Hunt Wins Nomination By A Landslide

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A bluegrass band serenaded Gov. Jim Hunt's supporters Tuesday night but Hunt listened to a different tune — a symphony of statewide support that ended with a landslide win for the Democratic gubernatorial primary.

The 42-year-old governor moved closer to re-election with a crushing victory over former Gov. Bob Scott. With all but four precincts counted, Hunt had 69 percent of the vote — 525,141 votes to 216,710 for Scott and 12,678 votes for Harry Welsh. In the Republican primary, Raleigh state Sen. I. Beverly Lake Jr. defeated little-known C.J. "Charlie" Carstens for the GOP nomination, setting up a Hunt-Lake contest in the fall. An easy Hunt victory had been predicted but as the vote-counting neared an end early today, Hunt was leading every county in the state, including Scott's home county of Alamance. "This is way more than what I expected," Hunt told reporters as nearly 600 supporters enjoyed the vote totals at a hotel banquet room. "I thought if we got in the 60s (percent) of the vote, that would be fantastic. But this, this vote is really touching," said Hunt, who is trying to become the first governor to serve two consecutive four-year terms. The election was an echo of the campaign — predictable, low-keyed and gentlemanly.

There was no doubt about the outcome after the first wave of Hunt votes rolled in minutes after the polls closed at 7:30 p.m.

But Scott, who was governor from 1969 until 1973, held out for nearly three hours and Hunt politely declined to declare victory until Scott conceded.

"I do not regret for a moment having been a candidate ... I make no apologies," Scott told about 200 somber supporters at his hotel headquarters.

"We have been able to offer not only a choice but we have brought before the public some issues that had been ignored," Scott said before heading a block up the street to see Hunt.

After a private talk, the two Democrats made their way through Hunt's throng and issued their declarations for party unity.

Incumbents Face A Race

It appears that incumbent Democratic State Senators Julian Allsbrook and Vernon White will be opposed in the general election by Republican high men Herb Lee and George Grayiel. Allsbrook received 18,609 votes (6701 from Halifax, 4911 from Edgecombe, 5326 from Pitt and 1671 from Martin); White, 16,387 (4224 from Halifax, 3765 from Edgecombe, 6565 from Pitt and 1834 from Martin). Their only opponent Mark Tipton received 13,620 votes (3405 from Halifax, 2754 from Edgecombe, 6027 from Pitt and 2434 from Martin). Lee received 1691 votes (207 from Halifax, 222 from Edgecombe, 1170 from Pitt and 92 from Martin); George Grayiel, 1160 (165 from Halifax, 351 from Edgecombe, 579 from Pitt and 65 from Martin); Joseph Grayiel, 974 (195 from Halifax, 225 from Edgecombe, 480 from Pitt and 44 from Martin).

Seats Filled On Bd. Of Education

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer
Three seats on the Pitt County Board of Education were filled in Tuesday's primary. William J. (Jack) Edwards, Jr., Walter Gaskins and James W.A. (Jim) Black were the unofficial winners in yesterday's Board of Education race.

Incumbent Edwards was re-elected to his seat representing the Carolina-Pactolus Township. He defeated Benjamin W. (Bill) James by a margin of 2,499 votes, with Edwards receiving 4,741 votes and James 2,242.

Walter Gaskins defeated E.B. (Ed) Bright in the race for the seat representing the Grifton Township area. Gaskins' votes totalled 3,746 and Bright's 3,326.

James W.A. (Jim) Black was unopposed in his re-election bid for the Winterville Township area seat on the county board. He unofficially received 5,689 votes in the May 6 primary.

In the Winterville Precinct, Edwards received 560 votes and James 216. The vote included Bright 386, Gaskins 399. Black received 908 votes. The Farmville Precinct cast 711 votes for Edwards and 447 for James. Bright received 417 and Gaskins 748, with a total of 736 votes coming in for Black.

Edwards had 286 votes from the Grifton Precinct, in comparison to James' 169. Four hundred ninety-two votes were cast for Bright in Grifton, and 174 for Gaskins. Black received 416 votes.

"I want to congratulate Bob Scott, a great governor of this state, a great Democrat," Hunt said. Scott responded in kind.

"Congratulations to you," he told a beaming Hunt. "You fought a good fight and you won, there's no doubt about that, and you won fair and square."

Although Hunt said he foresees few scars caused by the primary battle, some Scott supporters at his headquarters reacted to the Hunt victory by spreading Hunt posters on the floor and stepping on them.

Former state Sen. Hectory McGeachy of Cumberland County, who served under Scott, called Hunt's actions "little Gestapo-like tactics," and he said a Hunt victory in the primary would be a victory for the elite.

The Rev. Leon White, state director of the Commission on Racial Justice of the United Church of Christ, said Hunt's victory would be "a major defeat for the civil rights movement in North Carolina."

He cited the Wilmington 10 controversy and the use of state competency tests for high school seniors.

But Hunt, with his wife, Carolyn, and their four children standing behind him, savored the victory, called on Democrats to unite and predicted, "I believe we're going to have a lot of Republican support in the campaign."

Hunt made it clear he was ready to take on Lake, a newcomer to the Republican Party.

"Let's rest awhile and enjoy this victory — at least until tomorrow morning," he said.

While Hunt spent most of the evening mingling with his supporters, shaking hands and granting interviews, Scott remained secluded in a room in his hotel until he called his family and staff together shortly before 10 p.m.

His son, W. Kerr Scott II, 22, said later he felt the same as he did when the campaign started — that his father wouldn't make it. The younger Scott said he was glad to see the campaign end.

Up the street at Hunt's banquet room, meanwhile, the party was just starting.

"Lordy, this going to be one great night," one woman declared as the votes rolled in and the bluegrass band cranked out "Fox on the Run."

Bundy, Warren Led The Field

In the four way race for the two seats in the State House of Representatives of the Eighth District comprising Pitt and Greene Counties, which again was strictly a Democratic affair, incumbent Sam Bundy of Farmville led the field with a substantial margin.

Bundy drew a total of 10,026 votes — 7,902 cast in Pitt County, and 2,124 in Greene County.

Ed Warren of Greenville, making his first bid for the House of Representatives, polled second in the race for

Martin Led In Vote On Judges

The six judges of the Third Judicial District are, it appears from unofficial returns, are Burt Aycock, Jim Martin, Horton Rountree, Robert Wheeler, Herbert Phillips, and Jim Regan.

Rountree, Wheeler, Phillips and Regan were unopposed.

Aycock of Greenville beat Lewis Evans, also of Greenville 18,223 to 7,611. Tallies from the four counties in the district were as follows: Pitt — 8058 for Aycock and 3995 for Evans; Carteret — 3789 for Aycock and 1364 for Evans; Pamlico — 1240 for Aycock and 472 for Evans; and Craven — 5136 for Aycock and 1780 for

Jim Martin was the high man in a four-way race with 13,064 votes. His opponents registered as follows: Ipock — 5116; Lassiter — 5678 and Sledge — 2926. County totals were as follows: Martin — 8083 in Pitt, 2240 in Carteret, 927 in Pamlico and 1814 in Craven; Lassiter — 1416 in Pitt, 1236 in Carteret, 342 in Pamlico and 2684 in Craven; Ipock — 1363 in Pitt, 1285 in Carteret, 556 in Pamlico and 1912 in Craven; Sledge — 492 in Pitt, 562 in Carteret, 172 in Pamlico and 1700 in Craven. Since Martin does not have a clear majority, there is the possibility of the runner-up, Lassiter, calling for a runoff.

Congressman Jones Is Easy District Winner

First District Congressman Walter Jones of Farmville, seeking a ninth term in the U. S. House of Representatives, easily defeated Edenton farmer Joseph Hollowell Jr., by a 4 to 1 margin in yesterday's balloting for the Democratic nomination.

In Pitt County, Jones received 10,509 votes, while Hollowell took 2,395 ballots.

District-wide, with 89 percent of the precincts reporting, Jones had 79 percent of the votes.

Jones, who was first elected in February 1966, in a special election to fill the unexpired term of the late Herbert C. Bonner, is a ranking member of the House Agriculture Committee and serves as chairman of the Tobacco Subcommittee. He is also a ranking member of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee.

Jones was among six

Democratic congressmen in North Carolina to win nomination for new terms yesterday.

Lamar Gudger, Stephen Neal and L. H. Fountain had no primary opposition, while Charles O. Whitley, Ike Andrews, L. Richardson Preyer, Charles G. Rose, and W. G. "Bill" Heffner, won handily over their opponents.

Republican incumbents James T. Broyhill and James G. Martin were unopposed yesterday.

Three City School Bd. Incumbents Returned

In the race for three seats on the Greenville City Board of Education, all four candidates made an almost neck to neck race down the line with the three incumbents being returned to the board.

Based on unofficial returns, there was only a gap of 265 votes between the top vote drawing candidate and the one of the quartet who failed to be elected. The figures reveal the following unofficial tabulations — listed in order of first to fourth in number of votes received:

- Sue Zadeits — 3,768
- Jack Wall — 3,616
- Lena Brown — 3,513
- Henry Dunn — 3,493

Dunn, a former school board member for a number of years, ran a mere 22 votes behind Mrs. Brown in the close race.

GOT BONDS, CASHED THEM

I had some war bonds made out to my grandson. When he died I took them back to the bank to get the name changed. It's been months and, though I think Mrs. Mayo at the Wachovia Green Street Office is doing all she can, the Federal Reserve Bank keeps delaying. If I ever get those things back, I know what I'm going to do. I'm going to cash them. W. T.

Carolyn Mayo said she called the Federal Reserve Office in Richmond on a regular basis on your behalf, but got nowhere. We kept checking back with her and she kept checking. Finally she received word that the bonds would be replaced with Series EE ones. It took from June 1978 till April of this year, but you got your bonds you report and have cashed them, as you said you would. Mrs. Mayo said she still can give no explanation as to why it took so long for the Federal Reserve to act.

Engagement Announced

Dear Abby

France Origin Of Hand-Kissing

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I recently met a European-born gentleman (Hungarian) who, upon greeting a woman, always gently kisses her hand. I think this is a lovely gesture. Can you tell me where the custom of kissing a lady's hand originated, and the reason for it?

ANNETTE IN BURLINGAME

DEAR ANNETTE: It originated in France. And although there is nothing in literature explaining the reason for it, I suppose a man has to start somewhere.

DEAR ABBY: I am a grandmother, and as one might expect, I am placed in competition with the other grandmother. I don't believe in buying my grandchildren's love by bringing them presents every time I go to see them. However, the other grandmother does, which is her privilege. We all live in the same city.

The grandchildren have been conditioned (by the other grandma) to expect a gift every time a grandparent visits. I really love them, but I want them to be glad to see me for myself — not for what I bring them.

I become slightly irritated when the little ones invariably come running to greet me with, "What did you bring me?" I refuse to submit to this subtle form of blackmail. Any suggestions?

NO GIFT GRANNY

DEAR GRANNY: Your grandchildren will soon be conditioned to expect no gifts from you. Hang in there and concentrate on cultivating their love in other ways until their values mature — as they will in time.

Do you wish you had more friends? Get Abby's booklet, "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to: Abby, Popularity, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Shower Given Bridal Couple

Miss Robin McLawhorn and Bill Miller, bridal couple-elect, were honored at a floating miscellaneous shower Friday night at the Rose Hill Free Will Baptist fellowship hall given by Mrs. Sharon McLawhorn, Mrs. Ruth Venters, Mrs. Jenny Lou Strickland and Mrs. Alma Buck.

Guests were greeted and introduced to the mother of the bridegroom-elect, Mrs. Ray Miller, and his sister, Betty Lou Blizard, by Mrs. Mildred McLawhorn, mother of the bride-elect.

Gift tables were covered with white cloths accented with yellow bells, a yellow centerpiece umbrella and potted yellow mums. Mrs. Sharon McLawhorn assisted in the opening and recording of gifts which were displayed by Ms. Blizard.

The serving table was covered with a white cloth accented with lace and a centerpiece of spring flowers and candles in green, yellow and white was used. The cake table was covered with a white lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of white peonies, Philippine lavender orchids and lilac iris flanked by white candles. Cake squares were served by Mrs. Ruth Venters and Mrs. Jenny Lou Strickland poured punch. A lily of the valley nosegay and candle were placed on the register table.

Women Attend State Meet

ASHEVILLE—The NCFWC 78th annual convention was held at the Grove Park Inn here last week. Attending the convention from the Greenville Woman's Club as delegates were Mrs. W. E. Roseveare and Mrs. James Harrigan.

Mrs. Frank C. Moffet presided at the opening night banquet and Miss Marilyn Van Derbur gave the keynote address on "Goals and Dreams." Business sessions, award presentations and entertainment were included during the three-day convention.

At the Tuesday special luncheon meeting of past NCFWC district presidents, Mrs. Lindsay Savage of Greenville, was named vice president. The Pisgah View Ranch Cloggers of Candler performed Tuesday evening at a cookout banquet. District presidents and junior directors presented a Hee Haw Happening.

Mrs. John Popp Jr., GFWC director of juniors, spoke at the junior luncheon Wednesday which followed a tour of Biltmore House.

The final business session and installation banquet was held Thursday. Mrs. J. Frank Bryant, GFWC first vice president, was installing officer. Mrs. Ernest Holt of Greenville was installed as second vice-president, director of districts, assisting the district presidents in promoting Federation objectives.

A long-stemmed red rose was presented to each installed officer by her club representative. Mrs. John V. Sutton, new NCFWC president, gave the installation address.

Receives Woman Of Year Award Twice

ECU News Bureau
The East Carolina University Women's Residence Council presented awards at a banquet recently recognizing service by women on campus. The awards were presented at the last meeting of the Women's Residence Council.

Sgt. Lynne Singleton of the ECU Police Force was voted "Woman of the Year" for the second consecutive year for her outstanding work as a crime prevention officer. Miss Singleton developed and presents an assault and theft prevention program to various student groups on campus in addition to her regular police duties.

The WRC also presented

Associate Dean and Director, Residence Life Programs, Carolyn Fulghum, a silver plate in appreciation of her founding and supporting the Womens' Residence Council. Nancy Smith, assistant dean of residence life, received a plaque expressing appreciation for her service as an advisor for the past 11 years.

Carolyn Fulghum presented awards to the following outstanding residents in the nine women's dorms: Nancy Couch (Clement), Lottie Scott (Cotten), Janell Parker (Fleming), Bona Daniels (Garrett), Virginia Carlton (Jarvis), Kenneth Johnson (Greene), Beth Rennicks (Fletcher), Lili Johnson (Tyler) and Patrice Smith (White).

Linda Gaddis, career placement counselor, talked on "Positive Attitudes" at the banquet.

Lid, Guage Clinic Set

A pressure canner lid and guage clinic is being planned by the Pitt County Agricultural Home Economics Extension Agents.

The clinic will be held Thursday, May 15, from 1-3 p.m. at the Agricultural Extension Office here.

In order to have a safe canned product, one needs the right combination of time and temperature. Low acid foods, vegetables and meats require a temperature of at least 240 degrees. This can only be obtained under pressure. Ten pounds of pressure is 240 degrees said Addie R. Gore, home economics extension agent. For further information concerning the clinic, call 758-1196.

Prof Named To Council

URBANA, Ill. — An assistant professor of English at East Carolina University has been appointed to the National Council of Teachers of English Standing Committee on Teacher Preparation and Certification. Collett B. Dilworth, Jr. will serve a three-year term on the committee.

This committee is responsible for monitoring developments in teacher preparation and certification and disseminating to the profession and the public current ideas about the scope of English and the training of English teachers. It also promotes exchange of information on curricula and teacher training techniques with others concerned with teacher preparation as well as helping local NCTE affiliates and other local professional groups in their efforts to uphold appropriate standards for teacher certification. Finally, the committee makes recommendations to the Executive Committee of NCTE and the NCTE Conference on English Education.

Interrupted By 1855 Blizzard

WATERBURY, Conn. (AP) — If it hadn't been for a heavy snowstorm in 1855 the longest record of uninterrupted dividends by an industrial company listed on the New York Stock Exchange — 123 years — would be even longer.

The payment record was noted in the 1979 annual report of Scovill Inc. The company began declaring dividends in 1850 when it became a joint stock company. But in 1855 the big snow prevented the directors from meeting to approve the then annual dividend action.

Clay Kirkman
Belk Tyler Horticulturalist

Clay Kirkman Says...

Now is the time to plant roses. They will bloom all summer long and with the proper care and conditions, anyone can have beautiful roses to compliment their gardens.

Roses need a location that will receive at least half a day's full sun. Morning sun is best, since it will evaporate the dew, which often spreads blackspot and powdery mildew. A well drained location is also needed.

In planting container roses, dig the planting hole twice as wide and deep as the size of the container. The holes should be spaced two to three feet apart. Add plenty of peat moss or other organic matter to the backfill and a handful of bone meal which promotes root growth. The bud union of the planted bush should be slightly above soil level. Tamp the soil well so that no air pockets will remain. Water thoroughly.

Cow manure is an excellent fertilizer and should be worked into the soil two to three inches deep in the spring. Use a complete fertilizer such as 8-8-8 at a rate of two to three pounds per 100 square feet. After the plants have started to grow, apply the fertilizer at a rate of one to two pounds per 100 square feet. Do this every four weeks during the growing season. Be sure to mulch well with pine bark or pine straw.

Roses make lovely, thoughtful gifts and is the perfect plant for Mother's Day or birthdays. You can find many beautiful varieties at the Belk Tyler Garden Shop.

Signs Would Be Helpful

Anyone who has ever looked for a house number in a municipality and was unable to find it knows how frustrating the experience can be.

It is doubly frustrating for a fire department or rescue squad which knows that life or property might be at stake and the delay could be disastrous.

In rural areas such hunts can be common place since often all one has to go on is general directions to a location.

Maybe something is going to be done to alleviate that situation in Pitt County. The county commissioners have agreed to a Governor's Highway Safety Program grant for installation of road name and number signs at secondary highway intersections.

It would be a pilot program with the state grant paying 70 percent of the cost and the county 30 percent. The signs would be similar to city street designators. Commissioners called for the county manager to develop cost figures on the project for further consideration.

It sounds like an excellent program to us. Frequently it is difficult to find a road in rural areas of the county. The road signs would provide ready information for those needing directions and could be particularly helpful in an emergency.

Lessons To Be Learned

Bodies of eight Americans killed in Iran have finally been turned over to a Greek Catholic Archbishop for return to their loved ones in the United States.

The return was not made, however, before a grizzly exhibition in Iran, which apparently had the full support of the Khomeini government. The event ranks with some Hitlerian atrocities of another era — a time we had hoped the world would never see again.

We are rapidly finding out which nations are truly concerned with humanity and human rights, and those who are not. We hope the lessons are not lost on mankind.

MORRIS

Concerned By Anderson

By EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON — President Carter's campaign strategists are beginning to think about the general election and they are worried, afraid that John Anderson will pull enough potential Carter votes to make the next president a Republican.

There are good reasons for that concern. But the GOP candidate — Ronald Reagan or whoever — should be keeping a careful watch on the Illinois congressman's independent candidacy as well.

Anderson's bid to become the first independent candidate ever elected to the White House adds a wild card to the American political deck. This nation has little experience with three-way races for the presidency. Thus, much of the discussion of the impact of an Anderson bid is speculation.

Recent poll results do, however, shed some light on the potential impact.

One must add, quickly, that neither Reagan nor Carter has yet wrapped up their parties' nominations. But both are well on the way to doing so.

Several national polls have shown Anderson getting about one in five votes in a mythical matchup with Reagan and Carter. And the same polls show Anderson's support coming equally from the other men's supporters.

Carter backers will find little to be glad about in the results of an Associated Press-NBC News poll taken in late April.

Almost a third of those questioned nationally said they might vote for Anderson in November. Liberals were one fertile group for Anderson to mine for support — 38 percent said they might vote for him. And 36 percent of the moderates said they might.

Such a pattern of support — if it materialized in November — would not be good for Carter. Liberals are not expected to vote in any significant numbers for Reagan — long the bearer of the conservative banner in the GOP. And Carter will have to do well among the moderates to have a chance of winning in November.

But there was bad news for Reagan in the poll as well.

The former California governor would normally be expected to be the beneficiary of disenchantment with Carter's work as president. Those people who are most unhappy with Carter's work would be the least likely to vote to return him for four more years.

But those voters will have another option in November beside voting for Reagan. They can vote for Anderson.

The AP-NBC News poll still found an indication that this theory could hold up in November — the less they think of Carter's work, the more likely they say they might be to vote for Anderson.

Nearly two in five of the people — 38 percent — who say Carter is doing a poor job said they might vote for Anderson. Thirty-six percent of those who rated Carter's work only fair said they might vote the independent line. And only 22 percent of those who marked Carter's efforts good or excellent said they might back Anderson.

