Two Released, New Demands By Arab Gunmen In London

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Iranian Arab gunmen in the Iranian Embassy released two of some 20 hostages Saturday night and demanded three Arab ambassadors and the Red Cross mediate an end to the siege.

The two captives freed were a pregnant Iranian woman employed by the embassy and a man police identifed as Ghanzanfar Eli Gull, a Pakistani who was visiting the mission. A police spokeswoman said neither had been harmed in any way and "we are told all the hostages remaining inside are being well treated."

Police said they still did not know exactly how many hostages and gunmen are in the embassy. Late Saturday, police delivered 35 meals to the embassy, with 30 containing Persian-style food and five English-prepared food.

The estimated three to five gunmen, who identify themselves as members of Iran's Arab minority, said if their demand was met, "the whole operation would be terminated peacefully."

Police said the pregnant woman was released soon after nightfall following a radio appeal by a friend for her freedom. Less than an hour later, the man was released.

The terrorists, in a statement handed police, promised not to harm their remaining hostages "if the British government and the British police don't kid the group and don't subject the life of the hostages and the group to any danger."

They also demanded the ambassadors of Algeria, Jordan and Iraq and a Red Cross representative "start their jobs" negotiating the safety of the hostages and an end to the siege. They said any of the three ambassadors not available could be replaced by an envoy from Libya, Syria or Kuwait.

"The reason for us to come to Britain to carry out this operation is because of pressure and oppression which is being practiced by the Iranian government in Arabistan (Khuzestan) and to convey our voice to the outside world through your country," the gunmen said in a note handed through a window to police. "Once again we apologize to the people and the government for this inconvenience."

This was the first indication the gunmen had come from outside Britain to seize the Iranian embassy.

Earlier Saturday, deputy Assistant Commissioner John Dellow said the gunmen had made "some additional demands" but refused to discuss them. There was no immediate indication if he was referring to the demand for mediation by the three ambassadors.

He said they stuck by their original conditions as well — including release of 91 Arab militants imprisoned in Iran's Khuzestan province, where dissidents have been fighting for greater autonomy from a central government dominated by Persians, Iran's non-Arab majority ethnic group.

The gunmen say if their demands are not met they will blow up the embassy and kill their Iranian hostages, who number at least 16.

In Tehran Saturday, Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh reiterated his government's public refusal to negotiate with the London gunmen, and he accused Iran's neighbor and Arab adversary, Iraq, of having supplied the weapons the terrorists used in seizing the embassy Wednesday.

The Iranian government "has information that the weapons which were used were provided through the Iraqi diplomatic corps," Ghotbzadeh told reporters.

The terrorists are said to have pistols, automatic weapons and perhaps other arms.

London Sunday newspapers published dispatches from Tehran quoting Ghotbzadeh as threatening direct action to end the siege.

It said he told journalists, "If the government of the United Kingdom considers, for one reason or the other, they are not capable to cope with the problem, at that time we are going to take

Carter, Reagan, Lead In Texas

By CLAY F. RICHARDS
UPI Political Writer

DALLAS (UPI) — GOP favorite Ronald Reagan overcame George Bush's early lead in the Texas primary Saturday, while President Carter easily beat Sen. Edward Kennedy.

Bush had built his lead based on a big early vote from Houston where he served in Congress for four years. But as the vote from the rest of Texas rolled in, Bush's lead slowly evaporated and then Reagan moved ahead.

In the Democratic race 20 percent of the voters indicated they were happy with neither Carter nor Kennedy by voting "uncommitted." The uncommitted was running only slightly behind Kennedy's total.

Election officials predicted there would be a record turnout in the Republican race as thousands of Democrats crossed over, most of them conservatives who voted for Reagan.

The Texas outcome had little impact on the delegate battles as Carter and Reagan picked up more backing not only in Texas but in caucuses in Minnesota and Arizona as they marched toward the Democratic and Republican nominations.

The vote and percentage for the leaders in the Texas Republican primary as of 10:50 p.m. EDT with 52 percent of districts reporting:

Reagan 150,679 49
Bush 150,529 49

In the Democratic race with 48 percent counted it was:

Carter 342,840 56
Kennedy 126,694 21
Uncommitted 122,473 20

In the race for Republican delegates, Reagan won or was leading for 54 delegates in Texas and 32 in the caucuses for a total of 679 toward the 998 needed for nomination. Bush won or was leading for 26 in Texas and 8 in the caucuses for a total of 165.

With the Democratic delegate selection process just beginning in Texas caucuses, Carter won 6 delegates in caucuses and conventions Saturday for a total of 1,192 toward the 1,666 needed for nomination. Kennedy won 1 Saturday for a total of 667.5.

After Democrats voted in the popular contest, they had to return to begin the long and complicated caucus method of selecting delegates.

The delegate outcome would not be known for some time, but Bob Beckel, Carter's Texas campaign chairman, said Carter did better than expected in the popular vote and he predicted the president would claim more than 60 percent of the 152 Texas delegates at the caucuses.

Carter's vote was strong both in urban and rural Texas as he rolled over Kennedy 2 to 1. Kennedy did win the MexicanAmerican vote around San Antonio by a 2 to 1 margin, but Carter struck back carrying several black districts by about the same margin.

Kennedy did not campaign heavily in Texas, concentrating mainly on the Mexican-American vote.

Carter came to San Antonio Monday to visit the servicemen wounded in the aborted attempt to rescue the hostages in Iran — his only trip outside the White House this year. The trip was billed as non-political, but it may have boosted Carter's political stock in the generally conservative southern state.

Bush's early lead came almost entirely from Houston — he had a 20,000 vote edge in the district he represented in Congress for four years. The Houston vote rolled in early and the lead diminished as other areas of the state reported.

Reagan led in most of the Dallas-Fort Worth area and strongly in the state's rural areas.

Bush got some good news from Minnesota where he won eight delegates while Reagan got four. But in Arizona, Reagan grabbed all 28.

When all is tallied, Reagan could end the day grabbing another 100 delegates in Texas and the caucuses, and he could add another 100 in four primaries Tuesday in his seemingly unstoppable march to the Republican nomination.

Mondale Visited Kinston Friday

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

KINSTON — Vice President Walter F. Mondale, campaigning for Pres. Jimmy Carter, said here Friday he wanted to "reaffirm the unequivocal support of Pres. Carter and the Department of Agriculture," for the tobacco price support program.

"I come here to campaign on behalf of President Carter," Mondale said, as he spoke to more than 300 people who crowded into a room at a local restaurant to hear the vice president. "But I am here as well to reaffirm the unequivocal support of Pres. Carter and the Department of Agriculture for the price-support program.

"Over the years," Mondale said, "the program has cost the American taxpayers practically nothing and reaped enormous returns."

The tobacco price-support program helps maintain the small family farm," he noted, adding that the family farm is"crucial to the value system," in America. "We're going to stick with the family farmers," which he termed, "the strength and vitality of America."

Mondale sidestepped questions from newsmen about Agriculture Secretary Bob S. Bergland's recent statement that he personally favors a ban on smoking, saying simply "The budget and the position is as I said it is." He added that the administration would not support an increase in the federal cigarette tax as part of the effort to balance the federal budget.

Welcomed by Betty Spier of Bethel, chairman of the North Carolina Democratic Executive Committee, who gave him a small golden tobacco leaf pin, which, she said, "we hope you will wear."

Mondale was introduced by First District Congressman Walter Jones of Farmville. In his remarks, Mondale emphasized his rural background.

"I spent all my young years woking on farms," in Southern Minnesota, the "only licensed pea-lice inspector to become vice president."

Mondale added that Carter "ended the disgrace and the discrimination that used to say if you're born in the South, there's no sense in seeking the presidency. We ended that insult to the South.

"Jimmy Carter is a small-town southern farmer now president of the United States, and Walter Mondale is a small-town pro-farmer now vice president of the United States.

"I predict that North Carolina is again going to set Jimmy Carter on the way to four more years," Mondale said, adding that, "there's only one place you learn to be President of the United States. That's sitting in the hot seat. Keep him there!"

Democrats beat themselves, Mondale said. "Pour out to the polls. Vote for Jimmy Carter. We'll throw Walter F. Mondale in for free," he urged.

Mondale arrived at the Reagan Victor In Two States

By MERRILL HARTSON

Ronald Reagan scored a landslide victory over George Bush in Oklahoma Republican congressional district conventions Saturday, picking up all 18 delegates and widening even further his heavy advantage in votes for the GOP presidential nomination.

The former California governor also blanked Bush in district meetings held in Missouri, picking up a dozen delegates. Three went uncommitted. With 30 delegates to his credit in the weekend competition, Reagan was virtually certain of claiming most — if not all — of the 28 delegates up for grabs at the Arizona GOP state convention.

The GOP front-runner also seemed assured of protecting the healthy lead he opened over former United Nations ambassador in the initial test of delegate strength last month in Minnesota.

On the Democratic side, President Carter maintained his commanding lead over Sen. Edward M. Kennedy in Virginia and Oklahoma and seemed likely to duplicate that performance in Minnesota.

The president also scored a better than 2-1 winner over Kennedy in a straw poll of 521 delegates attending the Nevada state Democratic convention. The poll showed Carter got 290 votes to the senator's 113 and 118 uncommitted.

The straw poll is not binding on the 12 delegates that Nevada will send to the Democratic National Convention in New York this August. That will be determined by a presidential preference primary scheduled for May 27.

With returns from all five of the Missouri congressional districts holding conventions, Reagan drubbed Bush 12-0, with three delegates going uncommitted. He had walked away with all 15 delegates chosen in earlier caucuses in the other five districts. Thirty of Missouri's 37 na-

Farmville Woman Sentenced, Ordered To Repay $81 Thousand To Center

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Former Farmville Child Development Center Director Jackie Grainger Atkinson was sentenced Friday by Judge Richard Allsbrook and ordered to pay the center $81,051.34.

Mrs. Atkinson, charged with three charges of misapplication of funds of the center for mentally retarded children in Farmville, is to serve an active sentence until August 15, 1980 at 10 a. m. in the Pitt County Jail. She then is to have five years of probation, which can be transferred to the State of Missouri where her husband, Jeffrey Craig Atkinson, and their two children now reside, if an agreement is worked out with the State of Missouri, Judge Allsbrook said, and if at least $3,000 is paid back to the child development center prior to that time. Judge Allsbrook has already awarded $8,000 of an appearance bond for Mrs. Atkinson paid the center and he stipulated Friday that the remaining $2,000 of that bond was to be paid Friday to the center. Restitution is to be made at least quarterly, he indicated.

During the time Mrs. Atkinson is in the Pitt County Jail, she is to be under psychiatric treatment at her own expense, Judge Allsbrook said. Court costs are to be paid by her.

The suspended sentences imposed by Judge Allsbrook included five years for one charge, three years for a second, and two years for a third. The 10 years total charges were suspended upon supervised probation.

Mrs. Atkinson, 32, was ordered by Judge Allsbrook Mar. 28 to undergo psychiatric evaluation by Dr. Bob Rollins, chief forensic psychiatrist at Dorothea Dix Hospital, in Raleigh prior to sentencing.

Dr. Rollins testified Friday that, in his opinion, Mrs. Atkinson underwent a drastic personality change when her mother committed suicide in 1976. He said he has learned that the defendant's mother called her and told her that she needed $8,000 in order to save the family farm. He said the defendant was unable to provide the money and that the next day, her mother took her own life. According to Dr. Rollins, Mrs. Atkinson changed, at that time, from a "controlled serious person" to a person who "lived each day as if it would be her last, with heedless regard for consequences." He said he does believe that she was, at that time, capable of distinguishing between right and wrong.

He said she is, in his opinion, in need of additional psychiatric treatment, including continued use of an antidepressant and of Lithium , a substance to prevent mood swings and of continued outpatient counseling, probably in excess of one year. He said, based on her behavior and also on her family history, that she is capable of suicide and that imprisonment would have an adverse effect on her and perhaps bring about her suicide.

Judge Allsbrook said the case was a difficult one for him, one that has pointed out to him the lack of psychiatric service now available to women prisoners in North Carolina.

He said the the crimes involved warrant imprisonment because of the long period of time over which Mrs. Atkinson has admitted diverting funds of the center for her own use, the number of individual transactions involved, and the planning, forethought and deliberate action shown. He said, however, "I am not satisfied to put this lady into the Department of Corrections," indicating that he felt she would not get the psychiatric care she needed there and would be more likely to take her own life.

Jack Lewis, a Farmville attorney who has been a member of the Board of Directors of the Child Development Center for many years, testified, "I personally do not ask that she be given an active term." He was the only person other than Dr. Rollins who testified during the sentencing proceedings which were held in the Law Library of the Pitt County Courthouse Friday afternoon.

Joyce Albritton, chairman of the Child Development Center Board, said there were no financial records left after Mrs. Atkinson left the center. The $81,051.34 figure is obtained from her own reconstruction of two years of record-keeping.

The diversion of funds was investigated by the Business and Financial Crimes Division of the State Bureau of Investigation after Mrs. Atkinson left the center and went to join her husband in St. Louis, Mo. some time.

The Farmville Child Development center is now run by Margo Sherman as an arm of the Pitt County Mental Health Center in the Mewborn Building in Farmville.

Siamese Twins Die

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Siamese twin girls joined from the chest down and sharing a single heart died just 2½ days after they were born at the Los Angeles County-USC Medical Center, a hospital spokesman said.

The twins died at about 12:30 a.m. Saturday, said spokesman Tony Tripi. Their parents had told doctors nothing heroic should be done to keep the girls alive, as they had virtually no chance to survive more than a few months.

The twins' heart was malformed and emergency heart surgery would have given them only "a week or two more," said their pediatrician, Dr. Nancy Edwards.

She had predicted the twins would die of heart disease. But the hospital gave no details of the cause of the twins' death.

The girls had been in serious condition and were receiving oxygen since they were delivered at 9:35 a.m. Wednesday.

The error in development that cause the twins to be born joined was believed to have occurred within two weeks of conception. The fertilized egg had begun to divide and produce identical twins but the division was incomplete, the twins' doctor said. The odds against a woman having Siamese twins are about 250,000 to one, she said.

The identities of the parents and infants were not disclosed to protect the parents' privacy. The parents, identified only as a Los Angeles couple, have other children.

Traffic Accidents

An estimated $6856 amount of property damage resulted from traffic accidents here Friday and Saturday according to reports of the Greenville Police Department.

A vehicle driven by Woodrow Tripp, 413 Line Ave., collided with a vehicle driven by William Jack Colville, Rt. 4 Box 30 F at 10:25 a.m. on Dickinson Avenue Friday. Estimated damage to the Tripp vehicle was $400 and $300 to the Colville vehicle.

A vehicle driven by Alvin Ray Respass, 101 N. Elm Street, collided with a parked vehicle on Memorial Drive Saturday at 1:30 a.m. Estimated damage to the Respass vehicle was $500 and $1500 damage to the parked vehicle owned by The Fixture House, Ltd., 3214 Memorial Drive.

At 2:52 a.m. Saturday, a vehicle driven by Carol Lynn Whitaker, Lot 38, Kenland Manor Trailer Park, collided with two mailboxes and a utility pole on Dickinson Avenue. According to police reports, she fell asleep at the wheel and lost control of the vehicle. Estimated damage to the Whitaker vehicle was $3000 and $150 damage to property owned by Carl Crawford, 2416 Dickinson Avenue.

A vehicle driven by Stevie Marvin Everette, 407 Aztec Lane, struck a utility pole after trying to avoid a collision on Evans Street at 10:50 a.m. Saturday. Estimated damage to the Everette vehicle was $1000.No injuries were reported.

12 Found Dead In Guatemala

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala (AP) — Twelve kidnap victims, most of them leftists, were found dead during the past three days, police said Saturday. A spokesman said they had been tortured and shot "execution-style."

Eighteen other men, kidnapped Tuesday night by a group of armed, masked gunmen have not been located, labor sources said. Police said they had no information about their whereabouts. The 18 were dragged from National Workers Central headquarters.

Leftist sources, who asked anonymity, said the methods used in the kidnappings and killings suggested they were the work one of the three rightist "hit squads" operating the country.

Several hundred persons have been kidnapped and killed in Guatemala in recent months in terrorist battles between leftists and rightists.

In a related development, 11 relatives of slain Guatemalan labor leader Rodolfo Ramirez and his wife sought refuge in the Venezuelan Embassy in Guatemala City, family members said.

The report could not be confirmed independently. The Venezuelan Embassy chancery building was not answering the telephone, and no one was available at the Foreign Ministry press spokesman's office.

Ramirez, secretary-general of the Construction Workers Union, and his wife were machine-gunned to death by unidentified attackers April 16. No group has claimed responsibility for their deaths.

FACES OF HOPE — Threse Cuban refugees reflect the hope of the six thousand that preceeded them to Key West by boat in thier quest for a new start in life. Under a canopy of rain, these refugees arrived on the shrimper "Captain Henry" at the Key West Naval Base Friday and were immediately taken to a processing center, dry clothes and food. (AP LASERPHOTO by speical correspondent Eddie Adams).

More Cuban Refugees Arriving At Tent City

By IKE FLORES
Associated Press Writer

FORT WALTON BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Shouting "Down with Castro" and "Viva Carter," Cuban refugees smiled and waved to applauding onlookers Saturday as they arrived at a sprawling city of tents that may eventually house up to 10,000 exiles.

The Cubans, who fled to Key West in the "Freedom Flotilla" across the 90-mile-wide Straits of Florida, were handed roses as they stepped from a chartered Air Florida Boeing 737 that flew them from Key West to Eglin Air Force Base in the Florida Panhandle.

They boarded blue Air Force buses for the short trip to the tent city, on Air Force property at the fairgrounds in Fort Walton Beach, where they will be processed by federal officials.

There they were greeted by a small-engine plane that flew overhead trailing a banner that said in red letters, "The KKK is here!" A Ku Klux Klan leader, B.W. Robinson of Pensacola, said his group planned a demonstration against the arriving Cubans, saying they would compete for jobs and swell welfare rolls.

A second planeload of 138 refugees — mostly men, but including some women and children — arrived at about 5 p.m.

The airlift and processing center were set up by the federal government to take care of an estimated 10,000 Cubans who have no relatives in South Florida. They will be housed here until they can be processed and resettled around the country.

A similar facility here was used in the mid-1970s for thousands of Vietnamese refugees who fled to the United States after the fall of South Vietnam.

The 510-mile airlift began Saturday morning, and several flights were scheduled during the day. In Key West, more refugees arrived as the boatlift from Cuba continued, and the total number of refugees neared 10,000 within the past two weeks.

The first four Cubans to walk down the stairs of the blue, green and white jet were young men, their clothes tattered and dirty. They were followed by a young woman cradling a baby in her arms. Then came more men, one leading a youngster about 5.

The Rev. Todd Hevia, a Roman Catholic priest from Pensacola, Fla., said the first group of about 130 refugees had "few possessions" and had been without a bath or change of clothes for over five days.

"Some of them were in the Embassy of Peru and some were not," Hevia said, referring to the embassy in Havana where thousands of Cubans sought refuge last month. "The ones I've talked to all said they hope to find a job and start anew in this country. Many of them have relatives in this country, but some do not," he said.

"They are tired, hungry and feeling lousy," said Maj. John Toner, an Eglin spokesman. "Some are crying and upset."

One refugee, Rene Rodriguez, said he was arrested in Havana after going to look for his brother at the Peruvian Embassy.

"I was beaten when we tried to leave. Then the Castristas put me in jail, where I remained until they came to get me to tell me that we were being put aboard the boats," Rodriguez said.

Another refugee, Juan Aguilar, said he had been imprisoned for four years in Cuba after refusing military service.

Asked why he would not enter the military, Aguilar said, "They are taking people to serve in Africa and I didn't want to do that."

Home for the refugees will be 50 military tents with wooden floors that were hastily erected on the 42-acre fairgrounds.

A storm swept the Straits of Florida on Friday night, but it proved to be no repeat of last week's killer storm, which claimed at least four lives and sank at least nine small boats.

The storm veered to the southeast, past the route from Mariel to Key West, and Coast Guard Cmdr. Samuel Dennis said the service responded to five distress calls. No injuries or deaths were reported.

Although only a few boats have left for Cuba in the past two days, the Coast Guard estimated over 3,000 small vessels were in Mariel waiting for refugees.

As the Cubans arrived in North Florida, some Fort Walton Beach-area residents protested their presence. One businesswoman, Billie Smith, said she was organizing a citizen's group to fight the airlift.

Bush Campaigned In N.C.

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Encouraged by early returns from Texas, George Bush declared Saturday night that he intends to stay in the struggle with Ronald Reagan for the Republican presidential nomination.

"I'm going to stay in this race all the way to Detroit because I believe the country deserves a choice," Bush told an enthusiastic crowd of about 300 people at a $7.50-per-person barbecue dinner in Asheville. The Republicans are holding their national nominating convention in Detroit this summer.

As he spoke, Bush was holding a startling lead over Reagan in Saturday's Texas presidential primary with about a quarter of the precincts counted.

Bush, stumping for votes in North Carolina for Tuesday's state primary in which Reagan is rated the favorite, devoted most of his speech to verbal jabs at President Carter.

"Frankly, I'm sick and tired of an administration that always seems to be apologizing about the United States," the former U.N. ambassador said.

"My argument with Jimmy Carter is we seem to be slapping around our friends who violate human rights, like Argentina and Brazil, and at the beginning of his administration, (Carter) moved closed to Castro — the fundamental violator of human rights in this hemisphere."

Bush outlined his plans to strengthen the nation's defense, linking the aborted rescue effort in Iran to what he described as a deteriorating military.

Bush had said on his arrival in Asheville that a loss in the Texas primary would not seriously affect his campaign.

Speaking briefly at the Asheville airport before the Texas polls closed, he said: "If I should beat (Reagan) there, it would be a big lift. But nobody expects it. So it wouldn't be very much of a downer if I should fail."

Bush flew to Asheville after an afernoon rally at a high school in Yadkin County near Winston-Salem.

Forty Republican convention votes are at stake in the North Carolina primary. Party rules apportion all of the delegates according to the statewide vote.

Before leaving Minneapolis at midday Saturday, Bush had predicted he would "do much better in Texas" than the polls have shown.

Noting that earlier reports showed a healthy lead for Reagan in the battle for 80 convention delegates, Bush asserted, "It won't be any 3-to-1 margin."

Bush told delegates at three GOP congressional district conventions in Minnesota that a Texas pollster said on the eve of the primary "that Ronald Reagan should be worried."

While stopping short of predicting a victory in the state he once represented in Congress, Bush said that momentum was in his favor.

"I was trailing Governor Reagan by 30 points in the polls just two weeks before the (April 22nd) Pennsylvania primary, but I won by 8 percentage points," said Bush, who stressed broad-based experience as his chief advantage over his GOP rival and President Carter.

tional convention delegates were being selected from the state's 10 congressional districts with the remaining seven at-large delegates to be picked by the GOP state convention in St. Louis on May 30.

Eighteen of Oklahoma's 34 GOP national convention delegates were selected in conventions held in the state's six congressional districts.

With each of the six districts reporting by late Saturday, Reagan had won all 18 delegates. Besides the 18 chosen at the meetings, 16 at-large delegates will be picked at a state convention scheduled for May 31.

CAMPAIGNING IN KINSTON — Vice President Walter F. Mondale told an audience that President Carter and the Department of Agriculture support the tobacco price-support program, but sidestepped a reporter's questions about Agriculture Secretary Bob S. Bergland's recent anti-smoking statements, saying only, "The budget and the position is as I said it is." On the platform with Mondale were Mrs. Betty Speir of Bethel, chairman of the North Carolina Democratic Executive Committee, Rep. Walter Jones, Wallace Hyde, chairman of the state Carter campaign committee, and Kinston Mayor Simon Sitterson. (Reflector Photo by Stuart Savage).

Saturday, Mondale campaigned in Nashville and Knoxville, Tenn.

Gov. Hunt Is Our Choice

It is classic, not because it has been rending for the Democratic party, as many predicted when former governor Bob Scott decided to take on the present governor Jim Hunt, but because it has not brought about that so widely predicted bloodbath.

Both men have conducted creditable campaigns, and if the rhetoric was sharp at times that is to be expected when two seasoned and successful state politicians face each other.

However the primary election turns out on Tuesday, the party can be thankful that the primary fight has not been more bruising than it has — because the winner is sure to face a strong, and possibly bitter, fight leading up to the November election.

Now it comes time to choose between the two Democratic candidates, and we feel Democrats are fortunate to have two such able men from which to choose.

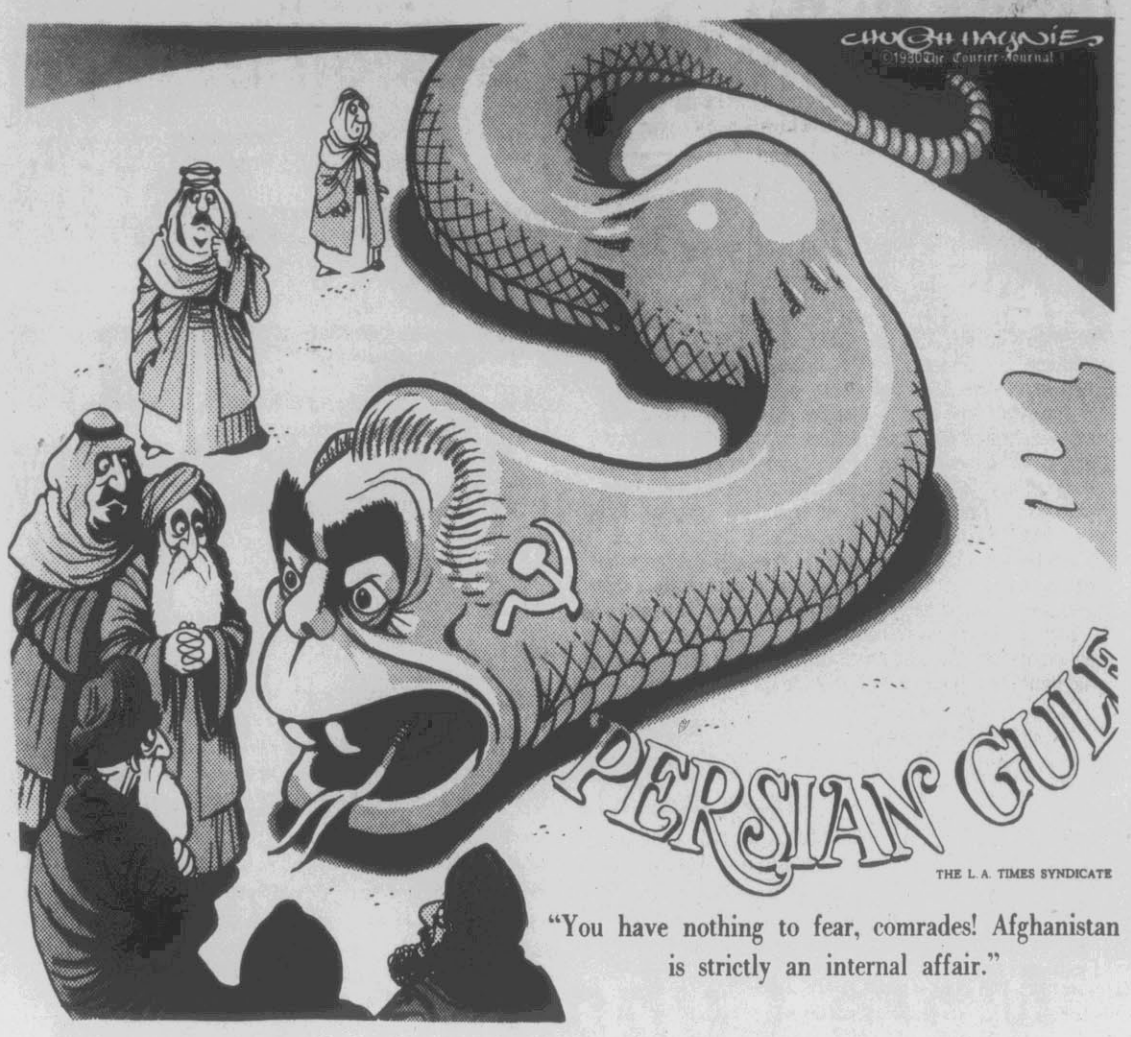

Our choice must be the nomination of Gov. Jim Hunt as the gubernatorial candidate. He has been an able administrator since he became governor of our state, and he has a number of programs and projects underway which we feel should be completed. The great advantage of allowing a North Carolina governor to succeed himself is the prospect of fully developing the programs which the first term governor gets underway. We can do this now by returning Gov. Hunt to office.

Suggests Govm't Lacked Strong Case

Former U.S. Budget Director Bert Lance, a close friend of President Carter, has been acquitted by a Georgia jury on nine charges of bank fraud. The jury couldn't reach a decision on three other counts.

Even though the possibility of another trial still hangs over Lance he was jubilant over the results. "We just plain licked 'em," he said.

We have believed that the matter, complex as it is, properly had to be aired in the courts. The outcome of this trial however, seems to indicate that the government did not have a strong case. Perhaps Lance has, indeed, licked 'em.

Boost Electric Vehicles

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — The state government would commit itself to the purchase of a specified number of electric powerd cars and trucks if that would get things moving on development of such vehicles, and the location of a manufacturing plant in North Carolina.

That is "one of the things" he talked about with John Sawhill, deputy director of the federal Energy Division on his recent visit to Raleigh, says Gov. Jim Hunt.

This state has ample supplies of electricity, and more generating capacity being built or planned, and at prices generally below those prevalent elsewhere in the nation.

Why not, wonders Hunt, come up with a way to use the "surplus" electricity available during non-peak-load hours for recharging batteries for electric vehicles."

Hunt is convinced that given the impetus, automakers have the technology to produce a workable electric car. The impetus, of course, is sales.

He told Sawhill, in effect: Tell Detroit that if it would help in making a decision to get going, North Carolina will supply a guaranteed market.

The numbers are still not certain, but the coversation centered around sales between 30,000 and 50,000 units. That might mean that neighboring states would also be involved in guaranteed purchases.

Government purchases are normally made on bids, but that would present no special problem: a statutory exception could be made for energy-saving devices, or else speculations for vehicles could be written so that only the electric-powered ones qualify.

To The Desert

Used to be in the old days people went to the desert to test their souls or ponder great ponderings. North Carolina county commissioners will be going to the desert at the end of June for a week of meetings of the National Association of Counties.

No hardship, however, as headquarters for The Tar Heel delegation will be the MGM Grand Hotel in Las Vegas, entertainment Capital of the World where shows, dining, gaming, pools and air conditioning relieve some of the pressures of soul-searching and pondering.

Growing

Six more North Carolina cities have climbed above the 10,000 mark, says Labor Commissioner John Brooks, who keeps tabs of such things for building permit records. Newcomers are Boone, Cary, Garner, Laurinburg, Mooresville, and Tarboro.

Rural Crime

More than 700 pieces of farm equipment were reported stolen in 1978, and losses from farm thefts and larcenies amounted to more than $3 million in a development which state officials see as alarming: crime is up significantly in rural areas as well as in town.

Specialists with the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety say that this trend is especially important in North Carolina because 77 of the 100 counties are considered rural counties.

BILL NOBLITT

They offer some advice for farmdwellers and others who live in the country: form a community crime watch; install safe door and window locks, check equipment and lievestock regularly and look for breaks in fences or gates; use grain identification confetti mixed in so as to identify stolen grain, and put marks on livestock and equipment.

Also, and this hardly needs to be said: keep a wary eye on strangers and traveling salesmen, say the crime prevention experts.

Sunday Morning Notes

W. E. Boswell of Box 2163, Greenville collected "Life" magazines for many years. His collection, in fact, went back to 1937 and continued until 1956

Recently in going through them he came upon an interesting article that seems so pertinent to the present time. It was the Sept. 7, 1953 edition and the article that caught Boswell's attention was one entitled "Iranian Lips."

It is not surprising to learn that the story concerns the shah of Iran who, at the time, had returned to Tehran following a three-day exile in Rome. He was greeted emotionally by his subjects.

"Before he had gotten 20 feet from his twin-engined Beechcraft he was caught up in a mass revival of the ancient Iranian custom of kissing the shah," the article stated.

" . . .As the shah moved further from the plane toward the guard of honor which was awaiting his inspection he looked more and more like a football halfback twisting, turning, sidestepping and straight-arming his way through an opposing backfield consisting of generals, a princess, diplomats, even an army photographer.

"In the crowds being held back by the police, men cried and screamed that they too wished to kiss the feet of their ruler. He got past them and rode triumphantly back into his capital, where the statues of his father were being restored to the pedestals from which they had been torn the week before.

"The next day the shah named a new government which promptly began a widespread series of raids on Communists who had been allowed to grow threateningly strong during the Mossadegh regime."

As we all know times have changed again in Iran. The shah is gone, this time probably forever. Once again the country is in turmoil, a condition that the Communist love with its potential for take-over. It's happened before, though, as the Sept. 7, 1953 "Life" story recalls. Things worked out then. Perhaps they will again.

Boswell collected hundreds of the "Life" magazines between 1937 and 1956. Now he is selling some of them off. He took a collection to a flea market in Raleigh and sold a 1941 edition to a lady who works in the General Assembly. It seems she had traced her family history back a century and that particular edition contained a copy of her family coat of arms.

Skater Draws Replies

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Who is the Rev. Robert Walker and upon what lake, loch or pond is he skating along so moodily?

I presented this puzzle to the readership shortly after borrowing Sir Henry Raeburn's wonderfully vivid portrait of the skating parson from our town library under its new program of loaning out art prints for free like books and records.

The result has been an avalanche of conflicting information from readers spaced out in the geographical sense in many directions, including a theologian in Massachusetts, an art librarian at the University of Michigan, a Master of Arts confectioner in Scotland and a Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate in Georgia.

The senatorial aspirant, L.T. Kearson of Waycross, Ga., had no idea who the Rev. Walker was, but he deeply empathized with him in a terse note:

"The candidate, Larry T. Kearson, is likened to your Rev. Bob Walker on the thin ice of political waters. But I see an umbrella boat on the horizon. May it be filled with gold."

Our engraving of the Raeburn masterpiece did not include an umbrella boat whatever that is, full or empty. It just showed the trilby-hatted cleric stroking along the ice somberly, arms folded, right legged cocked behind him against a background of murky cliffs faintly gilded by a sunset sky.

Valerie Meyer, fine arts librarian at the University of Michigan, admired the Rev. Robert Walker at the National Gallery in Edinburgh a few years ago, came home with a slide of the painting and some "information which will dispel the air of mystery."

The skating Walker, she informs us, was born at Monkton, Ayrshire in 1756. son of William Walker, who

THE INSIDE REPORT

Sec. Vance vs. 'Pygmies'

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The gap between Cyrus Vance and Jimmy Carter had so widened that the now-departed secretary of state specifically included the president in a slighting reference to "those pygmies in the White House" during an intimate chat recently with friends in his State Department office.

Vance's target, however, was less President Carter than the political aides who run the nation's policy on the basis of what is best for their chief's re-election. The "pygmies," Vance believes, had changed Carter's mind about the U.S. vote in the United Nations criticizing Israel. That greatly intensified Vance's alienation from the political team, headed by Hamilton Jordan, that long preceded the embarrassing presidential switch on the U.N. resolution.

Thus, what is at stake in the first walkout by a secretary of state since William Jennings Bryan in 1915 is not high U.S. policy toward the Soviet Union nor any sudden Carter switch from dove to hawk. Vance simply had reached a point of no return in working with a White House staff that, with the onrush of the 1980 election, had seized tactical control of policy at his expense.

Evidence supporting this is the Carter private offer to Vance April 21: You can come out publicly against the hostage-rescue operation, Carter told Vance, and I still want you as secretary of state. Carter gave Vance three choices: publicly disagree and stay; publicly lie — pretending support of the hostage mission — and stay; or quit.

In other words, the president was not abandoning Vance's policy of conciliation at the expense of firm positions backed by a strong defense. The president wanted him to stay as secretary of state, if he would only acquiesce — in some way or another — in the Iranian hostage strategy devised by his political aides.

In his dramatic exit, Vance has become a martyr to the foreign policy establishment and other detentists who fear the "born-again hawk" in the White House is leading the nation to destruction. While Vance's departure seems to strengthem the more confrontational position of national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski, no celebration has broken out among those who advocate a tougher foreign policy.

Vance was principal author of Carter's failed effort to make the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT II) the bedrock of detente with Moscow. Vance and his lieutenants at State repeatedly turned a blind eye to multiplying signs of Soviet incursions. That stategy was behind a tight-fisted attitude toward the defense budget, particularly naval and air expenditures.

But the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan made pursuit of SALT II and the Carter-Vance detente policy impractical with a presidential election one year away. So, Vance's grand design lies buried in the dust of contemporary events, not a conscious rethinking of global strategy.

Although Brzezinski always demanded tougher policies toward Moscow than Vance wanted, it is uncertain whether the president is truly willing to accept them. As we have reported, the burst of anti-Soviet rhetoric from the Many patrons of the public schools, and some teachers, believe the buddy system, or the you-pat-my-back-and-I-will-pat-yours, has been too prevalent in the evaluation of teachers and principals since the coming of the tenure act. Since most professionals in our public schools have been assigned "career" status, the evaluating process has grown in importance and attracted increasing attention inside and outside the schools.

Questions about evaluation have been on the increase ever since concerned members of the public have become aware of the depth of the borderline and incompetent teacher problem.

Because of the guarantees built into career status, it has been rather difficult for an administration to remove teachers who hold tenure. Another provision in the law also shackles school board members and superintendents. Once a teacher or principal puts in three years of acceptable work in a system, that employee has to be either dismissed or given life-long tenure. There is no middle ground for further probation.

Because of these conditions and because of an admitted, but undisclosed number of unfit teachers in the local system, evaluating procedures have lately been given a great deal of attention by the school board.

A tightening up in procedures for studying teachers and their records went into effect this year in the Scotland system. One result has been the failure to reemploy for 1980-81 several teachers who have been on probationary status.

Board member Mary Longfellow's question in open session last Monday night, to the effect that the board and administration still do not have an acceptable policy to deal with unqualified tenured teachers and principals suggests that the board still has a way to go before it can bring school faculties up to what the public expects and deserves.

But members have indicated that though their progress in this direction is slow it will be certain, and the day will come when parents will not be frustrated and angered over shortcomings in the classrooms their children attend.

Strength For Today

NON-FICTIONAL DRAMA

We sometimes come near to tears as we see poverty and suffering in movies on television. But we do not need fictional drama to remind us of the suffering continuously present in the world as we see it. There is plenty of tragedy right on the street where we live, in the office or in the mill where we work, or even in the bridge club or lodge.

Yet even though we know this, when we come in contact with this real suffering, often we turn our ears the other way or step over it with as much unconcern as we would step over fallen leaves or broken twigs. General William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army, once made a statement which we should all take to heart on these occasions: "One pot of gruel, two petticoats, and one wool blanket are worth a lake of tears."

Sentimentality solves no problems. Our Lord said on one occasion, "If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them."

Mortgage Rates Going Down?

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Carlson, economist and authority on housing, has good news for people seeking to sell their homes, and some also for those who want to buy.

"The worst will be over in the next 60 to 90 days," he said from Chicago this week. "Mortgage rates will be coming down."

That forecast is perhaps the first good news to come out of the real estate market in six months, or since the Federal Reserve, seeking to tame inflation, decided to let rising interest rates help them out.

Already, said Carlson, some of the extreme high rates, those around 16 percent or 17 percent, are collapsing. "By the end of the year the average rate will be down to 14 percent. And by next year to 13."

Never mind for the moment what happens after that. If he is on target, lenders soon will be more agreeable to deal with, buyers will be able to borrow, and homeowners finally will be able to sell their houses.

Prices, of course, will remain high, which isn't good news — but not a surprise, either — for buyers. And interest rates, while lower, will still cause families to pay more than they think they can afford.

Carlson has credentials. After serving several presidents he became chief economist for the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, and last year was chosen head of the National Association of Realtors.

His commentary followed a telephone survey of 21 metropolitan areas in which most reported the good, even surprising news that April sales were the same or only a bit below the March level of 2.7 million units.

That's quite a contrast to what's been going on. From February to March, for example, sales dropped 10 percent. And since last fall, when they reached nearly 4 million, the decline has measured 36 percent.

Even that doesn't tell the full story, and certainly not the human story — of the families that bought a new home and couldn't unload the old, of families needing to buy who couldn't obtain a mortgage, and of families that simply were priced out of contention.

The overall statistics don't tell the regional story either. In parts of the Midwest the market was left in ruins after declines of 50 percent or more. Even in the affluent Sunbelt, sales dived 20 percent.

Now that interest rates appear to be falling, all that might change. As Carlson sees it, there remains an enormous underlying demand for existing housing. Not just 4 million, but 5 million units a year.

To the editor:

A few days ago I read a version of the Robert Lee Davis Commutation which I never saw in any of the other media. Apparently, Charles Winberry, Jim Sugg and even Alabama politicians got into the act. According to "The Greensboro Daily News," Jim Sugg, former head of the State Democratic Party, Winberry (former paid lobbyist for Gov. Hunt) and William Jackson, former legal counsel for Gov. George Wallace, all helped Davis in seeking commutation of a 10-year sentence, following conviction on two felony charges.

Apparently, the commutation effort began in March, 1978, and was handed down by Gov. Hunt on March 15, 1978. That's about the fastest action ever to come out of the state bureaucracy in history, I think. On top of that, Davis' probation terms allowed him to leave the State of North Carolina.

Having seen only very sketchy accounts of the story and having read Governor Hunt's statement of a completely clear conscience, I barely gave a second thought to the matter.

I am having second thoughts, not only about the Governor's action, but about the light-handed coverage of the matter by the Reflector and area television stations.

Mr. Oglethorpe drew up plans and suggested suitable plant; Mr. Allen had posts installed to protect the plot from vehicles. Trees, forsythia, holly and flowering plants have been purchased and put in place by the Beaumont Circle families. This area, formerly barren and often littered by trash, has been converted to a neat and attractive plot in which Beaumont Circle families take common pride and mutual interest. president as Afghanistan was raped and the election neared has not been matched by changes in policy. Carter's agents on Capitol Hill have fought hard against higher budget ceilings for defense; his diplomats have kept the framework of U.S.-Soviet negotiations intact and tried to cover up Soviet germ warfare capability.

Moreover, Vance and Brzezinski often have been dual victims of the Carter political team. Brzezinski was an ally, however silent, of Vance in opposing presidential repudiation of the anti-Israel vote at the U.N. They also agree that Soviet aggression against Afghanistan (which has little domestic political impact) is a more fundamental problem in the long run than American hostages in Tehran (which has maximum domestic political impact).

Both have suffered from the Carter political team's refusal to fund national security projects at the expense of politically-sensitive domestic projects. When Vance proposed massive U.S. aid to Oman for U,S. military rights, he was put down by Budget Director James McIntyre who insisted that the funds come out of the U.S. arms budget. Brzezinski suffered a similar fate when he returned from Pakistan with his arms proposals.

The crowning blow came with the political decision to make Vance the scapegoat for Carter on the U.N. vote. That was accompanied by Carter's dispatch to Paris of nondiplomatic emissaries — including Jordan allegedly wearing various disguises — to negotiate release of the American hostages. Carter's "pygmies" seized the hostage issue as their avenue to election-year success for a president with deep political problems.

When the president overruled Vance last week and sent the rescue mission to Iran, Vance's decision was easy; he had been ready to call it quits for a long time. He had lost, not to a newly-realistic world outlook, but to the exigencies of Jimmy Carter's re-election.

AS I RECALL IT

Gaston B. Means Avoided The Sedentary Life

BY NOEL YANCEY

Gaston B. Means was a scoundrel. The Concord native bilked Evelyn Walsh McLean, the fabulously wealthy silver mining heiress and owner of the Hope Diamond, out of $104,000 she gave him after he told her that he could get the kidnaped Lindbergh baby alive. Means was sent to federal prison for the caper and died there on Dec. 12, 1938, leaving unsolved the mystery of what happened to Mrs. McLean's money.

The Lindbergh ransom hoax capped off a career that saw Means serve as a paid agent in supplying German espionage agents with information about shipments of Allies before the U.S. entered World War II, saw him amass thousands of dollars in payoffs from bootleggers while working as an $89.50-a-week investigator for the Justice Department during Prohibition days, and saw him paid huge sums for supplying an anti-Communist organization with phony information about alleged American subversives.

In addition to being a Concord native and being educated the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Means had other North Carolina connections. He collaborated with May Dixon Thacker, wife of a clergyman, and sister of Thomas Dixon, the Shelby native who wrote "The Birth of a Nation," in writing a book entitled, "The Strange Death of President Harding," which purported to be an inside story of the Harding Administration.

But Means had first attracted state and national notoriety in the fall of 1917 when he was acquitted after a sensational trial at Concord on a charge of murder in the death of Maude King, a wealthy Chicago widow who was visiting the Means family home in Concord at the time of her mysterious death.

Means, who was helping Mrs. King in an effort to claim a larger share of her late husband's estate, contended she accidentally shot herself while on an excursion to Blackwelder's Spring near Concord. Although coroner's jury had pronounced the death accidental, Means was indicted and tried on murder charges in a proceeding that lasted 21 days.

After Means' death in the Springfield, Mo., federal prison in 1938, his widow Julie told about that trial and other events in the fantastic life she lived with Means in a series of five newspaper articles.

In her articles, Mrs. Means freely admitted a host of chicaneries committed by her husband, but she appeared convinced of his innocence in the death of Maude King. She said he told her that he, Mrs. King and two other persons had gone to the spring for some target shooting. When he was stooping to drink from the spring, he said, "I heard a shot. I glanced around and saw her stagger. I jumped and ran toward her...She collapsed in my arms."

At the trial, Mrs. King's mother testified for the prosecution but her sister spoke out in his defense and told the jury Means was "the finest gentleman I ever met." Mrs. Means herself took the stand to refute testimony of two expert state witnesses that Mrs. King could not possibly have shot herself in the back of the head so that the bullet would have followed the path it did.

Holding the fatal weapon, she said she "demonstrated to the hushed courtroom how easily it could have been done. It was my tiny contribution in the fight for my husband's life," she wrote.

She related that after Means went to work for the Justice Department, the Means family "fortunes skyrocketed." She explained that after several months he was assigned as an investigator in some Prohibition cases, and soon he was "hand in gloves with the big bootleggers of the era."

She said he was offered "enormous bribes," and "he took them." Estimating that Means collected $50,000 in such bribes that autumn, she said he took the position that liquor was being transported freely and that "neither he nor the entire United States government could stop it." And that though he took the bootleggers' money, "as far as I know he never did a thing for any of them."

She said the family soon moved into a mansion that had formerly served as the Music For The Mall Is John Callahan's Doing

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. — A stroll through a local shopping mall one weekend here reveals a surprisingly uncommercial, old-fashioned scene. Swelling the mall from one end to the other are clusters of fiddlers, banjo pickers, harmonica players and the like — practicing songs like "The Orange Blossom Special," "I Don't Love Nobody" and "I Wonder Where You Are Tonight" with intense concentration and skill.

Shoppers crowd around the jammers; small fry sit perched on grown-up shoulders for a better view. Foot-tapping store clerks lean against the doors of their businesses. In one group a red-headed girl breaks forth with an impromptu buckdance, much to her audience's delight.

The focal point of it all is a make-shift stage at the inside entrance of the largest store in the complex. This is the sixth annual fiddler's convention and bluegrass contest, sponsored by promoters of the Huntsville mall.

The whole event is the work of 85-year-old John Callahan of Birmingham, who, ironically, doesn't even play an instrument. In the last eight years, Callahan has emerged as Alabama's leading advocate of old-time music — that special brand which fiddled its way from Ireland and England into the newly settled hills of Appalachia, and from there throughout the South.

Callahan remembers with pleasure the first time he ever heard old-time music: his Papa was fiddling "Leather Britches" on the front porch of their Tuscaloosa County home. "Papa would sing a verse and then play, or play and then sing. He never would play and sing at the same time." And he likes to recall one of the first contests he ever attended, decades ago at the county courthouse. "An old man with loose-fitting overalls came in late and had his fiddle in a flour sack. He got up there and won first prize."

Callahan's own entry into the musical world is fairly recent. In 1971, as Birmingham was planning its hundredth birthday celebration, he suggested that the city sponsor a fiddling convention. City fathers not only adopted Callahan's idea but appointed him chairman.

"I had never been on the stage, never said anything in public," recounts the retired printer, who worked 42 years with The Birmingham News. "But I took the job."

The Magic City musicals which resulted drew several thousand observers and musicians from 12 states.

"I was too timid to emcee the thing," Callahan says, in an accent once described as a "drawl even to Southerners." "I got somebody else to do it." But a mall producer was in the audience and asked Callahan to produce a similar event down in Selma. "I decided to emcee that one all by myself."

The slight, witty, white-haired printer somehow managed to meet that Selma microphone head-on. And to his surprise, "When I got up there, all my stage fright had left me."

Since then Callahan — whose hobbies once included cock-fighting and television repair — has devoted almost all his energy to the production and promotion of old-time music.

His festivals have bloomed in shopping malls across Alabama, as well as in Georgia, Mississippi and Louisiana. Each time, they attract hundreds, sometimes thousands, of spectators in addition to the musicians who compete for prize money and trophies.

"This kind of music died down for a while and was taken over by rock 'n roll," says one of the competing musicians — Howard Colburn of McCalla, Alabama. A third generation old-time fiddler who also plays mandolin and guitar, Colburn credits Callahan with the music's re-emergence: "Uncle John got these fiddling conventions started and it just popped back up like pop-corn."

Callahan is particularly proud when he enables young musicians to get performing experience. A typical example is seven-year-old Amy Blackwell of Huntsville — a violin student for the past two years who competed in the beginner fiddlers division of her recent hometown contest. "None of our children ever expressed an interest in this kind of music," said Amy's grandmother. "We're hoping Amy's having played before this audience will get her interested in bluegrass so Felix (her musician grandfather) will have a member of the family to play it with."

Callahan's most elaborate extravaganza was at the Bicentennial Celebration in Washington, D.C., during the week of July 4, 1976. Callahan selected the old-time musicians representing the Southeast; then presided over the concerts saluting his region. "It was the afternoon of July 4th," he recalls. "There was one word I said that got the most applause of anything on the mall.

"I said, 'You take Louisiana and mix it with Tennessee and what do you get? Bluegrass!! There were 30,000 people there and it was raining, but when I said 'bluegrass,' I thought they would tear that place up."

One Obligation A Child Most Likely To Fulfill

By GAIL MICHAELS

Believe it or not, in at least one area of home life kids take their responsibility quite seriously. I've never seen one yet who wasn't bound and determined to teach his parents the meaning of humility.

Sometimes they fulfill this obligation inadvertently, as did a young acquaintance who obviously thought his dad was getting too big for his britches. He listened with fascination as Meg told him why I was so fat; then he walked over, poked his father in the stomach, and said, "When are you going to have your baby?"

But most of the time kids are completely aware of what they are doing, and they all have their favorite teaching methods. Meg's is to alternate between demanding omniscience and expecting imbecility.

During rush hour traffic, a special TV news flash on a foreign crisis, or the 3:25 panic before a 3:30 appointment, Phillip and I are suddenly expected to furnish the answers to questions like, "What do Ostriches eat?" Or "What is the name of that king our teacher told us about this year?" If we fail to answer, Meg thinks were deliberately withholding information.

Then just as we've been made to feel like idiots because we don't know Ronald McDonald's street address, she hits us with an easy one like, "Is the President eating dinner with Jennifer tonight?"

"I rather doubt it," I say.

"Yes, he is. Jennifer told me he is."

"But sweetheart, Jennifer has a tendency to exaggerate."

"You mean she lies?"

"Not exactly. It's just that her imagination is so lively that she begins to believe the stories she makes up."

"You mean she lies."

"I didn't say that!"

"Then the President is going to eat with her."

"No."

"Well, she told me he was."

"Look, Meg, who are you going to believe, Jennifer or me?"

"Jennifer."

Such conversations do more than hint at Meg's assessment of my intellect, but just how much use she has for my mental abilities was especially apparent the other night when she told me that she had a secret. "Guess it," she commanded.

"You decided to suprise me by cleaning up your room."

"That's dumb," she snorted. "Guess again."

"Let's see. You just got back from a trip to Never Never Land with Peter Pan."

"No," she giggled, "guess again."

"I give up. Tell me."

"You have to guess."

"But I don't have any idea. I might never get it right."

She pounded on the arm of my chair with her fist. "But you're supposed to guess!"

"You shouldn't get angry, Meg. There's no way for me to know what you're thinking."

Her expression softened, and she shook her head. "Poor Mommy. Your mind's not too good is it?"

Poll Suggests Public Sees Carter More Of A 'Peacekeeper'

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J. — Despite widespread concern that the recent rescue mission in Iran could have led to military involvement on a broader scale, many Americans today feel that President Carter would do a better job than Ronald Reagan of keeping the U.S. out of war.

In a Gallup Poll conducted two days after the abortive Iranian venture, 46 percent of persons interviewed said they believed Carter would be more likely than Reagan to keep the nation at peace, while 31 percent credited Reagan in this respect.

In a test election from the same survey, reported earlier this week, Carter is the choice of 47 percent of registered voters nationwide for the presidency to 43 percent for Reagan.

With the issues of peace and prosperity having dominated most presidential campaigns in recent decades, a candidate's advantage on the "peace" issue is, of course, of prime importance.

In the presidential election of 1964, for example, a key factor in President Lyndon Johnson's landslide victory over Sen. Barry Goldwater was Goldwater's being perceived by the public at the time as "trigger happy" and far less likely than Johnson to keep the U.S. out of war.

But Candidates Close On Dealing With Russia

While Carter holds a definite edge over Reagan on the issue of keeping the country out of war, the president's advantage is somewhat blunted by the fact that he has only a marginal lead over Reagan as the man the public thinks is likely to do a better job of "dealing with Russia." The current survey shows 41 percent saying Carter would do a better job in this respect, compared to 38 percent selecting Reagan.

This question was asked first:

"Regardless of which man you happen to prefer — Jimmy Carter or Ronald Reagan — please tell me which one you, yourself, feel would do a better job of keeping the U.S. out of war?"

Sharp differences of opinion on this key voter issue are found on the basis of formal education. While the nation as a whole leans decidedly toward Carter on this issue, persons with a college background are closely divided in their views, with 41 percent crediting Carter with being better able to keep us out of war, compared to 38 percent who think Reagan would be better able to do so.

The public's views on which man would be better able to deal with the peace issue correspond closely with the vote in the latest test race between Carter and Reagan.

For example, Reagan is closest to Carter on this issue in the West, where Reagan also receives his strongest support in trial heat contests against Carter. Similarly, Carter makes a very strong trial heat showing against Reagan among registered voters under 30 and also has a considerable margin among this age group in terms of keeping the U.S. out of war.

Following are the key results on the "peace" issue:

Feels Mission Should Not Have Been Scrapped

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (UPI) — A Marine pilot who was part of the commando team that made the abortive attempt to rescue American hostages in Iran says he and other pilots felt the mission should not have been scrapped.

The 31-year-old Marine captain piloted one of eight helicopters sent into Iran last month in a mission to resuce 53 American held hostage at the U.S. embassy in Tehran.

Military planners said six functioning helicopters were required.

"We knew that six helicopters were necessary for the mission, and we only had five," said the pilot, who was interviewed Saturday by The News and Observer of Raleigh on the condition that his name not be used. But he said he and several other pilot had been confident the rescue could be carried out with only five.

"It would have been a cakewalk," he said.

None of the pilots pressed the issue with their commander on the ground, he said.

The captain said he was on the desert floor refueling his helicopter, "Dash-4," when another helicopter crashed into a fuel-laden C-130, killing eight men.

"In the confusion of moving around, Dash-3 crashed into the 130. I was very close to the crash," he said. "I was in the helo behind Three.

"It resembled slow motion, like in the movies," he added. "First the wind, then the dust stirred, then a boiling sensation of fuel, fire and pieces of the chopper."

The crash occurred as the five functioning helicopters were refueling to return to the aircraft carrier Nimitz in the Persian Gulf.

The man was one of six pilots and 24 crew members from New River Marine Air Station — plus two pilots and their crews from the West Coast — that manned the eight helicopters sent on the secret mission.

"We had come so close not to have done what we came to do... But the discussion (on whether to continue with the mission) was not long, and the boss told the crew of Dash-2 to get out of the bird and prepare to destruct," the pilot said.

His crew was ordered to abandoned their helicopter and were put aboard one of the remaining C-130s.

"They (the C-130 crew) were throwing off motorcycles, jeeps, everything else, to give us room.... All the 130s (still operational) were flown to an island out of the country," he said.

"My regret is that we did not complete this mission. It would have been easy," he added.

The pilot said he and other pilots on the mission were recruited last Thanksgiving Eve. The originial team included several Navy pilots, but they were withdrawn from the squad after an unsuccessful rehearsal in December.

The lengthy training at the Yuma Proving Grounds in Arizona was an intense psychological strain, he said. Much of the helicopter training was in total darkness very near the ground.

"Our training — the mission — it was all hours and hours of fear only broken by stark, raving terror," he said.

The pilots were allowed to return home for a few brief visits — at Christmas, Easter and a few weekends — but were ordered not to discuss the mission.

"They trusted us They knew we knew what not to say," the pilot said. "They allowed us to come home for our psychological welfare.

Italian Embassy. They had a staff of four servants, a Cadillac limousine, and they entertained lavishly. But after threatening letters and telephone calls began coming from the bootleggers who had received nothing for their money, Means had the mansion converted into a virtual fortress with a high wall in back and all its windows barred.

"Gaston took to using the back gate and alley to go to the Department of Justice where he was still going through the motion being $89.50-a-week agent." Shortly thereafter, she said he made the "fatal mistake" of threatening to tell a Senate investigating committee all he knew about Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty. Means was convicted of prohibition law violations and other offenses and served 38 months in federal prison at Atlanta. His wife had to move out of the mansion and later returned to Concord with her infant son where she got a job teaching.

But after he got out of prison, she said Means soon got a job investigating Democratic National Chairman John J. Raskob for a Republic senator who "wanted to dig up all the dirt he could on the Democrats for the coming presidential campaign." The job paid $100 a day, and "in no time we were living like kings."

Mrs. Means said that after Mrs. Thacker approached Means and begged him to tell her the inside story of the "crookedness of the Harding administration," Means began dictating to her "The Strange Death of President Harding."

"It was a solid mass of lies from first to last," Mrs. Means wrote. It said that Means had obtained the diaries of Nan Britten who had asserted that Harding was fAther of her child. Means claimed he gave the diaries to Mrs. Harding and wound up by implying there was something criminal in Harding's death.

"...I would implore him not to feed her (Mrs. Thacker) such trash," Mrs. Means wrote, but he replied, "Sweetheart, don't be silly! No publisher would be crazy enough to print such stuff. I'm just kidding her along."

Mrs. Means said the family again struck it rich when he went to work finding alleged Communist agents for the National Civic Federation, although he knew no more about Communism than he did about the form of government on Mars." She said Means once took an official of the federation to the Library of Congress, and pointed his finger at "a dark, hulking man, reading a newspaper." Although the federation man was convinced he had seen one of Stalin's agents, the hulking man was a Washington newspaperman. The federation official later told a Senate committee that Means and a companion had taken the organization for $200,000 in their Red hunt.

Mrs. Means said that while the Lindbergh kidnaping was making big news her husband contacted Mrs. McLean who subsequently turned over to him a box containing $100,000 to be used to ransom the infant son of the trans-Atlantic flier.

"I still didn't know whether Gaston actually knew anything about the kidnaping or was just bluffing and trying to worm some publicity out of the Lindbergh case," she wrote "At first he had no idea of stealing the money. I do know that. But the longer that $100,000 lay around the house, the harder it became for him to resist."

Later, after he was convicted of embezzling the money and sentenced again to prison, "he told me he had lent the money to a crowd of New Jersey bootleggers who had promise him a big bonus," Mrs. Means wrote. She concluded that the bootlegger probably kept the money, but she was not certain. She said that while dying Means attempted to tell her something, but she did not understand.

A few hours later, she wrote, "he died in his sleep, his lips sealed forever. She recalled that as a child she once told her mother,"'Mamma, I'd hate to marry a man who just went to the office every day. I want more out of life than that.' I got it."

Pope Visits Africa

By VICTOR L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — Pope John Paul II, warmed by joyous song, cheering crowds and an equatorial sun, set a theme for his African tour Saturday, saying local culture can enrich the church, but warning against polygamy and demanding that priests and nuns remain faithful to their celibacy vows.

Hand-clapping worshippers serenaded the pontiff with hymns in the local Lingala language, and hundreds of thousands lined the streets of this sprawling tropical capital in an overwhelming reception on the first full day of his six-nation journey.

The 59-year-old Polish-born pope, perspiring profusely but otherwise undaunted in the heat, drove through the city in an open-topped black Mercedes limousine to one of Kinshasa's poorest neighborhoods.

There he spent 10 minutes at No. 48 Avenue de la Victoire visiting the Malekanis, a family with nine children, in their three-room house of blue-painted concrete blocks.

Pope John Paul began the day with a Mass for young families in St. Pierre's Church, a yellow-brick building with a rusting corrugated tin roof.

"Esengo lokumu na nzambe" — "Happiness, Glory to God" — the congregation sang joyously in Lingala, cheering, whooping and clapping their hands for the pope.

The Roman Catholic Church in Zaire, the former Belgian Congo, has been in the forefront of African churches in incorporating local culture in its ceremonies, introducing tribal languages, songs and chants to the Mass and emphasizing native traditions.

Polygamy is a tradition that has survived staunch church opposition in many places in Africa.

In a policy speech to Zaire's 56 bishops, the pope addressed another deep-rooted tradition here, the accepted practice of marriage for priests.

This huge nation in the heart of Africa has 12 million Catholics.

things in our hands and we are going to resolve the problem the way we see fit."

He reportedly said one action could be to urge Iranians living in Britain to storm the embassy.

The British Foreign Office announced that the British ambassador to Tehran, Sir John Graham, had been recalled from the Iranian capital to advise authorities dealing with the embassy siege.

