Tide Of Refugees Strains Officials

By DAN SEWELL
Associated Press Writer
KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — The tide of Cuban refugees reaching U.S. shores swelled past 25,000 today and officials struggled to keep control in overcrowded processing centers strained by the 18-day "Freedom Flotilla."

Federal officials reported nearly 1,000 new arrivals had docked at Key West by 9 a.m., adding to the 4,051 who came ashore on Wednesday in a fourth straight record day of refugee arrivals.

The new refugees pushed the total to 25,041.

More than half have arrived this week, prompting Wednesday's announcement that another processing center will be opened at Fort Chaffee Army Reserve Base near Fort Smith, Ark.

The continually increasing pace defeated efforts to keep order. Federal coordinator Tom Casey said the Freedom Flotilla was the toughest relief effort he's handled since the Buffalo, N.Y., blizzard of 1977.

In Buffalo, "I went through, saw what was going on and did my thing," he said. "Here, day-to-day it changes. It seems Castro is jiggling us. He is playing games with us, is trying to embarrass us."

One day no one can come; the next day there is a flood."

In Washington meanwhile, the Carter administration announced new standards for seizing private boats involved in taking refugees from Cuba.

Justice Department spokesman Robert M. Smith said boats now will be seized only if they are found to meet one of three criteria: they are unsafe, there are large numbers of Cubans aboard, or their owners are engaged in profiteering.

There have been reports of some boat owners charging Cubans for the trip to the United States.

The FBI, meanwhile, said it has identified and is watching a number of Cuban spies among the refugees. FBI agent Arthur F. Nehrbass would not say how many suspected spies had been picked out, but The Miami Herald quoted sources who said there were at least 20.

"An extremely small percentage of refugees have been identified as Cuban intelligence officers," said Nehrbass, head of the Miami office.

The Herald said CIA agents also were helping screen refugees at the processing centers around Florida, reportedly seeking a wide range of information about events in Cuba and people left on the communist island who might be willing to serve as U.S. spies.

Meanwhile, exhausted National Guardsmen said they couldn't move refugees out of Key West quickly enough and were running out of places to transport them to, as well as food and water.

Officer Larry Jones said nearly 30 flights to Eglin Air Force Base — where 6,700 refugees were housed Wednesday — and several dozen buses to Dade County facilities were moving nearly 5,000 refugees a day, "but we still fell about 600 behind today."

He estimated nearly 5,000 refugees remained in Key West, most jammed into a former Navy hangar where overflowing portable toilets fouled the air.

But Gen. K.C. Bullard said the refugees had been very patient.

"They just seem to be happy to be here, and they're willing to put up with the bad conditions," he said. "We're trying to keep the people moving, so they don't get too restless."

Slipping Economy Poses Early Budgetary Threat

By ROBERT PARRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is well on its way to writing the first balanced federal budget in 12 years, but a skidding economy threatens to throw it out of whack before the ink is dry.

The House approved a $611.8 billion balanced spending plan Wednesday and the Senate is expected to follow suit soon with its own defense-oriented version, perhaps today.

But the action comes amid growing concern that the deepening recession and rising unemployment could force the 1981 budget out of balance not long after the fiscal year begins Oct. 1.

The House version passed

225-193, largely on Democratic votes. Most Republicans opposed it, apparently out concern its spending level is too high and will result in a deficit.

The Senate hoped to complete work today on the $612.9 billion spending plan submitted by its Budget Committee. Differences between the House and Senate proposals then would be worked out in a conference committee.

Whatever compromise emerges, the much-discussed plan to balance the budget could be upset if the recession now settling over the land proves longer and deeper than the relatively mild downturn congressional economists have predicted.

Some economists now fear the recession could push unemployment to 9 percent — the high-water mark of the 1974-75 recession — and turn the $2 billion surplus in the House budget into a $40 billion deficit.

Rep. Richard L. Ottinger, D-N.Y., claimed that last month's sharp increase in unemployment — from 6.2 percent in March to 7 percent in April — was proof "we're just kidding ourselves" in projecting a balanced budget.

However, House leaders say they are holding to their relatively optimistic economic forecasts and were encouraged by recent declines in interest rates, a development that could help the construction industry.

Higher unemployment hurts the federal budget by reducing tax revenues and by raising spending for social programs, such as unemployment benefits and food stamps.

After approving the balanced 1981 budget, the House voted 241-174 to raise the 1980 spending ceiling by $24 billion to accommodate higher-than-expected spending in the current year. The change would increase the projected 1980 deficit from $29.8 billion to $42.8 billion.

Also Wednesday, the Senate handily defeated two liberal attempts to trim the Budget Committee's proposed huge increases in defense spending while restoring some money cut from social programs.

One plan sponsored by Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., to reduce defense by $2.5 billion and add $6.4 billion for domestic programs lost 83-13.

A second proposal by Sens. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., and Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., to lower defense spending by $2 billion and raise domestic spending by $2.4 billion was tabled on a 54-30 vote.

The defeat of the two major liberal alternatives means the House and Senate almost certainly will go into conference later this week with wide differences over defense and social spending.

The House favors $147.9 billion for defense while the Senate Budget Committee wants $155.7 billion, or $5.2 billion more than the $150.5 billion President Carter requested. The House and Carter also favor more modest domestic spending cuts.

The House list of cuts and savings includes hospital cost containment, elimination of Saturday mail delivery, loss of 50,000 public service jobs under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act, food stamp reductions, and an end to the $1.7 billion revenue-sharing program for states.

The House budget also recommends earmarking $10.3 billion from Carter's 10-cent-a-gallon import fee on gasoline for tax cuts to encourage business productivity, and for rolling back scheduled Social Security payroll tax increases.

Cuba Visits A Catalyst

By The Associated Press

The desperate refugees streaming out of Cuba are driven from their communist island by irritants as petty as worn-out shoes and late buses, by miseries as grim as hunger and by a sense that hard times will soon get harder, say Cuban and other knowledgeable sources in Latin America.

The catalyst that produced this reaction, the observers agree, was the visits by tens of thousands of Cuban-Americans over the past two years — exiles returning from Miami and elsewhere to see the relatives they left behind.

These American visitors arrived "fat and happy," one refugee recalled.

"You could almost trace each refugee to a specific encounter with a relative or friend who came back," said one Brazilian official who maintains contact with Cuba. "Nobody likes to see his dumb cousin doing better than him."

The sources, including pro-government Cuban informants, spoke with The Associated Press on condition that they not be named. Although some represent Latin American governments that are staunchly anti-communist, most of these nations maintain diplomatic relations with Cuba, and the sources are in close touch with the situation there.

The exodus of Cubans — more than 24,000 have made their way by boat to Florida in the past month — is not the only one in the Caribbean.

Cuban President Fidel Castro dismisses those abandoning his nation as "anti-socials and delinquents." He has swollen the exodus with convicts — common criminals as well as political offenders — pulled from his jails and put aboard the boats headed for Key West.

The sources in various Latin American capitals offer an explanation less simplistic than Castro's. They say his past successes have combined with present failures and future problems in a volatile mix.

"What were the major achievements in health, sanitation and education in the 1960s are matter of fact in the 1980s," said the Brazilian source. "After 21 years, there is boredom, there is frustration."

The younger generation now takes for granted the accomplishments of the Castro revolution and thirsts instead for such "frivolities" as American-style jeans and flashy cars, said Argentine Foreign Ministry sources.

Castro's major miscalculation, Peruvian sources said, was opening the door to the visitors from the United States, who came bearing "nylons, tape cassettes and soft sports shoes," as one said.

"For years, the government told us that Cubans in the United States were living in poverty. ... We could see the government was lying," said one refugee.

Graduation

East Carolina University will hold its seventy-first Commencement exercises Friday beginning at 10 a.m. Dr. William J. Bennett, executive director of the National Center for the Humanities will be the speaker.

The exercises are scheduled to be in Ficklen Stadium or in Minges Coliseum in case of rain. Graduates from the summer and fall of 1979 and the spring of 1980 will receive degrees.

Guerrillas Ambushed

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli commandos striking from the sea ambushed two bands of Palestinian guerrillas deep in southern Lebanon early today, killing four guerrillas, the Palestine Liberation Organization reported. Six others were reported wounded.

New Palestinian disturbances were reported, meanwhile, in the Israeli-occupied Arab sector of Jerusalem. Israeli Radio said Palestinian students from two schools stoned Israeli cars, and about 200 youths started marching toward the Jewish quarter of the walled old city of Jerusalem but were dispersed.

Lebanese provincial authorities said the Israelis moved up the coast by sea and ambushed two Palestinian jeeps, killing three guerrillas. Six other guerrillas were wounded in Israeli grenade and machinegun attacks at two or three points along Lebanon's coastal highway.

State Auditor Race In 'Unparalleled Turmoil'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The Democratic race for state auditor was thrown into turmoil Wednesday when it was learned that one of the candidates was registered as a Republican and actually voted in the GOP primaries Tuesday.

"This is unparalleled. It's just never happened before," said Alex K. Brock, state elections director.

"This is something we just didn't need."

J.E.B. Davis of Cary, who ran third in the primary voting Tuesday, said Wednesday he voted in the GOP races after election officials told him he was registered as a Republican.

Neither of the three candidates in the Democratic primary received a clear majority. State Sen. Ed Renfrow led with 43 percent of the vote, followed by William S. Chestnut, finance director at Pembroke State University, with 30 percent and Davis with 27 percent.

Brock said the State Board of Elections would have to determine the fate of the primary now.

He said the board could take several routes, including:

— Ruling that the primary involved only two qualified candidates, Renfrow and Chestnut, and declare Renfrow the nominee, nullifying thousands of votes by those who were unaware that Davis wasn't qualified.

— Ordering a runoff between Renfrow and Chestnut.

Davis, a 42-year-old public accountant and Wake Technical College instructor, moved to Wake County in 1975 and registered in 1976 as a Republican in Fuquay-Varina. He moved to Cary and, in 1979, was transferred to a new precinct.

He did not file any change in party affiliation, according to election records.

Davis said Wednesday he had been a Republican but became "disenchanted several years ago."

"I never really paid much attention" to his registration, Davis said. "I reckon I didn't change it. In 1976, I don't really know how I was registered."

When he filed as a candidate for the state auditor's job, Davis said, he believed he was a Democrat.

Davis said he voted in the Republican primary Tuesday because "I would not like to have an election in which I did not vote."

56,000 People Nazis Or Fools: Covington

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Harold Covington lost the Republican primary for North Carolina attorney general but says his 43 percent showing demonstrates that "There are 56,000 people in this state who are either Nazis or fools."

Covington, 26, is the leader of the National Socialist Party of America, one of several groups known generically as the American Nazi Party. And he did, in fact, win 56,006 votes in losing the GOP nomination to former federal prosecutor Keith Snyder of Asheville in Tuesday's primary.

Covington, who waged the barest of campaigns, came a lot closer than Republican state leaders, who had disavowed his candidacy, had hoped.

"I don't say it's an embarrassment," said state party chairman Jack Lee.

"It's a freak." "Good grief," said Snyder, the victor, when told of Covington's total. "I'm appalled. I really am...I would hope that it's because I just am unknown."

Covington became well-known in the state by publicly espousing his party's white-supremacy line and vocally defending 16 Nazis and Ku Klux Klansmen who face a variety of charges stemming from the shooting deaths of five persons at an anti-Klan rally in Greensboro last fall.

"There are many closet Nazis in the Republican Party. Most conservatives are closet Nazis. If you scratch a conservative you'll find a Nazi underneath, just as if you scratch a liberal you'll find a communist," Covington said.

Covington carried 45 of the state's 100 counties. Most were rural, but he won in some large areas too.

Covington lost Forsyth County, which includes

Winston-Salem, by a mere 75 votes out of more than 5,000 cast.

"I don't think there are that many people in the party who would share his philosophy," Snyder said. "I would be awfully disappointed if there were."

Lee said most of the Covington vote came from Republicans who don't know who he is and simply cast their vote because his name came first or had a familiar ring.

Covington disputed that argument.

"I don't think ignorance played that much of a role," he said. "Either way, the Republicans don't come out of this looking too hot. There are 56,000 people in this state who are either Nazis or fools."

Snyder will face incumbent Democratic Attorney General Rufus Edmisten in the fall election.

Dear Abby

Servicemen Want Mail

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: According to a recent article in the Pacific Stars and Stripes, an American serviceman stationed in Korea wrote a Dear Abby letter telling you how sad it was to see those guys run to mail call every day hoping to get a letter, and walk away each time empty-handed and downhearted.

You published his letter and asked your readers to write to these lonely servicemen. The response was overwhelming! More than 10,000 letters came pouring in from school classes, church groups and concerned citizens. (One kid sent his entire allowance — $1 — to make sure "his" soldier had enough money to return a letter.) Many sent postage stamps and promises of cookies and goodies to come. It was a super show of support for the American serviceman.

What a break for those guys stationed in Korea. How about doing the same for us non-commissioned servicemen stationed in Okinawa? We're also far from home, lonesome, and would love to get mail. I promise you, you'll make a lot of guys happy.

IN THE SERVICE IN OKINAWA

DEAR IN: You're on! Anyone out there who wants to correspond with a serviceman on Okinawa — and don't forget women are stationed there, too — address your letters to: CONCERNED NCO; USACC-J, SB (PROV) BOX 244; APO SF 96331.

DEAR ABBY: This is for the widow who says older women are turned off by men who suggest that they'd sure like a good home-cooked meal. I happen to be an older man who has dated a lot of older women, so may I respond?

There are a lot more older women around than older men, so since they're lonely, let them make the overture by saying they were "forced to buy tickets" to something and need an escort, etc.

Most men who live alone are tired of restaurant food, so why not admit they'd appreciate a good home-cooked meal?

Nearly every widow I've dated is loaded from what her husband left her, and if I try to get romantic I find out that she may have contributed to her husband's death by denying him love, so the poor guy killed himself making money to forget his sexual boredom.

Personally, I'd rather eat alone at the Elks Club than take out some over-the-hill broad and plunk down $12 or $15 for her dinner. Plus, most of them can drink me under the table, and at today's prices, I can't afford it.

CALIFORNIA WIDOWER

DEAR WIDOWER: Now let's hear it from the distaff side:

DEAR ABBY: A widow wrote to say that most widows are turned off by gentlemen who say, "Gee, I'd sure enjoy a good home-cooked meal," and if a man really wants to make a big hit with a lady he should say, "I certainly miss company at mealtime. What time shall I call for you?"

Well, that woman can speak for herself. I'm a widow who loves to cook, and I'd consider it a pleasure to show a man how well I perform in the kitchen. So far the men I've met seem interested only in how well I perform in the bedroom! LOVES TO COOK IN CONN.

DEAR ABBY: The other day you had a letter in your column from a woman who signed PRETTY FEET. She said her husband was crazy about her feet and was really turned on by them. She wanted to know if maybe he was some kind of "nut."

You told her that he was no nut; he had a foot fetish, and it was nothing to worry about.

Well, Abby, you'll never know how much that explanation meant to me. You see, ever since I was a little kid, I'd get real excited over girls' feet. I never understood why. I used to feel ashamed when I'd ask a girl if I could kiss her foot. I'm sure a lot of girls thought I was weird.

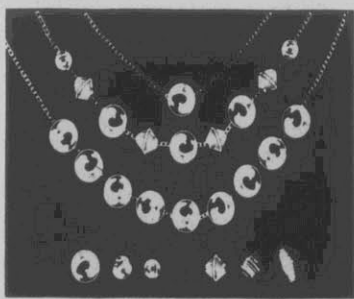

I'm a grown man now, and I'd still rather hold a girl's foot than her hand. Thanks for printing that letter. It's a great relief to know I'm not alone.

Service League Names Members

Nine provisional members of the Greenville Service League were elevated to full membership at the May meeting of the organization.

They recently completed five months of volunteer activities which included work in the Gift Shop and chapel at Pitt Memorial Hospital, sewing layettes and making patient tray favors. Community activities included work with the Red Cross Bloodmobile drives, Greenville Art Center, Operation Santa Claus, Christmas baskets and Scouting.

President Mrs. Jack Whichard welcomed new members and cited their contributions. The group inducted is as follows:

Betty Walling Brewer; Pamela Gunnin Burkart; Annette Williams Dawkins; Jean McIlhenny Gaskins; Sue Hunnicutt King; Anne Haynes Lewis; Mary Beazky Rob; Nanette Whitehurst Whichard; and Ann Huffines Whitehurst.

A former resident of Fort Worth, Tex., Mrs. Brewer is the mother of two children. Her husband, Thomas B., is chancellor of East Carolina University. Her interests include gardening, sewing and needlework.

Mrs. Burkart's husband, Thomas E., is a doctor and they have lived here for a year and a half. She attended Auburn University. She is a member of the League of Women Voters and Pitt County Medical Auxiliary.

Mrs. Dawkins is a graduate of Wake Forest University. Her husband, Howard Jr., is a plastic surgeon. They are the parents of two children. She enjoys needlecraft, tennis, decorating and cooking.