THIS AFTERNOON Skill Centers Plan

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — The cornerstone of current planning to revitalize and redirect job training in North Carolina would be several advanced skill centers where community college students could learn the most advanced and highly technical skills using the most up to date equipment available.

At this time, most of the 58 community colleges and technical institutes provide "pre-employment" courses lasting two years or less in which students receive relatively general training within broad career fields. Upon completion, entry level jobs can be handled without further training, but advancement must depend upon increasing the ability level.

Labor Commissioner John Brooks in urging that the state take a long look at this approach suggested that specific campuses be chosen in the community college system at which highly specialized training lasting more than two years be offered.

In the position paper on skills training which Gov. Jim Hunt has put forth, that notion has been embraced and enlarged upon.

Sophisticated

"These centers should contain the most advanced instruction and equipment available, emphasizing such shortage areas as advanced machine trade, electronic technology specialties and advanced maintenance mechanic technologies," Hunt noted. "These programs will provide an expanding base of workers in national skill shortage areas and this will be a primary attraction to new industry."

Present community college courses are funded by the state at the same level regardless of complexity on a per-student basis. The advanced skills activities would require funding at a much higher level to provide the equipment and qualified instructors, and the General Assembly would have to set up a special funding system to implement this approach.

Other community college programs would continue to operate as they do now, as would the high school vocational education programs.

Principal improvements in the vocational education approach in high school would be better counseling so students could determine what kind of work they could best do, and what kinds of jobs it would be best to prepare for.

"The high schools will simply never be in a position to offer concentrated training in sophisticated skills. Their role, instead, should be to instruct students in basic skills areas such as safety and the use of tools," Hunt feels.

But serious work must be done to develop closer ties with the community colleges so students can move smoothly into more advanced training programs," the governor said.

Stigma

Additional attention must go to removing the "trade school" stigma which has plagued some students who do not wish to pursue strong academic courses and college, but would rather work with their hands. Actually, wages now being paid craftsmen compared to some college graduate occupations are moving in that direction.

The schools should offer instruction in free enterprise and in business, and students should be impressed with the need for preparing to work productively. Courses in math, chemistry and physics should be pushed harder, the governor suggests.

In his wrapup of skills training approaches, Hunt calls for involvement of several state agencies and the business community in keeping tabs on future job needs and seeing to it that skills training is available; coordinating the task of set-

WASHINGTON — It isn't just the commercial banks and credit unions that are being tough about loans. The Sperm Banks are also starting to be much more discriminating about their borrowers.

Johnson Masters, president of the First National Sperm Bank of Washington, told me, "The crunch is on. Any woman could come in here six months ago and get a test tube. But now we're in a spot where we can only service our most preferred customers."

"What happened?" I wanted to know.

"People are starting to withdraw their deposits and put them in Government Research grants, which pay a much higher interest. We've tried everything to keep our customers happy, but it hasn't worked. We've offered them free subscriptions to Playboy magazine, videocassettes of X-rated movies, and all-expense weekends at out-of-the-way motels. But it hasn't stopped the flood of withdrawals.

"One of the biggest setbacks we had this week was when a Nobel Prize-winner came in and cleaned out his account. We asked him what he was going to do with all the test tubes, and he said he was going to trade them for soybean futures."

"If other Nobel Prize-winners do the same thing your bank could be in a lot of trouble," I said.

"We are already. As you know, our loans are made to women who are shopping around for the best fathers that money can buy. But at present interest rates, most of them can't afford a Fuller Brush man. It's pitiful for one of our loan officers to turn down a perfectly healthy woman and tell her she isn't eligible for a loan."

"But somebody must be still getting them, or you wouldn't be in business."

"In order to qualify, a woman must have at least a 145 IQ, a Ph.D from Harvard and type 120 words a minute."

"Your terms are tough," I said.

"It isn't us," Masters said. "Sperm banks all over the country are facing the same problem. The Federal Test Tube Bank Board keeps raising the rates on what it costs us to borrow from them. We have no choice but to pass it on to the customer."

To the editor:

In a paid advertisement in the May 4 edition of "The Daily Reflector," several purported results of ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment were listed. Any person who is only slightly familiar with the histories of the implementation of the several amendments to the U. S. Constitution will recognize that there is no basis in fact for these claims.

The Equal Rights Amendment will protect both men and women from discrimination on the basis of sex by both federal and state governments. That is what it says it will do and that is all it will do.

Studies conducted in states with equal rights amendments show that none of the dire predictions concerning the adoption of equality of rights regardless of sex have materialized. On the contrary, these studies show that both sexes have benefitted from the protection from discrimination on the basis of sex. Such protection at all levels of government is long overdue.

The voters of Pitt County will do well to evaluate the candidates on their records as persons of integrity and on their concerns for all segments of the population, as well as on their positions on the many issues which they will deal with if they are elected. Certainly no thoughtful, informed voter will accept as true the list of flagrant claims published in your paper yesterday.

Strength For Today

THE POWER

A public utility company recently erected a highway billboard sign carrying but three words: Power, Heat, and Light.

It is difficult to overestimate the importance of these conditions in our lives. If the current goes off, our oil burner goes dead, our stove is useless, our electrical fixtures emit no light. Cold and darkness is our portion.

"Power, heat, and light" has a larger dimension than found in our homes. The same elements which the utility company provides for us, God supplies to the universe in immeasurable abundance, both physically and spiritually.

God's power created us. The heat He supplies from the sun preserves life on this earth. The spiritual warmth of His love quickens our highest relationships. And while existence as we know it would be impossible without the warmth of the sun, of even greater importance is the spiritual light — the knowledge of God through Jesus Christ — Elisha Douglass.

Minh In Business

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
SAN LEANDRO, Calif. (AP) — Five years to the day after he fled the fall of Saigon, I found Minh the Tailor, who in his American experience had become Minh the Grocer, ready to embark on still another career.

Minh Van Nguyen is about to open a children's clothing store in Mountain View, Calif., between Palo Alto and San Jose, and maybe become a bespoke tailor again.

"Too long hours in the grocery business, too much crime," explained the honorable Minh, the name by which we always knew him. He was standing behind the counter of Store No. 4405 of the Convenient Food Mart Chain in San Leandro. "Work 11 hours a day, seven days a week. Almost every day someone grab a bottle of beer and run."

Minh departed Saigon on the last plane taking orphans out at the urging of Edward Daly, President of World Airways, who used to order five suits at a time.

Minh had an hour to make up his mind, close the shop, collect his wife and eight children and five other relatives.

This was Minh's second exodus. In 1955, he and his young bride had left their native Hanoi, where he worked as a shirt maker in his brother's shop to begin a new life in Saigon.

Minh thinks Northern California's climate is better than either Saigon's or Hanoi's. In fact, he likes almost everything about America except crime and doctor bills.

"In 20 years in Saigon, no crime. Here every day problem," said Minh with a shake of his head. "One evening when my wife and Kim were alone in the store, a man points a gun at them and empties the cash register into a paper bag."

In Saigon, Minh the tailor was so successful the children did not have to help out in the shop and even had private tutors to advance them in their lessons.

After deciding against a hot dog and hamburger stand, he went into the franchise grocery business in America to make use of the plentiful family labor supply.

Minh the Grocer joined the local Chamber of Commerce and proved to be as adept as Minh the Tailor.

With Oriental serenity and unflinching good humor, he accepts the abrupt changes in life that history has forced

To the editor:

I think the purpose of the May 1 handgun story by Gay Pauley, UPI, is for stricter federal handgun control, to get guns out of the hands of criminals and prevent crimes of passion. If federal laws will do this, I am for them. Let's also get knives, bicycle chains, ice picks, lead pipes, etc. She states John B. Anderson argues that owners of concealable weapons should have to get a license just as automobile drivers do. Will it right to use, registration and purchase be no more restrictive than an automobile?

Her story states 8,034 fatalities by handguns in 1979. (Even one unnecessary fatality is regrettable.) and a U. S. Treasury Department spokesman said 1979 production of handguns alone was 2.126 million. Then the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms says there are 50 million handguns in the U. S. and estimates two million more are added to the market each year. 250,000 people in the U. S. will be victimized with handguns in the next 12 months. I wonder how many automobiles Ted Kennedy owns. Are they registered?

A New York City Police Commissioner, she quotes as saying, "A 10-year-old kid can get a gun on the streets of our city." New York City has one of the strictest gun laws in the nation. In New York City it seems that strict laws do lower prices and make handguns more available.

Millions of people in the U. S. have a desire to own weapons. I believe that if people are restricted so they cannot legally own handguns, the market will be supplied by organized crime. Where there is a buck to be made, somebody will. Instead of revolvers and semi-automatics, it will be UZI machine pistols and full automatics. Dwell on this. Usually when a person is shot, only one person has a gun.

Not Contained, But Collapsed

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — "Never before," said Albert Sindlinger, the consumer economist whose company has been questioning Americans for more than 25 years, "have we seen such a radical switch in the way people live."

"The President thinks he has merely contained inflation," said the head of Sindlinger & Co., which conducts 1,300 interviews a week, most of them on money matters. "But he has collapsed the economy."

Sindlinger & Co.'s analysis is based largely on interviews, but with some theorizing added. Combined, the interviews and the assumptions made from them constitute a grim report on economic leadership.

These conclusions follow telephone interviews by the Media., Pa. company, with each interview consisting of between 40 and 50 questions and lasting between 15 and 20 minutes.

—Retail buying has dropped precipitously, as masses of people realize suddenly that without the full use of their credit cards they have in effect no money to spend. "Buying plans have been frozen."

—Millions of Americans who owe federal taxes sent in their returns last month without enclosing checks. Some did so after being turned away by banks when they sought to borrow funds with which to pay.

Albert Sindlinger, founder of the company and a pioneer in consumer polling, zeroed in more intensely on the buying and tax issues after the Federal Reserve announced recent figures for the money supply.

Sindlinger, who had been accurately anticipating the supply by asking consumers about their finances and then projecting the figures for the population as a whole, found his forecasts inexplicably off the mark.

For the three weeks to mid-April, for example, he had projected a gain in the money supply — money in circulation and in checking accounts — of about $29 billion. The Fed, however, reported a figure close to $20 billion. Somehow, somewhere, $9 billion was unaccounted for.

Seeking the reason, and assuming that the Fed's figures would not be revised (they still might be), Sindlinger's staff asked even more specific questions in interviews.

After studying them, Sindlinger estimates that probably one-third of taxpayers, illiquid and perhaps unable to get loans, filed without paying. That factor, he estimates accounts for $2 billion or more.

He found that another group, mainly those in relatively high brackets, seems to have paid with checks drawn on money market mutual funds, a recent phenomenon, with transactions never being counted as part of the money supply. His estimate: Another $2 billion or so.

The final $5 billion is probably the most significant, according to Sindlinger, because it seems to represent a collapse of retail sales.

"In 25 years I have never seen so many buying plans evaporate so quickly," he said. "It was the first time in history that masses of people suddenly realized that without credit cards they had no money."

"But what you're saying is that only the best and the brightest can afford to have a Nobel Prize-winning baby."

"That seems to be the way the Fed wants it. Their intention is to slow down the birth rate in the country by making it harder for would-be mothers to get credit."

"It really is a supply and demand situation. There was a time when someone could walk in off the street and get any kind of baby she wanted at six percent. But those days are gone forever. Men are not going to open passbook accounts with us, when New York Hospital will give 17 percent on a 90-day certificate of deposit."

"What's the answer?" I asked.

"We have to think of new ways of attracting Nobel Prize-winning depositors. Tomorrow we're running a full-page ad announcing that if they open an account with us, we will give them either a brand-new calculator, a new microscope, or a white rat of their choice."

The contest is being held in conjunction with the Arts and Crafts Country Festival on the Town Commons here Saturday from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Entries of any size, black and white or color, no more than three per person (amateurs only) should be turned in to one of the following: Dr. Bert Warren, office at 103 E. Church Street, Farmville; J. I. Morgan III, office at 600 W. Pine Street, Farmville; Bobby Carraway, Carraway's Restaurant, W. Marlboro Road, Farmville; or Bob Monk, 204 Hillcrest Drive, Farmville.

Entries will be judged by age and category. Winning entries will be displayed at the Farmville Public Library for one week after the contest.

ECU News Bureau
Four undergraduate students and one graduate student in the East Carolina University Department of Biology were recognized at the department's recent annual honors luncheon.

Honorees were undergraduates Milbrey Landers Cate of Houston, Texas, Dawn Colwell of Millers Creek, Leslie Webb of Burlington, Ray Jones of Raeford, and graduate student Paul Bolin Jr. of Beaufort.

All have superior academic grade point averages and have demonstrated outstanding competence in scientific research.

Cate and Colwell were given the Helms Award, established by Professor Emeritus R. Marshall Helms in honor of his late wife, Dr. Mary Caughey Helms.

The other three students were recognized by Dr. Elmer Meyer, Vice Chancellor for Student Life at ECU.

Milbrey Cate, previously honored by Phi Sigma Pi honor fraternity as ECU's Most Outstanding Female Senior, has conducted research on the uptake of labeled bacteria by the river clam "Rangia cuneata" as a National Science Foundation research participant. Her report of this project received the Sigma Xi award for best undergraduate paper at ECU last year and was presented at the 1979 meeting of the N.C. Academy of Science.

She is vice president of the ECU Alpha Epsilon Delta honor society and a member of Phi Eta Sigma, Phi Kappa Phi and Chi Beta Phi societies, the Collegiate Academy of Science and the Biology Club. Next year she will begin medical studies at the UNC-Chapel Hill School of Medicine.

Dawn Colwell, who has been researching the identification of staphylococci from human cases of acute otitis media (ear infections), presented the results of her study at the Microbiology and Medical Sciences section of the N.C. Collegiate Academy of Science. Her paper was judged the best in the section.

During the past year she has served as president of the Collegiate Academy and vice president of the ECU League of Scholars. Her memberships include Phi Kappa Phi, Phi Eta Sigma and the Biology Club. She has accepted a fellowship to begin studies toward the PhD degree at the University of Alabama.

Leslie Webb, recipient of the biology department's "Outstanding Senior" award, has researched organ culture of fetal mice hearts, supported by a grant from the N.C. Academy of Science.

A member of the N.C. Collegiate Academy of Science, he presented research results at the Academy's recent spring meeting. He is a member of the Biology Club and Phi Kappa Phi honor society.

Ray Jones, the department's Phi Kappa Phi award nominee, has conducted research with the waterweed "Myriophyllum spicatum." He is a member of Chi Beta Phi, Phi Eta Sigma, Gamma Beta Phi and Alpha Epsilon Delta honor societies and has worked as a biology tutor in the ECU Center for Student Opportunities.

Paul Bolin Jr., recipient of the department's annual graduate scholarship, is an alumnus of ECU and a candidate for the Master of Science degree. His thesis research involves brain biochemistry.

Bolin is a member of Alpha Epsilon Delta and the American Cancer Society. He will attend the UNC-Chapel Hill School of Medicine next year.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Showers are forecast through early Thursday for the Rocky Mountain states, ranging from Montana south to Colorado. Showers are also anticipated for the Gulf Coast region and for northern Maine, according to the National Weather Service. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Considerable sunshine and warm today, highs today in the 80s. Cooler and not as fair on Thursday.
High pressure over the northeastern Gulf of Mexico this morning will supply us with warm west and southwesterly breezes today. Also this morning, a very weak cold front has moved into extreme western North Carolina and should become nearly stationary.
This front will dissipate, but its presence will still help to generate clouds during the day, thus causing a forecast of partly cloudy skies across the tar heel state today. The possibility that these clouds could build into an isolate thundershower also exists during the late afternoon.

Farther to the west, a stronger cold front is heading toward us from the northern Midwest and should move into our state late tonight. This approaching front will provide a greater threat of thundershowers in the mountains this evening.

Some rain is likely in the mountains as the front passes tonight. The chances of rain also will be heightened east of the mountains as the front moves through on Thursday.

Green Wins Against Stewart

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green won a narrow victory over House Speaker Carl Stewart Tuesday night in a hotly contested race for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor that remained undecided until early morning.

During the evening as the votes trickled in, the razor-thin lead swung from one candidate to the other. Both candidates remained at their campaign headquarters in Raleigh late into the night as the vote count progressed.

"I think we've won, but I'm not going to say anything until all the votes are in," Green said early today. He scheduled a noon news conference today.

With 2,162 of 2,339 precincts reported, the unofficial count showed Green with 341,348 votes, or 50.81 percent, while Stewart had 317,927 votes, or 47.32 percent.

Candidate Clyde Pulley had 11,097 votes, less than 2 percent.

At Stewart headquarters, Stewart told about 150 cheering supporters that it was the most exciting night of his life.

"For the first time in this election, the people of North Carolina know there's a race going on for the lieutenant governor," he said.

Stewart told the crowd he did not think there would be a runoff, saying, "My guess is that we'll get 50 percent plus one of the vote."

"I swear to you we're going to have a victory," he said.

Meanwhile, more than 100 Green supporters — some of them wearing green t-shirts bearing the message, "Keep North Carolina Green" — gathered at Green headquarters to cheer their candidate and watch election returns.

Green said he was confident of a victory, claiming, "We'll win the west. We'll win the Piedmont. We'll win the East." He said had done a good job as lieutenant governor and "the people of the state aren't about to gamble on anyone else."

Former University of North Carolina Athletic Director William Cobey was unopposed in his bid for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor. He resigned from UNC in January to seek the post — his first run for public office.

Green, 59, is a Bladen County tobacco warehouseman whom Republicans tried to recruit as a candidate for governor because of his conservative stance. He is a 20-year veteran of the General Assembly who was once cited by Newsweek magazine as a lingering example of the "Old South" politician.

In his campaign, Green took advantage of a constitutional amendment that allows governors and lieutenant governors to succeed themselves — an amendment that was proposed in 1977 by Gov. Jim Hunt and opposed by Green.

His re-election advertising campaign pictured him as a tight-fisted administrator when it comes to financial matters and credited him with balancing the state's budget — a matter Stewart disputed.

Stewart, 43, of Gastonia, is the first speaker of the North Carolina State House in 100 years to serve a second term in that job.

A lawyer has overcome huge financial reversals, Stewart reminded voters of his humble beginnings in a family of Gastonia mill workers.

During his campaign for lieutenant governor, Stewart relied heavily on television to depict himself as a youthful, progressive alternative who can get along with Hunt — something he said Green can't do.

Long Ailment Still Mystery

MOCKSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Helen Lehman says she has tried just about anything to find the cause of her ailment. So far, she has found neither a cure nor a name.

She sits on the side of her bed in the home of her parents near Mocksville. Her back is bent almost double, and her head is supported by a canvas sling.

Mrs. Lehman, who has been like this off and on for the last 12 years, said she has seen 45 doctors, visited faith healers and tried acupuncture.

"One of the doctors said I was so tense that my muscles wouldn't relax, not even when I was asleep," said Mrs. Lehman, who is 46. "Some doctors said something was growing on the muscles. They described it like moss on a twig."

She believes that, possibly, the "growth" prevents her muscles from receiving nerve messages, blocking control of her back or head. She has to be fed and lifted into bed for sleep, which is infrequent because of the pain.

As she is unable to move, other muscles are deteriorating and she suffers from poor circulation.

Mrs. Lehman lives with her parents, Ray and Beulah McDaniel, in a rented farmhouse. Her parents, aged 70 and 71, take care of her 24 hours a day. They take turns staying up with her at night.

Mrs. Lehman's troubles began while she was carrying her daughter, Lisa. She said her arms and back began to ache.

"It got a little better when she was born," Mrs. Lehman recalled.

But when her marriage ran into trouble, the ailment returned. She and her husband separated, were divorced and later remarried.

At about that time, she entered Broughton Hospital in Morganton for six weeks of psychotherapy that included shock treatment, but she said it didn't help.

The Lehmans later moved to Baltimore. Their marriage again ran into problems, and her back got worse. She tried several hospitals, unsuccessfully, before being flown home in a special plane in 1973. She's been there since.

Her doctor, James Robertson of Harmony, says he thinks "she has the ability to get well, but I don't think she's going to get well."

Stevens Will Negotiate

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — A spokesman for J.P. Stevens and Co. said Tuesday negotiations will begin Monday with the Almalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union for a contract covering employees of Stevens' non-woven products plant at High Point.

Workers at the High Point plant voted 68-47 last Oct. 4 to affiliate with the union.

Paul Barrett, Stevens' public relations director in Greenville, S.C., said the initial phase of negotiations would be limited to planning. He said each side would present contract proposals later.

Burt Beck, union public relations director in New York City, said he could not confirm or deny that the session had been scheduled. "I would hope the company will negotiate in good faith," Beck said.

The High Point union victory was only the second in 18 representation elections at Stevens plants in 17 years.

