries by two-thirds.

I think you owe it to your readers to correct the misconception.

ELLEN G. BALCHUM, M.D.

DEAR DR. BALCHUM: It was indeed a typographical error for which I take full responsibility. Thank you (and all the other sharp-eyed informed readers) who wrote to point out the error.

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who would like to vote in an upcoming election, but he has served a prison term. This is a small town and I don't want to ask anyone here. Can you tell me if he is eligible to vote or not?

A FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: Unless your friend receives a full pardon from the governor of his state, he is ineligible to vote. (And for a federal offense, one needs a pardon from the president of the United States.)

CONFIDENTIAL TO S.J.O. IN ODESSA, TEXAS: The most important job a parent can undertake is giving his/her child a proper childhood. Karl Menninger, still one of the most respected psychiatrists around, said: "People repeat in adult life emotions they experienced in childhood. Many of the people whom I spent the last 30 to 40 years treating at so much per minute wouldn't have needed any treatment at all if they had had the right care as children."

Priority On Readiness

No one would ever question the bravery of the men who volunteered and were trained to carry out the rescue of American hostages being held in Iran.

Their motives were the highest and clearly they were willing to risk their lives to save their countrymen. We hope that is indicative of the spirit of our armed forces at present. Courage will be essential in any future wars which, if they are fought, will be essential to saving us from some immediate threat of foreign domination.

However, while there is no question of the courage of the men, the entire mission once again raises nagging questions about how ready our military is for combat roles.

Three failed helicopters, a type that had been battle tested, must make one wonder how such a thing could happen. Is our equipment so poorly maintained that such failures can occur? Surely for a mission so important as this more care than usual was taken to be certain that the equipment was in top condition. And perhaps it was. Possibly this was simply one of those incredible series of events which saw equipment failures that caused the aborting of the mission.

Nevertheless it is a logical time to carefully look at our military. We must ask if qualified personnel are being retained to adequately service the equipment upon which other men's lives depend. We must see to it that the equipment is properly designed and properly maintained to do the job for which it was intended.

If the percentage of equipment failures on this mission were carried over into a full scale war, we would not win the first battle.

Making It To Washington

Walter Cronkite for vice president.

As this is written that looms as a possibility with "New Republic" magazine reporting Cronkite has not ruled out running with Rep. John B. Anderson on an independent ticket.

Perhaps by the time this is read the Cronkite run will have been ruled out. Either way the odds of the famed CBS newsmaker making it the vice presidency seem fairly remote — at least on an independent ticket.

Don't totally dismiss the idea, though. There is precedence for a television news man making it to Washington. Jesse Helms of North Carolina did it.

Salaries Relative

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — A key selling point four years ago as state officials pushed hard for voter approval of an Industrial Revenue Bond proposal for North Carolina was a provision that would boost wages.

To qualify, a firm would have to pay wages higher than the average in a particular county, where locating.

Now, however, local financing authorities and boards of county commissioners are catching on that certain exceptions can be made to that portion of the revenue bond law on salaries.

Already there has begun a trickle of exceptions; not a flood of them. Fewer than a dozen so far. But enough to give pause to some close observers, particularly upper echelon officials of the state's Department of Commerce who worry that too many exemptions could undercut one of the principal purposes of revenue bonds.

Spreading

An even more worrisome aspect is that so far the use of exemptions is centered in one section of the state around Fayetteville; Columbus, Robeson, and Cumberland counties are involved to date. Either there is a spreading pocket of severe depression in North Carolina's heartland; or the word is spreading from county to county on how to successfully bypass the revenue bond requirement for higher-than-average wages.

If it is the second case, then it will not be long until the word spreads across the state and the present trickle becomes a growing stream of exemptions.

Basically, the revenue bond law permits local governments to set up a local authority which can help a new or expanding industrial firm with low-interest, long-term bond financing for construction and for pollution control equipment. Applications must be cleared by a state bond commission, as

BILL NOBLITT well, and here is where state policy will be spelled out.

Governor Jim Hunt has been pushing hard for new, high technology, high paying industry for North Carolina; and the higher wage provision of the revenue bond system has been seen as an element of that strategy; along with dispersal of job opportunities to small towns and rural sections (Balanced Growth), improved technological training in high schools and community colleges, intensified industrial recruitment, etc.

But as in so many other instances, there is a considerable gap between the ideal and reality. Chief industry hunters say bluntly that, all else aside, "North Carolina will take what she can get where she can get it."

Procedure

Exemptions to the wage law are allowed under a procedure adopted by the General Assembly for "severely depressed" counties. There are three ways to qualify: unemployment persistently higher than eight percent; unemployment 35 percent higher than the

(Washington Daily News)

We read with concern that although the state of North Carolina is the Southeast's largest exporter, many of the products are leaving the state through competing ports in other states.

A report prepared for the State Ports Authority reveals that of every $100 in goods manufactured in North Carolina, $69 is shipped out of the state and heads overseas by means of rival ports. This speaks poorly for our state's facilities at Wilmington and Morehead City. And while these ports suffer, facilities at Charleston, South Carolina, Savannah, Ga., and Norfolk, Va. reap the benefits of the North Carolina manufacturing dollar.

The report cites several reasons why manufacturers are reluctant to use our state's ports. First and foremost, neither Wilmington nor Morehead City is served by a major four-lane highway. Yet all three of the aforementioned out-of-state ports are served by an interstate highway.

Secondly, equipment used at the N.C. ports is reportedly inferior to that used in the neighboring ports. This is a situation that the state of North Carolina should be willing to correct.

And finally, the out-of-state ports are closer to major metropolitan areas than are the ports of North Carolina.

In terms of revenue, the report stated that the state's ports now generate about $12 million of business, with $40 million of North Carolina manufacturers' business going to the out-of-state ports. The report was presented by Lockwood-Green Engineers of Spartanburg, S.C.

Among the proposals to make North Carolina into a major port by 1985 are the expansion of facilities in Wilmington, improvement of the port's marketing program, and the development of an "inland port" in the Charlotte area where North Carolina manufacturers, many of which are located in that part of the state, could bring goods to be shipped by rail to the coastal ports.

We support efforts to update and improve North Carolina's ports in an attempt to keep North Carolina manufacturing dollars from leaving the state through other ports. The state of North Carolina, despite tight budget restrictions, should look to place substantial state money in the ports with the idea of investment and return, with the return being the $40 million that now escapes our state.

Also, establishment of two major ports in Wilmington and Morehead City would provide an economic boost for all of us in eastern North Carolina, and make our area more attractive to new industry. We can't justify the continuation of second-rate ports in North Carolina.

Rosie The Non-Runner

BOSTON — Non-runners in America, who outnumber runners by at least three to one, have a new heroine. Her name is Rosie Ruiz.

Rosie claims to have finished first among the women in the sacred 26-mile Boston Marathon last week. She is supposed to have done it in the exceptional time of 2 hours 31 minutes and 56 seconds, the third-fastest 26-mile race ever run by a member of her sex.

After the race there was some question — and as of this writing still is — that Rosie ever ran the 26 miles. Those who doubt it are racing officials who have no record of her passing any checkpoints, and other women runners who say they never saw her in the race. All films have been studied by the experts and Rosie doesn't seem to appear in any except those their lunch hour. At five of twelve they put on sweats and running shoes and tell you, "Well, I guess I'll do three miles during my break. Want to join me?"

"No, I'm going to lunch." "You shouldn't have lunch. People eat and drink too much, and it isn't healthy for them."

"I know," I say, "but I like lunch, and it gives me a chance to talk to other people who also like lunch and are in as bad a shape as I am."

If you work in an office with a lot of runners and there are no showers in the building, it can be a pretty rotten afternoon.

There are some runners who like to run after work. You see them on the streets and highways on your way home from the office, and by the time you get to your house you're filled with guilt.

That's why non-runners hate runners. They make us all feel guilty because we don't enjoy pounding the pavements every day, gasping for air, with perspiration pouring down into our socks.

And that is why Rosie Ruiz' feat has so much meaning for us.

If Rosie really pulled a marathon sting operation, she surely deserves the title of the non-runner's "Woman of the Year." All lethargic people have fantasized about winning the Boston Marathon without having to run it.

Ever since Rosie's feat has been publicized, I've dreamed of jumping out of the bushes near the finish line, doused with water and painfully breaking the tape 10 yards in front of Bill Rodgers, the four-time winner.

Some might call it cheating and sportsmanlike but I like to think it's just getting even — getting even with all the runners in the country who won't let us non-runners do our own thing.

So to Rosie Ruiz — if you pulled a fast one — I say, "God bless you. You can have a three-martini lunch with me any time."

While the rest of the world has returned to more mundane matters, the question of whether Rosie did or didn't will be debated in Boston for years to come.

If Rosie did, then we non-runners have no interest in her. But if she didn't, but claims she did, then she's our kind of girl.

Few will admit it, but those of us who don't run are getting terribly tired of people who do. It's a free country and anybody who wants to is entitled to run. But in recent years runners have come out of the closet and insist on talking about it.

You go into the office feeling lousy and some fresh-faced healthy male or female will come by the desk and say, "I did five miles this morning."

"Fantastic," you say. "I did the crossword puzzle on the bus."

"They don't let it go at that. 'I don't smoke, and I don't drink coffee and I feel like a million dollars. You ought to run in the morning. You look terrible.'"

"The reason I look terrible is I feel terrible. And the only reason I feel terrible is you look good. Now leave me alone."

If runners just ran in the morning it wouldn't be so bad. But more and more of them are now running during

Claim MX Vulnerable

by ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — A top-secret Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) report to President Carter warns that the proposed MX mobile missile system has been outflanked by new Soviet long-range nuclear warheads, thus forcing the U.S. to look elsewhere to protect its intercontinental missiles — and setting off a bitter internal bureaucratic struggle here.

The report has been held up by disagreements between CIA Director Stansfield Turner and other government intelligence officials. They object to Turner's formal conclusion that the land-based MX, still in the planning stage, needs to be replaced; retired Adm. Turner is suspected, perhaps unfairly, of plugging for a coastal, seabased system.

The CIA's verdict against MX, say some officials, exceeds its mandate. Competing intelligence services contend that whether or not the MX is now unworkable should be a decision for the president or the Pentagon, not the CIA.

Anderson in N.Y.
Although Jimmy Carter's lawyers kept independent candidate Eugene McCarthy off the New York ballot in 1976 and thereby saved the election, Rep. John Anderson is likely to prevent a repetition of that ploy by winning the ready-made place on the ballot long held by the state Liberal Party.

The Liberal first choice is Sen. Edward M. Kennedy. But assuming he is not nominated, party leaders have all but decided to give their designation to Anderson. There is no chance of Carter heading the Liberal line in New York, as he did in 1976. The result could be Anderson drawing enough votes to give the state to the Republicans, as McCarthy was prevented from doing four years ago.

A footnote: Anderson is popular with New York Liberals and will be more so if he can find a leftist Democratic running mate — such as Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona. Feelers have gone out (on a staff-to-staff basis) from Anderson to Udall, but the answer has been an unequivocal and irrevocable no.

Begin's Washington Ploy
Breaking new ground as an Israeli prime minister, Menahem Begin brought nearly 1,000 top Jewish leaders to the Shoreham Hotel in Washington to plead for their support against President Carter's Mideast policies.

On past U.S. visits by Begin and earlier Israeli prime ministers, the inevitable appeal for help has always been made far away in New York City. But Begin wanted to impress Carter with his influence on the American Jewish community which has turned against the president in the Democratic primaries. A session with Jewish leaders 10 minutes' drive away might make a larger stir in the White House than one 300 miles away.

A footnote: Despite wide discontent with Begin's colonization methods on the Palestine West Bank, leaders of the American Jewish community tend to publicly support to Israeli leaders. That pattern was repeated despite rising frustration privately felt by Jewish leaders over what they consider Begin's dangerous West Bank policy.

Reagan Plus Democrat
The New Right political movement, seeking to win over blue-collar Democrats with populist conservatism, is pressing Ronald Reagan to select a conservative Democrat as his running mate.

Paul Weyrich, a leading theoretician of the New Right, suggests Sen. David Boren of Oklahoma as a suitable Democrat for the Republican ticket. He also pushes Gov. Fob James of Alabama, as "a non-racist Southern Democrat" who would help build a new majority coalition.

A footnote: Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, most widely mentioned as Reagan's vice presidential candidate, would energize New Right opposition to Reagan. "If they have to go to the Ford wing of the party," Weyrich told us, his choice would be Gov. William Clements of Texas as a Republican who attracts conservative Democrats.

Another Reagan Blooper
In seeking justification to use the antitrust laws to curb union power, Ronald Reagan made another of the bloopers his advisers are desperate to avoid: fabricating a magazine article.

In a press conference at South Bend, Ind., Reagan cited as an example of union abuses a Reader's Digest article by Al Barkan, head of the AFL-CIO's Committee On Political Education (COPE), revealing that $68 million had been spent for a Hubert Humphrey campaign.

That was news at AFL-CIO headquarters: "Al doesn't write anything — even memos, much less magazine articles," one colleague told us. The Reader's Digest said it never had published an article by Barkan. Reagan apparently was referring to a 10-year-old Reader's Digest article by Lester Velie estimating the total value of organized labor's political contributions at $60 million (considered a gross exaggeration by labor).

Financial Reports In Red Ink

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — You can't judge the health of business by oil company profits, and proof of it is coming just about every other now in red-inked financial reports. Layoffs and requests for bailouts.

General Motors, biggest manufacturer of all, reported first quarter profits down 87 percent to $155 million, or 52 cents a share. Ford lost $163.3 million. Chrysler is expected to report a $400 million loss. Auto industry layoffs now exceed 200,000, and if the total stays below the 250,000 or so laid off in the recession of 1974-1975 everyone who studies the industry will be surprised. The future is bleak.

Chrysler has been pleading and cajoling its bankers into line so that it can show the federal government it is still viable and worthy of receiving Washington's guarantees that the loans will be repaid.

Those close to the action feel certain that some government guarantees will be forthcoming, but the Transportation Department indicates it has reservations. The Chrysler operating plan, it states, is premised on optimistic assumptions for the sale, among other items, of large cars.

The skies aren't any friendlier to business. Pan American World Airways reported a record-high deficit of nearly $75 million for the first three months of the year. Fuel and fare regulation were blamed.

Pan Am wasn't alone, except in the size of its loss. American, United, Trans World, Braniff and Western also dipped into the red, in part due to seasonal traffic factors, but also because of soaring costs.

Banking has problems. In Philadelphia, the nation's 23rd largest bank, First Pennsylvania, once known for its innovative ways, is in such financial trouble that the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. has had to step in with $500 million of rescue funds. The bank lost $5 million on operations and another $1.4 on securities in the first quarter.

FDIC officials maintain that First Pennsylvania's problems are unique rather than indicative of an industry condition, but strains exist in other institutions because of market conditions, including explosive increases in their cost of money, which is their raw material.

Savings banks and savings and loan associations have been hurt badly, being forced to pay increasingly higher rates to attract savings, while holding as assets low-rate mortgages made years earlier. Regulatory officials have warned that some of them might be forced to merge.

Cite Stewart, Royal 'Most Influential'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — House Speaker Carl Stewart and Sen. Kenneth Royal, D-Durham, have been cited as the most influential members of North Carolina's General Assembly by the N.C. Center for Public Policy Research.

The center released a poll Tuesday based on results of a survey last summer of legislators, news reporters and lobbyists. Questionnaires were distributed to 528 persons and 165 replies were received.

Stewart, who presides over the House, was given a rating of 90. L. Gov. Jimmy Green, who presides over the Senate, was not rated because technically he is not a member of the Legislature.

Stewart and Green are seeking the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor.

Royall scored an 87 to lead the Senate and was cited as being the second-most influential member of the Legislature.

Others rated among the 10 most influential legislators were Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Deep Run; Rep. Edward S. Holmes, D-Pittsboro; Rep. Liston Ramsey, D-Marshall; Sen. Marshall A. Rauch, D-Gastonia; Sen. Craig Lawing, D-Charlotte; Rep. Horton Rountree, D-Greenville; Rep. Parks Helms, D-Charlotte; and Rep. John Gamble, D-Lincolnton.

Rep. Patricia Hunt, D-Chapel Hill, received the highest rating among the Legislature's 22 women members and Rep. Henry Frye, D-Greensboro, was the highest rated among black legislators.

Other top senators included: James B. Garrison, D-Albermarle; Willis Whichard, D-Durham; Henson P. Barnes, statewide average, but at least six percent; and a permanent closing of a facility in the "immediate future" which will mean a loss of 1,000 jobs, or five percent of the current labor force in the county.

Gov. Hunt is taking a realistic look at the situation despite the damage which could be done to his program designed to boost wages across the state, state officials believe.

"A job is better than NO job", Hunt says. If a county qualifies for exemption under the law and local officials are willing for revenue bonds to be sold to help an industry which pays lower wages, then all signals point to state cooperation for the time being.

PPG Faces A Complaint

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — The National Labor Relations Board has filed a complaint accusing PPG Industries Inc. of firing a foreman at its Lexington plant because he would not commit unfair labor practices.

The complaint, filed by the board's regional office, charges that John W. Jones was dismissed because he refused to pressure pro-union workers or fire them for minor violations.

Employees of the fiberglass-manufacturing plant voted in July 1978 to affiliate with Teamsters Local 391. The NLRB overruled PPG objections to the election but the company has refused to negotiate a contract with the union.

The NLRB complaint alleges that Curtis Putnam, another PPG foreman, illegally questioned employees about their union activity in 1979. It says the company fired Teamsters supporter Arthur L. "Sonny" Crowell because of his union activity.

Although a PPG spokesman declined to comment on the complaint, company officials have recently denied allegations that they committed unfair labor practices in the dismissal of Crowell and Jones.