It was not known whether Graham was carrying any negotiating proposals that the Iranians, despite their announced stance against dealing with the terrorists, might have made.

Police sources said authorities Friday night cut off the telex and telephone lines from the embassy, leaving a field telephone into the police command post as the only line of communication.

After a 20-minute conversation Saturday morning, a Yard spokesman said the gunmen were "calm and quite rational" and the talks were conducted in "an affable atmosphere."

British authorities apparently have little idea, however, of just who the gunmen are — and how highly motivated they might be. Evidence of this was a police appeal to boarding-house and hotel owners in London for information on any Iranians who have not returned to their residences since the siege began.

Tehran Radio told Iranian listeners the London terrorists were Iraqis.

In rejecting the gunmen's demands — which also include a flight out of Britain for themselves and their hostages — Iranian officials have called on the London hostages to be prepared to accept "martyrdom."

The wife of the highest-ranking hostage, Charge d'Affaires Gholam-Ali Afrouz, told Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini that she would rather see her husband die than have Iran give in to the demands, the Iranian news agency Pars reported.

In a message to Khomeini, she said she did not "feel indifferent to what has happened to our beloved" but "our nation is a nation of blood and martyrdom," Pars said.

Most Arabs Praise Ambush In Hebron

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Newspapers in Lebanon, Syria and Saudi Arabia on Saturday praised Palestinian raiders' ambush of Israeli settlers in the occupied West Bank city of Hebron. Egypt expressed its regret for the attack in which five Israelis were killed and 17 wounded.

Leftist and independent newspapers in Beirut described Friday night's operation as "heroic and daring" and said it heralded an "escalated confrontation between West Bankers and the Israeli army."

In Saudi Arabia, which leads the conservative Arab world, government-influenced newspapers described the ambush as a "new peak in the Arab insurrection against Israeli occupation forces in the West Bank" of the Jordan River. The comments were broadcast by the Saudi state radio in Riyadh.

Syrian newspapers, which are strictly controlled by the government, said the operation underscored growing opposition by West Bank Palestinians to the U.S.-sponsored Camp David accords between Israel and Egypt.

Under the Camp David agreements, Egypt and Israel were to settle the question of Palestinian autonomy by May 26. The talks have long been stalled, but the two sides agreed to intensive negotiations in an effort to break the deadlock.

Egyptian Defense Minister Kamal Hassan Ali, who is in Israel for the autonomy talks, was quoted by Israeli television as saying: "This terrible act fills me with sorrow."

Egyptian Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil, also in Israel for the talks, said the incident "showed once more that Israel's real security lies in just and lasting peace" with its Arab neighbors and proves "military occupation of the West Bank will not guarantee Israel's security."

Palestinian terrorists ambushed Jewish settlers in the West Bank city of Hebron Friday night, killing five and wounding 17.

World Team Volleyball Record Confirmed For Kinston Teams

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Sunday Editor

KINSTON — After a suspenseful wait of many weeks, two young men of Kinston have received confirmation from the London, England headquarters of the Guiness World Record publication that their 75 hours and 30 minutes of continuous volleyball team play in Greenville in early February has established a new world record.

"This should hold for a while," Jeff Sutton, who along with Ricky Tolston captained the two teams, stated. "Whether this record will last until the next publication of the 'Guiness World Record' book remains to be seen.

It was early in January this year that Jeff and Ricky decided to strike out for a second world record in sustained sports play — last year they captured the record in continuous tennis play at the recreation park in Kinston.

"We checked around and found that the Greenville Recreation Center needed an event to raise funds for its Special Olympics program," Ricky said, "so that gave us the incentive, the spur we needed."

The two teams formed by Jeff and Ricky came to Greenville and began play at Elm Street gymnasium at 7:20 p.m. on Thusday, January 31. The rules allowed them to take a five minutes per hour of play for breaks. When they began playing, their goal was to break the old volleyball record of 70 hours and 33 minutes.

"But as fate would have it," Jeff said, "We were told during our marathon that a team the week before in California had set a new world record of 75 hours, which meant we had to exceed that."

For the Greenville effort — as well as the previous tennis play — Jeff and Ricky "volunteered" their ready supply of brothers and friends. On Jeff's team were his 17-year old twin brothers Kyle and Kurt, and friends John DeVechio, Dave Eudy, and ECU student Gary Baker.

Ricky's team involved three of his younger brothers, Gary, Mike, and Mark, and three of his friends, Ed Dupree and Ed Smith.

All the players, Suttons, Tolstons and others, are from Kinston, and at 27 Ricky is the oldest of the dozen physically fit, determined and dedicated youths.

"Believe me, we were all pretty well tired by time the 75 and half hours of play was completed," Jeff commented.

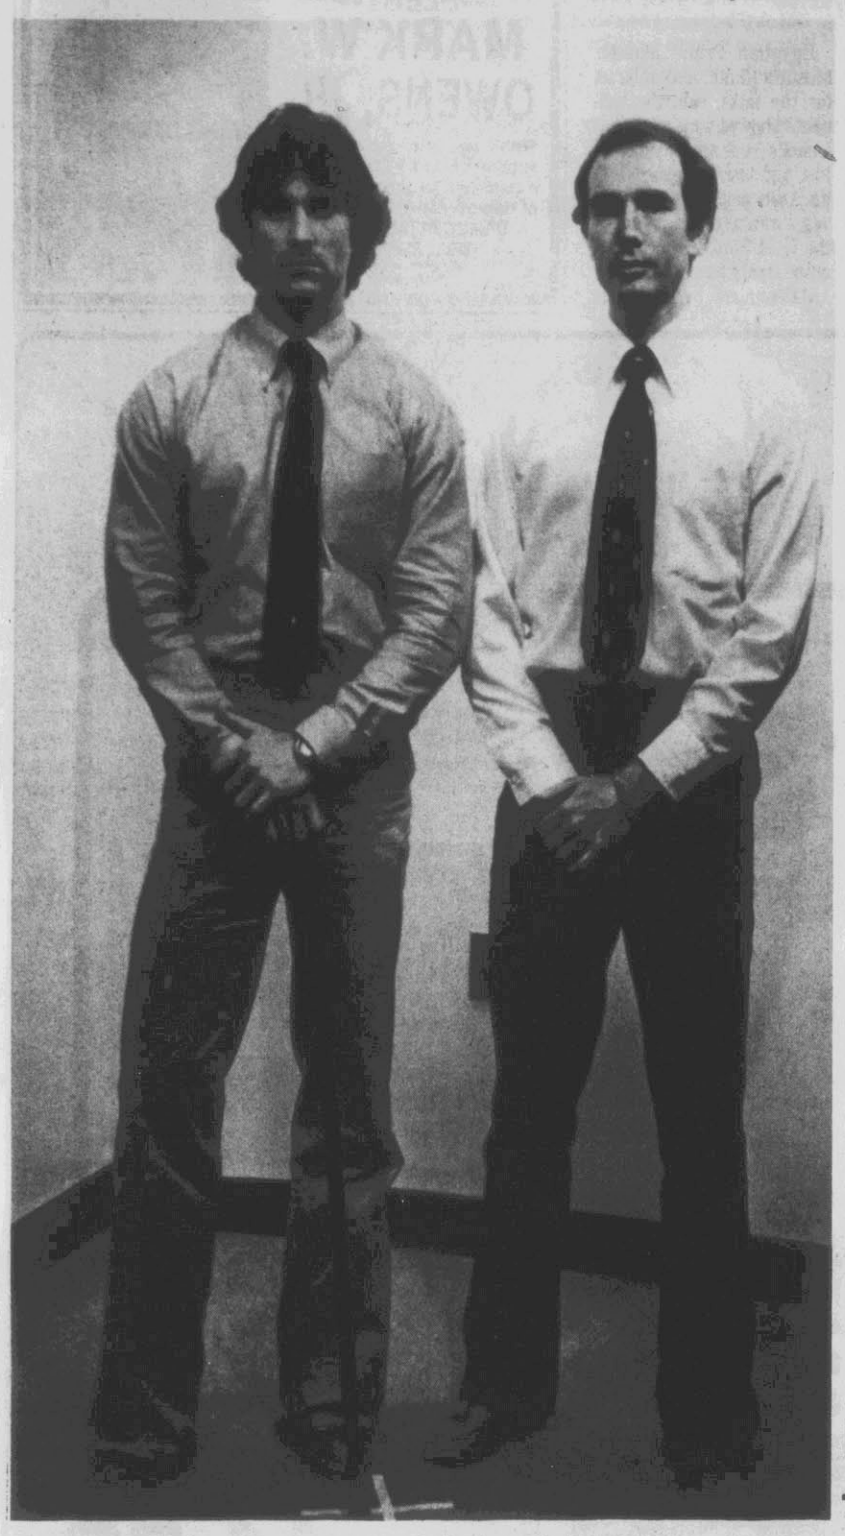

"I think for all of us," Ricky added, "the most difficult part was fighting the desire to sleep."

But they persevered and won. For their efforts, their reward is knowing they have contributed to raising funds to help benefit the Special Olympics program, a program which makes possible opportunities for handicapped young people to take part in sports and recreation.

At the February meeting of the Greenville Recreation and Parks Commission meeting, Jeff and Ricky were presented certificates of appreciation for their outstanding effort in giving time and long weary hours to helping the youngsters in the Special Olympics program.

Ricky Tolston is owner and operator of the Olympia Health Studio in Kinston and is also manager of Dupree's Children Shop. Jeff Sutton attended ECU and is currently employed with Massey Motor Company in Kinston.

Now that these two have to their credit two world records, it's quite likely they will soon be thinking in terms of a third record. With willing young brothers and friends to fill the rosters of their teams, it's conceivable they may end up setting a world record for world records.

NEW WORLD RECORD VERIFIED . . . After several weeks delay, the London office of the Guiness World Record has informed Ricky Tolston (left) and Jeff Sutton that the two and their teams succeeded in establishing a world record of 75 hours and 30 minutes of continuous volleyball play at Elm Street gym in Greenville between 7:20 p.m. January 31 and 10:50 p.m. February 3. Each of the two was joined by five other young team in the event, a benefit one for the Special Olympics program in eastern North Carolina. (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor).

Wall-Hangings Inexpensive

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Wall hangings are inexpensive and quick to make, and often are more visually appealing than traditional prints or posters, says Magdalene Pfister, an extension interior design specialist.

You need only three materials to make a hanging, Ms. Pfister says: fabric, a canvas stretcher frame, an old, flat picture frame or plywood scrap, and a staple gun with tacks.

Frames are available in varying sizes at art supply stores and some fabric outlets. The fabric should extend three to four inches beyond the edges of a frame or one of the substitutes.

First, place fabric right side down on a flat surface. Then center the frame (or substitute) on top. Fold the top edge of the fabric over the frame and staple or tack fabric to it.

Chosen For Eastman School

CRYSTAL HEARNE

A Greenville student, Crystal Louise Hearne, has been selected by the board of admissions at Eastman School of Music of the University of Rochester for graduate studies in musicology.

Kearne is a former honor student at J.H. Rose High School and was awarded a Katherine Smith Reynolds Scholarship for her undergraduate work at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. She will graduate in May magna com laude with a bachelor of music degree. In addition, she is a member of Pi Kappa Lambda, national honorary music society.

Hearne is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Walter Hearne of 107 Greenbriar Drive.

The Eastman School of Music is considered by many authorities to be one of the five most outstanding schools of music in the world.

Goes Bats

HOUSTON (AP) — A downtown Houston bar went bats this week and more than the swizzles stirred.

Hundreds of bats swarmed through vents atop the building and fluttered around the heads of customers. It got so bad Thursday that manager Joe Anthony temporarily closed the place.

Anthony said the bats began arriving Wednesday — a group of about 20. But by Thursday, some 1,000 bats had begun taking over the place.

Anthony called exterminators, and by Friday only about 200 bats remained.

No one was bitten and the bar re-opened for business.

Clean Air Award Given McGraw-Edison Firm

A Clean Air Award of the American Lung Association of North Carolina was presented recently to McGraw-Edison, Power Systems Divisions by the association's Eastern Region. The association is the one sponsored and supported primarily from the Christmas Seal Agency.

Mrs. Connie C. Landen, Regional Director of the Association, presented the award to William Vieten, Plan Manager, and John Steffenson, Process Engineer for the company.

The award was given to McGraw-Edison for its efforts in complying with national and state air emission standards. Industries such as McGraw-Edison, Mrs. Landen pointed out, "deserve recognition for their efforts which usually requires a substantial financial investment on the part of the company."

American Lung Association presents this award annually during the first week of May, which is designated as "Clean Air Week." This attention to clean air is one way of alerting the public to the dangers of air pollution.

Mrs. Landen commended McGraw-Edison for its continued efforts in helping preserve "clean air for coming generations. Theirs is an example of what industries as well as citizens can do to keep the air of North Carolina and America clean. After all," she added, "we all share the same air, and it is our duty to help keep it clean.

Historical Group Is Organizing

Greenville may soon get a long-awaited historical society underway.

A meeting to examine the aspects of a historical and preservation society will be held Thursday at 7:30 p. m. at the Greenville Recreation and Parks Administration Building on Cedar Lane.

Guest speakers will be John W. Meffert, Assistant Director of the Southern Regional Office of the National Trust for Historic Preservation, and Watson Brown, Director of Planning for the Town of Tarboro. Meffert will show how to get a historical society started. Brown, who is now secretary to the Tarboro Historical District Committee and a member of the Board of Directors of Hisotrical Preservation for the State of North Carolina, will tell how Tarboro became a noted historical district.

"It is time we all unite together and work toward the goals of perserving the historic landmarks Grenville has left," Robbie Tugwell, a member of the Historical Planning Committee, said. "We are pleased with the decision made by the City Council to approve the application for a historic preservation survey and planning grant."

This historic planning meetng is free and the public is encouraged to attend, Tugwell said. For more information, one may contact Tugwell, 758-0601, or Linda Hix, 756-2970.

MORGAN SHOWING

NEW YORK (AP) — The Pierpont Morgan Library is showing 130 17th-century Flemish and Dutch drawings through July 31.

The exhibition, "Rubens and Rembrandt in Their Century," has returned to the Morgan after showings in London, Antwerp and Paris.

The show focuses on the two great masters who dominated the 17th century in the southern and northern Netherlands and presents their forerunners and contemporaries as well as their successors.

ARE LT. GOVERNORS IMPORTANT?

THAT DEPENDS ON WHO THE LT. GOVERNOR IS.

Most people think that all a Lt. Governor does is preside over the State Senate and seek headlines to help him run for Governor. That's all some Lt. Governors have done. It doesn't have to be that way.

A good Lt. Governor can make a difference in the education our children receive, the help our senior citizens get and the jobs North Carolina depends upon for continued growth. Carl Stewart's life is proof he will make a difference.

As a mill worker he earned a scholarship to college. At Duke, he was elected President of the student body. As a member of the Legislature, he became the first person in over 100 years to be reelected Speaker of the House. The North Carolina Center for Public Policy Research said Carl Stewart was the Most Effective Legislator in North Carolina.

Sure, it's hard to care about who gets elected Lt. Governor with all the problems the world faces now, but it's not hard to care about the things a Lt. Governor can do.

Mormons Discuss Issues, Beliefs At Meeting

By STEVEN WEINSTEIN
Associated Press Writer

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Mormons from six states gathered Saturday for a two-day meeting to discuss religious issues and beliefs in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Although there was the possibility of a small protest against the church's opposition to the federal Equal Rights Amendment, church officials said they expected a quiet meeting of about 10,000 faithful from Alabama, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee and Texas.

Spencer Kimball, the 85-year-old president of the Utah-based church, was scheduled to attend.

Sonia Johnson, an excommunicated member of the church, threatened last week to have a plane pull a protest banner over the Jackson Coliseum, where the Mormons are meeting. But local chapters of the American Civil Liberties Union and the National Organization for Women said they planned no protests over the church's stand against the ERA, which would ban discrimination based on sex.

fMrs. Johnson contends she was excommunicated because of her support for the ERA, but church officials insist she was not.

Jerry Cahill, a church spokesman, said of Mrs. Johnson: "She was excommunicated because in the course of her support for the Equal Rights Amendment, she advocated diminished support for church leaders, she urged obstruction of church programs and, well, she just leveled charges that were untrue and she knew it."

The church opposes the proposed amendment to the Constitution, but it does not directly support lobbying efforts against the measure as some of the ERA's supporters have suggested, Cahill said.

He said Saturday's meetings would be divided into male and female sessions, while the Sunday session would be open to both sexes.

He said those attending would be praying and discussing religious issues and beliefs.

Two Navy Fliers Die

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — Two Navy fliers were killed early Saturday when their F-14 Tomcat jet fighter crashed in the Arabian Sea after takeoff from the aircraft carrier Nimitz, a Navy spokesman said.

Cmdr. Jim Lois identified the victims as Lt. John Alvin Watson, the pilot, and Ensign John Hatcher Graham, the radar intercept officer, both of Virginia Beach. Their ages were not available.

The crash occurred shortly after the F-14 launched from the aircraft carrier, Lois said.

The men were assigned to Fighter Squadron 84, based at the Oceana Naval Air Station here, which is deployed aboard the Nimitz as part of the Navy's Indian Ocean Task Force, Lois said.

An investigation was under way into the cause of the crash, the Navy said.

The aircraft carrier was sent to the Arabian Sea after militants stormed the U.S. Embassy in Tehran last Nov. 4, taking Americans hostage. Helicopters taking part in the ill-fated attempt to rescue the hostages in Iran flew to the Iranian desert from the Nimitz. Eight servicemen died in the rescue attempt, which was aborted after three helicopters failed.

No Bingo Tuition Permitted

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A state gaming official has ruled the Phillipsburg Roman Catholic school cannot assess an extra tuition fee against parents who do not work at parish bingo games.

William J. Reed, executive officer of the New Jersey Legalized Games of Chance Control Commission, said the state's position was based on interpretation of a law prohibiting payment or rewards for people working at bingo games.

The tuition schedule announced for the school year beginning next fall at Sts. Philip and James Church included a requirement that parish school parents work at bingo games. It called for an extra fee of $200 a family for parents not working at the games.

Reed said last week that the commission interpreted the law to mean a penalty for someone who did not work at the games, in essence, equaled compensation for those who did.

· The U.S. Army suffered a setback in its Indian Wars when Chief Little Turtle's warriors staged a predawn attack on Gen. St. Clair's troops in 1791 near Cincinnati. After fighting for three hours, St. Clair's force of 1,400 fled the field.

A TRUE STORY IN TWO FABLES

If any of the following sounds familiar to you, it is certainly meant to be this way.

Once upon a time, there was a little girl named "Red Riding Hood". One day her mother asked her to take a basket of cookies over to her grandmother's house, who lived alone in a cottage in the forest. A wolf overhead the conversation, and he decided to take a shortcut to grandmother's house and get the goodies for himself. The wolf got there first-killed and ate the grandmother-then dressed in her nightgown and nightcap and jumped into bed under the covers just before Red Riding Hood arrived. When Red Riding Hood got close enough to see that her "grandmother" was a wolf and the wolf tried to grab her, she ran screaming from the house.

A woodcutter heard her cries-rushed to the rescue-killed the wolf with his axe, thereby saving Red Riding Hood's life. The townspeople rushed to the scene and proclaimed the woodcutter a hero for defending Red Riding Hood in her moment of great need.

But, at the inquest, several facts came out...first, the wolf had not been advised of his rights. Second, the woodcutter had made no warning swing before striking the blow that killed the wolf. Third, one group of local defenders stressed the point that although the act of eating grandma may have been in bad taste, the wolf was probably hungry and was only "doing his thing". Lastly, another group trying to help in behalf of the dead wolf, contended that the killing of grandma should be considered self-defense since she was over 40 and, therefore, couldn't be taken seriously. At the same time, this group believed that the wolf might very well have been trying to make love, not war.

On the basis of all these considerations, the woodcutter was indicted for aggravated assault with a deadly weapon. Several nights later, the woodcutter's cottage was burned to the ground. Then, one year from the date of the "incident at grandma's", her cottage was made a shrine for the wolf who had bled and died there. All the village officials spoke at the dedication, but it was Little Red Riding Hood who gave the most touching tribute. She said that while she had been selfishly grateful for the woodcutter's intervention, she realized that he had over-reacted. As she knelt and placed a wreath in honor of the brave wolf, there wasn't a dry eye in the whole forest!

Once upon a time there was a Little Red Hen who scratched about and uncovered some grains of wheat. She called her barnyard neighbors and said, "If we work together and plant this wheat, we will have some fine bread to eat. Who will help me plant the wheat?"

"Not I," said the Cow. "Not I," said the Duck. "Not I," said the Goose.

"Then I will," said the Little Red Hen-and she did.

After the wheat started growing, the ground turned dry and there was no rain in sight. "Who will help me water the wheat?" said the Little Red Hen.

"Not I," said the Cow. "Not I," said the Duck, "Not I," said the Pig. "Equal rights", said the Goose.

"Then I will," said the Little Red hen-and she did.

The wheat grew tall and ripened into golden grain. "Who will help me reap the wheat?" asked the Little Red Hen.

"Not I," said the Cow. "Not I," said the Duck. "Out of my classification," said the Pig. "I'd lose my ADC," said the Goose.

"Then I will," said the Little Red Hen-and she did.

When it came time to grind the flour, "Not I,"said the Cow. "I'd lose my unemployment compensation," said the Duck.

When it came time to bake the bread, "That's overtime for me," said the Cow. "I'm a dropout and never learned how," said the Duck. "I'd lose my welfare benefits," said the Pig. "If I'm the only one helping that's discrimination," said the Goose.

"Then I will," said the Little Red Hen-and she did.

She baked five loaves of fine bread and held them up for her neighbors to see.

"I want some," said the Cow. "I want some," said the Duck. "I want some," said the Pig. "I demand my share," said the Goose.

"No," said the Little Red Hen. "My chicks and I will eat the bread and I can rest a while."

"Excess profits," cried the Cow. "Capitalistic leech!" screamed the Duck. "Company fink," screamed the Goose. "Equal rights," grunted the Pig.

And they hurriedly painted picket signs and marched around the Little Red Hen.

For when the Farmer came to investigate the commotion, he said, "You must not be greedy, Little Red Hen. Look at the oppressed Cow. Look at the disadvantaged Duck. Look at the underprivileged Pig. Look at the less fortunate Goose. You are guilty of making second-class citizens out of them!"

"But-but-but I earned the bread," said the Little Red Hen.

"Exactly," the wise Farmer said. "That is the wonderful free enterprise system; anybody can earn as much as he wants. You should be happy to have this freedom. In other barnyards, you would have to give all five loaves to the Community. Here you give four loaves to your suffering neighbors."

And they all lived happily ever after. Including the Little Red Hen, who smiled and smiled and clucked "I am grateful. I am grateful."

But her neighbors wondered why she never baked any more bread.

Shocking? Disgusting? What a half-century of Liberalism has brought us! Liberalism in our news, in our government, in our daily lives. Are these just fables? But fables, like parables, carry meanings full of importance and truth-if we will but heed. The Pitt-Beaufort Conservative Union Political Action Committee believes you are interested in these truths. Will you vote in favor of these truths?

Showing Shell Collection At Joyner

By JOHN PACA
ECU News Bureau

The back of one looks like a mountain range in the Himalayas, one sharp peak after another. The back of another is covered with tiny circles that look like air bubbles floating to the surface in an aquarium.

These are not designs on exotic rugs or prints in an art museum, but patterns on the backs of shells in a collection on display in the J.Y. Joyner Library at East Carolina University.

The shells are part of the large collection of Mrs. Renate Wittig Skinner, who has been collecting for 20 years. She was born in Germany and worked for a hotel chain which transferred her to Indonesia —a shell collector's heaven.

While she was in Bangkok, she met and married Ed Skinner, who was there as a representative of Carolina Leaf, which is headquartered in Greenville.

Dr. Wilson Luquire, Associate Director of Library Services at Joyner Library, and a neighbor of Mrs. Skinner, recently invited her to display some of her shells in Joyner. Along with a number of books on shells, Mrs. Skinner is displaying her shells of members of the Mollusk Phyllum, which includes such species as snails and whelks. The display will be up until May 12.

One of the shells displayed at Joyner is from a peculiar land snail which lives on the island of Bali. The snail will climb a tree as high as 18-30 feet in order to lay its eggs in a pipe-like bag the animal forms from soft leaves found in the top of the tree. Relatively little else is known about its peculiar habits.

A very delicate shell has projections that make it look like a chunk of coral, a disguise which probably helps save the animal from its predators around the coral reefs of Australia.

One feature of the Skinner collection is the remarkable condition of the shells. One shell, for example, with fine needle-like projections coming out of its back, is perfectly preserved.

Mrs. Skinner said great care has to be taken not to damage a shell in removing it from its habitat. "In their natural habitat," she said, "most shells are well-preserved. It is in extracting them that they are often damaged."

She said that she has found many shells at a depth of about 13 feet. When they are found, the shells have to be cleaned and catalogued. Mrs. Skinner corresponds extensively with other conchologists (students of shells) and malacologists (students of the living shell) to help with the identification and classification of the shells.

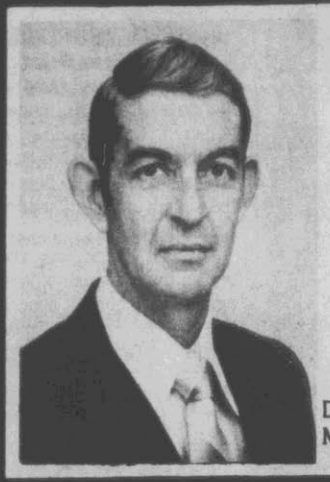

Shell hunters sometime discover species that have not been catalogued and in such cases, the shell's discoverer has the privilege to name the shell.

Mrs. Skinner is proud of a Conus species which she discovered and, after a number of years of study by authorities, was named Conus Wittigi, Walls 1978. It was named Wittigi in honor of her father, whom she credits with instilling in her a love for and interest in nature. The "Walls" part of the shell's name is for the professional malacologist, Jerry Walls, who studied and described the shell and placed a specimen in a recogized museum for study and inspection as prescribed by the International Commission on Zoological Nomenclature.

Mrs. Skinner has three other shells which are currently being studied by malacology authorities. All three were found in Indonesia.

Gardens

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI) — "Rising energy costs could make the 1980s the decade of the Independence Garden," says Jack Robinson, president of a New England-based gardening association.

Speaking at the annual meeting of the Maine Organic Farmers and Gardeners Association, Robinson compared the Independence Garden concept with the Liberty and Victory Gardens that thrived during the two world wars.

He predicted more than half the households in the United States will have food gardens during the '80s if present economic conditions continue.

A Look At Unemployment Internationally

WASHINGTON (AP) — While unemployment in this country jumped to 7 percent last month, its biggest industrial rivals have been holding their rate low and steady, according to U.S.Department of Labor figures made available Saturday.

In Japan, the rate dropped in January to 1.9 percent, the lowest since 1975. The number of jobless West Germans fell to 2.8 percent last winter and has held steady at that rate through March. This is lower than it has been since 1974.

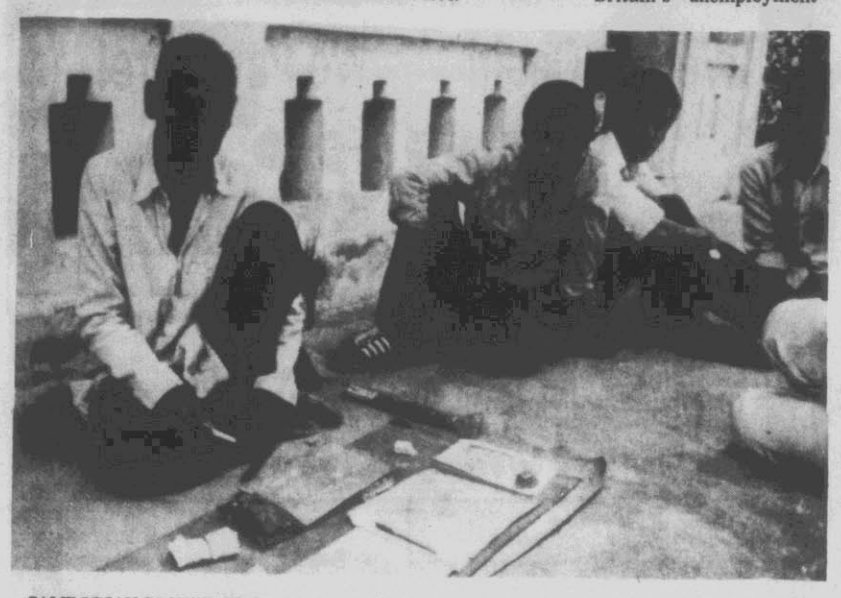

Of the countries surveyed by the Labor Deartment, only Canada's rate clearly exceeds that of the United States — 7.4 percent in March. Canada's rate has been rising slowly since last summer.

Britain's unemployment also began rising again about that time and reached 6.1 percent in February, when the U.S. figure was at 6 percent. The French rate has been rising steadily since 1974 and hit 6.3 percent in February.

Sweden has kept unemployment below 3 percent since at least 1972, which is as far back as the Labor Department gives its comparative figures. Its rate stood at 1.8 percent in February.

Italy had a rate of 4 percent in January, but many Italians report that they have not actively been looking for work over the past month. If such people were included, says the Labor Department, the rate would more than double.

Different countries calculate their unmployment in different ways, and at different times. The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics adjusts figures from France, Germany, Italy and Britain to make them comparable with the U.S. method. It says published figures for Canada, Japan and Sweden need little or no adustment.

Stability In Arabia

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some American reporters have distorted and exaggerated the danger of instability and revolution in Saudi Arabia, a ranking Saudi official said Saturday.

Dr. Ghazi Algosaibi, speaking to the National Association of Arab-Americans, ridiculed stories suggesting that Saudi Arabia is vulnerable to the same sort of Islamic revolutionary turmoil that swept Iran.

"The domino theory, which was proven correct nowhere, will not be vindicated in the (Persian) Gulf. We are not a set of dominoes, and Saudi Arabia is not Iran," said Algosaibi, Saudi Arabia's minister of industry and electricity.

He said the fate of the Saudi regime depends on the feelings of the Saudi people.

"It does not depend," he said, "on the predictions of journalists acquiring omniscience through five-minute chats and one-day visits or the pronouncements of third-rate bureaucrats reading fourth-rate intelligence reports from fifth-rate spies."

Algosaibi did not specify the reports he objected to. Some of the reports he apparently referred to were written in the aftermath of the seizure of the Grand Mosque in Mecca last December, an event he said was misinterpreted by Western reporters.

He said that contrary to reports that the terrorists were part of an organized political group, they were motivated simply by religous fanaticism.

"Fanaticism could drive apparently rational human beings to tragic extremes. The Jones massacre (which killed 900 people in Guyana in 1978) is an eloquent, if bloody, case in point. Yet fanaticism pure and simple was not accepted as an explanation."

He suggested that bias played a part in the U.S. accounts.

I am writing this letter to urge the support of Jim Martin in his candidacy for the Judgeship of Carteret, Craven, Pamlico, and Pitt Counties.

Jim is from Bethel, and I have known him since he played football for Coach Stas and Coach Boone at East Carolina University where he graduated in 1965. Jim was a solid citizen, a fine football player, and a good student. He has continued to work hard and to participate completely in community life.

My main reasons for asking support for Jim Martin are simple and direct. Jim is a graduate of East Carolina University, he is a native of Pitt County, he is well qualified, and he is a capable, caring, and compassionate man. As a Judge, he will understand the problems of everyone, including the burdens often placed on witnesses and victims who must wait through long delays while judicial matters are being decided.

I place great confidence in Jim Martin, and I hope that he will receive an overwhelming endorsement in this election.

Charlie Harrison To Auction Collection Of Wines

"CANDLING" A BOTTLE OF WINE . . . Charlie Harrison of Greenville inspects a bottle of wine by the "candling" process at Reynolda House in Winston-Salem. A benefit auction of the rare wines will be held Friday evening, May 9. So far as is known, this is the first auction of wines to be held in North Carolina. Harrison, a member of the prestigious Circle de Veuve, a French wine guild, inspected the collection formed by Mary Reynolds Babcock and her husband, Charles H. Babcock.

WINSTON-SALEM — A collection of rare wines which have been kept in a cellar vault at Reynolda House in Winston-Salem since 1936 will be sold at auction Friday night, May 9.

Charlie Harrison of Greenville, a wine consultant with 30 years experience in the field, says it will be the first public auction of wines to be held in North Carolina in recent memory. A preview of the wines will begin at 6:30 p.m.

Harrison has selected 130 vintage bottles to be auctioned from about 600 bottles in the cellar. The remaining bottles of wine that are in doubtful condition will be sold to label and bottle collectors among those attending the auction.

Proceeds from the auction will be used to support Reynolda House Museum of American Art, which originally was the home of R. J. Reynolds, founder of the Reynolds Tobacco Company.

The wines were purchased by Reynolds' daughter, Mary Reynolds Babcock, and her husband, Charles H. Babcock, after they acquired the home and renovated it extensively in 1935-36.

Charlie Harrison, an Englishman who is proprietor of the Wine and Cheese House in Greenville, is a graduate of the Wine Academy of Bordeaux and a member of the prestigious Circle de Veuve, a French wine guild. He called the Reynolda House wines "a beautiful collection of some really fine wines. It's the most exciting collection I've seen in quite a few years. Any time a wine taster who's been in the business for 30 years finds wines older than he is — that's exciting."

He likened the wines to a "miniature version of the Barolet collection in New Orleans." That collection, accumulated by Dr. Barolet, was valued at more than $2 million when it was discovered after Dr. Barolet's death some years ago. "It just sat there until someone decided to do something with it," Harrison said, "which is somewhat akin to the situation at Reynolda House."

Harrison, who was called in six weeks ago to appraise the wines, said he found "very few bottles that had been incorrectly handled" down through the years. "By and large, the collection had been well treated."

But age has taken its toll, he added. "The saying that older is better is not necessarily so when it comes to wines." Red wines age better than do white wines," he explained, but he was surprised to find some white wines in the Reynolda collection that have lived four to six times their normal life expectancy.

To help determine the condition of the wines, Harrison uses a process called "candling." Holding each bottle carefully over a candle flame in the darkened vault, he moves it slowly. "Sediment is not necessarily bad," he said. "It may simply mean that the wine has discarded excess sugar." What he particularly looks for is any distortion or lack of clarity. If he finds any, he puts the bottle in a doubtful rack to be rechecked later.

Values at the Friday auction will start as low as $20 for what Harrison called a bottle of "immediate post-prohibition muscatel" to $500 for such vintages as a 1928 Chateau Margaux. Other vintages he rated highly during his examination include three bottles of Chateau Haut Brion (1943), and one each of Eschenauer Chateau d'Yguem (1934) and Chateau Lafite Rothschild (1929). The wines in the cellar date from 1917 to 1943.

Harrison believes this will be the first wine auction in the state, at least since the present Alcoholic Beverage Control system was established. It was necessary to obtain a permit from the ABC board to hold the auction. He said the board has no record of any other such permit having been granted.

A large attendance is expected. "There's no way of predicting the reaction of the crowd," Harrison said. He does expect some serious bidding, as interest in wines has grown in North Carolina in the past few years. The opening bid on each bottle has been set at about half of what its retail price would be today, "if it were available," Harrison added.

Admission to the auction, a benefit affair for the Reynolda House Museum of Art, is $50 per couple (tax-deductible). Musical entertainment will begin at 6:30 p.m. The auction will begin at 8 p.m. Information on tickets to the auction is available by calling Winston-Salem 725-5325.

Farmville Girl Wins N.C. Poetry Award

HIGH- POINT — Lea Hinson, a student at Farmville Central High School, has had three of her poems chosen for inclusion in the anthology "Young Poets of the Old North State, Volume II."

Her trio of poems are among the 26 poems chosen from over a thousand submissions from young high school poets across North Carolina in the competition for the second editions of this prestigious publication. The poems by Ms. Hinson are entitled "Journeys: Morning;" "Journeys: Evening;" and "Minstrel Song."

As a prize-winner included in the anthology, Lea attended the Spring Poetry Festival held at the High Point Theater and Exhibition Center in downtown High Point on Thursday.

In addition to recognition of the young Tar Heel poets included in the collection, the festival featured workshops, discussions, and readings. A number of prominent area poets — Ann Deagon, Chuck Sullivan, Linda Brown Bragg.

Presentation of awards was the culminating event of the day.

The anthology, an annual event in its second year, is under the aegis of the High Point Arts Council, Inc., is made possible through grants from the Mobil Foundation and the N. C. Grassroots Arts Program.

Pamlico County Race Is Scheduled May 17

BAYBORO — The Pamlico County Chamber of Commerce, together with the Pamlico County Parks and Recreation Department, Athlete's Corner, and the Carolina East Road Run Dub, is sponsoring the "Pamlico County Road Race" to be held on Saturday, May 17.

The event begins at 9:30 a.m. Events in the run are:

— The 10 Kilomater (6.2 mile run) — 10:30 a.m.

— The one mile run — Trophy to top male and female 18 and over, 10 a.m.

— (trophies will also be given in age groups 11-17 and 6-10).

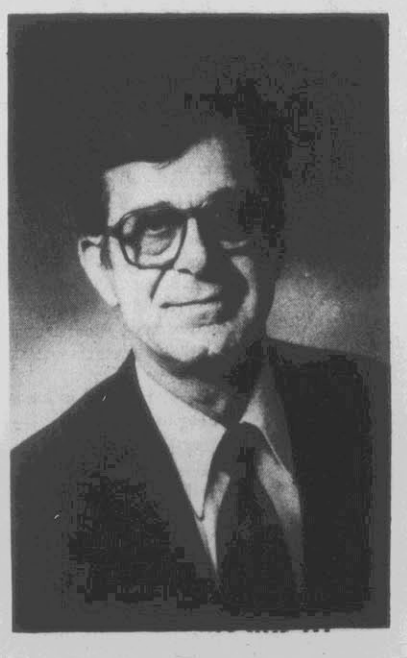

— The one-fith mile run for children — 10 a.m. — with a trophy to the top boy and top girl in this group.

Age divisions for entrants in the 10 kilometer race are: 19 and under; 20-29; 30-39; 40-49; and 50-59.

The run will be made on a good course along the Neuse River — from Dawson's Creek to Oriental.

Entry fee is $5 per person in advance, and $6 on the day of the race. T-shirts will be provided to all entrants.

For more information on entries and other information, contact New Bern 633-4730 or Pamlico County Recreation Dept., 745-4240.

Stands By Its Story Of A Princess' Death

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite threats by Arab-American groups to sue, the Public Broadcasting Service stands by a film about the execution of a Saudi Arabian princess and intends to broadcast it May 12, a PBS official said Saturday.

The film, "Death of a Princess," has caused an uproar among the Saudis, who recently expelled the British ambassador and delayed plans to replace their own ambassador in Britain because the program was shown there.

"We've gotten some mail inquiries about it," said PBS spokesman Michael Rierson.

"Several attorneys representing Arab-American groups have promised to sue PBS to prevent the airing, but we haven't been served any papers."

Barry Chase, director of current affairs programming for PBS, said in a statement, "While we fully understand the gravity of the concerns regarding the broadcast of this film, we stand by the program.

"It is precisely because of the Islamic world's central importance in today's international arena that Americans must become better informed about the political, religious and cultural issues in that region."

The 2-hour "drama documentary" is based on the life of Princess Misha'al, who was executed by a firing squad in 1977 for having sexual relations with a commoner, a Saudi student, who was publicly beheaded. She was the granddaughter of Prince Mohammed, elder brother of Saudi King Khalid.

The program, part of the "World" series, was produced by WGBH-TV in Boston in conjunction with Britain's ATV Ltd., an independent television network.

Several public stations have decided not to carry the program, the New York Times said Saturday. The South Carolina Educational Television Network, which includes five stations, KUHT-TV in Houston and KLCS-TV in Los Angeles have canceled the film, the newspaper said.

Rierson said PBS has received no inquiries about the program from the State Department, the Saudi government or any other government.

WGBH President David Ives earlier vouched for the accuracy of the program's description of Saudi culture.

"Every salient fact has been checked and double-checked," he said. "In all the controversy surrounding the film ...there has been no rebuttal to those facts and none is likely."

Falls In Mt. Everest Climb

TOKYO (AP) — A Japanese mountaineer disappeared on Mount Everest's treacherous North Wall when an avalanche snapped his climbing rope as he and a partner neared the summit of the world's highest peak, it was reported Saturday.

The Japan Alpine Society identified the lost climber as Akira Ube, 31. The society is sponsoring the 31-member Japanese expedition with the newspaper Yomiuri.

Ube and Toshiaki Kobayashi, 31, were in the first assault group trying to reach the mountain's 29,028-foot summit.

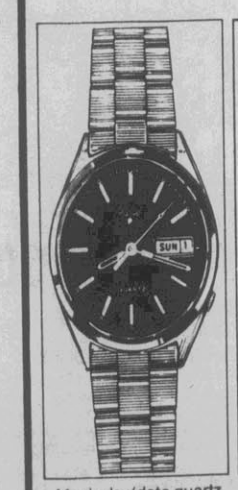

The society said that according to a radio report received by the expedition base camp at Everest, on the Nepalese-Chinese border, the pair was climbing the North Wall toward Camp No. 5, at 27,002 feet, from Camp No. 4, at 25,264 feet.

An avalanche swept the area and snapped Ube's rope, and he disappeared, the society reported.

Chamber Choir Concert On May 11

Rob Roy McGregor, a noted young trumpet player with the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra, is to be guest performer with the Greenville Chamber Choir in a performance of two Bach cantatas to be given Sunday, May 11, at 8 p.m. in Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church.

The concert is being directed by Brett Watson and will feature soloists, the choir and a Baroque orchestra. The two cantatas on the program, both composed by Johann Sebastian Bach as Whitsunday works, are "Ershallet ihr Lieder" (Sound Your Songs) and "O ewiges Feuer, o Ursprung der Liebe" (Everlasting Fire, O Fountain of Love).

The Greenville Chamber Choir, founded by Brett Watson of the East Carolina University School of Music faculty two years ago, is composed of 20 solo singers. Thirteen of the members hold a total of 23 degrees in music — and several have toured with professional choirs and opera companies.

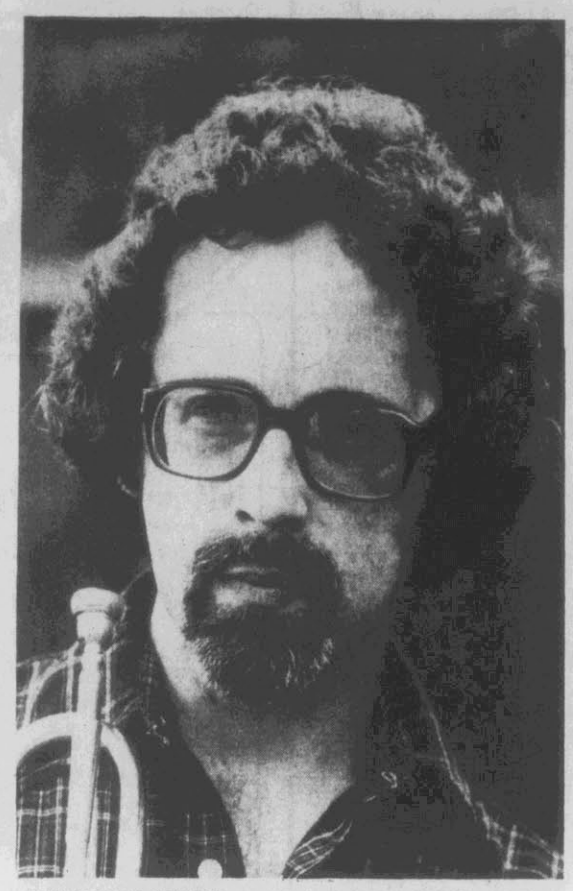

Nonetheless, professions of the members range from real estate salesmen and personnel supervisors to social workers and physicians.

Choir members to be singing arias with the orcnestra will be Jacqueline Carnes, Patricia Hiss, and Alan Jones. Susie Pair and Terry Leggett will be featured in a duet accompanied by oboe and cello. Recitatives will be sung by Ed Glenn, Don Weir, and Jerry Cribbs.

The orchestra, with Rodney Schmidt as concertmaster, will include strings, oboes, flutes, bassoon, timpani, harpsichord, and two trumpet players in addition to McGregor.

McGregor, in his early 30's, has performed extensively with various chamber groups and orchestras, and has won high critical acclaim for his performances. Just recently, he has been invited by renowned conductor Helmuth Rilling to come to Stuttgart, Germany to record trumpet sections in Bach compositions. Rilling is currently recording all of Bach's choral works and singled out McRoy as the trumpeter he wanted for solo passages in the major undertaking.

An admission fee of $2 is charged for the concert, with tickets to be available at the door prior to the 8 p.m. concert hour.

ROB ROY McGREGOR . . . noted young trumpet player with the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra, will be guest soloist in a concert of two Bach cantatas to be presented at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church at 8 p.m. Sunday, May 11. Brett Watson will conduct the Greenville Chamber Choir, and Rodney Schmidt will conduct the Baroque orchestra. Admission is $2 and tickets can be purhased at the door prior to the beginning of the concert.

Kathi Diamant Joins The 'Carolina Today' Program

"Carolina Today" adds a bright new look with the addition of a young lady as co-hostess of the early risers morning show.

Kathi Diamant joins Slim Short and Henry Hinton on Monday, May 5 on the WNCT-TV show which has for years brought local guests (as well as out of town guests) to the airwaves at the daily awakening hours.

Born in New York City, Kathi spent most of her early years living in Europe (her parents still live in Germany). She was educated at the University of Georgia and at Florida State University, Tallahassee, where she received the B. A. degree in Theater Arts in 1974.

For two years, Kathi worked as a Recreation Center Director for the U.S. Army in Korea. Early this year, she was married to Michael Gall of the East Carolina University Department of Drama faculty.

In addition to the new show member, "Carolina Today" is also adding some new features. These are:

— Fishing Report, live from Atlantic Beach, featuring Jones Cooke, every Tuesday and Thursday at 6:35 a.m.

— People Poll, with comments from eastern North Carolina citizens about their feelings on a wide range of current events and controversial topics.

— The Plant Doctor will now be a full-length spot with Eddie Harrington the spokesman each Friday at 7:15 a.m.

— Woman's Say will take a look at the special problems of women in all walks of life in the rapidly changing attitudes of today; and — Around Town, to be aired at 7:30 a.m. each Monday, Tuesday and Friday, will offer an opportunity for spokesmen for different eastern North Carolina communities to comment on special activities and events being planned.

Area festivals, an electric bond issue, and a Farmville art show are among topics to be discussed by guests this week on "Carolina Today," the early morning panel show from 6 to 8 a.m. over WNCT-TV, Channel 9, Greenville.

The week's schedule is:

— Monday, May 5 — 6:40 a.m., Rick Coiner, president, Washington Chamber of Commerce, who will speak on the electric bond issue in Washington; 7:15 a.m., the Greenville Barbershop in a taped appearance; 7:35 a.m., Igal Roadenko, speaker on the topic "Registration and The Draft."

— Tuesday, May 6 — 6:40 a.m., Harold Stroud, for the Liberty Festival in Pink Hill; 7:15 a.m.., Healthbreak with Dr. Jack Wilkerson; 7:35 a.m., Graham (Chico) Clark on custom kitchens; 7:30 a.m., Jim Raynor, Administrative Director, Edgecombe General Hospital, Tarboro.

— Wednesday, May 7 — 6:40 a.m., Jim Brown and Tom Broughton, Rocky Mount Chamber of Commerce; 7:15 a.m., Education spotlight, with Dr. Wendall Hall; 7:30 a.m., a Social Security representative; 7:35 a.m. Doug Mitchell, Director, Ayden Grifton Theater production of "My Fair Lady," a taped interview.

— Thursday, May 8 — 6:40 a.m., Linda Champion, N. C. State Fair Horse Show manager; 7:15 a.m., a representative from the Home Extension Agent; 7:30 a.m., a representative of the Employment Security Commission; 7:35 a.m., Patsy Duke and Randy Walters, on the Farmville Arts and Crafts Country Festival.

— Friday, May 9 — 6:40 a.m. (guest to be announced later); 7:15 a.m., Deborah Myatt, Home Extension Agent from Kinston; 7:35 a.m., Ed Paul on "Stunt Night"at Washington High School; 7:35 a.m., Barbara Salsbury, on Education Week.

In addition, the morning mediation will be shown at 6:20 a.m. daily, and will be of one to two minutes duration. These are taped in advance. The farm guest will appear immediately following morning meditation. The "Around Town" section will be scheduled at 7:30 a.m., and this week it will be seen only on Friday.

China Exhibit Set

By PEGGY HOWE
N.C. Dept. Cultural Resources

RALEIGH — The story of North Carolina merchants, missionaries and military presence in China will be the theme of the new exhibit opening tomorrow, Monday, May 5 at the North Carolina Museum of History.

"North Carolina's China Connection, 1840-1949" to be shown for a week-long engagement, will explore North Carolina's important ties to China during the last half of the 19th and the first half of the 20th century.

Sponsored by the N. C. China Council, the exhibit will use photographs, artifacts and a slide show with materials collected from the North Carolinians active in China during the 100 years prior to 1949, to document one of the little-known chapters o North Carolina heritage.

The photographs and artifacts, which have come from hundreds of North Carolina trunks, attics and libraries, portray a "dense network of human connections" reaching from North Carolina across the Pacific to China," according to Charle LaMonica, curator for the project.

Monday's highlights will include lectures and a Chinese festival with demonstrations of Chinese arts and crafts including tai chi (Chinese shadow boxing), Chinese brush paintings and Chinese folk dance. Dr. Erwin Hyatt of Atlanta's Emory University will lecture on "Missionaries in China" at 1 p.m., and at 2:15 p.m. p.m. Dr. Sherman Cochran of Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., will discuss "The Tobacconist in China."

The exhibit will be on view at the Museum of History through May 10, and will then travel to ten other North Carolina cities during 1980.

The project is funded by the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation, the N. C. Humanities Committee, the China Council of the Asia Society, Inc., and P. Lorillard & Co.

Museum hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays, and 1 to 6 p.m. on Sundays. The museum is located at 109 E. Jones Street in Raleigh and admission is free.

Edenton Event Scheduled

EDENTON — From 4 to 7 p.m. Saturday, May k10, a fund-raising tea dance will be held at the 18th century Mulberry House just outside Edenton.

The dance is to raise funds for the Cupola House Association. Music will be provided by the Pittman Band of Ahoskie. Tickets are $50 per couple, and refreshments will be included in the ticket price.

Persons interested in more information are to contact Rosa Davenport at the Cupola House, P. O. Box 474, Edenton, N. C. 27932.

Ayden Theater Workshop Presenting 'My Fair Lady' This Week

IN REHEARSAL . . . Doug Mitchell, director and choreographer of the Ayden Theater Workshop production of "My Fair Lady," is shown demonstrating a dance step to cast members. The musical opens at Ayden-Grifton High School Thursday, May 8 and productions will also be given on May 10 and 11. Tickets are priced at $1, available at the door.

The Ayden Theater Workshop will present Lerner and Loewe's well known musical, "My Fair Lady" for three performances in the Ayden-Grifton High School Auditorium.

The opening performance will be at 8 p.m. Thursday, May 8. Succeeding performances will be at 8 p.m. Saturday, May 10 and at 3 p.m. on Sunday, May 11. Tickets are priced at $1 and will be avaialble at the door.

Robert Pollock is cast in the role of Professor Henry Higgins, the uppercrust British bachelor who advocates crisp, clear English pronunciation. This is Pollock's first performance with the workshop.

Heidi Anderson Lane, who was seen in last year's workshop production of "1984" is the Cockney girl Eliza Doolittle, who succeeds in driving Higgins to the brink of insanity with her slurred accent — but who eventually becomes fluent in proper English and also wins her teacher's heart.

Others in the cast include Marcus Carraway as Colonel Pickering; Larry Curtain as Alfred P. Doolittle; Anita Brehm in the role of Mrs. Pearce; Al Boswell as Freddy Eynsford-Hill; Winkie Phillips as Mrs. Higgins; Judy McLawhorn as Mrs. Eynsford-Hill; Chris Phillips, John Lyerly, Colin Baldree, Stacy House, and Billy Stallings as Cockneys; Kim Dale, Kathryn Dixon, Barbara Plummer, Sam King, and Myriam Harris as Higgins' servant; Don Watson as Zoltan Karparthy; Gloria Hooker as Mrs. Hopkins — and as members of the dancing and singing ensembles — Jennifer Owens, Margaret Joyner, Pat McDermott, Shelly Harker, Sibbey Anderson, Sarah Baldree, Becky Whichard, Kevin Adkins, Elva Smith, John McDougle, David Webb, Katherine Burke, Tina Drye, Laura Lee and Marcha Edwards.

The 16-piece orchestra is directed by Ron Payne. Director and choreographer is Doug Mitchell, and Katherine Burke is musical director. Debbie Adkins is stage manager, and Karen Oehrli is lighting technician.

"My Fair Lady" is remembered for its familiar songs — "The Rain in Spain;" "I Could Have Danced All Night;" "On The Street Where You Live" and many others.

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By Louise Wilkerson Perry

Before you plan that weekend tour or longer summer vacation, make sure you come in and browse through Sheppard Library's many new books on travel. They can easily save you time, money, and gas by describing where to go, what to do, and the cheapest and best ways of doing it. The following are just a few of many travel guides available to readers.

"Americas's Wonderful Little Hotels and Inns" lists over 300 places with very special charm. Roaring fires, antique furniture, historic buildings, and food beyond compare are a few of the ingredients each of these hotels have in common. The hotels are not graded but are described from personal experiences by many travelers, including Lady Bird Johnson and John D. MacDonald.

"A Romantic's Guide to the Country Inns of Britian and Ireland" is the same type of book, in that it reviews only the best of the country inns and restaurants of the British Isles. Author Stuart Woods has written a guidebook about one of the world's loveliest places to travel in. He writes from personal experience, and directions along with often amusing critique of food, beds, service and the like.

For those fortunate enough to own a boat, travel in the South need not be by superhighway. "Go South Inside" by Carl Lane, is a travel guide to the Inland Waterway, that "great ditch" which stretches 2,000 miles from Trenton, N. J. to the Mexican border. The author includes such invaluable information as anchorages along the waterway, navigation, the boat and its accomodations, and the economies of it all. Even for would-be sailors, this book is a fascinating trip through the South from the "inside."

For those who would rather enjoy the water from a comfortable deck chair Else and Bennet Daniel's "Vacation at Sea" is a travel guide for cruises. The reader learns the ins and outs of booking, rating the ship, picking a room and traveling to the departure point. He also learns what to pack, where to stop, what to do, what to wear, and how to tip. Most importantly the reader is advised as to choosing the right cruise itself, with many lines and ships mentioned by name.

In addition to these books, Sheppard also has current issues of "Fodor's Travel Guides" (to the U.S. and other countries), "The National Park Guide," "American Youth Hostels Handbook," "Mobile Travel Guides" of the individual regions of the U.S., and many, many more.

Hospitality House Today

WASHINGTON — Two designated observances — "National Nursing Home Week" and "Senior Citizens Month" are being featured on Kay Currie's "Hospitality House" over WITN-TV, Channel 7 today from noon until 1 p.m.

Representing the nursing home theme are Sandra Higgins of Madison, Ky., owner and operator of a nusring home, and Ted Carcich, nursing home administrator from Moscow, Idaho. The appearance of these two is on film made earlier by Miss Currie.

Also appearing as guests are four persons of the Health Care Center of Beaufort County — Mary Ethel Jacobs, Maxine Somervell, Louise Stone, and Margaret Hackney. Sally Miller of the Patients and Families Service of the Beaufort County Hospital joins Kay in inspirational readings.

Actress Eva Marie Saint is a guest on a filmed segment about the forthcoming NBC special, "The Curse of Tutankhamun's Tomb," to be shown from 10 to 11 p.m. on two nights, Thursday and Friday, May 8 and 9.

A special guest on today's show is Ed Smith of the Elks Rest Home. Billed as a one-man band, Smith plays "When the Saints Go Marching In" and "Ain't She Sweet.

Rose High Band Festival

The Greenville City School Annual Band Festival, sponsored by the Greenville Band Boosters, will be held at 8 p.m. Tuesday, May 6 in the Rose High Gymnasium.

Five bands will be taking part — those of grades 5-9 under the direction of Dottie Jo Knight, Johnny Wooten and James Rodgers. The ECU Summer Band Scholarships will be announced.

Tickets are priced at $1 for adults and 50 cents for students. These can be purchased from any band student or at the door prior to concert time.

Wilson Concert Today

WILSON — The Vaughan Williams' "Tuba Concerto," to be performed by principal tuba David Lewis, will highlight the North Carolina Symphony concert to be held at 8 p.m. Tuesday, May 6 in the Fike High School Auditorium in Wilson. Other selections to be played are Cimarosa's Overture to "Il Matriomonio Segreto;" Schubert's "Symphony No. 5;" and selections from Bernstein's "West Side Story."

Admission is by season ticket or by single admission at $6 for adults and $3 for students, to be available at the door prior to concert hour.

Mikado Is Being Presented

Travel Notes

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bahama Cruise Line's popular SS Vera Cruz has been diverted from its usual Caribbean, Mexican and Alaska cruise programs for a series of 18 seven-day St. Lawrence Summer Cruises sailing out of New York or Montreal on alternate Fridays starting in May.

The new schedule revives, after several decades, the concept of combined rail-sea cruises between Canada and the United States, the line said. Passengers will have the choice of starting the cruise in New York and returning from Montreal by Amtrak, or of taking the train to Montreal and boarding the ship there for the southbound voyage to New York.

The Vera Cruz itinerary includes Prince Edward Island, Gaspe, Quebec and Saguenay Fjord. Prices range from $665 to $885 per person double.

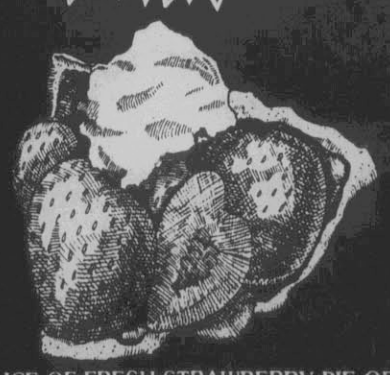

LONDON (UPI) — Somebody obviously thinks tourists love horror and gore.

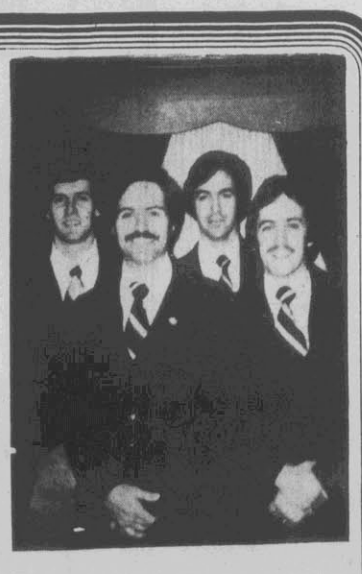

The London Dungeon, a recreation of all the joys of a torture chamber and gruesome death, has installed several new exhibits during the winter and improved others with what it calls "spine-chilling sound effects."

Big Annual Student Show At ECU's Gray Gallery

Because of unavoidable commitments, this was an instance in which I was late getting around to seeing the annual School of Art Undergraduate Art Exhibition installed at the Gray Gallery in the Leo Jenkins Fine Arts Center on the East Carolina University campus. A reception opening the show was held on the evening of April 22 — and tomorrow, May 5 is the final day that some of the works will be on view. Gallery director Randy Osman has stated that parts of the exhibition will be up through May 9.

Since these are the ending days of this big, attractive show, persons who have been intending to take it in this year cannot lose time in doing so.

And big is one of the apt descriptions of this year's show. Not only is the majority of the gallery space devoted to this show, but there are paintings and sculpture in the hallway adjacent to the gallery.

Whatever type of art most appeals to a viewer is likely to be found in this show in some degree — there's a good showing of commercial as well as the so-called "fine arts" since this is an all encompassing exhibition with all undergraduate students given a chance to show the public what they have and are achieving.

This year there seems to be more emphasis than ever on textile art, in silks, cottons, and other fabrics. Blouses, decorative items, textile incorporated into mixed media paintings are well represented. Sherly Baker has an outsize textile composition "Cloud Piece" of 12 long silk panels of varying widths, dyed in shades of blue. These are staggered in two sections of six panels and suspended from the ceiling with gold colored wires. The arrangement of the material, which provides alleyways of air play between the panels, is impressive.

Another work that is striking for the manner in which the basic material is used is Eric Nordgulen's "Presentation," a free standing sculpture composed of irregularly shaped cedar limbs, vines, and pine needles suspended in a clear plastic bag. The artist uses his material to good advantage in playing off texture and form and the inclusion of plastic does not in the least seem incongruous.

Another work by Nordgulen, "From Stoneware to Earthware and Back Again (see the photo with this article) is one of three pieces chosen to receive the Chancellor's Purchase Award. The other two selected are Michael John Loderstedt's eight section collograph, "Marshscape No. 7," a lyrically executed work that parallels in a modern concept an Oriental screen with its definite divisions. The third such award was for a smaller mixed media painting by Tim Brown — "Just A Coca Cola Cowboy."

The subject is a rather pathetic character depicted rather timidly within the framework of the painting.

Some excellent drawings, paintings, photographs, intaglio and other types of prints are among the many categories of work represented in this show. Sculpted pieces, and especially utilitarian items constructed of wood, are strong in this undergraduate show.

Though the viewing time left is short, I strongly urge area viewers to try to find an hour or so to take it in. Gray Gallery is open on Sundays from 1 to 4 p.m. and Mondays through Fridays from 10 to 5 p.m.

FROM STONEWARE TO EARTHWARE AND BACK AGAIN . . . a sculpture by ECU student artist Eric Nordgulen, is one of three works selected for a Chancellor's Purchase Award. The annual Student Undergraduate Art Exhibition is now on view at Gray Gallery on the East Carolina University campus, but will be up only through tomorrow for part of the show, and through May 9 for other portions. The gallery is open from 1 to 4 p.m. today, and from 10 to 5 Mondays through Fridays. No admission is charged, and the public is invited to visit the show.