Nails Stop Motorists

SOUTHPORT, N.C. (AP) — Motorists in Brunswick County found themselves stranded early Tuesday after an unknown culprit scattered thousands of nails along three main highways.

The nails, with 1-inch-square heads that are commonly used in roofing, were found on 40 miles of N.C. 211, N.C. 133 and N.C. 87.

The action, according to a spokesman for the Brunswick County Sheriff's Department, is believed to be "labor oriented."

There are three suspects, the sheriff's department said.

"We think this is from dissatisfied (union) workers," said Lt. John Carr Davis.

Local employees of both the Daniel Construction Co. and Yeargin Construction Co. have been striking off and on during the past several months.

The sheriff's department was notified about the calls about 2:30 a.m. By noon, the department had received 26 more calls from persons reporting as many as four flat tires.

Road blocks were set up to detour travelers around the nails and state transportation workers worked until 10 a.m. to clear the area.

Local industries, including Carolina Power & Light Co.'s Brunswick nuclear plant and the U.S. Army terminal at Sunny Point, reported many employees arrived late or were absent because of flat tires.

Area service stations reported a booming business and one attendant reported finding as many as 29 nails in one tire.

Ferry attendants also reported increased business as many Wilmington residents took the ferry from Fort Fisher to Southport instead of driving their cars.

Being An Incumbent Appears The Key To Success

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
Being an incumbent seemed to be the key to success in yesterday's primary election for Democrats seeking their party's nomination in state-wide races such as President, Governor and Lieutenant Governor.

Pitt County voters, just as voters across the state, put Pres. Jimmy Carter well above the other presidential hopefuls on the ballot.

Carter, who won all 100 counties in North Carolina, polled 9,196 votes in Pitt. Sen. Edward Kennedy ran second in Pitt with 1,678 ballots, followed by Edmund G. Brown Jr., who took 457 votes.

Some 1,627 Democrats in the county voted "no preference" in the presidential primary.

Like Carter, Gov. Jim Hunt — seeking to become the first North Carolina governor in this century to succeed himself — took every county in the state.

In Pitt, Hunt polled 9,342 votes. Former Gov. Bob Scott, his chief opponent, took 3,324 votes, while Harry J. Welsh received 209 votes.

State-wide, Hunt took 69 percent of the votes, and will face Republican I. Beverly Lake in the November general election.

Speaking in Greenville, Monday, Hunt suggested it will be easy for the party to "put things back together in the Fall," for a Democratic win in November.

Following that same line in his victory speech last night, Hunt called Scott, "a great governor," and said his November campaign would be based on "progress, on fairness, on human equality, and on full and equal opportunity to all people of our state."

Incumbent Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green, who narrowly beat House Speaker Carl Stewart, state-wide, received 6,538 votes in Pitt. Stewart, who during his campaign depicted himself as a youthful alternative who can get along with Hunt — something he said Green can't do — received 5,439 Pitt votes. Clyde Pulley, the third candidate in the race, took only 166 votes.

Eighty-year-old Thad Eure, who calls himself, "the oldest rat in the Democratic barn," won handily over hopeful George W. Breece, who tried for the second time to unseat the Dean of the Secretaries of State in the nation.

Locally, Eure polled 7,257 votes to Breece's 3,508. In the race for the nomination for State Auditor, Pitt voters gave Edward Renfrow 4,438 votes, while W. S. "Bill" Chestnut polled 3,121 ballots. Hopeful J. E. B. Davis took 1,850 votes.

State-wide, Renfrow, presently a state senator, held about 42 percent of the votes, while Chestnut, financial director at Pembroke State University received some 30 percent of the ballots. A runoff is possible in the race.

Incumbent State Auditor Henry L. Bridges, 72, chose not to seek re-election to the post he has held for a number of years.

Insurance Commissioner John Ingram, historically a leading vote-getter state-wide, won the Democratic nomination over three former aids who had hoped to unseat him.

In Pitt, Ingram received 6,134 votes, while James Long polled 2,439 ballots. Kenneth Brown, who charged that he was fired by Ingram after he filed as a candidate for the post, received 1,593 votes in Pitt, while Roy Rabon took 937 votes.

Craig Phillips, Superintendent of Public Instruction, defeated Trosper N. Combs by more than 4 to 1, both in Pitt County and state-wide.

Phillips, locally, took 8,445 ballots, while Combs received 2,027 votes.

In the final state-wide race, J. Phil Carlton, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, won 7,647 votes in Pitt, while his opponent Ottway Burton received 2,180 votes.

Pitt Republican Vote Followed State Pattern

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
Primary choices made Tuesday by Pitt County Republicans for state and national offices reflected the voting trends established throughout North Carolina, according to unofficial returns tabulated by "The Daily Reflector."

GOP gubernatorial candidate Beverly Lake, who easily turned back the bid of C. J. (Charlie) Carstens state-wide, ran strong in Pitt County, winning by a 1,289 to 246 margin.

Lake won every precinct in

Mechanics Exams At PCC

Forty-five automobile mechanics from eastern North Carolina are currently completing certification examinations at Pitt Community College. These tests are administered by the National Institute for Automobile Service Excellence, (NIASE), Washington, D.C. in cooperation with PCC officials.

According to NIASE, it is often hard for vehicle owners and vehicle employers to tell which mechanics are competent to diagnose and repair vehicle problems. This NIASE certification program offers a practical way to provide qualified mechanics with improved status. NIASE feels participation in this program will help professionalize the occupations of mechanics and improve their career opportunities.

The NIASE mechanic must be recertified every five years since vehicle technology, diagnostic techniques and repair practices change over the years.

publican nominee will face Gov. Jim Hunt in the general election balloting in November for the state's highest office.

In the attorney general's race, Keith S. Snyder narrowly edged Harold A. Covington in Pitt County and held that edge statewide for a 59 percent to 41 percent victory over his opponent.

Unofficially, Snyder, a former District Court judge, received 740 votes in Pitt balloting, while Covington, a Nazi leader, polled 652 votes. Statewide, Snyder outpolled Covington 59,897 to 42,377.

Former Calif. governor Ronald Reagan carried Pitt County by the same wide margin that he achieved throughout the state. According to the primary returns, Reagan received 1,327 votes in Pitt County, while his nearest challenger, George Bush, received 354. Actually, the "no preference" box on the GOP ballot received more votes than four of the remaining candidates, with only John B. Anderson having over 100 votes among the rest of the field.

Vote totals, with Anderson receiving 101, included: Howard Baker, 35; John Connally, 13; Robert Dole, seven; and Philip Crane, five. "No preference" was selected 48 times.

Some 4,729 Republicans were registered in Pitt County for Tuesday's primary.

Wrecks Reported

An estimated $7,025 property damage resulted from three traffic collisions investigated yesterday by Greenville Police.

Heaviest damage resulted from a collision at the intersection of U.S. 264 and N.C. 11 about 9:15 p.m. involving cars driven by Alexander Moore Jr. of Ft. Bragg and Claude Albert Burrell of Route 2, Clyde.

Police, who charged Moore with driving under the influence, estimated damage from the collision at $1,925 to the Moore car and $1,700 to the Burrell vehicle.

A 12:15 p.m. mishap on Greenville Boulevard, 188 feet West of the Elm Street intersection, involved two trucks, both owned by East Coast Transport Co. of Goldsboro.

Officers, who identified the drivers as Marvin Sauls of Goldsboro and Roy Randolph Jones of Route 4, Goldsboro, set damage at $1,100 to one of the vehicles and $800 to the other.

Cars driven by George Anna Chambers of 204 Ash St. and Adella Snyder Taylor of 300 North Oak St. collided about 11:25 a.m. at the intersection of Fourth Street and Rotary Avenue, causing $500 damage to the Chambers car and $1,000 damage to the Taylor auto.

Earns Runoff

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State Sen. Ed Renfrow of Smithfield assured himself of a place in a Democratic runoff for the state auditor's nomination, apparently against former Maxton Mayor William S. Chestnut.

Renfrow led the three-man race with more than 43 percent in Tuesday's primary, and Chestnut was the apparent second-place finisher based on returns from nearly 98 percent of the state's precincts.

With 2,288 of 2,339 precincts counted, Renfrow had 245,540 votes for 43.15 percent. Chestnut had 169,141 votes for 29.72 percent, and J.E.B. Davis had 154,304 votes for 27.11 percent.

Renfrow, a state senator from Johnston County, led most of the night as returns were counted but was unable to gather the more than 50 percent he needed to win the nomination outright.

The small difference in votes between Chestnut and Davis made it difficult to determine just who would face Renfrow in the runoff until the nearly complete results were in today.

Carter, Reagan Win Easily In State Tests

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
President Carter and Ronald Reagan are three-quarters of the way to rival nominations for the White House, and while their challengers insist they still can find openings, the time and the numbers are running out fast.

Democrat Carter and Republican Reagan made big leads bigger with triple landslide victories in Tuesday's Indiana, Tennessee and North Carolina presidential primary elections.

Sen. Edward Kennedy and George Bush both said they have better elections days ahead. But unless those days come soon, they won't matter.

Kennedy and Bush won in the District of Columbia primaries. Kennedy easily outpolled Carter. Reagan wasn't even entered in the Republican election.

All in all, Carter gained 161 delegates Tuesday, running his total to 1,306 of the 1,666 it will take to win renomination. Kennedy picked up 62, for a total of 721.

Thus, Carter needs 360 of the 1,264 delegates still to be chosen in order to fashion a majority.

Kennedy said he has no thought of dropping his challenge to Carter.

"I never thought it was going to be easy," he said. "We realize we are the underdogs. But that's going to make us work a little harder, and that's what we intend to do."

In Tuesday's Republican competition, Reagan won 108 delegates, Bush 32. That gives the former California governor 744 votes for nomination, while Bush has 170. It will take 998 to win.

Reagan must win 254 more delegates from 930 still to be contested.

"I'll still keep on campaigning," Reagan said in Los Angeles. "I want to see that final figure."

He said he wasn't going to press Bush to withdraw as a candidate, although he already has suggested that his rival is close to the point at which there will be no mathematical excuse to keep going.

Reagan said he might soon start thinking about a vice presidential running mate.

Bush said he wouldn't accept if asked. Senate Republican leader Howard Baker said he would.

Carter collected 68 percent of the Democratic vote in Indiana, 70 percent in North Carolina and 75 percent in Tennessee to win — as expected — in all three states.

Reagan gained similar runaways. He had 74 percent of the Indiana GOP vote, 67 percent in North Carolina, 74 percent in Tennessee.

Rep. John Anderson of Illinois, a Republican embarked on an independent presidential campaign, was nonetheless on the GOP ballot in all four primaries. Anderson gained 29 percent of the vote in the District of Columbia, where he and minor candidates were the only opponents to Bush. Anderson got 10 percent of the Indiana vote, 5 percent in North Carolina and 4 percent in Tennessee.

At the White House, Press Secretary Jody Powell said it was all over for Kennedy. He said Carter and Reagan will be the nominees, and suggested that choice may affect the judgment of voters in the 16 remaining primaries.

Powell also said "there is very little doubt" that Anderson's independent campaign would help Reagan.

In Indianapolis, Tim Kraft, deputy manager of the Carter campaign, said the president can count on enough delegates now to be "a little over 200 shy of the number needed to nominate." Kraft said that should give Kennedy second thoughts about continuing the contest.

Donald Michael, a Carter backer who serves as Indiana Democratic chairman, said it would be best for the party if Kennedy quit and worked for unity behind a Carter ticket.

In Reagan's behalf, Senate Republican leader Baker had a similar message for Bush: "The longer he stays in, the longer it'll postpone the day when we can all rally behind the man who, barring extreme unforeseen circumstances, is going to be the Republican nominee."

Easy Victories For 6 N.C. Representatives

By MELVIN LANG
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Six Democratic congressmen won nomination handily for new terms Tuesday as North Carolina voters chose candidates for next fall's general election.

In the only contested primary races, Democrats named veterans Walter Jones, Charles O. Whitley, Ike Andrews, L. Richardson Preyer, Charles G. Rose Jr. and W.G. "Bill" Hefner as the party's candidates.

Three other Democrats — Lamar Gudger, Stephen Neal and L.H. Fountain — had no primary opposition for new terms in Congress. Republican incumbents James T. Broyhill and James G. Martin also were unopposed.

Each will have opposition in November. None of Tuesday's races was close, with the outcome certain from the first returns.

In the 1st District Jones turned back Edenton farmer Joseph Hollowell Jr., 38, by a 4-to-1 margin. With 89 percent of the precincts reported, Jones had 79 percent of the votes.

Whitley, a three-term congressman from Mount Olive, drew nearly 79 percent of the vote in turning back challenges from Larry T. Turlington of Dupn and former Duplin County Sheriff's Deputy Jimmy Hatcher to win nomination in the 3rd District. With all precincts counted, Andrews took the 4th District nomination easily, winning 75 percent of the vote over former Raleigh undertaker Joe Overby and Geoffrey Gadsden, a second-year law student at North Carolina Central University in Durham.

Preyer won nomination for his seventh term in Congress. The 61-year-old former federal judge from Greensboro held a 4-to-1 advantage over Baptist minister J.R. Washington Jr. with 80 percent of the vote counted.

Rose followed the pattern set in the other districts as he polled 80 percent of the vote to defeat Lynn Batson, a retired oil company employee in Wilmington, with all votes counted.

With 70 percent of the precincts counted, Hefner, a former Gospel music singer from Kannapolis, held 71 percent of the votes in his race with Edward Sweet, a Kannapolis tax accountant, and John E. Gray of Mount Ulla, a retired Army officer now working for a Lexington truck firm.

Exxon Output Tops Countries

NEW YORK (AP) — Exxon Corp. is not only the world's largest corporation, but its 1979 sales were greater than the output of such countries as Iran and East Germany, analysts say.

Analysts for the Conference Board, a business-sponsored research group, made that assessment Tuesday in announcing 1978 rankings for the 100 biggest economic units in the world. The group said nearly 40 percent of the units were corporations, led by General Motors Corp. GM's 1978 sales of $63.2 billion made it the 23rd largest unit.

John Hein, author of the analysis, said Exxon's 1979 sales of $84.4 billion would put it in 16th place.

Chemical Fire Seen For Miles

SAUGUS, Calif. (AP) — A chemical fire that forced the evacuation of some 300 people began when a power outage allowed a chemical reactor to overheat and rupture a pipeline, officials said.

The explosion Tuesday in a Keyser Century Corp. storage tank released toxic fumes and sent up flames that could be seen for several miles. The tank contained polyvinyl chloride, which gives off a poisonous gas when it burns, and officials briefly evacuated a nearby plant and six homes.

Fire officials said they were allowing the fire to burn itself out.

Chief Wants A Mandatory Performance Standard

By TIMOTHY HARPER
Associated Press Writer
MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Police Chief David Couper plays classical music on his office stereo. On his walls are pictures of Mahatma Gandhi and Martin Luther King Jr., a 1960s antiwar poster and the official entry number Couper wore in the 1979 Boston marathon.

All somewhat unusual for a police chief. But not as unusual as what's going on in this police chief's mind.
Couper, 41, wants his department to be the first in the country to have mandatory "professional performance standards."
Not surprisingly, the police union cares not at all for the idea.

"The whole field is always changing, like law or medicine," says Couper. "We have refresher training and recertifying, but we've never had an assessment of skills other than by pencil and paper."

Beginning next year, the city's 260 officers will be tested periodically against performance standards on everything from knowledge of the law to ability to drive at high speeds.

Those who flunk the performance tests may be sent back to school, suspended or, ultimately, fired.

Couper, "police chief for seven years in this city of 170,000, says the idea of performance standards has been bandied about for nearly two decades, since the civil rights and police brutality cases of the 1960s.

Standards are necessary now, he says, because recent court rulings hinge police liability, in part on their training; a department that doesn't care how its officers are performing is more likely to lose a big damage award, he says.

"Policing is a very unique occupation," Couper says.

"It's a unique array of skills.
As long as we have the powers of arrest and to use force, there's a public interest in police minimum standards."

But Couper's proposed standards, which will be based on results of ongoing assessments made of the officers, have created his biggest conflict yet with the Madison Professional Police Officers Association.

Sgt. Gordon Hons, the 18-year veteran who heads the union, turns Couper's argument against him.

"The duties of a police officer are by their very nature so diversified and complex that any attempt to establish 'standards' for every facet of the job would be ludicrous," Hons says.

The current two-day
"assessments" include written tests on things like the law of search and seizure, when to use deadly and non-deadly force, rules of the road and investigative techniques.

The assessments also include what Couper calls
"hands-on" skill tests: water rescue, driving, running, weightlifting, shooting and simulated situations for arrests and first aid.

Couper said that since all the assessments now and testing later will be done in-house, the expense to the city will be minimal.

But Hons, noting that officers are being paid up to two hours of overtime a week to prepare for the assessments by working out at a gym, said just setting the standards could run up a bill of $500,000.

He says the taxpaying public also suffers because testing will take officers off the street, where the three daily shifts are already down to 22, 22 and 36 officers respectively. Hons charges the department is top-heavy with police sitting at desks rather than walking beats.

"Let members of this department get back on the street, let them do the work they are already trained for and save the taxpayers more dollars for 'standards' as well as provide better and quicker service for which they are already paying," Hons said.

In past battles before the Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission over other Couper innovations such as mandatory physical fitness and first aid training, both sides have claimed victory.

The WERC held that Couper may impose job-related standards not subject to collective bargaining. But the union preserved the right to negotiate the "impact," including compensation, remedial training and punishment.

Couper says he is confident his standards will pass muster, should they come before the WERC: "They will be job-related and they will be fair."

But Hons questions Couper's motives, saying the chief is looking to make a name both inside and outside police circles.

"He wants to be a national hero," Hons says. "It's pretty obvious to me he's looking to his own well-being."

Couper, however, predicts that increased legal and social emphasis on police performance will make other cities follow Madison's lead.

"Chicago, Los Angeles and New York are going to have to do something," Couper says. "For much of this country, especially lower income areas, the police are the government. If you have a lousy cop on the beat, people think they have lousy government. I don't think we can afford that in this country."

May Apply For Camp

Applications are now being accepted for 4-H summer camp. Boys and girls between the ages of 9 and 13 are eligible to attend even if they are not 4-H club members, according to Dale Panaro, Pitt County 4-H agent.

This year campers and their families may choose either the mountain camping experience at Swannanoa, N.C. the week of June 23-28 or a coastal camp experience near Swansboro the week of August 11-16.

The program for each week of camp includes swimming (beginning or advanced), archery, handicraft and ecology. The afternoon schedule allows the camper to choose from a variety of activities. Some special trip or outing is planned for each week in keeping with the opportunities available in the surrounding area.

4-H camps are adequately staffed with counselors and teachers for the summer program. County 4-H staff, parents, leaders and junior leaders attend from each county to assist with the camp program.

The cost for either week of 4-H camp is $50, which will cover meals, lodging, insurance, transportation, craft supplies and staff and program expenses. A $20 non-refundable deposit is required to reserve camp space and campers are being registered on a first come basis.

Applications can be obtained by writing or calling the Pitt County 4-H office,
P.O. Box 1427, Greenville, N.C., 27834, telephone 758-1196.

Dinner To End Singing Career

NEW YORK (AP) — Beverly Sills will end her singing career with dinner for 1,300.

Details of Miss Sills' farewell, a fund-raising gala for the New York City Opera on Oct. 27, were announced Tuesday — and ticket prices are from $1,000 to $75.

"Beverly!" will be a 90-minute presentation of the ballroom scene of Strauss'
"Die Fledermaus." Celebrities will waltz out of the ballroom crowd to do a turn with Miss Sills.

They include Julie Andrews, Cynthia Gregory, Joel Grey, Danny Kaye, Angela Lansbury, Mary
Martin, Zubin Mehta, Ethel Merman, and Bobby Short.
Carol Burnett will be mistress of ceremonies and Harold Prince will stage.

There will be a dinner for 1,300 before the performance and a dance for 2,000 afterward at Lincoln Center.

Scout Troop Serving Breakfast

Members of Scout Troop 826 will hold their annual Pancake and Sausage Breakfast on Mother's Day, Sunday, May 11 at Saint Peter's Parish Hall at 2700 E. Fourth Street.

Scoutmaster Tom Parsons said that troop members will begin serving at 8 a.m. and continue until 12:30 p.m. Parsons said that a family ticket will be available for $5 which will allow the entire family to eat. Individual adult tickets can be purchased for $1.75, while tickets for children six to 12 years of age are $1.25. Children under six are admitted free.

Parsons added that Wiley Neal will serve as head chef for the breakfast. Proceeds go to help the scouts attend summer camp at Bonner Scout Reservation on the Pamlico River.

The scoutmaster said that food and other items for support of the breakfast have been contributed by a variety of Greenville merchants.