The mother of two children, Mrs. Gaskins' husband, Charles, is president of Moseley Brothers.

She attended Sweetbriar College and graduated from UNC-CH. She enjoys sewing, needlepoint, hand crafts and reading.

A graduate of the Medical College of Virginia, Mrs. King is married to John E. King and they have one child. She is a member of St. James United Methodist Church, Lynndale Garden Club and Alpha Delta Pi.

Mrs. Lewis' husband, Jasper L. Jr., is a dentist and they have three sons. They have lived here three years. She is a member of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church and Lynndale Garden Club.

Mrs. Rob is married to Dr. Charles Rob and they have four children. She attended the Nightingale School of Nursing, University of London, England. Mrs. Rob is a member of the Pitt County Medical Auxiliary and St. Pauls Episcopal Church.

Married to Ormond Whichard, Mrs. Whichard is a native of Pitt County and graduated from ECU with a degree in home economics. The Whichards have two children.

Mrs. Whitehurst's husband is J. C. Jr. and they have three children. She attended Greensboro College and graduated from Duke University. Mrs. Whitehurst is a member of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, is a Sunday School teacher and served on the Pitt County Council on the Status of Women.

Members voted to purchase equipment as approved by the Hospital Gifts Committee. The league will provide two camperships for boy scouts and will contribute to the Salvation Army and the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department.

At a recent Bloodmobile visit to Procter and Gamble,

Mrs. Raymond MacKenzie Jr. reported the collection of 64 units with 12 workers giving 47 and a half hours. She asked for volunteers for the June 4 visit to Union Carbide. Mrs. Charles Snell reported the Gideons had placed Bibles in the hospital chapel. An arrangement was placed in the Pediatrics Unit and 330 tray favors were used during Easter. The report was given by Mrs. Kelly Barnhill. Three layettes were provided during April.

Mrs. James Graham reported the donation of five pieces of equipment to the Lending Chest. The Laughinghouse Fund received several memorials and answered four calls. Program Chairman Mrs. Frank Layne reminded members of the luncheon to be held May 21 at 11 a.m. at the Greenville Country Club.

League officers elected for the upcoming two years are Mrs. Robert VanVeld, president, Mrs. Layne, first vice president, and Mrs. Edward C. Smith Jr., second vice president.

Catherine Shaw Weds Saturday

WASHINGTON—The marriage of Catherine Emerson Shaw and Robert Alton Allen Jr. was solemnized Saturday at 3 p.m. in the First United Methodist Church here. The Rev. Odell Walker, church minister, officiated.

Capt. and Mrs. James Emerson Shaw are parents of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Alton Allen of Greenville are the bridegroom's parents.

A program of organ music was presented by Doug Cutler. The bride's sister, Mrs. Walter Gerard III, sang "Evergreen" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Escorted and given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white silesta over white peau de soie designed with a Queen Anne neckline outlined in silk floral Venise lace beaded with clusters and scrolls of bridal pearls. The lace extended down to and encircled the empire waistline. The long fitted sleeves were enhanced by inserts of matching lace with the cuffs edged in scalloped lace. The flared skirt, accented at center front with a sunburst of knife pleats, extended into an attached chapel train. She wore a waltz length veil of illusion, pencil edged and featuring rows and motifs of silk floral Venise lace. It was attached to a capulet overlaid in matching lace. The bride carried a cascade of silk roses, stéphanotis, rubum lilies, daisies, heather in yellow and white with variegated ivy.

bordered with satin ribbon. The gown was designed with a fitted bodice and gathered skirt. She carried a nosegay of daisies, miniature carnations and ivy.

Honorary bridesmaids included Mrs. Al Gerard and Mrs. Doug Gerard, sisters of the bride, Elizabeth Gerard, niece of the bride, Miss Sarah Talley, Mrs. Mack Byrd of Salisbury, Mrs. Steve Lewis of Greenville and Miss Carol Sermons of Helen, Ga. They wore a silk gardenia in their hair.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and groomsmen included Steve Allen, brother of the bridegroom, Bill Meacham, Rodney Sawyer, all of Greenville, and Jim Kleinert of Wrightsville Beach.

Church hostess was Mrs. Walter Gerard Jr.

The mother of the bride selected a formal gown of seafoam lustre-glo designed with an open neckline. The bridegroom's mother selected a Nile green knit fashioned with a high split collar. Both wore corsages of cymbidium orchids.

Mrs. Tom Stowe, great aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Myrtle Allen, grandmother of the bridegroom, were remembered with white orchid corsages.

The bride graduated from Washington High School and ECU. She is employed at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. The bridegroom graduated from Rose High School and attended ECU. He is presently attending Pitt Community College.

The couple plan to live in Greenville.

The bride's parents entertained at a reception in the church fellowship hall.

Guests were greeted by Dr. and Mrs. Neal Patrick. Receiving were the bride's parents, parents of the bridegroom, the grandmother of the bridegroom, and the bridal couple.

Mrs. Tommie G. Glenn cut and served the wedding cake. Punch was poured by Mrs. Parker Gerard. The bridal couple cut the traditional first slice. Assisting in serving were Elizabeth Gerard, Ruth Tanner, Lisa Brown and Roxanne Ferrell. Mrs. Robert E. Tyndal presided at the bride's book.

Good-byes were said to Mr. and Mrs. Wayland Sermons. Music was provided by Doug Cutler and rice bags were distributed by the honorary bridesmaids.

The parents of the bridegroom entertained the wedding party and close friends at an after-rehearsal dinner Friday evening in the Rib Room, Lemon Tree Inn. The bridal couple remembered their attendants with gifts.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I'm waiting for someone to boycott the "Spending Olympics" being held this year in the United States.

Somehow the president's message just hasn't filtered down to the people yet. A couple of us were in the supermarket the other day when Mayva threw a couple of lawn chairs in her basket.

"Mayva," I said, "you don't need those lawn chairs. Didn't you hear the president a few weeks ago invite you to a recession?"

"I know, and we can't go," she said, then added brightly, "But Herb and I are sending a check!"

Peggy pursed her lips into a pout and said, "Spoilsport! Spending money is the only adventure left that hasn't killed research rats."

Adventure! Peggy had put her finger on it. Spending in this country has become one big game. You buy a car and bands play, balloons fly and someone hands you a $500 rebate.

You buy a water bed and get a free pair of cowboy boots. You purchase a freezer and get a three-months' supply of hamburger. You purchase a subscription to Reader's Digest and you get a shot at the big sweepstakes. Inside every bag of dog snacks is a coupon for 1/2 off the next one you buy. Send in three soap labels and win a trip to Europe.

Spending is fun. Have a hamburger at McDonald's and while you're there, if your ticket stubs match up you may win $10,000. Baseball players on strike? Who cares? Play baseball while you're flying American airlines and you may be the big winner and fly free for a whole month.

For awhile, banks entered the Spending Olympics, but they were rank amateurs compared to manufacturers. If you opened a savings account for $10,000 and left your money in for three years, they gave you a rain bonnet in a plastic carrying case and gave you a choice of suckers from the Lollipop Tree.

If you took the same $10,000 and made a down payment on a condominium, you got a microwave oven, a chance on a cabin cruiser, a weekend with the Royal Family in Monaco, and a part in a Burt Reynolds movie.

The only way I can see it is the government is just going to have to "sell" a recession to the people with a Recession Sweepstakes. Make a game out of it. The first one to end up at the end of the week without spending more than he makes will be given a free ticket to pass IRS audit, collect $200 tax-free and have a chance to live in the greatest financially-sound country in the world . . . Switzerland!

Quite A Fight Ahead

The North Carolina primaries have been concluded. As had been forecast, President Carter won the Democratic presidential primary and Ronald Reagan the Republican.

On the state level, Gov. Hunt was an easy winner over former governor Bob Scott and Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green won an apparently close victory for renomination.

In years gone by politics would have been over in North Carolina following the primaries. Not so today. A vigorous, perhaps bitter, campaign is expected as GOP gubernatorial nominee Beverly Lake opposes Gov. Hunt. In the presidential race the nominees haven't been selected yet. It is likely to be the winners of the North Carolina primaries — Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan. It is only realistic to recognize that North Carolina will be a battleground for the presidential campaigns in that the Republican presidential nominee will have a real chance of winning the state.

Both parties had relatively restrained campaigns leading up to the primaries, and for that reason the parties should be reasonably united for the upcoming campaigns. It should be quite a fight.

Armed Services Beneficiary

One beneficiary of the recessionary times seems to be the armed forces.

Recruiters say they expect a banner year this year in the Carolinas and Georgia. One reason, of course, is rising unemployment among the age group which is eligible for military duty. But, also the military is riding the wave of a burst of patriotism in connection with the Iranian situation.

Whatever the reason the situation could mean the armed services will be able to meet their quotas for enlistments.

THIS AFTERNOON

Growing Govm't

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Times such as these make figures and percentages almost meaningless. And that makes it even easier for governmental people to make things look like what they want things to look like.

Tax cuts turn out not to be tax cuts after all as higher salaries move taxpayers into higher brackets where higher taxes are therefore due, and higher prices on consumer items mean more sales tax.

Holding the line on taxes is an empty promise because doing nothing only assures that more and more dollars will continue to roll into governmental coffers; local, state or federal.

Clamping the lid on spending is most often accompanied by pledges to reduce the percentages of increase, and those percentages are, of course, based on even higher and higher bases thereby causing more dollars to represent lower percentages.

Promises

During the primary campaigns candidates for various offices, including the General Assembly and the governor's office, went out of their way to talk about holding down spending and taxes in the recent past, and pledging to keep the lid on in coming months.

For the first seven months of the current fiscal year the General Fund of the State of North Carolina has taken in $196.9 million more than in the same period of last fiscal year — a gain of 15.2 percent. That money comes primarily from income and sales taxes. So, with no increases, money is rolling in.

All of this came into sharp focus recently when Gov. Jim Hunt prepared a review of his administration in combatting inflation.

"First, let's look at the growth in government jobs under my administration, as well as those of Governors Holshouser and Scott," Hunt began.

State jobs increased by 13 percent under Scott and almost 20 percent under Holshouser. "When my four years are finished, it will have increased by only 10 percent," boasted the governor.

But, 10 percent of more is more than 13 percent of less. Scott added 15,713 jobs; Hunt has added 16,632 jobs.

BILL NOBLITT

Holshouser added 27,179 jobs; most of those decreed by public school kindergarten.

Hunt invited a look at state spending. The Scott administration boosted outlay by 22 percent, and Holshouser by 18.9 percent. "In my administration, the increase for four years is only two percent," Hunt reports.

Adjusted

Those figures are "adjusted for inflation" which means that when inflation soars, the percentages are reduced comparably.

When Scott took office in 1968 state spending was just over $736 million in the General Fund, not counting highway, federal, and other sources.

Four years later spending crossed the one billion mark. Holshouser's first year saw spending pass $1.5 billion, and four years later hit nearly two billion. When Hunt took office spending was just over two billion and in the last of his first term will total $2.8 billion.

So, Scott spending increased $438 million; Holshouser spending increased $424 million; and Hunt spending increased $612 million — all adjustments and percentages aside.

To help keep all of this in perspective, consider that we once could buy a 10-cent milkshake after the 25-cent movie.

Today, that silver dime is worth more than the cost of a milkshake.

Other Editors Say Conserving Gas

(The Wilson Times)

The state Department of Transportation has proposed two gasoline conservation methods, one of which could save as much as three million gallons per year.

A recent study indicates that if just half of the 4,700 traffic lights in the state highway system were put on "flash" between 11 p.m. and 6 a.m. the state could save three million gallons of gasoline annually.

DOT also plans to begin promoting "a viable transportation alternative" for people who have been motoring short distances — up to three or four miles — to their jobs. "Pedal power", the use of bicycles, could conserve a significant amount of gasoline, depending on public willingness to participate.

Transportation Secretary Tom Bradshaw has sent a letter to town and city officials across the state requesting that they join in the traffic light project which would save gasoline by allowing vehicles to slow rather than come to a full stop at times when traffic is least heavy.

Bradshaw said Burlington and Wilmington had undertaken the program and that "the response has been great". City Manager T. Bruce Boyette said he had replied "administratively" to DOT secretary's letter indicating Wilson's willingness to consider the proposal.

There are some obvious drawbacks to the suggestion for increased use of bicycles, including limited load-carrying capacities, exposure to unfavorable weather, physically limited speed and the possibility of overexertion.

Bradshaw is aware that both gasoline conservation proposals must be undertaken with care. Safety should remain the most vital consideration when selecting traffic signals to be placed on the flashing mode and their must be heightened alertness on the part of motorists and bicyclists if pedal-power attracts enough citizens.

Although a Daily Times survey indicated gasoline prices during April remained virtually unchanged, or dropped a little in some instances, the cost is likely to resume its climb. In fact, supplies may be curtailed if there is a violent eruption in the troubled Middle East.

Placing traffic signals on flashing mode during periods of low traffic volume, bicycling, carpooling and observing speed limits are among stops which involve a minimum of inconvenience to the public but are capable of conserving enormous amounts of gasoline. They are also steps that could make more remote the possibility of rationing.

 We generally think of a profane person as one whose language is offensive to polite company.

The word "profane" comes from a Latin word which means "outside the temple." A profane person, therefore, is a secular person with interests which are purely worldly. He may curse and swear, or on the other hand he may never utter a word that is even rude, to say nothing of being blasphemous.

About The Size Of Ga.

WASHINGTON — Interest suddenly has revived on Capitol Hill in the MX weapon system — and high time. Unless critics of this preposterous venture are wholly mistaken, the MX is the Pentagon's Edsel, a $60-billion lemon with no future trade-in value.

In case you came late to this controversy, the MX is an intercontinental ballistic missile bearing a fantastic nuclear warhead. The missile itself is 71 feet long; it weighs 190,000 pounds. The proposal immediately before the house is to build a "verifiable horizontal multiple-protective structure complex" somewhere out West.

It would be quite a complex. The proposal calls for 200 MX missiles. A cluster of 23 hardened horizontal shelters, 7,000 feet apart, would be built for each of the missiles. Each missile would be encased in a canister and mounted on a transporter-erector-launcher vehicle. The vehicle would move around a closed-loop road system, ducking in and out of the 23 individual shelters. The general idea is that the Soviets would never know which shelter actually housed a missile at any given time. For an enemy to hit all 4,600 shelters on a first strike exceeds the wildest bounds of probability. The MX system, it is said, would assure us a land-based, second-strike capability.

Very well. Accepting every claim that is made for the MX, it still is possible to challenge the wisdom of going ahead with this venture. At some point questions of cost must be addressed in ways the Pentagon has yet to address them. The environmental impact of the project needs to be most soberly considered. And the Pentagon's strategic planners, I submit, might devote a profitable hour to recalling the history of the Maginot Line.

Through the end of the 1979 fiscal year, $603 million had been invested in the MX weapon system. At least as much will be expended in the current year. Last January the president asked $1.6 billion for fiscal '81. When the system first was proposed in 1978, it was estimated that the whole works ultimately would cost $3.2 billion. That estimate has been abandoned. The General Accounting Office in February came up with a fresh estimate of almost $60 billion. Question: Can we afford it?

The dollars may be the least of the costs. The Pentagon proposes to build the complex on federally owned land. Last week Antonia Handler Chayes, undersecretary of the Air Force, told House and Senate committees that no site has been finally selected; sites in Texas and New Mexico are still being considered, but the originally proposed site in Utah and Nevada continues to be favored. How much land are we talking about? This is the GAO's understated description:

"If sited in the preferred areas of Nevada and Utah, the MX weapon system will be deployed over a rectangular area encompassing about 45,000 square nautical miles of land, an area about the size of Georgia."

Water is a scarce commodity in the Western desert. The GAO report noted that most present and future supplies of surface water already are allocated. The Air Force would have to depend upon underground water. How much water? The proposal demands 90 billion gallons of water between 1979 and 1999. In one year alone the venture calls for 37 billion gallons.

Electrical power also is limited. At its peak, the system demands the power resources required for a city of 180,000. Cement shortages are everywhere severe. The MX construction program calls for 2.7 million tons of cement, twice the amount required to build the Hoover Dam.

Last week Utah's Sen. Jake Garn appeared before a House committee to inject some fresh considerations. His state already is feeling the social and environmental impact of the Intermountain Power Project, the largest coal-burning power project in the nation. Utah is braced for development of its enormous deposits of tar sands as the country searches for alternatives to oil. Garn wonders and worries about the added impact of MX. The system might well wreak greater devastation at home than it

A Backdoor To Controls

By JEFFREY ST. JOHN
 Credit controls to fight inflation announced recently by the Carter administration is a backdoor way to impose Federal mandatory wage and price controls without obtaining the sanction of Congress or breaking the White House's repeated pledge that it would never ask for such controls.

This is the consensus of a group of economists and scholars who met in Phoenix, Arizona for the Second Annual Southwest Monetary Conference sponsored by the North American Currency and Coin Exchange of Phoenix.