A Review

Tales To Remember

Flim Flam Man And Other Stories. By Guy Owen. Durham, N. C., The Moore Publishing Company. 203 pages, $9.95.

Moore Publishing Company has just released a collection of short stories by the well-known North Carolinian author, Guy Owen, under the title "Flim Flam Man And Other Stories.

Owen combines wit and insight with his excellent gifts as reconteur to produce an enjoyable volume, especially for those of us who have been lucky enough to live in eastern North Carolina.

Owen's characters are lively and believable. From the elementary school teacher, Miss Mahalia, who saves a boy's pride and life to the Robin Hood-like Flim Flam man, each one of the people who live in Owen's imaginary Cape Fear County could just as easily live next door, or more likely, across the field.

The book is divided into four sections. The first section is entitled "Cape Fear Country" and consists of four delightful stories full of humanity and humor. One of them deals with a gamecock that is a pussycat unless he has had a little sourmash. Another records a tall tale contest. Owen's entertaining use of colloquialisms enhances the verisimilitude and local coloring of the stories.

The " Flim Flam Man" is the title of the second group of short stories. This lovable con man and his young sidekick travel the roads of eastern North Carolina posing as Indians, faith healers, rich men — you name it, looking for an easy mark. The ingenious situations they get themselves into are hilarious. And even though the Flim Flam Man is a con-artist, somehow we feel that he has an acute sense of justice.

The two serious stories in the book appear in the third section called "The Apprenticeship of Joel Jarman." These stories relate incidences that acquaint the adolescent Jarman with the world around him. In "Cap'n Jim and the Monkey" Jarman takes his grandfather's place at tobacco time, the new crop of tobacco effectively symbolizing the passing of generations.

"The Death of the Barber" is a sensitively written vignette about sexual perversion and tragedy. These darker stories round out Owen's portrait of life in Cape Fear County.

The final section is called "A Lagniappe of Fancy." A lagniappe is something given for free along with a purchase, and it as if Owen decided to attach these offerings for his sheer imagination as a lagniappe to the other, more realistic stories. A woman who buys and sells pain, a phantom railroad man, and a husband who escapes the drudgery of his existence by actually walking into paintings are three of the characters sketched in this remarkable section.

"The Flim Flam Man and Other Stories" is a book that is hard to forget. Mr. Owen impresses with many subtle lessons about life, but you may not notice it right away — you'll be laughing too much.

Jeff Rollins

Editor's Note: Rollins, a graduate student in the Dept. of English, East Carolina University, a native of Hickory, is a prize-winning poet and short story writer.

Big Prices For Gilas

"A gila monster will bring $300 to $400 retail on the East Coast," said Collins Cochran, wildlife manager and biologist with the Arizona Game and Fish Department. Other rare species of snakes sell for $200 to $300. More common species sell for $3 to $5 apiece.

Gila monsters and three kinds of rattlesnakes — rock, ridge-nosed and twin-spotted — are protected by law. Only those with $15 scientific collecting permits can legally take them, usually at a rate of two or three a year. A hunting license is required to obtain other reptiles.

Such legalities don't stop the smugglers. They work mainly in the spring and summer when the animals emerge from hibernation.

"Manpower shortages are hurting us," Cochran said. The game and fish department has 15 wildlife managers in southeastern Arizona, each patroling 1,100 to 2,000 square miles trying to stop a growing problem.

Aycock, Rose Student Show At The Art Center

The third student art show of the spring series of Pitt County-Greenville students — that of students in Aycock Junior High and Rose Senior High, is now on view at the Greenville Art Center. It opened last Sunday and can be seen at the Center, 802 Evans Street, daily between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

In general, it is similar to the junior and senior high school shows of the past couple of years. At this stage in the teen-age years of young artists, there's considerable evidence of experimentation — the obvious search for the media that might best fit a particular talent.

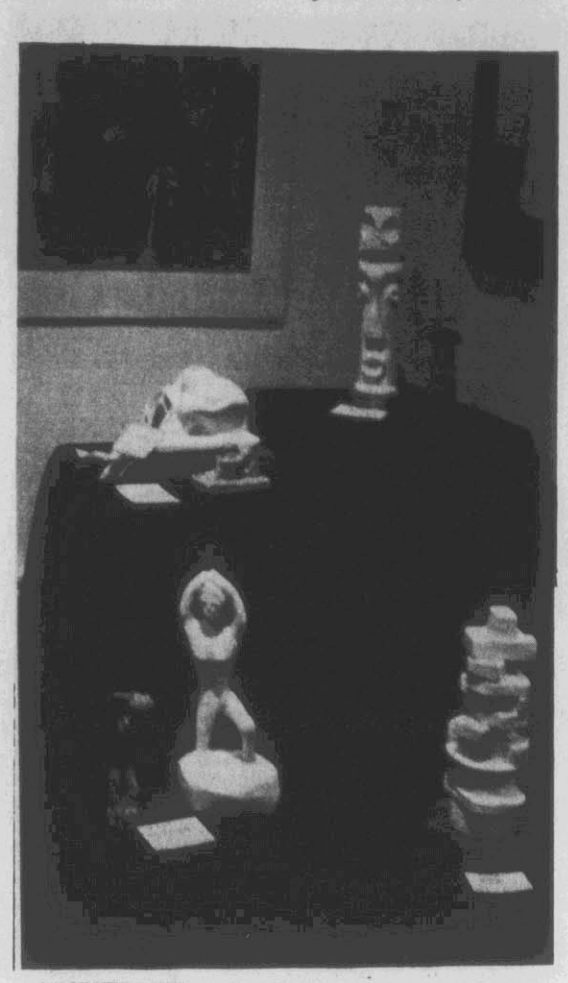

Watercolors, mixed media work, collages, pasted paper work, sculptural pieces in various materials, some textile work, ceramics, a scattering of pieces in wood, paintings and drawings comprise the range of work in this show.

It is displayed well, and there's some pleasing works among these efforts. Undoubtedly, it is difficult for students at this level to refrain from applying the attitude that it is time they get away from the all-out exuberance that marked their efforts a short time ago when they were elementary age student artists.

This is perhaps as it should be from the viewpoint of growing up and discipling their talents — at the same time one could wish for a little less restraint and a dash more of adventuresome in the works.

After saying that, it must be added that there's several works in the show which show considerable promise of basic talent that could lead to some exciting things from a couple of the students.

Rouault Etchings In Show At North Pitt

Eighteeen etchings from Georges Rouault's religious series, "Miserere," will be exhibited at North Pitt High School beginning Monday, May 5 and continuing to May 23.

The 20th century French painter has long been regarded as one of the contemporary masters of religious art. His series of work in the "Miserere" has been referred to as the "center and summit of Rouault's art."

It was during World War I that Rouault conceived the idea of representing the different forms of human misery and man's confrontation of that misery in his art. This he achieved in works that make use of flat, heavy black outlines that reflect a style in art going back to medieval times.

The etchings in the show at North Pitt are on loan from the N. C. Musuem of Art in Raleigh. They are a gift to the museum from Colonel Kenneth B. Bland of Arlington, Va.

The public is invited to see this exhibition during regular school hours, and is asked first to check in at the principal's office.

Suzuki Festival On Saturday, Sunday

The annual spring Suzuki Festival will be held at Rose High School on two dates, Saturday, May 10 and Sunday, May 11.

On Saturday, the festival opens at 9 a.m. and continues to 3 p.m. The events for this day will consist of rehearsals, a cookout, and a time for entertainment for the students.

On Sunday, the Suzuki students will be heard in concert at 2 p.m., assisted by the Greenville City Schools Orchestra. Students in this program from the Greenville City schools, the Pitt County schools, and from various private schools will be performing.

Good Choice If Space Cramped

DOYLESTOWN, Pa. (UPI) — Hanging baskets or pots of flowers are good choices for small quarters — apartments, town houses or mobile homes. They can be suspended from a wall, porch, balcony, trellis, fence or even a lamppost, says horticulturist Jeannette Lowe. Ms. Lowe says begonias, coleus and impatiens are good choices for hanging flower gardens in somewhat shady areas. For sunny spots, she suggests petunias, dwarf French marigolds and some hybrid marigolds, geraniums and nasturtiums, among others. Suitable containers include not just mesh baskets designed for such use, but also discarded pans, kettles and buckets with drainage holes in the bottom, she adds.

There are now 14 million motorists in Britain and another 938,000 who are waiting to take a road test.

Book Sales

NEW YORK (AP) — When the bidding was over, an American was left with 49 books and an Australian with a large telephone bill.

A set of works by naturalist-painter John Gould was sold for $400,000 Friday. The winner, an anonymous American, outbid a competitor who kept a phone line open from Australia to Christie's auction house here.

The set, "Birds of the World and Mammals of Australia," published between 1832 and 1875, was sold by the Wadsworth Atheneum of Hartford, Conn.

Show Opens

RALEIGH - A group show of work by 15 Raleigh women artists of the Raleigh Artists Guild will go on view May 5 at the Little Art Gallery, Lower Mall, North Hills Shopping Center. A reception will be held Monday from 7 to 9 p.m. Monday and the public is invited.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO ALL VOTERS

ERA will come before the N.C. General Assembly for the last time in 1981. Choose your legislators with care and knowledge!

The Equal Rights Amendment, which will be brought before our State Legislature reads as follows:
Sec. 1. Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex.
Sec. 2. The Congress shall have the power to enforce by appropriate legislation the provisions of this article.
Sec. 3. This Amendment shall take effect two years after the date of ratification.

SOUNDS HARMLESS.....BUT TAKE A BETTER LOOK AT IT! MASQUERADING it as a women's rights amendment, militant women libbers have been fooling us with the ERA's promises of equality while concealing its ultimate devasting effects on women.

Says Sen. Sam Ervin:
"ERA is the most destructive piece of legislation to ever pass Congress...it will virtually reduce the states of this union to meaningless zereos..."

The following statements are based on an in-depth study of Congressional hearings and records relative to the federal amendment, and recent Court decisions in States which have enacted an ERA into their constitutions.

WHAT THE FEDERAL ERA WILL NOT DO....
ERA will not give women equal pay for equal work...WE ALREADY HAVE THAT! Equal Pay Act '63, and Civil Rights Act '64.
ERA will not give women more employment opportunities.....WE ALREADY HAVE THAT! Equal Opportunity Act '72.
ERA will not give women more educational opportunities.....WE ALREADY HAVE THAT! Title IX of the Education Amend. '72 and H.E.W. Regulations.
ERA will not give women more rights in obtaining credit.....WE ALREADY HAVE THAT! The Equal Credit Act.
ERA will not give women non-discriminatory status.....WE ALREADY HAVE THAT! The 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

WHAT THE FEDERAL ERA WILL DO
ERA will transfer to the Federal govenment virtually all the legislative power now held by the individual states. (Section 2).
ERA will invalidate all state laws which require a husband to support his wife.
ERA will invalidate all existing rape and prostitution laws.
ERA will eliminate present lower rates of life insurance for women.
ERA will take from widows all special benefits and monies they now receive.
ERA will wipe out all protective labor laws and guidelines which now benefit women.
ERA will eliminate the right to privacy between sexes in hospitals, prisons, schools and public toilets.
ERA will require that women be drafted if and when the draft is resumed.
ERA will invalidate laws prohibiting homosexuality and allow homosexual couples to marry and adopt children.
ERA will harm divorced women by wiping out presumptions of child custody or alimony, even for senior women; it will make child support even harder to enforce.
ERA will eliminate the present right of a wife to draw Social Security benefits based on her husband's earnings. The husband will be required to pay Social Security taxes for his wife if she is not employed outside the home.
ERA will hurt men by eliminating any job preferences because they are supporting a family; the quota system to equalize the job force will mean fewer jobs for men.
ERA will prohibit any allowances made for women no matter how reasonable the allowance may be.

Some In Florida Want New Refugees Sent Back Home

By STEVE WILSON
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Cuban refugees riding the Mariel-to-Key West "Freedom Flotilla" are cheered as heroes in Miami's powerful Latin community.

But many non-Latins would rather see the new exiles put back aboard their "freedom" boats and sent home.

The sudden influx of Cubans, coupled with the steady stream of Haitian refugees into southern Florida, has stirred anger and resentment among locals worried about losing their edge in jobs and community services.

Even some young Cubans who have lived here all their lives are unhappy at the prospect of thousands of Latin exiles moving into their territory. And black leaders accuse the federal government of practicing a double standard by admitting Cuban refugees while denying asylum to Haitians.

"I don't think I've ever encountered this much anger about an issue in this community," said Hall Tennis, a refugee expert in the Dade County manager's office. "It's not just a few conservative Anglos from south Georgia and Alabama who are angry about these foreigners. It's a broad spectrum of people."

The refugee issue dominated talk in Miami even before the do-it-yourself sealift began last month when Cuban President Fidel Castro opened the port of Mariel to all wishing to leave.

Refugees from Haiti, Nicaragua and Indochina had already helped boost Miami's population by 25,000 this year. Although most of the overload hit southern Florida hardest, St. Petersburg and Tampa facilities on the West Coast have been so strained by Indochinese refugees that they'e also crying for money to put toward foster care, shelter and health tests.

Since the ragtag flotilla, more than 7,000 new Cubans have arrived here; officials estimate the figure could reach a quarter million.

Twenty years ago, Miami was a fairly traditional American city. Its population of 935,000 was 80 percent non-Latin white, 14.6 percent black and 5.4 percent Latin.

Today, Greater Miami is a bilingual megalopolis of 1.6 million. Its non-Latin white population is 46.9 percent, Latin is 37.5 percent and black is 15.6 percent. The Latin community has been dubbed "Little Havana."

With more Cubans on the way, resentment is running high in some quarters.

"In the Anglo community, there is a certain type of resentment and fear that the Cubans are taking over," said Juan Clark, a sociologist at Miami-Dade Community College. "You tend to find this feeling among blue-collar workers rather than persons in professional jobs.

"The growing feeling that Americans themselves are being discriminated against in favor of minorities plays a big part in this," Clark added. "Anglos feel they have more to lose if more Cubans come. They're losing jobs to bilinguals, and they're losing political power."

A recent poll by The Miami News showed opinions running 3-1 against accepting any more Cuban refugees. Some responses were uncompromisingly blunt:

—"We have enough Cuban trash here without Castro emptying his jails to allow more here," said Carl Ivistrum of Miami.

—"I say no, no, a thousand times no, to any more Cuban refugees in this city. They have done nothing but leech on us for years," said C. Kate of North Miami.

In an unsigned letter to The Associated Press, a St. Petersburg resident wrote: "Do we give them our jobs if we have one? Do we starve our family to feed them? We keep giving and giving. They keep taking and taking. It's not our country any more."

Miami-area Cubans angered other city residents when they took to the streets in huge demonstrations last month to support the refugees packed into the Peruvian Embassy in Havana.

"Even my aging, bedridden mother who saw it on TV was angry," said Tennis. "It was the fact that people were blowing their horns and blocking traffic without permission.

"It seems now that the mass immigration has exacerbated this anger," he said. "I've been surprised that I'm finding some Americans of Cuban ancestry who are angry. They are young mustachioed, Hispanic types who've been here all their lives and don't perceive themselves as Cubans."

Anger also surfaced a couple weeks ago when federal officials announced plans to convert an abandoned missile base in north Dade County into a processing center for Haitian refugees.

"Sink their boats!" came a scream from the audience of 500 as immigration officials were booed, hissed and jeered. In nearby Miramar, the city council called the proposed center "a danger to public peace, health and safety."

While Cuban refugees routinely receive political asylum because they are fleeing a Communist regime, Haitians are considered illegal aliens looking for better jobs.

Haitian refugees believe they are being discriminated against because they are black.

"We are very happy to see the U.S. welcoming the Cuban boatpeople. But the double standard should be stopped. We, the black boatpeople, they don't care about us," said Gerard Jean-Juste, director of the Haitian Refugee Center in Miami.

Tennis observes the racial issue is behind much local opposition to Haitians.

Genuine Risk Wins Kentucky Derby

The Lady Takes The Roses

This is the way the field stood as Genuine Risk, with Jacinto Vasquez up, crossed finish line to win the 106th Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs. Genuine Risk, a filly, ran the race in 2:02. (AP Laserphoto)

(More stories on The Kentucky Derby on B-3, B-6 and B-10.)

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Genuine Risk became only the second filly to win the Kentucky Derby Saturday with a stretch drive that carried her to victory over Rumbo in the 106th Derby at Churchill Downs.

Genuine Risk, the first filly to run in the Derby in 21 years, moved into contention on the turn and took command turning for home. She then outdueled Rumbo and Jaklin Klugman. Jaklin Klugman finished third.

The chestnut filly carried 121 pounds, five less than her 12 male rivals over the 1¼ miles on a fast track in bright sunshine in 2:02 to write her name in thoroughbred racing legend.

It was a sensational performance by Mrs. Bert Firestone's daughter of Exclusive Native, who was ridden by Jacinto Vasquez and trained by LeRoy Jolley as she joined Regret as the only filly winners of America's greatest horse race. Regret won in 1915.

She stole the glory from Rockhill Native, the 2-1 favorite, and Plugged Nickle, the 5-2 second choice, under a flawless ride by Vasquez, who reached the Derby winner's circle for the second time. He won with the Jolley-trained Foolish Pleasure in 1975.

"She's a very feminine filly, a tall, rangy filly," the trainer said before the race. Now, she is a queen of the sport of kings.

Genuine Risk paid $28.60, $10.60 and $4.80 in earning $239,300 from a purse of $326,800.

Gayno Stable and Bell Bloodstock Co.'s Rumbo, who overtook Jaklin Klugman in the closing yards, returned $5.20 and $3.40. Jaklin Klugman, owned by television actor Jack Klugman and John Dominguez, was $4.40 to show.

Genuine Risk's margin of victory was one length. Rumbo, ridden by Laffit Pincay Jr., was a length in front of Jaklin Klugman, who was four lengths ahead of Super Moment.

Rockhill Native, trying to become the eighth gelding to win the Derby and the first since Clyde Van Dusen in 1929, finished fifth as the 2-1 favorite. Plugged Nickle, the Florida Derby and Wood Memorial winner who went off as the 5-2 second choice, finished seventh.

Plugged Nickle, ridden by Buck Thornburg, led Rockhill Native, ridden by John Oldham, and Execution's Reason, Randy Romero up, into the clubhouse turn. Then, Rockhill Native took the lead entering the backstretch and led Plugged Nickle and Bold 'n Rulling, ridden by 17-year-old Pat Valenzuela, into the turn.

Genuine Risk was sixth at about this point. She began to move on the turn and took the lead shortly after the turn into the final straightaway as Rockhill Native and Plugged Nickle faded.

Then, with the massive Derby throng cheering her on, she outdueled Jaklin Klugman through most of the stretch. As they approached the wire, Rumbo, whose trainer says he treats racing as a game and not a serious business, roared up on the outside to get second place. It was too late to get the victory and marked the third straight race in which Rumbo has closed to be second.

The complete order of finish after fifth-place Rockhill Native was: Bold n' Rulling, Plugged Nickle, Degenerate Jon, Withholding, Tonka Wakhan, Execution's Reason, Gold Stage and Hazard Duke.

Jolley had said after the filly finished third in the Wood Memorial, behind Plugged Nickle and Colonel Moran, that Genuine Risk would skip the Derby and point for the New York Triple Crown for fillies. But, then the husband of the owner said the filly was coming to Kentucky. Jolley said he had talked it over with Firestone and reconsidered because the field was not nearly as large as he once thought it would be.

Whatever Jolley's reason for bringing Genuine Risk to the Derby, it turned out to be a decision that led to the most important victory of his career.

"I'm very proud to ride this filly," said Vasquez. "She's a very nice filly."

She might be a great filly.

The next race in the Triple Crown series is the 13-16-mile Preakness in two weeks at Pimlico.

Before the race, Jolley had said, "You have to figure it's going to take quite a bit out of her and she probably won't run back for a month."

However, no one now could blame Jolley if he reconsidered again.

"I told Jacinto originally to get on the rail," said the trainer. "They walked the first quarter in 24 seconds. She was only two legnths off the lead. Jacinto got clear at the five-eighths pole. At the half-mile pole, she moved up strongly. She really got to running. I think it's just terrific."

The Firestones bought Genuine Risk for $33,000 at the Fasig-Tipton yearling sale in Lexington, Ky. after being talked into it by their 14-year-old son Matthew.

Genuine Risk got to the races last Sept. 20 and won all four of her starts as a 2-year-old, including the Tempted and Demoiselle Stakes at Aqueduct. She opened her 3-year-old campaign March 19 by winning an allowance race at Gulfstream Park, then won a mile handicap at Aqueduct before suffering her first defeat in the Wood.

It was an interesting Derby, with spice and variety. It had Genuine Risk. It had Rockhill Native, who had begun his career at Churchill Downs last year with three straight victories. It also had Jack Klugman, who got more attention in days leading up to the race than his gray colt.

At the top of the stretch, it looked as though Jaklin Klugman might turn out to be a bigger star than his co-owner. But, at the wire, the story was Genuine Risk.

She now has earned $387,787, but you cannot put a price tag on her accomplishment Saturday.

The Firestones previously had said they would not sell Genuine Risk. You don't get rid of Rembrandts.

Rockhill Native's fifth-place finish had to be a big disappointment to Herb Stevens, his 63-year-old trainer, who has been headquartered at Keeneland 80 miles away in Lexington for 34 years. Stevens had conditioned the little gelding to win the 1979 2-year-old championship and he had sent him out to win the Blue Grass Stakes, the last major Derby prep April 24 at Keeneland.

That victory polished Rockhill Native's image that had been tarnished by two losses in Florida.

Resist Boycott Europeans Say

ROME (AP) — European Olympic leaders Saturday called on the entire world to resist President Jimmy Carter's boycott call and send athletes to the Summer Olympic Games in Moscow.

But they proposed drastic cuts in the opening ceremony, with athletes staying away and not marching past Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev in the traditional parade.

Officials of 18 West European National Olympic Committees drew up an eight-point plan to try and persuade the uncommitted countries to compete in the Games.

The eight points, which would have to be approved by the International Olympic Committee and accepted by the organizing committee in Moscow, were:

—Each national delegation to be represented in the opening parade by a flag bearer and a name board, with no athletes.

—Each team to use the Olympic flag of the five rings, and not national flags.

—The Olympic Hymn to be used in place of national anthems.

—The Olympic flag and hymn to be used at the medals presentations in addition to the opening and closing ceremonies.

—No political speeches at the opening ceremony.

—Each delegation to confine its activities to sporting events.

—No NOC to participate in the international youth camp being organized by the Russians in connection with the Olympics.

These proposals for keeping the Olympic flame burning despite current international tension, following the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan, cut across the Olympic rules at some points.

But Monique Berlioux, director of the IOC, attended the meeting and indicated the suggestions would be acceptable. The IOC Executive Board discussed similar ideas recently at Lausanne, Switzerland.

Afghanistan was not mentioned in a communique issued at the end of the 5½-hour meeting. But the proposals clearly weres aimed at removing everything from the opening ceremony that could be interpreted as approval for Soviet policies.

The head of state of the host country traditionally stands at the saluting base for the parade of athletes. Some governments have said they would not object to their athletes competing provided they did not dip the national flag in salute as the team marches past Brezhnev.

The communique stressed the principles of the Olympic movement — fraternity and universal friendship — and said it was the duty of the NOCs to allow their athletes to participate in the Games. It added that participation now was even more important in a period of international tension.

It also said cancellation or postponement of the Games would have "disastrous consequences on internationl sport."

The communique added: "They (the NOCs at the meeting) underline that participation cannot in any way be taken to imply acceptance of any ideology or political behavior."

"They appeal therefore to the Olympic Committees of all the countries in the world to take part in the Olympic Games in accordance with the above principles."

Four of the NOCs represented at the meeting — those of Austria, Britain, Greece and San Marino — have said they definitely will send athletes to the Games.

The other 14 NOCs still have to decide. Franco Carraro, president of the Italian NOC, who presided, explained that delegates still had to persuade their committees to accept the eight-point blueprint for the Games.

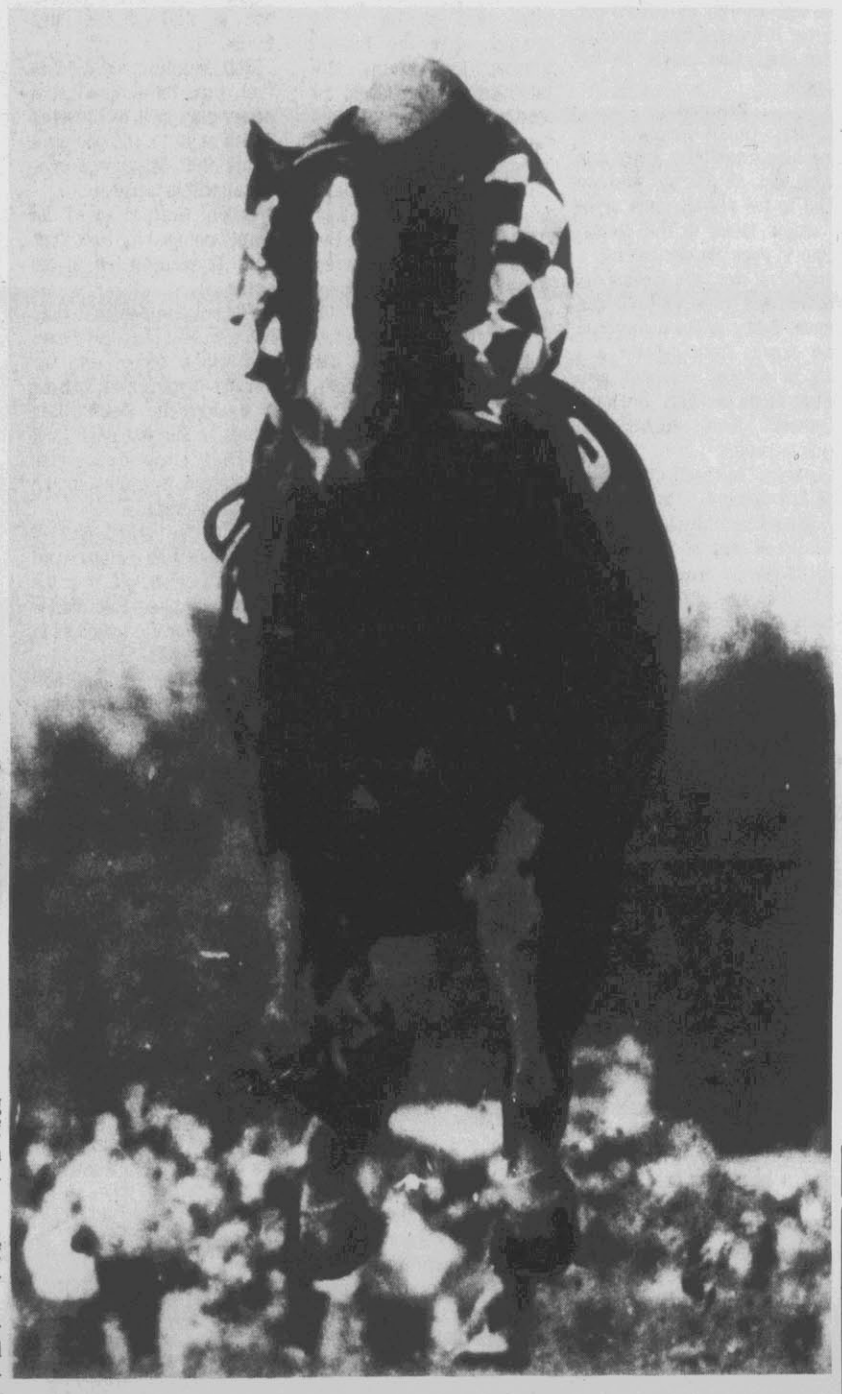

In some cases, the decisions by the NOCs may vary from their government's policies. Further, some governments may actively restrain athletes from participating in the Games, whereas others may maintain a hands-off policy.

"To say this plan will be automatically accepted by the NOCs represented here would be a little optimistic," Carraro said.

A key figure at the meeting was Willi Daume, president of the West German NOC, which is scheduled to make its decision May 15.

At the start of the meeting, Daume raised the possibility of asking for a one-year postponement of the Games.

But the meeting did not proceed with this, and Daume said afterwards: "Until now, whenever a postponement has been mentioned, the Russians have rejected the idea. But when the house is burning, any possibility has to be considered."

Lady Comes Home

Genuine Risk, Jacinto Vasquez up, charges to finish line to win the 106th Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs. Genuine Risk ran the course in 2:02 to become the first filly in 21 years to run and the first in 65 years to take the Run for the Roses. (AP Laserphoto)

Lady Pirates Capture Title

GRAHAM — East Carolina University's women's softball team romped to victory in the State AIAW Tournament Saturday, winning in three straight games.

The Lady Pirates, who had a first round bye, beat N.C. Wesleyan in their first game, 10-0, then came back with a 9-1 win over Pfeiffer in the third round of the tournament. The Pirates topped Western Carolina, 7-1, in the championship game, thereby winning a berth in the Region II AIAW playoffs next weekend.

The Lady Pirates, who were the top seeded team in the tournament, gained that honor by winning the Division I championship last weekend in Graham. In that tournament, too, they also beat out Western Carolina for the title. They were joined this week by the top two teams from the Division II and III tournaments for the overall state championship.

Wesleyan gained a second round winners' bracket meeting with the Pirates by downing Pembroke State, 10-6, in the first round. Western Carolina also won its first round game, beating Methodist, 7-6. Pfeiffer, which had also received a first round bye, downed Western, 9-6, in the second round.

East Carolina, meanwhile, was winning its game against Wesleyan with ease, taking only five innings. The Lady Pirates pushed over one first inning run, then added seven in the third. Kathy Riley paced that frame with a three-run homer. Two more crossed the plate in the fourth for ECU.

Riley, who also had a triple and drove in four runs, was joined by Mitzi Davis and Jan McVea with two hits. Olga Surmaj led Wesleyan with two.

Western then eliminated Pembroke, 9-7, while Wesleyan sent Methodist home, 3-2. Western then dumped Wesleyan, 9-6, to gain the championship semifinals.

East Carolina took on Pfeiffer for the right to move into the championship as the lone unbeaten. Pfeiffer scored its lone run in the first, taking a brief lead. East Carolina came back to score four in the third and five in the fifth, earning a berth in the finals.

Davis, Cynthia Sheperd, who had a double, Riley and Mary Powell each had two hits to pace the ECU attack. Sides and Baldwin each had two for Pfeiffer.

Western then ousted Pfeiffer, 8-3, and moved into the finals against East Carolina.

The Lady Pirates took the lead in the first inning of that game on a solo home run by Davis, then allowed Western to tie it in the top of the fourth. In the bottom of the frame, however, the Pirates scored two runs, then added four more in the sixth.

Sheperd led the ECU hitting with three, while Riley had two. Whitworth and Vaughters each had two for Western.

The trio of wins boosted the ECU record to 31-4 on the season.

Joining ECU and Western as the North Carolina representatives in the tournament will be the state representatives from Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee along with the host team, the University of North Carolina. South Carolina, which also is in Region II, does not have any softball teams. Pairings for the tournament will be announced later in the week. Competition beyond the regional level has not been installed by the AIAW, so a championship at this level will be the highest thing the Lady Pirates will be able to obtain this season. Their record has already given them the best showing by an East Carolina team in the three year history of the sport.

76ers Look To Pay On Three-Year-Old Debt

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Philadelphia 76ers will attempt to make the first payment on a three-year-old debt Sunday when they meet the Los Angeles Lakers in the opening game of the National Basketball Association's best-of-seven championship series.

"We owe you one" was the pledge made by the 76ers to their fans in 1977 after they were beaten by Portland in the final. Two playoff failures later, the debt still stands — but a far different Philadelphia team will try and wipe it out.

Many of the talented soloists from that 1977 team — George McGinnis, Lloyd Free, Joe Bryant — have been banished to other NBA team, their places taken by team-oriented types like Bobby Jones.

Gene Shue has been supplanted as coach by Billy Cunningham, who has reshaped the offense around forward Julius Erving, putting the incomparable Dr.J squarely in center stage. Muscular Darryl Dawkins is the starting center now, three years older and somewhat closer toward realizing his awesome potential. And most of all, the 76ers have discovered each other.

"When I first took over the team we had great individual talent, but we had too many chiefs," said Cunningham. "Now we have players who complement each other."

"We are a family," said Erving. "He (Cunningham) talks about caring and helping out, how it relates to what we do on the court. By now it's not even something we have to think about. It's there naturally — guys looking for each other, helping out on defense. It was always there waiting to come out. Now it's in the forefront.

It wasn't always that way.

During the 1977 playoffs, 76ers' practices were loose affairs. Players wore motley "come as you are" outfits that included odd hats, jumpsuits and other unusual haberdashery. Players spent their time practicing their favorite shots rather than working on the weak parts of their games. Shue seemed like more of a camp counselor than a pro basketball coach.

Now their practices are tighter and the players seem more involved. Cunningham even has gotten the players thinking about defense, an aspect of the game that was foreign to the 1977 team.

"My first year," recalled Cunningham, who replaced Shue early in the 1977-78 season, "the only way we could beat people was to overpower them. Our offense dictated the outcome. Our defense does that now."

Philadelphia's defense, which limited Boston to 94 points per game as the 76ers upset the Celtics in five games in the Eastern Conference final, will be severely tested by the Lakers, who have a multi-faceted attack built around 7-foot-2 center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, the most dominating player in the game.

They love to run, with Abdul-Jabbar clearing the boards, throwing outlet passes to guards Norm Nixon and Earvin "Magic" Johnson while Jamaal Wilkes or reserve Michael Cooper fills the lane. And they have a solid half-court offense, with Abdul-Jabbar posing the inside threat and setting up Nixon, Wilkes and Johnson for open jumpers.

The Lakers are 8-2 in the postseason playoffs, having beaten Phoenix and Seattle in five games each. The 76ers are 10-2, having swept Washington in a best-of-three mini-series, then dispatching Atlanta and Boston in five games apiece.

Los Angeles last won the title in 1972 with a team that featured Wilt Chamberlain and Jerry West and was coached by Bill Sharman, who now is their general manager. Philadelphia's last title was in 1967, that team also including Chamberlain as well as Cunningham, then a forward.

Both teams have some injury problems. Philadelphia guard Lionel Hollins bruised the upper part of his left arm in a practice session but should play.

Johnson, the Lakers' standout rookie, has an arm injury, and Wilkes, who was cut over his right eye during the final game of the Seattle series. But both should play.

Reserve forward Spencer Haywood, who didn't play in the Seattle finale Wednesday night, is suffering from both a foot injury and exhaustion. He was so tired that he fell asleep on the court while his teammates were doing stretching exercises at the start of their practice session Friday, and had to be awakened and helped off the floor by Lakers trainer Jack Curran.

NBA Chamionship

A Clash Of Teams AND Individuals

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Basketball is a team game, at its best when the five players on a club mesh as one so that the whole becomes greater than the sum of the individual parts.

But within that team game there are individual matchups, the one-on-one battles that are the basic building blocks of the overall structure. Here's a look at the matchups in the National Basketball Association championship series between the Philadelphia 76ers and Los Angeles Lakers, which begins Sunday at the Forum.

Center

Darryl Dawkins (6-11½, 252), 76ers, vs. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar (7-2, 235), Lakers.

Abdul-Jabbar, 33, is coming off one of his finest seasons in which he probably earned the sixth most valuable player award of his 11-year career. He was among the league leaders in scoring, rebounding, blocked shots and field goal percentage, and also anchored the Lakers' defense. He's the man the Lakers go to when things get rough, using his assortment of sky hooks and jumpers to get the big baskets.

Dawkins, a five-year veteran though only 23, has awesome strength and will spend his time leaning on Abdul-Jabbar, trying to muscle him away from his favorite spots on the floor. Dawkins is capable of dominating stretches of a game with his rebounding and emphatic dunks, but at other times he mysteriously fades from view. He must overcome this inconsistency to become a top-flight NBA center.

Power forward

Caldwell Jones (7-1, 220), 76ers, vs. Jim Chones (6-11, 220), Lakers.

Jones is the quiet man of the Sixers, the league's fourth-leading rebounder and a defensive ace who bottled up Boston's Larry Bird in the semifinals. He was moved from the starting center spot to make room for Dawkins and adapted to forward better than anyone expected. He rarely shoots, but can score in close with a strong jump hook.

Chones came over from Cleveland this season and became the Lakers' No. 2 rebounder. He works well around the basket and can hit the 15-foot jumper if left open.

Small forward

Erving is the most exciting player in the league, one who can personally take control of a game at any time. He ranked fourth in the league in scoring with a 26.9 average, playing up to his early ABA days, and has no peer at driving to the basket.

Wilkes was the Lakers' No. 2 scorer with a 20.0 mark, his best in six pro seasons. His soft outside shot helps open the middle for Abdul-Jabbar, and like Erving he can get downcourt to score on the fast break.

Big guard

Hollins was obtained from Portland in midseason for a No. 1 draft choice and filled in superbly for the injured Doug Collins. He averaged 12.2 points per game and lived up to his reputation as one of the best defensive guards in the league.

Johnson, the brilliant rookie who led Michigan State to the NCAA title a year ago, is the biggest point guard in the game, a great passer and ballhandler whose unselfishness and enthusiasm has added a welcome new dimension to the Lakers. He scored better than expected, averaging 18 points per game, and was the top rebounding guard in the league, often moving up to forward.

Small guard

Maurice Cheeks (6-1, 180), 76ers, vs. Norm Nixon, (6-2, 175), Lakers:

Cheeks, in his second pro season, became one of the league's best playmakers, sparking the Sixers' tough running game. He's also a decent outside shooter and a pesky defender.

Nixon, the Lakers' playmaker the last two years, had to adjust to being an off-guard with the arrival of Johnson. He averaged 17.6 points per game, and despite doing less of the ballhandling, ranked fourth in the league with 7.8 assists per game. He played more minutes than any other player in the league.

Reserves

76ers: Guard Henry Bibby and forwards Bobby Jones and Steve Mix, all veterans who are used to the playoff wars, were a major factor in the Sixers' victory over Boston. Jones, a former all-star, is a superb defender and runs well on the break, Bibby guides the offense and scores from outside and Mix is a tough scrapper who never stops hustling. Forward Caldwell Jones doubles as backup center.

Lakers: Michael Cooper is the key reserve, a lean, quick 6-5 guard who fills the lane on the break and is the team's best defensive players. Lakers often look best with Cooper at guard and Johnson moving up to forward. Power forward Chones doubles as backup center, while Spencer Haywood and Mark Landsberger see some action at forward.

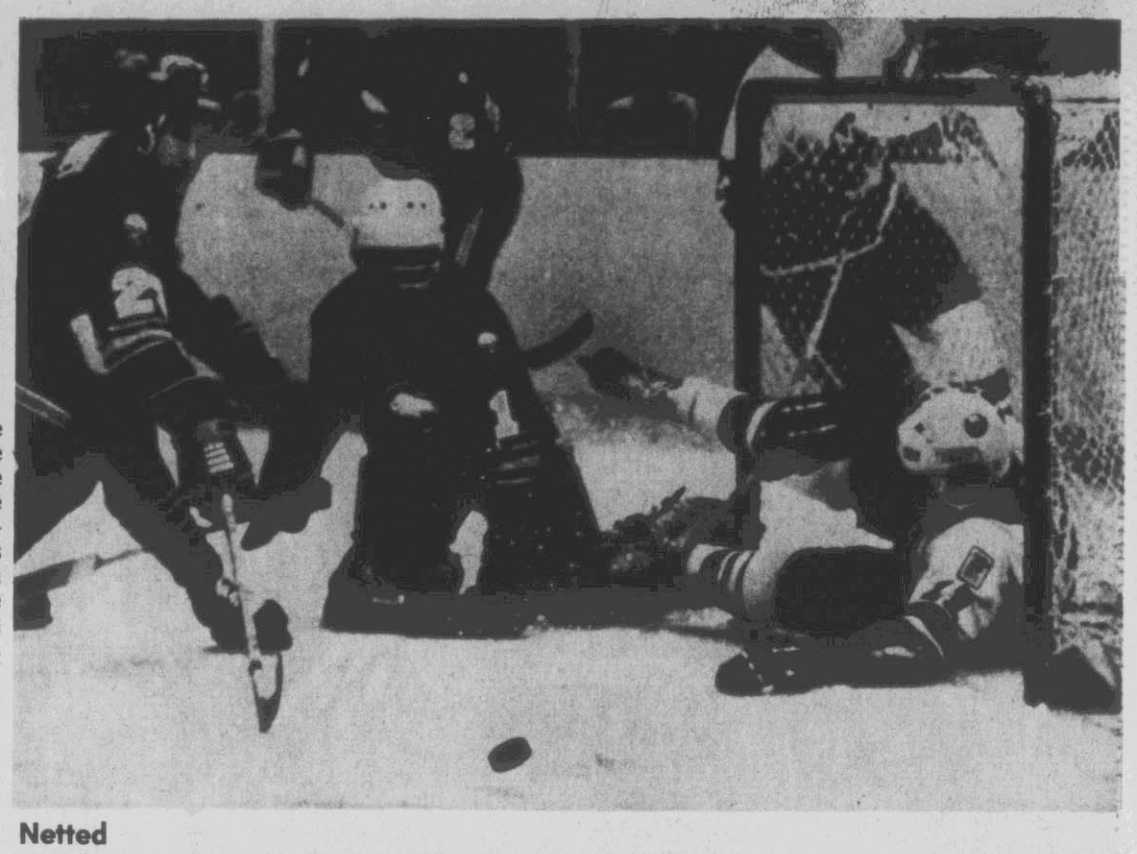

Coaches

Billy Cunningham, 76ers: Has done a fine job in reshaping what used to be an undisciplined, offensive team, fixing Erving as the hub of the offense and instilling a new orientation toward defense. Gambled on moving Caldwell Jones from center to forward, and it paid off.

Paul Westhead, Lakers: A college coach a year ago, the Shakespearian scholar stepped right in when Jack McKinney was hurt in an early season bicycle accident and club did not miss a beat. Has only one reliable reserve, Cooper, but covers up by adroitly juggling players between positions.

Summary

Can Dawkins, backed up by Caldwell Jones, rise to the challenge of his young life and contain Abdul-Jabbar? Will Erving, the incomparable Dr. J, be able to operate at peak efficiency against the smooth, fundamentally sound Wilkes? Those are the biggest questions among the individual matchups in what figures to be a tight, tough best-of-seven series.

Islanders Win

NEW YORK (AP) — Bryan Trottier scored two goals and added an assist Saturday night, helping New York hold on for a 7-4 triumph over the Buffalo Sabres and giving the Islanders a stranglehold 3-0 lead in their National Hockey League playoff semifinal series.

The Islanders, who have beaten the Sabres in the last 11 playoff games between the clubs, can complete a sweep of the best-of-seven series by winning Game Four at the Nassau Coliseum Tuesday night. History is against the chance of a Buffalo comeback, for only two teams have lost the first three games of a Stanley Cup series and rallied to win.

Trottier helped get New York going at 5:14 of the first period by feeding Mike Bossy for a 50-foot shot that seemed to dip under the right leg of Sabres goaltender Don Edwards. Wayne Merrick made it 2-0 at 12:47 by converting John Tonelli's pass from behind the net.

The Sabres, who have led only once in the series (when Rick Dudley scored the opening goal of Game One), pulled even when Tony McKegney scored with 32 seconds left in the first period and Gil Perreault connected at 8:12 of the second session.

But the tie lasted only 45 seconds. Trottier, standing just three feet to Edwards' left, nudged in a shot from a seemingly impossible angle to give New York the lead for good.

Trottier added the Islanders' first power-play goal after 11 consecutive failures at 18:26 of the second period, boosting the margin to 4-2.

The Sabres, who have been let down by their power play (it was 0-for-17 at one stretch), were embarrassed by it further when Lorne Henning scored for New York while teammate Bob Lorimer was in the penalty box at 2:59 of the third period.

Bob Bourne made it 6-2 at 7:47, then the Sabres got a power-play goal from Derek Smith at 10:11 and one from Lindy Ruff 58 seconds later to pull within two goals.

The only two teams to rally from a 3-0 deficit in games and win a series were the Toronto Maple Leafs, who did it against the Detroit Red Wings in the 1942 finals, and the Islanders, who ousted the Pittsburgh Penguins in the 1974 quarterfinals.

Trottier's second goal of the contest tied a club record for goals by one player in the postseason. Jean-Paul Parise had eight for the Islanders in the 1975 playoffs.

The goal by Henning was only his second of this year's playoffs, but it was the second he had scored with a teammate in the penalty box.

"They are obviously frustrated," said Henning, whose other short-handed goal came in the quarterfinals against the Boston Bruins. "They're relying on certain guys to carry them, and those guys aren't getting open for the chances.

"We've been cutting them off and tying them up early to keep them from mounting much pressure."

"We got that second goal to tie it up, then Trottier scored less than a minute later, and that really took the wind out of our sails," said McKegney, who also set up the tally by Smith that ended the streak of Sabres' futility on the power play.

"I still feel, though, that you can't count us out," McKegney said.

Player after player in the Islanders' dressing room expressed simultaneous confidence and fear as the team approaches a sweep.

Cordona Puts WBC Title On Line Vs. Randolph

SEATTLE (AP) — Leo Randolph, a gold medalist at the Montreal Olympic Games four years ago, Sunday will seek to dethrone World Boxing Association junior featherweight champion Ricardo Cardona of Colombia.

Randolph, 22, of Tacoma said if he beats Cardona he will seek one of the world bantamweight crowns. Lupe Pintor of Mexico is the World Boxing Council bantamweight king and Panama's Jorge Lujan holds the WBA version of the 118-pound title.

"The bantam class is really my best fighting weight," Cardona's American challenger said. "If I win this one at 122, the bantam champs will have to meet me."

Randolph was one of five U.S. champions at the Montreal Olympics four years ago and his only professional loss came in his ninth pro fight at New York's Madison Square Garden, a split decision defeat against David Capo.

A crowd of 3,000 is expected to turn out for the scheduled 15-round bout set to begin at 12:10 p.m. PDT at the 6,000-seat Seattle Arena. It will be carried on national television (ABC) but will be blacked out in the state of Washington.

Cardona, 28, will take an 20-4 record against Randolph, who is 18-1.

It will be the Colombian's sixth defense of the 122-pound crown he captured May 6, 1978, at Seoul, South Korea, on a 12th-round technical knockout over Hong Soo-hwan.

All five of his successful title defenses have been via unanimous decisions and two of them came against Soo-hwan. Cardona outpinted Sergio Palma Dec. 15, 1979, in his last title defense. His other two championship defenses were against Ruben Valdes and Yukio Segawa.

Because WBA rules specify that, in a championship fight, the official weigh-in must be held exactly 12 hours before the bout, the fighters will weigh in at 12:30 a.m. PDT Sunday.

Cardona will have a height and reach advantage and Randolph said he will "have to go to the body a whole lot."

He added, "Since he'll probably be moving his head, the closest thing to me will be his body. I'll have to work my way up to his head."

It will be the first world title fight in the state in 19 years. Harold Johnson retained his world light heavyweight championship in 1961 at Seattle on a split decision over Eddie Cotton.

There will be five other fights on the Cardona-Randolph card. In a scheduled six-rounder, lightweight Davey Armstrong of Puyallup, Wash., a two-time U.S. Olympian who is 1-0 after turning pro last month, will go against Edmundo Arrellano of Mexicali, Mexico, 3-0.

In a scheduled 10-rounder, veteran Monroe Brooks of Inglewood, Calif., will meet Curtis Ramsey of Portland, Ore., in a junior lightweight fight. Brooks has a 41-5-4 record.

Strange Leads Houston By 6

HOUSTON (AP) — Curtis Strange compiled some of the best figures in a decade of PGA tour compeition and stretched his lead to a commanding 6 shots Saturday in the third round of the $350,000 Houston Open Golf Tournament.

Strange shot a third-round 66, 5 shots under par. It combined with his opening round of 66 and a course record-matching 63 Friday for a stunning 195 total.

That's 18 strokes under par on the 6,918-yard Woodlands Country Club course and represents the lowest 54-hole total since Paul Harney played the first three rounds in 194 in the 1971 Los Angeles Open.

Only Lee Trevino, a runnerup last week, could keep the 25-year-old Strange in sight. Trevino. He stalked through the muggy heat he loves to a 68 and 201 total.

"Curtis is not exactly making it easy for us," said D.A. Weibring, tied for third at 202. "He had a 4-shot lead starting the day and it would have been easy for him to be a little tentative. He showed a lot of class by being as aggressive as he was."

Weibring birdied four of his first five holes on the way to a 66. He was tied with Jay Haas and Mike Reid. Haas shot a 68, Reid 69.

At 204, 9 under par and good enough to lead most golf tournaments but a distant 9 strokes back, were Jerry Pate, Tom Kite, Ron Streck and Bob Gilder. Kite had a 65, Pate 66, Streck 68 and Gilder 69.

Strange, who staked himself to a big lead with that sparkling 63 in the second round, birdied the two par-5 holes on the front side, the pulled further away from the field wth a string of five consecutive "3s" on the back nine.

That stretch started with a 20-footer for birdie on the 11th hole. He made par on the 188-yard 12th, then stroked a short iron to within four feet of the flag on the 13th.

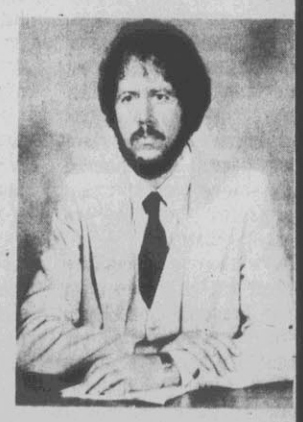

The 14th, probably the toughest hole on the course, was mastered with a 15-foot birdie putt and he made the fifth consecutive "3" with a par on the 15th.

East Germans Against Boycott

By DAVID MINTHORN
Associated Press Writer

BERLIN (AP) — An East German guard at the Berlin wall, spotting an American at a communist checkpoint, promptly condemned the U.S. boycott of the Moscow Olympic Games.

"Sport has nothing to do with politics. That's a new notion dreamed up by your government," the guard said to the American, who was returning from a day's visit to East Berlin.

"It is sad for your athletes. A boycott is not fair to them," the East German said, oblivious of the irony in discussing Olympic ideals at a frontier where communist soldiers still shoot countrymen who try to escape to the West.

The borderssoldier was echoing a bitter campaign by East Germany's state-controlled press against President Jimmy Carter's call for a widespread Olympic boycott to protest the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

East Germany' communist leader Erich Honecker has bluntly warned that East-West relations will suffer if other major countries — namely West Germany — stay home. "The question arises," Honecker said in a speech to East German Olympic athletes last week, "how governments can assume the rightc to make sports into a game for their aggressive policies."

But in the same speech, Honecker revealed just how important Olympic medals are for East Germany's world prestige. "Not leastly were numerous citizens of the USA permanently impressed" with East Germany's showing at the Lake Placid Olympics, he noted.

East Germans won nine gold medals, seven silver and seven bronze there for their best showing at a Winter Olympics, finishing runnerup to the Soviet Union in the standings. Tthe United States was third.

East Germany beat the United States for the first time at the 1976 Montreal Olympics, also placing second to the Soviets. It was no secret that both communist nations looked forward to outdoing the Americans again at Moscow.

And the East Berlin government knows — as do the Soviet hosts — that Olympic medals must be won in head-to-head competition against American athletes to have significant propaganda value. That explains their outrage at the boycott.

The East German guard at the Berlin wall asked the American traveler if there was any chance of U.S. athletes going to Moscow. He was told that the Soviets could save the day by withdrawing their troops from Afghanistan by May 24, the deadline for accepting invitations too the Games.

Nehemiah Beats Milburn, Cooper

HOUSTON (AP) — World record holder Renaldo Nehemiah nicked the ninth hurdle but caught challengers Rod Milburn and Dedy Cooper in the final two hurdles Saturday to win the 110-meter hurdles and highlight the Houston Invitational track meet.

Nehemiah, recovering from an ankle injury suffered playing basketball, trailed Cooper and former world record holder Milburn at the start of the race but came on to win in 13.32. Cooper finished second at 13.34 and Milburn was third at 13.40.

"I thought I had it," said Nehemiah, whose world record is 13.00 in the event. "But I couldn't get up on my ankle and the other guys pushed me. It was tough after I clobbered that ninth hurdle, but I'm happy with the way I ran for my first outdoor race."

Milburn, the 1972 Olympic gold medalist in the event, led the field midway in the race, but with two hurdles to go it was a dead heat among the top three finishers.

It was the first meeting between Nehemiah, representing the Washington International Track Club, and Milburn, running for Houston Athletics. Cooper, running for the Bay Area Striders, is the only hurdler to defeat Nehemiah in the past three years.

Harvey Glance of the Auburn Track Club defeated an elite field in the 100-meter dash with a 10.22 time. University of Houston freshman Carl Lewis was second in 10.25 and Houston McTear of the Muhammad Ali Track Club was third in 10.28.

Texas A&M's Curtis Dickey, a first-round draft choice of the Baltimore Colts earlier this week, finished sixth with a 10.35 time.

McTear, who made two false starts, led until the 75 meter mark where both Glance and Lewis caught him and then dueled to the finish line.

Different Derby For Filly Trainer

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — "I've been through this all before," said trainer LeRoy Jolley, "but this is a little different."

The 42-year-old trainer, talking back in the barn area after his filly won Saturday's Kentucky Derby, was making quite an understatement. It was quite different for a filly to win a Derby.

It's rare even for one to run in the Churchill Downs classic, which has been dominated b colts for 106 years. Genuin Risk joined Regret (1915) as the only fillies to win the event, which has attracted only 31 fillies since its inception and none in the previous 21 years.

Jolley, who saddled 1975 Derby winner Foolish Pleasure and had a runnerup last year in General Assembly, said he was uncertain whether Genuine Risk would go in the May 17 Preakness at Pimlico, the second leg of the Triple Crown. She has been nominated.

Indications were that Jolley was overruled by Bert Firestone after Genuine Risk ran third in the Wood Memorial at Aqueduct April 19. Jolley said after the race that the filly, who runs in the name of Firestone's wife, Diana, wouldn't go in the Derby.

"It looked like there would be a field of 20," Jolley said. "But when the field was reduced to about a dozen and we saw the competition in the Blue Grass, we kicked it around and changed our minds."

As for the Derby, Jolley said, "She was in good position all the way. She began to shuffle back some and that worried me, but then she came back running. She hangs pretty tough."

"Her best race is when she can come off the pace. We may have messed up by staying on the pace in the Wood. We'll rest her and see where she goes next."

Bert Firestone, who has been associated with Jolley for seven years, said, "LeRoy Jolley is probably in my mind the best trainer in America. He deserves all the credit for winning the Derby."

Asked how close they came to running in the Kentucky Oaks for fillies Friday and not in the Derby, Mrs. Firestone said: "It's always been on our schedule. It suits her pedigree and suits her schedule. We weren't very close to not coming."

As for the Preakness, she said, "We'll rest her and take a look at things. She's suited by distance." The Preakness is shorter at 13-16 miles.

"She's a hard-trying filly," said Bert Firestone, "and she never gives up. When she started passing horses — and the ease with which she was doing it — I thought she had it won.

Favorites 5th, 7th In Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Betting favorites Rockhill Native and Plugged Nickle could do no better than fifth and seventh, respectively, in Saturday's Kentucky Derby. And neither jockey offered excuses.

"We just got beat," said Buck Thornburg, who rode Plugged Nickle.

As the race began, Rockhill Native was the slight 2-1 favorite of the 131,859 spectators at Churchill Downs, with Plugged Nickle close behind at 5-2.

Thornburg said he knew at the middle of the last turn his horse was not going to win.

"Going into the backstretch, Rockhill Native ducked out and that didn't help me any. The track was very cuppy and he didn't handle it well. It was like this yesterday morning and when I worked him Monday. He didn't really dig in."

Oldham said he "definitely thought Genuine Risk (the winner) would be a contender, no matter what her sex was. She also had the five-pound sex allowance that was in her favor."

He said his horse got off to a good start, and Oldham was puzzled as to why Rockhill Native ducked out from the rail.

"As far as I could see there was nothing close to the inside rail ... There's a gap there, but he's never indicated anything like that before," said Oldham.

Oldham said he got Rockhill Native "back together and I was doing okay until about the head of the lane and then when I called on him he gave me a little run but nothing like they did. They kept on digging in and he came up empty."

Tigers' Kemp Out Of Hospital

OAKLAND (AP) — A doctor sewed a laceration on the scalp of Detroit Tigers outfielder Steve Kemp and released him from Merritt Hospital following Friday's game against the Oakland A's.

"It wasn't considered a very serious cut," said a hospital spokeswoman, who added, "an emergency room physician sutured it" and sent him home.

She said further details about the injury were not availaole.

Kemp broke up a double play attempt in the eighth inning in the A's 10-6 victory over Detroit, and shortstop Mario Guerrero stepped on the side of his head on the play.

A club spokesman said Kemp complained of dizziness, but appeared okay after the game. He later was taken out of the clubhouse on a stretcher and sent to the hospital.

Phillies Blast Dodgers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies pounded out six hits for six runs, including home runs by Mike Schmidt and Greg Luzinski in the second inning, and went on to beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 7-3 Saturday in a regionally televised game.

Philadelphia starter Larry Christenson, 2-0, pitched scoreless, hitless ball before giving up harmless singles in the fifth and sixth but had to be lifted in the seventh with a run in, and the bases loaded and two outs.

Lerrin LaGrow, who played out his option with the Dodgers last season, relieved and allowed another run on an infield hit, then retired hot-hitting Reggie Smith for the final out of the inning.

The loser was Bert Hooton, 2-2.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Barry Foote drove in a pair of runs with a first-inning triple as the Chicago Cubs scored five times in the first inning and went on to defeat the Cincinnati Reds 7-1 Saturday.

Mike Krukow, 2-1, gave up just four hits and was the winner. Bill Bonham, 1-1, retired just one batter in the first inning and was the loser.

Bonham struck out Lenny Randle to open the first inning but then walked Ivan DeJesus and gave up five consecutive hits as the Cubs scored on an RBI double by Bill Buckner, an RBI single by Jerry Martin, a two-run triple by Foote and an RBI single by Scot Thompson.

ST.LOUIS (AP) — Right-hander Vern Ruhle hurled a four-hitter with last-out help from Joe Sambito and delivered a run-scoring double to lead the Houston Astros to a 4-2 victory over the St.Louis Cardinals Saturday night.

Ruhle, 1-1, allowed only a leadoff single to Garry Templeton in the first inning until the Cardinals scored in the eighth on Ted Simmons' single and George Hendrick's homer, his fourth of the season. Sambito came on after Ken Oberkfell doubled with two out in the ninth and retired Keith Hernandez on a fly ball.

Boston.....7
Kansas City.....0

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Rookie Glenn Hoffman and veteran Carlton Fisk collected four hits apiece in support of Chuck Rainey's four-hit pitching Saturday night to lead the Boston Red Sox to a 7-0 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Hoffman, a 21-year-old third baseman, singled home Ted Sizemore, who had doubled, with Boston's first run in the third inning.

Borbon Buys Own Ticket Back Into Pro Baseball

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Wackier things have probably happened, but how about the case of a supposedly washed-up pitcher buying his own ticket back into baseball?

That's the way General Manager John Claiborne says Pedro Borbon, a shopworn reliever and veteran of 583 major league games, has hooked on with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Borbon, once the scourge of National League hitters with his rubber-armed deliveries, took a called third strike himself when he was released just before the season by the San Francisco Giants.

But the Dominican right-hander refused to give up. Instead, he took a seat among the paying customers with an investment which paid off.

"He came in opening day and asked to buy six box seat tickets, so we sold him some," Claiborne recalled. "He was hanging around here the next day and asked me if he could throw some batting practice, and I said go ahead. The return for six box seats was not too bad. I wonder if he can write it off as business expense?"

Borbon, 33, a nearly forgotten figure from Cincinnati Reds' marches to three league titles in the mid-70s, was cut by the Giants primarily because Greg Minton, a right-hander five years younger, had run out of options to be returned to the minor leagues.

In St. Louis, Borbon waited patiently, pitching batting practice every other day both at home and away as the Cardinals' bullpen wavered. Finally, last Wednesday, the Cards signed him.

Borbon said his alternatives, had baseball not smiled on him onz more time, included a return to the discotheque he owns in the Dominican Republic.

"I'm not ready to retire," he said. "I can help this club. I told (Manager Ken) Boyer, 'Don't worry. If you need me, I'm ready.' I want to put all my power with a winning team."

St. Louis, which has been plagued by weaknesses in relief for several seasons, looks to both Borbon and Jim Kaat for help in the rugged NL East.

Kaat, a 41-year-old left-hander whose contract was bought last Wednesday from the New York Yankees, showed immediate promise by retiring all 12 batters he face in relief appearances against the Chicago Cubs and Houston Astros. Meanwhile, Borbon awaited his turn.

Boyer said he is confident Borbon can resurrect the skills which enabled him in 11 seasons to compile 79 saves and fashion a 68-39 record for three clubs.

"Borbon will throw strikes," the Cards' manager predicted. "All we need to be a contender is for Kaat or Borbon or any other reliever to plug the leak in the dike."

Olympic Torch Gone; Debt, Memories Remain

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — Flames no longer dance atop the Olympic Torch. But its steel tower still soars incongruously from a now-deserted field, and nobody here knows what to do with it.

Should it be sold to help pay off an Olympics deficit of up to $5 million? Or should it be given a place of honor in town to commemorate Lake Placid's moment in history? If it is moved, where should it go?

It is a fitting symbol for the aftermath of the 1980 Winter Olympics. For just as local leaders can't decide what to do with the torch, people here are still not sure of the legacy of the Olympics.

"I had a few reservations before the Games. You know, nice cute town ruined. But now we have all these great new sports facilities. I think the Olympics have re-established this town," says Mike Smart, 27.

"I think in five or ten years we might be sitting on a lot of white elephants," worries Michael Lamitie, a cook in a local restaurant.

Like a fast-moving train, the XIII Winter Games flashed through this town in February, capping decades of hoping and long years of planning on the part of local people.