Iran Wants, May Not Get, Gunman

By NIKKI FINKE
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Iran's revolutionary government said it will ask for the extradition of the only survivor of the terrorists who held the Iranian Embassy and most of its staff for six days, but Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher was reported determined to resist the request.

The first hostage to talk publicly about the seizure, Simeon Harris, 34, of the British Broadcasting Corp., said several of the female Iranian captives refused to identify the gunman to the police because he was "a good-looking boy" and had been nice to them.

"One or two of the older female hostages were saying things like, 'He's a nice boy and he had been quite pleasant to us. They wouldn't positively identify him as a terrorist," Harris, a TV soundman, claimed in a BBC interview.

"I shouted out, 'There is no doubt. He is a terrorist.' He then got carted away from the rest of us."

The terrorist, whose identity police have not revealed, was being held under special armed guard at a London police station. Quoting a spokesman for Iran's ruling Revolutionary Council, Radio Tehran said today that as soon as his name was announced, the Iranian Foreign Ministry would ask for his extradition.

But the newspaper The Guardian said any such request will "fall on deaf ears." Home Secretary William Whitelaw told the House of Commons Tuesday the surviving terrorist will be "subject to the due processes of law in this country." Police sources said he will be tried in Britain for murder and kidnapping.

Scotland Yard said there were at least five and possibly six men from the Arab ethnic minority in southern Iran who seized the Iranian embassy off Hyde Park and 25 hostages last Wednesday and demanded the release of 91 other Arab-Iranians they claimed were imprisoned by Iran's Persian government.

The terrorists released five of their hostages, but the Iranian government refused to negotiate with them. Monday night, after they murdered one of their captives and threatened to kill another one every half hour, British commandos stormed the five-story embassy, shot and killed three of the terrorists, fatally wounded a fourth one and rescued the 19 remaining hostages.

Scotland Yard detectives and forensic experts were sifting the rubble of the gutted embassy, and police said the body of a sixth terrorist was probably in the ruins.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Is it really important for people with a mild high blood pressure to cut down on their salt? I find it very difficult because food without salt is so tasteless. Can you tell me why restricted salt intake is so important for high blood pressure? — Mrs. N.W., Fla.

Dear Mrs. W.:

It is well accepted that there is a very definite relationship between the intake of salt (sodium chloride) and high blood pressure. For years many doctors have urged their patients to restrict their dietary salt intake in order to prevent hypertension (or high blood pressure). It has been shown that members of some tribes in East Africa who have eaten little or no salt in their diet had normal or low blood pressure. When some of these natives joined the British army during the war and ate regular army rations, there was a distinct rise in their blood pressure. The observation was made that even six to 10 grams of sodium a day in their new diet accounted for their increased blood pressure.

It has also been shown that there are people in all areas of the world who consume a relatively high amount of salt yet do not develop high blood pressure. Obviously, then, salt is not the only factor in the development of this condition. Many studies have shown that people with mild or severe high blood pressure can definitely reduce their pressure by decreasing the amount of sodium (or salt) in the diet. This accomplishment is obvious even in those people who do not use special drugs to reduce their blood pressure.

I know that it is difficult to reorient your pattern of eating by cutting down on the amount of salt in your food. Yet ask anyone who has done so and you will find that they will tell you how quickly they adjusted to a relatively salt-free diet. The new taste is readily acquired. This, coupled with the fact that the blood pressure is lowered and becomes normal, makes it all worthwhile.

There are also a number of salt substitutes which can be used by those people who find it very difficult to maintain such a restriction of salt in their diet.

Can flat feet be cured by the new space shoes? — Mr. J.Y., Wis.

Dear Mr. Y.:

No. The flatness of the arch of the foot is known as pes planus. It is caused by a weakness of the muscles and the ligaments of the arch of the foot. Unfortunately, once the mechanical change occurs in the arch of the foot, it is almost impossible to reverse the condition. Special exercises, proper arch supports, and space shoes may be of value in preventing the progression of the condition and relieving discomfort, but they cannot reverse it once it has become established.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today as traders assessed the Federal Reserve's decision to remove one restraint on credit.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slipped 1.96 to 814.08 in the first half hour today.

But gainers took a 4-3 lead over losers in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Late Tuesday the Federal Reserve ended the 3-percentage-point surcharge for large banks that it had imposed on the discount rate — the charge on bank borrowings from the Fed. The basic discount rate remained at 13 percent.

The Fed said it took the step simply because the recent decline in other interest rates had made the surcharge unnecessary to discourage borrowing by banks at the so-called "discount window."

But some analysts nevertheless saw it as evidence that the Fed was seeking to stimulate some renewed growth in the money supply after the recent slowdown in the economy.

Today New York's Chase Manhattan Bank cut its prime lending rate to 17 percent, putting the basic charge on business loans 3 points below its recent peak. Among stocks sensitive to interest rate trends, Great Western Financial rose 3/4 to 20; American Telephone & Telegraph 1/4 to 54, and Citicorp 1/4 to 21 1/4.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average slipped .26 to 816.04.

But advances outnumbered declines by about a 7-4 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 40.16 million shares, against 34.09 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index eased .01 to 60.49.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .83 at 254.83.

Bob Martin Wins Commission Race

R. L. "Bob" Martin, a veteran member of the Board of County Commissioners, defeated Eugene James in yesterday's balloting, by receiving 6,380 votes, to James' 5,694.

A Bethel resident, Martin has served as a county commissioner since 1956, and represents Bethel, Belvoir, Pactolus and Carolina Townships. During his tenure, Martin has served as chairman of the board five times, and has served as president of the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners. Presently a member of the board of directors of the N.C. association, he also serves as a member of the board of directors of the National Association of County Officials.

James, a Bethel native, is currently president of the Belvoir Volunteer Fire Department and a member of the Board of Directors of the Pitt County Fire Department.

In seeking the seat held by Martin, James said, "I believe it is time for a change."

Commissioner Bruce Strickland, who has served on the board since 1960, had no opposition yesterday.

Soldier Dead Return Home

By GWEN FLORIO Associated Press Writer
DOVER AIR FORCE BASE, Del. (AP) — While flags flew at half staff for eight Americans killed in an abortive rescue attempt in Iran, mortuary officials were investigating the possibility that the remains in a ninth coffin could be those of an Iranian civilian, sources said.

The coffins arrived here Tuesday from Switzerland to a salute from a 20-man color guard. Today, officials were working to identify the charred remains of the servicemen who died in the April 25 mission.

U.S. officials have said eight Americans were killed in the failed attempt to rescue the 50 hostages from the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. But the Iranians have said that nine or 10 bodies were recovered after a helicopter and transport plane collided in a ball of flame.

Roman Catholic Archbishop Hilarion Capudji of the Melkite Eastern Rite, who escorted the bodies from Tehran to Zurich and turned them over to U.S. officials, said Iranian authorities told him the nine coffins he was escorting contained nine bodies. But Capudji said some coffins contained only bone fragments or charred body parts.

He said that to his knowledge only three bodies could be identified — the rest were beyond identification.

U.S. officials opened the coffins for inspection in Zurich, sources said.

Meanwhile, sources here indicated officials were investigating whether one of the bodies could be that of an Iranian.

State Department officials declined comment. Several top military officials — but no families — were on hand when the coffins of the servicemen returned to their home soil aboard an Air Force C-141.

Maj. Gen. Robert E. Haebel of the Marine Corps and Air Force Gen. W.L. Creech, read a proclamation by President Carter that said whose names "will forever stand among those of heroes."

"We mourn their loss; we admire their courage; and we respect their dedication; and we reaffirm the principles for which they died," it said.

Following a brief religious ceremony conducted on the runway by three military chaplains, two pallbearer teams — one Air Force and one Marine — unloaded the coffins into nine waiting hearses.

Carter's proclamation directed that the American flag be flown at half staff until sunset Friday. A national memorial service will be held in Washington on Friday, the statement said.

Air Force officials would not say when the bodies were scheduled to leave Dover.

The bodies were taken to this Delaware Air Base because its mortuary, built to handle Vietnam War casualties. It is the largest and one of the best equipped east of the Mississippi River. It can handle 100 bodies a day. Eighteen months ago, officials here attempted to identify the remains of more than 900 victims of the Peoples Temple mass murder-suicide in Guyana.

Eleven Hurt In Building Mishap

ATLANTA (AP) — Eleven construction workers were injured when part of a building under construction at Hartsfield International Airport collapsed, authorities said.

Steve Fulford, spokesman for Holder Construction Co., said the accident occurred Tuesday when the men were preparing to work on the roof of a loading dock canopy 15 feet above the ground. He said one man sustained a crushed hip when the canopy collapsed and the other 10 workers received bruised and broken bones.

He said the cause of the accident at the new air cargo facility was under investigation.

Obituaries

Edwards
FARMVILLE — Mr. Julian N. Edwards, 71, of 1007 Hamilton Drive, Greenville, died this morning in Charlotte Memorial Hospital. Funeral arrangements are incomplete at the Farmville Funeral Home.

A Farmville native, Mr. Edwards was a ticket marker on the Farmville and Kentucky tobacco markets for many years.

Rams Ice Tie For 3rd ECC Crown

SNOW HILL — Greene Central clinched no worse than a tie for its third straight Eastern Carolina Conference baseball title with an 18-0 victory over Southwest Edgecombe last night.

Kevin Korpi and Steve Scott teamed to make it a little more special, combining for a no-hitter against the Cougars. Korpi went the first five innings, striking out five and walking two. Scott, who went the final two frames, fanned one and walked none.

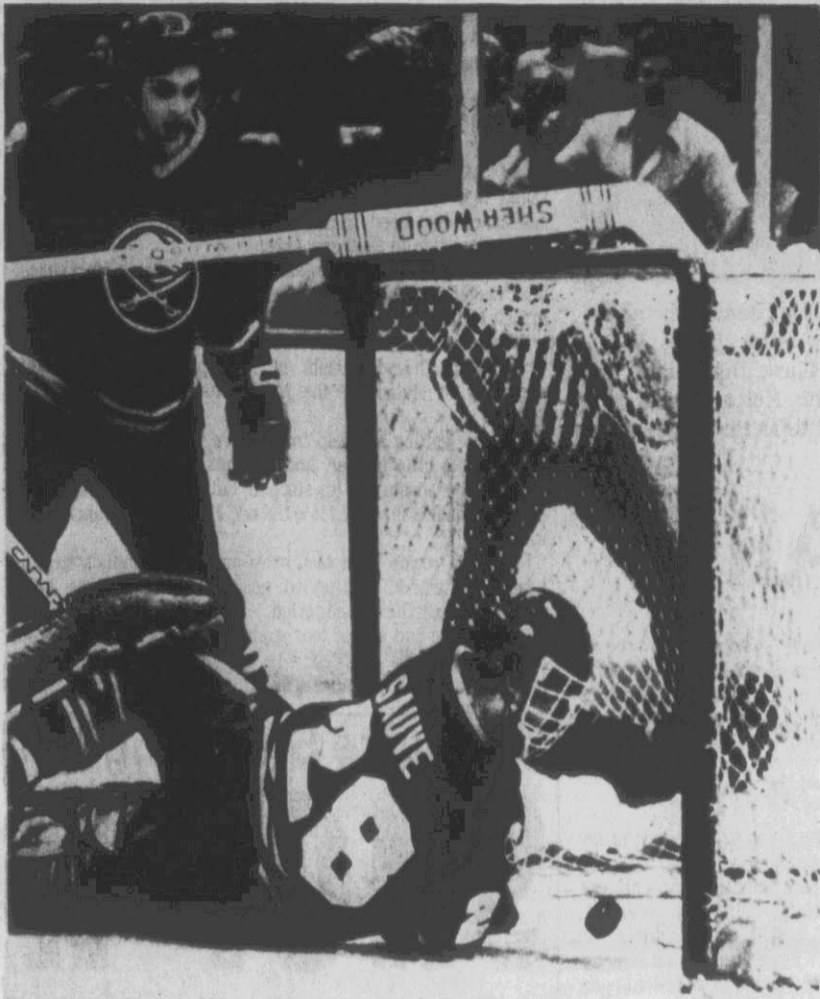

The Rams got all they needed in the second, scoring twice. Donald Shaw singled and stole second, then moved to third on a passed ball. Jeff Scott walked and stole second. Both runners then scored on a single by Chip Hardy.

The Rams added three in the third, two scoring on a home run by Shaw. Eight more crossed in the fourth, two in the fifth and three in the sixth.

Shaw led the Ram hitting with three, including his homer and a double. Jimbo Fulghum, Jesse Freeman, Walt Tyndall and Korpi each had two hits.

The Rams are now 12-0 in league play and 16-3 overall. They can wrap it up on Friday, when they travel to North Pitt, the only team with a chance to catch them.

L. A. Faces 76ers Tonight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers have to stop Julius Erving. The Philadelphia 76ers have to stop Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.

The 76ers, who had little success containing the Laker center in the opening game of the National Basketball Association championship series, will undoubtedly bring new strategy and new determination into tonight's second game at the Forum. The Lakers, who had more luck holding down the 76ers' high-scoring Dr. J, hope for a repeat performance.

Los Angeles, with a 1-0 lead in the best-of-seven playoff final after winning 109-102 Sunday, tries to make it two in a row at home in the nationally televised contest set for an 11:30 p.m. EDT tipoff.

"We will definitely have to be more assertive and open it up more," said Erving, never much of a force in the first game although he did score 11 points in the closing quarter to finish with 20.

The Lakers — with Jamaal Wilkes and Michael Cooper

sharing the defensive chores against Erving — played the Philadelphia forward very aggressively, at times leaving other 76ers open. But Erving's teammates were unable to take up the slack.

"They gambled more than any other club we've played," Dr. J said of the Lakers' defense. "It really worked for them Sunday, but I'd like to see them continue that."

"You can't guard Julius one-on-one, so we were helping out a lot," said Cooper. "I don't think they ever got into their offensive flow. We have to stop the Doc from going off, doing his act, going to the sky and slamming."

"So whenever he got the ball, we ran two men at him so he had to pass."

While Erving was practically neutralized, Abdul-Jabbar was going about the business of dominating the game. The 7-foot-2 Laker center scored 33 points, missing just seven of 21 floor shots, and had 14 rebounds, six blocked shots and five assists.

Darryl Dawkins, the 76ers' muscular center, picked up three quick fouls and played just 18 minutes before fouling out. That left the job to Caldwell Jones, the 7-footer who used to be Philadelphia's pivotman but was moved to power forward this season.

Although careful not to reveal much about new strategy for containing Abdul-Jabbar, 76ers Coach Billy Cunningham hinted that he might use the quicker Jones on Abdul-Jabbar from the start and put Dawkins on Jim Chones, the Lakers' power forward.

"We've got to find a way to keep Darryl in the game more than 18 minutes," said Cunningham. "You can just stop Kareem so much. But I think when Caldwell plays him, he won't allow him to get any easy baskets."

"Four years I've been playing against Kareem, and it seems like he's improved every year," said Jones, adding that he believes his role is to make Abdul-Jabbar work as hard as possible for his points.

"I consider it a job," he said. "You know over a period of time the big guy's going to score. You think you're playing real good defense and he goes ahead and makes the shot. But you can't afford to get frustrated."

"You've got to bump him once or twice," Jones continued. "You've got to lean on him. You've got to try to make him shoot the jump shot. Then you've got to keep him from getting the rebound if he does miss."

"You've got to see if you can hold him to between 30 and 35 points, because if he gets 40 you've really got problems."

"I'm not going to be frightened of the guy, I'm just going to go out and make the guy work. I'll be ready."

The series shifts to Philadelphia for the third game on Saturday and the fourth on Sunday.

Northeastern Stuns Numb-Fingered Rose

By LARRY SULLIVAN
Reflector Sports Writer

Five days ago, the Rose High Rampants won themselves back into the 4-A Division I race for the lead. Yesterday, they lost it again.

Friday night, Rose hosted league-leading Rocky Mount and wrestled a 4-2 victory from the Gryphons before lowly Northeastern High stunned Ron Vincent's high-riding club, 4-3, Tuesday afternoon in conference action at Guy Smith Stadium to hand the Rampants their third loop loss of the year.

"Can you believe these guys?" Vincent said after the disappointing loss. "We play so well against the good teams and then play like this against the not so good," he said, referring to his team's four costly errors. "I just can't believe it."

"We didn't hit the ball well at all today, especially when we had men on base. Plus, we couldn't make the big defensive play when we had to. We wasted our opportunity to get first place. We've got to come back and play better than this."

Rose's final breath was cut short on the last play of the game when Will Barrett attempted to score from second on a ground ball to the shortstop. Mike Campbell and Barrett lashed one-out singles and both runners advanced one base on a wild pitch. Williams then sent a slow grounder to shortstop who threw to first, allowing Campbell to cut the lead to one at 4-3. Barrett continued to round third and raced home on the throw to first but was nailed at the plate to register the game's final out.

"That last play should not have cost us the game," Vincent said afterwards. "It looked close and I was hoping we would get the call, but that play didn't beat us."

What did beat the Rampants was a two-run Eagle fourth, aided by a pair of Rose miscues, and a one-run fifth, helped along by a bloop double, enabling the visitors from Elizabeth City to shoot down the high-riding Rampants.

The Eagles threatened in the initial frame when Jimmy Watts singled down the first base line and took second when Barrett had trouble handling the ball. But a Mark Douglas-to-Campbell-to-Jeff Wilson double play saved the inning for Rose starter Kenny Barnes.

Barrett made up for his error in the bottom of the second as he sliced a single up the middle to drive home Campbell who had doubled. Barrett stole second, moved to third on catcher Hunter Williams' bad throw and walked home on Barnes' sacrifice fly to give the host unit a quick 2-0 lead.

The Eagles' first batter of the second inning promptly cut the lead in half by crashing a Barnes fastball over the right-centerfield wall for a home run.

The Rampants collected a pair of hits in the third inning but were unable to score, despite executing a perfect hit and run. Barrett singled but was out at second on Williams' fielder's choice. Barnes followed with a roller between first and second but the ball hit Williams, who was running towards second, for the final out of the inning.

Three hits and two Rose errors led to a pair of Eagle tallies in the fourth, allowing the guests to take the lead for good. Dwayne Clark and Mike Sanders each singled for Northeastern. Danny Brite followed with the third consecutive Eagle single. Rampant left fielder Todd Galloway fielded Brite's single and threw the ball home in an effort to nail Clark. Skip Hill cut off the throw and threw wild to home, allowing Sanders to move to third and Brite to advance to second.

Firstbaseman Jeff Wilson retrieved the ball and threw to second to attempt to get Brite, who ran past second, but secondbaseman Campbell misplayed the throw, allowing Sanders to scoot home.

Northeastern scored what proved to be the winning run of the game in the fifth, knocking Barnes off of the mound in the process. Hunter Williams and Kenny Meekins led off with back-to-back singles, sending Barnes to the showers, before Scott Galloway surrendered a bloop double over third base by John Haynes, driving home Meekins with the Eagles' fifth run.

The Rampants left two men on base in both the fifth and sixth frames before the game-ending seventh. Rose left six men on base during the game while Northeastern Kathy Semaske of Goldsboro's Walnut Creek Country Club took first place in the Eastern North Carolina Ladies Golf Association's annual tournament, held yesterday at Brook Valley Country Club.

A total of 65 players, representing ten different clubs, participated in the two-day, 36-hole event.

Barbara Walker of Brook Valley took second place in the championship bracket.

Sue Hallow of Brook Valley won the first flight, while Vera Bernard from Johnston Country Club took second.

In the second flight, Vickie Harriger of Wilson Country Club in Wilson was the winner, followed by Nancy Monroe of Greenville Country Club.

In the third flight, Glo Clark of Brook Valley was first, with Carolyn Brink of Johnston Country Club, second.

The fourth flight went to Marsha Pully of Benvenue Country Club in Rocky Mount, with Lois Johnson of Wilson Country Club second.

In the fifth flight, Helen Brown of Wilson Country Club took top honors, followed by Irene Taylor of Kinston Country Club.

Ladies Golf Winners

Brook Valley hosted the finals of the Eastern North Carolina Ladies Golf Association Tournament Monday and Tuesday. Winners in each class, from

Sabres Win, Stay Alive

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Millions of dollars worth of hockey talent sat in the Buffalo dressing room, very much aware of the task ahead. The Sabres knew they were one game from elimination. They knew two teams in National Hockey League playoff history have won a best-of-seven series after losing the first three games.

Before Tuesday night's game against the New York Islanders, it would have seemed words were the last thing needed. Associate Coach Roger Neilson said some, anyway.

"We just pointed out to them that since 1975, when Buffalo made it to the finals, the Sabres' record in the playoffs isn't too great. We pointed out that every year, it seems other teams are always saying they'd like to play Buffalo in the playoffs," he said.