Howard Segermark, Executive Director of the Washington-based Institute on Money and Inflation: "When you take the rates of taxation and inflation certain to surface in 1981 and compare them with the Federal Budget cuts proposed by both President Carter and the Congress for the same year (1981) you cannot escape the conclusion that what is being done is purely political and will do nothing to reduce or control rising taxation and more inflation. Mr. Carter's credit controls, at the same time, are a form of wage and price controls without having to have the approval of Congress or betray his pledge that he would never seek such controls as did President Nixon in 1971."

J. Anthony Boeckh, editor of the prestigious magazine, Bank Credit Analyst, with an international reputation for accuracy and objectivity: "The White House and Congress were pushed into the recent rhetoric of a balanced budget and credit controls less out of a genuine desire to fight inflation and more because of the economic crisis brought on by the recent collapse of the bond market. Yet, the same people who have brought us 18 percent inflation and 20 percent prime interest rates need the current credit controls to stem the growing gravity of the nation's economic problems that they have helped create. The proposed credit controls are not for fighting inflation, but to squeeze the private business sector so the administration in an election year can continue to let the Federal government continue to expand even further."

Just how hollow the White House rhetoric for a balanced budget and credit controls as a way of fighting inflation is, was revealed by Georgian Congressman Larry McDonald. He revealed to the some 700 participants at the monetary meeting that he attended a March 18, 1980 White House briefing for Democrats presided over by President Carter. McDonald reported the President as saying: "I am really not committed to a balanced budget, but the public believes in it. If we in the Democratic party don't shed our image of being big spenders, none of us in this room will be here in Washington after November."

Thus, the "Great Follower" and Flip-Flop Artist that Mr. Carter has become since January 1977 is leading us to the brink of economic folly while posing as the dragon slayer of inflation.

Goofer Dusters

By BONNIE JORDAN
The Robesonian

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP) — It's smart to "shake the dust from your feet" when you enter the Robeson County Courthouse.

And it's not a bad idea to brush your feet again when you get inside so you don't track the carpeting in one of the numerous courtrooms on the second and third floors. And, check the seat for dust before you sit down. Especially, if you're a judge, a prosecutor or a witness.

If there's a penny on the floor, it's best to leave it lie.

Such things are not what they seem.

Chances are, the coin is graveyard money and it may be sprinkled across the door and tracked onto the carpet.

More than likely, if it isn't graveyard dust, it is "goofer dust." Either way, it's best not to intrude in such matters.

And whether you believe in such things as witchcraft and spells, there are those who do and a body "could wind up dead," just talking about it.

Courthouse employees know that the dust that grinds under their feet is not just sugar and salt.

They don't know what it is precisely, but they know its purpose. And they won't talk about it.

It's bad to talk about a "potion" that's supposed to protect a man or a woman in trouble with the law from evil forces that could send them to their deaths in jail.

Some of the potions are more like talcum powder than dirt. No matter. It's graveyard dust that appears as if by magic, sprinkled along a corridor that has been swept and must be swept again.

Just as often, the powder has been mixed with some liquid solution in a soft drink bottle, but the persons who carry such a bottle in their hand aren't drinking. They're "sprinkling" the floor and that's one gummy mix that must be mopped. It can't be swept away.

There are some persons in Robeson County who will pick up a penny for the luck it brings, but not those who have worked around the outhouse for any length of time, long enough to recognize "graveyard money." One coin left at each entrance to the building or possibly dropped beneath the table of an unwary prosecutor.

Credit Controls Take Effect

By GLENN RITT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Interest rates are posting fresh skids amid new signs of a worsening recession, including a marked slowdown in consumer borrowing, a record trade deficit and additional woes for the beleaguered Chrysler Corp.

The government reported Wednesday that consumers borrowed 36 percent less in March than in February as the Carter administration's credit controls took hold. Installment debt rose $1.4 billion in March, compared with $2.3 billion the month before.

Those credit controls were imposed March 14 to dampen business and consumer borrowing, which was feeding a spending spree that kept the economy from falling into a recession — a step considered necessary by Carter to halt rampant inflation. Now, that recession appears to have taken root, signalled in part by sliding interest rates.

On Wednesday, the nation's third largest bank, Chase Manhattan, lowered its prime lending rate a full percentage point to 17 percent, the lowest level for this key index since February. Many other banks, including the top-ranked Bank of America, cut their rate to 17.5 percent.

And the nation's largest thrift institution, California's Home Savings & Loan Association, slashed its prime mortgage rate 4.75 percent to 12.75 percent.

Despite this dramatic one-of-a-kind reduction, most housing experts anticipate a gradual decline in mortgage rates to somewhere between 12 percent and 14 percent by year's end.

The government on Wednesday also reported a record $12.2 billion merchandise trade deficit for the first quarter — the result primarily of higher-priced petroleum and metals imports.

That deficit compares with a $8.6 billion trade gap in the last quarter of 1979 and exceeds the previous record of $11.9 billion for any quarter, registered from January through March 1978.

U.S. exports in 1980's first quarter increased 6.8 percent, from $50.5 billion in the final three months of 1979 to $53.9 billion, the Commerce Department said.

Very high interest rates in March were reflected in the slowdown of consumer borrowing, particularly auto loans.

The Federal Reserve Board reported that the total of such loans rose only $395 million in March, compared with $381 million in February. In other economic news, Wednesday:

—Chrysler Corp. reported that from January through March it lost $449 million, as its revenue fell nearly 30 percent to $2.33 billion because of slumping sales.

—The Carter administration declined to increase the voluntary price standard provided for in its anti-inflation program. But the administration said industry-by-industry exceptions will be considered.

—The Labor Department estimated that 545,000 Americans filed first-time unemployment claims in the week ending April 25, second only to the previous week's 607,000 filings as the highest since such statistics were first kept in 1967.

Some of those who don't practice such things won't talk about it.

"You think I want to wind up dead?" A shake of the head. "People come to court earlier than they go to church."

They don't say what people. Just that "people" are waiting to come inside when the doors are unlocked, hours before court is to begin.

The corridors are swept. And must be swept again. If there is a penny on the floor, it is left on the floor.

Goofy dust and graveyard pennies are not unknown to law enforcement officers.

Wilbur Lovett of the sheriff's department knows the dust and coins are provided by witch doctors, sold to people "who want to put a spell on the judge, maybe keep evil spirits away or help to control people...They (the people who buy such potions)...believe in it."

Folk in Robeson County who "believe in it" will travel to such places in Bennettsville or McColl in South Carolina to get a special "potion," a bit of dust done up in small bag, or maybe some coins and dirt, wrapped tight and carried in a pocket.

"We find these things when we bring them in here under arrest," said Al Parnell of the sheriff's department.

The "potions" are never explained. "They won't tell, they are as quiet as drug dealers about such things," Parnell said.

One of the practitioners of such magic lived in Parkton, maybe 20 years ago and had a reputation that had spread to other states.

"When the train pulled in at Parkton, folk would get off, visit the witch doctor and get the next train out of town, going the opposite way," Parnell said.

The practice doesn't die off with the death of a witch doctor, Parnell said. It is passed on, usually to a daughter or granddaughter.

One woman who claims power lives just outside of Maxton, Parnell said.

And, judging by the floor "dustings" at the Robeson County Courthouse, Parnell surmises, business must be good.

And business at the county jail is known to be pretty good too, or it was during the sojourn of a recent trusty who extended his practice to include more exotic magic.

"This guy claimed he could make himself invisible," District Attorney Joe Freeman Britt said.

It was a simple potion, made by stewing one black cat and sucking the marrow from its bones.

ever would wreak upon an enemy.

The ultimate question, of course, is — would it work? Would this incredible shell game of vehicles, shelters, roads, loops, launchers and clusters actually be impenetrable by an enemy? Almost 50 years ago, that was the issue raised by critics of the Maginot Line. It was said that no enemy could ever breach it. When the crunch came, the Nazi blitzkrieg crumbled the pillbox defenses in 48 hours. The art of warfare never stands still. Methods of detection are certain to improve. What then?

I do not mean to denigrate the necessity for nuclear defenses. These must be effectively maintained. But I do mean to raise doubts about the MX. Surely our planners, with all of outer space to work in, can contrive something better than 4,600 little Maginot pillboxes, out in the Western sands.

Senate Friends Signal Muskie Must Be In Charge

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Edmund S. Muskie's Senate colleagues are signaling President Carter that they want Muskie to be the unchallenged voice of American foreign policy once he is sworn in tonight as secretary of state.

Before voting 94-2 to confirm Muskie's nomination Wednesday, many senators said U.S. foreign policy has been severely damaged by the open, highly publicized conflict between former Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Zbigniew Brzezinski, the president's national security adviser.

Muskie said he will approach his new duties positively, asserting his office's once traditional primacy in foreign affairs rather than challenging Brzezinski to battle.

Muskie told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that as he enters his new office his first and most important priority is to establish the fact that "the secretary of state is the principal adviser to the president on foreign policy issues."

"He must have the primary responsibility for recommending our foreign policy course and seeing that the president's decisions are implemented," he said.

K-of-C Holds Awards Night

The Greenville Council of the Knights of Columbus, an international organization of Catholic men, sponsored a Family and Awards Night during a snack-supper at the Bachelor Benedict Club at 707 Wyatt St.

For church and community services in St. Gabriel's parish, certificates of merit

"President Carter has made clear he expects to play this role and I intend to do so."

Muskie told reporters later that his determination to be the principal foreign policy architect "has not been challenged" by Brzezinski or anyone else on the White House staff and that there "seems to be agreement" on his role.

At the confirmation hearings, senators made clear that they believe the Vance-Brzezinski conflict damaged American interests and that a Muskie-Brzezinski struggle would be equally destructive.

During the first three years of the Carter administration, Brzezinski often took positions that were perceived as "hard line," especially regarding the Soviet Union. Vance was deemed to be more moderate and conciliatory and resigned after his opposition to the attempt to rescue the hostages in Iran by military force was overruled.

"I think we have developed a mischievous system that often leads to two secretaries of state," said Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, the committee chairman.

"I think we sound a very uncertain trumpet when foreign countries see public disputes between the secretary of state and the president's national security adviser in the White House. I just hope we can change our procedures. It is damaging our foreign policy and spreading confusion abroad."

Muskie bade farewell to his life as a senator in a short and emotion filled speech immediately before the vote. He said that the Senate has shaped his life and added: "I want to say to you that I can't think of anything that could more surely generate a drive for excellence on my part than the awareness that I must now meet your test of my final performance." The Senate responded with a standing ovation.

When the roll call was taken only Sens. Jesse Helms, R-N.C. and Gordon

Humphrey, R-N.H., both self-proclaimed conservatives, voted "no."

Festival Held For Orchestras

A number of junior and senior high school orchestras from eastern North Carolina took part Wednesday, May 7, in the annual Eastern Orchestra Festival held in the Recital Hall of the A. J. Fletcher Center on the campus of East Carolina University.

Participating school orchestras and their directors were:

— Rose High School Orchestra, Glen Davis, director.

— Combined orchestras of East Carteret, West Carteret and East-West Carteret Senior High Schools, Carteret County, Wesley Thomas, director.

— Roland-Grise Junior High Beginning and Concert Orchestras, Wilmington, Jane M. York, director.

— Carteret County Junior Orchestra, Carteret County, Nancy Kostek, director.

— New Hanover High School Beginning and Concert Orchestras, Wilmington, Nancy McAlister, Director.

— E. A. Laney High School Orchestra, Wilmington, Allen Walters, director.

— Sunset Junior High School Orchestra, Wilmington, Linda Figart, director.

The festival opened at 10 a.m. and continued until 1:45 p.m. Each orchestra performed a variety of musical selections for written comment by ECU School of Music faculty.

Also, students from each school were given an opportunity to hear performances by orchestras from other schools, a feature of the festival that is popular with the student musicians.

The festival is part of the continuing service programs offered by the East Carolina University School of Music to area public school teachers and students.

The Eastern Orchestra Festival is directed by Dr. Rodney Schmidt of the School of Music faculty.

Placement Conference Is Held

The annual conference of the North Carolina Placement Association was held recently in Southern Pines with two members of the Pitt Community College staff attending. Terry Shank, placement director, and Gail Wallace, placement officer, explained the agenda for the meeting.

Topics discussed included "A Look at the Future and Human Resource Implications," "Team Building," "Mid-career Change," "Federal Recruiting Update," and "Job Location and Development."

Mrs. Shank explained, "This was an excellent conference, covering such areas as organizational communications, job opportunities for the 80's, and placement program accreditation. We had the opportunity to get an overall view of the structure of placement services from throughout the state. It will help us with the planning of the PCC program."

Yugoslavs Pay Tito A Final Farewell

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer
BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Yugoslavia bade farewell today to President Josip Broz Tito in a funeral marked by military pageantry and vows to protect his legacy of independent communism.

Guns fired salvos in salute as an honor guard of generals, miners and metalworkers carried Tito's oak casket from the rotunda of the Parliament to a gun carriage for the procession to his grave in a garden overlooking the city.

Before the procession began, Stevan Doronjski, chief of the collective leadership that succeeds Tito as Communist Party chief, described Yugoslavia's break with the Soviet Bloc in 1948 as "one of the turning points in the history of our movement." "At that time, it was a question of relations between socialist and communist parties, a question of independence, equality, respect for sovereignty and an independent path in the development of socialism." Doronjski said it was "alien to the spirit of socialist Yugoslavia to tie itself to any power bloc. Tito saw this quite clearly and he deeply believed that the very existence of the blocs increased threats to the world."

His speech was heard by Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev, who with scores of other foreign leaders came to join hundreds of thousands of Yugoslavs for the ceremony and procession to the gravesite.

The tombstone was to bear the inscription "Josip Broz Tito, 1892-1980."

The funeral procession also was to include the presidents of the six Yugoslav republics and two autonomous regions who form the collective leadership to whom Tito bequeathed his presidency, and the 24-man collective, similarly drawn from the eight regions, he devised to run the Yugoslav Communist Party.

Tito, who led his Partisan guerrillas to victory over the Nazis in World War II, turned Yugoslavia into a communist nation and successfully defied Soviet dictator Josef Stalin, died Sunday after a long illness. His funeral came the day after the 88th anniversary of his birth.

Hordes of Yugoslavs, including veterans of Tito's wartime Partisan forces and young people who knew no other national chieftain, poured into Belgrade to jam the broad Knez Milosa Avenue as the cortege took the three-mile route to the gravesite. The same street was used for the procession of assassinated King Alexander in 1934, the last big state funeral in the Balkan capital.

Early this morning, thousands of Yugoslavs still stood in long lines waiting for a chance to file past Tito's coffin in a hall of the Parliament.

The foreign mourners included three kings, 34 prime ministers, 31 heads of state and scores of ministers, diplomats and political leaders.

Vice President Walter F. Mondale headed the American delegation, sharing the limelight with Brezhnev and Chinese Chairman Hua Guofeng. British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt were present, but French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing, like President Carter, stayed home.

Turned To Patrolman

PLYMOUTH, N.C. (AP) — Veteran Highway Patrolman James R. Whitehurst has been asked to become sheriff of Washington County as a successor to former Sheriff Robert S. Sawyer, who was removed from office for allegedly failing to perform his duties.

Whitehurst, a trooper for 21 years, lives in Roper, as does Sawyer. Whitehurst reportedly was one of four applicants for the job.

He said Wednesday he would decide in a few days whether he would accept the offer, which carries an annual salary of $15,000.

Meanwhile, Sawyer said he had reconsidered an earlier decision and would now appeal his removal. Sawyer said he had received offers of financial support from residents of the county.

"They were willing to help so I'm willing to appeal," he said.

Sawyer was removed from office under a rarely used law that allows a Superior Court judge to rule on a petition for removal filed by a district attorney or county attorney.

Judge John R. Jolly Jr. concluded in February that Sawyer had been guilty of habitual neglect and wilful maladministration of his office.

"I just don't feel like I was treated fairly," Sawyer said Wednesday.

Whitehurst, 43, is a native of Smithfield. He has been stationed in Washington County since joining the patrol.

In making the decision to hire Whitehurst, county commissioners passed over Chief Deputy Walter Peal, who has served as acting sheriff since Sawyer was removed from office.

FIREMEN BATTLE BLAZE. . .Flames leap from the roof of the Tom Seagraves' home at 16 Baywood Drive Wednesday afternoon as firemen from three Pitt County fire departments try to contain the blaze

Fire Razed A New Home Wednesday

By Tommy Forrest
Reflector Staff Writer
The rose bushes were in bloom with bright red and pink roses — untouched. In contrast, a few feet away, there were shrubs blackened by fire.

What once was a neatly trimmed brick home on Baywood Drive, just south of Greenville, is now reduced to four fire-charred walls.

The house was destroyed when flames swept through the dwelling Wednesday afternoon.

According to Winterville Fire Chief Carlton Branch, the home reportedly owned by Tom Seagraves, who only last week purchased it.

Branch said Seagraves and his family were planning to move into the house next week and already had some items stored there. A boat in the garage was also destroyed.

The chief said when Winterville's first fire units arrived at the scene, flames had already eaten through the roof and could be seen in most of the attic and in the garage of the house.