For 13 days, big crowds invaded the place. Restaurants and Main Street stores were bustling. Some of the smaller stores had to close down for an hour or so daily just to restock their shelves. The flags of 37 nations flew at every Olympic site.

The Games provided moments of great national excitement. And this mountain resort got hours and hours of prime-time television exposure — and all-new sports facilities.

But when the Olympics departed, it left unresolved the very questions about Lake Placid's economic future that winning the Games was supposed to resolve. It's unclear ..hether the publicity will bring in enough new visitors to revive the local tourist economy — and whether the expensive new facilities will prove an addition to, or a drain on, local resources.

Spring is the slow season anyway, so up to this point there are mostly signs of trouble.

The unemployment rate in Essex County has jumped right back up to 14.1 percent. Local officials are thinking about putting plastic snow on the ski jump to try to turn it into a summer tourist attraction.

Now, on a weekday night, a couple can sometimes have an entire restaurant to themselves. Some hotels are closing, and others are struggling with bills.

Gone are the flags, sold at one of the several auctions of Olympics merchandise held recently to help balance the Olympics budget. Some stores on Main Street which were rented out for high sums to corporations during the Olympics are now empty shells.

"It's gone from feast to famine," says Lamitie.

Even before all the bleachers had been taken down, a historical landmark, the Lake Placid Resort Hotel, had declared bankruptcy. Another large local resort, the Whiteface Inn, followed suit this week.

The loss of the Lake Placid Resort Hotel, originally known as the Lake Placid Club, was a particular jolt. The rambling old institution had started the Olympics business in Lake Placid 50 years ago, and had served as headquarters for this year's Games.

But the fate of the hotel is not the major, concrete problem worrying people here in the aftermath of the Olympics.

For most, the biggest worry is how the town can prevent its expensive new facilities, like the $15-million fieldhouse, from turning into white elephants. Particularly the kind of white elephants that force up local taxes.

One new facility is not a worry. The job-starved area got a new $25-million federal prison, which is currently being stripped of the discotheque and other amenities that made it the Olympic Village. The first inmates are to arrive this summer, and with them new jobs for guards and other personnel.

But from the Games, Lake Placid, population 2,800, also got some $75 million worth of up-to-date sports facilities. All were financed by state and federal taxpayers, and none had a guaranteed use for after the Olympics.

Up to now, the local government has managed to avoid paying anything toward the nearly $200 million cost of staging the Games. Now, however, it will probably have to at least help maintain the facilities it got for free.

Immediately after the Games, some local officials were insisting the town wouldn't accept the facilities built by the federal government without promises of federal or state subsidies.

But then local leaders started considering such possibilities as covering the ski jump hill with plastic snow in the summer so visitors can pay to watch summer ski-jumping. The 90-meter ski jump also has an observation deck on top, which the town plans to open to visitors for a fee.

To help finance the costly chore of maintaining four ice sheets in the fieldhouse, the town is trying to sell ice practice and exhibition time to outfits as diverse as Holiday on Ice and the Buffalo Sabres hockey team.

It is looking for concerts and other entertainment it can book in the rink, which seats 8,000 people and was the scene of the U.S. Olympic hockey team's glories.

As the possibilities emerge for making money off the new facilities, local officials have become less insistent on outside subsidies, although few expect the facilities to be totally self-supporting.

"The town is pretty convinced it won't be as difficult as originally thought," says the Rev. J. Bernard Fell, the president of the Lake Placid Olympic Organizing Committee.

But nothing is certain yet. Any scheme ultimately depends on the future tourist trade, since only revenues from outsiders could keep the cost of supporting the facilities from requiring taxpayer subsidies.

And local officials agree it will take one or more seasons before they know whether the Olympics exposure has made the town a more popular destination. Lake Placid is fairly remote, 300 miles from the New York City metropolitan area. Last summer when gas shortages hit, tourism plummeted. Business was also fairly bleak just before the Olympics, because of lack of snow.

Meanwhile, the town continues to live with a host of lesser worries spawned by the Olympics.

As during the years leading up to the Games, the organizing committee is still having trouble balancing its budget. And as it did so often prior to the Games, it is counting on the state and federal governments to fill its budget gap.

There is still barely disguised antagonism between the local folks who comprise the organizing committee and Petr Spurney, the high-priced Washington, D.C. manager they hired to help them out.

Privately, many committee members blame Spurney for the breakdown in the bus transportation system that left spectators stranded for hours during the early days of the Games. And they fault him for a problem-plagued ticket policy, which managed to sell only 80 percent of the tickets available and is contributing to the Olympics deficit.

For now the two sides are sticking together publicly, as Spurney travels to Albany and Washington pleading for aid to fill their budget gap.

And eventually even the private finger-pointing will probably subside. Then the main legacy will simply be everyone's memories.

Some people remember the spectacular nightly fireworks that lit up this village and its beautiful setting in the Adirondacks.

Paul Burns, the manager of the Lake Placid Hotel, remembers how the "Russian counterpart to Petr Spurney sat down to talk to me about how to deal with the IOC (the International Olympic Committee).

"He wanted to know 'What does Lord Killanin like? What about Madame Berlioux?'"

Near the end of an almost flawless opening ceremony, Spurney remembers looking out from the top of the bleachers to the parking lot to see if 50 buses which were supposed to be there were. They weren't.

"That was the moment my Olympics high ended. It didn't come back until the U.S. hockey team won," he says.

Millions of spectators probably agree.

Lady Bucs Sign Goldsboro Guard

GOLDSBORO — Lisa Fennell, a 5-6 point guard from state 4-A champion Goldsboro, signed a grant-in-aid with East Carolina University Saturday afternoon.

She chose East Carolina over North Carolina, Maryland and Virginia Tech.

Considered one of the best ballplayers and the top guard to come out of North Carolina this year, she has just recently been named to the Converse All-America team. In addition, as a senior she was all-State, all-conference, and All-East. She has also been selected to play in the East-West All-Star game in Greensboro in July.

This year, she averaged 21.3 points a game and shot 52% from the floor and was named the Lady Cougars' Most Valuable Player.

In her three-year career on the varsity, she compiled an outstanding record, scoring 1,395 points with an average of 21.3. She averaged 5.8 rebounds with a shooting average of 53%.

In her junior year, she was all-conference, All-East, All-State honorable mention, team MVP, and received the WGBR Award which honors the outstanding High School Athlete in Goldsboro.

Later Saturday afternoon, another Goldsboro star, Anthony Teachey signed with Wake Forest University. Still to sign from Wayne County is Southern Wayne star Cecil Exum, who led his team to the boys' 4-A state title. East Carolina is believed to be vieing with North Carolina for his services.

Denver Inks Washington As Free Agent

Billy Ray Washington, tight end on the East Carolina University football team this past season, has signed a free-agent contract with the Denver Broncos of the National Football League.

Washington caught 20 passes last year for 484 yards and two touchdowns. He had a long catch of 70 yards.

According to former assistant coach Ken Hutcherson, Washington will be used as both a tight end and split end in the Denver offense, depending on the play. Hutcherson feels that Washington has an excellent chance of making the team.

The Jacksonville native becomes the fourth Pirate this year to make the pro ranks. Earlier Sam Harrell, a running back, was drafted in the 11th round by Minnesota, and Mike Brewington, a linebacker, was drafted by Kansas City in the 12th round. Mitchell Johnston, an offensive guard, was signed to a free agent pact by the Dallas Cowboys.

Lee Barnes of the United States won the 1924 Olympic gold medal in the pole vault at the age of 17.

Get Mocap®. Before nematodes get your soybeans.

Nematode damage can cost you 15 to 20 bushels of soybeans per acre. But thanks to Mocap® nematicide-insecticide, it's a loss you can easily avoid.

Mocap controls root-knot, sting and lesion nematodes that feed on the root system of soybean plants. By destroying these nematodes, Mocap helps insure the development of healthy roots that can channel important nutrients and soil moisture to your plants. And that can help you get the kind of yields you should be getting.

Mocap comes in two easy-to-apply formulations—Mocap 10G (granular) and Mocap 6 EC (liquid). And it's economical to use. So see us for the Mocap you need this season. And see the difference it makes in your soybeans.

Babe Ruth League

Coca-Cola 8, Planters Bank 7

Coca-Cola opened the Babe Ruth League's warmup season last night with an 8-7 victory over Planters Bank.

Planters took the initial lead with two runs in the first, but Coke came back with one in the third. Planters pushed in four more in the fourth, only to see Coke come back with an equal number in the bottom of the frame. Planters then added another in the fifth for a 7-5 lead.

In the bottom of the seventh, Coke rallied to win. Eric Woodworth singled and Louis Fletcher got a hit. David Meltzer walked, loading the bases. A wild pitch let Woodworth score, and Jeff Anthony reached on an error, scoring both Fletcher and Meltzer, winning the game for Coke.

Mont Carter led the Planters hitting with two, as the losers got only three off two Coke hurlers. Marshall Rand and Woodworth each had two hits for Coke.

Pepsi-Cola 12, Home Builders 2

Pepsi-Cola opened its Babe Ruth League season with a 12-2 romp over Home Builders last night.

Pepsi pushed over one in the first and added another in the second. But it was the third that provided the winning margin.

In the third, Hunter Bost led off, hit by a pitch. Terry Smith singled and moved to second on the throw as Bost moved to third. Bobby Casey grounded out, allowing Bost to score. Ted Stanley was hit by a pitch, and a passed ball let Smith score. Stanley stole both second and third, scoring when Scott Stallings singled. That made it 5-0.

Pepsi added one in the fifth, one in the sixth and five in the seventh, while Home Builders got one each in the fourth and seventh.

Smith led the Pepsi hitting with three, and Bill Messick added two. Smith scatted just three hits to the Builders, and no one had more than one.

Wachovia Bank 5, Aaction Movers 1

Wachovia Bank downed Aaction Movers, 5-1, in their opening Babe Ruth League game Saturday evening.

Wachovia got all it needed in the first inning. Mike Kinley got a two-out walk, and Barry Nichols singled, then stole second. Both scored on a single by Jody Forbes.

Wachovia added its other three in the second, while the lone Aaction run came in the seventh.

Forbes led the Wachovia hitting with two, while Rudy Stalls had two for the losers.

Prep League

Elks 7, Auto Specialty 6

The Elks nipped Auto Specialty in the first Prep League game of the season yesterday, 7-6.

The Elks pushed over three in the second to take the initial lead in the game, only to see Auto Specialty tie it up with three in the top of the fourth. The Elks added two in the bottom of the frame, regaining the lead, 5-3. Auto Specialty came back with three in the sixth, taking a 6-5 lead, but couldn't hold it.

In the bottom of the sixth, the Elks scored twice to gain the win. Todd Martin walked and Murray Harris doubled, then stole second. Both scored on wild pitches.

Glenn Duffy had two hits to lead Auto Specialty, while Harris had two for the Elks.

G. Hardware 11, 1st State Bank 8

Greenville Hardware opened the Prep League season yesterday with an 11-8 victory over First State Bank.

The Hardwaremen picked up three in the first inning, then saw the Bankers score one in the second. Greenville Hardware added two in the third, but State Bank came up with five to take a 6-5 edge at that point. The Hardwaremen added one in the fourth, then pushed over five in the fifth to move ahead for good, 11-6.

In the fifth, Jay Wynne singled and stole second. Mike Gavigan singled him in, and moved up on a passed ball and wild pitch, scoring on an out by Greg Barrett. Bruce Thompson walked and so did Jordy Smith. Cedric Hines singled in two runs and moved to third on an error, scoring when Jason Boyd singled.

First State Bank came back with one each in the sixth and seventh, but fell short.

Hines, Wynne and Gavigan each had two hits for the Hardware, while Billy Michel and Dwight Smith each had two for First State Bank.

Win Kentucky Derby

Genuine Risk, ridden by Jacinto Vasque, wins the 106th running of the Kentucky Derby Saturday in Louisville. Genuine Risk was the first filly in 21 years to run in the Derby and the first to win the Run for the Roses in 65 years. (AP Laserphoto)

Second Time A Charm For Jacinto Vasquez

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Jacinto Vasquez twice tried to prove that a filly could beat the best of the Kentucky Derby field. The first attempt ended in tragedy; the second in triumph.

The veteran jockey stood atop the thoroughbred racing world Saturday afternoon in the fabled Rose Garden at Churchill Downs.

His mount, Genuine Risk, had overcome 65 years of history and 12 of the best 3-year-old colts and geldings the sport could offer in becoming the first filly since Regret in 1915 to win the Derby.

There was more than a touch of irony to Vasquez's victory, and questions in a postrace news conference inevitably turned to another year and the other great filly he once rode.

The year was 1975 and the filly was Ruffian.

Her legend grew as she romped unbeaten through her 3-year-old season, but she skipped the Derby.

That spawned a match race at Belmont Park in New York against the Derby winner, Foolish Pleasure, to decide once and for all the premier horse of 1975.

A national television audience watched the tragedy unfold on the backstretch as Ruffian broke down, a foreleg shattered. Vasquez leaped to the ground and tried frantically to calm her, but Ruffian fought to remain upright. She had to be destroyed the next day.

Ironically, Vasquez had ridden Foolish Pleasure in the Derby that year and there was more irony Saturday in that LeRoy Jolley trained both Foolish Pleasure and Genuine Risk.

There were no tears from Vasquez Saturday for past tragedies, only exuberance for present triumphs. He laughed and joked, but he refused to compare horses.

"It might incriminate me," the jockey said.

But Vasquez said he never doubted Genuine Risk was of championship caliber. He said he told Jolley a year ago the filly could take the roses at Churchill Downs.

This year's Derby field was denegrated from the beginning as merely reflecting a mediocre crop of 3-year-olds. Vasquez would take nothing from Genuine Risk, but indicated he agreed with the assessment.

Asked if he felt the filly could hold up over the 1½-mile Belmont Stakes, traditionally the most demanding of the Triple Crown classics, Vasquez said: "With this company, she could go two miles."

Derby Footnotes

Off 539 EDT 10-9-2 (PGM 8-7-2) Time 2:02 (13) went clear and fast. Start good won driving 28.60 10.60 4.80 5.20 3.40 4.40.

Genuine Risk settled nicely as the field came away in good order and was reserved behind Plugged Nickle and inside Withholding around the first turn and early backstretch. She was eased back slightly and moved to the outside smoothly approaching the half-mile pole, gradually raced to the leaders outside four rivals, and took command entering the stretch; was hit once with the whip right-handed, increased advantage under six well spaced strokes as Vasquez switched to the left and continued resolutely to the end.

Rumbo dropped back last soon after the start and was kept outside rivals gradually improving position, swerved under right hand urging after racing wide into the stretch and gained steadily under heavy left hand urging in the final furlong.

Jaklin Klugman saved ground behind the first flight, worked between rivals around the final turn and moved boldly in pursuit of the winner settling into the homestretch, but could not sustain his bid.

Super Moment stayed close to the rail and closed well from the head of the stretch to outfinish the others.

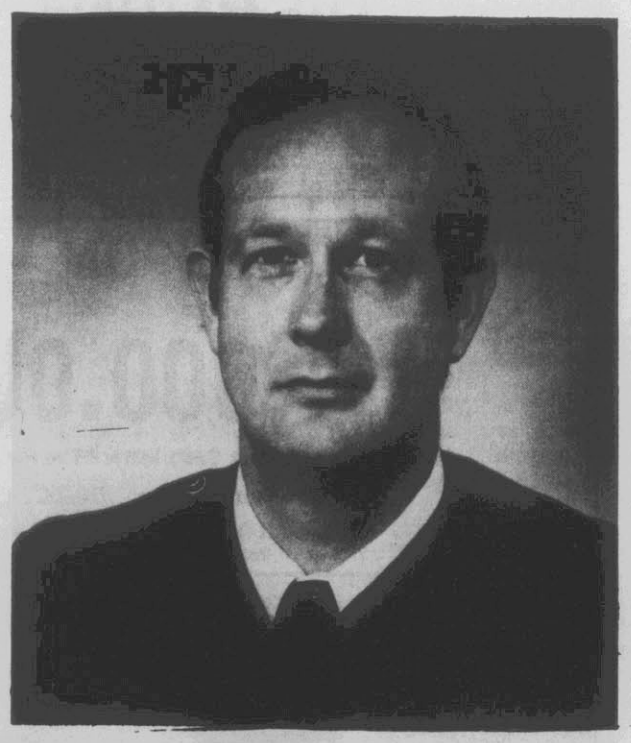

Rockhill Native had no difficulty taking a clear lead from between rivals entering the backstretch, but swerved out and was lightly checked for a stride approaching the six furlong pole, stayed with the pace to the top of the homestretch and then weakened.

Bold 'n Rulling raced with the pace along the rail for six furlongs, gave way approaching the stretch and drifted out, then held on fairly well in the straightaway but pulled up lame.

Plugged Nickle rated near the lead outside Rockhill Native and Bold 'n Rulling, bore out slightly on the final turn, then raced true while tiring in the homestretch run.

Degenerate Jon was a factor for six furlongs and tired. Withholding was very wide outside the first flight and tired. Tonka Wakhan was outrun. Execution's Reason was used up early. Gold Stage also tired early. Hazard Duke was not a factor.

Now you can re-shingle your own roof and save up to $800.

New Roof-It-Yourself Shingles from Celotex have a new design. They make re-roofing so easy, it's almost impossible to make a mistake.

For years, you do-it-yourselfers have been building shelves, laying floors, putting up wall panelling. But you hesitated when it came to re-roofing. Too big a job, you thought.

That was before Roof-It-Yourself Shingles by Celotex, a completely new re-roofing system that makes it a cinch to line up the shingles, fit them around dormers, chimneys and vent pipes, and seal all joints.

The special instruction book tells you everything you need to know. It is utterly complete, contains 40 pages and 70 diagrams, and is a marvel of simple, clear language. Every detail is explained; every question you could possibly think of is answered.

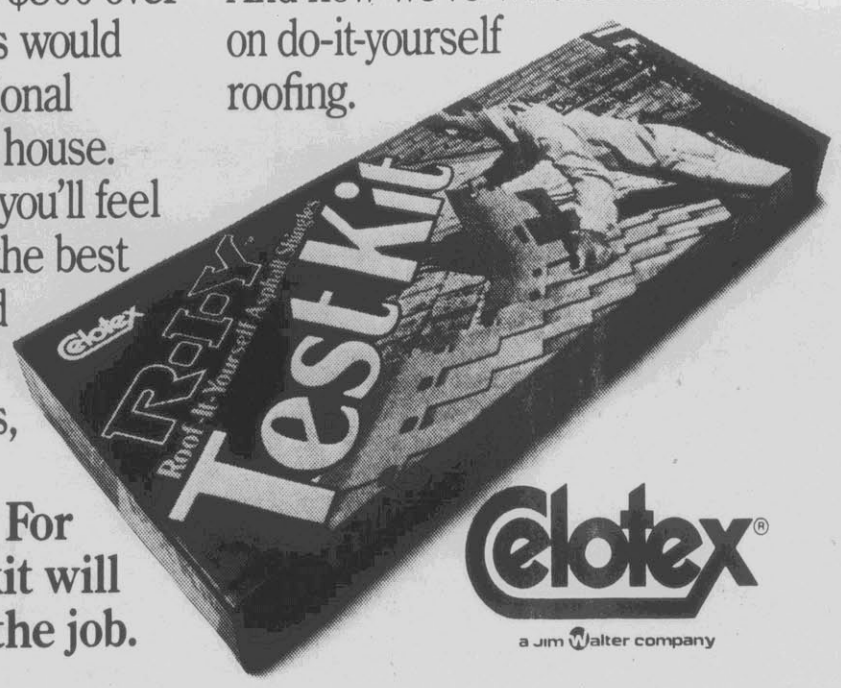

All you need is a ladder, hammer, utility knife, carpenter's square, tape measure and chalk line. And the ability to handle those simple tools. Yes, re-roofing is still a big job, but now you can handle it. And save up to $800 over what professional roofers would charge, based on the national average for a 3-bedroom house.

When you're finished, you'll feel proud, you'll have one of the best looking roofs around, and you'll have a limited warranty for not 15 years, but 20 years.

Try before you buy. For only $9.95, this test kit will tell you if you can do the job.

Kit includes the complete Instruction Book, one bundle of shingles, a template to follow, a nail apron, plus instructions for how to use the Test Kit. It gives you the valuable opportunity to actually place a few shingles on your roof, get the feel of the job, and see how they look. When you buy the rest of your Roof-It-Yourself Shingles, just send proof of purchase to Celotex and we'll send you a check for $9.95, so the Test Kit will have cost you nothing.

Roof-It-Yourself Shingles are brought to you by Celotex, the people who wrote the book on roofing. And now we've written the book on do-it-yourself roofing.

Rampants Hand Rocky Mount First League Loss

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Roger Williams didn't enjoy himself when Rose High School traveled to Rocky Mount a little over a month ago. He was chased early in the baseball game, and had plenty of time to think about it. While he eventually didn't get the loss, it still didn't set well.

Friday night, he got another shot at the Gryphons, and when the seven innings of play was ended, Williams was the one smiling. For him, revenge truely was sweet.

His three hitter had woven a 4-2 victory for the Rampants and Rocky Mount had suffered its first Division I loss, and only its second of the year.

"Williams was just awesome tonight," an elated coach Ronald Vincent said afterwards. "I've never seen him throw as hard and with such control. It was his best game and he got fine play behind him. It really makes you think when you realize he's just a sophomore."

Vincent was pleased with the entire play of the team, which committed no fielding errors behind Williams. They really didn't have that many opportunities since Williams fanned 12 while not giving up a walk.

"This was the best game we've played this year. When we play like this, we can play anybody around and I'm not worried about the outcome," Vincent said. "It seemed like our bats woke up a little bit tonight, too. If they have to hit home runs to beat us, then I feel all right."

As it turned out, it was almost the case. Both of the Rocky Mount runs scored on hard-hit home runs, and two long fly balls were caught just shy of the fence.

Now, a loss to Fike of Wilson on Tuesday looms larger. But for that, the Rampants would be tied with Rocky Mount for the league lead. As it is, they remained a game behind the Gryphons.

"I don't think that it will hurt Rocky Mount the rest of the way," Vincent added. "They are a veteran ball club and should be able to bounce back. Of course, we have to continue to play well the rest of the way, and hope that someone will give us a little help in catching them."

Williams wasn't touched until the fourth inning of the game. By then, Rose had established a 4-0 lead.

The Rampants lost on a chance in the first on a freak double-play by star shortstop Bill Merrifield. Mark Shank had walked and Mike Campbell hit a looper into right, putting runners on first and second. After a strikeout, Williams hit a line drive to short that bounced just at Merrifield's feet. He scooped it up, tagged Shank, who had had to hold up on the sharply hit ball, then stepped on second, forcing Campbell.

In the second, however, the Gryphon bubble burst, as Rose came up with four runs. Todd Galloway got a one-out single, and with two away, Mark Douglas slashed one through the middle. Jeff Wilson walked, loading the bases, and a walk to Shank forced in Galloway. Campbell singled through the middle, scoring both Douglas and Wilson, and a hit to right by Will Barrett brought home Shank with the fourth run. Williams followed with another hit, reloading the bases, but a ground-out endmd the inning.

In the third, another double-play, coupled with another fine fielding effort by Merrifield halted another rally by Rose. Galloway again singled and Emmett Walsh laid down a bunt to third. No one covered first, so he reached safely. Douglas missed on a bunt attempt his first strike, then swung away on the second, with the shortstop and second baseman both charging. Merrifield made a diving scoop of the ball, throwing to third to force Galloway. Wilson reached when his bunt was errored, again loading the bases, but a grounder to short led to a double play, ending the threat.

Rose failed to put a man on in the fourth and fifth, then left Wilson at third in the sixth after an error, wild pitch, a walk and a ground out.

Rocky Mount finally got to Williams in the fourth. Bill Wilkes led off, tagging a Williams' fast ball out of the park in dead center, over the 360 sign.

Williams saw the next batter, Kevin Bunn, push Shank up against the fence in the same spot to make the catch for the first out of the inning. The next five also went down in order, but Steve Barnes opened the sixth with another homer to center.

One out later, Wilkes reached on an infield hit, but was the final baserunner for the Gryphons. Merrifield again backed Shank to the fence for the catch.

Campbell and Galloway each had two hits to lead the Rose batting, while Wilkes had two of the three Rocky Mount hits.

The victory raised the Rose record to 13-3 overall and 8-2 in Division I competition. Rocky Mount is now 16-2 overall and 9-1 in the league.

Rose returns to action on Tuesday, hosting Northeastern in a 4 p.m. game at Guy Smith.

Pearson, Baker Lead Assault On Talladega

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — David Pearson and Buddy Baker will lead the speed assault on the Alabama International Motor Speedway Sunday in the $315,000 Winston 500 Grand National stock car race.

Pearson, who won the pole position at the world's fastest speedway with a clocking of 197.704 mph, says there is no strategy involved in racing at Talladega.

"It's too fast here for strategy," explained Pearson. "You just have to go along with everybody else and see what they do. Then you try to do it better than they do."

Baker, who earlier this year set a 500-mile race speed record at Daytona, also will start on the front row of the 42-car field. He qualified his Oldsmobile next to Pearson's with a speed of 197.675.

"This is going to be just like Daytona," Baker noted. "You run it wide open all day and, if it holds together, you win."

Adding to the speed show at Talladega is the fact that the 2.66-mile, high-banked oval was repaved last fall.

"It's faster out there now because it's smooth as a pool table," Baker said. "When the race gets going, I think we're gonna be drafting pretty well over 200 (mph)."

Baker and Pearson each has won three 500-mile races at Talladega. But Baker also has had some bad luck here.

A year ago in this race, he started in the same position as he will Sunday and moved into the lead after one lap. However, on the fourth lap, Baker's car skidded sideways at the head of a huge draft and started a spectacular 17-car wreck that eliminated many of the top cars.

"I still don't know how I got through that," said Allison, who is starting 11th Sunday. "But, you can't worry about that kind of thing happening. You can't be conservative at this track. You just have to try to go fast with everyone else and hope things break your way."

Panthers Make History, Defeat Chargers, 6-2

By LARRY SULLIVAN
Reflector Sports Writer

BETHEL—May 2, 1980, is a day that will live in history for North Pitt baseball.

For on this Friday, the Panthers defeated stubborn Ayden-Grifton, 6-2, to record their 11th victory of the year, the most victories ever by a North Pitt diamond club.

"We're playing the way I want us to play," Panther mentor Pat Smith said after his team's ninth Eastern Carolina Conference win of the season against four losses. "We're playing with a little more confidence, but then I guess winning tends to build confidence. I'm proud of them."

On the other side of the field, Ayden-Grifton head coach Alan Wilson knew exactly why the Chargers suffered their sixth loop loss, and he told them so.

"We just didn't hit the ball today," he said after watching his unit collect only four hits in the seven-inning affair, "and we gave them a couple of runs early that they shouldn't have got.

"But we're a young team as I've said all season and we're bound to get better. We're playing decent baseball, we just have to improve."

Panther southpaw Melvin Howard kept the Charger bats at bay during the hour-and-a-half contest, limiting Ayden-Grifton to just four hits while relying on his teammates to make the outs. Howard fanned and walked three in the game.

"He keeps the ball in the strike zone and makes the hitters hit routine balls," Smith said of his steady lefthander.

Howard was supported at the plate by his team as the Panthers ripped Charger starter Brandt Allen (0-1) for nine hits over four and a third innings while scoring five of their six runs. Tyrone Gay relieved Allen in the fourth and was promptly greeted with an RBI single, the only hit the Charger ace surrendered in his one and two-thirds innings work.

The home-standing Panthers struck first with a single run in the bottom of the second inning. Bob Hemingway reached on an error and was sacrificed to second on a bunt by designated hitter Marty Barber. After a second out, Hemingway raced home on Greg Briley's single.

Ayden-Grifton tied the game with a run in the top of the fourth, taking advantage of a sudden attack of wildness suffered by Howard. Clayton McLawhorn walked but was caught stealing second. After the second out, Joe Kennedy walked and Allen was hit by a pitch before Mike McLawhorn responded with a two-out single, plating Kennedy.

The Panthers answered with a score in the bottom of the fourth when Barber walked and stole second before racing home on a wild pitch that Charger catcher Mike McLawhorn could not find. The Panthers wasted a pair of hits in the inning, leaving two men on base.

After a one-two-three top half of the fifth, Smith's squad tallied four runs in the bottom of the inning to put the game on ice. Ronnie House led off with his second hit of the game and stole second before charging home on Hemingway's single. Hemingway advanced to second when his hit was errored by Art Rouse. Barber followed with a towering triple to deep left-center, driving Hemingway home. Ken Whitehurst plated Barber with a single to right, and after moving to third on Briley's booted ground ball, scored on William Beacham's third hit of the game.

The visiting Chargers managed to tally the last run of the game in the top of the sixth. After on out, Gay doubled and scored on Allen's single. Allen and Mike McLawhorn, who reached on an error, were left stranded on base.

Beacham led the offensive charge, collecting three hits in three at bats. The Panther catcher was the only player on either team to gather more than one hit in the contest.

Minnesota Happy With Split In Philly

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Despite a 7-0 blowout at the hands of the Philadelphia Flyers in Thursday's second game of the National Hockey League Stanley Cup semifinals, Minnesota Coach Glen Sonmor says his team is happy with a split in the two games.

The North Stars won the first game 6-5. The best-of-seven series resumes Sunday night at the Met Center. Game No. 4 is also slated for the Met on Tuesday.

"If we had said to you before we came into Philadelphia that we were going to win one and come home 1-1, you would have said 'great,'" Sonmor said in an article written for the Minneapolis Star. "We have to view the sojourn...a success."

Sonmor said he was concerned not so much with the score, which was embarrassing enough, but with the way the Flyers manipulated his team both physically and on the power play.

"This is going to be a long, tough series and we can't allow them to get a feeling of superiority that comes with handling us the way they did in the second period," wrote Sonmor.

The North Stars hope to avail themselves of the home-ice advantage, something they did not do against Montreal in the quarterfinals. In that series, Minnesota won two at the Forum for a 2-0 lead, but then lost three straight before ousting the four-time defending NHL champs in seven games.

In order to establish any kind of upper hand, however, the North Stars need to revamp their power play, a segment of their game which stood out during the regular season but was dismal against Philadelphia.

Thursday, Minnesota was 0-for-6 while the Flyers, dead last in that department during the year, were 4-for-4.

"We gave them four power play goals and that won't happen again," said Sonmor. "They pounced on every opportunity."

"Our power play was like the Eighth Wonder of the World," said Paul Holmgren.

"Our power play has never looked so ineffective in quite some time," Sonmor countered.

Phil Myre, the Flyers' goalie who admits he has not had good luck over the years against Minnesota, shut the North Stars out by stopping 27 shots and is expected to be back in goal for Philadelphia.

The North Stars started Gary Edwards Thursday, but will probably come back with Gilles Meloche, who started Tuesday's game. Minnesota, however, still has a number of question marks due to injuries.

Kent-Erik Andersson, who was slashed by Ken Linseman Thursday and suffered a bruised left hand, is doubtful for Sunday. Defenseman Fred Barrett is out for three weeks, but another defenseman, Curt Giles, may return Sunday after missing two games with an ankle injury.

Farmville's Dunn Wins 1,600 Run At Sectionals

JACKSONVILLE — Farmville Central's Karen Dunn was the only area winner in the Girls Sectional Track Meet held Friday in Jacksonville, but at least nine other girls qualified for Thursday's Regional Meet to be held in Wilson.

Dunn captured the 1,600-meter run with a time of 5:37.9, and then finished second in the 3,200-meter, posting a time of 12:41.8.

Rose High School had seven girls to qualify, including one in two events. Judy Daniels finished fourth in the 100-meter dash in 12.6 seconds, and ran the lead-off leg in the 400-meter relay team. Joining her on that team were Tammy Mayo, Davena Cherry and Angie Atkinson, finishing fourth in 52.2 seconds.

Laurie Smith took third in the discus with a throw of 105''8', while Sharon Williams was fourth in the triple jump with a leap of 34''1', and Karen Hendrix was third in the 400-meter run in 62.1 seconds.

Farmville added two more to its list, with Charlene Lang finishing fourth in the shot with a throw of 33''6½', and Denise Baptist taking third in the 800-meter run in 2:31.9. Two other Farmville girls, Sharon Dupree in the 100-meter hurdles, and Rose Lang in the 400-meter run, finished fifth, but did not qualify.

The top three finishers from Thursday's meet will advance into the state meet, to be held the following week.

Softball Roundup

Washington 23, Williamston 22

WASHINGTON — Washington High School rallied for two runs in the bottom of the seventh, then added two more in the bottom of the eighth to outslug Williamston, 23-22, in a Northeastern Conference softball game Friday.

Williamston scored three in the top of the first, but Washington came back to score seven in the bottom of the inning. For the rest of the way, the two teams continued to swap the lead, with Williamston finally moving into a 22-20 lead in the sixth inning.

But after holding Williamston scoreless in the top of the seventh, Washington scored twice in the bottom of the inning to tie it again. Williamston went back up with one in the eighth, but Washington pushed over two in its half of the inning to claim the win.

Washington was led by Theresa Wooden at the plate with five hits. Tammy Peele had four, including two homers, one a grand slam in the first and the other for three runs in the second. Lynn Hodges, Evelyn Guilford and Carol Jansen each added three, while Juanita Brockwell, Jane McCall and Tammy McRoy each had two.

Williamston was led by Betty Davis and Gail Smith, each with four. Smith had a three-run homer in the first. Carolyn Hudgins, Theresa Duffy, Ginger Edwards and Sherri Singleton each had three.

Now 5-4, Williamston travels to Ahoskie on Tuesday.

Ayden-Grifton 28, North Pitt 8

BETHEL — Ayden-Grifton rode a 27-hit attack which included six players with three hits to rout North Pitt, 28-8, Friday afternoon in an Eastern Carolina Conference softball match.

The league-leading Chargers took commmand early, moving ahead 11-0 after the first inning and never trailed in handing the Pant-HERS their ninth loss of the season without a win.

Ayden-Grifton was led at the plate by Irene Lewis, Edna Braxton, Aretha Cannon, Joan Albritton, A. Strong and L. Brown, all of whom had three hits. Braxton had a home run and a double while Albritton had a triple. Brown had two doubles while Lewis had one.

Marie Lewis and D. Elks both had two hits for Ayden-Grifton. Lewis' hits included a home run while both of Elks' hits were doubles.

North Pitt was led by Mary Lewis, who had two hits.

The Pant-HERS play host to Farmville Central Tuesday, while Ayden-Grifton travels to North Lenoir.

Rose Netters End With Win

Rose High School closed out the regular season in tennis Friday with a 7-2 victory over Rocky Mount.

The victory gave the Rampants a 10-3 overall record on the season, and guaranteed them of no worse than a tie for the Division I championship with a 10-1 record.

Rose will travel to Wilson on Wednesday to participate in the sectional playoffs. Scott Bailey, Jeff Quinn, Larry Talbert and Bert Singleton will participate in the singles competition, while Danny Elmer and Paul Farley will team up in the doubles.

Summary:

Jeff Quinn (R) defeated David McGee, 6-4, 6-7, 6-0.

Genuine Risk

From Derby Deb To Belle Of Ball

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Genuine Risk, the reluctant debutante, became the Belle of the Ball Saturday, just as a 13-year-old kid from New Orleans predicted.

The hoopla that engulfed the beautiful chesnut filly after her stunning win in the 106th Kentucky Derby was only a dream a few hours before, as her handlers prepared her for history.

Groom Jack Johnson, a businesslike fellow, was braiding the filly's mane when a pint-sized visitor peeked over the wall.

"You know," said Norman Kearns, a visitor from

Louisiana, "I bet $20 on Genuine Risk."

Johnson gave the youngster a dubious look, and went back to work.

"You've got that right," he said.

Johnson leaned out of the stall and looked at the mob surrounding the stall of Rockhill Native, one of the favorites, and then looked at the three people watching Genuine Risk.

"Not too many people around here," he noted, then pointed to the crowd around another horse. "Look at all those people. Wait and see where they come after the race."

The filly actually had drawn quite a strong following, considering that her owners almost hadn't entered her in the Derby after she finished third in the Wood Memorial.

Henry Roberts, a Vietnam veteran who now is a security guard, felt the filly's chances were excellent despite the odds, if for no other reason then her security guard.

"This is the fifth year in a row I've escorted a horse for the Derby," Roberts said. "Last year, I had Spectacular Bid, and before that I had Alydar, Seattle Slew and Honest Pleasure.

For the unininitated, Bid won last year's Derby and Slew was victorious in 1977. Alydar was second in 1978 and Honest Pleasure was second in 1976. Clearly, Roberts has a way with horses.

During his five years of guarding such luminaries, Roberts has seen mobs congregate the stables.

"But I think this lady is the most popular of them all," he said. "She's real nice, and the people like her."

With her mane sporting a green ribbon and her luminous coat shining in the afternoon sun, Genuine Risk nuzzled her lead pony and made her way to the Churchill Downs paddock. All along the way she drew cheers — most of them from female backers.

"I love you, baby," one woman yelled, as another accompanied her on a tambourine. "Go, baby!" yelled another. "Run for me, honey!" another screamed.

Trophy Was A Genuine Risk

Diana Firestone, owner of Genuine Risk, fondles Kentucky Derby trophy in Winner's Circle at Churchill Downs on Saturday. Genuine Risk, a filly, originally was not to have entered in the 106th Run for the Roses, but as the field dwindled from an orginal 20 to 12, the Firestones decided to enter their filly. 'Hail To The Filly!'

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — "Hail to the filly!" yelled a dozen or so male jockeys lounging in their quarters as they watched a television replay of the 106th Kentucky Derby.

"Any cheers for the ladies?" cried Phyllis George Brown, Kentucky's first lady, entering the champagne victory party.

"Watch out for the women now — they're going to take over," said Daniel Bates, a grizzled black man, the valet for Jacinto Vasquez, the jockey who rode Genuine Risk to victory Saturday over 10 colts and two geldings in America's biggest horse race.

It was the first Derby triumph for a filly since 1915 when Regret outclassed male rivals for the first and only time in the race's history.

It was "Ladies Day" at Churchill Downs.

Women everywhere — from Gloria Steinem's militant libbers to the more sedate homebodies — raised glasses in celebration of another feminine milestone.

It marked their greatest advance since Billie Jean King beat the braggart Bobby Riggs in tennis' "Challenge of the Sexes" in Houston in 1973.

"What the guys can do, we can do better," Billie Jean chortled at the time. It became a national cry among the so-called weaker sex, and Saturday, Genuine Risk added an equine "yeigh."

Well, maybe.

"Sure, I think we'll see more fillies challenging the colts," said jockey Laffit Pincay, whose California-bred Rumbo could come no closer than a length to the heels of the flying filly.

"She was running out there — make no mistake about that. But she beat a not too strong a bunch of colts. We had no rabbits out there."

Someone asked Pincay for an appraisal.

"If they leave her in a barn," he said, "I win my first Derby." He is 0-for-7 in Derby races.

Don Brumfield, who rode Hazard Duke to last place in the 13-horse field, said he could not rule out the possibility of a woman jockey someday crossing the finish line first in the saddle of a filly in the Derby.

"Remember, Diane Crump rode here in 1970," he said, referring to the Derby's first woman rider. "Also, we have had good women jockeys in recent years — Robyn Smith, for instance."

Darrel McHargue, who rode No.3 finisher Jaklin Klugman, said he wouldn't be surprised to see trainers running more fillies against male horses in big races — a practice long discouraged in the profession.

"Women are coming on strong," he said. "They might try anything. Genuine Risk — she surprised me very much with her stamina. She ran the last quarter in 242-5. That's good for any horse."

Eddie Arcaro, the greatest of the stakes riders and winner of five Derbies, had downgraded Genuine Risk's chances prior to the race, saying, "In the spring, the fillies have too many thoughts of love. They stop cold."

Arcaro had this experience with Nellie Flag, the Derby favorite in 1935, when the filly finished fourth behind Omaha.

Even Vasquez, who had ridden the great Ruffian in her ill-fated match rqce against Foolish Pleasure in 1975, was skeptical.

"In every sport, men can do things better than women," he said a week before coming to Louisville. "Why shouldn't that be true of horses?"

Today, the winning jockey sang another tune.

"Sometimes, maybe girls stand up to the boys," he said. "This was one of those days. Today, the lady beat the men."

Correction

In Friday's story on the Division I track meet, the text read that Rocky Butler won the discus for Rose High. It should have read Ron Butler.

The "Daily Reflector" regrets the error.

Guidry Gets Win, But Is Unimpressive

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

When he was 25-3 for the New York Yankees two seasons ago, Ron Guidry had one of those once-in-a-lifetime years. It's beginning to look as though 1980 may be one of those years...in reverse.

After four no-decision outings, two good and two shaky, Guidry finally posted his first victory of the season Friday night. But the 9-6 triumph over the Minnesota Twins was anything but impressive.

Guidry yielded 10 hits and six runs — two of them unearned — before needing help from Rudy May. Ken Landreaux tagged him for three singles, including a pair of two-run hits.

"When it takes you five times to win one game, it looks like it's going to be one of those years," Guidry said.

In other American League games, the Boston Red Sox edged the Kansas City Royals 6-5 in 11 innings and spoiled Darrell Porter's return to action, the Milwaukee Brewers blanked the Chicago White Sox 8-0, the Oakland A's outslugged the Detroit Tigers 10-6, the Baltimore Orioles downed the Texas Rangers 7-5, the California Angels defeated the Seattle Mariners 3-1 and the Cleveland Indians trimmed the Toronto Blue Jays 6-1.

Reggie Jackson and pinch hitter Jim Spencer hit two-run homers for the Yankees to help Guidry notch his initial victory. Jackson slammed his fifth homer of the season off loser Geoff Zahn in the first inning. He also singled and scored on Eric Soderholm's double in the fourth, drove in a run with a double in the seventh and scored when Spencer homered off Terry Felton in the seventh.

Red Sox 6, Royals 5

Jack Brohamer singled home Carlton Fisk, who had doubled, in the 11th inning with the first pinch hit by a Boston player this season. Kansas City's Jamie Quirk tied it and chased Boston starter Mike Torrez with a two-run homer in the seventh. Fred Lynn's two-run double in the Boston seventh had given Torrez a 5-3 lead. Rick Burleson's solo home run in the fifth gave the Red Sox a 3-2 lead until Quirk doubled in the Kansas City sixth and scored on Clint Hurdle's double.

Brewers 8, White Sox 0

Sal Bando drove in three runs with a sacrifice fly and a double and Ben Oglivie delivered a double and two singles to back Mike Caldwell's seven-hit pitching. Ken Kravec took the loss although five of the seven runs he allowed were unearned.

The Brewers struck for three runs in the second inning, one on a double by Oglivie and another on Bando's sac fly. They added four more in the seventh with Oglivie rapping a two-run single and Bando following with a two-run double.

A's 10, Tigers 6

Tony Armas drove in four runs, three with a seventh-inning homer, as Oakland moved back into first place in the AL West, one-half game ahead of the White Sox. The A's took a 5-0 lead in the first three innings against loser Dave Rozema. Jason Thompson and John Wockenfuss homered for Detroit.

Orioles 7, Rangers 5

Doug DeCinces and Lee May hit consecutive two-run doubles off Jim Kern to spark Baltimore's five-run eighth-inning. The rally erased a 4-2 Texas lead built on two-run homers by Al Oliver and Jim Sundberg. The Orioles batted around against three Texas pitchers in the eighth, with DeCinces' double tying the score and May's hit putting the Orioles in front.

Angels 3, Mariners 1

Dave Frost pitched a five-hitter and Rod Carew singled home the go-ahead run with two out in the seventh inning. Tom Donohue led off the seventh with a double and took third on a groundout. After Carney Lansford struck out, Carew singled home the tie-breaking run. The Angels added an insurance run in the eighth on Dan Ford's double, a sacrifice and a single by Al Cowens.

Indians 6, Blue Jays 1

Len Barker and Mike Stanton combined on a two-hitter and Tom Veryzer drove home two runs with a double in Cleveland's four-run second inning. The Indians jumped on Dave Stieb for four runs in the second on two walks, Cliff Johnson's RBI single, Veryzer's two-run double and a double by Jorge Orta.

Horner Is In Uniform, But Not In The Lineup

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Third baseman Bob Horner is back in uniform with the Atlanta Braves, but it's uncertain when he will be back in the lineup.

Horner refused a club order two weeks ago to report to the minors, but he rejoined the Atlanta team Friday night, watching from the dugout as the Braves beat Pittsburgh 6-1.

When might he return to action?

"You gotta give me a couple days," he said after taking batting practice and infield drills. "Basically, all I did was run (during the absence). I wasn't a member of the team, so I couldn't use the stadium. There was no where I could go."

Atlanta Manager Bobby Cox was asked when he might use the 23-year-old Horner.

"I don't know," he said. "It'll be at least some days. He was out for 12 days. If we got down to it, I'd use him tonight as a pinch hitter, but he hasn't really had time."

Last season, Horner hit 33 homers and batted .314 despite missing six weeks of the season with an injury and the distractions of a contract battle that ended in binding arbitration.

As rookie of the year in 1978, he reported directly to the Braves from Arizona State University after he was chosen No. 1 in the free-agent draft.

However, Horner had only two hits in 34 times at bat this season. On April 21, the Braves ordered him to report to their Class AAA Richmond farm team. He refused.

This week, however, the Braves said they would welcome him back to the roster. Horner agreed to return, but he still said he wanted to be traded.

"I'd rather be somewhere else," he repeated. "But there's not a whole heck of a lot I can do about it."

Horner's contract would permit him to veto trades to certain teams, but he said Friday he would not exercise that option.

Would he accept any deal that would get him out of Atlanta?

"Yes," he said.

Horner said he was well received by his Atlanta teammates, who won five of eight games in his absence after a 1-9 start.

How does his current problem compare to his contract dispute last season?

"This has been worse by far," he said. "I have a whole season under my belt and I've played well. I finished high up in a lot of categories. They're saying it doesn't matter."

Afghan Team Is Ambushed

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A bus carrying the Afghan national hockey team, which was to have competed in the Moscow Summer Olympic Games, was attacked on a northern highway by rebels who killed and captured an unknown number of athletes.

Afghanistan now will only send a wrestling team to the Moscow Games, a source said. The national soccer team, which also had been slated to go, will not participate since seven of its top players recently defected to West Germany.

According to a delayed report from Kabul Saturday, the hockey team was returning from a Soviet Central Asian republic when it was stopped near Jare Khosh, a village near Kunduz, a northern provincial capital, 230 miles north of Kabul.

The report quoted survivors as saying the athletes were the apparent target of the attack. They speculated that the insurgents sought to kill them for cooperating with the Soviets by recently playing against Russian Central Asian teams.

It said some of the athletes went into shock, a few escaped and the remainder were either killed on the spot or taken prisoner by the rebel tribesmen.

Our State is Moving Again.

"But this is North Carolina, and we can do even better."
James B. Hunt, Jr.
Governor
State of North Carolina

On May 6, your vote for Governor Jim Hunt will keep our state moving ahead.

North Carolina is moving because Jim Hunt has kept his commitments to the people. Governor Hunt's been around the state listening to your ideas and suggestions . . . and then coming back to Raleigh to put those ideas to work.

Improving education. Fighting crime. Slowing increases in utility rates. Protecting the environment. Working to make state government more efficient and responsive. Bringing in more and better jobs. Helping people who need help.

It's been a true working partnership effort with you, your neighbors, and other elected leaders.

Our state is moving forward again because of citizen involvement and Jim Hunt's leadership.

Now, we really are getting somewhere.

Phillies Cool Off Dodgers' Hot Streak

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Charlie Hough is one of the "stoppers" in the Los Angeles Dodger bullpen.

But Friday night, the only thing he stopped was a 10-game Dodger winning streak.

Wildly erratic, the usual artful Dodger walked the bases loaded in the eighth inning, opening the gates for a four-run Philadelphia rally. And the Phillies went on to cool off the hot Dodgers 9-5.

The Dodgers' right-handed knuckleball specialist allowed the first run by a Los Angeles reliever in the last 11 games, covering 162-3 innings.

That happened when Hough gave up Greg Gross' two-run single after walking the bases loaded. Bake McBride later singled home the final two runs of the rally.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Atlanta Braves defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-1, the St. Louis Cardinals walloped the Houston Astros 9-1, the Chicago Cubs bombed the Cincinnati Reds 12-4 in 12 innings, the San Diego Padres blanked the New York Mets 1-0 and the Montreal Expos turned back the San Francisco Giants 4-3.

Braves 6, Pirates 1

Phil Niekro scattered seven hits for his first victory of the season and Chris Chambliss and Jeff Burroughs each drove in a pair of runs as Atlanta defeated Pittsburgh. Niekro, who had lost his first four starts, allowed the only Pirate run in the second inning on Phil Garner's RBI single.

Cardinals 9, Astros 1

Ted Simmons snapped a 1-1 tie with a sacrifice fly in the sixth inning and then lashed a three-run homer to cap a seven-run seventh as St. Louis beat Houston.

Simmons delivered the Cardinals' go-ahead run in the sixth after Keith Hernandez walked, stole second and took third on a wild pitch by Nolan Ryan. The Cardinals then broke open the game in the next inning as Ken Reitz and Garry Templeton each singled home a run, Hernandez knocked in two more with a base hit and Simmons hit his second homer of the season.

Cubs 12, Reds 4

Pinch-hitter Mike Vail blasted a three-run triple to key an eight-run 12th inning as Chicago routed Cincinnati.

The Cubs scored twice prior to Vail's triple on RBI singles by Ivan DeJesus and Dave Kingman, and came up with three more following Vail's hit on an RBI single by Mike Tyson and two-run homer by Lenny Randle, batting for the second time in the inning.

Bruce Sutter won in relief and Tom Hume was the loser, also in relief.

Padres 1, Mets 0

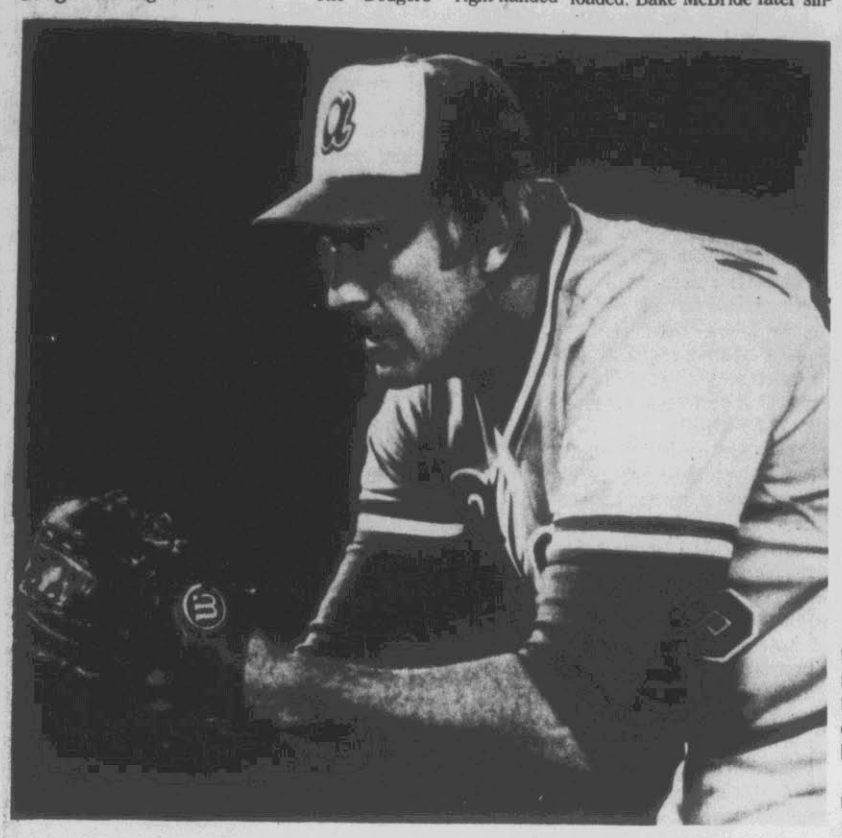

Catcher John Stearns' bad throw during a second-inning rundown enabled Willie Montanez to score from third and give San Diego its victory over New York.

Rick Wise, the first of three San Diego pitchers, earned the victory with relief help from John D'Acquisto and Steve Mura. Mura earned his second save as the three Padre pitchers scattered seven hits.

Expos 4, Giants 3

Ellis Valentine, who had homered earlier, smashed a run-scoring single in the bottom of the ninth to lead Montreal past San Francisco. Pinch-hitter Rodney Scott started the winning rally with an infield hit, then stole both second and third to set the stage for Valentine's dramatic hit.

The Expos trailed 1-0 before scoring three runs in the eighth, two on a homer by Andre Dawson and another on Valentine's homer. The Giants rallied to tie the score in the top of the ninth on Milt May's two-run double.

Prof: Put Ruiz On Treadmill

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — If Rosie Ruiz wants to show she is capable of recording the third-fastest women's marathon time in history, she could do it on a treadmill, says University of Buffalo physiology professor David Pendergast.

The test might be more reliable than the lie-detector exam the 26-year-old jogger offered to take, he said.

"I think any exercise test where you measure quantitative data is less influenced by outside psychological factors — what's going on in her head," he said. "We'd measure her aerobic (oxygen-using) power, and it would be possible to determine what value she would have to run at in order to complete the race in what she says she ran it in."

Aerobic power is determined when a subject quits charging a treadmill because of oxygen depletion. Having found the "cost-of-running value," researchers then multiply it by the distance run for a "total cost of running."

Matching Ruiz's alleged Boston Marathon time — 2 hours, 31 minutes, 56 seconds — with her cost-of-running value would yield a rate of oxygen consumption which could be reduced to a percentage, Pendergast said.

"If she came up with something like 120 percent, she'd have to have run at a value higher than she had, which is impossible," he added.

The Boston Athletic Association, which sponsors the Boston race, Tuesday stripped Ruiz of her 1980 women's title on the grounds that she did not run the full 26 miles, 385 yards.

The action followed the New York Roadrunners Club's disqualification of Ruiz's time for the 1979 New York Marathon.

However, the Cuban-born woman has continued to insist she outran experienced, world-class runners in her second try at the distance and has refused to part with the winner's medal.

Three Tied In LPGA

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Three golfers are tied for the lead going into Sunday's final round of the $100,000 Women's International Golf Tournament.

Amy Alcott, Sally Little and Hollis Stacy are deadlocked at 7-under-par 209 through 54 holes.

Stacy, who held a 1-stroke lead over both Alcott and Little after two rounds, shot a 1-under 71 Saturday, while Little and Alcott both carded 2-under 70s.

But the big story Saturday was 12-year tour veteran Debbie Austin, who charged into contention with a record-tying 6-under 66. Austin shot identical 33s on the back and front nines, hitting 17 greens in regulation to pull to within one shot of the lead at 210.

Marlene Floyd was another hot golfer Saturday. Floyd, sister of PGA veteran Ray Floyd, was 4-over after nine holes Saturday before burning up the back nine with a 31 for a 1-under 215 total.

Beth Daniel, 1978 rookie of the year on the LPGA tour, is three shots back at 4-under 212 after a 71 Saturday, while first-round leader Nancy Lopez-Melton also shot a 71 and is at 3-under 213.

Stacy blew a two-shot lead early Saturday with a double bogey on the 170-yard, par-3 seventh hole.

BETTER GOVERNMENT.
NOT MORE GOVERNMENT.

AS YOUR NEXT GOVERNOR, BOB SCOTT WILL:

- reorder the spending priorities of state government;
- fight for relief on county property taxes;
- return decision-making authority to local governments;
- push for public election of the Utilities Commission;
- make the Industrial Commission more responsive to the work force;
- increase teacher and state employee salaries equal to the inflation rate;
- reduce classroom size so that the teacher can teach and the student can learn;
- promote environmental protection and alternative energy sources;
- support law enforcement efforts to combat crime, especially the drug traffic problem;
- use his experience of having served as Governor of N.C. before (1969-73);
- repeal of the New Generation Act;
- make the tax dollar benefit those who need it the most—the physically and mentally handicapped, and the elderly;
- improve and maintain our secondary road system, our urban system, and our rural primary system, instead of building unnecessary new superhighways;
- support legislation to set up a "petition and referendum" system to give the people of this state the veto power.

CAPISTRANO CALLS — The old Spanish Mission of San Juan Capistrano, not far from Los Angeles, is one of California's historic treasures. Each year it draws large numbers of tourists who enjoy the huge shade trees, flower gardens and the famed architectural remains that reveals the grandeur of past years when the area was under Spanish influence. A typical scene is this view of an ancient tree and a geranium garden framed by a massive arch. (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

By SANDY COLTON
AP Newsfeatures

One corner of Eddie Adams' basement game room is filled almost ceiling high with plaques and photo awards, stacked like cordwood.

If you rummage through them you'll find the Pulitzer Prize, Capa Award, Magazine Photographer of the Year, World Press Award and a host of others.

When talking to strangers he appears shy and wears a sort of bashful look. He's quick to blush. But put him in a competitive situation and all this can disappear. He can become mean.

While Adams does handle himself well in competitive situations, he seems to be at his best when he's off on his own. He was the first, for example, to really tell the story of the boat people — the Vietnamese refugees fleeing in old boats only to find no port would take them in.

The word "boat people" was popularized by his stories and pictures. A song was written, laws passed in Congress and public sentiment stirred for the fate of the refugees as a result.

It seems impossible that one man could be so versatile.

Adams works for The Associated Press now, out of New York. He still shoots but his major love has gone over to a dream — something he calls "the Photo Farm."

Some time ago, Adams bought a farm in upstate New York. It was a city boy discovering the country and he was hooked. Now, every spare moment he has, and every spare dollar, goes into remodeling the farm buildings. The main barn is being transformed into a studio. Photo darkrooms will replace the cow stalls on the main floor.

Electricity was brought in, a pond enlarged, the main house modernized — and most of the work is being done by Adams and friends in order to stretch a relatively meager budget.

Completion is still a year or two away. When it is finished, Adams hopes to establish a school of photography, running various types of classes featuring instructors from among a host of professional friends.

His devotion to this ideal has already spawned a spinoff, an idea conceived among friends who have become infected with the photo farm concept.

The subject was photography, naturally, and the new decade of the '80s with so much happening to change the lives of working and aspiring photographers. How could photographers get the diversity of information they needed to approach the problems and promises of the '80s?

What was needed, all agreed, was a conference like the old University of Miami Communications Conference which served the field for more than 20 years before it died. Why wait for two more years for the Photo Farm? Do it now!

Later, each called other friends to test the idea. Enthusiasm multiplied. Within a week a board of directors was put together: Art Goldsmith, editorial director of Popular Photography, Rothstein, Adams, Durniak, Bob Gilka of National Geographic, Will Hopkins, art director of the original LOOK and now with American Photographer, Bob Pledge of Contact picture agency, and Howard Chapnick of Black Star.

Speakers and seminar leaders were lined up: Phil Kunhardt, Life's managing editor, Gordon Parks, still photographer-writer-musician and movie director, Ken Reagan and Neil Leifer, two successful still photographers who've just completed a budget film in London, Rebecca Blake, fashion photographer, David Burnett, 1980 Magazine Photographer of the Year, Frank DeVino, art director for Omni magazine, Ernst Haas and Douglas Kirkland, plus a host of other photographers, editor sand technicians.

A name was chosen, "Eye 80." A date and place set: June 2-6 this year at Stevensville Country Club, Swan Lake, N.Y. — less than a hundred miles from New York City. Attendance would be limited.

For more information, if you are interested, write to: Rita Quinn, c-o Movie Magazine, 435 West 57th St., New York, N.Y. 10019.

If this conference comes off as it's shaping up, it will help insure that Adams' dream of the Photo Farm will turn into a dream come true.

Orphange For Elephants

By SUZANNE F. GREEN

PINWALLA, Sri Lanka (UPI) — Out of the morning mist comes a fearful trumpeting.

Four hundred pounds of baby elephant charges, trunk aloft, toward a clanking bucket and the first batch of her daily 36 bottles of powdered milk.

In October two government agents discovered Malika lying near starvation, clutching a sapling with her trunk and crying for her mother. Now five months old, Malika is the youngest charge of the elephant orphanage.

Sri Somasri, who heads a staff of 12 rangers at the 124-acre government-run compound, said a farmer probably shot the mother for straying into his vegetable patch.

The orphanage population has dwindled from the usual dozen to seven with the Sri Lanka government giving pachydermal presents to foreign countries, most recently China.

Julunda, a sweet-tempered but gawky 5-year-old male, lost half an ear and one eye to the gun of the poacher who killed his mother. Nee La, a plucky 6-year-old, was found wandering alone after her mother fell into a pit. Hadira, 7, was abandoned by his herd when he fell into a mine and broke his back. Two years later he is lumpy but healthy.

The orphanage was established in 1974 by former Prime Minister Sirimavo Bandaranaike.

Wildlife experts in Sri Lanka, formerly known as Ceylon, say it will take more than a sanctuary for motherless babies to save the nation's dwindling herd of 3,500 elephants from encroaching civilization.

With each animal munching each day through 200-400 pounds of leaves, grass and bark, space and food are growing scarce.

Gas Prices Restrict Nomadic Trailer Trekkers

By STRAT DOUTHAT
Associated Press Writer

ONA, W.Va. (AP) — In the early 1970s, when 50 cents still bought a gallon of gas, thousands of retirees bought trailer homes and hit the open road. They were senior citizens out "to see America."

A new, mobile culture sprang up among older Americans. Hundreds of travel parks were built across the country, special motor travel magazines were started and contented couples from Maine to New Mexico rolled along and realized their nomadic dreams.

Lots of those people are still rolling, but they're seeing much less of America, taking shorter trips and staying close to home.

"We're still traveling, but we drive less and stay longer these days," Jim Jackson said one recent evening as he and his wife, Edna, relaxed in front of their trailer at a campsite just off Interstate 64. "We're also doing less sight-seeing than we used to."

The Jacksons are what the campground operators call "snowbirds." They winter in the South and come back to the North in the spring, along with the robins and other migratory birds.