Neilson's words stung the Sabres, who defeated the Islanders 7-4 — snapping an 11-game streak of Buffalo losses to New York in the playoffs. On three goals by Gil Perreault and two more (plus two assists) by Derek Smith, the Sabres relocated their long-lost offense and earned sudden life in Stanley Cup competition.

"Today we had a meeting and decided enough had been said — now it's time to see what's left inside us," said Buffalo Captain Danny Gare.

"We felt we were not a team that deserved to be beaten in a sweep, by any team, no matter who. We had to show that."

And although the scene seemed stolen from a movie writer's concept of sports drama, it worked.

Skins Scalped, 5-4

ROANOKE RAPIDS — Roanoke Rapids iced no worse than a tie for the Northeastern Conference baseball title with a 5-4, nine-inning victory over Roanoke last night.

Roanoke had scored twice in the second, but the Yellow Jackets came back to score single runs in the second and third, tying it up.

It stayed that way until the ninth, when Roanoke pushed over two runs to regain the lead, 4-2.

Ricky Simpson reached on an error and Angelo Spruill doubled. Wesley Johnson singled in one run, and a sacrifice fly by Anthony Latham brought in Spruill.

But the rejoicing by the Redskins was short lived as Roanoke Rapids came back with three in their half of the inning to win.

Ray singled and with two away, Phillips walked. Heatherly tripled, driving in two runs to tie it up. Haislip then singled to score Heatherly with the winning run.

Roanoke is now 12-7 overall and 5-6 in league play. The Redskins host Washington on Friday.

Tigers Triumph, 5-2

WILLIAMSTON — Williamston took advantage of three Plymouth errors to defeat Plymouth, 5-2, Tuesday night in a Northeastern Conference baseball game.

The Tigers, now 8-9 overall, trailed 1-0 going into the bottom of the third but scored twice to take the lead. Keith Clark singled and then scored on Randy Ellis' triple. Ellis scored on an error.

Plymouth rallied to tie the game with a run in the fourth but Williamston regained the lead for good in the bottom of the fifth. Leslie Beacham doubled and Clark walked to lead off. Two subsequent errors brought both home and the Tigers led, 4-2.

Williamston's final run came in the sixth. Peaks and Billy Williams hit back-to-back singles before Beacham's sacrifice fly scored Phil Peaks, who led the Tigers at the plate with two hits.

Plymouth was led by Shelton McNair, who was two-of-three. The Tigers travel to Tarboro Thursday.

Flyers Win Again

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Philadelphia Coach Pat Quinn figures the Minnesota North Stars are getting all the assistance they need from the officials, but Glen Sonmor is looking for aid from another source.

"We need a little help from above," said the North Stars coach after his team dropped a 3-2 decision to the Flyers Tuesday night in their National Hockey League semifinal playoff series.

Philadelphia now leads the best-of-seven series 3-1 and can wrap it up Thursday night at the Spectrum. Game 6, if necessary, is slated for the Met Center in Bloomington on Sunday.

"They're getting the help from above," added Sonmor. "We need to be a little luckier. Look at that second goal of theirs. (Bill) Barber shoots and it's stopped, but one of our guys knocks it off the goalie's skate and into the net. It's just not bouncing our way."

Minnesota rookie Tom McCarthy and Philadelphia's Reggie Leach had traded first-period goals before the fluke tally midway through the second period.

Barber, who had scored four goals against the North Stars on Sunday night, was credited with his eighth and ninth of the playoffs. But only the ninth was legitimate.

Gay Whiffs 9 As Chargers Win, 9-1

LITTLEFIELD — Tyrone Gay struck out nine and Benard Riccarelli and Art Rouse both banded out three hits to lead Ayden-Grifton past North Lenoir, 9-1, Tuesday in an Eastern Carolina Conference baseball game.

The Chargers, now 7-12 overall and 5-7 in the ECC, struck quickly, scoring twice in the first two innings. North Lenoir pushed across one run in the fourth but Ayden-Grifton added two runs in the fourth and three in the fifth to win going away.

Riccarelli and Rouse both had one RBI, while Chris Strickland went one-for-one with an RBI. Gay was two for four with one RBI.

Jaguars Take North Pitt, 4-1

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

BETHEL — Farmville Central and North Pitt got together Tuesday afternoon for a little give and take baseball.

The Jaguars did most of the taking while the Panthers handled most of the giving. Farmville, playing nearly flawless baseball in the field and aided by five North Pitt errors, helped itself to a 4-1 win Tuesday over the Panthers in an Eastern Carolina Conference battle.

The win moves Farmville into a tie for second in the ECC with the Panthers. Both clubs are 9-5 in the league but North Pitt still has to play league leader Greene Central.

Farmville is 11-8 overall and North Pitt is 11-10.

"When you get into a close game like this and you miss cutoff men and make an error or two every other inning like we did, you don't expect to win; you don't deserve to," North Pitt coach Pat Smith said. "(Bob) Hemingway pitched well enough to win, but we just made too many mistakes. How many runs were earned — one?"

Hemingway struggled through the first inning, but the North Pitt right-hander then settled down, allowing only one hit the remaining six innings. Of the Jaguar's four runs only one was earned. He struck out seven and walked two.

Farmville's Tony Eason nearly duplicated Hemingway's performance. Eason scattered six hits — all singles — while striking out five and walking two.

"Tony pitched fairly well today," Farmville Central coach Linwood Woodard said. "Our young guys, when our pitcher keeps us in the game, usually play well. But they have been getting down when they haven't."

Woodard was not as pleased with his team's hitting. "We didn't hit the ball real well, especially with people on base," Woodard said. "We've been up and down all season, but our hitting hasn't been that good throughout the year."

Farmville Central wasted little time in getting to Hemingway this day. Greg Hardison hit a 3-2 pitch into right center for a double to lead off. After Jamie Futrell reached on an error, Eason singled to drive home Hardison, who had moved to second on the error.

One out later Futrell scored on Jeff Joyner's sacrifice fly and the Jaguars led, 2-0.

After going down in order in the first, the Panthers loaded the bases in the second with only one away but could not score.

"We just couldn't get the key hits when we needed them," North Pitt coach Pat Smith said. "But — as I said — when you make the kind of mistakes we did you don't expect to win."

Farmville, taking advantage of Panther mistakes, added single runs in both the third and fourth.

Greg Hardison tripled to start the third. After Futrell walked an error by second baseman Gregory Briley allowed Hardison to score and Eason to reach first.

Farmville was back for more in the fourth — thanks again to North Pitt miscues.

Mike Tugwell found himself on first after an errant throw by third baseman Ronnie House. Tugwell then stole second and moved to third on Briley's second error of the game. Tugwell scored moments later on a wild pitch and Farmville led, 4-0.

From there, Hemingway silenced the Jaguar bats, not allowing a Farmville runner past second. North Pitt, however, was not exactly filling the overloading the basepaths.

The Panthers, with only one runner reaching third through the first four innings, finally scored in the fifth. It was also the only inning in which North Pitt had two hits.

Robert Bunn led off with what appeared to be a sure double off the right centerfield fence. But Bunn stumbled going around first and held up.

"That really hurt," Smith said. "It cost us a run. He would have been on second when Gregory came up and would have gone to third on his out."

Bunn subsequently was forced out at second on Gregory Briley's grounder to second. Briley, on with a fielder's choice, moved to second on a wild pitch and then to third on a ground out. He scored on Victor Evans single between the shortstop and third baseman, who was holding Briley on.

"We work on fundamentals nearly every day," Smith said. "We work on baserunning nearly every day, but today we just didn't play good baseball. It wasn't of not getting the breaks, we just made too many mistakes."

Youth Baseball Results

Babe Ruth League

Wachovia Bank 7, Pepsi-Cola 6

Wachovia Bank nipped Pepsi-Cola, 7-6, in Babe Ruth League play last night.

Pepsi scored first, getting two in the top of the first, but Wachovia came back with three in its half of the inning. Pepsi moved back up, 5-3, with three more in the second, but Wachovia tied it with two in the bottom of the inning. Wachovia then moved ahead, 6-5, with one in the third, but Pepsi tied it one more time with one in the fifth.

Wachovia got the winning run in the sixth. Todd Jordan reached on an error and was sacrificed up. He scored when Marvin Barrett reached on another error.

Terry Smith led the Pepsi hitting with two, while Andrew Wooten had two for Wachovia.

G. Hardware 13, Auto Specialty 3

Greenville Hardware rolled to a 13-3 victory over Auto Specialty last night in Prep League play.

The Hardwaremen scored three in the first, only to see Auto Specialty come back with one.

In the second, however, Greenville Hardware put it away with eight runs. Rob Deaton led off with a walk, and Greg Barrett singled. Jordy Smith singled in the first run, and Cedric Hines was awarded first base on interference. Jason Boyd reached on a fielder's choice that scored the second run. Jay Wynne doubled in three runs, and scored on an error on the throw. Mike Gavigan walked and moved up on a passed ball, a stolen base and, after Ken Butler walked, an error scored Gavigan and put Butler on third. He scored the final run on a passed ball.

The Hardwaremen added two in the third, while Auto Specialty picked up one in the third and one in the fourth.

Little League

First Federal 11, Moose 0

First Federal romped to an 11-0 victory over the Moose yesterday, as Ricky Outlaw tossed a no-hitter.

Outlaw struck out 15 of the 18 batters who made outs, and walked just two, the only runners to reach base against First Federal.

First Federal got all it needed in the first, scoring six times. Rodney Harris singled and Ervin Best doubled. Outlaw singled to load the bases, and Brian Joyner walked, scoring Harris. A wild pitch scored Best, and an error let Outlaw score. Mark Holloman walked, and Chris Meeks singled in Joyner. An error then allowed both Holloman and Meeks score.

First Federal added one in the second, three in the third and one in the fifth. Harris had a two-run homer in the third, with Stacey Best hitting a solo shot in the fifth.

Harris and Meeks led the First Federal hitting with three each, while Ervin Best had two.

Jaycees 7, Lions 1

The Jaycees gained a 7-1 North State Little League victory over the Lions yesterday.

The Jaycees pushed over all they needed in the first, scoring twice. David Lee reached on an error and stole second. He scored on Mike Garris' single. Garris then stole second and scored when Tyrone Jones doubled.

The Jaycees added one in the second, two in the third and two more in the sixth. The lone Lion run came in the fifth.

Garris, Curtis Perkins, Bruce Koonce and Tommy Rosche each had two hits for the Jaycees, while Tom Moye had two for the Lions.

S. Pitt Little League

Little Sluggers 12, Sunshine GC 7

WINTERVILLE — The Little Sluggers rolled to a 12-7 victory over Sunshine Garden Center in the Southern Pitt Little League yesterday.

Phillips tossed the victory for the Sluggers.

Baseball Talks Continue Today

NEW YORK (AP) — Negotiations continued today in the baseball contract talks with the two sides concerning themselves with mostly minor issues while the major problems wait on the back burner.

"These are not headline issues, but they're still critical," said Ray Grebey, chief negotiator for management in the talks with the union.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the players association, agreed with that point of view.

"We're reviewing quite a few issues which are important in and of themselves, but they would have to be characterized as not as important as others," said Miller. "They may not be of the same magnitude but they take as much time as the others."

On the agenda for today was the definition of exactly what constitutes a salary. That was the issue at the heart of the Bob Horner arbitration case against the Atlanta Braves last year. Arbitrator Raymond Goetz ruled that bonus payments had to be included when figuring a player's salary but barred Horner from free agency.

Still ahead is the question of compensation for signing free agents, an issue which has been viewed as the major stumbling block in the talks so far.

The players have warned that unless agreement is reached by May 22 they will strike the next day, halting the major league season on Memorial Day weekend.

Federal mediator Kenneth Moffett said he hoped minor issues could be cleared this week with negotiations set for today and Thursday. That would permit the talks to focus on the major issues next week.

Tuesday's session was the first in almost three weeks but there was no indication that either side had changed its view of the issues during the recess.

"Nothing has changed," said Moffett. "The positions of the two sides remains the same."

Miller disclosed a Monday meeting with Grebey at which the management negotiator reported that the owners' position remained solid. Grebey told Miller he had polled the clubs during the time the two sides were not meeting.

"Obviously, he was trying to impress me," said Miller. "He said they were solid except for two owners. I knew which ones. He wasn't aware that I knew which ones and he's not aware of what else I know."

Grebey declined comment on the meeting.

"The bargaining process is working," Grebey said. "We are getting the issues out of the way and will get to the major ones in time."

Moffett didn't sound quite as sure of that.

"I wouldn't say any progress was made," the mediator began. "The tone of the meeting was about the same as the last couple of times they met. Nothing has changed but we still have some time to go. The clock is ticking."

Ayden-Grifton 12, North Lenoir 10

LITTLEFIELD — Ayden-Grifton's girls' softball team kept up its race toward the Eastern Carolina Conference title with a 12-10 victory over North Lenoir yesterday.

Ayden-Grifton pushed into a 3-2 lead after three innings, then scored five in the third. North Lenoir then rallied to score seven in the fifth to take a 9-8 lead. But the Lady Chargers got four in the sixth to put it away. North Lenoir got its other run in the seventh.

Irene Lewis and Elaine Braxton each had four hits for Ayden-Grifton. Danielle Elks, and Ann Strong each had three, while Joan Allbritton, Marie Lewis and Aretha Cannon each had two. North Lenoir was led by T. Parham with three, while F. Powell, G. Norville and B. Smith each had two.

Strong and Braxton both homered for A-G.

The Chargers are now 12-1 in league play and host Charles B. Aycock on Friday.

Plymouth 10, Williamston 4

PLYMOUTH — Plymouth High School remained atop the Northeastern Conference softball standings with a 10-4 victory over Williamston yesterday.

Plymouth scored four times in the first, then added one in the second and two in the third.

Plymouth's hitting was led by Lee Ann West, who had two, including a homer, while Jennifer Jackson, Lori Roberson and Virginia Lucas also had two each. Williamston was led by Marcia Griffin with two.

Williamston is now 6-4 and travels to Tarboro on Thursday.

R. Rapids 8-4, Roanoke 5-1

ROANOKE RAPIDS — Roanoke Rapids High School swept a doubleheader from Roanoke High School yesterday, winning the opener, 8-5, and taking the nightcap, 4-1.

In the opener, Roanoke Rapids pushed over three in the first, then added two in the second before the Squaws finally scored with three in the bottom of the third. Roanoke Rapids got what proved to be the winning run in the fifth.

J. Slade led the Roanoke Rapids hitting with three, with Crowder hitting a two-run homer in the third. Juliette Barnhill led the Roanoke hitting with three, including a homer in the seventh. Elaine Biggs had two, including a three-run homer in the third, while Cynthia Burnett had two hits.

In the second game, Roanoke scored one in the second, but the Yellow Jackets countered that with one in their half of the inning, then scored two more in the third.

Lewis led the Roanoke Rapids hitting with two and was the only girl in the game with more than one.

Roanoke is now 1-10 overall and plays host to Washington on Thursday.

North Pitt 12, Farmville C. 8

BETHEL — It was a shocker.

North Pitt's Pant-HERS had not won a softball game all season while Farmville Central was in second in the Eastern Carolina and was the only team to have beaten league leader Ayden-Grifton.

Tuesday, however, the Pant-HERS put together a 12-hit attack to stun the Jaguars, 12-8.

North Pitt, now 1-9 overall, jumped to a 3-0 lead after the first inning but saw its lead narrowed to one when Farmville scored twice in the second. Farmville then took the lead with five runs in the fourth, but the Pant-HERS roared back with a six-run plate with two hits apiece.

The Rampants next take the field Thursday night when they travel to Beddingfield to battle the Bruins in Wilson at Flemming Park at 7:30.

HIGHER BASKET

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Ed Steitz, the athletic director of Springfield, Mass., College, is also a member of the NCAA Basketball Rules Committee.

In Indianapolis, for the championship game of the NCAA tournament, Steitz said that if he, personally, could change one rule of the game, he would raise the height of the basket from 10 feet to 11½ or 12 feet.

But Steitz is well aware of country-wide opposition to any such drastic change in the rules and doubts that it will happen in the near future.

Tennis Drive Is Initiated

The People for Tennis Foundation met last night and organized a membership drive.

The board of directors of the organization set family memberships at $20, while patron memberships are $100. Individual junior memberships are $2.50.

As an umbrella organization, the foundation will support and contribute to tennis activities in this area. Plans were also made to co-sponsor several upcoming city tennis tournaments.

Anyone wishing to join or obtain further information can contact Carolyn Powell, president, at 756-5180, or Andy Warren, membership chairman, at 756-4732.

Meekins went the distance in picking up the win, allowing the two runs on eight hits while fanning four and walking three. Barnes suffered his second consecutive loss, dropping to 5-2 on the year, in tolling on the mound for four innings while surrendering three runs on seven hits, fanning one and walking a pair. Galloway pitched the final three innings, giving up a run on three hits, striking out three and issuing one base on balls.

Barrett led all hitters in the contest with three hits, including a double, and drove in a run. Campbell paired hits for the losers, and he scored two of the three Rose runs. Jimmy Watts and Mike Sanders paced the winners at

UNOFFICIAL RESULTS COMPILED BY THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Tedious Chore Selecting Jury

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — The tedious screening of prospective jurors continues today in a coal-related federal racketeering case, and the judge says it might be Thursday before the actual striking of a jury begins.

U.S. District Judge Frank McFadden said the public and the news media would be barred from the courtroom as long as those on the jury list were undergoing preliminary questioning.

The questioning involves whether the 100 people on the list might have been influenced by pretrial publicity or have any knowledge of the case or the individuals involved.

The list is to be narrowed to 50, from which the trial jury of 12 and four alternates will be picked.

McFadden has said the trial itself could take several weeks.

The racketeering charges against seven Alabama political and coal industry figures stemmed from an 18-month investigation of the industry.

A special grand jury returned 19 indictments last Oct. 31, including charges of mail fraud, wire fraud and extortion against one or more of the defendants.

On trial are former state Sens. Joe Fine of Russellville and Eddie Hubert Gilmore of McCalla, state Rep. Jack Biddle of Gardendale, former Alabama Power Co. vice president Walter Johnsey of Birmingham and three officials of Drummond Coal Co. of Jasper, president Garry Neal Drummond, vice president Larry Drummond and secretary-treasurer Clyde Black.

Report Sellers In Good Spirits

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — British actor Peter Sellers, recovering from a mild heart attack, was reported in good spirits at St. Vincent's Hospital.

The 54-year-old comedian, the bumbling hero of the hugely popular "Pink Panther" movies and most recently of "Being There," was admitted Monday night after he said he felt unwell and was suffering chest pains.

A hospital spokesman said Sellers would remain under care for a few days "for observation."

Hearings Set On Army Rigger

FORT BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — The Army has set Thursday and Friday for hearings on pretrial motions for a Fort Bragg parachute rigger charged with murder.

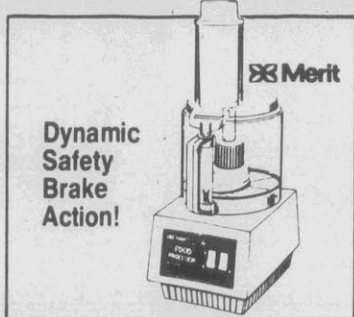

The hearing will be for Pfc. Alvin P. Williams, 20, who was accused of sabotaging a parachute used by Capt. Lawrence Hill. Hill fell more than 1,000 feet to his death March 26 when his parachute failed to open.

Many From Prisons In Freedom Flotilla

By DAN SEWELL
Associated Press Writer
KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — With more than 4,000 refugees a day arriving here aboard the "Freedom Flotilla" — most straight from Cuban prisons — another 300 National Guardsmen have been dispatched to Key West.

Elbow-to-elbow crowds swamped makeshift cafeterias and dormitories here and at a "tent city" in the Florida Panhandle, and relief workers pleaded for donations of food and clothing as the unrelenting flood of arrivals swelled past 20,000.

"These people come over here soaking wet from being at sea, the babies have raspy breathing and they need dry clothes," said Red Cross volunteer Anne Herandez.

Meanwhile, federal officials said supplies and personnel were on the way after President Carter declared a state of emergency, making $10 million available. But volunteer coordinator Arturo Cobo said the federal help was "very slow." The National Guardsmen were to help keep peace and order among the milling refugees.

Prisoners or ex-convicts accounted for four of every five refugees arriving this week aboard small boats from the Cuban port of Mariel, immigration officials estimated. On Tuesday, the first time in the 16-day-old boatlift, the inmates included women.

"I kissed the ground when I arrived here," said Rita Ramos, 24, who had been jailed for putting up anti-government posters. "I don't have the words to explain how I feel...it's freedom."

Federal officials said 122 "hard-core" criminals had been sent to a prison near Talladega, Ala.