PPG has 10 days to respond to the complaint. A hearing on the matter will be held on June 24.

Suggests Use For Haitians

SOUL CITY, N.C. (AP) — Soul City developer Floyd McKissick suggested Tuesday that his financially troubled new community be used as a refuge for Haitians fleeing from "tyrannical oppression."

McKissick contended that the Haitian refugees are being treated differently by the U.S. government because they are black.

"Much attention has been given to the Russian detectors, the Indonesians, the Cambodians, the Cubans and other nationalities being given asylum in the United States," McKissick said. "We forget that different treatment afforded Haitians simply because they are black."

The Soul City project has had difficulty in attracting industry and has been threatened with a cutoff of federal funding. McKissick has appealed the cutoff order.

Clay Kirkman Says...

Marigolds are one of the most popular annuals. Not only are they easy to care for, but they will bloom from time of planting until the first frost (4 to 6 months). They make excellent cut flowers and it is said, when tall marigolds are planted in a garden, they keep nematodes away from vegetables.

Plant sizes range from 6-inch dwarfs to 3-foot super hybrids. They grow and bloom best in full sun and loamy soil, even though they will grow in almost any location such as shaded areas. They will not bloom well in full shade. Without adequate light, they also become 'leggy'.

Planting beds should be prepared by digging the soil at least 10 inches deep and working in large amounts of organic matter such as peat moss. Space the dwarf plants 6 to 12 inches apart and larger varieties 12 to 24 inches apart. Mulch the plants with something such as pine straw or bark. Begin fertilizing the plants a month after they have been in the ground using a complete fertilizer at the rate of 1/2 cup per square yard of planted area. Repeat every 6 weeks. During dry periods, water the plants thoroughly every 3 or 4 days. To keep the marigolds blooming and attractive, pinch off the faded blooms.

Marigolds look best when combined with other annuals and perennials in a flower border. Taller varieties are best used as a background plant. Dwarfs make good edging plants and look great in pots on patios, decks and porches.

These and other beautiful bedding plants are available at Belk Tyler Garden Shops.

Hearings Begun On Atty. Jerry Paul

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A disciplinary committee of the State Bar opened a hearing Tuesday on three charges of unprofessional conduct by former Durham attorney Jerry Paul.

Paul, 37, who now lives in New York, has denied the allegations in documents filed with the bar, which serves as North Carolina's regulatory and licensing agency for attorneys.

In two of the cases former clients contend Paul did not perform legal work for which he was retained. The third charge involves a case referred to the bar by Superior Court Judge Herbert Small.

In that case, Paul is alleged to have represented Harold Wiseman of Pitt County in 1975 when Wiseman agreed to testify against a codefendant, Connie Branch, in a murder case. Paul is alleged to have later represented Ms. Branch in her request for a post-conviction hearing, which was denied by Small.

The bar contends Paul should not have represented both clients.

In each case, Paul is alleged to have violated provisions of the state Code of Professional Responsibility, which governs attorneys' professional behavior.

A fourth charge, in which a woman contended Paul had not maintained adequate records of funds she had given him in trust, was dismissed by the bar on Tuesday.

Criminal charges against Paul were dismissed earlier this month when Judge Anthony M. Brannon concluded there was insufficient evidence. In that case a prison inmate had accused Paul of accepting money for work he did not perform. Paul had pleaded innocent.

Paul gained a degree of attention in 1975 when he successfully defended Joan

In the introduction to one of our books on play, the late George S. Kaufman called mirth-provoking attention to the fact that bridge writers supply South with cards unequalled in real life. Hubert Phillips once asserted, with feeling, that he would "rather be South than be president." But that's not enough. The player occupying the South chair must also have a modicum of skill to take advantage of his blessings. Consider this hand.

Just one note about the auction. North did not employ the Stayman Convention to check on the possibility of a 4-4 heart fit because his hand was perfectly balanced. Since there was no ruffing value, North simply made the power raise to the no trump game.

West's low club lead was covered by the seven and ten, and won by the jack. South was about to lead the queen of diamonds for a finesse when he remembered an old cliché: "The queen lies over the jack." So he had a change of heart. Instead of attacking diamonds, he led the ace and jack of hearts. East grabbed the queen and, for want of anything better to do, returned his partner's suit. West rattled off four club tricks to defeat the hand.

It might seem that a bit of lore that still blinds players should be blamed for South's failure to make the contract, but that is false. If South had not played the heart suit the way he did, he would have tried the diamond finesse with the same depressing result. What South overlooked was that the contract was ironclad if East could be kept off lead to prevent a lead through the king of clubs.

Declarer should, at trick two, cross to the king of spades and lead a heart to the jack. If West has the queen, he is welcome to it, since he cannot profitably continue clubs. Declarer will score four spades, three hearts, a diamond and a club. And if East has the queen, the finesse will succeed, and declarer has the same nine tricks available.

Joseph A. Blount Honored By Lodge

FARMVILLE — Calumet Lodge No. 273 of Farmville recently honored Joseph A. Blount with an appreciation program to commemorate his 50 years of service to the lodge.

The program, held at H. B. Sugg Elementary School Cafeteria, was attended by about 200 persons. Deputy A. C. Bobbitt of District Three served as toastmaster. He presented Blount a silver cup and plaque, noting his membership in the lodge since the early 1920's and his service as secretary since 1926. At age 88, the honoree is thought to be the oldest active secretary in the order.

F. H. Mebane, former Sugg School principal, contributed $200 to the George W. Whitfield Scholarship Award fund in Blount's name. Blount's lodge brother, Eddie Joyner, presented him with a plaque recognizing his 54 years of service as lodge secretary.

Speaker of the day was Joe Ward, first vice president of the N. C. State Association. He was introduced by Sugg School Principal F. D. Graham. Other speakers included Farmville Mayor Linwood Mercer; Exalted Ruler Alfred Williams; Pres. and Mrs. Knight; and Rocky Mount District No. Three Deputies Carter of Wilson, Beddings of Scotland Neck and Mrs. Ada Pulley of Rocky Mount.

J. Archibald Joyner, Calumet Lodge historian, compiled a written tribute to Blount. Elaine Dupree read it. Nathan Cobb Jr. and his daughter, Patricia Ellis, performed vocal solos.

New Program Offered At ECU String Camp

The East Carolina University School of Music is offering a new program of instruction for the 1980 Summer String Camp.

This year, under the direction of Dr. Paul Topper, senior faculty member in stringed instruments, emphasis will be placed primarily upon orchestral playing and performance.

The camp will provide a new and exciting musical experience at a relatively low cost both for area students enrolled in the Greenville City and Pitt County Schools string programs and for all other string players who have previously studied violin, viola, cello or double bass. In addition, a limited number of beginning students will be accepted for the three-week session.

Mrs. Phillip R. Dixon, B. M., M. M., string teacher with the Pitt County Schools and Glenn Davis, B. M., past concertmaster of the ECU Symphony Orchestra, and presently string teacher with the Greenville City Schools will serve as faculty along with Dr. Topper.

The camp session will run weekdays from June 16 to July 3. These three weeks of intense instruction will be aimed at advancing the abilities and interests of young string players during the summer months.

Tuition will be $40 per student for the entire session. Rehearsals and performances for intermediate and advanced orchestra, classes in note reading, rhythmic study, and small ensemble will be scheduled. Musicianship classes and supervised practice periods will also be a part of the camp curriculum. Beginners will be provided with lessons, supervised practice and classes and musicianship.

Parents may enroll students by calling the School of Music, ECU, 757-6331. Additional information may be obtained by calling Dr.

ing a new program of instruction for the 1980 Summer String Camp.

Awards To Cub Scouts

Wolf Awards were presented at the April meeting of Cub Scout Pack 33, held recently at Wahl-Coates School cafeteria.

Cub Scouts receiving Wolf status and awards were Scott Thompson, Travis Robbins, Todd Taylor, Michael Fadel, Vance Averette, Kirt Lieberman, and Greg Jones. Craig Von Rij received his Bobcat award.

The results of the Pinewood Derby were announced during the meeting. Chris Pittman received first place in the Pitt County division for Best Looking Car.

Den 1 showed some individual homemade musical instruments and used them to lead the pack in a song, while Den 3 demonstrated a game called Musical Plates.

The Pack newsletter, initiated recently, was commended and Sara Stancill, who handles the writing, suggested that individual dens report their news to her during the monthly pack meetings.

Den 2 gave the closing ceremony for the meeting. It was announced that the May meeting will be held on Thursday, the 29th, utilizing the theme for the month, "Living in the Year 2,000 A.D."

Trade Zone

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt announced approval on Tuesday by the U.S. Department of Commerce of Charlotte as North Carolina's first foreign trade zone.

State authorities had sponsored establishment of the trade zone as a means of encouraging industry to locate in North Carolina and to expand international trade for state firms.

Designation as a trade zone enables companies operating in the area to import parts, assemble them into a finished product and ship them overseas without paying duty or inventory taxes.

Advise Against Prosecution

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Wake County's grand jury has recommended that no prosecution be initiated in two alleged rape cases involving students at North Carolina State University.

The action came on a bill of presentment filed by District Attorney J. Randolph Riley. A presentment allows the grand jury to decide whether prosecution is warranted.

The university has expelled one male student, suspended another and placed nine others on probation after investigating charges by three codes that they were forced to engage in sex during incidents in October and in March.

A Correction On Suit Numbers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Associated Press erroneously reported on April 8 that American Can Co. is being sued by more than 1,000 older workers on charges of age discrimination.

John F. McGoldrick, vice president-corporate communications for American Can, said the company has 50,000 employees and that the "total number of people involved in allegations concerning any violation of employment law is less than 50."

Discuss School Merger Issue

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer
The proposed merger of the Greenville-Pitt County School systems was one of the major topics commented on by seven candidates for election or re-election to the two school boards at a League of Women Voters sponsored forum held Tuesday night at Elm Street Gym. A very small audience — attributed to stormy conditions at the 8 p.m. forum hour — was on hand to hear four candidates for the city board and three for the county board give their views on various issues affecting the two school systems.

The four seeking seats on the Greenville Board of Education in the forthcoming elections are incumbents Lena Brown, Jack Wall, and Sue Zadeits and former board member Henry Dunn, seeking to return to the board.

County school board candidates attending the forum were Benjamin (Bill) James, E. B. Bright, and James Black. Two county candidates, William (Jack) Edwards and Walter Gaskins were unable to attend.

Highlights of comments made by the candidates are:

— Lena Brown — "My comments are more about positive things, good things that are already being done and what I hope to help do to make programs even more positive," Mrs. Brown said. "My main concern is to see a complete school policy manual finished, and to improve present curriculum and other programs to be sure the educational needs of our children are met."

Questioned about her stand on merger, Mrs. Brown commented "I have mixed emotions on merger. I need to hear more, to find out more about this before I take a position. Let's say I'm not yet convinced."

— Henry Dunn — "The education of the general public on school policy, school law, the involvement of the community, attention to the most pressing capital needs, especially the completion of the Middle School are among my major concerns," former board member Dunn said. Other needs touched by Dunn are for an auditorium at Rose High and athletic facilities for the schools.

One point stressed by Dunn was advocating the use of regular school buses for athletic and other activity purposes — "this would save millions statewide in the purchase of activity buses," he said. On merger, Dunn said "I would petition the county commissioners to place it on a referendum for the public."

— Jack Wall — "I want to stress the need for more supervision of teachers before they are put on tenure," Jack Wall commented. "School is big business now, and I see a need for a stronger effort to supervise the quality of the teachers we get. We have good teachers, and need to be careful to keep it that way."

Wall feels that "merger is in the best interests of both the city and county. A lot of people are afraid of changes and at the beginning I don't think it would be less expensive, but down the road I believe it would be more economical."

Another issue Wall brought up was what he calls the necessity "to have district lines for the city school dovetail with the city limits. As it is now, we're being choked on racial balance which is partly a result of the school lines."

— Sue Zadeits — "Discipline is still a major problem for which we must find answers," commented Sue Zadeits. "I also strongly feel that we need more interest in the sciences and arts in our school curriculum."

The problems of growth restriction was another issue raised by Mrs. Zadeits. "Declining enrollment is a problem," she said. "The city is growing, but the school system cannot grow because we cannot extend our school district lines."

On the merger issue, Mrs. Zadeits answered a question by saying "I still have not made up my mind. I feel there's a lot that needs to be answered, and I have qualms about acting on anything on which I'm not fully informed. Basically, I could not support any plan that would not be in the best interests of students in Greenville City schools."

— James Black — Unopposed candidate Black hit strongly on the merger issue. "I believe that merger would probably be in the best interests for the total educational growth for all students in Pitt County and Greenville," Black said. "However, I want to see the decision for a merger to go to a vote of the people."

Black added that he feels at this time that merger "may slow down the growth of educational opportunities in the Pitt County schools. When the Greenville City schools had their supplemental tax, they had more money. Now, a lot of county people feel the worm is slowly turning around."

— E. B. Bright — Candidate Bright feels that "Collecting and analyzing information and data is essential to looking at possible alternatives before selecting solutions. This is invaluable, and before I would pursue any attempt to solve problems, I would deliberately go this route."

A point stressed by Bright is "Protecting the teaching-learning time, the time when teachers and students are together in a classroom. We need to be reminded that this is the vital purpose of education, that this is what it's all about."

On merger, Bright stated "I do not at this time have a formal position for or against merger. I have to study, to go through further data to effectively make a decision, to look at support services, administration, all which are in some sense measurable factors."

— Benjamin W. (Bill) James — "A sound vocational rehabilitation program is one of the most important needs in the Pitt County schools," candidate James asserted. "For many of our students, an education with training in practical fields is a very important part of their school life."

James noted on merger that "they tell me most people in the county are now against it. And I think Greenville is locked in, that if it was to have a growth in the schools, it would take away from the county."

Chestnut Makes A Visit Here

William S. "Bill" Chestnut, a candidate for North Carolina State Auditor in the May Democratic primary election campaigned in Greenville yesterday, saying he is, "the best qualified candidate," for the post now held by Henry Bridges, who is not seeking re-election.

Presently director of finance for Pembroke State University, Chestnut, a Maxton native, is a certified public accountant and an accounting teacher. He received his bachelor's degree in accounting from Atlantic Christian College and has done graduate work at East Carolina and Duke Universities. He has also served two terms as mayor of Maxton.

Bridges, according to Chestnut, "did an outstanding job as State Auditor for over 30 years. Political favoritism has no place in an auditor's report. I intend to see that this honesty continues. The state auditor, after all, represents the taxpayers in seeing that state money is spent properly."

When Bridges announced he was stepping down, Chestnut continued, "I felt I was as qualified to run for the office as anyone else. I know the job as well as anyone and I have been working with state auditors for 14 years. I feel like after WILLIAM CHESTNUT having been in both private and public accounting, that I am uniquely qualified."

The State Auditor's Office, the candidate said, should move strongly to see that every tax dollar is properly used and that full value is realized. "To allow the State Auditor's office to become a politically oriented agency would be a grave disservice to the people of North Carolina. We must maintain the highest levels of professional competence and personal integrity so that there will be no doubt as to the credibility of those who monitor the utilization of the State's resources."

Several Winners In Horse Show Events

Several participants in the Eastern Hunter Association received recognition at the second circuit show of 1980 held Saturday at Fox Run Farms in Wilmington. Those receiving recognition were:

— Allyson Maloney, riding Little Miss Fancy, won a second place.

— Alexis White, riding Saffron, was recipient of a second and a fourth place award.

— Terry Kovalchick received a sixth place in one event, riding Tadpole Cat.

— Missy Daughtry received the Reserve Championship by placing first and second in Low Hunter Division, riding Farnley Collop. She also received a third and fifth place in other events.

— Mona VanNortwick, riding Chesapeake Chessie, won the Reserve Championship in Large Pony Division by placing first. She also received two fourth places and a sixth place in other events.

New Officers Are Elected

New officers were installed for the Society for Collegiate Journalists 1980-81 term, and the ECU Chapter voted to change its name.

Officers are: Larry Zicherman of Greenville, President; Terry Gray of Elizabeth City, vice president; Leigh Coakley of Greenville, secretary; Pam Davis of Winston-Salem, treasurer and Susan Fernald of Chapel Hill, historian.

The chapter was renamed in honor of Ira Baker who initiated the first chapter here in 1969. Baker has been adviser since then.

Local Church Has Winners

The N.C. Young People from the First Pentecostal Holiness Church of Greenville participated in a talent contest with other young people from 157 churches in the North Carolina Conference.

Several participants were winners — junior level winners were Sarah Jones, first place keyboard solo, Guy Buck, first runner up for instrumental solo.

In the teen talent competition Mike Pollard won first place instrumental solo, Paula Alcock, piano, Mike Pollard, trombone, H. L. Austin, Randy Gentry and Glenn Buck, trumpets. The ensemble won first place.

The winners will travel to Columbia, S.C. to compete in the regional teen talent competition May 10.

Group Attends Meeting

Three instructors in the business education department at Pitt Community College recently attended the twenty-seventh annual state convention of North Carolina Alpha Delta Kappa, the International Sorority for Women Educators.

Mrs. Ann B. Byrd, state president; Mrs. Faye H. Dempsey, state corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Shirley H. Moore, sergeant at arms, Alpha Nu Chapter, participated in the meeting in Asheville. Mary Heil from Hendersonville was elected during the business session to succeed Ann Byrd as president. Byrd will continue to serve on the state executive board during the 1980-82 biennium and will be voting delegate at the international convention in 1981 in New Orleans, La.

Mrs. Dempsey was appointed chairman of the state qualifications committee by the newly elected state president. In this capacity, she will be invited to attend all state executive board meetings during the biennium and will be responsible for a slate of officers to be presented to the 1982 state convention. She will also assist the state sergeant at arms in the election of officers at the 1982 state convention.