"We spent the winter at Homestead, Fla.," said Jackson, a retired Defense Department employee. "We just made it down there before dollar gas, and we paid $1.20 a gallon on the way back. When we bought our trailer, two years ago, gas was still less than 60 cents a gallon."

The Jacksons said they heard a lot of complaints about gasoline prices this past winter.

"The people we talked with at Homestead were irritated but we didn't notice anybody who had actually quit traveling," he said.

But if the Jacksons are still on the road pursuing their dream, thousands of other dreams have been stalled along the way.

Gary LaBella of the Recreational Vehicle Industry Association at Chantilly, Va., said sales of recreational vehicles were down 41 percent last year. He attributed the drop to inflation and soaring gasoline prices.

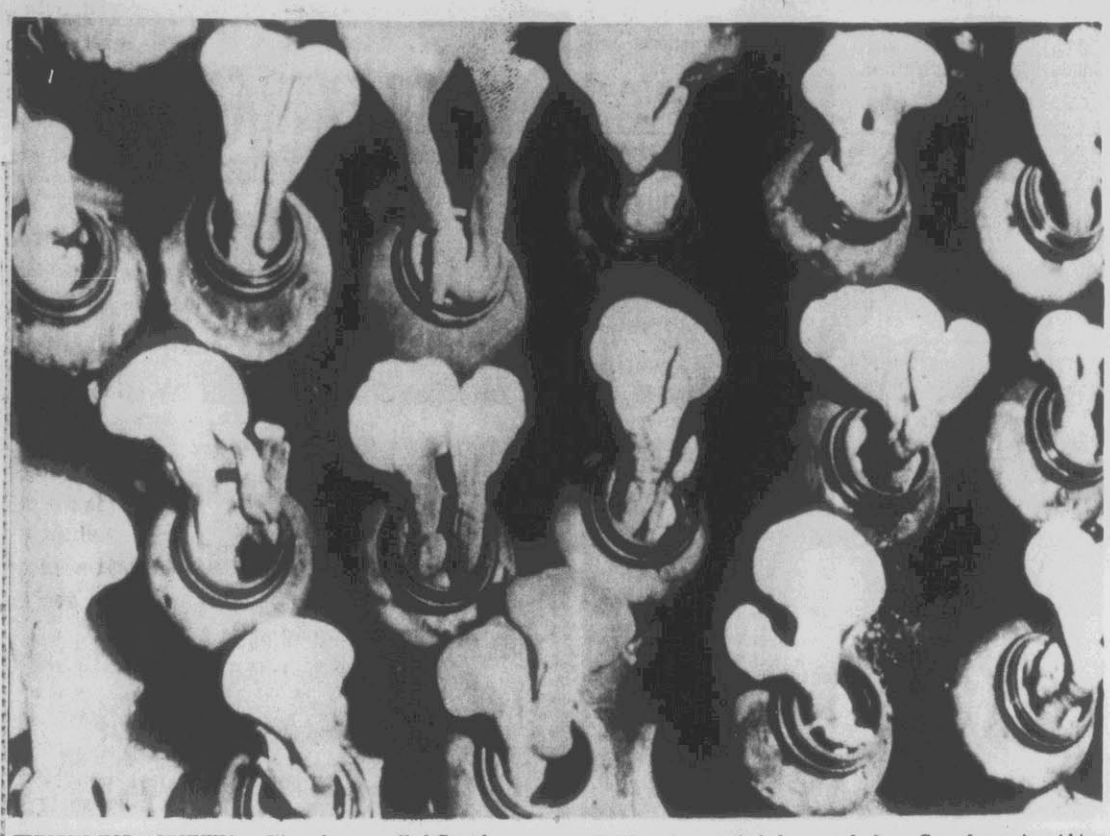

The million or so nomads — people who literally live in their trailers — constitute but a small percentage of the travel trailer owners in this country. LaBella estimated that some 6 million U.S. families, constituting about 24 million people, own some form of recreational vehicle, from customized vans to the big travel trailers.

I.V. Cunningham, owner of the southern West Virginia campground where the Jacksons had stopped for the evening, confirmed that travel habits of recreational vehicle owners have changed dramatically over the past couple of years.

"Used to be, 90 percent of my business was transient," he said. "Now, most of my campers come from this area. Instead of going to the beach for vacation, they'll be coming here this summer."

Cunningham said the situation has forced him, and other campground operators, to invest more heavily in recreation for his guests.

"Got to have something for the kids to do," he said.

FUNGUS FOR ASPHYXIA — It's a fungus called Ganoderma, and China's Linhua news agency says Chinese cultivators have had considerable success raising the medicinal herb in an artificial environment. A drug made from Ganoderma is said to be effective "for the prevention of physiological disorder and pathological changes caused by asphyxia. (AP Laserphoto)

Nuns Make Coffins The Poor Can Afford To Buy

DENVER (AP) — Two Catholic nuns helping out at a soup kitchen and refuge for the homeless here have started a project of their own — constructing plain pine coffins the poor can afford.

P.J. Manion and Anna Koop, both in the order of the Sisters of Loretto, have sold three of the no-frills coffins so far for $100, touting their wares by explaining the boxes can be used in a variety of ways long before death.

Manion says she sleeps on her rectangular coffin, and uses the inside for storage.

"With the smell of pine, it's like sleeping in the woods," she explained.

The coffins come in two styles — a pine and an elongated, diamond shaped plywood model the nuns call the "Boris Karloff."

Either may be used as book cases, tables and storage containers, with shelves installed on request, the women said.

Eventually the coffins will be put together by volunteers and staff serving the Denver Catholic Worker, the refuge next door to the nuns' workshop. Transients staying at the facility will add their efforts to the project, Koop said.

"We wanted to serve low-income people by providing an alternative to the very expensive casket," Koop said. "People don't have to do what has been done in the past."

The nuns said they intend to distribute the coffins through local pastors who are in touch with the needy.

Eventually the women hope to expand the project to provide simple funerals and burials for the poor.

Camouflage A Problem

MESA, Ariz. (AP) — Showcat breeder Sylvia Boyd has something of a problem with the wiry cousins of the Siamese that are known as "colorpoint" cats. The problem is camouflage.

The colorpoints, beige and brown with blue eyes and speckled whiskers, blend in all too well — with almost anything. Once one of her colorpoints seemed to be missing, but after a two-hour search he was found in her lingerie drawer under some nightgowns.

"They hide on windowsills and behind drapes," she says. "You'll walk through a doorway and you've got a shriek, because you've just slammed the door on a cat."

So why does she keep them? Not for financial reasons, she says, although a kitten that sold for $250 two years ago brings $350 today. Nonetheless, she went $6,000 in the hole in 1978, she says.

No, it's an ego trip for some, a matter of prestige, she says — but it's socialization and companionship for Mrs. Boyd. Some of her cats drift into her bedroom each night, and for her, that's happiness.

Ethiopian Student At ECU Comments About Third World Problems

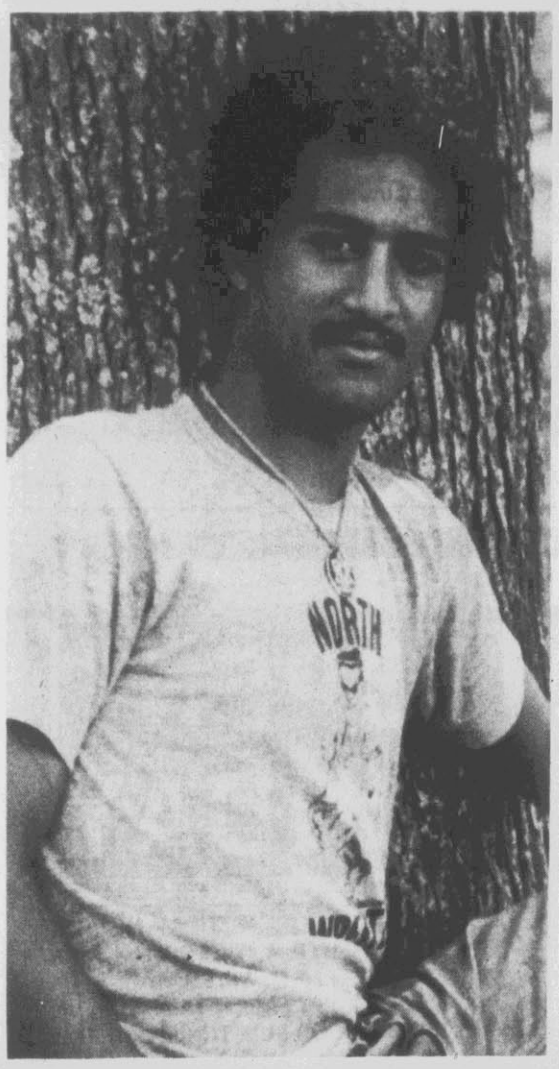

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Sunday Editor

Lulseged (Dean) Dhine, a 20-year old native of Eritrea, now part of Ethipia, is a University Evening/Refugee College student taking courses at the Division of Continuing Education, East Carolina University.

Dean stressed there's a difference in his status as a Refugee College student and what people generally consider as a refugee. "It is the status I have in order to study in the U.S.," Dean explained. "Father Mulholland helped me get here to study."

Born in Asmera, formerly the capital of the small nation of Eritrea which was federated with Ethiopia in 1952, Dean received his early years of education in Ethiopia's capital, Addis Ababa. "First I went to a private school, a school operated by the Coptic Church, then I attended a government school until I was 14," Dean said.

"I was more fortunate than many in Ethiopia because I was able to go to school. So many young people do not have this chance. In the U.S. everybody can go to school. But in Ethiopia and in many poor third world countries, this is not so," he added. Recent statistics show that only about ten percent of Ethiopian youths are enrolled in school.

LULSEGED (DEAN) DHINE . . . an Ethiopian student in the Continuing Education Division at East Carolina University, says the lack of opportunities for young people in the so-called "Third World" countries helps create conditions for the growing refugee problems in Africa and Asia.

Dean said it has been six years since he has been in Ethiopia. Because his father works for the Ethiopian delegation to various European locations of the United Nations organization, he was fortunate in being able to travel and to receive further education in Italy, France, Holland and then in London, "where I learned to speak English. I think I am a bright student when it comes to learning languages," he laughed. In Ethiopia the art of acquiring languages is important, as there are almost 100 distinct languages in use by the country's approximately 25 million people.

"It is not just education, but in my country like in many other poor countries, the people have a life of suffering. A big majority of the population is under 20 years old. There is no school for so many young people, not much work, and not enough food. And too many people. They go to the big cities and they become over populated," Dean said.

"So because of all these things, you have people looking for a better life, and you have the refugee problem in many countries."

"Some day I hope to return to Ethiopia after I get my degree. Then I can work with the people and try to help. I think there is much I could do."

Ethiopia has been termed as the "people musuem of the world" because of its great range of ethnic origins. Dean says "I. myself am from a minority group, the Falasha." The Falasha are said to be a pre-Talmudic group of Jews who have long inhabited scattered areas in a couple of Ethiopia's provinces.

A wiry, energetic youth, Dean says Greenville "is just great, especially now that the cold weather has finished."

Many Refugees In Horn Of Africa

By MICHAEL SULLIVAN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There are nearly four times as many refugees in Somalia in Africa as in Cambodia and Thailand.

The plight of the "Boat People" of Vietnam and of Afghans fleeing Soviet invasion has held the headlines, but in terms of sheer numbers, fighting in the Horn of Africa between Somali guerrillas and Ethiopian forces has produced the "major refugee problem," according to the United Nations High Commission for Refugees.

The Horn of Africa, comprised of Ethiopia, Somalia and Djibouti in northeast Africa, draws its name from its distinctive shape, resembling the horn of a rhinoceros.

Africa's refugees today number an estimated 2.5 million, of a world total of 9 million, according to U.N. figures. The Organization of African Unity however, estimates there are 4 million refugees in Africa.

The U.N. commission estimates the number of Southeast Asian refugees at 400,000 in camps, plus an unknown number on the Thailand-Vietnam border.

Today one of five Somalis is a refugee, and while the flow of refugees is expected to slow, U.N. officials say they have no idea how many more may be expected.

The Sudan, which has declared 1980, "Year of the Refugee," houses an additional 400,000 Ethiopian refugees.

Despite being "serious in terms of numbers," says Stan Siegel, Co-ordinator for African Refugee and Humanitarian Affairs of the Agency for International Development, "The willingness of African nations to take in their own (has) taken the urgency out" of relief efforts.

"You don't have the utter starvation, the desperateness" that is the case with the boat people, he said.

As many as 1,000 refugees enter Somalia daily. The number of refugees has jumped from 88,000 in mid-1978 to 1 million to 1.5 million today. Only 500,000 of the refugees find shelter in the 21 permanent and five transit camps. Another 700,000 live outside the camps.

Women and children make up 90 percent of the camp populations. The men remain in Ethiopia or are in guerrilla groups fighting Ethiopian forces.

"There is no electricity in any of the 21 camps, no refrigeration, no innoculations, no latrines and uncontaminated water," reported Rep. Andrew Maguire, D-N.J., on a recent visit to the region.

Both United States and United Nations authorities expect the camp figure to climb to 650,000.

Somali refugee program costs to the U.N. have increased from $3.5 million in 1979 to $40 million in 1980, a twelve-fold increase in one year. Somalia will receive the largest share of the commission's $120 million to $150 million 1980 Africa budget.

Agencies such as Oxfam and the International Red Cross have responded to a Somalia plea for $70 million in additional aid. Medical and construction teams from Sweden, France and the United States and supplies will be sent to meet the growing crisis, U.N. representatives said.

The United States' has sent five shipments of medical and non-food items such as kitchen utensils, clothing, blankets and bolts of cloth since January. Food aid totaling 47,000 metric tons, including 23,000 tons of corn, has been sent to Somalia since Oct. 1.

Dream Sail For A Brig

SAUSALITO, Calif. (AP) — Glynn Christian's dream to capture the essence of his ancestor, famed mutineer Fletcher Christian of the HMS Bounty, set sail Saturday for Pitcairn Island.

The brigantine Taiyo was to begin its expedition two months after Christian came here to enlist a ship and sponsors for the trip that will culminate his two years of research into his ancestor's life. He plans to join the Taiyo in Papeete, Tahiti, in July for the final 1,300 miles of the journey.

"I'm writing the first-ever biography of Fletcher Christian," said the great-great-great-great-grandson of the famous British lieutenant-turned-mutineer.

The Bounty, exploring the South Pacific in 1789, was 24 days out of Tahiti when Christian and his followers took over the ship, put Capt. William Bligh and 18 crewmen into a lifeboat and sailed away.

Desperate to find a safe hiding place in the vast Pacific, and thus escape a hanging, Christian finally sailed the Bounty to Pitcairn with women from Tahiti.

The two-square-mile island became their world, for they burned the Bounty eight days after they arrived. History records that several years after the occupation of Pitcairn, all but one of the mutineers were killed fighting over the women. Glynn Christian insists on another possibility.

"There are two theories — one, that Fletcher died on Pitcairn, the other that he managed to escape secretly and come back to England where he was the basis for Samuel Taylor Coleridge's 'Rime of the Ancient Mariner.'"

Glynn said he intends to find out.

Business Notes

PRESIDENT'S CUP AWARDED

The officers and employees of Planters National Bank's Greenville office were honored recently at a dinner here for the entire staff. The "President's Cup" award was presented to them in recognition for their performance during 1979.

James B. Powers, PNB chairman and president, assisted by J. Richard Futrell Jr., executive vice president, made the presentation to Doug Starr, senior vice president and Greenville city executive, and Eddie C. Smith Jr., chairman of the bank's local board of managers, on behalf of all employees of PNB's local branches.

BUSINESS SEMINAR

The business management session was held at Hilton Head, S.C.

NAMED LIFE MEMBER

W. M. Scales Jr., a general agent for Integon Life Insurance Corp. in Greenville, received an award recently given for the first time in the company's history, Integon announced.

Scales was named a life member of the President's Inner Circle, a collection of Integon's top agents in 28 states. Integon said that only a limited number of its agents qualify for the club every year. The designation permits Scales and his wife automatically to attend Integon's seminars, conventions of Inner Circle meetings anywhere in the world every year for the rest of his life, it was mentioned.

The award, given by Carl A. Dull Jr., president of Integon Corp., and James R. Ridley, CLU, FLMI, president of Integon Life Insurance Corp., cited Scales for his "31 years of outstanding service to his company and his clients."

Scales, who joined the company in 1948, is Integon's all-time leading agent. He has served as president of the Inner Circle several times and has received almost every existing award given by Integon or the insurance industry, the company reported.

RANKED NINTH

The William H. Fleming District Agency here for the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Milwaukee ranked ninth among all NML district agencies in sales volume for March, the company announced.

Northwestern reported that Reggie Fountain, CLU, of the Fleming Agency was the leader in sales for the eastern North Carolina region.

The agency, which is affiliated with the Arthur DeBerry & Associates Inc. General Agency in Durham, has offices at 114 E. Third Street in Greenville.

HIGHER RESULTS

TRW Inc. reported higher sales, earnings and earnings per share for the quarter ended March 31.

The company said that sales for the first quarter reached $1.2 billon, a 15 percent increase over 1979 first period totals of $1.1 billion. Net earnings climbed to $47.9 million, a nine percent gain over the $43.8 million posted in the first quarter last year.

Fully dilluted earnings per share were $1.30, compared with $1.19 in the year-ago period while primary earnings per share were $1.47 versus $1.36 in the first quarter of 1979.

NEW SERVICE

A new service, Dial-A-Wake, is now being offered to Greenville and the surrounding areas, a spokesman for the wake-up service announced.

He noted that residents can be awakened by Dial-A-Wake between the hours of 5-8 a.m. Monday through Friday. In addition, rewake and weekend calls are available, plus the present temperature, through the service's 756-0158 number.

FINANCE SPECIALIST

Mrs. Barbara Monk Sylla, daughter of Mrs. Ada B. Monk and the late Leander Monk Sr. of Bell Arthur, has accepted employment in Lome, Togo (West Africa) as a finance specialist with OIC International.

Mrs. Sylla, who arrived in Togo with her husband, Boubacar, and their two sons, will spend two years in the West African country. Prior to the new assignment, the family resided in Philadelphia, Pa.

COMPLETED COURSE

Jerry Grimsley and Milliard L. Harrell, local employees of Carolina Telephone, recently completed a one-week course conducted by the company at its Rocky Mount training center.

Grimsley and Harrell are PBX installer repairmen in the company's Plant Department here, according to A. H. Cobb, district plant manager.

ELECTED TO BOARD

W. A. ALLEN III

FARMVILLE — William Alexander Allen III has been elected to the Farmville board of First Union National Bank, the bank announced.

Allen, a farmer and operator of the New Blue Warehouse here, also serves as vice president of Farmville Implement Co. He is a member and past director of the Pitt County Farm Bureau and the Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade.

The new board member, who attended N.C. State University, is married to the former Mary Marshall and they have three children.

West Looms Large In Decker's Life, Novels

By PHIL THOMAS
AP Books Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — "All kids want to be cowboys," William Decker says with a smile. "I got to be one."

Lots of children also want to write books. Decker got to do that, too. His novels are, of course, set in the West. The latest is "The Holdouts," an information-studded story of life on a large Arizona cattle ranch. Decker describes it as "a contemporary book about the people of my generation and how they have responded to the traditions of the West."

The 54-year-old Decker began absorbing the Western lore he uses in his books at an early age.

"I grew up on cowboying in Texas and Arizona," he says. "My grandfather was a cowboy, and he was a very important influence on me. He kept telling me about the old days, so when I was just a child I started out working around a ranch. Then, when I got my high-school diploma, I just took off and became a cowboy."

Decker's life in the saddle was interrupted by World War II. He served as a flight instructor — "but I don't fly now because flying isn't like bike riding, you've got to keep up with it or you can kill yourself and lots of other people" — then returned to the range after the war ended.

But, says Decker, "I got hurt while roping a steer and I got to thinking while I was lying around. I decided to go to college and study writing. After college I went back to cowboying for a little, but I finally decided to give it up and go to New York City and look for a newspaper job.

"Instead I got a job with a publishing house, and I edited books at various houses for a long time. The trouble with that is that you are so involved with other people's books that you don't have a chance to do much writing of your own. If you've got a stack of manuscripts demanding 'read me, read me' it takes the edge off your own need to write."

Decker did manage to write, however, and his first novel, "To Be a Man," was published in 1967. "It's about the old-timers I grew up with in the West," he says. "The heroes of my youth. I learned a lot from them and I felt a responsibility to put all this down."

"The Holdouts" is Decker's second book. "It's not a mythic Western with lots of gunplay and violence," he says. "I suppose this disappoints some people but my mind just doesn't go that way.

"Sure, it's got cattle-stealing in it, but that's a situation I used as a frame. What I wanted to do was write a traditional Western but set in the present and showing what's happening out there now.

"Naturally I had to have some kind of situation, a peg to hang things on, but the story is incidental. I wanted to show how a ranch is run, the relations between humans and livestock and land.

"Sure, I worried about stopping the action to go into these things — telling how an automated packing plant works, for example — but it was a risk taken deliberately. My justification is that there are many things about the West that people are not aware of and I want to tell them about it. If the book is overloaded with information it's because I am endlessly amazed at how little people know."

Decker says he has retired from the publishing field and hopes he won't be so long between books. He now teaches literature and writing at the university level in New York City, where he lives with his wife.

"I'm working on a new novel," he says. "I've got a pretty good start on it although it hasn't run off with me yet. But I think that if I just keep twisting its tail it will get up and run.

"It's set in the West, of course."

Oman Cancels Agreement

BOSTON (AP) - Oman canceled an agreement allowing U.S. warships and planes to use its military bases on two small islands in the Persian Gulf because the ill-fated American rescue mission to Iran refueled there without permission, the Boston Globe reported Saturday.

State Department spokeswoman said the department had no comment on the report.

Oman, strategically located at the southeastern edge of the Arabian peninsula near the Persian Gulf, had previously agreed to give the United States use of the former British airbase on the island of Masira and the port of Mutrah on the Arabian Sea in emergency situations.

But Oman's head of state, Sultan Qaboos bin Said, sent the Carter administration a message Thursday saying he was no longer willing to go through with the arrangement because six transport planes involved in the rescue mission had landed at one of the country's airbases, The Globe reported.

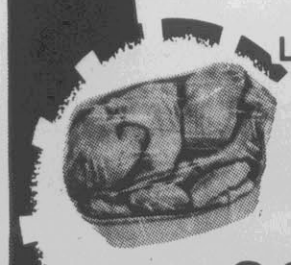

Former Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, anticipating Oman's reaction, included the issue in a list of his objections to the plan to rescue the American hostages in Iran, the newspaper said. Vance resigned this week because President Carter decided to try the rescue despite Vance's arguments.

Six C-130s carrying the 90-man raiding party had refueled at Masira on their way to Iran last week, the newspaper said. Originally it was reported that the planes had refueled in Bahrain.

Women In Administrative Training

By FRANCINE PERRY
ECU News Bureau

Can a female faculty member find success in the "man's world" of higher education administration?

Seventeen women on the East Carolina University faculty hope so, and feel better prepared for career advancement after completing a series of four special workshop programs sponsored by ECU.

The workshop series brought experts in various fields to the campus to meet with the women and give them the kind of intensive training usually available only in exclusive programs which are expensive and inaccessible to most female professors.

"We are pleaded that Chancellor Brewer and his staff provided us this opportunity," said one participant, Dr. Sally Brett, an assistant professor of English.

"As an individual who would someday like to pursue administration as a career, I have been very tempted by advertisements for seminars in career development but lacked the time and funds to travel to them and the several hundred dollars to spend on enrollment fees."

ECU's series was begun at the urging of Dr. Brett and involved 17 women chosen from 30 original applicants — all of whom felt willing and able to become chairpersons, program directors, deans or vice-chancellors in the future.

In addition to Dr. Brett, the participants were Marie Farr and Janice Faulkner, also of the English department; Carolina Ayers, chemistry; Emily Boyce, library science; Myra Cain, academic affairs; Betty Congleton, history; Karen Hancock, health, physical education, recreation and safety; Rosalie Haritun, music; Katharine Hodgin, mathematics; Patricia Rice, Vila Rosenfeld and Jannis Shea, home economics; Mary Ann Rose, nursing; Connie Tindel, education; and Mary Susan Templeton and Peggy Wood, allied health professions.

Some of the women already occupy lower level administrative positions. Dr. Rosenfeld (home economics education) and Ms. Wood (medical record science) are heads of departments primarily staffed by women.

The two-fold purpose of the program series was clear-cut: to enable ECU to identify potential leadership among its own staff and to develop in participating women the attitudes and skills needed to become a university administrator.

The series began in January with a session on life and career planning directed by Doinna Burker of Winston-Salem, associate director of Spectrum, a center for psychological services. February's workshop, "Tips from a Female College Administrator," was conducted by Dr. Neill McLeod of Martin Community College, the only woman president in the state's community college system.

"Time Management" was the focus of a March workshop, conducted by Dr. Dan Harrell of the N.C. State University School of Engineering's industrial extension service.

The culmination of the series was a session with Martha McKay, director of affirmative action for the N.C. Department of Personnel and a "grueling, exciting and eye-opening" role-play workshop, the "Academic Game."

The "academic game," directed by Dr. Mary Bredemeir, a Montclair, N.J., State College psychologist, was developed by the American Psychological Association as a training device, and acquaints women with two types of factors which hinder their achievement — sexism in the academic system and a reluctance in themselves to be assertive, even aggressive, if necessary.

As participants in the Academic Game, the ECU women engaged in mock conferences and confrontations with five male faculty members. Game players portrayed such stereotypical "academic" characters as "Bob Chief," "Sally Swinger," "Ivan Smart," "Michael Scholar," "Helen Diligent," "Alice Tuff" and "George Plodder."

In the simulated academic circle, game players quickly learn who has the power, how to please the powerful, and which male supervisors reward only those females who are attractive and admiring. Points are awarded for players who "score" in game interactions.

"Participants' comments on the four meetings have ranged from 'My whole perspective has changed' to 'I'm not cut out for administration.

"We do believe the series was successful in what it was intended to do: to educate women faculty in career planning and decision-making strategies, as well as creative problem-solving," Dr. Brett said.

"Perhaps as a result, some of the very well-qualified women who were involved in the workshops will be better prepared to seize future advancement opportunities as the arise. And some will have realized administration is not an area of interest for them, which is an equally important realization."

Health Program Helps Kids Manage Asthma

By RON STATON
Associated Press Writer

HONOLULU (AP) — They look like any other kids — frolicking in the pool, shouting to each other, splashing each other, and having a good time.

But what makes this group of some 20 kids a little bit different is that all suffer from asthma.

The kids — aged 5 through 14 — are enrolled in Kokua Na Keiki (Help the Children), a health-education and physicalconditioning program for asthmatic children and their parents.

"It's a fun thing for kids and not a heavy academic program," said Harlan Yuhara, state coordinator of the program, which is sponsored by the American Lung Association of Hawaii.

The children participate in weekly hour-long classes in which they learn about asthma and how to control and manage it.

The classes include breathing exercises, demonstrations of yoga and karate (both considered good exercises for asthmatics), and an explanation of what is happening when they have an asthma attack, how to handle it and how to prevent future attacks.

Following the informal class, the children dash to the pool for an hour of swimming, considered to be the best exercise for asthmatics.

"There is emotional and physical interaction with other kids with asthma. It helps them understand they are not the only ones," said Yuhara.

"It helps their self-image," said Kathy Lum, the Oahu coordinator of the program. "Sometimes they feel they're weird, but they see other kids with asthma who look healthy, and they find out they can learn how to swim.

"It helps their self-esteem and self-confidence," she said.

"We also want to help the kids learn not to panic when they have an asthma attack," said Yuhara. "That helps control it."

Parents attend separate classes and are given similar instruction to that of their children. "It helps parents better cope with their children's problem and gives them more confidence," Yuhara said.

"It also helps educate parents before they get too much misinformation," added Miss Lum.

"Sometimes parents are overprotective, and children don't get the opportunity for exercise," she pointed out. "Many are afraid to let their children swim.

"In Kokua Na Keiki, the children get this opportunity, and it gives them a boost to join regular classes when they complete the program. These kids believe they cannot do some things," Miss Lum said. "We give them the push. They are surprised at the confidence they gain once we break the ice. They trust us."

The coordinator explained they also tried to get the kids to vent their feelings. "Having asthma is difficult for young kids to cope with," she said. "We tell them it's OK to express their feelings."

"We also try to tell them

Miss Croom Is Married

The marriage of Theresa Ann Croom and Gregory Glenn Tyson was solemnized in a ceremony performed at 3 p.m. Saturday in the Pentecostal Holiness Church, Farmville.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Norman Butts of Tarboro. A program of wedding music was presented by Brenda Bland, pianist, and Rosemary Allen, who sang "The Wedding Song" and "The Wedding Prayer." Both are from Greenville.

The bride is the daughter of Linda J. Croom of Greenville, and Bryant Croom of Farmville. The bridegroom's parents are the Rev. and Mrs. William H. Tyson of Greenville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown with a chapel train of organza and chantilly lace. The empire bodice featured a Queen Anne neckline and full length tapered sleeves. Chantilly lace outlined the neckline, trimmed the sleeves and encircled the waist. Chantilly lace edged the double flounce hemline. Cascading tiers edged with lace accented the chapel train.

The bride wore a layered chantilly lace mantilla attached to a lace cap etched with seed pearls. She carried a cascade of yellow poms and white daisies accented with streamers.

Maid of honor was the bride's sister, Renee Croom, who wore a formal gown of maize organza over maize taffeta. The waistline of the empire bodice was encircled with white satin ribbon and streamers at center back. The skirt featured a double flounce at the hemline and was enhanced by an overskirt trimmed in white lace featuring a pick-up drape at each side topped by miniature white satin bows. She carried a bouquet of white daisies.

The father of the bridegroom was best man while ushers included Steve Tyson of Greenville, brother of the bridegroom, and Tommy Reed of Tarboro, brother-in-law of the bridegroom.

The bride's mother wore a formal gown of blue matte jersey with a scoop neckline. The mother of the bridegroom selected a pink crepe formal gown. Both were given white mum corsages.

MRS. GREGORY GLENN TYSON

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Olive Gay of Farmville.

The refreshment table was centered with an arrangement of mixed spring flowers. Mrs. Barbara Vandiford, cousin of the bride, served wedding cake and Mrs. Lois J. McCullen poured punch.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will live at Rt. 1, Greenville. The bride is employed at the Greenville Eye Clinic and the bridegroom works at Procter and Gamble, Greenville.

Health...

The State Department of Health estimates that 15,000 of Hawaii's children under the age of 16 suffer from asthma.

"We're really not sure of the cause," said Yuhara. "It could be the salt air, pollen from the many flowers, molds, or a combination of things."

The Kokua Na Keiki program began in 1976 and is based on a physical-training program for asthmatics in New York. But officials of the Lung Association here combined the physical and educational aspects into an eight-week summer program for about 20 children at each of seven locations throughout the state.

Because of a long waiting list, a winter class was added this year. But because of cold and windy weather the class had to be held at a location with a heated pool.

"We are looking into the possibility of having winter classes with karate as the emphasized exercise in place of swimming," Miss Lum said.

Dancing Plays Role In Life Of Ballet Teacher

By CAROL DEEGAN

NEW YORK (AP) — Janet Panetta loves to dance. She started at the age of 6, to overcome the effects of an illness, then went on to dance with the American Ballet Theater and to eventually form her own dance company, Dance Odyssey.

"When I was a child, I had polio," she explained. "The doctors told my parents that I had to have physical exercise, my left side was left weak, so they started me in ballet classes."

Ever since those first childhood ballet classes, Ms. Panetta said there had been only one thing she wanted to do — and that was to dance.

Ms. Panetta went on her first dance tour at the age of 16. She danced with the American Ballet Theater and the Metropolitan Opera Ballet, among other companies, before deciding to go out on her own.

She worked for five years as a free-lance dancer, which meant that she worked with a lot of different dance companies. Gradually, she said, she became interested in modern, as well as classical ballet.

"I loved ballet, and I still love ballet, I still want to do them," Ms. Panetta said. "But it really gets tiring to go out there and do 400 Swan Lakes. You develop to a certain point in your career and then you don't go any further."

Ms. Panetta performed with small companies that gave leading roles to many of its dancers, an experience, she said, that helped improve her dancing.

"Even if the companies were not so famous, I got to work with choreographers and understand different ways of movement, so I really grew as a dancer from that," she said.

Ms. Panetta, 32, is married to New York City businessman Jeffrey Roth. It was when she became pregnant with their son, who is now 2 years old, that she decided it was time to form her own dance company.

"I said to myself, 'Do you really want to go back and work for someone else, or do you want to expand more?', which would be either choreographing myself or starting my own company and being the artistic director, deciding what and how it gets done. I opted for that over choreographing," she said.

Ms. Panetta, who has been teaching ballet for four years, said she also felt that by creating her own company she would be able to continue working with her students.

"My students came in as good, young, advanced dancers, and they got better and better, and I suddenly realized that it was a disappointment that I had no place for them to go," she said. "They got into dance companies and I didn't have them any more as students. I'd get them to the point of being really good dancers and then that would be it," she explained.

Dance Odyssey is an eight-member repertory company, four men and four women who range in age from 22 to 28. All have studied with Ms. Panetta. The group combines the works of a variety of choreographers, including Sallie Wilson, the company's artistic advisor; Ze'eva Cohen; and Paul Sanasardo of The Paul Sanasardo Dance Company.

Ms. Panetta says it's a lot of hard work — coordinating costuming, staging, rehearsals and performances — particularly because the company, like a lot of companies, is on a tight budget.

"Now, I've been lucky because a lot of people have taken into consideration that we don't have a lot of money and they're contributing some of their time, some of their work, or all of their work," she said. "But eventually, there are just so many favors you can ask people for."

It's all quite a challenge, said Ms. Panetta, who is a member artist of the Dance Theater Workshop Inc., a non-profit organization.

"I know that as a dancer, I've had a very good career. But I've never learned anything else. I never learned how to deal with people, never learned what was needed to start a company. You can have a brilliant career and not know any of it. But I'm learning fast," she added.

Engagement Announced

GRACE ELIZABETH MAST. . .is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Herndon Mast of Henderson, who announce her engagement to Richard Ira Flye Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ira Flye Sr. of Greenville. A June 14 wedding is planned.

Couple Marries In Evening Ceremony

Miss Virginia Moye Scales and Frank Henry Longino Jr. were united in marriage at 7 p.m. Saturday at the home of the bride's parents.

Officiating in the ceremony was the Rev. Will Wallace of the First Christian Church, pastor of the bride.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Waightstill Morehead Scales Jr. and Dr. and Mrs. Frank Henry Longino, all of Greenville.

The bride attended St. Mary's College and is a graduate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. She now employed by the North Carolina Department of Commerce as an industrial developer.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Wake Forest University and received his M.B.A. from Northwestern University. He is president of Allen and Longino Advertising Agency and also is an instructor at East Carolina University.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stop! Don't throw away grapefruit peel until you've used it as a beauty treatment for your fingernails. Push your nails into the white pith for 10 minutes.

The Gil Ferrer Salon in New York City recommends this as a way of erasing nicotine stains and polish residue and whitening the nails. After the grapefruit bath, the salon recommends buffing the nails well and going without polish for a week.

Conference Report Given

A final report on the recent Pitt County Leadership Conference for Women was given at the Council on the Status of Women meeting. Reporting were Mrs. Jean Darden, one of the co-chairman for the event, and Mrs. Sylvia Wheless.

An evaluation of the conference was given as well as highlights.

The program for the meeting was given by Mrs. Wheless, who is a member of the Keep Pitt County Clean and Beautiful Committee.

The committee's scrapbook was displayed and Mrs. Wheless told of several awards which have been given the committee. The committee's theme is "Take Pride in Pitt."

Mrs. Wheless announced the committee is taking ideas for a county flower and she asked council members for their suggestions.

Chairman Darden conducted the meeting and reviewed correspondence.

SHIRLEY TEMPLE BLACK HONORED

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (AP) — Shirley Temple Black was among those honored by Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge for outstanding works supporting freedom.

Mrs. Black, of Woodside, Calif., received the American Exemplar Medal for her life of service to the public and the country, first as an entertainer and later as ambassador to Ghana, and for her work in other governmental and private posts.

On The Young Side

By Elizabeth Ito

Rose High had several student winners in the Sidewalk Art Show held last Saturday at the Greenville Art Center. Robert Flanagan won first place in the painting division and Brad Griffin took first place in the watercolor and sculpture divisions.

Rene Meyer won second place in sculpture, Jennifer Mahoney, second in graphics and Gray Garrett first place in ceramics.

Rose senior Susan Boudreaux won first place in a poster contest sponsored by the Downtown Merchant's Association.

The junior induction ceremony for the Hasket Chapter of the National Honor Society took place Thursday evening at St. James United Methodist Church. The recently selected junior members took the NHS pledge and were presented pins and certificates. William Garner, a graduate of Rose and ECU, addressed the group.

Davena Cherry and Mark Grossnickle attended the district meeting of the N. C. Academy of Science at ECU recently. Students from throughout eastern North Carolina presented research papers to a panel of judges. Students with exceptional research projects presented them on April 11 at the state meeting.

The annual spring musical was performed this week at eight o'clock in the school gym. "45 Minutes From Broadway" by George M. Cohan is a vaudville-type show including such well-known tunes as "Yankee Doodle Dandy," "Give My Regards to Broadway" and "You're a Grand Old Flag."

Awards Given Pilot Members

The theme of Growth, Friendship and Service–Pilot Treasures highlighted the meeting of the Pilot Club of Greenville, Inc., held Monday evening at the Ramada Inn.

President Irene Prewett presented awards to Elizabeth Dupree, Rose Howell and Henrietta Williams in the area of growth. Sue Howell, Blanche Jones and Louise Downing were recognized in the area of friendship. Service awards went to Lib LeConte, Mary Cochran, Trudie Blessing, Mavis Brown and Frances Johnston.

President-elect Dupree conducted an initiation service for new members Joy Sasser and Dot Garcia. Sally Curry was a special guest.

Internal Affairs Coordinator Blessing announced the recent fund-raising effort netted approximately $850 and Anne Elks was winner of thd $100 award.

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

CRYPTOQUIP 5-3

IGOVRZ GSZVNRKVGPI SUNCVZU KWU OGPIOVUPKVGCI WGIKUII

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — JOCULAR CITIZEN LIKES TO SUPPLY REALLY ZANY JOKES.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: R equals A

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, MAY 4, 1980

YOUR DAILY Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A splendid day and evening to study your philosophical beliefs which can improve the quality of your life. Make plans on how you wish to operate in the days ahead.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can gain the approval of family members and increase harmony in the home. Have the courage of your convictions.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Look to experienced persons for the information you need to work out practical ideas. Take it easy tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Find the right outlet for a special talent you have. Much peace and happiness is yours for the asking at this time.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Find out just what is expected of you by others so that the future can be brighter. Plan for greater abundance.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Study new projects you want to work on in the months ahead. Your intuition leads you in the right direction now.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Be more thoughtful of family members and increase happiness. The evening is fine for studying your philosophical beliefs.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A good day for happiness at home. Contact an influential person and discuss a plan that means more security in the future.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Do some investigating of whatever is puzzling you and come up with the right answers. Show that you are loyal to friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Plan how to add to present abundance and take steps in the right direction. Express happiness with family members.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Concentrate on whatever is of greater importance to you and easily gain your aims. Take no risks with your reputation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make long-range plans that can give you added income in the days ahead. Avoid one who has an eye on your assets.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make allowances for the weaknesses of others. Be sure not to comment about things you know little about.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have excellent judgment and can easily gain practical success. The ability to organize is fine here so be sure to give as fine an education as you can. Good religious training early in life is important.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

© 1980, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Difficult aspects are in effect early in the day, so use caution in all endeavors at this time. Don't force issues with others for your judgment is off where new ventures are concerned.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Not a good morning to ask higher-ups for favors but fine for getting practical affairs working better by own efforts.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) It's better to wait until the afternoon before making new arrangements you have in mind. Gain cooperation of associates.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Handle responsibilities early and be sure to keep any promises you have made. Be more optimistic about the future.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Do what is expected of you in the morning and then carry through with other duties later. Spend money wisely.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Morning is the best time for handling boring tasks. Avoid an argument with an associate and later all works out well.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have important work to do now, so relegate fun and pleasure to the evening. Use tact in handling a personal matter.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Have a good talk with associates and the future will be brighter for all. Don't neglect an important business matter.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Contact influential persons who can help you advance in career matters. Be extremely careful in motion today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) The morning is not good for handling important financial affairs but the afternoon is fine. Be logical.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You could have the Monday morning blues but later everything brightens up for you. Rely on your common sense.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You are restricted in some way early in the day but careful planning brings good results. Engage in creative work.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Listen to the advice of a friend which can be very good for you when you analyze it well. Be careful of outsiders.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one who instinctively knows how to do what pleases others and thereby gain their cooperation. Much ability at organizational endeavors here, so provide with a fine education and success will follow.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: A reader complained, "Although my boyfriend is very affectionate, I wonder why he never says, 'I love you.'"

You replied, "Perhaps he isn't ready to make a commitment yet." Abby, I am definitely ready to make a commitment to my girlfriend, but I, too, find it very difficult to say, "I love you."

In college, I had a Japanese roommate who said, "If a Japanese boy were to tell a girl he 'loved' her, she would become very uncomfortable and wonder what he expected of her in return. Oriental men express their affection in more subtle ways — such as doing nice things for a girl, or giving her small gifts."

He also said that when American couples kiss in public in Japan, it causes a great deal of embarrassment and curiosity among the Japanese, who are unaccustomed to such a display of emotion in public.

I think we Westerners would do well to adopt the Oriental custom of keeping one's emotions under control.

Z.A.R.

DEAR Z.A.R.: It's true that controlling one's emotions certainly would reduce the incidence of accidents among the Occidents, as it does among the Orientals. But it will never play in Peoria — or Paris, or Palm Springs, or Passaic.

DEAR ABBY: This is for the woman who admits to being 65 pounds overweight, but insists that she is "happy, popular, good-looking, well-dressed, and couldn't care less what other people think." If she really believed this, she is not being honest with herself, so how can she be honest with others?

I have yet to meet an obese person who was totally honest. Generally speaking, they cheat on diets, lie about how much they eat and what they weigh; they even lie about having a "thyroid" condition.

Men prefer feminine women, and there's nothing feminine about hippos. They can't walk ladylike, they can't sit ladylike, and God forbid they should have to run! And if they were to see a moving picture of themselves walking away from the camera, they would never wear tight pants in public again!

In case you think I'm a skinny person with no understanding of the fat person's pain, let me assure you that I am a former fatty who is constantly fighting the battle of the bulge.

BEEN THERE

DEAR BEEN THERE: Not all fat people fit your stereotype. Some are honest, self-confident and able to accept themselves as they are. Witness "The National Association to Aid Fat People," a newly formed organization dedicated to fighting discrimination against the obese and to assuring them that fat is fine and nothing to be ashamed of.

ALUMNI TO MEET

The Pitt County Chapter of the A. & T. University Alumni will meet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy James, 306 Greenfield Blvd., Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

R. B. Johnson, president, invites all Aggies in the Pitt County area to attend the meeting.

County School Lunch Menu

Lunchroom menus for the coming week at Pitt County schools have been announced as follow:

Monday — hot dog on bun, Tater Tots, cole slaw, milk;

Tuesday — Hoagie sandwich, potato chips, seasoned green beans, harvard beets, milk;

Wednesday — fried chicken, mashed potatoes with gravy, buttered broccoli, rolls, milk;

Thursday — hamburger on bun, french fries, fruit cup, milk;

Friday — beef stew, tossed salad, corn on cob, rolls, milk.

LOVE SONGS FROM HOME — Emperor penguins rally around Sea World bird curator Frank Todd at San Diego to listen to the exotic sounds of wild emperors and chicks of their Antarctic homeland. After listening to the sounds, the birds begin to make their own sound that the experts call trumpeting, and soon they pair off and indulge in long motionless stares that are part of penguin love. At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I don't know if I told you or not, but I've been shopping for a "role model," and frankly I'm not having too much luck.

Every time I find someone I want to emulate professionally, their personal life is all screwed up, and when I find someone who has their personal life together, no one has ever heard of them.

I've had my "goal in life" for almost a year now. Got it last August. Up until that time I referred to it as a "fantasy," but somewhere along the line "fantasy" became an OUT word and "goal" took its place.

My "goal" is to get my body in shape, raise my consciousness level, go to Hollywood, become a sex symbol, work for world peace and "feel good about myself."

A few weeks ago I saw where Barbara Walters was going to interview Bo Derek, Farrah Fawcett, Cheryl Ladd and Bette Midler.

Merciful heavens! Four Role Models, Four! Surely out of one of them would emerge a person to pattern my life after.

I listened carefully. They were all sex symbols, all had great bodies, knew who they were and were in touch with their feelings. They were mobbed by fans wherever they went, had big houses with fresh flowers on every table, faces pretty enough to offset stringy hair, and men who master-minded their every move.

All four were at the peak of success and in a state of "mis." Misquoted, misguided, misled, misunderstood, mismatched, mismanaged, mismated, misinterpreted and misrepresented. Add miserable.

Yet, on a scale of one to 10, not one of them came in under a 9. The only thing I can figure out is that I have been calculating the "10" phenomenon on the wrong scale. These women are obviously grading on the "curve." If they say they're a "10" at the beach, it must depend on how much sand they're buried in, how much water they're retaining, and how many 3s and 4s are around.

If their marriage is a "10," it probably takes into consideration how often their husbands are dating, if they make their home together, and what their other hobbies are.

All I know is out of four sex symbols interviewed, one had a child, one had a husband, one had an understanding mother, and one had peace of mind. I have all four.

That makes me a "20" and still looking for a role model who deserves me.

Diabetics Can Join In Sports

CHICAGO (UPI) — Diabetics can compete in sports without limitation if they plan ahead, according to a pamphlet prepared for the American Medical Association.

In the "Diabetic Athlete," the AMA says increased physical activity requires either more food or less insulin. Diabetic athletes must guard against low blood sugar, or insulin reaction, the pamphlet says. The symptoms are hunger, paleness, weakness, confusion and later, unconsciousness.

As a preventive measure, the AMA advises eating starch or protein foods that are absorbed slowly and make glucose available over a prolonged period; to correct low blood sugar, AMA recommends foods or beverages with a rapidly available source of simple sugar — sugar, fruit juice or honey, as examples.

Copies of the pamphlet are free from Order Department OP-084, American Medical Association, P.O. Box 821, Monroe, Wis. 53566.

Builds Boats For Mariners Museum

BEAUFORT, N.C. (UPI) — Geoffrey Scofield loves to build boats, but he cares little for them once they are finished.

For Scofield, what matters with the skiffs and dinghies he builds at the Hampton Mariners Museum is that he is preserving styles of boat construction dating to the Vikings.

And by working on the boats, he says, one can learn much about how they handle and why they were built a certain way.

"We can't understand why a man built a fishing village on a particular spot of the Outer Banks rather than the mainland until we know how he used his boats," he said. "In many cases we don't know. We don't know how their whaler handled in the surf, for example. That's why we'll have to build one."

The wiry, 36-year-old Englishman teaches four 12-week courses in boat-building per year. He and museum Director Charles McNeill say similar programs exist on the East Coast only at Mystic Seaport, Conn., and Bath, Maine.

While McNeill puffed on his pipe and whittled a stick of cedar, Scofield walked around his tin-roofed shop, pointing out the boats being built. One is the Essex, a 12-footer where the long edges of the planks overlap rather than form a flat surface. That design has been around for 2,000 years, Scofield said.

Another is the Whitehall, a longer, narrower boat favored by captains for quick shop-to-shore visits. Then there's the Sharpie, as wide as a rowboat to provide the stability needed for oyster and clam fishing in Chesapeake Bay.

None of the boats display the flared bow that gives Beaufort area boats their notoriety. That's typical of Scofield, for he wants to preserve all kinds of boat styles and not just those of the Carolinas.

Doctor Raps The Fiber-Depleted Diet

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Health Editor

Dr. Denis Burkitt, the high fiber guru from England, stopped by the potato bin in an American supermarket.

His eyes sparkled and his hands gripped two huge spuds. He held them over his head, arms outstretched in a V — and started singing the praises of tubers.

For instance:

He said four taters a day — without sour cream, gravy or butter — munched with the skins will keep you "regular" and probably will help you slap down obesity.

Potatoes, the high priest of fiber insisted, though long a no-no to fat and dieting Americans are good bulk. They fill you up, you feel full and don't reach for high energy, low bulk, high calorie edibles such as candy, sugary pie, cookies, ice cream.

When you're full of potatoes, there's also less of a temptation to fill up on sugary drinks or even booze.

You feel full because you are full. And that's one point about high fiber in the diet, he says, but not the main point. The main point is to keep you regular, Burkitt said.

Burkitt, also called the bran man, is the self-appointed fiber missionary of the west. Bran keeps you regular, too, he preaches. Bran, you may recall, is the staple in a breakfast food long called "the laxative cereal."

He held up a box of that this day when we got to the cereal section. And waved it like a flag.

The spuds-pusher — a wiry 69-year-old — was born in Northern Ireland and made his mark as a surgeon and epidemiologist. He will go down in history for putting the western world's scientific types on the road to the high fiber diet as a step to good health.

As an epidemiologist — health detective — Burkitt did several studies on disease patterns. He found, he said, certain kinds of cancer were rare in certain countries, mostly the developing ones in the third world. In those countries high bulk, high fiber is the dietary lifestyle.

Burkitt conclused that a few simple diet changes can help prevent many diseases and promote health and longevity. It's all supported, he says, by documented patterns of disease around the world.

"Fiber has a crucial effect on the working of our digestive system and bowel," Burkitt said. "And that is where most of these diseases find their origin. They all start with constipation."

The diseases he mentioned included varicose veins, colon cancer, some cardiovascular conditions.

As he toured the supermarket in New York City this day, Burkitt searched for high fiber foods that might fit his preachments.

He recited as he traversed the aisles:

"Bran comes first, nuts and legumes second, and potatoes third. They're all great fiber additions to a diet."

Burkitt's ideas come at a time modern medicine is banking more on prevention than miracle cures to battle modern killers such as coronary disease, diverticular disease, piles, appendicitis, hiatus hernia, varicose veins — and, of course, bowel cancer and obesity.

Burkitt is his own best advertisement. Active, energetic, he eats lots of whole wheat bread — homemade — and adds bran to his morning cereal. He travels the world lecturing to medical groups, spreading the word.

He carries his bran in a little plastic bag but allowed it could easily be kept in a tobacco pouch instead.

Before Burkitt gained status as a passionate preacher of high fiber he had medical fame. He had worked nearly 20 years as a surgeon in a teaching hospital in East Africa.

During this period he discovered a form of cancer common in young children in tropical Africa. That cancer bears his name.

For this and other research contributions, he received fellowships and awards from many countries. Over the last decade, his studies on worldwide disease patterns related to diet have received international recognition.

This plain looking man picking up potatoes, poking at bread in the supermarket, grimacing at honeydews — "great tasting but all water, no bulk" — is a fellow of the Royal Society. He has been given the Gold Medal of the British Medical Association. Lecture tours and research missions have sent him to highways and byways of all five continents.

His fast talk, spiked with humor, made him seem like a theatrical or television personality to shoppers eavesdropping on the conversation between reporter and himself.

Burkitt caught them out of the corner of his eye and, to the casual observer, seemed to beef up his act, relishing the attention.

He picked up a loaf of white bread and pushed the ends in. It compressed tremendously.

Loud enough for eavesdroppers, Burkitt said:

"See? All this air you are paying for. This bread is pure air.

"Bread should be solid and made of dark flour — not of white flour or of white flour dyed dark.

"And this label, natural ingredients. What does that mean? And what does free of preservatives and free of additives really mean? Can anyone tell me?

"I'm not afraid of preservatives. There is no evidence presently linking preservatives to disease. I don't know of any particular disease cases caused by preservatives."

He voice escalated when he saw the word "natural" on a product. He said:

"Natural, natural, natural. Can you tell me — really — what that means?"

The word went into a higher register each time he said it.

At such times he sounded a lot like Rex Harrison in the classic hit movie, "My Fair Lady."

"Why, why, why?" he asked, as he roved the aisles, pointing at big print on packages, big letters proclaiming "natural" or "no preservatives."

At such times, he put his hands on his hips and purposely looked helpless.

After the supermarket tour, Burkitt said:

"It is hard to find anything that isn't fiber depleted. And it is hard to find an American whose diet isn't fiber-depleted. The French diet isn't so good either."

How to switch to a high fiber diet — and why — is the aim of Burkitt's new book, "Eat Right — To Stay Healthy and Enjoy Life More" (Arco, $8.95, cloth; $4.95, paper).

"Slimness," he said, "is an added benefit."

Even if you eat four spuds a day, the number he recommends if you lean on potatoes for fiber?

"Of course," Burkitt said. "It is almost impossible to eat a lot of potatoes and not lose weight. With the shells. Without butter, sour cream, gravy.

"Boiled or baked. Never fried.

"Fiber," he said, "interacts with various poisonous substances in the feces and prevents their absorption into the circulation of the body."

An added claim attibuted to the high fiber diet:

When the poisons are efficiently eliminated instead of being absorbed into the system, clear skin, shiny hair and sweet breath are the beautiful byproducts, he says.

Here's what Burkitt recommends to promote health and longevity and help prevent most common ailments and diseases:

—Double the proportion of fiber-rich carbohydrates.

—Eat more whole wheat bread made with whole wheat flour, whole grain cereals, peas, beans, lentils, root vegetables such as potatoes and carrots.

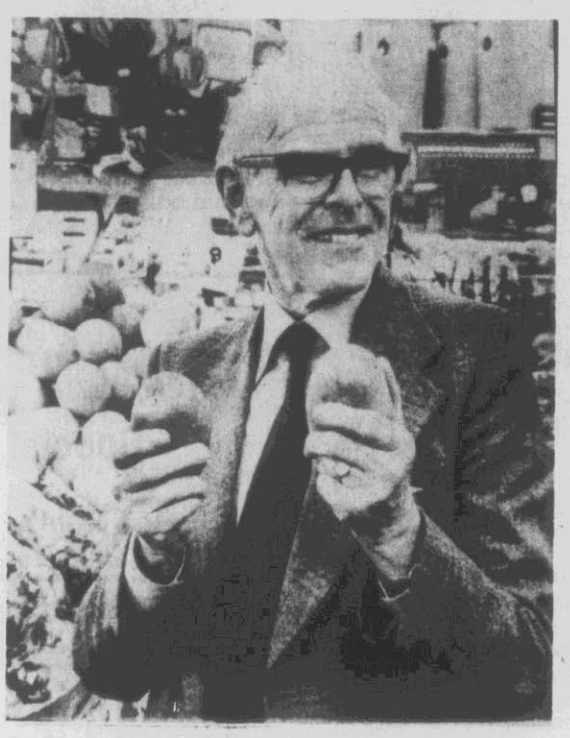

—Eat at least one-third less of those foods rich in fats. Such as meat and dairy products.

—Whole wheat bread contains four times more dietary fiber than white bread and is, weight for weight, eight times more effective in preventing constipation.

—Cut the daily salt intake in half.

Is Burkitt's high-fiber dictum getting anywhere?

Last year it was the subject of some 400 medical papers.

Conservation Brought Taxes

WATERTOWN, Wis. (UPI) — A soft drink canning firm in Watertown says it reduced its consumption of natural gas by 70 percent by turning to trash for fuel but, according to Energy User News, isn't entirely happy about the results.

The company claims this conservation effort was "rewarded" by the imposition of sales and use taxes on the new incinerator by state officials. The incinerator burns waste wood, paper and other material to warm water needed to process cans and for plant heating.

Earn Millions From Old Cans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Recycling is proving to be a profitable venture for private collectors.

According to the Can Manufacturers Institute, thousands of civic groups and individual collectors have earned more than $180 million through recycling during the past seven years.

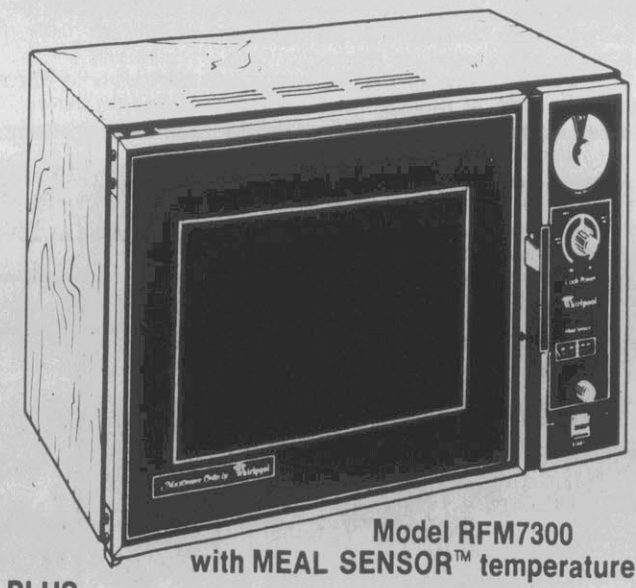

CMI says that in 1979 Reynolds Aluminum collected and recycled 176.3 million pounds of aluminum, an increase of 18 percent over 1978, and paid consumers $45 million for their efforts while Aluminum Co. of America recycled 143 million pounds of cans, a 27 percent increase over 1978, and paid some $35 million for these cans.

Offers Words Of Inspiration For Days Of The Utility Bill

By WILLIAM SILBERG

DETROIT (UPI) — Betty Shaw has some words of inspiration for those who despair every time the mail brings another utility bill.

You might not be able to do anything about ever-rising utility costs but you can still save money, says this suburban homemaker.

The way to do it is to reduce the number of "units" of each utility used, said Mrs. Shaw, who has written and published on her own a 95-page book filled with more than 300 tips on how to practice what she preaches.

"People are so frustrated by the fact that their utility rates are going up and will continue to go up that they really feel there isn't anything they can do. They don't even try," Mrs. Shaw said.

"But they can do something about it," said Mrs. Shaw, 59, mother of two, a former Wayne State University librarian. She has written a book on the subject.

"I approach it in a positive way," Mrs. Shaw said. "You can do something about it. The alternative is to watch the units, because the rate is not going down."

Her book, "Utility Bills Can Cost Less," deals with the four major utilities — water, natural gas (or fuel oil), electricity and telephone service. Each is given a separate section and a section on insulation also is included.

Many of the suggestions in the book, which is being used as a consumer education text at Wayne State, are quite simple. Most cost little or nothing.

To save water, for example, Mrs. Shaw suggests you place weighted plastic bottles in the toilet tank, install a flow restrictor in the shower and use a "dipping pan" instead of running the faucet when cleaning vegetables.

To conserve heat, in addition to dialing down the thermostat, consumers can close off rooms that are not used very much during the day and shut down the heating register.

You also can cut down on your use of exhaust fans — which draw out heat as well as odors — and take advantage of the sun's heat by adjusting your window shades and drapes.

To save electricity, try using lower wattage bulbs in closets, hallways and bedrooms. You also should not keep your refrigerator too cold or run your oven longer than needed.

To save money on your phone bill, first find out exactly what types of service are available and only get what really is needed.

Then, when you pick up the phone, ask yourself, "Is this call really necessary?" Make use of toll-free numbers and time-of-day discounts, dial direct when possible and time your calls.

Mrs. Shaw puts many of her own suggestions into practice. As a result, she and her husband keep their water bill to the monthly minimum and have trimmed their fuel bills.

Mrs. Shaw won't tell readers how much they can expect to save because everyone's home is built and run differently. But, she guarantees, "they will save something" by following her suggestions.

"I don't think everyone can do everything in the book," she said. "But everyone can do some of these things. If you can do anything, you're going to come out ahead."

The book starts with the basics, explaining in nontechnical language how systems in the home work and how to cut costs by reducing "unit" use without diminishing the quality of life.

The book's aim really is to point out ways of cutting waste — something Mrs. Shaw said results not from ignorance as much as "innocence."

"People really don't think things through. They do things out of habit," she said. "I'm trying to get them to stop and look at the way they're doing things and see if there isn't a better way of doing it."

Much of her information came from utility companies themselves. She wrote to 45 utilities asking them to explain rate structures, billing procedures and whether they had conservation tips for their customers. They responded with a "bushel basket" of information, she said.

That information, along with dozens of common sense tips, were collected and put into the softcover book.

Copies of "Utility Books Can Cost Less" may be obtained by mailing a check for $3.50, payable to Betty Shaw, to Utility Book, Box 39151, Redford, Mich., 48239. Postage and handling are included in the price.

Poet's Life Satisfying

STONINGTON, Conn. (AP) — James Merrill, who has been writing poetry for about 40 years, says he never considered doing anything else.

"It was the only thing I could do rather well," said the 54-year-old Merrill, whose father co-founded the brokerage house Merrill Lynch. "I banked on it."

His skill has won him numerous awards, including a Pulitzer Prize in 1977 for "Divine Comedies," the first of a trilogy inspired by evening conversations over a Ouija board.

"I'm awfully glad I got that prize fairly late in life," Merrill said. "I know of one poet who got it when he was barely 30 years old. It sent him into analysis because it created a massive writing block."

The trilogy, which also includes "Mirabell, Books of Number," has consumed most of Merrill's efforts over the last six years. The final volume, "Scripts for the Pageant," is to be released this spring.

"I've come to the end of something intensely interesting and demanding," he said, adding that he will now concentrate on short poems.

Merrill was born in New York City and attended schools in the metropolitan area until he enrolled at Amherst College in Massachusetts. After graduation in 1947, Merrill returned to New York and taught for a short time at Bard College.

His poetry was first published in a magazine in 1946. A book of his poetry was published five years later.

In 1954 he moved to Stonington, a coastal town in eastern Connecticut, where conversations with a friend over a Ouija board inspired his Pulitzer Prize-winning work.

Acid Removed In Plastic Pipe

INSPIRATION, Ariz. (AP) — More than seven miles of tough plastic pipe are being used at a copper mine here to carry copper-bearing water and an acid solution.

"The pipe can withstand the corrosive action of the sulfuric acid and also provides 10 percent more strength than other plastic (polyethylene) pipes available," says Harold Benjamin, project manager at Inspiration Consolidated Copper.