Temps occasionally have flared under the sizzling Florida sun, but there have been "no major problems at all" said National Guard Col. Richard Capps.

Round-the-clock airlifts have carried 3,600 emigrants to Eglin Air Force Base, where they are housed in an overflowing "tent city," hangars, barracks and a gymnasium. Officials said they hoped to begin sending Cubans to sponsors today.

"We're going to have a total of about 10,000 people here in two more days and it's going to take two more weeks to build enough tents to put them in," said Maj. John Toner.

In Miami, two abandoned NIKE missile sites are being readied to relieve overcrowding at Eglin, federal officials said.

Immigration and Naturalization Service officers processed 4,005 refugees Tuesday, including more than 600 from the 150-foot salvage ship Dr. Daniels. Reports from still-jammed Mariel say an even larger vessel, the Americus, would soon return with as many as 900 refugees.

All but a few dozen passengers aboard the Dr. Daniels were from prisons or on parole. The Cuban-Americans who chartered the ship said they weren't allowed to take the 158 relatives they set out to retrieve.

Bedford Hills Case To Jury

By EILEEN PUTMAN
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A Westchester County court jury has begun deliberating whether Junius Gray and Jimmie Lee Allen shot four people to death and then ransacked and robbed their homes in the quiet and affluent hamlet of Bedford Hills last May.

Allen, of Plainfield, N.J. and Gray, of Brooklyn, face sentences of 25-years-to-life in prison if convicted of the murders. Both men are 41.

During its first day of deliberations Tuesday, the jury asked to rehear instructions from Acting State Supreme Court Justice Duncan McNab on how to judge alibi testimony, the heart of the defense case.

McNab told the panel they must acquit if the alibis raised a "reasonable doubt" as to the defendants' guilt.

The jury asked for evidence showing numerous telephone calls made between Allen and Gray's homes during the three days before the homicides.

The victims were murdered in their bedrooms late the night of May 9 or early the morning of May 10. At least two of the victims were sleeping when they were shot in the head with the .32-caliber pistol and silencer that Assistant District Attorney Joseph West called a "silenced dispenser of death."

Killed were former Columbia University professor and former assistant secretary of state, Charles Frankel, 61; his wife, Helen, 61; Christopher Sperry, a 21-year old college student and son of a stock broker; and Nellie McCormack, 85, former Sperry family governess.

Frankel was head of the National Humanities Center at Research Triangle Park, N.C., at the time of his death.

The murder weapon was seized with Allen and Gray at a Brooklyn birthday party robbery 17 days after the killings. Ballistic tests matched the weapon with bullets taken from the victims' bodies.

Allen confessed the killings to a friend as the two drove to peddle jewelry taken from the Sperry and Frankel homes, according to trial testimony.

Testimony showed Gray had possession of furs and other items stolen from the homes, and two witnesses said they saw Gray in Brooklyn the night before the murders preparing for a trip "upstate."

Both men's wives took the stand to swear their husbands were home the night of the killings, but the prosecutor called the testimony "concocted fabrications."

West also labelled a "smokescreen" the defense claim that three hours was not enough time for Gray and Allen to go from Brooklyn to Bedford Hills — a one-hour drive in normal traffic — commit the crimes and return to Brooklyn.

Presenting Seniors Day

The Future Homemakers of America Chapter at Rose High School will present its second annual Senior Citizens Day on Friday, May 9 in the Home Economics Building and band room from 9:30 a.m. to 12 noon.

A spokesman for the chapter, noting that the project was started in 1979, said it was felt that senior citizens should receive a special tribute for their role in the community. The chapter has made the annual fashion show its yearly project.

Senior citizens will receive refreshments upon arriving in the food service laboratory, headed by Mrs. Elaine Tschetter, advisor. They will be entertained with music from the school's music department.

The fashion show will be presented by students in Mrs. Marion Wilkes' advance clothing and textiles classes and first-year home economics classes. A luncheon will be served, followed by a tour of the school. Tour guide will be from the cooperative home economics department with Mrs. Grace Carraway coordinating the effort.

Turtles Ready To Race Again

BALTIMORE (AP) — Dust off the Colostomy Cup. The turtles are ready to run again.

The Johns Hopkins Turtle Derby, for 45 years a rite of spring before falling victim to student apathy two years ago, is being resurrected May 16. The turtles race from the center to the edge of a painted circle for prizes ranging up to $100, with the Colostomy Cup going to the overall winner.

The Pitohomy Club, a medical students' organization running this year's event, has invited 500 students and turtles to participate.

200 GREENVILLE BLVD. MALCOLM C. WILLIAMS, JR., VICE PRES.

Local Residents Receive Honors

Four Greenville residents were honored recently at the Annual Meeting of the American Lung Association of North Carolina, Eastern Region. The annual meeting was held at the Holiday Inn in Williamston. Those honored were:

— John H. Bizzell. The new 1980-81 president of the association, Bizzell was inducted into the Hall of Fame which was established in recognition of the 75th anniversary of the association. He has also served on the state board of directors and was named Volunteer of the Year in 1974. Bizzell for many years was a member of the Greenville City Board of Education.

— Mrs. Edna Waldrop was also inducted into the Hall of Fame because of her many years of dedicated volunteer work for the American Lung Association. She was active with the Christmas Seal campaign for years and still spends several mornings each week doing volunteer work for the organization.

— Gary Taylor, a health educator for the North Carolina Department of Human Resources, Health Services Division, Eastern Region, was named 1979-80 Volunteer of the Year. Gary has served on both state and local boards, and has developed slide presentations to be used across eastern North Carolina to educate the public about lung diseases.

— Mrs. Jo Williams was named as the American Lung Association of N. C., Eastern Region's Public Health Nurse of the Year. A TB nurse consultant for the N. C. Department of the American Lung Association, Health Services Division, Eastern Region, Mrs. Williams was previously director of nurses for the Martin-Washington-Tyrrell County District Health Department.

City Council Agenda Set

The City Council will conduct public hearings on five items and consider various other business matters at Thursday's 8 p.m. session at city hall.

The hearings are scheduled on: the revised Subdivision Regulations and Manual of Standard Design and Detail; rezoning of the C. J. Flanagan property located off Beech Street just north of Third Street from RA-20 to R-6;

The preliminary assessment resolution for curb and gutter and a five-foot strip of paving on Beaumont Road and a portion of Evergreen Drive from N. Overlook to Evergreen; an application by Diamond Gore for a special use permit to operate a discotheque at 703, 705, and 707 Dickinson Avenue; and an application by Burroughs Wellcome for a permit to place a mobile home on the plant site for use as an office.

The remaining agenda items include: appointments to boards and commissions; consideration of three applications for renewal of mobile home permits; receipt of amendments to the 1979-80 Greenville Utilities budget ordinance; consideration of an ordinance amending the Community Development budget; considerations of resolutions condemning under the law of eminent domain easements and rights of way for the construction of 14th Street; consideration of the addition of Blount Street to the Community Development street paving program;

Scheduling of public hearings on three rezoning requests and on an amendment to the Thoroughfare Plan; consideration of a revised privilege license ordinance; consideration of an application for renewal of beer and wine privilege licenses; consideration of a request for refund for a duplicate privilege license purchased in error;

Consideration of 1979 tax releases; consideration of the submission of an application for state aid for mosquito control and a resolution designating an official to execute papers and documents for state aid; consideration of a request by the Greenville Jaycees for permission to have a fireworks display at the Fourth of July celebration at the Town Common; and consideration of street resurfacing bids.

Released On Lower Bonds

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Three Communist Workers Party supporters have been released from jail after a judge lowered their bond from $15,000 to $5,000.

Allen P. Blitz and Dorothy D. Blitz, both of the Martinsville, Va., area, and Lacie Sampson Russell of Greensboro posted bond and were released from jail after Superior Court Judge Edward K. Washington reduced the amount of the bond Monday.

The three, along with three other CWP supporters and two Nazi-Klan sympathizers, were indicted Friday by a Guilford County grand jury. Seven were charged with engaging in a riot last November during an antiKu Klux Klan rally. The eighth was charged with inciting a riot.

Five communists were killed after gunfire broke out at the rally. Fourteen persons, all affiliated with the Nazi party or the Klan, were indicted earlier on charges stemming from the shooting.

District Attorney Michael Schlosser opposed the bond reduction, but attorneys for the three CWP sympathizers argued that the bond should be lowered because the defendants voluntarily surrendered to police after their indictment Friday.

One of the Nazi-Klan sympathizers remained in jail Tuesday on the rioting charge, under $15,000 bond.

Sheriffs Round Up Customers

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) — The judge needed some jurors — so the sheriff sent out to Norm's Deli.

Customers standing in line in the Montpelier delicatessen Tuesday found themselves suddenly diverted across the street to Washington County Superior Court.

A shortage of jurors caused Judge Thomas Hayes to cite a seldom-used law that allows the court to solicit jurors from the street. Sheriffs looking for 13 additional prospective jurors found several standing in line at Norm's.

The jury drawing was in a suit brought by ousted Washington Electric Cooperative Manager Sally Ennis against the co-op. He contended his dismissal was illegal.

Because co-op members could not serve on the jury, Hayes called in reinforcements to ensure there were enough jurors. As it turned out, they weren't needed.

OPEC Oil Officials Meeting In Saudia Arabia

By ALY MAHMOUD
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) —
The OPEC oil ministers meet in Saudi Arabia today in an attempt to resolve their pricing differences and restore the unity that enabled them to dominate the oil market. The ministers failed at their last meeting, in Caracas, Venezuela, in December, to agree on a uniform price, setting off a free-for-all ranging from the $26 a barrel charged by conservative Saudi Arabia to $45.50 on spot markets.

The current meeting, in the Red Sea resort city of Taif, "is, essentially, an attempt to give OPEC a new lease on life after the Caracas slump, the most fractious deliberations on prices in OPEC's history," a Saudi diplomat said.

The diplomat, who requested anonymity, said the Taif conference has been overshadowed by "discouraging action," with some members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries unilaterally increasing their prices and reducing production.

Libya, Iran, Venezuela, Algeria are among the price hawks, while Saudi Arabia, Qatar, Iraq and the United Arab Emirates are the leading moderates, he said.

To bridge the gap, the ministers in Taif are to consider a Saudi proposal for a floor price adjustable on a quarterly basis in line with an index reflecting the impact of inflation on world trade and an exchange rate adjustment based on a basket of currencies.

The ministers also are to discuss a proposal for increasing the base price proportionately to the growth in real Gross National Product of the industrialized countries of the West.

Industry experts say that for every $1-a-barrel increase in average OPEC prices that retail gasoline and heating oil prices in the United States rise by 1.5 cents a gallon. A barrel contains 42 gallons.

Saudi Arabia's oil minister, Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, is reported lobbying for cohesion on the price issue at Taif so there will be no trouble at the ministers' regular meeting June 9 in Algiers, or at OPEC's 20th anniversary summit in Baghdad, Iraq, the last week in October.

However, the ministers are expected to avoid discussing production quotas at Taif because some members insist production levels are a matter of national sovereignty, and the OPEC hawks are pressing for production cutbacks that keep prices high even in the face of sagging demand.

POLITICAL CRACKDOWN
KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — The Ugandan government has ordered a police crackdown on all political party activity before general elections in December, Radio Uganda reports.

Pressure On To Ease Side Effects Of Cure

By FLOYD NORRIS
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Now that the government's anti-inflation policies apparently have begun to work — cutting deeply into sales of houses, cars, furniture and appliances — the pressure is on to soften the side effects a bit.

"Fiscal actions of the government should be directed to countering the recession and to softening the economic crunch felt by the unemployed and the poor," the AFL-CIO's executive council said Tuesday.

The pressure is coming as the economy slips into what some economists think may be a deeper recession than the one that occurred in 1974-75.

There is still no proof that inflation has been brought under control. And there are no signs that President Carter and Congress are willing to abandon their goal of a balanced budget next year — a goal that was announced in hopes of breaking the "inflationary psychology" that helped push prices up.

But there are signs that the Federal Reserve Board has eased the tight money policies that helped bring on the recession. Interest rates have been allowed to drop rapidly during the last few weeks and on Tuesday the Fed lifted a surcharge it had imposed on loans it makes to major banks.

"The Fed is pulling back from an all-out crunch," said David Jones, an economist with the Wall Street firm of Aubrey G. Lanston & Co.

The Federal Reserve has succeeded in virtually choking off growth of the nation's money supply this year. Economists think that success will start to show up in inflation reports soon, but it is clear it has already played a role in slowing the economy.

"The freefall in economic activity may be without precedent in the postwar period," said Allen Sinai, an economist with Data Resources Inc., an economics forecasting firm. Unemployment has hit 7 percent — the kind of statistic that generally goes with fighting inflation.

An early casualty of the recession could be the controls on consumer credit, which were imposed in March in an effort to make it more expensive to extend such credit.

After borrowing and spending at a record levels for several years, consumers were already cutting back when the controls were announced, and it is possible the government will decide the controls are unnecessary.

Charge Student In Holdup

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The FBI said charged a North Carolina A&T University student on Tuesday with the robbery of the Gate City Savings and Loan Co. on April 24.

The FBI said the student, Henry Edward Jones, 19, of Washington had not been taken into custody.

A spokesman for the FBI said some of the money taken in the holdup was found deposited at a bank.

APPARENTLY FLED
PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa (AP) — Thozamile Botha, a leading black nationalist and key figure in a recent black workers' strike against the Ford Motor Co. has apparently fled from South Africa, police and relatives said today.

LAND HO!—Excited Cuban refugees wave toward land at the Navy pier in Key West as they arrived aboard an ocean-going tug boat, "Dr. Daniels" Tuesday afternoon. Over 700 people were aboard, making this the largest single boatload of refugees since the boatlift began two-and-a-half weeks ago. President Carter declared the area a Federal disaster site Tuesday. Nun Says She Will Remain In Politics

BELMONT, N.C. (AP) — Sister Mary Barbara Sullivan, the only nun serving elective office in North Carolina, says she believes the pope has ordered only Roman Catholic priests to get out of politics.

As a result, she says she will keep her seat on the Belmont City Council until she is ordered to quit. Sister Barbara, 54, also is Belmont's mayor pro tem.

"He has referred that to priests and not to nuns," she said, referring to the pope's order. "He has said that about the clergy, and that does not include religious women. We are not classified as clergy."

Pope John Paul II has ordered Catholic priests not to hold elective office.

Sister Barbara is a nun at Sacred Heart Convent.

The Most Rev. Michael Begley, bishop of the Charlotte diocese, said he agrees that the pope did not intend for nuns to give up politics.

"The only word has been said about priests. No word has been said about sisters," he said.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The morning is good for doing something special for close ties. Avoid getting into any controversies at this time. Be on your best behavior and try to be more understanding.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) An exchange of views with allies and more mutual cooperation can result in fine benefits today. Relax in the evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Make this a most productive day in business before you engage in social activities. Steer clear of a group meeting today.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Study new ideas well before going ahead with definite plans. Seek the right help for career aims. Strive for happiness.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You can handle regular responsibilities more intelligently now. Strive for more harmony with family members.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Impress upon associates that you understand current trends and get more cooperation. Show more thought for loved one.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Find new appliances that can be used to good advantage in regular routines. Be sure to keep any promises you have made.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Concentrate more on how to advance in career matters. You have hunches that should be followed at this time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Obtain the help you need from influential persons. Exercise good judgment in all your business dealings. Be wise.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Go to the right sources for the information you need, and later give attention to home affairs. Express happiness.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Handle financial affairs early in the day so you'll have more time for social activities later. Show that you have poise.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Go after what you most desire and be sure of yourself for best results. Spend the evening with congenials.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Take time to study your position and know where you stand and how to progress in the future. Be more optimistic.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those intelligent young people who should have an education that is a fine combination of the old and the new. Make sure that religious teaching is not neglected and good health habits are observed.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Craftsmanship from Craftique—a collection of 18th century English and American reproductions. The design motifs of these distinctive bedroom and dining room pieces originated with the great designers—cabinetmakers of 18th century England: Thomas Chippendale, George Hepplewhite and Thomas Sheraton—with selected accent pieces of earlier Queen Anne styling. The fine furniture that embellished the drawing rooms of Colonial American had its roots in the elegant 18th century designs. These designs are faithfully recreated by the craftsmen of Craftique.

Today's Cryptokuip clue: Y equals O

The Cryptokuip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Consider The Censor's Burden

By PETER J. BOYER
 AP Television Writer
 LOS ANGELES (AP) — It is an awesome enough responsibility to keep one's own thoughts and fantasies in some sort of acceptable order; imagine the burden borne by TV network censors, who must mind the thoughts of a nation.

Consider the case of CBS and the Tahitian breast: Last week, CBS aired a fine movie based on the life of Paul Gauguin, the 19th century businessman who chucked the bourgeois existence for art, which he sought in the primitive life of Tahiti.

ABC Again Is Nielsen Winner

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS listed the four highest-rated programs, but ABC won the network's prime-time ratings race for the second week in a row.

The 1979-80 season ended April 20 with CBS on top by one-tenth of a ratings point. ABC has won both weeks' competition since then.

CBS' "Dukes of Hazzard" was the top-rated show for the period ending May 4, according to the survey by the A.C. Nielsen Co. It was followed by "M*A*S*H," "60 Minutes" and "Flo," with ABC's "That's Incredible!" fifth.

The rating for "Dukes of Hazzard" was 24.8. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with television, just under a quarter saw at least part of the program.

ABC had seven shows in the second 10 in the ratings, and compiled a score for the week of 16.7 to CBS' 16.3. NBC was third at 14.5.

The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 16.7 percent of the country's TV-equipped homes were tuned to ABC.

A couple of specials provided a bright note for NBC. The Country Music Association awards show was No. 6 in the ratings and the John Denver-George Burns motion picture, "Oh, God!" was 11th.

CBS scored with "Gideon's Trumpet," a "Hallmark Hall of Fame" presentation starring Henry Fonda. It was No. 16 for the week while ABC picked up points with "Battle of the Network Stars," 21st, and "AnnMargret's Hollywood Movie Girls," 25th.

but the artist's life is a rich and varied one, and the eccentricities of art are not always suitable for television. An artist is likely to run with loose crowds and, depending upon his style, even paint nudes. Thus was posed the challenge for the CBS censors.

Among Gauguin's circle of friends was Vincent Van Gogh who, betrayed by Gauguin, severed his left ear and delivered it to a lady friend. A jarring scene, to be sure, but we viewers could handle it, the censor decided.

The real challenge — three of them, actually — came later, when Gauguin (played by David Carradine), was in Tahiti. One of the sights he took in was a ritual dance in which a young native woman removed her outer garment and danced, nude from the waist up.

"To us," said CBS censor Don O'Brien, "it was a gratuitous scene. All she had on was a sarong, and she was doing a rather vigorous dance."

The female breast, when the body to which it is attached is involved in a vigorous dance, may give rise to naughty thoughts, CBS decided. The scene was cut, showing her shaking from the stomach down.

That same organ, the female breast, was not deemed lascivious in the next challenge. In this one, the breast belonged to a native girl who was serenely posing for Gauguin. No bounce, no problem.

The third challenge was stickier. Again, the breast belonged to a native model, but she was imprudent enough to swat at some flies that were buzzing around her. Three times. This caused her breasts to jiggle, in a manner, presumably, not dissimilar to the movement caused by vigorous dance. The censors flinched.

Robert Wood, former president of CBS, happened to be the producer of "Gauguin the Savage," and, according to a TV Guide report, threatened to withhold the film if CBS didn't allow the fly-swatting scene. The scene was allowed, and Wood reportedly commented:

"Breasts don't mean anything to the networks. It's the nipples they're worried about. The girl was slapping herself and her nipple was shown."

To which O'Brien responds:

"He should know better. He was president of the CBS Television Network when "Papillon" was shown on the network, and there were naked breasts (including nipples) on that. It's all a matter of how it's done."

The breast is deemed offensive, apparently, when the female to whom it belongs is swatting flies or dancing vigorously, or, one must assume, doing both simultaneously.

Hunt Sees Tough Campaign Coming In November

Ex-Prisoner Says Life 'Frustrating'

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Trying to build a normal life has been frustrating, says James Brunson, who spent six years in prison for a slaying that many believe he did not commit.

Last Thursday marked a year since the 23-year-old's release from the Harnett Youth Center.

He had been serving a life sentence there in the rape and beating death of Vanessa Dale Lewis, a 9-year-old girl. The child was attacked Feb. 22, 1972, while on her way to school.

"I still remember that day of getting out," Brunson said. "I could have still been locked up."

Brunson was freed after a Superior Court judge ruled that newly discovered evidence cast doubt on his conviction. Later all charges against him were dropped.

His older brother, Lee Junior Brunson, has been indicted and is awaiting trial later this month in the girl's death.