VEPCO Advised...

Under such an arrangement, Vepco would be paid a transmission or wheeling fee for that service. That fee has not been established and must be approved by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. Should the wheeling fee be excessive, Greenville is prepared to build its own transmission lines.

Horne said if the construction of lines is needed, the first would connect with CP&L lines near Grimesland, while the second would tie into the CP&L system near Farmville. Cost of the two lines would total about $9.9 million and has been considered in the projected savings by switching from Vepco to CP&L.

Under the existing contract with Vepco, the city must give Vepco one year's notice of termination of service, plus an additional year for every percentage point above 20 percent that the removal of Greenville's load would increase Vepco's reserves. To keep the termination notice period at the minimum 12 months, the city gave notice of termination on only 40 percent of the power it buys from Vepco. "The balance of its full requirements load will continue to be served by Vepco ... until the effective date of termination for all or a portion of the balance of load pursuant to future notices of termination that may be issued."

The letter to Vepco also requests, "consideration...of a waiver of the notice period for the balance of the full requirements load."

The letter of application for service to CP&L noted that Greenville's "total load will be transferred to CP&L no later than May 1, 1984, unless the Commission is precluded from terminating all or any part of its service from (Vepco)."

Horne told commissioners that until the joint ownership negotiations between CP&L and the Municipal Power Agencies are completed, no specific economic feasibility report can be made on the comparative cost of power received through a Power Agency ownership project. However, he emphasized that there is no question but what the cost of power under such an arrangement would be below that of a private utility, because of the Power Agency's lower cost of capital and tax-exempt status.

The Power Agency negotiations with CP&L are being conducted on behalf of 34 municipalities that own and operate their own electric systems, including 15 cities and towns now supplied entirely with Vepco-generated power.

The GUC made it clear that it intends to support that joint effort. But in its letter to CP&L, the commission said that if the Power Agency arrangements should not work out, "it is the intention of the Commission to seek to continue negotiations, on behalf of Greenville alone or in conjunction with other cities, with CP&L for the purchase of generating capacity and supplemental (power) services."

The application for service, and CP&L's commitment are the result of months of negotiations, according to Horne, both between CP&L and Greenville, as well as the Municipal Power Agencies.

Greenville is the largest customer on the Vepco system in North Carolina. About 10 percent of the utilities' total load is in Northeastern North Carolina, with about half coming from retail customers and half from wholesale customers such as Greenville, Jim McBrayer, Vepco district manager in Williamston said.

McBrayer, who attended the meeting last night, said, "I had certainly hoped," that Greenville would remain on the Vepco system. "I feel our rates will be competitive with CP&L by 1983 or 1984. I hope, for Greenville's sake, they are not spending money ... they will be sorry about in the coming years."

Greenville, McBrayer noted, has been, "a valuable customer during the years and I hoped they would stay with us."

might end the confrontation and bring sanity back to Iran."

Muskie told reporters he has no doubt of Carter's confidence in him. "The president has left no doubt in my mind...that I will be the foreign policy spokesman," Muskie said when asked about his standing in view of the frequent clashes between Vance and the president's national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski.

Muskie's Senate record, including service on the Foreign Relations Committee, is typical of a Democrat who offers strong support to a president from the same party.

He sided with Carter on most of the president's most controversial foreign policy positions, including the Panama Canal treaties, the decision to scrap the B-1 bomber, the sale of advanced fighters to Israel, Egypt and Saudi Arabia and maintaining economic sanctions against Rhodesia.

Although he took no formal position on the SALT II treaty with the Soviet Union, Muskie was counted as a strong proponent of arms control and a virtually certain vote in favor of the strategic arms limitation agreement.

As chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, Muskie argued against proposals, also opposed by Carter, to raise the defense budget by 3 percent to 5 percent, saying security "is not that simple."

Like Carter, Muskie changed his view of the Soviet Union after its military incursion into Afghanistan. "Betrayed, yes, that's the word," he said. On detente, he said, "We thought it was in this country's best interests. She (the Soviet Union) just ran out on us."

Officially, Muskie remained neutral in this year's presidential campaign, but he was friendly to Carter.

Council Meet

Will Be Held

The Pitt County Schools' Title I program will hold its fourth Countywide Parent Advisory Council meeting of the school year Thursday.

The meeting will be held in the Board of Education Conference Room on the third floor of the Courthouse at 7 p. m.

The featured speaker will be Janie Manning, Principal of Bethel Elementary School, who will tell of a successful workshop she conducted for parents of children in her school. Reports will be given by the Title I Parent Appreciation Dinner Committee and a team of parents, teachers, staff and administrators who attended a workshop on organizing Parent Advisory Councils.

Chairpersons and co-chairpersons from each school in the county are encouraged to attend, as are other interested parents.

we've been looking forward to. With this facility, we can serve many more boys. It's long been needed, and with it we can look forward to an even greater future."

Chet Emerson, executive director of the Club, remarked "This is a fine example of the continued interest and support the community has provided their Boys' Club. I believe the citizens understand the importance of good wholesome programs for young people and their support to the Boys' Club is an effort to provide such programs."

John Brick, pastor of University Church of Christ gave the invocation.

Funds to build the new spacious building have been gathered from the generous response of local corporations, businesses, civic clubs and individuals who have pledged gifts, many of them over a five-year period. To date, more than $400,000 has been pledged.

Tentative date for the completion of the building is December this year. Architect is Byron Franklin of Franklin Associates, and contractor is Miller and Davis Associates.

NEW DIRECTIONS TO APPEAR

In 1968, a group of young people from Alamance County, North Carolina began to meet together to study the Scriptures, to experience the reality of prayer, and to share with one another in their daily trials and triumphs of walking with Jesus Christ. Although no one projected it (or suspected it), it was out of this group of young believers that the New Directions were born. It seemed to be a natural progression that their longing for the life of Christ would find its fulfillment in looking at the person of Christ and overflow into lauding the Name of Christ.

What began originally as a group of brothers and sisters fellowshiping together by singing "psalms and hymns and spiritual songs" grew over the years into an internationally known, multifaceted outreach of discipleship and evangelism. From the beginning, the point of the music was not to put on a "live" show, but rather to show that by putting on Christ, one could really become alive!

The expression of that great news has taken the New Directions into almost every part of the Western Hemisphere for concerts in schools, churches, shopping centers, beaches, prisons, stadiums and campgrounds! Whether the travels take them to the boardwalk of Hampton Beach, New Hampshire, or into the back bush country of Haiti, or into the stately halls of federal government, or into the brick and steel of a federal prison, the message is always that Jesus Christ is Lord! They are an interdenominational group.

The New Directions will be in concert at St. James United Methodist Church, Saturday May 3 at 8:00 p.m. They will be in charge of the worship service at Holy Trinity United Methodist Church, Sunday, May 4 beginning at 10:30 a.m. The public is invited.

Long-Time Puerto Rico Governor Dies At Age 82

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Luis Munoz Marin, Puerto Rico's governor for 16 years and the architect of its economic revolution, died early today of a massive cardiac arrest, his doctor announced. He was 82.

Munoz Marin, governor from 1948 to 1964, patriarch of the Popular Democratic Party and founding father of the economic Operation Bootstrap, had been hospitalized since Saturday after suffering a heart attack and a stroke.

His doctor at the Millas Hospital in San Juan said he died at 3:05 a.m.

A poet, philosopher, phrasemaker and politician, Munoz Marin rallied his people to his economic revolution with the phrase: "We must live like the angels and work like the devil."

It was an industrialization program encouraged by tax exemptions, other government actions and hard work. It changed the island, once a virtual poorhouse, into the second most prosperous state in Latin America. Only Venezuela, with its oil riches, did better on the basis of income per person.

It pulled Puerto Rico out of a one-crop, sugar economy to the prosperity of a diversified industrial economy.

Landless peasants were given acres purchased from sugar companies. A rural electrification program brought hundreds of villages their first power. Munoz Marin built medical centers, hospitals, schools, parks and playgrounds. Puerto Rico became one of the Caribbean's major tourist areas.

Munoz Marin was born in San Juan on Feb. 18, 1898, the only son of Luis Munoz Rivera, who obtained a concession of autonomy from Spain after a 10-year struggle before Spain lost the island to the United States in the Spanish-American war.

The father subsequently became resident commissioner for Puerto Rico in Washington and was credited with getting Congress in 1917 to grant the islanders U.S. citizenship and their own elected legislature. During that time, his son studied at Georgetown Preparatory School and Georgetown University in Washington.

In 1926, Munoz Marin returned to Puerto Rico as an advocate of independence. However, he became convinced that Puerto Rico was more in need of economic reform and that close association with the United States was the best path to that end. That became his main platform when he formed the Popular Democratic Party in 1938 and ran for the island's senate. He was elected in 1940 and for seven years was president of that body. Then the United States granted Puerto Ricans the right to elect their own governor and Munoz Marin won by a landslide in 1948. He said later he felt his greatest contribution to Puerto Rico was winning acceptance by the United States in 1952 for commonwealth status for the island.

Jurors Took 9 Minutes

TAYLORSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A jury took only nine minutes Tuesday to return a verdict of guilty in the trial of Darrell Lee Young, a prison road gang escapee charged with rape and kidnapping.

Young was sentenced to not less than life on a charge of second-degree rape, 50 years to life on a kidnapping charge, 11 years on a charge of auto larceny and to one year on an escape charge.

The rape occurred shortly after Young, 27, walked away from a road gang working near Thomasville in Davidson County on Oct. 24. The trial was moved to Alexander County after a judge ruled extensive pretrial publicity had prejudiced the defense.

The victim testified Monday that Young forced his way into her house and raped her, then bound and gagged her and tried to force her into a car. She said she fought with him and he drove off alone.

The case led to an outpouring of demands from Davidson County residents for changes in prison security measures. Prison authorities later issued revised procedures for work outside prison units.

Golf Carts Where Lizards Ran

By ROBERT LOCKE
AP Science Writer
PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP) — Wilbur Mayhew stands on a rocky little knoll. At his back stretches the flat, brown desert — miles and miles of it — a barren landscape sliced by sandy streambeds, dotted by dull-green thorny shrubs.

In front of him lies a golf course — manicured greens with flags fluttering on 18 grassy fairways lined with palm trees and ringed by lakes. Electric carts dash about like the lizards that once scampered over nearby sand dunes.

"That's what they're doing to the Great American Desert," said Mayhew, 60-year-old desert rat, professor of zoology at the University of California-Riverside and expert on a little creature called the fringe-toed lizard.

Mayhew said the golf course once looked like the rest of the desert. "And I expect that when the water table gets too low for irrigation, that it'll look that way again. In another 100 years, or 1,000."

But until then, the desert pays for the golf courses and modern cities that sprout beside interstate highways throughout the Southern California desert — a surprisingly diverse region the size of Ohio.

"It gives the appearance of being very, very rugged," Mayhew said. "In July (when temperatures can hit 125 degrees or more), you'd swear it can take anything. But it can't. The desert is very fragile. It takes a long, long time for the desert to recover."

Mayhew is the wildlife expert on a citizens committee that worked three years with the U.S. Bureau of Land Management to mold a proposed land-use plan for the California desert. A series of public hearings on the proposal concludes in Los Angeles on Wednesday.

"This desert plan is the only chance we've got," he said. "You just can't have everybody out here doing as they damn please, not anymore. There's so many people that they just love the desert to death."

Mayhew sees major battles in the offing: "There's going to be blood on the floor before this thing's settled." Competing interests — from seekers of solitude to dune buggy drivers, miners to subdividers — all are demanding shares in the desert.

"There are some really amazing things in this world," Mayhew said. A lot of them, like the fringe-toed lizard, are found in the California desert. Indeed, all the fringe-toed lizards in the world live on the windblown sand dunes of the Coachella Valley.

The 6-inch lizard has spiny fringes on its back feet, giving the reptile a pair of "snowshoes" when it dashes over the sand on its hind legs. When danger threatens, the lizard dives headlong into the sand where it can breathe because of complex equipment in its eyes, nose and mouth.

But the little lizard, so perfectly adapted for the sand, can survive nowhere else — "If you eliminate these sandy areas, you eliminate these animals. They can't live on the golf course."

Mayhew tells of the 100-foot-high sand dunes on the edge of the bustling desert town of Palm Desert. "I thought those dunes would be there for 1,000 years," he said. "They bulldozed them to make a trailer park."

So it goes. Wiry little mesquite trees are dying because the water table that fed them for centuries has fallen below the tap roots that reach deep into the earth.

Mayhew said the wells that quench the thirst, water the lawns and fill the swimming pools of desert residents are depleting the desert's most precious commodity: water.

"When I bring my students out here, they think they see a lot of animals," Mayhew said. "But they're not seeing 10 percent of what I used to see when I first came here. Twenty years ago, all this was natural and I thought it would always be that way."

UC-Riverside owns or controls 20,000 acres near Palm Desert called the Deep Canyon Refuge. "At least this much will always be natural," he said.

Deep Canyon contains about 800 species of plants, from the delicate desert lavender to creosote bushes older than written history. And 200 animal species from desert bighorn sheep to sidewinder rattlesnakes to hummingbirds have been spotted.

Mayhew spends several days a week trying to catalog their number and variety. One of his routes follows a dry streambed — a relative oasis that winds through the scrublands.

Mayhew describes the brush as he goes: a gray-green brittle bush that seems to grow out of solid rock and promises a burst of yellow flowers in the spring; pale green chuparosa with long red buds; cheesebush, with pale flowers and fragile green stems.

A covey of Gambel's quail, tassels bobbing on their heads, zigzag through the bushes as antelope ground squirrels scramble for cover. The tiny squirrels stay active through the hottest part of the day, Mayhew said, by running periodically into their burrows to press against the cool walls and lower their body temperature.

Mayhew misses very little. His binoculars come to his eyes when a hummingbird chirping sound tells him, "There's a cactus wren calling over there."

Even the barren dunes are alive, the soft sand crisscrossed with trails left by kangaroo rats, lizards, rabbits, snakes and birds.

"Most people don't think there's anything out here," Mayhew said. "They just drive through and they don't see anything. But if people just knew what's out here, they'd want to protect it. Otherwise, the whole Marine Corps couldn't protect the desert."

NEW ASSAULT SHIP — A helicopter approaches the flight deck of LHA-5, Peleliu, during sea trials in the Gulf of Mexico. The Peleliu is the fifth of the 820-foot-long amphibious assault ships built for the U.S. Navy by Litton Industries' Ingalls Shipbuilding division. The new 40,000-ton ship will be commissioned into active service with the fleet on May 3 at Pascagoula, Miss. Each LHA can carry a fully-equipped Marine battalion assault force and land it on hostile shore by helicopters off the flight deck and landing craft from a flooded deck cut into the stern of the ship. (AP Laser-photo)

Commando Group Back To Fort Bragg Duties

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Grim-faced and apparently frustrated, about 50 members of the Delta Group commando unit that staged the unsuccessful rescue of American hostages in Iran last week returned to their duty posts at Fort Bragg Tuesday.

Most of the men, all of whom were dressed in civilian clothing and carrying no baggage, refused to talk with newsmen.

One, however, replied when he was asked if the men were Delta Group members: "Yeah, what about it?"

He then added, "You've got a mission. You know you can do it, and somebody tells you to pull out."

The mission was aborted after three of eight helicopters were disabled. In leaving a rendezvous point in Iran, another helicopter collided with a C-130 transport, killing eight Americans.

The Delta Group, which also is known as Operation Blue Light, is made up of about 300 persons from all U.S. military services. Based at Fort Bragg, the anti-terrorist unit reportedly is controlled directly by the Pentagon.

Defense Secretary Harold B. Brown said after the ill-fated mission that 180 men were involved.

Those returning Tuesday flew to Fayetteville aboard Piedmont Airlines Flight 250 from Atlanta.

At the Fayetteville airport, they quickly walked through the terminal to more than a half-dozen dark green Army vans, station wagons and staff cars waiting outside and were driven off, apparently to Fort Bragg.

Some of the men carried small military briefcases. Most wore leisure suits or sports clothing with open-neck collars.

Meanwhile, a memorial service was held at New River Marine Corps Air Station near Jacksonville Tuesday for three Marines killed in the collision in Iran. They were eulogized as dedicated Americans who had made "a hero's sacrifice."

EEOC Appeals Seminary Case

FORT WORTH (UPI) — The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission has appealed a court decision which held the EEOC does not have jurisdiction over Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary.

The EEOC is seeking the seminary's employee records and contends the seminary is required to follow federal equal employment guidelines because it is an institution of higher learning employing more than 15 persons. The seminary claims that because it is a religious institution, the EEOC does not have jurisdiction over its employment practices.

Only Your Paper Carrier Loses When You Do Not Pay Promptly.

'Cary'

"Hi. My name is Cary and I represent your Daily Reflector newspaper carrier. And if you have a few minutes I'd like to explain something about my job.

"All paper carriers for The Daily Reflector are independent contractors. What this means is that I pay the newspaper a wholesale rate for the papers on my route. What I charge you is the retail rate. The difference in the two rates is my profit.

"The Daily Reflector doesn't lose any money when you don't pay me on time. I lose some of my profit."

A tip from Cary to help you pay your Daily Reflector newspaper carrier on time:

Put the money, or check, for your carrier in the same convenient place each collection period. Make sure household members know where the payment is so that anyone can pay the carrier at collection time.