The supplier, Phillips Driscopipe, says the material's strength allows for a thinner wall thickness than other pipelines would require, while still providing sufficient toughness.

REVIVAL SERVICES

Revival services will begin Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Church of God of Prophecy here.

Evangelist Jack Cates, missionary in Jamica for 16, years will be holding services through May 11 with special singing nightly.

Boston Preparing Big Birthday Party

By BETTY STEIN

BOSTON (UPI) — City Hall here looks like an illustration from "Chariots of the Gods," an immense, inverted Mayan temple made out of white concrete blocksthat appears to stand only by divine grace.

Yet in the building's angular shadow stands Faneuil Hall, a classic New England meeting hall under whose proper dome and weathervane the American Revolution was first planned by John Adams, Paul Revere and others.

Boston is a city where it somehow seems appropriate to raucously cheer the Red Sox at Fenway Park then wander through a hushed exhibit of Renaissance paintings a few blocks away at the Museum of Fine Arts. It is a city that for exactly 350 years has thrived on juxtapositions of the new and old.

Fittingly, City Hall will be the reception center for millions of tourists and natives expected to help celebrate the city's summer-long 350th birthday.

The grabbag of events scheduled for "Jubilee 350" reflect the range of choice which has been Boston. There will be a return visit of the tall-masted sailing ships that entranced the nation during the Bicentennial, an elaborate recreation of colonial Boston and a huge birthday party.

On May 30 a fleet of some 50 tall-masted "Op-Sail" ships, with an escort of modern warships, will sail into Boston Harbor and dock. They will remain tied up for public tours for three days. A fireworks display will close the floating show and the Tall Ships will leave Boston June 4.

Boston boasts numerous firsts: it was the first capital city founded in the United States and it established the first public park, the first public school and the first subway system. In adjoining Cambridge, now the home of the "Harvard Lampoon," colonists operated the first printing press in the English-speaking New World.

Jubilee organizers are not nearly as irreverant as students who publish the humor magazine, but they will go beyond the traditional Old North Church-Boston Tea Party to present some offbeat stories.

Like the notion that John Adams was the Jerry Rubin of his day, — that is, according to the organizers of "Boston's First Light," a light-and-sound show slated for two free presentations each night from May 26 through the fall at City Hall Plaza.

The privately sponsored outdoor show will answer such seldom-asked questions as: Why was Sam Adams such a popular tax collector? Was the Battle of Bunker Hill fought on Bunker Hill? And if Paul Revere's signals were, "One if by land and two if by sea," how would he know if the British came both ways?

The most complete presentation of Boston history, however, will be in a recreated 17th-century village on Boston Common, which was first used by early colonists as a pasture for various types of livestock.

The July 19-25 fair on the Common will offer a week of time-machine fantasy, complete with stocks and pillory, shedlike stalls and animal pens, all of this in the shadow of Bullfinch's proper, gold-domed Statehouse.

A bit of history that may make modern-day homebuyers forget the prime interest rate and be thankful they don't have to build from scratch will be the Fairbanks House exhibit.

The original structure — still standing in Dedham after nearly 350 years of wear and alterations — is considered the oldest standing frame house in North America. The house will be "reconstructed" as part of opening celebrations for the village.

Builders will actually cheat a little, constructing a prefabricated replica from plans put together by the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities. The parts will be raised and put together in a demonstration of colonial craft.

While the festival runs Sept. 12-21, historians say the Puritans bestowed the name Boston on Sept. 7, 1630.

But those who show up 14 days late will be rewarded anyway with a parade, an outdoor concert by the Boston Symphony on the banks of the Charles River, and free birthday cake on the Common, where a mass picnic is planned.

Visitors can stop in at the reception center at City Hall seven days a week, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. for free birthday cake, information and gifts from official greeters.

Also available at the center will be Jubilee passport booklets containing discount tickets for restaurants, shops and events in Boston.

Those looking for advance information about the city's inns and eateries can pick up the Official Guide and Chronicle for $2.50 at newsstands throughout New England.

Travel agents will be offering a special Jubilee 350 package covering four days and three nights of accomodations, tours, discount coupons and sightseeing information. Double occupancy rates for the package range from $137 to $169 per person.

Further information on bed and board can be obtained from the Greater Boston Convention and Tourist Bureau, 15 State St., Boston, Mass. 02109. The bureau also distributes the Jubilee 350 calendar of events, state roadmaps and other general visitor information.

The bureau recommends making plans as far ahead as possible, particularly for Op Sail. No inventory of hotel space has been made yet, but the bureau indicates reservations for the summer are already being made.

BOSTON'S CITY HALL will be the reception center for millions of tourists and natives expected to help celebrate Boston's summer-long 350th birthday. The city's history will be seen in a re-created 17th century village on Boston Common. (UPI Photo)

Aim Exhibit At Smoking

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — When Smokin' Sam drags on a cigarette, the internal pollution is laid bare for all to see. His companions hope school students don't forget the message.

"He's kind of hard to keep clean, as many cigarettes as he smokes. And he's kind of hard-headed," Glenn Holland said, chuckling.

Smokin' Sam is a dummy used in a program aimed at persuading students not to smoke. Holland is a student director of Collegiate Americans for Better Living, based at Southern Missionary College in Collegedale. The group sponsors the anti-smoking program.

Providing the visual effects to drive home the point that smoking is harmful, Sam smokes cigarettes right down to the filters by means of a breathing apparatus in his back that pumps air in and out of him.

Rubber tubes carry the inhaled smoke to glass jars lined with a white synthetic fiber — which Holland calls angel hair — used in aquarium filters.

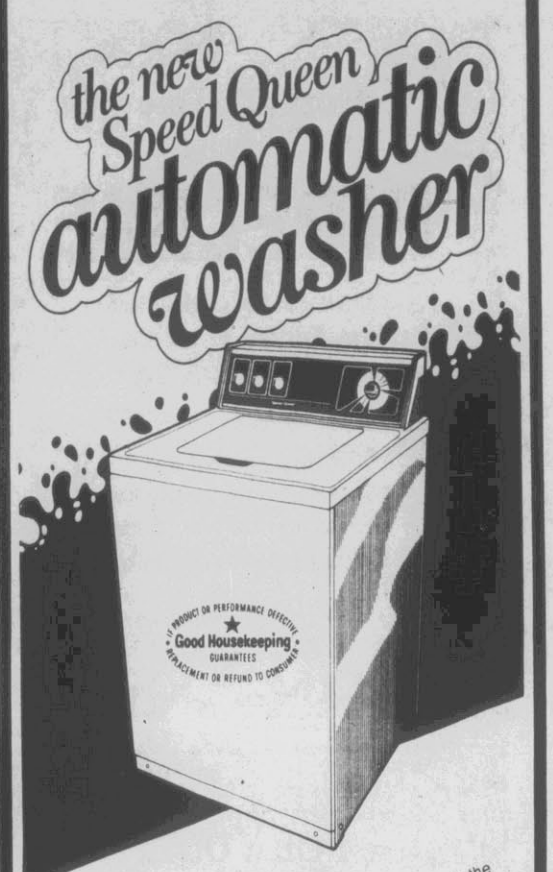

"You can see it color the angel hair quite badly," he said. "We have a jar of the clean angel hair so they can compare. In a way, it sort of acts like the cilia in your lungs. It picks up the particles of smoke."

A program member keeps tabs on how many smokes Sam has gone through. "After a few cigarettes, we open the jars and pass them around to the kids and let them smell. It makes quite an impression."

Usually used for students in junior and senior highs, the program went before a new audience recently — fifth-and sixth-graders at Mary Ann Garber Elementary School.

Washington Linked To Early Road Map

SKOKIE, Ill. (AP) — Some experts trace the origin of the road map to the first caveman who scratched a pattern in dirt to guide his fellows to a new hunting ground.

The first "official" American road maps, however, are believed to have been prompted by George Washington in 1777. And in 1789 — the year the Constitution was ratified and Washington was elected president — the first road atlas appeared, according to researchers at Rand McNally & Co., publishers of road maps and atlases, the latest of which is the "1980 Road Atlas."

The researchers list these other celebrated firsts in the history of America's roads and road maps:

—First automobile, 1890s. By 1910, the number of cars registered in the United States had reached almost a million and, just five years later, there were more than 2 million cars.

—First concrete road: Detroit, 1908. Motorists came from hundreds of miles away to drive on the new surface.

—First manually operated traffic signal: Detroit, 1910.

—First electric traffic signal: Cleveland, 1914.

—First gasoline-station road maps: Pittsburgh, 1913; to promote its station, Gulf devised country road maps and mailed 10,000 of them to potential customers.

—First highway markings: 1912.

—First automobile road atlas publisned by Rand McNally; 1924. A landmark in its map-publishing history, this atlas covered the entire country.

—Construction of the Interstate Highway System begun: 1950s. This network of non-stop expressways linking the entire nation will cover approximately 42,500 miles. Completion of the project is expected this year.

Ancient Latin America Monuments Still Puzzle

By RODOLFO
A. WIND HAUSEN
Associated Press Writer

A pre-Columbian stone formation has puzzled Latin American archaeologists since it was first studied in the 19th century, and has produced a wide variety of theories in an attempt to explain its origin and significance.

The final word, however, is yet to be said.

In Tafi del Valle, a quiet, mountainous, high valley in northwestern Argentina 600 miles from Buenos Aires, lie the impressive monuments — named "menhirs" after a combination of Celtic words meaning long or upright stones.

The granite-carved structures, each weighing up to four tons, were spread all over the grass-covered hills and meadows where the Calchaqui Indians, subjects of the legendary Inca empire, developed a relatively isolated agricultural society.

When the Spanish Conquistadors explored Tafi del Valle in the 16th century, they were fiercely opposed by the Calchaquis on their route to a mystical El Dorado.

In their search for gold, the Spaniards largely ignored the treasures of Indian sculptures, placed on the hills' slopes. The Jesuits who later colonized the valley preserved the upright stones from destruction.

The ancient monuments, carved perhaps 2,000 years ago, remained neglected, semi-buried and eroded until the last part of the 19th century. Then Argentine archaeologist Juan B. Ambrosetti brought them to the attention of his colleagues after studying their bizarre inscriptions and figures.

In an article published in 1897, he attributed to the menhirs a ceremonial role. Later, more thorough studies arrived at different conclusions.

The exact age of the stones has not been established. But the carving technique used to produce them was investigated by Argentine archaeologist Adan Quiroga, who noticed that, given the regular Indian method of hammering with a copper-and-bronze alloyed chisel, the huge monuments could never have been carved. To subdue the hard rock for sculpturing, he said, the artists must have used a flint, hammering and patiently rubbing to achieve their goal.

Their final work, now on display in Tafi del Valle's Archaeology Park — created by the military government in 1977 by gathering all random pieces and putting them on display on top of a hill — may have taken years of tedious work.

Roque Gomez, an archaeologist and expert on the brownish, impressive stones, maintains the menhirs are linked "to the ancient phallic and earth fertility cults" followed by most Inca-dominated tribes in Bolivia and Argentina. Other scientists claim the monuments are sun calendars.

One piece had originally been placed on a ceremonial grave which contained a large number of bones and pieces of raw pottery. Others were placed in circular formations — a position said to be used to determine equinoxes. A few were found lying as solitary landmarks on the hills.

Many show traces of paint or have carved channels, a characteristic suggesting to some scientists they were colorfully decorated with feathers or trinkets.

Much of the menhirs' real significance remains undiscovered. The granite used for their construction is an easy-to-find kind of rock in the high Andean valleys of Argentina, a sculpture material the Indians were familiar with.

The military government's decision to group the menhirs on top of a hill was regarded by some as controversial. Scientists said it might have removed the last possibility of conducting research on how these monuments were originally patterned and of learning if a definite ritual scheme was followed.

Others argue this would be impossible to determine because the menhirs have been subject to erosion and to man's predatory removals in the past 2,000 years.

But, by creating the archaeological park, Roque Gomez said, what was first intended to be just a major tourism attraction has unexpectedly become "a decisive contribution to preserve one of the most intriguing and spectacular archaeological enigmas to be revealed in Latin America."

Legal Pads To Girdle World

HOLYOKE, Mass. (AP) — Lawyers in the U.S. used enough legal pads last year to circle the earth 10 times.

A study conducted by AMPAD, a manufacturer of office supplies, reports the average attorney uses about 50 legal pads a year, or about one pad per case.

AMPAD reports sales totaling approximately 40 percent of the legal-pad market, enough to satisfy all the attorneys in Washington, D.C., for close to 60 years.

Clocks Powered By Temperature

NEW YORK (UPI) — Anybody with $750 to $5,000 to spend for an energy-conserving clock can get Swiss models powered by changes in air temperature.

The clocks require no winding, no batteries and no connector or electric current, the manufacturer says. The bellows-powered clock was invented more than half a century ago in Geneva, Switzerland.

Temperature changes make the bellows expand and contract. A two-degree change generates enough power to keep the clock moving accurately for 48 hours, says the manufacturer, Jaeger-LeCoultre.

IN BUD . . . The new ready to open bud of a yellow pitcher plant flower, which faces the earth instead of the sun, is a globe of lemon gold.

A CLUSTER . . . of red chokeberry flowers is a common roadside spring beauty, its small delicate white flowers tinged with pink and framed by green leaves.

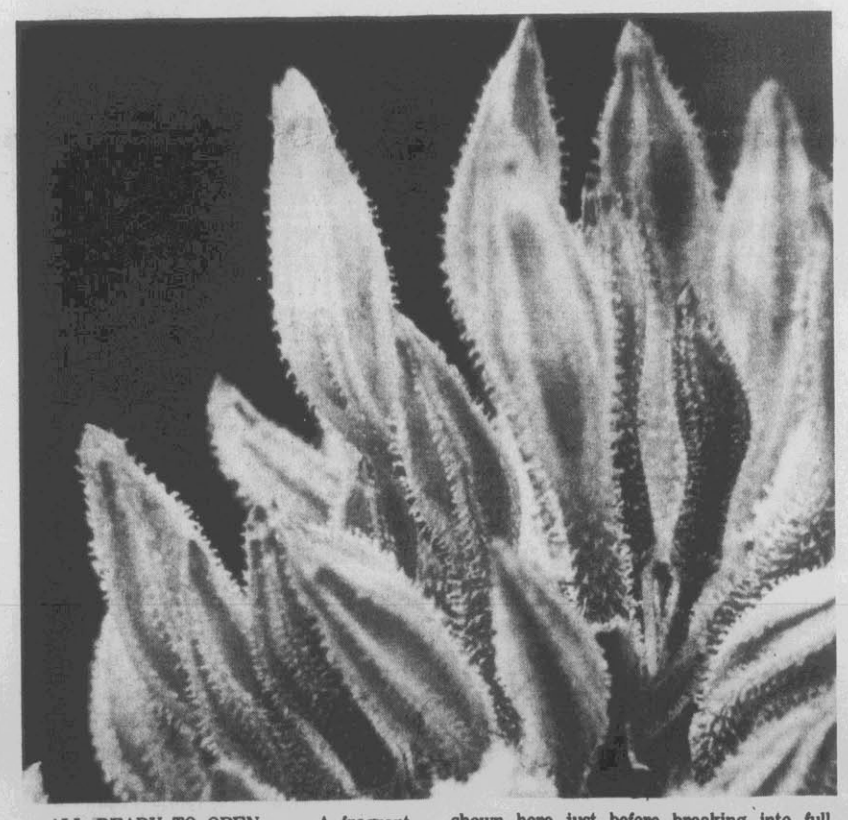

UNFOLDING LEAVES . . . The top leaves of a small bay tree have the grace and beauty of a Balinese dancer in the curved shape of the satiny leaves.

AN EMERGING FROND . . . Ferns, of which many varities are native to eastern North Carolina, each spring put forth new pale green fronds.

Miniature Glories Along Eastern North Carolina Roadsides

Text & Photographs By Jerry Raynor

ALL READY TO OPEN . . . A fragrant cluster of the flower of the dwarf azalea is shown here just before breaking into full showy flower.

Stop at any roadside along the rural or secondary roads of eastern North Carolina during late April or early May, stroll through the new growth of springtime to discover a world of miniature miracles not guessed at in simply riding by.

The view from the vantage point of a car window at best will provide a blurred hint of this beauty, with perhaps a stand of new ferns or a bed of low flowering dwarf azalea the only visible evidence of a much richer treasure on a small scale carpeting the earth.

Unfurling leaves, swelling buds of common and not so common wildflowers, tiny new green berries and the silvery magic of new spiderwebs are there awaiting discovery. It is a fresh and tender world of pale and bright greens, pinks, yellows — a fairyland of nature for a new population of ants, butterflies barely dry from winter cocoons, and delicate shy spiders.

For children or adults, an hour or two exploring the roadside glories of eastern North Carolina is a revelation of the marvels that each new spring brings.

MINIATURE GIFT OF NATURE . . . This tiny white flower, enveloped within a fold of green leaves, is often called "Biddies in a Basket" and is a cousin of the more common "Hens and Biddies." Here, the tiny plant is enlarged about four times its size.

ENTRAPPED GOLD . . . Bronze gold aments (or catkins) and a few dandelion thistles are held captive by a sparkling spread of spiderweb spun in the crotch of a small tree. Each whisper of a breeze animates the web and its occupants.

A BEARDED LEAF . . . A new leaf of a chaptalia, a low, ground-hugging plant, displays a bounty of white hairs growing on the edge of the dark green elongated leaf. Later, the plant will have a small white flower.

Furniture Is Built To Last A 100 Years

By KAREN M. MAGNUSON

MUSCATINE, Iowa (UPI) — The big, bearded, ruggedlooking man puffed on his pipe, adjusted his hard hat and tenderly ran his weatherbeaten hands over the edges of a custom-made cedar wood chest.

"You won't find anything like this in any store," Bob Hein said proudly, pointing at the corners he carved himself. "One hundred years from now, it will still look like it did when it was first made."

Hein, 39, has always had a passion for wood. As a young boy he learned he had a knack when he helped his father, a part-time carpenter, with odd jobs.

Only recently Hein abandoned a financially secure, 20-year contracting career to pursue his dream of turning an old meat packinghouse into one of Iowa's few custom-made furniture shops.

"That piece right there might look like just a chunk of wood to somebody," Hein said, motioning to a rough piece of oak, "but, to me, it has personality.

"I try to put pride in every piece of wood because every piece is different. I can take any junk piece of wood, cut it right and plane it right and make it into a perfect piece of wood.

"I know I can do it. The only problem is, can I make a living at it? You don't get rich."

Ironically, only the wealthy will be able to buy many of Hein's products. The few finished pieces of furniture sitting in the sawdust-strewn shop on the banks of Mad Creek are far from the factorymade likenesses in downtown furniture stores.

The prices generally are about double. Hein is betting people will be willing to make the investment.

"I've had inquiries as far away as Michigan because people can't find anybody to make something special for them," Hein said. "It'll be what they want, the size they want and the color they want.

"They can pass it on to their children and they can pass it around to theirs. I think we're getting so caught up in this plastic world that we just buy for today and forget about tradition.

"It won't fit everybody because not everybody can afford it. But if they can afford it, it will be the best investment they ever made."

Hein uses raw logs for most pieces. He cuts them in his sawmill, takes the lumber to a kiln to be dried, planes it down to check the grain, cuts it to length, shapes the panels and glues them together, and finishes and sands the final product.

"Some of them you just start from scratch and you don't know what it will look like until it's done. You just use good judgment," he said.

Like his products, Hein also started his shop, Old Town Mill and Furniture, from scratch. He renovated an old sawmill with odd junkyard parts, equipment from a Chicago brewery and an old combine machine. He built many of the shop machines himself.

With the help of a few parttime workers, Hein has kept going with sawmill and "bread and butter" orders from local farmers and industries.

But it is the custom-made furniture business he longs for. He has made trestle tables, benches, chests and bookcases and wants to do more. With a wife and three children at home, Hein is just waiting for the time when his pocketbook will allow him to make his dream complete.

"I'm an optimist. I guess you gotta be. I know with the economy the way it is, it's a difficult time. You almost have to perform a miracle sometimes. But you can't do it overnight."

ELECTION RETURNS

NEW YORK (AP) — The first presidential election returns broadcast on radio were carried by station KDKA in Pittsburgh. It was the 1920 race between Republican Warren G. Harding and Democrat James M. Cox. The same year KDKA became the first station to be commercially licensed.

Funerals In Japan Can Be Costly

By MINORU INABA

TOKYO (AP) — Most Japanese, the folk saying goes, are born Shintoist, marry Christian and die Buddhist. And for the latter, they pay dearly.

While about 90 percent of Japan's 115 million people are nominally Buddhist, few give more than lip service to the religion most of their lives. Most newborn babies are taken to a Shinto shrine for a blessing. Christian church weddings, complete with tuxedos, white gown and veil, are the latest fashion.

Yet when a Japanese dies, his family usually insists on a full and ornate Buddhist ceremony, and is willing to pay $10,000 or even 10 times that or more, for a "proper" funeral.

The whole nation seems obsessed with money, and is more interested in putting up a good show at a funeral than in making sure the departing soul goes in comfort, complains the elderly head priest of Tokyo's Myoen-Ji Buddhist temple.

Saying he does not believe in money, the priest claims he never asks for more than $1,000 to bestow a proper Buddhist name on those who die — an essential part of Japanese Buddhist ceremony. Some priests, he said, give "high-ranking" names to those who pay more, but he doesn't.

And that is just the beginning of a list of expenditures that often adds up to a heavy financial burden for bereaved families.

Funeral services are available from $640 to $450,000. Cremation, the custom in Japan even for non-Buddhists, costs up to $430 (the top price means a body is burned quickly and "beautifully" using high-grade oil, an industry source says).

A small cemetery lot starts at $1,900 but usually costs much more. A tombstone can be as much as $25,000. Even the urn for the ashes is sometimes the work of a noted ceramic artist, with appropriately high fees.

Other costs include an overnight wake, with dinner and wine, according to Takashi Takamine, managing director of Hakuzen Co., one of Tokyo's oldest undertaking firms.

All that money means fierce competition among the city's 300 undertaker companies, Takamine says. Some even bribe nurses and other hospital officials to get tip-offs on the dying.

In an effort to beat the costs, about 300 Japanese companies now offer cut-rate marriage and funeral services to members of associations, who pay a monthly fee ranging from $4 to $16 a month.

Surveys estimate the total number of such association members at 6 million families.

Even with prepaid funerals, though, it's often a problem to find a place to put the ashes. Fuji Cemetery park, at the foot of Mount Fuji, charges $1,900 for a 4½-square-yard lot, director Sadao Yoshida said.

And Myoen-Ji's priest said the 500 tombs in his cemetery occupied no more than about one square yard each.

"If necessary," the priest said, "we dig up old bones (of people) with no paying relatives to make room for the newly dead."

For the truly indigent, there is provision in Japanese law for government welfare offices to pay for funerals — $320 for an adult, $250 for a child, and a little more for cremation, death certificates and other details. In Tokyo last year, 2,513 persons took advantage of the charity funeral service.

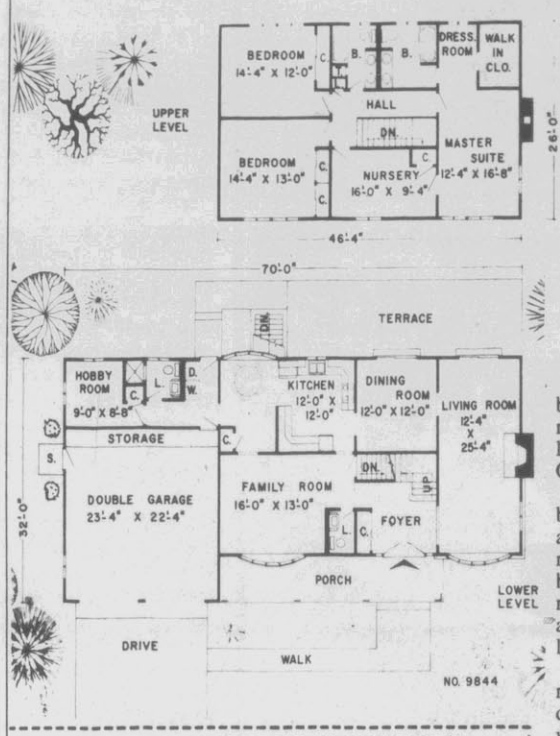

But some people apparently solve the problem of funeral costs in another unique way — by forgetting burial urns containing the ashes of departed loved ones in trains.

The Japan National Railway collects these items — there were 18 urns and portable tombs left on trains in the year ending last March — and stores them until claimed. After six months, the remains are buried at railroad expense as "dead without relatives."

Former heavyweight boxing champion Rocky Marciano died in a plane crash in 1969.

PLAN YOUR HOME — The Hearthstone

Large Nursery Adjoins Master Suite

By Jerry Bishop

Master suite, complete with bath, dressing room, and 16-ft. nursery, dominates the upper level of this engaging two story Colonial home.

Besides the extensive master bedroom suite, the Hearthstone, an accommodating three bedroom plan, calls or three and one half baths, an elegant living room, and ample family living areas within its 2600 sq. ft. or living space.

A traditionally inspired exterior is marked by double entry doors, bay windows, and a wrought iron columned entry porch. Garage roof is extended over the front porch for a continuity of line, and upstairs front windows are shuttered.

Expansive enough to entertain a crowd, the living room is framed by bay window at front and sliding glass doors to terrace at rear. To warm this 26-ft. length of room, a wood-burning fireplace is centered on the side wall. Sliding glass doors also furnish the adjacent dining room, large, formal, and ready for guests.

Informal living areas fill the remainder of the first floor. A front-facing family room is indulged with bay window and bordered by a half bath. At rear, the kitchen exhibits extensive counter and storage space and merges with a charming bay-windowed breakfast area. Laundry room, hobby room, and full bath complete the level.

Upstairs, over half the area is occupied by the outstanding master suite, a union of large bedroom, dressing room with walk-in closet, full bath with double sinks, and 16-ft. closeted nursery. The elongated nursery can also serve as an extra bedroom or sitting room, and two additional bedrooms share a full bath.

Wall-Covering Producers Devise New Sample Book

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

In an effort to lure customers toward wall coverings and away from paint, some wall-covering manufacturers have begun making it easier to choose their products by arranging sample books according to color instead of style.

Wall-covering producers have also toned down some of their offerings to give them the kind of long-term liveability that is required in living rooms.

"It's true that today from 55 percent to 65 percent of all wall coverings sold go into kitchens and baths. But we regard the main rooms of the house, such as the living room and the dining room, as areas of decorating opportunity for wall coverings," said William Zendig, marketing manager for Columbus Coated Fabrics Wall-Tex wall coverings.

Zendig's firm recently introduced the "Tailor Made" collection, with 107 coverings and some made-to-match fabrics.

The new book, a departure for the company, is an example of the tactics a number of manufacturers are adopting to boost their sales.

The book is laid out by color family so that whole color sequences can be seen at once. As many as eight different designs can be combined with one another and also with other colors in the book.

In addition, many of the patterns are quiet and understated to provide easy coordination with other furnishings and good backgrounds for art.

"Our research has shown that people find it too hard to make a choice when it comes to wall coverings," said Zendig. As a result, out of frustration they often give up and turn to the simple solution of paint. It's not surprising that choosing a pattern is difficult, he added, since there are at all times a minimum of 1,400 new collections each with more than 100 items to choose from.

The "new" wall-coverings customer, according to Zendig, is in the 25-44 year age group, among whom singles are an important factor.

This group is likely to live in apartments, as opposed to houses. And, according to Tom Woosley, design consultant for Pantasote Inc., maker of Panta Astor Wall Coverings, the new quiet, contemporary wall coverings, with their emphasis on companion patterning and matching fabrics, go a long way toward helping apartment dwellers solve their decorating problems.

Woosley says color is the key to mixing patterns when it comes to choosing companion wall coverings for contiguous rooms.

"The first thing to do is focus on the purpose of the room," he says. "Then choose a wall covering in line with the room's function. The predominant color in the pattern which covers the most space should be your key, dominant color. Then you can depart from there with additional colors and patterns.

"With pattern, scale is the secret. Don't be afraid to mix patterns, but keep them in the same scale."

Since companion colors and patterns have already been coordinated by professional designers, consumers making selections from a wall coverings book arranged in such a manner have most of their work already done for them.

With matching fabrics becoming increasingly available from numerous manufacturers, consumers can select two of the most important of all the elements needed in a successful room scheme.

For reduced maintenance, to deal with problem walls and for decorative mileage, wall coverings chosen wisely can be a boon to do-it-yourself home decorators, the manufacturers claim.

GARDEN CLINIC

Q. Will I have earlier tomatoes if I purchase plants that already have small tomatoes on them? (W.G., Burlington)

A. No. Developing fruits place a serious nutrient drain on the plants and if the plants are having to overcome transplant shock at the same time, slow, early growth will likely result. Tomato plants grow best when transplanted before blossoms form. An alternative is to grow the plants in a container large enough to allow room for good root development and thereby lessen the chance of transplant shock. (Larry Bass, extension horticulturist)

Q. Do starter solutions really get vegetable transplants off to a faster start? (F.R., Knightdale)

A. Yes. Most commercially prepared starter solutions have a high percentage of phosphorus, which stimulates root growth in young transplants. Liquid starter solutions provide nutrients that can be absorbed rapidly by the plant's root system. Gardeners can make their own starter solution by mixing three to four tablespoons of 5-10-10 fertilizer in a gallon of water. Never use more than one cup of solution per plant to avoid burning the root system. (Larry Bass, extension horticulturist)

Q. Will Australian pine and Douglas fir grow in the upper Piedmont? If so, how far apart should they be planted? (B.W., Elkin)

A. You likely would have little success with either tree growing in your area. Australian pine is native to tropical Asia and Australia and has been planted extensively in southern Florida.

Let's Talk Real Estate

by Connally Branch

In 1972, 40 states required that an applicant for a broker's license first satisfy some educational and/or apprenticeship requirements as a prerequisite to licensing. The trend since 1972 has been to increase the emphasis on education in order to improve competency. This is for protection of the public and a further step on the road to true professionalism by everyone in the industry. Professionalism can only be truly obtained when there is acceptance as such by the public. A college degree, with a major in real estate, may well be the ultimate standard for entrance into the real estate ranks as a broker. An apprenticeship as a sales person is already required in several states.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG

Q. — In making a concrete slab floor, can I use polyethylene sheets as vapor barriers to prevent moisture from the ground from entering the slab? If so, is a gravel fill necessary?

A. — Before answering your question, it is assumed that you know about putting some kind of insulation along the outside edges of the slab. Yes, polyethylene is a good vapor barrier. Generally, it can be used without gravel provided the ground is firm. If the ground is firm but not quite level, use sand to level it off. After this has been done, wet the sand a bit and tamp it down, then apply the polyethylene.

Q. — A few years ago, I cut a wall for the insertion of two windows. I cut the wall from the inside. I have a similar project coming up, but now have been advised that the openings should be cut from the outside. Is this correct?

A. — The cutting should be started from the inside, but after you remove the necessary studding and build up the framework for the window, you can complete the cutting of the exterior wall from inside or out. If you do it from the outside, drill pilot holes first so that you will know exactly where the corners are. Since you did a similar job in the past, you know about all the care that must be taken to be sure you don't interfere with electric wiring or other utility lines.

Q. — A bedroom bureau in our child's room was painted a dull white a few years ago. Recently, my wife decided that it would look better and be easier to clean if it had a glossy finish. I applied three coats of lacquer to it. The trouble was that I ruined the old finish. It is wrinkled in several places. What did I do wrong and is it possible to repair the damage?

A. — The mistake was in applying lacquer to a painted surface. The solvent in the lacquer, usually called lacquer thinner, acts very much like paint remover. It loosens the paint. If you had scraped or brushed the paint right after the lacquer was put on, it would have come off, although not without some difficulty. There isn't much you can do now except to take off both the paint and lacquer. Try lacquer thinner and, if that isn't fully effective, a varnish-paint remover. You may have to do some scraping, especially if there are several coats of paint on the bureau. When the old finishes are gone, follow the instructions on the remover container on what to use for rinsing the wood. If you want the bureau to have a white gloss finish, try enamel. Be sure there is plenty of ventilation when removing the old finishes.

1704 Newspaper Carried Ads

NEW YORK (AP) — The Boston News Letter carried the first paid advertisement in an American newspaper on May 8, 1704. The ad sought a buyer or renter for a New York estate.

Magazine advertising, says Advertising Age, dates to 1719 and Philadelphia's Weekly Mercury, while transit ads first appeared in 1850, for Lord & Taylor, on New York's horse-drawn street cars.

Until 1920, all advertising — except for word of mouth — involved one form of print or another. Beside newspapers and magazines this included handbills, billboards, catalogs or car cards.

Recession Arrived Early For A Once Booming Steelmaking City

By JOE McKNIGHT
Associated Press Writer

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — Recession has arrived in this one-time steel center, where blast furnaces that made it important are growing cold.

Thousands of laid off steel workers are angry or scared or both, and business leaders are out hustling new industry.

Imports, inflation, environmental laws and skyrocketing interest rates that work against capital investments are taking their toll. The result is that marginal or unprofitable mills with obsolete equipment are being abandoned.

U.S. Steel and Jones & Laughlin Steel, two of the city's four biggest employers, are trimming 5,000 jobs from their local payrolls. Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., once the fourth largest employer, did the same just over two years ago, cutting more than 4,100 mill jobs.

Then, as now, the companies blamed the marketplace, foreign competition, the cost of correcting air pollution and their own neglect of mills and equipment for closing plants that can no longer compete with newer mills in Germany and Japan.

The growing number of unemployed workers signals recession to the community as the economic strain increases. Unemployment rose from 6.5 percent in December to 9.2 percent in January.

Unemployment was at 4.8 percent in 1973, when the mills were running full blast.

John Toriello, whose family has operated a neighborhood grocery since 1912, says business dropped about 35 percent in recent months.

"We're losing customers all the time," Toriello says. "Closing the mills affected us most. Our customers' buying habits are the same, but the volume is less."

Business leaders scurry after new industry, while workers try to pressure companies to reopen shut mills or delay closing them.

One group of steelworkers sued U.S. Steel to reopen mills while they try to raise the money to buy one. A federal judge dismissed the suit.

Meantime, U.S. Steel chairman David Roderick charged European and Japanese steelmakers with dumping steel on U.S. markets and he's gone to court to stop it.

Hundreds of steelworkers demonstrated against U.S. Steel here and in Pittsburgh in late January. Many said Roderick reneged on a promise to keep the mills going as long as they were profitable. The company said the net changed last fall from a plus to a minus, leading to the decision to close its Ohio Works, where iron is poured, and the McDonald Works, where it is refined into steel.

While some workers look to the unions for help and leadership, others have helped an area arts council move and clean up an old open hearth furnace to be a downtown sculpture, a monument to all who contribute tosteel making.

Still others formed the Youngstown Ecumenical Coalition, which sought to raise money to buy and reopen a mill of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Works, but the effort failed.

The picture isn't all bleak. Republic Steel, second largest employer here behind General Motors, plans a $250 million expansion and modernization of ots Farrell, Pa., plant in the "steel corridor" from Youngstown to Pittsburgh.

Meantime, Gov. James A. Rhodes asked George E. Wilson of Akron, his one-time state development department director, to help Youngstown. Wilson is coordinator for several suburban communities hit hardest by mill closings.

"We're using anything we can get from anybody who will help," Wilson says. He landed the first big new business — a specialty steel mill — but said the area is still a long way from a sound economic footing.

Closing of the Sheet and Tube mills in the fall of 1977 sent unemployment skyrocketing from 6.5 percent to 9.3 percent in three months. Labor analyst Don Curry of the Ohio Bureau of Employment Services says smaller businesses saw that as a prime time to expand, which helped improve his statistics. The growth brought an expansion in the sales and services job market and within six months unemployment was back to 6 percent.

"But they weren't making as much money," Curry notes. "A lot of the skilled and semiskilled workers that had been earning 10-11 an hour in the mills were working in restaurants, department stores, or driving bakery trucks for $4 to $7 per hour."

Unemployment in the area jumped back up to 9.2 percent in January 1980, compared to 7.1 percent in January, 1979, and 6.5 percent in December 1979.

Curry says the state of the national economy does not favor more of the expansions that helped absorb layoffs in late 1977.

"We lost 6,000 manufacturing jobs in the area between 1977 and 1979," he says. "We picked up some other job categories, so unemployment wasn't all that bad. But earnings averages went down.

"With money tight, small businesses aren't expanding. The skilled journeymen can still find work. But for the unskilled and semi-skilled, there are fewer jobs and more people to fight for them...

"Based on what we already know, there will be over an 8 percent unemployment rate here for all of 1980."

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Sometimes I can barely drag myself out of bed in the morning. Even after a good night's sleep it's hard for me to get going. My neighbors do as much as I do with their children and the house, but they don't seem to suffer the exhaustion I do. I've had a general examination. There doesn't seem to be anything wrong with me. Now, I'm afraid it might be that a cancer is lurking somewhere and hasn't yet been found. Could that be possible? — Mrs. K.R., Ohio.

Dear Mrs. R.:

Since your physical examination failed to show any evidence of cancer or any other disease, it's unrealistic to associate your fatigue with a grave illness.

Yet, chronic fatigue is an important symptom and must not be overlooked. It cannot be casually disregarded, even if the person seems to be in complete good health. The emotional tension of hour-by-hour solutions of the problems of children and of running a household can be enormously taxing to some women. When one stops to realize the endless obligations in an average day's work, it's remarkable that more women don't have your complaint.

What is the answer? Are your friends better organized? Are they less compulsive about getting every tiny thing done? Do they indulge themselves in a period of rest during the day? Do their husbands share some of the workload? Some women feel guilty about imposing on their husbands some of the heavy, tiring jobs.

In addition, it must be recognized that there may be a low-grade infection, a hormone imbalance, underactive or overactive thyroid activity which may be responsible for excessive fatigue. Low blood pressure or low blood sugar must also be considered as possible causes of fatigue that does not readily clear up with adequate rest.

Fatigue is a symptom. It is a body warning that must be respected. Pushing yourself, despite that warning, can do you and your family an injustice.

After I gave birth to a baby three months ago, I had a milk cyst of the breast. It's gone now, but could that spot ever become cancerous? — Mrs. E.R., W.Va.

Dear Mrs. R.:

The breast that once had a milk cyst (galactocele) is no greater candidate for a cancerous tumor than one that has never had it. To live in such terror can deprive you of the joy of motherhood. Undoubtedly, my assurance simply substantiates that of your doctor.

Life-Saving Medal For Dog

Inmate Has A Goal: To Be Warden

By JERRY GRAY
Associated Press Writer

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Some day, George Rutherford hopes to have his boss' job. Rutherford's boss is Ben Poindexter, warden of the Memphis Correctional Center, and Rutherford is inmate 78967 at the 405-man minimum security facility.

Come December, Rutherford hopes to win a master's degree, his second. After that, he plans to begin work on a law or doctorate degree.

Nearly every weekday morning for the past two years, Rutherford, 28, has walked through the gates of the regional prison and waited for a bus to take him across town to the Memphis State University campus.

He's working on a master's degree in public administration in criminal justice to go with the master's in guidance and personnel, with an emphasis in corrections, he got last December.

Rutherford has been incarcerated since November 1975, when a judge sentenced him to 12 years for armed robbery. After spending a year at the state penitentiary in Nashville, he was transferred to the Memphis center, the 35th man chosen to participate in a behavioral modification program.

He is one of two inmates who attend Memphis State. The rest of the inmate-students attend State Technical Institute at Memphis, adjacent to the prison.

They attend classes under a correctional center regulation that requires each inmate to participate in educational or specific job-training programs. The state paid Rutherford's tuition when he was working on his first master's degree, but he is paying his own tuition for the second degree.

"I guess it was the will of God that I was selected to come down here and reap some of the benefits I have," he said. "I'm fortunate, very fortunate."

Rutherford, a bachelor, is the youngest of seven children and a lifelong resident of Memphis. In 1974, he earned a bachelor of arts degree in sociology and social welfare from LeMoyne-Owen College and went to work for Big Brothers of Memphis, Inc.

Somewhere along the line, he ran afoul of the law. He does not like to talk about the circumstances which led to his imprisonment.

"I was faced with a situation that I made a poor decision. If I had made the right decision, I probably wouldn't have been here today," he said. "I've learned to accept my shortcomings of that situation. I don't have any remorse feelings about the system...I made the decision that brought me here.

Rutherford, who sports a neatly trimmed beard, dresses in casual clothes, one of the privileges of good behavior. Around his neck, suspended by a small chain, is a pendant bearing the three Greek letters of his fraternity.

A Muslim, Rutherford said his faith had sustained him.

"It gave me a lot of insight I never had," he said. "It takes concerned people and you've got to be responsible ... You don't blame anybody else for your shortcomings."

Rutherford has a parole hearing in August and he thinks chances are good he will win his freedom. If so, he will finish work on his second master's, then pursue a doctorate degree in guidance and personnel or attend law school, preferably at Howard University in Washington, D.C.

Rutherford said several states, including California, allowed convicted felons to practice law.

He said he seriously wanted to become a warden some day.

"A warden can bring about a lot of changes," he said. Taxpayers put a lot of money into the correctional system. They need to know where that money's going.

"A lot of people figure, well, you take a convict and as long as he's out of place he's out of mind. They think he should be locked in a cage and that's it. But that's not a good investment.

"At the end of his sentence, he's going to get out anyway and he's going to be back on the street," Rutherford said.

Avoid The Price Increase!

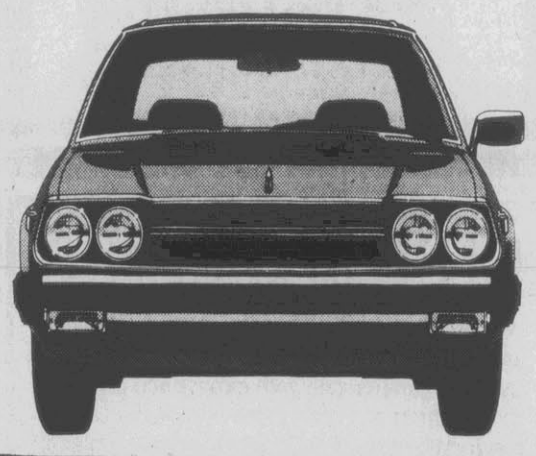

The 1980 Honda Accord

Effective April 1, there'll be a price increase on all new shipments of Honda cars. Here at Bob Barbour Honda-Volvo, we have a limited number of Hondas in stock at the old price! We would like to share these savings with you.

We have available the following models:

Green Accord LX, with automatic transmission, 2 to choose from Gold Accord LX, with automatic transmission, 2 to choose from Red Accord LX, with automatic transmission, 1 in stock

The Honda Accord LX this year offers an all-new, 3-speed fully-automatic transmission, as well as the many other standard features offered in years past: crushed velour interior, quartz digital clock, fully reclining bucket seats, rear window defroster, interior hatch release, tachometer, power steering, Michelin steel-belted radial tires and air conditioning.

In the face of rising gas prices, why not do yourself a favor and stop by for a test drive soon?

Clean Emmissions. Great Performance. Fuel Efficiency.

All Volvo models for 1980 are equipped with the unique Lambda Sond emission system, a Volvo innovation which revolutionized the industry when first introduced three years ago.

The Lambda Sond system uses an exhaust gas sensor to monitor and control fuel mixture, as well as a 3-way catalitic converter. This combination provides low emission, excellent fuel economy and—best of all—terrific drivability.

Here at Bob Barbour Honda-Volvo, we're fortunate to be able to offer you one of the finest selections of new Volvos you'll find anywhere. And, for a limited time, we'll be able to save you hundreds of dollars on these truly remarkable engineering achievements! Why not come in and take a test drive soon?

Jim Fixx Found A Fortune In The Running Fad

By KAY BARTLETT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

RIVERSIDE, Conn. (AP) — Jim Fixx sits reflectively in the living room of his modest Connecticut home, a fire ablaze and the poetry of Emily Dickinson nearby.

His wife, Alice, is in the kitchen heating up a tuna fish casserole and changing airline reservations on the telephone. She had found an even cheaper way to fly to California.

She brought home a copy of The New York Times she had picked up on the train. Used, of course.

"I'm the only best-selling author in the country who reads The Times one day late," says Fixx.

Fixx made so much money — "mountains of money" as he likes to pin it down — on his runaway best-seller of 1978, "The Complete Book of Running," that he would never have to work again.

The book alone earned him over $1 million, American Express flew him to Paris to make a TV commercial, his publisher flew him to Australia, he's in demand as a lecturer and promoters are willing to pay big to put his name on everything from toilet paper to running shoes.

Fixx, a middle-aged former editor who prefers semi-seclusion, was suddenly a mini-celebrity, at least. The man who had decided to see if he could earn a "rudimentary living" as a free-lance writer was hot indeed.

And now, two-and-a-half years after publication of the book that sold 800,000 copies in American bookstores, not to mention 14 foreign editions in 12 languages, Fixx seems to be doing it again.

The new book is simply called "Jimm Fixx's Second Book of Running." More than a month before publication date, before promotional tours and hype, the lure of his name drew orders of more than 100,000 copies.

The man who started his career as a $75-a-week reporter for the Sarasota (Fla.) Journal reflects on the experience:

"In American life, there is this whole apparatus out there ready to pounce on you when you've done something like this. It was an insight into the kinds of lives celebrities must lead, a look into the world of television. It was a fascinating process of discovery, watching it all."

Jim and Alice, a 37-year-old whirlwind who runs her own public relations firm in Manhattan, have not changed their lives at all.

Alice bought a few more antiques; Jim popped for a car wash, his first ever. Otherwise they eat in most nights, "peasant food," as Alice calls it. Jim continues to run 10 miles a day, usually late in the afternoon, topped off by a few cold beers.

Fixx could have made a great deal more money. He was inundated with offers to endorse running goods, with $50,000 contracts dangling before him.

"I decided I wanted to stay pure in case I ever did decide to write another book on running," says Fixx. He did at one point consider endorsing a beginner's running kit, not so much as a moneymaker, but to encourage more people to take up the sport about which he is so impassioned.

Fixx thought only the best products should be used. The promoter pointed out that using poorer stuff that wasn't selling well would make more money. Fixx said no thanks.

Car manufacturers, for reasons that still elude him, also came around. "I though I'd be very shrewd. I told them they could give me a car and I'd drive it and people would see me. I guess I'm not very shrewd." Fixx is still driving his 1974 Volvo.

The offer he found most repulsive and easiest to refuse came from a man who wanted to book excerpts from his prose on toiler paper.

Fix did do three national television commercials, all for products he used. One amuses him. It cast him with a baseball player, a footballer, and jockey, superathletes all.

"I looked around and wondered what a flabby, middle-aged man was doing here," he says.

The world crowded him so much he hired a business manager. "I felt I was losing control over, my life," he says. "I don't represent myself as well as I should and I thought this would help. It's tempting to think you can get other people to run your life for you; but it doesn't work."

His philosophy now is simple. He points out that his price is high and says he understands perfectly if someone doesn't want to spend that much.

He also ends up giving a lot of lectures free instead of collecting fees of $5,000 or so.

Fixx is reluctant to talk about the money he has made, partly because his house was robbed the last time he did ("What did they think, that I keep it in the house?") and partly because that's just not his style.

"When you have money for the first time, you discover something about yourself. It makes you more secure and more independent. It's not in the spending of it. It's in the knowing it's there. You also learn quickly that money doesn't have the highest value."

He admits there are certain perverse pleasures — such as sitting down and writing the IRS a check for six figures.

"I'm working harder now than I've ever worked in my life," he says. "But I love what I'm doing. I get up in the morning and I'm eager to start writing. I am free to do what I want."

THE FARM AT A&P

For Freshness & Savings

ADVERTISED ITEM POLICY — Each of these advertised items is required to be readily available for sale at or below the advertised price in each A&P Store, except as specifically noted in this ad.

Where do you go for the freshest fruits and vegetables? To the farm, of course. So A&P brings the farm to you. Somewhere in the world, its harvest time. And that's exactly where A&P's eagle-eyed produce buyers are right now—gathering the pick of the crop and getting it rushed to the Farm in your nearby A&P store.

Their demanding standards and their ability to buy in large quantities means you get exceptional value whenever you buy produce at A&P. So come take a fresh look at The Farm at A&P and get to know the Farm Manager. He's so proud of his fine fruits and vegetables, you'd think he grew them all himself! And he'll help you find exactly what you need to be equally proud when you serve it to your family.

Johnny Shines In Colleagues' Eyes

Minnie Pearl says about him, "Besides loving him, I never get over the feeling of excitement when he walks out on stage." Ray Stevens says, "I think he has a lot of class and the world would not be the same without him." And George Jones comments, "I just think he's one of the greatest people in the world."

The object of all this adulation is one of country music's most enduring and talented performers — Johnny Cash. This year marks Cash's silver anniversary in the entertainment business. And his friends gathered to help him celebrate on the 90-minute musical special, "Johnny Cash: The First 25 Years," to be broadcast Thursday, May 8 (9:30 p.m.), on CBS-TV.

More than 30 people, including such country-music legends and luminaries as Roy Acuff, Minnie Pearl and Dottie West, joined Cash in Nashville to celebrate the occasion. They all have their own special memories of Johnny and their own way of expressing them.

For Richard Sturbin of the Oak Ridge Boys, who are relative newcomers to the country music scene, Cash is not only a fine performer, but a benefactor as well. When the group was starting out, Cash gave them a hand. "There's not a person in the music business who's been more of an influence in our career than Johnny Cash," Sturbin says. "He made us a part of the show for a short while. But his words of encouragement were by far more important than the financial assistance he gave us."

Bill Anderson has similar memories. He was trying to make up his mind about staying in Nashville or looking elsewhere for another type of job when, he says, "Cash called me from California and hired me for five or six days." Anderson terms that moment a "turning point" in his career. "Needless to say," he adds, "I've had some pretty happy thoughts of him."

While his reputation as a mentor for other artists may not be common knowledge for the general public, other people in the music business recognize it and give Cash a lot of credit for his selfless help to young musicians starting out.

Cash also means a lot to those people — musicians or otherwise — who have spent some time in prison. David Allan Coe says, "As an ex-convict, I think Johnny has one of the most powerful voices in the world, giving us inspiration that we can be somebody."

Cash has influenced many musicians, both by setting an example himself and by his personal intervention to help others. To the people of Tennessee, he is a fellow citizen of whom they can be proud.

The Governor of Tennessee, Lamar Alexander, also on hand for the celebration, jubilantly exclaimed, "Johnny Cash is one of Tennessee's most valuable assets, and we're proud to lend him to the whole country — in fact, the whole world."

Cash has indeed been a major force in popularizing country music for American television audiences. He was recenly named Male Country Performer of the Decade by Cashbox; has won five Country Music Association Awards, including the prestigious Entertainer of the Year Award, and Grammy awards. He has performed at the White House, behind the Iron Curtain, in prisons all over the world and, by his own count, has composed over 1,000 songs.

"JOHNNY CASH: The First 25 Years" — Special musical celebration of Cash's silver anniversary in show business airs Thursday, May 8 (9:30-11 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

"BATTLE OF THE NETWORK STARS" will air on Sunday, May 4 (8-10 p.m.) on ABC-TV. Scott Baio from ABC's "Happy Days" (top), Catharine Bach of CBS's "Dukes of Hazzard" (bottom left) and Gary Sandy of CBS's WKRP In Cincinnati" (bottom right) will be some of the stars pushing their athletic skills to the limit.

Network Stars 'Battle'

Twenty-two of the top stars of ABC. CBS and NBC entertainment shows test their athletic prowess in head-to-head competition on ABC Sports' "Battle of the Network Stars," airing Sunday. May 7 (8 to 9:58 p.m.).

The teams will be as follows:

ABC: Scott Baio. Grant Goodeve, Joan Prather. Cathy Lee Crosby. Kent McCord. Robyn Douglass and Caroline McWillams.

NBC: William Devane (Captain). Gil Gerard. Larry Wilcox. Brian Kerwin. Randi Oakes. Sarah Purcell. Pamela Hemsley and Karen Grassle.

This unique series of specials was originated in Nov. 1976. and became an immediate favorite with television viewers nationwide.

30th Anniversary

Production is scheduled to begin on a new Dick Clark Cinema Production. "Bandstand." which will utilize Clark's long-running television series "American Bandstand" as the backdrop. The film will be a romantic teenage love story and a nationwide search will be launched shortly to cast the two young lovers.

"Bandstand." will spotlight a variety of music groups from the 1950s through today's music scene. Clark himself will also be featured in the film.

Richard Christian Danus has been signed to script the original screenplay which is slated for release in 1981 to coincide with the 30th anniversary of "American Bandstand" on the air.

Casey Comeback

The early '60s series. "Ben Casey," will be revived in a new drama. Vince Edwards will still be playing the title role and his character will be picked up 15 years later. The new version is slated for a possible midseason series.

SURPRISE MEETING — George Burns (l) stars as God and John Denver portrays a California businessman who has a surprise meeting with The Supreme Being, in "Oh, God!", a comedy to be rebroadcast on The Sunday Night Big Event, May 4 (9-11 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

Sutton Not Bitter

Crystal Lee Sutton, the real-life Norma Rae says she is not bitter from the results of the movie. Even though the film earned 20th-Fox $7 million in film rentals and is still showing in 400 theathers, Sutton ended up losing her job, and being permanently blacklisted in the Southern textile mills and divorcing her husband. She also did not receive a dime for telling her story. Most of her problems she feels were due to being misadvised.

"I was being misadvised all over the place — by my lawyers mainly." She also adds, "But I'm not blaming anyone but myself, and I'm not bitter."

Sports Addiction

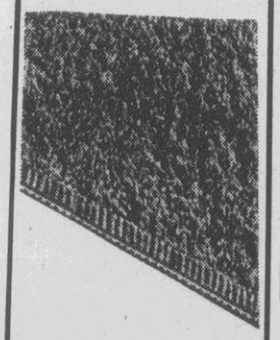

Commenting on her husband's addiction to sports on TV, Dr. Joyce Brothers, noted psychologist said," if we did get a divorce, the only way he would know it is if they would announce it on 'Wide World of Sports."

Actor Wants Out

Although ABC regards Chris Robinson as a major factor in the success of its soap "General Hospital," the rugged actor who plays Dr. Rick Webber is beginning to feel uncomfortable with his role.

"I'm in much deeper than I wanted to be. I feel I'm caged in by the show." Since the addition of his character to the show, its ratings have risen and the show is now one of America's most popular soaps. However, Chris feels his career would advance further if he were not tied to the show.

Series Postponed

NBC has postponed the airing of its new six-part miniseries "Belauh Land," in response to criticism from an ad hoc committee which has NAACP sponsorship. The committee has criticized the film for depicting "happy slaves, stereotypes and setting back the movement of 50 years."

Executive producer David Gerber feels the criticism is unjust and NBC should not react to pressure from the group.

The series, which is set on a Southern plantation during the Civil War, was scheduled for a May 25 airdate.

Has Been Signed

Gold medal gymnast, Kurt Thomas, has been signed to appear with Shirley Maclaine on her upcoming CBS-TV special, "Every Little Movement."

Jeff Gralnick's A Busy Man

ABC NEWS EXECUTIVE Producer Jeff Gralnick is responsible for both ABC's "World News Tonight" and "The '80 Vote," ABC's election year coverage. A typical day might find Gralnick talking with a correspondent by telephone (top right), planning a broadcast with anchorman Frank Reynolds (bottom left) or coordinating Coverage with ABC News President Roone Arledge (bottom right).

Jeff Gralnick is a busy man these days. Not only is he responsible for ABC's evening news broadcast, "World News Tonight," but he also oversees the network's election coverage program, "The '80 Vote."

"It's a little like the Normandy invasion," says Gralnick. "You have all those people out there and you hope you can keep them pointed toward the beaches."

In his dual role, Gralnick finds himself in a unique position. He's the only American network executive responsible for both the evening news and election convention coverage.

"I'll admit it's no easy task. But we are able to put on first-rate, competitive news broadcasts because I have a group of the best television producers going. We are producing superb news coverage and this strong cadre of men makes it possible," says Gralnick.

While it does take many dedicated people to make the network's news competitive, there's little question that Gralnick is the person who makes it run smoothly. Named Executive Producer of "World News Tonight" last August, he insures that the broadcast continues to attain critical acclaim and to increase its viewership under his command.

During his nine years with ABC News, Gralnick has worked his way up the ranks from an associate producer on the evening newscast to his current position. And, as Executive Producer of Special Events, he's shown that whether it's covering Pope John Paul II's visit to America, the election news, or the fall of Skylab, news specials can be informative and interesting broadcasts.

"There's no reason why we have to have a group of people sitting around a table discussing the effects of Pope John Paul II's visit to the United States or how Skylab fell to Earth. My idea of a Special Events broadcast is to make it special. I want to have our correspondents cover every angle of the story and I want them to cover it in an interesting and exciting way."

Gralnick is no stranger to political coverage. In 1978, he produced the network's coverage of 71 gubernatorial and Congressional races. He also produced coverage of such events as the election and installation of Pope John Paul II and the late Pope John Paul I, as well as the funerals of Pope John Paul I and Pope Paul VI.

'Morning's Newest Face

The newest face among the reporting team of CBS News' "Morning" broadcasts belongs to meteorologist Valerie Voss. And she happens to be the first weather reporter in the history of the daytime program.

A native of Milwaukee, Valerie is a graduate of Northern Illinois University, where he majored in meteorology. She is also a member of the American Meteorological Society.

"I am delighted to have Valerie as part of our 'Morning' broadcast," says Burton Benjamin, Vice President of CBS News. "We believe she will add a new dimension to our news programming."

Voss came to the network from a television station in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, where she had been an environmental reporter for the past year. Prior to that, she'd been a meteorologist for Weather Central, a radio weather service in Madison, Wis., since December, 1978.

Behind The Scenes

Getting lost in a role took on a different meaning for 14-year-old Brad Savage when he signed to play the part of a boy who loses his way in the wilderness in "The Secret of Lost Valley." The two-part telefilm is now airing on "Disney's Wonderful World."

For the role of Adam Harkness, an 11-year-old who becomes separated from his parents and uncovers a secluded settlement of aborigines, Savage drew upon his extensive experience as an actor.

"It was a part I could really relate to," explained Brad. "There's a lot of me in Adam Harkness." Savage gave so convincing a portrayal that director actor Vic Morrow called him "a real find."

Born in Livonia, Michigan, the talented youth made his acting debut in local commericals at the age of 18 months. When his family moved to California, Brad made the transition to television and feature films and has been going strong ever since.

Besides a featured role on "The Tony Randall Show" several seasons ago, Savage has appeared on numerous series including "CHiPs," "Mork & Mindy," "Police Woman" and "The Streets of San Francisco." Included in his film credits are three features for Disney.

When he's not performing, Brad can usually be found skiing (snow and water), roller skating, playing racquetball, reading history or law books, and, not surprisingly, watching TV. Another leisure time activity for the energetic teen is singing with his brother and sister (also actors) in a rock group called "The Savages."

Having grown up in the spotlight (he claims to have "fallen into it"), Brad would like to continue acting and eventually maybe branch into producing and directing. "I ask lots of questions when I'm on the set," said Savage. "It's an excellent opportunity to learn the ropes. I'm always grilling the crew on how to do one thing or another."

MIRANDA (Pippa Guard) and Ferdinand (Christopher Guard) are two young lovers in "The Tempest," airing Wednesday, May 7 (8-10:30 p.m.).

'Tempest' Concludes Season

Michael Hordern stars in William Shakespeare's magical fantasy, "The Tempest," which airs Wednesday, May 7 (8 to 11 p.m.), on PBS.

This is the sixth presentation in Season Two of The Shakespeare Plays. And the comedy-romance, written in 1611, is generally thought to be the Bard's final complete play. It is certainly among his richest and most beautiful.

'Tempest' is traditionally regarded as one of Shakespeare's most personal works. Written just prior to the playwright's retirement from London to Stratford, the play details Prospero's plot to return home to Milan from the enchanted island on which he has been shipwrecked. As a powerful magician, Prospero exerts a control over events on the island which is much like the power of a playwright constructing a plot. He 'stage-manages' the actions of the other characters, arranges encounters, and dictates their outcome. It is no wonder that critics have long been tempted to identify the old sorcerer — bidding farewell to his enchanted isle — with Shakespeare, saying goodbye to the magical world of the theatre to return home to Stratford.

Michael Hordern has played Prospero often throughout his career, and it is a role with which he has become identified, to his great satisfaction. "I love Prospero," he said recently. "The role leaves one feeling absolutely exalted, and yet somewhat unsatisfied because one still hasn't got to the bottom. With every performance, there is something new to learn, some rich vein still waiting to be tapped."

The play's title refers to a storm the magician creates in order to shipwreck his enemies, among them a treacherous brother who usurped Prospero's dukedom and put Prospero and his infant daughter, Miranda, to sea in a leaky, unseaworthy boat. Twelve years later, Prospero's tempest casts his enemies up onto the enchanted isle on which he and Miranda were shipwrecked. Among those marooned is Ferdinand, a prince for whom Prospero intends marriage to Miranda.

Team Selected

NBC's "SportsWorld" has selected its All-Time AllIrish-American All-Star Squad to celebrate the opening of the 1980 Major League Baseball season.

"All of the members of this unique team are in the Hall of Fame or will be there shortly," said Pete Rose, who has been named to the squad. Manager of the team is John McGraw (New York Giants 1891-1932), who compiled a winning percentage of .589. He also managed 10 pennant-winning clubs and was at the helm of 55 World Series Games.

In the infield, and at first base is Jimmie Foxx (Philadelphia A's 1925-1945) who had a lifetime batting average of .609 and was the batting champ five times. 1938 was his best year when he hit 50 home runs and drove in 175 runs. Eddie Collins mans second base, (Philadelphia A's 1906—1930). Collins has a lifetime batting average of .333 and stole 743 bases in his career.

At shortstop is Joe Cronin (Boston Red Sox 1926-1945). The former American League president won two pennants as a manager and had a lifetime batting average of .301.

Jimmy Collins (Boston Red Sox 1895-1908), is at the hot corner. Collins is considered by many as the greatest player-manager of all time. He won the first World Series as a player-manager for the Red Sox and owned a lifetime batting average of .294.