"Just about every day, I do a little job hunting," the younger Brunson said. "I get tired of sitting around, not being able to do what I want to do. All the applications I've put in — I sign the application and get ready to work, and then they tell me that they don't have anything now.

"They take my phone number and say they'll call. I guess maybe it's a lack of experience on my part. Down here, they're laying off people some, too," he said.

Brunson recently began studying for his high-school diploma. "I feel like I'm remembering a whole lot of things I knew before."

He said he plans to become a counselor for young prisoners or other troubled youths.

Brunson said the community has been supportive and, "They ask me sometimes why the police couldn't see that I was framed, but nobody says they still think I did it."

OPEN HIGHWAY SEGMENT

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — The Panamanian government has opened a 98-mile stretch of the Pan-American Highway, leaving only 50 miles to be completed between Alaska and Argentina.

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A landslide victory behind him and his supporters' cheers still echoing, Gov. Jim Hunt set the tone Tuesday night for a tough — and potentially bitter — fall campaign against Republican I. Beverly Lake Jr.

Hunt's 70 percent majority over former Gov. Bob Scott for renomination and his victory speech contained a pair of messages for the fall campaign.

First, Hunt's overwhelming majority in the Democratic primary showed that the assumptions about his strength were correct, and that challenger Lake faces an uphill battle — even with the financial support of conservative Sen. Jesse Helms' organization.

Secondly, Hunt began the new campaign by making clear that Lake's background

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

Chance of rain mainly over the southeast early Friday, otherwise fair and mild temperatures through the period. Highs in the 70s, except 60s in the mountains and 80s on the coast. Lows at night in the 50s except 40s in the mountains and 60s on the coast.

— his father's segregationist campaigns of the early 1960's — will figure as an issue.

"He laid down the gauntlet," one top Hunt aide, asking not to be named, said of the speech. "He's going to make Lake the issue."

Hunt did so by indirect reference, repeating that his was a campaign for "human equality."

"I'm optimistic because I believe the people of North Carolina will respond to a positive campaign. I believe they will respond to a campaign that responds to the best in people, not their worst," Hunt said to cheering supporters.

"I believe they'll respond to a campaign that's based on progress, on fairness, on human equality, and on full and equal opportunity to all people of our state," he added.

The campaign, Hunt said, will ask a question. "Will North Carolina look to the future with faith and hope, or with fear and doubt?"

Hunt used some of the same terms — including human equality — in the final days of his campaign. And in an interview before the vote, Hunt acknowledged his was a reference to the segregationist politics the Lake name represented in the Democratic primaries for governor in 1960 and 1964. Lake, while conservative, professes more moderate racial views.

Hunt also went out of his way to sound a conciliatory note of praise for Scott as "a great governor." Hunt no doubt remembers the spiteful comments attributed to another Democratic nominee, Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles, after a bitter 1972 primary. Bowles became the first Democratic nominee for governor to lose to a Republican in this century.

Lake, whose campaign is being run by Helms' strategists, found encouragement in Ronald Reagan's landslide victory in the GOP presidential primary.

He went out of his way to link himself with a Reagan candidacy — one Democrats acknowledge may prove popular in North Carolina this fall.

"It shows the people of North Carolina are basically conservative. I'm a conservative and my philosophy is very, very similar to Governor Reagan's," Lake said. "In fact, I don't know many things we disagree on."

But there may be still another message in Lake's primary returns. Although he too won a landslide in a day of landslides, his opponent still won nearly 20 percent of the GOP vote — a good number for an unknown like C.J. "Charlie" Carstens, who with his flowing white beard is a bit eccentric by Republican standards.

His vote, some Democrats insisted, was a measure that some Republicans aren't enthusiastic about Lake, either, because he was a Democrat until last year or because of his far-right connections.

The best analysis, however, may have come from the badly embarrassed Scott, who looked to the fall as he shared a stage with Hunt.

"With the kind of support you've manifested in this campaign," Scott said to Hunt, "it (the fall race) ain't going to be near as tough as I thought it'd be."

How Tar Heel Representatives, Senators Voted

Roll Call Report Service
WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes April 24 thru April 30.

HOUSE
REVENUE SHARING — The House rejected, 192 for and 225 against, an amendment to preserve the state revenue sharing program slated for extinction in next year's budget. The amendment sought to retain $1.7 billion in fiscal 1981 budget authority for the program. The vote came during debate on the resolution (H Con Res 307) setting budget limitations to be adhered to when the House and Senate consider individual spending bills. Federal revenue sharing programs for cities and other local government units

Rep. Barber Conable, R-N.Y., a supporter, said that on a national average states pass through 60 percent of their revenue sharing money to local governments and school districts, and that education "is the major beneficiary" of the program.
Rep. Robert Giarmo, D-Conn., an opponent, said the federal government should not share "revenues which it does not have," and that "it is wrong for the federal government to go out and borrow money and give it to the states for programs (they) in many instances are well able to finance themselves."
Members voting "yea" want to retain federal revenue-sharing with states.
Reps. James Martin, R-9, and James Broyhill, R-10, voted "yea."

Reps. Walter Jones, D-1, Charles Whitley, D-3, Ike Andrews, D-4, Stephen Neal, D-5, Richardson Preyer, D-6, Charles Rose, D-7, W.C. Hefner, D-8, and Lamar Gudger, D-11, voted "nay."
Rep. L.H. Fountain, D-2, did not vote.
SOCIAL SPENDING — By a vote of 201 for and 213 against, the House rejected an attempt to add $1.2 billion to the proposed fiscal 1981 federal outlay for social programs. The money was to have been obtained in large part by tightening the credits oil companies get against taxes they pay foreign governments. The vote came during debate on the congressional budget resolution (see preceding vote), which anticipates a fiscal 1981 federal budget of $611.8 billion.

Rep. Fortney Star, D-Calif., a supporter, said "it is quite clear that for more than 20 years U.S. multinational oil companies have been claiming foreign tax credits that Congress never intended them to have."
Rep. James Jones, R-Okla., an opponent, said a major tightening of the foreign oil tax credit would cause higher domestic energy costs and render American oil companies "disadvantaged in competing for foreign oil."
Members voting "yea" favor higher social outlays.
Jones, Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and Gudger voted "nay."
THE FEDERAL BUDGET — The House rejected, 65 for and 352 against, an amendment to increase federal budget outlays next fiscal year by $5.4 billion. While most of the additional outlay would go for social programs, a small part of it — $60 million — would be for defense. The amendment was offered during debate on the fiscal 1981 congressional budget resolution (see previous votes). In keeping with the goal of a balanced budget, the amendment sought to raise the $5.4 billion by requiring the Ways and Means Committee to close "tax loopholes" in areas such as the oil depletion allowance.

Rep. Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., the sponsor, said the amendment would bolster "desperately needed domestic programs."

Rep. Samuel Stratton, D-N.Y., an opponent, said: "When (Solarz) says his plan would add $60 billion to the defense budget ... let me quote a great statesman, the president of Pakistan, President Zia: 'That is peanuts.'"
Members voting "yea" want primarily to close $5.4 billion worth of "tax loopholes" and spend virtually all of that amount on domestic social programs.
Jones, Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and Gudger voted "nay."
SENATE
FILIBUSTER — The Senate failed, 53 for and 35 against, to get the three-fifths majority needed to cut off a filibuster blocking final passage of a civil rights bill.

The bill (HR 10) allows the U.S. attorney general to file suits in behalf of persons allegedly mistreated in state mental hospitals, prisons and other institutions.
No supporters of the bill spoke prior to the cloture vote. A filibusterer, Sen. James Exon, D-Neb., said the bill would "place the bureaucracy of the Justice Department on the backs of all the elected officials and the appointed officials who have responsibility to run the (state) institutions..."

Members voting "yea" favor enactment of the bill.
Sen. Jesse Helms, R, voted "nay."
Sen. Robert Morgan, D, did not vote.
'LIKE MEDICINE'
PEKING (AP) — Coca-Cola, the drink of the American masses, is now available to the Chinese masses but so far there is no rush to buy it. Some say it tastes like medicine.

Trio Neglected

First Names
NEW YORK (UPI) — Three American presidents neglected to mention their less-familiar first names when filling out biography reports for "Who's Who in America," the publication listing the prominent reports. They were Stephen Grover Cleveland, Thomas Woodrow Wilson, and John Calvin Coolidge. President Herbert Hoover omitted his middle name, Clark.

Piano Lessons Growing Popular Among Adults

CHICAGO (AP) — Piano lessons are growing in popularity as a leisure-time activity for young, affluent adults, according to piano teachers who work with adult students.

At Baltimore's Peabody Conservatory, faculty member Marjorie Liss recalls, "Our preparatory school was originally geared to children. We didn't seek out adult students. But four or five years ago, they started coming in off the streets."

Many of Miss Liss' students are young marrieds from two-income families without children.

"Frequently these people have a need not to buy more things, though they have the money," she says. "They seem to need some other kind of outlet, a diversion from their work. Most are studying because it feels good. Their commitment is extraordinary."

The National Piano Foundation, a non-profit organization with headquarters in Chicago that promotes piano study, is cultivating adult interest in the instrument.

"We're funding workshops that encourage piano teachers to teach the skills adult students want, such as improvisation, sight reading and jazz," says Dr. Robert Steinbauer, music department chairman at Kansas State University and an advisor to the foundation.

One foundation grant resulted in the Piano Consortium, a New York group dedicated to bringing "piano dropouts" back to lessons. Interest in the Consortium program is "just astonishing," a spokesman reports.

Last year, the Piano Consortium ran ads in New York City papers, announcing five piano classes. Before the first session, the schedule had been expanded to 19 classes. Now the course is running in 10 states in YMCAs and community colleges.

"It's incredible how many people out there are aching to learn how to play," says

Shelby Neely, the group's program coordinator.

Finding the time to practice is a problem adult students solve in various ingenious ways. Gerald Holbrook, a Chicago pianist who teaches many adults, reports that one of his students, who sells real estate by day, practices in the basement of the brokerage firm on an old and battered keyboard. Others borrow church pianos.

"Often they'll be able to use a practice room in a local college," he reports. "I always say, 'By all means, do it.' If a piano's not being used, it won't hurt to play it."

Here are other tips from the National Piano Foundation for adults contemplating lessons:

—Know what you want to learn. Is it classical music, Broadway show tunes, ragtime, hymns, modern jazz? Concentrate on your favorite kind of music.

Bronzing An Elephant Is Rare Work

EDITOR'S NOTE — Gilding the lily is one thing, but bronzing a live, bull elephant? That's exactly what a Bulgarian-born sculptor has done in the name of conservation. Some say it's the most bizarre wildlife experiment in Kenya's 100 years of professional hunting.

By ANDREW TORCHIA
Associated Press Writer
NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Some people cast their baby's shoes in bronze. Sculptor Mihail Simeonov thinks much bigger. He's casting a wild, five-ton bull elephant in bronze.

Mihail, a New Yorker born in Bulgaria, calls it art. His critics say the project is an expensive and unnecessary demonstration of anesthesia and foundry skill, with no artistic merit whatsoever.

The IRS says it's tax-free as long as Mihail gives the $2 million he expects to make to conservation efforts, as he has said.

The $100,000 project has been four years in the planning and within a few months the first life-sized bronzed casts will be available — yours for a quarter of a million apiece. But hurry, Mihail is only casting 10 and an Egyptian millionaire and a Saudi Arabian billionaire might grab off the first two.

The tough part, convincing the elephant through sedatives that this would make him immortal, has been accomplished. That hushed the first round of critics. They said Mihail was likely to kill the noble beast with his "birdbrain scheme."

The men placed salt licks near the $7 million ranch, owned by the Saudi, that served as headquarters. Eleven elephants came within range and 100 men, wives and reporters rode in the 11 vehicles, two light spotter planes circled overhead and a government helicopter hovered at treetop level to scare the elephants from some dense bush along a creek.

Once in the open, a bull elephant about 40 years old, the prime of an elephant's long life, was chosen. A government veterinarian fired a sedative dart and within a half-hour, the elephant dropped to his knees.

"Mr. Mihail, it's all yours," said the vet, Ishtiak Chawdry.

Men mixed water into a quick-setting molding powder — the kind a dentist uses to make impressions of teeth — and ran bucket relays of water to the beast. Mihail and his assistant slathered the white goo on the elephant.

After a few minutes, they peeled the compound off in numbered sections, still flexible but bearing all the wrinkles on the elephant's skin. Mihail made permanent plaster of Paris impressions later in the day and into these the bronze would be poured, back in his New York studio.

The elephant was out for more than two hours and the vet dosed him three times with sedatives and twice with stimulants to maintain a correct level of sedation.

"If that ear starts flicking, tell the men to get out of there," warned Ted Goss, head of Kenya's anti-poaching unit.

Mihail had not quite finished molding the second side when Chawdry shouted: "Everybody out. Get those vehicles out of there." The bull elephant, perhaps now enraged, was waking up. He struggled docilely to his feet, however, stood quietly and then ambled off toward the creek, feeding on thorn trees as he went.

Mihail, who prefers to use only his first name, says it was much easier than he thought. Within three hours from the time of departure, the men were back in the swimming pool at the ranch.

Why would one want to cast an elephant?

Mihail says as the bronzed baby shoes are a memento of lost youth, the elephant cast is a reminder of a vanished era when animals, not men, ruled the earth.

"If there were something larger than an elephant, I would have picked it. But the elephant is the right animal because everybody has a good feeling about elephants. And only by casting him can you capture him, wrinkle by wrinkle, hair for hair."

Memories Of The Maharajahs' Wealth

By SUZANNE F. GREEN
VARANASI, India (UPI) — As the sun slips into the holy Ganges River, the last light burnishes the skyline of palaces abandoned by India's former princes, sole survivors of a lost age of grandeur and pageantry.

Far below on the river bank, men in white dhotis set fire to funeral pyres of devout Hindus who came, according to tradition, to die beside the sacred Ganges.

"This is the VIP ghat," says a riverboat tour guide. A ghat is a stone platform on a riverbank for cremations. "Only maharajahs and politicians and other important figures are cremated here."

The 565 princes who lost sovereignty over an area larger than all of Europe when India gained independence from British colonialism in 1947 were an integral part of the nation's religion and culture since medieval times.

When the last of their ashes are shoveled into the Ganges and the last royal Moslem bodies are buried, India will have severed its ties with an opulent past.

To millions of poor and illiterate peasants, the maharajahs still embody a belief in that past and the link between gods, men and natural phenomena.

Many former princes still serve an important ceremonial function in major religious festivals and have little other function. But some have transformed their palaces into hotels, others into museums. Some have become businessmen. A few are members of parliament. One, Majhar Ali Khan, is a movie star.

Bhibuti Narain Singh, 62, former maharajah of Benares (now Varanasi), is one of those who has opened his palace to paying visitors. He still dresses in orange silk with ropes of pearls, topaz and diamonds dangling from his turban, strands of precious gems twinkling around his arms, neck and chest when he presides over Dusshera, Hinduism's most important festival.

A matched pair of white horses draw his carved ivory carriage, inlaid with semiprecious stones. A magical gilt boat painted and carved with water flowers and fish carries his tattered royal cortege down the river.

Singh still lives in his palace, now maintained by Uttar Pradesh State. The museum section houses an impressive arms collection, ancestral robes, jeweled elephant livery, ceremonial coaches, an astronomical clock built in 1872. But life is not so grand as it once was.

Outside, goats frolic and cows graze on weeds where once dazzling fountains played on graceful lawns now gone to seed.

Many of the maharajahs, nawabs and nizams were benevolent rulers. Some have become modern political and philanthropic leaders. But they are plagued by the charge their jeweled forbears depleted India's wealth and broke the nation's back.

"The maharajahs were funny and degenerate creatures," said Hari K. Singh, a teacher and tour guide here. "To the awakened Indian masses they never deserved any respect, with very few exceptions. Today they are just relics of a dead institution."

This attitude puzzles Singh. Heir to one of the more enlightened princedoms, he now serves his former subjects as chancellor of Benares Hindu University and is a well-known Sanskrit scholar.

"Why are the princes painted so black?" asked the troubled maharajah, dressed in traditional white cap, embroidered long shirt, calf-hugging churidar trousers and embroidered slippers turned up at the toes.

"Something has happened to human nature," he paused to fold his hands in traditional greeting to tourists peering through broken window panes from the splendid reception hall preserved next door as part of his museum.

"They accuse us of ruining the forests and killing off the wildlife. But no maharajah would dream of killing off game so his sons would have nothing to shoot."

Many Indians remember with bitterness the princes who squandered their wealth.

India's history is rich with stories of big game hunts for rare animals, extravagant automobiles, stables of magnificent elephants, fabulous palaces, debauched days of leisure and jewels.

Former subjects of the late Maharajah of Gwalior, in the modern state of Madhya Pradesh in northern India, recall their prince killed nearly 1,500 tigers, a record for the princes.

Jarmani Dass, who served as prime minister to the late Maharajah Bhopinder Singh of Patiala, in the northern Punjab State, writes in his book "Maharajah" of the days when more than 350 young women serviced his master in his harem.

Executors of the late Nizam of Hyderabad's estate put 37 pieces from his fabulous collection of precious jewels — including 414.25 carats of partially cut emeralds — on sale last year with an opening bid designated at $25.4 million.

The sale was never completed because of pressure to keep the precious baubles as a memento of India's glorious past.

The nizam, once heralded as India's most exalted prince and the world's richest man, reportedly used an 184.75 carat diamond as a paperweight.

All of India's former princes were not extravagant and debauched. There is much evidence to support their claims that many were good and wise rulers.

A foreign economic development specialist says, "In spite of, or perhaps because of, their power, many princes were better custodians of natural resources than the politicians of independent, democratic India have been."

He went on to praise the princely irrigation systems and forestry and wildlife conservation programs that protected the rights of villagers (who comprise 70 percent of India's population) better than the politicians do in modern states.

Many of the former princes and their descendants still live decadent lives, hosting alcoholic parties and jetsetting to Europe and North America. Newspapers report their antics back to India, where life is sober and asceticism is a virtue.

But many more princes were not equipped for other roles in life when they lost their privy purses under Prime Minister Indira Gandhi in 1971. They have fallen on hard times.

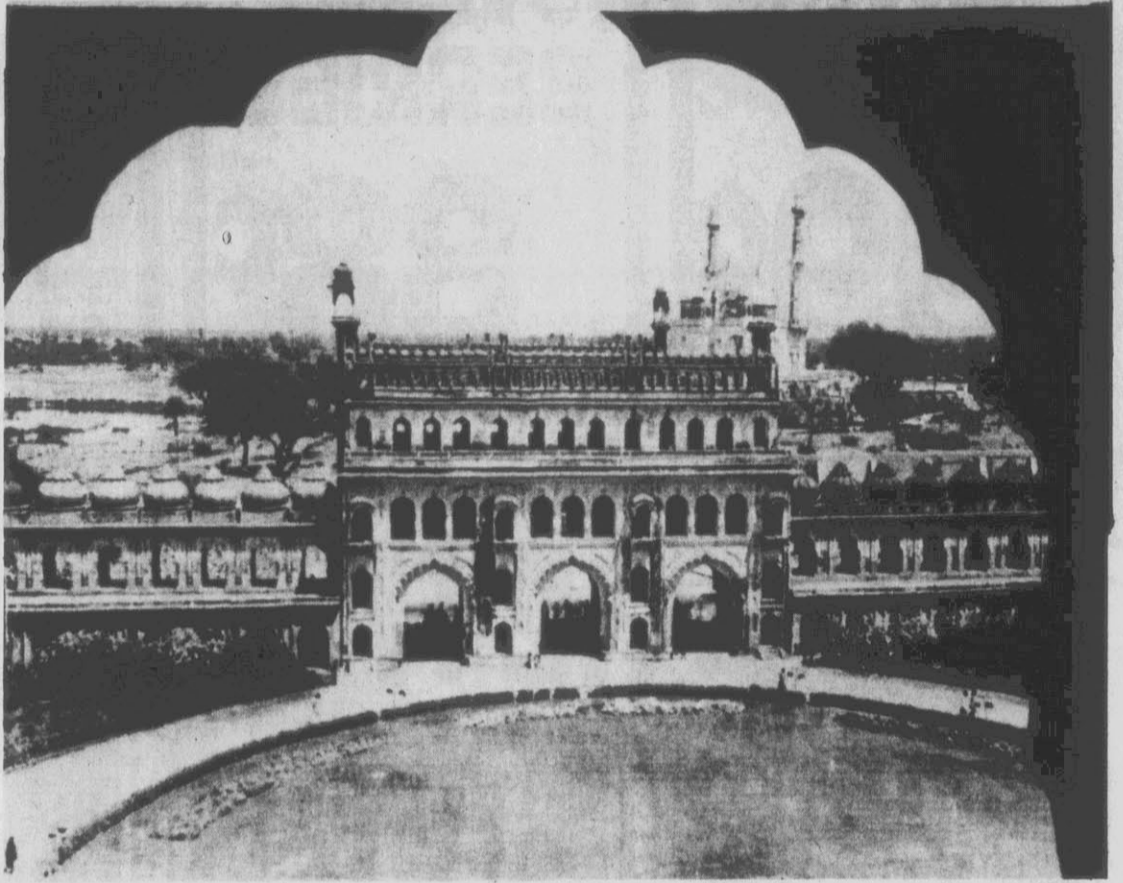

In New Delhi, 30-year-old Aliraza Khan, his 22-year-old sister and his mother, who claims to be the begum of the late prince of Oudh in what is now Uttar Pradesh state, have lived on the second class platform of the railroad station for the past four years.