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market was mixed today, confronted with another recession signal. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 5.37 to 805.72 in the first half hour. But gainers held a slight lead over losers in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. The government reported early today that the index of leading economic indicators fell 2.6 percent in March for its sharpest decline in 5 1/2 years. The index, which is designed to detect developing economic trends, shows declines in five of the past six months. The March drop had been widely anticipated on Wall Street, but it nevertheless stood as fresh evidence that business activity was headed into a slump. Pittston led the active list in early trading, down 1/4 at 19 1/2. The company reported first-quarter earnings of 55 cents a share, down from 72 cents, including an extraordinary item, in the like period of 1979. On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average rose 5.63 to 811.09, bringing its gain over the past six sessions to 51.96 points. Advances outnumbered declines by a 3-2 margin on the NYSE. Big Board volume totaled 27.94 million shares, against 30.60 million in the previous session. The NYSE's composite index gained .16 to 60.17. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 2.46 at 252.32.

CHURCH OF GOD IN CHRIST FINDS ACCUSATION AGAINST LOCAL ELDER FALSE

An investigation into the matter of an accusation against Rev. C.D. McNeil, local pastor and administrative assistant to the Bishop, L.B. Davenport, has been proven false. The presiding Bishop of the Diocese of Greater North Carolina Church of God in Christ met with a special session of the Elder's Council on Monday, April 21, 1980 and their findings were as follows:

The character of Rev. C.D. McNeil as a Christian gentleman, an upstanding citizen in the Kinston community and in the General Church of God in Christ proves all accusations false.

Such rumors are detrimental to one's reputation and name for the Bible hath said "A GOOD NAME IS RATHER TO BE CHOSEN THAN GREAT RICHES".

We, the Elder's Council conclude therefore that this entire incident be treated as completely false and Rev. C.D. McNeil be cleared of any and all accusations. Respectfully submitted, Bishop L.B. Davenport, Presiding Bishop Superintendent J.H. Turner, Chairman of Elder's Council' E.C. Cannon, 1st Administrative Asst. Leroy Woolard, Donnie Jones, J.J. Williams, A.E. Peterson

Demons Stun Rampants, 6-4

By RICK SCOPPE
 Reflector Sports Writer
WILSON — For most of the season Wilson Fike has been beaten on and laughed at by other Division I schools. Tuesday afternoon the Golden Demons were the ones laughing and cheering as they stunned second-place Rose, 6-4.

"They just outplayed us," Rose coach Ron Vincent said. "They played a whole lot better than we did and they deserved to win. We've been playing bad the last two or three weeks and I just don't know what it is. I wish I did."

The Rampants' main problem Tuesday was Fike pitcher Randy Prince. The lanky left-hander, hitting the corners time and again, held Rose to four hits while striking out six and walking five.

"Prince wasn't necessary overpowering today, but he got tough when he needed to," an elated Wilson coach Alton Britt said. "He kept the ball down pretty good and was able to keep them off balance some."

Fike, now 7-10 overall and 3-6 in the conference, had lost to Rose 16-1 a month ago but wasted little time in establishing itself this day. While the Rampants, now 12-3 overall and 7-2 in the league, were going down in order two of their first four at bats, Fike was scoring singleruns in each of its first four at bats.

With one gone in the first

Jeff Boykin walked, moved to second on a passed ball and then to third after a ground out. He scored on a wild pitch by starter Kenny Barnes, who lost his first game in six starts.

Randy Ward, who was three-for-three at the plate and proved to be the Rampant's main nemesis, launched a home run over the right field fence in the second to give Fike a 2-0 lead. Rose failed to score with runners on first and second and none out in the third. Fike, meanwhile, added to its lead in the bottom of the inning.

Don Doster singled, moved to second on a sacrifice bunt, and scored on Boykin's single. Rose again had runners on first and second in the top of the fourth but was unable to score. Fike again increased its lead in its half of the inning.

Ward led off the fourth with an infield single to shortstop Mark Douglas, moved to second on a sacrifice and went to third on a ground out to third baseman Skip Hill, who after knocking the sharply hit ball down just nipped Billy Blackburn at first.

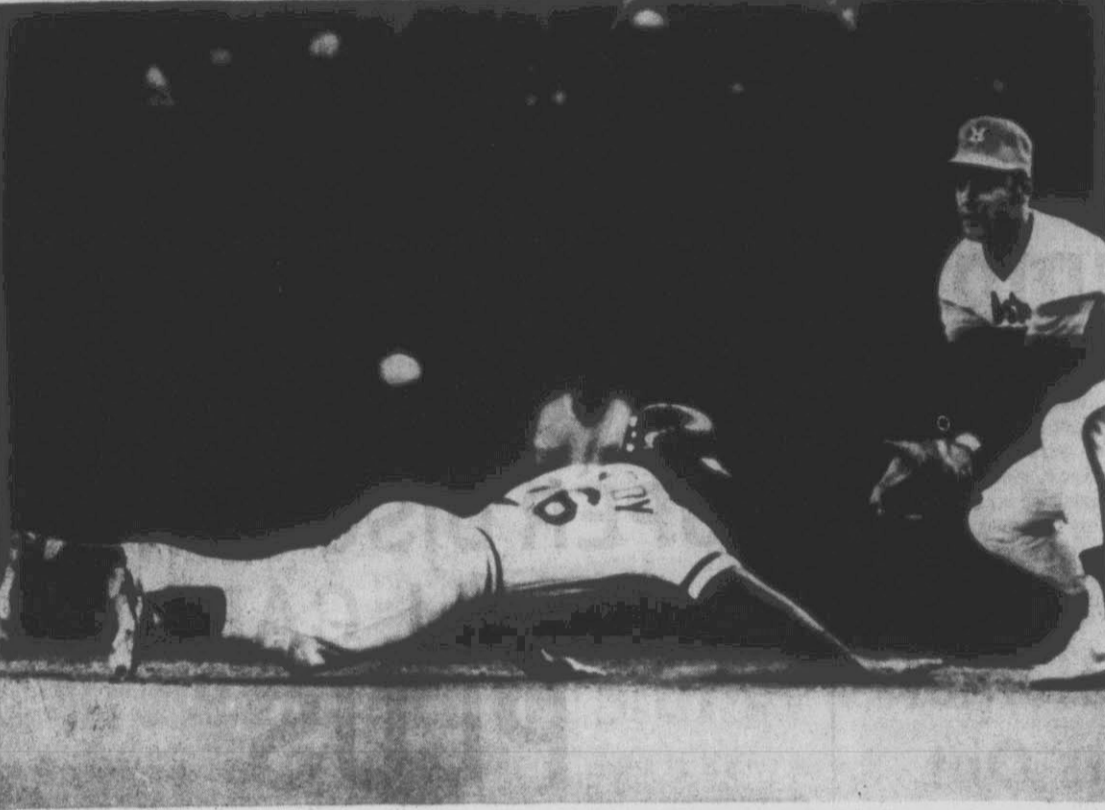

Ward scored moments later when Douglas' throw from deep in the hole at short bounced by first baseman Jeff Wilson and Fike led, 4-0.

The Rampants, held to one hit by Prince through five innings, finally broke through in the sixth. Douglas and Will Barrett walked to lead off and moved up on a ground out by relief pitcher Scott Galloway, who replaced Barnes in the fourth. Emmett Walsh then drove home Douglas with a ground out and Mike Campbell followed with a bloop single into short center to score Barrett.

For a brief moment it looked as if Rose was back in the game. But Fike doused the Rampants' smoldering hopes with two runs in the bottom of the inning.

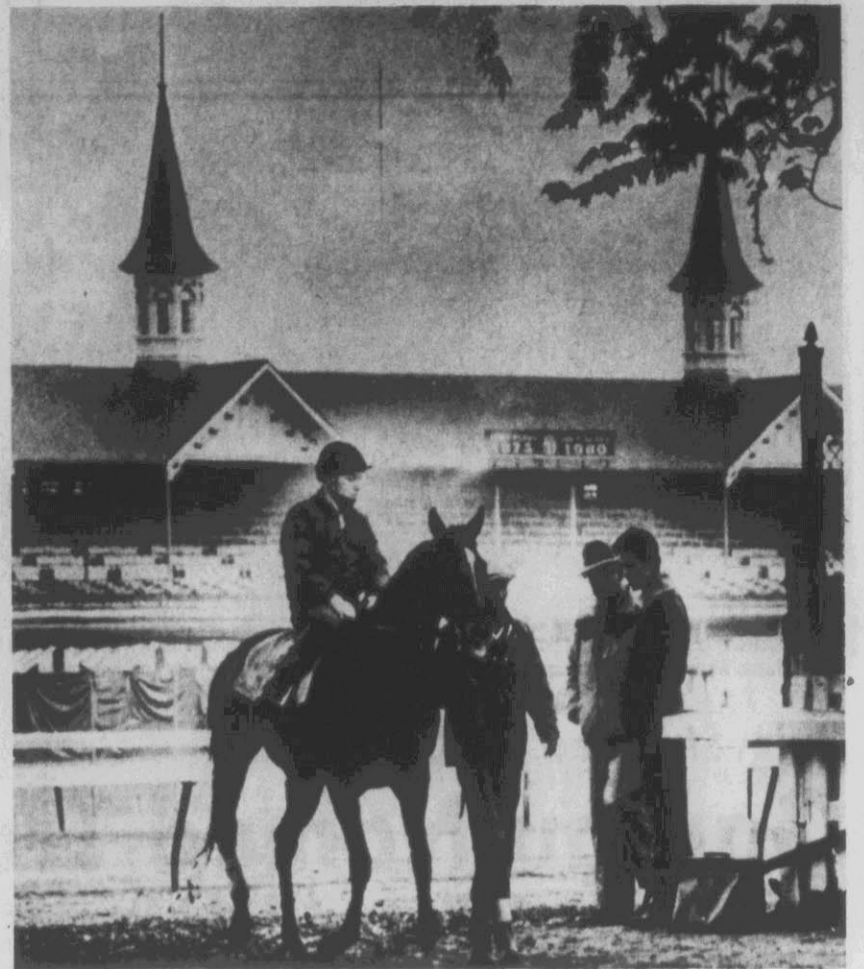

Again, it was Ward who started the Fike surge. The Golden Demon catcher hit Galloway's first pitch of the inning down the third base line for a double and then scored on Robert Bland's single. Bland moved to third on a sacrifice bunt and a ground out and scored on Douglas' second error of the game.

Will Barrett's two-run homer in the top of the seventh with Douglas aboard brought Rose within two, 6-4, but Prince quickly set down the next three Rose batters

Rain Dampens Buc Bid

Hal Baird, coach of the East Carolina Pirates sat disgusted in the press box, watching the rain pour down on Harrington Field last night.

"Maybe God really is a Tar Heel," he said.

His reference was to the fact that North Carolina, regular season winner in the Atlantic Coast Conference, but loser in the league's post-season tournament, is one of the chief rivals of the Pirates for a post-season NCAA at-large bid. And the rains did little to help the Pirates' cause.

mark may be the best among NCAA Division I teams as far as percentages go. They also have met the minimum standard of 32 games played to be considered for NCAA play in the post-season.

The game, with Campbell University, was to have been the final regular season contest, and along with closing out the season, the Pirates were to have honored eight seniors, wearing the Purple and Gold for the final time at home.

The NFL Draft

Jets' Pick Olympic Sprint Champ

NEW YORK (AP) — Forgive the shudder felt by National Football League defensive backs after the first round of the college player draft.

It was an understandable aftershock produced by the trade that delivered Texas wide receiver Johnny "Lam" Jones, an Olympic sprint champion, to the New York Jets. That's because the Jets, who gave two first round picks to San Francisco for the No.2 draft choice, already own Wesley Walker, one of the league's fleetest wide receivers. With Jones working the other side of the field, it could mean nightmares for secondaries trying to contain the New York passing game.

The Jets certainly think so. "We're obviously very pleased to have acquired Lam Jones, one of the highest quality players in the draft," crowed New York Coach Walt Michaels. "If we have two guys going like Walker and Jones, it will put tremendous pressure on the opposition defense. It gives us depth."

Walker is coming back from knee surgery but Michaels assured listeners that was no consideration in selecting Jones. "I absolutely guarantee Wesley Walker is all right," he said.

San Francisco had been offering the draft's No.2 pick around, before finally settling on the Jets' bid of the No.13 and No.20 selections. New York had acquired No.20 from Denver earlier in the trade of quarterback Matt Robinson to the Broncos.

For their part, the 49ers came away with running back Earl Cooper from Rice and defensive end Jim Stuckey of Clemson. That sat well with Bill Walsh, San Francisco's general manager-coach, who negotiated the deal with the Jets. He called Cooper a back "with excellent size who is also nimble. He should fit into our running game and our passing game. We feel we have a solid backfield now."

The Jets-49ers trade was contingent upon Detroit making Oklahoma running back Billy Sims the draft's No.1 choice. When the Lions did that, the trade for No.2 was completed. There had been speculation that Sims' contract demands — reportedly $5 million for six years — would scare off the Lions. But Detroit plowed ahead, picking Sims, who won the 1978 Heisman and was runner-up last season.

"This is the best football player in the country this year," said Lion Coach Monte Clark, who held up a hand-lettered sign reading "We've got Sims."

Not yet, they don't. Negotiations have been stalemated and Sims seemed cynical about progress.

"I wasn't impressed with Detroit before I went there to visit," he said. "They had a bad record last year (2-14). But they just need an added touch, which I believe I am. I'm just waiting for (General Manager) Russ Thomas to wake up."

Unlike last year's No.1, line-backer Tom Cousineau, Sims isn't threatening to flee to Canada. Unless, of course, the Lions don't deliver.

"I think everything will work out OK," he said. "Detroit is a great challenge for myself. They have (uniform) No. 20 ready and I'm ready to fill those shoes."

Besides the Jets-49ers trade, the other first round surprise

Ruiz Stripped Of Crown Gareau Named True Champ

BOSTON (AP) — Jacqueline Gareau of Montreal officially is the 1980 Boston Marathon women's champion and new record-holder, but Rosie Ruiz can return next year for another shot if she wants it.

The Boston Athletic Association awarded victory to the 27-year-old Gareau eight days late Tuesday in disqualifying Rosie on the grounds she did not run the entire race April 22.

In disqualifying the 26-year-old New York office worker, however, the BAA bid her welcome to return in 1981 and prove she belongs among the world's top women distance runners.

"I can truthfully and honestly say without hesitation that today has been the second saddest day of my life, only to be surpassed by the day I had to leave my father in my native country (Cuba) 18 years ago,"

Ruiz told the Associated Press in a telephone interview Tuesday night.

Will Cloney, director of the Boston Marathon since 1946, said a week-long investigation showed "beyond any reasonable doubt" that Ruiz did not cover the 26-mile, 385-yard course. However, he extended her "an open invitation" to enter again without the usual qualifying restrictions.

Cloney said that during the investigation BAA officials were "able to chart the women's race from about the midpoint in Wellesley to beyond Kenmore Square, less than one-half mile from the finish."

He said Gareau was the leader among 17 women checked at Wellesley, and more than 10,000 photos taken by four high speed cameras showed her in front about a mile from the finish.

"Miss Ruiz does not show in any sequence in the photos," Cloney added.

Ruiz, who was clocked at the finish line in 2 hours, 31 minutes, 56 seconds, which would have made it the third fastest women's time in history. Gareau was timed in 2:34:28, bettering the course record of 2:35:15 by Maine college senior Joan Benoit in 1979.

"I want to thank Mr. Cloney and all of the officials of the BAA from the bottom of my heart," Ruiz said. "I know they have deliberated for the past nine days and they have taken every possible evidence for and against me and given it all careful consideration."

"I wish to retain my medal because I believe it is for the honor that comes with winning the big one, Boston, an honor I feel I rightfully deserve. As for the proof of what I did, it will come on the streets of New York City, when I show all these people that I am a world class runner."

Crowned with a winner's laurel wreath and assured by Cloney she will be honored with men's BAA winner Bill Rodgers in a couple of weeks, Gareau smiled and said:

"This has been the longest weekend. I am proud to be the first."

Ruiz qualified for Boston with a credited time of 2:56:28 in the New York Marathon last fall. However, New York officials disqualified her on the basis of "very strong evidence."

Ruiz said she would return to training Wednesday, and go back to her job next week.

'Skins Fall, 13-10

EDENTON — Roanoke High School found visiting Edenton an unpleasant experience last night as the Redskins dropped a pair of games to the Aces. They ended up losing a suspended game, 13-10, and then dropped the regularly scheduled affair, 5-3.

The first game was the resumption of a game that had gone nine innings in the first meeting of the two and was still tied at 10-10 when it had to be suspended.

Edenton came up with three runs in the top of the tenth, however, gaining the win. Jordan opened the frame with a single and Bunch walked. Clark then hit a three-run home run, proving Edenton with the win.

In the regular game, Roanoke jumped ahead with two runs in the second inning. Maurice Chance doubled and Ricky Simpson walked. Anthony Latham doubled, scoring both runners. Roanoke added another run in the third for a 3-0 margin.

But in the fifth, Edenton rallied for all five of its runs. Babb reached on a fielder's choice and White walked. Harrell was hit by a pitch, loading the bases. Hardy walked, forcing in one run, and Small singled in another. Jordan reached on an error, allowing a third run to score. Whitey followed with another walk that scored a fourth run, and Burch reached on an error, scoring Small with the fifth run.

The loss dropped Roanoke to 10-6 overall an 4-5 in the conference. The 'Skins entertain Ashokie on Thursday.

Atlanta's Horner Still Wants Out

ATLANTA (AP) — Third baseman Bob Horner says he still wants to be traded but "more than likely" will report to the Atlanta Braves when he is reinstated from the disqualified list.

The Braves said they will reinstate their power-hitting infielder in time for Friday night's game at Pittsburgh. Horner and the Major League Players Association sought arbitration, which could have freed him from a Braves contract, after the Braves sent him to the minors last week.

Now the Braves plan to file a grievance — which may allow them to send Horner to the minors without any chance of losing him to free agency.

The reinstatement "removes any possibility of them filing a grievance," Braves Vice President Al Thornwell said Tuesday night. "We are going to file a grievance, reversing the process. If we should receive a favorable ruling, then it would be our option as to whether to reoption him or not. We'll cross that bridge when they come to it."