Elmhurst PTA Sets Last Meet

Elmhurst Elementary School will host its last PTA meeting of the year Thursday at 7:30 p.m. The school band, directed by Mrs. Dottie Jo Knight, will perform during the program.

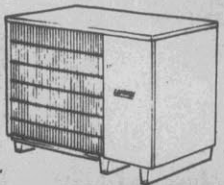

Staff and teachers with ten years of service will be recognized as part of Teacher Appreciation Day.

Business items will be discussed and new officers for 1980-81 will be introduced.

The public is invited to attend this meeting. Parents of next year's Elmhurst students are also invited.

HOT JOB. . .Three firemen find it a hot job spraying water on the burning house in an effort to extinguish the fire.

Firemen from Red Oak and Eastern Pines aided Winterville for more than two hours before extinguishing the blaze.

Clouds of thick smoke could be seen for some distance during the height of the fire.

The official said the house is a total loss and estimated damage at $167,000.

Cause of the fire is undetermined, but it is believed to have started in the attic above the garage.

Rules Children Can Be Barred

WHITEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The state attorney general's office said Wednesday that minors may be denied access to adult books in a county library unless they are accompanied by their parents.

By state law, a person under 18 is a minor in North Carolina.

The opinion by James Bullock, an assistant attorney general, came at the request of Columbus County's Board of Commissioners, which banned the controversial book, "Wife," from the county library on April 9.

Bullock's opinion side-stepped questions concerning local control of book selection and whether the county commissioners or the library trustees should set library policy on book access. It also did not answer a third question asking whether First Amendment rights would be violated by denying minors access to books.

The board later asked the attorney general's office to determine whether they had the legal authority to ban books. The commissioners' action was opposed by the library's board of trustees and prompted heated debate in the community.

Bullock said Wednesday a special adult section of the library may be set up and that minors may be kept from that section unless they are accompanied by a parent.

"We feel this leaves it up to the parents on whether they want their children to read certain books," Bullock said. "We didn't answer the other questions because we either did not have enough information or because opinions in federal courts left the matter unclear."

Commissioner Chairman Waldrow Marlowe said he expected commissioners to discuss the opinion at the next commissioner meeting.

"We need to go ahead and take care of this matter," Marlowe said. "We have said all along that we would act once we got some legal help."

Marlowe said he believed the opinion vindicated the board in ordering "Wife" removed from the library.

"We felt that books of this sort could be kept away from children unless their parents want them to read it," Marlowe said.

"I feel like this is a nice compromise," Marlowe said. "Adults can read anything they want and parents who don't want their children to see certain sorts of books will have their rights protected."

The N.C. Civil Liberties Union has indicated it will challenge any action that seeks to restrict access to library books.

Extraordinary Murder Trial Of 9 Nears End

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Exactly 21 months after their blazing gunfight with city police left one officer dead, an extraordinary murder trial nears an end for nine mop-haired members of the radical group MOVE.

A verdict was due today from Common Pleas Judge Edwin S. Malmel, who heard the case without a jury. The MOVE members could be sentenced to life in prison if found guilty.

The five men and four women were charged with murdering stakeout patrolman James Ramp and wounding seven other officers and firefighters in a shootout that erupted on Aug. 8, 1978, as they resisted eviction from their rat-infested headquarters in West Philadelphia.

The defendants, all blacks who use the surname "Africa" in honor of the founder of their self-styled revolutionary sect, are Delbert Orr, 30; Edward Goodman, 29; Charles Sims, 24; William Phillips, 27; Jeanene Phillips, 23; Michael Davis, 23; Debbie Sims, 22; Merie Austin, 29, and Janet Holloway, 28.

Besides murder, the defendants were charged with voluntary manslaughter, attempted murder, aggravated assault and criminal conspiracy.

After flouting courtroom rules and legal procedure, often cursing and threatening the judge, they were barred from the courtroom during most of their five-month trial.

The nine, who wear their hair in dreadlocks and originally were acting as their own lawyers, refused to testify or participate in their own defense.

The prosecution, headed by Assistant District Attorney Wilhelm Knauer, called 96 witnesses while nine court-appointed defense lawyers presented 16.

The defendants claimed police fired the shots that killed Ramp and injured the others. Their lawyers argued that even if the fatal bullets came from MOVE guns, the defendants had acted in self-defense.

Police began round-the-clock surveillance that cost $1 million after MOVE members brandished guns, vowing to defend their home. As many as three dozen adults and children lived with a pack of dogs and cats.

A total of 12 MOVE members were arrested after the shootout. Two were granted separate trials, and one was freed for lack of evidence.

Awards For 4 Students

ECU News Bureau

Four senior students in the East Carolina University School of Technology are recipients of annual awards in recognition of superior academic achievement and contributions to the campus.

The students, all majoring in industrial and technical areas, were honored at a meeting of ECU's Industrial Technology Club.

Miken James Nielsen of Route 1, Grimesland, received the 1980 "Outstanding Technical Teacher Major Award" for "distinguished scholarship and service as a technical teacher major."

Ronnie Lewis of Route 1, Plymouth, received the "Outstanding Industrial Technology Major Award," given in recognition of "distinguished scholarship and service as an industrial technology major."

Grady Dickerson of 216 Country Club Drive, Oxford, received the "Outstanding Industrial and Technical Education Major Award," and Donald Wilson of 204 Hollywood Boulevard,

Havelock, received the "Outstanding Industrial Arts Education Major Award."

Each award was presented by Dr. Elmer Erber, acting chairman of the ECU Department of Industrial and Technical Education.

Reade Street, 25 feet South of the Fourth Street intersection, causing an estimated $600 damage to the Roper car.

No damage resulted to the truck, officers noted.

Two Accidents Are Reported

An estimated $2,600 property damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Officers said an estimated $1,000 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 5:04 p.m. collision at the intersection of 14th Street and Myrtle Avenue.

The drivers of the cars were identified as Cede Maye of 501 Wilson Dr. and Barbara Stancill Cobb of 515 Roosevelt Ave. Police charged Maye with failing to stop for a stop sign following investigation of the mishap.

Investigators said a car driven by Margaret Eliza Roper of 806 Willow St. and a truck operated by William Little of Route 1, Bethel, collided about 1:50 p.m. on

Big Spending On Exotic Ideas

WASHINGTON (AP) — In search of energy independence, the federal government is spending taxpayers' money on such exotic projects as using solar power for outhouses, dog-houses, and shrimp detectors.

A group of congressmen tried to withhold money from the projects Wednesday, but the move was thwarted by other congressmen. The House Science and Technology Committee rejected proposals to cut proposed fiscal 1981 spending for the program from $20.1 million to $7.1 million. This year's spending will be about $12 million. The program involves Department of Energy financing for projects that private inventors can't afford to develop on their own.

Ten Inducted By Honor Frat

ECU News Bureau Ten East Carolina University students have been inducted into ECU's Tau chapter of Phi Sigma Pi national honor fraternity.

Phi Sigma Pi is the oldest fraternal organization on the ECU campus. ECU's Tau chapter has won the "most outstanding chapter" award at 14 consecutive national conventions.

Members are selected on the basis of excellence in three areas: scholarship, leadership and fellowship.

New inductees include Rhonda Blowe of Murfreesboro, Rayford Barnes of Wilson, Donald Carter and Pamela Cole of Fayetteville, Carolyn Ervin of Edenton, Sarah Jones of Nags Head, Raymond Hargrove of Henderson, Karen McDonald of Clarkton, Mark McAfee of Blowing Rock and Susie Bell of Blacksburg, Va.

Clerk's Week Proclaimed

Mayor Don McGlohn proclaimed May 10-16 as Municipal Clerk's Week in Greenville.

McGlohn noted that, "the municipal clerk is important to the community as a whole — the keystone of efficient and responsive local government," providing "continuity, knowing what went on in the past and how it will affect what is done today, thus more ably assisting in the initiating and planning of community programs."

The mayor noted in his proclamation that, "the municipal clerk records the proceedings and decisions of the legislative body, implements its directives, compiles its reports, and preserves the city's records for posterity."

He added, "it is most appropriate that we recognize and recall that this historic municipal office grew out of the traditions of our democratic heritage, and still remains most viable in today's structured government."

Correction

In a story about the County Commissioner's race between R. L. "Bob" Martin and Eugene James, published in yesterday's edition of "The Daily Reflector", James was listed as a member of the Board of Directors of the Pitt County Fire Department.

The story should have listed James as a member of the Board of Directors of the Pitt County Farm Bureau.

Martin, who won the Democratic nomination, is a member of the Pitt County Fire Commission.

World Organization Has New Health Goals

By CHRIS ANGELO
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Officially declaring smallpox a thing of the past, the World Health Organization today turned its attention to immunization programs, battling tropical diseases and providing clean water and adequate sanitation.

The objective is "health for all by the year 2000."

Smallpox, the first disease man has eliminated, is one of the five most deadly diseases in world history. As recently as 1966, it accounted for 500,000 to 1 million deaths a year worldwide.

But it was to be declared eradicated at a ceremony during a meeting of the World Health Assembly, WHO's governing body, in Geneva, Switzerland, today. It has been two years since the last recorded case of smallpox — the most recent suspected case, two weeks ago, turned out to be chicken pox.

The national Center for Disease Control in Atlanta marked the demise of smallpox last October. However, CDC spokesman Don Berreth said WHO's celebration marks the formal end of the disease and will be attended by CDC officials.

Officials say diseases such as polio, diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus, measles and tuberculosis — which kill some 5 million children a year and leave an equal number disabled — can be controlled through immunization but will not

OK Bond Issue For Washington

WASHINGTON, N.C. (AP) — City voters have approved a $6.5 million bond issue to allow the city of Washington to switch sources of electric power.

Washington plans to stop buying electricity from Virginia Electric and Power Co. and connect with the Carolina Power & Light Co. system.

Revenue from the bonds will be used to construct about six miles of transmission lines and other equipment to connect with the CP&L system. The changeover is expected to take place more than 18 months.

replace smallpox as targets of an eradication program.

They also don't expect to eradicate the four other killer diseases ranked with small pox: cholera, plague, yellow fever and typhus.

"Unfortunately we are not in a position to eradicate these diseases" because it would require more sophisticated systems, said Dr. Ralph Henderson, director of the WHO Expanded Program on Immunization.

Instead, the goal, to be achieved by 1990, is to "assure that every child born receives a course of immunization in the first year of life, and only then can we consider eradicating these diseases," he said Wednesday.

Politicians in developed and Third-World countries are the biggest obstacle, Henderson said. Officials who may face cancer can understand giving high priority to financing cancer research, he said. But "nobody is speaking for the child under five. It is a largely unappreciated and silent population," he added.

Freed By Jurors

ROCKFORD, Ill. (AP) — An 80-year-old woman kept in mental institutions for the last 21 years has been released after a jury decided she should not be held against her will.

Martha Shippert, representing herself in the unusual case, said Wednesday she wanted to stay in a nursing home. Arrangements were being made to find one for her, authorities said.

The hearing Wednesday was held under a new section of the state mental health code that says patients in mental institutions are entitled to periodic hearings on whether they should remain there.

The woman had been held in mental institutions since 1959, when she was committed to East Moline State Hospital. Last November, she was transferred to Singer Mental Health Center here when the East Moline facility closed.

Also testifying at her hearing were her caseworker and a court-appointed doctor. The doctor and the caseworker recommended that she remain hospitalized.

Donald Lindroth, a Winnebago County assistant state's attorney, said he "thought it was very cruel and inhuman to release her. I think she clearly showed her mental illness."

The woman was remaining at Singer until nursing home arrangements could be made.

Discuss GOP 1980 Platform

WASHINGTON (AP) — The West will vote Republican in the 1980 presidential election but the party should promise to reverse Carter administration policies on western issues just to make sure, GOP platform writers were told today.

Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, in remarks prepared for a GOP platform hearing, predicted the party would do as well in the West as in 1976, when former President Gerald R. Ford carried every western state but Texas and Hawaii.

But Stevens, the assistant GOP leader in the Senate, went on to say it was "imperative" that the Republican platform contain a pledge that "basic rights of citizens of the West will be preserved."

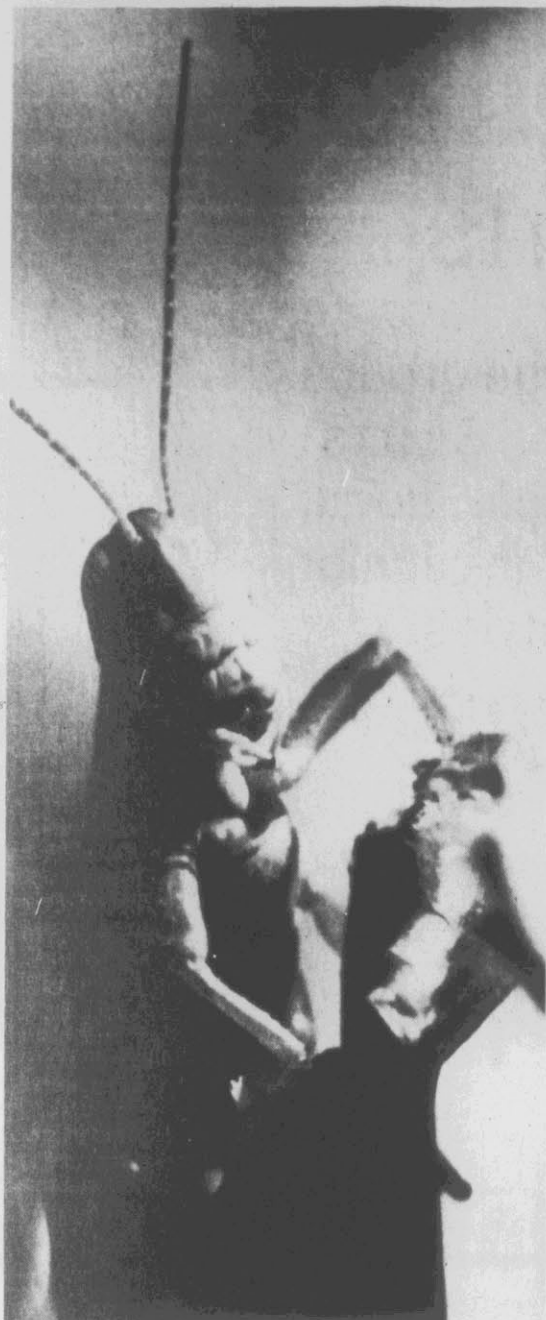

"The party should make clear its commitment to solving western problems with western solutions to ensure that its broad support in the West continues unabated," Stevens told the platform committee.

The hearing was the eighth of 10 the committee is holding. The remaining two will be in Chicago May 23 and New York June 6. The 108-member panel will meet July 7 in Detroit to write a platform for submission to the GOP National Convention the following week.

Stevens was scheduled as the leadoff witness, to be followed by other members of Congress and by a panel from the aerospace industry.

On Friday, the committee will hear from Sen. John H. Chafee, R-R.I., a member of the Senate Intelligence Committee, who will outline suggestions on intelligence policy. Chafee has been pushing for legislation making it a crime to disclose the names of U.S. intelligence operatives working abroad.

GRASSHOPPERS RETURN — Seventeen western states and 32 million acres are threatened by a grasshopper infestation expected in May and June. The Agriculture Department's Animal and Plant Health Inspection service says it will probably be the worst infestation in 40 years, with 25 to 100 hoppers per square yard in some areas. Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

All winter long my 6-year-old boy has had infections in his ear. It seems as if he lives on antibiotics. With each infection of the ear he becomes deaf, and stays that way until the infection clears up. Now a specialist wants to open the ears and put a tube in them and leave it there for months. Can this be permanently harmful to his hearing? We are really confused. — Mrs. J.F., Maine.

Dear Mrs. F.:

Let me immediately assure you that the operation for opening the ears is not a dangerous one. It is called a "myringotomy." It is definitely an accepted form of treatment when there is fluid behind the eardrum.

Perhaps an explanation of how these infections occur may reduce your anxiety and give you a better indication of your son's problem. There is a tube, the Eustachian tube, which runs from the back of the nose to the middle ear. Under normal, healthy circumstances, the air that goes into this tube equals the air that goes into the outer ear, thus keeping the eardrum in balance. The Eustachian tube is the one which closes during the rapid descent of a plane, and causes a blocked, sometimes painful, sensation.

Years ago, before the advent of the antibiotics, many children developed infections of the middle ear. The pus would then perforate the eardrum and they would have discharging ears.

Today, with the use of long-standing antibiotics, the fluid in the middle ear becomes sterilized. Instead of the thin, watery solution, there now is a thick gelatinous material that has the consistency of honey. This thick material does not readily empty of its own accord. Its presence interferes with the hearing because the eardrum does not vibrate normally.

Large adenoids that surround the opening of the Eustachian tube are the most common reason for the blockage. Allergy, too, can be a factor.

The myringotomy operation is almost always done to children along with the thorough removal of the adenoids. After the eardrum is opened through the external canal, the thick material is released. Then a fine polyethylene tube is inserted into the eardrum, to prevent further accumulation of the thick fluid.