The begum, who reclines daily on a tattered divan behind a wall of trunks and suitcases, has filed a claim for property that is now the government headquarters of Lucknow, the capital of Uttar Pradesh.

Recently, authorities moved the claimants to the throne of Oudh — which the British broke into smaller states in 1857 — to a railroad building near the platform. But friends of the family say the reclusive begum still hauls carpets, paintings, jewelry and other heirlooms from her wall of trunks to sell for food and spending money.

In Lucknow, the state government hands out allowances totaling $6,000 a month to descendants of the kingdom's rulers and their relatives.

At the beginning of every month more than 1,200 members of the former royal family line up outside to collect handouts that range from 25 cents to $100.

The fund originally was set up to support the royal sports of partridge and quail fighting and kite flying.

Many of the princes have turned their palaces in Varanasi, reputed to be the oldest living city in the world, over to the government or converted them into poorhouses.

In their home states, many of the princes have turned their grand palaces into hotels and museums to help defray maintenance costs and pay taxes.

Other palaces, such as the once splendid Khilwat Palace of the Nizam of Hyderabad, were seized by the government for use as offices.

The late nizam's son-in-law, Nawab Nadir Ali Mirza, has launched a losing court battle to redeem the grand palace from bricklayers and plasterers who are converting graceful arches into awkward holes for air conditioners.

The former princes lament the publicity their more frivolous colleagues have received and are attempting to preserve their history for future generations.

Shriraj Meghraj Jhalak Makhwana, the 58-year-old former Maharajah Dhrangdhra (now part of the northwestern state of Gujarat), said, "If you go to publications about monarchic rule and lifestyles, you will find most accounts politically motivated or personally biased, the larger part of them concentrating on individual quirks and foibles."

Dhrangdhra is having trouble raising support and enthusiasm for an organization to look after the princes' interests. He feels the 1971 act of Parliament that took away the princes' privy purse was "shabby treatment."

"One might have expected some individual consideration," Drangdhra mused. "After all, you can't maintain elephants with no income."

Displaying The Proclamation

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The original document of the Emancipation Proclamation by President Abraham Lincoln which declared freedom for slaves in areas controlled by the Confederate States will be on display at the Nelson Gallery of Art in Kansas City, May 13-18.

The document, on loan from the National Archives, is insured for $1.5 million. Lincoln had informed his cabinet in 1862 of his intention to issue the proclamation, awaiting only a Union military victory in the Civil War, and it was officially proclaimed on Jan. 1, 1863, following the battle of Antietam.

Shipyard Success Encourages Unions In The South

By THOMAS FERRARO
NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (UPI) — On March 31, the United Steelworkers and Newport News Shipbuilding Co. signed their first contract — expanding organized labor's small but growing grasp on the traditionally anti-union South.

The $300-million contract, covering 15,500 workers, capped a three-year USWA representation struggle at Virginia's largest private employer.

Within 24 hours, the nation's fourth largest union began focusing on 36 other area firms where employees, from machine operators to nurses, have voiced interest in becoming Steelworkers.

"Our victory at Newport News is going to give us impetus in the South as our story spreads," said USWA Subdistrict Director Jack Hower. "We know it's not going to be a cakewalk, but we'll grow."

The contract was among the latest and biggest strides for organized labor in the South, where unions are engaged in high stakes battles with industry — many of the firms transplanted from the North.

While industry has long viewed the South as having an anti-union climate and relatively cheap work force, organized labor now sees the turf as a major area for growth.

Since 1970, union membership in 11 Southern states has climbed 12 percent, from 2.5 million to 2.8 million, while nationwide membership rose just 6 percent, from 19.4 million to 20.5 million.

Despite these gains, only an estimated 13 percent of the South's non-agricultural work force is unionized, compared to the national figure of 23.6 percent.

Industry officials concede the Steelworkers' entry into Newport News may accelerate Southern union drives. But they question the unions' chances of further widespread success.

They say increases in the South were expected. But they now predict an evening off as the number of available members shrink and industries became more attuned to opposing unions.

Although Southern firms generally pay below union scale, they say they pay enough to satisfy most workers and keep unions out.

"I don't know what impact the Steelworkers at Newport News is going to have other than getting them a lot of new members at the shipyard," said Charles Stebbins, a Virginia Chamber of Commerce consultant.

"Southerners have traditionally rejected unions," he said. "They haven't seen them as being able to help them. It remains to be seen if this is going to change."

Said a Labor Department official who requested anonymity: "Unions have made inroads in the South, but my gut feeling is that when the economy improves, as so-called labor consultants become more entrenched and manufacturers bring wages closer to union scale, there will be a leveling off."

Virginia AFL-CIO President Julian Carper sees

it differently. He hails the Steelworkers' well-publicized struggle at Newport News as evidence of organized labor's ability to help the working man.

"I think this is going to be a new beginning for the labor movement in the South," he said. "More and more employees are asking to organize and this will continue."

From 1970 to 1978, the number of union members in Alabama jumped from 204,000 to 257,000; in Mississippi, 76,000 to 103,000; Florida, 299,000 to 367,000; Tennessee, 274,000 to 303,000, and Virginia, 245,000 to 258,000.

Increases were also recorded in Kentucky, 250,000 to 274,000; in Texas, 523,000 to 575,000; North Carolina, 137,000 to 147,000; Georgia, 251,000 to 271,000, and Louisiana, 193,000 to 227,000.

South Carolina was the only Southern state to have a decrease, 81,000 to 76,000.

During this period, union membership rose nationwide by 1.1 million, although the percentage of the work force in unions actually slipped in both the South and nationwide.

In 1970, 15 percent of the South's labor force belonged to unions while nationwide the figure was 27.9 percent. The decline to 13 percent is attributed, in part, to a major shift from manufacturing, long a union stronghold.

A southern obstacle, one unions have been able to hurdle with varying degrees of success, are "right to work" statutes that prohibit union membership as a condition of employment. There are no such laws in most Northern states.

Since 1975, General Motors Corp., based in Detroit, has opened 10 manufacturing plants in the South, employing a total of about 5,000 persons.

While GM's Northern plants are unionized, employees in only about half of the automotive giant's Southern plants have voted to join organized labor.

"GM's policy is to remain neutral," said GM spokesman Bruce MacDonald. "In the South, some of our workers have chosen to go union, others have not."

Mike McKeivitt, a director with the National Federation of Independent Businesses, Inc., in Washington, D.C., predicts big companies will continue to switch to union while smaller firms will continue to fight.

"They are making progress with some of the bigs, but don't expect them to get far with the small ones," said McKeivitt, who estimates less than 5 percent of the association's 600,000 members are unionized. "The attitude of the small independent businessman, particularly those in the South, is that they are willing to take on unions and hang tough," he said.

"Unions would love to move into these small companies. They realize there is gold in them hills. We're saying, 'We're ready to do battle.'"

Faced with these declarations, the AFL-CIO, a conglomeration of 105 unions with a total membership of 13.7 million, wages a counter-Southern assault.

"We're continuing to grow and over the past decade the South has been where we've done it with some of our biggest numbers," said Kevin Kinstler, a field representative in the AFL-CIO's organizing office in Washington.

"What the Steelworkers were able to do in Newport News is going to help, it's a major victory, but it's not going to miraculously open doors. It's going to take a lot more hard work."

Steelworkers pried open doors at Newport News, a subsidiary of Tenneco, a

They began an organizing drive in 1976 at the request of employees unhappy with the independent Peninsula Shipbuilders' Association, which represented workers since the 1930s and had become known as a weak "company union."

Steelworkers unseated the PSA in a Jan. 31, 1978, representation election, but the shipyard refused to recognize the USWA until last October when ordered to do so by the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Earlier last year, the Steelworkers went on strike in an effort to push the company to the bargaining table, but gave up after 12 weeks and awaited the court ruling on the shipyard's challenge of the election.

The 42-month contract Steelworkers obtained for maintenance and production workers will raise hourly wages, when new automatic step increases are included, by up to 60 percent.

Since mid-1978, Steelworkers have won 22 of 24 union representation elections in its six-state southern district.

"People in this part of the country are becoming more interested in joining unions," said USWA District Director Bruce Thrasher. "Northern companies moved south because of what they saw as antiunion attitudes."

"They thought they could get away with inadequate pay. Times are changing."

Renew War On Vandals

— Greensboro police have renewed their fight against vandals who throw objects at moving cars from bridges and then vanish.

Their efforts were prompted by an incident last week in which a Greensboro man was nearly killed after a metal fire hydrant cap was thrown through his windshield as he passed under the Market Street bridge on U.S. 29.

Vernell Stallings, 40, suffered serious facial lacerations and severe damage to one eye last Monday. Police have no clues as to who was responsible.

Lt. R.L. Talbott said Stallings' accident was the 11th since April 1, but the first in which anyone was seriously injured. Police have increased patrols in the area and a tactical support unit has been called in to help track down the vandals.

"It's a good possibility that it's the same people behind all these incidents," Talbott said. "It sounds like it might be kids but I don't know that for sure."

Talbott said the persons responsible for the attack on Stallings' car could be charged with assault with a deadly weapon.

"It (vandals throwing objects off bridges) happens every spring whenever the weather gets pretty," Sgt. John Barrow said. "Those kids can toss something over and be back in their house before we get there. Sometimes I don't even think they know what they're doing."

Small Towns In 1980 Road Atlas

NEW YORK (UPI) — More than 51,700 U.S. and Canadian towns and cities are included on the maps in the 1980 Road Atlas published by Rand McNally. The smallest is Stanley, Idaho, pop. 47.

The publisher reports that size and population are, of course, major considerations in deciding whether a community shall be shown on the map, but a town which has a "special characteristic or unique attraction" is most likely to be listed no matter how tiny it is. Many of the smaller towns shown in the new edition are included because they can be featured in special Road Atlas information panels as sites of recreational or historic interest.

part of the annual energy fair. The polished reflector concentrates the sun's energy to 500 times its normal power at ground level. (AP Laserphoto)

Challenges Stereotype Of The Elderly Citizen

By IKE FLORES
Associated Press Writer
ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Perry Gresham wants to change attitudes the young have toward their elders, and the ideas older people have about themselves.

A longtime educator and former college president, the white-haired Gresham is not exactly leading a revolution. But he's convinced he's come up with an important idea that may have meaning to young and old.

He states it simply: Humans are not all laboring under a death sentence helped along by diminishing power and ability. Life can, and often is, better as one grows older.

The aging process is a series of renewals of energy, ability and enjoyment, Gresham says. It is not the methodical wearing-down-and-out of the mind and body mechanism.

"Most old people do not fit the stereotypes that have accumulated through years of misunderstanding," says Gresham, 72, president emeritus of Bethany College in West Virginia, director of five corporations, writer and lecturer. He lives in Central Florida part of the year.

"Most of us are not useless and embarrassing to others," he says. "We are not like the typical TV caricatures depicting gentle foolishness or simple-mindedness. An old person does not have to be regarded as a nuisance — an old fool to be ignored or discarded."

He knows this may not come as much of a surprise to some of his peers, particularly his elderly friends and colleagues still active in education, business, the arts and other professions. But he thinks the idea may have escaped the great majority of the population, from the Golden Ager to all of those "growing older" in their 40s, 50s and beyond.

The tall, husky septuagenarian says he came upon his views rather abruptly.

He was preparing to address the American Association of Retired Persons in St. Louis, Mo., one night about the various pitfalls of growing old — failing memory, decreased hearing and eyesight, forgetfulness, general infirmities and so on.

"Suddenly, I said to myself, 'My God, I can't drive another nail into their coffins,'" Gresham says. "I realized then that my thinking was all wrong."

"My mind, set on the conventional concepts of aging, had blinded me to what could very well turn out to be the greatest discovery of my life," he says. "I had misread the data. Life does not run down like that. The actual fact is that life is a series of renewals."

His text on the subject was abandoned, and he later felt so strongly about his newfound sense of growing old that he wrote a book about it.

Called "With Wings as Eagles," the soon-to-be-published book is a sort of "how-to" or "self-help" work for those piling on the years — from the 40s and 50s onward.

Filled with his own philosophy as well as tips from Gresham's many friends — comedian Bob Hope, Sen. Barry Goldwater, the late symphony conductor Arthur Fiedler — the book is a compendium of sensible, practical information on what to expect along the aging way. It tells how to prepare for old age, how to make the road easier and what to do when you get there.

He says one reason he wrote the book is that he senses a "sort of contempt for the old" in this country. Because of such attitudes, many old people have lost their pride, "their sense of self-regard," Gresham says.

"A new attitude on aging begins with each of us," Gresham says. "If you go on thinking the way people have always thought, you deserve what you get."

Mass Produce Ancient Porcelain Art Of China

MILTON, Mass. (AP) — Patterns on centuries-old Chinese porcelain are specific, not random, designs hand-painted by artisans on assembly lines, says a museum curator.

The discovery by H.A. Crosby Forbes and his colleagues at the Museum of American China Trade will help collectors identify and date pieces of the porcelain, which can be found all over the world.

"The blue-and-white porcelains were probably the largest distributed and mass-produced product before the Industrial Revolution...the first product distributed on a worldwide basis," he said.

"They are extremely important," he said. George Washington owned some, and pieces have been found at "every historical dig in North America."

Forbes and his colleagues examined thousands of plates, cups and serving dishes during a 10-year study and found that as early as the 16th century, the Chinese were mass-producing landscape art on porcelain for export.

"I think it's the first time anybody's looked at these things," he said. "What we found out was that it (the design) was not random at all."

"What the breakthrough was, was realizing that they were specific designs, and they had characteristics to identify them.

"We had two birds poised in flight above a pavilion," he said, citing one pattern. "Where we see that, the rest of the pattern follows...We found out there was this consistency in each pattern...They just weren't random at all."

The blue-and-white porcelains are commonly called "Canton," "Nanking" or "willow ware" — all the designs lumped under a general heading, and this bothers Forbes.

"I was trained to be an historian," said Forbes. "I just don't like loose terms."

"What we're trying to do is to develop a system of nomenclature so we don't have to call them all 'Nanking.'"

Can Muffle The Noise In Home

NEW YORK (UPI) — Noise in a home creates tension, but it's easy to do a number of easy things to muffle the racket volume, according to an article in the May edition of Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Among the suggestions: new vinyl-faced ceiling tiles which are water-and grease-resistant may now be used to reduce noise in kitchens and bathrooms where older types could not be used; major appliances will run more quietly if set on vibration-absorbing pads; small appliances can be placed on cork or rubber mats.

Heavy drapes hung in folds and thick carpeting with underlayment also reduce noise. A noisy air-conditioner can be quieted by a rubber gasket set between the cabinet and the window frame. A facing of inexpensive plasterboard will cut down the noise passing through a wall and quiet a room adjacent to a kitchen, bath or playroom.

"Soundproofing a house can also improve its appearance, increase its resale value, and make it more energy efficient," the magazine points out.

The museum is exhibiting 40 of the most important master designs that have been isolated and named. And, it will produce a catalogue of 30 to 40 designs and hopes to follow that with a kind of dictionary of 100 or more designs.

The porcelain was made at Ch'ing-te Chen, "the great kiln site for Chinese emperors," about 400 miles north of Canton and shipped there by coastal junk from Nanking to be exported.

The way Chinese artisans worked on the porcelain was described in letters from Father D'Entrecaille, a Jesuit priest who visited the Chinese town in the middle of the 18th century.

One group of painters outlined the designs on the clay. Another group filled them in with blue paint. A third group outlined borders, and a fourth filled those in.

"They did have an assembly line, you might say," Forbes said. "Some of those borders might have 300 to 400 cells, and each cell has 19 brush strokes."

The artisans painted the designs in cobalt blue oxide on clay, then coated the clay with a glaze, often tinted bluishgreen, and fired the pieces at 1300 degrees centigrade.

The Chinese learned as early as the 14th century that blue was the only color that could be relied on to withstand that heat. The porcelain is extremely hard and makes a ringing sound when tapped. And, because the design is under the glaze, it is durable. Pieces are safe even in modern dishwashers.

Forbes says there are countless designs, and he assumes the artisans at Ch'ing-te Chen worked from master designs, copying them by hand, without using stencils, onto the clay.

The blue-and-white landscape designs were imitated in Europe in such things as Delft ware.

In Staffordshire, England, potters borrowed some design elements from the Chinese to create the "blue willow" pattern on stoneware. But these designs were not hand-painted; they were mechanically applied with a type of stencil.

Students In ECU Visit

ECU News Bureau

About 100 high school juniors from 44 North Carolina counties attended ECU's annual Scholarship Weekend, April 19-21, at East Carolina University.

The purpose of the weekend was to acquaint specially selected high school students with the campus and with campus life. Participants were selected on the basis of Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test (PSAT) scores and recommendations from principals and guidance counselors.

While at ECU the students participated in tours of the campus, athletic events, class visitations and numerous recreational academic activities. They also received information about scholarships and financial aid that is available to qualified students.

The largest percentage of the attending students indicated that math and the sciences were the fields that interested them the most.

Trained Cyclist Wears Helmet

NEW YORK (UPI) — Motorcyclists who have taken rider training courses are more likely to wear a helmet than untrained riders, according to the Motorcycle Safety Foundation, a non-profit organization devoted to the safety of riders.

A survey of 10,000 riders from 11 states which do not have mandatory helmet laws showed 78.4 percent of trained riders use helmets, while the general average of riders using them is only 55 percent, the Association said. The survey also showed 30 percent believe helmets should be required by law.

Illustrator Sees Self As Artist

By DEAN GOLEMESKI
Associated Press Writer
LITCHFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Television has claimed many victims and among them is the illustrator.

"Illustrators in the '40s and '50s were akin to movie stars. Today, it's different. There are stars, but not the public recognition. It's because our society is TV-oriented rather than magazine-oriented," says Ben F. Stahl.

Stahl is an award-winning illustrator who doesn't "see myself as that good. But I am curious, and that's the nice thing. I never stop learning."

"The knowledge required is unbelievable. From jungles to Scottish castles, I have to gather all the information" before beginning an illustration.

Many people have probably seen Stahl's work and don't know it. His illustrations have appeared in magazines, on book covers and in books for children and adults. His illustrations for children's books have earned awards from the American Institute of Graphic Arts and the National Science Teachers Association.

Some of his illustrations have also been used on television. His illustrations for the series, "Little House on the Prairie," and the mini-series, "The Immigrants," are shown before and after the commercials within the programs.

Most recently, three of his book illustrations were selected for an annual New York exhibit by the Society of Illustrators.

Stahl admits there is a difference between an artist and an illustrator. An illustrator, he says "produces on demand and has a deadline. Also certain concepts are dictated to him and he must deliver."

"A painter," he says, "has no pressure, except pressure to please himself."

"An artist never sees things as ho-hum. You're always searching, always curious," says Stahl.

"You try to bring your own personal outlook and way of expressing to an illustration. The only problem is time. The challenge is there. So, I say a prayer and hope it will come off."

Stahl says he paints "loosely" but with more "expression" than some illustrators. Rather than trying to make a photographic reproduction of a scene, he says he tries to express the scene with paint. But he does use photographs to help develop ideas for illustrations.

"If you're careful, you don't let the photo take over," he says. "I establish my viewpoint on the book and then try to get that point across."

His mother was an amateur artist and his father, Ben Stahl, was one of the country's top illustrators in the 1930s, having his work published in the Saturday Evening Post and other national magazines.

"It's satisfying to be a successful illustrator, to make it in a tough world," the younger Stahl says.

"There's always an element of luck. The difference is in the standards set. My father was more of a painter than illustrator. He set extremely high standards that I kept shooting for. I'm always shooting, reaching to be a better artist."

China's Bronze Age On Display

NEW YORK (UPI) — An exhibition on the "Bronze Age of China" underway at the Metropolitan Museum of Art through July 9 will subsequently go on tour to Chicago, Fort Worth, Los Angeles, and Boston. The exhibition from the People's Republic of China includes more than 100 objects of bronze, jade and terracotta from about 1500 B.C. to about 210 B.C. recovered from recent archaeological excavations in China. The show is sponsored by the Coca-Cola Co.