"What this will do will remove any possibility of free agency on his part. We didn't think there was one chance in 100. This will remove that one chance."

Horner, 22, the 1978 rookie of the year, was disqualified Tuesday morning.

Golf Correction

In an article on an Eastern Carolina Conference golf match, several scores were incorrectly reported to "The Daily Reflector."

Randy Taylor's score was 75 instead of 77, with Allen Daughtry as the leading scorer for Ayden-Gritton with 76. Farmville's Jeff Cutler had 86 instead of 76.

seniors given a final chance to be seen at home," Baird said. "They deserved it, since they've done so much for East Carolina."

The group holds almost every school record in the sport.

Baird said he is making efforts to get a few more games, but is having little success. "Nobody wants to play us."

Unless Baird does find someone willing to play the Pirates, the regular season is over.

And that wait to see if a post-season bid comes begins. Initial bids, mainly to conference champions, go out on May 5. The remaining bids are expected around May 12.

Fulghum Sparks Greene C. Win

STANHOPE — Greene Central's Jimbo Fulghum drove home both runs as the loop-leading Rams shut out hosting Southern Nash, 2-0, in Eastern Carolina Conference baseball action Tuesday afternoon.

Coach Jim Fulghum's unit recorded its tenth straight ECC win without a loss as left-hander Kevin Korpi limited the Southern Nash squad to just four hits in the seven inning affair.

Greg Holmes tripled in the first and scored on Fulghum's sacrifice fly for the game's first run. In the third, Korpi lashed a double and raced home on Fulghum's single to score the game's final run.

Southern Nash, now 7-4 in the ECC, was led at the plate by Alan Hardee who collected two hits in three trips.

Greene Central will put its undefeated record on the line tonight against the Vikings from D.H. Conley.

L.A. Goes For Kill Tonight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles goes for the kill against the defending National Basketball Association champion Seattle SuperSonics tonight in an arena where the Lakers have won 41 of 46 games this season.

If form prevails, the Lakers will qualify to face the Eastern Conference champion Philadelphia 76ers for the NBA championship.

The Lakers hold a 3-1 advantage over Seattle in the best-of-seven Western Conference championship series, meaning that the Sonics must win tonight, at home Friday night and again at the Forum Sunday afternoon if they're to make it to the championship series.

It won't be easy, but the Sonics have fought back before — most recently against Milwaukee in the Western Conference semifinals. Seattle was down 3-2 before winning the final two games to get their chance against the Pacific Division-champion Lakers.

"They'll play their best game, they might even relish the challenge," said Los Angeles Coach Paul Westhead. "I expect this to be the toughest game in the series for us."

Tonight's game, to be televised nationally by CBS, begins at 11:30 p.m., EDT. If the Lakers win, the best-of-seven finals would begin at the Forum Sunday afternoon.

The Sonics have shown they can win here, nipping the Lakers 106-107 in the first game of the series. But the Lakers won the following night 108-99 and, surprisingly, swept a pair of games in Seattle to take their 3-1 lead.

A key factor in the Laker victories at Seattle was forward Jamaal Wilkes, who made just nine of 25 field goal attempts in Game One and was just 19 of 53 for the series midway through the third game.

But the smooth forward abruptly found his shooting touch, making eight of 11 floor shots in the second half of Game Three and 10 of 16 in Game Four as Los Angeles won 104-100 and 98-93.

Wilkes had 24 points and 13 rebounds in the fourth contest as the Lakers rallied from a 21-point third-quarter deficit to win.

"I shot nine for 25 in that first game and we lost by a point," said Wilkes. "I couldn't help but feel that if I hadn't shot so horribly or if I had made just one more, we would have won. I know there are a lot of things you can point to in a loss like that, but I felt responsible."

"I took it home with me which I don't like to do. I had to work just to push it out of my mind. But I wasn't going to stop shooting. If I shot 10 percent the whole series, then I shot 10 percent. But I believed I was a better shooter than that and that in the long haul I'd be all right."

He has been recently. In Game Four, he hit a pair of long jumpers back-to-back that broke an 88-88 tie and gave the Lakers a lead they held the rest of the way.

While Wilkes has gone from cold to hot, Seattle guard Fred

Brown has gone the other way. Brown made 15 of his 21 long range bombs in Game One and was six of nine from the floor in Game Two, but was four of 23 in the next two contests. He missed all 11 of his shots Sunday.

In August of 1963, Iron Man Joe McGinnity of the New York Giants pitched both ends of a double-header three times and won all six games.

Brewers Break Slump

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The Milwaukee Brewers ended their mini-slump with a bang...seven of them, in fact.

After scoring just eight runs while losing four games in a row, the homer-happy Brewers slugged seven balls over the fences of Cleveland Stadium while clobbering the Indians 14-1. The seven home runs set a club record and tied Baltimore's 1967 American League mark by one club in a night game.

"Our off-day Monday gave the club a chance to regroup," said Ben Oglivie, who drove in five runs with two homers, a double and single and triggered the explosion with a two-run shot in the second inning. "I knew we would break out of this slump. It was just a matter of time. I saw the ball good tonight and a game like this will help us break out."

Blue Jays 3, Royals 1

Otto Velez drove in two runs with a sacrifice fly in the first inning and a solo homer in the sixth. That enabled Jim Clancy, who scattered six hits, to post his first complete-game victory in exactly a year. His last one came on April 29, 1979, against Milwaukee. It also was his first victory since last May 4 after two injuries to a tendon in his ankle sidelined him for the majority of the 1979 season.

The triumph was the fourth in a row for the first-place Blue Jays, the surprise leaders in the American League East after three last-place finishes. They remained one game ahead of the Yankees.

Yankees 4, Orioles 3

Willie Randolph and Reggie Jackson clouted New York home runs and reliever Rudy May put down a sixth-inning threat to record his first save since 1974. Rick Dempsey drove in all the Baltimore runs with a two-run homer off Luis Tiant in the first inning and a solo shot off May in the eighth.

A's 6, Angels 4

Mickey Klutts singled to drive in two runs in the sixth inning and Mike Norris pitched a five-hitter. Norris, who has allowed only 14 hits in 32 innings this season, struck out six and walked five as the A's made it six in a row against the defending AL West champs. The A's took a 1-0 lead in the second inning on Mike Heath's sacrifice fly.

Red Sox 11, White Sox 1

Jim Rice and Tony Perez hit two-run homers and Dwight Evans drove in three runs to back Bob Stanley's strong pitching. Rice connected in the third inning. Perez delivered in the sixth and Evans socked a two-run triple in the eighth. Meanwhile, Stanley allowed four hits in eight innings and recorded a career-high seven strikeouts.

Rangers 10, Tigers 5

Richie Zisk belted a two-run homer and Mickey Rivers went 4-for-5 as Texas bombed Detroit in a game shortened to seven innings by rain. The Rangers jumped on Jack Morris for a run in the first inning and four more in the second, during which Morris took a line drive off his leg and left the game.

Mariners 5, Twins 3

Joe Simpson highlighted a three-run ninth-inning rally with a tie-breaking single. The Mariners were paced by Bill Stein's 4-for-4, three-RBI performance.

GCA Whips Goldsboro

GOLDSBORO — Greenville Christian Academy gained a 7-1 baseball victory over Goldsboro Academy yesterday. Richard Smith limited Goldsboro to just one hit on the day, striking out 12 and walking three.

Goldsboro got all it needed in the second, scoring twice. David Hollingsworth singled and George Griner walked. Jeff Parnell also walked, loading the bases. David Williams drew a walk, forcing in Hollingsworth, and Billy Stancil singled to score Griner.

Goldsboro got its lone run in the bottom of the inning. Clifford reached on an error, stole second, and scored when Ruhman got the lone hit of the day.

Jim Laney and Hollingsworth led the Knight hitting with two each. Greenville travels to Faith on Thursday.

E.B. Aycock Suffers Loss

KINSTON — Kinston rallied from behind to gain a 7-5 victory over E.B. Aycock Junior High School yesterday. Aycock had gained an early 4-0 lead but was unable to hold to it.

Rudy Stalls led the Aycock hitting with two.

Bears Win

AURORA — Bear Grass used the two-hit pitching of Clay Gardner and a four-run fifth to whip Aurora, 5-2, in a Beaufort-Hyde-Martin Conference baseball game Tuesday afternoon.

After three scoreless innings, the Bears went ahead with a single run in the fourth. Then in the fifth Gardner ripped a three-run homer to highlight the four-run inning.

Bear Grass was led at the plate by William Roberson, who was three for four.

Islanders Ready, Defeat Sabres, 4-1

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—The one-week layoff the New York Islanders enjoyed before their Stanley Cup semifinal series against Buffalo seemed just long enough, but the Sabres—who had nine days off—looked stale.

"They were sluggish after the layoff," said left wing Bob Bourne, whose shorthanded goal tied the score in the first period and keyed a 4-1 triumph Islanders Tuesday. "So were we. We'll be getting our legs back. It'll be a different game Thursday."

Bourne had scored only 15 goals this season after two 30-goal years.

"I get two or three good chances a game and I usually miss," he said. "During the season, I'd get chances like that and blow them. I got my confidence back. I'm really getting good now that I'm getting the ice time."

Sabres Coach Scotty Bowman, who led the Montreal Canadiens to the last four National Hockey League playoff titles, said nothing seemed right about the game.

"Everything we did—the mistakes that we made tonight that we haven't made all year—we paid for. Maybe the puck bounces funny for some teams some nights, but we only scored one goal. You're not going to beat many teams scoring one goal," he said.

To defeat the Sabres twice in a row at home—a trick no one accomplished this season—the Islanders will need another strong game in goal. In the opener, goaltender Billy Smith groped for, rolled onto and shrugged off 31 Buffalo shots, allowing only a quick goal by Rick Dudley after 5:23 of the first period.

Forsch Hurls Astros Past Cincinnati, 3-0

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

It was a poor start for Ken Forsch but a great finish. And he wasn't too sloppy in the middle, either.

Forsch walked the first batter he faced, then proceeded to stifle the Cincinnati Reds on just three hits to hurl the Houston Astros to a 3-0 victory Tuesday night.

"The first inning was really tough," said Forsch. "I didn't think I was ever going to get loose."

"Then my arm sort of came around, though, and I never even got tired in the late innings."

It was the first complete game of the season for the 6-foot-4, 215-pound right-hander who said he was bothered by the chilly night air.

Cesar Cedeno provided the power for the Astros with a two-run homer that bounced off the foul pole screen in left field.

"I knew it was out when I hit it, if it didn't go foul," said Cedeno.

Cedeno was benched last week for his weak hitting. When he returned to the Astros' lineup, he was moved down to the seventh spot.

"That's a big thing for us, if he can start producing a few runs for us," said Houston Manager Bill Virdon. "He's never been down there before (batting seventh), but sometimes it takes a little change to get things started."

Forsch, who ran his record to 3-0, was in trouble only once—when Cincinnati threatened to score in the fifth inning. But Forsch struck out Ken Griffey with the bases loaded to end the inning.

5-Run 3rd Gives Vikings Win, 8-4

HOLLYWOOD—D.H. Conley crossed the plate five times in the third inning Tuesday afternoon enroute to an 8-4 Eastern Carolina Conference victory over visiting Ayden-Grifton.

Both the Chargers and the Vikings tallied a pair of runs in the first before Coach Walter Claybrook's home squad added a single tally in the second to take a 3-2 lead.

Micha Dixon supplied the power of the third for the Vikings when he slapped a bases-empty home run. Dixie Page, who was two-for-three, added a double in the game-breaking third.

Alan Wilson's Chargers added a pair of scores in the top of the fourth, but could never overcome the five-run outburst by the home-standing Vikings.

Viking Doug McRoy collected a pair of hits for Conley while Kennedy led the Charger attack with a pair of safeties.

Rams Favored In ECC Track Meet

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

The wait is over. All season Greene Central's track team has been pointing to one meet — the Eastern Carolina Conference meet. Thursday afternoon the pointing ends and the action begins as the ECC track meet gets under way at Southwest Edgecombe.

The Rams will be seeking to remove the crown worn by Southern Nash the last four years, and according to area coaches the Rams are odds-on favorites to do just that.

"Greene Central has the team this year, especially with (Melvin) Bynum," D.H. Conley coach Chuck Dunn said earlier this week. "They're the team to beat."

Ayden-Grifton coach Leonard Rowe agreed. "This year the top people are so spread around that a kid like Bynum could win the triple jump and long jump and make the difference," Rowe said. "But with Greene Central's backup people, along with Bynum, they've got the team that probably will win it."

"I look for them to score somewhere around 140 points and I think Southern Nash will probably be second."

"Depending on how well the points are split up, Southern Nash might have a chance," Dunn added. "They have two guys — Norman Mitchell and Calvin Wiggins — who could bring in a lot of points for them."

Mitchell is among the leaders in the state in the 110 high hurdles. He also triple jumps. Wiggins has the best time in the league in the two-mile. He also runs the mile.

Greene Central coach Stewart Smith is not surprised his coaching rivals are picking the Rams, who did not lose to an ECC team all season, to win the meet. But he not predicting a victory either.

"I can see how they feel that way, but I still say Southern Nash and Southwest will be up there with us," Smith said.

"I think it's going to be a real good track meet. We've had a lot of individuals with real good times in the conference this season and overall I think this will be one of the better track meets in the state," he said.

"Our times and distances compare with any conference in the state."

And, in the case of triple jumper Melvin Bynum, the Rams have the best in the state. Bynum's 48'3 3/4" leap in the triple jump is the best in North Carolina.

Bynum, who is a sure bet to set a school mark for points scored in a single season, also long jumps and runs the 100 and the low hurdles, events Smith feels Bynum will be among the leaders in Thursday.

Also figuring to be among the leaders for the Rams are Thurman Graham in the high and low hurdles, Chris Daniels in the low hurdles, Ricky Moore in the 100, Dwayne Sanders in the 800 and mile.

Smith also says his three relay teams — the 400, 800 and mile — should place high as should two-milers James Holmes and Doug Harrell, who have the second and third best times in the ECC. "I'm real pleased with the way our progress during the season. We got better and better every meet. And I think we're ready for this one."

North Pitt, with only nine athletes on its track team, has already qualified five for the sectionals and Coach Emery Davis feels confident his squad will do well Thursday.

"There's not much question that Greene Central is the favorite," Davis began. "But I think most of my kids will place somewhere."

"All season long, since we've been such a small team, they've felt like they've had something to prove and I think we have a good chance of qualifying maybe a relay team for the sectionals as well as the others that have already qualified."

Among those Davis feels has a good shot at making the finals are Terry Moore, whose 140' discus throw is tops in the ECC this year, Jesse Anderson in the long jump (21'4"), James Daniels in the long jump (21'3"), Melvin Simmons in the high jump (6'2") and Donnie Anderson in the low (15.3) and high (21.0) hurdles.

The Jaguars have three competitors who have a chance to be among the leaders at the meet, according to Coach Gene Brewer. They are Wesley Carmon in the 440 and 880 and Roger Joyner in the pole vault. Carmon has run a 52.7 440 while Owens' fastest time is 54.0. He has also run a 2:08 880. Joyner has a 11'0" leap in the pole vault.

"The kids have come a long way this year and I haven't been disappointed with them once this season, or with our track season," said Brewer, whose Jaguars did not win a meet all season. "In the last few weeks we've improved almost every week."

Meanwhile, for Conley, second a year ago in the league meet, the chances of a similar finish this year are remote.

"I feel like if the points are split up a lot we might have a chance, but it's ll be tough to be up there this year," Dunn said. "Basically this season we've finished in the top two in all our conference meets. We won two, but we just haven't had the depth to compete in the big meets."

The Vikings, however, do have two runners whom Dunn feels will finish among the leaders at Thursday — Curtis Joyner and Stoney Speller. Joyner is the defending champ in the 100-yard dash while Speller returns to try to improve on his third place finishes in the half mile and mile. This season Speller has run the 880 in 2:04 and the mile in 4:49.

Ayden-Grifton coach Leonard Rowe feels he has at least three athletes, along with his 400 and 800 meter relay teams, who could finish among the leaders at Thursday's meet.

Rowe believes Vance Barfield will finish high in both the high jump and the triple jump while saying Timmie Edwards should finish near the top in the 200 meters. Rowe also feels shot putter Mark Anderson has a chance to be in the top six.

"I think we'll probably get around 20 to 25 points. Our kids are trying — I'm pleased with the season — but we've just been out-manned by a lot of teams."

"We've done our best and that's more than some of the other teams can say."

Track spikes...Already having qualified for the sectionals from area high schools are Ayden Grifton's Vance Barfield in the high jump and triple jump...D.H. Conley's Stoney Speller in the 800, Dennis Carney in the high jump and Curtis Joyner in the 100, the high jump and the long jump...Farmville's Roger Joyner in the pole vault...Greene Central's Melvin Bynum in the long and triple jump and the low hurdles, Thurman Graham in the high hurdles...North Pitt's Terry Moore in the discus, Jesse Anderson and James Daniels in the long jump, Melvin Simmons in the high jump, Donnie Anderson in the high and low hurdles...All area schools travel to Tarboro for the sectionals next Friday...The regionals are set for the next week followed by the state meet two weeks from now.

Exam, Insomina, Then Answer For Wolfpack's Ritcher

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina State center Jim Ritcher had a difficult time struggling through an anthropology exam Monday and then came a night of insomnia. Tuesday, he got his answer — a first-round draft pick by the Buffalo Bills.

Ritcher, winner of the Outland Trophy and a two-year All-America selection, was the fourth offensive tackle and the 17th player chosen in the National Football League draft which began Tuesday. He and Clemson tackle Jim Stuckey, picked by San Francisco, were the only Atlantic Coast Conference players chosen in the first round.