The tube is frequently left in for many months without doing any harm. When the tube has exhausted its function, it usually is pushed out into the outer ear canal and is easily removed.

The operation cannot do any harm to the hearing. In fact, the liberation of the fluid in the middle ear can help restore the hearing to its normal levels. You would be wise to follow the direction of your ear specialist.

Stratford, Iowa, Loses Pounds But Pride Is Exacting A Price

By JUDY DAUBENMIER
Associated Press Writer
STRATFORD, Iowa (AP) — Farmer John Bergquist says he's eaten so much lettuce his ears are growing and Kaylen Leeds can be heard mumbling to herself: "I'm not hungry. I'm not hungry."

Bergquist, Ms. Leeds and more than 300 of their neighbors in this central Iowa town of 870 have enlisted in a 4½-month diet called "The Great Stratford Fat-Off."

Begun as a publicity stunt for the community's centennial celebration, it's turned into serious business. Pride is all that's at stake, as the men and women compete to see which sex loses the most.

And all over town, people are tightening their belts and pinning on buttons that plead, "Don't Feed Me."

The "Fat-Off" waddled off the ground March 1 when the groups of men and women climbed on the truck scales at the Stratford grain elevator. It will end with a weigh-in during the town's July 12 centennial celebration, when both the "before" and "after" figures will be announced.

That means the participants are only about halfway through, and to some it seems like the diet will never end.

"I'm starting to sprout gills and my ears are growing longer from all the rabbit food and fish I've been eating," said Bergquist, who has already shed 55 of his 357 pounds.

"I'm good for another 30," he said, then moaned, "I've only had two drinks and one steak since the first of March."

Bergquist, who farms near Stratford, has a dieting companion, his hired man Ed Berry.

The Fat-Off "comes at a convenient time for me. My doctor said I had to lose some weight," said Berry, who says he weighed 265 pounds "naked as a jaybird" at the start of the competition. Berry has lost 30 pounds.

The 85 pounds lost by the Bergquist and Berry duo is a comfortable cushion for their side, one that the women doubt they can overcome.

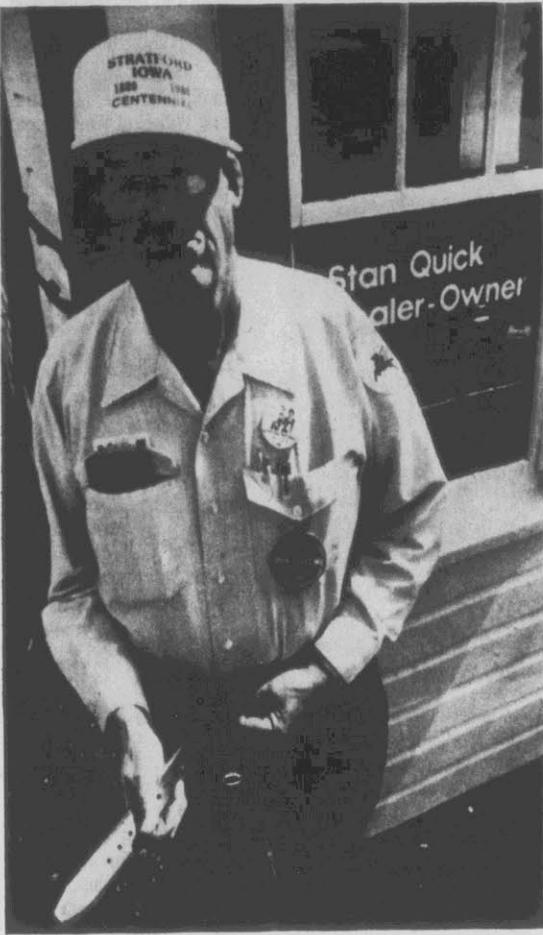

"I think the men are doing a little better," said Ms. Leeds, who at 155 is 20 pounds lighter than two months ago.

"I haven't heard too many of the women say they are really working at it. Not like the guys. But they have an advantage. Some of them have a lot more to lose."

LuAnn Garvey, who at 137 pounds is 10 pounds lighter than at the start, agrees. "If I lost 55 pounds like John, I'd blow away."

Ms. Leeds has joined a diet club and taken up jogging and bicycling to help her meet her goal of a 10-pound loss per month.

She vows to stick with it even after the weigh-in. "I like to eat," said Ms. Leeds. "I just keep telling myself I'm not hungry."

Chrysler Is Still Losing

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp., which lost a U.S. record $1.097 billion last year, has begun 1980 with a first quarter loss of $449 million.

Broken down by sales and time, Chrysler's loss — only slightly less than the automaker's record quarterly loss of $460 million in the third quarter of 1979 — came to $1,364 per vehicle and nearly $14,600 a minute.

At $6.84 cents per share, the loss represents 94 percent of the latest price of the common stock.

But the No. 3 automaker's loss, announced Wednesday, is not as great as Ford Motor Co.'s in the United States during the first quarter — $473 million.

In the 1979 first quarter, Chrysler lost $53.8 million, or 95 cents per share, on revenues of $3.30 billion. Revenues fell 30 percent to $2.33 billion in the latest quarter.

In its earnings report, Chrysler told its shareholders for the first time officially that if it does not get federally guaranteed loans, it will have to file for court protection under federal bankruptcy laws — something that has been a distinct possibility since the automaker decided to seek guarantees last summer. Chrysler has made similar statements in filings with the federal government.

Chrysler has said previously that consumers would be so reluctant to buy from a company operating under court protection that it probably would have to liquidate.

The Chrysler Loan Guarantee Board, which is considering the company's request for guarantees, meets Friday. Chrysler said it believed it had met all the requirements of the law authorizing $1.5 billion in guarantees and had told the board action was "urgent."

Greensboro To Discuss Method

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — City spokesmen said Wednesday public discussions will be held to determine what method Greensboro should use in electing its council members.

A proposed ward system was defeated Tuesday by only 314 votes.

Mayor Jim Melvin said the discussions would begin in the near future. Another city referendum, however, cannot be held for at least 18 months because of statutory requirements.

Cancel Burning Permits In East

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state forest service canceled burning permits Wednesday in 13 eastern North Carolina counties, citing dangers from dry weather.

The permit cancellation affects Beaufort, Bladen, Brunswick, Carteret, Craven, Columbus, Duplin, Jones, Lenoir, Onslow, Pamlico, Pender and Pitt counties.

Boyd
Mr. J. Marvin Boyd, 62, died Wednesday morning at his home in the Hollywood Crossroads community. Funeral services were conducted at 3:30 p.m. Thursday in the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by his pastor, Rev. Willis Wilson. Burial was in Pinewood Memorial Park.

Mr. Boyd, was born and spent all his life in Pitt County and was a veteran of World War II, having served in the Pacific Theatre. A member of the Reedy Branch Free Will Baptist Church, he was serving as a deacon, has been a member of the official board for 27 years and was a member of the Phillip Woodard Sunday School Class. He was a member of the Greenville Tribe #35, Improved Order of Red Men and the Winterville Kiwanis Club. He was a farmer.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Estelle Hooks Boyd; a son, J. M. Boyd of near the home; a daughter, Mrs. Gaynor Jordan of Windsor; four brothers: Woodrow and J. C. Boyd, both of Greenville, Thurman and Hurbert Boyd, both of the Black Jack Community; and one grandchild.

The family suggests that anyone desiring to make a memorial contribution consider the Reedy Branch Free Will Baptist Church Building Fund.

Curran
BETHEL — Mr. Louis Farrar Curran, 52, died Wednesday.

His funeral service will be held Friday at 3 p.m. at Bethel United Methodist Church by the Rev. Ellis Bedsworth. Burial will be in the Bethel Cemetery with Masonic rites.

Mr. Curran was employed by the Burroughs Wellcome Company and served as a Bethel volunteer fireman. He was a Mason and a member of the Pitt County Shrine Club.

Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Mavis Harrell Curran of the home; two daughters, Mrs. Brinda Elks of Ayden and Mrs. Janie Smith of Greenville; two sisters, Mrs. Doris Richardson of Rocky Mount and Mrs. Mary Jo Sherrer of High Point; two brothers, Robert and W. D. Curran, both of Rocky Mount; and two grandchildren.

The family will receive friends at the Ayres-Gray Funeral Home here tonight from 7 to 9 o'clock.

Davis
PRINCEVILLE — Funeral services for Mr. Nathaniel Davis will be held Saturday at 2 p.m. at St. Luke's Church of Christ with Bishop E. D. Brockington officiating.

Burial will follow in the Dancy Memorial Cemetery. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Annie Davis of Tarboro; six sisters: Mrs. Beatrice Lyons of Pinetops; Mrs. Annie B. Battle, Mrs. Joyce Brown, Mrs. Barbara Boyd, Mrs. Gloria Ransome, Mrs. Helen Davis, all of Philadelphia, Pa.; two brothers: Clark Davis of Greenville, Charles Davis of Philadelphia, Pa.

Seeks Resume 'Street Action'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson says he hopes to gather 25,000 persons May 17 for a "jobs march" here that Jackson says will start a "return to massive street action" on behalf of the poor persons.

The civil rights leader said Wednesday the march will be called the "national youth pilgrimage for jobs, peace and justice." It will cap three days of meetings and lobbying directed toward winning federal support for jobs programs and black colleges, and blocking cuts in spending for human service programs, including food stamps. He said the march will start at the White House and end at the Capitol.

UNUSUAL STERLING PIECES
NOW WORTH MORE!

A NEW WAY TO PAY!
It has become apparent to us that lovely, unusual sterling pieces are worth more than broken common pieces. We have adopted a new pricing policy which takes into consideration the type, condition, variety, brand and pattern of the piece as well as its weight. We have several buyers and collectors who are especially interested in highly decorative, ornamental sterling pieces in good condition and we will pay more for such beautiful, unusual pieces than we do for scrap silver.

Do you have a Sterling evening bag, mirror, or brush? These things are worth cash at Coin & Ring Man.

Of course, many other things are Sterling too. Identification bracelets, baby's teething rings, pill boxes, money clips, lipstick holders, etc. If they're marked Sterling, we buy them.

Last Place Teams Enjoy Division Leads

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

No, it's not April Fool's Day, but if the American League season ended right now you could see the Oakland A's and the Toronto Blue Jays in the playoffs.

Oh, the Blue Jays would first have to win a one-game East Division shootout with the New York Yankees, but why quibble when two last-place teams that combined for a 107-217 record a year ago (Oakland 54-108, Toronto 53-109) are enjoying the rarefied atmosphere of first place.

Dave Stieb scattered 10 hits — he was backed by five double plays — and Al Woods and Otto Velez hit two-run homers as the Blue Jays whipped the California Angels 7-3 Wednesday night. That gave the Jays a club record-tying fifth consecutive victory and they remained deadlocked for first place in the AL East with the Yankees, who beat the Milwaukee Brewers 4-1.

The 4-year-old Blue Jays' only other five-game winning streak was Aug. 20-23, 1978.

The A's dropped a 2-1 squeaker to the Cleveland Indians but still hold a one-game lead in the West over the Chicago White Sox, who were routed by the Kansas City Royals 12-5.

Elsewhere, the Baltimore Orioles downed the Minnesota Twins 8-6, the Boston Red Sox beat the Texas Rangers 7-4 in 11 innings and the Seattle Mariners nipped the Detroit Tigers 7-6 in 10.

Woods' homer off Chris Knapp after Rick Bosetti doubled gave Toronto a 2-0 lead in the first inning. Bosetti walked and scored ahead of Velez's eighth home run in the third, tying him for the major league lead with Mike Schmidt of the Philadelphia Phillies. Damaso Garcia had a two-run single in the sixth and Velez added a sacrifice fly in the seventh.

"The whole team has a better attitude and better atmosphere. Every body is picking each other up," said Woods.

"When you get pitching, defense and power, that's all it's going to take," added Bobby Mattick, Toronto's 64-year-old rookie manager. "I think we have a pretty solid club right now. We're beginning to feel competent and confident. The main thing is we are beginning to execute well."

Yankees 4, Brewers 1
So are the Yankees, who turned four double plays in support of unbeaten Tommy John's seven-hit pitching for their fifth consecutive victory and John's fifth. Eric Soderholm homered for New York while Graig Nettles had an RBI single and shortstop Bucky Dent contributed two sacrifice flies along with a fielding gem that kept the Brewers from tying the score in the eighth inning.

"He (John) doesn't bother coming in on you," Milwaukee's Paul Molitor said of the 36-year-old left-hander, who recorded 19 outs on ground balls. "He just stays on the outside corner all night. It's almost psychological. You know he's going to make you hit the ball on the ground. It's very, very frustrating. You're in and out of there before you know it."

Indians 2, A's 1
Cleveland's Mike Hargrove extended his hitting streak to 18 games with a two-run single in the sixth inning and Rick Waits pitched a four-hitter, allowing only an unearned run on first baseman Hargrove's throwing error in the third. With one out in the Cleveland sixth, Jorge Orta got an infield hit, Duane Kuiper doubled and Hargrove delivered his two-run single. He has driven in 18 runs during his streak and 19 for the season.

Royals 12, White Sox 5
Rookie Bobby Detherage smashed his first major league home run, a three-run shot in the fifth inning, and Willie Wilson and Hal McRae delivered two-run doubles in an eight-run fourth to power Kansas City. In the top of the fourth, the Royals erased a 3-1 deficit and took a 9-3 lead by pounding out a club record nine straight hits after loser Ken Kravec retired the first two batters.

"There's really no pressure on me to produce," said Detherage, who was called up at the start of the season when Amos Otis was injured. "When I came up, they told me it was just to replace Amos. I wasn't supposed to provide any offense so I don't feel any pressure at the plate."

Orioles 8, Twins 6
Al Bumbry raced home with the tie-breaking run on Ken Singleton's infield tapper in the eighth inning and Terry Crowley, who homered earlier, added a sacrifice fly after Baltimore blew a 6-1 lead. Bumbry opened the eighth with a walk off loser Mike Marshall, 0-3, and raced to third when third baseman John Castino fielded Mark Belanger's bunt single and overthrew first base. Bumbry scored as shortstop Roy Smalley had difficulty fielding Singleton's chopper.

Red Sox 7, Rangers 4
Boston scored three unearned runs in the 11th inning with the help of two Texas errors, one by newly acquired glove man Bud Harrelson. Jack Brohamer started things when Texas pitcher Adrian Devine slipped on the soggy infield while trying to field a slow roller. Carl Yastrzemski grounded to second but shortstop Harrelson, making his first American League appearance after being signed for infield insurance, missed the bag after taking second baseman Bump Willis' throw.

In the confusion, Brohamer went to third. He was trapped on Rick Burleson's grounder back to the mound but scored the go-ahead run when catcher Jim Sundberg's throw hit him as he scampered back to third.

Mariners 7, Tigers 6
Joe Simpson's two-out single delivered the winning run. Loser Pat Underwood walked Tom Paciorek leading off the 10th and pinch runner Rodney Craig was sacrificed to second. Larry Milbourne was walked intentionally and Bill Stein flied out before Simpson's game-winning.

Seattle's Jim Anderson smacked his third home run of the season with one out in the ninth to tie the game 6-6. The Tigers had taken a 6-5 lead in the top of the ninth on Dave Stegman's RBI double.

Lady Pirates Seeking Title

East Carolina's Lady Pirate softball team goes for the AIAW Region II title Friday and Saturday in Graham. The field includes teams from Tennessee, Kentucky and Virginia as well as North Carolina.

The 31-4 Lady Pirates are fresh from a win in the NCIAA Tournament and are riding a 15-game winning streak into the double elimination event. Western Carolina, runner-up to ECU in both the NCIAA Division I and state tournaments, and North Carolina, the host school, will join ECU as home state representatives.

Play begins at 10 a.m. Friday.

The Lady Pirates are batting an impressive .346 as a team and fielding at .903 clip. All-State star Kathy Riley leads the regulars in both categories with an incredible .579 batting average and an excellent .972 fielding average. The talented junior also has hit 11 home runs (seven more than the total of four by opponents), ten doubles (two more than the opponents), and has driven in 47 runs (six more than the opponents).

Pitcher Mary Bryan Carlyle, another All-Stater, has a 2-4-4 record and allowed only 16 hits in three games at last weekend's state championship.

East Carolina will meet Western Kentucky in the opening round of the tournament. Paired in the same bracket are Northern Kentucky and Maryville (Tenn.) College. Clinch Valley (Va.) faces Western Carolina in one of the other brackets' opening games, while Milligan (Tenn.) faces North Carolina in the other.

The tournament is scheduled to wind up Saturday afternoon. It is the furthest the team can travel in AIAW softball. There is no national tournament.

Bullets End With Victory

JAMESVILLE — Jamesville's Beaufort-Hyde-Martin Conference champions closed out the 1980 regular season with a 9-0 victory over cross-county rival Bear Grass last night.

Trent Ange held the Bears to only three hits during the evening, as the Bullets celebrated their third BHM title in a row. The defending state 1-A champs will move into the playoffs next.