The powerful and consistent battery includes Roger Breshnahan (St. Louis 1897-1915) behind the plate. He batted .350 and stole 34 bases in 1903. He also was the first to introduce shin guards in 1907. The pitchers are right-hander Ed Walsh (Chicago White Sox 1904-1917) and southpaw Whitey Ford. Walsh had the lowest lifetime ERA of all-time-1.82, and had his best year in 1908 winning 39 games and 12 shutouts. Ford holds eight World Series life-time records.

Michele Will Tell

Q: Can you tell me who played the part of Joshua in the 1956 film "The Ten Commandments"? Did he play in any other movies? E.K., FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.

A: Silver-haired John Derek, who's been on-screen since 1945. He's appeared in numerous other films, among them: "I'll Be Seeing You," "Knock on Any Door," "All the King's Men," "Thunderbirds" and "Massacre at Sand Creek." Today, however, he's best known as the husband of everybody's '10' — Bo Derek.

Q: What happened to the series "B.A.D. Cats," and what is the cast doing now? J. BROWN, ROANOKE RAPIDS, N.C.

A: 'Cats' never clawed its way to an impressive spot in the ratings and was quickly cancelled. Its stars — Steven Hanks, Michelle Pfeiffer and Asher Brauner — got some excellent exposure during the few weeks it aired, however, and I'm sure they'll surface again soon. Let's hope their next outings on the small screen will be more successful.

Q: Give me some information about Brian Kerwin, who's Deputy Hawkins on "The Misadventures of Sheriff Lobo." I'd also like to have his address. A READER IN WHITEVILLE, N.C.

A: Brian, who's the son of a Chicago physician, had planned to follow in his father's footsteps, but changed his mind after one semester in college and switched to drama. His first outing on television was a recurring role on the daytime series "The Young and the Restless" (he appeared in about 40 episodes). Then came several guest stints in other shows. Write to him c/o the show, NBC-TV, 3000 W. Alameda Ave., Burbank, Calif. 91523.

Q: Is it true that actor Steve Kanaly, who plays Ray on "Dallas," used to play Ernie on "My Three Sons"? B. ASHER, HICKORY, N.C.

A: No. Barry Livingston was cast as Ernie in the popular series of yesteryear. And he came back on the small screen in another show a couple of years ago, "Sons and Daughters." Unfortunately, it did not prove to be the hit his prior one was. "Dallas" marks a 'first' for Kanaly. Although he'd guested in several series, this is his first recurring role.

Q: What other TV shows has Dana Plato, the young actress who's cast as Kimberly on "Diff'rent Strokes," been on? It seems like I've seen her on some other series. Also, where may I write to her? B. McMILLAN, SUPPLY, N.C.

A: Before joining 'Strokes,' Dana had guested on two other series, "Six Million Dollar Man" and "Family." Perhaps you've seen her in a movie. She's had key roles in "The Heretic," "California Suite" and "Beyond the Bermuda Triangle." Write to her c/o Tandem Productions, 5752 Sunset Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif. 90028.

FAMILY TENSION — Paul Dooley and Barbara Barrie play the parents of a teenage boy whose ambition is to be an Italian bike racing champion, in "Breaking Away," on NBC Monday Night at the Movies, May 5 (9-11 p.m.).

Award Winner Airs

"Breaking Away" will have its television premiere on NBC Monday Night at the Movies, May 5 (9 to 11 p.m.). The critically acclaimed comedy recently won an Academy Award for Best Original Screenplay. It was also nominated for four additional Oscars.

The film centers around four midwestern teenagers, played by Dennis Christopher, Dennis Quaid, Daniel Stern and Jackie Earle Haley. They're all in search of a sense of direction, and Dave (Christopher) is a devoted bike racer. In fact, he dreams of becoming a champ on the international scene.

Since Italian racers are Dave's idols, he decides to spice up his life with a little bit of Italy — a foreign phrase tossed here, a little pasta there. The boy's conventional father (played by Paul Dooley) resists and dismisses his son's sudden cultural exchange. And the aspiring champ's mom (Barbara Barrie) valiantly tries to keep the household peaceful.

Dave and his three buddies put up some resistance of their own by vowing to stick together like a team and steer clear of attending the university in their home town, Bloomington, Indiana.

Some of the film's sharpest moments concern the tense relationship between the townspeople (called 'Cutters') and the cliqueish university students. An all-important bike race, in which the 'Cutters' prove their mettle against the college crowd, ends the upbeat story with high action excitement.

There are also some highly observant scenes of family life penned by writer Steve Tesich, and brought to full life by director/producer Peter Yates.

Soon after its release by 20th Century-Fox last summer, New York Times critic Janet Maslin described the film as "a classic sleeper" and further commented: "...the finished product is wonderful. Here is a movie so fresh and funny it didn't even need a big budget or pedigree."

Judith Crist wrote: "The feel-terrific-movie of the year...a remarkably touching and exciting story of friendship, group loyalties, self-assertion, the craziness of being young and the painfulness of finding out a few facts of life."

LINDA LAVIN and Max Gail star in the poignant drama "Like Mom, Like Me," to be rebroadcast on "The CBS Tuesday Night Movie," May 6 (9-11 p.m.).

From Alice To Althea

As Alice, Linda Lavin works as a waitress and supports a teen-age son, and there are a lot of laughs along the way. As Althea, Lavin is a college professor and supports a teen-age daughter. But the similarities of being a single parent stop there. This time it's not for laughs.

In her role as Althea, in "Like Mom, Like Me," Lavin is involved in a bittersweet story of a mother and daughter trying to make a new life for themselves when the husband-father abandons the nest for a younger woman. Kristy McNichol stars as the teen-ager in the drama, airing on The CBS Tuesday Night Movies, May 6 (9 to 11 p.m.).

About the poignant drama, Linda says, "You see the progression of a woman learning to be on her own, to find herself." She pointed out that there is no one moment of "Eureka!" in the film but, rather, "As in life, Althea is flailing around."

Althea's ever'changing relationship with her teen-age daughter is a very important aspect of the two-hour drama. "We take out our frustrations on each other, we learn to grow from each other," Linda continued.

She hopes the film will be helpful for the many thousands of women who are trying to make a home for their children without the benefit of a man in the house, as well as be educational for men, too.

"Why can't we help and encourage men to feel for this situation?" Linda asked. "We're not saying that Althea and Jennifer need a man, but just that this is what their life is like without one."

Linda, who recently joined the National Commission on Working Women, doesn't want people to think that 'Like Mom, Like Me" is a "woman's picture." She insisted that the film is not just about women. "Everyone deserves a chance to discover their own resources."

But for all of the value the film may have, Linda noted, it is no panacea, "Nobody has all the answers. There are all questions in this movie."

Others in the cast of "Like Mom, Like Me," are Lawrence Pressman, who plays the husband who deserts Althea, and Stacey Nelkin as Tao, her daughter's friend. Portraying the men in their lives are Patrick O'Neal, Max Gail and Michael LeClair.

Projected Drama

Production will begin next spring on "That Year at Central High," a three-hour television film about the start of school integration at Little Rock, Ark.

The project is based on the about-to-be-published diary of Mrs. Elizabeth Huckaby, who was vice-principal at Central High in September, 1957, at the time of the historic clash between the governor of Arkansas and the U.S. President over integrations of the school.

The network's Freyda Rothstein is currently negotiating with the Arkansas Film Commission for permission to film the drama at Central High, where it actually occurred.

Savors Flavor

Having once played a murderer in "Macbeth," British actor Alan Dobie counts it a case of "dramatic justice" that he is now portraying television's stalwart Scotland Yard detective, Sergeant Cribb. "It began as a bit of a busman's holiday from doing Shakespeare and the classics," he quipped. "I thought that Cribb would catch one murderer, and that would be it. Now, I've got a regular caseload." Three evenings of Sergeant Cribb's investigations will air on consecutive Tuesdays, beginning May 6 (9 p.m.) as the concluding feature in the premiere season of "Mystery!".

Focus Is On Snails

There are about 85,000 kinds of snails and they live just about everywhere — in the sea, on land and even in trees. In fact, fossils show that snails have been here on Earth for 500 million years.

Hal Linden, who hosts "Animals Animals Animals" on ABC-TV, introduces young viewers to all kinds of snails, from black turbans to tritons in the segment airing May 4.

With fast-moving graphics, animated poetry, fables, filmed rhymes and original music, 'Animals' explores the world of the snail in history, art, literature, legend and mythology.

The shell of the snail is the snail's house. Linden notes that the snail's shell is "one of nature's most perfect forms." And so snails are often represented in paintings and architecture. This segment looks at some of that art, including the painting, "The Snail," by Matisse, and building influenced in architectural desgins by the snail in such far distant places as Mexico and New York. In Mexico, there's "El Caracol," built in the shape of a snail. In New York, there's the Guggenheim Museum and Frank Lloyd Wright's famous design of a spiral ramp unwinding as the shell of the snail unwinds.

'Animals' presents two animated fables. One, entitled "A Snail Tale," tells about a race in which a snail takes a ride on a fox's tail. The other fable is "The Beautiful Snail That Went to Sea."

Roger Caras provides commentary and Lynn Kellogg sings an original song about snails. Estelle Parsons, Mason Adams and Linden narrate the animation sequences.

The series has received the Peabody, Ohio State, Coalition on Children and Television and ACT Awards and has been recommended for viewing by the National Education Association.

Contemporary Epic Airs

Like Rip Van Winkle, the mighty King Kong went to sleep for a little too long — over 40 years — and woke up to find that the whole world had changed. Gone are Fay Wray and the Empire State Building of the 1933 classic, but replacements Jessica Lange and the World Trade Center towers are enough to give the colossal 40-foot Kong a terrific sense of deja vu in Dino de Laurentiis's multi-million dollar contemporary adventure, "King Kong." The spectacular drama, which features a 40-foot $3 million mechanical ape in the title role, will be rebroadcast in two parts, on "NBC Movie of the Week" Thursday May 8 and Friday, May 9 (8-10 p.m.).

Miss Lange, in her motion picture debut, stars with Jeff Bridges and Charles Grodin in the television version that features additional footage not included in the theatrical presentation. The footage will be incorporated into existing scenes, to enhance certain segments, primarily during the first part.

Part I: A fog-shrouded island in Micronesia is the destination of an expedition headed by Fred Wilson (Grodin) of the Petrox Oil Company, part of the company's global search for fuel. After they are at sea, the crew discovers Jack Prescott (Bridges), a zoologist who has stowed away. While at sea, they come across a lifeboat with Dwan (Miss Lange), an aspiring actress who has survived a shipboard catastrophe.

Arriving at the island, they discover a society of Aborigines and witness a ceremony involving a gigantic ape they call Kong. The natives abduct Dwan and prepare to sacrifice her to Kong.

Prescott takes off after Dwan as Wilson — ever the exploiter — devises a plan to capture Kong and bring him to the United States as a freak attraction.

Part II: After losing several men in an effort to rescue Dwan, Wilson finally succeeds in capturing Kong and placing the ape in a cage aboard a supertanker headed for New York.

Teenager Faces Challenge

Hal Holbrook, Michael Learned and Mare Winningham star in "Off the Minnesota Strip," a drama about a young woman attempting to rebuild her life, airing as The ABC Monday Night Movie, May 5 (9 to 11 p.m.).

Winningham is cast in the key role of a teenage runaway who has worked as a prostitute in New York, then returns to her Midwest home and desperately struggles to regain the family values and innocence she left behind.

Michele Johnson is brought home to Minneapolis after the New York police pick her up for prostitution on Manhattan's notorious Minnesota Strip. Her parents (Holbrook and Learned) refuse to accept the reality of their daughter's part. Caught up in their own private horrors, they fail to heed Michele's cries for compassion and understanding. She returns to school but quickly learns that her 'reputation' has preceded her, leading her friends to be alternately cool or blatantly forward to her.

Slowly, Michele realizes she can't go home again, and that the rest of her life might be spent walking dark, lonely streets.

Others in the cast are Heather McAdams as Danielle Johansen, Ronald Hunter as Dr. Fischel, and Ben Marley as Dwayne. James Murtagh plays Bruce McGrath, Leon Issac is Louis Knox and Leonora May is featured as Lisa Sherman.

In Another Trio

Joyce DeWitt of ABC's "Three's Company" is still involved with yet another trio. She has signed to do another year of commercials of Leggs Pantyhose along with Juliet Prowse and Barbara Eden.

Smart Lady

Suzanne Somers who plays the dumb-blonde, Chrissy, on "Three's Company," is actually a shrewd businesswoman in real life. She and her husband, TV talk show host Alan Hamel have organized their own company in an effort to offset the impact of taxes and inflation on their income.

The couple's corporation is said to have a built-in pension plan that allows them to shelter a large part of their income from inflation. There was a time when the now popular actress did not have to worry about tax shelters. Before her big break she had a very small income. One year her total earnings amounted to about $2,900. Now she earns more in a week than she once did in a year.

She's got a million dollar contract with MGM Grand Hotel in Las Vegas for eight weeks work. On Three's Company, she gets nearly $30,000 for each show, and she is still in popular demand to do TV commercials, posters, cosmetic endorsements and movies which bring in millions.

Taxes take a large portion of the couples earnings, but with their company Hamel-Somers Entertainment, they are managing to preserve as much as they can.

Past Haunts A Woman

NATALIE WOOD stars in the dual role of a mother and her disturbed daughter in "The Memory of Eva Ryker," a mystery drama airing as a special movie presentation Wednesday, May 7 (8-11 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

"The Memory of Eva Ryker," starring Natalie Wood as a woman haunted by her experience as a child aboard a sinking ocean liner will be broadcast as a special movie presentation Wednesday, May 7 (8-11 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

Robert Foxworth, Ralph Bellamy, Bradford Dillman, Morgan Fairchild, Jean-Pierre Aumont, Peter Graves and Roddy McDowall also star in the suspenseful drama. Miss Wood plays not only Eva Ryker but also, in flashbacks, Eva's mother, Claire, who went down with the luxury liner when the vessel, the Queen Anne, became the first British victim of Nazi U-boats in the early days of World War II.

The key characters in the film include, Walter Ryker (Bellamy), an immensely wealthy octogenarian who is obsessed with the Queen Anne. His grown daughter, Eva Ryker, (Miss Wood), who is mentally unbalanced as the result of her experiences decades before aboard the sinking ship, experiences she is incapable of remembering.

Also theres Norman Hall (Foxworth), a famous novelist who is hired by Ryker to double as a jounalist and cover his project of salvaging the ship. And Jason and Lisa Eddington (Dillman and Miss Fairchild), a married couple whose unknown role in Eva's life appears to figure crucially in her Queen Anne ordeal.

In proposing to hire Hall for the journalistic assignment, Ryker knows his man, for Hall, too, happens to be fascinated with the history of the Queen Anne. Hall accepts Ryker's offer, and thereby meets Eva, who was a tot when she survived the torpedoing in which her mother perished.

Hall discovers that whatever it was that happened to Eva aboard the doomed ship was so devasting that she then spent her growing-up years in pyschotic condition in mental sanitariums. He also finds that any efforts she makes to try to remember are capable of catapulting her into an hallucinogenic state severe enough to make her suicidal.

At this point in his assignment, Hall has witnessed the unexplained murder of a former Queen Anne steward and barely escaped death himself in the process. He soon can attribute four other murders to what happened to Eva aboard the ship.

Suddenly, Ryker loses his taste for Hall's venture into reportage and fires him, obviously hoping to be rid of him. But Hall is now too involved in the mystery and with Eva to entertain the slightest notion of skipping the whole thing.

Being Single

Loretta Swit popular star of CBS-TV's "M*A*S*H," feels her career and a family don't mix.

"I have never married simply because I do not want children. I am away working so much it would not be fair for them to be left alone," she said. But the pretty actress does have four dogs that she is devoted to.

"They are lovable, devoted, intelligent and very loyal. I've had a pet dog since the age of nine and now I couldn't be without them."

It's not from a lack of proposals that Loretta is still single. She states she's had numerous offers in the last 13 years. But she feels that special relationships can be maintained without a marriage certificate.

"Marriage seems to mean so very little these days. Divorce is a daily occurance in Hollywood... It's very easy to get and the only people who seem to be benefiting are the lawyers.

"If you have a special relationship with someone, you don't need a piece of paper to prove it. One boyfriend of mine has remained loyal and we still see a lot of each other. But he has his house and I have mine. It's simpler that way."

S.O.S. For Help

An airliner is disabled and the lives of its terrified passengers depend on the untried skills of a co-pilot, in "Mayday at 40,000 Feet." The drama is being rebroadcast as The CBS Late Movie, Wednesday, May 7 (12:30 a.m.).

The cast includes Lynda Day George, Broderick Crawford, Ray Milland and Marjoe Gortner. David Janssen, Don Meredith and Christopher George portray the plane's flight crew.

Aboard Transcon Flight 602 are a disgruntled doctor, a Federal marshal, an Army officer and the co-pilot's girlfriend. All of their lives are placed in jeopardy when the flight picks up a ruthless killer at a stopover in Salt Lake City.

The pilot is seriously wounded when gunfire erupts, ricocheting through the cabin at 40,000 feet. As a ferocious storm buffets the crippled airliner, it's up to the co-pilot and engineer to try to keep it airborne long enough to reach a distant airfield.

Marjoe Gortner is cast as the violent criminal who triggers the violence in the film. And it's a role far removed from the innocent image of the child evangelist featured several years ago on the pages of Life magazine.

For Gortner, filming the movie was the good life. He was surrounded by professional actors in a story which put him in the middle of the action. When he's not before the cameras, he spends much of his time on the lecture circuit, mostly at colleges and universities.

"It's a whole different thing from acting, and it's live, sort of what I used to do," he says.

Wherever Gortner goes, questions about his previous career are sure to be asked.

Continuous News

Ted Turner, Cable News Network originator and Atlanta Braves owner has announced operation of his 24-hour news station. Turner said that CNN will reach 3.5 million homes "bringing news when it's news — not history."

Hosting such journalists as Daniel Schorr, Myron Kandel, Dan Dorfman, Dr. Joyce Brothers, Richard Reeves and spokeswomen Bella Abzug and Phyllis Schlafly, will provide hard news as well as news features, sports, health, book-reviews and science.

There will be bureaus set up in all major U.S. cities and abroad. Speaking at the Advertising Club of Los Angeles dinner, Turner said, "We've had only three voices in 30 years (referring to the networks). It's time for greater diversity.

EVA MARIE SAINT stars as a newspaper reporter and Raymond Burr portrays a Middle East merchant in "The Curse of King Tut's Tomb," a suspense drama to be colorcast in two parts on NBC Thursday and Friday, May 8 and 9 (10-11 p.m.).

Tomb's Curse Continues

"The Curse of King Tut's Tomb," is airing on NBC-TV on two consecutive evenings, Thursday and Friday, May 8 and 9 (10 to 11 p.m.). The film is a romantized dramatization of the events leading up to the discovery of the tomb in 1923 by Howard Carter, the noted English Egyptologist.

Starring are Eva Marie Saint, Robin Ellis, Harry Andrews, Wendy Hiller, Angharad Rees, Tom Baker and Raymond Burr.

There is a legend about an inscription in hieroglyphics that was found on a table in the tomb stating that 'Death shall come on swift wings to him that toucheth the tomb of the pharaoh.' Even though there was neither tablet, letter, nor graffiti left by Tutankhamen, the boy king, it hasn't prevented the press and a cult of believers to augment the legend over the last six decades. And it was further publicized when those who opened the tomb or were associated with it, however, obliquely, suffered unusual and sometimes violent deaths.

The legend of the curse all started when Carter's pet canary chirped its last cheep when a cobra, attracted by the bright yellow plumage of the bird, swallowed it for breakfast.

Shortly after, Lord Henry Carnarvon, Carter's financial backer, was bitten by a mosquito. The wound became infected, resulting in the Lord's death in Cairo. At the exact moment of his demise, lights all over the city flickered out and it's said that back in England his pet dog set up a terrible howling at the same moment. But the dog's bark proved to be as bad as Carnarvon's bite. After his last 'woof' the canine promptly dropped dead.

The logical explanation that a poisonous bite had caused Carnarvon's death was not adequate reason for the legend makers. It was the mummy's curse! Within a dozen years, 21 people more or less associated with the opening of the tomb, died under unusual circumstances.

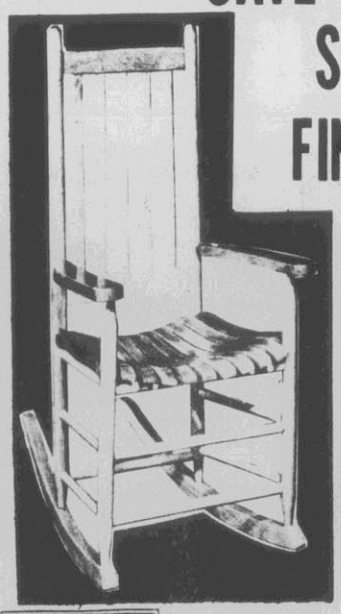

So it is not surprising that the film's production company was more than a little concerned when a series of unexplained near tragic accidents and foulups occurred during filming of the program.

SPOTLIGHT

Kerwin's Goals Changed

Brian Kerwin is the handsome young man who portrays Deputy Birdwell Hawkins on NBC-TV's "The Misadventures of Sheriff Lobo." His character is the college-educated young lawman whose strict ethical code leads him to act as the conscience of his conniving boss.

Brian, who's 30 and a single, entered college with hopes of becoming a doctor. One month later he decided he'd rather be a film director.

The son of a Chicago physician, Kerwin began his pre-med studies at California's University of the Pacific in 1968. One month after enrollment he switched colleges — and goals.

"I heard that they had a great film school at the University of Southern California, so I enrolled there and set my sights on becoming a cameraman, editor or director."

Kerwin earned his degree from USC in 1972. But by then he'd had a taste of acting in drama classes, and he's been at it ever since.

He went to New York, where he found work in several small theatres. In 1975, he returned to California, and was spotted in a play. This led to his first television work — a recurring role in "The Young and the Restless."

He's appeared in two movies as "Hometown U.S.A.," "Soft Explosion." And he's also guested on such television programs as "American Girls," "David Cassidy: Man Undercover," "The Chisholms" and has been featured in several pilots. This past winter, he turned in a sterling performance as Joe Don Baker's younger brother in the miniseries "Power."

The blond, blue-eyed six-foote resides in Los Angeles.

The series features the wack adventures of Sheriff Lobo, h staff and residents of a fiction small southern town called Orl Hot Springs. Series star Claud Akins first introduced the Sheri last season on "BJ and th Bear."

Top guest stars frequently ap pear in the segments, which te the stories of the rich and famou who flock to Orly Hot Springs t enjoy the waters and the gourme cooking of Lobo's mother.

Romantic Comedy Airs

Love, sex and the perfect partner are the rewards sought in "The Love Tapes," a romantic comedy airing as The ABC Friday Night Movie, May 9 (9 to 11 p.m.). And these are the goals of clients of the Good Possibilities videotape dating service, the newest advance in matchmaking since computers.

Mariette Hartley, Loretta Swit, Larry Wilcox and Martin Balsam head an all-star cast. Others appearing are Jan Smithers, Larry Breeding, Arte Johnson and Michael Constantine.

At Good Possibilities, all amorous desires can apparently be fulfilled — provided individual personalities are attractively packaged and images carefully created. At least that's what this state-of-the-art development in personal introductions seems to promise its patrons. And each one is in active pursuit of Mr. or Ms. Right.

Frank Yost (Constantine) presides over Good Possibilities, and Marty Richardson (Wilcox) is one attracted to the firm's potentials. He's a former pro baseball player who's now managing an auto repair shop and looking for a new life with a 'classy' lady. Then there's Barbara Welles (Hartley), an intelligent, independent, opinionated attorney and Samantha Young (Swit). She's recently divorced and looking for both a new husband and a father to her son. Another client is David Franklin (Balsam), a businessman whose wife left him in order to find herself and who's floundering in a sea of singles.

Others eschewing bars and blind dates for the hopefully more efficient (but often humorous) pairings provided by Good Possibilities are Carol Clark and Peter Barnes (Smithers and Breeding). Carol's a young woman just recovering from an unhappy affair and determined not to repeat her mistakes (even if she has to pretend to be someone she is not). And Peter, a grade school athletic coach, is in the market for a ready-made family. Last, but not least, is Harlan Devane (Johnson), a pint-sized swinger with a gallon-size ego.

As the 'love tapes' are viewed, dates made and liaisons entered into, the romantic paths of these seekers of love and fulfillment cross and re-cross, leaving in their wake several comedies of errors. There's also a feeling that maybe there also ought to be truth-in-packaging guidelines for intimate human relationships.

The Hardest Role

Mills Watson who plays Deputy Perkins on "The Misadventures of Sheriff Lobo," says the hardest role of his life was playing both mother and father to his infant son Mason.

"There were times when I thought, 'How am I going to do this?' I felt panic but I just took it one day at a time."

Watson became a single father in 1970 after filing for divorce from his wife Caroline, who had left him.

Collins Will Host

Gary Collins is scheduled to host "Hour Magazine," a daytime information entertainment program. The series will go into production in July and is scheduled to air in September. Pat Michell will co-host the show and additional material will regularly be shot in various locations.

Wynette To Air

Tammy Wynette's biography, "Stand By Your Man," is scheduled to air on CBS-TV this fall. A first draft of the three-hour special has been completed by John Gay and production is slated to begin in Nashville in late May. Following the first network airing, "Stand By Your Man" will go into theartical release abroad.

Boy Foils Scheme

The wild and energetic young boy called Red Chief returns to upset the rainmaking scheme of two inept criminals who once kidnapped him, in "The Revenge of Red Chief." The production is being rebroadcast as an ABC Weekend Special, Saturday, May 10 (12-noon to 12:30 p.m.).

The favorable feedback ABC received after "The Ransom of Red Chief" aired prompted the plans to produce this sequel of O.Henry's classic about a mischievous boy who is just a little bit sharper than the unscrupulous adults around him. It's good to be able to see him outsmarting the wise guys once again.

In "The Revenge of Red Chief," down-on-their-luck drifters Bill and Sam persuade the mayor that their vacuum cleaner is a rain-making machine. Their plan to abscond with a $2,000 bonus being paid for saving the drought-stricken town is foiled when they encounter their young nemesis — Red Chief. They also lose the last of their own money as they toss away $12 to distract the irate townspeople as they flee.

Children's Shows

Bob McAllister, one-time host of the children's show "Wonderama," has launched a nationwide crusade to clean up children's programming. His efforts were initiated when he saw a bloody and violent R-rated movie being promoted on a repeat of one of his old shows.

He has paid for newspaper advertisements asking parents to boycott the "Wonderama" reruns and he is urging families all over the country to demand higher quality children's programs from their local stations.

"I want support for my campaign, and the contributions I want are from parents writing to their stations and demanding replies, calling the stations with their complaints and sending suggestions to those stations," he said.

Curse On Film!

Those involved in the making of the TV movie "The Curse of King Tut's Tomb," believe there's something to the 3,000 year-old curse that damns anyone who disturbs the Pharaoh.

Ian McShane who was to star in the film, quit when he broke his leg in a car accident during a scene. The company production manager was hospitalized for a serious operation and another crew member was rushed into intensive care with pneumonia. There was also another auto accident involving the unit publicist and his wife who had to go to the hospital.

HOLLYWOOD — STEVE FORREST no sooner landed in L.A. after a trek through the Orient than he found himself swamped with TV offers, thanks to his performance in "CONDOMINIUM," "A RUMOR OF WAR" and "ROUGHNECKS."

Watch for an announcement soon from the people at Coty regarding SOPHIA LOREN. It seems that the actress will be lending her name to a new perfume, as well as a new line of cosmetics.

HERVE VILLECHAISE, who shot to stardom with his role of Tattoo on "FANTASY ISLAND," is branching out into the food business, and his first product is a gourmet potato chip he's dubbed Lips Chips.

One of the "REAL PEOPLE" hosts, SKIP STEPHENSON, says the show gets over 22,000 letters a week from fans. But there's one that stands out as the "most bizarre," according to Skip. It came from a man who wanted to get on the show to unzip his boots with his teeth.

TOM WOPAT admits that at least one '69 Dodge Charger is completely demolished during the filming of each segment of "DUKES OF HAZZARD." "Now we're having problems trying to find enough '69 Chargers," the actor laments.

LEE RICH, the executive producer of "DALLAS," says he knows who shot J.R., but he's not telling! "You'll just have to bide your time and wait," he says with a grin. Meanwhile, there are all those re-runs.

More about the hit series...STEVE KANALY will be making crossover appearances on "KNOT'S LANDING," a spin-off of "DALLAS" during the upcoming season.

TV commercials must be the most lucrative means of income for stars these days, and JAMES COBURN is the first one to agree. He says he was paid a million dollars for uttering the words "Schlitz Light." "Isn't that obscene?" he asked. Incidentally, Coburn is delighted over his career transition that's come with his hit film, "THE BALTIMORE BULLITT." "Now I'm a leading man and no longer a villian," he explains.

GRAHAM CHAPMAN, the Englishman who's now one of the regulars on "THE BIG SHOW," says that he seldom gets homesick for his native country. "Everyone is so miserable over there, and it's so easy to be just as miserable," he says.

NBA Playoffs (Times And Teams To Be Announced)

Increased Rates

When Bill Russell former Boston Celtic great was asked how much he was paid for making commercials for the telephone company, he replied, "Look for a rate hike."

Steve Mix Causes A Stir

"MIX-UP" — In the early seventies, forward Steve Mix was told to take a hike by Philadelphia and other NBA and ABA teams, but he's back with the 76ers now, helping Julius Erving operate the front-line attack in a game which airs Tuesday, May 6 (11:45 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

They said it couldn't be done, but the Philadelphia 76ers vanquished the Boston Celtics, with their high-flying rookie Larry Bird, to take the Eastern Conference championship and earn a berth in the NBA title series.

Series games are scheduled for telecast on CBS on Tuesday, May 6, as well as the following night (11:45 p.m.).

The 76ers, or "Doctors of Dunk" as they're often referred to, encountered some difficulty with Boston after rolling past the Atlanta Hawks in the first round.

As always, "Dr." Julius Erving spearheads the Philly attack and is becoming especially famous for pulling out victories with his stunning fourth-quarter heroics.

The Jones boys, Caldwell and Bobby, were also a big factor in the series with Boston, since they drew the unenviable task of defending the Birdman. If they continue to play with the verve and fresh energy, the boys from the City of Brotherly Love have a good chance in the all-important championship round.

On the other side of the front line, Steve Mix is filling in when necessary. Back in the early seventies, Mix was told by five different professional teams that he was not good enough to play in either the NBA or ABA. The 76ers were the fifth team to reject him.

But Mix, a 6'7" forward from the University of Toledo, kept pretending he was deaf and moved on to another tryout.

Two years later, Philadelphia was finally on the road back to respect, and one of the main reasons was Steve Mix. In 1975, Mix was the only member of the 76ers selected for the NBA's annual East-West game.

In the middle and at the guards, Philly is a bit unsteady. Darryl Dawkins, old "chocolate thunder" himself, scares nobody except when he roars down the lane for one of his patented "in your face disgrace" slam dunks. Otherwise, his mind tends to wander and on defense he can be a pussycat.

Maurice Cheeks, in the backcourt, has grown into a fine two-way performer. He gets little ink, but he makes the Sixers go. The other guard, Lionel "Train" Hollins, who came over from Portland late in the season, has been somewhat of a disappointment with his lackluster defense and erratic shooting. He has, however, climbed out of his slump some in the playoffs.

Jennifer Chandler Is Back

This Sunday's (May 4, 4:30 p.m.) version of NBC's "SportsWorld" will feature the AIAW National Women's Diving Championships from the University of Nevada-Las Vegas, the 2,000 Guineas horse race from Newmarket, England, and a live segment on boxing.

The women's diving event features the three-meter springboard and will include five principles, including 1976 Montreal Olympic gold medal winner Jennifer Chandler of the University of California at Irvine. Chandler is making her first return to major competition following a back injury that kept her out last year.

Other competing divers include Denise Christensen, of the University of Texas, Michelle Haine, of Southern Methodist University, Karen Gorham, of the University of Kansas, and Amy McGrath, of Indiana University.

Haine placed third in the three-meter event last year and Christensen came in sixth. Christensen also won the gold medal in the three meters at the 1979 Pan Am Games, which was an upset because she didn't compete in 1978 due to surgery on her leg.

Earlier this year, Chandler wowed Spectators at Cleveland State University's Natatorium, where the U.S. took on and beat the Soviet Union 58-30. When Chandler, 18, had finished her dives, there wasn't a Russian within 38 points of her.

The previous year, the U.S. lost to Russia 52-36 at a meet held in Leningrad, with both Chandler and another 1976 gold medalist, Phil Boggs, absent.

Mike Adamle and Micki King will be the commentators for the springboard event.

Time Trials To Begin

The first day of qualifying time trials for the Indianapolis "500", auto racing's most pretigious event, will be telecast live on ABC's "Wide World of Sports" this Saturday, May 10 (5-7 p.m.).

Among the drivers pounding around the track at heavy speeds with hopes of capturing the coveted pole position, will be Rick Mears of Bakersfield, Calif., who edged master A.J. Foyt by nearly 46 seconds to win last year's 63rd running of the Indy race.

Last year, Mear's crew executed seven flawless pitstops and he led three times for a total of 25 laps, including the last 18.

A Shot For Title

A phalanx of the nation's top golfers will be on hand Sunday, May 4 (2:30-4:30 p.m.) to compete for the Houston Open title held by Wayne Levi, who won last year's tournament with a 16-under par 268.

It was an exciting season for Levi, who, in his third fall season on the professional Golfer's Tour, won his first individual title in Houston and increased his earnings six-fold. He earned $54,000 for his Houston finish, and $141,612 on the year.

The Houston event is played at The Woodlands Country Club, which was the first course ever approved by the PGA. Levi demolished the course record in the third round when he uncorked an eight-under par 63, and his stroke total of 197 after 54 holes was the lowest on the Tour during the year. Among those competing in this year's event are Arnold Palmer, Lee Elder, Ben Crenshaw, Andy Bean and George Burns.

In last year's final round, Levi coasted with a par 71 to edge Mike Brannan by two strokes. Orville Moody, Hale Irwin, Bob Gilder and Sammy Rachels all tied for third with totals of 171.

Levi lowered his stroke average to under 72 in 1979 and in 1978 he teamed with Bob Mann for his only other tour victory. They won the National Team Championship at Disney World.

He started playing the game at age 13, mainly because his close friends were playing golf and he wanted to be with them. He admits it wasn't long before he was completely hooked.

The young golf enthusiast then attended Herkimer High School in upper New York State, where he never lost a match, and then moved on to nearby Oswego State College, where he only lost once.

In the summer of 1972, Levi headed for Florida so he could devote the whole year to his game. After two years on the mini-tours, he tried for his PGA Tour card, but didn't make it in his first two attempts. Finally, in June of 1977, he qualified at Pinehurst.

"I had a couple of good tournaments right away when I came out," says Levi, "but I couldn't keep it going through the year. I was getting down on myself."

In mid 1978, his confidence started coming back when he met and married his wife, Judy.

"That's what made the difference," he assures.

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR NANCY REAGAN, wife of Ronald Reagan and author of Nancy

How did you handle gossipmongers years ago when your husband was an actor, and how do you handle them now? — K.J., Rocky Mount, N.C.

●My way of dealing with spiteful and fictional statements of the pen and tongue was to take a long, drawn-out, steaming hot bath, in which I conducted imaginary talks (or arguments) with all those writers or tongue waggers who were guilty of spreading cruel and unfounded rumors. Ronnie knew immediately if we'd been in the columns just by the aroma of bath salts! And now? Well, now it may be even worse. If you think the movie industry has the exclusive on gossip, think again. It's child's play compared to what goes on in politics, but I just handle it the same old way.

FOR THE "ASK" EDITOR

How is an atheist funeral conducted? — Harry R. Foster, Canton, Ohio

●Atheists have a simple graveside service. They eschew embalming for they feel there is no reason to preserve a body. When they are not governed by state laws, they simply wrap their dead in a sheet and bury them, for nature and natural recycling to take over. Says Madalyn Murray O'Hair, President of American Atheists: "If there are any organs which can be of use to others, we donate them to organ banks. If there is a need for a body for research at a medical school, we make preparations for that prior to our deaths. Many atheists also request cremation. My husband, Richard, was buried at Arlington National Cemetery, which was his wish. He had been a spy for the United States and was honored by burial there."

For the atheists: no place to go.

FOR MONTY HALL, TV host and personality

Is it true that your daughter went against your wishes when she decided upon a show-business career? — G.S., Salem, Ore.

●Not at all. When she was a child, I neither encouraged nor discouraged her from preparing for any career. It became evident before she reached her teens that show business would be Joanne's life. She starred in school plays and in community-sponsored shows before turning professional.

●No. Because none of my friends are my age. Some are in their mid-20's. Since I've worked with adults for almost seven years, I really don't feel comfortable with my peers. When I meet 17- or 18-year-olds and talk about work, no one understands me.

FOR DR. HELEN DeROSIS, author of Women and Anxiety

Can anxiety be steered into constructive channels? — J.M., Fort Myers, Fla.

●Its best function is when it signals that something is wrong. It motivates you to investigate what is causing you to feel trapped; to plan solutions; to activate your plan; to evaluate what you've done. A sense of closeness to yourself develops as you work on it; you start making decisions for yourself.

FOR STUART WHITE, orchestra leader

What's the most popular first song chosen at wedding receptions? Do couples now prefer disco? — M. Goldyne, Flint, Mich.

● It's probably Billy Joel's "Just the Way You Are." But most couples usually go traditional for the first song. For reception music, last year's young newlyweds preferred disco; this year, there has been a trend to New Wave rock.

FOR SENATOR FRANK CHURCH, (D.-Idaho)

It seems that even those countries that are not hostile to America are jealous of us. Why is this? — E.M., Little Rock, Ark.

●We are the strongest, richest, freest country in the world. The envy of others must be expected. But let us remember that people by the thousands risk death each year to escape their own lands in the hope of reaching America.

LINDA KELSEY, co-star of CBS-TV's Lou Grant

Since your husband is not an actor, how does he feel about having a famous wife, and does he mind if he gets called "Mr. Kelsey"? — S.A., Monterey, Calif.

●First of all, I'm not "famous." I may be a bit well known, but I haven't reached the dizzying heights yet. As far as I know, he was called "Mr. Kelsey" only once, and he didn't mind one bit. In fact, he thought it was quite amusing.

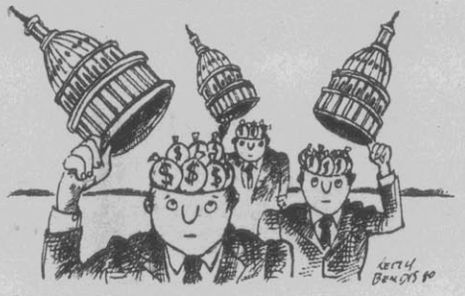

PRO AND CON

Should All Lobbyists Be Required to Make Financial Disclosure of Their Activities?

PRO Senator Lawton Chiles (D.-Fla.)

Citizens have the right to know how their Government works; yet, lobbying is largely hidden from public view even though it has enormous impact on legislation. Of an estimated 15,000 lobbyists in Washington, only about 2,000 are registered, and little of an estimated $2 billion a year spent for lobbying is being reported. This is allowed by current law loopholes, loopholes that legislation I am sponsoring would plug. The public understandably is suspicious of that which is hidden from it, and this suspicion creates doubts about the integrity of both lobbyists and the legislative process. We must have greater lobbying disclosure.

CON David E. Landau, staff counsel, A.C.L.U., Washington, D.C.

Although often portrayed as an evil influence on the legislative process, the lobbyist is exercising the Constitutionally protected right to petition the Government for a redress of grievances. The First Amendment protects the activities of persons and organizations who attempt to present their points of view to elected officials. Lobbying disclosure reform is possible, but only if it does not infringe upon the Constitutional rights of American citizens. Specifically, Congress must not regulate the lobbying activities of small local organizations with slight impact on the legislative process or regulate indirect efforts to influence the legislative process.

Remarriage: The Problems, The Pleasures

By Norman Lobsenz

Each year more than one million formerly married men and women choose to marry again. On the average, the partners in these second marriages have a better chance of living happily ever after.

Trudi Smith

A second marriage, said Dr. Samuel Johnson, the cynical 18th-century English writer, is nothing more than "the triumph of hope over experience." But are men and women who remarry after divorce blindly heading for another breakup? Do they go on making the same mistakes, or have they learned how to deal with the problems that plagued their previous relationship? And what about widows and widowers who remarry? Can they be happy the second-time around?

The answers to questions like these have become increasingly important to millions of couples. For while the nation's booming divorce rate has received wide publicity, comparatively little notice has been taken of the growing number of remarriages. Only a few decades ago, nearly seven out of every 10 divorced persons never tried matrimony again. Today, eight out of every 10 make a second trip to the altar. Indeed, Census Bureau experts estimate that:

- More than one out of every four marriages today is a remarriage, for at least one of the partners.
- Ultimately, three out of four divorced women and five out of six divorced men marry again. These odds decline with age, especially for women, since the shorter male life expectancy lessens the pool of potential spouses.
- Almost half of all divorced men and women remarry within three years after their previous marriages ended.
- Between 10 and 15 percent of all second marriages involve widows and widowers. In a recent year, 65 percent of widowers in their early 50's remarried; and 40 percent of widows in the same age bracket did as well.

But can people who were unhappy in one marriage truly find lasting contentment in a second? Most of those who rewed would answer with a resounding "Yes!" Even though there can be problems, a new marriage may seem rewarding simply in comparison with the old one. For example, a middle-aged woman says: "My second marriage is just an ordinary, everyday affair. But my first husband was impossible — which makes this one seem absolutely splendid!"

Despite the additional stresses placed on remarriages — conflicts over stepchildren, awkward contacts with former spouses and in-laws, the financial drain of alimony or child support — statistics indicate that they are just about as enduring as first marriages. Though second divorces occur, on the average, after five years of marriage compared to seven years for first marriages, experts say this figure is due to the fact that once-divorced persons are less likely to stay in a poor marriage out of fear or social pressure. "The bottom line," says Dr. Hendrie Weisinger, a clinical psychologist and marriage and family counselor, "is that two out of every three remarriages last. That's virtually the same as the percentage for first marriages."

The success of second marriages rests on several firm — but often overlooked — foundations. "By the time they remarry, most people are older and wiser," observes Los Angeles marital therapist Marcia Lasswell. "The average age at the time of a second marriage is 30 for women, 35 for men. They have learned to be more tolerant, more willing to compromise."

In addition, remarried persons are likely to be more realistic in their expectations. "I expected my first husband to keep on being as thoughtful and romantic as he was during our courtship," one woman says. "So when he began to flop in a chair and watch television, instead of talking to me, I felt cheated." Therapist Dr. Laura Singer points out that first marriages tend to start out as stereotypes: "The couples start out with different expectations and values and often find it difficult to discuss such differences. In a second marriage both partners are more aware of the need to integrate their styles of living."

A third reason for the success of second marriages is that they usually are based on more practical grounds than first marriages. "I proposed to my first wife because she was so beautiful," a man reminisces. "My present wife is not attractive, but I love her for more important reasons — her good mind, her easygoing temperament."

A most important factor that helps second marriages last — despite the handicaps — is that partners work harder at this relationship than they did at the first one. Remarrieds have also learned that problems do not spontaneously disappear or solve themselves. "One of the most prevalent illusions," says family sociologist David Olson, "is that an intimate relationship will automatically improve with time. But the passage of time simply makes differences more difficult to deal with."

The two major conflict areas common to most marriages — whether first or second — are sex and money. But remarrieds seem to understand the importance of discussing potential problems before they snowball. "Having been through one breakup," says Lasswell, "a person is better able to anticipate trouble areas and get those troubles out in the open rather than brushing them under a rug in the hope that they will disappear." For instance, a woman who felt sexually unresponsive in her first marriage never discussed it with her husband. Before she married the second time she told her fiancé about her previous difficulties. The woman reports: "He said neither of us had anything to prove to each other just because of past failures. Once I could stop carrying old fears over from one marriage to the next, I was able to relax. Sex has never been a problem for us." (Incidentally, most couples embarking on a second marriage have experienced sex together before they marry.)

Lastly, remarriages often succeed because partners have a great deal of self-esteem at stake. "I'm absolutely committed to making this one work," one remarried person remarks, "because I couldn't bear the idea of another failure."

Virtually every study of remarried people shows that the overwhelming majority judge the new marriage as both happy and successful. "Since people cannot change their basic backgrounds or personalities," says psychologist Bernard Murstein, "other factors must account for this. Logically, it is the fact that the divorced person has learned something about marriage and can apply those insights to the new relationship."

Interestingly, men may be a little happier in second marriages than women, according to a study of 1,800 people by sociologist Lynn White, Ph.D., of the University of Nebraska (Lincoln). White theorizes that this is because women often marry in part because of economic needs, whereas for men, who don't have to worry about the financial aspect, it's out of desire. But she also found that married people of both sexes are still happier than those who are divorced. Only time will tell of course, if they'll live happier ever after.

Counselors suggest these guidelines for success in remarriage:

- Don't carry old emotional baggage over into the second marriage from the first. You are a different person, and so is your new partner: there is no reason to expect the previous pattern to repeat.
- Talk frankly with your new spouse about what went wrong in your previous marriage and how the two of you can work together to make sure those problems do not recur.
- Don't let any "ghosts" of the first marriage haunt you.
- Don't ask your partner to compare you with his or her former spouse. Don't try to emulate or compete with a former spouse.
- If you are a widow or widower, don't idealize your deceased spouse or make comparisons of him or her to your present spouse. FW

Dick Van Patten Is TV's Most Adorable Dad

By Peer J. Oppenheimer

A family that plays together stays together. Ask the Dick Van Pattens. Dick, the father in ABC's popular family show Eight Is Enough, his real-life wife, Patricia, and their three sons, Nels, 25, Jimmy, 24, and Vincent, 22, spend almost every spare moment together — and they enjoy much of the time on the tennis courts.

In fact, after 26 years of marriage, Dick and Pat finally have a championship court in their own backyard. It's an ideal arrangement since Nels's bachelor cottage is adjacent to the court, and Jimmy and Vince live next door. All they have to do is open their back doors and they're on the court.

Frank Edwards/Fotos International

The Van Pattens moved to California nine years ago from New York City. "I'd had it with stage work," Dick, 51, admits now. "I'd done 27 Broadway plays since I was 7 years old, and I decided I wanted to do something different. I love it out here. Everyone plays tennis!"

Tennis actually helped hold the family together during those first trying, transitional months in Los Angeles. Every day Dick picked the boys up after school, and then he, Pat and the kids went to play tennis. As a result, they grew even closer, and the boys' expertise in the game increased. Today Nels is a pro teacher and Vince is ranked in the top 50 players in world competition. Luckily, Pat, 43 and a dancer and choreographer, shares her men's enthusiasm for the sport. "It's being on the courts with Dick 24 hours a day that keeps me in shape," she jokes. "Yeah, she looks lots younger than me," Dick says with a cherubic smile.

The nice-guy image Dick portrays on TV is very much the real thing. Like his TV counterpart, he is a strong family man, and it takes a lot to get him upset. In raising his sons, Dick gave them lots of freedom but held them close with love: "I taught them they never get anything for nothin'. You can't be afraid to pay because in the long run, you're going to pay anyway." "And we always told them the truth," Pat adds. "If we were broke, we'd say so. And, we never left them. If we went on a vacation, they went, too."

When Dick was a child stage star, his mother traveled with him when shows were tried out first in Boston, Washington or New Haven before opening on Broadway. "I honestly had the greatest childhood in the world," Dick says. "I met the most fascinating people, traveled all over, and I had fun backstage." Eventually, Dick got involved in TV and for nine years played the character Nels in I Remember Mama. (Dick's eldest son is named after that character.)

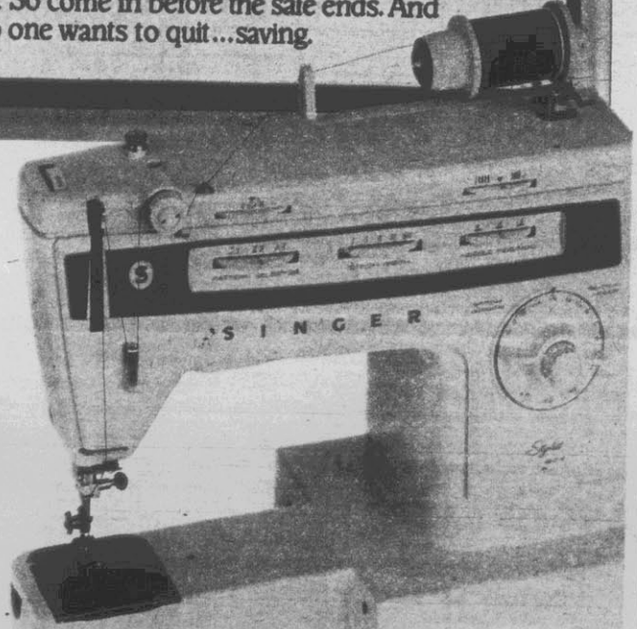

Dick now works 12 hours a day, five days a week and prefers TV to making movies. (He's made 16 movies since 1970, seven of them for Disney.) "Most actors don't feel that way about TV, but I like it," Dick says. "I am really geared for this. I like knowing I am going to go to work, that I am going to do 27 shows this year, that I have my exact schedule ahead of me. I have no desire to do another Broadway play. It was wonderful, but I don't need it anymore." Dick was originally turned down for the role in Eight Is Enough, but then ABC reconsidered — due to then-president Fred Silverman's prompting. "And do you know why he likes me? Because he'd grown up watching me grow up in I Remember Mama," laughs Dick.

Show business is slowly but surely becoming a Van Patten family affair. Dick's sister is actress Joyce Van Patten. His son Jimmy recently co-starred in CBS' short-lived series The Chisholms. Vince has acted here and there since he was 8, and Nels has tried his hand at it. As well, Dick's 20-year-old half-brother Timothy plays the character Salami on CBS' The White Shadow.

Currently, Dick is planning a number of possibilities for future shows. But Eight is, of course, top priority. "I love what I am doing," Dick exclaims. "I get along well with young people. I like working with them. I'm comfortable. You see, they are also kid actors, so I feel there is a bond between us. I went through all the things these kids are going through." FW

Too Busy Earning a Living To Make Any Money?

You think you've got problems?

Well, I remember when a bank turned me down for a $200 loan. Now I lend money to the bank — Certificates of Deposit at $100,000 a crack.

I remember the day a car dealer got a little nervous because I was a couple of months behind in my payments — and repossessed my car. Now I own a Rolls Royce. I paid $43,000 for it — cash.

I remember the day my wife phoned me, crying, because the landlord had shown up at the house, demanding his rent — and we didn't have the money to pay it.

Now we own five homes. Two are on the oceanfront in California (I use one as my office). One is a lakefront "cabin" in Washington, (that's where we spend the whole summer — loafing, fishing, swimming, and sailing.) One is a condominium on a sunny beach in Mexico. And one is snuggled right on the best beach of the best island in Hawaii — Maui.

Right now I could sell all this property, pay off the mortgages, — and — without touching any of my other investments — walk away with over $750,000 in cash. But I don't want to sell, because I don't think of my homes as "investments." I've got other real estate — and stocks, bonds, and cash in the bank — for that.

I remember when I lost my job. Because I was head over heels in debt, my lawyer told me the only thing I could do was declare bankruptcy. He was wrong. I paid off every dime.

Now, I have a million dollar line of credit; but I still don't have a job. Instead, I get up every weekday morning and decide whether I want to go to work or not. Sometimes I do — for 5 or 6 hours. But about half the time, I decide to read, go for a walk, sail my boat, swim, or ride my bike.

I know what it's like to be broke. And I know what it's like to have everything you want. And I know that you — like me — can decide which one it's going to be. It's really as easy as that. That's why I call it "The Lazy Man's Way to Riches."

So I'm going to ask you to send me something I don't need: money. Ten dollars to be exact. Why? Because I want you to pay attention. And I figure that if you've got $10 invested, you'll look over what I send you and decide whether to send it back...or keep it. And I don't want you to keep it unless you agree that it's worth at least a hundred times what you invested.

Is the material "worth" $10? No — if you think of it as paper and ink. But that's not what I'm selling. What I am selling is information. More information than I give when I'm paid $1000 as a guest speaker. More information than I give in a one-hour consultation for $300.

But you're really not risking anything. Because I won't cash your check or money order for 31 days after I've sent you my material. That's the deal. Return it in 31 days — and I'll send back your check or money order — uncashed.

How do you know I'll do it? Well, if you really want to be on the safe side, post-date your check for a month from today — plus 2 additional weeks. That'll give you plenty of time to receive it, look it over, try it out.

I know what you're thinking: "He got rich telling people how to get rich." The truth is — and this is very important — the year before I shared "The Lazy Man's Way to Riches," my net income was $216,646. And what I'll send you tells just how I made that kind of money...working a few hours a day...about 8 months out of the year.

It doesn't require "education." I'm a high school graduate.

It doesn't require "capital." Remember I was up to my neck in debt when I started.

It doesn't require "luck." I've had more than my share. But I'm not promising you that you'll make as much money as I have. And you may do better. I personally know one man who used these principles, worked hard, and made 11 million dollars in 8 years. But money isn't everything.

It doesn't require "talent." Just enough brains to know what to look for. And I'll tell you that.

It doesn't require "youth." One woman I worked with is over 70. She's travelled the world over, making all the money she needs, doing only what I taught her.

It doesn't require "experience." A widow in Chicago has been averaging $25,000 a year for the past 5 years, using my methods.

What does it require? Belief. Enough to take a chance. Enough to absorb what I'll send you. Enough to put the principles into action. If you do just that — nothing more, nothing less — the results will be hard to believe. Remember — I guarantee it.

You don't have to give up your job. But you may soon be making so much money that you'll be able to. Once again — I guarantee it.

I know you're skeptical. Well, here are some comments from other people. (Initials have been used to protect the writer's privacy. The originals are in my files.) I'm sure that, like you, these people didn't believe me either when they clipped the coupon. Guess they figured that, since I wasn't going to deposit their check for at least 31 days, they had nothing to lose.

They were right.

And here's what they gained:

From $50 to $565 per week

"...when I sent for your (Lazy Man's Way to Riches), I was delivering the L.A. Times for $50 per week...Now...I earn an average of $565 per week, have $7,000 in the bank and a condominium worth $85,000..."

J.N. Culver City, CA

Takes in $587,000 in 2 years

"Everything you say is true. I'm a lawyer. I ordered your material two years ago. I received it within a few days and put your method to work immediately. Since then I have taken in $587,000 by following your system. Needless to say, I have given up my law practice — it just wasn't worth working anymore."

C.F.A. Provo, UT

'Wow, it does work!'

"Oddly enough, I purchased Lazy Man's Way to Riches some six months ago, or so, read it..and really did nothing about it. Then, about three weeks ago, when I was really getting desperate about my financial situation, I remembered it, re-read it, studied it, and this time, put it to work and WOW, it does work! Doesn't take much time, either...I guess some of us just have to be at a severe point of desperation before we overcome the ultimate laziness, procrastination."

Mr. J.K., Anaheim, CA

'Made $50,000 just fooling around'

"In February 1974 you sent me (for ten bucks) your Lazy Man's Way to Riches. Since then I have made approximately 50 grand ($50,000) just fooling around on the basis of your advice. You see, I really am lazy — otherwise I could have made 50 million! Thank you!"

Mr. R. McK., Atlanta, GA

'$24,000 in 45 days'

"...received $24,000.00 in the mail the last 45 days.

"Thanks again."

Mr. E.G.N., Matewan, W.VA

Made $70,000

"A $70,000 thanks to you for writing The Lazy Man's Way to Riches. That's how much I've made...

"I use this extra income for all of the good things in life, exotic vacations, classic automobiles, etc. Soon I hope to make enough to quit my regular job and devote full time to making money the easy way..."

Mr. D.R., Newport Beach, CA

Made enough to retire at 41

"Now, thanks to you and the 'Lazy Man's' program, I have made enough money (at age 41) to retire in style. Let me assure you that I have not 'come into' any money by inheritance or marriage or by any other means except through the practicing of your program..."

R.A., Huntington Beach, Calif.

$260,000 in eleven months

"Two years ago, I mailed you ten dollars in sheer desperation for a better life...One year ago, just out of the blue sky, a man called and offered me a partnership...I grossed over $260,000 cash business in eleven months. You are a God sent miracle to me."

B.F., Pascagoula, Miss.

'There's no stopping me'

"Since I've got your (Lazy Man's Way to Riches) in July, I've started 4 companies...there's no stopping me and I'm so high I need chains to keep me on the ground."

M.T. Portland, OR

$7,000 in five days

"Last Monday I used what I learned on page 83 to make $7,000. It took me all week to do it, but that's not bad for five day's work."

M.D., Topeka, Kansas

What I'm saying is probably contrary to what you've heard from your friends, your family, your teachers, and maybe everyone else you know.

I can only ask you one question.

How many of them are millionaires?

So it's up to you.

A month from today, you can be nothing more than 30 days older — or you can be on your way to getting rich. You decide.

The wisest man I ever knew told me something I never forgot: "Most people are too busy earning a living to make any money."

Don't take as long as I did to find out he was right.

I'll prove it to you, if you'll send in the coupon now. I'm not asking you to "believe" me. Just try it. If I'm wrong, all you've lost is a couple of minutes and a postage stamp. But what if I'm right?

PROOF!

Don't take my word for it. These are excerpts from articles in newspapers and magazines:

Time:
He only works half the year in his stunning office on California's Sunset Beach, and even when he's there he puts in short hours...In other words, Joe Karbo, 48, is the prototype for..."The Lazy Man's Way to Riches."

Seattle Times:
Is it all honest? A man who has done business with him says Karbo's reputation is excellent, and that he has managed to conduct mutually beneficial deals with him with nothing but a handshake and an oral agreement.
Want to be rich? Take my advice and follow his.

Boston Herald-American:
The book has drawn hundreds of letters from persons who have profited by it...

Los Angeles Herald-Examiner:

Forbes:
After bouncing around show biz, advertising, and real estate, he made his fortune...Last year (1972) he made $250,000.

Money Making Opportunities:
Maybe Joe Karbo has the secret. Don't you think you owe it to yourself to find out what it is all about?...I just finished it — and I'm off on a vacation myself. Get the idea?

Brace Yourself: Good News for Adults with Crooked Teeth

By Paula Dranov

There was a time when only teen-agers got their teeth straightened. Not anymore. Some 500,000 adult Americans, including two-time U.S. Open golf champion Hale Irwin, are sporting braces. And what they're wearing is not necessarily the unsightly mass of metal and wire that generally comes to mind when we think of braces.

Contrary to popular assumption, there's no age limit on when orthodontics can be done. Actress Jill St. John, singer Diana Ross and comedienne Phyllis Diller all had orthodontic treatment as adults. From a dentist's point of view, straightening an adult's teeth is not much different from straightening a child's, although teeth are easier to move before a patient is fully grown.

The boom in adult orthodontics can be traced to a number of factors. First of all, the past few years have brought about a vast improvement in the appliances — or "braces" — themselves. They are now lighter and less noticeable than they used to be. Then, too, treatment is more readily available — the number of orthodontists tripled between 1955 and 1976 — and a growing number of employee insurance plans now include orthodontics coverage for adults. And in addition, there is a new national awareness of the importance of dental health.

For the vast majority of patients — children as well as adults — cosmetic considerations are the strongest motivation in getting braces. "I was so self-conscious about my crooked teeth," recalls one former orthodontics patient. "Now I can't believe my teeth weren't always this way."

Orthodontics often performs a dual function: In addition to solving cosmetic problems, there are serious dental health problems braces can solve or prevent — such as improperly aligned teeth (which can cause speech impediments, according to James Brophy, executive director of the American Association of Orthodontists).

Braces can also help malocclusions or irregularities in the position of the teeth and the bite (the way the upper and lower teeth come together when the jaws are closed). If left alone, such conditions can place stress on one or several teeth, eventually causing extensive damage that might lead to tooth loss.

Regardless of their motivation, adults seeking orthodontic treatment frequently are surprised at the advances in braces in the past decade. Of these, perhaps the most significant is development of the so-called "direct bond" attachments. "Now we can put the business part of the appliance directly on the tooth enamel," explains D Nicholas A. DiSalvo, hea of the orthodontics depar ment at Columbia Universi Dental School. The metho does away with the met rings that were attached t each tooth so that th straightening wire could b properly anchored.

Plastic braces have als been available for sever years, but though they hav improved over time, the still present problems tha have restricted their use "They're tooth colored s they're less obvious," say DiSalvo, "but they're not a durable as metal, so the use is limited. Then, too they can discolor and deter iorate." Very promising is new alloy with the trad name "Nitinol," which coul make wires finer, lighter an longer lasting. Removabl appliances, widely used i Europe, haven't caught o in the United States becaus orthodontists here find them adequate only for certain types of problems.

More and more o thodontics pa tients are turnin to surgical treat ment, known as orthognati surgery or "instant ortho dontics." It's a drastic pro cedure but, DiSalvo says "in theory, you could handl many problems this way. Now, however, "instant or thodontics" is considered appropriate only in case where segments of teeth o the entire dental arch mus be repositioned because of disharmony in the jaw bones

Depending on the indivi dual problem, orthodontic treatment can take any where from six to 30 months not counting the months o years that follow when many patients must wear a re movable retainer at night to keep the teeth from straying from their new positions. The cost of treatment de pends on the individual case and the length of time it will take to complete the work, but in standard cases can run from $1,000 to $2,500.

Are adults wearing braces as self-conscious as teenagers tend to be? "I think it's easier at this age," says a 35-year-old lawyer, a woman who claims that "you'd be surprised at the number of people who never notice." She attributes this to the fact that "adults look you in the eye, not the mouth." FW

IF YOU NEED TO BUILD UP YOUR BLOOD DON'T COUNT ON VITAMINS

Iron poor blood is the most widespread nutritional ailment in America today. In fact, it's a problem that millions of American women face.