"I was thinking that if they took me, that I just hoped I could go up and make the team and play a little," Ritcher said after learning of his selection.

The Bills got Ritcher, a Hinckley, Ohio, native, by using a choice they acquired earlier from the Seattle Seahawks.

Linebacker Buddy Curry of North Carolina went to Atlanta in the second round and Wake Forest guard Syd Kitson was picked by Green Bay in the third. Minnesota called on North Carolina running back Doug Paschal in the fifth round.

N.C. State offensive guard Chris Dieterich was picked by Detroit in the sixth round, as was Winston-Salem State's Tim Newsome of Ahoskie, who was chosen by Dallas. Another Winston-Salem State player, linebacker Daniel Jacobs, was picked by Seattle in the fifth round.

BUTKUS DEBUT

CHICAGO (AP) — An oldtimer in the Chicago Bear organization remembered the arrival of Hall of Fame linebacker Dick Butkus in the Chicago training camp in the summer of 1965.

Butkus had played in the College All-Star game in Chicago and had made 15 tackles, blocked a field goal try by the Cleveland Browns and finished second in the MVP voting.

Butkus knew he would have to challenge the 14-year veteran Bill George for the middle linebacker job and he fretted that the time he had spent with the All-Stars might hurt his chances.

"The minute Butkus walked into camp," the old-timer said, "George began packing his things. Dick had greatness written all over him."

The NFL's Flea Market: An Exercise Of Millions

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

The braintrust of the Detroit Lions, electronically connected between their home headquarters and a huge ballroom in a New York hotel, pondered for 3½ minutes and then passed the word, which thundered over the loud speaker:

"Billy Sims, Oklahoma!"

Thus the National Football League's annual flea market — an exercise in million-dollar human merchandise, was off and winging.

Before the long, tedious afternoon stretched into evening, 165 players, the cream of the 1980 bumper crop of graduating collegians, were pinched and thumped for ripeness and plucked as pro rookie prospects by the 28 NFL teams. About an equal number were to be drafted today.

The occasion was Pete Rozelle's superbly orchestrated draft, presenting a sharp contrast to the equivalent ritual performed by major league baseball, now facing dire economic problems and a potential player strike.

The National Football League gets its talent ready-made whereas the baseball draft is largely at the high school level which is only the first step in a long, expensive development process.

Calvin Griffith, president and board chairman of the Minnesota Twins (baseball) described it best during spring training while lamenting the uneasy state of his game, beset with escalating salaries, alarming deficits and loss of security.

"You sign a kid out of high school," he said. "You give him a bonus. You develop him in the minors, option him out for two years and, when he shows promise, you bring him to the big leagues."

This process costs hundreds of thousands of dollars.

"If you develop him into a star," Griffith added, "you can't keep him. If you keep him, you can't afford him. It's damned if you do and damned if you don't."

Football, as contrasted with baseball, has the best of two worlds. It pays nothing for the players' development. The colleges do that at no cost to the pros. When the player has finished his collegiate career, he is put on the counter, picked in rotation and — if the cost is agreeable — thrown into the basket.

But save your pity for these poor pieces of muscled brick a bric who are bartered like prime cattle. They do okay.

Sims is asking for $5 million for six years. The Detroit brass must have blanched.

On the other hand, a modern day Bob Feller or Sandy Koufax could surface somewhere out in the hinterlands, with a fastball that could pierce a barn door and a curve that dips as if falling off a table, and go completely unnoticed.

NFL Draft

was the length of time it took quarterback Marc Wilson of Brigham Young and Charles White, Southern California's Heisman Trophy winning running back, to be selected.

Wilson, rumored to be headed for the 49ers, wound up in California's Bay Area but with Oakland, instead. He was the 16th player chosen. White lasted until the round was nearly over, before he finally was drafted No. 27 by Cleveland.

"I was beginning to wonder if I'd ever be chosen," Wilson said. "I thought I would go higher — there was so much talk I would. It got to the point where I was just happy to be picked at all."

The Raiders thought Wilson would be gone by the time their turn came up, too.

"We had no idea he would be there," said Coach Tom Flores. "We were looking for a running back, but when you have a

Sims: Winner, Not Superman

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Billy Sims debuted at the Pontiac Silverdome and called himself a "winner" but not a "superman."

But whether he becomes a member of the Detroit Lions remained the unanswered question.

The Lions selected Sims as the No. 1 choice in Tuesday's National Football League college player draft. Detroit Coach Monte Clark chose the Oklahoma running back even though the Lions and Sims' agent are about $3.8 million apart in their contract talks.

Despite the ongoing contract haggling, Sims said he was counting "100 per cent" on playing for the Lions in the upcoming NFL season.

"Once we get this contract over with I'll be ready to work," Sims told news reporters. "I hope it will be soon."

Contract talks between the Lions and Sims' business manager, Dr. Jerry Argovitz, presently are at a standstill. Argovitz has asked the Lions to pay Sims $4.5 million over six years, while Lions General Manager Russ Thomas has offered $700,000 over three years.

But Clark asked reporters to refrain from asking questions about the stalled contract talks. He asked for positive questions.

"I just want Billy to have the day he deserves," Clark said.

Sims, who will turn 25 in September, gained 3,268 yards in his last two seasons at Oklahoma. He scored 50 touchdowns and averaged 7.1 yards a carry during his career with the Sooners.

Sims said he believes he can help turn the Lions into a contender once again for the NFL Central Division title. Detroit finished 2-14 last year, tied with San Francisco for the worst record in the NFL. The Lions won a coin flip and the draft rights to Sims.

"I can promise one thing," said Sims. "They (the Lions) will be more than a 2-14 team for the season. I can't do it alone and I hope the people of Detroit don't expect a superman out of me, because I'm a team player and I'm used to winning."

"I know this town is ready for a winner and I'm a winner."

Sims, a 5-foot-11, 210-pounder, said he expected to return to Pontiac when the Lions open their rookie camp this weekend.

But whether Sims unpacks his bags permanently depends on whether the Lions and Argovitz can negotiate a contract. Last year the Buffalo Bills made Ohio State linebacker Tom Cousineau the No. 1 pick in the NFL draft, but then watched their effort go for naught after failing to sign Cousineau, who eventually joined the Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League.

Argovitz said he is optimistic about the contract talks but would not "sell out" to the Lions.

"I'm going to do what I think is best for Billy," Argovitz said. "You've got one Billy Sims in the world and he has value. The two sides have different ideas on what value means and we're going to have to reach a point beneficial to both."

Prepare For Retirement Or Maybe A 2nd Career

By DAVID SMOTHERS
UPI Senior Editor
CHICAGO (UPI) — Retirement is serious business. It takes guts, brains, planning and an acknowledgement of the facts of life.

It does not necessarily mean taking things easy for the rest of your days. For many, that could be dangerous to your health.

For Americans, the retirement years generally amount to a quarter or even a third of their lives. Those years, experts warn, can be a traumatic experience.

Men or women who have worked all their lives do not always know how to stop — or what to do when they do.

It is a problem of concern to businesses which want their older employees to stay happy and productive, to scholars expert in the problems and challenges of the aging, to federal, state and local governments, and to all people who are just getting older.

Prepping for retirement has become a minor business in itself. Some firms and universities are prepared, for a fee, to come into a business and tell its employees how to retire.

One such is Unity Savings Association of Chicago, which happened into the field five years ago when it found itself confused in helping pensioners with their troubles.

Unity became one of the agencies which developed a series of seminars to spell out the ABCs of retirement. The start of the course sounds like a first grade lesson for the mature. It amounts to getting organized.

—File legal and business papers by category. That would include banking, insurance, stocks and bonds, real estate and personal property. Write down as much information as possible under each heading, even if it does not seem important. Knowing a single date can save a lot of trouble.

—Make a complete record of household, personal and family facts. Write down full legal names, names of parents, birthdates and birthplaces, marriages and divorces.

—Include the exact location of vital documents such as birth certificates, marriage certificates, adoption papers, divorce decrees, military discharge papers, citizenship documents and the like.

—Put them all in a safety deposit box and tell your family where it is and what is in it.

—Do you like your own company so much that you are prepared to leave the old friends at work, or — if you intend to move elsewhere — your neighbors, your children and grandchildren, your church, even the store where you pick up groceries?

—Do you really want to stop working? Can you manage to face day after day without a place to go to, a job to do, something to be accomplished?

Are your pension, Social Security and property enough to let you do that?

—If not, do you have any particular skills, hobbies or talents which you could employ, or enjoy, in turning into retirement income?

Norman Sprague is director of the New Life Institute, one of the programs organized to address these problems. He wrote:

“Retirement policy is frequently unable to fully take into consideration the psychological and financial needs of those who face it. The rising cost of living, coupled with the limited resources available for pension and Social Security benefits, make it difficult for many older persons to live above subsistence level.

“Even those with adequate financial means often find retirement boring, frustrating, and without promise of improvement. A job, full-time, part-time, temporary, or seasonal, often solves these problems.”

The fact, it appears, is that those which some call the golden years can be as full of stress — or more so — as those which have gone before.

Prof. Robert A. Havighurst of the University of Chicago is a pioneer in ascertaining what retirement is all about.

Of visions of golden years basking on Florida sands or fishing in Wisconsin waters, he shrugged and said, “These claims, of course, are not entirely valid.”

“There is the myth and the reality of aging,” he said. “Making a living comes in as a main problem at all ages. Health comes in at about age 55. And loneliness comes in more heavily than you might expect and is heavily related to widowhood.”

With advancing age, Havighurst indicated, a stubborn determination to hang on can follow.

University professors may hardly be typical of the general population. But Havighurst cited a survey he helped conduct of professors at Chicago.

“We asked at what age would you like to retire,” he said. “Up to about age 50 they all said ‘as soon as possible.’ Then at 55 there came a cutting point where they said ‘I don’t want to retire at 65.’

“There’s no question that somewhere in the mid 50s comes this shifting around and facing the realities.”

Havighurst is one of those professors who prefer to stick in there. At almost 15 years after retirement age, he is still working at full throttle.

He advises those who feel as he does to do the same — if they can.

Casts Grave Doubts On Witnesses' Testimony

By EILEEN PUTNAM
Associated Press Writer
WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — The trial of the two men accused of the robbery-murders last May of four Bedford Hills residents is drawing to a climax as the defense prepares to rest its case.

During the past two days of defense testimony, relatives of Junius Gray of Brooklyn and Jimmie Lee Allen of Plainfield, N.J., have sworn that the two men were home the night of May 9 and early morning of May 10, the period of time in which the four victims were murdered.

But Assistant District Attorney Joseph West has produced evidence that the recollections of all four of Gray's alibi witnesses may be off by 24 hours. And he has insinuated that Allen's wife and daughter may be lying outright.

Gray and Allen, both 41, are in their eighth week of trial on a 40-count robbery and murder indictment. The defense was expected to rest today.

The four victims were Charles Frankel, 61, a Columbia University professor and former assistant U.S. secretary of state; his wife, Helen, 61; Christopher Sperry, a 21-year-old college student and son of a stock broker; and Nellie McCormack, 85, a former Sperry family governess. They were found shot to death in ransacked houses a short distance from each other.

While the prosecutor has not placed either man at either of the two murder scenes, he has relied on circumstantial evidence, including finding them in possession of the murder weapon and of property stolen from the Frankel and Sperry homes.

Gray's alibi witnesses, including his wife, Gladys, testified that he was home the night of the murders. They said they remembered the date because it was the next day that Gray's sister-in-law, Denise Mizelle, came home from college in Virginia.

But West produced a letter from the college dean saying that Miss Mizelle actually took a final examination during the hours she and the other witnesses said she came home to Brooklyn.

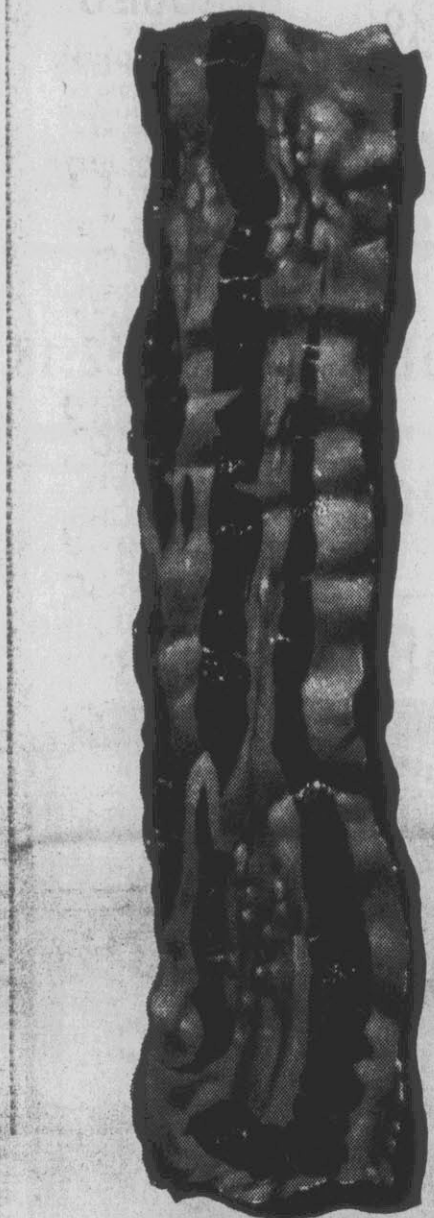

And Miss Mizelle admitted on cross-examination that it could have been May 11 that she returned home from Virginia.

Allen's wife and daughter both claimed that he was at home in New Jersey on May 9, but on cross-examination West charged that there were inconsistencies in the women's testimony with statements they gave to police last year.

Following the conclusion of the defense case, West is expected to call witnesses to rebut the alibi defense.

The jury is expected to begin its deliberations next week.

Some Look For End To Private Business Control

By LeROY POPE
UPI Business Writer
NEW YORK (UPI) — The survival of free enterprise economics in the world for the next 50 years is doubtful, says Prof. Richard Eells of Columbia University Business School. "Private ownership of business enterprises probably will not disappear but private control very well may," Eells told United Press International. "Control will rest increasingly with company directors representing various segments of the public economic and political sectors whose selection is made mandatory by law or custom," he said. He said the survival of private enterprise in any form will depend on corporations deliberately working to maximize their contributions to solve social problems. "They will have to develop clear positions on critical public issues and make them known," he added. Eells does not believe that the coming era he foresees of almost absolute public control of business will produce a better society in the world. He said the rage for government controls and regulation is based too much on a delusion — a delusion that man is necessarily more perfectible by collective action than by his actions as an individual. On the contrary, he said, groups are more likely to lead society to irrational ideas and irrational actions. He said the widely-read longshoreman philosopher Eric Hofer pointed this out 25 years ago in his famous little book, "The True Believer." Eells' views are contained in a new book, "The Political Crisis of the Enterprise System" MacMillan, New York. Among his significant conclusions. —"The private economic sector, despite its access to enormous resources, seems curiously helpless when it comes to protecting itself in the political arena." —"Business still is divided on the wisdom of playing an active role in shaping society. Many business leaders want to stay as far away from such issues as possible, feeling that diverting any attention to social goals "detracts from performance and profitability."

—Nevertheless, throughout the world "private enterprise is under pervasive attack and its continued existence is in doubt."

—Much of the attack, he said, is coming from Third World nations, "which lack the social forces that brought about the market economics of the West, they want to substitute government structures for market mechanisms."

—"Ultimately, the question of government control over private enterprise is intimately tied to the fate of the individual and the freedoms on which our political system is based." Economist Milton Friedman of the University of Chicago sounded a similar but more terse warning recently on National Public Radio and made a plea for retention of private enterprise. Friedman quoted the eighteenth century economist Adam Smith. "Private investors spending their money in the hope of private gain are led by an invisible hand to work for the public good."

Friedman said, however, "The reformers, working as they see it for the public good are led by an invisible hand, too, and that hand leads them to work for private gain."

Friedman went on to say that reformers are a relentless breed who "move from cause to cause, leaving no one behind to look after the public good, only an army of bureaucrats working for their own interest."

A more cautious exposition of ideas similar to those of Professor Eells is found in the results of a survey of 237 presidents of companies in the Fortune 500 lists by the American Management Associations. The editors of the AMA periodical, "Management Review," asked the company presidents if adoption of a formal written code of business ethics would be a practical matter.

The company presidents were overwhelmingly against such a code, saying it just wouldn't work. But noticeable, 46 percent of them said they considered it their ethical duty to make a profit while they also said it was their job "to meet what society defines as its needs." And 44 percent saw it their ethical duty "to make a profit but only by using the most fair and humane choices."

In a recent panel program on a New York non-profit radio station, the head of a major oil company was severely criticized for saying his company was not in the energy business, "it was in the business of making money."

The time is coming, the radio panelists said, when no businessman will dare say such a thing. If private enterprise wants to survive at all, they said, it will have to put its functions of providing useful goods or services to society well ahead of making a profit. The oil company president was accused of being arrogant and stupid. Professor Eells told UPI he agreed with that judgment.

Accusations that American corporations, particularly American multinational corporations, behave irresponsibly and care nothing about anything except profit are being heard increasingly. This would appear to be a manifestation in new guise of the anti-Wall Street populism that raged in the late nineteenth century and found its most dramatic expression in William Jennings Bryan's famous cross of gold speech.

It also derives from much earlier moral judgments on business; for example, Jesus's remark that it is easier for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of Heaven. It is part and parcel of fundamentalist Protestantism's opposition to all forms of gambling and to the Moslem world's condemnation of interest as unearned and hence immoral and anti-social gain. A controversial film, "Controlling Interest: The World of Multinational Corporations," shown recently on WNET television, has thrust the whole question before the audiences. The film, produced by Larry Daressa, a California independent, deals mainly with the operation of American multinational corporations in recent years in Chile and Brazil and seems to blame inflation and unrest in those countries on the American corporations. The film was bitterly denounced by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and was broadcast on WNET stations over the objections of the network's executive editor, Walter Goodman.