Jamesville got all it needed in the second inning, scoring twice. Keith Modlin started things with a solo home run. Clarence Thomas followed, reaching on an error, stealing second and scoring when the ball was thrown away in the attempt to get him.

The Bullets added five more in the fourth and two in the fifth. Ange had a solo inside-the-park homer in the fourth, while Greg Sullivan had a two-run homer, also inside the park, in the fifth.

Bear Grass finished the season with an 11-7 record. Bear Grass 000 000 0-0 3 5

Best Receives Top ECU Award

Fast Carolina University's baseball Pirates were honored last night at a banquet for the team, which is still waiting and hopeful for an NCAA playoff bid.

Coach Hal Baird announced during the festivities that the Pirate chances were brightened yesterday when it was announced that East Carolina is currently ranked 30th in the nation by "Collegiate Baseball." That publication handles the ranking system for the country's college baseball teams. Bids for the playoffs are expected out early next week.

A number of players were honored during the evening, led by the awarding of the Most Valuable Player Award to senior Billy Best. Best, who was a starter for three and a half years, holds most of the offensive career records for the Pirates, including at bats, 602; runs scored, 123; hits, 179; runs batted in, 89, and stolen bases, 53. He is also tied for triples with ten, and holds the single season record for at bats with 170. During his final three years, he struck out only eight times, including just twice as a junior and only once this year.

Other awards included Rookie of the Year, a tie between Kelly Robinette, the shortstop, and John Hallow, the designated hitter; Hustler Award, Pete Persico, utility infielder; Most Improved, Rick De-rechailo, first baseman; Defensive Player of the Year, Mike Sorrell, second baseman; Best Hitter, Butch Davis, left fielder; Best Pitcher, Bill Wilder; Coaches Awards, right fielder Macon Moye, pitcher Mickey Britt, and catcher Raymie Styons.

East Carolina finished the regular season with a 28-5 record.

76ers Win, Even Title Series At 1-1

By KEN PETERS
AP Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham was getting sick of reading that the Los Angeles Lakers were much better than his 76ers.

"All I'd read or heard for the past three days is how the Lakers are far superior," said Cunningham, shaking his head.

"Now I'll be reading that we're far superior."

The 76ers were vastly superior through the first three quarters of Wednesday night's second game of the National Basketball Association Championship series, then were — more importantly — slightly better in the closing moments to take a 107-104 victory and even the series at one game each.

The way Cunningham sees it as the playoffs shift to Philadelphia for games Saturday and Sunday, any claims of superiority one way or the other are premature.

"The teams are a lot alike," he said, "and looking at the first two games (the Lakers won 109-101 Sunday), you see two teams that want the championship very badly."

The 76ers dominated the game for the first three periods and led 89-71 heading into the final quarter. The Lakers, however, staged a furious rally to close to within 99-98 with 2:26 remaining. But a pressure-packed jumper by Bobby Jones at the top of the key with seven seconds remaining gave Philadelphia the winning margin.

Los Angeles had a final chance to tie it, but Norm Nixon missed from three-point range with three seconds remaining.

"We were looking to Julius (Erving) on our last play," said Jones, who got his shot off just as the 24-second clock ran out. "When he threw it to me, I knew there wasn't much time left. I had to shoot it high because (Michael) Cooper was coming at me. It's a shot I wouldn't take often."

"I didn't see the ball until it hit the bottom of the net."

The 76ers to a man said they weren't surprised that the Lakers, who trailed by 23 points at one time, rallied in the fourth quarter.

"We know they're an explosive team," said Darryl Dawkins, who led Philadelphia with 25 points. "We didn't relax; they just played real well in the final quarter."

Guard Maurice Cheeks, frequently getting open shots while the Lakers were double-teaming Erving, scored 23 points — hitting 11 of 12 from the floor — and Erving also had 23.

The Lakers were led by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's 38 points, with Jamaal Wilkes scoring 18, Jim Chones 14 and Earvin "Magic" Johnson 13.

A big difference in Game Two was the scoring of Dawkins, who was deadly with his medium-range jumpers, and of Cheeks, who averaged 11.4 points a game this season. Both had scored 12 points in the opening loss.

"Things got very hectic there at the last," Cheeks said of the Lakers' comeback. "We kept our poise, though. I was sure glad to see BJ's (Jones) shot go in."

"I thought we played courageously in the second half," said Coach Paul Westhead, whose Lakers trailed 59-41 at the intermission. "We're now a stronger, more confident team. I feel that way because we came back under difficult circumstances."

After the two games in Philadelphia, the series returns to Los Angeles next Wednesday.

Griffton Games Are Delayed

The beginning of the Griffton Summer adult softball league has been delayed one week because not enough teams have filed their rosters and paid their entry fee, according to Recreation Commission Chairman Janet Haseley.

Games were originally scheduled to begin May 5 but have now been set for May 12. At least six teams who have said they are ready to play had not turned in their rosters and paid their fees last week, according to Haseley.

Any team wishing to play in the summer league must turn in a roster of no more than 18 players and pay an entry fee of $100. This fee covers cost of electricity. Fees and rosters may be turned in at the Griffton Town Hall or to Softball Coordinator Tom Kornegay.

New Controversy Is Brewing At Race Track

By MIKE HARRIS
AP Motorsports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — It appears yet another controversy is dogging the heels of the people who bring you the Indianapolis 500.

Before the time trials for the May 25 race are over, the name nitrous oxide could become a household word at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Nitrous oxide, also known as laughing gas, is a super coolant which can cause sudden bursts of speed when induced into the turbocharger or fuel injection system of a race car.

It is highly illegal in most forms of racing, but is effective in small quantities and can be hidden in numerous places.

A 10-pound nitro bottle is about 30 inches long and about the same diameter as a pop bottle. It can be easily disguised as a fire extinguisher, hidden under a fuel cell or inside the car's tubular frame.

Saturday will be the first of four days of qualifying for the Indy race, and by Wednesday rumors were flying all over the garage area that some teams would be using hidden nitrous oxide to overcome U.S. Auto Club carburation restrictions that slow up the powerful champ cars.

The injection of nitrous oxide has a short-term effect, so it's far more likely that it would be used for the five-mile qualifying runs than for the 500-mile race.

One highly respected chief mechanic, who asked that his name not be used, was upset about the prospect.

"What it means is that there's going to be more cheating than ever," he said heatedly. "We can't just concentrate on racing. Now we've got to worry about who's cheating and if we're going to have to cheat to beat them."

USAC is still very sensitive about the uproar that accompanied last year's time trials because of apparently widespread cheating to circumvent turbocharger restrictions.

The rumors about nitrous oxide bottles quickly reached the ears of USAC technical chief Jack Beckley and competition director Roger McCluskey.

Wellcome rallied in the fifth inning to score twice and gain a 2-1 Little League victory over Big Value Drugs yesterday in the Tar Heel League.

Big Value grabbed the lead in the first inning as Eric Jarman scored a run. It stayed that way until the fifth, when Wellcome scored both of its runs.

Terry Warren opened the inning, getting a hit. He stole second and scored when Lark Wetherington doubled. Patrick Kanetze reached on an error, and Vickie Parrott was safe on a fielder's choice, allowing Wetherington to score from third.

Warren led the Wellcome hitting with two, while Jarman had three hits to pace Big

The Kiwanis rolled to an 11-2 victory over Coca-Cola yesterday in the North State Little League.

The Kiwanis got all they wanted in the first inning, scoring four times. Scott Davis walked and Robert Ehrmann followed with a double. William Smith doubled in both runners, and scored when Van Alston singled. Alston came around on a pair of errors.

The Kiwanis added one in the third, one in the fourth, and finished things off with five in the fifth.

Coke scored once in the fourth and once again in the sixth.

Davis and Ehrmann each had two hits to lead the Kiwanis, while Coke got only one hit off Kiwanis pitcher Robert Evans.

Talks Are Continuing

NEW YORK (AP) — The major issues of pensions and compensation for free agent signings were expected to be discussed at today's session of negotiations between the Major League Players Association and the owners' Player Relations Committee.

Progress was minimal at the talks Wednesday and even federal mediator Kenneth Moffett was beginning to sound pessimistic about the situation.

"We're getting closer to the deadline and there are still a lot of unresolved issues," he said.

The players have set a May 22 strike deadline, threatening to walk out the following day, just before the Memorial Day weekend unless a new basic agreement is reached by then.

SNOW HILL — Greene Central rolled to a 23-4 softball victory over Southwest Edgecombe in Eastern Carolina Conference action yesterday.

The Lady Rams scored five times in the first inning and added similar scores in the second and third to hold a 15-0 advantage before the Cougars finally got on the scoreboard in the fifth.

Another five-run sixth was highlighted by a three-run homer by Clara Speight.

Melody Ham led the Ram hitting with four, while Sharon Suggs, Letha Taylor and Speight each had three and Pat Woodward had two. No one had more than one hit for Southwest.

Greene Central is now 11-2 in league play and 13-2 overall. They host North Pitt on Friday.

Parker's Poke Gives Bucs Win

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
When your knuckleball isn't knuckling, Dave Parker is not the man you want up at the plate.
Charlie Hough was in that paralyzing situation Wednesday night.
The Los Angeles Dodger relief pitcher served up what he called "the worst pitch I think I've ever thrown" to the bu-nyanque Pittsburgh Pirate outfielder in the seventh inning.

And Parker gave it a ride into the right field seats at Three Rivers Stadium, leading the Pirates to a 7-6 victory over the Dodgers.
"I threw it right over the plate," said Hough, "and he hit it like you're supposed to."
While Parker was supplying the punch, newcomer Pascual

Perez was supplying the pitching. Just brought up from the minors this week, the Dominican Republic native held a 6-2 lead over the Dodgers before leaving in the seventh inning. He was deprived of the victory when the Dodgers later tied the game, but wasn't particularly upset.
"I felt right, I felt good," Perez said after his first major league appearance.
Perez was summoned from the minors because of key losses to the Pirates' starting rotation: Jim Rooker's arm injury and Bert Blyleven's decision to leave the team.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Cincinnati Reds edged the New York Mets 3-2 in 12 innings; the Chicago Cubs whipped the San Diego Padres 7-4; the Montreal Expos trimmed the Houston Astros 3-2 and the St. Louis Cardinals routed the San Francisco Giants 12-2. The Atlanta-Philadelphia game was rained out.
Parker's homer was the Pirates' fourth of the night. Shots by Willie Stargell, Bill Madlock and Ed Ott had staked Perez to a 6-0 lead through five innings. Los Angeles trimmed the margin to 6-2 with a pair of sixth-inning runs.
Perez was relieved after he yielded a leadoff walk to Ron Cey in the seventh, and the Dodgers followed with a four-run, game-tying surge off the heart of the Pirate bullpen — Enrique Romo, Grant Jackson and Kent Tekulac, 4-0.

After Dan Driessen was walked intentionally, Kennedy singled to left, scoring the winning run.
John Stearns' pinch RBI single had tied the game for the Mets in the bottom of the ninth.
Cubs 7, Padres 4
Jerry Martin broke a fifth-inning tie with a home run, triggering Chicago past San Diego. Martin's shot put the Cubs ahead 3-2 against Rick Wise, 2-2. Then Scot Thompson lined a one-out double and scored on Mike Tyson's second hit of the game, a single.
Cub starter Mike Krukow, 3-1, worked 5-3 innings, giving up three Padre runs on eight hits. Chicago used three pitchers in relief, including Bruce Sutter, who gained his eighth save.
"Jerry Martin is the best hitter on their club," said San Diego Manager Jerry Coleman. "Wise pitched well enough, but he made mistakes, one big one to Martin."
Expos 3, Astros 0
Scott Sanderson combined with Woodie Fryman on a six-hitter and Rodney Scott and Ken Macha each drove in a run to lead Montreal over Houston.
The Expos took a 1-0 lead off Nolan Ryan, 1-2, in the first inning without a hit, Scott driving the run home with a grounder. Macha brought home another run for the Expos with an RBI single in a two-run second inning.

Cardinals 12, Giants 2
Bob Forsch pitched seven innings of three-hit ball and contributed a three-run homer, pacing St. Louis over San Francisco. Forsch's homer in the sixth inning was the fifth of his career and the second this season.
The 30-year-old right-hander struck out seven and walked one before a sore heel acted up and Jim Kaat relieved in the eighth.

Watson Again Nelson Choice

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
DALLAS (AP) — Preston Trail Golf Club is fast becoming known as "Watson's Alley."
Like Ben Hogan used to ravage Colonial Country Club in Fort Worth, Tom Watson is the player you have to beat each year in the Byron Nelson Golf Classic.
Hogan won five Colonial Invitation tournaments. Watson has won three Nelsons in five years, including the last two.

course that favors a long hitter," said Geiberger. "The greens are fast and hard to putt. There are a lot of severe slopes. The players who can hit it long usually have better putting opportunities because they are hitting shorter irons into the greens."
Missing from the field is a Nelson favorite, Arnold Palmer, who had a business commitment in Denver.

The $300,000 Nelson tournament, which began today over the 6,993-yard, par-70 Preston Trail Golf Club, was supposed to be strictly a race for second place, even though the glamorous field included Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino and the latest PGA-tour winner, Curtis Strange, who beat Trevino in a playoff in Houston.
"Sure, you have to pick Watson," said tour veteran Al Geiberger. "He puts these greens like a bandit. And he's hitting it good — real good."
Watson, a dues-paying member of Preston Trail, comes to the Nelson fresh from a week off after successive victories in the Tournament of Champions and the New Orleans Open.
He is close to a dead-even pick to pocket the $54,000 first prize. The Dallas Times-Herald had him listed as a 2-to-1 choice despite the fact there were 144 players in the field.
Watson, who has won almost $2 million and has sacked $246,525 in just 10 tournaments this year, sometimes visits Dallas when his game goes sour so Nelson himself can take a look.
In fact, Watson came to Dallas last week for a lesson on his iron play.
"Thanks to Byron, I'm striking my irons much better now," said Watson. "That will be a big help here."
Nicklaus won successive Nelsons in 1970 and 1971. He is the Nelson's all-time leader in stroke average, 69.60 for 20 competitive rounds.
However, the 40-year-old Nicklaus hasn't won a tournament since the British Open in 1978.
Trevino, who is on his game lately, has never won at the Nelson but plays the course well.
"I'm hitting the ball as good as I ever have," said Trevino. "I'd like to win it (the Nelson) one time in front of the home folks."
Watson shot a 5-under-par 275 last year to win a weather-plagued tournament.
"This is the kind of golf

Haywood Suspended

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles reserve forward Spencer Haywood, at odds with Coach Paul Westhead recently over a lack of playing time, was suspended indefinitely by the Lakers following Wednesday night's 107-104 playoff loss to the Philadelphia 76ers.
Westhead said in announcing the decision that the move was being taken because of Haywood's "activities disruptive to the team."
Haywood, who played just two minutes and scored two points in Wednesday night's game that saw the 76ers even the National Basketball Association Championship finals at one game apiece, was fined for being late to practice earlier this week. He also reportedly went to sleep during practice late last week.
A 6-foot-9, 225-pound power forward who's played 10 NBA seasons, Haywood had averaged 6.1 points per game in the Lakers' 11 playoff outings prior to Wednesday's game. He averaged 9.7 points in 76 regular-season contests.
Lakers owner Jerry Buss, who patched up a Haywood dispute during the regular season, said he goes along with Westhead's decision.
"I am a basketball fan, not a basketball expert. I hired an expert, our coach," said Buss, "and it's his decision that this must be, therefore I agree."

TEXAS TALK
MISS STATE, Miss. (AP) — Mississippi State football coach Emory Ballard had coached exclusively in the state of Texas before moving to Mississippi. His expressions have a Texas quality to them.
After watching his team play last season, Ballard announced: "Our linemen need to get down and grubroot it around." Experts in Texas vernacular translated that to mean that the linemen will have to do more hitting this year.

It Was A Bad Day For Seeded Players

NEW YORK (AP) — It was a bad day for the seeded players at the Tournament of Champions but it could have been worse.

Peter Fleming, rated sixth, and Hans Gildemeister, seeded seventh, each were dumped from the $50,000 event Wednesday while No. 2 seeded Jimmy Connors got a wet reprieve. Connors trailed Vijay Amritraj of India 4-6, 1-2, when a heavy rain shower caused a suspension of the match until today. Fleming lost to Brian Teacher 2-6, 7-5, 6-2; Gildemeister fell to Balazs Taroczy of Hungary 6-0, 6-2 before 5,757 people.

In the only other singles match Wednesday, Wojtek Fibak of Poland upended Brian Gottfried 6-4, 6-2. In addition to the completion of the Connors-Amritraj battle today, No. 4 Eddie Dibbs took on Raul Ramirez of Mexico; No. 5

Victor Pecci of Paraguay had a date with Andrew Pattison of Zimbabwe; third-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis played Peter McNamara of Australia and top-rated John McEnroe had a night encounter with Terry Moor.

Amritraj used an assortment of offspeed shots to keep Connors guessing in the first set. Each held service through nine games when the heavy rains caused a delay of 44 minutes.