Take GERITOL, America's #1 iron and vitamin supplement. GERITOL is so rich in iron, just one tablet each day gives you more iron than even a pound of calf's liver. Plus vitamins that are essential to good health.

GERITOL will actually build iron poor blood back to normal. That's what makes it different from just plain vitamins—and so important to you.

THE WORLD'S FIRST METABOLICALLY BALANCED RAPID REDUCING FORMULA

the Cambridge diet™

ULTIMATE WEIGHT LOSS

U.S. AND FOREIGN PATENTS

IF YOU WERE ON A COMPLETE FAST YOU WOULD NOT LOSE BODY FAT FASTER THAN ON THE CAMBRIDGE DIET!

IF YOU WERE STARVING ON A DESERT ISLAND YOU WOULD NOT LOSE BODY FAT FASTER THAN ON THE CAMBRIDGE DIET!

—OVER 8 YEARS OF CLINICAL STUDY—

ACTUALLY REDUCES BODY FAT AS FAST AS FASTING OR COMPLETE STARVATION

...YET SO DELICIOUS AND TOTALLY SATISFIES ALL THE BODY'S DAILY RECOMMENDED NEEDS OF VITAMINS AND MINERALS.

In this incredible new diet formula science has created a unique metabolic balance that guarantees optimum weight loss – clinical case histories show users losing up to 6 pounds in 48 hours, 15 pounds in one week, 22 pounds in 14 days, 46 pounds in 6 weeks and so on – and it is the world's simplest and easiest diet to follow: no pills to take... no calories to count... just 3 meals of this delicious formula – morning, noon, and evening – supplies your body with all of the adult daily recommended vitamins and minerals to maintain your shape, vitality, good looks and well being while you rapidly shed your excess pounds.

Dr. Alan Howard. Department of Medicine, Cambridge University; chairman of the British Food Education Society; Editor of the International Journal of Obesity. This internationally renowned authority on nutrition and weight control has now, after years of research, developed The Cambridge Ultimate Weight-Loss Diet.

Dr. Howard states:

"We have at long last developed a diet that effectively achieves the ultimate goal of weight reduction: causing the body to use up the maximum amount of its own excess fatty tissues – and to do so safely. In extensive studies on hundreds of patients The Cambridge Diet has been shown safe – and enormously effective. We have had none of the harmful side effects associated with fasting or the so-called liquid protein diets – man cannot live on protein alone. The Cambridge Diet formula is scientifically based on a metabolically optimized balance of carbohydrate and protein and essential vitamins and minerals; and is finely tuned calorically so that optimum weight loss is sure and positive – and best of all, we have closely studied the metabolic parameters of the people on this diet and have found them in good health from every point of view, every pound of the way. Here, finally, is the ultimate weight-loss diet – the diet for the person who has been disappointed and frustrated by every other diet he has tried – the diet he can stick to and lose all the weight he wants – 50, 60, 70 pounds and more – without the fear of depriving his body of its essential nutrients: its vitamins and minerals. Yes, finally, the weight-loss diet that contains all the nutrients of a balanced diet, yet actually reduces body fat as fast as complete starvation."

Doctor's Case History #4: Miss G, age 35, quickly lost 43 pounds – over 15 pounds the very first week!

Doctor's Case History #42: Mr. A, age 30, lost 6 pounds the first 48 hours, 14½ pounds the first week, and over 70 pounds in less than 4 months!

CAMBRIDGE DIET FIGHTS HIDDEN HUNGER. The stunning achievement of Dr. Howard's Cambridge Ultimate Weight-Loss Diet is that each day you eat this remarkable diet your body will come closer and closer to a protein equilibrium or balance – shedding fat but retaining to a great extent the protein reserves which are so vital to your body's well-being. So something like a metabolic miracle has been created in The Cambridge Diet: an incredible formula that will make you lose as much – or more – body fat as a complete fast, and yet fights hidden hunger – the ever present danger of nutritional deficiencies created by fad diets, crash diets, protein diets, etc.

The ultimate diet is here, a diet that totally fulfills the body's adult daily requirement for nutrients – vitamins and minerals – according to standards set by the U.S. Government. The incredible Cambridge Weight-Loss Formula: Totally delicious, nutritious, the ultimate in weight loss (actual hospital tested weight losses of up to 10, 11, 13, even 15 pounds in just one week) – and a total guarantee of satisfaction!

Dr. Howard: "My medical colleagues and I have in over 8 years with hundreds of subjects found the Cambridge Diet, by every test, to be safe and superbly effective." We advise anyone starting on any reducing plan to check with his doctor. We feel sure your own doctor, when he reviews the literature accompanying your Diet, will give his enthusiastic go-ahead and can advise you when you have reached your ideal weight with this most remarkable, healthful and exciting of all reducing diets.

PEOPLE QUIZ/By John E. Gibson

Love! Is It Hazardous To Your Health?

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Women who have the inside track in the love-and-romance department are those whose heads rule their hearts, who are adept at "handling" men, anticipating their responses and staying one step ahead of them.

2. Falling in love can be hazardous to your health.

3. Most love relationships that just don't work out are generally broken off by mutual consent.

4. The man who plies his lady with drinks because he thinks it will "put her in the mood for love" has his signals mixed.

5. A woman's ability to enjoy the physical side of a love relationship is directly affected by the way she feels about herself, whether her self-esteem is high, low or intermediate.

ANSWERS

1. False. Studies at the University of Delaware show that most men find women the most romantically attractive who are lacking in these characteristics — who are the least adept and the least inclined to manipulate a man or employ cunning to "wrap him around their fingers."

2. True. It can be if you fall in love with a neighbor's spouse or somebody else's sweetheart. In such situations, certain hazards to health often go with the territory. Studies at Duke University, however, show that, ordinarily, a good love relationship has everything going for it in terms of psychological health and general well-being, and it is noted that psychological health tends to go hand in hand with physical health. It was found that college students "who have been involved in at least one love relationship scored significantly higher on a measure of self-actualization than individuals...who never had been in love." Self-actualization is defined as understanding and accepting oneself and making the most of one's capacities.

3. False. Behavioral specialists from three universities (University of Washington, Harvard University and University of California) made a two-year study of dating relationships among young people. They found that "the desire to break up was seldom mutual; women were more likely than men to perceive problems in premarital relationships and somewhat more likely to be the ones to precipitate the breakups."

4. True. In a Rutgers University study of women's responses to alcohol, half of the subjects in the study were given drinks containing vodka and tonic. Drinks given the other half contained tonic only. After their drinks, sexual arousal as measured by a photoplethysmograph was noted while subjects were shown two film sequences depicting scenes of romantic intimacy. Results: The subjects receiving drinks containing alcohol "showed significantly less arousal [than the others] during both of the films."

5. True. This was indicated in a study conducted at the California School of Professional Psychology (San Diego) in which a battery of personality tests was administered to a group of women who achieved pleasure and satisfaction in their physical relationship with their husbands and to another group whose pleasure and satisfaction ranged from minimal to zero. The data indicated a definite relationship between self-concept and the ability to enjoy this aspect of the love relationship. Specifically, it was found that the greater the gulf between a woman's real self and her ideal self (the kind of person she wanted to be), the more difficult it is for her to fully enjoy and derive satisfaction from an intimate marital relationship. And it is concluded that this difficulty "is related to how a woman views herself, rather than how she feels or believes her spouse views her or how she is actually viewed." FW

Doctor's "Crash-Loss" Diet-Program Featuring Incredible Once-In-The-Morning Pill

Unlocks The Natural Fat-Burners Sleeping In Your Body!

MELTS DOWN BODY FAT LIKE HOT WATER MELTS DOWN ICE!

Actually "revs-up" your inner furnace...Steps up your fat-burning metabolism...Forces your body to burn away as much as 100 fat-builder calories every 60 minutes...All 24 Hours of the Day...even while you sleep...on this Doctor's proven "crash-burn" calorie-deficit program.

Measure the difference in your tummy and waistline in just 24 HOURS

Measure the staggering difference in your weight in just 48 HOURS

Literally shrink yourself down as much as a full clothing size smaller in just 7 DAYS

As you BURN FAT BY THE HOUR and LOSE 20 - 40 - 60 POUNDS OR MORE FASTER THAN YOU DREAMED POSSIBLE!

Doctor's Super Fat-Burner Program Actually Stops Fat From Forming In Your Body... So You Lose Weight By The Hour, Inches By The Week.

What you see on this page is news of a fantastic Anti-Fat breakthrough (featuring the use of a remarkable hunger fighting substance) that unlocks the natural fat-burners sleeping in your body . . . fires and targets these fat burners against bulging pockets of fat . . . so that starting IN JUST HOURS, your body begins to break down clinging layers of fat — converts that fat to fluid — and drains it right out of your system by the hour.

Even more startling, because this doctor's super "crash-loss" calorie-deficit program causes a "round-the-clock" fat burning chain reaction to take place in your body . . . EVEN WHILE YOU SLEEP, your body continues to release these wonderous natural fat burners . . . continues to oxidize and evaporate excess pounds and inches . . . so that you not only wake up slimmer and slimmer every morning . . . BUT ALL DAY LONG continue to grow slimmer and slimmer from meal to meal.

A Doctor Explains The Wonder Of "Crash-Loss" Weight Loss Without Ravenous Hunger!

How is it possible to launch yourself on such an incredible fat-burning spree starting in just a matter of minutes. The answer is remarkably simple:

Medical Fact #1: In your body there exists a series of natural fat-burners so powerful, that once unleashed against clinging pockets of flab...disintegrates them...oxidizes them...melts them down and makes your body flush them out of your system.

Medical Fact #2: In naturally skinny people, (those lucky folks you simply "hate") this natural fat-burner process is so effective it actually neutralizes the effect of all incoming calories... and stops these calories from becoming excess fat. Which is why these "skinnies" seem to eat all they want and never gain an ounce.

Medical Fact #3: In overweight people, the incoming calorie excess is simply too much for your body's natural fat-destroyer system...so your body simply cannot fully neutralize all the calories coming in.

Instead it allows them to turn into bulging pockets of fatty deposits OR — to put it in layman's terms . . . if you are overweight and you want to slim down . . . it is simply a matter of finding some way to create a calorie-deficit in your system . . . step up your fat-burn off metabolism . . . speed-up the flow of nature's wonder-working fat-burners . . . and start your body to burn away fat by the hour!

IF YOU READ NOTHING ELSE — READ THIS!

What you see on this page is a milestone step you can take to conquer obesity, conquer your appetite, so that you literally burn away fat and drain away excess fluid. Naturally each person's metabolism and body structure differs . . . so it is only common sense that weight loss will vary from person to person. The more overweight you are, the higher your caloric requirements, the more you should lose and the faster you should lose it. And of course how much you lose on this high-speed "crash-loss" diet program depends on your starting weight, your personal goals, etc. Before starting this or any high-speed weight loss program consult with your physician to be sure you are in normal health and your only problem is excess weight and simple obesity. Individuals with high blood pressure, heart disease, diabetes, kidney disease, thyroid problems or other organic conditions should not use this "crash-loss" program, nor the medication except on the advice of a physician.

"Revs Up" Your Inner Furnace — Forces Your Body To Melt Away Fat And Fluid And Drain It Right Out Of Your System

And this is precisely what medical science offers you. An incredibly simple way to gently stimulate your fat burning metabolism and shrink your body's fat cells starting in just hours. Yes, a Doctor's proven fat-burning program featuring a crash loss diet and wonderous hunger fighting formula that help you convert body fat to body fuel AUTOMATICALLY...and dissolve excess pounds and inches starting that very first day.

Yes, within a matter of hours helps start you on the way to the long range goals you always dreamed of, as you:

LOSE up to 4 to 6 inches off your waistline
LOSE up to 2 to 5 inches off your hips
LOSE up to 3 inches off your thighs
LOSE up to 4 inches off your buttocks
LOSE up to 4 inches off your stomach

Starting With Your Very First Pill, Down Goes Hunger, Down Go The Calories, Down Goes Your Weight And Your Waistline — As Your Body Starts To Convert Stored Up Fat To Burned Away Energy!

Yes, with this Doctor's crash loss program, conquered at last are your old enemies of the past...ravenous hunger and that maddening constant urge to pick and snack. Instead, you feel satisfied...in full control of your appetite...while your body, without you even realizing it, starts to burn away excess fat by the hour. Which simply means: That from your very first day with the AMIDRENE CRASH LOSS PROGRAM you launch yourself on the greatest fat-burning spree of your life. Just look how easy it is:

Step #1 YOU WAKE UP — and START THE DAY WITH ONE, TINY, TASTELESS AMIDRENE ANTI-HUNGER TIME RELEASE CAPSULE. This is the trigger — the medical key to this entire fat-burning calorie deficit program.

Step #2 YOU EAT—MISS NO MEALS, NOT EVEN SNACKS. As you enjoy a wide and tasty selection of food, morning, noon and night . . . .plus snacks (all scientifically programmed on this reduced intake plan to cause a calorie deficit in your system and help maintain a high level of fat burn off). How high a rate of fat burn off? Just to give you an idea of the weight-loss wonders that await you . . . if your present caloric intake is 3600 a day, with this doctor's "crash-burn" approach you actually slash away 2400 fat-builder calories each and every day (that's a staggering loss of 100 calories per hour) as both pounds and inches vanish like never before.

Step #3 YOU WEIGH YOURSELF EACH MORNING—AND BE SIMPLY AMAZED AT THE "CRASH-LOSS" RESULTS. You see, since this entire "crash-loss" pill and program have been especially designed to lower your body's intake of fat-builder calories and unlock the natural fat-burners sleeping in your system . . . starting in just hours your body begins to burn off excess weight—turn fat to water and flush it right out of your system! In virtually no time at all, you "rev up" your inner furnace...start to burn away clinging pockets of flab, drain away stored excess fluid.

The result: Your body begins to eliminate stored up fat and fluid at a rate so fast, after the very first weekend alone YOU CAN ACTUALLY MEASURE THE DIFFERENCE IN THE SIZE OF YOUR TUMMY...THRILL TO THE DIFFERENCE ON YOUR SCALE... ALMOST REFUSE TO BELIEVE THE INCREDIBLE DIFFERENCE YOU SEE IN THE MIRROR!

The Facts Are In! The Research Is Done! The Incredible Weight-Slashing Results Behind This "Dynamite Concept" Has Been Proven Beyond A Shadow Of A Doubt On Scores Of Overweight Patients. Now The Final Step Is Up To You!

While other weight loss methods force you to constantly battle that maddening urge to pick, eat and snack...so eventually you crack and the pounds come piling back — with the AMIDRENE program there is simply no round-the-clock war against your will power for you to fight.

WAKE UP SLIMMER TOMORROW MORNING — and each and every morning — slimmer and slimmer with this amazing AMIDRENE PROGRAM, featuring the Doctor's "Once-In-The-Morning" Pill, that helps unlock the natural fat-burners sleeping in your body!

MOST IMPORTANT FACT OF ALL: Since You Prevent All The Food You Eat From Turning To Fat — There's No Cracking — No Sideback. You Wake Up Slimmer Morning After Morning.

That's because AMIDRENE formula as used on this Doctor's crash loss program satisfies the basic urges and cravings of the past! No matter how much fat and fluid your body burns away each and every hour...you simply do not become a hopeless victim, slave or robot to runaway appetite.

REMEMBER: you must see dramatic results in just 24 hours — results you can measure with your scale and your tapemeasure . . . or it costs you nothing! Simply return within 10 days for full refund (except postage and handling, of course). Act now. Use the no-risk coupon.

AT HOME

In the distant past, it used to be that the kitchen was the room where everyone gathered to cook, dine, keep warm and make family decisions. But a "scientific" revolution occurred, in which the kitchen got smaller, and many of its functions shifted to the dining room and family room.

Today there's a resurgence in the appreciation of the values of togetherness, and at the same time there's a growing awareness of the need to use shrinking space efficiently. The kitchen, therefore, has been rediscovered as a place to eat, work, play and entertain. To more and more families, cooking is becoming a participation sport. And, with more mothers working, it's no longer exclusively the woman who prepares, cooks and cleans up.

Enter the new open-plan kitchen for the 80's, linked to the family room. Its angular design by Bill Ketcham for Hotpoint, in conjunction with FAMILY WEEKLY, allows a number of activities to go on at once. The chef is never isolated from family or guests. The kids can help with cooking chores as the chef uses the microwave oven on the other side of the pass-through, and other family members can snack or write notes simultaneously at counters around the outside of the kitchen.

Color Scheme

Any color, as long as it is bright and vibrant, seems to be the chief characteristic of today's kitchens in providing background color and accents. (We chose a primary red to accent natural woods.) In contrast, major appliances are being purchased in white or a putty or almond color. Remember that, in planning a color scheme for a kitchen that opens onto another room, it's important to coordinate shades for a unified look.

Cabinets

Today there are many styles and finishes to choose from, depending on whether you want a traditional or modern look. In this kitchen, we chose a natural light wood to blend with major appliances. To enhance the contemporary look, hardware was passed up for sleek wood handles. On either end of one kitchen wall, two tall storage cabinets were built in: one for groceries, on one side of the refrigerator, the other for cleaning supplies, next to the built-in oven.

Design Plan for the Kitchen of the 80's

Counter Tops

The easiest to care for, and available in a wide range of colors and wood grains, are high-pressure laminate surfaces — which are also meant to be heat-and-scratch-resistant. We selected a butcher-block laminate for all counters within the kitchen interior as well as for the continuous counter that circles around the outer part of the kitchen under the pass-through shelves. One section of the long counter can be used as a breakfast nook or snack bar, the other utilized as a desk unit.

Lighting

A kitchen designed for many functions should be illuminated with direct or task lighting for work areas; undercabinet lighting, to cast light on kitchen counters; and overhead lighting — ideally with dimmer controls. In our kitchen, a "skylight" fixture was installed, concealing low-energy fluorescent tubes to adequately illuminate the entire kitchen area. A new energy-saving fluorescent tube called Circlite, which can be screwed into a standard incandescent socket, was used in the lamp that extends over the desk area.

Appliances

The design for efficient meal preparation and clean-up includes, at the kitchen wall on the far side of the pass-through, a side-by-side refrigerator (with chilled water and ice-cube dispenser on the door), a compactor, a large-capacity disposer, a cast-iron two-section sink and a double wall oven.

Across the room is a four-unit surface cooking section and venting hood, ducted to the outside for best efficiency. It is adjacent to the pass-through from the kitchen to the eating counter. A cabinet backing the cooking unit houses the microwave oven, positioned to be convenient to the kitchen and also to the area where most of the meals are served.

Flooring

Ceramic tile, low-density carpeting and stenciled floors are all available for kitchens, but vinyl floor covering, in a wide range of patterns and colors, remains the most popular and easy to care for. We chose vinyl flooring in a coordinating red shade to tie the whole kitchen design together.

Not everyone has the space, budget or need for a multifunctional kitchen, but if you are interested in remodeling, you can gain lots of ideas here to improve your kitchen's appearance and/or its operating efficiency. The key is to determine your needs and those of your family; then select furnishings according to cost, amount of care they demand, performance and the way you want your kitchen to function and look.

Kitchen Helpers

The measure of a well-outfitted kitchen is often in the small tools and accessories that can make time spent in the kitchen a delight. Luckily, many of today's kitchen items are colorful, compact and do more than one chore.

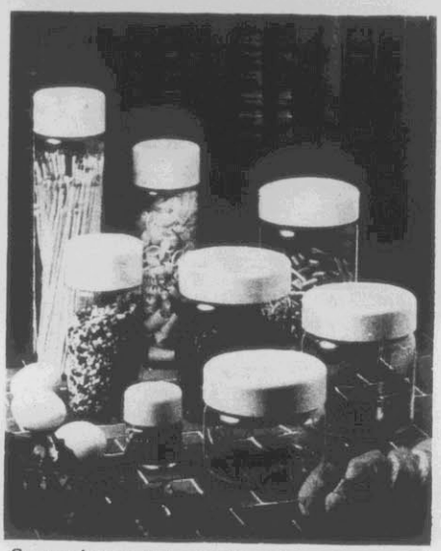

Besides having a good set of cookware and several baking dishes, no kitchen should be without these basics: a cutting board (in wood or plastic) which also can be used to serve up cheese or bread; mixing bowls, in graduated sizes for easy storage. If they're colorful, they can be utilized to serve sauces or desserts as well.

Considerably practical and handy, a good-sized strainer can work as a sifter, steamer and colander. You can put to good use a pair of wooden spoons for stirring and serving, two sharp knives (in small and large sizes) to do the work of a dozen, and you can find ample occasions to use a slotted spoon, a spatula, a measuring cup and spoons, a wisk and a kettle.

Beyond the basics, here's a round-up of some other helpers you might want to add to your kitchen domain:

Microwave Cooking Scale. In white baked enamel, this scale takes some of the guesswork out of microwave cooking, with color-coded calibrated dials that show the cooking times in minutes when cooking at high, medium and low power. It's designed for use with microwave ovens with power outputs between 600 and 700 watts and comes from American Family.

Canister Chic. Streamlined glass containers, the better to see into, with bright plastic tops, come in all sizes and shapes. They'll hold everything from condiments to tall wooden matches to paper clips for the kitchen desk. Best news of all: The jars and tops are dishwasher-safe. It's named LeJar, from Libbey Glass.

Smart glass containers add a glamorous accent.

Cutting Edge. Every kitchen can use this helping tool: all-purpose shears to cut almost anything — including poultry. The handles are contoured, and the stainless steel blades never need sharpening. It's called Handyshear from Stanley Tools.

A Guide to Buying Major Appliances

Melinda Jill Kingsley

You want to replace the old refrigerator or range or perhaps purchase your first dishwasher, but your progress is slowed by the dilemma of what kind to buy and how to select the right model.

You can begin by asking friends and neighbors who have recently purchased appliances, or who have been well served by their present appliances, to recommend dealers and brands. Once you've got a list of stores, start comparison-shopping to see where you can get the best deal. You should compare features, performance and prices of each manufacturer. Also compare warranties. Find out how long the warranty covers labor and whether the warranty will be honored by another dealer if you move. Here are some specific details to consider before you purchase:

Refrigerators. Before you leave home on your buying trip, decide how much refrigerator and freezer space you need based on what you now have. Don't buy more storage space than you anticipate needing. If you use many convenience foods that require freezing or refrigerating, you may need a larger-size refrigerator or one with a separate freezer unit. As you're shopping, compare the refrigerator and freezer compartment capacities of various manufacturers' models. Be alert to whether you want a left- or right-opening door. The door should open away from your busiest work area.

Basically, you need to decide whether you prefer a conventional refrigerator or one that is a combination refrigerator/freezer. In a conventional refrigerator, the frozen-food compartment is enclosed across the top of the unit with a lightweight inner door, which may have an ice-cube maker and space for short-term storage of frozen foods. The combination model has two doors, with one separate space for storing fresh foods and one for short- and long-term storage of frozen foods. The freezer section may be at the top, side or bottom.

Refrigerators are available in freestanding or built-in models. Freestanding models can be installed by merely connecting the appliance and allowing for the necessary space needed to open the door. Built-in units may be stacked on the top of or inserted under the counters. Although they take up less space, they are usually more costly to install.

Ranges. There are a number of models and styles available. A freestanding range, which rests on the floor, has surface burners and usually an oven and broiler below. This type of range offers the widest variety in size, color, price and features. There are also several types of freestanding ranges — with an upper oven or ovens above and below the surface units or with a microwave oven at eye level and a conventional one below.

Other options include a built-in range that is permanently installed in a kitchen cabinet and usually rests on a wood base or a cooktop, which is built into the counter top. And you can choose to have a single or double built-in wall oven, now available in new "convection" models.

When you're ready to select a range, examine the outside finish, as well as the oven and broiler for sturdy construction. The controls should be easy to read, reach and operate. Splash panels should have smooth corners to facilitate cleaning. Since most special features add to the cost of a range, evaluate their usefulness to you.

Dishwashers. This appliance may either be a luxury or a necessity, depending on the size of your family or whether you entertain frequently. There are two basic types: A built-in model may be installed as an undercounter unit and requires special plumbing connections. A top or front-loading portable is not permanently installed but is usually wheeled over to the sink and temporarily attached to the faucet. A good dishwasher should provide durable interior finishes, flexible use of racks or convenient placement of different utensils and easily accessible controls. Today's dishwasher may have up to a dozen cycles, feature compartments for small items and insulation to deaden sound.

In buying major appliances, remember to look for energy-saving features. For instance, the dishwasher used in our designer kitchen has among its features a low-energy drying system. The refrigerator, which offers chilled water and ice cubes on the outside of the door, eliminates the need to open the freezer so often — which wastes energy. The self-cleaning oven has additional insulation, which can cut down on the electricity used, since it helps to retain heat in the oven cavity. A microwave or convection oven saves energy, too, by cutting down on cooking time.

Cutting Down on Kitchen-Remodeling Costs

Melinda Jill Kingsley

Remodeling a kitchen can involve anything from replacing a few cabinets that may be relatively inexpensive, to a total transformation, which can cost more than the price of a new car. Be realistic about what you want and can afford. Since extensive remodeling will take in plumbing, electrical wiring and the handling of utility lines, know which, if any, part of the task you can handle yourself.

Whether you expect to do some of the work or leave everything to a contractor, detailed planning is essential. Correcting mistakes or changing your mind later can be expensive.

The best way to stay within your budget is to decide what would be the "ultimate" kitchen for you and your family. Then scale its features and cost down to what you can afford. Here's how to de-escalate remodeling costs:

Limiting What You Buy. If your budget allows for having your kitchen redesigned, with cabinets and appliances ordered by a professional, but you do your own installing, you can cut your costs considerably. If you keep your old appliances but get all new custom cabinets or replace the old cabinets with stock cabinets (available at home centers), you can reduce your outlay still further. Or you can replace only cabinet doors and drawer fronts. This way you change the style and color of the kitchen, yet save even more.

Doing Your Own Work. If you have the ability and time, or can barter for the services of a friend who can lend a hand, by all means do your own remodeling. Here are some things to consider:

1. Before you attempt to alter your present kitchen, you should develop a basic understanding of kitchen design and a working idea of the finished effect you want. Get the whole family in on the planning. Keep a pad and pencil ready when you're using the kitchen to jot down the features you don't like and those you want to retain.

2. Be sure to get a copy of the local building codes in your town and follow their requirements closely. You may be doing all the planning and installing, but if major structural work is involved (necessitating alterations in plumbing or electrical wiring), you probably will want to leave that to specialists.

3. If you are replacing appliances, you may want to relocate them, since a good kitchen plan takes into account work flow.

Work revolves around three centers of activity — refrigeration, cleanup and cooking — and it should flow among them in an unobstructed work triangle. Ideally, the entire triangle should measure no more than 22 feet and no less than 13. Suggested distances between appliances: from refrigerator to sink, four to seven feet; sink to range, four to six feet; range to refrigerator, four to nine feet. Traffic flow in the kitchen should not pass through the triangle.

It's also important that each major appliance center has some working counter space available, preferably on both sides of it.

There are some basic pitfalls in planning that you should avoid:

- You should not place a refrigerator or oven near a doorway, where the door would block traffic when open.
- Don't put a refrigerator, built-in oven or tall utility cabinet in the middle of a cabinet bank, where it would tend to obstruct work flow.
- Avoid placing a built-in oven and refrigerator side by side. Each needs its own landing space.
- Try not to waste corners. If you place your dishwasher near a corner on one wall and a range next to it on the adjacent side wall, you block off the corner and lose its valuable storage capacity.
- Avoid installing a built-in oven too high. When open, the door should be three or four inches beneath your elbow.
- Don't allow an aisle to be too narrow. Leave at least 48 inches of walking space.

Hiring a Specialist. A kitchen specialist can reduce your remodeling costs by helping you cut down on expensive trial-and-error steps. He or she submits a floor plan and takes on complete responsibility for your new kitchen. The fee is based on the hours spent planning and pricing a project, but if the designer is hired to handle the whole job, it is common for the design fee to be deducted from the total cost.

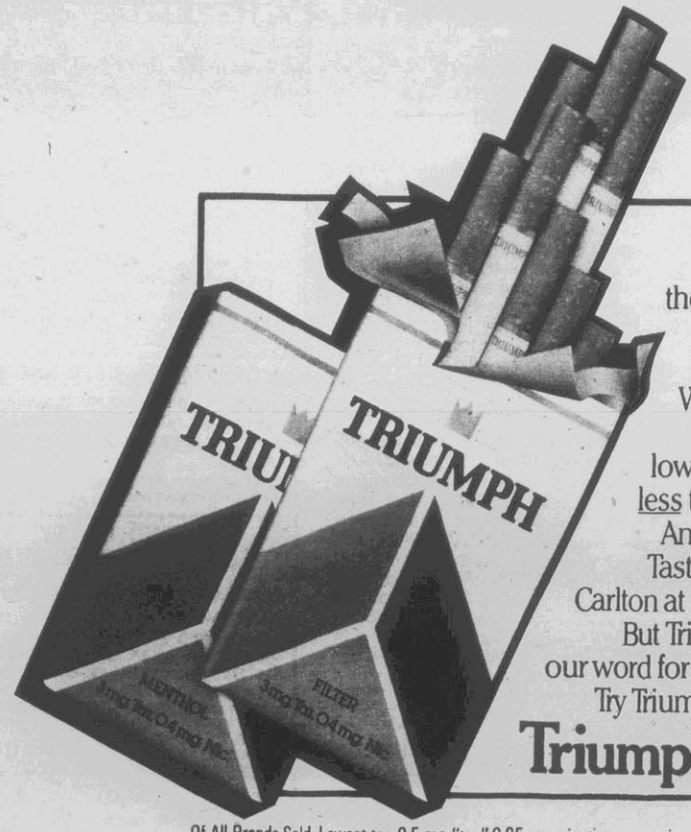

How do you know whom to choose? The reputable firm listed in your Yellow Pages or discovered through recommendation is likely to be an AIKD member (American Institute of Kitchen Dealers) or have the letters CKD (Certified Kitchen Dealers) after its name. FW

Triumph for Tar Watchers!

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

Triumph, at only 3 mg, steals thunder from yesterday's "low tars."

Suddenly it's a whole new ball game.
Yesterday's so-called "low tars" called themselves the "low tars" with "taste."
Merit at 8 mg was one of them.
Salem Lights at 11 another. So was Winston Lights at 14.

But now there is Triumph, today's low tar. With only 3 mg tar—that's 62% less than the leading "low tar."

And taste. Remarkably satisfying taste.
Taste at such low tar? It's something Carlton at 1 doesn't even claim to have.

But Triumph has it. And don't just take our word for it.

SYNOMETRICS... an Olympic Champion's Discovery!

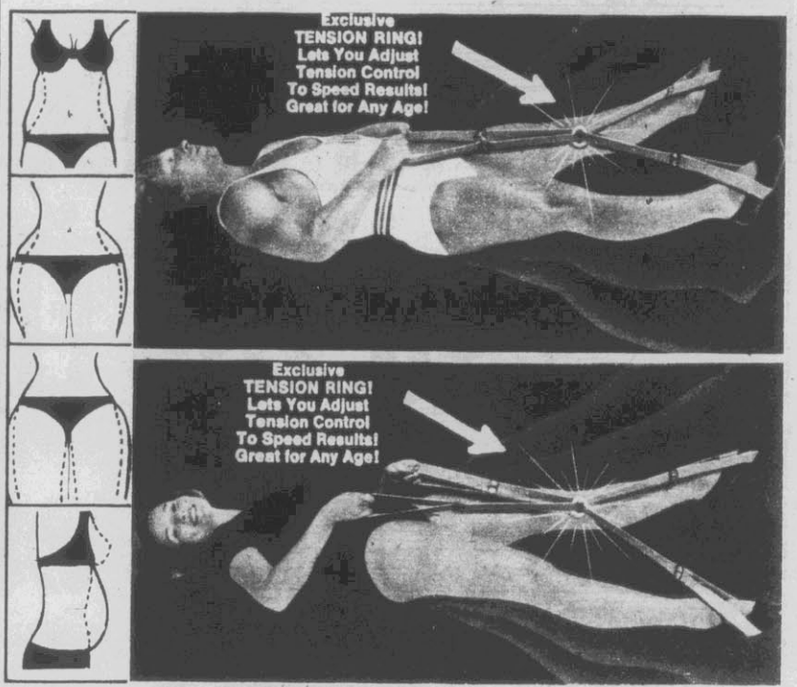

Turn Belly Fat into a Rock-Hard Lean Stomach

Ike Berger Today.

Introducing IKE BERGER
Olympic Champion

Olympic Gold medal winner (U.S. team) weightlifting • World Champion (three times) • Pan American Games Champion (twice) • National Champion (12 times) • Elected to Hall of Fame.

IN JUST 7 SHORT MINUTES A DAY with the amazing SYNOMETRICS (scientific concept of ISOMETRIC + ISOTONIC)... the fantastic new discovery for speed shaping away ugly, embarrassing fat and flab with proper caloric reduction ... to reveal a brand new rock-hard, lean, trim, handsome body!

IKE BERGER explains SYNOMETRICS™... the new EASY speed method for figure beauty

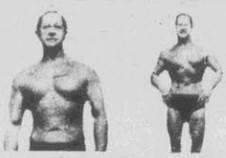

What is SYNOMETRICS? You've probably heard about the Isotonic and Isometric principle of body dynamics for years. Each method has its own believers and supporters. I used BOTH methods in my daily training. Finally, I developed a special exercise unit that employed BOTH methods AT THE SAME TIME in one device. The effect was simply amazing. I was able to keep in trim, slim shape in only a fraction of the time I previously needed!

The Science of SYNOMETRICS

I later learned the scientific reason for this amazing result. It's called SYNERGISM—meaning that when you combine two methods the result is greater than the both of them separately. I now called my new discovery SYNOMETRICS and developed a special exercise unit I call the SPEED SHAPER. And that's just what it is... a speed method to give you results in minutes, NOT hours! Now... build yourself a "fantastic looking body" with the incredible SYNOMETRICS—the invention that works on the exciting new scientific concept of ISOTONIC + ISOMETRIC.

What is the SPEED SHAPER?

Ingeniously designed, in an amazingly compact slimming & shaping discovery. • No doorknobs needed • Adjust tension to your own needs, for any age • Slip into pocket or purse (5 oz.)—fits anywhere!

"I'm over 50 and I thought my fat and flab was with me for life... SYNOMETRICS "burned" it off in only 7 days. In fact results came so fast I had to cut my daily 7 minute workout to 5 minutes to slow down the slimming process. It's the most amazing method I've ever tried... and I've tried just about every gadget and gimmick I've seen in magazines and TV."

Iron Clad Money Back Guarantee

In just a few days you must actually begin to see measurable, real results... or your money back promptly and without any question.

*No diet needed if daily caloric intake does not add to your present body weight.

Beating the High Cost of College

By Marty Gallanter

Inflation has hit colleges and trade schools hard: Everything associated with a post-secondary education is on the rise. Today, the cost of a four-year college education can run anywhere from $20,000 to $40,000. But don't despair. There are many Federal and state aid programs available to help pay that huge bill.

Contrary to popular opinion, these programs are not designed just for the very poor; middle-class families can also benefit. Check with your high-school guidance office for information, or, if you are already accepted at a college, contact the financial aid office at your school.

BEOG (Basic Educational Opportunity Grants). Any student who has not previously received a baccalaureate degree can apply. If qualified, a student can receive up to $1,800 a year. Forms are found in most high-school guidance offices. You can also write Basic Grants, P.O. Box 84, Washington, D.C., 20044 or call: (800) 553-6350. Generally, lower-income families are favored, but funding can depend on many factors, such as the number of family members in college.

SEOG (Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants). This program is for students who have already applied for a BEOG and have exceptional need. The awards range between $200 and $1,500. Use the same address as for BEOG.

CWSP (College Work Study Program). Funds for part-time employment are provided by the Government to the school, which chooses from among eligible students and assigns jobs. The jobs are usually on campus, and students are usually permitted no more than 20 hours per week. Contact your college financial aid office for details.

NDSL (National Direct Student Loan Program). Student loans are arranged directly through the school. The money comes from the Government and is repaid, at 3 percent interest, starting nine months after you stop being a student. Check with the financial aid office.

GSLP (Guaranteed Student Loan Program). The student borrows money through a bank or through the school, and the Government backs up the loan. Repayment requirements are similar to those for NDSL loans. The interest rate is 7 percent. Check with your family bank or financial aid office.

Social Security Payments. If a student is between 18 and 22, financially dependent and has a deceased, disabled or retired parent who worked long enough to qualify for Social Security, he may be eligible. Contact your local Social Security office.

State Programs. Almost every state has programs that supplement Federal aid. Contact your state's department of education, usually located in the state capital.

In light of President Carter's proposed budget cutbacks and credit curtailments, the entire student-aid picture could change in the near future. However, with all the various programs available today, there is no reason why a lack of funds alone should stop anyone from obtaining an advanced education. FW

THERE'S NOTHING LIKE A VISIT TO VIRGINIA TO MAKE YOU FEEL FOUR HUNDRED YEARS BEHIND THE TIMES.

Wherever you are in Virginia, long ago is never far away. It waits around every corner in Colonial Williamsburg, where the cooper and silversmith are still practicing their trades. Where horse and carriage still wend their way past 18th century shops and taverns, through an entire city rich in costume and history.

Five minutes away, there is long-ago Europe, captured in the fascinating world of The Old Country. Here, as well, is the lair of the Loch Ness Monster. Ten minutes away, there is Jamestown, first permanent English settlement in the New World, where three tiny ships wait quietly in the harbor. Fifteen minutes away, at Yorktown, the American Revolution ended. The battlefield, and the echoes, remain. A half hour farther there are golden ocean beaches. And west, the Blue Ridge Mountains, mysterious caverns, and Thomas Jefferson's plantation home, Monticello. The view of the mountains is lovely from every window.

When you visit Virginia, you can travel over 400 years in very little time. Because wherever your journey takes you, the past is still very much present.

JOHN WAYNE COMMEMORATIVE

... "So he may live in the hearts of Americans forever!"

History will be made shortly when the United States Mint issues a Special Commemorative Medal honoring John Wayne - "The Duke."

It is the first and only time in the history of this country that the United States Congress has authorized an Official Medal to honor an American film star. This extraordinary tribute is to a man who, throughout his lifetime, exemplified the American spirit. A man of rare intregrity and strength.

You have a unique opportunity to acquire The Official United States Mint John Wayne medal. Each medal is:

Individually struck at The United States Mint.

These medals are then individually numbered with a distinctive edgemark and plated in precious 24 Karat Gold by The Historic Providence Mint. This guarantees that each medal is:

Plated in precious 24 Karat Gold;
Engraved with its own individual serial number.

The first medal - in Solid Gold - will be presented to the Wayne family in honor of this great American.

The 24 Karat Gold-Plated medals, featuring a portrait of John Wayne on the front and a striking picture of Wayne astride a galloping horse on the reverse, will then be available ... for a limited time on a first-come, first-served basis at the Advanced Reservation ptice of only $10 each.

AVAILABLE FOR A LIMITED TIME ONLY!

The unique 24 Karat Gold-Plated Commemorative Medal will necessarily be limited in availability. They will be issued on a first-come, first-served basis in fairness to all. For this reason, all reservations must be subject to acceptance and will be filled as orders are received. Earliest orders will receive the lowest-numbered medals.

Don't miss out on this rare opportunity to acquire this historic commemorative. Order your 24 Karat Gold-Plated medallion TODAY!

Step Into Spring With Sprightly Salads

By Marilyn Hansen

Cut back on your time in the kitchen and lighten your calorie load with a crisp, freshly made salad that's right in tune with the season.

SPRING SALAD

1 lb. carrots, diagonally sliced
1 head cauliflower, broken into flowerets and thinly sliced
½ lb. mushrooms, thinly sliced
½ cup white vinegar
½ cup corn oil
3 green onions, thinly sliced (⅓ cup)
1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon dried thyme leaves
Lettuce

1. In separate saucepans, cook carrots and cauliflower in boiling water about 3 minutes or until just tender; drain, reserving ½ cup liquid from the carrots.
2. Place carrots, cauliflower and mushrooms into separate bowls; set aside.
3. Stir together ½ cup reserved liquid, vinegar, corn oil, green onion, sugar, lemon juice, salt and thyme. Pour ⅓ mixture over each vegetable. Cover; refrigerate at least 3 hours or overnight.
4. Drain vegetables and serve on bed of lettuce. Makes 6 servings

DILL CUCUMBER SALAD

½ cup vinegar
¼ cup light corn syrup
1 tablespoon chopped fresh dill
¼ teaspoon salt
Few twists freshly ground black pepper
2 medium cucumbers, partially pared, very thinly sliced

1. In medium bowl, mix together vinegar, corn syrup, dill, salt and pepper. Add cucumber and toss to coat well.
2. Cover; refrigerate 2 or 3 hours, stirring occasionally. Makes 6 servings

SLIM-TRIM VEGETABLE DIP

2 cups (1 lb.) cottage cheese
¼ cup yogurt
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon chopped chives
1 tomato, peeled and chopped
½ cup (2 ozs.) crumbled blue cheese
Cauliflowerets
Celery pieces
Sliced scored cucumber*
Carrot curls
Sliced mushrooms
Asparagus stalks, trimmed

1. Combine cottage cheese and yogurt in container of electric blender; cover and process at high speed until smooth and creamy. Pour into mixing bowl.
2. Stir in salt, chives, tomato and blue cheese; mix well. Chill until serving time.
3. Turn into serving bowl. Garnish with additional chopped tomato and chives; serve with vegetable dippers.
Makes about 2½ cups dip

To make carrot curls, use vegetable peeler to shave lengthwise strips from pared carrot: Curl each strip around finger, fasten with wooden pick and crisp in ice water for 1 or 2 hours.*

MIXED ORIENTAL TUNA SALAD

1 pkg. (6 ozs.) fresh pea pods (1½ cups)
2 cups (5 ozs.) bean sprouts
¼ cup sliced red onion
1 cup sliced mushrooms
1 can (7 ozs.) tuna, drained
1 can (8 ozs.) water chestnuts, drained and sliced
Lemon Chutney Dressing (recipe follows)

1. Cook pea pods according to package directions until tender-crisp. Drain and cool.
2. In medium bowl, toss together pea pods, bean sprouts, onion, mushrooms and tuna. Serve with Lemon Chutney Dressing. Makes 4 servings

Lemon Chutney Dressing: In medium bowl, stir together 1 cup mayonnaise, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 tablespoon grated lemon rind, ¼ cup chopped chutney and 2 tablespoons milk. Cover and refrigerate. Makes 1½ cups

TOSSED MUSHROOM MARINADE

3 cups sliced fresh mushrooms
1 pkg. (10 ozs.) frozen cut green beans, cooked
1 medium red onion, cut into rings
½ cup olive or salad oil
⅓ cup red wine vinegar
1 teaspoon oregano leaves
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon onion powder
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
⅛ teaspoon ground black pepper
Crisp salad greens
4 slices bacon, cooked and crumbled
2 hard-cooked eggs, chopped

1. Arrange mushrooms, green beans and onion in a 3-quart shallow glass casserole.
2. Combine oil, vinegar and seasonings in a screw-top jar. Shake well. Pour over vegetables.
3. Cover and refrigerate 1 hour. Drain marinade into a cruet for dressing. Toss vegetables with crisp salad greens. Pass bacon and eggs as toppings to serve.

Dave Winfield: Baseball's $20 Million Man?

By Tony Scherman

Baseball players, at least according to myth, used to spend their hotel time playing poker into the wee hours, reminiscing about life in a tractor seat or figuring out how best to short-sheet their roommates.

But times change: The deck of cards is forsaken for the attaché case, and tonight Dave Winfield, 28, is indeed in his hotel room — but he's working on his taxes. And for the San Diego Padres' right fielder, 6 feet 6 inches and every inch the contemporary athlete, taxes are some serious business. Not only is he a highly paid baseball superstar (with a chance to become the highest-paid), but, as the guiding light behind the David M. Winfield Foundation for Underprivileged Children and numerous other community-minded projects, Winfield is also the nation's leading slugger-philanthropist.

Next year the philanthropist's taxes should be still more time-consuming: Winfield, whose $1.5 million multi-year contract with the Padres runs out this year, is asking for a 10-year package in the neighborhood of $20 million, starting with a base annual salary of $1.3 million and rising 10 percent each year.

"My potential," says Dave, "is unlimited. Right now, I rate myself among the very best — and I haven't been in a situation where I even know how good I am." One must agree that last year he was pretty darn good. Winfield batted .308, banged 35 homers and knocked in 118 runs to lead the National League — all the while toiling for the lowly Padres, who rarely get a man into scoring position.

"If you'd told me 10 years ago I'd be asking for all this money, I'd have said you were crazy," he continues. "But I'd have said you were crazy if you'd told me gasoline would cost $2 a gallon by the end of 1980. If the owners couldn't pay these salaries, they wouldn't. A top professional athlete is more than a ballplayer — he's an entertainer, he's a man in the public eye, he's a man under pressure. Oh man, it's not a matter of asking. If you gotta go for it, you gotta. Period."

There are two sides to Dave Winfield: the arrogant superstar who regards last year's mighty statistics as mere portents of future heroics; and the concerned citizen who busily pours much of his money into worthy causes. For four years he's provided underprivileged kids with free tickets to Padres games; by the end of the 1979 season, 15,000 children had been admitted to the right field bleacher section of San Diego Stadium called "the Winfield Pavilion," and there are plans to hold Winfield Pavilion days in nine major league cities this year.

Dave also funds a scholarship program for minority student-athletes in his hometown of St. Paul, Minn., promotes projects for the Urban League and gives gigantic annual bashes for children before each year's All-Star Game. In addition, he is planning a $40 million sports complex to be called "Superstar Village," which will be staffed by health experts, with professional athletes as guest consultants.

Winfield comes from what he calls an "undistinguished" background in St. Paul. His parents were divorced when he was an infant, and his mother supported Dave and his older brother, Steve, by working for the St. Paul public-school system. As a college senior at the University of Minnesota, Dave was drafted by four pro teams in three different sports: the Padres, football's Minnesota Vikings and basketball's Atlanta Hawks and Utah Stars.

Winfield never spent a day in the minor leagues, and the transition to life in the pros was tough: "There were a lot of phone calls home, I'll tell you. It was a sink-or-swim ordeal: No excuses in pro ball. You just do it or you don't. And, well, I've done it...There can be resentment, jealousy; there can be overinflated ideas of your own self-worth. You just have to be yourself and go about your business."

And for Dave Winfield that means both his businesses — baseball and community work. But he's realistic about which has priority. "Well, baseball's got to come first," he notes. "It's what everything else revolves around. I mean, who's gonna listen to a philanthropist who hits .220? Hey, if I hit .220 I couldn't even be a philanthropist." FW

Silver Flatware Pattern Matching Service

STERLING AND SILVERPLATE

More than 1,000 Patterns in Stock
Active * Inactive * Obsolete
Replace lost or damaged pieces
Complete your starter set Add serving pieces

UP TO 40 - 75% OFF SUGGESTED RETAIL PRICES

We have hundreds of sterling and silverplate flatware patterns in stock (1,192 patterns, 137,256 pieces the day this ad was prepared) — active, inactive and obsolete. Many cannot be bought in retail stores at any price. Get a single piece, a place setting, extra spoons — whatever you need. Save up to 40 - 75% on every piece.

EASY TO ORDER — DO IT NOW!

Just tell us the pattern name and manufacturer. If you are not sure of your pattern name, ask for one of our free pattern identification booklets. We have one for sterling, one for silverplate. We will send you a list of all the pieces in stock in your pattern and the price for each. We will put your name in our Silver Register and notify you when we have additional pieces you might want. 30-day return privilege on all silver you buy from Walter Drake Silver Exchange.

SEND THE COUPON BELOW TODAY

We buy and sell silver every day, so our stock changes every day. The sooner you send the coupon, the sooner you will get the pieces you want. First come, first served. We keep our prices as low as we can, but inflation affects the price of silver, too. It probably costs less to get the silver you want now than it ever will again, so don't delay. This advertisement will not be repeated for at least several months; send your coupon now.

NEW! SILVER LAYAWAY PLAN

We now have a layaway plan to help you get the silver you want. If you are interested in this easy, budget way to buy, check the Layaway box in the coupon below.

DO YOU WANT TO SELL STERLING AND SILVERPLATE? TWO WAYS TO SELL FOR QUICK, EASY CASH

1. If you have silver to sell, send pattern name and manufacturer, if known. No need to list individual pieces. We will send you an immediate cash offer. We buy from individuals and estates, as well as retailer's trade-ins and overstock. We are also qualified buyers of gold, diamonds, platinum and sterling and silverplate holloware. Write for details.
2. For even faster service, just package up the items you want to sell us — sterling and silverplate flat- and holloware, gold, diamonds, platinum. Enclose a list of the items you send us (and keep a copy for yourself). Include the flatware pattern and manufacturer names if known. Send the package Return Receipt Requested. When it arrives, we will appraise your shipment and send you a check. If you like it, cash the check. If not, return the check to us and we will send your shipment back postpaid.

HEALTH
Facts & Fallacies

By Dr. Frederick J. Stare and
Dr. Elizabeth M. Whelan

Fallacy: Stress Is the Leading Cause of Heart Disease

FACT: Stress is not a "cause" of heart disease. In fact, if anything, strenuous, repeated, long-term physical effort, or "stress," is considered to be beneficial. (Stress here, refers to simply any stimulus, whether physical or emotional, internal or environmental that causes a response by the cardiovascular system.)

Stress may instead be related to other known risk factors. It may play a role in provoking a heart attack in a person who already has some form of heart disease. But, according to the report, Stress, Strain and Heart Disease, prepared for the American Heart Association in 1977, it is impossible "to determine precisely when cardiac insufficiency would have occurred during the natural history of the underlying disease, or from normal 'wear and tear of life' without the indicated stress." Emotional stress related to heart disease is being studied, but it is difficult to measure because any effect from emotional stress on a person depends so much on the personality makeup of the individual. Not everyone with an underlying heart disease who is exposed to a potentially harmful stimulus will experience cardiovascular response, although a single, isolated, intense episode of physical or emotional stress can hasten heart failure in a person with underlying heart disease.

One of the most important factors in heart care is diet. It's essential to watch your weight and limit intake of cholesterol and saturated fat.

Fallacy: Nervousness Is a Common Sign of High Blood Pressure

FACT: There is no common sign of high blood pressure. One can be nervous and tense and not have high blood pressure. One can be calm and relaxed, look and feel perfectly well and still have high blood pressure.

High blood pressure is a physical condition, referred to sometimes as "hypertension," and that is where the confusion arises. Hypertension usually has nothing to do with feeling tense, nervous or upset. Rather, it means the force of blood pressing against the artery walls remains too high, instead of increasing and decreasing normally, particularly in relation to exercise, excitement or fright. It is difficult to control that pressure simply be being calm and relaxed.

High blood pressure can be measured only by a physician's instrument. If detected, it can't be cured, but it can be controlled by proper treatment — including a diet that brings weight down and decreases salt and cholesterol intake.

Fallacy: Diabetes Is Caused by Eating Too Much Sugar

FACT: The precise cause of diabetes is unknown. It occurs most often among adults as a result of a strong genetic tendency, triggered by environmental factors, primarily obesity, possibly stress and even viral infections — but not by eating too much sugar.

When diabetes occurs, one of these two problems is present: The beta cells in the pancreas do not produce and secrete into the bloodstream enough insulin to allow sugars and starches, in the form of glucose, to be converted into energy that can be absorbed into the body's cells; or the body does not make proper use of the insulin that is produced, so that excess sugar (glucose) builds up in the bloodstream and urine, instead of being stored in the liver.

Obesity can cause glucose intolerance, in that the body's cells lose the insulin receptors which normally permit absorption of glucose into the cells, so that glucose remains in the bloodstream. Glucose intolerance is sometimes a precursor to diabetes, but it can be reversed with weight loss, and the cells will return to normal size with normal insulin receptors. Diabetes, however, cannot be reversed, only controlled.

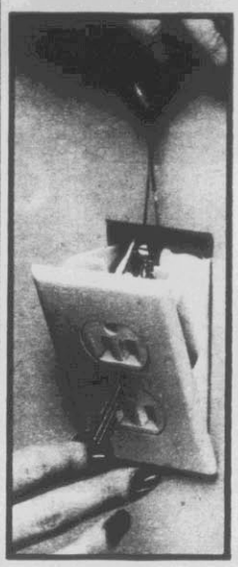

Diabetics are told to eat less sugar because it converts quickly to glucose and creates an immediate need for more insulin than can be produced by the pancreas in time for the glucose to be absorbed or stored. The excess glucose in the bloodstream increases calorie intake and contributes to the obesity which triggered the diabetes in the first place.

In most cases, if discovered before extensive damage has been done, diabetes and glucose intolerance can be controlled by weight reduction and moderate exercise. Insulin injections may be used if needed, but only 30 percent of all adult diabetics are insulin-dependent. FW

WHAT IN THE WORLD

Remembering Mama

On May 8, 1914, Congress declared that the second Sunday in May is to be reserved for mothers. So why are we talking about Mother's Day today? "Because mothers are very special, and sometimes you need a bit of time to actually sit down and think about what you want to say in a card or letter," says Susan Polis Schutz, a Colorado poet whose books and cards are published both in this country and abroad.

If you're planning on composing your own Mother's Day card, Schutz recommends that you try and pinpoint what makes your relationship with your mother unique. "Let your mother know why you think she's wonderful and different," suggests the author. "And remember: Mother's Day cards can just as easily be letters as poems, and poems don't always have to rhyme." And that's advice from a pro.

Eye Protection

Every racquet-sports enthusiast knows that keeping your eyes on the ball is an integral part of the game, but close to 10,000 eye injuries related to racquet games were reported last year. "Racquet games are the number-one cause of sports eye injuries," reports Dr. Paul Vinger, chairman of the National Society to Prevent Blindness Sports Council.

"When a ball or shuttlecock hits the eye, the eye gets compressed," explains Vinger. "Frequently the eye bleeds internally and the retina may tear or the lens may be knocked out of place. Sometimes the surrounding bone is even fractured."

Dr. Vinger suggests wearing glasses with plastic, not glass, lenses while playing tennis or badminton. And for squash and racquetball, in which you also stand a chance of being hit by your partner's racquet, he recommends eye protection with polycarbonate plastic made to industrial specifications. Keeping your eyes on the ball can be done safely.

H. Armstrong Roberts

Play safe: Protect your eyes.

Work Addicts

Work, which most of us must do, is supposed to be balanced by play, but there are people who simply prefer labor to leisure. "'Workaholics,'" says Dr. Marilyn Machlowitz, author of Workaholics (Addison-Wesley), "are those people who work tremendously hard not because they have to but because they want to."

Dr. Machlowitz, who confesses that she's been accused of being a workaholic, feels that being a compulsive worker is not necessarily a bad trait. "Workaholics work because they love it; it's the people who aren't workaholics who have coined the term, which owes its negative overtones to 'alcoholism,'" she notes. "However, many workaholics never let up. They approach their sports and hobbies the same way they do their work: as something to be mastered. And many are perfectionists. Living with a workaholic can be very difficult, and family members are often the people who pay the price."

Lifelines

People who need medical supervision often end up relying on hospitals or nursing homes for full-time care that's not really necessary. At the Presbyterian Aurora Hospital in Aurora, Colo., a system has been set up that allows the elderly, the handicapped and the chronically ill to live at home, yet keep in constant touch with the hospital.

"The hospital's Lifeline system operates 24 hours a day," explains the institution's administrator, Phil Herre. "The people who subscribe to the service, which costs $9 a month, carry a wireless gadget that looks like a garage-door opener in their pocket or clipped to their clothing. When the button on the machine is pushed, a call goes to the emergency room and help is sent to the home. Thirty-three people are now using the service, and, so far, we've had only one emergency call. An elderly lady had a heart attack, and we had her in the hospital inside of 20 minutes. And is she glad she's a member!"

Lifestyles

House Calls. There are doctors who still think house calls are an integral part of medical practice, reports Medical Economics magazine. House calls give physicians a chance to size up the home situation and evaluate a patient in light of his economic circumstances and his relationship with family members. "And," says Dr. Reginald MacHaffie, a family physician in Oregon, "a doctor's presence in the house can help relieve tension and anxiety and give a sense of relief to patients and families."

Mail. A survey by the Direct Mail/Marketing Association, Inc., reports that the person who handles the mail at home is usually the same person who pays the bills and is most involved in running the home; in the majority of cases, this means a woman.

ERA. A recent Harris survey indicates that public support of the Equal Rights Amendment has remained basically unchanged for the last two years. A solid 56-percent majority favors passage of the ERA. However, men are more in favor of the ERA than women: Men approve by 59 percent while women back it by 54 percent.

Latest Wave Of Smoker Research:

High Tars Taking Back Seat To Merit.

Smokers acclaim low tar MERIT as taste alternative to high tar brands.

MERIT: Proven Long Term Alternative To High Tar Brands.

New national smoker study results prove it.

Proof: 9 out of 10 enjoy smoking as much since switching to MERIT, are glad they switched, and report MERIT is the best tasting low tar they've ever tried.

Smokers Prefer MERIT 3 To 1!

New taste tests with thousands of smokers prove it.

Proof: A significant majority of smokers rate MERIT taste as good as—or better than—leading high tar brands. Even cigarettes having twice the tar!

Proof: Of the 95% stating a preference, 3 out of 4 smokers chose the MERIT low tar/good taste combination over high tar leaders when tar levels were revealed.

You've read the results. The conclusion is clearer than ever: MERIT delivers a winning combination of taste and low tar.

A combination that's attracting more and more smokers every day and—more importantly—satisfying them long term.

"I PLEDGE MY HELP IN DELIVERING YOUR FATHER FROM THE SHARIF. LISTEN AND YOU WILL LEARN WHY." AN OLD MAN RISES AND ROCKS TO AND FRO.

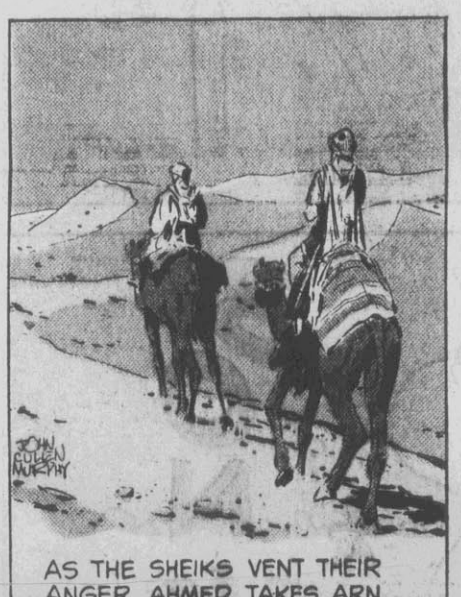

"LAST WINTER, WHEN PLAGUE RAVAGED THE MINING CAMP, THE SHARIF SENT HIS THUGS TO FIND REPLACEMENTS. FROM MY TRIBE WE LOST TWELVE GOOD MEN."

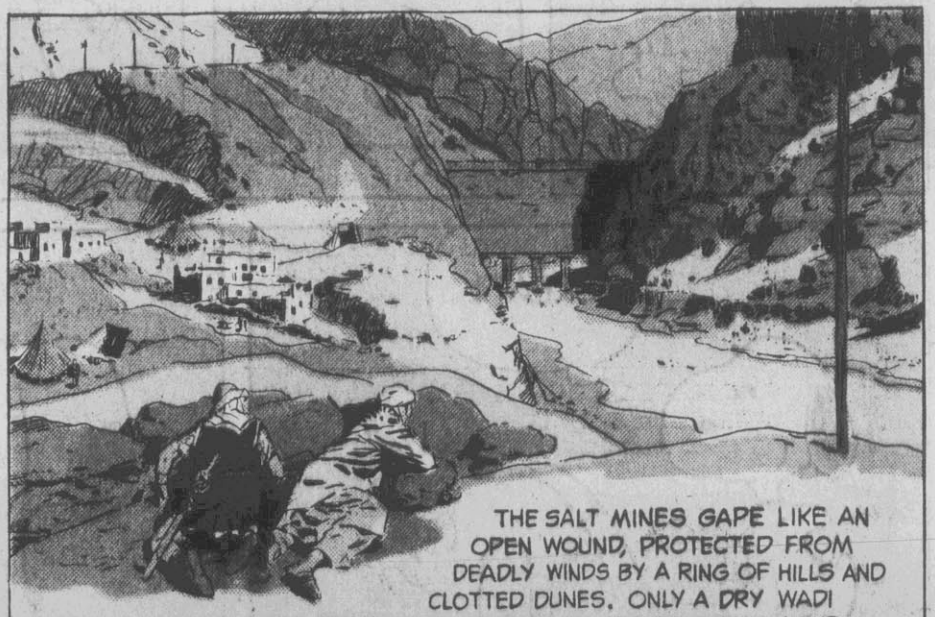

"I HAVE LOST EIGHT," SAYS SOMEONE ELSE. "TEN," CRIES ANOTHER. "FOUR," CLAIMS A THIRD. "AND I," SAYS AHMED AL-GEBR AS THE THRONG FALLS SILENT, "I HAVE LOST MY FOUR SONS, MY BEARDLESS BOYS, MY ONLY HEIRS.

"WHEN I DEMANDED THEIR RETURN, THE SHARIF SEEMED ALL KINDNESS. 'FEAR NOT,' HE SAID SOOTHINGLY, 'I WILL PRESERVE YOUR HEIRS.'" BITTERLY, AHMED PULLS BACK A CURTAIN. "HE SENT ME THEIR BODIES PACKED IN SALT."

AS THE SHEIKS VENT THEIR ANGER, AHMED TAKES ARN ASIDE: "COME, LET US SCOUT THE TARGET." THEY SET OFF PROMPTLY, TWO LONELY PILGRIMS ON A SANDY SEA.

THE SALT MINES GAPE LIKE AN OPEN WOUND, PROTECTED FROM DEADLY WINDS BY A RING OF HILLS AND CLOTTED DUNES. ONLY A DRY WADI BREAKS THE BARRIER, AND THERE A WALL STANDS TO CONTAIN THE BLAST. THE HEADS OF MISCREANTS HANG FROM TALL POLES, AND ARN NOTES HAPPILY THAT VAL IS NOT AMONG THEM.