The growing confrontation also is examined in a book called, "Capitalism: Sources of Hostility" Heritage Foundation, Washington, a group of essays edited by Prof. Ernest van den Haag of New York University. In his own essay, van den Haag, a widely known conservative, concedes there is no way for the free market to satisfy moral expectations because for practical purposes, they cannot be quantified. On any serious assessment, van den Haag says, the distribution of rewards under socialism would also be considered morally irrelevant and arbitrary. He says the advocates of government planned and controlled economic systems should know that, once the systems are installed and put to work, the utopian intellectuals who advocated them will be shoved aside by non-thinkers whose real talent is the manipulation of bureaucratic power. Obviously van den Haag has read George Orwell's fable, Animal Farm. That's exactly what happens when the pigs take over on the farm.

Spent $151,313 On Candidacy

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A campaign finance report filed Tuesday shows that I. Beverly Lake Jr. has raised $164,576 and has spent $151,313 on his bid for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in next week's primary.

Lake, in a report filed with the State Board of Elections, said just over $99,000 had been raised this year. He had set a goal of $110,000.

The campaign's expenditures include $24,607 to two firms associated with the Congressional Club — Jefferson Marketing, a fundraising agency, and the Campaign Committee, which provides services ranging from media advertising to press relations.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Try to offset a stubborn and uncooperative spirit early in the day that could lead to unfortunate arguments. The evening finds an entirely different influence in effect.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Don't argue with anyone over money matters during the daytime and then you can have a pleasant evening. Be wise.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Listening to ideas of associates instead of forcing yours on them brings more success now. Sidestep one who imposes on you.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Handle your work in a careful manner so that you don't have any problems connected with it. Safeguard your health.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Complete your regular duties early in the day so you'll have time for recreation later. Show affection for loved one.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Ideal day for communicating with outsiders, so get an early start. Evening is best for studying a possible money-making venture.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Use care in motion today and avoid possible accident. Take needed health treatments and improve your appearance.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make plans to save more money instead of spending it lavishly. Sidestep a foe who could lead you in the wrong direction.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You want others to cooperate more with your wishes, but you have to be more tactful if you want to get your way.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get busy doing something constructive if you feel limited in some way. Come to a better understanding with mate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Avoid crotchety acquaintance during the day and then you can go out socially in the evening and have a fine time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be tactful with higher-ups today and avoid possible trouble. Enjoy cultural pursuits with congenials in the evening.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Associates could have fixed points of view at this time so sidestep any arguments. Take time to plan for the future.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who would do well in any kind of investigative work, so direct education along such lines for best results. There can be much success and happiness, provided you give good religious training early.

Master Of Terror Films Dies In Bed

By PETER J. BOYER

Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—His murderers showed up in shower stalls, his victims in potato sacks. But Sir Alfred Hitchcock, whose mastery of terror chilled movie audiences for half a century, died peacefully of natural causes at the age of 80.

The portly British-born "Hitch" was perhaps the film industry's best-known director. A popular television series made his pouting profile instantly recognizable to millions of Americans.

In more than 50 movies, Hitchcock created a legacy of suspense classics —

"Psycho," "The Birds," "Rear Window" and "Spellbound." Yet he never won an Oscar for direction.

Hitchcock, plagued by kidney failures and arthritis, died at his home Tuesday after suffering ill health for a year. His family, including Alma, his wife of 54 years, was with him.

Despite a heart condition that necessitated a pacemaker, Hitchcock was preparing another thriller at the time of his death — "The Short Night," the tale of a real-life British traitor whose duplicity led to the deaths of 42 agents.

"There was nobody like him," said actor James

Stewart, a favorite Hitchcock player. "I have lost a great friend, and the world has lost a man who made a tremendous contribution to our business."

Hitchcock's first American-made film, "Rebecca" in 1940, won a best-picture Oscar, and the movie Academy presented him with the Irving G. Thalberg award in 1968. Last year, Hitchcock was given the American Film Institute's Lifetime Achievement Award.

Hitchcock's stylized treatment of his favorite themes — violence, suspicion, guilt and confession — his clever use of the tracking shot by a camera that was always moving and his genius for the clever plot twist gave universal recognition to the label, "Hitchcock film."

His work encompassed all manner of the macabre, but one scene from "Psycho" may be remembered as the high moment of Hitchcockian suspense. It is the shower scene, in which innocent bather Janet Leigh is brutally knifed by Anthony Perkins. For weeks afterward, horrified moviegoers checked the curtains twice before showering.

"He always executed his suspense with taste; he never offended you" said Perkins. "You were scared by it, but pleasantly."

Born Aug. 14, 1899, the son of a London poultry dealer, Hitchcock was educated in a Jesuit seminary and at the University of London. He began his career in 1925.

Americans soon claimed him as their own, nominating him for four Academy Awards, and he became a naturalized U.S. citizen in 1955. England recognized him in January when he was knighted by Queen Elizabeth II.

Of his 54 films, Hitchcock once listed among his favorites "Spellbound," "Lifeboat" and "Psycho." His last projects, including "Frenzy" in 1972 — in which a victim wound up in a potato sack — and "Family Plot" in 1976, were commercially successful but not considered among his best.

Funeral services will be held Friday at the Church of the Good Shepherd in Beverly Hills.

Time Takes Its Toll In 29-Year-Old Program

By MICHAEL WEST

Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Five orchestras, 1,500 jobs and a clutch of programs will vanish under plans by the hard-up British Broadcasting Corp. to save $290 million in the next two years.

But "The Archers," the world's longest-running radio soap opera, goes on...and on...and on, just as it has for the last 29 years and 100-odd days.

The only troubles the cast and scriptwriters encounter professionally are death, old age, retirement, having children — and continuity.

The BBC broadcast the first daily 15-minute episode of "The Archers," "an everyday story of country folk," Jan. 1, 1951. Set in fictional Ambridge, a 100 percent genuine old world English village complete with church, pub, village green, farmers, squire and local yokels, it was an instant hit and has stayed that way.

It has 3 million avid listeners each day in Britain, where most people now live in towns, and countless others in New Zealand, Hong Kong, British Honduras and among British forces in West Germany.

So what's the problem? Time.

Philip Garston-Jones, who played landowner Jack Woolley for 17 years, died last November, age 67. He was replaced by Arnold Peters.

Chris Gittings, who plays graybeard Walter Gabriel, is 77. He was taken ill last November and ordered to rest. Gittings' predecessor was Robert Mawdesley, who played Gabriel from 1951 until 1953, when he died.

Edgar Harrison, who plays farmer Dan Archer, the village patriarch whose family gives the show its name, is 72 and has had a heart attack. Harrison is the third "Dan." Actors Harry Oakes died in the part in 1960 and Monte Crick in 1969.

Gwen Berryman, who has played Dan's wife, Doris, since the show started, is 74. She suffers so badly from arthritis that she now attends alternate recording sessions.

Other elderly actors in the cast are George Hart, 68, Bob Arnold, 70, and Norman Shelley, 77.

Actor Bill Payne was in his 60s when he died on the way to the studio in 1967. Denis Folwell, who played Jack Archer, eldest son of Dan and Doris, died in 1971.

Australian-born actress Gwenda Wilson played Aunt Laura Archer until she died in 1977. Another Australian-born actress, Betty McDowall, took over the role. Julia Mark played Nora McAuley, the Irish barmaid at the village pub, until she died in 1977.

At least four "Archers" scriptwriters also have died on the job — Edward J. Mason, Geoffrey Webb, John Keir Cross and Brian Hayles.

The present three-woman, one-man scriptwriting team is busy writing younger characters into the story line.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

A friend of mine smokes herbal cigarettes. She says that her mother and father allow her to smoke these as often as she likes, just so long as she doesn't smoke regular cigarettes. I want to know if it's safe to smoke these. — Andrea K., Pa.

Dear Andrea:

Herbal cigarettes do not yet carry the Surgeon-General's warning of potential danger. I hope it won't be long before they do. For many of these cigarettes contain a large amount of chemicals whose toxicity has not been established.

ABC Stores To Raise Prices

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state ABC Board says that effective Thursday, prices of 150 to 200 different sizes and types of alcoholic beverages will climb, mostly from 5 to 25 cents per bottle.
 State ABC Administrator Bill Hester attributed the increase to rising costs of labor and bottling and to rises in the cost of imported brands.
 The biggest increase for a fifth of liquor, or its metric equivalent of .75 liter, will be on White Horse Scotch, which will rise 75 cents to $9.30.

Legacies Of The 1960s Still Seen

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The antiwar protests of the so-called Catholic Left during the 1960s and early 1970s made the Roman Catholic church more politically liberal but left many activists alienated from the institutional church.

Charles A. Meconis himself represents that irony. He was a young priest active in the Catholic Left who has since left the priesthood and is now program director for the Seattle Peace Action Coalition. But he stressed that the cutting of institutional ties, for himself as well as others in the movement, did not mean losing religion.

"For myself, while my institutional connection has been weakened in the sense that I'm no longer active in the priesthood, I've found my own Catholicism strengthened and deepened and found that it was only when I was at a point where I was up to my eyeballs in activism that I'm driven to pray," he said in an interview. Meconis, whose thesis on the subject was published as "With Clumsy Grace" (Seabury), said that while he would not give the Catholic Left sole credit for moving the church from conservative positions in the 1950s to more liberal ones at the end of the 1970s, the movement "did have a significant impact on the Catholic church."

Led by such activists as the Berrigan brothers, Daniel and Philip, the Catholic Left was known for antiwar protest centering around civil disobedience that included draft card burnings and pouring blood on draft board files.

But the Catholic Left had its most important impact on the church on another level. "A lot of people not in the core of the movement but who sympathized with it are now in middle management positions within the church," Meconis said. "And there are literally thousands of nuns, who didn't get arrested but who were sympathizers, who made sandwiches and things like that, who have now been teaching children for a decade. That has to have an impact."

"In the hierarchy, too, there has been a shift. Archbishop (John) Quinn (president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops) now speaks out against the neutron bomb. It is not only the Catholic Left that produced this, clearly," Meconis said. "But, again, it had an impact." Meconis believes lawbreaking separated the Catholic Left from traditional Catholic social movements such as the Catholic Worker and the secular antiwar movement. "The Catholic Worker people had drawn the line at action in a clearly pacifist way," Meconis said, "and that was precisely the birth of the Catholic Left."

On the other hand, the secular movement criticized the Catholic Left as "moralistic, mindless and masochistic," saying its lack of a sophisticated economic analysis and its moral opposition to war was the "height of folly."

The downfall of the movement, according to Meconis, was the sensational Harrisburg trial of the Rev. Philip Berrigan, Sister Elizabeth McAlister and five others on charges of conspiring to kidnap Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and to blow up heating tunnels in Washington federal buildings.

"That specific issue was what finished the movement," he said.

"It was a double disaster for those involved — both politically and personally," he said, dividing members of the movement from one another and creating fear and suspicion within the movement.

In addition, he said the issue of sexism alienated many women. "I agree with the contention that the movement was heavily sexist," he said. "And that is a continuing debate among those who are still active."

Today the Catholic Left is pretty much scattered, Meconis said. His study of some 200 members of the movement showed that some were still active, particularly in opposing nuclear weapons, but many others had found more traditional occupations, such as teaching, nursing, selling real estate and running antique stores.

Meconis believes that the movement is not really over and will increasingly be directed at the nuclear arms race.

Children's Books Turn To Real Life

CHICAGO (AP) — Children's books are serving up a spicy slice of life these days. In response to societal changes and to a more sophisticated audience, children's authors are reflecting real life in their stories for the junior reader, the American Library Association reports.

Common topics in today's children's literature include divorce, child abuse, death, adoption, alcoholism, teen suicide and the problems of the handicapped and the elderly.

According to the ALA, the majority of children's librarians applaud much-needed changes in children's books. Some, however, are finding parents are concerned with the subject matter and language in the new selections.

Mary Jane Anderson, executive secretary of the ALA's Association for Library Service to Children, attributes the increasing openness and honesty in children's books to changes in lifestyle for adults and children.

"Children's authors are more accurately reflecting actual family life in their stories. As adults become more open with each other and their children about sex and love, divorce, child abuse and other similar issues, authors are translating these concerns into subjects, settings and situations in their books," says Mrs. Anderson.

"While some books deal with normal child-parent relationships and 'traditional' family units," she adds, "other titles help children deal with family life as they personally experience it or see it in the homes of their friends."

Mrs. Anderson is program director for the 3,000-member group of children's librarians who annually award the Newbery and Caldecott Medals for the children's most distinguished book and most outstanding picture book.

Subject matter in these books has evolved significantly since "The Story of Mankind" won the first Newbery Medal in 1922 and "Animals of The Bible" was named the first Caldecott winner in 1938.

"Children's authors are coming of age and maturing along with their audiences," says Betsy Hearne, children's book review editor for ALA's "Booklist." "They are drawing on their own experiences with the major issues covered in the daily press and in the electronic media. Sensitive subjects are dealt with realistically, not just dropped into the situation or developed as a 'case study' by an author interested in the subject."

One development noted by Mrs. Hearne is the changing perspective of the black experience. At first, she says, black literature was created by white authors or inexperienced black writers who were self-conscious in their writings. "Today," she says, "black authors are writing about their own early years, less about racism and more about growing up black."

"Feminist literature is going through the same stage. In the next several years we'll see more liberated women writing about their own lives and producing a better quality, more natural literature for children."

Nancy Cummings, children's librarian at the Clark County Library, Las Vegas, Nev., agrees. "What's in today's newspapers will be the topic of children's literature tomorrow. Children discuss a topic — such as alcoholism or child abuse — in school and they want to learn more about it."

In her area, she notes, there is a growing concern with parent abuse — a topic she believes will be cropping up in future books as young people re-examine their relationship with grandparents and other older adults.

But the wealth of children's literature is not all problem-oriented. Children still like books that are funny or scary, say the librarians.

Children's books offer a range for every child's interest and comprehension level, says Mrs. Anderson. There are more paperback available, new issues of the classics, exciting illustration, more use of children's literature in films and on TV.

Says Mrs. Hearne: "Parents who censor books, or hide sensitive material from their children create a mystique around the books. And those are the books children seek out."

"Too often, parents don't realize that the concerns they have reflect their own hangups — and these are frequently not shared by their children."

Interferon Is Hope To One Patient

By KEVIN McKEAN
AP Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "I don't want to jam life in to make up for lost time, I just want to preserve the quality of my life for the time I have left. I don't want to get up every day and throw up."

For Peter DeFilippo, a vigorous 29-year-old who has skin cancer, one means of preserving life's quality is a highly experimental new drug called interferon.

Twice a week he rides the bus from his parents' home in central New Jersey to Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center here to take a shot of the thin brown fluid.

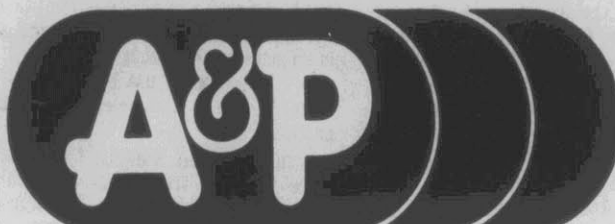

Nurses send him home with an ice chest packed with enough loaded hypodermics for daily shots until the next visit.

Interferon is the sixth separate treatment the mustached, balding former Air Force captain has had since a dark mole below his right ear was diagnosed as potentially fatal malignant melanoma 2½ years ago.

There have been two rounds of surgery, a dose of fast neutrons (an experimental radiotherapy) and two separate kinds of chemotherapy, both of which made him violently ill. Each time the cancer returned.

Now DeFilippo is one of about 50 melanoma patients at three U.S. institutions getting American Cancer Society interferon. Like the others, he takes a shot a day for 42 days, and then is watched for another month to see whether the therapy helped.

For those who respond to interferon, it is probable that more can be procured, doctors say. But the Cancer Society grant covers only the initial therapy, and there are no plans yet for getting more.

"I'm hopeful," DeFilippo says. "The chemotherapy didn't seem to work, and I had to do something different if I was going to survive. This looked like the most hopeful thing to do."

His doctors say DeFilippo is doubly lucky in that he has had few bad side effects. He suffered only slight chills on the first day of treatment. Other patients have been feverish, shaking and bedridden with depression and fatigue.

DeFilippo looks and feels well. "Outside of the fact that I have a terminal disease, I'm very healthy," he jokes. But a dappled patch of scar tissue covers the right side of his neck from the cancer and its treatments.

To keep in shape, the 5-foot-10, 165-pound DeFilippo swims, does stretching exercises and runs 25 miles a week.

"I'm afraid to stop, to be honest with you. I think as long as I can do these things, I am healthy and it can't spread. Of course, I don't know whether that's true or not."

The Air Force retired him with a good pension. Family, friends and doctors have all been "wonderful" in their support, he says.

But DeFilippo has done much of the legwork himself in running down new treatments, consulting specialists and presenting his doctor with lists of phone numbers of specialists in experimental treatment.

"Peter has a wonderful attitude and that's been keeping us all up and giving us strength. I always believed if we want something, we better get out and ask," says his mother, Louise.

DeFilippo describes the last two years as an endless round of going "from doctor to hospital to hospital to doctor, and as soon as this ends, if I continue to have spread, I'll be back on the treadmill again."

But the experience has not made him a pessimist. "It has kind of taught me a lesson," DeFilippo says.

"There's a lot of knowledge around. Everything works for somebody, and if you can find the thing that works for you, my God, you're free."

The Irony Is, Says Senator, We Could Have Won

WASHINGTON (AP) — The irony of the Vietnam war is that "we could have won it," says Sen. John Tower of Texas, a leading hawk during the Vietnam era.