When the players returned, Connors served while down 4-5 and blew two game points before double faulting. Amritraj then won the set when Connors' backhand at the end of a long rally went into the net.

Each held serve through three games of the second set and, with Connors serving at 1-2, 30-30, another deluge caused a play stoppage. After a 27-minute wait, play was called for the night.

"It's not over yet," vowed Connors. "I would have liked to play tonight. Rain never hurt anybody; what am I going to do, melt? Only the wicked witch melts in the rain."

"He was the one who wanted to stop and that's his prerogative. The tennis balls and the court were pretty heavy out there."

Amritraj feared for his health on the slippery court and said the decision not to continue was a sound one.

"It's a question of condition," he said. "In a blackout, what do you do, finish the game? I would probably have the advantage," the dark-skinned Indian joked. "He wouldn't see me."

This exclusive tournament, which pits only winners of tour events in the last 12 months, won't see any more of Fleming and Gildemeister in the singles. Gildemeister was simply overwhelmed by Taroczy. Fleming, however, was a different story.

Fleming appeared to have the upper hand on Teacher, easing to a first-set victory and then serving for the match at 5-4. But Teacher broke Fleming thanks greatly to a double fault at game point, then held his own serve and broke again to win the set.

Teacher started well in the decisive third set, holding his serve and again breaking Fleming. He had little trouble running out the match.

"I got real tentative toward the end of the second set," noted Fleming, who was penalized a point in the first game of the third set for "obscenity" directed at a heckler. "I stopped serving and volleying and couldn't hit a ball after that. I couldn't hit a serve when it got tight."

Fibak outmaneuvered Gottfried who, like Connors, Teacher and Gildemeister, had a first-round bye. The Pole, seeded No. 12 in the world, used the wind to his advantage.

"Today was a matter of patience," said Fibak. "It was windy and the wind bothers us because it is not steady." Fibak already is happy with his achievements this week. In fact, he's quite satisfied with his efforts this year.

"My average is three (tournament) wins a year," he said. "I've already reached my average so I guess I can take the rest of the year off."

Speaker Stewart Grudgingly Conceded

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — House Speaker Carl Stewart conceded defeat Wednesday to Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green in the Democratic primary for lieutenant governor, but he admitted the concession was done grudgingly.

Stewart, 43, said he would support Green in the fall, out of party loyalty and to improve harmony during the remaining session of the Legislature.

But, he said, "If I were an incumbent lieutenant governor who had received less than 51 percent of the vote of the Democrats in North Carolina, I'm not sure I would feel very comfortable about that."

Green, on the other hand, said his victory would go a long way toward unifying Democrats.

"I hope now all Democrats across North Carolina will close ranks and work hard for a victory in November because I feel that's so important for continuing progress in North Carolina," Green said.

Green took the nomination with only 50.95 percent of the total vote. Stewart got 47.14 percent. With all counties reporting, Green captured 367,965 votes, while Stewart got 340,494.

Green, who is trying to become the first lieutenant governor to win a second, consecutive term, and Republican William Cobey, former University of North Carolina athletic director and a political newcomer, will face each other in the general election.

Green called his 27,000-vote victory "a pretty good spread. That's twice as many as you can put in Reynolds Coliseum" on the campus of North Carolina State University.

But he acknowledged the balloting was closer than he expected.

He said the close vote was due to the fact he was "outsent considerably" by Stewart, although both candidates ran heavy amounts of television advertising in the final weeks of the campaign.

Stewart had accused Green and his supporters of spreading "silly tales" and running a negative campaign. But Green, in proclaiming victory, called his "one of the cleanest campaigns that's ever been run in North Carolina."

Green said he would take a "close look" at running for governor in 1984, but added that now is "too early for that." Green had considered the governor's race this year, and some Republicans had wooed him as the GOP candidate.

Stewart said he had no intention of retiring from politics.

"I've had calls all morning asking if I was ready for the governor's race in 1984. My response was that if my (only other) options were between attorney general and lieutenant governor, then I might be," Stewart said.

Other races are up in the air, he said. "If you've been speaker of the House, to be a member of Congress looks like peanuts...and a member of the (state) House looks like smaller peanuts," Stewart said.

Casualties

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Seven incumbent House members lost primary races this week and another, Howard Chapin of Washington, was forced into a runoff by Aurora Mayor Grace H. Bonner.

The casualties included nine-term veteran Rep. Roberts Jernigan of Abookie, who is chairman of the House Transportation Committee.

Also going down in their primary races were Reps. James G. Revelle Jr. of Conway, George P. Cullipher of Williamston, John W. Covington of Rockingham, W. Casper Holyrod of Raleigh, and Robert E. Davis of Maxton, all Democrats, and Republican Rep. Carl W. Rullman Sr. of Hickory.

Runoffs also will be held in the Democratic race for the 9th Senatorial District, between Rep. Barney Paul Woodard of Princeton and Robert D. Warren of Benson, and the Democratic 32nd House District, between former Rep. Janet W. Pickler of New London and V. Glenn Morton of Albemarle.

Publisher Sells Weekly Paper

WEST JEFFERSON, N.C. (AP) — The sale of the two-year-old Jefferson Times was announced Wednesday by David H. Desautels, the paper's founder, owner and publisher.

The Times is being sold to Jefferson Times Inc., a company owned by the Elkin Tribune.

Desautels is relinquishing his posts of editor and publisher of the weekly newspaper. The new publisher will be R. Fletcher Good IV, publisher of The Tribune in Elkin-Jonesville. Pat Taylor, currently managing editor of The Times, has been promoted to editor and general manager.

Desautels, who plans to return to the University of North Carolina to teach business and political science, will remain with The Times as executive publisher. His column will continue to appear on the editorial page of the paper on a regular basis.

Approaching The End

The bidding:
South West North East
1 ♦ 2 ♥ 2 ♦ 3 ♥
4 ♦ Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: King of ♥.

They say in the old country: "The trouble with leading a doubleton is that you never can tell when it's a singleton." Still, there are times when logic can point the way, as this hand illustrates.

We salute the bidding of both North and East. North did not have the values for a bid of three diamonds, which would have been forcing, so he made the only forward-going move available by freely supporting spades. East's decision to compete with three hearts must also be commended—three trumps, an ace and a singleton is more than enough to raise partner's two-level overcall.

West led the king of hearts, and East followed with the two. The fate of the contract now hinged on West's next play.

From the auction, it seemed likely that East had a fast trick to justify his raise. If East held the ace of clubs, it was important to cash club and heart tricks before declarer could get discards on dummy's diamonds. However, if East held the ace of diamonds, the only way to defeat the contract would be to obtain a diamond ruff. Was there any clue as to which ace East held?

Yes, but a slight one. If East did not have dummy's long suit stopped, he would not have discouraged a heart continuation. Since, in fact, he did, it seemed reasonable to assume that he held the ace of diamonds, so West shifted to the four of diamonds.

Now it was East's turn to star. If West held a singleton diamond, it was right to win the ace and give him a ruff; if the diamond lead was a doubleton, it was vital to hold up the ace. Which was more likely?

There was no sure way to tell, but East decided that if his partner held a singleton diamond, he would have cashed a second heart before shifting to a diamond. Therefore, East elected to let dummy's king of diamonds win the second trick.

Declarer was rendered helpless. If he drew trumps, the defenders would collect two more heart tricks and the ace of diamonds. If he did not, West would score a diamond ruff.

ECU Musicians Have Program

Two musicians of the East Carolina University School of Music faculty, Selma Gokcen, cellist, and Rodney Schmidt, violinist, will join Jim Hopkins, violist of the North Carolina Symphony, and Lydia Gatling, pianist, Affiliate Artist at Edgecombe Technical Institute, in a performance Friday, May 9, in Tarboro.

The program, scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. in the auditorium at Edgecombe County Technical Institute, will feature on the program two piano quartets, the "Quartet in G minor, K. 478" by Mozart, and the "Quartet in G Minor, Opus 25" by Brahms.

The program is open to the public and there is no admission charged.

TV Viewing Impressions Confirmed

By PETER J. BOYER

AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The A.C. Nielsen Co. has issued its "Report on Television 1980," confirming most of the generally held notions about American television viewing, including:

Nearly all American households own a TV set (98 percent), and most own a color set (83 percent); there are more adults and fewer kids in the average TV household than there were a decade ago; viewers watch more TV on Sunday night, and more "60 Minutes" than any other program; sitcoms are the most popular program type.

That stuff we already knew. What is news is that television usage took its largest jump in quite a while last year, up from six hours and 13 minutes per average household daily to six hours and 26 minutes. "The highest season average ever reported," Nielsen notes.

The average American is now spending 13 more minutes daily in front of the tube.

Thirteen minutes. The more I pondered this new information, the more I was bothered by it. Not because I think television watching is a dishonorable way to pass time; but I worried about the things that used to get done in those 13 minutes now lost to television.

If television is getting 13

Luce Is Guest On Radio Show

Scott Luce, geriatric specialist at the Pitt County Mental Health Center, will be guest Sunday at 1:06 p.m. on "Mental Health Matters" on WNCT radio.

He will talk about his work consulting with other agencies, as well as his direct services for aging citizens.

May 11-18 is National Nursing Home Week. Luce will talk about his services to nursing home residents in the community and will encourage people to visit and show concern for local nursing home residents.

Luce recently spoke at the Greenville Senior Citizens Center about geriatric services available at Pitt County Mental Health Center. He is available for both consultation and program presentations. Call 752-7151 or 752-0119.

participated in a six-week clogging course offered by the Shad Festival prior to the festival.

This workshop is free of charge and the public is invited to attend.

minutes more of us, something else is losing out. What?

Hmm. It takes about 13 minutes to watch one inning of little league baseball (half-an-inning if the play is especially inartistic). I attend a few innings of little league every week, and the crowds seem as large as ever. It must be something else.

It takes about 13 minutes to bathe a medium-sized dog with anti-flea shampoo (if you do it right, leaving the lather on for five minutes).

It takes approximately 13 minutes to explain to your wife why you can't vacation in Acapulco this year (another half-hour to explain why you can't vacation ANYWHERE this year).

It takes 13 minutes or so to make a proper chili-dog (if you don't have to prepare the chili).

It takes 13 minutes — exactly — to mow one-half of a 30-by-50-foot lawn.

After just a few moments' rumination, a rather black image appeared: dogs pitifully scratching, marriages dissolving, children losing their standing in the national palate and half-lawns growing wild in the streets as America watches television.

My mind reeled. What if it takes 13 minutes to respond to a nuclear attack, and President Carter is watching the last half of "Hee Haw"? Or what if 13 minutes of honest, intense negotiation could resolve the major league baseball dispute, and the two sides are home watching the last 13 minutes

Saudis Unable Bar 'Princess' On TV

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Public Broadcasting System plans to air the film "Death of a Princess" next Monday despite a protest by the Saudi Arabian government to the U.S. State Department that called the show offensive and inaccurate.

The protest was delivered Wednesday by the Saudi ambassador to the United States, Sheik Faisal Alhagelan, during a half-hour meeting with Acting Secretary of State Warren Christopher.

Sheik Alhagelan gave Christopher a letter listing the specific Saudi objections to the movie. The letter will be sent to PBS.

Barry Chase, director of current affairs programming for PBS, said his network would not change plans to air the 112-minute film next Monday on more than 100 PBS stations. Ten stations, including eight in South Carolina, have declined to show the film.

The show depicts the 1977 execution of a princess and her lover. After the movie, there will be a 30-minute discussion covering subjects such as the role of women in Saudi Arabia and the effect of Western influences on Arabs, Chase said.

The film was produced and written by David Fanning of WGBH-TV in Boston and by Anthony Thomas of England. It was recently shown in Great Britain, despite the objections of Saudi Arabia.

Saudi Arabia is the chief supplier of oil imported by the United States.

Meanwhile, an aide to Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., said Percy and President Carter had discussed the movie last week. Percy told the president that "there would be support in Congress should the president make a determination that the showing of the program would not be in the national interest," said the aide, John Walker.

Carter has not responded to the suggestion, Walker said.

Filming Comedy In 4 Countries

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "Sunday Lovers," a four-part ribald comedy about love, will be filmed in four countries — the United States, the United Kingdom, France and Italy — for MGM.

Directing the quartet of episodes will be Gene Wilder, Bryan Forbes, Edward Molinaro and Dino Risi.

Starring in the bittersweet story of love in four countries will be Lynn Redgrave, Gene Wilder, Roger Moore, Ugo Tognazzi, Lino Ventura, Kathleen Quinlan and Robert Webber.

Misplaced Old Monument Still Stands In Pasture

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent
UNION, W.Va. (AP) — Confederate monuments, moldy with age and memory, preside over courthouse lawns throughout Dixie.

It is not strange, then, that one should grace this county seat, whence the flower of southern manhood marched to glory under the brave banner of the 27th Virginia Infantry.

Except the monument isn't here. It's out there. Out there, north of town, in the approximate middle of a 20-acre cow pasture.

"People driving down the highway are always stopping to ask what that is," said Ralph Hinkle. His house backs up to the pasture fence. It is the logical place for the curious to knock.

Old files also reveal that the monument was unveiled with much pomp on Aug. 29, 1901, after a parade. Belles dressed in gray gowns with sashes of red-white-red attended horsedrawn floats representing each of the 11 states of the Confederacy.

Grizzled veterans of the Lost Cause, 250 of them, sang "Auld Lang Syne." Spectators, 12,000 of them, the most ever assembled in Monroe County, wept. Orators, three of them, orated. One of them, the son of a general, had put up half the money for the monument. Daughters of the Confederacy raised the rest.

All of which is more than most people want to know about the monument, but still leaves unanswered question number one. Why did they put the blamed thing in a cow pasture?

Next stop is Karen Mitchell's parlor.

Mrs. Mitchell lives across the road east of the statue — the statue, need it be said, faces south — in a grand old antebellum mansion with 12-foot ceilings. She owns the 350-acre cattle farm that includes the pasture where the monument stands.

She has two theories. One is that the town was expected to grow in that direction, northward, eventually to encompass the monument, which would become the focus of a lovely park. So much for urban planning.

The other involves the legacy of this once-troubled state, which split from the Confederacy in mid-war. Mrs. Mitchell wonders: When the monument was built, could local government have been controlled by ones who deemed a Confederate monument unseemly within the city limits? So much for binding up wounds.

Arts, Crafts

Sale Is Planned

FARMVILLE — Arts and crafts will be displayed and offered for sale on the Town Commons here Saturday from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. during the Farmville Arts and Crafts Country Festival.

Singing, music and dancing will add to the festivity. Performing will be Rosemary Turnage's Madrigal Singers, Kathryn Sauls' Youth Choir, the Girl Scout singers, and Greene County square dancers.

The Farmville Junior Woman's Club will sell hot dogs and the H. B. Suggs Alumni group will sell barbecue. The Farmville Middle School cheerleaders will sell soft drinks.

A student art show will be on display and the Farmville Police Department will have a dunking booth.

"I tell them it's our Confederate monument. They ask why it's way out there. Damned if I know. All I can tell them is, that's where it was put."

It's a puzzlement, all right. The monument is a statue of a soldier, in a slouch hat, holding a rifle. It is carved in white marble. The soldier stands, at parade rest, atop a limestone pedestal. Pedestal and soldier are 20 feet tall. The soldier's countenance suggests a Mediterranean origin.

Ana. Town files reveal that the statue was carved in Italy.

LOWER PRIME RATE
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina National Bank announced Wednesday it will lower its prime rate to 17 percent, effective today.

Religion Role In Mental Health

WARWICK, R.I. (AP) — What relationship is there between mental health and religion? What influence does religion have on mental health?

Some 270 physicians, psychologists, priests, ministers, nuns, social workers and nurses joined in an all-day conference here to discuss these questions recently.

The conference's consensus was that psychiatry and religion have much to offer each other, and that religion may be an important element in maintaining mental health.

Judith Krauss, associate dean of Yale University's School of Nursing, told participants that while neither psychotherapy nor religion can substitute for each other, both come together in meeting human needs.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — ALIMONY SPIRAL INSPIRES REAL PARSIMONY.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: N equals A

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, MAY 9, 1980

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You can make important decisions now and get excellent results. Figure out what obstacles stand in your way, and then take positive steps to gain your most cherished aims.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have good ideas that need proper arranging before putting them in operation. Personal goals can be easily attained now.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Make needed changes in the home that will give you added comfort. Be sure home affairs are running smoothly now.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You can benefit by concerted action in your line of endeavor at this time. Avoid unnecessary expenditure of money.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You can easily add to present abundance, so stop wasting valuable time. Express happiness with loved one.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A good time to go after a goal that is important to you. Listen to complaints of mate instead of airing your own views.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Contact allies who can give you the support you need for an important project you have in mind. Be more sincere.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Know what your personal aims are and go after them in a positive manner. Avoid one who wants to make trouble for you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be sure not to invest more money than you can afford in a new project. Show others that you have wisdom.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Your intuitive faculties are working well at this time, so make good use of them. Handle business matters wisely.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Use more modern methods in your business dealings and get excellent results. Don't neglect important bills.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Making new friends of worth is wise now. Much care in motion must be exercised now to avoid possible accident.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make any changes necessary to improve the quality of your work and gain the benefits. Show that you have ability.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who can solve difficult problems, so direct the education along lines of research for best results. Don't neglect ethical training early in life. There is much happiness in this chart.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Reading Lab Competition

The Reading Lab at Pactolus Elementary School, under the direction of Mrs. Betty Woodley, has been involved in reading competition during the month of April.