The ranking Republican member of the Senate Armed Services Committee believes that failing to win the war was an "even bigger mistake than getting involved in Vietnam in the first place."

Five years after the last American was evacuated from the roof of the U.S. Embassy in Saigon, Tower says his philosophy hasn't changed much. He remains one of the staunchest congressional boosters of defense measures and of high levels of military spending.

Here are excerpts from an interview with The Associated Press:

Q. Do you see a swing back toward hawkishness in the United States today for the first time since the Vietnam War?

A. I think it's an oversimplification these days to talk of hawks and doves. The terms aren't applicable in the present context. We do have to defend our vital interests abroad because we're dependent upon so much of the world for so much of what we need in the way of raw materials.

Most of our exotic metals, for example, come from other sources that require the preservation of sea lanes. That dictates the necessity for a global naval force. We have to understand that if the Soviets achieve their objectives and gain access overland to warm-water ports and to the Middle Eastern oil fields, it would make them the dominant power in the world.

It was arguable at the time whether we were defending a vital interest in Vietnam. But in retrospect, it appears now that Vietnam is more valuable than we realized.

Q. Why?

A. For one thing, it flanks China to the southeast with an ally of the Soviet Union. There also has been Vietnamese domination of Laos and Cambodia — the whole Indochina complex. This area is strategically important. It's contiguous to the Straits of Malacca, to Indonesia with all its vast resources. It also affords the Soviets several naval bases which we built — very thoughtful of us.

Our own restraint cost us Vietnam. We forced Hanoi to the Paris accords by choking off its lifeline through the mining of Haiphong and through interdicting the supply routes from southern China into North Vietnam.

The accords were not so bad. But Congress refused to permit the administration to enforce them. So Congress, in effect, handed South Vietnam over to Hanoi.

Q. What should Congress have done differently?

A. I think it should have permitted a higher level of military assistance to South Vietnam, and also permitted the subsequent military action by the United States to further interdict Hanoi's supply lines when Hanoi unilaterally broke the accords.

I talked to a British diplomat who was stationed in Hanoi during this period. He said, "I could not understand why you Americans let up on them. You had them beat."

Q. Do you think a Vietnam-type intervention by the United States today, say in the Middle East, would get support in the country?

A. It's possible as long as the country could clearly perceive an American national interest. It could quite clearly perceive such an interest in terms of our sources of energy — the Middle Eastern oil fields. I don't think we're likely to become involved again to the extent that we were in Vietnam. But I think that we would respond to a Soviet threat to areas of vital interest. Of course, the "Vietnam syndrome" you speak of also delivered Angola into the hands of the Soviets and the Cubans.

Q. Have your views on foreign policy and defense changed since Vietnam?

A. No, my views have remained fairly consistent. I learned my geopolitics from the British so I have a continuing sense of history on all this.

Q. Would the United States have been in a better position today, both militarily and economically, if Vietnam had never happened?

A. We wouldn't have suffered from that anti-military reaction that I think influenced the state of preparedness we now find ourselves in. A lot of the military expenditure during the period of Vietnam went to the prosecution of the war rather than for qualitative improvements in our weapons systems.

The Johnson administration could have brought the war to an earlier conclusion. I lay this not so much to Johnson but to the bad advice he was getting from (then-Defense Secretary Robert) McNamara and all those who claimed you shouldn't try to beat the enemy, only stalemate it.

We should never commit American forces to action unless we intend to bring it to the earliest, successful conclusion. That's the big mistake we made, an even bigger mistake than getting involved in Vietnam in the first place.

Q. Is this the major lesson to be learned from what happened to us in Vietnam?

A. Yes. We sacrificed 50,000 lives in Vietnam and then I think we could have at least preserved the status quo. That is to say: a friendly South Vietnam, a hostile North Vietnam, and a more or less neutralized Laos and Cambodia.

But we failed to do that because Congress mandated that there should be no military assistance after a certain point.

Q. Have the wounds of Vietnam healed?

A. I think so. I think the only traces now are the problems that seem to be endemic to the Vietnam veterans.

An Artificial Voice Tedious

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Jim Norton began to smile. He had taken him 10 minutes, but he had "spoken" a six-word sentence.

The process of "speaking" is a tedious one for Norton, 37, who can no longer use his voice. It also is a complex process.

Norton uses an artificial voice machine. The small computer makes speech after he programs the machine by nudging a small red paddle that rests on his cheek. The paddle is the size of a tongue depressor and is attached to the computer via a gooseneck.

The speech from the machine, a Phonic-Mirror Handi-Voice, sounds much like the synthetic telephone "operator" who tells you a phone number has been changed.

Norton, diagnosed as having multiple sclerosis, can no longer move his arms or legs or swallow. But he can move his head, slightly, from side to side.

Without the help of the machine, he would be unable to speak to his family, nurses at Wesley Nursing Center or visitors.

His father said the other day Norton said, "Dad, please ask Dr. Pressly to check the dressings on my stomach." It took the younger Norton 30 minutes to "say" the sentence.

But things will get easier. The Duke graduate, who also is a former reference librarian, has had the machine programmed with complete phrases, like, "I need help."

Norton can command the phrases to be repeated over and over, as well as hundreds of words, phonetic sounds and even individual letters and numbers.

The $2,300 machine was provided through the Veterans Administration because Norton's illness has been traced to his Navy service.

A three-digit code triggers each word in a message. The machine's voice calls out "one-two-three-four," etc. Norton stops the machine at the appropriate number by nudging the cheek paddle.

The machine records that number and immediately calls out numbers again. The three-digit code may turn out to be a letter, a word or an entire sentence.

The codes, with the words and phrases they equal, are on a translation board in front of Norton when he uses the machine. For instance, "yes" is 007, "no" is 008, "pain" is 086.

Another model, designed for stroke and cerebral palsy patients, is designed for persons who can use their hands. Buttons generate words.

FAR SHORT OF GOAL
BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — A commitment by Argentina to settle 1,000 Indochinese refugee families is falling far short of its goal and may soon be abandoned, according to government and U.N. officials in charge of the effort.

Simultaneous Transplant Test

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Simultaneous transplants of lungs and hearts could be conducted on human patients within two years if further tests on animals are successful, say Stanford University scientists.

Dr. Bruce Reitz said researchers have succeeded in keeping alive five of 10 Rhesus monkeys that received the transplants last year. The monkeys were living 312 days after the surgery and their lungs and hearts were functioning normally.

The surgeon told the American Association for Thoracic Surgery that the heart-lung transplants might help humans who suffered lung damage as a result of heart disease.

HOUSE

DRAFT REGISTRATION — By a vote of 219 for and 180 against, the house approved spending $13 million to begin registering young men for possible draft into the military service. The bill (HJ Res 521) was sent to the Senate.

If the registration plan gets final approval, the approximately four million men born in 1960 and 1961 will be required to fill out forms at their local post offices.

Rep. Elwood Hillis, R-Ind., a supporter, said "pre-mobilization registration is nothing more than an insurance policy against a future international crisis."

Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., an opponent, called the plan "a meaningless gesture which will put the nation through a divisive and rather worthless postcard registration in order to send a weak and mixed signal to the Soviets."

Members voting "yea" favor draft registration.

Reps. Walter Jones, D-1, L.H. Fountain, D-2, Charles Whitley, D-3, Ike Andrews, D-4, Stephen Neal, D-5, Richardson Preyer, D-6, Charles Rose, D-7, James Martin, R-9, James Brodyhill, R-10, and Lamar Gudger, D-11, voted "yea." Rep. W.C. Hefner, D-8, did not vote.

IRAN PROBE — The House killed, 314 for and 90 against, a resolution (H Res 627) calling for a probe of one aspect of the Administration's dealings with the Iranian government. The probe was to have looked into the conciliatory letter the Iranians claimed to have received from President Carter in late March. Carter reprobated the letter, which, according to the claim of Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, was written by an Argentine lawyer working as an intermediary between Washington and Iran in the hostage negotiations.

Rep. William Broomfield, R-Mich., a supporter of shelving the resolution, said that "because of the sensitive and deteriorating situation in Iran" any congressional debate on the Administration's handling of the hostage ordeal should be postponed until the hostages are safe.

Challenging the Argentine's lawyer's trustworthiness, Hansen, the sponsor of the resolution, told the House it is "extremely dangerous when we find ourselves on the edge of the cliff of warfare, perhaps WW III, to have an intermediary of this kind of shadowy background" working in behalf of the U.S. government.

Members voting "nay" want to debate and vote on a resolution questioning one aspect of the Administration's Iran policy.

Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose and Gudger voted "yea." Martin and Brodyhill voted "nay."

Jones and Hefner did not vote.

INTERNATIONAL BANKS — By a vote of 211 for and 180 against, the House sent back to a House-Senate conference committee a bill (S 662) setting the level of U.S. contributions to the Inter-American Development Bank, Asian Development Bank, and African Development Fund. The bill called for $4 billion in contributions through 1982, compared to the $2.5 billion the House voted in March.

Rep. John Ashbrook, R-Ohio, who supported sending the bill back, asked: "How can we ask (U.S. taxpayers) to give their wages so that nations with dubious support records of American positions can bask in cheap loans?"

Rep. Hamilton Fish, R-N.Y., an opponent, said: "We can hardly afford to look like we are abandoning the needy and the poor."

Members voting "yea" favor a lower contribution to the banks.

Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Hefner, Martin, Brodyhill and Gudger voted "yea."

Neal, Preyer and Rose voted "nay."

Jones did not vote.

SENATE

THE LUBBERS NEGOTIATION — The Senate confirmed, 57 for and 30 against, the nomination of William A. Lubbers as general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB), the independent agency established in 1934 to mediate differences between labor and management. Lubbers was seen as "pro-labor" by conservatives, and organized labor regarded his confirmation as a victory.

Sen. Harrison Williams, D-N.J., a supporter, said Lubbers "will win the praise and admiration of both labor and management for his ability and his impartiality as general counsel."

Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, an opponent, called Lubbers "an ivory-tower bureaucrat having no practical labor relations experience as well as extremely limited (NLRB) experience."

Senators voting "yea" want Lubbers to be the NLRB's top lawyer.

Sens. Robert Morgan, D, and Jesse Helms, R, voted "nay."

Earth Sheltered Home Is Not Life In A Cave

By BRUCE M. KANNER
 DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — Home buyers faced with skyrocketing mortgage interest rates and ever-increasing utility bills are being urged to return to the earth.

But the earth-sheltered home movement is having an identity crisis from people who think it means "underground."

"When people think of the earth-sheltered home, they think of a cave-like structure with little outside light," said John Williams, one of the owners of Earth Sheltered Homes of Iowa Inc.

"It's not like that at all. This works with nature and sits above the grade. We build the earth around it."

Williams and co-owner Bob Bates began their business a year ago and have built several homes in the Des Moines area. Builder Dave Lovejoy said he will begin work later this year on an earth-sheltered home community south of the city.

Williams said the savings can run between 60 percent and 85 percent depending on construction, location and the people who live inside.

"Earth-sheltered homes can have the appearance of a conventional home with similar room arrangements," Bates said. "They have a very open, airy, light feeling about them — very appealing."

New Twist In Your Ice Cream

NEW HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — The second generation of an electric ice cream freezer that operates with ice cubes and table salt has a new top assembly and dasher that permit the addition of syrups, nuts, chopped fruits or other solids during the last stages of freezing.

The original model lacked these features, but the manufacturer is making the new parts available by direct mail at a nominal charge. The packet consists of a new top bar, cover and dasher, plus a new recipe book.

The conversion kit for Ice Cream Parlor I is $6.75, including postage and handling, from Waring Products, Service Dept., New Hartford, CT 06057. Residents of Connecticut and Pennsylvania should add appropriate sales tax.

Evangelist To Press Complaint

DALLAS (UPI) — Evangelist James Robison has announced he will continue to press — to the Supreme Court, if necessary — his case against the Federal Communications Commission and the Fairness Doctrine.

After Robison preached on homosexuality as a sin, a Dallas television station dropped his show and also gave a gay rights advocate equal time to respond to Robison's charges. Robison contends the station's actions have a chilling effect on religious broadcasting.

Williams estimated 3,000 to 4,000 earth-sheltered homes are located throughout the United States, with Minnesota, Wisconsin and Oklahoma having the most.

Such housing has been in use since prehistoric times in the form of the caves and huts, but the structure's rebirth only came about 10 to 12 years ago as an energy efficient way of living.

The home works "with nature while using technology, a southern exposure and a 3-foot overhang," said Williams, conducting a walk through a display home. "The summer sun is 71 degrees in the sky, so with that 3-foot overhang, the heat goes into the ground — not your window."

"The winter sun is 57 degrees in the sky. The large front windows, coupled with the overhang, make that just right to receive the winter warmth."

He described the earth-sheltered home as an "inner envelope."

He noted the roof consisted of a grass top, two feet of earth as a soil cloth, three inches of river washed gravel to aid in drainage, one-eighth inch of Masonite, six inches of rigid insulation, and three inches of poured concrete with mesh over a foot of pre-cast Spandec — one side of which is the interior ceiling.

Basic energy savings are realized through the building's earth insulation, a special heating-ventilator recirculator and other energy-efficient items.

The home requires no air conditioning because the below-ground temperature remains between 55 degrees and 58 degrees year-round. Heating is reduced too because "it only takes 10 degrees to warm from 57 to 67 and it takes 67 degrees from 0 to 67," Williams said.

The home uses less electricity because it does not need an air conditioner or much energy for heating units and because large bay windows act as a passive solar energy system allowing daytime light to enter.

A special fireplace uses "outside combustible air" and leaves already heated air inside the home.

"Overall, it's on the brink of being energy self-sufficient," Williams said. "Total energy bills should run between $75 and $100 a year. That's incredible."

And the costs of the homes are similar to other new dwellings.

"That's one of the first things people ask about these homes," Bates said. "We can report that costs are comparable to those of conventional construction."

Williams said construction runs between $45 and $55 per square foot, making the average cost of a 1,400 square foot home about $70,000.

Infiltrated By Organized Crime

WASHINGTON (AP) — Organized crime has infiltrated more than 700 legitimate U.S. businesses, ranging from bars to banks, the government says.

Testifying before the Senate Investigations subcommittee Monday, Justice Department official Irvin Nathan said criminals use the businesses to "launder" money from the rackets, and loan sharks become investors in businesses in repayment for extortionate loans. FBI Director William H. Webster told the committee that the bureau's efforts in fighting organized crime the last five years "haven't been as successful as we would have liked," but he said there would be good results this year.

Webster estimated there are 300 leaders in the traditional mob "families" that are generally grouped as part of organized crime. He estimated there are 2,000 hard-core "family" members and another 20,000 who help in illegal activities.

Many Offer To Execute John Gacy

By TERRI COLBY
Associated Press Writer
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Some say they want the pleasure of "pulling the switch on John W. Gacy." Others say it would be like jury duty. They're all volunteers — a minister, a funeral director, a born-again Christian — looking for a job as executioner for Illinois.

Hundreds of letters have poured in from around the country and overseas since authorities said in mid-March that they were thinking of using volunteers to carry out the state's 1977 death penalty law.

The idea first was voiced when Gacy was convicted of killing 33 young men and boys and sentenced to death.

"Nothing would give me greater pleasure than pulling the switch on John W. Gacy Jr.," wrote a 73-year-old Mississippi resident.

Gacy is one of 26 men sentenced to die in Illinois' electric chair.

The state has no official "volunteer executioner" program, but the Department of Corrections doesn't want its own people to perform any executions, said Michael Lane, an assistant Illinois corrections director.

One volunteer, a 42-year-old Navy veteran, is a New York prison inmate. "I will soon ... be appearing before the board of parole and I do need a job, plus a new start in life. I know a little about electricity, but then again, I am quick to learn."

A 38-year-old Illinois technician and "born-again Christian" wrote: "I believe in capital punishment and look on this act as I do jury duty ... realizing that everyone does not feel this way, I feel compelled to volunteer."

The department allowed the letters to be quoted as long as the writers' names were not used.

"I've tried to see both sides," wrote a Chicago woman, "but kept coming to the same decision. John Gacy is a cruel man who deserves no pity and truly does deserve to be executed without question."

"I am not wanting this job just for John Wayne Gacy," wrote a 68-year-old Illinois retiree. "I want them all."

"I know that doing this job is not something desirable, I'm not thrilled at the prospect of doing it, but someone has to," wrote a Baptist minister from Florida.

One man offered to execute all the men on Death Row for $500. A New Jersey man wanted "$75 (for) each execution."

"I feel no pleasure in killing, but I would do it for the money," wrote a man from Vienna, Austria.

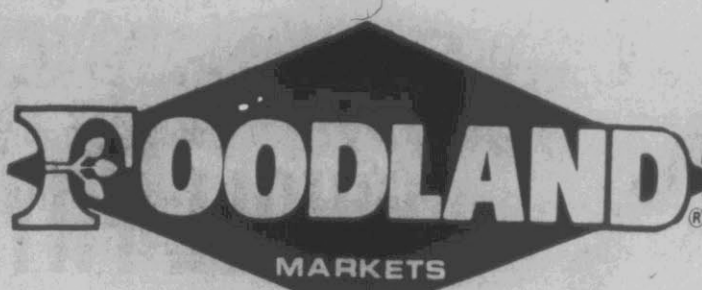

Some of the job applicants sent printed resumes; others talked about related job experience.

A Wisconsin policeman said his work at an animal shelter included "destruction of animals."

Synod Believes Corner' Turned

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod officials believe they may have turned the corner in the continuing membership decline that has beset the church since the schism of the early 1970s.

Officials said total baptized membership of the conservative Lutheran denomination stood at 2.7 million, a decline of slightly more than 6,000 members and the smallest decline since 1974. They also reported increases in Sunday School enrollments and infant baptisms.