The children who read the most books will be rewarded with a stuffed animal and a party. The winners were: Veronica Perry, James Daniels, Aretha Pope, Keith Manning, Lisa Simmons and Ray Norris.

Two Convicted In 4 Slayings

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — A New Jersey handyman and a Brooklyn automobile mechanic face possible life sentences following their conviction in the execution-style slayings of a former assistant secretary of state and three other Bedford Hills residents.

Jimmie Lee Allen, 41, of Plainfield, N.J., and Junius Gray, 41, of Brooklyn, were convicted Wednesday on 19 counts — including murder, robbery, burglary and weapons possession — in what the district attorney called "the most heinous crimes in the history of Westchester County."

The jury returned its verdict nearly a year after the May 9, 1979, homicides, which stunned the quiet northern Westchester County hamlet noted for its horse farms and spacious mansions.

Among the victims was Charles Frankel, a former U.S. assistant secretary of state, and his wife, Helen, both 61. Not far away, 21-year-old Christopher Sperry was shot in the head and his family's governess, 85-year-old Nellie McCormack, was killed as she slept.

Seventeen days later, a .32-caliber pistol and silencer was seized with Gray and Allen at the scene of a Brooklyn robbery. Ballistics tests matched the weapon with the bullets taken from the victims' bodies. Detectives found witnesses who testified that Gray and Allen fenced furs and jewelry stolen from the Sperry and Frankel homes.

Neither Gray nor Allen — who are serving 12½ to 25 year sentences for the Brooklyn robbery — showed any reaction as the jury forewoman announced "guilty" 19 times for each man.

Both defense lawyers plan to appeal the convictions. The maximum sentence for murder is 25 years to life in prison. Sentencing was set for June 4.

Pre-School Parties Planned

Pre-school parties for all children who have registered for kindergarten and first grade in the Greenville City Schools for 1980-81 will be held on Tuesday, May 13 in the four schools to be serving grades K-3 — Eastern, Elmhurst, Sadie Sautler and Third Street.

Director of Education Charles Ross says the parties will be in conjunction with orientation for the parents of children who have been registered. Letters inviting children and parents to the parties were mailed yesterday to all who have registered to date.

Ross adds that any parents who have not registered eligible children for kindergarten and the first grade do so at the earliest possible time — hopefully in time for them to receive an invitation to the parties-orientation.

Persons with children who have not registered are asked to report to the school of the four listed above nearest them to get information and forms for registration.

New Officers To Be Installed

New officers for next year will be installed Thursday evening at the dinner meeting of the Northeastern Tarheel Chapter of the American Institute of Industrial Engineers.

Officers to be installed at the King and Queen Restaurant include: Don Fitts, president; Jim Marlowe, president elect; Chris Harris, secretary/treasurer; and Tom Houston, Wayne Temple, Carol Ward, Robert Jordan and Dianne Wetherington, directors.

Dr. Jim Tompkins, president of Tompkins Associates and vice president of AIIIE Region III, will install the officers and speak to the chapter members following the installation.

The meeting, which will be the last of the year for the chapter, will begin with a 5:30 p.m. social, followed by dinner at 6:15 p.m. and the installation session at 7 p.m.

South New Jersey Talks Secession; Not All Joke

By PETER MATTIACE
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — West Virginia did it to Virginia. Maine did it to Massachusetts. Would South Jersey secede from New Jersey to become the 51st state?

Low rumblings in New Jersey's southland threaten, only half jokingly, to tear the state apart at its waist. And the more some South Jerseyers talk about it, the more serious they get.

"Sure we can do it. We have the smarts," said Albert Freeman, 66, a retired Mount Holly newspaper publisher who leads the rebel cause as self-proclaimed "provisional governor of South Jersey."

"There's nothing smarter than a dumb farmer," Freeman said. "And that's North Jersey's opinion of us, that we're a bunch of yokels."

Seaside Heights Mayor George Tompkins has been trying for years to unite South Jersey mayors on statehood. "I'm very serious about it," Tompkins said. "Oh, it started off as a joke after a couple of things came down the pike from Trenton I didn't like. After a while, though, I talked to a number of mayors about it and they liked the idea."

From Bordentown to Cape May, the rebels' cry is the same: too much South Jersey tax money goes to North Jersey in return for too much control by Trenton (read "North Jersey") bureaucrats.

"They're carpetbaggers," said Freeman. "They come down here just the way northerners went to the South right after the Civil War."

The problem is largely one of image. To most northerners, South Jersey is a weekend at the beach, a sail on the bay, a drive through the Pine Barrens and roadside vegetable stands run by country folk.

To many southerners, North Jersey is a metropolitan blur of Newark, Jersey City, Paterson and Rahway. It seems all state funding goes to Meadowlands Stadium, where the New York Giants play football and harness horses race, to Rutgers in New Brunswick, considered New Jersey's state university, and to webs of jammed North Jersey highways.

"I think we take the brunt of the taxation and we don't get anything for it," said Tompkins. "The state spends all its money on the cities of North Jersey. Eventually, South Jersey will be a giant park for the people of North Jersey."

Freeman said state staffs and agencies are stacked with North Jerseyers from such alien-sounding places as Hackensack, Hoboken and Ho-HoKus.

Gov. Brendan Byrne's staff is 20-1 North Jerseyans, according to Freeman. All seven Supreme Court justices are North Jerseyans, and the state Board of Education is stacked 21-4, Freeman said.

These city slickers, Tompkins said, control South

Jersey's beaches, bays, farms and pinelands through a network of agencies created by, of course, a hostile Legislature run by North Jersey politicians.

Freeman proposes that South Jersey's eight counties secede along the northern borders of Ocean and Burlington counties, freeing more than 1.8 million South Jerseyans from Trenton's grasp, leaving 5.4 million in North Jersey.

"There's a natural barrier. Monmouth and Mercer counties are both New York-oriented. We're more Philadelphia-oriented. We're an entity and we're a viable entity," Freeman said. "We have everything we need to sustain ourselves."

Camden would be the capital of the new state.

But doubters exist even among South Jersey's biggest supporters.

Paul Merkoski of The Atlantic City Press once wrote sarcastically that the capital should be not at Camden but at Ancora, site of a state psychiatric hospital.

Vineland Mayor Patrick Fiorilli, who has battled Trenton often, says secession is out of the question.

"Vineland is 19 miles south of the Mason-Dixon line. If we wanted to secede, we would have done it in the 1800s," Fiorilli said. "We've been neglected, but we think New Jersey's a great state and we're getting a little recognition now."

Freeman launched his campaign in January 1976 with an off-the-cuff editorial in the Burlington County Herald. To foster the idea, he has handed out more than 4,200 certificates of South Jersey citizenship.

Tompkins has written to Maine and West Virginia officials to ask how their states did it in the 1800s.

It all sounds like fun — until talk turns serious about county committees gathering petitions to force the question on a statewide referendum.

If it passed, the Legislature would act on the question and South Jerseyans would petition Congress to be admitted as the 51st state.

"There are states smaller than South Jersey in the union now," Freeman said. "And there are countries in the United Nations that have less population, less area and less money. Yet they're independent. Why can't we be independent?"

A New Signal Of Recession

INTERSTATE SECURITIES CORP.

The Index of Leading Economic Indicators dropped sharply last month, clear evidence of a developing recession. It does not, however, provide a clue as to the recession's severity. No one really knows how mild or severe this recession will be. A look at past recessions does tell us what the bright and gloomy spots are likely to be.

A rising rate of unemployment is obvious in recession. In each of the six post-war downturns, unemployment was higher at the end than when recession began. In five of these six slumps, the rate of unemployment continued rising after the official end of recession.

Other employment statistics are also affected. The average length of unemployment increases; it almost doubled in the last recession. Total employment usually declines, though not as sharply as unemployment statistics would seem to indicate. The average work week shortens and, as workers try to hold onto their jobs, the rate declines.

Corporate and individual incomes decline. Eliminating transfer payments (welfare and other governmental payments), personal incomes fell sharply during the last recession, even more so when income was adjusted for inflation. Corporate profits also decline substantially, both before and after adjustment for inflation.

Various industries are affected differently in recessions. Housing is particularly vulnerable: from the beginning to the end of the last recession, housing starts dropped 64 percent. In direct contrast, capital goods areas usually hold up well; in the last recession, spending for machinery and equipment actually rose.

One of the benefits of recession is that interest rates and inflation normally decline. From beginning to the end of the last downturn, consumer prices declined from a 12 percent annual rate of increase to about a five percent annual rate. Interest rates also fell, as they did in five of the six post-war recessions.

Stock market behavior during recessions has been somewhat contrary in post-war experience. In three of the six downturns, the market was higher at the end of recession than it was at the beginning; in the other three it was lower. Even when prices were higher over the course of the recession, sharp price drops preceded any turnaround. Typically, stock prices begin falling before a recession emerges and begin rising before the recession ends.

A recession's duration and severity cannot be predicted with a great deal of accuracy, but knowing in general how various parts of the economy react can prevent any unpleasant surprises as recession unfolds.

By SANDY COLTON
AP Newsfeatures

If you were bothered by a constant clicking in your ear in 1979, there was probably nothing wrong with your hearing. It was no doubt just a reaction to the estimated 12 billion exposures made by amateur photographers in the United States last year.

If you were one of the photographers who contributed, you also contributed to the some $6 billion spent on photography in this country last year.

Those are just two of the figures gleaned from a fascinating volume designed primarily for the photographic industry. It's the 1979-80 edition of the Wolfman Report (ABC Leisure Magazines, Inc. $50.).

This annual volume, edited by Lydia Wolfman, is a valuable tool for photo retailers, distributors and manufacturers.

It gives statistics on sales and use of photographic equipment and materials, broken down into many categories. You won't find it on your newsstand but the statistics it contains are fascinating for amateurs as well as dealers.

For example: a comparison of photography by teens broken down by girls and boys. Eighty-eight percent of young girls take pictures, while only 26 percent of teen-age boys have photography listed as a hobby.

Overall, it was a banner year for the photo industry in

THE WINNERS - Salesman Ed DiNapoli shows Christine Hansen two of the most popular camera types, the single lens reflex and an instant picture camera. According to the Wolfman Report, no matter what she decides women in general buy more film and shoot more pictures than men.

1979 despite threats of a recession.

The report notes that a key factor in the growth was the expansion of the instant-photography market. It accounted for $2.5 billion of the total $6 billion in sales.

The 110 pocket camera still leads in sales volume but the growing popularity of 35mm single-lens reflex cameras is gaining rapidly. The report estimates some 1.8 million of the latter were sold in 1979 as compared with 1.25 million the year before.

Looking to the future, the Wolfman report sees a further threat to the 110 camera from the growing number of 35mm non-reflex cameras. Many of the new models are compact enough to rival the 110 in convenience and feature automatic focusing and flash. The larger negative too, leads to sharper pictures.

Getting back to those 12 billion pictures taken last year, the report indicates that 92 percent were taken in color, and 82 percent of those were shot on color-print film rather than slide film. That fits in with the overall trend. In the past five years, the number of slides shot by photographers has gone up only 25.9 percent while the number of pictures taken on color-print film has soared by 97 percent.

Taking a quick look at amateur photography, the report says that 78 percent of all photo hobbyists are men, but when it comes to buying film females buy 68 percent of it and use 63 percent of it. The men, apparently, spend their time in the darkroom rather than shooting.

The average hobbyist owns an average of $2,300 in equipment and spends an additional $900 a year on photo supplies and equipment.

Single-lens reflex cameras are the winners among serious amateurs, scoring 66 percent ownership. They buy lenses, too, with the average being just over four lenses per photographer.

Here's another statistic that allows you to compare your activity against others: in 1978, the latest year for which figures are available, the average amateur shot 38 rolls of black and white film and 39 rolls of color.

While a lot of amateurs disappear into the darkroom to do their own processing, the photofinishing industry is flourishing. The 1979 estimate is a retail volume of $2.1 billion dollars. In 1965 it was only $500 million.

One of the few areas to show any significant decline is 8mm movie photography.

Super 8 camera sales were 767,000 in 1977 but fell to an estimated 450,000 in 1979.

Sales of sound-movie cameras have increased, however, with about one-third of all super 8 cameras now sold being sound models.

Electronic photography may change a lot of the statistics in the future but the Wolfman Report notes that video cameras right now are both more expensive and less flexible than conventional movie cameras.

You can roam through the tables of this book for hours, as many retailers and manufacturers do. But the statistics come from people like you and me who shoot pictures. I wonder if we'll beat that 12 billion picture mark set last year by shooting more in 1980 despite the increased cost of film?

Manson Prosecutor Is Today A Defense Attorney

By WILLIAM H. ALLEN
CHICAGO (UPI) — Vincent T. Bugliosi, the former deputy Los Angeles County district attorney who prosecuted the Charles Manson family, is now on the other side of the courtroom.

"I'd like to try to establish myself as the leading criminal defense attorney in this country," says Bugliosi. "I feel that I have the tools to do it. I'm very confident that I can do it. My problem is that I have to get the right case."

Bugliosi, 45, is co-author of "Helter Skelter" and "Till Death Us Do Part," both books about cases he successfully prosecuted. Together they have sold more than 7 million copies.

He is noted for his dramatic, physically draining summations.

"The argument — taking pieces of evidence and drawing inferences, powerful persuasive inferences from that evidence, to persuade the jury of the righteousness of your cause — to me that's the single most important part of the case in so far as the lawyers are concerned," he said.

From early January through mid-March, Bugliosi was in Chicago as one of five defense lawyers for Illinois Attorney General William J. Scott. Scott, who was charged with five counts of filing false federal income tax returns, was convicted on one of the counts.

Some observers believed Bugliosi's eight-hour closing argument to the 10-man, two-woman jury, spread over two days, was key to Scott's acquittal on the other four charges against him. Then again, at least one of the jurors said his summation was "too long."

Bugliosi said he spent between 200 and 250 hours on his final argument in the Scott case.

Bugliosi, a Hibbing, Minn., native, was Minnesota prep tennis champion before moving to Los Angeles for his senior year in high school and winning the city championship.

He went to the University of Miami (Fla.) on a tennis scholarship, served in the U.S. Army and graduated from UCLA Law School in 1964 as president of his class. He was admitted to the California bar the same year and began work in the DA's office, where he stayed for eight years before moving into private practice.

Bugliosi was professor of criminal law at the Beverly School of Law in Los Angeles from 1968 through 1974. He was an unsuccessful Democratic candidate for Los Angeles County DA in 1972 and for California attorney general in 1974. He is married, has two children and lives in Beverly Hills, Calif.

Asked who he would obtain as his attorney if he were charged with a crime, Bugliosi said he'd have to choose himself.

"When you ask a tough question like this it has to sound boastful, but the alternative is to lie. And I'm telling you that I would represent myself because I don't think there's a lawyer anywhere in this country who does any more homework or any more preparation than I do. I don't think that's a boast. I think it's a fact."

Bugliosi is critical of other lawyers for not doing their "homework" before and during a trial.

"They get up there and they argue off the top of their heads," he said. "I don't know of any lawyer that I've ever come across who has bled his case white, as it were — gotten 100 percent out of his case in final summation... "I am very confident — of course it sounds boastful — that I do that."

Bugliosi said he is trying to shake his image as a prosecutor but refuses to take cases in which he doesn't believe.

He said he has received requests to represent several prominent murder defendants around the country but investigated the cases and turned them down because he found "they were just clear, premeditated murders without mitigating facts."

He said he's not critical of lawyers who take those types of cases. "But I put my heart and soul into every case. I work 100 hours a week. And I cannot get up in front of that jury and try to talk them into acquitting someone whom I not only believe to be guilty, but if it's a murder case, where someone's in a grave and there are no extenuating circumstances."

Bugliosi plans to continue writing but wants to get away from co-authoring books with professional writers.

"Without them, the books unquestionably would not have been best-sellers. So I have to work on my writing skills a little bit to develop to the point where I can write a best-seller myself."

Couldn't Insure Displayed Coins

BARBERTON, Ohio (AP) — Hanging on a wall at Chet O'Kelley's cocktail lounge is a 3-by 4½-foot photograph of O'Kelley as a boxer. The picture's background is filled with glued-on coins, mostly silver.

In view of rising silver prices, O'Kelley decided to replace the coins — $375.50 in face value — with non-silver, half-dollars. He decided to do so when his insurance agent said he couldn't insure the picture and the coins because the picture was on display over a bar.

The picture shows O'Kelley as a 135-pound, 26-year-old, Ohio lightweight boxing champion. He won 116 of 128 fights in 10 years before he retired in 1939.
